The Enchantment Of Early Spring

LATE AFTERNOON CHASE—With the late afternoon sky forming a background, three children race in the spring like weather toward a small family cemetery atop a hill in Madison County. The plot is the resting place of some original homesteaders, but it and giant oak tree standing solitary guard, are simply the finish of a race.

$136,811 for each trainee? ...will take until April to determine accurate facts...

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — State manpower officials say it will take until April to find out if the state really spent $136,811 for each of the 73 persons placed in a job in the last half of 1975 under a federally-funded training program.

A spokesman for the Office of Employment and Training said Saturday the agency's quarterly reports covering the period show $9.5 million was spent, but he added field reports on placements have been slow in coming in and the figure is expected to drop considerably by the time the next report is made.

"We don't have all the figures. We've got problems collecting the data and the philosophy we follow is that if we don't have all the information, we only use accurate information," said Bob Griffith, the agency's public information officer.

"We won't make up anything and we won't guess on anything," he said.

A department staff analysis of the program that is funded under the Comprehensive Employment and Training said it is suffering from "severe performance problems" and isn't meeting goals set by manpower planners.

"How is it possible we placed only 73 people in six months after spending more than $9.5 million?" the document asked.

For the 1974-75 fiscal year, said department officials, the training cost was about $26,000 per person.

Griffith said community colleges, private firms and some state and local agencies involved in providing the training to the unemployed, underemployed and the poor, have been slow in getting in their reports and the agency has been having problems adapting the reports to its new computer system.

He said the agency was working with the field units to get accurate figures submitted.

"Part of it is that people out there don't realize the importance of accurate, up to date, information being reported to us," said Griffith.

Griffith noted that in one instance the agency reported only 31 persons served by a particular phase of the program, because that's all the completed forms it had on hand from field offices. That portion of the program, he said, had at least 2,000 persons enrolled, "but the documents are not in our office."

Gibson Praether, press secretary to Sen. Robert Morgan, D-N.C., said Morgan might call for an investigation of the program in the state by the Government Accounting Office, but that Morgan wanted to obtain more information before making any move.

The Office of Employment and Training Administrators about $80 million in federal manpower funds in 87 counties. Agencies on the local level actually operate the job training program that Griffith said presently covers about 16,000 persons in all the various phases.

Thirteen counties run their own training programs and deal directly with the Department of Labor, rather than contracting with the state agency.

Helms Appears In Rally For Reagan

By BETTY HATCH Reflector Staff Writer

In an effort to drum up and encourage local support for Ronald Reagan as a presidential candidate, U.S. Senator Jesse Helms addressed a large crowd Saturday night in Memorial Gym at East Carolina University.

Helms praised Reagan as "the one man above all" who stood up for Barry Goldwater and the Republican party in the 1964 presidential election.

"Who can forget the countless appearances that Ronald Reagan made throughout this country that year?" Helms asked. "That was the period in which millions of Americans began saying, 'Some day I hope to be able to vote for that man for President of the United States.' That 'some day' is here."

The Senator expressed a desire for an honest political race between Reagan and President Ford and stressed the need for a strong two-party system.

"Whether one favors Ronald Reagan or Gerry Ford," he said, "let us all insist and demand that this year's competition for the nomination be free of rancor and pettiness."

"As a willing surrogate for Governor Reagan," he added, "I pledge that, insofar as my cabletow reaches, there will be no devious or contrived attacks on Gerry Ford. I want to build a two-party system, not undermine it."

The Senator noted that the building of a strong bipartisan political system should be "a top priority in North Carolina and the nation" in order to give the voters a clear-cut choice of philosophies and principles.

Helms also commented on Reagan's gubernatorial service in California.

Registration Deadline

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — If passed March 23, the constitutional amendment registration deadline for North Carolina's March 23 primary in which citizens can choose among eight different presidential contenders and vote on an amendment to the state constitution and a major bond referendum.

The ballots, which are already being printed, offers the Republican voter a choice between former California Gov. Ronald Reagan and President Gerald Ford.

For the Democrat, the choice is between former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter, Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., former Oklahoma Sen. Fred Harris, former Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona, Alabama Gov. George Wallace, and Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex.

In order to register for the primary, a voter must be 18 years old by March 23.

Suspected Members Of Radical Group Arrested

By JOHN LEIGHTY SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Six suspected members of the radical underground were arrested Saturday in a Richmond, Calif., house where police and FBI agents seized 150 pounds of explosives and several armed bombs.

Literature of the New World Liberation Front and the Emiliano Zapata Unit was found in the house, which had been surrounded by a small army of fatigue-clad members of police special weapons teams.

Bloodmobile 3 Day Visit

A three-day Bloodmobile visit to Pitt County is scheduled for this week, according to Pitt Blood chairman Billy Ross.

Ross said that the Greenville Jaycees are sponsoring visits on Monday and Tuesday at the Moose Lodge here with Monday's drive scheduled from 11 a.m. until 5 p.m. and Tuesday's visit from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m.

On Wednesday, the Bloodmobile will be in Ayden for a 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. visit at the Ayden Community Building, Ross said. He noted that the visit is being sponsored by the citizens of the community.

The chairman urged everyone eligible to donate this week. He said that everyone who gave blood at the last Bloodmobile visit here is again eligible due to the time period between visits.

Volunteer nurses who would like to help during the visits should call Mrs. Ruth Taylor, executive secretary of the Pitt Red Cross, at 752-4222.

The six suspects were jailed in Richmond, located across the bay from San Francisco, and the FBI said the significance of the arrests were "still being evaluated," the FBI said.

Those arrested were Janice Orson, 28, an unemployed waitress; Steven Scipes, 24, an unemployed counselor, of Berkeley; Carolyn Williams, 28, unemployed, of Guerneville, Calif.; Ellen Kesend, 28, self-employed writer, of San Francisco; Frederick Salkind, 23, a garment worker, of Berkeley; and Alfonso Garcia, a leather craftsman, no address.

FBI agent in charge Charles Bates said both the NWLF and the Zapata group have claimed responsibility for numerous terrorist bombings in California during the past two years. The NWLF is blamed for a blast which caused $1 million damage to a house at the Hearst Castle in San Simeon 10 days ago.

After the San Simeon blast, a message purportedly from the NWLF demanded that the family of Patricia Hearst contribute $250,000 to the defense of William and Emily Harris, members of the notorious Symbionese Liberation Army facing trial in Los Angeles.

The FBI said information leading to the arrests came after questioning of two persons arrested in a shootout in Lagunitas, Calif., a small community north of San Francisco, last Tuesday.

Scores of agents surrounded the modest home in Richmond, on the east side of San Francisco, before dawn. The suspects surrendered without resistance, although one of the suspects pointed a gun at arresting agents before surrendering with the others.

Proclamation

Monday and Tuesday of this week have been designated by Mayor Percy Cox as Bloodmobile Days for Greenville.

Blood Pressure?

A free blood pressure-checking clinic has been scheduled by the Greenville Moose Lodge on Wednesday evenings for seven consecutive weeks.

W.E. Barnes, community service chairman for the lodge, has arranged for the service to be available from 6:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m. each Wednesday through April 7. Nurses will conduct the tests.

Lodge Governor James Flemming said he had been informed that one out of every ten persons beyond the age of 15 years has hypertension without being aware of the affliction. He added that there was an added degree of assurance in follow-up blood pressure tests, because of the possibility of variances from day to day.

ECU Professor Claims

N.C. Public Schools Deserves More Credit

By FRANCEINE PERRY ECU News Bureau

An eminent authority on academic scholarship believes North Carolina's public schools deserve more credit than they are getting in preparing young people for academic achievement at the college level.

Dr. John D. Ebbs, professor of English at East Carolina University, says he has found marked improvement in recent first-year students on campus here.

"Our state's college freshmen are more serious than ever about their studies, indicate more direction in their future plans, and know more about the meaning of academic excellence than we have noticed in past years," Ebbs said.

An instance of this, he believes, is the fact that North Carolina residents among ECU's outstanding freshmen in Phi Eta Sigma honor society comprise about 80 percent of the total membership.

"This says good things about North Carolina schools," he said. "Despite the pervasive myths on this campus and others in the UNC system, the achievers are not necessarily the out-of-state students."

"The fact that so many North Carolinians qualified for membership in the freshman honor society reflects in great part their background in the state's public school system."

To be invited to join Phi Eta Sigma, a student must achieve a 3.5 academic grade point average during the first three years of college.

Dr. Ebbs is faculty advisor to the society, and is also advisor to the ECU League of Scholars, as well as campus representative for the Rhodes, Danforth and Wilson scholarship programs.

Freshmen who qualify for Phi Eta Sigma may remain active during the remainder of their campus studies. Upper-level students with superior grade point averages are eligible to join Phi Kappa Phi honor society during the junior or senior year.

"Membership in honor societies such as these rewards students who have maintained a standard of excellence, and encourages them to continue this standard."

"The freshman honor society puts them on the right track, and encourages its members to keep their grade point averages high all through college years."

Dr. Ebbs, who has been a member of the East Carolina faculty since 1960, attributes the improvement in the calibre of college students to three factors, besides the effectiveness of high school preparation.

"There is a widespread demand that students do well on college entrance exams and attend college," he said.

"The general availability of television and other forms of mass media have made this generation of students more practical, realistic and mature than those of previous years. And the continuous improvement and expansion in ECU's programs have demanded that students excel as never before."

"Every aspect of this campus has been finely honed for quality: if our students did not have good secondary school backgrounds, they would not be able to take advantage of this."

Dr. Ebbs concedes that at ECU and elsewhere, today's students are in some cases deficient in spelling and other

THANK YOU

I've wanted to write for oh, so long
Each time I tried, something else would go wrong.
Please forgive me for the long delay
It truly makes it harder to know what to say
Months have come and gone, since September
A lot that's happened, I don't want to remember
But all the kindness you did again and again
Will always be instilled in my poor old brain
My morale was lifted with every single card.
Each one showing, so sincerely, your kind regard
The flowers, of course, you know, were just right
Being a country girl, they made being indoors more bright
Over and over again you answered my every need
With each gift and visit you planted a "Get well seed"
Those seeds were nourished because of your prayers and concern
Which will over power the "bug", no more to return
How can I put on paper the appreciation I feel?
My heart is filled with grateful emotions which are so real
I have such beautiful thoughts running through my mind.
Please try to see them between each line.
The Doctors — they were so many
My debt to them I'll never be able to pay
The Nurses and Aides in ICU on floors two A and B and Floor Three
All the X-Ray staff and anyone that gave me any small act of kindness and deed.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Effie Wynn

P.S. My family is the best, this goes without saying
They cared for me constantly and did a lot of praying.

Nixons Greeted By Hua Kuo-feng

By CHARLES R. SMITH, UPI SENIOR EDITOR
 PEKING (UPI) — Former President Richard M. Nixon arrived in cold and misty Peking Saturday to a chatty, friendly welcome from China's new acting premier, Hua Kuo-feng, who teased him about daughter Julie's role in arranging the trip.

Nixon's visit was timed to coincide with the fourth anniversary of his 1972 visit that ended almost 25 years of Sino-American estrangement and restored partial relations between the two countries.

Nixon and his wife, Pat, arrived at Peking airport aboard a special Chinese airliner flown to Los Angeles to bring him to China on a private visit at the invitation of Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung.

"Today, Feb. 21, is a very memorable day for us because of that historic visit," Hua told Nixon during a brief informal chat.

"Four years ago—it was exactly four years ago—when Mr. Nixon took his courageous act in coming to China," Hua said. "It was during that visit that our two sides issued the Shanghai communique that opened the door to development of relations."

Hua recalled that Nixon's daughter Julie recently was in China and met with 82-year-old Mao. It was during that meeting, Hua said, that "Chairman Mao told your daughter he would welcome you back to China."

Laughing, Hua turned to Foreign Minister Chiao Kuan-hua and said, "She called her father the very next day."

The Nixon-Hua chat took place in a large reception room of the Tiao Yu Tai (fishing tackle) guest house where Nixon stayed when he first came to China and wrote one of the most successful chapters of a presidency that ended in his resignation.

Nixon said he was "particularly appreciative of the great courtesy" the Chinese had demonstrated by sending a special plane for him.

Nixon will spend eight days in China. His first activity was to be a meeting before noon Sunday with Tang Ying-chao, the widow of the late Premier Chou En-lai, the official hostess during the first Nixon visit.

Sunday afternoon Nixon meets with Hua in the Great Hall of the People for their first round of talks.

This is one of the rare occasions when the State Council has hosted a banquet for a private individual. Chinese officials could not recall when the last such banquet was held.

Last Help From Vietnam

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — U.S. sources here say the return of the bodies of the last two American servicemen killed in the Indochina war will probably be the last help the United States will get from Vietnam in its search for the missing and dead unless Washington changes its policy towards Hanoi.

They said that about 600 Vietnamese in the U.S. have applied to return and potentially there are others. More than 1,000 were repatriated last year.

Human Guinea Pigs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Scientists in a secret government project injected 18 men, women and children with overdoses of bomb-grade plutonium three decades ago without telling their human guinea pigs what they were being given, federal researchers said Saturday.

Dr. James Liverman of the Energy Research and Development Administration said the World War II-era experiment was forgotten for about 20 years and records are sketchy today. But, he said, there is no evidence any of the 18 suffered ill effects from their injections.

Wants Lockheed Information

TOKYO (UPI) — Both houses of the Japanese parliament will hold emergency sessions Monday to ask the United States to hand over all information on the Lockheed payoff scandal in Japan.

The parliament's lower house steering committee Friday approved a resolution calling for more information from the Ford administration and the subcommittee on multinational corporations headed by Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, concerning the scandal.

The resolution, passed jointly by ruling and opposition party members of the committee, paved the way for emergency sessions by both houses Monday.

Says Nuclear Plants Safe

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — A professor at Massachusetts Institute of Technology says nuclear plants are extremely safe, but that doubts expressed by three nuclear engineers who resigned their jobs should be carefully examined.

Prof. Norman Rasmussen, chairman of MIT's department of nuclear engineering, told a forum Friday night that nuclear accidents are 10,000 times less likely to happen than other accidents such as dam failures and plane crashes.

Rasmussen said it is more likely an airliner will crash into a crowded stadium than that a nuclear accident will occur.

Exiles Can Return

PARIS (AP) — A promise that most Spanish political exiles can return to Spain has caused hardly a ripple in the big exile colony in France.

"It's too late, much too late," said one exile. "Where are the guarantees of freedom?" asked another.

The Spanish exile colony in France hit a high of about 500,000 in 1939 after the forces of Gen. Francisco Franco won the Spanish civil war. But now they number an estimated 80,000. Another 80,000 live in other parts of the world, including about 25,000 in Mexico.

Could Start Gas War

CHICAGO (AP) — Price slashing on gasoline by a station on the Nebraska Plains could start a nationwide trend, says an oil industry newsletter.

Herb Hugo, senior editor for Platt's Oilgram, said Friday an independent gas station in Scottsbluff, Neb., cut prices at the pump from 52.9 to 39.9 cents per gallon for regular gasoline. A national price war could result, he said.

"Long lines are forming to get this gas at the Farmland Industries station in Scottsbluff," said Hugo.

Time To Insure No Misuse

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge said Friday the time has come for the FBI to insure that its 21.4 million criminal files are not misused to damage the reputations of people with incorrect or out of date police records. U.S. District Judge Lewis Smith Jr. declined, however, to order the FBI to seek out and eliminate all of its old or inaccurate data. Smith's decision came as a result of a suit filed by John Brent Tarleton, who complained that his file carried arrest records more than 20 years old. The judge said nearly 70 per cent of the FBI files include at least one entry of an arrest that fails to show what happened to the charges.

Israeli Withdrawal

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — A handful of Israeli officers lowered the Star of David at two strategic passes in the Sinai Desert Saturday, symbolically ending a withdrawal that began with the U.S.-mediated pact with Egypt last Sept. 1.

Government sources said U.N. peacekeeping forces took control of the 2,140 square mile area on schedule at 12 noon (5 a.m. EST).

President Ford said Saturday his new intelligence oversight board will be an "independent auditor" of spying abuses, free of White House influence.

Ford spent about a half hour with the board, headed by veteran diplomat Robert Murphy, which he created by executive order Wednesday as part of a reform and reorganization of the intelligence community.

Auditor Board

By HELEN THOMAS, UPI White House Reporter
 WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford said Saturday his new intelligence oversight board will be an "independent auditor" of spying abuses, free of White House influence.

The board is to insure intelligence operations do not violate U.S. laws and civil rights, or lead to abuses of power of the type disclosed by Congress the past year. Ford said these responsibilities were an "extremely significant" feature of his intelligence reforms.

"We have told the intelligence community on the one hand what they can do, and what they can't do on the other hand," Ford said.

U.S., Brazil Sign Pact

By JUAN J. WALTE, BRASILIA, Brazil (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said Saturday an unprecedented U.S.-Brazil pact on international and bilateral cooperation was not meant to turn U.S. Latin American policy into "an obsession" with Cuba.

At a news conference after the signing ceremony in Brasilia's futuristic Foreign Ministry building, Kissinger denied the pact had any relation to Cuba or that nation's recent intervention in Angola.

The agreement is not "designed to enlist support against Cuba," the secretary said. "I don't want to turn our Western Hemisphere policy or our mutual interest" was negotiated over the last two years and is unique in the history of U.S.-South American relations.

Under the pact, the hemispheric giants are to hold high-level semiannual talks in Washington and Brasilia to discuss bilateral issues and the "full range of foreign policy matters including any specific issue that may be raised by either side."

The 10-point "memorandum of understanding concerning consultations on matters of mutual interest" was negotiated over the last two years and is unique in the history of U.S.-South American relations.

Kissinger, who at the signing with Foreign Minister Antonio Azeredo da Silveira several times called the Brazilian by his first name, told reporters, "I believe Brazil is destined to join the club of the rich."

In 'Civil Rights Execution' Denies Involvement

By FLOYD H. NORRIS, MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — An attorney for one of three alleged Ku Klux Klansmen accused in a 1957 "civil rights execution" denied Saturday that any of the men were involved and said he was shocked charges were being brought nearly 20 years later.

"We absolutely deny any connection," said Richard Jordan, the lawyer for William "Sonny" Kyle Livingston, 38, a bail bondsman who was once acquitted on a charge of bombing a black church. "I'm not even sure a killing took place."

Livingston and two others—Ames York, 73, a retired city sanitation worker and Henry Alexander, 46, a plumbing contractor—were arrested Friday for the 1957 killing of Willie Edwards Jr., a 25-year-old black who disappeared while making deliveries for a grocery chain.

The suspects were held without bail Saturday in the Montgomery County Jail. Authorities refused to allow reporters to speak to the men. Attorney General William J. Baxley said the three were KKK members.

They were charged with throwing Edwards off a bridge into the Alabama River on Jan. 23, 1957, three months before his body was found.

Jordan said he was shocked that charges would be brought now. "I never heard of any such thing, arresting somebody 20 years later. It's amazing that all that time nothing ever developed, and now they say they have a case," he said.

The three accused men have faced previous charges, but only Alexander ever served time. He spent ten days in jail after a 1964 church-bombing charge was reduced to the misdemeanor charge of disturbing religious worship.

Granted Increase, May Seek Another In '77

RALEIGH (AP) — Even though Carolina Power and Light Co. was granted the largest rate increase in its history on Friday, a company spokesman predicts another increase will be sought before the end of April 1977.

H. Sidney Linton, a CP&L public relations officer, said Saturday the firm will need additional funds when the second half of the Brunswick nuclear powered generating plant in Southport begins operation in April 1977. "It hasn't been determined if the filing (for higher rates) will be in advance of or simultaneously with Brunswick No. 1 coming into operation," he said.

When the just-approved $81 million increase was being argued, Shearon Harris, CP&L president, told the state Utilities Commission the utility will seek higher rates in the future to cover higher costs of the nuclear plant. Nuclear plants have fuel costs lower than coal or oil, but they are far more expensive to construct.

The decision allowing CP&L the full increase it requested stirred up anger among legislative leaders and consumers. Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt, a Democratic gubernatorial candidate, and House Speaker James C. Green, a Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, called for legislative review of the commission and the state's utilities laws.

Black Civil War Hero Honored

BEAUFORT, S.C. (AP) — Beaufort honored its black native son, Civil War hero and legislator, Robert Smalls, in a special parade and sculpture dedication ceremony Saturday.

About 20 of Smalls' direct descendants, civic organization members, church members and others joined in the celebration. Smalls captained the Planter, a ship captured from the Confederate Army, past guns at Charleston during the Civil War. He surrendered it to a blockading Union fleet.

He served in the Constitutional Convention of 1868, the South Carolina Senate and the U.S. Congress. At the end of his career, he was the collector of customs for Beaufort.

Higher Education Needs Votes

Among the items to be voted on March 23 is a $43.2 million bond issue which will finance capital improvements at 13 of the state's universities. As most of us know, the State Legislature was faced with an extremely tight budget outlook earlier this year when the biennial budget was drawn up. The disappointing state revenues are still causing troubles and even further slashes in the budget are expected to be made.

The budget makers allocated funds for a new building to house the law school at N. C. Central University and for the medical school at East Carolina University. After that there was virtually nothing left for the other campuses of the state university system. So the act setting up the higher education bond issue was approved by the Legislature.

It is easy for us who live in this area to say that there's nothing in the bond funds for ECU, so why vote for it. And it is also easy to say that here's another bond issue and thus be automatically against it.

Before any of us make such a decision, however, we should remember our own arguments for keeping the medical school funds in the budget, even though other things were cut out. The point was made that the medical school should begin as quickly as possible and the entire appropriation was needed to get it accredited. Thus, even though things were tight it was argued we should allocate the funds, recognizing that the state's finances would soon get better. The same argument applies to the higher education bonds. It's a tight year financially, but the projects to be financed are badly needed, and thus we should see that the funds are made available.

Citizens in our area should vote for these higher education bonds because they are needed for the future of higher education. If we want to look at it selfishly we should remember that many supporters of these institutions and many legislators representing their areas came to the aid of the ECU medical school when the fight was fiercest. We can also recognize that if these projects are not financed by the bond issue, it's going to be a long time before some other much needed projects are financed on the ECU campus.

The $42.2 million higher education bond issue is not a large amount and it won't require any new direct taxes. Its passage will assure that our higher education capital improvement program can continue even during these tight times. We urge citizens to vote in favor of the bond issue.

Tunnel? What Tunnel?

By FREDERICK H. MARKS
CHORWON, Korea (UPI) — There are two "mysterious" tunnels deep inside the rugged mountains which sit astride the Korean demilitarized zone.

The South Koreans say there's no mystery about the tunnels, which are illegal under the Korean armistice that for 22 years has kept the two Koreas from slugging it out in a devastating war.

The South Koreans charge that the tunnels were secretly dug out by North Korea.

The North Koreans, though apparently caught in the act, deny any knowledge of the tunnels. Their response to South Korean charges might be characterized as: Tunnels? What tunnels?

But they are there, and a visit to one of them in this barren sector of the DMZ, shows that someone put a tremendous amount of work into digging them.

The tunnel here at Chorwon, in the middle of the Korean peninsula, measures about six feet by six feet and extends an estimated 3,500 yards from North Korea well into the South Korean zone of the DMZ.

The South Koreans estimate that at least a regiment of North Koreans could move through the tunnel within an hour.

The tunnels first came to light in November, 1974, when a South Korean patrol observed steam escaping from the ground. Investigating, the patrol came under fire from North Koreans.

Eventually, however, the first tunnel was cleared, and in it was a narrow gauge railroad track capable of moving carts of troops and supplies beneath the DMZ.

The second tunnel, at Chorwon, was discovered when South Korean guards began hearing mysterious noises deep inside the ground.

A series of bore holes were drilled, and seven of them found the mark. Thirty thousand gallons of water were poured down into the tunnel to discourage further digging.

The South Koreans then built an access tunnel and discovered the North Koreans had indeed halted work on the tunnel, leaving it blocked in several places and well mined. Seven South Korean troops were killed in clearing operations.

The South Koreans maintain a constant guard on the tunnel. At the middle of the DMZ, deep under the ground, they have erected a steel door to discourage use of the tunnel by North Koreans.

South Korean President Park Chung-Hee has estimated that there may be as many as 17 tunnels being built under the DMZ. South Korean efforts to find them, however, have been to no avail.

Nonetheless, the South Koreans have built an elaborate monitoring system of sophisticated listening devices along their southern boundary of the DMZ.

Theoretically, if the North Koreans so much as lift a shovel, the South Koreans will know about it.

One Part Of Growing Health Complex

The Pitt County Mental Health Center began use of its fine new facility on the Stantonsburg Road last week.

The building was constructed at a cost of $444,079 and contains 12,000 square feet of floor space. Some 46 employees will be working there.

The Mental Health building is part of a growing complex of health buildings in that area which includes the new Pitt Memorial Hospital, the AHEC program, the medical school and other facilities.

We are pleased that this new building is complete and in service. We believe it will aid center personnel in doing a better job.

Not All Support Effort

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Not all private schools in North Carolina agree with the push for less state supervision which has been presented to a legislative study commission currently re-writing state school law.

A number of representatives of the non-public schools have met with State Senator Edward Renfrow, D-Johnston, chairman of the study group, and one of the suggestions was that a separate school board be established for private schools, separate from the State Board of Education. Some even suggested abolition of state supervision altogether.

That posture is not the policy of the North Carolina Association of Independent Schools which has presented Senator Renfrow with a written statement outlining the stand of the 34 schools in that association.

A Difference
"We recognize and support the legitimate interest of the state to oversee the education of all its citizens. . . . At the same time, we strenuously support the constitutional right of parents to determine how their children shall be educated and to seek . . . an alternative," that statement noted.

Robert Johnston, headmaster at Durham Academy and president of the N. C. Association of Independent Schools, has met with Renfrow along with other leaders of the non-public schools. He said at that meeting, and continues to emphasize, that the two areas in which all private schools resist state control is textbooks and curriculum.

The position paper put forth by the 37 schools says: "If the result of your work (re-writing school law) is to insist that all schools—public and non-public — use the same textbooks, all teachers follow the identical route to certification, all administrators take courses in public school administration, all classes meet the same time on the same days of the year and teach basically the same material, then the element of parental choice is diminished, education becomes monopolistic and oligarchal, and democracy is lost."

As Senator Renfrow has pointed out, the debate comes down to a matter of philosophy, in which a large number of non-public school people resist state control entirely because those school people believe public schools are teaching wrongly in matters of religion and moral instruction. Those schools are basically sponsored by churches which embrace fundamentalist religion views and want to employ teachers from Bible colleges, not teacher training institutes, and want to teach religion in the classroom.

Group Splits

That is the point at which the 34 members of the Association of Independent Schools depart. While some of those are church-related, it is generally with non-fundamentalist religions such as Episcopal, Roman Catholic, and Jewish.

There are a total of 285 non-public schools in North Carolina, with about half directly or indirectly church related. Of the 34 members of the association which he heads, Johnston says, "We are not together with the others on philosophy, or the effort to escape state supervision."

"We agree that supervision ought to be there . . . absolutely. And, we want to be a part of the solution."

Johnston says the independent schools do not seek even stronger state supervision, except for those non-public schools which might be defined as not performing a real educational job, or which exist wholly to create an escape for some from integrated public schools.

"But we would like to be a part of the necessary supervision," he explained, and suggested that representation on the State Board of Education, and existence of an advisory committee to the state board representing non-public schools would be one approach to a solution.

Sunday Morning Notes

Carl Whitfield, field representative for the Eastern District of the Governors Highway Safety Program, says he and his wife visited their son's family in Rocky Mount on a recent weekend.

Carl, Jr. has a daughter, Wendy, 4½ years old. Whitfield reported he washed his hands in the bathroom of the home and prepared to use the beautiful guest towels which had been placed there.

"Wait a minute, granddaddy," Wendy exclaimed. "You can't use those towels. They're for company!"

"Reagan for President" signs appeared last week in

Considering Ronald Reagan's recent controversy over his plan for a $90 billion federal budget cut, it is safe to assume that his local headquarters ain't Santa's shop.

Your columnist dropped by to say hello to Woody Fearing, pharmacist at Eckerd's the other day at lunch time.

After we spoke I commented, "I guess I'll go back to work."
"Work," Woody exclaimed.

"Have you changed jobs?"
Okay, so I'll watch my terminology.

One of the things which Pitt citizens are going to be hearing more about as time goes by is the possibility of merging the city and county school systems.

ALVIN TAYLOR

At present the systems are separate with Ott Alford superintendent of county schools and Glenn Cox, the city school superintendent. The two superintendents work well together, even though it is recognized that, if a merger ever comes to pass, there will be only one superintendent's position.

Recently a letter came to Cox's office from the State Board of Education. It was addressed: Mr. Arthur S. Alford, Greenville City Board of Education.
Cox sent the envelope on to Alford with the written comment, "I realize you covet my position, but please stop telling everyone it has come to pass."

Well, maybe when the time comes we can flip a coin . . .

Other Editors Say The Fundamentals

(Wilson Times)

Education will hold the spotlight at the coming session of the General Assembly. For there is a decline in the level of literacy among entering undergraduates at the state's institutions of higher learning. The Faculty Assembly of the 16-campus University of North Carolina system has called on the public schools to place more emphasis on reading and writing.

The group's five-point resolution was presented Friday to the UNC Board of Governors. Copies have also been sent to A. Craig Phillips, state superintendent of public instruction, and W. Dallas Herring, chairman of the state Board of Education.

"In recent years we have observed in our departments a phenomenon that has caused concern all over the country; a decline in the level of literacy among entering undergraduates," the resolution said. "This decline is so serious that students encounter an uncommon degree of difficulty with their work in any subject that requires proficiency in reading and writing."

Phillips said Friday he agreed with some of the recommendations, but defended the schools on some points. Herring said he agreed with all the suggestions.

The resolution said:
—Greater emphasis should be placed on "the fundamentals of reading and writing" in elementary schools.

—Candidates for teacher certification in grades one through nine should be required to demonstrate proficiency in reading instruction.

—Junior and senior high schools should provide "thorough study in reading and composition."

—No English composition teacher should be required to teach more than 100 students a day. That maximum was recommended by the National Council of Teachers of English; North Carolina law says that high school teachers may not be required to teach more than 150 students a day.

It was generally agreed by both Phillips and Herring that 150 students in English is too many, that 100 students is as many as a teacher should have, for reading and writing carry a top priority.

INSIDE REPORT

Congress And Absentees

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
On Feb. 5, a high official of the Federal Energy Administration (FEA) saw the chance of a generation slipping away and placed a panicky long distance call to one of several Republican Congressmen who had suddenly disappeared from the House floor—a disappearance that can best be described as scandalous.

The chance was the first good prospect in two decades and perhaps the last good prospect for some time of deregulation of natural gas prices. That's why the FEA official panicked when he noted so many absentees and tried to round them up. Actually reaching one back home in his district, he asked the Congressman what in the world he was doing there. The reply was blunt: "Hell, I've got a tough race on my hands."

Tough reelection contests plus paid speaking engagements, vacations, routine weekend visits home and just plain lassitude accumulated 25 absentees for the Thursday afternoon vote. Since most of the absentees favored deregulation, they are responsible for a 205 to 201 vote that killed gas deregulation almost surely for this year and quite probably into the foreseeable future.

To permit their troops to wander on such a critical vote questions the competency of House Republican leaders but also raises this broader point: Members of the best paid, best staffed and most luxuriously equipped parliamentary body in the history of man often act more like volunteer village selectmen handling legislative duties in their time than directors of a multi-billion-dollar corporation.

That so liberal a Congress seemed about to deregulate gas prices after 25 years of court-ordered controls was a triumph of reason over ideology. Many liberals, threatened by a natural gas shortage, had become convinced that artificially low regulated prices inhibited production. That generated Senate passage of a moderate deregulation bill and what seemed nearly certain House approval of an even better bill.

Strength For Today

WHAT IS EDUCATION?

We often speak of people as being well-educated, yet seldom do we analyze the meaning of the term. Merely spending four years at a college or university does not automatically confer education.

Someone once asked Socrates to define an educated man. The answer was, "Those who control circumstances instead of being mastered by them; those who meet all occasions manfully and act in accordance with intelligent thinking; those who are honorable in all their dealings, who treat good-naturedly persons and things that are disagreeable; and furthermore, those who hold their pleasures under control and are not overcome by misfortune; finally those who are not spoiled by success."

If this is education, then we have all seen many well-educated people who have had very little to do with schools. Education is not a matter of degrees and diplomas—important as these are—but of inward quality of mind and heart.

Whimsical Epitaphs Exhibited

By WILLIAM KRONHOLM
Associated Press Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Pity poor Sally Lord. She had the misfortune to have her early American tombstone carved by a would-be poet.

The stone, located in Skaneateles, N.Y., reads as follows:

"Underneath this pile of stones,
Her name was Lord, it was not Jones.
But Jones was used to rhyme with stones."
It's one of the whimsical epitaphs in a display of "American Grave Stone Art, 1647-1903," now on exhibit at the State Office Tower. The display, sponsored by the Ohio Foundation for the Arts, was collected by Francis Duval and Ivan Rigby of Brooklyn, N.Y.

Most of the photographic exhibit is devoted to the extinct art of gravestone carving, illustrating the elaborate symbolism and detail of an art which had died by the 20th Century.

But a small portion noted the whimsy which sometimes accompanies death. There was, for example, this tombstone from Kittery, Maine:

"We can but mourn his loss,
"Though wretched was his life,
"Death took him from the cross
"Erected by his wife."
There was also a stoic acceptance in this Vermont epitaph:

"Beneath this stone our baby lays,
"He neither cries or hollers.
"He lived but one and twenty days
"And cost us forty dollars."

Social comment appeared in this New Haven, Conn., stone:

"God works a wonder
"Now and then.
"He, though a lawyer,
"Was an honest man."

A philosophical question appeared in another Connecticut gravestone:
"Since I so very soon
"Was done for
"I wonder why
"I was begun for."

And someone in Calais, Vt., decided to have the last word with the following gravestone addendum:
"P.S. The old nuisance."

Public Confidence In Economy Growing--Gallup

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N.J. — Public optimism regarding the economy is up sharply, representing a nearly complete reversal of economic expectations since the previous survey conducted last September. Nearly twice as many Americans are now optimistic about the economy — that is, say the economic situation will improve — as are pessimistic.

The latest survey shows 49 per cent of the public think the economic situation will improve during the next six months — a high point in optimism since these surveys were initiated in August 1974. On the other hand, 28 per cent think the economy will worsen. The remainder either feel there will be little change (18 per cent) or do not express an opinion (5 per cent).

In the prior survey (September) 32 per cent said they thought economic conditions would improve and 47 per cent thought they would get worse.

The following table shows the change since last September in the proportion of those saying the economic situation will get "better":

Observations From Editorial Columns

States Share Woes

North Carolina is not alone in its problem of trying to stretch a tight budget to accommodate pay increases for state employees. A survey of 37 states shows that most "face an increasingly bleak fiscal future."

Despite this, observers of state finances don't foresee widespread rises in the states' income taxes and sales taxes. Instead, states are likely to increase taxes on tobacco, alcohol and gasoline since these taxes have "low visibility."

In addition to the added hidden taxes, severe budget cuts may become necessary in some states.

It is interesting to discover that most other states are facing financial troubles similar to North Carolina's, but that isn't going to make it any easier for the states to solve its problem. — The Hickory Daily Record

Part Of The Puzzle

How is the nation progressing in its efforts to boost recycling of resources, in the face of the energy crunch?

The sad fact is that Americans haven't even begun to tap the potential savings from recycling.

Enough trash to fill the Panama Canal four times over every year — 40 billion pounds — is produced by U.S. citizens annually. Less than one per cent of it is now reclaimed.

As an example of what might be saved, according to the U.S. Bureau of Mines, the half-million tons of fly ash produced from burning refuse every year could yield 150,000 pounds of reclaimed silver alone.

And besides retrieving valuable metals, shredded burnable refuse could reclaim one quadrillion thermal units of energy every year — or about one third of the energy expected from the Alaska oil pipeline.

Any national energy policy which emerges that overlooks the potential benefits from energy conservation and recycling is simply missing a major piece in the puzzle. — Atlanta (Ga.) Journal

Whose Morale?

A politician in Raleigh last week said state employees in North Carolina are "running out of patience" because signals indicate they are not sure they will get a pay raise in May. Others have spoken stoutly for raises for state employees and have issued other veiled threats in case the public and legislators don't get the message.

Spokesmen for state worker organizations have charged more than once since last summer that the morale of those on the state payroll is low because they are allegedly being unfairly treated.

What the unorganized but often angry taxpayer has to say in response to this soap box oratory sometimes can hardly be printed in family newspapers.

What many taxpayers, specially that army which also isn't getting cost-of-living raises, are saying is that it's high time the state legislature, and other tax-leaving bodies, consider the morale and the patience of the men and women who pay the public bills and yet must live on fixed incomes. — The Laurinburg Exchange attributed generally by key Republicans explaining away the setback cited by that morning's Washington Post revealing heavy oil contributions received by the principal sponsor of deregulation, Democratic Rep. Robert Krueger of Texas. ("Krueger was really indecent to accept that amount of money," one senior Republican Congressman, in an uncharacteristic display of moral indignation, told us.) Such claims are dubious. There is no evidence the avalanche of labor lobbyists changed many votes. Liberal Republican Rep. Margaret Heckler of Massachusetts told us the Krueger revelations helped decide her vote, but there was no stampede. Rather, the seasons seem a smokescreen hiding what one Congressman never chides another for under the gentleman's code of Capitol Hill: Absenteeism.

Expert analysis shows that of the 25 absentees, 15 favored deregulation. Of the remaining 10, only four would have voted against deregulation (with four others not being present to vote in any event and two anti-deregulation Republicans keeping away from the floor at the request of party leaders). Thus, the absentees unquestionably made the difference.

Of the 15 deregulation absentees, only one—Republican Robert McEwen of New York—had a valid excuse: Illness. The remainder apparently had better things to do.

Rep. John Anderson of Illinois, chairman of the House Republican conference, sized up the situation incorrectly and felt he could fulfill a speaking date at the University of Southern Mississippi without missing anything. Three conservative Republicans from OHIO—Donald Clancy, John Ash-brook and Chalmers Wylie—were flying back for weekends in their constituencies (the later two taking earlier planes because of bad weather).

Republican Sam Steiger was giving a speech back home in Arizona. Republican Garry Brown of Michigan was out of town for a rest. Democrat Bill Alexander of Arkansas was in Steamboat Springs, Colo., celebrating his wedding anniversary. Democrat Kenneth Holland of South Carolina was addressing his state's municipal association.

Others were in Washington but not on the floor. Republican Herman Schneebeli of Pennsylvania was cutting a radio tape and did not hear the buzzers. Republican Pete McCloskey of California was caught in a room without buzzers. Democrats Jack Brooks of Texas and Bill Chappell of Florida did not make it to the floor in time. The 15th absentee, Democrat Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas, was not available to explain his absence. Of these, Brooks is suspected by deregulation forces of taking a walk to avoid an anti-labor vote (an accusation denied by Brooks).

Republicans, outnumbered 3 to 2 in the House, accounted for 10 of the missing 15 votes for deregulation. Since nobody claims the Democrats intentionally misled them, this points to needed improvements in the Republican whip system.

But fully grown Congressmen earning $44,600 a year only a small fraction of the tax money spent to support them—ought to be able to get on the floor for vital votes without being whipped. In truth, absenteeism is rampant in Congress, though usually for votes less important and not nearly so close as the probably irreparable action taken Feb. 5.

Banking Critics Should Remember Backgrounds For Current Problems

By GEORGE BRYANT, JR.

The "bad banking" about which liberals in Congress, and parts of the press, are raising such a fuss about today actually had its beginning about 15-years ago, when John Kennedy was president.

It was then that "The brightest and The Best" were brought to Washington to run things right. Economics among them quickly discovered a sort of "fountain of youth". They persuaded the ruling politicians that the old cycle of business ups and downs could be eliminated, for all time.

All that was necessary, according to their discovery, was to "fine tune" spending and credit policies, with the result that the only direction would be UP and at a rate which would maintain full employment and minimize inflation. It was a real dream.

Politicians in Washington went for the scheme like a hungry gar for a minnow. The complaint against the Eisenhower years, which were pretty good, when you look back on them, was that the economy lacked zest. So, the stops, on spending were pulled out. Credit was made plentiful, interest low. What was to become the soaring sixties took off.

Of course, the thing didn't go the way the bright boys planned. The Johnson Administration enacted the Great Society on the home front while it fought a war abroad. This mix of guns and butter, while it created a boom, didn't work out. The cycle wasn't eliminated. Inflation took over and the boom turned into the worst bust since the Great Depression of the 1930s.

But politicians were not the only ones taken in by the "fine tune" theory. A lot of businessmen and individuals, too, threw caution to the winds. There was a rush to get in on the ground floor and gather in the benefits of permanent prosperity. And a lot of these businessmen and individuals, too, are still trying to get rid of the hangover.

Many of the nation's banks got caught up in the spirit of the times. It was an era when youth was floating to the top in the world of business. Cautious old fogies who remembered the great banking crash were either mostly dead or out to pasture. Banks took on a "go-go" image.

Andy, why shouldn't they?

They were bursting with money which flowed from rising federal deficits and what seemed to be an ever widening and deepening flow of income made up of record profits, salaries and wages. The boom called for "aggressive" financing. New bank holding companies appeared. So did new mortgage companies and real estate investment trusts (REITs). Many of these became interlocked with common directors and trustees.

Building the huge shopping centers, housing developments and condominiums called for a lot of money. So did federally-encouraged loans to developing nations, the building of giant tankers to fuel the everlasting boom and the financing of inflated municipal budgets, such as that of New York City. In the process, banks were judged by "performance" — rate of growth in loans on the books and, important to investors, rate of growth in profits. The competition between banks, especially regional banks, was rugged.

Viewed against such a backdrop, it was inevitable that some banks would get in trouble. Many had moved into areas where they had little experience — foreign dealings, for example. The remarkable thing is that so few banks have failed. Washington regulators have pronounced the banking system as generally sound. Even critics agree.

It may well be that the time has come when Congress should take a hard and thoughtful look at just how the banking system and its regulators are performing. Banking is a far different business today than it was when Congress voted most of the controls now on the books. A review of how the so-called one-bank holding company system is working out may well be in order. And so may the so-called "insider" arrangements between banks, holding companies, and more REITs which "share" officers.

But what is happening in Washington in this election year has the earmarks of an investigatory sideshow, by a bunch of liberals out to expand their credentials as protectors of "the little people." And the irony of it all should not be missed.

Leaders of the pack snapping at the banks and their regulators are Senator William Proxmire, Dem., Wis., and Representative Henry Reuss, Dem., Wisc. They chair the banking committees of the two houses.

In this Presidential election year, the position of these men, and their liberal followers, is that the banks, with the knowledge of the regulators, have made too many risky loans. In 1974, with the off-year elections coming up, the same people in Congress were denouncing banks for being too tight fisted—failing to lend money for projects where repayment was doubtful. There was even an effort to force credit allocation.

It will be unfortunate for the national interest if the grandstanding of the political left gets mixed in with what changes, if any, are needed in bank regulation.

A New Mother Gets All The Advice She Wants

There's no one more victimized by unsolicited advice than a new mother. Women who wouldn't dream of telling another woman that her slip is showing have no qualms at all about convincing a mother that not only is she totally inadequate but her baby is a sure target for everything from beri beri to the rickets.

I haven't been out of the house with the baby one time that someone hasn't stopped me and offered her opinion on my childrearing capabilities. For example, last Monday was such a beautiful day that I took Meg and her stroller to Pitt Plaza for an afternoon of shopping. No sooner had I strapped Meg in her stroller than a lady approached me and said, "That baby's going to take cold in that flimsy outfit."

I looked at Meg. She appeared snug enough to me in her terrycloth sleepsuit - after all it was 75 degrees outside. Nevertheless, I was debating whether or not to cover her with a blanket when another woman came up and said, "Just look at that poor baby. She's so hot that the whole front of her outfit is covered in perspiration."

"That's drool," I answered. My advisor was undaunted. "Poor neglected little darling," she cooed. "You're drooling because you're hungry, aren't you? Mama doesn't feed you like she ought to, does she?"

"My gracious," said a third woman, who happened to be passing by. "That baby is so fat that she's bursting out of her clothes. Far be it from me to criticize, my dear, but you know what they're saying now about overfeeding - a fat baby becomes a fat adult. You could ruin this baby's whole life!"

And so the shopping trip continued, woman after woman stopping to offer wit and wisdom. By the time I got home, I was convinced that the pediatrician had been lying to me and that my baby's healthy exterior only served as a cover for anemia, malnourishment, and general child neglect.

"Now, Gail," Phillip said as I related the details of the day. "You've got to let these things roll off your back. I'm sure that these ladies just thought Meg was such a pretty baby that they wanted to say something about her."

"Then why didn't they say, 'You have a beautiful baby?'" I sniffed.

"Because the average human mind doesn't work that way. You should know that. Now I want you to promise me that the next time it happens, you'll just smile and say something nice. Accept the advice in the spirit in which it is given."

The next day I took Meg to the supermarket, strapped safely in her baby carrier. Sure enough, I wasn't there five minutes when a woman said, "My goodness, aren't you afraid she'll fall out of that thing?!"

"Don't worry," I said, following Phillip's advice and smiling sweetly. "She'll bounce."

Needless to say, by this time I was getting a bit exasperated so I ducked into the nearest store - where I was promptly ambushed by yet another woman. "Oh, what an adorable baby," she cooed, leaning forward until her face was about three inches from Meg's. "But really you shouldn't bring a baby this young out shopping. She's exposed to too many diseases. Why, I've got a cold myself."

Therefore, we are urging every one of you who is of voting age to register by 5 p.m. tomorrow, Monday, Feb. 23, so that you can have a voice in your destiny.

Places you can register: Board of Elections Office, your polling place, local libraries. Justice must be won by our own efforts.

Father Charles Mulholland, Chairman

D. D. Garrett, Sr., President

To the editor:
I believe in America yet, it bewilders me as to the procedures of behaviour in our democracy at this critical time in our history.

The former President (a mature and intelligent individual) is pardoned for wrongs committed. And now, as a private citizen, he is permitted to take a trip to China at the invitation of the Chinese government. The Chinese government will be sending a plane to this country for transportation. One questions such generosity—what does China hope to get in return? What assurance do we, the people of the United States, have that something detrimental will not ensue for the United States as a result of this trip?

Then, on the other hand, a girl (young, inexperienced and on the threshold of life) kidnapped by a radical group, is put on trial for actions that resulted from being held captive. There was no pardon for her. Where is charity, compassion and understanding? To me, such channels of justice appear to be inconsistent with the American way of life as ordained by our founders two hundred years ago.

Sincerely,
Helen Y. Trupp (Mrs. Malcolm Trupp)

Out Of The Mailbag: Letters To The Editor

To the Editor:

Over the past three years the Pitt County Schools have been involved in the process of accreditation, seeking recognition by both the State Board of Education and the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

In April, 1975, the Pitt County School System became the sixth unit in the state to be accredited by the State Board of Education. On the Southern Association level Farmville Central and Ayden-Grifton High Schools were accredited in the spring of 1975. February 10-11 a visiting team inspected the D. H. Conley program, and in March North Pitt is to be visited by yet another team from Southern Association.

On March 16-17 all 17 elementary schools in Pitt County were visited. With a good report, December, 1976 will find State and Southern Association Accreditation of the Pitt County School System and each of the 21 schools.

The purpose of this letter is to give credit to school administrators and faculty members, but more specifically, the chairpersons who shouldered the burden. I take this opportunity to express personal appreciation to:

To the editor:

1976 is unfolding with many challenges and with much work to be done in our struggle for complete freedom and opportunities still closed to us.

We must help decide at the Ballot Box whether this nation will move forward to regress, for there can be no standing still. Every red blooded citizen, white, black, rich, poor, old, young, is challenged to move from the sidelines to the full stream of action.

Beginning on the national level, the electors of this country will go forth to elect a President, Vice-President and members of the Congress.

On the State level, the electors will be involved in selecting governors and members of the State Legislatures.

On the local level, they will be involved in electing mayors, judges, commissioners, council members and other officials. These are the people that will control: (1) where your church will be located, (2) where your schools will be located and who will go to them, (3) what kind of house you live in, (4) what kind of job you hold and (5) what food you eat and how much you will pay for it.

No Large Outbreak Of Scabies In Local Schools

By SUSAN QUINN
Reflector Staff Writer

The recent outbreak of scabies, a skin irritation caused by mites which burrow in the skin, has not been reported in large proportions in either county or city schools, according to school officials Friday.

"We have not had any problems with scabies except in the North Pitt attendance area," said J.L. Keeter, Assistant Superintendent of Pitt County Schools.

"North Pitt has had the largest number of absentees in the past three or four days. We think that part of the absences can be attributed to the beautiful weather, but we have had at least twice as many absences. All of our teachers have been alerted about the problems and symptoms of scabies and we have Medical Social Counselors screening and referring cases to family doctors for the prescription treatment."

"We also screen students who have had scabies when they return to school to make sure that they have received treatment. The treatment only takes one day and it is not necessary for students to be out of school after receiving the necessary treatment."

"No other schools have reported scabies outbreaks except Bethel Elementary School which has a few cases," Keeter said.

"We have not had a significant number of cases of scabies in the city schools," said Bob Stuart, Director of Administrative Services.

"Only about 16 cases have been reported to us and we have had these cases go home until they can be treated," he said.

Plan Announced On Lucrative Tourism Account

ABERDEEN, N.C. (AP)—A plan for insulating North Carolina's lucrative tourism advertising contract from political influence has been offered by Democratic gubernatorial candidate Ed O'Herron, a Charlotte businessman.

O'Herron told the Aberdeen Jaycees Friday that tourism advertising has been a political patronage tool. "As you probably know, over the years the man elected governor usually gives the half-million-dollar advertising account to the agency that handled his political campaign," he said.

"The advertising agency that is handling my campaign has been made no promise of state business. There will be no pay-off," he promised.

To ensure there would be no political influence, O'Herron said he would appoint an "unbiased committee to select the state's (advertising) agency. Presentations will be made at which time each agency will have a chance to display its creative ability. It will be a let-the-best-man-win affair," he said.

Committee members would include representatives of the travel council, the restaurant association, innkeepers, travel agents, newsmen and others, he said.

O'Herron told the group that tourism "is an economic gold mine which has been relegated to a role of insignificance." He called tourism a billion-dollar industry for the state.

The candidate said he "enthusiastically" supports the state zoo at Asheboro because it will be a strong tourist attraction. "I think we should take every necessary step to complete that project," he said.

Completed Crime Prevention Course

Pitt County Deputy Sheriff Gordon Edwards recently completed a 90-hour school on crime prevention sponsored by the North Carolina Criminal Justice Academy of Salemburg and conducted at the Cleveland County Law Enforcement Center in Shelby.

The course curriculum during the two-week school consisted of training in analysis of "crime pockets" in the community, and ways to develop crime prevention programs to suit individual crime-pocket-areas.

Students were taught how to make high level security surveys of homes and businesses, and also received training in the area of mechanical and electronic security devices.

Edwards, it was noted, will make security surveys for the Pitt County citizenry and recommendations will be made as to the most reasonable method the businessman or homeowner can use to better secure his home or establishment.

Pitt Sheriff Ralph Tyson noted that Edwards is also available for talks to civic or church groups.

Sheriff Tyson, pointing out that Operation ID is another part of the Sheriff's Department's crime prevention program, said that electric engravers are available for use by persons throughout the county to engrave their driver's license number on valuable items.

'Crash Course' In Politics Is Scheduled Here For Tuesday

A Crash Course in Politics sponsored by the Greenville-Pitt County League of Women Voters (LWV) will be held on Tuesday, February 24 at 8 p.m. in St. Paul's Episcopal Fellowship Hall in Greenville. The evening's speakers, who are all involved in some aspect of politics in North Carolina, will cover many facets of politics including: the structures of both the Democratic and the Republican parties and how an individual can become involved in a party; the most effective ways to support one's candidate; and the process of running for office oneself.

Phil Kirk, Administrative Assistant to Governor Holshouser and former state senator, will discuss statewide campaigning; the support a campaigner receives from his party; where financial support comes from and how to get it; the effects of cam-paing on family and business life; and campaign promises as related to one's party and constituents.

Mrs. Kathy Crockett, Chairman of the North Carolina Federation of Young Republicans, will speak on the structure of the Republican party — from the precinct level through the national convention — and how interested citizens can become involved in the party.

Mrs. Janice Hardison Faulkner, who directed the Pitt County campaigns of McGovern for president and Henry Hall Wilson for senator, will talk about campaigning in general, local and statewide. She will discuss the various ways of campaigning — from door-knocking to media coverage — and which ways she believes are most effective. She will point out what individuals can do separately and what a party can do through the people in it. Greenville attorney Tom Taft, formerly an assistant to Lt. Gov. Hunt, will speak on the structure and platform of the Democratic party from the precinct to the national level, the Affirmative Action Plan, and the Plan of Organization.

Mrs. Mildred T. McGrath, Greenville Mayor Pro Tem, will discuss her personal experiences in running for office.

what motivated her; whether being a woman helped or hindered her; and what personal insights into the process she has gained.

According to Margaret Wirth, Voters Service Chairperson of the LWV, the moderator for the Crash Course in Politics will be Helen Parks. Following 15-20 minute presentation by each of the speakers, the audience will be invited to ask questions. The public is invited.

Patrol Officers Form Lobby

RALEIGH (AP)—Aiming at higher pay, improved fringe benefits and better equipment, Highway Patrol officers have formed an organization to lobby the state legislature.

At a meeting of the House Committee on Professional Law Enforcement Personnel and Practices Friday, spokesmen said the North Carolina Highway Patrol Troopers Association that 535 troopers, more than half the patrol's strength, have joined.

Trooper Johnny Davis of Sanford said the organization was incorporated Feb. 13. He said the organization won't function like a labor union.

Under questioning by committee members, Davis said some troopers had been pressured by their supervisors to not join, but he refused to reveal any names.

About 30 patrolmen attended the meeting. The committee had been asked by House Speaker James C. Green to investigate reports of low morale in the patrol because of low pay and claims of political interference in patrol work.

Major complaints aired before the panel Friday were pay, followed closely by requests for hazardous duty salary supplements. "Basically, salary is in the top of our minds," said Trooper John Henry Creech of Elizabethtown.

A young patrolman with a wife and small child must try to make ends meet on $500 to $550 a month, he said, adding, "They're having a real hard time, they need more money."

The officers said they are not like other state workers because "when we go to work it's an accepted possibility that we may get shot at and probably hit. If a man puts his life on the line, he should get hazardous duty pay."

Trooper L.R. Wood of Garner told the panel that a morale problem exists because the higher ranking leadership in the patrol ignores the needs and requests of troopers. "If lines of communications had been open, we wouldn't be up here today and you wouldn't see a patrol organization in the making," he said.

(Continued from page A-1) language arts skills, but that they usually also have a "sense of purpose" and understand that deficiencies must be corrected.

He noted that one tangible method of assessing the improved quality of ECU's students is to consider the rising numbers of graduates who go on to post-graduate studies or to law school, medical school and other advanced professional training.

"Students do not have to be told about the opportunities. They know they are there, and are making their own independent decisions about where they are going in life," he said.

During his years at ECU, Texas A & M University, UNC-Chapel Hill and High Point College, Dr. Ebbs has been actively in touch with public school education. He has served as chairman of a state committee to formulate guidelines for English teacher certification, executive secretary of the N. C. English Teachers Association, and a member of a National Council of Teachers of English teacher preparation committee.

In 1966-67, he was on leave from ECU to act as State Supervisor of English for the N. C. Dept. of Public Instruction.

He was also a member of the Tri-University Project at the University of Nebraska, which was devoted to intensive study of the problems of elementary education in 1967-68.

In addition to these professional activities, Dr. Ebbs has been engaged in scholarship; he is the author of four books and numerous articles and reviews on topics in English literature, and is cited in seven honors directories.

"In recent years I have visited public schools in nearly every county in North Carolina," he recalled. "They are doing a grand job. What we are observing here at ECU bears this out."

"I believe this upward trend in student quality is going to continue. More and more, the students coming here will present challenges to us, which we on the faculty must strive to meet."

SANTA MONICA (AP) — Ballet dancer Rudolph Nureyev is hospitalized here with pneumonia, a spokeswoman for St. John's Hospital said.

Nureyev, in Los Angeles to perform with the American Ballet Theater, was admitted to the hospital Tuesday with a high temperature, said Patricia Kelvin of the hospital's public relations office.

Night In The Casbah Lends Excitement

The mysterious realms of "A Night in the Casbah" provided excitement for 350 patrons and guests attending Friday night's Charity Ball.

Staged by the Service League of Greenville, the ball will benefit the Laughinghouse Hospital Fund.

Flaming torches along the driveway of the Greenville Golf and Country Club led those attending to the doors of the club, where a doorman, costumed in Eastern dress, bade the ballgoers enter the exotic atmosphere.

In the front entrance hall, decorated with a carved wooden screen banked by palms, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Cherry and Mr. and Mrs. John Biggs were receiving. Mrs. Cherry served as overall ball chairman while Mrs. Biggs is the president of the Service League.

A tent-like passage way, festooned with a green felt valence and golden tassels, gave entrance into the ballroom.

Inside the ballroom, veiled Arabic dancers—Amy Gilbert Kim Price, Joy Clark and Teresa Pope—ushered the patrons to their tables. The tables were decorated with tasseled blue and green felt runners and were centered with greenery and fruit filled golden composites flanked by yellow candles.

A yellow draped tent topped by a blue felt valence with blue tassels formed the bandstand from which Burt Massengale and his orchestra provided music throughout the evening. Hanging Persian rugs decorated the walls of the ballroom.

The Fieldcrest, President's and Grill Rooms were identically decorated to give the atmosphere of North African living rooms. Persian rugs, large tasseled pillows and brass accessories were used throughout.

The buffet table was encircled by a green valence with blue tassels and in the center of the table was an elaborate wrought iron tree candelabra adorned with grapes, lemons and pineapples with yellow candles. The centerpiece was created by Mrs. J. T. Little Sr. and Mrs. Cecil Bilbro.

Of added interest to the diners was the large decorated menu, placed on an easel beside the table, which was written in Arabic and English. The dinner menu included rib eye of beef, fried oysters, saffron rice, curried fruit, broccoli Normany and a dessert of cheese pie with blueberry or cherry sauce.

An added entertainment of the evening was the performance during intermission of authentic Arabic dances. The dances were presented by Ms. Donna Whitley, who has studied dancing extensively in Morocco, and her student Ms. Jeanne Baer. Ms. Whitley wore a caftan while Ms. Baer performed in night club attire.

Those helping Mrs. Cherry were the total membership of the Service League with the following chairmen: Finance, Mrs. H. H. Bryant; Secretary, Mrs. Richard Gammon; Programs, Mrs. Clay Burnette; Food, Mrs. Don McGlohon, Mrs. Phil Goodson and Mrs. James T. Little Sr.; Invitations, Mrs. John S. Whichard, Mrs. Don Bailey and Mrs. Charles Howard; Decorations, Mrs. Gerald Crane; Foyer and Siderooms, Mrs. Boyd Lee and Mrs. Frank Layne;

'Candyman' Hunts CB Violators

By WALT SMITH
POWDER SPRINGS, Ga. (UPI) — Attention CB'ers. You'd better watch what you say on the air. "Candyman" may be listening.

"Candyman" is CB slang for Federal Communications Commission personnel charged with Citizens Band radio enforcement. There are four eight-man FCC undercover mobile teams in the country and one is located in this Atlanta suburb.

J.L. Anderson, supervisor of the Georgia unit, says his personnel are also known as "Uncle Charlie" and "The Man" to CB users but the "Candyman" designation is perhaps the most common.

"Our violation notices used to be pink," he explained. "You got a pink slip, it was like a piece of candy."

With the booming growth of CB units in recent months,

Anderson's work load is becoming heavier.

"In 1973, we were issuing around 25,000 licenses a month," said Anderson. "Last month, we issued almost a half million." He estimated 750,000 sets were in operation in 1973, compared with more than 3 million now.

"In 1973, the typical office made about 30 cases a month. Now we're averaging more like 80 cases a month," said Anderson, whose unit is in charge of a nine-state area in the Southeast.

Anderson's undercover unit normally moves into a southern metropolitan area for about one week, operating out of unmarked vehicles which contain sophisticated directional finding equipment and tape recorders. They spend three or four days monitoring the 23 channels open to CB users, using the equipment to pinpoint violators. Then they move in and serve notice on the violators.

Anderson said the most common violations are failure to identify call signs, operating on frequencies not assigned to CB users, operating with too much power, illegal antenna heights and communicating over the 150-mile limit.

"We are also starting to get more and more reports of people broadcasting profane and indecent language," he said. These cases frequently are turned over to the Justice Department for prosecution.

Anderson said he also has heard reports of prostitutes using CB radios to set up dates with truckers. "It is contrary to the rules to offer for sale or advertise for sale anything over the CB radio," he said.

Anderson said investigators have learned to complete their evidence gathering before issuing notices to any of the violators. "As soon as the first person finds out we're in town everything gets quiet," he said. "It's a very effective communications system."

CB units also are used by motorists to escape detection for violating the 55 mile per hour speed limit, despite an FCC rule that the sets not be used to violate state or federal laws. But Anderson said his unit "is not in a position to determine what is or is not a violation of state law."

Most first offenders receive $50 fines although the penalties can range up to a maximum fine of $500 per each day of violation and revocation of the CB license.

Anderson said his undercover unit is on the road one or two weeks a month in areas where there have been a lot of complaints. Illegal transmissions are tape recorded to gain evidence in case the CB user decides to fight the violation charge.

Federal law also gives the investigators authority to enter a house and inspect a CB unit to determine if it has been illegally altered and if the antenna is within legal limits.

A suspected violator can hire an attorney and present his side of the case, with the decision as to guilt being made by the FCC legal department in Washington. If violators refuse to pay, the cases are turned over to the Justice Department for possible court action.

Anderson expects the phenominal growth of CB radio to continue with increased publicity and advertising. Licensing requires no technical knowledge, and the only requirement is a $4 fee, which cost $20 a few years ago.

A request has been made for additional enforcement units to try to stop the frequent complaints, including those from people who receive CB interference on their television sets or stereos.

"It's not really possible now to give the type service that most people call up and expect," said Anderson. "It is most difficult for people trying to watch television who can't see their program to understand that."

One problem Anderson has run into is "vigilante" groups who pose as FCC investigators and take things in their own hands when the FCC is slow to respond to violators.

"I've had numerous reports where people have gone in and carried a guy's equipment out," he said. "Then we get a call from the guy asking how to get his equipment back."

Woodturning Is Vanishing Art

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — In a weathered shop near the waterfront, the last practitioner of the all-but-lost art of woodturning is hard at work sculpting fluted columns and elegant balustrades out of finest redwood and teak.

Victor Lauteri, master woodturner, molds the graceful, vase-like curves into the wood on his lathe by the lightest touches of his sharpened steel tool. He disdains measuring instruments, instead gauging his work by eye.

"It has to be built into you," said Lauteri, 64, of the craft he began learning as a boy of 12 in his native Rome.

"Victor never ceases to amaze me," said his employer, Bob Haas, fourth generation of his family to run the 88-year-old Haas Wood & Ivory Works. The shop has been in its current location since just after the 1906 earthquake.

"Woodturning is an art you just can't pick up," Haas said. "It's just about a lost art here in the United States."

The firm was founded during the Victorian era when wealthy San Franciscans wanted their homes filled with decorative woodwork in the form of columns, newel posts, rosettes and finials. The Haas family also provided ladders for the fire department, gavels for judges and clubs for police.

"Then the era of chrome and plastic nearly put us out of business," Haas said.

But a revival of interest in Victorian architecture set his lathes humming again a few years ago, and Haas said, "Now we can hardly fulfill the workload we have, and it's all from word of mouth."

Among his current projects, Haas said, is a 20-foot-long curved desk for the office of film mogul Francis Ford Coppola.

"We're also turning the teak for the King Faisal Hospital in Saudi Arabia," Haas said.

"Teak is a brutal material — it tears the hell out of tools."

Haas' main problem now is that Lauteri plans to retire next summer and will be almost impossible to replace.

He said Local 42 of the Millmen's Union here so far has failed to come up with a qualified woodturner, as has the California Department of Employment.

Haas said he was hoping to persuade an Italian woodturner once employed by Lauteri to move to the United States so he could work for the shop.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Despite the great popularity of paint rollers, millions of paint brushes are sold every year. The big difference between now and the past is that most of those in use today have nylon rather than hog bristles.

It is an erroneous impression that the main reason for purchasing a good quality brush is that it lasts a long time. Most assuredly, a superior brush has the durability that an inexpensive one lacks, but there's a better reason than that for buying one. It's because it produces excellent results right from the start. It picks up and retains the paint well. It permits the paint to go on smoothly without excessive splattering and dripping. The bristles are set firmly in the ferrule (the metal enclosure around the wide part of the handle) and do not shed easily. Cheap brushes, even when new, never give good results.

While it is true that price is a fair indicator of a good brush, there are certain ways to determine quality. The ferrule should be sturdy and fit snugly. The bristles should be springy and elastic and not limp and short. They should be thicker at the base, tapering gently at the ends, where they have splits or "flags".

A paint brush without these characteristics tends to dump most of the paint load the instant it touches a surface. The user then must take extra strokes to spread the paint over an equal or smaller area. The result is a less smooth paint film, more effort and a waste of material.

A cheap brush sometimes comes in handy when doing rough work where appearance is not important and when you may wish to discard the brush after using it once or twice.

It's a good idea to use a brush only for a single type of finishing material. Thus, a brush should be used only for an oil-based or latex paint or varnish or lacquer or shellac, and so on. Each handle can be given an initial or other identifying mark so you won't have to remember or guess from one job to the next.

Always use the correct solvent for cleaning — turpentine or mineral spirits for oil paints or varnish; water for latex paints; denatured alcohol for shellac; lacquer thinner for lacquer. When you are using an unfamiliar finishing material, the label will tell you what the correct solvent is.

Use the right kind of brush as well as one of quality. For large, flat surfaces, a 4-inch brush is about right. Use a trim or sash brush 2 or 3 inches wide for woodwork, paneling and trim. Best for sashes, trellises and things of that nature is a flat or oval sash brush from 1 to 3 inches wide. There are flat enamel or varnish brushes, chiseled to permit easier flowing, for furniture, toys and objects with small, flat surfaces.

Whatever you choose to store your brush, be certain that the bristles are not in a bent position.

(For either of Andy Lang's helpful booklets, "Paint Your House Inside and Out" or "Wood Finishing in the Home," send 30 cents and a long, STAMPED, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y. 11743.)

Gardening Questions

Q. I would like to grow my own tomato plants. Please give me some suggestions. (F.D., Greensboro)

A. Most gardeners would do best by growing tomato plants—as well as most garden plants—in plant cubes. These are made of compressed peat moss. They are free of weeds and diseases and available from most seed stores and garden centers. The cubes usually have a small hole, about the size of a pencil, punched in the top. Tomato plants should be seeded in the cubes about six weeks before they are to be set outdoors. Soak the cubes in a bucket of clear water, put them in a tray, and drop two tomato seeds in each hole. Place in a warm, sunny window. Keep moist but not wet. (Albert A. Banadyga, extension horticulturist)

Q. Please tell me how to fertilize a pecan tree. (J.L., Lumberton)

A. After the tree has been set and the buds begin to break, apply one pound of 10-10-10 fertilizer. Place about a foot from the trunk. Increase the fertilizer one pound for each year of growth until the tree comes into production. Apply in a circle at the drip of the branches. Bearing trees in good vigor should have three pounds

Here's the Answer

Q. — I notice that in some liquid floor polishes, the directions say to mix well before using, while others say they should never be mixed. I assume that each manufacturer knows what he is talking about, but can you tell me why this is so?

A. — Products which contain a solvent require mixing so that the waxes in the liquid will mix well with the solvent. A water-based liquid polish should not be shaken because, when it is, a foaming action results. Then, when the liquid is applied to the floor, the surface of the polish may have bubbles in it.

Q. — You and other writers on home problems often say that condensation on windows sometimes can be avoided by cutting down the amount of high humidity in the house. I know excessive moisture comes from cooking, bathing and things like that, but I don't know how to get rid of it except by opening windows, which can make it pretty cold at times. Isn't there any other solution?

A. — Yes. Several. You can use exhaust fans, especially in the kitchen and bathroom. They need not be turned on all the time, only when moisture-producing activities are going on in those rooms. You can place small vents in the outside walls or, instead of permitting the excess moisture to escape, you can trap it in a dehumidifier. None of this changes the basic premise that condensation occurs when the warm, moist air settles on a cold surface, so one objective is to prevent those

Auditions Set For 'The Crucible'

Henry Miller's powerful drama about witchcraft persecutions and trials in colonial Massachusetts, The Crucible, is the play chosen for the second production of Greenville's Community Theater.

Stuart Aronson, director of the Community Theater, has announced two dates for open auditions for the 21 member cast. "These will be held on Tuesday and Thursday nights (February 24 and 26), beginning at 7:30 p.m."

Auditions will be held in the auditorium of the Methodist Student Center at the corner of Holly and East Fifth Streets.

"We will need 10 women and 11 men to fill the roles," Aronson said. "Five of the roles are for young women, one for a very old woman in her seventies, and the other four are for women in their thirties and forties. One of the roles is for a black woman."

Aronson noted that in roles for the men, "most are for middle age men, with some roles for younger men, but not for teen-agers or very young men."

Tentative plans are for a two-day production to be given on Friday and Saturday, May 7 and 8.

"We are also very much interested in people to help in scenery design, stage management and other non-acting positions," Aronson said. "So I hope anybody who would like to be a part of the community theater in any capacity will come to the auditions."

This production, like the first Community Theater production of Harvey, is under the auspices of the Greenville Recreation Department and is funded by a dual grant from the City of Greenville and the North Carolina Council of the Arts.

Tattoo Artist Cliff Raven

His Canvas Is Human Skin

By PAUL RECER
Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Cliff Raven is considered by many to be the Michelangelo of his artistic profession, but future generations will probably never see his work. Some of it is viewed only in very private showings and his projects eventually all are buried.

Raven is a tattoo artist and his canvas is human skin.

Colleagues call the 43-year-old Chicagoan "a real artist," a man far more creative than the ordinary tattoo craftsman who deals in anchors, hearts and sentiments of the lovelorn.

Raven, in town for a recent tattoo artists convention, holds a degree in art from the University of Indiana and became a tattoo artist through careful choice. Human skin, he said, is a medium that has its own special rewards.

"You are dealing in a medium whereby the patron is also the canvas," he said. "You're being hired by someone not to decorate canvas which they can throw away. You're not being asked to decorate their walls, but them, their bodies."

"Artistically and superficially you're changing the person forever. You have a responsibility when you're doing that you don't have in other mediums."

Raven creates complex, intricate and colorful designs that can cover whole arms, legs and backs with dragons that seem alive and treacherous, or crimson parrots that seem ready to snatch a cracker, or oriental filligree of endless detail.

Is it art? Raven and others say it can be, but to "the establishment," he says, tattoos are "trashy" and a product of the counter culture.

This very element, he says, brings him many customers.

"There are lots of closet cases in the tattoo business," says Raven. "Many people want a tattoo, but they don't want it so visible that it'll ruin their chances of joining the country club or becoming an executive."

Tattoos can be an expression of suppressed rebellion against the establishment, he said, and can carry a sensual undertone that many find exciting.

"More and more women are getting tattoos," he said. "They like to have rosebuds or butterflies or toadstools. They put them on places where they can show them if they like or cover them up, for instance on the abdomen. It can be seen if they wear a bikini, but not if they wear a full swim suit."

Raven says he warns his patrons that if they accept a tattoo, it's a commitment for life. There's no way it can be removed without a trace.

The artist's brush is an electric needle that vibrates 50 times a second, each time penetrating below the second layer of the skin and implanting small dabs of pigment. The artist draws with it as with a pen, but is actually creating millions of small permanent dots which appear to the eye as lines.

And yes, he says, there's some pain.

"It's not a great sensation to get tattooed. It hurts," says Raven, whose arms are covered with intricate designs and the outline of what he calls "a work in progress."

The increased demand for tattoo art has helped push prices higher.

Massive, complex works can require four or five sessions lasting five hours each, said Raven, and the current rate for such work is $50 an hour, with some costing more.

Tattoo artistry is a craft passed down by personal teaching. There are no books on technique or courses in college.

When Raven decided 15 years ago to become a tattoo artist, he first had to find another tattoo artist to teach him.

"You know," he said, "you don't see any matchbooks advertising 'become a tattoo artist.' It's passed along from person to person."

A well-executed tattoo, he says, can improve on nature.

"You can use tattooing to optically improve the appearance of a human being," said Raven. "Let's face it, most of us can use help. Basically, a human being past his prime is a mess. The naked ape. They're just not something interesting. A tattoo helps."

The fact that all his art will eventually, one day, be sealed away in graves or tombs doesn't bother Raven.

"That's true of any art," he says. "It's just a matter of a different time scale. Ours is relatively impermanent."

Then he adds with a grin, "But consider ice sculpture. Or cake decorating. We're way ahead."

A Bond Of Time And Place Marks Ovid Pierce's Stories

Old Man's Gold and Other Stories. By Ovid Pierce. Chapel Hill, N.C. The University of North Carolina Press. 1976. 70 pps. $6.95.

"Frail" is the world Ovid Pierce uses to describe his six short stories collected in this small volume. They are fragile stories, built on quiet inner moods, reflecting responses to living, loving and dying that are as subtly varied as the people who populate the stories.

Time and place is a bond tying together these early Pierce stories. (The earliest was first published in the summer of 1937; the latest in the autumn of 1951). We can see the writer's formative exploration that he later realized more fully in his four novels.

We discover the author's early gift for establishing the poetry of place—"The only sound on earth was the rustling of the over-arching branches of the great oaks and elms, from beneath which he couldn't even see the sky." (from "The Sade of the Grove").

We also find that the youthful Pierce was able to pinpoint, in a few words, the poignant realization that social patterns do indeed separate people's lives—"Yes, he was dead. There was no need for her to go on. This Matthew she could never know. She had seen his mule, his cotton field, his dog. But she was not to see him. She was too late. He could never be more than one of the Darkies. He was to remain unknown to her forever." (from "One of the Darkies").

In these stories too there emerges a strong sense of personal and collective loss; a loss hastened by changing social conditions that inevitably had to lead to the greater loss of an innocence inherent in a quiet, simple way of life. It was a way of life already rapidly coming to an end in the days of Pierce's childhood. This is not to imply that Pierce advocated in these stories (and later in his novels) an argument for maintaining the old status quo far from it. The sincerity of his respect for people, black and white, is manifest in each of these stories. It is with integrity and spiritual honesty that Pierce probes the lives of his characters, making us feel deeply about their joys and sorrows.

The six brief stories gathered together in Old Man's Gold and Other Stories are, above all, stories to be read and enjoyed for their timeless beauty and for the light they shed on the universality of human love and suffering. In time and setting they may be dated. In appeal, they will always remain fresh.

The University of North Carolina Press has performed a much needed service in making available these stories by Ovid Pierce. All were originally published in "Southwest Review," Southern Methodist University's prestigious literary magazine, now in its 60th year of publication.

First Shad Of Year Reported

GRIFTON — The first shad of the Bicentennial year has been recorded in the Grifton Shad Festival fishing contest, caught on Valentine's Day.

R. T. Daugherty of Kinston, pulled in a 14-oz. hickory shad about 4 p.m. Saturday at his "favorite hole" on Pitchkettle Creek east of Grifton. Daugherty, who has sold bait for over 50 years, said he was using a shad dart and spoon he "got out of a tree." He maintains he has collected "at least $100 worth" of shad bait reclaimed from the tangled vegetation along Eastern North Carolina fishing creeks.

The combination of a dart and spoon tied about 18 inches apart with the spoon trailing the dart is what Daugherty used to capture the record fish. He used a Dragon Fly dart and a No. 1 Barracuda spoon. The fish is a record one, although small by hickory shad standards, because the first hickory shad entered each year in the Grifton Shad Festival fishing contest wins a prize of fishing tackle contributed by manufacturers and distributors of fishing equipment.

Other prizes are given for the three largest caught by adults, for the three largest caught by youngsters age 12 and under, and for the fisherman who comes the farthest to fish in the Grifton area. A new prize this year, a leisure suit will be given for the smallest shad entered in the contest; Daugherty may have a good chance at that one, with his 14-oz. entry.

Winners of the Grifton Shad Festival fishing contest will be announced during the Shad Queen Pageant Friday evening, April 9.

The 1976 Top Ten College Women will be photographed by leading New York photographers and, featured in Glamour's August college issue. The top ten will be invited to New York to meet the Glamour staff and will receive a $500 cash prize.

Miss Elks is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Elks of Greenville.

Edwards Leads Pirates To Win Over Southern

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina put five men in double figures and ran up their highest point total of the year last night in powering past Georgia Southern, 91-85.

The Pirates had to have a hot hand to get the job done, as for the third straight game, their opponent hit half of its shots.

The Eagles, which once saw Pirate Coach Dave Patton, wearing their blue jerseys, hit 57.1 per cent in the first half of the game, but still trailed, 42-37. They slacked off in the second half, but still ended up with an even 50 per cent.

The Pirates hit 55.5 per cent in the first half, and 53.1 per cent in the second for an over all 54.4 per cent. But they shot four less times than did the Eagles, making one more.

The real difference came at the foul line, where the cool Pirates dropped in 15 of 17 shots, including three technicals. Georgia Southern made 13 of 19. Until late in the game, too, the Bucs had made few trips to the strip except for the technicals.

The "T's" were called in both halves, two on the Georgia Southern bench in the first half and one against one of the players in the second half. Wade Henkel went to the line each time, hitting all three.

The Bucs got outstanding shooting out of Earl Garner and Al Edwards. Edwards came off the bench to hit nine of 11, while Garner canned eight of 10.

Henkel hit six of 10, and led the Buc rebounding with seven, while Edwards added six. Henkel blocked three shots, while Edwards chipped in six assists to lead the team, which had 21.

By the time it was over, Edwards led with 19 points, while Henkel, Garner and Louis Crosby each had 16, while Billy Dineen added 10, including eight straight free throws in the final three minutes of the game.

Georgia Southern had three in double figures, led by Kevin Anderson with 28. Ed McArthur hit 18 and Maurice Stoutermirre added 12.

The game was close most of the way, with the Bucs breaking it out to a 12-point lead late in the game, then allowing a late comeback.

The Pirates grabbed the initial lead, but Georgia Southern twice tied it before McArthur put them into a 6-4 lead. They moved out by four at 10-6, but the Bucs rallied and tied it at 10-10.

The Eagles pulled away again, this time going out by five at 19-14 as Anderson hit off a fast break with 10:40 left in the half. But again, the Bucs came back, and finally took the lead at 24-23 on a tap by Larry Hunt. A pair of free throws put the Eagles back up as Pat Blenke connected, but Henkel hit with 5:02 left for a 28-27 lead, and he followed that with his two free throws on the technicals seconds later for a 30-27 edge. The Bucs held their three-point edge most of the rest of the way, with Edwards scoring off a steal with five seconds left for a 42-37 halftime advantage.

While the Bucs opened their lead to seven, 44-37, as the half opened, Georgia Southern chipped away at the lead and Anderson finally tied it at 55-55 with 14:19 to do as Anderson hit. Neither team scored again until McArthur hit a jumper with 12:59 showing for a 55-53 Eagle lead. They built that out to six, 59-53 before the Pirates came back to life.

The Bucs fought back and Garner's jumper from the lane put them back ahead, 62-61. Edwards hit a three-pointer, but Georgia Southern twice more tied it, 65-61 and 67-67. Another technical by Henkel put the Bucs back out by three after Garner had connected to break the tie and Crosby hit a jumper to put the lead to five.

With 4:43 left, Edwards upped the lead to 78-71, and the Bucs used the foul line most of the rest of the way. Dineen started it off, upping the lead to 82-73. After three more, one by Lee and two by Crosby, the lead had climbed to 12, 85-73, with 2:22 to go.

East Carolina plays its final regular season game Monday, hosting Western Carolina.

Pirate Swimmers Paste Competition To Post Eleventh Conference Title

RICHMOND, Va.—The East Carolina University swimming team again overwhelmed its Southern Conference competition in winning the 1975 Southern Conference Swimming and Diving Championships. The Pirates won by a 300-point margin recording 610 points to second place Furman's 310. This marked the 11th consecutive title for East Carolina, dating back to 1966.

Ray Scharf's club won 13 of 18 total events, 13 of 16 swimming events, in the runaway. Leading the way was the Outstanding Swimmer of the meet, Ross Bohlsen, who finished first in the 100 and 200 freestyle events and swam on the winning relay teams in both the 400 and 800 freestyle events.

"I was real pleased with our performance on Saturday" said Scharf. "After slipping a bit on Friday and not winning three swimming events, I thought we came back real well. Some sickness did bother us as a number of swimmers came down with the flu after we got here. Also, we are not as strong in the shorter events and we just got beat in those on Friday.

"All the other teams were shaved and psyched for this meet. We were not, which I expected. All the other teams were much better this year and swam much stronger.

"I only hope we get it all together in two weeks for the Eastern Regionals."

Rutgers Men, Delta St. Ladies Continue Streaks

NEW YORK (UPI) — The nation's two longest college basketball winning streaks were extended in a triple-header at Madison Square Garden Saturday as the Rutgers men and Delta State women rolled to impressive victories.

Rutgers, the nation's fifth-ranked team and one of just two unbeaten left in the men's ranks this season, demolished American University 94-79 in the first game of the Garden card to up its record this year to 23-0. Only top-ranked Indiana, also 23-0, has a winning streak equal to Rutgers.

Delta State, the nation's top-ranked women's team, smothered Queens College in the final match of the tripleheader, 81-58, to extend its winning streak to 51 games—a feat spanning three seasons.

In the other game, Manhattan ripped Navy 81-63.

Delta State, the defending women's champion competing in just its third year of varsity play, got 47 points and 19 rebounds from 6-3 center Lucy Harris to pick up its 22nd triumph this season. Harris scored 21 of her points in the first half to account for just one less point than what the entire Queens College team could amass as Delta raced to a 45-22 lead at intermission.

Harris' 47 points was the best performance by anyone—man or woman, college or pro—at the Garden this season. Ramona VanBoeckman chipped in 11 points and eight assists with Wanda Hairtrout adding six points for Delta in only the second women's game ever played at the Garden. Queens College has been the loser in both of those games, falling as well last season to Immaculata.

Lady Pirates Top Longwood

FARMVILLE, Va.—East Carolina University's Lady Pirates blew open a close game here last night with a 17-0 spurt midway through the second half to down Longwood College, 82-67.

The Pirates were led by Debbie Freeman's 31 points and Rosie Thompson's 18 points as they rebounded from a sloppy first half to win their fourth straight contest.

ECU and Longwood traded the lead in the first half until Longwood took a 26-20 lead with nine minutes to play. ECU came back to tie the score at the half, 39-39, when Ellen Garrison hit on a 20-footer at the buzzer.

The Lady Pirates trailed only once in the second half, at 52-51, as they slowly pulled away from the Longwood team.

As they have done all year long, the Lady Pirates used a good defense and the fast-break to expand a 61-58 lead to 78-58 with three minutes to play. During the spurt of 17 unanswered points, Freeman scored 12.

With the game won, ECU coach Catherine Bolton cleared the bench and Longwood came back to close to 82-67 by the final buzzer.

Freeman finished 15 for 24 from the floor for the night and grabbed nine rebounds. Thompson grabbed 14 rebounds to lead ECU to a 48-36 rebounding edge.

Sue Rama led Longwood with 27 points and 15 rebounds.

The Lady Pirates, now 11-4, have a week off before playing Western Carolina and Appalachian State in Raleigh next weekend.

Gobblers Outlast Deacons

BLACKSBURG, Va. (UPI) — Russell Davis and Larry Cooke combined for 63 points Saturday night to lead Virginia Tech to a 102-95 victory over Wake Forest and its 20th regular season win, a school record.

Virginia Tech charged to a 60-44 lead at intermission, but Wake Forest cut the margin to two points late in the second half, 87-85, before the Gobblers sealed the victory.

Davis scored 33 points and Cooke 30 as the Gobblers ran their record to 20-5.

Rod Griffin scored a game-high 34 points for Wake Forest, now 18-8. Guard Skip Brown had 20 points in the losing cause and Jerry Schellenburg had 19.

In streaking out to the big half time lead, Tech hit 55 per cent from the floor. In the second half, however, they cooled off, finishing the game with a 45 per cent floor mark.

The win broke a two-game Tech losing streak. The Gobblers, fighting for an invitation to the NCAA tournament, dropped close games last week to second-ranked Marquette and unranked DePaul.

Notre Dame's margin of 38 rebounds for 35 of South Carolina probably determined the winner.

South Carolina was able to work the ball in for close shots and Notre Dame was able to shoot over the zone. Dave Batton led Notre Dame rebounding with eight, while Dantley had six. Bob Mathias led all rebounders with 11 for South Carolina.

Allison Is Sitting On Richmond's Pole

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Bobby Allison of Hueytown, Ala., hasn't been on the Fairgrounds Raceway track here since the 1974 Richmond 500 Grand National stock car race—which he won.

It is perhaps prophetic that Allison, making his first short-track start in the Mercury he began driving just this year, will be on the pole for Sunday's Richmond 400 just as he was two years ago when he beat out Dodge driver Richard Petty of Randleman, N.C.

Allison took the pole in Friday's qualifying with a speed of 92.716 miles per hour, while Petty—who has won 13 races on the local track—was third at 92.216 m.p.h. Taking the second spot was Dodge driver Dave Marcis of Skyland, N.C., at 92.557 m.p.h.

That victory in 1974 was Allison's second over the .542-mile track. He had won the Capital City 300 in 1969 in a Dodge, and last year he drove a Matadog on the Grand National campaign.

"To win the race Sunday, you've got to handle all day," says Allison. "The car really feels great right now, but we may make a couple of small adjustments when the track gets slick. That's going to be important after about 10 laps Sunday."

Three Chevrolet drivers qualified for the 1 p.m. EST start behind Allison, Marcis and Petty—Darrell Waltrip of Daytona Beach, Fla.; Cale Yarborough of Timmonsville, S.C.; and Lennie Pond of Petersburg, Va.

There was some surprise at the ease of the qualifying victory by Allison, whose car wasn't even ready until Friday morning.

"This is the way it's supposed to be done. Sometimes you come to a track and everything is ready, right off the trailer, and sometimes you can play around with it all day and not even come close. Everything was right. The car felt great," said Allison.

But the man to beat still has to be Petty.

He won this event last year when it was run at 500 laps, and his only bad showing here was in last fall's Capital City 500—won by Waltrip—when Petty was last for the first time in 4½ years.

Tatum Bombs Louisville As Marquette Wins

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Earl Tatum's uncanny long-range shooting made a shambles of the Louisville defense Saturday and led second-ranked Marquette to its 18th straight victory, 72-62, before a national television audience.

Tatum, a 6-6 senior forward, poured in 16 points in the second half when the Warriors hit 67.9 per cent of their shots from the field to pull away from a 30-27 halftime lead.

Fourteenth-ranked Louisville, which saw its 11-game winning streak snapped, was unable to solve the Marquette zone defense in the second half.

Tatum's 23 points topped all scoring. Butch Lee added 17 and Lloyd Walton 14 for the Warriors, now 22-1.

Louisville's leading scorer was 6-11 Ricky Gallon with 18 points, followed by freshman Larry Williams with 16.

The game ceased to be close midway through the second half when Walton converted a technical foul called against Louisville Coach Denny Crum. Freshman Bernard Toone then connected on a layup and Walton was awarded a basket on a goal attending call against Gallon to enable the Warriors to build a 51-39 lead.

Louisville, 19-4, rushed into a 13-5 lead with forward Wesley Cox accounting for nine of the Cardinals' first 11 points. However, the momentum swung toward Marquette after Cox drew his third foul and left the game with 13:38 remaining in the first half. The muscular 6-5 forward did not return until after the intermission.

Johnston Nips Roanoke, 72-70

ROBERSONVILLE—Roanoke missed a last second, game-tying shot and suffered a 72-70 loss at the hands of North Johnston, Friday night.

It was the only win of the night for North Johnston as both their J.V. team and their girls team lost to Roanoke.

Roanoke opened the night with an 80-64 win. The girls followed that with a 39-31 victory but the Squads had to rally in the second period to head towards the win.

North Johnston took the first period lead, 10-4, but by halftime, Roanoke had caught up and trailed by one, 15-14.

The Squads dumped in 14 points in the third period to go on top, 28-21 and an 11-10 final frame wrapped it up.

Kathy Woodward led North Johnston with 10 and Delores Stanley had a similar total for Roanoke.

North Johnston's boys gave an instant replay of the girls game. The Panthers took the first quarter lead, 23-16 but by halftime, Roanoke had pulled within one, 36-35.

The Redskins made up the difference in the fourth period and with about a minute left in the game, Roanoke had the lead.

Furman Closes With Win

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP) — Ray Miller scored 25 points and Jim Strickland added 24 in pacing Furman to an 85-77 Southern Conference basketball victory over Davidson Saturday night in the final regular season game for both clubs.

The loss was Davidson's seventh straight and 12th in its last 13 games, leaving the Wildcats with a 1-9 conference record and an overall 5-20 mark.

Heels Win By Basket

By BOB CULLEN
Associated Press Writer
CHAPEL HILL (AP)—Mitch Kupchak's rebound tap-in with one second left gave third-ranked North Carolina a 73-71 victory over Virginia and a share of the Atlantic Coast Conference regular season title Saturday night.

The Tar Heels, now 22-2, can clinch the regular season crown, which is worth a berth in the NCAA tournament, by beating either Duke or North Carolina State next week.

They barely avoided the third major upset of the day in ACC play as Virginia, led by Wally Walker's game high 25 points, took a six-point lead midway through the first half and remained on top most of the way.

But the Cavaliers got in foul trouble in the second half and UNC took the lead on three straight baskets by guard Phil Ford midway through the second half. Ford led the Tar Heels for the game with 22 points.

Coach Dean Smith put his team into its four-corner stall with seven minutes left, leading 65-61. The strategy held Virginia at bay until the game's final minutes when Billy Langlois sandwiched two jumpers around UNC turnovers to tie the game at 71-71 with 15 seconds left.

The Tar Heels got the ball to Walter Davis for the game's final shot. He missed, but Kupchak was there to put the rebound in as time ran out.

The loss left Virginia at 14-10 overall, 4-7 in the ACC. North Carolina's 9-1 A.C. mark puts it two full games ahead of second place N.C. State which suffered an upset loss to Clemson Saturday afternoon.

Satterthwait Sparks Win

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Ronnie Satterthwaite sparked a 16-3 first half tear as William and Mary built an 18-point halftime lead and then held off Richmond's Spiders in the second half for a 107-102 Southern Conference basketball victory.

William and Mary clinched second place in the conference with an 8-3 record and a 14-11 over-all mark while Richmond finished third in the league at 7-7 and 12-12 over-all.

Satterthwaite, who finished with 22 points, hit a basket that broke a 24-24 tie midway through the first half and then added six points to put the Indians up 52-34 at intermission.

In the second half the Indians opened their lead to as many as 22 points with 15 minutes to go and were ahead 80-60 with 9:56 remaining when the Spiders launched a rally that cut the lead to seven with 2:58 to go.

John Lowenhaupt paced the winners with 27 points followed by Jim McDonough with 23.

Richmond guard Kevin Eastman led the Spiders with 28 points before fouling out with six minutes remaining in the game. Mike Morton scored 27 and Jeff Butler added 19.

Alcott Chips Into LPGA Lead

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — Amy Alcott chipped a sand wedge shot within a foot of the cup for a birdie on the 18th hole Saturday to retain a one-stroke lead after 36 holes of the $60,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament here.

Miss Alcott, trying to celebrate her birthday by the second straight year with a tournament title, shared the lead with Kathy Whitworth before making the closing birdie.

Both shot three-under-par 698 on the 6,115-yard Bent Tree Golf and Country Club course, with Miss Alcott standing at 137 for two rounds to Miss Whitworth's 138.

Sandra Palmer, the tour's leading money-winner a year ago, stayed within range with a 70 for 139. Sandra Post had a 71 for 140.

"That was my last round as a teen-ager, and I think that (last birdie) was an omen," said Miss Alcott, who turns 20 on Sunday. She won her only pro title last year on the same day she turned 19 at St. Petersburg, Fla.

"If I could repeat, it would be the biggest thrill of my life. I'm just playing my heart out," added the Santa Monica, Calif., resident, the LPGA's rookie of the year in 1975. "I have complete control of my game. I have momentum and momentum is the most important thing in golf."

Miss Whitworth, of Richardson, Tex., the tour's all-time leading money winner, called her second straight 69 "much better than yesterday because the wind made the course play a lot tougher."

Lady Pirates Top Longwood

FARMVILLE, Va.—East Carolina University's Lady Pirates blew open a close game here last night with a 17-0 spurt midway through the second half to down Longwood College, 82-67.

The Pirates were led by Debbie Freeman's 31 points and Rosie Thompson's 18 points as they rebounded from a sloppy first half to win their fourth straight contest.

ECU and Longwood traded the lead in the first half until Longwood took a 26-20 lead with nine minutes to play. ECU came back to tie the score at the half, 39-39, when Ellen Garrison hit on a 20-footer at the buzzer.

The Lady Pirates trailed only once in the second half, at 52-51, as they slowly pulled away from the Longwood team.

As they have done all year long, the Lady Pirates used a good defense and the fast-break to expand a 61-58 lead to 78-58 with three minutes to play. During the spurt of 17 unanswered points, Freeman scored 12.

With the game won, ECU coach Catherine Bolton cleared the bench and Longwood came back to close to 82-67 by the final buzzer.

Freeman finished 15 for 24 from the floor for the night and grabbed nine rebounds. Thompson grabbed 14 rebounds to lead ECU to a 48-36 rebounding edge.

Sue Rama led Longwood with 27 points and 15 rebounds.

Farmville Central Stuns Ayden-Grifton

A NICE DAY'S CATCH—of big mouth bass is displayed by proud fisherman Bucky Foell of the Greenville Fire Department. The largest of the catch, shown at the right, weighed in at six and one-half and five and one-half pounds, respectively. Foell's limit take was made on Thursday at a private pond near Greenville. (Reflector Staff photo by Jerry Raynor)

LITTLEFIELD—Overeagerness on the part of the Ayden-Grifton Chargers enabled Farmville Central to roll up a ten-point, third quarter lead and an eventual, 73-59 win over A-G Friday night.

If the Chargers had won the boys' game, they would have made a sweep of things. A-G had already taken the J.V. game, 59-51, and their girls rallied in the third period to beat the Lady Jaguars, 40-37.

Ayden-Grifton trailed by only five going into the second half but shortly into the third frame, the Chargers began to drift out of their offense, take low percentage shots and fail to hit the boards. They pulled in less than eight rebounds in the third period and just 15 for the whole half.

The Jaguars, however, increased their lead by eight points taking a 13-point spread at the end of the quarter.

Farmville Central's girls had threatened to get their eighth conference win and stay in second place but Audrey McCarter's 10 third-period points helped A-G pass the Lady Jags at 24-23 and take the win away from Farmville Central.

Ayden-Grifton's girls have a 5-7 loop record for sixth place. Depending on North Pitt's game, the Lady Jags could fall back to fourth, at 7-5.

Farmville Central was not able to take command until Jennifer Counterman hit a rain-maker for a 6-4 lead. A long outside shot by Beth Turnage with three seconds left in the first period made it 8-4.

Farmville Central was able to add two points to its lead in the second quarter for a 20-14 halftime lead but Ayden-Grifton outshot FC, 8-2, in the first half of the third quarter to tie the game, 22-22. Diane Barrett sank a free throw for the Lady Jaguars for a brief lead, 23-22, but it was the last time as McCarter put A-G ahead for good with an outside shot with 3:01 left in the frame, 25-24.

McCarter added two more field goals and Cindy Potter one as A-G took a three-point, 30-27 lead into the final frame.

Farmville Central remained in the shadow of a three-point A-G lead through the final period. The Lady Jaguars cut it to one twice, 30-29 and 34-33, but A-G pulled back out by three both times.

McCarter and Potter led the Lady Chargers with 12 each and Toni Smith had 10. Potter had 24 rebounds, Karen Hasely had nine.

Counterman had 14 points and Wanda Phillips 12 for Farmville Central.

The loss by Ayden-Grifton's boys eliminated them from a shot at the Eastern Carolina Conference title. The Chargers have been on the skids their last four games losing all of them and falling out of a tie for first back to third.

Ayden-Grifton got off to a good start battling through a tough first period to trail by 14-13 at the end of the frame. Two four-point plays helped Farmville add some distance but the Chargers hung right in through the second quarter.

But where they had been passing sharply in the first half the Chargers practically didn't pass at all in the second. Where they set up and took good shots in the first half, the Chargers hurried them off and rarely set something up. And the lack of good defensive play also contributed to their falling quickly behind.

Ogden Braxton hit a field goal and Paul Ricciarelli two free shots giving A-G a quick lead. The Chargers had a chance to go one-up before the game started as Farmville Central was charged with a technical foul during the warm-up.

Walter Gorham and Keno Farrow scored for the Jaguars to tie the game and buckets by Farrow and Timmy Ward put the Jaguars in front, 8-4.

A-G retied it on buckets by Vern Davenport and Braxton and the lead was contested until Mitchell Foskey hit a free shot with three seconds left making it, 14-13.

Two Jaguar buckets opened the second quarter made it 18-13 and after A-G hit a free shot, two more FC buckets made it an eight-point difference, 22-14.

Bucs Increase Swimming Lead

RICHMOND, VA.—East Carolina stretched its lead to 195 points over second place Furman after two days of the three-day Southern Conference Swimming and Diving Championships being held here Friday night.

The second day was not quite as good for the Bucs as the first when they took every swimming event. Of the six swimming events on Friday, the Pirates managed but three victories. Coach Ray Scharf expected all victories.

"I really expected to come here and win every swimming event," stated the veteran swim coach. "But, it just did not come out that way. These teams in the Southern Conference are really improving. We are having work very hard."

In the three events the Pirates' swimmers looked fantastic.

Ross Bohlsen led a one-two-three four finish in the 200 freestyle while Steve Ruedlinger was the leader of the same kind of sweep in the 100 butterfly. The 800 freestyle relay team of John Tudor, Billy Thorne, Stewart Mann, and Bohlsen broke the old conference by 14 seconds.

Their time of 7:02.20 broke the old mark of 7:16.24 set last year by the ECU team. They also eclipsed the varsity mark by eight seconds.

LEXINGTON, VA.—Furman jumped out to a slight lead in the Southern Conference Indoor Track and Field Championships over William and Mary and East Carolina here Friday.

The Paladins won two of the four finals to give them 20 points, while the Indians had 16 and Bucs 15.

Furman took away points from the Tribe in two events the Indians were supposed to win, the distance medley and the two-mile relay.

Drexel George of the Indians started things off by winning the shot with Tom Watson of East Carolina placing second and Wayne Poole of the Bucs capturing fifth.

Greene Central Whips North Lenoir, 61-52

WHEAT SWAMP—Nelson Edwards scored 18 and Ray Hill 14 to lead the Greene Central Rams to a 61-52 win over North Lenoir Friday night, eliminating the Hawks from any hope of a conference title.

Instead, the two teams, along with Ayden-Grifton, which was also eliminated Friday night are in a three-way tie for second in the ECC. The jam may be resolved this week as the three have two games each left on their schedules.

The boys' game was the only one Greene Central was able to pull out having lost the previous J.V. game, 76-45, and the girls game, 50-38.

Greene Central's girls had taken a 9-6 lead in the first period but the Lady Hawks battled ahead in the second to lead at halftime, 19-15.

North Lenoir continued to pull away in the third period to a 37-27 advantage and outthrew Greene Central, 13-11, in the fourth.

Vickie Shingleton led the Ewes with 10. Vickie Vail led the Lady Hawks with 17, Beverly Faison had 14 and Denise Beacham scored 11.

As in the girls' game, the eventual loser of the third game took the opening lead. North Lenoir went up by two, 14-12 in JV—North Lenoir 76, Greene Central 45.

We have an automobile that saves like an economy car and drives like a Mercedes-Benz. Experience it. The Mercedes-Benz 240D.

Most economy cars make you economize in areas where you don't want to cut corners. Areas like comfort. Or safety engineering. Or quality. We have an alternative. An automobile that solves your gasoline problems once and for all, but doesn't compromise other essentials in the process. What is it? The Mercedes-Benz 240 Diesel. A car that uses economical Diesel fuel instead of gasoline. A car that burns each gallon of its fuel more completely than any gasoline engine. A car that never needs a conventional tune-up. But outstanding running economy is just part of the story. The 240D has all of the safety design and engineering advancements that have made Mercedes-Benz automobiles a standard for the automotive world. On top of that, it has ample room for five adults and their luggage. Sound too good to be true? See the 240D for yourself. Test drive it. Experience an automobile whose time has come.

Great Rivers Of Europe Remain Polluted

By ENRICO JACOMINI
Associated Press Writer
ROME (AP) — Except for the Tiber in Rome and the Thames in London, the great rivers of Europe remain seriously polluted in spite of programs — some still on paper — to bring them back to life.

Italian officials say that in a short while the Tiber will be as clean as it was in the time of Julius Caesar. Fishermen are back on the banks of the Thames again and eating the fish they catch.

But the only likely catch in the Seine in Paris, the Danube in Vienna and the Rhine in Cologne is a case of food poisoning.

All European countries have vowed to fight pollution in their rivers, but in most cases programs have remained on paper and life in the waterways has died, an Associated Press survey discloses.

The damage ranges from the few, inedible fish that fishermen pull out of the Seine to the gradual destruction of the spawning grounds of the caviar-bearing Beluga sturgeon in the northern Caspian Sea as a result of pollution from the Volga and Ural rivers.

The British were the first to launch a serious ecological drive and now boast that their rivers are the cleanest in Europe. The Italians are now following the trend, mainly in Rome.

Two of four treatment plants installed in Rome's Tiber River have been in operation for the past couple of years, and the results have become evident as the river runs to the sea.

The plants receive raw sewage and release clean water, leaving the waste and mud trapped inside. The leavings are burned and the energy they produce is used to keep the plants going. What is left after this procedure becomes fertilizer at low cost. The two other plants are expected to start functioning later this year, and Rome authorities say the Tiber will change from sickly brown to blue — as in the days of the Roman emperors.

In the rest of Italy, however, the results have not been so encouraging. Judges have been enforcing a law for the installation of treatment plants in city sewers and industries, but in Turin and other major cities along the Po, Italy's longest river, there still are practically no fish.

London authorities say about 70 species of fish have returned to the Thames. Fishing fleets are again working the estuary, and thousands of ducks and birds, some unseen in the area since the turn of the century, winter along the river. A decade ago, the Thames was so polluted that only eels could survive in it.

The change has cost British authorities nearly half a billion dollars over the past 15 years to modernize sewage plants, build reservoirs and install a computer to monitor the quality of the water. Today, foreign visitors make a point of visiting the sewage plants at Mogden.

Five new boats carry out to sea more than 20,000 tons daily of sewage treatment residue that in the past would have ended up in the river. As a result, no raw sewage enters the Thames at any spot along its 210-mile length.

Over the past century, the Volga in the Soviet Union has been gradually transformed from a sparkling stream, rich in fish and plant life, to a murky, near-lifeless channel carrying raw sewage, oil sludge, toxic chemicals and other waste.

The once-pleasant fishing and caviar industries on the Caspian have been crippled by the effluent. Iran is reaping the greater share of the Caspian caviar industry as sturgeon spawn in the cleaner sea to the south.

Only in recent years have Soviet authorities come to face the problems of pollution brought about by industrialization. In March 1972, a massive clean-up campaign for the country's two major waterways, the Volga and the Ural, was disclosed. One billion rubles, the equivalent then of $1.2 billion, were allocated for the first leg of the task, 700 million rubles for installation of purification equipment in 421 plants along the rivers and 300 million for sewage treatment in 15 cities. Success has ranged from good to nonexistent.

The Volga is the Soviet Union's most vital waterway. One quarter of a million people live along its banks and tributaries. One-fifth of its cultivated land flanks the river. Industrial development along its banks is in full swing. Two-thirds of the country's river freight moves down the Volga.

Money problems, internal politics and old-fashioned nationalism have been hindering efforts to clean-up the Rhine, which flows through four countries—West Germany, France, Switzerland and The Netherlands. A specially appointed agency to coordinate action has been working for four years on a convention to regulate the river's two major sources of pollution—salt from French potash mines and chemicals from West Germany's industrial giants—but so far has achieved nothing.

The four countries had decided to split costs for the storage of French salt pollutants, with the Dutch footing 34 per cent of the bill, France and West Germany 30 per cent each and the Swiss 6 per cent. Agreement stalled, however, after the French predicted the bill would be $200 million, 10 times the original estimate.

Cutting through an area of 30 million people, the Rhine is not only a major transport artery with heavy barge traffic but also the main source of drinking water and sewage disposal for the cities along its banks.

The river is often referred to as Europe's largest open sewer. West Germany's government structure, with pollution control in state rather than national hands, has complicated decision-making.

The Netherlands, however, has accused West Germany of ducking a confrontation with corporations on costly pollution controls because the industry is heavily burdened by business recession, and by Swiss and French competition.

The French, however, have found it profitable to take the problem off the hands of the central government in Paris. They have split their territory into six regions for water development, allocating $400 million for 1969-1976.

As a result, more treatment plants have been built in the country over the past five years than existed before, and authorities claim they have stopped the pollution growth.

The Seine has critical pollution points at Paris and in the industrial area of Rouen, where its waters practically "die" and no fish is edible. The Seine board, however, has budgeted 500 million francs ($113 million) over the next three years to give the river another cleansing.

The mighty Danube collects the problems of all the seven countries it touches. With 40 million people living along its banks, its woes range from the nuclear power plants that use its waters to cool reactors with resulting increases in the river's temperature, to industrial plants at Kelheim, in West Germany, and sugarbeet factories at the border between Czechoslovakia and Austria.

Vienna, there has been little action to keep the river alive. Other threats to the Danube's life include the harvesting of about 140,000 tons of reeds in a single year in the delta area and the shooting by hunters of 50,000 fish-eating birds.

The number of birds in this one-time sanctuary has dropped from four million to just 700,000 in the last few years.

Firm With Heart Cases

CLEVELAND (AP) — Doctors at University Hospitals here have developed a means of studying hardening of the arteries that has led them to be adamant with their patients.

"Because our research has shown us beyond the question of a doubt how dangerous the risk factors are to these patients, we don't merely make suggestions about reducing those factors, we insist," says Dr. Ralph G. DePalma.

DePalma was one of several Case Western Reserve University and University Hospitals doctors who described the progress of their research to a recent conference in Canada.

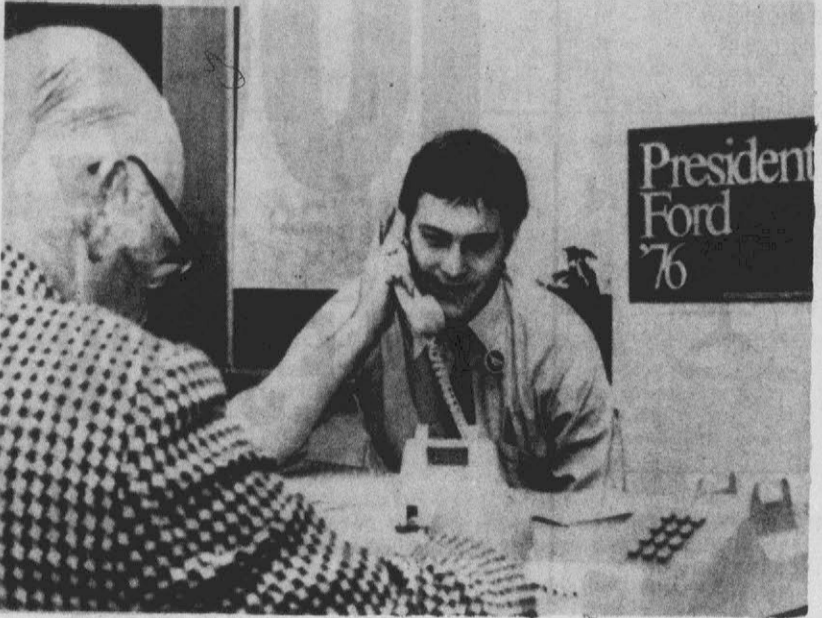

Some risk factors have been known for some time, but little was known about the actual development of the cholesterol deposits in the arteries, DePalma said. He said the hospital's recently developed surgical technique for removing the deposits from monkey arteries now permits analysis of the development of the disease.

By relating their animal studies to human clinical problems, DePalma said, the doctors have shown with selected patients that reducing such risk factors as high cholesterol levels, smoking and high blood pressure has produced regression of early deposits.

Will Collaborate On New Book

Dr. Nancy Kennington Mayberry, associate professor of Foreign Languages and Literatures at East Carolina University, has been notified that she and her husband, Dr. Robert J. Mayberry, will receive a contract to write a book for the Twayne Publishing Co.

The Mayberrys will collaborate on a book-length study of 19th century Spanish poet and dramatist Martinez de la Rosa, to be published as part of the Twayne World Authors Series.

Goal Of Volunteer Greenville

Centralizing Volunteer Services In Greenville

The idea for Volunteer Greenville, fostered here for a couple of years, is beginning to shape up into what is hoped will be a sustained, viable community service.

Since the first of the year, Mrs. Susan Mecher has been on the scene as coordinator for Volunteer Greenville, with an office at 1710 West Third Street, Moyewood Center.

Subsidized jointly by the City of Greenville and Action, the program is one phase of the city's efforts to provide continuing and expanded services to all citizens, including utilization of willing hands who have time to give in serving others.

The concept of some central means of coordinating the volunteer services of people willing and able to help serve community needs began a couple of years ago with the VISTA group sponsored by the Wesleyan Foundation. Mike Hamer, who now works full time with the Greenville-Pitt County Boys' Club was instrumental in setting the stage for the present full time effort headed by Mrs. Mecher.

Purpose

Stressing the centralizing role of Volunteer Greenville, Mrs. Mecher said "there are several purposes behind the existence of Volunteer Greenville. One main purpose is to recruit volunteers and place them with agencies throughout the city of Greenville.

"As the name implies, Volunteer Greenville will depend on providing assistance to people without hiring new city employees. In fact, I'm the only paid employee in the program. All the services that will be given will be through the help of non-paid volunteers."

When asked if the services of Volunteer Greenville would be restricted to residents of Greenville only, Mrs. Mecher said that the program would be concentrated in Greenville, "but eventually, if it's successful I'm sure these services will be extended to Pitt County. There is some overlapping into the county area near Greenville even at this time."

Scope

Volunteer Greenville is broad in scope, encompassing contact with all types of already established services. "This is the first time in Greenville an attempt has been made to get all volunteer services under one umbrella," she said. "There's a long standing pattern of volunteer help in Greenville to draw on and what Volunteer Greenville essentially will do is to coordinate the entire scope of volunteer services, to expand it, and to recruit new volunteers so that whatever need arises, there'll be a good chance of filling it."

Matching Up

One thing Mrs. Mecher hopes to accomplish is that of matching a person's primary interest with his particular field of interest. "When this can be done," Mrs. Mecher said, "it stands to reason the person volunteering will enjoy and be more enthusiastic about giving free time to help out."

She thinks this is of vital importance since many of those giving time are persons with limited free time who like to feel whatever volunteer time they contribute is used to best advantage.

"I do want to point out, however," she said, "since this is something that seems to concern some people, a volunteer doesn't have to serve entirely at one agency or in one field. There's always opportunities for a volunteer to make a change, to get involved in something new and different."

Volunteering Procedure

"Initially," Mrs. Mecher said, "a person who wants to volunteer should contact me." (Mrs. Mecher's phone number is extension 225 of the Greenville City number, 752-4137).

"I'll set up an interview. We'll talk about the needs, the situation as a whole and try to match the interests of the volunteer with an existing need.

"This doesn't mean," she pointed out, "that a person has to have unlimited time at his or her disposal in order to volunteer. Some of the most urgent needs are in cases where only a few minutes of a volunteer's time is needed on a regular basis, or in many cases, on a periodic basis. There's opportunities for evening and week-end volunteers as well as daytime volunteers."

Opportunities

The range and variety of opportunities for volunteers to help offers an insight into the tremendous diversity of people services that exist in Greenville in the mid-1970s.

Already Volunteer Greenville has made arrangements to work with a total of 46 agencies, groups and individuals.

These include the Adult Basic Education program; the H Club; American Cancer Society; Rosa Bradley's Home for Older Adults; Eastern Lung Association; the handicapped program of the Greenville Recreation Center; Pitt County Memorial Hospital; REAL Crisis Center; Speech and Reading Clinic; ADAP; WAGS; WICS; TEACCH; Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center; the Sheltered Workshop; Pitt Tech's Outreach program; Pitt County's Health and Mental Health Departments; and Big Brother-Big Sister.

Also, organizations such as Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts, Boys' Club and Operation Sunshine are always in need of volunteers.

Tutoring children is one of the field with widespread opportunities as is visitation and other services to older people who cannot do much for themselves.

"We also have a continuing need for spot or fill-in volunteer services." Examples of this type of situation she mentioned are people who can find a few minutes to take an elderly person without transportation for a doctor's appointment, or to fill in on phone answering for an hour or so.

"Many of the spot jobs can be handled simply by referral over the phone. For instance, if we have a request from the Health Department for help in getting a person in for a doctor's appointment, I can go down the list of people who have volunteered for this type of service and give the Health Department names and numbers to call."

People of all ages are needed. "We have need of teen-agers as well as adults," Mrs. Mecher said.

Agencies Needs

Explaining how Volunteer Greenville works two ways—matching the volunteer with his interests; and being able on the other hand to provide various agencies and services with names of people to call on—Mrs. Mecher said, "Each agency or group we work with furnishes forms to Volunteer Greenville listing the particular needs, job descriptions, types of persons needed to help out and qualifications desired.

"In many instances, no special training or requirements are needed beforehand. Quite often, the agency or group needing volunteer assistance is prepared to train a volunteer to be able to do certain jobs."

VOLUNTEER GREENVILLE SLOGAN . . . When Volunteer Greenville was first established, the Greenville Jaycees sponsored a slogan contest. Of the large number of slogans received, that submitted by Mrs. Ruth Beddingfield was chosen. Her winning entry is . . . "Turn Spare Time Into Share Time. Volunteer."

Directors

Volunteer Greenville is guided and monitored by a Board of Directors. The initial board for 1976 is made up of 24 members and three ex-officio members.

Board members include a representative cross section of black and white, young, middle aged and older citizens.

The 1976 president is Elizabeth Wilkerson; Rebecca Lutz is vice-president; and Mike Hamer is secretary.

Board members are Harry Allen, Marge Baney, Trisee Brown, Mike Davis, Rev. Dan Earnhardt, Chet Emerson, Addie Gore, Becky Hemby, Doug Hill, Viola Hilton, Mary Volunteer Greenville seems to be off to a good start with 70 volunteers already registered during the six weeks it has been in operation.

Good Start

"There are two projects underway or being planned now where we could use a number of additional volunteers," Mrs. Mecher said. "During the first two weeks in March a city-wide screening-evaluation program will be conducted for four year children going to kindergarten next year. There's room for all sorts of volunteer help in this program."

"Another program that will need volunteers is the 'Friendly Call' project being shaped up. Three different churches are at work on establishing this as a joint project to bring help and a touch of friendship to Greenville's shut-ins. This is an example of where the churches will be contacting Volunteer Greenville to coordinate volunteer services for the program."

People Oriented

In concluding the outline of the scope and purposes of Volunteer Greenville, Mrs. Mecher said "I'd like to stress that Volunteer Greenville is a people oriented service. We will stay strictly out of anything with a political structure and will not get involved in fund-raising projects. Agencies have their own means of handling such matters, and we will not get involved in that kind of activity.

"Our aim is to make it easier for people to help others, on a person-to-person basis."

Ohio Native

Mrs. Mecher is a native of Maria Stein, Ohio. "It's a little German town and nobody believes there's a town named that when I tell them where I'm from," she said. She is a graduate of Miami University of Ohio with a major in physical education and a minor in health education. Her husband, Gary Mecher, is a graduate assistant in anthropology at East Carolina University.

Costa Ricans Talk About Their Impressions Of Greenville

VISITORS TO GREENVILLE . . . Fourteen young people from the Central American country of Costa Rica posed for this group photo during the last week of their stay in Greenville. With the 14 are three friends who joined the group for the occasion.

Text And Photograph By Susan Quinn

Have you ever considered what a foreign person's first impression of Greenville might be? If you have, perhaps you would be pleased to know that 14 Costa Rican students who are visiting East Carolina University described Greenville as peaceful, quiet, and clean.

The Costa Rican students came to ECU in November through the help of Vernon Smith, a professor of geography. The students are studying English at ECU. They have lived in the homes of families of Pitt County residents since their arrival, and will return to Costa Rica Tuesday, February 24.

The following comments were about impressions and experiences of the students during their visit here. The students spoke rapidly in the background in Spanish during the interview, while a few answered in English.

"I think that we expected for all of the United States to be like our visions of New York, with pollution, garbage and a lot of cars. When we got here we thought that we were out in the country," Rodrigo Gamboa said. "We imagined high buildings and a lot of concrete, instead the land is flat, the buildings are low and there are a lot of trees."

Differences

Differences between the United States and Costa Rican customs and attitudes and geography were discussed.

"Eastern North Carolina seems so flat. In Costa Rica you can look in any direction and see mountains," said Delfin Barquero.

"There is also an unusual difference between young people and old people here," Barquero said. "In Costa Rica the young people and old people get along together better and there is not so much of a difference in lifestyles of the two groups."

The students explained that they noticed that there is a difference between races here. Students noted the fact that there seem to be few black leaders in Eastern North Carolina, but in Costa Rica all races are treated equally and represented equally in leadership.

Asked if youth activities are similar, the group offered the following answer:

"The discotheques are darker in Costa Rica and there are no game rooms or foosball machines. We go to a disco to dance, drink and meet the girls," said Gamboa.

"I think it is stupid for a grown man to take girl out to play pinball or foosball. We stop playing at 13 years old in Costa Rica. Then we play sports such as soccer or we go to the park to meet girls."

Food Favorites

Since the students were in Eastern North Carolina for the Christmas holidays, they were invited to many different meals. Asked about some of their favorite new dishes, replies included pumpkin pie, pecan pie, cheese cake, and meat loaf. The students explained that the foods that they have missed the most while being away from home are chili, tamales, and beans and rice.

Other Favorites

The students agreed that they either liked the girls or boys and they liked the families here because they were all friendly. Another favorite among the students was the framework of the large houses here.

Wednesday night the students went to each home of the families which they have lived with and serenaded them.

The students agreed that the visit has been fun, but they look forward to going home.

Halifax's Sally-Billy House

By RUTH MINCHER
HALIFAX—The now well-known Sally-Billy House in Halifax has been moved to its final "resting place."

The Sally-Billy House, which until late 1974 stood near Scotland Neck, is one of the most interesting of the North Carolina tripartite houses. The significance of the house is chiefly architectural, being one of a group of tripartite houses produced by the Halifax-Warren County planter society of the late 18th and early 19th centuries.

The tripartite-type house, a pedimented two-story central block flanked by one-story wings or porches, was constructed mainly in this area of northeastern North Carolina.

In the Sally-Billy House, the main facade of the two-story pedimented central block is only one-bay wide; it is flanked by two-bay one-story wings whose gable roofs run at right angles to that of the main block. Defining the corners of the central block and the wings are delicate pilasters that support an elaborate cornice. The house also possesses a detailed pedimented entrance porch.

Built by either William Champion or Lewis Bond, researchers are now dating the house as c. 1808.

The house had several successive owners after Lewis Bond sold it in 1816. In 1826 it was purchased by Mary Gordon Norfleet Lowrie, widow of Superior Court Judge Samuel Lowrie of Charlotte. In 1834 the house was sold to the family from whose Christian names it derives its unusual name, Mr. and Mrs. William R. Smith Sr. After his death in 1845, William R. Smith left this property, along with many other bequests to his "affectionate wife, Sally." His widow, Sally Smith, lived until 1870. It is said she was called Mrs. Sally-Billy, the Billy (her husband's name) being attached to distinguish her from other women named Sarah or Sally who were married to Smiths. The house is still named for this occupant.

Several people have owned this house since it was sold by the Smith family. The most recent private owner, C.W. Hale, gave the Sally-Billy House to the Historic Halifax Restoration Association. In late November, 1974, the Association moved it to a site on King Street in the State Historic District of Halifax.

Lynwood Owens

Reflector Pressman Designed Press Guard

Lynwood Owens, pressroom foreman for The Daily Reflector has designed and installed cylinder guards on the newspaper's press to prevent anyone from having a hand or arm crushed between the giant rollers.

The hinged and folding guards, made of metal grating, can be swung back out of the way to allow press room workers to work on the units. Then they are unfolded and closed for the press run.

The guards are required by the Occupational Safety and Health Act (OSHA).

Factory-supplied guards available had to be lifted off and on—increasing the possibility they would not be used. They are also expensive—about $3,200 for the eight guards required on The Reflector's 32-page press.

The guards designed by Owens—fabricated by Ward's Machine Works here—are hinged so they fold in and out easily.

And the cost is much less—about $650.

Miss Carolyn Ann Tripp Weds Randell K. Smith

The Piney Grove Free Will Baptist Church was the scene of the wedding ceremony of Miss Carolyn Ann Tripp and Randell Kelly Smith Friday at 8:00 p.m.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Mildred Tripp of Rt. 1, Greenville, and the late Mr. Luther R. Tripp. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Mark H. Smith of Rt. 1, Greenville.

The Rev. Tommy Evans officiated at the double ring ceremony. A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Eloise Jackson of Greenville.

The church was decorated with traditional rainbow colors. The altar was centered with a fifteen branch brass crescent candelabra holding white chise candles with bouquets of rainbow mum, pom poms, gladioli, baby's breath and emerald greenery. On each side was a seven branch tree candelabra holding arrangements of white and pastel gladioli, mums, pom poms, baby's breath and emerald greenery. An aisle carpet was rolled out for the bridal party by Mitchell Bullock from New Bern and Herby Tripp from Robersonville, nephews of the bride. Family pews were marked with white satin bows.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, David Lee Tripp, of Bethel. She wore a formal length gown of white silk organza over taffeta designed with a high neckline encircled in Venise lace. The empire bodice featured an overlay in a bib effect of scrolled Venise lace trimmed in rows of pearls and edged in floral Venise lace. The sheer bishop sleeves were enhanced with a capelet trimmed in the Venise lace beaded with pearls and with cuffs of matching lace. The full flowing skirt and attached chapel train were edged in miniature Venise

Mrs. Fannie Lloyd, grandmother of the bridegroom, wore a two-piece blue suit with matching accessories and a white carnation.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. Dorothy Joyner of Winterville, sister of the bride, and Mrs. Teresa Bullock of Robersonville, niece of the bride.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Did you ever notice how in reporting sports no one ever "wins" a game?

They crush, stomp, triumph, trounce, bomb, out-score, out-class, overthrow, run over, edge out, hammer and victimize, but they never use the word "win."

The other night after a sportscast where there were three assaults, four upsets, one humiliation, a squeaker, and a rout, I said to my husband, "These guys must be fed intravenously by a thesaurus each night to come up with all those words that mean 'win.'"

"They have to," he said. "You'd get bored hearing who 'won' all the time."

"But that's not the way people talk," I complained. "Can't you just see some 230-pound guard being interviewed at halftime saying, 'We came to beat Pittsburgh. At this moment, we're not overwhelming by as much as we had hoped, but sooner or later we hope to vanquish. After all, as Vince Lombardi said, 'subduing is everything.'"

"You should talk," he said. "How come a woman on the society page never 'gets married?'"

"What are you talking about?"

"I've read those stories before. They 'exchange vows', 'say nuptials', or 'pledge I do's', but they never get married!"

"That's different."

"Why different? We're talking about saying what we mean. When we got engaged I suppose you called up your best friend and said, 'Hey, Dottie, guess what, I'm going to plight my troth in August.'"

"I think plighting a troth is rather poetic. It's certainly not like the Raiders 'smothering' their opponents or the Jets 'clobbering' theirs."

"Hey," he grinned. "it might be fun if society pages showed as much imagination as they do on the sports pages. Can't you just imagine reading where Betty Schmidlapp cruised by four ugly bridesmaids Saturday to overpower her opponents and cap a victory in the Bridegroom Open in the upset of the year?"

"This is a stupid argument," I said. "And I don't want to continue it. Just say I won and we'll forget it."

He sat there thinking. "See," I continued. "You haven't heard the word win in so long you can't even remember how it goes."

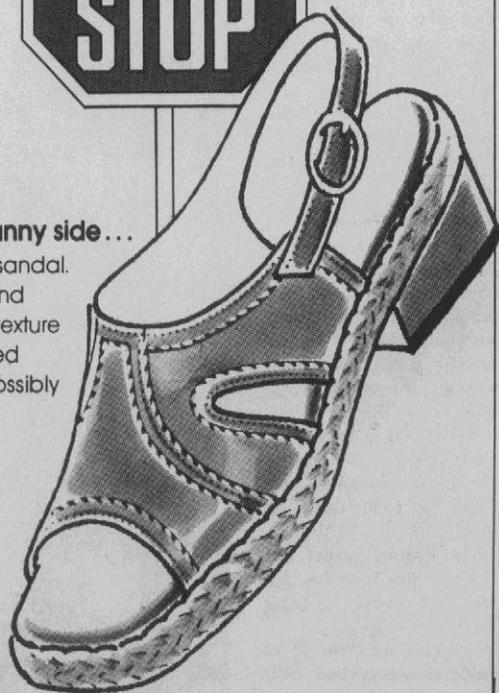

"Let's see," he said. "let's just say in the sports vernacular you 'persuaded your opponent it was in his best interest to lose.'"

Leap Year Or Not, Wedding Vows Go On

NEW YORK (AP) — Will women exercise their traditional right to propose to men in this Leap Year?

No matter who does the asking, marriage is still a going proposition, contrary to some opinion. Last year some two million marriages took place, though many of these were remarriages — about three in ten in a recent year.

Whether it's the man or woman who pops the question, married women's lifespans are longer than unwed women's, according to government statistics.

Women who marry are also often more affluent if they have a career, and if they don't make it on their own their husbands often do. A University of Michigan study found that marriage practically triples chances of career success for men.

Besides living longer and in comparative affluence, married women often also have better protection for the future, says the Institute of Life Insurance. The average size of an "ordinary" (most commonly purchased) life insurance policy bought in 1974 by a married person was $21,390, nearly twice as much as that purchased by a single person.

And according to a University of Michigan study, married people in the 45-and-over age group were five times more content in their jobs than the unmarried workers.

If all that isn't enough, marriage may keep a man out of jail. According to sociologist Jessie Bernard, males who remain single are more apt to get involved in criminal activities.

Colonial household hints — to test the oven for degrees of heat necessary for baking, the homemaker should thrust her arm and hand into the oven. If she could hold it there until she could count to 30 and no longer, it was right.

To time a boiled egg, sing one verse of "Jesus Lover of My Soul."

The above "hints" were given by Mrs. Lenore Walston, home economics agent in Bertie County, at a program on "Heritage Foods" held here last week.

The colonial house in winter was never quite warm, but was cheerful in atmosphere. It was not only the people that suffered — it was noted in the late 17th century, that poultry had their breakfast in the kitchen in cold weather. In fact, ewes, young calves, piglets and hens could be saved from freezing if they were moved into the shelter of the kitchen hearth, said the speaker.

The 17th century family living in the one basic kitchen-room plus a loft considered themselves fortunate if they owned one good bedstead. Children usually slept on the kitchen floor on pallets.

In the 1600's, the appraisers for probate in one house listed along with a few other furnishings, three wood trays, three wood bowls, three wood dishes, "some" pails and tubs, one "runlet," an earthen pot, a skillet, a posnet, a frying pan, grid iron and six spoons.

"Inventories revealed a chance in household contents throughout the 18th century. A few knives and two-tined forks were used at better tables. Silver serving pieces were used and there was an increase in the amount of pewter," Mrs. Walston added.

"Lights for special uses — needed daily in the same kitchen work area were left hanging or standing in place. Candleholders not in use were gathered on a convenient shelf or cupboard top. A lantern was always left near the backdoor to be picked up and lighted just before one left the house.

"A fire burned on the hearth continuously, but more cooking was done over embers than flames. A candleholder was kept near the chimney, as a light was needed to check the progress of cooking," she continued.

"We may think sugar, tea and coffee are expensive, but in most colonial households it was an extravagance. In the mid-eighteenth century a keg of sugar was inventoried at one pound, (about $5 then and at least $50 now) a walnut chest had the same value.

"Pumpkin was the wilderness staple that sustained the first settlers of Virginia. Throughout the 17-18th centuries, the colonists combined pumpkin sauce with fish or meat. Some thought the colonists learned to dry pumpkin from the Indians, but they probably already knew as it had been the English and Continental custom to dry pumpkin like apples. Pumpkin was used as a boiled or baked pudding and in bread. It was also used in a stew along with corn, peas and beans," she added.

"The favorite dish in England had been 'Hasty Pudding,' made of wheat meal boiled in milk. Now it was Indian pudding. The old 17th century recipe was 'salt a pint of meal, wet with one quart milk, sweeten and boil six hours,'" Mrs. Walston stated.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I've asked around, and nobody has been able to come up with a solution to my problem. Even my clergyman said, "That's one for Dear Abby."

I am being married soon and am planning a formal church wedding. I have a friend who thinks she can sing. I have heard her, and she sounds like a cow in labor. She offered to sing at my wedding, and not wishing to offend her, I pretended to be delighted but carefully avoided accepting her offer.

Now she just assumes she will sing at my wedding, and she's already asked me which songs I like.

Abby, please tell me how I can get out of this predicament. She's had a few lessons that she thinks qualify her as a professional, but she is really terrible. She distorts her face, screws up her mouth, rolls her eyes heavenward, and sings off-key. She sang at a funeral last year, and even the mourners had trouble controlling their laughter. Please help me.

NO NAME, PLEASE

DEAR NO: Tell her at once that you appreciate her offer to sing, but you've decided against having a vocalist. Don't feel called upon to justify your decision. Simply state the fact as kindly and as soon as possible.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 31-year-old, unmarried male law-school graduate who is looking for a job.

At every job interview, I am immediately asked, "Are you married?"

When I say no, I sense a negative reaction and lack of interest. I am sure that I am being discriminated against because I'm unmarried, but there is no way I can prove it.

I am not a homosexual. Are employers so bigoted and homophobic that they won't hire bachelors on the remote chance that they might be gay? Otherwise, why do they ask this question?

A man's marital status is in no way related to his ability to perform the job. Surely all married men are not ipso facto more competent than single men.

So, what do you advise me to say when I am asked that question?

IRATE BACHELOR

DEAR BACHELOR: Answer truthfully. It's possible that you are rejected for another reason. (Could it be that when you're questioned about your marital status your obvious annoyance comes through unattractively?)

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I just moved into a duplex apartment. His mother lives on the other side.

Billy Joe and his mother have always been very close, but I didn't know how close until we started living here. She comes over every evening after supper and gives Billy Joe a bath. I told him I thought she was crazy for wanting to give a 23-year-old man a bath and he was crazy for letting her.

Bill Joe says he doesn't see anything wrong with it, and his mother says nobody can bathe a man as good as his mother can.

When I try to tell my mother-in-law that it just ain't fittin' for her to bathe a grown son, she says, "Why not? I used to diaper him. You must have a dirty mind."

So, what do I tell her then? Or am I in the wrong? PUZZLED IN W. VA.

DEAR PUZZLED: No, I don't think you're "wrong." I think it likely, however, that you married into a very weird family.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

The Men's and Women's Drill Teams are doing fast-paced workouts to prepare themselves for the North Carolina State Wolfpack Invitational Competition to be held in Raleigh April 10. Last year North Pitt's Men's and Women's Drill Teams as well as Color Guard received first place honors. The freshman girls received second place and the freshman boys placed third. The Annual Inspection for Jesse is a four-year basketball player for the Panthers. He also played football for four years. Jesse is undecided about which college to attend but he plans to major in Physical education.

Both Patriotic And Profitable

WASHINGTON (AP) — Smuggling was both profitable and patriotic during the Revolutionary War.

But many Americans continued the practice after the war was over and the 13 colonies had won their independence, according to the National Geographic.

Alexander Hamilton, the nation's first secretary of the treasury, did something about it. He prevailed on Congress to authorize 10 armed vessels to enforce payment of customs duties on goods entering American ports.

President Washington then signed an order appointing Hopley Yeaton of New Hampshire "Master of a cutter in service of the U.S. for protection of revenue."

That was the beginning of the present day Coast Guard.

Tougher Times For Duplicators

NEW YORK (UPI) — A tougher market in the decade ahead is in store for manufacturers of copying and duplicating machines, according to a study by the Frost and Sullivan research firms. It says that by 1985 the number of impressions by duplicating machines will rise 37 per cent to 500 billion and the output of copying machines will rise 55 per cent. But over the past decade, it points out, impressions by duplicators rose 65 per cent while the product of copiers had a 1,200 per cent increase.

Quill Pens Are Still Tradition

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Two years ago Clark Prediger, a retired insurance man, was rummaging through some family heirlooms when he found something that ended his retirement.

Among the objects Prediger, 69, discovered a goose quill pen — used as a writing instrument for hundreds of years — that his grandfather had given him in 1916.

"It was a lucky find for me," he said. "I was tired of watching TV. Tired of doing yardwork. I went back to work as a goose quill pen maker."

Each month, Prediger ships hundreds of the pens throughout the country from his home here and he says business has never been better.

"Quill pens are part of the nostalgia and bicentennial rage sweeping the nation," he explained. "Museums and libraries want them as well as thousands of ordinary, everyday people."

"The pens are a link with our heritage. Quill pens recorded our American liberties, gave us the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution and Bill of Rights.

"When attorneys appear before the U.S. Supreme Court they are presented a goose quill pen. It's part of tradition."

His grandfather raised geese on an Ohio farm and made the pens as a hobby, Prediger said.

Goose quill pens fell from favor in the 1820s, Prediger said, with the introduction of the steel-tipped pen.

To make his latter-day replicas, Prediger uses goose quill feathers imported from France. He pays $25 a pound for the quills, which average about 200 to the pound, and sells his pens for $1.

After stripping the quill to make a finger grip, he boils the tip in a solution of chemicals to harden it, then uses a pen knife to fashion the tip into a writing point.

The pen knife, he added, was specially designed for goose quill pen makers.

By GREGORY JENSEN
LONDON (UPI) — Shaw Taylor runs the biggest detective force in the world. A few million of his sleuths are about 12 years old.

Four times a week Taylor goes on television for five minutes to enlist children — and their parents — as Scotland Yard helpers in solving crimes. "And it works. Oh, how it works," Taylor said in an interview.

It works so well there are now imitations of Taylor's 14-year-old "Police Five" shows all over England, in West Germany, Hong Kong and elsewhere.

"Police Five" and its Saturday morning kids' edition, "Junior Police Five," are slick and sophisticated applications of a simple idea — using television's mass appeal to find witnesses to actual crimes.

"Our object is not to arrest people," said Scotland Yard official David Rangecroft in the Yard's tightly guarded headquarters. "We're there to get information. The important thing is the number of responses."

Rangecroft's cold figures backed up Taylor's claim of success.

"In 1975 we presented 331 cases on the programs. We got about 4,000 calls in which we received useful information on 146 of these cases. That does not include calls which told us nothing we didn't know."

"In all, 115 arrests were made which were directly attributable to the programs."

Taylor, not a policeman but a 51-year-old TV announcer who looks like Peter Sellers, has his own measure of his show's success.

"We had a murder one where the weapon was a bunch of metal things wrapped around a broomstick," he recalled. "Nobody could figure out what on earth these metal things were."

"So I had one on the program. Every phone in the Yard's situation room lit up at once. We tied up the whole emergency system for 13 minutes, and every caller said the same thing — 'It's a cheese-cutter handle.'"

Calls come from a devoted audience of about eight million. "This is 'Z Cars' for real," Taylor said, naming Britain's most popular fictional police show.

"This is real crime, the genuine article. Maybe you were there. Maybe you saw something you didn't realize was important. And this is fascinating."

Taylor came on camera in one recent junior show garishly dressed. His clothes, he explained, were like those worn by a recent smash-and-grab robber in the new housing project where he was standing.

Then he took his junior sleuths step by step through the robbery, following the thief's trail to a park where children might have been playing.

"If you saw the robbery, or the man running away, here's the number to call — after a word with mum or dad first," Taylor told them.

"That note about telling the parents first is very important," he said in the studio.

"We're not trying to create informers, or rebuild some kind of Hitler youth. The last thing we want is some kid telling on his dad or turning in his mum for stealing candy."

"I always stress the term 'observers.' We tell kids over and over to just look, to observe, never to 'have a go' or take matters into their own hands. And then to tell their parents and then the police."

"We tread a delicate line here," said Rangecroft, who supplies Taylor with the facts. "So all our requests for information are very specific — tied to specific crimes and specific aspects of that crime."

On the adult shows nearly anything goes and murder is common. For junior versions "we steer off the more horrific aspects of life," Rangecroft said.

"Police Five" began accidentally in 1962 with a prime-time hole in program schedules of Britain's commercial television network. Scotland Yard was asked if it could use the time.

"It went on as a six-week filler," Taylor recalled. "Police Five" was only a working title — five minutes, given to the police. We didn't really know what we were going to do."

Neither did the Yard. But it insisted upon complete control.

"And that is vital," said Taylor, the show's writer, producer and announcer. "The police must be in total charge."

"We select the cases," Rangecroft said. "We do the research, arrange interviews with the officer in charge, supply exhibits — like guns used in crimes or stolen property or clothing worn by a victim."

Scotland Yard men are at Taylor's elbow throughout. Three were in the studio for a recent show, making last-minute script changes and guarding murder-case exhibits Taylor was televising.

Besides two London shows for the Yard, Taylor does two more for English Midlands police forces. Other British television regions have similar programs. Imitators are world-wide.

"I think part of the success of the program is because I'm not a copper," Taylor said.

"I'm a sort of no-man's-land character, a stepping stone between the public and the police. What I'm saying is, 'Let us get together and help them.' It seems to work."

Ben Franklin Picked Roads

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Some of the earliest advances in the art of road building in the United States were achieved by Benjamin Franklin while he served as postmaster general.

Franklin himself, says the National Automobile Club, surveyed and selected new road sites that would improve postal service. In 1763, for instance, he surveyed, charted and marked with milestones the Boston Post Road that now forms part of U.S. Highway 1.

Yachtsmen Are Given Warning

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Yachtsmen have been warned by the U.S. Coast Guard not to rely solely on any single aid to navigation, particularly a floating buoy.

Because of imprecise positioning methods, atmospheric and sea conditions, slope and materials composing seabed and length of buoy chain attachments, buoys are not fixed. They move about and some disappear or sink.

The prudent mariner therefore takes bearings from fixed objects and aids to navigation on shore.

Air Passenger Traffic Is Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Domestic scheduled airline traffic gained 1.3 per cent for the 12 months ended Dec. 31, 1975, compared with 1974, the Air Traffic Association reports.

It said domestic traffic for the month of December alone increased by 5.4 per cent.

Total domestic and international scheduled airline traffic increased by 4.4 per cent in December. In 1975, total U.S. scheduled airline traffic decreased 0.4 per cent.

HALIFAX (AP) — Plastic surgeons here are installing artificial knuckles and finger joints using only local anesthetics. Plastic surgeon Dr. Winston Parkhill said five joints could be replaced within 90 minutes in the procedure.

The joint replacements are an "end-stage treatment" for sufferers of rheumatoid arthritis whose joints have become too distorted to respond to drugs or physiotherapy.

Bronze Stars Begot Grammy

GRAMMY TROPHY—The Grammy Award, a small golden trophy patterns after the early gramophone "talking machine," will be the big attraction for some 270 nominees when the 18th annual Grammy Awards ceremonies is broadcast live as a 90-minute special Saturday, February 28 (10-11:30 p.m.) on Channel 3N, 9, 11.

When CBS-TV broadcasts the 18th annual Grammy Awards ceremonies on Saturday, Feb. 28, 10 to 11:30 p.m., on Channel 9-11, the award itself will be one that sprouted from the pavement of Hollywood Boulevard.

The seeds of the award, which salutes outstanding creative achievement in any and all aspects of the recording arts and sciences, were planted in the form of star-shaped bronze plaques in sidewalks along the boulevard in the late 1950s.

In 1957, the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce took a careful look at the key mile or so of Hollywood Boulevard, which had long been ballyhooed as the glamorous main stem of the film capital, and decided it was beginning to look a trifle crummy. To spruce it up and give it some added significance and dazzle, the Chamber thought up the idea of immortalizing the all-time greats of the various fields of the entertainment industry by inscribing their names upon hundreds of bronze stars that would be implanted in the sidewalks for the admiration and education of the thousands of pedestrians who pass there each day.

To select suitable representatives of the recording industry to be thus immortalized, the Chamber named a committee composed of five top Hollywood executives in that industry; Paul Weston, Lloyd Dunn, Sonny Burke, Jesse Kaye and Dennis Farnon.

After much deliberation, this group decided that the thing to do would be to honor those recording artists whose talents had sold at least one million records or a quarter-million albums in their careers.

But to their astonishment and dismay, they discovered that some of the most gifted and popular artists in the history of the record business were to be denied recognition in the concrete because they couldn't qualify. In spite of their other achievements, they had never sold the requisite number of platters.

This event sent the thinking of the execs off on a tangent — shouldn't somebody establish some kind of annual award to honor recording excellence, the presence or absence of certain names on the Boulevard sidewalk notwithstanding? If the movies have their Oscars and television has its Emmys, why shouldn't the recording business have its Waxy or Groovy or Alby or whatever it might be called?

The result was that soon thereafter in Hollywood the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences was formed, one of the purposes of which was the establishment of such an award. As a consequence, the first Grammy (after the early-day gramophone "Talking Machine") Awards were presented in 1959 at ceremonies in Beverly Hills.

Como Goes To Hawaii

Perry Como is joined by guest stars Petula Clark, George Carlin, Tavana's Polynesian Spectacular (a group of 36 native dancers and singers) and special guest star Don Ho for "Perry Como's Hawaiian Holiday," to be colorcast Sunday, Feb. 22, 8 to 9 p.m., on NBC Channel 6-7.

Highlights of the special, taped on the island of Hawaii, include a musical underwater sequence and a luau (Hawaiian feast) attended by some 500 guests. Picturesque locations include the botanical gardens of the Kona Surf Hotel, the nearby bay, the City of Refuge, Kailua Village, Kealekekau Bay, and scenic beaches.

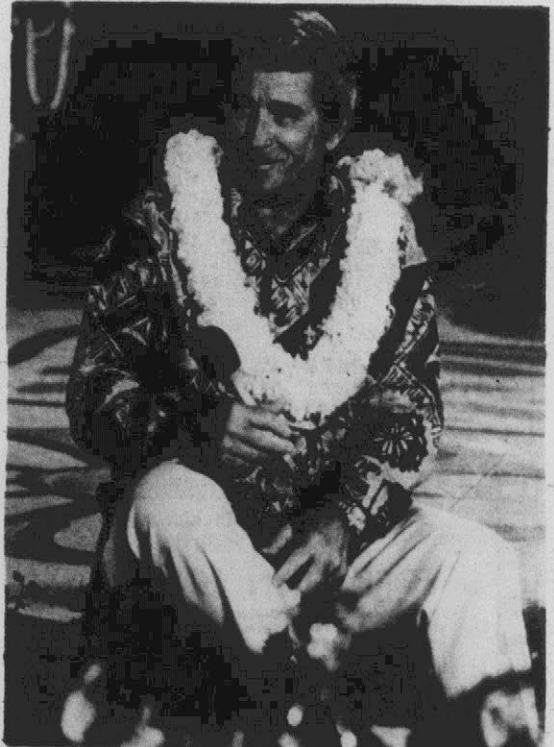

The show opens with Perry singing "Next Door to Paradise" in the botanical gardens, chatting with Don Ho, with whom he sings "Tiny Bubbles."

Next, Perry, Petula and George go on an outrigger canoe ride, singing "One Paddle, Two Paddle," then dive into Kealekekau Bay for an underwater number, "Octopus Garden."

A beach near Kailua Village, location of the royal palace, becomes the setting for Petula's song, "Give Me a Smile," followed by a medley with Perry, including "Little Grass Shack," "Pearly Shells," "Beautiful Kauai," and "Song of the Islands."

Carlin next does a humorous Captain Cook routine, involving Perry and Petula, in the city of Refuge area.

"Perry Como's Hawaiian Holiday" is the first of three specials which mark Como's return to NBC, where he has been a radio and TV star since 1944. A second special is planned for next spring and the third, devoted to the Christmas season, will be presented in December. The native of Canonsburg,

PERRY IN HAWAII—Perry Como, wearing a traditional lei, sings Hawaiian melodies during his special, "Perry Como's Hawaiian Holiday," the first of three specials to be colorcast on Channel 6, 7, Sunday, February 22 (8-9 p.m.)

Jack Warden Plays Cop In 'Jigsaw John' Series

During his lifetime, Jack Warden has been a pro boxer, a bartender, fireman on a Navy patrol boat on the Yangtze in China, a merchant marine sailor, tugboat deckhand on the East River, a lifeguard, dancehall bouncer and a WW II paratrooper, but, "I never had the urge to be a cop."

He became one again when "Jigsaw John" (Mondays, 10 to 11 p.m., on NBC-TV) premiered last month with his portrayal of the famed investigator of the Los Angeles Police Dept., John St. John. He was a cop years ago in "N.Y.P.D."

Warden admitted he had "a few qualms about doing another cop show on TV, but then I realized that's what TV needs — another cop show." His tongue was definitely-in-cheek.

"What the heck. People are interested in law and order. That primarily accounts for the number of cop shows on TV. Yeah, the powers that be are trying to make the populace aware of law and order. Then, again, maybe the people are demanding it. I don't know what's happening. I do know that every cop show or private-eye has been successful, and some are not that good.

"A good cop has to be intelligent. There is a story on every block. He has to be strong-armed, sometimes a doctor, a psychiatrist — it depends on what he runs in to on the beat. I'm trying to stick to what this fellow (St. John) really is.

"The majority of scripts for 'Jigsaw' are being taken from St. John's files. You know, he told me in 35 years he has never been in a shootout. However, there are a few in our scripts.

"I won't wear a raincoat, not even a toupee. I'm him — a detective-investigator who's been doing the same thing for those 35 years — putting the puzzles together."

You mean, this is another 'whodunit'?

"Basically, yes." We deal with one murder, or incident, per show. And, it's a puzzle for the audience. The locale is L.A. St. John is still active on the force, and he's our technical consultant. He comes on the set at least once a week.

"He can retire now, and I think he wants to retire, and he probably will because of this show. He says he wants to fish a bit."

Warden, who is a good possibility for an Oscar for "Shampoo," says he is now "Beginning to find out who I am. Of course, it's going to take a few more years. I hope there is a lot more to Jack Warden than people see on a TV show. I am a person who has definite opinions that I'm not afraid to express."

SHE HAS A PREFERENCE

Whenever Hollywood costume designer Edith Head jets between continents, her preference among airlines is Pan American. Miss Head also designed uniforms the Pan-Am stewardesses wear.

On the three networks, NBC was the first to broadcast in color.

Pa., began his professional singing career in 1933 and made his first RCA Victor recording, "Goodbye Sue," in 1943. Two years later, he recorded his first big-selling disk, "Till the End of Time." This was one of the 11 single Como records honored with Gold Records (each signifying more than one million copies). Como also was awarded two Gold Albums (each signifying a million dollars in album sales).

He received a Peabody Award, two Emmy Awards and a Christopher Award in 1956 for his performances on "The Perry Como Show," the Saturday night series on NBC-TV. He received another Emmy Award in 1958 for the same series.

'Camera Three' Presents Noel Coward Celebration

"Camera Three" presents a two-part celebration of Noel Coward - playwright, actor, composer, lyricist and master of urbane sophistication - Sunday, Feb. 22 and Sunday, Feb. 29, 11 to 11:30 a.m., on CBS-TV. The series, titled "Mad About the Boy: Noel Coward - A Celebration," features an all-star cast: Jean Marsh, winner of two Emmy Awards for her role in "Upstairs, Downstairs" and currently starring in "Habeas Corpus" on Broadway; George Rose, star of "Beacon Hill" and many Broadway plays, including "My Fat Friend";

Carole Shelley, currently on Broadway in "The Norman Conquests"; and Kristoffer Tabori, currently featured in "Habeas Corpus." Coward, the author of "Private Lives" and "Blithe Spirit," is widely considered a witty vestige of the 1920s and '30s - cocktails and laughter, chic and cheek. But Coward was much more than that, and these "Camera Three" programs attempt to get below the surface gloss and look at the man in relation to the 50 plays and 300 songs that he produced. The music and scenes are linked by Coward's own words: extracts from his two autobiographies, his poetry and lyrics.

It's Old, It's New

Something 'old' is something 'new' on daytime TV these days. It's "All in the Family" segments airing Monday through Friday on CBS-TV. Carroll O'Connor and Jean Stapleton star, with Rob Reiner and Sally Struthers. This week's story lines are: Monday, "Archie, the Gambler." A new Archie? That's the question the family asks when Archie comes home from work bearing gifts and good cheer.

Jack Nicholson stars in "The Last Detail," the story of three sailors on a sad and joyful journey which must end in a Navy prison for one of them, making its television premiere on "The ABC Sunday Night Movie," Feb. 22, 9 to p.m., on Channel 3-5-12.

Otis Young and Randy Quaid are also starred as the other two travelers who make up The Odd Trio.

Buddusky (Nicholson) and Mulhall (Young) are self-described "lifers" - career Navy men - assigned to escort a young prisoner, Larry Meadows (Quaid), from the Norfolk, Va., naval base to the Navy prison in Portsmouth, N.H., where the boy is to serve eight years behind bars for impulsively - and unsuccessfully - attempting to steal a charity box for money he didn't even need.

Critic Judith Crist said, "Nicholson, extroverted and bantam-cockish, is the embodiment of the complete person. (showing) us once again his range and quality in performance. Quaid is nothing short of remarkable."

What begins as an annoying extra-duty assignment - with a few days off at the end as reward - becomes an experience of human compassion and concern as the two hard-nosed "regulars" gradually recognize the boy's innate innocence and vulnerability, and Buddusky and Mulhall decide to make the trip a slow one, using the days that would have been their free time wilder - and also the gentler - to show Meadows a little of the sides of life he has never known.

The Luau Is Real

There was nothing 'fake' about the luau filmed for "Perry Como's Hawaiian Holiday," airing Sunday, Feb. 22, 8 to 9 p.m., on NBC Channel 6-7. All it took was a quick glance into the sizzled eyes of a glazed roasted pig to know, beyond a doubt, that this particular luau was for 'real.' Backing up the roasted pig were bowls of opihī (that's Hawaiian abalone, which resembled diced black olives), fruits and vegetables most people have never heard of - breadfruit, lillipoi, wood rose, ginger - persimmon - to name a few of the lesser - known gastronomical delights.

Joining the well - known "Mr. C." are Petula Clark, George Carlin, Hawaii's own Don Ho and the grass - skirted Tavana Polynesian Dancers. Perry sings, as only Perry can, many songs - among them a version of the "Hawaiian Wedding Song" which even the 'locals' cheered.

Why did NBC choose Hawaii for the special? Producer Bob Banner explained, "We wanted to do one of Perry's specials from Hawaii and decided to do it now because with the cold weather back East, the balmy breezes on the set are as inviting as a cozy fire."

"We wanted to show something of the Hawaiian land, other than Honolulu. We've all seen so much of that on TV that there is really nothing exciting or new left to show," Banner said.

There was a great amount of planning that went into production of the special. In addition to shipping all the needed equipment from the Hollywood home base, NBC also sent along a special camera and housing capable of taping underwater. Says Banner: "The unique thing is that the camera goes underwater, but the focusing and shading are done in the boat. We brought in a diver who did a lot of Jacques Cousteau's projects to photograph the sequence which features Perry, Petula and George in an underwater musical. We even had a chorus line to do the 'kicks.' The entire number was done with natural light to the music from the Beatles' 'Octopus Garden.'"

And just where do rehearsals for a routine featuring three non-divers and a chorus line take place?

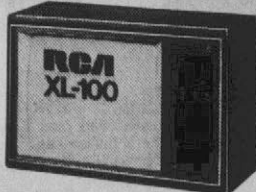

"In the hotel pool, of course," quips Banner.

SCENE

Fashions in home furnishings come and go, just as they do in other areas of design, and right now we are seeing some new looks and innovations in carpeting. All manner of different floor coverings have had their vogue in the past years. Wall to wall carpeting, vinyl tiles and area rugs have made the floor scene. But of all of them, it's apparently wall to wall carpeting that has remained the solid favorite. It's a fact that wall to wall carpeting has never lost its general appeal.

Make your floors more appealing with new wall to wall carpeting throughout your home or business. Eastern Carpet Inc., 602 West Greenville Blvd., Greenville. 756-1944. "Where There's Always A Sale."

Life's A Ball

Bobby Sandler, appearing as Nicky Palik, on ABC-TV's half-hour comedy series, "On the Rocks," Mondays, 8 to 8:30 p.m., literally juggled his way into show biz.

Sandler became interested in juggling while studying at New York University. He started with three balls, but gradually worked his way up to juggling five at once. Sandler left the Big Apple to go to San Francisco. While in the Bay City, he appeared many places doing his act. It was there that a Hollywood producer saw him and told him to try his luck in Hollywood — which he did. Here's how Sandler fielded questions about his juggling.

Q. How heavy should the juggling balls be? A. Heavy enough so that when you throw them up in the air, they come down.

Q. How long can you juggle five balls at one time? A. Continuously. Only if something important comes up, do I stop.

Q. Were you always interested in juggling? A. No, but when I got to school I found out it was a required subject.

Q. Do you perform for your friends? A. Yes, if they are under seven years of age.

Q. Do you juggle anything unusual? A. Of course, "Rocks."

Daughter Receives Mother's Messages

A lonely young girl, searching for herself, finds a new meaning to life when her estranged father gives her a legacy of tapes her dead mother recorded for her 17 years before, in "A Message to My Daughter," "The CBS Late Movie," Monday, Feb. 23, 11:30 p.m., on Channel 9-11.

The moving story comes from Hollywood's newest husband-and-wife team. Rita Lakin wrote the screenplay and her husband, Robert M. Lewis, was the director.

Bonnie Bedelia stars as the mother, Janet Thatcher, and Kitty Winn as her daughter, Miranda. Special guest star Martin Sheen plays John, the girl's father.

Co-starred are Neva Patterson as Janet's mother and Mark Slade as a young man Miranda meets in a chance encounter.

Miranda, who has left the home of her father and step-mother, is hospitalized after a car crash, then returns to her father's home to recuperate. Unable to communicate with her and realizing she is near the breaking point, he gives Miranda the tapes, hoping the time is right.

Miranda is startled to hear her mother's voice bridging the chasm of 17 years. She leaves, taking the tapes with her, and traveling toward the place which holds her mother's grave. The film then tells in flashback the story of her mother's all-too-short life — how she was pregnant when she met John, how they fell in love and were married. How, when Miranda was only two, Janet discovered she was soon to die, and how wonderful John was to her in the brief time they had together.

Miranda not only learns much about her mother, she also comes to a better understanding of herself and the man who — although not her real father — loves her as much as any father could.

PLAYS SAME CHARACTER IN TWO SERIES

Actor Richard Anderson believes he has established a TV first. Not only does he co-star simultaneously in two weekly ABC series, "The Bionic Woman" and "The Six Million Dollar Man," but he also plays the same character—Oscar Goldman of the OSI government agency in both series.

JUGGLING—Like the late, great W.C. Fields, Bobby Sandler, who stars as Nicky Palik in ABC-TV comedy series, "On the Rocks" Mondays (8-8:30 p.m.), broke into show business as a juggler. Here's Bobby, in a multiple-image photo, doing his juggling thing for an appreciative audience—himself.

Sinatra Stars As Renegade

Frank Sinatra stars as a wild renegade who has the cavalry on his trail, the law at his throat, outlaws at his back and women on his mind, in the Western adventure tale, "Dirty Dingus Magee," to be telecast on "The CBS Late Movie" Tuesday, Feb. 24, 12 midnight on Channels 9-11.

Also starring in the film are George Kennedy, with Anne Jackson and Lois Nettleton.

Magee discovers his life in jail to be calmer and safer than liberty. When he is freed, he finds everybody is out for his life.

Heels, Pack Battle For ACC Honors

Ah, those Tarheel — Wolfpack battles: David Thompson leaping over the tall, lanky big men in Carolina Blue, George Karl killing the Pack zone with outside shooting, the deafening noise from Carmichael Auditorium, and the wild antics during foul shots at Reynolds Coliseum. All these pictures fit the thrilling frame of North Carolina — North Carolina State basketball games. The next confrontation takes place in Reynolds Coliseum in Raleigh on Tuesday night, Feb. 24, at 9 p.m., Channels 5-6-9.

Both schools are rich in basketball history — North Carolina's amazing undefeated 1957 season, when the Tar Heels defeated the awesome Wilt Chamberlain and Kansas in the finals in triple overtime. That team included many North-erners, with Lean Lennie Rosenbluth heading the list as National Player of the Year. Other starters were Pete Brennan, who made All - America the next year, Tommy Kearns, Joe Quigg and Bob Cunningham. State's history begins with the immortal Everett Case, whose Wolfpack teams won 279 games and lost 135. From his native Indiana in 1946, he personally became the leading exponent of winning, top - notch basketball in the entire state. Then came Thompson. David's story is well - known, as he and his cohorts — led by the tall (Tom Burleson) and short (Monte Towe) of it, helped State win its first national championship in 1974 against the seemingly unbeatable Bill Walton and the UCLA Bruins.

This year's initial contest on Sunday, Jan. 18, was a typical, down - to - the - wire affair that left fans from both schools breathless. State edged UNC on a foul shot after the buzzer, leaving a packed Carmichael Auditorium silent.

Both N. C. State and UNC sport nationally - ranked teams that rarely lose at home. However, the Tar Heels would like nothing better than to defeat the Wolfpack in Reynolds, avenging the earlier loss. In fact, this contest will be doubly important, as it may very well decide the ACC regular season champion.

TAR HEEL—John Kuester, 6'2"—170, will be guarding for the University of North Carolina when they meet North Carolina State, Tuesday, February 24 at 9 p.m. on Channel 3N,5,6,9.

Grier Developed A Speech Habit

"Up until 1968, I couldn't even talk — now you can't shut me up," reported gridstar-turned-actor Rosey Grier.

"I used to have a great fear of talking," continued Grier, who demonstrates just how well he has overcome this trepidation in his recurring role as Benjy, a con artist-on-wheels in "Movin' On" (Tuesdays, 8 to 9 p.m., on NBC Channels 6-7).

"I deliberately worked at speaking. In the car, I made up little games and talked to myself. And I took three or four different courses in college."

Later, however, as a top player with the New York Giants and then with the Los Angeles Rams, Grier continued to avoid speaking at the numerous banquets to which he was invited.

"I just didn't know what to say to people — man, that's tough," he explained with a rueful grin. "Then somebody told me to write things down and memorize them. I tried it, and it helped."

But not enough. He still became tongue-tied, a problem that became doubly frustrating when a football injury sidelined his sports career and he turned to acting.

"Then I did a World Premiere movie with Ricardo Montalban, and he was great for me. Just before a scene, I'd be standing around blowing my lines.

Lindbergh Kidnapping Is Subject Of Movie

Portraying Charles Lindbergh has done at least one thing for Cliff De Young. He has lost his fear of flying.

Cliff, who has sung professionally, developed his fear after several musician friends died in the crashes of small planes in route to one-night gigs.

When he got the title role in "The Lindbergh Kidnapping Case," the NBC World Premiere movie to be colorcast Feb. 26, 8 to 11 p.m., Ch. 6-7, on "NBC Thursday Night at the Movies," he decided to steep himself in as much Lindbergh lore as he could.

"I read eight books on Lindbergh," he says. "The more I read the more I admired him. I really wanted to find out what made this very private person tick."

"Even though the script concerned itself with the kidnapping and search, capture and trial of the kidnapper and required no flight scenes, I wanted to fly myself. I thought it might in some small way help me understand him."

Cliff sought out friends with small planes, screwed up his courage and began flying again, even taking the controls at times.

"I was nervous at first," he admits. "But it kept getting easier every time I went up until I actually began enjoying it."

So much so that Cliff wants to take up a new hobby.

"I'd like to start gliding. They say it's an incredible sense of peace and freedom to silently soar through the air."

"And besides," he says, "you don't have to worry about an engine conking out."

De Young was an English major in college when a professor with a yen for theaterics persuaded him to enroll in some drama classes.

"I guess I'd have to say that I was very lucky," she admitted. "I think the thing I like most about those three parts is that they are each so different. Going from a streetwalker to a role like Carole Lombard was a big jump, but I think that the girl I play in 'Griffin and Phoenix: A Love Story' is someone I'll remember all my career. It's a very special part."

Jill is cast as a lonely young woman whose whirlwind affair with an equally lonely man brings her the first happiness in her life. The film also gave her an opportunity to play opposite Peter Falk, a man she has long admired.

"I always had a fondness for Peter's work, especially in some of his films and early TV dramas," she said. "Working with him is a joy because he's completely dedicated to his art. I was afraid that after all those years with 'Columbo' that he would probably be rather relaxed about acting. He's not. He wants to make sure that every scene works perfectly, but that's the kind of acting that brings out the best in me."

Hutch Is A Nature Lover

SKIING—David Soul, who stars as Ken "Hutch" Hutchinson, in the ABC-TV police drama series, "Starsky & Hutch," Wednesdays (10-11 p.m.), has been skiing since he was seven and heads for snowy slopes every chance he gets between Hollywood assignments. Here he is during a recent visit to Aspen, Colo., demonstrating his skill on the longboards and sharing a ski-lift ride with fellow-enthusiast actress Lynne Marta.

David Soul, who races around the city streets in a bright red car with Paul Michael Glaser in ABC-TV's hit series "Starsky & Hutch" (Wednesdays, 10 to 11 p.m., Channel 3,5,12), is a nature-loving outdoorsman who began skiing at the age of seven in the mountains of Stuttgart, Germany where his father, Dr. Richard W. Solberg, served as a special U. S. State Department advisor.

Hutch in the series, but much of the time I have to admit I'd rather be skiing than busing 'bad guys.' Acting takes a lot out of me. Skiing puts it back, so I head for the mountains when the snow falls."

Vacationing recently in Aspen, Colorado, the handsome Nordic actor said, "Skiing is something I have to do because I do it almost instinctively. When I don't do it, I feel empty, but when I'm on the slopes I feel whole and fulfilled. It's kind of a spiritual thing. It helps me build self-confidence. It clears my mind. It's very personal."

According to David, the mountains of the western states are the best groomed mountains in the world.

Putting his arm around actress Lynne Marta, another ski enthusiast from Scandinavian stock, David smiled and said, "Skiing is a great ego builder. Nothing gives me more satisfaction than skiing through a steep, heavy mogul (a slope with bumps and ridges) and coming out the other side standing up. I love playing

"I have no desire to join the international or European 'down hillers,'" he said. His favorite ski resorts are Aspen ("I love the people there."), Snowbird (Utah), Mammoth (California) and Sun Valley (Idaho). He particularly enjoys skiing during the month of March because "That's when the snow is just right."

David has never considered skiing in competition. "That would spoil it for me. There's enough competition in my life already. Besides, like I said, skiing is a very personal thing to me. It's going to stay that way."

Leo Steals The Scenes

There is a sneaky character stealing scenes in "The Blue Knight." He has made only four brief appearances, but series star George Kennedy unselfishly hopes he'll be used more.

Leo is a nondescript mix with the build of a wire fox terrier and the brindle- and - white coloring of a Boston bull. He has had remarkable success for a newcomer and will soon start work in his first feature film, "Nickelodeon," starring Ryan and Tatum O'Neal.

"Anytime Leo is on camera, I'm not," explains Kennedy. "And I use all the rest I can get."

Leo a feisty little dog that shows up to harass Kennedy in his role as beat cop Bumper Morgan, does it again on "The Blue Knight," Wednesday, Feb. 25, 10 to 11 p.m., on CBS Channel 9-11, in a contest over sharing a hot dog. It's a brief respite from Bumper's pursuit of a crooked fence (played by guest star David Opatoshu).

The dog's trainer and owner is Karl Miller. Unlike many movie animals, Leo is a house pet, instead of a kennel dog, and all his training has been specifically for "The Blue Knight."

"Leo really does a number on me in the show," says Kennedy. "He gets me every time."

"My wife and I felt sorry for him and took him from friends who were leaving town," says Miller. "When I started to work him, I knew he'd be good because he was so affectionate."

PAINFUL DISCOVERY—Sian Barbara Allen and Cliff DeYoung star as Charles and Anne Morrow Lindbergh whose infant son is kidnapped, in "The Lindbergh Kidnapping Case," a world premiere drama to be colorcast on "NBC Thursday Night at the Movies" February 26 (8-11 p.m.) on Channel 6-7.

Film Depicts Kidnap Tragedy

"The Lindbergh Kidnapping Case," airing on the "NBC Thursday Night at the Movies" Feb. 26, 8 to 11 p.m., is the re-enactment of the trial of kidnapper-murderer Bruno Hauptmann. The film chronicles the events following the disappearance of Charles and Anne Lindbergh's 20-month-old son from their home in rural New Jersey on March 1, 1932. The ransom was paid in April, the baby's body found in May, and the kidnapper apprehended two years later and eventually found guilty and executed. Meanwhile, the Lindberghs were hounded so unmercifully by the press and public that they were eventually driven out of the country.

Lindbergh was considered throughout the world to be an American Prince. People worshipped him, and to his ruse to prove that an accident was deliberate murder. The victim is found at the bottom of an elevator shaft in a deserted warehouse where he was meeting with Mike to discuss a series of freight robberies. (60 min) many admirers he was the embodiment of youth and courage. Public feeling ran high against Hauptmann; partly because people identified with Lindbergh and partly because Hauptmann was German, and this was the time of Hitler's rise to power.

Heading the cast in amazing look-alike fashion is Cliff DeYoung as Lindbergh; Sian Barbara Allen as Anne Morrow Lindbergh; Joseph Cotten plays the retired professor who acted as go-between for the family and the kidnapper; Walter Pidgeon is the trial judge; Martin Balsam is Hauptmann's defense lawyer; Dean Jagger, the prosecuting attorney; Keenan Wynn, Laurence Luckinbill and Denise Alexander have small important roles. Portraying Bruno Hauptmann is Anthony Hopkins who says of his role; "I had never heard of Hauptmann, even though I knew of the case, so I had no preconceptions of whether I thought him guilty or not. I have done as much reading as I can, and I saw the Pathe News film of him on the stand, and I now have a theory to work on."

Success Is Sweet

One of the few new entries doing well in the ratings is "Welcome Back, Kotter," seen Thursdays, 8 to 8:30 p.m., on ABC-TV. The series stars Gabe Kaplan and his "sweat hogs," with John Travolta as Vinnie Barbarino, the leader of the gang, who aspires to one day be the head of the Mafia.

Travolta admits that he didn't quite expect the show to be the hit it is. "I didn't think it would get to be this big. It's crazy." The actor reports he's receiving close to 3000 fan letters a week, including proposals.

He grins as he remarks, "I'm getting to be quite a sex symbol. When we're taping, girls 18 and under have been banned from the studio because their screaming interfered with it. Now they have to have ID's showing they're 18 or over. Personally, I think the girls over 18 do the screaming."

Pike's Peeks

By Charlie Pike, TV Showtime Staff Writer

HOLLYWOOD—Sally Struthers of TV's "All In The Family" has a new romance in her life, and he's Bo Donaldson of singing fame. Sally and Bo met several months ago when Sally devoted much of her free time to helping Bo recover from a skiing accident, and they're now inseparable.

Henry Winkler of "Happy Days" was reportedly offered his own series prior to this season but didn't feel his character could carry an entire thirty minutes. Then it was suggested that the show be called "Fonzie's Happy Days," but Ron Howard said no.

The latest major guest star to appear in "Chico and the Man" is Joey Bishop. Joey will be seen as a nervous novice mugger in the episode, "Too Many Crooks" to air Wednesday, Feb. 25.

There's been another major shake-up in the cast of daytime TV's "General Hospital," bringing to 13 the number of cast changes since last September. The latest to be informed that their contracts will not be renewed are Peter Hansen, who's been portraying Lee Baldwin for eleven years; Lucille Wall, who's been Lucille Weeks for all but two weeks since the show premiered 14 years ago; James Sikking, who's been playing Dr. James Hobart the past two-plus years, as well as Augusta Dabney, Marla Pennington, Ted Eccles and Dan Black.

Dick Foster, producer-director of "Perry Como's Hawaiian Holiday" special on NBC-TV Feb. 22, had to learn to use scuba gear in order to check on an underwater number. His instructor was Dr. Glenn Egstrom of UCLA. Said Foster: "We used sign language and an underwater speaker device, which has a half-mile range, for communicating. For the scene, we employed a hand-held PCP-90 camera in a special housing and complemented that with aerial shots from a helicopter."

Malden Plays Clown

Karl Malden appears in one of the most unusual roles he's ever played when he stars as a circus clown in the "Clown of Death" episode of "The Streets of San Francisco," airing Thursday, Feb. 26, on ABC Channel 3-5-12. Michael Douglas co-stars.

The program was filmed during several performances of the U.S. National Circus, when it played recently at the Cow Palace in San Francisco.

Guest stars in the episode are David Birney, Michael Strong, Madlyne Rue and Dick Van Patten, with Lynne Marta as special guest star. The script was written by Arthur Row and directed by Virgil Vogel.

For the filming, Malden joined the traditional opening parade of "joys" before the Cow Palace audiences, who were not told in advance of his participation. A specially-assigned cameraman followed Malden closely during the parade and he too, was dressed and made up as a clown. The result was that Malden and the cameraman gave the impression of performing a typical clown routing rather than revealing the filming of the Cornel Wilde stars as Jim Carnahan, the owner of a small boat-chartering business who fights a shark-infested ocean in his search for sunken treasure, in "Sharks' Treasure," to be presented for the first time on television on "The CBS Friday Night Movies," Friday, Feb. 27, 9 to 11 p.m., on CBS Channel 9-11.

Carnahan is so intrigued by the rumor of underwater treasure that he mortgages his boat to finance an expedition in search of a lost Spanish fleet. Assembling a crew, he sets off for the Caribbean, where he finds himself battling to clear deadly sharks out of the water surrounding the diving area.

After successfully raising some of the treasure from the wrecks on the ocean floor, the men are preparing to leave when they are attacked by five escaped convicts who take over their boat. The convicts force Carnahan and his crew to dive for more gold, and then abandon them to die among the dangerous reefs.

SHARKY?—Cornel Wilde (right) and a fellow diver find a cage not quite shark proof while seeking a fortune in sunken treasure, in "Sharks' Treasure," to be shown for the first time on television on "The CBS Friday Night Movies," Friday February 27 (9-11 p.m.) on Channel 3N,9,11.

Martin Gets Roasted

Two U. S. Senators and some of the top names in show business will take part in a TV 'roast' for Dean Martin, who usually hosts NBC-TV roasts himself. This time, however, he will be the recipient.
 Don Rickles will perform the duties of host when the "Dean Martin Celebrity Roast" airs Friday, Feb. 27, 9 to 11 p.m., on Channel 6-7.
 The dias guests include the largest array of celebrities ever gathered for this series. Among them are: Senators Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.) and Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn.); Bob Hope, John Wayne, Jimmy Stewart, Angie Dickinson, Joe Namath, Paul Lynde, Orson Wells, Redd Foxx, Rich Little, Joey Bishop, Howard Cosell, Georgia Engel, Rowan & Martin, Gene Kelly, Ruth Buzzi, Gabe Kaplan, Muhammad Ali, Foster Brooks and Nipsey Russell.
 The show was taped on location at the MGM Grand Hotel in Las Vegas, Nev.
 To what does Martin attribute his success?

 "Meeting Jerry Lewis, and leaving Jerry Lewis," he quips. "There is nothing wrong between Jerry and I, believe me."
 Before he met Lewis, Dino Crocetti admits he was, "A dealer. That's the truth. I was a croupier for many years. Back then Steubenville (Ohio) was wide open."
 "Jerry and I first came to California in 1948. We started doing movies first, and from there, went into TV."
 "I know I said many years ago I wouldn't, and I really didn't want to go into TV, but my agent said I should. So, I said I would if we could own our own show — sing what I wanted when I wanted."
 "He came back and said, 'You have it.' Still, I didn't want to get into TV. But, now I'm glad I did. Television made me a national star because people know me more for TV than movies."
 Are there any movie plans in the works for Martin now?
 "I don't know," he responds. After I finished 'Ricco,' I still had two to do for MGM, and still they give 'em to (Steve) do. I guess they're still trying to McQueen, (Robert) Redford or find some good scripts unless (Paul) Newman first."

Filming Wasn't Routine

Filming for a TV documentary on the police force in Richmond, Va., recently triggered a bizarre series of events that culminated in a Florida penitentiary escapee holding five people hostage for three hours. Among the hostages was Mrs. Laura Hall, sister of ex-Sen. Sam Ervin. Mrs. Hall died three days later from causes in no way related to the incident.
 At 11 a.m., a WXEX-TV (ABC-TV Richmond affiliate) news crew was filming patrolman M. J. Weber going about his daily duties. Weber was asked to stop the car and perform a routine license check for the camera. The patrolman pulled alongside the car and the car stopped. Weber got out, and was walking toward the car when the driver showed a gun. Weber then leaped back behind his patrol car and crouched down. As he did so, the car he had pulled over sped off.
 Weber called for assistance and gave chase. The pursued car was wrecked, and one of the two men in it ran into a nearby house which was occupied by Mrs. Hall and her family.

 Three hours later, after a city detective had been exchanged for two hostages, the carbine-toting escapee walked out. His companion had already been apprehended.

DUKE—High-scoring guard Tate Armstrong will spearhead the Duke University offense when the Blue Devils face nearby rival North Carolina on the ACC Game of the Week. The contest, from Chapel Hill, can be viewed on Saturday, February 28 at 1 p.m. on Channel 3N,6,9,11.

Blue Devils, Tar Heels Meet

Much of the improved play of the Duke Blue Devils this year can be related to the outstanding performance of junior guard Tate Armstrong. Armstrong, a native of Houston, Texas, was ignored during the pre-season by the ACC media due to a series of injuries that had kept him hobbled for most of his previous years.

Now, 371 points, 86 assists and 18 games later, Armstrong has developed into one of the league's finest backcourt wizards. He is both the team's high scorer and assist leader, playing the point guard position.

The Duke team will need all the help they can get from Tate when they meet nearby rival North Carolina, down the road a piece in Chapel Hill, on the ACC Game of the Week. The contest will be broadcast on Saturday, Feb. 28, at 1 p.m. on Channel 6-9-10.

In 12 of Duke's 18 games, he has surpassed the 20-point barrier and registered a career high of 34 points against N. C. State in Raleigh. In that game, he scored an amazing 15 points in the final four and one half minutes to keep Duke in striking distance although the Blue Devils finally succumbed 106-101.

Since that game, he has been on a hot shooting streak, having hit on 62.5 per cent of shots from the field in the last three games to raise his field goal percentage to 52.6. His scoring pace has moved him from nowhere on the Duke scoring charts to 35th, and if he continues at his present rate he will be the first player to crack Duke's fabled top ten since Randy Denton turned the trick in 1971.

However, Armstrong's scoring is not what has impressed coach Bill Foster the most.

"Tate has just done everything on the court for us this season. He can pass, shoot and play excellent defense. He is always assigned to the opponent's top guard," says Foster. "Plus, he has been a real leader on the floor. When we need someone to take charge, he does it."

Johnny Is Out Of Sight

Walking his dog one day, Johnny is startled when Rags chases a cat into a laboratory at Medico House, spills Professor Graham's latest experiment into a pan of fudge, eats the candy and becomes invisible, in "Where's Johnny?," a film from England that will be rebroadcast on "The CBS Children's Film Festival" Saturday, Feb. 28, 1 to 2 p.m.

Locating Rags by his floating leash, Johnny (Raymond Boal) takes him for a swim and sees that water is the antidote which makes the dog visible again. Basil and Fingers, two shady characters, witness this and follow Johnny back to his house, where his "invisibility chunks" get mixed up with fudge his mother is making.

Basil and Fingers buy the fudge and invisibly proceed to Medico House to rob the safe. But Johnny and his friends eat the remaining "invisibility chunks" and follow the crooks.

Burr Tullstrom's Kukla, Fran and Ollie with Fran Allison are hosts of "The CBS Children's Film Festival."

GOLFING—Glen Campbell displays the form that has made him a leading member of the Hollywood golfing community. The popular singer-guitarist will host his own golf tournament, The Glen Campbell Los Angeles Invitational on Sunday, February 22 at 5:30 p.m. on ABC-TV.

Newcombe Meets Borg

John Newcombe vs. Borg - Australian vs. Swede - veteran vs. newcomer - family man vs. bachelor - finesse vs. power - patience vs. impatience. Newcombe and Borg, as well as their divergent characteristics, will meet in a head-long clash this Sunday, Feb. 22, between 1:30 and 3:30 p.m. at Keahou-Kona, Hawaii. Front row seats will be provided free of charge, courtesy of NBC. Bjorn Borg, the icy-cool Swede, burst onto the tennis scene in 1972 at the tender age of fifteen. A superb player on clay, Borg exhibited amazing talent in the 1973 Wimbledon Classic, and has been regarded as a superstar ever since. His greatest successes in 1974 were consecutive victories in the French and Italian Open.

In 1967, John Newcombe also arrived on the tennis scene with a bang, winning at Wimbledon as an amateur. At 16, he was the youngest players ever to represent Australia on an overseas tour. His fine serve-and-volley game immediately made him one of the most feared players on the tour.

Newcombe has won three Wimbledon titles, and has been a doubles winner with Tony Roche six times. In fact, Australians Newcombe and Roche have a vast collection of major doubles titles.

In 1974, John won the coveted WCT finals in Dallas over Borg in straight sets, but Newcombe was stronger and Bjorn was younger. The match should be a tight one, with Borg's exciting, unorthodox play pitted against the powerful, basic game of Newcombe.

Campbell's Tourney Is Tuneful

Glenn Campbell's "Country Boy," which has become a smashing hit for the Southern singer-guitarist, states that he's "got his feet in L. A.," but that's not the only thing Glenn has implanted in the City of Angels. He also sponsors an annual charity golf tournament from the California city: The 1976 Glenn Campbell-Los Angeles Open, which is played at the Riviera Country Club in Pacific Palisades, California. Competition should be extremely keen in this event. Johnny Miller reigns as John's favorite in every tournament that he enters. By recently winning the Bob Hope Classic, John became only the ninth golfer in history to make over one million dollars, and he has done it quicker than anyone before him. Other "millionaires" of the golfing world will compete, including the leading money-winner of all time, Jack Nicklaus. Others are Billy Casper, who is fashioning a strong comeback this year, and Lee Trevino, who warms up his golf game as the temperature does the same. Ben Crenshaw will lead the pack of "young lions" on the tour. Ben, in only his third year of professional competition, has taken the top prize in two early-season tournaments, including the prestigious Bing Crosby Pro-Am.

Glenn Campbell is an excellent golfer in his own right, one of the leading members of the Hollywood golfing community. He will lend his expert commentary, along with possibly a few notes from his title hit songs, to the proceedings. This tournament, to be seen on Sunday, Feb. 22, at 5:30 p.m., is one of many pro-am events to be televised this season on ABC-TV.

Tennis Championship

To the list of annual major sports classics - football's Super Bowl, golf's Masters Tournament, and baseball's World Series - add "The Heavyweight Championship of Tennis."

The second annual super tennis challenge match pairs Jimmy Connors against Manuel Orantes at Caesars Palace in Las Vegas, Nev., and will be broadcast live on a special edition of "CBS Sports Spectacular," Saturday, Feb. 28, 3 to 6 p.m., on CBS-TV. The winner walks off the court with $250,000 - about ten times more than the purse for winning the U.S. Open. Veteran sportscaster Vin Scully, Davis Cup captain Tony Trabert and Jack Whitaker will be court-side for the commentary.

The concept for "The Heavyweight Championship of Tennis" grew out of CBS-TV Sports' challenge matches involving Connors, and first Rod Laver, and then John Newcombe early last year. Those classics attracted the largest widespread acclaim from sportswriters.

While Connors is undefeated in challenge match play, he did lose the 1975 U.S. Open finals to Orantes, a fellow left-hander. In a banner year, the Spaniard also won the Canadian Open - defeating Ilie Nastase - and the U.S. Clay Court Championship, when he downed Arthur Ashe. Connors, a finalist in the Australian Open and a Wimbledon, won the National Indoor Championship and nine of 18 tournaments he entered.

Orantes, a smiling, modest fellow was born in Granada and at age 10 was a ball boy at a club called La Salud de Barcelona.

He writes poetry and hopes to have a book of 41 of his poems published in his native country. Its title is '125,' which he won't explain, saying, "When you write a book and it is published, it doesn't belong to you anymore. I want to keep something for myself." There is speculation among his court-opponents that it stands for the revolutions-per-second of his topspin backhand.

Tennis fans across the country will be watching as "Manuelito" and Connors meet in "The Heavyweight Championship of Tennis."

Now Is Golden Age

"Actors are entering their own Golden Age," says Paul Sorvino, starring in the title role of the Quinn Martin Productions' series, "Bert D'Angelo Superstar," Saturdays, 10 to 11 p.m., on ABC-TV.

Acknowledging that there have been many fine actors in the past, Sorvino believes "there are more and better actors today than ever before. We're in the Golden Age of theatre and by that I mean stage, film and television."

He credits Marlon Brando with leading the way. "He's the granddaddy of them all."

For examples, he points to Jack Nicholson, Al Pacino, Dustin Hoffman, William Devane, Robert DiNiro and Michael Moriarity, to name a few. "They're brilliant, serious actors," he explains, "totally dedicated to acting, who consider our craft a form of high art."

"I'm not in the same league with them commercially," he admits, "but I'm getting there artistically."

Of the latter evaluation, there can be no doubt. The august body of New York drama critics named him Best Supporting Actor for his performance in Jason Miller's Pulitzer Prize and Tony Award-winning drama, "That Championship Season."

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR RONALD REAGAN

Is it true that you once said the public does not have the right to know what the Government is doing?—John Martin, Hackensack, N.J.

● I have never said that. The record will show that my Administration made every effort to keep the people informed. As Governor of California, I held press conferences weekly and for some time met regularly with groups of students in question-and-answer sessions. The people do have a right to know what their Government is doing. Indeed, they should insist on exercising that right.

FOR BOWIE KUHN, commissioner of baseball

Why don't you use "instant replays" to settle close calls in baseball games?—Charles W. Hawley, Bethesda, Md.

● The feeling at this point is that the only way we could do that would be to have a number of cameras at strategic locations. This would be very, very costly. But what the future holds cannot be foreseen.

FOR ARTHUR HERZOG, author of "The Swarm"

I've been reading about the African bees that are moving up from Latin America. How much of a menace are they?—Alan J. Gasior, Trenton, N.J.

● Nobody really knows. Some think the bees will be a serious problem for agriculture and people. Others say that either the colder U.S. weather or cross-breeding with other bees will remove the irritability that has made the African honey bees a danger in the Southern hemisphere. Still others believe the bees won't arrive at all.

FOR MAUREEN DEAN, author of "Mo" and wife of John Dean

Have you received any offers to go into show business?—Janet Moore, Austin, Texas

● Much to my surprise, I have had an inquiry about doing TV work. I'm interested, but I've not really explored the matter. I'd like to have children, as would John. Meanwhile John's working on more books—both nonfiction and fiction.

FOR LESLIE UGGAMS

Since yours is an integrated marriage, I'd like to know what problems you've had to face?—T.S., Fayetteville, N.C.

● As we've now been married (happily) for 10 years, and nothing has happened to bother us, I hope it's safe to assume nothing ever will. We never gave the "mixed-marriage" bit a second thought. What did worry us was how Graham, who came from Australia, would adjust to settling down in another country. By the way, he adjusted very easily.

FOR JOHN WAYNE

Do you think today's stars are more pampered than they were when you started out?—R.J., San Mateo, Calif.

● Not only are the stars more fussed over today, but so is the entire cast. That's because the heavy cost of pictures makes it "financially essential" that nothing happens to the performers because of accident or sickness. This means there are stunt men and stand-bys who do everything but walk across the street for the rest of us.

FOR ISAAC ASIMOV, author

As a leading science-fiction writer, did you envy Neil Armstrong and all those after him who walked on the moon?—G.B., Easton, Pa.

● No way! Would you believe I don't even like the thought of flying? I'm a coward. I'm scared to be all the way up there. I'd rather be all the way down here. The only time I was airborne was during the war when I was under orders.

FOR RONA BARRETT

Did you get where you are through luck or talent?—B.B., Boise, Idaho

● Neither. I call it "stick-to-itiveness." Becoming a columnist and a journalist was the most important thing in the world to me. I knew I could not rely on my beauty to get me there. I did it through hard work and perseverance, giving myself pep talks. I figured if I acted as though I believed in Rona Barrett, others would, too.

FOR EDITH HEAD, Hollywood designer

Over the years, which style has been the most sensible and enduring?—A.R., Colorado Springs, Colo.

● The one that never goes out of style is what I call "basic sportswear"—Shirtmaker dresses, sweaters and skirts, sweaters and pants. I think the sportswear that we wore in the 30's launched this look. I've just finished doing a film called "Cable and Lombard" (vintage 1936 styles), and the clothes in it could easily be worn today.

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

Settle an argument, please. Was Marilyn Monroe's death accidental, or did she commit suicide?—B.G., Pittsburgh, Pa.

● Norman Mailer was one of the first to suspect murder. Writer Tony Scaduto now contends that reports of independent medical examiners indicate she was fatally injected. ("There were no residuals of pills in her intestines. And Marilyn couldn't swallow an aspirin without water. So she couldn't have slugged down the alleged 47 pills, because there wasn't a glass in her room.") This theory assumes that whoever injected her left, taking the syringe. Hence murder. In her book, "Radie's World," columnist Radie Harris (Marilyn's friend) believes the actress didn't commit suicide (but doesn't mention foul play): "When she was discovered, her hair, make-up and nails were a mess. Marilyn would never have made her exit looking like that. She would have wanted to greet St. Peter as the most beautiful angel since Helen of Troy."

Smoke Cracked.

Researchers isolate key flavor ingredients of tobacco in cigarette smoke—pack 'Enriched Flavor' into new MERIT.

By "cracking" cigarette smoke down into its various 2000-plus ingredients, researchers at Philip Morris have discovered certain "key" ingredients that deliver taste way out of proportion to tar.

By selecting those ingredients of proven high flavor yet low tar delivery and adding them to tobacco, we're now able to pack flavor—extraordinary flavor—into a cigarette without the usual increase in tar.

The discovery is called 'Enriched Flavor.'

It's extra flavor. Natural flavor. Flavor that can't burn out, can't fade out, can't do anything but come through for you.

The cigarette is 9 mg. tar MERIT. If you smoke, you'll be interested.

Taste-Tested By People Like You

9 mg. tar MERIT was taste-tested against five current leading low tar cigarette brands ranging from 11 mg. to 15 mg. tar.

Thousands of smokers were involved. Smokers of filter cigarettes like yourself—all tested at home.*

Even if the cigarette tested had up to 60% more tar, a significant majority of all smokers tested reported new 'Enriched Flavor' MERIT delivered more taste.

Repeat: delivered more taste.

In similar tests against 11 mg. to 15 mg. menthol brands, 9 mg. tar MERIT MENTHOL performed strongly too, delivering as much—or more—taste than the higher tar brands tested.

You've been smoking "low tar, good taste" claims long enough. Now you've got the cigarette.

Richard Ney On the Stock Market:

One Financial Expert's Best Advice On How to Beat a Market He Views as Rigged—And Why He Sees It That Way

By Richard Ney

The ambition of all those who invest in the stock market is to buy low and sell high. This would seem to be a comparatively simple thing to do—and it is. Yet more than 99 percent of those who invest in the market end up doing the exact reverse. They buy high and sell low.

There is a deep-seated but simple reason for this. Most investors are amateurs who are totally unaware that they are in competition with a small number of Stock Exchange insiders who have the same objective—to buy low and sell high. Billions of dollars are at stake. It is not surprising, therefore, that these insiders exercise a certain kind of control over writers respected by the public, and so cause the public to accept the role of victim. In effect, ordinary citizens accept widespread theories that cause them to buy when they should sell—and sell when they should buy.

One important myth originating in just this way is that selling by investors causes stock prices to go down and, correspondingly, that buying by investors causes stock prices to advance. Hold on to your hats: the truth, I say, is just the reverse. Stocks do not advance and decline according to the laws of supply and demand. Instead, they are controlled by Stock Exchange insiders almost as quickly, easily and efficiently as you control an automatic elevator. When these insiders want to sell their shares, they advance stock prices sharply. This attracts public buying the way honey attracts flies. And this is what creates rising stock prices—not public demand, but rising stock prices that create public demand. When insiders want to accumulate large inventories of stock, they simply drop prices sharply. This causes investors to panic. When they panic, they sell. It's as simple as that, but has anyone ever mentioned this supersimple but also superimportant fact to you before?

Investors have been conditioned to assume that the movement of stock prices is caused by “mysterious” economic forces. The Exchange's experts, for obvious reasons, have never let them in on the secret that fluctuations in stock prices are the product of forces which are part of the Stock Exchange itself.

So here are two crucial things to remember: 1) When stock prices advance and investors buy stock, the major portion of that stock comes not from other investors but from Stock Exchange insiders, called specialists. 2) When stock prices fall and investors sell their stock, they are not sold to other investors but to these same specialists.

There is, however, a solution for the average investor, a solution to what may seem a desperately complex situation. If you are willing to devote some time to the problem, you can learn to invest successfully. First, you must re-focus your attention on the realities of the specialists' practices in order to learn how and to what extent you are bound or influenced by them. Since the ultimate fact about the market is that specialists have reduced their profit-making to a simple system, your best bet is to time your purchases and sales to conform to theirs. My new book, “Making It in the Market” (McGraw-Hill, $8.95), gives a detailed, step-by-step analysis of just how this can be done. Here are ten guidelines that will give you an idea of how the system operates.

Elizabeth Gee

RICHARD NEY: HE'S CONTROVERSIAL . . .

Richard Ney is a one-time movie actor who is today recognized as one of the nation's foremost investment advisors. He gained national prominence when Time magazine cited him in a June 1962 cover story as having called that year's stock market slide. From that time on, he has called one market turn after another.

Mr. Ney is no stranger to controversy. His new book, “Making It in the Market”—which expands on the views expressed here—has come out in relative quiet, but his earlier books, “The Wall Street Jungle” and “The Wall Street Gang” kicked up a storm on Wall Street.

FAMILY WEEKLY went to several members of the New York and American Exchanges for their side of the controversy. The bulk of the response was silence, as is not unusual among Exchange members. But some people did talk:

Michael Zahorchak of the American Exchange has written a book whose purpose is to refute one of Ney's earlier books. Zahorchak told FAMILY WEEKLY that Ney makes many generalizations that are not true. Zahorchak emphasized that specialists are restricted by many factors, including Exchange and Government regulations; and he added that institutions now own large blocks of stock and are gaining greater control of the market.

A Securities and Exchange Commission spokesman said: “As for Ney's statements about Exchange specialists manipulating prices, I won't say they're false. But specialists are under close surveillance by the Exchange and by the SEC, and they are aware they are being closely watched. The market would be devastated if the public lost faith in it.”

A Senate subcommittee led by Sen. Lee Metcalf (D-Mont.) began hearings on abuses of the stock exchange last year. These hearings reflect consumer and public concern over inadequacies of the regulatory agencies and the fact that they seem so closely related to the businesses they are regulating.

1. The first step in moving money from the Stock Exchange's pocket to yours is picking your portfolio. When you buy stock, buy only the best stock used to compute the Dow Industrial Average—stocks like General Motors, Eastman Kodak, General Electric, Proctor and Gamble, Sears, and Exxon. If you buy these stocks and they go down, your chances of seeing them go back up along with the market are very great indeed. The reason: these are the stocks in the Dow average that provide the underpinning for every advance in the market.

2. Instead of watching the movement of the Dow itself, watch the movements of individual stocks within the Dow. For example, the Dow can rise 100 or more points mainly on the strength of only two Dow stocks such as Eastman Kodak or Du Pont. But that kind of situation reveals a high-risk rally which will terminate shortly and precipitously.

3. The fatal tactical error of most investors is a simple one: they time their purchases and sales according to stock price movements. When stock prices shoot up, they buy; when prices drop dramatically they sell. But if they are to earn money in the market, investors must learn to resist that impulsive

Doctor's Amazing Reducing Plan Helps

DISSOLVE THE FAT RIGHT OUT OF YOUR BODY!

Yes, here it is—a Doctor's safe, effective substitute for high-powered Reducing Drugs!

Yes, lose as much as 10, 20, 30 even 50 pounds or more

- without grueling exercise ■ without starvation diets
- without a single moment of ravenous hunger

thanks to the most powerful reducing aid ever released for public use without a prescription!

How? By attacking the basic cause of overweight — overeating — and actually helping your body convert the food you eat into ENERGY instead of into fat!

From the office of the doctor who has taken even the most stubborn overweight cases and shown them a thrilling way to slash away pounds and inches in what seems like NO TIME AT ALL . . . comes proof of a medically proven approach that gives you the great ecstasy of slimmness without the agony of gnawing hunger — yes, spectacular weight-loss results even if at this very moment you are 10 . . . 20 . . . 30 . . . 50 pounds overweight . . . or more!

NOW! TURN FOOD INTO ENERGY INSTEAD OF INTO FAT!

The secret behind this doctor's "no-hunger" eating program to a slimmer, trimmer figure . . . is a wondrous way to convert all the food you eat into ENERGY instead of into FAT! Yes, step up your body's rate of fat burn-off just like you'd step up a furnace. Actually help eliminate unsightly FLAB all over your body — by using it as a source of energy that your body burns up and flushes away. That's right . . . excess pounds and inches literally consumed by your own body chemistry . . . once you trigger the FAT REDUCING PROCESS with this proven formula for success. So effective is this doctor's medically proven program, that during the very first 3 days alone you'll see weight disappear from sight at the incredible rate of up to SIX POUNDS OF FAT AND FLUID GONE BY THE VERY FIRST 72 HOURS! In fact — and the doctor says note this carefully — depending upon how overweight you are, the more you weigh, the more you should initially lose.

Before starting this program, consult with your physician to be sure you are in normal health and your only problem is obesity. Individuals with high blood pressure, heart disease, diabetes, or thyroid disease should use only as directed by a physician. As a matter of fact, we urge you to show this entire program to your own family physician and see if he doesn't agree that this is a medically sound approach to the problem of obesity.

PROVEN ON SCORES OF PATIENTS — STARTLING WEIGHT LOSSES EVEN ON PEOPLE WHO HAD RUNAWAY APPETITES!

For years one of the most effective aids doctors used to attack the basic cause of fat build-up, overeating, was amphetamines. Only trouble: the side effects from amphetamines were so shattering it was often easier to live with the fat than to be plagued with insomnia, nervous jitters and worst of all, in some cases, even addiction. But now, suppose a doctor who has successfully treated obese patients for years told you that there now exists an EFFECTIVE SUBSTITUTE FOR HIGH-POWERED DRUGS. A fantastic program that includes THE MOST POWERFUL REDUCING AID EVER APPROVED BY THE GOV'T. FOR SALE TO THE PUBLIC WITHOUT A PRESCRIPTION. Yet so effective, that when you launch yourself on this doctor's proven capsule-program 4 things happen in your body:

■ Those gnawing hunger pangs disappear, it takes less food to satisfy you therefore you have less caloric intake.

■ The foods you do eat, instead of being stored up as fat are now converted into a source of energy that your body burns away.

■ The layers of fat that up to now seemed impossible to budge, are suddenly consumed, broken down and used by your own body chemistry . . . to provide the energy needs of your body.

■ And even though you may carve away as much as a staggering 20, 30, 50 pounds OR MORE . . . you do it without the risk of speed drugs like amphetamines, dexedrine, benzedrine. Why, do you realize what this means to you?

NOW SHRINK THE FAT CELLS IN YOUR BODY THIS DOCTOR'S PROVEN WAY

It means that now when you combine this powerful pill with this doctor's sensible, satisfying eating program, you not only lose weight starting right now, but you do not have to ever again suffer those gnawing pangs of hunger . . . ever again saddle yourself with an exhausting rigid system of exercise . . . ever again torture and starve yourself to death on some ridiculous fad diet . . . only to have your willpower snap and the pounds come rebounding back. Matter of fact, and though this may startle you . . . you are ordered by this doctor to eat 3 meals a day with such luscious foods as steak, chops, etc. You are never once asked to pit your hunger against a cast-iron willpower. For, just as he shows his own patients how to eat their way to slimmness . . . this doctor lays down his own law to you: "Never starve yourself . . . there's no need to. You can eat mouthwatering steaks, roasts, chops, etc. as I tell you . . . and take one of these tiny golden capsules one to two hours before each meal." It's as simple as that. Naturally, we don't want to kid you. You can't gorge yourself on unlimited quantities of food and still lose weight. Instead, here's the doctor's way to replace all those zany, half-baked fad-diets of the past with a high-powered pill and a doctor's sure, sensible satisfying eating program that SHRINKS AWAY FAT LIKE NEVER BEFORE!

WHO EVER DREAMED OF SUCH A THRILLING WAY TO LOSE WEIGHT?

Picture this thrilling scene: Just 3 days have passed since you have started on this doctor's sensational program and you've taken your first few capsules. You have not missed a single meal . . . not done any torturous exhausting exercise . . . just the doctor's simple nitely tone-up program that's actually pleasant to do! You've just taken your first giant step on your march to slimmness. So you step on the scale, and here's what happens.

You can't believe your eyes . . . for the first time in your life SUCCESS! Yes, you've started to win the war against fat. For what could be greater proof than the reading on your scale . . . AS MUCH AS 6 POUNDS OF FLUID AND FAT GONE IN JUST 72 HOURS. That's right! You, without even feeling it . . . without even noticing it . . . have actually discovered how to shed excess pounds and inches, like never before. And in the days and weeks to follow . . . just as gently, your body will continue to LOSE AND DRAIN AWAY, SHRINK AWAY, DISSOLVE AWAY 10 — 20 — 30 even 50 POUNDS of excess fat . . . until at long last you will have achieved your life-long goal . . . a new, slender body, a slim streamlined figure!

4. Newspapers provide the daily volume figures of each stock traded on the floor of the Stock Exchange. Only by examining these volume figures can you determine whether specialists are buying or selling and thus know what "the smart money" is doing. Here's how to know: A sharp run-up in stock prices on low volume, followed by a sharp increase in volume, tells you that specialists are selling (in response to public demand). A sharp decline on low volume, followed by a sharp increase in volume, tells you the specialists are buying (in response to public selling). By relating volume and price in this way, you can escape the traps the specialist lays for you when he causes you to buy or sell by manipulating prices.

5. Charts have limited value as technical tools. They should be used only to confirm the information provided by the daily volume statistics.

6. Two columns, and only two, are of value to you. The price and volume columns in your daily newspaper are much, much more valuable to you than all those brokerage-house research reports describing company sales and earnings. And the state of the economy is of no use whatever in helping to formulate investment decisions.

7. Ney's Rule of Tens: As stocks approach what I call the critical numbers (multiples of 10—meaning 10, 20, 30, 40, 50, 60, etc.), volume tends to increase dramatically whether the stock is advancing or declining in price. It is important, therefore, that investors anticipate specialist selling (in the course of an advance) and specialist buying and accumulation (in the course of a decline) in and around critical price levels.

8. Stock is just that—stock—to that merchant of securities, the specialist. So once he has distributed (sold) shares, he is anxious to push their price down from retail to wholesale so he can rebuild an inventory. To maximize his profits, he will take as small an inventory as possible downward from "retail" to "wholesale" prices.

9. The short-sell: It's the specialist's most important tactical weapon. Short-selling is a device that allows the specialist to sell stock he does not own (but which he borrows) at the high point of a rally. He can then subsequently buy back the stock at lower price levels, his profit being the difference between the price at which he sold and the price at which he bought it back. This device actually allows him to raise and lower stock prices almost at will.

10. The specialist's objective is quite simple. He wants to raise and

WHAT IS A "SPECIALIST"?

The specialist, as a member of an Exchange operating on the Exchange floor, conducts transactions in stocks of a limited number of companies. He works at a specified post on the floor, where he matches up bids to buy and offers to sell shares of stock.

In those cases in which there are no matching orders (bids to buy but no offers to sell, or vice versa), the specialist must use his own funds or shares from his own inventory to finalize the transaction. He maintains a "specialist's book" at his post, in which he records all bids and offers received. This book sometimes gives him an advantage in bargaining since he is required to quote only the highest bid and lowest offer made.

When the price of a stock declines over a period of time, resulting in heavy selling but no buying, the specialist runs the risk of losing a great deal of money. On the other hand, the specialist is at the same time building up an inventory that he can try to sell at a profit when prices are up again.

lower his stock prices on light volume until a given stock reaches the price objective at which he wishes to sell or accumulate stock. For this reason, the appearance of big blocks of stock in the volume column mean such an objective has been realized. This means that high volume consistently defines long, intermediate and short-term reversal points in stock prices. High volume, then, usually means a turnaround in the direction of the stock's value.

The Stock Exchange has been suitably mindful that the success of its enterprises depends on its continuing ability to organize ignorance. So the Exchange has placed its faith in the conditioned reflex. The investor, it believes, can be made to behave like a machine that self-destructs.

My new book—and this article, too—points the way for investors to become more than robots conditioned to destroy themselves. In fact, like the specialist, you can make money in the market year after year, if only you will learn how to time your purchases and sales to conform to those of the specialist. For the specialist is, verily, the bone and tissue of "smart money" on Wall Street. Small investors can learn to follow the ways of "smart money."

My final advice is this: move slowly. There is no need to rush the learning process. The market is always there for those who have money to bring into it.

AMERICA'S "5" MOST POPULAR SHADE TREES

LESS THAN $2⁰⁰ each

PLUS OUR "FANTASTIC" .50¢ BONUS OFFER!

ALL SHADE TREES SHIPPED AT 5 TO 7 FEET

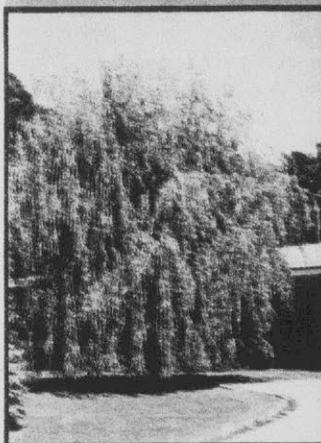

Sugar Maple (acer saccharum)
The largest of all maples, and its beautiful array of yellow and orange hues make it a sight to remember due to the foliage thickness — A very hardy northern and southern tree and will grow up to 60 feet. (shipped at 5 to 7 feet).

E. White Birch (betula verrucosa)
This beautiful tree has very delicate foliage with snowy white bark, and a compact form — It can be seen growing in all different climates and the multi-trunk (clump) effect can be obtained by planting two or more trees next to one another. It is also a rapid grower. (shipped at 5 to 7 feet).

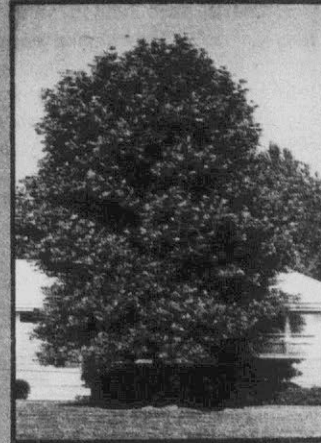

Red Maple (acer rubrum)
This is one of the most beautiful of all shade trees. Besides having brilliant scarlet red leaves in the fall of the year, it has another excellent trait — it is an extremely fast grower. It is very easily transplanted and many experts agree it will grow practically anywhere in the U.S.A. Grows to 60 feet. (shipped at 5 to 7 feet).

Weeping Willow (salix babylonica) This tree is the hardiest of all willows, and has clear golden yellow and green leaves, the leaves appear early in Spring and one of the last trees to lose its leaves. A "super fast" growing tree at the rate of 5 to 6 feet per year. An excellent buy. (shipped at 5 to 7 feet).

"3 WAY GUARANTEE"

1. All shade trees regardless of the number ordered will be 5 to 7 feet tall, and all bonus trees will be 4 to 6 feet. All Shipping Paid.
2. Trees advertised in your area will live in your area.
3. All trees are guaranteed to live and if by mere chance any fail to live they will be replaced free of charge for three years.

Tulip Tree (liriodendron tulipifera) This tree is a very large growing tree reaching heights of eighty feet or more. Its yellow-green leaves turn bright yellow in the fall and in the late Spring it has vivid orange and yellow tulip shaped flowers. Very hardy and fast growing and is a cousin to the magnolia. (shipped at 5 to 7 feet).

FANTASTIC BONUS OFFER .50¢ each

BONUS TREES

You may purchase up to as many bonus trees as you do shade trees — for example if you purchase 4 shade trees you may order either 1-2-3 or 4 bonus trees or none. Each bonus tree costs only .50¢ each in any combination. All bonus tree orders must be placed at the same time as the shade tree order.

OUR PRICES

We guarantee our price to be the best possible and if you find any of these trees advertised for less, (same size and variety) we will refund the difference plus give you a free gift of your choice from our catalogue. How can you lose?

ALL BONUS TREES SHIPPED AT 4 TO 6 FEET

Mtn. Ash (fraxinus pennsylvanica) This tree like the maple has no equal when it comes to its ability to survive hot and cold temperatures. A real rapid grower and matures into a fine, compact tree, with beautiful dense green foliage. Grows to 40 feet. (shipped at 4 to 6 feet).

Red Bud (cercis canadensis) This beautiful flowering tree is native to both the north and south and thereby extremely hardy. It blooms at the same time as the dogwoods and its gorgeous pink flowers form a lovely combination with the dogwoods. Grows to 25 feet. (shipped at 4 to 6 feet).

White Dogwood (cornus florida) This beautiful flowering tree has large white blossoms, and can be seen in all parts of the country. Its foliage is attractive all summer and has beautiful fall colors, as the red berries hang on most of the winter. Grows to 25 feet. (shipped at 4 to 6 feet).

People Quiz

By John E. Gibson

You and the Invisible Power of Music

True or False? You can tell how feminine a woman is by the way she responds to music. (See number 3.)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Music can be used almost like a magic wand to change a person's mood from sad to cheerful.
2. Music can give your mental powers a shot in the arm, improving your performance of mental tasks.
3. You can tell how feminine a woman is by the way she responds to music.
4. The behavior of unruly or hyperactive children is markedly improved by playing background music.
5. Music sounds different to an introvert than it does to an extrovert.
6. Music has a different effect on women than it does on men.

ANSWERS

1. True—if you know the secret. University studies have demonstrated the effectiveness of what psychologists call the Iso principle, which is described as follows: Music is selected to match the actual mood of the person, the negative feeling that it's desired to alter. For example, if the mood of the person is depressive, downbeat music is matched to the depressive mood. Then, by stages, the music is changed to a happy mood, thereby altering the mood of the subject. As one investigator points out, matching the mood of the music to the mood of the person is necessary because "otherwise the subject will reject the music. But by degrees we can shift the music and carry the subject's mood into a more tranquil state."
2. True—for people of nervous temperament, not so for others, according to university studies. More than 100 men and women students were given personality tests and then tested on their ability to perform mental tasks under two conditions: with symphony music being softly played; and in silence. Results: nervous people performed better under the musical conditions. But for the people with low anxiety, there was no discernible difference between their performance under either of the two conditions.

3. True—according to studies sponsored by the U.S. Public Health Service. Ninety women students were subjected to a battery of standard personality tests, including a Femininity Scale Inventory. They were then exposed to music and asked to fill out questionnaires concerning their feelings toward the music. Findings: femininity went hand in hand with the rating of certain forms of music as pleasant, warm or connoting safety.

4. True—as evidenced by a psychological study of a selected group of children, ranging in age from seven to 11, "who had a well deserved reputation as a disruptive influence in school." Findings: the introduction of background music (popular children's records) resulted in marked improvement in the children's behavior. It was further noted that the productivity of hyperactive children in a schoolroom setting may be enhanced by this means.

5. True. University of Ottawa studies show that the introvert is sensitive to musical tones in the lower register, which are practically out of the ball park for the extrovert. Introverts tend to show a decrease in sensitivity for higher tones, which come through louder and clearer for the extrovert.

6. True. Studies conducted at two leading universities show that women are more emotionally responsive to music and find it more romantically stimulating than men do. To put it a different way, music hits women "where they live" to a far greater extent than it does men.

The Doctor Lets You In

What Are Those "Heartbreak of Psoriasis" Ads Talking About?

You've probably seen those ads talking about the "heartbreak of psoriasis." Perhaps you've wondered, What is psoriasis? Well, it is a heartbreak. Characterized by unsightly red patches of silvery scales with itching, psoriasis is a skin disease which does not affect the sufferer's physical health but does cause psychological suffering. For years, products containing sulfur, coal tar or salicylic acid have been used to help remove scales, control itching and soften the skin. You can get these products in either cream- or lotion-form from your druggist, and they are perfectly good. (Lotions penetrate better, but creams stay on the skin longer.) But now there are more advanced products. For example, there is a new tablet-form drug called Triazure which fights the accelerated skin-cell growth that characterizes psoriasis. The tablets are converted in the body to a substance called 6-azouridine which slows up metabolism. There is also a new cream called Diprosone which contains small amounts of a cortisone-like drug. Still another group of drugs, called psoralens, can be taken by psoriasis sufferers in conjunction with ultraviolet light. (Sunlight, by the way, is recommended for psoriasis.) All the answers aren't in yet, but progress is being made against this most annoying disease.

How Your Boss's Pay Affects Yours

Few people worry about the size of their boss's paycheck—but maybe they should. If you're a good worker, your chances for fair pay may be tied to how fairly the boss thinks he or she is being paid. At Carnegie-Mellon University, managers took part in an experiment. They were divided into four groups. Group 1 was told, "Pretend you're a good boss being well paid." The three other groups were told to pretend: "Group 2—You're a good boss, but you're not being paid what you're worth. Group 3—You're a poor boss, but you're being well paid. Group 4—You're a poor boss and you're being poorly paid." Then the four groups were given an imaginary $2,400 to divide up among subordinates, some of whom were described as good workers and some as poor workers. All the results pointed to bosses adjusting workers' pay to match the way the boss was treated. Good bosses receiving good pay tended to reward good workers and penalize poor workers. Superiors who were performing badly but being highly paid were the most generous—even with incompetent workers. People who fared the worst were under the high-performing, low-paid bosses. "If the company is going to be tight with me, I'm going to be tight with subordinates," wrote one of the bosses.

The Diet Watch

How Worry Can Wreck Your Diet

Apprehension about breaking your diet can leave you more vulnerable to breaking it, so watch out. If, for example, you're an office worker and you worry during the morning about what you're going to order at lunchtime, your anxiety can become so extreme that you'll find relief by abandoning the whole problem and ordering recklessly. If you're inclined to be afflicted with what-to-order apprehensions, a good solution is to prepare a lunch in advance at home and take it to the office, thereby eliminating the problem: You now know what you're having for lunch and your mind is free to concentrate on your work. Even people who stay home during the day can "package"

a lunch early in the day to be eaten at the appointed time. One diet specialist, whose patients are largely office workers, provides them with a list of "acceptable" lunch-counter foods. He instructs them to order only from their list and never, but never, look at the menu or at what other people are eating.

Girls and Hitchhiking: Is It Really Dangerous?

Many girls shrug off warnings against hitchhiking because they believe if they behave themselves in cars, nobody's going to bother them. But is this true? A 23-day transportation strike in Toronto in 1974 shed light on the subject. For thousands of women, hitchhiking a ride was the only way to reach their jobs, and it occurred to psychologist Sheldon Geller that police statistics might be revealing. Geller compared sexual offenses reported during the strike with those reported 23 days before the strike and 23 days after it. Findings: During the strike the percentage of rapes against hitchhikers skyrocketed from the usual tiny 1.56 percent of sexual crimes to 12.86 percent. According to Dr. Geller, non-sexuctive behavior is no protection. It would seem that there are men who are out looking for a victim. By thumbing a ride, a woman is only saving these men the trouble of stalking. —By Shirley Sloan Fader

Petula Clark: My 10 Favorite Records

Known as Britain's answer to Shirley Temple, Petula Clark was an established star at seven, via her appearance on BBC and the hundreds of shows she did for World War II troops in army camps. She became known to American audiences eight years ago with her recording of "Downtown." Since then, she has won two Grammys and the Academy Award Song of the Year.

Cloris Leachman

"I Think Women Always Want To Be the Good Guys"

Cloris Leachman with husband George England... living "together and apart."

Pictorial Parade

"George and I adore each other but can't play each other's games..."

When I met Cloris Leachman at La Serre, a posh French restaurant in the San Fernando Valley, I came prepared with a list of 50 questions. I should have known better. As soon as Cloris sat down, she grabbed my list, saying, "You don't mind!" ... and proceeded to go through it until she came to a subject she wanted to talk about: Are you a crusader for any cause?

CLORIS: Most certainly! Many. Most of all, nursing babies. I believe that a nursing baby will have a good start in life. It's not just a medical thing. Nursing shapes an infant's whole life. It's an answer to crime and violence!

FAMILY WEEKLY: You think nursing will stop violence?

CLORIS: Of course! A baby plunked down with a bottle is just a thing. It doesn't have any connection with another human being for information or love or anything.

FW: You nursed your children, I presume?

CLORIS: Of course! And I have stayed very close to them.

FW: How many children do you have?

CLORIS: I have four sons: Adam, who's 21; Bryan, who's 20, George Jr., 18, and Morgan, 12. My daughter, Dinah, is 9. Three live at home, two have their own apartments.

FW: Back to your crusades: what else are you for or against?

CLORIS: I'm against smoking. It's abhorrent to me. I'll go to any lengths to make my point. I'll harp. Beg. Yell. Make deals. Bully. Anything. And I have a very high success rate. Two people stopped smoking just last night because of me.

FW: You seem to have a rather unusual relationship with George [producer George England, to whom Cloris has been married for 23 years]. Are you together or are you apart?

CLORIS: He keeps an apartment on the beach about ten miles from us. Sometimes he stays there and sometimes he stays at the house.

FW: How do you keep a marriage like this going?

CLORIS: I think it depends upon how you were set up as a child. We are what our parents made us, and they, in turn, were molded by their parents. Whatever our setup was as children, we keep fulfilling it in some way or other as adults. George and I have had to struggle with this, and we are two very different individuals.

FW: I'd still like to clear up one point: are you and George living apart or together?

THE FIGURE TRIMMER

Strengthens Men's Bodies

AT LAST — the ingenious easy new physical fitness system, to help you: lose inches and pounds, improve the shape of your body, increase your sex appeal and feel and look years younger — and at the lowest price offered in the United States.

An Easy, Proven System That Takes Just Minutes A Day

It's easy — because you exercise while you lie on your back and do just 3 basic routines. And yet you exercise and tone every muscle in your arms, legs, abdomen, waist, back, neck and tummy — all the important, problem spots that you want to help keep trim, firm and beautiful.

We recommend you start at a moderate 2 to 3 minutes a day. You'll soon find that you want to increase this to 4, 5 and up to 15 minutes at a time. But, and this is important,

Important Note:

Dear Reader,
Don't be confused: The competitive exerciser models you've seen on T.V. and in magazines for $7.95 and $9.95 work on exactly the same principle and in the same way as ours. By a special purchase from a manufacturer, we've been able to break the price wide open and offer "The Figure Trimmer" at this amazing low price!

you do it at your own pace and you find it easier and easier to exercise for longer periods. The rhythmic movements you use are so simple that any child of 5 can master them in one minute, because all you do is lift and bend your arms and legs and the "Figure Trimmer" won't let you make a mistake. A simple, fully illustrated instruction booklet for the basic exercises is included.

Use "The Figure Trimmer" Anywhere

Yes, use it in your bedroom, living room, office, even while you're away from home (it's so compact, it folds to fit right in a handbag or attache case and weighs only a mere 10 ounces). You never have to miss your regular exercise... use it anywhere you can lie down. Simply attach to bedpost, doorknob, etc., and it's ready to use.

To Help Weight Loss...

We recommend a moderate and sensible temporary 15 to 20% reduction in your normal food intake (while still eating exactly the same kinds of delicious foods your normally eat and like). We don't send you any fad or crash diet, because your own doctor will tell you that these are harmful. We suggest you continue this moderation until you reach desired weight loss. After that, just eat normally and continue exercises to feel and look better and younger.

Ironclad Guarantee

Our guarantee is simple. You must within 14 days see and feel your body toned up and feeling great — and look and feel years younger, or simply return unit for a prompt and complete refund. Mail order coupon today: you'll be glad you did.

Cloris Leachman

Continued

CLORIS: Anyone who watches us knows! The answer is yes.

FW: Yes, what?

CLORIS: Together and apart.

FW: Do you think you are easy to live with?

CLORIS: I think I am extremely easy to live with, unless you have a definite opinion about the way things should be. I think a household should be easy and pleasant, everybody going in different directions, doing his thing and coming together to share.

FW: What was the most difficult time in your life?

CLORIS: Being separated from George for the first time with no knowledge of how to act, how to deal with it. There was such pain. You see, the problem is, we want people the way we want them, instead of the way they are.

FW: Is that the problem with you and George?

CLORIS: That's part of it. [Laughing] What I really want is to be firm and tell him what to do. If we'd all agree to it, it would be perfect.

FW: In the 23 years you've been married, how have you changed?

CLORIS: I've learned not to attach so much meaning to things.

FW: Such as?

CLORIS: Everything! Education, houses, social mores, haircuts. . .

FW: I heard you say once that you believe life is a game. What did you mean?

CLORIS: We define a game as something having rules. There are rules for singles, married couples, divorcees. My son says everything is a game, whether it's dressing in a suit to go off to the office, or putting on leotards to take a ballet lesson or whatever you play at. And if life itself is a game, the more serious we are at it, the more we leave others out because they can't take us that seriously.

FW: Does this attitude help you personally?

CLORIS: I feel very powerful in the sense that I am able to create something good out of anything, good or bad. Still, I don't always do exactly what I want to do because I play by others' rules, too. Like, a good girl and good wife don't play around. Maybe that's a lot of rot, but I still play by the rules.

FW: What about George?

CLORIS: He doesn't abide by any rules. We are highly individualistic people who adore each other but can't play each other's games because we were set up by early life and are committed. You see, there is no honor to a happy marriage or dishonor to an unhappy one. It all boils down to how everything was set up in the beginning and how two people match up.

FW: What kind of game do you play in relationship with your children?

CLORIS: I think women always want to be the good guys, and all too often that makes men the bad guys. The love affair between mother and children can lead to leaving the father out in the cold. That's what happened when I was a child, and I think that may be what's happening in my marriage.

FW: Were you close to your parents?

CLORIS: I could say a million words on my mother, all good. My father was a wonderful man, too. He did all that fathers did in those days—he paid the bills. Until I was 15, I went to the range every Saturday and became a sharpshooter, just to try to be a pal to him. I wanted his affection so much, but he never understood. . .

"They gave me money for acting, and I used to leave it in the refrigerator with the lettuce . . ."

FW: Is there any similarity between you and Phyllis [her TV personality]?

CLORIS: I'm full of energy and enthusiasm and I'm gregarious. Phyllis is, too. And I think Phyllis tries to make things cheery. That's one quality I see in myself, usually at dinner time. I've been trying for 23 years to have gracious dining, but there has never been a time when the dog didn't want out, the cat didn't want in, the kids would come in and want to talk, and they'd let in the animal I'd just let out. Turning off the phones hasn't helped either because someone invariably knocks on the door.

FW: You've won four Emmies and an Academy Award for Best Supporting Actress, but only now has your name become a household word. Do you think it's better to have success 30 years after you first got into show business, or would you have rather had it when you started at 17?

CLORIS: I think it's better to have it now, although I've always instinctively known I would be a success. But until I was 20, it was all fun, and I didn't realize money came with it. I went to New York and they gave me money for acting, and I used to leave it in the refrigerator with the lettuce, or in my coat pocket or lying on the seat in a cab. You see, I have this feeling about myself: all the work is inside of me. It's alive. Getting money for it and putting it in the bank—that's dead. The only thing I like to use money for is fixing up my house, and since it's an extension of myself, I'm really adding to me.

Does Your Antacid Upset Your Low-Salt Diet?

The leading antacid roll tablet may be giving you more than half your daily sodium allowance. Here's what to do!

If you're worried about salt in your diet—a case of heartburn or acid indigestion can present a real problem.

You should know that just five tablets of the leading roll antacid taken during the day would exceed more than half the allowance of sodium many doctors recommend for strict low-salt diets.

That's playing it pretty close. And that's why you ought to know about a tablet that absorbs more excess acid than the leading roll brand—yet contains far less sodium. Its name is Bisodol® Tablets. (Bisodol Powder does contain sodium bicarbonate for people not concerned with low-salt diets.)

Bisodol Tablets quickly relieve that miserable heartburn and acid indigestion, and it's good to know you can take them whenever you need them—without worrying about sodium.

Remember, Bisodol Tablets... are low in sodium—high in antacid power.

Lakeland's

"Hotel Giant" BLUEBERRIES

(Vaccinium corymbosum)

Who ever dreamed of home-grown blueberries that fruit almost the size of a quarter . . . and they taste even better than they look! Blueberries from select strains like these are often whisked to America's swank hotels and cuisines by air express . . . so they'll arrive fresh and at the peak of perfection. Now you can pick them even fresher . . . heap bowls with their delectable, juicy goodness . . . from handsome bushes right in your own garden. For combined size, firmness, flavor . . . these improved strains have no peer. Plump mouth-watering berries . . . so big indeed, that 15 to 18 berries heap a fruit dish! Make lip-smacking blueberry pies, jams . . . perfect for freezing, too.

Attractive As Ornaments Or Hedges

Pink buds appear early . . . followed by showers of dainty white bell-flowers in May. Almost evergreen . . . the dense glossy foliage turns scarlet in fall. Many gardeners mix them with other shrubbery; and what a thrill for youngsters to go berrying on their own grounds! We ship heavy, superior plants (well-branched) that often start bearing the very first season. You get a big bumper crop starting the 2nd year after planting . . . and they keep producing year in and year out.

Fresh Blueberries All Season Through
Plant blueberries in groups of 3 or more to insure cross-pollination and heavy fruiting. For a continuous crop all season long, we ship in groups of 3 plants . . . one early, one mid-season and one late-bearing. Hardy anywhere. Prefer neutral or acid soil or simply mix plenty of peat moss or humus into soil of planting hole. Or occasional feeding with Comar's Special Acid Plant Food and Soil Conditioner does the trick.

L127068E —Lakeland's All Season Blueberry Collection: 3 (one each Early, Mid-season and Late-bearing) only $7.99; 6 (2 each) for $13.99; 12 (4 each) for $25.00.
No Orders for less than 3 plant collection.

Good Old-Fashioned Brown Beef Stew

Homey Old-Fashioned Brown Beef Stew is an American classic.

One of a kind.

A world where wisdom earns more respect than physical strength.

—He smokes for pleasure. He gets it from the blend of Turkish and Domestic tobaccos in Camel Filters.

Do you?

OLD-FASHIONED BROWN BEEF STEW

- 3 lbs. boneless beef chuck, cut in 1½-inch cubes
- ½ cup all-purpose flour
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 3 tablespoons pure vegetable oil
- 1 qt. boiling water
- 1 onion, studded with 4 cloves
- 1 small bunch celery leaves
- 4 sprigs parsley
- 1 clove garlic, crushed
- 1 bay leaf
- 1 teaspoon thyme leaves
- 2½ tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
- 1 lb. small white onions, peeled and quartered
- 1 lb. carrots, peeled and quartered
- 2 lbs. medium potatoes, peeled and quartered
- 2 medium white turnips, peeled and quartered
- 4 celery ribs, cut in 2-inch chunks
- ¼ cup cold water
- 1 lb. fresh mushrooms or 2 cans (6 to 8 ozs. each) whole mushrooms
- 3 tablespoons butter or margarine

1. Pat meat dry with paper towels. Toss beef cubes in flour mixed with salt. Reserve leftover flour mixture.
2. In a large, heavy 6- to 8-qt. Dutch oven heat oil until hot. Brown beef cubes, several at a time, over medium-high heat until well-browned on all sides. Remove pieces as they are done.
3. Add boiling water. Cook and stir to scrape drippings from bottom of pan.
4. Return beef to pan along with clove-studded onion, celery leaves, parsley, garlic, bay leaf, thyme and Worcestershire sauce. Stir to mix. Heat to boiling point. Reduce heat and simmer, covered, for 1½ hours.
5. Add onions and carrots; simmer, covered, for 20 minutes. Add potatoes, turnips and celery; simmer, covered, for 20 minutes or until tender.
6. Combine reserved flour with cold water. Slowly stir into stew. Cook and stir for 2 minutes.
7. Rinse, pat dry and halve mushrooms. In large skillet, melt butter. Add mushrooms and sauté for 2 minutes, stirring. Stir into stew. Serve stew steaming hot. Makes 8 servings

What's Smart: According to the American Meat Institute, there will be a record-high in beef production in 1976, which could mean lower beef prices. As we went to press, the average national price for bone-in chuck was $1.07 per lb., the average national price for boneless chuck, $1.50 per lb. Fresh celery, mushrooms and apples are plentiful now.

What in the World!

JACK NICHOLSON
Alias P. T. Barnum

What's Jack Nicholson, the star of "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest," really like? Fellow actor and close friend Bruce Dern talking: "Jack loves style and grace. He's got to be in there with the big ones. He may tell you that he loves to live privately and is very reserved, but he's a totally public person. He's a great showman. He's a P. T. Barnum in his own element, and that's why he's a natural actor. Everything is out front and open. Of course, the real Jack Nicholson isn't out front because he'd never let you see that unless you got to know him really well. Jack comes from rough times. He lived on the bad side of the tracks until he was about 13, and then he somehow shook it off; and he's always tried to impress people with how intelligent he is, how quick he is and how he knows this and that person. Actually, he is as sharp a guy as I've ever known." From "Jack Nicholson: Face to Face," by Robert David Crane and Christopher Fryer (M. Evans, $5.95).

ROCKY MOUNTAIN'S BIG HIGH
Have ambulance, will travel

A real-life helicopter rescue program? Yes, and it operates out of St. Anthony Hospital in Denver. George Seaton, an ex-policeman who lost a leg in the line of duty, thought of it—and it works. Said Seaton: "Time is the biggest killer in accident cases. Police, firemen and ambulances often arrive too late to save a victim's life, particularly in this mountainous, isolated part of the country. We use mostly Vietnam vets to pilot the helicopters, and flight nurses are in charge of the patients. These women have had to make rescues by mountain climbing, diving into sub-zero lakes, and going into burning buildings." It's called "Flight for Life" and it might make a great TV drama.

LITTLE EMILY

"And I would be very generous in case we divorced . . ."

Moving is hazardous to your child's emotional health, according to leading child psychologists. With one out of every five families moving every year, more and more children are affected. And one of the unfortunate myths about relocation is that children should not be moved until school is out. As a result, 60 percent of the families who move do so between Memorial Day and Labor Day. But youngsters profit most from relocation during the school year because it allows the child to go directly from one social setting to another, said one expert. Since children feel the impact of moving most, try to include them in planning the move. Help your children to learn about the new area. Encourage them to exchange addresses with their friends. Let them decide how their new rooms are to be decorated and arranged. For more helpful facts and guidelines, send a stamped, self-addressed legal-size envelope to: "Moving and Children," Suite 806, 1117 North 19th Street, Arlington, Va. 22209.

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour

FRANKLY, I'M EMBARRASSED™

My wife would like me to make some show
Of affection where others can see,
To hold her hand or to kiss her cheek
Or even to pat her knee.

It isn't enough that I show my love,
Or at least a little affection,
When we are at home and alone. Oh no,
She's eager for public inspection.

Some proof to her skeptical friends that I™
Am hers, all hers, and I try to comply.

Our Story: QUEEN ALETA RESUMES HER THRONE TO HEAR HER COUNCILORS RECOUNT THE EVENTS OF THEIR STEWARDSHIP. SHE IS PLEASED TO HEAR THAT THERE IS NO GREAT PROSPERITY TO FOSTER ENVY AMONG THE MORE ACQUISITIVE NEIGHBORS. PEACEFUL YEARS LIE AHEAD.

ZILLA HAD BEEN THE QUEEN'S SECRETARY ON THE VOYAGE FROM TANGIERS, BUT NOW SHE HAS A COMPLETE STAFF AND HE HAS NOTHING TO DO. HE WANDERS ABOUT AIMLESSLY.

HE IS LONELY. THEN, AMONG ALL THESE STRANGERS, HE SEES A FAMILIAR FACE; TAMIA, THE LITTLE HANDMAIDEN ALETA HAD PURCHASED IN TANGIERS.

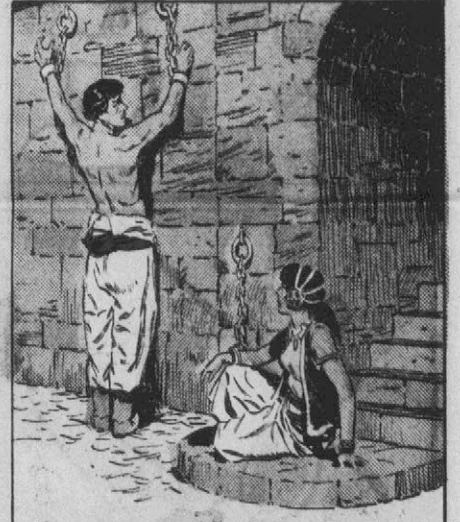

THEY BOTH KNOW THE RULES OF CONDUCT A SLAVE MUST FOLLOW, BUT THEY ARE VERY YOUNG AND RISK SECRET MEETINGS.

LOVE COMES TO THEM AND IN THEIR RAPTURE THEY BECOME CARELESS. "AH, HA! CAUGHT YOU IN A FORBIDDEN PASTIME," SNEERS THE SENESCHAL. "IT MEANS THE DUNGEON FOR YOU!"

"BUT YOU ARE TOO PRETTY TO SLEEP IN A DUNGEON," AND HE OFFERS AN ALTERNATIVE THAT SO ENRAGES ZILLA THAT HE MIGHT HAVE KILLED HIM HAD NOT THE GUARDS ARRIVED.

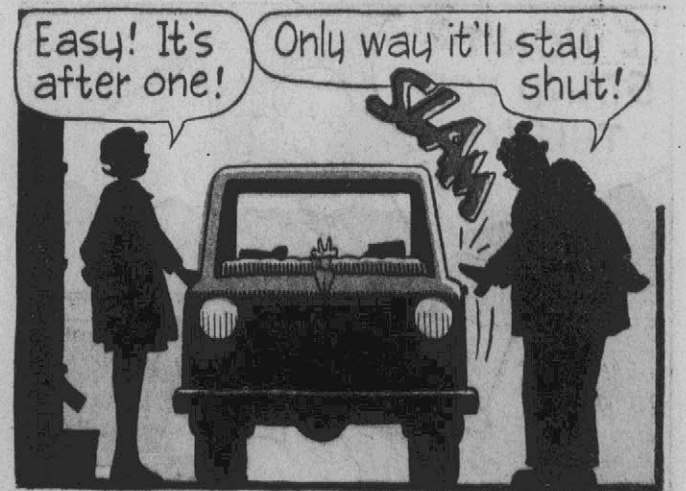

ZILLA AND TAMIA ARE NEATLY CHAINED IN A DUNGEON WHILE THE SENESCHAL HURRIES OFF TO WIN THE QUEEN'S APPROVAL OF HIS VIGILANCE.

AND THERE'S A MAN PICKING RIPE WIRE TO SELL IN A WIRE STORE.

THERE GOES A TRUCK THAT'S EXPECTING BABIES.

LOOK AT THE LETTERS HE GOT. HE MUST BE VERY POPULAR.
