

Parenthood Disillusions

By SETH MYDANS
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—If you had it all to do over again, would you have children?
When advice columnist Ann Landers asked her readers this question, 10,000 of them responded, and 70 per cent said: "No."
"The most fascinating (and disturbing) mail I've received in a long time," Miss Landers said in a recent column.
"Granted the negatives have a stronger compulsion to write than the affirmatives," she said later in a telephone interview. "Even so, I was amazed by the number of people who wrote to say that having children isn't worth the trouble."
A number of psychiatrists, equally surprised by the letters, telephoned her to ask what she thought of them, Miss Landers said.

Dr. Harcharan Sehdev, director of the Children's Division of the Menninger Foundation in Topeka, Kan., said that the letters appear to reflect "the general changing trends and options of family systems and the place of children in society and the home."
But he said it has always been a myth that Americans love their children.
"We like to believe that we love children, adore children, value the world of the future... but in reality this is hardly the case," he said, citing a history of child abuse, child labor and underfunding of children's aid programs.
A Boston newspaper columnist, Diane White, reacted to the letters, saying: "We seldom or never hear any parents we know speak out against having children, which is perfectly understandable. People don't like to talk about their mistakes."

Miss Landers said her negative mail fell roughly into three categories: letters from older parents whose children ignore them, from younger people concerned about overpopulation, and from people with young children who find parenthood restricts their life-styles.
Among those she ran in her column, Too Late for Tears, the mother of two children under 8 in Tampa, Fla., wrote: "I was an attractive, fulfilling career woman before I had these kids. Now I'm an exhausted, nervous wreck... Our children took all the romance out of our marriage. I'm too tired for sex, conversation or anything

Sad Story in New York, a 70-year-old mother of five, wrote: "Not one of our children has given us any pleasure. God knows we did our best, but we were failures as parents and they are failures as people."
Miss Landers said one reason for the disillusionment may be that some people enter parenthood with unrealistic expectations.
"Everybody wants a cute little baby," she said. "Nobody wants a troublesome 2-year-old who gets into mischief."
And when, she said, "they find they're broke, with unexpected bills, they can't take trips, they're up all night with sick kids, a wreck, cross, unpleasant, tired. They ask themselves: 'Who needs this?'"

Demo Hopefuls Turn To Massachusetts

By MAUREEN SANTINI
Associated Press Writer
BOSTON (AP) — Democrats running for president, led by newly advanced frontrunner Jimmy Carter, are turning their attention to Massachusetts and the second primary test of the election year.
The Bay State primary next Tuesday involves more Democrats and less Republican activity and introduces new rules and a highly volatile issue, busing.
The Democratic field in Massachusetts includes the five candidates in Tuesday's New Hampshire primary as well as three others — Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, Pennsylvania Gov. Milton J. Shapp and Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace.
Carter, the former Georgia governor who polled 30 per cent of the vote to lead the field in New Hampshire, predicted Wednesday he would win, place or show in the second primary test.
Following Carter in the New Hampshire voting were Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona, Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana, Former Oklahoma Sen. Fred Harris and Sargent Shriver, the Democratic vice presidential candidate in 1972.

The key stumbling block for Carter and the others could well be Wallace, who chose to start his primary campaign in the only state that voted Democratic in the presidential election four years ago.
Wallace already has devoted an extraordinary amount of time to Massachusetts. Most others will spend a good part of the next five days here, but Carter aides say their candidate has planned a bare four hour time — bringing his total Massachusetts time to 85 hours.
Udall, whose second place finish in New Hampshire led him to declare himself the leading progressive candidate, said Wednesday he believes Wallace could get 15 per cent of the vote in Massachusetts. Other estimates have been higher in the seven-way race which could be won with 20 or 25 per cent.

President Ford is considered the heavy favorite on the Republican side in a lackluster contest with Ronald Reagan, the former California governor who took 49 per cent to Ford's 51 per cent in New Hampshire.
Ford aides designated Reagan the "phantom" opponent because he lacks an official organization here. But his television and radio advertising has reached both Massachusetts and New Hampshire audiences.
Reagan, campaigning Wednesday in Illinois for the March 16 primary there, released a financial statement putting his net worth at $1,445,571.
The statement, released without comment, said his income for the five years ending in 1974 was $528,518 and estimated his 1975 income at $282,253. It showed Reagan paid taxes of $135,380 from 1970 to 1974 and an estimated $119,332 for 1975.

Schools in Boston, Massachusetts' capital city, are being desegregated by court order and busing — an explosive issue — is expected to figure prominently in the state primary election.
Both Wallace and Jackson have courted the antibusing vote. None of the other Democrats have made direct appeals for the antibusing vote.

Orders Hiring Freeze

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. James E. Holshouser today ordered a modified hiring freeze and cutbacks in other governmental expenses that he said should keep the state from going into the red during this fiscal year.
In a memo to department heads, Holshouser ordered that no job vacancies be filled without the approval of the state budget office except for law enforcement and custodial jobs such as prison guards and mental hospital attendants.
He said the partial freeze would affect mostly clerical workers and should save up to $2 million by the time the fiscal year ends on June 30.
Holshouser also banned out of state travel, except for elected officials. He said he and members of the Council of State had duties which sometimes required them to travel to Washington and other places. The partial ban, he predicted, would save $700,000.
The governor has combined state travel with trips for the President Ford Committee in recent months. But he said he did not anticipate doing much out of state travel for Ford during the rest of the fiscal year.
Holshouser's directive also banned in-state travel by employees that is not "absolutely essential. It established rules to cut down on the amount agencies spend for equipment and supplies.
Holshouser had no estimate of the overall savings his orders will cause. But he said he thinks it will be enough to keep the budget in the black.
Legislative budget analysts have predicted that the recession will cause a decrease in state revenues that will eat up almost all of the $70 million cushion built into this year's state budget. Some analysts have said the decline in revenues could force the state into the red, which the constitution prohibits.
Holshouser said he would know better in a March and April whether further steps might be necessary to keep the budget in balance. He said he still has hopes that some surplus revenues will be available for a pay raise for teachers and state employees.
Some legislators, anxious to give the pay raise, have suggested using "windfall" money to finance it. One proposal would change the state's withholding tax collection schedule from quarterly to monthly.

Covenant Raised In Rezoning Plea

By TOM BAINES

Several items, including a rezoning request and final and preliminary plats on sections of local subdivisions, were considered last night by the Joint City-County and Greenville Planning & Zoning Commissions.

The joint board recommended that the City Council approve the rezoning of some 24.5 acres on NC 30, approximately 1.5 miles from the city limits, from RA-20 (residential-agricultural) to R-6MH (residential-mobile home).
Wilbur Harris submitted the rezoning request and indicated that he wished to develop the tract in mobile homes. The matter was tabled at the January meeting in order to receive an opinion from the city attorney regarding restrictive covenants in the subdivision.

At the January meeting, J.L. Summerlin of the Briley Subdivision told the board that his property deed carried a restricted covenant which stipulated that no trailer home would be parked or maintained in the subdivision.
David Reid, city attorney, indicated in a letter to the commission that he was of the opinion that restrictive covenants between two private parties would not affect the action of the commission and that the matter should be considered as any other request.
Chairman Eddie Howell interpreted Reid's letter to mean that the restrictive covenants would have no bearing on the rezoning request.
The plot plan for the development shows the development of 46 individual lots with each exceeding the 6,000-square-foot minimum lot size and 60-foot minimum width requirements. Harris said that most of the lots contain close to 9,000 square feet.
The plan itself was not considered by commissioners for approval since the request involved rezoning and not development plan approval.
Commissioners voted unanimously to recommend approval of the rezoning matter.
The city's planning staff was also authorized to investigate whether the adjoining subdivision should be rezoned. City Planner John Schofield said that the staff will make a report to the board on the adjoining property.

Shopping Center Planned

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
The Mitchell Company — with offices in Raleigh — plans to construct a shopping center on property North of Greenville Boulevard and across from Pitt Plaza.
A Mitchell official, Jay Beal, said that "we will be developing a shopping center," and said "We know pretty much what will be in there... at least two major tenants, possibly a third."
In all, Beal said, the center will contain 20 to 25 individual businesses. He noted that the tenants will be identified "when lease agreements are complete." That, he said, would be within 30 days. "We are pretty far along with them."
According to Beal, it is hoped to have the center "under construction by June 1, with projected opening for the first quarter of 1977."
Beal noted "costs will vary, depending on exactly who the principal tenants will be," but said the construction price should exceed $2 million. The center will "probably contain a maximum of 120,000 to 125,000 square feet," Beal added.
The 23-acre tract on which the center would be built has footage along Greenville Boulevard and Arlington Boulevard, as well as along the proposed extension of Commerce Street. It adjoins property owned by East Carolina University (on the East), the Gulf Oil Corp. (at the intersection of Greenville and Arlington Boulevards, and Branch Banking and Trust Co. on Arlington.
Beal said negotiations for the property have been un-

Errors In Welfare Will Draw Penalty

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government will levy heavy fines against states that don't properly supervise their family welfare rolls, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare warns.
HEW Secretary David Mathews said Wednesday that beginning in July the department would withhold about $250 million from states that fail to meet minimum federal goals of ineligibility, overpayments and underpayments in Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC).
The first penalties would be based on each state's error rate between July and December, 1975, and imposed every six months. Almost every state would be penalized, but how much will not be known until July.
But Mathews hinted he was leaving room for compromise — if governors drop state claims for repayment of millions of dollars misspent on adult welfare under the Supplemental Security Income (SSI) program.
States are making similar claims for repayment from the Social Security Administration, charging that their money was spent wrongly by HEW on ineligible and overpaid SSI adult recipients.
"This is a great opportunity to make some judgments about the quality control issue," Mathews told his first full-scale Washington news conference after six months in office.

Social Security Commissioner James B. Cardwell has said about $45 million in overpayments had been identified by the federal government during the first six months of the two-year old SSI program. But 31 states released an audit earlier this week that overpayments during the first six months totalled $197 million.
Mathews told reporters that it made no sense for HEW to stop pressing states for improvement in the AFDC program, while states continue to hold the department accountable for SSI errors.
The SSI error rate now is hovering around 24 per cent. HEW's "carrot and stick" approach over the last three years has gotten states to lower the AFDC error rate from 41 per cent to 32 per cent, federal officials said.
HEW twice before let deadlines for imposing AFDC penalties pass. High-ranking officials said they believed Mathews would extend the July deadline, especially in view of his frequent assertions that such penalties harm the very recipients that the programs are designed to aid.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Companies that exhibited everything from a $125,000, six-foot dinghy to a $380,000, 55-foot yacht said they did a total of $74.6 million in business at the Miami International Boat Show.
The six-day show, an annual barometer of the boating industry's health, which ended Wednesday after more than 300,000 persons had visited the Convention Center.
The attendance of 300,225 was 214 less than drawn in 1975, but officials said poor weather the past three days kept them from breaking the record.

Netted 57 Pints

AYDEN—Wednesday's Bloodmobile visit here netted 57 pints of blood, according to Pitt County Blood chairman Billy Ross. In addition to the collect total, there were ten persons rejected for various health reasons, the chairman added.
The collection total, Ross said, is the best recorded in Ayden in recent years and he thanked the citizens of Ayden for turning out to donate.
He also thanked all of the volunteers from the community who assisted in the blood drive.
Ayden's total of 57 pints, collected at the town's Community Building, brought the three-day total for the county to 338 pints of blood. Monday and Tuesday visits in Greenville resulted in the collection of 281 pints.

Precinct Chairmen For 25 Precincts Elected

Henry Oglesby, Pitt County Democratic chairman, announced that chairmen have been elected in 25 of the county's 26 precincts.
Oglesby noted that most of the precinct chairmen were elected on Feb. 12 while several others were selected at meetings held after the designated meeting date. At least five precincts failed to have quorums on Feb. 12 and had to postpone their meetings until later dates.
In addition to the chairmen, the precinct gatherings also elected first, second and third vice chairmen as well as secretary-treasurers to serve for the coming year. The chairman and first vice chairman automatically become members of the Democratic Executive Committee, it was noted, to represent each precinct.
Chairmen elected included: Ayden precinct, Corey Stokes; Arthur, Sparky McCaskill; Belvoir, Steve Little; Bethel, David Speir; Carolina, J. B. Congleton; Chicod I, Ervin Mills; Chicod II, Carolyn Keeter; Chicod III, Amos Pollard; Falkland, Bill D. Jones; Farmville, Jack Lewis Jr.; Fountain, E. B. Beasley Jr.; Greenville I, Clarence Gray; Greenville III, Rev. B. B. Felder; Greenville IV, Rufus Huggins; Greenville V, Judy Donnalley; Greenville VII, David Reid; Greenville VIII, D. D. Gross; Greenville IX, Thomas H. Johnson; Greenville X, Henry C. Ferrell Jr.; Grifton, Wiley Gaskins; Grimesland I, Robert M. Brown; Grimesland II, Mrs. Viola Boyd; Pactolus, Burney Baker; Swift Creek, Jamie L. Wilson; and Winterville, Blanie Moyer.
Only Greenville VI has failed to secure a quorum needed to elect officers. Oglesby noted that precincts failing to elect officials as prescribed will not be seated or recognized at the March 6 Pitt Democratic Convention at the Pitt County Courthouse.

WAIT'S OVER

Our family of five has been riding in a pickup truck for 10 months now, waiting for the Shelby Mutual Insurance Company to pay off, and I've undergone extensive treatment for back injuries which resulted in excruciating headaches, loss of feeling in an arm, and other health problems for me. My car was hit just as I was turning left into my own driveway 10 months ago by a driver on assigned risk to Shelby Mutual. I was giving both an electric and a hand turn signal at the time. A passenger in the car which hit me and the driver of a car stopped behind me verified this and the patrolman charged the guy who hit me with improper passing. My attorney has been unable to get anything done, short of going to court, which we really cannot afford. Mrs. B. B.

Hotline called a claims supervisor at the Shelby Mutual office in Greensboro. He told us that he could not deal directly with you or with Hotline, since your case is in the hands of an attorney. He did indicate, though, that the company was unlikely to pay, since they believed there was some question as to the fault's being partially yours, citing that before a left turn can be made a person should both signal and "be sure that the way is clear." We questioned him about the fact that the patrolman had charged the other driver, but he said that the law enforcement report is not always binding.

We then called C. D. Goodwin in the N. C. Insurance Commissioner's office. He listened to our explanation of the situation and promised to ask for a written report from the insurance company, saying that he would be contracting you within the next 10 days.

Four working days after the two calls were placed by Hotline, you called to report that your lawyer had been given a check for $3,800—$2,800 for your car, which Shelby Mutual agreed for you to keep for what it's worth (It was totaled) and $1,000 to cover the medical expenses incurred.

GOT LOTION

I ordered two bottles of Long E Hair Lotion from Beauty Originals Inc. in Westbury, N. Y. July 25 of last year. I paid with a $5.20 money order. I went back to the post office when I didn't get the merchandise, and they sent a duplicate. The card was returned, not replaceable, paid money order. I'd like to get my money back or the merchandise. M.H.

Hotline wrote the company Jan. 6. We got a note dated Jan 26 which said "Another order sent this date. Thank you." Sure enough you reported that you soon received the lotion ordered more than six months earlier.

scheduled matter on the joint board's agenda, approval and adoption of the semi-annual report covering the period from July of 1975 through December was given. The report summarizes action taken by the commission during the six-month period.

The board also discussed the possibility of establishing a Project Review Committee consisting of several commission members who would meet with developers prior to the presentation of development plans at the monthly meeting and make comments or suggestions on the proposed plans.

Schofield said that one advantage of the committee would be in spotting potential problems in the proposals submitted by developers and hopefully resolving the problems prior to the regular meeting.

It was noted that two developers had requested that the preliminary reviews be considered and Schofield said that the committee could function upon request by developers rather than on each development matter.

Developers already have access to the planning staff as well as engineering staff assistance under the present system.

Commissioner Lyman Ormond Jr. said that he felt the members of the board who were named to serve on the committee would be placed on the spot since they would not be speaking for the entire commission.

City Manager Jim Caldwell said that he has seen the committee work well at other places and he contended that it could help the overall plan review process. Caldwell added that the committee action could also help to speed up the regular meetings.

Schofield, noting that now might be a good time to experiment with the committee idea, said that he would check with other towns to get an idea of how their committees are functioning.

Howell urged board members to consider attending the 19th annual N.C. Planning Conference scheduled for April 6 and 7 in Chapel Hill. The conference, he added, is designed mainly for members of planning commissions and boards of adjustments.

The Greenville board tabled action on the final plat of Sedgfield Park, Section IV, to consider whether the final plat should be subject to current subdivision regulations. The preliminary plat was approved in 1965, according to City Engineer Charlie Holliday.

In other matters, commissioners approved the final plat of Cambridge Subdivision, Section II, as well as final plats of Lynndale Subdivision, Section VI, and Club Pines Subdivision, Section IV.

The commission also gave approval to the preliminary plat of Colonial Village, located on NC 11 north of Greenville across from Burroughs Wellcome. The property was recently rezoned from RA-20 to R-6-Mobile Home.

The tract, which includes some 8.76 acres, will be developed with mobile home modular units, it was explained. At least one acre will be designated for recreational usage. Individual lots will be sold for the modular units.

Holliday said that the lot sizes as shown in the preliminary plat meet subdivision regulations, as do the streets proposed for the tract.

Commissioners voted to table for 30 days a suggestion that State Road 1267 (Nursing Home Road) be named Fred Irons Road.

The semi-annual report of the Greenville board was also adopted for the July through December period.

Govm't Trying To Sell 'Glomar Explorer'

By DAVID C. MARTIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Unable to find a use for the CIA's multi-million dollar Glomar Explorer, the government is trying to lease the spy ship to private industry for deep-sea mining, according to industry and government officials.

But executives for two of the three corporations that government officials hoped might submit bids expressed no interest in the sophisticated vessel, which was used by the CIA to recover part of a Russian submarine from the bottom of the Pacific Ocean.

"It's a white elephant that just attracts attention," an executive for International Nickel Co. said of the ship, which was built under a secret agreement between the CIA and a corporation controlled by reclusive billionaire Howard Hughes.

"The possibilities of leasing the Glomar are quite minimal," said an executive for Deepsea Ventures, a Tenneco

Inc. subsidiary.

Marne Dubs, head of Kennecott Copper Inc.'s deep-sea mining division, was the only executive queried by a reporter who seemed interested in the Glomar, calling it "probably the most important new ocean engineering tool that's been created in recent years."

Dubs added that Kennecott would make no final decision on whether to submit a bid for the Glomar until after the General Services Administration publishes bid requirements in the Federal Register.

The GSA currently is custodian of the Glomar. The CIA, which is believed to have recovered only part of the sunken Soviet sub in 1974, scrubbed plans for another salvage attempt for fear of a clash with Russian vessels now patrolling the wreckage site near Hawaii.

A GSA spokesman refused to confirm plans for the Glomar, but said leasing is "one of the propositions that we're kicking around."

A member of an interagency task force studying Glomar said if private industry won't lease the ship, it will be put up for auction at a bargain price or sold for scrap. Either way, an official said, "it would be a pretty small return on the dollar for the taxpayer."

One alternative eyed by the Administration. But, said one official, "no federal agency wants to come up with the funds" needed to operate and maintain the Glomar.

RALEIGH (AP)—The vice president of financially troubled Carolina Cape Fear Corp. says the major backer of the proposal to develop Baldhead Island will probably absorb the company and complete the project.

John A. Messick said Wednesday the Building Investment Group Inc. (BIG) of Valley Forge, Pa., "is committed to the original concept...and the island will be developed in the same low-key, environmentally oriented way that we started out."

BIG is one of two major investors in Carolina Cape Fear Corp. that filed foreclosure notices against the firm last summer.

The other investor, Waccamaw Bank & Trust Co. of Whiteville, foreclosed Jan. 7 on the $641,000 mortgage it held against Carolina Cape Fear for 35 lots on the semitropical island near Southport.

The lots are scheduled to be sold at public auction at noon Friday at the Brunswick County Courthouse in Southport.

Messick declined to say how soon BIG might absorb Carolina Cape Fear. However, he said, "in all probability, BIG will develop the island. They have been working with us for some time, and we're going through a reorganization right now."

Contractor Doesn't See Job As Liberation

By WILLIAM J. STANFIELD
SANTA ANA, Calif. (UPI) — Bonnie DeRobertis is president of her own company in the overwhelmingly male-dominated plumbing industry, but she doesn't feel that makes her a liberated woman.

"I've never felt that I was suppressed, so therefore I never felt like I had to be liberated," said the attractive 32-year-old mother of two.

Mrs. DeRobertis became president of Orcon, Inc., a large Southern California plumbing contracting firm, a year ago when her husband, Robert, was killed in a plane crash.

Orcon does $8 million business annually, which probably puts her in a class of her own as a major female plumbing contractor.

She got into the industry in her teens.

"I looked around when I was 16 years old and decided it was a great business to be in," she said. "Members of my family were in it and my first husband was in the plumbing industry."

"I like pipes, and plumbing can be very rewarding. It has a lot of potential and is a professional industry."

She and DeRobertis, her second husband, bought Orcon in 1966. She was vice president until his death.

Does she run into opposition because she is a woman in a male-dominated industry?

"Only for the first five minutes," she said. "They soon feel that I know what I'm talking about. I'm not challenging the men in the world. I'm just glad to be part of it."

She has never worked as a plumber, but she knows the contracting industry and works on all phases of it.

"I work on the bidding and the estimates. I work with the men and we work together. We have a mutual understanding."

"I'm not a full-fledged mechanic. I'm a plumbing contractor, a business person. I would never challenge one of my men by saying that I can install the plumbing as well as they can. You can always get a good mechanic, but you can't always get a good business person."

Many of the men who work for her as estimators were competitors until the construction industry was hit by the recession and she brought them into her "family."

"It really is a family business," she said. "Business is people and that's what saved us over most others when the money disappeared. When we went through the hard times, we went through together."

The family atmosphere extends to her own office, which is comfortably furnished and well stocked with guns, many of them antique and blunderbusses, fishing tackle and numerous mementos, most of them gifts of friends. Employees drop in informally for chats about business. At the end of the day, the bar in her office is open for the traditional family hour.

"Instead of stopping at the local bar, they stay around and have a cocktail after work," she said. "You'd be surprised what you discuss when everyone sits down and has a drink. Most of the pressures of the day come out."

In addition to Orcon, Mrs. DeRobertis is president of several other companies, most of them directly connected with the main business. Her leasing company owns about 100 vehicles, which are leased to Orcon. She also is president of an underground utility company, a property management firm and a drain supply company.

She doesn't see much chance of a sharp recovery in the plumbing and contracting business without help from the government.

"The only way to get the men back to work is through government action because, let's face it, the government controls the money. We're damn fools if we sit around and tell each other something different."

"We've lost a lot of basically good contractors and we're going to lose a lot more. And 90 per cent of the reason is lack of government funding."

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I had a dream the other night that I was arrested on four counts of a 1032—a fitting room violation.

As I stood before the judge in a crowded courtroom, the charges were read:

"On the afternoon of Wednesday, Jan. 21, the accused is charged with taking three bathing suits into a fitting room and telling the attendant she only had two. This constitutes a cover-up. How do you plead?"

"I didn't know it was a bathing suit," I shouted. "I thought my hem was unraveling."

"You are also charged with throwing your coat over the hidden camera in the fitting room in an attempt to obstruct the view of those monitoring the fitting rooms for thefts. How do you plead to that charge?"

"And I'd do it again!" I shouted. "If I wanted an audience in the fitting room, I'd have my performance choreographed."

"Please restrain the defendant," said the bailiff, continuing. "When a salesperson pulled back the curtains and inquired, 'How are we doing in here?' the accused became quite ugly and shouted back, 'What's with the WE bit, turkey. And whose idea was it to put fun house mirrors in these fitting rooms. You poke your head in here again and I'll rearrange your nose.'"

"Those were her exact words?" noted the judge.

"Yes, your honor," said the bailiff. "There's more. The salesperson also noted that there was an attempt to defraud. When she looked into the fitting room, the suspect was trying on the bikini bathing suit over a skirt and a turtle neck sweater."

I jumped angrily to my feet. "I suppose you are going to try and tell me that those too little flimsy pieces of material should be worn alone? Can't you see a homeroom mother in something like that?"

"Please," said the judge to my attorney, "this is the last time I am going to caution you to restrain your client. Now, how big was the top of the suit?"

"I've worn bigger on a paper cut," I volunteered.

"And the bottom?"

"Could I see you in private chambers?" I begged.

"I've heard enough," said the judge, "and I'm ready to pronounce sentence. This court finds you guilty of overloading a bikini and sentences you to a lifetime of carrots, lettuce and cottage cheese . . . cottage cheese . . . cottage cheese . . ."

My husband shook me awake. "Get hold of yourself," he said. "You must have been having a bad dream. Can I get you a glass of water?"

"How about a chocolate bar sandwich? And hold the lettuce!"

The program was conducted by Mrs. Lib LeConte, chairman of Pilot Information, Internal Affairs Division. She gave a true-false "pop quiz" with membership participation in the discussion of the answers.

Mrs. Nancy Warren, vice president, presided in the absence of Mrs. Lenora Morton, president.

Mrs. Addie Jenkins, coordinator of Projects Division, polled the members as to interest in participating in a defensive driving course. According to Mrs. Jenkins, this course is given every three years and drivers of state motor vehicles are required to take it. There is no cost involved and non-Pilot members are invited to participate. Persons interested should contact Mrs. Jenkins, 752-6467, or Mrs. Juanita McCarthy, 758-1274.

Valentine parties were given at Wahl-Coates and E.B. Aycock Junior High Schools for the three classes for handicapped children.

The club's Leap Year sale to be held Saturday, Feb. 28, at the Greenville Recreation Center will begin at 9 a.m. and close at 3 p.m. In addition to the numerous articles of "trash and treasures," there will be a bake sale and a snack bar serving sandwiches, ham biscuits, etc.

During the business session, Mrs. Jean Cox, Mrs. Gloria Butler and Mrs. Juanita McCarthy were elected to serve on the nominating committee.

The Greenville Garden Club met Friday at Parker's Restaurant for a luncheon meeting. Mrs. W.J.P. Earnhardt Jr. of Edenton, district director, was a special guest.

Mrs. Earnhardt brought greetings from the N.C. State Garden Club and talked on ecology. She pointed out the ways the natural environment are being destroyed and suggested that glass and paper packaging be used rather than plastic as they are easier to recycle.

She also spoke on the beauty of the world and how to use things wisely. Mrs. Earnhardt suggested that members read "Silent Spring" and "A World We Can Live In."

Randy Joyner, of the Sunshine Garden Center, spoke on "How We Landscape a Yard." His steps were planning the yard including walks, privacy and accents. He told of the choice of trees and shrubs, showing plants suitable for different situations.

The business meeting was conducted by Mrs. Paul Davenport, president. A letter was read from Mrs. Wickers asking for a contribution for a rosebush for the 25th anniversary of the Elizabethan Garden and to celebrate the visit of Queen Elizabeth. Mrs. Klingenschmidt asked for volunteers to help with terrariums for the Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center.

Each member was requested to turn in their horticultural record.

Dear Abby

Reader Wants Information On The Living Will

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Last year you had something in your column about the Living Will. I'm sorry to say I didn't pay much attention to it then, but I am interested in it now. Exactly what is it? And how can I get one? I am Jewish. Is it against my religion? Is it "euthanasia" or mercy killing?

DAVID G. IN BOSTON

DEAR DAVID: The Living Will is a document stating that should you fall victim to a terminal illness from which there is no hope for your recovery, you instruct your physician not to prolong your life by artificial means, such as machines, tubes, pumps, etc.

Copies of this document may be given to your physician, clergyman, lawyer and to as many family members and/or friends as you desire. To sign such a document, you must be 18 years or older and of sound mind. (If at any time you wish to revoke the document, you are free to do so.)

The Jewish view of the Living Will is as follows: It is NOT "euthanasia"—or mercy killing! There is a clear distinction between actively killing a person and "allowing him to die."

According to Jewish Law, when a person suffers irreversible brain damage and can no longer recite a "bracha"—a blessing to praise God—or perform a "mitzvah"—an act to help his fellowman—he is considered a "vegetable," and there is nothing to "save." It is thus an act of compassion to spare the family the suffering, anguish and expense of artificially prolonging the breathing and heartbeat when death is inevitable.

The Living Will does not give anyone permission to END the life of another in a "mercy-killing" manner. It is simply a document that one signs, stating that he (or she) does not want to have his (or her) life prolonged artificially after his physician decides that there is no hope for recovery.

I have signed such a document. You may get one by writing to The Living Will, 250 West 57th St., New York, N.Y. 10019. The document is free, but please send a few dollars (it's tax deductible) for the cost of printing and mailing the document to you. I sent $5 for six documents and have given one to my physician, clergyman and lawyer, and to members of my family.

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

P.S. I am indebted to Rabbi Bernard S. Raskas, Temple Aaron of St. Paul, Minn., for providing me with the above information on the Jewish view of the right to die with dignity. I have written to my friend, The Reverend Norman Vincent Peale, asking to explain the Protestant view. I have also written to The Bishop Fulton J. Sheen, another friend of long standing, asking for the Catholic view. If they respond, I shall publish their letters.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (26¢) envelope.

Med School Is Still A Target

Even as planning and development moves along on the ECU Medical school there are still those who would have North Carolina drop everything and bring the school to the end.

If you don't believe it read the words of The Charlotte Observer which recently called the school's funding "the most obvious abandonment of responsibility by the legislature."

"A special session of the legislature could deal with these matters, but given past performance we cannot be optimistic that it would. At least it would force the legislators, rather than just the governor, to look at some of the mess they have created."

"The ECU medical school should be stopped. If the legislators cannot bring themselves to do that, they could let the public vote on bonds to finance the school, as Rep. Carolyn Mathis, R-Mecklenburg, has been urging."

The Chapel Hill Newspaper in reprinting The Charlotte Observer's comments added "hearty Amen!"

Well we can add that the issue of the ECU medical school development was debated for years and years. Out of it came official government attention to the acute physician shortage which affects great sections of our state (Charlotte and Chapel Hill seem to have enough physicians).

The ECU medical school was approved by the board of governors and then funded by the State Legislature after perhaps the fiercest public debate on any issue ever in North Carolina.

The school's development at long last offers some hope that we will see improvement in medical care for those North Carolinians who are desperately concerned about their health needs. In short the appropriation creating the school may be the most important act a legislature has ever taken in our state insofar as improving medical care.

Any cutting back on the funds already appropriated for the school would slow down its development and in our opinion would be totally unthinkable at this stage. We don't resent others holding other opinions on the matter, but our state legislators must think first of the welfare of all our people.

Funds Were Essential In N. Carolina

President Ford called for the nation's governors to support the renewal of the federal revenue sharing program.

Renewal of the program is now pending in Congress.

We don't know how well the program has worked in other states, but these funds have been essential to North Carolina state government and to the local municipal government.

Local officials have been able to make the decisions as to how the funds would be spent and generally this has worked well. Continuation of revenue sharing is essential to North Carolina.

THIS AFTERNOON

Lobby Effort By Teachers

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Political fire will be turned higher under members of the North Carolina General Assembly, and especially under hopefuls seeking offices of governor or lieutenant governor, as teachers react to the bad news concerning pay raises.

The General Assembly will meet in May for what leaders hope will be a short session concerned primarily with budget matters.

Early in April (April 9 and 10) in Charlotte, delegates from each area of the state will convene for the annual session of the North Carolina Association of Educators. Some 2,500 elected delegates will be on hand, with authority to speak for the NCAE membership.

Sick-In Studied

At that time, the course will be determined for teachers. A proposal is already in the hands of the resolutions committee suggesting teacher action in the form of sick-ins should the state fail to provide a pay raise equal to the increase in cost of living—estimated at between 16 and 19 per cent over the past two years.

The General Assembly has promised to provide a five per cent pay hike, but has been frustrated in efforts to locate the $70 million such a raise would require. That amount would be for teachers and other state employees since all must be treated alike, legislators fee.

Should a sharply higher raise be considered—15 per cent, for instance—the total cost would run over $210 million.

NCAE President Dean Westmoreland of Kings Mountain says the teacher organization leadership has talked with Gov. James E. Holshouser, Jr. in the past several weeks, "and he did not necessarily paint a rosy picture."

Most experts now consider anything higher than a five per cent raise out of the picture, and even that amount in jeopardy.

Westmoreland says, though, that he is optimistic that "some money will be available by the time the General Assembly convenes in May. I don't believe everything is as bad as had been portrayed. There are a lot of figures that aren't in yet."

While Westmoreland and other NCAE leaders embrace a policy of "militancy" to gain advances for the membership and education in general, they are quick to point out that any talk of teacher militancy in the form of calling in sick or otherwise demonstrating discontent is not at this time part of the organization's policy.

No Action

"The resolution has been suggested, but there has been no action by the leadership or the membership," Westmoreland said.

If the delegates assembled in Charlotte endorse such action, though, he and other leaders would have no choice but to follow that direction, he says. Westmoreland's term ends at the April meeting.

Meanwhile, pressure will continue to be brought against candidates and members of the General Assembly for the cost-of-living pay hike which is a formal part of the NCAE platform and has been approved by the members, Westmoreland said.

"The NCAE stand right now is to mount an intensive lobbying effort and to get involved even more deeply in political action in the coming election to secure people who support us," Westmoreland said.

The teacher organization has grown increasingly involved in politics, and through its Political Action Committee has indicated a more aggressive role in interviewing and selecting candidates for endorsement, fundraising, and active grassroots politicking.

Falling to receive raises in 1974-75 and 1975-76 fiscal years, North Carolina teachers fell from first in the Southeast and 21st nationally to second and 28th respectively. While other state's were providing teacher pay raises, the North Carolina average climbed only slightly from $11,089 to $11,165.

Games Played By Bench

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — Forty-four federal judges recently filed an ingenious lawsuit, seeking to collect back pay. If a first-year law student had dreamed up this inspired petition, his professors would have hurled the smart-aleck into the streets — but they might have given him an A for imagination first.

The case turns on a provision in Article III of the Constitution. This says that federal judges shall hold their offices during good behavior, "and shall, at stated times, receive for their services, a compensation, which shall not be diminished during their continuance in office."

The theory of this suit is that by reason of inflation, which has diminished the purchasing power of every dollar, the judges' compensation has been effectively diminished. And this the Constitution forbids.

It is a pretty theory for an ancient clause. The quoted provision evokes the Declaration of Independence itself, which charged that King George had made judges "dependent on his will alone, for the tenure of their offices and the amount and payment of their salaries."

The independence of the judiciary could be severely damaged if an ill-tempered Congress could even threaten to whack the judges' salaries by half or two-thirds.

The issue has been litigated off and on for many years. The most important case, even though it later was overturned, arose in 1920, a few years after ratification of the Sixteenth (income tax) Amendment. Then a federal judge in Kentucky, Walter Evans, sued the acting tax collector to recover the federal income tax he had paid under protest on his $6,000 salary.

Judge Evans lost in the trial court, but he found a sympathetic audience on appeal. Speaking through Justice Willis Van Devanter, who delivered himself of a fine spread-eagle opinion, the Supreme Court voted 8-1 to uphold Judge Evans' claim.

Van Devanter was given to writing rich purple prose. He found it very plain "that the primary purpose of the prohibition against diminution was not to benefit the judges, but, like the clause in respect to tenure, to attract good and competent men to the bench, and to promote that independence of action and judgment which is essential to the maintenance of the guaranties, limitations, and pervading principles of the Constitution, and to the administration of justice without regard to persons, and with equal concern for the poor and the rich."

So they gave Judge Evans his $180 back.

For 19 years, federal judges paid no income tax. Then in 1939, in a brief opinion by Justice Felix Frankfurter, the Court summarily overturned the Evans ruling. To subject judges to a general tax, said Frankfurter, "is merely to recognize that judges are also citizens, and that their particular function in government does not generate an immunity from sharing with their fellow citizens the material burden of the government whose Constitution and laws they are charged with administering."

The diminution clause, stated in the passive voice, palpably implies diminution by Congress. It is absurd to suggest that the in-

Letters submitted for Public Forum must be limited to 300 words.

To the editor:

This is in response to your recent editorial entitled, "Let's Start With Flag Poles," which criticized the installation by the U.S. General Services Administration of an "electronically" operated flag pole at the federal building in Greenville.

Let me assure you that I share your genuine concern for economy in government. Furthermore, I agree with you that the federal government can and should save money on the "little things" it purchases. It's for these reasons that GSA believes it made a sound investment when it installed an "electronic" flag pole in Greenville and at more than 115 other locations throughout the country.

Automatically operated flag poles have been installed at federal buildings under construction or renovation: (1) to replace old or deteriorating flag poles; (2) to free operating personnel—especially in outlying areas—for other duties; (3) to remove a hazardous working condition where a flag pole is located on a rooftop or other unsafe place; and (4) to eliminate the need for paying overtime to personnel when the flag is flown by Presidential Proclamation or other valid directive on non-working days.

The cost of these flag poles ranges from $2,500 to $5000 depending on the height of the pole, the difficulty of installation and local labor market conditions. It is estimated that the cost is amortized in about five years by avoiding the costs previously indicated. After the initial investment is recouped, each automatically operated flag pole will represent a savings to the government.

Prior to our decision to install these flag poles at GSA-controlled buildings, we contacted the Institute of Heraldry; Department of the Army; the Chief of Protocol, Department of State; and the American Legion to solicit their views on these devices. None of these groups posed any objections to the use of these flag poles.

With respect to your suggestion that volunteers could be found to raise and lower the flag on weekends and holidays, I can assure you that this has been tried in the past at other locations and proven to be unworkable.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — They are cut off from their past, from friends and family, — revolutionaries living in shadowy, elusive underground bands.

Yet the urban guerrillas of the Weather Underground, New World Liberation Front, Emiliano Zapata Unit and other groups put out communiques, magazines and books designed to deliver their messages to the public.

The Weather Underground telephones local news media to tell where communiques are hidden. The Symbionese Liberation Army left its radical epistles in bathrooms, luggage lockers and phone booths. The Zapata Unit usually mails its messages directly to local newspapers and broadcast stations. The New World Liberation Front has a "courier," who hand-delivers its bulletins.

The FBI tries to obtain the original copies of such communications. In almost every instance, messages received by news media have been photocopied or are machine-printed.

But a recent raid by FBI agents and other law enforcement officers turned up original documents of the Emiliano Zapata Unit.

Besides trying to find clues such as typewriter fingerprints to help in their search for underground terrorists, the FBI says, keeping track of the radical publications can provide insights into the life of urban guerrillas.

"We're interested in these things," said FBI spokesman Frank Perrone. "They give us more information than we would have without them. It's that much more we can know about these people."

Little is known about the size or composition of the Zapata unit or NWLF, except that both have claimed responsibility for a number of terrorist bombings in Northern California, the FBI says.

Josephus Daniels, U. S. Ambassador to Mexico may be reappointed Secretary of the Navy if the present secretary resigns, as is expected.

Daniels, who held the cabinet post during the Woodrow Wilson administration, is being talked about in some circles as successor to Navy Secretary Claude Swanson of Virginia, who is expected to soon retire.

The appointment of Daniels, a Raleigh native, to the post may be a good solution to a ticklish problem in the Roosevelt administration.

Although he has a strong national following, Daniels has developed problems in Mexico City with the Catholic church. Roosevelt risks losing the Catholic vote if Daniels remains in Mexico City.

Bringing Daniels back to Washington as Navy Secretary could provide a solution, especially since Roosevelt and Daniels are old friends — Roosevelt served as Assistant Navy Secretary when Daniels was Secretary of the Navy.

INSIDE REPORT

Meany Loves Scoop Again

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — The real political news out of last week's AFL-CIO Executive Council meeting in Bal Harbour, Fla., was not that George Meany is yearning for Ted Kennedy or Hubert Humphrey but that his first choice for President once again is Scoop Jackson.

Intimates of AFL-CIO President Meany say his press conference remarks were misinterpreted to indicate that he favors a convention draft of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy or Sen. Hubert Humphrey. To the contrary, according to these insiders, Meany has now forgiven Sen. Henry Jackson for supporting the trade act — poison to labor — and now wants him for President (though he will make no endorsement). Thus, Jackson's patient courtship of Meany over many months is crowned with success.

Until recently, Meany had privately complained that Jackson had sold out the labor movement by supporting the trade bill as a way "to get Jewish votes" by attaching to the bill the Jackson amendment for Soviet emigration. "Meany's off that kick now," reports an AFL-CIO insider. While Meany previously complained to friends of a conspiratorial partnership between Jackson and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger on the trade bill — incredible on its face — he now contends Jackson was duped by Kissinger.

Besides Jackson's patience in not counterattacking in response to Meany's past taunts, a major reason for the 81-year-old labor leader's change of heart may be the support Jackson commands among Meany's colleagues — such as AFL-CIO international secretary Joe Keenan and president Eddie Carrough of the sheet metal workers.

Another reason may be Meany's concern that former Gov. Jimmy Carter of Georgia will be nominated unless stopped by Jackson. Meany's staff last week prepared for him an 11-page memorandum detailing Carter's shortcomings on issues nearest and dearest to Meany's heart: national defense, the Middle East, civil rights, the economy, consumer protection — and, of course, "right to work" legislation.

Nervous About Connally

John B. Connally's invitation to Republican leaders from all 50 states for a private barbecue lunch at his Picoosa ranch in Texas days of heart may be the support Jackson commands among Meany's colleagues — such as AFL-CIO international secretary Joe Keenan and president Eddie Carrough of the sheet metal workers.

Should the President run poorly in the early primaries, the Ford operatives believe, Connally would immediately be regarded by some Republican politicians as an alternative to Ronald Reagan. They feel the luncheon Saturday, March 14, Meany's staff last week

NOT DEATH BUT LIFE

Two months ago a hard freeze destroyed all the foliage of the summer plants in this area. To all appearances the plants are dead. The annuals are, but the perennials, after they lie under a winter's blanket of snow, will grow and bloom again next year. But meanwhile all of the living world seems to be dead. There is not the slightest indication that shrubs and gardens will ever live and bloom again.

But we know they will. And so it is with the life of mankind. We see the dead boy laid in the grave, and by no stretch of the imagination can we conceive how life will survive the ordeal of man's passing. But what we cannot picture in the imagination we can know with the aid of revealed religion. There is a life after death, and the truth of this statement has been demonstrated for us by the resurrection of Jesus Christ.

Nature seems to die, and we at length seem to die, and that appears to be the end. But it is not. Spring comes both to the countryside and to our souls.

Air Technology Carries Risks

By JAY PERKINS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Sophisticated computers designed to improve the safety of air transportation could also pose a new danger by reducing oral communication between air traffic controllers and pilots, federal safety investigators say.

The National Transportation Safety Board made the statement Wednesday in saying that a near-collision of two jumbo jets three months ago occurred because a ground-based air traffic controller became distracted and failed to keep the airplanes separated.

Three passengers were injured seriously and 21 injured slightly on Nov. 26 when the pilot of an American Airlines jet put his aircraft into a sharp dive seven miles above Lake Michigan to avoid hitting a Trans World Airlines jet.

The American pilot later said he passed within 100 feet of the TWA plane. More than 300 persons were aboard the two jumbo jets.

The board said the air traffic controller at the Federal Aviation Administration's Cleveland control center was working with an advanced radar system that gave him the altitude of each aircraft on his scope.

The board said the controller noticed well in advance of the incident that the two planes might be on a collision course but said he decided to see if the conflict resolved itself instead of taking steps to alter the course of one of the planes.

However, the controller then became distracted with other duties and failed to watch the two aircraft. He also failed to inform a second controller who relieved him that the two planes might need watching.

The near collision was avoided when the second controller, making a routine scan of his radarscope, noticed the two planes heading for each other and ordered the American pilot to immediately descend.

The board said that if the controller had been working with the older, less-advanced radarscopes, he would have had to take immediate action to separate the planes when he first noticed a possible conflict.

"However... the automatic altitude readouts (produced by the more sophisticated equipment) ... induced him to rely solely on his own observation of the... data," the board found.

"He did not consider the possibility that he might become distracted or that the computer might fail, and thereby deprive him of his direct readout capability," it said. The incident shows "that automation technology can lead to complacency, when it takes the controller 'out of the loop' by reducing the need for his interaction with a flight crew and de-emphasizing the cooperative aspects of the air traffic system," the board added.

 the underground journals are a means for clandestine bands to give advice to each other and consolidate politics.
 Rogiers faces a court hearing next week on a contempt of grand jury charge. The panel wanted to learn more about how he receives communiques from the NWLF — the group that recently issued threats against Patricia Hearst and her family.
 At a hearing on Rogiers' case Wednesday, U.S. Dist. Judge Albert Wollenberg disqualified himself because his son was named on a NWLF "most-wanted" list printed in a magazine that Rogiers distributes.
 Rogiers, 37, is part of what he calls the Peoples Information Relay-1. Besides distributing communiques, PIR-1 has started printing a magazine called "Tug, The Urban Guerrilla." The journal, which printed the NWLF "most-wanted" list, is described as the official voice of the NWLF and also reprints communiques sent by the Zapata unit and other underground groups.
 Rogiers would not disclose how the NWLF originally contacted him or how he receives communiques. He said that "even if there were no other way" he could tell the letters were authentic by an analysis of their structure and content.

 only enhances Connally's availability.
 What's more, Ford managers view Connally as the leading potential scavenger of Ford supporters — capable of turning narrow primary defeats into a general panic. This concern is heightened because the invitation to the Connally ranch came from State Rep. Ray Hutchison, Texas state Republican chairman who never has concealed his belief that John Connally should be President.
 A footnote: Worried that President Ford will run below general expectations in the Massachusetts primary March 2, his strategists wanted the President to cap off his campaigning in New Hampshire last week with a visit to Boston on Friday, Feb. 20. No way, said the White House, contending the busing crisis was much too turbulent to risk the insertion of a President.

Bush's CIA Debut

Old hands at the CIA hoping for the best from a new boy in the intelligence business, George Bush, as their boss were disappointed in his first decision: to publicly renounce the use of news reporters.
 Key officials in the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) did not object to the renunciation in itself but the fact that Bush, in his first act as director, issued a press release about it.
 These officials accurately predicted to Bush this would be interpreted as surrendering to congressional and news media pressures and, like conciliatory gestures by departed CIA director William Colby, would only generate demands for new concessions. Thus, they recommended the CIA return to its old golden silence and sever journalist connections without hoopla. Bush rejected the advice.

Pat's Clout

A highly secret poll of New York Democrats taken last December showed Ambassador Daniel Patrick Moynihan as a potentially stronger candidate for the U.S. Senate nomination than left-wingers who have been running non-stop for months.
 A scientific survey taken for the New York state Democratic committee (and since suppressed because it violates campaign laws) shows the following results: former New York city consumer official Bess Myerson, 17 per cent; former Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark, 13 per cent; Rep. Bella Abzug, 12 per cent; Moynihan, 12 per cent.
 Moynihan's position is even stronger than that. Miss Myerson will not run, and her support consists largely of moderates who likely would go to Moynihan. When the survey was taken, Moynihan had not been talked about seriously as a Senate candidate — unlike the two candidates on the left, Clark (Senate nominee in 1974) and Mrs. Abzug (campaigning for the Senate since 1974).

NORFOLK (AP) — With a state tax on cargo imported through Hampton Roads almost a certainty now, Virginia Port Authority (VPA) staffers indicated Wednesday they will survey other ports to see what taxes are applied to cargo in them.
 The subject came up at a VPA board meeting when VPA legal counsel Robert Bray told board members the House of Delegates Finance Committee had killed a bill that would exempt imported cargo from the tax.
 Also killed Monday was a moratorium on a tax that also called for a study of the desirability of such a tax. This was done in the House Rules Committee.
 As it stands now, cargo on hand in port terminals will be subject to the state's merchants capital tax, which is 30 cents on each $100 of assessed value. State and local officials, including state Tax Commissioner William H. Forst and Norfolk Revenue Commission Sam

T. Barfield, are agreed on this. "I don't know any other way to do it," Barfield said Wednesday.
 "If it is a state tax, then we will depend on the state tax commissioner to advise us. If there is a local tax that would apply, of course we will be looking into it," Barfield said.
 But Barfield said in January that the United State Supreme Court ruled that imports are subject to local nondiscriminatory taxes, that cargo can not be taxed as personal property, which normally carries a much higher rate anyway. (In Norfolk, it is $4 on each $100 of assessed valuation.)
 Forst agreed in January, but could not be reached for comment Wednesday.
 In Portsmouth, however, where stored imported automobiles attracted Forst's attention in January as a possible subject of taxation, Revenue Commissioner Robert G. Esleeck said he personally hopes that a local tax can be applied.
 "If the Supreme Court dropped it in our laps, we should take advantage of it," Esleeck said.
 He would prefer a local tax "because the cities have been screaming for money, and I think we've got to do something to get off real estate and personal property."
 "We need it. We need it bad," Esleeck said of the revenue such a tax would produce.

 dependence of the judiciary is imperiled by inflation. If this novel theory had merit, any citizen might file a Fifth Amendment claim on the grounds that he had been deprived of property without due process of law. To borrow from Frankfurter's opinion, the complaining judges are "trivializing" a great clause.
 It is probably true that most of the 650 federal judges could earn higher incomes in private practice, but it is notable that only seven have resigned since 1970 for this reason. The bench has not been treated badly. The district judges got a raise in 1969 from $30,000 to $40,000; this was further increased to $42,000 last fall. Judges pay nothing toward a retirement program that permits them to retire at 65 with full pay after only 15 years on the bench. The program reportedly is equal to an annuity of $200,000.
 It is evident, as the suit insists, that between 1969 and 1975, their $40,000 salaries diminished in value. Every other person on a fixed income was in the same boat. The judges' relief, if they have it coming, lies not with fellow judges and giddy constructions, but with the conscience of the Congress.

Error Cost Him Year In Prison

By MARGARET GENTRY
 Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government called it a simple clerical mistake, "a bureaucratic error," but it cost Louis R. Altmark more than a year of his life behind bars.
 Justice Department officials laid out the story Wednesday and said they'll consider "what could or should be done to compensate" for the mistake which forced Altmark to serve a year and five days longer than his 30-month prison sentence for auto theft.
 Altmark, 41, was released Monday from the federal penitentiary in Atlanta immediately after prison officials discovered and verified that the error had happened.
 "We were chagrined," said Michael Aun, spokesman for the Federal Bureau of Prisons. "I was horrified," said U.S.

District Judge Newell Edenfield of Atlanta, who sentenced Altmark and learned of the error in a meeting with prison officials Monday.
 Justice Department officials will review the case "with an eye toward what could or should be done for possible redress of what happened to this man," said spokesman

Dean St. Dennis. He said the department wants to officially notify Altmark of the mistake, but hasn't been able to reach him.
 In the past, Aun said, federal prisoners mistakenly have been jailed for a day or two longer than their sentences but bureau officials can't recall any previous mistake of this magnitude.

Altmark was sentenced on Jan. 7, 1972, to a five-year term for stealing a 1964 Pontiac, which he attempted to sell to a stranger on a street in Atlanta.
 Edenfield later cut the sentence in half, to 2½ years, but cannot recall why. The judge thinks he sent Altmark a notice of his action.

It's not clear whether Altmark received the information, but there's no question that prison officials were notified.
 The information was recorded in Altmark's file at the prison, but it was not added to a summary card attached to the file folder. So no one in authority at the prison realized on Feb. 18, 1975, that Altmark was supposed to go free on that date.
 In addition to the 30 months, he was serving about seven months for violating the terms of his release from a previous prison sentence.
 Altmark apparently never questioned the length of his sentence and "we're puzzled about that," said Aun. If Altmark knew his sentence had been cut, "we don't know why on earth he didn't raise a fuss."

Three Utilities Directed Plan For Peak-Pricing

RALEIGH (AP)—The North Carolina Utilities Commission has ordered the three electric utilities which serve the state to begin preparing plans on a peak-load system of pricing electricity.

The commission, in taking tentative steps Wednesday toward establishing such a system, said it wants to see a number of plans and proposals from each company within a year.

Under peak pricing, customers would be charged more for electricity used during daily hours of heavy demand and less for the power used during hours of low demand. Theoretically, it would reduce the peaks in the total demand for power and thereby reduce the need for expensive new generating plants.

The three utilities are Duke Power Co., Carolina Power & Light Co. and Virginia Electric and Power Co.

The commission ordered the companies to tell it within four months what can be done to offer peak prices to the relatively small group of customers which now have meters capable of measuring power use by time of day. Almost all of these meters are used by large industrial and commercial customers. The meters are too expensive for the average residence.

Tenney I. Deane, a member of the commission, said, "The cost of metering is the key to the whole thing. We don't know the answers. No one does. That's what we're trying to find out."

The commission said hearings held in December on peak pricing had convinced it that the concept has the potential to reduce peaks in electricity demand.

"Whether peak-load pricing can be socially and economically justified in a real-world situation is a question to which this commission seeks an answer," the order said.

The plans requested by the commission would outline the companies' ideas of possible ways to immediately implement peak pricing for all customers; to test it on a sampling of their customers; or to make it available to customers on a voluntary basis. The companies' cost estimates and recommendations would be included in the plans.

The commission order requires the utilities to begin selling the more sophisticated meters to those customers who request them.

The order would not immediately affect rates for any electric consumers.

State Sen. McNeill Smith, D-Guilford, a leading proponent of peak pricing, said he was delighted that the commission was "moving in the right direction." He added that the experimental implementation of peak pricing might not be a fair test. Smith said the concept would not work properly unless consumers were assured that it was going to be put into use permanently.

"Once it's clear that it's going to be done permanently, millions of customers will make individual decisions that will make it work like it's supposed to," he said.

Spokesmen for the state's power companies were not immediately available for comment.

N.C. Ballots Windblown

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. (AP)—Scattered about by the winds, several thousand official ballots for North Carolina's March 23 presidential primary made an early appearance in a South Rocky Mount neighborhood last weekend.

But election officials recovered all but about 400.

The chairman of the Nash County Board of Elections, T. E. Ricks, the board's executive secretary and a platoon of neighborhood youngsters helped in the roundup of the ballots.

Election officials realized that a carton containing 18,000 of the ballots was missing when a woman found about 150 of them on her porch and notified authorities.

State Elections Director Alex Brock said Wednesday election fraud was not involved. He said the ballots were stolen from a local bus station while in transit and discarded by the thieves after they discovered what they had taken.

Brock said the state board would be waiting for a written report on the incident before taking any action. Even then, he said, reprinting the ballots may not be necessary because of secret precautions election officials take to protect against ballot-box stuffing.

Patty Is Depicted As A 'Creature Of The Surface'

By TONY LEDWELL
Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A psychiatric portrait of Patricia Hearst depicts her as a politically naive "creature of the surface" who experimented with drugs as a curious, restive teen-ager and made no effort to deceive mind-probing experts after her underground odyssey. "Miss Hearst really simply didn't lie," said Dr. Martin Orne, a University of Pennsylvania psychiatrist who specializes in detecting simulated stories. He testified for the defense Wednesday at the newspaper heiress' trial for bank robbery. Orne's statement drew a sharp reprimand from U.S. Dist. Judge Oliver J. Carter who, acting on a prosecution objection, told the jurors that such a comment was "an invasion of your province." Orne, hired by defense attorney F. Lee Bailey to examine Miss Hearst, was scheduled to resume his testimony today. Earlier, Dr. L.J. West testified there was "no way" Miss Hearst could have faked her responses to an extensive battery of tests and interviews designed to determine the authenticity of her story. West, one of three psychiatrists appointed by the court to determine Miss Hearst's competence to stand trial, also conducted further tests and testified for the defense. The other two court-appointed psychiatrists have not testified. When Orne flatly affirmed the truth of Miss Hearst's account to psychiatrists of fear and abuse at the hands of the Symbionese Liberation Army, assistant U.S. Atty. David Bancroft protested. After a brief conference at the bench with the opposing attorneys, Carter told all participants that only the verdict could determine whether Miss Hearst is telling the truth.

Turning to the jury, the judge said, "You and you alone have to make this ultimate decision and no psychiatrist, no lawyer or anybody else should invade that province." Orne and West, a professor of psychiatry at the University of California at Los Angeles, agreed that the defendant was fed subtle traps during their interviews. Although she had a patchy memory, both experts said, they never discerned a hint of fabrication in the more than 30 hours they spent with her separately. The defense has attempted to portray Miss Hearst in psychiatric testimony as a victim of mental torture, driven by fear to retreat into a false personality, first as the revolutionary "Tania," then as the mysterious "Pearl." The prosecution maintains that Miss Hearst was won over to the cause of the SLA and participated willingly in a bank robbery two months after her kidnapping by the terrorist group. West conceded on cross-examination that Miss Hearst was depressed prior to her Feb. 4, 1974, kidnapping, an independent spirit in search of an identity. The prosecution contends she found that identity as a soldier in the terrorist ranks of the SLA. West heatedly argued that she was a normal, confused teen-ager when she was abruptly inducted against her will into that alien environment. Bancroft extracted information that Miss Hearst attended five schools in six years and was almost expelled from one parochial school "for telling a nun to go to hell." She was described by some teachers as "detached, disdainful and self-centered," according to Bancroft, and was portrayed by her one-time fiance, Steven Weed, as having "a capacity for sarcasm that was unparalleled."

West defended what he suggested where routine youthful excesses and dismissed Miss Hearst's SLA tapes professing allegiance to the group as propaganda similar to that uttered by prisoners of war. West, who had been on the stand since Monday, said Weed told him that Miss Hearst was an occasional user of marijuana. Weed mentioned such use of marijuana in his recent book about their time together. "My understanding is that Mr. Weed was conducting experiments with marijuana and that he introduced the defendant to it and she had smoked it occasionally," he said.

In response to a another question, West added, "She had been given by Mr. Weed on several occasion drugs which she was told were ... LSD and mescaline. I inquired what her effects had been and couldn't determine whether she ever had LSD. But the experiences she recounted on mescaline made me think she actually had been given mescaline." Miss Hearst turned toward her parents sitting in the front row and shook her head negatively.

West also said Weed told him that Miss Hearst badgered him into trying LSD. Weed was not called as a witness in the trial. Bancroft asked if such actions justified West's conclusion that Miss Hearst was "a naive schoolgirl." He said the phrase referred to "political naivete" and offered to cite statistics on teenage drug experimentation to prove the defendant's actions were on a par with her peers. He said that Miss Hearst was so politically barren that when the SLA forced her to embrace the name "Tania" they were working on "a creature of the surface — all form and no substance."

He said the terrorists had to "stuff" the rhetoric into her. Bancroft attempted to question West about Miss Hearst's activities between September 1974 and her arrest last Sept. 18. The defendant took the 5th Amendment 42 times when she was asked about matters relating to that year. West called it the "Pearl" era, after a name given Miss Hearst by SLA member Emily Harris, but gave sketchy answers and offered no new clues about the "blank year." Defense attorneys say testimony about Miss Hearst's activities during that time could lead to further indictments or retaliation from terrorist groups.

The area gets its electricity from run-down generators borrowed from the Army. Entertainment is from week-old television re-runs piped in from California. Ruth said in a recent interview in Washington that he inherited budget problems that have led him to seek an extra $11 million from Congress to get through this fiscal year. NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market edged upward in active trading today, continuing its struggle to reach the 1,000 plateau in the Dow Jones industrial average.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up 1.57 at 996.14, and gainers held a 3-2 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The Dow has reached 1,000 twice before in U.S. stock market history—in January of 1966 and the winter of 1972-73.

On Tuesday morning it rose into the 990s, and has been wavering around 995 since.

Analysts said hopes for further progress in the market's early-1976 upsurge seemed to get a lift from anticipation of a strong showing in the government's index of leading economic indicators for January. The figures are expected Friday morning.

Stock brokers' shares posted some further gains, encouraged by the sharp rise in stock prices and trading volume in recent weeks.

Merrill Lynch climbed 3/8 to 31 1/2; Bache Group gained 1/4 to 13 1/2, and Donaldson Lufkin & Jenrette was up 3/4 to 6 1/2.

Bright quarterly earnings reports attracted buyers to Deere & Co., up 1 1/2 to 66, and U.S. Shoe, ahead 2 1/2 to 31 1/2.

The NYSE's composite common-stock index picked up .07 to 54.53 in the first hour.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index climbed .37 to 105.62.

Denies Story Of Kennedy Affair

WINGATE, N.C. (AP) — Kenneth P. O'Donnell, appointments secretary to the late President John F. Kennedy, has denied that Kennedy had an affair with Mary Meyer as reported earlier this week by a national magazine.

"Mary Meyer was a lovely girl whom the President had known for several years," O'Donnell said Tuesday. "They were social friends but Mrs. Meyer never came in the back door of the White House. Every time she came to the White House ... Jackie Kennedy was there."

Warns Of Doubled Cigarette Prices

FLORENCE, S.C. (AP)—A bill now before the U.S. Congress would push the price of cigarettes to nearly $1 a pack, farmers at the 18th annual Flue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corp. meeting in Florence were warned.

Several speakers, including El Anderson of the Tobacco Growers Information Committee and South Carolina Farm Bureau president Harry Bell, labeled the bill "preposterous, insidious and a veiled attempt at prohibition."

The bill would tax cigarettes on an escalating scale according to how much tar and nicotine they contain.

Anderson said the bill could add as much as 50 cents tax to every pack of cigarettes by 1980. He urged the approximately 225 farmers present to contact their representatives to show their alarm at this and other proposed tobacco tax legislation.

As for the 1976 flue-cured tobacco forecast, the farmers got some good news and some bad. They were told that production costs are expected to drop from last year's record high, but that higher acreage rents might offset any savings.

Other good news was that cigarette production was up 18 per cent, but tobacco was up only five per cent. That means cigarette manufacturers are using less tobacco per cigarette.

However, co-op general manager Fred G. Bond said the overall 1976 outlook is "optimistic."

Disarm A Bomb Outside Lounge
GASTONIA (AP) — A bomb made of gasoline and dynamite blasting caps was found at the front door of the Bridge Club Lounge just outside Gastonia Wednesday. Authorities said it had come within eight minutes of exploding before the timing device snagged.

The area around the lounge was roped off, and eastbound traffic was stopped briefly, while officials disarmed the bomb. It consisted of a five-gallon can filled with gasoline and oil connected with wires to a clock, a flashlight battery and the blasting caps.

One of the owners, Mike Simmons, discovered the bomb when he went to the club to wake up a friend, Donny Cantrell, who had been staying in the cement-block building. Simmons and another man from Gastonia, Ralph Vernon, bought the lounge five weeks ago.

Greene Central Moves Into 2nd

SNOW HILL — Greene Central moved into second place in the Eastern Carolina Conference last night taking a 58-44 win over the Firebirds of Southern Nash.

The win put the Rams over .500 overall and gave them an 8-5 conference record. They close the regular season Friday hosting D. H. Conley.

Southern Nash's girls clinched at least a tie for first on the girls side of the ledger with a 57-49 come-from-behind win over the Ewes. The Lady Firebirds rallied from a 12-point fourth period deficit to get the victory.

Greene Central's girls took the initial lead, 10-6, and built it to 24-15 at halftime.

Hooker added 12. Greene Central's boys led through the first three periods but they did not lose it in the end. The Rams roared out, 17-9 in the first and with another 17 in the second quarter made it 34-16 at intermission.

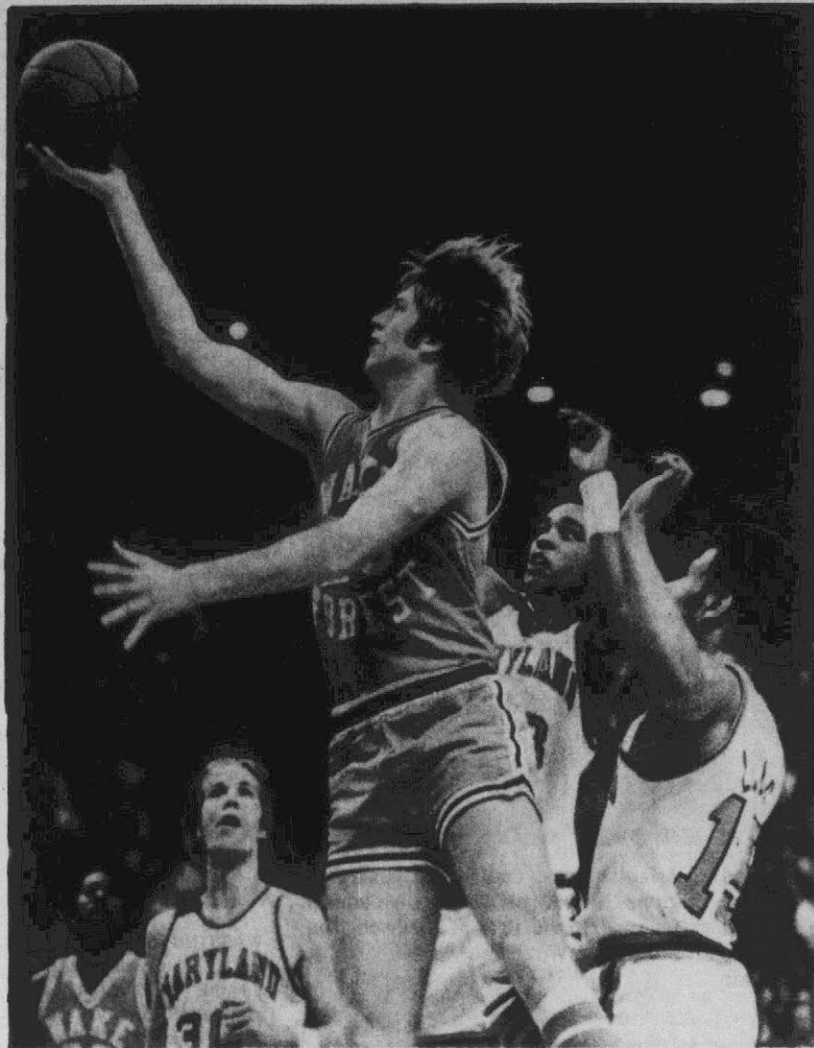

Greene Central added one third period point to the margin but Southern Nash got it back in the fourth, 17-16.

Richie Murray led the Firebirds with 13 and Walter Williams had 11. Marvin Rouse led the Rams with 23 and Nelson Edwards had 14.

Jaguars Claw Aycock, 71-51

PIKEVILLE—Keno Farrow's 20 points led the Farmville Central Jaguars to a 71-51 rout of C.B. Aycock last night as both teams began preparing for next week's conference tournament.

The Jaguars also won the girls' game, 46-43, as the Lady Jaguars tightened their hold on fourth. The Jaguars had a tough time getting the win as the lead sea-sawed back and forth the whole game.

Farmville got the lead in the first period, 9-8, but Aycock dumped in 18 points in the second quarter to forge ahead, 26-20.

Farmville Central cut two points off the lead in the third period and won the game with a 13-6 fourth.

Jennifer Counterman led the Lady Jaguars with 17. Helen Jones and Sue Cobb each scored 15 for the Lady Falcons.

North Pitt has clinched the Eastern Carolina title and has one game left. The girls are tied for third with Farmville Central.

In the girls game, North Lenoir jumped out to a 13-6 lead but the Big Orange knocked two off it by halftime to trail, 27-22.

Both Conley and Rose have enough grapplers entered to make a bid for the state title if they can finish high enough in the individual weight classes. Conley was among the top five teams last year.

Representing Conley will be Alton Crandell, the sectional winner at 108 pounds; Floyd

Conley Hands Another Loss To Falling A-G

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer

HOLLYWOOD — Rick Mobley's 24 points and 12 rebounds led the D. H. Conley Vikings to a 59-52 victory over Ayden-Grifton in the next-to-last regular season basketball game for both teams.

A-G took the girls contest routing Conley, 56-25. The difference in the game came in the field goals hit by the Vikings. They sank 24 while A-G hit 20. But the Vikings took a lot of shots to get those 24 to fall in. They let fly 55 times for a fair 43 percent while A-G hit 20 of 57 for 34 percent.

The rebounding also a factor was close, 39-38, for the Vikes as was the free throw shooting 12-11 for the Chargers but the Vikings were able to get three and four rebounds at a time to get that many more shots off.

A-G fell behind under a blazing Mobley string of three buckets in the first minute and a half. The Chargers got on the boards with a free shot and two buckets, one each by Frankie Dail and Mike Teuchy, at the end of the first period cut the lead to 13-9.

The Vikings took the first three points of the second frame but A-G began one of many comebacks on a bucket by Willie Forbes with 6:59 to go.

Five points later, Vern Davenport tied it, 16-16, with a tap-in and Paul Ricciarelli put the Chargers ahead with a free throw, 17-16.

The lead was brief as the Vikings went back up by one on a jumper by Bryan Mills. Neither team could gain control until James Peterson scored from the lane with two seconds left in the half giving Conley a 24-23 edge.

A-G regained the lead momentarily on Forbes' drive after the tap of the second half. Joey Baggett bombed two long shots in and Conley never trailed after getting a 28-25 lead.

Conley steadily increased the margin until it reached 11, 40-29.

The Chargers host Aycock Friday. In the girls' game, the Chargerettes shot down the Valkyries in the first quarter and buried them in the second. A-G jumped out to a 12-6 lead and led by Audrey McCarter's six points and Karen Haseley's 11, the girls coasted only to a 29-15 lead at halftime.

Conley only managed two Alice Costin buckets in the third period as A-G increased its lead to 41-19. The final frame saw the Lady Chargers add 18 more points to the difference.

Haseley had a season high 22 points for the Chargerettes scoring most of them in lay-ups. Cindy Potter scored 12 and McCarter 10. Costin led the Valkyries with 18.

Conley closes the season Friday at Greene Central.

Irish Finally Win In Dayton

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

For years, Notre Dame's basketball team has been fighting an uphill battle at the Dayton University Arena.

But the Fighting Irish finally turned the one-way street around Wednesday night.

The Irish, who seemingly have been successful everywhere else but at Dayton, managed to win their first game ever on the Flyers' home court — an excruciating 85-79 victory that left COACH Digger Phelps wrung out.

"I'm just happy to win here," said Phelps. "We were well prepared and our nine guys did the job."

Particularly, Adrian Dantley did the job with his 30 points and Don Williams did one also with two crucial free throws in the waning minutes.

In other top college games, third-ranked Rutgers whipped William & Mary 100-90; 10th-ranked Maryland turned back Wake Forest 105-91 and No. 16 Western Michigan beat Kent State 73-63.

Notre Dame took the lead for good on Williams' two free throws with less than four minutes to play. Johnny Davis of Dayton was the game's most explosive player with 38 points. The victory boosted Notre Dame's record to 21-4 and virtually locked up a bid to the NCCA playoffs.

Mike Dabney scored a career-high 33 points, pacing Rutgers over William & Mary. The Indians were intimidated by the powerful Scarlet Knights early in the game, allowing Rutgers to streak to a 22-8 lead with 11:39 left in first half. But the Indians cut the deficit to 35-34 on a jumper by Billy Harrington. Rutgers, 24-0, one of only two unbeaten major college teams, pulled back out to a 50-41 lead at the half on a 13-5 scoring spree and controlled the game the rest of the way.

William & Mary's Ron Satterthwaite scored 23 points and Billy Harrington had 14.

John Lucas scored 22 of his 24 points as Maryland rolled to a 55-36 halftime lead and went on to whip Wake Forest. Lucas connected on eight of 12 shots from the floor as the Terps sank 65 per cent of their attempts in the first half, en route to posting their 20th victory of the season. Maryland has a 6-5 record in the ACC, accounting for all of its losses in league play.

Tom Cutter scored 26 points as Western Michigan defeated Kent State for its 12th Mid-American Conference victory in 13 games.

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Rodney McKeever of The Citadel, a 6-foot junior who's the only repeater from last year, is the top vote-getter and honorary captain of the All-Southern Conference basketball team.

On the basis of two points for a first-team vote and one for second team, McKeever received 130 points to 103 for his closest competitor, 6-foot-10 freshman Jim Strickland of Furman, in balloting by league coaches and the Southern Conference Media Association.

Three-time defending champion Furman, which finished seventh in the regular season and was only 9-17 over-all, placed a second player on the team, league scoring leader Ray Miller, a 6-foot-5 junior who transferred from junior college.

Also chosen to the seniorless team were 6-foot-3 sophomore swing man Ron Carter of Virginia Military Institute, which finished first in the regular season standings, and 6-foot-5

McKeever is actually the "old man" of the team in terms of play in the conference. He was named to the all-conference freshman team his first year and has been an all-conference choice the last two years.

He's second in the league in scoring with a 20.4-point average, set a school season record with 113 assists and ranked sixth in field goal accuracy with 52.8 per cent.

Miller is averaging 21.6 points and 7.3 rebounds per game. He ranks sixth in rebounding, a department in which Strickland is the leader with 10.9 per game. Strickland also is averaging 15.2 points.

Carter, who alternated between back and front court in VMI's most successful season in history, is scoring at an 18.3-point clip—third in the league—and is eighth in rebounding with 6.4 per game.

Lowenhaupt is fifth in scoring with an average of 16.3 per game and seventh in rebounding with a 6.5 average.

Four of the five are in the top 10 in field goal accuracy—Strickland third at 55.1 per cent, Carter fourth at 54 per cent, McKeever sixth and Lowenhaupt ninth at 52.8 per cent.

Six players were named to the second team because of a tie for the second back court spot between junior Kevin Eastman of Richmond and freshman Darryl Robinson of Appalachian State.

The other back court man is junior Ronnie Satterthwaite of William and Mary, a first-team choice last year who missed several games during the season with an ankle injury and a brief absence from the squad due to "personal reasons."

Second-team front court performers are juniors Will Bynum of VMI and Jeff Butler of Richmond and the only senior of the first 11 choices, Earl Garner of East Carolina.

Nuggets In Romp

By The Associated Press

Denver is running away from the rest of the American Basketball Association but the Nuggets slowed things down and ran away from the Indiana Pacers 122-110 Wednesday night.

"We were trying hard to create plays instead of running hard," said Coach Larry Brown. "When we kept the tempo down we could play better and set up the shots."

The Nuggets' Dan Issel set up enough shots to score a game-high 35 points.

Denver held a four-point margin when the fourth quarter began but baskets by Bobby Jones, Issel, Claude Terry and Ralph Simpson helped build the margin to eight points early in the fourth quarter.

The Pacers were led by Billy Knight's 33 points. Denver also got 26 points from rookie David Thompson and 19 points from Simpson. Mike Flynn added 20 for Indiana.

By winning, Denver opened a six-game lead over the runner-up New York Nets, who bowed to the San Antonio Spurs 116-106. In another game, the Virginia Squires downed the Spirits of St. Louis 105-96.

Ryan Begins Working Arm

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

ALVIN, Tex. (AP) — California Angels pitcher Nolan Ryan, adjudged to have the fastest fastball in the history of baseball, lives here with his wife, two kids, a Labrador retriever that chases tennis balls and an English pointer currently nursing a broken hip.

There also are about 10 head of beefmaster cattle out back that Ryan tends daily, including three bulls he's fattening up for a cattle sale in South Texas.

Interrupting this relaxed country scene is a question Ryan and every batter he'll face this season would like answered: Did surgery to his elbow last September take anything away from Ryan's 100.9 miles per hour pitching arm?

"When it happens (loss of velocity) it will be a great disappointment to me," said Ryan, taking a break from chores and pre-spring training workouts. "That's one of the hardest things for an athlete to cope with when he doesn't have the talent he once had."

And Ryan's most astonishing talent, the one that sets him apart from other major league pitchers, is the lightning speed he gets into his fastball. Some major leaguers have said they actually fear going to the plate against Ryan.

Ryan's tendency to wildness doesn't calm the batters nor does the fact that in 1974 a timing device clocked Ryan's fastball at 100.9 m.p.h., bettering the 28-year-old record of 98.6 set by former Cleveland pitcher Bob Feller.

Ryan compiled a 14-12 record last season and pitched his fourth career no-hitter to join Sandy Koufax in sharing the major league record. But his season ended prematurely in early September due to painful bone chips in his pitching arm.

Dr. Joseph King, who performed surgery last September, gave Ryan the okay to start working out on Jan. 14 and Ryan says he feels as good as in any previous year at this time.

Ryan says he's felt no pain since starting to work out last month and experienced only brief swelling early in his training.

While Ryan enjoys taking his English pointer bird hunting and watching his four-year-old son Reid toss a tennis ball to the retriever, he's anxious to see a quick settlement to the current player-owner contract dispute and get to spring training.

"I don't see how a delay can do anything but hurt me," Ryan said. "I'm fortunate to be in a warm climate where I can work but no amount of work here is as good as being at spring training."

Guess Who Is Favored

ROCKINGHAM, N. C. (AP) — Opening time trials were scheduled today for the 11th annual Carolina 500 and, as usual, Richard Petty and David Pearson were among the favorites for the pole position.

Sunday's race over the one-mile North Carolina Motor Speedway will have a field of 36 cars and a purse of $130,750, and three drivers — Petty, Pearson and Cale Yarborough — who have dominated this track for the last three seasons.

The speedway has two events a year, the Carolina 500 in the spring and the American 500 in the fall.

Yarborough, Chevrolet driver from Timmonsville, S. C., won both events last year, bringing his victories to three on this track.

Pearson, Mercury driver from Spartanburg, S. C., has won here four times, including both events in 1973. And Dodge-driving Petty, of Level Cross, holds six victories on this track.

Challengers are plentiful, including Bobby Allison in a Mercury, Buddy Baker in a Ford, Dave Marcis in a Dodge, and Indianapolis 500 winner A. J. Foyt and English driver David Hobbs, both in Chevrolets.

Foyt, a U. S. Auto Club champion, has scored seven victories on the Grand National circuit and he was the longest leader — 66 laps — in the recent Daytona 500 won by Pearson.

Bobby Isaac, who hasn't been able to land a first-class ride since his surprise "retirement" at Talladega, Ala., in 1973, will make one of his rare stock car racing appearances in this event.

Isaac will pilot a Chevrolet owned by Richard Howard. The car was prepared for this race by Cotton Owens and Neil "Soapy" Castles.

Isaac says he wants to "shoot for the top again."

Terps Crush Deacons; Clemson Nips Devils

By The Associated Press

Maryland still has a chance for second seeding in the Atlantic Coast Conference championship basketball tournament which starts next Thursday at the Capital Centre in Landover, Md.

The Terps retained it by defeating Wake Forest 105-91 at home Wednesday night to bring their ACC record to 6-5. To finish second they must beat Virginia at home Saturday night and then hope that North Carolina State loses to Wake Forest at the same time in games ending the regular season.

That would leave both Maryland and N.C. State with 7-5 conference marks. Maryland would get second-seeding because of its two victories over the State Wolfpack, each by 18 points.

The second-seeded team will play the last-place seed in the first game of the tournament. Then two other first-round games will follow in late afternoon, No. 3 against No. 6, and 4 against 5.

North Carolina has clinched the regular-season title and the first-round bye that goes with it.

Other games Saturday which will end the regular season are Duke at North Carolina, and Clemson home to Florida Southern. ACC teams are idle tonight and Friday night.

If two teams tie at the end of the regular season and have split their season series, they will draw for the position. If one of them won the series 2-0 it gets the higher place. If three tie for a position, a draw is automatic, regardless of the season series. A draw would be held Sunday at ACC headquarters in Greensboro, N.C.

Maryland, which had lost to Wake Forest 96-93 six weeks ago, went over the 100-point mark for the seventh time this season. John Lucas scored 22 of his 24 points in the first half, which ended with the Terps leading 55-36. Skip Brown led Wake Forest with 26 points, 14 of them in the final seven minutes after the game was all but over.

Wake Forest fell to 4-7 in the league and a tie with Virginia for sixth place.

Clemson went into fourth place at 5-7 by holding on to win 90-89 at Duke despite a career-high 42 points by Tate Armstrong.

It was the first time the Tigers had won in Cameron Indoor Stadium.

Clemson led 65-54 with 12 minutes to play, but Duke, with Armstrong hot, took several one-point leads before the end. Clemson wrested the lead back each time. Armstrong had 25 points in the second half. Tree Rollins was high for Clemson with 22 points.

Duke is last in the ACC at 3-8.

Virginia brought its all-games mark to 15-10 by beating Virginia Tech 79-75 in overtime at home. Four free throws in the last 23 seconds of the second extra period by Billy Langlo provided the margin.

Wally Walker had 27 points, Marc Iavaroni 20 and Langlo 17 for the Cavaliers. Duke Thorpe had 27 for Tech, now 20-6.

Indians, Spiders Take Licks In Tune-Ups For Tournament Play

By The Associated Press
The last two Southern Conference basketball teams have gotten in their final licks before the opening of the championship tournament Saturday night, and both might have wished for a happier ending.

But William and Mary's Indians, who finished second in the regular season, gave Rutgers' third-ranked unbeaten Scarlet Knights all the battle they wanted Wednesday night before going down 100-90.

Richmond's Spiders, who'll go into the tournament as the No. 3 seed, weren't as impressive, taking a 109-84 mauling at West Virginia. The defeats dropped the Indians to 14-12 over-all and the Spiders to 12-13.

Now it's on to Saturday night when Virginia Military's top-seeded Keydets will be at home against Davidson's Wildcats, William and Mary will entertain Furman's three-time champion Paladins, Richmond will play host to The Citadel's Bulldogs and East Carolina's Pirates will be at home against Appalachian State's Mountaineers.

Apparently intimidated at the start, William and Mary fell behind Rutgers 22-8 in the first 6:21 before cutting the gap to 35-34 on a jumper by freshman Billy Harrington, who hit seven of eight shots and finished with 14 points.

When the Scarlet Knights went up 71-55 with 12:50 left, it was Ron Satterthwaite—who finished with 23 points—who keyed an 11-2 William and Mary run that cut it to 73-66 in the next 2½ minutes.

Satterthwaite got it down to 80-76 with a jumper with 7:12 left, and it was 82-78 with just over six minutes remaining before Mike Dabney and Phil Sellers led a late Rutgers surge that put it away. Dabney finished with 33 points and Sellers with 22.

"We have never played a better, quicker team. They are a great, great team. But I think they found out that we have a few players, too," said William and Mary Coach George Balanis.

Rutgers Coach Tom Young said, "William and Mary played a helluva game. They got two guards hot, and when you run into that on the road, it's going to cause you trouble. We were lucky it didn't cause us more trouble than it did."

Although the Scarlet Knights shot 60 per cent from the floor to 46.9 per cent for the Indians, Young said, "We really didn't play a great game. But we played well when we had to, in a place where it's hard to play well."

It was a good tuneup for the Indians' scrap with Furman, which has been playing well enough of late to be labeled the darkhorse going into the conference tournament.

West Virginia rolled to a 57-41 halftime lead over Richmond and never was troubled again by the Spiders as Tony Robertson fired in 34 points, Stan Boskovich added 24 and Russell Chapman 20. The Mountaineers shot 60.5 per cent from the floor.

The Spiders, who hit only 44 per cent, were led by Kevin Eastman with 21 points and Mike Morton with 17.

Carbide Handed First Defeat

Union Carbide suffered its first loss, but Happy Store and the Crow's Nest kept up the battle in their division in the Adult Basketball League last night.

In the opening game at West Greenville, Johnny's Mobile Homes took a 79-71 win over Po-Boys. Po-Boys held a 34-33 halftime lead. Gary Rabon led Johnny's with 23 points, while Mike Pierick had 18, Joe Caldwell had 15, George Kriedel had 12 and Greg Pace had 11. Charlie Jenkins and Moses Joyner each had 14 to pace Po-Boys. Eddie Chance added 13, and Bone Wooten and Linwood Brown each had 10.

Aldridge-Southerland Realty upset Union Carbide, 57-55, in the second game. A-S held a 22-15 lead at the half. Walter Jessup led A-S with 18, and Lindsay Hardee with 14 and Mike Aldridge 13. Union Carbide was led by Jimmy Sutton with 18, while Tommy Roach had 13, Phil Page, 10, and Marvin Hardy, 10. Stewart's Sandwiches beat the Henrahan Hawks, 72-63, in the third contest, overcoming a 44-35 Hawks lead at the half. Cotton Nicholson led Stewart's with 24 points, while Bill Kuykendall had 18, and Tommy Jordan had 12. Allan Jackson had 24, Billy Edwards, 15, and Phil Duffy, 12, for the Hawks.

In the first game at West Greenville, Smith's Hearing remained unbeaten with a 63-46 win over Empire Brush, moving from a 26-22 half time score. Randall Brooks led Smith's with 18, while Tom Henderson had 15, Jeff Daniels had 12 and Jim Curington had 11. James Mayo had 16 and Clifton Daniels 10 for Empire.

Carolina Telephone nipped Eaton, 52-51, in the second game.

Four Golfers Have Chance To Join Ranks Of Millionaires

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer
LAUDERHILL, Fla. (AP) — Four men — Miller Barber, Julius Boros, Frank Beard and Dave Hill — have the opportunity to join the ranks of pro golf's $1 million winners this week in the Tournament Players Championship.

At least one, Barber, is expected to make it. The odds are considerably longer on the others adding their names to the elite list of only nine men who have achieved that mark.

The 44-year-old Barber, a bald, paunchy veteran of 18 years of tour activity, needs only $889 to reach the plateau previously scaled only by Arnold Palmer, Billy Casper, Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino, Bruce Crampton, Gary Player, Tom Weiskopf, Gene Littler and Johnny Miller. A finish of 46th or better in this event would do it.

"I don't know if I'll make it this week or not," Barber said before teeing off today in the first round of this ambitious, $300,000 event that is billed as the championship of the touring players. "But it's just a matter of staying healthy and playing long enough."

It would be considerably more difficult for Boros, Beard and Hill.

The 55-year-old Boros, the placid, slow-moving, semi-retired "Ol' Man River" of the tour, needs $5,787. That would require a placing of 10th or better in the strongest field of the year. This is one of the year's two designated tournaments and, as such, all the game's leading players are required to compete.

And Boros has some physical problems. A pinched nerve in his neck has hampered the smooth, easy swing that has been his trademark for more than two decades of competitive tournament play.

"Some days it's bad, some days it's not so bad," said the two-time U.S. Open champion who lost in a playoff to Gene Littler last year in the Westchester Classic. "You can't tell till you go out and try it."

Beard and Hill have no such ailments, but their chances of reaching the $1 million mark are slim. Beard has $951,596 in winnings for his career and Hill has accumulated $944,312. The only way either can make it is to win the $60,000 first prize.

Arrayed against those hopefuls is a field that includes all the game's great names and all the previous $1 million winners. Chief among them, of course, is Nicklaus, with Miller and Ben Crenshaw — each a two-time winner this year — not far behind.

Other major threats include Player, Crampton, Hale Irwin, British Open champion Tom Watson, defending titleholder Al Geiberger and Trevino, who usually plays his best in Florida.

ABC-TV will provide national television coverage of portions of the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday.

Ramsay Mad, But Not That Mad

By The Associated Press
Jack Ramsay was ready to hit the referees with his bench, but not quite mad enough to tap his wallet for $1,000.

Ramsay complained vociferously that the Seattle SuperSonics were playing an illegal zone defense against his Buffalo Braves. But when it came time to decide whether he would file an official protest and give up $1,000 for the privilege, well, that was another matter.

"As poorly as we played, I don't know what benefit it would be to lodge a protest," Ramsay said after a 126-94 beating by the SuperSonics. "We got beaten so badly ..."

It didn't keep him from talking about Seattle's defensive tactics, however.

"The refs didn't call a zone that was obviously being played," the Buffalo coach said. "I couldn't believe they wouldn't acknowledge it during the game. Anyone who knows basketball and is watching knows Seattle played a zone."

Seattle Coach Bill Russell was noncommittal on the subject.

Actually, it wasn't the alleged zone defense that hurt the Braves, but a couple of high-powered performances by Fred Brown and Tom Burleson. Brown scored 31 points and Burleson had 29 points and 17 rebounds.

Mitchum Chosen To Head Drive

WASHINGTON, N. C. — The appointment of a Greenville banker and civic leader to serve as Greenville Chairman of a Highway 264 Association Membership Campaign was announced here today by James A. Hackney, III, the overall Campaign Chairman.

W. D. MITCHUM, Jr.

Hackney said William D. Mitchum, Jr., vice-president of Branch Banking and Trust Company of Greenville, had consented to serve as Greenville Chairman in the membership effort.

Thomas F. Taft, Greenville Attorney, serves as President of the Highway 264 Association which has as its principal goal, the development of the highway into a four lane, limited access highway from Zebulon to the Coast.

Mitchum is a leader in the Kiwanis Club and the Heart

Fund, from which he received an award as outstanding producer for his achievements as chairman of special events. He is an instructor for the American Institute of Banking and attends Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church.

"We are extremely pleased that Bill Mitchum has accepted our invitation to serve as chairman of our membership effort in Greenville," Hackney said today. "He is heading one of our 10 community campaigns along the route of Highway 264," the chairman explained.

Hackney said the membership effort will be among industry and business along the entire route of the highway.

Agency Eyes Affiliation

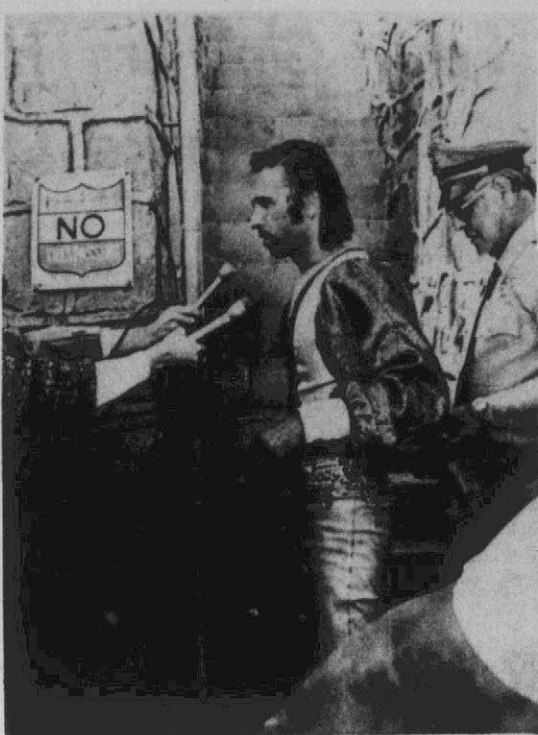

Volunteer Greenville is the first city government sponsored agency in the nation to be considered for affiliation with the National Center for Voluntary Action, Ms. M. J. Calhoun said here Tuesday night during a called meeting of the Board of Directors of Volunteer Greenville.

Ms. Calhoun, representative of the National Center for Voluntary Action and Assistant Director for the North Carolina Office of Citizen Participation was in Greenville Tuesday making a site visit for the consideration of Volunteer Greenville as an affiliate of the National Center for Voluntary Action.

Volunteer Greenville Director Susan Mescher and the Board of Directors were praised for their early successful efforts in making the body a productive force in the community.

Funded by the City of Greenville under the Department of Human Relations, the agency is in its initial year of service to the community.

The Treaty of Ghent, signed on Christmas Eve, 1814, formally ended the War of 1812.

Postal Consumer Protection Week Not Taken Lightly

"The week of February 23-28 has been designated by Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailar as Postal Consumer Protection Week to emphasize the importance of consumer protection and inform the public of its availability to users of the mail," Postmaster H. Lloyd Mills said.

"The Postal Service provides safeguards in the transportation of mail, against mail fraud and false representation, and provides assistance with mail-order and service problems, the Postmaster continued. Our consumer protection program works through the Inspection Service, Consumer Protection Office of the Law Department, the Judicial Office and The Consumer Advocate."

Working together these four departments resolve complaints of alleged mail-order swindles, when postal customers fail to receive merchandise ordered, refunds promised or find that the service or product purchased is not as advertised.

When a complaint is made, the Postal Service decides whether to investigate for possible commercial deception or to handle it informally as in cases where poor business practices are found to be the problem. Whatever the action, the customer is notified.

In cases when it is believed that false representation by mail exists, the Consumer Protection Office working with information obtained from postal inspectors initiates administrative proceedings to stop the mail in response to the alleged false representation.

If it is found following administrative proceedings that the mails are being used to promote schemes to obtain money by misrepresentation, the Judicial Officer issues a mail-stop order which results in the return of all subsequent mail to the senders, unless it is clear that the correspondence has nothing to do with the scheme.

Where violation of the Mail Fraud Statute is indicated, postal inspectors refer the case to the appropriate U.S. Attorney for consideration of criminal prosecution.

The Consumer Advocate provides the consumer with a strong voice in postal management in cases of delayed or lost mail, non-receipt of mail order purchases or refunds, extension of rural routes, delivery schedules and employee conduct.

"If you have any problems with the mails, come in and talk with me or a postal inspector. We want to help," Postmaster Mills added.

The road runner is the state bird of New Mexico.

Favors Changing Inheritance Law

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. L.H. Fountain, D-N.C. says changes in the federal inheritance tax law are needed "to help the family farm survive."

Fountain pointed out in a statement that when Congress passed the present inheritance tax law in 1942, it exempted the first $60,000 of an estate. He said this "was adequate to take care of most family farm inheritance problems."

However, with the rapid increase in value of farm land, the typical family farm in North Carolina now consists of about 105 acres of land, valued at about $66,990.

"The value of the land alone—not counting any other assets a farmer may have such as expensive machinery and personal possessions—is enough to guarantee the surviving members of the family a tax problem," Fountain said.

"The money is tied up in fixed assets which are part and parcel of the family farm, but the tax collector wants cash. And he wants it double-quick," the congressman added.

"What the present inheritance tax exemption provisions does is force the heirs to buy back the family farm from the government, or else sell out in a hurry and thus interrupt the continuity of ownership which has contributed so much to the success of American farming," Congress is now considering several provisions to change the inheritance tax law. Fountain said one favored by President Gerald Ford would defer payment of inheritance taxes on the first $300,000 of an estate. Then he would allow the widow or children 20 years in which to pay off the tax; meanwhile charging interest at the rate of 4 per cent per year.

"The President's proposal is a step forward, but it just doesn't go far enough," Fountain stated. "What is needed is an outright increase in the amount of exemption."

"If farmers are to be able to pass along the fruits of their labors to their survivors, the exemption should be at least doubled to $120,000," Fountain said. "And if at all possible, the exemption should be raised to $200,000. Doing so would help the family farm survive."

Friday is the most important day of the week in our fertilizer plant. That is the day we sample the fertilizers we made Monday thru Thursday and clean and adjust our plant for the next week's run.

Every lot of Morgan Quality Fertilizer is thoroughly sampled using methods recommended by the Fertilizer Institute and is analyzed to determine its exact nutrient content. In this way, we can be certain that there have been no mistakes made in manufacturing and can avoid having our errors become your problems.

Throughout our plant, Quality Control is an integral part of our normal work procedures. All incoming materials are sampled, analyzed, and size-matched for the best possible blends. Our formulating scales are tested weekly for accuracy and are checked with our bagging scales daily. Each lot of fertilizer is checked during manufacture, sampled and tested weekly, and inspected for sowability each month while in storage.

Morgan Quality Fertilizers are still being made and sold with the same genuine concern for product quality and customer satisfaction typical of our company throughout its sixty-five year history.

Moore's Creek Battle Brought Revolution To South

By SAM FOGG
 United Press International
 New England began the battle for freedom at a bridge at Concord. For the South, the first revolutionary test of arms came at a bridge over Widow Moore's Creek in the North Carolina swamps 200 years ago this month.

The fray on the morning of Feb. 27, 1776 lasted only three minutes and ended in a rout of forces loyal to King George III. It lacked the patriotic impact of a Concord or Bunker Hill but the victory by North Carolina militia and minutemen disrupted British plans for a military takeover of the southern colonies.

Events leading to the clash at the crossing of Moore's Creek 18 miles from Wilmington had been set in motion by North Carolina's Royal Gov. Josiah Martin late in 1775. Angered at the rising rebelliousness of his subjects which had forced him to take refuge aboard a British warship off Wilmington, Martin evolved a strategy whereby British regulars coming from New York and England would join forces with loyalists in the colony, restore the authority of the Crown and stamp out revolution in the entire South.

The patriots were equally angered at the bombardment and burning of Norfolk, Va., on orders of British Gov. Lord Dunmore and Martin's proclamation of Jan. 10 that rebellion must be put down with armed might.

The governor dispatched a brigadier general inland to recruit recently arrived Scots for a Royal Highland Emigrant Regiment along with others loyal to the King's cause.

The provisional colonial government countered by creating two regiments of militia under Col. James Moore of New Hanover County and Col. Robert Howe of Brunswick County and six battalions of minutemen, with Richard Caswell of New Bern and Alexander Lillington of Wilmington leading two of them.

Martin's emissary, Donald McDonald, rallied 1,600 Highlanders and Tory sympathizers at Cross Creek in mid-February, far short of the 4,000 that had been anticipated. Bearing their traditional claymores and dirks, they set out for the Cape Fear area to await a rendezvous with British redcoats.

Moore, an unsung hero of the American Revolution, cannily dispersed his minutemen and militia to block the move. Caswell at the head of 800 Rangers reached the Moore's Creek bridge above the confluence of the Black and Cape Fear rivers ahead of the loyalists and dug in.

Lillington and Col. John Ashe arrived with reinforcements on the night of Feb. 25 to swell the patriot forces to about 1,100 men plus two cannon known as Old Mother Covington and Her Daughter. Moore led his troops to the rear of the approaching Highlanders.

The body of Scottish loyalists arrived at the crossing before sunrise of Feb. 27 after a night march through swampy ground and creeks swarming with water moccasins. Their scouts had failed to detect either the solidly entrenched Americans or the fact that the main planks of the bridge had been removed and the supporting timbers greased with soft soap and tallow.

Against the advice of older soldiers, two hot-mettled captains, Alexander McLeod and Farquard Campbell, won permission to lead an assault on the bridge. Swinging Highland broadswords, 80 of their men stormed the creek.

The Americans opened fire with cannon and rifle and swan shot. Twenty-eight of the Highlanders were slain outright or mortally wounded, including the two captains. Others toppled into the stream and drowned. Between 20 and 30 were taken prisoner. The remainder plunged backward in retreat, spreading panic among the main force. It was all over in three minutes with the cost to the Americans one dead, one wounded.

Moore and his men completed the disaster for the British the next day by capturing more than 850 men including Brig. Gen. McDonald. Thirteen wagons, 350 muskets, 1,500 fowling pieces, two medicine chests and 15,000 pounds worth of gold fell into patriot hands.

By the time Gen. Clinton and Lord Cornwallis came ashore at Cape Fear in May with a contingent of British regulars, there were no loyalists to link up with and any campaign against the rebels in North Carolina was out of the question.

Clinton and the British set sail for Charleston, where still another defeat awaited them at the South Carolina port city.

Church Career Chosen By 3 In One Family

By KAY MCCARTHY
 OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — William Hare, his wife and children did not plan to become a family of Methodist ministers, but one by one they seem to be making the same choice.

"It's something the Lord has just led us into," said Mary Ellen Hare, whose husband spent 20 years in management and sales at General Electric before becoming a United Methodist minister a few years ago.

Now, Mrs. Hare has decided to earn her local minister's license. She is taking correspondence courses supervised by theology professors at Methodist church schools.

Their son, Kevin, 21, in the navy at San Diego, Calif., also wants to become a minister. He has started his studies with the hope of attending Oklahoma City University, affiliated with the Methodist church, and then entering a seminary.

"My local preacher's license will help me in 11 phases of my church work, in life as a person, and when my husband needs to call on me," Mrs. Hare said.

"I really haven't decided whether I want to do a lot of preaching or not. I just want to be there when needed, be prepared with the appropriate tools to step in and help in any way I can."

She said she will be able to assist in communion with the presence of a church elder, but she believes most of her work will be in Christian education and working with Methodist women's organizations.

Hare, 48, is associate minister at Grace United Methodist Church. He previously served Oklahoma churches at Crescent and Marshall.

Mrs. Hare, also 48, recalled how they told their three children five years ago that Hare wanted to leave his company and become a minister.

"When he decided to go to the seminary we sat the three kids down in 1970 and said, 'Okay, this is what we want to do. What do you say about it?'"

"Our older son said, 'I think it's great. I'm going in the Navy, so it's up to the younger ones.'"

Kevin, a high school junior, and their daughter, an eighth grader, approved.

"The kids have been very helpful and very supportive of everything we've done. Most teenagers think of going out and having a good time and spending a lot of money. We had to curtail expenses in high school," she said. "I think this helped with Kevin's decision. He saw how God worked in our lives to help other people."

Mrs. Hare said women have full rights in the United Methodist Church.

"In the Methodist Church women can do anything they want. In October, 1973, we had a United Methodist Women's Conference in Cincinnati. At a communion service there were only women Methodist ministers, 36 of them," she said. "This is something I like about the Methodist church. They do listen to us."

She said the family's life had undergone a deep spiritual change.

"We're just head and shoulders above when we were lay people," she said. "It's just a fascinating experience."

Lindbergh Case Movie Is Engrossing TV Fare

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — An engrossing dramatization of the kidnapping and murder of Charles A. Lindbergh's infant son nearly 44 years ago is coming up tonight on NBC.

It stars Cliff De Young as Lindbergh, Sian Barbara Allen as his wife, and Anthony Hopkins, who does a brilliant job as Bruno Hauptmann, the German-born carpenter who died in New Jersey's electric chair on April 3, 1936, for the kidnapping of the child.

Entitled "The Lindbergh Kidnapping Case," this three-hour show begins with newsreel clips of Lindbergh's historic flight in 1927 from New York to Paris and the adulation and honors it brought him.

Then the actors take over, depicting the tragedy from a stormy winter night in 1932, when their first-born child was kidnapped from their new home near Hopewell, N.J.

With the straight forwardness of a Police Gazette account, dramatist J. P. Miller recreates the case, using a sequence-of-events approach that starts with the horrified discovery by the family nurse that the child is missing.

The state police are summoned, followed by hordes of noisy, excited reporters trampling over whatever evidence may lie in the grounds around the Lindbergh home.

One even scrambles up a ladder to peer in the room from which the child was kidnapped, reminding me of Fred Allen's acid opinion that most reporters only think of humans as stories wrapped in skin.

The drama moves from scene to scene with workmanlike precision, telling the stories of major and minor figures in the tragedy and their place in it. The character sketches are largely one-dimensional — the show has 118 speaking roles, which tends to reduce character development — but good editing and taut direction help keep the program absorbing throughout.

Hauptmann's capture by New York police comes relatively late in the show. When he goes on trial in New Jersey, the scenes outside the courtroom are pure circus.

A radio reporter broadcasts news of the trial from his battle station in a courthouse men's room. Downstairs, a lady hawks "kidnap buttons" to commemorate the trial. Lindbergh arrives at the courthouse, gets a rousing cheer, has a coat button snipped off by a souvenir freak.

At night, the mob remains outside in the street, within earshot of Hauptmann's cell, chanting "Kill Hauptmann! Kill Hauptmann!"

He's convicted and twice granted stays of execution. When he's finally put in the electric chair at the state prison, one impatient citizen in a crowd outside the prison still shouts at a guard:

"Hey, what the hell's going on here? You gonna fry him or not?"

Although the program loses some impact by De Young's curiously wooden portrayal of Lindbergh, "The Lindbergh Kidnapping Case" is still strong, above average TV fare, fairly faithful to the sad facts of the case.

Plan Penalize Failure To Curtail Offspring

By PAUL CHUTKOW
Associated Press Writer
NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Acting to encourage sterilization, the Indian government has announced a plan to penalize government employees and Delhi residents who do not limit their families to two children.

The plan, similar to those the government is promoting in state assemblies across the country, also provides incentives to couples with one sterilized spouse or with one who has signed a pledge to undergo sterilization after having two children.

The penalties, which the government said would become effective "almost immediately," directly or indirectly curtail a couple's access to almost the entire range of government assistance — from government jobs and housing to loans, medical care, schools and drinking water.

The plan does not provide fines or imprisonment for couples who fail to comply, but legislation being drafted in other states does.

The West Bengal government is drafting a bill providing that if a couple has three children, one spouse has to be sterilized or face a fine, imprisonment or both.

The current birth rate in West Bengal is 38 per 1,000 population; the population is nearly 50 million, and a baby is born every 19 seconds.

About 22 million babies are now born annually in India, leading to an annual net population increase of 13 million. The population is now about 600 million, and Prime Minister Indira Gandhi has said the government wants measures taken to prevent it from growing to a billion by 1990.

The United States now has about 3.1 million births a year, down from 4.2 million in 1960. The population now totals 214 million, and the U.S. Department of Commerce predicts 250 million by 1990.

Eligible couples will receive preferential consideration for government jobs, both permanent and part-time.

New government employees with more than two children will have to get sterilized within two months of their appointments or lose their jobs.

Gov. Burrington Saw A Stormy Term

By Dr. H.G. Jones, Curator North Carolina Collection For The Associated Press
CHAPEL HILL (AP) — On February 26, 1723, the lords proprietors commissioned George Burrington of County Devon in England to be governor of North Carolina.

Within a year of his arrival in Edenton the following January, seven of ten members of Burrington's council appealed to the proprietors to remove him from office for "illegal proceedings."

Among the "illegal proceedings" were these: that he threatened to slit the nose, crop the ears, and blow up the house of the chief justice; that he broke in the windows of Thomas Parris's house and threatened to murder him; and that he did "beat batter bruise & wound & evilly treat Robert Route, the provost marshal.

These rather extraordinary acts on the part of the governor apparently were provoked, at least in part, by the president of the council, William Reed, and the chief justice, Christopher Gale, who had been running the colony and who didn't want to yield to Burrington's decisions.

The chief justice, Burrington said, was an ungrateful, perfidious scoundrel and an egregious sot. What he said about Reed wasn't written down. On the other hand, the governor himself was characterized by Joseph Castleton as a "damn rogue and villain."

Whatever else he was, Governor Burrington did not claim to be a diplomat. The chief justice sailed to England and helped persuade the lords proprietors to remove his antagonist. Back in the colony, the Assembly sided with Burrington, protesting strongly his dismissal and claiming that it had been the result of "many false & malicious Calumnies that have been raised against that gentleman (Burrington) by Persons of the most Vile Characters as well as Desperate fortunes."

The colony, the house said, had been "very happy" under Burrington's administration. Remaining in North Carolina, Burrington was a thorn in the side of the newly appointed governor, Sir Richard Everard, whom Burrington called "a calf's head, noodle, and an ape, who was no more fit to be Governor than Sancho Panza."

Considering the conflict between the factions in North Carolina, it is perhaps not surprising that seven of the eight lords proprietors decided to sell their shares of the colony to the British crown. North Carolina, therefore, became a royal colony in 1729.

Everard was allowed to remain governor for nearly two more years, but in the meantime Burrington sailed for England to defend his own name and to defame his arch-rival. He was successful, and early in 1731 he triumphantly returned as governor of North Carolina.

Armed with instructions from the crown and no longer depending upon the confidence of the Assembly, Burrington quickly antagonized the very men who had so strongly defended him previously. He was determined to straighten out the policies of the colony including the preparation of an accurate rent-roll so that the crown could collect its quit-rents. He was thwarted at almost every turn, and he was soon calling names again.

He said the attorney general didn't know enough law to be a clerk to a justice of the peace; the judge of the court of admiralty was an infamous character; and the secretary of the province thought his job was to make mischief. When John Montgomery asked permission to go to England, Burrington suggested that he go to the devil instead.

Two of Burrington's few solid contributions were the stimulation of interest in the Cape Fear region and the cutting of roads. It was during his administration that a passable route was built between New Bern and the South Carolina line.

Upon being succeeded by Governor Gabriel Johnston in 1734, Burrington gave up his estate, "Stag Park" near Rocky Point, and returned to London. His death seemed to reflect his stormy career: He was robbed and murdered and his body was tossed into a canal in St. James Park.

Pres. Peron Survives Vote On Impeachment

By VICENTE F. LOPEZ
Associated Press Writer
BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — President Isabel Peron survived an impeachment vote in Congress Wednesday night by a vote of 120-70, but the split within the Peronist movement widened.

The main opposition party, the Radical Civic Union, joined five small political groups in supporting the impeachment motion, but the ouster effort failed when Peronist legislators who strongly criticized Mrs. Peron earlier backed down.

A group of left-wing congressmen issued a statement saying: "We must not be in too much of a hurry, for even the worst democratic government is better than an unknown quantity."

The labor unions, backbone of the Peronist movement, were silent. Previous threats to Mrs. Peron were greeted by massive demonstrations of support.

Jose Baez, acting leader of the Peronist Ruling Council, announced that he was resigning and said other council members would present their resignations at a party congress March 6.

Informed sources said the three commanders of the armed forces refused an invitation from the president to confer with her. Rumors of an impending military coup continued to circulate.

Union leaders and other dissident Peronists were demanding that Mrs. Peron purge her circle of advisers of all followers of the former minister of social welfare, Jose Lopez Rega, her chief confidant and adviser until union leaders and the military teamed up last summer to drive him into exile.

Mrs. Peron's aides were reported examining the possibility of still another cabinet reshuffle. Ricardo Balbin, leader of the UCR and main figure of the opposition, warned Tuesday of a military coup if the government did not make the changes demanded of it from all quarters.

Meanwhile, leftist terrorists assassinated an army colonel on vacation in Cordoba, 450 miles west of Buenos Aires. Two policemen were killed near Buenos Aires, and a businessman was shot to death during an attempt to kidnap him in Mar del Plata. At least 114 persons have died in political violence this year.

The bidding:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 3 ♠ Pass
4 ♠ Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: King of ♠.

The trump suit is endowed with great power. If you do not intend exercising this power, you might as well play the hand at no trump. The bidding was straightforward. With a full opening bid and four-card support for his partner's major suit, North made a double raise. Since his opening was minimum, South looked no further than game. West made his natural lead of the king of diamonds. Declarer played dummy's ace and then took three rounds of clubs, discarding a diamond from his hand. Now he led and passed the nine of spades and, had the finesse succeeded, he would have been home. Unfortunately, West won the king of spades, cashed a high diamond and then returned a trump. Declarer won and led a heart to dummy's queen. East won the ace and led his last trump. Declarer could ruff one heart in dummy, but he had to concede his fourth heart. In all, he lost one trump trick, two hearts and a diamond. Declarer could have made his contract had he utilized dummy's ruffing power to the full. Since he needed dummy's trumps to control the heart suit, he should have delayed drawing trumps. After taking a diamond discard on the third club, declarer should simply have led the queen of hearts from dummy. East can win the ace and shift to a trump, but declarer is in control. He can afford to take the trump finesse, which loses to West's king. West may cash a diamond now or later, but declarer wins the trump return in his hand and ruffs a heart in dummy. He gets back to his hand with a club ruff, ruffs his remaining heart and the ace of spades is his tenth trick. By using two of dummy's trumps for ruffing purposes, declarer scores five tricks in the trump suit despite the fact that the trump finesse does not win.

Energy Drive Threatens New And Ugly Boom Towns

By EDWARD K. DeLONG WASHINGTON (UPI) — Plans to exploit coal and oil shale riches in the American West have raised the specter of a new generation of boom towns that are bad places to live and work and a costly drag on developing energy resources.

The boom town threat, spawned by the drive toward U.S. self-sufficiency in energy, was described recently by John S. Gilmore, an economist at the University of Denver (Colo.) Research Institute.

Writing in Science magazine, published by the American Association for the Advancement of Science, Gilmore urged local, state and federal officials to avert the boom town phenomenon by finding new, perhaps radically different ways of managing sudden urban growth.

Gilmore created the imaginary town of "Pistol Shot, U.S.A.," to illustrate his concerns. "Pistol Shot's problems are typical of those encountered by a small, isolated Western community that is being impacted or is about to be impacted by the development of coal, oil shale, uranium or even geothermal resources," he said.

"The energy boom town in the Western United States is apt to be a bad place to live. It's apt to be a bad place to do business. This is a problem for more than the people in the boom town. It also affects federal agencies seeking to increase energy resource production ... (and) firms building and operating energy resource extraction and conversion facilities."

Unmanaged growth will create social tensions between native residents and newcomers, overload community services and lead to economic difficulties and labor shortages,

Gilmore said. Eventually, he said, it "almost inevitably generates a situation that causes overruns in both the time and the money required to get projects built and operating."

Take Gilmore's mythical Pistol Shot as an example. It is a county seat which had a population of 1,200 in 1970, down from perhaps three times that many in its heyday as a mining center. It lies 100 miles from any town with as many as 10,000 people and more than 200 miles from a major metropolitan area.

The surrounding county is sparsely populated ranchland.

The region once enjoyed a balance of labor force, economic requirements, shopping facilities and public services such as schools, hospitals, streets and sewers.

But in recent years all that has changed.

Coal mining resumed in 1973. Construction started four months ago on the first 700-megawatt unit of an electric power plant. Plans were announced last year for a $900 million coal gasification plant, but the construction start has been postponed twice.

"Confusion about the future as well as about dealing with present growth problems is widespread," Gilmore said. "It is the same sort of confusion that exists in the Powder River Basin (of Montana and Wyoming), the Four Corners (where Arizona, Colorado, New Mexico and Utah meet), western North Dakota and much of the rest of the West."

Pistol Shot's population has nearly tripled since 1970. Oldtimers resent the influx of mobile homes sprawling over the countryside. Mental health clinics are overburdened, partly because of housewives living in troubled isolation in trailers in a hostile community. Education, health services and housing lag far behind demand. Hiring for construction projects has tripled the high school dropout rate. Labor productivity has fallen 20 per cent.

Poor living conditions make it hard to attract and keep enough workers on the job, despite good wages. Local officials have gone from enthusiasm to uncertainty to near panicky problem-solving efforts. Attempts to get help from state and local governments have proved unsatisfactory.

There always is a vicious circle in boom town development, Gilmore said. The degraded quality of life cuts the labor supply, which in turn slows productivity and leads to inadequate capital and investment, which further reduces local service and the quality of life. Gilmore said one solution is for Western states to begin now to prepare for the problems they face by devising new tax structures, new local government organization and planning aids such as regional zoning based on water use and air quality.

Wyoming and Montana already have taken steps in that direction, but all Western states must do more to make clear rules for development and win the respect and support of the federal government, Gilmore said.

The federal government should adopt a policy of "even-handed risk sharing," he said, helping bear the financial risks faced by Western communities just as it proposes to share the risks of industries formed to exploit Western resources.

Local governments must accept the reality of likely change and start cooperating among themselves, Gilmore said. And the news media should examine present and potential change rather than simply report what already has happened.

"A hundred years ago people flocked to Western boom towns and stayed as long as they could," Gilmore said. "The attraction was the slight chance of striking it rich."

"Since then the standard of living has risen and a progressive income tax has been adopted. The only person in Pistol Shot with a reasonable hope of personal riches is a well-financed real estate speculator."

"Pistol Shot is an imaginary town, but the situations described in it do exist in many or most of the Western energy resource communities facing boom-type growth."
