World Oil Tycoons Met Saturday Night

By MICHAEL F. GOLDMAN

PANAMA CITY, Fla. (UPI) — Tycoons of some of the world's oil giants met Saturday night with Saudi Arabia's oil minister, Sheik Yamani, perhaps to discuss future of Aramco, the consortium which pumps most of Saudi Arabia's oil.

Those believed to be on hand included officials of Exxon, Texaco and Mobil, partners along with Standard Oil of California, with Saudi Arabia in the oil producing company.

Five corporate jets with six to 10 passengers each touched down earlier at Panama City's municipal airport. The occupants were whisked to the plush Bay Point resort on the Gulf 10 miles west of Panama City. Pilots of the jets said they were owned by Exxon, Mobil and Texaco.

Shotgun-armed security guards patrolled the resort, turning away reporters and other visitors. The security precautions were the tightest ever seen at this quiet resort community.

The operator of the airport, Fannin Field, was asked to stock two weeks supply of jet fuel and find parking for up to a dozen corporate jets. A television film crew visited the resort Friday and spotted two armed Arab guards, touching off rumors of a secret meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

However, the presence of Yamani and the officials from Exxon, Texaco and Mobil indicate it was a negotiating session on the complete nationalization of Aramco.

Saudi Arabia holds 60 per cent interest in Aramco and the U.S. companies hold the remaining 40 per cent. The companies agreed in principle some time ago to sell their 40 per cent to Saudi Arabia, reportedly for between $1.5 billion and $2 billion.

Security was tight throughout the Florida resort area.

Someone rented all the medium and large size rental cars available in the area and soon they were seen patrolling outside the resort with two security guards in each. And someone rented all the fishing charter boats, without their crews, and they were soon spotted patrolling off the Gulf beach, manned by security guards.

The security apparently was ordered for Shiek Yamini, whose presence was confirmed by the Pentagon in Washington. Yamini was among those kidnapped at last year's OPEC meeting in Vienna.

Fifty uniformed and plain clothes security guards patrolled the resort, its 18-hole golf course, its tennis courts, its yacht club, its villas and its convention center, where the Alabama Education Association was holding an annual meeting.

$2 A Pound Coffee

By RICHARD HUGHES

NEW YORK (UPI) — A severe shortage of green coffee beans throughout the world could drive retail coffee prices as high as $2 per pound this year, according to coffee merchants.

Traders also said consumers could expect no relief from high coffee prices for at least two years "We are not going to have a normal supply of coffee in the world until July, 1978," said one.

In supermarkets today, most regular grind coffee brands are selling for $1.55 to $1.60 per pound and premium blends for $1.70 to $1.80 per pound, although store-brands and "specials" are cheaper.

"It's no secret what happened," said George Boecklin, president of the National Coffee Association. "The world coffee market was subjected to a devastating frost in Brazil last July, which almost wiped out the 1976-77 crop. Add to that the civil war in Angola and distrubances in other African countries and bad weather in other coffee producing areas. It all resulted in a major increase in green coffee prices to manufacturers."

News Briefs

Ford Endorsement Expected

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina's effort to save the New River from a hydroelectric dam project is expected to win the endorsement of President Ford when he visits the state next Saturday.

There were reports late in the week that Ford would reverse his earlier position of not becoming politically involved in matters before federal agencies. It has been reported that he will announce his support when he visits Greensboro next Saturday, just 10 days before the state's presidential preference primary.

Political Tactic

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — The chairman of the N.C. Hunger Coalition said proposed cutbacks in the federal food stamp program by the Ford administration was a political tactic for the election year.

Sacrifices Secretarial Help

RALEIGH (AP)—In line with other efforts to cut state spending, members of the General Assembly will sacrifice half their normal secretarial help during the month-long budget session in May.

The reduction was agreed to Friday during a closed meeting of the Legislative Services Commission. The commission administers operation of the General Assembly.

The commission also decided to hire four new staff members for the fiscal research division, arguing that there are six vacancies and the positions are important in helping lawmakers establish and cut the state budget.

Plant Bed Warning

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — A month of unusually warm weather in North Carolina has prompted tobacco specialists to warn leaf growers they may have to take steps to retard plant growth in transplant beds.

Though the situation has not become critical, North Carolina State University tobacco extension specialist S.N. Hawks said Saturday growers may want to "hold back" plant growth by removing the plastic bed covers to cool the plants or keeping irrigation to a minimum without endangering the plants.

Announces Candidacy

RALEIGH (AP)—Ben Currin, Rocky Mount school superintendent, has announced his candidacy for state superintendent of public instruction. He is a Democrat.

Though he hasn't announced, incumbent Superintendent Craig Phillips is expected to seek reelection.

Juvenile School To Stay Open

RALEIGH (AP)—After State Rep. Joy Johnson, D-Robeson, reluctantly broke a tie Friday, the state Commission of Youth Services voted 4-3 against closing Richard T. Fountain School for juvenile offenders in Rocky Mount.

Johnson, vice chairman of the commission, was forced to cast the tie breaking vote on the controversial issue when one member of the commission refused to make a decision publicly.

Director Ray Shurling of the Youth Services Division of the Department of Human Resources, urged the commission last month to close the school because of declining enrollment and budgetary problems. He said it is not feasible to continue operation of the school which has a $1.1 million annual budget and has 65 employes to care for about 51 children.

One Way To Get Action

The 25-year-old Charlotte truck driver and his wife, Isa, 22, packed up their 14-month old son and set up residence in a tent in front of a Duke Power building.

Diestler, who claimed he had made a partial payment on his overdue power bill, vowed to stay in the blue camping tent until the company relented.

About an hour after the tent went up, Duke turned the power on at Diestler's house, and a company spokesman said the affair would be straightened out next week.

On The Campaign Trail

By United Press International

Ronald Reagan, campaigning in Florida, criticized President Ford's record as a congressman Saturday, while Ford crisscrossed Illinois talking about the "great victory" he expects in November.

Reagan, refering to Ford's years in Congress, said, "those who caused the nation's problems are not neccesarily the ones to solve them."

A copyrighted poll released Saturday night showed Ford leading Reagan by a 3-1 margin in a Florida county with a heavy concentration of Republican voters.

The poll in Pinellas County, where there are more Republicans than anywhere else in the state, was commissioned by the St. Petersburg Times. It found that among Democrats, former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter has taken a 3-2 lead over Washington Sen. Henry Jackson and a 3-1 edge over Alabama Gov. George Wallace.

The county has 161,015 registered Democrats and 159,997 registered Republicans for Tuesday's primary.

The telephone survey, conducted Wednesday and Thursday, by a subsidiary of the Times Publishing Co., found President Ford leading the former California governor 61 per cent to 20 per cent, with 19 per cent of the voters undecided.

The survey had Carter with 33 per cent of the Democratic vote, Jackson 22 per cent and Wallace 12 per cent with 25 per cent still undecided.

In a similar poll in January had Ford leading Reagan by 47 to 37 per cent, with 16 per cent of the voters undecided. Carter had 19 per cent, Wallace 17 per cent and Jackson 15 per cent, with 25 per cent undecided.

TITUSVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace campaigned across the middle of Florida Saturday still predicting a victory in Tuesday's presidential primary but declining to forecast his winning margin.

"I'll consider a win as leading the vote," Wallace told a news conference at the Tico airport in Titusville.

Comparing elections to football games, he said, "if you're first, you're first. It doesn't make any difference about percentage points."

Wallace, facing a strong challenge from former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter and Sen. Henry Jackson, said even if he should fall behind "I certainly will come out of the Florida primary with a great number of delegates."

"I don't think any campaign is make or break," he said.

Asked if a victory by Jimmy Carter would seriously damage his chances, Wallace said he has confronted Carter in three other states so far, "And I won three times. Even three to one would not be a bad record."

Carter took the day off the campaign trail Saturday, but Jackson made appearances in Miami and Fort Lauderdale.

Cultural Department Feels Money Squeeze

RALEIGH (AP)—Secretary Grace J. Rohrer of the State Department of Cultural Resources says her agency is "almost out of business" and will be $570,000 short of meeting expenses in the last quarter of the fiscal year.

In explaining the situation to division heads Friday, Mrs. Rohrer attributed the financial squeeze to Gov. Jim Holshouser's new budget restrictions and expenses carried over from the third quarter of the fiscal year.

"Basically, we are out of business. I think we are lucky to still have our jobs," she said.

It was the first indication of serious problems to a state agency resulting from the administration's plans to trim $38 million from state expenditures over the next four months to meet financial problems of state government.

With a budget of about $18 million this year, the department is one of the smallest state agencies. However, it is an agency with projects scattered across the state.

"You cannot bring buildings into Raleigh," she said. "You've got to go to them. That's the problem."

Burn Ban Continued

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — The North Carolina Forest Service extended its ban on burning permits across the state for another day Saturday because the risk of wildfire continued high despite recent rains.

Forest Service spokesman Tom Hegele said the burning ban was continued because weather conditions over the 20 million acres of forests in the state continued dry.

Bodies Remain Unidentified

COLUMBIA, N.C. (AP)—Five bodies found in a mass grave near here Tuesday remained unidentified Saturday, according to the State Bureau of Investigation.

"We are still checking different leads that are coming in from all over from the news releases on the bodies," an SBI agent said. "They (news stories) have helped immensely in getting the leads we're trying to run down."

Walter Jones Keynote Speaker

Pitt County Democrats Elect 1976-77 Officers

By BETTY HATCH
Reflector Staff Writer

After a keynote address by First District Congressman Walter B. Jones, the Pitt County Democratic Party on Saturday afternoon elected officers and delegates 1976-77, establishing a new program of annual meetings.

New officers for the county executive committee are: chairperson—Mrs. Betty Spier of Bethel; first vice-chairman—Henry C. Oglesby of Grifton, outgoing chairperson; second vice-chairman—John Bizzell of Greenville; and third vice-chairman — Tom Taft of Greenville. All were elected unanimously. Mrs. Willie Mae Carney of Bethel was re-elected secretary. The new treasurer is Charles Gaskin of Greenville.

Congressman Jones' remarks stressed party unity. "The very best way to celebrate this Bicentennial is to return the Democratic party to Washington, D.C., and to the mansion in Raleigh," he declared. "I am absolutely confident that 1976 will be a year of rejoicing for Democrats throughout this nation."

In comparing the Republican and Democratic candidates for president, he viewed the contest as one between "an All-American football player and a movie star" on one hand and "able candidates" who are "all outstanding men" on the other.

As for the state level, he said, "I cannot believe that Governor Holshouser has squashed enough speeding tickets for prominent people to allow the election of a Republican candidate in the year 1976."

Other business conducted at the courthouse meeting included the election of delegates for various committees. Among those chosen were 37 delegates and 37 alternates to the Congressional District Convention May 8 in Washington, and 37 delegates and 37 alter-

Government Regulations Said Hampering Oil Explorations

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

New Mexico oilman Francis "Tug" Wilson has a message to tell to the people.

It's not the major oil companies that are driving independents out of business or reducing the incentive to explore for new sources, it's government regulation of the oil industry, Wilson contends.

Wilson is secretary-treasurer of the Wilson Oil Company — an independent petroleum exploration company — in Santa Fe. It's not a major oil company. "We have seven employees," according to Wilson.

"What we see . . . is people being told things that are not true," he explained.

That's why Wilson and a number of other members of the Independent Petroleum Association of America have volunteered their time — at their own expense — to travel to various areas of the United States to deliver their message . . . to tell the public their story.

"Nine out of 10 wildcats (wells drilled in new areas not known to be productive) are drilled by independents" who don't have refineries, Wilson explained.

"Majors do not run my colleagues out of business. We work with majors if they have something to offer us," Wilson explained. "We take bids . . . sell to all of them.

"What limits us has been Federal regulation of oil and gas (natural gas) . . . gas, specifically," Wilson contends. "That affects me," and other independent exploration companies.

Independent exploration firms wildcat — try unproven areas in hopes of finding new sources of gas and oil — and if they are successful, they sell to majors.

"It's not a monopoly situation," Wilson explains, where major oil companies do most of the exploration. In fact, the opposite is true, according to Wilson.

Independents are the ones who make the most new discoveries. Majors "don't jam us up," Wilson said. "The main source of confusion and restraint . . . is the Feds . . . the Federal Power Commission.

"Their idea is to protect the consumer" . . . And federal legislation has been "punative legislation . . . designed to punish big oil," Wilson feels.

In Wilson's view this is the wrong approach. Big oil firms don't need to be punished. They did not create the "shortage" of natural gas and crude oil. Government regulation has caused the shortage — particularly where natural gas is concerned.

He explained that in 1954 the FPC began regulating gas at the well-head. "It was frozen at a very low price — 11 cents per cubic foot," according to Wilson. At that time there was a 21-years supply of natural gas already tapped.

As the cost of wells went up the low price "discouraged exploration for gas." The same low price increased the interstate demand and "the pipelines were not able to contract for gas. No one was looking for it."

Wilson said by the early 1960's "we were using more than we were finding." Consumers were and are "paying more . . . getting less security."

An increase in the well-head price of new gas to 50 cents recently by the FPC has helped, but "it is not a real price," Wilson says.

Deregulation, says Wilson, will "let the market peg a price for new gas," and enable the "exploration people to get enough to go out and do it."

Higher gas prices, he said will result, but those "higher prices will reduce the demand . . . will cause conservation," and at the same time encourage exploration for new sources. "deregulation will cause an increase in supply. Independents will go out and look for it."

According to Wilson, "the only thing that finds oil is the drill-bit, and it takes money to drill."

Saying "we are twice as dependent on Arab oil now" as we were two years ago, he suggested that deregulation will encourage independents to explore. But he emphasized, independents "won't explore when they don't get paid for the risk involved."

The IPAA, Wilson said, is "trying to communicate, our stand . . . broaden the understanding of the s . . . and eventually bring the right thing about."

In trying to protect the consumer, the Federal Government, Wilson contends, has "denied him a supply. We are paying money to the Arabs," Wilson said, "rather than to our own companies."

Regulation is "short sighted political punitive action," supported by the general public which doesn't fully understand the situation, Wilson feels.

What does Wilson and the IPAA recommend? "We'd like for the people to talk to their representatives in Washington," and have the Senators and Congressmen vote for deregulation.

Three Die In Wreck

SARATOGA, N.C. (AP) — A firey collision involving three vehicles killed three persons Friday and injured a fourth.

J.H. Parks of the Highway Patrol said Helen Baldwin, 32, of Stantonsburg was killed instantly in the accident about 11 a.m. on U.S. 264 east of Saratoga. Parks said Lawrence Odell Smith, 50, of Bunn; and Willie Hall, 34, died at Wilson Memorial Hospital a few hours after the accident.

Clara McClain of Stantonsburg suffered minor injuries. Parks said she was charged with unintentional death by vehicle and following too close.

Parks said the collision occurred when a car driven by the Baldwin woman slowed to make a left turn, and the car driven by the McClain woman hit the Baldwin car as the McClain car tried to pass.

The truck and the Baldwin car caught fire after the crash, Parks said.

Hall was a passenger in the Baldwin car.

The highway was blocked by the truck and logs for nearly two hours.

Stockholders Want Names

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Gulf Oil Corp. stockholders involved in a suit over the firm's political slush fund want to know the names of politicians Gulf has asked to return corporate contributions.

In a series of pretrial questions filed Friday in U.S. District Court, stockholders also asked what amounts Gulf is requesting from the politicians and the purposes for which the contributions were made.

The stockholders are trying to recover from Gulf's directors and officers $12.3 million in corporate funds given out as political contributions in the United States and abroad over a 14-year period.

Prepared To Release Data

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is prepared to turn over to Japan data concerning alleged bribes paid by the Lockheed Aircraft Company, provided the information is kept secret pending actual criminal prosecutions.

The U.S. position was made known Friday by Robert S. Ingersoll, the deputy secretary of state, who said U.S. relations with other countries have suffered "grevious damage" by recent weeks of unsubstantiated allegations against officials of the Japanese and other governments.

Renewed Investigations

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — After indicting three white Montgomery men for first-degree murder in the 1957 drowning death of a black truck driver, a grand jury is seeking evidence of other racial violence here in the last 22 years.

The three men were arrested last month for what Atty. Gen. Bill Baxley said was the Ku Klux Klan killing of Willie Edwards Jr., 25, whose body was recovered from the Alabama River March 23, 1957, three months after his disappearance.

Baxley said the arrests were the result of a renewed investigation of "several unsolved civil rights murders" in Alabama, including the 1963 bombing of a Birmingham church that killed four young black girls.

Castro-Tito Hold Talks

BRIONI, Yugoslavia (UPI) — Fidel Castro Saturday began his first talks in two years with Yugoslav President Tito, who is reprtedly angered by Cuba's intervention in the Angolan civil war.

Both Western and East European diplomatic sources predicted Angola would be a major topic of conversation during Castro's two-day visit to Brioni, an idylic island in the Adriatic and Tito's favorite winter resort.

Truce Threatened

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — A Palestinian armored unit and two companies of troops moved into northern Lebanon from Syria Saturday to stop a raging battle between Moslems and Christians that threatened to destroy the fragile truce.

It was the third straight day of fighting around Kobeiat, a Christian stronghold near Tripoli where a group of army deserters led Moslem gunmen in an artillery and rocket attack on the village.

Might Close Small Post Offices

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service, armed with judicial sanction, is resuming a policy expected to deprive hundreds of small communities of their post offices.

The mail agency on Friday reinstituted its policy of closing certain unprofitable rural post offices. Earlier, a federal judge ruled that no laws on post offices "preclude the Postal Service from being fiscally responsible."

Fifty-one members of Congress and two associations of postmasters had challenged the policy on closing or consolidating post offices, calling it "a massive assault on the country's small communities."

Tried To Mislead

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A citizen's group charged Saturday the oil industry tried to mislead the public with a report that said a 23.6 per cent drop in earnings of the top 25 petroleum firms during 1975 threatens U.S. energy independence.

Energy Action, which has launched a concerted attack against the oil giants in recent months, said a more accurate picture of the industry's economic health is shown by the 71 per cent increase in profits for the top 25 companies from 1972 to 1975.

Yancey, Chairman of Pitt County Agricultural Extension Service, states that responsibility of the county beautification coordinator is to provide leadership for an action program to enhance the visual beauty of the county.

Mrs. Cutler will be meeting with community, neighborhood, and civic and social group leaders who will work in their communities to initiate plans of action.

The first meeting of the county beautification committee will be at one o'clock Wednesday, March 24 at the Agricultural Extension Office on 203 W. Third Street in Greenville. Mrs. Cutler invites community, neighborhood, and civic and social group leaders or anyone interested in beautification to attend the meeting.

Election By Dice

NEW BRITAIN, Conn. (AP) — Officials here have found a way around lengthy runoff votes in deadlocked party committee elections.

William T. Spitzel and James Malone rolled dice Friday afternoon to determine who would fill the 13th District Democratic committee member slot after each man received 104 votes.

$12.9 Million In Improper Payments

STAMFORD, Conn. (UPI) — Improper payments amounting to $12.9 million have been made during the last five years by a General Telephone & Electronic subsidiary, according to an internal investigation.

A committee of the firm's directors discovered $2.2 million in "unlawful payments to domestic or foreign officials," and $10.7 million in payments made "with awareness of the possibility" they may have gone to officials.

The company said its GTE International, Inc., subsidiary made 98 per cent of the payments. The division comprises 8.7 per cent of the company assets and 2.7 per cent of its income between 1971-75.

The company declined Saturday to name the countries in which payments were made, or comment further, because it said the Securities and Exchange Commission has been given the information and is discussing it with the firm.

According to a company statement, four officers and directors of the Stamford-based international electronics firm knew about some of the payments.

Agents working on sales to foreign governments received $5.6 million of the doubtful payments, while $5.1 went to agents working with private companies, the company said.

"It is far from certain that all or any part of this amount ultimately was paid to any foreign officials," it said.

But the investigating committee found it was "a permissible inference" that part of the money was used for bribes.

The payments were the result of the "autonomy of GTE International, Inc., the failure of its senior management officials to appreciate the... legal problems created by the foreign payments and their resulting failure to bring these problems to the attention of senior management."

Kissinger Warns Cuba, USSR

By BRUCE B. BAKKE

ATLANTA (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger Saturday issued another sharp warning to Cuba and the Soviet Union that the United States "will not accept any further Cuban military adventures" in other parts of the world.

Seated next to former Secretary of State Dean Rusk at a news conference, Kissinger also warned that "the Soviet Union must consider that any policy of relaxed tensions is incompatible with the massive introduction of armaments and continued encouragement of this kind of turmoil."

Kissinger's remarks were in response to questions about the position of the United States regarding the activity of Cuban forces in Angola and the possibility that Cuba might assist rebel forces opposing the white government of Rhodesia.

Kissinger said the position of the United States is to accept any outcome that resolves from decisions by African states and by the Organization of African Unity. He urged the government of Rhodesia to "show flexibility" in negotiations with groups seeking more black control in that country.

Kissinger said Rhodesia must keep in mind "that the time for settlement now running out."

But Kissinger said, "We do not accept the proposition that Cuba has the right to intervene in this country."

He was asked what options the United States had with respect to the actions of the Soviet Union and Cuba in Africa.

Post-war history has shown, he said, that U.S. action in such circumstances does not have to be military. Any specific reaction would depend on the circumstance, he said, adding that it would not be appropriate to discuss this in advance.

Kissinger said he did not agree with the statement by Sen. Barry Goldwater that former President Richard Nixon might have broken the law by discussing foreign affairs with leaders of the Peoples Republic of China on his recent trip.

Record Phone Call

MONTREAT, N.C. (AP) — Students at Montreat-Anderson College Saturday claimed a new world's record for the longest telephone conversation — 756½ hours or 31½ days.

The students stopped talking Saturday at 9:30 a.m. The talkathon began Feb. 2.

According to the students, their time bettered the old world record by 33½ hours.

Details of the conversation will be sent to the Guiness Book of World Records.

The students also accepted pledges for the Montreat Presbyterian Church missionary fund.

"If someone had tried to hang up the phone, he would have been hanged from the highest tree," said Ronald Wilkins of Winston-Salem, who dreamed up the stunt with coed Marty Monroe of Orlando, Fla.

Becky Burch of Statesville, who logged 60 hours on the phone, talked more than any other coed, including 24 hours talking with her brother.

Paul Williams led the male talkers with 58 hours. He said he won a game of tennis after one 25-hour chat and topped off the night with a date.

"My parents think I'm crazy," he said.

Four Dead In Apparent Robbery

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (UPI) — Four young male employes of a chain restaurant were found shot to death Saturday in the establishment's walk-in freezer, Fairfax County police said.

A fifth employe, a young woman, was shot in the head during the apparent robbery and was listed in critical condition at the Alexandria Hospital.

The woman, who police believe the assailant intended to kill, told authorities the gunman was a young man 25 to 30 years of age.

"It was a morbid thing," police information officer Sherry Smart said. "He took them into the freezer and shot them all. We believe he intended to kill them all."

The victims, whose identities were not immediately released, were found at 7:20 a.m. when the day manager reported to work, Smart said.

She said police believed the shooting occurred after the restaurant, one of the fast-foods Roy Rogers chain, closed at approximately 1 a.m.

"When the day manager arrived the lights were still on," she said. "He called the police and when they arrived a few minutes later they entered and discovered the bodies inside the freezer."

Smart said it had not been immediately determined what, if anything, had been taken from the restaurant.

"Apparently it was a robbery," said officer J.D. Grove. "At this time there have been no arrests and no suspects."

Youth Dies From Shot

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP) — A Bessemer City man was shot and killed Friday night at a night club in Gaston County.

Authorities identified the victim as Paul Alexander Player, 18. Gaston County authorities said he was shot in the stomach while at the 321 Club on U.S. 321 south of Gastonia.

Welfare Called Destructive

JACKSON, Tenn. (AP)—The nation's welfare system is "destructive of the basic fiber of our society," the secretary of Health, Education and Welfare has said.

Dr. David Mathews criticized the welfare system he heads during a wide-ranging speech at the University of Tennessee at Martin. During his talk and a question-and-answer session that followed, he said an anti-bureaucracy sentiment is healthy, but he said he would resist splitting up his own agency.

Mathews, who was president of the University of Alabama before taking the HEW post last year, said 45 per cent of the federal budget goes into some form of "individual income security."

He said some families have been on welfare for four generations.

The present system, he said, breeds "patterns of dependence" that are difficult to break.

The HEW secretary said the anti-bureaucracy sentiment in the country was a useful impulse. He said, however, that the bureaucracy was "created through the legitimate processes of our government."

Borrowing a phrase from the comic strip, "Pogo," Mathews said, "We have met the bureaucrats and he is us."

Mathews said he opposed splitting up the huge federal bureaucracy he heads.

"Our problems happen to come all together," he said, adding that it is easy to deal with them within one agency.

Sound Program Is Key Concern

Executive staff members of the Liaison Committee on Medical Education Association of American Medical Colleges accreditation committee visited the ECU campus last week to assess progress on developing the medical school.

A joint statement issued by Dr. Jenkins and Dr. Friday after the visit said that "substantial progress" had been shown but additional progress should be made in a number of areas before an application is made for accreditation.

Since the accrediting committee meets in June this immediately brought speculation around the state that the school might not be able to open in the fall. There were dark implications that the school was falling badly behind in the development.

While it may very well be that a class won't start in September, there is no reason to be discouraged about the school's development at this point.

Construction on the new Pitt Memorial Hospital is proceeding quite well and planning is moving right along on the addition which will be a part of the medical school facilities. Work on remodeling Ragsdale Hall is also proceeding and it appears to us that the remodeling is well designed as an interim medical school facility.

There was already a nucleus of the faculty on hand which had taught in the first year program and recruitment is proceeding for additional faculty, so we understand.

Dean William Laupus said the unofficial visit was "not all negative at all. It had a lot of very positive returns. It told us how far along we had really come and reinforced our own judgment as to our progress."

There are a number of possibilities. Even though the school might not be considered at the June meeting of the accrediting committee it could be considered in October and open in January of next year. But no matter what the time table turns out to be, the most important thing now is to make certain that a sound medical education program is established. The university officials must look to the accrediting people for guidance on this and that, after all, was the purpose of this preliminary visit.

Primaries Cut Down The Contenders

Sen. Henry M. Jackson was top man in the Massachusetts Democratic primary with 23 percent of the votes.

President Ford was well ahead of his opponent Ronald Reagan with Ford receiving 62 percent of the Republican vote.

But that primary in itself will mean little when it comes time to actually choose the candidates. That will be done at the nominating conventions this summer.

Perhaps the biggest benefit of the state primaries will be to show the weaker candidates how slim their chances are. Some of them will drop out and the vast number of Democratic candidates will be whittled down.

Coffee Should Be Good

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

Automatic electric coffeemakers displaced irons as the best selling small home appliance last year, when sales topped 10 million. But coffee consumption has dropped 28 per cent since 1962.

Yet coffee merchant Joel Schapira of upstate Ancramdale, N.Y., is optimistic about the future of the coffee industry because estimates of coffeemaker sales in 1975 show 6.5 million drip machines, compared with 3.5 million percolators.

Experts, including Schapira, blame the decline of coffee drinking mainly on poor brewing systems, primarily percolators, and rising coffee prices caused by bad weather in Brazil and political turmoil in African coffee-growing areas. They say importers and manufacturers pinch pennies by using high-yielding but lower quality beans in mass-market blends.

In 1970, per capita consumption of coffee per day in the United States was 2.38 cups, said the Pan-American Coffee Bureau. By 1965, it had risen to 2.75 cups; but by the end of last year, it had dropped to an estimated 2.20 cups.

At the same time, the Tea Council of the U.S.A., Inc. says annual per capita tea consumption rose from 162 cups in 1965 to an estimated 194 cups last year.

Despite the coffee statistics, Schapira said coffee sales are thriving at both his family's retail coffee and tea store in New York City's Greenwich Village and his new wholesale establishment in rural Columbia County.

Schapira, 29, sees growing interest among young people in fresh-roasted coffees, and disenchantment with "the boring insipidity of mass market teas."

He is particularly critical of spiced blends.

"I see no reason why tea has to taste like soda," he said. "(Young people) have missed the fact that Keemun from mainland China has a great deal to offer without spices and herbs added."

"Premium brands of canned ground coffee and some supermarket blends used to be pretty good," he said. A recent tasting changed his mind. He conducted the tasting prior to

Moving Requires Permit

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — County tax supervisors across the state favored passage of a new law requiring any person moving a mobile home to get a permit from the tax office.

The object was to disclose those which had not been listed for property tax purposes in the county, or which were listed but taxes not paid. Many mobile home owners took advantage of their mobility, and moved away.

But if being required to get a permit from the tax supervisor (and settling up tax accounts in the process) was supposed to solve the problem, it hasn't.

Many professional mobile home movers say they are losing business when they tell a customer they have to get such a permit. "Somebody else must be moving them without getting a permit, because we are beginning to hear complaints from legitimate movers," says D. R. Holbrook of the Department of Revenue local tax division.

The law took effect in January, and it's too early for any figures on how many mobile homes are being moved — or how many are avoiding the permit law.

"And a big part of the problem is that people might not know they are supposed to get a permit and settle their tax differences," Holbrook said. Enforcement of any such law is "largely psychological and depends on people being willing to comply . . . the highway patrol can't monitor all such activities," Holbrook explained.

At Work

The North Carolina Department of Labor has just started publishing a new magazine each month, printing articles dealing with activities within the department.

Entitled "At Work," the first issue proves one thing: Labor Commissioner T. Avery Nye, Jr., is "at work." His picture is on the cover, his name is printed above the title, his name is in three headlines over articles in the publication, and the entire top of one page carries the label, "Commentary by Commissioner Nye," over an article about Tar Heels being "safer at work than they are at home or in their cars."

In smaller type, Nye's name appears in the publication a total of 10 times. Nye recently hired a professional public relations man to assist him in promoting the work of the Labor Department.

Of the new publication, Nye says, "I believe it is a step in the right direction towards keeping the citizens of North Carolina informed about the activities of their government."

Nye, a Republican, was appointed by Gov. James E. Holshouser to the post following the death of Commissioner Billy Creel. The post is up for election in November, with Nye likely the GOP candidate, and Jessie Ray Scott, wife of former Gov. Bob Scott, a possible Democratic contender.

The South, Rising

Former Gov. Terry Sanford had some fascinating things to say about the South in his recent remarks at the announcement of establishment of the National Humanities Center in the N. C. Research Triangle Park. Sanford spoke in New York, while others took part in the announcement in this state.

The Humanities Center will conduct programs to seek human betterment from the conflicts and progress being made in technological fields.

Sanford finds location of the center in the South fitting. "It was in the South that relationships between men and women underwent the most severe test in our national history. And it was in the South that the regenerative processes of our system went to work . . . to right . . . our most pernicious national inequities."

The South learned that the human race is one. "The South knows out of its own experience that inequality between races is intolerable and that the human race moves . . . together or faces the danger of convulsion. That lesson is not as well known to the rest of this nation."

Sunday Morning Notes

Judge Charles Whedbee said he saw a little boy crying recently.

"He didn't know me from Adam," the judge chuckled, "but I looked straight at him and said, 'You know what?' "

"What?" the boy answered.

The judge laughed and commented, "He stopped just like that."

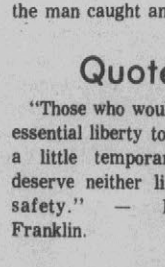

Well, some things are important.

He and his wife, Martha, sat next to a table where some Frechmen and an American couple were seated.

The occupants ordered a bottle of wine in French and soon the steward brought out the old cobweb-encrusted bottle.

The coversation then turned to English and the Coffmans learned that the wine was 100 years old.

ALVIN TAYLOR

It was carefully strained from the original bottle into a decanter and all those at the table, including the wine stewart tasted it. A discussion ensued about the body and bouquet of the wine and one of the Frenchmen commented that when the wine was bottled "France was still paying off its debt from the Franco-Prussian War."

"I threatened to sit my glass on the edge of the table to see if they would fill it," George chuckled.

He didn't however. In fact "they didn't even let me smell the cork."

As every reader who was in this area last week knows, there was summer-like weather for Greenville and Pitt County.

That's enough to bring out any good fisherman, and one observer tells us that he saw a guy standing by the swimming pool at a local apartment complex diligently casting with his rod and reel.

Our informant says he doesn't know whether or not the man caught any fish.

Word Deflation

(Greensboro Daily News)

President Ford, apparently growing weary of Ronald Reagan's attacks on his policy of detente with the Soviet Union, has devised a clever scheme for mooting the issue. This week he proposed the word "detente" be stricken from the vocabulary altogether.

It is a wonder Washington has not discovered this marvelous technique before. Suppose, for example, the word "busing" had been axed from the political lexicon long ago. Or how about the words "unemployment," "inflation," "Angola" or even "taxes?" The possibilities for immediate relief are endless.

Word elimination might also be proposed for the primary campaign as well. First on the list should be the word "populist," which is the word used to describe candidates who are for the "people," which is the second word on the list. These should be followed by such nuisances as "promise," "platform," "pledge," "poll" and "prerequisite." Without these words, of course, there would be no "issues" and no "candidates" and thus no need for "Washington" or the "President," much less "detente" with Russia.

Naturally there are drawbacks to this approach. If there were no Washington and no presidential campaign, a lot of politicians would be unemployed. This would upset the people and activate the pollsters. Someone would draw up a platform and become a candidate. Upon his election there would be new taxes to hire the unemployed, which in turn would generate inflation and political opposition, and another campaign.

And all this misery because someone back along the line couldn't speak French. You wonder why they didn't call it "Soviet-American reckoning," or something of the kind. Instead we have followed Humpty Dumpty's scornful advice to Alice: "When I use a word," he said, "it means just what I choose it to mean— neither more nor less." And in that lies the malaise of our time.

40 Years Ago Today

March 7, 1936

Victory for President Roosevelt's tax proposal was forecast today by House leaders as sentiment began to crystalize back of the plan.

House chieftains were not yet ready to forecast the exact form in which the proposal for a drastic tax on undistributed corporations profits would be framed, but they expressed confidence the basic features would be approved.

Chief points of attack on the President's proposal to raise corporate taxes was that it would discourage corporations from setting up reserves to tide them over lean years.

INSIDE REPORT

Reagan's Problem In Fla.

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

TAMPA, Fla. — Although the informal consensus of the Republican state executive committee at a meeting in Orlando last week gave Ronald Reagan a 4-point edge over President Ford in Tuesday's Florida primary, Reagan's compaign desperately needs a cutting edge to deal with Gerald Ford's immense advantage of incumbency.

"Everybody's telling him to attack Ford," Ward Dougherty, the Reagan chairman here in Hillsborough County, told us just before the former California governor arrived at a full-house $5-a-plate luncheon here Friday.

Moments later, warming up the 600 guests, many of them from Tampa's business and social top drawer, Dougherty said: "I wish he would forget all that 11th Commandment stuff, but he won't." The roar of applause left no doubt that everyone agreed.

But Gentleman Ron is no gutfighter, nor is he one who relishes drawing political blood. Indeed, Reagan really believes in the 11th Commandment—"Thou shalt speak no evil of any other Republicans." Thus, no subject has so consumed the energies of his high command in the grim aftermath of New Hampshire as the "cutting-edge problem"; how to prod Reagan onto the offensive in an effort to undermine Gerald R. Ford's proclaimed right to continue as leader of the Republican party and hence as its presidential nominee.

But the "cutting-edge problem" still seems unsolved. For the most part, Reagan's rhetoric against the President last weekend was wrapped in cotton wadding with scarcely the glint of a sharp edge. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, he said, would certainly be replaced by President Reagan; under Mr. Ford and his predecessors the country has been brought "to the brink of economic ruin"; the U.S., a "once-proud nation," is in deadly danger of becoming hostage to Soviet military power; in the hands of Mr. Ford and Kissinger, its foreign policy is "vacillating" and, in their pre-Angola plan for closer relations with Cuba and in their unannounced intention of giving up sovereignty to the Panama Canal, they are endangering U.S. security.

So far, hardly enough hot lead to make an eight—column headline. But even if Reagans does put aside natural inclination and gets tough with Mr. Ford on his final campaign swing later this week, the result might confound the hawks. One top Reagan operative here fears that outright attacks on the President would boomerang. "They think Ford is a

NO TIMEPIECE

There is a woman in this town who has no timepiece in her house—no watch, no clock. She keeps track of the time by turning on the radio or calling her husband at his job.

Absurd? Yet some people live spiritually on just such a basis. They have no certain moral standards in their lives. If occasion arises for the employment of ethical principle, they use some little rule of thumb, or follow expediency, or seek the advice of friends. If you ask them what their religion is, they shake their heads and say that they have never given much thought to religion. They don't go to church because it just seems to be too much trouble.

We may think that the woman who has no timepiece in her house is silly and irresponsible, but the person who has no creed in his life, no standards of belief or morality, is equally foolish and irresponsible in his own way.

NEW YORK (AP) — When stocks soared during the 1960s, mutual funds soared with them. They turned in big year-to-year gains. And the number of funds and the money invested in them swelled.

In the first half of the 1970s the mutual funds, which pool the resources of their many small and large members and then invest those resources, haven't done very well in stocks.

At best, the market has dawdled about, and as a consequence, so have most of the mutual funds. Every time prices rose, so did redemptions; old investors saw the rise as a chance to bail out.

The industry watched enviously as their former investors deserted them for the high interest rates offered by certificates of deposit and Treasury Bills. And then they followed.

The emergence of the so-called money market funds, which took their profits from short-term interest rates, was the biggest innovation in the industry since World War II, when it was just a baby.

The money market funds didn't offer the possibility of spectacular gains, but in an unstable economy they did seem to offer a modicum of stability. The money market funds grew from experiment to thriving business in just a few months.

Now, according to the Investment Company Institute, the industry's trade association, another innovation might soon appear: the municipal bond fund. Never before has the industry as a whole considered this outlet.

Robert Augenblick, president of the institute, says such an investment vehicle might provide many billions of dollars for thousands of towns and cities now struggling to finance needed projects.

More important to investors, he adds, is that it would also "benefit the investor of moderate means by making it feasible for him to invest conveniently in a diversified portfolio of such bonds."

Why should individuals be interested in the municipal market? Because of the tax benefits. Investors in such securities pay no federal income tax on the interest, thus putting yields into the double digits for many people.

The institute gives this example:

For a married person with a taxable income of $16,000 a year, a yield of 5.89 per cent on state and local bonds is equivalent to a taxable yield of 8.18 per cent. For an unmarried person it is equal to 8.92 per cent.

Of course, those effective yields rise with income. The higher the tax bracket the greater the advantage.

But why should an individual go through an intermediary — and pay that intermediary — instead of buying the bonds directly? Why hire a mutual fund to do what you can do on your own?

The fund people have set answers for those questions: Because funds offer diversification, thus lowering the risk; because they offer professional management; because you can buy in smaller amounts through a fund.

New Support For Defense

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N.J.—Amid reports of growing Soviet military might, public support for defense spending has increased to the highest point recorded in regular surveys over the last seven years.

In the latest nationwide survey, 22 per cent say "too little" is being allocated for defense in the budget—an increase of 10 percentage points from the previous survey in 1974 and 14 points since 1969 when the series of questions was started.

The latest results in full:

Amount Being Spent For Defense?

Too little	22%
Too much	36
About right	32
No opinion	10

The sharpest change in views since 1974 has come about among those with a college background. In the 1974 survey, only 8 per cent of the college group said "too little" was being spent. Today the figure is 24 per cent, three times as high.

Record Number See Russian, Chinese Power Growing

The current findings are recorded at a time when Americans are evenly divided on the question of whether U.S. power in the world will increase or decline, but are in widespread agreement that the power of Russia and China will grow. In fact, the proportion of Americans who see Russian and Chinese influence increasing is currently at the highest point recorded since the early 1960s, when these surveys were initiated.

In assessing the current findings and trend, it is important to bear in mind that the proportion of the budget to bear in mind that the proportion of the budget earmarked for defense has changed sharply over the last few years. While the current budget calls for $101.1 billion for defense, or about 26 per cent of the total budget, the proportion was, for example, 33 per cent in 1972.

At the same time, however, the current survey shows the public having little awareness of the proportion of the total budget earmarked for defense.

Seven in 10 (70) per cent) do not venture a guess, while only 16 per cent have an approximate idea of the correct amount. And only 7 per cent of the total sample came close to the actual figure.

Regional Differences Found In Survey

The South and West are currently found to be more inclined to say "too little" is being spent than are the East and Midwest. Young people continue to be more in favor of slashing the defense budget than do older people. Republicans and Democrats hold similar views on the issue.

Here is the question asked in the survey:

"There is much discussion as to the amount of money the government in Washington should spend for national defense and military purposes. How do you feel about this? Do you think we are spending too little, too much, or about the right amount?"

Here are the latest results and trend since 1969:

Amount Being Spent For Defense?

This question was asked to determine awareness of the size of the defense budget:

"Offhand, do you happen to recall about how much of every dollar is now spent for military and defense purposes?"

The results:

(Responses were considered "correct" if they fell in the range from 20 to 29 cents. "Approximately correct" responses included the range from 10 to 19 cents and from 30 to 39 cents.)

bungler," this aide told us, "but they feel tremendous sympathy for him as President."

Precisely that sympathy, or some kindred emotion, was in dramatic evidence the next day along Florida's Gold Coast across the state from here where Mr. Ford, braving an all-day downpour, proved this point: however disillusioned American voters are about their politicians, the drawing power of the presidency remains immense and pervasive.

In a small outdoor park at Delray, at least 500 voters waited under umbrellas in pelting rain for an hour for the arrival not of Jerry Ford but of the President of the United States. That story was repeated from one stop to another as the presidential motorcade weaved through the high-rise condominiums, detoured to a mobile-home retirement village called Briny Breezes, with 641 registered Republicans, and wound on down to Deerfield Beach nearly two hours late where several thousand had waited an hour and a half.

Not even Ronald Reagan, the most charismatic presidential candidate in the field, could hold thousands of voters in the pouring rain as the President did.

There was, moreover, a new confidence in Mr. Ford's stock campaign speech. Gone was the unsupportable charge that Reagan is a right-wing extremist. Instead Mr. Ford repeated his new hard line against Cuba's Castro, undercutting the political impact of Reagan's warnings; praised the decline in inflation and unemployment rates; and, in a subtle denigration of Reagan's whole campaign theme, said over and over he was "sick and tired" of those who "downgrade America."

Thus, taking advantage of the immense power of his incumbency, Mr. Ford gave voters along his eight-hour motorcade route what Reagan cannot begin to match: a close-up look at the President. That is what Reagan's do-or-die challenge here must belatedly find an answer to and why the search for a new "cutting ege" is so important.

A Mixed-Up Spring For Blue Ridge Residents

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

SCRABBLE, Va.—We put a classified ad in Saturday Review three weeks ago—most bluebirds read the Saturday Review—and on Monday a young male by the name of Matthew Arnold turned up. He had flown in to inspect the premises with a view toward renting a house for the summer. My wife gave him the old sales pitch, and I think we have a tenant.

Ordinarily we don't start showing the bluebird houses until St. Patrick's Day or thereabouts, but this has been a crazy winter in the Blue Ridge Mountains. No one can remember a February like the one just ended. Usually we have to apologize for February, for February usually is cold, dour, sullen—a month with nothing to do and four dull weeks to do it in.

What happened this year, or so they say at the Woodville Independent Rural Post Office, is that February and March got mixed up in the mail. Some pretty funny things keep occurring in the Postal Service. Our regular shipments of snow, sleet and mud never arrived; the slate-gray skies never appeared; we got high wind, nice puffy clouds, and days in the 70s instead. It's hard to know what to think.

Our local farmers, like farmers everywhere, are by nature a pessimistic breed. At the moment, their pessimism is running full. This is peach and apple country, and the silly trees have all come down with spring fever. They are budding madly; they are threatening to blossom five or six weeks early; and surely a killing freeze will yet descend. Last year the apple growers lost their shirts: Too many apples. This year the glum prospect goes in the other direction.

It's mystifying. Young Arnold arrived a little before 8 o'clock, while my wife was having her second cup of coffee. He knocked at the kitchen window, and at first I thought it was a nuthatch or a titmouse looking for breakfast. Then I saw the burgundy turtleneck and the spiffy sports coat, and my wife went to get the keys. Our bluebird houses were made by the Boy Scouts of Amissville of rough-cut pine, with wall-to-wall carpet, refrig, air cond., washer & drier, magnif. view of mtns, all utils frnshd, and they rent fast. Arnold had the newlywed flutters, but he seemed impressed.

Most of our winter birds are still around. They don't know what to make of the season either. The quail are still coveyed up; they play three tables of duplicate bridge under the feeder every Tuesday. We have cardinals, bluejays, grosbeaks, chickadees, mockingbirds, red-bellied and downy woodpeckers, and six kinds of sparrows. The robins and red-winged blackbirds arrived last week. The juncos haven't left. Ordinarily we figure spring has arrived when the juncos depart, but they're still bustling around. They haven't even made their plane reservations.

Another odd thing: Nobody has yet seen a groundhog. Rappahannock County has a population of 5,199 persons and 525,000 groundhogs, and if it really were spring, these characters would be lumbering along the roadsides, scratching their beer-bellies and yawning. They're still snoozing. The rabbits are tumbling around and the night wind brings an unmistakable eau de skunk. The chipmunks began spring training this week.

For the past several days, Jimmy Falls has been plowing up in the high meadow, the big tractor rolling up waves of rich red earth. They are selling onion sets down at Burke's Store. In our county seat of Washington, Va., Mrs. Joyce Kramer is pushing her Bicentennial plant-a-tree campaign. Last Sunday we had a young people's chorus, accompanied by three guitars, singing "Kum Ba Ya" in the Episcopal church. They were tremendous.

This isn't a final spring report. It's merely a preliminary report, subject to seasonal correction. I'd be a lot more certain if it weren't for the groundhogs and the juncos. They probably know some things the robins don't know. But provisionally, and very cuatiously, it has to be said that for early March, the times are extraordinarily pleasant.

My brothers in the pundit racket are pretty well absorbed with politics and primary campaigns, and ordinarily I am too, and will be again. But the business of electing a president of the United States has its drawbacks. You sometimes neglect the truly important events, like the first crocus, the first robin, and a bridegroom bluebird who comes to the kitchen window, and knocks.

Early Votes Point To Election Success Lies In The Political Center

By GEORGE BRYANT, JR.

The ideological gap between the Democratic and Republican nominees for President probably will be much narrower this year than it was four or even eight years ago.

At this time, President Ford is rated an odds-on bet to win his party's nomination for an elected term in the White House. On the political scale, he's close to center, with a right tilt. There's concern that a Ronald Reagan nomination might bring on another Goldwater debacle, such as the swing to the far right in 1964.

And in the early presidential primaries, Democrats seem to be telling their party to stay out of deep left field and back a candidate somewhere nearer center. They well remember what happened four years ago when the liberal left maneuvered the nomination of Senator George McGovern.

None of this is surprising. Polls long have indicated a trend toward the center. The ultra conservative hasn't had much of a following for years. And, more recently, there has been a growing disenchantment with the liberal doctrine that Washington can cure all ills, social and economic simply with more governments passing out more money and then passing the cost on to the future.

On the Democratic side, the Massachusetts primary may well be a good indication of the way the tide is running. This is a pretty good test state. It has fairly dense population, with diverse ethnic and religious groups. It is an industrial state, with Boston serving as a regional financial center. And it's labor is well unionized. And it has the political reputation of being "liberal".

But for the presidential side of liberal politcs, primary day in Massachusetts was about as cold as the weather. The four candidates from the left managed to pile up only 37 percent of the vote. Rep. Morris Udall, Arizona, won the lion's share, 18 percent. Neither Former Senator Fred Harris, Sargent Shriver (the Kennedy in-law) nor Senator Birch Bayh got enough votes to "wad a gun".

The candidates nearer center walked off with an impressive 56 percent of the total. This was split between Senator Henry Jackson, Governor George Wallace and ex-Governor Jimmy Carter, with Jackson the winner with 23 percent of the total votes.

A lot of explanations are advanced for the way this primary turned out. School busing played a part. Carter's straddle on the right-to-work issue probably hurt him both ways. Organized labor came down hard for Jackson, with both manpower and money. The left consoles itself with the fact the Udall made a fair showing, considering the fact he is not well known.

But when you cut through all this, the most significant thing is the way a strong majority of Massachusetts voters went for the candidates with positions not far off the political center. All preached less, not more, government.

It is hard to see how the Democratic left can maneuver Udall, or someone like him, into the nomination. The party's rules have been modified in such a way that the "amateurs" at the July convention will find it harder to pull off another McGovern. But this doesn't mean that one of the three front runners is sure to come off with an easy convention prize.

There is bound to be a lot of bitterness before its is over. For example, Wallace shows good strength. And if he does well in Florida, his position will be impressive. But there is hardly a politician outside the Wallace camp who gives the Governor a chance to come off with the nomination, even if he emerges as the victor in the primaries—top man. They are not clear on how he would be "robbed".

It might wind up that either Jackson or Carter would have to make a "deal" with Wallace in order to get the nomination. This would create a lot of hard feeling within the party. If things do get to this point, then one of the sideliners might be tapped.

That, of course, is the hope of Senator Humphrey. He hungers for the nomination. But in this sort of a situation, Senator Ted Kennedy might have to be considered. He could change his mind if, for example, the economy soured and made an easy victory seem sure.

Of course, any Democrat will stay to the left of Ford. But the prospect is that the gap will not be so wide as that between McGovern and Nixon.

publication of "The Story of Coffee and Tea" (St. Martin's), a book he wrote with his older brother, Karl, and their father, David.

The book contains history, legends, shopping advice and a few recipes for coffee, tea and herbal teas.

To Schapira, "There's no such thing as an all-purpose (coffee) grind. You must use the right particle size for the brewing cycle to release the flavor, body, and aroma. If it is too coarse for the paper filter method, there's less surface area, less time for water to remain in contact with the grounds. Too fine a grind takes too long to filter, and makes bitter coffee."

For strong coffee, he suggests using more ground coffee than the industry-recommended Approved Coffee Measure of 2 tablespoons to each 6 ounces of freshly drawn water.

"If you like a mild-flavored blend, make regular strength coffee and add hot water as you would with tea."

He said small households should buy small quantities and store both tea and coffee airtightly, the tea at room temperature and coffee beans in glass containers in the freezer or refrigerator, to be ground as needed on a day-by-day basis.

He recommends refrigerating only a few days' supply of ground coffee at a time; frequent removal of frozen coffee to room temperature causes condensation on the beans and deterioration.

Schapira said an electric blender can substitute for a special coffee grinder if the blender base can use special 1-cup size blender jars. He advises electric advises against a standard, large blender container because it's so large it grinds beans unevenly, resulting in too little or too much surface exposure to water in the brewing process.

Although purists disapprove, he insists that a chrome or stainless steel tea ball is an acceptable gadget for brewing a good cup of tea. "It has the very good effect of isolating spent tea leaves from the brew. But it has to be big enough to allow the leaves to swell." He said aluminum is not too good because it can affect flavor.

They're Right; Mothers Worry Over Anything

That commercial on TV is right—new mothers do worry about everything. I worry about what color the baby's hair is going to be—when she gets some. And I worry about whether or not I'll be able to afford her college education. But the thing I worry about most is her health.

It's gotten to the point that every time the pediatrician sees us coming, he hides. The baby has been rushed to his office for a hemorrhage—which turned out to be your common garden variety nosebleed. And we have had an emergency consultation about something I was sure was the chickenpox—and which was actually an advanced case of diaper rash.

The latest thing I've worried about is her sleeping habits. "What am I going to do?" I asked the nurse over the phone. "She was sleeping through the night for awhile, but for the past three weeks she's been waking up every two hours."

"Oh, I don't think you need to worry. I'm sure it's nothing serious," the nurse answered reassuringly.

"You mean you don't think she's hyperactive?"

"No, but maybe she's hungry. Try feeding her some solid foods."

I looked at my daughter's quadruple chin. She sure didn't look underfed, but then she was chewing on everything in sight. In fact, at that very moment she had pulled herself across the floor, and she was chewing on my tennis shoe. I was going to ask the nurse if it was possible for a baby to contract athlete's stomach, but she had already hung up.

GAIL MICHAELS

Anyway, I took her advice and tried feeding the baby some applesauce.

"Yum, yum, yum," I cooed, shoving a spoonful in her mouth. "Ptui!" she answered. Obviously, applesauce wasn't her dish. So I tried bananas. And I got the same response. By the end of feeding time my kitchen was carpeted in wall-to-wall tutti frutti. So I decided to take her to the doctor immediately.

"I can't get anything down her," I told him. "I'm afraid she has a convulsive esophagus."

"A what?" he asked.

I couldn't believe he was so uninformed. "It's an illness I read about in Popular Mechanics," I asnwered, picking up the baby from the examining table.

"I really don't think there's anything the matter with her, Mrs. Michaels. She looks healthy, and she's not running a fever."

I sighed loudly. "Don't you know anything? She's fussy, she's not sleeping well, and she gnaws on everything including me. Why, this morning she even bit me."

"She what?" he asked.

"She bit me."

"Give me that baby," he said, taking her and sticking his finger in her mouth. "You're right," he said seriously. "She does have a very painful childhood affliction."

"Oh, no!" I sobbed. "Is it curable? Break it to me gently, doctor. What is it!"

He handed me the baby, took my finger, and ran it across a sharp ridge on her bottom gum. "She's teething."

Car Of Tomorrow Is Taking Its Shape Today

By CARL HARTMAN
Associated Press Writer

BRUSSELS (AP) — It will never be necessary to adjust the carburetor on the car of tomorrow. A European expert predicts that a small electronic device and a foolproof magnetic contact breaker will take everything into account for the life of the engine.

"Advances in semiconductors and integrated circuits mean that the total integration of carburetion and ignition is around the corner," according to Joseph Gerard Wurm, a Common Market expert on automobiles.

He said that sensors would feed the electronic device with all the information it needed on the water temperature, atmospheric pressure, the speed of the engine and other factors to make sure that as much of the fuel as possible was burned with the smallest emission of pollutants.

Wurm described "The Car of Tomorrow" in an article for "Industry and Society," published by the European Commission, the Common Market executive. He told the Associated Press that one American firm— Chrysler— has made a lot of progress in using transistors in its ignition system. But he saw centralized electronics for ignition and carburetion as still five or six years off.

His predictions were made with European cars largely in mind, but he said American models would follow the same trend. Front wheel drive, already normal on most European cars, he expects to be standard on more expensive models as well and to spread in the United States.

At least one American car — Oldsmobile— has a model with a front wheel drive.

Wurm called the front wheel drive cheap to manufacture and a guarantee of better roadholding and safety. In Europe it has been used mostly in small and medium sized cars — which are also small, by American standards — but he said the development of engines made of light metal alloys will popularize the device for larger models. Peugeot and Volvo, he added, now have engines weighing only 330 to 350 pounds.

But he said heavier, high priced cars will probably stick to front engines and rear wheel drive, with the transmission moved some distance to the rear to improve the distribution of weight.

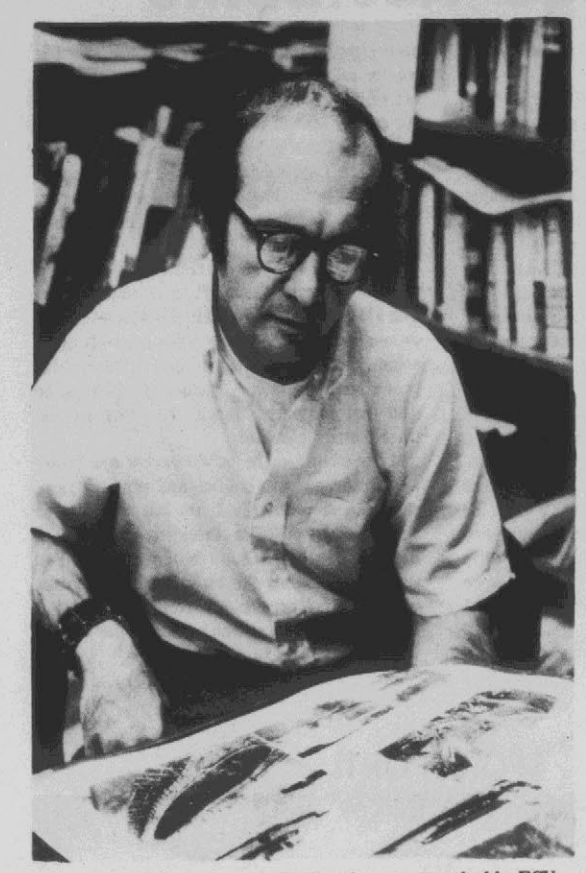

Wurm found room for better streamlining, which he said can mean a 6 to 8 per cent saving in fuel.

"The car of tomorrow," he wrote, "is likely to come to a point in the front and slope slightly toward the rear."

Wurm noted that a 10 per cent cut in weight means a 4 to 5 per cent cut in fuel. One way to reduce weight is to increase the proportion of aluminum and plastics in building cars, as many Americans experts are recommending. But Wurm pointed out that both plastics and aluminum take a lot of energy to manufacture — so that the overall savings might not be so big. It takes 6.7 times as much energy, he said, to make a pound of aluminum as it takes to make a pound of steel.

Wurm said strict insistence on safety and antipollution equipment may cancel out the saving in weight from the use of lighter materials. He saw the trade-off between cost and pollution control as a major problem.

ECU Professor Researching N.C. Shipbuilding

N.C. SHIPBUILDING . . . is a subject being researched by ECU historian Dr. William Still. Interested in all phases of Tar Heel shipbuilding, Still plans to write a book on the subject. (ECU News Bureau Photo).

By
GEORGE A. THREEWITTS
ECU News Bureau

North Carolina's shipbuilding industry is seldom mentioned in history books, but a historian at East Carolina University says that N.C. shipyards once employed thousands of people and played an important role in the maritime history of the United States.

"It is amazing, the amount of shipbuilding that has gone on in this state," says Dr. William N. Still, associate professor of history at ECU.

"During World War Two there were more 'Liberty' ships launched at Wilmington than anyplace in the country . . .400 ships. Shipyards in New Bern, Morehead City and Elizabeth City were constructing minesweepers, auxiliary vessels and barges. And I've been told that a company in Manteo built PT boats but I haven't checked that out yet," he said.

Still, an authority on the Civil War and the author of two books about ironclads and Confederate shipbuilding, is currently researching the state's shipbuilding industry.

He explained that his interest in maritime history began last year while teaching a coastal studies course at ECU. He discovered that there was very little information on ship and boatbuilding in North Carolina.

In his initial research, he ran across a book listing the American flag merchant ships that entered New York harbor between 1789 and 1867. To his surprise, 300 of the vessels had been built in North Carolina.

With his interest ignited, Still applied for and received a grant from the ECU Coastal Marine Institute. The grant enables him to spend more of his time traveling around the state and talking to people who remember shipbuilding.

"I also find a lot of information in old newspapers . . .when a ship was launched, who built it and its dimensions and tonnage. What I need now is more information about the shipyards and the types of vessels that were constructed," he said.

His sources have uncovered some relatively obscure ships and building sites. For instance a shipyard in Tarboro constructed a steamboat in 1895. And small inland shipyards in Fayetteville, Goldsboro, Murfreesboro and Williamston were producing numerous 19th-century river craft.

"Anywhere there is a waterway something was built. It's just fantastic trying to run these things down."

The biggest obstacle for the historian is finding suitable material from the 17th and 18th centuries. The early records were kept by the British and most of the ships that were constructed in the colonies during the period were listed only as "Plantation built."

"There was a shipbuilding industry in North Carolina during the Colonial period but how extensive; I don't know just yet. I think it was more extensive than people realize."

Still says he wants to know everything about North Carolina shipbuilding from the Colonial period through World War Two and he is looking for people with information, dates and records.

"I want to know how Wilmington got the steel during the war to construct 400 'Liberty' ships and where are the 15,000 people who were working the Wilmington shipyards during the war years?"

"They say that 30 years ago North Carolina fishermen used sailboats. I want to know something about the transition from sailing vessels to powered vessels.

"I also want to know about commercial fishing and shrimping in this state. There is absolutely nothing on the evolution of the trawler."

When he gets his answers, Still plans to write a book. He expects it to be the first book ever written about the once great but forgotten shipbuilding industry in the Tar Heel state.

International Carpet Facility Opens Here

George H. Powell, president of International Carpet Inc., announced that the company's second Eastern North Carolina facility is now in operation in Greenville.

Powell said that International Carpet opened recently at 1806 Dickinson Avenue. He noted that the company purchased the 5,600 square foot building.

The company president, who is also serving as manager of the Greenville store, said that part of the building was remodeled prior to the recent opening and further renovations are planned in the near future.

International Carpet here will have a full line of carpet and Congoleum, it was pointed out, with crews available for product installation.

GEORGE POWELL

In addition to the local store the firm operates a carpet center in Raleigh managed by David Whitley, a partner in the corporation. A third store will open this month in New Bern, Powell explained, with Kenneth Powell, the third partner, scheduled to manage the facility.

The Greenville manager, reared in Fuquay-Varina, lived there until entering the Army for a three-year tenure. After his discharge from service, he bought an interest in his father's Powell's Interiors Ltd. in Raleigh and Fuquay-Varina.

In 1970, Powell opened Carpet Market in Raleigh and held interest in both firms until 1975 when he opened International Carpet in Raleigh with his brother, Kenneth, and Whitley.

Powell is married to the former Lynn Bullard of Raleigh and they have two daughters.

Postal Union Leader Accuses Business Interests

The leader of the American Postal Workers Union (AFL-CIO) in Greenville said Friday said that, "powerful business interests are out to skim off the most lucrative parts of the Postal Service for their own profit, at the expense of postal employees and the public."

L. Ray Hardee, President of the Greenville Local of the big AFL-CIO union representing more than 300,000 "inside" postal workers, accused "profit-hungry corporations of misleading our citizens with the myth that this essential government service was reorganized in 1970 to earn a profit."

"At best, he said, "postal reform proposed only a break-even goal at some distant date in the future — a dream long since shattered by runaway inflation and dwindling mail volume."

"But by perpetuating this false profit concept," Hardee said, "right wing elements are hastening ever more reductions in service with inhuman impacts on postal employees through wholesale transfers of personnel, closing of offices and work norm speed-ups."

According to Hardee, "the increasing attacks on the Postal Service by the media and other interests with an axe to grind ignore the costly managerial mistakes of all those private-enterprisers brought in to run the service on 'business-like basis' since reform."

Editorial writers and cartoonists," Hardee said, "who kick workers in the face for the mistakes of managers and policy-makers are doing a great injustice to rank and file employees of the Postal Service."

Lost Colony Auditions Schedule Announced

Local auditions for those interested in acting in the 1976 production of The Lost Colony will be held at The Lost Colony Activity Building at the Ft. Raleigh National Historic Site, Manteo, at 10 a.m. Monday, March 22, according to Bob Knowles, production coordinator for the drama.

Those interested in registering for auditions should contact The Lost Colony's general manager, Page Meekins, at 473-2127 in Manteo.

"Each auditioning participant will be required to furnish his or her own material, and should be prepared to present a full one minute memorized scene. It is suggested that the presentation not require an accent or dialect," Knowles said.

Singing auditions, for those interested in performing in The Lost Colony choir will be held at the same location as the acting auditions, but on Monday, March 29 at 2 p.m.

Singing auditions will be conducted by Dr. James Cobb, music director for The Lost Colony . Knowles announced. Those interested in auditioning for the choir should also contact Meekins at The Lost Colony office prior to the audition.

No local auditions for dancing will be held this year in Manteo, Knowles said. Those interested in dancing with The Lost Colony should attend the March 20 Institute of Outdoor Drama auditions at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Drop-Out Rate Costly

By JOHN LENGEL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The high drop-out rate at the service academies constitutes a waste of the taxpayer's money, congressional auditors say.

A General Accounting Office study said Friday that between 13 and 18 per cent of the costs of five service academies are spent on persons who ultimately drop out.

"For each student who leaves the academy, the government incurs measurable costs for the period of time he was at the academy. The longer the student is at the academy before he drops out, the greater the costs which the academy will have incurred," the GAO said.

"In the final analysis, every student who drops out increases the cost of an academy graduate," it said.

In its study of the military, Air Force, naval, merchant marine and Coast Guard academies, GAO said the institutions are losing enrollees at a near-record rate.

The Air Force Academy class of 1975 lost 46 per cent of its original members. The lowest figure for the five academies was 36 per cent for the Military Academy.

Skyhooks, New Arrivals On The U.S. Scene

Top Aussie Rock Band Appeared Here

By SUSAN QUINN
Reflector Staff Writer

Australia's number one rock and roll group, Skyhooks, appeared at Minges Coliseum Friday night performing on a bill that included Joe Crocker and Styx.

After two years of fighting off teenyboppers, bobby-sockers, and widly attacking Austrialian fans, the Skyhooks recently decided to meet new musical challenges by touring the United States and Europe.

The Skyhooks' rock and roll music had a smilar impact on Australia that the Beatles' music had on the United States. It was new, it was frank, it used words that caused an initial ban on their first hit "You Just Like Me 'Cos I'm Good In Bed."

The group was well received by the crowd in Minges Coliseum.. Special color explosion effects and the weird makeup and costumes of the group created a lively audience response.

Hits from the Skyhoos repetoire included "You Just Like Me 'Cos I'm Good In Bed," "Ego Is Not A Dirty Word," "All My Friends Are Getting Married," and "Horror Movie."

After their performance, one of the five Skyhooks members, Red Symons, explained that the concert at ECU was the night the Skyhooks have been in the states.

"At home we had a good reputation but coming to the U.S. is getting into reality because we're meeting new challenges," another of the five, Shirley Strachan said.

"We have been to New Orleans and Atlanta and will be going to Augusta and Greenville, (South Carolina)", Symons said.

Asked about their colorful far-out makeup and costumes that the group is noted for, Symons said, "We use it in self defense," he said, then added "not really, it is an extension of our performance. It attracts attention."

"Coming to the states is a good change. At home we were number one. Here it is a new challenge to try different things. We are travelling with some well known groups like Joe Crocker and Uriah Heap. We would much prefer to do this type of concert rather than the type we did at home where we were screamed at by the crowd of teenyboppers," said Greg Macainsh, songwriter and guitarist.

Asked if the group is scheduled for television appearances in the states during their tour, Michael Gudinski, manager of Skyhooks said that the group will be on "Midnight Special" at the end of the tour.

The five young Aussie's seemed to be relaxed and friendly with the stage crew and backstage bystanders. They occasionally made distorted faces which drew attention to their costumes and makeup.

After leaving ECU, Bob (Bongo), Starkie, dressed in a green and yellow striped knit outfit, wearing a white wig and painted with much black makeup, caused a stir and a second look by some Greenville motorists as he stood in the door of the bus taking them back to their hotel.

A Thousand Mile Dogsled Ride

By PEGGY ANDERSEN
Associated Press Writer

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — A 70-year-old veteran of the Antarctic, a butcher from New York and 44 other men on dogsleds hit the trail today to mush 1,000 miles to Nome.

It's the fourth annual Iditarod Trail Race, a man-against-nature struggle through some of the wildest country in North America.

Most will straggle into Nome at the end of the month, their faces bleeding and blistered from frostbite.

The first man to Nome, once a gold mining camp on the Bering Sea, wins $12,000. The rest of the $50,000 purse will be split among the next 19 finishers. The man in 20th place will get $500.

The dogsledders must battle unpredictable weather, mountain passes and frozen rivers — but not at first.

There are so many busy highways surrounding Anchorage that trucks were arranged to pick up men and howling huskies after the start from a city park and take them 40 miles to Knik. There the snowy solitude begins.

The racers' first checkpoint is the village of Susitna, about 35 miles away. It's one of 24 spots along the course where hot coffee, food and a fire provide respite for the men and their dogs.

The oldest racer is 70-year-old Norman Vaughan of Anchorage, one-time musher for Adm. Richard Byrd's expeditions in the Antarctic. He is an Iditarod veteran.

John Giannone, a butcher from Saugerties, N.Y., went more than $5,000 in debt to fulfill a longtime dream of competing in the race.

Humane Society officials condemn the race. Five dogs died in 1975. But an Iditarod spokesman said, "It is not cruel. The people who run this race take better care of their dogs than most people."

A musher will average 70 miles daily. Most of the time he will bed down in the wilderness where he must feed the dogs and make beds of boughs for them before setting up a tent for himself.

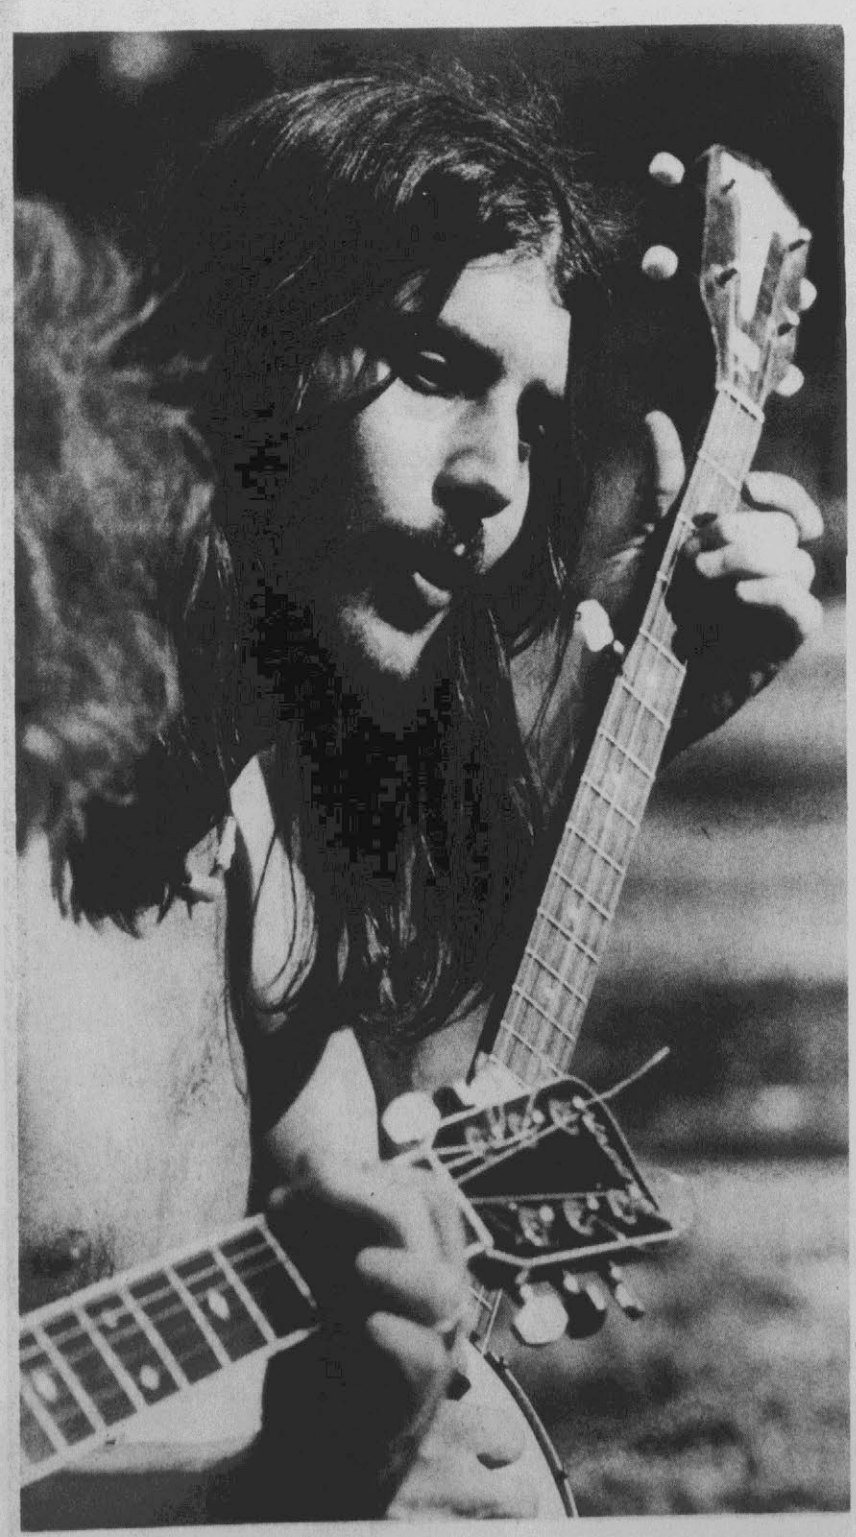

The trail is so rough in spots that dogs wear canvas booties to protect their feet.

Cold and wind can combine for a chill factor of 130 degrees below zero in a screaming blizzard. There can be "whiteouts," where everything, the white tundra, the white sky, the white horizon, looks the same. A musher might as well be blind.

Last year 25 men — out of 39 starters — and 188 dogs — out of 508 — made it, most in about 20 days. The 1975 winner, Emmitt Peters of Ruby, Alaska, set a record: 14 days, 14 hours. He is in this year's race.

In addition to Giannone, there are two other out-of-state racers: Terry Adkins of Mountain Home, Idaho, and former rodeo cowboy Jack Hooker of Ovando, Mont.

The race is inspired in part by a heroic dogsled run in 1925. Twenty mushers raced 674 miles from Nenana to Nome in 5½ days to deliver live-saving serum to quell a diphtheria epidemic.

Says Mouse Has Ruined Sex Life

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — A Toledo couple is suing a food company for nearly $1 million because, they say, a mouse in a can of tomatoes has ruined their sex life and caused permanent illness to the wife.

Dewey and Lucille Simpson claim in the suit filed Friday that on Jan. 16, 1975, Mrs. Simpson opened a can of Contadina stewed tomatoes, poured them into a kettle, and discovered the mouse as she tasted them.

Since then she has been unable to eat any food without first taking a pill prescribed by her doctor, the suit said.

The suit said the condition is incurable and permanent and asks for $670,000 in damages for the woman.

Her husband, Dewey, is seeking damages of $309,000, claiming medical expenses and destruction of his marriage.

Simpson, 41, said in the complaint that before the incident with the mouse the "love, affection and companionship which were his by virtue of that marriage (were) nothing short of ecstasy."

The lawsuit said Mrs. Simpson greeted her husband "at the door with kisses as he would come home from work every night, prepared his meals on time and drew his bath water every night ... "

But Simpson said in the suit that since the mouse discovery, his wife has developed "an increasingly cold, dispassionate and unaffectionate attitude" toward her husband.

The couple's lawyer said the Carnation Co. of Los Angeles, which controls the Contadina Co., has not responded to the suit.

PTI's Air And Water Resources Technology Course

Graduates Have Jobs Waiting

Text And Photographs By Jerry Raynor

The present student body of the Air and Water Resources consists of 20 freshmen and 14 sophomores. Of this number, 29 are men and five are women. Dean Painter said that ten of the students are out-ot-state, and that half a dozen are students who have transferred from East Carolina University into the Pitt Tech course.

At a time when some graduates are experiencing difficulty in getting the kind of jobs they've been trained for, there's one group of local students who do not have to face such worries.

Each student completing the Air and Water Resources Technology course at Pitt Technical Institute, according to instructor Dean Painter, "to date at least, has had two or three job offers waiting for them at the time they graduate."

Painter said demand for graduates of the two year Associate Degree course was heavy in the immediate area. As a consequence, Air and Water Resources graduates need not go far afield to find employment. . . unless that happens to be their preference.

"Our graduates have found employment with the N. C. Department of Natural and Economic Resources, the Department of Human Resources, Greenville and other city utilities, in county health departments, and more recently, with the Department of Transportation."

Another employer agency Painter mentioned is the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). "Private industries in the area are establishing their own environmental programs," Painter added, "and this will provide additional sources of employment.

"Our real problem," Painter emphasized, "is not getting jobs for graduates, but in finding enough qualified students to train to fill current needs."

Painter admits the course is not for everybody. "A student who really likes science courses does much better and is more likely to complete to the course." Qualification for enrolling is being a high school graduate or meeting the high school equivalency requirement.

Essentially, the Air and Water Resources Technology two year course provides orientation in biology, chemistry, math and physics. Students, Painter explained "learn these sciences along with practical application in both field sampling and laboratory analysis in tests conducted in water, waste water and air pollution control."

Among various laboratory techniques taught students outlined by Painter are "wet chemistry, physical and biological analysis. In addition," he said, "they learn how to use advanced equipment and tests such as the atomic absorption spectrophotometer, gas chromatography, mass transport analysis, specification analysis, stack sampling and a varied number of atmospheric sampling procedures."

From an overall viewpoint, the Air and Water Resources Technology course covers a broad range of subjects — disease transmission, solid waste management, noise pollution, food and milk sanitation, and insect and rodent control.

"Our major emphasis, however," Painter pointed out, "is placed on water, waste water and air pollution because more job opportunities exist in these areas."

Asked about the probability that this field will continue to provide a reliable job market source, Painter said he believes opportunities will become even wider in immediate years ahead.

"Large industries are now required to maintain environmental departments to insure compliance with EPA and state anti-pollution laws. This provides prospects for additional job opportunities.

"At this point," Painter added, "small industries and small municipalities who cannot comply with ETA regulations must pay independent laboratories to do their sampling and analysis work, which provides for another area for employment of environmental technicians.

Painter, who holds a BS degree in agriculture from Oregon State University and the MS degree in biology from Trinity University of San Antonio, Texas, set up and supervises the Pitt Tech Air and Water Resources Technology course. His assistant is Richard Gates, a graduate of East Carolina University with a degree in biology who is currently working on his MS degree at ECU in biochemistry.

Prior to coming to Pitt Tech, Painter was for three years Chairman of the Fayetteville Technical Institute Environmental Engineering Department.

Summing up the air and water resources program now offered at Pitt Tech, Painter commented, "We have the most extensive air pollution training program available at the community college level in all of North Carolina."

SPECTROPHOTOMETER . . . to measure atomic absorption for heavy metals analysis in water and air pollutions samples is adusted by student Burwell Syers of Kinston.

STACK SAMPLER . . . for air pollution is operated by Gerald Nipple of La Grange, (standing) and Tom Tobin, from Norfolk, Va.

Historian Says Primary Elections Found Wanting

EDITOR'S NOTE — The nation is embarked on the slightly tipsy and tedious process of choosing a President again. Herewith, presidential historian Henry F. Graff of Columbia University measures this sometimes madcap mayhem and finds it wanting, both to the people and the aspirants. The author of frequent magazine articles and histories, including "The Tuesday Cabinet: Deliberation and Decision on Peace and War Under Lyndon B. Johnson," Prof. Graff finds the need for a little mystery between the voter and the last handshake.

By HENRY F. GRAFF
Written For
The Associated Press

The hoopla and hurrahs of the 1976 Presidential campaign are growing louder. And in the rising crescendo the electoral process will once more be seen for what it long has been in the United States: a vibrant form of public entertainment as well as simply the unique and showy means the nation employs to choose a chief.

The agony and the boredom of the primaries are as necessary to the well-being of those who manufacture banners, buttons, and bumper stickers as to the health of the Republic itself. It is instructive and symbolic that at least two of the best-remembered slogans of modern Presidential campaigning — "Win With Willkie" and "I Like Ike" — originated nowhere else than in the fertile mind of a small-time producer of promotional gimcracks in New York City.

Almost everything that the press and the electronic media provide to the public in their daily offering of campaign "coverage" is fundamentally geared to amuse, titillate, stun, and rouse their readers and audiences, although all these things are not necessarily accomplished in a day or in any single news piece.

The most essential theoretical function of a campaign — to discourse on the issues — is least attended to. As a result, the candidates themselves are allowed to feel no compulsion to carry on such a discussion in any substantial way. They are simply permitted to go around projecting their "image."

They do this through chicanery, if it cannot be avoided, or buffoonery, if the occasion presents itself. The most obvious chicanery is the incessant gladhanding and grinning that makes each candidate automatically "a man of the people," joyful, lovable, and able to stand the gaff. The buffoonery ranges all the way from the kissing of babies as if they had a double vote, to posing for pictures in odd garb and unlikely settings, in order to show adaptability to petty annoyance, and to prove that the hopeful involved is "one of the boys."

It is startling to think that the effects on the voters of this kind of reporting and this kind of campaigning — closely interwined in aim and content — have barely been examined critically. To what extent is the joint product responsible for the lack of political interest that is so widespread in the population? To what degree has it fed the loss of faith in politics as an effective instrument of self-government that is so starkly apparent in the country?

Even if ready answers do not come to hand, it is not to be denied that a major effect of the American style of presidential office-seeking has been to produce candidates who have no deep convictions on most of the major questions really troubling the public.

They present, instead, "positions" carefully created by their staffs and hired servants, and learned by rote for ready answers as the need develops. An important byproduct of this intellectual emptiness is to make cynics out of both the candidates who believe they are manipulating the voters and the voters who are flattered that their instincts and desires are being pandered to so insistently. The candidates immodestly putting themselves forward as potential leaders seem obliged to behave like the French Revolutionary general who, searching frantically for the mob in Paris, said "I am the people's leader and so I must follow them."

Further, the very freedom of the press and speed of news dissemination that enable so many candidates to gain national attention in a trice also exert a restraining influence on the public's choice.

Since the beginning of the century the best of American newspaper and magazine reporting has had a patina of muckraking, where it has not been muckraking itself. A mere glance at the list of Pulitzer awards confirms this assertion. Nothing warms a managing editor's heart more than a lurid expose article. Today the so-called investigative reporters constitute a new elite in the major newsrooms of the country.

In consequence, only political candidates of pristine purity can come to the fore, people whose careers can stand as close scrutiny as Caesar's wife. This is as it should be — up to a point, for the system has the additional effect of handicapping if not eliminating those candidates who may have made a wrong decision in their earlier career, learned from it, and grown wiser accordingly. The field for political advancement, therefore, is left to either political virgins or political eunuchs.

It is no accident then that in the long generation since Franklin Roosevelt's day, as reporting has grown more intense and pervasive, no President has entered the White House with any previous experience in making significant executive decisions of a political character.

There is no preparation for being President — and history is full of surprises in the quality of performance. Still, it may be time for the public to seek their chief from among the men and women who are "seconds," people slightly damaged by virtue of having been in the fray previously but who may be credited with having lived down their errors of omission and commission.

The nation is discovering that it pays high tuition for training its President on the job. Yet we continue to look for our presidents, for the most part, in Congress, which has shown itself to be characteristically the coward's branch of government — a hiding place for people who find it safer and braver to criticize presidential policies than to devise and enact their own.

The need for better reporting of records, issues, and accomplishments by the candidate does not undermine the need for a sense of mystery.

Such mystery is the indispensable stuff of which heroes and heroines are constructed. Anybody who reads history understands easily that the magic of grand leadership has always consisted in a large measure of responsible unpredictability and bold un-self-consciousness — the two most important components of executive mystery.

The banishment of mystery from the presidential office is a recent development, an outgrowth of a false sense of what republican government requires as well as of the candid camera, the television tube, and the so-called "right to know".

Presidential privacy was once a republican equivalent of the divine right of kings, a sine qua non for the effective governance of the nation. Is there not some illumination for us in the fact that criticism of the Presidency was least in the nineteenth century, before the invention of the half-tone illustration, when most Americans went through life never knowing what their President looked like? The demise of presidential privacy within a single generation without the rise or creation of a natural and effective substitute is a major disaster little recognized so far and likely to be increasingly expensive to the nation.

Americans have been tinkering with the Presidency in various ways for 50 years. All but one of the amendments to the Constitution since the Prohibition amendment have revolved around the Presidency or directly affected the conduct of it. But the recruitment of presidents — the delicate choosing from among many people who although they appear sometimes to be peas in a pod are notably unalike in actuality — is beyond constitutional mandate or description. It requires public imagination and sophisticated courage not yet revealed in Americans or sufficiently fostered in them.

Former Sgt. Serving Sentence Of Service

ATLANTA (AP) — When Bill Higdon was an Army master sergeant in Vietnam in the late 1960s he presided over an empire of servicemen's clubs that he says grossed over $1-million a month.

Now he's in Atlanta fulfilling the terms of an unusual court sentence by working without pay to help rehabilitate psychiatric patients.

Between Vietnam and his current work in Atlanta's Grady Memorial Hospital came a Senate subcommittee's investigation into reports of fraud against the military operation of service clubs.

Eventually Higdon and three other Army sergeants, including William O. Wooldridge, once the highest ranking enlisted man in the Army, pleaded guilty to conspiring to bilk the government of millions of dollars through kickbacks and fraud in noncommissioned officers' clubs in Vietnam and Germany.

A federal judge in Los Angeles sentenced the sergeants in 1973 to return all the profits they had made and to work without pay for charitable groups for three years.

Higdon, a native of Henry County, south of Atlanta, found work at Grady — the city's charity hospital — after turning down jobs offered him as a janitor or city garbage man.

At the hospital Higdon takes groups of psychiatric patients on field trips and to a gym where he plays volley ball, softball and kick ball with them.

"I don't mind putting in my time here," he says. "I realize I could have gone to jail. I do the best job I can at the hospital ... "

His supervisor, Mrs. Kit Mason, says Higdon "has done a fantastic job. I wish I had two or three more like him."

Higdon says working without pay has not been easy for him. He says attorney fees cost him over $100,000 and that the Internal Revenue Service is still trying to collect more than a half million dollars from him.

To make ends meet, he said he worked at night as bartender and manager of a nightclub in Atlanta which has since closed.

"I had to get some money for my family and club work is all I know," he commented. His wife, Edith, works fulltime, too.

"I run a good club, you can ask anyone who was there," Higdon commented.

Keltingham

By Jerry Bishop

Traditional English Tudor styling, accented by diamond light windows and stone chimney, fashions an engaging facade for the Keltingham, a spacious two story plan. The design motif is carried inside as well, and rustic exposed beams add interest to ceilings in the family room and kitchen.

For the multiple activities of a large family the design presents a series of large rooms, including a unique kitchen complex, three full baths, three bedrooms, and a first floor laundry room.

Guests are welcomed in the closeted foyer, with formal living room at right. Furnished with built-in bookshelves and amply supplied with natural light, the living room invites quiet conversation or formal entertaining.

Bordering the living room is the contrasting family room, a study in informality. The room is capped by exposed beams and spotlights a wood-buring fireplace. Two pairs of sliding glass doors open the area to the terrace.

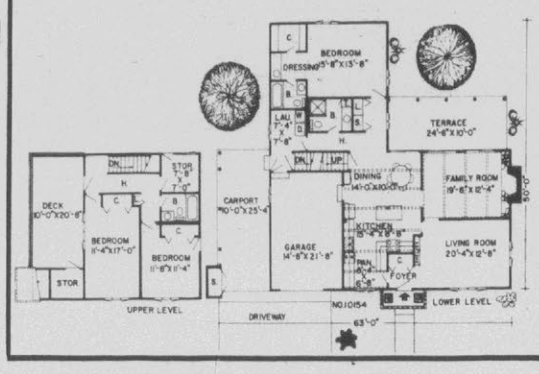

Certainly the most accessible room of the home is the remarkable kitchen, which merits an entry from the garage, foyer, living and family rooms, and terrace. The kitchen displays an expansive arrangement with dining area and pantry and is trimmed with exposed ceiling beams for charm. A full bath with shower and a handy laundry room are steps from the kitchen.

Another interesting feature in the first floor master bedroom, large and elegant, favored with a private bath, separate dressing area with built-in vanity, and walk-in closet.

Comprised of two bed room, full bath, and two storage areas, the upper level also boasts a 2-ft. deck, private and easily reached from either bedroom. The deck promises a spot for sunbathing or for relaxing under the evening stars.

Storage space is plentiful, and each floor merits a storage area. Besides the upper level storage rooms, the plan provides storage space in the carport and full basement.

Timers Are Electricity-Savers

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

To save fuel costs people have been doing everything from trying "to fool their thermostats" — by taping little light bulbs below them — to using automatic timers on their electric hot water heaters.

By mail and telephone, they've been passing their suggestions on to Jim Miller, president of Intermatic, a maker of timers, lights and heaters, and he is telling everyone about them.

The new ideas have not only sparked some new timers "but one company is making a timer with a built-in fooler especially for thermostats," Miller said.

It seems an automatic timer is used in tandem with a setback mechanism attached by adhesive underneath the thermostat. It works on the principle that air entering the bottom of the mechanism is heated and "fools" the thermostat into thinking the home is warmer than it really is, Miller said. The timer is set to turn on or shut off the mechanism at the selected times.

The manufacturer claims its unit can provide a 9 to 16 per cent energy saving, basing its claim on computer studies made by Honeywell.

As for the electric hot water heater, a Florida man who gave that tip claimed "at least 20 other families are doing the same thing," Miller says, adding:

"He has been heating the water only 15 or 20 minutes a day and he has found the tank retains enough heat so that they can continue washing dishes, showering and doing other things while the water is still hot."

In fact, he points out, one South Carolina company that installs automatic timers on heaters is specific about savings. They tell customers they will save an average of $15 a month on their electric bill. The company advocates setting the timer for 2 hours a day which should provide sufficient hot water and reduce the kilowatt hour usage by 500 kilowatt hours monthly at the rate of about three cents an hour.

Air conditioners, which rate after electric water heaters as top energy users, also get a big boost in timer thinking.

"The ideal thing is to turn your air conditioner on for the times it is needed — just before you come home at night, when you go to bed or whatever," Miller says. "And I don't know why most people do not do it." In fact, a new device is especially made for air conditioners, he says, and there are people who claim their electrical costs have been reduced 70 per cent by its use.

There are industrial timers that are used outdoors on posts and as garage lights. One family uses a 12-volt system to illuminate paths and uses a time switch to turn off the lights at midnight and turn them on at dusk.

Timers have had a big rise in popularity in the last eight years. Vacationers and working couples use them as burglar foilers. Spring-wound, in-wall timers are used in family rooms and basement areas where youngsters forget to turn off lights. Miller uses about a dozen, he says, in his own five-child household. He even controls the aquarium lights with one. Horticulturists are finding them useful for light control of indoor plants where "random lighting may be harmful and energy wasting."

There are multiple timers now that permit regulating lights to go on and off twice a day, a further security aid to vacationers who must leave apartments and houses vacant.

Recently Miller found another use in his own community for automatic timers when the temperature at Spring Grove, Ill., dropped to minus-20.

"Cars that were left outside did not start. A good tip for starting cars in such weather is to use a dipstick heater which costs about $5 and goes in the hole for the oil dipstick.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG

Q. — We bought an old house. It was built in 1945 and has asphalt shingles on the roof. While making a repair on the inside of one of the gutters, I noticed the channel was filled with that mineral substance that apparently originally was on the shingles. Did these granules serve a purpose and what does their loosening indicate?

A. — The mineral granules serve a double purpose. They provide roof color and texture and they increase fire resistance. Their presence in large quantities in the gutters usually means that you need a new roof or, at the least, will need one soon.

Q. — I have just finished our attic except for the floor. It presently has what appears to be a sturdy subfloor. I intend to put down resilient floor tiles. Can I put it right over the subfloor or must I put down a whole new floor before installing the tiles?

A. — The tiles should not be installed directly over the subfloor. What you should put down is either hardboard or plywood underlayment and then place the tiles on that. Get the underlayment in the 4 feet by 4 feet sizes, which are easier to handle than the larger sheets. Nail them to the subfloor, leaving about a 16th of an inch between sheets. The underlayment will serve as a solid base for the tiles no matter which type you choose.

Q. — I never seem to know when to use a paste wood filler. I have recently taken up wood finishing, but that aspect of it puzzles me. Can you help?

A. — Paste wood fillers are designed to fill the pores of certain woods, among them walnut, mahogany, oak, chestnut, hickory, ash and elm. They are unnecessary on woods such as pine, fir, cedar, cypress and poplar. Woods such as birch, maple, cherry and redwood are usually left unfilled, but some wood finishers like to use a sealer or liquid filler on them. It's all a matter of preference. Do some experimenting.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Estimate: Americans will spend $30 billion this year to remodel their houses.

Estimate: Six per cent of the contractors in the country are dishonest or substandard.

Combine those two estimates, both of which have been made by authoritative sources, and you have some idea of how many home owners will be defrauded before the year is over.

Sadly, the large majority of those who are bilked will fall victim to three frauds every home owner should know, since he has been warned about them year after year by writers, consumer groups and even the reputable contractors whose reputations are tarnished by the misdeeds of the small minority.

One of the loudest voices in the campaign to educate the public in this regard is Joseph Nahay, executive director of the National Remodelers Assn., a non-profit trade organization. I asked him to outline the three frauds that cause most of the trouble. This was his reply:

"The first is the old fashioned 'bait-and-switch' game — a technique in which astoundingly low prices are advertised for siding, insulation, fencing or other home improvements. The unsuspecting consumer answering the ad is told by a salesman that the item is sold out, or really not as good a value as another item in stock. (In some cases, the advertised item doesn't even exist.) Before he knows it, the home owner is switched to a higher-priced product or service, often sold for a lot more than its fair market value. Bait-and-switch is illegal just about everywhere, but it is often hard to spot and almost impossible to cure. In fact, the best cure is prevention. The home owner should be aware that any home improvement at an unbelievably low price is just that — unbelievable. If you suspect bait-and-switch, don't bite. Instead, report it to the authorities.

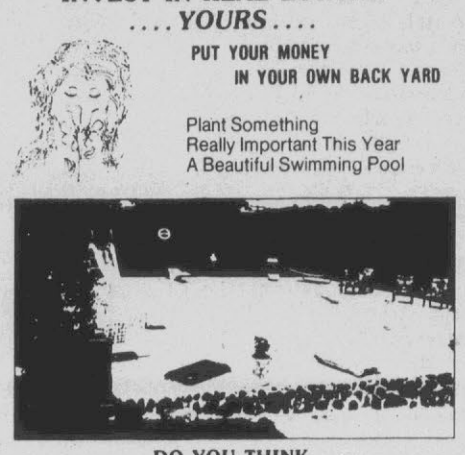

"A second fraud also works on the home owner's gullibility and goes something like this. A truck rolls up to your house and a man in work clothes hops out. 'Hi,' he says. 'I noticed you need new shingles on your roof, and I thought you might be interested in a special deal. I'm doing a roof two miles down the road and have a lot of extra shingles. I've also got some men idle. So I'd be happy to reshingle your roof real cheap.' The clinker in this fraud (which also applies to driveways, storm windows, fencing, etc.) is that once you've paid a deposit, the 'contractor' vanishes.

"The third fraud works a little on the home owner's vanity, and it resembles the second. Only this time the 'contractor' drives up and says, 'I noticed you need siding for your house and I'd like to put some up for you at a big discount. I've never done any business in this neighborhood before, and you would be my first customer. So I'll do the job at cost if I can use your house as a model for other potential customers.' Needless to say, the flattered home owner who makes a deposit comes out of his experience sadder, but perhaps wiser.

"To avoid getting snowed by an unethical or incompetent contractor, don't select one on the basis of price alone. Look for a reputable professional who has roots in the community and a business address and who can give you references. The names should include those of satisfied customers he's done jobs for. Then check his references to make sure they hold up. Also, check the local Better Business Bureau to see if there are any complaints on file, and call the contractor's bank to see if they'll say a good word for him.

Belhaven Woman Rounds Up Support For Council

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Sunday Editor

Sylvia de Rosset, mother of five young children ages four to 14 and the first female member of Beaufort County's elected school board, is a very busy woman these days.

The wife of Belhaven attorney Robert C. de Rosset, Jr. she is now contacting, individually and collectively, county commissioners, county managers and other officials, trying to line up support for the North Carolina Council on the Status of Women.

Mrs. de Rosset is coordinator of the council for Region Q, a five county area comprising Beaufort, Pitt, Martin, Bertie and Hertford Counties.

SYLVIA de ROSSET

One Success

The first stage of efforts to convince commissioners to lend their support, conducted in Beaufort County, had successful results. The Beaufort County Commissioner recently voted to establish a county office of the North Carolina Council on the Status of Women.

This past week Mrs. de Rossett concentrated her efforts in Pitt County. "I met with the county manager Reginald Gray and with all the commissioners except one," she said during a stopover in Greenville earlier this week enroute to a meeting in Raleigh of the state's 25 coordinators.

"I'm encouraged by the reaction I've gotten in talking to Pitt Commissioners," she said. "One commissioner, however, told me quite frankly he was not in favor of any more agencies and would vote against the idea."

Started In '63

The idea of a statewide Council on the Status of Women, Mrs. de Rosset explained, "is not new. It started back in 1963 when then Governor Terry Sanford signed an executive order for the council. In 1965, the state legislature made it statuatory, giving it the function of conducting a study of women in North Carolina to discover their problems and possibilities."

"As often happens with new ideas, interest in it faded. It was not until 1973 that the idea of such a council was revived. In 1974 Governor Holshouser appointed Mrs. Betty Barber as the state's first executive director with headquarters in Raleigh."

This was followed, Mrs. de Rosset said, by the compilation of statistics on women state-wide "the first time such a report had been attempted. The state study resulted in a 210 page document that took a detailed look at women in relation to education, employment, welfare, credit, taxes, volunteer work, the whole field of social concerns. In short, legal and economic concerns as they relate to women."

Mrs. de Rosset said it "was found that in so many agencies across the state nobody had ever been asked about women before. This made it necessary to do a lot of research, to pull out from existing records facts dealing with women.

Funds Allotted

"As a result of this study," she said, "the legislature in December 1975 authorized funding for the Council on the Status of Women. Governor Holshouser alloted $449,000 in CETA Title II funds to be expended over a six months period." This initial funding stage ends on June 30, 1976, which Mrs. de Rosset said accounts for the accelerated pace she's keeping in order to meet and talk to officials in the five county area.

"With the CETA funds," she continued, the council developed as its main target the establishment of county councils on women.

"Our objective is to get an assessment made on the needs existing in each county, and hopefully to get each county to appoint and establish a county council."

If county councils are established that would mean the county would take over direction of the council, appointing council members and determining the type of work the staff would take on. "If a council is not funded by the county, then an effort would be made to do the work with volunteers."

Mrs. de Rosset said that once councils are established and funded, her role would become that of regional advisor to the county councils.

Focus On Needs

In discussing purposes of the council Mrs. de Rosset said in addition to the principal objective of creating awareness of the status of women in North Carolina with an overall view of their problems and potentialities, other goals are "to perpetuate better understanding between the sexes and to focus on local needs of women, young and old."

Among factors she mentioned that are particularly applicable in this area are matters such as "preparing widows to handle business, to take over as heads of households.

"Another area of concern is that of promoting active employment, checking into what women are getting paid, their opportunities for advancement. Day care centers and latch key children are also major area concerns.

Saying she's often been asked if such a council would not overlap the work of existing agencies, Mrs. de Rosset said such would not be the case. "The councils would be a clearing house, a place to call to find out where to go for assistance. There's so many programs existing that many women are unaware of."

As she continues her "north to south" support seeking tour, Mrs. de Rosset says "I'm open to offers to speak before groups. People wanting to contact me can write to Regional Office, Council on Women, Belhaven, N.C. 27810.

"I hope too," she concluded, "that women in the five county area will let their county commissioners know whether they want a council in their county."

Pollutant Clues In Tree Rings

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) — A scientist at Penn State University says that tree rings may constitute a pollution almanac, as well as a rainfall almanac, a year-by-year record of local precipitation.

"Trees undoubtedly take trace elements — pollutants among them —right out of their immediate environment," says Dr. K. K. S. Pillay. "Now we can tell how much they take each year and, often, where these pollutants originate."

An expert on neutron activation analysis, Pillay used that technique to collect data on some 30 elements — including mercury, zinc, silver and iron — in oak, cherry and locust trees.

Pillay, who is an assistant professor of nuclear engineering, reported his findings at a conference sponsored by Oak Ridge National Laboratory and the American Nuclear Society, of which he is a member.

In 1972, he took slabs from felled trees on the Penn State campus, irradiated samples in the university's research reactor and established the amounts of trace elements contained in each ring of each tree. He believes the year-by-year profile for some of them can be correlated with industrial activity.

"Each tree we sampled showed an increased uptake of mercury starting in the 1950s," he says. "This could be due to the increased industrial use of mercury at that time."

Pillay says such correlations are speculative but could be made with greater confidence once tree-ring analysis advances beyond the trial stage.

"Most tree species are found wherever trees are found," he says. "Using neutron activation, we could find out where pollutants travel, how they accumulate and which ones are retained by which trees.

"This should enable us to make unbiased determinations of which industrial processes are dangerous to living things, and to take corrective measures before any damage is done."

A Free 'Cinderella'

DANDINI . . . as the prince in Rossini's opera "Cinderella," appears to enjoy his royal role as the two step-sisters try to impress him. The scene shown here is from Raleigh's National Opera Company production to be given Monday, March 8 at 8:15 p.m. in the Recital Hall of the Fletcher Music Center on campus. Admission is free on a first-come, first-seated basis.

Cinderella (or La Cenerentola), Rossini's witty operatic version of the familiar children's story, will be presented at 8:15 p.m. Monday by Raleigh's National Opera Company in the A. J. Fletcher Recital Hall at East Carolina University.

To be staged in English, Rossini's version strays somewhat from the original story source in Grimm's Fairy Tales, which is understandable when one considers there are over 300 known versions of the Cinderella story. Cinderella's step-sisters

Disguises have always played an important part in opera plots, and thus it is that Prince Ramiro changes identities with his valet, Dandini, in order that he may search his kingdom for a wife unrecognized by prospective brides. Dandini, of course, relishes this opportunity and the attention lavished upon him by the young landies who wish to marry a prince.

Cinderella's scheming step-father is Don Magnifico.

There is no admission charge, and the public is invited to attend. Seating is on a first-come, first-seated basis.

Book News

From Sheppard Memorial Library
By MARGARET CLARK

Sure to be popular this spring, THIS IS THE HOUSE by Deborah Hill is a historical novel set in Cape Cod just after the American Revolution. This is the story of Molly Deems, a Scarlett O'Hara type character, from questionable background, who fights her way to the top of society by marrying a sea captain. She uses both he and his family but is finally brought down from her high perch by her own sin—an affair with her guardian's son. We meet Molly when she is only a baby and follow her adventures until she is a grandmother. However, this is not just a romantic novel, for the characters are very realistic, and the descriptions of the Massachusetts coast and the beautiful houses with their rich New England furniture, are enough to transplant the reader back to that period of time.

Another enthralling saga of human passions—this time set against the colorful background of the nineteenth century American Southwest is THE GOLDEN VALLEY by Doama Winston. Dominating the novel are the beautiful landowning families now living under an uneasy truce with the American masters of the New Mexico territory, and Leigh Ransome, an iron-willed adventurer from Texas who is determined to carve an empire for himself from the great Spanish holdings. From the moment these two meet, the seeds of both irrestible attraction and blood hatred are planted, seeds destined to grow into a marriage that is part heaven, part hell, as Anitra watches her husband systematically destroy the people and the way of life that produced her. It is only when Leigh Ransome commits the ultimate outrage that Anitra is finally forced to her moment of truth and action. A colorful re-creation of an era of trial and change. THE GOLDEN VALLEY sweeps across time and human destiny with mounting drama toward its explosive climax.

In a more modern vein, SILVER SPOON by Nancie MacCullough Weir is a novel about a hospital, but an unusual type of hospital. It is a luxurious and exclusive maternity hospital which could easily be taken for a deluxe hotel where favored women await the births of babies who will naturally be born with "silver spoons" beginnings. Among the occupants of the posh suites are a movie star whose husband has become an alcoholic, a governor's daughter, a beautiful socialite trying to pull her tottering marriage back together with a baby, and a politically "liberated mother" who finds a real need for consciousness-raising among the other mothers. When two of the newborns are stricken with an unidentifiable deadly virus, the entire floor is quarantined. Then each women finds herself a prisoner of fear. Tension mounts as each distraught woman learns more about herself—and about the things that money and privilege cannot buy.

Country Music Set For Ayden

Merle Haggard, Leona Williams, Ronnie Reno, Tigar Bell and special guest La Costa are the country stars to be appearing in two performances on Saturday at the Ayden-Grifton High School.

Sponsored by the Ayden-Grifton Charger Club, the two country music shows will take place at 6 p.m. and again at 10 p.m. Tickets are priced at $4, $5 and $6 each.

Merle Haggard, who has been doing his own style of country music since back in 1960, will be supported by The Strangers, a six-man back up team. Haggard is well known for songs like 'Mama Tried, Hungry Eyes, Okie From Muskogee, Irma Jackson and I've Done It All.

Ten year old Tigar Bell (Tigar is his real name) is a fiddling prodigy who has been with the Merle Haggard Show for a year, touring in Canada, and along the west coast, followed by an appearance in Reno.

The guest performer on the Saturday show in Ayden will be a pretty 25 year old blond, La Costa, native of Seminole, Texas. With hits like This House Runs on Sunshine and her latest record, Western Man, La Costa started out big in 1974 with her first single, I Wanta Get To You which climbed to number three on the national charts.

When the 1975 Country and Western Single Poll Winners were announced in Billboard last October, La Costa placed fifth in the female vocalists favorites.

Noted songstress Leona Williams and country music favorite Ronnie Reno round out the roster of top talent on the bill for Saturday's entertainment event in Ayden.

LA COSTA . . . young Texas native who pulled fifth in "Billboard's" tally of favorite country-western female singers, is special guest on a country music show coming to Ayden on Saturday.

Hyperactive Children Not Uncommon In Pitt Area

By JAMES KYLE
Reflector Staff Writer

Bobby (fictional example) has a learning disability — he is a hyperactive child. He constantly fidgets in his third grade class and is easily distracted by noises and movements outside the classroom. He can't concentrate on an activity or lesson for any reasonable length of time. Although he has a high IQ, his grades are poor.

Bobby is easily frustrated and his low grades add to his frustration. He is extremely impulsive and quick to anger. He may get up and hit another child who has made a high grade.

At home, Bobby is the same way. He can't sit still for meals. Television programs hold his interest for only a moment. He gets out of bed in the middle of the night and roams the house.

Bobby's problem, hyperactivity (or hyperkinesis) is not extremely unusual. Conservative estimates indicate that over a million school-age children in the U.S. are hyperactive.

A number of cases of hyperactivity have been diagnosed in both the Pitt County and Greenville school systems. These cases are often referred to East Carolina University's Developmental Evaluation Clinic (DEC) for treatment.

"Hyperactivity is defined as random, purposeless movement," according to Randall S. Brooks, educational diagnostician at DEC. Among its symptoms are short attention span, impulsiveness, restlessness and high destractability.

"Most of the time, this causes a learning problem," Brooks said, although the child's intelligence is not impaired.

Hyperactivity is a result of minimal brain damage, in most cases, Brooks said. This could be due to a number of reasons, such as injury, lack of oxygen at birth or the mother's health during pregnancy, especially the first nine weeks.

However, it can also be caused by such things as psychological problems and even food allergy, according to Dr. Malene Irons clinical director of DEC. "Hyperkinesis is related to all sorts of problems in development," Dr. Irons said.

Hyperactivity is treated by three basic methods at DEC — behavior modification, medication or diet. Usually a combination of these treatments is used.

Behavior modification involves trying to teach the child proper behavior by rewarding him when he does well, Brooks said. Many different types of reward are used, such as candy, money or free play time.

Medication, in most cases, involves administering small amounts of stimulants or amphetimines to the child each week day during the school year, Brooks said. The child usually takes two pills a day, around a half hour before breakfast and lunch.

Instead of making the child even more active, the medication has a "paradoxical effect," according to Brooks. The child becomes more attentive so he can "learn easier, for longer periods of time," Brooks said.

One theory on the reason for this paradoxical effect is that the stimulants actually stimulate the child's control centers, Brooks said, making it possible for him to control his attention on one activity.

Although they are highly effective, the use of such drugs on children has aroused controversy in some quarters, Dr. Irons said. Some fear a child may develop a dependency on the drug or that it may have adverse psychological effects which may surface in adulthood.

When used under the proper supervision, Brooks and Dr. Irons said, there is no danger of this. The drugs are addictive, Brooks said, but only in doses nearly 10 times larger than DEC prescribes. Despite the controversy, drugs "should be given under careful medical supervision" to hyperactive children who need them, Dr. Irons said.

"If they are needed, drugs are very effective," Dr. Irons said. More specific, almost, than insulin is for diabetes. There has never been any addition reported from the use of drugs for hyperkinesis."

The controversy, according to Brooks, is "mainly just a misconception. Teachers get the idea that the child is 'spaced out' on drugs and hallucinating in class and that's just not true," Brooks said. He blamed this on misinformation.

Dr. Irons said drugs are used in only about 10 per cent of the 300-400 cases of hyperactivity treated at DEC. Drugs are never used alone in treatment, Dr. Irons said, they are only used along with a behavior modification program.

Using a special diet to treat hyperactivity is a relatively new concept, according to Adelaide S. Dunn, DEC nurse. It involves elminating certain foods from the child's diet. "We have been working on this for about six months," Mrs. Dunn said.

In some cases, a child's hyperactivity may be caused by an allergy or sensitivity to a certain food, such as chocolate or cola drinks. If the food is elminated, the child's hyperactivity can be controlled.

The future for the hyperactive child, given the proper treatment, is good, but not perfect, according to Dr. Irons. Hyperactive children "improve a great deal but always have some problems."

DEC is currently making follow-up studies to determine the improvement of hyperactive children treated there, Dr. Irons said. "In general, they've all improved, but it varies greatly," she said.

Girl Scouts To Mark Birthday

I began with a small group of girls at the home of a forward thinking woman who had as she said, "... something for the girls of Savannah, and all America and all the world".

The date was March 12, 1912 the place was Savannah, Ga.; the woman was Juliette Gordon Low; and the something for girls was Girl Scouting. That is the way it was started 64 years ago.

In 1920, just eight years after Juliette Low formed the first Girl Scout troop in the United States, Miss Ernestine Forbes and Miss Novella Moye organized a troop of Girl Scouts in Greenville. Since that time the Greenville organization of Girl Scouts has grown to 383 members and 23 troops.

Girl Scouts in the Greenville area have been making preparations for the country's birthday by presenting bicentennial plays, making bicentennial artwork and crafts and visiting some historical places. This week March 7-14 they will celebrate the birthday of Girl Scouting.

To begin celebrations of Girl Scout Week, the Greenville Girl Scouts will have a Tea Sunday at the First Christian Church from 3 to 5 p.m. Hostesses for the Tea will be the cadet troops of Greenville.

In conjunction with a world wide ceremony of Girl Scouts' Birthday, March 12, the Greenville Girl Scouts will join in lighting flames of freedom. At 5 p.m. March 12, each girl will light a candle for flames for freedom. According to the Neighborhood Girl Scout Leader, Mrs. Linda Seykora, the Girl Scouts have asked all the churches in Greenville to ring their bells at 5 p.m. to join in the ceremony.

Girl Scouts will be wearing their uniforms or friendship scarves and Girl Scout pins to school during Girl Scout week. Girls wearing friendship scarves will be representing the friendship between Girl Scouts.

She will explore the basic standards of nursing care that a nurse in any practice area can use to improve patient care.

All RN's in the district are invited to attend.

Cinderella Cavs Going To The Ball

By SAM FOGG
UPI Sports Writer

LANDOVER, Md. (UPI) — The Virginia Cavaliers, an underdog team that refused to quit, toppled defending champion North Carolina 67-62 in the finals of the Atlantic Coast Conference Tournament Saturday when Billy Langloh sank two tie-breaking free throws and fed an assist that set up the game-clinching basket in the final 34 seconds.

The stunning upset over the nationally third-ranked Tar Heels sends the Cinderella team from Charlottesville to the NCAA playoffs next week as conference champions. North Carolina also will get an NCAA at-large berth.

Langloh began his heroics after the score was tied 60-60 with 4:45 left. With both teams resorting to slow-down tactics, Virginia's scoring ace Wally Walker missed a layup and then fouled North Carolina's Phil Ford with less than two minutes left, but the sophomore missed the free throw.

The Cavaliers got the ball back with 50 seconds left, and 16 seconds later Tar Heel John Kuester fouled Langloh and the junior from Laurel, Md., calmly sank both free throws.

With 23 seconds to go, the Tar Heels lost the ball on a traveling call and Langloh fired a pass to freshman Otis Fulton under the basket for an easy two-pointer.

Subsequently, Langloh added two more free throws to wind up the scoring.

Walker led the Cavaliers to their first ACC tournament title in the 23-year history of the event with 25 points, Mark Iavoroni had 15 and Langloh finished with 13.

Ford was the high scorer of the night with 22 points and Mitch Kupchak, playing in foul trouble most of the game, added 18 for the Tar Heels who are now 25-3 for the season. Virginia, sixth in regular season conference competition, is now 18-11.

Behind by five points at the beginning of the second half, North Carolina outscored the Cavaliers 14-3 to take a 44-38 edge as Ford hit on four field goals. Two baskets by Kupchak moved North Carolina by eight, but Virginia fought back to tie the contest at 50-50 at the 10:00 mark and then lead 60-56 on two free throws and a layup by Iavaroni.

Baskets by Walter Davis and Kuester deadlocked the struggle at 60-60 with 4:45 remaining.

The underdog Cavaliers, who knocked off nationally ranked North Carolina State and Maryland to reach the final, took a surprising 35-30 halftime lead against the Tar Heels after falling behind by eight points with 8:44 left. Led by Walker, Virginia ran off a 19-6 spurt to forge ahead at intermission.

The Cavaliers were helped when Kupchak, the Tar Heel center and the ACC's Most Valuable Player, was forced to the bench with three personal fouls with 4:43 remaining.

The Tar Heels broke in front, 10-4, at the outset as Walker was unable to register a field goal for nearly seven minutes in the face of a high pressure North Carolina full court defense. But Iavaroni and Langloh kept the Cavaliers close until Walker began to find his range.

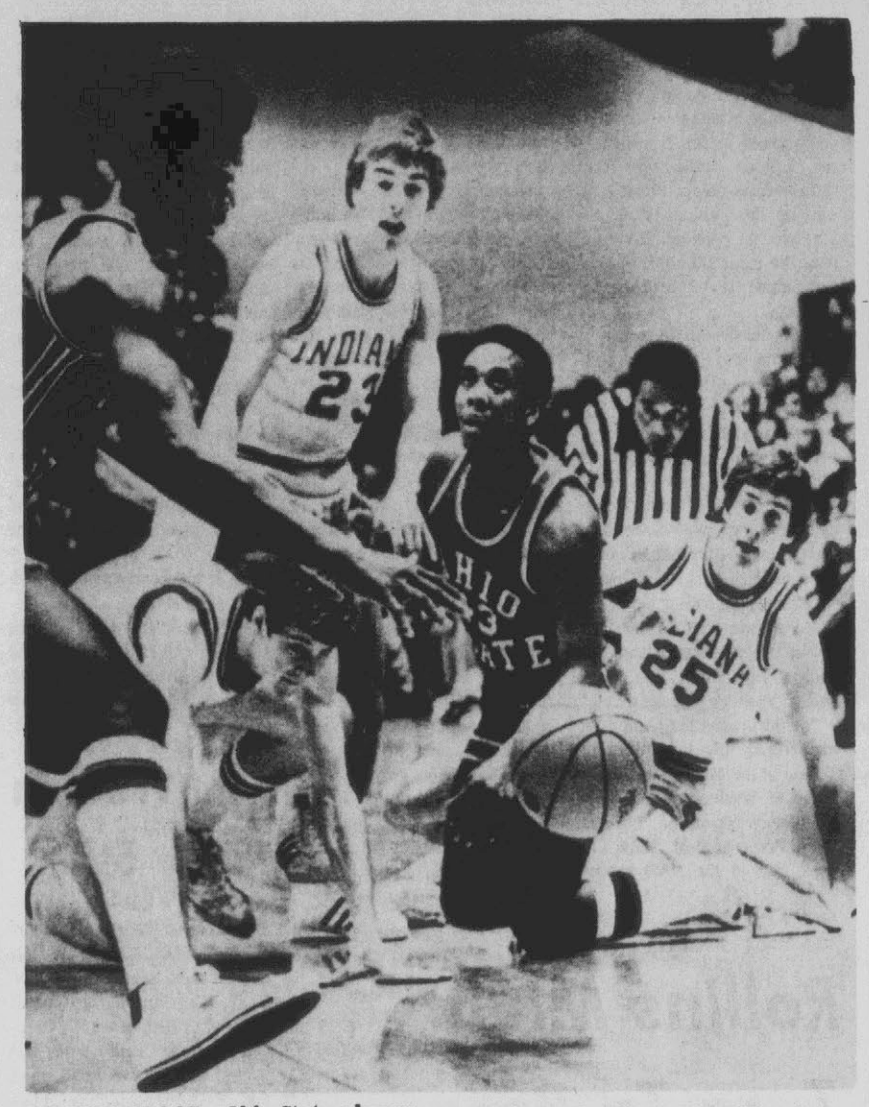

Precision shooting by Ford and Kupchak boosted North Carolina, the ACC regular season league leaders, to a 24-16 advantage before Walker scored nine of his 13 first half points and freshman Fulton added three baskets — the last one on an alley-oop pass from Langloh — at the buzzer to put Virginia in front by five.

North Carolina failed to score a basket in the last 5:21 of the first half.

Pirates Get Wet

The seemingly inevitable took place Saturday.

After basking in summer-like temperatures for the past three weeks, the East Carolina University Pirates watched as their Opening Day game with the University of Maryland was washed away by late morning and early afternoon rains.

The game will be made up as a part of a doubleheader this afternoon, starting at 1:30 p.m. at Harrington Field.

A special pre-game ceremony will feature Walter "Buck" Leonard, a member of the Baseball Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, N.Y. Leonard, as guest of the Department of Athletics and Director of Athletics Bill Cain, will be escorted to the mound where he will throw out the first ball of the 1976 season.

Leonard made the trip to Greenville Saturday and , "knowing the nature of the game," agreed to make the trip again from Rocky Mount to help the Pirates open the campaign.

Members of both teams will be introduced as well as the "Diamond Darlings," a team of ECU girls who will be working for the first time ever this year to help the team and promote the Pirate baseball efforts as bat girls and hostesses.

Spring Football Drills Opening At East Carolina This Thursday

East Carolina University's football Pirates get back to work Thursday as spring drills open on the Buc turf. Coach Pat Dye will be looking for more depth, and some candidates to fill up a few of the holes left by graduation.

One hole he won't have to fill is that of defensive end, where Cary Godette was not expected to return. But the All-Southern performer, bolstered by the success of last fall, returns for his final year (he missed one whole season due to injury), seeking All-American honors.

Dye; who starts his third year at the Pirate helm, will be enjoying one very bright spot. For the first time in his three years, he has experienced personnel at every position. This does not mean that there will not be battles for some slots—there will be.

Communication problems between the coaching staff and the team are no worry now. The change over no longer is a factor in the Buc football fortunes. This is Pat Dye's team now in every respect.

With the success of the wishbone offense last year, there is a new faith among the players in its working. During their last five games, the offense clicked like never before, and the Bucs will carry a six-game winning steak into the September 11 opener here with strong Southern Mississippi.

The Bucs have speed and quickness where it is needed to make both the offense and the defense work to full mobility.

If there is a weakness on the team at this time, it is the lack of overall depth at many positions, so injuries could become a major factor. Dye will be trying to develop some more quality depth to help offset this possibility.

Also, there will probably be a battle on for the fullback spot, the one glaring weakness on the offense last season. This position, along with a quality replacement for Willie Bryant, who graduated at defensive tackle, and for Bobby Myrick, graduated from strong safety, could pose the biggest problems.

Overall, 17 starters return for the Bucs, eight on offense and nine of defense.

The offensive group gives Dye pleasure when he looks at his charts. Quarterbacks Mike Weaver, who finally overcame a poor start to regain the reigns, returns as the number one signal caller. He's flanked by a couple of blurs in halfbacks Willie Hawkins and Eddie Hicks, both of whom can turn on all kinds of speed.

The ends are veterans, Clay Burnett and Bary Johnson in tight, and the one-man bomb squad of Terry Gallaher at split end. Tackle Ricky Bennett, center Tim Hightower and guard Wayne Bolt return inside. Randy Parrish and Matt Mulholland currently are the favorites to grab off the other two spots.

That leaves the fullback position. Tom Daub and Raymond Jones both saw action there, but Dye may make some changes this spring. He's thinking about bringing over linebacker Emerson Pickett for a shot at that spot.

The defense returns second team All-America safety Jim Bolding, who led the nation in interceptions last season. He has a shot at the NCAA career record as he winds up his career this fall.

Joining him in the backfield will be corner men Ernest Madison and Reggie Pinkney, while Gregg Pingston and Steve Hale are top candidates for the other safety position.

The linebacking ranks are sound. Returning is Harold "Too Small" Randolph, who made the All-Conference team. He's joined by Harold Fort and Pickett.

At the nose guard spot Nick Bullock and Oliver Felton, both of whom saw a lot of action return to battle for the spot.

Zack Valentine, who had an outstanding freshman year at the opposite end of the line from Godette, could team up with Cary to make the outside run almost impossible. Jack Dove returns at one of the tackle spots, leaving the other vacant.

About the defense, Dye said, "We could have one of the fastest defensive teams in the country. We are not big in size, however." Dye added that last year's team gave up the long play, and weren't mean enough. "This must stop. We don't punish people as we should. But maybe that will come with experience and maturity."

Kicking should be adequate. Daub is back at the punting position, while Pete Conaty, Larry Paul and Barry Johnson all had experience on kickoffs and placements. Conaty is playing baseball this spring, however.

With the speed of the backs, the return game should be outstanding if the blocking holds up.

The Bucs will work out several days a week, working toward their 20-days of allowed drills. The annual Purple-Gold game will be played on Saturday, April 3.

Indiana, Rutgers Keep Strings Alive; NCAA Field Nearly Set

By The Associated Press

Indiana's rampaging Hoosiers completed their second consecutive unbeaten regular season and Rutgers' fast-breaking Scarlet Knights, the nation's only other undefeated college basketball team, had a scare before winning its 28th game Saturday while the field for the NCAA tournament was filling rapidly.

Top-ranked Indiana, with All-American Scott May and Kent Benson each scoring 21 points, crushed Ohio State 96-67 for its 27th victory and 18th in the Big Ten Conference.

Rutgers, the No. 3 team, had a tense battle before subduing 16th-ranked St. John's 70-67 and winning the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference Metro Division playoff.

In other ECAC championship games, in which the winners qualified for the NCAA tournament, Connecticut took the New England regional title, upsetting Providence 87-73, and Syracuse won the upstate New York crown, downing Niagara 77-68.

Meanwhile, 14th-ranked Western Michigan clinched its first undisputed Mid-American Conference title, closing its regular season with a 71-58 victory over Bowling Green. Missouri, rated 15th, won its first outright Big Eight Conference championship in 46 years, ending its regular season with a 95-60 rout over Colorado. Unranked Arizona gained its first Western Athletic Conference title in 25 years, downing arch-rival Arizona State 77-72.

All of those conference champions gain automatic berths in the far-flung NCAA tourney, which begins next Saturday at eight regional sites and ends March 29 with the crowning of the national champion in Philadelphia.

Several other NCAA berths were to be decided Saturday night.

Among the other ranked teams in action Saturday, sixth-ranked Alabama was upset by Kentucky 90-85 in a nationally televised game and No. 11 Michigan held off Northwestern 80-77.

Indiana, which will meet St. John's in an NCAA Mideast Regional opening-round game at South Bend, Ind., outscored Ohio State 33-8 during one stretch of the first half and cruised past the Buckeyes, extending its Big Ten winning streak to 37 games, its regular-season victory skein to 57. It was the Hoosiers' 61st triumph in its last 62 games over-all, and sent Fred Taylor to a dismal defeat in his final game as Ohio State coach.

"I didn't think it was ever going to end," said Taylor. "But this is the kind of thing (the lopsided score) you can expect from a team going for an undefeated season."

Rutgers, also gunning for an unbeaten season and scheduled to face Ivy League champion Princeton in an East Regional NCAA opener at Providence, R.I., received much stiffer resistance from determined St. John's. But three key baskets in the closing minutes by Phil Sellers, who shared scoring honors with Hollis Copeland with 22 points, kept Rutgers in front.

Connecticut, the fourth seed in the four-team ECAC New England Regional playoff, hit a blistering 76 per cent from the field—16 of 21—in the second half in upending Providence. Joe Whelton led the Huskies with 25 points and seven assists.

Chris Sease's 18 points paced Syracuse's victory over Niagara that moved the Orangemen into the NCAA Midwest Regional at Denton, Tex.

Western Michigan, sparked by senior Jim Kurzen's career-high 18 points, finished with a 24-2 regular-season record, the best ever by a Mid-American Conference team.

Missouri, which will open its NCAA bid against Washington in a Midwest Regional game at Lawrence, Kan., had not won the Big Eight title since sharing it in 1940. Its last outright conference championship was in 1930. But the Tigers, paced by Willie Smith's 23 points, had no trouble in winning the title, against Colorado.

Arizona, headed for the NCAA West Regional at Tempe, Ariz., got 21 points and 11 rebounds from Bob Elliott in edging Arizona State and clinching its first Western Athletic Conference championship since 1951.

Alabama, needing a victory to clinch the Southeastern Conference title and an NCAA berth, was derailed by Kentucky, which was led by Mike Phillips' 25 points. The Crimson Tide still can win the league championship and an NCAA spot by beating Vanderbilt in its final regular-season game Monday night.

Michigan, slated for a first-round NCAA game in the Midwest Regional at Denton, Tex., squeaked past stubborn Northwestern with the help of Steve Grote, who scored 12 of his 14 points in the second half.

Nothing New In Baseball

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Negotiators for the two sides in baseball's labor dispute held separate press briefings Saturday but had no immediate plans for resuming talks in an effort to break the stalemate that has kept spring training camps shut down.

"What we have is an owners' strike," charged Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Players Association. "It is a strike against the fans and against the players and it is without justification."

Miller, responding to the suggestion that the labor deadlock could lead to owners "abandoning baseball," said that his office has received angry calls from players suggesting that the Players Association might seek alternatives to a bargaining agreement with the owners if the talks remain stalled.

"April 25 is the deadline," Miller said. "The players are willing and able and want to play baseball. And they are under contracts to the clubs to play. If that's impossible solely because the owners won't permit it, each player has the right to demand to be paid on April 15. Unless they are paid within 10 days, they are free. Either they will be paid, or the franchises will have no players."

And what would happen then?

"The players could seek alternatives such as community ownership of teams. I think there will be a baseball season, one way or another," Miller said.

"If the owners deprive the fans by 'abandoning baseball,' we will look into alternatives. The fans won't be deprived and the players won't be deprived. The owners will find that they are redundant and unnecessary."

Miller lashed out at the Player Relations Committee which represents the owners in the talks. The committee's negotiating team is composed of American League President Lee MacPhail, National League President Chub Feeney and John Gaherin, the owners' chief negotiator.

"We don't negotiate with people who have money in the clubs," said Miller. "Their negotiators are people on the owners' payroll and they do what they are ordered to do. They obey the lowest common denominators—the hard liners."

Rampants Split Swimming Meets

Rose High ended its regular swimming season splitting a triple meet with Kinston and Chapel Hill yesterday.

The Rampants beat Kinston 44-42 winning the meet in the last event, the 400 freestyle relay. Chapel Hill beat the Rampants, 52-34, handing Rose just its third loss.

Rose ends the season with an 8-3 record.

Lance Timmons set a school record winning the 100 backstroke in 58 seconds. The win beat both Kinston and Chapel Hill. Timmons also swam on the winning 400 free relay team. John Bennett won three events against Kinston, the 200 individual medley, the 100 free and swam a leg on the 400 relay.

The rose team has five boys and four girls qualified for the state meets which begin Friday in Greensboro.

"It's the best year we've had in five years," said co-coach Tim Barnes. "Plus we added the girls' program for the first time, we've never had the girls' program before.

"Overall the whole team, both boys and girls, improved. Some of these kids were swimming the best times they ever swam in their lives. We've accomplished this with sophomores and juniors. There is only one senior on the team. We should get a great deal of help from the upcoming ninth graders next year.

"Last year, Rose got one point in the state meet. We hope to do better than that this year," Barnes said.

Russians Run Away With Track Victory

LENINGRAD (AP) — Stan Vinson of Detroit and Wendy Knudson of Loveland, Colo., scored middle-distance victories over the Soviet Union and helped the United States to a sweep of the relays—but the young Americans were overwhelmed in most other events Saturday in their track meet against the Russians.

The Soviets, led by Yevgeny Yevsyukov, who set a world indoor record in the five-kilometer (3.1-mile) walk, won 18 of the 27 events before about 2,500 fans at the Leningrad Winter Stadium in convincingly winning the meet 171 to 117 points and taking a 3-2 lead in the series.

Soviet 1-2 sweeps were the order of the day, with the Russians achieving that feat in 12 of the 18 events they won. The Americans managed only one 1-2 sweep, that in the men's 400 meters, where Vinson clocked 47.69 seconds and Dorel Watley of Pittsburgh was second in 48.47, edging Vladimir Nosenko, third in 48.89.

"Frankly speaking, we expected to win—but not so big," Soviet Coach Anatoly Komarov said. "The Americans were weaker than we had expected."

The four individual American victories by the men were by Vinson in the 400 meters, Larry Shipp of Washington, D.C., in the men's 60-meter hurdles, Greg Fredericks of State College, Pa., in the 5,000 meters and Larry Myricks of Jackson, Miss., in the long jump. The three U.S. women's triumphs were scored by Miss Knudson in the 600 meters, Sharon Dabney of Philadelphia in the 400 and Jan Merrill of New London, Conn., in the 1,500. Miss Merrill also competed in the women's 3,000 meters and finished a close second.

Komarov said Miss Merrill showed "real sports heroism" in running both the 1,500 and 3,000 meters.

American Coach Harry McKnight observed: "We had a few good performances—but couldn't put it all together." He said the best moment for the Americans was Miss Knudson's winning 600-meter time of 1 minute 29.5 seconds, which he said was a U.S. record.

Vinson and Miss Knudson also ran in the 2,000-meter relays, Vinson teaming with Bill Collins of Houston, Watley and anchorman Bob Anastasio of New York, and Miss Knudson running with Pam Jiles of New Orleans, Debra Armstrong of Grambling, La., and Kathy Weston of Reno., Nev.

Yevsyukov, clocking 20 minutes, 21.8 seconds, bettered the 1960 five-kilometer walk record of 20:30.0 set by Russian Viktor Poloskov. Alexei Troitsky made it a 1-2 Soviet sweep in the event with a time of 20:31.6. Todd Scully of Big Island, Va., was third in 21:05.6.

In what was easily the most exciting race of the day, t American men's relay tea was clocked in 4 minutes 1 seconds, identical to the Sovi time. The Yanks opened a b early lead but the Soviets slo ly chipped away at it and Ana tasio had to hold on to be Russian anchorman Viktor L gin to the tape by inches. Th U.S. women's team won mor easily, clocking 4:53.8 to th Russians' 4.55.4.

Shipp was timed in 7.69 sec onds in the 60-meter hurdles edging Russian Viktor Miasny kov, who clocked 7.75. Fred ericks' time of 13 minutes 52. seconds in the 5,000 meters en abled him to beat Valentin Zo tov's 13:53.8. Myricks barel took the long jump with a lea of 25 feet, 5½ inches, jus three-quarters of an inch ove Valery Podluzhny.

Miss Knudson won the wom en's 600 meters with her 1:29.5 time, beating Russia's Na dezhda Mushta, who clocked 1:30.04. Miss Dabney won the women's 400 in 54.75 seconds, a tenth of a second ahead of Lud mila Aksenova.

Miss Merrill's victory in the 1,500 was the easiest among the American women. She was timed in 4 minutes 16 seconds to Olga Dvirna's 4:21.2.

Gleason Mad At Golf Group

LAUDERHILL, Fla. (AP) — Comedian Jackie Gleason, upset over what he calls shoddy treatment dealt to him and the sponsors of the recent Inverrary golf tournament by the Professional Golf Association, says the affair is no laughing matter.

"Boy, they promised the world at the press conference (last May) when they wanted our help," Gleason said Friday. "The pros take too much for granted. They want everything handed to them on a platter, but they don't give anything in return."

Gleason, saying he was upset that his name wasn't mentioned during the broadcast of what locally was called the Jackie Gleason Tournament Players Championship at Inverrary, and the fact that only two name pros played during the first day of a two-day pro-celebrity event, threatened to withdraw his support of future tournaments.

"Wouldn't you feel bad?" he asked. "They agreed to use my name because I was helping promote the tournament...

"The PGA should apologize to the men who paid $1,500 to play with top pros and didn't," he said. "I promised a lot of people they would play with top pros. If I can't keep my promise, I don't want to be involved any more."

Gleason said he had contacted Bob Hope and planned to call Bing Crosby, Andy Williams and Glen Campbell, "and when I finish talking with them, the PGA will be in trouble. They need us more than we need them.

"We (celebrities) could put on our own tournament, and I guarantee we'd outdraw the pros for four days," he said.

Deane Beman, commissioner of the PGA Tournament Players Division, said the contract called for supplying the leading money winners for pro-celebrity events only on the Wednesday before the start of tournaments. Wednesday's portion of that event was rained out.

"I can't understand Gleason's remarks," Beman said from his Washington, D.C. office. "I'll have to study the issue..."

Kay Slaydon, vice president of the company which sponsored the event during the last week of February, sympathized with Gleason.

"But we'll have a tournament next year if he withdraws his name," Slaydon said. "We have a committment with the PGA. I believe everything can be worked out, and I'll meet with Gleason next week."

Player Fires Record Round; Zarley Leads

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — The gallant, on-rushing challenges of Gary Player—an amazing, 10-under-par 62—and Hale Irwin fell short and front-running Kermit Zarley expanded to three shots his lead in Saturday's third round of the $200,000 Citrus Open Golf Tournament.

Zarley, on the comeback from major surgery last fall, stalked home with a 68, four under par on the tree-lined, 6,929 yard Rio Pinar Country Club course that took such a beating from Player and Irwin.

Zarley's effort gave him a 54-hole total of 201, 15 under par and three in front of Irwin. Irwin, winner of the Los Angeles Open two weeks ago and a strong contender in almost every start this young season, birdied his last three holes for a 64 and a 204 total.

But even those spectacular performances paled in comparison to Player's 62, the best score of his 20-year American tour career. It was the lowest score recorded in this country since Johnny Miller shot 61 in Tucson more than a year ago.

And it was just two strokes off the all-time PGA tour record of 60. That mark is shared by seven players. Sam Snead was the last to reach the figure, in the 1957 Dallas Open.

And even that mark was in danger for a while.

Player, one of the first off the tee in bright, warm, sunny weather that later gave way to threatening clouds, was eight under par after 11 holes and, admittedly, was thinking of a score in the untouched 50s.

"It's one of my ambitions," the little South African veteran said. "I've broken 60, shot 59, in Brazil in 1974. But I've never broken 60 in America. I'd like to do that.

"I had a chance through the first 11 holes."

Player, who barely qualified for the final two rounds, started the day 11 strokes back of Zarley and made up six of them with a 206 total that left him only five shots back and very much in contention going into Sunday's final round of the chase for the $40,000 first prize.

John Mahaffey and Mike Hill were tied for third in the closely bunched pack at 205. "It's gonna be a shoot-out at high noon tomorrow," Mahaffey said after his 69. Hill had a 67.

"Actually, I played as well yesterday as I did today, but I couldn't get the ball in the hole," Player said. "If I'd putted yesterday like I did today, I'd have broken 60. Definitely. No question about it.

"The turning point today was the 12th hole. I was eight under after 11 and really had it going. I thought I could shoot in the 50s.

"On the 12th (a 165-yard, par-three) my caddy, Rabbit, thought it was a seven-iron. But I remembered years ago I hit a seven-iron into the water. So I took a six-iron and hit it dead on the flag. But it was just one club long. If I'd hit the seven-iron I'd have been no more than five feet from the hole."

As it was, however, he was some 20 feet away and two-putted for par. The momentum was broken. He managed only two more birdies in the last six holes and had to scramble to save par on two of them.

His effort was absolutely amazing. He birdied the first hole from only six feet, then reeled off a string of seven birdies in eight holes starting on the fourth. The length of his putts indicated how close to the hole he was hitting it—2, 3, 4, 15, 2, 8 and 8 feet.

The veteran Zarley, who had a neck fusion operation last October, didn't get away until after Player had completed his round and Irwin was well into his challenge.

He refused to falter in the face of such pressure.

"I just ground out a bunch of pars and then got going to town with some birdies on the back nine," said Zarley, who played his back nine in 32.

He pulled away with a string of four birdies on six holes beginning on the 11th.

"I achieved my goal," he said. "I went into the back nine and shot 32. I wanted to do that to get a three or four stroke lead."

WINS ON SECOND TRY

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Much is expected from pro golf rookie Bob Gilder. His January victory in the Phoenix Open marked his second PGA tournament. The previous week, the 25-year-old Gilder missed the cut playing his first tour event at Tucson.

The Arizona State graduate is from Corvallis, Ore. He won the 1974 New Zealand Open as a pro but graduated from the PGA 1975 qualifying school only last fall.

Rollins Might Turn To Pros

LANDOVER, Md. (AP)—Clemson University center Wayne "Tree" Rollins says he will apply for hardship status with the National Collegiate Athletic Association, a Columbia, S.C., newspaper has reported.

The Columbia Record in its Saturday edition reported that Rollins will file in the hopes of signing a professional basketball contract before next season.

The 7-foot-1 junior said, after Clemson's 82-74 loss to the University of North Carolina in the semifinals of the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball tournament Friday night, that he had planned at the start of the season to play at Clemson next year, but has now changed his mind.

"I talked to pro scouts several times, and they said now is the best time to sign," Rollins said.

He said he did not think playing another year in the Atlantic Coast Conference would improve his game much because "the conference officials won't give me a chance. In the Pan-Am games the officials let me play and I showed what I could do," he said.

Rollins was a member of the United States team in the Pan-American games last summer.

Rollins, who averaged 13.7 points and 11.2 rebounds this year, said, conference officials "won't let big guys play unless they are from the state of North Carolina. I am certain that I wasn't given credit for some of my rebounds during the last part of the season because it looked like I might end up with the best average for the year," he said.

Rollins led the ACC in rebounding until late in the season when conference player of the year Mitch Kupchak of North Carolina took the lead.

"I'm looking for financial security and if a pro team offers me that I owe it to myself to sign. Scouts have told me that with the possibility of an ABA-NBA merger in the future, I might not get as much money if I wait to sign," Rollins said.

The Cordele, Ga., native said the fact that Clemson is on three year's probation with the NCAA had no bearing on his decision.

ECU Women Place 5th

CULLOWEE—Western Carolina won just over one more point than UNC to win the state Gymnastics meet, Saturday. East Carolina's gymnasts finished in fifth place.

WCU took first with 85.3 points, edging Carolina, which had 83.79. Appalachian State was third with 77.42, Duke fourth with 56.62 and ECU fifth with 49.9.

Vickie Witt was the only Pirate to place in the top ten in any event finishing seventh in the vaulting and eighth in the uneven bars. Susan Bullock of WCU was the all-around champion with 32.92 points. Nancy Bullock of ASU was second and Valerie Striggow third. The three qualified for the regionals to be held in Memphis, Tenn.

Buc Netters Drop Indians

East Carolina's tennis team used a doubles victory by Doug Getsinger and Bob Neff in the final match of the day Friday to give the Pirates their first victory over on the tennis courts over William and Mary on the Bucs' home courts Friday afternoon.

Getsinger and Neff lost the first set to Nick O'Hara and Craig Keith, 0-6, but came back to win the last two sets 6-2 and 6-3 to give the Pirates a 5-4 team victory over the Indians. Graduate coach Neal Peterson cited the duo for their accomplishments.

"I'm really proud of them two guys. They really held their ground after losing their first set. And William and Mary is one of the top doubles playing tennis teams in the conference."

The win ups the Pirates record to 1-1 overall and 1-0 in the Southern Conference while the match was the first for the Indians. East Carolina will not be able to sit on their laurels for long as small college power Atlantic Christian will invade Greenville Tuesday for a match with the Pirates.

The summary:

Robert Galloway (WM) d. Jim Ratliff, 6-1, 6-0
Doug Getsinger (ECU) d. Nick O'Hara, 7-5, 7-5

UCLA Finishes Pac-8 Games

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Explosive UCLA, led by forward Richard Washington, rushed past Southern California in the final minutes for an easy 87-73 Pacific-8 Conference basketball victory Saturday at the Sports Arena.

The Bruins, who closed out the regular season at 23-4 and 12-2 in conference play, had previously clinched their 10th straight Pac-8 title.

UCLA will begin defense of its NCAA crown in Eugene, Ore., next week in the Western Regionals against the Pacific Coast Athletic Association representative.

The Trojans closed out their worst season in a decade under Coach Bob Boyd with 15 straight losses, an 0-14 conference record and an overall mark of 11-16.

Washington, who was in foul trouble most of the game, returned from the bench with eight minutes left and spurred the Bruins from a 62-58 deficit to a 66-62 lead with eight straight points.

UCLA's other forward, Marques Johnson, was almost as effective with 20 points. He matched Washington with nine rebounds.

Bruins center David Greenwood added 14 points and guard Andre McCarter chipped in with 12, 10 in the first half.

USC senior Bob Trowbridge, who did not start the game, led the Trojans with 19 points and had six rebounds. Earl Evans hit for 13 points. Marv Safford, USC's leader all season, finished with 12.

The Bruins could not shake the Trojans in the first half, even though the losers shot only 38 per cent from the field.

USC forged a temporary lead midway through the second half on some hot shooting by Safford and Trowbridge before the Bruins pulled away down the stretch.

Ashe, Connors Key Cup Victory

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — Arthur Ashe defeated Tony Roche and Jimmy Connors dumped John Newcombe Saturday to give the United States' its first World Cup of Tennis win over Australia in five years.

Ashe, the world's No. 1 ranked player, had difficulty with Roche's tricky spin serve in the first set, but solved the problem with the aid of team captain Dennis Ralston the second to win 3-6, 6-2, 6-3.

Connors needed only 69 minutes to dispose of Newcombe, 6-2, 6-3 in the second match of the day at the Hartford Civic Center.

Roche forced Ashe into weak service returns in the opening set and went to the net to cut them down with accurate left-handed volley placements. But Ashe moved back from the baseline in the second set to cut down the effect of Roche's spin.

The American broke Roche's service in the sixth and eighth games to even the match, then broke Roche twice again in the third set to put the U.S. within one match of its first cup victory since 1971.

Connors, performing in his first cup tourney, ran the older Newcombe all over the court, breaking the Australian's service in the second game and eighth game of both sets.

The owners' committee reacted in amazement at the suggestion that the players could take over baseball after Miller's April 25 deadline.

"Our position is that individual contracts are subordinated to a collectively bargained agreement," said Gaherin. "We would not consider what Mr. Miller is saying to be factual. He is not supported by the law."

MacPhail wondered where the players would play. "The clubs hold leases on the parks," he said. "If the players are going to take over and run it, I've got six unsigned umpires and I'd like to turn them over to Mr. Miller."

Semantics seemed to separate the two parties on another matter.

Miller charged that the owners had rejected the Players Association offer of a modified reserve clause that would allow players to become free agents after six major league or nine professional seasons after giving one year's notice.

FARMVILLE — North Pitt's defense and Beth Turnage's last second shot for Farmville Central gave their teams the titles of the Eastern Carolina Conference Tournament Friday night.

Jeese Harris and Donnie Perkins provided the offensive spark and the North Pitt boys drained Greene Central's luck, 49-34.

The girls' game was between two teams no one thought would be in the finals and few might have thought they would be in the semi-finals. But there they were.

North Pitt had the easier route, if there was one, beating first Ayden-Grifton on Wednesday night 53-39. Thursday, things were more difficult as the Pant-HERS upset North Lenoir, 49-47.

The Jaguars knocked off Aycock in a close game, 38-36, on Monday night and pulled out a big upset over Southern Nash Thursday, 47-44.

But the Lady Jaguars could as easily have lost the game on a near fatal miscommunication.

With 35 seconds left in the game and North Pitt having just taken a 46-45 lead, both coaches called timeouts. Farmville Central's Hilda Worthington told guard Jennifer Counterman to hold the ball for ten seconds then drive in and try to score.

But Counterman misunderstood and she held the ball until ten seconds were left.

"I told her to hold it for ten seconds," Mrs. Worthington said. "She thought I said wait until ten seconds."

"I thought she said wait," Jennifer said. "I waited to see if anybody was open. If there were, I was to pass off. If not, I was to drive in."

As it turned out, she found Turnage open in the right corner. Turnage, a senior, drove in a shot from ten feet scoring with :02 showing.

Farmville Central had run up a 6-0 lead before North Pitt got started and when the Big Orange began to roll, it cut the lead to two, 11-9 at the end of the period.

Buckets by Wanda Phillips and Diane Barrett gave the Lady Jaguars a 17-11 lead early in the second quarter but North Pitt slowly trimmed it down to 20-18. Kathi Manning, who dribbled circles around the FC defense in the fourth quarter, sank two free throws to tie the game with 1:31 left in the half. Donna Parker hit a field goal with 41 seconds left to put North Pitt up, 22-20 at halftime.

The teams traded baskets in the third period until Barrett hit a lay-up and Counterman a jumper tieing the game, 28-28. North Pitt got the lead back and held it until Barrett scored with 17 seconds gone in the fourth period giving FC the lead, 35-34.

After that, the lead changed hands nine times in the fourth. Farmville Central got a three-point, 39-36, lead with 6:10 to go but the girls sat on it and North Pitt rallied for the lead, 40-39.

After an exchange of leads, North Pitt moved three-up, 46-43, but Farmville cut it to one as Phillips hit from underneath.

North Pitt ran almost two-and-a-half minutes off the clock with the four corners as Manning and Ellen Dixon ran figure eights through the Farmville Central defense. They broke the string standing in the lane too long at the 1:14 mark and another turnover with :38 left gave the ball away.

Counterman ran the clock down and passed off to Turnage who was mobbed by the team as North Pitt called for time after the shot.

Phillips led the Lady Jaguars with 20 and Counterman had 11. Dixon and Manning scored 10 each and Joy Forbes ripped the nets with 17.

Barrett and Phillips led the rebounding with 12 each for Farmville Central. Cynthia Barnes had 10 for the Pant-HERS.

Cobby Deans said before his game, the Panther boys were going to let Greene Central do all the fancy stuff like boxes-and-fours and triangles-and-twos. They would stay with straight defense and let the offense worry about itself.

But Deans said later that Greene Central's Jim Fulghum did not do what he expected. "We started to get slower, Deans said, "so we had to pick it up."

The spurt overcame an 8-6 first period Ram lead and sent the Panthers to a 13-8 lead. GC cut it to 13-10 at the end of the period.

"We pointed and overloaded the shooter. It left somebody open," Deans said, but the Rams still had trouble hitting.

The Panthers outrebounded Greene Central, 28-14, which had an effect on the game. "We hit the boards," said Deans, "We gave them a few off offensive rebounds. We shot the ball well."

North Pitt hit 21 of 35 attempts for 60 percent while Greene Central sank 17 of 40 for 43 percent. Greene Central committed nine turnovers, North Pitt seven.

North Pitt got the first bucket but the Rams hit three straight to gain the lead, 6-2. North Pitt tied it at 6-6 and 8-8 before Virgil Pilgreen's three-point play gave them a 9-8 lead.

Greene Central fought back to go ahead, 14-13, with 4:40 left in the first half but a field goal by Jackie Best, one by Harris and a jumper by Perkins, 21-14, slammed a lid on the GC scorers. They only added three more points the rest of the half. NP scored eight.

North Pitt moved out to a 15-point lead in the fourth period, 44-29, on a three-pointer by Perkins and Harris's free shots with :41 left made it 17, 49-31.

Perkins led the Panthers with 22 points and six rebounds. Harris scored 10 and Best 10. Pilgreen had seven rebounds. Marvin Rouse led GC with 16. Melvin Briggs pulled down six rebounds.

Farmville Central's girls will advance to the district tournament in Williamston this week.

North Pitt and Greene Central will be in the districts at North Pitt beginning Tuesday. North Pitt will face Roanoke Rapids at 8:30 following the Washington-Ayden-Grifton game at 7:00.

Wednesday night, Greene Central will play Williamston at 7 p.m. and Farmville Central will meet Ahoskie at 8:30.

Chargers Rip Kinston, 10-1

LITTLEFIELD—Ayden-Grifton opened the 1976 baseball season with a 10-1 romp past Kinston's Vikings Friday afternoon.

Led by the hitting of Ned Craft and Rod Korenegay, the Chargers pounded away, taking full advantage of early mistakes by Kinston.

The Chargers pushed over all they were to need in the first inning, getting three runs. Paul Setliff, who had walked, came around when Eddie Taylor stroked the first pitch thrown at him over the fence for a two-run homer. Craft then doubled and scored when Kornegay's single was also errored.

Kinston got its only run in the third. Wiggs came around after getting a hit'when Keith singled and an error allowed further advancement.

The Chargers made up for that run with one of their own in the bottom of the inning. Craft and Kornegay both singled and a hit by Steve Nobles brought in Craft.

In the fourth, the Chargers added four more to up their lead to 8-1. Sammy Whitehurst and Dennis Carter both walked, and a double by Al Butts scored the first run. Carter was cut down, however, trying to score after Eddie Taylor walked and Craft hit into a fielder's choice. Kornegay then reached on an error, scoring Butts, and another error on the play allowed Taylor to score. Craft scored on a wild pitch.

Ayden-Grifton finished up the scoring with two in the sixth. Kornegay, Ed Coley and Tim Shadle all walked to load them up, and walks to Paul Ricciarelli and Setliff forced over Kornegay and Coley.

Craft and Kornegay each had two hits for Ayden-Grifton, while Wiggs had three for Kinston.

Virginia Stuns Terps As Heels Top Clemson

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

And now for the finals of the Atlantic Coast Conference playoffs: North Carolina vs. Virginia.

Virginia?

"In the last half of the season, we have been one of the best—if not the best, team in the ACC," says Coach Terry Holland.

North Carolina, the regular-season champion, may dispute that statement but the Cavaliers have certainly looked as good as Holland's word in the unpredictable ACC playoffs.

The Cavaliers, who finished sixth in the seven-team league ducing the season, beat their second nationally-ranked team in two nights with a 73-65 whipping of No. 9 Maryland. They trimmed No. 17 North Carolina State 75-63 in Thursday's opening round.

"We'll have to play the same kind of basketball against North Carolina," Holland said. "In fact we have to be even better than we were the last two nights."

The fourth-ranked Tar Heels advanced to last night's championship round with an 82-7 victory over Clemson.

"We were pleased to have won over a Clemson team that I think is very aggressive defensively," noted North Carolina Coach Dean Smith, whose players were jeered by the crowd of 19,600 in Landover, Md., for slowing down play.

The Tar Heels went to their patented, four-corner offense while holding an 11-point lead with six minutes to play.

"Teams would rather have us keep shooting," Smith said, defending his offensive intentions. "If you were playing football and leading by three or four touchdowns in the fourth quarter, they would rather see you pass on every play. All we are doing is staying on the ground."

The ACC was one of many tournaments underway Friday night to determine berths and pairings for the NCAA playoffs which start later this month.

The newest NCAA entry was decided in the Ohio Valley Conference, where Western Kentucky defeated Morehead 65-60 and advanced to the Mideast Regionals in Dayton, Ohio. The Hilltoppers will play second-ranked Marquette in a first-round game on March 13.

Memphis State trimmed Louisville 87-76 and 13th-ranked Cincinnati held off Georgia Tech 71-60 to advance to last night's finals of the Metro-Six Tournament; Texas Tech defeated Arkansas 70-63 and moved into the finals of the Southwest Conference playoffs against regular-season champion Texas A&M; Weber State nudged Northern Arizona 63-58 and Boise State defeated Idaho State 93-81 to advance to the finals of the Big Sky Conference playoffs, and Temple beat St. Joseph's 80-72 and Hofstra turned back Lafayette 77-72 in the semifinals of the East Coast Conference.

George Washington and Georgetown were to play for an NCAA berth in the ECAC's Southern Regionals. George Washington outscored West Virginia 99-97 and Georgetown move into last night's finals. Marquette, selected a few days ago for an at-large berth to the NCAAs, clobbered Cincinnati Xavier 74-49 Friday night.

Brickels Gets Davidson Axe

DAVIDSON, N.C. (AP) — A Davidson College official said Friday the school would like to get a "name" coach to replace head basketball coach Bo Brickels, who was dismissed Friday.

Thom Cartmill, Davidson athletic director, said a successor to Brickels would be named "as soon as possible."

"Timing is essential so we can get someone in to salvage the recruiting year," Cartmill said.

Brickels was dismissed after his team posted a 5-21 record in his second season at the Southern Conference school near Charlotte. His record during his two years at Davidson was 12-40.

Brickels was finishing the second year of a two-year contract at Davidson, and he said Friday that he had been given verbal assurances of a third year when he was hired.

"It's difficult to comprehend this happening anywhere after two years," he said.

"At Davidson, we thought this was over with last week."

The school's board of trustees last week approved a resolution calling for a return to the "national level basketball program" the school once had.

Brickel's dismissal came after two days of meetings by college officials.

Cartmill, who said Brickels did a "fine recruiting job last year," said the school would consider a coach "who's been involved in the rat race of the recruiting wars and pressure situations."

Union Carbide Takes Crown

Union Carbide took the Adult Basketball League's 2-A Division I title with a closing victory Friday night. The play wound up league play for the year.

In the first game at West Greenville, Darryl's pulled off an upset of Division II champ Davis Wildcats, taking a 73-69 win. Davis led at the half, 25-24. Linwood Staton led Darryl's with 36 points, while Rock Merritt added 13, Don Hooker had 12 and Bruce Bullock, 11. Cleveland Johnson led Davis with 19, while Darnell Speight and Larry Bradley each had 14 and Bobby Short had 12.

In the other game, Allen Dean downed Big Value Drugs, 81-75. The winners held a 50-30 halftime advantage. Wayne Hardee led Allen Dean with 20, while Terry Haine had 19, and Lee Mills and Donald White had 12. Curt Creech led Big Value with 24, while Joe Hancock had 23 and Mike Hooks hit 12.

In the opener at Elm Street, Union Carbide downed Stewart's Sandwiches, 77-75. Stewart's led at the half, 44-38. Garland Warren led UC with 20 points, Jimmy Sutton and Phil Page each had 18 and Tommy Roach had 12. Charles Meeks led Stewart's with 30, while Bobby Gaynor and Tommy Jordan each had 14 and Cliff Barbee had 12.

Eaton took a 48-30 win over Carolina Telephone in the second game, holding a 25-14 lead at the half. Herb Whitington led Eaton with 15, while Leonard Montieth paced CT&T with 12.

The final game saw the Sheltered Workshop roll to a 112-57 win over St. James. ECSW held a 46-23 lead at the half. Bobby Thompson led the winners with 32, while Cliff Barrett had 28, Sam Barrett had 22, and Alton Mames and Melvin Graham each had 14. Charles Barbow led St. James with 26, while Guy Howell had 13.

Warriors Nip Jags In Opener

NEW HOPE—Eastern Wayne rallied with two outs in the seventh inning and then came up with the winning run in the ninth to hand Farmville Central at 3-2 defeat Friday.

It was the opening game of the year for the Jaguars, who nearly pulled off a shutout win before the bottom dropped out.

Farmville took the lead in the fourth inning, scoring a run. Jerry Rackley walked and scored when Mike Jenkins doubled.

A second Farmville run came over in the fifth. Tommy Cobb singled and stole second. David Winborn then doubled him in for a 2-0 lead.

With two away in the seventh, Farmville Central came within one strike of ending the game with the shutout. But Larry Batts and Larry Ward both walked and Woody Sutton tripled to drive in both runners and tie the game.

It stayed that way until the bottom of the ninth. Eastern Wayne's Mike Broadhead walked as did Ward. Billy Suggs then singled to drive in Broadhead with the winning run.

Jenkins sparked the Farmville hitting, getting three while Cobb added two hits.

The Jaguars travel to Southern Wayne Friday.

Havlicek's Loss Hurting Celtics

By The Associated Press

John Havlicek is among the missing and already the Boston Celtics are starting to notice.

"Havlicek had been a big part of our offense for years and you don't lose a player like him without feeling it," says Coach Tom Heinsohn. "He is a great offensive and a great defensive player, and that is all we have to find to get the job done."

Without their star forward, who has been lost to the club for at least two weeks with a knee injury, the Celtics seemed like just an ordinary team Friday night—struggling to beat the New Orleans Jazz 98-93.

"We ran and hustled and hit our shots in the first half, but we couldn't hit in the second half worth a darn," said Heinsohn after the close National Basketball Association game. "We had some good shots but we couldn't make them."

The Celtics had a 36-point lead at one time but the Jazz whittled it to just four near the end.

In the other NBA games, the Philadelphia 76ers whipped the Detroit Pistons 123-112; the Kansas City Kings downed the Seattle SuperSonics 111-93; the Phoenix Suns tripped the Chicago Bulls 99-97; the Cleveland Cavaliers beat the Portland Trail Blazers 113-100 and the Los Angeles Lakers outscored the Golden State Warriors 106-99.

The Celtics rolled to a 73-37 lead in the opening minutes of the third period. But the Jazz outscored Boston 21-4 in a seven-minute stretch to get back in the game. The Jazz actually got within 93-89 with 1:11 remaining in the game, but Charlie Scott converted a three-point play that ended New Orleans' hopes. Scott wound up with 25 points.

Black Schools Making Comeback

BARBARA WASHINGTON
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — Predominantly black Southern colleges weakened by Southeastern Conference recruitment of black basketball talent are beginning to recover, black recruiters say.

An Associated Press survey of 18 predominantly black colleges revealed that most have experienced better teams, increased attendance at games and a renewed interest in the sport.

Some of the smaller colleges, such as Knoxville (Tenn.) College and Tougaloo (Miss.) College, said SEC recruitment never affected their programs, anyway.

One weekend in January, 39 of these black "blue-chippers" were among the 50 starters on SEC squads.

A spokesman for Southern University at Baton Rouge, La., one of the nation's largest black school with an enrollment of 14,000, commented, "We just have to dig deeper and search harder," he said. "It's more difficult getting the quality black athlete, because more people are interested in him."

The spokesman said predominantly black Southern schools have an advantage over SEC schools because most of the 46 black colleges engaged in competitive athletics are in the South and many are practicing stronger conference scheduling.

"Four of our conference teams are among the nation's leading scorers," he said. "We're strong believers that a strong, attractive schedule is the key factor in recruiting good athletes."

Most black colleges in SEC states are members of either the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Conference or the richer and more powerful Southwestern Athletic Conference, a league of state colleges which boasts Alcorn State University of tiny Lorman, Miss.

Alcorn led the AP's top 15 small college basketball poll for most of this season. The poll also has included other black schools this year, such as Grambling (La.) State University, Kentucky State College and Tennessee State University.

Grambling Coach Fred Hobdy feels "the last three years have been very good for black schools all over.

"Kids are beginning to come back to black schools. The novelty has worn off," said Hobdy. "I predict in the next five or 10 years, the situation will be like it was before. Everybody wants to play and the large schools aren't going to get all those boys."

Black schools have been hurt by the declining number of black high school coaches who used to steer minority talent their way, said Ed Martin of Tennessee State in Nashville.

But Martin said his arguments that black schools are more effective in handling player problems, have more graduating athletes and offer a better social life are beginning to work.

"I think they are beginning to realize that all that glitters is not gold," said Martin.

Officials at Alabama State University and Tuskegee (Ala.) Institute even feel SEC recruitment has been to their advantage.

ASU's athletic director, Tommy Frederick, said the SEC has recruited players who were likely to choose ASU rivals Jackson State and Grambling, and Tuskegee officials indicated Big Ten colleges had been hurt more than black schools by the SEC.

Many black schools have turned to local talent to bolster their programs, like LeMoyne-Owen College in Memphis, Tenn., whose Magicians were Division III NAIA champs last year.

"I feel that we can still recruit the quality player even with the SEC going after the top ranked players, because Memphis and area high schools offer a great wealth of talent," said Coach Jerry Johnson, who proved it in 1974 by signing George Jones, one of the state's highest scoring prep players.

However, the lucrative college scholarships, exposure to professional basketball scouts and media coverage continue to lure black players to SEC schools.

"We just don't have a chance," said Albert E. Frazier, athletic director at Savannah (Ga.) State College. "Not only with the SEC, but with all the other conferences. We find that people out of the Southwest are coming into this area taking players out. They have more money."

Jackson State Athletic Director T. B. Ellis said the limited sphere of influence of black colleges also puts them at a disadvantage.

"You find sometimes high-powered tactics are used to get black athletes to sign with schools in the SEC," Ellis said.

Bethune-Cookman College coach Jack McClairen said at Daytona Beach, Fla., that SEC recruiters have sabotaged his once highly competitive program.

"I have players now that five years ago couldn't have made my club," said McClairen.

SEC recruiters have even made talking to top prospect a problem, said Hansell E. Tookes, athletic director at Florida A&M University in Tallahassee.

"The sports writers and coaches know the kids who will be all-state, but most of the time the black coach can't even get to talk to the good player," said Tookes. "Their coaches, usually white, tell them, 'You don't want A&M, you want a big school.'"

Jamesville Captures Title As Aurora Falls

WASHINGTON—Jamesville High School, which finished fifth in the regular season Beaufort-Hyde-Martin Conference, rolled to a 73-62 victory over Aurora Friday night to capture the league's conference tournament crown.

The Bullets downed both the first and second place teams as well as the fourth place finisher on the way to the title.

Jerry Ange was selected to the All-Conference and All-Tournament teams for his play for the Bullets, and garnered the Most Valuable Player award also. Rufus Simmons also was named to the All-Tournament team.

Spotting Aurora a 6-0 lead, Jamesville reeled off 10 straight points to take the lead and they were never headed after that. The Bullets worked up an 18-11 lead in the first period and then outhit Aurora, 18-6, in the second frame for a 36-17 lead.

Aurora put on a comeback in the second half, outscoring the Bullets, 22-14. That trimmed the lead down to 50-39. But they got no closer than seven, and the Bullets pulled back out by matching Aurora's 23 points in the final period to win by 11.

Ricky Whitehurst led the Jamesville scoring with 24 points, while Simmons had 21 and Ange hit 13. Eli Speights led Aurora with 15, while Keith Holmes hit 14, Ervin Chapman had 11 and William Bell, 10.

Jamesville will now enter this week's District 1, Class A Tournament, to be held at Edenton. The winner of that goes on to the State Tournament the following week.

A Captain's Choice tournament will be held on Sunday, March 21. A 2 p.m. shotgun start will be observed, and the field is limited to the first 45 men and 45 women to sign up.

The Member-Guest Tournament will be held on June 19-20. Signups will begin at 7:30 p.m. on March 13. Members wishing to play must sign up in person or have a representative sign up for them and all fees must be paid at the time of registration. The field is limited to the first 57 teams.

KNOWS THE SCORE

STANTON, Mo. (AP) — Tourists visiting the Meramec Caverns here really know the score. The latest scores of pro teams in St. Louis are posted in the cavern, 55 miles southwest of St. Louis. "It's part of our good neighbor policy," says cave owner Lester B. Dill.

TEAM OF GENTLEMEN

PRINCETON, N. J. (AP) — Basketball coach Pete Carril of Princeton told how his team was "getting killed on the foul line" after a 66-61 setback against Miami, Ohio, in the Michigan Invitational Tournament. The next night his players got the message. Southern Illinois never had a chance to make a foul shot and the Tigers won 69-58. Princeton played the game without having one foul called against them.

40,000 MILE WARRANTY
*Michelin's Warranty for X Radial Highway Passenger Tire shown here covers tread life, normal road hazards (excluding repairable punctures) and defects in workmanship and materials for 40,000 miles, when tire is used on passenger vehicles in normal service in continental United States, except Alaska. Credit or refund (at Michelin's option) is equal to current actual selling price multiplied by percentage of wear rated mileage not run on tire.

BUSINESS OPENED

The opening of Ayden Marble and Granite at 608 N. Lee Street, Ayden was announced by James Jones, owner.

Jones has had some 15 years experience in the marble-granite business.

AGREEMENT REACHED

Merrill Lynch & Co. and Tax Corp. of America announced that an agreement in principle has been reached which could lead to the acquisition of TCA by Merrill Lynch.

The firms announced that the terms called for the exchange of one share of Merrill Lynch common stock for each 30 shares of TCA.

Tax. Corp. of America, a Los Angeles based preparer of individual tax returns and a financial services firm, had revenues of $10.3 million in the fiscal year ended April 30, 1975.

She and her husband, Elbert L. Davidson, live in Jacksonville.

As Chairman Of [illegible] Committee

Butz Assigned Policy Functions

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's new Agricultural Policy Committee contains elements of a political curtsy to farm groups who had chided him for not listening enough to the farmer.

Ford, in a speech Friday to farmers in Illinois, said he was naming Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz as chairman of the committee, which will consolidate "all agricultural policy-making functions" of the executive branch.

The American Farm Bureau Federation, the nation's largest farm group, and others had criticized Ford for allegedly undercutting Butz and leaning toward Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and others in matters of agricultural export policy.

Earlier this year the federation, a conservative organization which is especially strong in Illinois, warned Ford that he was in trouble politically with farmers because of last summer's Russian grain sale embargo.

Allen Grant, federation president, said in January that he had asked Ford to put Kissinger "back on the track" regarding farm policy and had urged that Butz and the Agriculture Department be given a greater voice.

Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., another critic, has said repeatedly that Kissinger and others have influenced farm trade policy without paying enough attention to Agriculture Department experts.

The embargoes last summer on grain sales to Russia and Poland were irksome to Dole and others who felt Ford had listened to others besides his agriculture experts. In the case of the Polish embargo, Butz opposed it while Kissinger argued for it and won.

Eventually, the embargoes were lifted. But Dole and other farm belt members of Congress have continued criticizing the White House for the embargoes and have been pushing Ford to make amends with farmers.

Ford said in Springfield, Ill., that he was proud of Butz and that he was asking the secretary to "assume a new and vital role" in strengthening the administration's farm policy.

"This new committee — and its leadership — reasserts the importance I attach to Secretary Butz as my chief agricultural policy adviser and spokesman," Ford said. "I am confident that this bolstering of agricultural policy within the executive branch will benefit the farmers of Illinois and all Americans."

Ford's announcement pleased Dole, who said he had made a similar suggestion to the President.

"It's the right thing to do and it's good politics," Dole said.

THE "LITEK" — Dr. Robert [illegible]ans, administrator, Energy, Research and Development Administration, looks over a new fluorescent "Litek" bulb that resembles an incandescent bulb, during a Washington news conference Friday. Unlike the incandescent bulb, however, it has no hot filament. Instead it has a cool magnetic coil, right photo, that is energized by an electronics package in its lower portion. The bulb can last several years and possibly a decade or more. (AP Wirephoto)

Their Take $1.7 Million Each Annually

Two Grain Companies Fined For Cheating

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Two giant companies which together made an estimated $1.7 million a year by cheating on grain weights and quality have been fined $10,000 each after getting caught.

Garnac Grain Inc. and the Archer-Daniels-Midland Co. pleaded no contest Friday to federal charges of plotting to steal grain over four years. The $10,000 fines were the maximum penalties under law.

In a related case, H.D. Matherne, former chief inspector at a grain elevator, was convicted Friday of taking $6,500 in bribes. He faces a maximum sentence of a $30,000 fine and six years in prison.

FBI Agent Robert J. Isakson told U.S. Dist. Judge Jack Gordon that the companies together made more than $400,000 a year by shortweighting ships being loaded at their elevators and about $1.35 million a year by substituting junk grain for high-quality cargo.

The St. Charles Grain Elevator Co. of Destrehan, La., owned by the two companies, also pleaded no contest and was fined $10,000.

Isakson said the companies routinely cheated for profit.

The Boston Public Library first opened in 1852.

WHAT TO DO IF YOU SMELL GAS.

Call Greenville Utilities immediately. Anytime day or night. We'll get a serviceman to your home or location to correct the problem.

While you're waiting for him to get there, open a window, make sure you use no electrical switches. Extinguish any open flames and evacuate the area.

If you don't know what natural gas smells like, stop by our office and pick up a scratch and sniff leaflet.

Because even though natural gas contains no poisonous ingredients, a leak can become hazardous if combustible gas pockets are allowed to form. Which makes it important for you to know what natural gas smells like.

Course Taken By Officer

Highway Patrol Lt. Carl Gilchrist of Greenville, executive officer of Troop A, has completed an intensive 11-week Police Traffic Administration course at the National Traffic Management Institute at Central Missouri State University.

The Patrol officer, a Lillington native, joined the Highway Patrol in 1950 and was stationed in Plymouth, Lumberton and Burlington, before being transferred to Troop A headquarters here in 1970 and made lieutenant.

The CMSU program which he attended was an intensive training program for in-service law enforcement officers, consisting of 11 hours of class a day, plus research work.

Courses included such topics as advanced police management, advanced traffic administration, Liability and the Law Enforcement Officer, report writing and speech classes, as well as special projects in speech and communications.

Lt. Gilchrist, who attended King's Business College in Raleigh before joining the Patrol, is a 1971 graduate of the Northwestern University Traffic Institute.

12 MONTHS OR 12,000 MILES USED CAR WARRANTY

Most good used cars, if they're guaranteed at all, are only covered for a month or two. At Tarheel Toyota, we're just as willing to back our good used cars as our good new cars. So we guarantee the motor, transmission and rear end for 12 months or 12,000 miles. This warranty applies to all cars selling for more than $1000.00 or more on a 50-50 basis with all work being done in our shop. It doesn't apply to any sports cars, high performance engines or 4 speed transmissions (except economy cars). If you're in the market for a BETTER USED CAR, COME OUT AND LOOK AT OURS. We'll show you some as good as new. Guaranteed. (Owners name furnished upon request.)

THE MORNING EXERCISE CLASS . . is led by Peg Henderson, who is a housewife and mother of four children. Mrs. Henderson exercises because she realizes the importance of physical fitness and wants to start an exercise class when her family moves from Greenville in June.

DEMONSTRATING THE SIT-UP . . . is Marty Gartman. Alice Keene, of the Greenville Recreation Department, explains the proper way of doing the exercise and its importance. (Reflector photos by Tommy Forrest)

Physical Fitness Is Increasingly Needed

In a world filled with automatic appliances, machines and computers, it becomes increasingly important for ladies to be concerned about physical fitness.

"Technically speaking, physical fitness involves measures and levels of muscular strength and endurance, muscle tone, heart action and response to activity, agility, balance and coordination. However, fitness also includes an individual's personal feelings—how one feels at the end of a hard day and how eagerly one looks forward to doing things she must do or things she wants to do such as play tennis or golf. A well-rounded exercise program can aid ladies in achieving desired levels of physical fitness," says Miss Alice Keene of the Greenville Recreation Department.

"Most scientists today would agree that exercise is of value to most individuals. They would further agree that exercise to be effective, should meet certain fundamental requirements. It must be regular, enjoyable, vigorous and suited to the individual. There are many physiological, psychological and sociological values of exercise which should be recognized by ladies," she added.

One common benefit of exercise is the improvement of efficiency in function of the vital organs and the muscular system. The physically trained lady, will in her every day tasks, expend proportionately less energy and put less strain on her body than the sedentary or physically untrained lady. Another general effect of regular exercise is that it helps promote the growth and development of different body parts. Other physiological benefits of regular exercise include improved circulation, respiration, digestion, elimination, musculature and increased production of red blood cells in the bone marrow, she pointed out.

From a psychological point of view, exercise is relaxing to the mind. It permits the release of pent-up emotions through socially approved channels. It provides for self-expression as well as satisfies primitive urges and wishes for new experiences, security, response, recognition, and participation. It is a means of developing confidence and of obtaining the joys and satisfactions that come from a successfully completed task. An interesting game or vigorous exercise session takes the mind off of oneself and concentrates it on outward interests.

Sociological values of exercise include an opportunity to communicate with other people and an opportunity to make new friends. People are strongly motivated by the instinct or desire to be with and mingle with their fellow men. In sports, other social values such as teamwork, loyalty, and sportsmanship may also be achieved.

Exercise Classes

In an effort to assist ladies in improving their physical fitness, the Greenville Recreation Department conducts regular exercise classes. The classes are held on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday mornings at 8:30 a.m. and on Monday nights at seven o'clock and eight o'clock.

The exercise program includes a combination of exercises designed to use all the muscles in the body. The program can be broken down into four basic components.

The first five to eight minutes is used for jumping rope. Jumping rope can be effective in conditioning legs, things and hips. The rhythmic turning of the rope exercises the upper part of the body. Jumping rope makes sturdier feet and ankles, stronger wrists, improves balance, agility, coordination and increases cardiovascular endurance.

The second part of the program includes several warm-up exercises. These exercises are designed to gradually stretch and loosen the body muscles.

The third part of the program includes a vigorous sequence of exercises. These exercises are designed to tax the muscles so that they will increase in endurance. Exercises are included to reach all parts of the body with emphasis on hips, thighs and the stomach.

The fourth and last part of the program is a tapering off or relaxation component. It includes several slower exercises which allow physiological mechanisms to return to normal gradually.

The exercise classes are open to all ladies of all ages. Each person works at her own rate of speed. The classes are free of charge.

Weight Lose

"Many ladies ask if exercising will make them lose weight. Exercising alone will not make one lose weight. However, it will burn calories that will aid in losing weight if a reasonable diet is followed. A regular exercise program will make a person feel better whether she loses weight or not," she added.

In addition to ladies exercise classes, the Recreation Department offers many sports for ladies. Participation in these sports would further supplement the exercise program which is needed in order to keep all the muscles in good condition. These sports include golf, tennis, bowling, basketball, softball, and volleyball.

"It is easy to make excuses — 'I don't have time,' 'I'm too old', 'I had rather sleep late', or 'I can't do the exercises or play the game.' In an age in which we do less and less physical activity in our daily lives, and face more and more health problems such as arteriosclerotic heart disease, hypertension and increased potential for obesity, it is time to say I can and I will get the proper exercise," Miss Keene continued.

"It is up to you and you alone. You must make the decision and generate the will power to carry it out," she concluded.

She Seeks Buildings Tied To Black History

COMPILING FIRST INVENTORY . . . of North Carolina properties important to black history and culture is being prepared by Diane Rose.

By NANCY SZOKAN

Diane Rose is looking for historic buildings—but she's not interested in white-columned plantation homes. She's looking for buildings from a less well-known part of North Carolina's heritage.

Under a contract with the N.C. Division of Archives and History, Mrs. Rose is compiling the first inventory of North Carolina properties important to black history and culture.

The inventory may include, for example, Princeville, an early incorporated black community in Edgecombe County; Livingstone College, founded 97 years ago by a minister of the A.M.E. Zion Church; and places in Durham where black folk music flourished in early 20th-century factory communities.

Some properties on the inventory will eventually be nominated to the National Register of Historic Places. A register listing would not only recognize their historic value but also help protect them under state and federal preservation laws.

Since being hired in September, Mrs. Rose has spent much of her time doing research with the division's survey and planning branch—a lengthy job made longer by the novelty of her subject.

"Although the history of black people is not obscured, it is sometimes hard to find," she said. "There isn't a basic book on the history of the Negro in North Carolina.

"I'm studying primary and secondary sources," she continued. "We've gone through thousands of entries in the state inventory of historic places, looking for properties related to black history and culture. We've contacted local historical societies and put notices in local publications."

The response from historical societies has been slow, she said, "because we're asking them to look for something they haven't looked for before. But we have received from them information which has been helpful."

In her basement office in the Archives and History-State Library Building, Mrs. Rose showed notes and photographs from the potential historic site she visited in early December.

This was Livingstone College, a black college in Salisbury with 1,000 students. There, just about the time Mrs. Rose was hired, an 89-year-old Victorian home was torn down. Besides its architectural value, the home was historically significant, for it belonged to Dr. William Harvey Goler—the college's second president as well as a prominent black minister, professor and architect.

"We lost that house just when I was beginning the project," Mrs. Rose says now. "That's why you have to make an inventory—to prevent that sort of thing from happening. If we don't know what we have, the wrecking crew and the bulldozer will come before we know what we've lost."

At Livingstone, Mrs. Rose and architectural historian H. McKeldon Smith spoke with the daughter of the college's founder, Joseph Charles Price, and other local citizens.

Most important among these was Louise Rountree, the librarian at the college's Carnegie Library. Miss Rountree has been collecting information on historic sites in Rowan County, Mrs. Rose said, and shared what she had found with the survey team.

"She is the most important reason we began our field work at Livingstone," Mrs. Rose said. "Talking to people is important in surveying a possible site . . . Mrs. Rountree is also currently preparing a chronology of black history for the local bicentennial committee."

She returned from Salisbury optimistic about what she had seen and about prospects for finding other valuable black historic sites in the state. Not all the sites, however, will be in as good condition as the buildings at Livingstone.

"It's a question of economics—what people had money to build and preserve," Mrs. Rose said. "In any survey process we find a number of buildings that have been destroyed, or have deteriorated or been greatly changed. We now have to assess what we have and locate potential historic sites."

Research in the project is continuing. "We plan to study church and school records," she said. "There are major sources of information on black history."

Scholarship on the North Carolina Negro "has blossomed," she said, but more work needs to be done.

"A good project for somebody would be to analyze North Carolina history as it relates to blacks, and to compile a bibliography of Negro history," she said.

"We're scratching the surface."

"The N.C. Bicentennial grants committee has recommended that Mrs. Rose receive $3,275 to produce audio-visual presentations on black historic sites. If approved, these displays of tangible links with the black heritage in North Carolina could be used in schools and educational demonstrations.

Eventually, the Department of Cultural Resources, of which the Division of Archives and History forms a part, could produce brochures and other educational material on black historic sites.

More field work is planned for the survey team, with site visits in Raleigh—to two black colleges—and Wilmington—to homes of 19-century black politicians—set for the near future.

Mrs. Rose is a consultant who has lived throughout the United States and worked for a number of cultural agencies, including the national Advisory Council on Historic Preservation.

She thinks this inventory is important to a complete understanding of North Carolina's heritage.

"Among the hundreds of historic sites representative of North Carolina's material culture," she said, "the places of importance to the Negro are rare. For this reason, those sites that have survived are all the more crucial in obtaining an accurate picture of North Carolina's history.

"We hope the inventory will locate and identify sites important to blacks, and thereby provide an impetus for North Carolinians to re-examine their historical and cultural heritage, and to study aspects of that heritage that have been obscured."

Midway Life, Couple Switch Their Careers

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Maida Heatter loves great food. So does her husband, Ralph Daniels. As a result, midway in their lives they switched careers.

Maida is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Gabriel Heatter. Her father was the famous radio news commentator. Of her mother Maida says, "She was a great cook and a true gourmet. Whether or not she had help, she did most of the cooking herself because she loved it. And she imparted that love to me."

Maida grew up in New York and became a fashion illustrator. It wasn't until she moved to Miami that she started giving cooking classes, these in her home. So successful were they, she had to enlarge them. A Miami department store built a replica of her own kitchen in their cookware department and then Maida gave her classes there, dispensing her recipes unstintingly to cooks who treasured them.

It was in Miami that Maida and Ralph Daniels met. Ralph had grown up in Texas and was an airplane pilot. When Ralph gave up commercial flying and opened a small Miami restaurant that gained a reputation for being "casual but elegant," Maida supplied the desserts, baking them in her home kitchen. They were such a hit she couldn't keep up with the demand. "I was always half a dozen cheesecakes and a dozen mousses behind," Maida said when I interviewed her via telephone from New York.

When Ralph decided to close the restaurant and take life a little more easily, Maida gave up her cooking classes and put her recipes in "Maida Heatter's Book of Great Desserts," published by Knopf and so good it's offered by three book clubs. No wonder. Even a novice cook can use the "Great Dessert" recipes successfully because the directions are unusually explicit. That's what I call being a truly generous writer. Maida puts it this way: "During the time I was working on 'Great Desserts,' I constantly thought of the questions my students had asked and incorporated the answers."

Now Maida and Ralph are busy working on new food projects. Maida is writing a book on cookie-making, testing and retesting recipes, deciding which to include. "I can't rely entirely on tasters," Maida explains. "They always say everything served at our house is wonderful. I like the recipes in my books to be ones I think are super."

Ralph is planning to open a new restaurant. When I was talking to Maida, he kept relaying remarks: "Tell Cecily that I'm not going to compromise. Everything we serve is going to be made from the best ingredients." Maida added, "We'll have a small menu, but every dish, simple or complicated, will be sensational." Maida says Ralph is so serious about this new undertaking that "he's willing to sell his 21-year-old plane in A1 condition, to help finance it." According to Ralph, "a fine old plane is like a fine old wine — it gets better and better."

Here is Rum Raisin Ice Cream from "Maida Heatter's Book of Great Desserts." I've tried a number of recipes for this dessert, highly favored by ice cream epicures. Maida's is the best I've come on.

MAIDA HEATTER'S
RUM RAISIN ICE CREAM

2-3rds cup (3 ounces) dark raisins
½ cup dark rum (80 proof)
1½ cups light cream
½ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
4 egg yolks
2 teaspoons vanilla extract
2 cups heavy cream

Soak the raisins in the rum in a small, covered jar for several hours or overnight.

Scald the light cream in the top of a double boiler, uncovered, over hot water on moderate heat. When tiny bubbles begin to appear around the edge, or a slight skin forms on top, add the sugar and salt and stir to dissolve.

In a small bowl stir the egg yolks lightly with a fork just to mix. Very gradually, stirring with the fork, add about half of the hot cream to the yolks, and then add the yolks to the remaining cream in the top of the double boiler.

Replace over hot water on moderate heat and cook, stirring gently and scraping the pot with the rubber spatula, until custard thickens enough to coat a spoon (a scant 175 degrees on a candy thermometer).

Immediately transfer custard to a mixing bowl, or place top of double boiler in a bowl of ice and water to stop the cooking. Stir occasionally until custard is completely cool. Mix in the vanilla and rum-raisin mixture.

In a chilled bowl with chilled beaters, whip the heavy cream only until it holds a soft shape, not stiff. Gradually, in several small additions, fold the cooled custard into the whipped cream. Gently pour back and forth from one bowl to another to insure thorough blending.

Turn into freezer trays, spooning from the bottom to make sure that the raisins are equally distributed; cover airtight and freeze.

Note: Rum Raisin Ice Cream is best made 6 to 12 hours before serving. If it stands longer than that there is a chance it may become granular and crystallized. You will need three average-size, or one average-and one extra-large size ice-cube trays.

Abby's Best Advice Is To Bide Time In Making Choice

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I have been corresponding for over a year with a man who was a Catholic priest for nearly 20 years. We have met three times within the last year, and he has asked me to marry him.

I think I am in love with him, but I have some serious doubts about how such a marriage would work out. Wouldn't a man who has lived under strict discipline for 20 years have a difficult time adjusting to married life?

I am 34 and have never been married. Perhaps someone who has married a former Catholic priest could guide me.
DEBATING

DEAR DEBATING: So much depends upon the individual that I doubt the experience of one (or 100) women would be helpful to you. The best advice I can give you is to bide your time and marry no man until your heart and your head confirm it.

DEAR ABBY: Lately you have had letters in your column about fathers sexually molesting their growing daughters. This is a tragic problem, and I agree that by reading about it in your column, some children may be alerted to this danger and encouraged to report it to their mothers or some other responsible adult.

However, such articles may also give girls from normal homes erroneous ideas when an affectionate father gives them a fatherly hug or kiss.

In our home, there has always been a warm and affectionate relationship between parents and children, and I would hate to have my daughters become suspicious or fearful every time their father caresses them.

Abby, please write something to assure young girls that not every father who kisses and caresses his growing daughters is seeking to go beyond the limits of decency.
MOTHER OF GIRLS

DEAR MOTHER: You make a valid point. But no normal growing girl needs a compass to know if her father (or any other male) is going beyond the limits of decency. Unfortunately, too many sick fathers—as well as "funny uncles" and lecherous grandfathers—have molested children and have never been reported. Every child molester should be reported immediately to the Protective Service Division of Child Welfare in the community.

DEAR ABBY: I never thought I'd be writing to Dear Abby, but I hope you will print this in the interest of safety for all women.

Today, I was assaulted in a parking lot elevator by a man who appeared to be about 30. I believe his intentions were to rape me, but I fought him off and kept screaming loudly. I'm sure my screams are what scared him off.

I went immediately to the police station and reported the incident.

Abby, please tell women that if threatened with rape or assault, they should fight and scream with all their might unless they believe their lives are threatened.

Afterward, they should go directly to the police. No matter how shook up and embarrassed they are, if they don't report the incident at once, the attacker is free to attack other women.

My husband was marvelous. He was proud of me for fighting the man off and then going directly to the police.

Let's get these creeps off the streets and into hospitals or, if necessary, prisons where they can be restrained.
ATTACKED IN PITTSBURGH

DEAR ATTACKED: Thanks for your helpful first-hand advice. Women, are you listening?

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Miss Debra Ann Stancill Weds On Friday Evening

BELVOIR — Miss Debra Ann Stancill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Ray Stancill Sr. of Rt. 4, Greenville, became the bride of Stanley Eugene Gray, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Robert Gray Sr. of Rt. 5, Greenville, Friday evening at eight o'clock.

The Rev. John Moran conducted the double ring ceremony in the Belvoir Free Will Baptist Church.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white formal gown of cluny lace and bridal mist. It was fashioned with a V-neckline, an all over lace empire bodice and long Gibson girl sleeves with lace cuffs. A flounced ruffle bordered the hemline and flowed into a chapel length train.

Her Juliet cap of matching lace and seed pearls was attached to a three tiered veil of silk illusion and lace. She carried a semi-cascade formal bouquet of white orchids, yellow sweetheart roses and baby's breath tied with white satin.

In the center of the church background was a semi-circle candelabra with an outline of white mums and pom pons flanked by spiral 20 tiered candelabra with bouquets of white entwined with springerii greenery and standards of emerald greenery. At the altar was a decorated profile dried-dieu. Pews were marked with white satin bows.

A program of organ music was presented by Sheila Gray, sister of the bridegroom. Donna Glisson sang "The Wedding Song," "More" and "Wedding Prayer."

The honor attendant was Sandra Stancill of Greenville, sister of the bride. She wore a floor length dress of blue polyester crepe styled with an all over lace empire bodice, long lace sleeves and a princess skirt. She wore a blue lace Juliet cap and carried yellow miniature carnations and daisies embedded in delphinium blue baby's breath tied with yellow satin.

Bridesmaids were Brenda Stancill of Greenville, sister-in-law of the bride, Janice Porch of Gaston and Regina Hurle of Hobbsville. The junior bridesmaid was Katrina Gray of Greenville, sister of the bridegroom. Their gowns were fashioned similar to that of the honor attendant. They wore blue Juliet caps and carried bouquets like the honor attendant.

MRS. STANLEY EUGENE GRAY

The mother of the bride selected a floor length blue polyester dress trimmed with sequins with matching accessories. The mother of the bridegroom chose a floor length melon dress of polyester knit. She wore camel accessories. Both mothers wore white orchid corsages.

Ben Gregory of Rocky Mount was best man. Ushers were Jimmy Gray of Stokes, brother of the bridegroom, James Stancill Jr., brother of the bride, and Barry Langley, cousin of the bridegroom, both of Greenville. The junior usher was Steven Stancill of Greenville, brother of the bride.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. Roy Stancill, aunt of the bride. Delores Barnhill, cousin of the bride, presided at the guest register.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside at Rt. 5, Greenville.

Both the bride and bridegroom are graduates of North Carolina Wesleyan College, Rocky Mount. The bride is presently a graduate student in the chemistry department at ECU and the bridegroom is employed by the Greenville Fire Department.

The reception table was covered with a white satin cloth and centered with an arrangement of white snapdragons and baby's breath. After the bridal couple cut the traditional slice of cake, Mrs. W. C. Moore served the guests and Mrs. Edward Stancill poured punch.

A rehearsal party was given Thursday night, by the parents of the bridegroom in the church fellowship hall.

Betty Ford Gains Popularity Through Her Friendly Manner

EDITOR'S NOTE — At first people were astonished. But somehow, something in her honest, soft-spoken approach to the problems of life has turned Betty Ford into a political asset in her husband's fight to retain the presidency. Whatever the question, Betty Ford doesn't flinch.

By FRANCES LEWINE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The young fashion coordinator for Herpolsheimer's department store in Grand Rapids thought she was marrying "a nice, quiet lawyer."

Today, more than 27 years later, the young lawyer is President and Betty Ford is in the White House, rated by a nationwide poll as doing a better job as first lady than he is as chief executive.

Soft-spoken but candid, Betty Ford has spoken frankly about her first, brief and unhappy marriage; the difficult years that led her to a psychiatrist; and her latest crisis, an operation for breast cancer.

She has faced questioners firmly and spoken her mind on pre-marital sex, abortion, marijuana and women's rights. She often relates the answers to her own family, and it has made her believable.

She has been criticized and congratulated for her candor. Yet almost without trying, her friendly, easy manner has won her unexpected popularity.

Even President Ford has been surprised by the way voters respond to her on issues on which she openly disagrees with him.

When she discussed the problems of pre-marital sex in a nationally televised interview last August, the President jokingly said he thought she had cost him 20 million votes.

But in this election year, the President has welcomed her to his campaign, and when they appeared together in the New Hampshire primary in February, Mrs. Ford got spontaneous ovations that matched the President's.

"I do not believe that being first lady should prevent me from expressing my ideas," she told the International Women's Year Conference in Cleveland last fall.

"Why should my husband's job or yours prevent us from being ourselves?"

"Being ladylike does not require silence," she concluded.

Being ladylike has never required her silence. In interviews, she has faced difficult questions.

She talked about "an unhappy first marriage" to William Warren, a Grand Rapids furniture company representative.

She was asked about marijuana and said frankly she was sure her children had tried it. "I think children try everything."

And she just as frankly admitted it was a struggle to bring up four children with a busy congressman husband away much of the time.

Eventually, she said, the strain brought her to a psychiatrist who "persuaded me that I shouldn't give up everything for my husband and children, but had to think about what mattered to me."

She was in favor of the Supreme Court decision liberalizing abortion.

And she told an interviewer she wouldn't be surprised if her daughter, Susan, came to her one day and told her she was having an affair. If that happened, she said, she would offer counsel and advice.

Susan felt free to say why she would never marry a politician: "I have seen my mother go through too much. Having to raise four children by herself was just murder. And I hope not to go through it. Because she has been left at home with everything on her shoulders and that is not the way I want it."

But most impressive was Betty Ford's forthrightness in making public the fact about her breast cancer. It was discovered six weeks after Ford's inauguration, and despite the fact it is one of those cancers people frequently keep hidden, she talked about it frankly and publicly.

Thousands of women rushed to get breast cancer checkups and the problems of mastectomy were openly discussed. Betty Ford says with obvious satisfaction that her case may have helped save many lives.

It would have been different if she were a young girl, she said.

"I have lived a full life and I have the most wonderful husband and the most wonderful four children, and so everything from here on is a plus," she said.

Betty Ford dresses modestly. She never appears in public in pants suits, except when holidaying at the ski resorts of Vail, Colo. She sticks to American designers, preferring simple, casual styles.

"You're kidding," she said when told she made the 1974 international best dressed list. "I guess it shows you don't have to spend a million dollars to look good."

With the spotlight on her, Betty Ford has come through more criticism in a short time than any first lady since Eleanor Roosevelt.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

A lot of people are so busy watching and listening to the presidential candidates, they overlook the real people who could make the difference. Show business personalities.

It's simply a matter of scoring. To date, on the Democratic side Jimmy Carter has the endorsement of the Marshall Tucker band and Gregg Allman. Since Gregg is married to Cher, it could mean the entire block of "naval" votes could go to Carter.

Mo Udall has Linda Ronstadt as a supporter and Fred Harris lists Harry Chapin, Arlo Guthrie, Pete Seeger and Tom Paxton behind him. George Wallace is claiming a large segment of country music performers.

On the Republican side of the ledger, Ronald Reagan hopes to net Pat Boone. Gerald Ford is still doing to single.

The Democrats seem to have captured the lion's share of tennis players (which could make a difference at the convention) but have only one tap dancer (Shirley MacLaine).

The Republicans, however, have several blockbusters, Sammy Davis, Jr., Pearl Bailey and John Wayne, who have been known to effect a landslide victory.

Still confused and wondering who to watch in the forthcoming election year?

Watch Rich Little. Rich is no fool. He's not going to align himself with any candidate whose voice he can't do.

Watch Bob Hope. As yet, he's uncommitted, but you can bet he won't play footsies with a "ski" man even if he has to nominate Jack Nicklaus himself.

Paul Newman. Some people question how much effect a sex symbol will have on the voting public. I can only tell you Paul Newman supported Humphrey in 1968. In 1972, I voted for Humphrey and he wasn't even running.

Watch for the uncommitted vote. There are 97 per cent of the entertainers in Las Vegas, Hollywood, Nashville and New York who are still on the fence.

My husband refutes my theory. He says people listen to issues, weigh the attitudes of the candidates and the soundness of their proposals.

All I know is if Gerald Ford gets Charlton Heston in his back pocket, that's the old ballgame. With Moses on his side, he can't miss.

New Products Bring Home Sewing Changes

MEADVILLE, Pa. (AP) — Home sewing isn't what it used to be.

In less than 12 years, new products and time-saving sewing techniques have been introduced to the home sewer, who also isn't what she used to be.

"The woman who sews today," says Belle Rivers, vice president, consumer affairs, for Talon, "is interested in sewing as a creative activity and an economic consideration. And as she strives to individualize her looks, she is willing to spend more money in fabrics and sewing notions."

Because of these trends, Mrs. Rivers feels more home sewers need to become conscientious consumerists. They must start evaluating products, fabrics and sewing techniques so they receive top value for their sewing dollar and time.

For example, sewing cotton pajamas for children as opposed to purchasing them may not be the wisest use of one's sewing dollar, she points out. Always consider how much you really save by making the home sewn garment.

Mrs. Rivers was a consumer advocate in the home sewing industry long before "consumerism" became a public watchword. In the early '60s, she initiated a panel that has grown to 900 women who review the company's zipper and sewing notions products and test sewing techniques.

Before beginning a sewing project, Mrs. Rivers suggests, ask yourself these questions:

Is it a wise use of time? Decide if the time and effort you will put into the garment merit the end result. Realize you will probably spend as much time creating a $10 dress as you would a $50 one. Ask yourself which dress is more worth your time.

How much fabric do I need? Carefully check fabric information listed on the pattern. Be sure to save extra yardage, especially when sewing for children. That way, if hems or pants legs need to be lengthened, you can do it easily and professionally.

Which thread is the best buy? The label answers that question. Companies who put their name on a thread do so only after it has passed rigid quality control tests. Labels also tell you if the thread is compatible with your fabric. An all-polyester thread is the economical buy, because it can be used for practically every sewing need and on both natural and synthetic fabrics.

Will any zipper do? Never buy a zipper that is too short, just to save a dime. You will end up with a space where the zipper ends and material begins. Consider an all-polyester zipper that doesn't need to be pre-shrunk, no matter what fabric you apply it to. And remember, if the zipper and zipper tape are sewn out of sight, as with a lapped application, you don't have to match the zipper color with your fabric shade.

Will the finishing touches last? Appliques that accent children's clothing get a lot of wear and laundering. A good way to keep those patches on, no matter what, is to stitch them in place, as opposed to ironing them on.

Do I want premium aids? Notions are priced in relation to their quality. If you are sewing a garment that has a one-occasion life span, it is not necessary to select premium aids (name brand threads, packaged zippers, etc.). But if you are creating an expensive dress or one that you will wear often, select the best aids for top performance and a professional touch.

Can I buy shortcuts? Select sewing aids that save time no matter what you are creating. For example, Velcro fasteners take one-third the time to apply when compared to snap, hook and eye, or buttonhole application. A stick and stitch basting tape eliminates time consuming pinning, pinholes in ultra-suede material, and makes aligning stripes and plaids fast and easy.

Will the fabric dull aids? The new synthetic fabrics sport finishes that can dull shears and needles, slow down your sewing and hamper product performance. Use the new ballpoint needles for both machine and hand sewing; and a lightweight shears that has high carbon, polished stainless steel bow-shaped blades and a peened screw instead of a rivet to ensure a full cut each time.

Am I ready to sew? Be cautious with your purchases. Wash your fabric before you start sewing to eliminate hidden shrinkage. If you feel you must pre-shrink a zipper, don't throw it into the washing machine; just hold it under a running tap of hot water for a minute.

New Info Director Is Female

By SANDI LATIMER

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The redhead in the athletic department at Case Western Reserve University lately has raised a few eyebrows, but she feels she won't have trouble doing her job.

Teresa Moir, 22, is the new sports information director for the university's athletic teams.

She feels she won't have many obstacles to overcome.

"I raise a few eyebrows around here when I tell people what I do," said the 5-foot-6 inch Case Western graduate, "but so far people have been helpful and opened doors for me.

"The coaching staff and athletic director are really enthusiastic about a girl in the position," she said.

"The biggest problem I think I'll have is getting to know the sports themselves and get a good background," she said. "It's really a challenge, a fun challenge."

The school isn't well known for sports, and Miss Moir was surprised at the turnout for them.

She finds her job exciting. Since she took over Feb. 1, the basketball team has won two games.

"That made me happy," she said.

A 1975 graduate of Case Western with a major in English and emphasis on journalism, she said:

"I had intended to go to graduate school, but first I wanted to get a job and find out what the outside world was like.

Wanting to get into public relations, she took a public information job at the university, as a secretary to the man handling sports information.

"I was getting some background and, when the opportunity for a promotion came up, I took it."

"There's a wide variety of sports here, and that is one of the things that interests me," she said. "And I'll meet a lot of people through this job."

While a student at Case Western, Teresa played paddle ball.

"I played paddle ball at the gym, and the hardest thing I had to learn was where the ladies' locker room was," she said. "I wandered around for half an hour looking for it before I found it."

She has not tried to get into the men's locker room and has no problems in the press boxes.

"I get along well with people and have found no problems with the guys about the press box," she said.

"I have found that as far as people on this campus are concerned, everyone is really receptive to having a woman sports information director and have gone out of their way to be nice and open," she said. "Coaches filled me in with the background I need."

Miss Moir is the third child in a sports-oriented family of four girls and two boys. All are avid skiers and skaters and basketball players.

Her father, Thomas, is a professor of cardiology at Case Western Reserve. Her mother is a registered nurse.

One sister teaches dramatics in Washington; another is an artist who teaches parttime in Santa Fe, N. M., and the other is a nursing student at Case Western. Both brothers are students, one in college, and the other, in high school.

"My father was thrilled when I took the job," Miss Moir said. "He thought it was a great opportunity and told me not to worry, that I could handle it."

Athough she does have red curly hair, about shoulder length, she says she doesn't have the temper to go along with it:

"I try to keep the temper under control, keep the fighting Irish inside me."

Pitt County Council On Aging Faces Major Task

By SUSAN QUINN
Reflector Staff Writer

They are grandmothers, grandfathers, retired persons, and probably some of the wisest people in the world. They are called old folks, old men, old women, and senior citizens. Some of them are sent away or are totally dependent on their children or the government for their support. There are over 9,000 of them in Pitt County.

Some people feel that older people have become forgotten in America in recent years since so many youth oriented activities have developed.

"To help these people and to coordinate activities to allow for improvements and increase opportunities for them in Pitt County, the Pitt County Council On Aging has been formed," said Dan Earnhardt, President of the council.

"The Council on Aging is made up of a group of people with different occupations, businesses, services and even consumers who work to provide services for older people. The council is a coordinator of these individual activities with a goal to increase opportunities for old people and to help make their normal life better."

The purposes of the council are to help coordinate new and existing services which relate to senior citizens, plan, organize and review additional services and or projects which will benefit senior citizens; promote public awareness of the problems and needs of the aging in Pitt County; inform area senior citizens of programs, services, and activities available, to them; provide social economic, and religious needs of the elderly in the county; to assume when necessary and feasible, an advocate role in taking action of seeking funds for projects, and generally, to do all things reasonably necessary to carry out these purposes.

The council on Aging has become interested in assessing the needs of senior citizens in Pitt County. A needs assessment committee was formed to research various methods of assessing needs and reporting these needs to the council.

Carol Wilkerson, a VISTA worker, has been working with the Council on Aging to help assess the needs of the older citizens of the county.

One method of needs assessment used by the council is the nominal group technique. This process brings individuals together but does not allow individuals iis a group in name only, since group verbal exchange is excluded.

Miss Wilkerson has administered the nominal group technique in several areas of the county, with the assistance of other council members and VISTA workers.

The nominal group technique allows individuals to identify priorities of selected issues and problems, by submitting a written list. The nominal group technique does not allow unbalanced participation which often occurs in large groups.

The process of the technique includes the following steps: silent generation of ideas in writing, round-robin feedback from group members to record each idea in a terse phrase on a flip chart, discussion of each recorded idea for clarification and evaluation, and individual voting on priority ideas with the group decision being mathematically derived through rank-ordering or rating.

Several of the most frequently listed concerns in the nominal group technique are transportation, individual and public, adequate housing with a design barrier free, better health care facilities and services, and understanding by the general public of the senior citizen's needs.

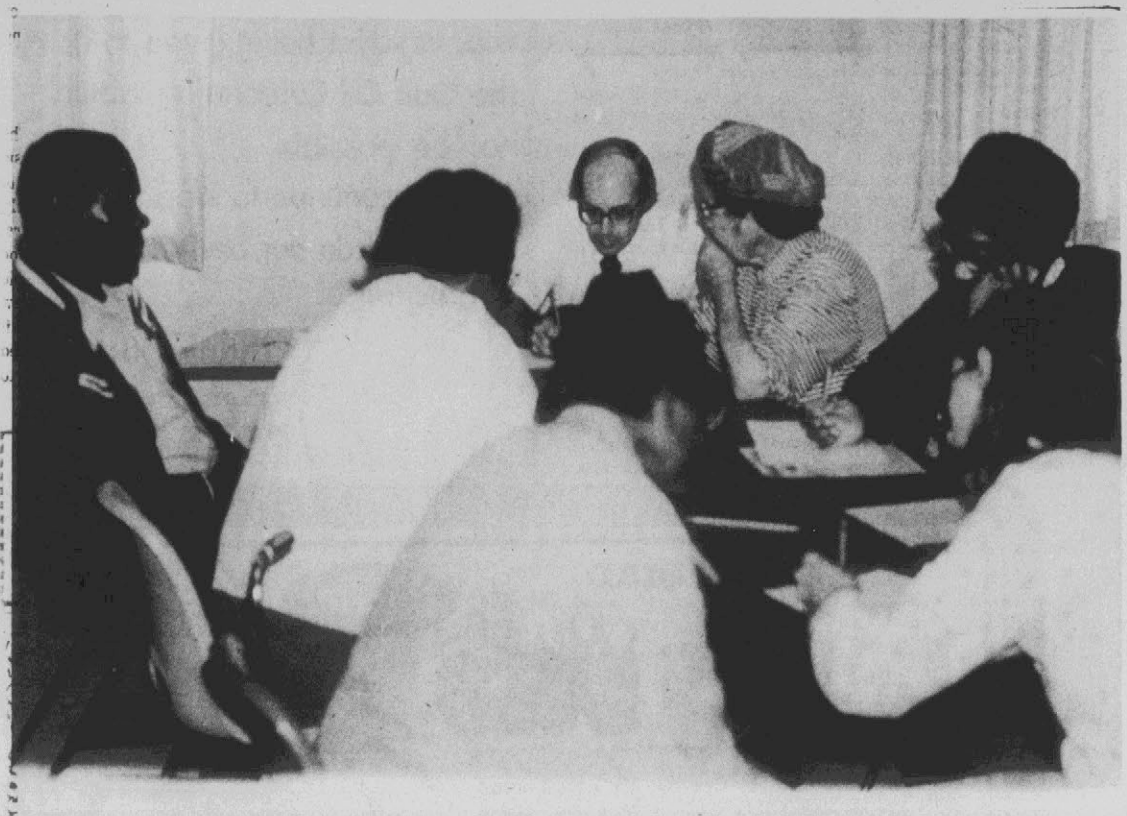

With the direct input by the individuals, the council hopes to better serve the senior citizens in Pitt County. Nominal group programs are being held in different parts of the county to better serve different types of citizens' concerns.

Funding for the Council on Aging is provided through the Mid East Commission and Pitt County Commissioners.

The council is presently promoting a project for a boarding facility to be housed in an old school, and a Senior Citizens Center which would include an activity center, offices, serves and meals. The council is an incorporated nonprofit organization. It distributes a monthly newsletter. Volunteer Greenville is presently helping the Council on Aging in Contacting some of the individuals.

Several projects that the council is helping to make senior citizens aware of are the following: glaucoma tests, nutrition programs, socials for senior citizens, a hearing aid loan bank, transportation facilities, and the friendly call program.

Officers of the council are Dan Earnhardt, president; Alan Murrel l, Vice president; Doris Davenport, secretary; and Hugh Stanley, treasurer. These officers may be contacted by other groups or facilities who are interested in joining the Council on Aging.

NOMINAL GROUP . . . Pitt Council on Aging members assist senior citizens in Ayden, participate in the nominal group technique.

Pitt Chapter Of ECU Alumni Association Recently Formed

A Pitt County chapter of the East Carolina University Alumni Association has been organized in an effort to provide a wide range of group social activities to some of the approximately 3,600 alumni of ECU who reside in Pitt County.

While focusing some of its energies toward improving various academic programs at the University through Loyalty Fund contributions and gifts, the chapter essentially is interested in providing a social outlet for its members through occasional parties and dinners, short distance weekend trips, including away athletic events, and attendance at campus events, plays, concerts, movies, lectures, art shows, athletic contests, etc., according to Phil Dixon, current chairman.

Charter membership in the chapter is $5.00 a year for an individual, or $7.50 a year for an East Carolina couple (husband and wife). ECU alumni who join the county chapter will receive periodic mailings informing them of scheduled events on campus at the Mendenhall Student Center, McGinnis Playhouse, Fletcher Music Center and Jenkins Fine Arts Center, as well as a library card allowing members to use the Joyner Library and a membership card entitling them to group discounts on tickets to certain campus events and hopefully other special University privileges.

Tentative plans also include a night of dinner and dancing, a casino party, a dinner theatre, an outdoor pig picking, a picnic this summer, and trips to Williamsburg, Va., the North Carolina Zoological Park in Asheboro, N.C., the Lost Colony in Manteo, Kings Dominion in Virginia, and many away athletic contests this fall.

The new chapter has scheduled a spring kickoff cocktail party at the American Legion Hut here in Greenville on Satuday, March 20, from 7:30-10 p.m. All interested persons are invited to attend. Hors-d'oevre and setups will be provided (BYOL). Admission is $1.00 per person to help pay expenses.

Tickets may be obtained by telephoning Sylvia Messamer at 756-5830, Wanda Petree at 752-2121, Ext. 244, or Phil Dixon at 758-3116.

Atlanta Faced Up To Default

ATLANTA (UPI) — When Atlanta residents returned to their homes following the evacuation of the city in 1864, there was only $1.64 in the city treasury.

At the end of the war in April, 1865, Confederate money became worthless. The city managed to scrape up some U.S. greenbacks, but salaries of city employes were drastically reduced.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, MARCH 8, 1976

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Avoid a tendency to be too nervous and restless and to break promises; as you are aware of this likelihood, be kind to others not so well informed who are upset and acting in a manner not in accordance with their usual conscientiousness.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Keep an eye on your wallet while out shopping or dealing with others. Give words of endearment to loved one.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Study monetary affairs well and see where you can cut down expenses. Repairing property is easier than heretofore.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Don't jump into any situations that could bring you real harm. Avoid an argument with a friend who is not feeling up to par.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Fine day to study what you really want to do and the best way to get right results. Don't go off on tangents.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Avoid the frivolous now. Remain calm and poised at social functions, since there is apt to be some disharmony present.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Something new and untried needs further study. A new contact can give you misleading information, so do not follow it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You have good ideas for expanding, but not a good day to put them through yet. Study information carefully, or you have trouble.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Do not let that obligation floor you, but pay what you can and gain goodwill, plan more wisely for the future.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Don't blame associates for some error that may not be their fault. Get at the true cause. Study civic matter carefully.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You have much work ahead of you which only needs enthusiasm to get it done and you accomplish a good deal.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) It would cost you more than you think to have the pleasure you think you want, so be wise and do something more worthwhile.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Problems at home could be annoying, so handle outside matters until all smooths out nicely. A poised attitude helps.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be highly sensitive and will require much rest and a good diet during early life in order to build up the stamina here. Teach early to keep promises made, then the success can be phenomenal. Give as fine an education as you can. Anything of an artistic nature is particularly good. Don't neglect spiritual studies early, too.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

'The Entertainer' Airs Wednesday

Jack Lemmon portrays a middle-aged vaudevillian struggling desperately for success and stardom in "The Entertainer," airing Wednesday, March 10, 9 to 11 p.m., on NBC Channel 6-7. Ray Bolger and Sada Thompson also star in the special.

The drama, based on the acclaimed play by John Osborne, contains eight original songs by Marvin Hamlisch, including "The Only Way To Go," with lyrics by Tim Rice. Other lyrics are by Robert Joseph.

In the drama, Archie Rice (Lemmon) sees himself as a failure in all areas — as a person, husband and entertainer. It is World War II, 1944, and Archie is playing to a handful of indifferent people at a boardwalk theater.

He feels overshadowed by his famous father, retired vaudeville star Billy Rice (Bolger), who continues to live in the past. Desperate, Archie looks for schemes to mount a big show that will put him on top.

Meanwhile, he takes out his frustrations on those around him — his second wife, Phoebe (Thompson), a broken woman trying hard to remain cheerful but despondent over Archie's cutting ways; his son, Frank (Cristofer), who cannot assert himself; and Jean (Daly) his daughter, a Navy nurse back for a visit.

Their immediate attention is turned to the fate of Archie's oldest son, who is off fighting, and to Archie's romantic fling with Bambi Pasko (O'Toole), a beauty contestant with not much talent but a rich father (Ryan) and a star-struck mother (McLerie).

O'Neill portrays the business - like theatre owner.

Triple Oscar winner Hamlisch describes his music for "The Entertainer" as 'tacky.' Then he hastens to add that this is exactly the way the songs are supposed to be: tacky.

The music is 'tacky' because it had to reflect its tacky setting, a second-rate burlesque house in the mid-40's, according to Hamlisch.

"Billy was the right man at the right time," he said, explaining the difference between the two characters and their times. "Archie is not just a second-rate comic, but the wrong man at the wrong time. He is just out of sync with the times."

Each of the songs has its special attraction.

"Jack does 'Bend Over Backwards' in drag," said Hamlisch. "He and Ray do 'Horsin' Around.' 'When Will the Skies Be Blue Again?' is Sada's song and it's absolutely gorgeous the way she does it. 'The Only Way to Go' is the theme song and it says something differently every time it's done. Hopefully it could become popular."

FAMILY FARE—Ray Bolger (left) and Jack Lemmon, as seen by caricaturist Al Hirschfeld, portray a father and son who are show business veterans in "The Entertainer," the Mobil Showcase special based on John Osborne's play which will be colorcast on NBC-TV, Wednesday, March 10 (9-11 p.m.) on Channel 6-7.

NCAA Regionals Precede Finals

The long and arduous road to the NCAA Basketball Tournament commences with four regional tourney championships on Saturday, March 13. NBC will broadcast a triple-header extravaganza on that date, covering the Eastern Midwest and Mideast Regionals.

It takes a strong combination of ability and luck to get all the way to the finals. A team must remain relatively injury-free, rebound strongly and play well in the clutch in order to reach that difficult championship conclusion.

All previous regular-season records quickly go out the window when two excellent teams anxiously take to the hardcourt. The University of Indiana learned that the hard way. Going undefeated during the 1975 season meant little to the Hoosiers when they took it on the roundball chin against Kentucky. Indiana has a chance to rebound from their disappointment in this season's playoffs.

The Hoosiers appear to be clear favorites to cop the Mideast Regionals, from the LSU campus in Baton Rouge, La. But they will probably have to contend with teams like Alabama, Tennessee and Notre Dame.

The Eastern Regionals will take place in Greensboro, N. C. In 1974, N. C. State won the national championship in the Greensboro Coliseum, and this year's regional features the same kind of fierce action. Up to two ACC teams may be entered, as well as an Eastern power. The two favorites seem to be North Carolina, the ACC Champion, and Rutgers, undefeated surprise of the season.

Louisville, Ky., not only has the Kentucky Derby, but the 1976 Midwest Regionals as well. This appears to be a toss up, with Kansas or some at-large entry winning a bid to the finals. The University of Louisville could be that at-large team, and hopes to take the tournament in its own back yard.

UCLA has long dominated the Western Regionals, as well as the finals. The Western finals take place at UCLA this year, giving first-year coach Gene Bartow a chance to pick up where the legendary John Wooden left off.

Wallach Is Painter

"20 Shades of Pink," starring Eli Wallach, Anne Jackson, Keenan Wynn and Edward Binns, will be presented as a dramatic special on "GE Theater," Friday, March 5, 9 to 11 p.m., on CBS Channel 9-11.

The original, contemporary drama centers on Harry Feller (Wallach), a middle-aged house painter with a wife, Myrna (Anne Jackson), and three children. A happy, excellent and successful craftsman who is employed by a painting contractor, Harry is goaded by his wife and in-laws to go into business for himself.

LOLA—Dynamic entertainer Lola Falana brings her own special excitement to another of her ABC specials Tuesday, March 9 (9-10 p.m.) on Channel 3W-5-12. Joining Lola on her ABC special will be guest stars including Dick Van Dyke and Redd Foxx.

Lola Falana Stars In Special

The year's brightest new television star, Lola Falana, will return for her third special of the year, "Lola," airing Tuesday, March 9, 9 to 10 p.m., on ABC Channel 3-5-12. Her guests for the hour of comedy and music will be Redd Foxx and Dick Van Dyke.

"Lola," like Miss Falana's first two specials, will give the diminutive dynamo a chance to display the wide range of talents which have catapulted her from Broadway and nightclub stardom into the position of being the hottest new personality on the small screen. Again, viewers will be treated to lavish show-stopping production numbers, character sketches, a comic monologue and specialty turns with Lola's guests.

Both Foxx and Van Dyke are special favorites of Miss Falana's and she personally asked them to appear on the show. For Foxx, of course, "Lola" represents a change in pace from his series, "Sanford and Son." Van Dyke squeezed the appearance into a schedule currently filled with preparation for his own variety series which is scheduled to premiere in the fall.

Allan Blye and Bob Einstein, producers of Miss Falana's specials, feel that the secret of a successful variety show is — first, last and always — the star. "The better she looks," Einstein says, "the better we're doing our job. If people talk about how well-produced a show was, then it wasn't really well-produced at all." Their star puts it this way: "They took a lot of time and trouble to find out who I was and what I could do before we ever went into a studio. They wanted to present Lola Falana, not create her."

"I think our understanding of what can go wrong for a star is one of our greatest assets," Blye says. "We know how it feels to be on the screen doing something that isn't working, and we'll kill ourselves to keep one of our stars from being in that position. Performers sense that, and they give us their trust . . . and we'll work night and day to deserve it."

For Blye and Einstein, " respect for performers c naturally. Both of them extensive performing ex- perience — Blye starred in Canadian television and appeared — as a singer, ac and comic — on everything fr nighttime variety shows to 15 guest shots on the popular children's program, "Mr. Rogers Neighborhood." Einstein created TV's most unique policeman, "Officer Judy," on the Smothers Brothers' weekly series, and also appeared frequently on "The Sonny and Cher Comedy Hour."

'American Sportsman' Premieres Today

ABC's "The American Sportsman" makes its season premiere, Sunday, March 7, (3:30-4:30 p.m.) on ABC-TV, with "Down the Tana River with Candice Bergen," a special program in which the actress, who is also a well-known photojournalist, travels more than 400 miles in a dugout canoe through remote Northern Kenya, East Africa.

In this telecast, "The American Sportsman," now entering its 12th consecutive season, focuses on the wildlife indigenous to the area surrounding the Tana River as Ms. Bergen, her brother Kris, and guide Terry Matthews float down the river to the Indian Ocean in dugouts poled by Shimoni tribesmen.

Elephants are of particular interest to Ms. Bergen, who photographs the magnificent creatures in a variety of situations - at one point nearly being charged by a herd when the sound of her camera shutter is picked up by their sensitive ears.

The one-hour program is filled with natural drama as George Adamson, who gained international recognition through the book, "Born Free," for his work with African lions, brings Ms. Bergen face to face with the wild lions he is rehabilitating. Adamson, with his assistants, is continuing his work in the Kora Game Reserve, which covers 500 square miles adjoining the Tana River.

And, as the party continues down the river, Matthews, the guide, who until the loss of his left eye, was a professional hunter, points out such unusual sights as a hippopotamus battle. Despite the fact that Matthews no longer hunts, he still retains great interest in the wildlife of Kenya, and he now makes his living as a sculptor, using the exotic wildlife as his models.

"Down the Tana River With Candice Bergen" provides viewers with colorful insights into the jungles of Kenya.

SPORTSWOMAN—Actress and photojournalist Candice Bergen travels overland by camel and on a raft down the Tana River on a unique visit to Kenya, East Africa on ABC Sports' "The American Sportsman," Sunday March 7 (3:30-4:30 p.m.) on ABC-TV.

He Who Robs, Gets Robbed

The thief who recently stole a TV set from a flight between New York and Salt Lake City must feel he was robbed. You see, the receiver had no picture tube.

The stolen set is RCA's 630-TS — one of the first mass-produced sets built in 1946. The black-and-white receiver with a nine-inch screen and 30 tubes weighs 85 pounds but, encased in a big grey box for safe handling, the entire package weighs 142 pounds. The giant picture tube that goes with the set was removed and packed separately so it wouldn't break in transit.

Clash Of Wills Becomes Combat

TRAIN MAN—Ernest Borgnine is a train-guard who considers Freight Train No. 19 his personal territory in "Emperor of the North," a Depression-era drama making its television premiere on the ABC Television Network's "The ABC SundayNight Movie" Sunday, March 7 (9 to 11:15 p.m.)

A railroad bum known as "A-Number-One" and a train guard known as the meanest man on the rails carry on a personal war when total freedom clashes with unbendable rules in "Emperor of the North," a Depression-era drama making its television premiere on "The ABC Sunday Night Movie," March 7, 9 to 11:15 p.m., on Channel 3-5-12.

Lee Marvin stars as the king of the hobos — whose friends respectfully dub him "Emperor of the North" — and Ernest Borgnine in Shack, the brutal guardian of the boxcars who has sworn that no "bo" will ever hitch a ride on Freight Train No. 19. Keith Carradine (most recently starred in "Nashville") is also starred as a boastful young rail-rider called Cigaret.

A-Number-One's first effort to ride the unrideable train is thwarted by Shack, but railyard workers — who also hate the arrogant and unfeeling guard — bet that the "emperor" can best Shack's system, and goad him into trying again.

With the annoying company of young Cigaret—who wants to be known as the "emperor" himself — — A-Number One tries and tries again, surviving a series of deadly encounters with his enemy on the speeding train. All three men, their pride and possibly their lives at stake, know this is not a game—Shack is no pussycat, they are not mice.

"Emperor of the North" was released in theatres as "Emperor of the North Pole." The song, "A Man and a Train", was written by Frank DeVol and Hal David and sung by Marty Robbins.

Anything Goes

ABC-TV's family entertainment series, "Almost Anything Goes," will feature a Dixie dandy Sunday, March 7, 7 to 8 p.m., on Channel 3-5-12, when the Alabama State champions from Andalusia meet the winners of the Mississippi and Louisiana state championships in the Southern Regional Finals. The "Almost Anything Goes" Louisiana state championship will air Saturday, March 6, 8 to 9 p.m.

Reporting on the "Almost Anything Goes" Southern Regional Finals will be the broadcast team of play-by-play announcer Charlie Jones, color commentator Lynn Shackelford and field announcer Regis Philbin.

The following are the events for the Southern Regional Finals as Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana vie for a chance to move on to the "AAG" National Finals:

Hoop Scoop — Player No. 1 must score baskets with a volleyball while the rest of his teammates have to snag field goals. The catch? The basket is at the top of a well-greased ramp.

Crate Race — The milkman's on his way as competitors teeter along piled high with milk crates. In the stretch, each runner will have a stack of 16 crates to tote—without dropping any.

Vallee Forges Ahead

Rudy Vallee had just finished filming his first TV dramatic role since he did "Alias Smith and Jones" five years ago, and people were telling him how well he had done. Instead of the role, Rudy wanted to talk about his other talent - writing.

Vallee portrays a top singwriter who becomes the victim in the "Ellery Queen" episode, "The Tyrant of Tin Pan Alley," which will air Sunday, March 7, 8 to 9 p.m., on Channel 6-7.

Usually the victim in an "Ellergy Queen" episode doesn't work many days; he gets bumped off early in the story and that's that. But in Rudy's case, there are several flashbacks, which didn't permit any spare time for writing.

"I try to make every minute count," said Rudy. "The publishers have just bought out my third book, 'Let the Chips Fall.' I wrote it, like the two before it, while waiting for other things to happen."

The one-time crooner said he wrote his first book, "Vagabond Dreams Come True," in 1929 during camera reloadings on his first movie, "The Vagabond Lover." Work number two, "My Time Is Your Time," was written, said Rudy, between rehearsals in 1961-62 of the Broadway production of "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying."

Rudy said the current volume was started on a concert tour of one-nighters, continued during a hiatus and completed last summer on a 14-week tour of "How to Succeed . . ."

"That hiatus gave me too much spare time," said Rudy.

THE FLOOR SCENE

Fashions in home furnishings come and go, just as they do in other areas of design, and right now we are seeing some new looks and innovations in carpeting. All manner of different floor coverings have had their vogue in the past years. Wall to wall carpeting, vinyl tiles and area rugs have made the floor scene. But of all of them, it's apparently wall to wall carpeting that has remained the solid favorite. It's a fact that wall to wall carpeting has never lost its general appeal.

Balloon Safari Films Wildlife

Alan Root has discovered that the air is his element. "I'm always looking for a new way of seeing things," explains the wild-life photographer. "Airplanes are too fast and helicopters too noisy for filming animals."

Then there's "Lengai." Lengai is Root's 120-foot high, 70-foot wide, orange-and-yellow-striped silk, hot-air balloon—a four-ton silent eye in the sky watching over the edgy wildlife herds of East African which are Root's film specialty.

His special, "Balloon Safari," narrated by David Niven, features never-before-seen footage of African wildlife, filmed from Root's slow-drifting aerial platform, and will be presented Monday, March 8, 8 to 9 p.m., on CBS Channel 9-11.

"A glorified home movie," declares the modest Root. But a spectacular 25,000 - foot ascent over the snows of Kilimanjaro — Africa's highest mountain — is hardly the stuff of your weekend, backyard home movie.

London-born, Root, at age 7, went to Africa with his parents. Today, he and his wife, Joan, who also grew up in Africa, have an 80-acre wildlife sanctuary farm 50 miles northwest of Nairobi, Kenya.

On a visit to England several years ago, Root was taken on a demonstration flight in a hot-air balloon and was impressed by its smoothness and quietness. Before he was six feet off the ground he knew he had found the perfect tool for his work.

"Generally, we are able to film what we like, when we like, unnoticed and unheard. A balloon is so huge, slow-moving and silent that wild animals treat it as a rather colorful cloud and generally ignore its passing. Besides, it is so peaceful, so beautiful up there, with no sense of vertigo or feeling of fear. It has brought a new dimension to wildlife filming."

After his stunning ascent over Kilimanjaro, Root was asked what new feats of flight were on his agenda. "I have no intention of attempting any more ballooning feats," said the intrepid aeronaut. "I've done the biggest in Africa, so what's left?

"Although I originally bought Lengai to film nervous animals," says Root, "I am sure that in the future I shall use the balloon in every wildlife film I make."

Especially, perhaps, for a quick getaway from his next subject — a giant anthill.

BALLOONING—A rising hot-air balloon presents an unusual sight for three Masai tribesmen, in "Balloon Safari," a one-hour adventure special narrated by David Niven and filmed by wildlife photographer Alan Root from the balloon, above Africa's Serengetic Plain and Mt. Kilimanjaro. The special will be presented Monday, March 8 (8-9 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

Carl Reiner Stars In Good Heavens

The new ABC-TV comedy series, "Good Heavens," starring Carl Reiner as Mr. Angel, a heavenly agent who makes dreams come true for deserving humans, will premiere Monday, March 8, 8:30 to 9 p.m. (Channel 3-5-12), following the comedy hit, "On The Rocks."

The premiere episode of the new series will be "Take Me Out of the Ballgame," guest starring Rob Reiner, Carl's son and co-star of "All in the Family," and Penny Marshall, wife of Rob and co-star of "Laverne and Shirley."

Dressed as a businessman, Mr. Angel mingles with mortals from every walk of life who have performed acts of kindness. He offers them a magnificent gift — the chance to turn a favorite dream into reality, provided it is something money can't buy. But sometimes, fulfillment of a dream can have unexpected and comic consequences.

In the premiere episode, "Take Me Out of the Ballgame," Mr. Angel (Carl Reiner) approaches Luke Edwards in a busy market and tells him that he is entitled to a wish for his good deed in making a late - night trip to the store for his pregnant wife, Peggy. Luke, 26, makes a wish to be a professional ballplayer and agrees to secrecy about Mr. Angel's help. Then, when Luke fills in for an injured catcher in a varsity alumni game at the request of Andy Reed, where a scout, Jack McMann, might see him, Peggy's labor pains begin.

Also guest starring in the episode is Shelly Novack as Andy Reed. Tige Andrews is a special guest star as Jack McMann. Co-starring are Irene Tedrow as the older lady and Sandra Gould as the lady. Tom Dressen plays the driver, Jan Burrell portrays the nurse and Ralph Montgomery appears as the old man.

Fred Silvermann, President of ABC Entertainment, stated: "'Good Heavens' is a totally unique comedy form which does not resemble any other program now on television.

UPCOMING GUEST HOSTS ON 'TONIGHT SHOW'

David Brenner, Don Rickles, Joan Rivers and John Davidson will be guest hosts on forthcoming Monday night editions of "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson." All have been guest hosts before.

Darren Is Guest Star

In the late 1950s and early 1960s, James Darren achieved popularity as a beach bum named Moondoggie in the "Gidget" motion picture series.

It was the beginning of a successful acting career interspersed with a few hit records. Motion pictures of a more adult nature followed as a short-lived TV series, "The Time Tunnel."

Then Darren made a decision. Roles that were being offered were not, in his opinion, good for his career. "I went on the road doing summer stock, little theatre, and in the last three years I've been concentrating exclusively on my singing career," he explained. "I couldn't make a living as an actor, but I knew I could make a living as a singer and do something that I liked."

Darren returns to acting as police motorcycle Sgt. Rick Matteo, Sgt. Pepper Anderson's (Angie Dickinson) romantic interest, in "Task Force; Cop Killer," the two-part "Police Woman" drama currently being colorcast.

The role of Matteo calls for a fellow of Italian background, charming, about 35, able to sing and ride a motorcycle. The preceding describes Darren precisely with the exception of his age, which is more than 35.

If it all falls together for him Darren hopes to reconcile both careers — singing and acting.

Torn Portrays Walt Whitman

WHITMAN—The young Walt Whitman, played by Rip Torn works on his family's farm before leaving to pursue his poetic career, in "Song of Myself," a one-hour historical drama based on the life of America's great epic poet, Tuesday, March 9 (10-11 p.m.) on Channel 3N-9-11. The special is the eighth in THE AMERICAN PARADE series of programs dealing with important American historical themes.

Rip Torn portrays Walt Whitman at several key periods of his life, from his late 20s to just before his death at age 73, in "Song of Myself." The one-hour historical drama based on the life of America's great epic poet will air Tuesday, March 9, 10 to 11 p.m., on CBS Channel 9-11.

Whitman was born in Huntington, L. I., N. Y., and grew up in Brooklyn. He left school at 13 and worked as a printer, teacher and journalist until his early 30s.

In 1855, Whitman published, at his own expense, the first of nine editions of "Leaves of Grass," his tradition - shattering cycle of poems in celebration of humanity, the freedom and dignity of the common man, the spiritual essence of all nature, and the energy and panorama of American life.

In his day, Whitman's epic work was criticized as being too daring and his own life - style was considered controversial. "But the point is," says executive producer Joel Heller, "our system guarantees everyone, especially mavericks like Whitman, the right to speak and write freely and to live as one wishes."

During the Civil War, Whitman served as a volunteer "wound dresser" in military hospitals. After the war, he worked in a Federal office until he suffered a stroke at age 54. For the last 20 years of his life he lived in Camden, N. J.

Torn had immersed himself in reading about the life of Whitman, and, during filming spoke with conviction of the man and the poet.

"Oh, absolute, he was a democrat — small 'd' — in the grand sense," said Torn. "He was a man of the people and had nothing but scorn for ivory - tower 'artistes' and dilettantes.

"All the American poets — whether you're talking about Ginsberg or Ed Sanders or Gary Snyder or Gregory Corso or Ferlinghetti — they're all influenced by Whitman," Torn continued.

"When I said Whitman was a democrat in the grand sense, I should have mentioned that he was also a political man. He went to all the conventions, you know. He was of the radical wing of the Democratic party. They were against slavery and for what they called 'free soil'; they did not want any states to be brought into the Union with slavery. That was a burning question and they were really firebrands in their day.

"So he was a very democratic poet. The principle that all people have the same rights and are all entitled to stand up on their hind legs and speak out — well, it was like religion to him."

Antonio "Huggy Bear" Fargas has a new development deal with his "Starsky and Hutch" producers. His part will be built up and he will be spun-off for next season.

Dr. Seuss Story Is Rebroadcasted

Theodor Geisel, better known as Dr. Seuss, realized a very special ambition because his famous children's fables turned out to be too short for television. He became a lyricist.

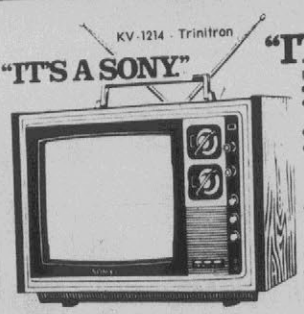

When Seussuana — that treasury of delightful imaginary creatures that populate the world of the world's most widely - read author of children's stories — underwent its first translation into animation for the home screen (in the now - classic "How the Grinch Stole Christmas," a holiday tradition), the writer - artist discovered to his dismay that there just weren't enough words to fill a half-hour program. That same dilemma presented itself when he chose the trilogy for "Dr. Seuss on the Loose," which will be rebroadcast as a half-hour animated special Tuesday, March 9, 8 to 8:30 p.m. on CBS Channel 9-11.

Best Sellers On NBC

"Best Sellers," an innovative weekly series bringing to television multi - part dramatizations of best - selling novels, is being developed for presentation on NBC-TV during the 1976-77 season.

Announcement of the project was made recently by Marvin Antonowsky, Vice President, Programming, and Frank Price, President, Universal Television, which will produce the series.

Plans are for "Best Sellers," which has been in development for over a year, to offer adaptations of four to six novels each season, with initial properties to be selected from a minimum of 10 contemporary novels. Titles will be announced.

"The number of weeks that each adaptation is to be presented will be determined by the scope of the story and not by conventional television scheduling procedures," Antonowsky said.

The NBC executive in charge of the "Best Sellers" project is Eleanor Timberman, and the executive responsible for the series at Universal Television is Charles Engel. Producers signed for the series include Richard Link, William Levinson, George Eckstein, William Sackhiem, David Victor and Jules Irving.

NBC-TV and Universal Television pioneered in bringing best - selling novels to television in long-form presentations with the two-part, four - hour colorcast of Fletcher Knebel's novel, "Vanished," in 1971. (Also, Joseph Wambaugh's best - selling novel, "The Blue Knight," was transformed into a four-part drama presented on successive nights in 1973.)

Antonowsky said: "'Best Sellers' has a more comprehensive and flexible concept than that employed for 'Vanished' or 'The Blue Knight.' They were special productions of individual properties. For 'Best Sellers,' adaptations of many novels will be presented on a continuing basis. Some stories may run for a brief number of weeks while others will be on for a more extended period. It depends on the story. This approach gives us the opportunity to capture the total mood and characterizations of a story without sacrificing content for time limitations."

Hopes For New Trend

Nobu McCarthy has nothing against Marlon Brando. She thinks he's a fine actor. But not as an Asian.

Brando played an Asian in "Teahouse of the August Moon." Alex Guinness played an Asian in "A Majority of One." And Shirley MacLaine was a Geisha girl in one film. Those Charlie Chans in the old movies weren't Asian either.

"I have high hopes that the time has now come that Asian actors will play Asian characters," says Nobu, who co-starred with Jerry Lewis (who had the title role) in "Geisha Boy" some 20 years ago when she first arrived in this country from her native Japan.

"And I don't just mean Geisha girls and gardeners," she says firmly. "Asians are next-door neighbors and secretaries and housewives. I'd like to see more of them depicted as such in films and on TV."

Nobu portrays the matriarch of a Japanese-American family in "Farewell to Manzanar," an "NBC World Premiere movie to be colorcast March 11, 9 to 11:10 p.m., on "NBC Thursday Night at the Movies."

"As far as I know, never before 'Manzanar" have so many Asian actors been used in an American film," Nobu says, "I'm just hoping it's the start of a whole new trend for Asian actors."

The drama is about the bitterness and sorrow experienced by more than 110,000 Japanese Americans interned in detention camps at the start of World War II.

Nobu herself was sent to a camp in northern Japan during the war. "They sent the children there to keep them safe," she says. "But there was never enough food and we constantly froze. The American camps had to have been more pleasant."

UPROOTED—Pat Morita stars as a Japanese-American awaiting transport to a detention center during World War II in "Farewell to Manzanar," a fact-based World Premiere drama to be colorcast on "NBC Thursday Night at the Movies" March 11 (9-11:10 p.m.) on Channel 6-7.

The true story of the Wakatsukis of Santa Monica, Calif., is told by Jeanne Wakatsuki Houston, who is 7 years old when she and her family are taken by bus 250 miles to Camp Manzanar, near the High Sierra.

Two-thirds of the evacuees were native-born American citizens, but were still considered dangerous to the war effort. The film examines the bitter sense of exile, betrayal and shame felt by thousands.

John Korty ("'The Autobiography of Miss Jane Pittman'") produced and directed from a script he wrote with Jeanne Wakatsuki Houston and her husband, James D. Houston, based on a book by the Houstons.

Rich Man, Poor Man Continues

Rudy Jordache and Julie Prescott are finally married and Tom clashes with new adversaries as he struggles to start a new life in Part VII of "Rich Man, Poor Man," an "ABC Novel for Television" airing in a special two-hour presentation, Monday, March 8, 9 to 11 p.m., on Channel 3W-5-12.

Peter Strauss, Nick Nolte and Susan Blakely star in the drama based on Irwin Shaw's best-selling novel. Guest stars for Part VII are Kim Darby, Murray Hamilton, Herbert Jefferson, Jr., Van Johnson, Dorothy Malone, Tim McIntire, Dorothy McGuire, Ray Milland, Robert Reed and William Smith.

In Part VII, Rudy (Strauss) and Julie (Miss Blakely) are married despite strong objections from his mother, Mary (Miss McGuire). Their marriage is threatened when Rudy's political career and the loss of their baby turn Julie into an alcoholic.

'Little House On The Prairie' Is NBC's Top Rated Show

WORKS FOR WIDOW—Pa Ingalls (Michael Landon) works for the Widow Thurmond (Mariette Hartley) in exchange for a set of china he plans to give his wife as a gift in "For My Lady" on NBC-TV's "Little House on the Prairie" Wednesday, March 10 (8-9 p.m.) on Channel 6-7.

NBC's top rated show, "Little House On the Prairie" has captured the hearts of its viewers by presenting segments each week that are based on the Laura Ingalls Wilder "Little House" books.

The books chronicle the late Mrs. Wilder's recollections of her girlhood with her parents and sisters some 100 years ago in the West.

The series, seen Wednesdays, 8 to 9 p.m., was a pioneering effort for Michael Landon in more ways than one.

To begin with, he stars as a frontiersman.

Second, in contrast to his 14 years on "Bonanza" as part of an all - male family, he now stars as a husband and father of three daughters.

Third, Landon also broke ground behind the scenes. Until the series began, he had not only been a television star, but a writer and director as well. Now he's also a producer — specifically co-executive producer with Ed Friendly.

Landon's wife in the series, Caroline, is portrayed by Karen Grassle. After a successful career on the New York stage, Ms. Grassle headed for Hollywood and a movie role. After the completion of the movie, she answered casting calls, including one for 'Little House.'

Melissa Sue Anderson plays the part of the Ingalls' oldest daughter, Mary. She has been featured in numerous commercials, and her first dramatic role was in TV's "Brady Bunch" series.

Melissa Gilbert (Laura Ingalls) made her comeback at the tender age of 10 when she became a permanent member of the series. She'd begun her TV career at the age of 2½ when she appeared in a commercial for a line of baby clothes, and she promptly went into retirement after this.

The Ingalls' baby, Carrie, is actually portrayed by twins, Lindsay and Sidney Bush. The girls, interchangeable in the role, take turns on days when they go before the cameras. California law limits the daily work span of such young performers to three hours.

Hemingway Play Premieres Wednesday

A new play about Ernest Hemingway premieres Wednesday, March 10, at 9 p.m. on UNC-TV.

The drama, titled "The Hemingway Play," examines the famous author's life by simultaneously presenting on stage four characters, each depicting a different phase of Hemingway's development.

"I had the idea that if, instead of doing a biography in a straight chronological line, I could restructure time, I could show a writer of genius at different stages of his development," said playwright Frederic Hunter, a former African correspondent for the Christian Science Monitor. "Thus, the contradictions in his character could be played against each other."

The drama takes place one night in a Madrid restaurant after the bullfights. The Hemingway characters in the drama are Wemedge (Tim Matheson), a young journalist; Hem (Perry King), a writer of about 30 just beginning to have worldly success; Ernest (Mitchell Ryan), a writer in his 50's, full of magnetic energy and dynamism but beginning to doubt his ability to keep up his flow of creative energy; and Papa (Alexander Scourby), the grand old man of American letters.

The cast also includes Samantha Eggar as Glynis, secretary and companion to Papa and the only person he can really trust. Biff McGuire and Kenneth Tigar are Charlie and Vas, old friends of Ernest.

FROM ONE PLACE TO ANOTHER

One time it's the White House, the next time it's vaudeville for actor Michael Cristofer. Cristofer stars as the son of a middle-aged second rate vaudevillian in "The Entertainer," airing March 10th. He also has appeared as President Lincoln's personal secretary in the six-part "Sandburg's Lincoln" series.

Salmi Takes A Turn

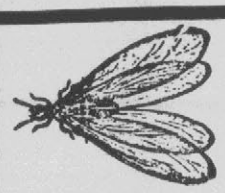

Albert Salmi, who portrays Pete Ritter, Tony Petrocelli's (Barry Newman) friend and investigator on NBC-TV's "Petrocelli," began his acting career in World War II. At the age of 17 he was made an MP, mostly because of his size (6'2"). Stationed in the European Theatre of Operations, he was assigned to guard Tyrone Power and Linda Christian, who were on tour.

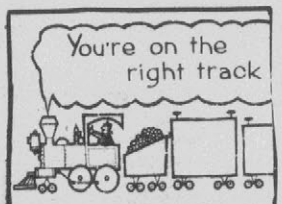

"I couldn't believe that they were getting red-carpet treatment in the middle of a war," Salmi recalls. "I thought it looked pretty good, so I asked the officer in charge of the tour how somebody got duty like that. He said all I had to do was audition. I did and they took me on, as an engineer with the tour."

After he was discharged, Salmi decided to go to acting school.

COP—An admirer of James Cagney, Charles Durning, star of "The Cop and the Kid" says he learned much of his acting from just watching the old veteran. A talented and versatile actor you can be sure of seeing him in other films and specials when his current series ends on NBC-TV.

Admired James Cagney

"The Cop and The Kid" (Thursdays, 8 to 8:30 p.m. on NBC-TV) is not one of the better series on television, but it does have one of the better actors in the country today, Charles Durning.

He has been called a portly James Cagney. This, he doesn't mind because he says he learned his acting from the old veteran just watching him.

"People tell me I even talk like him," Durning said. "I always admired the guy. He talked fast — I talk fast. Honesty is what I learned most from him. He believed in his work, and I could believe in anything he did.

"I really suspect that most of us, in some way, pattern our mannerisms from movie actors. If you believe, why not? I remember my instructor at drama school urged me not to pursue acting. I was five-foot-eight, weighed 200 pounds, and — on top of that — he said I had no talent."

While out of the acting scene, Durning had 67 different jobs and liked none of them.

"I was an elevator operator, a delivery boy when I was 27, a Western Union message boy at 30. I was a math teacher, a taxicab driver, an iron worker, plumber's helper and even worked on a dairy farm. I hated them all. The only thing I half-liked was construction work, and if I hadn't gotten back to acting, I would have stayed with it."

Durning has done six feature films, and rated "Dog Day Afternoon" his best. The roles he has been getting lately "have been a long time coming. It isn't often you get something like 'Queen of the Stardust Ballroom' or 'The Rivalry.' I've been lucky with my roles lately. One led to the other, and they've given me a great deal of satisfaction."

He has enjoyed working with Patsy Kelly, who plays his mother in the series. "I had never worked with her before, but had always been a great admirer, she must have been acting 50 years or more. She's a grand lady, and I also live in the same apartment with another one."

Who?

"Mae West."

Durning, who will be 53 next Saturday, still calls New York his home even though he hasn't been there but two weeks all year.

Ustinov Is In Movie

Peter Ustinov is an up-to-date crook who pulls off a terrific heist by using a computer, and Maggie Smith is a scat-terbrained kook with her own ideas about accumulating a nest egg, in "Hot Millions," the story of two hilarious embezzlers, on "The CBS Late Movie," Thurs-day, March 11, 11:30 p.m., on Channel 9-11. Bob Newhart and Karl Malden are featured.

Because a computer discovered his mishandling of funds, Marcus Pendleton (Ustinov) serves a jail sentence. Upon his release, he decides to turn the tables, become a computer expert and beat the machine at its own game. He cleverly makes off with a mint at the expense of a large corporation, run by two stuffed shirts (Newhart and Malden).

Pike's Peeks

By CHARLIE PIKE,
TV Showtime Staff Writer

HOLLYWOOD— Just when everybody thought Michael Douglas and long-time girl friend Brenda Vacarro had made amends, the star of "Sara" began dating Don Stroud, which is certainly an indication that the Douglas-Vacarro romance is close to over.

Cher Allman is on a strict self-imposed diet, and her doctor is worried about her. Apparently Cher decided to go on the diet in hopes of not showing her pregnancy too much on her and Sonny Bono's show.

Peter Falk is now having second thoughts about not returning next season as "Columbo." Peter had announced that this current season would be his last, but it seems Peter is now negotiating to do at least a series of specials in the popular role.

Ryan O'Neal may have to attend drug education classes in the aftermath of his arrest of possession of marijuana. He's now being evaluated by probation officers, and depending on their ruling Ryan will either go to trial or be sent to the classes.

Wayne Rogers will play the lead in "Matilda," a comedy about a boxing kangaroo. Filming will be done in New York, Chicago, and Atlanta during Rogers' hiatus from his series "City of Angels."

"Marcus Welby, M.D." will be replaced with a six-part series, "Family," beginning March 9. The series will star Sada Thompson and James Broderick as the mother and father of a Pasadena family with three children.

The cast and crew of daytime TV's "Days of Our Lives" have donated 2100 pounds of canned goods to the earthquake victims of Guatemala. Richard Guthrie, a series regular on the show, arranged with producer Betty Corday to set aside a section of their studio for the collection of goods, which then found their way out to L.A. International.

'Special Treat' Goes Prime Time

The critically acclaimed NBC special for children, "Papa and Me," presented Feb. 10 as one of the seven afternoon programs in the "Special Treat" series, will be repeated in prime time Thursday, March 11, 8 to 9 p.m., on NBC Channel 7.

"The program has an all-family appeal both NBC and critics recognize," said Marvin Antonowsky, Vice President, Programs, NBC-TV. "When 'Papa and Me' was originally presented, from 4 to 5 on a Tuesday afternoon, its potential audience was limited. By presenting it in prime time, it will have the broad exposure that permits many more children and adults to see what is a very special drama.

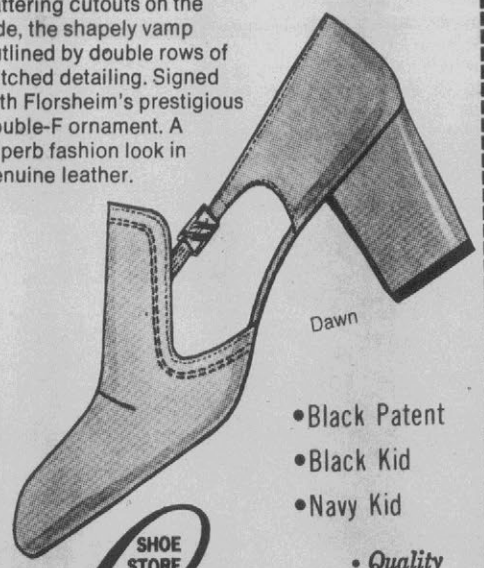

"It is one of the richest hours television has given us this season . . . real understanding of the celebration of life in every frame . . . could be re-shown at night for adults" — Cecil Smith in The Los Angeles Times.

"A beautiful, moving piece. The story is sad, yes, but it is most worthy and I recommend it" — Steve Hoffman in The Cincinnati Enquirer.

Bagni, Dubov Are Writers

Writers Gwen Bagni and Paul Dubov have been married 13 years, seemingly "going on 35." The authors of "20 Shades of Pink," a dramatic special to be seen on "GE Theater," Friday, March 12, claim their successes are jointly produced and shared.

"We both were widowed," says Paul, "and when we decided to get married it meant combining two complete and separate households, including my daughter and Gwen's three sons. Following that successful merger, we wrote a book about the experience, 'With Six, You Get Eggroll.' "

The pair have interesting backgrounds, individually and collectively. Dubov began as an actor, when he was 10 years old, in Chicago, .and remained a professional for 30 years. He was in the film "Irma la Douce," and appeared with Keenan Wynn in the original production of "The Untouchables."

Miss Bagni comes from a vaudeville family, and had aspirations to be an actress. She compiled a one-woman show and toured ladies' clubs when she was 17 years old. She worked for the late Jack Benny on his radio show.

"Our first collaborative effort," she says of the team "was a film for a government information office, narrated by Robert Taylor. I asked Paul to help me out, and we discovered that we worked well together, bouncing ideas back and forth."

What they write about mostly, they note, is the human condition. From their booklined study in the ranch house where they live in North Hollywood, they have done a novel, "What'll We Do On Sunday," and are working on two more, "To Play the Fox" and "The Roadrunner."

"The writer in Hollywood is an itinerant berry picker," Dubov says. "It's seasonal work. When we aren't doing television scripts, we concentrate on our books, which allow us the greatest creative freedom.

"A television writer, in order to survive, has to be the equivalent of a very good character actor; must work in comedy and drama, and have an understanding of hospital surroundings. In short, he must be familiar with all the situations particular to popular television series."

Together, the Dubovs have written scripts for the "Snoop Sisters," "Mod Squad," "Movin' On," "Gunsmoke," "Have Gun Will Travel," "The Brady Bunch" and many other television series.

BIKING—Eli Wallach, as a middle-aged house painter who goes into business for himself, attempts to win a cross-country bike race he crashes, in "20 Shades of Pink," a drama special to be seen on "GE Theatre" Friday, March 12 (9-11 p.m.) on Channel 3N-9-11.

Neptune Disaster Is Sea Drama

Giant fish and sea animals menace a sunken "Sealab" and a helpless rescue vessel under the waters of the mid-Atlantic in "The Neptune Disaster," a drama of survival making its television premiere on "The ABC Friday Night Movie," March 12, 9 to 11 p.m., on Channels 3-5-12.

Ben Gazzara, Yvette Mimieux, Walter Pidgeon and Ernest Borgnine star in the suspense thriller, which was released in movie theaters as "The Neptune Factor."

The undersea odyssey begins when an earthquake severs an underwater laboratory from its supply ship, tumbling the lab into a submarine pit. The deep-diving submersible, Neptune, is dispatched with a team of aquanauts to rescue the three scientists, but the venture is a failure, and the scientists are given up for lost.

Refusing to accept this, the project leader's assistant (Yvette Mimieux) joins the crew of the Neptune for one more desperate attempt, cutting the Neptune's safety wire to allow the submersible to enter the hidden cavern where the lab is surrounded by giant eels.

Comedians Are Interviewed

"Friends," a unique 90-minute special profiling three prominent comedy personalities —Henry Winkler, Bill Cosby and Peter Sellers — will be presented on NBC-TV following the Friday, March 12, telecast of "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson."

Harry Chapin, widely known as a singer and songwriter, will be host of the special which will feature a trio of wide-ranging, spontaneous and intimate portraits, studded with film clips, designed to explore the humorous and serious sides of these three stars.

" 'Friends,' " according to executive producer Syd Vinnedge, "will present the kind of interviews that aren't being done on TV." As for the choice of Chapin as host and interviewer, Vinnedge calls him "a face new to television," a personality who doesn't impose a familiar image between the viewer and the subject allowing the audience "to decide on the program as opposed to the interviewer."

Winkler, who only recently achieved stardom via his characterization of Fonzie in the TV comedy series ("Happy Days" and "Laverne and Shirley"), is visited at his home in Los Angeles. "He feels his success on television is all well and good," says Vinnedge, "but most of all he reportedly wants to be known as a good actor."

Cosby is interviewed in the Stars' Suite of Harrah's Tahoe at Lake Tahoe, Nev. He gives his candid and often blunt opinions on American comedy and comedians — the ones he likes as well as the ones who turns him off.

BATTLE OF SEXES—Virginia Wade (left), first woman to win the U.S. Open when that major championship became an "Open" event in 1968, takes the court against pro tennis's Bjorn Borg (right), in "The Challenge of the Sexes" on "CBS Sports Spectacular" Saturday, March 13 (4:30-5:30 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

Wade Meets Borg On Court

The question is: can the female tennis stars make it two in a row against the men? The query will be answered to the satisfaction of both sexes this Saturday when CBS Sports Spectacular again features the "Challenge of the Sexes" Saturday, March 13, 4:30 - 5:30 p.m. Virginia Wade, former U. S. Open champion, faces the Swedish super - youngster Bjorn Borg in the best - of - three matches.

In an earlier contest, Evonne Goolagong embarrassingly destroyed tempestuous Ilie Nastase in a quick three - set match. Borg hopes to even the score against the determined Wade.

What kind of a career has the 19-year-old Borg already had? An amazing one. He has already played in two WCT title matches, won back - to - back French titles, led Sweden to the Davis Cup Challenge Round, and won more than a half a million dollars in prize money. In 1974, he enjoyed a remarkable season, grabbing $215,229 as only a seventeen-year-old.

Bjorn, who is mobbed by female teenagers wherever he goes, participated on the Green Group of the WCT Tour. He finished second in the individual standings at 27-7, only trailing veteran Arthur Ashe. His performance against the big names has been remarkable considering his age, and Borg's performance can only improve with experience.

Despite an up-and-down career, Virginia Wade has been one of the most competitive female tennis stars. The Briton is always an attraction to tennis fans because she is so emotional on the court. Her best performance ever has to be in the first U.S. Open in 1968. She simply demolished Billie Jean King, 6-4 and 6-2, an amazing feat in itself.

The 30-year-old made a satisfying comeback in 1975, winning more than $100,000. On the Virginia Slims Circuit she won at Dallas and Philadelphia and compiled the longest winning streak of the season — eleven matches.

Virginia will be given several advantages in her match against Bjorn. She will be allowed to hit the ball within the entire court, while Borg will be limited to the regular in-bounds line. The Swede will also only be allowed one fault with his serve.

Whatever the results, this second "sexual encounter" between men and women tennis stars should sizzle the center court.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

The Statler Brothers, a very popular country singing group from Staunton, Virginia, got their name from a box of Statler tissues that was in their motel room. Only two members of the group are really brothers.

Centers On Kupchak

Mitch Kupchak, the All-America center from Brentwood, N.Y., has had a brilliant career at the University of North Carolina. He ranks as the number two rebounder in Tar Heel history with 959. Only Billy Cunningham (1,062) has more. He has the second best career goal percentage (to Bobby Jones) and is the sixth leading all-time scorer. Mitch also ranks as one of the best defensive players in the nation.

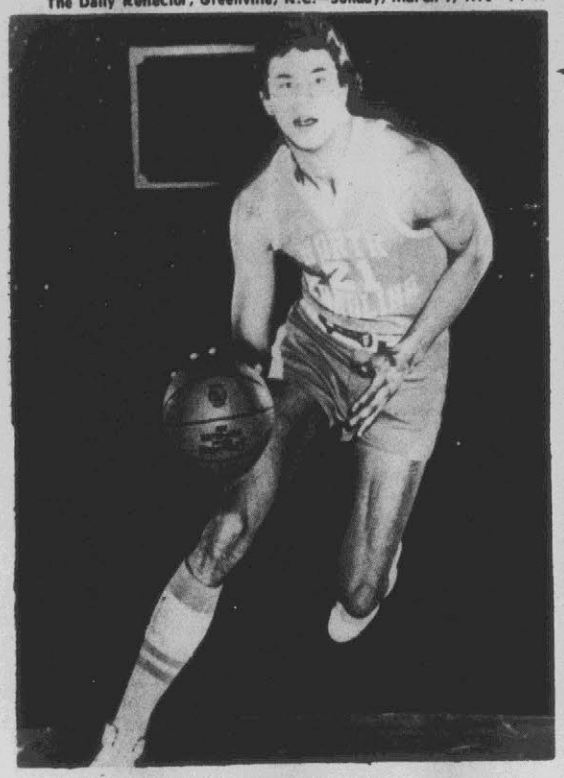

A big, solid player with deceptive quickness and an uncanny willingness to run breakneck up and down the basketball court, he plays facing the basket and with his back to it equally well.

Says UNC coach Dean Smith; "I certainly wouldn't trade him for any center in America. He can play forward with ease. In fact, in our style of play, there is very little difference between his position and LaGarde's on offense. I call him a center because on defense, somebody's got to guard the other team's center.

Kupchak grew up in the ACC as a freshman and sophomore, facing the Tommy Burlesons, Len Elmores, Tom McMillens and perhaps more important, the incomparable Jones, in Smith's torrid practice sessions.

He is perfectly suited to the competitive nature of ACC basketball. For two years, he plowed through the winless frustration of North Carolina's arch rivalry with N.C. State. And last season, after the second straight loss to the defending national champions in Raleigh, he said, "It was pretty much fun; more so because all those people were against us. It was just us against everybody."

A dean's list student, Mitch's majors at UNC ar Politics and Psychology, but he is undecided about a career route after his basketball days.

TAR HEEL—Mitch Kupchak, the 6-10 senior center for the University of North Carolina, will spearhead the Tar Heel defense in the NCAA playoffs to be broadcast on NBC-TV Saturday, March 13 from 12 noon to 6 p.m.

Glad To Be Home

Few pro athletes relish a trade from one team to another, often considering it demeaning to have to pull up roots, often with a family, and move to a strange town. But Dave Bing, now of the Washington Bullets, was ecstatic when he was traded by the Detoit Pistons. The Bullets meet the improving New York Knicks on the CBS NBA Game of the Week. The contest will be televised on Sunday, March 7, at 3:40 p.m.

Bing is a native of the nation's capital, and nothing gives him a bigger charge than to play in front of his hometown supporters. In fact, his first regular season game as a pro, in 1966, took place in nearby Baltimore. Because of the anticipation built up by the local papers, Dave calls it "the game I'll never forget."

The Washington, D.C. native came to the Detroit Pistons after an astounding three years with Syracuse University, where he was an All-America guard. He was the Piston's number one selection in the 1966 NBA draft, and was the number two overall selection behind Cazzie Russell of the University of Michigan. Cazzie was tapped by the New York Knicks.

Bing enjoyed a superb nine seasons with the Pistons, setting numerous club records during that period. He was named Rookie of the Year in his first season, and became the first guard in the history of the NBA to lead in scoring in only his sophomore year. Further honors include being named All-Pro twice, and he has participated on seven NBA All-Star teams.

His value to any backcourt was revealed in this years' All-Star game, his first as a Bullet. The 32-year old veteran came into the game in the third quarter, did an excellent defensive number on Nate Archibald, and banged home 16 points. Dave was named Most Valuable Player in the contest, an honor that had to satisfy this hard-playing athlete.

Greiner Is USC's Super-Sub

In the rough-and-tumble, always tiring world of collegiate basketball, it becomes more and more necessary for a team to have various specialists on the bench who can give the final line an occasional breather. Mark Greiner of the South Carolina Gamecocks is such a player, and is sure to be called upon when S.C. faces the powerful Marquette Warriors on Sunday, March 7, at 1:40 p.m., from Carolina Coliseum in Columbia. NBC will televise the intra-sectional battle.

Coach Frank McGuire has been one of the most successful mentors in the history of college basketball, and the successful use of his bench has been one of the reasons. McGuire is nearing the 500 mark in total victories, and ranks behind only Ray Meyer of DePaul as the winningest active coach in the collegiate ranks.

Mark Greiner fits beautifully into Coach McGuire's plans. He came to the South Carolina campus with impressive credentials, as an All-State performer at Charlotte, North Carolina's South Mecklenberg High School. Under coach Dave Price, he played on three consecutive state championship teams. Mark was the teammate of current North Carolina star Walter Davis and former Tar Heel standout Bobby Jones.

The 6'6", 220-pound senior is a hard-nosed competitor who excels as a defensive specialist. He played a total of 388 minutes last year, primarily as the first substitute on the front line, and appeared in all 28 games. Greiner is a very selective shooter who attempted only 57 field goals last season, but he made 39 for a sensational .684 percentage. In three previous seasons, he has sunk 99 of 164 attempts for a .604 career average.

But statistics fail to bear out the value of a Mark Greiner. His tremendous hustle and strong board play make a tenacious defenseman, and he is often called upon to cool out a hot opponent.

The independent Gamecocks are bidding for an NCAA at-large berth, and Greiner's play is becoming increasingly important as the torrid season wears on. His performance in place of a Jack Gilloon or an Alex English will likely determine the final outcome of the 1975-76 Gamecock season.

SPORTSCASTER PORTRAYS ... A SPORTSCASTER

CBS sportscaster Jack Whitaker appears in "20 Shades of Pink," and he portrays himself.

"It was strange to play myself as a sportscaster," says Whitaker. "I do a running commentary on Eli Wallach as he comes in near the end of a cross-country bicycle race."

Asked if it was more difficult than an actual sports event, Whitaker replied, "Eli rode the bike like a pro—even with a sprained ankle. For me, it was just a day's work."

Buckley Is A Bowler

New Orleans, that blaring arena of jazz, is the home of the NFL football Saints, but it's also the location of Lions; Bowling Lions, that is. The $65,000 New Orleans Open, from Pelican Lanes in Metairie, La., will take place on Saturday, March 13, at 3:30 p.m. on ABC-TV.

As always, ABC Sportscaster Chris Schenkel will host the event, along with expert commentator, bowling great Nelson Burton, Jr.

Every bowling season seems to highlight a newly successful bowler who appears to come out of nowhere. This year, that surprising neophyte may be Roy Buckley. But then, the Columbus, Ohio native is hardly a newcomer to the lanes.

The 5'11", 135-pounder has actually been firing the heavy, black ball since 1961, when he averaged in the 150s. He eventually boosted his game high enough to enter the pro bowling tour in 1969. In 1970, participating on a full-time basis, Roy earned $9,308. Last year was his best when he capped a total of $47,473.

1976 has already been a banner year for the 32-year-old bowler, with a win, two fourths and three consecutive television appearances that have netted him over $15,000. A fierce determination may be one of the keys to his emerging success.

"Pro bowling is an eat, sleep and bowl routine, as much mental as physical," admits Buckley.

Roy is also extremely thin, another possible reason for his ability. Nelson Burton, Jr. has commented on this fact.

Bound For Freedom

When co-producers David and Suzette Tapper started to make "Bound for Freedom," the NBC-TV Bicentennial family special set in colonial America (circa 1750) which will be colorcast Sunday, March 7, 7 to 8 p.m. on Channel 6-7, they were faced with many perplexing questions. What did the people sound like? How did the country people dress? How did they splint a leg? What kinds of animals were common?

To find the answers to these and numerous other questions regarding authenticity, they spent a year in research before shooting a single frame of film.

The first problem was finding a place in which to make the film. After searching through the Middle Atlantic States, they concentrated on New England and finally found a colonial restoration farm in Bristol, R.I., which proved to be a perfect location. "A special bonus came to us in the generous loan by Rhode Island museums of more than $100,000 worth of colonial artifacts," says Suzette.

A 'ROSEY' OUTLOOK

Rosey Grier, a recurring regular on "Movin' On," gives his definition of success: "Success to me is not measured in terms of dollars and cents or in terms of how many people know you. Success to me is measured inside—and I feel pretty good inside."

FOR REP. JOHN N. ERLENBORN (R-Ill.)

Why did you work so hard to get the bill passed to keep teachers from drawing unemployment benefits this summer?—J.R. Smith, Jackson, Tenn.

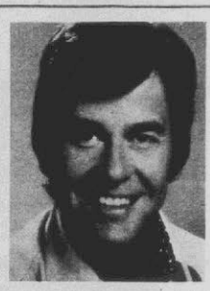

● Taxpayers do not consider teachers among the unemployed during the summer. They're on vacation. When teachers bargain with the school board about pay, they expect that salary to be sufficient for the year, and so do the taxpayers. Depending on the teacher, the pay may or may not be sufficient for the year, but unemployment compensation is not intended to be an income supplement. It's a bridge between jobs for those who are out of work through no fault of their own, and who are actively seeking work. Surely no teacher would go to a neighbor's house during the summer and pinch a few dollars from her pocketbook. How different is it, really, to have the Government transfer these funds by taxing the neighbor and giving the money to the teacher who has not lost his job?

FOR RAQUEL WELCH

Is it easier or harder to reach stardom now than it was during the days of Bette Davis, Clark Gable and that classic old crowd?—R.A., Decatur, Ill.

● It's the same. Always was, is now and always will be. I had a particularly hard time, because I came on the scene as a sexpot and was an object of criticism and ridicule. No one took me seriously, even when I was serious.

FOR DICK CLARK, host of "$10,000 Pyramid"

You're no kid, but you sure do look like one. To what do you attribute your youthfulness?—J.T., Austin, Tex.

● It's either hereditary (my father just turned 79 and looks 60), or else it comes from hanging around youngsters. Youth is a state of mind. It doesn't come from drinking lots of milk and going to sleep early. I do none of that. I do everything wrong from a medical point of view. Being with kids is rejuvenating. It gives me a different perspective—more so than being with my work-mates and pals.

FOR PAUL ANKA

Has being a millionaire enriched your life, beyond making possible every luxury?—B.G., Ogden, Utah

● It buys my personal freedom—I'm not owned by anyone—which is more precious than having material things. I started in this business when I was very young, and I've been exposed to wealth for a long time. That's why I'm realistic, objective and respectful of money, because I know it can also be destructive. Had I made it later in life, with more effort and bitterness, I might have reacted differently.

FOR CHUCK KNOX, head coach of the Los Angeles Rams

● I have thought about football for some part of every day of every week of the 22 years I have been involved in coaching. That includes the off-season days when I like to go deep-sea fishing. The great thing about deep-sea fishing is that there are always times when there are no fish and you can relax and meditate about life and football.

FOR REDD FOXX

How did you come by the name "Redd?"—Mary Bartlett, Utica, N.Y.

● When I was a teenager, singing and playing my washtub bass, there was another guy around with reddish hair. We were both called "Red." So as to distinguish between us, he became "Detroit Red" and I became "Chicago Red." "Detroit Red" later became famous as Malcolm X. When I became a comic, I added another "d" to the Red and called myself "Redd Foxx."

FOR EVA GABOR

In between your marriages, what do you like most about being single?—A.C., Danville, Ill.

● Swimming in my pool without make-up and putting on an old robe when I come out. (Can't do that when you're married. Must always look good!) Living alone makes one more resourceful . . . making decisions without the help of a husband. It stops the mind from becoming lazy. And when I'm alone, I can sleep crossways in bed without an argument.

FOR ARTHUR GODFREY

As one who knows, what can you say to a patient who is about to undergo surgery for cancer?—Elizabeth G. Delaney, Waterbury, Conn.

● I think the best thing you can say is "congratulations." Why? Because no surgeon worth his salt will venture surgery unless he thinks there's a chance for success. The reason the odds are so bad is because most people wait too long.

FOR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

If a boy has his father's name and is called "Junior," can this cause an identity problem?—Mrs. A. Sprecker, Huntington, W.Va.

● Only if one already exists. If a successful man has a son who's a challenge, it could be disturbing. The father might want to press his boy down. If the two are not "friends," the son might feel he's a carbon copy of Dad, and that he's not accepted for himself. However, it's usually a source of great pride and sharing for the two to have the same name.

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

I don't know anything about Michael Learned's new marriage. What can you tell me?—A.M., Middletown, Ohio

● Michael is now Mrs. Glenn Chadwick. She married the former ballet dancer on Oct. 18, 1974. They met 10 years ago (while still happily wed to their first spouses) at San Francisco's American Conservatory Theater, where Michael was acting and Glenn was stage manager. Right now Glenn is thinking of giving up the theater for real estate. Michael now has three stepchildren (Mike, 15, Wendy, 13, and Pam, 11) and her own three sons (Caleb, 18, Christopher, 16, and Lucas, 13). She enjoys having two girls around: "It's wonderful. We got our ears pierced together, go shopping and get our hair cut at the same time." They just moved into a "new" 100-year-old home. Michael says Glenn is "just handsome—not tall or dark."

The Most Interesting Men I've Ever Known

Sheilah Graham

By Sheilah Graham

From the miserly to the mysterious, from the engaging to the erudite, each of these men has been a "master" in his field and a charmer of the public eye.

Mr. Getty

To me, the most interesting thing about J. Paul Getty is his money. To be the richest man in the world—and perhaps the stingiest—is a subject for conversation whenever his name is mentioned.

My son Robert was a close friend of one of his children—Timmy—from his fifth and last marriage, to society-singer Theodora (Teddy) Lynch. Timmy was 12 when he died in a New York hospital, 18 years ago (can it be that long?). Before that sad event, he and Robert learned to swim together in the pool at the Santa Monica home in which Teddy lived during and after her marriage to Mr. Getty.

Timmy, a miniature of his father when J. Paul was a younger man, always attended my annual Christmas party in Beverly Hills. He would sing Christmas songs with us at the piano and, in between, tell his jokes. At his last party with us, he went to shake my hand—and missed by six inches. A tumor had formed on the optic nerve, and he was going blind.

His mother took him to New York for the operations—about six. At this time Getty had taken up residence in Europe, and because of his fear of flying and all forms of transportation, he did not visit his son in the hospital. But he telephoned him there on his 12th birthday. "I'm giving you a present of a million-dollar trust fund" he told his now totally blind son. "Shucks" Timmy replied, "I'd rather have a hamburger with french fries."

Teddy was planning to return to California with her son when the doctor suggested, "Let's clean up the scars with plastic surgery." Timmy's heart failed under the extra strain of the minor operation. I'm sure Mr. Getty was very unhappy as he was fond of the boy. It would have been nice if he could have attended the funeral.

When the now old man—he looks even older than his 83 years—refused to pay the $2,900,000 ransom for the release of his 17-year-old grandson from another marriage, I was not surprised. I was in Vienna at The Imperial Hotel when I saw him give the equivalent of 25 cents to the concierge to pay for a stamp and heard him ask for the change!

Miserly men are usually unhappy, and one of the latest photographs of the multibillionaire sniffing a daffodil in the ornate drawing room of his 72-room mansion in England bears this out. He is shrinking into himself and spending even more time on his vast business interests. It is obvious that while his money has made J. Paul Getty interesting, it has not made him happy.

Mr. Hughes

Billionaire Howard Hughes has more fun with his money. With age—he is 70—his passion for pretty, bosomy girls has diminished if not vanished. During his stay in London, he was visited by movie-star actress Ava Gardner (they were an item when both were younger). It was sort of a hello-goodbye meeting. Ava had another man on her mind, and Howard was busy keeping his chin above the Watergate investigation.

Whether you like him or not, you have to admit that Howard is a fascinating character, a man you wouldn't believe could exist if you read about him in a novel. But he was not always a recluse. I met him at all the New York parties when I came to this country from England in the mid 30's. In those days, Howard looked like any other rich young playboy on the prowl. I was to look him up, he said, when I came to Hollywood. I did, and we became sort of guarded friends. He sent me a gold and emerald brooch for Christmas when he was producing "The Outlaw" with Jane Russell. After that, six dozen long-stemmed red roses. I looked forward to them each December 25th. He was interested in me as a columnist only, and that was fortunate for us both, as he was not my type. Rich men never have been.

I followed his romances with Ava, Lana Turner, Terry Moore, Mitzi Gaynor, Ginger Rogers and Jean Peters (whom he married and by whom he was divorced).

And Katharine Hepburn. I would never have thought that Miss Hepburn was Howard's type—or vice versa—but she found him interesting. And indeed he was, even down to his unusual hours, toiling through most of the night, sending his car to bring you to him as I was brought one midnight in Beverly Hills for what he thought would be a scoop for me.

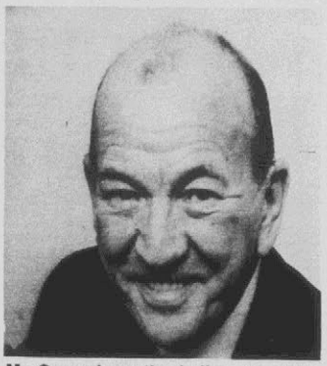

Mr. Getty gave someone 25 cents for a stamp, then asked for the change.

UPI

Mr. Hughes, back in 1935, was like any other rich young playboy.

UPI

Mr. Coward was the darling of society, including members of royalty.

Pictorial Parade

Mr. Fitzgerald was fascinating, even after the one drink too many.

Bettmann Archive

Pictorial Parade

The chief characteristic of Mr. Hughes is loyalty to those he trusts. But God help you if he thinks you have betrayed that trust. While he is a good friend, he is a dreadful enemy. As of this writing, he has managed to evade those who are trying to bring him into court on various matters. But it wouldn't surprise me if one day he were to appear suddenly and confront his adversaries with an explanation of his so-called misdemeanors.

This clever, shrewd man multiplied the fortune he inherited as a young man, and like Greta Garbo, created a legend of mystery so that the smallest tidbit about him becomes world-wide news—those long fingernails, long white beard, strange illnesses.

I suspected the Clifford Irving biography of Hughes was a hoax when the publicity stated that Howard had discussed the girls he had courted. This subject was strictly taboo, as I learned from the millionaire when I quoted the girls who talked. A man who is secure in his masculinity and bank account doesn't "kiss and tell."

Mr. Coward

I met Noel Coward during rehearsals in London for his revue, "This Year of Grace." I had a featured role which diminished almost daily as "the master" became aware of my lack of acting ability. It was in the late 20's, and he was at the height of his fame and productivity. "The Vortex" some years earlier had established him as a major playwright. He was the darling of society, including the younger members of royalty, because of his incisive, biting wit.

His displeasure, which was all too evident, terrified me, and many nights during that agonizing period, I cried myself to sleep. Years later, when I was driving along Sunset Boulevard in Hollywood, I realized how I should have sung those numbers. The next time I saw Noel in London, I insisted on singing the songs correctly, including the satirical number "I Am Just an Ingenue," which I had sung straight. In those years I had no idea of what satire meant. This became our theme song. Whenever a piano was available, he played and I sang. The last time

"The master" always gave me marvelous interviews. He was the first person to tell me the sure-fire method of falling asleep—to relax the muscles one by one, starting with the toes on one foot, then the other, and right up to the neck and head. When I heard that he was very ill, I hoped he was still able to sleep.

Noel was always kind to me—as long as I was not performing for him. He was always generous with his time, always amusing—he had "a talent to amuse"—and always interesting.

Mr. Fitzgerald

I have sometimes been accused of "trading" on my relationship with F. Scott Fitzgerald. I have written two books about him—"Beloved Infidel" and "College of One"—and single chapters about him in other books. But other authors have also written about him—32 books, pamphlets and articles—and there will be more for the same reason that I write about him. He was simply the most interesting human being I ever knew.

Scott was the best companion anyone could wish for. There was nothing trite in his conversation. He had something to say, and he said it beautifully. He was always fascinating, even after the one drink too many. In the last years of his life, when no one was reading his books, he became rather shy with people, except those he knew well. But drunk or sober, he was the center of every group.

He was a great organizer of people, too. He could make the homeliest woman feel beautiful. His charm was always real, and it was irresistible even for men. Children adored him. When we gave a party at the Malibu Beach home I rented for him, the kids next door came over at his invitation and were fascinated with the card tricks he performed for them. He was a great student of the battles of history and spent hours maneuvering his toy army of soldiers and cannon into strategic advances and retreats.

There was no ego when he explained, "This is what Napoleon should have done at Waterloo." As there was no conceit when he called the Princeton football coach at two in the morning to describe a football strategy he had worked out. He was simply carried away by his enthusiasm. And this would be the word to explain the Scott I knew. The people who knew him well can never forget him. I'm glad I am among the privileged few.

Mr. Caine

"Why Michael Caine?" I was asked when I told a friend I was including him in this article. One reason: This Cockney son of a cleaning woman and a porter in the famed Billingsgate fish market in London has never allowed the fortune and fame to obscure his appraisal of himself and others.

Michael became a film star with "The Ipcress File," although I pegged him for acclaim when I saw his performance as the Eton-Oxford lieutenant in "Zulu." I did my bit to make him known in the U.S.—in fact to such an extent that one irate reader wrote me, "If you don't stop writing about Michael Caine, I'll stop reading your column."

But it isn't only his talent as an actor that makes Mr. Caine interesting, it's his conversation and character in real life. He has educated himself on the climb upward and knows a great deal about music, painting, literature, politics and what is going on in the world today. He is a brilliant speaker and is the first to laugh at his mistakes where his films and ladies are concerned.

He also has the simplicity of a nice man. He had been courting Camilla Sparv, the beautiful Swedish model, in London, New York and Hollywood, but had broken it off in London when it was printed that they were going to marry. He and I were dining together in a Chelsea restaurant, and who should be sitting at the next table but Camilla with a man and another couple. The laughter at her table almost killed him, and when she passed by without a word, I thought he would explode. Of course they resumed the friendship. But he did not marry her.

Mr. Caine has always known what he has wanted—a big career, a big home in the country and a wife and kids to go with them. He has it all. FW

Family Weekly Celebrity Poll

It's voting time again!

For the last two years, FAMILY WEEKLY readers have broken all records, mailing in their ballots by the tens of thousands to elect their favorite show-business personalities in six important categories.

Last year, the top winners were: Television: Alan Alda ("M*A*S*H") and Valerie Harper ("Rhoda"), and in the supporting categories, Michael Learned ("Mother Walton") and Jimmie Walker ("Good Times"). Movies: Barbra Streisand and Robert Redford.

So far, in four years of FAMILY WEEKLY's Celebrity Survey, only one champion has repeated three times and "retired the cup"—John Wayne.

Check your favorite in each category, tear out the page and mail it to Celebrity Poll, 641 Lexington Ave., N.Y., N.Y. 10022. Winning celebrities receive plaques to honor their victories, and we'll publish the results in an upcoming issue.

Thanks—and happy picking!

Entertain in a Foyer

A hallway closet was converted into an entertainment oasis, while a pass-through to the kitchen provides extra space for buffet service. As Mrs. Gussin dramatizes with art in the entrance foyer (not shown), she does so here with the lively patterned area rug, which provides an interesting entrance to the living room and draws the eye invitingly into the room beyond.

avoid things that are faddish. Steer away from bizarre or overwhelming fabric designs and bright, garrish colors. If you don't know what colors you prefer, buy a clutch of fabric remnants or some inexpensive scarves in the desired colors. Tape them to a wall or to the back of a chair or sofa for a few days. If you live with them for a while, you'll soon get a sense of whether they please you or not.

She offers other decorating tips: In the living room, the larger a piece of upholstered furniture, the more understated its style should be. Then smaller chairs and wood pieces, such as chests, tables or a breakfront, can be added for more dramatic and ornamental interest.

As to rules for mixing furniture, Mrs. Gussin is very reassuring: "There are no rules as to how many styles can be mixed. Combine any piece in the world as long as the furniture is of good quality and design. The only caution is that the piece be compatible in scale. Don't mix big, boldly scaled furniture with delicate, fragile-looking accessories or furniture."

Two of her favorite decorating devices are the use of area rugs and screens. "They do so much for design schemes and can be readily moved," she explains.

Area rugs in particular make a dominant pattern statement in a room. She recommends them for wall hangings, too, because they provide important color, design and textural interest.

"I've used them in most of my interiors. In our daughter's room (which doubles as a guest room and workroom when she's at school), I've placed one over the broadloom. In this instance, you must be sure that an area rug has a color that picks up the carpeting shade. Since it's a strong pattern, other patterns in the room must remain small," she cautions.

Screens are also problem solvers. "I had some made for my first home and I take them with me wherever I go," she says. "I often like using screens in corners, which seem such an abrupt end to a wall! They're softening. But screens have other virtues. They can camouflage all kinds of architectural difficulties and they're a wonderful substitute for draperies. With all the moves I've made, I haven't had time to order draperies—and I haven't missed them at all. You can use screens for a headboard, too, just by fastening them to the wall."

An inveterate collector, Mrs. Gussin suggests that few things add a more personal touch than art. "But it doesn't have to be expensive. There's a gold mine of good, inexpensive art available almost everywhere. Local colleges and art schools often have sales of student and faculty work, and many shows now exhibit the work of talented, local artists and craftsmen.

Mrs. Gussin's entrance foyer particularly reflects her interest in art and includes some of her own graphics and ceramics. A dark dreary spot when the Gussins moved in, it is now an intriguing gallery that beckons visitors into the warmth and very personal interior beyond. FW

Ballet Stars Patricia and Jean-Pierre: How We "Collect" All Our Furnishings

Putting Attic Treasures to Work—Even in a Modern Apartment

Husband-and-wife team, Patricia and Jean-Pierre Bonnefous, both principal dancers of the New York City Ballet, live in a duplex apartment with an enormous living room, revealing a ceiling two stories high. Picture an exposed brick fireplace, a comfortable Victorian armchair and two muted red-velvet sofas drawn up to it and great expanses of oak flooring that lead to handsome "finds" collected by the couple. It's a room which, reflecting its owners, is warm and inviting.

Patricia's husband influenced her to become a collector and she has the enthusiasm of a true convert. For her first "bachelor apartment" she bought all the furniture at once, just to have the rooms filled. "I would never do that again," she says. "Now I feel you should take time, even years, to get exactly what you want. I really enjoy waiting until I find just the right piece."

Many of their treasured pieces are chosen spontaneously. "I don't have to spend a lot of time picking out something," Jean-Pierre says. "It's an emotional choice. We only ask if this is something we want to have around us all the time, if this is something we can relate to."

Some pieces in their apartment (the mahogany Victorian chair, for example) come from rather chic auctions and shops. Others—like a beautiful oak chest they have—were found in basements, flea markets and barn sales when they weren't really looking.

"We first saw this chest in a neighbor's basement, Patricia says, opening the doors that expose two shelves inside. "It was covered with soot and dirt." "That man didn't know what he had," Jean-Pierre interjects. "But we knew," Patricia says. "He told us it was solid oak, so we figured it must be beautiful underneath."

The neighbor named a nominal fee for the piece and gladly parted with what he thought was junk. Patricia and Jean-Pierre took it home and washed it. They knew from experience that oak, like other genuine hardwoods, can be given a bath without fear of damaging the surface, provided it is carefully dried afterward. Then they began waxing (with paste wax) and buffing it. Usually you only have to wax wood furniture twice a year, but since their piece had been neglected for so long, they waxed moderately every few weeks or so, with plenty of buffing in between. The chest began to thrive under their care.

Ordinarily, Patricia and Jean-Pierre don't buy furniture needing repairs or a complete refinishing job. But their beloved 7-foot-tall walnut clock, purchased in Paris, was damaged enroute, and they had to learn something about repairing. "You know," says Jean-Pierre, "when it is a fine wood piece, you can usually repair parts that have been broken, or replace them. It's not like some plastic thing, where you need a whole factory to start all over again."

The couple say they don't worry about mixing styles and periods. They just look for complementing tones of wood. "After all," says Jean-Pierre, "the trees grow together in nature—so I know Taste Barrier Broken.

Struggle to get taste into low tar smoking ends suddenly with new 'Enriched Flavor'™ discovery for 9 mg. tar MERIT.

For years, dependency on tar for taste has created a taste "barrier" for low tar cigarettes.

Now that barrier has been broken.

Broken by a remarkable cigarette called MERIT.

MERIT packs 'Enriched Flavor.' A radical new taste discovery so effective at fortifying tobacco with extra flavor that MERIT actually delivers as much —or more— taste than cigarettes having higher tar.

Yet MERIT has only 9 mg. tar. One of the lowest tar levels in smoking today. Lower, in fact, than 98% of all cigarettes sold.

Thousands of smokers were tested. The results were conclusive.

If you smoke, you'll be interested.

Smokers Report MERIT Delivers More Taste

9 mg. tar MERIT was taste-tested against five current leading low tar cigarette brands ranging from 11 mg. to 15 mg. tar.

Even if the cigarette tested had 60% more tar, a significant majority of all smokers tested reported new 'Enriched Flavor' MERIT delivered more taste.

In similar tests against 11 mg. to 15 mg. menthol brands, 9 mg. tar MERIT MENTHOL performed strongly too, delivering as much —or more— taste than the higher tar brands tested.

MERIT. Unprecedented flavor at 9 mg. tar.

How We "Collect" All Our Furnishings

they will look well together in my home."

It is obvious that Jean-Pierre loves their "collectibles." "I know every piece in this house," he says. "And the longer we live with them, the more they tell us about themselves."

The Annual Easter Plate
Triptych II

For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life.

The Passion and Resurrection of Christ have moved the greatest masters of western civilization to their most profound works.

Now, defining for all time the unique joy of Easter, The Hamilton Mint proudly offers their Annual Easter Plate. Triptych II will be available to collectors only until April 18, 1976.

Triptych II is available in either hand-antiqued pewter or 24 karat gold-on-pewter. Actual diameter size is 9 inches.

A CLASSIC TRADITION

In the central panel of the triptych, a bust of Christ is fashioned in delicate bas-relief. The humility and beatitude of the individual is expressed in the calm and gentle gaze of the eyes. Superbly etched aside the portrait are the dual scenes of the Passion and the Glory: Christ crucified and Christ resplendent in Resurrection. In the tradition of ancient craftsmen, antique pewter plates are individually struck and finished solely by hand. Gold-on-pewter plates retain the rich luster of gold in a satin-frost finish.

Each Easter Plate is housed in a specially-designed case. The plush lining exhibits, to the highest advantage, the intense glow of the plate. The outside of the box is grained and hand-rubbed to create a distinguished impression.

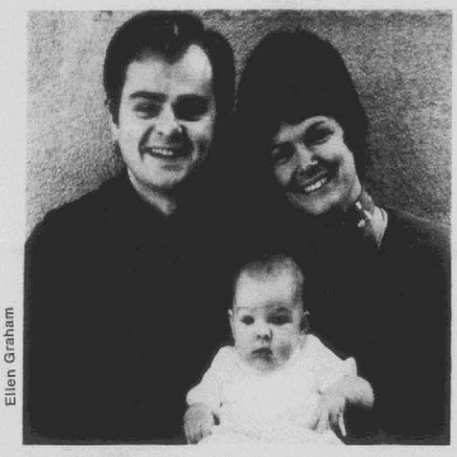

LIMITED EDITION

Orders for The Annual Easter Plate will be accepted only until April 18, 1976. Collectors are urged to act quickly. Those who wish to acquire this master's example of medallic art plates may do so by using the attached application form.

Gary Burghoff of "M*A*S*H"

Is There Really a "Radar" Off-Screen?

Ellen Graham

Family Weekly readers love him—you voted him your second-favorite second banana in all of television last year. And that makes him the champion second banana on his own "M*A*S*H." But is Gary Burghoff anything at all like "Radar"?

In the Malibu area along the Pacific Coast Highway lives Gary Burghoff who, after his club dates as a drummer-singer-dancer, starred in the long-running off-Broadway hit, "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown." Later he was cast as the meek, mild-mannered underdog Radar O'Reilly, first in the film "M*A*S*H," then in the TV series based on the movie. Except for being a small fellow (5-6), he was, I soon discovered, not at all what he seemed on the screen.

FAMILY WEEKLY: Are you anything like the character Radar?

BURGHOFF: No. I'm basically a hostile person. I hate people. End of interview.

FW: Is that why you live way out here?

BURGHOFF: I bought this dead-end canyon because it was exclusive—not economically exclusive, but because of the nature of people. I want to be left alone. I don't want to have neighbors talking over the fence and have to do favors for them.

FW: Aren't you social at all?

BURGHOFF: My wife and I don't go out much. We have a normal family existence. Where we were raised (he's from Bristol, Conn., Janet's from Santa Monica, Calif.) there weren't parties two times a week. We go out maybe once in three months.

FW: How do you spend your time away from the series?

BURGHOFF: Right now, I'm appearing in clubs across the country in a song-and-dance routine. And during my spare time, I've developed a system which will allow a family to raise trout in their own yard. Instead of raising a victory garden, they can be protein gardeners. There'd be no food shortage if we'd compensate for our mistakes. Population and ecology have to work together. We expect bureaucracy to get us out of problems, but it mostly gets us into them. The individual does count, especially in this country, and the individual has to make an effort. Organizations are not the best way. Individual action is.

FW: Is your fish farm your individual effort?

BURGHOFF: My wife and I also had a bird sanctuary. That was a big individual action. I did that for myself. For self-respect. I knew if I organized and brought in other bird people, we'd be so tied up with newsletters and things we wouldn't be saving birds.

FW: How did you happen to get involved with a bird sanctuary?

BURGHOFF: It started when a little boy found a wounded pelican and his mother wouldn't let him keep it. The Fish and Game Department and the Animal Control Shelter couldn't come get it, so I decided to try to save it. It died in less than an hour. But word got around, and people began bringing birds they'd found. I had to have a vet help me be-

Enjoy collecting a stirring panorama preserved for future generations.

• At a surprisingly modest cost, you can receive beautiful First Day Covers for each new commemorative stamp issue of the United States. • Each First Day Cover will be individually addressed and sent automatically to the name and address you designate.

WHAT IS A FIRST DAY COVER?

The United States regularly honors the important men, events and places in its history through the issuance of official U.S. commemorative postage stamps. When a new stamp is to be issued, one, and only one, post office is designated to provide the official "First Day" cancellation. The specially designed envelope bearing the new stamp, cancelled with the exact date of first issue of the officially designated post office, is a First Day Cover.

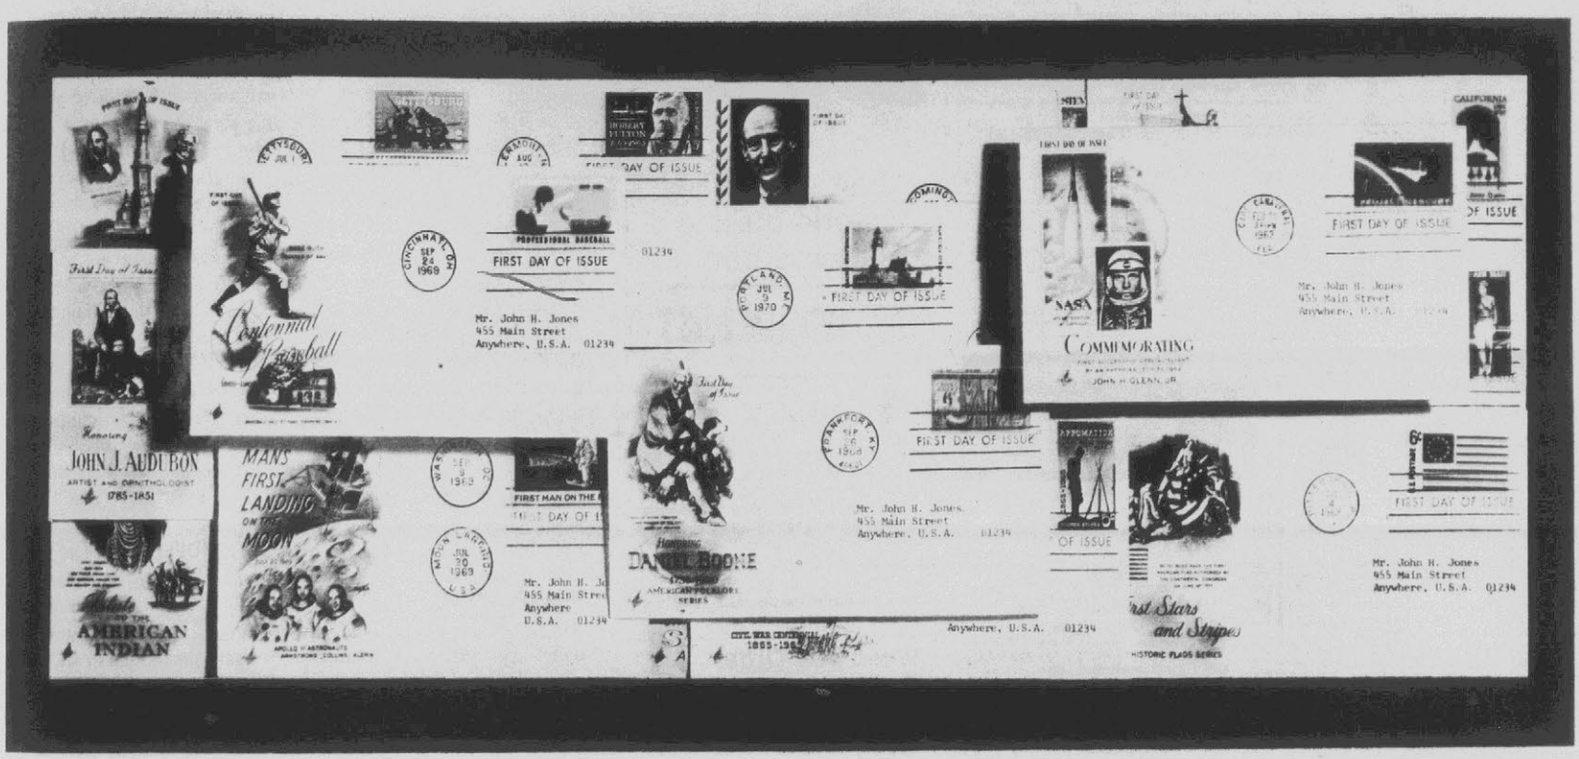

First Day Covers are fascinating collectors' items. As you can well imagine, the combination of a historic stamp, cancelled with the "First Day of Issue" postmark of the officially designated post office on a specially designed envelope, results in a collector's item of the first order. One that has been prized by collectors like Dwight D. Eisenhower, George C. Marshall and Franklin D. Roosevelt, plus others with the foresight to preserve yesterday and today for tomorrow.

The best time to obtain these prized collectors' items is when they are issued. This is now made easier than ever by the Postal Commemorative Society.

Postal Commemorative Society members receive everything they need to build and maintain a personalized "mint condition" collection of U.S. First Day Covers. For each cover issued, the Society provides an exclusive custom designed display page, especially made for the member's personalized album.

of U.S. history. To be treasured now and

First Day Covers combine art and history in a tribute to our American heritage.

Eisenhower... The Battle of Bunker Hill... the writing of the Star Spangled Banner... the landing of astronauts on the moon... such are the subjects chosen by the United States for national honor on commemorative postage stamps.

The post office chosen for a first day of issue usually bears particular significance to the subject commemorated. For example, a first day cover of the Eisenhower stamp bears the "First Day of Issue" postmark of Abilene, Kansas.

The nation's leading artists and designers are called upon to portray the subjects chosen. Such commissions naturally are highly prized, and bring forth the best efforts of the artists involved.

Membership in the Postal Commemorative Society makes it possible to easily collect First Day Covers as they are issued.

The Society will guarantee your receiving a personally addressed First Day Cover of every U.S. commemorative stamp issue. All details of arranging for your First Day Covers to be sent to you will be handled by the Society.

Commemorative stamps normally are issued by the United States at the rate of one every three to four weeks. You will receive a beautiful First Day Cover for every United States commemorative stamp issue during the term of your membership at a total cost of just $1.65 per month.

As a member, you will also receive the Society's exclusive display page for each new issue. Each beautiful, specially designed page is die-cut to hold the First Day Cover, and contains a full description with all important historical information about the subject of the commemorative issue. These pages are available only to members of the Society.

At the surprisingly low cost of $1.65 per month, you will be building a truly worthwhile First Day Cover collection to be enjoyed now and preserved for future generations of your family. Shouldn't you really give it a try?

Becoming a member now brings you an important collector's bonus at no additional cost.

The Postal Commemorative Society makes available to its members a handsome collector's album with the member's name hand-embossed on the cover. This album, specially designed to hold the Society's display pages, makes it possible for members to keep each new First Day Cover in perfect condition. It is yours free, if you join now!

cause I wasn't licensed to set bones. I also had to have a permit to keep sick and injured birds. I even had to file reports on injured birds. You can get all tied up in bureaucratic procedures. Everything was contributing to my frustrations. I finally sent then-Gov. Ronald Reagan a five-page telegram complaining that the ocean stinks, wildlife dies and nobody cares.

FW: What was his reply?

BURGHOFF: Well, it was very unsatisfactory.

FW: Why did you quit taking care of birds?

BURGHOFF: After two years, the sanctuary was a drag. I didn't cop out. I just wanted something else to turn me on, and went into this trout thing. I have no sense of guilt; I saved 4,000 birds, and I helped other people set up sanctuaries.

FW: How did you and your wife, Janet, meet?

BURGHOFF: When I was building my aviary for the birds. She was visiting next door and heard my banging. She was looking for a cat she'd lost.

FW: Does Janet want a career?

BURGHOFF: She doesn't talk about herself. I don't know where she's at, whether she wants to be a nurse or a housewife. She studied to be a surgical technician. But she could do anything she pleases. Right now she's being a mother to Gina (born last July 20).

FW: I understand you had a rather unusual honeymoon . . .

BURGHOFF: Yes— the pilot for "M*A*S*H" financed it. Instead of sitting around wondering if the network would go for it; we took off on our honeymoon to the back country of British Columbia. I bought an old International milk truck, made a bed in it, put in a stove, icebox, an original oil painting, a Persian rug and an antique chair. But we didn't have any heat. It got down to 19 degrees. We nearly froze to death. At least after that we knew if our sex life was good in weather like that, it would be O.K. for the rest of our lives!

FW: How well do you get along with your co-stars?

BURGHOFF: We all yell at each other: it's like a marriage.

FW: Do you yell at your wife?

BURGHOFF: Sure. We're very much alike. We fight like crazy. All the time. I'm past 30, and I'm only beginning to channel my anger into positive actions. It's great then. It's my heritage. My mother is Italian. I had a great-grandma who spoke only Italian. She used to throw the spaghetti on the wall. If it stuck, it was done. Groovy.

FW: You are one of the old-timers from the original film "M*A*S*H," aren't you?

BURGHOFF: Three of us from the movie were used for the TV pilot, but I was the only one to continue in the series.

FW: Do any of the actors on "M*A*S*H" have a star complex?

BURGHOFF: We all feel we are stars, if getting mail has anything to do with it. We each get over 200 letters a week. And we get paid enough to feel good.

FW: Do you consider yourself a free spirit?

BURGHOFF: You've got to learn to feel O.K with yourself and independent of others. I will not be controlled by my wife, neighbors, the film or TV industry or the Government.

FW: What about Government control? Do you believe in paying taxes?

BURGHOFF: I am a firm believer in paying taxes but not in seeing the tax money wasted, the way bureaucracy does.

FW: I've been told that like your character Radar you seem to have powers of ESP and can frequently foretell what's going to happen; for instance, you foresaw your winning an Emmy Award nomination. Is that true?

BURGHOFF: Yes, I did foresee winning the Emmy nomination, and I've had other experiences. But ESP is nothing new. It's one of mankind's oldest attributes. Animals have it— they can convey their feelings without words. If you get tuned in to somebody's behavior, you can anticipate his thoughts. ESP is just a way of communicating.

BURGHOFF: I do things for the sake of doing things. I've grown up. What I do now, I do for myself. If my only motivation were to be patted on the back, I'd be in for a disappointment. If I feel like it, I'll walk along the highway and pick up beer cans. That's living!

by Barbara Walthers

An astrological research team was recently assembled in Los Angeles to study Jackie's life. They found that at the very minute of her birth, her horoscope predicted that super-fame and super-fortune were her destiny!

Let's take a look at some of the actual facts revealed by Jackie's horoscope. Jackie's Sun is in Leo, indicating a ruling role in life — and in her adult life she became as close to a queen as an American could get — the First Lady of the land!

In her horoscope, Pluto 18° Cancer, predicts that the men in her life will be connected with the liquid elements. This prediction certainly came true. The late John F. Kennedy was an avid amateur sailor and in the Second World War he first gained national attention for his daring exploits as a P.T. boat captain. And Jackie's second husband, the late and fabulously wealthy Aristotle Onassis, built his legendary fortune by establishing a vast shipping empire.

The planetary aspect Sun Sextile Jupiter in her horoscope shows that public service and publishing are major career interests. She won the Emmy Award for public service and has recently accepted an editorial position with a leading national publishing firm.

Jackie's rising sign is ascendant 28° Scorpio revealing that she loves travel and adventure. And her jet-setting life has been one of the world's most publicized adventures.

Venus 22° Gemini and Jupiter 10° Gemini in her horoscope indicate wealth in the house of partners — and both of Jackie's husbands have been wealthy.

One of the most telling predictions of all was the tragic day of John F. Kennedy's assassination. Transit Mars and Transit Venus were opposite Venus in Jackie's chart indicating grave danger to her husband. Transit Pluto was conjunct to her Mars, a heavy aspect of a dangerous situation in public groups.

JACKIE'S ASTRO-PROFILE

Jackie is probably the world's best known woman. But, like the rest of us, she was born into this world at a time and in a place over which she had no control. However, as shown in her horoscope cast by our astrological research group, fate had great plans for her future. To really get to know Jackie and her fabulous life you've got to read about what her horoscope says.

HOW ASTROLOGY AFFECTS YOU

Jackie Onassis, of course, is not unique in the uncanny accuracy of her horoscope. Everyone born has a completely personal horoscope that is totally different from that of any other person in the entire world. To illustrate how astrology affects everyone, I'd like to share with you some of the research findings of the Institute for Applied Astrology.

"Hair" the most successful musical of all times had a full time astrologer. He advised them on every single step. He told them when and where to open. He got top credit right along with the writers and the director!

In 1908, an astrologer, John Hazelrig, said that every 20 years, when the Transits of Saturn and Jupiter are conjunct (come together) the President who took office that year would die in office. Lincoln, Garfield, McKinley, Harding, Franklin Roosevelt and Kennedy did exactly that!

Carol Richter is astrologer to Hollywood. Hundreds of the famous have used his Transit astrology. People like Marlene Dietrich, Gloria Swanson, Ronald Colman, Tyrone Power and Danny Kaye. Carol Richter became as astrologer because Evangeline Adams, who was astrologer to Kings, Queens and financiers, told him astrology was his vocation according to the stars.

Hitler was conquering Europe as long as he followed his Horoscope as prepared by Karl E. Kraft. But when Kraft's charts told Hitler it was not the time to turn East to Russia, Hitler fired him. That was the beginning of the end for Hitler. (See Wm. Shirers "The Rise and Fall of the Third Reich".)

Countless brilliant scientists, writers and geniuses through the ages have believed in Astrology. Great men like St. Thomas Aquinas, Sir Roger Bacon (father of modern science), Shakespeare, Sir Isaac Newton, Carl Jung, Einstein, and J. P. Morgan have all openly agreed that astrology works!

MODERN SCIENCE PROVES ASTROLOGY WORKS

Recently in France a famous scientist named Michel Gauquelin decided to prove that Astrology was a fake. So he attacked it scientifically! In France the time of birth is on every birth certificate, so he was able to hire Astrologers to cast the horoscopes of 576 famous teachers of medicine. He was astonished to discover that most of them had Mars and Saturn heavily influencing their character! These are the signs that show a natural talent for healing. He refused to believe his own evidence, so he checked the horoscopes of famous lawyers, soldiers, politicians and artists. He found that in every single instance the people that were successful, were "doing what comes naturally" as shown on their astrological charts. Unfortunately the opposite also holds true. The people who fail at their work and in their lives are the ones who do the wrong things. They are square pegs in round holes: they are plumbers who should be doctors, mechanics who should be engineers, etc.

HERE'S HOW ASTROLOGY WORKS

Most people have heard about the rich, famous and successful people who use astrology practically full time, but they still think that astrology is the "fortune cookie" horoscope they read in their daily paper, or the Natal horoscope that they can buy for a few dollars. But this is not true, for astrology is an exact and demanding science.

To prepare a true, in-depth, total personal horoscope for you, an astrologer must first make a chart showing the sun, the moon, and all eight planets as they were at the time and place of your birth. This is where all other computer horoscope companies stop. But that is only half the job.

Next, the astrologer must relate "Transits" to your basic chart. Transits are the changes in the positions of the sun, moon, and planets as they move away from the positions they were in at your birth. And only the Institute for Applied Astrology does this!

When this Total chart is finished it is completely personal, completely different, and completely about you! And the written evaluation is what astrologers call your Total Horoscope. Natal astrology alone is like reading a good book about big game hunting and then going to darkest Africa on your own. "Total" astrology is like having a top professional hunter to help guide you through the jungle. The special knowledge contained in this horoscope can change your life in many wonderful ways. We all know, for example, that while none of us are good at everything, each of us are good at something. Your horoscope will tell you what you're good at. And armed with that knowledge you can forge ahead and be at ease and happy while you do it.

Your horoscope delves deeply into your personality, revealing your hidden talents. It will tell you about the areas where you have ability but may have been uncertain and afraid to try — things like writing or acting, art, sex, leadership, public relations, advertising, athletics, etc.

Think of it this way: you only have one life to live, so why not get everything from it that you can! Why waste your time charging down blind alleys that can easily be avoided? You have a real duty to yourself and to your loved ones to make the most of each precious moment. And your Total horoscope can give you the edge you need to see your opportunities and take advantage of them.

For a limited time only, while the internationally known Institute for Applied Astrology is carrying on its extensive research program, you can get your Total Horoscope for only a duplicating cost. The casting and analyzing are done FREE! The article below tells you how to get your Horoscope. For the sake of your own personal happiness — don't pass up this unique opportunity. It's the kind of new chance for success that comes along only once in each person's life.

Limited Research Program Invitation

WHY WE GIVE YOU THE WORLD'S ONLY TOTAL HOROSCOPE FOR JUST OUR DUPLICATING COST

by Lois Rodden, A.F.A.—P.A.I. Chief Astrologer

There are a lot of computer horoscopes on the market — and most of them are okay as far as they go. But that's just it — they really don't go far enough! Only the Institute for Applied Astrology can prepare your TOTAL HOROSCOPE for you because only we have "transits" stored in our giant computer.

Where the sun, moon and planets happen to be at the time of your birth is what makes up your Natal (birthdate) Horoscope. But that's only the beginning of a TOTAL HOROSCOPE, yet that's all you get from other computer horoscope companies. You see, the sun, moon and planets keep right on moving. They are in Transit. And day after day they keep forming new angles with your birth chart. These Transits show every single important period of your life! And no horoscope that does not include these transits is a TOTAL HOROSCOPE.

Now, for a limited time only, if you will help us with our research program, you can get your own personal TOTAL HOROSCOPE for just a duplicating charge. Since your TOTAL HOROSCOPE must be constructed anyway for our research you may have an exact duplicate copy for only $3.00 to cover our printing cost, plus just 55¢ for postage and handling. The preparation, the casting, and the professional analysis are provided without charge! To join our research program and get your TOTAL HOROSCOPE, here's all you do. Write down your time and place of birth, as exact as possible, on a piece of paper and send it to me. I'll cast and analyze your TOTAL HOROSCOPE as part of our current astrological research program.

Your TOTAL HOROSCOPE will run from 14 to 18 pages — up to 10,000 words (three to four times larger than ordinary Natal [birthdate] Horoscopes) — and here are just a few of the important things it will do for you:

1 Your TOTAL HOROSCOPE will make you know yourself. That means you can make use of your strong points and fight off your weak ones.

2 Your TOTAL HOROSCOPE will analyze your character in depth giving you psychological facts that some people pay analysts a fortune for.

3 Your TOTAL HOROSCOPE will give you new insights into the talents and abilities you never before gave yourself credit for having.

4 Your TOTAL HOROSCOPE will show you how and when to use these talents to open up a better life and future.

5 Your TOTAL HOROSCOPE will show you how to get along with more people . . . thereby enriching your social, business and sexual life.

6 Your TOTAL HOROSCOPE will show you the people you are compatible with. It will make you understand how to use those people to get ahead. This covers every aspect of living — family, friends, business associates, partnerships, romances, etc.

7 Your TOTAL HOROSCOPE will show you how to form meaningful and exciting personal and sexual relations with the right partners — and how to keep these relationships strong and satisfying.

8 Your TOTAL HOROSCOPE will not only give you practical vocational and career advice but will show you the best times to use that information for maximum effect.

9 Your TOTAL HOROSCOPE will be loaded with beneficial advice on money matters. It will tell you when to take chances and when to be careful. This is exceptionally important if you have a tendency to take risks.

10 Your TOTAL HOROSCOPE covers all matters relating to your body and your health. It tells you the things to do and the things to avoid in order to enjoy the maximum in good health, normal weight and high energy.

11 Your TOTAL HOROSCOPE gives you positive information. When it tells you of possible bad periods it also tells you how to avoid or overcome them.

The Institute needs your horoscope to help complete our huge research program looking into the practical applications of astrology (Applied Astrology). This research program has been going on for some time and has been presented in COSMOPOLITAN MAGAZINE, FAMILY WEEKLY MAGAZINE, THE LOS ANGELES TIMES HOME MAGAZINE, THE NATIONAL ENQUIRER, and other papers and periodicals. Right now, for a limited time only, if you help us by providing your birth data, you can benefit by becoming eligible to get horoscopes for yourself and even your family and friends.

Here's all you do—IMPORTANT: PRINT ALL OF THE FOLLOWING INFORMATION CAREFULLY ON A PIECE OF PAPER — IN THIS ORDER — (1) Name; (2) Full Mailing Address; (3) Month / Day / Year / Time of Birth; and (4) City, State and Country of Birth. Send it to us with the $3.00 copying charge and 55¢ for postage and handling, for each person's horoscope you want. Note: If you don't know your exact time of birth use 12:00 noon. You may even charge it to your BankAmericard, Master Charge, or American Express by including the following: (1) Name of Card; (2) Card Number; (3) Card expiration date; (4) Cardholder's Signature.

Mail this material to: THE INSTITUTE FOR APPLIED ASTROLOGY; RESEARCH DIVISION: 6331 Hollywood Blvd., Suite 603, Dept. FW1A Hollywood, California 90028

We will, at no cost to you, feed your birth information into our giant computer. The computer will then calculate your Natal Chart including the sun, moon and planetary aspects. Then it will calculate the transit positions of the heavenly bodies as they move through those positions. Next, it will examine 54 million possibilities in order to create your TOTAL HOROSCOPE! All you pay for your TOTAL HOROSCOPE is the cost of making a copy for you.

Your horoscope is covered by a full one year money back guarantee of complete satisfaction. If you have questions write or call Sanford Richter, (213) 276-2151, Research Director, the Institute for Applied Astrology. Act at once and avoid disappointment. Send for your horoscope before you forget. Thank you.

What in the World!

How one family turned a handicap into a source of strength: Jean Hines—the mother of 5-year-old Kerri, who suffers from cerebral palsy—talks about the effect Kerri's disease has had upon their family life: "Most people feel sorry for us, but they shouldn't. We haven't had to give up anything, or if we did, it was so unimportant in the larger scheme of things that it doesn't matter. We were a close-knit family to begin with (the Hineses also have an 8-year-old son), but now we're even closer because we have to be. We have gained in insight and compassion for the rest of the world. We have learned to look beyond our own limited environment and become aware of what's going on elsewhere. Sure, we have to depend on each other more than most families, but I see that as an advantage. We have a common purpose—we're working toward the day when Kerri can lead a more normal existence." What's the most difficult part of Jean's job as mother of a disabled child? "I have to remind myself that the handicap doesn't come before Kerri. I can't treat her differently from my son because if she thinks she's special, she won't try as hard to overcome her disability. Our whole family has had to learn to set realistic goals and take one day at a time, but wouldn't every family benefit from that instruction?" Kerri Hines lives in Waterford, Mich., and is this year's National Easter Seal Child.

Quips & Quotes

The "Intimidator's" version of how to succeed in business. "The quickest way to the top is not by fighting your way through the pack—the quickest way is to leapfrog over the pack and simply take it upon yourself to proclaim that you're above it. There is a catch, however: if you are not prepared to be above the pack, then, in spite of the fact that you make such a proclamation, the realities of the business will knock you right back into the pack. When you're prepared, an understanding of the Leapfrog Theory can save you from having to endure years of unnecessary frustration. Without authority from anyone else—and without being saddled by mystical guilt feelings or 'moral obligations'—you simply take it upon yourself to begin operating on a higher level. You don't wait for the industry, society or some abstract entity to christen you a 'heavyweight' in your business." From "Winning Through Intimidation," by Robert J. Ringer (Funk & Wagnalls, $9.95)

Robert J. Ringer

After 15 years of labor and a ton of material, the world is about to see a reconstructed elephant. The beast was shot in southern Africa, and the skin, which alone weighs half a ton, was shipped to Rowland Ward, a London taxidermist. It is destined for the Royal Scottish Museum. The elephant is stuffed with fiberglass, wire netting and wood wool. When it is completed, the ears will be outstretched to a span of 11 feet across, and the whole thing will stand 10 feet, 8 inches tall. The taxidermist says his next project is an even taller order . . . a giraffe.

VACATION HAUNTS

Did I leave the water running?
Did I double-bolt the door?
Did I, with all care and cunning,
Do each crucial little chore?

Did I water all the plant life?
Did I also feed the fish?
Did I spray the sink for ant life?
Did I wash that dirty dish?

Did I leave a light on, burning,
Lest some burglar know I roam?
One more question, with some yearning:
Why then didn't I stay home?

I wish they wouldn't get so tricky with packaging. This morning my wife broke open an egg, dropped the contents into the pan and fried a pair of pantyhose sunnyside up!

LEIGHTON OLSON, ON SHORE LEAVE IN KOREA, IS HAILED AS A MESSIAH BY INNOCENT MEMBERS OF A FAKE RELIGIOUS CULT HEADED BY THE NOTORIOUS MADAME HOOK

OF COURSE NOT, OLSON..

..BUT THEY THINK YOU WILL!

IN THESE DAYS OF CULTISM, THE WORSHIPPERS MUST HAVE SOMETHING TO STRIVE FOR!

OKAY, I STUMBLED INTO THIS...

LET ME EASE OUT THE REAR DOOR AND BACK TO MY TANKER!

YOU CAN SAY I'M MEDITATING ON THE MOUNTAIN, OR SOMETHING...

...AND I'LL BE OFF AND RUNNING!

NOT BLOODY LIKELY, MY PRIZE BEAUTY..

YOU CAN'T KEEP ME A PRISONER HERE! I--

YOU'RE NOT A PRISONER! YOU SHALL DECIDE THAT THE BIRD CONGREGATION'S DAMSELS ARE FINE, BUT--

YOU HAVE CHOSEN AS YOUR HEAVENLY BRIDE, THE HIGH PRIESTESS HERSELF!

...AND THAT NICE YANKEE PASSPORT OF YOURS...
