N.C. Teachers Support 16 Per Cent Pay Raise

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Gov. Jim Holshouser told North Carolina teachers Saturday night he believed "there will be some kind of salary increase for teachers and state employees during the next fiscal year." In a talk prepared for the annual meeting of the North Carolina Association of Educators, the governor did not say how much of a raise the teachers and state workers can expect. The Republican governor and democratic legislative leaders have been talking in terms of 5 per cent pay hike while the teachers have called for a 16 per cent cost-of-living raise. The teachers earlier had deleted a sick-in provision before adopting a resolution empowering their board of directors to take whatever action it deems will be effective and appropriate to achieve a 16 per cent raise. The delegates adopted the revised proposal by a 2-1 vote of the 2,500 delegates after about 45 minutes of at times spirited debate. The governor reminded the teachers that a study published by a Raleigh newspaper recently showed that among 13 southeastern states, only Texas and Maryland pay their teachers and state employees better than North Carolina. Holshouser said the study "showed that this year's average teacher salary in North Carolina, slightly more than $11,000 a year, is several thousand dollars higher than the pay in most of the other southeastern states." "We have worked hard together to build public confidence in our schools to its highest level in a long time," Holshouser said. He then cautioned the teachers that "if the day ever comes that our teachers seem to be concerned only with their own salaries, then all of that hard work and all of the progress we have made will be washed down the drain." Pointing out that school enrollment peaked in 1968-69, Holshouser told the teachers that when kindergarten needs are met, "the state no longer will be required to add substantial amounts of money in each year's budget merely to keep pace with expanding enrollment."

The teachers also voted to hold a rally in Raleigh May 1 to call attention to the their cause. Several days ago, Gov. Jim Holshouser and Democratic legislative leaders conferred on budget matters and legislators later indicated that a 5 per cent pay raise for teachers and state employees was the most likely target. The original resolution regarding a pay raise had stipulated that if the 16 per cent raise sought was not achieved, the NCAE directors should "organize and actively promote a statewide sick-in of all educators for at least one school day." Saturday's action did not definitely rule out a sick-in, an association spokesman pointed out, but he said it made one doubtful. He said that most of the 25 members of the board were opposed to a sick-in. Also passed was a resolution requesting the state board of education "to grant a system of political leave for the purpose of serving an elective office at the local, state or national level."

Loan Company Suspended

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina operations of Pinehurst Mortgage and Loan Corp. (PML) of Southern Pines have been temporarily suspended in an order signed by Superior Court Judge Donald Smith. Smith issued the order Thursday at the request of the state Department of Justice. In a petition, the department said that Pinehurst has more liabilities than assets and has been paying noteholders by collecting money from new investors. Since 1973, the corporation has sold notes with advertised high rates of interest to investors through newspaper advertising and branch offices in Charlotte and Asheville.

Challenged On Posting Prices

RALEIGH (AP)—Democratic gubernatorial candidate Edward O'Herron has been challenged by a group of consumer activists, Carolina Action, to post prices of prescription drugs in Eckerd's drug stores. Carolina Action said Friday it has presented its request to Eckerd's officials in Raleigh and Charlotte but has not received a favorable response. Posting of prescription drug prices has long been agitated by consumer groups in the belief that more information will help consumers get better deals. Sam Lowman, an Eckerd's official, said, "We are not ready," to comply with the consumers' request when asked about it Friday.

Convicted On Charges

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—A Charlotte man and his wife were convicted late Friday of offering the woman's two teenage daughters as prostitutes. A Mecklenburg County Superior Court jury found Carol Jean Hill, 38, and her husband, Jerry Hill, 39, guilty of two counts of contributing to the delinquency of a minor and one count of running a brothel.

"Proletariat Expropriation"

By EDWARD MAGRI Associated Press Writer ROME (AP) — Masked youths armed with iron bars and sticks carried out a "proletariat expropriation" at a supermarket Saturday as social and economic pressures increased for Premier Aldo Moro's minority government to call early elections. A bombing and suspicious fires added to the tension. The Communist party called a massive rally in front of St. John Lateran Basilica in Rome. In Milan, about 30 young toughs raided a supermarket and forced some shoppers to leave without paying. "Today the shopping is free," one of the youths yelled. "We can't remain indifferent when one pays 508 lire for a kilo of potatoes (30 cents a pound) and 6,000 lire for a kilo of meat ($3.60 a pound). Consider this a proletariat expropriation." The youths then loaded $3,600 worth of soft and hard drinks, meat and other goods into their car and fled, officials reported.

Teng Blasted For Crimes

By FRANK SAKDALAN HONG KONG (UPI) — Mass rallies and demonstrations supporting the ouster of Teng Hsiao-ping as China's No. 2 man were held in many parts of the country Saturday as the official Chinese media blasted his "crimes." In a frontpage editorial, the Communist party newspaper People's Daily described the purge of Teng as "a great victory" for Chairman Mao Tse-tung. It reported that army men and civilians in Peking, Shanghai, Liaoning, Szechwan, Kwangtung, Hopei, Kweichow, Tibet and Ningsia "jubilantly celebrated the major victory." The demonstrators also "firmly supported the appointment" of Hua Kuo-feng as first vice-chairman of the party and premier "and indignantly denounced Teng Hsiao-ping's crimes."

Crewmen Picked Up Freighter Sinks

CAPE HATTERAS, N.C. (UPI) — A freighter registered as the Sea Trader sank in 12-foot seas in the Atlantic Ocean off the coast of Bermuda Saturday, but 29 crewmen onboard the ship were picked up by another vessel. A Coast Guard pilot at the scene estimated the Sea Trader at 350 to 400 feet. He said the crew was being rescued by another freighter, the 662-foot King Theras, when his C130 aircraft arrived at the site, about 720 miles off the coast of North Carolina. The Sea Trader was believed to be registered to either Panama or Singapore, but the Coast Guard said there were some problems in determining the vessels exact registry. According to eyewitness reports, two-thirds of the main deck of the Sea Trader was awash at 4:55 p.m. EST. The stern was rising and the prop was just beginning to show, according to Lt. Cmdr. Robert Mueller. Mueller's C-130 aircraft was dispatched to the scene from the Coast Guard Station at Elizabeth City, N.C., to drop life rafts, pumps and other gear at the scene if necessary. There was no immediate cause given for the sinking, and the destination and the cargo of the vessel was also not known. Mueller said the King Theras was 43 miles away when it picked up the distress call and headed for the scene. He said the King Theras was bound for England but the captain held his position awaiting instructions from the ship's owners on whether to take the crewmen from the Sea Trader to Bermuda or take them on to England.

Big Crowds Visit Historic Halifax

HALIFAX, N.C. (UPI) — Between 5,000 and 6,000 persons packed into this little town Saturday for the second day of the town's celebration of the 200th anniversary of the signing of the Halifax Resolves. Bicentennial Committee Chairman John Oliver said officials, who have called on 50 military policemen to help them with crowd control, expected between 10,000 and 15,000 visitors to the restored area today. The crowds came to see craft exhibits, tour restored homes and gardens, hear the usual round of speeches and listen to several music groups perform. The most important day of the event that ends Wednesday will be Monday when residents, many of whom have dressed themselves in colonial garb for the six-day event, recreate the signing of the Resolves. The Resolves were approved by the Fourth North Carolina Provincial Congress on April 12 1776. Art shows, craft displays, music shows and house and garden tours were scheduled for today.

Special Two Week Recruiting For National Guard

By JERRY RAYNOR Reflector Staff Writer For a 14 day period—one that started yesterday and will continue until April 24, four sergeants of the local 514th Military Police (MP) Company will be engaged in "stay-back recruiting campaign." The "stay back" refers to the fact that the four men—Don Haley, Joe Braxton, Walter Ezzell and Billy Clark, will be on special recruiting duty instead of attending the annual field training exercises for the company at Fort Bragg. "What we're looking is a number of good men to enlist in the National Guard," Sgt. Haley, spokesman for the project said. "We want to get the best qualified people possible to consider joining the 514th and becoming National Guardsmen." In an attempt to achieve their recruiting goals, the four men will be visiting high schools in Greenville and Pitt County, and will be making appearances at Pitt Technical Institute and East Carolina University. Haley noted the National Guard offers a variety of fields in which an enlistee can receive training. "The training military policemen receive is applicable to civilian jobs in many fields," he explained. "This includes police officers, mechanics, electronics personnel in communications, clerks, cooks, and small weapons personnel, among other occupations." Enlistees can be male or female, with or without prior military service. "Men with prior service can sign up for a one year period. Men without prior service will have a six-year obligation and must agree to a four month period of active duty basic training and attendance at the Military Police School at Fort Gordon, Georgia." The minimum age limit for enlistees is 18. The maximum age limit is 35. All prospective enlistees are required to undergo a thorough physical examination and to pass a qualification test before being accepted. National Guardsmen who are members of the 514th MP Co. and those who are members of that unit's sister organization, the 213th MP Co. take part in active duty training on week-ends. "The pay for training is good,"

Haley remarked, "ranging from a low of approximately $48 monthly for the lowest ranks to about $150 monthly for higher ranking enlisted men." Enlistees are being sought basically from the Greenville-Pitt County area. However, Haley indicated that prospective enlistees would be considered from counties adjoining Pitt County. Active duty affiliation with a National Guard unit, Haley said, "carries a number of benefits. In addition to the good pay, members are entitled to Government Service Life Insurance through the National Guard Association. Another benefit is that members can join the N.C. Employees Association. In addition, members are permitted to make use of area military PX facilities for four days each month." Free medical service is given National Guardsmen for illness or injury that might occur during annual field training periods. On Friday, 50 members of the 514th left Greenville to report for week-end duty in Halifax as part of an eastern North Carolina force to handle heavy traffic expected there as a result of the 200th anniversary observances of The Halifax Resolves. "The North Carolina State Adjutant consistently chooses the 514th for such duty," Haley said. "I think this is due to the fact our unit has an excellent reputation for performance." On Tuesday, after completing its assistance stint at Halifax, the 50 man contingent will proceed to Fort Bragg to join the group already there for the annual field training. "Another 50 men have been assigned duty as aggressor support for the 213th MP Company during the field training period," Haley said. "The 213th has a primary duty as stockade MP's. Our men will be rounding out their group in varied assignments." "I might add that during this bicentennial year," Haley commented, "it's appropriate to remember that the American National Guard began with the Minutemen of New England, our first civilian soldiers. National Guardsmen have fought in every major American war, from the Revolutionary War on down through the Vietnam war." (Continued on page A-6)

To Permit Replacement Of Franjeh Lebanon Amends Constitution

By MICHAEL KEATS
BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Lebanon's Parliament met in extraordinary session Saturday in a no-man's land in Beirut and amended the constitution to permit replacement of President Suleiman Franjeh—the leftist Moslem price for peace.

Truce violations added more casualties to the thousands killed and wounded in the one year of civil war but deputies said there was no doubt the cease-fire due to expire Monday would be extended.

The session in a heavily guarded yellowstone villa in a neutral strip dividing Moslem and Christian areas of Beirut lasted only 15 minutes and was attended by 89 deputies out of the 98-man House. They voted unanimously to amend the constitution to permit immediate election of a president to replace Franjeh.

Franjeh, the target of leftist in their campaign to bring about political and social reforms, has said he would leave office until his term expires in September. But both U.S. special envoy L. Dean Brown and French Ambassador Georges Gorse urged him step aside, and political sources said they expected Franjeh would do so now.

There was no immediate comment from Franjeh.

At least 1,000 Lebanese troops, Palestinian guerrillas and militia units were deployed around parliament to protect house members who were unable to reach the building because of sniper fire.

Socialist party leader Kamal Jumblatt—Franjeh's most implacable enemy—did not attend the meeting, but many of his political allies were among those who voted for the amendment.

Students Help Fight Fire

By United Press International
Some 90 students from Western Carolina Saturday joined 60 firemen and Civil Conservation workers in fighting a forest fire which spread into the Great Smokey Mountain National Park near Bryson City.

The Bryson City fire was reported to have scorched about 300 acres of land and was the largest fire still burning Saturday night. A spokesman for the state forest service said they hoped to have the Bryson City fire under control sometime during the night.

While state and national forestry officials said the fire situation had shown a general improvement Saturday, they said fire danger across the state was "extremely" high. A ban on outdoor burning continued Saturday and some 25 smallfires were reported in the Fayetteville fire district Saturday.

Pawlowski Convicted

WARSAW (UPI) — Col. Jerzy Pawlowski, the Polish Olympic gold medalist convicted of spying for the West, passed military secrets to a NATO country for ten years, the armed forces newspaper Zolnierz Wolnosci said Saturday.

It was the first official comment on the national sports hero-turned-spy since his sentencing to 25 years imprisonment by a military court Thursday. The army colonel's plea of guilty to espionage charges saved him from a death sentence, the newspaper said.

Pawlowski, who won a gold medal in the individual saber event at the 1968 Olympic Games at Mexico City, was recruited by intelligence agents of one of the NATO countries in 1964, Zolnierz Wolnosci said. It did not name the country.

Swimmers Attacked By Feeding Fish

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — It was a swimmer's nightmare when a five-mile-long school of bluefish went into a feeding frenzy near the beach. "I was going to run for it, but I fell," said Christine Schulte, 18, who needed 30 stitches to close the gashes in her left hand.

At least five persons were treated for cuts and gashes after the bluefish skimmed the shore Friday. Witnesses said the school of fish was a quarter-mile wide and five miles long.

Because waters were murky, officials said the fish could not tell whether they were biting at their usual food — mullet and pilchard — or something else.

A feeding frenzy is an uncommon event, but not unheard of. There is a report of about one a year on the Florida coast.

"I really felt I was in 'Jaws,'" said Miss Schulte, of Canaan, Conn. She was riding the waves when the fish suddenly surrounded her.

"A big fish, at least two feet long, grabbed me. I grabbed him with my other hand and whacked him. His eyes — he was looking at me so meanly," she said.

Lifeguard Jim Kehl, 27, was standing at water's edge trying to get swimmers back onto the beach when he put his hand into the water. He had three fingers slashed. "It was incredible," he said.

It was, however, a heyday for fishermen. An attendant at Pompano Pier said 300 to 400 bluefish were caught by people using any lure they tried.

A Busy Saturday For The Campaigners

Duke $13.5 Million Campaign

DURHAM, N.C. (AP)—Duke University has begun a campaign to raise $13.5 million to support recreational and athletic facilities and athletic scholarships for both men and women, President Terry Sanford announced.

"Athletics, intramurals and recreation are a very important aspect of the total life of the students on the Duke campus," Sanford said. "We believe this ambitious undertaking will insure our students, faculty, alumni and friends a quality program."

Pleads Guilty To Holdup

CHARLOTTE (AP)—A 21-year-old bank teller and her 25-year-old boyfriend each pleaded guilty to one count of larceny in federal court Friday in the Feb. 20 holdup of a Charlotte bank.

Karen Haines, a teller at the Northwestern Bank branch at Charlotte's Douglas airport, told police then that a man wearing a motorcycle helmet and sunglasses had robbed the bank.

But less than three weeks later FBI agents accused Miss Haines of collaborating with her boyfriend, Maurice MacDonald Seaver, to fake the holdup.

Kirby Is Candidate

RALEIGH (AP)—State Sen. Russell Kirby, D-Wilson, made his candidacy for Congress in the 2nd District official Friday by filing with the State Board of Elections.

Kirby, a five-term legislator, is challenging incumbent L.H. Fountain. Two other candidates, Henry B. Thorpe of Rocky Mount and Elbert Rudasill of Warrenton, are expected to seek the Democratic nomination.

Considers Disclosure Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate is considering a bill sponsored by the Watergate scandals that would require the president, Congress, federal judges and other government officials to make full disclosure of their finances.

The result of 14 months of deliberation, the bill also will create a division in the Justice Department to investigate government employe crimes. It also sets up the mechanism to name a temporary special prosecutor in cases of serious accusations against an incumbent president or members of his administration.

Denies Pressure

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Regional officials of the Forest Service denied Saturday they were pressured by former Army Secretary Howard "Bo" Callaway to allow expansion of his Colorado ski resort to nearby government land.

The denials came despite an internal memorandum in which one Forest Service official referred to "political pressures being applied by Callaway et al."

Scant Attention

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet newspapers and radio gave scant attention today to the tentative Soviet-American agreement that would allow on-site inspection of peaceful nuclear explosions.

The Tass news agency carried an 85-word report on the agreement, announced Friday in Moscow, and the Communist party newspaper Pravda buried the agency account on page four.

Getting Along Just Fine

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The cable cars are collecting dust and garbage is piling up on the hilly streets, but San Francisco residents and tourists appear to be getting along quite well despite an 11-day strike by city workers.

Shopping is down, but not much, merchants report. Commuters are inconvenienced, but car pools and bicycles have taken up the slack. And although the toilets are clogged at the city's airport, the planes are taking off and landing on schedule.

Returns To Court Monday

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Patricia Hearst, convicted of turning from kidnap victim to terrorist, returns to court Monday to be sentenced for the armed robbery of a San Francisco bank.

As the sentencing date neared, Miss Hearst had turned informer in hopes of winning a light sentence, a newspaper said. The Washington Post said, however, officials believed she was just planting gossip and false rumors.

Mystery Faintings Said Not Voodoo, Drug Related

MT. PLEASANT, Miss. (AP)—In the past week, 15 teen-age girls have fallen to the ground at a public school, writhing and kicking before passing out. The principal says it's not voodoo, narcotics agents say it's not drugs, but parents are keeping nearly a third of the school's students at home.

"My head was hurting bad," said Shirley Benton, 14, one of the girls who fainted. "It wasn't like a headache. It felt like something was sticking in it. ... I couldn't get enough air. Then I fell out—fainted."

A state narcotics officer on Friday visited the 900-student Sand Flat High School in this rural town 50 miles southeast of Memphis, Tenn.

"Our investigation indicates there is no evidence of drugs," said Cindy Carr, spokeswoman for the Mississippi Bureau of Narcotics. "The agent ... said he believes it's hysteria, but he can't back it up."

Teachers and students who have seen the spells said the girls suddenly fall to the ground, kicking and shouting,

Bentsen

By ROLAND LINDSEY
AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—Texas Democratic leaders, rallying to head off Jimmy Carter in the May 1 primary, urged party workers to get behind Sen. Lloyd Bentsen as a favorite son so the state could win a bigger voice at the national convention.

Carter

By JOANNA FIRESTONE
DETROIT (UPI)—Jimmy Carter said Saturday if the Democratic party turned again to Sen. Hubert Humphrey as it did in 1968, it would only be inviting another defeat in November.

Carter, opening his campaign for the May 18 Michigan primary before 500 cheering supporters in a Detroit union hall, said a deadlocked Democratic convention this year would be a "political miracle" and predicted a "quick decision" at the party assembly in New York in July.

Despite Carter's reiterated pleas to drop public discussion of his controversial "ethnic purity" statement, it preceded him here.

Carter showed up at a wild rally at the union hall accompanied by black Detroit Mayor Coleman A. Young and United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock, who flanked him at the rostrum as he addressed 500 beer-drinking supporters.

"I don't think we're going to have a deadlocked convention," Carter said between bursts of applause. "It would be a political miracle if we did. It hasn't happened in 50 years. I think we'll have a quick decision on the first or second ballot."

Ford

By RICHARD GROWALD
The President flew late Saturday night to Amarillo for the last stop of his first Texas campaign swing. A crowd estimated by police at 8,000 greeted him at Amarillo's airport with a shout: "Howdy, Mr. President." They had practiced the chant for 30 minutes.

One of Ford's strongest speeches on his peace policy came at a bicentennial celebration before El Paso's war memorial. He pledged "to reduce world tensions, through patience and perseverance rather than increase those tensions with hot words or rash threats."

Humphrey

By HORTENSE MYERS
INDIANAPOLIS (UPI)—Hubert H. Humphrey said Saturday "I will win" if he is the Democratic nominee for President this year.

"I am not a candidate, by that I mean I am not seeking the nomination of the Presidency," Humphrey told reporters.

"I have no national organization. If my party likes me and doesn't have anybody else they want to turn to in New York, I am ready. If I am the candidate, I will win, make no mistake about it."

Reagan

SEATTLE (UPI)—Ronald Reagan, ignoring President Ford's rebuttal of his claims of U.S. military weakness, brought his attack on the administration to Seattle Saturday.

He said the balance of power has been shifting in favor of the Soviet Union during the years of "detente."

Reagan said Gen. Fred C. Weyand, Army chief of staff, told the House Armed Services Committee, "In the event of a conflict, our Army deployments would be too little and too late." "Is this the 'peace through strength' of which Mr. Ford speaks?" Reagan asked.

Udall

By PETER A. BROWN
WEST HAVEN, Conn. (UPI)—Morris Udall campaigned in Connecticut Saturday, telling liberal voters he is their only alternative to a conservative president and picking up a prominent progressive group's support.

"I'm the only thing standing between a choice for the American people between Gerald Ford, Scoop Jackson and Jimmy Carter," he said.

Wallace

By JOANNA FIRESTONE
DETROIT (UPI)—Alabama Gov. George Wallace returned Saturday to the state that gave him his most resounding 1972 primary victory, insisting that his latest bid for the Democratic presidential nomination is still very much alive.

Wallace was greeted by a subdued crowd of just 150 supporters at Metropolitan Airport—much smaller than the throngs he drew en route to his first primary victory in a northern industrial state in 1972.

"Despite what you read in your Detroit papers, our campaign is strong," Wallace said.

MOO, PRETTY—A cow seems to be checking out the efforts of Chattanooga rural landscape artist Hubert Shuprine, whose concentration doesn't appear broken by the presence of the surprise visitor. Eleanor Davies, a photographer for a Chattanooga newspaper, caught the action while doing a feature assignment on the artist.

Nine Months

HERAKLION, Crete (UPI)—A court of misdemeanors Saturday convicted an American soldier of public insults and sentenced him to nine months imprisonment.

The soldier, identified by police as Guy G. Bankley on temporary assignment at the nearby U.S. communications base of Gournies, admitted scribbling a four-letter word on a wall of the hotel.

Suicide Trained Dolphins

MOSCOW (UPI)—A Soviet newspaper charged the U.S. Navy Saturday with training dolphins to carry out kamikaze-like suicide missions for the military.

Red Star, the Soviet Army daily, said the "education" of the sea animals took place in San Diego, Calif., at the Marine Life Sciences Department of the Navys Center for Underwater Research.

"Dolphins with knives attached to their flippers are taught there to fight with underwater divers," the newspaper said.

In other departments of the center the teaching was more sophisticated—and more dangerous.

"There, marine animals are turned into kamikazes," according to Krasnaya Zvezda. "They are loaded with explosives and taught to intercept enemy ships and submarines."

The newspaper said experiments at the center by "Pentagon militarists" were not popular in the United States.

Ready For More Rail Traffic?

Much has happened to the railroads serving Greenville and Pitt County in recent years. Seaboard and Atlantic Coast Line merged to form a stronger railroad.

More recently Southern Railway acquired Norfolk and Southern. Southern is in the process of rebuilding the old Norfolk and Southern rails and the general consensus is that it will all mean improved rail service locally, which will be good for industrial and business interests in the county.

It will also mean more rail traffic coming through Greenville, however, and for that reason we feel that municipal authorities should be working with the railroads now to improve on safety features at various grade crossings throughout the city. There are three places where railroads cross Greenville Boulevard and Memorial Drive, for instance. While these crossings are protected by lights and or gates, we can see that underpasses are needed. Berkeley Road needs signal lights, (at Elmhurst School). Outside the city limits the rail crossing on 14th Street east of Greenville Boulevard and crossings in Brook Valley are becoming more hazardous.

The most recent development locally is the proposal by Seaboard Coast Line to buy land from the Redevelopment Commission in the Pitt-Wyatt Street area where Southern and Seaboard tracks cross. Seaboard wants to construct a connector between the two railroads there to gain access to the rich phosphate mining area at Aurora. The need for the connector is obvious, of course, but city officials should make certain that there are adequate sidings available to switch trains from one track to the other before the land sale is made final. There could be considerable rail traffic from Aurora coming through Greenville in the future and we should make certain that streets are not to be blocked for long periods while the trains are transferred from the Southern tracks to Seaboard's.

We feel that now is the time to get those assurances—before the land is sold and traffic starts backing up.

Actually, if your personal linen didn't bring such nifty prices, we might be a little embarrassed about this rip-off."

Rural Refuse Collection System Needed

The county commissioners have purchased 26 additional acres for the county landfill on Allen Road and Stansburg Road.

Obviously the county is in the land fill business to stay, but we still need some type of refuse collection system for rural residents.

Now the land fill is there, but all trash has to be hauled to it. A county-wide fee system could be instituted for collection of trash, or Dumpsters, could be placed in strategic spots around the county.

This service is needed, and even essential if we are going to stop the practice of dumping trash in rural areas.

Flaherty Mince No Words

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Easily qualifying as the most outspoken candidate so far in the gubernatorial scurry, David T. Flaherty has set the tone for his bid for the Republican nomination early in the race.

On controversial points, he took these stands as he announced his candidacy:

—Capital Punishment: "I believe in the death penalty, and it must be exercised if we are going to reduce crime." Would he put to death those awaiting execution, in view of the fact that Gov. James E. Holshouser has not done so? "Well... I would," Flaherty says sharply.

—Taxes: An increase is not needed for pay raises, and while he wouldn't pledge no increased taxes if elected, he feels state agencies can easily trim spending enough to produce the same amount of money ($50 to $75 million) which a tax hike could.

—Holshouser: Flaherty says he is "absolutely divorced from this administration" and the governor has told him he will not get involved. Of Holshouser's chief aide, Gene Anderson, Flaherty says "Anderson is not coming into my campaign... or into my office."

—Ethics: If elected he would "establish a tough ethics code for the Executive branch... (and)... tolerate neither the appearance nor the reality of unethical conduct on my personal staff or in my administration. Those who cannot abide by this rule will not work for me." Flaherty says he is talking about the Holshouser as well as previous administrations in denouncing unethical acts by administration officials.

Flaherty is the second Republican entry in the race, with Coy C. Privette of Kannapolis already officially running. Jacob F. Alexander will announce his entry in late April.

Democrats

Lt. Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr., made his official entry into the race for the Democratic nomination for governor this week, rounding out the field.

Previously announced are State Senator Thomas E. Strickland of Goldsboro, and Charlotte businessman Edward M. O'Herron.

There has been an interesting contrast of announcement styles among the candidates.

Strickland rather casually began talking about running, then firmed up his intentions in an interview reported in this column a year ago. His formal entry came at a Raleigh press conference.

O'Herron held a Raleigh press conference to announce his intention to run, then barnstormed the state by airplane on announcement day holding airport press conferences in several cities.

Hunt wrestled with whether to make his announcement at home in Wilson where the homefolk are excited about the first native son bid for the governorship from that county, or in Raleigh where the press coverage is greater.

He decided on a Raleigh press conference in the morning, followed by a Wilson celebration that night, complete with a sit-down dinner cooked by the ladies from Wilson, entertainment, and a speech from the candidate.

First Filed

Amidst all the announcing of late, Secretary of State Thad Eure was first in line to pay his filing fee — at precisely noon, Monday, April 5.

Wearing the traditional straw hat which he wears on April 5 to honor his father's birth date, Eure opened the official filing period which will run until May 28.

Candidates for governor, lieutenant governor, Council of State posts, top judicial offices and seats in the U.S. House of Representatives file with the State Board of Elections.

Candidates for the General Assembly (all 170 seats are open), county boards of commissioners, and district judge or district attorney posts file with county boards of elections.

Sunday Morning Notes

Someone in a local restaurant read of the death of Howard Hughes, the reclusive billionaire, last week. Hughes was said to be one of the richest men in the world at the time of his death. But after a glamorous life in his youth he disappeared from public view and lived his last years virtually unseen.

He died enroute by air to a hospital. As the man read the story, a pensive look came over his face. "I'm richer than he is," the man commented.

It's all in how you measure wealth.

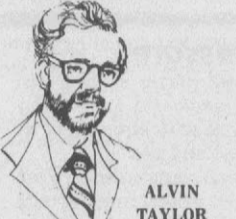

District Attorney Eli Bloom tells about the shooting victim who testified that the bullet hit her in the arm and then "crocheted" into her stomach.

And a man who testified that he had not been able to find anyone to "calculate" his speedometer.

Two men were comparing vitamins in a local store. Each had a brand he preferred and they studied the various vitamins, minerals and amounts each contained. Suddenly one of them chuckled. "We're showing our age," he laughed, "when we start comparing our vitamins." Beats discussing aches and pains.

An unknown outside of China, Hau Kuo-feng has been named by Mao Tse-tung as premier and party first vice chairman.

Other Editors Say Public Opinion

(Washington Daily News)

We read with more than passing concern that tightened up laws against drunken driving have not done the job that was expected or predicted when the new laws were passed in the legislature.

As sources in North Carolina analyze the reasons, the one and over riding fact is that public opinion too often is with the drunken driver. As a result in criminal courts, not as many convictions are realized as sponsors said there would be.

In the first six months of 1972 there were 21,577 persons charged with drunken driving in North Carolina and brought to trial. Of that number only 13,535 or 62.8 percent were found guilty by juries or entered pleas of guilty.

Then in 1975 for the first six months under tighter drunken driving laws, 20,804 persons were arrested and charged with drunken driving. Of that number only 13,191 were found guilty or entered guilty pleas. That was 63.4 percent or hardly more than the same period three years earlier.

It is possibly true that the general public does have a lenient attitude toward persons charged with drunken driving. After all, as one newspaper has pointed out quite effectively, a lot of people look at the one charged with this offense and say "but for the grace of God, there go I." That approach and that feeling certainly combine in a court room.

Maybe one basic reason could be that the general public has not been sufficiently educated on the dangers of drunken driving. It is impossible to explain such a menace to someone who has lost a loved one because a drunken driver took to the highway and had a wreck, killing others.

While some District Attorneys have complained about a shortage of breathalyzers, generally we do not believe that this complaint is justified very often.

The charge that politics plays a part in every trial, or that guilt or innocence might depend on the popularity of the defendant or the lawyer can be heard in some cases.

Taking everything into consideration, we suspect that we get right back to this thing we call public opinion. When the rank and file citizenship of North Carolina wishes to take more stringent steps regarding drunken driving in our state, then things will happen.

They hardly will happen until then. Public opinion is a mighty weapon, and we cannot escape that fact.

If there's anything more difficult than avoiding getting Greenville, N. C. mixed up with Greenville, S. C., its getting our local university identified properly in other areas.

Around here it's pretty well known now that the name is East Carolina University. But along comes news wire service story last week which started off "Eastern Carolina University."

Oh well, call it anything, as long as everyone knows its there.

The beginning of the filing period for county and state offices was marked at noon last Monday. Candidates have until noon May 28 to declare for the various offices for which elections will be held this year.

There was no great rush of candidates the first week, but there will be

"Look out for the stampede," one political observer chuckled. "The crazy season is upon us."

Scars Of War On Highway

By TRAN DAI MINH
HIGHWAY 1, Vietnam (UPI) — In high mountain passes and narrow coastal plains, the wounds of war still show on Highway 1.

But an old farmer, standing alongside the road near Tuy Hoa in central South Vietnam, summed up the feelings of his war-weary people.

"The war is over," he said. "We no longer fear the guns, the South Koreans, the Americans. We have a quiet life just doing our normal work. That is enough."

The war left the main highway of Vietnam scarred. And along its sides are burned-out tanks, trucks, cannons and even helicopters.

The lushness of Vietnam is claiming the useless spoils of war. Green is overgrowing the ugly blacks, browns and olive drabs of the shattered fighting machines.

Highway 1 itself is still wounded. Where sleek, black asphalt once was, dirt and gravel show through the holes.

Yet along her 550 miles between Saigon and Quang Ngai city far to the north, life is taking over from death; signs of peace are winning over. (Continued on page A-5)

THE INSIDE REPORT

Ford's Lebanon Scenario

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The Ford administration has reluctantly come to the conclusion that major armed intervention by Syria into Lebanon would automatically be followed by an Israeli invasion to guarantee keeping southern Lebanon out of Syrian control — raising the ominous specter of another Mideast war.

Fully supported by its new ally Jordan, Syria is known to be considering a "peace force" of up to one armored division for short-term occupation of key areas in central Lebanon. The subsequent Israeli counterinvasion into its undefended northern neighbor would likely yield Israel total control of all southern Lebanon up to the Litani River. That horrifying scenario will confront President Ford if his special emissary, former Ambassador Dean Brown, experiences the same failure that has destroyed every other effort to restore political equilibrium in Lebanon. That would place the Middle East, so soon after quixotic U.S. efforts to arrange step-by-step peace, closer to general conflict than any time since the bloody October 1973 war, with no sure way to avoid it.

Indeed, Lebanon's rapid descent into uncontrollable disorder may now be beyond redemption, despite heroic efforts by President Hafez Assad of Syria. Assad is standing not only against extreme left Lebanese socialists, the miniscule Lebanese Communist party and the most radical elements of the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO). He is also aligned against his long-time ally, the Soviet Union, which is slipping small arms and other equipment to the extreme left.

Top officials in the Ford administration gave Assad high marks for his efforts thus far. Yet the U.S. has let it be clearly known that if Assad takes the very grave step of major military intervention, U.S. pressure against Israel's doing the same thing in the south would count for nothing.

Such a two-stage intervention would inevitably plunge Israel into war with Syria — a catastrophe with tragic and ironic overtones. Syria's intervention would be for the limited purpose of stemming the far left in Lebanon and restoring political law and order there, which are both goals of Israeli policy. Yet an Israeli government could scarcely survive at home if it ignored a Syrian intervention without a counter-move.

Assad may find intervention impossible to avoid if the on-again, off-again ceasefire in the civil war does not soon produce a new president of Lebanon. The deadline for election of the new president expires April 13, but that time limit could undoubtedly be extended.

If Assad's plan does not work and civil war is resumed by the well-armed political left (headed by

Strength For Today

ESSENCE OF CHRISTIANITY
"Thou shalt love the Lord thy God... and thy neighbor as thyself."

Here we have the core of the Christian gospel as enunciated by Jesus himself. Certainly there are too many creeds in Christendom and too much religion which consists in nothing more than allegiance to some established ritual or in-group. Of course, organization we must have, and certain creedal statements also, but the creed of Jesus was brief and to the point. He prized most what men did about religion rather than what they thought about it. Benjamin Franklin described this kind of religion well when he wrote: "I have received much kindness from men to whom I shall never have any opportunity of making a direct return. And numberless mercies from God, who is infinitely above being benefitted by our services. These kindnesses from men I can therefore only return on their fellow men; and I can only show my gratitude to God for these mercies by a readiness to help his other children and my brethren."

Nuggets For Business Analysis

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Your own analysis sometimes is as valid as that made by those who are paid to dissect statistical America and from it derive insight into our behavior patterns.

There are, in fact, some critics who maintain that government and industry and other gatherers and users of data merely document what people already suspect, because it is people, remember, who make statistics.

With that preface, your interpretation of the following nuggets is invited: —Relatively few industries were strong enough to put together outstanding earnings increases in both 1974 and 1975, the years of the worst recession since the 1930s. That was just too big an order.

But in its Monthly Economic Letter this week, Citibank notes, "Increases in profits of the amusement and entertainment industry were among the largest in both 1974 and 1975, primarily because of the rise in movie attendance." Last year the amusement industry's profits after taxes rose 39 per cent, to $273.9 million from $196.9 million in 1974. Compare that with a 9 per cent decrease for the nation's corporations generally.

The baking industry last year enjoyed a 45 per cent increase in after-tax profits. Soap and cosmetics manufacturers reported a 13 per cent increase, to $811.2 million from $719.6 million.

Your assignment is to determine the reasons why. If you're inclined to list escapism as one of the reasons you'll be in the mainstream of much published analyses, of the phenomenon. —The Conference Board, a nonprofit business and economic research organization based here, reported this week that personal health spending has increased almost tenfold in the past 25 years.

The specific figures: $10.4 billion in 1950 and $103.2 billion in 1975. "While inflation has fueled much of the rise, other important contributing factors have been the increase in population, changing age mix, growing use of medical resources and technological advances," the board said.

To these, one must certainly add the increases in medical industry incomes, some of which were close to the lowest for any major industry before massive union organization efforts began.

But a tenfold increase! Such an investment must show up in the life expectancy tables, and it does. Health figures show life expectancy at birth in 1950 was 68.2 years. Now it is more than 71 years. —The home mortgage delinquency rate, as compiled by the U.S. League of Savings Associations, is now at its highest since June 1966. The league said 1.06 per cent of mortgages were 60 or more days late in February.

At the same time, the league was reporting for January-February the heaviest two-month inflow of savings in history.

One report suggests financial distress, the other affluence. The league attributes the rising delinquency rate to the fact that consumers are now buying cars and other big ticket items they had held off buying during the recession.

You, the consumer, are the person behind those numbers. Do you agree?

—James Kyle

Poll Favors Budget Law

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N.J.—The mood of the electorate this year is clearly one of fiscal conservatism, with voters' views on government spending likely to assume major importance in the post-convention campaign period.

To probe this new mood, the Gallup Poll asked a representative sample of the public to vote on a proposed constitutional amendment that would require Congress to balance the federal budget each year.

The results show as many as eight in 10 voters in favor of such an amendment.

All but three states currently have laws requiring a balanced budget. The size of the Ford administration's proposed budget is $395.8 billion, with a projected deficit of $44.6 billion. The last time the budget was balanced was 1969, when a surplus of $3.2 billion was realized.

Many Economists Favor Deficit Spending

While many economists favor a balanced budget, others would argue that a law to balance the federal budget would be a handicap to the nation in a period of recession, when deficit spending is employed to spur the economy.

As pointed out by Hadley Cantril and Lloyd Free in "Political Beliefs of Americans," the public tends to be conservative on government fiscal matters but liberal on social issues. The election in November will test to a considerable extent which ideology better suits the temperament of the electorate.

Democratic Voters Also Favor Budget Law

In no other presidential election year in recent times has the issue of big government and big spending been so widely debated as it is this year, with the near-bankruptcy of several major U.S. cities undoubtedly contributing to the public's current belt-tightening mood.

Of particular interest is the finding that nearly as large a proportion of Democrats as Republicans favor a law to balance the budget, despite the fact that Republicans have traditionally been more conservative regarding fiscal matters. The crucial bloc of voters who classify themselves as independents hold views closely similar to the views of Republicans and Democrats.

Following are the questions and results. As the response to the second question indicates, only 6 per cent believe it is not important to balance the budget.

"Would you favor or oppose a constitutional amendment that would require Congress to balance the federal budget each year—that is, keep taxes and expenditures in balance?"

	Favor	Oppose	No Opinion
NATIONAL	78%	13%	9%
Republicans	84	9	7
Democrats	78	12	10
Independents	77	16	7

"How important do you think it is to balance the federal budget—very important, fairly important, or not so important?"

	Very	Fairly	Not so	No Opinion
NATIONAL	69%	21%	6%	4%
Republicans	74	20	3	3
Democrats	69	21	6	4
Independents	67	20	9	4

The results reported today are based on in-person interviews with a total of 1,582 adults, 18 and older, in more than 300 scientifically selected localities across the nation during the period March 19-22.

Druze Socialist leader Kamal Jumblatt with help from Moslem and PLO extremists, Assad's political position inside the Arab world will drastically weaken — after a period of ascendancy. That ascendancy followed his success in championing the PLO's dramatic appearance at the United Nations.

Assad still has gotten nothing from the second round of Kissinger's step-by-step diplomacy—no withdrawal of Israel from the Golan Heights, and no hint of it for the future. Worse yet for Assad, the agreement on United Nations troops on the Golan Heights expires next month. Assad fears that, if he again extends the agreement without any hint of eventual Israeli withdrawal, he will show his weakness. His dilemma: not to extend the presence of the UN force could carry serious risks against the militarily more powerful Israelis.

That is why Assad is risking so much on Lebanon: to balance his failure to expel Israel from the Golan Heights with a triumphant salvation of Lebanon from self-destruction. After such a triumph, agreeing to extend the UN force on the Golan would be politically safer.

But the Syrian president has discovered a universal political truth: low-level intervention in a foreign country, no matter how well intentioned, is invariably trickier than it looks.

If Assad now decides he must double his bet and move crack Syrian troops across the border to keep order until a new president and new political order can take over Lebanon, his motives would not be suspect here — but his intervention would signal the partition of Lebanon. That, in turn, would end over two and a half years of relative stability between Israel and the Arabs, and risk another full-scale Middle Eastern war.

Today In History

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, April 11, the 102nd day of 1976. There are 264 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1814, Napoleon Bonaparte abdicated as emperor of France.

On this date: In 1689, William and Mary were crowned king and queen of England.

In 1713, Spain ceded Gibraltar to England.

In 1899, the Philippine Islands were transferred from Spain to the United States.

In 1921, a telephone line between the United States and Cuba was opened by President Warren Harding.

In 1947, Jackie Robinson became the first black man to play for a major league baseball team when he joined with the Brooklyn Dodgers in an exhibition game with the New York Yankees.

At this stage, there are no answers that have any real meaning. In his campaigning, Carter has touched on all problems or issues,

Need Remedy For Case Of Bureaucratic Itch

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

PALM BEACH, Fla.—The nation's "OTC" manufacturers are showing some of the symptoms they are forever telling us about on TV—aches and pains and acid indigestion—and the only remedy in sight is bottled under an old label: Patience. What concerns the manufacturers is a severe case of bureaucratic itch.

Four years ago the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) launched a massive review of medicinal products sold "over the counter." Makers of these products, members of the venerable Proprietary Association, gathered here a few days ago for their annual convention. They heard some good news—on the whole, their three-billion-dollar business is doing nicely—but they heard so much bad news they were drinking scotch on the rocks with Alka-Seltzer on the side.

Their plight involves one more effort by the federal government to play the role of benevolent shepherd. The FDA's undertaking is to review an estimated 100,000 OTC products, to rule upon their safety and effectiveness, and to publicize the experts' findings. These findings then will provide a basis for the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) to control product advertising. The prospect of combined FDA-FTC regulation is enough to give a fellow heartburn.

Thus far, only one of the 17 review panels has completed its work. Last September the FDA released findings of its panel on antacid products. The findings were mixed. Some products made it home free in Category I, which signifies both safety and effectiveness. Some claims were assigned to Category II, which puts them out of the ballpark. And some landed in the limbo of Category III, which means the panel found insufficient evidence to rule one way or another.

The makers of Category I products are naturally pleased. The makers who fell into Category II have one of those awful headaches. The makers whose claims wound up in Category III are suffering afternoon depression. Though the manufacturers have submitted 14,000 volumes of evidence in support of their claims, some claims are almost impossible to prove by the kind of scientifically accepted evidence that scientists demand. How do you prove—empirically, how do you prove—that two tablets of something-or-other will relieve a headache? It isn't easy.

Satisfying the review panels is a serious problem. Satisfying the busy bureaucrats of the FTC may be a worse one. Last November the FTC proposed a rule to this effect: No manufacturer may make any "product claim" in his advertising that has been forbidden in labeling as a result of FDA review.

The rule is superficially reasonable. On closer inspection, the FTC proposal falls into the chasm that separates the rarefied world of the academic laboratory from the mundane world of the spicy meatball. For example: The panel on antacid products lumped into the unproven Category III all claims that the products under review would help such ailments as "gas," "indigestion," "full feeling," or "upset stomach." The expert gastro-enterologists felt the terms were not susceptible to precise definition. The FTC therefore would ban any such advertising as false and misleading.

But if the gastro-enterologists don't know what is meant by an "upset stomach," the fellow who has eaten a seven-course Greek dinner, washed down by that paint-thinner wine they drink over there, knows precisely what it is. The makers of antacid products would like to aim their advertising at relieving his stomach distress, but the FTC would say no.

It will be two or three years before all the FDA-FTC rules become final. The outcome probably will be of general benefit to consumers; it almost surely will be welcomed by TV viewers who find many of the OTC commercials off-putting; but it will likely distress those who believe the government should play only a very limited role in the marketplace. The manufacturer of home remedies sees his freedom diminishing, and no wonder: The government is out to eat the whole thing.

Something More Than Arms Up His Sleeves If Carter Hopes To Win

By GEORGE BRYANT, JR.

One sure thing about Jimmy Carter: He is parading a charm across the Democratic stage that has been missing since youthful John Kennedy picked up all the political marbles in 1960.

This is not to say that Carter will repeat the Kennedy feat. But from what appeared to be a futile start a few months back, he has caught and passed other Democratic contenders, most of them badly shorn. The performance surprised political writers and is up-setting to interests long entrenched in Washington.

Carter has pulled this off with good looks and great personal charm, plus the fact that he is not identified with the current crop of "made in Washington" problems. What's more he has managed to stay free, at least publicly, of special interest commitments.

In fact, his tactics are somewhat akin to those of Kennedy, who also offered a fresh, clean-looking face and a friendly smile, but stayed free of detailed solutions to problems; the hard promises which so often come back to haunt politicians. Kennedy made a myth of the idea that a Roman Catholic couldn't win. Carter is challenging the notion that a Southerner can't win.

Whatever it is that Carter has going for him, it is going strong. According to the Gallup poll, only 4 percent of rank-and-file Democrats listed him as their choice for the party nomination and the presidency. A couple of months, and several primaries later, this low rating has soared to 30 percent.

This puts Carter ahead of the entire field. He not only has passed such rivals as George Wallace and Henry Jackson, he has gone ahead of Hubert Humphrey. Humphrey now fears that there might be no deadlocked convention to turn to him and is considering throwing his badly rumpled campaign hat into the ring.

Carter may yet be derailed. Much can happen between now and July, when Democrats gather in New York to pick their White House candidate. But Carter's prospects now are promising enough that questions about what kind of President he would make are being raised.

At this stage, there are no answers that have any real meaning. In his campaigning, Carter has touched on all problems or issues, such as job-making, energy, busing, big government, big spending, health, housing and foreign affairs. He leaves the impression that he would change many things, for the better, of course. But he stops short of offering specific programs.

So, when you dig back through what he has said, including the statement he made December 12, when he announced his candidacy at the National Press Club in Washington you come up with little that can be weighed or measured.

It's easy to get the impression that Carter is somewhere nearer center than either Jackson or Humphrey both of whom place great reliance on government and government spending to solve all the problems. But this is only an impression. It may be that what Carter means is that he would do many of the same things, but in a more effective and less confusing fashion.

But if Carter does get the nomination, he is going to have to talk some turkey. Party platforms don't mean a whole lot. But then, it is difficult for a candidate, or a President, to simply repudiate them, or even ignore them.

This is especially true when a candidate has a sitting President as an opponent. The challenger is in the position of running against a record and this calls for specifics. Also, what is said in the showdown for the White House gets much more attention than what a candidate says while seeking nomination.

There now seems little doubt that President Ford will win the Republican nomination. And Ford won't be an easy mark for whatever Democrat is put against him, Carter included.

Continued recovery will tend to blunt what Democrats had seen as their best issue. And with the nation in its current mood, proposals to increase spending, which means increasing the inflation-making deficits, can't be counted on as vote getting propositions. Ford can make it pretty tough for any Democrat who claims he can improve White House-Congress relations without opening the floodgates.

Carter has made it thus far mostly by charm and the look of political freshness. But to go all the way, he will have to show he has more up his sleeves than his arms.

the reminders of war.

The French built Highway 1 from Phnom Penh to Hanoi, through Saigon, to link the richest and most important parts of a rich and important colony called Indochina. Later they were to call the part around Hue the Street Without Joy.

Americans paved a good part of it, painted white lines down the middle and widened it on the flats, banked the curves.

But it is Vietnamese now. Its villagers are forgetting about the battles which raged along and beside it, more interested in getting the farm-work done than in recalling the bad old days.

Green is everywhere now. And red, as peasants and villagers replace the temporary homes with tile and brick.

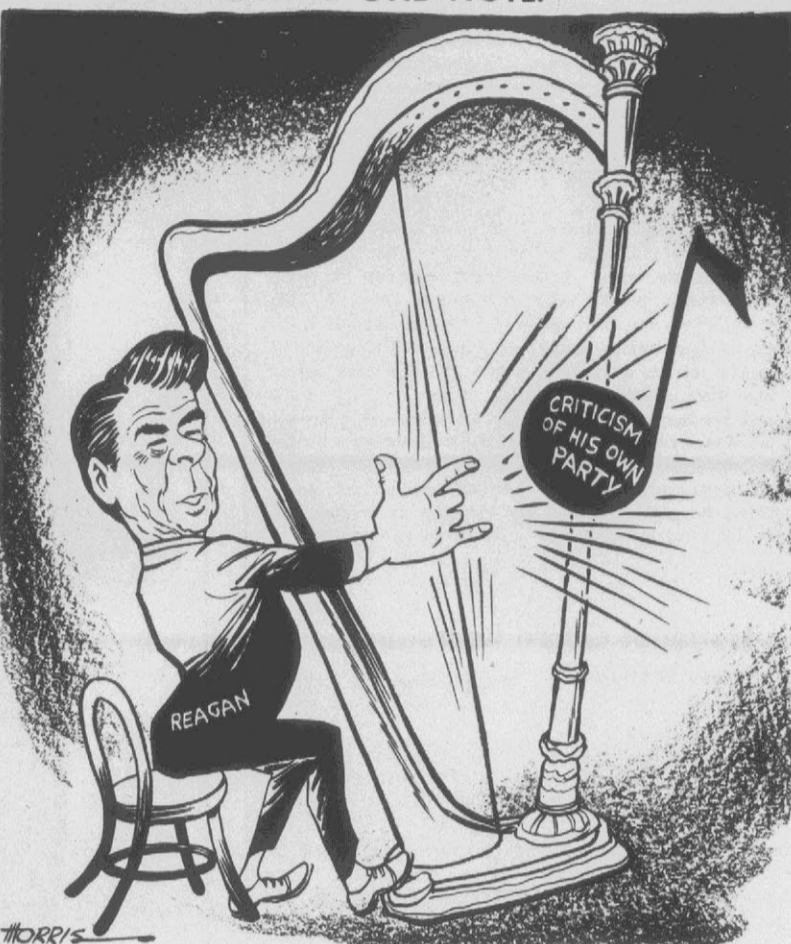

Farmers work their fields under the sun of the hot season. Fishermen slowly pole their sampans. Women walk to the village markets to buy and sell. What happened a year ago seems the furthest thing from their minds.

The police checkpoints have gone, bulldozed away in many cases to symbolize the finality of their passing. Most of the militia outposts along the wayside are unmanned.

Alongside the highway, hundreds of youths work to repair the Hanoi-Saigon rail line, Vietnam's major reunification project. Here, a bulldozer nibbles at a hill to help build a dam. There, villagers repair a bridge, fill a bomb crater.

That Extra Bedroom Is Just A Natural Hazard

I've always envied people who could make good use out of an extra bedroom. I sit there and drool over those luscious pictures in decorator magazines of combination guest bedroom-studies full of beautiful furniture, effective window treatments, and organization. Unfortunately, most people's extra bedrooms do not display these features — most people's extra bedrooms are either full of the failures of planned parenthood and/or full of junk.

Our extra bedroom fits into the last category. Anything we can't find a place for in any other part of the house, we heave into the extra bedroom. Now, obviously this creates a problem when we have overnight guests.

There's no way for any human being to sleep comfortably on a bed covered with old magazines, ailing geraniums, and unironed shirts — in short, covered with everything except sheets. It's the window that's covered with sheets.

So when my parents told us they were coming for a visit, we realized that something had to be done. Finally, last Saturday Phillip and I got up our nerve and prepared for the struggle ahead. As we stood surveying the room from the door, Phillip said,

"It's going to have to be done sometime," I answered bravely. "Better now, when there's only a seven-month build-up of stuff to clear out."

"I'd rather clear out a parking lot in the Amazon jungle," he muttered, taking up his broom and slashing his way through trailing cobwebs and underdust. "Ouch! I've been attacked!"

"By what?!"

"Well, it's either an alligator or an ironing board." He began throwing wrinkled clothes around the room. "Aha! Here it is!" he shouted. "When was the last time you fed this thing? It's out for blood!"

"Would you shut up and do something constructive?" I muttered, picking up two pairs of split underwear and a purple gym sock. "Hey, I thought I threw this out months ago."

"Okay," he called after me. "But if I'm not out of here in three days, you can assume I've been captured."

When I returned twenty minutes later, I found him standing (in his gym socks, of course) in the middle of a perfectly spotless room. Even the top of the dresser was visible. I was absolutely amazed at his ability to effect such a transformation — that is, until I noticed that the bed was standing five feet off the floor.

"Great," I sighed. "Now all we need is a stepladder so that my parents can climb to the top of the bed at night. Couldn't you find some other place to put all that stuff?"

"Picky, picky, picky," he answered. "But I'll tell you what, I'll get rid of all the other junk, if you'll iron all of these clothes."

Picky, picky, picky.

Principles Of Justice Are Clear—Until You Are On A Jury

EDITOR'S NOTE — Bill Simmons, an Associated Press newsman, recently did jury duty at the U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of Arkansas. This is an account of his experience.

By BILL SIMMONS

Associated Press Writer
LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Basic American tenets: (1) The guilty should be punished; (2) the innocent should go free.

As principles of justice, the ideas are black and white—until the government contends A, the defense contends Z, and you, as juror, must judge.

That came as a surprise to me in the three cases I judged as a juror for the U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of Arkansas. But I shouldn't have been surprised: if the facts spelled it all out in black and white, so that guilty or innocent was readily discernible, who would need a jury?

Even in what the judge termed "a simple case," the evidence was contradictory, and frustrating to people weighing the fate of a human being.

A young law student on one of my three juries cast the only vote for acquittal when the jury took a peremptory vote. He explained that he had served on several other juries which reached verdicts of "guilty" and was tired of convicting people. He later changed his mind and the jury reached a verdict of guilty.

In another case, one juror who refused to join 11 others in a vote for acquittal insisted that the defendant, who did not testify, would have taken the stand if he had not had something to hide. That one ended in a hung jury. In the third case, we agreed to convict.

A man in his mid-20s

bought a gun. A federal form filled out during the sale said the man never was convicted of a felony. Actually, he had. The charge was "causing a false statement to be made" on the form.

The man said he didn't put down the answers and didn't see the answers on the form when he signed it. The seller, who put down the answers, said he put down what the buyer told him.

The defendant's typewritten statement became his undoing in the jurors' eyes. It mentioned the purchase of a second gun at a second store in the same town on the same day. No more evidence was introduced about this second transaction.

The jury concluded that the second transaction would back up the government because otherwise, the defense would have used it. It was decided that the prosecution was legally unable to use the evidence.

Verdict: guilty.

An escapee from a federal facility was charged with the federal crime of crossing a state line in a car he knew was stolen at the moment the line was crossed.

The defendant contended that the line had been crossed and his companion said, "Well, we made it," before he realized they were stealing the car.

The jury decided that the lack of any apparent funds for purchase of a car, the defendant's status as an escapee and bits of information about alleged earlier attempts to acquire a vehicle suggested a general pattern of criminal conduct.

Verdict: guilty.

The defendant was accused of violating the federal law against possession of unregistered shotguns with short barrels — sawed-off shotguns. He didn't testify. Police said the gun was in a briefcase in a car the defendant had driven to a restaurant parking lot, where the arrest was made.

No evidence was submitted to show that the gun, the briefcase, or the car belonged to the defendant. Police said the arrest followed a call for them to investigate a disturbance. The jury was told almost nothing more about the disturbance, particularly whether the defendant had anything to do with it.

Verdict: Hung jury, by a vote of 11 for acquittal, one for conviction.

There is a bit of tension when you return to the court to stand before the defendant, the government attorneys, and the judge to tell them what you have decided.

You are glad that the standard for a verdict is being convinced beyond a reasonable doubt, rather than beyond the shadow of a doubt. I recall that one of the defendants, when convicted, nodded. Was it admission that justice had prevailed? Or that the system had produced the verdict he had cynically expected?

Two Day Energy Workshop Scheduled

The U. S. Energy Research and Development Administration will present a Citizens' Workshop on Energy and the Environment in Greenville, on Tuesday, April 13. The workshop is being sponsored by Pitt Technical Institute.

The program will be conducted by Dr. Thomas W. Richardson of the Department of Chemistry at North Georgia College. Dr. Richardson received B.S. and M.S. degrees from the University of Texas, and a Ph.D. degree from the University of Florida. He is a member of the American Chemical Society.

"Citizens' Workshops have already been conducted in almost every major U.S. city for over 40,000 participants," said Dr. Richardson.

"The highlight of the presentation is the Energy-Environment Simulator, a specially designed electronic computer which enables workshop participants to play the roles of energy decision-makers."

The Energy-Environment Simulator, which is programmed with data about the current energy situation, speeds time by a rate of 100 years a minute. This "time machine" responds to the decisions of the players by displaying new information on the control panel. Buzzers and flashing lights indicate energy shortages and harmful environmental effects. The game ends when supplies of coal, oil and natural gas are exhausted.

Citizens' Workshops were developed for the ERDA by Oak Ridge Associated Universities, a nonprofit educational and research corporation of 42 southern universities and colleges.

Presentations will be made in the Greenville area as follows: Monday, April 12: Carolina Today T. V. Show, 7:30 a.m. and Greenville City Hall, 3rd floor, conference room for Greenville Utilities, city employees, and interested public; 10:00 a.m. Contact John Schofield.

Orders Study On Class Dropping

RALEIGH (AP)—President William C. Friday of the University of North Carolina system has ordered a study of the class dropping situation at the 16 campuses of the state university system.

The order followed reports of widespread class dropping by students at North Carolina State University in Raleigh. Because students may drop courses without penalty until late into a semester, there are many of them taking longer than four years to graduate in a time when university enrollments are being limited because of overcrowding.

Recommendations by the NCSU faculty to deal with the situation brought student dissent and a call for a student strike on Tuesday. The students protested an effort by the faculty to force students to take at least a minimum class load. To graduate in four years, a student must average a course load of 15 or 16 hours a semester.

The faculty recommended that students be allowed to drop courses without penalty only within the first two weeks of a 16-week semester. They now can drop courses up to nine weeks after the semesters begins without a mark against their record.

NCSU officials say the university is committed to tightened drop requirements but that the new policy will probably not be as stringent as the one proposed by the faculty.

Bloom Of Pakistan's Poppies Alert U.S. Agents

By JOHN NEEDHAM
PESHAWAR, Pakistan (UPI)—In the valleys hidden amid steep mountains north of this provincial capital, the white and pink flowers of the opium poppy are starting to bloom.
 The blooms are an alert signal to law enforcement agents from a number of Western countries, especially the United States. They are watching to see if the opium is refined into morphine base and then into heroin and, if so, who is doing it and where it is going.
 One Westerner, who believes Pakistan has the potential to supply all the heroin the world demands, said, "We expect in the near future we'll see heroin refining factories in Pakistan."
 So far, no Pakistani opium or its derivatives, morphine and heroin, is known to have entered the United States.
 But large quantities of marijuana, hashish and hashish oil have reached America and one official estimates that 50 per cent of the hash and hash oil reaching Britain originates in Pakistan.
 "One liter of hash oil (slightly less than a quart) that costs $5,000 here brings $80,000 in the states," said one insider.

 In the past, most Pakistani opium has been used at home or smuggled into Iran, which is said to have more heroin addicts than the United States, despite harsh penalties, including death.
 But Western officials here worry that if the crackdown on opium growing in Turkey is successful, and the flow from the "Golden Triangle" area of Southeast Asia is stemmed, major syndicates might turn to Pakistan.
 There is evidence some have begun to do so already.
 "In Lyallpur the government found a setup that included a college-educated chemist," one source said. "They had eight machines and were putting out 1,000 morphine sulphate pills a minute."
 "You can get them for $400 to $500 per 1,000 pills here and in Britain get $8 a shot. You can make a pretty good bundle on a couple of million tabs."
 Growing limited quantities of opium is not illegal in Pakistan. Even if it were, the central government has little control over some of the northern tribes.

 Peshawar, the capital of Pakistan's northwest frontier province, is about 200 miles northwest of Lyallpur. North of Peshawar are tribal areas, where the central government can persuade, but not coerce, because central law does not extend to that area.
 That's where the "Dirty Dozen" operates.
 Western agents know of 12 key Pakistanis — whom they call "the dirty dozen" — who will arrange to smuggle opium from the tribal areas to other countries.
 "If we try to put an undercover agent in there to make a buy, the tribal chief demands cash in advance and delivery in the tribal area," one source said. "That doesn't do us any good."
 The United States has four agents from the Drug Enforcement Agency in Pakistan: two in Islamabad, the capital, and two in the port city of Karachi.
 In May of 1974 one DEA agent in Islamabad was hustled out when officials learned some German smugglers had offered $50,000 to have him killed.

Since then, sources say, it has been quiet, without even an offer of a bribe, indicating the growers and smugglers are hardly intimidated by the DEA men.
 U.S. officials do feel they are making some progress. Nearly $1 million in Agency for International Development (AID) funds has gone to aid Pakistan's narcotics control program.
 Farmers are being urged to try other crops, such as tobacco, or, for instance, get together and start a match factory, instead of cultivating opium.

 The Islamabad government has cut the number of acres on which opium can be legally grown from 3,600 two years ago to 2,700 this year. But the limits apply only in areas which are under its control — not the tribal lands.
 AID has also helped provide trucks and cars for field investigation units of the Pakistan Narcotics Control Board. The aim is to catch smugglers as they emerge from the tribal areas with their contraband or when they take possession of it in an area controlled by central law.
 All told, however, Western officials feel that until Pakistan itself is more concerned about the problem, their efforts will be mostly futile.
 Because opium use is legal in Pakistan, many officials have a "so what" attitude.
 Financiers of illegal opium pay farmers cash in advance before the crop is planted. Rain or shine, feast or famine, the farmer gets his money, often the difference between feeding his family or starving.
 When the harvest comes, after the flower has bloomed and the petals have fallen, the pod of the poppy is lanced and the gummy opium begins to ooze out. It is white at first, then turns dark brown.
 Migrant laborers are hired to harvest the crop, just as migrants in the United States pick potatoes or tomatoes. The migrants also do the lancing and the later collecting. New jobs would have to be found for them, too, if the government launched a crackdown.

 Even outside tribal areas, most judges are sympathetic to a man growing a little opium to try to support his family, letting him go with a light fine.
 "The judicial system leaves a lot to be desired," one Western source said. "You can get more for parking next to a fire hydrant in New York than you get for smuggling opium here."

The Legendary Sand Dollar

According to the story, the five holes in the Sand Dollar represent the five wounds of Christ. The Easter Lily appears on the front, its center a five pointed star. On the back, the outline of the Poinsettia reminds us of his birthday. When broken, the shell reveals five Doves of Peace. Here the entire story of the Sand Dollar is cast in precious sterling silver, $25.

Smaller, Less Starry-Eyed Peace Corps At Work

By MINDY YOCHELSON
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Peace Corps is 15 years old and the celebrated government agency, born in the Kennedy era, has changed with the times. For one thing, it's smaller and less visible.

"When I tell people I work for the Peace Corps, their usual response is, 'I didn't realize it was still in existence,'" says Charles "Woody" Jewett, an agency placement officer and former volunteer in Ethiopia.

Jewett, now 32 and married, joined the Peace Corps one week after his graduation with a bachelor's degree in English from Hobart College at Geneva, N.Y., in 1966.

"I had always been fascinated by Africa, game parks, animals," he said.

He spent three months at UCLA training for a teaching position in Ethiopia with 100 other volunteers his age.

"I was caught up in a very idealistic time," he said. "Everyone was excited as hell by the idea of going over and being a teacher."

Volunteerism was at its peak. The Peace Corps had 15,556 volunteers in 48 countries, 912 of them in Ethiopia. Students were flocking to campus recruiting booths, lured by the promise of overseas travel, enriching experiences and — until 1970 — Vietnam draft deferments.

"Our attitude was 'come, we'll find something for you,'" one official remembered.

President Lyndon B. Johnson and Vice President Hubert Humphrey were two of the agency's biggest supporters. Its $114 million budget was a record high.

Once overseas, says Raphael "Skip" Semms, "the treatment they often received was just tremendous. They were viewed on par with an ambassador."

Semms also volunteered 10 years ago. Today, at age 33, he is director of the Independent Foundation, a private, nonprofit organization of former Peace Corps and VISTA (Volunteers in Service to America) volunteers.

At the Ethiopian airport, Jewett was assigned to a junior high school in a small town.

"There was the feeling that one person working within the Peace Corps could do something great," he said.

"As it turned out, it was a very naive, unrealistic feeling. There was such a limited number of people you had any superficial contact with."

Today there 6,690 volunteers — fewer than half the number a decade ago — spread over 68 countries, 20 more than in 1966.

Only 33 volunteers now work in Ethiopia. Anti-Americanism and strong nationalistic sentiment there, as in other politically turbulent developing countries, has contributed to the decline in volunteer ranks.

The Peace Corps has been asked to leave eight countries since Jewett and Semms joined 10 years ago, although some countries invited the volunteers to return when a new government took over.

Today, volunteers are packing their bags to leave India — at Indira Gandhi's request — and Iran, where the Peace Corps figures the oil-rich host country can finish the job.

The Peace Corps has always attracted young college graduates with liberal arts degrees and few specific skills. In the past, these "B.A. generalists" were trained to do a variety of chores.

They still represent a large percentage of applicants, one official said, but they face "fantastic competition for a limited amount of spaces."

By 1969, countries further along in development began saying they wanted only volunteers with sophisticated levels of technical skills — "not just classroom teachers but teacher trainers," said one Peace Corps spokesman.

This pushed the average volunteer age up (to 27.2 years), and the number of eligible applicants down.

Nowadays, recruiters must approach labor unions and professional organizations seeking instructors in agriculture, plumbing, carpentry and engineering. They find it tough to "sell" the Peace Corps to craftsmen whose skills are in demand at home.

The eligible manpower pool is further restricted when applicants sometimes are required to have prior knowledge of a language or single marital status.

The Peace Corps is experimenting with new recruiting and training methods. Currently, interested applicants are matched with specific two-year assignments, much as employment agencies operate.

Training, more cultural and technical, takes place in the host country. One official remembers the early days when volunteer training meant "swinging from vines and jogging around the Georgetown University campus" in Washington.

The corps's $77.6 million budget is about half the 1966 level. "Inflation overseas has killed us — mainly in terms of air travel and other fuel costs," says Jewett.

Semms said, "No one at the highest levels of the administration today is very sympathetic to volunteerism in general. No one right now has been closely involved, so there's a lack of advocacy for Peace Corps."

In July, 1971, President Nixon consolidated the corps and five other volunteer agencies under a new umbrella agency called ACTION.

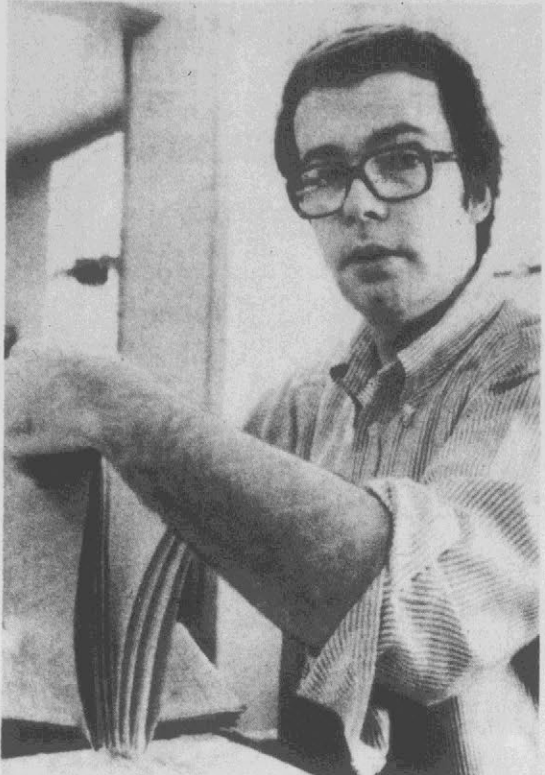

"It looked good on paper but those ACTION officials who testified before Congress within the past year proved they saved no money and probably spent more under the new structure in administrative overhead," Semms said.

The agency is aimed at helping the very poorest of countries. More programs will be geared to women, one official said, because of their "second-class citizen status in most countries," and new attention will be paid to food production and forestry.

But things have not changed entirely. "I still think there's a certain amount of enthusiasm. You can capture it in the letters they write," Jewett said.

He smiled. "If we can get a good match between an applicant who's skilled and dedicated to a particular assignment, then fantastic!" he said.

Movie Buffs' Heaven Is Up Stairway

By ROBERT D. INDERMAN DALLAS (UPI) — Nestled between a discount liquor store catering to the winos of Harwood Street and an aging laundry is one of North Texas' most exclusive shops.

A battered, wooden door bears the hand-painted logo Duncan Poster Service. And movie buffs find heaven is a short trip up a dusty, cluttered stairway.

Inside nine dark, rotting rooms rests a vast repository of original movie posters stripped from the marquees of a hundred nameless theaters and occasionally faded black-and-white stills which led generations of movie goers to pay the price of a ticket.

For $1, a patron can walk out the door with an original 5-by-4 foot poster of his favorite movie. For $3 — the top price of any item in the store — he can have the cardboard backed version.

Note the term original. Bo Duncan, the ageless, gray-haired curator of the musty stacks, is simply appalled when a customer asks for a reproduction instead of the real thing.

"You can buy copies at the five-and-dime," he said. "The people who come here want the real thing. That's my business. Copies are other people's business."

Duncan has spent almost his entire life surrounded by film memorabilia. He took his first job in 1924 — at the age of 16 — in a film poster shop.

"I dropped out of high school," he said. "I was lucky to get a job."

But despite his extensive collection, Duncan never sets foot in a movie house.

"I watch some movies on television. I've got passes," he said, "but I never go."

The answer must suffice. Duncan returns to his favorite chair and reads the newspaper, a stance regular customers recognize as the signal to begin browsing.

Customers are left to their own devices in the multitude of stacks and they may browse at their own speed. The rooms are climate controlled — drafty and cold in winter and hot and humid in the summer.

poster on the dozens of ceiling high book shelves can be quite a job, but never a chore.

"They browse and browse and then someone will scream 'wow' and come running out of the backroom dancing. They forget what they came for and end up buying something else," said Duncan, who fills orders from as far away as Lebanon and South Africa.

It's an inviting world of famous as well as obscure films. Bob Steele never rivaled Randolph Scott for popularity, but his westerns are heavily chronicled in Duncan's shop. Fred MacMurray would probably like to forget the schmaltzy comedy "Kallaway Went Thataway," but the colorful poster greets visitors as they enter the shop door.

The material on Duncan's shelves dates from the 1929 version of "She Goes to War" to this year's "All the President's Men."

"Demands now are heavy on material from 'Cabaret' and any film with Humphrey Bogart, Robert Redford or Barbra Streisand," Duncan said. "And of course Elvis Presley."

Science fiction also sells well and nostalgia parties are taking a heavy toll on 1950s vintage rock and roll movies such as "Rock Around the Clock," "Casablanca" and "King Kong" have been picked clean. The last stills of Fay Wray disappeared long ago.

Roy Rogers' posters disappeared from the collection scene within a few years of the King of the Cowboys' retirement. Gene Autry, Johnny Mac Brown and Randolph Scott still flourish in Duncan's collection.

"But we get new posters in all the time," Duncan said. "So you never know. We can be out one week and have one appear the next."

All except one, however. "Deep Throat," the porn spectacular, vanished from the collection scene as soon as Linda Lovelace became a cult creature.

"You can't find an original poster for love or money," he said. "It must have been one real popular movie."

COURTYARD INTRODUCES UNIQUE DESIGN

THREE BEDROOM TRADITIONAL SHOWS HOBBY ROOM, FAMILY ROOM

By Jerry Bishop
Artistically trimmed with iron railings, a spacious courtyard welcomes visitors to this traditionally-styled design. The Harrington, a three bedroom plan, merges the warmth of the past with a current floor plan featuring hobby room, family room, and formal living and dining rooms.

On the exterior, brick, stucco, and half timber siding blend with red cedar shingles and small-paned windows to create an impressive facade. Inside, the emphasis is on space, and all rooms are well-proportioned.

Double doors lead from the courtyard into the gracious foyer, the focus of the traffic pattern for the home. Immediately to the left is the family room, flanked by a half bath and joined by sliding glass doors to the patio. A hobby room, connected to the family room, is furnished with closet space, and is large enough to serve as an extra bedroom, a playroom, or a home office.

Both family room and hobby room provide an entry to the double garage.

To the right of the foyer, the formal living room stretches 22 feet to offer an elegant spot for large parties or intimate gatherings and adjoins the formal dining room. A closet-lined hallway leads from the foyer to the breakfast room, sandwiched between family room and kitchen. The kitchen itself is compact and efficient and specifies space for laundry equipment and plenty of cabinets.

Sleeping space is reserved for the upper floor, which takes in three bedrooms, two full baths, and a liberal sprinkling of closet space. Reflecting the contemporary floor plan, the master bedroom becomes a luxurious retreat. The room accommodates two large closets and borders its own full bath.

The double garage features a side entry to maintain the graceful facade, and the basement includes another 1434 sq. ft. of living or storage space.

Here's the Answer

Q — We're getting ready to pour a concrete driveway. How thick should the concrete be?
A — If only your own automobile is to move along the driveway, the concrete can be about 3½ inches thick. If service and delivery trucks are to use the driveway, even occasionally, it should be at least 5 and preferably 6 inches thick. Because local building regulations often control the construction of a concrete driveway, better check first with the building department.

shield wiper blades. They make excellent glue spreaders when working on large surfaces.
A. — Thanks.
Q — I took the finish off a cabinet and find that there are still some discolorations in the wood. I read somewhere that I should use a commercial wood bleach to take out these discolorations, but a neighbor says I can use ordinary household bleach. I am afraid to try it because I don't want to spoil the wood. What's your advice?
A. — Liquid household bleach will sometimes work if there are minor discolorations. The worst that can happen is that the stains won't come out. If not, then you can use a commercial wood bleach.

Q — Can I get a blond finish on cherry wood?
A. — Yes. But why in the world would you want to take a beautiful wood like cherry and make it blond?

Some Tips For House-Shoppers

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures
Unless they seek help, young people may make some mistakes shopping for a house or apartment. Many pay exorbitant rents, some are in bankrupt condominiums and many find they know absolutely nothing about the house they have bought. Meanwhile, they struggle to meet all the payments.
Spring is house shopping time for many young couples who will be so preoccupied in trying to find a house they can afford, they may forget all else.
That is why many will ask themselves later whether they have copper or galvanized pipe in the new home.
One young couple moved from an apartment into a house and a year later do not know where their well or septic tank are located. They do not know much more about their house than what they can see, and they've been too busy working to pay the mortgage to find out.
"The real estate woman was very nice but she didn't tell us very much," the new owner observed.

That may be par for the course. Ask and you will find out. Don't ask and you will find out, maybe the hard way, later. Some real estate people will put a $10 breakfast order in the refrigerator for the new owners and place a $5 plant on the window sill and then call it quits as they pick up their commissions.
People must learn to ask the important questions. Not only should they know where the septic tank is located, but they should know how old it is and when it was last serviced. In fact, they should insist that it be serviced before they buy the house.
Some years ago a couple bought a beautiful old house only to learn from an exterminator that the house was under service for termites.
These days any house shopper must be armed with a good book which explains the house detective role that must be played before the house is purchased.
A leaky cellar can add considerably to the basic price of a house. No one wants to take on the responsibility of a leaky cellar, and there are many clues to it — dampness, cracks in walls, rotting around window frames, mildew. If the house is on low ground the chances of dampness are increased. In addition to the inconvenience of a wet cellar, there is the danger of wood posts rotting.

It is not only an added expense, but a leaky house is a real bore to cope with. In winter people are afraid to vacate away from their homes because of one or another problem.
That is why the house must be inspected for tell-tale leaks. Yellowed stains on ceilings may come from bathrooms above. In the attic, water damaged areas may be caused by roof damage which can get bigger and ruin ceilings below. Wallpaper stains also can provide clues to leaks.

The chimney should be inspected. The prospective buyer should climb a ladder and make sure it is in good shape. It is a good time, too, to make sure the roof looks sturdy. Bad framing can cause it to sag.
One couple noticed some irregularities — broken putty pieces around windows, gaps in doors, "but the house was enchanting" and they decided to take it without a quibble. Great. But if they had talked about things that were wrong — the floors needed scraping, tiles were cracked in the bathroom — it might have been good grounds to have a few thousand dollars knocked off the price. Now they worry about the expense of repairs.

Very often the real estate person has a better figure to work with, but he may have promised the owner he will try to get the original price. Any house that has been on the market a long time provides a good chance to the buyer to bargain.
In these times people who have had a house for 10 or more years may be selling at a considerable profit, and they can usually afford to reduce the price.
There are so many things to check out in a house, it really is worth the expense for the services of a house engineer who will work in your interest. He can check out the wiring, the heating system, the well, the septic tank and he will know where some hidden problems may exist.
One couple moved in only to find the refrigerator missing. They had always rented an apartment and didn't realize that some houses are sold minus a few important items.
Often a house may not have been sold because the price was too high, but it may be, too, that lots of people have found genuine faults with it if it has been on the market a long while. It may be a house everybody calls darling, quaint and cozy, and all the rest of it. But when those first leaks arrive the superlatives won't pay the bill for sump pumping.
One couple has always had a leak in the beamed living room of their salt box. Now they want to sell it and pray for good weather. If the fact was known, a buyer could bargain because a big job is necessary to the roof to cure this particular leak.

Answers Timely Gardening Questions
Q. Frost got all of my peaches. Should I still spray the tree? (Mrs. L. B., Southern Pines)
A. Yes. A good spray program will keep the foliage healthy and the tree in better shape to produce a good crop of peaches next year. Spray with Captan (50 per cent wettable powder) at the rate of three tablespoons per gallon of water and Malathion (25 per cent wettable powder) at the rate of four tablespoons per gallon of water every 14 days. (H. E. Duncan, extension plant pathologist)
Q. Last year my tomato plants grew higher than my head, were very green, but had very few fruits. What could have caused this? (J.G., Greensboro)
A. Tomatoes are a warm season crop and require full sun or almost full sun. When planted in shady areas, or when over-fertilized, they tend to get "leggy" or "viney" and set few fruits. (Albert A. Banadyga, extension horticulturist)

house. (M.C., Pineville)
A. Shearing is especially undesirable if berry production is desired on Chinese holly varieties. Shearing removes almost all growth terminals and this is the growth that would have produced next year's berries. Most Chinese holly varieties, such as Burford, require frequent pruning to keep them in bounds. This is especially true if plants have been planted for five to ten years. Plants may be reduced in size by cutting out individual limbs within the plant, using hand pruners or a saw. This type pruning can be done almost any time except September and October. Early spring, before growth begins, is the ideal time if considerable wood is to be removed. (Henry J. Smith, extension landscape horticulturist)
Q. Is it possible to graft a "named" cherry tree to a wild cherry tree? (T. P., Chapel Hill)
A. Yes, it should be possible. But every wild cherry is different and the graft (or bud) may not take. The only way to find out for sure is to try. Cherry trees in your area are questionable. They bloom early and are easily killed by frost. Birds usually eat the fruit before it is ripe enough for people. (Mel Kolbe, extension horticulturist)

Students Appear More Tolerant Of Business

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — In the late '60s students pounded at the structure of business and government. They heckled politicians speaking at college forums and booted corporate recruiters off the campus. At worst, their dissent turned to riots and sometimes tragedy.

Today, students are yet to come full circle, but hostility and criticism, while still pointed, have cooled.

This was the assessment of business leaders who recently spoke at a four-week seminar here for 51 college students from across the country.

Views expressed by students at the "Operation Enterprise" seminar sponsored by American Management Associations showed they:

—Talk of growing distrust of society's institutions.

—Temper idealism with the realities of business.

—Are uncompromising in their view that there should be no corruption in business and government.

—Fault business for waiting for government regulations to push it into action rather than initiating changes itself.

—Feel business may be able to solve the nation's problems through continued technological advancement.

—Have a growing anti-union sentiment because unions do not seem to be working in the best interest of their members.

—In some ways students have returned to where they were in 1963 when we began the seminars," says Robin Schade, director of young adult activities for AMA, a nonprofit, management educational organization.

years, leaders agree, is the students' independent thinking. Though many of them are sent to Operation Enterprise under sponsorship of companies such as Dow Chemical, Nabisco, and ITT, they have no qualms about criticizing business.

The purpose of the seminars is to give a clear, balanced picture of the real world of management, rather than sell students on the pleasant trappings usually associated with executive suite activities, according to AMA president James L. Hayes.

"Let's face it, there's a dirty side to being a manager," says

Hayes. "Textbooks tell you layoffs are a function of the business cycle. But it's quite different when you have to look employees in the eye and tell them you're shutting down operations for a while."

To get a three-dimensional picture of managerial responsibilities, students hear representatives from labor and government as well as business. There are usually 20 to 30 speakers for each seminar, and class schedules are longer than the average college day.

Few students attending the seminars leave with the same views they had on arrival, says

Schade, but they are not a product of "group think." For example, when students were asked on the last day of the seminar what they considered to be the main problem facing business today, the responses fell into three general categories:

Government regulation is hurting business. While not all regulations are bad, they have definitely gone too far. The loss of public confidence, due to corruption by relatively few, is plaguing business. The unknown factor of future change is the greatest challenge, but it will be met.

Shrink Believes in Matching Dinner Guests

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Where do you live that you have not heard of a hostess who plans a successful dinner party by matching her guests' interests and, yes, sexes?

I am a female psychiatrist, and I wouldn't even think of starting a therapeutic group unless the sexes were matched more or less equally.

Who, male or female, feels comfortable in a group of, say, six females and two males? Do you?

N. Y. PSYCHIATRIST

DEAR PSYCHIATRIST: Certainly! A dinner party is not a therapeutic group, and all one needs for a successful party is stimulating company—be they male or female—unless they plan to pair off and go to bed.

DEAR ABBY: John and I were married just three months after my father died, so Mom talked us into moving in with her. We get free room and board, although John and I both work and can afford to pay her. (Dad left her fairly well off.)

Now the problem: Mom expects us to take her everywhere we go. If we don't, she puts for a week. When we have company, Mom dominates the conversation. We've never had a trip without her. We have no privacy at all.

It's been six years, and John is fed up. So am I, but every time I mention leaving, Mom cries and begs us to stay. If we live with her, she has promised that she'll leave the house and everything to me when she dies. (I have two married brothers.)

Mom is only 52, but she won't even try to make a life of her own. She keeps nagging us to have a baby, but we're not even sure we want children. Please help me.

TRAPPED

DEAR TRAPPED: Your "free" room and board is costing you far more than it's worth. Move out. Your mother will never make a life of her own as long as you make one for her—and sacrifice your own privacy in the process.

DEAR ABBY: I am going steady with a girl on my block. She's 10 and I'm 11. She gave me her I.D. bracelet, and I gave her my frog. She has gotten very bossy lately, and I would like to break off with her. How should I go about it?

ALLEN

DEAR ALLEN: Return her I.D. bracelet and tell her you don't want to go steady anymore. Then ask for your frog. But hurry before the frog croaks.

CONFIDENTIAL TO JOHN C.: Even if you aren't without sin, cast the first stone. And make it a diamond.

A Plumber In City Hall

BOWLING GREEN, Ohio (AP)—There's a plumber in City Hall, but the Democrats know all about it.

Alvin Perkins traded his denim overalls at the opening of 1976 for a business suit with a tiny Ohio flag in the lapel to become the city's first Democratic mayor in 18 years.

But being mayor is a part-time post in Bowling Green, so Perkins is keeping his job as an industrial plumber.

"I don't believe anyone expects me to be dedicatedly poor," Perkins said. "We have two salaried people who are making $24,000 a year, and I am making $7,500 as mayor."

The new mayor quickly discovered he would work for the salary. The GOP loudly cried politics when Perkins replaced the city attorney who had signed a published advertisement supporting Perkins' opponent in the election.

In defense, Perkins said Republicans still hold most city jobs.

"I think I'm probably the greatest thing that's happened to the Republican party in a long time," the mayor said. "They've finally realized they're going to have to work together themselves."

For the last 23 years, Perkins, 43, has been a construction worker, plumber, steamfitter and welder. But he's no newcomer to city politics.

The beginning came in 1971 when he was asked to consider running for council.

"I thought it was rather humorous at the time," he recalled. "I went home and told my wife that somebody wanted me to run for Democratic council of the first ward. She said, 'You're not even sure when to put the garbage out.'"

Caravan To Visit New Bern

Individuals and families visiting the "Tennessee Valley Bicentennial South" touring caravan of exhibits will have an opportunity to take home a "living" memento of the Nation's heritage. The caravan will stop in New Bern on Wednesday and Thursday, April 14 and 15. There is no admission charge!

At each stop on the caravan route, seeds and seedlings from two historic plants will be available for sale — American holly from Mount Vernon, Virginia, the home of President George Washington, and the rare Ben Franklin flowering tree, Franklinia.

In addition to the rare and historic plants, for sale, caravan visitors will be given a souvenir newspaper which will contain articles on the caravan displays, artifacts, and general history of the region.

"Tennessee Valley Bicentennial South" is being co-sponsored by the Tennessee Valley Authority, the North Carolina Army National Guard, and the North Carolina Bicentennial Commission. Local sponsors are The New Bern Craven County Bicentennial Commission.

The great star Betelgeuse, one of the largest in our solar system, is located in the constellation of Orion.

THROUGH THE DOOR... of this backwoods cabin, visitors to the "Tennessee Valley Bicentennial South" caravan will get a glimpse of the lifestyle of an 18th Century frontier family. The caravan will be in New Bern on Wednesday and Thursday, April 14 and 15. There is no admission charge.

South Greenville Students To Celebrate Bicentennial

Beginning Monday, April 12, and continuing through the end of May, students of South Greenville Elementary School will be focusing on a broad range of activities relating to America's Bicentennial.

The kick-off event on Monday, North Carolina's birthday, will feature two local guests. Dr. Thomas Williams, editor of "New East" magazine will give a slide show to students in grades 3-6. Dr. Norman Pendered, local author of books on Blackbeard, will tell kindergarteners through second graders about the famous pirate.

Four major contests are scheduled during the two-month span. The first, a poem recitation contest, will feature memorization of patriotic poems by students. This event is slated for April 21-23, with winners to be announced on April 23.

A creative writing contest is the second event, to be held April 28-30. Students will be permitted to write on a topic of their choice. Judges outside the school staff will be used, and winners will be announced April 30.

For the week of May 3-7, a postage stamp contest is slated. Student designers will submit entries on 8 by 11 inch paper. Winners will be announced May 7.

The fourth and final contest, a "Now and Then Contest," is set for the week of May 10-14. This is a poster contest, where students will compare some object or subject as it was in the past and is now. Winners will be chosen on May 14.

A classroom project, "Hall of Presidents" is to highlight the week of May 17-21. Each teacher has agreed to have students concentrate on a president of the students' choice, to document his life while in office.

The final week of bicentennial observances, to be known as "Bicentennial Week" will feature a variety of activities — a crafts fair; costume day and parade; an old timey school day; a Red, White and Blue Day; and will end on Friday with Play Day, to be devoted to games and a picnic.

Easter Invitation

The public is invited to spend Easter Sunday with the North Carolina Symphony when it performs at 7 p.m. in Durham. Duke University Chapel will be the site of the program, which is free.

John Gosling, Artistic Director of the North Carolina Symphony, will conduct "Symphony No. 2" by Gustav Mahler. This work, entitled "The Resurrection," features the singers of the Duke University Chorale under the direction of Benjamin Smith.

Frances Redding and Jane Dillard, both of Charlotte will appear as guest soloists.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Liza Minnelli and Shirley MacLaine will be among the stars honoring George Abbott at the Shubert Theater May 2.

Fashion, Music Program Today

Today at 5 p.m., 14 students of the Extended School Program, assisted by five community volunteers, will present an entertainment combining fashion, music and the art of make-up.

The event will be held in the auditorium of Third Street School. There is no admission charge and the public is invited to attend.

Tom Bennett, Coordinator of the Extended School program, explained this is a volunteer effort on the part of the students. "Initially, they thought about having a make-up technique demonstration, and then decided to add a fashion show and it has built from there."

Bennett said that in addition to the planned event, an open house will be held to give the public a guided tour of the program's facilities at Third Street. "Staff members and students will be on hand to greet visitors and explain our program to them," he said.

Lamonte Edwards of Lanham, Maryland, a well-known beautician, is expected to be in attendance as a special guest.

Yvonne Williams, Miss Greenville of 1971, and Shonita Harris are both beauticians. They have been working with the students on modeling, hair styling, diet, exercise, and make-up as elements of personal beauty care.

Community musicians contributing to the program are Steve Koch, Johnny Wooten and Willie Morris. A student, Marshall Holloway, will be master of ceremonies.

In addition to Holloway, students involved are: Anita Joyner, Ruby Blount, Ondra Daniels, Valentina Clark, Joyce Lee, Peggy Green, Tammy Howard, Shirley Perkins and Darlene Gorham; also Clinton Wilson, Michael Davis, Clinton Smith and Bobby Miller.

A Lively Account Of N.C. Freemasonry

Launching The Craft—The First Half-Century of Freemasonry in North Carolina. By Thomas C. Parramore, Raleigh. Litho Industries, Inc., 238 pps., illustrated. Regular edition, $10.00; Deluxe numbered edition, $25.00. (Orders to be mailed to: Grand Lodge AF and AM, Box 6506, Raleigh, N. C. 27628).

Thomas C. Parramore has given readability and a personal flair to a history writing assignment that could have easily been a deadly dull chronicle.

Some of his indictments of certain by-gone characters are a bit on the strong side; however, the author obviously did not arrive at such conclusions on imagination.

This history is copiously footnoted (22 full pages). A good example of his approach are these remarks from "A Fraternal Miscellany" in Chapter V.

"Although the members of the Tarboro Convention were, by and large, a reputable and influential group of men, they were in some respects a curious aggregation of princes and paupers, saints and sinners. Colonel Hardy Murfree was the respected hero of Stoney Point . . . But his associate was Dr. Patrick Garvey, a loquacious Irish rumdistiller who had spent time in jail . . . on a charge of illegally trading with the British . . ."

"The Rev. Mr. Samuel McDougald was a thorough rascal and . . . an impostor as well . . ."

Parramore traces Freemasonry history from its nebulous beginnings, pointing out there's no written evidence or proof, however, "of Masonic activity in North Carolina earlier than the decade of the 1750's."

Lacking firm evidence, he takes a cautious view on legends and reports of late 17th and early 18th century Masonry existing in the Tar Heel state.

Firm documentation begins in March, 1754 when "St. John's No. 213" was warranted in Wilmington. A sermon preached shortly after Christmas, 1755 in New Bern, published in pamphlet form by North Carolina's earliest printer, James Davis, establishes the existence of Free and Accepted Masons in New Bern.

Some question exists on the precedent in date order of the next oldest lodges, whether Crown Point Lodge of Pitt County or Royal White Hart Lodge in Halifax. Both can be traced to 1764.

The advent of the American Revolution resulted in a division and the decline of Masonic activities in North Carolina. Parramore says "people were forced to take sides in the gathering dispute, every social organization in America was swept by the flames of controversy."

In previous histories, Parramore asserts, "a great deal more has been written about the Masonic Patriots of the Revolution than about Masonic Tories." The most colorful, and one of the most controversial Masons of that era was John Burnside, forced to leave the state after accepting an appointment by Royal Governor Martin as an agent for the Granville lands.

Post-Revolutionary War days ushered in a new beginning for Masons in North Carolina, but the paucity of written records permit only a sketchy outline of the growth and success of lodges in those days. At any rate, Parramore says, "The mania for 'states rights' and local particularism, so profound in North Carolina during the 1780's, probably served as one obstacle in the path of a centralized organization for the Masonic order."

A substantial number of photographs of documents, portraits, minutes, and treasured Masonic artifacts add considerably to the textual pleasures of this history.

Parramore's style of writing reflects some of the elaborate phrasing of the material he researched. But he keeps this tendency in control so that it adds a nice flavor of those long passed days without the style becoming oppressively ornate.

Launching The Craft is of particular interest to Masons. It is also a valuable supplementary document to any history of North Carolina for the last half of the 18th century. Best of all, it's good reading, well organized and lively.

The Graduate Art Show

Large-scale and bold, large-scale and delicate are the dominant characteristics of the current annual thesis art show of six East Carolina University School of Art graduate students.

Four of the six are exhibiting at the Greenville Art Center. Two are female artists — Leslie Ford of Norfolk, Va. and Alice Hohenberg of Suffolk, Va.; and two male artists, Fred Brooks of Shelby and Cliff Stuckey of Raleigh. The other two, both female artists — Nancy Croll of Denton, Maryland and Gail Rabold of Newton, are showing paintings at the Kate Lewis Gallery on the ECU campus.

Ceramics play a major role in the Art Center portion of the show. Ms. Ford's large, organically influenced pieces resemble gnarled burnt stumps with their dark, rough charcoal surfaces broken by patches of orange clay and sandy mud colors. These beautifully formed items are ideal for patio and modern home decorating.

Ms. Hohenberg's pottery has much in common with the pieces by Ms. Ford. Most of her work, is on a slightly smaller scale and instead of the stubby, knotty protuberances, she favors folded pieces of clay on her vessels that give an effect of congealed slabs of lava flow. In her work, the organic influence is also important.

Cliff Stuckey is the third of the six artists concentrating on ceramics. His are of the more classical lineage, tall pieces basically derivative of amphoras; a few smaller items in a show case including a fine shallow bowl in blue and an appealing vase in off-white crackle glaze.

Paintings and constructions exhibited by Brooks at the Art Center fall into two general types; smooth, pale paintings punctuated with one or two objects, i.e., two coat hooks framed in an ornate light switch placed in a painted circle on canvas and faintly hued canvases to which chains are connected with objects outside the frame. The second group by Brooks consists of constructed works, tinsely and gaudy by virtue of the commercial materials of which they are constructed — wrapping papers, shiny ribbons and colored magazine illustrations.

At the Kate Lewis Gallery in the Wichard Building on campus, Nancy Croll and Gail Rabold are exhibiting a collection of paintings.

Ms. Croll has several big abstractions in strong rich colors. These are more successful than several other paintings that seem to be an uneasy balance between pointillism and the drip school of painting. Ms. Croll is also represented by a 30 panel variation on a print, range from eggshell through primary colors to black and white.

Ms. Rabold's paintings at Kate Lewis, watercolors, are soft, misty ribboned landscapes framed within formal open squares and vertical rectangles; a format repeated throughout the series. A couple of these incorporate realistic pencil drawings.

This year's graduate thesis show gives an extensive look at the work of each of the six artists involved. Viewers who are partial to ceramics will find this show particularly rewarding.

—Jerry Raynor

Book News

From Sheppard Memorial Library

By LINDA M. STANCILL

Recent additions to the library's collection include two new books on Ireland. With pictures and words, Leon Uris and his photographer wife, Jill, record a penetrating portrait of the Irish people, their sometimes harsh, sometimes magnificent land, and an insight into their ancient agony in IRELAND: A TERRIBLE BEAUTY. What is Ireland? Who are the Irish? These questions and others are answered as the Uris' delve into the history and social aspects of an enigmatic people, the powerful effect of the Catholic Church, their gnawing affair with the British, and the mystique of the renegade IRA.

In TRINITY, a novel of Ireland, Leon Uris covers the period from the famine of the 1840's to the Easter Rising of 1916. He tells the story of Ireland's past, explains the "troubles" of the present and gives insight into her future. The characters include the Larkins family of Ballytogue, generations of Catholic hill farmers in Donegal fighting for survival against the harshness of the land and the injustice of the regime. Conor Larkin is disquieted by the longings of his people for their freedom and his star-crossed love affair with a Protestant girl. The Hubbles represent three generations of British aristocracy who ventured to Ireland to conquer, colonize and exploit. The MacLeods of Belfast are devout shipyard workers whose Scottish Presbyterian ancestors were planted in Ulster to secure the Crown's interest. This is the Trinity, the oil and water of the Irish epic that would never mix, their interrelations of love and hate in a terrible and beautiful drama spanning over half a century.

Irving Wallace's latest novel, THE R DOCUMENT is set against a background of rising violence and crime in America. It's the story of a conspiracy to destroy the Bill of Rights, of an attempt by the FBI to take over the country. Wallace pits two opposing forces, those who are working to amend the Constitution so that the Government can impose a drastic rule of "law and order" and those who recognize that the proposed 35th Amendment may conceal a far more sinister and far-reaching plan, one that would subvert the entire process of Constitutional government and replace it with a police state. Opponents in this life-and-death conflict are the bull-like Director of the FBI and the Attorney General, an ambitious, honest man who supports the controversial 35th Amendment despite his private misgivings, but who discovers that there is a secret plot of an evil and vicious nature behind it. The nation's future is jeopardized and the fate of the country awaits the outcome of the death struggle and the hunt for the "R Document."

Records Are Falling As Floyd Is Rising

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer
AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Ray Floyd continued an almost unbelievable domination of the long holes, notched a couple of more records in his amazing run and expanded his lead to a whopping eight strokes Saturday in the third round of the Masters golf championship.

This staid and stately celebration of spring. The old record for the largest 54 hole lead was five set by Herman Keiser in 1946 and since tied by Arnold Palmer and Nicklaus.

It's helped him turn this fabled event—so often the site of pulse-pounding finishes, of multiple-man challenges down to the wire, of victories usually achieved by the tiniest of margins—into a potential rout.

The Golden Bear, the most feared competitor in the game, started the bright, warm, sunny day five strokes back, went two over par on the front side, didn't make a birdie through the first 12 holes and simply allowed Floyd to stalk away from the field.

Nicklaus, grimacing and gesturing in disgust from time to time, finally pulled his awesome game together just about the time he reached the range of the national television cameras, birdied two in a row and then left a putt hanging on the lip of the cup on the 18th hole.

It was a putt he needed for a round of par 72. It wouldn't fall.

The defending champion, who already owns a record five Masters crowns and a total of 16 major championships, had to settle for a 73 and a 209 total, eight big strokes behind.

Horton's Homer Beats Cleveland

Jaguars Win In Sixth By One

FARMVILLE — Emerson Hobgood scored on an error in the bottom of the sixth breaking a 1-1 tie and giving Farmville Central a 2-1 win over Greene Central, Saturday.

Error Leads To Philly Loss

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A three-base error by right fielder Ollie Brown, followed by Mario Mendoza's single, produced an unearned 11th-inning run that gave the Pittsburgh Pirates a 5-4 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies Saturday in their National League opener.

Bench Breaks Slump, Astros To Lead Cincinnati Win

By NORM CLARKE
AP Sports Writer
CINCINNATI (AP) — Johnny Bench emerged from the worst spring of his career Saturday, saying reports of his demise have been greatly exaggerated.

"That gives us pitchers three hits in two days," gloated the weak-hitting Billingham, who picked up the victory.

But Rawly Eastwick, the National League's co-leader in saves last year, quickly doubted the rally and the Reds countered with a four-run burst, two on Joe Morgan's first home run of the year.

North Pitt Slams Conley By 17-12

HOLLYWOOD—North Pitt outsgaged D. H. Conley in a high-scoring baseball game Saturday, 17-12.

The Panthers made their big move in the second inning, scoring nine runs.

The North Pitt nine took an early 3-0 lead in the top of the first, but Conley came back with a three-run homer by Mike Phillips to tie it up.

But in the second, the Panthers pushed over nine big runs. Eddie Hemingway walked and Dwight Vernelson singled. Noel Whitley walked, and a walk to Roy Brown scored the first run. Aubrey Wynne singled in Vernelson, but Whitley was thrown out trying to steal home. Singles by Roy Briley, Ken Perry, Lee Adams and Joey Bedsworth brought in four more runs, and a triple by Hemingway pushed over two more. Vernelson closed out the scoring with a double to plate Hemingway.

That gave the Panthers a 12-3 lead. They added what proved to be the winning run in the fourth, then picked up four insurance runs in the sixth. Conley came back with one in the fourth, four in the fifth and four more in the seventh.

LITTLEFIELD—Rod Kornegay singled home Jed Hardy in the bottom of the eighth for the winning run as Ayden-Grifton rebounded off its loss to North Pitt Thursday night to take a 5-4 win over C.B. Aycock.

The Falcons had taken a commanding 4-1 lead in the fourth but A-G pecked away and tied the game, 4-4 in the last of the seventh.

The Chargers used Tim Shadle and Mike Teachy to get the win. Teachy came on in the seventh to get it.

A-G drew first blood as Kornegay drilled a homer to left in the third.

Aycock countered with four in the fourth. Dennis Howard reached on an error and Jackie Dunn got his 12th hit in 13 at bats moving Howard to second. Both were sacrificed up and a double by Glen Lancaster scored them.

Curly Summerlin homered driving Lancaster across. A-G cut the gap to 4-3 in the fifth. Al Butts singled but was forcer at second by Hardy.

Kornegay reached on an error and a double by Ned Craft scored them.

VERSATILE YOGI NEW YORK (AP) — Hall of Famer Ralph Kiner recalls a round of golf he played with Stan Musial, Red Schoendienst and Yogi Berra. The 18 holes took 6½ hours and Kiner blames the longevity on Berra.

"Yogi didn't bring his clubs and, as you may know, he plays some shots left-handed and some right-handed," says Kiner. "Well, Yogi used clubs in my bag for his right-handed shots and used Stan's for the lefty shots. Yogi spent the best part of the day walking from one bag to the other, depending on the situation."

Messersmith Gets His Bundle From Atlanta

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Free agent pitcher Andy Messersmith ended his search for a million dollars Saturday when he agreed to terms with the Atlanta Braves.

Terms of the contract were not disclosed by ecstatic Braves' owner Ted Turner, but a source close to the club said the offer was "very comparable to the offer the (San Diego) Padres made"—which was $1.15 million spread over a four-year period.

However, Turner, an Atlanta yachtsman, said it was "a three-year contract with renewals."

Turner met with Herb Osmond, Messersmith's agent, for more than two hours Saturday and when they emerged from a meeting room at a San Diego hotel, Turner was beaming.

"Well, I've just signed a 10-page document and I'm not sure what it said," he said with a wide grin. "We just discussed the basic points." Turner was dressed in white yachting slacks and he puffed on a cigar.

Messersmith was not at the meeting, but Osmond called him, from a pay phone, at his Newport Beach, Calif., apartment. "Well, here's what they offered," said Osmond, who then shut the door to the phone booth.

On Thursday, San Diego owner Ray Kroc had offered the former Los Angeles Dodger pitcher a four-year, $1.15 million contract and when Messersmith turned it down, Kroc called the right-handed ace arrogant. "He can work in a car wash," Kroc said. "We just felt Andy Messersmith was too good to work in a car wash," said Turner.

Then he entered an elevator to go up to a news conference to announce the signing, and as the elevator started up Turner began to sing, "Toora, loora, loora."

Turner later said Messersmith was driving 70 miles south to San Diego to sign the contract and that the pitcher would be in uniform and available to pitch for the Braves if needed against the Padres Saturday night.

Osmond declined to reveal terms of the contract: "I feel that's between the club and the player. The Braves have acquired the services of Andy Messersmith. And vice versa. As long as Andy's in baseball he'll be pitching for the Atlanta Braves."

Messersmith challenged baseball's reserve clause last year and an arbitrator ruled in his favor, making him a free agent.

Messersmith then began to receive numerous offers from a host of major league clubs, including the Dodgers, for whom he won 19 games last year; the New York Yankees; the California Angels, for whom Messersmith once pitched, and the Padres.

In fact, the Padres felt so close to signing Messersmith Friday night they announced a pregame news conference "concerning Messersmith." That news conference was called off at the last minute.

HIT .500 AS A YANKEE NEW HYDE PARK, N. Y. (AP) — Former New York Yankee pitcher Frank (Bots) Nekola recalls his rookie season of 1929. He got in nine American League games without a decision. "But I hit .500 that season with the Yankees," says Nekola, "getting two hits in four trips to the plate." Nekola has been scouting for the Boston Red Sox for 26 years. Two of the men he signed — Carl Yastrzemski and Rico Petrocelli — are still with the Bosox.

Allison, Pearson To Battle For Rebel Crown

By JERRY GARRETT
AP Sports Writer
DARLINGTON, S.C. (AP) — Five-time winner David Pearson and defending champion Bobby Allison head a 36-car field that includes six former Darlington raceway winners in Sunday's 20th annual Rebel 500 stock car race.

Pearson, in quest of his fifth victory in six NASCAR Grand National starts this season, has made few appearances on the track since his pole position run of 154.171 miles per hour in the Wood brothers Mercury.

"We came in here set up to race, and we haven't had to make one adjustment, not even turn one screw, since the car was rolled off the transporter," said the easy-going Pearson, who likes to keep pre-race work to a minimum. "The Woods have raced here a long time, and they know this track at least as well as anyone."

"We always seem to run real well here, and we're always pretty lucky. I guess that's why we've won a few here."

Pearson's key challengers appear to be Allison, who won both the Rebel 500 and the prestigious Southern 500 at the old 1½-mile oval last season, and Cale Yarborough, a two-time Southern 500 winner, who is on a hot streak with two victories in his last three races.

Richard Petty, the six-time Grand National champion, isn't sure if he is a threat. It's well known that Darlington isn't considered part of his domain. He hasn't won here since 1967.

"I've torn up a lot of race cars here," said Petty, whose 1970 crash through the straightaway wall still is remembered as one of the worst in stock car racing history. "The racing here is always tough, and the track takes a lot out of you in 500 miles."

Petty finished second behind Allison in the last Southern 500, with relief from Dave Marcis. Afterward, Petty praised Allison for a courageous effort.

"I still consider that one of the finest compliments I've ever had in racing," Allison said. He added, "The toughness of this track gives that much more meaning to winning here."

The other former Darlington winners in the field are Buddy Baker and his 57-year-old father, Buck.

"I feel like I've already won," the elder Baker said after he qualified a creditable 11th at 150.201 m.p.h. in a Junie Donlavey Ford. "This is the best race car I've driven in 10 years."

"I feel real comfortable in the car and I believe I could run it all day at that speed."

Baker, who ended a three-year retirement to drive here again, won the Southern 500 in 1953, 1960 and 1964.

Though Pearson's qualifying speed was nearly a full mile per hour faster than Allison's 153.315 m.p.h. run, barely 10 m.p.h. separated the entire field.

The slowest man in the field, Walter Ballard, qualified Saturday at 144.063 m.p.h., for the lightest grouping of a field in several years here.

Veteran Ed Negre lead the final group of 12 qualifiers Saturday, with a speed of 146.894 m.p.h. in a Dodge rebuilt overnight following a crash in qualifying Friday.

Six drivers were not fast enough to make the field, including 1975 Grand National Rookie of the Year Bruce Hill, who will be the first alternate.

Carolina Takes ACC Baseball Lead

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Bernie Menapace singled home Chris Knett with one out in the 10th inning to give North Carolina a 3-2 win over Clemson Saturday and first place in the Atlantic Coast Conference baseball race.

Menapace's hit down the left-field line followed a single by Knepp and a two-strike sacrifice bunt by Steven Rackley. Matt Wilson was the winning pitcher for the Tar Heels. He went all the way allowing eight hits.

Clemson took a 1-0 lead in the fifth inning on a home run by Bill Foley. North Carolina's Jim Atkinson followed with a two-run homer in the 7th to make it 2-1. Clemson scored an unearned run in the eighth to send the game into extra innings.

North Carolina now leads the ACC with a 5-11 record. Clemson dropped to second place with a 6-2 record.

Action On Expansion Stalled By Kuhn Until Committee Meeting

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Commissioner Bowie Kuhn again deferred any action on the question of baseball expansion to Toronto and Washington Saturday, pending a meeting with the American League's planning committee.

Kuhn issued a short statement from his office saying that Lee MacPhail, president of the American League, had suggested an early meeting of the committee with the commissioner.

"The purpose of the meeting is to discuss further the Washington situation," Kuhn said.

Ten days ago, the commissioner approved American League expansion to Toronto providing the league also came up with a formula for supplying major league baseball to Washington. He set a seven-day deadline for that purpose, saying if the AL could not come up with a solution in that period, he would consider a proposed National League move to Toronto and Washington instead.

The American League reacted angrily to Kuhn's action, saying it planned to go ahead with its announced expansion to Seattle and Toronto, regardless of the Commissioner's announcement.

The seven-day period expired Thursday, but Kuhn delayed any action at the request of the leagues. Then Saturday, he again put off any decision.

"President MacPhail advised that he was acting pursuant to the commissioner's teletype request to all clubs last Wednesday that they let him (Kuhn) know any suggested solutions," Kuhn said.

In that teletype, the commissioner informed all 24 major league clubs that there had been no substantial progress made by the AL to satisfy his request regarding the return of baseball to Washington.

"Under the circumstances, I will defer any final decision until the (American) league's ideas have been fully explored."

"Meanwhile, my decision of April 1 continues in effect in all respects."

Kuhn said he planned to arrange the meeting with the planning committee "and other interested league members" for early next week.

The American League Planning Committee is composed of Bud Selig, president of the Milwaukee Brewers, John Fetzer, owner of the Detroit Tigers, Ewing Kauffman, president and chairman of the board of the Kansas City Royals, and Harry Dalton, executive vice president and general manager of the California Angels.

Baseball has been under pressure from political leaders to return to the nation's capital. Two franchises have failed in Washington and no team has played there since the Senators left following the 1971 season, moving to Texas.

One of the most frequent suggestions has been to have the nearby Baltimore Orioles play a portion of their home games in Washington. While it would not supply a fulltime franchise for the District of Columbia, it might satisfy the demands of Congress and the commissioner. However, Jerrold Hoffberger, chairman of the board of the Orioles, is now reported opposed to that idea.

Bucks Capture Midwest Title

By The Associated Press
The Milwaukee Bucks didn't need Kareem Abdul-Jabbar to win the Midwest Division—but they would probably love to have him for the National Basketball Association playoffs.

"We are not as talented or as experienced as many teams," said Milwaukee Coach Larry Costello. "Some of the Boston Celtics have been in 10 playoffs."

The Bucks, who traded Abdul-Jabbar before the season to the Los Angeles Lakers, weren't given much of a chance to win the Midwest. But they nailed it down Friday night by beating the Celtics 106-100.

Friday night's victory not only clinched first place in the Midwest for the Bucks but gave them the homecourt advantage in the upcoming NBA playoffs.

In the other NBA games, the Portland Trail Blazers stopped the Chicago Bulls 100-88; the Detroit Pistons whipped the Atlanta Hawks 116-108; the New Orleans Jazz outscored the Houston Rockets 99-89; the Philadelphia 76ers beat the Kansas City Kings 112-108 and the Seattle SuperSonics trimmed Golden State 119-103.

Elmore Smith scored nine of his 20 points in the fourth period as Milwaukee beat Boston. Clyde Mayes dropped in the basket that put the Bucks ahead for good, 99-98, with one minute remaining and then Smith clinched it with a pair of free throws.

Trail Blazers 100, Bulls 88
Steve Hawes and Bill Walton led Portland on a seven-point streak late in the game and the Trail Blazers went on to beat Chicago. The Blazers were nursing a narrow 85-82 lead when they put together their game-breaking surge.

Pistons 116, Hawks 108
Substitute center Roger Brown and guard John Mengelt spearheaded a fourth-period assault to help Detroit hand Atlanta its 16th straight loss. Brown, playing for flu-idled Bob Lanier, hit on three baskets and two free throws while Mengelt made two baskets and two free throws in a 16-7 surge.

Jazz 99, Rockets 88
Pete Maravich scored 23 points to lead New Orleans over Houston. Behind 23-21 at the end of the first period, New Orleans outscored the Rockets 30-16 in the second quarter with a 54.2 per cent performance from the field.

Maravich had 21 of his points by the end of the third period, and took it easy the rest of the way as the Jazz boosted its record to 37-44.

76ers 112, Kings 108
George McGinnis scored 38 points—one under his season high—as Philadelphia clinched second place in the Atlantic Division with its victory over Kansas City. The victory insured the homecourt advantage for Philadelphia in the opening round of the NBA playoffs. The 76ers have a 46-35 record with one game remaining.

SuperSonics 119, Warriors 103
Fred Brown scored 26 points as Seattle won its club record 15th consecutive home game by beating Golden State. Brown triggered a Sonics spurt at the end of the third quarter to break open a close game.

Opening Win No Big Thing

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — The New York Nets lead their American Basketball Association playoff series 1-0 after routing the San Antonio Spurs, but Coach Kevin Loughery is taking nothing for granted.

He remembers what happened last year. "It doesn't set us on fire," said Loughery after a 116-101 victory Friday night. "It just means we're 1-0 and we have to win Sunday."

Of course, you couldn't blame Loughery for tempering his exuberance. Last year, the Nets also won their first playoff game—against St. Louis—and then lost four in a row for a fast, five-game knockout.

Loughery wants to make sure that doesn't happen again this year.

The Nets will play the Spurs in the second game of the best-of-seven semifinal series Sunday in New York before the scene switches to San Antonio for Game No. 3 next Wednesday.

The Kentucky Colonels, holding a 1-0 lead, meet the Indiana Pacers today in the second game of their series.

Julius Erving scored 31 points and Al Skinner had a career-high 25 to lead New York's victory Friday night.

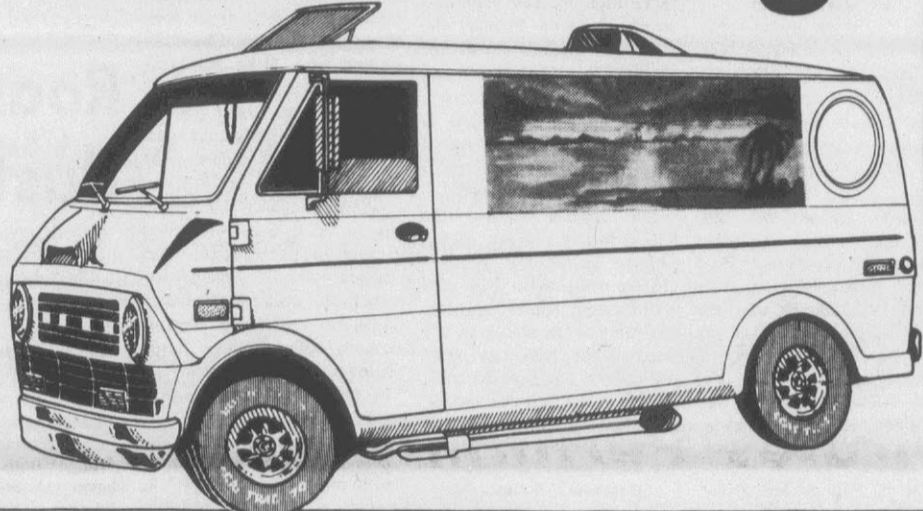

Erving got the Nets' first seven points and triggered them to a 33-18 lead at the end of the first period. The Nets, behind their two high scorers, built a 22-point advantage at 64-42 in the second period and led 70-50 at the half.

A dunk shot by Brian Taylor powered the runaway New Yorkers to an 80-55 lead with 8:41 left in the third period and the Nets took their biggest lead of the game, 110-80, on a Tim Bassett field goal with 7:14 remaining.

With 6:41 to go, both teams cleared their benches.

Rampant Rally Passes Wilson In Sixth, 3-2

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer

Jay Chenier's single in the bottom of the sixth drove in Michael Shank for the winning run as the Rose High Rampants beat Wilson, 3-2, Friday in a Division I baseball game.

The score broke a 2-2 tie that had been set up on a run in the Rose fourth after Wilson had taken a 2-1 edge in the third. Wilson had taken the initial lead in the top of the first but Rose tied it in the second.

Henry Baker missed a complete game by one batter, but got the win. He had some control problems walking seven but struck out five and gave up five hits. Wright Hooks finished that last batter off with three curve balls to end the game.

Steve Summerlin went all the way for Wilson fanning six Rampants, walking three and giving up three hits. He had been pitching a no-hitter until Chenier doubled off the right field wall in the second.

Wilson got the first score when Don Ellis was walked in. He led off with a walk and three more passes brought him in. Rose put two on in the bottom of the frame but failed to score. Chenier's double opened the second and he stole third. Greg Lee struck out but reached first on a third-strike passed ball. Chenier scored on the play.

Babe Allen singled to right in the third, stole second and scored on a double by Russell Smith getting the lead back for the Titans. But the lead was not held long as Rose tied the game, 2-2. Hooks reached on an error and was safe at second on another error as Chenier hit into a fielder's choice. Greg Sasser singled scoring Hooks and moving Chenier to third. Chenier was tagged out at home trying to steal.

Connolly walked to open the sixth and Shank ran for him. Jim Wilkerson reached on an error and a single by Chenier scored Shank. Wilkerson was thrown out trying to steal third.

Wilson had a rally going in the top of the seventh on a walk and a single with two out when Baker was relieved. Hooks saved the win.

Billy Thomas led the Wilson hitting with two singles. Chenier's two hits led Rose.

KINSTON—E. B. Aycock Junior High School picked up its second victory Friday, taking a 6-4 win over Kinston.

Kinston took an early lead with two runs in the second. Bryant was hit by a pitch, stole second and came the rest of the way on two wild pitches. Wade walked and scored when Gooding singled.

Aycock got its first run in the fifth. Marty Worthington reached on an error as did Joey Mattheis. Ronnie Chapman walked and Mike Williams singled in Worthington.

The seventh saw Aycock complete its rally with five runs. Tommy Dickens singled and Mattheis reached on an error. Chapman walked, and Wilson singled in Dickens. Will Sanderson squeezed in Mattheis and reached safety. George Wilson got a hit to score Chapman and Williams, and Rufus Sutton walked. Leon Hardee then singled to score Sanderson.

Roanoke Runs Past Warriors

ROBERSONVILLE—Roanoke High School romped to a 12-2 victory over North Edgecombe Friday in Eastern Plains Conference play.

The Redskins got a three-hit effort out of pitcher Wayne Council, who walked five and struck out nine. Roanoke got its first run in the opening inning. Eddie James singled, moving to third on two wild pitches. He scored on Reid Bullock's out.

In the fourth, the Redskins picked four more runs, running their total to 5-0. Bullock opened with a single and stole second.

Rampants In Loss

Wilson High School's tennis team picked up its second win over Rose High School Friday, but the Rampants showed some improvement this time around.

After taking a 9-0 win in their first meeting, Wilson took an 8-1 win this time, as Rose won the number two doubles. Rose also forced extra sets in three singles matches.

The defeat left Rose with a 6-2 record. The Rampants travel to Elizabeth City on Tuesday to face Northeastern.

Charlie Smith singled in Bullock and moved up on an error on the play. Greg Roberson singled and another error let Smith score. Ricky Griffin walked and stole up, and a hit by Lee Smith brought in both Roberson and Griffin.

"The Skins then blew it wide open with five runs in the fifth frame. Bullock again opened with a hit and stole up. Charlie Smith walked and both again stole. Griffin walked to load them up and a hit by Ken Gurganus scored Bullock. Donnie Weaver singled in Smith and Griffin, and Willie Spruill tripled to score the final two runs.

North Edgecombe broke the ice in the top of the sixth. Noland Cox reached on an error and moved up on an out. Ralph Scott singled him to third, and a double steal scored Cox. A hit by Al Waters scored Scott.

Conley Romps Past Jaguars

FARMVILLE—D. H. Conley High School pushed in six runs in the third inning and went on to record a 13-3 victory over Farmville Central Friday afternoon. The defeat was the first in Eastern Carolina Conference play for the Jaguars.

Farmville Central scored first, getting two runs in the opening inning. Mike Jenkins singled and moved up on a passed ball. Scott Evans walked, and both stole up. A long sacrifice fly by Tommy Cobb brought both runners home.

Conley came back to tie it up in the second. Kevin Adams walked and stole up, and Roger Jenkins also reached on an error. Nugie Worthington doubled in both runners to knot it at 2-2.

Then, in the third, the Vikings came up with six runs to rush away to an 8-2 lead. Mike Phillips reached on an error and Randy Evans singled. Adams walked to load them up and Bailey reached on an error, scoring Phillips. Jenkins was safe on another error, letting Edens and Adams score. Worthington doubled in both Bailey and Jenkins, and a hit by Joey Baggett brought in Worthington.

The Vikings went on to add two more in the fourth and three in the fifth. Farmville Central added its final run in the sixth.

Farmville Central is now 3-6 overall and 2-1 in league play. Conley is 3-4 overall and 1-2 in the conference.

Conaty walked just one batter and fanned four. Wilmington starter Parker Davis had control problems, walking eight and fanning just one.

The Bucs got things going in the first, with one run. Pete Paradossi reached on a fielder's choice and Macon Moye singled to center. Davis then issued walks to Roenker and Sonny Wooten, forcing in Paradossi.

In the second, East Carolina added another run. Ken Gentry opened with another walk, and Geoff Beaston singled to right, scoring Gentry, who had stolen second.

The Bucs had a chance for more in the third, when Wooten led off with a single, and moved to third on an error and an out.

Then, in the fourth, they put the game on ice. Howard McCullough led off with a single, with Robert Brinkley running for him. Beaston was safe on an error, moving Brinkley to third.

Only one other Seahawk got that far, however. Lancaster opened up the seventh with a hit, and Rickard King got another, but a popup, a strikeout and a fielder's choice ended the threat.

The Pirates return to the Southern Conference battlefields—the only place they have not fared well—on Monday, traveling to Charleston, S. C. to meet The Citadel in a 7:30 p.m. game.

The Bucs are back home Thursday, hosting Richmond in another Southern Conference contest.

Perry Goes 11 To Get Victory

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The Baltimore Orioles apparently don't need Reggie Jackson...at least not when Jim Palmer's pitching.

The Orioles couldn't entice Jackson to Baltimore Friday for their American League opener with the defending champion Boston Red Sox.

After the Birds' 1-0 squeaker over the Sox, Manager Earl Weaver read a telegram from the reluctant slugger, who was placed on the disqualified list before the game after rejecting a contract offer.

The Orioles needed all the help they could get because Boston's Ferguson Jenkins more than matched the six-hit pitching of Palmer and Dyer Miller but was done in by an unearned run that scored on a throwing error by 1975 hero Fred Lynn.

Elsewhere in the AL, the Chicago White Sox blanked the Kansas City Royals 4-0 behind Wilbur Wood's six-hitter, the Texas Rangers edged the Minnesota 2-1 in 11 innings and the Oakland A's, with Don Baylor and Mike Torrez playing key roles, downed the California Angels 5-29.

Baltimore got its only run in the fourth inning. Lee May reached on an error by shortstop Rick Burleson, Bobby Grich singled and May lumbered all the way home when center fielder Lynn's throw bounced over the head of third baseman Rico Petrocelli.

Jenkins, acquired from Texas during the off-season, allowed three hits, walked none and struck out seven. Palmer, who pitched 10 shutouts a year ago en route to a 23-11 record and his second Cy Young Award, yielded all six Boston hits in eight innings and Miller worked a 1-2-3 ninth.

White Sox 4, Royals 0

Jim Spencer backed the knuckleballing Wood's strong pitching by driving in three Chicago runs, two of them with a fifth-inning homer. Spencer, who came to the Sox in an off-season trade with California, also drew a bases-loaded walk to force in the first run against KC's Paul Splittorff, who had won 12 of his last 14 decisions from the Chisox.

Rangers 2, Twins 1

Toby Harrah's two-out tie-breaking single with the bases loaded in the bottom of the 11th enabled the Rangers to edge Minnesota before a Texas crowd that included President Gerald R. Ford. Harrah's single backed the seven-hit pitching of 37-year-old Gaylord Perry, who retired the last 16 Minnesota batters.

Harrah's hit came off reliever Bill Campbell, who replaced starter Bert Blyleven in the 10th inning after Blyleven also retired the last 16 batters he faced. Jeff Burroughs homered in the second inning for the Rangers' first run.

A's 5, Angels 2

Don Baylor and Mike Torrez, the newest additions to Oakland's line-up, played key roles for the A's. Baylor hit a game-tying homer off Frank Tanana in his first official plate appearance while Torrez pitched five innings and gained credit for the victory.

Torrez was relieved by Jim Todd and Rollie Fingers and the trio combined to hold the Angels to five singles. Baylor also scored Oakland's final run in the eighth when he was hit by a pitch, stole second and eventually came home on a wild pitch.

The New York Yankees return to refurbished Yankee Stadium this year and will play 52 home games at night.

Seaver Shows His Form In Opening Win

AP Sports Writer
Tom Seaver is putting his money where his arm is.

The three-time National League Cy Young winner was his usual tight-fisted self Friday, allowing but five hits and striking out eight batters in seven innings while leading the Mets to a 3-2 opening day victory over the Montreal Expos.

Seaver just last Monday agreed on a three-year contract at about $250,000 a season.

Seaver walked just one batter in his day's work.

While the Mets' money pitcher was taming Montreal in the Shea Stadium opener, three other National League games were featured during Friday's action.

The San Francisco Giants beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 4-2; the St. Louis Cardinals checked the Chicago Cubs 5-0 and the San Diego Padres rocked the Atlanta Braves 8-2.

Bud Harrelson supported Seaver's strong pitching with a two-run double off Steve Rogers in the fourth inning.

Skip Lockwood pitched the last two innings for the Mets.

Kwik-Pik has a new name. Fast Fare has a new game. Play it & you could win up to $500 cash or over 100,000 other prizes.

A KNOWLEDGEABLE COACH
BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP)— University of Indiana president John W. Ryan told football coach Lee Corso at a banquet that he would be Indiana's coach as long as he had anything to say about it.

Corso responded by saying: "Dr. Ryan, I hope your contract is longer than mine."

Now you can call us Fast Fare. And to celebrate our name change, we've dreamed up a New Name Game for you to play that could win you cash or free products. For the next few weeks, every time you visit a Fast Fare Convenience Store you'll be given a card just like the one shown in this ad. The card is in two parts. In the top is a black box. You wash off the black covering and you'll see one half of a picture. The picture could be half of a product or half of a denomination of money (anywhere from 50¢ to $500). Then you keep collecting cards by visiting Fast Fare until you match up two halves of a picture to make a whole. When you do, you win whatever is shown. Some of the cards are INSTANT WINNERS so you get your prize on the spot. And to make our game even more fun, you'll find a second black box in the bottom half of the card. When you wash off its black covering, you'll find a coupon that will save you money on a variety of Fast Fare products. So come play the New Name Game and see if you're a lucky winner. There's no purchase necessary.

Greenville Featured In Special Economic Development Publication

The City of Greenville has been featured in a four-page article in "Economic Development USA" a special publication of the Economic Development Administration, U.S. Department of Commerce.

The article, entitled "With A Boost from EDA Greenville, North Carolina, Combines Industry with Agriculture," begins by saying that during 1966, it was "not uncommon" for local area residents to be employed only five or six months out of each year because of the area's sole dependence on an agricultural economy and mechanization and automation of the tobacco industry had resulted in a high rate of county unemployment.

The article adds, however, "Since 1966... the Greenville area... has made a sharp turn toward economic growth. One key to this development has been the funding of four coordinated projects by the Economic Development Administration."

The first project, according to the report, included installation of a major sewer outfall line and pumping station along with sanitary sewer mains. That project began in March, 1966.

The next two projects, funded in December, 1970, provided major extensions of water mains, additions to water-treatment facilities, and natural gas main extensions... to serve the Dail and Hopkins Farm industrial parks, located north of the city along the Seaboard Coastline Railroad and State Route 11.

"EDA's initial $306,000 grant served as a catalyst for Greenville," the article quoted Greenville Utilities Commission director Charles Horne as saying.

"Empire Brush Co., a plastics manufacturing concern that makes brushes of all types, employs 300 persons.

"Procter and Gamble Co., maker of potato chips, anticipates employment of 300-400 workers on a 24-hour-day, seven-days-a-week basis.

"Sheltered Workshop, a governmental agency serving eastern North Carolina, has a small staff providing supervised work for the handicapped.

"Vermont American Corp., a tool-and-die manufacturer, employs approximately 72 persons.

"Approximately 2,000 jobs have been created as a result of Greenville's two industrial parks. The number of possible future jobs is estimated at 3,000," the article continued.

In addition to outlining the impact of the EDA grants for utility service for the city's industrial park area, the publication cited the work of East Carolina University through its Regional Development Institute in boosting economic progress in Eastern North Carolina.

"Serving 32 counties in Eastern North Carolina, the institute directs its activities toward practical research and its application to the field of economic development," according to the writer.

The article continued, "In order to enlarge its area and sphere of operations, the institute," formed in April 1964, "applied for and received several grants from EDA, beginning in 1966 with funds to expand its staff.

Additional Federal funding for the institute continued for 61 months, ending on June 30, 1971.

And a new building for RDI, housing offices, an auditorium and a library, was funded in part by EDA, the Coastal Plains Regional Commission and the State of North Carolina, the article reports, adding that RDI offers services in five basic areas: "business assistance, community development, education and promotion, information services, and special studies."

According to the EDA report, "As citizens devise ideas for economic development where a clear need exists, the institute serves as a catalyst bringing together the concept and the action to help reach the desired goal."

The article also mentions Farmville, saying it too has benefited from EDA funding, and citing a $243,000 grant to improve Farmville's water system in 1973.

That line, the article reports, served 155 persons in rural areas, as well as several industries such as Collins and Aikman, a textile plant, and A. C. Monk and Co., Inc., a large tobacco supply plant employing 800 persons on a seasonal basis.

"Thanks to an adequate water supply, the Monk plant was able to expand its operations in Farmville, thereby creating jobs for another 200 persons."

The report concludes, "EDA has played a significant role in the industrial and other economic development of Greenville and the surrounding area. The opening of new industries, the expansion of existing industries, the creation of new jobs, and the growth of financial and educational institutions have greatly benefited the residents of Pitt County."

The article also mentions Farmville, saying it too has benefited from EDA funding, and citing a $243,000 grant to improve Farmville's water system in 1973.

Says Blacks Guilty Of 'Racism In Reverse'

By BARBARA WASHINGTON Associated Press Writer ATLANTA (AP) — Young blacks, disenchanted by an American system which has discriminated against them in the past, now miss out on job opportunities by practicing "racism in reverse," according to the nation's first black four-star general.

James said a weakness in the United States is a lack of unity, and he urged the 90 mayors attending the conference to "build your chain on the link of unity that is America."

"The reason I'm preaching to you is because sometimes the choir isn't singing loud enough," he said. "Unity is in the laws of the United States. Let's not destroy it while we're getting it together."

Earlier Friday during the conference, where the mayors are studying means of making federal aid more accessible to the rural towns which many of them represent, H. R. Crawford, a former Department of Housing and Urban Development official, told delegates he was fired "because I have never shuffled for anybody."

"Nothing is worse in our society than a black man or woman who walks, talks and acts white," Crawford said.

He was asked to resign Jan. 28 after three years as the government's top public housing official. HUD charged that Crawford had a conflict of interest because he allegedly was consulting with private firms about future employment opportunities for himself.

Early Call For Independence

By ROBERT H. REID
Associated Press Writer
HALIFAX, N.C. (AP) — They hardly considered themselves revolutionaries, the small-town leaders, farmers and merchants who gathered at Halifax in April 1776.

But it was these people, meeting as North Carolina's provincial congress, who first took the step from which the 12 other colonial assemblies had covered — a vote for independence from Britain.

On April 12, 1776, the 83 delegates voted unanimously to instruct North Carolina's representatives to the Second Continental Congress to support separation from the British crown.

The resolution, known as the Halifax Resolves, was a bold step for a colony which three years earlier had been considered so safe that it was exempted by the British from punitive trade restrictions imposed on most of the other colonies after the Boston Tea Party.

North Carolina, peopled largely by small farmers of English and Scottish extraction, had been generally removed from the decade of strife which preceded the Revolution.

In fact, many of the delegates to Halifax had taken arms for the royal governor five years earlier to put down a revolt by western farmers who refused to pay their taxes.

But in 1776 they were angry. They accused the British of disturbing the colony's good order and of interfering in their lives.

The Stamp Act of 1765 had first disturbed North Carolina because it taxed a variety of items used in the colonists' everyday lives. But it was the heavy-handed tactics of the British governor, Josiah Martin, who took office in 1771, that finally provoked the call for independence.

In 1774, when the call went out for delegates to a continental congress in Philadelphia, Martin, from his sumptuous palace at New Bern, refused to summon the North Carolina Royal Assembly.

Colonial firebrands like Cornelius Harnett and William Hooper staged meetings in Wilmington and other eastern towns to denounce Martin and finally called their own provincial congress to meet in New Bern on Aug. 25, 1774.

The delegates elected Hooper, Richard Caswell and John Hewes to represent North Carolina in Philadelphia.

Martin, seeing that his refusal to call the assembly had failed, decided in April, 1775, to summon the body to meet April 4 in New Bern in hopes of asserting North Carolina's ties with Britain.

But William Harvey, who had been elected speaker of the 1774 provincial congress, decided to embarrass Martin by calling his own assembly to meet in the same town a day earlier.

Since every member of the Royal Assembly also sat in the provincial congress, the very men Martin had hoped would reaffirm royal sovereignty wound up adopting resolutions declaring their right to free assembly.

But Martin was not ready to concede defeat. In June 1775 he wrote Lord Dartmouth with a plan for restoring British rule. It called for dispatching seven regiments of Irish regulars under Sir Henry Clinton from New York to the mouth of the Cape Fear River in North Carolina.

Clinton's troops were moved to North Carolina in early 1776 and on Jan. 10, Martin issued a call for Tory volunteers. Instead of the 20,000 men he had expected, 3,000 Scottish Highlanders and several thousand others joined the King's standard. Under the command of Gen. Donald MacDonald, the Highlanders and other loyalists began the march to Wilmington to link up with Clinton's troops.

However, on the morning of Feb. 27, on the banks of the Black River about 15 miles from their destination, the Highlanders were ambushed by a militia force.

The battle, known as the Battle of Moore's Creek, cost the patriot militia one dead and a handful of wounded. The loyalists lost most of their weapons and more than 800 were killed, wounded or captured. General MacDonald was among the captured.

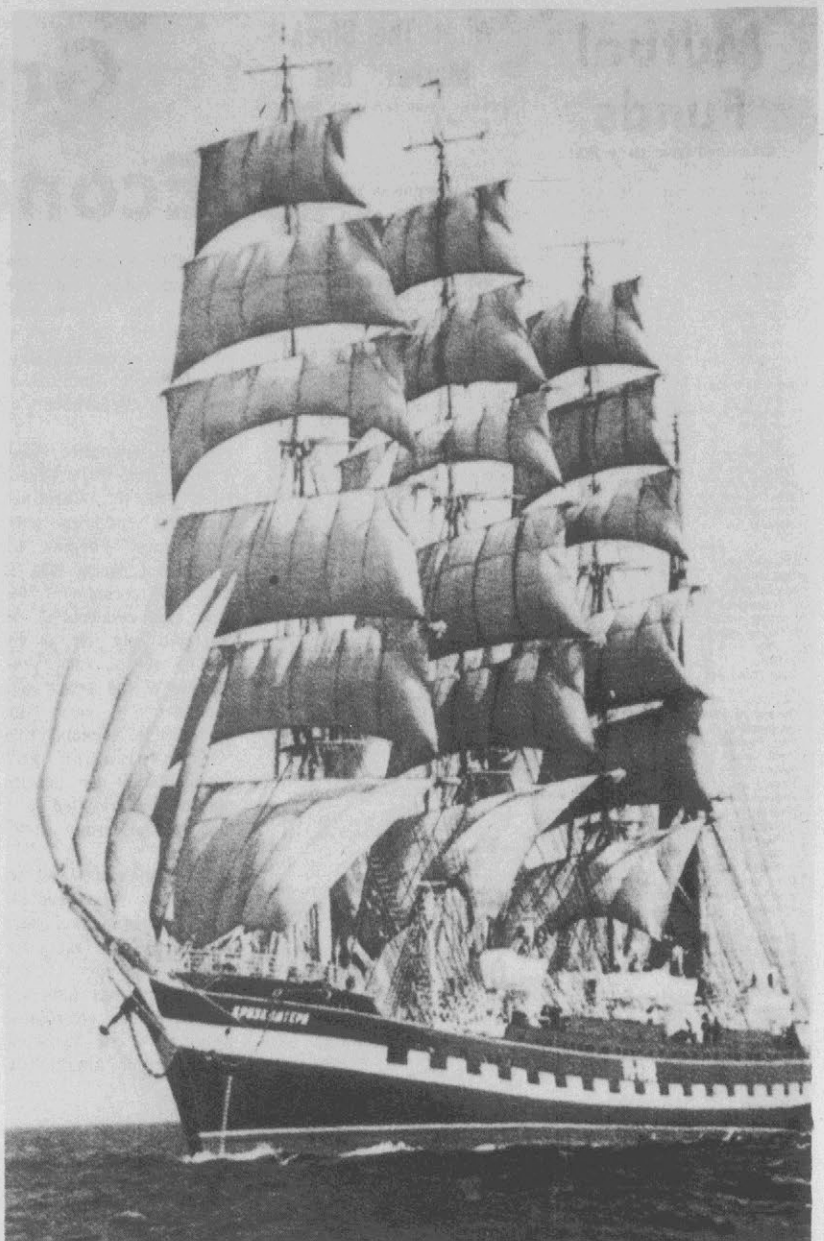

The Battle of Moore's Creek, like the Battles of Lexington and Concord a year earlier, galvanized public opinion to the cause of independence. The provincial council, which exercised authority when the provincial congress was not in session, broke up March 3 with a call for a meeting of the full congress on April 2 in Halifax.

When the delegates gathered, the sentiment for independence was unanimous. The first order of business was the appointment of a committee to report on "the usurptions and violence attempted and committed by the King and Parliament against America and for the better defense of the province."

Ten days later the committee proposed "that the delegates of this colony in the Continental Congress be empowered to concur with delegations of the other colonies in declaring independence."

The resolution was approved that same day.

Rio's Street Fairs Easy On A Budget

By MARC LIFSHER
RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (UPI) — An hour before sunrise Rio's fashionable, beach-front Ipanema quarter is jolted awake by the clatter and clamor of a convoy of produce trucks pulling into the neighborhood's main square.

After two hours of hauling and hammering, the square is transformed into a gigantic marketplace — filled with well-dressed women, screaming hucksters and basket-laden domestic servants.

The crude level of sanitation and complete lack of American-style convenience foods would probably worry an American homemaker.

But to the Brazilian housewife the street fair means fresh food on the table and more money in the food budget.

Portuguese Viceroy Lavradio authorized the establishment of Rio's first neighborhood produce market in 1771, and his 205-year-old order still stands.

Despite the growth of supermarket chains and government-sponsored hygienic marketplaces, Rio de Janeiro's housewives still like to do their shopping in the streets, where the food is cheaper.

This traditional shopping habit, according to government figures, provides employment to approximately 7,000 marketers, who set up stands at 25 daily street markets, or "free fairs," which change locations daily.

Although government health regulations greatly restrict the hours of operation and types of goods for sale, the markets do a brisk business in fresh fruits and vegetables, just-caught fish and dressed chickens.

Housewives flock toward gigantic selections of greens glistening with moisture in the sunshine, perfect pyramids of tropical fruits and long tables laden with wide-mouthed fish, slimy squid and giant lobsters.

Vendors display their produce in a show of agricultural abundance, screaming the quality of their goods while slowly marking down prices for clearance before the fair closes at noon.

Hordes of barefoot street-wise urchins race on jerry-built push carts through the fair's streets, eager to transport the housewife's purchases to her home.

Two types of independent merchants work the fairs.

Small farmers from the outskirts of Rio, who bring their own produce into the city. And merchants who buy foreign fruits and other more exotic foods at central wholesale markets.

The government charges the hawkers a $1 rental fee for three square yards of space.

One upper middle class Ipanema housewife said she regularly shops at the fairs in her neighborhood "because the food is fresher and cheaper than that in the supermarkets."

Although the consumers support the fairs, the government regularly announces plans to curtail them. One new order calls for the use of plastic bags instead of paper ones.

A fish seller with 40 years experience at the fairs laments the government's plans to possibly close the fairs for good.

"Closing the fairs would cause great unemployment," he says, lifting a large snapper for a customer to inspect.

"The fairs are a great advantage to the people because the food is cheaper and it's better, and the consumer has a lot of food to pick from."

Despite increasing governmental regulations, the fairgoers consider the street markets an essential element in Rio's food distribution system and, more important, an unshakable part of the housewife's marketing tradition.

Business And Investors Symposium Is Scheduled

A Symposium for Business People and Investors is scheduled to be held beginning at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, April 15, in the Adult Reading Room, Sheppard Memorial Library, according to Librarian Miss Elizabeth Copeland.

Miss Copeland said that four of the agencies providing continuous business services to the library have accepted invitations to send representatives to speak at the symposium.

"Their being here will give those who use our services an opportunity to meet the representatives, to talk to them and ask them questions," Miss Copeland said.

Representatives slated to be present are: William R. Shields of Richmond for Moody's Investors Service, Inc.; Shannon M. Thomas of Virginia Beach and Timz A. Lee of Raleigh, both for Prentice-Hall, Inc.; John F. Miesch of Clayton for Institute for Business Planning, Inc.; and Clyde Benton for Tax Research Institute of America.

The business services maintained by the library also includes Dunn and Bradstreet and Standard and Poor Corporation among others, as well as business newspapers and journals such as the "Wall Street Journal" and "Barron's."

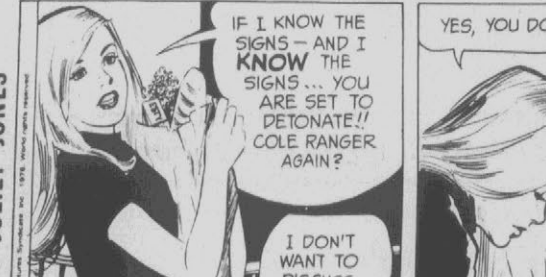

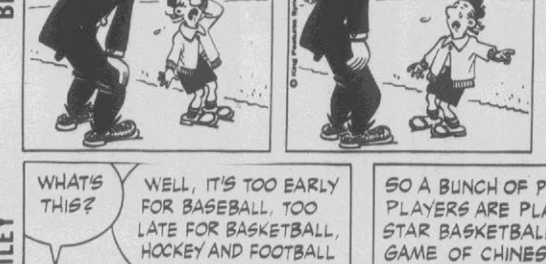

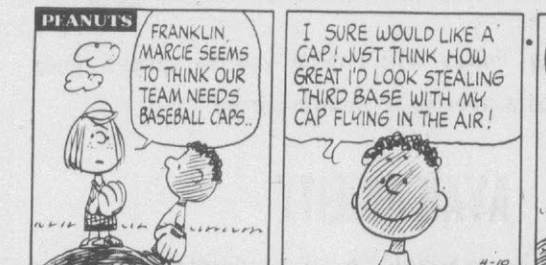

Principal fields covered by the four agencies to be represented are: Research Institute of America—guides to tax questions and alerting individuals on tax problems in business and personal transactions; Institute for Business Planning—financial and corporate planning, tax sheltered investments and financial planning ideas; Moody's Investors Service—banks and finances, industrials and public utilities, transportation and municipal governments; and Prentice-Hall—estate planning, pension and profit sharing, labor relations, and guidance in payroll, personnel, wage and tax matters.

"Each speaker will have about ten minutes to tell about the services provided by their particular agency," Miss Copeland said. "We want to emphasize that the symposium is open to everyone, to interested individuals, to small and large businessmen, investors or anybody with an interest in any facet of business or investing."

She noted that the Greenville Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association is providing public relations support for the symposium.

Miss Copeland will introduce the five speakers scheduled to take part in the symposium.

Mosquitos Also Carry Dengue

HOUSTON (UPI) — The same mosquito which transmits yellow fever in the Americas also carries a virus that produces the painful and infectious human disease called dengue.

At present there is no known vaccine for this disease, which produces fever, headache and a rash. It is carried by the mosquito species Aedes aegypti.

Doctors say the only solution to the worldwide problem is eradication of the Aedes aegypti mosquito.

The disease has a particular effect on children up to age 12 or 13. They can die from shock.

School Survey Outlook Glum

COLUMBIA, Mo. (UPI) — A University of Missouri survey by Dr. Edward C. Lambert shows state leaders believe public school discipline has eroded, enforced busing is ruining schools and sex education is an important subject.

The survey said political, educational and business leaders do not believe drug problems are an outgrowth of the Vietnam War.

The 18th Amendment to the Constitution, Jan. 29, 1919, prohibited the sale and manufacture of alcoholic beverages in the U.S.

TV Stations Have Female Newscasters

By BETTY HATCH
Reflector Staff Writer

As women expand their roles in today's job market, Greenville and Pitt County television viewers may reap the benefits—Channel 7 (WITN) and Channel 9 (WNCT) provide three attractive, capable women for their viewing pleasure.

Kay Currie and Susan Banks (WITN), and Clarke Brinkley (WNCT) have different personalities but they represent their stations well and reflect favorably on the intelligent, professional female.

The idea of a female newscaster or anchorwoman is relatively new in this area but definitely seems to be here to stay. If these three women have anything to do with the idea's current success, then female newscasters will become even more popular.

Susan's face is the newest for local viewers. Clarke has been in the area a little longer, and Kay has worked here the longest of the three. All have had extensive broadcasting experience and/or training.

Susan, the "newcomer," is originally from Camp Lejeune, and is the daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. David William Banks. Her previous job was in Boston; she was, in her terms, a "person Friday" to the president of a professional football team for two years. Before that, she worked at a radio station in Providence, R.I., and was an anchorwoman and reporter at a Providence television station. Susan also studied speech and journalism while in college, having attended the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and at Greensboro, the University of Florida and the University of Rhode Island.

Clarke, born in Clinton, has been with WNCT about three months. Her previous job was with a UHF station in Phoenix. Before that, she worked for an NBC-affiliated television station in Columbia, Mo., as fulfillment of a Bachelor of Journalism degree from the University of Missouri. She also spent a brief period at a school of announcing in California and studied at St. Mary's in Raleigh for two years.

Kay has a substantial list of credits to her name, including the show "Kay's Corner" for WNBE-TV in New Bern and a position there as a news reporter, "The World at Twelve" for KBMT-TV in Beaumont, Tx., and current responsibilities at WITN as Women's Director, as hostess and producer of "Hospitality House," as news reporter and as weather reporter weekdays at noon. She has been a television correspondent in France and in East and West Berlin. She is a past president of the N. C. Chapter of the American Women in Radio and Television. Her broadcasting start was in the early 1950's as a production assistant for a daily news interview show in Philadelphia.

Kay notes that, although she was born in Philadelphia, she prefers the South and its well-known hospitality. Her father, Emlyn Sholler, still lives in Philadelphia; her mother is deceased.

The views of the women vary somewhat on the role of women in broadcasting but each is aware that at least females now are involved in broadcasting.

"Women have been in TV about 15 years, other than as weather girls," said Clarke. "They have been accepted for about five years. It was a male-dominated industry for so long. I don't try to prove myself as a woman, just as a journalist."

Great Strides
"I believe they've made great strides," said Kay of female broadcasters. "They anchor news, run cameras, work in sales, are program directors and have executive positions. But the American Women in Radio and Television are not satisfied with the state of women in management positions."

Susan's response was, "I don't think about it too much. Now it's a matter of training people to be good. I don't think it's an issue any more. I just assume that women will be on."

Both Clarke and Susan expressed their desire to be treated as equal persons, not to be called a "gal" or "girl," as Susan said.

KAY CURRIE... serves as weather reporter, news reporter and Women's Director at WITN-TV, Channel 7, in Washington. She started her broadcasting career in the early 1950's in Philadelphia by lining up celebrities for a daily news interview show.

"I prefer to be called a newswoman," Susan explained. "To call one a girl means you will treat her like it, and that is absurd."

"I am a journalist first and foremost," said Clarke. "Women must deal with the inability of a man to accept them as totally competent, as equal. This is true in broadcasting more than any other field."

Kay said she finds the men at WITN easy to work with, and Susan echoed her statement.

"We've got a good news team" Kay noted. "For example, Lee Kanipe (a news anchorman) is one of the nicest men I ever worked with. And on the weather report, Gene Motley (a sportscaster) usually leaves me a poem or message."

"Channel 7 is extraordinarily liberal," was Susan's comment. "If they did hire me because I'm a woman, I never knew it. There are no problems. All the men are liberal-minded. They respect me for what I can do and I respect them for what they can do. The newsroom staff help each other and provide support."

Susan believes that broadcasting is not harder than any other field for a woman. "If a person has the ability and the will to work, you can get just about anything you want. Do your job, do the best you can; be true to yourself and don't worry about your sex."

Clarke feels the business still has its own built-in bias for reporters, even though the situation is getting better. "They try to assign you to female subject matter. I don't know if it's conscious or not. I don't want to be the women's reporter. And I think men could really grow from dealing with those things."

"When I leave Channel 9 I'd like for them to say she was competent, to see that a woman can be successful and competent. Tokenism is still very much a part of broadcasting now and it bothers me."

It's Exciting
If the life of a female broadcaster may be complicated by such problems (or may not be), it can also be very interesting and exciting. Travel, celebrities, new experiences, awareness...

"I had a bear on my lap once and he almost strangled me," Kay laughed, flashing a smile. "Even little bears from Grandfather Mountain are not cuddly. I had to wear a pair of gloves so he couldn't get at my throat." "I never wanted to do the weather but they did me a favor. It's so much fun. Now it's great when I'm planning a trip."

"This year I did several specials such as the one-hour programs on Germany, France, alcoholism, cancer research and the Alaska pipeline," Kay added. "For the first Sunday in May my show is an hour on the history of art and crafts."

It includes both local craftsmen and a national film."

"I am my own cameraperson and I do photography and reporting," said Clarke. "Sometimes I line up my own interviews. I have to edit film and I'm learning to process it now. It will make a better journalist out of me."

Susan writes her own copy (script) for her broadcasts, as well as producing the show. She enjoys the news field because it "provides variety. It keeps you busy, active and aware of what's going on."

Dress Codes

The television stations differ in their dress codes—Clarke must wear a dress except when on camera (seen only from the waist up), but Susan can wear jeans to work. However, both women dress well when representing their stations.

"Dresses make me nervous," Clarke admitted with a laugh. "Blue jeans are an innate part of me. I don't complain about the dress code because they want me to make a good impression as a representative of the station. I just like simple, plain clothes."

"I usually wear blue jeans to work," Susan remarked. "I can't wear blue on the air because of a technical problem, but otherwise there is no dress code. They do like their people to look nice on the air. And I don't wear my jeans for interviews."

Kay wears dresses, always in the best of taste. She has often Congresswoman Disenchanted With Washington

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Senior Editor
WASHINGTON (UPI) — There's a comfortable, big house on a bluff overlooking the Mississippi River in St. Louis. Congresswoman Leonor Kretzer Sullivan owns it and can hardly wait to occupy it fulltime.

Mrs. Sullivan, the dean of the 18 women in Congress, is tired. She's also disenchanted with the Washington scene.

"All my life I've gotten up each morning just waiting to go to the job," she told me as we sat in her rose-filled office (her constituents sent the flowers) talking of her years on Capitol Hill.

"Now when I get up I don't have that same happiness."

"I'm not disgruntled," said the Democratic congresswoman who at the end of 1976 will finish 24 consecutive years in the house, 30 years in the capital.

"Rather, I'm disturbed at what's happening to the whole government... the corruption that always goes on... the lack of morals, the lack of moral fiber is pervasive... too many people thinking 'so what?'. I find this even in the attitude of people who take on legislation."

"What Watergate has done has made distrust..."

"I've fought all I know how to fight and sometimes feel I can't make a dent."

I asked Mrs. Sullivan whether retirement from the legislative halls was not something like taking a powder at a critical time in the nation's history.

"Maybe other people can change things," said Mrs. Sullivan, a slim and handsome woman with short, graying hair. She wouldn't tell her age, but some sources put her about 72. She looks younger.

The congresswoman is adamant about not seeking reelection, but she did say, "I couldn't stay idle. I'm not job hunting. I just want to do what I want when I want..."

"I want to experience the unfamiliar joys of learning how to loaf during at least some of my waking hours, a luxury I have not known since starting my first job."

Being in Congress, the only woman ever to have served from Missouri, has meant a 14- to 16-hour day, she said, plus weekends either clearing the paper work from her office in the Sam Rayburn building or trips twice monthly back to her constituency.

She and her late husband, John Berchmans Sullivan, who preceded his wife in Congress, had no children. So she could work the long hours.

Mrs. Sullivan resigned as a training executive and director of a St. Louis business machines corporation when she married in 1941 and later served as her husband's administrative assistant.

He died during his fourth term in 1951. In 1952, the widow was elected from the same district, the third.

The committees on which she serves and has served and the legislation she has pioneered, especially in the consumer protection fields, make a long list. She is chairman of the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee (the third woman in House history to head a major legislative committee) and fourth ranking member of the Committee on Banking and Currency.

She's been active in pushing legislation on conservation and environmental protection, cosmetics safety, consumer credit protection, the food stamp program, equal pay for equal work.

Mrs. Sullivan said in her official statement announcing retirement that "one more term, however, is not going to be enough to pass all the causes I have initiated..."

The woman from Missouri is one of strong opinions, whether they concern the women's liberation movement, the Equal Rights Amendment, or the need for more women in Congress.

"I give the liberation movement credit for pointing out discrimination (against women) and need for equal opportunities," she said. "The civil rights act should have a clause on sex in it, so by law there could be no discrimination."

She has not changed her opposition to the Equal Rights Amendment. "I think it will do more for men than it will ever do for women," she said.

Miss Anita Louise Holley Weds

COLERAIN — The marriage ceremony of Miss Anita Louise Holley and John Thomas Worthington Jr., both of Greenville, was performed Saturday at the United Methodist Church by the Rev. Clarence R. Breedin. The double ring ceremony took place at noon.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas David Holley Sr. of Colerain and Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Worthington Sr. of Greenville.

A program of nuptial music was provided by William Raynor, organist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white formal gown of satin meracaine and Venise lace. The gown was fashioned with an empire bodice, high neckline and fitted sleeves. A V'd overlay of lace covered the bodice and neckline, extending over and capping the sleeves, which were cuffed with matching lace. The A-line skirt fell into a chapel length train.

The bride wore a lace-trimmed finger-tip illusion veil, which fell from a crescent-shaped band of seed pearl and lace. She carried a bouquet of yellow daisies and variegated ivy, centered with yellow roses which she lifted for her going-away corsage.

The bride's sister, Miss Theresa Anne Holley of Greenville, served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Maragret Tynes Holly of Colerain, sister of the bride, Mrs. Thomas Bryan Jordan and Miss Sandra Kaye Worthington, sister of the bridegroom, both of Greenville and Mrs. Robert Coke Gray of Raleigh.

The attendants wore formal length gowns in maize knit designed with a high neckline of the self-fabric. The empire bodice featured a gathering at the waistline and an open keyhole at the back. The waistline was encircled by a belt in the maize knit and the full skirt had a hemline ruffle. The sleeveless gown was accentuated with a caplet jacket edged with ruffled knit. They each carried nosegays of mixed daisies and ivy.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers were David Holley of Boise, Idaho, brother of the bride, Ray Howard, Ricky Lloyd, David Howard, Ben Harrison, and Jeffrey Hunnings, all of Greenville.

The bride is a graduate of East Carolina University and is employed as a teacher in the Tarboro City Schools. The bridegroom is also a graduate of ECU and is employed by Liberty Warehouse, Wilson.

The couple will reside in Greenville.

Following the ceremony, a reception was given by the bride's parents at the Colerain Community Building.

A rehearsal party was held Friday evening at the Colerain Beach and Boat Club given by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Worthington.

Assisting were Mr. and Mrs. La Gray Askew, Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Harrell, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Perry, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Farless, Mr. and Mrs. Robert O'Berry, Mr. and Mrs. Murray Perry and Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Stokes Jr.

At Wit's End

By ERMA BOMBECK

My husband is absolutely intrigued by the development of a new light bulb that uses 70 per cent less electricity and lasts up to 10 years.

Ever since the night we followed a beam of light in the sky (thinking it was the opening of a new shopping center) and discovered it was our house, he has decried the amount of wasted energy.

"Maybe we should buy one for our boy graduate this year."

"Are you serious? Buy a light bulb for a child for graduation? What kind of a present is that!"

"A perfect gift for a kid who sits around a living room with 8 lights on watching TV."

"Why don't you tell him?"

"I did. The other night I said, 'Have you no concern at all about saving energy?'"

"I have," he said defiantly. "My own! I'll turn them off during the long commercial."

"Maybe you harp too much on it," I suggested.

"I don't harp enough. We're the only family in the block that heats its house by light bulbs. And that has to open windows during the winter."

"Oh, c'mon."

"We have the only refrigerator light in the country that runs hot. I tell you, these kids do not know how to turn off a light."

"They know," I nodded.

"No they don't! I was showing home movies one night and yelled, 'Will someone get the lights?' Your son said, 'What's the matter? Don't we have enough already?'"

I said, "You don't understand, I want you to turn them off." He just sat there and stared at me. Then he said, 'Is this some kind of a joke—like sending someone after a left-handed screwdriver?' It's no joke," I said. "Those little switches on the wall have two catchy phrases on them—on and off. I'll bet he played with those little things for the better part of ten minutes." As we were talking, our son entered the room. The television set was on. The two table lamps were burning. He walked over and turned on the porch light and two others. "Gosh! It was so dark in here I thought everyone was in bed."

BIG INCREASE

NEW YORK (UPI) — America's divorce rate in 1975 passed the million mark for the first time in history, says Ingrid Eisenstadter, executive director of Zero Population Growth. That figure represents an increase of about 50,000 over the previous year.

Marriages declined during the same period, although more than two million were recorded. California had the highest divorce rate, with more than 129,000.

Cooking Is Fun

COME FOR DESSERT!
Bananas Nassau Beverage
BANANAS NASSAU
Use small or medium, firm bananas; peel them and leave whole; in a skillet in a little melted butter over moderately low heat cook them just until hot through. In a skillet or saucepan over low heat melt guava jelly. Whip heavy cream with a dash of salt, sweetening slightly, flavoring with vanilla extract and folding in grated fresh or flaked canned coconut. Arrange bananas on dessert plates and spoon the jelly over them; top with the cream. Serve at once. Delicious and easy to prepare; convenient, too, because proportions and servings may be varied.

SHOWTIME

For The Week Of April 11-17, 1976

Sandburg's 'Lincoln' Will Be Presented Wednesday Evening

Hal Holbrook stars as Abraham Lincoln, a war-exhausted President struggling to administer a just peace without recrimination, in "The Last Days." This last of the six one-hour "Sandburg's Lincoln" dramas will be televised on NBC-TV, Wednesday, April 14, (10 to 11 p.m., Ch. 6-7), the 111th anniversary of his assassination.

Lee's surrender at Appomattox Court House touches off a wild celebration outside the White House. Although elated over the war's end, Lincoln is disturbed by the reaction of the celebrants who express hatred for the defeated South.

Two days later, Lincoln's proposal to permit Virginia to regain her place in the Union without excessive punitive measures arouses a furious attack by some Cabinet members. Lincoln is persuaded to back down, believing he has time for forget an acceptable reconciliation plan before Congress re-convenes.

After experiencing a vivid nightmare in which he is assassinated, Lincoln brushes aside this foreboding thought when he and his wife, Mary, take a relaxing countryside ride. The film ends as they return to the White House to ready themselves for the performance of "Our American Cousin" at Ford's Theatre on that fateful night of April 14, 1865.

The series also stars Sada Thompson as Mary Todd Lincoln, Normann Burton, Michael Ivan Cristofer, James Carroll Jordan, Bert Freed and Edward Bell co-star.

Ms. Thompson is pleased that she could, at last, present Mary Todd Lincoln in a "totally sympathetic light."

"In spite of her many faults, Mrs. Lincoln was a devoted wife and mother," says the actress.

"Mary Lincoln reflects pride in her husband's accomplishments during the nation's darkest hours. She expresses relief that her eldest son, Robert, will return safe from military service and spends a tranquil interlude with her husband discussing their future plans.

She savored the final scene in which she and Holbrook talked of the next four years in Washington, a possible trip abroad and an eventual return to Springfield, perhaps for law practice and a farm on the banks of the Sangamon.

"It's one of those tugging situations where the characters are unaware of what is to happen but the audience knows.

QUIET MOMENT—Sada Thompson, as Mary Todd Lincoln, and Hal Holbrook, as Abraham Lincoln, have a brief, quiet moment together in "Sandburg's Lincoln." "Last Days," the concluding segment of this six-part Bicentennial series, will be colorcast on Channel 6-7 Wednesday, April 14 (10-11 p.m.).

Monday Night Is Baseball Night

Monday, April 12, marks another important milestone for ABC Sports. The network will present their first-ever Monday Night Baseball Game on that night at 8:30 p.m.

As announcers for the event, ABC has chosen three top-notch veterans of the sporting world. Bob Prince, long-time play-by-play analyst for the Pittsburgh Pirates, will be the head announcer. He will be ably supported by Bob Uecker, who will provide the expert color commentary, and Warner Wolf, host for the series of sixteen games.

The New York Yankees traded power or speed in the off-season, grabbing youngsters Mickie Rivers and Willie Randolph, but relinquishing superstar Bobby Bonds. Also newly acquired are pitchers Dick Ellis, Ken Brett and Ed Figuera.

The Yankees have superstar Jim "Catfish" Hunter on the pitching mound, as well as bullpen ace Sparky Lyle. Thurman Munson is one of baseball's finest catchers, and third baseman Graig Nettles, first baseman Chris Chambliss and outfielder Elliot Maddox should provide ample offensive punch.

New York must shore up their bullpen and defense if they expect to return to their glory days in the past.

Baltimore rarely loses to the Bronx Bombers at home, but the Yankees always give the home-standing Birds a good struggle, often pulling out surprise victories. Look for both teams to be at their struggling best in order to win an important victory in this early-season clash.

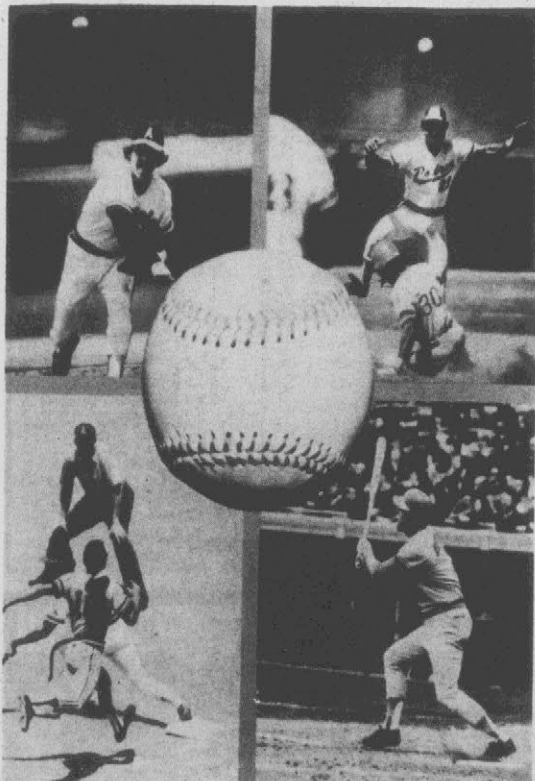

Wolf is nationally renowned as a sportscaster in the Washington, D.C. area, and recently performed an excellent job as speed-skater analyst in the Winter Olympics. Uecker has served as comedic, expert "colorman" for various major-league teams.

In the initial game, the Baltimore Orioles will face their long-time division rival New York Yankees. Both teams are expected to battle in the American League.

The Orioles feature superb team defense and pitching. The club has four bonafied Golden Glovers in third baseman Brooks Robinson, shortstop Mark Belanger, second baseman Bobby Grich and center fielder Paul Blair.

Baltimore pitching staff includes Cy Young award winner Jim Palmer, and veterans Mike Cuellar, Ross Grimsley, and Mike Torres. The bullpen is headed by Jefferson and Jackson.

However, the Orioles must improve their offense. The club has one of the lowest batting averages in baseball, and if they can improve on their slugging power, they will challenge for the division title.

PLAY BALL—Baseball takes center stage on Monday, April 12 (8:30-11 p.m.) on ABC-TV, when ABC Sports begins its coverage of Major League Baseball. Top professional baseball action, with sparkling play by play and informative expert color commentary, will be telecast on sixteen Monday nights during the season and for the American and National League Championship playoffs.

Lewis Directs Roberts Special Monday Night

As surely as the sun rises every morning and goes its appointed rounds every night, spring will always follow the long sleep of winter, and people, like nature, will keep on "beginning again." New beginnings and a promise of more to come are the basis for Oral Roberts' upcoming Easter celebration titled "Spring Is Hope." The one-hour tribute to spring, starring Robert Goulet and special guest Corrie ten Boom, is scheduled to air Monday, April 12 at 10 p.m. on Channel (9) WNCT.

The special is the first in a series to be directed by Jerry Lewis. Following a special guest appearance on Roberts' Christmas show, the triple-threat comedian-singer-director became so interested in the Roberts ministry that he agreed to go behind camera and lend his expertise as a director to the already well established and excellently produced religious series.

The fast-paced production schedule provided a challenge worthy of the Lewis talents. In an off-the-cuff interview, Lewis declared of the special, "It's the hardest thing I've ever done. These people are used to putting together in three days what I would like seven weeks to do."

But put it together he did. Goulet sparkles in a way that will excite any audience. His belting delivery of songs, coupled with a dramatic treatment, is a one-two punch. Whether it is the magic of the Lewis touch, or the presence of one of America's most respected religious leaders, Goulet's performance is truly inspired.

In a quietly contrasting bit, 83-year-old Corrie ten Boom speaks with great beauty and honesty of her experiences as a prisoner of war in Nazi prison camps

"Here Comes Peter Cottontail", an Easter special will be presented on CBS Ch. 9-11 Tuesday, April 13 from 8 to 9 p.m. See related story inside on page 5.

Assortment Of Costumes Used In 'Phantom Rebel'

However authentic things are before the cameras of the "Special Treat" production, "The Phantom Rebel," Tuesday, April 13, 4 to 5 p.m., on NBC-TV, the Revolutionary War setting leads itself to behind-the-scenes anachronisms.

Youngsters Lance Kerwin and Elizabeth Cheshire run down a street in old Philadelphia to the cobbler shop of the Phantom Rebel (played by Simon McPeak) and their costumes are totally in keeping with the period. Just behind the cameras, which are filming at the tourist attraction called Ports of Callin San Diego, are numerous onlookers (mostly tourists) clad in Hawaiian shirts, blue jeans, and thong sandals. The contrast in formality is startling.

THE PHANTOM REBEL—Simon McPeak plays a simple cobbler at the time of the American Revolution, who masquerades in a pumpkin head in order to hijack arms from the British forces in "The Phantom Rebel" to be colorcast on NBC-TV monthly series of "Special Treats" Tuesday, April 13 (4-5 p.m.).

One of the extras, dressed in a longtailed coat, a tricolor hat and peruke (wig tied with a black ribbon) hustles off the cobblestone street on cue, and hustles directly to a glass-enclosed phone booth nearby to call his agent.

During a waterfront sequence, an actor dressed as a British sailor in a striped jersey, white pants, a flat-crowned hat and a brass-buttoned blue coat, spoils the effect of his costume by wearing aviator sunglasses.

In the Hancock Park location, during which a festive dinner for the British general (Liam Sullivan) is staged, the ladies of the company are lovely in powdered wigs, brocaded satin gowns and lace ruffles... until off-camera they light up cigarettes and the illusion vanishes literally, in a puff of smoke.

An actor in a Colonial wig climbs out of his uncomfortable costume and into an Arnold Palmer-type alpaca cardigan, a jarring note with the traditional hairstyles.

'Eternal Light' Airs

The Jewish Theological Seminary of America will present an "Eternal Light" Passover special, "A Conversation with Professor Richard B. Morris," Sunday, April 11, 12 noon to 12:30 p.m., on NBC-TV.

Talking with Professor Morris is Rabbi Max J. Routeenberg, Rabbi Emeritus of Temple Bnai Shalom, Rockville Center, New York, and Program Editor for the Eternal Light. Professor Morris is President of the American Historical Association, Special Lecturer and Gouverneur Morris Professor Emeritus of History of Columbia University, and the author of many books about the Founding Fathers. He is also Chairman of the New York State Bicentennial Coordinating Council.

"Ranger's Guide to Nature," comedy animation and live-action nature photography — two of the things Disney does best — airs on "The Wonderful World of Disney" Sunday, April 11, 7 to 8 p.m., on NBC Channel 6-7.

With the help of the various outdoors characters he encounters, Ranger J. Audubon Woodlore takes Huey, Louie and Dewey Duck on a funny tour of his national park and points out the panorama of nature's unfolding drama played-out in the grass roots jungle underfoot.

In the course of the hour funfest, Ranger Woodlore, as self-appointed spokesman for "mother nature," delivers an all-knowing lecture on why earth's mite-sized inhabitants act as they do.

The counselor shows, in spectacular close-ups, various species of birds feeding their young, caterpillars emerging from cocoons, honey bees collecting pollen, and scores of other entomological enterprises to give his audience a new perspective on nature. The result is a striking kaleidoscope of earth's creative labors among the lower forms of life.

"Ranger's Guide to Nature" features the talents of Bill Thompson as the voice of the ranger.

MASTER PLAN—Ranger J. Audubon Woodlore explains Nature's master plan of providing and caring for all things to Donald Duck's nephews, Huey, Louie and Dewey in "Ranger's Guide to Nature," an hour of comedy animation and live-action nature photography, two of the things Disney does best, airing Sunday evening, April 11, on "The Wonderful World of Disney" on Channel 6-7.

Decorating Magic

Decorating ideas can please the eye as well as create lovely and livable rooms. Like every other trade, there are magical tricks even when you know how they are worked. Some have to do with lighting; some, with window, wall or floor treatment; others, with furniture placement, color-scheming, space saving, accessorizing, room division. It's very important to have a total-room, goal in mind and stick to it. Don't get carried away with an idea that just won't work for you.

Decorating magic is closer than you think. Stop in for a selection of beautiful wall to wall carpeting. Expert installation is assured.

Magnetism Lured Michell

In 1974, when Keith Michell was in Israel for the filming of the TV special, "The Story of Jacob and Joseph," he was confronted by a situation he hadn't anticipated — an outbreak of the Arab-Israeli War. Production of the special was held up when some of the Israeli crew went off to fight. "I swore," Mitchell said laughingly, "that I wouldn't get involved with another Bible story after that."

But Michell has since reversed his decision, involving himself in yet another Bible story because of what he calls "a wonderful script and the opportunity to play one of history's most full and complex characters." That character is King David, and in Part II of "The Story of David," — "David the King" — airing on Sunday, April 11, 9 to 11 p.m., ABC Ch. 3-5-12, he evokes a powerful portrait of one of the Bible's most fascinating figures.

Michell is an actor who believes in the importance of location shooting. "Having gone to Israel to film 'The Story of Jacob and Joseph' was an enormous help to me in playing Jacob," explained Michell during a visit to New York. "Since events in the Bible are broadly outlined, an actor is left largely to his own instincts. On location, the body absorbs something that you could never hope to get in the studio situation. It is wonderful to walk among the animals, in the sun, under those skies. You can actually feel what it was like to walk there as Jacob."

Series' Guest Lives Dangerously

TROUBLED—Lisa Gerritsen plays a troubled teen-ager who tells police that she witnessed events which she believes led to a slaying in "Runaway" on NBC-TV action series "Jigsaw John," Monday, April 12 (10-11 p.m.) on Channel 6-7.

She's almost reluctant to talk about it, but Lisa Gerritsen, who's been playing Cloris Leachman's TV daughter for six of her nine years as an actress, is an all-round outdoor-girl.

"I don't want people getting the idea I'm some kind of a danger freak," says the accomplished young actress who guest stars in "The Runaway" segment of "Jigsaw John," Monday, April 12, 10 to 11 p.m., on NBC Channel 6-7.

Lisa, still in her teens, is a sky diver, Scuba expert, equestrienne, water and snow skier, competitive swimmer and now is going to be trained as a professional whitewater paddleboat skipper!

"I've been into river - running about two years and this summer will be trained to guide boats down the rapids of the Stanislaus, American and Tuolumne rivers upstate," says the athletic actress who portrays teen-agers younger than her actual age on television.

She enjoys sky diving most of all, but says "it's an expensive hobby."

Lisa just graduated from Santa Monica High School, where in addition to competing on the girls' swimming team she served as manager of the boys' swim and water polo teams.

After completing her role in "Jigsaw John" as an emotionally - troubled 15-year-old who witnesses a murder and can't get anyone to believe her story, Lisa took a week off for skiing in Utah's Wasatch Mountains before enrolling as a freshman at the University of California, San Diego.

She enjoyed her "Jigsaw John" experience as a "complete change of pace" from her regular role in "Phyllis" as the daughter.

"Not that I don't enjoy doing 'Phyllis,'" she points out. "Cloris Leachman is the most wonderful, helpful and best actress I've ever worked with. But this drama gave me an interesting characterization to develop."

Lisa, in the same part (as Cloris' daughter) was with "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" for five years and prior to that played William Windom's precocious off-spring in "My World and Welcome To It," the TV series based on James Thurber's life.

Linus' Hero

One of the most successful creative teams in television is a four-man argument against togetherness.

St. John is skeptical of a lonely, neglected teen-ager's belief that she was a witness to a slaying, but when her assertion is proved, her life is endangered. (60 min)

(11) Medical Center: Dr. Gannon suddenly finds himself in a father's role when a teen-ager's mother is too busy to give the girl attention, Dana Wynter and Dick Van Patten guest star. (repeat, 60 min)

(25) Soundstage: "Blood, Sweat & Tears and Janis Ian" Two influential forces on recent popular music perform the songs they made popular. (60 min)

Charles M. Schulz, Lee Mendelson, Bill Melendez and Vince Guaraldi, who pool their considerable talents to produce the award-winning "Charlie Brown" animated TV specials, all do their work in different cities.

Creator-writer Schulz writes the scripts in his Santa Rosa, Calif., studio. Producer-director Melendez directs his staff of animators in Hollywood. Executive producer Mendelson audits for the kids' voices at Burlingame, near San Francisco. And Guaraldi composes the musical scores in Mill Valley, on the upstate side of the Golden Gate Bridge.

Says Melendez, "Unlike most Hollywood production teams that meet almost daily, we get together just two or three times a month. Because our meetings are infrequent, they have a certain specialness to them. I think that's one reason we're still good friends after a 10-year working partnership."

Their 12th joint effort, "It's the Easter Beagle, Charlie Brown," will be broadcast Monday, April 12, 8 to 8:30 p.m., on CBS Channel 3N-9-11.

Although Linus' track record for producing legendary heroes is somewhat tarnished, since his famous Great Pumpkin has never appeared, he proceeds to introduce another "magical" character to his doubting "Peanuts" pals.

Yankees Meet Orioles

The New York Yankees will meet the Baltimore Orioles in Baltimore's Memorial Stadium on Monday, April 12, 8:30 to 11 p.m., Channel 3-5-12, as ABC Sports' extensive coverage of Major League baseball begins with the premiere of "ABC's Monday Night Baseball," hosted by Warner Wolf, with play-by-play announcer Bob Prince and expert color commentator Bob Uecker.

Starting with the Yankees - Orioles game, ABC Sports will televise 16 Major League baseball games on Monday nights during the upcoming season, with live and exclusive telecasts of the All - Star Game and the American and National League Championship Playoffs.

Baltimore finished second in the American League's Eastern Division in 1975, with 90 wins and 69 losses, behind the Boston Red Sox, the American League's entry in the World Series. The World Series will be televised live and exclusively by ABC Sports in 1977 and 1979.

New York finished third in the Eastern Division last year, with 83 wins and 77 losses.

This leadoff game could develop into a pitchers' duel since both the Yankees and Orioles have highly regarded pitching staffs.

Among the top Orioles hurlers is 1975 American League Cy Young Award winner Jim Palmer, who led all major league pitchers last year with a 2.09 earned run average and 10 shutouts.

He tied with the Yankees' star pitcher, Jim "Catfish" Hunter, for the most victories in the American League last season. Both men won 23 games.

Hunter, the runner-up for the 1975 Cy Young Award, has - aside from one of the highest price tags in professional baseball - the distinction of being one of only three pitchers in the history of Major League baseball to record five consecutive 20-wins campaigns.

Peter Cottontail Comes To TV

"Here Comes Peter Cottontail," a lighthearted animated special, told and sung by Danny Kaye, will be presented Tuesday, April 13, 8 to 9 p.m., on CBS Ch. 9-11.

Based on the book "The Easter Bunny That Overslept" by Priscilla and Otto Friedrich, the story relates how Peter fails to deliver more Eastereggs than the evil Irontail, but is saved from disgrace by Mr. Sassafrass and his time machine. With the aid of this invention, Peter attempts to go back a day in time to make amends, and manages to land in every important holiday except Easter before he sets things right again.

Kaye, a longtime Pied Piper through his worldwide contact with children as UNICEF's ambassador of goodwill, feels that the best avenue to a child's mind is through the funnybone.

"Kids will laugh at anyone willing to act like a child," says Kaye, "and I am a good child." Danny has always used his extraordinary talents of mime and singing as well as comedy and rapid-fire diction to apply humor to serious, fund-raising events.

He whipped out a fly swatter as guest conductor of the Los Angeles Philharmonic in raising $105,000 for its pension fund. He was described by one critic who conducts the audience and the orchestra with equal bravura.

A SWITCH FOR ZIMBALIST

Efrem Zimbalist Jr., a TV cop for these many years ("The FBI" and "77 Sunset Strip"), turns to comedy next, starring in "Second Time Around," a half-hour pilot planned for NBC-TV. Based on a British hit of the same name, vehicle deals with a man who falls in love with a much-younger woman. They are now testing for the femme lead in the show, which goes into production soon.

1:00 (5) Mission Impossible

FUNNY BUNNY—Peter Cottontail, in an attempt to deliver all his Easter eggs, goes back in time and finds himself in every holiday season, but Easter in "Here Comes Peter Cottontail," a light-hearted animated special, told and sung by Danny Kaye, Tuesday, April 13 (8-9 p.m.) on Channel 3N-9-11.

Kaye and his wife, Sylvia Fine, grew up on the same block in the East New York section of Brooklyn; he the son of a garment worker, she the daughter of a dentist. Oddly, although they lived on the same block, the pair never met. The two crossed paths in 1939, when Danny, a budding comedian, and Sylvia, an unknown songwriter, worked together in an Off-Broadway show.

The show was a turkey, but it unwittingly fostered a new success: Mr. and Mrs. Kaye. Married in 1940, their's is one of the most lasting and remarkable marriages in the annals of show business.

Deadly Visitor

Gwen Verdon stars as the operator of a turn-of-the-century boarding house, haunted by an enigmatic and frequently vicious female presence in "The Deadly Visitor," a 90-minute ghost story to be presented on "Tuesday Mystery of the Week" April 13, at 11:30 p.m., on ABC Channel 3-5-12.

Perry King, Stephen Macht, Ann Miles, and James Keach are also in the cast. Mrs. Moffat, however, demands that the horror be removed from her house.

Offers Advice

In a recent appearance on "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson," Orson Welles offered tips for guests on television talk shows.

This was Welles's second appearance on the program since January. On Monday, April 12, he will be guest host of "Tonight."

"First of all," said Welles, "guests should not come on a talk show with any prepared material. It should all be off the top of the head."

"I don't believe in fancy entrances. Guests should come on straight and not try to be cute. They should talk directly to the host of the show, like I'm going to you now (to Carson). I don't think on shows like this guests should talk to the studio audiences."

"Lastly, film guests, stars who are used to being kings and queens on movie sets and are used to having everyone laugh at their jokes, should not repeat them on shows. What they laughed at on a set is probably not funny to viewers."

Education Aids Burton

One minute he is discussing "1601," an obscure book by Mark Twain, and the next, he's holding forth on a brilliant catch he saw during a ball game. That's the way Richard Burton rushes from one subject to another.

Ideas, opinions, entire concepts flow from him like bullets from a machine gun. He says all Welshmen are great talkers, but there aren't many whose ranges include the situation in Southeast Asia, the American civil rights movement, 17th - century poetry, method acting and the political situation on the island of Haiti.

His knowledge of Haiti came in handy while filming "The Comedians," the exciting screen version of Graham Greene's best-seller which will be rebroadcast as "The CBS Late Movie" Tuesday, April 13, 11:30 p.m., on Channel 9-11. He appears in the film with Elizabeth Taylor and Alec Guinness, Peter Ustinov, Paul Ford and Lillian Gish.

Were it not for his determination to educate himself, Burton might today be a Welsh coal miner, as were his father and six brothers. But a scholarship to Oxford University and a subsequent part in an Emlyn Williams play gave him a good start on the road to theatrical stardom.

Burton likes joking about his humble background. During the shooting of "The Comedians" in Dahomey, West Africa, Burton was housed in an ultra-plush villa, normally reserved for visiting heads of state. After he had moved in, Alec Guinness facetiously asked him if he found his accommodations satisfactory.

Equally facetiously, Burton replied, "It's just like the house I grew up in."

Although he has a firm hold on the world of the theatre and films, Burton remains a hard worker, spending hours over a script, with the result that he knows not only his lines but those of practically every other performer in the cast. And, although his voice is probably among the finest of living actors, he still spends 20 minutes each morning doing vigorous exercises in the shower to make certain that Welsh doesn't creep back into his accent.

ANOTHER WIFE—King David (Keith Michell) takes another's wife, Bathsheba (Jane Seymour) and then plots her husband's death in "David the King." Part II of the four-hour ABC dramatic special, "The Story of David." Part II will be seen Sunday, April 11 (9-11 p.m.) on Channel 3W-5-12.

Shepherd Becomes Ruler

A family story of intrigue, passion, lying, killing and power politics — a saga of life in contemporary American society? No, this gripping drama occurred some 3,000 years ago, during the Golden Age of Israel when David became the second King of Israel, a great military leader, a poet who wrote and sang many of the psalms and who made Jerusalem the spiritual center of his world. So it remains for millions of people today.

David's ascendancy from a mere shepherd boy to the ruler of all his people is brought to life on the two-part, four-hour television special, "The Story of David."

The special four-hour presentation stars Timothy Bottoms as young David and Anthony Quayle as King Saul. In the second part, Keith Michell stars as King David, Susan Hampshire plays Princess Michal, David's first wife; Jane Seymour is featured as Bathsheba and Barry Morse is seen as King David's friend and advisor, Jehosephat.

Part II, airing Sunday, April 11, 9 to 11 p.m. on ABC-TV, details his consolidation of the tribes of Israel and David's long, remarkable and often tumultuous reign.

The program includes such powerful developments as the blood feud between war chiefs Abner and Joab, Joab's securing of the Holy City for David, the King's fabled love affair with Bathsheba, which brought upon him Yahweh's curse through the prophet Nathan, and the struggle for the throne of the aging David among his many sons.

Shot on location in Israel and Spain, "The Story of David" brings to life the Biblical recounting of one of the most important figures in ancient history.

'Blow Up' Is Tense Drama

David Hemmings and Vanessa Redgrave star in the engrossing story of a photographer who thinks he is an accidental witness to a murder, in "Blow-Up," which will air as "The CBS Late Night Movie" Monday, April 12, 11:30 p.m., on Channel 9-11. Sarah Miles also appears in the film, along with internationally known model Verushka.

Thomas (Hemmings) is caught up in a psychological nightmare when his blow-up shots of lovers in a London park reveal a gunman shooting at the couple from the safety of some bushes. The girl, (Miss Redgrave) whom Thomas has photographed visits him and GERALDINE—Flip Wilson, as the bombastic Geraldine, gives members of the Sun Valley Suns hockey team a piece of her mind, on "Flip's Sun Valley Olympiad," special to be presented Wednesday, April 14 (8-9 p.m.) on Channel 3N-9-11.

Flip Wilson hosts and performs in his own outrageous version of the Winter Olympics, with special guests from the worlds of comedy, music and sports, in "Flip's Sun Valley Olympiad," a one-hour special to be presented Wednesday, April 14, 8 to 9 p.m., on CBS Channel 9-11.

Guest starring on the special, to be taped entirely on location in Sun Valley, Idaho, will be comedian Richard Pryor, singer Minnie Riperton, Alex Karras, skating star Peggy Fleming, Olympic speed skating Gold Medalist Sheila Young, and the world figure skating championship team of Randi Gardner and Tai Babilonia.

"Flip's Sun Valley Olympiad" will present music and comedy performances and championship exhibitions by top athletes with commentary provided by Flip Wilson and Alex Karras. Some of the sports action will include an exciting exhibition of freestyle "hot dog" skiing, a downhill race for toddlers, a dog sled race, and a performance by the Sun Valley Suns hockey team.

Wilson considers his audience to be his friend. "I think people relate to me in a very personal way because of this," he says. "I figured they could relate to Geraldine in the same way."

Flip is totally devoted to his character, who he creates himself and who he writes for exclusively. "All my characters are my own creations," he explains. "I have to create myself and judge the thing as a whole."

"Who are my inspirations? Mae West was one dimension, she's immortal ... and W.C. Fields was another. I think Mae West influenced Geraldine a great deal and I also evaluated Jerry Lewis to see why he was unique. I love his mobility, his clownishness. And I have a great deal of respect for Bob Hope.

"I think the thing that made these people immortal, was that in any situation they never admitted defeat. They were always in control. So in recognizing the value of each of their qualities, I decided that I could use to create my own characters and my own style.

"To me, great comedy is like a fine musical performance ... it flows, it goes up and down, it has different moods, expresses different feelings. My goal is to hit all of those various levels during a performance, not just plain laughter.

"There's a smile, for instance, and a wink and even a subtle chuckle. I don't think they should be overlooked. And there are all kinds of laughs — laughs from the heart and belly laughs too. Just like a fine musical performance. It's important to have all of those elements," he concluded.

Charles Ingalls (Michael Landon) brings his family to Plum Creek, Minn., in 1878 to try farming, in "A Harvest of Friends," the premiere episode of "Little House on the Prairie" to be rebroadcast Wednesday, April 14, 8 to 9 p.m., on NBC Channel 6-7.

Ingalls, denied credit in nearby Walnut Creek at the general store of Mr. Oleson (Richard Bull), next tries the feed and seed store of Liam O'Neal (Ramon Bieri). He offers to fix the man's roof and stack his sacks of grain within three weeks. But on a picnic with wife Caroline (Karen Grassle), daughters Laura and Mary (Melissa Gilbert and Melissa Sue Anderson) and Baby Carrie

Other residents of Walnut Creek are Hanson, the mill owner; Mrs. Oleson; Doc Brady, and the Rev. Alden. Each of these characters is as different from one another as are the actors who portray them.

Richard Bull (Mr. Oleson) is a native of Zion, Ill., and claims descendency from William Bull, who came to America from England in 1720. Richard began his stage career in Chicago, his home town, and later went to New York before he journeyed to Hollywood for TV and movie roles.

Katherine MacGregor (Mrs. Oleson) grew up in Wyoming and Colorado. Kate studied drama at Denver, Northwestern University and with Sanford Meisner in New York City. She played on Broadway in "Seven Year Itch," which launched her career that now includes TV serials, regional theater and TV films.

Triumph Over A Tragedy

In keeping with the season, the triumph of faith and hope is the theme of "The Waltons' Easter Story," encoring Thursday, April 15, 8 to 10 p.m., on CBS Channel 3N-9-11.

The entire Walton clan of the long-running popular series appears in the drama in which Olivia (Michael Learned) is afflicted with polio. Her husband (Ralph Waite), Grandma (Ellen Corby) and Grandpa (Will Geer), and the seven children portrayed by Richard Thomas, Jon Walmsley, Eric Scott, Mary Elizabeth McDonough, Judy Norton, David W. Harper, and Kami Cotler are all affected by the family tragedy in different ways.

The theme of a crippling affliction, and working to overcome it, prompted the stars of "The Waltons" to join in the fund raising efforts of the 1976 National Easter Seal Rehabilitation Centers for crippled children and adults.

"It's about faith," says Michael Learned, commenting on the segment.

"Olivia's reaction is typical of her," she says. "In bed, and unable to move anything except her arms and head, she eagerly impels the children towards fulfilling the possibilities she feels they may have, urging Jason to enter a musical contest, Ben to be a salesman, and John-Boy to prepare himself for college.

"When little Elizabeth asks what is on everyone's mind — 'why Mama, why would God punish someone so good and kind?' — Olivia replies that 'there's a purpose for everything, and God knows what it is, even if we don't. We have to trust His wisdom.'

"She makes Mary Ellen a dress for the big dance, and is so determined to show her how to dance that she manages to raise a leg. Then, when the ladies of the town bring her a quilt, with greetings of encouragement, Olivia's response is revealing.

Don't expect to see anymore segments of "Petrocelli." NBC is taking it of the air by month's end and it won't be renewed for next season. It's not the only show that will be axed by the network, who's suffered its worst season in years in the rating race.

Bonnie Franklin of "One Day at a Time" left for points unknown as soon as taping of this season's shows was completed. Bonnie flew to New York and has since gone to an undisclosed recreational facility to rest and relax.

HOT TAXPAYERS—ABC looks at how taxpayers' money is spent in government supported medical programs in the documentary special, "ABC News Closeup: Medicine and Money," airing Thursday, April 15 (10-11 p.m.) on Channel 3W-5-12. For the report ABC News filmed an interview with Dr. Paul Brown, (left)

"A Boy Named Charlie Brown," the first motion picture starring the Peanuts, that unique gallery of comic - strip characters created by Charles M. Schulz, will have its television premiere as a special animated feature, Friday, April 16, 8 to 9:30 p.m., on CBS Channel 9-11.

The movie stars Charlie Brown, Snoopy, Linus, Lucy, Schroeder and the rest of the Peanutland clan in a 90-minute adventure that finds hapless Charlie doing his thing — running the gamut from trauma to triumph and back again as he manages to find the shortest distance between calamity and catastrophe.

"A Boy Named Charlie Brown" was written by Charles M. Schulz, with music and lyrics by Rod McKuen.

In the beginning, it is a day like any other day in the life of Charlie Brown. The roundhead survives a losing battle with a kite, his team's 99th defeat on the baseball diamond, and a frustrating session with Lucy, his nickel-noodles psychiatrist, only to be taunted into entering the school spelling bee on the off chance that he can redeem his reputation.

Confronted with familiar words like "insecure" and "failure" and "incompetent" — words he feels must have been invented for him — Charlie is a surprise smash. He wins the contest in his grade and, with the help of Linus and Snoopy, goes on to become school champion. Lucy and the lady Peanuts are suddenly faced with the shattering fact that poor ole Charlie Brown is a school hero — and quite possible a money - making celebrity. With dreams of sharing in his fame, Lucy convinces Charlie that he must enter the national special competition.

PEANUTS—Charlie Brown (second from right) is a star and Snoopy (far left) is a ham of a dogged director, while Lucy and Linus are more or less themselves, as the Peanuts put on their own little movie within a movie, in "A Boy Named Charlie Brown," the first feature film about Charles M. Schulz's Peanuts clan. It will be presented for the first time on television, Friday, April 16 (8-9:30 p.m.) on Channel 3N-9-11.

Charlie takes off on the bus for the big city and his big chance. Clutching Linus' security blanket — a last - minute sacrificial gift from his devoted little friend. But what means security to Linus just gives Charlie Brown another set of problems.

During the course of Charlie Brown's spelling - bee saga, Schroeder performs a Beethoven sonata on his mini-piano and Snoopy stars in a solitary ice ballet on the Rockefeller Center skating rink.

Doggedly (meaning Snoopy, the Peanut beagle, in there somewhere), Charlie tackles the contest as the Peanuts gather to watch the competition on television. He is close to becoming the last word in champions.

It's that last word that tells the tale.

Supporting themselves while Oliver finishes law school is difficult, but it brings the couple even closer together, and when he joins a law firm in New York their problems seem to be over. But their worst ordeal has only just begun. Just as they are preparing for their Christmas vacation in Paris, Oliver learns the shattering truth ... Jenny, at age 25, is dying.

'Love Story' Airs Friday

"Love Story," the motion picture which topped even the phenomenal success of the Erich Segal novel by becoming the top - rated movie in television history, returns to the screen as a special presentation of "The Friday Night Movie," April 16, 9 to 11 p.m., on ABC Channel 3-5-12.

Ali MacGraw and Ryan O'Neal are starred as the two young lovers who play out their brief life together in what the New York Times called "as sophisticated as any American movie ever made." John Marley and Ray Milland are also starred as the fathers of the young lovers.

Nominated for seven Academy Awards, "Love Story" won an Oscar for the score by Francis Lai (who also wrote the score for "A Man and a Woman").

"Love Story" tells the deceptively simple story of two apparently mis-matched college students, Oliver Barrett IV (O'Neal) and Jenny Cavillieri (Miss MacGraw) who meet, fall in love, and marry.

After their accidental meeting in the Radcliffe College library, Oliver and Jenny date casually, but their affair doesn't remain casual very long. Even though their backgrounds are totally different — Oliver is from a wealthy and socially prominent family, Jenny's father is a baker in Rhode Island — their relationship deepens. Finally, Oliver convinces Jenny to ignore their differences and marry him.

Parental reactions are very different. Oliver's father (Milland) is opposed to the marriage and threatens to cut the couple off without a cent if they go through with it. Jenny's father (Marley), on the other hand, is disturbed only because they don't plan a church wedding. (His worries are alleviated when he learns that a Harvard chaplain will be present at the otherwise unconventional ceremony they plan.)

Supporting themselves while Oliver finishes law school is difficult, but it brings the couple even closer together, and when he joins a law firm in New York their problems seem to be over.

But their worst ordeal has only just begun. Just as they are preparing for their Christmas vacation in Paris, Oliver learns the shattering truth ... Jenny, at age 25, is dying.

BICENTENNIAL DRAMA—Joshua (William McMillan), a 12-year-old boy, learns the difference between cowardice and fear in "Powder and Shot," a fictional drama set in the Revolutionary War period, to be colocalist on NBC-TV's "GO-USA," Saturday, April 17 (12:30-1 p.m.). In the story, Joshua is aided by his friend Aaron (Cliff Gannon) in taking powder and shot from the British to give to the underarmed patriot troops.

'Go-USA' Hosts A War Drama

A 12-year-old and 17-year-old boy endanger their lives to bring "Powder and Shot" to the Minutemen fighting at Concord Bridge in this fictional story set in the time of the American Revolution on "GO-USA," to be rebroadcast Saturday, April 17, 12:30 to 1 p.m.

William McMillan plays 12-year-old Joshua and Cliff Gannon plays 17-year-old Aaron. Chris Gampel plays Silas, Joshua's father, and Justin Taylor plays Tom, a Minuteman.

Joshua and Aaron go to an old barn to find powder and shot to help the Minutemen, who have only enough powder for a single volley, in this story written and directed by Bert Salzman. They are shot at by a British Redcoat and, while first giving way to panic and fear, finally outwit the soldier and bravely bring back the needed ammunition.

Nutrition Presented

A series of animated public service messages designed to acquaint children with good nutrition and proper eating habits are being offered by ABC-TV to its affiliates for airing during their regular scheduled children's programming, it was announced recently by Squire D. Rushell, Vice President, Children's Programs, ABC.

"In essence, these public service messages are nutritional 'commercials' which began airing on the network during the weekend children's schedule last spring," said Mr. Rushell. "ABC is now making them available to affiliates for broadcast during their locally produced and syndicated children's programs to give broader exposure to the valuable, nutritional information they provide youngsters by teaching them the importance of eating basic, well-planned meals."

TO MRS. J. GLASS, LYNCHBURG, VA.: The March 15th presentation of "The Doctors" was a special 90-minute program marking Dr. Bellini's return to the series. Many NBC affiliates carried it in its entirety, but Ch. 10 did not, altho it was listed erroneously as doing so. We have no say-so, but WSLB (P.O. Box 2161, Roanoke, Va.) does. NBA Playoffs Begin Saturday

Hold onto your tennis shoes, folks — the NBA Playoffs, those heart-stopping, immediate elimination contests, are about to begin once again. In the huge NBA arenas across the nation, noisy fans will ring their message in the ears of every hopeful team.

CBS Sports is turning its cameras toward the National Basketball Association showdown season and extensive coverage in the playoffs and championship series.

With the playoffs scheduled to begin Saturday, April 17, on CBS-TV (teams, site, and time to be announced), CBS Sports' outlook is for up to 15 playoff dates, 63 program hours, 19 games, including four doubleheaders, and the entire best-of-seven game NBA Championship series.

The CBS Sports basketball crew of Brent Musberger, play-by-play; Mendy Rudolph, analyst; and Sonny Hill, basketball editor, will cover the showdown season. Don Criqui, play-by-play; and former Los Angeles Laker great Jerry West, analyst, will join the broadcasts on doubleheader dates.

The first and second-place finishers in each of the four divisions qualify for the playoffs, as well as the best third place team in each conference. The five qualifying teams in each conference are then ranked by final won-lost percentages. The fourth- and fifth-place teams play each other in a two-of-three games mini-series in the qualifying round. The winners of these contests meet the highest-ranked teams in each respective conference.

Meanwhile, the second- and third-place teams compete in the other conference semi-finals. Except for the qualifying round, all series are best-of-seven, with the home-court advantage going to the team with the best regular season won-lost record.

The conference semifinal winners then meet, followed by the best-of-seven NBA championship series between the conference champions; and CBS Sports will follow the bouncing ball to the final basket of the final game.

"Red Auerbach on Roundball," acclaimed as one of the brightest and most informative additions to television sports programming in a long time, and hosted by the Basketball Hall of Famer and laureate of professional basketball, will be featured at half-time by CBS Sports during the playoffs and championship series.

The favorites in this year's race appear to be the two clubs with the finest NBA records — the defending champion Golden State Warriors and the perennially strong Boston Celtics.

Red Sox Meet White Sox

In 1976, Boston's creaky, hospitable Fenway Park will be ringing with the chant "Louie, Louie!" Yes, that colorful veteran pitcher will return to the mound once again, sending New England baseball fans into an absolute frenzy.

The American League Champion Boston Red Sox face the youthful Chicago White Sox, led by new owner Bill Veck on NBC's initial Saturday Baseball Game of the Week on April 17 at 2 p.m. The game will originate from Fenway Park in Boston, with Joe Garagiola and Tony Kubek handling the play-by-play.

Despite pitching with painful tendinitis in his right shoulder at the end of last season, Tiant provided the inspirational hurling ability that led Boston all the way into the final game of the World Series. In the series, Tiant grabbed two victories in three games, with the last being a "no-decision."

Against Oakland, he captured an important, opening-game shutout victory, a series in which the Red Sox took three straight against the defending World Champion Oakland A's.

After pitching for the Cleveland Indians and Minnesota Twins, El Tiant was traded to the Red Sox in 1971. His first full season for the club was in a league-leading 1.91 ERA. In 1974, he led the major leagues with seven shutouts, and has had three consecutive 20-win seasons.

In 12 remarkable years of play, Louis has compiled more than 160 wins and a combined ERA pitching ability. In both 1974 and 1975, he was named Boston's "Most Valuable Pitcher."

Tiant's complex pitching motion drives opposition batters crazy, and has made him a clear Boston favorite. In his delivery, he turns back completely away from the batter, as his head is facing third base. With a suddenness, he fires the ball toward the plate, usually frustrating the batter with an assortment of fastballs, curves, screwballs, drops and curves.

Tiant reflected on his desire to pitch in a World Series last season.

"I want to pitch in the playoffs and World Series," he said. "It means a great deal. I've had a lot of good things come to me, but to pitch in the Series is something you get close to maybe once in a lifetime."

And cries of "Louie, Louie" will emerge from Fenway Park once more.

Golf Tournament Is Top Competition

The exciting third-round of the Tournament of Champions, live from the La Costa Country Club in Carlsbad, California, will be televised on Saturday, April 17, beginning at 6 p.m. on ABC.

Defending champion Al Geiberger will try for two in a row against all the top golfers in the world. To qualify for the Tournament of Champions, a golfer must have won a tournament over the past calendar year. The tournament just might feature the most select and prestigious group of golfers in the game — for example, only 30 pros competed in last year's event.

But the golfers who do participate are thrilled to be there, because there is no 36-hole cut, and every golfer is guaranteed at least $2,000. This situation prompted Lee Trevino to exclaim, "Anytime I can't miss the cut and I'm guaranteed money, I'm on vacation!"

Despite its obvious championship flavor, the tournament has never really enjoyed the status it probably deserves. Some of this loss of luster may be due to the fact that many of the participants are suffering the "post-Masters blues," because the Tournament of Champions directly follows the legendary Augusta Classic.

Since its inception in 1953 at Las Vegas, the tournament has always been an enjoyable, relaxing one for both the players and wives, probably due to the guaranteed money. Tom Weiskopf echoed the sentiments of many of the pros when he declared, "You come here and kind of hope to play well because there's a lot of money to win. But if nothing happens in the first round or the second round, you just relax and have fun."

There is a lot of money to be won, and this always makes for highly competitive play. Last year's finish was a typical thriller, as Al Geiberger, the 1966 PGA Champion, edged out Gary Player on the first hole of a sudden death playoff. Al three-putted the eighteenth hole to send the tournament into a tie, but birdied the fifteenth to capture the victory.

As added incentive, the tournament purse has been upped to $225,000, while the first-place jackpot is now a hefty $45,000.

The Tournament of Champions may not be as renowned as the British and U.S. Opens, the Masters and PGA, but the competition level is just as excellent. And it's fun too!

Ali-Dunn Fight Will Be Aired On NBC

World heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali will defend his title against British and Commonwealth titlist Richard Dunn in a 15-round bout to be broadcast exclusively on NBC-TV, live via satellite from Munich, Germany, Monday, May 24, 9 p.m.

On the same card, Duane Bobick, ranked 8th among the world's heavyweights, will fight an opponent yet to be named in a 12-rounder.

In making the announcement today, Carl Linemann Jr., Vice President, sports, NBC-TV, SAID: "This major attraction in prime time is in keeping with NBC Sports' philosophy of presenting major sports events live."

Since acquiring a new manager, George Middleton, Dunn has won six fights in a row. He boasts an impressive overall record of 32 victories in 41 bouts. Four of these in 1975 were won on knockouts.

NBC-TV, which pioneered boxing in TV with the Max Baer-Lou Nova bout in 1939, also was the first network to present boxing's first regularly scheduled televised series, "The Gillette Cavalcade of Sports," from 1944 to 1960.

In addition to the Muhammad Ali-Richard Dunn championship fight, the network will colorcast-live, via satellite, on "Grandstand," a major doubleheader of boxing from Paris, Sunday, March 28.

Christ's Life Airs Thursday, Saturday

Max Von Sydow stars as Jesus Christ in "The Greatest Story Ever Told," a dramatic presentation of Christ's life to air as a two-part Easter holiday special Thursday, April 15, and Saturday, April 17, 9 to 11 p.m., on NBC Channel 9-11.

Sydow is supported by an all-star cast.

The film opens with the Birth of Jesus in Bethlehem and King Herod's (Claude Rains) subsequent order to have all male children in that city killed.

Years elapse and Jesus, now His early thirties, begins His career as a religious teacher in Galilee. Under Roman rule, the entire region is in turmoil as Jesus continues His two-fold work of teaching Christianity and performing miracles, now in Judea.

As his fame spreads, Jesus comes to the attention of Herod Antipas (Jose Ferrer), son of Herod the Great — and Pontius Pilate (Telly Savalas) — who determine that He must be stopped from causing unrest in the empire.

Others in the cast are Van Heflin, Charlton Heston, Angela Lansbury, Roddy McDowall, Dorothy McGuire, Donald

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR ANN LANDERS

Do you feel you lost the confidence of your readers after your own marital problem?—Mary Ellen Wallace, Los Angeles, Calif.

● Reader response to my divorce was incredibly supportive and heartwarming. My readers (over 10,000 of them) let me know they loved me and that, if anything, my split-up made me more "human." As one put it: "Dentists do get cavities and doctors become sick." I never realized how many beautiful people there were in the world until I announced my divorce.

FOR DENNIS WEAVER

How long have you been a vegetarian?—Marie Militello, Utica, N.Y.

● Since about 15 years ago when I heard that the drug injected into cattle (to fatten them up) caused cancer in rats but didn't harm humans. I didn't like the idea. Took it personally, in fact, and said to heck with it. I gave up meat then and there and so did my family.

FOR ED McMAHON

How do you manage to give that phony laugh every time Johnny Carson does his monologue at the beginning of the show? I realize that you have a good financial deal, but you still must work hard to force that laugh.—William Connolly, Bridgeport, Conn.

● The simple answer is that I don't have to force any laughs. You see, I don't hear the monologue until the audience hears it, and so it is as new to me as it is to the people watching in the studio and at home.

FOR JOE NAMATH

Your campaign to get yourself traded to the Los Angeles Rams bewilders some of us. What can you, a sore-kneed quarterback whose best days are behind him, bring to a team with two young quarterbacks who have won a lot of games for the Rams the last two years?—John Richardson, Canton, Ohio

● I can bring them an instant Super Bowl championship which they won't get next year playing either one of their present quarterbacks.

FOR JEAN STAPLETON

Are you as domesticated in real life as you are as Edith Bunker?—T.R., Flint, Mich.

● No, because I don't really have that much time. I'm a good housekeeper and a pretty good cook, but find it quicker and easier (also healthier) to make broiled things. I wish I were more creative, though. I envy all those women who stitch away and produce marvelous creations with their hands. I'm all thumbs. I can't make anything functional or interesting. Flops emerge from my fingers.

FOR KATE SMITH

Who is your favorite singer?—S.T., Cumberland, Md.

● I like them all. Every singer is tops with me. But these days the one who immediately comes to mind is John Denver. The minute he opens his mouth, you can see he enjoys what he's doing. That's what I like to see—people enjoying their work!

FOR REP. JOHN E. MOSS

Chairman of the Oversight and Investigations Subcommittee

What was the best suggestion (at your hearings) for cutting down on the number of operations performed on patients?—A.K., Flushing, N.Y.

● The recommendation that independent and objective second consultations by an expert doctor be required before a patient undergoes surgery. This would apply particularly to tonsillectomies, hysterectomies and other elective procedures.

FOR NINO LO BELLO, author of "Vatican, U.S.A."

Did the Vatican or any part of the Catholic Church secretly have anything to do with the recent Watergate scandal?—Mrs. Emilie Rooney, Glendale, N.Y.

● No way. Not generally known, however, is the fact that the Watergate office and apartment complex in Washington, D.C., was built by Societa Generale Immobiliare, a Rome-based company, and that the Vatican owned 22 percent of the company's stock when the complex was built.

FOR JERRY LEWIS

Have your bizarre antics ever embarrassed your wife?—Mrs. John Rogers, Atlantic City, N.J.

● If I have ever embarrassed Patti, she loves me too much to take me to task for it, and I love her too much ever to embarrass her wittingly. Neither one of us has claims to insensitivity.

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

What is Debbie Reynolds's marital status now?—S.W. Florence, S.C.

● Debbie became Mrs. Harry Karl in 1960, and divorced her husband 13 years later; she was first married to Eddie Fisher (1955-1959). There are no men around right now, at least no one of a serious nature. Says Debbie: "Marriage doesn't interest me at the moment. Maybe later on, if I find someone with whom I'd like to spend the rest of my life." Her main concern is her children: Carrie, 19, and Todd, 18 (their father is Eddie Fisher). Even though Carrie will soon have her own apartment and Todd will go off to college next year (they're still living with their mother), Debbie wants to be with them as much as she can. "I lack nothing emotionally or financially. I'm surrounded by love and warmth," says Debbie.

All of Family Love Is Not Loving: One Father's View of the Seesawing Emotions Every Family Experiences

By Wyatt Cooper

Is yours a happy family?
Wait. Don't answer yet. Let's think about it, look at it from several angles. Let's examine it together and make up our minds so that we may not reach the end of our time together without having arrived at a definitive answer.

It is highly impertinent of me to blurt out such a question without warning or preamble on an innocent weekend morning when we're all on our best behavior, looking forward to spending a family day together as peacefully as possible. If I were crass enough to ask you publicly, of course, on TV, say, or standing up in church in front of all your friends, you'd have no choice but to reply with considerable vigor, even indignation, "Why, certainly we are!" Naturally, if that were the occasion, you would, by the tone of your voice, dismiss any possibility that there could exist any flaw, any conflict, or any apprehension in your domestic arrangement. Each of us wishes to put the best face on things when others are watching. We have a perfect right to do so. A right? More like an obligation, I should think. It is none of my business, and I should assume that all the folks at your house live together as serenely and as cheerfully as you all appeared in the photograph on your Christmas card last yuletide, where even the dog was smiling as guilelessly as if he'd never

Is yours a happy family?

Well, if I were your oldest friend, had been your roommate at school and we had participated in late-night discussions, exchanging confidences about our hopes, dreams, ideals and sensual experiments; if we hadn't seen each other for a long time, were totally alone, with absolutely no possibility of being overheard, and if I had just confessed to you my own unhappiness, and you were feeling vulnerable about some misunderstanding over unpaid bills, garbage that had not been removed from the kitchen, coffee grounds that had gotten wrapped up in the sports section before anybody had had a chance to read it, is it possible that you might either burst into tears or break into swearing and start pounding the table, shout-

"We are blenders of whirling emotions—anger, love, remorse, guilt, joy, sweetness, resentments, sulks—all tumbling about like the ingredients of the world's most exotic recipe, and sorting them out is more than most of us can do."

ing, "Miserable! Miserable! Miserable!"? Probably not. Such scenes probably never occur in your life. But there are other homes, not too far from yours, in which worse things have occurred, are occurring even as you read this or will occur at some time in the near future, and it may be that one of the parties to such a scene will some day call on you for advice. So let us, for the sake of your friend, proceed as if we were examining your own life.

Is yours a happy family?

In the first place, whatever your reply and however convinced you may be of your happiness or unhappiness, you may be quite wrong. We are not necessarily the best judges of our own happiness quotients and rarely know whether we're blissful, anguished or a combination of both. We have to realize that nobody—not your best friend or worst enemy, not President Ford or the Queen of England—has a life, either individual or marital, that is total joy or total hell. Well, maybe somebody has. But for the likes of you and me, our lives are a jumble of happiness and unhappiness, as untidy as a bathroom closet. All of us are blenders of whirling emotions—anger, love, remorse, guilt, joy, sweetness, resentments, sulks—all tumbling about like the ingredients of the world's most exotic recipe, and sorting them out is more than most of us can do. We have our good points and our poor ones, our highs and our lows, and we don't always know which is which.

What am I saying? Do I really mean that we don't always know whether we're happy or not? That's exactly what I mean. How are we to judge? We generally go by comparisons. And how much of the truth about other people's lives do we know? They're busy showing us their best faces, too, remember, and we're prone to think everybody else is what he seems to be. We are likely to think that we are the only persons with secret sorrows, secret pains.

As an author and a father, Wyatt Cooper talks about one of life's most binding, most puzzling relationships—the family. Below are his two sons, Anderson and Carter.

"When we are children, it's hard to understand how we can be angry with someone and love him at the same time. When we grow up, it isn't much easier because by that time we're supposed to have things sorted out."

Only we live with those secret failings; only we harbor unspeakable thoughts, dangerous and wild midnight wishes. And we are all amazed, with alarming frequency, when an apparently perfect couple announces that they're splitting up. "What went wrong?" we ask, as if anything "wrong" in the relationship must be new, not something that was a part of it all along.

I used to be terribly ashamed that my parents had ugly arguments. (You couldn't really call them arguments since Papa did all the shouting. Mama's participation consisted of going about her business in absolute silence, which drove him deeper and deeper into rage. On those few times that she yelled back, the fight ended immediately. I'm 48 years old now and still don't know why she replied so rarely. For all I know, the situation may have been a great source of happiness for them both.) I thought that ours was the only house in which such things went on. Consider my astonishment when the preacher's son told me that his parents had really monumental ones! From then on I couldn't take my eyes off the pair at church, all clean and starched and prayerful, halos firmly in place. Was it possible that an hour before they'd been yelling at each other over a strip of burnt bacon?

We're always thinking everybody else has it good except us. Well, I've been around a little, and nobody has it too easy. We're all inclined to feel locked in and alone with the secret of what we take to be our singular failure. We may not be the failures we think ourselves to be.

Another thing—today's discomfort, today's complaint, may well be the very source of tomorrow's nostalgia. Talk to a rich man and see if he doesn't tell you that the happiest days of his life were the tough ones of his early struggles. (I'm not necessarily saying that it's true. I'm only telling you that's what he would say.) If you don't have a rich man handy, ask yourself what you remember most fondly from your youth and see if there isn't some discomfort in it.

A friend of mine had an awful father who used to make scenes in restaurants. He would shout at the waiters. They had put him in a draft and tables would have to be moved. The soup was cold, the wine corked, the meat not fresh and cooked too little on one side and too much on the other. Everything got sent back—several times. And his family would be humiliated. My friend complained endlessly about his father's horrendous performance, dreaded any outing with him. Well, the old man died at last (of apoplexy, naturally), and I thought my friend would be vastly relieved. Wrong. He can hardly bear to go to a restaurant. It just doesn't seem right without Papa there.

It's more than that, deeper than that. Our feelings are terribly complicated toward anybody we love, whether it's our parents, our mates, children or friends. What we feel for others gives them some power over us; our feelings render us vulnerable, subject to injury, and we are afraid, not only of the danger to our feelings but of our own power to inflict wounds.

At this point I shall introduce a word you already know: "ambivalence"—and I don't have to tell you it means the coexistence of opposite and conflicting feelings about the same person or object. Many people know what the word means, but I'm not sure that all of them realize the extent to Losing 78 pounds saved my marriage.

By Nancy Hall — as told to Ruth L. McCarthy

There's nothing like 185 pounds to come between a husband and a wife. Especially when I was the one carrying all the weight. Billy's friends used to call me Big Red, but I didn't know it at the time. All I knew was that Billy was staying out with the boys more and more while I stayed home and got fatter and unhappier.

I blame Billy for part of my weight problem, though. You see, I was a teen-age bride and he took me on so many ice cream dates before we were even married that I started popping diet pills just to get into my wedding dress. But the pills made me so jittery, I almost had a nervous breakdown. Finally, on my doctor's advice, I gave them up.

Of course, after I was married, I wanted to impress Billy with my cooking. But it's rough when there's not much money. So we had a lot of pinto beans, pork, lard, bread and ice cream — unless the hunting season was on. Then we'd have deer and rabbit casseroles and we'd see who could outeat the other. Billy is over 6' tall and I'm only 5'1½" yet I usually outdid him. Naturally, I piled on the pounds until I split the seams on everything I owned.

By the time I'd eaten myself into a size 18 dress, I was really a grouch. I wouldn't even let Billy have his friends over. And I absolutely refused to go camping with him. I knew the other wives would be there in their cute bikinis and all

At 185 pounds, it took a lot of pinto beans to fill out this smock top.

Now I'm 107 pounds, Billy likes me in a bikini, even if the sun isn't out.

BEFORE AND AFTER MEASUREMENTS

	Before	After
Height	5'1½"	5'1½"
Weight	185 lbs.	107 lbs.
Bust	44"	34"
Waist	39"	25"
Hips	42"	33½"

I had to show off was a lot of rolls. As a result, Billy began going his way and I went mine. Even so, it wasn't till someone took my sister for my daughter that I finally did something about my weight.

I'd seen those magazine stories of people who had taken Ayds® Reducing Plan Candy, so I decided to buy the chocolate fudge kind at my local drugstore in Crossville, Tenn. I took two with hot water before each meal (I don't drink coffee) and those Ayds did it for me. By following the plan, I lost a pound or two a week with no strain.

Quite honestly, I'd never been a breakfast eater, so I just had the two Ayds in the morning. At lunchtime, I had two more, then a sandwich or salad. And before dinner, I'd have my last two Ayds for the day. Then I'd eat what I wanted — even some dessert. Only I ate much less because Ayds had a way of satisfying my appetite. And Ayds didn't make me nervous. They contain no drugs.

I must admit that it took about three months before people noticed I was getting slimmer. The reason was I was still covering up my figure with my old clothes. But when I finally got down to 107 pounds and bought a new wardrobe, everybody thought I'd lost the weight "overnight." The change in me was so dramatic that I became a completely new person, both physically and mentally. I'll tell you, Billy didn't want to go anywhere without me.

This brings me to one last thing I'd like to say for the benefit of all women. Don't think as I did that once you get your man, you can do anything. There's a lot of competition out there, so losing your man can be easy if you let yourself go. That's why I say losing 78 pounds on the Ayds plan saved my marriage.

Note: Want to try the Ayds plan? We'll send you a certificate worth $1.00 off on your first box of Ayds (redeemable when returned to us with proof of purchase), plus a free fact-filled 32-page booklet on the causes of overweight, and how Ayds helps you. Mail 10¢ for postage and handling to Campana, Dept. FW-046, Batavia, IL 60510.

Greek Easter Specialty: Egg Bread

By Marilyn Hansen

The Greek Orthodox Easter falls on April 25 this year. Preparation for the feast begins the Thursday before with the baking of Lambropsomo, a sweet yeast bread topped with red-tinted eggs-in-their-shells beneath crossed strips of dough. The bread is served with the traditional roast lamb.

This beautiful Greek Easter Bread, fragrant with orange and anise, would be welcome at your family Easter dinner.

GREEK EASTER BREAD

6-7 cups unsifted all-purpose flour

½ cup sugar

1 teaspoon salt

1 tablespoon grated orange rind

1 pkg. active dry yeast

1 cup water

2 tablespoons margarine

3 eggs, room temperature

¼ cup orange juice

½ teaspoon anise extract

5 hard-cooked eggs, colored red

I love tobacco. I don't smoke.

If I'm a guy who loves tobacco, how come I never take a puff?

Well, because I use "smokeless tobacco."

All it takes is a pinch of "smokeless" in between my cheek and gum. Feels real relaxin' in there. And I get full, rich tobacco pleasure.

Another thing is, "smokeless tobacco" can't tie up my hands. So I can use it no matter what I'm doing.

If you'd like to go "smokeless," here's what you do. Just look for three great brands.

There's Skoal, my favorite, which has a wintergreen taste. Copenhagen, a straight tobacco.

And Happy Days Mint. All three dated for freshness.

They'll each give you the tobacco pleasure you're looking for.

Smokeless tobacco.
A pinch is all it takes.

Walt Garrison, football and rodeo star.

For a free booklet that explains how to get the full enjoyment of "smokeless tobacco" — as well as a few free pinches that you can try for yourself — write to "Smokeless Tobacco," United States Tobacco Company, Dept. E77, Greenwich, Connecticut 06830.

1. In large bowl, mix 2 cups flour, sugar, salt, orange rind and undissolved dry yeast.

2. Heat water, milk and margarine to 120°-130°F. Add gradually to dry ingredients and beat for 2 minutes at medium speed with electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally.

3. Add 2 eggs, orange juice, anise and 1 cup flour, or enough to make a thick batter.

4. Beat at high speed for 2 minutes. Stir in more flour to make a soft dough.

5. Turn dough out onto lightly floured board; knead until smooth and elastic, about 8 to 10 minutes. Place dough in greased bowl and turn to grease top. Cover and let dough rise in warm place until double in bulk, about 1 hour.

6. Punch dough down and turn out onto a lightly floured board. Shape two-thirds of dough into a rope about 30 inches long. On a greased baking sheet, shape dough into a ring that measures 11 inches across from outer edges. Pinch ends together to seal.

7. Take two-thirds of remaining dough and divide in half. Make each into a rope, about 13 inches long. Place over ring, crossing in the center. Tuck ends underneath ring and seal.

8. Place a hard-cooked egg on top of ropes at each point where they rest on the ring. Put remaining hard-cooked egg in center of ropes.

9. Divide remaining dough into 10 equal pieces and roll each into 6-inch strips. Place 2 strips over each egg to make a cross; press edges into dough.

10. Beat remaining raw egg and water together and brush over dough. Let rise in warm place until doubled in bulk, about 45 minutes.

11. Bake in preheated 350°F oven for about 35 to 40 minutes, or until done. Remove from baking sheet and place on wire rack to cool.

Makes 8 to 10 servings

Our Common Beliefs: Test Your Knowledge

True or False? Most American men believe that they have a better life than women. (See number 3.)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Regardless of where they live, most people believe their neighborhood is less dangerous than average.
2. Most of the people who believe in God can't tell you why.
3. Most American men believe that they have a better life than women.
4. It's difficult to tell whether many popular beliefs are based on fact or fancy.
5. Most American men believe that women are irresponsible, scatterbrained, creatures who are basically selfish and inconsiderate of others.

ANSWERS

1. True—at least as far as city dwellers are concerned. This is the finding of an Institute of Social Research study. It was found that "people tend to underestimate the dangers and hazards in their own neighborhoods as compared with the city as a whole or to overestimate the danger of areas with which they have no personal experience." Also, two-thirds of the people surveyed thought that most crimes in their areas were committed by outsiders rather than neighborhood residents.

2. False. A nationwide survey of men and women showed that most have very definite reasons for their belief. The largest percentage attributed their belief to the Bible or some aspect of it. Others pointed to the wonders of nature, the order and laws of the universe and the miracle of the human body. About 12 percent were influenced by the practical necessity of believing in something: "It is safer to believe than not to believe."

3. False. According to a poll, nearly one-third of American men feel that they have the best life, but a like percentage is just as strongly convinced that women get more pleasure and satisfaction out of living. And a similar number of U.S. males feels that it is nip and tuck, with neither sex having the edge.

4. True. An example of this is "water-witching"—or dowsing—the art of locating underground water by interpreting the motion of a divining rod or forked stick. Whether or not it works has long been highly controversial. Some time ago Harvard University sponsored a wide-scale study of the subject. They surveyed county agricultural agents throughout the U.S. as to whether they thought witching worked or not. Findings: 56 percent expressed downright disbelief, 20 percent expressed belief and 24 percent said that they were open-minded on the subject. Exploratory experiments conducted by other universities yielded "evidence that certain dowsers perform much better than chance expectation and that such successes may be an example of ESP, where the response is mediated by unconscious movements of the arms and hands holding the divining rod."

5. False—according to the findings of Oklahoma State University studies which employed psychological tests to determine the beliefs and attitudes of a random sample of young men toward women. Most of them believed women to be "more considerate of the feelings of others and more concerned for their happiness, and felt that women were less ungrateful and less inclined to make selfish demands." Most of the men also believed women to be fully as responsible as men. On the other hand, they felt that women complain more, demand more attention and tend to be more vicious when angered and more stubborn-minded in an argument.

which we live with it, just how ambivalent our feelings are or how ambivalent are the feelings of others in our lives.

When we are children, it's hard to understand how we can be angry with someone and love him at the same time. When we grow up, it isn't much easier because by that time we think we're supposed to have things sorted out. Our parents talked in terms of "good" and "bad" and "right" and "wrong" as if those were absolutes and any reasonable person would know which was which. Life is not that tidy. Our emotions are not that orderly. There is ambiguity in all things, and the ambivalence of our feelings gives us trouble all our lives.

It comes up often in discussions with my sons Carter and Anderson. "But he's a nice person," they'll say about a friend who, perhaps, cheats at games. We talk about how it can be that we are not always totally one thing or the other and that we can love someone in spite of some glaring faults, that loving a person does not mean that we must either ignore, deny or defend those faults. We talk about the possibility that at some time in the future we might even find serious faults in each other (most unlikely, of course, but we're willing to examine even that possibility) but that the revelation of such faults will not end our love or respect for each other.

It is our intention to relish the diversity, the complexity of human nature without being too quick to attach the good and bad labels. We try to find pleasure in the differences between us and not take those divergences of taste or preferences as insults to our own taste and preferences. Anderson is crazy about snakes, for instance, but he mustn't take it as condemnation if Carter can't work up a similar enthusiasm. Members of families can deeply wound each other; they can even destroy each other. We as parents must encourage each member to respect the dignity, integrity and sense of independent growth of each of the others. We are more apt to be able to do so if we have come to terms with our own feelings.

The family as an institution has been highly romanticized. Like marriage itself, it's had a heavy load of expectations dumped on it, and it is now being attacked for struggling under that unfair burden.

We must learn to live with greater ambivalence. We have learned the hard way that all is not so simple as we were told it was. We've found romance and it's not quite what it was in the movies. Many people in my generation thought they were marrying a Ginger Rogers or Clark Gable, and before you could say Louis B. Mayer, their scripts went all awry. Those clever writers weren't around the morning after to provide cute quarrels and snappy dialogue, and pretty soon we were terribly puzzled about what was actually happening to us.

There's going to be a certain amount of conflict within all our families and we have to accept it without thinking evidence of it means the end of the world. Conflict can be useful, and in the case of children growing up, the right kind of conflict with parents helps to strengthen their own sense of identity. Parents who wish to influence their young had better rely on reason and respect to make it work rather than on the kind of authority their fathers used. Respect the child's urge to resist, his need to find his own way, to assert himself and make his own mistakes, and yet be there when he turns to you.

"It comes up often in discussions with my sons Carter and Anderson. 'But he's a nice person,' they'll say about a friend who, perhaps, cheats at games. We talk about how it is that we are not always totally one thing or the other and that we can love someone in spite of some glaring faults, that loving a person does not mean that we must either ignore, deny or defend those faults."

So, whether you are a parent or a child, look at your family and make a mental list of things that may trouble you now but that may be the occasion for bittersweet memories in future years (which, the way time goes now, will be the day after tomorrow) when everybody comes home to renew old ties. At those times we laugh together about old antagonisms, old conflicts. (And sometimes, before the laughter dies down, we start new fights.)

"Look at your family and cherish the love that is there. Express it. Admit it. Get others to admit it. Love is too easily misinterpreted. Falling in love is as common as the endless piling up of days, taking place with no labor on our part. It is as effortless as breathing, but real loving is rare. Though we all do it to some degree, real love remains as rare as the perfect pearl. It's not found in everybody's oyster, and apart from those fortunate ones who stumble over one on the sandy shore, the prize of the pearl goes to those with practice, endurance and perseverance. It requires long training, persistent effort and the ability to hold one's breath under water for long intervals.

Grass Seed Will Never Grow A Lawn Like This!

From Part Shade To Full Sun!
Save Now. Special Introductory Offer. Up To 200 Amazoy Zoysia Grass Plugs FREE

FULLY DROUGHT AND WEAR RESISTANT. Amazoy lawns take cookouts, parties, lawn furniture. You could even play football on it and not get your feet muddy. Rarely (if ever!) needs watering. If you have a shade problem use this rule: If crabgrass grows in the area, Amazoy will not only grow it will drive out the crabgrass.

Grass Seed Is For The Birds! Zoysia Saves Time, Work, Money

of the explorer, Frank Meyer, it was named Meyer Z-52 Zoysia Grass.

We received only a small amount of this Grass—enough to plant test plots in our Nursery Farm.

From that small beginning, these few precious clumps of Zoysia Grass spread until they built a lawn so thick and beautiful that visitors stopped to admire it.

We Tell People, "Walk On It"

Instead of saying "Keep Off The Grass," we invited visitors to walk on it. It was an unforgettable experience for them—like walking on a thick pile carpet.

After walking on it, visitors learned that Amazoy Zoysia turf was crabgrass-proof, and the next question never failed: "How can I get some?"

Other Lawns Burn Out

Now, grass is my company's business; but it was a long time before an order of Amazoy Zoysia Grass was accepted. First we wanted to see how good this grass was. We really found out!

One summer the heat was so great you could fry eggs on the highway. Daily the sun blazed from cloudless skies; the drought worsened; whole ponds dried up. Meanwhile crabgrass flourished and took over lawns by the thousands. IT RESISTS DROUGHT, STAYS GREEN THRU HEAT WAVES

Through it all, our deep-rooted Amazoy Zoysia stood out like a green island in a brown wasteland.

Thrives In Poor Soils

When I planted it in sandy, clay soils and sub-soil, it took hold and thrived. Other grass in the same soils struggled and died.

Compared it to other grasses in the winter. too. Ordinary grasses may die or turn sparse and scraggly due to frost and winter, but in such weather my Amazoy Zoysia merely went off its green color . . . it stayed so thick you could walk on it and not get your feet muddy.

Through zero-cold winters and blistering summer droughts . . . through onslaughts by weeds and diseases . . . our Meyer Zoysia had proved it could "take it." It had earned the right to be called AMAZOY, our Trade Mark published coast to coast and border to border.

By Mike Senkiw

Years ago I was like nearly everyone else with a lawn. I worried about it more than any other thing around the house.

Then things changed. My company obtained a new grass just released by the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture. In honor of

HOW AMAZOY CHOKES OUT CRABGRASS AND WEEDS ALL SUMMER LONG!

If costly chemicals fail to control crabgrass for good, how does Amazoy Zoysia do it? Your deep-rooted, fully established Amazoy lawn grows so thick and luxurious that crabgrass seeds just do not germinate!

Your lawn chokes out not only crabgrass, but other weeds all summer long—year after year.

You will never need to spend a cent on crabgrass and weed killers again. So if you have wanted to get away from costly and dangerous lawn herbicides, Amazoy is your answer.

Your Own Supply Of Plug Transplants

Your established Amazoy lawn provides you with plugs for other areas as you may desire.

HERE'S WHY AMAZOY PLUGS ASSURE SUCCESS WHERE OTHER GRASSES FAIL

Due to Amazoy's national reputation, other grasses may be offered that sound like it. But Amazoy's pre-cut plugs look different, ARE different. They are deep-rooted, winter-hardy plugs produced exclusive for transplanting.

Each large sturdy plug contains 3 square inches or more of living vigorous Zoysia turf, complete with vigorous root system in its original enriched soil.

NEVER NEEDS REPLACEMENT

AMAZOY Saves Money, Cut Work. Never a seed to sow again with Amazoy! Year after year your lawn grows thicker, like a deep pile carpet. Defies enemies that kill other lawns.

PEOPLE WRITE TO ME

As Mrs. Harry Winslow writes to me from the heart of wintry New England:

" . . . How pleased we are with our Zoysia lawn! We had a lawn that was a disgrace. My husband used weed killers for every known weed, but next season new weeds sprang up. We dug the lawn up twice and reseeded before we learned about Amazoy. It does everything you say."

"Mowed It 2 Times," Writes Woman

Mrs. M. R. Mitter writes me how her lawn . . . is the envy of all who see it. When everybody's lawns around here are brown from drought ours just stays green as ever. I've never watered it, only when I put the plugs in . . . last summer we had it mowed (2) times. Another thing, we never have to pull any weeds—it's just wonderful!"

Wonderful? Yes. Amazoy Zoysia IS wonderful! Plant it now and you'll cut mowing by 2/3 . . . never have another weed problem all summer, for the rest of your life!

PLUG AMAZOY INTO OLD LAWN, NEW GROUND OR NURSERY AREA

Just set Amazoy plugs into hole in ground like a cork in a bottle. Plant 1 foot apart, checkerboard style.

When planted in existing lawn areas, plugs will spread to drive out old, unwanted growth including weeds.

AMAZOY CUTS WATERING, CUTS MOWING BY 2/3

Your drought-resistant Amazoy lawn not only cuts your water bills, it cuts your work in other ways: it cuts pushing a noisy mower under a broiling summer sun by 2/3. It resists blight, disease and most insects. It will NOT WINTER-KILL TO TEMPS. 30° BELOW ZERO. After killing frost, it merely goes off its green color, regains fresh new beauty every Spring—a true perennial that ends re-seeding forever!

THERE IS NO SEED

Reports U.S. Dept. of Agric., referring to Meyer Z-52 Zoysia. Experts advise planting only live grass to be sure of getting the famous winter-hardy grass perf. by U.S. Govt., Meyer Z-52.

For Slopes, Play Areas, Bare Spots

Or correct problem areas such as slopes where Amazoy halts erosion, in hard-to-cover spots, around swim pools, in play areas, etc.

NO SOD

Sod of ordinary grass carries with it the same problems as seed—such as weeds, disease, frequent mowing, burning out, etc. Amazoy is sold ONLY in pre-cut plugs . . . never a slab of field grown sod YOU must cut up in order to plant.

FREE WITH ORDERS OF 600 PLUGS OR MORE PATENTED STEP-ON PLUGGER IS . . .

INTRODUCING 1976 MOTHER'S DAY COMMEMORATIVES

The Rose of Love

The Inspiration of the Rose. The unifying theme behind this year's Mother's Day collection is the rose. As the Queen of Flowers, the rose is an appropriate symbol for the joy every woman finds in motherhood. Our inspiration, in fact, came from one of the ancient legends associating woman and roses:

At the beginning of the world God created Woman, and to please her, created the rose. The Hamilton Mint takes great pleasure in presenting The Rose of Love collection. To please mothers everywhere. And to satisfy collectors. And to delight all patrons of fine medallion art.

The 1976 Annual Mother's Day Plate: Love's Circle.

In the tradition of Old World craftsmen, each medallion plate is an individually minted masterpiece. Collectors may choose between antiqued pewter or 24 karat gold-on-pewter. The pewter edition is carefully struck, then finished solely by hand. The gold-on-pewter edition retains the remarkable luster of gold in an opulent satin-frost finish.

The "Love's Circle" plate depicts a delicate bas-relief sculpture of a mother with her infant. Around this touching scene, a garland of roses has been engraved.

"Love's Circle" arrives in a specially-designed case which both protects and elegantly displays the plate. The exterior of each case has been grained and hand-rubbed, making it ideal for presentation.

All Orders Must Be Postmarked by May 9, 1976! The entire The Rose of Love collection, including the "Love's Circle" plate, will be issued only once. The edition will close on May 9, 1976. Collectors may not apply for original purchase after that date.

Collectors who wish to acquire any commemoratives from The Rose of Love collection are urged to apply immediately. The convenient application form may be used to hasten your order. Please remember that it must be postmarked by May 9, 1976 to be accepted by The Hamilton Mint.

"Mother's Rose" Pendant and Medallion.

Symbolizing the intense relationship, our Rose of Love is passed between the Mother and Child.

Available in either .999 fine silver, 24 karat gold-on-silver, or solid 14 karat gold.

Special Offer: Rare Enamel

As an exceptional tribute to this year's Mother's Day, The Hamilton Mint will offer the "Mother's Rose" pendant in beautiful enamel, an ancient process which enhances the original motif of the pendant.

What in the World!

STEVEN AND PATTY IN 1973

Why did Steven Weed play only a "supporting role" in the Patty Hearst drama? Weed talking: "That I found myself at odds with the FBI from the beginning of their investigation came as no surprise. The combination of my 'unsavory' background and their narrow, almost peephole view of the world could produce nothing other than mutual distrust and suspicion. But by the same token, while the deteriorating state of affairs between the Hearsts and me was a result of differences in our personalities, as well as the pressurized situation in which we found ourselves, it was also due to their particular view of the world. Like the FBI, the Hearsts are as much of an organization as a family. From the day I entered the Hearst home after Patty's kidnapping, I found myself in the midst of a conflict in which I had no real role and, because of this, no power to resolve it. To the SLA, I was simply an embarrassment, the boyfriend who had been left beaten and bereaved—not good PR for the Revolution. To the Hearsts, I had always been a source of some discomfort, but was now a considerable aggravation. Dressed in my Levi's and work shirt, I looked, as one of the Hearsts' friends put it, 'more like one of them than one of us.' To the media, I was really not much more than a sidelight, a diversion of sorts. They were quick to see that Patty's kidnapping was something that had happened to 'Hearstom' as much as it had happened to Patty herself. What happened to me was incidental." In Japan, the family still governs lifestyle. Also, unlike Americans, the Japanese value old people for their wisdom. ARMOUR'S ARMOURY

WITH MY COMPLIMENTS

Wives, I've found, like compliments
On their cleaning, cooking,
On what they wear,
Complexion, hair,
And how their looks are looking.

Husbands, too, like compliments
On brains and acumen,
On strength they've got
And lack of pot—
I guess it's only human.

So pay a compliment or two;
You pay, but there's no cost to you.

LITTLE EMILY

New Low Tar Entry Packs Taste Of Cigarettes Having 60% More Tar.

'Enriched Flavor'™ idea succeeds—increases taste of new 9 mg. tar MERIT without the usual increase in tar.

You can write today for a study conducted by the American Institute of Consumer Opinion for Philip Morris showing new MERIT delivers as much—or more—flavor than five current leading low tar cigarettes.

Brands having up to 60% more tar than MERIT!

The reason is 'Enriched Flavor.' An extraordinary taste find developed and perfected after years of research at our Richmond Research Center.

And it's only in MERIT. At 9 mg., lower in tar than 98% of all cigarettes sold today.

If you smoke—you'll be interested.

Taste-Tested By People Like You

9 mg. tar MERIT was taste-tested against five current leading low tar brands ranging from 11 mg. to 15 mg. tar.

Thousands of filter smokers were involved, smokers like yourself, tested at home*.

The results were conclusive.

Even if the cigarette tested had 60% more tar than MERIT, a significant majority of all smokers tested reported new 'Enriched Flavor' MERIT delivered more taste.

Repeat: delivered more taste.

In similar tests against 11 mg. to 15 mg. menthol brands, 9 mg. tar MERIT MENTHOL performed strongly too, delivering as much—or more—taste than the higher tar brands tested.

You've been smoking "low tar, good taste" claims long enough. Now smoke the cigarette.

MERIT. Unprecedented flavor at 9 mg. tar.

Our Story: "SOMEWHERE ALONG THE STREAM THAT BRINGS WATER TO THE 'DEATH TRAP' THE TREASURE MUST LIE, FOR IN ITS MURKY DEPTHS WE FOUND A JEWEL."

"WE MUST FIND THE SOURCE OF THIS WATER," SAYS VAL. THE SEARCH BEGINS IN THE BROOK THAT RUNS DOWN THE VALLEY.

ABOVE THE RUINED PALACE ARE THE REMAINS OF A RESERVOIR AND AN AQUEDUCT THAT SUPPLIED THE PALACE WITH WATER.

AT THE BASE OF THE DAM AMID A MASS OF BROKEN MASONRY AN OUTLET IS FOUND. WATER STILL POURS THROUGH IT, BUT WITH PLENTY OF MATERIAL AT HAND THEY STOP THE FLOW.

HASTENING BACK TO THE 'DEATH TRAP' THEY FIND THAT NO WATER IS ENTERING THE POOL AND ALREADY THE MUD IS SETTLING. "BY TOMORROW IT WILL BE FIRM ENOUGH TO WORK IN," PREDICTS VAL.

WITH WHAT TOOLS THEY HAVE ON HAND THE POOL IS PROBED, AND ITS GRUESOME SECRETS REVEALED; SKULLS, SKELETONS OF ANIMALS, ROTTING BRANCHES AND..... A CUP, BLACK WITH FILTH. ZILLA SCRAPES IT WITH HIS KNIFE AND IT GLEAMS... GOLD! THEN HE TOSSES IT INTO THE POOL FOR A STRANGER APPROACHES.
