

Early Crops May Not Survive April In N.C. Without Showers

By The Associated Press
You don't find anybody going around North Carolina at this point in April saying, "Rain, rain, go away; come again another day."
What you do find is many a person saying, "We sure do need a rain."
April, for the most part, has been without its showers that are supposed to bring May flowers — as well as corn, and tobacco, and wheat, and other crops.

In the Cape Fear region of the state, embracing the southeastern portion, there already is little hope that early tobacco and vegetable crops will survive, even if long needed rains come soon.
Throughout the state the long dry spell has been felt, on farms from mountains to the coast, and in the dry woodlands that have experienced ravaging fires.

According to the National Weather Service at the Raleigh-Durham Airport, the last good general rain over the state occurred the first of this month.
Since records have been kept at the Raleigh-Durham office, dating from 1954, the longest spell without rain was 32 days. A spokesman noted Thursday it now has been 22 days without rain in the current dry spell.

In the Cape Fear region, a 10-county area, there was increased activity among farmers this week to offset the effects of the unusually dry weather and an April 10 freeze.

The region, which includes Cumberland, Hoke, Moore, Lee, Harnett, Sampson, Bladen, Robeson, Columbus and Scotland counties, has taken on the appearance of a dust bowl, with the dry soil blowing in thick clouds.
Northeastward in the Coastal Plain, a Craven County tobacco farmer, Mel Lang, said, "We've been three weeks without rain and I'm preparing now to replant 30 acres of tobacco."
Lang said the winds, kicking up dust storms, have done as much damage as the drought. A native of the area, Lang observed, "I sure don't recall seeing dust storms like I've seen this year. Driving in one, it looks like a pea soup fog."
In Salisbury, one of the effects of drought has been noted in the flow of the South Yadkin River.
The flow recorded one day this week by the U. S. Geological Survey was 54 per cent below the April average.

Hugh Wilder, USGS assistant district chief, said the recorded flow of the South Yadkin was 187 cubic feet per second on the day mentioned.
He said the average for April is 339 cubic feet per second. The amount of water flowing past the check station has been dropping daily, reflecting the dry spring.
The March river flow at the station was the third lowest since measurements were started in 1938, the spokesman said.
Meanwhile, some thunderstorms broke out over the state Wednesday night and Thursday, but the effects were spotty. In Charlotte, for example, some sections were doused while other sections received not a drop.

An Extra Hour

WASHINGTON (AP) — Daylight Saving Time begins Sunday. Remember, it's spring ahead, fall back.

If you like to stroll, swat a tennis ball or water the garden in the evening, then come Sunday you'll have an extra hour of light to indulge in all your favorite pastimes. But if you're a farmer or like to jog before breakfast — well, sorry.

Either way, clocks move forward Sunday one hour for the six months of Daylight Saving Time (DST) from 2 a. m. Sunday to 2 a. m. Oct. 31. And, if you get confused on which direction to move the hands, just remember the saying "Spring ahead, fall back."

The extra hour may come in handy for Congress as it grapples with proposals to change the system of six months of DST and six months of standard time.

Earlier, this year, the Senate passed a bill to provide seven months of DST this year and next, from mid-March until mid-October. But inaction by the House Commerce Committee kept it from taking effect in time for the spring.

A House commerce subcommittee has tentatively scheduled DST hearings for next month, but they could be delayed further because other types of legislation are deemed more important.

Until some sort of bill clears both houses of Congress, the nation remains on the pattern of six months of DST and six months of standard time each year.

The move to extend DST was begun in late 1973 during the peak of the energy crisis. Some advocates contended that longer evening daylight hours, when most persons are awake, can result in an energy savings.

But those opposing DST argue that less daylight in morning endangers school children and inconveniences farmers. They also said DST saved little, if any, energy.

The change to DST will occur across the nation except in Arizona, Hawaii and parts of Indiana.

Compromise Over N.C. Sales Share

RALEIGH (AP)—A compromise under which the state would take at least $10 million of an expected $42 million expected from the sale of utility systems owned by the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill was approved by a Senate-House budget committee Thursday.

The rest of the money from sale of its electric, telephone, water and sewer systems would go to UNC-Chapel Hill.

With little debate and little opposition, the budget committee approved a compromise hammered out privately late Wednesday by legislative leaders after the same committee rejected an attempt to divert half the utility sale receipts into the state's general fund.

Protracted debate in the General Assembly could have resulted if the agreement had not been worked out. Rep. C. Kitchen Josey, D-Halifax, the House majority leader and advocate of the General Assembly taking control of all the utilities sale money, indicated Thursday he would have fought all the way to the House floor if the compromise had not been worked out.

Officials of UNC-Chapel Hill, who have lobbied extensively in recent months to retain control of all the money, appeared resigned to the compromise as the only way to prevent the General Assembly from taking the entire amount received from the sale.

In a statement issued shortly after the compromise vote, Chancellor N. Ferebee Taylor said "present estimates" indicate that the money UNC would be allowed to keep under the compromise would be "just enough" to meet "essential needs for the expansion and improvement of the university's library facilities."

The committee action, which now goes to the Joint Appropriations Conference Committee next week, came as the budget panel, composed of members of the House Base Budget Committee and the Senate Appropriations Committee, completed working on identifying cuts in the budget for the 1976-77 fiscal year.

Excluding the $10 million that would be available from the sale of the utilities, the committee identified more than $49 million in possible budget cuts during six days of work this week and last.

The proposed cuts will be presented to the appropriations conference committee when it meets Monday to prepare the budget bill for the legislative session, which begins May 3.

Racial Violence Seen Probable Bombing Basis

BOSTON (AP) — Recent racial violence in Boston could have created the climate for a bombing at the Suffolk County Courthouse in which 22 persons were injured, Gov. Michael Dukakis says.

"At this time — and I stress at this time — there is no evidence linking that bombing with the racial incidents which have occurred in the city during the past month," the governor said in a televised address Thursday night.

"But there is no question that the violence that has plagued this city has created a climate of hatred and irrationality which could give rise to senseless acts such as this morning's bombing."

The governor announced creation of a special police unit made up of city, county, state and federal officers to investigate crimes of violence. He also said such cases would be taken directly to grand juries, bypassing the district courts.

A march in downtown Boston against violence sponsored by Mayor Kevin H. White was to be held today. The governor and prominent churchmen said they would join the procession.

But City Council President Louise Day Hicks, a leading opponent of busing for school integration, the antibusing group ROAR (Restore Our Alienated Rights); and the Boston Police Patrolman's Association said they would not participate.

Joseph Connolly of Charlestown, a ROAR spokesman, said the group "cannot in good conscience join these people for a march that will accomplish nothing. Only when forced busing is ended will Boston's human liberty be returned."

The police patrolman's union said in a statement that it does not believe the march "will reduce tensions by a single iota."
Since school integration ordered by U.S. District Court Judge W. Arthur Garrity Jr. began nearly two years ago, sporadic violence has erupted in various neighborhoods.

The latest trouble began with the beating April 5 of a black lawyer in front of City Hall. A man and a teen-age girl, both white and injured in separate incidents since then, remain at City Hospital.

Kissinger Begins African Mission

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger departed today on a two-week trip to Africa with "an attitude of good will, an open mind and some concrete objectives" about achieving black majority rule in southern Africa.

After a stopover in London to confer with special U.S. envoy L. Dean Brown about the crisis in Lebanon and to meet Anthony Crosland, the new British foreign secretary, Kissinger will head for Kenya, the first of seven countries on his itinerary.

His other stops are Tanzania, Zambia, where he will confer with black leaders from Rhodesia, Zaire, Ghana, Liberia and Senegal. He will wind up in Nairobi to head the U.S. delegation at the U.N. conference on trade and development.

Asked at Andrews Air Force Base if the United States will try to match Soviet efforts in Africa, Kissinger said, "We are not in Africa to match Soviet efforts. We are in Africa for our own purposes. And I will indicate what our purposes are and what specific steps we're prepared to take."

Once a proponent of a go-slow policy on the black-white issue, Kissinger emphasized at a news conference Thursday and in other recent statements that the United States supports the political aspirations of the black majorities in white-ruled Rhodesia and South Africa.

He has dismissed any thought of helping to create "a puppet state" in Rhodesia, saying that was beyond U.S. capabilities and intentions, and said it "remains to be seen" whether the Rhodesian problem can be solved peacefully.

Kissinger said his meeting in Zambia with leaders of the AF-and sabotage our liberation struggle."

The presence of more than 13,000 Cuban troops in Africa — Kissinger refers to them as "surrogates" of the Soviet Union — has given a special urgency to the mission, his first to black Africa.

In his meetings with leftist leaders, Kissinger hopes to blunt advances by Moscow and Havana, while affirming a U.S. policy of an Africa free of superpower rivalry.

"We have no interest in splitting the African nations or lining them up into groups, some of which support one superpower and others in support of another superpower," he told reporters.

He said Kissinger can only be coming to Africa "to subvert

Carrier Tracked By Soviet Navy

ABOARD THE USS SARATOGA (AP) — A pack of Soviet ships are spying on the aircraft carrier Saratoga as she maneuvers in the Mediterranean a day away from Lebanon, U.S. officers report.

The officers say they have spotted at least five Soviet navy ships keeping tabs since the Saratoga steamed from Split, Yugoslavia, in early April for operations east of Crete.

On Thursday, a Soviet intelligence-gathering ship moved to within 300 yards of the 80,000-ton carrier.

"That's the closest we've seen one in a long while," said Rear Adm. Eugene J. Carroll Jr., commander of the 6th Fleet carrier task force.

The Soviet ship looked like a tugboat except for its electronic gear. Dwarfed by the carrier, it kept pace for about an hour before changing course. At the same time, a Soviet destroyer could be seen on the horizon.

Carroll asserted that a long-planned joint exercise with the Turkish navy brought the Saratoga to the area 400 miles from war-ravaged Lebanon. But the Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda has linked the U.S. naval presence with the Lebanese civil war and warned against any U.S. military intervention in the crisis.

Both the United States and the Soviet Union have a considerable naval presence in the Mediterranean. Each fleet keeps a close watch on the other.

Officials aboard the Saratoga reported the 6th Fleet had 41 ships in the Mediterranean this week while the Soviets were operating 61. However, the Russians have no aircraft carriers.

WORK RELEASE

Our son is serving a two-year sentence in a North Carolina youth center. His behavior has been excellent ever since he's been in, we're told. I recently have been in the hospital and my doctor has told me I must do no heavy work whatsoever this farming season. My wife wrote to the Governor about five weeks ago, asking if it would be possible for our son to be released early so he can work on the farm. He's up for parole at the end of July anyway, we understand. We will be glad to cooperate in any way with probation officers or whomever, and he says he will, too. We enclosed a letter from my doctor in our letter to the Governor. In the five weeks since the letter went off, we have, of course, become more and more needful of getting our crop underway and wonder if there's any other way to get our request through. My wife's working hard, but she can't do it all by herself. This boy is our only son and our only hope for making a crop this year. H.S.

Hotline first talked to Judge Robert Browning, who sentenced your son. He said that, according to N.C. law, once a sentence is made, the judge can do nothing further. The governor, he said, can do nothing except pardon. He suggested that we contact the Governor's Ombudsman's office. This we did.

Mary Davis in the Ombudsman's office ascertained that your wife's letter had reached the Governor's Legal Counsel office, rather than the Ombudsman's, and she was told that it had been forwarded to Paroles Commissioner Jack Sissoms' office. She said she'd send a note to be attached stating the need for this case to be handled very quickly.

We didn't want to wait, though, so we called Sissoms ourselves. He said he had received nothing from the Governor's legal counsel office, but he listened to us and he reviewed your son's file. He said that, according to N.C. law, there is no way your son can be paroled in fewer than six months. One fourth of a sentence must be served.

We then asked about work release. He said to give him some time and he would investigate this possibility. The next day we learned that he had met with Fred Sanderford of the Corrections Department and that a work release plan was already being processed for your son. We learned the particulars from Sanderford, who was as gracious as Sissoms had been.

The following day your son was transferred to a prison only a few miles from your home and the following Monday, your wife began picking him up each morning and returning him to the prison each afternoon. You have contracted to pay him a salary, part of which is used to pay his own way in prison so he's no longer kept by the taxpayers and part of which is held in trust till he's released, but he is now helping out on the family farm six days a week.

Building Is Up

Building permits valued at $1,660,100 were issued in Greenville during March, according to statistics released by the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond.

Greenville's March total compared with $534,400 recorded for the same month in 1975.

For the first three months of 1976, the city issued permits valued at $4,173,500, compared with $1,630,000 for the first three months of 1975.

In addition to Greenville, other neighboring city totals for March and the first three months included: Goldsboro, $882,500 (March 1976), $428,200 (March 1975); $3,825,400 (three months 1976), $1,176,000 (three months 1975);

Roanoke Rapids, $428,300, $511,300, $861,600, $742,300; Rocky Mount, $1,772,800, $537,500, $5,800,000, $1,959,000; and Wilson, $1,082,200, $838,400, $2,189,800, $1,667,800.

PRICE RISING — Consumers soon will be paying two dollars and more for a pound of coffee as a result of new increases at the wholesale level. Photo shows a barrel of coffee beans offered for sale in a New York specialty store Thursday. (AP Wirephoto)

Coffee Price Level To Top $2 Per Pound Can

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Consumers soon may be paying $2 and more for a pound of coffee as a result of new increases at the wholesale level. The boost results from expectations of a coffee shortage caused by last summer's frost in Brazil.

Les Hurt of the U.S. Department of Agriculture said wholesale prices for coffee are now running at $2.09 for a one-pound can. Retail prices, he said, "are changing so fast that it's hard to keep up with them."

But Hurt noted that the "retail (price) very often runs below the wholesale level" because stores use coffee as a "loss leader" to entice customers. The difference is usually only a few cents.

Does that mean coffee for $2 and up at retail? "Yes," said Hurt, adding that it takes a couple of months for the wholesale price to be reflected on supermarket shelves.

The country's two largest coffee marketers — General Foods Corp. and Folger Coffee Co., a division of Procter & Gamble Co. — both announced increases at the wholesale level this week. General Foods said the price of green coffee beans has more than doubled since last July and that commodity costs represent 80 per cent of its manufacturing cost.

Hurt, who is with the sugar and tropical products division of the USDA's foreign agricultural service, also said the higher wholesale prices reflect higher prices for raw coffee beans.

A pound of raw coffee beans currently is selling for about $1.25 to $1.30, up from about 70 cents at this time last year. There is a 16 per cent loss in roasting, meaning, for example, that 100 pounds of raw beans purchased for $125 winds up as 84 pounds of roasted beans worth almost $1.50 per pound, not counting the cost of the roasting procedure. The cost of packing, distribution and marketing still must be added.

The present supply of coffee is adequate, although it is below last year's. Hurt said that estimated world coffee production for the 1975-76 crop year is just under 72 million bags; the 1974-75 production was a little more than 80 million bags. A bag is a little more than 132 pounds.

Miss Belinda Temple Weds In Garden Ceremony

FOUR OAKS — Miss Belinda Ellen Temple, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernice L. Temple of Rt. 3, Four Oaks, became the bride of Charles Ray Lee Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ray Lee Sr. of Rt. 2, Four Oaks, Saturday at 4:00 p.m. in a garden ceremony.

The Rev. Charles Hawes performed the double ring ceremony at Holts Lake. Henry Wong of Greenville was guitarist and taped musical selections were used for the ceremony.

An aisle, leading from the terrace to where guests were seated, was formed by potted red geraniums. A white lattice arch entwined with a garland of plumosa fern and flanked by palms and red geraniums created the background for the wedding.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father. She wore a formal length gown of white knit designed with an open Elizabethan neckline outlined in Venise lace edging. Appliques of floral Venise lace trimmed the deep scooped neckline. Appliques of lace enhanced the fitted bodice with the lace edging accentuating the waistline. The long fitted sleeves featured point calla cuffs fashioned with lace appliques at the wrist. The full circular skirt and attached chapel length train were edged at the hemline in Venise lace.

She wore a bouffant illusion veil held in place by a Juliet cap styled with Venise lace appliques beaded with pearls. The bride carried a gathered bouquet of white and pale yellow dendrobium orchids tied with white grosgrain ribbon.

Miss Barbara L. Temple of Richmond, Va., sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She was dressed in a long, V-necked halter gown of blue, green melon and white floral polyester knit with a double ruffled round the neckline and a matching long sleeved jacket.

Bridesmaids were Miss Wanda J. Temple, sister of the bride, and Mrs. Nancy N. Stephenson, both of Greenville. They were dressed like the honor attendant and each attendant wore a single yellow cymbidium orchid in her hair and carried a gathered bouquet of pale yellow dendrobium orchids tied with yellow grosgrain ribbon.

MRS. CHARLES RAY LEE JR.

The flower girl was Miss Sonya Ellis of Four Oaks. She wore a long sleeved dress of yellow knit with a cluster of yellow orchids in her hair. She carried a white wicker basket with a mixture of miniature orchids.

Best man and ushers were Curt Bowman, Walter Jessup, Leonard Reeves and Don Skinner, all of Greenville. The orchids, anthuriums, birds of paradise and Ti leaves used in the wedding were sent from Honolulu and Hilo, Hawaii, as a wedding gift by aunts and uncles of the bride.

Mrs. Don Skinner of Greenville directed the wedding. After a Caribbean cruise to Nassau, San Juan and St. Thomas Island, the couple will reside in Greenville.

The bride is an assistant professor, East Carolina University School of Nursing. She received her B.S.N. and M.S. degrees from ECU. The bridegroom is employed by Rivers and Associates, Inc., Greenville. He received his B.S. degree from ECU and B.H.S. from Duke University.

Immediately following the ceremony, the parents of the bride entertained at a reception at the Country Club of Johnston County. Mr. and Mrs. Everette G. Barefoot of Four Oaks and Mr. and Mrs. Connally P. Branch of Greenville greeted guests.

Mrs. Walter Jessup presided at the table holding the guest book and a portrait of the bride. The mantel held an arrangement of anthuriums in shades of rose, pink and white.

The refreshment table was covered with an Army and Navy cloth and centered with an arrangement of anthuriums, birds of paradise and pink and green Ti leaves flanked by silver tiered candelabra. Mrs. W. C. Lee Jr. of Benson, aunt of the bridegroom, poured punch and Mrs. Amber Parker of Four Oaks, served champagne punch. Mrs. Doris Williams of Four Oaks, aunt of the bridegroom, served the wedding cake from the bride's table.

The guests were entertained and danced to the music of the Ask Band of Greenville. Good-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. George Faulk of Smithfield.

On Saturday morning, the bridal couple and their attendants were honored at a wedding brunch at the home of Mrs. Rosey Dunn, grandmother of the bridegroom. Assisting hostesses were Mrs. Ella Lee, grandmother of the bridegroom, Mrs. Shirley Lee and Mrs. Doris Williams, aunts of the bridegroom.

The dining table was covered with an imported lace cloth and decorated with an epergne arrangement of pink anthuriums and burning tapers in crystal candelabra.

The bridal couple presented gifts to their attendants. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ray Lee were host and hostess at a rehearsal dinner at their home Friday evening.

The patio was decorated with hanging plants and burning tiki torches. The dining tables were covered with white cloths and decorated with anthuriums, fern and burning candles in brass containers.

The bridal couple received a Hawaiian lei of purple Vanda orchids from the bridegroom's parents.

Forget The Key, Change The Locks

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: A year ago I married a widow. I owned a home, but it was too large for two people, so I sold it and moved into hers. She had a mortgage on it, which I paid off, then I bought her home from her and put it in both our names.

The problem is her son. He has been in a lot of trouble with the law. (Burglaries.) Right now he's on probation. He has always carried a key to his mother's house, which means he can come and go as he pleases, whether we're home or not.

I have missed a pair of expensive binoculars, a portable TV and a very good camera. I believe this young man took them and sold them. His mother thinks so, too, and she has asked him for the key. He gives her one excuse after another and still has the key.

How can we get the key back without making an ugly scene?

CHICAGOAN

DEAR CHICAGOAN: Forget the key. Change the locks.

DEAR ABBY: Buddy, a guy I work with, likes to fish and so do I, so last weekend he and I went on a fishing trip. When we came home and Buddy met my wife for the first time, he looked her up and down, and then he turned to me and said, "Hey, man, you must be nuts to leave a beautiful gal like that alone for the weekend."

Do you think I was?

LIKES TO FISH

DEAR LIKES: I don't know about THAT weekend, but the next time you go fishing, be sure to take Buddy with you.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a mature, 15-year-old girl, and I can't wait until my next birthday so I can quit school and leave home.

My mother is always on my back about something. Nothing I do ever pleases her. She has never trusted me, even when I had nothing to hide. She makes me feel so low and cheap. I can't wait to get away from this house and HER.

There is this dude I really dig. He's 22 and being divorced. I'm not supposed to be seeing him, but I see him anyway. He says when I turn 16 I'll be able to do what I please, then he'll take me on the road with him. He's a trucker and makes good money.

It wouldn't be a shacking up deal, Abby. He wants to MARRY me as soon as his divorce comes through. He's got two kids, but his wife keeps them, and she doesn't hassle him because he's always been on time with the support checks.

I love this dude, and the only thing I can say against him is that he gets awfully mean when he drinks. But he's not an alcoholic, and he never drinks on the job.

Help me decide what to do. Anything would be better than living here.

WANTS TO RUN

DEAR WANTS: Of all the reasons to marry, yours is the poorest. Please get some counseling, dear. Your school has a service for troubled students. And a talk with a clergyman would help. But the word from here is to stay home and get your head together.

DEAR ABBY: So now you are giving spiritual advice? Who are you to say that a husband and wife should not confess the sin of infidelity to one another.

When one has broken the sacred marriage vows, the only way to make proper restitution is to make a full confession to the betrayed spouse and to ask for forgiveness from the wronged one.

If my mate sins against me, he should confess his sin to ME! It is my forgiveness that he needs in order to cleanse his soul. I think you should print a retraction, Abby. Many people take your advice seriously.

SAVED IN STAUNTON, VA.

DEAR SAVED: I believe that a "confession" that will hurt an innocent party should be withheld. There are better ways of making restitution, such as prayer, keeping a silent vow never to repeat the act and a special measure of kindness and consideration to the one betrayed.

The punishment is more severe when the guilt is borne in silence by the guilty one. There is nothing "noble" about cleansing one's conscience in the tears of another.

Travel, Cure For Widows

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Senior Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — Their numbers are 12 million or more. One thing all have in common is loneliness. Even with children, grandchildren, other relatives to visit and to be supportive, they feel life no longer is complete.

They are the widows of the nation. And to Mrs. Beatrice L. Green they are perhaps, as a group, among the loneliest people in the world. The loneliness starts, of course, with the loss of the mate. It grows with the modern American family's pattern of separateness rather than the togetherness of past generations.

"Widows don't want to move in with their children," said Mrs. Green. "Their children's houses usually are too small anyway. And the life styles of the generations vary so."

Last June, Mrs. Green, who is not a widow, decided that these women without partners needed was a travel cure for "getting out and getting on with life."

She organized the Widows

Travel Club, whose members go anywhere from a Sunday trip to New York's Bear Mountain resort to around the world on tour.

"Sunday for most is the loneliest day, the toughest of the whole week," said Mrs. Green. "Especially if they work during the week."

"I get letters by the thousands ... have hundreds of phone conversations," she continued. "With few exceptions, the women who consider travel are seeking companionship with their own kind. They simply do not feel comfortable doing a singles. And they're not shopping for a husband.

"Even if they are, travel is hardly the way. I'm not against widowers' traveling with us. We just have to face the facts.

"Widowers are fewer in number ... about 2.5 million, because woman's life span is about 10 years longer. I'm sure many of them are lonely. But society's attitude is in their favor.

"The relatives rally 'round. He becomes that eligible male the hostess wants to invite to dinner."

Whatever, Mrs. Green organized the widows travel service and the club. For $15 a year you get a membership which puts you in touch with others with travel in mind, a brochure outlining some already-planned trips, plus a questionnaire that seeks to match personalities, tastes, travel preferences, and gets right down to the nitty-gritty of your culinary preferences and whether you are a smoker.

Mrs. Green, who has three grown children, was born in Berlin of a prominent family, in the world of classical music. The family migrated to the United States in the late '30s, and Mrs. Green did nightclub acts, billed as "The Viennese Nightingale."

Now 63 and a businesswoman after leaving the entertainment world, she is convinced her Widows Travel Club fills an inherent need in America.

"We have to find a way to get women out of the loneliness syndrome," she said. "In cities, women are afraid to go out at night, even to a movie. I hope our club can branch out so that we can get these people together for things that interest them — sewing, exercise classes, travel, vacations together."

Foods Show Set For Next Week

JACKSONVILLE — The North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service, in co-operation with the Neuse Area Development Association, will sponsor a foods show, "Foods — Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow."

The event will be held on April 29-30 from 1 to 8:00 p.m. at the National Guard Armory here. An admission fee of 50 cents will be charged for all except for organized school groups, senior citizen groups, and children under 12 years of age accompanied by adults.

Ten counties from southeastern North Carolina will provide exhibits promoting the commodities produced in their counties. Special demonstrations will be given every hour throughout the day by invited guest-demonstrators in a particular demonstration room.

The food show will encompass food production and marketing, as well as food consumption.

The show will bring together the heritage of past generations, improved techniques of the present and the projected future technologies.

Priority Goes To Street Plans

The city has held up construction of tennis courts on the Elmhurst School property because of the possibility of a road being cut through the area.

The road would follow N. Overlook to E. Berkeley, then across the Elmhurst School property and the university property along Ficklen Drive to Charles Street.

It would then follow a new route across Evans and then 16th Street to Howell, Howell to Perkins and then to Hooker Road and Memorial Drive.

At a recent meeting of the City Council and the city Board of Education it was brought out that some work was to begin on the university property. University officials said that some grading was to be done to make the area more serviceable for intermural sports.

We think this street, which would run south of the Southern Railroad is going to be essential to moving traffic across town as rail traffic increases on the Southern line.

Not only is it going to be needed by the city but it will be essential to the university as larger crowds go to the Ficklen Stadium-Minges Coliseum area.

The work on the tennis courts, which would have blocked the street has been halted, but the work which the university plans on the projected right-of-way is ominous for the development of this street.

We think university authorities should make it clear now to the city whether or not they intend to cooperate on the development of this much needed street.

We think it is needed, but equally important it should be determined now that all the right-of-way that is needed will be available. Otherwise it doesn't make sense to continue holding up the construction of the city school tennis courts.

Hopefully all questions about the street right-of-way can be resolved immediately.

Papers Will Add To The ECU Tradition

A letter and petition concerning the location of East Carolina Teachers Training School—which has grown to East Carolina University—was located by Elizabeth C. Tibbatts and will be placed in the reference files of the ECU archives.

The documents were located in the files of Col. F.J. James who founded the law firm now known as Speight, Watson and Brewer.

The papers will be a valuable part of East Carolina University's history, and their discovery raised the possibility that there are other such papers stored away in offices and homes.

If they can be turned up and preserved, they can be quite valuable to historians of the future.

Offer Arrest Reward

By BETTY ANNE WILLIAMS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—An unorthodox Bicentennial group is offering a $25,000 reward to secretaries who turn in bosses who are guilty of "white collar" crimes such as illegal political campaign contributions.

The People's Bicentennial Commission is offering the reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of corporate officers whose companies are included in Fortune magazine's list of the 500 largest firms. Commission director Ted Howard says the group is also after executives guilty of illegal bribes, kickbacks and pay-offs.

The commission has mailed letters about its campaign to 10,000 secretaries who should receive them this week during "National Secretaries Week," Howard said.

Secretaries are being asked to "realize in this society our first obligation is to the letter of the law and not to our boss or our company," Howard said in an interview.

The commission is a nonprofit organization founded in 1971 as an alternative to the official Bicentennial groups sponsored by the government. Howard said it has taken upon itself the job of providing a critique of corporations. It provides educational materials and radio spots to inform the public on the subject, he said.

The group has already begun to receive some cautious inquiries from secretaries who have received the letters and who want to know if the offer is genuine, Howard said. Some say they have information, while others want to know what constitutes illegal activity, he added.

See Auto Insurance Crisis

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — A crisis in auto insurance which will make the medical malpractice hassle pale by comparison is predicted by a host of insurance agents in North Carolina.

The agents complain that a lot of big insurance companies are getting out of business in North Carolina, or at least dropping agencies located in high-risk areas where losses run higher than normal.

So far, insurance experts at the state level say, the average motorist has not felt the pinch, except perhaps to have to change agencies to get coverage.

But the agents are alarmed. The big agencies which handle all kinds of insurance—fire, life, auto—aren't feeling the problem as much as the smaller ones which have concentrated on auto insurance.

Small Agencies
Particularly hard hit are small agencies which might represent one or two companies.

Steve Pittard, Durham insurance man, and Paul Smith, from Fayetteville, were among the hundred-plus agents who met recently with a legislative insurance study group to present their arguments.

Pittard bluntly labeled the situation a threat to transportation for North Carolinians. "This cancer will eat at other agents until as many as one-half our licensed agencies will be in trouble," Pittard estimated that around 100,000 Tar Heel drivers have already felt the sting of companies dropping business in this state.

Smith said the situation around Ft. Bragg is particularly bad because of the high-risk driver normally found around military bases. Best estimates right now show some 100 agencies sharply affected, with concentrations around Ft. Bragg, Camp Lejeune, and in Charlotte-Mecklenburg.

The situation is complex, but boiled down to the essentials it looks this way: Several insurance companies have decided to get out of the auto business entirely, labeling it unprofitable; others have decided to pull out of North Carolina for a variety of reasons. Still others have gotten very picky about which areas of the state they will write policies in.

Pittard sums it up this way: "We have a law . . . requiring these agents to write auto liability . . . and . . . the company to accept (it). But there is no law requiring any company to stay with any of the agents . . . our companies have left us."

Paul L. Mize, manager of the reinsurance facility, says there are still enough, insurance companies writing policies to serve the needs of motorists, and while some agents are hurting, the public isn't. He has "been unable to find any evidence that such insurance is not readily available to any North Carolina motorist," even though some may have to search for it.

State Rep. Graham Bell, D-Gaston, an insurance agent among other business interests, is a member of the study group. He says the complex situation involves motorists who can't get premium payments financed, gets cancellation notices on his collision insurance, finds his agent no longer in business or unable to write a policy, and describes many of those affected as young or low-income, thus unable to cope with the complexities.

The insurance companies say they are pulling out because of higher losses and inflation, law requiring equal rates regardless of age and sex, and the threat of a law which would require any company doing any business in the state to write coverage for any applicant.

Agents believe rate increases would help alleviate, but not eliminate, the problem. Legislators think some temporary action in the May session of the General Assembly which would require a company to handle the clients who present themselves would solve the problem until thorough study is possible.

Judicial Restraint Seen

The Supreme Court still is catching some heavy flak from the letter-writers for its prudent non-action a couple of weeks ago in the case of the Virginia sodomy statute. The case offers some useful insights into the rule of law. It may be distasteful, but the matter merits your thought.

Until fairly recently, all the states (and the federal government) had laws proscribing what used to be called "the detestable and abominable crime against nature." Such statutes are rooted in the Old Testament; they have an ancient history in the common law. The challenged Virginia act dates from 1792. It reads:

"If any person shall carnally know in any manner any brute animal, or carnally know any male or female person by the anus or by and with the mouth, or voluntarily submit to such carnal knowledge, he or she shall be guilty of a felony and shall be confined in the penitentiary not less than one year nor more than three years."

Two active, practicing homosexuals, identified in court papers only as John Doe and Richard Roe, brought suit last fall in United States District Court in Richmond. They asked for a declaratory judgment holding the law unconstitutional as a violation of their rights under the First, Fourth, Fifth, Ninth and Fourteenth Amendments. They also threw in a little Eighth Amendment makeweight, on the theory of cruel and unusual punishment.

The plaintiffs argued that what goes on in a bedroom among consenting adults simply is no concern of the Commonwealth of Virginia. True, they never had been arrested or prosecuted for their private acts, but such a possibility could not be dismissed. The Supreme Court itself, they contended, had established a "right to privacy" in sexual matters. In a Connecticut case involving contraceptives, and in a Georgia case involving a home library of erotic books, the Court had prohibited state governments from intruding upon personal decisions.

Last October, the trial court split 2-1. Senior Circuit Judges Albert V. Bryan and Oren R. Lewis agreed that, on its face, the Virginia law is not unconstitutional. "No judgment is made upon the wisdom or policy of the statute. It is simply that we cannot say that the statute offends the Bill of Rights or any other of the Amendments, and the wisdom or policy is a matter for the State's resolve."

The consenting sexual acts of husband and wife may be immune from state proscription, said Judge Bryan, but the Supreme Court never has undertaken to prohibit the states from branding such intimacies as adultery, homosexuality and incest as criminal. "If a State determines that punishment therefore, even when committed in the home, is appropriate in the promotion of morality and decency, it is not for the courts to say that the State is not free to do so."

District Judge Robert R. Merhige, dissenting, held that "private consensual sex acts between adults are

(Greensboro Daily News)

The most recent accreditation progress report for the East Carolina University medical school contains something for everyone. Backers of the school will find in it evidence of progress and general satisfaction with the school's development. Critics will find in it confirmation of some of the real difficulties they predicted would plague the school and further delay its opening.

The report is based on a March visit by representatives of the Liaison Committee on Medical Education (LCME), whose formal approval must be obtained before the medical school can open its doors to students. That opening, once optimistically scheduled for last fall, has already been postponed. In this most recent report the LCME representatives suggest it may be difficult for the school to accept its first entering class by January of next year. In that event, the school may be without students for another year and a half—until the fall of 1977.

Nonetheless, the committee did praise certain aspects of the school's development. The report notes that the school's overall administrative structure is sound. It says financial support provided by the legislature is "ample," and that the $3.8 million recently cut from the $43 million ECU fund by legislative budget committees will not delay its progress. And it praises the design and construction of the school's physical facilities, including the proposed 100-bed addition to the Pitt County Memorial Hospital, which will serve as the medical school's teaching hospital.

But the report also cites several problem areas which should be of immediate concern to university officials. Despite the 100-bed hospital addition, hospital facilities for the school may still be "marginal," even for a modest entering class of 24 students. The committee suggests new affiliation arrangements be made immediately with a number of other hospitals in the surrounding region—an indication that clinical facilities for some students will be scattered around the area, rather than consolidated in one hospital. The report also cites delays in the hiring of some department heads, in the recruitment of basic science faculty and in the establishment of graduate programs in the basic sciences.

To be sure, there is nothing in the report to justify major reconsideration of this extravagant project. In any case the legislature has already confirmed over and over again its intention to build the school, despite clear evidence that it is a waste of taxpayers' money. Still, the report does stand as a reminder of just how complicated and costly the ECU undertaking will be. And all of it to produce a handful of doctors by 1985 at the earliest—with no guarantee any of them will hang out their shingles in North Carolina.

PRIVATE VENTURE SCHEME

Would Hike Uranium Cost

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — After 30 years of nonprofit uranium enrichment by a government monopoly, the Ford administration is promoting a private enrichment venture requiring so much federal support that nuclear fuel costs would rise some $700 million a year, or 34 per cent.

Electricity consumers would pay the bill.

Administration officials say a private plant, planned for Dothan, Ala., would avoid some $2.8 billion of taxpayer investment for the alternative, a new government plant at Portsmouth, Ohio, and would "pave the way" for private enterprise and competition.

But, in an Associated Press investigation, a key government official conceded that the taxpayers would have to invest up to $1 billion to launch the private project; that electric utilities would pay 34 per cent more for atomic fuel to support the private operation; and that the project alone would bring neither private enterprise nor competition into uranium enrichment.

The investigation also shows that a new government plant could bring the U.S. Treasury more money than the taxes and royalties from a private plant, and yet at the same time charge consumers less.

The U.S. Energy Research and Development Administration — ERDA — is expanding the three existing government plants at Oak Ridge, Tenn., Paducah, Ky., and Portsmouth.

There is general agreement that a fourth plant is needed, but disagreement whether it should be a Portsmouth "addon," or the private plant proposed by the Uranium Enrichment Associates — UEA — a partnership of Bechtel Corp., Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. and The Williams Companies, an oil-fertilizers-and-steel conglomerate.

ERDA, which concluded a year ago that the UEA proposal "does not achieve most goals of private enrichment" now is pushing it.

The UEA plant would use time-tested government technology and produce the same amount of uranium enrichment as a government "addon," at roughly the same production cost, says ERDA.

But there the resemblance stops.

ERDA officials admit the UEA project would:

- Require government guarantees that the plant would work.
- Require the government to buy and stockpile a large chunk of UEA's early production to keep the plant operating at full capacity.
- Charge higher prices and require the government to raise its own prices to persuade customers to deal with UEA.

—Collect production costs plus after-tax profits of 15 per cent on equity investment, providing little incentive to restrain costs in a project whose chief contractors would be UEA partners Bechtel and Goodyear.

—Require close government supervision of UEA cost-control to protect both the taxpayer and the consumer.

—Drain 60 per cent of UEA's profits and interest payments out of the U.S. economy to anticipated foreign investors and lenders.

—And expose the government to the risk of having to take over a floundering, half-finished project if UEA can't complete it.

ERDA strongly supported an administration bill, the proposed "Nuclear Fuel Assurance Act," to make all this possible.

The congressional Joint Committee on Atomic Energy recently completed hearings on it and received a report by the General Accounting Office urging government construction of the next uranium enrichment plant.

Strength For Today

FIRM FOUNDATIONS
Everyone recognizes the fact that the foundation under a house is extremely important. But we seldom see the foundation; and even when we do, we do not regard it as a thing of beauty. Most of it is underground. What appears above ground we hasten to hide with foundation planting. Yet how long would our house last if the foundation were not secure? All of these considerations apply to honesty, which is the foundation virtue of good living. It is a homely virtue.

We never think of praising a person for being honest. We expect him or her to be at least that. Yet this simple, homely virtue is so important that without it the stupendous superstructure of good qualities and accomplishments would mean nothing. And we must not only be honest with others, but also with ourselves. Deception of others may destroy our reputations, but self-deception can destroy ourselves.

George Couldn't Sign The Copy

By CHRIS CONNELL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — An American history sleuth, contradicting the French ambassador, says George Washington did not sign the engraved copy of his 1796 Farewell Address that France has offered as a gift to commemorate the American Bicentennial.

In fact, Washington had been dead for at least 15 years when the copy was engraved and it was not his widow, Martha, but their grandchildren who gave the document to the French Marquis de Lafayette, according to John A. Castellani, librarian of Washington's Mount Vernon estate.

A delegation from France's Senate is scheduled to present the engraving to their American Senate counterparts next month during the visit of French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing.

When French Ambassador Jacques Kosciuszko-Morizet announced the gift in January, he said it was "signed by Washington himself and sent by Martha Washington to Lafayette." In the famous 6,000-word address, Washington exhorted his countrymen to avoid party bickering and to have "as little political connection as possible" with foreign nations.

Castellani emphasized that the engraving "is not a phony."

"It's an original for what it is. It's a very nice gift—an early 19th century engraving of George Washington's address, with a facsimile of his signature," Castellani said today. "It just is not signed by George Washington. The French government simply believed it to be something that it is not."

"It's a scarce item, with a magnificent job of calligraphy." It was apparently done by a Philadelphia firm between 1814 to 1819, Castellani said. Two of the five artists and engravers who signed the document "weren't born until the mid-1790s, and they couldn't have worked on it when they were only one or two years old."

The U.S. Senate's curator of art and antiquities, James R. Ketchum, said the Senate is likely to welcome the gift anyway.

A great-great-grandson of Lafayette, Count Rene de

Chambrun, donated the framed engraving to the French government last year. It had hung in Lafayette's mansion, La Grange, where de Chambrun lives. A French diplomat said his government did not research the document's history.

Castellani declined to estimate the engraving's value. Washington's handwritten, 32-page manuscript is on display at the New York Public Library. A printer's proof of the text, with Washington's own notations in the margin, has been advertised for sale by a New York book dealer for $48,500. A historic pamphlet of a subsequent printing reportedly was sold for $13,000 two months ago.

Uranium...

Robert C. Seamans Jr., expressed the same view to President Ford and Budget Director James T. Lynn a year ago. After ERDA officials met with the Office of Management and Budget, the Federal Energy Administration, UEA and the White House, however, Seamans changed his mind.

Two of former President Richard M. Nixon's budget directors, George P. Shultz and Caspar W. Weinberger, are now directors of Bechtel Corp., a large construction firm whose stock is owned only by the Bechtel family and the corporate officers.

These Bechtel stockholders stand to reap some $26 million a year in profits from the UEA project if no additional U.S. partners are brought into the deal, and perhaps even more since UEA plans to award Bechtel the contract, worth an estimated $250 million, to build the plant.

Another UEA partner Goodyear, which operates the government's Portsmouth plant under contract, also is slated to operate the proposed UEA plant.

Sen John O. Pastore, D-R.I., chairman of the joint committee, said during its hearings that the proposal seemed to guarantee UEA a profit and might amount to "another big giveaway program."

Ford administration witnesses — Seamans, Lynn, FEA Administrator Frank G. Zarb, Economic Adviser Paul W. MacAvoy, and Asst. Atty. Gen. Thomas S. Kauper — argued in favor of the UEA project and said it would save taxpayers some $2.8 billion, the cost of a new government plant.

But Jarvis L. Schwennesen, ERDA's assistant director and head of a government task force on the UEA proposal, admitted in a recent interview that the "saving" may be a billion dollars less than advertised.

In the enrichment program, the government does not sell uranium to atomic power utilities; they have to bring their own. The government charges them for making their uranium suitable for atomic fuel by "enriching" it: concentrating one kind of uranium, U-235, and separating out its near-twin, U-238.

UEA's proposal requests "a commitment that USG (the U.S. government) will purchase from UEA enriching service up to six million SWUs (enrichment units)," to help the private plant get started.

Schwennesen said the U.S. Treasury would have to lay out up to $1 billion for these support purchases and stockpile this enriched uranium up to 10 years.

Interest lost by the Treasury on that outlay could total $358 million or more, which ERDA would have to charge its own customers, he said.

Meanwhile, uranium enrichment could not remain nonprofit as it is now.

Administration documents estimate that UEA would pay some $70 million a year in taxes and royalties and collect another $79 million as its 15 per cent profit, thus charging customers some $149 million more than an alternative nonprofit government plant.

To do this, UEA estimates, it would charge $85 per enrichment unit, compared with the government's average price of $54 at its three existing, lower-cost plants.

Because the government plants now are fully committed and could not take on potential UEA customers, there would be no competition between them, said Schwennesen. As UEA chairman Jerome W. Komes testified, "You are sold out, and we are the only store open in town."

But continuation of the government's low, nonprofit prices, Schwennesen said, would make atomic utilities balk at paying UEA's higher price. So ERDA has asked Congress to abandon nonprofit operation and to authorize "commercial" pricing which, the bill specifies, "will not discourage" private enrichment plants.

ERDA proposed a $76 support price which would cost the government's enrichment customers and, eventually, their electricity consumers an additional $510 million a year.

If necessary, ERDA would raise its support prices still higher to drive new customers to UEA, the GAO reported. And UEA may raise its own profit margin, dragging government support prices to still higher plateaus.

Adding up UEA's taxes and profits, government support prices, and the cost of investing $1 billion to buy and stockpile UEA's early production, electric utilities and their consumers would pay some $700 million a year more under the UEA proposal than under continued all-government, nonprofit uranium enrichment.

ECU Faculty Promotions Announced

Eighty six faculty members at East Carolina University have received promotions in rank effective Sept. 1, Chancellor Leo W. Jenkins announced today.

ECU trustees, acting upon recommendations of Dr. John Howell, Provost, and Dr. Edwin Monroe, Vice Chancellor for Health Affairs, approved a total of 70 promotions in academic schools and departments and 16 in the School of Nursing and School of Allied Health and Social Professions.

The promotions to the rank indicated are as follows:

- SCHOOL OF ART—Edward Reep, Professor; Frances P. Daugherty, Assistant Professor.
- SCHOOL OF BUSINESS—Francis A. Close, Professor; Umesh C. Gulati, Professor; R. B. Keusch, Professor.
- DIVISION OF CONTINUING EDUCATION — Herman D. Phelps, Professor; Steven L. Alexander, Associate Professor; Garland F. Bailey, Associate Professor; L. Allen Churchill, Associate Professor; Edmond W. Limer, Associate Professor; Marion P. Sykes Jr., Associate Professor.
- DEPARTMENT OF CHEMISTRY—Walter J. McAllister, Professor; Myron Caspar, Professor; Edgar Heckel, Professor.
- SCHOOL OF EDUCATION—Joseph W. Congleton Jr., Professor; Maylor E. McDonald, Professor; Willie S. Eagan, Associate Professor; Mary M. Fowles, Associate Professor; Peggy B. Mills, Associate Professor; Walter J. McLendon, Associate Professor.
- LIBRARY—Martha E. Lapas, Associate Professor; Elizabeth L. Moore, Assistant Professor; Nancy L. Patterson, Assistant Professor.
- DEPARTMENT OF BIOLOGY — Charles Bland, Professor; John Laurie, Professor; Prem Sehgal, Professor; Wendall Allen, Associate Professor.
- DEPARTMENT OF DRAMA AND SPEECH—Karl E. Faser, Associate Professor; Albert Pertalion, Associate Professor; Douglas Ray, Associate Professor; Mavis Ray, Associate Professor; James Rees, Associate Professor; Carol Buele, Assistant Professor.
- DEPARTMENT OF ENGLISH — William Stephenson, Professor; Paul Dowell, Associate Professor; Janice Faulkner, Associate Professor; Vernon Ward, Associate Professor; James Wright, Associate Professor.
- DEPARTMENT OF FOREIGN LANGUAGES AND LITERATURES — Nicole Aronson, Professor; Michael Bassman, Associate Professor; Esther Fernandez, Assistant Professor; Heiga Hill, Assistant Professor.
- DEPARTMENT OF GEOGRAPHY—Douglas Wilms, Associate Professor.
- DEPARTMENT OF GEOLOGY — Stanley Riggs, Professor; Scott Snyder, Associate Professor.
- DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH AND PHYSICAL EDUCATION — Ernest Schwarz, Professor; Raymond Busbee, Professor; Robert Gantt, Associate Professor; Jimmie Grimsley, Associate Professor; Mavis
- DEPARTMENT OF HISTORY—Betty Congleton, Professor.
- DEPARTMENT OF LIBRARY SCIENCE—Emily Boyce, Professor; Donald Collins, Associate Professor.
- DEPARTMENT OF MATHEMATICS—Stella Daugherty, Associate Professor; Mildred Derrick, Associate Professor; Frances Dudley, Assistant Professor.
- DEPARTMENT OF PHYSICS—Byron Coulter, Professor.
- DEPARTMENT OF POLITICAL SCIENCE—Tinsley Yarbrough, Professor; Herbert Carlton, Associate Professor; Lawrence Hough, Associate Professor.
- DEPARTMENT OF PSYCHOLOGY—Charles Martoccia, Professor; Charles Moore, Professor; Robert Thacker, Professor; Wilbur Castellow, Associate Professor; Charles Cliett, Associate Professor.
- DEPARTMENT OF SCIENCE EDUCATION—Robert Dough, Professor; Carolyn Hampton, Professor.
- DEPARTMENT OF SOCIOLOGY AND ANTHROPOLOGY—Avtar Singh, Professor.
- SCHOOL OF NURSING — Barbara L. Oylor, Professor; Betty W. Hooks, Associate Professor; Therese P. Lawler, Associate Professor; Marion R. Leiner, Associate Professor; Phyllis G. Nichols, Associate Professor; Estelle Morin, Assistant Professor; Janice C. Leggett, Assistant Professor; Karen C. Krupa, Assistant Professor; Sue Pennington, Assistant Professor.
- SCHOOL OF ALLIED HEALTH AND SOCIAL PROFESSIONS—Hal H. Daniel III, Professor; Peggy Wood, Professor; Doris Lee Davenport, Associate Professor; Bernard E. Kane, Associate Professor; J. Howard said the commission is recommending that secretaries send any information they have to the Justice Department, which would be responsible for any prosecutions, as well as to the Bicentennial group. The group is establishing an independent panel composed of lawyers, journalists and private investigators to check any material it receives and pressure authorities to investigate where warranted.

Howard said the commission will feel that its campaign has been a success if it provokes discussion about morality and ethics.

"We're not naive. We don't believe these corporate executives will come out with their hands up and say, 'Yes, I am guilty,'" he said. "We do want to see discussion and soul searching in the corporate community."

matters, absent evidence that they are harmful, in which the State has no legitimate interest."

The Supreme Court two weeks ago, without hearing argument or writing an opinion, voted 6-3 to affirm. In my own view, this is precisely what the Court should have done. This is not to say that the Virginia law is right and should be enforced; I think the act is wrong and should be repealed. It is more important, in my view, to respect the principle of judicial restraint than to win paper victories against dead-letter laws.

Over the past 15 years, 14 states have repealed their old laws against private, consenting acts among adult homosexuals. The trend seems certain to continue, and this, it seems to me, is the proper way to proceed. We ought not to let judges substitute their will for the legislative will—not without compelling reason. It might have been a different matter, in the case at bar, if John Doe and Richard Roe actually had been tried and imprisoned, but their suit was little more than an academic exercise.

In their furious assault upon the Court, the letter-writers make some excellent points. But judicial restraint is a rare and precious part of the rule of law; it ought to be encouraged, not condemned.

Cannon Mills Sets Early Pay Increase

KANNAPOLIS, N.C. (AP) — Cannon Mills is raising wages for its 20,000 employees, a move likely to set off similar increases throughout the Southeastern textile industry.

Cannon did not specify the amount in its announcement Thursday. The increase will go into effect in mid-June for all hourly workers at 18 plants in North Carolina and South Carolina.

Cannon Mills is not unionized. The Textile Workers Union of America (TWUA) lost an election at its plants more than a year ago but is continuing organizing efforts on a low-key.

The TWUA announced this month that it will press for wage increases of "substantially more" than 8 per cent at plants with union contracts, to make up for inflation since the last increase.

Cannon workers received a 7 per cent wage increase last August. The company chairman, Harold Hornaday, said the newly announced increase—he called it a "wage adjustment" —recognizes the efforts of our people, and it should help us compete more effectively in the job market."

Official at other major textile plants in the Carolinas refused to be quoted about prospects for hikes for their workers. But they noted privately that the industry traditionally follows the leaders on such matters.

Cannon was also the first major textile company to increase wages eight months ago.

North Carolina textile plants employed 269,700 workers in January at an average of $3.47 an hour. South Carolina plants employed 146,300 at an average of $3.63.

Textile profits have been higher recently. Cannon's announcement Thursday that it was raising wages came on the same day as it announced first-quarter profits of $4.4 million, equal to 48.5 cents a share. This was an increase of 12 per cent from the $3.9 million, equal to 32 cents, in the corresponding period a year earlier.

ECU Biologists Scouts Visited Linville Forge

Several members of the East Carolina University biology faculty and graduate students Pamela Jagnow and James Bostian participated in the recent meeting of the N.C. branch of the American Society of Microbiologists at the Research Triangle Park.

The state branch meets twice yearly to hear reports of research in progress. James Bostian and Dr. Wendall E. Allen presented results of their research on the bacteria Staphylococcus epidermis.

Other ECU faculty members attending the meeting were Drs. Takeru Ito and Donald B. Jeffreys. The meeting took place in Burroughs Wellcome Company's Research Triangle facility.

Thirteen Boy Scouts, all members of Greenville Boy Scout Troop No. 30 of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church, have returned from a recent outing to Linville Forge in western North Carolina.

The scouts attending were James Caldwell, Broughton Goodson, Eric Bowman, Joe Goodson, Jr., Scott Bailey, Henry Goodson, William Sneed, Curtis Ebbs, Stuart Goodson, Stuart Bowman, Larry Bordeaux, Michael Crane and Henry Wooten.

Adults accompanying the Scout Troop members were Gerald Crane, Scoutmaster; Joe Goodson, Assistant Scoutmaster; Dr. D. H. Taylor, Assistant Scoutmaster; Bill Goodson and Dr. John F. Wooten.

Claim Proof Of Psychic Powers

By DAVID R. NELSEN Associated Press Writer CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Scientific research into psychic powers has proven that such power exists and indications are that everyone has it, though it is more developed in some people than others.

In the last 46 years, a small number of scientists have been studying phenomena such as extrasensory perception (ESP), telepathy (feeling at a distance), precognition (to know in advance), clairvoyance and psychokinesis (making something move without physically touching it). Such powers are called "Psi."

"In 46 years of research, the only thing that's been proven is that Psi exists," said Fran Hynds, who with Norma Bowles put together the world's first public exhibit on psychic phenomena. The exhibit is sponsored by the Smithsonian Institution whose support gives parapsychology, the science that studies Psi, greater respectability.

Called "Psi Search," the exhibit opened at the Morehead Planetarium in Chapel Hill Thursday and will be shown later in many parts of the nation and several foreign countries. It separates fact from fiction, tells how far the study of Psi has come and where it's headed, said Debbie Dawson of the Smithsonian Staff.

"There are many misconceptions about psychic phenomena," said Miss Hynds, adding, "What most people don't know is how much garbage they're getting hold of (about it)."

As shown in the exhibit, experimental results indicate that everyone has Psi and that one person's thoughts can physically affect another person who may be unaware of it. Among other experiments, the exhibit also shows proof that people have been able to use their minds to put images on unexposed film.

Dr. Robert Van de Castle of the University of Virginia, who wrote the world's first masters thesis on a parapsychology topic at the University of North Carolina here, complained that those with scientific knowledge of psychic phenomena have not passed the information along to the public, leaving the field open to phonies.

Several of the world's leading Psi researchers attended the opening in the area where Psi research began in 1930. Credited with his wife as pioneering the methods now used in para-

Soliah Lifts Veil On Patty's Missing Year

By LINDA DEUTSCH Associated Press Writer SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — "I lived with her. I slept with her. We had a close relationship," Steven Soliah testified about Patricia Hearst. "We felt very close to each other."

But the young house painter, who became the fugitive heiress' underground lover, told a jury he did not join in the terrorist bank robbery at suburban Carmichael for which he is standing trial and never questioned Miss Hearst about it.

"I had learned not to ask questions," Soliah said at one point. "I didn't feel I needed to know."

He was curious when Miss Hearst stored cash in the refrigerator at one of their hide-outs, he said. But he didn't press her on where she got the money.

"I learned from asking questions of Bill and Emily Harris and Patty before that they seemed to get uptight. So I didn't ask anymore," Soliah said.

The blond-haired Soliah, neatly attired in a pale blue suit and vest, portrayed himself Wednesday as a soft-hearted man touched by Miss Hearst's plight who was unwittingly drawn into the radical intrigue of the Symbionese Liberation Army.

His fingerprints were found on evidence seized in SLA hide-outs, and Soliah told his love story to explain how he was connected to the SLA and Miss Hearst.

"I felt sorry for her at that time," he said. "I felt close to her. I wanted to help her. She seemed kind of confused."

In testimony which lasted a full day, Soliah gave the first public details of Miss Hearst's mysterious "missing year" in the underground which she refused to discuss at her own San Francisco bank robbery trial.

He placed her in Sacramento for most of that year — including the time of the April 21, 1975, Carmichael bank robbery — and said she was determined not to be captured.

"She told me she hated her parents, that she'd been abandoned by them and didn't want to go back to them," he said of the heiress. "... She said she wanted to stay in Sacramento, stay underground. She didn't want to go home."

Miss Hearst said at her trial that she was an SLA captive, too terrified of the Harrises to escape. Soliah confirmed that Miss Hearst "had a hard time getting along" with the Harrises.

The 22-year-old Miss Hearst was convicted of the San Francisco bank robbery March 20. Four robbers were in the Carmichael bank when it was held up, but Soliah is the only person accused in the $15,247 SLA-linked robbery in which a woman was killed by a shotgun blast.

But he said it was much earlier — in June, 1974 — that he first saw Miss Hearst, then the nation's most wanted fugitive.

Early America Largely 'Unchurched'

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Although present-day Christians are inclined to romanticize fondly about church vitality in early America and to bemoan the increasing secularization of modern culture, religious affiliation today is far greater than in the period of the nation's origins. Historians point out that church membership has gone upward almost steadily in the 200 years of U.S. history, not down, and that it now constitutes a proportion of the population six times greater than in the country's early years.

The idea that American church activity once flourished and has "subsequently declined is false and the historical perspective involved is unsound," says the Rev. Dr. Franklin H. Littell, a religious historian of Philadelphia's Temple University.

America in its early years "was overwhelmingly unchurched and heathen, regardless of pretensions and public claims," he writes in his book, "From State Church to Pluralism." However, he also notes that requirements for church membership then were much stiffer than now.

This is the sort of probing, factual look at the nation's religious heritage that is scheduled next week, April 25-30, in Philadelphia at an ecumenical Bicentennial conference on religious liberty, sponsored by Protestant, Orthodox, Roman Catholic and Jewish bodies.

A church historian of New York's Union Theological Seminary, the Rev. Dr. Robert T. Handy, says that no more than 10 per cent of the U.S. population belonged to churches in the post-Revolution period, although greater disciplines for church membership then meant participants doubtlessly exceeded formal membership.

Nevertheless, the present-day religious affiliation involves about 62 per cent of the population, showing an immense growth compared with the small minority included in the earlier period.

Even in preindependence colonial times, actual voting church membership involved only a fractional minority, and required not only belief and adherence to church duties, but testimony of a particular "experience" of God's redeeming grace. Without such an experience, full membership was denied.

This meant that even members' offspring, though baptized, might not be acceptable, resulting in a formula by which they became "half-way covenanters," that is conditional partners to the covenant between God and humanity, thus eligible for communion, but without rights of full membership.

In the post-Revolution period, the church "picture was not very promising," Dr. Handy writes in his book, "A Christian America." He notes that not only had membership shrunk, but other factors jolted the churches.

State-established churches gradually were being dismantled, cutting off churches from state support and compelling them to make it on their own by voluntary support. Many pulpits were empty, historians say, and American religious institutions were at their weakest ebb.

Rev. Davis Will Speak

The Rev. Murphy Davis, a former member of the Greenville First Presbyterian Church and recently ordained as a Presbyterian minister, will preach at the nine and 11 o'clock services of the First Presbyterian Church Sunday it was announced by the Pastor, the Rev. Richard R. Gammon.

Ms. Davis is a 1966 graduate of Rose High School, where she was student body president. She was graduated cum laude from Mary Baldwin College and later was graduated from Columbia Theological Seminary, Decatur, Ga. She is presently a fellowship student in the Ph.D. program in church history at Emory University. She is married to Dr. Eduard Loring, pastor of the Clifton Presbyterian Church, Atlanta, Ga.

REV. MURPHY DAVIS

Her father, the Rev. Thomas M. Davis, has served for the past 20 years as general secretary of the Albemarle Presbytery, and after his retirement this week, he and Mrs. Davis will be moving to Greensboro to make their home.

The local church plans an informal reception for Mr. and Mrs. Davis following the 11 a.m. service, to which the friends in the church family and community are invited.

The subject of the Sunday sermon will be "Through the Looking Glass."

Bravery in Bronze

Here he stands... "The Minute Man" of Lexington, Massachusetts. A photographer with imagination chose the background of fireworks.

But that April night when Paul Revere alerted the Minute Men, there were fireworks of a different kind. The bravery that night was not in bronze!

It is no accident that this historical encounter occurred in the same colony which the pilgrim fathers founded in their quest for religious liberty. The very kernel of American freedom sprung from the right to believe in God and to worship Him — each in his own way. The heritage of the Minute Men was a courage born in conscience that defied any invasion of liberty — religious or political!

Two centuries ago patriots established with their blood a nation of conscience, of faith. Celebrate that with your heart and soul... it cannot be preserved in bronze.

Family On The Road With Their Pet Snake Exhibit

FRIENDS . . . Heath Breckinridge plays with pet, Zimbas, a 197-pound, 20-foot long python.

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer
Rickey and Lila Breckinridge and their son, Heath, four, are on the road 50 weeks out of 52 showing the public their pet snakes.

All of their snakes are tame, they say. The casual way each of the three handles all of them from a small baby boa constrictor to a 20 foot python makes you almost believe it's true. But how do you tame snakes?

"Just like any other animal," they say of their constrictors, the only kind they keep; "You treat them gently; you handle them a lot, you let them get used to your smell."

"When you first get a snake, it's a good idea to put an article of clothing you've worn into its living area," Mrs. Breckinridge explains, "so he can get used to your particular odor."

Foster Parent Ass'n To Meet

The Foster Parents Association will meet Monday, 7:30 p.m. at the Pitt County Social Services building. All foster parents are urged to attend.

The state association is meeting Saturday, April 24, at 1 p.m. at St. James Methodist Church Fellowship Hall, 2000 E. Sixth Street.

New Chapter Of AA Meeting

A new chapter of Alcoholics Anonymous will meet tonight at 8 o'clock at the Moyewood Social Services Center.

It was incorrectly reported in the Tuesday Daily Reflector that the meeting would be held last night.

CLUB MEETING

There will be a special call meeting of the 20th Century Club Sunday at 5:30 p.m. at the home of Jimmie Jones, 6 Vance Street.

Breckinridge says that a Mississippi television station once asked to film Zimbas, their five-and-a-half-year-old python killing her dinner. "To oblige them, we went ahead and put a rabbit in the cage with her," she says. All she did was look at it. She really didn't know she was supposed to kill it. Rickey finally had to kill the rabbit off camera and give it to her so she could be filmed having her dinner."

She explained that Zimbas was raised from a small baby by them. She weighed 197 pounds the last time they weighed her, they said, but she's getting too fat, they say, so they've kept food from her for about three months. "Snakes often fast on their own," they said. "It's deadly for them to get too fat. Their circulatory systems are affected just like humans."

Ordinarily Zimbas will eat three full-grown rabbits a week. Mrs. Breckinridge says she walked into her snaky situation with her eyes wide open. "I knew when I was dating Rickey how much he and his brothers liked snakes. For a long time, I was afraid to go to the bathroom at their house, because there was always at least one snake in the bathtub."

Her fear's overcome by her knowledge and experience of the constrictors they keep now, she says, but there are still snakes in the bathtub. "Anytime the temperature's likely to drop below 60 degrees, the snakes have to be kept in the motel bathroom tub for the night. Leaving them in the truck would mean their deaths," Breckinridge said. "They cannot tolerate cold weather."

Mrs. Breckinridge and Heath handle all the snakes and the tegu lizard they take on tour, but they say that when they get a new snake, Rickey is the only to handle it at first. "A new one will bite me occasionally, he said, "but it's as harmless as a dog's nipping you, but soon they get used to being handled and don't bite at all. Then I'll let my wife and son handle them."

Mrs. Breckinridge declares she's never been bitten. Heath's been bitten once, he says. "One night in the motel I started to climb up on the bed and a rainbow bit me," he said. "It didn't hurt, though."

The Breckinridges say they've cautioned Heath never to try to touch any snakes but their own. "And we emphasize to our audiences, that these constrictors are different from most of the wild snakes in this area, many of which are poisonous. Only when you can tell one type of snake from the other as well as you can tell a cat from a dog from a pig should you consider trying to handle them."

C-Of-C Dinner Monday Night

FARMVILLE—The annual Farmville Chamber of Commerce and Civic Clubs dinner will be held here Monday evening at 7 p.m. at the Farmville Central High School cafeteria.

Commissioner of Agriculture Jim Graham is expected to be on hand to deliver the principal address.

The awarding of the annual Man of the Year plaque is also scheduled during the dinner session.

The Beckinridges are from Birmingham, Ala. and they're working toward making enough money with their traveling snake show to open a permanent snake education center near their home, they say. They'll be at Nichols Department Store Parking lot through Sunday. Admission to their exhibit is 50 cents per person.

ADVISORY BUDGET COMMISSION NOTICE OF RULE-MAKING HEARING
Pursuant to the authority vested in it by G.S. 143-34.3, 143-53, 143-60, 108-42, and Chapter 809, 1971 Session Laws, the Advisory Budget Commission gives notice of a rule-making hearing to adopt rules of organization and procedures to be followed by the Commission in its role as a rule-making body. These rules will become effective May 9, 1976.

The rules under consideration included contested case procedures, rule-making procedures and declaratory ruling procedures for the Division of Purchasing and Contract and the Clean Water Bond Act. These proposed rules would also govern rules and regulations of the Social Services Commission governing eligibility for public assistance from State appropriations.

A public hearing will be held in the Governor's Press Conference Room, Administration Building, 116 W. Jones Street in Raleigh, North Carolina on Friday, May 14, 1976, commencing at 10:00 o'clock A.M. Copies of the proposed rules may be secured from the State Budget Officer, Division of State Budget and Management, North Carolina Department of Administration, 116 W. Jones Street, Raleigh, North Carolina 27603.

Written submissions containing data, comments or arguments may be submitted to the State Budget Officer prior to April 9, 1976. Oral statements or comments will be limited to five minutes.

Williamston, Rose Take Tourney Wins

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer

WILLIAMSTON — Tim Hardison's bloop single in the bottom of the seventh scored Greg Roberson as Williamston beat South Granville, 6-5, and Rose High's Henry Baker pitched a five-hitter as Rose beat Roanoke 12-1, in the first round of the Gaylord Perry Tournament, Thursday.

Rose will play South View, 10-2 winners over Plymouth and Williamston will face Saratoga which beat Wilson by two, 4-2, in today's games.

Rose met Roanoke in the third game of Thursday's action and wasted no time in getting on the boards. The Rampants picked up four in the first and after Roanoke scored its lone run in the third, Rose added one in the third, four in the fourth and three in the sixth.

Baker walked only one and struck out ten Redskins. Dennis House started for Roanoke and lasted four innings giving up eight hits, striking out two and walking one. Wayne Council finished the game and gave up the other three runs.

David Dixon led off the first drawing a walk and Greg Sasser reached on an error. A second error let Mike Belton reach and Dixon score. Jimmy Averette grounded out scoring Sasser and Belton, after taking third on a balk, scored on Eddy Connolly's single. Michael Shank, running for Connolly scored on an error.

Reid Bullock struck the Snake with a one-out triple in the third and scored as Charlie Smith grounded out.

Rose matched it in the bottom of the frame as Mike Brewington beat out an infield hit and later scored on Wright Hook's hit.

Averette's double in the fourth ignited a five hit rally that netted the Rampants four more runs. Averett's double drove in two and Brewington and Hooks each had run-scoring hits.

Roanoke had an opportunity in the first putting two runners on in the first but failed to score.

Brewington and Wright Hooks each had three hits for the Rampants, Averette two and Lee Sherin two. Bullock and Smith had two each for the Redskins.

Error Leads To Score

Roberson reached on a throwing error in the Williamston seventh leading to the unearned winning run. The Tigers had taken a 1-0 lead in the first and made it 2-0 in the fourth but South Granville rallied in front, 3-2, in the fifth. Williamston battled back on top, 5-3, in the bottom of the frame but two Williamston errors led to the Vikings tying the game, 5-5, in the sixth.

South Granville had a run choked off at the plate in the fourth. Dale Yancy singled and went to third on Brummitt's single. The ball got away from Gardner, who started in left, but Gardner was able to find it and throw Yancy out at the plate.

The Vikings finally broke through in the fifth. Tommy Greene reached on an error and a passed ball moved him to second. Duane Rock walked and Timmy Brame doubled driving in Green. Brame was caught off second and an error on the rundown attempt let both runners score.

Eric Goddard opened the fifth with a single and moved to second on a passed ball. Roberson singled to center scoring Goddard and Mike Koesy reached on an error scoring Roberson. Tim Hardison also was safe on an error scoring Koesy.

Brummitt walked and Jimmy Stephenson singled in the sixth and both scored as Gardner threw the ball away on a bunt by Danny Harris.

Roberson reached on an error in the seventh moving to second on the play. Hardison's bloopier fell in between three fielders as Roberson crossed the plate for the Tigers.

Yancy had two hits for South Granville and Roberson had a pair for the Tigers.

The championship game will be played Saturday night.

Rowe Leads Detroit To Victory

By The Associated Press

Everything went right for Curtis Rowe — and everything went wrong for the Golden State Warriors.

"That was probably the best game he ever played in his life," Bob Lanier said after watching his Detroit teammate tear up the Warriors in the National Basketball Association playoffs.

Golden State Coach Al Attles called it "an all-pro performance" after watching Rowe score 33 points, grab 10 rebounds, collect three assists and make three steals in Detroit's 123-111 victory over the Warriors Thursday night.

The shockingly easy victory forged a 1-1 tie for Detroit in the best-of-seven Western Conference semifinals.

"It was just one of those games when everything went right," said Rowe. "It's hard to stop a team when that is happening."

The near-perfect game made up for Tuesday night's 127-103 loss to Golden State in the series opener.

"We were completely disorganized Tuesday night," said Detroit Coach Herb Brown. "We ran our offense tonight. That's all there is to it. You've got to out-execute people to win in this league."

In another playoff game, the Cleveland Cavaliers beat the Washington Bullets 92-91 and took a 3-2 lead in their Eastern Conference semifinals. In tonight's action, the Boston Celtics, holding a 1-0 lead, host the Buffalo Braves in an Eastern semifinal series.

In the other Western Conference semifinal, the Phoenix Suns, leading 3-1, meet the SuperSonics Sunday in Seattle.

Lanier, the Pistons' muscular center, totaled 31 points, hitting 10 of 15 shots from the floor, mostly on outside jump shots. Rowe made 12 of 16 field goal attempts.

Rick Barry was Golden State's top scorer with 27 points but had only five points — all foul shots — in the second half.

Cavaliers 92, Bullets 91

Jim Clemons laid in a rebound with one second left to give Cleveland its victory over Washington. The game, played before 21,312 — the largest crowd ever to see an NBA play-off game and the biggest home crowd in Cleveland history — was close all the way. Neither team led by more than seven points at any time.

The Bullets led 91-90 with 37 seconds left. After a Cleveland turnover, Washington's Elvin Hayes missed two free throws with seven seconds left and the Cavaliers took time out. Center Jim Chones was fouled with five seconds left and Cleveland had the ball out of bounds again.

A shot by Bobby Smith, who had 15 points including 10 in the third period, bounced off the side of the rim before Clemons sank the rebound.

Greene Central Trips Conley

SNOW HILL — Greene Central's Curtis Shirley and D. H. Conley's Kevin Adams wrapped up in a pitching duel last night that the Rams finally converted to a 4-1 victory.

Greene Central got only two hits off Adams, but used them to play all four runs. The Vikings, meanwhile, got just one hit off Shirley.

Adams, in his two-hitter, struck out eight, but walked six. Shirley, with his one-hitter, fanned nine, but also walked seven.

Greene Central broke the ice with two runs in the fourth inning. Jerry Speight walked and stole second, moving to third on an out. Dal Blizard also walked and stole up. Both ne scored on the Rams' first hit, a single by Jeffrey Warren.

The Rams got their other two runs in the fifth. Floyd Adams reached when he struck out on a wild pitch. Ronnie Whitley then cracked a home run—the only other Ram hit.

Conley got his run in the top of the sixth. Nogie Worthington walked and stole second. An error on the attempt to get him let him come the rest of the way to score.

Greene Central is now 5-2 in Eastern Carolina Conference play, and 7-5 overall.

The Rams travel to C. B. Aycock tonight, while Conley visits North Lenoir this afternoon.

Reasor's 65 Is Best Of Field

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Mike Reasor looked up with a puzzled expression on his face.

"I don't know what's going on," he said, then offered a smile. "It's just starting to jell."

He paused a moment, obviously searching for words to explain the sudden turn-around in his golfing fortunes.

"You just can't realize what a small difference there is in shooting 65 and 75. Just a couple of good shots as opposed to a couple of bad shots; a few putts going in. That's the difference in being three or four over and seven under."

This time Reasor, a bright, personable man undismayed by his eight long years of struggle on the pro golf tour, turned in a seven-under score, a brilliant 65 that staked him to a two-stroke lead Thursday in the first round of the $175,000 New Orleans Open.

"I've played pretty well the last few weeks," said Reasor, 34, most of whose previous fame came from his role as Arnold Pamer's caddy in the 1966 U.S. Open.

Reasor has yet to win in a tour career that began in 1969. He's never earned an exemption. He was 121st on the money-winning list last year. In his first 12 tries this season he survived the cut only once.

But in his last two starts, in events in which the major stars were not playing, he finished seventh and 15th. And then, on a bright, warm, almost windless spring day with some of the game's greatest stars in the field, he unleashed a near-perfect effort that put him well clear of such standouts as Jack Nicklaus, Billy Casper, Hubert Green and Tom Watson.

Casper, the defending champion, had second place alone until he bogeyed the final hole and dropped to two shots off the pace and a tie at 67 with Wally Armstrong and Monty Kaser, like Reasor career non-winners.

Nicklaus, the heavy pre-tourney favorite, shot a 68 that he called "sort of mediocre" and was tied with 10 others three strokes back.

Green, a three-time winner this year and the runnerup in last week's Tournament of Champions; British Open champ Tom Watson and John Mahafey, runnerup last week in Tallahassee, also were at 68.

Others at that figure included David Graham, Lee Elder, Lyn Lott, Dick Lutz, Vic Regalado, Frank Conner and Bobby Wadkins.

Don January, the 46-year-old veteran who won the Tournament of Champions, was at 70. Ben Crenshaw, a two-time winner this year, had the flu and withdrew before the start of the round.

A $3,330 SHOT

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gary Player of South Africa ended the Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open in fine style. His chip shot from off the green on the 18th hole gave him his second straight 67 in his first American appearance of 1976. The shot also meant $3,330 to Player.

He earned $13,135 for finishing third. His chip-in enabled him to break a three-way tie with Tom Shaw and Lanny Wadkins who tied for fourth behind winner Hale Irwin and runnerup Tom Watson.

CAPITAL GAINS

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Fight trainer Moe Fleisher, who is associated with Muhammad Ali's trainer, Angelo Dundee, says he's thinking about future income for his boxers. Fleisher wants them to invest in stocks and bonds.

Fleisher is getting his Wall Street training from Myrna Liebowitz, president of the Women Stockbrokers Association. She is associated with Herzfeld and Stern.

Louise Lasser Met The Press

By SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — It was as though an occult hand had plucked Mary Hartman off the set of "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman," renamed her Louise Lasser and left her stranded on the East Coast, discussing her much-discussed series.

Whatever happened, Miss Lasser, a fine actress who plays Mary, wound up braving Fun City's Fourth Estate in the Ambassador Room of some hotel here this week. No doubt she later wondered what Norman Lear hath wrought.

She was 20 minutes late for what the press agent called "an informal press reception." During the wait, scribes chatted, smoked, drank coffee and a young photographer said, "Gee, I don't see any TV people."

But there was a TV people—a reporter from WNEW, a New York station that airs "Mary Hartman" each week night after the local news.

When Miss Lasser arrived, clad in peasant shirt and faded denim and sipping a glass of grapefruit juice, there was scattered applause and heavy clicking of camera shutters.

Seek Funds For Shrine

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—A nondenominational Christian group plans to solicit donations for a 3 million "monument retreat and shrine on top of Deaverview Mountain near Asheville.

Formal gardens would include statues of all the biblical prophets and Disciples, stone carvings of Christ, and crosses 30 to 40 feet high that would be floodlit at night.

A nonprofit organization, the National Christian Monument Association, Inc., has been incorporated by three men from Raleigh. It has received state and federal tax-exempt status.

The three include the state auditor, Henry L. Bridges, who is vice president of the foundation. The others are Ike B. Stevens Jr., a real estate appraiser, the president, and John R. Prince, president of a steel products company, the secretary.

They also are members of the board of directors, and three additional directors will be chosen from the Raleigh area.

Stevens said future idea include a bell tower, an amphitheater for outdoor services, and summer camps.

Maine became the 23rd state, March 15, 1820.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, APRIL 24, 1976

Your Daily HOROSCOPE
from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A considerable amount of confusion develops in daytime as most everyone feels he or she is right, though wrong, so don't be too positive. True understanding is released later in day, and it is a good time to pursue ideas then.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Avoid tangents or you get into deep trouble; you can accomplish much of importance. Confide in kin and discuss unusual events that occur.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Don't argue over bills or collections, since you could be wrong. Study them well. Mate will be in far better humor by evening.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Don't light into a partner before you understand all the facts and are sure something is remiss. Avoid a big bore.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Forget problems that can't be solved today and get busy with outside work, then in p.m. all eases up. Avoid one who is belligerent.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Don't be extravagant for pleasure, but plan how to save more money. Consult an adviser who can be helpful to you.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Be with an associate for important accomplishments, even though kin may want more attention. You can later please family and all is fine.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Don't argue with anyone since this could lead to something serious that is best avoided. Enjoy recreation that helps health.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You may find you have difficulties during the day but the evening is fine for enjoying the recreation you desire. Postpone creative work.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be more objective about problems at home and don't make any remarks that are uncalculated for or you later regret them.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Analyze where you stand with others, then you can carry through in a positive fashion. Exercise care in motion of all kinds.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get advice of an expert before handling any financial affair you do not fully understand. Put off important decisions to p.m.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You are confused about what should be done regarding personal affair during day, so await the evening before deciding.

Appreciation Banquet Set

DURHAM—An appreciation banquet is being held by the Citizens Committee for Sickle Cell Syndrome and Other Genetic Disorders May 1 at 7 p.m. at the Downtowner Motor Inn here.

Among those legislators and others to be honored for their work in this field are Sen. Kathy Sebo and Rep. Henry Fyre.

The banquet donation is $10 per plate. Reservations may be made by contacting Mrs. Katie Dorsett at 275-0628 or Dr. Alfreda Webb at 273-8453.

A division of Health Services' Sickle Cell Syndrome Program has been established in North Carolina and the 1975 General Assembly ratified legislation to prohibit discrimination in the granting of health and life insurance to persons possessing the sickle cell trait, and to prohibit discrimination in employment against any person with the trait.
