Triple-Win On One Day Reagan Established As Real Challenger

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

Ronald Reagan has seized star billing in the Republican presidential contest, and President Ford, suddenly second, may have to rewrite his campaign script.

But there are likely to be new twists in the GOP plot before it is played out this summer. There are, after all, 16 Republican presidential primaries to go. And there could be new faces in the campaign cast before convention time.

Nonetheless, Reagan has for the first time established himself as a challenger who can convince the Republican hierarchy that he has a real chance of denying nomination to an incumbent president.

Even Ford's campaign manager had to acknowledge that Reagan had the advantage after making the President a three-time loser on a single primary election day.

It was evident in the numbers that made Reagan for the first time the leader in committed Republican nominating delegates and, perhaps as important, in the momentum and credibility the conservative challenger gained with two Southern victories and an unexpected triumph in Indiana.

Jimmy Carter, the dominant Democrat, won overwhelmingly in Indiana and in his Georgia home. He led in partial returns in the District of Columbia. Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace won his home-state primary, too. Wallace offered testament to Carter's claim that as the likely nominee he can rally Democrats around him. "I could support him," Wallace said.

While Carter was speeding his bandwagon among Democrats, Reagan was cementing a remarkable comeback by gaining 51 per cent of the Indiana vote to defeat Ford by about 15,000 ballots.

The former California governor once was on the verge of elimination as a presidential candidate, with money running short after a succession of early primary election defeats by Ford. He held on and turned it around — for a second time.

Ford's allies thought they had finished Reagan in the early primaries, but he upset the President in the North Carolina primary on March 23, gained strength in Southern and Southwestern GOP state conventions, and scored a remarkable, 96-delegate sweep over Ford in Texas on Saturday.

Now it is the President who is skidding, although a spokesman said Ford remains determined and convinced he will win the Republican nomination.

But an outcome that had seemed inevitable to many Republican leaders no longer looks like a sure thing. And unless Ford can quickly repair the damage by dealing set-backs to Reagan the coming primaries, the race could begin to look inviting to some men now on the sidelines.

Should Reagan build on his current advantage, Republicans like John B. Connally and Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller may see openings that didn't

House Votes Child Care Money Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—Backers of a bill that would supply $125 million to help states meet new federal standards for staffing of child day care centers predict the Senate will vote to override President Ford's veto of the measure.

However, supporters of the day care bill say today's override vote in the Senate will be close.

The House voted Tuesday, 301 to 101, to override Ford's veto of the measure — 33 more than the required two-thirds majority.

The measure would grant states $125 million to meet new federal standards for the number of employees who must work in federally subsidized child day care centers, but would also delay implementation of the standards until July 1. The new standards require a minimum number of adult day care workers to care for children between the ages of six weeks and six years. Day care centers that fail to comply would not receive federal money. A previous suspension of these standards, enacted last October, expired Feb. 1.

In vetoing the bill, Ford claimed it "would not make day-care services more widely available. It would only make them more costly to the American taxpayer."

A Democratic source in the Senate said the Senate leadership anticipates the vote will be overridden, if narrowly.

Ford has urged Congress to enact his program, under which states would set and enforce their own day-care standards.

Ambitious Budget Message Presented At Meeting Of County School Board

By SUSAN QUINN
Reflector Staff Writer

"Historically, the students of the Pitt County Schools have been denied access to a program of cultural arts including band, general music appreciation, chorus, art, drama, and physical education," Ott Alford, Pitt County School superintendent said at the Pitt County Board of Education meeting Monday.

Alford delivered his budget message which included as major points specific recommendations for closing the gap of culturally educational opportunities between the county and city schools, and supporting an increase of supplements for Pitt County teachers.

The total proposed budget for the 1976 year will be an estimated $17 million. The proposed county appropriated part of the budget will be an estimated two and three-quarters million dollars, $32,000 more than county appropriated funds for the 1975 school year.

The major points of Alford's recommendations presented in the message are as follows:

- (1) an across-the-board salary increase of five per cent for all personnel not provided a raise since July 1, 1975, along with increments, where applicable, (2) the beginning of a two-step increase for secretarial personnel whose job description merit reclassification, (3) a salary increase supplement for all certified teaching personnel including media specialist, counselors, etc., (4) a significant increase in teaching positions in the area of cultural arts,

- (5) strengthening of elementary counseling and guidance services to the end that students may be assisted at an earlier age in coping with many of the problems encountered daily, (6) program additions, especially in occupational education in the middle grades, (7) additional revenue in the area of plant operation brought on by inflation, (8) an increase in plant maintenance as a means of insuring a safe and sanitary environment through preventive maintenance,

- (9) increased purchases of library books and other instructional materials, and (10) the employment of additional classified personnel at the elementary school level recognized as deficiencies by the Southern Association visiting teams.

Capital outlay for state, federal, and local funds included the following:

- (1) additional funds are needed to complete the Farmville Middle School which is scheduled to open in the fall of 1976, (2) additional funds are needed to complete the new Belvoir-Pactolus Stokes Middle School which will be ready in the fall of 1976, (3) new furniture is needed to complete the media centers at W.H. Robinson, A.G. Cox, and Falkland, (4) a major addition to the present Belvoir Primary School is necessary and will include four classrooms, administrative space, a media center, furnishings and site improvement.

(5) The beginning of a four year plan to construct indoor firing ranges at each of the high schools, with North Pitt High School the first to be funded,

- (6) renovation of the media center and the purchase of furniture at Chicod School, and (7) an escrow account in the amount of $300,000 to replace the present Ayden Grammar facility, with construction to begin possibly as early as July 1, 1978 but no later than July 1, 1979.

The budget will be reviewed and discussed for approval at a special meeting to be held Monday May 10 at 5:45 p.m.

Supt. Alford explained the School Budget and Fiscal Control Act to the board. The new act sets up for the first time in North Carolina a single complete system for the financial administration of school administrative units, using basically the same level of controls required for the financial administration of counties.

The school board may amend parts of the budget resolution and reallocate 10 to 25 per cent of the money between functions or projects.

The board presented certificates of outstanding

SIGNALS REMOVED

Why were the signal lights at the corners of Third, Fourth and Cotanche Streets removed? I find it extremely difficult to turn onto Cotanche Street from either of these two streets. R. T.

Ron Sewall of the Greenville City Engineering Department said, "We have seven intersections in the downtown area that we are upgrading to standard. In order to make the changes, we had to remove the wooden poles, which will be replaced with steel poles with mast arms. The changes will be made in the next few weeks."

UNPAID BALANCE

Does the telephone company lawfully have the right to transfer an unpaid balance to someone else's bill? B. T.

Bill Duckett, commercial representative for the Greenville District of Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co. said, "In certain situations we do have the right to transfer an unpaid balance to an account that is active. For example, if an individual owes us for telephone service and subsequently obtains service again (within our company area) we can transfer the unpaid balance to his new account."

"The account in question here was contracted for by the individual and she is solely responsible. We find no record of any attempt to transfer the unpaid balance to another account and have no plans to do so."

Creech Resigning As City C-of-C Manager

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Harold Creech, manager of the Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association here for the past 12 years, has tendered his resignation, effective May 31.

Creech announced his intention to resign in a letter to Chamber president Don Collier, saying he "decided that I would like to try some other field of endeavor."

Creech observed, "It is obvious that there is ample opportunity for the Chamber to continue and even increase its role of leadership in the growth and development of Greenville and Pitt County."

In his letter of resignation, he noted, "I am grateful for the opportunity of having worked with and for dozens of officers, hundreds of directors and members, and thousands of visitors and citizens for the past 12 years. My sincere wish is for continued success for the Chamber and for each and every member."

Creech joined the Chamber as manager on May 1 of 1964 after having served for eight years as manager of the Smithfield Chamber of Commerce. Prior to his association with the Smithfield organization, he served as assistant manager of the Kinston Chamber for one year.

The Johnston County native attended Wake Forest University for four years and is a graduate of the Chamber of Commerce School at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

He is married to the former Sue Horne of Kinston and they have two sons, Curt and Scott, and a daughter, Susan.

Since joining the Chamber,

Creech has seen its membership more than double its role to some 460. The production of credit reports has increased from $10,000 in 1963 to more than $70,000 this year, and the Chamber's total budget has grown from $19,000 in 1963 to an estimated $125,000 this year.

"I am pleased and proud to have played a role in this growth and progress," the manager said.

Collier, in a letter to Chamber members, noted that a selection committee will be formed to "search for the best possible candidate to serve in this most important position." The president said that the committee will be headed by Lawton Nisbet, president-elect.

Collier offered the outgoing manager his personal wishes this morning for "success and happiness in his new endeavors."

Farmville Bd. Repeals 'Unenforceable' Leash Law

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

FARMVILLE—Farmville Commissioners last night repealed the town's leash law.

"It's been unenforceable," Commissioner Jack Farrior, who made the motion, said, "and ties up our policemen trying to settle disputes between neighbors, when there's nothing that actually can be done."

"The only way we could enforce it is to hire a full-time person to be an animal control officer, and I don't think it's worth that."

The Board enacted a law which would set standards for shelters and pens for dogs. It said that a dog pen must have shelters with roof and a dry place for each dog, at least eight square feet for each dog 25 pounds and under; 12 square feet for each dog weighing between 26 and 50 pounds; and 16 square feet for each dog weighing 51 pounds or more. The area of the pen shall be at least 200 square feet for each dog 1 to 25 pounds; 400 square feet for each dog 26 to 50 pounds; and 800 square feet for each dog 51 pounds and over. No more than two dogs more than 12 weeks old may be kept on any residential or commercial parcel of land in the Town of Farmville, it said, and no dog shelter or pen enclosure may be located within 30 feet of the dwelling of any person other than the dog's owner, except with the written permission of the neighbor. A first offense violation of this ordinance will be punishable by a fine of not more than $10, plus costs of court.

It was discussed as to whether this ordinance should be enacted as the leash law was being abolished, but it was decided that standards for the humane confinement of dogs, when they are confined, should be dealt with.

A $50 reward was set up to be given for information leading to the arrest and conviction of anyone committing vandalism on public or private property within the town. A discussion of repeated vandalism at the Girl Scout Hut on N. Contentnea Street prompted the decision.

A year's contract for the furnishing and laundering of town employees' uniforms was given to Pilgrim Laundry Service of Tarboro. The Board made it known that it has been dissatisfied with the service provided by the Dixie Uniform Service out of Charlotte, and is entering into this short-term contract with Pilgrim in hopes of better service.

It was decided that the Town would pay for physical examinations, at approximately $20 each, conducted on five town employees because their examinations were received at the request of the town administrator. However, it was stipulated that the town will continue its policy of asking that prospective town employees submit health certificates obtained on their own before employment.

The Board requested the Street Light Committee to consider a request of Mrs. Z.M. Whitehurst for a street light at the entrance of the Pierce Warehouse No. 1 near her house. Whatever the committee decides was approved in advance by the Board.

It was decided not to buy a $40 ad in a bicentennial edition of The News and Observer. Ad salesmen for the newspaper are soliciting in the town at present and had proposed this size ad for the town.

Boost Revenue Guess? Jones Running For Reelection

RALEIGH (AP)—The North Carolina General Assembly is continuing to wrestle with monetary problems like the pay scale for teachers and the survival of the state Bicentennial office.

The Senate Appropriations Committee heard a proposal Monday to grant an additional raise to teachers and state employees with long experience at a cost of $9.85 million.

The idea's main proponent, Sen. James B. Garrison, D-Stanly, had what he felt was a painless way to "find" the money: simply raise the estimate of revenues in the 1976-77 fiscal year.

Garrison's idea was broached and eventually packed off to a subcommittee as 30 teachers picketed outside the legislative building, calling for 16 per cent pay raises to match the increase in the cost of living since their last general boost in 1974.

The legislature's leadership has tentatively agreed to grant raises of 4 per cent plus $300 to all teachers and employees. It would cost $98 million.

in their wisdom feel I am worthy of their continued support."

Jones added, "No one is more conscientious than I of the many problems confronting this nation. Solutions can and will be found and I would like to be a part of this effort."

First District Congressman Walter B. Jones filed today with the State Board of Elections as a candidate for reelection to his seat in the U.S. Congress.

The Farmville Democrat is seeking his sixth full term as representative of the sprawling First District.

Jones was first elected in February of 1966 in a special election to fill the unexpired term of the late Herbert C. Bonner. He was reelected in November of the same year to a full term and has served continuously since that date.

The congressman is a ranking member of the House Agriculture Committee and serves as chairman of the Tobacco Subcommittee. He is also a ranking member of the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee.

"During my tenure in office," he observed, "I have made a sincere effort to provide that type of representation which every citizen of my district has the right to expect. This I shall continue to do should the voters

Service League Names New Members

Eight local women, who have completed provisional requirements, were welcomed as new members of the Greenville Service League Monday at a meeting held at the Elm Street Recreation Center.

Introduced as new members were the following:

Ala-Fla Newman Edwards is a native of Merritt. Her husband, Eugene, is an engineer for Wachovia Bank and they have three children and three grandchildren. The Edwards' family are members of Memorial Baptist Church, where she is active in the WMU.

Jeanne Radloff Guy is a native of Bloomington, Ill., and is a former resident of Aurora, Ill. Her husband, John A., is a retired educator. She is a former member of the United Methodist Women's Executive Board at St. James United Methodist Church. She has done volunteer work with the Pitt County Mental Health Center.

Marion Heffner Heymann is a native of Leighton, Pa., and is married to William A., who is chief pharmacist with Burroughs-Wellcome. They have two children and are former residents of Galeton, Pa. She is current president of the Women of the First Presbyterian Church and has held office in the Women in Christian Service organization. She also served as Heart Fund Sunday chairman and has done volunteer work with the Child Welfare Board.

A native of Eden, Mary Anne Ballas Howard is a graduate of East Carolina University. Her husband, William N., is a vice president with Hannah-Dunn Associates and they have three children. She has been active in the Jaycettes and is a Sunday School teacher at St. Paul's Episcopal Church, where she and her family are members.

Frances Harvey Mallison is a Greenville native and the first third generation member of the league. She is the daughter of Mrs. E. W. Harvey Jr. and granddaughter of Mrs. E. W. Harvey Sr. Her husband, C. Thomas, is employed with Dupont and they have two children. A graduate of Mary Baldwin College, Staunton, Va., she is a former resident of Martinsville, Va., where she was president of the Women of the Presbyterian Church. Mrs. Mallison is a member of the League of Women Voters, the Greenville Art Society, the First Presbyterian Church and is doing graduate work at East Carolina University.

Lois Babson Vicars is an East Carolina graduate and a member of Memorial Baptist Church, where she has held the office of president of the WMU. Her husband, Thomas M., is a supervisor at Dupont and they have two children. Mrs. Vicars is also a member of the Greenville Woman's Club.

Barbara Robinson Wilkerson grew up in Charleston, S. C., and attended Sacred Heart College, Belmont. Her husband, Charles V. Jr., is associated with S. G. Wilkerson and Son Funeral Home and they have two children. She and her family are members of Immanuel Baptist Church. Mrs. Wilkerson is a Girl Scout leader, director of Operation Sunshine and a former director of the Jaycettes.

Patricia Daniels Woronoff is a native of Raleigh and is a graduate of St. Mary's College and UNC. Her husband, Robert M., is the owner of Southern Hospital Supply and they are the parents of five children. She is a former resident of Chatham, N. J., Atlanta, Ga., and Larchmont, N. Y. Mrs. Woronoff is a member of the First Presbyterian Church, the N. C. Museum of History Associates, the Greenville Art Society, Brook Valley Garden Club and the Junior League of Raleigh.

The nominating committee presented the following slate of officers for 1976-77: Mrs. Leon Moore, president; Mrs. Jack Whichard, first vice president; Mrs. Robert VanVeld, second vice president; and Mrs. Don White, treasurer.

Committee reports given included reports that the Laughinghouse Hospital Fund had answered one call for assistance and the Emergency Charities Fund had answered two calls during April.

Mrs. Donald Bailey, Bloodmobile chairman, announced the results of the recent three-day visit at ECU. One hundred and three Service League volunteers

Pilot Clubs To Serve Handicapped

Some 18,000 executive and professional women, comprising more than 550 clubs, are joining hands under the banner of Pilot Club International to involve themselves in their communities in assuring "Full Citizenship for Handicapped People."

This new program emphasis was recently adopted and announced to all Pilot Clubs by the Pilot International President, Mrs. Onna Mae Ellis, of Enterprise, Ala., following a survey which revealed that the majority of the 18,000 club members favor and are involved in projects for the handicapped.

Mrs. Lenore Morton, president of the Pilot Club of Greenville, Inc., said that "full citizenship" means initiating and supporting programs needed to enrich the lives of handicapped persons, and that this is to become the major humanitarian effort and "unified goal" of this international civic-service organization.

Mrs. Morton further explained that this includes all ages and all phases of life: treatment, education and career training, employment, and recreation, as well as elimination of attitudinal and architectural barriers. Although service to the handicapped persons is not now to Pilot International, a foundation to funnel all of its monetary and volunteer work is. The Pilot International Foundation to funnel all of its monetary and volunteer work is. The Pilot International Foundation (PIF) has been set up to accept tax-deductible contributions. With these funds and the unlimited resources of professional people willing to volunteer knowledge in special fields of interest, each Pilot Club can adopt or continue whatever individual programs will best serve its community.

The local Pilot Club's ongoing service projects for handicapped people, which can be identified under the broad umbrella of "full citizenship for handicapped people," include the services of volunteer paratherapists and monetary contributions in the Remedial Education Activity Program (R.E.A.P.) for preschool children, of the School of Education, Department of Special Education, of East Carolina University, and supportive services and financial contributions to classes for handicapped children in the Greenville City Schools, nursing homes, and other related organizations.

Pilot International has clubs located throughout the United States and the province of Ontario in Canada and in five countries overseas. It was organized in 1921 in Macon, Ga., where it now owns a Headquarters Building. Its headquarters also houses the new Pilot International Foundation offices. The chairman of the foundation's Board of Trustees is Mrs. Frances Keever of Kannapolis.

Mrs. Robert Lee Smith, a member of the Pilot Club of Greenville and Outreach Division coordinator for District Six, Pilot International, serves as assistant representative of PIF for District Six (North Carolina), and is available to answer questions regarding this international project.

She's No Prize Winner But Has A Happy Family

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: This is for that woman who was "going crazy" because her house was always a mess no matter how hard she worked to keep it tidy.

I have a husband, three children and two grandchildren. I always believed that a house should be lived in. My husband and sons work on motors and they get pretty greasy, but I don't care. My daughter loves to paint with oils and you can't tell the color of any towel I have between the grease and oil paint.

When my grandchildren are here, I give them the run of the place. My sister-in-law said I was crazy because last winter I put the sandbox right in the middle of my kitchen. It made sort of a mess, but the baby was quiet, and I didn't mind sweeping up the sand.

We like pets and treat them like members of the family. They can roam around the house and sleep anywhere they want to. We keep the door to the parakeet cage open and if the place gets to smelling like a barnyard, I spray a little pine around.

Some days I don't get my beds made, and I'm not bothered with dishes because we use paper plates. I'll never take a prize for my housekeeping, but we're sure a happy family.

If you print this, don't use my name because my mother would die.

FIRST THINGS FIRST

DEAR ABBY: I am the bookkeeper for a business that maintains a small office staff.

Our office manager (let's call him "Marvin") is a middle-aged family man. The boss's secretary (let's call her "Sissy") is a shapely young single woman.

Since Sissy came to work here, she and Marvin have been spending a lot of time together in the file room—with the door locked!

What they do is their business, but I'm tired of covering up for them when the boss comes looking for Sissy.

I think it's unfair of my co-workers to put me in this awkward position, but I am too embarrassed to even discuss it with them. What do you suggest?

NERVOUS IN ALBANY

DEAR NERVOUS: Get over your embarrassment long enough to tell Sissy that the next time the boss comes looking for her, you will tell him to look in the file room under "Marvin."

DEAR ABBY: My husband says, "Ask Abby," so here goes.

When we go to the parties where there is dancing and I am asked to dance, I always accept because I love to dance. However, my husband, who is a wonderful dancer and a very handsome man, just sits there.

I am embarrassed to see the wife of the man who has asked me to dance sitting while my husband sits. He says he doesn't enjoy dancing with anyone but me.

What do you think, Abby? As a matter of etiquette, should I refuse dances with other men if my husband doesn't dance with their wives? Or should my husband dance even if he doesn't enjoy it?

LIKES TO DANCE

DEAR LIKES: Your husband should dance with the wife of the man who has asked you to dance. He's being rude to sit.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter is contemplating marriage, and she has asked me why it is necessary to get a license.

She doesn't like the idea of having to get permission from the government in order to be married. And she doesn't know why a pastor or a judge has to perform the ceremony. She would like her father to pronounce her and her fiancé husband and wife.

Young people today question so many things that we just took for granted. How should I explain it to her?

HER MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Tell your daughter that a marriage is a legal contract that must meet certain requirements in accordance with the laws of the state.

A license is mandatory. And the ceremony must be performed by someone who has the legal authority to do so. Her father can give her "permission" and also his blessings, but unless he's empowered by law to perform the ceremony, he can't officiate.

To Be Or Not To Be Parents Poses Many Questions

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — "First comes love. Then comes marriage. Then comes a baby." "Maybe," adds Dr. Elizabeth Whelan, a demographer and epidemiologist who has faced the pros and cons of parenthood as both a woman and a researcher.

"It's the most fateful decision of a couple's life, an irrevocable decision," she emphasizes. "You can have an ex-wife, ex-husband, ex-job, but you cannot have an ex-child."

Her investigation into the psychological and practical factors that might influence the decision began when she and her husband of five years, attorney Stephen Whelan, found themselves approaching 30 and "on the spot" in deciding whether to have children at all.

"We had always assumed we would, really thought we should, but like many other couples today kept waiting, postponing," Dr. Whelan explained in an interview. "We are among the first generation to have the freedom to choose, but we find that the freedom carries with it quite a burden. I talked to a lot of people and found an unbelievable number had the same questions we did."

So she began seeking the answers, interviewing single, married, widowed and divorced men and women; the undecided, the confirmed nonparents and confirmed parents.

Since the publication of a book resulting from her research, "A Baby? ... Maybe," Dr. Whelan reports that she has been overwhelmed with letters and calls from couples who desperately want counseling in this area. As an outgrowth of the demand she has established a service which is now counseling couples to help them make the decision about whether or not to have children and if any, how many.

Contributing to the present climate of parenthood as an option are a number of factors, Dr. Whelan points out, including the alternatives today for women, who have found they can have fulfilling and satisfying lives in careers as well as in motherhood.

"A close second is the economy," she says. "It is relatively expensive now to have and raise a child. Third is the new 'free-to-be' philosophy, a relaxation of social pressure. People can strike out and be different."

The highly effective and relatively convenient contraceptive methods available today have also had their impact, she notes.

"And then there's the population explosion, though people use it to confuse the issue. I risk my membership in the Population Association of America, but I can understand why some couples with two children may want more," says Dr. Whelan, who thinks that enough families will want only one child or none at all to balance the scale.

While it's a joint decision, the burden and pressures of parenthood devolve on the woman, who faces most of the changes in lifestyle, as in the nonparenthood decision the woman also carries more of the anxiety, she believes. "She has gone past the point of no return, but the man can father a child at 90."

"Start talking about it early," she advises. "Don't postpone the decision as we did. I suggest you make your mind up, but you don't have to act on it right away."

"I totally endorse the decision not to have a child if that's what the couple wants, but the only answer is within yourself, what you want to give and get in life. It's a very personal decision and I advise people not to commit themselves publicly."

Dr. Whelan, 30, with long blonde hair and a ready smile, is acting on that last bit of advice herself.

"In terms of my own decision, I would bias my efforts to present both sides of the issue in the book if I told. I will say we are more decided now than before. The research helped me balance the positive and the negative."

"The cons have always come on pretty strong. I did get some insight into the types of commitment parenthood can offer in life and a little understanding of what the good parts are about. I don't know if it's right for me but I know it has been helpful."

Dr. Whelan has a master's degree in epidemiology from the Yale School of Medicine, a master's in demography from Harvard and received the first doctoral degree ever awarded by Harvard in population sciences.

("A Baby? ... Maybe" is published by Bobbs-Merrill.)

ARTICHOKE DIP

We dreamed this up when we wanted something "new" to serve.

6-ounce jar marinated artichoke hearts

1/2 cup mayonnaise

1 tablespoon grated Parmesan cheese

With a fork remove artichoke hearts to a cutting board; chop fine. Into a small mixing bowl turn the mayonnaise; with a fork whisk in the marinade from the artichoke hearts; stir in the cheese and the chopped artichoke hearts. Cover tightly and chill until serving time. Makes about 1 cup. This makes a tangy dip; if you want it blander or to stretch it, add 1/4 cup more mayonnaise and another tablespoon of the Parmesan. Serve with a platter of raw vegetables: unpeeled young zucchini slices; carrot and celery strips; radishes; cucumber slices (if cucumber is waxed pare before slicing, if unwaxed pare in stripe fashion).

Carter To See Easier Sailing

The one-sided victory of former California Governor Ronald Reagan in the Texas primary isn't to be ignored. True, he was expected to do extremely well in the Southern states, where conservative philosophies are strong; but the Texas results are damaging to the momentum Gerald Ford has enjoyed.

The Texas primary is just one of several ahead in the Southland; and California (where Reagan is personally popular) can be counted as weighted to Reagan's advantage. Republicans still have a contest, of sorts, in their future.

The nature of the rules in Texas' primary do not allow a clear picture of Texas Republican feelings, because of the allowable crossover of registered Democrats; so the true GOP attitude toward President Ford is indecipherable.

The oft-repeated view that middle-of-the-roads dominate American political philosophies has not been discredited. Democrat Jimmy Carter is vying for that image, too. He was the big winner in Texas, and as of today has no major rival in his quest for the nomination. Candidacies of those regarded as "left" or "right" wings of the party have been largely eliminated. The questionmark remaining is a label applicable to Jimmy Carter.

Saturday's voting in Texas strongly suggests there remain pitfalls for Gerald Ford in the coming primaries, and smoother seas for the Carter candidacy.

November will best decide who has staked out a better claim on the "middle road".

Showmanship Enters The News Field

To our way of thinking, it is inconceivable for any news organization to spend a million dollars a year for the services of a single news-person.

Ergo, we see that ABC-TV's news operation has officially crossed the line from news to the field of entertainment. The step is one to be regretted by craftsmen in the field; whether purveying the visual, the spoken or written story of contemporary history.

True, Barbara Walters is attractive and quick-witted; but it would be a mistake to equate her journalistic talents with the expertise of a John Chancellor, Harry Reasoner or Walter Cronkite.

Showmanship does not necessarily lend credence to reporting. Entertainment value is something else; and that, presumably is what ABC-TV bought.

That's show biz for you.

THIS AFTERNOON

Playing The Same Game

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—Jimmy Carter has his peanuts, and George Wood has his pigs. The two "farmers" are playing the same game plan.

The peanut farming former governor of Georgia is making waves nationally in his bid for voter affection in the face of Democratic Party opposition.

The Camden County (where not a single incorporated town exists) pig farmer hopes to parlay his pigs into votes in a bid for the Democratic nomination for governor of North Carolina.

"I am not part of any political machine or any unofficial political organization in this state. I will not have to clear my decisions with anyone," Wood said in his announcement statement in an obvious slam at Lt. Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr., who is widely presumed to have locks on Democratic Party machinery and organization.

Wood enjoys the reference to parallels between his own campaign and that of Jimmy Carter. The way he, and his political advisor Walter DeVries, pollster and Duke University political scientist, have it figured, over a million Democrats are undecided.

A Vacuum

Withdrawal of Greensboro businessman Hargrove A. (Skipper) Bowles left a vacuum between what Wood considers the conservatism of Ed O'Herron and the liberalism of Jim Hunt.

Somebody, the strategists think, could fill that vacuum and pick up the chips. But isn't Wood a long shot? Admittedly so, the candidate and his advisors say. But a well planned recognition blitz statewide should make George Wood a household name shortly.

Well planned means not just prime time television. It means tailoring stands on specific issues to television schedules which provide the right kind of audience.

For example: Wood thinks the problem in public schools is lack of discipline. That lies beneath all others such as low reading or writing scores. The largest block of undecided voters is women.

Housewives have children in school. Therefore, you're most liable to see the Wood TV spots on education running during afternoon soap operas and game shows.

But is George Wood really that unknown, and is his bid such a long shot?

He boasts of his pigs. In reality, he is past president of the N.C. Pork Producers Association, second vice president of the National Grain and Feed Association, past president of the Carolinas/Virginia Grain and Feed Association, past president and chairman of the board of the N.C. State University Alumni Association, member of the board of Governors of the University of North Carolina system, former chairman of the board of trustees at N.C. State University, and a graduate of that college with a degree in Agronomy.

Strong Areas

The pedigree goes on, but the message is plain. Wood will draw precisely on some of the main strength areas once conceded to Hunt: farmers and farm organizations; easterners (Hunt is from Wilson), and friends and alumni of N.C. State University.

And despite his avowed candidacy as the one seeking voter approval in the face of machine opposition, Wood is not an outsider wanting in. He served in both the N.C. House of Representatives and the N.C. Senate between 1963 and 1972. Wood will carry through his campaign the theme that, "I am independent... I plan to keep saying I'm independent." He accepts the political and philosophical label of "liberal" on social issues, and "conservative" in fiscal matters.

But his main pitch will be to the people who he believes "have lost confidence in the present political leadership and... are not enthusiastic about the choices they have in the governor's race."

Analysts say the strategy behind Wood's decision is this: he left the lieutenant governor's melee where the multitude of candidates made things muddled to an even longer shot in the governor's race. But, with Skipper Bowles out, a Hunt victory in the first primary looked very possible. At least Wood could pick up enough of that farm, downeast, and university vote to get into a runoff, at which time all the O'Herron, Tom Strickland, and Wood people will come together to withstand the Hunt juggernaut.

ANXIETY IN ACADEME

CUNY Strives To Survive

By MALCOLM N. CARTER
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The city's widely acclaimed university, with an enrollment bigger than the population of Des Moines, Iowa, is struggling to survive a financial crisis with its quality and benevolent reputation intact.

Everything about the City University of New York or CUNY, with an enrollment of 270,000, is down — its morale, its size, its budget and its admissions applications. CUNY's proud policy of open admissions — a guarantee of college for any graduate of a city high school — is gone and the longrevered free tuition available to any city resident is in danger.

"The kids who go here have to have degrees that are still worthwhile," a CUNY spokesman says.

Its graduates, who are represented on the faculties of many of the world's most distinguished universities, include some of the richest, the most famous and the most successful individuals living today. Among them are Mayor Abraham D. Beame; Dr. Jonas Salk, who helped wipe out polio; composer Ira Gershwin; novelist Bernard Malamud; Nobel Laureate Robert Hofstadter, and entertainer Zero Mostel.

For the qualified, a free education there has always been a right of living in New York City. Even academic competence was no requisite for admission in recent years, under an open enrollment program that has now been altered by the city's fiscal crisis.

New admissions criteria require an 80 per cent high school average or a ranking in the upper third of a student's class for admission to the senior colleges. A 70 average and rank in the upper three-fourths are now needed for acceptance in a community college.

Admissions data at CUNY shows that this change in policy will be partially responsible for a freshman class next fall that will be about 40 per cent smaller than the one which entered last September.

Instead of automatic admission to college, students who are unqualified under the new system must first enter a remedial program with CUNY.

"It's a hell of an experience," says Chancellor Robert J. Kibbee. "It's more fun to build institutions than to tear them down, although it takes a good deal more care and thought, I guess, as you decelerate than as you accelerate."

As chancellor, Kibbee has persuaded the Board of Higher Education — in effect, CUNY's trustees — to merge, close and limit some of the university's schools.

Before the faculty tentatively agreed on a new contract foregoing salary increases until 1978 and deferring two weeks' pay, he had also been forced to schedule his staff and faculty for a four-week payless furlough at a saving of $32 million. The new contract saves $14.7 million.

"The future of City University of New York is uncertain."

Strength For Today

THE VIRTUES OF INTOLERANCE

We hear a great deal today about the necessity of being tolerant. Yet an equally good case can be made for a degree of intolerance, on the ground that it cultivates certain rugged virtues. Certainly no sane person would want to go back to the days when men shed each other's blood because of differences of opinion regarding religious and political matters, but it is equally plain that people must have very positive convictions in their religious and political commitments if these are to play a useful role in their daily living.

A Hindu once complimented the missionary, E. Stanley Jones, on his broadmindedness. Jones replied that he was the most narrow-minded person in the world when it came to a consideration of the place Christ should occupy in matters of faith.

We are not going to increase the effectiveness of religion in this country by diluting our beliefs. We should of course respect the beliefs of others, but this respect should never hold us back from trying to spread the truth as we know it.

Future Naval Tactics

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Security Council is shaping a long-range "Maritime Strategy" that could employ land-based Air Force bombers to bottle up Soviet warships in their home bases.

Planners are also thinking of drawing on land-based U.S. tactical fighters operating from friendly ocean-area bases to block Russia's new missile-firing Backfire Bombers from reaching American fleet units at sea.

Adm. James L. Holloway, chief of naval operations, gave glimmers of this from a still secret, still incomplete strategy study during a Tuesday briefing.

The briefing was arranged to explain the Ford administration's request for a $1.2-billion increase in next year's shipbuilding budget to provide an additional five warships, including four missile-armed frigates and a down-payment on a new $2-billion super aircraft carrier.

This is but the first installment of an expected five-year shipbuilding program planned by the NSC as part of a strategy to counter increasingly sophisticated Soviet naval power and naval-related air and missile forces in the latter part of this century.

Holloway indicated the Navy feels the present fleet of 477 ships, smallest since before Pearl Harbor, should be built up to about 600 ships. But he said the ultimate level will be determined by the NSC strategy study and President Ford's subsequent decisions.

"To develop a long range, comprehensive plan... undoubtedly requires a great deal more than just shipbuilding," Holloway said. "It has to look at the contributions of the Air Force, it has to look at the contributions of our allies."

40 Years Ago Today

May 5, 1936

New construction projects, both private and public, underway in Greenville indicate a return to "normalcy" and a departure from the depression days when practically all building and improvement work was at a complete standstill.

Work was started this morning on the city's new street improvement project, which will include a number of concrete streets in various sections of the city and the improvement of others.

Excavation work for the City-County armory is underway on the Court House square, just beyond the Edwards building.

A building on Evans, between Fourth and Fifth, is being remodeled to house a local branch of Efid's Department stores. The Blount-Harvey company is preparing the building next to its store on Evans Street so it may expand and there are rumors that a two or three story building will take the place of the two single buildings on the city's main thoroughfare.

Old-timers say that while Greenville has made rapid growth in the past, the present expansion is on as large a scale as they have ever witnessed.

'Pollyanna Optimism' Assailed

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — In Robert Theobald's view, civilization is like a group of tippers in the club car who feel secure despite the train's high speed because, of course, the engineer is stone sober. Except that he isn't.

It's part of our upbringing, he said the other day. "Everyone feels someone else is making the decisions."

So long as we are unprepared to accept the certainty of disaster, given our present directions, we shall fail to alter our priorities until it is too late, he said, adding this advice:

"We must abandon our polyanna optimism and encourage new styles of leadership which will have the imagination to lead us in new directions."

What is needed, he said, is sapiential leadership, or that based on competence, wisdom and knowledge, rather than on the ability to coerce or impress. Leadership that admits it isn't omnipotent, but which is willing to join in a search for answers.

Theobald believes that if civilization can avoid the crash, the United States is the one to show the way. Therefore the title of his 14th book, just published by The New Republic Book Co., Washington, D.C.: "Beyond Despair."

Who is Theobald? He is a socio-economist, a futurist who derives some of his notions from the U.S. Constitution, a British subject born in India who lives in Wickenburg, Ariz., and commutes to work in Spokane, Wash.

He is a seminal thinker whose books, lectures and consultations with congressmen, and with community, labor and business leaders, and in fact, any group that will listen, have spread his ideas far and wide, although often the origin is forgotten.

He says he doesn't mind that people don't always associate his name with the concept, such as the guaranteed income, or that some consider him a liberal when he feels he is a fundamental conservative, because his payoff is acceptance of his ideas. He offers no program, only concepts and a sense of direction.

Theobald believes the train can be saved, not just by sobering up the engineer but by sobering up the passengers, too, by giving them realistic information, encouraging them to think and discuss ideas, thus providing the wherewithal to act.

In a democracy, which Theobald believes is the hope of mankind, free men need this information, and they themselves must act on it. They must communicate. They must accommodate differences. They must seek new directions.

And, he continues, we must accept the idea of enoughness instead of that which makes us seek unending growth. We must accept widespread participation in decision-making — that's democracy, he notes — rather than autocratic dictates.

"The leaders we have at the moment have so much power they are cut off from the people they should be leading," he said. "There's a sity is reduced scope." Irving Polishook, president of the faculty union, said. "My hope is that reduced scope will not be irretrievable." Now engaged in negotiating this year's and next year's faculty contract, he adds:

 "The imposition of tuition would be irretrievable. That would change the nature of the university ... It would no longer be a university of opportunity for the people of the City of New York. It would be a university for the people who could afford to pay."

Mayor Beame has steadfastly opposed imposing tuition, preferring instead to recommend that the state, which has its own university system with mandatory tuition, spend more for CUNY, assuming the costs of its senior colleges by 1978.

Kibbee, saying he would "do almost anything" if "it gets down to saving the university," refuses to impose tuition without a commitment from the state and the city to fund CUNY at acceptable levels, no matter how much tuition is raised.

Tuition, he says, is the price of getting enough money to maintain the university's quality. But no one who counts has been willing so far to demand that price, which carries with it a political surtax of certain public outrage.

Upstate legislators, whose constituents pay tuition at the State University, urge it. Local legislators shun it, and Gov. Hugh L. Carey says it is an option to be studied.

The result is that Kibbee and his university are in the middle — between the hurricane of imposing tuition and the earthquake of overspending its budget.

The chancellor and Board Chairman Alfred A. Giardino say the university is working in the dark, with no guidance from the city and state as to how much money to expect from them.

"Everyone is playing chicken in the sense that they want everyone else to do something first," Kibbee says. "The history of last year has been a history of moving targets. From one week to the next, the university would not know what its budget was."

The state and the city each contribute 40 per cent of the budget, and the rest comes from tuition and fees. The fees average about $150 from each of the roughly 184,000 New York City residents who are undergraduates paying no tuition. Almost everyone else pays tuition comparable to that in private schools.

Ironically, if tuition is ultimately imposed, CUNY students will be eligible for state scholarship money solely on the basis of need, just as students at state universities now are. One way or another, Kibbee says, the state will be subsidizing the university.

For this academic year, the city originally certified a $662 million budget for CUNY. But, when the fiscal crisis hit, the Board of Higher Education finally adopted a $587 million deficiency budget.

The $87 million gap was funded by increased fees, higher graduate tuitions and across-the-board cuts that resulted in layoffs, a hiring freeze, bigger classes and bigger teacher workloads. The city then ordered another $32 million cut at the beginning of the school year, amounting to $55 million with the loss of state matching funds.

The university also doubled its application fee, to $20. Together with the uncertainty percolating through CUNY, the fee is thought responsible for a sharp decline in admissions applications.

The bottom person of a human pyramid is called the "understander."

Police Use Food Stamps

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP) — Three policemen on the Gaston County force use food stamps and predict others will do so because their pay is too low.

One of them, Jim Belt, 33, married and the father of three children, says his take home pay is $225 every two weeks. He buys $166 worth of food stamps for $71 every month.

"On my salary it takes every cent and more to pay my bills," he says. "I can't work a second job because we are on rotating shifts. We are underpaid tremendously. I have stayed on because I love my work."

The department has 58 men, with vacancies for four more. Three of the four who quit recently did so to take higher paying jobs.

Patrolman Daryl Redmond, 31, married and father of two children, says he brings home $216 every two weeks and buys the same amount of food stamps as Belt.

"We have our house up for sale now," Redmond said. "I can't make the payments and keep food on the table, too."

Redmond said patrolmen in his pay grade, $7,560 a year, would have to get a 30 per cent pay raise to live comfortably. He and Belt have been with the department less than two years.

Sgt. Norman Price, 33, a veteran of 10 years on the force, said his take-home pay is $272.51 every two weeks. He pays $159 a month for $189 worth of food stamps. He and his wife have three children.

 great deal of alienation. Leaders don't know what citizens want."

Leadership is so involved with doing and acting that it doesn't stop to listen and learn, he said. Like the engineer, it doesn't consult or inform the passengers. It is fed information by specialist groups; it has lost touch with the people.

"I believe people are capable of learning from each other and making the right decisions," he said, but he added that he wonders if often we don't operate in an unreal atmosphere, ignoring our problems, leaving them unresolved.

Americans can face the issues, he believes, issues that some leaders consider unspeakable. The level of debate among the founding fathers was much higher, "a great deal more astute than ours are today," he said.

"In this time of confused transition," he states in the book, "a determined individual or group can have an impact far greater than would normally be expected."

Holloway suggested that land-based Air Force tactical fighters might play a major role in intercepting Backfire bombers hundreds of miles before the Soviet missile-firing bombers come within range of American naval task force, convoys or amphibious groups.

"We are also looking at land-based bombardment aircraft to be employed, both in delivery of mines to block exits in Soviet main-base sortie areas as well as to make strikes on their naval bases," Holloway said.

Massive Drug Raids To 'Put A Pretty Big Hurt' On Sellers

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Police say raids in seven cities will "put a pretty big hurt" on what they contend was a massive cooperative selling heroin in Florida and cocaine in 10 Southeastern states.

In the culmination of a year-long probe, police and federal agents arrested 85 persons Tuesday here and in Daytona Beach and Gainesville on felony drug trafficking charges. Another 46 persons were sought in Florida, Georgia, North Carolina, Michigan and Illinois.

"They pooled their buying to get the best price, and they worked together to sell it — also for the best price," said police spokesman Mike Gould. "Nobody competed with the others. None of these were pushers. The lowest we got were wholesalers."

"It's going to put a pretty big hurt on them."

Agents described the suppliers as having a multimillion-dollar trade, but reported seizing only small quantities of drugs. One middle-level operator, they said, netted more than $2,000 a day.

U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration agents joined the raids and went after suspects in Charlotte, Atlanta, Detroit and Chicago, said vice squad head, Lt. Joe Kicklighter.

A DEA spokesman said agents delivered warrants for two suspects to the Fulton County sheriff's office in Atlanta. One suspect was reported in jail, the other still being sought. Neither was identified.

The spokesman said at least two other suspects were arrested in Charlotte. They were not identified either.

Jacksonville police said DEA agents sought a woman and two men — none of whom was identified — who were suspected of moving to Chicago to set up another distribution system.

No reports were available on arrests in Detroit.

"The distribution network supplies all cocaine out of Florida to 10 states in the Southeast," said Volusia County Sheriff Ed Duff and Police Chief Robert Palmer at Daytona Beach, where 32 were arrested.

"The group also handles the major distribution of heroin throughout Florida," Duff and Palmer said in a news release.

Police said the cocaine was imported from Colombia through Miami and that the Mexican and European heroin flowed to Florida from Detroit, Charlotte and California.

"It was distributed through Florida and the Southeast by plane, train and car," Kicklighter said.

Stolen Police Car Killed 3 In Wreck

LAWTON, Okla. (AP) — With its siren screaming full blast and emergency lights flashing, the police cruiser roared down U.S. 277. Then, a few miles north of this town, the driver lost control.

The police car slewed out of control for 377 feet, its tires left the ground as it crossed the median strip, and then it slammed head-on into an oncoming car.

A baby girl, her grandmother and her great-grandmother were killed and two other children in the car were injured critically.

Authorities said the driver of the police cruiser — a Lawton teen-ager who had taken the car for a joyride — was also injured critically.

The dead were identified as Ruby Dudark; her 14-month-old granddaughter, Linda Felty; and Ruth Whit, identified as Mrs. Dudark's mother.

Two of Mrs. Dudark's children, Charles, 11, and Linda, 12, were rushed to a hospital in Oklahoma City. All five were from Medicine Park, a resort community near Lawton.

The youth in the police car, identified as Ricky Glenn Overstreet, 18, was listed as "very critical" at a Lawton hospital.

Police said officer Leon Burks had left the keys in the ignition of his cruiser when he parked outside a Lawton home, where he was investigating an arson complaint.

The car was gone when he completed his investigation, police said.

A baby girl, her grandmother and her great-grandmother were killed and two other children in the car were injured critically.

Authorities said the driver of the police cruiser — a Lawton teen-ager who had taken the car for a joyride — was also injured critically.

The dead were identified as Ruby Dudark; her 14-month-old granddaughter, Linda Felty; and Ruth Whit, identified as Mrs. Dudark's mother.

Two of Mrs. Dudark's children, Charles, 11, and Linda, 12, were rushed to a hospital in Oklahoma City. All five were from Medicine Park, a resort community near Lawton.

The youth in the police car, identified as Ricky Glenn Overstreet, 18, was listed as "very critical" at a Lawton hospital.

City Councilmen Face Seventeen-Item Agenda

A relatively short agenda, involving "only" 17 business items, is scheduled for consideration by the City Council at its 8 p.m. session Thursday.

The six items slated under "Old Business" include: appointments to boards and commissions; public hearing on an application for six Taxicab Certificates of Convenience and Necessity; consideration of five applications for renewal of mobile home permits;

Adoption of an ordinance providing for the method of franchising and maintenance of a cable television system in the city; possible scheduling of a public hearing on a proposed amendment to the zoning ordinance; and Discussion of recommendations from the Public Transportation Commission regarding the transit operation.

New business involves: resolution approving the sale of Disposal Parcel I-1 in the Southside Redevelopment project; resolution certifying the need for lower income housing assistance; agreement with the N.C. Department of Transportation for the upgrading of traffic signals at the intersection of U.S. 264 Business and 14th Street;

Consideration of a contract with the N.C. League of Municipalities for the provision of personnel management and employee relations service to the city for fiscal years 1976-77 and 1977-78;

Consideration of a resolution of intent to pursue an elected school board; resolution authorizing the removal of dilapidated buildings and debris on the Skinner lots; resolution authorizing the execution of a quitclaim deed to Phillip K. Flowers for a parcel of land located on the south side of W. Third Street;

Retirement credit purchase; application for beer and wine privilege license; request for release of tax penalty; and receipt of Utilities Commission bids for incorporation in the Council minutes.

UN Conferees Gather In Kenya

By ANDREW TORCHIA
Associated Press Writer
NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — President Jomo Kenyatta called on the fourth United Nations Conference on Trade and Development today to write a "Nairobi Charter for some new and truly international economic order" inspired by a "breath of political good will" among rich and poor nations. Kenya's president boycotted the opening of the conference, and his welcome to the nearly 3,000 delegates was read by an aide. Western diplomats said Kenyatta, who is in his 80s, was angry because another chief of state, President Ferdinand E. Marcos of the Philippines, was attending the meeting. Other around the meeting, although none so far seemed likely to disrupt the proceedings. The Arabs were talking about trying to oust Israel and seat the Palestine Liberation Organization as an observer. Some black African nations wanted to expel South Africa. Soviet bloc nations were reported pressing in private discussions for the exclusion of Chile. Kenyatta's message said the world was suffering from a "crisis of rising expectations and diminishing fulfillment" in which billions of persons in developing countries had only a remote chance of improving their living conditions. He said the conference has a unique opportunity to chart a world economic breakthrough.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger also called for a new international economic order at a conference preliminary Tuesday night. Kissinger told a dinner meeting of key delegates the United States would cooperate in solving disputes between the rich and poor nations. But he warned once more that the Ford administration will resist sweeping proposals to stabilize raw material prices.

Kissinger, in a reference to the oil squeeze of late 1973, warned that "attempts to wield bloc economic power disrupt the entire system and ultimately rebound to the detriment of all."

Kissinger speaks to the conference Thursday. U.S. officials say he will propose creation of a multi-billion-dollar international resources bank to channel private investment funds to developing countries. UNCTAD Secretary-General Gamani Corea of Sri Lanka has proposed a $6 billion fund to regulate the prices of 10 key primary commodities by buying when the price is low and selling when it gets too high. The Ford administration has opposed the idea, arguing that price problems of each commodity market must be solved separately.

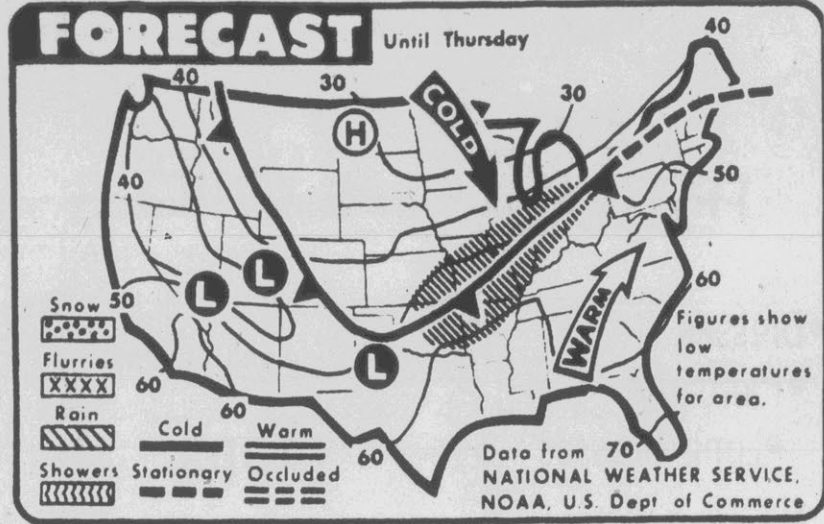

The United States and other industrial countries also reject as inflationary proposals to tie the prices of key primary commodities the Third World sells to the prices they pay for imports from the industrial countries. Expectations are that the month-long meeting will turn out to be another inconclusive wrangle by the 153 member nations over old problems of trade and aid.

"There's conflict on almost every agenda item. There are East-West conflicts and North-South conflicts. The UNCTAD environment is that of a contest, not a community of nations," said U.S. delegate Roger Hansen of the Overseas Development Council.

Major issues, in addition to commodity prices, include how to encourage manufacturing in poor nations and spread technological skills now concentrated in industrial nations, how to relieve debts burdening the world's poorest nations and how to regulate multinational corporations.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST—A band of rain is due today, stretching from Oklahoma to Ohio. Colder temperatures are to move into the Midwest with warmer weather moving up through the eastern states. (AP Wirephoto Map)

By The Associated Press
The Aluminum Company of America (Alcoa), using historical records of the Yadkin River, correctly predicted this would be a dry year in North Carolina.

Alcoa, which uses the Yadkin to generate power for a smelting operation near Badin, said its flow this year would be 20 per cent below the past decade average.

The company's data on the Yadkin show its flow follows a general 10-year cycle with several wet years being followed by several dry years.

It was sunny and warm today in North Carolina with highs in the 70s, getting to around 80 on the southern coast. Lows tonight in the 40s for the mountains and in the 50s for the coast. Mostly cloudy in the mountains and partly cloudy, warm and breezy elsewhere. Winds southwesterly at five-15 m.p.h. tonight. The high pressure air mass that has brought sunny cool dry weather to the eastern sunbelt states has now situated itself just off the Carolina coastline. Some frost formed in the highlands last night, while over the outer banks the temperatures reached a record low. Just before midnight, Cape Hatteras' temperature was 43 degrees. This establishes a new record low for May 4 on the cape. The old record was 44 set in 1961. High temperatures reached into the 70s with around 80 along the southern coast. The winds were light and southerly. Tonight the high pressure area centered off the coast will drift eastward permitting a brisk southwesterly flow of air to enter our region. Some cloudiness will move over the mountains. Low temperatures will be warmer than last night's with lows in the 40s in the mountains and 50s elsewhere. By daybreak, some fog will form along the coast and the sound. By mid-morning, partly sunny skies will cover the state with more cloudiness expected over the mountains. It will be warmer then, with highs in the 80s and 70s in the mountains. The outlook for Friday and the weekend calls for partly cloudy skies with a chance of scattered rain showers. Not much temperature change is expected.

Recreational weather outlook...it will be clear tonight and mild with lows in the 40s mountains to 50s elsewhere. Some fog will form along the coast Thursday morning, restricting visibilities to below three miles. This will burn off quickly to partly sunny skies. Highs will be in the 80s with cooler temperatures in the mountains. Winds will increase somewhat on Thursday. All streams and creeks are well within bankful.

Coed Earns Recognition

Rita Kathryn Whaley of Richlands, junior student at East Carolina University and an officer of the ECU Angel Flight Squadron, has received an annual national award from the Link Foundation.

The Foundation, in cooperation with Arnold Air Society and Angel Flight, professional affiliate organizations of Air Force ROTC, chose Miss Whaley from among 121 nominees throughout the nation to receive its 20th Flight Training Scholarship. The award is based on academic achievement and a thesis which must be convincing of the applicant's genuine desire to learn to fly.

A law enforcement major at ECU, Miss Whaley is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Whaley of Route 2, Richlands.

Ask Govm't Share Costs

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP) — Eastern Air Lines wants the federal government to share in the cost of any award arising from a $6.3 million damage suit in a crash death.

It filed suit in U.S. District Court here Monday against the Federal Aviation Administration, which employs the air-traffic controllers at Charlotte's Douglas Municipal Airport. Eastern claimed the controllers were negligent, and partially responsible, for the 1974 crash of an Eastern DC-9 jet, killing 72 of the 82 persons aboard.

The plane crashed a few miles short of the airport, in heavy ground fog as it was arriving on a flight from Charleston, S. C.

The suit says the government should share in the cost of any award arising from a $6.3 million suit against the airline, filed by Richard Arnold IV of Charleston.

Eastern's suit admits "partial responsibility" for the crash "because of the failure on the part of its pilots to be aware of the aircraft's altitude during the period of time shortly before the accident."

Eastern said the government should share the expense of any award to Arnold because of the "actionable negligence" of the controllers.

The suit contends the controllers were equipped to inform the pilots they were flying too low some distance from the airport. Eastern said the controllers did not "use the electronic equipment available to them for monitoring the altitude of the approaching aircraft."

Three Primaries...

exist before. And that could draw more after the primary election season, which ends nine weeks before the GOP convention begins.

For the moment, the arithmetic reads Reagan. He emerged from the Tuesday primaries with 360 committed GOP delegates in his column. Ford has 292. That has not happened to an incumbent President seeking election in modern times.

Rogers C.B. Morton, Ford's campaign manager, said events had given Reagan "a sudden, and I hope temporary, advantage."

He said a major factor in that turn was the crossover vote of conservative Democrats who cast ballots in Republican primaries because of Wallace's virtual elimination from their party's competition. Reagan said crossover Democratic support was a virtue, proving he would have broad appeal as the GOP nominee.

There was evidence of a substantial crossover vote in the crucial Indiana race, although it did not approach that in Texas. Alabama and Georgia also were open primaries, in which a voter could go either way. And Morton noted that there will be six more like them. He said the Ford camp will have to find a way to cope with the crossover problem, although it wasn't clear what that might be.

The contests next Tuesday are in Nebraska and West Virginia, and both those states register voters by party, which precludes primary switches.

But this week's outcome may give Reagan next week's momentum. He said he thought the Texas victory helped him Tuesday. Indiana strategists on both sides said in advance that the Texas sweep would boost Reagan's showing, perhaps by five per cent. That was more than his margin of victory.

The votes read this way:

Indiana
With 99 per cent of the precincts counted in the Republican race it was:
Reagan 318,688, or 51 per cent.

Ford 301,493, or 49 per cent.

That awarded Reagan 45 Republican nominating delegates; Ford 9. The delegates were apportioned on the basis of congressional district pluralities as well as statewide showings.

On the Democratic side:
Carter 411,783, or 68 per cent.
Wallace 92,217, or 15 per cent.
Sen. Henry M. Jackson, a dropout from the active campaign, 70,907, or 12 per cent.
Carter won 48 delegates, Wallace 9, with 18 uncommitted.

Democratic Sen. Vance Hartke won renomination over Rep. Philip H. Hayes. Secretary of State Larry A. Conrad won the Democratic nomination to oppose Republican Gov. Otis R. Bowen.

Georgia
With 98 per cent of the precincts counted:
Reagan 124,880, or 68 per cent.

Ford 57,795, or 32 per cent.
That meant 48 delegates for Reagan.

Democrat Carter had 408,397, or 84 per cent.

Wallace 56,357, or 12 per cent.
Democrats held separate competition for delegates, and Carter won all 50.

Alabama
With 13 per cent of the Republican precincts counted, Reagan led for 31 delegates.

In the Democratic primary, with 64 per cent of the precincts in, Wallace was winning 29 delegates, Carter three, and three were uncommitted.

District of Columbia
Carter led for seven delegates, Rep. Morris K. Udall for four, and two uncommitted entries were ahead, with 45 per cent of the precincts counted.

That meant Reagan had won 124 delegates on his biggest day as a candidate, for his national total of 360. Ford captured only nine, to get to 292.

It will take 1,130 to name a GOP nominee.

Ford has had reserve delegate strength in the ranks of nominally uncommitted Republicans, including 254 delegates elected in the New York and Pennsylvania primaries.

Morton said the Ford organization will move to tie down those delegates, but that may be difficult just now. With Ford in difficulty, they may want to see some more primaries before deciding how to go. The convention is three months away, and given the new look of the Republican race, uncommitted status may look good to them.

Reagan's road upward began when he started hitting hard at Ford on foreign and defense policy, claiming the United States has slipped to second place militarily. Ford struck back with harshly-worded denials, said Reagan was glib, superficial and inexperienced. That didn't counter the Reagan thrust, and it is not evident what Ford can do now to cope with that campaign offensive.

Baseball was first played in England about the year 1330 by milkmaids and farmhands.

Farmville Bd....

It was decided to extend water service up Highway 258 toward Fountain as far as Horton's Corner and about 1,000 feet beyond. Cost would be $42,862, with one-fourth probably being paid for with State Clean Water Bond money, Water and Light Director J.A. Wooten said.

A contract with Vance Taylor, a local CPA, for auditing of the town's books was entered into. The cost last year was $2,850 and will be about the same, not exceeding $3,000, Taylor has promised the Town Administrator, Martin said.

A joint meeting of the Town Board and the Downtown Improvement Committee was set for May 13. The Board asked the administrator to submit recommendations at the next meeting for the tiling of any ditches in town carrying water from the town's streets. Specifically mentioned was a partially tiled one which runs from a few hundred feet from Lang Street to the Contentnea Creek between houses facing Main and houses facing N. Contentnea Street.

Cost per month of security lights provided by the town was increased from $5 to $5.50.

The Commissioners agreed to contribute the price of one float plus one out-of-town band, $275, if the Chamber of Commerce decides to hold the Christmas parade again this year.

Resurfacing of a number of streets in town with Powell Bill money was discussed, but no action was taken.

A special parking place for Mrs. Walter Burns' van was designated behind her office supply store. She needs the space because she must daily convey her son who is confined to a wheelchair to and from the store, it was pointed out.

Woodcarvers Exhibit Work

This show marks the conclusion of a second course in art taught at the Adult Education Center in Farmville by Andy McLawhorn, and is an extension course of Pitt Technical Institute.

Figure carving is the predominant theme in this small show installed in the building's street show window. There's also a few non-figurative carvings and some functional chests with carved areas.

Woodcarvers with work in this show, in addition to McLawhorn are Thomas Butts, Kevin Cunningham, Charles Pennington, Hugh Stanley, Brian De Marcus, and John Wilson.

"We plan to start another art class soon," McLawhorn said. "We've got some power tools here furnished by Pitt Tech and

PTI's Future Secretaries In Dinner Meeting

The Pitt Technical Institute Chapter of the Future Secretaries Association held its last meeting for the 1975-1976 school year at Parker's Barbecue Tuesday, May 4.

Guest Speakers for the meeting were William Faulkner and Preston Heath. Mr. Faulkner, the Employment Supervisor of Burroughs-Wellcome Co., spoke on "Applying for a Job," and Mr. Heath, the pastor of the Evangelistic Tabernacle, gave the invocation and spoke on "Choosing Right or Wrong."

Other guests attending the meeting from the Greenville Chapter of the National Secretaries Association were President Yvonne Hardee, Brenda Gipson, Peggy James, Myrtle McRoy, and Barbara Evans. Also attending the meeting were JoAnne Leith, FSA advisor; Ann Byrd, Faye Dempsey and Glenda Carawan, instructors from PTI.

The FSA will resume its meetings in the fall.

Pledge Help To Colleges

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina's private colleges have received pledges of support from most of the leading 1976 gubernatorial candidates.

All but one of the leading candidates appeared Tuesday before a seminar sponsored by the Association of Private Colleges and Universities.

All said they supported the concept and continuation of the system in which the state pays a private institution $400 for each North Carolina resident it enrolls.

Lt. Gov. James B. Hunt advocated a change in state laws to ban use of the funds for sectarian purposes. A recently filed suit has challenged the aid system on constitutional grounds, alleging that church-related schools have used state money for religious purposes.

Several others—Democrats George Wood, and Edward O'Herron and Republicans Coy Privette and Jacob Alexander—said they favored expansion of the aid program. None, however, named a figure.

World Of A Doll Hobbist Is Really Not So Small

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor
Housing starts are booming — in the world of dolls.
"It's an addiction, it's like gambling," says Dorothy Lynch of High Falls, N.Y., who owns three dollhouses, one a rare tin model.

Mrs. Lynch's comments were made at the Mini Mundus lumberyard in New York City, where she was shopping for materials for her latest project.

Mini Mundus is Latin for Small World. The lumberyard and the shop of the same name two blocks north on Lexington Ave. specialize in materials, supplies, and furnishings for dollhouses and dollhouse miniatures.

The cluttered little shop that started as a children's book and antiques establishment now also includes antique dollhouses and furnishings. Classes for adults and children were started early this year at the lumberyard with more than 300 persons signing up in the first two weeks.

"I will spend money here that I wouldn't think of spending at the supermarket," Mrs. Lynch said. "Your first rule is, you don't tell your husband what anything costs."

Actually, lumberyard supplies are relatively inexpensive. But finished houses and furniture can make the hobby costly.

Clapboard siding is only $1.50 for a 4-by-22-inch sheet. A strip of shingles is $2. But a finished three-story Victorian house is $950. A Tudor model with a working fireplace that burns matches goes for $750.

Furnishings can add up quickly, especially if you crave a miniature brass bed (about $85) or electric chandeliers ($10 to $40 each).

A trade magazine recently ranked dollhouse miniatures as number eight on a crafts hit parade. Another called it first among up-and-coming hobby crafts in the Northeast, and the fifth-hottest crafts seller in the Pacific region of the United States.

One famous dollhouse was built for heiress Cornelia Vanderbilt Whitney, daughter of industrialist C.V. Whitney. It reproduces in almost exact miniature the Whitney's main house and furnishings on their estate in Lexington, Ky. The two-story, 13-room house has been loaned for fund-raising exhibits in several cities, including New York, where a week-long showing at a famous Fifth Ave. specialty shop benefitted the Girl Scout Council of Greater New York.

A book tracing the house's history and its various occupants was published last fall by Farrar, Straus & Giroux. The author was Miss Whitney's mother, Marylou, who worked with caretaker-handyman Jouett Redmon and other craftsmen on the estate to build and furnish the dollhouse.

"Men and boys are fascinated by the miniaturization process," says Ms. Kathryn Falk, founder and owner of Mini Mundus. Mrs. Lynch agrees. She said her four sons, aged 14 to 28, have made some things for her dollhouses, and her husband, Frank, an IBM employee, helps with her exhibits at hobby shows.

Ms. Falk's "staff" includes Bob Masuch, 13, of suburban Valley Stream, N.Y., who repairs and makes dollhouse furniture. Another boy makes miniature manila envelopes.

One hobbyist from New York's garment industry was shopping for windows for his wife's dollhouse when Ms. Falk persuaded him to become a custom shademaker for her retail and wholesale businesses. She has recruited other customers as suppliers and teachers. An Englishwoman models miniature food after illustrations in a 19th century book. A crafter who keeps geese in New York State's Catskill Mountains uses their down to stuff miniature patchwork quilts. An 80-year-old New Jersey glassblower makes scale model vases, one-inch to one-foot.

Architect Dorothy Wade teaches dollhouse planning and construction. Commercial artist Aralee Kazdan teaches petting point and needlepoint. Brooklynite George Rohr, disabled by polio, works at home making copperware, including miniature pots and pans.

Terry Rogal, the attractive young mother who directs children's classes, began building a dollhouse for her daughter, Jessica, now 5. Later she took some furniture to Ms. Falk to sell, and was asked to teach.

Ms. Falk's mail order business has grown so rapidly that she now sells an illustrated catalog of more than 600 different items. She is reprinting a crafts catalog of building materials and publishes a quarterly newsletter.

The Mathematics Club of D.H. Conley High School has been officially accepted as a chapter of Mu Alpha Theta, the national organization of mathematics clubs for high schools and junior colleges. Thirty-three charter members were recently inducted in a candlelight service.

Members must have completed four semesters of college preparatory mathematics with a "B" average in a Level I course or an "A" average in a Level II course.

Officers of the club are as follows: David Hines, president; Randy Hibbard, vice president; Treva Woodley, treasurer; and Mike Clendenen, parliamentarian.

Charter members are Kenneth Avery, Dale Bailey, Mark Berg, Juanita Cash, Michael Clendenen, Susan Crowther, Connie Garris, Nancy Gurganus, Gary Hibbard, Alice Hines, JoAnn Hines, Kenneth Hines, Carolyn Horton, Robert Hudson, Jr., Donna Lambert, Edward McLawhorn, Clarissa May, Donna May, Sarah Meeks, Michael Musselwhite, Michael Nobles, Catherine Stokes, Priscilla Tucker, and Treva Woodley.

New Food From The Peanut

CLEMSON, S. C. (AP) — Dr. Jack Mitchell Jr., a bio-chemist at Clemson University, has come up with a brand new peanut product which he believes could become a worldwide food staple.

Peanuts are ground into white mush, made into a milky mixture by adding water, cooked, dried into thin sheets and crumbled or ground into flakes or powder.

Mitchell says the product is highly nutritious, cholesterol free, has a long storage life and a remarkable ability to take on the flavor of other food.

Already tested recipes using the product as a basic ingredient range from candies and meats to scrambled eggs.

The Molotov cocktail was first used by the Russians during World War II and was named for V.M. Molotov, U.S.S.R. minister of foreign affairs.

Beirut Quieter; Rest Of Lebanon Is Still At War

Pyramid Power?

MARSHVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Ivan Crissman says he believes some unknown force works on objects placed in model pyramids, enabling razor blades to stay sharp, milk to stay fresh and water to gain medicinal qualities.

Crissman, 31, an eighth-grade mathematics teacher at Union Middle School said he can't explain the phenomenon. "I don't pretend to know everything about pyramids," he said, "but I do know they do some remarkable things."

He says experiments with scale models of the Great Pyramids of Cheops Khufu have proven the claims.

"I can't afford not to be a believer because I have seen some of the things with my own eyes," he said. "I wouldn't even try to explain why."

Crissman says the model pyramids do not have to be air tight, can be made of any nonmetallic material and work best when kept away from metal and electricity. They can also be moved around as long as one side of the base faces due north. The objects are placed in the center, one-third of the way to the top.

Crissman's wife, Connie, a third-grade teacher, said she kept a ripe tomato under a plexiglass pyramid without refrigeration or air-conditioning for one month. She said the tomato still tasted fresh when it was removed.

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A new cease-fire appeared to take hold in Beirut today, but police said the 13-month-old civil war raged on in the mountains east of the Lebanese capital.

Police reported only two persons killed and six wounded in Beirut during the night, the lowest casualty toll in weeks.

But a spokesman said there were heavy 155mm artillery duels between Kamal Jumblatt's leftist Moslem warriors and right-wing Christian defenders during the night in the mountain towns overlooking Beirut. The spokesman said at least 36 persons were killed and 50 were wounded in these clashes.

Bursts of machine-gun fire were also heard in Beirut at midmorning. However, they were sporadic.

The Moslems halted a drive to take Beirut's port area Tuesday night after both sides agreed to a disengagement proposal worked out by the Syrian-Lebanese-Palestinian truce committee.

Steel-helmeted troops of the Palestine Liberation Army, the regular military arm of the Palestine Liberation Organization, set up scores of sand-bagged positions during the night to form a 100-yard-wide buffer zone along much of the two-mile line between Beirut's Moslem and Christian sections. Police said more than 1,000

PLA troops moved into the downtown commercial center and the port area, while reinforced guerrilla patrols policed the city's Moslem quarters.

"It is a test of the real intentions of the combatants. If it succeeds, similar disengagement programs will be introduced to de-escalate fighting in the suburbs, in the neighboring mountain towns and in northern Lebanon," a spokesman for the truce committee said.

Spring Outing Slated May 16

The East Carolina University Parks, Recreation and Conservation students will hold their annual spring outing May 16 at the Tar River Estates party house.

The event, scheduled to get underway at 3 p.m., is open to PRC majors, alumni, staff and friends, it was announced.

Tickets, at $2 each, may be purchased from a member of the PRC curriculum.

Christian militiamen holding the port had been the target of heavy fire Tuesday from the Moslem Ambushers militia. Leaders of the attack said they were trying to drive the Christians from the area before a new cease-fire agreement was reached.

Police reported more than 120 persons killed and 160 wounded Tuesday in the port fighting. Jumblatt met with U.S. envoy L. Dean Brown. Afterward he told reporters he did not believe the United States was helping either of the two leading candidates to succeed President Suleiman Franjeh. The slackening of fighting in Beirut improved the chances of parliament being able to meet Saturday to elect a new president. But there was still a possibility that Jumblatt would order his forces to resume the attack and prevent the meeting being held if he believed a candidate unacceptable to him would be chosen.

Jumblatt favors Raymond Edde, the leader of the National Bloc party who, like Jumblatt, opposes the Syrian intervention in Lebanon. The Syrians are backing Elias Sarkis, the governor of the central bank. The unwritten 1943 agreement which prescribed the framework for Lebanon's Christian-Moslem political system reserves the presidency for a Maronite, the country's largest Christian sect, and Edde, Sarkis and Franjeh are all members of that church. Jumblatt called again for the Moslems and Christians to agree on a candidate. He also renewed a proposal for a roundtable conference in France to discuss reforms in the political and economic system.

The 1943 agreement gave political dominance to the Christians, who were in the majority then but are now outnumbered by the Moslems. They also controlled the economy and made Beirut the financial and commercial center of the Middle East.

Jumblatt wants to establish a Moslem socialist state. But Syrian President Hafez Assad, although he heads a socialist regime in Syria, wants the pre-war capitalist system restored and wants the Christians to retain a substantial share of political power.

"77 Years of Continuous Service To Eastern North Carolina"

Awards To Researchers Practice In Emergency Driving By Sigma Xi Chapter

The East Carolina University chapter of Sigma Xi presented awards to ECU researchers at its annual banquet last Thursday evening.

Sigma Xi is a national honor society which encourages excellence in scientific research. Its members include students and faculty members in campus science and social science departments.

Biology student Joseph Tim-Yau Chan of Hong Kong was awarded the Sigma Xi undergraduate award for research. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Chan of Hong Kong and the ward of Dr. and Mrs. Victor Ng of Robersonville.

The Sigma Xi award for outstanding graduate-level research was divided between two projects: one done by Craig Zamuda, son of Joseph Zamuda of Statelitte Beach, Fla. and the other, a cooperative project done by Carl Bailey of Greenville, Scott Hardaway of Newport News, Va., Scott Hartness of Rocky Mount and Don Foley of Staten Island, N. Y.

Zamuda's project was done through the ECU Department of Biology, and the other project, through the Department of Geology.

Receiving the Sigma Xi faculty award for outstanding research was Dr. A. Mason Smith, faculty microbiologist with the ECU School of Medicine.

The awards banquet featured an address by Dr. Arthur W. Cooper, assistant secretary of the N.C. Department of Natural and Economic Resources.

The following faculty and staff members were initiated as full members of Sigma Xi: Kenneth L. Brown (sociology and anthropology), Bernard E. Kane (environmental health), Carol Ann Lunney (research technician, biology), Floyd Read (science education) and James Wirth (mathematics).

James Ray Coggins of Denton, graduate student in biology, was promoted from associate membership to full membership.

Students elected to associate membership include: Michael M. Anderson of Greenville, S. C., Kurt Getsinger of Chapel Hill, Joseph Harwood of Albemarle, Dane Herring of Wilmington, Mary Carol Smith Owen of LaGrange, Steven Reed of Goldsboro, Robert Reese Twilley of Ayden, Thomas Vicars of Greenville and Craig Dennis Zumuda of Satellite Beach, Fla., all of the Department of Biology, and Carmella Jean Lane of New Bern and Bonita Jay Weis of Miami Beach, Fla. of the Department of Psychology.

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — It was an 80-mile-an-hour car chase, just like you see on the TV cop shows. Car thief in one vehicle, policeman in his cruiser. It began one recent day in busy downtown Minneapolis and ended 25 miles later in suburban St. Louis Park with the arrest of the thief.

Not unusual, really, unless you consider that eight miles of the high-speed pursuit took place going south on a north-bound freeway. The young rookie driver had been on active duty only a month, but had polished his skills in the Minneapolis Police Department's Emergency Reaction Driving School (EMRAD).

In 1973, Minneapolis police racked up 113 accidents to their 178-car fleet. EMRAD was set up that year in a corner of Minneapolis International Airport. In 1975, with 198 cars in the fleet, accidents dropped to 89. Equally significant, the severity of police car accidents and time lost by police as a result dropped sharply. The school operated last year with seven instructors and a $2,000 budget.

Sgt. Raymond Morse and Officer Gary Fey set up the school, patterned after one in Los Angeles. They designed a mile-long course with nine obstacles, to teach such skills as controlled braking, accident prevention by evasive driving without braking, controlled sliding on wet or icy roads, U-turns, 90 degree turns, rhythm driving and even such standards as backing and parking.

Twelve students a day were assigned, with one-to-one instruction. Problems developed immediately. At first, an instructor riding beside the student driver gave a voice command as the car passed a "Q" cone, for maneuvers such as controlled braking or swerving. The student had only two seconds to react correctly. But a half-second delay in the voice command could make a difference of 20 to 30 feet in the reaction space available to the student.

"Every day begins with the same observation, 'you can't control a car with the wheels locked,'" Morse said, "and ends with the conclusion that driving a motor vehicle well every day is as important as qualifying with a revolver four times a year."

"Would you believe our biggest enemy was attitude?" Morse asked. "Our drivers thought they were the best already. Also, they were afraid to flunk. We solved this by sending the 'brass' through the course at the start of 1975, and

"The rhythm of driving is surprisingly important," Morse said. "One reason that so many women make such excellent drivers is because the rhythm of driving is much like that of good dancing." A serpentine lane is used to develop rhythm.

Now about that 80-mile-an-hour car chase. "The rookie driver caught his man because he had learned his lessons well at school and knew his limitations," Morse said. "He didn't over-control, he knew how to handle spins, he kept off the brakes and he simply outdrove his man into submission. And there was no damage to his car."

The school trained 850 Minneapolis police in 1975 and a considerable number of officers from other Minnesota law en-

Honor Soc. Inducts 19 In Ceremony

Nineteen persons have been inducted into the East Carolina University chapter of Sigma Tau Delta national honor society in English language and literature.

In a recent campus ceremony, Omicron Theta chapter president Jackson Harrell of Reidsville formally accepted as members 17 ECU students and two faculty members.

New student members are: Debra Ann Jackson of Hope Mills, Richard Miller of Raleigh, Francine Martin of Conway, Mary Grover of Chevy Chase, Md., Paula Elizabeth Deffenbaugh and Eva Tyndall of Kinston, Anita Driscoll of Clifton Forge, Va., Mary Beth McAllister of Charlotte, Joyce Acree of Gaston.

Martha Merchant Wood of Richmond, Va., Rudy Nileen Morris of Vanceboro, Cole Jones of Greenville, Christine Waters of Goldsboro, Robert Milton Glover of Wrightsville Beach, Elmo Eugene Riggs of Jacksonville, David Savage Brown of Ahsokie and Leigh Ann Price of Mount Holly.

Also inducted as a faculty chapter member was Louise Carlisle Hamilton of Kinston. Inducted as a faculty honor degree member was Dr. Sally Brett of Greenville.

Sigma Tau Delta recognized students and faculty members in college English departments who have outstanding achievements in the field of English language and literature.

Will Judge For Piano Auditions

Mrs. Karilyn Slye Slice will serve as judge for the 1976 National Piano Playing Auditions to be held at the A.J. Fletcher Music Center, ECU, from Thursday through Saturday.

MRS. KARILYN SLICE
From Anderson, S.C., Mrs. Slice is a teacher of piano, theory, and composition and has composed a number of contemporary piano pieces for the young pianist as well as various contemporary sacred works.

She holds the BA degree in piano performance from Columbia College and an MMus degree from Converse College.

The National Guild of Piano Teachers and the American College of Musicians sponsors the auditions annually and encompasses the entire nation reaching thousands of pianists. Karen Hause, local district chairman, is in charge of organizing the Greenville audition center. Local piano teachers with students participating are Mrs. Carlene Ragen, Mrs. Frances Cain, and Mrs. Lynn Cox of Belhaven.

Co-Sponsor A Pig-Pickin'

The East Carolina University Parks and Recreation Society and the ECU Student Volunteer Association are co-sponsoring a pig-pickin on May 15 with proceeds going to the Guatemala Earthquake Fund for aid to disaster victims.

Activities, beginning at 1 p.m., include bluegrass music, square dancing, and volleyball, in addition to the pig-pickin. Featured entertainment is scheduled by Ground Speed.

Tickets are $4, and along with directions on how to get to the setting for the fund-raising event, are available from members of both sponsoring groups.

Stokes-Pactolus PTA Meeting

The Stokes-Pactolus P.T.A. will be held Thursday at 8 p.m. in the school auditorium.

Mrs. Nobles' Grade 7-1 class will give a Bicentennial program. Mrs. Barnes, new music teacher, will have a music program consisting of Grade 6-1 and Grade 6-2 students.

This will be the final meeting of this school year.

Math Club To Push Metrics

The Math Club of D.H. Conley High School is sponsoring several activities to promote the metric system. North Carolina Metric Week will be celebrated May 10-15.

The club's activities planned for N. C. Metric Week include two metric contests, a display of food and clothing with metric measurements, and daily announcements of metric temperature and barometric pressure at the school.

During the National Metric Week metric puzzles will be made available to the students, contests will be conducted and a metric field day will be held.

Will Observe Women's Day

The ladies of White Oak Missionary Baptist Church will celebrate their 16th annual Women's Day Sunday at 11 a.m. Mrs. O. A. Dupree of Raleigh will be the guest speaker.

The public is invited to attend.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market showed a slight gain today while investors continued to study the interest rate outlook.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks edged up a fraction in the early going, and gainers took a 3-2 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said the market appeared to draw some reassurance from a decline Tuesday in the interest rate on federal funds — excess reserves which banks loan each other overnight.

The federal funds rate often exerts an influence on short-term interest rates generally. Today's early prices included Tandy Corp., up 1/2 at 38 1/2; Merrill Lynch, unchanged at 25 1/2; National Semiconductor, achievement to spelling contest winners Ragan Spain, Jean Sprouse, Jeff Cox, Sharon Holland, and Eddie Wooten.

Katheryn Lewis, pupil personnel director, submitted a policy for a plan for non-discrimination on the basis of sex. The board approved the policy.

Two requests submitted to the board by Farmville Central High School concerning athletic matters, were not acted upon by the board and were returned to the advisory council of the school for its recommendations.

One of the items concerned the continued use of the present Farmville athletic field and the completion of construction of the new athletic field. The other item concerned the use of the tennis courts at Farmville Central High School during the summer.

The board awarded an audit contract for county-wide supplemental, federal funds, and special school accounts to J.C. Proctor and Co.

Associate Supt. Tom Craft presented a current health and sanitation inspection report of the school facilities and lunchrooms as submitted by the Community Health Department.

The board passed Supt. Alford's recommendations concerning the organization of the new Farmville Middle School. The plan allowed for the housing of the sixth, seventh, and eighth grades.

Assistant Supt. J.L. Keeter discussed several alternative methods of allotting Title I funds. The board voted to accept a plan which will use the number of low income families, racial composition, and the bottom quartile numbers of testing as a basis for allotting the Title I funds to 3,000 students.

The board voted to allow $67,000 or the amount of a low bid, to be used from the escrow account for funding an easement project for the extension of water and sewer lines to serve the Belvoir-Stokes-Pactolus Middle School.

The Pitt County Coaches Association submitted requests to the board at the April meeting for representation at the board's meeting, summer recreational programs financed by the

Banquet Set By Senior Clubbers
AYDEN—The Pleasant Plain Joint Senior Citizen Clubs of this area will hold their May Fellowship banquet Friday night.

The banquet will be held at Zion Chapel F.W.B. Church beginning at eight o'clock. The announcement was made by Mrs. A.W. Braxton, president, and Mrs. J.M. Reaves, coordinator.

The public is invited to attend.

Legion Post To Meet Tonight
The Marvin Tyson Post No. 372 of the American Legion, Farmville, will hold its regular monthly meeting Wednesday night at 8 p.m. at South George Street Recreation Center, at the corner of S. George St. and Acton Place.

All legionnaires of the post and veterans are urged to be present. The Ladies Auxiliary will meet in the Hospitality Hut.

Art Senior Is Exhibiting Work
Dwight Whitesell of Greensboro, senior student in the East Carolina University School of Art, is exhibiting his work this week in the third floor gallery of Rawl Building.

Among the items shown are graphic works relating to advertising and display, photographs and mixed media illustrations.

Whitesell is a candidate for the Bachelor of Fine Arts degree in communication arts, with a minor concentration in interior design. He is current president of ECU Design Associates.

Police Make Pay Demand

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The Charlotte chapter of the Fraternal Order of Police has asked for a pay raise of 10 to 15 per cent.

The FOP said at a meeting Tuesday night that it will start a public relations campaign, complete with billboards, to gain the increase.

Members of the chapter contended at the three-hour meeting that Charlotte police salaries should be increased several hundred dollars a year, to meet levels of policemen in Winston-Salem and Greensboro.

Charlotte patrolmen make from $9,616 to $12,763 a year.

The policemen also have asked for an easing of the new short-hair regulations. Lt. Paul Earls of the Central Services Division said the new hairstyle "is worse than the 1945 Marine haircut." Some members said they had made second and third trips to the barber shop because the first haircut had not met with a supervisor's approval.

Three Actions
WILLIAMSTON—In a short session Monday, Martin County Commissioners took action on three agenda items. One was the approval of cable television for Williamston Township subject to assurances of legality.

The second item approved was the Grievances Policy for the County Social Services Department. In a third action, commissioners authorized tax reliefs amounting to $245.85.

The Lady Is Safety Council His Friend
POLLOCKSVILLE, N.C. (AP)—When folks in Jones County ask Mrs. Carl Killingsworth Sr. about the lady her boy Carl is reportedly dating up in the big city, she knows just what to say.

"They're just good friends," she explains.

Jones County has been buzzing about native son Carl Killingsworth Jr. ever since the National Enquirer ran a picture and story linking him to Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis.

"She's a very special lady, and our moments together have always been beautiful," Killingsworth was quoted as saying.

Such eloquence was not surprising to his mother. "Every-one in Jones County who knows Carl knows him for what he is. He can talk to anyone," she said in an interview Tuesday.

She said Mrs. Onassis was just one of a number of famous friends in the circle inhabited by her son, a 39-year-old bachelor who grew up on the family county, updating of athletic facilities, and transportation costs paid for by the county. The board postponed action on the request until the May meeting.

In discussing requests and questions submitted by the Pitt County Coaches Association, the board voted to have Supt. Alford send the association a letter.

"I feel that a coaches' representative ought to be allowed to attend the Board of Education meetings if they hire a substitute to replace them," Bill McLawhorn said.

"I agree with the Superintendent, the coaches should have come to us through their principals and advisory council," William House said.

Supt. Alford will send a letter to the coaches expressing the ideas of the board.

Several parents appeared before the board with a request that a minimum of Level II classes taken by a number of students at Ayden-Grifton High School be set aside in determining quality points and ultimately class rank. The board did not act on this matter but has scheduled a special meeting for Monday at 5:45 p.m. to make a decision on the ruling.

In other business the Board: —Approved appropriations totaling $2,091.34.

—Accepted a letter of resignation from Thelma C. Switzer.

—Approved two early graduation requests.

—Approved employees for two teaching positions.

—Approved additional substitute teachers.

—Approved the minutes of the April 6 meeting.

The board adjourned and held an executive session to discuss two personnel matters and a land purchase matter.

Women Are Guests Of Grifton Lodge
GRIFTON—Grifton Masonic Lodge No. 243 entertained the wives and widows of Master Masons at a dinner Friday night.

The invocation was given by Master Mason John Glenn. Archie Rogers, master of Grifton Lodge No. 243, welcomed guests and members. The response was given by Jean Dodd Jackson Creech, Worthy Matron of Grifton Chapter No. 134, Order of Eastern Star.

Rogers introduced officers of the lodge and gave special recognition to Mrs. Glenn Garner of Kinston, Grand Conductress of the Grand Chapter of North Carolina Order of Eastern Star, and her husband, Nolan, and to Mrs. Mamie Dodd Jackson of Grifton Chapter No. 134, who is Grand Representative of the Grand Chapter of North Carolina Order of Eastern Star of the State of Oregon.

Mrs. Creech introduced officers of the Grifton Chapter No. 134.

Fifty year Master Masons recognized were Joe Gilbert and Herbert Quinerly. Leigh Fleming and Ken Berry were introduced as new members.

Troy Jackson introduced the Rev. Willis W. Wilson, pastor of Reedy Branch Free Will Baptist Church, as guest speaker. His program topic was "The Ten Commandments of Friendship."

Rogers expressed appreciation to Buddy Albritton and his committee who were in charge of the food arrangements and to Mrs. Louise J. McCotter, who decorated the lodge hall.

Approximately 125 were in attendance.

East Carolina Blasts Seahawks, 11-2

Jaguars Nip North Lenoir

WHEAT SWAMP—Farmville Central outlasted North Lenoir yesterday, battling to a 5-4 tenning Eastern Carolina Conference baseball victory.

The Jaguars, with the win, kept their title hopes alive, as Conley also upset Ayden-Grifton, closing Farmville to just one game off the place.

North Lenoir scored first, getting a run in the opening inning. Daniel walked and came around with the run when Lang singled, and the ball was errored.

It stayed 1-0 until the fourth, when the Jaguars tied it up. David Joyner walked, and courtesy runner Allan Moore stole second. Emerson Hobgood singled him to third, and Moore scored on Donald Holloman's sacrifice.

But the Hawks came right back with four in the bottom of the inning. Lang singled and Tripp got a hit. Tripp stole up and both scored off a double by Hoffman.

It tied again, scoring two runs. Mike Jenkins singled and stole both second and third. Scott Evans singled him in, but was later picked off. Tommy Cobb singled and stole up, scoring the third FC run on David Joyner's hit.

The Jaguars pushed out front with one in the sixth, 4-3. Evans singled and stole second, scoring on Cobb's hit.

North Lenoir again tied it, this time in the seventh. Thorbs singled and Rouse got a hit. Lang then singled Thorbs over with the tying run.

It stayed 4-4 until the tenth, when the Jaguars got the winning run. Jenkins singled, moved around on a passed ball and a stolen base. Evans doubled him over.

Farmville is now 8-3 in the conference and 10-9 overall. The Jaguars travel to Greene Central in a key game Friday. F.C. 000 121 000 1-5 15 3 N. Lenoir 100 200 100 0-4 10 3 Griffin, Smith (7) and Winborn; Daniels, Battles (9) and Tripp.

WILMINGTON—East Carolina University snapped a jinx of several years last night, taking an 11-2 victory over the University of North Carolina Wilmington.

It marked the first time in a number of years that the Bucs have managed to win a game in that port city from the Seahawks.

This time, the Bucs did it in style, although they bunched most of their runs into the final lead, and held the edge until the seventh, when the Bucs pushed over five to take a 6-2 edge.

Terry Durham went all the way in the victory, his sixth in seven decisions. He scattered five hits, walked four and struck out seven.

Both of the Seahawk runs came in the second inning. Jerry Yandrick walked and Randy Ourt reached on an error. Both advanced on an out, and Swain Smith walked to load the sacks. Richard King singled in Yandrick, and Van Lewis walked to force over Ourt.

Aside from that, the Seahawks had little other opportunity. Larry File doubled in the third and moved to third on an out. Lewis reached on an error and later moved to second in the seventh, and Randy Bernhart singled in the ninth, and also died at second.

The Bucs were held pretty much in check until the fifth inning, when they scored their first run. Charlie Stevens got things going with a single. He moved around to third on two infield outs, and scored when Howard McCullough singled.

Then, in the seventh, the Pirates broke the game wide open with five big runs. Stevens opened up with a bunt single and stole second. Pete Paradossi singled and Rick Koryda's hit brought Stevens in with the tying run. Both runners advanced on an out, and Bobby Supel hit a ball to second that was relayed to the plate, but not in time to get Paradossi. Steve Bryant then singled in Koryda, and Robert Brinkley got a hit to drive in Supel. Joe Roenker finished off the scoring with a hit that brought Bryant around for the 6-2 lead.

In the eighth, the Bucs added four more, running the lead to 10-2. Paradossi walked and Koryda singled. McCullough reached on a bunt single, loading the bases. Supel then singled the Paradossi, and Bryant hit a sacrifice fly to score Koryda. Brinkley walked to load them again, and a hit by Roenker scored another. Card hit into a fielder's choice, scoring Supel with the 10th run.

One final Pirate crossed the plate in the ninth. Paradossi again walked and McCullough did too. Bryant then singled in Paradossi with the last run of the game.

Six Pirates got two hits in the game, Supel, who also doubled; Bryant, Roenker, Stevens Koryda and McCullough.

East Carolina is now 22-7 on the year, and will close out the season on Saturday, as the Bucs entertain Campbell in a 3 p.m. game at Harrington Field.

Then, they must wait to see if the NCAA will consider them as an at-large team for the National Playoffs.

Greene Central Tops Panthers

BETHEL — Jay Carraway had three hits and scored once and Greene Central held North Pitt to two hits taking a 4-0 win over the Panthers, yesterday.

Greene Central picked up its first two in the second and added two more in the third. North Pitt put men on in every inning getting runners on first and third in three frames and loading the bases in the sixth but they failed to score. The Rams got 13 hits off Panthers Jay Bedworth and Tom Corbett.

Ronnie Whitley reached on a single in the second for the Rams and Jerry Speight single. Mike Chase got a hit and an error on the play let both Whitley and Speight score. Holloman singled scoring Chase.

Carraway led off the third with a hit and Floyd Adams brought him across with a triple. Thomas Hooker reached on an error scoring Adams.

Jeffery Warren, Whitley and Speight had two hits each for the Rams.

North Pitt is now 4-7 in the Eastern Carolina Conference and 5-10 overall. The Panthers face Conley Friday.

Conley Again Spoiler As Chargers Fall, 5-4

HOLLYWOOD — For the second straight game, D. H. Conley's Vikings have played spoiler. Last week, they upset the C. B. Aycock Vikings, dropping them two games behind Ayden-Grifton.

Yesterday, it was the Chargers' turn to feel the Viking sword, as Conley took a 5-4 win, tightening up the Eastern Carolina race again.

Conley pushed over one run in the first. Curtis Clemons was hit by a pitch and stole second. He scored when Joey Baggett singled.

Ayden-Grifton pushed into the lead with two runs in the fourth. Dennis Cristiano walked and Ned Craft did too. Eddie Taylor drew a free pass, loading the bases. Vern Davenport brought in two runs with a double.

The Vikings pushed back into the lead with four fifth inning runs. Randy Edens got things started with a triple, scoring on Mike Phillips' hit. Brian Forrest walked and a hit by Clemons scored Phillips. Baggett walked, and when Kevin Adams' hit was errored, both Forrest and Clemons scored.

Ayden-Grifton closed to within one in the seventh. Al Butts walked and Paul Ricciarelli slapped a home run.

The loss was only the second in the league for the Chargers, who held onto first. Conley is now 5-7, and will face North Pitt on Friday. A-G 00 200 2-4 4 2 Conley 100 040 x-5 7 0 Shadle, Teachey (5) and Craft; Jenkins, Adams (7) and Clemons.

Bullets Romp By Chocowinity

JAMESVILLE — The Jamesville Bullets knocked off one of the contenders for the Beaufort-Hyde-Martin Conference lead last night with a 13-5 win over Chocowinity.

The victory left the Bullets just one-half game behind the league-leading Bear Grass nine with a 9-1 record. For Chocowinity, the game cost them a share of the lead.

Chocowinity picked up three in the first inning to take the lead. Bill Dean walked and Dwayne Kellum singled. Billy Mitchell then slapped a three-run homer.

Jamesville rallied for four runs in the third inning. Toby Holliday walked and Larry Pierce singled. Jerry Angle singled, and two runs scored on a hit by Robbie Hardison. Billy Brown then singled in the other two.

In the fifth, the Bullets picked up four more. Ange singled and scored on Hardison's triple. A balk scored Hardison. Erice Davis singled and Jeff Holliday slapped a two-run homer to make it 8-3.

Jamesville added five more in the sixth, while Chocowinity got single runs in the sixth and seventh.

The Bullets travel to Matamuskeet on Friday. Cho'wnty 300 001 1-5 6 5 Jamesville 004 045 x-13 13 2 Mitchell, Kellum (5) and Dean; Brown and T. Holliday.

Exchange Tops Pepsi-Cola

Exchange rallied for five runs in the third inning breaking a 1-1 tie and the Exchange went on to beat Pepsi, 9-2, in the Little League season opener for both teams.

Exchange had taken a 1-0 lead in the first but Pepsi tied it in the third. Exchange scored one in the fourth and two in the fifth. Pepsi added a run in the fourth.

Gordon Douglas pitched his first win of the season giving up just two hits. He struck out 12 and walked one. Steve White was the losing pitcher.

Alison Taylor opened the first with a one-out walk and scored on Douglas's double for 1-0 Exchange lead.

David Woronoff singled and scored on a wild pitch to tie the game in the third. But Exchange blew the lid off in the bottom half with five runs to win the game. Chip Cayton hit a run-scoring double and Jimmy Jones had a RBI single. Two runs scored on walks.

Pepsi's other run came in the fourth as Wilson homered.

Cayton added a single in the Exchange fifth driving in his team's final two tallies. Cayton and Douglas had two hits each for Exchange.

No report was received on the Coca-Cola-Jaycees game.

Life Not Easy For A Manager

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Dave Bristol, in his third stint as a major league manager, this time with the Atlanta Braves, is learning once again that the life of a big-league skipper is not an easy one.

"You die a little bit in games like this," said Bristol after his Braves blew a three-run lead and dropped their eighth consecutive decision, an 8-7 loss to the St. Louis Cardinals in 12 innings Tuesday night. The Braves' current losing streak is the longest the club has gone through since the franchise was moved from Milwaukee to Atlanta a decade ago.

The Braves erupted for six runs in the second inning and led 7-4 after three, but couldn't hold on. They came within one out of victory, but St. Louis tied the score with two out in the ninth and then won it in the 12th on a run-scoring double by Ted Simmons, his fourth hit of the game.

In other National League games, the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the Chicago Cubs 9-6, the Philadelphia Phillies blanked the Houston Astros 5-0, the Pittsburgh Pirates edged the San Francisco Giants 6-5 and the New York Mets defeated the Cincinnati Reds 5-3. San Diego at Montreal was postponed because of cold weather.

St. Louis reached Atlanta starter Phil Niekro for a pair of runs in each of the first two innings. But the Braves erupted for their biggest inning of the season, scoring six runs in the third, the final three on a homer by off-season acquisition Jim Wynn.

Atlanta added another run in the third on an RBI triple by Darrel Chaney. Niekro hit Bake McBride with a pitch in the fifth inning and balked him to second. He scored on Simmons' single. A solo homer by Simmons in the eighth made it 7-6, then with two out in the ninth pinch-hitter Mike Anderson doubled and Lou Brock followed with a run-scoring single to tie the score.

McBride, who had homered in the first inning, singled in the 12th and came home with the winning run on Simmons' double.

Dodgers 9, Cubs 6
Los Angeles posted its 10th consecutive victory and took a one-game lead in the NL West by beating the Cubs behind home runs by Henry Cruz and Ron Cey. Burt Hooton got the victory, with relief help from Mike Marshall.

Mets 5, Reds 3
The Reds dropped one game back to the Dodgers by bowing to the Mets. Dave Kingman hit his 10th homer of the season and Tom Seaver raised his record to 4-0.

Reliever Skip Lockwood, who entered the game in the seventh inning with the Mets leading 5-2, struck out Johnny Bench with the bases loaded. Lockwood then struck out Mike Lum to end the inning, and went on to post his third save of the season.

Phils 5, Astros 0
Jim Lonborg, 3-0, stopped the Astros on seven hits. Bobby Tolan homered and Greg Luzinski belted a bases-clearing double to highlight the Phils' attack.

Pirates 6, Giants 5
Willie Stargell hit a two-run homer in a four-run sixth inning that helped the Pirates hand the Giants their eighth loss in the last nine games.

COMEBACK—California Angels pitcher Nolan Ryan relaxes in the clubhouse by chewing bubble gum and blowing bubbles after a workout. Ryan, who underwent surgery to remove bone chips in his right elbow last September, appears to be completely recovered. He's 3-1 this season, with a 1.42 ERA and 45 strikeouts. (AP Wirephoto)

Denver Learns Lesson Well; Tops New York

By JOHN MOSSMAN
AP Sports Writer

DENVER (AP) — Denver Nuggets Coach Larry Brown insisted his team "learned a lot of things" after dropping the opening game of its American Basketball Association championship series with the New York Nets.

One of the lessons, obviously, was how to beat the Nets. Denver got its fast-break offense rolling in the second half and got better inside penetration with the ball to post a 127-121 victory Tuesday night and square the best-of-seven series at 1-1. Game Three will be played Thursday night in New York.

Some remedial work, however, will be necessary on how to stop New York forward Julius "Dr. J." Erving.

Erving, who scored 45 points in the opener, tossed in 48 points Tuesday night. As in the first game, Erving did pretty much what he wanted.

His 25 points in the fourth quarter set a pro basketball playoff-game record for scoring in a period, and his 37 points in the second half likewise set a pro playoff mark.

"The way he's playing now it's incredible," said Denver forward Bobby Jones, who has the unenviable task of defending Erving.

"We've tried to keep him outside, away from the basket," said Jones. "And we have to deny him the ball as much as possible. But it's tough, and he's really shooting well besides."

Erving connected on 15 of 23 two-point field goal attempts, a pair of three-pointers, and 12 of 16 foul shots. He added 14 rebounds, eight assists, three steals and a blocked shot.

But Erving's efforts were in vain as Denver's balanced scoring attack prevailed before an ABA-record crowd of 19,107.

Guard Ralph Simpson, forced to play all but two minutes of the game because of a shortage of backcourt performers, had 25 points. Forwards Jones and David Thompson and center

Dan Issel each scored 24. Jones and Thompson both scored 12 points in the third period as the Nuggets surged to a 12-point lead.

After the Nets pulled within two points early in the fourth quarter, Issel hit five quick baskets, helping Denver take a 101-92 edge with 7:27 remaining.

But the Nuggets still had Erving to contend with. A flurry of steals that produced baskets and Erving's three-point goal pulled the Nets within four points with 1:26 left.

The Nets were to get no closer, as Simpson promptly scored on a three-point play and Jones added a field goal for a 126-117 lead.

During the final quarter, the Nuggets hit 67 per cent from the floor and the Nets 61 per cent. Their combined 82 points in the quarter set a pro record for points in a playoff period.

Game Four of the series is scheduled for Saturday night, also in New York. A fifth game will be played in Denver next Tuesday night.

Look To New Teams In Loop

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The Southern Conference will consider applications from three prospective members when it begins its three-day spring meeting next Wednesday at Greenville, N.C.

Action is anticipated on bids by Marshall University, the University of Tennessee-Chattanooga and Western Carolina University, according to Commissioner Ken Germann.

The University of Richmond, a conference member for 40 years, will leave to become an independent. East Carolina University will leave in 1977.

Germann said he'd "rather not speculate" on whether the new schools will be added next week, but their inclusion seems likely since the league will otherwise face a six-member setup in 1977.

Germann said each of the applicants has the required three sponsors from among present members and committees of athletic directors and faculty members have visited the campuses.

If admitted, the three schools will undergo a one-year probationary period. Germann said Tennessee-Chattanooga, which does not have a track team, has assured the conference it will have a team by the end of its probationary year, if admitted.

COACHES' CRADLE

NEW YORK (UPI) — Four members of the Boston Celtics' 1960-61 championship team are currently head coaches in the National Basketball Association. Bill Russell is head coach at Seattle, Bill Sharman at Los Angeles, K.C. Jones at Washington and Tom Heinsohn at Boston. A fifth Celtic, Bob Cousy, is a former NBA coach.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Women collegiate athletes fared better than men in a five-year vision-screening program, according to the American Optometric Association. Only 17 per cent of women athletes failed the screening compared with 32 per cent of the men.

Celtics Not Taking Cavaliers Lightly

BOSTON (AP) — The Cleveland Cavaliers are a rarity in that they do not have a superstar, but the mighty Boston Celtics are not taking them lightly in the National Basketball Association's Eastern Conference championship playoff series.

"Cleveland is a sleeping giant," Boston Coach Tom Heinsohn said on the eve of the opener of the best-of-seven series Thursday night at Boston Garden.

"They have a lot of people who can play, as Washington found out," Heinsohn warned the Celtics, fresh from a six-game victory over Buffalo in a bid for an unprecedented 13th NBA championship.

The upstart Cavaliers surprised most basketball observers by outbattling Washington for the Central Division title and posting the third best record, 49-33, in the NBA, ranking behind only Golden State and Boston.

Cleveland proved the regular season performance was no fluke, defeating the Washington Bullets in a seven-game Eastern semifinal series.

Under Coach Bill Fitch, the Cavaliers have developed a stingy defense. The high-scoring Celtics averaged only 94.4 points in five games with Cleveland this season. The Cavaliers averaged 94 points per game, although losing the regular season series 3-2.

Briton Hunts Music In Wild Places Of The Earth

By GREGORY JENSEN
LONDON (UPI) — Jean Jenkins spends much of her life hunting in the wild places of this earth.

She hunts music.

"That's the first thing I learn in any language," she said. "Not something about food or shelter — 'old music.' I know that phrase in more languages than I could begin to tell you."

She learned some new ones recently during 19 backbreaking months spent assembling a new survey of "The Music of Islam."

Her work is on show now as part of Britain's "World of Islam Festival," and it is vast.

It centers on a museum exhibition of Islamic instruments and their music — 170 instruments Jean Jenkins collected from remote tribes, plus music she recorded on the spot, plus her photographs of the players.

"I went to — let's see — 12 countries for this one," Ms. Jenkins, an American-born blue-eyed blonde, said in an interview.

"It took nine trips in all. I started in the Indian deserts and finished in Niger. You wouldn't believe the heat in Niger — 145 degrees every day."

Technically, Jean Jenkins is a museum musicologist, the only one in Britain. She works from the snug safety of London's little-known Horniman Museum, tending its collection of more than 5,000 strange instruments.

But many of those instruments she has collected herself, buying them from the wilderness people who make them.

A trained anthropologist, for the past 15 years she has been plunging off to distant and unapproachable places.

She has been lost in the desert without water, slept on lion skins in nomad tents, lugged her tape recorder over 11,000-foot passes in the Hindu Kush.

Casually she recalls a dust storm in the Gobi desert of Outer Mongolia, or getting into China long before President Nixon did, or the impossible humidity of the Red Sea coast.

"I suppose it sounds exotic and romantic, all these strange places," Ms. Jenkins said. "But these trips have been absolute hell."

By now, however, they have helped make her a world authority on ethnic music. Museums all over Europe consult her. She broadcasts for the BBC and French radio and records for the United Nations.

She has recorded and compiled seven record albums, with eight more coming out soon. Six of these are of Islamic music in connection with the current festival.

Besides those, Ms. Jenkins is arranging four live concerts and, for the catalogue to her museum show, has compiled a bibliography listing every reference to Islamic music ever published.

"It has to be done now, this work," she said. "Classical music in these countries will be preserved. But the peoples' music — folk music — is being replaced by Western music cribbed from films or transistor radios."

To capture it while there's still time, Ms. Jenkins has to go where the music is. And she has found one invariable rule: "The further from the capital city," she said, "the better the music."

Once she bounced on muleback for seven days over "incredibly rugged" country to record the best funeral wailers in Ethiopia.

She tells stories of "Beau Geste" style fortress villages in the Sahara, or recording "trance music" of the whirling dervishes at their most devout, men-only religious festivals.

"I remember in Sumatra once, I went to a funeral," she recalled. "Naturally I left my tape recorder behind out of respect. Everyone was most upset."

"They insisted I get it. Then the whole funeral stopped, right in the middle of all the mourning, while they explained the seven different kinds of drumming needed to make a funeral complete."

Most trips Ms. Jenkins finances herself, going on her own time. This means she goes when she can, not when conditions are right.

"No one wants to go to Afghanistan in the winter," she said. "But there you are, up in the high mountains on the Russian border in the middle of winter, bitterly cold, because somebody told you the best musicians would be at this particular wedding."

She's had malaria, pneumonia, uncounted other ills.

Traveling in deserts on foot or camel or "whatever's available," she has trained herself to take one glass of water before sunrise and another after sunset, and make those do for brushing her teeth as well.

What makes the hardships bearable are the trophies Jean Jenkins brings back.

"When people hear this sort of music," she said, "their first reaction is, 'Good heavens, that's gorgeous. That's beautiful.'"

"I don't record what is merely 'interesting.' It really is most beautiful."

N.C. Museum Of History Is Launching Funds Campaign

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Because there is an ever chronic shortage of funds to purchase significant and sometimes costly historical and cultural artifacts symbolizing North Carolina's past history, the North Carolina Museum of History has come up with an associate's plan that hopefully will solicit widespread public support.

In early April, the newly-formed (late 1975) North Carolina Museum of History Associates launched a statewide campaign to get across the concept of public assistance to the museum.

Mrs. James E. Holshouser, Jr. is honorary membership chairman of the N. C. Museum of History Associates which includes a board of directors, campaign chairmen, and district and county chairmen.

Locally, William H. (Bill) Taft, Jr. is director for the 2nd Congressional District; Dr. Henry Ferrell, a Professor of History, East Carolina University heads the membership drive in the district; and Mrs. William S. Corbitt, Jr. is chairman on the local level, assisted by Mrs. Robert Woronoff.

Commenting on some of the goals of the associate, Taft said "one of the first things we hope to do is to get people interested in continually supporting the State History Museum. Efforts will be made to raise money as well as alert people to the possibility of donating items of value to the museum."

"At one of our recent meetings, John Ellington, the museum administrator said there's a special need for artifacts representing the Exploration and the Revolutionary War periods in North Carolina."

"I might mention," Taft added, "that if anyone has an artifact of any kind, a document, a flag, furniture, tools, anything that he or she feels could be of value should get in touch with Mr. Ellington at the museum." (Ellington can be contacted by writing to him at the N. C. Museum of History, 109 E. Jones Street, Raleigh, 27611, or by phone 829-3894.)

"We will be actively seeking funds from individuals and from businesses," Taft said. In order to make associate membership available to the largest cross-section of North Carolinians, a varied membership format has been established.

Individual membership categories are: Student, $5.00; Individual, $15.00; Family, $25.00; Contributing Member, $50.00; Patron, $100.00; and Donor, $250.00.

Corporate membership is available in five different levels — Corporate Gift, $100; Corporate Patron, $250; Corporate Donor, $500; Corporate Sponsor, $1000; and Charter Life Member, $1,000. All contributions, individual and corporate, are tax deductible.

Mrs. Don (Nancy) Coffey, Jr., a staff member of the N. C.

Museum of History notes "the Museum Associates was formed late in 1975 by a group . . . who saw the great need for a supportive group to aid the Museum in preserving, promoting and encouraging a knowledge and appreciation of North Carolina history."

"They set as their purpose both financial aid to the Museum and the creation of wider interest in the Museum, its programs and state historic sites."

One of the key factors motivating the establishment of the group, according to Mrs. Coffey, is that "presently the Museum has only a $4000 yearly acquisition fund. With funds from membership and corporate gifts, the Associates are hoping to be able to set up a trust fund that will be an ongoing source of

The Daily Reflector, Greenville, N.C.—Wednesday, May 5, 1976—17 additional financial support for the Museum."

She mentioned that membership will carry special benefits "such as special tours and events, newsletters, exhibit previews and a ten per cent discount in items on sale in the Museum Sales Shop. Also, those who join in 1976 will become charter members and will receive special recognition."

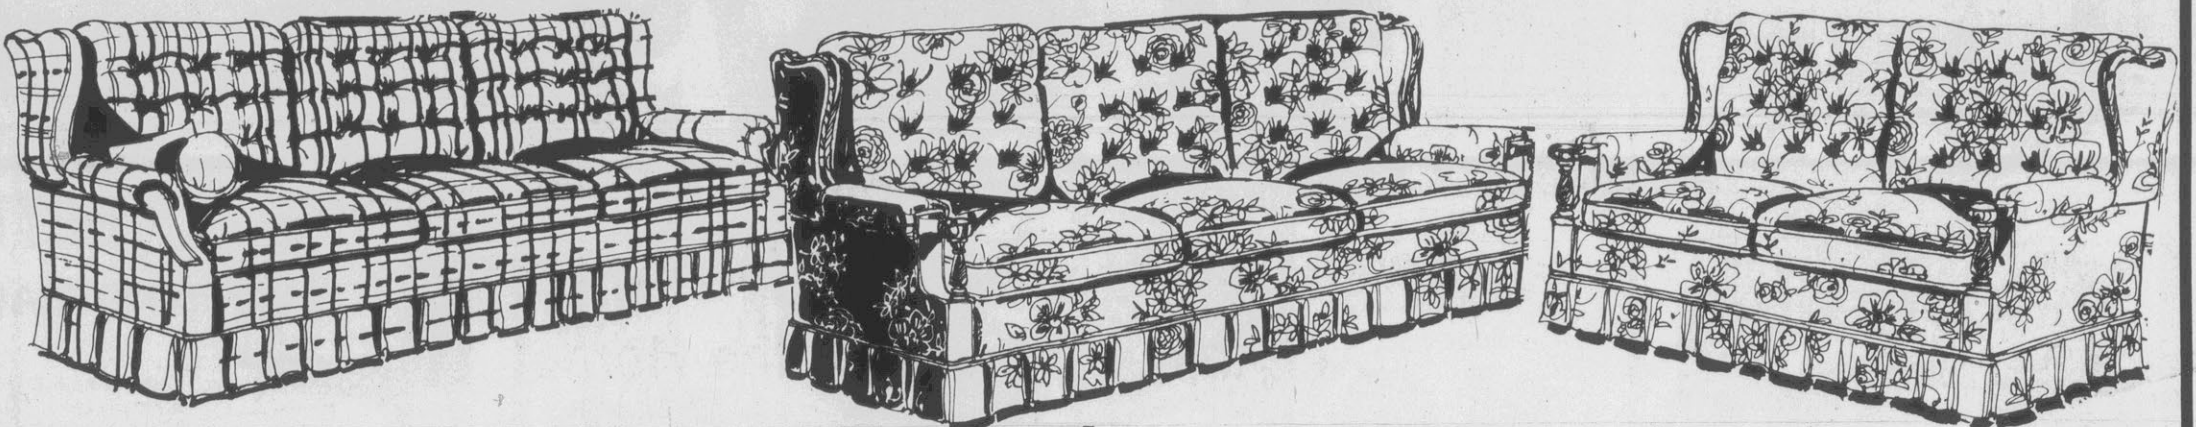

Taft said "It is important that corporate contributors realize that their gifts will go into a Heritage Trust fund, a fund in which the principal will become a perpetuating fund with only 60 per cent of the income realized from the principal to be spent."

Taft and Mrs. Coffey both stressed the important role that speedy public on-the-spot support has already played in the acquisition of important items.

One instance was the purchase in 1949 of the Carolina Charter of 1663 from a dealer in Surry, England with $6,000 quickly raised so that North Carolina could secure the historic document ahead of South Carolina. More recently, the purchase of the Confederate battle flag captured when Fort Macon fell was made possible with funds outside the $4,000 annual acquisition budget.

"The membership drive lasts through the month of May," Taft said. "I hope many local people will become interested. Those who want more information or would like to join the Museum Associates should call Mrs. Corbitt or Mrs. Woronoff. (Telephone numbers 752-5169 or 756-4612, respectively.)"

Aspiring Comics Given Chance At Night Spot

COMEDY TRYOUT—Betty Walsron tries for a laugh as she performs at the Comedy Store in Los Angeles during a Monday night tryout night. (AP Wirephoto)

By JIM GREIF
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — On any Monday, you can see how hard it is to be funny. Monday night is tryout night at the Comedy Store, a Hollywood night spot devoted to the art of the standup comic. Anyone who imagines he can make other people laugh may mount the stage for five minutes of glory, if the laughs come — or humiliation, when a deadening, squirming silence pervades the room.

With posters of Charlie Chaplin, Joe E. Brown, Laurel and Hardy, and W. C. Fields looking on sympathetically, a series of aspiring comics try out their routines before the patient, if critical, Monday night audience.

The surroundings are understated. The Comedy Store isn't a glamorous cabaret, but it provides the novice, yet-to-be-discovered or overlooked comic with an authentic luxury: a place to bomb.

"Vaudeville is dead," says Tom Dreesan, a comic from Chicago who has started on his own after working with a partner for years. "There's no place to be bad. And a comic needs some place to try out his material."

"This is a place to be bad." When a comic gets a chance to appear on the Johnny Carson or Merv Griffin television show, he has to be good. He can't try out his material on the TV audience because he might never be heard from again. So, established comics such as Jimmy Walker, Richard Pryor, Gabe Kaplan and David Brenner come to the Comedy Store to try out new material or to hone their acts for a TV appearance or record cutting date.

But, Dreesan says, the comics try hard even on Mondays because "it's never easy to bomb." And in addition to the usual array of comedy aficionados and Sunset Strip night people, there are often talent agents in the audience.

Mitzi Shore, a petite woman with dark hair, a friendly smile and an easy, warm laugh, is owner, impresario and psychological counselor at the Comedy Store.

Until a few years, Mitzi was married to comic Sammy Shore, and she still loves comics. "I never tell anyone his act stinks and to get out of the business. I never discourage anyone," she says. "Who am I to judge?"

The success of the Comedy Store in its 3½ years on the Strip led to opening of a branch in Westwood, the Comedy Store West. There Mitzi sends promising newcomers to work out before they can fill a regular slot at the Sunset store on nights other than Mondays, when there is a cover charge.

"If they're really bombing," she says, "I tell them to work up new material and come back in three weeks."

Mitzi says the pot luck Monday night routine isn't entirely altruistic. "I have 15 comics performing every night here and in Westwood. This is a way to find new people."

What makes a good comic? "I think you have to have a funny bone," Mitzi says.

But Howard Taylor, a comic who appears at the Comedy Store during the week and also acts as a low-key emcee on Mondays, says practice, and more practice, is the key to developing good material and an effective delivery that people will remember.

"Believability is important," he says. "Some people will get a lot of laughs, but people won't remember them."

The comics on Monday night range from pros trying out for Mitzi to complete first-timers, many of whom have difficulty filling up the five minutes allotted to them.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, MAY 6, 1976

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You are inspired by something that seems purely imaginative but actually is practical and can be of great help. Don't be dramatic.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Be more helpful and understanding to kin to gain their backing which you need. Be careful of those who are dangerous.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Don't argue with an associate of long standing over some petty annoyance. Cement better relations instead. Study facts carefully.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Enlarge your thinking and you can add appreciably to present holdings. Evening is fine for social matters.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You like to have the goodwill of others so be sure to get rid of any personal flaws you may have and be better liked.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You can come to right decisions where the future is concerned. Reach a better accord with the one you love.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Get together with good friends at the activities most appreciated by all concerned and have a delightful time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Fidelity toward higher-ups will help you put your finest talents to work more successfully. Get rid of credit matter that pesters you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Listen carefully to what newcomers have to say and follow the best of such advice. Decide on better ways to advance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Keep in mind favors extended you in the past. Cooperate more with mate who desires to have more cooperation.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Find out what others expect and go along with them where and when feasible. Be patient and get good results.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Do important work to free time for other things. Improve diet for better health and get a real lift.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be loaded with talent but will require encouragement and praise in order to do his or her best, so give it. Also give good spiritual training early so that the efforts will be trended in the right directions. Let any discipline be kind and reasoning in nature. Then there can be a tremendous success in this lifetime plus much friendship and goodwill for you as parents as well as for others.

Relives Hank Williams Legend

By JOE EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—The old man guided his grandchildren to the front of the theater and told them, "I want you to study this. This is the way Hank Williams really was."

In Akron, Ohio, the man was reliving the legend of Hank Williams through a one-man road show, "Hank," 90-minutes of songs and dialogue by Nashville songwriter Jim Owen.

Throughout 16 Williams' songs interspersed with an additional hour of dialogue, Owen looks, sings, speaks and dresses like Williams. Veteran country music personalities who knew Williams well say the resemblance is uncanny.

"A hobby became a vocation," said Owen, 35, who never met Williams but saw him perform once in person. "I spent 23 years doing research about his life, and somehow it turned into this."

"The idea came from a dream my wife had. She dreamed I was at the Grand Ole Opry singing in Hank's voice. It never left my mind.

"I was such a fan of his, I had absorbed a lot of his mannerisms. When I started doing the show, I used to 'act.' But now it just comes natural."

"My voice is deeper than his, but now that I've been imitating his voice it's no problem now."

He made an outfit especially for the show, copying it from one Williams owned.

The Williams' legend keeps growing because his life was public and his songs related so well to the people, Owen said. "Because of his songs, people felt they knew him. People were aware of his drinking, his marital problems and the trouble he had with the Opry."

"People thought his songs were about them. He was personal; he related. Then, when he should have been on top of the world, he was dead. People thought they had lost a member of the family."

"After the show, we do 30 minutes of questions and answers. This is so the people won't go home depressed. The tears that come from the audience are unbelievable."

Owen, who wrote "Louisiana Woman, Mississippi Man" for Conway Twitty and Loretta

Lynn and "Southern Living" and "Broad-Minded Man" for Jim Ed Brown, recalled that he cried, too, when he was 11 years old and heard that Williams had died.

"He and Ted Williams of the Red Sox were what I lived for. It was too much for me to believe."

He hopes to be chosen to portray Williams in a movie about his life. "Your Cheatin' Heart," starring George Hamilton, has already been done about Williams, but Owen said it was riddled with inaccuracies.

"The movie was right about two things—that he lived and died. George Hamilton is a good actor, but he just wasn't Hank Williams."

Finding Compensation In Being 'Ugliest Man'

MEMPHIS (AP) — James Webb has his own version of the story of the ugly duckling. The duckling doesn't change into the swan, but it does find a lot of golden eggs.

Webb, a former New York plumber turned carnival star, is the "Ugliest Man in the World," a distinction which he says has brought many changes for the better.

"There's something about being really ugly that women like," said Webb. "Maybe it's because when you know you're that ugly, you develop a sense of humor about it. Having a good sense of humor is more attractive to women than having a pretty face."

"A lot of women come up to me now and say, 'Gee, James, you're not so ugly!'"

Whatever the opinion on his looks, Webb said, most people would find his salary attractive.

"I work about 25 minutes a day and make a lot more money than when I was a plumber," he said. "I just bought a big orange grove in California."

Webb started his new career after he had to have all his teeth pulled at age 36.

When his teeth were gone, he began making toothless faces at his friends. They took pictures of him and sent the pictures to a newspaper contest for the ugliest person in America. Webb won.

From there he was off to the International Distortion Competition in London, where the English judges said he was, indeed, the ugliest man in the world.

Webb, who travels with the Goodings Million-Dollar Midway, has a face one isn't likely to forget, but his brother did.

Webb was performing before a Cotton Carnival audience in Memphis Sunday, when he recognized a face in the crowd—his brother's, Tom Webb.

"Tom didn't know I was the ugliest man in the world," said Webb. "We haven't seen each other for nine years. I didn't know he was in Memphis."

"It nearly blew his mind when the master of ceremonies announced me as the 'Ugliest Man in the World.'"

Webb said he is glad to have found his brother living in Memphis.

"I told him I'd be back and spend a couple weeks vacation with him when the carnival season ends," said the "Ugliest Man in the World."

Opening lead: Eight of ♣.

You don't need a computer brain or have to be a great mathematician to play good bridge. However, a knowledge of the basic percentages is a prerequisite for choosing between alternative lines. Consider this hand.

South chose to open with his shorter minor to give himself an easy rebid over his partner's major suit response. After North jump shifted, South showed his second suit and North set the trump suit with his quiet bid of three diamonds. South opted to cue-bid his ace of hearts in case his partner wanted to play no trump, and North took charge. He asked for aces and, without bothering to find out about kings, blasted to the grand slam when he found out that his side had all the first-round controls.

West led his top heart, and declarer was not thrilled with his dummy. There were only ten running tricks, so the other tricks would have to come from ruffs. In addition, declarer had to consider the matter of entries and the fact that he could not score his fourth heart until trumps were drawn.

Declarer decided that his best chance was to make as many tricks as possible on a crossruff. But first he had to avoid a spade loser, either through a finesse or by taking a spade discard on the third round of hearts. Which line would you choose?

Looking at all four hands, it is obvious that the spade finesse will lose and that three rounds of hearts will go through. That is precisely the way declarer played, without the benefit of seeing all the hands. It was strictly a matter of percentages. The odds on a spade finesse are exactly 50 per cent; the chance of finding the seven missing hearts divided 4-3 are slightly better than 62 per cent.

After winning the ace of hearts, declarer cashed two more hearts to discard his spade. Ace of clubs and a ruff were followed by ace of spades and a ruff. Declarer then took the remaining six tricks on a high crossruff, scoring in all three heart tricks, two black aces and eight trump tricks.

EXTRA

HOT GROG HELD OVER!

Greenville, N.C. "HOT GROG" has been held over at THE ROXY PLAYHOUSE for four shows May 6-10. The new show by North Carolina's own Jim Wann and Bland Simpson depicts actual male & female pirates, desperados, and romantics along the bawdy coast of the Carolinas just after the turn of the 1700's. It is brimming with moving and magnetic music of Wann-Simpson. Carolina's leading young songwriters, whose "DIAMOND STUDS" became an off-Broadway sensation, "HOT GROG" joins "DIAMOND STUDS" as treasured memory for thousands of Tar Heel theater goers. You'll regret not sharing this unique southern experience.

SHOWTIMES: Thurs., Fri., Sat. 9 pm • Sun. 2 pm. TICKETS: On sale at The Mushroom, Downtown Mall, Record Bar, Pitt Plaza and at the door. CALL: 752-3815. After 7 pm 756-9911. Produced by Peppie Productions with Roxy, Ltd.

English Mayor Will Be Tryon Palace Guest

NEW BERN—John Boyce, Mayor of the city of Guilford, England, accompanied by the Mayoress, will be a special Bicentennial guest at Tryon Palace on Friday and Saturday.

The Mayor and Mayoress will spend nine days visiting in North Carolina. Two days of that time will be devoted to social and historical interests in New Bern.

The visit of the Mayor and Mayoress to North Carolina is primarily for the purpose of dedicating an 18th century Herb Garden at the High Point Historical Museum, for which the city of Guilford supplied a gift of seeds for the planting.

Beer was brewed more than 6,000 years ago in Mesopotamia.

Plastic Surgeon Will Be Speaker

The American Association of Medical Assistants meeting will be held Thursday at 8 p.m.

Dr. Kelley Wallace, who is a plastic surgeon, will be guest speaker. The meeting will be in the Educational Building located behind Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

DR
IF WE DO NOT HAVE THE HOME YOU WANT, WE WILL FIND IT FOR YOU. We have seven homes in the 20's located in both Greenville and Ayden. These homes have three bedrooms, usually 1 1/2 baths, living room, dining rooms, some with garages and carports. If you are interested in a home in this price category, give us a call. If you are looking for a home in the thirties, come look with us. We have eleven listings in this price range consisting of both new and resale homes. All have three bedrooms, two baths, living room, dining rooms, family rooms, some with fireplaces, some with central air, carports, or garage. If you want a home in the thirties, better give us a call, it would be a shame to miss the home you really want. If the forties are your price bracket, you might look at our twelve homes. They are located in various sections of town including Eastwood, Brentwood, Belvedere, Westhaven, Lake Glenwood and Ayden. Three to four bedrooms, new and resale, two baths, family rooms, fireplaces, garages, central air. You will not want to miss these. If the fifties are more to your liking, we still want to work with you because we have five homes in this price bracket, both new and resale. All are elegant, all are in choice locations. Three to four bedrooms, formal living rooms, dining rooms, family rooms, fireplaces, central air, garages or carports. Either in or out of the city limits. We have two fantastic homes in the eighties. One has five bedrooms, another three bedrooms. Both are located in Greenville's choicest areas, both are custom built with the finest materials. If you are looking for a home in the sixties, seventies or eighties, give us a call. We will find it for you. Moving to another city? Call us and we can make your move an easy one. We are members of RELO, INTER-CITY RELOCATION SERVICE, the largest non-profit relocation service in the country.

Why it makes more sense to lease a Mercedes-Benz than any other make of luxury car sold in America.

Even after 5 years, a Mercedes-Benz holds its value better than any other make of luxury car. That saves you money when you lease. Because a car that retains its value better, is a better value at the end of the lease. The result: Lower expenses for us, lower leasing costs for you. Come in and talk to our leasing specialist. See why it makes more sense to lease a Mercedes-Benz than any other make of luxury car.

RICK CHOTIN gets a chuckle while trying on the 60-inch waist trousers; he once weighed 346 pounds. (UPI Photo)

How To Lose 200 Lbs.—The Hard Way

By DALE SINGER
ST. LOUIS (UPI) — When Rick Chotin checked into the hospital on April Fool's Day, 1972 he weighed 346 pounds. He had tried all kinds of diets, but nothing worked, and his fat threatened his life. At age 22 he had kidney stones, high blood pressure and a strong desire to be a former fat person.

Four years after undergoing an intestinal bypass operation Chotin weighs 150 pounds. He looks better, feels better and candidly admits, "It's changed my life."

The bypass operation is not experimental surgery but it is still in an investigative stage, according to Dr. Gene B. Starkloff, who has performed the operation at the St. Louis University Medical Center more than 600 times since 1970.

He has seen the health and happiness the surgery can bring, but he still says it's far better to lose weight at the dinner table than on the operating table.

"I tell all my morbidly obese patients two things," Starkloff said in an interview. "If you can lose weight without the operation, it's far, far better to do it another way. Second, I tell them they have a fatal disease."

The bypass operation, in which a portion of the small intestine is short-circuited so that it will not absorb nutrients, is major surgery and not to be taken lightly, Starkloff said. It is done for health reasons only, not cosmetic ones.

Patients who want the operation must be at least 125 pounds overweight, have been obese for seven years or longer and have no cause for their condition except overeating. They often have diabetes, respiratory problems or other serious ailments.

Chotin, a jeweler, was a typical bypass patient. Once the personification of the jolly fat man, he tried everything to lose weight, but even when he succeeded, the extra pounds were never gone for long. Toward the end of high school he lost 100 pounds on a crash diet program at a hospital. His parents awarded him with a trip to Hawaii, and in a month he had put 40 pounds back on.

In the first year after his bypass operation, Chotin again lost 100 pounds. Now he is down to a normal weight for his 5-foot-7 height. He doesn't look like a fat man any more but sometimes he still thinks like one.

"I always considered myself fat," he said. "When people look at me a little funny now, I still think they're looking at a fat person."

Starkloff said the operation has both physical side effects, such as diarrhea and possible liver and kidney problems, and psychological side effects which can be just as bad. Prospective patients are given rigorous screening to determine whether they can handle the change and follow post-operative instructions. About 30 per cent are rejected for a variety of reasons.

Surgeons take great care in determining just how much of the intestine will be disconnected. Too little would not result in enough weight loss, but too much could result in starvation. The intestine is not removed, only unhooked, and Starkloff said that in some cases the procedure is reversed.

"One man was a dominant, aggressive type," he said, "and he found that the people he could push around when he was 400 pounds wouldn't be pushed when he weighed only 190. This really traumatized him." The bypass was reversed, Starkloff said, and the man regained all his weight.

Bypass patients do not experience any loss of appetite. "If anything," Starkloff said, "they may eat more, because they no longer feel guilty. These people don't know satiation. They've never been full."

He stressed that a bypass does not make a morbidly obese person normal and healthy. Patients have a number of physical symptoms afterward and are closely monitored at regular intervals, ideally for life.

The operation is peculiar, Starkloff said, because it does not concern a part of the body that has anything wrong with it. The intestines are functioning normally — the patients just eat too much.

Still, with all the risks and all the possible side effects, nearly all the patients who return questionnaires say they are glad they went through with the operation, glad to be able to walk up steps without being out of breath, glad to be accepted by others.

Business Notes

EARNINGS UNCHANGED

Carolina Power & Light Co. reported earnings of $2.70 per share of common stock for the 12 months ended March 31. The figure is unchanged from earnings for the 12 months ended Dec. 31 but up from the $2.38 per share earned in the 12 months ended March 31, 1975.

Earnings for the first quarter of 1976 were 68 cents per share, down one cent from the first quarter of last year.

Net income for the 12 months ended March 31 was $106.9 million on an average of 29.6 million shares outstanding, compared to $79.2 million on an average of 24.1 million shares in the similar period a year earlier.

Steeplejack Family Moves Up In World

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — The O'Neil family gets to the top on every job it undertakes. Mr. and Mrs. O'Neil and all the younger O'Neils are steeplejacks.

There are five of them, including Jerry O'Neil, 51, his wife Beverly, 49, their sons, Daryl, 27, and Tim, 22, and Daryl's wife Judy, 23, who recently took time out to have a baby.

"There aren't too many steeplejacks now," said O'Neil, whose family calls Bay City, Mich., home. "I think we are the only family of steeplejacks and I don't know of any other women who do this."

Working as a team, the O'Neil family scales churches of all heights to restore old steeples, paint, repair, replace broken mortar and reinforce weakening structures.

Jerry O'Neil learned the trade from his father in the Detroit area. For 25 years, Jerry worked in a chemical plant there and worked as a steeplejack on the side.

His wife joined him in the trade in 1960 and their sons started learning when each was 11.

It has been a full-time family profession the past four years.

"The best way to learn how to be a steeplejack is by working with a steeplejack," O'Neil said. "It takes years to learn because each job is different."

"There's a multiple of trades involved, and I guess that's why we are called steeplejacks — we are jacks of all trades."

Currently the family is fixing loose tiles and gold leafing the cross atop Jacksonville's Immaculate Conception Catholic Church.

Each year, O'Neil writes churches in the eastern half of the nation asking if they need any steeplejack work done. From the replies, he maps a tour that usually reaches into Florida and Georgia in the winter months.

Most of the family's work is in Michigan, Ohio and Wisconsin, he said.

"We feel like this is our calling, to work on God's houses and do the high work," O'Neil said.

Old Aircraft Are Being Recycled

VISALIA, Calif. (AP) — Some old planes never die. They are reborn as fire fighting planes.

Parked at Sequoia Field north of here are several World War II planes such as the B17 and DC7. They have been converted into planes to bomb fires with retardant.

They all belong to a company headed by Hank Moore and are under contract to the U.S. Forest Service and the California Division of Forestry.

Egypt Tries Hike Output Of Regained Oil Fields

EDITOR'S NOTE — Five months after recovering the Sinai desert oil fields from Israel, Egypt is trying to increase production and share a highway with the Israelis as amicably as possible.

By HARRY DUNPHY
Associated Press Writer
ABU RUDEIS, Egypt (AP) — Sandwiched between craggy red-brown mountains and the blue Gulf of Suez, the Abu Rudeis oil fields are vital to Egypt's debt-ridden economy and to its hope of becoming a major oil exporter.

The 72 Sinai desert wells and offshore rigs recovered from Israel last December strengthened President Anwar Sadat's trust in the diplomacy of U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, who negotiated their return in the second Sinai accord. Israel controlled the fields for 8½ years.

They produce nearly $500,000 a day worth of oil, money Egypt needs to make a dent in its estimated $11 billion debt to other countries, including the Soviet Union.

Unlike Israel, which used 50 to 60 per cent of Abu Rudeis production for domestic needs, Egypt exports most of the oil in tankers that steam 100 miles north to the reopened Suez Canal.

This export is possible because there are other oil producing areas in the country. With Abu Rudeis back, Egypt's current output is 300,000 barrels a day. Its domestic consumption is 200,000 barrels daily.

Some 31 foreign companies are exploring offshore and onshore in many parts of the country as part of an ambitious program to boost production to one million barrels a day by 1982.

Ironically, once the fields here were back in Egypt's hands, the government increased the price of gasoline from 64 to 75 cents a gallon.

The 450-square mile Abu Rudeis fields, located a few miles south of the place where Moses is said to have drawn water from a rock, averaged about 100,000 barrels a day until 1973 when output declined to 85,000, according to Israeli reports.

But the state-run Netivei Neft Co. never published any official figures in industry journals so any comparison is a rough estimate.

The Egyptians and their Italian partners say they are pumping 70,000 barrels a day. Some wells were shut down to install new equipment.

The Egyptians say Israel abused the Sinai fields through what the oil industry calls "creaming" the wells — rapid extraction of as much oil as possible without sufficient maintenance or use of secondary recovery techniques.

Although most of the easily accessible oil is gone, Egyptians and officials of AGIP, a subsidiary of ENI, Italy's state oil company, believe they can increase output to 80,000 barrels a day and maintain it at that level for 10 years or more. The Egyptians and Italians operate the fields in a 50-50 partnership.

After that, the life of the fields depends on new exploration. The Egyptians believe there are sufficient reserves both on land and offshore to prolong production in the 20-year-old fields at least to the turn of the century.

To start the preservation effort, Egypt is investing $40 million in 1976 alone for maintenance and other improvements.

But because Abu Rudeis is located in the U.N.-manned buffer zone between Egyptian and Israeli forces, there can be no military installations to protect the field against the type of offensive Israel launched in 1967 when it took over the fields.

The Sinai agreement permits Egypt to maintain only a lightly armed 700-man civilian police force for the oil fields and Egypt's entire 70-mile long corridor on the east shore of the Gulf of Suez.

One of the top Italian officials with the companies involved, Buillemo Moscato, says a decline in production would be "normal for a field of this age. But we anticipate improving liftings to 80,000 barrels a day without decline in the reservoir.

Moscato said most of the $40 million being spent this year to develop the fields will go into offshore improvements, including the repair of three wells that a stray Israeli Hawk missile knocked out shortly after the 1973 Arab-Israeli war.

Sayed Omar, one of the company's two Egyptian field managers, said: "We are thinking about this year only. We have a long term plan but it is still under study. I believe we can keep these fields operating another 29 years if there are new discoveries."

Omar and many of his colleagues are glad to be back at Abu Rudeis after 8½ years of working in other Arab countries or for other oil companies in Egypt. But there is some bitterness at working in close proximity to the Israelis.

The road connecting various wells in the 30-mile-long complex is a particular source of irritation. Egypt and Israel share its use under U.N. supervision.

"The Israelis have all the good hours," complained engineer Abdel Aziz Bayoumi as he and a visitor waited 90 minutes on a jetty recently after visiting offshore rigs until it was Egypt's time to use the road.

"The enemy in front of us and the sea behind us But the government wants it this way so what can you do," he said.

Bayoumi is one of 650 Egyptians and 10 Italians working in the fields — the same number Israel maintained in its day. Egypt had 1,500 workers before 1967 but the number has been reduced because shifts now are 12 hours long instead of eight.

The workers live a bachelor existence in a town of pre-fabricated rent-free bungalows at the northern end of the site.

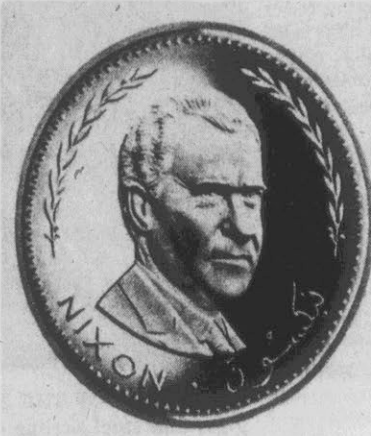

Other remnants of the former occupiers include air conditioners, an insect trapper in the dining hall and signs in Hebrew.

Most of the Egyptian workers earn the equivalent of about $150 a month, double the average Egyptian wage. Engineers make nearly $500 a month, more than double what they could expect in Cairo.

But among them there is some resentment at Westerners who come to Abu Rudeis on a very short contract basis to perform one job and get $500 a day. "But if you spent time working abroad as I did in the last eight years," said engineer Mahmoud Razmy, "and you were homesick for Egypt — well it is enough for me just to be back in my country."

NIXON GOLD COIN—The tiny state of Fujairah has approved issuance of the Nixon gold coin. The coin sells for $58 and is legal tender in the Emirate of Fujairah, one of the eight states comprising the United Arab Emirates. The gold piece would buy about $5.75 worth of goods in Fujairah. (AP Wirephoto)

More Women Become Miners

NEW YORK (AP) — More women are becoming miners, according to a special survey conducted by Engineering and Mining Journal.

Among the jobs they are being hired or trained for are truck driver, mill operator, cage operator, drill operator, welder and dozer operator, says the magazine.

Though fewer in numbers, professional women also are joining mining companies as analysts, engineers, geologists and assayers.

COIN COLLECTORS
PRAGUE (AP) — New 10-heller and 20-heller (1-2 cents) pieces were put into circulation in Czechoslovakia in 1974, but though several millions were minted few seemed to find their way into circulation.

A state bank official complained it had become fashionable to buy a vase and drop in the coins until the vase was filled.

Texas Enjoys Growth In Migration To 'Sunbelt'

By ROBERT D. INDERMAN

DALLAS (UPI) — The big 18-wheelers and behind-the-family-car trailers stream southward in a seemingly endless procession, bearing the furniture and personal effects of lives uprooted from their Northern homes, jobs and communities.

Sociologists are calling it the sunbelt migration — people seeking a way of life a little slower, a little more gracious, a little more optimistic than the fast-paced, older, harder life they leave behind in Pittsburgh, New York, Chicago, Newark, Baltimore.

Others come simply in search of a better job or because their employer transfers them, for not only people are moving south but also business and industry are joining the national shift.

And a great quantity of the exodus is finding its way to Texas, a state which Houston Mayor Fred Hofheinz proclaims "is where it's all happening." Hofheinz' Texas Uber Alles statement may smack of provincialism but, nevertheless, it is based on fact. Statistics indicate that anyone planning to migrate from one state to another this year will likely move in a southerly or westerly direction.

And the odds are better than good that their journey will end in Texas.

With an estimated 12,237,000 inhabitants, Texas pushed past Pennsylvania during 1974 to become the third most populous state in the nation.

Between 1970 and 1975, four out of every 10 new Texans came from outside the state's borders — a net migration of more than 400,000 persons — a statistic matched only by Florida.

The people positioned to know first hand confirm there are people on the move.

"The flow definitely is into Texas," says Bob Tate, who directs the U-Haul Trailers traffic in Texas from his Dallas office.

"If we left Texas completely open, we'd end up with half of our inventory in the country in Texas. If the basic route structure was left alone, we would be overrun with orange down here. The trailers would be everywhere."

"Every since the first stories about Texas being a pot of gold, we have had a lot more people from out of state looking for jobs here," said Harold Bowden, the placement supervisor at the main Texas Employment Commission in Dallas.

"We are getting from five to 20 letters per day from out of state and five to 10 phone calls per week. Most of the calls are mainly from the East — and the Miami area."

The state's unemployment rates this past year were the second lowest in the nation. Texas is no automatic job-seeker's Utopia, however.

Employment agencies in Dallas report difficulty placing out-of-staters because of the pay. Compared to the West and East, wages are notoriously low.

"The question of how much money they will make is always a problem with people from out of state," Bowden said. "They come here from the East where the salaries are higher and they expect to make as much. It's a dream."

Texas, while third in population, ranks only fifth in total personal income. In 1974, the state recorded a $59.7 billion income figure, compared to California's $126.1 billion and New York's $111.5 billion.

After a recent pay boost, Texas jumped from 35th to only 24th among the 50 states in average annual pay for public school teachers. The average classroom teacher pay in Texas is $11,373, compared to the national average of $12,524.

Kay Meyers, an 18-year veteran with Personnel Plus Employment Service of Dallas, echoes that problem.

"We get young people — good college graduates — coming here from out of state and looking for the big opportunity. They find the jobs but they also find the salaries much lower than on the East and West Coast or in the Midwest."

"An oil engineer making $20,000 in California came here and found the best he could make was $15,000."

The real drawing power of Texas is among the presently employed.

C.N. Pastis, a sales manager for Sweda International, had his pick of cities in a 15-state region, including Los Angeles and New York. He chose Dallas.

"I took a cut in pay to come here," he said. "But I'm coming out better. My house payments are less by $80 for a comparable house, my insurance premiums are less and my tax liability is less. I plan to stay for a long, long time."

According to a recent Department of Labor cost of living comparison among the country's 40 most metropolitan areas, Austin ranked No. 1 as the least expensive to live in with Houston and Dallas ranked third and fourth respectively.

The survey was based upon the average living costs — high, moderate and low standards — for a family of four.

According to the report, the family could live extremely well on $15,743 annually in Austin but it would take $21,999 for the family to have a comparable standard of living in New York and $18,489 in Los Angeles.

The average fare for the nation is $18,201 annually.

But Texas is not without its growing pains.

Texas, home of the Alamo and miles and miles of miles and miles, as the joke goes, surprisingly is becoming one of the most urbanized states in the Country — bucking a nationwide back-to-the-country movement — and at a pace that will surprise you if the Texas you imagine is the wild west, sagebrush variety.

According to census figures, nearly 60 per cent of the state's population resides in the five largest urban centers — Houston, Dallas-Fort Worth, San Antonio, Austin and El Paso.

Texas is the only state to contain as many as three of the nation's 10 most populous cities. Houston is No. 6, Dallas No. 8 and San Antonio No. 10.

In many ways, Texas is ill-equipped to handle it.

Urban mass transit is almost non-existent. A subway system in Houston is expected to cost slightly more than it took to send Neil Armstrong to the moon.

Dallas's thoroughfare system connecting the northern bedroom cities consists of one toll road and an outdated four-lane freeway.

"My wife used to drive in New York City proper," said Hubert Blessing, a Levi Strauss corporate official who followed his company south to Texas. "But here, the traffic is so bad on North Central Expressway that she doesn't even try it."

No help is in sight. The Texas Legislature is rural oriented and usually follows the dictates of the Texas Good Roads Association rather than advocates of transit systems.

School desegregation has been slow to come to Texas, along with its related problems in Dallas and Fort Worth of busing and white flight. But just the past month a federal judge ordered a massive busing for Dallas schools after a five year suit. Other cities are facing similar prospects.

Blacks and Mexican-Americans still find their paths occasionally blocked by discrimination.

Recently a Dallas school teacher with deep society roots in the city held a wedding reception at the plush Dallas

Experiments In Weightlifting

BROOKINGS, S. D. (AP) — For 30 years a South Dakota State University research professor has labored alone in his off-hours experimenting to find the secrets of "building a stronger and better body."

Algridas Greichus, a professor of zoology at SDSU, does most of the experiments on himself. He does it with weights. He is a body builder.

Holder of a doctorate in parasitology, Greichus lives in two contrasting worlds.

One is tucked away in a corner of the SDSU campus. He daily conducts research in the study of parasites amid the blinking lights and the hum of equipment and brain cells in the Physiology Laboratory.

His other world is amid the cadence of creaking, clanking and thudding weights, the whistle of hyperventilating lungs and the grunts and groans of athletes trying to conquer five more pounds or get more definition into their pectoral muscles.

The owner of a physique you'd expect to see on a man bounding out of phone booths rather than one analyzing results in a research lab, Greichus is highly successful in his favorite pastime.

A one-time Detroit, Mich., and three-time South Dakota state lifting champion, Greichus is the current holder of the Mr. Northern Plains physique title.

Even more remarkable than Greichus' accomplishments and his dedication is the fact that he's collected most of his laurels in the past five years. At 47, a time when most people have "settled down" in their exercise habits, Greichus is trimming up.

"The only thing that varies with age might be the time needed to recuperate from workouts," the professor said. "It's estimated that a weightlifter reaches his peak at 40. In most sports you're out of it by that time. I think an older man has an advantage over younger men in terms of experience. He

A Dearborn, Mich., native, Greichus has been lifting competitively since he was 17.

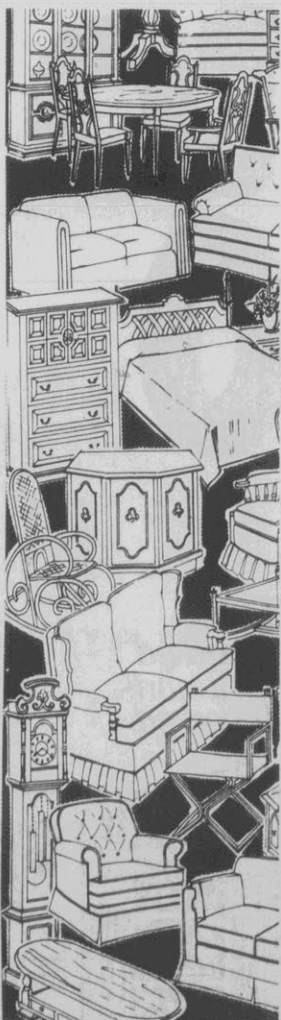

"The reason I stick with weightlifting is because it's more of an individual challenge than most sports," he said. "It's just you against a dead weight. You can't take advantage of 500 pounds. It won't get any heavier or any lighter and you're sure not going to fake it out."

"Many people don't understand weightlifting as a sport," Greichus said. "They think of weightlifters as circus strongmen. Actually, a weightlifter is like an artist molding clay. An artist takes rough materials and molds from it the ultimate beauty that he's capable of. A bodybuilder makes the ultimate of what he was given genetically."

Greichus, 5-foot-7 and 165 pounds, boasts personal powerlifting bests of 355 pounds in bench press, 485 in squat lift and 510 pounds in deadlift.

Iran Installs A Tearoom In 747

NEW YORK (UPI) — Iran Air has announced that its new long-range Boeing 747 SP jet plane is being fitted with an Iranian-style tearoom on the upper deck. It said passengers will be served tea grown in northern Iran on all New York-to-Tehran flights beginning May 2. Later in the spring the special performance jumbo jets will fly the route nonstop in 11 hours, 15 minutes, which will be the fastest service available between the two cities.

California Has Big Chessmen

By MARC SANI
Associated Press Writer
MORRO BAY, Calif. (AP) — Like a surrealistic fantasy out of Alice's Adventures in Wonderland, the chess player walked across the huge cement board and methodically moved a giant hand-carved chessman. While members of Morro Bay's chess club played, tourists wandering by the giant board stopped and watched silently. Occasionally, a small, white dog scampered across the board — darting between the tall pieces.

The 30-foot-square chessboard and its three-foot-high chessmen make up a unique recreational facility along the waterfront of this small Pacific Coast resort town.

Morro Bay's recreation director claims the board and chessmen are the largest in the United States. Chess federation officials report an over-size chess board is located in New York City, but it's smaller than the one here, says David Draga.

"The board's large enough we can use human beings as chess pieces," adds Draga, noting he may do just that as part of a summer children's program.

Credit for the project belongs to a citizens' committee and the enthusiasm of two avid chess players in this Central California community, Draga said.

A summer trip to Germany by Wachtang Korishelli, a high school music teacher, sparked the novel creation. He played on a similar board with plastic chessmen during his trip.

The citizens' committee obtained some redwood from two 35-year-old water towers torn down by the city.

Korishelli and Wayne Bickford laminated the redwood into blocks and carved the chessmen with a lathe they built from old auto parts. Bickford is a cement contractor, which proved to be an asset in making the board.

The cost — including a new stairway constructed nearby — was set at $45,000 including about $15,000 in donated material and time, Draga said.

"They put in over 400 hours during a two-month period carving the chessmen," Draga said. "The chess club also took an active part in sanding them down."

Players must reserve the board and chessmen 24 hours in advance and are required to fill out a responsibility form.

However, no deposit is required, Draga said, because "there's no real value we can place on the chessmen."

John Wallace Known As 'Bob'

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — For more than 60 years, John Milton Wallace has been known as "Bob" Wallace.

The reason: as a youngster he got into his share of fights and he had such a peculiar way of bobbing up and down while fighting that he was nicknamed Bobber, which eventually contracted to Bob.

Business Notes

SALES MANAGER
 Fleming and Associates announced the association of Walter House of Greenville with the firm as sales manager involved with construction and development.
 House, who has resided here since 1971 after returning from military service with the Air Force, is a graduate of East Carolina University with a degree in business and an area of concentration in real estate.
 The new sales manager, who formerly worked with the Greenville office of NCNB Mortgage Corp., became a licensed real estate broker in 1973.
 He and his wife, the former Maureen Bailey of Cheriton, Va., have one daughter.

ANNOUNCED SALES-EARNINGS
 The Procter & Gamble Co. announced sales and earnings for the first nine months of its current fiscal year and for the three-month period ended March 31.
 Net earnings for the first nine months of the fiscal year amounted to $314,900,000, an increase of 17 per cent over net earnings of $268,862,000 for the same period a year ago.
 Worldwide net sales were $4,864,744,000, an increase of six per cent over sales of $4,574,028,000 for the first nine months a year earlier.
 For the January-March period, net earnings amounted to $122,992,000, an increase of 29 per cent over net earnings of $95,448,000 in the same three months a year ago.
 Worldwide net sales were $1,736,830,000, an increase of nine per cent over sales of $1,587,809,000 in the same period last year.

BB&T PROMOTIONS
 The board of directors of Branch Banking and Trust Co. promoted Ollie N. Bowen and Joseph S. Johnson Jr. to assistant cashier of the Greenville office.
 Mrs. Bowen joined the Williamston staff in 1965 and transferred to Greenville when the bank's office opened here in 1974. She received the designation of administrative assistant last year and is currently head of operations.
 After graduating from New Bern High School, Johnson attended North Carolina Wesleyan College and received a degree in business administration from East Carolina University.
 He joined the Raleigh consumer loan staff in 1973 and transferred to Greenville a year later.

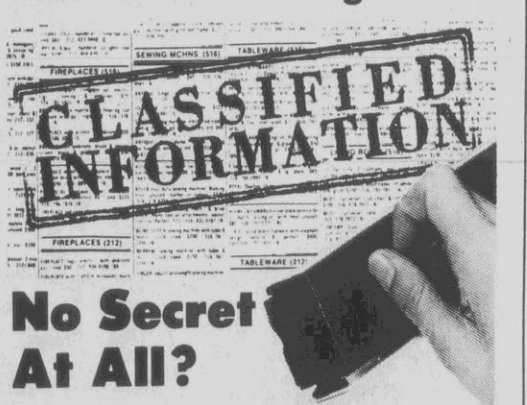

EAST END MANAGER
 Donnie Jones has joined North Carolina National Bank here as manager of NCNB's East End Branch. It was announced by Jerry W. Powell, vice president and city executive, who noted that Jones transfers from the bank's Greensboro office.
 Jones, a Princeton native, joined NCNB in Winston-Salem in 1971 and served in the Consumer Credit Department and as an assistant branch manager and commercial loan officer before transferring to Greensboro in 1974.
 He is a 1970 graduate of East Carolina University.

DIVIDEND DECLARED
 The board of directors of Virginia Electric and Power Co. declared a quarterly dividend of 31 cents per share on the common stock payable June 21 to stockholders of record at the close of business on June 1.
 Vepco reported that the dividend is one and one-half cents higher than the quarterly dividend of 29 and one-half cents per share that has been in effect since May of 1973.

NET INCOME DROPS
 Union Carbide's first quarter net income amounted to $101.5 million or $1.65 a share, it was announced by F. Perry Wilson, chairman of the board.
 Wilson said that the first quarter figure is 11 per cent lower than the $114.5 million or $1.87 a share, earned in the same period a year ago.
 Sales for the first quarter were a record $1.51 billion, 11 per cent above the $1.36 billion reported in the corresponding quarter of 1975.

STUDENT COUNSELING
 Three Greenville area students in the East Carolina University School of Business are counseling small business firms in eastern North Carolina this quarter, the school announced.
 The advanced business students are: Kent Hardee of Greenville, Roy Rogers of Williamston, and Richard Edwards of Lewiston.
 They are among the 26 students involved in the ECU Small Business Institute, a program sponsored by the Small Business Administration. The program provides a link between schools of business and the small business in the community, usually those with SBA loans, it was noted.
 Currently, the program involves 14 eastern businesses, including retail, manufacturing, and service firms. Teams consisting of two or three ECU seniors or graduate students furnish management assistance and counseling to the participating firms—usually in the record-keeping, selling, and management areas.

Hotel Has Been Home To Miss Lapp For 69 Years

By JOHN MOODY
NEW YORK (UPI) — Like the frail but regally Victorian Lady Havisham of Dickens' imagination, Elma Lapp begins her days with a breakfast wheeled to her room, and greets sundown with tea and crumpets while violin music fills the air at the Plaza Hotel, where she has made her home for 69 years.

the Palm Court, she spoke softly of the things she appreciates and knows — the finer hotels in Britain and on the continent, discussions with famous acquaintances, and Joseph, the handsome maitre d' who makes sure her marble table in the northeast corner is ready at 5:30 p.m. and that the lemons she squeezes into her tea are fresh.

puzzled by some of the changes. "Why, the last time I returned from London my suite here was stuffy. The windows hadn't been opened and you know how humid New York can be at this time of year," she said.

She brightens. "But perhaps I am wrong, perhaps it is not at all changed. It could all be the humidity."

Elma Lapp checked into the Plaza for the first — and last — time in October, 1907 as a little girl with her wealthy family from Cincinnati.

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Arizona State University researchers are trying to perfect a process called electro-osmosis to help preserve adobe structures.

In a project funded by the National Park Service and directed by Dr. Charles O'Bannon, ASU associate professor of civil engineering, two graduate students are working on a chemical which, when driven into adobe walls, will stabilize clay into a permanent material.

"I like to keep my hand in business affairs, but not excessively," Miss Lapp said.

The gentleman was Andrei Gromyko, the foreign minister of the Soviet Union.

Their primary concern is treating ruins that have not yet been excavated. The treatment does not change the appearance of the structures.

One Year Later, Mayaguez Sailing Its Old Route

By KATE WEBB

PIER 13, MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — The old vessel needs a coat of paint and her captain agrees she looks "worse than an old Greek tramp," but the SS Mayaguez is still plying the Gulf of Siam where she was seized by Cambodian hijackers a year ago. No one has taken much interest in the Mayaguez, let alone fired a shot across her bow, since those "four days in May" when her capture on May 12, 1975, quickly escalated into an international incident. The converted World War II cargo ship and her 39 crewmen were released after a U.S. military rescue operation ordered by President Ford in which 41 persons were killed. Today, all but one of the Mayaguez crew members captured with Capt. Charles T. Miller have since left the ship. She still carries containerized commercial and military freight, such as PX supplies and spare parts, along a leisurely route between Hong Kong and Bangkok. Miller, 63, a native of Port Huron, Mich., and a veteran of 41 years at sea, speaks emotionally about the men who died trying to recover his ship, particularly the 23 U.S. Marines and Navy pilots who lost their lives to gunfire and helicopter crashes during the assault on Koh Tang island.

During a recent layover in Manila for repairs, Miller said he keeps the Mayaguez 55 to 60 miles off the Cambodian coast these days. He isn't taking any chances. "Once is enough," he said. "I have no hard feelings against the Cambodians," he said. "They were a young government flexing their muscles. On the American side, I think it proved something to countries like Korea, Indonesia and the Philippines.

"Uncle Sam is still around, still out here. But now Thailand looks as if it hasn't long to go. It's beginning to feel like Vietnam." Miller doesn't go ashore in Bangkok any more since he encountered Thai student pickets last June. He knows the name of each casualty in the Mayaguez affair without referring to the list that stays permanently in his cabin desk drawer. He is trying to open negotiations with Cambodian special envoy Ieng Sary for the recovery of the bodies of two Marines left behind on "the wrong island."

Miller's share of the proceeds from a book about the Mayaguez incident goes to the families of the dead — "not that dollars and cents can make any difference," he says. He was honored last July at the White House by President Ford, who accepted Miller's gift of the wheel of the Mayaguez for his Oval Office. Looking back, Miller has little patience with critics who say the United States over-reacted when it bombed Kompong Som, Cambodia's only port and oil refinery, and an airfield at Ream during the rescue operation. "I'm not a Monday morning quarterback," Miller said. "There were some people in the United States that said it was like hitting a mosquito with a sledge hammer.

"No, I don't think it was overreaction. The only reason that we could negotiate was the argument that we couldn't remove all those planes from the skies until the ship sailed. "I still claim that if it hadn't been for the action Ford took, we'd still be sitting in a prison camp in Phnom Penh. The only fear they had was of the planes."

Miller said there has been no harassment, military action or threats against his ship from the Cambodians in the past year. He insisted, as before, that the Mayaguez had never been on any spy mission.

"I was pirated on the high seas," he said. "We had no surveillance equipment aboard, no rifles, just commercial cargo and PX supplies. Their action was not justified.

"I think, looking back, that if they had known at the time that Kompong Som, Ream airfield and the oil refinery had been hit, we would have been lined up and shot."

At his home in Fountain Valley, Calif., last year, Miller spoke by telephone with retired Cmdr. Lloyd M. Bucher, captain of the U.S. spy ship Pueblo which was captured by North Korea for 11 months in 1968.

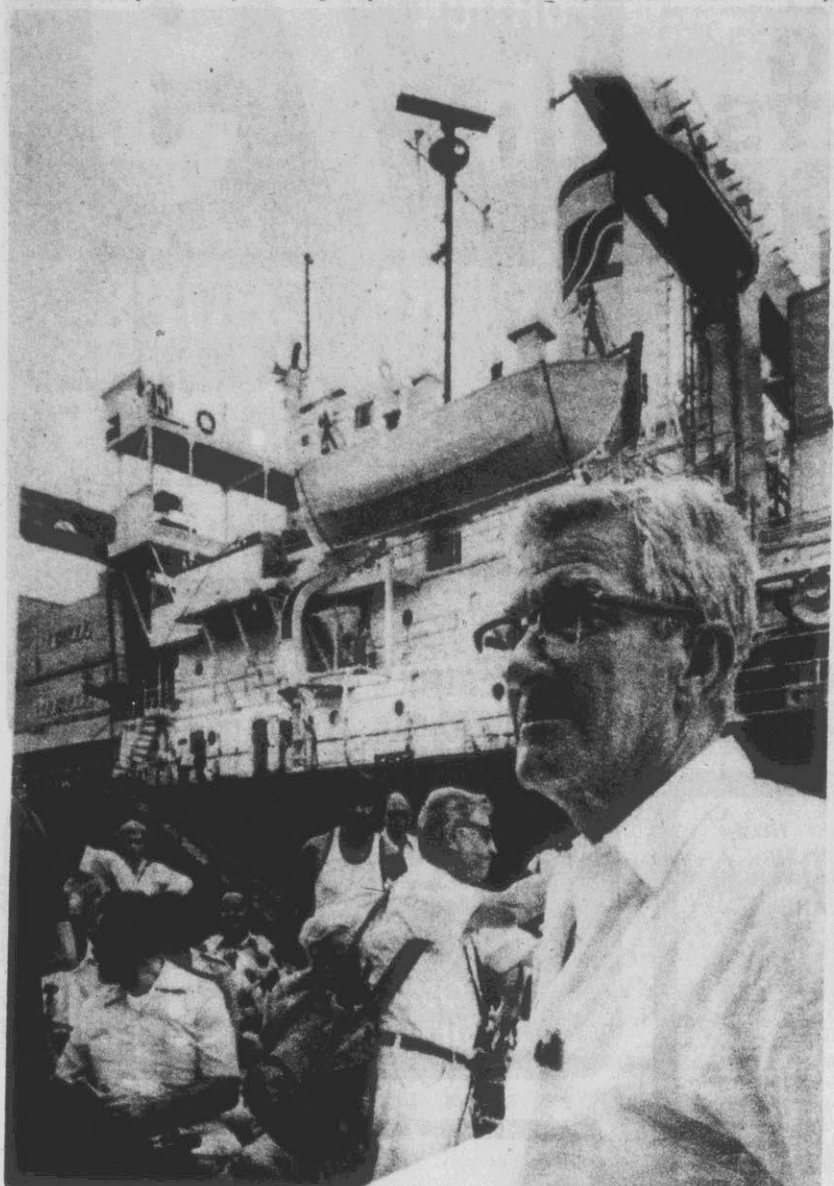

"He told me if he had the help I had had, we would never have put time in North Korea. He said he was glad the government had got off its ass, and put several articles in the local papers saying the same thing," Miller said.

Miller suffers occasionally from attacks of the malaria that hit 70 per cent of the captured crew. He says he will decide after his last eight runs across the Gulf of Siam whether to retire or continue sailing until age 65. "They know about the incident, just as the public does, but they haven't discussed it with me. No one has asked me about it at all," Miller says. Did the U.S. Marines and airmen die in vain a year ago?

"No," he said emphatically. "This wasn't a Mickey Mouse operation. The military thought the crewmen were on Koh Tang island." (The Marines were pinned down on Koh Tang after they went ashore in the belief the Mayaguez crewmen were being held on the island. The crew instead was held on Koh Rang Son Lim island at the time.) "Some others said the bombing took place after we were released," Miller said. "They released us at 7:40 a.m., and we reached the (destroyer) Wilson at 10:05 or 10:20. I had promised the Cambodians, and the first thing I did was to tell them to stop the bombing. It was too late."

CAPT. CHARLES MILLER, skipper of the S.S. Mayaguez, stands beside the vessel in port at Singapore after its

Some Women Resigned To Their Life At Home

By DELORES BARCLAY

Associated Press Writer
A chill breeze blew through the open window. Ann reached automatically for the sweater at the foot of her bed. Her mother always leaves it there.

"Really, I wouldn't know how to take care of myself if I didn't live at home," says Ann, a 23-year-old medical student who, like almost half of the 8.6 million single women in this country, still lives with her family. "It would be very hard for me to cook, shop and clean for myself. I've always had somebody who looked after me."

Carla, a chain-smoking 34-year-old school administrator, lives with her parents on New York's Long Island. Says Carla:

"I'm a much more developed woman than others with their freedom and fantastic apartments because they don't have two people to come home to who love and care for them."

But Laura DiDio, 22, a TV news assistant who lives in New York City's Queens, says: "If I got a raise tomorrow, I'd be out. I want the independence, the freedom. I want the phone to ring at 3 a.m. without worrying about disturbing somebody."

Ann and Carla and Laura. Three women of the more than four million women between 18 and 34 who the U. S. Census Bureau says lived at home with parents or relatives as of last year.

Some, such as Ann, seem resigned to the arrangement for the time being. They say they want to leave eventually, but aren't doing much about it. Others, such as Carla, have probably, in their early 30s, reached a point of no return—they will never leave. Many seem embarrassed or even ashamed they are still at home. Both Ann and Carla, for example, didn't want their real names used.

"Society attaches a stigma to living at home," Ann said. "Just about everybody I know can't understand why I still do."

But most women at home are like Laura DiDio. In their late teens or early 20s, they can't wait to get out on their own but often find themselves trapped by economics—their jobs don't pay enough.

Women weren't always so anxious to leave home. Before World War II, most women stayed at home until they got married. Attitudes began to change after the war, but it wasn't until the 1960s that there was no stigma and less parental resistance to a single woman moving out. The 60s brought women's liberation, the push for social and job equality and the swinging singles scene.

Perhaps because of the changes of the last 15 years, it is surprising to learn that about half the single women in the country still live at home.

While single women are at home they often see the swinging social scene passing them by. Some want it that way and never really intend to leave home. Most, especially those in their late teens and early 20s, say they want to get out of the rooms in which they spent their childhoods.

Despite progress in job opportunities for women, many young women find only low-paying jobs which don't permit them to leave home without a drastic lifestyle change, especially if they live near a large city and its high rents.

"Of course, I could get a furnished room," said Laura DiDio. "But it's not worth giving up all the advantages of living at home."

The Census Bureau study showed that the number of women in the labor force nearly doubled between 1950 and 1974, while the number of men increased only by one-fourth. But the median earnings for women in 1974 were $6,772 compared to $11,835 for men.

It also showed that there are five times as many men in managerial positions as women. Over half the working women in the country were in low-paying clerical, operative or service positions such as assembly line workers, machines operators, secretaries and bookkeepers.

Living at home—whether by choice or circumstance—often means a more traditional, old-fashioned lifestyle which harks back to an era when a single woman living alone was considered sinful.

It means restrictions, curfews, calls home when you're going to be late. It may mean no smoking or drinking. It can even mean mom and dad insinuating themselves into your love life or your politics.

"I have seen a marked difference between the woman who lives at home and other single women in the way they relate to issues and what's happening in the outside world," said Ann Leiberman, an associate professor of education at Columbia University's Teacher College. "If a woman makes an accommodation to stay home, she is making an accommodation not to try other lifestyles."

Says sociologist Gunhild Hagestad of the University of Chicago: "Single women who live with their parents are more likely to be women who want a more traditional lifestyle. These women are not committed to the single life."

Says Dr. Judith S. Antrobus, a psychologist in private practice in New York: "Certain things have changed for certain sectors of society. The threat is a sexual one. The parents are worried to death that their daughter might meet a man and have an affair if she's on her own. They think the sanctity of the house protects her."

Most psychologists interviewed said it is extremely difficult for an adult daughter to remain totally independent and live comfortably at home with her parents.

"This is a very chaotic society we live in, and it may be a practical accommodation economically, and it might be a very safe and intelligent decision for some women because lonely women suffer," said Prof. Leiberman. "But the question remains: Can you be emotionally independent and remain with your parents?"

The social restrictions can be stifling, women still at home say.

"I don't know why I continue to live at home," said a 23-year-old New York graduate student who didn't want to be identified. "I'm not allowed to drink at home, so I have to sneak liquor. I smoke, so I always have to take a breath mint or eat half a sandwich before coming home."

"It's frustrating, but I have a beautiful, big room, plus a small room and a bath. It's very nice and very clean, and it's wonderful to come to people. I wouldn't like to be alone."

Says Randy Resnick, a 21-year-old New York sales assistant: "I feel trapped and frustrated and would prefer to have responsibility on my own, but there are other priorities right now." She said living at home allows her to afford travel and clothes.

But most women interviewed said their primary goal is to get enough financial independence to have a place of their own, a place they can decorate and entertain in.

"When I moved into my own apartment, I stayed up the first night and stared at the walls, mentally designing my home. My home Wow!" said Laura Fisher, a 24-year-old Seattle, Wash., TEACHER. "I love my parents very much, but I don't miss living at home."

Ms. Fisher, who prefers that designation, said her leisure activities are very different since she left home. Once she spent Saturday night at home watching TV or playing parlor games with her parents. Now she spends the weekend with friends or goes out of town.

But some women, especially if they are still at home by their 30s, will never leave the nest. Parental illness or old age sometimes keeps them there. Sometimes they are just afraid to leave.

"She reaches a point of no return," said Dr. Antrobus. "Somewhere in her 30s she would be much too afraid to venture out on her own. She has given up on herself and carved out a world that was secure, but extremely restrictive emotionally."

Says the laconic, 34-year-old school administrator, Carla:

"The pendulum has swung the other way. I once needed them. Now they need me."

Potatoes have been blamed for leprosy and overpopulation, as well as credited with the power to remove warts and wrinkles and to ease toothache.

Face-Lift A Present To Santiago

By CHARLES E. PADILLA
SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — Santiago is sprucing up. Important visitors are coming.

This June, Santiago will host delegates from the 25 member nations of the Organization of American States (OAS) for the hemispheric body's VI General Assembly.

More than 1,000 diplomats and representatives, possibly including Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, are scheduled to attend the two-week session.

The military government and civic authorities have already launched a determined campaign to present the OAU delegates with a clean city.

The task is not easy. Santiago can hardly be considered an elegant or attractive capital by any yardstick.

Grim, fortress-like buildings covered by decades of grime house government offices in the downtown area. Now some, among them the Stock Market, are being steamcleaned.

Many Chileans were dumbstruck to find that the Mapocho railroad station — after being steamcleaned — was a pale pink color.

Trim, pretty Carabinero policemen have appeared directing traffic during daylight hours, replacing dour male counterparts.

Pedestrian crossing and traffic lane markers sport bright yellow and white paint.

Paint dealers announced recently that they would give a 20 per cent discount to homeowners who agree to slap a fresh coat on their property.

Brigades of "minimal-wage employees," hired by the city for $25 a month, push brooms to rid the streets of trash.

Other teams are busy arranging the city's plazas and parks. Long-neglected palm trees along the avenues are getting trimmed. In the downtown Plaza Bulnes, flower beds and grass are starting to sprout.

The La Moneda presidential palace, bombed and gutted by fire during the 1973 military coup, now presents a refurbished facade. But the interior is still an off-limits ruin.

Santiago's subway, an open pit sore for the past seven years along the city's principal street, Avenida O'Higgins, is finally being covered, easing the traffic problem at the same time.

Police are expected to mount an offensive against the horde of beggars and vendors who invaded the center of Santiago over the past year.

Tree Labels Help Blind

MODESTO, Calif. (AP) — Nine-year-old Robbie Freitas asked his father "What kind of tree is this?"

But Ron Freitas was unable to answer his son's question. The 42-year-old Freitas suffers from a congenital eye disease and is now almost blind.

His son's question, however, deserved an answer, so with the help of several others Freitas got 37 small metal plaques bolted to a variety of trees at the Modesto Junior College campus. Each plaque bears a brief description in braille.

Freitas said each plaque carries the tree's common name, scientific name, use, historical importance and a number.

A blind visitor or student at the campus can go to the library and request detailed sheets, also written in braille, to learn more about each tree.

Freitas said the plaques and numbered fact sheets are also in regular English for students who can see and are used by teachers for normal classroom instruction.

The placement of braille plaques to identify trees and bushes is not unique, Freitas said.

But after his son asked him to describe the tree, Freitas suggested the plaque idea to Mrs. Suzanne Breshears, a former student at the two-year community college.

She got the biological sciences and ornamental horticulture departments to compile the necessary information.

The project cost about $200 with the school supplying the funds, Freitas said.

Poet Seeks His Role In Bicentennial

By DOUG STONE
Associated Press Writer
MEMPHIS (AP) — Kenneth Petrucci, 29, would like to be considered the poet laureate of America's 200th birthday observance.

Petrucci, who believes his work captures the romance of the time when the nation was founded, wants to be known as the "Bicentennial Poet."

"On behalf of America, I want to say it is time to take advantage of the enthusiasm the Bicentennial has created and reunite as a nation and be the great country we are — America," says the son of an Italian opera singer.

Petrucci, a bachelor who trots around the country doing Rod McKuen-type readings of his work, has adopted garb from the past — antique boots, ornate rings and a heavy coat with brass buttons.

"I want to share my triumph and tragedy with people and I want to revive the romanticism of the 18th century," says Petrucci, who first followed in his father's footsteps and took up the stage as a career.

Going under the name Kenny Pipe, Petrucci did an act as a comic for several seasons in the Cape Cod area and around his native state of Rhode Island.

He's been writing poetry since he was a child, but says the thought he could do it meaningfully hit him like lightning while he was on stage one night and had just delivered a good line.

"The people in the audience stopped and stared at me, the owner came out and looked at me and I knew then I was not a comic, but a poet," he says.

It was then Petrucci drifted to Memphis State University to complete his education and take up work on his poetic ideas.

Petrucci says the philosophy of his late father, who sang around the East Coast in comic opera acts and was nicknamed "Smiling Caruso," helped shape his work, which initially appeared in a number of poetry reviews and began to draw comment.

Now, Petrucci has published his first book and draws heavily from the collection for his readings around the nation.

Called "Soul's Eye," the group of poems ends on Petrucci's personal view of life — "each truth brings us closer to God."

"To make it as a poet is a difficult thing, but it can be done," says Petrucci, who divides his time between Memphis and Houston.

He says there are few poets who are good at presenting their work aloud.

"You have to have the ability to read and make people believe in your words. There is tremendous expressive capacity in the human voice, but most people do not know how to use it," he adds.

Petrucci's work is not about the Bicentennial per se or even any specific events of the Revolution. Rather, he says, "it covers every emotion of life."

Petrucci says he is sure he could make more money in another area of writing, but feels "it is my destiny to be a poet."

And his view, he expressed in one line of his poetry, is that "To be the richest man in the cemetery is only the living dead man's dream."

Rookie 'Scores' In An Arrest

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — It took just one bark from the sheriff's department's rookie to make a burglary suspect surrender.

The rookie, a dog named Prince, was taken by deputy John Chilton to a drug store where a rope had been seen dangling from the roof.

Chilton stood in the doorway and shouted a warning that he was going to release the dog. When there was no response, he gave a search command to Prince.

"Prince barked and had just started to search when a man stood up from behind a counter with his hands in the air," Chilton said.

HOLLOW HORNS
JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The Missouri Conservation Commission says buffalo, like cattle, have hollow, permanent horns.

50,000th Ranch Joins Program
FREEDOM, Okla. (UPI) — An 1,840-acre grass and livestock operation in northwestern Oklahoma is the 50,000th farm or ranch in the Great Plains Conservation Program.
Under the program, the secretary of agriculture has contracted to share the cost of soil and water conservation measures with the operators, Mr. and Mrs. Verle Brady, and to provide them technical help.
The conservation program was created in 1956 to provide help to parts of the 10 plains states where drought is a recurrent problem.
