Sen. Church Seeks Upset In Nebraska

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—Idaho Sen. Frank Church took his Democratic presidential campaign to churches and taverns over the weekend, working for an upset victory over Jimmy Carter in his first primary here Tuesday.

Church said that with united support he could score "a stunning upset" that could be the "springboard" to later campaign victories.

Nebraska's Democratic presidential ballot carries the names of 11 candidates including Sens. Hubert Humphrey and Edward Kennedy, who unsuccessfully tried to have their names removed.

President Ford faces Ronald Reagan in their race for the Republican nomination in Nebraska and in West Virginia the same day. Democrats vote in both states and in Connecticut.

After weekend GOP caucuses and conventions in five states, Ronald Reagan pushed past the one-third mark in his drive for the 1,130 national convention delegates that would give him the Republican presidential nomination.

The former California governor had 396 delegates to 309 for President Ford. In addition, 347 uncommitted GOP delegates had been selected.

On the Democratic side, Carter picked up additional delegates in Maine and Wyoming to reach a total of 569. Washington Sen. Henry M. Jackson, who announced an end to his active campaigning a week ago, had 199 delegates and Arizona Rep. Morris K. Udall 187.5 delegate votes.

In addition, 281.5 uncommitted Democratic delegates have been elected.

President Ford spent the weekend campaigning in Nebraska and Missouri, seeking to regain the lead in Republican delegate strength. He was back at the White House on Sunday. Aides said he would campaign in his home state, Michigan, on Wednesday, and there were reports he would work there Saturday as well.

Reagan spent Sunday in Los Angeles.

Church has concentrated on Nebraska since entering the Democratic race several weeks ago, and he hurried from town to town over the weekend in an effort to round up support.

The Idaho senator was a late starter because he was busy as chairman of the Senate intelligence committee.

Carter has predicted a victory in Nebraska, though he has said he is behind in Maryland where he faces still another newcomer, California Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.

Ford and Reagan are on the Republican ballot in West Virginia. On the Democratic side, Senate Majority Whip Robert C. Byrd is entered as a favorite son candidate against Alabama Gov. George Wallace.

In other weekend campaign developments:

—California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. said Sunday that he would meet with uncommitted convention delegate candidates in New Jersey on May 18, the same day as the Maryland primary, in an effort to win their backing. He also scheduled a brief campaign swing for Wednesday in Colorado, where his supporters set up a campaign headquarters on Sunday.

—Rep. Morris Udall, scolding President Ford for not promptly approving a new Federal Election Commission, was in Connecticut to campaign until the final hours before that state's primary on Tuesday. Udall was the only one of the five candidates in the race scheduled to stump the state today.

At a Sunday rally at the Yale University Law School, the Arizona congressman accused Ford of delaying approval of a new commission so his Democratic and Republican opponents would have less campaign money for the May 18 Michigan primaries.

Also entered in Connecticut's primary are Carter, Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington, anti-abortionist candidate Ellen McCormack of New York, Church and former Oklahoma Sen. Fred Harris.

—Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., said Sunday he would be ready and willing to serve if called on to be the Democratic presidential nominee.

"I'm not out of the presidential race any more than I ever was. And I'm not in more than I was," Humphrey said Sunday on ABC's "Issues and Answers."

Humphrey said he could decide after the primaries end June 8 whether to make an active bid for the nomination. "If it appears that no one has a commanding lead for a first-or second-ballot victory, I will then make a decision," Humphrey said. "I'm not sure yet what that decision will be."

—Reagan picked up 18 delegates in caucuses in Oklahoma, nine in Louisiana and three in Kansas, while Ford got 11 from Kansas, three from Missouri and three from Minnesota.

Wyoming's Republicans picked 17 delegates over the weekend, but state rules do not require them to make their preferences known.

On the Democratic side, Carter got nine delegates over the weekend from caucuses in Maine, Udall got four and six were uncommitted, while in Wyoming, Carter, Udall and Brown got one delegate each and three were chosen uncommitted.

Udall won 15 delegates in final caucuses in his home state of Arizona, Carter received four and Wallace one.

MASS FUNERAL—Coffins of 81 victims of last week's earthquake fill a small square in Maiano, Italy, Sunday, during mass funeral service. Two more powerful earthquakes shook northeastern Italy

Sunday, but no new casualties were reported. Meanwhile the toll of those who died in Thursday's earthquake rose to 797 persons. (AP Wirephoto)

More Tremors For Italy, Relief Effort Attacked

UDINE, Italy (AP) — New earth tremors rolled through northeastern Italy early today as the government came under sharp press criticism for alleged failures in rescue work and emergency aid.

At least five tremors shook Friuli province bordering the Yugoslav and Austrian borders. No new casualties were reported, but an official said the tremors caused heavy damage to the National Archeological Museum in the historic town of Cividale del Friuli, about 10 miles from this provincial capital.

About 50 aftershocks have been reported in the area since Thursday's killer quake. Officials said the death toll was at 815. Rain added to the misery of many thousands of homeless persons and contributed to the problems of rescue workers digging through debris.

The museum official said Roman remains and early Medieval art treasures would be transferred to safer locations outside the quake area. Rome's leftist newspaper Il Messaggero accused the government of forgetting some villages for three days after the quake struck, and said inadequate supplies had been sent to hard-hit areas.

Turin's La Stampa said the quake had revealed "national failures," and said "The state negligence, the scarcity of emergency aid are undeniable." The ruling Christian Democrats have already come under fire in the campaign for national elections scheduled June 20-21 for failure to deal with extremist violence and Italy's severe economic problems.

Hundreds of tents were arriving in the quake-stricken area, but about 150,000 persons still homeless from the massive earthquake Thursday night had to spend their fourth night in temporary shelters.

Officials talked about moving some of the homeless into nearby hotels and discussed using the retired ocean liners Raffaello and Michelangelo for temporary living space. One official said the liners could hold 3,000 persons each.

"Most of the homeless will be staying in temporary housing at least until the end of the summer," said one official in Osoppo. But thousands made homeless by an earthquake in western Sicily in 1968 are still living in "temporary" shacks.

Many of those with homes still standing spend nights in their cars or in tents because of the tremors that continue to shake the area.

At least five tremors shook the area today and two strong quakes were felt Sunday in northeastern Italy and western Yugoslavia. In Udine, the city's historic center was roped off for fear that ancient palaces and churches would collapse.

Rescue operations continue in the villages. Three women were found alive early Sunday, more than 50 hours after the quake. Police officers expressed the belief that at least 400 more persons were buried in the debris, and there was little hope of finding any of them alive.

The first mass burial was held Sunday in Maiano, where 89 coffins were lowered into the earth.

Health Minister Luciano del Falco said inoculations against typhoid fever were proceeding satisfactorily, and adequate supplies of serum were arriving.

Officials estimated that 30,000 persons, or 70 per cent of the work force in the region, have been made jobless by damage to industrial plants.

Among the art treasures destroyed or badly damaged by the quake were the 14th-century cathedral and the castle at Gemona, the 6th-century cathedral of Venzone and the castle of Monte Albano.

One side of the sculptured Gothic facade of the hilltop cathedral at Gemona was destroyed along with the organ and two precious frescoes. The rest of the facade has numerous cracks. Several big square blocks are all that remain of the bell tower.

A large part of the castle disappeared into a deep crevasse which opened under it.

The Shrine of Santa Maria degli Angeli was badly damaged. Two other churches with rare wooden ceilings were destroyed. The cathedral at Venzone, which had valuable frescoes, was badly damaged. One of the tremors Sunday brought down the remains of the old cathedral in Cividale del Friuli, near Udine.

264 Hearing

A public hearing on alternative locations for highway improvements to the U.S. 264 - U.S. 64 corridor between I-95 and U.S. 17, will be held in the Council chambers of the Greenville City Hall, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Representatives of William S. Pollard Consultants, Memphis Tenn. — hired by DOT to study alternative locations for a limited access corridor into Eastern North Carolina — are scheduled to be at tonight's hearing in Greenville and a similar hearing scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Edgecombe County Court House in Tarboro, to present procedures and work schedules for the study.

Tom Taft of Greenville, president of the Highway 264 Association, said the hearing tonight is an opportunity for local area residents to "speak up in a constructive way... rather than belly ache to your neighbors about how bad 264 is."

Apology For FBI Wrongs

WASHINGTON (AP) — As a Senate panel continues to document questionable FBI practices, bureau director Clarence M. Kelley has made a public apology for his agency's past misdeeds.

Kelley, acknowledging that some FBI counterintelligence activities violated the law, said in a speech in Fulton, Mo., Saturday, "Some of those activities were clearly wrong and quite indefensible. We most certainly must never allow them to be repeated."

Kelley's speech included his first criticism of J. Edgar Hoover, the longtime FBI director who died in 1972. The abuses, Kelley said, occurred "chiefly during the twilight of Mr. Hoover's administration."

Kelley said many of the misdeeds were "good faith efforts to prevent bloodshed and wanton destruction of property" during protests and disorders in the 1960s. "Nevertheless, they were wrongful uses of power," he added.

Meanwhile, the Senate intelligence committee, which issued a lengthy report two weeks ago criticizing U.S. intelligence agencies, issued two more supplementary reports on the FBI over the weekend.

Ford Promises Armed Might

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford pledged today that U.S. armed forces will have the weapons to "give America a mighty power" to defend itself and help build world peace.

Ford made the promise in a speech prepared for delivery at a ceremony on the Washington Monument grounds marking Armed Forces Week.

Some of the latest U.S. military weapons were on display at the site.

Ford recalled the words of George Washington that "to be prepared for war is one of the most effectual ways of preserving the peace."

The President, echoing a theme that has become an issue in his primary campaign against Ronald Reagan, declared the nation's "defenses are strong and we will keep them strong."

Ford said the "character of a nation's soldiers and their commanders determines military strength more than any other single factor."

Ford promised to give them "the finest tools this country can provide.... We will give them the means to do the job."

Pointing to the planned B1 bomber, the proposed Trident missile launching fleet, a new battle tank, new fighters and a new intercontinental ballistic missile, Ford said they set the foundation for "a strong and technologically superior force through the 1980s."

He cited the new cruise missile now being developed as "a significant new technology in which we lead the world."

"The weapons we hold today and those we plan for the future give America a mighty power," Ford said.

Ervin Appearing Before Court

RALEIGH (AP) — Former U.S. Sen. Sam J. Ervin is scheduled to make his first appearance before the North Carolina Supreme Court Tuesday since he stepped down as a member of the court in 1954 to become a senator.

Ervin is scheduled to appear in behalf of Harry Hunter of Monroe who is appealing a life sentence he received in Union County Superior Court when he was convicted of conspiracy to commit murder.

TERRORIST IS DEAD

STUTT GART, West Germany (AP) — Ulrike Meinhof, former journalist being tried for terrorist acts which killed four U.S. servicemen and a policeman, was found hanged in her cell Sunday at Stammheim Prison. She was 41.

Sixteen Cities Organize To Seek Power System

The organizational meeting of North Carolina Municipal Power Agency No. 2 was held here last week as member cities took the first step towards providing their own system of power generation.

Greenville Utilities director Charles Horne, who was elected vice chairman of the agency during the meeting, said that Agency No. 2 is comprised of 16 of the 17 cities in North Carolina served on a wholesale basis by Virginia Electric Power Co.

Horne explained that the 16 northeastern cities have agreed to enter into a joint agency to investigate ways to provide some type of power generation, either through construction of its own plant or through purchase of some part of Veeco's facilities.

The idea of the agency, which is an outgrowth of the general statutes adopted at the least General Assembly, is to get back into the power generation business, it was noted.

Horne said that the first step of the newly organized agency will be to initiate negotiations with Veeco to get its input and hopefully cooperation towards the possibilities of a joint operation with the firm. The agency's consultants were instructed to proceed with contacts with Veeco, he added.

Marshall Lancaster, executive director of Electricities, was named as the acting general manager of the agency.

Officers elected, in addition to Horne, included Abbott N. Sawyer of Washington, chairman, and Tommy Combs of Elizabeth City as secretary-treasurer.

By-laws were adopted at the meeting to govern the future operation of the agency.

Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell your problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used. Transcribing is done once a day.

UNIFORMS "RECYCLED"

Is there an organization in Greenville that I may donate my son's Boy Scout uniforms to as he outgrows them? Scouting is a great organization, but the uniforms are expensive and I'm sure the cost must keep some family's children from taking part. Mrs. A.

Boy Scout Executive Ken Davis has appealed through Hotline in the past for Boy Scout uniforms, but it's been a long while and you made us realize that the word may need to be passed again. Many families do indeed need help with uniforms and Davis is happy to help with "recycling" them. You may call him at 752-3816.

BIRD WATCHING

Is there a bird-watching club in the Greenville area? T.P.

Hotline has heard of no such club, but there very well may be one. If there is, would a member please contact us at 752-6166 and we'll pass the information along to T.P. and the rest of our readers.

Elect 46 N.C. Demo Delegates

By The Associated Press
Forty-six delegates to the Democratic National Convention were selected Saturday in meetings in each of North Carolina's 11 congressional districts.

The remaining 15 delegates will be chosen at the state Democratic convention June 12 in Raleigh.

Jimmy Carter will have 36 of the 61 delegates and George Wallace the other 25, as decided in the state's Democratic presidential primary on March 23.

Under party rules, the congressional district delegates were chosen from slates approved by the Wallace and Carter organizations. Here is the list:

1st District: Carter—Jim Suggs, Beaufort County and Charles McLawhorn, Pitt. Wallace—Donald J. Parrotte, Pasquotank, and Darris W. Koonce, Jones.
2nd: Carter—Henry Milgrom, Nash; Leo M. Hatton, Vance, and W. Eugene Simmons.

Edgecombe. Wallace—John L. Wiggs, Nash, and B. M. Burress, Wilson.

Postal Service Considering An Electronic Mail System

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service, concerned that traditional mail service may become obsolete, is studying ways of harnessing new technology to send some types of mail electronically.

Concepts now under preliminary consideration would use microwave and satellite technology to transmit messages. In the two centuries since Benjamin Franklin established the nation's postal system, mail handling has always meant hand-shipment of a message from one point to another, other Postal Service measures now under study are:

—An "urgent message service," under which a message could be transmitted electronically between post offices. A facsimile of the original could be picked up at a distant post office within an hour of when it was sent. As an alternative, the copy could be delivered to a business address within four hours.

—"Lettergram," a service similar to the present Mailgram but designed for mass mailings. Electronic transmission could be used to send one message to post offices in various locations. Copies could then be delivered to individual recipients.

—An airline ticketing service, whereby an airplane ticket could be ordered by telephone.

The ticket could be printed in a post office and delivered by the Postal Service the day after it was ordered.

Postal officials discussed the concepts at a recent conference of the Direct Mail Marketing Association.

Robert R. Jordan, director of the Postal Service's office of product management, said in an interview that none of the concepts is close to being put into practice and all would be subject to tests.

The closest thing to electronic mail yet tried is Mailgram, which postal officials consider a success. That service began in 1970. Now 95,000 Mailgrams are sent daily through Western Union's electronic transmission facilities and delivered by the Postal Service.

Under the systems now being considered, the Postal Service itself could for the first time transmit messages electronically.

Postal officials are looking into new services as use of traditional mail declines. The drop in mail usage is expected to continue as more postal functions are taken over by electronic systems.

Farm Scene

By LEROY JAMES

EIGHT STEP STRATEGY STRESSED FOR SOYBEANS. To maintain reasonable profits, soybean producers should look closely at ways to improve production efficiency. Probably the best way to achieve high yields and the lowest cost per bushel is to employ a package management program, where all economic factors affecting yield are considered.

1. Rotate with grasses to suppress disease and weed problems.
2. Land preparation.
  - (a) Row subsoil, light textured coastal plain soils.
  - (b) Prepare moist flat seed bed.
3. Lime and fertilizer:
  - (a) Soil test and lime each field to a pH of 6.0 to 6.5.
  - (b) Establish and maintain soil phosphorous and potassium medium (+) or higher levels.
  - (c) Supply magnesium if needed.
  - (d) Seed treat with molybdenum.
4. Nematodes:
  - (A) Moderate in festation of Southern root knot; - use a good resistant variety such as Bragg, Hutton or Cobb.

5. Varieties and planting practices:

- (a) Plant early - between May 10 and June 10.
- (b) Plant only those varieties adapted to local conditions.
- (c) Plant two or more varieties with at least two weeks spread in maturing.
- (d) Plant in 36-40" rows with enough seed to get 8-10 plants per row foot.

6. Control weeds:

- (a) Plan a weed control program for each field.
- (b) Plant enough seed to get good uniform stand and plant on a flat seed bed.
- (c) Use a combination of preplant, or preemergence and postemergence herbicides for grass and broadleaf weed control.
- (d) Use timely cultivation, begin with rotary hoe and seeps of rolling cultivator soon after emergence.

7. Insect control: Scout each field at least once a week; expect rapid insect population increases beginning in July; be ready to use the right material for control when needed.

8. HARVEST: Start with properly adjusted equipment and begin soon after plants reach maturity.

Electronic Gear In Cars Marked

Greenville Police and Pitt County Sheriff's Deputies yesterday marked 108 citizens band radios, FM converters, tape players and other pieces of electronic equipment for local area residents at a "Mark-A-Thon" held at the Pitt Plaza Shopping Center during the afternoon.

Officers said identification numbers were engraved on each piece of electronic gear and that each item was also marked with an ink not visible to the eye under normal lighting conditions.

The marking program was conducted in an effort to stem the rising tide of thefts of radios and other electronic equipment from vehicles. Law enforcement officers plan another Mark-A-Ton scheduled for May 22 from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m.

Librarian Talks To Seniors Club

Miss Elizabeth Copeland discussed the services offered at the Sheppard Memorial Library at the Elm Street Senior Citizens' meeting Thursday.

Mrs. Harriet Roseveare reported on the luncheon held May 5 in Washington.

B. Jones presented a report on the Shuffle Board Team. Thirty-five members will attend the Fun Festival at Nags Head May 11-13. Members who plan to attend should be at the Elm Street Recreation Department by 7:45 a.m. May 11.

Refreshments were served by Verra Aolny, Adrian Brown, Hannah Brown, Manie Clark, Rena Horne, and Agnes Myers.

Charged With Saturday Theft

Curtis Earl Fields, 19, of 413 Greenview Dr. was charged with breaking, entering and larceny following investigation of a break-in reported at 9:53 p.m. Saturday.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Fields was arrested at 10:10 p.m. by police in connection with the break-in of a car parked on Albemarle Avenue.

Cannon said Harvey Reddin Gay of Saratoga and Cathy Hogle of Route 2, Raleigh reported that contact lenses valued at $320, $20 in cash, a $150 coat and a radio valued at $50 had been taken from the Gay car.

A medium-sized person walking at a comfortable pace will utilize 300 calories in one hour.

Armed Escapees Are Recaptured

CHERRYVILLE, N.C. (AP)—Two youths described by police as escapees from a mental hospital and armed with knives were captured without incident at a roadblock in Gaston County early today.

The two, aged 15 and 16, were in a stolen car, authorities said.

They were returned to Broughton Hospital in Morganton.

Determined Mother Of Six Gets Law Degree

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Becoming a lawyer has been a lifelong dream for Elaine Weiss and after surmounting such problems as a congenital heart defect, raising six children and running a household while attending college, she has finally realized it at the age of 43.

"You can do anything if you really want to do it," says the new attorney, who still has two children at home. "You have to be super efficient. In between studying and attending classes you still have to shop, go to the bank, take the children to the orthodontist, and do all the other things involved in raising a family."

Married soon after graduation, she gave birth to three boys and three girls in the space of 11 years, despite the danger involved in pregnancy because of her heart condition.

When the youngest was 2, Ms. Weiss, as she prefers to be called, entered college at the age of 31, graduating from State University College at Buffalo in 1968, and went to work as a teacher.

"After one year I decided it was not the career for me," she recalls. "I was used to running other people's lives to a considerable extent, and I was not used to restrictions."

Her next job brought her one step closer to her goal of becoming an attorney. She was hired as a paralegal by a Buffalo law firm, and after several years with the firm her responsibilities had increased significantly, but her salary had not.

"My employer advised me to go to law school if I wanted to earn more," she says.

So, in the fall of 1972, she entered State University of New York at Buffalo Law School as a fulltime student, but once again it was not to be easy. She and her husband separated two weeks before she started law school, and they were subsequently divorced.

"It was exceedingly difficult after the divorce to get my mind into gear for studying," says Ms. Weiss, who returned to using her maiden name. "Divorce is a trauma, and no matter how much either party wants it, there is a period of adjustment that is difficult."

There was also the adjustment to law school itself, which she found entirely different from college and much more demanding.

"In law school there is only one exam at the end of each semester, and it becomes a matter of life and death," she explains. "The fear of failure pervades your whole body at exam time, and it doesn't get any easier. The studying gets easier but the fear is still there."

AT LONG LAST—Elaine Weiss of Buffalo, N.Y., who finally has become a lawyer at the age of 43, displays her diploma from the State University of New York at Buffalo Law School to her two daughters, Elaine Jr., center, and Lilly, right.

But there was one aspect of her return to school that turned out not to be the problem she expected — her age. "My age didn't mean anything to my much younger fellow students, which was a real surprise to me. I was really accepted and included in their activities."

When it came time to look for a position with a law firm Ms. Weiss, who now works for a Niagara Falls firm, believes her age was an asset.

"Clients assume I have been an attorney for a while," she says, "and they are much more apt to discuss their problems with me. It's difficult for a woman with a divorce on her mind or a man with a tax problem to discuss the situation with a 25-year-old, even though he or she is equally qualified. That's just the realities of life."

Ms. Weiss also feels that her decision to go to law school was beneficial to her two youngest daughters, who still live with her — Lilly Breitweiser, 18, and Elaine Breitweiser Jr., 14.

"Lilly and Elaine are much more mature than my other children were at the same age," she points out. "They have definitely benefited from meeting my friends from law school and being involved with them."

In fact, Lilly is engaged to a student who graduated with her mother, and that can be something of a peculiar situation, Ms. Weiss admits. "I've gone from being just a friend to a prospective mother-in-law," she says.

"When I finished law school,

I thought I had reached the top of the mountain. But now I can see a whole range of mountains in the distance," she adds.

Hospital Finds Music Box Soothes Babies

PORTLAND, Maine (AP) — Wind-up plastic music boxes lull premature babies with folk songs and lullabies in their sterile cribs at a hospital here.

Dr. John C. Serrage, director of Maine Medical Center's neonatal intensive care unit, says the premature babies have a lot to contend with and music is soothing to them.

"We're attempting to counteract some of the noise and the getting of shots with the positive stimuli. The music box is there when the nurse or the mother cannot be," said Serrage.

He said the practice began last summer when a child was born prematurely to a Canadian couple vacationing in Maine. The child was still in the neonatal unit when the couple had to return to Canada. "As a kind of gesture, to leave something behind with the baby, they bought it the music box," Serrage said. It was sterilized and placed inside the crib with the baby.

Then the nurses began to notice the effect: isolated in its enclosed crib and surrounded by machines regulating the crib atmosphere, the baby was calmed when the tinkling music played.

When the Canadian parents took their child home, they left behind the music box as a gift. Now the neonatal unit has acquired a dozen.

The music is soothing partly because the baby learns to associate it with the nurse's presence, said Alison Tito, unit leader.

"We use it at feeding time and cuddling time, so they associate it with something good. Then they relax when we turn it on," she said.

"The babies are separated from their mothers, and we have to kind of substitute," said Mrs. Tito. The music boxes are one way of doing that, she said.

Mrs. Tito said all but the critically ill babies are cuddled as often as possible — every two to three hours. Between cuddlings, they remain in enclosed bassinets that heat the air and control its mixture, keep track of heartbeats, measure blood pressure and sound an alarm if breathing is interrupted.

Well Meaning Friends Should Send Cards

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Anybody who thinks women have equal rights in this country is crazy.

If a man's trousers are too tight, he's just put on a little weight. (If a woman's skirt is too tight, she's trying to be sexy.)

If a man stands on a street corner, he's getting some fresh air. (If a woman stands on a corner, she's looking to be picked up.)

If a man has one drink too many, he's "feeling good." (If a woman has one drink too many, she's a lush.)

If a man has a night out with the boys, he's put in a hard day at work and needs to "relax." (If a woman has a night out with the girls, she's up to no good and should stay home with her family.)

If a man cheats on his wife, people says he's probably married to a cold fish and he's only human. (If a woman cheats, she's a tramp.)

If a kid turns out good, he's a chip off the old block. (If he turns out bad, his mother did the rotten job of raising him.) It's still a man's world!

WANTS EQUALITY

DEAR WANTS: Only if he's single. If he's married, almost everything is in his wife's name.

DEAR ABBY: I am 14, and the oldest of five kids, so I'm the one who has to help my mom with the dishes and housework. I also have to help with the younger kids and I hate it!

When I complain about all the work I have to do around here, my mom gives me this routine about what good "practice" it will be for me in later life.

Abby, please help me! I plan on being a model or an actress, and I don't need all this "practice."

TIRED

DEAR TIRED: That's what YOU think! What do you think happens to all those broken-down models and actresses?

DEAR ABBY: A member of our family was recently in a near fatal accident and naturally we are very much concerned, but our problem is this.

Friends and relatives who mean well have been calling us constantly to find out how he is getting along. Abby, we are half-crazy answering the telephone every few minutes. They all want to know the "details" of the accident, and I am exhausted reliving that nightmare so many times a day!

Also, friends have been phoning the hospital to inquire about the patient's condition, and we've been asked by the hospital personnel to instruct them not to call so much.

Abby, please tell your readers that it would help so much if they would send a cheery card to the hospital instead. Then the patient could read the cards at his leisure when he's sufficiently recovered and keep them as souvenirs if he so desires.

GOING CRAZY

DEAR GOING: Your letter is well worth the space in this column. Readers—please?

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been recently approved to be adoptive parents. In making a list of friends to whom we want to send announcements, we've come up against a problem.

Seven years ago a friend of mine had a baby out of wedlock, and she gave the child up for adoption. It was a very difficult decision for her, and to this day she talks about it.

I see this friend about once a year. Knowing how deeply she feels about the decision she made, I wonder if it would be appropriate to send her an announcement about our adopted child.

We have many friends in common, and I know that soon after the announcements are sent she will hear about it. If so, she might feel that I purposely overlooked her.

Can you help me?

SOON-TO-BE MOTHER

DEAR SOON: If you aren't sure how she would react to a printed announcement, phone her and tell her the news at the same time the others will be learning of it.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (26¢) envelope.

DEAR ABBY: Of all the despicable people I will ever have to contend with, deliver me from the "kiss-and-tell" hypocrite.

Confessions to clear the conscience? Rubbish! Most confessions of infidelity are motivated (sometimes unconsciously) by the desire to injure the innocent party, and/or the wish to boast.

Confession to the Lord is good. Likewise, confession to a clergyman. Even to the bartender or the barber. But never to the one who will be hurt to hear it.

To break one's marriage vows is a mortal sin. But it is a human weakness, and the flesh is sometimes weak. But to inflict needless pain on an innocent party is also a sin. Christ has been known to forgive the adulterer. ("Go forth, and sin no more.") But Christ had no good words for the hypocrite.

Who am I? A clergyman who once, many years ago, confessed his infidelity to his wife.

REGRETS APLENTY

DEAR ABBY: I was married before and so was Bill. We have been married for three years and get along fine. I happened to mention to Bill that I had two plots bought and paid for in the cemetery right here in Louisville, Ky. Bill said he would rather be buried in New Albany, Ind.

Bill left New Albany years ago because he didn't like it, so how come he wants to go back there to be buried? I told him that we belonged together, and he said if I felt that way about it, I'd agree to be buried in New Albany with him.

Abby, I don't have a thing to do in New Albany. Why, my whole family is in Louisville, and that's where I want to be buried.

We are both in our 50s and have a lot of time to settle this, but I'd just like your opinion on who is right?

LOVES LOUISVILLE

DEAR LOVES: Does Bill have two plots bought and paid for in New Albany? If not, he might just as well get down to earth in Louisville.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (26¢) envelope.

Asparagus Is Spring Treat

By TOM HOGG

AP Newsfeatures Writer That adaptable stalk known as asparagus is the favorite vegetable of many Americans because it can be served in innumerable ways during the season, which runs roughly from March through June.

The ancient Greeks used to gather wild asparagus, which flourished in southeastern Europe, but apparently they never cultivated it. This may have been because one fourth-century B.C. writer claimed that it could harm one's vision, a theory about as reliable as the ancient claim that tomatoes were poisonous.

It was a different story with the Romans, who began growing the vegetable in their gardens as far back as 200 B.C. Historians say Roman gardeners developed stalks that weighed up to three pounds and that must have been pretty tough. The Emperor Augustus was fond of asparagus, which the Romans not only cooked fresh; they also dried the shoots and later boiled them.

Asparagus is served today in many guises, including salads, soups and hot dishes galore with a wide variety of sauces. It goes well with almost any meat, fish or fowl. It also does things for dishes made with eggs and cheese.

In my opinion asparagus is equally good served hot with a Hollandaise sauce or cold with a vinaigrette dressing. It may be more costly than some vegetables, but it is worth a splurge once a week at least.

Asparagus buffs will tell you that when the whole stalks are cooked they should not lie flat in water, but should be tied top and bottom in bunches and stood up in the bottom of a double boiler. If the lower stalks are tough, break them off and discard. Asparagus is usually done in 15 minutes if you insist on laying the shoots full length in about 1½ cups of boiling water per bunch. This allows five minutes cooking time with the lid off and 10 more covered. If you cook the stalks upright, allow an added 5 minutes for the exposed tips to steam, since the water will not reach them. Test for tenderness before serving.

Here's a recipe for asparagus in orange-lemon sauce.

- 1 bunch (about 2 pounds) asparagus
  - 1 pound butter or margarine
  - 1 cup fresh orange juice
  - 4 teaspoons fresh lemon juice
  - ½ teaspoon grated orange rind
  - ½ teaspoon grated lemon rind
- Break off asparagus stalks as far down as they snap easily. Wash asparagus. Cook covered in about 1½ cups salted, boiling water till tender. Drain if necessary. Melt butter and stir in remaining ingredients. Heat to serving temperature, stirring occasionally. Serve over cooked asparagus. Garnish with lemon slices. Serves 6.

Poppy Day Plans Discussed

Poppy Day plans were discussed at the meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary held Thursday night.

Poppy Day will be held May 22 and members were urged to contact Dr. Betty Levey, chairman, who will help with the drive.

Mrs. Sarah Ashton, president, conducted the meeting. Delegates to the convention will be appointed by the president.

It was announced that a disabled veteran had been helped by the group in April. Donations will be sent to the project to help send a teacher to a workshop at Valley Forge in July. A donation was sent to the Pitt County Mental Health Association.

A $100 scholarship will be given to a nursing student at ECU at the June meeting.

Mrs. Lois Dail, state memorial chairman, held a service in memory of Miss Grace Smith and Mrs. Dora Jones.

New officers for 1976 will be installed at the meeting, next month.

Mrs. Sallie Reagan was presented a Go Getters certificate.

Mrs. Cora Wilson and Miss Margaret Register served refreshments.

Spokesman For 'Re-Thinking'?

Predicting the future and spotting new and momentous trends is risky business. There are very few of us who are able to determine when the mood of the nations is about to suddenly turn.

We might be seeing a radical change in direction in the presidential political campaign that is now going on. Someone has predicted that a mighty religious revival is ahead for the United States. That theory is backed up with the indications that young people—and older ones too—are searching for religious experiences. At times they turn to some pretty far out cults, but the searching is there.

Now along comes Jimmy Carter, the candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination. He indicates that he has strong religious convictions, and although he does believe in separation of church and state he will be guided by those convictions as a president. As we are seeing in the primaries, people are flocking to him.

In North Carolina Carter turned often to the teachings of Christianity, not surprising in this so-called Bible Belt state.

But in Indianapolis he delivered the sermon at the Second Christian Church, which has a predominantly black congregation.

"God knows I don't know all the answers," he said, "But God knows I'm trying to learn. We Christians have something that's always there. It's always there, and it's the basis upon which we can answer complicated questions."

"What's happened? What's happened to our country?" he asked. "Sometimes we put Christian life into a little compartment and draw Sunday around it." He said he wanted to see government "clean and decent and open and filled with compassion and love."

Jimmy Carter doesn't come across as an evangelist, and he must be aware that there are diverse religious backgrounds in this nation that can't be embraced in his own Christian upbringing. But the Christian code of morality which Carter represents can be accepted by almost any group. The Carter political phenomenon may be connected with a massive re-thinking of morality in this nation. It could be that new codes of moral conduct are to be established that would make morality laws and censorship unnecessary.

Looking Ahead To Rountree's Decision

Will Pitt Rep. Horton Rountree seek the Democratic nomination for attorney general?

Until recently most everyone here expected that Rountree would run for re-election to the Legislature. Last week, however, reports came from Raleigh that he was considering the attorney general's race.

He would, of course, be going up against an incumbent attorney general and also, if Rountree chose the state race, the field would be open for a new candidate to seek the House seat.

In making the state race, Rountree would have his legislative experience, as well as service on the attorney general's staff going for him. It could be an interesting race.

The New Welfare Case

WASHINGTON—"Please sit down Mr. er, er Mr. Tompkins."

"Yes, ma'am."

"Now, Mr. Tompkins, I am the social worker assigned to your case. Have you ever applied for welfare before?"

"No, ma'am, and I never thought I'd ever see the day when I would."

"Well, let's review your case. It says here that you were a congressman for four terms, a governor for two terms, and a senator for one term."

"Yes, ma'am, I have references here that indicate everyone thought I did a good job."

"I see. Please don't cry, Mr. Tompkins, I'm here to help you."

"I'm sorry, it's just that... well, it's not easy for me to one day be a presidential candidate and the next day to be asking for welfare."

"You were a presidential candidate?"

"Yes, ma'am. I was until last week. Here is some of my campaign literature. You see here it says 'Tompkins for President'—and that's a picture of my wife and my family, and that's me holding up for fingers in a 'V for Victory' sign."

"You have a nice family, Mr. Tompkins. I hope you don't think I'm prying, but I do have to have this information for my records. What happened between the time you ran for President and today when you came here?"

"It didn't happen all at once. I started out with a fairly good-size campaign fund; maybe $500,000. Then we went into New Hampshire and spent half of it. I didn't do too well in New Hampshire so my campaign manager said we'd have to make an all-out effort in Florida.

"He assured me we could afford it because we would be getting funds from the government to match what we raised. We blew a pot of money on TV commercials in Florida and ran fourth. I was highly encouraged because I had predicted I would come in fifth; so coming in fourth could be interpreted as a victory."

"Unfortunately, we found it harder and harder to raise funds and the government wasn't coming through with the money it promised us. We had the choice of going into Wisconsin or New York. The motels in Wisconsin were cheaper so we decided to campaign there. I came in sixth, which made fools out of ABC, NBC and CBS, who all predicted I would come in eighth."

"But despite the optimism in my camp, money was still the main problem. I borrowed on my life insurance to campaign in North Carolina, and my wife sold all her jewelry so I could hold a rally in South Bend, Ind. The polls indicated I was getting delegates in New Mexico and there was talk I might even sweep Newport, R.I."

"Just as I was picking up momentum we had to close all our campaign headquarters and sell our furniture to pay the printer. But I knew if I could have one big victory in a Northern industrial state the money would start rolling in again."

"I decided I would do or die in Pennsylvania. I sold my car and bought a 30-second radio spot in Philadelphia. Then I mortgaged the house for three one-minute TV spots in Pittsburgh. My wife sold her hair so we could take out an advertisement in a Harrisburg newspaper. And I hocked my son's guitar for billboard space in Scranton."

"But it wasn't enough. We came in 10th and the media started to write I wouldn't make it. I guess they were right because here I am applying for welfare."

"Mr. Tompkins, your case is very interesting, but I would like to ask you what made you think you could run for President in the first place?"

"When I was a little boy my father told me anyone in the

Balance Badly Needed

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP)—The bus driver on the route to downtown Raleigh and the Legislative Building has always been garrulous, but one day last week his monologue was particularly interesting.

The bus drivers in Raleigh, he said, were being asked by every other municipal trade group to join in protesting low salaries—and possibly to join in picketing and striking.

It was a random conversation, but it was only one of many indicators in recent weeks that a new era of public employe militance is at hand in North Carolina.

In Greensboro, teachers were threatening to refuse to monitor extracurricular activities after class unless they got substantially more money.

In Gastonia, it was revealed that several police force members were buying food stamps to help make ends meet.

Highway patrolmen and policemen all over the state have been forming "associations" of one form or another to push for higher pay.

Teachers were crowding into the legislature's appropriations committee to observe the budget-making process. They were taking notes and vowing vengeance against legislators who worked against their interests.

The prime factor in their discontent in monetary. Teachers and state employes received their last general pay increase in 1974. The cost of living has risen 16 per cent since then, they say, and that is the pay raise they want to get.

The demands put the legislators in a hard spot. On the one hand were the employes: more organized than ever before and determined to use their numbers in the next election, if necessary, to elect legislators and a governor sympathetic to their salary aspirations.

On the other hand, the lawmakers faced a battalion of constituents who are not on a government payroll, whose major contact with government comes each week when they count all the deductions from their paycheck.

Faced with those pressures, the legislature has chosen a middle course. The teachers and employes have received a

THIS AFTERNOON

Budget Assembly Watched

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—Whether poker may be considered a fine art or a science remains a matter of considerable debate among devotees of that game.

The same may be said for present budget deliberations of the North Carolina General Assembly.

For after all is said and done, there remains in either activity a considerable element of chance.

The parallels are rather strong between structuring a state budget and playing poker. Skeptics consider the present course of legislators as "betting on the come and pulling the pot light."

To the non-initiate, that means you don't have enough money to stay in, but you think you've got a chance at such a good hand that you will go temporarily into deep water with the conviction that your cards will prove the best and you will recover not only the debt, but the whole pot.

Legislators who are leading the assembly in providing a pay raise for state employes, speeding up implementation of kindergartens, and other increased spending are certain they will win.

Other legislators are just as certain the complicated set of circumstances necessary to produce the rosy financial picture will not occur, and that North Carolina taxpayers in 1978 or 1979 will have to cover the loss through a tax increase.

"They are robbing Peter to pay Paul," grumbled several legislators of their free-spending colleagues. And to mix the metaphor hopelessly, some legislators figure the Piper will have to be paid as well.

The happily spending lawmakers explain their sudden loss of caution by lengthy and detailed descriptions of a complex financial picture which, boiled down from a number of sources, looks like this:

The pay raise will cost about $97.7 million; add fringes and make it between $100 million and $110 million. But by making part of that amount a bonus, not all of it will carry over to next year—only about $75 million of it.

Full-coverage kindergarten will cost about $20 million, but will be money spent this year which would have to be spent next year anyway, thereby saving the money next year.

Cutting other state spending has eliminated about $50 million from next year's budget. With improvements to the state's economy, legislators figure there will be a surplus this year of maybe $10 million.

Tax Windfall
Now, add on the speedup in collecting state income tax withholdings from the state's very largest businesses for a windfall of $67 million and the totals look something like this—surplus, cuts, and windfall make $17 million; raises, kindergarten and other increases make between $120 and $130 million.

To avoid the charge that the one-time tax collection is being spent for salaries, legislators are earmarking it for building projects totaling $52 million.

Thus, says the legislative leadership, you build in about a $15 million cushion to start with, and the economists predict a surplus next fiscal year of about $70 million through reversions (unused dollars appropriated but saved due to unfilled jobs, slow program starts, etc.), and thing look fine.

Additionally, legislators see a few other hidden winning factors: the salary raise will pay back $5 million in state income taxes and sales taxes; the sale of utilities at Chapel Hill will put $10 million in the budget; and revenues at state hospitals should produce $10 million more than expected by improved collection of federal Medicare and Medicaid payments.

All of this is predicated on the premise that the economy will continue to boom, providing rapidly increased state revenues.

Also, legislators tend to overlook some other certainties: state employes will continue to get much of that pay raise the following fiscal year, and lobby for more as well. On kindergartens, the money spent a year early is not really "saved" since a like amount will have to be spent to continue operating at the enlarged level in coming years.

Will a tax hike be necessary soon? Or, will everything come out well? Only the next couple of years will tell.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Proposition 15 'Fallout'

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
SACRAMENTO, Calif.

The bitter battle between a labor-business coalition and crusading upper-class ecologists over whether nuclear power plants shall be built in California or anywhere else reveals the limits of the politics of lowered expectations as practiced by Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr.

Under this state's egregious system of public initiatives spawned by the Hiram Johnson progressive era, California votes on June 8 will vote for or against Proposition 15 which would clearly bar future nuclear power and probably close down existing plants. Approval here would spread the anti-nuclear movement eastward and endanger the nation's nuclear option for energy production.

Vital though that nuclear option is, such more is involved. The same well-heeled ecological reformers fighting nuclear power resist offshore oil, coal gasification and other energy options. In sum, they demand that the lower classes of humanity scale down their energy needs and, therefore, their standard of living to conform to an austere new regimen.

That does not differ greatly from the call for lowered expectations in a less abundant economy sounded with puritan vigor by Jerry Brown, considered the most popular politician in California history. It is significant, therefore, that Brown, a cagey political tactician eyeing the national scene, is backing away from Proposition 15. He has not endorsed it and probably never will.

The reason: Brown's rhetoric for a less abundant life, when translated into a ballot initiative, means fewer jobs and general economic belt-tightening. Industry's multi-million-dollar campaign against Proposition 15 has been joined by the governor's allies in organized labor—and increasing numbers of ordinary citizens. Polls show a widening edge by opponents.

But nobody is pronouncing Proposition 15 dead, if only because of the intensity of its advocates. These are well-meaning people, "former Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown Sr., who bears slight ideological resemblance to his son, told us. "But they're like the Spanish inquisition. They want to get you on the rack."

There is indeed a fanatical aura to the anti-nuclear movement, particularly the Creative Initiative Foundation, a religious-oriented organization providing platoons of chic suburban matrons adamant against nuclear power. To enemies of Proposition 15, the foundation's members are "upper-class Moonies" (a reference to the Rev. Moon's clamorous movement). Their zeal excludes either surrender or compromise.

Even if Proposition 15 fails, they will enter court to fight nuclear power with endless (Continued on page 5)

Other Editors Say SBI In Need

(Goldsboro News-Argus)

A bill is before the N. C. General Assembly to allow the State Bureau of Investigation to move from its present scattered quarters and consolidate operations in buildings on the old Governor Morehead School property between Raleigh and Cary.

Whether the Morehead School property is the best place for the SBI might be subject to debate.

But what cannot be debated or denied is the need to provide the SBI with more adequate facilities somewhere.

This need was recognized earlier when the General Assembly authorized $30,000 for architectural fees for plans for a new SBI headquarters.

But to build a new headquarters would cost $5.2 million—based on estimates two years ago.

Besieged by shortfalls and a chorus of other demands, the General Assembly cannot be expected to come up with $5.2 million anytime soon.

Meanwhile, the SBI is spotted around in ramshackle old homes, an abandoned school building and portions of an apartment building. The offices are scattered over a two and a half block area.

Typical of crowding, the 24 workers in the chemical-technical section are packed into a single room.

SBI officials feel the Governor Morehead School property is ideally suited for their operations.

The buildings there are old but sturdily built and in good condition. A gymnasium lends itself ideally for use by the chemical-technical section, needing only plumbing and electrical installations.

The SBI feels it can make the move for a total of $110,000.

That's a far cry from more than $5 million. And it could provide the SBI with space it needs now.

Senator Harold Hardison and Rep. Ed Davenport have co-sponsored legislation authorizing the move.

The need for more adequate facilities for the SBI cannot be challenged. The method proposed is a rare combination of expediency, adequacy and short and long term economic soundness.

Dread New Focus Of Inquiries

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — A feeling of apprehension exists in much of the American business community that the focus of bribery investigations might shift from abroad to reveal similar scandals domestically.

Federal agencies so far have tended to skirt the subject, but some American executives state privately that they feel questionable practices are common among some concerns operating within the United States.

They and others are concerned about the ramifications of probes into the standards and practices of domestic business, and fear damage to the nation's economy. Some are advocating self-policing by their industries.

The extent of activities that might fall within interpretations of illegal or unethical conduct would require an investigation to ascertain, but one executive, well informed about marketing activities, commented: "It will be a shock when people realize the extent of it in large companies."

The United States, he remarked, is the world's largest single market, and the most desirable one for many companies, including foreign corporations. The magazine Sales & Marketing Management regularly conducts surveys among its "leadership panel," made up of 146 executives, many of them sales and marketing vice presidents or directors of sales or marketing.

Fifty-nine replies were received in response to a recent query, and 29 of the respondents said that either they or someone in their company had been asked for payments from American companies. The results will be published this week.

One executive replied: "I have had more requests from U.S. government officials and U.S. companies than from abroad. We have been told by a major oil company purchasing agent he wants 2 per cent of our sales."

One major problem for investigators is in defining conduct that is unacceptable. Certain practices have over the years come to be accepted as standard operating procedure within industries, but might be considered unethical by others.

Spiffing — or paying a retail clerk to push a manufacturer's product — is defended not only as an effective marketing technique but as a practice given legal justification by the Robinson-Patman Act.

However, some executives, and most likely some of the buying public, have doubts that the public is best served by giving a clerk $10 per item to promote one product over another, regardless of the comparative qualities.

One justification for spiffing is that the product involved, often an electrical appliance, already has been purchased from the manufacturer before the clerk is paid to promote it.

Bribery, a marketing man explained, would be to pay the purchasing agent of the company to buy the product from the manufacturer. But what he failed to note is that the impact on the public might be the very same

Strength For Today

ALWAYS A REASON

An agnostic was arguing one day with the famous nineteenth century evangelist Joseph Parker. He had heard Parker preach on the stoning of Stephen, first of the Christian martyrs to suffer at the yunds of persecutors. "And what," asked the agnostic, "did God do for this fine young man?"

"What did God do for him?" replied Parker. "Why, in that moment of suffering and helplessness, God enabled Stephen to say, 'Lord, lay not this sin to their charge.' That was what the Almighty did; and in working this miracle of forgiveness in the spirit of the martyred man, God did more for Stephen than if He had sent a legion of angles to protect him from the stoning which brought about his death."

God has a reason for everything He does, and it is always a good reason. He even lets men die in order that through their dying He may achieve some great and lasting good.

Warns Against New Rejection

BY DENNIS REDMONT
Associated Press Writer
ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — Rejection by the U.S. Congress of the new billion-dollar defense agreement between Turkey and the United States could mean the end of Turkish military cooperation with the United States, Premier Suleyman Demirel warned Sunday.

The Ford administration agreed in March to give Turkey $1 billion in military aid over four years in return for the reopening of 26 U.S. bases in Turkey. The bases were closed after Congress halted arms shipments to Turkey in retaliation for Turkey's use of American weapons in the invasion of Cyprus in July 1974.

A similar $700-million agreement is pending with Greece, but congressional approval for both appears unlikely. No date has been set for Congress to vote on the agreements.

"If the agreement is rejected ... it should be better not to have it," Demirel said in an interview with The Associated Press. "It would be very difficult to have another agreement along these lines or along other lines. The people will say, 'What is the use of having agreements with the U.S. government because we don't know whether they will be rejected or accepted by the Congress. . . . Rejection will destroy the credibility of the United States.'"

U.S. military planners consider Turkey a key element in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's line of defense against the Soviet Union because of its location on Russia's southern border, its army of 500,000 men and the location in Turkey of 26 American military electronic surveillance stations which monitor Soviet activities.

Since Congress imposed the arms embargo 14 months ago, Demirel has turned to the Soviet bloc for increased trade and economic cooperation but has stopped short of accepting Soviet weapons. The premier disclosed in the interview that the Soviet government has pledged a billion dollars on easy credit terms to pay for development and industrial projects.

Demirel gave no indication of plans to withdraw the Turkish troops still on Cyprus. "There is peace on the island now which never happened before," he declared.

He said the complexity of the Cyprus question and of the rival Greek and Turkish claims to offshore oil rights in the Aegean "prevents a quick solution" between Greece and Turkey.

Suggests Role Is Homeowner's

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A former water utility manager is all for softened water, but he thinks the homeowner, not the community water system, should do the softening.

"Soft water is great to have and enjoy," Zeno A. Gorder told the 7th International Water Quality Symposium, "but municipalities soften all their water, including water used for fighting fires, flushing streets and sprinkling lawns. To me, it does not seem environmentally sound to expend energy and resources to soften 100 per cent of the water when only a small quantity is used for soft water benefits, like bathing and laundering."

Gorder is former manager of the Madison, Wis., Water Utility.

smaller raise, 4 per cent plus $300, than they asked for. The taxpayers have not had to pay a tax increase.

This is not likely to satisfy them. At best, from the legislators' viewpoints, it may slake their anger enough to keep them from making the kind of organized, determined effort that could radically alter the political equations of August and November.

But nothing that the legislature accomplishes in its short, budget session will make the state and its local governments better prepared than they are now to deal in the years ahead with the new militance.

Right now, state law starts off by prohibiting any sort of collective negotiations between the government and its employees. Is this realistic?

Government employees are frustrated by trying to deal with government agencies they know are more responsive to political pressures for low tax rates than they are to the just and fair needs of their employees.

Should there be an arbitration system set up? Might there be some way to protect government employees from inflation by indexing their salaries?

On the other hand, does the taxpayer need more protection than he now has from threats of strikes and job actions that can deprive him of the safety and sanitation that his governments are supposed to provide?

A delicate balance of competing and perhaps conflicting interests needs to be struck. But beyond the knowledge that the balance was needed, no one at the legislature appeared to have any answers as the rush to adjourn and start campaigning began last week.

An Adopted Stray Dog Saved Child From Fire

BRIDGETON, Mo. (AP) — Two-year-old Margaret Morris owes her life to a decision by her family to take in a dirty, hungry dog they found roaming in their neighborhood.

Red, an Irish setter adopted by Mr. and Mrs. Bruce R. Morris of Harvester, Mo., three weeks ago, pulled the panicked girl by her coat collar from their parked car minutes before it was gutted by flames.

"All I can say is thank God we got the dog, I wouldn't have been able to get to the car in time," said Morris, who witnessed the incident from a car dealer's showroom where he and his wife were shopping for a new car.

Red was adopted by the Morris after they found him running loose. The dog's owner was located but he agreed to let the family keep the animal.

"My wife, Betsy, and Margaret had really become attached to the dog," Morris said Sunday.

Saturday afternoon, the couple left Margaret asleep in the car with Red standing guard. The car's front windows were rolled down about three-quarters of the way, Morris said.

Morris said he frequently looked out to check on the girl, but after 15 minutes had passed, a salesman noticed smoke pouring from the car windows.

"I heard him yell, 'My God, there's a girl in that car,'" Morris recalled.

Morris said that as he was running across the showroom toward a door, he saw the smoke and then saw Red jump out a front window.

Once outside the car, the 75-pound dog turned back for Margaret, who by that time had been awakened by the smoke and was standing up in the back seat, swinging her arms in fright.

"As soon as Red hit the ground, he jumped up, put his paws on the side of the car and reached his head through the smoke coming out the window," Morris said.

Red grabbed Margaret's coat collar with his teeth and dragged the little girl out the window, then pushed her away from the car.

A Bridgeton patrolman said flames from the car were shooting 20 to 25 feet into the air by the time he arrived. The fire, apparently caused by faulty wiring, gutted the interior.

Margaret was taken to a hospital where she was treated for minor burns and released. Red suffered singed hair and a slight cut on his nose.

"I gave Red a steak when we got home after the fire," Morris said. "He may get steak every night after this."

"Yes, ma'am."

"You're the twelfth presidential candidate to come in this week and apply for welfare, and I don't mind telling you that you people are becoming a burden to our department. How can I be sure if I give you a welfare check you won't use it to enter the primary in California?"

"Don't worry, ma'am. I'll never touch a primary again. That stuff can ruin a man for life."

Predict More Frozen Foods

NEW YORK (UPI) — More than 100 grocery industry leaders have forecast that frozen foods, which now constitute five per cent of grocery store sales, will increase to eight per cent by the year 2000, according to Hugh E. Cumming, president of Curtice-Burns, Inc., a major food processor.

Other changes forecast included a decrease of one per cent for canned foods and three per cent for meat, with fresh produce remaining the same.

NEW YORK (AP) Married men live longer than single men, according to the Health Insurance Institute.

The institute says, "A review of government studies shows married men have a markedly lower mortality rate than their single, widowed or divorced brethren. And the disparity in the death rates continues throughout life."

It says its analysis also found divorced men register the highest death rate at most ages over all other male categories.

litigation. They are not satisfied by three bills in the legislature (at this writing, expected to be endorsed by Gov. Brown) imposing tougher nuclear safety standards—strict enough to be opposed by utilities, electric manufacturers and building trades unions. But because it neither closes down existing plants nor guarantees a moratorium on new ones, this legislation is insufficient for the anti-nuclear movement.

What ecological reformers want is shown by one tough old veteran of liberal crusades: Leonard Levy, Los Angeles-based international vice president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers who is bucking the rest of the labor movement (save for the longshoremen) in supporting Proposition 15. Levy told us candidly he opposes any nuclear power plants ever being built in earthquake-prone California no matter what the precautions.

David Pesonen, San Francisco lawyer and environmentalist who heads the campaign, told us he basically agrees with Levy. That means a California forever kept from nuclear power and required to maintain a lowered economy, life-style and — of course — expectations. This cost may be unacceptable when it is considered that nobody on planet Earth has yet died in a nuclear power accident.

This political reality has emboldened some of Brown's rivals who have unhappily watched his astounding ascent — especially Bob Moretti, former Assembly speaker who was beaten by Brown in the 1974 Democratic primary for governor. Though appointed by Brown to the new state energy commission, Moretti has not hesitated to attack Proposition 15 as a horrid example of Brown's politics of lowered expectations.

A year before running for governor, Brown expressed doubt about new nuclear power plant construction: now he says nothing, nor does his former political aide, energy board chairman Richard Maullin, who abstained from last week's Moretti-led 3 to 1 vote by the board against Proposition 15. Nor does air resources board chairman Tom Quinn, Brown's former campaign manager; Quinn said nothing even after Moretti called his silence "a signal example of lack of courage."

Had his campaign survived long enough, Sen. Henry M. Jackson would have roared into California attacking Proposition 15. Jimmy Carter has been characteristically ambivalent. But an outright endorsement of the anti-nuclear position is just not politically feasible. The politics of lowered expectations are unpalatable when translated from lofty upper-class theory to working-class economic austerity, and that may well keep California from beginning a nationwide stampede against needed nuclear technology.

Last year we brought you $839,200,000 worth of furniture.

You've got a lot riding on us.

A lot of furniture rode our rails in 1975. We estimate that the manufacturers' value of furniture we shipped amounted to $839,200,000.

And when you put Southern's shipments together with all other railroads, you've got almost half of all the furniture Americans buy.

Why do the furniture industry and so many other industries ship by rail? They know it's usually the most economical way to go.

Consider these figures for the thousands of things shipped by rail. The average cost per-ton-mile by truck is three times as much as rail. Air shipping is almost forty times more expensive. And the fuel crunch has made railroad efficiency more than just a matter of dollars and cents. It's a matter of delivering the goods with the smallest possible use of fuel.

Then there's the reliability of rail shipping. Add this on to everything else and you have a good idea why there's so much riding on us. And why you need Southern.

So next time you sit back in your easy chair remember, it probably rode the rails to your living room.

New Phase In Congress Probes

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The investigation of alleged abuses by the FBI and CIA enters a new phase this week when the Senate opens debate on how best to keep an eye on the intelligence agencies. The Senate is expected to establish a new intelligence committee. But whether it will have the power to maintain meaningful watch on the intelligence agencies remains to be seen. Four Senate committees now have some oversight on the CIA and FBI. The Appropriations Committee watches both; the Armed Services and Foreign Relations committees watch the CIA, and the Judiciary Committee keeps an eye on the FBI.

But recent investigations indicate none has kept a very close watch.

The proposal due to come before the Senate would create a select committee on intelligence composed of 12 members, three appointed by the chairman of each of the four committees now having jurisdiction over the intelligence agencies.

The new committee would share responsibility for overseeing the intelligence agencies with the four standing committees.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, who chaired the Senate investigation of intelligence abuses, and Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., who served on the Church committee, are expected to lead a fight to ditch that proposal and create an intelligence committee that would have exclusive jurisdiction over the FBI and CIA.

Standing between the two proposals are senators including Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., a member of the Judiciary Committee, who supports a strong intelligence panel but wants Judiciary to retain its authority to oversee FBI activities.

Other matters coming up for action in the House and Senate include:

—A $3.6 billion supplemental appropriations bill in the Senate. The bill contains a provision that bans use of federal funds for a sex-marijuana study at Southern Illinois University.

—An authorization bill for vocational and higher education programs that is scheduled for House action on Tuesday.

—A House vote Wednesday on the Senate-House conference committee report on the budget resolution. The committee approved a resolution to set a spending limit of $413.3 billion for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1. It projects a $50.8 billion deficit.

—A Senate committee opens hearings today into allegations that meatpacking companies used bribes and prostitutes as part of a scheme to defraud the Pentagon of millions of dollars a year.

—Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz and Howard Callaway, President Ford's former campaign manager, are scheduled to testify before a Senate subcommittee investigating allegations of improper influence in government approval of expansion of Callaway's Crested Butte ski area.

Avers Plants Flourish Because Of 'Harmony'

By TOM FENTON
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — They crowded into a small church in New York City to hear about a village on Scotland's North Sea coast where cabbages are said to weigh 40 pounds and roses bloom in the snow. The plants flourish because the people communicate with them and "live harmoniously with nature," Peter Caddy, who founded the community in 1962, told his audience of 300. The village, called Findhorn, is about 25 miles northeast of Inverness on a barren, wind-swept peninsula "where before only gorse bushes and spiky grass grew," Caddy said. Caddy backed up his claims of giant vegetation with a film and slide presentation Saturday night. The lushness of the vegetation has been described by other visitors and in several recent books. Caddy said the 200 residents of Findhorn make their living by harvesting plants and selling handiwork from a crafts shop and printing plant to an increasing number of visitors. Literature provided by the group said certain residents received gardening direction from "an evolutionary order of angelic beings" which are part of the plants. It said the result was the development of special composts, fertilizers and plant culture techniques which account for the unusual growth. Caddy said Findhorn's significance lies not in what is produced in the garden, but what happens to those who tend it. "It's a matter of a changing consciousness," he said. "An improvement in the quality of their being. A movement to a higher consciousness." Caddy, who said he was a British Royal Air Force squadron commander in Burma during World War II, said he founded the community at the direction of his wife, Eileen. Mrs. Caddy said she received instruction from a spiritual voice which only she could hear. The plan included founding a small college, which offers courses such as "Revelation" and "Gardening." Caddy said the people of Findhorn recently bought a hotel in nearby Forres to house their visitors, who number 50 to 60 a week. One of those who attended the Caddys' presentation at the Church of the Holy Communion was Jodi Desmond of New York City, who said she visited Findhorn recently after reading a book about it. "I stayed a week in Findhorn and a week at the hotel," she said. "Something is at work there which people are ignoring elsewhere."

Challenger Offers Choice

RALEIGH (AP) — Republican gubernatorial candidate Jake Alexander challenged Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt today either to resign or get out of the race for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. At a news conference, Alexander said he was issuing the challenge "on behalf of the taxpayers of North Carolina who are currently paying Mr. Hunt $30,000 a year to work for the public interest, not his private political game." Alexander called on Hunt to reimburse the state the $2,500 in salary that the lieutenant governor has been paid since he announced his candidacy a month ago and called on Hunt to reply within 48 hours. "His continuing to stay on the public payroll while he is an active candidate is a deplorable act of cynicism and amounts to an attitude of 'the public be damned,'" Alexander charged. Alexander told newsmen the fact that Hunt has had time to campaign during the last three years indicates the lieutenant governor should not be a full-time official. Asked if he would make his income tax returns and personal finances public as Hunt has done, Alexander replied: "I have no reason not to and very likely I will."

Declares Armed Forces Week

Gov. Jim Holshouser proclaimed May 8-15 as Armed Forces Week in North Carolina. In his proclamation, Holshouser cited the "brave men and women of the Armed Forces of the United States, those who have served in the past, those missing in action and those who gave their lives for their country." The governor urged the citizens of North Carolina to participate in appropriate ceremonies and observances throughout the state. This year, in conjunction with the national celebration, North Carolina's tribute to the Armed Forces is being expanded to a week-long observance.

Buncombe's Bid Beaten

PINEHURST — The North Carolina Medical Society's House of Delegates Saturday soundly defeated a resolution introduced by representatives of the Buncombe County Medical Society asking that funds appropriated for the East Carolina University School of Medicine be diverted to other schools in the state. Dr. John Wooten of Greenville, a delegate at the meeting, said the resolution "never got anywhere . . ." According to Dr. Wooten, the resolution was "just introduced," then defeated by a voice vote. He said there were "no speeches on the floor . . ." either in favor of the resolution or opposed to it. In voting down the proposed resolution, delegates followed a recommendation of a medical society reference committee which recommended defeat of the resolution. The Buncombe County proposal asked the General Assembly to divert about $50 million in funds for the ECU medical program, saying the funds could better be spent at schools with established programs.

Confusion For Consumer Buying Air Conditioner

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
Consumers trying to get a head start on beating the summer heat may find themselves caught in a maze of confusing terms and conflicting claims when shopping for an air conditioner.

How big a unit should you buy? Which one uses the least energy? How much will it cost to operate?

Manufacturers generally suggest asking the dealer, who then checks a cooling guide. But consumers can do their own checking with the help of a free pamphlet from the National Bureau of Standards.

Air conditioning capacity is measured by BTUs — British Thermal Units. This rating indicates the amount of heat an air conditioner will remove from a room each hour. There is no firm rule telling you how many BTUs you will need for a particular area.

In addition to room size, you have to take into account the place where you live, the amount of sun, the number of people who use the room, the location of the area to be cooled in relation to other air-conditioned rooms and the type of room involved.

The Bureau of Standards booklet gives step-by-step directions on choosing an air conditioner. Charts explain how many BTUs to add or subtract for different factors. Here's how the system works:

Suppose you live in Dallas and want to cool a 12-by-15 kitchen-dining area. That's 180 square feet of floor space. A chart in the booklet shows that the unadjusted amount of cooling needed for this area is 4,700 BTUs an hour.

Next look at the "climate factor" for Dallas. It's 1.05, indicating that Dallas is warmer than average. Multiply the 4,700 by 1.05 to get 4,935 BTUs an hour.

For every foot of wall that adjoins another cooled room, you subtract 30 BTUs. Assume the 15-foot wall is next to the cooled room and subtract 450 BTUs, bringing the amount of cooling you will need down to 4,485 BTUs an hour.

How many people will use the room? If fewer than two will use it, subtract 600. More than two? Add 600 BTUs for every additional person. In this case, since the kitchen probably will be used by only one person during peak cooking periods, subtract the 600 BTUs. Finally, since the room is a kitchen, add 4,000 BTUs. The total amount of cooling you need is 7,885 BTUs an hour so you should look for models providing between 7,500 and 8,500 BTUs.

Once you have decided what size air conditioner you want, you should compare models to see which gives you the greatest amount of cooling for the least energy.

Most manufacturers of room air conditioners participate in a voluntary labeling program developed by the Bureau of Standards to provide a guide to energy efficiency. New labeling standards, required by law, are in the works, but will not be ready until next year.

The existing labels — the ones you can expect to see this summer — use a concept known as the Energy Efficiency Ratio or EER. It tells how much cooling you get for every watt of electricity you use. The EER is obtained by dividing the number of BTUs by the number of watts.

Suppose, for example, an air conditioner has a capacity of 6,000 BTUs and takes 820 watts to operate. The EER is 7.3. The higher the EER, the more efficient the model.

The energy guide label developed by the Bureau of Standards includes the EER for the model in question, as well as the number of BTUs and watts. It also includes the range of EERs for similar models.

The bureau's booklet on picking the best air conditioner and determining approximate operating costs is called, "Energy Efficiency in Room Air Conditioners." It is available, free of charge, by writing Consumer Product Information Center, Pueblo, Colo., 81009.

Agency Earns 'Poor' Rating In $4.4 Billion Crime Effort

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — An independent study of the federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration concludes the agency has performed poorly in its $4.4-billion effort to combat crime and should be abolished.

"LEAA is unclear as to its mission, and what it has attempted it has done poorly," the study concluded. It urged Congress to shut down the LEAA and shift part of its funds to general revenue sharing.

The study was most critical of a $160-million LEAA "high impact anti-crime" program launched by the Nixon administration in 1972.

In announcing the administration's "high impact" project, former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew heralded the plan as an "across-the-board attack on street crimes and burglaries" in eight major cities.

But the report by the private Center for National Security Studies said the "high impact" project succeeded only in generating mountains of red tape and has had no significant effect on crime statistics.

The report by the non-profit research group is to be issued later, but a draft copy was obtained by The Associated Press. Entitled Law and Disorder IV, the study is the fourth in a series of highly critical examinations of LEAA directed by Sarah C. Carey, a Washington attorney.

In urging Congress to dissolve the LEAA, the report said, "The federal government has greatly increased its expenditures to combat crime, but these expenditures have had no effect in reducing crime."

"Not only has the LEAA ... failed to halt the rising crime rates, but (LEAA) administrators haven't yet determined the steps or procedures that can be taken to achieve that goal," it said.

The study aimed most of its specific criticism at the "high impact" program, which had been an effort to fulfill the Nixon administration's promise to reduce burglaries and street crime in the eight target cities within two years.

The eight cities were Atlanta, Ga., Baltimore, Md., Cleveland, Ohio, Dallas, Tex., Denver, Colo., Newark, N.J., Portland, Ore., and St. Louis.

Of the "high impact" program, the study said, "Many of the cities had no idea how to effectively spend such a high level of funding in such a short period of time and complained bitterly of LEAA's lack of assistance."

The study said the program produced "multiple levels of red tape" and quoted a Denver official as complaining that there were "150 steps required to clear a project proposal."

The Baltimore "high impact" program was labeled "the biggest failure" and the study said it had been "shrouded in secrecy. It is a closed operation, in regard to the general public and outside evaluators of the program."

The study said the Denver program was most successful, but that it suffered from a problem common to all eight cities: "Its administrators, the citizens and policymakers with whom they work, do not have a clear notion of how to prevent crime."

Candidates At Pitt YDC Meet

Harlan Boyles and Lane Brown, candidates for the Democratic nomination as State Treasurer, will appear at the Pitt County Young Democrat Club meeting tonight at 8 o'clock in Room 244 of the Mendenhall Student Center at East Carolina University.

Both candidates will present a short talk, then they will be available for public questions, YDC officials said.

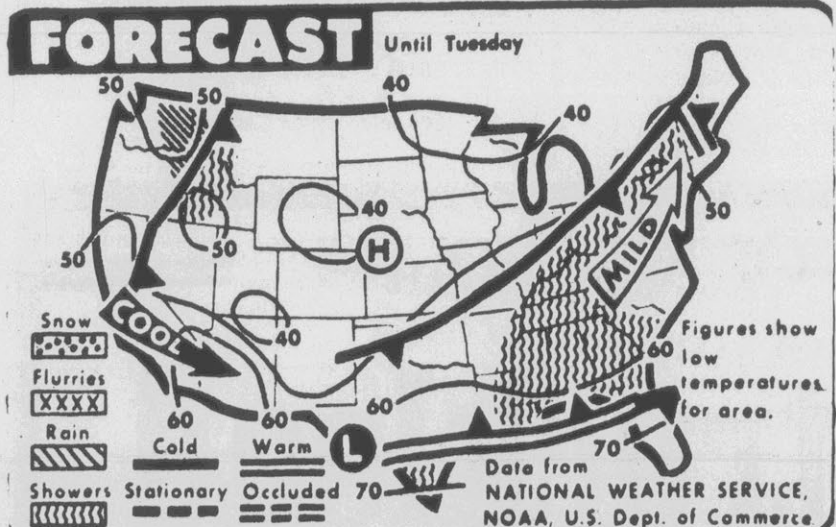

Tonight's YDC meeting will also kick off sales of tickets for the State YDC installation banquet scheduled for Greenville, in June.

Carl Darden of Greenville, will be installed as president of the YDC in North Carolina at that banquet.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST—A band of showers is due today from the Gulf coast into New England and in southern Texas. Rain and showers are predicted for eastern Washington and Oregon and in Idaho. Milder temperatures are expected in the east and cooler in the southwest. (AP Wirephoto Map)

By The Associated Press
The weather was beautiful in North Carolina today.

The sun shone with full force except for an occasional wisp of cirrus clouds. Temperatures reached into the 70s, with some low 80s in the Piedmont.

High pressure centered off the Tar Heel coast was responsible for the pleasant spring day. But it also is partly responsible for a chance of showers in the mountains tonight and statewide Tuesday.

Southerly winds around the high will spread increasing moisture from the Gulf of Mexico. North Carolina skies will be partly cloudy tonight and Tuesday. A cold front moving southeastward from the northern plains will cause showers to spread across the state from the mountains tonight and to the coast by Tuesday afternoon.

Low temperatures tonight will be mostly in the 50s. The highs Tuesday will be mostly in the 70s, with some 80s showing up in the southeast.

The extended outlook is for a chance of showers on the coast Wednesday, fair skies Thursday, and then a chance of more showers on Friday. High temperatures will be in the mid 70s to low 80s. Overnight lows will be in the mid 50s to low 60s, except for the low 50s in the mountains.

It was cool over the state Sunday, Mothers' Day. Despite brilliant sunshine, a predominantly easterly wind kept maximum temperatures in the 60s in some coastal sections. The highs ranged from 66 at Cape Hatteras to 75 at Greensboro.

Winds on the coast were mostly from the southeast today about 5 to 15 knots.

Hospital Costs

NEW YORK (AP) — The average cost to the hospital per patient-day rose to more than $134 during the first nine months of 1975, says the Health Insurance Institute.

It says this was an increase of 17 per cent for the same period a year earlier.

Why grasses may be your first and foremost weed problem.

Roger Walker

Let's consider two basic types of weeds. Grasses and broadleaves. While they are both serious threats to yield, in many cases grasses pose the greater problem. In general, grasses have smaller seeds than broadleaves. That means they germinate in greater numbers from the top inch or half inch of the soil profile. This is the first area of the soil to warm up and receive adequate moisture in the early spring, so many grasses germinate at that time, which is the same time your crop emerges.

Also, this is the time that your crop seedlings are germinating, which means that the grasses are competing with your young crop for vital moisture and nutrients. You can wait until later in the season to cultivate, but by then grasses have made their effect on your yield.

But you can effectively control many of the tough grasses you have in either corn or soybeans. You can apply Lasso® preemergent herbicide by Monsanto. Among the many grasses it controls are foxtails, crabgrass, fall panicum, barnyard-grass, goosegrass, and brachiaria.

You can combine Lasso in several labeled tank-mixes which provide broad-spectrum control of many grasses and broadleaf weeds.

Lasso. The herbicide to start with. And stay with. By Monsanto.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market pushed ahead again today, carrying the Dow Jones industrial average back to the 1,000 level again.

The Dow average of 30 blue chips was up 4.02 at 1,000.24 at 11:30 a.m. Gainers held a 3-1 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Trading picked up to a fairly active pace.

On March 9, the Dow touched 1,000 for the first time in more than three years. Since then it has made repeated runs past that point, only to fall back again each time.

It hit a closing peak for the year on April 21 at 1,011.02.

Brokers noted a carryover of buying from Friday, when the Dow gained 6.89 points.

They said investors had been encouraged by the market's steady showing last week in the face of concern that the Federal Reserve was tightening its credit policy.

That concern, in turn, eased somewhat on Friday with a decline in some key short term interest rates.

In the forefront of today's advance were IBM, up 3/4 at 253 1/4, and Digital Equipment, ahead 1% at 170 1/4. Computer industry stocks drew some favorable comment in a Wall Street Journal article.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks climbed .27 to 54.53 in the first hour.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .46 at 103.37.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Christine Lewis McRoy of the home; two daughters, Miss Ann McRoy of Hamilton, Ala., and Miss Nancy McRoy of the home; a son, Gregory McRoy of the home; a stepson, Bobby DeLong of Greenville; three brothers, Claudell McRoy of Rt. 1, Greenville, Jimmy McRoy of Greenville, and Johnny McRoy of Washington; four sisters, Mrs. Barbara Jean Cruz of Detroit, Mich., Mrs. Evelyn Parker, Mrs. Irene Gurganus and Mrs. Ernestine Peadan, all of Greenville.

The family will meet friends at the Farmer Funeral Home tonight from seven to nine.

Hunt Favors Tax Law Revision

RALEIGH (AP) — In a four-year hunt for a consumer group, Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt has called for revisions of the tax laws that would mean lower taxes in some areas without tax increases.

Hunt and other candidates for governor spoke Saturday to the annual meeting of the North Carolina Consumer Council. In addition to Hunt, Democrats who appeared were Ed O'Herron, State Sen. Tom Strickland of Wayne County and George Wood. GOP hopefuls attending were Coy Privette and Wallace McCall. An aide stood in for Jake Alexander who was ill. Republican David Flaherty did not attend but sent an aide who spoke in his behalf.

Hunt told the group state government must be put on a "forced diet" because "tax reform must mean tax reductions, not trade-offs in different taxes." He said he supported repeal of the sales tax on food and would look favorably upon changes such as increased income tax exemptions for the poor and removal of the $120 sales tax limit that favors the more affluent citizens.

Hunt said that to make up for lost revenues that would result from his plan state expenses must be kept low so that normally increasing revenues would cover the cost. "We need to make some hard choices between taxes and government spending... The citizens of this state are simply fed up with paying higher taxes... We must...take a hard look at whether it (government) is doing what we intend it to do," he said.

Each of the candidates was asked to speak on taxes, utilities and energy policy, consumer representation in government, milk laws and aid to low income families. Each candidate was also asked to speak on other topics he considered important.

In order of appearance, here are the responses: —HUNT: Efforts to make the state Utilities Commission more responsive "failed because of the pro-utility orientation of the present commission members," he said. Also, the state needs a strong energy policy which would be a guideline for the commission.

Hunt also opposed wholesale and retail milk price regulation. —STRICKLAND: Opposing any tax increase, he did not promise any changes in tax law and warned that if the sales tax on food is repealed, it must be made up elsewhere.

On utilities, he said, "If you're going to change the law, you're going to have to change the basic law," particularly on matters such as defining a "fair profit" by utilities. He also questioned the need to fill two vacancies on the Utilities Commission.

Regulations are needed in the milk industry to be sure the farmer gets a fair price, he said. Professionals, such as lawyers and doctors, should make their services available to the poor, he said, adding, "government cannot do all things for all people."

Rift Over Agreement Of San Francisco Bd.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Crafts workers who picketed for 38 days worked to put the city back together today amid reports of an angry split on the Board of Supervisors.

The discord apparently stems from the board's decision to remove two anti-labor measures from the June 8 ballot as part of the Saturday morning settlement of the walkout.

A majority of the board reportedly agreed to remove the issues, with opposition from board president Quentin Kopp and Supervisor John Barge-lata, who said removing the measures at this late date may be illegal.

The ballot measures would have authorized the dismissal of striking city employees and set salaries for two years.

While the city lost its glow for many visitors, the treasury swelled with unpaid salaries. Nearly $8 million was saved during the strike, officials estimate.

About 1,800 of the city's 18,000 employees left their jobs March 31 over $5.7 million in pay cuts approved by supervisors and signed by Mayor George Moscone. Picket lines were also honored by drivers for the Municipal Railway, forcing 250,000 daily riders to find other transportation.

In Cleveland, leaders of the Jean Royer, an independent conservative and the mayor of this prosperous Loire Valley city, got 56.1 per cent of the vote. Socialist candidate Paul Lussault got 21.5 per cent of the vote and Communist Vincent Labeyrie 17.9. Six other candidates divided the rest.

The leftists' chances of winning the seat had been considered slight, and the best they hoped for was to prevent Royer from getting a majority and to force him into a runoff for the first time in nearly 20 years in office.

The Communist abandoned the hammer and sickle for a symbolic green dot on all campaign advertising. They said the new symbol fitted Labeyrie, a chemist billed as an international environmental expert.

Their deeper aim appeared to be to get rid of the clenched fist image and reassure voters with a nonaggressive, low-key candidate like Labeyrie.

The party portrayed itself as an open, democratic force moving away from Soviet control and scrapping the theory of the dictatorship of the proletariat.

Both Georges Marchais, the Communist party's general secretary, and Socialist party chief Francois Mitter and campaigned actively against Royer, who held the assembly seat from 1958 until he resigned it in 1973 to become a cabinet minister.

Royer was supported by the regional leaders of both President Valery Giscard d'Estaing's Independent Republicans and the Gaullist party.

French Communist Placed 3rd In Vote

TOURS, France (AP) — Despite the French Communist party's new policy of openness and independence from Moscow, the party's candidate ran third Sunday in an election billed as a preview of the 1978 election of a new National Assembly.

The special election to fill a vacant assembly seat was the first for a national office since the Communists proclaimed their new look at a party congress in February and the government parties suffered heavy losses in regional elections in March.

Jean Royer, an independent conservative and the mayor of this prosperous Loire Valley city, got 56.1 per cent of the vote. Socialist candidate Paul Lussault got 21.5 per cent of the vote and Communist Vincent Labeyrie 17.9. Six other candidates divided the rest.

Comeback By Bjorn Borg, 19, In Winning Of WTC Finals

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
DALLAS (AP) — It's not many tennis players who have to make a comeback at the tender age of 19 but that's what Bjorn Borg, the idol of the teenage bluejean set, has done.

Sweden's Borg, tagged by his critics as something of a choker in the clutch matches because he plays so often he has no stamina, captured the World Championship of Tennis title Sunday in his third trip to the finals.

A runnerup to John Newcombe of Australia in 1974 and Arthur Ashe in 1975, Borg routed good friend Guillermo Vilas of Argentina 1-6, 6-1, 7-5, 6-1 for the $50,000 first place prize.

"If my critics want to continue to think I play too much and can't win the big ones, okay," the blond-haired baseline bomber said stiffly. "I was very happy to win because I had lost twice before here. Of course being 19 isn't the same as 17. My experience helped."

Borg, who now has won $137,000 this year, added the WTC crown to an Italian Open, a French Open and Davis Cup triumphs.

What next?

"My two ambitions are to win Wimbledon and the U.S. Open," said Borg. "I hope to win at least one of them this year."

Besides the big check, Borg won a luxury automobile, a $1,000 wardrobe, a diamond ring, and a diamond necklace for the lady of his choice.

Asked who the lady of his choice was, he laughed: "I don't have a lady. I think I'll give it to Guillermo."

Hundreds of teenage girls waited outside the interview room hoping to be his lady of choice.

A record crowd of 9,251 fans in Moody Coliseum began to buzz after Borg dropped the first set because of an obvious case of the jitters.

Borg said, "I became more patient after that and waited for my chance to come to the net off our long rallies."

The baseline duels with Vilas in the 2 3/4-hour match included one rally in which the ball went over the net 85 times. Borg won the point and it seemed to inspire him.

"I was very tired after that point but so was Guillermo," said Borg.

Winning spots on the team for a second year in balloting by the eight league coaches were first baseman Richard Wieters of The Citadel, who was the designated hitter in 1975, and outfielders Randy Howell of Furman and Paul Martin of The Citadel.

Wieters, who also received votes this year as a pitcher and as a designated hitter, is joined in the infield by Steve Bryant of East Carolina at second base, Kevin Harvey of Richmond at shortstop and Randy Ingram of Appalachian State at third base.

The outfielder with Howell and Martin is Joe Roenker of East Carolina. John Nichols of Furman is the catcher, Russell Lee of Furman the designated hitter, and the pitchers are Renie Martin of Richmond and Chris Mensing of Furman.

Wieters led the conference in hitting with a .460 batting average and was 6-4 as a pitcher with a 1.60 earned run average. Ingram was the leader in runs batted in with 37 and in triples with six. Howell hit a league-leading nine homers and was No. 2 with 21 stolen bases.

In pitching, Renie Martin was 6-1 with a 1.70 ERA and Mensing was 7-1 with a 2.23 ERA. All the nonpitchers hit above .300 except Nichols and Paul Martin.

The second team has Sonny Wooten of East Carolina at first base, a tie between Chris Plemons of Appalachian and Rick Blinkhorn of Davidson at second, Ron Smith of Furman at shortstop and Al Diket of The Citadel at third.

The outfielders are Al Bowles of Richmond, Steve Brown of Davidson and Bob Grove of Furman. Dick Jones of The Citadel is the catcher, Billy Young of Virginia Military the designated hitter and Chris Davis of William and Mary and Bob Feeney of East Carolina the pitchers.

Players winning honorable mention:

First base—Bob Naftzinger, Richmond.

Second base—Mike Walton, Richmond; Brad Mitchem, Furman.

Shortstop—Rick Koryda, Furman.

Third base—Geoff Beaton, East Carolina; Bobby Hauser, William & Mary.

Outfield—Rick Schwartzman, William & Mary; Rick Jarrell, The Citadel; Russell Puckett, VMI; Malcolm McLean, Appalachian.

Catcher—Howard McCullough, East Carolina.

Pitcher—Mike Ellis, Appalachian; Dean Reavis, East Carolina.

Middleweight Bout In Japan

TOKYO (AP) — Spanish boxer Jose Duran arrived in Tokyo today to challenge champion Kiochi Wajima of Japan for the World Boxing Association junior middleweight title May 18.

Duran, the fourth-ranked contender, was the former European champion in the 154-pound division.

Wajima is making his first defense since regaining the title last Feb. 17 with a 15th-round knockout of former champion Yuh Gae Do of South Korea.

Hayes' Biggest Thrill In Dallas

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer
DALLAS (AP) — "It's been a long time coming," said Mark Hayes with a sigh, "but this is the greatest thrill of my life. I just hope it's going to be easier to win next time."
If it were much easier it would be illegal.
The lean, handsome young Oklahoman, leading from start to finish, blazed home with a 69 Sunday and won the $200,000 Byron Nelson Golf Classic almost in a breeze.
It was his first triumph after four years on the tour.
He assaulted the par-71 Preston Trail golf course with rounds of 66, 67 and 71 before the closing 69 that left him 11 under par at 273 and two shots ahead of runnerup Don Bies. "Next time," grinned Hayes, 26, tucking a $40,000 check in his pocket, "I'm going to come from behind and win ... it's not much fun to lead every day. I was so afraid of losing that it was really bad for me."

Bies banked $22,800 for his second-place finish that included a closing 68 and a vague threat during the nationally televised windup to the weather-plagued affair.
"I really thought if I shot a 67 or 68 today I'd have an excellent chance of winning," said Bies, who actually never challenged until a two-shot swing with a couple of holes remaining.
Hayes led Bies by three shots as the final round unreeled, and twin five-foot birdie putts on the second and third holes pretty much discouraged any inspired heroics from his challengers.
He rammed in a clutch 15-footer for a scrambling par at the fourth hole and concluded: "That might have been the turning point."
Masters champ Ray Floyd, who once got within three strokes of the leader, matched Hayes' 69 and took third at 277, seven under par and good for $14,200.
Hale Irwin toured the 6,983-yard course in 68 to nail down fourth place while Ben Crenshaw added to his growing stature and bank account with a 69-279 for fifth.

Despite a sparkling eagle for the television cameras, Jack Nicklaus, twice a winner here, failed to mount a charge, finishing with a par 71 for 281 and a tie for eighth.

Frustration also dogged Arnold Palmer, whose 72 Sunday gave him a respectable 288 but a far cry from his champagne days of yesteryear.

There have been only 11 perfect games pitched in major league baseball history. No one expects either Brent Strom or Jim Lonborg to be No. 12 — especially Strom and Lonborg.
"I don't expect to do it," said Philadelphia's Lonborg after he pitched perfect baseball for 6 1-3 innings before settling for a 10-3 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers Sunday.
"You have to be lucky to pitch a no-hitter against anybody," said an Diego's Brent Strom, who tossed perfect baseball against the New York Mets for 5 1-3 innings, no-hit baseball for 6 1-3 innings and wound up with a 4-0, two-hit shutout.

and a single to Harrelson in the ninth.

Pirates 5, Braves 2
The Pirates, riding high with six straight victories, only have to flex their muscles once a game to beat the anemic Braves, who have now dropped 13 straight games.
The Braves have had trouble bunching runs in even one inning.

Astros 10, Cards 5
Houston has three homers in the past 10 games, all by Cliff Johnson, who drove in three runs with four hits to help beat St. Louis.
"I was a little more relaxed today," said Johnson, who smacked his fourth homer of the year.

Reds 14, Cubs 2
The Big Red Machine went into overdrive Sunday, unleashing seven homers and 21 hits to steamroll Chicago.

Tony Perez slugged a pair of homers and Ken Griffey crashed his first major league grand slam.

Giants 4-0, Expos 2-8
Steve Rogers pitched the Expos' first complete game and first shutout of the season, tossing a two-hitter at the Giants in the second game of their doubleheader.

John Montefusco, 4-1, and reliever Gary Lavelle, who recorded his sixth save, teamed together to stop the Expos in the opener.

Parsons, Yarborough In Music City Front Row

By JOE EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Benny Parsons of Ellerbe, N.C., and Cale Yarborough of Timmonsville, S.C., will start in the front row tonight in NASCAR's Music City 420 Grand National race.

He's a newcomer to Grand National racing and just began Late Model Sportsman racing this year.

Waltrip won this race last year for his first Grand National victory. Petty has won here eight times previously, and Yarborough has won three of the last six Grand Nationals here—including the Nashville 420 last July.

Co-Holders Finish 1-2

Parsons averaged 109.44 miles per hour and Yarborough 108.91 m.p.h. Friday night in qualifying at the five-eighths mile Nashville Speedway.

"We had run a little faster in practice," said Parsons, attributing his slower speed to cooler nighttime weather.

In the second row are Dave Marcis, who averaged 108.85 m.p.h. in a Dodge, and Bobby Allison, who averaged 109.49 m.p.h. in a Mercury.

The rest of Friday night's qualifiers, in order, were Buddy Baker; Darrell Waltrip; Richard Petty; Lennie Pond; Richard Childress and David Sisco.

David Pearson is not entered. The other 23 cars will qualify this afternoon. Among those trying to make the race will be 18-year-old Sterling Marlin, son of veteran Coo Coo Marlin of Columbia, Tenn. The elder Marlin has an injured shoulder as the result of a wreck two weeks ago and he's letting his son take over his driving chores.

The younger Marlin tried to qualify Friday night but was too slow to crack the top 10.

KNOXVILLE (AP)—Two co-holders of the world's record for the 100-meter dash, Steve Williams and Reggie Jones, finished first and second in that event during the Tom Black Track Classic here.

Williams won Saturday night in 10 seconds, one-tenth second off the standard. Jones, a University of Tennessee sophomore, was one-tenth second behind Williams.

"I came here to win," said Williams, who runs for the Florida Track Club.

Williams and Jones also ran 1-2 in the 200 meters. Jones led until the final 10 yards when he appeared to tire. Williams was timed at 20.1 and Jones at 20.3.

Both Williams and Jones are regarded as strong contenders to represent the U.S. in sprints at the Olympic games this summer in Montreal.

One of the best times of the meet, studded with Olympic hopefuls, was posted by Charles Foster in the 110-meter hurdles. He cleared the barriers in 13.3 seconds, one-tenth off the world mark of 13.2 held by Rod Mil-

Teacher Wins Marathon Run

CLEVELAND (AP) — Paul Talkington, a Canton, Ohio, school teacher, won the Hudson-to-Cleveland marathon Sunday and got another chance to qualify for the Olympic games.
Talkington, 29, led 209 runners to the finish in the marathon, covering the 26 miles and 385 yards in 2 hours, 22 minutes, 4 seconds. Felix Rendina of Willoughby was second in 2:28:20, followed by Larry Frederick of Ilion, N.Y., in 2:30:01.

Bench To Have Knee Examined

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Reds catcher Johnny Bench was scheduled to fly to Cincinnati today to undergo an examination on his right knee which has bothered him for two weeks.
"I could catch," said Bench, "but there's no sense aggravating it and having it linger for a long time."
The pain is in the inside of the knee where two ligaments join. He saw only limited action in the Reds' recent three-game series at Chicago.

Again Sidelined By Shoulder

ST. LOUIS (AP) — "It's exactly the same thing that happened a year ago," a crestfallen Bake McBride said. "I'm the only one I know of who's had injuries like this."

McBride, the National League's top rookie in 1974, was placed on the 15-day disabled list Sunday by the St. Louis Cardinals following a shoulder injury he suffered the night before.

"I got it while I was hitting. I hit the ball foul before I walked," said McBride, who was sidelined 23 days last year by a similar injury.

The Cards reactivated infielder Mike Tyson to take McBride's place on their 25-player roster.

Three Songs, One Show, Make Vivian Reed A Star

By GLENNE CURRIE
UPI Lively Arts Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — In a 1930's scene in the Broadway musical "Bubbling Brown Sugar," a gawky bow-legged girl from the south emerges from the New York subway at 135th Street and Lenox Avenue in the heart of Harlem.

Two vaudevillians there to meet their new partner are appalled by her comic hayseed appearance, but she is blissfully unaware. She takes a look at Harlem and decides she likes it; takes a look at the boys and decides she likes them.

Then she throws off her witch-like black hat and cape, disclosing a svelte, 5-foot-7, size-7 body in a clinging sexy red dress, and tears into an unforgettable song-and-dance version of "Sweet Georgia Brown."

The performer is night club star Vivian Reed and, as viewers of the scene on the Tony Awards TV show will attest, she is — and for a long time will be — Georgia Brown.

"Sweet Georgia Brown" marks Miss Reed's first entrance in "Bubbling Brown Sugar," and she only has two other solo numbers in the show; a blues version of "Solitude" and a driving, all-stops-out "God bless the child." But those three numbers establish her as far the best thing about "Bubbling Brown Sugar," and earned her a Tony nomination for best actress in a Broadway musical.

Vivian Reed used to sing nothing but opera and art songs, plus a few spirituals. Then she got into show tunes, then into rhythm and blues, added dancing to her accomplishments, and created the comic bit in "Sweet Georgia Brown." Add it all up and you've got a star.

"They wanted me to give up my kinky walk in 'Georgia,'" she recalled in a recent interview. "But I refused. I like to be silly and funny, but up till now I've only been comic with friends. This was the first time I've had a chance to do it on stage."

Miss Reed, in her lovely mid-20s and unmarried, is a singer first and foremost. She was in the original off-off-Broadway showcase production of "Sugar" in June, 1975 and "it's been my whole life since then."

The show opened on Broadway at the ANTA Theatre this March 2 after a lengthy tour and — mostly because of her — is playing near capacity. Fortunately for the backers, she has a run-of-the-show contract.

Vivian Reed was born in Pittsburgh, where she studied at the Pittsburgh Musical Institute, and was singing gospel in neighborhood churches at 8. By 13 she was giving recitals with her father, who is a maintenance man by day and a gospel singer by night.

"I was singing arias like 'Vissi d'arte' and 'Un bel di,'" she said. "Then I would do art songs, spirituals, and an Italian song anthology. My father would do spirituals and there were maybe three numbers we'd do together."

She won a three-year scholarship to the Juilliard School of Music in New York, where she studied piano and voice — and decided to switch to popular music.

"In my first year at Juilliard I did one concert at Pittsburgh," she said. "I guess I switched at first out of eagerness to perform in public. But I've never stopped being grateful for that early training; it's given me confidence and an understanding about choosing material."

In her first New York night club appearance after deciding to go that route for a career, "I was an underaged singing hostess. I knew about two songs at first but later increased my repertoire — learning on the job."

She soon was being billed at the Apollo, Harlem's top entertainment spot, and was touring the resort and supper club circuits. TV spots followed, and she became a big favorite in the Caribbean, visiting Bermuda and Trinidad a couple of times a year till "Sugar" came along.

"When I first tried the night club act," she said, "I was doing all show tunes. Then later I said, well, here R&B were making it big and as a black woman I decided to try it. Now it's the show tunes which are the novelties, the stunts.

"I'll start soon on a new act. What I'd like to do is to have dancers and singers — a large thing. Already this week I've been preparing the material. I'd like to get into song-writing. The music, I know where I want to go. But I think I'd be a very bad lyricist. But I'm going to try it."

"I have no teacher right now, no training," she added. "It would probably do more harm than good. Take 'God bless the child.' If I was concentrating on technique it wouldn't work, because I have to belt it out. You have to decide what you want to do, and I'm not into serious music right now. 'I live for the day.'"

Hearing Witnesses In Military Meat Probe

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Army meat inspectors will testify today before a Senate panel begins public hearings into an alleged multi-million dollar military meat fraud. Four present or former military food inspectors were to testify today before a Senate Government Operations subcommittee. Subcommittee chairman Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., has alleged that Army inspectors received "thousands of dollars" in bribes and other favors, including the services of prostitutes, for approving inferior meat destined for military consumption.

The substandard meat — usually cheap, tough or fatty cuts — was being sold to the Pentagon by some commercial meat-packing houses for as much as $4-a-pound, Chiles said. He called it "a series of conspiracies to defraud the government of millions of dollars."

Today's scheduled witnesses include a present military inspector, Nadja Hoyer-Booth, and a former one, Charles Reidinger, both of whom inspected beef at the G&G Packing Co. of Boston, one of two prime targets of the probe.

Both witnesses have been named in a subcommittee memorandum as having allegedly received cash or other gratuities from Ferdinand Romano, former general manager of the G&G plant.

Romano already has been granted immunity from possible prosecution in exchange for his testimony.

Also scheduled to appear is an official of Blue Ribbon Frozen Foods of Hamden, Conn., the other firm the subcommittee is investigating.

Neither firm is now processing meat for the military. But, up until 1975, they had been together supplying the Pentagon with 20 per cent of the 100 million pounds of beef it buys each year — at a cost of $250 million — for military bases around the world.

Chiles claims that unscrupulous meat vendors may have earned as much as $100,000 daily in illegal profits because of such schemes. That the schemes could be carried out at all shows that the "Army's inspection had almost totally broken down," he said.

While the week's scheduled three days of hearings centers on the two New England firms, subcommittee investigators are also looking into about 30 other firms that supply meat to the Defense Department, Chiles said.

A recent audit by subcommittee investigators and the General Accounting Office of 1.5 million pounds of beef at military depots around the country showed that more than one million pounds was substandard and should not have passed quality inspections.

PBS Stations Buy 28 Shows

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Public Broadcasting Service stations have just about finished their third annual agony festival of deciding which public TV shows they'll help finance next season in PBS' "program cooperative" plan.

The results? PBS says that out of 200 offerings the stations bought 28 programs — only four of them new — which range from a collection of TV shows by the late Ernie Kovacs to "Washington Week in Review."

The newbies are "The Age of Uncertainty," a history series; six "Scenes from a Marriage" by Swedish director Ingmar Bergman; "Studio See," a series of features, poetry and drama for kids; and "Parent Effectiveness," which suggest ways parents might raise and cope with the little ones.

Out unless they find a kindly underwriter are "Evening Edition" with news commentator Martin Agronsky; "Kup's Show"; "The Mark of Jazz"; "Philadelphia Folk Festival"; "What's Cooking"; and "Woman Alive." PBS says.

Over-all, the stations (only those paying for the shows can carry them) bought nine series in the drama, music and literature categories, ranging from "Evening at Symphony" to "Austin City Limits" to "Book Beat."

Public affairs and discussion shows and special events accounted for five purchases, from "Woman" to "World Press." Fiscal fans will be happy to know that "Wall Street Week" also was renewed.

For science fans, "Nova" was renewed. For kids, "Electric Company," "Zoom," "Same Street" and "Studio See" will be available, with "Parent Effectiveness" serving the older trade. Lowell Thomas' recollections will be back to join the new "Age of Uncertainty" in the history department.

Consumers will get their "Consumer Survival Kit" refilled and yoga buffs will again stretch out with "Lilias, Yoga and You." "Crockett's Victory Garden" also will be back to plow new ground for green-thumb folks.

Comedy lovers in at least 104 markets will get a sort-of-new series, "The Best of Ernie Kovacs," and Washington satirist Mark Russell will arrive on the 78 stations that bought four comedy specials by him.

While PBS says stations might buy two more series, the bulk of stations "bidding" for shows offered through the cooperative is over. The wares that were selected will make up 40 per cent of PBS' schedule next season.

The balance of the schedule will be filled by shows paid for by sources other than the station cooperative, PBS says.

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN
AND OMAR SHARIF
© 1976, The Chicago Tribune

Q.1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠K9842 ♥K73 ♦AJ82 ♠A

The bidding has proceeded: South West North East 1♣ Pass 2NT Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Since your hand is unbalanced, you should not yet shut the door on a possible suit game, or even slam. You can complete the description of your hand and leave all options open by simply bidding your second suit at this point. If partner should raise diamonds or return to spades, you will play in a suit. If he rebids no trump, that should be your best game.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠KJ♥95♦KJ9♠AKQ762

The bidding has proceeded: South West North East 1♣ 1♥ INT 2♣ ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Three no trump. Since partner's no trump response shows at least two clubs, you can reasonably expect your hand to produce seven tricks. Surely partner can be relied upon for the additional two. If you bid only two no trump, you will be putting tremendous pressure on partner, who might easily pass on a hand where game is a lay-down.

Q.3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠93♥KQ6♦AJ102♠Q982

The bidding has proceeded: North East South West 1♣ Pass 1♦ Pass 1♥ Pass 3♣ Dble. ?

What action do you take?

A.—Bid four hearts. Partner was in position to bid three no trump but refrained from doing so, and you certainly don't want to make that bid with no stopper in spades. By showing partner that you have values in his second suit, you put him in position to judge the possibilities of the hand with a fair degree of accuracy.

Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠A1076♥9852♦A8♠AK6

The bidding has proceeded: South West North East 1♣ Dble. 2♦ Dble. ?

What action do you take?

A.—Pass. There is no reason to even think about a possible rescue. West's double marks him with length in the major suits, so any attempt to find a better spot could lead to disaster. If you have any better place to play the hand, partner would not have made an immediate raise over the takeout double.

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠J872♥Q98♦K102♠853

Partner opens the bidding with one spade. What do you respond?

A.—It is a close decision between a raise to two spades and a one no trump response, but we would choose the latter despite our four-card trump support. A spade raise is the more encouraging response, and with this absolutely shapeless minimum we do not want to encourage partner to try for game unless he has a very good hand indeed.

Q.6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠QJ7♥J954♦A85♠AQ8

Partner opens the bidding with one no trump. What do you respond?

A.—Three no trump. Even if partner has a maximum of 18, you have a combined total of only 32 points, which is generally not enough for slam. In addition, with your square hand you have no source of tricks for partner.

Q.7—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠Q8♥K98643♦A86♠A7

The bidding has proceeded: North East South West 1♣ Pass 2♥ Pass 4♥ Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—This is merely a matter of whether you should play a grand slam or be satisfied with six hearts. You could try Blackwood to determine whether your side has all the aces and kings, but partner's responses might not be all that informative. A more delicate way of locating the cards you need for a grand slam would be to cue-bid five clubs, followed by another cue-bid of five diamonds.

Q.8—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠KQ8♥KJ5♦1072♠AJ74

The bidding has proceeded: South West North East 1NT Pass 1♦ Pass 1NT Pass 2♦ Pass 2NT Pass 3♦ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Partner's bidding has described a hand with six diamonds and five spades. Facing such an unbalanced hand, you have no reason to persist with no trump. You have excellent support for his five-card spade suit, so you should raise to game in that strain.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, MAY 11, 1976

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The morning is best for making arrangements for entertainment later in the day. Make sure you don't get involved in any arguments or confrontations in the afternoon and evening.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Take care of financial affairs early in the day. Be sure to use diplomacy with an associate who is in a bad mood. Add to savings account.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You are magnetic early in the morning and should endeavor to gain your personal aims at that time. Use tact in dealing with co-workers.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You are inspired now to take care of important business matters. Try not to overspend for pleasure later in the day. Relax at home tonight.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) A good friend can be helpful to you early in the day. A desired goal can easily be attained at this time.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) The morning is best time to obtain the information you need to make your project more successful. Steer clear of a troublemaker.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You are able to add to your income by using practical methods. A new associate can help solve a long-standing problem.

LIBRA (Sept. 21 to Oct. 22) Show more cooperation with others, but don't force your ideas on others. Handle business matters well early in the day.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Handle confidential matters in the morning. Don't neglect to pay an important bill that is due. You have fine backing from an ally now.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Plan how to improve your surroundings. Steer clear of an annoying acquaintance. Forget a foolish desire you may have.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Plan the recreation you want to have tonight, then attend to important business matters. Impress one who is influential.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Stay away from new outlets today, and make sure there is more harmony at home. Show more devotion to family.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Handle communications wisely during the day. Later make sure you keep promises you have made to others. Obtain the data you need.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she can expect a comfortable and happy early life, but later will have to rely on own efforts, and should be well prepared for such. Be sure to give spiritual training early in life.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Patrol Car In Collision

SYLVA, N.C. (AP) — A Highway Patrol cruiser on its way to investigate a traffic accident collided head-on with another car Sunday, injuring five persons.

All five, including Trooper Joseph Matland Harris of Sylva, were listed in satisfactory condition.

Sgt. Fred Almond of the Highway Patrol said Harris lost control of his vehicle while traveling about 55 m.p.h., crossed the center line and collided with a car driven by Archie Thomas Watkins, 27, of Rt. 1, Whittier.

Almond said no charges were filed and an investigation was continuing. The accident occurred on a rural paved road six miles north of Sylva.

Watkins was treated for a concussion and bruises. Harris suffered bruises on the leg and shoulder.

Also injured were Watkins' wife Cindy, 26, and their daughters Amy, 2, and Melissa, 5.

Almond said the patrol car was about two feet across the center of the road when it collided with the Watkins car, which was also traveling about 55 m.p.h. He said the patrol car's blue light was on.

A third car parked by the side of the road was struck and damaged.

LONESOME GEORGE—Lonesome George, the Pinta Island tortoise of Washington is probably the world's rarest creature, the last known survivor of his subspecies. Efforts are now under way to find a Pinta Island tortoise. (AP Wirephoto)

Nuclear Unit May Be Last In California

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — From a nearby freeway, motorists see only tall, spindly mechanical cranes stark against the ocean horizon. But beneath those cranes grows the largest and perhaps the last nuclear power complex in California, the $2.2-billion San Onofre Nuclear Power Plant Expansion.

Two generating units are being built on the sandy coastal site, about 40 miles north of San Diego and not far from the compound of former President Richard Nixon. When completed, the two 1,100-megawatt units will combine with the 450-megawatt nuclear plant already operating there to become the state's largest single source of nuclear power. It will be capable of producing power for 2.5 million persons, more than five times the population of Delaware.

But a state nuclear initiative to go before voters next June could make it the last of its kind in California. If passed, the measure — which calls for the legislature to approve by a two-thirds majority vote safety systems for nuclear reactors — may bar future nuclear facilities. There are two other nuclear power generating plants besides San Onofre now operating in California.

Work on the new section of San Onofre, which began in March 1974, is reportedly 8 per cent complete and will not be finished before 1981. But it is already beginning to take shape.

The 180-foot concrete slabs which will support the two new generating units are complete and the exterior steel liner for one unit is going up.

Also taking form is the huge auxiliary building and the structures which will house the steam turbines.

Each of the nuclear-driven turbines will provide more than twice the electricity of the first unit, which began operating in 1968.

It was delayed five years as plans for the expansion met stiff opposition during hearings and proceedings involving more than 24 state, local and federal agencies.

Foes of the plan feared radiation hazards, thermal pollution of the Pacific Ocean and loss of a valuable beach area.

But the various agencies eventually gave their approval and a suit to stop the project was dropped.

However, new environmental laws forced changes in the design and combined with inflation to raise the total costs from $450 million to $2.2 billion.

When finished, the total complex will occupy a tight 84-acre site. In fact, construction site congestion has forced laborers to resort to using several cranes and to pouring concrete only at night, officials say.

Despite the heightened opposition in some quarters to nuclear power plants, utility companies say the electricity produced by the enlarged San Onofre plant will be needed more than ever before.

'AIRSHE GOES—This hot air balloon was supposed to drift slowly into the air and explode, according to the script for the "The Great Balloon Race", but also, the giant balloon rested in the water near Key Largo, Fla. and then exploded. The explosive charges were set off by a man riding in the gondola but, he had to jump and swim after setting the fuses. According to the director, the sequence will probably be written into the movie. (AP Wirephoto)

'Pappy' Chalk', 87, Living Link To World's Oldest Air Service

By JOHN PLATERO
Associated Press Writer
MIAMI (AP) — As the battered, stained car turns off the causeway heading towards the seaplane base, hundreds of pigeons and other small birds fly to meet it.

In some secret way, the birds know it is 11:30 a.m., and from 500 yards away they recognize 87-year-old Arthur "Pappy" Chalk. He comes to feed them, arriving at the same time every day.

As Pappy hand-feeds the clucking and cooing flock from the opened door of his car, there is another sound in the air.

It is the drone of two 600-horsepower engines bringing another of his "birds" safely home. All eyes look skyward to watch the wide, white and orange flying boat make a gentle descent.

Gracefully, it touches down in the channel, leaving a glistening spray of water in its wake.

Pappy first fed the pigeons here 57 years ago, before he climbed into the cockpit of an amphibious plane to fly his first passengers to the Bahamas.

That was the day Chalk's International Airlines began. Today, Chalk is a living link to the history of the world's oldest and safest airline.

Pappy learned to fly in Paducah, Ky., in 1911, after barnstorming pilot Tony Jannus landed his Benoist amphibious plane in the Tennessee River with engine problems.

"He didn't have money to pay for the repairs so he taught me to fly," recalled Pappy. The pilot's certificate he earned that year is still active. So is his aviation mechanic's rating.

Chalk soon bought a plane to do some barnstorming of his own. Eventually, he landed in Florida and for a time ran an amphibious service between Tampa and St. Petersburg.

After flying for the U.S. Marines in World War I, his flying spirit took him in 1919 to the Bahamas, then little known by Americans.

Seeing a need to bring the islands closer, Chalk began Chalk's International in July 1919.

Operations were set up on a small island off downtown Miami. The airline does business today on the same quarter-acre Chalk occupied then under squatter's rights.

In the early days, the airline was run from a table under a sun umbrella. The rest of the sea base consisted of a tool shed, a few gas pumps and a telephone hung on a pole.

The airline has retained its "homey" philosophy in the advent and modern, sophisticated airlines and airports.

The Chalk's terminal, resembling an elongated mobile home, is a page out of aviation history. Its sole check-in area is no larger than a modest living room. An adjoining cubbyhole of a room serves as a reservations office.

Nearby, a passenger waiting room with only half a dozen chairs features old flying pictures of Pappy hanging on the wall.

Chief Pilot Dom Sumrall often leaves handwritten notes for Chalk's nine other pilots tacked to a wall.

Because those traveling to and from the Bahamas must pass customs, the federal government maintains a vest-pocket office to clear Chalk's passengers.

Maintenance buildings, where repair work is administered to the airline's five aging Mallard seaplanes, stand close to the narrow channel that serves as a landing strip.

"There were only 59 Mallards made shortly after World War II," said Doug Gonsalves, the line's assistant manager. "It's difficult finding parts, and sometimes we have to have them specially made."

"But they're sturdy and perfectly safe," he said, adding that the airline's planes have flown 20,000 miles through the infamous Bermuda Triangle "without a hitch."

The airline, limited by the Federal Aviation Administration to daylight flights and prohibited from flying under instrument conditions, has never suffered a passenger injury. "There isn't another airline that can equal that," said Gonsalves.

Many of the airline's 40 employees think Chalk's offers other differences from larger carriers.

Reservationist Francine Elliott once left Chalk's for a job with a bigger airline but returned. "I had to come back," she said. "There's something about the seaplanes. Once they get into your blood you can't shake them."

From time to time, Pappy visits the terminal after feeding his birds. He sometimes visits with the reservationist — "I like blondes, he says — but never interferes in the company's business.

In the old days and up to the time when he sold the airline in 1968, Chalk handled every aspect of the business. His late wife Lil spent almost every day of her married life at the terminal — making reservations, selling tickets, looking after pilots and even refueling the seaplanes.

Chalk flew every day. In between flights, he repaired his own planes, looked after financial affairs and habitually supplied sandwiches for his pilots.

He still carries sandwiches and hot soup for Chalk's employees on his daily trips to feed the birds.

The airlines current owners, Resorts International, run five flights daily to and from Nassau, Bimini and Cat Cay.

Most traffic is to Nassau, where Resorts International owns Paradise Island, a flashy combine of six hotels, gambling casinos and some of the fabulous beaches boasted by the island chain.

The firm says it has no intention of seeking other air routes or replacing its 15-passenger seaplanes with modern-day jets.

Pappy agrees. "I never thought of jet planes," said Pappy. "They cost too much money."

Chalk admits that he is not too concerned with aviation any more, having last flown in 1975 — at age 86.

"I'm more interested in my birds," he said.

Of the hundreds that clutter about him, he singles out one pigeon to hold and whisper to.

Asked what he was saying to the bird, the old aviator answered, "I'm teaching him to fly."
