

Ford Stakes Rising After Neb. Defeat; Carter String Broken

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
President Ford is playing high-risk politics in his struggle with Ronald Reagan for the Republican presidential nomination, raising the stakes state by state—and now he has virtually everything wagered on victory in Michigan next Tuesday.

There and in Maryland there is suddenly the chance of an opening for Democrats out to stop Jimmy Carter, still the dominant candidate for their nomination.
His string of primary victories was halted abruptly by Sen. Frank Church, an upset winner in Nebraska in his debut as a candidate.
Reagan gained 54 per cent of the vote to beat Ford in the Republican primary in Nebraska. Ford won in West Virginia with 56 per cent of the GOP ballots.
And while Carter was losing a close one in Nebraska, he won narrowly over Rep. Morris K. Udall in Connecticut.
Those decisions in Tuesday's primaries were the prelude to bigger tests next week.
Reagan confronts Ford in Michigan, the President's home state. Udall tests Carter there, while California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. challenges the Democratic frontrunner in Maryland.

Since Reagan started winning on May Day, Ford and his managers have pointed each week to the next set of primaries, calling them crucial ones.
That won't work in Michigan. Rogers C. B. Morton, the Ford campaign manager, said the President will have to win there to "prove he's viable... to get his campaign turned around."
Another Ford strategist acknowledge that a defeat at home would put the President in deep trouble. Ford was campaigning there today, and returning this weekend. Reagan was to hunt Michigan votes Thursday and Friday.

The Ford team is worried about possible crossover voting by conservative Democrats in Michigan now that George C. Wallace is virtually finished as a candidate. Wallace won the Democratic primary there four years ago, with 809,239 votes.
Reagan noted pointedly that his Nebraska victory was in a Republican only primary, with none of the crossover vote Ford managers had blamed for earlier losses to the challenger. "This confirms my support is not a Wallace vote," he said.
Nonetheless, his Michigan organization is working to entice Democrats across the party boundary, into the Republican primary this time. Those Wallace votes are going to go somewhere.

Church, meanwhile, said he was stunned with a Nebraska primary victory he called a miracle. Udall said that vote, and his close second in Connecticut, meant Carter's bandwagon had been stalled.
"Well, I can't win them all," the black-tied Carter said after a Democratic congressional fundraising dinner in Washington. "As far as a bandwagon goes, take one state at a time and campaign in all of them."

But unless he starts winning again next week, the stop-Carter effort he thought he had quashed by driving Sen. Henry M. Jackson out of active competition may be revived.
Reagan increased his lead over Ford, with incomplete returns putting his GOP delegate count at 417. Ford has 316, and there are 378 uncommitted delegates. The magic number for Republican nomination is 1,130.
Favorite son Sen. Robert C. Byrd won the Democratic primary there with 246,601 votes or 89 per cent.
Wallace had 31,968 or 11 per cent.
There are 33 Democratic delegates, also uncommitted.
Connecticut
Carter 35,415 or 33 per cent.
Udall 32,959 or 31 per cent.
Jackson 18,962 or 18 per cent.
Uncommitted 13,774 or 13 per cent.
That was in party-sponsored balloting that is part of a complex delegate selection process. The 51 delegates will be selected in conventions in one month. The popular vote pointed to a lineup of 17 delegates for Carter, 15 for Udall, 5 for Jackson with the balance likely to be uncommitted.

Developers Given An Added Burden

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector Managing Editor
A new water and sewer policy was approved by the Utilities Commission Tuesday night which eliminates refunds of 25 percent of the cost to subdividers as tap ons are made.
The new policy means that subdividers will bear the full cost of water and sewer lines within their subdivisions.
Several developers expressed concern with the new policy.
"The cost will be passed on to the general public," Phil Carroll said. "Naturally we would like to keep cost down." He said the additional cost will make it more difficult for the family to buy a home.
David Evans noted that the refund had been dropped to 25 percent only three years ago. "In my opinion it's too soon," he said. "We ought to wait another three years. This could put a damper on an industry which has been burdened by the economic situation. He said he was concerned that the new policy would encourage people to build in other communities.

Evans also questioned the turning over of utilities funds to the city at a time when funds are needed for utilities expansion.
Council member Millie McGrath explained that the city had not requested additional funds—only the regular turn-over which has been in effect for a number of years.
City Manager Jim Caldwell made the motion to adopt the new ordinance and it was approved unanimously.
Commissioners agreed that sewer facilities would be extended to the Haddock property on which Eastern Tractor Co. is located, but not within the property.

They heard a request for sewer service to property on the west side of U.S. 13, within the city limits at Greenfield Boulevard. Phil Carroll suggested that the line could be constructed to serve Ina's House of Flowers, which the commission approved for sewer service last month.
Since the line could not be constructed pending a state grant next Jan. 1, Carroll agreed to maintain the Ina's House of Flowers septic tank during that time, and also to finance the 400 feet of line to serve the florist.
Commissioners agreed to billing Burroughs-Wellcome according to its metered sewer flow, under to its policies.
Also approved was a sewer rate study to be conducted by Olsen Associates.
A low bid of $3,343.85 was submitted by Phelps Chevrolet for a half ton pick up truck and accepted by the commission.
A workshop session with the City Council on the 1976-77 fiscal year budget was set for May 20 at 7:30 p.m.
During the afternoon the commissioners toured various Utilities facilities inspecting West Greenville sewer additions; the Vepco-GUC 115 KV switching station, Eastern bypass electric substation, wastewater treatment plant and the ECU electric substation, followed by a dinner prior to the regular May meeting.

Washington (AP) — Committees in both the House and Senate are offering new bills to replace a $4-billion foreign military aid measure vetoed by President Ford, but the new bills retain some of the provisions Ford liked least.
Ford vetoed the military aid bill on Friday, objecting to sections that would have temporarily lifted the U.S. embargo against Vietnam and allowed Congress to veto some of his military aid decisions. Both chambers decided not to try to override the veto.
The Senate Foreign Relations Committee and House International Relations Committee approved new bills Tuesday. Both bills drop the Vietnam trade provision, but retain some congressional veto powers.
The Vietnam provision would have lifted the trade embargo for six months, and then permanently if the Vietnamese cooperated in accounting for Americans still listed as missing in the Vietnam war.
Both committees tacked the $4 billion authorization for the Nebraska

With 97 per cent of the precincts counted:
Reagan 110,846 or 54 per cent.
Ford 92,833 or 46 per cent.
In the separate delegate election, with 73 per cent of the precincts tallied, Reagan led for 18, Ford for seven.
On the Democratic side there it was:
Church 66,693 or 39 per cent.
Carter 64,810 or 38 per cent.
Humphrey 12,735 or 7 per cent.
Sen. Edwar M. Kennedy, listed, like Humphrey, despite his disclaimers of candidacy, got four per cent.
In the Democratic delegate contest, Church led for 15, Carter for 8.
West Virginia
With 80 per cent of the precincts tallied:
Ford 67,467 or 56 per cent.
Reagan 52,201 or 44 per cent.
The 28 Republican delegates there were uncommitted under state law.

Opening Bids
Bids on the site preparation work for the Greenville Middle School will be opened at 3 p.m. Friday in the board room of the Central Office.
A special call meeting of the Greenville City Board of Education will be held at that time for the purpose of accepting bids and awarding contracts for the site work on the school site off Hooker Road.
Trapped In Fumes
HOUSTON (AP) — A tank truck loaded with 19 tons of anhydrous ammonia plunged off an overpass onto a busy freeway and exploded, trapping motorists in the toxic white cloud of fumes. Four persons were killed and about 200 injured.
The explosion on impact released ammonia and the fumes spread, turning brown the vegetation in its path, an official of the Texas Air Control Board said. Up to 20 vehicles were caught in the cloud from the explosion Tuesday on the Southwest Freeway.
Most of the injured were overcome by fumes. Many were released after treatment, but Houston hospitals said 68 remained hospitalized today. At least seven were reported to be in critical condition.
The air board said it would conduct an exploratory investigation today into the crash. The National Transportation Safety Board said a four-man team from Washington would also investigate.

Holshouser Choices All But 'Buried'

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Jim Holshouser's trio of Republican nominees to the North Carolina Utilities Commission are sliding into oblivion as the Democratic legislature works toward adjournment.
A joint subcommittee all but buried them Tuesday when it voted against their confirmations.
First, the subcommittee recommended allowing incumbent Lester Teal to move from a term that expires in 1977 to a vacant one that ends in 1981.
Then it voted against confirming Mrs. Patricia Locke, the Charlotte City Council member, for a term expiring in 1977. There was no need to vote on the nomination of W. Scott Harvey to a term ending in 1977, since his nomination was contingent upon Teal's movement.
Both were turned down on motions of Rep. J.P. Huskins, D-Iredell. He cited a statement Teal made in hearings on his confirmation in support of maintaining a "favorable regulatory climate" for utilities.
Huskins said Mrs. Locke had shown few qualifications for the job. "She has no experience in business or accounting and no legal background."
The full House and Senate were expected to go along with the subcommittee's decision, leaving two vacancies on the commission, caused by the April resignations of Marvin Woolen and George T. Clark.
Holshouser, under the law, could fill them temporarily after the legislature adjourns. But the legislature could reject the temporary appointments when it reconvenes in January.
Huskins and other House members are backing a move to prevent temporary filling of the vacancies by writing a provision into the budget bill which would prohibit spending money on the salaries for the vacant posts.
The House Appropriations Committee postponed consideration of that effort Tuesday.
In other activity, the legislature continued to do clean up work on decisions that had already been made.
The package of three malpractice bills, aimed at helping doctors and hospitals protect themselves against lawsuits, neared enactment as the two chambers worked on each other's amendments to the bills.
The House approved a taxing measure that would provide $67 million in windfall revenue to help finance the 4 per cent plus $300 pay raise voted for teachers and state employees. The windfall measure accelerates the payment schedule under which large employers must remit their employees' withheld state income taxes.
The Senate Rules Committee voted to kill a measure that the House had approved for inclusion on its calendar. The bill would have given the state broader authority to enforce safety standards at day care centers.

NO TRIP
One year ago my wife and I paid $540.50 to Travelway Travel Service in Washington D. C. for a round trip to Las Vegas. We were part of the Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity party. The night before departure time, the trip was cancelled. We haven't received a penny of our money back. If you can help us get any part of it, we'll be grateful. S.B.

Hotline could find no phone listing for the company, so we wrote to the president. The letter was sent back unforwardable by the Post Office. So we then wrote to the District of Columbia Office of Consumer Affairs. We got back a ream of material, the jist of which is that the fraternity has brought suit and you should be considered one of the plaintiffs. They said that, if you have not filed as one, you should. We passed the address of the law firm suing for the fraternity on to you. You said you have received one form asking that you state the amount owed you, but that you'd like to communicate again with the attorneys. There appears to be nothing else we can do.
We are forwarding to you a full description of what the District of Columbia Consumer Affairs Office has done so far to investigate the situation.

BLIND CORNER?
I am a taxi driver and must turn onto Third Street from Elizabeth Street often. It's a blind corner. I wish the City could do something.

Alton E. Warren, Chief Inspector of the City of Greenville provided an answer to your question. He explained that he has investigated the complaint concerning the blind corner at Third and Elizabeth Streets. He said that the corner is a semi-blind corner as there is a large tree that does cause a problem. However, the tree seems to be in good condition and with the current feeling for trees in Greenville it is very doubtful that anything can be done to correct the problem.

Social Security 'Discriminates'

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal judge has ruled that the Social Security Act discriminates against men over the age of 64. The ruling means $16.50 a month more for the man who filed the suit, and federal lawyers say it could cost $400 million a year if generally applied.
Testimony during the trial of the suit put the total cost at an estimated $1.4 billion, if retroactive payments were made to all those persons who were discriminated against.
However, the decision Tuesday, was not a class action ruling. It was made by U.S. District Court Judge Thomas Platt in a suit by William Webster, 67, of Long Island. Thus, it applies only to Webster's case.
The Social Security Administration said it would ask federal lawyers to appeal the case.
Webster's suit was based on a 1972 amendment to the Social Security Act that he said discriminated against older men in favor of women and younger men.
The amendment was designed to eliminate earlier discrimination in favor of women, who had qualified for higher benefits on reaching the age of 62 while men had to wait until they reached age 65.
Under the revised law, all women — and all men who reached the age of 62 after Dec. 31, 1974 — were to receive equal benefits computed under a single formula. However, the law was not retroactive. That means that men who had already reached the age of 62 continue to receive benefits under the old formula.
In Webster's case that means that when he applied for benefits at age 65 in January 1974, he was awarded $187.50 a month, while a single woman born on the same date and with the same earnings record would have received $204 a month.

Jones Denies Support Richlands Leaf Mart

WASHINGTON, D. C. — First District Congressman Walter Jones said today that he does not support opening a new tobacco market in Richlands.
Jones' statement was made in response to a number of inquiries regarding information contained in the May 6 edition of a Raleigh newspaper, The News and Observer, that said "resolutions from civic groups from throughout the county and a letter from U.S. Rep. Walter B. Jones, expressing support for the market," were introduced at a U.S. Department of Agriculture hearing on the question.
Jones, this morning, said "It is true that a letter dated April 12, 1976, was sent to Mr. Billy Howard, secretary of the Richlands Tobacco Market from my office which stated my unqualified support for the proposed new market."
But the congressman emphasized, "This resulted from an obvious error on the part of the office secretary in the transcription of my dictation."
"The statement should have read, 'I am sure you know of my unqualified support of a strong tobacco marketing problem,'" Jones explained.
The congressman expressed great concern that the mistake,

Bradford Bishop Hunt Goes On, But No Clues

The worldwide hunt for Bradford Bishop Jr. continues, but despite efforts no sign of the Bethesda, Md., State Department official has been found in nearly two months. Bishop is wanted for the March 1 slayings of his wife, mother and three sons.
"If he pops his head up anywhere, we should be on top of it," a spokesman for the Baltimore FBI office said today.
There have been no clues to Bishop since a park ranger found the Bishop family station wagon parked in the Great Smoky Mountains National Park in Eastern Tennessee on March 18. A few days earlier, someone used one of Bishop's bank credit cards to buy some items at a store in Jacksonville, N.C.
"This case is really not that old. We're very hopeful," the spokesman said. "It's nice to run out and catch these people right away, but that's not always the case."
Bishop was last seen as he left the State Department complaining of the flu March 1. Sometime that evening, his family was bludgeoned to death in their comfortable split level home in an exclusive section of Bethesda. The three sons were apparently killed as they slept in their beds.
The bodies were found the next day in a shallow, bathtub-size grave near Columbia, N.C. But Bishop, 39, and the family dog, Leo, have not been found.
"We're not positive he's in the woods or out of the woods, in the country or out of the country, or even dead or alive," the FBI agent said. A search of a portion of the vast and rugged national park yielded nothing although tracking dogs seemed to sniff out some faint trails for a time.

Prayer Offered
DENVER (AP) — Rep. A.J. "Mick" Spano delivered a prayer in the Colorado House while unsuccessful attempts to end the current session escalated.
"Oh Lord," Spano prayed Tuesday, "help us to adjourn, and when we have nothing to say, help us not to come to the microphone and say it."

Britain's Drought Worst In Centuries

By DONALD M. McNICOLL
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP)—An African prayer mat from Botswana hangs in the offices of the Wessex Water Authority. It bears the word "Pula," meaning "Let there be rain."

Experts say it would take a prolonged monsoon to overcome Britain's worst drought in 49 years.

The weather bureau says it began last summer, one of Britain's warmest in years with temperatures in the high 80s. A mild winter and dry weather in the 80s this month have aggravated the situation. Some reservoirs are nearly dry, some two-thirds empty, and a great many half empty.

Normally, after winter and spring rains, they would be brimming and ready to cope with the demands of even the hottest summer. But the year from May 1975 to April 1976 was the driest since 1727, the weather office in London reported.

There were some thunderstorms and heavy showers last weekend, and some rain fell in scattered areas Monday. But it was not enough to help.

"We have had about half an inch of rain at the most, and that does not go far to make up a deficit of 16 inches," said one expert. "The ground is so dry and thirsty it soaks up any rain immediately."

About half of the country is suffering from the drought. The worst hit areas are Anglia in the east, Wessex and Wales in the west, and southern Yorkshire in the north. Least affected are the Thames River area, which includes London, northernmost England and the Severn-Trent-Midlands area.

If the drought continues, the consequences for industry could be grave. The average man or woman uses 30 to 60 gallons of water a day, but industry consumes a much greater part of the average 5.5 billion gallons pumped daily from rivers.

Jones Legislation

Congressman Walter B. Jones announced yesterday that he is sponsoring legislation to eliminate a widespread abuse by persons who distribute food stamps and collect funds for them.

Jones stated, "Food stamps are distributed by agents or vendors who are supposed to deposit promptly the money they will receive in government bank accounts. Some vendors have failed to turn in the money for long periods of time thus giving themselves an interest-free loan at taxpayers' expense. A recent audit showed that most vendors acted properly, but that some had handled the money so that over $12 million were unaccounted for or deposited irregularly."

Congressman Jones' legislation makes it clear the funds collected by vendors are held in trust for the government. Any use of food stamp funds for private purposes is made illegal. Vendors must deposit all funds at least once each week and follow regular accounting procedures. Violators can be punished by jail sentences and substantial fines.

The Senate recently passed a similar bill unanimously. Senator Jesse Helms was the prime sponsor.

Dear Abby

Don't Force Your Husband Off The Road

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a sales executive with a very large company that has hundreds of men on the road. He worked his way up from the ranks, enjoys his work and makes excellent money. The problem: He's gone more than he's home.

Our children are teenagers, and they need him home, Abby. I am also very lonely when he's away, and although friends invite me out, I don't enjoy going places without him.

I know that my husband is working hard to give his family all the material advantages that money can buy, but what good are they if the family is apart during these important years?

Would it be a mistake for me to talk to the wife of the company president and ask her to use her influences to take my husband off the road and keep him in the office in an executive capacity? Both she and her husband think a lot of me.

UNHAPPY WIFE

DEAR UNHAPPY: Please don't ask the company president's wife to take your husband off the road! (That would be like scalping a man to get rid of his dandruff.) Level with your husband about your feelings, but keep it strictly between yourselves.

DEAR ABBY: I went steady with Burton for six months, and then we broke up. Since then, I have heard that Burton has been bad-mouthing me to all my friends. Abby, I never gave him anything more than a goodnight kiss at the door, but he's going around telling everyone that he quit me because he got all he wanted!

MURIEL

DEAR MURIEL: Maybe that's all he wanted.

DEAR ABBY: A few weeks ago I sent my niece, whom I shall call "Jane," a very handsome and expensive Oriental bowl for a wedding gift.

I purchased the gift at a store where Jane never shops because she dislikes the owner.

When Jane received the gift, she phoned to tell me how much she liked it. A few days later I received the identical bowl from her with the following note: "For your new home. We liked it so much, we bought the same thing for you."

Abby, do you believe that Jane bought another bowl exactly like the one I sent? Or do you think it was the same bowl?

SUSPICIOUS

DEAR SUS: You know Jane better than I do. In any case, why complain? At least you received a house gift you truly like.

DEAR ABBY: Is it possible for a man to make a woman desire him without any desire whatsoever on his part?

E.

DEAR E.: Yes. Entertainers have this effect on some women.

DEAR ABBY: According to an ancient Chinese belief, the wearing of an earring in the left ear symbolizes that that person's life has been endangered, and to prevent a recurrence, an earring is worn. It is supposedly protection against bad luck.

POW Wife Sees Positive Aspects Of Experience

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Three years ago, Kay Perkins knew that when her husband returned from a North Vietnamese prison camp rebuilding their marriage would take time, hard work and patience. The investment has paid off. "We have been married 23 years and that seems to be a danger zone in many marriages," Mrs. Perkins said. "But ours has been strengthened."

"For all we know, we may even have been spared the termination of a marriage because of what happened to Glen."

Glendon W. Perkins had been a prisoner for 6½ years, and during that time his wife had transformed from a timid, dependent homemaker into an eloquent, sometimes militant spokeswoman for the National League of American POWs and MIAs.

Kay Perkins' emancipation had begun in 1966, about six months after her husband's Air Force plane was shot down over North Vietnam. "I realized that I was alone and had to make decisions for myself and our four children," said Mrs. Perkins, 38. "Glen had always managed the money, made the major decisions. But he suddenly wasn't around any more, and I had no alternative but to try and take his place. Those years were my growing years."

In numerous television and newspaper interviews during those years, Mrs. Perkins voiced the fears of many of the POW wives — that their husbands might be disillusioned when returning home to find the girls they left behind had grown up.

In February 1973 Perkins, an Air Force navigator, was one of the first released POWs to return home, and he met his family at Maxwell Air Force Base in Alabama amidst national fanfare.

But soon the Perkins family found itself going through a period of readjustment.

"At first, Glen and I tried to take up where we had left off. But that was impossible," Mrs. Perkins said. "It is fruitless to look for similarities to the past."

"So after a period of adjustment we began a whole new marriage, for we were totally different people. We were just similar to that other couple who married 20 years before."

Perkins decided to remain in the Air Force, and entered college, where he is studying business administration.

Mrs. Perkins said her husband's return posed no deep problems for her children, ranging in ages now from 21 to 17.

"While he was away, I tried to run a democratic family with everyone taking part in the decision-making," she said. "But soon after Glen returned home, he told the kids that it was still a democracy and he had all the votes."

Many POWs returned home from an unpopular war only to find their marriages broken.

Mrs. Perkins remembers the lost time but considers her marriage now better than ever.

Mrs. Perkins calls the past three years "marvelous," adding, "Our marriage is much more open now. We talk more frankly about our innermost feelings that we would never have dreamed of doing before."

Spring Banquet Held Recently

The Beta Nu Chapter of Sigma Theta Tau nursing honor society held its annual spring banquet last week at the Three Steers.

Sandra Lindeloff, lieutenant commander, spoke on the "Health Care Team in the Navy."

Mrs. Charlotte Martin was installed as the new president and Mrs. Belinda Lee as the new counselor for the chapter.

Spring Coffee Is Planned

The Lyndale Garden Club will host a spring coffee Thursday morning at the home of Mrs. Ed Tipton II honoring the Potpourri, Lakewood Pines, Home Pride and Dig 'N Delve Garden Club members.

Incoming members of the Lyndale Garden Club, who will be officially received at a luncheon later this month, will also be special guests.

Guests will be greeted by members of the Executive Committee: Mrs. Norwood Whitehurst, president; Mrs. Lawrence Perkins, first vice president; Mrs. Ed Yancey, second vice president; Mrs. Harold Priestley, secretary; Mrs. Tipton, treasurer; and Mrs. Herbert Wilkerson, historian.

Other garden club members will serve hostesses throughout the home, which will be decorated with fresh floral arrangements carrying out the Bicentennial theme.

Mrs. Alfred Hutton, chairman of the planning committee for the coffee, noted that this year's social is the first in a series designed to honor local garden clubs. Other clubs will be invited to future events.

TAKE CARE

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — The fast-growing popularity of house plants brings a warning from Don Steinegger, Extension horticulture specialist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. Steinegger said plant owners and particularly parents of small children should know which plants are potentially dangerous when eaten. Some such illnesses can be severe enough to require hospitalization, he said.

His list of dangerous plants include the seeds of castor beans, dieffenbachia, calladium and some philodendrons; hyacinth, narcissus and daffodil bulbs, rosary pea seeds and leaves and branches of oleander.

Children Have Own News Program At Mary Calcott

By LARRY McDERMOTT Associated Press Writer NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — When Chris Straddeck isn't busy at her chores as host of a morning television program, you might find her outdoors playing hopscotch.

Chris is anchorgirl for "The Mary Calcott Morning News," but even if you live in Norfolk, you can't get the show on your home TV set.

It went on the air in March, on closed circuit TV, to the 25 kindergarten-through-third-grade pupils at Mary Calcott Elementary School.

The lights and cameras are real, but the programming differs a bit from that of the networks.

Each morning at 9:45, the small fry reporters bring their audience the weather, the day's school cafeteria menu, notices of birthdays, teacher absences and features of interest to the kids.

One recent feature was a "wildlife special" on the crayfish, brought to the studio in a glass bowl.

Sometimes the youngsters have to make quick decisions, like their adult counterparts on the networks.

For instance, a news segment on a presidential primary recently had to be bumped off the air to make room for a late-breaking story: A puppet show was coming to the school.

Jane Wallace, the school's resource team leader and the program director, says it strengthens communications skills — reading, writing, listening and speaking.

The pupils work on scripts one day for the next. Then, scripts in hand, they take seats behind a round table.

The program opens with a film clip showing pupils dancing at a jam session. Chris, wearing cowboy boots, slacks, sweater and red ribbons on two ponytails, gets her cue.

"Good morning," she says with a smile. She tells what day it is and turns to Suprenia Wade for the "birthday news." Suprenia then gives Arlethia McGhee her cue to present the weather.

Confirming Greenville Growth

Greenville's growth has been obvious to those of us who live here, but a recent report from the Office of State Planning confirms our population growth. As of 1974 that office reports Greenville has moved up from 14th to 13th place among North Carolina cities since 1970.

The population has grown to 33,700, an increase of 4,637 or a six percent growth in four years. Greenville replaced Wilson as the municipality which is 13th in size in our state.

Interestingly the county's population growth was only 700 persons during the period, and Pitt's 1974 population was 74,600. This put the county 21st among the 100 counties which represented a slip from the 19th position occupied in 1970. As is well known, the county's slower growth is due to the elimination of farm labor and the out-migration of farm people.

Other county municipalities grew well with Simpson growing by 35.8 percent and Grifton by 33.9 percent.

We can expect that if Greenville and other municipalities continue their population growth, the out-migration in the rural areas will level off and we will see an upward trend in county population once again.

Greenville growth in the four year period was healthy but not spectacular, and after all, it has never been the primary aim locally simply to bring in new people. What we have wanted was development of the better paying industries and institutions. We think that this has been occurring so that the new population which has been brought in is contributing economically to the area.

ECU Health Role Acquires New Luster

East Carolina University has joined a select group with its full membership in the Association of Academic Health Centers.

Membership requires a medical school, hospital affiliation and two other health schools, which ECU has in the School of Nursing and School of Allied Health.

There are only 88 institutional members in the United States, five associate members in Canada and Mexico.

It is an exclusive health education organization made possible by recent developments in the medical school and the Pitt Memorial Hospital affiliation.

Prison Auto Plan Is Loser

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—While prison officials and legislators disagree on the number of vehicles owned by a special fund and leased to the Department of Corrections by the Prison Enterprises system, it is a fact the operation is losing money.

Last fiscal year the leasing agency owed $104,743 in the red, and Deputy Corrections Secretary Donald P. Torppa admits the losses continue. This fiscal year, he said, the vehicle agency will go in the hole more than a quarter of a million dollars.

The problem, Torppa says, is that the cost of fuel and other operating expenses for cars have increased sharply, but the rates for the leased autos have not gone up in several years "because we didn't have the dollars in the budget at Corrections to pay the higher rates."

Law-Cost

The vehicles, owned and operated by the so-called "revolving fund" of Prison Enterprises, are leased to various officials of the Department of Corrections and the Prisons Division for an average of around $145 monthly. And that includes all costs: gas, oil, tires, maintenance.

Torppa claims the agency is leasing 186 cars, 145 station wagons, 177 trucks, 87 buses, 158 tractors or trailers for a total of 753.

Legislative investigators, however, claim they found that the agency owns approximately 1,200 vehicles, most of which are leased to the Division of Prisons.

The loss, according to a study commission chaired by State Senator Glenn R. Jernigan, D-Cumberland, and State Rep. Edward S. Holmes, D-Chatham, "has serious overtones for the (state's) budgetary process. The General Assembly assessed the needs of the Department of Correction with respect to motor vehicles and made an appropriation in accordance with this assessment."

"The Department then spent in excess of $100.00 more than this appropriation (which loss) merely showed up as a loss on one line item within the Revolving Fund. In effect, this has subsidized the Department of Correction's budget."

The sharp differences over numbers of vehicle owned is not the only argument between Prison Enterprise officials and lawmakers. Best estimates are that the operation has buried slush funds totaling over $4 million which could be taken back in the state's General Fund if located.

Not So

Torppa rejects that figure, saying the system has less than a million in cash.

The balance sheet for March 31, 1976, however, reflects other possible sources of cash: Accounts Receivable—$1.7 million; Inventories—$6.4 million; Reserve in Building Maintenance—$223,998; and a host of other entries in a complex business which operates some 26 divisions and did nearly $24 million in business last year with a profit of $1.5 million.

The study commission, reporting to this special session of the General Assembly, concedes it found it "difficult to understand the financial structure of the Revolving Fund... because it shows an annual profit, the General Assembly appropriates no money to Prison Enterprises... none of its receipts, including profits, revert to the General Fund (which) although placed before the General Assembly during the budget process, does not receive careful scrutiny because money is neither derived from nor appropriated to it."

While the governor is authorized to draw out any surplus and place it back in the General Fund, this has never been done.

The commission is recommending changes in the operation to provide more legislative oversight of the system's budget, approval for new or expanded programs or buildings, a method for drawing off surplus funds, and limits on production of furniture and stainless steel products which are seen as potentially competitive with private enterprise.

Consideration is also being given to possible creation of a board of directors of legislators and private citizens to oversee the operation, and a requirement that a new bookkeeping system be set up to make the system understandable.

Want To Give Money

By G. DAVID WALLACE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — First the bad news: the IRS is looking for a couple of million Americans. Now the good news: the IRS wants to give them some money.

The Internal Revenue Service says more than two million Americans might be eligible for a cash windfall from the government, but haven't applied for the money under a special tax credit available to taxpayers who earned less than $8,000 in 1975.

The IRS had expected up to three million people to qualify for payments of up to $400 but the service said its figures show that only about one-tenth of that number, or 300,000 individuals, have filed a tax form to receive the money.

A total of $1.5 billion was set aside to pay to those claiming the credit.

The windfall is called the earned income credit and under the provisions of this new tax break individuals could receive income tax refund checks from IRS even if they paid no 1975 federal taxes. Or the credit could be used to reduce any taxes owed.

To receive the credit, an individual must file an income tax return.

"It does surprise us how few people are taking advantage of the credit," an IRS spokesman said.

The IRS is trying to find potentially qualified taxpayers who haven't claimed the credit. The tax collectors said that by this year's filing deadline the agency had sent form notices to 1.8 million people advising them they might have been eligible to reduce their tax bill by using the credit.

The reasons for the low response rate aren't clear yet, but analysts in the Treasury Department and on Capitol Hill suspect the newness of the credit, a unique wrinkle in the U.S. tax law, is one factor.

To be eligible for the credit, a taxpayer must have earned $8,000 or less in 1975 and have at least one dependent child. If married, a joint return must be filed.

The credit applies only to wages, salaries and other earned income and not, for example, to interest on savings accounts.

The credit amounts to 10 per cent of earned income up to $4,000.

Avoiding A Low Turnout

WASHINGTON—One of the things that has both political parties worried is the apathy of the American people. There is a fear that the 1976 presidential election could produce one of the lowest turnouts in recent election years.

My friend Rademacher has a solution to the problem. "Why not give everybody their flu shot on Election Day?" he said. "Then they have to come out."

"How would you do it?" I asked him.

"Simple. You have two booths—one for voting and one for the flu shot. After a person votes he gets his shot."

"Why not give him his flu shot before he votes?"

"Because," said Rademacher, "he might get sick from the shot and not want to vote."

"But what about children, and people who aren't eligible to vote?"

"They would have to show up, too, but we'd have a third booth for them. If they can prove they're too young to vote or they're not a resident of the state, they would get their flu shot without having to pull a lever for one of the presidential candidates."

"But wouldn't getting a flu shot keep a lot of people away from the polls? There are many voters who don't like to be stuck with a needle."

"I thought about that," Rademacher said, "and I think I have the answer. Anyone who votes on Election Day and receives his or her flu shot gets a free lollipop."

"A free lollipop?"

"Sure. Most people don't mind getting inoculated if the doctor or nurse gives them a free lollipop afterward."

"I think they should get a free lollipop if they vote," I said. "With the choices this year, it's going to be much more painful to vote than it is to get a flu shot."

Rademacher said, "I hadn't thought of that. It would mean two lollipops. One for voting and one for the flu shot. That could run into a lot of money."

"What difference does it make as long as you get a large turnout for the election?" I said. "Have you made the suggestion to the Democratic and Republican parties?"

"Yes, but I got a mixed reaction on it. The Democrats want everyone to get their flu shots in October, two weeks before the election."

"Why?"

"Well, the shots were Ford's idea and if a lot of people get sick from the shots they'll blame the President. They'll say, 'I'm not going to vote for a man who gave me swine flu.'"

"The Republicans," said Rademacher, "want the flu shot to be given (ital) after (ital) the election because they're also nervous about how the inoculations could affect the President. That's why I came up with Election Day as a compromise. If the people get sick, they'll already have voted so it won't affect their choice. It would be a big mistake to have swine flu decide who the next President of the United States would be."

"It's a good plan," I admitted, "and makes sense."

"The beauty of it," he said, "is that the networks could give the results of both the election and swine flu shots at the same time. ABC, CBS and

To the Editor:

As America approaches its Bicentennial, many communities are searching for examples of local history to preserve for future generations. Fortunately for the citizens of Greenville, there are many examples of buildings and sites of an historical nature, but unfortunately the citizens of Greenville are allowing these to be destroyed to enable commercial development. One recent incident showing Greenville's disinterest in renovating historic homes and buildings was the Forbes' house on the corner of Tenth and Cotanche Streets. This home was of high architectural value as a representative of a building style that is rapidly disappearing before the wave of progress.

Of course it is too late now to save the Forbes house, but, there are other houses and buildings worth preserving in the Greenville and surrounding Pitt County area. These buildings deserve to be restored and used to aid future generations, not only because of their beauty, but also because of their value as a tool to teach the history and culture of our state.

Rank And File Favor Ford

By GEORGE GALLUP
PRINCETON, N.J.—GOP challenger Ronald Reagan has more committed convention delegates than does President Ford at the present and has shown considerable strength in the popular vote in the primaries he has entered. But in terms of rank-and-file Republican support in the nation as a whole, Reagan, continues to trail the President by a wide margin and will need all the momentum he can build if he is to overtake the President in popular support in the month ahead.

The latest Gallup surveys show Ford leading Reagan by the margin of 60 to 35 per cent among persons who identify themselves as Republicans. Interviewing was conducted during the period April 9-May 3.

Primary Versus Survey Results

The results of primaries often do not reflect the vote of the nation as a whole, as measured by scientifically conducted surveys, because a candidate usually will avoid state races where he does not expect to do well. In addition, voter turnout is typically much lower in primary elections than in general elections. Furthermore, the type of voter who casts a vote in primary elections is not necessarily typical of party members in general.

Crossover Voting

Still another reason can be found in crossover voting. Critics of the present primary system point out that the selection process is contained in some states because members of one party can cross over and vote in the primary of another party.

That the crossover vote of Wallace supporters may be operating in Reagan's favor can be seen from the fact that Wallace's followers constitute the only group that gives Reagan a plurality of its vote.

However, in terms of Republican voters as a whole, as well as among voters who identify themselves as independents, the President holds a lead in showdown tests against Reagan.

Ford Leads Among GOP Voters in Each Region

In terms of the support of the nation's GOP voters (based on the last three national surveys combined), Ford leads Reagan by wide margins in the East and Midwest. The race is closer, however, in the South and West, although Ford leads in these regions as well.

Here is the question asked to determine voter attitudes toward the two Republican candidates:

"Suppose the choice for President in the Republican convention this year narrows down to Gerald Ford and Ronald Reagan. Which one would you prefer to have the Republican convention select?"

And here are the results:

FORD vs. REAGAN
	Ford	Reagan	Undecided
Republicans	60	35	5
Democrats	47	35	18
Southern Democrats	43	37	20
Democrats supporting Wallace	42	47	11
Independents	52	33	15

The following table shows the vote of Republicans for the two men by key population groups, including region:

FORD vs. REAGAN (Republican Voters Only)
	Ford	Reagan	Undecided
NATIONAL	60	35	5

Strength For Today

GOD'S TIME SCHEDULE
God always answers prayers. The discouraging thing, however, is that frequently He does not answer them according to our time schedule. Very often he does not say yes or no, but wait. This can be the hardest answer of all to endure.

John Bunyan, the great pioneer Baptist preacher, was sent to jail in England in 1660 and kept there for twelve years because he demanded the right to worship God according to the dictates of his conscience. Many times during those long years he prayed for liberty, but it looked as if God had forgotten him.

But during these twelve years Bunyan was writing books. Amid the activity of parish duties he probably never could have done this. One of these books was Pilgrim's Progress, destined to stand among the half-dozen most influential books of the western world.

Thus Bunyan became a great man and conferred blessing on the world because he was forced to abide by God's time schedule rather than his own.

Fewer Marry, More Divorcing

By ANN BLACKMAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Fewer people are getting married and more are getting divorced, according to the latest government reports, but some experts say declining marriage figures don't mean a rejection of traditional values.

"We're now seeing a passing of a peak effect of the post-World War II baby boom," he said. He said a marriage peak was reached in the early 1970s, when the bulk of the post-World War II baby-boom generation reached the early 20s, traditional marrying years.

And Arthur J. Norton, a Census Bureau analyst, suggests the figures show that many young people are postponing marriage until they are older. He said that demographer in the Census Bureau's marriage and family division, says the decrease in marriages is more likely a result of changing population patterns than a rejection of traditional values.

They are being more careful about selecting a mate than they once were. "It is a possibility that the longer one waits to marry, the more selective one is in choosing a partner," he said. "This should make marriage more viable with more of a chance of success."

The report on declining marriages followed an earlier study by the same government agency showing that the divorce rate climbed 4.6 per cent between 1974 and 1975. But that report said the rate of increase was not so great as in previous years. Between 1968 and 1972, for example, the divorce rate soared at an annual average of 11.5 per cent.

At the same time, that report showed that 41 per cent of the men and 52 per cent of the women divorced in 1975 were under age 30.

Studies of changing marriage and divorce patterns of the last few years indicate many people are taking marriage more seriously. Although some surveys indicate most people consider marriage and family life to be the most satisfying aspects of their lives, there is no longer the intense pressure to marry that there once was.

Experts say the women's movement has encouraged many women to seek careers instead of marriage. And it is more acceptable in some quarters for people to live together before they are married.

Temporarily blocked in their efforts to purge the city of slot and pin machines by a temporary restraining order by a judge in Beaufort, officials and others interested in removing the devices from public places declared today they would continue their fight on the operation of such machines in the city.

Sheriff S. A. Whitehurst announced this morning that he would start a drive on the machines at 6 p.m. this afternoon, but by early afternoon the sheriff had been added to the defendants restrained from taking such action and it appeared that all officers were barred from molesting the devices until after a hearing on the temporary restraining order.

Mayor M. K. Blount said he was wholeheartedly behind efforts to rid the city of the machines, saying the situation "has gone entirely too far."

Attorney Files Another Handwritten 'Hughes Will'

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Spokesmen for Hughes Tool Co. say they know nothing about a second purported will of the late billionaire Howard Hughes that was sealed in an envelope bearing the firm's name.

The three-page handwritten document that surfaced Tuesday was dated June 22, 1969, addressed to the Summa Corp. in care of the Clark County clerk, and delivered by mail. The return address read "Hughes Tool Co., Houston, Tex."

Summa Corp., the umbrella firm which controls the Hughes empire, was named executor of the estate.

But Summa spokesman Arelo Sederberg said in Los Angeles that the firm was not incorporated until December 1972 and that the name was not even under consideration much before then.

Sederberg said there is no connection between Summa and Hughes Tool Co. He said Hughes Tool's oil well division was sold to the public in 1972 and the remaining assets incorporated into Summa.

In Houston, Raymond Holliday, board chairman of Hughes Tool, said he knew nothing about the new document.

The envelope containing the document also held a small, handwritten note which asked that the purported will "be mail (sic) 30 days after my demise." It was signed Howard R. Hughes.

A court clerk said she turned the unopened envelope over to Summa executive Jim Cullen. It was later filed at the courthouse by William Morse, a Nevada attorney for Summa, and Wayne Williams, a trust officer of the First National Bank of Nevada, Hughes' temporary estate administrator in Nevada.

Hayes earlier set a hearing on May 21 for a will found two weeks ago in the Salt Lake City offices of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon).

Distribution of the estimated $1.5 billion to $2.5 billion estate was earmarked as follows in the new will:

"First: To all my blood relatives I leave one-twelfth of my estate.

"Second: To Hughes Medical Institute of Miami, Fla., I leave one-sixth of all my assets.

"Third: One-sixth of my estate to be divided among the University of Nevada and the University of California.

"Fourth: One-sixth of my estate to be divided among the Universities of Texas and the University of Mexico City, Mex.

"Fifth: One-twelfth of my estate to be divided among the blind and homeless children of America and to the ones with medical needs.

"Sixth: One-sixth of all my assets to be divided among 10 living American individuals, bearers of the social security account numbers — 009-22-3345, 339-55-6648, 669-88-9951, 999-11-2254, 119-33-4446, 449-66-7749, 779-99-0052, 229-44-5547 and 559-77-8850." Although the document said 10 Americans, it listed only nine names.

"Seventh: One-sixth of all my estate, I leave to all my blood relatives to put use as they wish. May this document bring contentment and peace of mind to all."

NBC could go on at eight o'clock at night and say, 'On the basis of our computers with three percent of the vote in, President Ford has won in Maine by 75,000 votes. Twenty-five thousand of these voters, according to our sample precincts, now have 101 deg. fever and 35,000 won't be able to go to work tomorrow.'

"Fantastic. The audience will stay with television just to find out how the flu shots turned out," I said.

"Right," Rademacher said. "It will give the presidential election a real shot in the arm."

Research Report Given Seminar

Two graduate students in the East Carolina University Department of Chemistry presented results of their research at a special departmental seminar program May 11.

The students are Debra Gray of Winterville and Kenneth Stroup of Cherryville. Gray's presentation concerned chemical compound studies in a search for a non-steroidal pregnancy-inhibiting agent. Stroup discussed atomic oxygen reactions of enol ethers with oxygen atoms.

The findings reported today are based on the latest surveys conducted between April 9 and May 3. In-home personal interviews were conducted with a total sample of 4,682 adults, 18 and older, in more than 300 scientifically selected localities across the nation. Of the total sample, 970 were Republicans.

000 minus 10 per cent of earned income between $4,000 and $8,000.

It would work this way. A married person supporting a family of three on $3,300 wouldn't have to pay any taxes, probably wouldn't have had any withheld from his or her paycheck and normally would not have to file a return.

With the earned income credit, the person would receive a government check for $330, but would have to file a return to apply for it.

Eligible taxpayers who haven't filed a return can still do so even though the filing deadline is past. Those who filed but neglected to claim the credit can file an amended tax return.

Elvis Keeps Popularity Two Decades

By WILLIAM D. LAFFLER
United Press International
More than 20 years have slipped by since Elvis Presley first appeared on the musical scene.

Feel old? Don't. Elvis has held up all these years and his records continue to sell, primarily because he made an indelible impression on a whole generation at a time when musical tastes began to change.

Presley was in his late teens when he began recording for the small Sun label in Memphis in 1954. There still was a trace of baby fat in his cheeks, but his voice, while rather thin, had sex appeal.

Despite his youth and inexperience, Presley already had developed a technique that in only a short time was to make him the king of rock and roll, the idol of the bobby soxers and the bane of the jealous husband.

The pristine Presley may be heard on "The Sun Sessions" (RCA APM1-1675), a collection of 18 numbers which Elvis recorded before his leap to fame.

All of the numbers are worth many replays, but especially good are "Milkcow Blues Boogie" and "Baby Let's Play House." On these tunes Elvis uses the quavering voice that later enhanced the lyrics of "Hound Dog" and "Blue Suede Shoes."

"I Forgot to Remember to Forget" is a country tune that Elvis handles well, indicating he could have made some headway in that field. And "I'll Never Let You Go" basically is a slow-tempo song that assured Presley he could, years later, make a hit with such a nonrock tune as "Love Me Tender." At this point, however, the slow tempos betray Presley's tender age.

Presley received terrific backing from Scotty Moore on electric guitar, Bill Black on bass and D.J. Fontana on drums.

Albert King, unlike Presley, didn't become an overnight sensation. He had to wait a long time before he became accepted, even though he started a year before Elvis.

Like Presley, King came from Mississippi. And he was dirt poor, so poor that he had to make a guitar out of a cigar box. But he had a good voice and he was confident he would make it, and he did. Today King is as welcome on the college campus as on stage.

His latest record, "Truckload of Lovin'" (Utopia BUL1-1387), will endear him to his rapidly growing following.

In addition to the album title tune, King sings seven songs, among them "Cold Women With Warm Hearts," "Nobody Wants a Loser," "Gonna Make It Somehow," "Cadillac Assembly Line," "I'm Your Mate" and "Sensation, Communication Together."

King's blues singing is cool. He has clean diction that makes every word understood, and a great sense of timing and phrasing.

Boots Randolph's roots also are in the south, but his fame lies in his ability as an instrumentalist. Normally a saxophone is out of place in a country setting, but Randolph has won a tremendous following among devotees of the Nashville beat, beginning years ago with his rollicking "Yakety Sax."

His latest album, "Party Boots" (Monument PZG 34082), a two-LP set, moves in many directions. Numbers range from "Spanish Harlem" to "Georgia On My Mind."

Church Women Plan Yard Sale

The Christian Women's Fellowship of the First Christian Church will have a yard sale with all families participating Saturday.

Mrs. J. D. Wilson Jr., projects chairman, stated there will be many items on sale including books, records, pictures, dishes, furniture, clothing, house plants, attic and closet treasures.

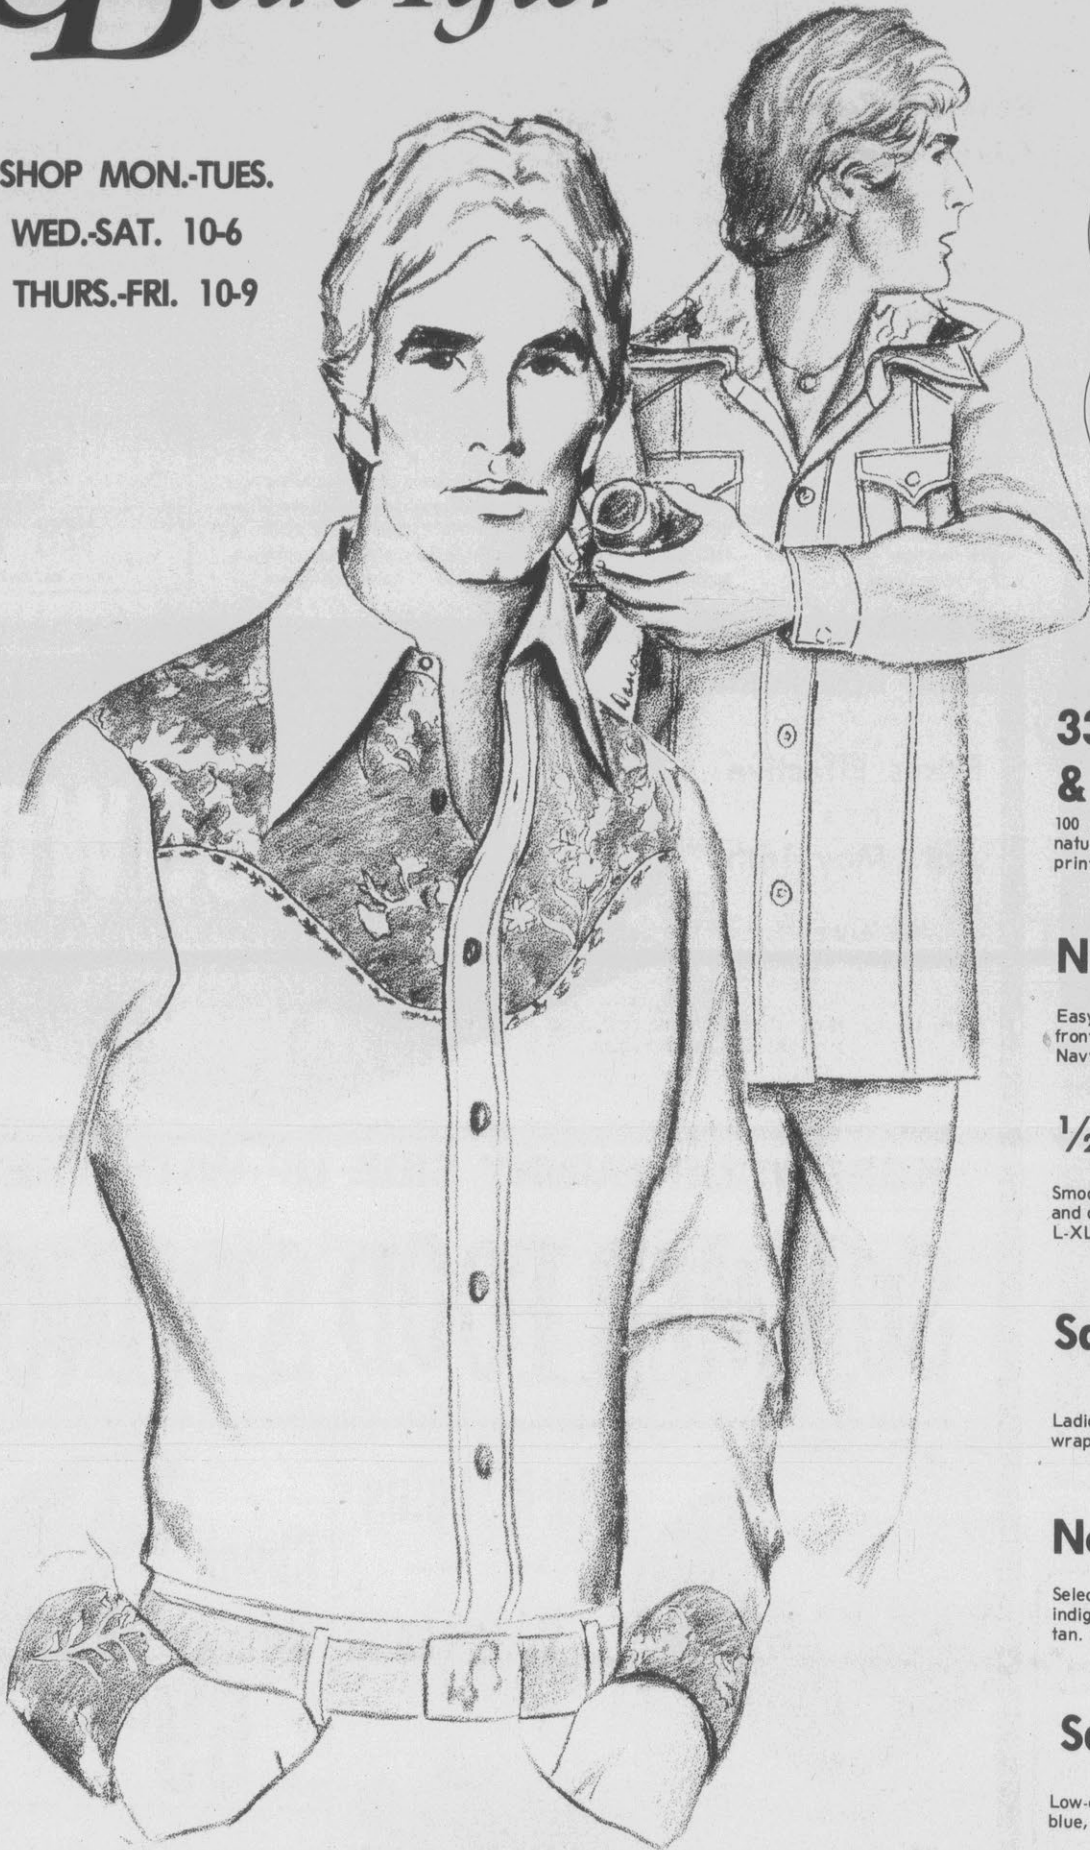

Families will have sales from 9:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. on the grounds of the church, which is located at 520 E. Greenville Blvd. The rain date is Saturday, May 22.

Hot dogs and drinks will be sold from 11:30 a.m. until 1:30 p.m. on the back lawn.

The public is invited and proceeds will go the building fund.

Renaissance In Stained Glass Design

By GLENNE CURRIE

United Press International
The medieval art of stained glass is undergoing a renaissance in the United States.

A historic art form in Europe's Gothic cathedrals, it has long intrigued artists by producing effects with light seen through glass and paint. A rebirth of public interest in recent years has led to establishment of a few manufacturers in the United States.

One company was organized in 1969 by three New Yorkers rapping about their common dissatisfaction with their jobs. They pooled their talents and money to set up a studio in a tenement basement in the Manhattan borough of New York City. Businessman Bruce Berkman became company president, salesman Berney Harris took charge of sales and marketing, and John Nussbaum, a painter and stained-glass artist for 20 years, became the artist-designer.

"I visited Europe and was so impressed with the glass I saw there that I came back and looked for an opportunity to get into glass," Nussbaum said in an interview. "I didn't find a school here that taught it and had to apprentice myself to a studio for four years."

Now he trains apprentices himself. Several are art students earning a living while learning a craft.

"I think our work here is unique," Nussbaum said. "We use all the same materials they did back in the 10th century, the same fused paint, although we have some shortcuts they didn't know about. I think what we've done is to keep alive this traditional painted glass. Today most of the glass being practiced is more of the modern variety."

"The number of people who can do the traditional glass are few and far between. When I started out there were maybe 25 or 30 who could do a traditional window. Now there are maybe three or four, including myself."

He still does occasional restoration work but turns down many requests because of lack of time.

"We're doing close to 35 or 40 new pieces a year," he said, "and each one takes a lot of time."

Nussbaum adapts old designs and creates new ones. His subjects include nature and adaptations of Tenniel's original illustrations for the "Alice in Wonderland" books.

Most works are designed to be hung in a window or mounted on a wooden stand that can be backlit. Some are free-standing diptychs and triptychs.

"I always make a handmade piece first, which will take from six to 10 days. And then, once the sample has been made and approved, I break up the work into components for efficient production. If I'm working on an original idea, it might take several weeks before I get to the handmade sample."

Nussbaum says consumer interest in early 12th and 13th century replicas is increasing, but the company's most popular works are 19th century designs.

New pieces include a limited edition Bicentennial medallion with four panels showing Independence Hall, the destruction of the King George III statue in Bowling Green in lower Manhattan, the U.S. frigate Constellation, and Washington reading the Declaration of Independence to his troops in 1776. Like the company's other works, it is sold through about 500 outlets, including museum and library sales shops, department stores, craft and gift shops and Glass Masters own retail store in New York City.

The company's first major break came in 1970 when its partners talked New York's Metropolitan Museum of Art into letting them produce a stained glass piece for the museum's sales shop that tied in with the museum's medieval art exhibit.

Study Pays Off With Income

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Statistics supplied by the National Consumer Finance Association back up the widespread belief that the greater the education, the higher the income. It says that during 1974 the chief wage earner in 15.7 per cent of the households had completed college and the family income was 51.8 per cent above that for all households. In 12.1 per cent of households the head failed to complete grade school and the mean income was 43.6 per cent below that of all households.

Success Marks 3 Writers in Finnish Family

HELSENKI, Finland (UPI) — Few families in the world can boast of producing three successful authors, but one Finnish family can. Dr. Ilkka Koivisto, director of the Korkeasaari Zoological Gardens in Helsinki (the only zoo in Finland), his attractive wife, Sesse and their 11-year-old daughter, Aura, are receiving triple acclaim for their recently published books.

Dr. Koivisto writes about the animals of the zoo, many of endangered species. His wife's best seller, titled "Our Living Room is a Zoo," is an amusing account of life in the Koivisto home, located on the zoo's grounds, and the laughter and tears shared by the family in carrying for cub animals that are ill or have been shunned by their mothers. Young Aura's "Wrinkled Leo and His Friends" is her second popular children's book published, written about a thousand basset hound.

Thunder Due Heated Air

HOUSTON (UPI) — Thunder is the crash and rumble associated with lightning and is caused by explosive expansion of air heated by the stroke, according to the National Weather Service. When lightning is close by, the thunder is a sharp explosive sound. More distant strokes produce the familiar growl and rumble of thunder, a result of sound being refracted and modified by the turbulent environment of a thunderstorm. Because the speed of light is about a million times that of sound, the distance (in miles) to a lightning stroke can be estimated by counting the number of seconds between lightning and thunder and dividing by five.

Calcutta Nun To Be Keynoter

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. (AP) — A nun from Calcutta, India, will be one of the keynote speakers at the 41st International Eucharistic Congress here Aug. 1-8. She is Mother Theresa, founder of the Missionaries of Charity who responded to a call nearly 30 years ago to work with the poor in Calcutta. She entered the Calcutta slums in her blue-trimmed, white cotton sari that would become the habit of the order she founded in 1950. Her order has grown to nearly a thousand sisters who operate 80 homes for the poor in 13 countries.

Lightning In Odd Forms

HOUSTON (UPI) — Lightning is a secondary electrification effect produced by thunderstorm systems and comes in many forms, according to meteorologists with the National Weather Service.

Streak lightning, a single or multiple line from cloud to ground, is the form most frequently seen. Forked lightning shows the conductive channel. Sheet lightning is a shapeless flash covering a broad area, often seen in cloud-to-cloud discharges.

Heat lightning is seen along the horizon during hot weather and is believed to be the reflection of lightning occurring beyond the horizon. Ribbon lightning is streak lightning whose conductive channel is moved by high winds, making successive strokes seem to parallel one another. Beaded lightning appears as an interrupted stroke.

But the most interesting and controversial form is ball lightning. It appears as a luminous doughnut-shaped globe which hurls from cloud to earth, maneuvers at high speeds, rolls along structures or hangs suspended in the air.

Texas Has Big Share Of Fuels

HOUSTON (UPI) — According to the Department of Interior, Texas accounts for nearly one-third of the total estimated crude oil and natural gas reserves lying within the United States or its territories.

Texas contains more crude oil, natural gas and natural gas liquids than any state in the country. When proved crude oil and natural gas liquid reserves are totaled, the state accounts for 34 per cent of the nation's supply of liquid hydrocarbons.

Nearly one-third of all U.S. drilling was in Texas, with 10,000 wells drilled in 1974.

Boy's Tree House Built Without Relying On Tree

By NANCY BROWER
The Asheville Times
Written for
The Associated Press
ASHEVILLE (AP) — A sign that reads "No Girls Allowed." Chocolate cookies and a green kool drink. Superman comic books. A best friend. A dog. All are things a boy needs if he has a tree house. He also needs a tree. Or does he?

Scott Capps of Asheville's Oakley section has a dandy tree house built without support of trunk or limb—a "free standing tree house," according to his daddy, C. O. "Bud" Capps Jr., who constructed the house on stilts tree-top tall.

Six-year-old Scott, a first grader, saw a tree house at a state park when he and his family vacationed in Georgia last summer.

It captured his imagination and he talked of nothing else. Parental explanations that they had no suitable tree didn't dim the boy's vision of his own high up hideaway.

It must have been meant for Scott to have his dream house for his dad found a blueprint for a "treeless tree house" in a do-it-yourself encyclopedia.

A few weeks later, Scott's mother was hanging curtains in Scott's cozy treeless tree house, which his dad had fashioned with a chain saw, scraps of building materials he had on hand, and $25 worth of new lumber.

It has an antique door from an old railroad depot, paneled windows, "driftwood" paneling, vinyl floor covering and it soon will be wired for electricity.

Capps, a switchman for Southern Railroad, obtained an old switchman's lantern which serves in the meantime.

With all those amenities, Scott called a halt to further parental intervention. The rest of the furnishings are a small picnic table, a rocking chair, a stool, a comic book corner and a wastebasket for candy wrappers.

Access to the tree house is by ladder-like steps, almost impossible for adults but sized just right for little boys and big dogs like Scott's German shepherd, Champ.

Scott had his heart set on a red, white and blue "bicentennial" color scheme, but his parents drew the line. The hideaway would have to match their house, and it does.

Scott and his cousin, Jay Beachboard, 7, a neighbor, are sticklers for the house rules: "No girls allowed."

What if the girls have cookies, they are asked. "I still wouldn't let them in," says Scott.

Jay is a little more practical. "I'd say, 'give me a cookie and you can come in.' Then when they gave me the cookie I still wouldn't let them in."

BEACH CLEANUP . . . About 30 Pitt County Four-Wheel Drive Association members and their families spent Sunday afternoon picking up trash from Bogue Inlet to Emerald Isle. "Technically, this is a state park area and therefore belongs to all of us. We use it so we feel we ought to do our part cleaning it up," said Association member Barney Barrett. Crime Prevention Officer Is Hired GRIFTON — The Grifton Town Board hired Dennis Honeycutt as a new Crime Prevention Officer for Grifton Tuesday night. Honeycutt will replace Officer Joey Herbert and will begin his duties May 31.

The board set two public hearings to be held May 14. The first public hearing will be held at 7 p.m. to discuss planning public use of revenue sharing. The second hearing will begin at 7:30 p.m. to discuss the assessment role of paving Casey Street.

The board accepted a bid from W.A. Gaskins Company to pave Tucker and Smith Streets. The Paving project will be funded by Community Development funds.

Bids were accepted for construction of bathrooms as part of the Housing Rehabilitation project. The project is funded by Community Development funds.

In other business the board: -Voted to clean canals in Lenoir County from Contentnea Drive to Contentnea Creek.

-Appointed Nan Smith as custodian of Grifton's public records.

Changes For 2 Colleges

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—Two small Raleigh colleges have undergone changes at the top this week. St. Mary's College has found a president and Shaw University has lost one.

Dr. Archie Hargraves announced Tuesday that he was resigning at Shaw, effective June 30. He has been president there since 1971.

Both Hargraves and Shaw trustee chairman Chauncey Edwards said the resignation was not forced. The college has undergone financial difficulties in recent years.

Hargraves said that he had done the job he was hired to do, reducing the school's annual deficit from $1.9 million when he took over to $53,000 this year. But he said he had no plans beyond finishing the year at Shaw.

St. Mary's, a two-year Episcopal school for women, announced the selection of John T. Rice as its new president. Rice is currently dean of student affairs at Sweet Briar College in Sweet Briar, Va. He replaces Dr. Frank Pisani.

Candidates For Degrees

CHAPEL HILL — The following Pitt County students were among degree candidates for the 1976 spring graduation at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill:

Ernest Cordell Avery, Robert Barrett, Roger Billica, Sally Boyette, Jeffrey Cargile, Rebecca Clark, Joseph Cox, Jr., William Cox, Jr., Frances Daugherty, Debbie Gilchrist, Robert Hudson, William Lee, Jr., Mark Miller, Mitchell Reep, Aaron Spain, Jane Stafford, Karen Tripp, William Wells, Albert Will and Myra Brietman, of Greenville.

Other area students include the following: Linda Corey, Stokes; Debra Ellis, Lu Leonard, Dona O'Conner, Bobbi Lou Schwatter, and Karrin Whatley of Farmville; Warren Kinlaw, Jr., Franklin Hart, and Charles Babington of Ayden; Sharon Hooks, Jeanette Nelson, Jan Paget, and Wayne Clark of Grifton; and David Hodges of Grimesland.

Business School Winner Named

Roy William Rogers of Williamston is the winner of the 1976 Fieldcrest Foundation Management Award given annually to the outstanding senior in management in the School of Business, East Carolina University.

The award which carries with it a $200 prize was presented by J. Melvin Moore, division vice president of Fieldcrest.

Rogers is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Rogers Jr. of Williamston. He is a member of Beta Gamma Sigma, the business honor society; has been active in the Air Force ROTC for four years and has received the Distinguished Military Cadet award. He has also been active in the Campus Crusade for Christ, interdenominational Christian student organization.

Mizell Resigns Commerce Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wilmer Mizell, former major league pitcher and Republican congressman from North Carolina from 1969 to 1974, has resigned as assistant secretary of commerce for economic development.

The White House made the announcement Tuesday.

Mizell is from Winston-Salem. His baseball nickname was Vinegar Bend, from the town in Alabama where he was born.

How Tar Heel Senators, Representatives Voted

By ROLL CALL REPORT
WASHINGTON — Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes April 29 through May 5.

House
JOBS AND HEALTH
Rejected, 153 for and 230 against, an amendment to eliminate $50 million in budget authority to launch a national health insurance program and $50 million for the proposed "Humphrey-Hawkins" jobs program. The amendment was offered to H Con Res 611, the resolution setting fiscal 1977 budget authority. The measure was later passed and sent to conference with the Senate.

The Humphrey-Hawkins bill seeks to reduce unemployment to three percent within four years by promoting private jobs and making government an employer of last resort. Humphrey-Hawkins and several national health insurance bills rest in committee with chances of becoming law in fiscal 1977. If eventually appropriated, the $50 million outlays would provide the necessary start-up money.

Although some debate centered on the technicalities of budget procedures, the vote largely reflected members' sentiment toward these major social and economic programs.

Rep. Delbert Latta (R-Ohio), a supporter of the amendment to delete the funds, said, "I do not believe the American people want" either bill. "Certainly they do not want national health insurance," he said, adding: "Also there is this Humphrey-Hawkins bill . . . The Socialist concept is deeply ingrained in this bill."

Rep. Thomas O'Neill (D-Mass.), an opponent, said, "For us to leave out of the budget resolution funds to address the most crucial problems faced by our people—unemployment and health insurance—would be one of the most irresponsible actions this House could possibly take."

Reps. L. H. Fountain (D-2), David Henderson (D-3), Ike Andrews (D-4), Stephen Neal (D-5), W. G. Hefner (D-8), James Martin (R-9), James Broyhill (R-10) and Roy Taylor (D-11) voted "yea."

Reps. Richardson Preyer (D-6) and Charles Rose (D-7) voted "nay."

Reps. Walter Jones (D-1) did not vote.
DAY-CARE Overrode, 301 for and 101 against. President Ford's veto of the conference report of a bill (HR 9803) whose main provision was to authorize $125 million to help states comply with tougher federal standards for day-care centers. The Senate later failed to override the veto (below), thus killing the bill.

Federally-supported day-care centers take care of children while their mothers work. The tougher standards deal with factors such as structural safety and staffing quality. Advocates praise the centers for enabling low income mothers to work and thus get off of welfare. Detractors question whether the federal government should get involved in the parent-child relationship.

One supporter of the override,

Rep. James Corman (D-Calif.), said: "A rejection of this conference report would be costly in terms of the care and safety of young children and the savings which would result from the employment of welfare mothers."

An opponent of the bill, Rep. Robert Michel (R-Ill.), said: "The federal government has no business setting such regulations for neighborhood day-care centers in Peoria." Jones, Fountain, Henderson, Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Rose, Hefner and Taylor voted "yea." Martin and Broyhill voted "nay."

RECREATION Adopted, 248 for and 147 against, an amendment prohibiting the use of federal conservation and outdoor recreation grants for enclosing swimming pools and ice skating rinks. It was attached to a bill (HR 12234) extending the Land and Water Conservation Fund Act of 1965, later passed and sent to conference with the Senate.

The fund finances acquisition of National Park Service land as well as grants to help states and localities develop park and outdoor recreation areas. It is comprised primarily of revenue from the leasing of federal outercontinental shelf oil and gas resources.

Rep. Keith Sebelius (R-Kan.), the sponsor, said that diverting part of the fund to projects enclosing pools and rinks would prompt "a cascade of requests and pressures for further use of the fund to satisfy the overwhelming demand for more indoor recreation facilities."

Opponents said they wanted to remedy geographical discrimination. Rep. Jonathan Bingham (D-N.Y.) said: "If the fund is going to be used . . . to permit the building of a swimming pool in . . . Florida, where it can be in the open air, then it is unfair not to allow funds to be used in a state such as mine where a swimming pool can be used only for a few months of the year if it is in the open air."

Jones, Fountain, Neal, Rose, Hefner, Martin and Broyhill voted "yea." Henderson, Andrews, Preyer and Taylor voted "nay."

Senate
DAY-CARE Failed, 60 for and 35 against, to override President Ford's veto of the conference report of a bill (HR 9803) authorizing $125 million to help states meet new federal standards for child day-care centers (above). The vote, which was three short of the two-thirds majority needed to override, killed the legislation.

Sen. Walter Mondale (D-Minn.), a supporter of the override, said: "Unless additional funds are provided, meeting standards will require reducing services. And reducing services will risk driving tens of thousands of working families back onto the welfare rolls, increasing federal, state and local costs."

An opponent of the override, Sen. Carl Curtis (R-Neb.), said: "We in Washington do not have the ability to select a single standard that will be appropriate to the needs of children in Minnesota, New York, Nebraska and the other 47 states . . . Our citizens realize that Washington does not know all the answers and we should begin to realize the fact ourselves."

Jesse Helms (R) voted "nay." RANGELAND Adopted, 41 for and 39 against, an amendment to provide for five-year grazing permits on federal rangeland in the West and to allow permit-holders to pay up to half their grazing fees in the form of improvements to rangeland. The amendment was proposed to S255, a bill to establish a 30-year, $900 million program to upgrade rangeland controlled by the Bureau of Land Management. The bill was later passed and sent to the House.

Most grazing permits now are issued to ranchers on a yearly basis, with grazing fees assessed on the basis of the number of animals using the rangelands. A supporter, Sen. Howard Cannon (D-Nev.), said ranchers holding grazing permits "are vitally interested in the condition and capacity of the ranges they use," and the amendment would give them incentive to invest in improvements such as fencing.

An opponent, Sen. Floyd Haskell (D-Col.), said present laws adequately shield ranchers from losing grazing permits and compensate ranchers who improve the federal land.

Helms voted "yea." Morgan voted "nay."

MISSILES ASSEMBLED— These Air Launched Cruise Missiles are being assembled in Boeing's Seattle facilities. They will be flown during the current ALCM flight testing program over the White Sands Missile Range in New Mexico. The missiles are designed to be carried by long-range bombers of the Strategic Air Command. (AP Wirephoto)

Spirit Of 1876

WASHINGTON (UPI) — What a difference a century makes! In 1876, when the American people observed their Centennial, there was none of today's hoopla about what happened in 1776. John Maass, information officer of the city of Philadelphia, in a catalog for the Smithsonian Institution's new exhibition, "1876," draws the comparison. He writes:

"In 1976, we are celebrating the Bicentennial with a great deal of Early America make-believe—dressing up as Paul Revere or Betsy Ross, playing the fife or firing off old muskets.

"The generation of 1876 had a less sentimental view of 1776. They thought of the 18th century as The Bad Old Times, and they gloried in their country that had come so far since.

"The poster for Philadelphia's Fourth of July celebration of 1876 was a graphic image of these convictions.

"On the left was a ragged band in front of dismal log cabins, with the caption, '1776 — Three Millions of Colonists on a Strip By the Sea,' on the right stood a stalwart group in a new town, with the legend 'Forty Millions of Freemen Ruling From Ocean to Ocean.'"

Concludes Maass: "The spirit of 1876 was part of the universal Victorian spirit of optimism. It meant pride in the present, and absolute confidence in an even greater future."

Critic Claims CIA Withholding Vital Memoranda

By DONALD H. DAVIS
Associated Press Writer
ATLANTA (AP)—The Central Intelligence Agency is withholding 649 pages of memoranda detailing illegal CIA activities, documents "known in the CIA as the family jewels," according to a leading critic of U.S. intelligence agencies.

Morton H. Halperin said in a talk Tuesday that if his request for the material under the Freedom of Information Act is unsuccessful, as he expects it will be, he plans to file suit to obtain the documents.

Halperin, head of an American Civil Liberties Union group focusing on national security agencies, said the documents were collected in 1973 when James Schlesinger, then head of the CIA, learned that the agency had suppressed evidence connected with the break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

"When Mr. Schlesinger heard about that, he sent a memo to all present and past employees of the CIA in which he said this was the illegal suppression of evidence and this would not happen again in the future."

"Then he said, 'If any of you know of any other illegal activities, unconstitutional activities or activities that may violate the charter of the CIA which occurred in the past, I want you to bring it directly to my attention; Within 10 days, Mr. Schlesinger received 649 pages of memoranda. That document is known in the CIA as the family jewels," Halperin said.

Halperin, whose own telephone was wiretapped during and after his service as an aide to the National Security Council, said the evidence amassed by congressional committees shows the abuses of intelligence agencies were not "minor aberrations" but systematic programs carried on for up to 25 years by agencies "that were telling us they were protecting us from foreign spies and foreign agents."

He said the FBI's original justification for its surveillance of Martin Luther King Jr. was that the civil rights leader had "an associate who the FBI believed to be a secret member of the Communist Party."

Even though he said the FBI never proved that allegation its campaign against King continued after he was assassinated in 1968. "They assumed,"

Halperin said, "even after he had been killed his alleged association with a secret communist justified carrying on operations against him."

CIA officials, Halperin said, for 20 years opened letters to and from Russia and other unnamed countries—including letters by and to American citizens—after telling postal authorities they merely wanted to copy down addresses on the envelopes as leads.

"The postal authorities said 'OK.' They set up a facility where CIA agents would work in a room where there would always be a postal clerk, they would copy the names and the mail would be sent forward," Halperin said.

"Having set this up, the CIA then proceeded to bribe the postal clerk. For 20 years, the CIA paid bribes to employees of the postal service so he would turn his back and let them take the mail out, open it, photograph and read it."

"It turned out," he added, "that not only the American people... believed that the mails were inviolate and that first-class mail was not opened, but the Russians believed it.

"They had faith in the American constitutional system and therefore they occasionally used the U.S. mail, confident in the knowledge that the crazy Americans had a constitution and could not open the mail."

As a result, Halperin quoted a CIA official as saying, "occasionally a Russian wrote something interesting in a letter and we read it."

Underground Heat Tapped

BESSEMER CITY, N.C. (AP) — Edgar H. Goff heats his real estate office with warmth drawn from rocks nearly 200 feet beneath the back door.

To create his unusual heating system, Goff sank a well.

"The farther down you go, the warmer water gets," he said. "You're moving closer to the center of the earth. So, I thought, what's wrong with drilling a well and bringing up some of this heat from the earth?"

However, an earth scientist at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte, Dr. Sam Swanson, said it isn't necessarily so that the water gets warmer the further down you go. Dr. Swanson doubted whether there would be appreciable difference in the temperature of water 10 feet down or 180 feet down, considering the ground formation in this area.

Water temperature in Goff's well was not given, but the main thing, apparently, is that his idea works.

Goff asked engineers, miners and contractors about his idea. They all said it could work.

He went ahead with his plan and four months ago flipped the switch on his earth-born heater.

The water down at the bottom of the 180-foot-deep, 6-inch wide well is drawn to the surface by an electrical pump. Then it runs through a heat pump, which is a warmth extracting device combining pressure and electricity to both heat and cool buildings. In winter the heat pump uses the well-warmed water to heat air, which is blown out into the building. In summer, the heat pump cools air in the building, still using the well water as its operating medium.

Goff says its costs about $1.15 a day to heat the 1,550 square foot building on a cold day.

The only additions to his earth-based heater are a ventilation fan in the attic and some backup electric spaceheaters in the event a pump breaks down. The system cost $4,000.

Alumni Award To Carl Hicks

RALEIGH — North Carolina State University's Alumni Association Friday presented its top awards to veteran State Treasurer Edwin Gill and five other leaders.

One of the five award recipients is Carl T. Hicks of Walstonburg, who has served as president of the Flue-Cured Tobacco Stabilization Corporation since it was organized in 1946. He was chosen Outstanding Agriculture Alumnus by faculty of the School of Agriculture and Life Sciences. Hicks, 77 earned his degree at NCSU in 1922.

Selected For June Institute

Miss Edwina Gladden Lee of Fairfield is one of 16 teachers in North Carolina selected by the State Department of Education to participate in a French Institute to be held June 13-23 at Lee's-McRae College in Banner Elk.

Miss Lee is a teacher at Mattamuskeet School in Hyde County and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William W. Lee, Jr. of Greenville.

Paul VI Gave 'Face Lift' To College Of Cardinals

By VICTOR L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Writer
VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI has given an historic face lift to the Sacred College of Cardinals, reflecting his steady efforts to extend greater recognition and say to Roman Catholics in the Third World.

When 19 prelates, including Archbishop William Baum of Washington, are elevated to the purple in a secret consistory on May 24, Europeans will lose their majority in the exclusive body that elects popes.

It was only 16 years ago that Pope John XXIII named the first black African cardinal, Laurean Cardinal Rugambwa of Dar es Salaam, Tanzania.

Now there are seven black African cardinals.

Ten of the 19 new cardinals come from Asia, Africa and Latin America, giving the Third World 43 representatives among the 118 cardinals who are under 80 years of age and thus eligible to vote for a pope in a conclave.

"The Roman Catholic Church is ahead of other international bodies, including the United Nations," said one Vatican official, a European. "The Third World may have the votes in the U.N. General Assembly, but not the vetoes in the Security Council where the power rests."

Greater representation does not necessarily mean that the Third World countries will decide the election of the next pope. It is believed they would have difficulty getting together as a solid bloc.

The betting is still heavily on the next pontiff being an Italian, despite Italy's slipping strength in the Sacred College.

But Vatican observers agree that Pope Paul has changed the face of the Sacred College, rejuvenating and internationalizing an institution once dominated by Italians, many of them elderly.

Pope Paul has been pushing the church's missionary work in the face of what he has admitted to be a declining feeling for religion in the world. He named the new cardinals from six continents — four from Africa, five from North and South America, two from Asia, seven from Europe and one from Oceania.

The new lineup gives Europeans 58 members eligible to vote for a pope — or less than a majority for the first time since cardinals began electing popes in the 12th century.

Italy still has the largest single group — 36 — but eight are too old to vote.

The United States is next with 12, although one is over 80.

Given the distribution of Roman Catholics in the world, the new lineup in the sacred college seemed inevitable, but the change was gradual. "We have been moving toward a reality," said a priest involved in missionary work at the Vatican.

According to Vatican statistics, some 366 million, or more than half, of the world's 695 million Roman Catholics live in Asia, Africa or Latin America. And by the end of the century, they are expected to greatly outnumber Catholics in the West.

Beyond the selection of cardinals, the Vatican under Pope Paul has been embarked on an attempt to localize the church in the Third World, removing the vestiges of European colonial rule.

In Africa, the pontiff has been appointing native prelates to head black African dioceses. When Portugal pulled out of Angola last year, the Portuguese bishop relinquished his post to a native black African.

The new cardinal from Senegal, Hyacinthe Thiandoum, was appointed the first-ever black bishop of Dakar in 1962, shortly after the African country achieved its independence from France.

In another turn, a majority of the new cardinals have pastoral duties as opposed to working in the Curia, the Vatican's central administrative body.

Jaime L. Sin, the archbishop of Manila, who at 47 will be the youngest member of the Sacred College, in the past has battled with the martial law regime of president Ferdinand Marcos.

By contrast, the new Hungarian primate, Laszlo Lekai, has maintained good relations with Communist Hungarian authorities, according to sources in Budapest. He has contributed to the improvement of relations with Hungary, strained for many years when the late Jozsef Cardinal Mindszenty, a staunch anti-Communist, was Hungarian primate.

HEIRLOOMS

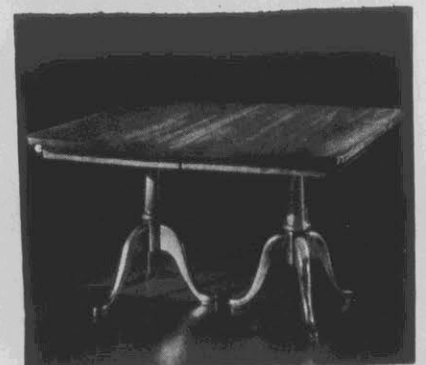

Authentic Reproductions

The design artistry and skilled woods craftsmanship lavished on each masterpiece bearing the famed Craftique signature have long maintained our reputation as one of America's most respected makers of fine furniture. There are reasons for this. When reproductions are created, in-depth research is undertaken to assure total authenticity. Since many of today's furniture manufacturing techniques were not even available to craftsmen of centuries ago, Craftique reproductions are often superior in many respects to the originals. Quality woods and other components are selected for full compatibility with each style . . . in terms of rich graining, texture and strength . . . then lustrously finished. A serene statement of quiet luxury . . . the very essence of impeccable taste . . . furniture by Craftique will be much appreciated in your family for generations to come.

Children's Fish Rodeo

WASHINGTON, N.C. — In addition to the previously announced Bass Fishing Tournament to be held in Washington on Saturday, there will also be a children's fishing rodeo and a sailing event.

From 10 a.m. until at least 4 p.m. Saturday, the children's fishing rodeo will be open to all area young people under 16. The event will be held at the City Pond behind the Washington power plant. Five fish have been tagged by the N.C. Wildlife Commission. Prizes will be given for those catching these five as well as for the largest and the smallest fish caught.

Contestants will be required to use bamboo fishing poles only, and bait will be provided. Children are to bring their own poles.

The third Saturday event is the Pamlico Sailing Club Race for sailing yachts in Class A, B and C. The race will begin at 10 a.m. at Core Point off Bath, and is scheduled for a fishing point either at Channel Marker 16 off Whichard's Beach or at Channel Marker 14 east of the railroad bridge.

STOCK TALK
NEW YORK (AP) — Many men currently find it just as easy to discuss finance with a woman as with a man, according to Myrna Liebowitz, president of the Women Stock Brokers Assn.

"It wasn't like that 10 years ago," says Miss Liebowitz, when "men didn't want to talk about stocks and bonds with a woman."

'Wonder Woman' Syndrome Risky

CHICAGO (UPI) — Falls are the only type of accident more common to women than men, says Lois Winterberg, manager of the National Safety Council.

Miss Winterberg, head of the council's women's department, says most accidents happen to women at home, and 57 per cent of all fatal falls involve women.

"The 'Wonder Woman' syndrome of combining a home, career and community activities can lead to fatigue, stress and accidents," she said.

She said women's fashions and their shorter stature are partly to blame:

"A common household mishap is what I call the 'pantyhose pratfall.' Stocking feet, especially if the hose are made of slick synthetics, are the slipperiest of all."

Miss Winterberg warns women against doing housework in flared pants or long hostess gowns. Both can be dangerous if too long and worn at inappropriate times.

"Getting your shoe caught in a pants hem while ascending or descending stairs could spell double disaster if you have a child in your arms."

Women's shorter stature leads them to take chances most men would never have to take, she said:

"Women and makeshift ladders are inseparable, according to many cartoonists and television situation-comedy writers."

She urges women to use a step stool or fully opened step ladder with the spreaders straight and locked.

"Parcel out or cut down on household tasks that could lead to falls."

"Take time to see where you're going. Don't walk 'blind' carrying too big a load of groceries, laundry, garbage, etc. ... especially on stairways. Try to walk instead of run places. Don't rumble around a dark house."

'Bottle Fever' In Bicentennial

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Bottle Fever" is rising in the Bicentennial search for the six oldest or most unusual American-made glass containers. Thousands of Americans are entering rare bottles in the nationwide competition, reports the Glass Container Manufacturers Institute.

"We have discovered several dozen bottles of great age or rarity," says Kenneth Wilson, director of collections at the Henry Ford Museum who is overseeing the search.

GCMI is offering owners of the six winning bottles an all expense paid trip to the Jamestown, Va., Glasshouse, site of America's first factory industry.

FLAG DAY

CHICAGO (AP) — Flag Day, June 14, was first officially observed in 1877 to celebrate the 100th anniversary of the selection of the flag, according to "World Book Encyclopedia."

Congress requested all public buildings to fly the flag on June 14th of that year. Suggestions to make Flag Day an annual event followed.

Ray Stevens Is Moving Into Nashville TV

RAY STEVENS will become part of Nashville's blossoming television industry with a 90-minute pilot which he hopes will evolve into a musical-variety series. (AP Wirephoto)

By JOE EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Versatile Ray Stevens, winner of a Grammy award this year for his arrangement of "Misty," will become part of Nashville's blossoming television industry in August.

Details are being worked out, but tentative plans call for Stevens to take a 90-minute pilot Aug. 17. It will be a musical-variety show which Stevens hopes will evolve into a series.

"Nashville is just on the threshold of a television boom as far as nationally syndicated programs from here are concerned," he said in an interview at his Music Row publishing house.

"From what I hear, there's going to be a lot more television done from here in the near future. Television is going to be the ultimate exposure; it could be either good or bad for me, but I'm optimistic it will be good."

Stevens, who had his own show as Andy Williams' summer replacement in 1970, said he plans to aim the program at persons who like the things he does.

"I don't know what age group that is. I would not presume to say."

Last year more than 300 shows originated in Nashville, more than ever. There were some 260 syndicated half-hour shows and more than 20 hour programs.

In the last two weeks, Dolly Parton began taping her new syndicated show here and the long-running children's show, "Captain Kangaroo," originated here.

Earlier this year, Jerry Reed taped two shows.

The television industry is booming for two main reasons: excellent production facilities at Opryland USA and the availability of entertainers.

Stevens, whose new single "You Are So Beautiful" is moving steadily up the charts, said he doesn't like reciprocal television arrangements.

"I get tired of seeing 'you be on my show, I'll be on yours.' It's incestuous."

He doesn't think appearing on television is necessarily more difficult than recording.

"It depends on your mood. It's all hard or fun. What's sad is people doing something they don't want to do."

His reworked version of the Joe Cocker hit "You Are So Beautiful" and arrangement of the standard "Misty" have helped change his image of a comedy singer.

To some casual music fans, he's probably best known for "The Streak," which sold more than 4 million copies, and other humorous songs like "Ahab the Arab."

"I don't want to be regarded as a comedy singer. I can write and sing other types, and I've proved that. I have nothing against comedy, and I'll do it again."

"But I want to be recognized as not being limited to just comedy. People have to grow or we become stale."

NEW YORK (AP)—Stock prices settled back today amid some evident disappointment over the market's mixed showing on Tuesday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off nearly 2 points in the early going, and losers took a 5-3 lead over gainers in the over-all tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said some selling had been prompted by the market's inability to move past its previous high for the year.

The Dow, which hit a high of 1,011.02 on April 21, reached the 1,010 level early Tuesday and again at mid-afternoon. But each time it dropped back again.

Today's early prices included Transco Cos., up 3/4 at 11 1/2 in a 176,600-share block trade; NCR, off 3/4 at 29; Kaufman & Broad, down 1/4 at 9 1/2, and Roytheon, up 1/2 at 54 1/2.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average slipped .87 to 1,006.61.

Gainers held a 7-6 edge on losers among NYSE-listed issues, but the exchange's composite index was off .06 at 54.84.

Big Board volume climbed to 23.59 million shares, the heaviest total in nearly three weeks.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose 1.00 to 104.75.

Bombing Claimed

AUGUSTA, Maine (AP)—An organization using the name of a slain Black Panther leader and protesting a proposed $20 million electricity price hike claimed responsibility today for two bomb explosions at the state headquarters of the Central Maine Power Co.

A letter from the group warned "we will sustain our attack" unless demands were met to curtail the expansion of nuclear facilities and to dismiss a CMP rate hike application affecting the elderly, homeowners and poor tenants.

The letter, discovered today in the lobby of the Augusta (Maine) Kennebec Journal, was signed by the "Fred Hampton Unit of the People's Forces." It said the bombing was "in opposition to CMP's exploitation of the people of Maine, and their attempt to extort 20 million dollars from the people by way of rate increases."

No one was hurt, and the multimillion-dollar computer center of the power distribution system of the state's largest utility was not damaged in the two separate blasts Tuesday which forged office equipment and lighting fixtures into knots. Authorities said they knew nothing about the Hampton Unit, including its size.

Hundreds of employees fled the building moments before the blasts, after being warned by two telephone calls.

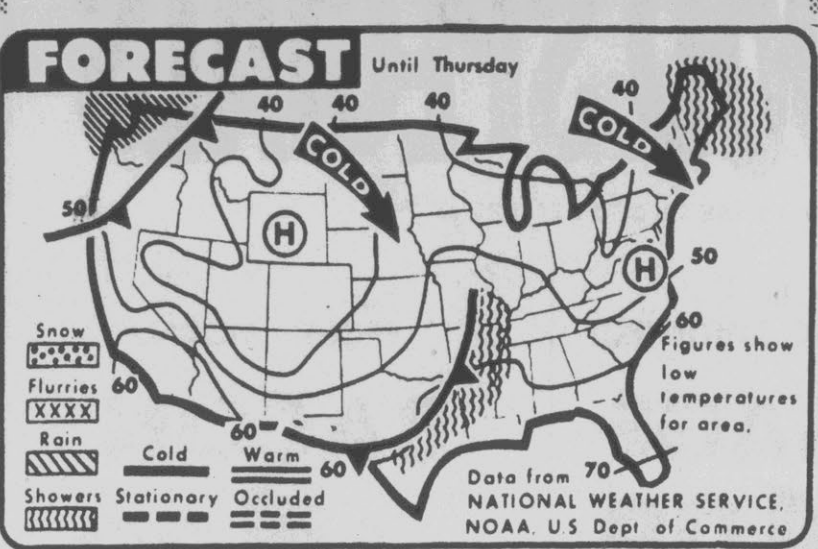

Some employees stayed inside the building, hoping up inside the bomb-proof computer center, officials said.

Fred Hampton was slain when Cook County sheriff's deputies and Chicago police raided a Black Panther apartment in Chicago's West Side in 1969. Later, all officers involved were indicted by a federal grand jury for denying Hampton and another slain man, Mark Clark, their civil rights. The authorities were all acquitted.

currently, trials are in progress in which relatives of Hampton and Clark are seeking damages and survivors of the raid are charging their civil rights were violated.

Two names of persons who served refreshments at a meeting of the Elm Street Senior Citizens Club were incorrectly given in an article published Monday. They are Vern Dare Avery and Marie Clark.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST—Rain is forecast for the Washington coast today with a band of showers extending from Texas into Missouri, and in Maine. Colder weather is due in the northern portion of the nation. (AP Wirephoto)

By The Associated Press
The thunderstorms that spawned two tornadoes and hail of golf-ball size in eastern North Carolina Tuesday have moved off the coast. There is still a chance of showers on the coast today, but it will be partly cloudy and pleasant elsewhere. Highs today and Thursday will be in the 70s.

Severe thunderstorm warnings had been issued for Greene, Pitt, Brunswick, New Hanover, and Pender counties. Half-inch hail fell 15 miles west of Wilmington. Golf ball-sized hail was reported by an observer in Goldsboro.

A tornado warning was issued for Onslow, Jones, and Craven counties, based on radar observations Tuesday evening. No damage has been reported. Radar indicated a tornado in Onslow county 17 miles west of Cherry Point. And a funnel cloud was reported in the vicinity of Emerald Isle in Carteret County.

Fog was scattered across the state today, making room for a drier air mass to take hold. Skies will be fair tonight. Lows will be in the 50s, except 40s in the mountains. High pressure will settle just off the northern coast by day-break Thursday. Therefore, fair skies are expected, with little change in temperatures.

A developing storm system in the Plains will increase chances of rain in North Carolina Friday and Saturday. Skies will become fair again Sunday. High temperatures over the weekend will be in the 70s, except some low 80s in the southern portion. Overnight lows will be generally in the 50s.

High temperatures Tuesday ranged from a 68 at Asheville to 80 degrees at Wilmington.

Rain in the 24 hours ended at 2 o'clock this morning averaged three-tenths of an inch. Cherry Point had the most, 1.16 inches.

Unveiling Plaque Today In Honor Of Jorgensen

A plaque will be unveiled and a room in Minges Coliseum dedicated today in honor of Dr. N. M. Jorgensen who is retiring after 29 years of service in the department of Physical Education at East Carolina University.

both administrative and teaching duties for 23 years. Under his direction, the ECU Health and Physical Education program won national attention, said Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, Chancellor. Dr. Jenkins will present the plaque dedicating the room set aside to bear Jorgensen's name by action of the ECU trustees. Dr. Jorgensen plans to travel and visit in Denmark, home of his parents.

DR. N. M. JORGENSEN
Dr. Jorgensen came to Greenville in 1947 as director of health and physical education at then East Carolina Teachers College (ECTC). He had headed the physical education department at Vallejo College, Vallejo, Calif., and had served on faculties of universities and colleges in Oregon, Iowa, Ohio, New York and Idaho.

He is a graduate of Utah State, holds the masters degree from the University of Oregon and the doctorate from Iowa State University.

In 1970, he relinquished duties as chairman of the Department of Health and Physical Education at ECU, having held

Police Recover Stolen Items

Chief Glenn Cannon said Greenville Police have recovered about $160 worth of equipment taken from a storage room at Guy Smith Stadium Sunday night.

Cannon said about $305 worth of baseball equipment belonging to the Rose High School baseball team was taken from the room about 7 p.m. by a half-dozen or more juveniles.

Included in the items taken were three dozen balls valued at $100, three aluminum bats valued at $25 each and other items such as catchers helmets, chest plates and shin guards. Investigation into the case is continuing.

Firms Plan Irish Plants

RALEIGH (AP)—Three North Carolina textile industries will open production plants in Ireland this summer, with extended investments reported to total many millions of dollars.

Burlington Industries of Greensboro will open two plants in the southwestern part of Ireland, where 600 persons will initially be employed. Its weaving operation will be located at Tralee and its dye finishing plant at Gillogue.

Two Blue Bell Inc. plants will open at Galway and Ballyhaunis to manufacture Wrangler jeans. Those plants, whose mother firm is located in Greensboro, will employ 400 persons.

And Fieldcrest Mills, Eden, plan to open a towel manufacturing plant in Kilkenny, which will employ 1,000 workers.

Although Burlington and Blue Bell already operate plants in other European counties, the new plants will be their first investments in Ireland. The Greensboro Daily News learned of the plant opening during Gov. Jim Holshouser's weekend goodwill trip to Ireland. But neither Holshouser nor any of the state industrial development officials previously had known of the company plans, as all negotiations were conducted by Brendan Cassidy, head of the Ireland Development Association textile division with corporate officials.

Danish Visitors At Performance Sought By Swedish Court

WASHINGTON (AP)—Queen Margrethe and Prince Henrik were joined by Betty Ford for the opening night performance at the Kennedy Center of the Royal Danish Ballet.

The queen of Denmark, on a two-day visit to Washington, had been the guest earlier Tuesday at a White House luncheon given by President and Mrs. Ford.

The Royal Danish Ballet will perform in Washington for a week and then go to New York City for a three-week engagement at Lincoln Center.

Little Named New ECU Baseball Coach

Monte Little, for four years assistant baseball coach at East Carolina University, was elevated today to the head coaching position at that school.

A 28-year-old native of Ayden, Little brings a long career of baseball knowledge to the head coaching job.

Little replaces George Williams, who served for three years as head coach of the Pirates, carrying them to one Southern Conference championship. Williams announced Friday that he would resign at the end of the season, which was supposed to have come the following day, when the Bucs, closed out the year. That game was rained out however.

Little will take over immediately, preparing for the coming season in the North Carolina Summer Collegiate League, of which East Carolina is a member.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Garland Little of Ayden, the new coach had an outstanding career as a high school pitcher for the Ayden High School Tornadoes, carrying them to several state playoffs as a pitcher and an infielder.

Follow a four-year career as a starter for Ayden, Little signed a professional contract with the St. Louis Cardinals in 1966. He played with the Cardinal organization for two years as an infielder, then moved to the Houston Club for a year, and finished his pro career with a year and a half tenure with Detroit.

In the meanwhile, he completed his undergraduate work at East Carolina in 1971, receiving a bachelor of science in physical education. The following year, he received his master's degree in education, and in addition to his coaching duties, he is an instructor in the Department of Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Safety.

Little came to East Carolina in the summer of 1972 to work with the Summer League, and the following year served both as assistant baseball coach, a position which he continued in until, today, and as head soccer coach, where he won a divisional title his second year. For the past two years, he has served in only the baseball position.

Little is married to the former Debbie Susan Williams, and they have two children, Ty, 5, and Tracy Paige, 2.

"I feel a bit overwhelmed," Little said, "in looking back over the men who have coached at East Carolina in the past. My first thought is to thank the administration for the confidence shown in me, and to go to work to show that this same confidence is not unfounded."

Athletic Director Bill Cain, in announcing Little's appointment, said, "We are extremely fortunate to have a man like Coach Little on our staff, and we are pleased that he has accepted the head coaching job. I'm sure that he will continue the fine tradition which our baseball team has had over the years."

standings, etc., it would enhance our position."

Those invited include all independents from Virginia south to Florida and west to Louisiana, all in NCAA District III. It also includes three schools which will become Division I next year.

The meeting will be held on May 26 at the Marriott Hotel in Atlanta.

Dr. Glenn Wilkes, basketball coach and athletic director of Stetson said the purpose of the meeting is to talk about the possibility of an association that could receive one or more berths in the NCAS Regionals tournaments.

"All of us are concerned that the NCAA selection committee has by-passed Southern independents for the last several years when selecting participants for the NCAA basketball tournament. A combination of the ECAS receiving four automatic spots and the conference runners-up being eligible has reduced the number of independent selections. All of this has been done at the expense of the Southern independents."

Wilkes added that several schools feel that it might be time for these Southern independents to join together into some type of informal association that might foster more representative for these teams. "If we joined together into an association, not a conference; paid dues, appointed committees to meet with the NCAA, with television and other media, employed a publicity director to make weekly releases regarding Louisiana, Northwest Louisiana, Old Dominion, Samford, South Alabama, South Carolina, South Carolina State, South Florida, Southern Mississippi, Stetson, Virginia Commonwealth, Virginia Tech and Tennessee-Chattanooga.

East Carolina Athletic Director Bill Cain said that the university would be represented at the meeting. "We will look into this, along with other ways in which we can forward our basketball program after we leave the Southern Conference." The Pirates will be leaving their present league in the summer of 1977.

Brown Signs Hawk Contract

By ED SHEARER
AP Sports Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — Hubie Brown, who relies on teaching, organization and discipline to produce a winner, signed a multiyear contract Tuesday to attempt to guide the Atlanta Hawks out of the National Basketball Association doldrums.

"I'm taking a positive attitude from day one," said Brown, who resigned earlier in the day as coach of the Kentucky Colonels of the American Basketball Association.

"I feel I'm entitled to take an optimistic approach because I feel I can get the job done," he said. "If I didn't, I wouldn't be here."

The 42-year-old Brown cited the challenge of rebuilding the Hawks, who staggered through a dismal 29-53 campaign that left them in the division cellar, as one of the reasons he accepted the job among other offers he received in pro basketball.

"I also like the business opportunities in Atlanta," he said. "And, it's a very nice contract, to be frank about it."

Neither Brown nor Bud Sere-tean, the Hawks' president and general manager, would divulge details of the contract, but Bruce Miller, attorney for a group attempting to purchase the Kentucky Colonels, said it "was absolutely out of this world. If I'm gonna recommend spending that kind of money, I would want it to go to the guys who put the ball in the basket."

There was speculation that Brown will receive between $75,000 and $100,000 for the next three or five years.

He succeeds Cotton Fitzsimmons, who was fired with seven games remaining after the club had lost 12 in a row, a streak that reached 16 before it ended under interim Coach Gene Tomoholm. Fitzsimmons had one year left on his contract.

Brown guided the Colonels to the ABA championship a year ago and had his club in the playoff semifinals this season before dropping a 4-3 series to Denver. His coaching background includes two seasons as an assistant at Milwaukee of the NBA, assistant coaching stints at Duke and William and Mary and a successful high school coaching career in New Jersey.

Jaycees Win, 4-1

Mike Pollard slapped a double and a home run driving in two runs and Danny Woods pitched a one-hitter as the Jaycees took a 4-1 win over the Kiwanis yesterday in North State Little League action.

Pollard doubled with two out scoring Mark Harris who had walked to lead off the bottom of the first. Pollard scored on a wild pitch.

Woods went all the way for the Jaycees striking out 11 and walking five. He did not give up a hit until the fourth when Kiwanis scored its only run.

The Jaycees added a third tally in the third as Scott Johnson singled and scored on an error.

Brian Hill reached on a fielder's choice in the fourth and moved to second on a wild pitch. Jeff Boyd singled him to third and Hill stole home for the only Kiwanis run.

Pollard finished off the scoring in the fifth with a homer for the Jaycees.

The win was the third for the Jaycees and the third loss for the Kiwanis.

Chargers Nip Rams By 2-1

LITTLEFIELD — Ayden-Grifton moved another step closer to wrapping up the Eastern Carolina Conference baseball championship with a 2-1 victory over Greene Central yesterday.

The win left the Chargers with a 10-2 conference record. A victory in their next game, against Farmville Central on Friday, would wrap up the title for them.

Dennis Cristiano hurled a two-hitter for the Chargers, striking out 15 Rams and walking just two. The lone run against him was unearned, and he struck out the final six batters in the game.

Ayden-Grifton had its troubles with Don Holloman, the Greene Central pitcher. They were not able to get a man on base until the fourth inning — and his visit there was only brief.

Not brief enough, however, for Greene Central. Rod Kornegay was the runner, and he stopped only long enough to tag each base after he crashed one out of the park for a 1-0 Charger lead.

In the top of the sixth, Greene Central tied it up with a run. Don Holloman and Floyd Adams both walked, the only passes of the game by Cristiano. Jay Carraway laid down a sacrifice bunt, but it was errored, loading the bases. Cristiano then struck out the next two batters, and had a 1-2 count on the next man before firing a wild pitch that scored Holloman to tie it up. Cristiano's next pitch, struck out the batter and ended the threat.

Ayden-Grifton came back to score the winning run in the bottom of the sixth. Ned Craft walked and Eddie Taylor hit a double to score Craft.

Now 17-2 overall, the Chargers visit Farmville Central next.

Input Meeting

A meeting was held yesterday at the Regional Development Institute to get input from area people on their feelings concerning the expansion of Picklen Stadium.

Roddy Jones, overall chairman of the fund drive, said that work is continuing on the formation of the overall group, and that new subcommittee chairmen would be named shortly. The committee is looking for volunteers now who would like to work for the stadium expansion.

Cliff Moore, Vice-Chancellor for Business Affairs, was named as treasurer of the group.

"We have some money coming in now," a spokesman said, "but we are still looking for a major donor."

Giants Get Win

WINTERVILLE—The Winterville Giants gained a 3-1 victory over Chicod in the Southern Pitt Little League.

Doug McRoy hurled the victory for Winterville, allowing just two hits. Those went to Lassiter and Mills. Loser Ronnie Bazen gave up just four, to McRoy, Kondroska, Pound and Joyner.

Dizzy Dean compiled a 30-7 record for the 1934 St. Louis Cardinals.

Bill Terry of the New York Giants compiled a career batting average of .341. In 1930 he led the National League with .401.

Sox Handed Another Defeat

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer
The Boston Red Sox are fast becoming the Boston Red Faces.
“We’re certainly not hitting the way we can as a team,” bemoans Manager Darrell Johnson. “The consistency is not as it should be.”
The Red Sox continue to play the worst baseball in the American League — Tuesday night losing a 4-3 decision to the Cleveland Indians for their 10th straight setback.

That hasn't happened in Boston since 1960 and obviously not in the talent-rich reign of Johnson, who led the Red Sox to the American League pennant last season.
“We’re leaving our best players out there and giving it everything just trying to play our game,” said Johnson. “You can’t always score a lot of runs or get good pitching. But when we have one, we don’t seem to have the other.”

In the other American League games, the Detroit Tigers nipped the New York Yankees 4-3; the Baltimore Orioles trimmed the Milwaukee Brewers 5-2; the Kansas City Royals turned back the Minnesota Twins 6-3. The Texas Rangers defeated the Chicago White Sox 6-5 and the Oakland A’s beat the California Angels 6-4.
Alan Ashby slammed a three-run homer and Pat Dobson and Stan Thomas combined to pitch a five-hitter as Cleveland extended Boston’s losing string. Dobson, 3-3, gave up three runs in the first inning before settling down. With one out, Denny Doyle reached first on an error by second baseman Duane Kuiper, Fred Lynn singled and Carlton Fisk followed with his second homer of the year.

Cleveland got back one run off Boston starter Ferguson Jenkins, 1-5, in the first inning. Buddy Bell walked with two out and Rico Carthy doubled him home. Jenkins nursed the 3-1 lead until the seventh when Carthy doubled, George Hendrick beat out an infield hit and with two out Ashby lined a drive into the right field stands.
Tigers 4, Yankees 3
Gary Sutherland’s two-run single with two out in the ninth inning capped a three-run rally that lifted Detroit over New York. Rusty Staub opened the ninth with a double and came around on an infield out and a sacrifice fly by Aurelio Rodriguez. Pinch-hitter Dan Meyer and Tom Verzyer singled and moved up on a wild pitch by Ed Figueroa, 2-2, who had allowed only four hits until the ninth. Southerland then bounced his game-winning hit up the middle.

Ken Singleton doubled home two first-inning runs and Lee May slapped a two-run single in the third, sparking Baltimore over Milwaukee. Mike Cuellar, 1-2, who entered the game with an 11.20 ERA, checked the Brewers on two runs and five hits through the first six innings. Wayne Garland finished up for Baltimore with three hitless innings as the Brewers lost their third game in a row and fifth in six starts.

Brave Losing Streak Finally Is At An End

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer
How long is a 13-game losing streak?
“About two heart attacks and several sleepless nights,” says Dave Bristol, manager of the Atlanta Braves.
Bristol finally was able to get a good night’s sleep Tuesday after his Braves posted an 8-7 decision over the New York Mets, ending the longest losing streak in major league baseball this season.
But it didn't come easy. The Braves blew a 7-5 lead in the late innings and had to come back to win on Rowland Office's RBI single with two out in the ninth.
“No human being knows the joy that goes on inside you after breaking a streak like that,” Bristol said. “It's a big burden off 30 guys.”

tiej and the young outfielder was mobbed coming off first base.
“I looked up and thought we had won the World Series,” he said.
Reds 6, Pirates 0
Gary Nolan, who hasn't allowed a run in his last 18 innings, scattered six hits as Tony Perez drove in four runs with a homer and a single as the Reds beat the Pirates in the first meeting of the two defending division champions since last fall's National League playoff.

Phils 9, Padres 1
Steve Carlton stopped San Diego on six hits to help the first-place Phils to their ninth victory in the last 10 games. Philadelphia scored six runs in the first two innings, then major league home run leader Mike Schmidt belted his 13th of the season, a two-run shot, in the eighth.
Astros 5, Expos 3
Homers by Jose Cruz and Cliff Johnson highlighted a five-run first inning that carried Houston over Montreal.
Expos starter Clay Kirby, 0-2, failed to retire a batter. Larry Milbourne and Enos Cabell walked, Cruz belted a three-run homer, Bob Watson walked and Johnson smacked a two-run homer, knocking out Kirby.
Reliever Tom Griffin got the victory, allowing just one hit in 4 1-3 innings.

Compensation Is Key Point

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — When is a free agent not a free agent?
When his new team is forced to compensate his old team, says Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association.
Miller's union, currently bargaining with the owners' negotiating committee on a new labor contract, says there should be no compensation to the club losing the free agent player.
The owners' current position is that the free agent's new club must pay the old club a figure that could reach $270,000. That figure breaks down to double the player's salary, stopping at a maximum base of $75,000, plus $5,000 times the old club's rank in attendance.

proposal, which the owners are analyzing in meetings today in Chicago. Miller, meanwhile, has scheduled a series of 24 meetings beginning Thursday and spaced over the next six weeks for the purpose “of bringing players up to date and to learn from them how they want to proceed.”
It used to be that the two bargaining groups were making little progress meeting with each other. Now, they're making little progress not meeting with each other.
Since the regular season began, and the earlier fear of a non-baseball season dissipated, Miller says the two negotiating rivals have met fewer than five times. This is in marked contrast to March, when the owners had closed the training camps and the negotiating groups were sharing their daily morning cup of coffee.
Despite all the predictions of doom, baseball seemingly hasn't been harmed by its labor troubles. Through Sunday, March 9, baseball attendance was up seven percent, compared to the same period last year, a spokesman for the commissioner's office said.

But after Bold Forbes upset Honest Pleasure in the Derby, the colorful Campo uttered some profanity when someone asked if eighth-place Play The Red would be headed for the Preakness.
Now, a little over a week later, Campo has done yet another about-face, and Play The Red is scheduled to be one of six entries in Saturday's $150,000-added Preakness at Pimlico Race Course.

Forbes and Honest Pleasure over the 1 3/16 miles of the Preakness after Play The Red worked a mile at Belmont in 1:40.
Despite the renewed confidence of Campo, Pimlico oddsmaker Earl Hart has installed Play The Red as the longest shot 15-1 choice in the early betting line.
Bold Forbes and Life's Hope, a Laz Barrera-trained entry in the Preakness, was made the even-money favorite with Honest Pleasure just behind at 6-5. Elocutionist, third in the Derby, was listed at 8-1 and Cojak, sixth at Louisville, at 12-1.
Bold Forbes and Life's Hope, who won the Illinois Derby on the same day as the Kentucky Derby, arrived at Pimlico by van Tuesday, joining Honest Pleasure and Cojak on the grounds. Play The Red and Elocutionist were scheduled to arrive today.

Games Are Postponed

Tuesday morning's showers may have helped the flowers but it did little to help area schools' sports schedules. Several baseball games were postponed.
In games rescheduled for today, Conley was to host Southern Nash, E.B. Aycocck to travel to Wilson, Plymouth was to visit Williamston and Farmville Central was traveling to C.B. Aycocck.
The Rose-Bertie game was postponed until Thursday night at Bertie.
Roanoke's game with North Edgecombe was rained out and may not be made up. Bear Grass will meet Jamesville in Jamesville next Tuesday making up the game which was rained out yesterday. North Pitt had its game with North Lenoir rained out, also.

Play The Red Is No Favorite

BALTIMORE (AP) — In the week before the Kentucky Derby, Johnny Campo was touting anyone within earshot — and it's not easy to miss the talkative trainer — to watch out for his Play the Red.
But after Bold Forbes upset Honest Pleasure in the Derby, the colorful Campo uttered some profanity when someone asked if eighth-place Play The Red would be headed for the Preakness.

Southern Opens Three-Day Meet

GREENVILLE, N.C. (AP) — The Southern Conference today opened a three-day meeting during which it will consider the applications for admission of Western Carolina University, Tennessee-Chattanooga and Marshall.
A decision is expected to be announced Friday, after a closed business session that morning.
The executive committee, other committees and athletic directors met today and will do so Thursday.
Richmond is withdrawing June 30, in accordance with an announcement it made last year. That will leave the conference with seven members. And East Carolina University has announced it will leave in June of next year. Other teams in the conference are Appalachian State, The Citadel, Davidson, Furman, Virginia Military Institute and William and Mary.

Commissioner Ken Germann would not hazard an opinion on the three applications. But with the league facing a membership of six after the withdrawal of East Carolina, it appeared likely that some or all three of the candidates will be admitted.

Miller contends a top-dollar figure would be a deterrent to the other 23 clubs dealing with the free agent.
A similar policy of compensation in pro football, the Ruzelle Rule, was struck down as illegal because it effectively replaced the chains on free agents.
In the National Basketball Association's landmark settlement of its labor disputes, the league has agreed to drop any compensation claim for signing free agents after the 1981 season.
Reached in Chicago, John Caherin, chief bargainer for the owners, said, “We think this proposal is a fair and equitable one. Otherwise, we wouldn't be making it.”
The compensation issue is just one of the things bothering Miller in management's current proposal, which the owners are analyzing in meetings today in Chicago. Miller, meanwhile, has scheduled a series of 24 meetings beginning Thursday and spaced over the next six weeks for the purpose “of bringing players up to date and to learn from them how they want to proceed.”

Denver Rediscovered Formula To Victory; Stops Nets, 118-110

By JOHN MOSSMAN
AP Sports Writer
DENVER (AP) — When they needed it most, the Denver Nuggets rediscovered the formula that had produced such successful results during the regular season.

With balanced scoring, a fast-break offense, pressing defense and a patented third-quarter blitz, the Nuggets fought back into contention in the American Basketball Association championship series, beating the New York Nets 118-110 Tuesday night.

The victory trimmed the Nets' advantage in the best-of-seven series to 3-2. Game Six is scheduled for Thursday night at Uniondale, N.Y. A seventh game, if necessary, would be played in Denver Sunday.

A number of Denver players, including rookie David Thompson, were convinced that a seventh game would, indeed, be required.

"I think we have a great chance of winning the next game," said Thompson, who scored nine of Denver's 42 points in the big third quarter. "If we play as well as we did tonight, especially in the third quarter, we'll beat them for sure."

The Nuggets appeared on the brink of extinction when, beset by turnovers and poor shooting, they dropped 16 points behind the Nets in the second period. Brian Taylor scored on three straight layups to highlight a 12-point spurt by the Nets.

But Denver was revived by a brilliant performance from Gus Gerard, who came off the bench to score eight straight Denver points and help the Nuggets reduce the deficit to six points at the half.

"Gus kept us in the game in the first half," said Denver Coach Larry Brown. "In the second half we went to work to initiate the tempo and overplay defensively."

Its feared fast break in high gear, Denver hit eight of its first 11 shots in the third period and pulled out to a 16-point lead by the end of the stanza. Guard Chuck Williams had 10 points and the Nuggets shot 68 per cent during the period.

New York played catch-up the final quarter but, despite the efforts of Julius Erving and John Williamson, got no closer than four points, at 114-110, with 55 seconds left. The Net rally fell short when Denver playmaking guard Monte Towe drove the lane and scored with 33 seconds left, and Dan Issel added a layup with five seconds remaining.

Williamson, in foul trouble most of the game, came off the bench early in the final period after Taylor was ejected for throwing a punch at Towe. He tossed in 18 of his game-high 37 points.

"Denver came out really smokin' in the second half," said Erving, who also paced all rebounders with 15. "We let the game swing in their direction."

New York Coach Kevin Loughery agreed. "We let them back in the game in the second half, then we got in foul trouble," he said.

Issel and Calph Simpson led the Denver attack with 21 points each. Williams added 20, Thompson 19 and Bobby Jones 17.

Memorable Men Being Sought

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
NEW YORK (AP) — Who was baseball's most memorable personality? What were baseball's most memorable moments? Commissioner Bowie Kuhn wants to know.

The commissioner is taking a poll of more than 5,000 baseball writers, broadcasters and officials, calling upon them to reach back in their distant memories and search for the game's most glamorous figures and dramatic events.

In the early 1930s, a fuff-faced kid just out of high school, working as a $12-a-week newspaper rookie, was sent out to interview the great Babe Ruth, swinging through Nashville, Tenn., on the New York Yankees' trip north from spring training.

The kid contacted all the hotels in town—all three of them. Sure, the Babe was registered but he wasn't in. Frustrated, the fledgling reporter took up vigil outside Sulpher Dell, Nashville's ball park, reeking with fumes from a snuff factory and the city dump.

Finally, 10 minutes before game time, the door of a yellow cab was flung open and the balloon-like figure of Babe Ruth laboriously emerged, stocking-footed, carrying his spiked shoes in his hand.

"Mr. Ruth," the kid said. "I am supposed to interview you. Could you give me a moment, please?"

"Sure, kid," the big man said, "shoot."

The newsman fumbled in his pockets for two folded sheets of paper on which were written 32 carefully conceived questions.

"What is your favorite hobby?"

"Huntin' and fishin'," the Babe replied.

"Your favorite movie actress?"

"Janet Gaynor."

Down on the field the athletes were getting restless. It was time for the game to start and the Babe just hung there, leaning over the iron railing and paying the field no mind.

"Go ahead, kid," he said.

"Your favorite cereal?"

"Post toasters."

The clamor from the field grew in volume but BABE never fidgeted until all the questions were answered.

"Is that all?" he asked his wide-eyed interrogator. "Okay, good luck, kid."

It was not until close to 20 years later that the kid, fatter and sassier, saw the world's baseball idol again. The Babe, spindly and wan, was standing near home plate at Yankee Stadium, forming words hoarsely through a throat ravaged with cancer. He died shortly afterward.

Rookie Test Proved Terrifying For Miller; Guthrie Stays Calm

By JERRY GARRETT
AP Motorsports Writer
INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — "Heck, the rookie test isn't anything terrific in the way of speed," said a confident Janet Guthrie.

But another rookie, Eddie Miller, proved the speed could be terrifying. Miller started the final half of his rookie test Tuesday after Miss Guthrie had finished the first half of her test, mandatory for all rookies entered in the Indianapolis 500-mile auto race.

Gliding smoothly around the Indianapolis Motor Speedway at about 167 miles per hour on the seventh of 20 laps, Miller's Offenhauser-powered Eagle started to slide sideways coming out of the first turn.

It careened into a drainage ditch, launching the car over a five-foot photographer's fence. It bounced once, flew high in the air over an eight-foot spectator's fence, and landed upside down less than five feet from a crowded spectator grandstand. The car wedged into another fence which prevented the auto from plunging down a 20-foot tunnel.

"I can't remember a car getting that far out of the ballpark since 1951," said one veteran

U.S. Auto Club official.

The spectacular accident demolished the car and trapped Miller, 31, from Lakewood, Colo., inside the battered cockpit for nearly 20 minutes.

Miller suffered a broken neck, but his condition was given as "excellent ... considering" by his doctor.

Miss Guthrie, who did not see the accident, was philosophical. "You accept the risks in this game," said Miss Guthrie, who planned to complete the final phase of her rookie test today.

"I saw someone die at Watkins Glen. So I know ..."

It will take a speed of probably at least 180 m.p.h. to make the May 30, $1 million race, and the rookie test speeds are considered safely slow. But Miss Guthrie said she could see how something might go wrong.

"When you're trying not to go as fast as you can, you lose your concentration — and you're not going all that slow that you can afford to lose it," she said. "I don't know if that's what happened to Eddie, but I know I was bored to tears" during the test.

Miss Guthrie said she had planned to complete all 40 laps of the test Tuesday, but ran out of time. She almost didn't even get half done.

"I got through six laps and the oil pressure dropped, and I bought the car back in. Anticipating perhaps I could not complete the test" she threw her driving gloves in disgust.

The problem was very minor and she was able to return to the track and finish the segment of the test.

The crowd gave Miss Guthrie a round of applause when, just two laps from completing the test run, she passed A.J. Foyt who was warming up, prior to the day's fastest lap, at 187.838 m.p.h.

Foyt, up to speed, roared past her a lap later.

Cavaliers Confident They Can Pull Even

By GEORGE STRODE
AP Sports Writer
CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland's young Cavaliers, back on their game of sparse mistakes, are confident they can pull even with Boston's veteran Celtics Friday night in the National Basketball Association semifinals.

"We're known for a team that doesn't turn the ball over. When we do, we're in trouble," reflected Bill Fitch after his Cavaliers committed only seven mistakes in an 83-78 verdict over the Celtics Tuesday night.

It had been an entirely different story in Cleveland's opening two losses to Boston in the best-of-7 Eastern Conference finals. The Cavaliers erred 17 times in Game One, 24 in Game Two.

Fitch also lauded his team's fluid defense that contained Boston on a 34 per cent shooting night. "We stopped their break just as good as anybody has," he said.

Boston Coach Tom Heinsohn wasn't that impressed, grumbling, "We played high school offense. We didn't make them play."

Cleveland has rationed the Celtics' famed offense to an average of 86 points in the last two playoff games, a fact disturbing to Heinsohn.

"We've got to rectify a lot of things before Friday. We're going to have to talk about it," he said.

Meanwhile, Fitch was confident the Cavaliers could reach the finals in their first try at the NBA playoffs.

"This is the only team I've coached that can get down 3-1 and still win it. I'm hopeful we can get out of here with a 2-2 split. I think we can," said Fitch.

Jim Clemons, whose 18 points led the victory, said the Cavaliers are becoming accustomed to playing with Nate Thurmond. The 34-year-old center has been pressed into duty because of injured regular Jim Chones, out with a broken toe.

Thurmond, the darling of an NBA playoff record-tying Coliseum throng of 21,564, steadies Cleveland's defense, handling Dave Cowens in the middle.

Thurmond, who has limited

Cowens to 48 points in three games, knows he's on the spot.

"If we can keep Cowens from dominating the series, I think we can win it. If anyone can hold him down, I think I can," said Thurmond.

Heinsohn and Cowens appear ruffled over all the fuss of the matchup at center.

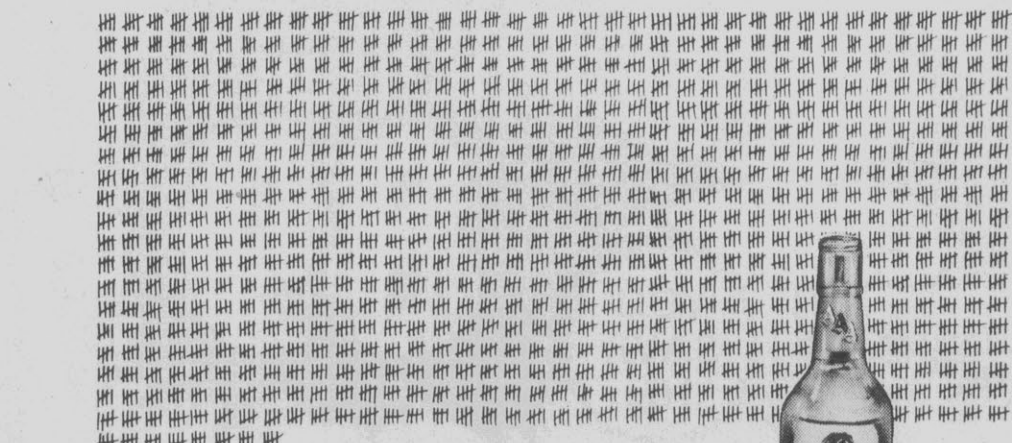

"Thurmond is not a factor," said a scowling Heinsohn. "I'm tired of hearing he's a factor."

Cowens, who scored 19 against the 6-foot-11 veteran Tuesday night, said of his rival's defense: "It was okay. He blocked a couple of shots. He should, as big as he is."

Boston's hopes have been damaged with a foot injury to John Havlicek. The 35-year-old forward managed just nine points in the third game.

Jo Jo White's 22 points paced Boston. Cleveland put four players in double figures, headed by Clemons' 18 and 17 by reserve guard Austin Carr.

Phoenix plays at Golden State tonight in the fifth game of their best-of-seven Western Conference final with the series tied 2-2.

Insulin May Be Cause Of Blindness

By WARREN E. LEARY
AP Science Writer
RESTON, Va. (AP) — Researchers say the insulin that has saved millions of diabetics from death may actually cause one of the disease's most ravaging after-effects — blindness.

The first indications that insulin may be a two-edged sword came in results of studies with rhesus monkeys. Test results were announced here Sunday by researchers at the University of California at Los Angeles.

"The results of our study raise important questions concerning whether insulin, apart from its ability to prolong life, may contribute to the development of diabetic proliferative ocular (eye) disease," said Dr. Alan L. Shabo.

Proliferative diabetic retinopathy is a disease seen in various stages in the majority of diabetics. As it progresses, the disease can result in bleeding inside the eyeball, detached retinas and other complications that can severely hamper vision.

Shabo and other eye specialists told a science writers' seminar sponsored by Research to Prevent Blindness Inc. (RPB) that insulin has done diabetics much more good than possible harm.

If further research definitely links insulin and eye disease, that would give clues to the process bringing on the ailment and could lead to discovery of ways to reverse or block the disease, they said.

Diabetes is a disease in which the body's ability to burn up sugar is hampered because the pancreas does not produce enough insulin. The condition is controlled through substituting insulin from animals, mainly cows, or through weight control and diet.

RPB, a foundation supporting eye research, says statistics show some 10 million Americans have diabetes — half of them cases undiagnosed.

Among persons with diabetes for more than 11 years, figures show the eye disease present in various stages in 64 per cent. For those with diabetes for 15 to 20 years, more than 90 per cent have eye disease.

Shabo said monkeys were made allergic to insulin so their bodies' defense systems reacted to it. When insulin was injected into the eyeballs of the "sensitized" monkeys, he said, they developed eye disease "with many features similar to those of diabetic patients."

In 1960, when animal insulin was not in wide use, new cases of diabetes blindness were less than 1 per cent of the national total, he said. But it now accounts for more than 15 per cent of new cases.

The expectancy for diabetics improved dramatically with insulin therapy, Shabo said, and "it is often asserted that this increased longevity accounts for the increasing incidence" of the eye disease.

The new findings cast doubt on this explanation, he said.

Quick Thinking Saved A Home

CHESTER, S.D. (AP) — An 8-year-old farm boy who had seen a fire prevention cartoon on television called for help on a citizens' band radio and then grabbed a garden hose to save his family's farm west of here.

Firemen credited Jeff Muller with saving the homestead.

Jeff arrived home on the school bus to find the chicken coop and bales of straw on fire. His two older brothers were in church and his parents were away.

On the CB radio he called for his father, but reached an oil truck driver who called the fire department.

Jeff's mother, Mrs. Darrell Muller, said the boy had learned about fire safety from a television cartoon and a school pamphlet. She also said he knew the CB was a lot faster than a telephone.

More Money In Smaller Plants

NEW YORK (AP) — Engineers working for smaller companies often make more money, according to a survey by Factory magazine.

The magazine says nearly a third of the engineers working in factories with less than 100 workers make $25,000 a year, but only about a sixth of those in plants with 1,000 or more employees make as much.

Desert Tells Its Secrets To Satellites

By AHMED SHAWKI
 Associated Press Writer
 CAIRO (AP) — Plumbing the desert sands from outer space, American satellites have revealed the existence of water, oil, uranium and other minerals in the Egyptian Sahara and the Sinai Peninsula, an Egyptian scientist says.

Ahmed Abdel Hady said photographs taken by the ERTS-1 and Landsat satellites are still being analyzed but preliminary indications show enough water in the Sinai Desert "to turn most of it green." Most of the Sinai is still occupied by the Israelis who seized it in 1967.

Abdel Hady heads a joint Egyptian-American scientific team in charge of the Remote Sensing Project which has been receiving data from satellites and other space devices since 1972.

In addition to the desert potential, Abdel Hady said in an interview, previously unnoticed fertile areas near the Nile Valley could provide food for thousands of Egyptians.

Oklahoma State University and Michigan University, in cooperation with the Egyptian government, have a budget of $1.2 million annually for study of the untapped resources, Abdel Hady added.

"Six images from ERTS-1 last year showed that the Sinai Peninsula has huge water, oil and mineral resources," Abdel Hady said.

"We photographed some 3,500 square miles in Sinai extending from the north to the south." Shots showed three different areas rich with petroleum and natural gas, he added.

The first is the Gulf of Suez which already has proven oil reserves. The second is the Mediterranean offshore area in northern Sinai which has not yet been explored, and the third is a large area in southern Sinai marked by sedimentary rocks carrying natural gas, Abdel Hady said.

The highlands in northern Sinai and the coastal strip of Wadi el Arish — totaling more than 2,000 square miles — conceal huge water potential, "enough to turn most of Sinai Desert green," Abdel Hady said.

He declined to go into details, saying, "I don't want to make it difficult for Egypt when it negotiates the next Israeli pull-out."

Uranium also was detected in northwest and southern Sinai, said Abdel Hady.

West central Sinai, at Wadi el Korbra, contains huge quantities of silica that could lead to a glass industry, he said.

Satellite images also showed significant food-growing potential in a 2,500-square-mile area adjacent to the Nile basin.

Satellite images also were used to study a huge hydroelectric project proposed in the Qattara Depression in the desert west of the Nile Valley.

"The studies cover regional mapping of the geology, structure potential, groundwater, surface drainage, mineral and petroleum resources in the Qattara region," Abdel Hady said.

The Qattara Depression project, if implemented, would give Egypt more than double the electric power currently provided by the Aswan High Dam.

Shuttle Suit Design Readied

HOUSTON (UPI) — Space travelers of the 1980s who fly aboard NASA's Space Shuttle Orbiter will be furnished with a unique space suit and rescue system in the shape of a 34-inch diameter ball containing a short term simplified life support and communication systems.

The shuttle suit, a two-piece combination of upper and lower torso, will be manufactured in small, medium and large sizes to accommodate the total astronaut population, including females.

The shuttle suit contains a life support system which is an integral part of the upper torso. A body seal closure at the waist eliminates the need for pressure-sealing zippers used in the Apollo and Skylab suits and is expected to form a more reliable ensemble.

VODKA SALES

NEW YORK (UPI) — Shipments of vodka hit an all-time record last year, with a volume of more than 85 million gallons going to U.S. customers. Vodka continues to be the largest selling liquor of all types, according to a recent issue of the Wine and Spirits Marketing Bulletin which is published by the advertising department of U.S. News and World Report.

Keep Lid On Cyclamate

By JOHN STOWELL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The government has written what may be the final chapter in the bittersweet saga of cyclamate, the sugar substitute discovered by accident in 1937, consumed by millions of calorie-conscious Americans and banned as a potential health hazard in 1969.

The Food and Drug Administration announced late Tuesday that it will not lift its cyclamate ban because of "grave questions" about the risk to humans of cancer, genetic damage and reproductive injury.

Commissioner Alexander M. Schmidt said he knew many people "would be willing to assume a reasonable risk," but concluded that "FDA must base its approval on an assurance that general availability of cyclamate for everyday use by anyone would be safe. I cannot give that assurance, and thus cannot approve its use at this time."

Schmidt asked Abbott Laboratories of North Chicago, Ill., to withdraw its 1973 petition seeking approval of cyclamate. Otherwise, his letter said, the FDA will formally deny the request in 30 days.

Abbott vice president Richard W. Kasperson said no decision had been made on withdrawing the petition. It could be resubmitted if new evidence were presented, or the firm could seek a new administrative hearing, which might be a prelude to a federal court contest.

"If we withdraw the petition," he said, "I would assume that would be the end of it. It's certainly a disappointment."

Cyclamate was discovered in 1937 by Michel Sveda, then a chemistry student at the University of Illinois who noted a sweet taste in a cigarette he accidentally put down in a chemical compound.

Dozens of studies, the first in 1951, have failed to come up with a certain answer on whether cyclamate does pose a cancer risk.

At the FDA's request, the National Cancer Institute assembled a committee of scientists to take a fresh look at the studies, but the panel reported in February that safety questions can't be answered.

Present evidence "does not establish the carcinogenicity (cancer-causing potential) of cyclamate ... in experimental animals," the scientists said, but "no conclusion could be reached concerning the question of cyclamate's potential carcinogenicity in humans."

Schmidt said "grave questions remain as to its cancer-causing potential in experimental animal tests and, by inference, in man." He cited studies suggesting that cyclamate may cause genetic damage when used at levels "not far in excess of that possible in ordinary consumption," as well as birth defects and reproductive damage.

While safe levels of cyclamate intake might be possible for humans, they would be so low "that only very restricted use could be envisioned, and the safety margin would be insufficient to allow general use of cyclamate in manufactured foods such as soft drinks."

Business Notes

COMPANY RECORD

Integon Corp. announced that first quarter income from operations jumped 18.2 percent to a company record of 26 cents per share.

During the three month period of January-March, Integon's income from operations totaled $1,572,258 or 26 cents per share, compared with $1,309,388 or 22 cents per share for the first quarter of 1975.

Net income rose 19 per cent share, from $1,237,024 or 21 cents per share for the first quarter of 1975, to $1,498,679 or 25 cents per share this quarter. Integon reported six million shares outstanding for both quarters.

STEADY GROWTH

The level of business activity in North Carolina showed a steady growth in March for the fourth straight month, according to the Wachovia Business Index.

The March preliminary figure of 138.4 was 0.2 per cent higher than the previous month's revised level of 138.1 and was 4.8 per cent above the index level of a year ago.

The adjusted unemployment rate for North Carolina was 6.7 per cent in March, compared to February's rate of 6.7 per cent, and a March national rate of 7.5 per cent. The state's unadjusted rate for March was 6.6 per cent.

THIRD QUARTER RESULTS

Servomation Corp., national food and refreshment service organization, announced that its net income for the third quarter ended March 27 was $2,793,000, up 152 per cent, as compared with the third quarter of last year.

Earnings per share were 57 cents for the current quarter as compared with 22 cents last year. Sales were $97,250,000, up eight per cent, as compared with sales of $89,856,000 in the same period a year ago.

For the first nine months net income was $7,689,000 up 59 per cent, and earnings per share were $1.56 as compared with 97 cents. Sales totaled $289,259,000, up three per cent as compared with $279,799,000 last year.

Anniversary Of Tammany

By Dr. H. G. JONES, Curator North Carolina Collection For The Associated Press CHAPEL HILL (AP)—May 12 marks the anniversary of the founding of a New York organization whose name became synonymous with political corruption in the United States.

In the popular mind, Tammany Hall means boss rule, ballot box stuffing, bribery, and other ruthless political practices. But it was not always so.

In fact, the creation on May 12, 1789, of the Society of St. Tammany resulted from genuine concerns for the country. The name can be traced back to the Revolution when a few patriots in the city, making fun of the stuffy loyalist societies, began calling themselves Sons of St. Tammany—the name coming from that of a Delaware Indian, Tammanend, who was fabled for his wisdom, benevolence, and leadership. This and other local societies died out with independence.

The provocation for the founding of the new society in 1789, however, came from the Society of the Cincinnati, organized by former officers of the Revolution. This group was viewed with suspicion by many Americans because of its alleged interest in creating a hereditary aristocracy.

The Society of St. Tammany, founded by William Mooney, a former soldier, sought to counter such political views by stressing the aspirations of the common man.

Tammany satirically contrasted itself with the Cincinnati by using native Indian terms. The thirteen trustees (representing the number of original colonies) were called sachems, and the meeting place was a wigwam with a sagamore as a doorkeeper.

Soon, however, Tammany Hall, as its wigwam came to be known, took on the character of a middle class organization, paying little heed to its founding emphasis on the lower economic groups.

Then, under the grand sashemship of Aaron Burr, the Society of St. Tammany allied itself with the Republican (later to be called Democratic) party. The organization was handsomely rewarded in patronage by President Thomas Jefferson.

A new charter in 1805 reestablished the society as a benevolent and charitable body, but its earlier political success tied it to the Jeffersonian Party which met regularly in the society's hall.

In the first half of the 19th Century, therefore, the term "Tammany Hall" became synonymous with the Democratic Party structure in New York. Its ability to control elections in the city led to considerable and sometimes decisive influence in state and federal elections. The election of its grand sashem, Martin Van Buren, to the presidency brought the organization national attention.

The complexion of Tammany Hall changed considerably after 1817 when Irish immigrants resorted to violence to gain admittance to the organization which formerly claimed to be limited to "native born patriots."

With the admission of immigrants, Tammany began to support universal manhood suffrage. From that time forward, its political power in New York was based upon the allegiance of the masses.

Ostensibly Tammany Hall was a friend of the downtrodden, and its ward bosses held tight control over their votes. The party structure took on the appearance of a social structure, and loyalty was intense.

What was not so apparent was that through clever organization and manipulation of local government Tammany Hall was squeezing out of the taxpayers millions of dollars which went into the pockets of its leaders.

The extent of corruption did not come to light until after the Civil War when William M. Tweed gained control of both the city and state governments and proudly wore the title "Boss" Tweed. Investigations showed that corruption reached perhaps $200 million under his regime. This was too much even for Tammany Hall, and Tweed died in prison.

His downfall, however, failed to clean up Tammany Hall, and corruption, election dictation, and cover-up continued in the period after the Civil War.

The growth of population in areas outside Manhattan coupled with other forces to weaken the influence of Tammany Hall in the 20th Century.

In 1933, Fiorell H. LaGuardia, an anti-Tammany candidate, was elected mayor of the city, and except for a brief period under the leadership of Carmen De Sapio, the organization has gone the way of most big city political machines in recent years.

Still, though, candidates for the party's nomination continue to court those who trace their organization's history back to May 12, 1789.

Old Splice Had Staying Power

SIoux FALLS, S. D. (AP)—Just over 50 years ago, Harry L. Gustavison spliced some phone cable in a Sioux Falls alley and hoped it would hold up. It did.

Northwestern Bell Telephone Co. workers were enlarging the splice recently when they found a piece of muslin inside which contained the following note: "Feb. 18th, 1926. Harry L. Gustavison, splicer, Sioux Falls, South Dakota. Weather is fine — 40 above. Hope this splice will be okay until its changed. So long."

Former Bell employees believe Gustavison retired around 1936.

Neighborhood Festival Scheduled On Saturday

A HIGGS NEIGHBORHOOD ART PROJECT . . . Moroccan born artist Kacem Sebti is shown working on a tree sculpture in the yard of Greenville policeman Eddie Wallace at the corner of Chestnut and Fourteenth Streets.

From noon until 4 p.m. Saturday is the time selected for staging the First Annual Higgs Neighborhood Spring Festival, to be held on the grounds surrounding the West End Fire Station on Skinner Street.

In general, the area known as Higgs Neighborhood encompasses the region in the west part of Greenville bounded by Grande Avenue west to Guy Smith Stadium and by Dickinson Avenue west to Line Avenue. Ms. Donna Whitley, coordinator for the fair, gave a brief background on the neighborhood name. "At the turn of the century Jake Higgs bought farmland and divided it into lots, developing the land in that area.

"It is my understanding that in the early part of this century, Higgs Neighborhood was an area of beautiful residences and lovely yards."

Ms. Whitley noted also that "Mrs. Sadie Mae Higgs, the widow of Jake Higgs, lived until quite recently. She died last November. The background on the Higgs neighborhood as it was in the early 20th century was given to me by Mrs. Leila Higgs, a gracious woman now in her 80's."

A number of community events are planned to mark the first First Annual Higgs Neighborhood Spring Festival. These include musical interludes by Roxy Theater sponsored musicians; an art show of artists living in the area which will include painting, pottery, leatherwork, sculpture and the work of a silversmith.

In addition, there will be games for the young people, such as a soccer match between the local Boys' Club and the Kinston Boys' Club team, trampoline exhibitions and a puppet show at 1 p.m.

A bake sale will be held to raise money for The Higgs Herald, a neighborhood newsletter, and a yard sale is also in the day's plans.

The public is invited to attend all the events planned for this first annual neighborhood observance. In the event of rain, a tentative date of Saturday, May 27 has been set for the neighborhood event.

Initiated Into Honor Society

CHAPEL HILL — Nineteen graduating students in the University of North Carolina Law School have been initiated into the Order of the Coif, the only nationally recognized scholastic honor society in law.

Election to Coif is limited to the top 10 per cent of graduating students. Durant Murrell Glover of Greenville was one of the new members of the Coif.

Three-Planting Set May 14

In conjunction with a bicentennial study, Diana Pearson's class at E. B. Aycock Jr. High School will plant a North Carolina Pine in front of the school to honor America.

The tree will be planted May 14 at 10:30 a.m. and will be dedicated to E. B. Aycock School. Everyone is invited to attend the ceremony.

By EVANS WITT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Cash-starved presidential candidates will have to wait at least a few more days before they receive millions of dollars in matching federal campaign funds, despite President Ford's signature on a bill that releases the money.

The Federal Election Commission is now legally back in the business of handing out matching funds to qualifying candidates, but the new FEC has no members yet. Ford signed the bill restructuring the six-member board Tuesday, but he did not name anyone to the new FEC.

White House officials said they expect Ford to make nominations in the next few days, possibly by Thursday.

Ford said in signing the bill that he has some reservations about the constitutionality of some provisions.

But he said he signed it because "further delay would undermine the fair and proper conduct of elections this year."

It could be less than 24 hours between nomination of the new commissioners and $2.1 million in treasury checks being deposited in the campaign war chests of 11 candidates.

But there could be delays. The process includes Senate confirmation of nominees, which could be done in one day, swearing in ceremonies and checks by the treasury. If Ford nominated the new commissioners Thursday and the Senate acted immediately to confirm them, they could be sworn in and approve the staff recommendations on matching funds that same day.

FEC staff members say that in that case checks to the candidates could be available by late Thursday or Friday.

The candidates have received no federal funds since March 22 as a result of a Supreme Court ruling that the FEC was unconstitutionally structured. Candidates have had to make economies and some have stopped active campaigning.

Ford's GOP opponent, Ronald Reagan, and some Democratic candidates have complained that they have to pay many expenses, especially for travel, in advance, while Ford uses the presidential jet and pays his bills later.

Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., quit actively campaigning for the Democratic nomination, blaming the lack of federal funds.

Ford is in the best shape financially. His campaign manager, Rogers C.B. Morton, has announced a 25 per cent cut in the staff of the President Ford Committee because the Ford campaign is at the upper end of the legal spending limits and must conserve funds for the primaries yet to come and the GOP Convention in August.

Ford stands to gain the most from the first rush of funds from the commission — $865,674 already approved by the FEC staff. Reagan will get $389,895. Ford has requested $1.4 million and Reagan $603,000.

Former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter leads Democrats in funds approved by the FEC staff — $313,886. His pending requests add up to $520,055.

Four Accidents Here Yesterday

An estimated $8,475 property damage resulted yesterday from a series of four traffic collisions investigated by Greenville Police.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 4:25 p.m. collision at the intersection of Tenth and Charles Streets in which Russell Barnhill of Route 3, Greenville was reported injured.

According to Police, a car driven by Barnhill collided with an auto operated by Christine Braum Evins of Route 2, Ayden, causing an estimated $5,400 damage to the Evins car and $900 damage to the Barnhill auto.

No charges were made by officers.

Sharon Yvonne Mobley of Eastbrook Apartments was charged with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 6:23 p.m. collision on the intersection of Officers said the Mobley car collided with a car driven by Wayland Henry Linthium of 407 Latham St., resulting in an estimated $300 damage to the Mobley car and $1,200 damage to the Linthium auto.

No charges were reported in connection with the other two mishaps.

Officers reported a truck driven by David Lee Williams of 509 Sheppard St. and a car operated by Julius Ray Perkins of 1012 Pennsylvania Ave. collided about 8:17 p.m. at the intersection of Sixth Street and Roosevelt Ave. causing an estimated $300 damage to the truck and $50 damage to the car.

Drivers involved in an 8:22 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Charles Street were listed as Robert Franklin Deal of Route 3, Ayden and Janice Annette Tripp of 305 Hillcrest Dr.

Damage from that collision was estimated at $75 to the Deal

Sitcom Producer Has Soviet Family Series

JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Next fall's situation comedies will depict sitcom life in at least eight American cities, including some burg called New York. Diverse locales, but all the shows have one thing in common.

They're being made in Los Angeles. But Rupert Hitzig, a producer by trade, is trying something weird. He's taping a five-episode summer sitcom right here in Fun City. And the series is about a family in Russia, a historic steppe for television.

It's called "Ivan the Terrible," starts Saturday, Aug. 21 on CBS and stars Lou Jacobi as Ivan, head of a nine-member clan that somehow lives in a 3 1/2-room apartment in beautiful downtown Moscow.

Why Moscow? "Well, the premise is that people are alike everywhere," says Hitzig, 36. "Governments may change but the same things affect people everywhere — inflation, crowded subways, the cost of food and so on.

"We felt that with a family in Moscow we could deal with American story lines that are familiar, yet get a double-edged effect out of them by putting them in a society we've sort of considered an adversary."

He said the series will be played "strictly for its comic value," not as a commentary on the different political systems of the United States and Russia.

Hitzig, who is producing the series for a company he and comedian Alan King own here, was asked if any gentlemen with foreign accents — like Russian — had been over to say a few words at him about the show.

"Well, I showed the pilot of the show to a Russian defector, a young student who'd only been out of Moscow for 2 1/2 months," he said. He said the kid, who spoke perfect English, was sent by a friend.

The student saw an episode called "Red Tape," which deals with the difficulties of finding an apartment vacancy in Moscow.

"He was very rigid when he came in to see it and I didn't think I was going to show it to him," Hitzig said. "But I did. And he left with the biggest smile on his face I've ever seen."

He said, "That's just the way it is."

Hitzig was asked if anyone from the Russian consulate here had asked to see "Ivan the Terrible" or if he'd offered to set up a special screening for those in charge there.

He said nyet on both counts. "But we wouldn't mind doing it," he added. "I think they'd be amused."

Hitzig, who hopes CBS renews the show for a possible midseason run, is taking a bit of a chance producing it here. The success rate of the few nighttime shows made in Gotham isn't good, as witness the demise of "Calucci's Department," "Beacon Hill" and Howard Cosell's variety show. None lasted a full season.

But Hitzig is undeterred. For one thing, he thinks the large pool of good, stage-trained actors here makes it easy to cast a show.

For another, he says, "Alan and I are committed to production in New York simply because we love New York."

TO SPEAK — Dr. J. Harry Haines, current director of relief programs for Methodism in the U.S.A. and 55 countries abroad, will speak at St. James United Methodist Church Saturday through Monday. He is a missionary who has served in Malaya, Switzerland and China and an author. On Saturday night at 7:30, special singing will be rendered by Mike and Rhonda Riley. Dr. Haines will speak Sunday at 11 a.m. and the evening service at 7:30 will be directed toward the youth. George Kirch will sing Monday at 7:30 p.m. Following each evening service, there will be an informal dialogue in the fellowship hall with Dr. Haines. The public is invited to attend.

Trophies were presented to the winners by Rev. A. H. Hartfield and Herbert Atkinson.

Trophies were presented to the winners by Rev. A. H. Hartfield and Herbert Atkinson.

Three Escape In Bank Robbery
JACKSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Three robbers escaped with an undisclosed amount Tuesday from a branch of the First Citizens bank.

One of them displayed a gun during the holdup at the Western Boulevard branch.

The Onslow County sheriff's office said a search was launched for a late model car occupied by three men.

name she did read, was Gerald Gordon, Emmyized for his acting work in a different segment of "First Ladies' Diaries."

No doubt Miss Shore, the kindest of women, is mortified. But one doubts this would happen in the Oscar show. It's an indication of why the Emmys are to awards-giving what Coxy's Army was to efficient soldiering.

Public TV got barely a cheer in Tuesday's Emmy show, with only the Muppets of "Sesame Street" taking home a trophy.

In children's daytime programs, NBC's "GO" series got an Emmy, as did a Danny Kaye opera special and "Happy Anniversary, Charlie Brown" on CBS, "Grammar Rock" on ABC and the syndicated "Big Blue Marble" series.

Miss Shore's syndicated "Dinah" series took home three Emmys. She got one to add to her collection, her show got one and Glen Swanson, a director of the show, got one.

In the game show department, ABC's "The $20,000 Pyramid" got two Emmys, one for the program, one for its direction by Mike Gargiulo. And Allen Ludden of ABC's "Password" got an Emmy as best game show host.

In the soap opera category, Larry Haines of CBS' "Search for Tomorrow" and Helen Gallagher of "Ryan's Hope" on ABC each took home Emmys for acting. NBC's "Another World" was named the best soap opera.

As Emmy shows go, Tuesday's 1 1/2-hour effort, held at Lincoln Center here, moved along briskly and relatively painlessly, even with 10 timeouts for a total of 37 commercials.

It was far superior to last year's night-time Emmy show, an incredibly dull two-hour binge of awarding. I figured that about 111 persons took home Emmys for their nighttime program work, receiving them at the rate of about 1.08 Emmys per minute.

ABC has the evening Emmy duty this year. It has taken steps to streamline the awarding and offer more actual entertainment when it broadcasts the night-time Emmy ceremonies next Monday from Los Angeles.

If ABC accomplishes that feat, it should get, ah, an Emmy?

Why it makes more sense to lease a Mercedes-Benz than any other make of luxury car sold in America.

Even after 5 years, a Mercedes-Benz holds its value better than any other make of luxury car. That saves you money when you lease. Because a car that retains its value better, is a better value at the end of the lease.

The result: Lower expenses for us, lower leasing costs for you.

Come in and talk to our leasing specialist. See why it makes more sense to lease a Mercedes-Benz than any other make of luxury car.
