Third St. School Repair Work Reported Possible

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Superintendent of city schools Glenn Cox, reporting Monday night to a workshop session of the Greenville Board of Education, said the architect and structural engineer inspecting Third Street Elementary School "feel the (discrepancies) can be corrected, as the masonry structure of the school appears sound."

At the workshop session, held at Wahl-Coates Elementary School, and attended by about 150 persons, Cox noted that architect Calvin Howell of Hays, Howell and Associates of Southern Pines and W.H. Gardner, a structural engineer of W.H. Gardner Associates of Durham, both visited the school Monday. Cox emphasized that the inspection by the two "constitutes a preliminary evaluation on their part. They will take the information they found, the information we gave them and prepare written reports. We expect these before the week is out."

School was closed at the end of the school day Friday after being inspected Thursday and condemned for occupancy.

"The primary concern is the floors," Cox explained, "and Gardner and Howell at this point feel this condition can be corrected. Some of the others (deficiencies) listed are normal maintenance type items."

Cox pointed out that added pressure from two new boilers contributed to the rapid deterioration of the school's floors. "The added pressure created increased seepage of moisture," he said. "Without proper ventilation this seems basically to have been the primary reason for the rapid deterioration of floors."

In response to a query from board member Mrs. Terry Shank about cost estimates, Cox said "It is my assumption the reports we receive will include a cost estimate."

Cox reported that representatives from the office of Dr. J. L. Pierce of the State Division of School Planning will also come to Greenville on Friday to inspect the building.

What we will have to do, Cox said, "is for the board to meet with all these groups, to study the reports, to ask questions and then decide whether architectural drawings will be necessary, that sort of thing."

"All of the information should be available prior to the June board meeting," he added. "We need interpretations on how to complete the required work, how far we should go, the economic feasibility of repairs in light of the life span of the building."

Cuba Pulling Troops Out Of Angola, Avers Castro

LUXEMBOURG (AP) — Fidel Castro has written Swedish Prime Minister Olof Palme that he is withdrawing Cuban troops from Angola at the rate of 200 men a week, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said today.

Prime Minister Olof Palme and other Swedes were among the leading non-Communist critics of American participation in the Vietnam war. Palme said he invited Kissinger to Sweden to restore relations between the Swedish and American governments to their former friendly status.

"We want to check the report independently," Kissinger told newsmen on his plane as he flew from Stockholm to Luxembourg. "If it turns out to be correct, we consider it a positive development."

Castro's letter was sent to Palme via the Soviet government on May 21, two days before Kissinger arrived in Stockholm, with a note saying it should be shown to the secretary of state.

A senior American official aboard Kissinger's plane said Castro also told Palme he was not sending troops anywhere else in Africa or in Latin America.

Kissinger flew today to Luxembourg for a brief visit to the smallest member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and then was going on to London. He told the Swedes during his two-day visit that their neutrality depends on the strength of the United States and its allies.

An official of the Swedish Foreign Ministry said Castro wrote Palme half the Cuban force in Angola would be withdrawn by the end of the year. The official said there was no indication when the rest would be pulled out.

"The neutrality of some is made possible by the strength and commitment of others," Kissinger said Monday night in a toast at a dinner given for him by Foreign Minister Sven Andersson.

"A partial withdrawal does not meet our requirements," said Kissinger, whose government has refused to deal with the new Angolan government as long as the Cuban troops who helped put it in power remain in the former Portuguese African colony.

He told a news conference Monday afternoon: "Sweden could not defend itself by itself without the existence of NATO."

But the senior American official on the plane said a timetable showing systematic progress would be acceptable to the United States. He added that Washington also might not object to a small force of about 500 Cuban technicians remaining in Angola.

Questioned repeatedly by the newsmen about the Vietnam war, Kissinger acknowledged that "in retrospect, grave mistakes were made" by the United States in Southeast Asia.

Current U.S. estimates put Cuban strength in Angola at between 13,000 and 15,000. But it was learned that it takes at least four weeks for the Central Intelligence Agency to detect and confirm Cuban troop movements to or from the African nation.

But he said successive American administrations waged the war with the support of the American people "in the belief that the freedom of other people depended on it." He pointed out that 50,000 Americans died in Vietnam and added: "It was perhaps more painful for those directly involved than for those who have the advantage of perspective" gained by distance and time.

Primaries In Six States

NEW YORK (AP) — All six states holding presidential primaries Tuesday allocate their national convention delegates in both parties according to the popular vote.

Here, at a glance, are some facts and figures on Tuesday's voting

ARKANSAS
PRECINCTS: 465 Republican; 2,575 Democratic.
DELEGATES: Republican 27; Democrats 26.

Coffman To Head Ass'n

George Coffman of Coffman's Men's Wear, Evans Mall, was elected president of the Downtown Greenville Association during the organization's annual election session.

GEORGE COFFMAN

Coffman, who takes office immediately, succeeds outgoing charter president Morris Brody who headed the association during its initial year of operation.

In addition to Coffman, other officers selected by association members included Bill Taft Jr. as vice president, and Mrs. Anne Guerrant, treasurer. Dave Mosier was reelected executive director and secretary.

The Downtown Association, with a primary function of trade promotion for the downtown section of the city, currently has a membership of 67 businesses.

Reagan Supporters In N.C. Take Control Of Tar Heel Delegation

RALEIGH (AP) — Supporters of Ronald Reagan have taken control of North Carolina's 54-member delegation to the Republican National Convention.

Reagan backers have so dominated the delegate selection up to now that there's a possibility Gov. Jim Holshouser and 9th District Congressman Jim Martin may not be delegates because of their support of President Ford.

There are factions in the state GOP. One wing, generally behind Holshouser, supported Ford in the March 23rd state presidential primary. The other, aligned with Sen. Jesse Helms and regarded as more conservative, is in Reagan's camp.

Holshouser has tried to negotiate a deal with Helms for Ford and Reagan backers to be equally represented in the delegation at Kansas City this summer. One such meeting took place last month, but no bargain was struck.

Meanwhile, Reagan partisans have turned out in sizable numbers at county and congressional district conventions to elect their delegates.

"What you've seen is political lesson No. 1," said the state's Republican executive vice president, Kent Hayes. "That is, get your people out at the grass-roots level if you want to control elections."

Of the 27 delegates chosen so far in district conventions, 24 are backing Reagan, only two are for Ford, and one is uncommitted.

Party sources say that unless the Ford people can mount a quick campaign to get his backers elected, it is likely the majority, if not all, the remaining delegates will be Reagan's.

This could be important at the national convention. On the first ballot, the delegates will be bound by the primary results to cast 28 votes for Reagan, 25 for Ford, and one uncommitted.

But in all other convention matters, including any additional nominating ballots, the North Carolina delegates can vote any way they wish. Thus, if Ford, who now is slightly ahead in the national delegate count, fails to get the required 1,130 votes for nomination on the first ballot, he will have little support from North Carolina on later ballots.

That's why Reaganites have worked so hard to control the delegate selections in North Carolina, says Raleigh lawyer Tom Ellis, Reagan's state campaign coordinator and a Helms ally.

Two other North Carolina guardsmen were injured in the accident.

HOTLINE

752-1336

Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell your problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used. Transcribing is done once a day.

COIN CLUB?

Is there a coin collector's club here in Greenville, or a coin association of any type? B.W.

George Fleming, who graciously answers most of Hotline's coin-collecting questions, says there is none that he knows of, though there has been in the past. If others are interested in forming a club, he said he'd be glad to help. His phone number is 756-1775.

TRY CASHIER'S CHECK

A large part of Hotline's work involves mail orders which are slow in being delivered. We have a suggestion which might speed up many: If at all possible, send a cashier's check, instead of a personal one, as, in almost every instance, a company will have a policy of being sure that a check clears before sending out merchandise. A cashier's check is, of course, proof in itself that your check is good, and the order may be dispatched upon receipt.

Several banks Hotline surveyed said the cost of having a cashier's check drawn is 50 cents, so, of course, it would be up to the individual as to whether the extra cost is worth the possibility of decreasing the order time.

Suspects Hoax In 'Big Foot' Abduction Report

EUREKA, Calif. (AP) — A young woman reported abducted in rugged mountains by a hairy, ape-like creature known as Bigfoot has shown up screaming outside a rural resort, apparently unhurt.

"She's not in too bad a shape," Humboldt County Sheriff Gene Cox said Monday night, adding that he believed the whole affair had been a hoax.

Cox said Cherie Darvell, 23, of Redding, Calif., had some minor scratches and bruises on her arms, and told a nurse her left arm hurt. She was taken to Humboldt Medical Center at Hoopa for examination shortly after she was found late Monday night.

Miss Darvell appeared outside the Bluff Creek Resort, about five miles from where she was reported abducted on Saturday, Cox said.

She was mumbling, "They wouldn't stop and pick me up," he said.

One of her tennis shoes was missing, but her clothing was clean and she smelled of perfume when found, Cox said.

He reported that when investigators asked her if she had been abducted by the legendary monster, she began to scream and refused to answer any questions.

"I still think it's a hoax," said Cox. "I still don't believe that she was abducted by Bigfoot."

Miss Darvell's friends said she was an unemployed beautician who also used the name Cherie Nelson.

She was one of five members of an independent film crew trying to photograph Bigfoot, a creature reported sighted in this Northern California area many times during the past 20 years. The crew kept its cameras rolling while up to 150 persons conducted a search for the missing woman.

Meanwhile, at the Bigfoot Research Center in The Dalles, Ore., director Peter Byrne said two associates were investigating to determine whether Bigfoot really was involved. Byrne said he personally was skeptical, although the size of the footprints was consistent with previous finds.

Scientists never have confirmed the creature's existence, but Byrne said he thinks Bigfoot is a "fossil man of some kind, not an ape."

Natural Fibers Are Favored

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

"Style dictates fabric, fabric does not dictate style," says Byron Clark, board chairman of the American Home Sewing Council.

"Three or four years ago, you could sell anything that was knit. Now people are returning to natural fibers, easy care fabrics that are washable. It's the whole ecology thing."

Clark's comments were made in an interview on the eve of the Fall-Winter '76 National Home Sewing Show in New York City. It was sponsored by the council, an organization of 175 textile, sewing notion and pattern manufacturers.

Clark and other council members said the home sewing boom peaked about five years ago, when clothing prices reached an all-time high, styles were changing rapidly, and home sewers had a lot of free time.

Television now has great impact, he said: "A woman sees a fashion on TV and wants to copy it."

It is easier to do these days because new patterns come into retail stores at the same time as new ready-to-wear styles.

Clark estimated that more than 40-million women in the United States sew.

"The 25-to 35-year-olds are still a big market," he said. "They have two or three kids, they're living in suburbia."

"Kids on Seventh Avenue set the styles. Designers see them walking around, they see the looks (that are popular). Ethnics are big right now."

Trend-spotting at the trade show:

"Stretch belting really has taken off," said Harry Wrona of Buffalo, N.Y. It has the natural look of straw.

The heat transfer (iron-on) technique that helped boost T-shirt fashions now has been applied to rhinestones. It eliminates the need for prongs and metal backs that can make a wearer feel she's clad in chain mail. The new rhinestones are made in Austria and sold packaged or in readymade designs.

Lester Bader, a trimmings manufacturer from Spring Valley, N.Y., said the Bicentennial is an exceptional year for rufflings and clunys (bobbin laces), and the belly dance craze has increased demand for fringes and metallic trim with dangling coins.

Traditional dish toweling and birdseye diaper cloth also are coming back — the first, for customers who want to save energy doing dishes by hand and save money by making their own towels. "Home Sewing Trade News," the publication that reported both trends, expects diapercloth to be used for fashion items as well as babies' behinds.

All-season fabrics are big sellers, along with batiks and other ethnic designs, said psychologist Mary Gordon of Natick, Mass., who took over her husband's Natick Mills after his death.

"The travel trend eliminates the seasons, the demand for heavy fabrics," she said. "With heated cars and houses, there's not much difference between seasons now."

Mrs. Gordon said young people are largely responsible for the declining popularity of manmade fabrics: "Young people won't be seen in them. The return to natural fibers is very pronounced."

Changes also are occurring in the homefurnishings industry. Mrs. Gordon said a shortage of skilled labor is responsible for factory-sewn slipcovers replacing those made in retail merchants' stitching rooms.

"The change in the status of women has affected (home sewing) tremendously, and it is going to increase," Mrs. Gordon said. "Young families with big mortgages and taxes have to have two incomes to make ends meet."

She said most women who hold jobs away from home have little or no time to make wearing apparel and home decorating items.

"I think it is the middle income family that does the sewing," Mrs. Gordon said, adding that "people are buying cautiously. There's not the variety there used to be."

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

What have we become in 200 years?

If we were filling a Bicentennial time capsule to represent American life in 1976, what would we include?

TWA's Ambassador magazine took a poll of celebrities and got some interesting answers that ran the gamut from a Bible and a credit card to a Watergate tape and a Peanuts cartoon.

No one asked me, but whenever I think of the sights, sounds, and smells of 1976, three things come to mind.

The smell of '76, of course, was the herbal. I'd put an herbal into the capsule. Don't ask me what an herbal looks like. All I know is we all smell like one. A day without herbal at our house is like a day without soap, shampoo, deodorant or air freshener.

Sometimes I feel like I am living on Christmas tree ridge.

A few years ago, we all smelled like lemon, but then long hair came in and people began to pucker every time a teenager walked into the room, so the shift went to herbal.

There is probably no other single item in our house that generates so much conversation as the herbal shampoo. Who has it? Who used it last? How much is left?

What would you put in the capsule for the sound of '76? A flick of a Bic? John Denver's voice wailing, "Far out"? Or the swooshing of a flip top off a billion beverage cans?

I opt for a long-playing

Officers Named By Secretaries Chapter

The May meeting of the Greenville Chapter of the National Secretaries Association was held Monday night at the Three Steers.

Immediately after dinner, a program entitled "Tomorrow's Career Woman" was presented by Mrs. Judith Stancill, a member of the Greenville Chapter.

During the business session, President Yvonne Hardee presented a $100 scholarship to Miss Loretta Anderson. Miss Anderson, a charter member of the Pitt Technical Institute Future Secretaries Association Chapter, has completed one year of the secretarial science program.

She is also a member of Gamma Beta Phi, the Pitt Technical Institute Honor Society, and is employed part-time as a clerk and offset printer by the City of Greenville. Accompanying Miss Anderson was her advisor at Pitt Technical Institute, Mrs. Ann Byrd.

The 1976-77 officers were installed by the outgoing president, Mrs. Hardee. A candle lighting ceremony was used for the installation.

Installed as president was Mrs. Brenda Wilson. Mrs. Wilson has been a member of the chapter since its formation in 1973. She has previously served as a director, has been chairman of the Membership Committee and the Rules and By-Laws Committee and this past year served as vice president.

Other officers installed were Vice President, Mrs. Betty Thompson; Recording Secretary, Mrs. Brenda Gispon; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Myrtle McRoy; Treasurer, Mrs. Karen Averette; and Directors, Mrs. Ellen Webb; Mrs. Barbara Evans; and Mrs. Margie Davis.

Working Daughter Has Father Problem

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 32-year-old woman who has been divorced for six years. I have two children, and we live with my parents.

My mother is home all day, which makes it possible for me to work. Having my own place would put a strain on my budget, and in my line of work, I have to dress well and own my own car. (I do pay for our room and board.)

My father is narrow-minded, domineering and unreasonable. My mother is afraid to speak up to him. If I'm not in by midnight, he comes looking for me. He has burst into places, insulted my escorts and literally dragged me home. My friends are respectable, but after such a scene, they never call again.

I don't want to move out, as it's very convenient having my mother look after my children, keep house and cook for us, but I can't live this way, either. What would you do?

BIG PROBLEM

DEAR BIG: Which do you want more—the convenience of a live-in cook, cleaning woman and 24-hour baby-sitting service? Or the freedom to live your own life? Obviously, you can't have both. If I were you, I'd choose the latter. And the longer you wait, the more difficult it will be.

DEAR ABBY: You keep saying that the male determines the sex of a child. I suppose you know what you're talking about, but can you please explain it without getting too scientific and technical so the average person can understand it?

Thank you.

WANTS TO LEARN

DEAR WANTS: All right, here goes: The sex of a child is determined when the male sperm fertilizes the female's egg. The male sperm contains "X" and "Y" chromosomes in equal numbers while the woman's eggs contains only "X" chromosomes. When the "Y" chromosome is in the sperm that fertilizes a woman's egg, a male is produced. When the "X" chromosome is in the sperm that fertilizes a woman's egg, a female is produced.

So if the father isn't happy with the sex of the child his wife has produced, he has only himself to blame.

Strike another blow for Women's Lib!

DEAR ABBY: I am a senior in high school and am quite popular because I'm very good at sports.

I am going with a beautiful girl (I'll call her Cindy) who is also very popular and well-liked. We've been going steady for five months, and here is the problem: Cindy wants to go all the way. We've done pretty much everything except that.

I love her very much, but I have a scholarship to a great university and a reputation as being an all-around high-class kid with my parents, faculty and peers. A baby would wreck my education, sports career and my life maybe.

Cindy keeps bugging me to go to bed with her, but I keep putting her off. I'm afraid if I don't give in I'll lose her, she'll spread rumors, and the guys at school will think I'm a queer or something.

What should I do?

A LIMIT ON LOVE

DEAR LIMIT: Tell Cindy that you aren't ready for that kind of relationship. (You aren't.) And if Cindy were to tell her peers that you refused her offer of sex, HER reputation—not yours—would be damaged.

Hooray for you. You are all man—and then some.

BRAN SCRAPPLE

Really delicious way to add fiber to a dish.

½ pound bulk pork sausage
1 cup water
1-3rd cup yellow cornmeal
1-3rd cup whole bran cereal

In a heavy skillet cook and brown sausage, crumbling with a fork. Drain sausage; refrigerate fat for later use. In a small saucepan bring the water to a boil; gradually stir in the cornmeal; continue stirring over low heat as it bubbles and thickens until it is as thick as mush. Off heat, stir in the sausage and bran, mixing thoroughly. Turn into a small loaf pan (5¾ by 3¼ by 2¼ inches) that has been rinsed with cold water. Chill. At serving time, loosen edges and unmold. Cut into 8 crosswise slices. Heat some of the saved sausage fat in a heavy 9- or 10-inch skillet; add the scrapple slices and brown quickly on both sides. Serve with maple syrup. Makes 2 good-size servings.

The salad green called "corn salad" is now grown in the United States. Sometimes it is called shepherd's purse. It tastes good teamed with cooked beets that are thinly sliced or cut toothpick size.

POPULAR FOOD

CHICAGO (UPI) — Sales of frozen Mexican-style foods sold in the United States is expected to total $60 to $65 million when the 1975 figures are in. Frozen Food Facts, a publication of the frozen food industry, theorizes that the popularity of this type of food stems from an accelerated trend away from formal family meals and the number of individual products that can be eaten out of hand.

FAST EATERS

CHICAGO (UPI) — Workmen on the Alaskan pipeline eat fast on their jobs before their food freezers after they reheat it with blow torches. The National Live Stock and Meat Board, Chicago, says their meals are precooked in kitchens and easily frozen. The problem of reheating and rapid eating occurs when the temperature at the job site remains below zero.

STARCHY FOOD

ANNAPOLIS (UPI) — A scientist at the Oregon Research Institute and an enthusiastic marathon runner says starchy foods help runners and other endurance athletes set records.

"Nutrition Today," a magazine for health professionals, quotes the doctor as saying diet is more important than dedication and at least as important as training. He said the basic research was done in Sweden. Using a special prerace diet emphasizing carbohydrates, he found it cut six to 10 minutes off the times of his test runners over a marathon course of 42 kilometers, or more than 26 miles. His super-compensation diet begins one week before a race.

Ford Passes Halfway Mark In Delegates Quest

By DON McLEOD
Associated Press Writer
President Ford has passed the halfway mark in his quest for the Republican presidential nomination and Democrat Jimmy Carter has a chance to reach the same milestone as six states held presidential primaries today.

And Missouri Democrats were to select 54 delegates in district conventions tonight — more delegates than were at stake in any of the individual six primaries.

Ford's delegate strength was pushed over the halfway mark on Monday when 119 previously uncommitted New York delegates agreed to give up their uncommitted status and throw in with the President at the urging of Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller.

Carter, meanwhile, was predicting he would win 100 or more of the 191 delegates being contested in today's primaries in Arkansas, Idaho, Kentucky, Nevada, Oregon and Tennessee.

With the 740 he already has, this would give him well over half the 1,505 he needs for nomination.

Missouri's conventions will be held in the state's 10 congressional districts. The 14 other members of the state's 71-member delegation will be selected at the state convention June 12.

Party officials predict that Carter will make a strong showing as a result of endorsements earlier this month of Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton and other party leaders.

Although Ford's 701 is more than half the 1,130 needed for the GOP nomination, he faces a much tighter race than Carter does. Carter's nearest rival is Rep. Morris K. Udall with 292.5 delegate votes.

Oregon shapes up as the critical battleground for both parties. For one thing, it may be Reagan's last chance before the GOP convention to prove he can win a state with a middle-ground electorate.

The former California governor has yet to win outside the South and West with the exception of conservative Indiana and is still to carry a major Northern industrial state. Oregon also is the only place where Carter is being tested on anything approaching equal terms, and failure of his remaining rivals to stall him there could put his bandwagon beyond stopping.

Carter was favored in the southern states voting today and risked little disgrace for any loss to Sen. Frank Church in Church's home state of Idaho or to California Gov. Edmund G. Brown, Jr., in his neighbor state of Nevada. Oregon also carries the distinction of a traditional bellwether. No presidential candidate since 1924 has lost the primary there and still gone on to win the White House.

One recent poll, taken by the Portland Oregonian newspaper, showed Ford with a comfortable lead over Reagan for the 30 GOP delegates. The state has a history of moderate Republicanism.

On the Democratic side, the same poll showed Carter leading in early May, but Church has been campaigning hard to catch him. Brown is waging a write-in campaign. There are 34 Democratic delegates at stake.

Area Athletes Garner Special Olympic Honors

On Friday, 23 athletes from the Pitt County Area attended the North Carolina State Special Olympics held in Raleigh. Over 900 participants from throughout the state attended the event.

Opening ceremonies were held at Meredith College, which also acted as host for the athletes. Saturday morning, all athletes traveled to N.C. State Track where events were held.

Medal winners from Pitt County were:

Henry Taylor, silver, 50 yard dash; Johnny Barnhill, gold and broad jump; Debra Everette, gold and bronze, broad jump and 50 yard dash; Dennis Pearse, gold and silver, softball throw and wheelchair race; Joseph Gillihan, gold, softball throw; and Val Latham, silver, 50 yard dash.

Also Donnie Holland, gold and bronze, softball throw and running long jump; Mary Clark, gold, running long jump; Carlton Anderson, two silver medals, running long jump and 50 yard dash; William Hunter, silver, running long jump; Gregory Williams, silver, running long jump; James Fenner, silver, 50 yard dash; Joyce Mewborn, silver and bronze, 50 yard dash and softball throw; and Christabell Grimes, silver and bronze, broad jump and running long jump.

Ribbon winners were: Mike Jones, Linwood Civils, Amanda Murphy, Diane Downing, Nancy Cayton, Alice Quiggins, Williams Dixon, Nathan Sawyer, and David James.

After the events, all athletes attended a Victory Dance at Meredith College. Closing ceremonies were held Sunday morning by the puppeteers of the First Baptist Church of Raleigh.

Pitt YDC Announces Hosting State Meet

The Young Democrats of Pitt County have announced plans to host the State Young Democrats meeting here Saturday, June 5, at the Holiday Inn here.

Carl D. Darden, past president of the Pitt County Young Democrats, has been elected State President. Darden will be installed by Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt.

John E. Prevette Jr., president of the Pitt County Young Democrats, said he is hoping that about 600 people will attend the all-day event. Registration will begin at 10 a.m. at the Holiday Inn. Committee meetings and workshops will begin at noon.

A forum will be held for lieutenant governor candidates. The candidates will be given a chance to present their platforms and answer questions from the audience. All candidates running for the state's second highest office will be on hand to meet the public.

Prevette said a banquet will be held at the Moose Lodge, with a social hour at 6:30 p.m. Tickets are being sold for $10. There will be no tickets sold at the door. Noel Robbins, vice president, is the ticket sales chairperson, and is the one to contact for tickets.

Lectures On Self-Esteem

Over 75 women from across the state gathered at The Way House in Greenville Sunday to study the self-esteem of women as described in the Bible.

The Women's Day, as the one-day conference was called, began at 10:30 a.m. with Rev. David Turk, Area Coordinator of The Way of Washington D.C. presenting greetings. Rev. Turk coordinated the work of The Way of North Carolina from 1974 to 1975.

Mrs. Kip Holdren, speaker for the day and wife of the president of The Way of N.C. said, "Women need to see themselves from God's viewpoint, as lovely and acceptable. When they love God with all their heart and love themselves with the unconditional love of God, they will have no trouble at all loving others."

Discussion groups and crafts displays followed the speaker's lecture.

Officers Named By Civitan Club

Steve Coggins has been elected president of the Greenville Civitan Club for the 1976-1977 year.

Other officers for the coming year include president-elect Richard Stevenson; vice-president Hugh Wease; secretary Robert Klein and treasurer Harold Jones.

Coggins replaces Jim Rodgers as head of the Civitan Club.

Greenville Civitans support several community service programs, including programs for the mentally retarded and prevention of mental retardation.

Concern Over Condemnation

The condemnation of the Third Street School building Friday by city building and fire inspectors was surprising and distressing.

Particularly was this true since under the city board of education's plan for school attendance next fall the Third Street School is to be an important part of the overall elementary school facilities.

It concerns us that the school could reach the deteriorated condition that would call for its immediate condemnation and closing and we are equally concerned that the inspections came only after the school's use next fall became a matter of dispute.

At the same time we would hope that no effort will be made to make further use of the school for the final two weeks of this school year. Questions have been raised about its safety; the school children have already been settled in other schools and we should take no chances by making further use of the building for the remainder of this school year.

On the other hand we have no doubt that the necessary repairs and renovations can be made to the building to put it in safe and usable condition for use next fall, if school officials adopt the school attendance plan that is now being considered.

School authorities are now assessing the building's conditions and, in fact, renovation had already been previously planned for this summer. We would expect this work to be expedited so that the building will be usable next fall.

Regular Inspection Program Is Needed

Last week's incident of the condemnation of Third Street School should tell both school and city authorities that a schedule of regular inspections of all city schools and public buildings is needed.

We should not wait until some dispute arises to make those inspections; they should be done on a regular basis.

If Third Street School was dangerous last week as the inspectors reported, it was also dangerous the week before when children and staff were using it.

Let's set up regular inspections programs to avoid future problems such as this.

Schools To Get Scrutiny

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—Problems in North Carolina's public schools were much on the minds of legislators in the recent session of the General Assembly, even though little was done about them.

If nothing else, though, light was shed on the complexities of the situation, and thinking has begun which could lead to some serious study and proposed changes in the 1977 General Assembly.

The one big fight this year was over the research and testing operation of the Department of Public Instruction.

That conflict got all mixed up in personalities and politics and despite long effort by a study commission came down to a deadlock between the Senate and the House of Representatives. The agency survives, but light was shined on serious shortcomings—principally that testing is done statewide without means of pinpointing successes and failures in individual school districts or units; and test results can be manipulated in many ways to suit particular aims.

Meddling

Senators saw the situation as legislative meddling in the administrative affairs of A. Craig Phillips, superintendent of Public Instruction, and as part of the continuing feud between Phillips and State Board of Education Chairman Dallas Herring.

House members saw it as further legislative effort to resolve conflicts between the philosophy of basic education and innovation; and an attempt to clip the wings of major investment of state money in various bureaucratic and supervisory programs rather than in classrooms.

In all, the argument boiled down to anti-Phillips forces in the House versus pro-Phillips forces in the Senate.

But State Rep. Thomas B. Hunter, D-Richmond, thinks the debate helped set the stage for further attention to problems in the public schools during coming months and years. An insurance man with no background in education, Hunter has chaired the House Education Committee for two years, and was co-chairman of the study commission on the research agency.

He was deliberately picked for his role in education because he lacked professional experience and loyalties, and he thinks the real point regarding testing has been lost in the turmoil: "The real point in student test results is that we don't know how an individual unit is doing...there is no way for local people to tell how well or how poorly their schools are doing."

Shift Blame

And local officials are not likely to tell them, Hunter thinks. "Everybody likes to shift the blame." The blame is usually shifted to Raleigh, with Phillips taking the force of criticism for the failures of local principals, superintendents, and school boards. Actually, Hunter agrees, the state department has little to do with discipline in local schools, or the abilities of local teachers to teach basics. Those are matters in the hands of local school boards and administrators.

Out of the complexities, Hunter sees two main areas in which new state law is needed, and will probably be forthcoming:

—Minimum standards are needed to require basic instruction in reading, writing, and arithmetic in the first three grades of school. "If you don't get it then, you have problems from then on...that's what we mean by basic education."

State standards would not interfere with the much-desired local autonomy, but would fix the responsibility—and blame—where it belongs, Hunter feels.

—Drastic change is required in teacher preparation and certification. The teachers graduating from college are in many cases simply not prepared to teach properly, Hunter feels, and thinks change is needed in training methods and curriculum in the colleges.

Hunter believes a rigid testing system is needed before a teacher is certified, and before hired at the local level. The object would be to make certain the prospect is well trained and educated before placing the person in a classroom.

H-H Bill Still Baloney

When this nice plump package was unwrapped in March, it was described as the Hubert H. Humphrey-Augustus F. Hawkins Full Employment and Balanced Growth Act of 1976. This soon was whittled down to the Humphrey-Hawkins bill, then to Hump-Hawks, then to H-H.

No matter how thin you slice it, it's still baloney.

Baloney or not, the H-H bill has become a kind of talisman in the presidential campaign. A talisman is a stone, or ring, or charm that is supposed to work wonders; it is a source of occult power; it is hocus-pocus, dominocus.

One by one, the Democratic candidates have been put to the test: Do you believe in Humphrey-Hawkins?

Jimmy Carter was at first a doubter, but he got the Hump-Hawk religion; he is born again, and now believes. Jerry Brown remains a skeptic, but he has become an agreeable skeptic; he would give it a try. Senator Humphrey, of course, believes absolutely. So does Senator Birch Bayh. The AFL-CIO fully supports the measure. More than 100 members of the House are co-sponsors in the lower chamber.

The H-H bill is 100 percent pure liberalism. Its economic thinking contains no synthetics, no preservatives, no artificial flavors. It is the whole-grain product. Its benevolent purpose is to get the unemployment rate down to 3 percent within four years, but that is only the beginning of the millennial delights.

Senator Humphrey, whose innocent faith is positively boundless, believes his talismanic scheme would also reduce crime, reduce drug addiction, and reduce vandalism. It would achieve nearly universal prosperity. It would benefit labor, industry, big business, little business, women, children and minorities. It would diminish heart attacks, alcoholism, infant mortality, mental disorders and suicides. It would be good for man or beast. It would produce a balanced budget by fiscal 1979 and a $13.9 billion surplus in calendar 1980. The permanent new mechanisms created by the bill would put an end to inflation and recession. Under H-H, we would live happily ever after.

You may well inquire: How would all this be achieved? Alas, it is at this point that the magic charm begins to lose its luster. Mr. Humphrey stoutly insists that he is proposing "fundamental reform in the management of the economy." What he is proposing is more of the same old patented extract—more bureaucracy, more grants-in-aid, more manpower training programs, more makework jobs in the public sector. Mr. Humphrey is the liberals' Lydia Pinkham. He has here bottled the same kind of vegetable compound on which little old ladies once got genteelly blotto. The H-H

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court decision allowing pharmacists to advertise the prices of their prescription drugs may mean that customers will pay less for medication, according to a consumer group involved in the case.

Alan B. Morrison, who represented the Virginia Citizens' Council in the case that led to the court's Monday ruling, said, "I would expect that some pharmacy chains will start advertising prices and that prices will start coming down."

The seven-man court majority said consumers have a constitutional right to receive information on prescription drug prices.

The court rejected arguments by Virginia officials, whose state law against advertisement of prescription drugs was challenged. State officials argued that the advertising ban was

THE INSIDE REPORT

Carter-Stoppers Hoping

By ROWLAND EVANS

and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—The mere fact that Joe Crangle, canny New York political pro, quietly took up residence in the Hay-Adams Hotel here before Carter's very bad day last Tuesday—reveals much about the aspirations he and other anti-Carterites still have for heading Carter off with Hubert H. Humphrey.

Carter's near-disaster in Michigan's primary thus came as an unexpected lift for Crangle. He arrived here from Buffalo, where he is Democratic chairman of Erie County, armed with a plan to form an "independent committee" to promote Sen. Humphrey for the presidential nomination.

On the heels of Carter's razor-edge win over Rep. Morris Udall in Michigan, the state where Carter had everything on paper going his way, plus his smashing 12-point loss to Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. in Maryland, Joe Crangle's mission suddenly looked slightly less than impossible. Indeed, Carter's tumbles and near-tumbles in New York, Wisconsin, Connecticut, Nebraska, Michigan and Maryland have led some Democratic politicians to find incongruous—but dangerous—vulnerabilities in the former governor of Georgia.

On paper, Carter still seems all but unstoppable with at least 1,000 delegates before he even arrives at the Madison Square Garden convention. But on paper, backed by the powerful United Auto Workers, by the popular black Mayor Coleman Young of Detroit and by the party's most recent gubernatorial nominee, Carter seemed assured of a big win over Udall in Michigan. Politics is psychology as well as numbers, and Carter's poor showings seem to prove, as one party official told us, "that a helluva lot of Democrats just don't want to vote for Jimmy Carter."

Crangle's "independent committee" will probably be headed by Illinois Rep. Paul Simon, a long-time Humphrey booster. It will differ radically from an earlier version which Humphrey himself aborted on April 29, following Carter's impressive victory in Pennsylvania.

The new committee, which will permit legal fund-raising and formation of a Humphrey-for-President organization, will shun visible connection with the Senator's political base in Minnesota. It was that connection, Crangle and Simon believe, which enabled Humphrey to veto the post-Pennsylvania effort.

Indeed, Crangle, Simon and other stop-Carter Democratic leaders were livid over Humphrey's damaging decision to hold a massive press conference on April 29 to announce his refusal "to authorize any committee" to promote his candidacy. The statement along with its dramatic setting was such overkill that a pro-Humphrey letter to 17,000 party officeholders signed by Simon never even got mailed. Now a similar letter is in the works.

There is not a particle of doubt that Humphrey, who is turning 65, covets the nomination. Humphrey is bitter that Robert Strauss, Democratic national chairman, and other party big wheels, made clear after Pennsylvania that they felt Carter had the nomination locked up.

Moreover, Humphrey flatly disregarded Strauss's private advice that Humphrey not accept an invitation to breakfast with Democratic state chairmen at a May 7 meeting in Manhattan. As of today, his speaking schedule is full. Last week, for example, he flew to St. Clairsville, Ohio, to speak for Rep. Wayne Hays—who is running against Carter in six congressional districts in the June 8 presidential primary.

All this may be fruitless, but that does not make it (Continued on page 5)

Other Editors Say Friends On 'List'

(Goldboro News-Argus)

The North Carolina Association of Educators has issued a "sanctions alert" as a result of having received only a four per cent plus $300 salary increase from the General Assembly.

A sanctions alert, we gather, is something akin to a storm watch.

Specifically, the NCAE says it is going to work for the election of those who supported their requested 16 per cent pay hike and against those who refused to do so.

That's taking on the majority of both houses of the General Assembly.

In our form of government, one has a perfect right to fight hard for those things that are his best advantage.

And teachers, collectively, pack a considerable wallop at the polls.

Legislators, in turn, have a great obligation to teachers and other state employees who must depend on legislative action for the pay.

But the responsibility of the legislators extends far beyond their obligations to our teachers.

They have a statutory responsibility for the fiscal soundness of state government. They have a responsibility to all the people of the state—and the average income of those people ranks among the lowest in the nation. And it is from the people, and the people alone, that all revenues must come.

If the case for a 16 per cent pay increase for teachers had been argued before a jury that had to decide only the question of justification, a unanimous favorable verdict could be easily predicted.

The General Assembly had to look beyond simply the justification. It had to look also at how and whether it might come up with the additional revenue.

To manage even the four per cent plus $300, the Assembly had to gimmick the state's tax collection procedures to provide a one-shot windfall.

It could not have been easy, in an election year, for legislators to have to deny the demands of the North Carolina Association of Educators. It is not easy for anyone to stop short of meeting justifiable requests of such a large, well-organized and dedicated group.

And the NCAE today demonstrates one of the reasons it is especially difficult for legislators.

Says NCAE President Alma Teeple: "We are taking off the gloves. We are going to identify our enemies to our membership, and we are going to actively seek their defeat at the polls."

It just so happens that some of the people the NCAE now regards as "enemies" have been some of the best friends of education in North Carolina.

In a crass manifestation of the "what have you done for us recently" syndrome, they would be ditched now for whatever opportunistic alternative might amble down the political path.

The NCAE has invited its members on an adventure of vindication.

It makes a grave error in which the greatest casualty could well be the cause of education.

For they have thrown down the gauntlet not simply before the majority of the members of the General Assembly, but before the people of North Carolina.

Cites A Lack In Communication

By JOHN CUNNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)

China's campaign against "capitalist roaders" has misled many Americans into believing that the People's Republic isn't interested in expanding trade with the United States, a China authority asserts.

The opposite is true, said Harned Pettus Hoose, a Chinaborn trade negotiator who already has been involved in several deals with the Chinese as a representative of U.S. corporations.

Not only do they wish to trade with us, said the Los Angeles lawyer, who since 1972 has made eight extensive trips to China, where he maintains top level contacts with trade officials, but they have been trying to communicate their wishes.

But, he said, in the past two years he and other China authorities have observed that the United States has shown official disinterest in the subject, and in fact, with much of the Far East area.

Meanwhile, he said, other nations are eager to develop trade with that country and have been actively seeking to enlarge their ties. "Only the United States is hanging back," he said in an interview.

"In this 'year of almost anything but Asia,' our State Department does not indicate any particular interest in China," he said, broadening his reference to include any kind of influence in the area.

He blamed "the top echelon of the State Department" for ignoring what he said was China's desire not only to develop trade with the United States but to develop closer ties in general with this country and Japan.

Hoose, son of missionaries, lived in China through World War II, when he joined U.S. Navy intelligence forces there. Bilingual and bicultural, he helped brief President Richard M. Nixon for his visit to China in 1972.

Sometimes, he said, the Chinese wonder if their messages get through, although he conceded that some Chinese communiques appear to have been sent through unofficial rather than established channels.

"There is a terrible lack of communication," he said. "I contend it is one thing if we study the situation and then decide not to trade," but he said it was inexcusable to default, politically and commercially, because of disinterest.

Hoose nevertheless maintains that U.S. trade with the People's Republic, which amounted to $450 million in 1975, will grow swiftly and enormously, reaching $5 billion by 1980 and much more than that by the middle of that decade.

This he said is because the Chinese, for economic and security reasons, are eager to industrialize, and many nations and individual U.S. companies are just as eager to provide them with the technology needed to begin.

Several negotiating teams from the United States are involved in prolonged talks with the Chinese, he said, noting that a U.S. team of steel and oil construction executives currently was in China.

Strength For Today

PROGRESS

Usually a business forges ahead into prosperity if those in charge of its affairs are wise enough to junk obsolete equipment. Cost of production is always high in those plants where machinery is old and outmoded. The manufacturer who is always alert to new ways of doing things and does not hesitate at any time to change his processes if it will make operations more efficient will probably outdistance his competitors.

The need for adaptation and rejuvenation is equally important in other fields. Some churches, for example, close their doors and give up because new groups of people preempt the immediate neighborhood. This should be a challenge to adapt the church to the needs of these new neighbors.

Times moves on, and we must move on with it if we want to escape being trampled upon by the marching feet of those who are truly progressive.

Future Worldwide Housing Crisis Before Forum

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP) — You think there's a housing shortage now?

In the next 30 years, the United Nations says, 3.5 billion more people will need places to live, and that's enough to create 3,500 cities of a million residents each. There are fewer than 300 cities of that size now.

Aware of that, 4,000 delegates from 120 nations meet here for two weeks beginning Sunday in the fifth United Nations conference to be held this decade — the U.N. Conference on Human Settlements, or Habitat.

Delegates, in committee work and plenary sessions, will try to devise ways for coping with the worldwide urban crisis.

Participants in the conference and a parallel gathering — Habitat Forum, opening Thursday for representatives of nongovernmental organizations — face facts, the U.N. says, like these:

—Another 600 million housing units will be needed in the next 30 years, or more than those existing in the entire world today.

—Even now, the World Health Organization believes more than a billion people don't have basics, like safe water to drink.

—Cities, towns and villages, especially those in developing countries, already are in crisis, lacking jobs, choked by pollution, crowded, inundated by slums, devoid of good transportation and riddled by crime.

“In the quest for human dignity, shelter ranks with nutrition and health care as an absolute necessity,” said Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau in outlining goals for the conference.

“Yet no country in the world can claim that it provides adequate shelter to all its people — not those with the richest of technologies, not those with the most temperate of climates.”

Officials expecting the conference to be stormy say tension will accompany the presence of a delegation from the Palestine Liberation Organization in an international mix that includes Israelis. Security preparations have been underway for half a year.

Mainland China is not participating.

Delegates will jampack Vancouver, Canada's West Coast metropolis. Hotel rooms have been booked months in advance. Temporary housing includes tents and cots, which go for $2 a night.

STUDENTS' LOG CABIN—Members of Tacoma's Lincoln High School Tree Farm program work on one of their projects, a bi-centennial log cabin, to be used as a bunkhouse and visitor center for outdoor education classes.

The program, begun with a small investment, has grown into a top vocational forestry program. Students harvest between 60,000 and 80,000 board feet of lumber each year. (AP Wirephoto) bill wouldn't cure our economic ills; it would only provide a rosy glow.

Mr. Humphrey wants "goals." He wants "targets." There is nothing wrong in this, of course, so long as the proclaiming is not confused with the achieving. He wants the president annually to produce "comprehensive proposals to raise productivity and to increase the supplies of food and energy."

In some fashion, not altogether clear, he would have Congress manipulate monetary and fiscal policies "in the optimum manner necessary to achieve full employment and balanced growth." If the Federal Reserve Board refused to go along, the Fed would be made to go along.

Under the H-H bill, there would be a new Full Employment Office within the Department of Labor. Its role would duplicate the role of perhaps fifty agencies already charged with "training, assisting, and providing employment for those people who are otherwise unable to find employment." The bill would create a "permanent countercyclical grant program" for states and localities. It would provide new supplies of credit. It would require that persons employed in federal makework jobs be paid at rates fully comparable to the private sector.

This is the stuff that dreams are made on. An answer to our economic problems lies not in the bottom of some boozy bottle, but in the old sober remedies: private jobs, business incentives, capital formation, lower taxes, greater productivity. Proclaiming paper goals and printing paper money will produce merely paper solutions that would leave us, ten years hence, less prosperous — and less free.

needed to prevent cost cutting that would result in poor service.

"There is no claim that the advertising ban in any way prevents the cutting of corners by the pharmacist who is so inclined," Justice Harry A. Blackmun said for the court. "That pharmacist is likely to cut corners in any event."

"Virginia is free to require whatever professional standards it wishes of its pharmacists. But it may not do so by keeping the public in ignorance of the entirely lawful terms that competing pharmacists are offering," Blackmun said.

The Federal Trade Commission has been considering proposed rules to overturn laws in more than 30 states that prohibit or restrict pharmacists from advertising prescription prices. An FTC report said lifting those bans would save buyers more than $130 million a year.

A Washington-based research group, American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research, issued a report in March estimating buyers could save $380 million annually if drugs could be advertised.

An Associated Press study of prescription drug prices in 12 cities showed that in April 1975 prices of widely used medication differed greatly within a single city where advertising of prices was not allowed. For instance, in Chicago, the drug Darvon could be purchased for prices ranging from $1.90 to $3.90, The AP study showed.

Turning to the issue of advertising by other professionals, the court said this question could involve "quite different factors."

"Physicians and lawyers, for example, do not dispense standardized products," Blackmun said. "They render professional services of almost infinite variety and nature." He said advertising in these fields is more likely to lead to confusion and deception.

How can a bank ask you to sign a loan agreement only bankers understand?

Most banks talk a lot about loans, but they don't talk much about what happens before you get the money.

Maybe it's because, in that sea of fine print and mumbo-jumbo that you have to sign, there are a lot of rather unpleasant "details."

The kind of "details" most people don't bother to read because they look complicated. And sound complicated. But at NCNB, we think you should know just what we expect from you and, more importantly, exactly what you can expect from us.

That's why we've written our forms in plain English. Here's an example:

BANKER TALK VS. PEOPLE TALK

BANKER TALK:

Debtor has good, indefeasible, marketable title thereto and will warrant and defend same against all claims. Debtor is not to, and will not attempt to transfer, sell or encumber the Collateral or use it for hire or in violation of any statute or ordinance.

PEOPLE TALK:

You guarantee you have good and clear title to the Collateral and won't sell or dispose of it.

We don't have to do this, but we think it's something a bank should do.

We have $25 million a month to lend and we're going to lend it.

So, instead of looking for ways to turn you down on a loan, we look for ways to make you the loan.

Which may be one reason why we lend money to more people than any other bank in North Carolina.

Here's another:

When you need a loan, you need money. Not a runaround.

In most cases, the bigger the bank, the longer you wait for an answer.

Because the person you ask has to ask someone else (who, often, may have to ask yet another someone else.)

But not at NCNB. The person that you talk with about the loan can give you the answer.

So, if you have the idea that getting a bank loan is going to be just one big hassle, see us. At NCNB, we're in the business of making loans. Not hassles.

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA) — The trend on the North Carolina f.o.b. dock broiler market was steady today with supplies adequate, demand good, weights desirable.

The North Carolina dock weighted average price is 43.46 cents per pound this week for small purchases of sized plant grade broilers to be picked up at processing plants. Estimated slaughter today was 1,222,000.

The North Carolina hen market was weaker on heavy types today, with supplies adequate and demand moderate. Prices paid per pound for hens over seven pounds — at farm 17 cents, f.o.b plants 20-20.5 cents.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market turned mixed today, steadying on the strength of bargain hunting after Monday's steep decline.

Trading was fairly active. The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 2.33 at 973.86, recouping a small part of Monday's 19.22-point slide.

Losers, however, held onto a fairly broad lead over gainers in the over-all count of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Brokers noted continuing concern over the recent rise of interest rates. But they said some investors had begun shopping for bargains with the Dow at the bottom of the 865-1,015 range in which it has fluctuated for the past three months.

Pitt was among the most active NYSE issues, unchanged at 44 1/2 in a 53,800-share block trade.

Twentieth Century-Fox fell 2 1/2 to 9 1/2. A concern which owns 8.7 per cent of Fox's stock said it had dropped plans to offer $13 apiece for an additional 1.2 million shares.

The Big Board's composite index of all its listed common stocks slipped .04 to 52.97 in the first hour.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .38 at 103.03.

Advise Increased Social Security Tax

WASHINGTON (AP) — American workers must begin paying higher Social Security taxes in order to guarantee that the system can continue paying benefits into the 1980s, program trustees say.

Congress so far has refused Ford Administration efforts to raise Social Security taxes deducted from workers' paychecks.

Calling for a tax increase to eliminate short-term deficits, the trustees also said threats to the system's solvency after the year 2000 are more serious than had been thought, unless the present law is changed.

The trustees, in their annual report to Congress, found no immediate danger for the 32 million persons now drawing benefits or for those joining the pension rolls in the next few years. The accumulated reserves would carry most payments at least through 1981, and perhaps beyond 1984, depending on the state of the economy. They also estimated the special fund for disability retirement was solvent until 1979.

The Social Security system, which had been self-supporting through the special taxes on payrolls and had built up substantial assets in reserve, began to run an operating deficit in recent years when the country was hit with simultaneous inflation and high unemployment. Deficits will continue under present tax and benefit arrangements, the report warned, and will eat up reserves.

The trustees estimated that benefits paid this year will exceed income by $4.3 billion, cutting into reserves that stood at $44.3 billion at the beginning of the year.

The trustees estimated that over the next 75 years the average annual deficit could approach 8 per cent — up sharply from last year's estimate of 5.32 per cent.

Two major causes of the long-term shortfall were cited.

One is the changing mix of age groups in the population. The post-World War II baby boom has been followed by a sharp decline in the birth rate.

At present there are about three persons of working age for every one 65 or older. This ratio may fall to about two to one when the "war babies" reach retirement age in the first part of the 21st century, and the relatively small number of children born after them will have to carry the pension burden.

The other problem results from what is generally recognized by the trustees and other students of the system as a flaw in the 1972 act providing for automatic adjustment of benefits to the cost of living.

The formula written into the bill, while assuring relatively modest increases in the payments to persons already retired, had the unexpected effect of greatly inflating the future pensions of persons still working.

Overtured Raleigh Suit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U. S. Supreme Court has overturned the dismissal of a $2.4 million damage suit by a Raleigh hospital which charged that area health officials violated the Sherman Antitrust Act.

The owners of Mary Elizabeth Hospital filed the suit against Rex Hospital and other area health officials in 1972. It alleged they conspired to monopolize the hospital industry in Wake County and conspired to oppose Mary Elizabeth's plans to build a new 140-bed hospital.

The suit was dismissed in 1973 by Judge Franklin T. Dupree of U.S. Eastern District Court in Raleigh on the ground that no interstate commerce was involved and the federal court had no jurisdiction. The U.S. 4th Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond upheld that decision.

But interstate commerce could be involved in the case, said Justice Thurgood Marshall, who wrote Monday's Supreme Court opinion. If, as Mary Elizabeth alleges, Rex and its alleged co-conspirators were to succeed in blocking the planned expansion, the hospital's purchases of out-of-state medicines and supplies, as well as revenues from out-of-state insurance companies, also would be blocked, he said.

And much of the hospital construction would be financed by out-of-state lenders, Mary Elizabeth noted its appeal to the Supreme Court.

Also as part of the afternoon program will be the formal dedication of the post home, including the unveiling of a plaque containing the names of the original building committee and the builder.

Bruce Whitaker, president of the local American Legion post will preside at the May 30 program.

Planning Meet Agenda Readied

The Joint City-County and Greenville Planning and Zoning Commissions will consider eight business matters on Wednesday at its 8 p.m. meeting at city hall.

Business on the joint agenda includes: consideration of proposed amendment to the City Code dealing with mobile homes in the Highway Commercial zone; presentation by the Recreation Department of their policy statement dealing with acquisition of reserved recreational land in subdivisions; Consideration of the preliminary plat of North River Estates, Section II, located west of Greenfield Terrace and east of State Road 1419; and Consideration of the revised preliminary and final plats of Section I, Professional Center in the medical complex adjacent to the new hospital.

Greenville board business involves: rezoning request of David Evans Sr. and Reynolds May for some 46 acres located on the west side of US 264 Bypass, north of 14th Street from R-9 and R-20 to R-6 and Office and Institutional;

Rezoning request by the Redevelopment Commission to rezone the Central Business District from Office and Institutional and Downtown Commercial Fringe to R-6, Office and Institutional, and Downtown Commercial Fringe in order to conform with the proposed land use in the CBD Urban Renewal Plan; and Preliminary plat of Section II of Tucker Estates.

School Board . . .

"I don't know how we're going to express strongly enough the crisis of the city schools," Dr. Bearden remarked. "If we have any more surprises in store like this (the Third Street School situation) we simply won't have seats for people."

Another factor discussed in the overall picture is that of out-of-district students. "I think we're going to have to address ourselves to out-of-district students," Carter said. "I can't see how we're going to bring in 80 of them when there's not enough room for our own students."

In terms of money previously earmarked for renovation and repairs to Third Street School (prior to condemnation), Cox said "this is in the vicinity of $75,000 to $150,000, depending on how the renovation program could be handled."

Responding to a suggestion voiced by attorney Allen Hahn that "the City Council have a mandatory inspection of schools every three months with written reports given to the school board so you would have something to act on," board chairman Henry Dunn said "we have been discussing with them (city officials) mandatory inspections and reports."

"We have been promised inspections and reports on all the schools by Friday," he further noted.

Rev. Elbert Williams, pastor of Philippi Church of Christ, saying he was a member of the NAACP (National Association for the Advancement of Colored People) stated "the NAACP is worried about whether you're going to close all our schools down, take everything from us. If we don't watch out, there won't be no more Third Street School."

Williams also recommended "an injunction be lodged against the Board of Education and the City of Greenville for allowing the school to get in that condition. You ought to be sued."

Board members and Cox expressed appreciation for the

Eagle Badge Goes To Troop 398 Scout

BILLY WHITE

Billy White, 15-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin White of Winterville, received the coveted Eagle Scout Badge during services Sunday at Red Oak Christian Church.

guard during the ceremonies. Dr. Milam Johnson of Greenville was also on hand.

The new Eagle Scout, who has been a member of Troop 398 since the Red Oak program was organized approximately three years ago, is the first member of the troop to attain Eagle ranking.

Billy, a ninth grade student at D.H. Conley, is a member of Immanuel Free Will Baptist Church in Winterville. He is a member of scouting's Order of the Arrow and has attended several district camporees since joining the troop.

As part of his project towards qualifying for the Eagle Award, Billy helped organize and conduct a fund raising Turkey Shoot on behalf of the Winterville Rescue Squad.

The Stokes Ruritan Club and the Carolina Township Fire Department held a Tractor Pull Saturday at the Pitt County Fairgrounds. Awards totalling $1,250 were presented to winners in the competition and 12 trophies were presented.

The following were the first place winners in the Tractor Pull: 5,000 lb. stock, Tony Hardee, 262 ft. 10 in.; 6,000 lb. stock, Tony Hardee, 291 ft. 4 in.; 7,000 lb. stock, Tony Hardee, 177 ft. 3 in.; 9,000 lb. stock, Randy Stokes, 252 ft. 3 in. full pull; 5,000 lb. super stock, Royce C. ## Meter Charges Being Revised

The system of meter charges for parking in the city-owned Hooker Lot (No. 9) at the corner of Cotanche and Second Streets is being revised to conform with other city parking facilities, the Greenville Parking Authority announced.

The charges for Lot 9, as adopted by the Authority, will now be five cents per hour or ten cents for two-hour parking rather than the old schedule of 25 cents per day.

New signs have been placed on the lot by the city to reflect the revised charges, which are effective immediately.

South View Eliminates Rampants, 4-1

GOING DOWN—European heavyweight champion Richard Dunn of Great Britain falls after being knocked down by Muhammad Ali, the world champion, in the fifth round of their Tuesday morning fight in Munich, Germany. Ali knocked Dunn down five times before the referee finally stopped the bout in the fifth. (AP Wirephoto).

By THAD MUMA
Special to the Reflector
FAYETTEVILLE—Green-ville Rose had met three must-game challenges, but a fourth was too much to ask here Monday.
The Rampants fell to South View in the opening round of the state playoffs, 4-1, as Mickey Britt fired a three-hitter for the victors.
"It was just too much Britt,"

Rose coach Ronald Vincent said. "Earlier, we lost to South View and Tim Locklear was pitching. They are going to be tough to beat with two pitchers like that."
The Tigers had nipped Rose, 3-2, in the Gaylord Perry Tournament in Williamston last month.
Rose had to win its last three games to earn its way into the state playoffs and began this contest as if it might advance further.

Little David Dixon led off the first inning with a drag bunt which hopped over the shoulder of Britt. Dixon swiped second base, was sacrificed to third by Greg Sasser and scored on losing pitcher Mike Belton's roller.
South View came back to score all its runs in the second inning. The frame began innocently enough with a ground out and strike out, before Butch Gillis ignited the two-out fireworks with a single off Rose shortstop Greg Lee's glove.

Gillis stole second and scored the tying run on Timmy Smith's single, that hit glancing off the glove of diving second baseman Sasser.
Britt checked his swing and got an "excuse-me" hit for his trouble, Mike Russo taking over as a courtesy runner.
Bobby Rozier smashed a double into the gap in right center to plate Smith and Doug West followed with a two-bagger down the left field line to drive in Russo and Rozier.
That was all the damage for the day, although Rose did threaten twice more.
After one out in the fourth, Mike Brewington and Eddy Connolly singled, but Wright

Hooks popped to short and Lee bounced back to the box.
In the seventh, Lee and Jimmy Averette drew one-out walks but Britt reached back and fanned pinchhitter Lee Shearin and Dixon.
Rose ended the season with a 14-9 record, while South View, 20-2, continues playoff action against the winner of tonight's South Johnson-Goldsboro game.

'Different' Ali Wins On 5th Round Knockout

By JOHN VINOCUR
Associated Press Writer
MUNICH (AP) — The knockout came as promised following the new svelte look, the dancing and the mocking Frankenstein lockstep. But Muhammad Ali has changed, even slipped, and he says so in his own elliptical way.
Ali had just knocked down Richard Dunn five times to score a fifth-round knockout at the stroke of 4 a. m. in Munich Tuesday, and he had gotten through the ritual talk of greatness, amazement, and miracles.
Then he got around to saying what seemed increasingly evident. "I've got just enough to carry me through the year and destroy Norton. Then I'm going to retire."

Frankly, he said, "I'm nowhere what I was a while ago."
There was the Ali of the right-hand lead and left hook who sent the red-haired Briton to the canvas three times in the fourth round and twice in the fifth, before the fight was over with 55 seconds to go to the bell. There was the Ali who signaled that Dunn's time had come at the start of the final round, and the Ali who walked wooden-legged toward the Englishman, his arms stretched out in front of him like a Frankenstein monster.
Yet Ali was changed — "a totally different Ali," he said himself — a harder puncher than before, perhaps, but a fighter increasingly rooted in the canvas.
It was also an Ali who frequently crossed his legs awkwardly during the first three rounds, took a series of stiff right jabs from the left-handed Englishman in the third round and seemed markedly slower and less mobile than the fighter who floated like a butterfly and stung like a bee.

"He's missing; the reflexes have gone back; he should retire," said Duane Bobick after he saw Ali in training. Bobick won his 36th-straight fight in the Olympiahalle, just before Ali's victory, knocking out Bunny Johnson of England.
But Ali didn't seem to be paying any immediate attention. He insisted on talking about new trick karate punches and promised to jog five miles Tuesday, preparing for an exhibition in Tokyo next month and the fight against Ken Norton in Yankee Stadium next September which should bring him $9 million.
Through Dunn, Ali showed that he could erase the memory of the fat, sluggish 34 year old who nearly lost a month ago against Jimmy Young, a fighter who had knocked Dunn out in 1974.

The champion weighed 220 pounds, down 10 from the Young fight, and his body had some of its old muscle tone. Even so, Ali was breathing hard after the first round, and he found Dunn a much tougher fighter than he imagined.
"He was right in on me, making me work and do my best," Ali said of the Englishman. "I did the rope-a-dope a couple of times, and it came in real handy, because it saved me some work."
"Dunn was much better than I thought he was, but at the pace we were going I knew he'd fade out after 10 or 11. I'm still 34, finished and washed up and over the hill. He's 31, and he had a little more pep."
Ali acknowledged that Dunn had hurt him twice, and said he considered the Englishman, who dreamed he would beat the champion in the eighth round, merited a return match.
Dunn said at first in the ring that he thought the decision of the German referee to stop the fight was too quick, but with reflection the former construction worker said in his dressing room, "I wouldn't challenge the ref's decision. He's the boss, and I'm only the foreman, but I thought it could have gone on a bit."
After a disastrous preflight promotion in which the fight was threatened with cancellation because of a shortfall by the German promoters in paying Ali's purse, the Munich Olympiahalle had about three-quarters of its 12,500 seats filled for the bout.

Ali, who shelled out $100,000 to buy 2,000 seats for American servicemen, got a message of thanks from President Ford for the gesture, but it wasn't clear how much Ali's help meant to the promoters.
Bob Arum, the American copromoter who handled U.S. television rights, said he believed that a large part of the crowd came on free tickets or cut-rate tickets sold at the last minute.
Arum estimated two days ago that the German promoters would lose close to a half million dollars, but Rudolfo Sabbatini, a respected matchmaker from Rome, said he understood the loss could be in excess of $600,000.
Arum said the 160,000-mark ($60,000) rent for the Olympiahalle had been paid only 10 hours before the championship and that there was a measure of doubt until the last minute about whether it would come off.

REIGN OF TERROR
NEW YORK (UPI) — Joe Louis held the heavyweight title longer than any other fighter. He won the title on June 22, 1937, and didn't relinquish the crown until he retired on March 1, 1949. During that time — 11 years, 8 months — Louis successfully defended the title 25 times.

Foli Just Warming Up To Home Run Hitting

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer
Tim Foli spent his first five years in the major leagues just warming up. This year he's found the range.
"A trivia question: Who's leading this club in home runs?" asked Montreal's Nate Colbert after the Expos defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates 4-2 Monday night.
"The answer," Colbert said, "is Foli with four."
In his first five years, the Montreal shortstop hit a grand total of five roundtrippers, his biggest season prior to this being 1974 when he had three.
In other National League games Monday, Philadelphia downed the New York Mets 7-1, San Francisco stopped Houston 5-1 and San Diego blanked Los Angeles 2-0.

Foli's fifth-inning homer came one pitch after Pittsburgh pitcher John Candelaria walked Larry Parrish. That tied the score at 2-2 and Montreal catcher Barry Foote untied it an out later when he lined his first home run of the season over the left field fence.
"Candelaria was giving us a lot of fast balls, and we just happened to get two home runs off him," said Foote.
The Expos added a single run in the seventh to give pitcher Woody Fryman his sixth victory of the season against two losses.

Phillies 7, Mets 1
"I was a lucky pitcher," said Philadelphia's Larry Christenson after he scattered seven hits to beat the New York Mets. "I was just throwing the ball over the plate and challenging them to hit it at somebody ... I'm not here to be a strikeout pitcher. I'm here to win. And that's all that counts."
Greg Luzinski's first inning two-run homer gave Christenson a quick 2-0 lead, and the Phillies added four more in the second — all unearned because of an error by Mets loser Mickey Lolich, 2-6.
"The Mets' lone run came in the ninth on John Milner's triple and Joe Torre's RBI single."
Giants 5, Astros 1
Rookie Larry Herndon belted his first major league homer and scored twice to lead San Francisco to its victory over Houston. Herndon had a leadoff walk that triggered a three-run first inning off loser Mike Cosgrove, 1-3, then smacked his roundtripper in the second. The hot-hitting rookie finished with three hits to lift his average to .471.

Two Place In Olympics

RALEIGH — Two Greenville swimmers were among those playing in the North Carolina Junior Olympics State Championships in a three-day meet which ended Sunday in Raleigh.
Janet Gantt finished eighth in the 100-yard butterfly with a time of 1:05.8, while Susan Tucker was seven in the 100-yard backstroke in 1:07.2. Both were swimming in the 15-18 girls' age group.
Four others also participated in the meet, but failed to place. They were Ken Berry, Kevin Richards, John Richards and Lance Timmons.
A total of 450 swimmers, representing 32 swim clubs, took part in the meet.

Guthrie To Attempt Charlotte Qualifying

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Janet Guthrie, 38, balked in an attempt to become the first woman to qualify for the Indianapolis 500, will try to run the same day, next Sunday, in the world's longest stock car race, the $249,155 World 600 at the Charlotte Motor Speedway.

She is being backed by a woman officer of a Charlotte bank, Linda Ferreri.

Miss Ferreri is buying a Chevrolet built by Hoss Ellington of Wilmington, N.C., and Miss Guthrie will try to qualify it for the 400-lap 600-mile race.

If she does, she will become the first woman to compete in the World 600, in which such stock car greats as Richard Petty, Buddy Baker, David Pearson and Cale Yarborough will run.

Yarborough, who had said that women were not strong enough to race the fastest machines, has agreed to shake the car down for her, giving it some trial runs before Miss Guthrie gets behind the wheel later this week.

"I've still got doubts about a woman having the physical strength to handle a racer, especially a big 'ol stock car weighing 3,700 pounds," Yarborough said. "But after keeping up with the Indy time trials — where she could have been successful with a good car and a break or two — I feel she's sincere in her efforts and I admire her for wanting to try and make the race down here. I'll be glad to help her any way I can."

Another stock car driver, Bobby Allison, who also had criticized Miss Guthrie's attempt at Indy, was mollified as well. "Obviously she can drive a race car," he said in a telephone interview from his shop in Hueytown, Ala. He noted that she did 181 m.p.h. in an Indy practice.

Ellington said the purchase price for the car was about $21,000, minus engine. The power plant will be provided by veteran racing mechanic Ralph Moody of Charlotte. "They'll have at least $27,000 in it by the time they get through," Ellington said.

Miss Ferreri, a vice president of advertising and promotions for First Union National Bank, has been active in the women's movement. She admitted that she doesn't know much about auto racing and has never seen a race at the Charlotte Motor Speedway. "I got into this last week when a friend observed during a conversation that Janet Guthrie was a hoax," she said. "I differed and one thing led to another. I just decided to do it. For me, it's a sports issue and an emotional issue. I knew the economics weren't an impossibility." She refused to say where the money is coming from.

Clemson Wins Series Berth

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP)—Clemson baseball Coach Bill Wilhelm says he felt uneasy about the Tigers' early lead in the final game of the Atlantic regional playoffs of the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

That is, until his team pulled off "the play you always dream about."

The Tigers 6-2 triumph over Furman Monday will send them to the College World Series, which begins in Omaha, Neb. June 11.

The Atlantic Coast Conference champion Tigers had dominated the regional playoffs and leaped to an early 3-0 lead in the first inning Monday. After four innings, they were ahead 4-0.

"I had an uneasy feeling about the game because we didn't put it away," Wilhelm said.

The Paladins closed the margin to 4-2, had the bases loaded and were threatening in the eighth inning. They had one out.

Wilhelm sent in relief pitcher Houston Matthews with instructions to watch for a hit back to the pitcher's mound. That's just what happened. Matthews snagged the ball, pitched it to home for one out and catcher Bill Foley tossed to first for another. For all practical purposes, the game was over.

"You always dream you will get that type double play with the bases loaded, and we got it. It's the greatest thing that could have happened for us," Wilhelm said.

Furman Coach Tom Wall, whose club overcame a 13-2 manhandling by Clemson in the opening round with later victories over South Carolina and Virginia Tech, took the loss philosophically.

"We had plenty of opportunities, but nothing worked out for us," he said. "Overall, I thought we handled the pressure in the tournament real well after our opening loss Friday, but we made mistakes today."

Furman finished the season 23-16. Clemson finished with a 35-13 record, and Wilhelm plans a 10-day layoff before renewing practice for the College World Series.

Celts Gaining Defensive Role

By BERT ROSENTHAL
AP Sports Writer
BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Celtics, long known for their racehorse offense, now are gaining a reputation for their defensive prowess.

The Celtics, leading the Phoenix Suns 1-0 in their nationally televised best-of-seven National Basketball Association championship series and seeking their 13th league title since 1957, are in that position more because of their defense than their offense.

In 13 playoff games so far this season — six each against Buffalo and Cleveland, and Sunday's 98-87 victory over Phoenix — they have held the opposition under 100 points 10 times and under 90 in five games. Their average yield has been 96.1 points per game.

That is well below the Celtics' season average of 103.9 — sixth best in the league — and also below the Chicago Bulls' figure of 98.8, lowest in the NBA.

Meanwhile, Boston's usually potent offense, which averaged 106.2 points during the regular season, has sputtered, mainly due to injuries to fast-break leader John Havlicek. In their last six playoff games, the Celtics have not reached the 100-point mark, but they have won four of them. Their overall scoring average for 13 playoff games is 99.3.

Recently, the Celtics, who prefer to run, have been forced to play a deliberate, patterned offense.

"We're not a pattern, set-up basketball team," said Coach Tom Heinsohn. "If we could run and fast break, I'd feel a lot better. But the fact is that we don't have the people who can run. Havlicek has that injury (torn muscles in his left foot) and (Don) Nelson and (Steve) Kuberski haven't got good speed. The fact that we can't run right now worries me, because Phoenix is a real good ball club."

Bowling League Awards Trophies

The Greenville Recreation Bowling League has announced the awarding of trophies to members of the league.

The first place team consisted of Kathryn Phillips, Ruth Moore and Elizabeth Savage. Second place team trophies went to Barbara Derk, Martha Alcorn and Carol Whiteford. High average for the season went to Kathryn Phillips, high series with handicap went to Carol Whiteford, most improved Inez West and high game with handicap Maxine Rhodes.

The Greenville Recreation League was formed from several groups of bowlers sponsored by the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department and Hillcrest Lanes. They will re-organize in September. All interested persons are invited to attend.

Fans Grumble After Eckersley Is Jerked

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer
Dennis Eckersley gave up one hit too many and one walk too many. But some of the fans leaving Baltimore's Memorial Stadium were saying that Cleveland Manager Frank Robinson made one move too many.

It was the old argument of whether or not team success should play second string to individual accomplishment. Robinson, who is paid for victories, cast his vote for the team. So relief pitcher Stan Thomas got the final three outs to preserve Eckersley's one-hitter, as the Indians blanked the Orioles 4-0 Monday night.

"He was tired after the seventh but I let him go back and he got them out in the eighth," said Robinson. "But when he walked the first batter in the ninth, it looked like he was struggling."

Eckersley's ninth-inning walk to Al Bumbry was the Cleveland righthander's fourth walk of the game.

Thomas then walked Mark Belanger, but put his stamp on Eckersley's one-hitter by striking out the next three batters.

Elsewhere in the American League, the Boston Red Sox beat the Detroit Tigers 3-0; the New York Yankees downed the Milwaukee Brewers 5-2; the Kansas City Royals outscored the Texas Rangers 14-11; the Chicago White Sox beat the California Angels 5-3, and the Oakland A's whipped the Minnesota Twins 12-7.

Red Sox 3, Tigers 0
Rick Wise stopped Detroit on a two-hitter for his second victory in five decisions.

Alex Johnson singled in the first inning and Ron LeFlore extended his hitting streak to 26 games with a single in the third for the only Detroit hits.

Royals 14, Rangers 11
"It was just the worst game we've had all year," said Texas Manager Frank Lucchesi after the Rangers committed a club-record seven errors to help Kansas City score six unearned runs.

George Brett, Hal McRae and Frank White blasted solo homers in the first inning to start the Royals off right.

Yankees 5, Brewers 2
New York scored five times off Jim Colborn in the first inning on RBI singles by Chris Chambliss and Graig Nettles plus Oscar Gamble's three-run homer.

Ed Figueroa tossed a seven-hitter for his fourth victory in seven decisions.

White Sox 5, Angels 3
Brian Downing belted a two-out, three-run double in the eighth inning to rally Chicago over California, extending the White Sox' winning streak to eight games.

Pete Vuckovich, 2-1, fired a seven-hitter, struck out eight and walked four.

A's 12, Twins 7
The adventurous A's stole seven bases, five by Bert Campaneris, and ended an eight-game losing streak by blasting Minnesota with a seven-run fifth inning.

Claudell Washington's two-run double keyed the rally, which turned a 5-1 Minnesota lead into an 8-5 Oakland advantage and helped the A's end their worst slump since they moved to Oakland in 1968.

TOUGH DEFENSE

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Los Angeles Rams ranked second in the National Football League in total defense behind Minnesota last season but were first in scoring defense, allowing just 135 points in 14 games. It marked the second fewest points ever surrendered by a team in a season.

Legion To Open Drills

The Greenville American Legion baseball team will open practice on Thursday at 5 p.m. at Harrington Field on the East Carolina University campus.

Coach Pat Smith called the first drills. "The practice is open to anyone who wishes to try out for the team," Smith said. Prospective players should bring their own shoes and gloves.

Big Value In Big Win, 16-8

Big Value Drugs inched back out into a slim half-game lead in the three-team battle for first place in the Tar Heel Little League taking a 16-8 victory over Pepsi-Cola.

The win boosted Big Value to a 5-2 record, while Pepsi, is now 0-7. Hot on the heels of the leaders are the Exchange and First Federal with 4-2 marks.

Big Value jumped ahead with four runs in the first inning. Tony Burroughs singled and Emmett Walsh got a hit. Danny Kelly walked and a hit by Lloyd Jackson scored two runs. An error allowed the other two to come around making it 4-0.

The second saw four more runs. Burroughs singled and Walsh got a hit. Kelly walked and David Sneed doubled in three runners. Bill Johnson walked and David Sneed doubled in three runners. Bill Johnson walked and Bill Coffman reached on a fielder's choice.

and an error on the play scored Sneed. The clinchers came in the third when three more BVD runs came in. Kelly singled and Jackson walked. Sneed reached on an error, loading them up. Johnson singled in two runs, and the other scored on an error.

Big Value added the other five in the fourth. Pepsi got its first run in the top of the fourth. Tim Shank walked and was safe on an error on Dwight Garrett's grounder. Woody Carrow walked, and Jeff Stallings grounded out to score Shank.

Pepsi added four more in the fifth. Wilson singled and David Worhoff reached on a fielder's choice. Shank walked and a walk to Carrow scored one run. Walter Perkins singled in Worhoff, and an error scored Shank, with another scoring Carrow.

The final three came in the sixth. Wilson and Shank each had two hits for Pepsi, while Walsh had three, and Burroughs, Kelly, Sneed and Johnson had to each for Big Value.

Two Episodes For Cable TV

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — CBS' "Beacon Hill," which some critics called "Upstairs, Downstairs" with a Boston accent, was bumped off TV last October after 10 episodes because of very low ratings.
But two hour-long episodes that never aired still exist. What's being done with them?
Well, it seems that Home Box Office, Inc., a New York firm that supplies movies, sports and programs to subscribers of cable-TV, has bought the rights to show the two episodes for $60,000.
Next month, it'll broadcast them back-to-back over the 150 cable systems it serves as an experiment in what HBO calls "participatory television."

The company says that before and after each show, it'll flash on the TV screen a toll-free number for viewers to call and say whether they liked the "Beacon Hill" episodes.
At the end of the last episode, viewers will be told how the voting of the armchair critics came out.
Why "Beacon Hill" instead of a movie?
"It's because the show was so controversial when CBS first put it on and because of all the controversy when they took it off," said Robbin Arhold, an HBO spokesman.

"We also thought the two episodes were pretty darned good and deserved to be seen."
To get as wide an audience as possible, he says, the two episodes will be broadcast on five days next month at different times in hope of attracting everyone from the housewife during the day to the late-to-bed gang at night.
The first showing will be on June 14 at 1 p.m. EDT and again at 9 p.m. On June 16 the episodes will be shown at 2:30 p.m. and at 7 p.m. Two days later, they'll be one showing at 11:30 p.m., with another single showing at 6 p.m. on June 20.
The last showings will be at 2:30 p.m. and 7 p.m. on June 22.
Arhold concedes that the call-in poll may not be all that representative of the viewers' reaction.
So as a check, he says, Trendex, Inc., an opinion-sampling firm HBO uses, will call subscribers in five or six major cities on June 22 to compare their reactions to the "Beacon Hill" episodes with those phoned in by viewers.

Family Ties Are 'Too Strong'

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Sitting next to the casket, Sheri Hardy, 13, Joey, 11, and little Amber, 7, seemed unable to comprehend the tragedy that had befallen them, nor the mysteries of the course their mother had charted to provide for them after her death.
Where did they belong? And to whom?
Within hours after cancer victim Linda Joy Hardy was buried Monday, in her 33rd year, her family issued a terse statement saying the three children will remain with relatives despite their mother's wishes that they be adopted by a California couple to whom she gave written consent.
"Our family ties are strong," said Mrs. Hardy's mother, Mrs. Audrey Cloud, in a low, sad voice. "Sheri, Amber and Joey will remain with the family as a family, the Hardy family, children of Linda. Grandparents, aunts, uncles and cousins we have to offer. They had a mother and she will always remain their mother."

Mrs. Cloud said she did not think it was necessary to make any other comments.
Attorneys for Mrs. Hardy said they had "ethical and moral obligations to proceed to see that Linda's wishes are carried out" and that the family's statement did not really change anything.
Thus it might be left to a court to decide their future.
"The children have lived through sickness and grief," said Mrs. Cloud.
Mrs. Hardy was laid to rest in a family plot near Mount Sterling, about 20 miles south of here.
It is not clear why she chose the California family over her own.
Dean Allan of Santa Ana, Calif., vice president of Kal Kan Foods, Inc., had been in Columbus on a business trip more than a year ago when he read of Linda's terminal cancer and her national appeal for "a good family to take my kids, to love them and keep them together."
He told his wife, Violette, about it, and they exchanged visits with the Hardys that summer.
Then when Mrs. Hardy entered the hospital for the seventh time last March, Mrs. Alan flew to Columbus to help care for the children in the Hardy home. They remained there until Mrs. Hardy died last Friday and then they were taken to Mrs. Cloud's home.

It is not clear either why Mrs. Hardy's family never spoke out when she was conducting a national search for a suitable adoptive family. She received 2,000 offers of help and financial aid that established a $9,000 trust fund for the children.
Friends said Mrs. Hardy had definite ideas of what she wanted. Her first husband, Joseph George Hardy, deserted the family five years ago and was ordered to pay $50 a week for child support, according to court records. Attorneys said he paid nothing.
Instead Mrs. Hardy supported her family from welfare. Friends said she never took legal action to force her husband to pay up so that she could build a case for terminating his parental rights.
Her second marriage lasted less than a year and she was divorced from Gary Marcum, a 28-year-old machinist, two weeks before she died.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST—Showers are forecast today over much of the country. Unseasonably cool temperatures are expected for the East and West but milder weather is expected through the central states. (AP Wirephoto Map)

By The Associated Press
Rain fell in southern counties of North Carolina this morning, then spread eastward during the day.
However, that didn't prevent temperatures from getting into the low to mid 70s.
It will be mostly clear tonight, but cloudiness will increase Wednesday. Temperatures will be somewhat higher Wednesday.
Overnight lows will be in the 50s, except mid to upper 40s in the mountains.
Maximums were a bit cool Monday. They ranged from 63 degrees at New Bern to 75 at Charlotte and at the Raleigh-Durham Airport.
It was mostly clear during the night. There were some clouds over the southern and coastal areas.
Cape Hatteras had more than an inch of rain in the 24 hours ended at 2 o'clock this morning. Wilmington had more than three-quarters of an inch, New Bern two-thirds, and Jacksonville a little over one-half inch. Winds were from the north-east to east at 10 to 15 miles an hour today.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, MAY 26, 1976

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is your day to make sure you carefully look into whatever new ventures that appeal to you since it is a good time for adding to your interests and activities in life. Be careful of adverse conditions present.
ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Try not to feel so all-important that you are blind to the fine opportunities to advance. Put a new plan into operation.
TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Plan time for health treatments you may need. Avoid one who could lead you in the wrong direction. Show that you have willpower.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You have to handle an important private affair so put aside everything else until it is done. Consult an expert if in doubt.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You should spend more time with friends but weed out those who are not good for you. Attend a social affair tonight.
LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Do whatever you can to improve your position in the business world. Handle a credit matter immediately and it is soon behind you.
VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) New interests can help you advance and for which you are most talented. Use your intuitive faculties to best advantage.
LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Make sure you handle any obligations you have, especially those that become worrisome to you. Clear up a misunderstanding with mate.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Change whatever condition that is spoiling your relationship with an associate. Don't take chances with one who opposes you.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Make better work plans for getting ahead. Avoid one who likes to argue. Come to the support of a co-worker who needs your help.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Engage in recreation that is not extravagant and have a good time. An altercation with the one you love should be forgotten.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Study home affairs and eliminate whatever stands in the way of harmony. Spend more time reading and be happy.
PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Go over any letters or statements carefully and eliminate any mistakes before mailing them out. Use extreme care in motion.
IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will understand money and practical matters well and is destined to be successful in business. There is love of specialization here, no matter what the field of endeavor. Give the benefit of sports and religious training.
"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

anticipated 19 or 20 in his partner's hand and had just enough to carry on to the no trump game.
West led his fourth best diamond, and had East thoughtlessly played his queen, declarer would have gotten home. He would win the king of diamonds and force out the ace of spades. Dummy's jack of diamonds would be a second stopper in the suit, and the defenders would have no way of preventing declarer from scoring at least ten tricks.
When this hand was played in a recent rubber game, the East cards were held by O.A. Lumaghi of Rye Beach, N.H. When declarer played a low diamond from dummy to the first trick, he followed with the seven of diamonds. Declarer was able to win this trick cheaply with the ten of diamonds, but he lost is contract.
East won the ace of spades when that suit was led and continued with the two of diamonds. The king fell to the ace, and the queen and nine of diamonds completed the defensive book. West wasted no time in cashing the ace of clubs for down one.

"Third hand high" is an old adage of bridge players. This is generally sound advice, but does not always hold true. Particularly at no trump contracts, it could be right to keep a card higher than dummy's top card in the suit. East put that principle into practice on this hand and defeated an opposing no trump game.
Although he had 18 points in high cards, South decided that, because of his good five-card suit, his hand was too strong for an opening bid of one no trump. Therefore, he opened the bidding in his major suit and leaped to two no trump at his second turn. North added his 7 points to an

BAM! BAM! NO YOU HAVE BEEN MISINFORMED... THIS IS NOT WHERE YOU GO TO SIGN UP FOR A SERIES OF MIDNIGHT SNACKS

SLAM! HOW EMBARRASSING

JUST THINK, FLOWER... I'M HERE FOREVER... WHILE YOUR FATE IS DETERMINED BY THE WHIM OF WHOEVER PASSES BY TO PLUCK YOU.

SAVED BY A PET ROCK FREAK.

OH, YOU DEAR, SWEET, ADORABLE DOCTOR. WHEN I GROW UP I'M GOING TO MARRY A DOCTOR.

ZAT SO?

YOU GOTTA STAY ONE STEP AHEAD OF 'EM!

DINKY BRUSHES

THE BOSS GAVE ME A RAISE TODAY

MORE MONEY

NO, HE KICKED ME!

RAISED ME TWO FEET OFF THE FLOOR!!

WE WERE GOING UP TO LOOKOUT POINT BUT THE CAR STOPPED RUNNING

WELL, FOR ONE THING, YOUR TIMING IS ALL OFF

I'LL SAY! IT CONKED OUT IN FRONT OF THE CHURCH

I DON'T NEED CHAINS... OR SLAVERY!

AS THE PHANTOM WHIRLS ON THE GUARD...

UH...?

UH... LIKE THE SMOKE TRAP...

LUCKY FOR YOU... SHE DIDN'T WANT YOU DAMAGED OR YOU'D BE DEAD NOW!

IF THIS MAN IS OWEN CANTRELL... AND I'M NOT SAYING HE IS... AND IF YOU KNEW HE'D BE A HELPLESS INVALID FOR THE REST OF HIS LIFE...

Moose Pool To Open June 5

The Greenville Moose Lodge last night added 13 new members to its rolls, and Gov. Thomas Jamieson advised the membership to pick up family cards for use of the swimming pool, which will open June 5.

E. M. Baldree reported the lodge pool was being prepared for the summer and barring unexpected the unexpected would open as planned. Experienced lifeguards, he said, have been acquired for the season.

Swimming lessons for children of the Moose are again being offered, with the first class beginning June 14, the second on July 5 and the third on July 26. Each person using the pool area must have a card.

Secretary Arthur Sisk reminded there would be no meeting next Monday night because of the Memorial Day weekend.

Gov. Jamieson reported the next lodge dance was booked for June 19, and a reception honoring former lodge secretary Edwin Baldree was planned on June 27.

Candidates enrolled into the fraternity were: Charles Catlette, E. Gordon Edwards, Frederick J. Evans, John G. Guggemos, Wayne Hemby, Billy Ray Peaden.

Frank Russ, Garry Singleton, Wm. A. Wainwright, Johnny J. Weathering, Thomas L. Wilbourne and Roman A. Williams. Earl Forehand served as class representative.

FBI Probing Rep. Hays' Case

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI agents are questioning possible witnesses in a Justice Department investigation of the relationship between Rep. Wayne Hays and a woman who claims she was paid $14,000-a-year in government funds to gratify his sexual desires.

The public integrity section of the Justice Department's Criminal Division, recently established by Atty. Gen. Edward Levi to look into reports of official wrongdoing, is conducting the investigation, an informed source said Monday.

Hays, 64, chairman of the House Administration Committee, has denied the claim of Elizabeth Ray that her duties as a subcommittee staff worker consisted of having sexual relations with Hays.

Hays called Miss Ray "a very sick woman" and accused the Washington Post, which first published her allegations, of conducting a personal vendetta against him. In a statement, he called the article "malicious" and said he was considering filing suit against the paper.

But the Post, in an editorial in today's editions, said flatly of Miss Ray: "She is Rep. Wayne Hays' mistress. That is why she is on the payroll of the committee of which the Ohio Democrat is chairman."

The Justice Department is seeking to determine whether Hays violated any federal law if he gave Miss Ray a government job in exchange for sexual favors.

Hays fired Miss Ray on Monday. The lock was changed on the door to the office in the House Longworth Building where, she said, she spent only several hours a week during the past two years and did no work.

The Post reported today that Hays said Saturday he had never been in Miss Ray's apartment "except once, months ago."

But Miss Ray said he had visited the apartment once or twice a week for about two years to have sexual relations with her. The manager of the apartment house in suburban Arlington, Va., was quoted by the newspaper as saying Hays had visited Miss Ray frequently.

"Everyone at the (reception) desk knew who he was because he made no secret of it," said the manager, who asked not to be identified. "He'd come in here and say he was Congressman Hays and ask to be connected to her room."

Meanwhile, Rep. Frank Thompson, D-N.J., chairman of the accounts subcommittee of Hays' House Administration Committee, said he will recommend to his panel that any congressional investigation of the matter be conducted by the House Ethics Committee.

Thompson backed away from an earlier position that he would ask his accounts subcommittee to look into the allegations against Hays, saying there might appear to be a conflict of interest.

An Ethics Committee spokesman said no complaint had been filed as of Monday and that no action will be taken unless a complaint is filed.

Hays' new wife, Patricia Peak Hays, who runs the congressman's Ohio office, was in Washington on Monday and was seen lunching with him in Capitol dining room. Hays divorced his first wife, Martha Judkins Hays, in January after 38 years of marriage.

Arrest Man On Two Charges

Mark Benjamin Morrow, 20, of 313 Aycock Dorm was arrested by Greenville police about 2:15 a.m. today on charges of public drunkenness and damage to city property.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Morrow allegedly broke three city-owned trees planted in the 500 block of Cotanche Street. Value of the trees was estimated at $200.

Marked

Greenville Police and Pitt County Sheriffs Deputies Saturday marked 183 pieces of electronic gear valued at more than $28,000 during a "Mark-a-Thon" program here.

Purpose of the program was to mark citizens band radios, tape players, FM converters and other electronic items with easily identifiable numbers in an effort to stem the rising tide of thefts of such items from vehicles.

Cars Collided At Intersection

An estimated $300 damage resulted to each of two vehicles involved in a 6:45 p.m. collision at the intersection of Seventh and James Streets yesterday.

Greenville investigators identified the drivers involved as Mary Ann Carroll of Weldon and Buck Wayne Murray of Sharpburg.

No charges were made.

Hunt Blames The Governor

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Holshouser's accusations that the legislature heightened North Carolina's prison overcrowding problems were disputed Monday by Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt.

Holshouser should bear the blame for those problems because he refused to meet with legislators to discuss them, Hunt said.

The governor had criticized Hunt and the legislature at a news conference Friday. He said they cut prison appropriations at the same time Hunt is advocating fixed sentences for prisoners. Fixed sentences would reduce the number of prisoners leaving on parole.

A meeting with Holshouser

April 23 on the matter was requested by Hunt and House Speaker Jimmy Green, according to a letter released by the lieutenant governor's office. No meeting ever took place.

Holshouser's office said the April 23 date was not feasible because Secretary of Corrections David Jones was out of town.

Laney Funderburke, Holshouser's administrative assistant, said he talked several times with Hunt's office about alternative dates. But, he said, "The rest of the week was filled up. Finally, it got confused."

"The governor got busy and he decided he just didn't want to bother with it. He felt he had more important things to do."

Ultra Checking. Not just another ball park figure.

Balancing your checkbook with your bank statement can be such a problem, that it's often tempting to settle for a ball park figure.

Unless you have PNB's Ultra Checking. It's the easiest bank statement to balance in North Carolina.

With Ultra Checking, your checks are listed on your statement in the same order they appear in your checkbook. So it's easy for you to maintain an accurate balance.

There are many other benefits of an Ultra Checking Account.

Ask your PNB banker for details. Or ask someone who already has an Ultra Checking Account.

Jim "Catfish" Hunter, for instance.

He knows enough about ball park figures to know that they don't belong in his checkbook.
