

Six Primaries Bolster Ford Hopes

Carter Sees 2 Setbacks

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

President Ford has fashioned a stalemate that boosts his prospects in the contest for the Republican presidential nomination.

And trouble signals are up for Democrat Jimmy Carter, his quest for the White House slowed by the one-two punch of Sen. Frank Church and California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr.

That was the net result of six presidential primary elections Tuesday, a set in which Ronald Reagan won three landslides while Ford inched to a tight Tennessee victory and won relatively close races in Kentucky and Oregon.

Carter scored three landslides of his own in Arkansas, Kentucky and Tennessee.

But he lost a key test to Church in Oregon. Brown won in Nevada, Church at home in Idaho.

And the season's busiest single primary election day served only to point the way toward the finale on June 8.

In effect, Ford backed into a relatively successful Tuesday. It produced a net gain of 20 nominating votes for Reagan, but it also put three primaries into each candidate's column.

The President remained well ahead in nationwide delegate strength — and for the leader in a two-man race, ties are enough. If he could manage an event split with Reagan in the remaining delegate competition, Ford will be within a vote or two of nomination. But that will be difficult; there are still delegates to come from the Southern and Western areas where Reagan is strongest.

Furthermore, there is the big California primary in two weeks, the final test, in the state where Reagan twice was elected governor. It is for 167 nominating votes, winner take all.

Ford strategists say he is behind Reagan in California but can catch up, and the President has been campaigning there this week. Reagan's camp calls victory a must for the challenger, and says he will win it.

In the Democratic competition, Carter added to his runaway lead in delegate strength, but there was fresh evidence that the former Georgia governor will go to the Democratic National Convention well short of a majority.

The evidence was produced when Church beat Carter handily in the Oregon contest, despite a write-in vote for Brown that divided the anti-Carter ballots.

Brown was gearing up for California, too. It will apportion 280 Democratic delegates. "The California primary will be critical," he said.

Church said he'll make a run in California, but rates Brown a heavy favorite. "Gov Brown is a favorite son candidate," he said. "He's running in his own state and you can't take that away from him."

Church and Brown read Tuesday's verdicts as a sign that the Democratic contest is still wide open. So did Rep. Morris K. Udall, who made a minor campaign effort in the three southern states, but ran far back, behind Carter and Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, in all of them. Udall said he will go to the convention with more delegates than anyone but Carter.

Carter's losses were largely psychological; they proved him vulnerable. But he said he doesn't have to win every race. His gains were numerical. And Carter's response to his rivals was simple: look at the numbers.

"Look at the national picture," he said. "After 15 primaries in May, I will have won more than half, against fresh candidates. We're well ahead of schedule, with nationwide support. I feel good about it."

His gain, subject to adjustments when all the Tuesday votes are counted, came to 136 Democratic delegates, and that pushed him past the halfway mark in the quest for the 1,505 votes needed for nomination. There are now 876 delegates in the Carter column; Udall, second, has only 298.59.

On the Republican side, Reagan won or led for 98 delegates in the Tuesday competition, Ford for 78.

That sent the Ford total to 779 nominating votes, Reagan's to 642. There remain 168 uncommitted GOP delegates.

Reagan and his managers are talking about winning what they regard as wavering delegate support currently counted in the Ford column.

These were the key figures on the Tuesday outcome:

—Ford barely got past Reagan in Tennessee, gaining 50 per cent of the vote and a margin of only 2,200 ballots. The delegate count was weighted by congressional districts, and Reagan actually led that, 22 to

—In Kentucky, Ford captured 51 per cent of the vote and got 19 delegates; Reagan was four points behind him and got 18.

—Oregon gave Ford 52 per cent, and 16 delegates to Reagan's 14, with the count nearing completion.

—Reagan's victories were by big margins. In Arkansas he got 63 per cent of the popular vote and 17 delegates to Ford's 10. In Idaho, it was 74 per cent for Reagan, and 16 delegates to five for the President. And in Nevada, Reagan rolled up 65 per cent, gaining 12 delegates while Ford got five.

FBI Checking Elizabeth Ray's Status

By DAVE RILEY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—Following Rep. Wayne Hays' admission that he had a "personal relationship" with a woman employee, the question remaining in dispute is whether she received $14,000 a year at taxpayer expense to be his mistress or whether she was a productive employee of Congress.

The Justice Department is trying to resolve that question and the little-used House ethics committee may make an effort, too.

Hays, in an emotional speech before the full House on Tuesday, admitted he lied when he denied having a relationship with Elizabeth Ray, a shapely clerk on the payroll of his House Administration Committee. But he contended he was telling the truth when he said he did not keep her on the government payroll at $14,000 a year just for her sexual services.

FBI agents were reportedly continuing their investigation for the Justice Department of Hays' relationship with Miss Ray as the House ethics committee was receiving strong pressure to open its own probe.

Twenty-eight House members, in a letter to ethics committee chairman John J. Flynt, urged the panel to launch an investigation "in order to guarantee the integrity of the House of Representatives, its members and its committees."

Flynt was campaigning in his home state of Georgia as Hays made his speech admitting his relationship with Miss Ray, but said he was flying to Washington immediately. He said all of the requests for an investigation, including a telephoned request from Hays himself, were "informal," noting his panel could act only on a formal request.

Four of the 28 members who signed the letter asking for the ethics committee investigation also sent a letter to Speaker Carl Albert. Albert and other House leaders were in London to accept a loan of the Magna Carta for the Bicentennial celebration.

In his confession before the crowded House chamber, the 65-year-old Hays denied keeping Miss Ray, 33, on the government payroll as his mistress. He said he lied about his relationship with her because he did not want his new wife to find out about it.

"Six weeks ago, I was married to the woman I love more than any other person or thing in this world. . . . Prior to this time, and for an extended period of time, I did have a relationship with Elizabeth Ray. I was legally separated and single. It was voluntary on her part and mine," Hays said.

He said he ended the relationship before his remarriage. He was divorced from his first wife in January. Hays insisted that Miss Ray performed office duties for her pay, despite her contention that she could not type or handle telephones and that she did not do any work for Hays' committee.

Miss Ray, who says she was on the payroll only to be available for sex with Hays, denied Tuesday that her relationship with the congressman ended with his remarriage. She said she had seen him four times since his marriage and that they had been intimate twice.

"I'm not taking anything back. I'm telling the truth," she said.

Meanwhile, the Washington Post said it found that Miss Ray's name was not included on a list of House Administration Committee employees in monthly reports from November 1975 to February 1976. Hays was required to file the reports under House rules requiring that all committee employees be named.

The report for November 1975, signed by Hays on Dec. 15, does not list Miss Ray's name. Her name does appear on House payroll records.

Failure to list Miss Ray in the committee staff reports for four months had the effect of keeping her employment secret until payroll records were published in the Congressional Record on April 1, the Post quoted a congressional source as saying.

In admitting he lied about his relationship with Miss Ray, Hays told his colleagues in the House chamber, "I now realize that I committed a grievous error in not presenting all the facts."

But, he said, "I stand by my previous denial of Miss Ray's allegation that she was hired to be my mistress. I further stand by my statement that Miss Ray is a seriously disturbed young lady, and I deeply regret that our relationship, and its termination, has apparently greatly aggravated her emotional and psychological problems."

Hays said that when he decided to marry Patricia Peak, who was in charge of his Ohio office, he told Miss Ray their relationship would have to end and that made her hysterical. He said she threatened suicide and blackmail.

"Only time will tell if Miss Ray has been successful in destroying my career," he said. "I pray to God she has not destroyed my marriage."

Suing To Block Big Cutback In Food Stamps

WASHINGTON (AP)—More than half the states, 53 labor unions and 22 church groups joined 73 food-stamp families in suing the Ford administration today in an attempt to stop the sharp cutback in the food stamp program.

The food stamp recipients argued they either would lose their benefits entirely or have them sharply reduced if new Agriculture Department regulations governing the program start taking effect next Tuesday.

The states said they would be swamped by administrative confusion and extra expense as a result of the regulations.

Ronald Pollack, director of the private non-profit Food Research and Action Center, filed the suit in U.S. District Court here on behalf of almost 200 plaintiffs seeking an injunction against the regulations. Pollack will argue the case against Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, who initiated the regulations on President Ford's orders.

At the White House, a spokesman said that "the President is very personally concerned about this. We feel our administrative program is the best way and we don't think there's anything illegal about it."

According to current Agriculture Department estimates, about 1.66 million families would be eliminated entirely from the food-stamp rolls under new regulations that begin taking effect next Tuesday.

An additional 1.72 million families with incomes just under the official poverty lines would remain in the program but would have to pay more cash for the stamps. Administration officials say the other two million-plus families remaining in the program will see their benefits increase.

The administration predicts the new regulations will save taxpayers $1.2 billion a year when fully effective six months from now. About 18.8 million persons in 5.88 million households now benefit from the 12-year-old program, costing the federal government $5.7 billion a year.

President Ford issued the new rules in February, saying Congress was taking too long to make changes.

Four of the 28 members who signed the letter asking for the ethics committee investigation also sent a letter to Speaker Carl Albert. Albert and other House leaders were in London to accept a loan of the Magna Carta for the Bicentennial celebration.

In his confession before the crowded House chamber, the 65-year-old Hays denied keeping Miss Ray, 33, on the government payroll as his mistress. He said he lied about his relationship with her because he did not want his new wife to find out about it.

Crucial Battle Raging In Lebanon's Struggle Amid Mountain Peaks

OVERLOOKING FARAYA, Lebanon (AP)—A crucial battle in Lebanon's civil war is raging through rocky snow-patched mountains that used to be the best ski country in the Middle East.

Moslem and Christian forces are trading heavy artillery shells, bullets and rockets from peak to peak. Casualties in three weeks of fighting have been heavy.

At stake is Faraya, a once posh resort village 35 miles northeast of Beirut. Held by the Christians, it is a gateway to their heartland north of the capital, a rectangular enclave roughly 35 miles long and 15 miles wide.

Loss of Faraya would be a telling blow to Christian morale and it would expose the Christian sector and its unofficial capital and port, Junieh, to unimpeded Moslem bombardment and of a downhill Moslem advance.

Below the crest here, Christian positions are dug into a snowy hill on the edge of Faraya.

The Lebanese Arab Army, made up of Moslem soldiers who deserted the Lebanese Army because most of its commanders were Christians, mans the most advanced permanent Moslem post on the main road from the east with four armored personnel carriers and three tanks.

Ambusher militiamen and Palestinian guerrillas from Yasser Arafat's Al Fatah move by foot among forward machine-gun nests atop the hills. They are backed by 122mm and 155mm howitzers in less exposed positions behind the peaks. These duel with the cannon of Christian army deserters who defend Faraya along with militiamen from the right-wing Phalange party.

The firing is often inaccurate. Rounds were crashing down Tuesday afternoon onto Moslem farming districts in the valley below.

Moslem officers say the battle for Faraya started when their men saw a Phalangist bulldozer trying to push through the snow and mud to open a new road to the besieged Christian town of Zahleh. Moslem forces stopped the advance in a clash that attracted Phalange gunmen from battles for other towns nearby.

The fighting escalated as the opposing forces realized the strategic importance of Faraya.

NEEDS REPAIRS

I am interested in finding out if there is anyone in Greenville who can repair a Timex watch. I would like their name and address and how to contact them. I have a Timex watch that needs repair and every shop says I have to send it off and I hate to take the risk. M. P.

Eloise Porter, manager of Saslow's Jewelers, said, "Due to the mechanics of Timex watches, it's necessary that the Timex watch be sent back to U.S. Time Corp., except for replacement of crystals, stems and crowns, which can be done locally. If the interested person experiences any difficulty in returning the watch to the company, we would be glad to offer assistance in returning the watch."

The address of the company is U.S. Time Corp., P.O. Box 2740, Little Rock, Ark., 72203.

If the watch is not in warranty, it has to state that it is an out of warranty repair.

Nye Announces He Will Seek N.C. Labor Post

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

T. Avery Nye Jr., incumbent State Commissioner of Labor, announced here Tuesday that he will seek the Republican nomination for the post in the August primary.

Nye made his reelection bid announcement during an afternoon news conference at the airport, one of a series of stops made by the candidate across the state during the day.

The commissioner, who was appointed to the Labor post by Governor Jim Holshouser in 1975, told newsmen that he believes he has a "special responsibility to make the additional effort necessary to win election to a full term as commissioner."

Contending that he is the "best qualified candidate" for the post, Nye pointed out that one of the reasons "why I feel an obligation to run is that the future of our state-administered

OSHA (Occupational Safety and Health Act) program is at stake."

Explaining, he said that, "In

AVERY NYE, Jr.

July or August, a final full year evaluation of our state OSHA program will determine whether or not we can keep the tentacles of additional federal control out of our plants and businesses in North Carolina. If we fail to measure up in this year, the federal inspectors will be back on the scene," he noted.

"Only by running and winning can I be sure that our policies which have proven so successful will be continued," he continued. "Frankly, I just don't think it would be wise to change horses in the middle of the stream, risking any disruption in our OSHA program in this critical year."

Nye said that he will run a "serious and vigorous campaign" that is "unprecedented in North Carolina for this office." The last GOP candidate for the Labor chief's job received 46 per cent of the vote "with no real campaign and only $300 in ex-

Mail Auctions Help To Pay The Postal Debts

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—If your collection of Conway Twitty's greatest hits never arrived in the mail, chances are it's gone for a good purpose—helping the cash-starved Postal Service solve its debt problems.

The Postal Service is making profits from auctioning off books and records after its new mail sorting machines have ripped them from their wrappers.

Spokesmen for the book and record industries said Tuesday that their merchandise has received unprecedented damage in the mail since the Postal Service began using an automated system for sorting packages.

But in many cases, the book or record isn't damaged. It's simply separated from its packaging—and its address—by the machines, they said. In these cases, postal regulations allow the intact book or record to be auctioned off after a 60-day waiting period.

The book and record industries are pressing for an end to the auctions.

Congressional investigators have criticized some of the devices used to sort packages as "nonsense machines" that cause needless damage.

"When the Postal Service can auction off books that become loose in the mail this gives it an economic reason not to locate the rightful owner," Leo Albert, a spokesman for the book publishing industry, told a House Post Office subcommittee.

The Postal Service has announced a moratorium on auctions of books and records from June 1 to Aug. 31 while it looks for alternatives to the auctions.

A spokesman for the financially troubled Postal Service said no figures are available on the proceeds from postal auctions since the service's billion dollar bulk mail system was completed this year. The mail agency says books and records are its biggest problems in the new system.

The spokesman said the loose items in the mail "frequently are caused by poor wrapping." He said postal rates for books and records are very low "and we have found that book publishers and record companies very often won't invest in good wrapping materials."

But industry representatives disputed this. "Our packaging is as good now as it's ever been, if not better," said Albert, chairman of Prentice-Hall International and head of the postal committee of the Association of American Publishers.

Student Bicentennial Parade Included 45 Floats, Units

Tuesday's Bicentennial Parade was the highlight of six weeks of bicentennial observances by students at South Greenville Elementary School.

Beginning at 10 a.m., about 250 of the South Greenville student body formed in place to march down Howell Street in front of the school. A total of 45 different floats and units, designed and prepared by the students, depicted people and events from America's 200 years as an independent nation.

Three ponies helped the children, with the lead pony making an appearance as a Pony Express, announcing that the parade was coming behind him. The other ponies were used to represent the Ride of Paul Revere and a typical American hayride. Paul Revere himself appeared in the parade riding a tricycle.

One of the floats receiving particular acclaim was the one representing World War II, constructed by sixth grade students.

Among figures from the past depicted in the South Greenville parade were Johnny Appleseed, Betsy Ross, Thomas Jefferson, Tom Sawyer, George and Marthan Washington and the Wright Brothers.

Places and events represented included the Civil War, a Bible float, the Boston Tea Party, the Liberty Bell, old school houses, and the 13 original colonies.

Many of the boys and girls in the parade were dressed in costumes of the period of the event or era being shown. Members of the Cub Scouts, the Brownies and Boy and Girls Scouts took part dressed in their Scout uniforms.

Special guests for the event included county commissioners, members of the city school board and the city school staff, retired teachers and city officials. Approximately 300 visitors, mostly parents of South Greenville children, were on hand to watch the students parade by in their bicentennial pageant of American history.

Pitt Farm Bureau Directors Are Host To County Commissioners

President D. R. House welcomed the county commissioners as special guest at the regular meeting of the Pitt County Farm Bureau Board of Directors meeting Tuesday. Rep. Sam Bundy and Sen. Vernon White were also special guest.

Burney Baker discussed the Burleson Bill and encouraged the farmers to write their congressmen and senators and give their reasons for wanting the bill passed.

Mrs. Wilbur Worthington announced the Leadership Conference for Women to be held at Meredith College in Raleigh June 14-16.

Senator Vernon White discussed OSHA and warned the farmers that all tractors must have designed safety devices by January, 1977.

Rep. Bundy and Sen. White answered questions concerning the recent session of the General Assembly.

The group asked questions concerning the garbage pick up for the rural areas of Pitt County.

Ed Yancey announced the annual Coastal Plain Development Association Agricultural tour for June 16. The tour will cover farm and related stops in Nash and Edgecombe counties.

State Refuses Medicaid Funds

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A request for a $5 million cash advance for the company handling North Carolina's Medicaid payments has been turned down by the state.

Bergen Brunswig Corp. of Los Angeles, parent company of Health Applications Systems (HAS) requested the advance Tuesday before its board of directors met to discuss whether to exercise an option to cancel the Medicaid contract. Under the contract, HAS pays all of the Medicaid claims for a flat $405 million for two years. The contract's year ends June 30.

There was no word from Los Angeles Tuesday night whether the contract had been cancelled. The company has the right to cancel with 120 days notice.

The advance requested by the company would have been part of the $14.6 million the state is to pay HAS in June as the monthly premium.

An official in the state Department of Human Resources said the advance was refused.

Earlier this month, HAS began complaining that Medicaid costs were rising far beyond anticipated levels. Even though the company said it had reduced the cost of handling each claim, the soaring number of claims made the total outlay more than it was receiving from the state.

The firm asked the state to remove the ceiling on how much can be paid, though it was satisfied with the payment rate per Medicaid recipient. The company has estimated that it would cost the state an extra $26 million to cover unexpected increases.

Medicaid is the program of providing health care for the poor.

Will Get Less In Milk Sales

RALEIGH (AP) — To meet competition from low cost reconstituted milk, farmers in the Asheville area will get eight cents a gallon less for milk sold at retail as low fat fresh milk under a temporary order from the state Milk Commission.

At its meeting Tuesday, the panel approved a 90-day order to cut the farm price of 100 pounds of milk that is sold at retail as low fat milk to $10.12, which is $1 less than the usual price for Class 1 fresh milk. There are 46 quarts in 100 pounds, meaning farmers will get about two cents a quart less for that milk.

Farmers and processors had complained that they lost business when Arcadia Dairy began selling half whole milk and half reconstituted powered milk at about 18 cents a gallon below the going price for whole milk.

Processors met the competition by cutting prices so their low fat milk would sell at the same price. Under the temporary order, farmers will bear eight cents of the cost of competing with Arcadia. The processing companies, the firms that package and put their brand names on milk, will bear the remaining cost.

Grady Cooper, executive secretary of the commission, said the retail price probably will not change because processors had already lowered prices to meet competition.

Two weeks ago, farmers told the commission that they believed swift action was necessary to protect their livelihood.

Consumer groups, on the other hand, urged the panel to go slow until it could be determined what the impact of the new competition would be.

Earlier, the Milk Commission forced Arcadia to make an "equalization payment," which, in effect, made the dairy pay the same production cost for its reconstituted milk that it would have paid for whole milk. Arcadia appealed that to the state Supreme Court and recently won a reversal.

The commission lacked the authority to require equalization payments, which were to go to dairy farmers in the Asheville area who the commission believed were being hurt by the sale of the less expensive milk, the Supreme Court ruled.

Wed In 3 Minutes, Modern Way

By RUTH YOUNGBLOOD HONG KONG (UPI) — The nervous groom in his tuxedo and his bride in her flowing dress sat awkwardly on the crowded bench, waiting for the moment scheduled three months earlier.

The clatter of typewriters instead of the wedding march accompanied the couple from the busy outer office of the City Hall Marriage Registry to a quiet room. No bridesmaids led the way or distinguished judge or minister awaited them.

While several relatives and friends took seats in the back, the bride, groom and their two witnesses sat at a table up front. The deputy marriage registrar, a woman dressed in a simple skirt and sweater, performed the ritual that goes on 30 to 40 times daily at City Hall.

In three minutes, Miss Amy Lau became Mrs. W.H. Wong. The traditional Chinese saying that a young man embarking on marriage spends half his life repaying the debts he ran up by giving a lavish wedding party has become an anachronism.

Long gone are the days when Chinese marriages were arranged through a broker, followed by rounds of bargaining between the two families concerning gifts and dowries. Even the most nostalgic grandparents admit that not meeting their husband-to-be until the wedding day, when a red sedan chair brought the bride to his village, was not the way to assure a happy match.

The $20 civil ceremony has become the modern way to marry in this British Crown Colony, with nothing religious about the event and words kept to the minimum.

The deputy registrar tells the couple, "It is my duty to remind you of the solemn and binding character of a marriage in this registry which is in law the voluntary union of life of one man and one woman."

The bride and groom exchange rings if they desire, sign two marriage certificates with the witnesses and registrar, and end the ceremony with each saying to the other, "I call upon all persons here present to witness that I do take thee to be my lawful wedded wife" (or husband).

During 1975, 33,550 marriages took place at the registries which have expanded to Kowloon across the harbor and into the New Territories below China along with the increasing demand, compared with only 2,413 church ceremonies.

The relatively-even flow of marriages over the months indicates that more young people are discarding the traditional beliefs that it is unpropitious to marry in the odd numbered months of the lunar calendar, and decreasing numbers are marking the day by the traditional Chinese feast for hundreds of friends and relatives.

Unhappy wedding caterers have watched helplessly. Wong, a salesman, said he opted for the registry for the same reason almost all cite — "the money."

Most use the funds saved for a honeymoon or to help set up an apartment. "We're taking a week-long trip to the Philippines," Wong said proudly. "This is a much better way to marry," the new Mrs. Wong added, standing in her Western-style gown in the plain corridor after the ceremony, proudly extending her hand to show her new gold band. Mrs. Wong, a bank secretary, said she would return to her job "as soon as the honeymoon is over."

S.S. Tan, the senior assistant registrar who performed hundreds of these marriages before his promotion, views the registries as a realistic way to start off married life.

"Few young people here are interested in expensive church weddings which, with all the trimmings, run into thousands of dollars," he said.

"The marriage registries are not only practical, but give the newlyweds a chance to travel, sometimes very inexpensively, with group honeymoon tours, or to buy furniture, or both, for the very fortunate."

Tan admitted that along with the rejection of the traditional has come a vast array of wedding attire, ranging from white Western gowns and tuxedos to Chinese wedding garments, working clothes and even jeans.

While each prospective bride and groom is told, "It is usual to be as well dressed as circumstances permit." Tan added, "This is only a suggestion."

Mostly due to parental pressure, some superstitions are still noticeable. Sunday, considered a lucky day, is particularly popular for marriages, and there are some who won't wed during the Chinese festivals of ghosts and ancestor worship.

With the lunar Year of the Dragon, considered highly favorable for marriage, Tan said he expected the registries to chalk up a new record.

Since City Hall in Hong Kong's central business district is not only convenient, but excellent, for photographs with its surrounding gardens, the waiting list for a date runs three months.

While the Wongs considered to wait worthwhile, other more anxious couples just head to Kowloon or the New Territories. A young journalist and his bride who "just wanted to get married with no fuss or pictures" donned jeans and found the no-wait speed of the Kowloon registry perfect for their needs.

Parents Rely On Abby's Judgement

DEAR ABBY: My father says that I have to ask you what you think the punishment should be for the crime I committed. I stole some money from my parents.

So whatever you say, I will have to do. I am 12 years old. GUILTY IN CLIFTON, N.J.

DEAR ABBY: Pay back the money out of your allowance or work for it. Ask the Lord's forgiveness and write, "I will not steal" 100 times. And vow NEVER to steal again.

DEAR ABBY: I must take exception to your statement: "The mouth is an erogenous zone, reserved for one's lover—or for mouth-to-mouth resuscitation."

The mouth is an erogenous zone ONLY if one wants it to be. Otherwise it has no more emotion than the back of your hand. My family is not what might be called a family of kissers. However, I've kissed my sisters, father, mother and even my daughters on the mouth, and none of us ever regarded it as anything other than a warm greeting, which was the way it was intended.

Now, I have kissed many girls (and of course my wife) on the mouth when I had amorous intentions and found that they can respond as they feel. It has nothing to do with the "lip contact"—only the intentions of the two parties, which must be mutual and simultaneous.

I trust that you will give this further thought and agree with my view.

KISSIN' PHIL

DEAR PHIL: A kiss is just a kiss, unless it is otherwise intended. But the erogenous zone is a dangerous place to decide which is which.

DEAR ABBY: We recently announced that our daughter is being married at a large church wedding on June 26th. A friendly neighbor phoned and asked at what time our wedding was scheduled. I told her 2 P.M. Then she told me that HER daughter was being married the same day at 5 P.M. and asked if she could use our flowers.

I didn't know what else to say, so I said yes. When I told my husband, he said I should have told her if she wanted to use our flowers, she should pay half the florist bill. They are just about as well off financially as we are. Now my husband wants me to ring the lady up and make that suggestion, but I haven't the nerve.

Please help me.

WASN'T THINKING

DEAR WASN'T: The time to have made the suggestion was when she asked to use your flowers. Although it would be rather awkward to suggest it now, do so. But remember, you already said yes.

DEAR ABBY: It tickled my funnybone to think that with all the uproar from Women's Libbers, they neglected to change MENopause to personopause.

J.E. INEL CAJON, CALIF.

DEAR J.E.: MENopause is strictly for women, and I seriously doubt if any man would insist on getting a piece of the action.

Optimistic View Of Tobacco

John Cyrus, chief of the Field Crop Section of the N. C. Department of Agriculture sees reason for optimism insofar as the tobacco marketing season goes this year.

Cyrus spoke to the Eastern Carolina Warehouse Association here last week.

He predicted a better reason than has been experienced for a number of years, with the weather being the only factor of uncertainty.

Cyrus foresees a better price support-cost ratio for growers this season. This he attributes to the more stable price situation for production supplies.

The overall average price paid for tobacco should be higher this year. Cyrus predicts $110 per hundred pounds compared with the $101 average of last year. An outstanding crop could carry the average even higher.

Cyrus' predictions on the marketing picture for this year is encouraging. Last year was not one of the best for tobacco farmers who found themselves caught between soaring production costs and disappointing prices.

It appears that production costs will be more stable this year and depending on weather conditions, the price paid for tobacco will be higher.

That is good news for our tobacco producing area.

Keep New River In Its Natural State

Sen. Robert Morgan withdrew his objections to legislation which would block construction of a hydro-electric power project on the New River last week.

A 26-mile section of the New River has been designated as part of the nation's Wild and Scenic Rivers system. The area would be flooded if the power project is allowed.

Sen. Morgan had studied the matter for some time before making a decision on the New River. We think the river should be preserved in its natural state and Sen. Morgan's decision suits us.

Ending 'Cabbage Patch'?

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—Highway Patrolmen dislike the "Cabbage Patch," and a legislative study panel agrees.

Cabbage patches are sections of highway where it is easy for a state trooper to make an arrest: a long, straight stretch of interstate, for example, where motorists tend to let speed get above the limit.

And that is where they have been spending a lot of time, troopers complain, in an effort to log quick arrests and make the record look better.

Trooper O.M. Hicks, a 25-year veteran from Salisbury, described the system to members of the special study commission on the Highway Patrol chaired by State Rep. Edward S. Holmes, D-Chatham.

Trooper Hicks said the patrol has no formal arrest quota system, but pressure is kept for increased arrests. At the first of each week the trooper's first sergeant reviews performance and the trooper may be given "gigs" Hicks said.

Long Time
"Sometimes troopers with low numbers of arrests are required to go to the 'Cabbage Patch' to increase their arrest totals," the committee report notes. "Some patrolmen stay in the 'Cabbage Patch' most of their time because patrol evaluations are now based on arrest statistics."

Additionally, the committee reported that pressure from the top to increase drunk driving arrests had resulted in some drivers who blew only .02 on the breathalyzer being arrested when .10 is required for automatic suspension of a driving license.

The patrolmen said they wanted quality arrests, rather than quantity.

The legislators recommended that the Highway Patrol immediately "cease the use of any informal quota system and discourage the use of any system that might emphasize a high number of arrests just for the sake of high arrest statistics."

That recommendation is among several put forth by the study group which will likely result in action by the 1977 General Assembly. The legislative study was prompted by widely circulated reports of severe morale problems in the patrol.

The legislators failed to find any such severe problems, concluding instead that normal complaints over salary and chain-of-command communication problems make up the bulk of the problem.

Salary All Right
"The committee has concluded that the present starting salary for troopers is adequate, particularly since it compares favorably with other similar state and local government law enforcement salary plans (and) equals or exceeds the beginning salary in most other comparable occupations that do not require education beyond high school and do not require extensive training before employment," the report noted. The committee did call for some study leading toward upgrading of pay scales for experienced troopers.

To help with communication problems, the committee suggested more visits to the field and by seeking trooper information in matters that concern them.

Holmes and the committee report both were careful to note that nothing in the report is "meant to be interpreted as unfriendly criticism of the present patrol colonel and his staff . . ."

Even the much-criticized practice of stationing troopers at the Governor's Mansion to run errands and drive members of the family on various outings was defended by Holmes as something which the troopers expect to do as part of their duty, and one which should be continued.

Older troopers received a share of concern from the committee which reported that "After a man nears 50, his strength and the quickness of his reflexes begin to decline and he is not as able to take care of himself as he was during his younger years." The committee suggests safer duty for the senior troopers, leaving the arduous roadwork for youngsters.

And the legislators suggested that widespread publicity about special protective equipment assigned to patrolmen (bulletproof vests, sophisticated radio gear, etc.) not be widely publicized allowing law breakers advance warning of what to expect.

"Look, Mom! Still no cavities . . . jus' some yucky lil' ole Brown spots . . ."

Saving It For Memoirs

WASHINGTON — Spiro Agnew, the fiction writer, is now flacking his book around the country. Mr. Agnew refuses to talk about his criminal activities as Vice President because, he says, "I'm saving those for my memoirs."

It is a very clever ploy, but law enforcement officials all over the country are very concerned that, because of Mr. Agnew's policy, it is going to be harder than ever to get confessions out of people arrested for committing crimes.

They are predicting that many suspects will follow the Agnew line.

Louie the Lug has just been brought in for questioning after six members of the Cinecitta mob were mowed down in a garage on Mother's Day. Louie was arrested as he was trying to pay his parking ticket in the garage with a smoking machine gun.

"Okay, Louie," the detective says. "You might as well make it easy on yourself and tell us what happened."

"I'm sorry, but I'm saving all that for my memoirs."

"Look, Louie, we have an open-and-shut case. You better talk or we're going to throw the book at you."

"Speaking of books, I've just completed a novel that I think you might be interested in. It's about a hit man for a mob who gets caught up in a Zionist conspiracy and falls in love with his secretary."

"We're not interested in your novel, Louie. We want to know about the Mother's Day Massacre in the Deep Throat Garage."

Louie continues, "The hit man hates the liberal press that is always writing nasty stories about him so he decides to steal an atomic bomb and blow up the Washington Post. The novel has a lot of sex in it. Listen to this: 'Beldon unbuttoned Flora's blouse as she stood there quivering in the pizza parlor. Several children stared as he took off her skin.'"

"Louie, we're not interested in your blankety blank novel. We want to know who gave you the contract on the Cinecitta mob."

"I'm sorry, but my editor at Playboy Press said I should save that for my book. I assure you, gentlemen, when it is printed it will be an entirely different story than the one that has been printed in the yellow press."

"Louie, the ballistics experts' report says that every bullet found in the bodies of the Cinecitta mob came from the machine gun you were holding in your hand."

"Gentlemen, I didn't come here to talk about that. My understanding, when you arrested me, was that we would discuss my novel. I have a scene in it where Beldon has been kidnapped by the United Jewish Appeal and

Aware Of The Noise

By G. DAVID WALLACE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Although a new Census Bureau study shows that crime ranks sixth among Americans' complaints about their neighborhoods, a bureau analyst says that doesn't necessarily mean people consider the other problems to be more serious.

A census study released Monday showed that in the 1974 annual housing survey, the most frequently cited inadequacy in neighborhoods was noise. Nearly half the households complained about noise, while only about a third complained about crime.

Charles Elkins, top noise-control official at the Environmental Protection Agency, said the findings were consistent with EPA's impression that people's awareness of noise is increasing, even though the volume isn't going up that much.

Arthur F. Young, chief of the Census Bureau's Housing Division, said the figures indicate "there's an awful lot of Americans who live in neighborhoods where crime is not a problem."

But the mere statistics don't necessarily tell the whole story, he said. Crime affects fewer people than noise but victims of both would consider crime to be the more severe of the two problems. "This is a subjective problem," Young said. "Noise is never as severe to anyone as when their car or house is broken into or they're held up."

Despite that qualification, though, Young said the report "may open the eyes of public officials" who have been too narrowly focused on the crime problem in their cities. "But then they're still going to have to decide how to spend their money."

Of the households living in the nation's 70.8 million occupied housing units in 1974, here are the most frequently cited complaints: noise, 49.2 per cent; inadequate public transportation, 37.8 per cent; heavy traffic, 31.4 per cent; inadequate street lighting, 21 per cent; streets in poor repair, 19.4 per cent; crime, 17.1 per cent.

40 Years Ago Today

May 26, 1936
Dr. Howard J. McGinnis, in his report on the National Youth Administration work for the past year, gives abundant proof that this project is functioning well at East Carolina Teachers College. A large number of students are being given the chance to stay in college and carry on their education and do various kinds of work that will be valuable to them throughout life.

The total number of students assigned NYA work during the year is 211, with the number working at one time 187 at an average earning of $76.25. This means that these students have been able to earn only a little less than the expenses of one term.

Many of the jobs done by the NYA workers are the same in their nature as those done by the 108 self-help students on the college payrolls.

As the enrollment at ECTC has grown, the staff of workers has not been increased, so the NYA workers have furnished the needed relief.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Rocky's Operation Rescue

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON—Confidential projections that reveal President Ford's vulnerability to Ronald Reagan explain the sudden decision of New York Republican state chairman Richard Rosenbaum to abandon the pivotal "uncommitted" status of his huge delegation and plead for maximum commitment (130 out of 154 delegates) to Mr. Ford.

"Don't quote me," one New York political operative told us, "but Dick had to push the panic button to save Ford from what's going to happen to him in the May 25 primaries."

The President is favored to win Oregon while probably losing Arkansas, Tennessee, Kentucky, Nevada and Idaho—for a rich Reagan harvest of media headlines and a net gain of perhaps 20 to 30 Reagan delegates. In combination, this renewal of Reagan momentum after Mr. Ford's twin wins in Michigan and Maryland could threaten serious erosion of uncommitted delegates and send them scurrying to the former California governor.

Accordingly, the iron won't ever be hotter for a pro-Ford strike by Rosenbaum than it was right after the Michigan-Maryland primary day. From the President on down, pressure from Washington mounted all week (with Rockefeller called to no fewer than three Oval Office sessions with Mr. Ford). This is true even though the sudden desertion of "uncommitted" status opens Mr. Ford's weakness to humiliating public exposure. That Rockefeller should suddenly find himself in the position of Ford-saver is ironic in the extreme. White House manhandling of the Vice President during the ascendant days of White House staff chief (now Secretary of Defense) Donald Rumsfeld was what decided Rockefeller to declare himself out of the race for the 1976 vice presidential nomination.

Yet, the President himself is described by administration insiders as not even aware today of the sundry humiliations heaped on his Vice President by Rumsfeld and lesser White House aides.

Now, at Mr. Ford's personal request, it is Rockefeller who appealed to New York's convention delegates Monday in Albany to come down off their strategic uncommitted perch and sign on the Ford line. Rosenbaum, a resourceful professional, is also putting all his considerable influence behind the switch—but many pro-Rockefeller Empire State Republicans are both unhappy and angry.

The reason: whatever influence Rockefeller and the moderate-liberal Northeastern wing of the party might have had at the Kansas City convention with their large bloc of uncommitted delegates will now be dissipated. Between 80 and 90 of Pennsylvania's 103-member uncommitted delegation, for example, are also expected to declare for Mr. Ford, following pro-Ford endorsements by the state's Republican leadership.

Yet, so potentially grave is the predicament of Gerald R. Ford that Rosenbaum, quite apart from pressure from the Oval Office or the President Ford Committee, has been moving toward Operation Rescue since the May Day disaster in Texas. Motivating Rosenbaum was the frightening spectre of a Reagan nomination and its impact on the state Republican ticket in the November election (a spectre, right or wrong, that equally frightens Pennsylvania state chairman Richard Frame and most other Northeastern party leaders).

But even with Rosenbaum's political clout and Rockefeller's personal appeal at Monday's meeting of the delegation, 24 to 30 delegates—of whom 18 have

Other Editors Say Give The Details

(Raleigh News and Observer)

State Insurance Commissioner John Ingram discovered an interesting problem in time for his Saturday speech to a meeting of the North Carolina Association of Insurance Women. He informed this all-female audience that there is "discrimination against women in every form of insurance" and that the industry puts few women in high-level jobs.

A task force in his department came up with those findings, Ingram explained. The study showed that "some types of insurance are simply not available only at such high premiums as to make them inaccessible."

If all that is correct, it constitutes not just a problem, but an outright scandal. However, the nature of the situation is hard to gauge, because Ingram did not furnish specifics with his generalizations. This is an oversight common among politicians running for office, as Ingram is for another four-year term in his job.

Perhaps the commissioner is waiting for future speaking engagements to disclose just what kinds of coverage are being denied to females or being supplied at outrageous premium levels. Car insurance? Medical? Life? Fire? If there is discrimination against women in any of the major insurance areas, the victims have raised no hue and cry. But maybe the Ingram task force knows something that other people don't.

Commissioner Ingram has a flair for drama. It could serve him well on the '76 campaign trail, but it does seem to get in the way of his job performance. Women told by Ingram that the insurance industry is doing them wrong have cause to wonder why the commissioner hasn't moved against such "sexism" by now, or why, at least, he isn't being more specific with his charges so that women might do a better job of defending themselves in the insurance marketplace.

ACCEPTING BLESSINGS
A couple who had been born and brought up in the city became fascinated by what they considered to be the joys of rural life. Therefore they bought a few acres and started to farm. They also bought a cow. But some months later the husband wrote to a friend and said, "The cow has gone dry, and neither my wife or myself can figure out the reason for we take very little milk from her."

This novice in farming and dairying seemed to assume that the less we use of human benefits the longer they will last. Precisely the opposite is true. The more completely we take advantage every day of whatever life has to offer, the more will life have to offer us on the next day.

This principle is especially true in the spiritual world. The more heartily we accept the blessings which a kindly heaven would confer upon us, the more certain we can be that with the passing of time the heavenly kindness will deepen and expand.

Fear Recovery Is Overheating

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The Federal Reserve apparently has decided that the recovery is threatening to overheat and thus has moved to tighten the nation's money supply, which it controls.

Its purpose is to keep the easy flow of funds from, in itself, becoming inflationary. But its effect is likely to slow the economy.

This may seem too academic to interest you, but be assured it is not so. It is a pocketbook issue perhaps more important than any other facing Americans.

When the Fed gets tight, and stays that way for many months, it usually means the economy begins to slow, interest rates tend to rise and expansion plans are postponed or abandoned.

For those people contemplating loans for automobiles in this, one of the most vigorous automobile sales years ever, it might eventually mean higher monthly payments.

For those who plan to buy houses it means, almost certainly, that the supply of money for mortgages will decline some, and that the cost of available mortgage funds will rise.

For stock market investors it probably means lower prices, although not necessarily. But on Monday, when investors realized that the Fed was indeed tightening up, stock prices took a very sharp drop.

For entrepreneurs with ideas and ambitions and only in need of money to put both into action, tight money is bad news. When money is scarce, it goes to the most creditworthy customers.

For established businessmen it means having to think twice about expanding the existing plant, or adding new equipment or workers. If the economic advance is to be slowed, then everyone's sales will be lessened.

All this is relative, however. The Fed doesn't intentionally aim at pitching the economy into a recession. Its goal in tightening the money supply is to control the advance and avoid the boom-bust cycle.

In keeping demand in line with supply, it reasons, inflation can be controlled and the recovery prolonged. Once demand exceeds supply you get inflation; better to avoid it in the first place, the Fed reasons.

Few economists argue with the notion of prevention being better than correction, but more than a few are now asking questions about the theory's implementation at the present times.

The question that underlies all considerations is whether demand is outpacing the ability of the country to produce, and thus threatening a renewed and destructive inflation. Or could the threats to economic stability — including the threat of inflation — be caused by other factors?

The Fed's Board of Governors, and its Open Market Committee which implements policy, operate with a great deal of independence, even from control by the President. And often it closely guards its reasoning.

It is for this reason primarily that congressmen increasingly are looking into the activities of the Fed.

penses," according to Nye. The commissioner said that the state is in a "very attractive" position as far as the outlook for improvement of wages and conditions for workers is concerned.

Asked if any major revisions or updates are planned for the OSHA program in North Carolina in view of the final year evaluation, Nye said that the program is undergoing some refining but will basically continue along the same guidelines as in the past.

He referred to the state's OSHA program as something of a model project in view of the adoption of some aspects of the program by the U.S. Department of Labor. Other states have also been referred to the North Carolina program, he said, in setting up their own agencies.

Nye, a graduate of North Carolina State University in 1973, was appointed a member of the Governor's Environmental Task Force in 1971, a member of the Governor's Committee on Constitutional Amendments in 1972, and to membership on the Community and Economic Development Council in 1974. cent; inadequate shopping facilities, 13.4 per cent. Inadequate schools ranked near the bottom of the list of complaints at 4.2 per cent.

The complaints, however, don't mean people are ready to move. Some 2.1 million, or 3 per cent, of the households said they want to move. Nearly 82 per cent said they consider their neighborhoods to be good or excellent. Only 2.8 per cent rated their neighborhoods as poor.

By comparison, 79.8 per cent of the households said in 1973 they consider their neighborhoods to be good or excellent. The proportion of households complaining about noise in that survey, the first time it was added to the annual housing survey, was 45.7 per cent.

already announced—are expected to move into the Reagan camp. That number could grow if Mr. Ford meets unexpected reverses. Moreover, Conservative Party operatives are warning legislative and other state Republican candidates not to commit to Mr. Ford—or face reprisal in November. Such pressure could influence some Ford-leaders to stay neutral.

The delegate projections, which helped persuade Rosenbaum that the pro-Ford move must come now, show that under quite expectable circumstances Mr. Ford may enter the convention with 1,035 delegates; Reagan with 1,100; and 124 on the fence (with 1,130 needed to win). That includes for the President the maximum 130

New York delegates expected to swing to him and the 80 to 90 delegates Mr. Ford hopes will do the same in Pennsylvania.

With such projections, pushing into the Ford column now everybody that can be pushed makes sense—however much it looks like pressing the panic button.

Lung Ass'n Volunteer Of The Year—Snowden

RECEIVES AWARD . . . J. T. Snowden, Jr., (right) of Greenville gets the Volunteer of the Year Award for the Eastern Lung Association. Dr. George T. Wolff (left) presented the award to Snowden.

J. T. Snowden, Jr. of Greenville is the 1975 Volunteer of the Year of the Eastern Lung Association. The award, given by the North Carolina Lung Association, was presented to Snowden by Dr. George T. Wolff, 1974-75 President of the North Carolina Lung Association.

Snowden was cited for years of dedicated voluntary service to the Association on the local and state level. He was president of the Coastal Eastern Area Tuberculosis Association (10 counties) 1965-66 and was president of the North Carolina Tuberculosis Association 1967-68.

He also served on the Organizational Steering Committee during the merger of the 22 county Eastern Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association and has served as the treasurer of the 22 county area since its inception in 1968. Snowden is a member of the board of directors of the North Carolina Lung Association. The award was presented during the Annual Meeting banquet of the North Carolina Lung Association recently held in Greensboro.

Nuclear Needs Study Is Sought

RALEIGH (AP) — A thorough review of whether North Carolina should expand its reliance of nuclear energy for generating electricity has been called for in a preliminary report of a legislative study committee.

Released Tuesday by the Utilities Review Committee, the panel overseeing actions of the state Utilities Commission, the tentative report also calls for a management audit of the commission and establishment of a public relations officer for the commission.

In response to the tentative report, Carl Horn Jr., chairman of the board for Duke Power

Co., said later that nuclear power will eventually save customers large sums of money. If construction plans are delayed by additional hearings, it would drive up costs that the customers would end up bearing, he said.

Sherwood T. Smith, vice president of Carolina Power and Light Co., said when asked about the report that CP&L's customers face power blackouts in the 1980s if the company does not improve its financial standing so that it can more easily borrow funds to construct generating plants. The panel complained that CP&L's emergency 12 per cent rate increase last summer may not have been justified.

Higher profits for the companies now would result in lower electric rates in the future because the firms would be able to trim the cost of borrowing money, Horn said.

Here are other highlights in the tentative report: —Noting that several groups have expressed concern that North Carolina is moving too quickly to nuclear power without investigating its hazards, a thorough study of the subject was called for. Horn said nuclear power is safe because such plants require approval of 16 federal agencies, seven state agencies and several local agencies.

—An opinion by investment houses that the North Carolina Utilities Commission provides a favorable climate for utilities may be from the panel being too generous with rate increases.

—A management audit should be made of the Utilities Commission.

—The attorney general's staff should be strengthened so it can better represent the public's interest before the commission.

—The Utilities Commission should have a public information officer to help the people understand the decisions and actions of the commission.

—The Utilities Review Committee should have a professional staff.

—The one-year exemption of handicapped persons from the directory assistance charge should be made permanent.

Failure Of Speculators Rocks Potato Market

By MARY CAMPBELL AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Failure by speculators to deliver nearly 50 million pounds of Maine potatoes has rocked the 104-year-old New York Mercantile Exchange. One broker says that if those who caused the default get away unpunished it could "destroy the traditional fabric of the commodity futures trading system."

It was clear that default on the potato contracts could have widespread ramifications on the exchange that gives farmers and others a chance to gamble on future production of several types of raw materials against price fluctuation.

Some brokers estimated the default could cost the exchange $4 million or more.

The consumer potato market, though, appeared safe, since supply is adequate.

Default on 997 contracts for delivery of 49.85 million pounds of potatoes was official at 3 p.m. Tuesday. Within hours after the default, officials of both the Mercantile Exchange and the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, the federal agency that regulates such trading, had ordered inquiries.

But because default is so rare on the exchange, the industry was without precedent as it considered recovery. Calls for swift action — and promises of it — were without specifics.

"The magnitude of the default raises serious questions concerning . . . application, compliances and enforcement of the rules of the New York Mercantile Exchange," said William T. Bagley, chairman of the federal regulatory agency.

"It is obvious that there is something drastically wrong with that marketplace," he said. "We have told that exchange at the very least there will have to be major change and very soon so that trading doesn't go on under the present circumstances."

Robert Cornfeld, a spokesman for the Mercantile Exchange, said, "This is a very serious matter. The exchange doesn't permit default. Not even one. Action will be severe. The position of the exchange is that even a single default is a serious violation of exchange rules and regulations."

Cornfeld estimated 15 to 20 persons or firms held the contracts involved, but he wouldn't speculate where the investigation would begin. All were subject to severe financial and legal penalties.

The exchange had been concerned since trading on May delivery of Maine potatoes closed May 7 with 1,911 contracts — 95.55 million pounds — outstanding, and had tried to enforce delivery on all of them, Cornfeld said.

The potato market for May had experienced wide price movement, and speculative activity was intense. Richard Levine, president of the exchange who called the default "as rare as hailstones in India," heard charges of unethical — maybe illegal — trading practices by speculators and their brokers as the deadline passed.

There were charges, among others, that certain elements in the industry had tied up available railroad cars in an effort to prevent delivery of the Maine potatoes and of an effort by some buyers to squeeze supply by rejecting acceptable deliveries as inferior.

Young Hero Gets Medal

CONCORD, N.C. (AP) — Gary Sifford used swimming and physical therapy to overcome a stroke that paralyzed his left arm and leg six years ago, when he was 11 years old.

Tuesday, he received a hero's medal for swimming to three persons and saving their lives.

He was awarded the Governor's Award for Bravery and Heroism during a special ceremony at Concord Senior High.

A boat carrying Mr. and Mrs. Herman Smith of High Point and their two children went out of control at Badin Lake on April 24. The parents were thrown into the water. The children, Chuck, 7, and Pam, 4, remained in the runaway boat.

Sifford, who had been fishing from another boat, jumped into the water and pulled the unconscious Mrs. Smith to safety. With the aid of another bystander, he chased the runaway boat, jumped into it, and brought it under control. Smith drowned.

How Tar Heel Representatives, Senators Voted

By ROLL CALL REPORT
WASHINGTON — Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes May 13 through 19.

House
SOLAR ENERGY Rejected, 188 for and 207 against, an amendment to cut back a proposed increase in federal spending to develop solar energy technology. The amendment called for an additional $58 million in fiscal 1977 outlays for developing solar technology. Those voting "nay" favored a larger increase, of about $116 million.

The amendment was proposed to HR 13350, the fiscal 1977 authorization bill for the Energy Research and Development Administration, later passed and sent to the Senate. After rejecting the increase of $58 million, the House approved the $116 million hike, thus raising to nearly $350 million the bill's outlay for solar energy development.

Many supporters of the amendment were solar energy advocates, but considered the $116 million outlay impractical. Rep. Mike McCormack (D-Wash.) said: "It makes no sense to me . . . to throw more money into something where it cannot be economically used."

Rep. James Jeffords (R-Vt.), an opponent, said he preferred the $116 million hike because it would "put the proper emphasis on the development of solar technologies, and at a pace which the technology can now absorb."

Reps. Walter Jones (D-1), L. H. Fountain (D-2), David Henderson (D-3), Ike Andrews (D-4), Richardson Preyer (D-6), James Martin (R-9) and Roy Taylor (D-11) voted "yea."

Reps. Stephen Neal (D-5), Charles Rose (D-6) and James Broyhill (R-10) voted "nay." Rep. W. G. Hefner (D-8) did not vote.

UNEMPLOYMENT COM-

PENSATION Refused, 125 for and 219 against, to consider a bill (HR 10210) extending federal-state unemployment compensation eligibility to certain farm workers, domestics and state and local government employees — an estimated 9.5 million workers. The bill also raises the wage base for both federal and state employer-paid unemployment compensation taxes from $4,200 to $8,000, establishes a national commission to recommend improvements in the federal-state jobless pay system and changes the trigger mechanism for special jobless payments in addition to the normal 26-week allowance.

Chiefly at issue was not the substance of the bill but the rule under which it was to have been debated. The Rules Committee had called for a "closed rule" prohibiting amendments and any motion to recommit (send back to committee) with instructions.

Rep. Richard Bolling (D-Mo.) said he supported the closed rule because the unemployment compensation revision was a complex subject which "if opened up to amendment would really be extraordinarily difficult to deal with."

Among opponents were those who like disliked the merits of the bill. Rep. Edward Koch (D-N.Y.) said he favored the changes in the unemployment compensation program. "But," he added, "it seems to me that at times like this, a statement attributed to Voltaire is particularly applicable: 'I disapprove of what you say, but I will defend to the death your right to say it.'"

Jones, Fountain, Neal, Preyer, Rose, Hefner, Martin and Taylor voted "nay." Henderson, Andrews and Broyhill did not vote.

Senate
INTELLIGENCE OVERSIGHT Rejected, 31 for and 63 against, an amendment to exempt Department of Defense intelligence agencies from the purview of the new Senate Committee on Intelligence Activities, leaving them exclusively under the jurisdiction of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

Failure of the amendment left intact a provision that the new intelligence watchdog committee and the Armed Services panel share jurisdiction over Pentagon intelligence agencies such as the Defense Intelligence Agency and the National Security Agency.

The Senate then passed the resolution (S Res 400, below) establishing the intelligence committee, which has exclusive jurisdiction over the Central Intelligence Agency and shared jurisdiction, with other standing committees, over the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the defense agencies. Pending in the House is a resolution to establish a similar intelligence panel there.

Supporters of the amendment exempting defense agencies particularly disliked the new committee's authority over intelligence budgets, and warned of the possibility of leaks out of the new panel.

Opponents argued that the defense intelligence agencies, like the CIA and FBI have committed intolerable abuses and must be kept in check by the new Senate oversight machinery.

Sen. Robert Morgan (D) voted "nay." Sen. Jesse Helms (R) did not vote.

jurisdiction with the Judiciary Committee and Defense intelligence jurisdiction with the Armed Services Committee.

In the past limited oversight authority was vested in the Armed Services and Appropriations committees. But those units often failed to curb abuses, the temporary Senate committee investigating intelligence activities concluded in a report released last month.

One supporter, Sen. Edward Kennedy (D-Mass.), said that with the new committee "we are asserting that Congress intends to play a direct role, a firm role, in guiding the conduct of intelligence activities, and in protecting the rights and liberties of all American citizens."

One opponent, Sen. John Tower (R-Texas), said: "The thing I fear about this oversight committee . . . is that it is going to create — problems in terms of the effectiveness of our clandestine activities."

Morgan voted "yea." Helms did not vote.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Cool weather is due today for most of the nation. Mild weather is expected in the East with rain in the Pacific Northwest and from the Central Gulf to the lower Midwest. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

By The Associated Press
It was clear to partly cloudy in North Carolina today with temperatures about normal-highs from the upper 60s to the mid 70s.

There was morning fog in the west. It will be slightly warmer and still clear to partly cloudy Thursday, but rain will be coming in shortly afterward.

Rain will fall in the southwest mountains late in the day and over the state on Friday. It may be heavy at times.

There was a taste in the form of scattered, light showers over the state during the night. This rain was caused by a weak low-pressure system centered over Pennsylvania, with a trough extending southward to Georgia.

This showery area has moved out to sea. But to the west is a thunderstorm system that generated heavy rains over Texas and surrounding areas today. The low-pressure system in central Texas will be moving eastward toward North Carolina, bringing rain to the mountains Thursday night and elsewhere on Friday.

Charlotte had one-tenth of an inch of rain Tuesday. Asheville had even less, and Greensboro, Hickory and Rocky Mount reported only traces.

Temperatures Tuesday were cooler than normal, with most maximums in the mid to upper 60s. The warmest was 71 degrees at the Raleigh-Durham Airport. Highs of 66 degrees were recorded at Asheville, Cape Hatteras, Cherry Point, Rocky Mount and Wilmington.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market headed upward today, riding the momentum of Tuesday's late upswing.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up a fraction in the early going, and gainers took a 5-3 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said investors seemed to be encouraged that the market had held its ground at just below the 970 level in the Dow.

The average has wavered in a 50-point band between 965 and 1,015 for more than three months.

Today's early prices included Skyline, up 1/4 at 16 1/2; General Cable, unchanged at 11 1/4; Avco, steady at 11 1/4; and Warner-Lambert, up 1/4 at 32 1/4.

In Tuesday's mixed market the Dow Jones industrial average edged up .16 to 971.69, after having been down nearly 6 points earlier.

But declines outnumbered advances by about a 2-1 margin among NYSE-listed issues, and the exchange's composite index was off .03 at 52.98.

Big Board volume came to 18.77 million shares.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index dropped .53 to 102.88.

Foreign Trade Deficit Cited

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States recorded its fourth consecutive monthly foreign trade deficit in April but the figure was smaller than in the previous month, the government said today.

The Commerce Department said the trade deficit was $202.1 million in April, contrasted to $650.9 million in March, largely because farm exports increased while import levels remained virtually stable.

So far this year, imports have exceeded exports by $1.066 billion. That compares to a $2.473 billion surplus at the same time last year, when the nation logged a record $11 billion trade surplus.

Analysts originally expected a surplus again this year, but one smaller than in 1975. Commerce now has revised that expectation to a forecast of a deficit in the range of the $2.3 billion deficit in 1974.

Commerce economists consider the development a sign of the domestic economy's strength rather than a signal of any trouble in U.S. international transactions.

The U.S. economy is recovering faster than that of its trading partners so far. American consumers are buying more imported household goods

Suspect 2 In Jail Fire

OXFORD, N.C. (AP) — Firemen were called to the Granville County jail about 9:45 p.m. Tuesday after three or four mattresses had been set afire, according to the sheriff's office.

Deputies evacuated 14 prisoners and moved them to another section of the jail for the remainder of the night.

When firemen arrived, smoke had completely filled the jail complex.

Two unidentified persons who were released from Butler's Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center Tuesday morning and were arrested late in the afternoon for public drunkenness apparently had piled what were supposedly waterproof and fireproof mattresses in their cell and set them afire.

The two prisoners were taken to Granville Hospital for apparent smoke inhalation. They were not believed seriously injured.

Firemen extinguished the blaze and cleared the complex of smoke by about 11 p.m.

Sheriff J.C. Cash said it was the third time in the last three years that a fire had been set in the jail.

Check Forgery Charged Student

Greenville Police have arrested Kathy Diane Smith 18, of 1307 Evergreen Dr. on six counts of forgery.

Chief Glenn Cannon said the Rose High School student was charged in connection with the issuing of six checks—totaling $67.48—between March 1 and March 8, to a half-dozen local stores.

Sheriff's Dept. Again Probed

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — The FBI confirmed today that it has initiated a second investigation into activities of the New Hanover County sheriff's department.

"I can only say that we're investigating the matter under interception of communications statutes," said Edgar Best of the FBI office in Charlotte.

Best said the investigation was initiated after a complaint was filed 10 days ago, and said the U.S. attorney's office had authorized a complete investigation.

Willis Named Treasurer Of Pitt Demo Committee

Tom W. Willis of Farmville was elected treasurer of the Pitt County Democratic Executive Committee at a meeting here Monday night.

Willis, director of the East Carolina University Regional Development Institute, was elected upon the resignation of Charles Gaskins of Greenville who relinquished the party office upon announcing his candidacy for public office as county commissioner.

Betty S. Speir of Bethel, chairman of the committee, expressed appreciation to Gaskins for the work he has done as treasurer. Gaskins has held the county Democratic post for approximately three years.

Margaret Register, executive secretary of the Pitt Board of Elections, spoke to the group about precinct election officials and the part that political parties have in helping to provide these officials. She also explained the necessity of changing certain polling places and the procedures that must be followed in these instances.

The 50 members attending the meeting were reminded of the upcoming Democratic State Convention on June 12 in Raleigh. In addition, Carl Darden, president of the state Young Democrats Club, request the attendance and support of all Democrats at his installation as YDC president on June 5 at the Moose Lodge here.

Serving on the executive committee, in addition to the chairman and new treasurer, are Henry Oglesby, first vice chairman; John Bizzell, second vice chairman; Tom Taft, third vice chairman; and Willie Mae Carney, secretary.

Ellis Does His Job; Travers Does His Better: Gets The Win

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

Dock Ellis gave up only four hits, struck out four and walked just one . . . but.

"I'm paid to win, not just to pitch well," the New York Yankees right-hander said. "Tonight, the other guy was better."

The "other guy" was Milwaukee left-hander Bill Travers. He limited the Yanks to four hits, struck out seven and walked two as the Brewers nipped New York 1-0.

"From what I've seen of the left-handers in this league, there's California's Frank Tanana and Travers and pick anyone you want for the third spot," said Milwaukee Manager Alex Graomas after Travers hurled his first major league shutout.

"It was my best-pitched game ever," Travers said. "It's taken me six years to get everything together."

In other American League games Tuesday night, Boston blanked Detroit 2-0, Cleveland nipped Baltimore 3-1, Oakland stopped Minnesota 6-1 and the Chicago White Sox downed California 7-1. Kansas City at Texas was postponed by rain.

The game's only run came in the fourth when Darrell Porter led off with a double, took third on Bob Hansen's grounder and scored on George Scott's sacrifice fly.

Red Sox 2, Tigers 0
Carl Yastrzemski's two-run homer and Luis Tiant's second shutout of the season gave the surging Boston Red Sox their win over Detroit and their 11th victory in their last 14 games. Yastrzemski's roundtripper in the fourth scored Carlton Fisk, who had opened the inning with a walk.

Tiant was masterful, scattering seven hits, striking out eight, including slugger Willie Horton three times, and walking none.

A's 6, Twins 1
Vida Blue's eight-hit pitching was backed by Sal Bando's two-run homer and Billy Williams' two runs-batted-in as Oakland shackled Minnesota. Blue had a shutout until the eighth when he issued his only two walks of the game and gave up a run-scoring single to Dan Ford.

Bando's sixth homer of the season in the second inning and Williams' single with the bases loaded in the third were more than enough for the Oakland left-hander. Phil Garner had three of the A's 11 hits while Twins rookie Butch Wynegar had two of the hits off Blue, 4-5, to raise his batting average to .300.

White Sox 5, Angels 1
Pat Kelly smashed a two-run homer and Rick Gossage limited California to just six hits as Chicago won its ninth straight game, the White Sox' longest winning streak since 1973.

Brian Downing's two-out single in the eighth snapped a 1-1 tie and Chicago added four more runs in the ninth to hand Angels starter Gary Ross his sixth loss in seven decisions.

Indians 3, Orioles 1
Pat Dobson's nine-hitter lifted Cleveland to its fourth straight victory. The Indians' defense helped seal the win as they turned in four double plays.

Graniteers Nip Moose

The Graniteers got only four hits off the Moose's Donnie Daughtridge, but they made them pay off as they took a 4-3 win over the Moose in Tar Heel League play yesterday.

Two of the four hits came in the big inning.

The Moose picked up the lead in the second inning, getting all three of their runs there. Carl Woodworth reached on a fielder's choice, and Billy Stancil singled. Eric Woodworth reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Carl Woodworth. An error on the play let both Stancil and Eric Woodworth score.

It stayed that way until the fifth inning, when the Graniteers came up with all four of their runs. Lance Searle walked and Steve Holoman reached on an error. Tony Ellis walked, loading the bases. Art Pittman doubled in all three runners to knot the score at 3-3.

Mike Tucker then followed with a single, and an error on the play let Pittman score with what proved to be the winning run.

Daughtridge led the Moose with two hits, while Pittman had a pair for the Graniteers.

Manteo Rally Tops Bullets

MANTEO—The Manteo Braves came up with two runs in the bottom of the seventh to nip Jamesville, 7-6, in the first round of the 1-A State Baseball Playoffs last night.

Manteo took an early 4-0 lead, but the Bullets came back in the top of the seventh to push ahead, 6-5. But a two-run homer ended their playoff hopes.

Manteo pushed over one run in the second. Key walked and walks to Butler and Roberts loaded the bases. York reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Key.

The Braves added three more in the third. Heroux walked and Daniels was hit by a pitch. Niser then cracked a three-run homer for a 4-0 lead.

The Bullets came back with four in the top of the fourth to tie it up. Billy Brown singled and Eric Davis got a hit. Jeff Holliday walked, and another free trip to Danny Lilley scored Brown. Glenn Ellis' walk brought in Davis, but Holliday was then picked off. Toby Holliday walked, loading them up again, and a hit by Larry Pierce scored both Lilley and Ellis.

Manteo went back out with one in the fifth. Niser reached on a fielder's choice and Butler singled. Roberts singled in Niser.

Jamesville came back to push ahead with two in the top of the seventh. Brown walked and Holliday reached on an error. They both stole up a base, and Ellis brought them home with a hit.

But it was all for naught as Manteo came up with two in the bottom of the frame to win it. Daniels singled and Key cracked out the decisive homer.

Manteo continues in state play, meeting Bear Grass in the second round.

Bear Grass In Second Round

BEAR GRASS—Bear Grass outfought Creswell yesterday, 16-11, to advance to the second round of the State 1-A playoffs. The Bears were the Eastern runner-up last year.

Bear Grass got started early, scoring six runs in the first inning. Jerry Wynne walked and Jimmy Peaks singled. Dickie Williams got a hit, scoring both of them. Danny Peaks singled in Williams, and Richard Knox and Danny Rogerson both walked. Alton Cratt was safe on an error, scoring Peaks and Knox, and Rogerson came home on Wynne's hit.

But Creswell came right back to score six in the top of the second. Holton led off with a homer. Barnes then singled and Jeff Clifton walked. Lockley also walked, loading them up. Chambers and Jim Clifton the first round of the state 3-A baseball playoffs last night.

Mike Koesy had led off the frame with a walk and scored when Davis bounced the first pitch he saw in the inning off the right center field fence. Pearson singled to right scoring Davis.

Tommy Gardner went the distance for the Tigers getting the win. He struck out ten, walked three and gave up three hits. Dennis Cristiano got the loss striking out five, walking five and giving up six hits.

Williamston went to work on Cristiano in the top of the first getting a walk and a single. Two long fly balls ended the threat. Williamston hit the ball hard all night hitting only six balls on the ground and two pop-ups to the infield. All the rest were line shots that either went for hits or were at someone.

Ayden-Grifton's first single came in the second as Eddie Taylor lined a pitch to left but was forced at second. A-G had walked Rod Kornegay in the first but he was cut down in a double play.

Ned Craft walked in the A-G fourth but he was forced at second. Al Butts singled in the fifth and Cristiano walked in the sixth but neither runner advanced past second.

Williamston kept the pressure on after their scoring inning putting Eric Godard and Koesy on with walks in the fourth but could not score.

In the fifth, Tim Hardison doubled over Taylor's head in right and moved to third on an out. He scored on an errored

Seaver Learning How To Face Phillies

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer
Tom Seaver has learned how to pitch to the Philadelphia Phillies — very carefully.

Mets. "They're an extremely hot team — as hot as they can be," said Seaver. "That's about as hot a club as I've seen. Everything they hit was in exactly the right place." The Phillies' victory was their 24th in 30 games and boosted their lead to 5½ games in the National League East over the Pittsburgh Pirates. Seaver, a three-time Cy Young winner, continued to be treated with little respect by Tommy Hutton. He had three hits Tuesday night to boost his lifetime mark against Seaver to 424. Hutton has 14 career hits in 33 appearances and 11 RBI against the right-hander. While the Phillies continued to roll, Seaver continued to reel. The loss was his fourth straight after four victories at the start of the season. In the other National League games, the Cincinnati Reds whipped the Atlanta Braves 10-4; the San Diego Padres stopped the Los Angeles Dodgers 5-2; the Montreal Expos trimmed the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-3 in 11 innings; the St. Louis Cardinals defeated the Chicago Cubs 5-2 and the San Francisco Giants beat the Houston Astros 7-6.

Hutton shared the offensive lead with Jay Johnstone, who slammed four hits, including a home run, drove in two runs and scored three. The Phillies rallied from a 3-0 first-inning deficit to help unbeat Jim Lonborg earn his seventh victory. The Phillies raked Seaver for seven runs on 14 hits before he left for a pinch hitter in the seventh.

Expos 6, Pirates 3
Larry Parrish hit a two-run double in a four-run 11th inning to give Montreal its victory over Pittsburgh. With the game tied 2-2 through 10 innings, the Expos scored all their go-ahead runs off Pirate relief pitcher Bob Moose, unscored upon in all 13 of his prior relief appearances this season.

Cardinals 5, Cubs 2
Willie Crawford drove in three runs with a two-run homer and a double and set up another run with a single to power St. Louis past Chicago. Crawford wiped out a 2-1 Chicago lead by smashing his third homer of the year in the sixth after Bake McBride had been hit by a pitch. Crawford also doubled home a run and scored on a single by Ron Fairly when the Cardinals clinched the game with two more runs in the eighth inning.

Giants 7, Astros 6
Willie Montanez's fourth hit of the game, a two-run homer in the eighth inning, lifted San Francisco over Houston. Bobby Murcer cracked his third career grand slam in a five-run, fifth inning rally that erased a 3-0 Houston lead and put the Giants ahead 5-3. But the Astros scored an unearned run in the seventh and went ahead on Wilbur Howard's first home run in two years, a two-run shot in the top of the eighth for a 6-5 lead. Murcer's one-out single off Astros' relief ace Ken Forsch, 1-1, started the Giants' winning rally. With two down, Montanez hammered his second homer of the season into the right field stands.

Westphal Won't Have Same Poor Showing In Second NBA Contest

By BERT ROSENTHAL
AP Sports Writer
BOSTON (AP) — Plunging into the Valley of the Suns has helped Paul Westphal reach his peak in professional basketball. But one of the few downfalls he has encountered during his first season with the Phoenix Suns was last Sunday's opening game of the National Basketball Association's nationally televised best-of-seven championship series against the Boston Celtics. In that game, a 98-87 loss to his former teammates, Westphal, the Suns' leading scorer, hit only four of 17 field goal attempts and scored eight points.

Westphal said Heinsohn. "He's a big part of their offense. He could break out. He's a good shooter, and he could come back and hit 10 of 17." Heinsohn's decision to put Jo Jo White on Westphal was credited with adversely affecting the play of the Suns' backcourtman. During the regular season, Westphal had been guarded by Charlie Scott, the player he had been traded for a year ago. Heinsohn explained that he made the change because he wanted Scott guarding the Phoenix player bringing the ball upcourt, in this case, rookie Ricky Sobers. That job had been Westphal's earlier in the season, but when Dick Van Arsdale suffered a broken bone in his left arm, Sobers took his place in the lineup and has been there ever since. White also had been familiar with Westphal, having played against him during practice for three years. "The Suns basically are a pattern offensive team, using a lot of picks and cuts in attempts to set up open shots, and under the system, the quick Westphal is the player they go to most often."

Because of his former association with the Celtics, Westphal has been under extreme pressure since it was determined a week ago that it would be a Boston-Phoenix final.

Williamston Girls Advance

NORTHAMPTON—Williamston's girls' softball team moved into the second round of the State Softball Playoffs with a 25-15 win over Northampton yesterday. Williamston pushed a run in the first, but Northampton countered with two in its half of the inning. The Tigerettes then came back with seven in the top of the second, and they never trailed again. Cindy Cullipher hit a grand-slam homer to highlight that inning. Williamston went on to add five in the fourth, one in the fifth, and 11 in the seventh inning. Northampton got three in the bottom of the second, one in the third as J. Langford homered, five in the fourth and four in the seventh. Sissy Taylor led the Williamston hitting with five in five trips, while Cullipher was five for six. Valeria Barnhill was four for five, Terry Hopkins four for six, Sharon Speller, three for four, Ferlinda Spruil three for five, Lisa Robertson and Christie Rogerson both two for six. Northampton's hitting was led by A. Jenkins, four for five. While J. Bridges was three for four, and T. Massey and L. Dickerson were both two for three. Williamston will meet Saratoga Central in the second round of the playoffs. Wil'ston 170 510 (11)—25 31 1 Nor'mpton 231 500 4—15 16 8

Optimists Rip Union Carbide

The Optimists showed Union Carbide why it is leading the North State Little League by way of a 16-4 romp yesterday. Michael Moore and Kenny Kirkland combined for a two-hitter against Union Carbide. Both of the hits came off Moon, who was relieved in the fourth. Kirkland got the final two men in the fourth and finished the contest without allowing a hit. Union Carbide did get the initial lead with a run in the first. Greg Wright led off with a double and Kenny Waters was hit by a pitch. Dwayne Fisher reached on an error, and a wild pitch scored Wright. But the Optimists came back to score three in the bottom of the inning. Andy Holloman walked, as did Kirkland. Jeff Porter then cracked out a three-run homer.

In the second, the Optimists added six more. Moore doubled and Dickie Heller singled, with an error on the play scoring Moon. Holloman reached on an error, but Heller was cut down at third. Kirkland singled and Sammy Hodges walked, loading them up. Porter walked to force in a run, and Tony Heath cleared the sacks with a grand-slam homer. The tenth run came over in the

Five Named To Hall Of Fame

LINVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Five former stars in football, baseball, golf and steeplechase riding have been selected for induction into the North Carolina Sports Hall of Fame.

The date and place of induction are still to be determined by the N.C. Sports Hall of Fame board of directors, which made the selections at the organization's annual meeting in Linville last week.

The new inductees are George Barclay, football All-America guard at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill in 1934; Peggy Kirk Bell, nationally known player and teacher of golf for 30 years; Tommy Byrne, Wake Forest graduate who excelled as a major league baseball pitcher for 13 years; Dr. Angus "Monk" McDonald, regarded as the best all-round athlete in University of North Carolina history; and Mickey Walsh, recognized as one of the leading steeplechase horse trainers in America over the last 25 years.

Selection of the five new members brings the total number of Sports Hall members to 59 since the inductions were inaugurated 14 years ago.

Barclay, a native of Natrona

Heights, Pa., was acclaimed as the University of North Carolina's first All-America football player and as the best football guard in the nation in 1934 when the UNC Tar Heels had a 7-1-1 record. He now lives in Linville.

Mrs. Bell, a native of Findlay, Ohio, began playing golf at the age of 17 and rapidly moved to the top in the amateur ranks. Her tournament victories included the National Titleholders Championship in 1949, a rare feat for an amateur.

She has lived in Southern Pines since turning pro in 1951. Byrne, currently mayor of Wake Forest where he operates a golf course, was a lefthanded pitching ace at Wake Forest College. He broke into the major leagues with the New York Yankees in 1943.

McDonald, a resident of Charlotte for the past several years, starred in basketball, football, baseball and track.

Walsh, a resident of Southern Pines, is a native of Ireland. He has trained horses for racing, jumping and show.

Two years ago, Walsh received the F. Ambrose Clark Award which is presented annually to the individual "who has done the most to promote, improve and encourage the growth and welfare of steeplechasing" in the United States.

Brook Valley Golfing Briefs

The team of William Sneed, Len Moore and Alicia Martin took first place in a Junior Mixed Spectacular at the Brook Valley Golf and Country Club. They came in with a 36.

Second place went to Dan Mayo, Allen Clark and Mary Kathryn Clark with a 37, while third went to Mike Moye, Mark Vestal, and Lesley McPherson, also with a 37. Six teams competed.

Maxine and Red Hawley and Evelyn and Gene Ward took first place in a Jack & Jill Twilight Spectacular, downing 11 other teams, with their score of 30. Second place went to Mattie and Charles Bridgers and Pam and Mike Kachmer, who tied with Dolly and Bill Mitchum and Mary and Charles McPherson, both teams scoring 31. Third went to Martha and Lee Alcorn and June and Don Cherry with a 32, while fourth went to Vera and Chip Pennington, Miriam Martin, and Bobby Boone, with a 33.

Bobby Boseman, not Bobby Boone, as earlier reported, had a hole-in-one on the fifth hole at Brook Valley.

Junior clinics for boys and girls, 8-18, have been set up for June 16, 17 and 18. Details and a sign-up sheet are on the club bulletin board.

Two junior matches between Greenville Golf and Country Club and Brook Valley have been set up for Tuesday, June 22 at Brook Valley, and on Thursday, July 1, at Greenville. The Pitt County Junior Tournament will be held at the Greenville Golf and Country Club on July 20. Details are posted on the bulletin boards of the participating clubs.

Alone At Prep Top

The Graniteers remain as the last unbeaten in the Babe Ruth Prep League after an 11-6 win over previously unbeaten Jeanette Cox Realty.

The Graniteers are now 5-0, while Cox is 4-1.

Cox took the lead with two runs in the first inning. S. Irwin walked and stole up, and scored on G. Stackhouse's triple. M. Sasser singled him in.

The Graniteers came back with three in their half of the inning. Wilson walked and stole up, and Barnes walked. Gartman also walked and a walk to Alligood forced in one run. Whitehurst singled in Barnes and Gartman for a 3-2 lead.

The Graniteers got five more in the second. Messick walked and Wilson singled. Walks to James and Barnes brought in one, and another walk to Gartman scored a second run. Alligood reached on a fielder's choice, scoring James, and a passed ball let Barnes in. Whitehurst singled in Gartman, making it 8-2.

They finished up with three in the sixth, one scoring on a triple by Barnes.

Cox came up with three more in the third. J. Neal doubled and M. Sasser walked. A passed ball let Neal score, and M. Thurber was hit by a pitch. R. Sutton reached on an error, scoring Sasser, while another error let Thurber come in.

The other run scored in the fifth.

Plainly Speaking, Rock Is Alive And Flourishing

By RICHARD SALTUS
And
LEE MARGULIES
Associated Press Writers
LOS ANGELES (AP) — The rock rage of the teen audience, a group called Kiss, boasts of its "unfettered evil and sexuality;" its members strut and prance in monstrous makeup, feathers and leather.

The 1975 Grammy Record of the Year, on the other hand, is a bouncy, bright-eyed tune called "Love Will Keep Us Together," by a wholesome couple, The Captain and Tenille.

A self-styled throwback to 1950s rock, Bruce Springsteen, is hailed by critics as the long-awaited messiah, but the resulting media stampede falls embarrassingly flat.

This is rock music as it begins its third decade. It is a profusion of trends and styles; an industry full of flash, energy and hype, but lacking, many feel, the mesmerizing power of an Elvis or the revolutionary creativeness of the Beatles.

"There are still definitely the stars, but not the phenomenon," says Ben Fong-Torres, senior editor of Rolling Stone magazine.

"There is not the heroic stature of the Beatles, Jimi Hendrix, Janis Joplin. They signaled new things ... they went to the edge — or over it — and signaled a new life-style."

Sensing a void in the current rock consciousness — a vacuum detected by the ever-more sophisticated techniques of music marketing — record companies in England and America have unleashed a flood of old Beatles hits.

The blitz's success is either a tribute to promotion or a measure of contemporary rock blahs. Nearly 25 per cent of Britain's top 100 singles are Beatles rereleases. A double album of 26 Beatles oldies is scheduled for U.S. release in June, to be pushed on the record-buying public by what a Capitol Records spokesman said will be the "largest campaign in the history of the music business."

When it sprang into life in the more repressed 1950s, rock 'n' roll loomed as a subversive force of sexual liberation personified by Elvis' lusty allure. In the '60s the music drummed a political message of youth power, with psychedelia its aesthetic banner, and it changed the life-style of a generation.

In the '70s, directions are unclear. The common denominator seems to be sheer entertainment, or as the still-popular Beach Boys put it, Fun, Fun, Fun.

Concert promoters like David Forest — whose Los Angeles-based firm is called Fun Productions — find artistic analysis beside the point.

"There are simply more acts drawing more people than any act had ever drawn before," he said. "You have Elton John playing to 100,000 people at Dodger Stadium. One promoter recently put on 15 one-night concerts in five weeks; 185,000 kids paid $1.26 million to go to them."

The industry magazine Record World pointed out that last year's tour by the country-rock Eagles "drew an audience of 850,000 to 59 concert sites; those fans attested to the band's live power by paying over $5 million for Eagles tickets."

Kenny Loggins, of Loggins and Messina, complains that it's mainly the critics who find today's rock inferior. "They really don't dig the thought of just being entertained," he said. "They want to be manipulated or drawn together for some common good or motivated — anything but just entertained."

And yet Bill Graham, the veteran promoter who finds rock thriving these days, admits to certain sadness.

"Years ago people would go to concerts the way you might have gone to church," he said. "There was a reverence, people communicating with their peers."

These issues aside, the fact remains that Americans are buying more than $2.2 billion in records a year (though not all are rock) and listeners from 13 to over-30 are able to find a sound to tune into.

At one end of the spectrum is the heavy rock, raw metallic scream of groups like Aerosmith, whose fans are generally among the youngest listeners. At the other extreme is the soft sound of an Olivia Newton-John or The Captain and Tenille, music devoid of sharp edges or bleakly violent themes, appealing to more casual rock fans.

Scattered across the charts are various other trends — owing their labels perhaps more to promotion specialists than any deeply significant differences:

—Disco, dance music, light on message, heavy on rhythm and often laced with suggestiveness ("Love to Love You Baby," "I Wanna Do Something Freaky to You").

—Rhythm and blues, now frankly referred to as the black segment of the market.

—Country-rock and progressive country, and the continuation of thoughtful, poetic singer-songwriters, including holdovers from the '60s like Joni Mitchell, Neil Young and Paul Simon.

Although the industry is undoubtedly thriving with an ever-larger audience divided into various camps, each with its own heroes, talk about the possibility of a true superstar emerging once again to unify them all still goes on.

Perhaps the times are simply not right, some suggest.

"It is a time socially and politically when there is not the hunger for a spokesperson," says Rolling Stone's Fong-Torres.

On the other hand, Los Angeles Times rock critic Robert Hilburn believes a unification is possible, but that the right person hasn't yet arrived.

Perhaps one factor is a seeming loss of innocence and optimism since that weekend in 1970 when half a million gathered at Woodstock in a celebration of love and music they thought could roll across the world.

After the deaths of such central figures as Jimi Hendrix and Janis Joplin, after the draining away of the youth political movement and the cynicism of post-Watergate America, much of the music has a more pessimistic outlook.

"I'm not goin' back to Woodstock for a while, though I long to hear that lonesome hippie ... smile; I'm a million miles away from that helicopter day. No I don't believe I'll be goin' back that way," — Neil Young.

For Joni Mitchell, who sang: "We are stardust, we are golden" under the Woodstock spell, her later work bespeaks a realization that such youthful hopes don't always prevail: "Golden in time, cities under sand;

A PROFUSION OF TYPES AND STYLES — As rock music enters its third decade, it embraces a profusion of types and styles. The teen audience's rock rage is the group called Kiss, exemplified by Paul Stanley, left. But the 1975 Grammy Record of the Year is by a wholesome couple, "The Captain and Tenille," right. (AP Wirephoto) left. But the 1975 Grammy Record of the Year is by a wholesome couple, "The Captain and Tenille," right. (AP Wirephoto)

Power, ideals and beauty, fading in everyone's hands."

And so, it seems, even the biggest stars of today simply aim to play their music, devoid of social or political import, to as many people as possible.

Hence Elton John is "the only substantial star of the '70s" in Fong-Torres' view. His music is regarded as tremendously appealing and usually well-crafted, but in the end is likely to be thought of as the product of a man best known for his outrageously ornate clothing and eyeglasses.

Hilburn was one of those critics who felt a shock wave forming around two New Jersey-born singers, Springsteen and rock singer-poet Patty Smith, that might restore the passion to rock music. Both singers combined their contemporary visions with revivals of these and actual songs from rock's early days.

"I have seen rock 'n' roll future and its name is Springsteen," declared critic John Landau in 1974. Others followed, and soon an unprecedented clamor, pushed Springsteen onto the cover of Time and Newsweek simultaneously, trumpeting that the new rock savior had arrived.

In retrospect, the 26-year-old Springsteen seemed to be of merely human proportions, an exciting performer but not the creative genius he first appeared to the bandwagon riders. At any rate, his future progress will be carefully followed.

Patty Smith, with her aggressive abandon on stage, her surrealistic imagery and passionate involvement in the music, seems not to have captured the imagination of a wide following as yet.

She remains an articulate spokeswoman on the current scene, however.

In the late '60s, she said: "We were all expanding, experimenting, exploring, but some of us explored too far ... everything just blew apart."

"Some of the most important people in rock died and no matter how cool or cynical everyone tried to be, those deaths affected us."

"We had to pull ourselves together," she continued. "We had to pull the reins on ourselves to recharge ourselves. "We've gotten ourselves back together. It's time to let the horses loose again. We're ready to start moving again."

Old-Look Stage For Stratford's Season

By GREGORY JENSEN
STRATFORD - UPON-AVON, England (UPI) — One glance is all it takes to show that something new has been added to this year's Stratford season by the Royal Shakespeare company.

The old stage is gone. Instead, the massive red brick Shakespeare Memorial theater on the swan-sprinkled River Avon now holds the courtyard of a stagecoach inn.

Its rough plank walls begin out where the audience is, then sweep onto the stage area in a small, straight-sided circle. Wood pillars hold up two tiers of galleries at the back, partly used for acting and partly for a few members of the audience. The inn yard itself is an angled platform thrusting into the auditorium.

"This stage certainly isn't a reconstruction," says Trevor Nunn, the Royal Shakespeare's overall director. "It makes no attempt to be nostalgic about past ages."

But the nostalgia is there. Rough courtyards like this were used as theaters by wandering players of Shakespeare's time. The earliest permanent theaters — the first one in England was built 400 years ago this year — retained many inn-yard features in their design.

The new inn courtyard is the only stage set Stratford will use throughout this, its longest-ever season — six new productions of Shakespeare plays between April and December.

Partly the idea is economy in times of financial crisis. But mostly the new stage is part of a mushrooming trend to play Shakespeare more simply than in the past.

At London's National Theater, Albert Finney is performing an uncut "Hamlet" with one stylized set, no tricks, a straightforward delivery.

London's newest theater, the St. George's, is a scholarly reproduction of Shakespeare's "Wooden O," designed to show his plays without interpretation or gimmicks.

And at Stratford, Nunn says he is aiming for "a theater of imagination — actors on a bare platform, conjuring the audience with language and nothing else."

Canadian internationalist, Bruce Elliott, is one of the players responsible for the enviable reputation which Canada has in top-level bridge. He gave a demonstration of his card play magic on this hand from the Master Pairs championship at the recent ACBL Spring North American Championships, held in Kansas City, Mo.

North-South were using weak two bids, so two clubs was the only forcing bid available to Elliott. North's two diamond response was a waiting bid, and in theory South should now have shown his five-card major suit. But Elliott feared that partner's next bid might be two no trump, and if the final contract were to be in no trump, he felt that it would play better from his side with the lead coming up to his diamond holding. However, when he chose to rebid two no trump his partner placed him with a least two clubs, so she leaped to six clubs and Elliott had no place to go.

West led the jack of hearts, and declarer did not allow his trump holding to upset him. He won the king of hearts, cashed the ace and king of spades and ruffed a spade. He successfully finessed the ten of hearts, then led the ace. West did not think it right to ruff in front of dummy and possibly lose what seemed to be a certain trump trick, so he discarded a diamond, as did dummy. On the next heart lead West sluffed a second diamond and dummy scored its second ruff.

The ace and king of diamonds were cashed, and declarer led his last spade. Down to nothing but trumps. West ruffed low and dummy over-ruffed to bring declarer's trick total to ten. The ace and king of trumps completed the small slam.

By now our readers will no doubt have noticed that, even after the unfortunate opening lead, West could have defeated the slam. At some point, he must ruff with the jack of clubs! Declarer cannot come to 12 tricks. Try it for yourself.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, MAY 27, 1976

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A good day for you to get away alone and decide a course of action whereby you can gain the goodwill of others. Advisers are now in a position to give the information you need.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Do the important work that will improve your position in life and put aside whatever is of a frivolous nature. Make repairs to property.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Once your work is done, get together with good friends at the recreations that are mutually enjoyable. Be wary of strangers.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Make plans that will make you a more successful person. Be sure not to lose your temper with others. Strive for happiness.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Strengthen your bonds of friendship with others by showing more affection for them. Engage in group activities and have fun.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Find out what your true position is with higher-up who can give the support you need. Find better ways of self-expression. Obtain the data you need.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Consult experts who can help you advance in your line of endeavor. Be more practical in handling business matters. Take health treatments.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Attend to work that you intuitively feel should be done. Find the best way to have more understanding with mate. Control your temper.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Listen to what associates have to suggest and follow the best ideas. Good day for reconciliation with persons who have been opposing you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Follow your schedule wisely today and do your work more efficiently. Taking the treatments you need should not be neglected now.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Planning to enjoy recreation that is not too costly is wise. Avoid one who is a spendthrift. Improve your appearance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You have fine ideas now for improving the situation at home and making everything there more delightful. Do some entertaining tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Visit new sites where you can appreciate life so that you can operate more sensibly in the future. Use your money wisely.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be a most practical person, which is fine provided you teach ethical tenets so that the life will be based on the right principles and the greatest success achieved. There is some musical talent here that should be brought out early in life.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Stronger Migrant Code For N.C. Is Suggested

RALEIGH (AP) — Clear safety and health standards and stronger laws are needed to bring North Carolina's migrant labor camps up to minimum levels, a special committee in state government has concluded.

At a meeting Tuesday, the Committee to Revise the Law Pertaining to Migrants concluded that there must be uniform standards if the camps are to be improved. The committee was formed last summer after evidence of filthy, overcrowded conditions at the camps were certified by county health departments and made public.

Annually, more than 10,000 migrant farmworkers are in the state to harvest crops, primarily working in Nash, Sampson, Johnston and Henderson counties.

"We shoot for Grade A restaurants but we are still trying to get labor camps up to Grade C," said Stacy Covil of the state Department of Human Resources.

A common complaint by farmers is that health inspectors find a camp acceptable but gh labor inspectors rule it below minimum standards. There can be no progress in improving the camps until sanitation and labor inspectors can get together to let camp owners know exactly what is needed to bring the facility up to par, said Keith Clark, deputy labor commissioner.

There are 389 known camps in the state. Clark said his agency will try to inspect at least a third of them this season. There are also temporary camps set up by migrant crew chiefs while working in an area and those camps escape inspection.

To standardize the regulations covering the camps, the committee recommended the legislature:

—Pass a law prohibiting crew leaders from contracting for farm labor without a license from the state. That would make sure the state knows how many migrants are in the state and where they are staying.

—Pass a law allowing the labor and human resources departments to develop a joint set of regulations patterned after federal safety and health rules.

—Increase funding for staff inspectors so that more camps may be routinely inspected and existing laws be more strictly enforced.

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N.C.

Chance of showers Friday and Saturday. Fair Sunday. Highs in the 70s and lows in the 50s during period.

Battered Children

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — There were 5,698 cases of confirmed child beating in North Carolina in 1973 and 1974.

This was a significant increase in the cases investigated in previous years.

The increase has been brought about by state laws passed in 1971 protecting persons who report cases of child battering, says Dr. Ruth O'Neal, director of the Reynolds Family Health Center.

The county Department of Social Services does the investigation in many counties. In Forsyth, the protective service team from the department is called FACTS, for Family and Child Care Treatment System.

FACTS emphasis treating the battered child and preventing repetition rather than prosecuting the parents.

It can happen in all kinds of families, Dr. O'Neal says. "You've got to protect the child. We know abuse can occur with the right child, the right parent and the right time."

MOST COUNTIES
JEFFERSON CITY, Mo.
(UPI) — Only three states — Texas, Kentucky and Georgia — have more counties than Missouri, which has 114.

Bears Need To Forage, Says Ranger

By DAN CHISZAR
YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. (UPI) — Yogi Bear of the comic strips, for once, would agree with the superintendent of Yellowstone National Park.

"It's not proper to treat bears like hogs," says John Townsley, who grew up roaming the vast national parks of the West as the son of a ranger.

But he's not talking about social status. He means a self-respecting bear shouldn't go rummaging through garbage cans for sandwiches and fried chicken left by tourists.

He should be out in the wilds, foraging for himself, instead of waiting for free lunches.

That's one reason Yellowstone, which will host 2.5 million visitors this year, started its controversial bear transplant program several years ago.

Another reason is, bears can be mean.

Townsley, a park service veteran who took over last August as superintendent of this Wyoming spread, admits that American tourists associate Yellowstone with geysers and bears and now many are asking, "Where are the bears?"

"We can recall the 'bear jams,' tremendous lines of cars with people watching the bears around the garbage dumps," he said. "We all recognize that it was comical, a treat for the people to see them that way."

"But in the early 60s we found the number of injuries to tourists was going up. It is amazing that with as much contact as there was there weren't more attacks, particularly by grizzlies."

When the rangers started moving the bears to remote wilderness areas in the late 60s, there was some criticism from independent researchers and speculation about the affect on the grizzlies.

But Townsley says that today there are plenty of bears out there and they're getting along fine.

An interagency bear study team recently reported sightings of about 500 black bears and at least 200 grizzlies in the nation's oldest and largest national park.

"They're essentially living in a wild condition," said Townsley, 47, whose father was superintendent at Yosemite National Park in California for 30 years. "In that country, you would probably find one grizzly bear every 10 square miles. In certain instances there would be more."

But tourists can still spot them.

"If I wanted to see a grizzly," Townsley said, "I would come to Yellowstone about the same time I heard of the first sightings of grizzlies. That was about two weeks ago and we've had sightings right along."

Townsley said spring is the best time to see the bears, but most tourists pick the wrong time of day. The best times are early morning and late evening.

During the early season, bears can still be seen by tourists who travel certain park roads by car. Townsley said the best routes are those through the winter ranges where bears are feeding off dead elk that couldn't make it through the rugged northwest Wyoming winter.

"Those would be the roads around Norris, the road leading from Norris Junction to Mammoth, the road down from Norris to Madison and up to Old Faithful," he said. "Grizzly bears have been in there during the last several weeks."

The last fatal mauling in the park was in 1972 when an Alabama man was attacked by a bear at his camp near the Old Faithful Geyser. It was the fourth reported killing by a bear in the park's history.

Last season, a park employe and a French backpacker were slightly injured in separate attacks by a grizzly protecting her cubs in the park's remote northwest corner.

The bear and the person come upon each other without either being aware of it and the reaction of the sow (Mama Bear) is to protect those cubs," Townsley said. "Frequently the bear will slap an individual around until the cubs have time to leave, then she'll wheel around and leave with them."

The best places to find sows and cubs, Townsley said, are the Pelican Valley area north of Yellowstone Lake during the summer, Hayden Valley area in midsummer, and in the higher ranges of the Galletin Mountains from early August until season's end.

Townsley, who first worked for the park service in 1944 and received a biology degree from Colorado State University in 1953, says, "What we're really trying for is the least amount of manipulation where it appears conditions and relationships will allow it."

"I think in Yellowstone we could get very close to it in certain situations with certain animals."

"One example is the bears and other animals feeding on the elk."

"When you have heavy winters, you're going to have large numbers of elk not making it through the winter. They will, in the main be, old animals and young animals going through their first winter. Dead elk are part of the natural critical food supply for bears, eagles and other predators."

Townsley estimated 2.5 million visitors will pass through the park in 1976, a half million more than in 1975.

For most, he said, it will be only a "windshield experience."

The average family views most of the park from inside the car, getting out only at special attractions such as Old Faithful.

Townsley's alternative is what he calls a "destination vacation," where the tourist concentrates on getting as much as possible out of one selected area.

"I think what we're seeing — particularly among young people — is a realization that maybe you shouldn't go so far or do so much."

Townsley believes the park service will encourage use of public transportation as an alternative to cars in some parks.

"We don't see it as a panacea," he said, "And we recognize that it's impractical to simply say you won't have private cars in the parks."

"But in some parks cars will be regulated much more carefully. In some places cars would be excluded altogether, such as in Mesa Verde, Colo., where recently they developed one of the very fine archeological areas."

Even with the estimated half million more visitors this year, and more expected in future seasons, Townsley does not foresee a time when Yellowstone might have to put a cap on the number of visitors.

But can the park service keep vacations to national parks from deteriorating into an assembly-line affair, hampered by prohibitive rules and regulations?

"I really do," said Townsley. "I'm convinced that when your house is in order and is operating well, a good quality experience can be carried out with real opportunity for visitor decisions on what they want to do."

Rich Site For Fossil-Hunting

LOS ANGELES, Calif. (UPI) — The world's richest source of fossils is Rancho La Brea Tar Pits in Hancock Park in downtown Los Angeles, according to the Rand McNally "Travelers Almanac." The pits, named as one of the top 500 sights to see in the U.S., were once a waterhole for prehistoric animals and have yielded thousands of fossils and microfossils.

Fairyland In A Forest Setting

REVELSTOKE, British Columbia (UPI) — The brainchild of artist-sculptor Doris Needham, the Enchanted Forest, founded 15 years ago about 25 miles west of here, displays fairyland figures in a natural forest setting. Aided by her husband, Mrs. Needham placed her original cast-concrete figures in shaded cedar groves. A large medieval castle, complete with dungeon, drawbridge and moat, also was erected, and each year at least one new scene is created.

The ski sledge is a vehicle consisting of an enclosed cabin mounted on four broad skis and powered by an airplane engine in the rear. It delivers mail, goods and passengers in parts of Siberia.

Lady Cop Is 'Rape Bait'

RAPE BAIT — A would-be rapist has been arrested as a result of Carol Kramer Simmons' work as a rape decoy in Raleigh. (AP Wirephoto)

By GAIL GREGG Associated Press Writer RALEIGH (AP) — Carol Kramer Simmons gets paid for walking alone in secluded spots late at night. It is her job to solicit trouble. Unlike most women, she hopes to invite assault. Mrs. Simmons is a Raleigh police officer, and one of three women who patrols the North Carolina State University campus and other areas where sexual assaults are common. They dress in jeans, or other inconspicuous clothing, and are followed by a patrol of Selective Enforcement Unit officers who come to their aid if attacked.

They work "regular" hours — 9 p.m. to 3 a.m. — when assigned to rape stakeout duty. How do they fill those hours? "Just walking," Mrs. Simmons explains. "But it never really gets boring." But Mrs. Simmons — who is 5 feet 2 and with long blond hair looks the part of the coed she is playing — is different from her co-officers. Unlike the other decoys, she has been successful bait. One evening several weeks ago, she rounded a dark corner at the university only to have two hands clamped over her mouth. The assault she had been waiting for finally had happened. She managed to break the assailant's grip in time to scream for help. And when her patrol members responded to her cries, she joined in as they chased her attacker and finally arrested him. She was frightened at the time, Mrs. Simmons admits. But she is happy the attacker was caught. "If it hadn't been me," she said, "it probably would have happened to somebody else."

Police have charged Robert E. Giles, 26, with being the nude man who jumped her that night. He is a Raleigh insurance agent and former head cheerleader at the University of North Carolina. The assailant proved difficult for police officers to apprehend. He had greased his body with lotion. Twice he slipped from their grasps. He was finally knocked down by a student who saw the police pursuing him. The incident has drawn much attention in the local media and from members of Mrs. Simmons' department. Her police chief cited her for work "above and beyond the call of duty." But she says she doesn't understand what all the flap is about. "I just don't see why I'm getting all the attention," she said. "It was just my job. A lot of other people should get credit too."

And the memory of the hands around her mouth and the strength behind them remains vivid. She said it is hard to imagine how frightened the victim of a real rape must feel. Mrs. Simmons cautioned women not to walk alone late at night. A former N.C. State student herself, she said a university campus can seem deceptively safe. Was Mrs. Simmons' husband Barry, who is a police cadet, concerned about her assignment? "He was worried those nights, but he knows that I want to do it," she said.

Female Labor Force Spiraled WASHINGTON (UPI) — In 1890 only 19 per cent of the female population was in the labor force, compared with 43 per cent in 1970, according to the Census Bureau's new "Historical Statistics of the United States, Colonial Times to 1970." Married women comprised 13 per cent of the female labor force in 1890, 63 per cent by the late 1960s, the report shows.

Frosts Hurt Missouri Trees JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Missouri hickory, pecan and walnut trees were hard hit by several April frosts, according to the Department of Conservation. The frosts were damaging because of an unusually advanced state of vegetation caused by warm weather during February and March.

MORE VISITORS AUSTIN (UPI) — The State Department of Highways and Public Transportation says a record number of tourists visited Texas in 1975. The Texas Visitor Industry Report says 21.8 million out-of-state visitors spent $3.5 billion.

Reconstructs Historic Ships
 PHILADELPHIA (AP) — J. Richard Steffy, 51, is a ship builder but not the usual kind. As a member of the American Institute of Nautical Archaeology here, Steffy designs and helps reconstruct historic ships whose pieces are uncovered in archaeological expeditions. "The divers bring up from the sea pieces of wood from the ships. It is my job to figure out the shape of the ship and help piece it together," Steffy says. Some of the ships Steffy has helped recreate include a 4th-century Roman ship and a 19th-century trading schooner.

'Declaration' Saw Neglect, Near-Disaster

By MINDY YOCHELSON
WASHINGTON (UPD) — The hallowed Declaration of Independence, along with the Constitution and the Bill of Rights, are displayed under a special glass shield in a shrine at the National Archives. Every night, an armed, uniformed guard presses a button and the documents are lowered 20 feet into a steel and concrete vault.

It was not always thus. According to Archives historians, the Declaration of Independence once was transported here and there in linen bags and metal boxes, by wagon, boat, Pullman sleeper and armored vehicle. After the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, the Declaration was stored in Ft. Knox, Ky., where it was examined and found to have been mended with glue and cellulose tape "discolored to a molasses color."

And incidentally, the Declaration was not signed July 4, 1776, as is commonly believed, but nearly a month later.

These little-known facts are contained in "Declaration of Independence: The Adventures of a Document," a booklet which the National Archives has published for the Bicentennial.

Although the Declaration was adopted July 4, 1776, by the Continental Congress, it was not signed until Aug. 2, after it had been "engrossed" or written out.

John Hancock, president of the Congress, was first to sign the sheet of fine parchment. The names of the other signers were kept secret for fear of reprisals from the British.

During its 200 years, the cherished document suffered much physical abuse and several "close calls," the Archives said.

It was creased and broken from repeated rolling up. It was exposed to direct sunlight for 35 years when it hung ignominiously in the U.S. Patent Office, from 1841 to 1876. A few months after it was moved, the Patent Office was gutted by fire.

The ink with which the original text was written did not penetrate the parchment, and part of the script flaked off. The signers used homemade powder-and-water inks. Within 50 years their signatures had "faded significantly."

During the Declaration's early years it probably traveled with the Congress to at least eight cities. When it finally found a permanent home in Washington, it was shifted from building to building, some of which "offered no security against fire."

The Declaration's surface ink was partially "detached" when Secretary of State John Quincy Adams in 1820 commissioned an exact copy to be made by copperplate engraving.

The Declaration was in such disrepair by 1856 that a magazine writer called it "that old looking paper with the fading ink."

The Archives said nothing was done to protect the Declaration until 1903, when the National Academy of Sciences recommended that it "be kept in the dark and dry as possible and never placed on exhibition." It was then locked and sealed.

The Declaration remained in the custody of the State Department until 1921, when Secretary of State Charles Evans Hughes ordered it transferred to the Library of Congress.

It made the trip in the library's mail wagon, cushioned by a pile of leather mail sacks. At the library it was placed in a "sort of shrine" designed by Francis Bacon, brother of the architect of the Lincoln Memorial.

When World War II broke out, the document was sent under armed guard to the bullion depository at Ft. Knox. For that trip, it was carefully placed between two sheets of acid-free manila paper, wrapped in strong, all-rag pasteboard and padlocked in a bronze container sealed in lead. The package weighed 150 pounds.

At Ft. Knox, the Declaration was repaired with Japanese tissue fibers moistened with rice paste. When the threat of enemy attack had passed, it was moved back to the Library of Congress.

In Cold War America of December, 1952, the document was sent by armored tank to the National Archives, then considered the most bombproof building in Washington, and it has been there ever since.

This year, in honor of the Bicentennial, the Archives has redecorated and relighted the display area and added an exhibition entitled "The Written Word Endures: Milestone Documents of American History."

On display are the Louisiana Purchase Treaty, the Monroe Doctrine, patents for the cotton gin and incandescent lamp, the Emancipation Proclamation, the Japanese surrender treaty of 1945, the Woman's Suffrage Amendment, the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

Solar Light Will Power Sea Beacons

By DAVID POWELL
Associated Press Writer
CARYSFORT LIGHT, Fla. (AP) — The sunshine that by day toasts mariners plying the Florida Straits soon will aid them at night, powering lights that warn them of 200 miles of coral reefs between Miami and Key West.

Atop this 110-foot light seven miles into the Atlantic off Key Largo, the Coast Guard is refining a system that converts sunlight into electricity — fueling a lamp mariners can see for 15 miles.

"This is about as simple a system as we're going to come by," said George Matrigali, a civilian Coast Guard engineer who built the solar unit from similar devices used on off-shore oil rigs.

While local Coast Guard officials say the project is not unique — similar devices power small buoys off Massachusetts and the West Coast — it is part of a growing trend to use natural energy in Coast Guard operations.

Matrigali's system gathers sunlight through a bank of solar collection cells that transform the energy into electricity. The electric charge then is funneled into batteries which, in turn, power the lamp.

Officials say the ultimate goals of the system are to save money and to increase the reliability of the reef lights, six towering beacons which point the way for ships steaming the passage between the Atlantic and the Gulf of Mexico.

The lights were built in the 19th century to mark the shallow, vividly colorful reefs along the Keys. The resident operators who once tended the lights are gone now, but marine life still gathers around them.

Sometime this summer, 50 small buoys in Florida waters will be equipped with solar units. And officials say plans are on the boards to build a complete Coast Guard base in Fort Myers which will use solar energy for everything from heating water to running the air-conditioners.

But sun power is not the only natural energy with which the Coast Guard is experimenting. Matrigali devised a wind-powered system for the reef light on Fowey Rocks, off Miami.

The godfather of the solar and wind systems is Lt. Cmdr. John R. Wells, head of the civil engineering branch in Miami for the Coast Guard district stretching from Charleston, S.C., to Florida.

"We plan to put solar panels on our major lights this summer because it appears to be a simpler, longer-lasting installation with less maintenance requirements and less trouble," he said.

Welles said the solar unit costs about $3,000 for sunlight collector cells, long-life nickel-cadmium batteries, a regulator to control the flow of electricity from the cells into the batteries and a car headlight-sized lamp which is magnified by a giant lens.

The batteries are the key to the system and its expected economy; they have a life of 15 to 20 years.

Big Loss May Bring The Law

NEW YORK (UPI) — To keep a step ahead of inflation, bogus check writers are hiking amounts to three and even four figures — in effect giving themselves healthy "cost of living" increases.

John J. Janssen, national investigations director for Burns International Security Services, Inc., says by upping the amounts they're multiplying their chances of getting caught.

Businessmen who cash phony checks in smaller amounts, say of less than $100, are more likely to shrug off the losses, Janssen said. But with larger losses, the businessmen are more apt to call in the law and prosecute.

Grizzly Trained But Untamed

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Teddy," the giant bear who enacts the title role in the movie "Grizzly," about a beast who runs amok in a national park, maiming and killing its inhabitants, is 8 years old and was raised in captivity.

Owner Lloyd Beebe of Sequim, Wash., warns that he's trained — but untamed — and at 11 feet tall "is too powerful to get close to humans."

Trains Meet On Rhodesia Borderline

By JOHN EDLIN
Associated Press Writer
VICTORIA FALLS, Rhodesia (AP) — Two of three times a day, vacationers lounging under the trees in this resort town see a strange sight on the railroad bridge over the Zambezi River.

As troops on both the Rhodesian and Zambian banks of the river look on, freight cars are pushed from one side to a white line in the center of the bridge. There a locomotive from the opposite side hooks on and hauls them off. By mutual agreement the locomotives never cross the white line, which marks the border between Rhodesia and Zambia, nations hostile to each other.

Officially, the border between white-governed Rhodesia and the black independent state of Zambia has been sealed for three years — initially, by Prime Minister Ian Smith of Rhodesia to protest black nationalist guerrilla incursions, and later by President Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia to shear all ties with this breakaway British colony.

But freight cars crammed with a wide range of cargo continue to cross the bridge, 200 feet above the Zambezi River, and every few months both Zambian and Rhodesian transport officials meet to ensure that the traffic continues to flow freely.

"We call them the ghost trains of the Zambezi," a railman in this far northwestern town said. "That's because they're not supposed to exist."

However, examinations of the freight manifests on cars at the rail siding here indicate that all the cargo is hauled between the former Belgian colony of Zaire — Zambia's northern neighbor and South Africa which is south of Rhodesia.

Fuel and machinery for the multibillion-dollar mining industry in the Zairian province of Shaba — formerly Katanga — is freighted through Zambia along with foodstuffs.

According to the Rhodesian transport minister, Roger Hawkins, all of Zaire's copper output is channeled out on returning freight cars for shipment from South African ports. Zaire's dependence on a transport artery controlled by the white minority government of Rhodesia is a source of embarrassment to Zaire's government.

But Rhodesian officials in Salisbury point out that since the Angolan civil war, when Zaire supported the Western-aligned factions that were defeated by the Soviet-backed Popular Liberation Movement — MPLA — the Benguela Railroad to the Atlantic Ocean has been unable to cope with traffic traditionally fed out from the Shaba mines.

The Zambian government has repeatedly denied that cargo from South Africa is unloaded in Zambia en route to Zaire.

But former railmen from Zambia now working on the Rhodesian system have claimed that coal from the Rhodesian mine of Wankie is dumped in copper-mining towns before reaching Shaba.

South African goods are ferried regularly, however, across the Zambezi River 50 miles north of here from the independent, African state of Botswana to Zambia, having first been railed or road-freighted to Victoria Falls for forwarding.

Zambians who run the ferry between the two territories at Kazungula shoo away inquisitive visitors.

Family Facts Of Colonialists

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — George Washington's father was Augustine Washington, an English-educated Virginia planter and landowner. He died in 1743, when George was only 11.

A Scottish merchant, James Hamilton, was the father of the first U.S. Secretary of the Treasury, Alexander Hamilton. And Thomas Jefferson, who grew up to be America's third president, was the son of Peter Jefferson, a civil engineer who worked for the British government. According to Hallmark researcher Sally Hopkins, the elder Jefferson was also a justice of the peace and a colonel of the militia in his native Virginia.

On May 8, 1902, Mt. Pelee on the Island of Martinique blew apart killing all 40,000 inhabitants of the city of St. Pierre.
