Cemetery Threatened

NEW BERN, N.C. (AP)—A burial ground for hundreds of slaves and former slaves dating back before the civil war is threatened by proposed expansion of the Simmons-Nott Airport here.

The graveyard is in one of two areas owned by the airport and under consideration for location of a new aviation parking ramp.

Forty-one graves were uncovered in a cornfield on the 25-acre parcel last month by Dr. David Phelps, an archaeologist at East Carolina University. Phelps estimated at that time that there were hundreds more graves on the land adjoining the main airport runway.

James C. Deleman, a local builder and historian, said the parcel has been used by slaves, former slaves and their relatives into this century. One gravestone dated 1838 has been unearthed.

A committee of New Bern and Craven County officials has been named to decide whether to use the graveyard site for airport use. A.M. Lovell, airport manager, urged the committee to select the graveyard site for the aviation ramp.

Airport attorney Ray Dunn said a master plan for the airport's expansion has been held up by consulting engineers because of the controversy over whether to use the slave cemetery.

One member of the airport governing committee said unless local residents can produce records of direct descendants of those buried in the cemetery, the airport does not have to "respect the graves."

Intervention In School Case Ruled Out

By JOHN BARTON
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Attorney General Edward Levi Saturday ruled out Justice Department intervention at this time in the Boston school case, but President Ford told him to "continue an active search" for a Supreme Court test case of forced busing.

Levi said the department would take no action "at this stage" in connection with four appeals filed by Boston groups with the high court. But it will file a brief, as it usually does, if the court decides to take up the controversial Boston plan, he said.

In a statement released simultaneously at the White House, Ford instructed the Levi "to continue an active search for a case which would be suitable for judicial review." Ford had asked Levi to look for an appropriate case in which the Justice Department could join a challenge to court-ordered busing to desegregate schools.

Ford also said he would send Congress a message "at the earliest possible time" to recommend "legislative remedies to minimize forced school busing."

Solicitor General Robert Bork said the Wilmington, Del., desegregation case being appealed to the Supreme Court is "still under consideration. I don't know of any other cases that are that close to Supreme Court review," he added, "but if there are we will look at them."

Asked if Wilmington would be the place to deal with forced busing, Bork replied: "I may. I don't know yet. There is a longer time frame on that case."

Ford's original direction to Levi was seen as a move to garner antibusing votes in the face of the challenge by conservative Ronald Reagan — particularly after the President suggested, several days before last Tuesday's Kentucky primary, that Levi "might" enter the Louisville busing case. The Justice Department said then that Louisville was not being considered.

Bork said Levi's decision was made "absolutely on legal grounds," without consideration to election-year politics.

A Justice Department statement said Levi's decision did not reflect on the merits of any appeals for Supreme Court review of Boston's busing plan, ordered by U.S. District Judge W. Arthur Garrity Jr.

It said government lawyers would continue studying busing, as Ford directed.

"The desire and intention of the department to seek clarification of the rulings of the Supreme Court in school desegregation cases is well known," Levi said, "as is the strong and continuing commitment of the department not to tolerate acts of lawlessness in violation of the orders of the district court."

Ford said he respected Levi's decision, and believes "ways can be found to minimize forced busing while also re-maintaining true to the nation's ideals and our educational goals. That is my objective."

Levi met with Ford Thursday and Friday, but the White House said the decision would be solely the attorney general's.

Levi also met with anti-busing forces from Boston and civil rights leaders such as the NAACP's Roy Wilkins

State Advances Medicaid Funds

RALEIGH (AP) — Some 3,000 checks were mailed Friday to hospitals, doctors and nursing homes after the state advanced $3.2 million to the company that handles North Carolina's Medicaid payments.

The company, Health Applications Services Inc., had held up payments earlier this week, saying the fund to make the Medicaid payments was depleted until the state kicked more in. But, the state's next payment—$14.6 million—is not due until June 10.

After meeting Friday, HAS and state officials said the $3.2 million is an advance on the June payment and the two sides will get together next week in an effort to find a permanent solution.

Furor Over PACE Endorsement

RALEIGH (AP) — A small furor has erupted within the ranks of North Carolina's teachers. It concerns the endorsements of the Political Action Committee for Education, and it raises questions about the value of endorsements in a political campaign.

PACE's steering committee voted 10 days ago to endorse House Speaker Jimmy Green in the Democratic primary for lieutenant governor. The committee did not state its reasons, but it's not hard to speculate about them.

Green helped engineer the 4 per cent plus $300 pay raise the teachers won from the legislature last month. He helped in 1975 to get some needed money for the retirement system. And, in the eyes of many observers, he is most likely to emerge from a crowded field with the nomination.

Nude Dancing Not Protected Right

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Mecklenburg District Court Judge David Sentelle has ruled that nude dancing is not protected by the First Amendment's guarantee of free speech.

Felicia Goehring, 20, of Converse, Texas was one of three strippers arrested Saturday at the Climax Theatre here and charged with indecent exposure.

Theatre owner Salvatore Musumeci, 38, of Charlotte, was also arrested and charged with allowing indecent exposure.

Funds Probe

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — The State Bureau of Investigation is probing the disappearance of $7,200 from the inmate trust fund at the North Carolina Correctional Center for Women.

Corrections Department officials Friday said one prison employe has been suspended in connection with the missing money.

Businessman, Musician Receive Alumni Awards

ALUMNI AWARDS . . . Howard Rooks of Alexandria, Virginia, and Jeanne Smith Piland of Raleigh were winners of the East Carolina University top alumni awards given annually. (Photos by ECU New Bureau)

W. Howard Rooks, a businessman, and Jeanne Piland Smith, a singer, are the East Carolina University Alumni receiving the coveted annual alumni awards. The awards are given each year to alumni who have achieved a marked degree of success. Rooks is recipient of the "Outstanding Alumni Award," and Ms. Smith received the "Outstanding Young Alumni Award."

Several hundred ECU alumni were on campus Saturday for a full day of activities, including a luncheon and the awards ceremony. A tennis clinic, bridge tournament and guided bus tours were among morning activities. The traditional luncheon, held at the Greenville Golf and Country Club, featured an address by ECU Chancellor Leo Jenkins.

Rooks, a 1955 graduate with a BS degree in business, is from Alexandria, Va. He is president and owner of Mount Vernon Realty, Inc., an eleven-office realty firm operating throughout northern Virginia.

Rooks and his wife Sue are the parents of two children. He is also active in Alexandria area civic organizations, including the Woodlawn Kiwanis Club, and is a member of the Fairfax County Schools vocational advisory committee.

Ms. Piland (BM '67; MM '69), is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Smith of Raleigh.

In 1973 she made her debut with the New York City Opera, performing the role of Smeton in the production of "Anna (Continued on Page A-3)

ECU Graduation Site Changed

ECU Chancellor Dr. Leo Jenkins on Saturday morning announced that "because of the uncertain weather conditions, the graduation ceremony for East Carolina University will be held in Minges Coliseum." Graduation exercises were originally scheduled for Ficklen Stadium.

Dr. Jenkins added that due to "limited seating capacity," it is being asked that only immediate family members (wives, husbands, parents) of graduates attend the graduation.

"Faculty members are not expected to attend except for those who are platform guests," the chancellor noted.

The 2 p.m. graduation hour remains unchanged.

Heavy Rains

Up to seven inches of rain pushed southwestern North Carolina streams out of their banks Saturday, flooding roads and croplands and forcing the evacuation of some persons in Macon and Transylvania counties.

Record Number Graduates From Pitt Tech Institute

A record number of graduates, a total of 136, received Associates in Applied Science degrees or diplomas of graduation at the 1976 Pitt Technical Institute graduation exercise held Friday night in McGinnis Auditorium on campus at East Carolina University.

About half the graduates are residents of Greenville and Pitt County. A majority of non-local graduates are from communities in eastern North Carolina, with a few of those graduating from other parts of the state or out-of-state residents.

Graduates received degrees in the fields of accounting, agriculture business, air and water resources, architectural drafting, business administration, commercial art and graphic design, electronic data processing, industrial management techniques, mental health, police science and in other fields.

Students receiving diplomas of graduation were for completion of courses in auto mechanics, computer operations, electronic servicing, and similar fields.

E. Eugene Causby, Assistant State Superintendent of Public Instruction, was the keynote speaker at the graduation exercise. "Graduation is one demonstration of success," Causby said. "Employers desire to have employees who have demonstrated that they can be successful."

Causby also told the graduates that they represented a "shared success story—with the state, the community, faculty and staff, board of trustees, and family and friends."

Dr. William E. Fulford, Jr., president of Pitt Tech, introduced Causby and the candidates for degrees and diplomas. State Senator Vernon White conferred the degrees and diplomas.

Files For County School Board

Ray Avery of Ayden filed for the Ayden Township seat on the Pitt County Board of Education Friday. Avery will be opposing incumbent Bill McLawhorn and Mrs. Ann Creech.

"I am genuinely interested in the students who attend our Pitt County Schools, not only as a parent, but as a citizen. They are the leaders of tomorrow and their educational opportunities depend on what we, as interested adults, do for them today. I seek this office because I want to have a voice in the constructive planning of a well-rounded educational system."

A resident of Ayden for 22 years, Avery was born and reared in the Winterville Township. He served six years in the U.S. Navy and is a Technical Assistant at the Du Pont Company.

"Finally, but certainly one of my top priorities is that all Pitt County teachers should receive an equal supplement in pay.

They are the people who are putting out the work, in our educational system and they should receive a reasonable amount for their services."

Avery is married and has two children.

Reynolds Seeking New Jobs For Three Men Who Resigned

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — R.J. Reynolds Industries Inc. says it will seek new positions within the corporation for three high-ranking officers who resigned Friday following an internal investigation into a secret fund.

A company spokesman said the new positions will be at a lower level, at a reduced salary and not in the area of responsibility they had when they were officers and directors of the company. The men earned salaries between $158,000 and $270,000 a year.

In a statement released by the company Friday, the probe found that the three were involved in a corporate fund used for domestic political contributions from January 1968 to early 1973. The fund may have totaled $90,000, the company said.

The probe, according to the statement released by Board Chairman Colin Stokes and Reynolds President J. Paul Sticht, also found evidence of "questionable" overseas payments totaling approximately $100,000, some possibly involving foreign government officials.

The three men who resigned and their annual salaries were: David S. Peoples, 59, executive committee chairman and vice chairman of the board, $270,000; William S. Smith, 57, a vice chairman of the board, $268,000; and Charles B. Wade Jr., 60, senior vice chairman, $158,000.

A fourth man, former board Chairman A.H. Galloway, 69, "apparently participated to some extent" in the fund, the statement said. Reynolds Public Relations Director Ron Sustana said Galloway is retired and his retirement benefits will not be affected by the finding.

Sustana said the investigation, which was announced last month, is still underway. He said the company had no comment on whether there would

PTI Grant

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Congressman Walter B. Jones announced that a grant in the amount of $250,000 has been awarded to Pitt Technical Institute by the Coastal Plains Regional Commission towards construction of a vocational education building on the PTI campus.

Jones said that the total cost of the facility is estimated at $1,300,551 with the remainder of the funds being received from the State of North Carolina, local tax revenues, and from the Vocational Education Act.

According to the representative, the facility will consist of vocation shops, classrooms, and a community arts program.

Injuries Reported In Local Accidents

Four persons were injured and $3875 in damages resulted from five city traffic accidents this weekend reported by the Greenville Police Department.

A two-car collision Friday morning on Greenville Blvd., west of Belvedere Dr. reportedly resulted in an injury for a passenger, Sandra Smith, 21, of Rt. 1, Hookerton. Miss Smith was riding in the auto operated by Linwood Warren Smith, Rt. 1, Hookerton, when it collided with a car driven by Charles Franklin Wynne, Rt. 5, Greenville. Damages were $1,000 to the Smith car and $1,500 to the Wynne car. Smith was charged with failure to see a safe movement.

Deborah Ann Mosley, 504 E. Gum St., was reportedly injured Friday afternoon when the car she drove collided with the vehicle driven by Verna Ruth Warren, Olde London Inn Apt. 260. The accident occurred west of Fornes Rd. Miss Warren was cited for a safe movement violation. Damages were $300 to the Warren car and $500 to the Mosley car.

Jarvis St., was reportedly injured Friday morning when the motorcycle he was operating was involved in a mishap with a dog on E. Fifth St., east of Summit St. The dog, owned by Edith Yonque of 601 E. Fifth St., was killed and $125 damage was done to the motorcycle.

The Fast Fare Food Store at Greenville Blvd. and Evans St. was damaged Friday night when a parked car ran into the front of the store, doing $175 damage. The car, owned by Ashley Joe Garris, 702 Blvd. St. Ayden, sustained $50 in damages. David Morris of Grifton, a passenger in the car, was reportedly injured.

A rear-end collision Friday morning on Dickinson Ave., west of Wade St., did $50 damage to the car driven by Willie Hurbert Tripp, Jr. of Greenville and $175 to the auto driven by Cynthia Snyder McLendon, Rt. 1, Winterville.

Instructor In Rescue Safety

The course, conducted at the Douglas Airport Fire Department, Charlotte, incorporated assistance provided by Chief R. L. Blackwelder of the Charlotte Fire Training Division.

Bowling noted that assistance for the course was also given by Piedmont, Eastern and Delta Airline and by various military units.

'Won't Quit,' Hays Says

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Wayne Hays, hanging tough in the face of sex scandal allegations, is under pressure to resign one of his prestigious committee chairmanships fast and might be persuaded to do so this week.

The man assigned to talk to Hays, Tuesday, is House Democratic leader Thomas "Tip" O'Neill of Massachusetts, who had a similar heart-to-heart with Rep. Wilbur Mills when Mills was embroiled in personal scandal.

Boy Wants To See His Mother Before He Dies

Possibility She's In Greenville

WANTS HIS MOTHER—Six-year-old Tony Harris who has terminal cancer, wants to see his mother, Chuong Sun Harris, before he dies. She left her family in February, possibly for Richmond, Va., Greenville, N.C. or Chicago. Tony may die in two months or two years. (AP Wirephoto)

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Six-year-old Tony Harris wants to see his mother before he dies. Tony may die of cancer in two months or two years, depending on the effectiveness of drugs he's taking.

His mother, Chuong Sun Harris, 28, a Korean woman also known as Julie, left Tony and his sister Melinda, 4, and Tony's father, James, 31, in February. Bob Clardy, 32, Tony's foster parent, said the boy used to talk constantly about his father. "It was 'my dad' this, 'my dad' that," Clardy said. "He spoke very little about his mother."

Now, in the face of painful injections in his veins, Tony asks for her.

Tony's father thinks she may be working in Richmond, Va., where they used to live, or Greenville, N.C. where she has a friend.

"She talked about a job in Chicago once," he said. "Possibly she went there."

He believes she left her family because of Tony's illness, staggering medical bills and his own inability to find a job. He added that she preferred the company of other Koreans and felt isolated in Nashville.

Harris owes Vanderbilt Hospital $4,000 for Tony's medical bills and the hospital has threatened to stop the boy's treatment if the bills are not paid. He asked that Tony be placed in a foster home, saying, "I want the best for him."

He believes his wife will respond to her child's plea if he can get word to her that Tony may not have long to live.

Clardy describes Tony as an "angel."

"The little boy knows he is going to die. He said he didn't want to die. Then we talked about how everybody dies. We've cried together about it."

Four Pitt County Residents Arrested

Four Pitt County residents were arrested this weekend on charges of assault and possession of non-taxpaid liquor, according to Greenville Police Department records.

Elmer Ray Ellis, 18, of 427-A W. Third St., was charged with assault with intent to commit rape. He was arrested Friday morning at his home for an alleged offense Saturday, May 22.

Edward Earl Alphin, Jr., 19, of 1001 N. Pitt St., and Gregory Leon Cox, 26, 1200 S. Pitt St., were arrested on unrelated charges of assault on females.

Alphin was charged Friday night with an alleged attack earlier that evening. Cox was arrested Saturday morning for an attack allegedly committed that same morning.

Earline Hardy, 67, of 713 Roosevelt Ave., was arrested Saturday morning for alleged possession of non-tax paid liquor Wednesday.

Marijuana Is Confiscated

AYDEN—A 27-year-old man who listed a Box 323, Gurganus Trailer Court address, was arrested here Wednesday afternoon by Ayden police on a marijuana possession charge.

Police Chief Tommy Burney said that officers arrested Daniel John Wiens around 5:30 p.m. and charged him with possession of marijuana.

According to Burney, police confiscated approximately three pounds of marijuana, with a street value of approximately $1,200, as well as a 1966 model automobile and $580 in cash.

Bond for Wiens was set at $2,500 with a hearing scheduled for June 24 in Ayden District Court.

In 1890 social welfare expenditures under public programs in the U.S. totaled $318 million and represented 2.4 per cent of the gross national product.

Quiet Campaign During Weekend

By IRA R. ALLEN
United Press International
 With little more than a week left in the primary season, a relative lull settled over the presidential campaigns Saturday.

Johnny-come-latelys Frank Church and Edmund G. Brown Jr. traded heads in Rhode Island, one of three states holding primaries next Tuesday, and Morris Udall said he must be doing well in South Dakota because Jimmy Carter scheduled a return trip to the state on the eve of the election. Montana also votes Tuesday.

The three primaries Tuesday pale when compared to the June 8 contests in New Jersey, Ohio and California where 54 Democratic and 331 Republican delegates are at stake.

This was one of the few weekends since the primaries began in New Hampshire Feb. 24 that President Ford stayed home. He had to pass up a golf outing and a trip to Camp David because of rainy weather.

But while in Washington, Ford issued a statement on the volatile busing issue, instructing Attorney General Edward Levi to continue an "active search" for a busing casethe government can enter on the side of antibusing advocates. The Justice Department Saturday announced Levi would not enter the Boston case.

Reagan was campaigning in his native California, visiting the Paso Robles home of silent film siren Colleen Moore for a fund-raising party.

In delegate selection Saturday, Virginia Republicans chose three more convention delegates and Iowa Democrats chose their last seven.

The Rhode Island Democratic campaign provided most of the sparks. Brown, the governor of California, isn't on the ballot but is counting on votes for uncommitted delegates. Church, Idaho senator, is trying to beat Carter for a fourth straight time.

Church said, "The presidency is the most difficult of all the offices in the world. It's not a glorified governorship... It's never been thought before that 18 months in Sacramento was sufficient preparation for the presidency of the United

Brown shot back: "I don't think that 20 years in Washington reading the Congressional Record necessarily qualifies a person for the top executive job in this country."

Carter sent Coleman Young, the mayor of Detroit, and Leonard Woodcock, head of the United Auto Workers, to campaign for him in Rhode Island.

In South Dakota, where Udall hopes to win his first primary after eight second-place finishes, the Arizona congressman said he is heartened Carter planned to return Monday: "When he adds a day to his schedule, he's in trouble."

Delays Food Stamp Cutback

WASHINGTON — A federal judge, saying administration-backed cutbacks in the U.S. food stamp program would cause irreparable harm to recipients, has blocked the changes. The government claims the ruling may put the program in danger of running out of funds late this summer.

On Friday, U.S. District Judge Howard Corcoran issued a temporary restraining order delaying for two weeks implementation of new regulations that would have cut more than 1.6 million families from the food stamp rolls.

Seized U.S. Yacht Released

WASHINGTON (AP) — An American-owned yacht fired upon and seized by Panamanian troops is back in the Panama Canal after six days of unpublicized captivity that caused a flap involving U.S. sovereignty over the waterway.

The government did not make the incident public. But it drew the attention of the White House, apparently because of the potential political implications of the seizure by Panamanian soldiers.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some economists claim that roughly half of Social Security's projected deficit could be wiped out by correcting what they see as a flaw in the system's funding formula.

Security Alert

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission disclosed Saturday it had ordered a nationwide security alert at the nation's 58 nuclear power plants. Midwestern police said they had word extremists might try to seize a nuclear plant.

"We have received some highly tentative, inconclusive information which had caused us to ask operators of nuclear power plants to make sure that their guard forces were particularly alert over the next several days," NRC spokesman Frank Ingram said.

UN Mandate Extended

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The U.N. disengagement observer force had a fresh mandate today to guard the Israeli-Syrian cease-fire line on the Golan Heights through next November.

The Security Council voted 13-0 Friday to extend the mandate of the 1,194-man force created two years ago. China and Libya did not participate, as usual on peace-force issues.

A Mother's Appeal

By MATTHEW T. KENNY
 MEXICO CITY (UPI) — The mother of the kidnaped daughter of the Belgian ambassador Saturday issued a tearful appeal to the Communist abductors, begging her daughter's release.

The appeal was issued shortly after the hour a family spokesman had earlier predicted would resolve the abduction with a "happy ending" and indicated the kidnapers had agreed to accept less than their original ransom demand.

Mrs. Mireille Chaval, wife of Belgian ambassador Andre Chaval and mother of their 16-year-old daughter Nadine, told the leftist extremists who abducted the girl last Tuesday: "I have now complied (with your terms) and I have faith you also will comply. I beg that you call me so as to know the moment when I can expect my daughter. My anxiety is now unbearable."

Four hours after making the appeal, Mrs. Chaval told newsmen she had received no further word from the kidnapers.

The anxious mother made occasional appearances at the doorway of her colonial-style residence to thank those stopping by to give money for the ransom fund.

One of the donors was 9-year-old Eduardo Javier Carrega, who tapped on the door with a small, clay piggy bank which he said contained $8.

Plea Bargaining Opposition

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Dist. Atty. Ed Grannis Jr. has encountered opposition from a District Court judge and several lawyers by eliminating plea bargaining in drunken driving cases.

"No member of (the DA's staff) is authorized to make an exception," Grannis said, as he disclosed the new policy at a Cumberland-Hoke Bar Association meeting here.

District Court Judge Coy E. Brewer objected, saying he doesn't "see any reason why such cases should be singled out for special treatment and handled differently from other cases."

One defense attorney who asked to remain unidentified predicted lawyers would protest the move by appealing all District Court verdicts in such cases.

"I think there will be a move among lawyers to force as many cases into Superior Court as possible," he said.

Several lawyers contended that Grannis instituted the policy because some attorneys had been shown favoritism by members of his staff or the highway patrol.

The district attorney denied that, saying no specific cases caused his decision.

Plea bargaining occurs when a defendant pleads guilty in return for a recommendation from the prosecutor that he be given a light sentence or probation.

NYC University Closed

NEW YORK (AP) — The City University of New York, falling to a fate which the city itself managed to escape months earlier — default — has closed its doors. The shutdown leaves faculty unpaid, students without final grades and graduation in a holding stage for 30,000 to 40,000 seniors.

CUNY Chancellor Robert J. Kibbee, "with great distress and sorrow," ordered the closing of CUNY's 20 units at midnight Friday, after the school defaulted on pay for its 27,000 employees, including 11,400 faculty members.

The closing came as CUNY's 250,000 students prepare for final exams and graduation exercises. In some instances tests had been completed but no grades received.

Between 30,000 and 40,000 seniors were due to graduate between June 3 and June 16. "They are not in jeopardy of not graduating eventually," Kibbee assured.

The shutdown of the university was the most recent in a series of events hitting the financially struggling city.

Officials announced Thursday the closing of 49 day care centers for lack of money, and Moody's Investor Service, on Friday, refused to reconsider its decision to lower ratings on Municipal Assistance Corporation bonds.

Officials said the new rating, dropped three steps from "A" to "B," will cost the city an additional $420 million in debt service.

Labor leaders and city officials, meanwhile, today denied a published report that the city would begin laying off workers at municipal hospitals. The labor leaders had warned that any mass layoff of hospital workers could touch off a city-wide general hospital strike.

Kibbee, commenting on

CUNY's closing, told reporters, "This act has to injure the university's reputation. It will also impress on our very fine faculty that they'd be better off and more secure and safer at some other institution."

"We do not have the money," declared Deputy Mayor John Zuccotti. He said the only way to meet the current $14.9 million payroll was with state help.

City Hall sources said CUNY overspent its May budget by $15 million, expecting a city bailout.

ECU Alumni Association President Robert Mays of Greensboro welcomed alumni and special guests and recognized class reunion chairpersons. Special recognition was given to the members of the Classes of 1926 and 1950, who were celebrating their 50th and 25th reunions. Frances R. Smith of Greenville chaired the Class of 1926 reunion, and Leon R. Ellis of Seaboard, Del., the Class of 1950 reunion.

During an Alumni Association business session, three new members of the ECU Alumni Board of Directors were elected: Robert Wade Edwards of Rocky Mount, Daniel Thomas Hannon of Henderson and Howard Glenn Williams of Greensboro.

Jenkins, welcoming those attending annual Alumni Day festivities at ECU Saturday, said "together, we have established a great tradition" at East Carolina. "We look to the future with confidence and we see opportunities unlimited." To get things done, he said, ECU relies "on teamwork—our alumni, friends, staff, faculty, and students."

Sheltered Workshop Directors Named

New board of directors were selected at the Eastern Carolina Sheltered Workshop board of directors meeting Wednesday.

The new board includes the following: Lawrence Lindsly, Janice Walston, Norwood Whitehurst, Dr. C.F. McAndrew, Joe Taft, Dr. Sheldon Downes, Sam Bundy, Melvin Moore, Charles Snell, Bill Wiggins, Francis Nebans, Howard W. Haskill, and Haul Reddick. Charlie Stone will serve as chairman of the board.

The board approved a budget for the 1976-77 year totaling $736,000. Included in the budget was seven per cent annual increase in salaries for the employees at the workshop.

In other business the board: —Announced that one of three buses to be purchased with UMTA funds has been received by the Workshop. The other two buses will be delivered within a few weeks.

Statistics Ignored Full Story

The Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching says that North Carolina has or is developing a surplus of medical school facilities.

The Foundation in an analysis of state support for higher education claims North Carolina is one of six states with such a surplus. The others it lists as Georgia, Ohio, Tennessee, Texas and West Virginia.

There are three developed medical schools in our state: Duke, Bowman Gray and UNC-Chapel Hill. In addition, the UNC Board of Governors has recommended and the Legislature has approved funds for the development of a medical school at East Carolina University.

If the Carnegie Foundation analysis were accepted based on that information it could be interpreted that the state has too many medical schools, but statistics alone never tell the full story. As we have learned from the long, and often bitter, debate over the establishment of the ECU medical school, the North Carolina medical school situation is not as news reports of the Carnegie report make it appear.

In the first place, prior to the establishment of the ECU medical school, there was only one state supported medical school — at Chapel Hill. North Carolina is blessed to have two private medical schools in Bowman Gray and Duke. The state offers some assistance to these schools, just as it does to all private colleges. But their missions are far different from that of a state supported medical school. The private schools are regional, or even national, in concept. Thus it is not proper to compare North Carolina's two private and one public medical schools, with three state supported medical schools in a state of equal population.

Next, to say that North Carolina has a surplus of medical schools cannot take into account the severe shortage of family physicians that this state experiences — particularly the eastern section. That shortage is real enough to the families who must search for a family physician.

Raw statistics seldom tell the complete story. We have no doubt that a study would show that North Carolina's vast state maintained highway system would give us among the highest miles of roads per capita of any state in the union. Yet with our dispersed population the large road mileage is essential to our particular state.

A great advantage of a democracy is that its people can assess its needs and then provide the impetus for meeting these needs. North Carolinians have assessed their needs for medical care and several programs — including the ECU Medical School — have been put in motion. It is a shining example of people acting to solve their own problems.

THIS AFTERNOON

N.C. Towns 'Roll' Garbage

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—Several smaller North Carolina cities are setting the pace in garbage cans on wheels—a trend being watched carefully by larger cities.

Cherryville, Albemarle, Garner, and Monroe are among those using the new approach, which is currently being talked about in Charlotte and Raleigh.

Cherryville started the system in 1972, launching a trend which editors of Southern City, published by the N.C. League of Municipalities, say "could change the system of garbage collection in the state within the next few years."

The "roll-away" system uses 80-gallon plastic containers on wheels. Either the homeowner rolls the big box to curbside on collection days, or in some cases the sanitation men roll it from its parking place behind the house.

Easy Lift
The big advantage is rollability, plus hooks on the truck which pick up a pair of the special containers and with a push of the level lifts them and dumps the contents into the smasher.

Albemarle City Manager Jack Neal projects annual savings of $100,000; out of a sanitation budget of $250,000. Cherryville City Manager John Swindall doesn't put a dollar figure on the savings, but says the system has eliminated employee turnover and allowed a four-day work week.

Monroe Assistant City Manager Wade Broome told Southern City that one collection route has been eliminated and three crews can do the work formerly done by four. Also, the crew size was reduced from four men to three.

In some cases, there has been public resistance to the system, but Garner Assistant Town Manager Pat Thomas reports overwhelming acceptance when the savings are explained, and the ease of using the rolling garbage cans pointed out.

A survey of collection methods in North Carolina taken by the League of Municipalities indicates this method of curbside pickup will grow.

As Maine Goes?

Maine has just put in practice rewritten criminal codes which are strikingly like those being mulled for North Carolina by the Commission on Correctional Programs chaired by Charlotte Attorney Eddie H. Knox, a former state senator.

The heart of the new direction is fixed-sentencing for crimes, with prosecutors, judges and even police sharply curtailed in flexibility. Rehabilitation is recognized as largely a failure with no time off given for participation; only good behavior counts in a formula for release. Parole is eliminated.

Victimless crimes are mostly removed from criminal sanctions, as prostitution, simple possession of marijuana, and sex acts between consenting adults are removed from the criminal dockets.

Maine, however, goes beyond even the discussion of change currently going on in North Carolina. In a get-tough mood, that state fixes unpardonable life terms for certain murders and mandatory prison for repeat burglars or those who use arms in a robbery.

The Knox Commission continues its study aimed at adoption of a statement of philosophy in criminal justice for North Carolina, accompanied by sweeping recommendations for changes in the law.

Those proposals are scheduled to be ready for consideration by the 1977 General Assembly. One of the most difficult problems facing the commission is establishing set punishments for specific crimes, and the accompanying limits on discretion of judges in pronouncing sentence. Those involved expect judges to vigorously resist that approach.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Ford's Calif. Obstacles

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
ANAHEIM, Calif. — Fierce loyalty by lower middle-class Republicans to Ronald Reagan here in conservative Orange County makes President Ford's quest for a nomination-clinching victory in California a monumental, perhaps impossible task.

Helped by Patrick Caddell's Cambridge Survey Research, we interviewed 79 registered Republican voters in an area which has proved a barometer of statewide Republican voting. Our interviewing on May 22, just before candidate and media campaigns began, showed: Reagan, 48 voters; Ford, 29 voters; undecided, 2 voters.

Such results in Orange County's heavily Republican precincts would make it impossible for Mr. Ford to carry the state in the June 8 winner-take-all primary.

Moreover, our interviews produced overwhelming praise for Reagan's eight years as governor of California and hardly any undecided voters — undercutting Ford hopes based on massive indecision and underlying resentment against Reagan's record in Sacramento.

Typical is a county government civil servant in his 50s who told us he likes Mr. Ford "because he tries" but feels the President is "not very competent." While complaining that Reagan did "not pay his fair share of income tax," this voter believes "Reagan did a good job and an honest one" as governor, particularly in reforming state welfare.

Such statements do not come from the well-heeled Republican elite. The area selected for us by Caddell's organization, census tract 864-02, supported liberal Republican Houston Flournoy for governor in the 1974 primary by approximately the same large margin as the entire state. A mixture of upper blue-collar and lower white-collar workers earns a $17,235 median income, including many young aerospace engineers and machinists who have suffered from recession.

Hence, it is bad news for the Ford camp that these voters consider foreign-policy-defense issues not less important than the economy. Nearly one of 10 voters volunteer the Panama Canal as the primary's most important question. Moreover, these voters defend, by over 5 to 1, Reagan's bringing the canal issue into the campaign.

Even worse news for Ford strategists is Reagan's remarkable 87 per cent job performance rating as governor compared to 48 per cent for Mr. Ford as President. Indeed, Reagan's record as governor was the most frequently mentioned reason for supporting him. "He was conservative while governor and didn't let others change his views," a college instructor's wife in her 40s told us.

In contrast, she added, "Ford's not been assertive enough in his own right." This notion that the President is controlled by "Advisers"

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger is often specified — is hurting him badly here. A harder line against the Soviet Union was supported by 62 of the 79 voters, and Kissinger was given only a 41 per cent favorable rating.

Moreover, the President here encounters a problem not faced elsewhere: Anaheim's straitlaced suburbanites are critical of the President's family. The wife of a retired clothing store owner told us she supports the President even though "the Fords are too liberal with their children." A 42-year-old secretary said she backs Reagan for one reason: "I don't like Betty Ford." Other voters mentioned the First Lady and son Jack as Ford drawbacks.

Even among Ford supporters, praise for the President is tepid. A 43-year-old civil engineer leans toward Mr. Ford even though he "doesn't have strong sentiments" because "he's a middle-class American like the rest of us." While doubting the President's competence, a 35-year-old elementary school teacher backs him "as a man of average intelligence, down to earth just like the rest of us." "I don't think Ford's the

A.E. Dubber, retired U.S. Marine colonel and also retired director of the local Redevelopment Commission and Housing Authority, says he recently completed a 7,500 mile trip around the country.

The trip took him and his wife into 20 states.

"You know," he said, "North Carolina has the best roads of any state." But he added, "Greenville has the worst streets."

Col. Dubber also says that he has seen the Rocky Mountains, and the mountains of North Carolina. Those of our state are the prettiest, he says. We'd be inclined to agree—even without ever having seen the Rockies.

Conversation overheard as two people met and exchanged information at a party.

"What do you do?" asked the first person.

"As little as possible," the second laughed.

"Oh," said the first person. "You must teach at the university."

"That's right!" the second person answered.

Please, professors. No right-of-reply allowed.

The little girl was crying on the downtown mall. Obviously she had misplaced her parents.

Soon the friendly officer on the beat came up and asked if he could help.

The little girl stopped crying, gave her parents' name and pointed out the store that she thought they had entered.

Then the officer called for the lieutenant on duty to meet him at Five Points.

The little girl, her confidence restored, walked with the police officer along the mall toward the Five Points intersection. She clutched his hand as the officer reassured her that the police would reunite her with her parents.

As they neared the end of the mall the lieutenant's car loomed into view.

Back down the mall the distraught parents, searching for the lost youngster, saw her with the officer and hurried toward her. Soon the family was happily reunited.

The helpful police officer reported to his lieutenant and was back to patrolling his beat.

Whatever their basis for optimism, the Democrats are becoming more hopeful. There will be a lot of shenanigans if and when Carter wins the nomination. As the candidate he would have more leeway for shaping policy than in the primaries now.

What he needs and expects is the choice of the convention. After that, if he wins, he can begin building his platform, with something for all classes of voters.

Carter is more confident, and has more reason for it, than either Ford or Reagan, at least at this point. It does not appear that he can be maneuvered out of his present leadership.

When Thomas Murphy, General Motors chairman, began talking many months ago about a strong year upcoming, some industry analysts openly questioned the reliability of his market information and also his analysis of it.

Disbelief sounded like an echo, from so many directions did it come. GM, it was said, was building cars to sit in inventory; Murphy was taking GM out on a limb; people won't buy cars because prices are too high.

But even Murphy has been forced to raise his estimates, as week after week the demand for cars, and for some trucks too, greatly exceeded expectations.

At the beginning of the year, he issued the most bullish forecast of any car maker: 10.25 million cars and 3 million trucks. Now he foresees "at least" 10.5 million cars being sold in the United States, and truck sales of more than 3 million.

If labor negotiations can be resolved "peacefully and responsibly without interruptions in production," he told the Detroit Economic Club, combined car-truck sales in 1976 could be the second highest in history.

Almost as noteworthy as the surge of car sales is the unexpected demand for large cars and the weaker-than-anticipated interest in subcompact models.

The daily sales rate for mid-May was the second-best ever, topped only by the comparable period in 1973, but there was an important asterisk attached to the figures, released this week. That is, General Motors, Chrysler and the Lincoln-Mercury division of Ford reported record high sales, but the overall figure was depressed a bit by the downturn at American Motors, which specializes in smaller cars.

Considering the near panic of a couple of years ago, Americans have adapted amazingly well to the gasoline situation. High prices seem to be accepted. And somehow, most drivers seem to have erased fears of shortages.

Nevertheless, gasoline prices have begun to rise again, and there is the possibility of shortages. Reserve stocks have been diminished by the increases in demand as the economy improves.

Other Editors Say Demos Optimistic

(Henderson Dispatch)

On the surface, leaders in both parties have maintained an outward appearance of optimism. President Ford said months ago that he believed he would be nominated and elected. Since he began winning in the primaries, Carter has kept it up with few exceptions. He has said repeatedly he expects to be nominated on the first ballot at the New York convention in July. And he has more reason for that attitude than Ford has at the Republican convention in Kansas City a month after the Democrats have acted.

The effort on the part of powerful Democrats to stop Carter has not shown results. He continues to sail on and on. Today he has more pledges of support from the primaries than any of his opponents, and more than some of them combined. At the same time, he doesn't have it in the bag. Almost certainly there will be smoke-filled rooms in New York.

But the Democrats may not have as far to go as the Republicans in achieving unity. The clash between Ford and Reagan will leave its scars, and they can't afford to lose any of their partisans if they expect to win. Actually, their only chance in November will be with the help of dissident Democrats who cross over party lines. There will, of course, be countless conservatives who will leap across the fence, whether it be Ford or Reagan.

Whatever their basis for optimism, the Democrats are becoming more hopeful. There will be a lot of shenanigans if and when Carter wins the nomination. As the candidate he would have more leeway for shaping policy than in the primaries now. What he needs and expects is the choice of the convention. After that, if he wins, he can begin building his platform, with something for all classes of voters.

Carter is more confident, and has more reason for it, than either Ford or Reagan, at least at this point. It does not appear that he can be maneuvered out of his present leadership.

Cars Are Driving The Economy

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Almost nobody would have believed a year or two ago that, from an economic perspective, 1976 would be the year of the car. But it is; the car is driving the economy.

If the surveys are correct, evidence of this will be observed most everywhere on this Memorial Day weekend, at mountain and seashore and lake, in national parks and at ball parks, on highways and backroads and in traffic jams.

The car's comeback is truly astonishing. It has bucked the high price of gasoline, fears of new shortages, environmentalist antagonism, layoffs, dilution of personal income, and what had been an underlying fear of the future. When Thomas Murphy, General Motors chairman, began talking many months ago about a strong year upcoming, some industry analysts openly questioned the reliability of his market information and also his analysis of it.

Disbelief sounded like an echo, from so many directions did it come. GM, it was said, was building cars to sit in inventory; Murphy was taking GM out on a limb; people won't buy cars because prices are too high.

FINDING TRUE LIFE
"How prudently we proud men compete for nameless graves, while now and then some starveling of Fate forgets himself into immortality."

Thus wrote the noted evangelist Wendell Phillips many years ago. He was thinking of those who play meticulously to fulfill their ambitions and find themselves at last overwhelmed.

And, on the other hand, he was thinking of those people who keep their heads on things higher than personal aggrandizement and find themselves becoming respected and admired by the community at large.

Every time we are selfish, the universe strives against us. On the other hand, legions of angels sweep across the circumstances of life and lift our poor powers to great achievement when we forget ourselves and our petty interests. And sometimes, as Wendell Phillips said, starvelings of fate who have forgotten themselves in the midst of adversity have gained immortality by so doing.

Museum Exhibit Salutes

By DONALD SANDERS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A bewildering array of objects illustrating the diversity of American life will be displayed at the Smithsonian Institution's major Bicentennial exhibition. It opens June 10.

"A Nation of Nations" — the title is from Walt Whitman — will occupy almost an acre of space on the first floor of the Museum of History and Technology, one of the most popular tourist attractions in the capital.

The exhibition, five years in preparation, includes the portable desk on which Thomas Jefferson wrote the Declaration of Independence, a shirt of chain mail once worn by the Russian governor of Alaska, the Marquis de Lafayette's watch and wallet, George Washington's mess kit and uniform, and an old ticket booth from Yankee Stadium.

The exhibition will continue for five years as a major Smithsonian salute to the Bicentennial. There are more than 6,000 items and a visitor would have to wander through the museum for hours to see them all.

The theme of the exhibition is that this is a nation made up of many cultures which have blended together while maintaining their diversity.

The exhibition spans 22,000 years, from artifacts dating back to the earliest migrations to neon signs toting fast food restaurants.

The sports section has bats used by Babe Ruth, Stan Musial and Joe DiMaggio. There is Irving Berlin's piano and Eddie Cantor's makeup kit.

From Everett, Mass., came a colonial kitchen from a house built about 1695.

There is a school room from Cleveland, built in 1883 and in use until last year. And a bench from Ellis Island where visitors may rest while looking at displays of naturalization papers and other documents needed by immigrants to become Americans.

From Ft. Belvoir, Va., came a typical barracks room of World War II, complete with latrine; it was in use until the Vietnamese war. There are hundreds of dogtags.

Another exhibit displays political buttons; not the usual presidential campaign buttons, but those proclaiming the virtues of someone running for city council, the state legislature, the school board, zoning commissions and the like.

Carter Tops Ford, Reagan

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N.J.—Democratic challenger Jimmy Carter holds wide leads over both President Gerald Ford and former California Gov. Ronald Reagan in the latest nationwide test elections with the President running only a slightly stronger race than Reagan.

The results show Carter leading Ford 52 to 40 per cent and Reagan 55 to 37 per cent. The findings are based on the choices of registered voters nationwide.

Trend In Ford-Carter Race

Today's findings on the Carter-Ford race closely match those recorded at the beginning of the month when Carter led, 52 to 43 per cent. Carter took over the lead from Ford in an early April survey.

Comparison of the support given Ford and Reagan in the latest test elections brings the following to light:

—Both Ford and Reagan are suffering serious defection among the GOP rank and file, with about one-fourth of Republicans defecting to Carter in the case of each trial heat.

—Among the college-educated segment of the electorate, the vote for Ford matches that given Carter, but Reagan trails the Democratic candidate with this group.

—Young voters (18 to 29) lean 2-to-1 to Carter over Reagan, but the ratio is considerably closer in the Carter-Ford trial heat.

—Reagan trails Carter in all regions except in his native West, where the race is about even. Similarly, Ford achieves a standoff in his native Midwest, but trails in the other three major regions of the nation.

Here are the questions asked:

"Suppose the presidential election were being held today. If President Gerald Ford were the Republican candidate and Jimmy Carter were the Democratic candidate, which would you like to see win?" (The same question was asked posing Reagan as the Republican candidate.)

Here are the latest results on the Carter-Ford trial heat, based on registered voters, and the trend:

Carter vs. Ford

	Carter	Ford	Undecided
May 21-23	52%	40%	8%
April 30-May 3	52	43	5
April 9-12	49	43	8
March 26-29	45	48	7
March 19-21	47	46	7
March 10-13	47	42	11

Following are the results of the Carter-Reagan match-up:

	Carter	Reagan	Undecided
May 21-23	55%	37%	8%

A Conservative View

Extention Of Federal Power, Even To Funerals

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

The Federal Trade Commission has proposed sweeping federal regulation of the nation's funeral industry. The industry is fighting back. Because death is the one ultimate condition shared by all mankind, the proposal merits universal consideration.

This is no little business. Though many of the country's 22,000 funeral homes are quite small (the national average is only 94 funerals per home per year), the industry reported gross receipts in 1974 of $2.6 billion. In the FTC's view, the funeral business plainly "affects" interstate commerce, and funeral practices therefore "are clearly a proper concern of the federal government."

As you would imagine, the industry takes a contrary view. All 50 states maintain boards or commissions with some regulatory and enforcement power. The National Funeral Directors Association (NFDA), a federation of state associations, promulgates ethical standards; individual state associations have expelled members for unethical practice. The industry contends that among two million funerals a year, abuses are few.

The FTC responds that state regulation is mostly sham. Only a handful of states provide for even a single public or non-professional member on their regulatory boards. In practice, funeral directors write and enforce regulations for fellow funeral directors. The general counsel of the NFDA, Thomas H. Clark, serves also as counsel to the conference of state regulatory boards. It seems indeed a costly relationship.

Three years ago, in response to what it described as "widespread complaints," the FTC launched a staff investigation into funeral practices. This culminated in August, 1975 in the proposed regulation now pending. Public hearings have been held thus far in Chicago and New York. Additional hearings are scheduled for June 1 in Seattle, June 9 in Los Angeles, June 28 in Atlanta, and July 19 here in Washington. A final order is expected in the fall.

The proposed regulation is based upon a staff study that is curiously shrill and almost contemptuous in its tone. Some animus plainly was at work in the drafting of these charges. The typical funeral director emerges from this report as a greedy body-snatcher, exploiting bereaved relatives by "total and subtle confusion." He is "terrified" or "horrified" by the thought of federal regulation. His purpose is to "steer" the family into the highest-priced funeral by shaming the family into buying a costly casket, lying to them about state laws and charging them for services "they don't really want."

To put an end to these unfair and deceptive practices, the FTC proposes a trade regulation rule that runs to 20 double-spaced pages. The principal proposal goes to written itemization of prices. Funeral directors would have to offer their customers a full price range of caskets, and could not "uglify" the least expensive ones.

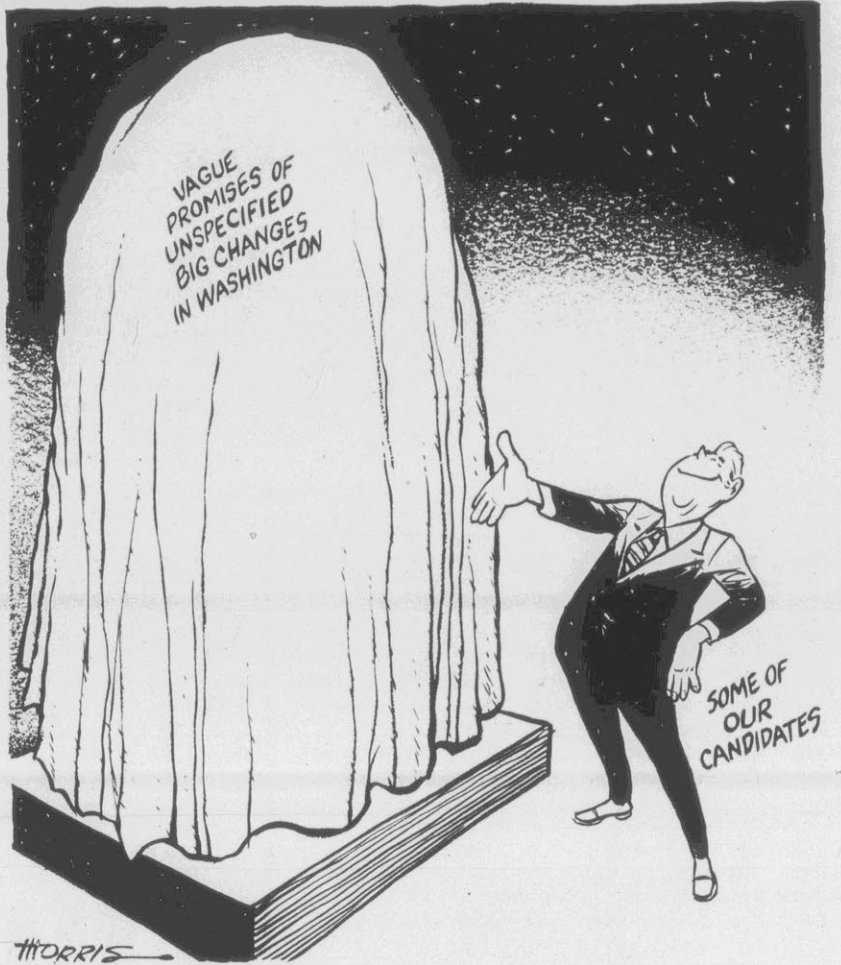

It would be an unfair trade practice, punishable at law, for a funeral director "to suggest in any manner that the customer's expressed concern about prices, inexpensive services or merchandise or an expressed desire to save money by the customer is improper, inappropriate, or indicative of a lack of respect or affection for the deceased." How this particular rule would be enforced, heaven only knows.

The FTC staff insists that it is not engaging in "bureaucratic overkill," but its requirements would demand a bewildering array of price lists, informative memoranda and disclosure statements. The making of funeral arrangements would be treated as an exercise in comparative shopping among the supermarkets.

Perhaps the abuses, deceptions and "exploitative practices" are so pervasive that this heavy-handed federal rule is justified, but I wonder. Most of the states now require price disclosure. The state trade associations still object in principle to price advertising, but they no longer expel members who engage in such advertising. With a return on investment of only 4.25 percent, the industry would not appear to be as "lucrative" as the FTC staff insists it is. My tentative impression is that the proposed rule is merely one more wearisome extension of federal power. The bureaucrats already seize us at the cradle. Do they truly need to pursue us to the grave?

Granddaddy Carden Said He'd Just About Had It

JACKSON COUNTY, N.C.

—As God is my witness, I've just 'bout had it! Hain't no way to make a livin'. All this dirt 'n filth 'n sweat. Gonna chuck it all 'n move to the Cove. Gonna go down to Nantahala, 'n climb the Windin' Shatirs, cross over Cowee Mount 'n 'n keep a goin' 'till I'm so fer back, I can't hear no cars. Not a horn! Not a back-farin' truck! Won't be able to hear a thang but wind 'n painters 'n runnin' water! Ain't never comin' out again!

That's my granddaddy, Arthur Carden, talking. Sitting on the front porch in his zebra-striped overalls with pinchy-bugs drumming on the window panes and Granny snapping beans in the dark. In those long summer dusks while the rain-crows mourned on Painter Knob, he would sit hunched against the porch rails sharpening his moving scythe with a whetstone, honing his toenails with a rattailfile, and proclaiming his discontent to the echoing holler darkness.

It wasn't farming that caused this nightly complaint. He didn't object to tree stumps, a stubborn mule and a rocky field that mysteriously yielded a new crop of boulders each year, but he did object to the humiliation of "employment." After ten years of farming and in the aftermath of the 1920s Depression, my granddaddy found that in order to survive, in order to keep the twelve acres of poor mountain land on the backside of Painter Knob in Jackson County, he had to "hire himself out." So, he drove an oil truck — a big, red monstrosity filled with dangling hoses and fold-out compartments. By day, he sold gasoline, diesel oil, kerosene, motor oil and paraffin; in the fading light of evening, he milked, plowed, hoed and attacked the ever-present brambles, weeds and broom-sage.

Frequently I was his reluctant helper on the oil truck, and when we inched up Glenville Mountain at five miles per hour with a thousand gallons of fuel, a July sun and a screaming radiator, he made ominous threats:

One of these days, gonna drive this damned pile of junk over the side of a mount'n! Let it roll into some god-fersaken holler! Let the kudzu bury it! Let possums and ground squirrels live in it!

And when we dragged the oil hose through December snow drifts, slipped on icy sidewalks, hunched in the truck cab writing illegible bills with dead fingers while an inadequate heater groaned beneath the dashboard and a cold wind keened in the window vents:

In the Cove, I'm gonna have Muscadine grapes 'n a melon patch. Lespedeza 'n red clover. Maybe some bantee hens 'n a game rooster!

My granddaddy has been dead twenty years. He is buried in Lovesdale Cemetery, within a few hundred yards of Highway 107 near Cullowhee. The air is filled with exhaust fumes, dust, the sound of stripped gears and car horns. Each day, I join the frustrated caravan of drivers who creep, stall, shift gears and curse through a wilderness of road machinery — a new fourlane coming through. As I sneak forward another ten feet and curse the bulldozer that rotates in the road like a demented pinchybug, I sense my granddaddy's presence beside me in the car — Arthur Carden sitting erect, the whetstone hanging forgotten in his hand, sweat coursing down his lean brown face, his eyes dreamy beneath the tangled, grey hair, his voice almost drowned by the clatter of road machinery:

There's a spring in the Cove, boy. Ain't gonna have no well. No siree! Water's gonna run right through the house in a big wooden trough. No more city water tastin' of arn pipes. And at night, oh, at night, boy, that's the only sound ye hear — the sound of runnin' water.

And I try to remember where he said it was — the Cove. Down to Nantahala Gorge, up the Winding Stairs, somewhere in the Cowee Mountains. Where? Is it still there? As the traffic inches world's smartest fellow," a 52-year-old engineer told us. But he will vote for Mr. Ford anyway because of the President's "honesty" and one other reason: "Reagan talks too much about using power, like on the Panama Canal."

Fears about Reagan's warmongering even in hawkish Orange County represent the President's best California hope. A grocery store owner's wife in her 50s said she leans to Mr. Ford because Reagan is "too quick on the trigger." An engineer in his early 30s feel Reagan "has gone overboard on some statements" but still leans toward him, partly because Mr. Ford is "wishy-washy" (here, as elsewhere, the phrase most often used to criticize him).

Such lukewarm Reagan supporters might be converted to capture California for the President — if there were enough of them. But of the 48 Reagan supporters interviewed, only four seem subject to possible conversion. If this even partially reflects the state, Reagan is headed for a victory that would insure a convention floor fight of historic and perhaps tragic implications for the Republican party.

Today In History

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, May 30, the 151st day of 1976. There are 215 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1431, Joan of Arc was burned at the stake in Rouen, France.

On this date: In 1498, Christopher Columbus sailed from Spain on his third voyage to the New World.

In 1539, the Spanish explorer, Hernando de Soto, landed in Florida.

In 1883, a report that the New Brooklyn Bridge in New York was about to collapse created panic. Six persons on the bridge were trampled to death.

In 1942, during World War Two, more than 1,100 British bombers pounded Cologne, Germany.

In 1961, the dictator of the Dominican Republic, Rafael Trujillo, was assassinated.

In 1963, an estimated 10,000 persons were killed in a windstorm which struck east Pakistan.

Ten years ago: A U.S. Surveyor spacecraft was racing through space, trying to try to achieve America's first soft landing on the moon.

Five years ago: U.S. Mariner Nine rocket was on its way toward the planet Mars after a successful launching.

One year ago: Leaders of the NATO nations wound up a two-day summit meeting in Brussels, Belgium.

Today's birthdays: Band leader Benny Goodman is 67 years old. Former Postmaster

General James Farley is 88. Thought for today: What we see depends mainly on what we look for — John Lubbock, English astronomer and mathematician, 1803-1865.

Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago today, it was reported that British forces were leaving Wilmington, N.C., by ship. The report said they left behind some blankets, with the intention, it was thought, of spreading some infectious disorder among Americans.

To the editor:

A big man is one who makes us feel bigger than we are when we are with him. Robert Louis Stevenson, who was such a man, once said, "Keep your fears to yourself; share your courage with others."

Achievement is only the power of making continuous efforts. The line between failure and success is so fine that we scarcely know when we pass it; so fine that we are often on the line and do not know it.

Many a man has thrown up his hands at a time when a little more effort, a little more patience would have achieved success. As the tide goes all the way out, so, too, does it come all the way in. In business, or any other activity, sometimes, prospects may seem darkest when really they are on the turn.

A little more persistence, a little more effort, and what seemed a hopeless failure may turn into a glorious success. There is no failure except in no longer trying. There is no defeat except from within, no really insurmountable barrier save our own inherent weakness of purpose.

Churches, IRS May Be Nearing Confrontation

By DAVID E. ANDERSON

UPI Religion Writer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In the complex world of church-state relations, one of the most sensitive areas is taxation of religious institutions, or the lack of it.

The churches' relations with the Internal Revenue Service have always been ticklish, but recent efforts by the IRS to refine its definition of religious organizations could lead to confrontations in the courts.

At issue is a proposed IRS regulation that would define an "integrated auxiliary" of a church. The churches fear it might have an adverse tax effect on church-related hospitals, schools and other such institutions.

The IRS action has church organizations hopping mad. They say that if the IRS has its way, it will seriously jeopardize church work in a variety of charitable fields and undermine the constitutionally guaranteed separation of church and state.

While the IRS proposal would not result in taxation of groups falling outside the definition, it would force them to comply with IRS regulations for the first time, and would allow the IRS to define what properly constitutes a church and religious activity.

"The churches have not agreed and cannot agree with the proposition that the state is competent to develop a definition of a church into which each member of the diverse religious community must fit," John W. Baker has told the IRS.

Baker is research director of the Joint Baptist Committee on Public Affairs, one of Washington's most knowledgeable groups on church-state relations.

The dispute goes back to the Tax Reform Act of 1969 which amended the internal revenue code to require certain tax-exempt organizations to begin filing annual tax returns.

In addition, these groups were required to "keep such records, render under oath such statements, make such other returns and comply with such laws and regulations" as the IRS prescribed.

The law did exempt "churches, their integrated auxiliaries, and conventions or associations of churches" from the new requirements.

Now the IRS is trying to define precisely what constitutes an "integrated auxiliary." The churches believe the IRS definition is so tightly drawn it will exclude from the exemption such institutions as church-related hospitals, orphanages and schools.

The IRS definition refers to an organization "whose primary purpose is to carry out the tenets, functions and principles of faith of the church with which it is affiliated," and "whose operation in implementing such primary purpose directly promotes religious activity among the members of the church."

Theological seminaries, youth organizations and fellowship groups are examples of exempt groups under the integrated auxiliary definition.

One that might not be exempt, however, would be a church-related hospital because its primary purpose is to provide medical care to the community rather than to "carry out the tenets" of a particular faith.

"We are troubled by the Internal Revenue Service's attempt to set up a distinction between what the Church teaches and what the Church does," said George F. Harkin, general secretary of the Lutheran Council in the USA, the ecumenical agency for American Lutherans.

Harkin said church teachings and activities were "inseparable."

"Speaking and writing about Christian precepts becomes real and understandable only as those precepts are lived and practiced by the Church itself," he said.

"When the Church pleads for a response to the needs of the sick, the elderly and the young, it also proves that it really cares when it is ready to sponsor and provide health care centers, home for aging, schools and colleges..."

Harkin said the proposed IRS definition borders "on theological judgments as to what the church should be." He agreed with Baker that the IRS was not qualified to make such judgments.

Then There Are Some Who Deserve TV Show

If there's one kind of woman in this world that I cannot stand, it's the Super Mother. These mothers give all the rest of us a bad name. These are the women who bake their own bread, who manage to look like Barbara Walters when their husbands leave in the morning and like Sophia Loren when their husbands come home at night; whose nurseries always smell like Johnson's and Johnson's instead of like the "before" room at a diaper service, and who never, never would think of going to the supermarket in blue jeans coated with strained carrots.

These are the women whose children seem to stay clean even when they're digging tunnels in the backyard, whose closets reek of sachet and Lysol, and who play tennis every afternoon to stay in shape and still have time for "hobbies" like ceramics and gardening.

Then there are women like me. These are the women who rush to the kitchen & throw all the dishes under the sink every time the doorbell rings, who look like the Shaggy Dog when their husbands leave in the morning and like Charlie the Tuna when their husbands come home at night, who don't open their closet doors, whose children seem to be dirty even when they are sitting in the bathtub, and whose idea of an emergency is when there's no Chef Boyardee in the house. These are the women whose wardrobes consist of one pair of jeans and three formerly white t-shirts, one now a strained pea color, one strained apricot, and one meat and vegetable combination. These are the women whose idea of keeping in shape is brushing their teeth two times a day and whose idea of a hobby is eating pecan sandies and watching Stargy and Hutch.

"Sure," I said, grinning sickly and remembering that the only thing I had baked in the past year was a Jello Banana Cake — and that was so dry that it choked everybody who ate it, including the disposal. Hoping to change the subject, I pointed to her beautifully done hair and asked, "Who is your beautician?"

"Oh, I do it myself," she said. "It's so much cheaper. It does take a little time, but I don't mind getting up a half-an-hour earlier in order to look nice. It's such a small price to pay, isn't it?"

"Of course," I agreed, nonchalantly pushing back my split ends. The only thing that could get me up a half-an-hour earlier was if my bed were on fire. But I tried once more. "That's a lovely dress you're wearing. Did you buy it in Greenville?"

"No, I made it. I just can't seem to find anything that suits me in the stores. I sew all my children's clothes, too. I feel that sewing is a means of artistic expression. What do you think?"

I regressed into a fetal position, then muttered, "I think you should have your own television show."

Jackie Staley Pitt County Teacher Of The Year

Jackie Staley

Jackie C. Staley, a fourth grade teacher at Bethel Elementary School, has been named the 1976-77 Pitt County Teacher of the Year, and she is now eligible for District competition.

A part of the selection criteria includes professional and civic participation. The nominees also submit a philosophy of teaching. "It is essential to treat each student as an individual and to show him that I am his friend. I should provide various learning experiences that are child-centered rather than program-centered," Ms. Staley said.

Ms. Staley is an active member of the teaching professional organizations. She has been a member of the NCAE Budget Committee and PACE Lobbying Team. In the Association of Classroom of Teachers, (ACT) she has been faculty representative, membership chairman, on the supplement and public relations committees, as well as ACT vice-president and president. As a member of the NEA, she was a delegate to the national convention in Los Angeles. For the 1976-77 school year she will serve as the District 15 ACT President.

In addition to her involvement in professional organizations, she is enrolled in graduate school at ECU where she is working toward a master's degree in elementary education.

As a member of the Greenville Junior Woman's Club, she has served in various leadership capacities. She is currently serving as co-chairman of the Membership and Hostess Committees. As a representative from the club, she works with the Foundation of the North Carolina Society for Autistic Children.

Ms. Staley is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy E. Carpenter of Nashville.

Two Scholarships

The University Club has awarded two $200 scholarships for 1976-77 to worthy East Carolina University students.

The annual scholarships, financed by fund-raising projects and donations, have been named the Lillian Jenkins Scholarships in honor of the wife of the chancellor of ECU.

This year's Lillian Jenkins scholarship awards are to Theodore Cooper of Wilson, a student in the ECU School of Business, and to Glenda Sims, Castle Hayne, a student in the ECU School of Nursing.

Mrs. Virginia Tucker served as scholarship fund chairman for the University Club, formerly the ECU Faculty Wives, during the past year. The award presentations and naming of the scholarships were by action of the club's executive board. Mrs. Wanza Broome is president and Mrs. Betty Grossnickle is president-elect.

Doctor's Degree To Wayne Clark

Wayne Addison Clark of Atlanta, son of Mrs. J. G. Franklin of Grifton, has received the Doctor of Philosophy Degree in history from the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill.

Dr. Clark is presently employed in the Research Department of the Rockefeller Foundation of Atlanta. He is a graduate of East Carolina University and holds a master's degree from UNC.

Heart Association Reaches '76 Goal

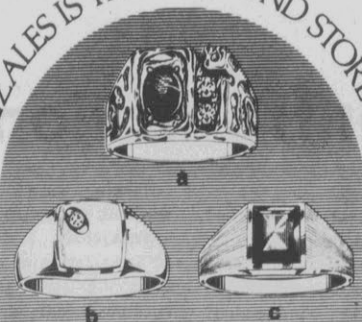

The Pitt County Heart Association has met its goal for 1976, it was announced today by William S. Corbett, Jr., unit president. Over $22,800.00 was raised this compared to $18,800 last year.

"We are grateful to the people who worked hard in all phases of the campaign and to those who gave," Corbett added. "The money will support Heart Association services of benefit to heart attack and stroke patients, pacemaker patients, rheumatic fever patients, people with high blood pressure, and those who should know how to avoid becoming victims of cardiovascular disease" Corbett continued. "This is Pitt County's number one health problem in several communities".

"With this support we can continue to develop programs such as our secondary rheumatic fever prevention program for children who have had rheumatic fever and could contact it again. These monies will help us to screen people for high blood pressure and encourage them to see their physician and help them stay on their regimen. It will help us to educate families of stroke patients to help the patients help themselves as much as possible.

"I particularly want thank all of the workers who collected on Heart Sunday and Business Day; those who helped with the benefits and special events and all of the citizens that donated. It is to you that we owe the success of our campaign," Corbett added.

Russell Christman Memorial Scholarship Established

A Russell Malcolm Christman Memorial Scholarship Fund has been established at East Carolina University, in honor of the late Russell Christman, an instructor in the ECU Department of English, who died as the result of injuries received in an automobile accident Feb. 28.

Christman, 29, a Wilkes-Barre, Pa. native, died in Wilson Memorial Hospital, several hours after receiving serious internal injuries in a single-car accident while driving to Raleigh.

He received the BA degree in English from Bucknell University in 1968, and the MA degree from Temple University in 1971. He also spent a year studying Spanish language and literature at the University of Madrid.

The Christman Scholarship will be awarded annually to an English major in the junior class who is enrolled full-time at ECU. Criteria for selection of scholarship recipients will include exceptional overall academic achievement, superior achievement in English studies and participation in extracurricular activities.

The scholarship fund was begun by Christman's friends among the ECU English faculty and will last in perpetuity. Donations to the Christman

Memorial Scholarship Fund are tax-deductible. All contributions to the fund may be sent to the East Carolina University Alumni Association, ECU, Greenville, N. C. 27834. Checks should be made payable to the ECU Alumni Association, and marked "for the Christman Scholarship Fund."

A CROWD GATHERS...at the Winterville Town Square to hear oratorical contestants explain 'Why I like Winterville' during bicentennial activities.

Winterville Celebrates Bicentennial

HOP ON BOARD . . . Children climb aboard a railroad caboose, posing for newsmen.

WINTERVILLE—Saturday morning rainstorms did not dampen the spirits of residents of Winterville celebrating Bicentennial Day.

A Bicentennial Flag presentation kicked off the celebration. Mayor Walter Dail received the flag from the D. H. Conley ROTC color guard. The flag was designed by Mrs. Joan Hooks and hand-sewn by Mrs. Fay Gaskins.

Following the flag presentation, crafts and baked goods were displayed in both the fire department building and the community building.

Youth activities, including relays and races, were cancelled due to rain, and were rescheduled for next Saturday.

Baking contest winners were announced at 12 noon and a cake auction was held with one cake selling for $50. Winners of the baking contest included: Best decorated, Mrs. Helen Lawrence; best texture, Mayor Walter Dail; and best overall, Mrs. Joan Hooks.

An oratorical contest was held on the Town Square at one o'clock. The topic of the contest was "Winterville, Why I Like It".

"I was born in Winterville in 1911. I thought I was in a part of heaven. I've come to believe without a doubt, that if you don't live in Winterville, you're camping out," Ray Ogelsby said.

"Winterville is the hub of everything leading to happiness and contentment," Brownie Russell said.

Winners in the oratorical contest were: Adult division, Joan Hooks; D. H. Conley division, Alice Costin; and A. G. Cox division, Stacey Hobgood.

Other awards were presented for the best bicentennial costume, talent, and old timer's contests. These were: Bicentennial Costume Contest, youth division ages 6 to 8, Debbie Hall and Jim Faulkner; 12 to 18 years old, Tammy Fisher and Susan Dunn; and 18 to 106 years old, Wayne Avery and Frances Cox.

Talent Contest: Youth division, Tammy Fisher and Mitchell Riggs; 16 years and older, Libby Braxton and Darlene Best.

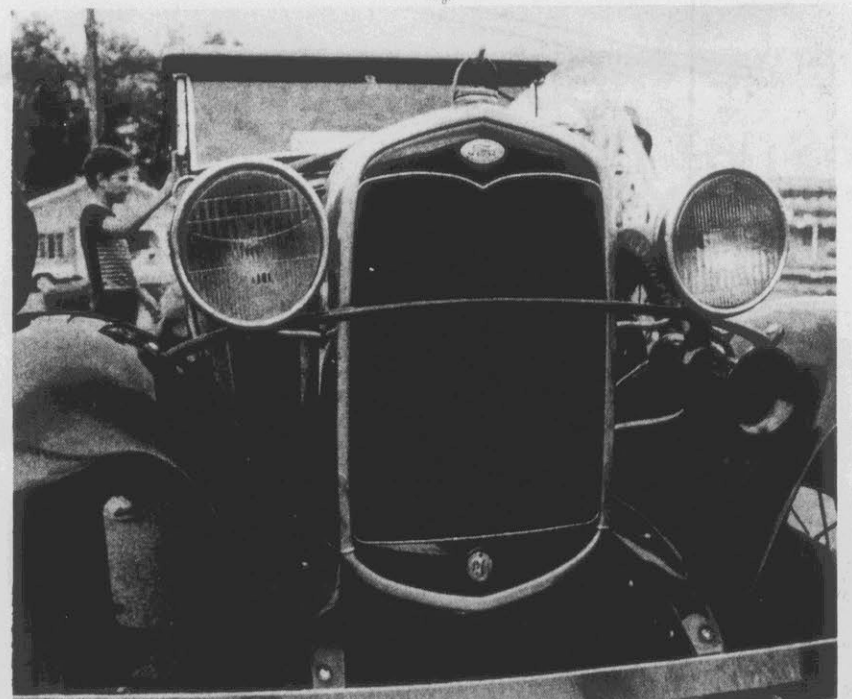

Old Timers' Contests: "Hawg" calling, Tim Allen; log swing, Ed Farrow; wood chopping, Wilton Daniels; corn shucking, Linwood Hooks; egg throwing, Blanie Moye and J. Boswell; and "Bacca" spitting, Jeff Cobb.

Vehicle decorations: best motorized vehicle, Earl Smith; and best horse drawn vehicle, Frank Dunn; and best store display: R. E. Boyd.

Bicentennial night activities included a speaker from the Department of Archives and History, a community chorus, and fireworks.

Annual Spring Rite For Sailors

VICTORY IS SWEET—After nearly an hour of sweat and grease, Dwight E. Crevelt, a 19-year-old U.S. Naval Academy Plebe (freshman) from Las Vegas, Nev., makes it to the top of Herndon Monument aboard the shoulders of his

'Revolution' Is New North Carolina Drama

A new North Carolina outdoor drama will be added to the already established list when Revolution, an open air musical, makes its debut on Tuesday, June 29 in the small fishing port of Southport. Originally conceived as a Bicentennial celebration, the planners now have aspirations for an annual production. Lew Hardee, Jr., a native of Southport and currently an instructor at the American Academy of Dramatic Arts in New York City, composed the score. Ethan Ayer, a writer of New York City and Cambridge, Mass. provided the libretto. Ayer is librettist for an opera, Wings of the Dove, a novel, The Enclosure, and a book of poems. Revolution is based on colonial Tar Heel history relating to Brunswick Town on the banks of the Cape Fear River. The town is now a historic site and was the scene of the first real armed resistance in American to the British Stamp Act, predating the Boston Tea Party by eight years. The outdoor musical will make use of big choruses, ballads, dance and spectacle.

It will be staged in Franklin Square Park in the heart of old Southport, an area preserved from the days of the American Revolution. Efforts are now underway to have an amphitheater constructed on the grounds of Brunswick Town Historic Site where the musical will become an annual event. Revolution will play this summer from June 29 through August 7. Persons desiring more information are to contact: Fonda E. Stephenson, Director of Publicity, "Revolution," Southport, N. C. 28461.

'Dare Days' Event June 6

The North Carolina Symphony, under the baton of Maestro John Goslin, will perform on Sunday, June 6 at "Dare Days," the week-end celebration sponsored by the Dare County Bicentennial. The concert is scheduled for 3:30 Sunday afternoon at the Waterside Theatre in Manteo, an outdoor location which provides a full view of the Outer Banks and the

Wright Brothers Memorial in the distance. Admission to the concert is by patron ticket ($25 reserved seat), adult tickets ($6) or student ticket ($3, through high school). For advance sales, write the Dare County Bicentennial Fund, Post Office Box 759, Manteo, N.C. 27954. Mrs. Marion Fitz-Simons will welcome visitors to the Waterside Theatre, which boasts 1776 seats. Mrs. Fitz-Simons portrays Queen Elizabeth in the outdoor drama, "The Lost Colony," which is presented by the Theatre each summer.

Superstar In PBS Special

David Allan Coe, ex-prisoner turned country-western superstar, is featured in a 90-minute special "The Mysterious Rhinestone Cowboy," Monday, May 31 at 8:30 p.m. on Channel 25, Greenville. "The Mysterious Rhinestone Cowboy" is a combination of performance and documentary film. Coe performs in a studio concert and at outdoor country music fairs. Coe is a poet, singer and songwriter whose songs have been recorded by such artists as Johnny Cash, Tammy Wynette, Leon Russell and Tanya Tucker. His single You Never Even Called Me by Name recently topped the country music charts.

Gun Making At Khyber Pass

By JOHN NEEDHAM DARRA, Pakistan (UPI) — In the village of Darra, where the law is what the tribal chief says it is, the men make guns. They will sell a "fountain pen" gun for 40 Pakistan rupees (about $4), a "walking stick" gun for $10, a Sten gun for $200. Also available are Winchester, Webley .32 caliber revolvers, and double-barreled shotguns. A 20th-century visitor steps back through the centuries as he walks down a narrow street past a half dozen shops where men squat in mud huts and make bullets and cartridges of all sizes to fit the revolvers, pistols and automatic weapons made in shops farther down a narrow alley. Inside a gun-making shop, the only reminder of the industrial revolution is electricity. Two naked light bulbs offer less illumination than the white-hot tools used to shape the metal into barrels. A gunsmith finishes hammering a barrel. Behind him hang portraits of Mohammed Ali Jinnah, founder of Pakistan at the time of partition from India, and Saudi Arabian King Faisal, assassinated last year by a nephew wielding a handgun. "I can make one gun in one-and-a-half days," the tribesman says, speaking through an interpreter. "For a double-barreled gun, it would take me 20 days by myself." Up and down the street outside potential customers are shooting, testing the merchandise and giving the village, 20 miles east of the Khyber Pass, an atmosphere of a town west of the Pecos in America's days of the Old West.

"No customs problems, no law here," he says. "I used to work in the factory until one day I was working on a bullet and it exploded. Now I sell the guns." "The guns are primitive," a guide says. "But, of course, if you shoot it and you hit the man, he is dead." The craftsmen work with meticulous care, even to stamping "Made in China" on a replica of a Chinese machine gun, and copying a serial number onto a Winchester. Darra is in the North West Frontier Province of Pakistan, an area of nearly impassable mountains in the north and desert in the south. The province, bordering Afghanistan, is broken up into settled, merged and tribal areas, where there is some law, little, or none, depending on where you are. Tribesmen do not believe in borders and have long looked on any central government, be it British or Pakistani, the way a mongoose looks on a cobra. The province has long been a trouble spot for Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto's government, based in Islamabad, but officials say in recent years there have been inroads. The government has tried to build roads, hospitals and schools and provide services for the tribesmen without making them think they are losing their independence. The central government moves slowly, though, for the same reason a visitor heeds a warning not to photograph women, who observe purdah and are covered by veils at the rare times they are seen.

The reason for caution is simple. Pathan tribesmen are known for their loyalty to each other, their bravery and ferocity in battle. And every blessed one of them has a rifle slung over his shoulder and a bullet-filled bandolier wrapped around his body. In such a village the prudent man speaks softly.

Hospitality House

Highlights of Kay Currie's "Hospitality House" today are a series of interviews filmed in Philadelphia at the recently held national convention of American Women in Radio and Television. On today's program (WITN-TV, Channel 7, noon until 1 p.m.) Miss Currie will show interviews with Karen Green and Ralph Drew. Ms. Green is a gourmet cook, writer and photographer, author of How To Cook His Goose. Drew, from Wales, is an optical consultant, lecturer and editor of Optical Management. He talks about eyewear, its history, function and fashion. Also on a separate interview, is Bob Craft, three time world deep diving champion. Miss Currie shows underwater film by Craft made near the island of Bonaire in the Netherlands Antilles. Two eastern North Carolinians, Maggie and Bob McLaughan, will show examples of leathercraft; and two Greenville people will also be on today's show. These are Charlie Harrison, a wine connoisseur, and Ernie Negy, chef at Candlewick Inn, who will show how to prepare crab stuffed flounder.

Variety Is Keynote Of Government Press

There's some real surprises among the harvest of books and pamphlets currently offered by the U.S. Government Printing Office to the public at costs ranging from 25 cents for a Householder's Guide to $21.05 for the Dictionary of Mining. Readers with an interest in old cultures and anthropology, for example, will be fascinated by a new dictionary. After 14 years of intensive research and living in a remote Mexican town, Dr. Robert M. Laughlin of the Smithsonian Institution has completed The Great Tzotzil Dictionary of San Lorenzo Zinacantan (598 pps., illustrated, $14.40). In this work, the author traces the roots of Tzotzil, one of 30 Mayan languages spoken today, back to at least 2,200 B.C. Included in the publication is an extensive section on Tzotzil grammar, five fold-out maps and cross referenced word definitions. The Employment of Negro Troops (762 pps., illustrated, $11.45) is another publication covering extensive ground. The book gives a detailed narrative of the changing policies of the U.S. Army toward Negroes during and since World War II. The much discussed Comet Kohoutek (284 pps., illustrated, $3.35) is chronicled in a collection of 42 papers by scientists and deals with the tail, form, structure and evolution of the comet. Food lovers and weight watchers will be interested in a couple of publications in the field of food—Seafood Slimmers (20 pps., illustrated, $1.20); and 'Can-Venient' Ways With Shrimp, 18 new shrimp recipes (16 pps., illustrated, $1.20). Fanciers of sophisticated scientific findings should feel at home with two volumes, both on Hypolimnion Aeration With Commercial Oxygen—(Vol. 1, Dynamics of Bubble Plume, 196 pps., $2.00; and Vol. 2, Bubble Plume Gas Transfer, 151 pps., $1.80). More general in appeal will be And The Band Played On 1776-1976 (54 pps., illustrated, $1.60). A Smithsonian publication, it traces the development of band music from the American Revolution era through the Civil War, on to jazz and swing bands. Photographs include Sousa and his band, a Civil War Band and Duke Ellington at the Randall's Island Jazz Festival. Designed for persons needing more than the usual amount of individual country material found in reference books and atlases, the continuing volumes of Department of Defense "Area Handbook Series" provides complete descriptions of political and cultural institutions of individual countries. Four volumes noted in the current catalogue are Albania (244 pps., illustrated, $4.70); Malawi (372 pps., illustrated, $6.75); Pakistan, (472 pps., illustrated, $7.60); and Guinea, (404 pps., illustrated, $7.00). All are clothbound. A Corps of Engineers group active for over a hundred years is the subject of A History of the Rock Island District Corps of Engineers, 1866-1975. This volume details the history of the unit which has been working since 1866 to improve the channel of the upper Mississippi River. Photographs include ones of flood waters. (188 pps., illustrated, $6.30) Two books on arts are among current offerings. American Prints from Wood (64 pps., illustrated, $3.10) is a pictorial catalog of the traveling exhibition of the Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibition Service, showing woodcuts and wood engravings in American art. Peggy Bacon—Personalities and Places (166 pps., illustrated, $6.25), is a catalog of her paintings prepared in conjunction with a 1975-76 exhibition sponsored by the National Collection of Fine Arts. Any of the books noted here can be ordered from: The Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. Checks, money orders or Government Printing Office are acceptable forms of payment.

Parkway Playhouse Sets Summer Season

Parkway Playhouse, a summer stock theater located in Burnsville, has announced productions to be given in the summer of 1976. The playhouse, now in its 30th year of operation, will open the season on July 7 with a production of Thornton Wilder's Our Town. It will play through July 10.

Other plays scheduled and production dates are:

- Dames at Sea*, July 14-17;
- The Matchmaker*, July 21-24;
- The Glass Menagerie*, July 28-31; and South Pacific, August 4-7 and August 11-14.

Dr. John Joy, an assistant professor of drama and speech at UNC-G is managing director this summer. Assistant director is James Reynolds, an instructor in drama at UNC-G. Dr. David Batcheller of UNC-G will direct one play, The Matchmaker.

A $25,000 grant by the N.C. General Assembly has made it possible to carry out extensive renovations on the playhouse as well as some repairs in the dorms housing drama students appearing in the plays.

Tickets may be ordered by writing to: Parkway Playhouse, Burnsville, N.C. 27412, or by phone (704) 682-6151 after June 18. Before that date, tickets can be ordered from the UNC-G Department of Drama and Speech, Greensboro, N.C. 27412.

Book News

From Sheppard Memorial Library

By LINDA STANCILL

The large print publishing program has been developed to serve two neglected segments of the reading community—people with failing eyesight or a visual handicap that prevents the reading of normal size print, and young people with a reluctance to read or a remedial reading problem.

Among the current titles now available at the library are "how-to" books with valuable information on a wide range of subjects. Gardening books include GREENHOUSE PLANTS by Roy Genders, FOLIAGE PLANTS FOR YOUR GARDEN by Douglas Bartrum, and VEGETABLE GROWING by Fred W. Loads. Hobbies, crafts and pastimes include MISS READ'S COUNTRY COOKING, AQUARIUMS by Anthony Evans, ASTROLOGY—WHAT YOUR STARS FORETELL by Marie Simone, CONTRACT BRIDGE by A.F. Truscott, BRIDGE QUIZ by Ben Cohen, DECORATING CRAFTWORK by Mary Abbott, and PAPER CRAFT by Edward Kitson.

Sybil Leek, the celebrated author who takes a scientific approach to psychic phenomena, has written a comprehensive and fascinating guide to dreams. In THE NIGHT VOYAGERS: YOU AND YOUR DREAMS, she explains the timeless place dreams have occupied for man and shows each of us how to interpret specific dreams and their meaning in our lives.

A SEAL CALLED ANDRE by Harry Goodridge and Lew Dietz is a delightful story as well as an in-depth study of one of the longest relationships between man and any wild marine animal. Andre, a harbor seal, is as comfortable in the Goodridge home as he is in Maine's Penobscot Bay. For Goodridge their friendship means companionship on scuba dives and more. Andre locates and retrieves objects at long distances, navigates his way back to Maine from Boston, and responds to symbols we call language—his playfulness and intelligence are remarkable and fascinating.

Among the large print fiction is Victoria Holt's newest novel of romantic suspense, LORD OF THE FAR ISLAND. Ellen Kellaway is living on the charity of wealthy cousins in turn-of-the-century London until the son of a rich and prominent family asks for her hand in marriage. Her future happiness now seems assured, yet a presentiment of doom returns again and again to haunt her. Ellen goes to Far Island, the ancient home of the Kellaways, and finds a past more powerful than the present that draws her into the web of its long lost secrets.

Evelyn Anthony presents a spellbinding tale of romantic suspense and international intrigue in THE PERSIAN PRICE. Eileen Fields receives an unexpected summons to Teheran where her husband is conducting crucial oil negotiations with the Shah. There she faces the revelation that he is in love with another woman. She returns to London where she is abducted by Arab terrorists. The price of her life is her husband's withdrawal from negotiations with the Shah. He faces the most agonizing decision of his life—a wife he no longer loves or the oil industry coup of the century.

Writer's Workshop Set

Professional and amateur writers from nine Southeastern states will be gathering at Epworth-by-the-Sea, St. Simons Is., Ga., June 20-27. Workshops in fiction, non-fiction, juvenile, poetry, and inspiration are scheduled Monday through Saturday. Panels and seminars in marketing, agents, research, humor, photography, newspaper and confession magazines will be held in the evenings. The awards dinner will be on Friday, June 25. Mrs. Jos. E. Buffington, 393 S. Coconut Palm Blvd., Tavernier Fla., 33070 is Executive Secretary and should be contacted for additional information. Ben C. Bailey, Atlanta is Director of Southeastern Writers Ass'n. Inc.

Those conducting workshops will be Dr. Robert I. Strozier, Armstrong College, Savannah; poetry; Guy Owen, poet and novelist, N.C. State, Raleigh, fiction; Robert C. Hill, Editor, "Christian Review Magazine", inspiration; Mindy M. Wyatt, Marion, N.C., juvenile; and M'Nelle Causey, Athens, Ga., non-fiction. Historical Research will be conducted by Mary Clarke Gowing, Waynesboro, Va.

and Kathleen Tavel, University of Georgia. Gothic and historical novel, Frances Patton; poetry panels include Doras Reed Benbow and Eugene V. Ellis, Atlanta; Emily Vail, Athens, Ga. Nopi Barnard, Augusta, Ga. and Deane Ritch Lomax, Charlotte.

Humor, Runa Ware, Augusta; foreign rights, Betty Carlson, Huemoz, Switzerland; college quarterlies, Warren C. Miller, Winter Park, Fla.; photography, Wendell D. Metzger; freelancing, Dorothy Kress and Elise Permar, St. Simons Is.; confessions, Eleanor Robins, Lithonia, Ga.

An exhibit space will be provided for those who wish to display and autograph books. Details of needs should be sent early to Mrs. Buffington.

Five Films For Children

The story of two eight-year old girls, Selena, a black girl, and Gabrielle, a white girl, who change places in their homes is the subject of one of five films being showing during the coming week in the children's films series of the city libraries. The title of the film is Gabrielle and Selena.

The other films to be shown are The Camel Who Took A Walk; Legend of Sleepy Hollow, The Red Balloon, and Lee Suzuki-Home In Hawaii.

Show times are: Carver Library, Tuesday, 4 p.m.; Sheppard Library, Thursday, 7 p.m., and East Branch Library, Friday, 4 p.m.

Bear Grass Students Get Top Awards For Movie

"THE OTHER SIDE OF THE RIVER"... a film project by members of The Skewarkians of Bear Grass School, received two joint first place awards in the 15th annual North Carolina Tar Heel Junior Historian Contest. (Photo courtesy N.C. Div. of Archives and History)

Students in Bear Grass School in Martin County have received two joint first place awards in the 15th annual North Carolina Tar Heel Junior Historian Contest. More than 400 junior high school students and their advisors from all parts of the state attended the event recently held in Raleigh. In the "Group Arts" category, The Skewarkians of Bear Grass School and the Yadkinville Tarheel Junior Historians shared first place in that category. An original movie, The Other Side of the River, based on the Tuscarora Indians, was the winning entry for the Bear Grass juniors. Yadkinville's entry was the Lost Art of Tobacco Basket Making.

The Skewarkians also received a joint first place award in the "Group Literary" category. This award was for the same project that earned them the award in the "Group Arts" category. Sharing first place with Bear Grass is the Company Shops Historians of Turrentine Middle School in Burlington for North Carolina in Ballads.

Mrs. Elizabeth Roberson is the adviser for The Skewarkians Club of the Bear Grass School.

Other North Carolina schools receiving winner awards were those in Albemarle, Belmont, Eden, Edenton, Garland, Kanapolis, Lucama, Raleigh, Sanford, and Wilson.

Griffey, Morgan Carry Cincy To Victory

CINCINNATI (AP) — It seemed they were reading my mind," said Los Angeles reliever Mike Marshall, who was battered by the Cincinnati Reds for the second straight game Saturday.

"Sometimes a hitter is better than you are no matter how good you are," Marshall said after the Reds rallied for three runs in the bottom of the ninth to down the Dodgers 6-5 and move back into first place in the National League's West Division.

Joe Morgan, despite an ailing back, drove in the winning run for the second straight day with a two-out single that put the Reds five percentage points in front of Los Angeles.

"That's the way it used to be—and that's the way it will be," added the All-Star second baseman. "We're ready to roll. We are getting our momentum together."

"I had something to prove. I felt I needed to do something after going hitless at Los Angeles two weeks ago when my back first started bothering me."

The Reds had roughed up Marshall for four runs in one inning Friday night and wasted no time in getting to him Saturday.

"Any time he gets on the mound we do our best to beat him," said Ken Griffey, who tripled home the tying run and then scored on Morgan's single.

"That's the way we feel about him. He does a lot of talking."

The nationally televised triumph also lifted the Reds back into first place in the National League's West Division, five percentage points ahead of the Dodgers, who have dropped four of their last five games.

Los Angeles starter Rick

Rhoden had settled down after falling behind 2-0 in the first inning but was relieved by Marshall, 3-2, after Dave Concepcion opened the ninth with a single, the 10th hit off Rhoden.

Cesar Geronimo greeted Marshall with a single and pinch hitter Ed Armbrister sacrificed. Concepcion scored on Pete Rose's infield out but Griffey tripled off the wall in right-center and scored on Morgan's single to center.

Tony Perez started Cincinnati's comeback with a solo homer in the eighth that made it a 5-3 ballgame.

Bill Russell's bases-loaded single helped the Dodgers erase Cincinnati's early lead with three runs in the second inning.

Joe Ferguson beat out an infield hit, Dusty Baker walked, Steve Yeager was hit by a pitch and Russell tied it up with a two-run single off Jack Billingham. After Rhoden's sacrifice, Dave Lopes' sacrifice fly scored the go-ahead run.

The Dodgers added a run in the fourth on Steve Garvey's solo homer and made it 5-2 in the fourth when Bill Buckner tripled home Russell, who had singled.

Cincinnati jumped to a 2-0 lead in the first inning when Griffey walked, stole second and scored on Morgan's double. George Foster, the National League's RBI leader, tripled home Morgan to extend his RBI streak to eight games, three short of Mel Ott's league record. Foster has driven in 19 runs in the last eight games while batting .500.

Rhoden, who tossed a three-hit shutout in his last start against Cincinnati, blanked the Reds from the first inning until Perez' homer in the eighth.

Monday Helps Cubs Take Saturday Win

CHICAGO (AP) — Rick Monday's tie-breaking three-run homer with two out in the seventh inning lifted the Chicago Cubs to a 4-1 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates Saturday and stretched their winning streak to three games.

After two were out in the seventh, Mick Kelleher and pinch hitter Champ Summers singled before Monday unloaded his ninth home run of the season into the left field bleachers off loser Bruce Kison, 3-4.

The Cubs scored their first run in the first inning on a single by Jose Cardenal and a double by Bill Madlock, who has doubled in each of the last five games.

The Pirates tied it in the second on a pair of walks and a run-scoring single by Frank Taveras before winner Bill Bonham, 3-2, and Kison settled down to a pitching duel which was shattered by Monday's first home run since May 16.

Oscar Zamora worked the final two innings for Chicago to earn his first save of the season.

Rutherford, Unser Have Things To Prove In Running Of Indy 500

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — For Johnny Rutherford, it's a chance to prove that he was cheated a year ago. For Bobby Unser, it's a chance to prove that he wasn't.

Last year, the Indianapolis 500-mile auto race became the Indianapolis 435, marked down for one day only by a sudden thunderstorm that turned the sleek racers into helpless hydroplaning hunks of metal which fishtailed their way along Indy's banked 2.5-mile track.

Rutherford was running first in the 1975 Memorial Day classic when he decided to pull into the pits for a little shot of gasoline. When he pulled back out, he was second to Unser—and he was left there shortly thereafter when the rains came.

Rutherford insisted, not without some justification, that he could have won that race (it would have been his second triumph here) if the track hadn't been reduced to a wading pool. And Unser agreed that luck as well as skill had brought him his second Indy victory and the accompanying $214,031 in total prize money.

Rutherford, who settled for the $97,886 runnerup purse, set out with a vengeance to prove he deserves to be No. 1 this year. He qualified his Drake-Offenhauser in the pole position with a speed of 188.957 miles an hour while Unser had to settle for the 12th position, outside the fourth row, in the 33-car field, qualifying his Eagle Drake-Offy at 187.520 m.p.h.

The mammoth spectacle which annually attracts hundreds of thousands of race fans and revelers to this sprawling monument to speed is, of course, anything but a two-man race. There are 31 other drivers, some new to this sort of madness and some grizzled veterans, out to dethrone Unser.

There's Al Unser, like his brother, Bobby, a two-time winner (1970-71) but a distant also-ran since finishing second in 1972. He's starting on the inside of the second row.

There's Gordon Johncock, starting next to Rutherford in the first row. He was the winner of the rain-shortened 1973 race, the last disastrous Indy. It was a year in which Art Pollard was killed in practice, in which Salt Walther was critically burned in a multi-car crash that aborted the race on one day, in which Swede Savage was killed in a flaming crash during the race and a crewman was killed by a truck racing to Savage's rescue.

Games Washed Out

Saturday morning's rains forced the cancellation of several baseball games in both the Babe Ruth and Senior Babe Ruth leagues.

All games in the Prep League and 14-15 League were washed out as were the Senior league's games scheduled for last night. No dates for making the games up have been set.

Union Carbide scored three runs in the top of the sixth then held off a Coca-Cola rally in the bottom of the frame to preserve a 7-6 win over Coke, Saturday.

Union Carbide had taken the lead with three in the first and added one in the fourth for a 4-0 lead. Coke, however, rallied for the tying run in the last of the fourth only to see UC get it back with three runs in the sixth. Coke got two before dying in the sixth.

Chris Joyner won the game in relief for Union Carbide striking out two of the last three batters. Jeff Camp was the loser in relief.

Union Carbide got started with a single in the first by Greg Wright. Singles by Dwayne Fischer and Joyner drove him across and a hit by Vince Hankins scored the other two runners.

Tigers Claw Yankees, 4-1

DETROIT (AP) — Dave Roberts fired a three-hitter and Jason Thompson and John Wockenfuss slammed home runs as the Detroit Tigers beat the New York Yankees 4-1 Saturday.

Roberts, 4-3, gave up only an infield single to Willie Randolph in the third inning, a bunt single to Mickey Rivers in the sixth and a double by Rivers in the ninth. The Yankees broke through for their only run in the ninth on Thurman Munson's RBI homer.

Willie Horton, back in the Detroit lineup after being out for a few games with an injured heel, staked Roberts to a 1-0 lead in the opening inning with a 420-foot sacrifice fly.

Rookie Thompson slugged his homer in the sixth after a walk to Horton and a forceout. Then Wockenfuss opened the seventh with his home run off Dock Ellis, 4-3.

Oakland Eases Past Chisox

OAKLAND (AP) — Left-hander Vida Blue pitched a five-hitter as the Oakland A's defeated the Chicago White Sox 2-0 Saturday for their fifth victory in six games.

Blue, 5-5, struck out four and walked one.

The A's scored in the second inning on a walk to Sal Bando and a double by Phil Garner. They got their other run in the sixth on a single by Bill North, a stolen base, a sacrifice by Bert Campaneris and a single by Don Baylor.

Losing pitcher Terry Forster gave up only six hits. The A's had runners on base in every inning except the eighth.

Blue, pitching his first shut-out of the season, extended Chicago's string of scoreless innings to 21. Only three Chicago runners got as far as second base.

Lemar Johnson doubled for the first hit off Blue in the fourth inning but Jim Spencer flied out to end the inning.

Ralph Garr doubled with one out in the sixth but Blue retired Bucky Dent and Johnson on fly balls. George Orta doubled with two out in the seventh but Buddy Bradford took a called third strike to end that threat.

Baker Shooting For Fourth World 600 Win

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — While Janet Guthrie attracted most of the attention here last week by becoming the first woman to qualify for a major stock car race, Buddy Baker was quietly preparing for what he hopes will be his unprecedented fourth World 600 victory.

A victory Sunday also could give the 35-year-old Charlotte native a membership in the exclusive NASCAR million dollar club, which has only four members — Richard Petty, David Pearson, Bobby Allison and Cale Yarborough.

Any member of this select group could win the 17th annual 600-mile race over the 1.5-mile Charlotte Motor Speedway, although Pearson's Mercury appears to be a slight favorite by virtue of his 159.132 miles per hour qualifying speed which won him the pole position.

Petty will start beside Pearson in the $249,155 race after qualifying at 158.702 m.p.h.

Yarborough qualified at 157.968 for the third spot, followed in order by Allison's 157.659, Dave Marcis at 157.650 and Baker at 157.114.

"The money part I never look at until the end of the season," Baker remarked when asked if the possibility of pushing his winnings to $1 million would influence his plans for Sunday's race.

"I think in your hometown you don't need much incentive when you're in front of the people you see every day," said Baker, whose career winnings total $971,700. "I think that's enough incentive. I run my car as well as I can each race, and just being close to a million dollars doesn't enter the picture.

"I'd like to make it where I would be a five-time winner at my home track."

The 220-pound, 6-5 Baker, who looks more like a football player than a driver who thrives on speeds approaching 200 miles an hour on super-speedways, is the only driver to win three World 600s.

He has won one National 500 here for a total of four victories at the Charlotte track, a feat matched only by Fred Lorenzen, who won two 600s and two 500s.

Baker, who drives a Ford prepared by Bud Moore, has run 406 assorted races during his career and last year was his best for earnings — $169,971.

Like many drivers here, Baker is not bothered by Miss Guthrie's appearance in the 600.

"Her being a girl has no bearing on my consideration of her as a driver, because I know a lot of women that are great drivers. I think my mother at one time would have made a great driver," said Baker, whose father, Buck Baker, was one of the pioneers in the stock car sport.

As for Miss Guthrie, Baker added, "You know, the thing about her being a girl is blown away out of perspective. If she's doing what she wants to, then that ought to be good enough for everybody else."

The senior Baker is attempting to make a comeback at the age of 57 after a three-year absence from racing. However, he failed to qualify for the 600 with a speed of 151.141 in a Chevrolet.

He was among the last to be bumped from the 40-car field.

First place in Sunday's race would net the younger Baker $26,240, plus an assortment of bonuses for leading at various stages of the event.

The winnings easily would push his career earnings past the million-dollar mark.

A crowd of more than 100,000 was predicted for the World 600, which starts at 12:30 p.m.

Summer League Opening 6th Season With Two New Teams

The North Carolina Collegiate Summer Baseball League will open its sixth season Saturday with all of this year's teams in action.

East Carolina University will host Methodist College at Harrington Field at 7:30 p.m. in the first of 42 games scheduled for the regular season. In other contests, the University of North Carolina will host Campbell College; UNC-Wilmington travels to Louisiana and in a battle of newcomers, Elon will be at Atlantic Christian.

Carolina will be looking to defend its regular season crown of a year ago, and once again will be coached by Mike Roberts. UNC-Wilmington was the victor in last year's tournament and will be joined by East Carolina, Methodist and Louisiana as the teams remaining from last year's exciting season. Newcomers to the race this season are Campbell College, back after a one-year absence, and for the first time, Elon and Atlantic Christian are present.

An added bit of summer excitement has been added to the 1976 format. During the month of June, the head coaches will pick an all-star team to face the league leaders in a July 5 contest to be held at Fleming Field in Wilson. The game will be co-sponsored by the Wilson Hot Stove League and the summer league.

East Carolina will mark the debut of head coach Monte Little with Saturday's opener. Little was named to the position recently after the resignation of George Williams, who piloted the Pirates for the past three regular seasons and last year's summer season.

The 1976 playoffs will be held at the home of the team champion of the regular season.

Tickets for East Carolina's 21-game home season are on sale. For information, contact Jim Mallory, Dean of Men, East Carolina University or Monte Little.

June 5—Methodist; 6 at Louisiana; 8 at ACC; 9 at UNC-W; 10 Elon; 11 Campbell; 12 at Elon (2); 16 at Campbell (2); 17 UNC; 18 at Campbell; 24 UNC; 26 at Methodist; 27 at Louisiana (2); 29 Campbell.

Maltbie Scratches Out 70 For Memorial Golf Lead

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — Roger Maltbie, occasionally tip-toeing gingerly in his bare feet from knee-deep rough, scrambled out of assorted problems and perils with a hard-won 70 that enabled him to establish a two stroke lead Saturday in the third round of the new, $200,000 Memorial Golf Tournament.

Maltbie, a 25-year-old tour sophomore, survived the menacing monster that is Muirfield despite his intimate acquaintance with the woods and water, traps and trees that characterized the 7,072 yards of Ohio countryside that Jack Nicklaus designed and constructed into the Muirfield Village Golf Club course.

The mustachioed Maltbie, a two-time winner as the 1975 rookie of the year, broke into a happy, high-stepping victory dance after his minor miracle of a par on the 18th hole put him through three rounds with a 212 total, four under par on what has proved to be the most difficult, most treacherous course the touring pros encounter all year.

It wasn't easy.

He had it four under par for the day at one point—then bogeyed three in a row. He lost three shots to Rod Funseth on the 15th hole. But he came right back with a birdie on the 17th then contrived a bare-foot par on the 18th. His tee shot got into knee-deep weeds in the creek. He shed shoes and socks, went after it on tip-toes, played his next down the fairway, chipped on and dropped a 10-foot putt for par that left him in command.

"I was extremely fortunate to get out of that one," he said.

Don Bies managed a one-under-par 71 that left him in second at 214. Funseth was the only other man in subpar figures after 54 holes of this tournament that seems destined to become one of golf's classic events. He had a wildly erratic 72 that included four birdies, an eagle, four bogeys, a double bogey and eight pars. He was one under at 215.

Jerry McGee and Alan Tapie were at par 216. McGee matched par 72 and Tapie shot 71.

Some of the game's great players fell victim to the subtle terrors that make up this course.

For example, there was Johnny Miller, slashing and hacking his way to a 44 on the back nine. He stumbled wearily home on the course he calls "scary," with a 79 and a 225 total.

For example, there was Jack Nicklaus, the greatest player of his era, the founder of this tournament, builder of the course. He had it three under for the day and was moving at the leaders when he chose to challenge the par-three 12th, where the pin was tucked to the left front, near the lake.

Nicklaus popped one in the water. He reloaded and fired again, but the result was the same. On his third try he got it on dry land—but well off the green. He chipped down to about 10-12 feet and dropped that difficult putt for a quadruple bogey seven. He walked off with a resigned shrug of the shoulders and a wry smile. It led to a 73 and a 219 total.

Johnson, Osman Lead Winners

HOLLYWOOD—D.H. Conley wrestler James Johnson and East Carolina's Paul Osman both won first places in a United States Wrestling Federation tournament held at D.H. Conley High School Saturday.

Johnson took firsts in the heavyweight class of the junior division and then added a win in the 198-pound class of the open division.

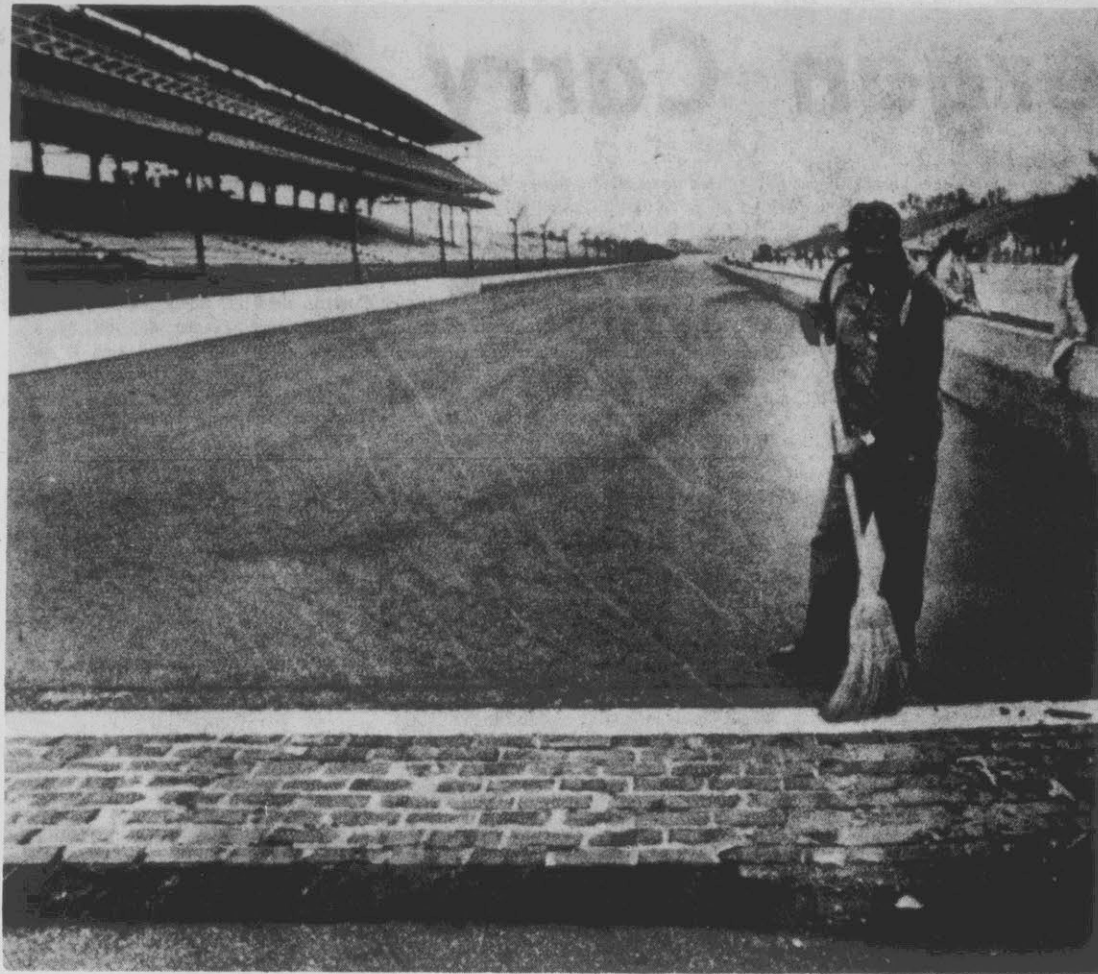

Osman took firsts at 149½ and 163 in the open class.

The tournament attracted wrestlers from as far south as Jacksonville and as far west as Charlotte.

Junior Division

Exchange Rallies For Win Over Moose

Exchange scored the runs in the bottom of the seventh to down the Moose, 4-3 and move into a tie for first place in the Tar Heel Little League.

Exchange is now 6-2 as is Big Value. The Moose fall off to 3-5.

Moose scored twice in the second when Carl Woodworth reached on an outfield error. Kosta Maurakis had reached on an error and Billy Godley had singled.

Exchange tied the game in the sixth. Timmy Norris singled and Roderick Harrell doubled. Frank Norris doubled in both runners.

Billy Stancill stole home in the Moose seventh giving the Moose a 3-2 lead but Billy Bost singled and Gordon Douglas walked in the bottom of the frame. Timmy Norris reached on an error scoring Bost and Harrell on a fielder's choice scoring Douglas.

Guthrie Absent From Indy Field

There are names like Vern Schuppan, Billy Scott, Al Loquasto and Spike Gelhausen, rookies in this race. Schuppan was the best of them in qualifying, slipping into the middle of the sixth row.

Noticeably absent from the field is Janet Guthrie, who smashed down Indy's sexual barriers simply by becoming the first woman ever to make an official run on this ancient track.

She did it a few weeks ago, passing her driving test with flying colors, a step that enabled her to qualify for this 60th annual Indy 500. But in qualification runs, her car let her down.

Foyt, in a gallant display of chivalry, loaned Janet his backup car, just to see what she was capable of doing with a truly sound machine. What she did was register better than 181 m.p.h., a speed which most certainly would have made her the first woman ever to start an Indy 500.

But since Foyt's car was only loaned to her for that "Let's see what she's made of" run and not for qualifying—and since her own machine was woefully inadequate, she failed to make the field. Instead, her performance earned her an invitation to compete in Sunday's World 600 in Charlotte, N.C.

Above all, though, are the fans—the swarming mass of humanity which sandwiches itself into the more than 250,000 seats. And they're only a part of the crowd.

There are names like Billy Vukovich and Gary Bettenhausen, names which exhume the ghosts of racers past. Each one's father was a racer here and each one died in flaming wrecks.

There are names like Carter and Johnny Parsons, whose fathers also raced here but who survived to retire and still prowl around this old brickyard each race day, reliving old memories.

Burfeindt Takes Lead

By IRA MILLER
 UPI Sports Writer
 TOWSON, Md. (UPI) — Betty Burfeindt matched par with a 73 on a miserable, rainy day, swept past the faltering leaders and took over a one-stroke third round lead Saturday in the LPGA championship.

Burfeindt, a 30-year-old New York native who has not won a tournament since 1973, sank a five-foot uphill putt on the soaked 18th green and had a 54-hole total of 216, three under.

Judy Rankin, the leading moneymaker on this year's LPGA tour and a winner of three tournaments, slipped into second place with a three-under-par 70 for a 217 total.

"On 18, I was lucky to make par," Burfeindt said. "It was raining so hard by the time we got there the club came out of my hand on one shot. And the green was unplayable."

Burfeindt was in the next-to-last group and teed off just about when the rain began falling around noontime. It began falling harder through the cold, windy, dark afternoon but play never had to be held up.

"Under these conditions you just have to bear down and accept the fact that it is wet," said Burfeindt, whose best finish in 11 starts this year was a second place at the rich Whinner's Circle tournament.

Paschal Places In Meet

RALEIGH—Rose High's Doug Paschal was the only member of the Rampant track team to place in the state track meet held here Friday taking a fourth in the discus.

Paschal hurled the discus 158 feet but it was good only for fourth. He had two good tosses in his first two attempts in the shot but scratched both times. His last try was way short.

William Joyner, ruining in the 220 failed to place as did the Rose 880-relay team. The race was run under different rules and the Rampants had trouble with their exchanges.

Farmville Central's Rufus Mayo also failed to place in the long jump.

Charlotte's Independence High School won the team title. Two state records were set, one in the triple jump by Wilson Fike's Artis and one in the 440 by New Bern.

Neikro Homer Gets 4-3 Win

By ED SHEARER
 AP Sports Writer
 ATLANTA (AP) — Houston pitcher Joe Neikro smashed a home run off his brother Phil as the Astros edged the Atlanta Braves 4-3 Saturday night.

It wasn't known whether it was the first time a major leaguer had homered off his brother, but it was the first home run of Joe Neikro's career.

The solo blast over the left-field fence in the seventh inning gave Houston a 2-2 tie and the Astros broke on top 4-2 in the eighth.

Cesar Cedeno started the rally with a walk and scored on a double by Jose Cruz. Ken Boswell got his third single of the game, scoring Cruz.

Atlanta cut into the margin in its half of the eighth when Jim Wynn smashed his fifth home run of the season.

The Braves scored two unearned runs in the first inning, taking advantage of two errors by first baseman Bob Watson, a passed ball and a wild pitch.

Houston's first run also was unearned. It came in the second inning when Cruz scored on an error by Atlanta first baseman Darrell Evans, who dropped a pickoff throw.

The victory for Joe Neikro, 3-5, gave him a 3-2 edge in head-to-head competition with his brother. Phil's record fell to 3-4.

BEAR GRASS—Manteo scored an unearned run in the top of the fourth and added two more earned runs in the sixth to beat Bear Grass, 5-2, eliminating the Bears from the State 1-A baseball playoffs, Friday.

Manteo got a pair of runs in the first and the one in the fourth proved to be the winner as Bear Grass got its two in the bottom of the fourth.

Keen was the winning pitcher, Ray Wynne the loser for the Bears.

A single and two walks loaded the bases for Manteo in the first and an error scored two runs.

Roberts doubled opening the fourth for Manteo and another Bear error scored him.

Danny Peaks tripled in the bottom of the frame and scored on a fielder's choice by Alton Craft. Richard Knox was hit by a pitch and a sacrifice scored Craft.

Manteo got the runs back in the sixth on a two-run single by Heroux.

Hughes Two-Hits Texas For Win

BLOOMINGTON (AP) — Two-run seventh finished Texas Minnesota's Jim Hughes stopped Texas on two hits Saturday and snapped a personal six-game losing streak with a 5-1 victory over the Rangers.

Hughes, 1-5, lost his bid for a no-hitter with two out in the seventh when Minnesota right fielder Dan Ford misjudged Tom Grieve's fly ball and it sailed over his head for a double.

The 24-year old Minnesota right-hander lost his final outing last year and dropped five straight games this season. He lost his shutout on Jeff Burroughs' run-scoring double play grounder in the ninth.

Hughes, who was 16-14 last year as a rookie, fanned six and walked three.

Steve Braun singled in Rod Carew in the first inning and the Twins added a pair of runs in each of the seventh and eighth innings. Minnesota's

Planters Bank, NCNB Take Opening Wins

Two runs scoring on a dropped fly ball in the bottom of the eighth gave Planter's Bank a 7-6 win over Pepsi-Cola and Joey Mathies singled home the winner in North Carolina National Bank's 3-2 win over College View in the Babe Ruth League openers for the teams Friday night.

Mathies helped himself with the RBI. He went all the way on the mound for NCNB striking out 13 and walking seven. Lindsey Winstead was the loser.

College View scored first when H.L. Austin came in on a wild pitch. College View made it 2-0 in the fourth as Marshall Crumpler scored on a bases loaded walk to Austin.

But NCNB began to come back in the sixth. Mathies singled, stole second and scored when Mike Campbell reached on an error.

In the seventh, Don McGlohn reached on fielder's choice as did Mark Shank. Cliff Fearington walked and an error scored McGlohn. Mathies singled home Shank.

College View loaded the bases in the bottom of the inning but failed to score.

Mathies had three hits and McGlohn two for NCNB.

Pepsi scored first in the second game getting a run on an out in the first inning. Planter's came back in the bottom of the second to take the lead on a run-scoring double by Roger Clemons. Clemons scored on a wild pitch.

Bob Morehead singled and scored in the third when Calvin Parker reached on an error tying the game, 2-2, but Planters' rallied for four to regain the lead. William Sneed walked and Campbell singled him to third. Two outs later, Calvin Jones walked and a single by Clemons scored Sneed and Campbell. Jim Kernan drew a walk Miccah Dixon singled to drive in Jones. Clemons scored on a wild pitch.

Pepsi picked up a run in the fourth as Randy Lorimer scored on a throwing error and Will Sanderson's score on an out in the fifth cut the lead to 6-4.

Calvin Parker led off the seventh with a triple and scored on a hit by Al Shackelford. Mike Norfleet singled and walks to Lorimer, Ashley Taylor and Todd Galloway forced in the tying run.

Marty Worthing singled and scored on Parker's double in the eighth giving Pepsi the lead, 7-6. But Planter's got a single from Dixon and Sneed walked. Mac Stocks was intentionally walked. Holley bloomed a hit into right which was dropped scoring Dixon and Sneed with the winners.

Parker had three hits, Worthington and Bob Morehead two each for Pepsi and Dixon, Clemons and Campbell two each for Planter's.

Woods Pitches Jaycees To Rout Of Kiwanis

Brian Hill's lead-off single in the second was the only hit Kiwanis got off Danny Woods as Woods pitched the Jaycees to a 22-0, one-hit shutout Friday.

The win kept the Jaycees a game out of first place behind the Optimist.

The Jaycees got a pair in the first as Chuck Coggins and Jim Swinson walked forcing in both rallies. Passed balls scored two runners in the second for a 4-0 lead then in the third, the Jaycees exploded for 11 runs. Three straight walks loaded the bases and a hit by Greg Claud scored two. Mark Harris singled in a run and Scott Johnson doubled. Mike Pollard followed with a third RBI double and Swinson and Woods rounded out the scoring with RBI singles.

Three more came over in the fourth and four in the fifth.

Pope had four hits, Woods, Pollard and Johnson two each for the winners.

Chicod Beats Grifton

GRIFTON—Chicod rallied for eight in the fourth and went on to beat Grifton, 16-11 in the Pitt County Babe Ruth League Friday night.

Louie Dixon won the game for Chicod but had to get help from Carl Arnold to preserve the win. Wayne Jones was the loser.

Arnold led the winners with three hits including a triple and a double, Mike Edens, Curtis Spencer, Jesse Carmon and Dixon all had two hits each. Ed Coley and Corkey Teachy had two each for Grifton while Jay Phillips had a homer.

Chicod is now 1-0, Grifton 1-1.

Farmville Gets Second

FARMVILLE—Farmville beat Grifton, 6-4, in a Pitt County Babe Ruth league game Friday for its second win. Eugene Joyner was the winning pitcher. Phillip Gordon had three hits and Joyner two for Farmville. Wayne Newton had three for Grifton.

Umbarger Gets Plenty Of Help In 4-3 Victory Over Minnesota

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

Texas Rangers pitcher Jim Umbarger was well aware that his eight-hit, 4-0 triumph over the Minnesota Twins could just as easily have been an 11-hit, 4-3 squeaker.

"Three balls they hit would have been out of here last year," said the Texas left-hander, properly thankful to the men who moved the fences back at Bloomington's Metropolitan Stadium during the off-season. "I had some help."

The help came from a number of Rangers players. Jeff Burroughs cracked a three-run, first-inning home run to give Umbarger all the runs he needed, then the Texas defense took over to help their pitcher record the team's third consecutive victory.

"The defense was great," said Rangers Manager Frank Lucchesi. "There was no way I was going to take him (Umbarger) out if they didn't get any runs."

Minnesota didn't get any through some dazzling plays. Texas left fielder Tom Grieve cut down Craig Kusick at the plate after a single by Steve Brye in the fourth and later tracked down two well-hit balls that would have been out of the stadium last year.

Third baseman Roy Howell and shortstop Toby Harrah also turned in solid defensive plays which boosted Umbarger's record to 5-3, extended his string of scoreless innings to 14 and kept the Rangers within one-half game of the Kansas City Royals in the American League's West Division.

Elsewhere in AL action, Oakland blasted Chicago 11-0, Kansas City blanked California 3-0, New York snapped Ron LeFlore's hitting streak at 30 games while downing Detroit 9-5, Baltimore topped Boston 4-1, and the Cleveland-Milwaukee game was rained out.

Bies stumbled to a 75 while Funseth shot the best round of the tournament, a spectacular 67 that included only 31 strokes on the back nine.

Jerry McGee and Ed Sneed were at par 144, McGee after a 73, Sneed with a second-round 71.

Nicklaus, the driving force behind his lifetime dream tournament, the man who designed and built the Muirfield course that has drawn lavish praise and vast respect from the players, fell victim to his own creation. He had to work hard for a 75 that left him five shots back at 146.

"It wasn't easy," sighed Jack after his five-hour trek through the woods and bunkers.

Dodgers Pay For Morgan's Absence

Joe Morgan spent a bad week out of the Cincinnati Reds' lineup and made the Los Angeles Dodgers pay for it.

Leaders Have Different Views

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — Hubert Green and Roger Maltbie, the leaders through two rounds of Jack Nicklaus' new creation, the $200,000 Memorial Golf Tournament, have diametrically opposed views on the way to play the murderously-tough Muirfield Village layout.

"Sure I have a strategy," said the chipper Maltbie, the 1975 rookie of the year.

"Play it chicken. Just try to keep it on the short grass."

No way, said Hubert.

"Attack it," he said. "This course is gonna get you sooner or later. You might as well get going before it instead of laying back."

Green's bold approach has produced 13 birdies—five of them in Friday's second round—through the first 36 holes of this event that seems to be destined to become one of golf's classics. His leading 141 total, however, is only three under par. He's also been saddled with six bogeys and two double bogeys. Green scrambled and struggled to a round of par 72 in the chilly, blustery winds and occasional drizzling rain Friday.

"On this course you're gonna make some bogeys and double bogeys," shrugged the lanky guy who reeled off three consecutive victories earlier this season. "All you can do is shake your head and go on to the next hole."

Elsewhere in the National League, the Philadelphia Phillies beat the Montreal Expos 10-3; the St. Louis Cardinals blanked the New York Mets 6-0 and the San Francisco Giants stopped the San Diego Padres 5-0. Two games were rained out: Pittsburgh at Chicago and Houston at Atlanta.

George Foster also slammed a three-run homer as Cincinnati pounded Don Sutton and Mike Marshall for 12 hits. The victory moved the Reds within one game of the Dodgers in the National League West.

Back in action despite lingering back spasms, Morgan hurt the Dodgers with a three-run homer as the Reds took a 9-0 decision Friday night in the opener of their big four-game series at Riverfront Stadium.

"You can't sit around on this club, they'll drive you crazy," said Morgan. "In Los Angeles, I let a couple of balls go through my legs. The next day Pete Rose and Tony Perez put a waste basket in front of my locker."

The Dodgers are the team that Morgan loves to hate-and loves to hit as well.

"It's more fun to play the Los Angeles Dodgers," says Cincinnati's Most Valuable Player. "Some games are like a World Series."

Friday night's game was a virtual World Series for rookie Pat Zachry, too. He tamed the Dodgers on five hits.

"I had so much adrenalin I had to calm myself down," said Zachry. "The energy was there. It was just a matter of whether the ability was."

Elsewhere in the National League, the Philadelphia Phillies beat the Montreal Expos 10-3; the St. Louis Cardinals blanked the New York Mets 6-0 and the San Francisco Giants stopped the San Diego Padres 5-0. Two games were rained out: Pittsburgh at Chicago and Houston at Atlanta.

George Foster also slammed a three-run homer as Cincinnati pounded Don Sutton and Mike Marshall for 12 hits. The victory moved the Reds within one game of the Dodgers in the National League West.

Phillies 10, Expos 3
Dave Cash and Mike Schmidt each drove in two runs and Ron Reed pitched five innings of effective relief as Philadelphia beat Montreal for its 14th victory in 17 games. Reed came in with two on in the fifth, retired three batters in a row and went on to earn his third victory by allowing two hits, striking out one and walking none.

Close friends Don Bies, the first round leader, and Rod Dunseth were at 143 and were

Cardinals 6, Mets 0
Willie Crawford's grand slam and a two-run homer by Bake McBride backed a three-hit performance by John Curtis and powered St. Louis over New York. Curtis, who pitched a one-hitter against San Diego in 1974, hurled hitless ball until Dave Kingman stroked a ground single to left leading off the seventh. Two outs later, Roy Staiger lined a single to left but Curtis protected his shutout by getting Mike Phillips to ground to first base.

Giants 5, Padres 0
John Montefusco hurled a three-hitter to pitch San Francisco over San Diego. Two singles by Tito Fuentes and one by Willie Davis were the only 3 hits off the 26-year old San Francisco pitcher, who improved his record to 6-3. Only three Padres reached second base.

Large Crowds Still Expected

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The absence of Janet Guthrie, who was continually mobbed by curious race fans during two weeks of practice for the Indianapolis 500, is not likely to cut down attendance at Sunday's 60th running of the world's richest, most prestigious automobile race.

"The ticket sale is better than it's been for three or four years, and we will sell every seat we have in every grandstand," said Tony Hulman, who has owned the Indianapolis Motor Speedway for 30 of his 75 years.

"I don't know about the bleachers in the infield, but that is a minor thing."

By long-standing practice, the Speedway never announces total attendance for the Memorial Day classic. But Hulman has admitted there are 265,000 permanent seats in grandstands circling the 2½-mile track and room for another 100,000 or so in the infield, where seating on the grass is on a first-come basis.

Miss Guthrie, 38, the first woman ever to enter the Indy 500, was unable to get her Volstedt racer up to qualifying speed in the two weekends of qualifications. Instead, she will be driving in Sunday's World 600 stock car race at Charlotte, N.C., where she also is the first woman entrant.

The appearance of the 13-year sports car racing veteran at the threshold of the ultimate challenge in motor sports—an all-male domain up to now—caused more than a few lifted eyebrows at first. But she impressed admirers and skeptics alike by her performance in a car that would have been difficult, if not impossible, for any driver to qualify.

And the acknowledged No. 1 superstar of championship racing—A.J. Foyt—gave Miss Guthrie the highest compliment by letting her take his backup Coyote out for a test run to prove she was capable of handling a quality machine. He later agreed, "She was."

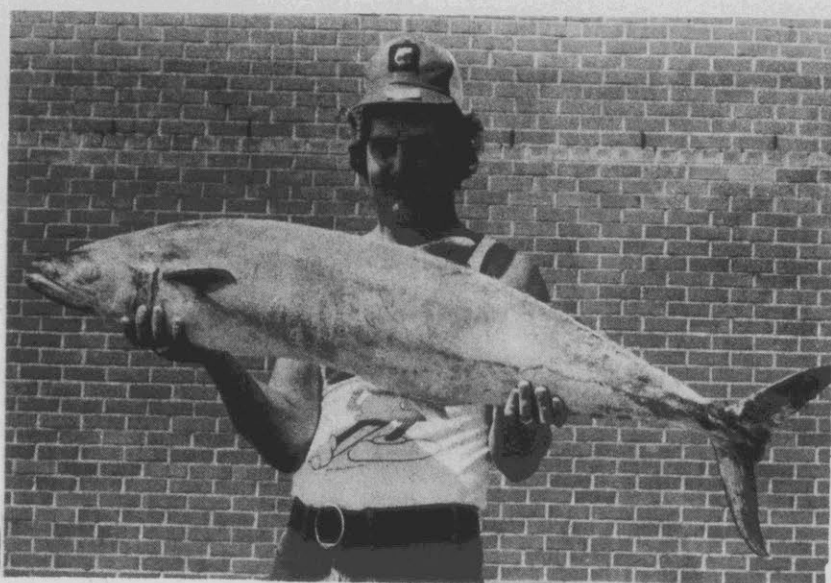

Foyt is out to do some proving himself. It's been 10 years since Foyt last won here, a decade of frustration in trying to become the first driver ever to win four Indy championships.

He was the USAC national driving champion for a record sixth time last year—nobody else has won it more than three times—and he captured the other two USAC 500-mile races at Ontario, Calif., and Pocono, Pa.

But the big prize of Indy eluded Foyt last year when a rainstorm gave Bobby Unser his second victory. Johnny Rutherford, the 1974 winner, finished second and Foyt, who won in 1961, 1964 and 1967, wound up third. All three were on their 174th laps when the race was halted.

Rutherford, who qualified at 188.957 miles per hour, will start Sunday's race in the pole position on the inside of the front row, a spot occupied by Foyt the past two years.

Foyt, who admittedly was not pleased with his qualifying speed of 185.261 m.p.h., will start in the middle of the second row, flanked by two-time winner Al Unser and Pancho Carter, the fourth-place finisher a year ago.

Sun May Sink On 'Sun City' If Suns Don't Change

By BERT ROSENTHAL
AP Sports Writer

PHOENIX (AP) — The city of Phoenix has been declared "Suns City" for the next week, but the local fans will have little to celebrate if their team doesn't snap out of its lethargy against the Boston Celtics in the National Basketball Association championship series.

Phoenix Mayor Margaret Hance proclaimed the name change at the City Council meeting Friday, shortly before she greeted the Suns upon their arrival from Boston, where they fell behind 2-0 in the best-of-seven nationally televised series. Games Three and Four will be in Phoenix on Sunday and Wednesday night.

Mayor Hance and an estimated 2,000 fans were at Phoenix Municipal Stadium—home of the Phoenix Giants of the Pacific Coast League—for a pep rally following the team's cross-country flight from Boston, where the Celtics had beaten them 98-87 and 105-90.

The mayor praised the team for what it had done for the community, then introduced the players and coaches.

Coach John MacLeod spoke briefly, pointing out that although the Suns were in an unfavorable position against the Celtics, "they hoped to come away with the world championship." Team captain Dick Van Arsdale, the only remaining member of the original Sugs club in 1968, also addressed the enthusiastic fans before the rally broke up in less than an hour.

The plane ride from Boston was perhaps more memorable than the rally. Just before takeoff, one of the stewardesses informed the passengers on the plane that "travelling with us today are the Phoenix Senators."

A co-worker tried to correct her and was just as confused. "No," she said, "they're the Suns ... from Los Angeles."

Finally, the introduction was made properly, but the incident was reminiscent of a Boston newscaster who had said a week earlier while introducing the highlights of her show, that the telecast would include a special report "on the Arizona Suns."

If the Suns' success in reaching the final round for the first time in their eight-year history has been a boon for the community, their virtual anonymity has continued to sweep the rest of the nation.

A sweep, of course, is what the unheralded and unpublicized Suns are trying to avoid. Only three times in the 30-year history of the NBA have teams suffered the ignominy of losing four straight games in the championship series.

The Celtics were the first to be on the winning side in such a series, beating the Minneapolis Lakers 4-0 in 1959. Then the Milwaukee Bucks swept the Baltimore Bullets in 1971 and the Golden State Warriors ousted the Washington Bullets—Baltimore's successor—last year in four games.

Trio Leading Championship

BALTIMORE (AP) — Now that Gerda Boykin, Hollis Stacy and Sharon Miller have straightened out their golf games, perhaps they'd better brush up a bit on acceptance speeches.

They share the halfway lead in the Ladies Professional Golf Association Championship and the leaders of the 72-hole tourney can hardly be classified as household words.

Going into today's third round tied at four-under-par 142 and with a shot at the $8,000 first prize on Sunday, the leaders showed a combined two victories for more than 22 years on the tour.

For the year, Miss Stacy ranked 13th on the money-winning list with $13,664. Mrs. Boykin was 70th at $1,547 and Miss Miller 73rd with $1,451.

Betty Burfeindt also had a chance to tie for the lead Friday, but she missed a birdie putt on the 18th green and wound up one stroke back at 143 after posting a 72.

Chako Higuchi of Japan was fifth at 144, one stroke ahead of first-round leader Laura Baugh, who followed her 68 with a 77, Carole Jo Skala and Murlie Breer. Judy Rankin, who tops the money list this year at $61,191, was with defending champion Kathy Whitworth in a seven-way tie for 12th place at 147.

The original field of 98 was cut to 54 for the final two rounds and among those failing to make the 152 cutoff was Amy Alcott.

Holloman Hurls, Hits Federal Past Pepsi

Mike Holloman got three hits and pitched a one-hit victory as First Federal remained a game behind Big Value Drugs with a 10-1 Tar Heel Little League victory over Pepsi-Cola, Friday.

First Federal scored three in the first. Mont Carter singled and scored on an error. Holloman singled and scored when Horace Barrett homered. With two out in the second, Carter walked and Holloman singled. Keith Stocks reached on an error scoring Carter and a passed ball scored Holloman giving Federal a 4-0 lead.

Barrett tripled opening the sixth when Billy Stalling reached on an error, stole second, took third on an error and scored on an out. Barrett and Warren had two hits for FF. Pep-Cola 000 001—1 1 5 First Fed. 322 210—10 10 5

ONE FOR THE ROAD — With David M. Beckhardt at the tiller, this 1914 Detroit Electric, once owned by scientist Charles P. Steinmetz, gets its first run in more than 40 years. Beckhardt heads a group of students at Union College, where Steinmetz taught, who are restoring the ancient auto. In the passenger's seat is Robert Morris, who discovered the car abandoned in a field in 1964. Only the chassis and engine have been repaired. The restored body is to be added later. (AP Wirephoto)

Seek Minorities For Engineering Programs

HOBOKEN, N. J. (AP) — John Baskerville is 23 years old, single and black. He is also a working engineer, thanks to a concerted national effort to triple the number of minority group members studying engineering by 1982. Baskerville planned to be a teacher until he got "side-tracked" into engineering while still a junior at inner-city West Side High School, Newark, N. J. The switch came during six weeks he spent one summer at Stevens Institute of Technology here.

That was 1968, the year Stevens initiated the Stevens Technical Enrichment Program, called STEP, to become one of the country's first to cultivate minority engineering enrollment. Now, more than a hundred engineering schools have developed similar programs.

A 1974 report of a study financed by the Alfred P. Sloan Foundation is credited with inspiring most of the other colleges. It showed that only 2.8 per cent of the engineers in the United States in 1970 were black, Mexican American, Puerto Rican or American Indian, although those minorities constituted 14.4 per cent of the population.

It also revealed that only 2.8 per cent of engineering freshmen were minority group members. The report recommended raising the number to 18 per cent by 1982 — the anticipated proportion of college minorities of all individuals their age.

Following guidelines established in the report, three national efforts have emerged. The Committee on Minorities in Engineering sets policies and coordinates activities nationally. The National Fund for Minority Students in Engineering is the fund-raising arm. The third activity is the Minority Engineering Education Effort, whose executive director is Dr. Richard Mullins, former head of the STEP project at Stevens.

Why so much emphasis on engineering?

"First, the increasing need for engineers in a technological society assures our graduates of good future job prospects," explains Mullins. "But experience shows that engineering is also a key to professions such as law and medicine, because it teaches you to be a problem-solver."

"And engineering often opens the way to the top executive spots in the corporate sector for the same reason," adds Mullins, whose program is geared to identifying and attracting potential engineers before college.

STEP functions at several levels, explains Ron Simmons, its new director. During the school year it gives minority high school students advanced courses in mathematics, science and computers on Saturday mornings. It then boards about 120 of them on campus for six weeks during the summer while they attend courses and lectures and visit nearby industry installations.

With those who have been accepted for the following fall's freshman class at Stevens, the emphasis during the summer is on getting ready to bridge the leap from high-school to college-level work. The 30 STEP students who entered Stevens with this year's freshman class, Simmons says, worked very closely with students and faculty advisers, who gave them many hours of personal and academic counseling.

EP Baskerville is now a sanitary engineer with a Philadelphia firm. Next fall he plans to take special courses in sanitary engineering leading to the master of science degree.

"They motivated me by constantly assuring me I was going to make it. They kept pushing me and pushing me, to make sure I'd get through," he says. "It was tough all right. But very much worth it."

Simmons hopes to see the program grow yearly. The current $300,000 annual expense of STEP is borne in part by Ste-

Life Was Good To Very Senior Citizen

ROYAL, Fla. (AP) — Life has been good, Matthew Beard will tell you while sitting in his home in this tiny Central Florida farm community.

And the modest but comfortable house is proof of Beard's claim. He built most of it himself two years ago — at age 103.

"My grandsons did put on the roof for me," says Beard, who takes credit for the rest. Matthew Beard, born July 9, 1870, has seen a lot of life since leaving his native Virginia. He considers the love he's shared and the friends he's made along the way most important to him, and thinks today's world could use a bit more of both.

"The Commandments say you are supposed to love God and your neighbor, and the Bible says you are supposed to do unto the other men as you would like them to do unto you."

"They have reversed it now," he says of the world outside his sleepy town. "Now it's 'I try to do you before you have a chance to do me.'" possessing a powerful hand-shake, is one of Sumter County's best known residents. Friends find the way to his door in what seems like a steady stream.

"People today will tell you, 'If I have dollars I don't need any friends' but that's all wrong," Beard says.

"You could have a million dollar bills stacked up, but if you are lying there helpless, those dollar bills would not get you a drink of water, or fan a fly out of your face. You need a friend to do that."

Beard says all the earth's riches and power belong to God.

Beard first came to Florida in 1887 when he helped build tracks later used by the Seaboard Coast Line, but he didn't return to stay until more than two decades later.

SAVE GREATEST STOCK REDUCTION EVER PLUS OUR USED CARS ARE GUARANTEED 12 Months or 12,000 Miles.

Most good used cars, if they're guaranteed at all, are only covered for a month or two. At Tarheel Toyota, we're just as willing to back our good used cars as our good new cars. So we guarantee the motor, transmission and rear end for 12 months or 12,000 miles. This warranty applies to all cars selling for $1000.00 or more on a 50-50 basis with all work being done in our shop. It doesn't apply to any sports cars, high performance engines or 4-speed transmission (except economy cars). If you're in the market for a BETTER USED CAR, COME OUT AND LOOK AT OURS. We'll show you some as good as new. Guaranteed.

"Week's 'Best Fix-Up Investment'"
Waiting for a bargain? The time to check this opportunity out is now. Located in an area with club house, swimming pool and tennis courts. Owner has left Greenville and says he must sell this 3 bedroom, 2 bath ranch with den and fireplace. Priced in 30's.

Bargain Hunting?
This 3 bedroom ranch could be for you. It's new with all appliances, 2 full baths, professionally decorated and you may choose the carpet. Outside private patio for summer entertaining. Small workshop. It's new with 7 1/2 percent loan available.

Quick Occupancy!
The kids will be only a short walk from tennis courts and swimming pool. There's a lot of house here for the money and you'll agree after you've seen it. Asking $47,500. Get expense, not expense.

"They just don't build them like they used to"
is heard more and more today. This one was built "like they used to" and it is priced right to move you in. Living room - dining room combination, large kitchen with breakfast area and utility closet, fireplace in cozy den, 3 bedrooms and two full baths. Hardwood floors throughout, central air, humidifier, carport, outside storage. All drapes remain so pack your bags and move on in. $41,500.

Why Pay $53,000 For Less Living Area?
For those with taste: This lovely home in picturesque Easthaven offers over 2000 feet of living area in three bedrooms, living room, dining room, family room with fireplace in both the living room and the den. You will have to see this one to appreciate the value. Drapes and curtains remain. $51,900.

You won't believe this ... nearly 2000 square feet of living space for under $40,000.00. Four bedrooms, in this tri-level home. You just can't let a buy like this pass you by! Plenty of room on this lot 108 x 223 for your vegetable garden. Newly painted outside. "0" Down on VA Loan.

Club Pines ... the place to be. This home is situated on a wooded lot in what has become one of Greenville's most desirable neighborhoods. Three bedrooms, two baths, two car garage, dining-den combination. You're making a mistake if you haven't looked into this home. Owner will paint to suit you. Low 40's.

EXECUTIVE MODEL
Home with a future for the family with a future! Spaciousness abounds throughout this lovely home in Brook Valley. It's situated on a large corner lot backed up to the seventh tee. Beautiful entry foyer, formal living and dining rooms, large kitchen with dining area overlooking the golf course, den with fireplace, 3 large bedrooms or use the recreation room as a fourth bedroom, study, 2 1/2 baths, utility room. This home can easily adapt itself to a small or large family. Ideal for entertaining and for family enjoyment. Many extras abound here. A must-see for the family with discriminating taste.

Mary Kathryn Andrews Weds Mark I. Thompson

BETHEL — Mary Kathryn Andrews, daughter of Ms. Mary Wells Bunting Andrews of Bethel, and Mark Irvin Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wilson Thompson of Winston-Salem, were united in marriage Saturday at eight o'clock in the evening in the Bethel United Methodist Church.

The Rev. Ellis J. Bedsworth, pastor of the church, and the Rev. Dr. Tommy Tyson of Chapel Hill officiated at the ceremony.

Wedding music was presented by Mrs. Robert Harold Stator, organist, of Bethel, Rodney Schmidt, violinist, of Greenville, Emory Davis, soloist, of Bethel, and by Mr. and Mrs. Wayne West of Williamston, who rendered a duet.

Mrs. Robert Joseph Whitehurst of Bethel directed the wedding.

Given in marriage by her brother, Russ Andrews of Bethel, the bride was attired in a dress of original design fashioned along princess lines and made of white silk organza over faille taffeta. The gown featured a V-neckline bordered with alencon lace re-embroidered with seed pearls and sequins. The bodice, which extended into a chapel train, was bordered with matching alencon lace and motifs of the small lace extended as accents toward the empire line of the bodice.

Her full length veil of french illusion was attached to a beaded lace headpiece and she carried a cascade of white marguerite roses and stephanotis showered with bridal ribbons.

John Burton Andrews, sister of the bride, of Bethel was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Molly Diana Thompson, sister of the bridegroom, of Winston-Salem, Carolyn Grace Speir of Alexandria, Va., Margaret Elizabeth Blount of Greenville, Mrs. David Charles Miller of Chapel Hill, Mona Leigh Pass of Winston-Salem, and Barbara Christian Dudley of Kinston.

The attendants wore formal dresses of spring green, crisscrossed with bands of apple green, made of silk organza over slips of peau taffeta. The molded bodices were styled with V-necklines bordered with ruffled with val lace centered with satin buttons. The brief puffed sleeves were lace trimmed and the A-line pinafore skirts, framed with lace, stemmed from the lifted waists under sash-belts of satin which ended in back bows and long streamers. They wore hats of matching color which were encircled with ribbon and accented with streamers. Their flowers were nosegays of yellow and white Marguerite daisies.

The mother of the bride chose a formal gown of bitter-sweet chiffon. The fitted draped bodice of the dress had a jewel neckline embellished with seed pearls and rhinestones.

The mother of the bridegroom wore an A-line formal dress of canary yellow silk jersey designed with a belted waistline.

The father of the bridegroom served as best man. Groomsman were Peter Timothy Booras, John Michael Wilson, Howard Lindsay Wilson, all of Winston-Salem, Robert Lee Thurston Jr. of Greensboro, William A. Cobb of Chapel Hill and Edward Harrison Pinnix of Severn.

The bride is a graduate of St. Mary's College and of East Carolina University, where she was a member of the Chi Omega Sorority. She was presented at the 1972 Terpsichorean Club Debutante Ball, Raleigh. She is teaching in the Forsythe County School System.

The bridegroom is a graduate of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill where he was a member of the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity and a member of the honorary Order of Gimghoul. He is a sales representative for Jimmy Mitchel Veneers, IKNC, High Point.

Following a wedding trip to Bermuda, the couple will return to their new residence in Jamestown.

Immediately following the wedding the mother of the bride entertained at a reception for the bridal couple and their attendants in the church parlor.

On Saturday, a wedding breakfast in honor of the bridal couple and their attendants was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. Leighton Blount Jr., Bethel. Hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. Blount, Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Latham, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Earl Dennis, and Mrs. John Burton Bunting, grandmother of the bride.

Friday evening Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wilson Thompson and Mrs. Mary Thompson Reavis, parents and aunt of the bridegroom, entertained at a rehearsal dinner at the Greenville Golf and Country Club for members of the wedding party and out-of-town guests.

Following the rehearsal dinner, friends and relatives of the bride honored the couple with a dance at the Greenville Country Club. The Bill Bolen Trio played at the dance.

On Friday, a bridesmaids luncheon was given at the Greenville Country Club in honor of the bride and her attendants given by Ms. Mary Anne Manning and Mrs. Robert P. Michaels Jr. of Bethel.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I found a letter to my sister the other day that I had forgotten to mail.

It just needed a little updating to send. After "The baby is..." I crossed out "toilet trained" and wrote in "graduating from high school this month."

And in the P.S. where I had written, "I found my first gray hair today," I ran a line through gray and substituted "black."

The rest of the letter was still current. "I am on a diet as my skin does not fit me anymore. The children are rotten and I am slipping away from reality. I am going to paint the bathroom and write to the rest of the family next week."

The trouble with me is I don't like to write letters unless I have something exciting to report. I am intimidated by letter writers whose correspondence electrifies you.

I have one group of friends who only write me once a year—from a cruise ship. They know it's going to make me spit up with jealousy and they write cute little messages that begin, "Luv: Thinking of you as we island-hop," and end with, "Must dash. A Robert Redford lookalike has been chasing me all over the ship."

Other pen pals I can live without are the people whose children are over-achievers. Their letters are filled with news of "Robbie" who just won a "Being" scholarship to Harvard. (He's so exceptional, all he has to do is sit there and breathe for four years.) There's also nine-year-old Rachel who is competing in the Baton Olympics, makes all her own clothes, just sold her first story to Reader's Digest, and is going to spend her entire summer reading the Bible. And don't forget little Kenneth who gets up during the night to change his own Pampers. (Does you-know-who still have a plastic liner in his football uniform?)

The letter-writers who really bug me, though, are the ones with the stationery whose paper matches the envelopes. Sure it's easy to write a letter when you have all the equipment, but for me, it's a real hassle finding clean paper, a pencil, and a stamp.

It has been four days since I sent my sister the letter and when I didn't hear from her this morning, I lifted the phone, called, and said, "What's the matter? Is your arm broken?" "I just got your letter," she said. "I'll answer it this afternoon."

"Well, hurry up. I have another three-cent stamp that's burning a hole in my pocket!"

Couple Weds Saturday Evening

MILWAUKEE, Wis. — Alverno College here was the scene of the wedding ceremony of Ellen Louise Reithmaier and E. Gregory Nagode, both of Greenville, N.C.

The couple exchanged wedding vows Saturday at 6:00 p.m. in a double ring ceremony which was performed by the Rev. Carroll C. Straub.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Fred Reithmaier of Milwaukee, Wis., and Mr. Edward E. Nagode of Fox Lake, Ill., and the late Mrs. Ruth Nagode.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white polyester satin gown fashioned with a front empire waist. The neckline and the long sleeves were trimmed with pearls and the full back extended into a train. She wore a matching bow headpiece and carried a bouquet of gardenias and white roses.

Mrs. Annemarie Lalik of Greenville, N.C., was the honor attendant. She was dressed in a floor-length A-line blue polyester satin gown and carried a bouquet of yellow daisies.

The flower girl was Ingrid Lalik of Greenville. She wore a blue polyester satin floor gown with white lace trim. She carried a bouquet of yellow daisies.

Dana Shinneman of Decatur, Ill., was best man and Joseph Shultis of Waukegan, Ill., was the usher.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Tyrolean Town House, Milwaukee, Wis. A German-Bavarian decor was used.

After a wedding trip to the N.C. mountains, the couple will reside in Greenville, N.C.

The bride is a graduate of Alverno College, Milwaukee, and the University of Michigan. The bridegroom is a graduate of Lawrence College, Applton, Wis., and the University of Illinois. Both are faculty members in the School of Music, East Carolina University, Greenville, N.C.

History Of Tea A Long One

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Hundreds of years before American patriots dumped British tea in Boston Harbor — an act that spawned rebellion — tea was playing an important part in the history of another country.

Persian troubadours were keeping alive the stirring history of their ancient land through recitations in hundreds of teahouses all over Persia.

The saga they read, called the Shah-nama, or epic of kings, was recited in Persian. Written by the poet Ferdowsi in approximately 1000 A.D., it recounted the stories of 50 of the ancient civilization's kings and queens.

The custom of telling these tales in teahouses was originated by troubadours, or naghals, in order to preserve a precious heritage that was threatened when Mohammedan Arabs conquered Persia in 636 and sought to impose their own language and customs.

This national epic, similar to Homer's Iliad, was learned by heart and passed on from generation to generation by word of mouth. The tradition made a deep impression upon a populace largely unable to read. But memorizing the Shah-nama was a monumental task for the naghal. It consists of 60,000 lines of prose and poetry, an undertaking that took Ferdowsi (his first name is unknown) 35 years to complete.

It was the Persian fondness for tea that prompted scholars to use the teahouse setting as a means of reaching the widest possible population.

"Ever since the Chinese introduced the brew in 350 A.D., tea has exercised a vast influence over the affairs of men and nations," says William L. Hanaway Jr., professor of Persian Language and Literature at the University of Pennsylvania. "But the teahouse tradition that preserves the language and history of ancient Persia is a marvel that travelers to modern-day Iran can see for themselves."

Today visitors to Tehran, Shiraz, Persepolis and other Iranian cities can witness the centuries-old custom at teahouses for the price of a cup of tea — one rial, a penny and a half in American currency.

Iran's Ministry of Culture and Art is using television to enhance the popularity of the readings. Government-sponsored performances by some of the better known storytellers are being aired on Iranian television. Art festivals held regularly in leading cities also feature readings of the Shah-nama.

And with the inauguration of its nonstop service between New York and Tehran, Iran Air will add a jet-age "teahouse" area in the top deck of its 747s, where stewardesses will serve tea, grown in northern Iran, from a gleaming Persian samovar.

In Iran, where per capita consumption of tea ranks among the world's highest at 77 pounds, tea drinkers enjoy their national drink with plenty of sugar and often sip it through a lump of sugar they hold between their teeth.

Meyers-Laughter Vows Miss Alice Edwards Weds Anthony J. Skinner

Solemnized On Saturday

The chapel of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church was the scene of the wedding ceremony of Alice Susan Laughter and Ishmel Jewell Meyers Jr. of Florence, S.C. Saturday at 11:00 a.m. The Rev. James H. Bailey performed the double ring ceremony. Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Laughter of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. Ishmel Jewell Meyers of Petaluma, Calif., and the late Mrs. Meyers.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length chiffon gown with a full skirt and wide sash at the waist. The dress was designed with an Edwardian ruffled collar and embroidery on the full sheer sleeves and the square yoked, tucked bodice. The embroidery and the ruffled edging were repeated on the cuffs of the sleeves and the border of the skirt. She wore a chignon picture hat trimmed with matching tucks and ruffles. The bride carried a nosegay of white daisies interspersed with baby's breath and ivy.

FARMVILLE The marriage of Miss Alice Lynette Edwards and Anthony Jerome Skinner was solemnized in the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Wood Saturday at 2:00 p.m. The Rev. Ronald Davis officiated at the double ring ceremony. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Edith Briley Edwards of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Elizabeth M. Skinner of Greenville and Mr. W. J. Skinner Jr. of Aurora.

The home was decorated with white satin ribbons, greenery and brass candelabras. Greenery and white satin ribbons were entwined through the stairway. The living room was accented with an improvised aisle for the bride. Three tier candelabras flanked each side of the altar. Palms of emerald greenery were used throughout the scene.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Miss Debbie Spence of Charlotte. Miss Gayle Porter sang "The Wedding Song" and "The Wedding Prayer."

The bride was given in marriage by Dan Thomas. The bride wore a formal length gown of white peau de soie designed with a high neckline encircled with English Nottingham lace and edged in miniature cluny lace. The empire bodice was styled in a bib effect of the Nottingham lace outlined in the ruffled cluny lace. The Renaissance sleeves of English Nottingham lace and peau de soie were trimmed with the ruffled cluny lace. Tiers of ruffled cluny lace edged the hemline of the skirt and the attached chapel train.

She wore an elbow length illusion view edged with cluny lace held in place by a Camelot cap trimmed with ruffled cluny lace and rows of pearls. The bride carried a cloud bouquet of baby's breath and mixed flowers.

Serving at the register was Miss Susan Skinner of Greenville, sister of the bridegroom. Mrs. Edwards chose for her daughter's wedding, a street length floral two-piece suit. The mother of the bridegroom was attired in a floor length gown of blue and white knit. Both mothers were honored with a white daisy corsage.

The bride is currently a nursing student at Pitt Technical Institute and the bridegroom is employed by Eaton Corp. After a wedding trip to Florida, the couple will make their home in Greenville.

A reception was given by Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Thomas of Farmville at the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Wood to honor the wedding party and guests. Mrs. Edith B. Edwards, mother of the bride, cut the cake and Mrs. Elizabeth M. Skinner, mother of the bridegroom, poured punch.

An after rehearsal party was given Friday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Thomas in honor of the wedding party and friends. Mrs. Edith B. Edwards, mother of the bride, and Mrs. Debbie Tighman, sister of the bride, were co-hostesses.

A reception was given by Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Thomas of

Personal Letter Relieves Reader

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Around this time last year I wrote to you telling you that I was a very unhappy 12-year-old adopted, diabetic girl whose parents and teachers were always on my back. You wrote back with lots of suggestions and told me to try to see things their way.

I didn't believe a word you wrote, and I got into big trouble at school. It got harder and harder for me to live with myself anymore, so I went to talk to my best friend's mother, and she helped me see that everything you wrote to me was 100 per cent true. Then I read your letter over and over again, and after a while it sunk in.

I changed myself just in time to save my reputation and get back with all my friends, and, Abby, your letter was the cause of it all. Thank you! I couldn't have done it without you. Now I'm a better person and can talk to my parents, which I couldn't do last year.

Abby, please put this in your column because I'm sure a lot of teenagers don't realize that you write personal answers to those who send stamped, addressed envelopes.

All my love,
M.L. IN BARSTOW, CALIF.

DEAR M.: I am pleased to know that my letter helped you to get it all together, but you deserve more credit than I do. I only offered suggestions. YOU followed through. God bless you, honey.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I recently moved into a furnished apartment. We have no children, but we have two small dogs that we love very much.

At first when we went out, we left the dogs alone in the apartment, and they ripped up everything they could get their little paws on. They simply ruined the furniture and rugs!

After we saw the damage our dogs had done, we took to locking them up in the bathroom, but, Abby, this upsets them so much, it just breaks my heart. I can't blame them. I know I wouldn't want to be locked in a tiny bathroom for five hours, would you?

Is there any other solution? We don't have anyone who can watch the dogs when we go out. Please suggest something.

LOVES MY DOGS

DEAR LOVES: If you can't train your dogs to refrain from tearing up their surroundings when left alone, rather than submit them to cruel and unusual confinement, take them with you or find them another home. Dogs have rights, too.

DEAR ABBY: I am not keen on your approving traditional white weddings for non-virgin brides just because it "probably was their heart's desire."

When I hurriedly arranged a church wedding for my 18-year-old daughter who had confessed that she was three-months pregnant, I told her that if she insisted of wearing a wedding veil, I would not attend her wedding.

She wore the white wedding gown, carried a bridal bouquet and had her hair done up with flowers and ribbons instead of a veil.

I am not sure how many knew that she was pregnant at her wedding but when the baby arrived six-months later no remarks were made.

RICHMOND MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Under the circumstances, I imagine some would have disapproved of her wearing the white gown. For my part, she could have worn the veil as well.

DEAR ABBY: I am a secretary to a very fine family man. About once a week, my boss invites me to have lunch with him downtown. I find it very enjoyable, but I understand there has been some talk about it around the office. In fact, I hear that his wife has been asking questions about me.

I wish you'd tell me just what two people could do between 12 and 1 in a crowded restaurant.

MS UNDERSTOOD

DEAR MS.: They could make plans to meet after 5, where it's not so crowded.

Miss Carol Ann Hackett Weds

Saint Paul's Episcopal Church was the scene of the Friday wedding ceremony of Carol Ann Hackett and Alan Bruce Cameron at 10:00 a.m.

The Rev. Lawrence P. Houston performed the double ring ceremony. A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Sharon Irwin, organist, and Jeffrey Kratz, soloist. Prior to the service, violin music was presented by JoAnn, Pamela and Patricia Bath.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Hackett of Greenville. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white formal gown of bridal mist and sculptured Venise lace flower designs. The gown was fashioned with a portrait neckline and empire bodice overlaid with lace featuring a satin belt. The lace details were repeated on the long cuffed Gibson girl sleeves and on the A-line skirt. A flounced double ruffle formed the hemline and circled the built-in chapel length train. She wore her grandmother's pearl necklace.

Her face framer of matching lace flowers was attached to a mantilla of silk illusion and flowed into a semi-cathedral length veil. She carried a cascade of pink and white roses, baby's breath and ivy.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Stewart Cameron of Greenville, S.C.

The bride is a student of nursing at Greenville Technical College, Greenville, S.C. The bridegroom is a senior at Bob Jones University, Greenville, S.C.

The maid of honor was Lynn Knott of Greenville. She was dressed in a pastel pink gown fashioned with an empire waistline, V-neckline and A-line skirt. The dress was worn with a pointed tunic of gauze fabric over taffeta with flared sleeves. The tunic, sleeves and hemline were edged with white lace. She carried a nosegay of spring flowers.

Bridesmaids were Miss Janet Hackett and Miss Sharon Hackett of Greenville, sisters of the bride, and Miss Linda Crymble of Pompton Lake, N.J. They were dressed identical to the honor attendant and carried similar nosegays.

Honorary bridesmaids were Marcia Turner of Greenville, and Linda Hinson of Steadman. The flower girl was Miss Susan Ambert of Greenville. She was dressed in a dress of white dotted swiss over taffeta styled with a rounded neckline, short puffed sleeves and empire waistline. White daisy lace trimmed the dress that had a ruffle hemline. Her bouquet was like the bride's.

The ring bearer was John Craig Quick of Greenville and the best man was Bruce Cameron of Greenville, S.C. Ushers were Michael Hackett of Greenville, brother of the bride, Craig Cameron of Greenville, S.C., brother of the bridegroom, and Jerry Calison of Golden, Ill. Mrs. Patty Benson entertained at the reception held immediately following the ceremony in the Parish Hall. Mrs. Carlynn Knott served cake and Mrs. Jean Tripp poured punch. The couple will reside in Greenville, S.C., after a wedding trip to Schroon Lake, N.Y. A rehearsal dinner was held Thursday evening at Sambo's Restaurant after the rehearsal. Mrs. Carlynn Knott entertained at a bridesmaids luncheon.

Couple Speaks Vows Friday In Evening Ceremony

GRIFTON—The marriage of Pearla Kay Bright and Brian Keith Bollinger was solemnized Friday at 8:00 p.m. in the First Baptist Church of Grifton. The Rev. William S. Brown performed the ceremony, assisted by Lee Porter, cousin of the bride.

Daughter of Dr. and Mrs. E.B. Bright, the bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a floor-length gown of white satin organza styled with an empire bodice with a high neckline and an A-line skirt. A wide pane of chantilly lace and seed pearls edged in Venetian lace extended down the front of the gown. The long full sleeves featured deep cuffs with chantilly lace appliques and Venetian lace trim. The detachable chapel length train was designed with lace appliques and Venetian lace edging.

The bride wore a fingertip mantilla of satin organza edged with chantilly lace. She carried a semi-cascade bouquet of yellow and white spring flowers.

The maid of honor, Miss Lynn Bollinger, sister of the bridegroom of Wilmington, wore a peach crepe dress with an overlay of floral organza fashioned with a sweetheart neckline and puffed sleeves. She carried a nosegay of Marguerite daisies with baby's breath.

The mother of the bride chose a formal length gown of yellow crepe and a corsage of daisies. The mother of the bridegroom selected a formal length gown of pale pink crepe and wore a corsage of daisies.

John Gamboa was best man and ushers were Timothy Allen Bright, brother of the bride, and William A. Bollinger, cousin of the bridegroom.

A program of wedding music was presented by David Cox.

organist, and Tony Blake Bright, brother of the bride, vocalist. The wedding was directed by Mrs. Horace Hudson.

Following the ceremony, the bride's parents entertained at a reception at their home.

The bride's table was covered with an overlay of white organza over yellow satin. The centerpiece was white and yellow spring flowers flanked by yellow tapers in silver candlesticks. Magnolias and silver candelabras graced the mantle. Yellow and white spring flowers were used throughout the house.

Assisting in serving and receiving were Miss Sue Naseley, Miss Lynn Haseley, Miss Kim Smith, Mrs. George Lee Porter, Miss Ollie H. Toler and Mrs. Faye Bollinger.

The bride is a sophomore at East Carolina University. The bridegroom is employed with Midtown Services, Inc., Grifton.

Couple Weds On Saturday

Miss Alice Su Hawthorne and Julius Brown Kachmer were united in marriage Saturday at 11:30 a.m. at the First Presbyterian Church by the Rev. Richard C. Gammon.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Jack M. Hawthorne of Greensboro, and Mr. and Mrs. Michael Kachmer of Greenville. Mrs. Jimmie C. Turbeville of Four Oaks, sister of the bride, was matron of honor.

The flower girl was Daphne Turbeville of Four Oaks, niece of the bride, and the ring bearer was Jimmie Turbeville Jr. of Four Oaks, nephew of the bride.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers were Ralph D. Bailey of Wilmington, and Edwin Hice of Greenville.

The couple will reside in Greenville after a wedding trip to unannounced points.

The bride graduated from Grimsley High School, Greensboro, and attended East Carolina University and Pitt Technical Institute. She is employed by Tarheel Toyota, Inc.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Rose High School and is a student at Pitt Technical Institute, majoring in air and water pollution technology.

Following the ceremony, a luncheon was held at the Candlewick Inn given by the parents of the bride.

A rehearsal dinner was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Kachmer.

On The Local Scene

by Rosalie Trotman

Historic, recreational and cultural areas in the 10 counties in the Coastal Plain Development Association will soon be shown to the public through a slide presentation.

For instance in Pitt County the slides might depict the Shad Festival, Grifton Collard Festival, Ayden, July 4 celebration sponsored by the Greenville Jaycees, Sunday in the Park, art shows, boating and fishing on the Tar River, plus wild flowers growing in this area.

The slide presentation and tape narrative is being prepared and will be presented to each county and will be available to civic and garden clubs, schools and churches.

The purpose of the presentation is to acquaint people in the area of beauty and opportunities here at home; to encourage families to take one day outings and visit the 10-county area; to instill pride and appreciation of one's surroundings.

Coordinating the project are J.M. Daniel, Wilson; William D. Lewis, Wilson county extension chairman; Jerry Raynor and Sylvia J. Wheelless, both of Greenville.

The Coastal Plain Development Association is composed of six divisions—Agriculture, Community Development, Home Economics, Travel and Recreation, Youth and Industrial Development. The Travel and Recreation Committee is composed of three people from each county and Dr. Ralph Rives, of East Carolina University, is chairman.

Volunteers working through the Agriculture Extension Service promote education programs for people living in Beaufort, Bertie, Edgecombe, Halifax, Hertford, Martin, Nash, Northampton, Pitt and Wilson Counties.

Three Pitt County coeds, who are students at Meredith College, Raleigh, have been elected to various positions at the school.

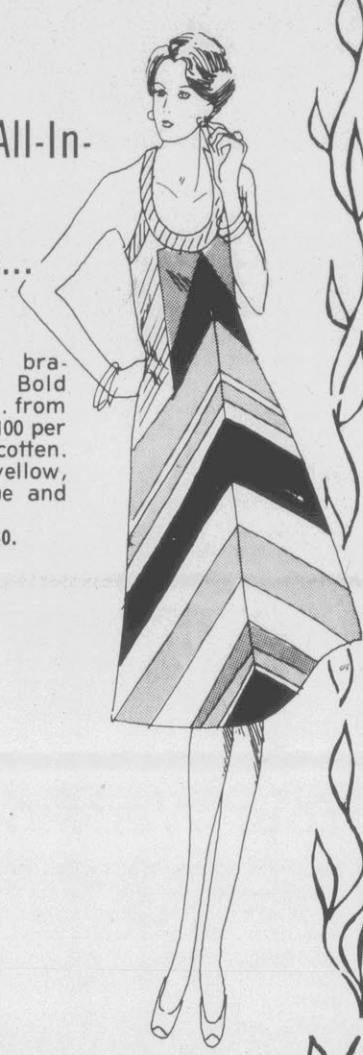

Nora Griffin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Griffin of Farmville, has been elected one of eight sophomore residence hall vice presidents. Senior Darlene Smith, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. David H. Smith of Rt. 2, Ayden, has been selected as senior dorm vice president. Cindy Carole Allen has been elected one of two junior class representatives to the Elections Board. She is the daughter of Mrs. Coleen Allen of Greenville.

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. Gray of Clinton announce the engagement of their daughter, Janet Kathryn, to Frank Felton Butler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mossette L. Butler of Clinton. The wedding will take place July 24.

BRUSH UP

NEW YORK (UPI) — If your spring cleanup chores include painting the house and-or its furnishings, take a tip from Cooperative Extension specialists in Cornell University's Consumer Education Program. Choose a polyester brush if you plan to use both oil and water-based paints, a nylon brush if you're using only water-base paints and natural bristle for oil-base paints because its fibers resist strong solvents. Natural bristle brushes that are properly cleaned will last long enough to compensate for their higher cost.

The specialists warn against using a natural bristle brush with water-base paints because the latter waterlogs this type and makes it useless.

America's 'Annie Oakley At Court Of St. James' Is Serious

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG
LONDON (UPI) — Texan Anne Armstrong, America's first woman ambassador in London, laughs a hearty Texas laugh when Britons refer to her as "Annie Oakley at the Court of St. James."

"It doesn't bother me at all, as long as people regard me as a serious ambassador," she said in an interview in her U.S. Embassy office overlooking leafy Grosvenor Square.

She said her rancher husband Tobin, who accompanied her to London, doesn't have any hangups either about being dubbed "the Gary Cooper of Grosvenor Square."

"We'd hoped for a younger model, maybe Robert Redford," she said with a laugh. "But he doesn't mind these things. That's part of it."

Mrs. Armstrong, 49, a former Republican committeewoman and one-time member of Richard M. Nixon's cabinet, says she expects President Ford to win both the Republican nomination and November election.

"Obviously, I've got a bias," she said. "I don't like supporting losers. But I think Ford is a winner."

Mrs. Armstrong said she is puzzled by Ford's poor showing in the Texas primary.

"What I think it comes down to," she said, "is a great surge of anti-Washington feeling. I think Ford has to make it clear that a lot of things his own people are blaming him for and the Democrats are blaming him for are faults of Congress."

Mrs. Armstrong, born Anne Legendre in New Orleans, La., has made her home for more than 20 years on the 50,000-acre Armstrong ranch at Armstrong, Tex., where her husband raises 4,000 head of cattle. She is the mother of five children.

Since she arrived here March 3 she has kept up a blistering pace, which often has left her staff in a frazzle.

She has met Queen Elizabeth, Prince Charles, former Minister James Callaghan, former prime ministers Sir Harold Wilson and Edward Heath, Foreign Secretary Anthony Crosland, Conservative opposition leader Margaret Thatcher and other British public figures.

She has made official trips to Wales, Northern Ireland and NATO headquarters in Belgium and plans one to Scotland in early June.

She has made a score or more of public speeches. She's happy about the way she has been treated.

"Maybe some people were disappointed I didn't burst into town in a fringed leather jacket or with Tobin brandishing a branding iron," she said laughing.

"I think the British have a pretty good sense of humor and, you know, the 'Annie Oakley at the Court of St. James' thing — that kind of thing has never bothered me."

As America's first woman ambassador in London, Mrs. Armstrong controls a staff of more than 750.

She is the United States' 53rd envoy to London since 1785.

Among her predecessors were former Presidents John Adams, James Monroe, John Quincy Adams, Martin Van Buren and James Buchanan. Others were Robert Todd Lincoln, son of Abraham Lincoln, and Joseph P. Kennedy, father of President

John F. Kennedy.

Does she have any ambitions to follow them?

"I've no plans to run for elective office in the near future," she said. "Quite frankly, my husband doesn't like the idea."

But she thinks women will reach the top in American politics in a few years.

"I think it's a certainty," she said. "I'm not sure when. But I'd not be surprised to see a woman vice presidential candidate in 1980 and a woman president in our lifetime."

Mrs. Armstrong is frank about the high cost of being U.S. ambassador in London. Her salary is $44,600. She also has a representation allowance of $15,000 a year.

But millionaire Walter Annenberg, a former ambassador, said it cost him about $200,000 a year out of his own pocket "though, if you cut corners it could be done for $110,000."

"We aren't millionaires, though we are well off," Mrs. Armstrong said. "We'll see how the crunch comes later. But we'd pretty well figured out what it was likely to be. We knew certainly we weren't going to come out ahead. But the amount we would come out behind we felt we could afford."

Mrs. Armstrong said one "huge advantage" she enjoys is the estimated $1 million Annenberg spent on what he once described as "refurbishing" Winfield House, the ambassador's palatial residence in London's Regents Park, built by Woolworth heiress Barbara Hutton in the 1930s and given by her to the U.S. government after World War II.

"But I've got a fantastic collection of American paintings coming — which is just right for a Bicentennial year — loaned by various museums and friends," Mrs. Armstrong said. "The Annenbergs left some beautiful Chinese wallpaper. I'm just going to put one good American garden scene

The Rose High week was highlighted by the All-Sports banquet held Tuesday night. Rose athletes from every sport, both major and minor, were honored for their achievements at the annual event.

The master of ceremonies for the banquet was Jim Woods, WNCT-TV sports director. Speaking at the dinner was New Bern's WCTI-TV sport's director, Lee Moore.

The team members of the various sports, cheerleading, junior varsity and varsity football, cross country, junior varsity and varsity basketball, girl's basketball, boy's and girl's tennis, girl's softball, wrestling, swimming, baseball, girl's and boy's track, and golf were introduced by the coaches of the different squads.

Team Awards
Chosen for athletic team awards were Mike Shank, William Joyner, Joe Godette, Mike Brewington, Doug Paschal, Johnny Evans, Anthony Bryant, Cheryl Taylor, Karen Jeffreys, Graham Dempsey, and Marty East.

Also receiving trophies were Peggy Barber, Mike Murad, Peggy Leggett, John Lawler, T.C. Perkins, Mary Ann Bennett, Lance Timmons, Henry "Snake" Baker, Ed Connolly, Shirley Johnson, and James Daniels.

The Kiwanis Cup and the Dixon Cup, both for outstanding senior athletes, were awarded to Doug Paschal and Mike Brewington respectively.

Athletes were not the only honorees as several coaches were presented with awards of appreciation from their students.

Mrs. Knapp Is Named WOTM Senior Regent

Greenville Chapter No. 1308, Women of the Moose, elected Mrs. Mary Knappas senior regent at a business meeting Thursday night at the Moose Lodge. For the past year Mrs. Knapp has served as junior regent.

Elected to serve with her were Mrs. Evelyn Cottam, chaplain for the past year, the new junior regent, and Mrs. Margra Ross, who moves to the chaplain's chair after serving as recorder.

The new recorder is Mrs. Penny Dunn and Mrs. Joyce Mills was elected treasurer. Mrs. Wilma Turner, presently senior regent, moves to the office of junior graduate regent.

Installation ceremonies for the new officers will be held at the Moose Temple June 24 at which time Mrs. Knapp will name appointed officers and committee chairmen.

Plans for the chapter's annual spring party June 26 were also approved. A social hour and buffet dinner is planned, followed by a brief entertainment program and a dance with music by the Monitors.

WOTM members will also participate in a reception at the Lodge Sunday, June 27, honoring Edwin M. Baldree and his wife, Evelyn. Mrs. Baldree retired May 1 after serving as secretary of the Greenville Moose Lodge for 18 years.

over the mantel and leave the rest to that beautiful wallpaper."

What are Mrs. Armstrong's feelings about Nixon today?

"I never did get close to him," she said. "He didn't work in that way. But I did support him and I believed him until the June 23 Watergate tape. I guess you could say that was overly naive. But it was a personal shock."

Mrs. Armstrong was impressed by Queen Elizabeth.

"She does her homework, and obviously she had taken the trouble to read my biography and knew what I was interested in. I call that a good monarch. She also was completely serious with me. There was no small female chitchat or family chitchat and no talk of family until my husband was invited into the room. I thought that, too, was quite correct of her."

Stripes Star On Fashion Stage

Life Insurance Field Appeals

CHICAGO (AP) — More and more women are entering the field of life insurance selling, and they have an advantage in dealing with members of their own sex, says a financial expert at Esmark, Inc., a diversified holding company with major interests in financial services.

Of the almost 78 million adult women in the United States today "there are an almost equal number of lifestyles," he says. "Each of these women is an individual with goals — and meaningful values — of her own."

Women who enter the financial services field bring with them an understanding of the needs of other women, which can be a big plus, the spokesman points out, but adds that certain guidelines can help the women become a success in the heretofore predominantly masculine areas of insurance and investment.

These dos and don'ts for women dealing with clients are offered by Globe Life Insurance Co., an Esmark subsidiary:

- Emphasize the freedom of choice. Let your client tell you what she wants. Don't tell her.
- Approach her in an intelligent, businesslike way — and she'll be likely to respond in a similar manner.
- Don't assume that if the woman to whom you are talking is single she automatically aspires to marriage. On the other hand, don't assume she doesn't.
- Do invite her to discuss her feelings. The more you know about her, the better you will be able to ascertain what she truly needs.
- Avoid any discussion of your own opinions. Your views may be entirely different from hers.
- Do not contradict, interrupt or patronize.

Miss Downing Honored At Bridal Tea

A bridal tea Saturday at the home of Mrs. W. W. Howell with Mrs. Howell, Mrs. John J. McCarthy, and Mrs. James W. Butler as hostesses, honored Miss Sandra Downing, who is to be married June 19 to John West Barber.

On arriving, the guests were greeted by Mrs. Howell and presented to the bride-elect, her mother, Mrs. Joseph E. Downing, and the bridegroom-elect's mother, Mrs. Charles E. Barber. Miss Downing wore a white carnation corsage presented by the hostesses.

Spring flowers and greenery were used throughout the living, dining, and den areas. The refreshment table featured an arrangement of lilies and magnolia blossoms.

Mrs. John W. Brooks, maternal grandmother of the bride-elect, presided at the punch bowl, Miss Kathy Downing, sister of the bride-elect, and Miss Nancy Barber, sister of the bridegroom-elect, assisted at the refreshment table.

The honoree was presented a gift of crystal.

Good-byes were said to Mrs. Butler and Mrs. McCarthy.

Around 150 guests called during the afternoon.

Ayden Pupils 'Research' Chosen Occupation Fields

By SUSAN QUINN
Reflector Staff Writer
AYDEN—Students of Ms. Cindy Joyner's gifted and talented class at Ayden Grammar School were recently asked what occupation they would like to work in after graduation from high school or college. After making arrangements with local firms the students are now working and observing their chosen occupations.

One student is working with Dr. Joseph Bateman, veterinarian; two students are working with Dudley and Shoe Architects; two are working at Pitt Technical Institute with agrichemicals; and five are working with lawyers, two with David Reid, two with Robin Rouse and one with DeLyle Evans.

The students carry on with their regular instruction and two mornings each week they go to the firms that they are observing.

"The purpose of this class is to allow the students to exhibit a talent and to expand their creativity. We feel that this program is constructive in aiding their creativity and ideas about their futures," Ms. Joyner said.

"At the present the parents of the students have been very cooperative in assisting this program by arranging a carpool to carry the students to the firms which they are observing. The students observe the firms each Tuesday and Thursday from 8:30 to 10 a.m. and if a special event is going on at the firm on a particular day, the students may stay until lunch," she added. Jackie McLawhorn and Peggy Jones are two students who are observing in lawyer David Reid's office.

"We get to go to court and we have heard cases on larceny embezzlement, drunken drivers, and traffic cases," Jackie said. "Mr. Reid has sent us on errands for him to carry messages, and we have learned a little about searching for titles, occupations.

and reading over cases," she added.

"The best part about observing a lawyer's office is that you get to go to court," Peggy said.

"I hope that the girls have a little better understanding of the day to day general practice lawyer's office. They have seen the various problems that we are confronted with, they have been to court, the register of deed office, and have been with me when I would interview clients," Reid said.

"I feel that the observation program has been helpful to these girls. The only problem is that they are only in the eighth grade and it will be eight years before they would be able to make the final choice about studying law, but this is at least an introduction of the occupation for them. I would be willing to continue to support a similar program," he added.

West Paul observed in the office of Dudley and Shoe Architects. He not only watched the architects but was able to make a detailed sketch plan for a space community.

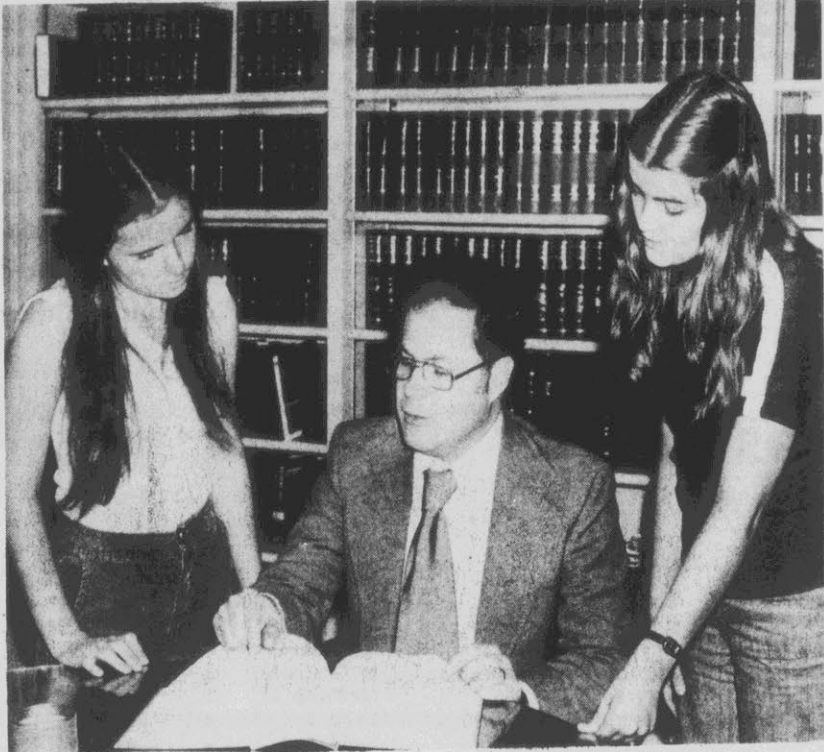

"I learned about blueprints and observed the blueprints of the new middle school. I also got a chance to learn about architectural designs and structural differences," Paul said.

"The observation program is new but we hope that we may continue it next year with the gifted class. These students are very active and this program is one more outlet of their creativity," Ms. Joyner said.

Have Legacy Of Captain Bligh

WILLEMSTAD, Curacao (UPI) — While the legendary Capt. Bligh generally is identified with the South Pacific, he once paid an unfriendly visit to the island of Curacao in the Netherlands Antilles. In 1804 he stormed ashore, captured an outer defense fort, besieged the city of Willemstad and fired a cannon at a church within the walls of Ft. Amsterdam. The cannon ball is still lodged in the wall of the old "Fort Church."

Oil Sheiks Pacing Run On Million Dollar Jewelry

By ARLETTE BAUDET
GENEVA, Switzerland (UPI) — At Christie's, they still talk about the buyer who put down $1.8 million for a pair of unmounted pear-shaped diamonds and the collector who paid $720,000 for two silver soup bowls.

At Sothebys, they remember the Saudi Arabian jeweler who spent $1.1 million for a pink 24-carat diamond.

A new class of wealthy buyers — including oil sheiks — has turned Switzerland into the world center for jewelry sales, reaping a fortune for international auction houses such as Christie's, Sothebys and Phillips.

The auction houses say buyers once were mostly investors, but now are people who buy jewels to keep and to wear.

"A lot of people fall in love with objects, chase them around the world, and are willing to pay any price for their esthetic value," said Ceza von Habsburg, director of Christie's in Geneva.

The Geneva private collector who bought the pair of silver soup bowls for $720,000 was "mad about them," he said.

The most expensive jewels auctioned at Christie's are bought to be worn, he said.

Women try them on at sales and bid anything to get them.

"People who live in the European jet set like to show off their jewels," von Habsburg said. "A woman of this society wouldn't want anyone to think that she is wearing fakes."

"I am totally against investing in works of art and jewelry as such," he added. "It is not really a hedge against inflation. The demand for certain objects may go down so that they may lose rather gain in value. If you buy an object for its esthetic value, you can never be disappointed."

Top quality is always an investment, however, experts say. Jewels especially always increase in value because of the limited amount available.

"Colored stones, like emeralds, now gain from five to 10 per cent in value annually," said George Wille, head of Sothebys in Zurich.

"The recession is certainly one reason why people are buying more jewels," said John Nuttall, director of Phillips in Geneva. "Because of currency fluctuations, jewels are becoming safe investments."

In Switzerland, sales of jewelry less than 100 years old is not taxable. This has attracted many of the world's most famous jewelers.

Also Switzerland, with its banking secrecy, is ideal for Christie's, Sothebys and Phillips knew this when they decided to settle in Geneva and Zurich a few years ago.

"At the beginning Swiss auction houses were very worried that we would take away their market, which was exclusively Swiss," von Habsburg said.

"This was not true, as our market in Geneva is mostly international. The Swiss, tinged by Calvinism, are not great art fans."

Some 600 dealers and private collectors flew from all over the world to attend spring sales in Switzerland.

While there were some Americans, Australians, Spaniards and Indians, the auctions attracted mainly oil-rich people from the Middle East.

"And they buy indiscriminately," said officials at Christie's.

Christie's April sale fetched over $10.4 million. Jewels alone sold for $5.6 million and silver for $2.8 million, a world record. Sothebys in Zurich sold 267 jewelry items for $3.6 million, including the $1.1 million pink diamond to a Saudi Arabian jeweler. Sothebys also holds a special session in swank St. Moritz during the skiing season, with the Shah of Iran and other personalities on hand.

"When the stock market dropped sharply, a year and a half ago, Christie's felt the sting of the recession," von Habsburg said. "By mid-1975, however, sales picked up and now have never been so active."

Last year Sothebys and Christie's each recorded total sales of $16 million.

Names of private collectors are strictly confidential.

"Most of the time we don't even know the names of private collectors, who often deal through agents to buy any important piece," Sothebys said.

City Sanitation Holiday Monday

Sanitation Division of the Public Works Department will be closed Monday for Memorial Day. The public is reminded that city employees receive several holidays each year and some of these fall on the week-end and are observed on Monday. In the Sanitation Division this results in garbage and trash pickup being delayed one day during the week that the holiday is observed. All residents and businesses will still receive their service as normal, except for the day of the holiday.

All residents are reminded to bag or box their leaves and yard trash for Wednesday pickup as usual when a holiday occurs. This type of trash normally picked up on Wednesday will be picked up on Thursday and Friday. Residents are further encouraged not to place any debris in the gutters and street system. It not only stops up the drain system, it also could cause serious accidents and is against the City code, Leavy Brock, Sanitation Superintendent said. Large and bulky trash pickup items such as limbs will be picked up for everyone as usual, but will run one day late the week of the holiday.

Monday and Tuesday garbage routes will run one day late being picked up Tuesday and Wednesday of holiday week and then be back on schedule. Residents and businesses of Greenville are thanked for their cooperation in the past and their support is solicited in the future. "With your help the City of Greenville will remain among the cleanest in the state," Brock said.

Questions concerning this article should be directed to Leavy Brock, Superintendent of Sanitation or Mayo E. Allen, Director of Public Works, both 752-4137.

Set Summer Guitar Class

Under the sponsorship of the Greenville Parks and Recreation Department, guitar lessons will be offered during the summer months.

For the third consecutive summer, Billy Stinson, art teacher at Rose High, will be the instructor. Registration date is Wednesday, June 9. On that date, determination will be made of class arrangements, with both day and night classes scheduled if necessary.

Three levels of instruction will be provided—beginning, intermediate and advanced. All classes will be meeting at the art room at Rose High School.

Instruction will be in group classes. Stinson hopes to arrange for an average of ten pupils per class, but will accept a maximum of 12 or a minimum of eight students per class.

A fee of $20 for ten hours of instruction will be charged.

Stinson has performed extensively in the local area, at Sundays in the Park, at bicentennial celebrations, in local clubs, etc.

'Dream' Of Archeologists Recovered From The Sea

JUST LIKE MAMA!—Jayne Marie Mansfield, whose mother thrilled a generation of males, tries on a coat at New York's Coliseum. She showed up the National Fashion and Boutique Show. (AP Wirephoto)

By GREGORY JENSEN
LONDON (UPI) — Sealed in bottles in a British Museum storeroom they look like bits of broken crockery, not sunken treasure steeped in romance.

To pert and pretty Dr. Ann Birchall they are mainly a practical problem — the biggest jigsaw puzzle in the world.

"This isn't simply one puzzle with 8,000 pieces," said the 38-year-old archaeologist in her book-lined Museum office.

"There are 180 separate puzzles at least, and probably more. Just finding somewhere to lay them out is a problem."

But Dr. Birchall is hardly immune to the romance of a story which involves Emma Hamilton, the famous courtesan who was Lord Nelson's mistress, and embraces works of art 2,400 years old, a disastrous shipwreck and treasure rescued from the bottom of the sea.

"Nothing like this has ever happened before," said Dr. Birchall, assistant keeper of Greek and Roman antiquities at the British Museum. "The whole of the circumstances is unique."

"I mean, a famous collection of ancient objects, lost at sea two centuries ago and now found practically on our own doorstep — well, it's an archaeologist's dream."

The "famous collection" belonged to Sir William Hamilton, husband of the scandalous

Emma, who was Britain's ambassador in Naples in the late 18th century and an avid collector specializing in ancient vases.

In 1772 he shipped his collection to the British Museum. It formed the nucleus for what is now the biggest hoard of Greek vases in the world. Then Hamilton started collecting again.

But he and Emma had to flee Naples when Napoleon's army threatened Italy. His second collection, which he judged to be "finer than the first," was hastily loaded aboard two ships for England.

One ship made it. The Colossus didn't.

The Colossus sank Dec. 10, 1798, in a fierce storm off the English west coast. Down went eight cases of the heartbroken Hamilton's finest treasures.

Two years ago the scattered remains of the Colossus were located off the Scilly Islands. Divers began bringing up broken bits of crockery — the remains of Hamilton's ancient vases.

Dr. Birchall is the British Museum's top expert on Greek vases. She is also a seasoned archaeologist — "I've been excavating since I was 16," she said. She was thus an obvious choice to take charge of the underwater Colossus "dig."

Cautiously, scientifically, for six weeks last year divers excavated the sea bed. The 8,000 fragments they have found so far may be just the start.

"It's a mystery how much is still there," Dr. Birchall said.

"At one stage Hamilton had over 1,000 vases. But when the collection was packed up in that emergency situation, no inventory was made."

"We know about 180 of his vases that are missing," Hamilton had precise drawings made of them before he shipped them from Naples. Dr. Birchall thinks all 180 lie six fathoms deep in the ribs of the Colossus.

"But from the material already here, I can see there are a lot of vases in the wreck that are not identical to these drawings, and are not known at all," she said.

"We expect we may have 200 to 300 vases, but there is no way of telling yet."

Out of curiosity, while her staff has been "sorting, marking, photographing, studying" every fragment, Dr. Birchall began setting aside pieces of one "particularly fine" vase and matching them to its drawing. It is an Attic red-figure vase, made in 440 B.C.

Five months ago she had found 17 fragments of the vase. Now she has 37. It may take hundreds to put the whole vase together.

"I hope it will be possible to do a sufficient amount to make a good exhibition in 1978," Dr. Birchall said. "But of course we'll doubtless still be at work long after that."

begins in May, this time for five months. Recovered fragments are soaked in British Museum bottles until all the salts are gone, and then the scholarly process begins. It is slow work.

Piano Students Giving Recital

Candidate Will Be Here Friday

Veteran legislator James C. (Jimmy) Green of Bladen County, who has announced his candidacy for lieutenant governor, will make an appearance at a campaign breakfast in Greenville, Friday, June 4.

JAMES C. GREEN

Green, presently Speaker of the House of Representatives, has served eight consecutive terms in the North Carolina House and Senate since 1961 representing Bladen, Columbus and Sampson counties. A resident of Clarkton, N.C., he is a prominent tobacco warehouseman, farmer and businessman.

Mary Faye Shires of Greenville, coordinator for the event, said Green, candidate for the Democratic nomination in August, will be in Greenville to meet all interested persons at a Dutch ($2.50) breakfast at the Holiday Inn, in Greenville, beginning at 7:30 a.m.

Green will make a few remarks and also plans to conduct a news conference for area news media following the breakfast. Jack Spain of Greenville is serving as co-coordinator for the visit.

Green plans visits to Snow Hill and Farmville and will also attend a luncheon in Tarboro later on the same day, June 4.

A lifelong Democrat, Green served in the U.S. Marines in the Pacific in World War II. He has served on the Bladen County board of education.

Green is married to the former Alice Clark and they have three children. He is a Presbyterian, Rotarian and a 32nd degree Mason.

Livestock Ass'n Gathers June 3

On Thursday, June 3, the Pitt County Livestock Development Association will hold a meeting at the Pitt County Fairgrounds.

A dutch pig pickin' at $3 per person will begin at 6 p.m., followed by a program on "Livestock Waste Management."

Dr. James Barker, an agricultural engineering specialist from N. C. State University, will be the guest speaker. A business meeting for members will also be held.

Members and those interested in joining the Livestock Development Association are encouraged to attend. Call the Pitt County Extension Office, 758-1196, for more information.

Has A-Frame Safe From Hurricanes For Only $18

By ROBERT D. INDERMAN
DALLAS (UPI) — In half a day, Fred Cuny and his friends can build a comfortable single-family dwelling that is safe from hurricane winds and floods of up to five feet.

And a $10 bill will cover the cost of construction. Cuny is executive director of a Texas-based firm called Intertect, an acronym for International Architects. His clients are the world's homeless: persons displaced because of famine, floods, earthquakes and war.

What Intertect does in part is design and construct refugee camps. Its work has taken Cuny from Bangladesh following the 1971 Indian-Pakistani war to earthquake-ravaged Guatemala this year.

"To an outsider, it might appear like we're making profit from disasters," Cuny said. "That's wrong, of course. We are a private enterprise working hand-in-hand with relief organizations providing a complete package of services they are not equipped to supply." Intertect's $10, bamboo-and-reed home will never make the front cover of Better Homes and Gardens, but to shelterless refugees it can be a life-saver.

Intertect produced the home in conjunction with Pittsburgh's Carnegie-Mellon University. Total investment in research, materials, training and testing a full-scale model in Guatemala was $7,500.

Last year the dwelling was selected to represent the United States in a UNESCO-sponsored competition on relief housing. About 240 nations had entries and Intertect won one of the three major categories for refugee housing.

The house follows the basic A-frame design, employing thick bamboo members laced together in a "tension-compression relationship."

"When the wind hits, one member becomes tense and the other compresses," Cuny said. "This combination transfers the force of the wind into the ground and keeps the building firmly planted into its foundation."

To cope with tropical monsoons, the first floor is located five feet above the ground. A special type of plastic cement mixes with the mud to protect and preserve the bamboo.

Intertect's latest challenge is the design of homes in the Guatemalan highlands that can resist earthquakes and to teach the natives how to build them quickly and economically.

"We're working with OXFAM (the British equivalent of CARE) and World Neighbors getting people to build a quake resistant core shelter, of course using the local materials at hand — adobe," Cuny said.

"After an earthquake, the people will rebuild what they consider just a temporary structure, but whatever they rebuild usually becomes permanent. They add on to it, they build on top of it, and as the years go by, it becomes weaker and weaker."

"They should realize that the core structure will be permanent, should be permanent. We want to affect the whole way their homes are being built without actually altering their basic form, their own architecture."

Cuny said the adobe dwellings could be made more resistant to earthquakes by building lighter but stronger walls and roofs internally "with perhaps barbed wire tying the adobe blocks together and perhaps wood bracing."

"We also want to show them the right land to build on," he said. "And we also want to teach them that making adobe with grass roots — the old style — is much better than what they are doing now."

The biggest problem, Cuny said, is convincing the people that the new way is the better way.

"We are working with the people now while they are still upset about the recent earthquake and not resistant to new ideas about their survival," he said. "We brief the local builders, the folk constructionists of each village, on the new techniques and then they pass on the information and techniques to the people."

"They in effect help themselves," he said.

Cuny, a native Texan in his early 30s, has a long history of working with refugees. In 1969, during the dying minutes of the Nigerian-Biafra conflict, he flew fish meal and a high protein food known as CSM into refugee camps and flew children out aboard a lumbering C97.

"It was while I was working in Biafra that the idea of Intertect originated," he said.

"There were a lot of doctors engineering and architectural and nurses, but most of the people in the relief organizations didn't have any background in engineering or architecture. They could react but they couldn't answer the basic need of the people that they were helping — inexpensive refugee housing constructed from local materials with minimal time, effort, expense and skill."

Cuny met several other architects who shared the same idea as his — a profit-making consulting firm specializing in relief work.

"A lot of people do research in this field, but no one except us combines research with construction capabilities. We do the research, produce the designs and actually work in the field."

Intertect has a fulltime staff of five, but it operates on what Cuny calls a "cooperative basis."

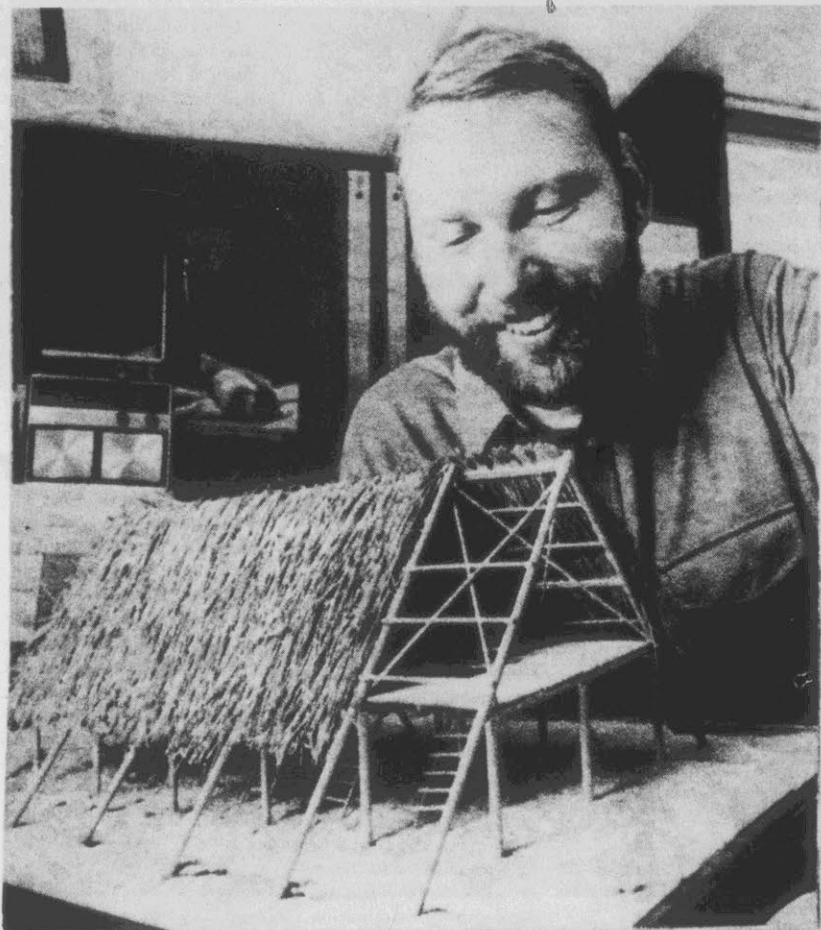

The firm has numerous engineering and architectural specialists available to him at short notice for short-term projects. They also serve on the firm's research advisory committee.

"When a disaster strikes, I contact one of the relief organizations I work with and then send someone out to the area to research the situation," he said.

After Guatemala, the next stop for Intertect is Ethiopia.

"We have a contract virtually complete," he said. "We will continue our work in Guatemala and then in about six weeks to two months, we'll be flying some of our people to help the Ethiopian refugees."

"And there's a lot of them."

FRED CUNY and his friends can build in half a day a comfortable single-family dwelling that's safe from hurricane winds and floods up to five feet. (UPI Photo)

Set Summer Day Camp For Children Of Area

East Carolina University will offer week-long summer day camp programs for school children in the Greenville area this summer.

A day camp for children aged six through 13 will be repeated four times during June and July, on a half-day or all-day basis. Campers may attend all four weeks.

ECU faculty members Gay Blocker and Jo Saunders and several ECU physical education students will direct the camp activities.

Further information about the camp and registration materials are available from the Department of Health and Physical Education, East Carolina University, Greenville.

A day camp in Life Time Sports will be offered August 2-6 for students in the 11-18 age group.

The camp will be directed by Ms. Blocker, who will be assisted by Catherine Bolton of the ECU physical education faculty and Terry Ward, Lenoir County physical education teacher.

Further information and registration materials for the Life Time Sports Camp is available from Gay Blocker, Department of Health and Physical Education, East Carolina University, Greenville.

Summer Leagues Now Forming

OUCH!

Summer electric rates are here again...

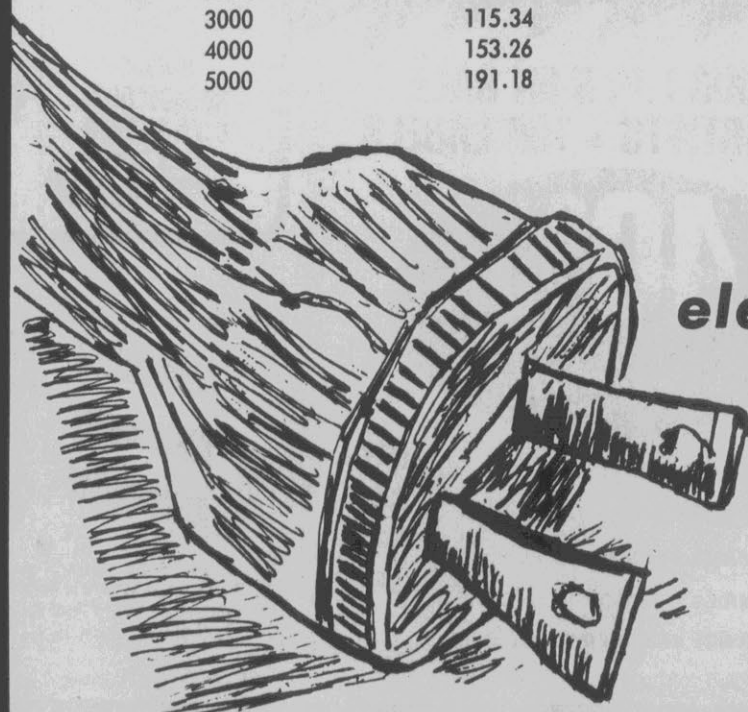

...and, unfortunately, there is little we can do about it. Summer rates are higher to cover the cost of extra facilities necessary to carry the heavy demands for electricity created by hot weather during the month of June, July, August and September.

We also have to pass along VEPCO's Approved Fuel Charge. And, we don't like it any better than you do.

Fortunately the higher rates are only in effect for the four summer months. Substantially lower winter rates will return in October.

To compare winter and summer costs and to estimate the size of your summer electric bills simply study the figures beside your estimated monthly usage in the table shown below.

KWH	Cost During Summer 1975 Including Average FFC Of ($0.00932) KWH	Cost During May 1976 Including AFC of ($0.00065) KWH	Cost In June 1976 Including Estimated AFC of ($0.00100) KWH

Priest 'Hooked' On Job Of Remodeling Old Home

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

Where do church people go when they retire?

That thought occurred to Father Willoughby Newton one day and he realized it was something he should face up to — sooner than later. It turned him into a do-it-yourselfer.

The Virginia-born Episcopalian priest is headmaster of the girls' school, Wykeham Rise, at Washington, Conn.

"I suddenly realized that I had never really had a home of my own," he says. "I've always lived in the homes of other people. Sometime I'd want my own house ..."

He decided he had "a good number of work years ahead so he could afford to make the house investment now." If he waited 15 or 20 years, he felt he might not be able to afford it.

Within a short walk of the school, off a lane appropriately called Sabbath Lane, he found Sabbath House, a 200-year-old house that he could remodel "without raising the hackles of neighbors." Built before the Revolution, the rooms were tiny, two above, two below, plus bath and kitchen.

A maintenance man-friend who worked for him at the school agreed to lend a guiding hand and as it turned out he was "an indefatigable worker."

The design had been put on paper — he had once wanted to be an architect — Father Newton explained, and he knew that he would remove several walls.

"Not renowned for my manual skills, I soon discovered that a wrecking bar has two ends. If one doesn't work, you try the other," he said.

He did all the gutting of lathe and sheet rock, he helped cart some of the new sheet rock, and he even learned to cut it.

He also put insulation into walls and doors. He worked inside closets and did a lot of the painting.

"At the school I somehow never feel I have completed a project. But here I had the feeling that I was accomplishing something every time I worked. And it was therapeutic. The work stretched for a couple of hours a day to some 12-hour days on Saturdays and vacation days. In fact, I complained to my co-worker that I had never worked him that hard at school," he said, laughing.

A contractor was hired to add 12 feet to the house for a new kitchen area. "at the back of the house because I'm such a messy cook," he said.

The fireplace was paneled with yellow pine taken from the old bedroom doors and with walls removed on either side it opened the two rooms into a 24-by-24-foot area. Wide floor boards were stained walnut for an old look.

In addition to family heirlooms, acquisitions from friends and his own contemporary purchases — Barcelona chairs and a Portuguese rug — there is a handsome collection of porcelain colored eggs on the bookshelves, bright white porcelain and ironstone on a cir-lar table, and unusual wall art that includes a photograph of the tombstone of Peter Thorp, first occupant of the house.

"I'm considering renting the house so that I can afford eventually to add a convenient bedroom and bath on the lower floor," Father Newton, said, adding that "once you start do-it-yourself, you are sort of hooked."

'Methuselah' Is Alive And Well

BISHOP, Calif. (AP) — Methuselah is still alive, and well, and living 12 miles east of here.

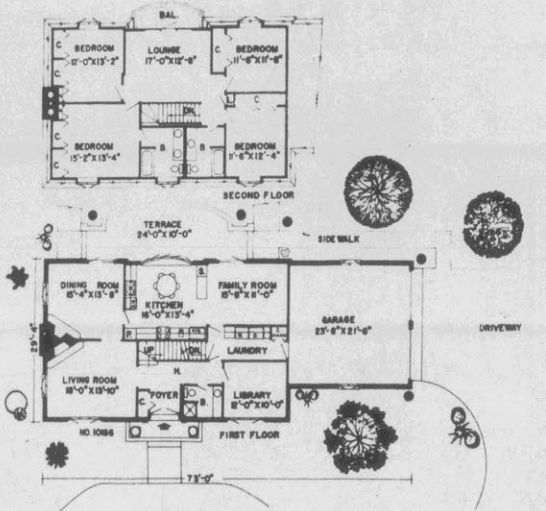

"Methuselah" is a 4,600-year-old bristlecone pine tree, and, according to Rand McNally's "National Forest Guide," the oldest known living thing on earth. The publication says Methuselah and a nearby companion, a tree named "Patriarch," which is the largest of the bristlecones, can be visited in the Ancient Bristlecone Pine Forest, located near California's famous John Muir Wilderness.

FRENCH PROVINCIAL UPDATED DESIGN LUXURY PLAN DETAILS

Q. — The brick stairway at the rear of our house needs some repairs. About a dozen bricks will have to be replaced. The stairway is very old and these particular bricks are split and otherwise damaged. I know pretty much how to remove the old bricks and put in the new ones, since I did the same thing a couple of years ago with three bricks in the same stairway. However, when I did that job, the new mortar between the bricks was very much lighter than the old and the repairs stood out very much. It took about a year before the mortar weathered enough so you couldn't see where the patchwork had been done. How can this be avoided?

A. — Not very easily. While you can buy a coloring additive to put in the mortar mixture, it is black (that was the only kind I could get a couple of years ago) and requires a lot of experimenting to match it; mortar. Too little and there is no result. Too much and the mortar gets too dark. What I finally did was to use the ready-mix mortar as it comes from the bag, adding only water, and then a week later rubbing dirt all over the repaired joints. This made the new mortar less noticeable. One of the most important processes in this type of job is to "cure" the patches by wetting them down every day for several days after the original application of the mixture. This prevents the mortar from drying out too quickly. It is assumed you know that soaking the new bricks for a few hours before setting them in place is also a good idea and for the same reason.

Q. — I have been told that aluminum paint makes an excellent primer for woodwork on the outside of the house. Is this true?

A. — Yes. But be sure to use only aluminum house paint, not the kind intended for use indoors.

Q. — We are considering having sliding doors put into a large closet of an extra room. The only reason we are hesitating is because of the disadvantage that the doors have to be manipulated to get into one side or the other of the closet, as is the case in a closet we now have in a bedroom. Is there any way we can install sliding doors so that the contents of the entire closet are accessible at the same time?

A. — In some original installations, this disadvantage is eliminated by a construction procedure which permits the doors to open into the walls on either side of the closet. You don't say whether this closet is going into a room already built or whether the room and closet are to be built together. If the latter, the carpenter should have no trouble. If the former, then he will have to judge whether this kind of installation is possible.

(Thirty five do-it-yourself problems are handled in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," available by sending $1 to this newspaper at Box 5, Teaneck, N. J. 07666. Questions can not be answered individually.)

The traditional charm of a French country home forms the basis for the updated floor plan in the Bellecoeur. With the addition of modern concepts of formal and informal living areas, plus an elegant balconied lounge and cozy library, the design emerges as a lavish, contemporary dwelling. Brick, shake shingles, and small-paned casement windows blend to craft an exterior that preserves the beauty of the past. Double doors lead into the gracious foyer, lined with a coat closet, and extras include the full bath at right and the corner library, a welcome retreat.

Guests are ushered into the living room at left, where the corner fireplace makes a dramatic statement. Another fireplace lights the bordering dining room, a room spacious enough to accommodate large dinner parties in refined elegance. For informal times, the ample kitchen provides a family dining area near the bay window and overlooking the terrace.

The family room, which opens onto the terrace, and a sizable laundry room also make up the main floor.

The second floor of this engaging plan spotlights the lounge, a large area that overlooks and opens to its own balcony. Four bedrooms provide plenty of sleeping space and include a lavish master bedroom with double closets and private bath.

In all, the Bellecoeur displays nearly 2800 sq. ft. of living space and succeeds in fusing a generous, contemporary floor plan with a facade that reflects the gracious living of a French country home.

Wood bleaching came into its own some years ago when so-called blond finishes became the rage in modern furniture. Actually, bleaching is a very old process that may have been in use thousands of years ago when man discovered that he could change the color of wood with various natural agents.

Today, bleaching is still used as a preliminary to the application of blond finishing materials. It has several other uses, chief among them being to change the wood into a uniform light color from which to begin the entire finishing process, even when the ultimate aim is to apply a stain to make the surface darker again. The idea is that if you begin with a light, even tone, the new stain will take without the danger of a multicolored effect.

Another use for bleach is to remove the coloring from wood that sometimes remains after the old finish has been taken off. If this is done, it is essential that the bleach be applied to the entire surface and not merely to the areas where color remains. This insures the same degree of whiteness over the full surface.

While there are some products on the market to make wood lighter without bleaching, the true bleaches should not be applied to anything but new wood or wood from which the old finish has been removed.

Commercial wood bleaches usually come in different bottles and must be applied separately according to the directions on the containers. It is always important to follow the instructions of the manufacturers of finishing materials, but especially so in the case of bleaches, since they are chemicals and must be handled carefully and in a specific manner. You will need rubber gloves and old clothes that cover as much of your arms and body as possible. Never pour the bleach into anything made of metal. While there are some specially treated metal cans on the market that will withstand the chemicals, the metal containers you have around the house will not do. If any pouring must be done, use glass or earthenware.

For many years, bleaching was done with home-made solutions. One of these called for 3 ounces of oxalic acid crystals in one quart of water, 3 ounces of sodium hyposulphate in one quart of water and one ounce of borax in one quart of water. The oxalic acid solution was applied first with a stiff brush. The hypo solution was applied when the first mixture was partly dry. And the borax solution was put on when the bleach was thoroughly dry, its purpose being to destroy any traces of acid still in the wood. This process worked fairly well, and still does, but the commercial bleaches are scientifically prepared and work better.

Since a bleach of any kind often raises the grain of the wood, sanding is necessary before proceeding with the finishing material. If stain is applied over the bleach, wait a day and then put on a coat of diluted shellac or some other sealer. But again — the key to getting a good result with bleach is to follow the manufacturer's instructions to the letter.

Indiana 'Home' Of Rain Trees

NEW HARMONY, Ind. (AP)—Common garden varieties of the Paniculata, maple and oak trees, can be seen throughout America, but this historic southwestern Indiana community is home to perhaps the most unusual Paniculata, the Koelreuteria Paniculata, or the "Golden Rain Tree." Planted in the early 19th century by naturalist Thomas Say, the Golden Rain Trees produce clusters of small golden blossoms during the late spring. When shed a few weeks later, the blossoms create a golden shower. According to legend, it was the Chinese who gave the Golden Rain Tree its name.

The Mopeds Are Coming! The Mopeds Are Coming!

By FRED T. FERGUSON
NEW YORK (UPI) — Mopeds have an identity problem.

In fact, moped owners are given a special identity card to tell a cop what a moped is, legally speaking. This is in states where the law now allows mopeds. Most still don't — mopeds also have an acceptance problem.

"Call it a motorized bicycle first," says moped entrepreneur Edward A. Pollitz, Jr. "Don't call it a moped. People don't know what they are yet." Not in this country, at least. Although there now are 17 million of the bikes putt-putting around Western Europe and as many as 40 million worldwide, Pollitz figures there are no more than 70,000 in the United States.

Pollitz intends to overcome the problems and promote mopeds' mass use in the United States. His moped import firm (Motobecane America Ltd.) issues special cards to each moped buyer in the 10 states that permit them. The cards quote the section of state law permitting their use.

"So, if a cop pulls you over and tells you it's a motorcycle, you dangle it in front of his face," Pollitz said.

Pollitz has made a good start on his plan. Ten more states have legislation pending to permit mopeds. But several have rejected them with reasoning such as that of New York's officials. They say, in effect, mopeds must be protected from the high speed gas burners by banning mopeds.

"This country may be able to afford two chickens in every pot," Pollitz said. "But the time is fast approaching when it can no longer afford two cars in every garage."

Mopeds have advantages as a method of short haul transportation. For starters, Pollitz said, "A moped is quiet, economical on fuel, cheap to buy, easy to park and easy to maintain because its motor is simple."

"It requires less coordination to ride than a 10-speed bicycle, reduces traffic congestion, conserves energy and has a better safety record than cars or motorcycles."

"It is very hard to kill yourself going 20 miles an hour," he said. Some of the states which permit them say, "No title, registration, driver's license, inspection, helmet or insurance is required."

Others have some requirements. Nevada riders need a driver's license and insurance. California allows riders who have an instruction permit. Texas insists on inspections and a motor-assisted-bicycle operator's license.

Minimum operators' ages range down to 14 except in Hawaii, which only "suggests" 14 as the minimum age.

Pollitz concedes mopeds have a disadvantage. The only thing to do when it rains, he says, is "get wet." But he insists they are so slow and stable, they are safe to ride in the rain. "Everyone does in Europe."

Of current moped operators in this country, Pollitz says 43 per cent get to work on them. Most are factory workers living close to their jobs. Others include a doctor who makes his rounds by moped. He says 46 per cent of all agricultural workers in France, where there is a moped for every 8.8 persons, make it to the fields by moped.

He cites these figures in support of his contention they can be used to alleviate mass transit problems in many areas.

"I believe in mass transit in a city like New York," he said. "But when you have billions being spent on mass transit systems you may never be able to finish or get people to ride, it is time to consider the alternatives."

"Mopeds are no panacea or replacement for the auto. But they are cheaper than mass transit systems which are not going to materialize out of thin air."

Talk about a motorized bicycle in this country and someone invariably mentions motorcycle, motorbike, minibike, or trail bike.

"There is this confusion between minibikes and mopeds," Pollitz says, by way of example. "Minibikes are universally offroad vehicles suited for small adults and children — small wheels, tubular bodies, lawnmower engines, very noisy, no safety equipment to speak of. Every state has stringent laws against using minibikes on the road." A minibike motor is three and a half to seven horsepower and can push a minibike to speeds of 50 mph. A motorbike or a trailbike goes still faster. A motorcycle can top 100 mph easy. Therein lies part of the moped's identity problem.

The federal Department of Transportation came along in 1964 with a code that described any two-wheeled vehicle as a motorcycle. It set standards lumping mopeds, and everything in between, with motorcycles. Among other things, it required powerful brakes that could halt 300 to 900 pound motorcycles from high speed in 300 to 350 feet, and headlights with beams strong enough for those high speeds.

"A moped engine, at one to two horsepower, couldn't power the beams and push the bicycle, too," Pollitz said. "The code effectively eliminated mopeds from the American road."

Then came the 1973 Mideast War and Arab oil boycott.

"People became aware that oil is a wasting resource," Pollitz said. "We must find alternatives that use less energy. My car gets eight miles a gallon. Mopeds get 125 to 220." The following August, Pollitz, then an investment analyst, was summering with his family at St. Tropez. He got to thinking about how their 70-year-old maid, Madame Vendu, traveled three miles daily to their villa on her cyclomoteur (moped).

"I had never seen one in the United States," he said.

He began checking and found the United States "is the only country in which the moped is not a principal form of shorthaul transportation."

While petitioning the Department of Transportation to change its standards, Pollitz teamed up with Motobecane of France, which produces the 900,000 mopeds annually.

In 1974, the federal government approved moped standards — stringent ones. As a result, mopeds cost between $319 to $500 in this country because of requirements for such things as sealed beam headlights and brake lights for the front and rear wheel hand brakes.

"The requirements translate into a $100 difference in cost," Pollitz said. "But the moped sold here is a lot safer. When you consider their safety record in Europe — a sixth the motorcycle accident rate, two-thirds the rate for cars — they are very safe."

Mopeds' acceptance problem relates partly to fears they will appeal to the teen-aged market.

"I want to save our children's blood, not gas," said a New Jersey official before they were approved there.

Pollitz said 60 per cent of owners are over 30 because "every kid in the United States wants to drive a car. The reality is that teen-agers will not be a major part of our market."

However, the New York State

Motor Vehicle Department got the governor to veto a bill that would have approved mopeds because as a spokesman put it, "You've got to consider their acceleration rate. We're concerned about such things as rear-end collisions. This is a motorized society."

So the state, with a few exceptions, prohibits anything with a motor that cannot do at least 40 miles an hour.

Accessories now include baskets specifically built to hold two shopping bags.

"It's plain silly to take a $4,000 car to buy a loaf of bread," Pollitz said.

Horse Stealing Is On The Rise

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Horse theft is increasing in Oklahoma where there are approximately 250,000 horses and the horse industry is valued at more than $900 million.

Dr. Wendell Sylvester, president of the Oklahoma Horsemen's Association, said the problem was once primarily a rural one, but now thefts occur at stables closer to metropolitan areas.

And where do those stolen horses go?

60th Indianapolis 500 Airs Sunday

The 60th running of the Indianapolis "500" will be aired by ABC on the same day it is run, Sunday, May 30, 9 p.m., with 33 of the world's fastest cars and most daring drivers competing for the purse that is expected to exceed one million dollars.

The race is the culmination of nearly a month of time trials, engine tuning and driver strategy sessions prior to race day. The 33 cars qualify from an original field of 71 cars entered in the time trials.

The ABC cameras, at strategic points around the track, capture all the high-speed tension, the pit activity and the excitement of the crowd. Each year this crowd of some 300,000 spectators transforms the Indianapolis Motor Speedway into a 571-acre city.

Aside from the fan-fare, the evolution of the '500' into an American Institution, and the size of the purse, the actual race itself has changed little, save the speed itself, since that sunny day in 1911 when Ray Harroun wheeled his yellow and black Marmon Wasp across the finish line at the first Indianapolis "500."

The track has been resurfaced to cover up the bricks, but the turns are the same, the straightaways are just as they were and the track width is unaltered. But, somehow, the speed has risen from 74 to nearly 200 MPH. One major thing has never changed: the fans still sit and watch in wonderment as their heroes zip around the track.

The drivers will tell you that each track has its own personality. At Indy, as at any track, it is imperative to learn its peculiarities and to feel its pulse before even attempting to qualify there, because it has conquered many drivers.

Although each turn has its own personality, you drive them all about the same way. Most importantly, when you are going through a turn you want to keep the car going in as much of a straight line as possible because it requires less power. Instead of merely going straight down the middle of the track, you must go very wide as you enter and drive across the turn. In the center of the turn you barely touch the inside line, and then you drive it straight toward the wall at the end of the corner, coming off only inches from the concrete.

When you enter, you float the throttle just a little, drive across the turn and then get back on it hard, just as the car starts turning down. From there, when you are running straight, you use as much power as possible so that you can maintain maximum horsepower.

Naturally, this all applies to a race car that is all alone on a particular part of the track. When you add 32 other cars there is a different set of rules.

The best drivers are the ones who drive deeper into the corners and come off faster and smoother. This is usually a combination of ability, nerve, and determination, which is, perhaps, the definition of a champion.

RACING—ABC Sports will provide exclusive, same day coverage of the famed Indianapolis "500" car race from Indianapolis Motor Speedway on Sunday, May 30 (9-11 p.m.) on ABC-TV, with sportscaster Jim McKay and color commentator Chris Economaki.

Free Press, Fair Trial Examined

An extensive examination of the apparent conflict between two Constitutional guarantees — a defendant's right of a fair trial and the journalist's right to freely report information about those criminal proceedings — will be presented Wednesday, June 2, 10 to 11 p.m., on NBC-TV.

The NBC News special, "Free Press-Fair Trial—Is the First Amendment Unconstitutional?", will explore both sides of the controversy and define for the television audience what is at stake for our society. NBC News correspondent Edwin Newman is the reporter on the program, produced for NBC by Bob Rogers.

Said Rogers: "After nearly two centuries of co-existence, a series of relatively recent court decisions have brought the First Amendment guarantees of Free Speech and a Free Press into stark conflict with Sixth Amendment rights to a fair trial.

In June, the United States Supreme Court is expected to render a decision on the problem which could alter the direction of nearly 200 years of American Constitutional History. The outcome will fundamentally affect the Constitutional rights of every American."

The issue came to a head last November when an unemployed fence repairman was arrested for the slayings and sexual assaults of six people in the small town of Sutherland, Neb. Through the actual participants in the case, the program will show how restrictions on press coverage of the case touched off the controversy between the journalists and the courts.

Through other cases across the country, the report will examine the proliferation of judicial "Gag Orders," and the responsibilities of the press for keeping the public informed concerning court proceedings. Included in the Dickerson case in Baton Rouge, La. There, Larry Dickerson, a newspaper reporter, and another reporter were cited for contempt by Federal District Judge E. Gordon West after they ignored his order not to report testimony given at a public court hearing on an alleged political assassination conspiracy.

The reporters felt the order was clearly unconstitutional. An appeals court agreed, but said, nevertheless, the reporters should have obeyed the order pending judicial appeal. The reporters were held guilty of contempt and a nationwide precedent was set. Both Judge West and Dickerson will discuss the case on the program.

Also interviewed in the report are former Supreme Court Justice Tom Clark, Former Deputy Attorney General William Ruckelshaus, Federal Judge Harold R. Medina and Colorado Supreme Court Justice William Erickson, as well as editors, lawyers and reporters involved in this crucial constitutional question.

The report will also explore the basic issue of just what constitutes an impartial jury and the growing presumption by some judges that a potential juror who has knowledge of a case cannot be impartial. Opponents say the Sixth Amendment requires only that a juror be neutral, not ignorant of the facts, and that the current emphasis on seeking out the least informed citizens as jurors will destroy our jury system. For this part of the program an actual jury selection procedure was filmed in a Colorado courtroom.

In addition, the report will examine the strong possibility that current judicial attitudes about prejudicial publicity could permit clever criminals, who can generate massive publicity about their own crime, to go free. As an example of this trend, the program will examine a 1974 kidnapping case in which the victim says that publicity about the case, much of it demanded by the kidnapper himself, led an appeals court to reverse the kidnapper's conviction.

'Viva Valdez' Premieres

"Viva Valdez," a new half-hour comedy series about a Chicano family living in an East Los Angeles barrio, premieres Monday, May 31, 8 to 8:30 p.m., on ABC Ch. 3-5-12.

The parents, Sophia and Luis Valdez, try valiantly to cling to traditional values while coping with their four liberated and individualistic offspring. Eldest son Victor works with Papa Valdez in the family plumbing business and seldom see eye to eye with artistic Ernesto, enrolled in a telephone company executive training program. Irrepressible Connie is a contemporary high school student and Pepe, 12, is concerned with baseball and getting a college education. A frequent visitor in the Valdez home is cousin Jerry Ramirez, a newcomer to the United States.

Starring as Sophia and Luis Valdez are Carmen Zapata and Rodolfo Hoyos.

Ms. Zapata, of Mexican-Argentinian heritage, has won two Emmy nominations for Best Supporting Actress for performances in the "Tio Tico" segment of "Medical Center" and for a PBS production, "Carolla."

Her other TV credits include "Marcus Welby, M.D.," "The Rookies," "Bonanza," "Love American Style," "McMillan & Wife," and a CBS movie, "A Home of Our Own."

Devoted to the theater, she is actively involved in producing and acting in theatrical presentations, and in 1974, she founded the Bilingual Foundation of the Arts which she presently heads.

MAMA, PAPA—Carmen Zapata and Rodolfo Hoyos star as Mam and Papa Valdez, parents of a close-knit Mexican-American family that lives in East Los Angeles, where the parents try to cling to their traditional cultural values while their children are more tuned in to life in the American mainstream in "Viva Valdez" new ABC comedy series, which premieres on Monday, May 31 (8-8:30 p.m.) with the episode "Father and Son."

Rona Studies Stars

Rona Barrett, the columnist with a wasp-like tongue, says that she would never ask questions while interviewing personalities that she would be embarrassed to answer herself. As outspoken as she is, this could cover a lot of territory. And this is exactly what she does on her hour-long special, "Rona Looks at James Caan, Michael Caine, Elliott Gould and Burt Reynolds," to be rebroadcast Thursday, June 3, 3 to 4 p.m., on CBS-TV. Rona follows the basic format she used when she interviewed four female stars - Raquel Welch, Liza Minnelli, Cher and Ann-Margaret - in an earlier special. As did the gals - the guys - four of American's top-ranking motion picture stars - respond with candid answers to her searching, personal questions. The talks believes that people want to know what their favorite stars really think. She says that she's been a fan all of her life and consequently can approach an interview from a fan's viewpoint. "I don't care what my favorite person eats for breakfast, I want to know whom he eats it with. I want to know how he thinks, how he reacts, how he relates to others - especially the opposite sex."

Rona thinks her rapport with the male stars was more open and candid than that which she achieved with the women. "The male stars related to me as a woman, and their reaction is there on the film for everyone to interpret." All but Burt Reynolds were interviewed in Miss Barrett's home. Reynolds was on location shooting his latest movie "Gator" in Savannah, Ga. The persistent reporter hauled her crew down to Savannah and got just what she wanted from Burt - in much the same as she did from the other three sex-symbols; in-depth and blunt, to-the-point answers about their private lives.

Moynihan Interviewed By CBS

"Daniel Patrick Moynihan, former counsellor to four Presidents, former Ambassador to India and to the United Nations...one of the most colorful and controversial men in American public life. He has been praised and attacked by blacks and whites, by the far left and the new right," says CBS News National Correspondent Eric Sevareid of his guest on "Conversations With Eric Sevareid," Sunday, May 30, 10 to 11 p.m., on Channel 11.

The wide-ranging conversation between Moynihan and Sevareid took place at the former's home in Cambridge, Mass. On the broadcast Moynihan draws on his vast store of experiences to discuss the insider's view of the United Nations, how he came to work there, and left abruptly seven months later.

The Soviet role in the Middle East - particularly in regard to Israel - is discussed, as well as what Moynihan sees as the world-wide Russian influence on countries to nationalize foreign-owned corporate installations in a trade of technological aide for ideology.

Additionally, Moynihan's theory on an American crime wave of historic proportions and his advice to former President Nixon on the extent of Federal responsibility for the explosive problems of inner cities are covered on the broadcast.

A Fulbright scholar and Harvard professor with a doctorate in law and diplomacy, Moynihan grew up in tenements in New York City's "Hell's Kitchen" and upper West Side. He shined shoes and peddled papers to help support his widowed mother.

NEWS—Daniel Patrick Moynihan (left), diplomat-professor-bureaucrat-politician, now back at Harvard University after having served as U.S. Ambassador to the U.N. for seven months, is interviewed by CBS News National Correspondent Eric Sevareid on the CBS News Special, "Conversations With Eric Sevareid," Sunday, May 30 (10-11 p.m.) on Channel 3N-11.

His career in public service began in 1955, when he went to Albany to work for then New York Governor W. Averell Harriman. President Kennedy brought Moynihan to Washington, D. C., in 1961 as Assistant Secretary of Labor, a post he continued to hold during the Johnson administration. In 1966, he briefly returned to Harvard to teach, but was tapped by President Nixon to serve as assistant in urban affairs and later Counsellor to the President and a full member of the Cabinet. In 1973, Nixon appointed him Ambassador to India, where he stayed for two years.

After a brief seven months as U. S. Ambassador to the United Nations, the controversial Moynihan resigned earlier this year, and is now back at Harvard. "Conversations With Eric Sevareid" is a continuing series which began last summer.

'High Country Killers' Airs

"Killers of the High Country" will be seen on "The Wonderful World of Disney" Sunday, May 30, 7 to 8 p.m., on NBC Channel 6-7.

Five months in the making, this remarkable story of a cougar family is a vivid photographic account of every phase of cougar life in the high ramparts of the primitive region around St. George, Utah. The cougar's wit and valor, loyalty to mate and kittens, and strategy against human and hound-dog antagonist is revealed during the hour program.

Also known as mountain lion, panther, and catamount, the cougar is frequently and sometimes unfairly branded an outlaw with a bounty price on his head because of raids on stock ranches. When a young, inexperienced male cougar attacks a flock of sheep in the story, he is tracked down and killed by a bounty hunter. His mate, an older and wiser cat, stealthily retreats to the high country where she eventually bears a litter of two spotted kittens.

Following many humorous adventures as the young cats learn the ways of survival, the lioness perishes and the two nearly grown cubs must shift for themselves.

Unfamiliar with humans, their dogs and their guns, one of the cougars boldly attacks a flock of sheep, and their troubles begin.

Following a dramatic and exciting chase, one of the cougars is trapped at the edge of a cliff. As the dogs and hunters close in, the cat attempts a leap to another outcropping of rock, misses and falls to her death. Enraged the second cougar escapes in a labyrinth of rock before the hunters see him.

Sikes Says: 'Have A Plan'

Cynthia Sikes, guest-starring in "Fashion Mart," a segment to be rebroadcast on "Joe Forrester" Monday, May 31, 9 p.m. on NBC Channel 6-7, is one of Hollywood's busiest young performers.

In addition to her performance in "Joe Forrester," Cindy has made guest appearances in "Police Woman," "Columbo," "The Rockford Files," "Jigsaw John," "Emergency!," "McCoy," a Bob Hope special and "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson."

When she is not working or going on interviews, Cindy is involved with the following:

- Three times a week she studies voice with Derrick Blythe.
- Two or three times a week

she studies musical theatre with David Craig.

—Three nights a week she takes acting courses with Vincent Chase.

—When time allows, she studies at the Dupree Dance Academy.

Cindy feels that beauty contests can "work either way for you. As far as I personally am concerned, it was good, but it all depends on your attitude. It can be a springboard to acting. I used my scholarship money for acting lessons and to continue my education."

She doesn't think that being a beauty queen always opens doors. "But," she concludes, "it should make you work harder to prove you can act."

FORRESTER STEPS OUT—In line with the tone of this "Joe Forrester" episode, Lloyd Bridges, who stars in the title role, steps out of his police uniform and into sartorial splendor, partnered by Cindy Sikes, who guest stars as a policewoman. The episode, "Fashion Mart" will be rebroadcast Monday, May 31 (9-10 p.m.) on Channel 6-7.

Marty Robbins Hosts Country Music Awards

Hosting the 11th annual presentation of the "Academy of Country Music Awards," to be rebroadcast as a "Monday Night Special," May 31, 11:30 to 1 a.m., on ABC Channel 3-5-12, is Marty Robbins, long a major country music performer.

TV game show host Peter Marshall and the star of "The Bionic Woman," Lindsay Wagner, will be joined by country music favorites Jimmy Wakely, Mickey Gilley and Mel Tillis in the presentation of the awards.

Among the all-star cast of performers appearing on the program are Loretta Lynn, Conway Twitty, Tom T. Hall, Crystal Gayle, Billy "Crash" Craddock, the Country Current and comedian Jerry Clower.

Country music actually began as a poor-man's music. It was born with the plaintive ballads of the Appalachian mountaineers - folks who for centuries kept their songs as isolated as their lives. Then, when the early magical days of gramophones and vintage radios dawned, 'hillbilly' music was born, spilling over an unknowing population.

Today, country music is all grown up. From its back-porch strumming milieu into a structured urban culture, the music has gained stature.

Although its demise was forecast when electric guitars, violins and brass intruded, country music quietly boomed instead, and - in the 1960s - country records started out-selling classical and jazz.

Some of the categories and nominees are:

Entertainer Of The Year: Glen Campbell, Roy Clark, John Denver, Mickey Gilley, Loretta Lynn.

Top Female Vocalist: Loretta Lynn, Anne Murray, Linda Ronstadt, Tanya Tucker, Dolly Parton.

Album Of The Year: "Before the Next Teardrop Falls" - Freddy Fender; "Feelings" - Conway Twitty & Loretta Lynn; "Keep Movin' On" - Merle Haggard; "Red-Headed Stranger" - Willie Nelson; "Rhinestone Cowboy" - Glen Campbell.

Single Record Of The Year: "Before the Next Teardrop Falls" - Freddy Fender; "Blind Man in the Bleachers" - Kenny Starr; "Blue Crying in the Rain" - Willie Nelson; "Overnight Sensation" - Mickey Gilley; "Rhinestone Cowboy" - Glen Campbell.

Davidson's Guests

Earl Holliman (of "Police Woman"), Rich Little, the Captain and Tennille and comedian-musician Pete Barbutti join John Davidson for the second of four comedy-variety colorcasts of "The John Davidson Show" Monday, May 31, 8 to 9 p.m., on NBC Channel 6-7.

Davidson will open the show with the song "Oh What a Night!," followed by the Captain and Tennille's rendition of "Shop Around." Davidson and Toni Tennille sing a medley of "Up on the Roof," "Peaceful" and "Fly Away."

A spoof of "The Hollywood Squares" follows, with Davidson playing Peter Marshall and Rich Little impersonating all the panelists. Members of the studio audience are used as contestants.

Earl Holliman makes his network debut as a song-and-dance man by singing "Rainy Days and Mondays" as a solo and joining Davidson for a vaudeville rendition of "Somebody Done Somebody Wrong Song."

Pete Barbutti appears in his "needle artist" guise as he attempts to bully Davidson into altering his taste in music and delivery.

Want To Be A Star?

Ladies and gentlemen. Girls and boys. Dancing dogs, prancing cats, talking parrots and singing canaries. Here's your chance. So you've had an 'itch' to be a star, have you. Well, your time has come to 'scratch' that 'itch,' and - who knows? You just might hit the big-time.

There's a television station in Harrisonburg, Virginia, WSWA-TV, that sponsors a talent show annually, and anybody who feels that he or she (or 'they') has a talent worth listening to is encouraged to participate. Should you wish to be a contestant, you must call WSWA-TV (703-434-0331) no later than Tuesday, June 2.

Last year some 200 talented individuals and groups auditioned for "Talent Showcase," and contestants came from all areas of Virginia and West Virginia. This year, WSWA-TV hopes to have entries from both Carolinas as well.

In observance of the Bicentennial, cash awards for the upcoming "Talent Showcase" amount to $1776, with $500 going to the final winner.

Ocean Still Beckons Stroud

A PAIR OF HEAVIES—Don Stroud (1) and Bill Lucking guest star as two brothers who go on a bank-robbing spree in the "Police Woman" episode "Blaze of Glory" Tuesday, June 1 (9-10 p.m.) on Channel 6-7.

"I used to be the happiest beach bum in the Hawaiian Islands," says busy actor Don Stroud. "And I wouldn't be averse to returning to it someday."

Don is currently guest-starring in "Blaze of Glory" on "Police Woman" Tuesday, June 1, 9 to 10 p.m., on NBC-TV.

"When I was 14 years old I was giving surfing lessons on the beach at Waikiki and loving every minute of it," Don recalls.

"A couple of years later I set myself up in business running the catamaran in front of the Royal Hawaiian Hotel and was bringing in about $150 a day. If you average that out over 365 days a year, it's probably more than I make as an actor."

What got Don to hang up hanging-ten and his surfboard? Troy Donahue needed a stand-in when he was in Hawaii filming backgrounds for the "Hawaiian Eye" series and Don fit the bill.

Don more or less grew up in show business. His mother, Anne McCormick, is a famous singer who made her name in the Islands; his sister (Joan Coogan) is a singer in clubs in Southern California and his aunt, Jan McCormick, is a former actress who is now producing daytime television shows. It was Jan who got him his first agent.

"I enjoy my work but there's a lot to be said for the carefree life of sand, sea and fresh air," says Don.

"I keep up with it by living on the beach in Malibu when I'm working in Hollywood. You can take the boy out of the sea but not the sea out of the boy. I'm really happiest with sand in my shoes, or even better, no shoes at all."

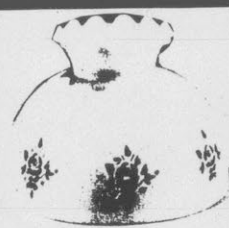

Don has made many films on many locations.

"I feel a strange claustrophobia when I'm away from the ocean. When I'm in the middle of a country, I line the motel walls with seascapes.

"Strangely enough, it helps."

John Gabriel Likes His Role

After 3½ years of playing "scheming, inconsequential opportunist" on daytime television, actor John Gabriel decided to become a "good guy."

Gabriel wanted to portray "a character whom I can identify

MEET THE NEW MOUSEKETEERS

As a result of nationwide auditions to which over 6,000 children responded, these are the twelve talented youngsters who have been chosen to fill the illustrious shoes of the original Mouseketeers: Billy Attmore of Mission Hills, Calif.; Scott Craig and Nita Dee of Lakewood, Calif.; Mindy Feldman of Chatsworth, Calif.; Angel Florez of Hawaiian Gardens, Calif.; Allison Fonte of Buena Park, Calif.; Shawnte Northcutte of Los Angeles, Calif.; Kelly Parsons of Miami, Fla.; Julie Piekarski of St. Louis, Mo.; Todd Turquand of Los Angeles, Calif.; Lisa Whelchel of Ft. Worth, Texas; and Curtis Wong of Vancouver, B. C.

with and admire" and has fulfilled that desire by taking the role of Seneca Beaulac, a "superstar medical researcher" on the daytime series, "Ryan's Hope," seen Monday through Friday, from 1 to 1:30 p.m. on ABC-TV.

Seneca, according to Gabriel, who is a dark, slightly, graying handsome man, is a person "who has confidence, doesn't need to impress anyone, has a sense of humor about himself, is dedicated to his profession and is extremely moral."

He is a far cry from Teddy Holmes in "General Hospital" and Link Morrison in "Love of Life," whom Gabriel portrayed. "Both these men used their appeal for selfish gains," he said. "They were womanizers with a long line of women as their victims."

"But that didn't bother me as much as the fact that they were inconsequential. They were men of little substance. If I'm going to play a bad guy I'd like to be a bad guy like Iago."

Gabriel wasn't the only person to dislike these characters. Teddy Holmes would not be safe in the clothing stores in which he was seen on television. At the time, Gabriel was doing clothing commercials and the viewer unfortunately mixed reality and fantasy. "People are much more involved with the daytime series," explained Gabriel. "There is a much stronger identification with the series' characters than with any others in television."

In the coming months, Seneca Beaulac will no doubt be receiving a lot of favorable fan mail, which will be just fine for John Gabriel who likes playing a character he likes.

Wood, Wagner Portray Couple In Play

Natalie Wood, Robert Wagner and Laurence Olivier will star in a new, two-hour TV adaptation of Tennessee Williams's Pulitzer Prize-winning play, "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof," which will be colorcast on NBC-TV during the 1976-77 season.

Ms. Wood will portray Margaret (Maggie the Cat), Wagner will be her husband, Brick, and Olivier will play Big Daddy. Ms. Wood and Wagner, who are married in real life, will be appearing together for the first time in a taped drama special. Their only other joint TV appearance was in a made-for-TV movie, "The Affair," in 1973.

This is the first play selected for "A Tribute to American Theatre." The series of major drama specials is drawn from the works of leading 20th century American playwrights. Olivier is creative and artistic director of the project, as well as on-camera host and occasional performer.

William F. Storke, Vice President, Special Programs, NBC-TV, said: "We are delighted that this important television venture for NBC begins with the challenging 'Cat on a Hot Tin Roof' by Tennessee Williams, acknowledged as one of America's great playwrights. We look forward to other productions of plays by a variety of dramatists, to be scheduled for 1976-77 and future seasons, which will bring the best of modern American theatre to millions of people."

Ms. Wood's motion picture credits include "West Side Story," "Splendor in the Grass," "The Great Race," "Gypsy" and "Bob & Carol & Ted & Alice." Wagner, co-star of the TV series "Switch," was the star of the series, "It Takes a Thief." Among his films are "The Pink Panther," "Winning," "The Longest Day," "The Condemned of Altona," "The War Lover" and "Titanic."

Olivier, one of the most distinguished and acclaimed actors in the world, has received many honors, including the Academy Award in 1948 for his starring performance in "Hamlet." While noted for his portrayals of Shakespearean heroes, he also has starred in works by such contemporary writers as O'Neill and Osborne. He is a producer and director as well as an actor and has performed on stage, in films and on television (both here and in England) during a career which spans more than a half-century.

Jackson Stars In 'The Nelson Affair'

Academy Award winner Glenda Jackson ("Women in Love," 1970; "A Touch of Class," 1973) and Oscar nominee Peter Finch ("Sunday Bloody Sunday," 1971) star as a couple whose love defied the propriety of English nobility, in "The Nelson Affair," a historical romantic drama to be colorcast on "NBC Saturday Night at the Movies" June 5, 9 to 11:25 p.m., on Channel 6-7.

Two of England's most acclaimed screen personalities, Jackson and Finch starred together to overwhelming critical praise in "Sunday Bloody Sunday," two years before "The Nelson Affair," a 1973 Universal film, was released.

Finch stars as Admiral Lord Nelson, who returns to England August 19, 1805, after more than two years at sea chasing the French fleet. He is rushed off to the Admiralty by an old friend and granted leave to spend time with "a certain lady."

Nelson, who has been estranged from his wife for four years, has a rapturous reunion with Emma, Lady Hamilton.

When members of his family visit Nelson, his paramour quarrels with the Admiral's flag captain and refuses to drink to the King's health. Less than a month after he returned home, Nelson is called again to sea, where he signs a will leaving his wealth to Emma.

DEFYING THE WORLD—Glenda Jackson and Peter Finch star as a couple whose love affair generated dismay among proper British circles during the early 19th century in "The Nelson Affair," a historical romantic drama to be colorcast on "NBC Saturday Night at the Movies," June 5 (9-11:25 p.m.) on Channels 6-7.

'Goodbye Mr. Chips' To Air Monday Night

The latest version of "Goodbye, Mr. Chips," James Hilton's unforgettable story of a British schoolmaster, starring Peter O'Toole and singer Petula Clark, will be a special color musical presentation on "The CBS Late Movie" Monday, May 31, at 11:30 p.m., on Channel 9-11. Sir Michael Redgrave also stars as the headmaster of a school for boys.

In the moving story, Arthur Chipping (O'Toole) has been a classics instructor for over 20 years at the Brookfield School in Dorset, England. Although a shy man, a bachelor and confirmed conservative, he has an inherent sense of humor that endears him to the students and makes him attractive to Katharine (Miss Clark), a glamorous London music-hall star.

Connors Stars In 'Geronimo'

Chuck Connors stars in the title role of "Geronimo," the Apache warrior who waged war against the United States, in the powerful action drama to be colorcast on "NBC Thursday Night at the Movies" June 3, 9 to 11 p.m., on Channel 6-7.

In 1883, Geronimo and his small band of followers surrender at the border to U. S. Army Captain Maynard (Pat Conway) and Lt. Delahay (Adam West).

The treaty promises that at San Carlos Reservation, Geronimo's band will be given land, food and shelter and be treated like proud Apaches. Instead, they are forced to farm and to live in abject poverty.

When the government representative at San Carlos agrees to sell the land to a large investment firm and then tells the Indians to get out, Geronimo and his band break away and return to Mexico to wage war on the United States.

Lindsay Wagner Stars As 'Bionic Woman'

BIONIC WOMAN—Lindsay Wagner stars as Jaime Sommers, who has been endowed by scientists with extraordinary sensory and physical abilities as "The Bionic Woman" in the ABC-TV series, Wednesdays (8-9 p.m.) on Channel 12.

Lindsay Wagner stars as "The Bionic Woman," which is seen Wednesdays, 8 to 9 p.m., on ABC Channel 12. Following an operation that restored her shattered body with bionic parts, Jaime, who is Steve Austin's ("The Six Million Dollar Man") former fiance, returns to her hometown to lead a dual life as a schoolteacher and secret operative for the government. She has a partial loss of memory, and because of this she doesn't remember her engagement to Austin. Although Jaime has been endowed by scientists with extraordinary sensory and physical abilities as "The Bionic Woman," she remains a delightfully feminine woman with a wholesome sense of humor. The series has been one of the highest-rated programs on TV since its inception last January.

There is a realistic quality about some of the scenes in the series that is a direct result of Lindsay's teaching career. Before turning to drama, she taught retarded children, and the schoolroom you see in "Bionic Woman" reflects how she feels children should be treated.

Currently underway are plans for a television special for the talented actress who is also considered to be an unusually good singer.

Productive Hobby

Getting mentioned in the "Guinness Book of World Records" is a "pretty big deal" for Hank Koval, assistant to producer Alan Gilbert of ABC-TV's game show, "Let's Make a Deal" (Monday through Friday, 12-noon to 12:30 p.m.). Hank's giant 3 1/2 x 5 foot Bicentennial Crossword Puzzle has just been accepted as the world's largest, and will be listed in the next edition (the 15th) of the Guinness book.

Hank spent over a year in his spare time putting together the mammoth puzzle, which uses over 15,000 squares, has over 5,000 entries and is accompanied by a separate 48-page book of clues and answers.

Koval first began creating crossword puzzles about six years ago when Monty Hall, the "Let's Make a Deal" star and host, was working on a projected TV game show called "Take My Word," which utilized crossword puzzles. Monty asked Hank to prepare puzzles to use on the show. The show never aired, but Hank continued to make puzzles as a hobby.

Although an expert at compiling crosswords, Koval admits, "I not only do not work on crosswords, I can't. I can never seem to come up with the right word for the puzzle." The World's Largest Crossword Puzzle is published by Price-Stern-Sloan and will also be displayed in a permanent exhibition of Guinness record holders at the Empire State Building in New York. The publishers were faced with two major problems: First, finding a printer able to print the puzzle on a single sheet of paper; and second, to arrange for the puzzle to be folded to a manageable size.

Cecily Tyson Stars In Contemporary Film

Cecily Tyson will star in "Just an Old Sweet Song," a contemporary film focusing on a black family from Detroit whose two-week vacation in the South leads to some surprising changes in their lives.

The 90-minute "GE Theater" drama will be filmed on location in Georgia and Michigan for broadcast in September on CBS-TV.

Robert Hooks co-stars as Miss Tyson's husband, and Kevin and Eric Hooks, sons of Robert Hooks, portray their children.

Bea Richards appears as their grandmother.

Miss Tyson won an Emmy for her performance in "The Autobiography of Miss Jane Pittman" and was honored with the Rosa Parks Award, presented by the Southern Christian Leadership Conference each year to the individual "who has done the most in the struggle to help the suffering poor and bring about justice." She was nominated for an Oscar for her performance in "Sounder," and has appeared in other motion pictures, including "The Heart Is a Lonely Hunter," "The River Niger" and "Bluebird." Other television credits include roles on major programs such as "Mission Impossible," "Gunsmoke" and "Medical Center."

Robert Hooks, founder of both the Negro Ensemble Company in New York City and the Black Repertory Company in Washington, D.C., has extensive theater credits, including roles in "Hallelujah, Baby!," for which he received a Tony nomination, "Raisin in the Sun," "A Taste of Honey," "Happy Ending," "Dutchman" and "The Blacks." His motion picture credits include "Hurry Sundown," "Trouble Man" and "The Last of the Mobile Hot Shots."

Bea Richards was nominated for an Oscar for her role as the mother in "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner." Some of her other films were "In the Heat of the Night," "The Great White Hope," "The Miracle Worker" and "Hurry Sundown." She appeared on Broadway in "Purlie Victorious," "The Blacks" and "The Amen Corner."

KEEPS THINGS SIMPLE—Songwriter-performer Mac Davis says he avoids complications or hidden meanings when he writes his songs. "I just come out and say what I have to say as simply as possible," says Davis, whose series, "The Mac Davis Show" is colorcast on Channel 6-7 on Thursdays (8-9 p.m.), on NBC-TV.

Writes Simple Songs

The first songs Mac Davis wrote were titled "Mau-Mau Mary," "I Got a Flea On Me," and "I Don't Mess Around With Sally Brown Anymore." The first song he sold was "The Phantom Strikes Again" for which Sam the Sham's producer paid $2.42.

His price has gone up but his philosophy hasn't changed. The star of NBC-TV's variety series, "The Mac Davis Show" (Thursdays, 8 to 9 p.m.), said: "I don't think most people like music with hidden meanings. They don't want to ponder the songs. I just come out and say what I have to say as simply as possible."

Mac's reasoning must be right because it works for him. In addition to writing hit songs for himself, he has written many songs that have become hits for other performers.

Mac said: "I get a lot of my ideas from catchy phrases people feed me, then I draw on my personal experiences when I write lyrics. I never know when I'm going to get an idea but I know when I hear one."

Once, at a cocktail party, people were milling about with glasses in their hands making small talk when someone asked him "What do you believe in?" Disliking philosophical questions and hating even more to seriously consider an answer, Mac came up with the fastest answer he could, "I believe in music." Immediately, he realized it was a good song and went off to a corner and began to write the song, "I Believe In Music." It is one of Mac's most successful hits and has been recorded by more than 50 artists.

Actually, Mac doesn't "write" songs. He carries a tape recorder with him and sings the song into the recorder. Later, the song is written down by a copyist. Despite his success as a composer, he can neither read nor write music.

Another Mac Davis hit, "Watching Scotty Grow," was inspired by his son Scott, now 12. When Scott was much younger, he wrote "PRLFQ" on paper and Mac asked what it meant. Scott answered "Mom and Dad." The incident soon became the words of another hit song. During a recording session, Mac's producer told him, "We need a song with a hook. He found himself thinking about a meaning of the word 'hook' that the producer didn't mean and wrote "Baby, Don't Get Hooked On Me."

"I've written a lot of songs which are better than that," he said, "but it sold and that's what I thought it would do. It was strictly male chauvinist, but I made it up to the women's libbers later with 'One Hell of a Woman.'"

Zany Detectives

The New York City Police Department isn't quite the way it's seen each week on "Barney Miller" (Thursdays, 8 p.m. on ABC-TV) but, come to think of it, real warfare isn't much like it's shown on "MASH" either.

"Barney Miller" is set in a make-believe 12th Precinct in Greenwich Village, and the detectives around whom the show revolves look more like cutups in the Police Athletic League than hard-nosed cops.

Series star Hal Linden says that the show's scenic designers took great pains to re-create a shabby Manhattan precinct house. Using photographs of a real one, it was meticulously reconstructed on the Hollywood set where the show is taped before a live audience.

HOLLYWOOD—Peter Falk says he has no commitment to return to his role as "Columbo," although NBC has the series listed as part of its "Mystery Movie" format in its Fall schedule. Reportedly, Falk has been offered $240,000 per episode to do another seven segments for this upcoming season, but he's to begin filming a film in August which would not make him available for the start of production on "Columbo."

Gabe Kaplan has become one of Hollywood's most popular bachelors due to the success of "Welcome Back, Kotter," and one lady who has been sharing the actor's new stardom is Lailani Shapiro. However, apparently the pretty Lailani is just one of several women Gabe dates, for he has no plans for marriage.

Henry Winkler's popularity is evident everywhere, and it'll be even more evident this October when Pocket Books publishes an authorized biography of TV's Fonzie in paperback form.

Michele Conway is the latest cast member of daytime TV's "General Hospital" to get pink slipped.

Joining already-signed Joanne Woodward for a co-starring role in "Sybil," is Martine Butler. She will portray Hattie, the disturbed mother of Sybil whose bizarre and often cruel treatment caused the girl to develop 16 personalities. Joanne will play Dr. Cornelia Wilbur, the psychiatrist who treats the mixed-up gal.

Billy Jack went to Washington and has now come out swinging against the Ford Administration because of alleged infringements against his First Amendment rights.

Danny Kaye will make the next edition of the Guinness Book of World Records as "The Fastest Traveling Entertainer." This came after an official confirmation that Danny flew his private plane to 65 cities for public appearances last October for UNICEF.

Gleason To Star In TV Specials

Jackie Gleason, whose appearances for a 25th wedding anniversary in "The Honeymooners" — The Second Honeymoon" this season won raves from critics and longtime "Honeymooners" fans alike, will once more lead the company of Art Carney, Audrey Meadows and Jane Kean in two specials to air on ABC-TV during the 1976-77 season.

The programs will be seen in the last quarter of 1976 and the first quarter of 1977. In the fourth quarter special, the theme will be Christmas oriented, as the cast presents a play within a play — their hilarious version of Dickens' "A Christmas Carol."

When "The Second Honeymoon" aired in February, it beguiled the critics. "A hilariously funny outing," wrote Kay Gardella of the New York Daily News, adding, "Success has not spoiled 'The Honeymooners.'"

"You can go home again!" exclaimed Variety's critic, and the Hollywood Reporter said, "Funnier than ever."

Gleason, who first unveiled "The Honeymooners" in 1950 on the "Cavalcade of Stars" on the DuMont Network, went on to win the loyalty of literally millions of viewers in the next two and a half decades. Among his fans are viewers who weren't even born when Ralph and Alice Kramden first began their antics.

Stars Join Donny, Marie

Raymond Burr, Esther Rolle, Jimmy Osmond and the Ice Vanities guest star on "Donny and Marie," the music-comedy-variety show airing Friday, June 4, on ABC Channel 3-5-12. Jim Connell, Peter Kastner and Karen Kresge are also featured.

Esther Rolle joins Donny and Marie for a medley of songs and then gives her comedic account of how she tried to break into show business. Paul Lynde, as oddball author Carroll Crump, then recalls the perils of climbing the Matterhorn as he tells about his book, "Know Your Alps."

Jim Connell interviews Raymond Burr as Captain Long John Hook when Burr applies for a job as a pirate. The ice sports number salutes the practitioners of the free fall and the finale of the show is devoted to the elections, from the back of an old campaign train.

Donny and Marie combine their musical talents in "More Today Than Yesterday," "I Got Rhythm," "Morning Side of the Mountain" and "Anything You Can Do, I Can Do Better."

Marie solos with "Have You Never Been Mellow?," "Turn the World Around the Other Way" and "My Name is Alice."

Donny sings "Resurrection Shuffle" and "Crocodile Rock," and brother Jimmy sings

"Trouble" and "I Got a Woman."

Esther Rolle's solos are "Clap Your Hands" and "Of Thee I Sing, Baby," and Raymond Burr sings "Love Is Sweeping the Country."

Everybody joins in a medley comprised of "Listen to the Band," "There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight" and "Strike up the Band."

Death In Space

The commander of a spacecraft, manned by four astronauts and orbiting 250 miles above the Earth, disappears in "Death in Space," the "Tuesday Mystery of the Week" to be presented on June 1, 11:30 p.m. to 1 a.m. on ABC Channel 3-5-12.

George Maharis, Cameron Mitchell, Robert Walker, Jeremy Slate, Margaret O'Brien and Susan Oliver star in this mystery, which deals with the disappearance of Commander Cliff Rhodes. The baffling questions are: how did he vanish through the open hatch to the airlock module after the crew had retired and was it an accident or a suicide?

The lusty, wide-open world of loose talk, loose ladies and looser dollars that was Chicago in 1910, when the city was "so corrupt it's thrilling," is the setting for "Gaily, Gaily," a nostalgic comedy of the country cousin who comes to conquer the city, making its television debut as "The ABC Friday Night Movie," June 4, 9 to 11 p.m., on Channel 3-5-12.

Beau Bridges, Melina Mercouri, Brian Keith and George Kennedy star as the cheerfully unprincipled principals in this lighthearted recall of another Ben Hecht's early days as a cub reporter, learning about newspaper and old capers in the days when he was still soggy behind the ears. (Hecht and Charles MacArthur later wrote the classic "The Front Page" about that spirited period.)

Ben Harvey (Bridges) is 16 years old and his parents keep asking him what he is going to do about it. What he does is pack up and run away from Galena, Illinois, to the bright lights and eager women — he hopes — of Chicago, where he takes a room in a house populated by ladies who are both eager and expensive.

When he is hired as assistant to a Chicago journalist his social circle soon includes crooked politicians, murderers, drunkards and other leading citizens. Chicago is a far cry from Galena.

NOSTALGIC COMEDY—Beau Bridges is very young, very innocent and very ready for a riotous awakening when he leaves his small-town home for the wicked ways of Chicago in 1910 in "Gaily, Gaily," a comedy of times gone by making its television premiere on ABC-TV's "The ABC Friday Night Movie," Friday, June 4 (9-11 p.m.) on Channel 3W-5-12.

Dena Adds 'Zap' To 'The Practice'

People are always asking Dena Dietrich how her identification as the miffed "Mother Nature" who adds zap to the long-running margarita commercials has affected her acting career.

"Are you kidding? I'm here, aren't I?," responds the lady who plays Nurse Molly Gibbons opposite "Dr." Danny Thomas in "The Practice," the comedy series seen Fridays, 8:30 to 9 p.m., on NBC Channel 6-7.

"It's been terrific. Instant recognition," Dena said. "Danny and I were talking about it the other day. He was saying he'd done all those years of night clubs, television and movies but it wasn't until he did the coffee commercials that he had so many people stop and recognize him."

Dena co-starred in two series prior to "The Practice" — "Adam's Rib" and "Karen." She's been in many other serials, two motion pictures and on the stage for over 20 years. But it took that oft-quoted line, "It isn't nice to fool Mother Nature," to transform Dena into a familiar friend.

"It's absolutely incredible what a commercial can do for you," she exclaimed. "Being a regular on a series is one thing but when you're 'Mother Nature' everyone wants to see how you are."

Dena, who has appeared in more than 200 commercials, admits that many are best forgotten. "But every now and then a good commercial will thrust an actor into the public eye—and that sure helps when the acting parts are being passed out."

Mother Nature, for instance, has been financially rewarding and also has opened doors to other acting assignments. "You'd be surprised how many people want to meet the crazy lady who did the funny commercial. People literally fall off their chairs. They can't believe they're seeing 'Mother Nature.' The public acknowledgment is lovely and everybody seems to like the commercial."

Filming commercials isn't always easy, she said. "There was the time I almost fell in the Grand Canyon," Dena recalled. "I was standing on a ledge over a precipice, but they couldn't figure out how I was to zap. I had the margarine in my hand and I couldn't put it down or it would fall into the canyon."

"The wind was blowing pretty wildly, so they tied a cord around me and they tied the other end around a big, burly crewman and I zapped away leaning over the edge of the precipice. I think the crewman was just as scared as I was."

Then there was the time Dena and crew were caught in the snow in the High Sierras. "I had to get long johns and army boots, and I was literally blue by the time we finished."

RACING—Master Derby (4) kicks past Foolish Pleasure (5) in last years' thrilling Belmont Stakes. The 108th running of the last jewel in horse racing' triple crown will take place on Saturday, June 5 at 5 p.m. on CBS-TV.

Belmont Stakes Unpredictable

The 108th running of the Belmont Stakes will take place in its usually regal surroundings on Saturday, June 5, at 5 p.m. CBS-TV will feature the traditional race, with Jack Whitaker, Heywood Hale Broun, Frank Wright and Chick Anderson will provide the commentary.

The third jewel in horse racing's triple crown takes place in Elmont, New York, at the famed Belmont Park, where a mile-and-a-half track dictates endurance and strategy as keys to victory. Many talented horses have moved too quickly at the outset of the race, only to tire in the stretch.

Predicting a winner in this year's race is about as difficult as setting the odds in any previous Belmont Classic. Bold Forbes nosed out favorite Honest Pleasure in a thrilling, two-horse race in this year's Kentucky Derby.

Almost every horse-racing fan felt that the Preakness would also be decided between the two favorites. However, Elocutionist, a 10 to 1 shot in the pre-race betting odds, streaked to victory in the Pimlico Event, leaving Bold Forbes and Honest Pleasure in third and fifth place, respectively.

Thus, unpredictability will mark the June 5 race, as the oddsmakers will have difficulty predicting a winner in this most grueling of all tests. More than ever, the jockeys may very well become the most vital key to victory.

While Churchill Downs and Pimlico inspire high emotion, Belmont is a more sedate, classic race in the traditional European style. In fact, the entire appearance at Belmont is in marked contrast to its two brethren races. The infields at the Kentucky Derby and Preakness are jam-packed with excited, zealous patrons who scream unabashedly for their favorite. Belmont does not allow spectators to inhabit its stately infield, creating an atmosphere of relative calm as compared to its frenzied, carnival-like predecessors.

Nevertheless, the Belmont Stakes always interests racing fans because of its conclusive nature. If one horse has won both previous 'legs,' then the obvious hope for a Triple Crown adds luster to the race. However, when the two previous contests have been split, the natural question of which horse is supreme constantly arises.

Undoubtedly, the 108th running of the Belmont Stakes will inspire fierce competition, as all jockeys and owners receive a final opportunity to declare that their 3-year-old horse is worthy of the traditional carnations.

TO C. GAUSE, SCRANTON, S.C.: Anson Williams (Potsie in "Happy Days") has appeared in several summer stock productions, guest-starred in TV series ("Marcus Welby, M.D." and "Owen Marshall" are two), done about 30 TV commercials, played the night club circuit, but has never been in a movie . . . yet. The cute guy digs baseball, football, surfing, poetry writing and is an ecologist.

TO J. LONG, LEXINGTON, N.C.: After researching thoroughly, all I can come up with is that Alex Caldwell ("Love of Life") died of a heart attack.

TO M. JOHNSON, WAYNESBORO, VA.: Of all the stars of "Star Trek," the only ones who are really still in orbit career-wise are Leonard Nimoy and William Shatner.

TO S. ROGERS, MUI-LINS, S.C.: Karin Wolfe, who is now portraying Pam Sloan in "Another World," played Mary Anderson in "Days of Our Lives."

TO S. MESSER, Waynesville, N.C.: Charles Bronson starred in a TV series, "The Man With A Camera" way back in the early '60s. He's since done a great deal of guest shots in series—always playing the same, tough, bad-guy role. Now 53-years old, Bronson was the 11th of 15 children of an illiterate Russian immigrant coal miner. His family was desperately poor, and when Bronson was 10, his father died and his mother sold him to a farmer in up-state New York. He says he'd like to break out of the tough-guy stereotype. Tough guy or no, he's a real 'softie' where his wife, actress Jill Ireland, and their 6 children (5 by prior marriages) are concerned.

TO J. STINESPRING, DANVILLE, VA.: Don't look for Robert Redford to star in a TV show anytime soon. He much prefers movies to television.

TO N. NEISTER, LYNCHBURG, VA.: Dawn Wells, who was Mary Ann in "Gilligan's Island," is still active in drama and also does TV commercials. Write to her c/o Kurt Frings Agcy., 9025 Wilshire Blvd., Suite 303, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90211.

'Captain Korda' Airs

When Joe leaves the children's another boat for "Captain Korda."

Korda, he finds much happiness, until his real mother decides she wants him back, in "Captain Korda," a film from Czechoslovakia that will be rebroadcast on "The CBS Children's Film Festival," Saturday, June 5, 1 to 2 p.m.

Joe becomes good friends with Mikula and his dog, Ajax. The boys enjoy playing together and getting the better of Mrs. Kraus, a grochy neighbor. When she threatens to "Take care of Ajax," Joe and his friends declare all-out war on the old woman.

The Kordas return Joe to his real mother, at her request, but Joe is very unhappy there. The final blow comes when his stepfather tears apart a boat that Korda built for Joe, and uses it to patch the barn. Running away, Joe falls asleep near the railroad tracks: His mother calls Korda, understanding that Joe would be better off with him. Korda finds Joe and takes him home, promising to build Colorful Mixed Doubles Planned For W.I.T.

Would you believe Rosemary Casals, that venerable legionaire of women's rights, teaming with Ilie Nastase, the champion — like Rumanian whose temper is almost as fiery as his game? Well, these two colorful tennis pros will be paired against superstars Chris Evert and Arthur Ashe in the World Invitational Tennis Mixed Doubles.

ABC-TV will televise the match on Sunday, May 30, from 4:30 to 6 p.m.

Ms. Casals is a bouncing bombshell of a girl who exhibits no shyness when revealing her ideas on women's role in sports, especially tennis. She believes that the prize money for female tennis pros should be more in line with that of the men.

During the historic match between Bobby Riggs and Billie Jean King, Rosemary was not afraid to openly cheer for Ms. King, as she later was really playing for the cause of female athletes everywhere.

Rosie, who is a great niece of the master cellist Pablo Casals, burst onto the tennis scene in 1966 when, at the age of 17, she reached the final 16 at Wimbledon. Later that same year, she played a magnificent semi-final in the U.S. Open at Forest Hills and was runner-up in the doubles with Billie Jean King. The San Francisco native is clearly one of the finest doubles players in the world. She has won a potful of doubles titles in all the major tournaments, including five at Wimbledon with Ms. King.

Her mixed doubles record is also outstanding. She captured the 1970 and 1972 mixed doubles

TENNIS—pros Ilie Nastase and Rosemary Casals, mixed doubles champions in the 1970 and 1972 Wimbledon finals, will team up once again in the World Invitational Tennis Championships on Sunday, May 30 at 4:30 p.m. on ABC-TV. Their opponents will be superstars Arthur Ashe and Chris Evert.

Gal Knows Sports

Featured on "CBS Sports Spectacular" Saturday, June 5, will be "The Special Olympics." Mentally retarded entrants are to compete in the Olympic-type events in the special which will take place in Mount Pleasant, Michigan, and will air at 4:30 p.m.

Providing commentary are Pat Summerall, Rick Barry and Phyllis George.

Miss George, who joined the CBS-TV Sports staff of broadcasters in January, 1975, is a former Miss America turned successful performer.

To look at the beautiful, feminine, dainty creature, one wonders what such a lovely gal is doing in the field of sports.

"I love sports," she exclaimed. "I read and study extensively about every assignment I am given."

This is evident when she appears on the screen with her excellent expertise on any number of sports events she has covered during the past year-and-a-half. Because of her vast knowledge about the sports world, Phyllis has won the respect of her contemporaries.

As a former Miss America (she won the coveted title in 1971), she is aware that she has an image to uphold, and this she does — probably because she is the "real-thing."

"Little girls put me on a pedestal and I don't ever want to do anything that will destroy this for them."

Born and raised in Denton, Texas, Phyllis attended North Texas State University for three years, then transferred to Texas Christian University from which she graduated.

An accomplished pianist, she also studies singing, acting and dancing. Her television credits include several "Tonight Show" appearances, "Kraft Music Hall," "Bob Hope - Stars and Stripes," "The Steve Allen Show," the Emmy Awards broadcast, "What's My Line," and as co-host of the Macy's Thanksgiving Parade.

championship at Wimbledon, teaming with 'guess - who' - that's right . . . Ilie Nastase.

Nastase is a volatile player who is, at his best, almost unbeatable and, at his worst, almost detestable. He has often stormed off the court after an unfavorable call, but always returns to compete, often after a heavy fine.

In 1972, the Rumanian firmly established himself as one of the finest players in the game by winning the U.S. Open and nearly capturing Wimbledon before falling to Stan Smith. He went on to capture the French and Italian Opens in 1973.

Ilie is also one of the premier

Trio To Battle Again

Together, they have won six out of the last fifteen Indianapolis 500's, and competition between the trio has raged hot in the brickyard at Indy. Johnny Rutherford, Bobby Unser and A. J. Foyt will again start their supercharged engines for the 66th Indianapolis 500, to be broadcast exclusively by ABC Sports on Sunday, May 30, from 9 to 11 p.m.

Each of the drivers is extremely confident of victory every time they pull out onto the track, and are not exactly timid when expressing "why I will win." However, they also realize that victory in a grueling race like Indy does not happen because of one individual.

"The single most important factor in winning Indy is a feeling of comfort," Rutherford said after capturing the 1974 classic. "Comfort with your car and with your pit crew. The car has got to be more than a machine to you. It's got to be a friend, and the same with the crew. They can't just be technicians. They've got to be people you understand — and people who understand you." The sixteen-year veteran of fast wheels sped to three triumphs in an incredible 1974. He followed his Indy victory with a second straight USAC Champ Car victory in the Rex Mays 150-miler at Milwaukee, and later captured the Schaeffer 500 at Pocono.

Also in evidence at the big race will be perennial favorite A. J. Foyt, "Super Tex" has swept to three Indy favorites, but he hasn't won at the Brickyard since 1967.

"Next To The Underpass"

New Design Makes Cars Safer At Indianapolis

Because of the built-in dangers of automobile racing, technologists are constantly looking for various methods of avoiding mishaps that may cost many people their lives. Engineers from both Goodyear and Firestone Tire Companies have perfected a system that may prevent fuel spills, the greatest cause of on-the-track fires.

The new fuel system will be used in the 1976 Indianapolis 500, which can be seen on ABC-TV on a delayed broadcast Sunday, May 30, from 9 to 11 p.m.

Engineers for the rubber companies, as well as race officials for the United States Auto Club, thought they had manufactured a fool-proof, fire preventative fuel cell after driver Swede Savage's flame-filled crash in 1974. But the fuel system failed in Tom Sneva's McLaren racer when the car was literally lifted off the ground, turned a cartwheel around a turn, and burst into an inferno in the 1975 race.

"The fuel cell held," explained Frankie Del Roy, USAC technical supervisor. "But a fitting broke loose on the five-gallon overflow tank and allowed fuel to escape. This was the cause of the fire."

Engineers for Goodyear soon designed an entirely new fuel system, one that was used for army combat helicopters in Vietnam. When this design was installed, no fatalities from post-crash fires in helicopters were reported.

"The new system is called 'crashworthy,'" adds Del Roy. "It includes thicker fuel cell walls encased in 3/8-inch ballistic felt and dry-breakaway fittings. In addition, the areas of the cell around the point where fittings attach were strengthened by cord fanning out like spokes in a wheel."

Where We Came From

The Jewish Theological Seminary of America will present an "Eternal Light" special, "Where We Came From," on NBC-TV Sunday, May 30, 5 to 6 p.m.

"Where We Came From" is a profile of the East European Jewish character through the recollections of a group of distinguished Americans whose parents, grandparents and great-grandparents came from the Jewish communities of eastern Europe.

The one-hour special was the first telecast in the "Under God" series, eight programs presented by the major faith groups as they cooperate in celebrating the American Bicentennial.

Those participating in the program include writer, teacher and lecturer Bel Kaufman; author of Dr. Chaim Potok; scientist and microphotographer Dr. Roman Vishniac; novelist Leo Rosten; and Morris B. Abram, attorney and partner in the firm of Paul Weiss, Rifkind, Wharton & Garrison and honorary President of the American Jewish Committee.

Nothing Finer Than Dinah

Premiering Saturday, June 5, is "Dinah Shore's Music-Variety Summer Show," the first of many shows the three major networks will be airing during the summer. The show, which will be seen from 10 to 11 p.m. on CBS-TV, features one of TV's most popular entertainers, whose weekday show, "Dinah!" recently walked away with many of the top Emmys presented to daytime shows and personalities.

Dinah's virtuosity not only embraces show business in general, but also the field of sports, the art of painting, the hobby of photography and the attribute of being good looking. She is outstanding as a tennis player, an entrepreneur of the most prestigious golf tournament on the Ladies Professional Golf Tournament, and a golfer with a respectable handicap. Her paintings have been bought by the Franklin Mint and issued as prints by that distinguished organization. She is a camera craftsman of professional quality. Her runaway bestseller cookbook, "Someone's in the Kitchen With Dinah," is currently in its 12th printing.

Frances Rose Shore was born in the small town of Winchester, Tenn. and raised in the nearby city of Nashville. She first began thinking of a singing career when she was attending high

During her sophomore year at Vanderbilt University, she auditioned for a local radio station and was given a quarter-hour program of her own. She opened her show with "Dinah."

Following graduation from college, Dinah went to New York where she was eventually hired by NBC as a "fill-in" artist to sing on various radio programs.

Dinah came to Hollywood to make her screen debut in "Thank Your Lucky Stars." This was followed by top singing roles in "Up In Arms," "Belle of the Yukon," "Follow the Boys," "Till The Clouds Roll By" and "Aaron Slick From Punkin' Crick."

New model cars found considerably cleaner

They emit 70% less pollutants in United States and Canada, Champion's tests show CHAMPION SPARK PLUG Company's Mobile Proving Ground (M.P.G.) is continuing its 30 city, international test program to determine the effects of tune-up on gasoline mileage and emissions. In early findings, its tests have shown that late-model cars are up to 13 times less polluting than pre-1968 vehicles and are staying well within government standards for keeping the air clean.

The new-model automobiles are running considerably cleaner than their older counterparts, according to results of the first phase of a Champion Spark Plug Company's survey of cars in the United States and Canada.

David L. Walker, director of Champion's Automotive Technical Services Department, said a preliminary comparison of 1,667 vehicles surveyed during the company's Fuel Economy and Emissions Test indicated the new-model cars are emitting about 70 per cent fewer pollutants than pre-1968 automobiles.

Emissions lowered

Emission levels of 1970-74 cars are also lower, averaging 30 to nearly 50 per cent below those of cars produced prior to 1968.

Mr. Walker said, "The 1.25 per cent carbon monoxide (CO) and 162ppm hydrocarbon (HC) averages of the 1975s we tested are indicative of the progress that has been made in emission control."

He also pointed out that the test diagnosed one car in 30 as being a "gross emitter" — exceeding 10 per cent CO and 2,000 ppm HC, or higher than test instruments can measure.

"While these cars represented only a small percentage of our survey, each 'gross polluter' emitted more HC than 13 average 1975s," Mr. Walker explained, adding "the incidence of gross polluting among older cars is considerably higher, indicating that inadequate maintenance and vehicle age are contributing factors to excessive emissions."

Tune-ups instrumental Champion's tests are showing a marked decrease in emissions following tune-up. Reductions averaged 30 per cent less CO at idle after tune-up and an average 70 per cent decrease in HC under simulated 55 mph road conditions.

Tune-up was also instrumental in increasing fuel economy. On the average, the nearly 75 untuned cars tested realized nearly a 5½ per cent fuel savings after being tuned.

A wide range of other information is being analyzed from test results. "We found emission control system components either inoperative or disconnected in approximately 10 per cent of the U.S. cars we tested," Mr. Walker said.

From California come these . . .

Fourteen points to help you cut pollution, save on fuel

If operating your car for low pollution doesn't turn you on, then consider this. The same driving procedures that contribute to clean air also help save fuel. The California Air Resources Board has compiled the following list of "do's and don'ts" to help make you a good citizen and a fuel saver too.

Keep car in good running order. Dirty carburetors, clogged air filters and worn out points and plugs not only waste gas and reduce engine performance, they also contribute to air pollution.

Have smog systems serviced regularly. Smog devices reduce emissions only if they remain in working order.

Don't drive a "smoker." The real danger to our air is not the visible smoke, but the invisible fumes. However, smoke means engine trouble, and engine trouble means pollution.

Never be a "gas-pumper." Many drivers produce needless pollution by pumping the gas throttle, sometimes several times, before starting. Hydrocarbons are spewed all over the neighborhood.

To be a "clean" driver, depress the throttle only once. This sets the choke. Let your throttle come up halfway or all the way, following instructions of your vehicle owner's manual. Now turn the key. A well-tuned engine will start instantly.

Skip the warmup. Thanks to improved oils, no long warmup is needed with today's cars. Driveway warmups of longer than 20 seconds are unnecessary.

Use an easy takeoff. Cold engines are high polluters, especially when pushed fast. When your engine is cold, use a light touch on the gas pedal for a couple of miles. Otherwise, you may leave a long trail of fumes behind you before your engine warms up.

Don't "blast off." Kicking the throttle all the way down makes the tailpipe spit fumes.

Keep level speed. The less you change speed, the less you'll foul up the air. Your car produces far more smog when it's accelerating or decelerating than when it's driven steadily. It also uses more fuel.

Swear off sudden slow-downs. When, at high speeds, you take your foot off the gas suddenly, emissions zoom. A gradual stop causes a little extra pollution, but nothing like the pollution your car spits out when stopped suddenly. Anticipation and preparation are the mark of a good driver.

Avoid idling. When you wait for a freight train to pass or stop at the curb to chat with your engine idling, you add a heavy load of pollutants, especially carbon monoxide, to the air. Turn off your engine while waiting, whenever practical.

Avoid stop signs and traffic lights whenever you can. Seek routes that help you keep your car moving steadily. When you travel routes with many traffic lights, try to pace your driving to "hit the green." A steady flow of traffic cuts pollution.

Do cry over spilled gasoline. Remind your service station attendant not to overfill or "top out" your tank. To avoid overflow when your tank is full, avoid parking on a steep slope.

Share the ride, take the bus or schedule your trip to avoid peak traffic hours. Reducing the travel during rush hours will help reduce air pollution.

Choose low-lead or no-lead fuels if your car will run efficiently on them.

Thorough tune-up is needed

Better gasoline mileage, more pep, surer starting are all benefits to be derived from an engine tune-up. But to get the maximum the service offers, Champion Spark Plug Company suggests the motorist should become acquainted with what a good tune-up is and insist on receiving all ingredients.

Before having a tune-up performed, make sure that the engine is in condition to benefit. The engine should be in generally good mechanical condition, critical parts lubricated, the cooling system and exhaust functioning. An engine with burned valves, worn or damaged piston rings cannot be tuned properly until worn or damaged parts are repaired.

So it is important that cylinder balance and compression checks be performed to help detect any serious malfunctions.

Ignition system

Basics of any tune-up include changing of spark plugs and points and condenser in cars so equipped. Some cars have electronic ignition without points and condenser. Checking all ignition components is recommended and if replacement of items that come in sets (such as plugs and plug wires) becomes necessary, then change the whole set.

Installing one or two plugs or wires is false economy since if several units need replacing then their mates will probably wear out soon.

Carburetion

The carburetor, which delivers the proper mixture of air and fuel to the intake manifold, should be checked for leaks in the gasket area. Excessive dirt and varnish, improper choke and faulty linkage also are possible carburetor defects.

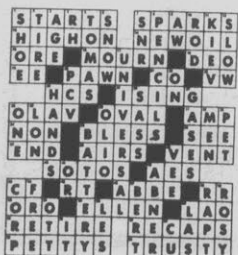

Related areas such as fuel pump, air filter, fuel line and fuel filter should be checked as part of the tune-up procedure.

Emission control system

Various emission control devices have been introduced into cars in the past few years. Each of these devices must be checked to make sure it is properly functioning for best performance, dependability, economy and reduced exhaust emissions.

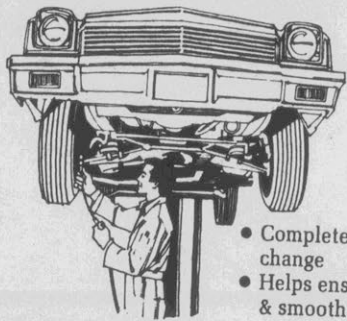

So, when you see an ad for a tune-up at an unbelievably low price, check what you are getting for that price.

Does it include parts or merely labor? Is the shop equipped with devices like engine oscilloscopes, exhaust gas analyzers and other sophisticated equipment?

NEED AUTO REPAIRS? GOODYEAR'S SERVICE DEPT. OPEN SATURDAY'S TIL 5 P.M.

That car is worth lots more than dollars and cents

It needs best of care for owner to get most benefit from it

Jean Sibelius, the noted Finnish composer, once remarked, "No one ever built a monument to a critic." While Sibelius obviously wasn't referring to matters concerning the automobile, his observation could well be applied to the current state of the car.

While the vehicle has been attacked by detractors as an environmental menace, a safety hazard, too expensive to buy and maintain, one fact remains indisputable. No single invention of mankind has so revolutionized the way of life of an entire nation.

Car shapes very warp and woof of life

Our economy is so dominated by the car that a drop in production has shattering effects on our standard of living. The very warp and woof of our lives are shaped by the car, from where we live and work to how we spend our free time.

In these times when car ownership has often been a greater financial burden than most of us like, when one considers the alternative the car is still a bargain.

To the man or woman cooped up in the office or shop all week long, that weekend spin to the beach or campground has a value far beyond dollars and cents. And that well-earned vacation by car is an experience few of us care to forego, whatever the expense or other sacrifice.

Fortunately, most of us who are concerned with cutting vacation expenses and travel can take some positive action this year before embarking on our car-borne trips.

As sure as you're going to buy post cards to send home to Aunt Emma, you're going to be buying lots of gasoline.

If you invest in a tune-up before you leave, you may possibly save enough on gas bills to pay for the service on the course of a long trip.

Also before you leave on your trip, take inventory of items you may have neglected on your car.

Things to check before you leave

What shape are your tires in? If you feel they may need replacement, the time to do it is now when you can shop for the best prices.

And what about your brakes, shocks, lights, cooling system, steering, lubrication and other vital items that may need attention? The time to make sure is now, before you run the risk of an untimely breakdown, a long way from your favorite service outlet.

We urge you to visit the service man you trust your car with now to make sure your spring and summer motoring is all the fun you hope it will be.

THE SCENIC WONDERS of a continent, once only available to the wealthy and the adventurous, can be enjoyed by virtually any family with a car. A sure investment in an exciting, trouble-free vacation this spring and summer is a car that is kept in optimum condition. Good maintenance will help keep the gasoline bill as low as possible as well as avoiding unexpected trouble that takes the fun out of trips.

Car safety costs play big role in price of vehicle

When you buy a new car you are paying $615 for the safety and emission equipment required by the federal government — this according to a study by GM. And, if current new proposals are put into effect the extra cost will go to $1,225 per car within the next three years. Most of the added cost would be for better clean air systems.

Don't kill 'cat'

Sometimes it isn't "business as usual" when servicing a new model car equipped with a catalytic converter. Take the matter of using a carburetor cleaner or other fuel additive. Unless these substances are used in a certain prescribed way, they could cause damage to the converter, rendering it useless. Read and follow the directions exactly.

Some advice worth repeating

OBSERVE THE 55 mile an hour speed limit. Avoid high speed driving. You'll save a lot of fuel and get to your destination just as quickly.

AVOID JACK RABBIT STARTS — they are doubly wasteful. They burn up excessive gas and they also cause excessive wear on tire treads.

A SOFT AND STEADY foot on the accelerator will yield you more miles per gallon than erratic pressure.

UNNECESSARY IDLING of the motor gets you nowhere, yet it consumes fuel. Waiting for the wife or the kids to be picked up, with the motor running, is an example. Let your conscience be your guide here.

Emission tests can save $20-$25 a year in gas

Proper maintenance of engine, as indicated by inspections, called key to benefits

By ROGER STRELOW

U.S. Environmental Protection Agency —
Assistant Administrator for Air and Waste Management

Motorists could save between $20 and $25 in gasoline costs each year by having their auto emission control equipment regularly inspected and maintained.

Some motorists are already realizing these kinds of savings. Since 1972, New Jersey has operated an inspection and maintenance (I/M) program in connection with an annual safety inspection.

Chicago; Cincinnati and Hamilton County, Ohio; Portland, Oregon, and Riverside and Los Angeles, California are also now conducting some type of I/M program.

These last several programs were ordered by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency as part of larger air clean-up plans for these seriously polluted areas.

I/M can have benefits beyond gasoline savings. It results in more efficient running vehicles. In some areas, it could mean numerous employment opportunities for qualified mechanics. Most importantly, from EPA's point of view, I/M makes city air more breathable.

The areas now affected by I/M (and there are 21 other regions that also ought to have this program in effect) need the additional amount of air cleanup provided simply to protect public health from the grossest hazards: respiratory ailments, the aggravation of heart disease, and increased death rates.

What studies show

Studies have shown that all other controls in these areas — industrial, municipal and new cars replacing old cars — are by themselves not enough to achieve health protecting levels.

I/M does provide cleaner air. New Jersey estimates that its carbon monoxide pollution has declined 13 percent since its program began. Other auto-related pollutants in the state are also decreasing.

For the other areas affected by I/M, this kind of improvement cannot be as easily cited since their programs have not been in effect as long as New Jersey's.

The annual cost to the motorist of an I/M program now varies between $1 and $5 per year either in additional registration fees or payments at the inspection site. At this time, four out of five cars have been passing the New Jersey test, and repair costs for those that haven't have averaged between $30 and $35.

Mr. Strelow

Tailored to needs

A large amount of leeway is provided states and localities by EPA in setting up I/M programs tailored to their particular needs and resources.

For example, I/M may be run separately or along with a safety inspection; state-owned, contractor operated, or commercial inspection sites may be used; maintenance of emission controls may be initially introduced as a voluntary measure; pass-fail standards may vary somewhat, and two basic testing methods may be employed.

EPA does insist that I/M be done at least annually and that, regardless of specific program, the overall objective must be accomplished of most vehicles meeting the emission standards for their particular model year.

The quality of mechanical work done in I/M is obviously critical to consumer acceptance of the program. In this regard, EPA and the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare have available $100,000 in matching grants for five states (New York, Pennsylvania, California, Oregon and Arizona) to train instructors who will then train mechanics.

Finding a competent mechanic when you have car trouble away from home on a vacation trip has often been a matter of luck. Now, thanks to a program initiated by the automotive service industry, chances of success have been greatly increased.

All the motorist has to do is locate a facility that displays the orange, blue and white emblem of the National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence (NIASE). This emblem shows that mechanics on duty have proven their competence by meeting rigid standards set up by NIASE. To qualify, mechanics must have prescribed experience and be able to pass a rigid written examination prepared by the Educational Testing Service of Princeton, N.J. Examinations are in all automotive repair categories and a mechanic may qualify in one or more of them.

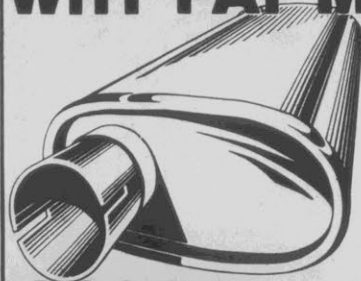

According to NIASE, more than 100,000 mechanics will have earned certification by spring of this year. Approximately 30,000 new men are applying for certification at the twice-yearly exam periods held throughout the nation.

A SIGN OF THE TIMES — The orange, blue and white sign emblemizing that NIASE-certified mechanics are employed at the service outlet is becoming an increasingly familiar sight along the highway. More than 100,000 mechanics have passed the rigid requirements to qualify for NIASE certification in various repair specialties.

One location where demand for association is growing is Michigan. The state, which recently enacted a law requiring certification of motor vehicle mechanics, will do so, based on NIASE standards.

Power steering system not hard to maintain by car owners

A power steering system is considerably more complex than a non-power system. But most power steering maintenance can be accomplished by the motorist or his service mechanic, and special tools usually are not required.

The heart of a power steering system is a hydraulic pump that supplies the pressure to the wheels when you turn the steering wheel. Power steering pumps rarely break down as long as you make sure they have the proper amount of power steering fluid to do the job. Periodic checking of the fluid level is usually all that is necessary for regular maintenance.

Check belt

Another item to check periodically is the belt that connects the pump to the engine. If this belt should break, your entire power steering system will cease to function immediately.

When checking the fluid level and the drive belts, check the hoses that connect the pump to the other components in the system. Hoses should be firm and free of cracks. Connections should be tight and leak-free. Leakage from hoses and connections in the system is the major cause of fluid loss, the main cause of power steering failure.

How to tell

How can you tell if your power steering system needs attention? Usually the first sign is either an unusual noise (squealing, chattering or knocking sound) or a change in the "feel" of your steering (sluggishness, jerkiness or a tendency to pull to one side).

If any of these symptoms occur, get your power steering system checked; early attention can prevent big problems later.

Recipe for gasoline economy

The most efficient recipe for saving fuel concerns both the condition of the car and the attitudes of the driver, says Olaf George William Fersen, German automotive authority, who recommends the following to readers of this supplement.

He holds that if carefully applied, the recipe may well mean a fuel saving of up to 20 percent.

FOR THE CAR

1. Low rolling resistance. This means maintenance of the prescribed tire pressure, brakes that do not bind or grind and well adjusted, free-moving wheel bearings.

2. Correct adjustment of carburetor and ignition. Clean air filter elements and maintenance of a sufficiently high engine temperature (low temperatures increase fuel consumption).

FOR THE DRIVER

1. Gentle driving, especially when starting from rest and early shifting into the next-higher gear. If transmission is automatic, make it shift upwards at low speeds and use the kickdown sparingly. Brake gently. Remember: high engine revs need more fuel and a lot of energy will be wasted by high braking.

2. Select your speed according to the developing traffic situation. If lights are red, don't rush up and brake, but let the car roll gently, so when the lights change, you can accelerate without changing gear.

3. Every car has a "most economical" speed range. Usually around 50 mph. Keep it to that speed wherever possible. Never "pump" on the accelerator. This squirts raw fuel into the engine — at your cost. Driving at changing speeds is uneconomical — driving at a steady speed saves fuel.

Your Car's Cooling System

Your car won't overheat if you check your cooling system often for leaks. Most coolants contain a dye that helps you spot leaks. It's also a good idea to inspect the radiator, especially around the seams. And don't forget to make sure your radiator cap seals properly.

Remember that the anti-freeze-coolant in your engine not only helps dissipate excess engine heat; it also protects the radiator and engine from freezing in the winter. That's why most experts recommend an ethylene glycol coolant, such as Zerex Antifreeze, which is the most effective auto boiling point improver and freeze depressant known.

If your car's radiator doesn't have a coolant recovery reservoir as standard equipment, get one at your local supply store. It prevents coolant loss from spilling on the road through the radiator overflow tube. For a free booklet on proper cooling system care send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Zerex Antifreeze, PPG Industries, 10 North, One Gateway Center, Pittsburgh, Pa. 15222.

Trade-in value of auto can increase by $500 when car in best shape

High car prices aren't always bad. That's a statement most would agree with when they are selling their own cars as used.

In most cases, the elevated prices of new cars have had a corresponding hike in the value of the used vehicle. This is particularly so when the older car appeals to a buyer.

An expert says

A survey of professional buyers who work for new and used car dealerships revealed some "tricks of the trade" that help them determine prices of cars.

Said one expert, "A used car that's in top condition can bring as much as $500 more than a nearly identical car that's been neglected. In fact, if the neglect is severe enough, the trade-in may have virtually only scrap value — even if it's a fairly late model car."

Physical looks of the car are important but appearance must be more than cosmetic deep, another expert claimed. A fresh paint job might look nice at first glance but if it's hiding damage, it could hurt the sale.

Do it promptly

His advice, "As soon as a minor bump, nick or rust spot appears have it attended to by a good professional repair man."

Also, keeping a car clean at all times is the best protection against premature paint wear. Again, if you do need a paint job, a quality job by a well-equipped shop could pay off at trade-in time.

Engine condition

Engine condition is the next most suspect question of the potential buyer.

A Pennsylvania used car man remarked, "I have a lot of customers who are trading in older cars because they are having chronic starting trouble. And you can bet the first thing they look for in their newer purchase is starting ease. Investing in a good set of plugs and making sure the battery is operating strong is a good investment before trade-in."

Have a check done

A California used car dealer advised, "A reverse twist on an old habit could bring in extra dollars, too. Smart buyers want to have their mechanics look over a car before they purchase to make sure there aren't any obvious and expensive defects. As a private seller, you might be smart to have your mechanic look over the car to take care of defects like obvious oil leaks that could kill a sale."

A Florida dealer says the first look a prospective customer gets at a car may be the most critical one. On that basis, it would pay the owner either to send his car to a professional reconditioner or be prepared to exert a little extra elbow grease of his own.

Naturally, the car should be cleaned and polished, inside and out. Upholstery should be cleaned with a good shampoo, glass and metal surfaces made spotless.

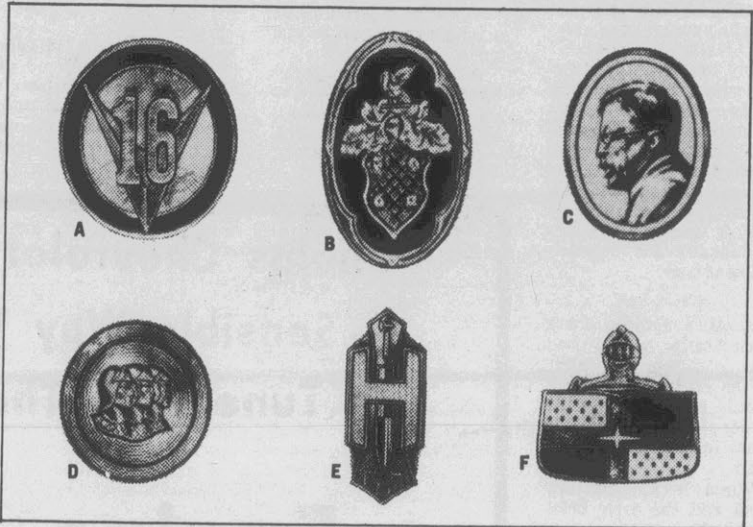

Gauges and lights, too

A gauge that is not operating or a light that is out can stick out like a sore thumb. It may cost only a matter of a few dollars to repair an item that could squelch the whole deal.

An Indiana salesman says, "Level with the buyer, and do both yourself and the future owner a favor."

Can you name cars that bore these emblems?

HOW ADEPT ARE YOU at recognizing old car emblems? Keyed to the letters on each emblem above, but printed upside down to help keep you from peeking, are the correct car identifications.

A) 1930 Cadillac, B) 1930's Packard, C) 1929-1931 Roosevelt, D) 1927-1941 Graham Paige, E) Huppmobile, F) 1934 DeSoto Continental.

Make sure windshield wipers are in shape for use in bad weather

As with so many other vital components on your car, your windshield wipers are most likely to fail just when you need them the most — like during the next storm.

In the summer, heat, smog, and even your service station attendant's windshield washer spray are working together to reduce the efficiency of your wiper system. It's no wonder, after sitting quietly on your windshield and deteriorating day-in and day-out, that they often fail to do their job.

Check when raining

The best time to check your windshield wiper system is during a rainstorm. Or you can check it the next time you go through a car wash. You can also perform a good check while someone sprays your windshield with a garden hose.

However you choose to check your wipers, you should check them on both the fast and slow speeds.

If any trouble symptoms are present, you should replace as much of your wiper system as is necessary to eliminate the problem. In many cases, all that is needed are new squeegees (the rubber parts that contact the windshield).

Replace both blades

When you do replace all or part of your wiper blades, make sure you replace both sides at the same time. If one wiper is shot, it's a good bet the other one is about to go, too. Safe vision during hazardous road conditions is too important to risk for a few dollars.

Here are five visible or audible indicators that will signal the need for attention to your windshield wipers. Clear driving vision is especially important during the bad weather season. Check for the following signs of malfunctioning:

1. STREAKING — arcs of unwiped moisture within the wiping area.

2. HAZING — a thin, hard-to-see-through film covering most or all of the wiping area even after the blade has just been wiped

3. CHATTERING — a "stuttering" motion of the blade accompanied by a "chattering" noise as the blade sweeps across the windshield, with some areas left unwiped.

4. SCALLOPING — a ragged outer edge in the wiping pattern.

5. RATTLING — no visible signs of problems, but the wiper blade sounds as if it were very loose. Can be reduced or eliminated by switching to polycarbonate blades.

ENGINE STAYS "TURNED ON"?

A TINY CARBON DEPOSIT... PERHAPS NO BIGGER THAN A SHARPENED PENCIL'S POINT... CAN CAUSE YOUR CAR'S ENGINE TO TURN OVER FITFULLY AFTER YOU TURN OFF THE KEY. THIS STARTLING CONDITION IS KNOWN AS "DIESELING."

IT'S MOST LIKELY TO TAKE PLACE WHEN A CAR IS USED PRIMARILY IN SHORT, LOW-SPEED RUNS WITH MUCH STOP-AND-GO.

A TRAINED, EXPERT MECHANIC CAN OFTEN HEAD OFF THE "DIESELING" PROBLEM BY MAKING SURE YOUR CAR'S IDLE SPEED CONTROL AND IDLE MIXTURE CONTROL ARE SET TO FACTORY-RECOMMENDED SPECIFICATIONS. COMPLETE, PERIODIC TUNE-UPS ARE ALSO RECOMMENDED.

Car's condition plus careful driving can yield fuel savings

Little things, particularly in terms of car maintenance, can mean a lot in terms of fuel savings. To prove the validity of the above statement, Shell Oil Company embarked on tests of procedures that could save the average car owner nearly three months worth of gasoline annually.

How much care

How much proper car care and prudent driving habits can save in fuel was the answer Shell sought in its tests. Here's what Shell engineers did and what they found:

A typical company car was taken and put into shape where gasoline waste was probable. The engine was placed slightly out of tune with ignition timing retarded and carburetor idle set too fast and rich.

Radial tires on the car were replaced by ordinary tires and air pressure was lowered from the proper 24 pounds to 19. Wheel alignment was altered and the wrong weight of motor oil was installed.

Group of drivers

A group of 23 drivers was employed to drive the cars so altered and the group averaged 13.6 miles per gallon. Once the cars were put back into proper shape, the test was conducted again. This time, mileage averaged 15.6 m.p.g. — a two mile per gallon improvement.

Driving habits

test were given specific tips on how to maneuver their cars for best fuel mileage, as follows:

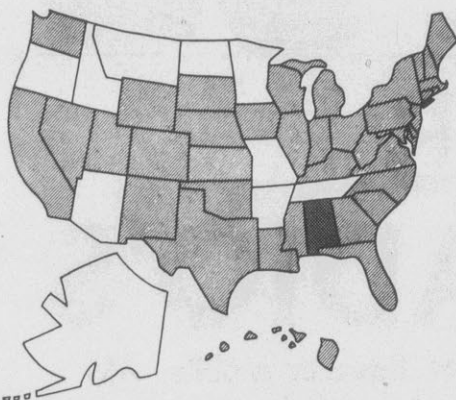

Accelerate gently without actually creeping away from the stop.

Anticipate stops and take your foot off the gas pedal, coasting to the intersection.

Keep your speed moderate. The most economical speed is 35 miles per hour. Never exceed 55 miles per hour.

40 States Now Ban Bald Tires

10 TO GO—Alabama has become the fortieth state to ban bald tires, with a one-sixteenth inch minimum tread depth law effective Jan. 1, 1976.

Thirty nine states and the District of Columbia now require a minimum tread depth of 1/16 inch, by law or regulation. One state, California, requires a 1/32 minimum.

States shown in white have no official safeguards against bald tires.

Meters, liters, grams come to Canada

News item: Canada has switched from the old English measurement to the metric system and the U.S. is soon to change over. Motorists will thus be thinking in terms of kilometers per liter instead of miles per gallon, among other new approaches to operating and maintaining their cars.

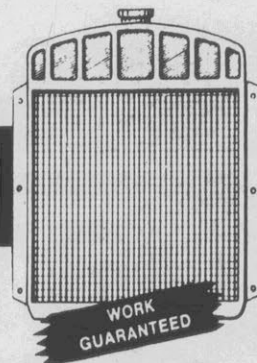

MEASURE FOR MEASURE

Although to some it may seem strange,
But nothing stays the same but change;
And so the pendulum now swings
About the way we measure things.
And now the inches, yards and feet
Give way to things with metric beat.
And ounces, pints, gallons and quarts
Are measurements of liter sorts.
And no more think in terms of mile,
Now kilometers are in style.
And when we think of melt or freeze,
'Tis not in Fahrenheit but C's.
Let's greet the news without ambivalence
And check this table for equivalents.

2. Pressure check of the cooling system for leaks.
3. Check oil and automatic transmission fluid for water content.
4. Test coolant thermostat
5. Check temperature gauge.
6. Drain system and flush until clean.
7. Test radiator pressure cap.
8. Check fan blades
9. Inspect all hoses
10. Check core plugs for seepage.
11. Refill system with coolant and check for air locks.
12. Check condition and tension of drive belts.

Another Car Care Quiz...

What you should know about cooling system

The higher cost of anti-freeze is giving motorists cause for more than a casual thought to the care of their cars' cooling systems. To help answer a few common questions (and some not so common) about this vital system of the car, Automotive Cooling System Institute asks a few.

See how you do on this true-false quiz. Answers are on page X. Eight or more correct is excellent. Six is passing and below that indicates you'd better bone up on car care.

1. Only purpose of the radiator cap is to keep the anti-freeze from spilling out. (T)..... (F).....
2. When the fan belt starts chirping or squealing it should be greased. (T)..... (F).....
3. The cooling system boils over at 212 degrees F. (100° C.) (T)..... (F).....
4. You'll find up to 6 different types of fluids in most cars. (T)..... (F).....
5. Radiator hoses never need replacement so long as they show no signs of leakage. (T)..... (F).....
6. A cool running engine is more efficient than one that runs hot. (T)..... (F).....
7. You can keep using the same anti-freeze for years if you add rust inhibitor every spring and fall. (T)..... (F).....
8. If your car overheats, stop at once, remove the radiator cap and add cold water. (T)..... (F).....
9. To prevent slipping, drive belts should be adjusted as tightly as possible. (T)..... (F).....
10. Hose clamps should be oiled when new hoses are installed. (T)..... (F).....

Correct answers to Car "Cool" test with reasons

Correct answer is FALSE in every case. Here's why.

1) The radiator cap seals the radiator to build up and maintain pressure in the system. Pressure caps weaken with age and should be checked seasonally.

2) Never put oil on a drive belt. While belt dressing or special lubricant designed for this purpose often will serve as a temporary cure for a squeaking belt, the noise usually is due to a glazed surface on the belt contacting the pulley. If the belt makes a clicking sound, look for a crack. Play it safe and replace noisy belts.

3) Water boils at 212 degrees Fahrenheit (100° Celsius). Antifreeze in a pressurized system, however, will not boil below 276 degrees F. if it is of the correct proportion.

4) There are ten fluids in most cars. You'll find them in the engine crankcase, transmission, rear axle, brake system, power steering system, cooling system, battery, windshield washer reservoir, air conditioner and (last but far from least) the gas tank.

5) False again! Don't wait until a hose starts leaking to replace it. After about three years of average driving hoses generally have deteriorated to a point where they soon could be spewing expensive anti-freeze all over the highway. Preventive replacement in time is the answer.

6) Neither too cool nor too hot an engine is efficient. But without a temperature gauge on the instrument panel it's difficult to determine whether or not your engine is running too cool. If your car is losing power or burning more gas than it used to, it may be due at least in part to a faulty thermostat that fails to keep the system up to temperature. Another clue: a heater that's not putting out as it should.

7) Don't believe it. Anti-freeze is a composition of many chemicals, some of which deteriorate with age and use. Anti-freeze-coolant should be replaced seasonally as part of complete system maintenance.

8) Never try to remove the radiator pressure cap on an overheating engine. You could be seriously scalded. Instead, allow the car to cool down, then remove the cap slowly and carefully using a large wad of towels or other protective cloth. Wear leather gloves for added protection if you have them available.

9) Too tight an adjustment puts undue strain not only on the belt but also on the bearings of the accessories it drives. To check for proper tension, press firmly half way between the pulleys. The belt should deflect no more than a half inch.

10) Most seasoned mechanics recommend replacing clamps when hoses are installed. Although they sometimes can be reused, clamps generally lose effectiveness through rust, corrosion and weakening of the metal. When investing in cooling system service, as with other car maintenance, your best buy is a job done properly.

Self service gas growing everywhere

After a slowdown due to the oil embargo, self service pumps are now increasing. Today about 12% of all gas is self service and estimates are for 40% by 1980. The lure for the consumer is lower prices — as much as 5 cents a gallon on some brands.

Self service also points to fewer minor repairs and other service work performed at gas stations. Station attendants with mechanical know-how are moving into the independent repair market. Meanwhile the number of service stations has shown a dramatic increase in the last two years, principally gas only stations.

Worn shocks often sneaky

Unlike a tire that suddenly blows out with a loud bang, worn shock absorbers can fall with little advance warning. Yet when shocks fail, the results can be just as perilous as a blow-out.

To avoid such a danger, ask your service man to check shocks every time the car is on the hoist for a lube job or similar service.

This is particularly important if your present shocks have more than 20,000 miles of wear on them.

The first professional fire department in Atlanta, Ga., suffered its first deaths seven years after its organization in 1882 when two members of Hook and Ladder Co. No. 1 were killed by falling debris at a fire in a four-story office building.

From outer space? Guess again

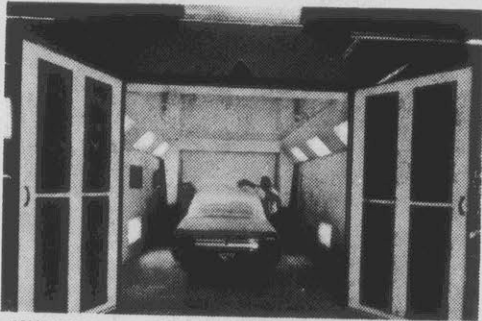

NOT A MOON ROCK sample but a close-up of body damage on a car. According to the Windsor, Ontario, Police, damage such as this rates high among the safety defects they have discovered in safety checks. Such damage is dangerous because the protective shell the car builds around passengers is hampered in case of accidents.

Busted bodies, lights topping Canadian check of car flaws

THIS BLOWN MUFFLER no longer will silence a car, but it could have silenced the car's passengers forever with lethal exhaust fumes. Carbon monoxide, the most dangerous component of exhaust gas, is tasteless, odorless and invisible. When it seeps into a car with closed windows, occupants can become drowsy or ill. In all too many cases, says Car Care Council, the eventual result is asphyxiation and death.

QUALITY PAYS — Among the best investments a motorist can make in making sure his car gets top value on trade-in is attention to body appearance. A quality paint job in a well-equipped shop will likely pay for itself in increased worth of the car. Sloppy reconditioning is easy to spot. (Photo Courtesy of DeVilbiss)

"The Lord helps him who helps himself."

If the above seems to be the motto of a greater number of gasoline retailing outlets, then the facts of life are becoming more apparent. There is a growing trend toward self-service gas stations where the customer pumps his own. Expensive fuel is a little cheaper to buy under the system. But the car owner who has counted on attendants to do simple maintenance jobs is out of luck.

Car owners who habitually buy gas at self-serve outlets should make sure they know how to check vital "life signs" of their cars. Then they should check at least weekly. Doing this requires a little knowledge of where to look and what to look for.

If in doubt, such information is contained in the car's Owner's Manual.

For example, the proper level of oil in the crankcase is indispensable to proper engine operation. You should know where the dipstick is located in your engine. Then know how to "read" the stick to determine whether your car has sufficient and clean oil.

What about the battery? Is the water level high enough to make sure it operates properly? Are the terminals clean and the cables sound?

Check to make sure all radiator hoses are intact and that fan belts and other pulleys are not worn or frayed.

Learn where to check on brake and other fluid levels.

A neglected car body rates high among automotive safety factors, according to a report just released by Car Care Council of Canada. The information is based on a survey of inspection records from Windsor, Ontario, where Provincial inspectors examined 809 cars, finding 364 with lighting discrepancies, 216 had headlights improperly aimed.

357 cars had body conditions which were cause for rejection, 243 were found with braking deficiencies and 211 with problems in steering and suspension.

Reasons for rejecting cars for body deterioration included such conditions as gaping holes in floor pans (one opening was large enough for a child to fall through), rusted and improperly secured doors, bumpers or other parts and damaged glass.

Inspectors' concern about body integrity is significant, according to Car Care Council. For years motorists have been aware of the safety hazards of driving with improper lighting, or brakes and steering that are not up to standard. But a neglected body presents a threat to life and limb because this is the protective shell in which we're encased.

Properly maintained, the car's body and frame can maintain the strength necessary to provide such protection in the event of an accident. This maintenance includes repair and painting of sheet metal damage and preventive measures to protect against rust.

Like car owners, cyclists also now help guard environment

The typical person riding a motorcycle today is apt to be an accountant or a fashion designer on the way to the office or a family going to a picnic, yet the public's image of the black leather-jacketed Marlon Brando still lingers as typical of the cyclist.

To dispel this image on behalf of the eight million cyclists (growing by an additional million yearly) and to represent the interests of the cycle makers, distributors and trade association, the Motorcycle Industry Council (MIC) has been formed.

The MIC's latest endeavor, one it shares with the automotive industry, is to work with government agencies such as the U.S. Department of Transportation and Environmental Protection Agency on noise and air pollution reduction for cycles.

Since the MIC speaks for more than 80 companies, it can present the industry's over-all views to the governmental agencies and works with them.

One of the first concerns of the EPA in their research to determine sound levels for motorcycles was the level of technology available in the sound abatement area. Through the MIC they were encouraged to visit various manufacturers' facilities. The manufacturers concerned were completely candid with the EPA official and actually demonstrated capabilities beyond those that were thought possible.

The noise problem is primarily with the new motorcycles available, for all must meet existing noise level standards in many states. The problem is with modified exhaust systems installed after the customer has purchased the machine. With this realization, the EPA has expanded its efforts beyond controlling noise at the point of manufacture.

Through MIC efforts, legislators realize that motorcycles are a legitimate recreation or transportation vehicle and that the laws and regulations controlling the use of motorcycles may well affect their neighbors if not themselves.

MONTANA'S BIG SKY country is enjoyed to the fullest by a lone motorcycle rider. No longer the domain of the "Wild One" type of rider, cycling now appeals to a wider variety of people. The industry as a whole has become aware of ecological matters such as pollution control, fuel economy and noise abatement according to an industry association Motorcycle Industry Council.

EPA asks to cut vapors from pumps

Gasoline vapors that enter the atmosphere from filling station gas pumps account for six per cent of all harmful emissions in large population areas, according to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

The EPA has proposed action to limit the amount of vapor in the air in eight specific areas. Controls of certain filling stations would be imposed in Baltimore, Boston, Denver, Los Angeles, Newark, Sacramento, Washington, D.C. and the San Joaquin Valley in California.

Under the regulations, stations pumping more than 10,000 gallons per month would have to provide for recovering vapors. Final compliance would be required by May 31, 1977.

To meet proposed standards, special pump nozzles and hoses would be used. These would return vapors from the car's tanks to a special underground storage tank.

AVOID TAILGATING. This is dangerous because it leaves insufficient room between your car and the one ahead of you and may require jamming on your brakes to avoid a collision. Aside from taking an additional toll on your fuel, this causes excessive tire wear.

Taxis help New York City clean up its air

Operators win 10 percent savings on fuel costs in cooperating to solve city's problem

For all its well publicized problems, New York City has made impressive progress in at least one important area: air pollution caused by cabs.

A year ago the Taxi and Limousine Commission started a program to make New York's medallion taxis safe and environmentally efficient. And according to statistics compiled by the City of New York's Department of Air Resources and Bureau of Motor Vehicle Pollution Control, there has been a marked reduction in harmful emissions from the vehicles, and a wide variety of dangerous mechanical defects has been corrected.

Prior to the start of the annual check-up, hydrocarbons emitted from taxis in 1973 totalled 2,400 tons. This was reduced to 1,600 tons in 1974 after the program began.

Carbon monoxide emissions went from 37,000 tons in 1973 down to 21,000 tons the following year.

"Since 40 per cent of New York City vehicle air pollution comes from cabs, there was a very obvious need for such a program to control carbon monoxide and other harmful emissions," said R. L. Gibney, President of Olson Laboratories which operated inspection facilities.

The taxis undergo a full range of safety and exhaust emission tests. They are also inspected for comfort-related items.

"The results have indicated that cabs which pass the test not only emit less hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide pollutants," Gibney stated, "but also show up to 10 per cent increase in fuel savings. When you consider that most taxis are driven 70,000 miles or more per year, this can be a significant cost savings for the operator and makes a substantial amount of gasoline available for other motorists."

Cooperation of taxi fleet operators and drivers chaffering the greatest number of cabs on the streets of any city in the country, in New York's drive to reduce air pollution, has resulted in a substantial improvement as recounted in the accompanying article. Simultaneously, it has also resulted in a considerable increase in the mileage they are getting per gallon of gas. Some notion of the number of cabs operating in New York may be had from the above photo made in the theater district. Photo by New York Daily News.

That's oil, folks

Oil cans may not be the most stimulating form of literature, but a few seconds spent scanning the can tops may prove worthwhile to the maintenance-conscious motorist. This is particularly true with the new motor oil coding system that recently went into effect.

Under the new code, several parts of the coding system remain constant. The SAE stands for Society of Automotive Engineers and the numerals 10, 20, 30 and 40 still indicate the viscosity or flow characteristics of the oil.

A designation such as 10W30 indicates a multi-purpose oil covering a wide viscosity range. The W means the oil is specially suited to wintertime use.

In addition to the SAE viscosity rating, there is an API or American Petroleum Institute classification of ML (Motor Light), MM (Motor Medium) or MS (Motor Severe). All 1964 or later models require the MS class of oil.

SA through SC are for light duty use such as lawn mower engines.

SD oil is the generally accepted lubricant for most present-day cars. CC will be for diesel engines.

The SE oils will be used for future engines with greater heat-resistant requirements. The SE oils might be recommended for your present car if you tow a boat or trailer in high speed conditions on the long trip.

CAR CARE QUIZ

Pass this test and save cash!

Here's a quiz where there could be a cash payoff if you know the right answers. Sorry, no one is offering prizes for the top scores. But by knowing and following some of the maintenance and driving practices contained below, you could reap sizeable savings in gasoline bills.

- Worn spark plugs waste an average of how much gasoline, compared to newly installed plugs?
 - Over six percent
 - Nearly two percent
 - There's little difference
- An engine in need of tune-up wastes this much more fuel than a newly tuned engine, on average
 - Less than a gallon per tankful
 - Between one and two gallons per tankful
 - Between five and six gallons per tankful
- For best fuel mileage be sure your tires aren't
 - Overinflated
 - Underinflated
 - White sidewalls
- The following is a notorious fuel waster
 - Worn windshield wipers
 - Frayed battery cables
 - Clogged air cleaner
- Brakes can have an adverse effect on fuel economy if
 - They are disc brakes
 - They are not properly adjusted
 - They are drum and shoe types
- You should use premium fuels only if
 - Your car is over three years old
 - You have an eight-cylinder engine
 - Engine does not perform properly without it
- Unleaded fuel is necessary if
 - Your car is equipped with a catalytic converter
 - You use a four-barrel carburetor
 - Your engine has a tendency to overheat
- The following is wasteful of fuel
 - Driving too slowly
 - Driving too fast
 - Driving with the windows closed
- According to AAA, "jackrabbit starts" can waste
 - 10 percent of your fuel
 - 25 percent of your fuel
 - Up to 44 percent of your fuel
- To save fuel, when you are waiting at a railroad crossing for several minutes
 - Keep transmission in neutral
 - Put engine in reverse but foot on brake
 - Shut off engine

QUIZ ANSWERS: 1. A; 2. A; 3. B; 4. C; 5. B; 6. C; 7. A; 8. B; 9. C; 10. C

Fuel for thought

Should you be using unleaded fuel in your car?

If you've been asking yourself that question in the interest of protecting the environment, the answer may not be simple.

New-model cars with catalytic converters should use the unleaded fuel to protect the converter.

Some cars without converters still may be run with unleaded gas, if the manufacturer recommends.

Owners of older models with low compression engines may or may not be able to use unleaded fuel safely. Those who would like to try it are advised to buy a tankful. If there is no engine knock, then your car can use the fuel safely. But should you hear the knock, indicating pre-ignition or detonation, then go back to your regular brand of gasoline.

VIEWS ON THE ISSUES FROM CAMPAIGN '76

FAMILY WEEKLY Begins a Series of Opinions Worth Remembering, Win or Lose, From All the Men Who've Gone After the Presidency

Jimmy Carter

VIEWS FROM THE TOP:

It is one of the glories of democracy that the opinions of those who win and those who lose are almost bound to be reflected in our country's policies and progress. The liberal opponent pulls the conservative to the left, and the conservative pulls the liberal to the right. What eventually emerges, when the democratic processes have worked properly, is a winner who cannot have failed to take into account a broad spectrum of all the views expressed on the long, hard road to nomination and election. The vanquished, like the victors, leave a lasting legacy.

In this Bicentennial election year, Family Weekly feels it is important to present as many of these conflicting views as possible. We went to all the major candidates for nomination in both parties—and asked them about issues we feel our readers will consider important.

This week, we present the opinions of Jimmy Carter and Morris Udall.

Later: highlights of our exclusive interviews with the other candidates and ex-candidates.

After the conventions, we will present YOUR views, the opinions expressed by You the Reader in answers to our special Timely Issues Survey, which drew tens of thousands of replies now being tabulated and evaluated.

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR ELIZABETH L. POST, author of "The New Emily Post's Etiquette"
Isn't it time we stopped saying "How do you do?" when we are introduced? It means nothing; no reply is expected. What would be a good substitute?—Mrs. Alfred C. Herz, New London, N.H.

● Not all, but most people, are basically shy and need a crutch to help them over their reluctance to talk to strangers. We use many phrases as crutches—"How are you?" "Glad to meet you," etc. "How do you do?" really means "How are you doing?" You're right. No answer is required. But these automatic responses make it easier to break the ice than thinking up apt remarks for each new situation. Without "How do you do?" many conversations would never get off the ground at all.

FOR NANCY WALKER, star of "Rhoda"
Does it bother you to be referred to as "plain?"—W.M., Owensboro, Ky.

● No. My husband thinks I'm gorgeous, and that's all that counts. I couldn't care less what other people think. However, had I been prettier, I'm sure my career would probably have taken a different turn. Glamorous women are seldom funny.

FOR GEORGE SEGAL, star of "Dick and Jane"
Weren't you one of those who worked his way through college?—E.B., Decatur, Ill.

● Yes, and believe me, it wasn't as glamorous as it's cracked up to be. One of the things I liked doing, though, was managing a fresh fruit stand right in my neighborhood—Broadway and 116th Street. I'm a fruit lover, and what I didn't sell I ate.

FOR RALPH HOUK, manager of the Detroit Tigers
What do you tell a pitcher when you walk out to the mound?—J. Morris, Lansing, Mich.

● Well, I might point out a flaw in his delivery or warn him about some batter who's new in the league. But if the other team is hitting his stuff, I'll just talk long enough to give the new man time to warm up. I usually wave the other pitcher in before I get to the mound so the first guy won't have time to get mad. Pitchers aren't too happy about being taken out, and they'll say, "Geez, I'm all right. I can get the next one out." And sometimes they'll go to throwing things.

FOR RAQUEL WELCH
What's the first thing you read in a newspaper?—J.C., Hollywood, Calif.

● I read it from back to front; scan the movie reviews, then the sections that deal with people. I flip through for stories that catch my eye. What it boils down to is that when I read, I like to start off being entertained. I get ready for the heavy and depressing stuff to follow.

FOR ANGIE DICKINSON
I heard that you have insurance on your legs. True?—Laurie Stechman, San Luis Obispo, Calif.

● It used to be true—but no more. The premiums are too high.

FOR LESLIE UGGAMS
Who are the most interesting people you've met?—J.R., Lansing, Mich.

● Without a doubt—politicians. JFK fascinated me because of his amazing gift for remembering names—even after a period of years. And I'll never forget the time Bobby Kennedy called my house (about my singing at a Democratic dinner) and my housekeeper passed out in a dead faint. Or the day I visited the White House while LBJ was President. He kept turning out the lights and complaining that he was the only one who worried about wasted electricity.

FOR GEORGE MEANY, president of the AFL-CIO
What's the difference between business donations to politicians, which are illegal, and organized labor donations, which are legal?—Ken Stevenson, Holidaysburg, Pa.

● Organized labor's contributions are made from a pool of voluntary contributions from millions of union members. These individuals are the real contributors. It is illegal for a labor union to contribute dues money to a candidate for Federal office.

FOR NEIL DIAMOND
You said in a recent interview that you hated songwriting. If that's so, why do you do it?—Laurie Rudd, Grand Junction, Colo.

● I wasn't using hate in the usual sense of the word. I was being analytical. Like a love-hate relationship, I sometimes hate the anxiety that writing produces, but I love the results. The work may be torture, but the outcome is exalting.

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR
Why don't the stars who originate roles on the stage re-create them when the movie versions are made?—S. Chavez, Whittier, Calif.

● The real reason is that Hollywood feels Broadway stars aren't sufficiently known to carry a multimillion-dollar production. Some movie producers also say they want to give the public someone else in the lead roles. Actress Celeste Holm calls the practice "sheer idiocy." Years ago, she was offered the "Born Yesterday" film role, and couldn't imagine why. She pointed out that if she took it, she could only imitate Judy Holliday. The producer finally gave in. Josephine Premice, now on Broadway in "Bubbling Brown Sugar," says Streisand in "Hello Dolly" was the "most interesting example of not using the right person." And she adds: "Audrey Hepburn in 'My Fair Lady' is another classic of miscasting."

Memorable Opinions of the Men Who Have Sought the Presidency

Jimmy Carter Democrat

Jimmy Carter seems indefatigable. He arrived in our New York offices smiling but serious, with an entourage of Secret Servicemen and campaign assistants who were, by contrast, out of breath and dragging their feet.

Carter is known as a man most people have difficulty keeping up with. The former governor of Georgia has about him an air of supreme confidence. Many of his critics claim he is "fuzzy" on the issues, but he answered all our questions in specific detail, talking expansively, perhaps even glibly.

There is about Jimmy Carter an unstinting belief in his own abilities. He even prefaced some of his remarks with, "When I'm elected President..."

On Federal Bureaucracy: Every time a new problem evolves, Congress creates a new agency. In 1974, the Congress and the President created 84 new agencies. Each one may be needed at the time it's created, but after a period of five or six years, when the need has passed, it's still there. We now have about 1,900 that we know about—there are probably 600 to 800 more that we don't know about. There is an evolutionary and almost inevitable procedure as far as Government agencies are concerned: the first thing that happens is that the agency enshrouds itself in secrecy; next, it tries to conceal the fact that it even exists so that it won't be scrutinized by the public or the General Accounting Office. Another thing it does is to start to make work for itself. I don't want anybody to vote for me this year unless that voter wants to see the entire executive branch of our Government completely reorganized and made efficient, economical, simple, purposeful and manageable for a change.

On Investigative Agencies: We've got to have a good intelligence network. We can't afford to predicate foreign-policy decisions on public-relations handouts from Communist dictators. But I see no reason why the CIA should plot murders or assassinations against a nation that's at peace with us. I don't see any reason why the CIA should ever violate the law in any respect to investigate the private affairs of the American people. The only thing I can assure you is that, when I'm President, if the CIA or the FBI—or other secret organizations should ever make a mistake, I'll call a press conference and I'll tell the American people what happened and be personally responsible that there is no recurrence in the future.

On Détente: When Russia first agreed to the principle of détente, the Soviet Government was operating out of weakness. Now, it's operating from a position of supreme confidence and strength. I think our position has weakened. And one of the reasons is that we have yielded to Russia on every controversial negotiation point. Détente is a very good arrangement if it means

Elizabeth Gee

"I think if everybody in the U.N. felt, 'When we pass a resolution, it will have some effect,' the U.N. would become much more responsible about its decisions."—Jimmy Carter

Morris Udall Democrat

Running for President seems to have taken its toll of Morris K. Udall. The 6-5, wiry Arizona Congressman looked pale and weary the day we interviewed him in his office on Capitol Hill.

Udall arrived 40 minutes late, telling his secretary he had decided to have lunch first. Then his opening remark was, "I'm very pressed for time—I have a plane to catch." He seemed distracted during the interview, constantly scribbling notes and seldom looking up to meet our interviewer's gaze. He did say: "It's O.K., I can do two things at the same time. You just keep asking the questions."

Udall was a man of few words—painfully few. He answered some 32 questions in as many minutes, and he frequently brushed aside complicated questions with a request that after the interview we check out his "position paper" on the subject.

On Crime: I believe the emphasis on "toughness" in public debate over law enforcement is misplaced. The U.S. already has the harshest criminal laws of any advanced country, yet crime goes up. I think our great failure has not been in severity of punishment, but in sureness and swiftness of arrest, trial and sentencing. To make substantial inroads against crime will require efforts on many fronts: full employment so that people are not drawn to crime out of poverty, frustration or boredom; a decent economic climate so that big cities aren't forced to lay off policemen; stricter guidelines on sentencing to reduce the inequities that cause cynicism among convicts; more courts, prosecutors and defense lawyers so that cases need not be plea-bargained simply because it is too time-consuming to bring people to trial; focused enforcement on the most terrorizing crimes, such as mugging and rape, and a penal system that prepares offenders for useful post-prison lives rather than teaching them to be craftier criminals. I don't think the Federal Government can do much to reduce crime. It's mostly a state and local problem. But the Federal Government could put the pressure on Turkey and Mexico as far as the drug traffic is concerned, and they could experiment and innovate to show the local agencies the way.

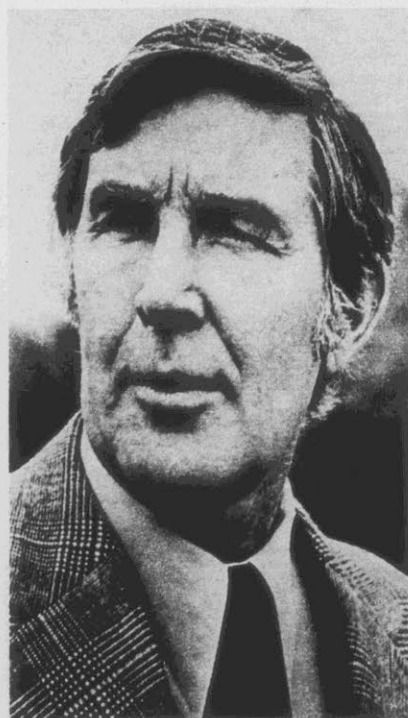

On Secretary Kissinger: I think history is going to be kind to him on détente, the opening of China and skillful personalized diplomacy. There's no one very much better than he at dealing with heads of state as a negotiator. I think history is not going to be sympathetic about his wiretapping his staff, lying to Congress and the nation on Cambodia, his involvement in the overthrow of Chile and his secretive kind of one-man shop tactics.

On Military Spending: I think we ought to cut our military spending by 10 percent. We've got too many generals and admirals, too many overseas bases, too many troops. There are too many civilians who aren't directly connected with the fighting function—who run headquarters and PXs and things that aren't connected with the muscle of the military establishment. As far as weapons are concerned, I would advocate the building of simpler, tougher, more easily replaceable tanks, ships and airplanes, not the new, exotic weapons we're building now. I think we ought to look at whether we really need 14 aircraft carriers that are expensive to build and operate. There was a pretty good study done last year that shows we added three infantry divisions and we had two carrier task forces that we maintain for the sole purpose of fighting an Asian land war. I think the last thing on earth the American people want is an Asian land war.

On the CIA: In order to make the CIA more responsive to our elected Government officials, we need a good, tight, balanced oversight committee from the House and Senate; we need a President who's got a passion for civil liberties and understands the needs of the intelligence network, but is not willing to let the CIA abuse the rights of other people, spy on American citizens or try to run the world.

On Busing: Busing is a tough social problem that we've dumped on courts and schools, and communication, trade, openness, tourism, student exchanges, cultural knowledge. But yielding on trade negotiations and neglecting our natural allies because of our preoccupation with Russia are things that concern me.

"Détente isn't a dirty word to me. . . . I think the present arrangement is advantageous to mankind in the long run. At least we're trying."

On the U.N.: I think we ought to look at the U.N. as a forum for presenting the American position. Some functions of the U.N. are very crucial to us—those concerning the international monetary fund, trade agreements, freedom of the seas, access to commodities, population problems, food-shortage problems. The General Assembly is quite often irresponsible. But its irresponsibility derives from the lack of substance effected by its decisions. I think if everybody in the U.N. felt, "When we pass a resolution, it will have some effect," the U.N. would become much more responsible about its decisions. . . . As President, I would adopt a position that the ambassador to the U.N. would be the most important ambassador of all.

On the Third World: We have no comprehensive policy towards South American countries, Central American countries or the countries of Africa. Most of those countries feel that we don't care about them. In the last few years I've been in 11 foreign nations. Often I've had the opportunity to spend a day with a nation's president, prime minister or one of its top ambassadors. Invariably, they say to me, "We haven't had a friend in the White House since John Kennedy died." It wouldn't take much to restore that kind of personal relationship and mutual respect: frequent visits by the Secretary they're just not equipped to handle it. Legislators and mayors and all kinds of community institutions need to be involved in this problem. I think housing is a key part of it. Our long-range goal ought to be stable, integrated communities so that neighborhood schools can exist.

On Abortion: I personally don't advocate or favor abortion as a standard thing. But if you're going to say, as some do, that every abortion must be prohibited or those involved will go to jail, you've got to be prepared to answer the worst case. The worst case might be that your 14-year-old daughter is assaulted by some criminal who is diseased, and the doctor tells you that the fetus is going to be born crippled and malformed, yet the girl has to go ahead and have the baby. You've got to be prepared to say, even in that case, that abortion is against the law unless the mother's life is in danger. And that simply doesn't make sense. You shouldn't try to create laws that you're not going to enforce.

On Education: There's a lot of ferment in the educational community, but I think we'll be seeing changing patterns in the next few years. The whole development of the community college system has recognized that not everyone fits into the four-year college mold. We need not only college graduates, we need people from technical and trade schools. I think we're moving away from the idea that a person isn't successful if he doesn't have a college degree, and we're going to have to encourage pride in the need for good carpenters, good repairmen, servicemen and technicians of all kinds.

On the Third World: Our relations with the

of State or other top leaders; appointments of qualified ambassadors for a change; the visit of a President's family.

On Abortion: I do not favor a constitutional amendment to prohibit abortions. I also do not favor a constitutional amendment that would give states a local option—those are the two pro-

It is FAMILY WEEKLY's belief that, no matter who wins or withdraws, the ideas expressed by the Presidential hopefuls of Campaign '76 deserve a longer, more thoughtful life than a mere candidacy in which to be measured. We went to most of these men for their stands on the issues. Today: Carter and Udall. In future issues: the others.

A good way to keep your weight down, or lower it, is to assign yourself a one-day-a-week "health day." Pick, say, Tuesday, as your regular "health day," and eat the same foods every Tuesday. What foods? They're the choices you select from among your personal, favorite, low-calorie foods, and you eat them in quantities that are 500 calories or less for the day. One person's "health day" may begin with a half-cup of low-cal cottage cheese and half an orange, plus black coffee and a vitamin pill (125 calories). Lunch may consist of a whole can of tuna fish (drained) on lettuce leaves, with lemon wedges and a cup of tea (220 calories). And dinner may be a small piece of broiled chicken (three ounces, plus bone—and no skin, please!) along with a sizable salad of greens, cucumber, radishes, dressed with wine vinegar (150 calories). Total for the day: 495 calories. A once-a-week diet such as this gives you plenty of protein, good roughage, lots of vitamins—and a minimum of calories! —By Harriet La Barre

People and You

Should Your Doctor Be Your Friend?

It's true that a doctor's "bedside manner" is important. But many people struggle with unsatisfactory medical care because they don't go beyond personality questions. University research reveals that even well-educated people are often "highly uninformed" as to whether they are being treated by general practitioners or specialists. As a result, people often wander from doctor to doctor trying to solve a medical problem without ever asking who specializes in that particular area. For example, if you have a stubborn skin ailment, you don't need a "good doctor," you need a good skin specialist. Also, your physician's conscientious interest in you and your family may work against you. The university study mentioned above indicates that knowing your doctor on a friendly personal basis may lower the quality of care you receive. When the doctor had a close relationship with the patient, or when the patient was a person of local importance, doctors were slow to suggest specialist attention. Surprisingly, when doctors had no personal interest in the patient, the sick people frequently received the "best care" because the physicians rather quickly sent them off to the specialist they required. —By Shirley Sloan Fader posals that have been made. But under the present Supreme Court ruling, I'll do everything I can, as President, to minimize the need for abortions with a comprehensive federal program, established by law, that concerns education in family planning, access to contraceptives by those who believe in their use—including minors, by the way—and better adoptive procedures. There's no easy answer to abortion. They'll still be debating that issue 50 years from now. But the present Supreme Court ruling says that during the first 13 weeks a mother is entitled to make that decision. I don't think that will change.

On Education: To express the needs of future education in a few words, I'd say the key phrase is: individualization of instruction—that is, treating children as individuals. Throughout my four years as Governor, everything I did in education was designed to treat each child differently, to give each one a chance to progress at his or her own rate. I'm generally in favor of cutting down on the number of federal agencies, but one new agency I would consider creating would be a separate Department of Education. I don't think we'll ever have adequate attention paid to education while it's buried under health and welfare in one oversized department.

On the Role of the Attorney General: We ought to get the Attorney General out of politics. When I was a child and a President ran a successful campaign, the campaign manager became the Postmaster General. Nowadays, the campaign manager becomes the Attorney General. That's a cabinet position where, in my opinion, we ought to have a nonpartisan political figure because that person is responsible for administration of equitable and fair laws in an enthusiastic way. I think the Attorney General should be appointed for a limited period of time—say five to seven years—and given the same independence Leon Jaworski had as special Watergate prosecutor.

On the Economy: The major thrust of my administration will be toward employment. While I don't think the Federal Government should assume responsibility for providing the majority of jobs, I do think it can work to strengthen the private sector . . . I would do everything I could to keep interest rates low . . . I believe in developing new industrial prospects, like a solar heating industry . . . I also believe in the aggressive sale of American products overseas. And we should remove the incentives, tax and otherwise, that have encouraged American corporations to manufacture products in foreign countries while their former employees in this country are out of work.

Third World nations will be crucial in the years ahead. We will be dependent on many Third World nations for energy and raw materials. The international monetary system needs comprehensive reform, as do trade relations. The control of environmental hazards, such as irrevocable damage to the oceans or to the climate, can only be handled on a global basis and will require the participation and cooperation of all the nations of the world. The same is true for the control of nuclear proliferation and the exploding conventional arms race. With all these problems, it is imperative that we begin to develop better relations with Third World nations.

On Relations With China: The Chinese entered into this arrangement with Kissinger and Nixon, not out of any love for us. It was in their hard-boiled, hard-nosed national interest. They were fearful of the Soviets—almost paranoid about them, in fact. The Chinese saw the U.S. as a way to counter the Soviet threat. And that is what's keeping good relations between us. I think we ought to get as much out of this relationship as we can. I think it's critical to world peace that we develop a relationship with both the Soviets and the Chinese.

On Détente: Détente isn't a dirty word to me. The essence of détente is arms control—the obligation of the superpowers and the nuclear world to cooperate and discuss arms limitation, consult and exchange ideas, products and technology. I think we're better off—the world is better off—if we can build a web, a network of relationships. I think the present arrangement is advantageous to mankind in the long run. At least we're trying. We had a SALT I agreement, and we're in the process of getting a SALT II agreement. That's the most vital aspect of détente. Sure, I think that Kissinger, Nixon and Ford haven't been very smart in their dealings because they've given away too much to the other side. But the overriding issue is that we keep in close contact with the superpowers in this nuclear age.

On the Challenges America Faces: The crucial challenge of the next few decades will be to insure that this Age of Scarcity doesn't become an Age of Poverty. The way to meet that challenge is not through the cruel self-delusion of would-be leaders who claim we can turn back the clock but by facing up to this new world and understanding its meaning: the interrelationship between energy, the environment and the economy; the difference between living wastefully and living well; the lesson that the "consent of the governed" is not a blank check but a credit card, subject to revocation.

Put your money in a La-Z-Boy®

It's the best investment you can make

This Father's Day, one of the smartest things you can do for Dad is to get him a La-Z-Boy chair. Because this year, when prices rise daily and quality apparently no longer counts, you can still count on the comfort, the quality, the craftsmanship of La-Z-Boy.

And we can back that claim up. With a name that's the best known in the business. Because you've made us the largest chair company in the business. And for good reason. Our chairs are made with the finest materials available. Like a beautiful selection of colorful, fashionable fabrics made of DuPont Nylon. That's why we sell more of them than anyone else. That's why our customers are La-Z-Boy fans for life.

And they spread the good word around. Because when you're onto a good thing, you want your friends to know about it, too.

So when you're in the market for comfort, put your money in a La-Z-Boy for Father's Day.

People Quiz

By John E. Gibson

On Getting People to Do What You Want

True or False? When you're bargaining with someone over price, it's important to make your initial demands modest and realistic—otherwise the other person is likely to react with hostility. (See number 3.)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. When you're trying to talk someone into doing something, keep your voice low and confidential. If he has to lean forward to hear what you're saying, so much the better.
2. When asking someone to do you a favor, if your request happens to embarrass or disconcert him, it's likely to ruin your chances completely.
3. When you're bargaining with someone over price, it's important to make your initial demands modest and realistic—otherwise the other person is likely to react with hostility.
4. When a person says to you, "You know, I really feel guilty about that..." it is one of the best times to ask him a favor.
5. The person who is most resistant to persuasion is the individual who is both highly emotional and highly intelligent.

ANSWERS

1. False. You'll be far more effective if you step up the vocal volume and come on loud and clear. In University of Iowa studies, 900 recorded messages were rated on a persuasion scale, assessing the degree of convincingness. The highest- and lowest-rated persuasive messages were then checked for volume (loud, medium or soft). Results indicated that "loudness is a characteristic of persuasion."

2. False. If the person happens to be embarrassed, that's unfortunate—but only because it makes him uncomfortable. It shouldn't hurt your chances. In fact, findings of a Boston University study have demonstrated that when a person is embarrassed, he is much more apt to comply with a request. And other psychological studies have shown that "embarrassed individuals seek the positive experience of helping someone in order to relieve the discomfort of their embarrassment."

3. False. Psychologists have observed that bargainers achieve a better outcome when they make extreme rather than moderate initial demands. This permits the bargainer to make gradual concessions. Each concession the other party is permitted to "win" has a warming effect on his ego, subtly instilling the illusion that he is a pretty sharp trader and has gained the advantage over his adversary.

4. True. Studies have shown that when a person is feeling guilty about something, he is not only more compliant, he actually wants to do something helpful, and will sometimes do such a deed voluntarily, without being asked. The person with guilt feelings seeks out a means of expiating his guilt. You help him accomplish this by the simple act of letting him do you a favor or service.

5. False. Studies at McMaster University (Ontario) have shown that people who are both highly intelligent and highly emotional tend to be pushovers for a persuasive argument. The reason? The investigators point out that "high emotional responsiveness may interfere with the adequate expression of high intelligence." Such people can be talked into doing things by people who aren't nearly as intelligent as they are.

For the first time ever... a remarkably QUICK absolutely FOOLPROOF way to lose all the weight you want — PERMANENTLY.

Lose Weight While You Sleep!

ENTERTAINERS, ATHLETES, TEENAGERS, EVEN FAMOUS WEIGHT-LOSS PROGRAM FLUNK-OUTS HAVE LOST 10, 20, 50, UP TO 99 POUNDS OF UGLY FAT!

Not a diet — a weight loss revolution. Here is a proven alternative to every diet method ever used. The miraculous Slim-Through-Sleep Plan that has been clinically tested on over 2,000 overweight people.

Eat all the foods you ate before. For the first time, here is a weight loss method that works even if you don't cooperate. No formulas to follow, no special foods to prepare, nothing to count or weigh. Best of all, the Slim-Through-Sleep method eliminates the single greatest cause for weight-loss failure — Will Power. That's right, the hardest part of any diet — is the fight to avoid food, and STS makes painful will power a thing of the past.

Almost immediately you will begin losing weight more easily than ever before in your life... effortless weight loss that your friends, even your own family, will notice right away!

Yes, even if every other method you've tried has failed, you can now lose every pound you want to — and never gain it back!

STS has worked near miracles with thousands of people. (Just look at some of the pictures and comments on this page). With the Slim-Through-Sleep Plan you won't feel the least bit deprived. It won't be a matter of pushing yourself away from the dinner table... or doing strenuous exercises... or substituting foods.

5 MINUTES A DAY FOR 5 DAYS AND POUNDS START TO DISAPPEAR. For just five minutes before you go to sleep, follow the STS Plan... that's all. While you are sleeping, it's actually working.

STS will actually leave you feeling more relaxed, free of tension and free of those unhealthy EXTRA pounds you've been carrying around for so long.

Before you know it, your spirits will soar to new heights. You'll have the self-confidence that comes from being pleased with your appearance. You will look and feel the way you deserve to, perhaps the way you thought was impossible before.

No "starvation," no substitutes. Eat every food you eat now.

Everything that has been unpleasant about losing weight before no longer exists. If you love mashed potatoes smothered in gravy... rich cheesecake... whipped cream on your desserts, you'll still be able to enjoy these and every delicious food you have always loved. Never again will you have to contend with pills that leave you jittery; exercises that leave you exhausted and aching; food cravings that have you climbing the walls. Spend just 5 minutes with the STS plan the first evening you get it and we promise you results in weight loss that will startle you. Without suffering a moment of anxiety you will shed pound after pound quickly and effortlessly — and you'll never regain that weight again.

Sandra Glass lost 99 pounds! "I had let myself go to pot, weightwise, and now I have been able to bring my weight down to the right level and bring up my spirits and my life. I previously weighed 241 pounds and now I weigh a gorgeous 142."

Domenick Griesi, teenager, lost 52 pounds! "I weighed 211 pounds and am now down to 159. I have tried other methods to lose weight, but have never been able to stick with them. Being a teenager, you have no idea how much happier I am now."

STS Method Sweeping Europe, Now Available For The First Time In This Country

Within the past year, the STS Method has become an enormous success in France, Switzerland, Germany and other European countries. Thousands and thousands of overweight Europeans have discovered that this is the only method that provides any meaningful, permanent weight loss. In development in this country for over 16 years, only now has this wonder-working method become available in such an easy-to-use plan... a foolproof plan... that could be considered the most important weight-loss discovery in over 50 years! American Consumer has been involved in researching weight-loss concepts for the past three years. Our customers have taught us that what is required is an effective, quick and safe weight-loss plan. We have spent the last year in negotiation to secure the STS program exclusively for our mail order public. We feel the results — the fantastic STS Program — has been worth the effort.

Here's What Users Of The STS Method Have To Say:

Lee G., 25 lbs. in 1½ months: "It is such an easy and non-frustrating way to lose weight. This is the best method I have found in 15 years of dieting."

Father Pat B., 30 lbs. in 2 months: "I recommend this program enthusiastically to anyone who seriously wants to lose weight."

Terry W., 22 lbs. in 2 months: "I tried just about every diet or pill and nothing ever helped like this. I can face myself in a mirror again."

Sarah P., 33 lbs. in 3 months: "I feel in a wonderful frame of mind, plenty of pep and energy and ambition."

Barbara B., 22 lbs.: "Thanks so much for the new 'skinny' me. No more diet pill blues or starvation cranks. You've helped me become a happy, slim female again."

Pat T., 30 lbs. in 3 months: 3 months ago, for everyone, including teenagers and children

- Other methods require a change in dining out and party habits — STS doesn't change the food you eat regardless of the occasion
- Other methods have a yo-yo effect, weight comes off, and goes right back on — with STS weight stays off permanently

Money-back Guarantee

We promise that if you truly want to lose every excess pound you have been living with — even if it's been years since you last dieted — This will be the easiest, most permanent weight-loss method you have ever tried. If you, for any reason, fail to lose the weight you want within 30 days (and you are the sole judge of how much you want to lose), simply return your STS Plan and your money will be promptly refunded (except postage/handling).

The only thing now between you and weight-loss success is the effort it takes to mail the coupon below. Do it today and you won't be sorry. We guarantee it!

Meet the Creator Of The STS Method. Frank Rocco, R. H., is a world-renowned registered therapist, and his clinical success with people who had never before been able to lose weight has been phenomenal.

Mr. Rocco's contention is: "Any person can lose weight with this plan as long as they have the sincere desire to lose. That is the only prerequisite. They can lose as much as they want, five pounds to a hundred pounds, and there is no medication involved." He has proven this in case after case, where he has given new hope and new happiness to people who had tried dozens of other weight-loss methods without lasting success.

Frank Rocco is recognized as a major authority in his field and has been the subject of many newspaper articles and television shows.

I started and not to sound like an ad, I really am a new person. Very happy!"

Harry C., 51 lbs. in 2½ months: "There are no nasty after effects. I've been on about five or six diets, all of which involved medication, and I always lost weight. But I didn't like the feeling. The drugs would make me grouchy after the pills wore off... Besides, I always went up again after I stopped using the pills."

Why The STS Plan Is Better Than Any So-called Diet You've Ever Tried

- Diet pills make you tense and nervous — STS leaves you relaxed and energetic
- Diet Plans require change in eating habits — with STS you eat all the foods you ate before
- Almost every weight-loss method requires will power — STS eliminates that painful barrier
- Other plans require a different regimen for active, non-active, young and old — STS works remarkable results

I know my taste.

No one has to tell me why I smoke. I could recognize my cigarette blindfolded. I smoke Winston.
Winston is all taste—that means real taste and real pleasure. For me, Winston is for real.

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

What in the World!

THE CONCORDE CUT It's controversial, too!

Hairodynamics: A hairdo that is taking off in London is the Concorde cut, modeled after the supersonic plane that has caused so much excitement on both sides of the Atlantic. Says the creator of this new hairstyle, London hairdresser Roy Cartmell: "The jet's slim, sleek elegance was the inspiration for my design. You know, it took me as long to invent this new look as it will for the jet to fly from London to New York—3½ hours!" Not only is the future of the jet still very much up in the air, but the "nose" of the haircut may jeopardize the wearer's safety. It's difficult to see under the weight of all that hairodynamics.

CHARLES LINDBERGH
First came the rules

Was Charles Lindbergh a prude? "Barnstormers were in some ways the pop stars of their time, and although Lindbergh had no objections to the girls who swirled around his plane, he never allowed any of them to come near him. What would he have talked to them about anyway? He knew nothing about jazz—his favorite song was still 'Home on the Range.' He couldn't dance and he didn't have the time or money to go to the movies. The tall, thin-as-a-lath, dashing handsome young man was something of a prude. It was not simply that he was an abstainer from alcohol, tobacco and other stimulants. He had solemnly tried whiskey, beer, cigarettes and coffee, and had subsequently eschewed them because he considered them all physically weakening. He drew up a list of rules by which he felt he should live. He once told a journalist, 'I drew up a list of character factors—qualities like alertness, ambition, manliness and precision—there were 65 in all—and every night I would read off the list, and those which I had fulfilled satisfactorily during the day, I would mark with a red cross; those which I had violated that day, I would mark with a black cross. I began to compare those red and black marks from month to month and year to year. I was glad to know that there was an improvement as I grew older.'" From "Lindbergh: A Biography," by Leonard Mosley (Doubleday, $12.95).

Masquerading as a conservative: Actor James Earl Jones says that's what he did back in the 50's, "so as not to get involved in the fury of McCarthyism and fear that was rampant. Many of us 'did all kinds of conservative things to 'cover' ourselves. I, for one, converted to Catholicism and voted for Eisenhower. Those were actions that were uncharacteristic, but most of us would do anything to survive and keep safe. We struck an apathetic pose, but we didn't stop caring. Good things can come out of supposedly apathetic times, like the 50's or the 70's. We learn to be more self-sufficient. Nixon left us with a murky pond; we don't know what we want from a leader or in a leader. That's healthy as far as I'm concerned. We have to stop looking for a father figure in Government. Jerry Ford is reigning as a leaderless President; we ought to breathe easier because of his lack-luster politics." James Earl Jones is currently starring in "The River Niger," with Cicely Tyson.

ARMOURY

By Richard Armour

GONE, ANYHOW

Where do pens and pencils go?
That's something I would like to know.
One minute they are all around,
The next, not even one is found.
(The minute they're around is when I need no pencil, need no pen.
The minute they are out of sight
Is when I have the need to write.)
Do pens and pencils in the night
Sprout little wings and then take flight?
Among the things I do not know
Is where the pens and pencils go.

IN THE MISTY ISLES OF KING ARTHUR
by HAL FOSTER

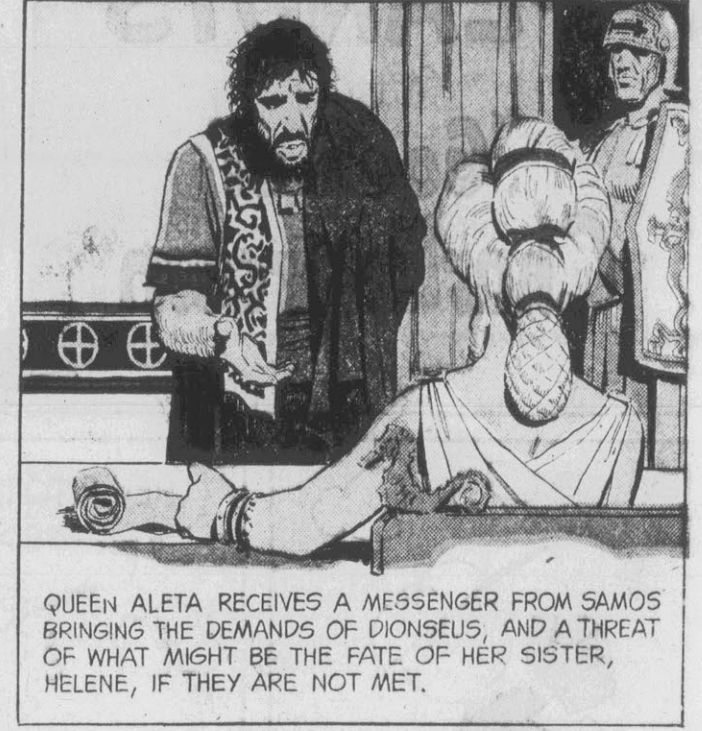

Our Story: BRANDED AS A COWARD AND TRAITOR, DIONSEUS, WHO ONCE ASPIRED TO BE KING OF THE MISTY ISLES, HAS REACHED THE DEPTHS. HE CALLS FOR HIS WIFE, HELENE.

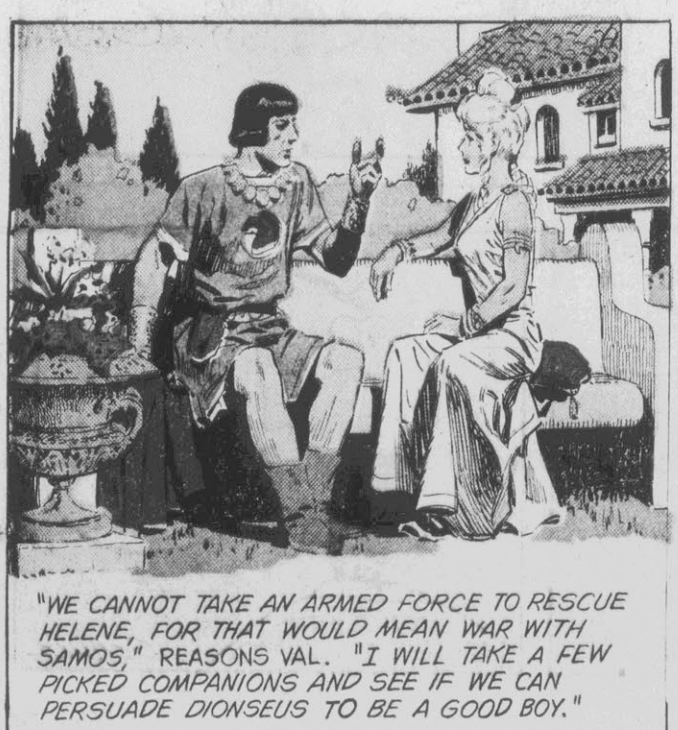

"WRITE TO YOUR SISTER AND DEMAND A SUM OF MONEY BEFITTING YOUR RANK. TOO LONG HAS SHE TREATED US LIKE BEGGARS!"

"WHAT? YOU REFUSE YOUR HUSBAND'S ORDERS? YOU ARE BEAUTIFUL, A KING'S DAUGHTER AND WOULD COMMAND A GOOD PRICE IN THE SLAVE MARKET OF ATHENS!"

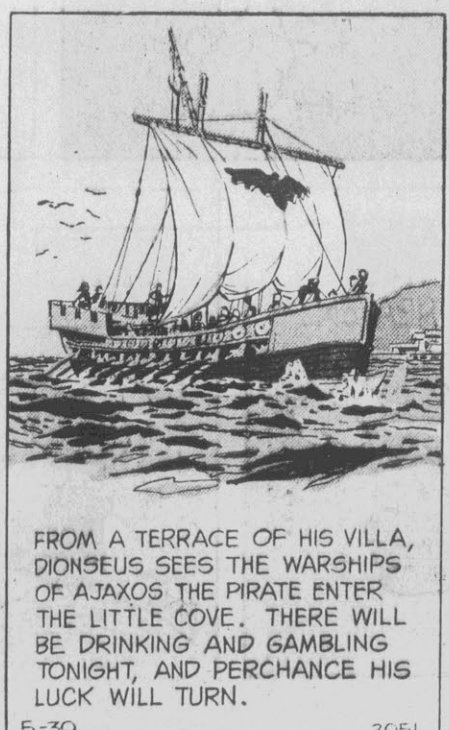

QUEEN ALETA RECEIVES A MESSENGER FROM SAMOS BRINGING THE DEMANDS OF DIONSEUS, AND A THREAT OF WHAT MIGHT BE THE FATE OF HER SISTER, HELENE, IF THEY ARE NOT MET.

"WE CANNOT TAKE AN ARMED FORCE TO RESCUE HELENE, FOR THAT WOULD MEAN WAR WITH SAMOS," REASONS VAL. "I WILL TAKE A FEW PICKED COMPANIONS AND SEE IF WE CAN PERSUADE DIONSEUS TO BE A GOOD BOY."

VAL GATHERS TOGETHER A HARDY CREW AND SETS SAIL FOR SAMOS AND ANOTHER CONFRONTATION WITH HIS BROTHER-IN-LAW.

FROM A TERRACE OF HIS VILLA, DIONSEUS SEES THE WARSHIPS OF AJAXOS THE PIRATE ENTER THE LITTLE COVE. THERE WILL BE DRINKING AND GAMBLING TONIGHT, AND PERCHANCE HIS LUCK WILL TURN.

HE SENDS FOR THE MONEYLENDERS AND SHADY MERCHANTS WITH WHOM HE DOES BUSINESS.
