Candidates Seeking Votes Across Nation

By The Associated Press
Most of the nation, including the two Republican presidential candidates, planned a relaxing Memorial Day, but four Democrats sought votes they hope will help put them in the White House.

Front-runner Jimmy Carter, Idaho Sen. Frank Church and Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. of California all scheduled at least part of the day in Rhode Island, which along with South Dakota and Montana holds a primary Tuesday.

Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona, meanwhile, headed from South Dakota to New Jersey. That state, with California and Ohio, holds its primary June 8 in a series of contests that overshadow Tuesday's voting.

The Republicans, meanwhile, took it easy.

President Ford, who spent the weekend in Washington, planned to lay a wreath at Arlington National Cemetery today. The challenger, Ronald Reagan, remained at home in Southern California before resuming his quest on Tuesday for votes in the 167-delegate winner-take-all California Republican primary.

Ford leads the GOP delegate race 777-643 with 1,130 needed for the nomination. Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller predicted Sunday that Ford will go to the party's convention in Kansas City with exactly 1,102 and win the nomination on the first ballot. Rockefeller said he had arrived at that specific figure with information from sources he did not divulge.

There are 56 Democratic delegates at stake in Tuesday's three primaries and 59 up for grabs on the Republican side. That compares to 540 Democratic delegates and 331 Republican ones on June 8.

(Most of the campaigning last week was aimed at getting votes in the June 8 states. Democrats are interested in this week's race in Rhode Island, which pits Carter against Church and Brown.

Church beat Carter, the former Georgia governor, in Nebraska and Oregon, and Brown defeated him in Maryland. They're at the center of the stop-Carter movement, which has had some psychological impact, but hasn't really stopped the leader's accumulation of delegates. Carter now has 883 to 301.5 for Udall, his nearest competitor.

Carter picked up support Sunday from Edward F. Burke, co-chairman of Hubert Humphrey's Rhode Island campaign in 1968 and 1972 and head of the Minnesota senator's committee there this year. Burke said the stop-Carter movement "is the kind of negative politics that could spell disaster for the Democratic party in November."

Time Magazine, meanwhile, said Carter had been talking with Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace and that Wallace would release his delegates just before or just after voting on the first ballot at the Democratic convention. Wallace now has 169 delegates.

But spokesmen for Carter and Wallace denied the report. Carter's press secretary, Jody Powell, said Carter sought delegates only from candidates who had dropped from the race. And Wallace's press aide, Billy Joe Camp, said, "This is not the time to be thinking about that."

Wallace has maintained that, despite money problems, he will continue as a candidate to the convention in New York City.

ECU Grads Hear Call For Ending Of Government Education Control

One of the largest graduating classes in East Carolina University's history received diplomas Sunday in the 67th commencement exercises held in Mingos Coliseum on the University campus.

The University graduated 2,842 bachelor's and master's degree candidates Sunday. The commencement had been moved indoors because of threatening weather.

The commencement address was presented by Dr. Lloyd Elliot, President of George Washington University in Washington, D.C. Elliot urged the graduating seniors to "Let us try to keep the campus flexible and diverse... so men and women of all ages can find the campus doors open."

Elliot accused government of trying to take over the process of education instead of letting the educators do the work. Governmental groups, he said, were working for new regulatory measures which is taking away most of the intellectual freedom of today's colleges and universities.

The day's activities began with a band concert by the ECU Wind Ensemble. Following the invocation ECU Chancellor Leo Jenkins welcomed parents and relatives to the campus.

Dr. Jenkins also explained the move indoors. "Two years ago we gambled and lost," he said. "We made our final decision this morning (Sunday). The Wilmington weather bureau guaranteed us showers." Jenkins was referring to a downpour two years ago that soaked the 65th graduation exercises.

Elliot, who received doctoral degrees from the Universities of Colorado and New Hampshire, has served as teacher, assistant principal, principal in public schools and president of the University of Maine for eight years before taking the post at GWU.

"I find hope and inspiration in each of you," he told the graduating class. "I could not appear with Dr. Jenkins and all those who have had a part in building this university without saying you have done a magnificent job."

He reminded the audience of East Carolina's contributions to the public health fields and the many grants and fellowships ECU has received. "North Carolina holds a position of leadership in the quality of education."

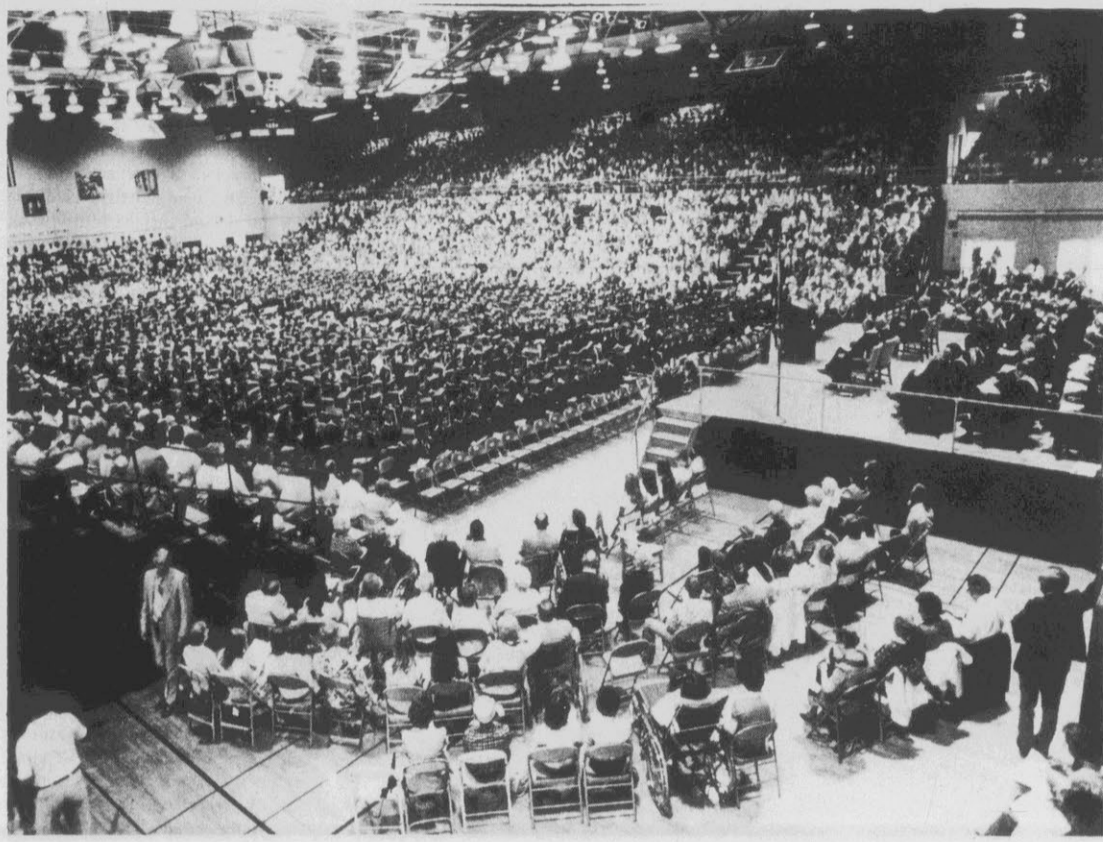

Elliot pointed out that the university has the responsibility of building in a person respect for his fellow man. "It builds respect as we see them work. I hope they (universities) will increase the opportunities to enhance man's respect for his fellow man."

He then pointed out how federal government was trying to take away the autonomy of the university. "Those of us in professional education," he said, "Have a long road ahead. I'm worried about federal legislation that has (taken away) the autonomy of colleges and universities." The legislators, he said, are trying to say what is best for them.

"Learning is a highly individualized matter." "It remains for all of us to preserve (education) for all Americans."

Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs, Dr. Robert Holt, presented the deans of the various schools who presented the graduates in their departments which was followed by conferring of degrees by Dr. Jenkins.

Holt closed the ceremonies with the benediction. Susan Pate of Pikeville graduated with the highest academic average, 3.965 and James Lewis of Hertford had the second highest of the graduating class, 3.955.

Ford Asks Nation To Guard Against Weakening Of Resolve

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford marked Memorial Day by asserting that Americans must not repeat the errors of others by weakening their pursuit of liberty or their determination to guard it "against those who threaten our freedom."

In a text prepared for delivery at a holiday ceremony at Arlington National Cemetery, Ford said:

"Other nations have risen to great heights only to weaken in their resolve. We must not repeat their error. A nation born of a faith and carried forward by action requires from each of us a commitment to advance individual liberty and to maintain our guard against those who threaten our freedom."

"Although we thank God that no Americans are dying in battle today, we must renew our resolve to use both our moral leadership and our material strength to keep the peace."

An appearance at the cemetery to lay a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknowns was the only event on Ford's public schedule for the day.

Keying his remarks to the Bicentennial, Ford paid tribute to "the sacrifice made by the countless brave Americans who lie in rest on these hillsides as beneath silent markers at Valley Forge, Gettysburg and Pearl Harbor."

Declaring that their courage, bravery and perseverance won the American Revolution, preserved the republic and assured Americans a heritage of freedom, he said:

"It is through their sacrifice that we have a Bicentennial. It is through their sacrifice that we, the living, have inherited a sacred burden — a trust — to honor the past by working for the future."

Noting the Declaration of Independence's promise that people could govern themselves, live in freedom with equal rights and respect the rights of others, the President said:

"In the two centuries that have passed since 1776, millions upon millions of Americans have worked — and taken up arms when necessary — to make that dream a reality. We can be proud of what they have accomplished. Today we are the world's oldest republic. We are at peace. Our nation and our way of life endure. And we are free."

Martha Mitchell Is Victim Of Cancer

NEW YORK (AP) — Martha Mitchell, a saucy defender of the Nixon administration who turned on it during the Watergate scandal, died today of a rare type of cancer of the bone marrow. She was 57.

Mrs. Mitchell, the estranged wife of former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, had been admitted to Sloan-Kettering Memorial Cancer Center here Sunday.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete, but a spokesman for the Frank E. Campbell Funeral Chapel here said the funeral will be in Pine Bluff, Ark., her home town.

She had been under treatment for the disease, multiple myeloma, for several months, and was hospitalized after suffering heavy internal bleeding, her doctor said.

The physician, Dr. Klaus Mayer, said earlier in the evening that the former attorney general had been notified of the seriousness of her condition. The Mitchells separated in 1973.

A hospital spokesman said Mitchell did not visit the hospital.

She had been released from the hospital in January after treatment for the illness. On May 18, she was described in court papers as "desperately ill, without funds and without friends."

The papers were filed in her successful effort to win $36,000 in back alimony from her husband.

Mrs. Mitchell became so well-known as a caustically outspoken Cabinet wife during Richard M. Nixon's first presidential term that merely to say her first name evoked instant recognition.

"Give 'em hell, Martha," Nixon once said after one of her many extreme defenses of his policies.

Mrs. Mitchell, a small-town girl from Arkansas, was heard on everything: Vietnam, school busing, Supreme Court nominations, Communist China.

Hello Again Brother Rudy

By AL DIEFFENBACH
The Seattle Times

MARGRATEN, The Netherlands (AP) — It is a sobering experience to stand among 8,301 headstones of men who died in World War II. Especially sobering when one white marble cross bears the family name: "Rudolph A. Dieffenbach, Sgt. 16 Inf., 1 Div., New Jersey, Mar 30, 1945."

Hello again, big Brother Rudy.

It's been 34 years since you went to war. You were killed 40 days before the war in Europe ended, and I know inside me that it broke Mother's heart. She died months later at age 53.

I am so achingly sad, so impressed and so proud that I have to let the tears fall on the impeccable lawn of the burial area, a hauntingly beautiful place, but too little for the sacrifices that were the price of admission.

"In memory of the valor and the sacrifices which hallow this soil," are words chiseled among the inscriptions on the wall of the Margraten memorial tower and chapel.

It must have taken valor, and dedication and forbearance to travel as a warrior, oldest of seven children, from North Africa to Sicily, to D-Day, through Normandy and across the Rhine as a member of the 1st Division, America's famous "Big Red 1."

The aide in the visitors' building, a 24-year Army veteran himself, pulled an old sheet of green record paper from a file cabinet:

"Infantry. Purple heart. Battle field promotion. Bazooka man. Machine-gun squad leader. Oak Leaf Cluster ..."

For my big brother, six years older? For a guy who wasn't a star athlete, nor very big, nor a street fighter? Who never liked guns? Who would rather have worked on an old automobile? Who was an apprentice with a lower New York printing firm?

Two years after you left, I was delivering telegrams for Western Union. Lots had a purple star, signifying that somebody's brother, or son, or husband, or father was wounded or missing. Fewer, but still too many, had two stars. The message inside was "killed in action."

The first one we got had one star. The second lay unopened for four hours on the mantelpiece until Daddy came home from work and Mother's fears were borne out.

Forty days before the end of the war in Europe. Two and a half years after induction, with never an hour's visit home in between. During actions described as "merely mopping-up operations" as the shattered German army fled eastward.

The fateful action, the cemetery aide said, was near the village of Mengerhausen, across the Rhine, pretty close to Essen, Germany, from where, we were told, our paternal grandfather had come.

It was beginning to rain, and I had been there long enough, drenched in emotion, humility and pride, and angry at my loss and at the ultimacy of the price that you and your comrades paid.

Many still remember, and are more sad than angry now. But mankind in general has a poor memory and a monstrous selfishness that will not yet allow it, like you, to rest in peace.

HOOKER ROAD

Something has to be done about Hooker Road. It carries more traffic than almost any other street in Greenville, yet it's like a winding country road. The traffic's going to increase, too, as Arlington Drive and Arlington Boulevard are joined and development continues in this area of the city. N.M.

Hotline has published an item about Hooker Road before. It seems it's a state-maintained secondary road (Secondary Road 1701) even though it's within the city limits. Some work is going on out there now. Department of Transportation Engineer Gerald England says ditches are being moved back preparatory to widening the road from 18 feet to 24 feet.

You provided us with a copy of a letter you have received from T.L. Waters, Manager of Planning and Research of the State Department of Transportation, in answer to a letter you wrote to the Secretary of Transportation. He said: "Hooker Road is classified as an important street in the Greenville Thoroughfare Plan and currently has a substantial average daily traffic volume of up to 4,500 vehicles."

"Although its ultimate widening is anticipated, the current State Highway Improvement Program does not include the upgrading of Hooker Road. Our Chief of Planning is being notified of your inquiry so that due consideration can be given to including Hooker Road in the next annual updating of the Highway Improvement Program by the Board of Transportation. Since the Board gives prime consideration to the highway improvement priorities requested by the municipalities, I suggest that you also let your local government know of your concern."

Based on Waters' observations, it seems that perhaps the most effective way Greenville citizens can do something about Hooker Road is to prevail upon the Greenville Traffic Commission and the City Council to either take over its upgrading and maintenance or prevail upon the state to include it in the next Highway Improvement Program. More letters like yours to the Department of Transportation probably wouldn't do any harm to the cause either.

Pitt Board Sets Exam Schedule

The superintendent will report on a reply from the Department of the Army concerning the mandatory indoor firing ranges.

Group Rejects U.S. Proposals

By ANDREW TORCHIA
Associated Press Writer
NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) —

The fourth United Nations Conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD) ended early today with a double defeat for the United States and agreements for numerous investigations and negotiations to improve the economic situation of the Third World.

After a month of debate and negotiations, the conference:

—Rejected Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's proposal for an international resources bank by a vote of 33-31 with 44 abstentions and 45 absent.

—Authorized negotiations to begin by next March to establish a $6 billion common fund to finance price-stabilizing stockpiles of 10 essential raw materials. The United States and other industrial nations oppose the plan.

—Urged quick and favorable review by lending nations of the debts of some 20 very poor countries facing bankruptcy. The rich nations said they would consider over-all guidelines for debt talk but rejected a Third World proposal for a global conference to arrange debt cancellations and deferments.

—Authorized further studies of ways to smooth inflationary cycles, adjust currency exchange rates and stimulate trade and aid.

—Called for patent reforms and technology centers to help the underdeveloped nations, tariff concessions to poor nations and stiff controls on operations of multinational companies in Third World countries.

The international resources bank was the key proposal put forward by Kissinger in his speech to the conference May 6, while the common fund was the proposal advanced most vigorously by the underdeveloped nations.

Kissinger's proposal received little attention at the conference, partly because the ground was not prepared for it by advance consultation, delegates said.

"Even the Europeans were kept in the dark," said a West German delegate.

The Americans said the bank would use private and government financing to stimulate output of raw materials by guaranteeing fair terms to both the countries and foreign investors. Iraq and North Korea charged that its purpose was to strengthen Western multinational companies and to undermine the poor nations' drive to control the prices of their raw materials as the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries controls the price of oil.

Communist and radical governments voted against the U.S. proposal, the industrial nations voted yes, and Third-World moderates abstained or were absent.

Gamani Corea of Sri Lanka, the secretary-general of the conference, told reporters the meeting marked a decisive turn in relations between rich and poor nations. He said the Third World achieved most of its aims in commodity issues although it made scant gains on debt problems.

More PhDs In Triangle

RESEARCH TRIANGLE PARK (AP) — There are more Ph.D.s in North Carolina's three-county Research Triangle Park area than in any other large metropolitan area in the nation.

According to a Research Triangle Institute study, there are 706 Ph.D. scientists and engineers per 100,000 population in the Wake-Durham-Orange county area.

Wilmington, Del., ranks second with a ratio of 596 per 100,000 and the Washington, D.C. area is third with 484 per 100,000.

Most Ph.D.s in the Research Triangle area are associated with the area's universities — the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, Duke and North Carolina Central in Durham, and N.C. State University in Raleigh. And the Research Triangle Institute has 110 Ph.D.s on its staff, according to institute president George R. Herbert.

The Institute's Ph.D. study was based on a 1975 National Science Foundation survey of U.S. doctoral scientists. The study included only the 100 largest metropolitan areas in the country.

Clear Most Of Reports

FARMVILLE — Farmville Police Chief Marsdon Cannady reports 179 of 181 complaints cleared during the month of May through Friday afternoon.

Cannady has in recent months instituted a policy of reporting to the town's citizens the number of complaints cleared and not cleared each month as a means of keeping the public aware of what the Police Department does and providing incentive for officers in his department to do their best.

The two items not cleared are a lost or stolen license plate reported, but never found, and a tape player apparently stolen from a car, Cannady said.

The most important cases that are pending for this Department, Cannady says, are two first degree burglaries which occurred in the early hours of March 2. The homes of Nick Norman and Mrs. John Wilkerson here were entered while each slept. He reminded that a $500 reward is still being offered for information leading to arrest and convictions in either or both of these cases.

Military Aid Bill To Be Focus Of Attention

WASHINGTON (AP) — When Congress returns from a long Memorial Day weekend, the focus of attention will be a multi-billion-dollar military aid bill that faces a filibuster in the Senate over whether funds should go for some southern African nations.

The House returns to session on Tuesday while the Senate isn't scheduled back until Wednesday.

Both chambers have the arms aid measure on their schedules for Wednesday. The House expects to complete action on that day, but the Senate almost certainly will not because of the filibuster possibility.

The House version proposes funding of about $7 billion for two years, the Senate $6.7 billion.

The Senate bill, however, contains a controversial $25 million item related to commitments that Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger made during his recent African trip.

Opponents, contending the funds would compound the difficulties faced by the white-dominated government of Rhodesia, plan a floor fight.

Another controversial item facing prolonged Senate debate is a bill that would strengthen antitrust laws, give the Justice Department additional investigative powers, make it easier to block mergers and provide that states could file suits on behalf of consumers.

A cloture vote is scheduled for Thursday.

The House is scheduled to vote on a measure to extend the life of the Federal Energy Administration through September 1979. An amendment will be offered to let the agency die and distribute its functions to other government units.

Two ceremonial events will interrupt the legislative routine. On Wednesday, King Juan Carlos I of Spain addresses a joint meeting of Congress. On Thursday, the Magna Carta document lent by Britain for the Bicentennial will formally be received from a British delegation and put on display.

Arrest Two On Break-In

Two Greenville residents were arrested early this morning on charges of breaking and entering in connection with an incident at Pavilion Pharmacy on West Fifth Street.

Chief Glenn Cannon identified the men as David Randall Harris, 26, and Steven John McCarthy, 25, both of 504 West Fifth St.

According to the Chief, officers on patrol discovered a window at the drug firm had been broken and found Harris and McCarthy, both wearing gloves, inside the store.

A laundry bag containing a quantity of controlled drugs, such as Librium, valium, xyloraine and phenobarbital, was found near where the two were discovered in the building, according to Cannon.

Both Harris and McCarthy were placed under a $1,000 bond pending a court hearing on the charges.

Why grasses may be your first and foremost weed problem.

Roger Walker

Let's consider two basic types of weeds. Grasses and broadleaves. While they are both serious threats to yield, in many cases grasses pose the greater problem. In general, grasses have smaller seeds than broadleaves. That means they germinate in greater numbers from the top inch or half inch of the soil profile. This is the first area of the soil to warm up and receive adequate moisture in the early spring, so many grasses germinate at that time, which is the same time your crop emerges.

Also, this is the time that your crop seedlings are germinating, which means that the grasses are competing with your young crop for vital moisture and nutrients. You can wait until later in the season to cultivate, but by then grasses have made their effect on your yield.

But you can effectively control many of the tough grasses you have in either corn or soybeans. You can apply Lasso® preemergent herbicide by Monsanto. Among the many grasses it controls are foxtails, crabgrass, fall panicum, barnyard-grass, goosegrass, and brachiaria.

You can combine Lasso in several labeled tank-mixes which provide broad-spectrum control of many grasses and broadleaf weeds.

Lasso. The herbicide to start with. And stay with. By Monsanto.

Lasso is a registered trademark of Monsanto Company. Always read and follow the Lasso label directions.

Reynolds To Find New Jobs For Ex-Officials

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — R. J. Reynolds Industries Inc. says it will seek new positions within the firm for three company executives who resigned in connection with an internal investigation into a secret political fund, which the company said might total $90,000.

Meanwhile, federal and state officials have said they will investigate the possibility that corporate funds were used for political campaign contributions.

The company announced the resignations Friday but said the three executives would be retained on the payroll, though not as members of the board of directors or as executives.

The announcement said jobs of lesser responsibility would be found for the three executives who resigned. They were David S. Peoples, 59, executive committee chairman and vice chairman of the board, with an annual salary of $268,000; William S. Smith, 57, a vice chairman of the board, $268,000; and Charles B. Wade Jr., 60, senior vice chairman, $158,000.

A fourth man, former board chairman A. H. Galloway, 69, "apparently participated to some extent" in the fund, according to a Reynolds spokesman.

The spokesman said Galloway is retired and his retirement benefits will not be affected by the findings of the company probe.

The company statement said the other three were involved in a corporate fund used for domestic political contributions from January 1968 to early 1973.

The company said contributions over the five-year period appeared to range between $65,000 and $90,000.

Officials of the U. S. Securities and Exchange Commission and the U. S. Justice Department said Saturday the allegations will be reviewed for possible violations. Use of corporate funds for political contributions is a violation of both federal and state laws.

Also, Dist. Atty. Donald K. Tisdale said in Winston-Salem, "I know very little about it at this point, but I'll make a preliminary inquiry."

According to Friday's statement released by board chairman Colin Stokes and Reynolds president J. Paul Sticht, the probe also turned up evidence of "questionable" overseas payments totaling approximately $100,000.

Some of these possibly involved foreign government officials, the statement said.

Ron Sustana, Reynolds public relations director, said the investigation, first announced by the board chairman at the annual meeting in Chicago on April 28, is continuing.

Wolves Are Coming Back

ASHEVILLE, N. C. (AP) — The howl of lonely timber wolves may once again ring out through the Great Smoky Mountains, where they once roamed but disappeared nearly a half century ago.

They will return to the smoky blue wilderness of the Great Smoky Mountains National Park if a wolf-replant plan is carried out by the U. S. Office of Endangered Species.

The effort to reestablish the eastern timber wolf involves six "target areas," including the Smokies.

The others are in Michigan's Upper Peninsula, upper New York, New Hampshire and two sections of Maine.

Park Superintendent Boyd Evison said the abundance of deer and wild boar in the Smokies would guarantee the wolves enough food. He predicted trouble, however, should the wolves wander from the park and attack livestock on nearby farms.

Bike Tour On Tuesday

The weather forecast is favorable for Tuesday's (June 1) "First Great Bike Tour of Greenville," planned as part of a city-university program to promote bike safety.

The event, which was postponed last week due to threatening weather, is expected to draw participation from both city and East Carolina University officials. Local citizens have also been invited and urged to take part in the three-mile bike tour.

According to Jim Hix, head of a citizens committee that is assisting in the study of a bike path system for the city and university, the tour will originate from Five Points, beginning at 10 a.m., and take approximately 45 minutes to complete. The tour route will include a section of the university campus, he added.

A bike path system is in the planning stages for the city to include the campus. The city has submitted an application for a federal grant of $96,000 to be used to fund the initial bike paths and both the city and SGA Legislature at ECU have obligated $12,000 participation money towards development of the path system.

Miss Susanna Abbott Is Bride

MRS. DIXIE WAYNE HARRIS

WINTERVILLE—Miss Susanna Abbott, daughter of Mrs. Richard M. Abbott and the late Mr. Abbott, became the bride of Dixie Wayne Harris Saturday at 2:00 p.m.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Jim Bussel in the Winterville Christian Church. A program of organ music was presented by Mrs. Cora Bob Turnage and Mrs. Dennis Mills played the guitar and sang "One Hand, One Heart" and "The Sabbath Prayer."

The church was decorated with pastel pink roses and pink candles. On each side of the altar, the arrangements were placed in two brass vases, given to the church in memory of the bride's father.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Solomon Dixie Harris of Ayden.

Given in marriage by her brother, Robert Montgomery Abbott of Raleigh, the bride wore a white formal gown of polyester organza and cotton. The gown featured Venise lace with pink satin ribbon and pink rose trim. It was fashioned with a high lace see-through neckline and white ruffled sleeves. White and pink lace encircled the empire bodice and flowed in streamers down the back. A flounced ruffle with lace motifs formed the hemline of the bouffant skirt and of the built-in chapel length train.

Her Juliette cap of matching lace flower motifs was attached to a three tier veil of silk illusion. The bride carried a formal cascade bouquet of pink roses and white orchids tied with white satin streamers.

Mrs. Yvonne Abbott of Raleigh, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a pale pink checked gingham gown with a scooped neckline trimmed with hand-made bobbin lace. The gown featured short puffed sleeves trimmed in lace and the waistline was accented with pink satin ribbon flowing down the back and was flounced with a ruffle. The gowns were fashioned by Miss Faye Gaskins of Winterville. She wore a matching pink checked gingham bandanna trimmed in matching lace. She carried a single long-stemmed pink rose tied with long pink streamers.

Bridesmaids were Miss Roxanne Harris of Ayden, sister of the bridegroom, Miss Vickie Barwick of Mt. Olive, Mrs. Evelyn De Vane of Rose Hill and Mrs. Barbara Briley of Greenville. They wore gowns and bandannas identical to those of the honor attendant. They each carried a single long-stemmed pink rose.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Groomsmen were Danny Harris, brother of the bridegroom, Glenn Cannon, Jeffery Jarvis and Bobby Jenters, all of Ayden.

The mother of the bride chose an imported beige voile dress with lace inserts by Alice Hann. She wore a corsage of coral roses. The mother of the bridegroom selected a V-neckline pink polyester dress accented with a pink rose corsage.

Mrs. Annie Abbott, grandmother of the bride, wore a blue linen dress and a corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Wayland Hunsucker, aunt of the bride, directed the wedding.

For traveling, the bride changed into a deep aqua dress and wore the orchid lifted from her bouquet.

After a wedding trip to Gatlinburg, Tenn., the couple will reside in Washington. The bride is a graduate of D.H. Conley High School and attended J. S. Institute and ECU. The bridegroom is a graduate of ECU and is presently employed by the Mid-East Commission, Washington.

The bride's mother entertained at a reception in the church hall following the ceremony. Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Abbott Hunsucker.

Miss Sandra Hunsucker of Havelock and Mrs. Blanche Kittrell served refreshments. Miss Lucinda Maready presided at the rice tree and Miss Nancy Buck presented tokens of appreciation to the guests. Good-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hunsucker.

Mrs. Betty Coburn, Mrs. Rita Durham and Mrs. Grace Arsenau assisted at the reception.

A wedding breakfast was held Saturday morning at the home of Mrs. Thelma Sawyer. On Friday evening, the parents of the bridegroom entertained members of the wedding party, family and out-of-town guests at a rehearsal dinner at their home.

Mrs. Wayland Hunsucker entertained at a bridesmaids luncheon.

Sorority Officers Installed

Jarvis Memorial church parlor was the setting for the final meeting of the year for the Alpha Iota Chapter of Alpha Delta Kappa.

Decorations featured roses on the refreshment table and throughout the room. The symbols of the sorority, which were used by District President Anne Byrd to install new officers for the next two years, were placed on a table. Sisters were dressed formally for the candlelight occasion which installed Anne Speight as the new president.

Other officers installed were: Vice President, June Carson; Corresponding Secretary, Linda Shuping; Recording Secretary, Lib Avery; Treasurer, Edith Holmes; Historian, Lib Taylor; Chaplains, Lily Weaver and Louise Godfrey; Sergeant-at-Arms, Joyce Worthington.

Special guests were recipients of the 1977 sorority scholarship at East Carolina University, Anne Davis and Rosemary Stocks, who were presented by the scholarship committee chairman, Ramona Tucker.

During the business session plans were made for the district meeting in Richmond and the international meeting. Sisters closed the year with the singing of the song, "Lamp of Alpha Delta Chapter" and an invitation from the new president to meet in September at her home for a pig picking.

Bridal Couple Entertained

The Ten Plus Three Social Club honored Mr. and Mrs. Robert Harvey Jr., who were married in Durham, at a wine sip Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Mebane, Greenville.

Mrs. Harvey is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frazier Sanders of Greenville and her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Sr., a former principal of H. B. Sugg School, Farmville, who now lives in Willingboro, N.J. The house was decorated with spring flowers in pink and blue. An imported white lace cloth and white candles adorned the table. Corsages were presented to the bride and her mother upon arrival.

Tips on serving and using wines were given by members of the club. Mr. and Mrs. Mebane gave the toast to the bridal couple.

Special guests included: Mrs. Bernard Haselrig; Mrs. Issac Artis; Mrs. J. R. Payton Sr.; Mrs. Narcisse Jackson; Mrs. Erma Carr; Mrs. Leroy Foster; Mrs. Mable Godette; Miss Viola Vines; Mrs. and Mrs. Sanders; Wendy Clemmens; Sharon Powell; Feddis Goode; Charlene Vines; Kennon Powell; Jimmie Hagans; Cora Foster; Frazier Sanders Jr.; Vanessa Sanders; Guests attending were the bridal party, relatives of the couple and out-of-town friends.

A buffet was given following the rehearsal Friday night by Dr. and Mrs. Grover W. Everett and Mr. and Mrs. James C. McGrath III at the Everett home.

Couple's Inexpensive Divorce Was Unfair

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for your very sound advice to FRIENDLY PARTING, who insisted, in obtaining a divorce, that she and her husband agreed on absolutely everything, and they didn't see why they needed a lawyer just to fill out a few forms. (You said, "Some of those do-it-yourself divorces are more expensive in the long run than the regular kind. See a lawyer!")

My wife and I decided we didn't need a lawyer because we agreed on everything. It was true; we agreed on everything we could think of. The problem was that there were four or five very important things we DIDN'T think of. What a mess!

We made no absolute provisions for community property. And nothing was done about spousal support or alimony. Visitation rights were not clearcut, and we ended up with an expensive, but very unfair divorce.

I wish I had written to you before I decided to save a few dollars on a do-it-yourself divorce. I hope FRIENDLY PARTING takes your advice.

FOOLISH IN MARYLAND

DEAR FOOLISH: It's strange that when a person has a physical problem he goes to a physician and is glad to pay him for what he knows, but when he has a legal problem, he resents paying a legal fee.

A competent lawyer is worth every dime he charges.

DEAR ABBY: I am a grown woman (in fact I'm married and have children), and I have a couple of questions I am ashamed to ask anyone else but you because they might think I'm a moron.

What is the difference between a male, a jackass and a donkey? Also, does a rooster have a male organ? EVIE IN DES MOINES

DEAR EVIE: An ass is simply a donkey. A jackass is a MALE donkey. A mule is the offspring of a jack ass and a female mare.

In cases where the SHE-ass mates with a stallion horse, the offspring is known as a "hinny" (which is a "horse" on me). The mule is always sterile, but the hinny is capable of reproducing.

Concerning roosters: Yes, a rooster does have a male organ, but it is so small it is practically invisible. I suppose a hen would probably tell you it's adequate for her needs, but by human standards, it is certainly nothing to crow about!

the following officers were re-elected: Egbert T. Rouse of Jacksonville, president; Mrs. Sallie Rouse Johnson of Grifton, vice president; and Mrs. Eliza Walters Magill of Goldsboro, secretary-treasurer.

Rouse Family Reunion Plans Are Announced

GRIFTON—The descendants of the last John William Rouse and his first two wives, Winifred Ann Prigden Rouse and Bettie John Dail Rouse, will hold their 12th family reunion at the Riverside Christian Church, Rt. 1, Grifton, Sunday, according to Egbert T. Rouse of Jacksonville, president of the reunion.

Members of the Rouse family are urged to meet at the church at noon. A picnic lunch will be served on the church grounds. John William Rouse was the fifth — born son of Benjamin Rouse and Mary (Polly) Dawson Rouse of the La Grange section of Lenoir County. He was born in 1836, served in the Civil War, was married four times and died in Craven County in 1916. He is buried in the churchyard of the Riverside Christian Church.

His first wife was Winifred Ann Prigden of Greene County and they had two sons, Egbert Parrott Rouse and Edward Everette Rouse. When his first wife died, he married Bettie John Dail of the Wheat Swamp section of Lenoir County and they were the parents of 10 children, Lula Gastave Rouse, Franklin Leamon Benjamin Rouse, Mollie Dail Prigden Rouse, Missouri Virginia Rouse, Walter Wooley Rouse, Winifred Ann Rouse, Solomon Speight Rouse, Bettie John Wesley Rouse, Isaac Daniel Rouse and Ruth Magdaline Rouse.

Following the death of his second wife, he later married Pearceie Smith and Sarah Haddock, but there were no children by his third and fourth wives.

Efforts are being made to compile a history of the Rouse Family since its arrival in America about 1674.

At the reunion held last June

Langley Family Reunion Held

The Langley family held its first reunion here Saturday at the Moyewood Community Center.

Out-of-town guests arriving Friday night were entertained at a cookout at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Brewington and at a social hour at the home of Mrs. Lelia B. Hines.

On Saturday, approximately 150 family members and guests registered at the center. Activities included presentation of plaques to the oldest and youngest family members.

Officers were elected for the next year and tentative plans were made for the next reunion. Following the dinner, the reunion continued with a happy hour Saturday night and an afternoon outing was held Sunday prior to the departure of the guests.

Good Things In Report, Too

A report by the Carnegie Council on Policy Studies in Higher Education discussed the development of medical schools in North Carolina. It suggested that our state might be developing a surplus of medical school facilities, which attracted some attention, not surprisingly, since the ECU Medical School was so controversial.

However, the report also found many good things about North Carolina higher education. The council praised North Carolina's development of the Area Health Education Centers, saying the state had "pioneered in this development and with substantial state support."

The report lauded the community college and technical institute system for its faculties.

The state was given high marks on its effort and concern for higher education.

The report questioned whether the doctoral programs offered in the state were excessive. Dr. William Friday, president of the University system, doubted that was true. "I think there's been enough self-discipline in what's gone on in North Carolina," Dr. Friday said.

It is a fact that the UNC administration is carefully watching the development of graduate programs through its recently adopted five-year plan.

All studies such as this one by the Carnegie Council have to be looked at in light of particular state needs. There is every indication from this report, though, that North Carolinians are enthusiastically supporting the development of the state's higher education system.

Treaty Signing Is Not Popular

The signing of a Soviet-U. S. nuclear test ban treaty is not exactly popular in this nation.

That was indicated by the postponement of the signing to last Friday. Presidential advisors feared the signing might affect the outcome of the Michigan presidential primary.

Popular or not, the president was wise to proceed with the treaty. It may not be perfect, but it is a step. We have to try to halt the build-up of nuclear arms.

THIS AFTERNOON

Ready To Point Finger

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—While the politicians argue, Tar Heel prison inmates remain jammed into quarters too small to house them, and not well equipped to handle the overflow.

The General Assembly, the Commission on Correctional Programs, the lieutenant governor, and the speaker of the house all are now pointing at Gov. James E. Holshouser, Jr., as the man who holds the keys to doors which, if opened, would relieve the situation.

Fearing that more than 13,000 men sweltering in prison space designed to house around 10,000 will result in summertime disruptions, records are now being carefully structured to point the finger of blame in that event.

The Law
The appropriations law adopted by the General Assembly early in May seeks to fix that responsibility: "To provide for renovations and alterations to the former Fountain School property and at other properties of the Department of Corrections which are necessary to provide additional accommodations for alleviation of prison over-crowding . . .

the Director of the Budget (the governor) and the Advisory Budget Commission (chaired by the governor) are authorized on their own initiative during the 1976-77 fiscal year:

To reallocate money in hand for building projects; take excess cash from the Prison Enterprise Fund; and use federal funds which come in during the year to relieve the problem.

Former State Senator Eddie H. Knox of Charlotte is convinced the problem can be relieved by using other available state-owned property and fixing it up to house prisoners. He is chairman of the Commission on Correctional Programs which for two years has sought action by Holshouser to turn some juvenile training schools, hospital space, and other facilities into prison use.

A recent survey by the staff of that commission concluded that about half the existing 1,700 sleeping spaces in training schools could be turned into beds for overcrowded adult prisoners. Other steps Knox has explored include using Women's Prison in Raleigh to house male inmates and putting the women in less secure facilities. In all, that commission feels most of the critical overcrowding at Central Prison (1,322 inmates in space for 900) could be relieved.

But only executive action by the governor requiring Corrections Secretary David L. Jones to get moving, and Human Resources Secretary Phillip J. Kirk to cooperate (where buildings are owned by his agency) could solve the situation.

No Meeting
Knox asked Lt. Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr., and House Speaker James C. Green to get into the picture by asking for a meeting with the governor and others to explore alternatives. The governor would not meet, and Hunt asked for his refusal in writing.

At his news conference recently, the governor said he didn't meet because the memo he got suggested meeting with the parole board chairman and he did not wish to discuss further speeding up of releases to relieve overcrowding.

"No discussion of facilities came into the discussion of a meeting at all," Holshouser said. At that same session, Holshouser blamed Hunt for General Assembly slashing of new prison building funds while in campaigning he advocated stiffer prison terms. "Ask the Lieutenant Governor where the devil is he gonna put them," the governor suggested.

Hunt bristled at that volley, and recounted the ongoing efforts to get Holshouser to meet on using other prison space. There is ample evidence that the governor or his staff fully knew that the discussion was to cover use of other space to relieve crowded conditions, and that Holshouser was in his office on the day the meeting was to be held, but sent the message to Knox, Hunt, Green and others that Secretary Jones was not available to meet.

Pressed on the specific question of what he proposed to do about overcrowding, Holshouser said, "I don't think there are enough facilities available to be of much use in relieving overcrowding," and mentioned shortage of funds and budget adjustment problems in trying to do anything.

Meanwhile, Hunt says the legislature "can't dictate to the executive . . . the funds and flexibility have been made available . . . we will just have to see."

What Would George Do?

WASHINGTON — On the 200th anniversary of the United States, it is only fair to speculate how George Washington would do if his presidential campaign was being managed by some of the people who are involved with today's campaigns.

those wooden teeth. We're going to have to get you some ivory ones that shine so when you smile everyone can see them."

"I have no intention of smiling. I hate to smile. Have you ever seen one painting of me smiling?"

"All right, forget the teeth. We need a slogan that will catch the imagination of the 13 states."

"How about 'Vote for a man who has never been to Washington'?"

"You are Washington, George."
"I meant Washington, D.C."

"There is no Washington, D. C. It won't be named that until after you die. If you're elected, you're going to have to live in New York and Philadelphia."

"Well, I'm not sure I want to be President if I can't live in Washington, D.C."

"It doesn't make any difference where you live. The important thing is to get you elected as the first President of the United States."

"I'm not certain I want to be the first President of the United States."

"But don't you see that if you are, you will go down in history as the 'Father of Our Country.' If you don't go for it, John Adams will. We have to launch a 'Stop Adams Campaign,' and you're the only one who can do it."

"He's not a bad fellow."
"George, would you want the capital of the United States to be called Adams, D.C.?"

"No, I guess not. What do you want me to do?"
"First, we have to show that you're completely honest. The question is, how do we do it?"

"What if I say that if I am elected, I will never lie to the American people?"
"That's good, but how do we dramatize it?"

"Well, I never told anyone this story. But when I was a kid, we had this cherry tree on our plantation and I went out with an ax and chopped it down. It was my father's favorite tree, and he was really mad, so he said, 'George, do you know who chopped down my cherry tree? I still had the ax in my hand so I figured I'd better tell the truth and said, 'I did it father'—and he whaled the living daylight out of me, just for one lousy cherry tree."

"That's beautiful. We'll put out a press release on that story right away. The papers (Continued on page 6)

Attack Miscalculated

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — Ronald Reagan's astounding descent into the Tennessee Valley Authority (TVA) quagmire was no mindless blunder but the result of careful miscalculations by both candidate and staff — a fact that attaches broad national significance to his disappointing performance in the mid-South.

When Reagan arrived in Knoxville May 21, he was armed with advice from an aide that attacking the no longer popular TVA is good politics in Tennessee today. Thus, when Reagan talked about selling the TVA to private enterprise, he was not merely blurring out a knee-jerk conservative reaction but demonstrating inadequate staff work.

political naivete and insufficient candidate discipline.

That is why Reagan's TVA gaffe could be more damaging to him in the long run than in the short run. The short run is bad enough, turning a sure Tennessee win into a cliffhanger and costing him needed delegates there and probably in neighboring Kentucky as well. The long-run consequence: deepened doubt by Republican politicians over Reagan's prospective performance as nominee for President.

What makes this so critical to Reagan is the task awaiting him if he wins the winner-take-all California primary June 8 and then enters a summer-long contest for delegates with President Ford. Reagan strategist John Sears intends to peel away informally committed Ford delegates in New York and Pennsylvania, but arguments from the Ford campaign that Reagan would reenact the Goldwater debacle of 1964 are given credence by a candidate who follows Barry Goldwater's 12-year-old trail to Knoxville to sell the TVA.

In short, delegates pondering whether Reagan might be a stronger and better nominee than the appointed President cannot be blamed for asking themselves this question: having partially repeated Goldwater's follies on Social Security and the TVA, could Reagan be trusted not to plunge himself into the political abyss by loose talk about nuclear arms?

The fatal TVA advice to Reagan stemmed from a staffer's incorrect interpretation of the successful campaign for Congress last November by Democrat Clifford Allen, who launched a venomous attack on TVA's rising utility rates. Here, Reagan was advised, was a happy marriage between his philosophical inclinations and political expediency.

That conclusion was wrong on two counts. First, Allen attacked the TVA's rates without challenging its sacrosanct status as a publicly owned utility, as Reagan did. Second, Allen was campaigning in middle Tennessee — not eastern Tennessee, the TVA heartland. In fact, Reagan ran remarkably well in middle Tennessee. It was East Tennessee, saturated by late paid media attacks on Reagan's TVA stand, that delivered big majorities for Mr. Ford.

The political miscalculation reflects the absence of streetwise political old pros at Reagan's elbow. One seasoned Reagan aide who might have fished the folly is Lyn Nofziger, who has been in Los Angeles running the California campaign the past two months and will not rejoin the Reagan entourage until June 9.

But Reagan himself should have been steeped in the Republican folklore of Goldwater's self-immolation through statements about TVA, Social Security and nuclear weapons and, (Continued on page 6)

Other Editors Say Letters Livelier

(Greensboro Daily News)

The Times of London, which has one of the world's liveliest letters to the editor column, has been livelier than usual lately. It seems that some 28 correspondents have written in either to lament or debate the passing of that most familiar British household object, the chamber pot.

The flurry of letters began when The Rev. Dr. Alexander Roper Vidler, author of 27 books on religion, wrote in weeks ago to complain that chamber pots are no longer provided in British hotels and rooming houses. Writing from his home, Friars of the Sack in Rye on England's south coast, the good reverend noted that "most of them (the pots) seem to have found their way into antique shops and thence to the United States."

No wonder this sad state of affairs is being lamented in London. The chamber pot is every bit as British as the stiff upper lip or bowl of Yorkshire pudding. Historically, it has also proved a versatile instrument. Hardly a ribald eighteenth century novel was written without a character either tripping over the chamber pot or dumping its contents out the window on an enemy below.

But modern conveniences eventually take their toll, even on the British, who for a long time resisted the intrusion of the standard water closet. The Rev. Dr. Vidler even admits that he, for one, would be ready to settle for a plastics substitute, now that the elegant china chamber pots have passed into historical decline.

Meanwhile, we hope the alleged American raid on Britain's supply of chamber pots will not touch off an international incident. Honestly, we cannot recall coming across chamber pots in any of our Holiday Inns here. But if a cache of smuggled chamber pots is ever discovered in this country, they should be shipped back immediately as a gesture of Bicentennial goodwill. From what we've read, the sagging British balance of trade could use a lift.

Potato Futures Cause Trouble

By LEE MITGANG
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — They were talking default again in New York City last week. But this time the trouble wasn't just the Big Apple, it was also potatoes.

Tuesday afternoon, the 104-year old New York Mercantile Exchange witnessed the largest commodity futures default in history, involving $4.25 million in contracts for 50 million pounds of Maine potatoes.

Then on Wednesday, Moody's Investors Service, a bond rating agency, slashed the rating of the Municipal Assistance Corp., alias Big MAC, from a medium-high "A" to a speculative "B". MAC had been formed by New York State last summer as a credit life-line for the troubled city, and officials were meeting by week's end with the bond agency to persuade them to reconsider.

At the commodities exchange, where food processors and high-rolling speculators try to whip inflation by buying and selling contracts for potatoes and other goods for delivery at a future date, officials were meeting throughout the week, partially in an effort to relieve itself of some of the financial responsibility for the default.

Under existing rules, the president of the exchange would have to buy enough potatoes to fulfill the defaulted May contracts, and then charge the cost plus penalties to the defaulting brokerage houses that had taken so-called "short" positions in the contracts in the hopes of selling them later at lower prices.

But federal regulators told the exchange it would permit no rule changes in dealing with the default.

By Thursday, the default produced a lawsuit brought by National Super Epuds, Inc. of Robeson, Pa. against the exchange and four commodities brokerages. Among other things, the suit in New York federal court alleged failure by the exchange to enforce its rules.

Meanwhile, the fortunes of New York City, its bonds and the future of its three-year emergency financial plan were dealt a blow by the Moody's downgrading. The first upshot was that MAC bonds and city bonds fell sharply late in the week on the bond market.

Moody's said its action was based on its judgment that MAC and the city were providing a poor flow of information to investors. The bond rater

Space Colony Next

By FRANK WETZEL
Associated Press Writer

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Space colonies of one million people supporting themselves, by selling solar energy to the earth are envisioned by a space administration scientist.

"We are destined to have space colonies," Richard D. Johnson said. "It's merely a question of when."

He estimated it would take 25 years to build the first station, and predicted it would be 20 years before construction is begun.

Johnson, chief of the life sciences flight experiment office of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Ames Research Center, made his science-fiction-like predictions in a speech here Friday.

Johnson said a plan for colonizing space was developed as part of an exercise in systems design for 28 scientists and professors last summer at the research center at Mountain View, Calif.

Johnson said the moon would be used as a temporary intermediate station that would provide soil for highly intensive farms within the space colonies, as well as ore for the construction of aluminum solar power stations.

The power stations would be aluminum and 50 square miles in size. They would reflect the sun's rays to earth, Johnson said.

Besides furnishing a source of power for the earth, the colonies would produce enough food to support themselves.

Each populated colony would be shaped like a tire, rotating fast enough to create centrifugal force that would equal earth's gravity.

Inside, 151 acres of soil taken from lunar rocks could produce enough food for 10,000 people. Instead of the earth's maximum yield of 500 bushels of corn per acre, for instance, space farm acres could produce 4,000 bushels of corn per year.

"We would increase the level of carbon dioxide, there would be seven times as much sunlight because there will be sun 24 hours per day, and the space farmer will get four 90-day crops per year," Johnson said. "There will be no drought, no storms, no disease."

Johnson said the moon has lots of oxide that would produce oxygen during the manufacture of aluminum. Mixed with hydrogen rocketed through the earth's gravity field, the mixture would produce the water needed for plant life, animals and humans.

Finding people to live in the space stations would be no problem, Johnson said. Already there have been many volunteers, he said.

Strength For Today

THE POWERS OF WORDS
Words have a tremendous power both for good and for evil.

Jesus appreciated the momentous significance of words. He declared on one occasion that for every idle word a man speaks, he shall give an account in the day of judgment. With the utterance of a few sentences, Judas betrayed him to the high priests, and Peter denied him. With words of acquiescence and yielding, millions of people have accepted him and have found their lives miraculously changed. With utterances which can be read in a few hours, Jesus himself changed the thinking and history of the human race.

As the great preacher, Wendell Phillips, once said, "You never get to the end of Christ's words. They pass into proverbs, they pass into laws, they pass into doctrines, they pass into conclusions; but they never pass away. And after all the use that is made of them, they still are not exhausted."

Not Ruling Out Bomb Caused It

By PETER J. BOYER
Associated Press Writer
VERNON, Calif. (AP) — An explosion that killed three persons and injured 17 at a meat packing plant may have been caused by refrigeration equipment, authorities say. But they do not dismiss the possibility of a bomb.

The powerful blast rocked the Safeway meat packing plant in this industrial suburb of Los Angeles on Sunday, and authorities cautiously laid the blame on an ammonia-filled refrigeration system.

"But we can't rule out the possibility of a bomb," said Capt. Richard Pavlovsky of the Vernon Fire Department.

"With the extensive damage that was done, it is hard to believe that ammonia could have done that. There was nothing at the plant that would explode besides ammonia, so we're not ruling out anything."

Joining the investigation were federal agents from the Alcohol, Firearms and Tobacco Division.

Bob Messall, a battalion chief with the Los Angeles County Fire Department, said the blast "was not likely due to an ammonia leak because, for the amount of ammonia needed for an explosion, it would have been very annoying to the men and they would have noticed it."

Ammonia clouds billowed from the scene after the blast as gas-masked rescuers moved in and out of the shattered plant, bringing victims to safety. Four firemen, burned by drifting clouds of ammonia, were among the injured, officials said.

The blast ripped through the length of the block-long plant, knocking down walls, sending meat-cutting equipment flying and blowing open half-foot-thick steel refrigerator doors.

The three dead employees were identified as Emil Horst, 50, no address available; Olin Moulton, 45, of Hacienda Heights, and Leo Dooley, 59, of Bellflower.

Officials said only four of the injured workers were hospitalized. The others were released, said a physician at the scene.

About 30 men were in the plant, and all but six or seven were injured, officials said. Plant employees said 300 people work in the building during the week.

therefore, instinctively resisted history repeating itself. Nor is this the first time Reagan displayed inadequate sensitivity and discipline at high cost to his campaign. Reagan's seemingly compulsive statements fiddling with the Social Security system may well have cost him Florida, New Hampshire and a clear lead today for the nomination.

All this is supremely frustrating to Reagan supporters because the President, never framed as one of the great stump speakers, is turning out to be the worst political campaigner among Presidents in half a century.

Burdened with artless speeches and a speaking style that renders them even worse, Mr. Ford has also devalued his reputation for honesty by such vulgar politicking as his patently untrue assertion just before the Kentucky primary that the Justice Department was considering intervention into the Louisville bus case. It did not work. Reagan carried Louisville and Jefferson County 3 to 2 — but lost the state among traditionally Republican voters in eastern Kentucky, where Reagan's TVA gaffe was damaging.

Reagan is so clearly superior to the President as a campaigner that his managers might well have a chance to convert wavering Ford delegates — were it not for fear that the TVA gaffe is simply the portent of the fall campaign.

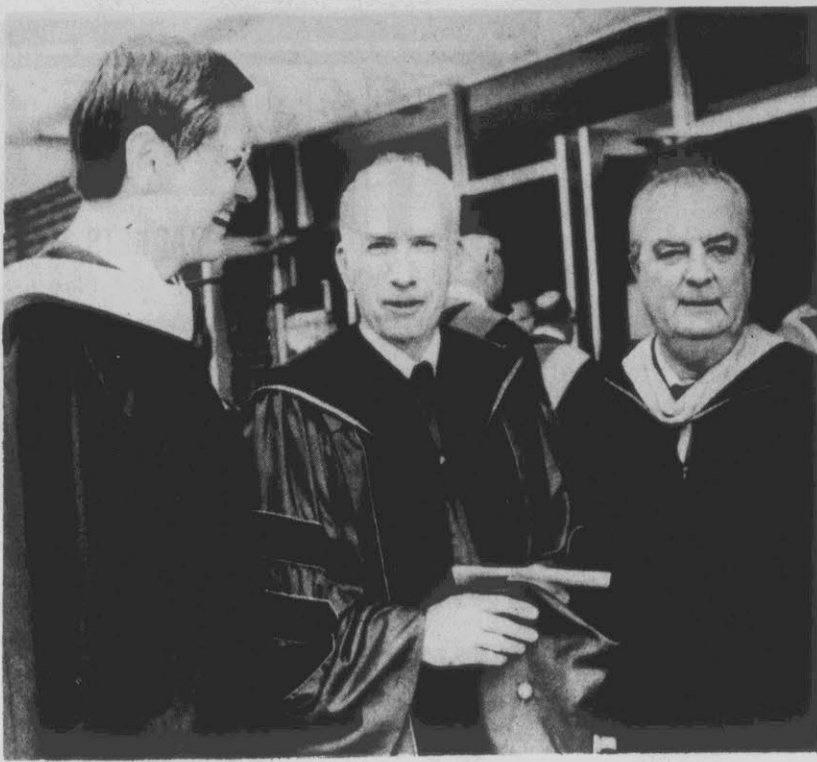

"Reagan obviously has no sense of history," a conservative delegate, uncommitted but included to Reagan, told us. "I guess that is one of the purposes of the primary system—to show us what the candidates are like." The implication carries ominous overtones for Ronald Reagan.

will eat it up. Anything else you can tell us that will help the campaign?"
"I once threw a silver dollar across the Potomac."
"You'd better not talk about that. It might give the taxpayers the impression you're willing to throw away their money."

"Wait a minute. Let's not reject that out of hand. Suppose we say George threw a silver dollar across the Potomac and the swam over to retrieve it. It would show he really cared for a buck."
"But, gentlemen, that would be a lie."
"Look, George, every President of the United States is going to have to lie to the people sooner or later. If you start a precedent of absolutely no lying, no one will ever be able to govern the country."

"I hadn't thought of that. Okay, you can say I swam over and got it back."
"Great, we'll leak it to the papers. Now what about detente with the Indians?"
"What about it?"
"We'll say you're for better relations with the Indians, but detente is a two-way street. If they want to buy grain from us, they're going to have to give us Ohio."
"Why do we need Ohio?"
"We need Ohio, just in case John Adams wins the primary in Pennsylvania."

How's The Weather?

By The Associated Press
After a very stormy and unsettled start of the long weekend, half of the memorial day weekend seems to have been salvaged. Sunday and today were summer-like, and today looks like a good summer-like day.

In other words, partly cloudy skies and only widely scattered afternoon and evening thundershowers are on tap. Humid and warm conditions should be evident today as a southwest flow of air circulates around high-pressure off the coast, bringing in moisture-laden air. Another frontal system stretching northeastward out of Texas into the upper Ohio Valley will continue a slow east and southeast drift, thus increasing the chance of showers and thundershowers each day as June begins. The highest probability of rain seems to be on Wednesday, but until then, a summer-like weather pattern will persist with thundershowers restricted to the late hours of the day and only widely scattered through Tuesday.

Temperatures overnight were mild under fair skies. Sixties were reported in most areas except for 50s over mountain areas. Sunday afternoon readings ranged from 79 degrees at Charlotte to 86 at Wilmington. Seventies were reported over the mountains. Considerable early morning fog was noted, especially in the mountains.

Temperatures will warm into the 80s over much of the inland sections this afternoon with some 70s over the mountains.

The recreational weather outlook for North Carolina looks good for today and Tuesday with warm temperatures and only widely scattered late afternoon thundershowers.

Victim Is Hospitalized

Thomas Daniel Reynolds, 24, of 1108 Cotanche St. was hospitalized yesterday for treatment of injuries received when assaulted and robbed by four men about 12:34 a.m.

Chief Glenn Cannon said the incident took place near the intersection of 11th and Washington Streets.

Witnesses to the incident said four black men jumped Reynolds as he walked along the street, beat him to the ground, then ran.

Reynolds, who suffered head injuries in the attack, told investigators $42 was taken from him by his assailants. Reynolds is an employee of Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Temporary Pause In Lebanese Shelling

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — President-elect Elias Sarkis arranged a temporary pause today in the shelling in Beirut. In northern Lebanon, a renegade Moslem army officer attacking two Christian towns gave them 24 hours to surrender unconditionally.

Police spokesmen estimated that nearly 300 persons were killed and nearly 700 wounded by shelling in Beirut in the past 48 hours. But they said the situation was "very much confused, and there is no way of arriving at accurate figures yet."

The death toll in the 14-month-old civil war is estimated now at 26,000.

Sarkis, contacting leaders of the warring Christian and Moslem militias to stop the shelling in Beirut, warned them: "Unless random shelling, food blockades and all other forms of fighting in the civil war are quickly stopped, Lebanon runs a real risk of being occupied."

Radio Damascus announced that Syrian President Hafez Assad discussed "future moves the people of Lebanon expect from Syria to end the crisis" with his defense minister, army chief of staff, air force commander and the head of the pro-Syrian Lebanese Baath Socialist party.

Christian leaders in the besieged north Lebanese towns of Qibyat and Andket, which have a population of 30,000, appealed to Assad "to intervene immediately to prevent our annihilation."

Tank and armored forces led by Moslem Maj. Ahmed Maameiry have been shelling the two towns for four days. Casualties are not known, but Christian sources said at least 190 houses were destroyed.

Maameiry, a renegade army officer, said he agreed to hold his fire at Syria's request to "arrange for a peaceful but unconditional surrender within 24 hours. Otherwise I shall take the towns by force." Jumbblatt joined other Lebanese and Palestinian leaders in condemning the attack, but Maameiry told reporters at his headquarters in north Lebanon: "I don't take orders from Jumbblatt. I am doing the fighting on the ground, not him."

Beirut was rocked by continuous artillery duels and indiscriminate shelling Saturday night and Sunday following Christian shelling of a Palestinian refugee camp Saturday. Palestinian officials said 23 persons in the camp were killed and more than 100 were wounded. Vengeful Palestinians fired Soviet missiles into Christian sectors. The Christians replied with French armor-piercing rockets.

Street combat and mortar exchanges raged all along the front line between the two halves of the city. More than 50 shells hit the Beirut airport, but flight operations continued.

The escalation of fighting around the country was another setback to Sarkis' attempts to set up a roundtable conference of the leaders of all the warring factions.

Hays Relaxes Before Storm

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
BELMONT, Ohio (AP) — Rep. Wayne Hays scheduled a round of Memorial Day appearances today in his eastern Ohio home district before returning to Washington, where he faces investigations of charges he put Elizabeth Ray on his congressional committee staff to be his mistress.

Hays spent Sunday relaxing at his big Red Gate farm with his 35-year-old wife, Pat, and was unavailable to reporters.

The 65-year-old Democratic congressman has said his attorneys advised him not to make any public statements about the case.

The lawyers are gathering documentation to back up his contention that the buxom 33-year-old Miss Ray did clerical work on his House Administration Committee staff for her $14,000-a-year salary.

Hays has admitted a personal relationship with Miss Ray but denies she received her salary just to be his mistress.

A source close to a Justice Department inquiry in Washington said federal investigators have found enough evidence to consider asking Hays to testify before a grand jury. The source said the Justice Department has not decided yet whether to call Hays but added that Hays would be called only if he agreed to testify.

Sources say a federal grand jury already has begun hearing testimony to consider whether Hays' relationship with Miss Ray might have involved violation of federal laws covering conspiracies to defraud the government or to convert tax funds to personal use.

Miss Ray's attorney, Albert Ahern, said federal prosecutors have agreed to grant her immunity from prosecution "if she testifies truthfully" before the grand jury. The attorney said Miss Ray is in seclusion and has not yet appeared before the panel.

Miss Ray has told FBI agents she knows of six other women whose federal jobs involved providing sex to congressmen or their constituents, informed sources say. A friend of Miss Ray's says: "She's right... The girl's telling the truth."

The sources said the six women are present or former employees of the government, most of them on House staffs.

Hays' appearances here, his first since the scandal broke a week ago, come one week before the Ohio primary in which the dean of the state's congressional delegation is expected to win by a landslide despite his public admission of the affair with Miss Ray.

Hays has only taken opposition in the primary from a little-known Steubenville court bailiff, Nick Karnick, 56, who has unsuccessfully opposed Hays in primaries since 1968. Karnick's best showing has been 20 per cent of the vote in Hays' nine-county district.

Most constituents support Hays because of his attention to them and his ability to handle their requests.

Any action to unseat him most likely would have to come from the House itself, and a few colleagues already have called for his resignation from the two committees he heads, the House Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee and the administration committee.

Hays said twice over the weekend that he will not relinquish the committee chairmanships nor will he resign from the House itself. It is from the two committees that he wields substantial power.

Marijuana Discovered

Clinton L. Copeland III, 20, of Elizabeth City was arrested by Greenville Police Saturday night on charges of possession of marijuana, after officers found about 6½ pounds of "grass" in his vehicle.

Chief Glenn Cannon said the marijuana was discovered after officers stopped Copeland about 9:20 p.m. near the intersection of 14th Street and Greenville Boulevard in connection with a traffic violation.

In addition to the drug charge, Copeland was charged with driving under the influence. Cannon reported.

Rutherford Survives Rain To Win Indy 255 Beating Foyt

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer
INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — "If you hang around long enough, things eventually come back your way," said Johnny Rutherford. But A.J. Foyt must be starting to wonder.

Rutherford, washed out of a shot at a second straight Indianapolis 500 triumph last year, was swept into victory Sunday by the same kind of Midwestern thunderstorm that had left him swimming in second place in 1975.

And Foyt, a veteran of 19 of these Memorial Day classics, came up short once again in his bid for an unprecedented fourth Indy championship.

Last year, Rutherford made an untimely pit stop that dropped him behind winner Bobby Unser. It happened only minutes before rain swept the sprawling Indianapolis Motor Speedway and turned the Indy 500 into the Indy 435.

This time, it was Foyt who chose to pull into the pits at the wrong time. After going nose-to-nose with Rutherford through the 78th lap, he pulled in for a tire change during the 79th. By the time he came out, he was a full 36 seconds behind Rutherford.

Standing on the pedal all the way, he shaved that margin to only a few seconds. Then the rains came.

And when they did, this Indy 500 was marked down to a bargain-basement figure. It was the Indy 255, a 102-lap race that made it the shortest in the 60-year history this spectacle has been held.

"There's a hell of a lot of ways to lose a race," Foyt fumed as he stomped through the puddles of Gasoline Alley, "and I've dammed near found just about all of them."

Rutherford acknowledged that as the clouds swooped in and darkened the skies, he was determined not to make the same mistake he had made a year ago.

"I saw the rain was coming and decided to hang on as long as I could so I'd be ahead if the race had to be stopped," he said. "I was very conscious of the fact that we were just about passing the halfway point and it was about to become an official race. I remembered what I did last year and I guess I sort of said to myself, 'Not this time.'"

So Rutherford, who disdained a fifth pit stop while Foyt took his, held on to win by a slim 15 seconds over A.J. with an average speed of 148.724 miles per hour. Foyt was clocked at barely one-half a mile per hour slower — and when the official winnings are announced tonight, it will probably leave him about $100,000 poorer than he might have been if he'd kept up that wheel-to-wheel duel with Rutherford.

Foyt said more than just bad timing contributed to his defeat. He accused Rutherford of improperly widening his lead during the yellow caution flag that preceded the rain delay.

Foyt said he was running second by a couple of seconds, a lot fewer than the final 15-second margin. "Rutherford and I are friends," Foyt said, "but right is right and wrong is wrong."

Rutherford, though, wasn't exactly buying Foyt's claim. "You do everything can to win," he said. "I didn't cheat and A.J. knows it and the timers and scorers agree with me."

Rutherford, who figures to pick up more than $200,000 from the $1-million purse, said — not all that convincingly — that his rain-aided finish was "A hollow victory." But he acknowledged: "I think I'm pretty fortunate that the race was stopped. I think if it had gone on, I could very well have lost it."

He could have, indeed. When the race was halted, Foyt was able to repair a broken sway bar. And with the track virtually dried out after a wait of better than two hours, Foyt was ready for bear.

But as Rutherford later put it, "Sometimes the bear eats you and sometimes you eat the bear. I feel kind of sorry for A.J., but I look forward to giving him a chance to win it next year."

It's been nine years since Foyt got the last of his three victories. Since then an awful lot of things have gone wrong at this old brickyard.

This year's rainout, by far the shortest Indy ever run, was the third to be hit by a Midwestern storm in four years. In 1973, a race marred by fatalities and delayed for two days classic ended in the previous low of 332½ miles. That race was won by Gordon Johncock, who finished third this time around. Last year's 435-miler belonged to Bobby Unser, who this time came in 10th among the 27 cars still running at the end.

That group of 27 was one of the few things that went right. It was the largest field ever to be running at the end of the race since the previous high of 26 in 1911, the year the 500 was held for the first time.

Only six of the 33 starters weren't around at the end. And in a race which has been lambasted for its history of tragic crashes, this one was virtually accident-free. The only blemish came very early when Roger McCluskey nicked a wall, skidded to the infield and stepped unhurt from his battered machine.

The only other dropouts were rookie Spike Gehhausen, Billy Vukovich, David Hobbs, Dick Simon and Gary Bettenhausen, all with mechanical problems.

Following Johncock among the top finishers were Wally Dallenbach, Pancho Carter, Tom Sneva, Al Unser, Mario Andretti, Salt Walther and Al's brother, Bobby.

The race drew an estimated 400,000 fans, a crowd which police and Speedway officials called the largest in Indy history. It wasn't the widest show ever put on, but as Rutherford put it:

"If they didn't like this race, they don't know what racing is."

Bowa's Lined Triple Stops Expos' Taunting

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer
When Larry Bowa popped out the Montreal Expos popped off.

"How many times are you going to pop out in a game?" they chided the Philadelphia Phillies' shortstop.

Bowa burned.

"I was just mad at myself for popping up," said Bowa, who did it three straight times.

Then came his sweet moment. With the bases loaded in the seventh inning, Bowa hit a line drive instead of a weak fly ball. The result was a three-run triple and the Phillies were on their way to a 7-1 victory Sunday.

Standing triumphantly on third base, Bowa glared into the abusive Montreal dugout.

"I told them that was their fourth pop-up," Bowa said, savoring his revenge. "I don't think it was the players who were needing me. It was the coaches."

Before he smashed his tie-breaking hit, Bowa didn't get any respect from Montreal reliever Dale Murray, either. He issued intentional walks to two batters to load the bases before facing the Philadelphia shortstop.

Greenville In Tennis Win

Greenville dropped the last doubles match preventing a sweep of Roxobel Sunday in a 5-1 victory in Roanoke Tennis League action.

The Greenville team swept the match until the last doubles sets. The team travels to Rocky Mount next Sunday.

The summary:
Ron Hignite (G) defeated Tom Corey, 6-1, 6-0.
Jim Bailey (G) defeated Snipe Outland, 6-2, 6-1.
Gilbert Hengen (G) defeated Jackie Bryant, 6-4, 6-2.
Neil Peterson (G) defeated John Reynolds, 6-0, 6-4.
Bob Irwin/Tom Savetta (G) defeated Bryant-Corey, 4-6, 6-3, 7-6.
Ouland-Reynolds (R) defeated David Daniel/Anthony Gicomini, 7-6, 7-6, 6-3.

"The walks didn't bother me," Bowa said. "The popups did."

The hit helped unbeaten Jim Lonborg to his eighth victory this year and 10th straight dating back to last year.

The victory was the third straight and 28th in 35 games for the hot National League East leaders.

Pirates 4, Cubs 2
Manny Sanguillen's tie-breaking single with two out in the seventh inning and a two-run flurry in the ninth gave Pittsburgh its victory over Chicago. Al Oliver opened the seventh with a single and two outs later, Bill Robinson singled Oliver to third before Sanguillen drilled his single to left field.

The Pirates added two runs in the ninth on singles by Bob Robertson and Richie Zisk, a sacrifice, an error and a pinch sacrifice fly by Tommy Helms. Jim Rooker, 6-1, scattered nine hits, including George Mitterwald's solo homer in the seventh.

Dodgers 6-2, Reds 5-7
Ron Cey belted five hits, including three doubles, and scored from first on Joe Ferguson's ninth-inning single to lift Los Angeles over Cincinnati in the first game.

The Reds won the nightcap as Tony Perez, Cesar Geronimo and Bill Plummer hit home runs for unbeaten rookie Santo Alcala. Alcala, 5-0, scattered five hits in six innings while giving up two runs, one unearned.

Astros 5-16, Braves 2-5
Houston scored three runs in the first inning and then got strong relief pitching from Tom Griffin and Ken Forsch in beat Atlanta in the first game of their doubleheader.

Jerry Davanon drove in five runs with a pair of singles and a bases-loaded triple, and Houston unleashed a club record 25-hit attack to bury Atlanta in the nightcap.

Cardinals 6, Mets 5
Don Kessinger drove in the tying run with a two-out single in St. Louis' three-run ninth and then delivered the winner with a sacrifice fly in the 11th, giving the Cardinals their triumph over New York.

Padres 4, Giants 3
Willis Davis singled home the winning run with two out in the 10th inning, giving San Diego its victory over San Francisco.

Lucky Break Helps Matlbie

By GEORGE STRODE
AP Sports Writer
DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — Roger Maltbie's approach was once-in-a-lifetime.

His four-iron hooked left, struck a gallery post and caromed back on the green 20 feet from the hole, the third in a tense playoff duel Sunday with Hale Irwin. The dramatic turnaround enabled him to match Irwin's par four.

"Imagine," marveled Maltbie, "think of the size of that hole from 170 yards. It was destiny."

One hole later, the carefree 25-year-old bachelor sank an 18-foot birdie putt for the $40,000 first prize in Jack Nicklaus' inaugural $200,000 Memorial Golf Tournament.

A shaken Irwin, who won $22,800, was bitter. "It looked like I had a chance to win when his ball was in the air. It was dead. He would have had a difficult time making par."

"I laugh now. I'll cry later. It's unbelievable the way things can turn around," added the 1974 U.S. Open champion.

Irwin conceded Maltbie's luck may have had an effect on the decisive next hole, the difficult 437-yard 18th. Irwin's tee shot was next to a tree, his second in deep rough, his third in a bunker and his fourth 12 feet past the hole.

Maybe history was in Maltbie's favor, considering the Memorial backers were honoring the late Bobby Jones in the inaugural event. Jones skimmed a shot off a lily pad on his way to the Grand Slam in 1930.

Irwin closed with a three-under par 69 to Maltbie's 76. Their par 288s over the tree-lined, lake-studded 7,072 yards of Muirfield Village were, by seven shots, the highest totals of this season.

Actually Maltbie, the 1975 Rookie of the Year, was the only man in the invitational field of nearly 100 to dip under par on the two-year-old monster. And you have to count his two birdies in the four extra holes to accomplish that.

The game's greatest shotmakers struggled to 126 double bogeys in the last two rounds.

"It's the first time I can remember over half of the field failing to break 300," said Dom Mirandi, the tour's official scorer for 13 years.

Jack Nicklaus, despite a 292 that left him in an eighth-place tie, was proud of his creation.

Johnson, Blanks May Get Surprises

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

For those of you who thought baseball was a game of inches, think again.

"I was kind of surprised when they sent him in. That's baseball, I guess... a game of surprises." Milwaukee second baseman Tim Johnson said after his relay to the plate nailed Cleveland's Larvell Blanks trying to stretch his leadoff triple in the ninth inning and preserved the Brewers' 5-4 victory over the Indians.

"I was surprised because I was tired," Blanks said after third base coach Dave Garcia waved him home.

Rudy May of the New York Yankees was surprised when he arrived at Detroit's Tiger Stadium and discovered he was going to pitch with only two days' rest because Dave Pagan, the scheduled starter, came down with a virus. All May did was hurl a four-hit shutout as the Yankees blanked the Tigers 4-0.

"My arm was tired. I threw over 100 pitches two days ago," said May. "But what are you going to do? The club is in first place. You just go and do your best."

In other American League action Sunday, the Kansas City Royals edged the California Angels 3-2 in 14 innings, the Minnesota Twins edged the Texas Rangers 4-3, the Boston Red Sox downed the Baltimore Orioles 3-1 and the Chicago White Sox nipped the Oakland A's 4-3 in 12 innings.

Gorman Thomas' two-run single in the eighth inning on the first pitch from reliever Stan Thomas put the Brewers in front after two-out singles by George Scott and Bill Sharp and a walk to Bob Hansen filled the bases.

Blanks opened the Indians' ninth with a triple and tried to score when the carom off the wall eluded left fielder Sharp.

"I made a menal error," said Coach Garcia. "I thought he could make it, but with no one out I should have held him at third. That's all I have to say, and I wish I didn't have to say it." Yankees 4, Tigers 0

Detroit's Bill Laxton matched May's scoreless pitching until the Yankees scored all their runs in the sixth on a walk to Fred Stanley, Mickey Rivers' bunt single and consecutive home runs by Roy White and Thurman Munson.

Red Sox 3, Orioles 1
Rick Burleson accounted for Boston's first two runs in the fifth inning when he singled, stole second and came around on throwing errors by catcher Dave Duncan and center fielder Paul Blair. Then he drilled his third homer of the season in the seventh. The Red Sox picked up an insurance run in the eighth on Fred Lynn's single and Carl Yastremski's double.

Meanwhile, Rick Wise blanked the Orioles until Bobby Grich's ninth-inning homer.

Royals 3, Angels 2
Kansas City scored the winning run against Dick Drago in the 14th inning on a walk to Bob Stinson and singles by Cookie Rojas and Amos Otis. California starter Don Kirkwood carried a 1-0 lead into the eighth when an error by left fielder Joe Lahoud permitted the Royals to score two runs. The Angels tied it in the bottom of the eighth on singles by Jerry Remy, Bob Jones and Bruce Bochte.

Twins 4, Rangers 3
Lyman Bostock tripled home the tying run in the seventh inning and then scored on a wild pitch by Texas relief ace Steve Foucault. Dave Goltz, who scattered six hits, picked up his fifth victory in a row — all complete games — and recorded a career-high nine strikeouts. One of the Texas hits was Jeff Burroughs' two-run homer in the sixth.

White Sox 4, A's 3
Jack Brohamer doubled to score Chet Lemon with two out in the 12th after Lemon drew a walk from Oakland relief ace Rollie Fingers and stole second. Jorge Orta homered for Chicago. Billy Williams for the A's.

Suns Getting Away With Murder On Maturity Road

By BERT ROSENTHAL
AP Sports Writer

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — According to Phoenix's Alvan Adams, a mere babe in arms, the Suns rapidly are becoming a mature team. According to Boston Coach Tom Heinsohn, a veteran of the heated, tense world of pro basketball, the Suns "are getting away with murder."

Adams, a 21-year-old rookie, typified the Suns' maturity Sunday. He poured in 33 points, grabbed 14 rebounds and guided the young, inexperienced Phoenix team to a 105-98 victory over the Celtics in Game Three of the National Basketball Association's championship series.

The fiery Heinsohn, a former Celtics star and the team's coach for the past six years, was seething after the game, which pulled the Suns within 2-1 of the best-of-seven nationally televised series. His anger was directed at the Suns and officials Richie Powers and Paul Mihalak.

He charged that the Suns were "actors and not very good ones," and said the officials were "taking the press away from us."

"I got tired of seeing Westy (Paul Westphal) and Van (Dick Van Arsdale) falling down all the time," the angry Heinsohn said. "Every time we pressed them, they belted us with their elbows, then fell over. One time, Westy just bulled over Jimmy Ard and it was a foul on Ard."

Heinsohn said he felt the officials "overreacted" to a column by a Phoenix sports writer that said the Celtics had been overly aggressive in the first two games of the series — 98-87 and 105-90 Boston victories.

"I got tired of hearing that we beat people to death physically," said the infuriated Heinsohn. "That's an unfair criticism. We're not bully boys. We play aggressive basketball. We're a finesse team."

Actually, there was not much difference in the number of fouls called on either team. Boston was charged with 34 personal fouls and Phoenix 31.

But the Celtics lost starters Dave Cowens and Charlie Scott with six fouls apiece, while no one fouled for Phoenix.

The Celtics also were charged with three technical fouls — one each against Cowens, Scott and Heinsohn.

Two players — Boston's Kevin Stacom and Phoenix's Ricky Sobers — were ejected for fighting, their second brawl this season, and Sobers' second battle during the playoffs.

The loss of Cowens was the big blow to the Celtics. When he went out with 5:18 remaining, the Celtics had chopped a 23-point third quarter deficit to 92-83. Thirty-three seconds later it was 92-88.

But with Cowens out, Adams went to work on Ard, Boston's reserve center.

He scored eight of Phoenix's next 10 points, giving him 12 for the fourth period, and handed off for the other two points to Westphal, who finished with

Jo Jo White was Boston's leading scorer with 22 points,

Pearson Wins World 600; Praises Guthrie

By RICHARD O. WATERS
Associated Press Writer

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — David Pearson, winner of the $249,155 World 600 stock car race, ate some crow Sunday after Janet Guthrie finished 15th in the grueling 600-mile race which attracted a record 103,000 spectators.

"I think she surprised everybody," said the smiling Mercury driver who had just beaten Richard Petty's Dodge as the 17th annual race ended under caution. Pearson said Tuesday he didn't think she would make the 40-car field.

Miss Guthrie, who started 27th, finished 21 laps behind Pearson and completed 379 of the 400-lap event to win $3,555 at the 1.5-mile Charlotte Motor Speedway.

Reporters in the press box also voted her winner of the Curtis Turner Memorial Driver Achievement Award.

"I felt like she wouldn't last 600 miles. She surprised me the way she was driving all week," Pearson said of the 38-year-old New York physicist, who failed to qualify for the Indianapolis 500 a week ago because of engine problems.

Early leader Cale Yarborough finished third in a Chevrolet, one lap behind Pearson and Petty. Bobby Allison's Mercury was fourth and the Chevrolet of Benny Parsons was fifth, two laps down.

"I knew I could go all the way somewhere after two and a half to three hours," said Miss Guthrie, praising Ralph Moody, who prepared her Chevrolet, Cale Yarborough, Donnie Allison and other drivers who helped her during the week.

The race, slowed to an average speed of 137.352 miles per hour by seven caution flags, lasted four hours, 22 minutes and six seconds.

"My strategy was to run as hard as I could as traffic permitted, and I think I did that fairly well," she said, adding that the 130-degree temperature of the track didn't bother her very much.

Admitting it wasn't "very diplomatic," she said she would have rather been in the Indy 500 because of the prestige. She said she had no plans to run another Grand National race, but would like to.

Pearson, who has won five races in nine starts this season, pocketed the second highest payoff in NASCAR history — $49,990, including $12,000 in lap money and $11,000 for winning the pole position. Petty won $22,465 and Yarborough took home $19,220.

Pearson almost didn't make it to victory lane because of a wild, three-car crash with two laps to go. He was heading for an apparent win over Petty, leading by a comfortable 6.9 seconds.

But the Chevrolets of James Hylton and Grant Adcox and the Ford of Dick Brooks got tangled up coming out of the fourth turn just in front of Pearson.

"First thing that popped into my mind was Daytona (when Pearson and Petty wrecked near the finish line), Pearson said. "I did know that we had a couple of laps to go and I really didn't know which way the cars were going. I saw an opening shot in the grass in the infield and that's the way I went."

Pearson, who led 230 laps, said, "I will have to say that lady driver got in my way three times."

Miss Guthrie said she knew she got caught in traffic on a few occasions. "I'm sorry about that, but I think basically I drove a fairly clean race."

Yarborough led for 108 laps, second to Pearson, and Petty led 56 times.

Enide 50w At Lay-by PRE-EMERGENCE HERBICIDE

WEED CONTROL IN TOBACCO

Keeps your fields clean through harvesting.

Enide 50w applied at lay-by will give your weed control program the boost it needs to carry fields weed-free through harvesting. Even if you put down an earlier herbicide treatment, your row middles need the extra protection of Enide at lay-by. Lay-by cultivation brings untreated soil to the surface, and throws the treated soil up on the row ridges. That exposes the middles to renewed growth of weeds and grasses that can give you problems at harvest time. But, now you can prevent those problems easily and economically. Apply Enide either during or after your last cultivation.

DaVanon Rips Braves With Bat

By ED SHEARER
AP Sports Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — Jerry DaVanon, a well-traveled utility infielder who has averaged under six runs batted in per season in the major leagues, almost hit his average in one game Sunday.

The 30-year-old Houston infielder drove in five runs with a pair of singles and a bases-loaded triple to propel the Astros to a 16-5 victory over the Atlanta Braves in the nightcap of a doubleheader. Houston also won the opener 5-2 behind the strong relief pitching of Tom Griffin and Ken Forsch.

Houston unleashed a club record 25 hits in the nightcap, erasing the previous mark of 23 set against St. Louis in 1967.

DaVanon, who has been involved in eight club changes since he signed with St. Louis in 1966, had only two hits and one RBI before he got his first start of the season in the second game.

"That's the first time I've ever had five in the big leagues, but I did it several times in the minors," he said. "But, that's not the same."

The sweep of the three-game set with the Braves enabled Houston to snap a six-game losing streak and return home to face Cincinnati with a 5-6 road trip record.

"It was just our day," said Astros Manager Bill Virdon. "It seemed like when they (Atlanta) did hit the ball, they hit it right at us."

The second game was never in doubt after Houston jumped on Roger Moret, 1-1, for five runs and six hits in the opening inning. The Astros added three more in the third, keyed by Cesar Cedeño's two-run single, just added to the slaughter with a four-run sixth, and closed it on DeVanon's bases-loaded triple to left center in the ninth.

The struggle came in the first game. Houston took a 3-0 lead off Andy Messersmith, 2-5, in the first inning but got only two unearned runs the rest of the way.

Meanwhile, Atlanta had countered with one run on Jim Wynn double and cut the lead to 3-2 in the fourth on Jerry Royster's first career home run.

But, Griffin, 4-1, got starter Mike Cosgrove out of fifth inning trouble and worked his way out of a bases-loaded, none-out jam two innings later. Forsch bailed Griffin out of trouble in the eighth and went on to record his 10th save.

The two defeats left Atlanta with the worst record in the major leagues, 16-29.

"Bitter to take, bitter to take," said Dave Bristol, the Atlanta manager. "The worst part of it all was not scoring for Messersmith. The second one just got out of hand."

Third baseman Larry Parrish of the Montreal Expos is regarded as one of the outstanding players in the National League. Last year as a rookie, Parrish hit .275.

By EDMOND LEBRETON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The leadership of the U.S. Congress last week went to London to accept formally the loan of the Magna Carta. Now the top officers of the Mother of Parliaments is coming to Washington this week to make the final delivery.

The ceremonies really get rolling after "the American delegation minus the key members" is ensconced in a room on the House side of the Capitol and "the British delegation minus the key members" on the Senate side.

The key American members assemble at the dismount point (the foot of the Capitol's east steps) at 10:27 while the British key members relax in automobiles at a nearby holding point. They are "released from the holding point so as to arrive at the dismount point at 10:30."

5.—With 7 points in high cards, you have an obligation to keep the bidding open. However, here is no satisfactory bid available. Your strength is far too limited to venture to the two-level, so we suggest you respond no trump, despite the fact that you have a highly distributional hand. Naturally, if you get the opportunity, you will bid a minor suit at your next turn.

6.—Your hand is a little too strong for a simple raise to two clubs, yet not good enough to jump to three clubs, even though you are a passed hand. There are two viable alternatives: an immediate response of one no trump, or, a waiting bid of one diamond, intending to support clubs over partner's rebid. This latter sequence would show a hand which was stronger than an immediate raise to two clubs, but runs the risk of partner passing you out in one diamond if he opened light in third seat.

8.—It is a close choice between a jump to three diamonds and two no trump. Although you have only 12 points in high cards, we would stretch a little because of the fifth diamond and opt for two no trump. It is a more descriptive bid, and in view of your black-suit holdings, it might be better to have the lead coming up to you.

Britain, Iceland Call Truce In Codfish War

LONDON (AP) — Britain and Iceland have agreed in principle on a six-month truce in their cod war over Iceland's prohibition against foreign fishermen within 200 miles of her coast, Norwegian sources report.

British Foreign Secretary Anthony Crosland was to meet in Oslo today with Iceland's Foreign Minister Einar Agustsson and Fisheries Minister Mathias Bjarnason. Spokesmen for the British Foreign Office said there was "a good prospect for agreement." The Norwegian sources said 24 British trawlers would be allowed to fish to within 20 miles of the Icelandic coast in certain areas. The agreement would run until Nov. 30. Meanwhile, the two governments would negotiate for a longer-term agreement.

To improve the atmosphere for the meeting today, the British government ordered the six Royal Navy frigates and four civilian tugs that have been guarding British trawlers in the disputed waters to withdraw to just outside the 200-mile limit.

The British government also asked the 42 British trawlers in the area to stop fishing but told them to remain where they were.

British fishermen accused the government of selling them out, and left-wingers in the Icelandic parliament called for rejection of any agreement allowing any British fishing inside the 200-mile limit.

Some London papers pointed out that Britain is in a delicate position because of its own claims to the North Sea oil deposits off the east coast of Scotland.

Iceland unilaterally proclaimed the 200-mile limit last October, taking in waters where British trawlers have fished for generations. Iceland said the ban on foreign fishermen was necessary to preserve fish stocks vital for the island republic's economic survival.

Britain refused to recognize the new limit. Iceland broke off diplomatic relations in February after the British sent frigates to protect the trawlers from Icelandic gunboats cutting their nets.

Iceland also threatened to close the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's base at Keflavik, from which the United States and other allies monitor Soviet traffic in the North Atlantic.

Other NATO countries have been trying to get the two angry members of the alliance together. Crosland met informally last week with Prime Minister Geir Hallgrimsson of Iceland and his foreign minister during the NATO ministerial meeting in Oslo.

Until then, Iceland refused to talk while the frigates remained in the area, and the British refused to withdraw them until they got a guarantee the gunboats would not harass the trawlers.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Look to some good friend who can help you gain a desire. Contact other friends also whom you haven't seen in a long while.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Get in touch with a bigwig you know and gain the support you need at this time. Get assets and disbursements well organized.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Find new right interests. Some new contact should be cultivated and made into a good friend. Show you understand this person.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Show more consideration for your mate for excellent response. Handle responsibilities well. Avoid one who is a troublemaker and gossipmonger.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Understand better how to cooperate more intelligently with associates. Solve that problem that arises with one who opposes you and use tact for best results.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Find a better system for handling your routines. Find the right clothing to impress others more favorably. Avoid a double-crosser.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) By going back to the amusements that were satisfactory in the past, you can have a delightful time now. Show mate more love.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will quickly understand the ideas and actions of others, so slant the education along lines that will mean working with the masses, as in politics, organizational work, big business, personnel, etc. Make the environment and training such that the innate feeling of martyrdom will be dispelled early. Give good spiritual training.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Angry Passengers Impound Airplane

By JOSEPH BONNEY
Associated Press Writer
JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — A chartered airliner's passengers, angered by delays in a flight from London, went to court and got the World Airways DC8 jet impounded in Jackson. A number of the flight's 248 passengers acted Sunday, a few hours after they landed, on behalf of themselves and their fellow passengers. They complained they were caught in the middle of a labor dispute that stretched their London-to-Jackson trip to nearly 24 hours.

The passengers said they would seek damages of $1,000 each, and they got a writ from the Rankin County Chancery Court to have the DC8 held for payment of any damages that are granted.

Lawyers said World Airways could retrieve its jet by submitting to jurisdiction of the chancery court.

The labor dispute was connected with a four-day-old strike by 750 union members against World Airways, which is based in Oakland, Calif., and specializes in charter flights.

The passengers, mostly from Mississippi, were on a nine-day visit to England when the strike began. The airline and unions agreed to allow the plane to return its passengers to Jackson.

However, passengers said union-management bickering forced them to sit for nearly five hours at the London airport and for more than two hours at Bangor, Maine, where they stopped to clear customs on the way home.

World Airways spokesmen said the delay at London came when the company tried to replace a union stewardess with a management official and the flight crew threatened to walk out. The stewardess stayed aboard.

The Bangor delay reportedly developed when several crewmen wanted to return to Oakland rather than take motel rooms in Jackson.

"It was a real strain on a lot of people," said W.F. Minor of Jackson, one of the passengers. The passengers' complaint said that when the plane was in London, officials told the passengers at first that the delay resulted from problems in loading baggage.

"They kept us sitting on the ground for five hours, knowing all the while that what they later described as an industrial dispute was going on," Minor said.

"All of this resulted in a number of older people, including some heart patients, being kept on their feet or sitting immobile for several hours," he said.

"Toward the end of the flight, crew and pilots were," Minor everybody was getting pretty said.

Klan Holds Tenn. Rally

By ROGER COOPER
Associated Press Writer
PULASKI, Tenn. (AP) — "It's a white man's nation," the Imperial Wizard of the United Klans of America told a Memorial Day weekend Bicentennial rally here, at the disputed birthplace of the Ku Klux Klan.

The nighttime address was followed by the ritual burning of a 15-foot cross in the 66-acre rented field near a disused phosphate mine.

"Ours is the culture that must continue if we're going to survive as a Christian nation," Imperial Wizard Robert M. Shelton told white-robed and hooded Klansmen Saturday night.

"The blacks themselves recognize they cannot provide the leadership necessary for their survival, therefore they turn to the whites," Shelton about 1,000 followers.

He said three days of continuous rain in the area was responsible for the poor attendance, keeping "approximately 20,000 people or more at home."

The Klansmen came to this Tennessee town of 8,000 persons near the Alabama border because the original Reconstruction-era KKK was founded here in December, 1865.

However, many local residents claim the modern Klan is not an direct outgrowth of the original organization, and they opposed the rally.

The first KKK was founded one evening by six Confederate Army veterans, including Confederate Gen. Nathan Bedford Forrest, in a law office off the town square. Most historians agree that Klan was an innocent undertaking and disbanded in the early 1870s.

A total of 17 resolutions were adopted at a special session Saturday of "Imperial Officers, Grand Dragons and Imperial Representatives."

One called for the "defeat of all politicians who practice the art of persecuting the white man in order to line up the Negro vote."

Klansmen spent the afternoon pre-rally hours milling around their campers and tents, eating hot dogs and watermelons and posing for snap shots.

"Look mean," one woman told a Klansman, as she squeezed the shutter release.

Less Women Is 'Serious Concern'

Under-representation of women in the North Carolina delegations to the political party conventions is "a cause of serious concern" to members of the N.C. Women's Political Caucus, said state Caucus President Tennala A. Gross.

Ms. Gross noted that only six of the 46 Democratic delegates are women, and only one woman has been named to the 33-member Republican delegation.

"If as many as 12 of the 15 remaining Democratic delegates to be selected at the June 12 state convention are women, the percentage of women delegates would still be only 29.5, as compared to 46.8 in 1972," she said. "This is an alarming trend and must not be allowed to continue."

Ms. Gross conceded that the virtual exclusion of women from the delegate slates "was not necessarily deliberate," but the resulting "lack of representation for women party members is the same."

"The parties must find a way to prevent this from happening again," she said.

She suggested continuing the policy of allowing district conventions "free rein" in the selection of delegates, while reserving enough at-large slots to assure equitable representation of all party members.

Concerning the reaction of Women's Caucus leadership to the invitation of Phyllis Schlafly to be keynote speaker at the Republican convention June 19, Ms. Gross replied that the "multipartisan" Caucus does not involve itself with internal party affairs.

"However, it has seemed strange to us that even though the vice president of the United States will be in Greensboro for the convention, the person asked to give the keynote address is someone who has never held elective office and is known chiefly for being against the Equal Rights Amendment."

"Certainly the choice of Mrs. Schlafly as speaker appears to be a serious disservice to the dedicated Republican women who have been instrumental in making the party stronger in North Carolina than it has been for many years."

Kidnap Victim Feeling 'Fine'

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The Belgian ambassador's 16-year-old daughter, ransomed for $408,000, said she feels fine but during her four-day kidnaping "the feeling of being closed in bothered me."

Nadine Chaval was released late Saturday night by leftist guerrillas who took her from her father's limousine Tuesday as a chauffeur was driving her to school. The kidnapers apparently had planned to kidnap the ambassador, but he was not in the car that morning.

"Nadine Chaval is fine. She slept very well last night, and right now she's enjoying a glass of milk," said the girl, pretending to be an employe at the Embassy when a reporter called Sunday. After admitting her identity, she said of her ordeal:

"I got to eat and drink, and I was alright, but what got to me most was the feeling of being closed in there, in that place... It was a medium-sized place, but the feeling of being closed in bothered me."

Ambassador Andre Chaval's doctor said Chaval had a nervous breakdown when his daughter was abducted and was still in bed Sunday, but the doctor said his condition was not serious.
