

WALL COMES TUMBLING DOWN... A section of wall on the South side of the old Proctor Hotel building at the intersection of Evans and Third Streets— being developed by Lanco Realty Co. as an office building— was knocked down yesterday after it began to settle. The settling started in the four-story section of the exterior wall when workmen cut away a portion of the first floor wall providing support for the structure above it. After the settling began early yesterday afternoon, a large crane was brought in to tear away the damaged brickwork. In the photo at left, by Reflector Sports Editor Woody Peele, the crane's boom begins to chip away at the brick wall at the roof level. Later, in the following three photos, by Reflector photographer Tommy Forrest, the major portion of the wall comes tumbling down.

Workers at the site this morning said the wall will be rebuilt and the renovation project— although delayed by yesterday's events— will be completed. No estimate of the damage caused by the collapse of the wall was available today.

Reagan Hints At Support For Rhodesia

By DOUG WILLIS
SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Ronald Reagan says if he is elected president he might send American troops to white-ruled Rhodesia if the government there asked for help to preserve peace.

Reagan also said that as chief executive he would propose legislation to prevent forced busing of students.

The former California governor, challenging President Ford for the Republican presidential nomination, responded to questions about Rhodesia at an appearance Wednesday before the Sacramento Press Club.

Later, at a fund-raising party in the San Francisco suburb of Cupertino, Reagan told supporters, "It isn't true. I'm not going to declare war on Rhodesia.

I made the mistake of speaking to the press club over in Sacramento. You have to be careful about what you say."

Reagan has spent the last several days campaigning in his home state, which offers 167 nominating delegates in next Tuesday's winner-take-all GOP primary election.

Ford, meantime, was in Washington where he said he expects to win the Republican nomination on the first ballot. He forecast victories in the Ohio and New Jersey primaries. He did not comment on his loss of the Montana and South Dakota primaries to Reagan on Tuesday.

The President now has 805 of the 1,130 delegates needed for the nomination. Reagan has won 654.

Former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter, the front-runner in the race for the Democratic nomination, left California Wednesday for Ohio after two days of campaigning. His departure was only a couple of hours before California's governor, Edmund G. Brown Jr., returned to his home state after a campaign swing through New Jersey.

Carter leads in delegates with 898 of the needed 1,505. Brown, whose campaign started late, has only 22½ delegates, but he claimed the biggest share of delegates elected Tuesday in Rhode Island.

Arizona Rep. Morris Udall, who trails Carter in delegates with 305½, campaigned in Ohio.

Reagan, in Sacramento, said he didn't think an actual commitment of American troops to Rhodesia would be necessary to preserve the peace during a transition of power to the black majority.

"They are fighting these guerrillas from across the border and doing very well. Whether it would be enough to have simply a show of strength, or whether you have to go in with occupation forces or not, I don't know," Reagan said.

Reagan said he would be willing to send troops "if the government there said that a token show... is necessary."

Reagan's campaign staff chief, Mike Deaver, told reporters later that Reagan was raising the Rhodesian issue again because he wanted to avoid "the same misinterpretation" of his views that occurred concerning Panama.

Deaver said that when Reagan said he would defend Panama like any other "sovereign" territory of the United States, this was incorrectly interpreted to mean "he wants to go to war."

$30.4 Million Budget Is Proposed For City

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

The proposed 1976-77 budget and capital improvements program for the city and Greenville Utilities Commission, totaling $30,390,041, has been presented to the City Council for consideration.

The proposed budget, submitted by new City Manager Jim Caldwell in an informal session with the Mayor and Council members, recommends general government expenditures for the city totaling $6,329,546 and GUCO expenditures amounting to $24,060,495.

package of just over $28 million adopted for 1975-76. Last year's final budget ordinance for the city totaled $6,778,847 while the Greenville Utilities budget ordinance amounted to $21,362,884.

Caldwell pointed out in his message, "While most General Fund expenditures are above the current year's budget and estimate, this reflects increased personal services due to merit increases, higher cost of supplies and materials and increasing utilities."

He added, "The recommended General Fund Contingency is $151,888 or approximately three per cent of the budget which will have to include any cost-of-living salary increase, as the Council may determine. Capital Improvement Projects have been held to $85-250," the city manager said, "which cover completing projects already underway, and considered essential."

operation.

Proposed General Fund revenues total $5,498,432 with revenue sources projected from property and other taxes, licenses and permits, inter-governmental revenues, charges for current services, and other miscellaneous revenue items.

A proposed Debt Service Fund of $523,958 is proposed in the city manager's new package, while a Parking Authority Fund of $71,208 is recommended. Total budget for Public Transportation is proposed at $81,845.

Caldwell, noting that the "high cost of inflation and steep price increases in many areas of expenditure are reflected in all departments' recommendations," pointed out that, "A strong effort has been made to hold down expenditures consistent with maintaining the current level of services provided by our departments."

Caldwell contended that the current budget proposal reflects "the tightest budget facing the city within the past four or five years."

The GUCO segment of the overall budget calls for proposed revenues and expenditures of $18,762,000 for the Electric Fund, $1,302,000 for the Water Fund, $1,179,625 for the Sewer Fund, and $1,450,900 for Gas Fund.

A public hearing on the proposed budget has been scheduled by the City Council for June 10 at 8 p.m. in the Council chambers at city hall.

Hays Steps Down As Campaign Chairman

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Wayne Hays stepped down today as chairman of the House Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee until the investigation of his role in a payroll-sex scandal is completed.

Hays said he was relinquishing control of the committee to avoid putting "an unnecessary and unwarranted burden on my fellow Democratic candidates."

The congressman said he is confident he will be vindicated. But the Ohio Democrat said he did not want "to have my name on a check which might be used as a campaign issue against any Democratic candidate."

He said he will call a meeting of the campaign committee next Wednesday for the election of a temporary chairman to replace him.

"Although the charge against me has yet to be substantiated by credible evidence, I am confident that when all the facts are presented at the proper time and in the proper forum, it will be obvious that the charge against me will be shown to be false," Hays said.

He accepted no questions from reporters.

REFLECTOR HOTLINE

Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell your problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used. Transcribing is done once a day.

COLLECTORS CALLED OFF
We ordered some tape from a company in Los Angeles in January, 1975. It never came. We called the company several times and were told the order would be checked on, but we still didn't receive it. We finally gave up and got rid of all the paperwork. Now, in December, we've received a bill for $65 from a collection bureau in Glendale, Calif. We do not feel we owe this and don't want to pay it, yet we hate to have our credit records blemished by it. F. M.

We got the address of the company from Sheppard Memorial Library and wrote to the company on your behalf, asking that they contact the collection agency and ask them to stop billing. We relayed your message that you would pay for the merchandise only after you had received it. You report that you never again heard from the company, but also stopped receiving notices from the collection agency. It's now been almost six months and you say feel that once Hotline's letter was received by the company, they finally believed that you had not received the merchandise. You continue to check with the local credit bureau periodically, you say, to be sure the matter does not show up again.

HOTLINE FEEDBACK

LOCAL REPAIR

In response to a Hotline item about whether there is a local business which repairs Timex watches, Mike Robinson reports that Floyd G. Robinson Discount Jewelers on Evans Mall does. "We do not do warranty work," he said, "but on watches out of warranty, we can do anything the factory can do."

Success In Transplants

BOSTON (AP) — Doctors say they have saved the arms and legs of 15 cancer victims by transplanting the bones of newly dead accident victims.

The rarely performed operations gave all but three of the patients relatively free use of their limbs within a few months of surgery, the doctors said.

In the experimental study, doctors at Massachusetts General Hospital cut cancerous bones from the patients' arms and legs and replaced them with bones from the accident victims.

Dr. Henry J. Mankin, chief of orthopedic surgery at the hospital, said in an interview that he is optimistic about the continued health of the patients but cautioned it is too soon to use the operation routinely.

The results of the new technique were published in today's edition of the New England Journal of Medicine.

Accused Gives Up In Edenton

EDENTON, N.C. (AP) — Stanley Devane Holden, 22, of Newburgh, N.Y., turned himself in Wednesday and was charged in a bank robbery during which an alleged accomplice was shot to death and a policeman was wounded.

Two men robbed a branch of People's Bank and Trust Co. in this northeastern North Carolina city Tuesday afternoon and fled on foot.

Police Chief J.D. Parrish said officers came on the suspects two blocks away and police Cpl. William Spruill, was wounded in the leg when he exchanged gunfire with one.

One man ran and the second started firing at the patrol car, Parrish said.

The second man fled to a backyard covered with tall grass and officers surrounded the area.

The chief said officers heard three shots then found the man dead. Two pistols were found near the body.

An FBI spokesman said Wednesday the identity of the man was unknown. The spokesman and Parrish said there were indications he committed suicide.

"If they (the officers) had hit him, he would have been lying on the street," Parrish said.

An autopsy will be performed.

Parrish said the stolen money, which was abandoned during the shootout, was recovered.

Jones For Resolution

WASHINGTON, D. C. — First District Congressman Walter Jones of Farmville said this morning that, if given an opportunity to vote on the question, he would support a resolution asking Wayne Hays (D-Ohio) to step down as chairman of the House Administration Committee and the House Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, until investigation into his role in a payroll-sex scandal has been completed.

Jones said of the case, "I am well aware that it has caused a dark cloud over all of the Congress... and we should take every action possible to clean house."

According to Jones, "I think... I will vote for a resolution to ask Hays to step aside from both major committees until such time as the investigation results are made known. I think he should do that and let the vice-chairmen take over in his absence."

"I will vote for such a motion if given an opportunity..." Jones concluded.

Spanish King Salutes U.S.

By FRANCES LEWINE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Spain's King Juan Carlos I says the strength of the U.S. Constitution lies in the "profoundly religious principles" upon which it rests.

"It is often because those principles were not respected that so many political regimes in the Old World, which took their inspiration from your model, did not survive for any length of time," Juan Carlos said in a toast at a White House dinner in his honor Wednesday night.

Juan Carlos, who addressed a joint session of Congress during the opening of his four-day Bicentennial visit Wednesday, planned to salute both American and Spanish heroes here today.

His schedule included laying a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National Cemetery.

Later he and Queen Sofia planned to attend the opening of a Smithsonian Institution exhibition on Christopher Columbus and to dedicate a statue to the Spanish hero Bernardo Galvez.

Between lunch with Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and a talk with Vice President Nelson Rockefeller, the royal couple also planned to attend the unveiling of a statue of Don Quixote at the Kennedy Center.

Tonight they will host a formal dinner at the Spanish embassy for President and Mrs. Ford.

The 38-year-old king, the first Spanish monarch to visit the United States, received a hand of friendship from President Ford, who said he had "very high expectations" for Spain under Juan Carlos' leadership.

In his address to Congress, the king said he was committed to end authoritarian rule and bring "authentic liberty" to Spain. He made no mention in Congress or at the White House of Spain's late dictator, Francisco Franco.

Asks Millions For S. Vietnam

BY SAMUEL KOO
Associated Press Writer
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — A United Nations mission recommends that U.N. members give $432 million to help South Vietnam's new government move nearly half the country's 21 million people from the teeming cities to the countryside.

The mission recently returned from a 3½-week tour of North and South Vietnam. It reported that the new Saigon regime plans to resettle nearly 10 million people to alleviate the burden on the cities, reduce unemployment and restore agricultural production wrecked by the war.

Saigon recently reported that more than 400,000 "volunteers" had moved from the cities to the country in the year since the Communists took over. In Cambodia, the Communists marched 4 million people out of Phnom Penh and other towns and drove them into rural communes. The U.S. State Department estimates that 250,000 died.

The four-member U.N. group, headed by Dr. Victor Umbricht of Switzerland, said in its report to Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim that the South Vietnamese government is giving top priority to reducing the urban population.

The mission's recommendation of foreign aid for the program was questioned by some Western diplomats at U.N. headquarters. They said the mission was endorsing a forcible transfer of people that may run counter to the principles of human rights recognized by the world organization.

But a U.N. official said the organization "routinely" helps resettlement programs.

Continuing Search For Chamber Manager

The process of screening applications and interviewing continues as a selection committee seeks to find a suitable person to assume duties as the new manager of the Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association.

Chamber president Don Collier reported that the selection committee, headed by president-elect Lawton Nisbet, is "actively seeking applications" for the post vacated by Harold Creech on May 31.

According to Collier, the committee has already interviewed several applicants and a number of persons interested in the position have submitted resumes for consideration.

The president emphasized that the committee is being thorough in its selection process and said that "hopefully, the committee, at the appropriate time, will choose the man to lead the Chamber is "very actively seeking to become a member" of the organization.

Pat O'Haugherty of the Atlanta Division of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce was in Greenville on Wednesday to meet and discuss chamber matters with local officers and board members.

Collier said that the Chamber remains active during the selection period and normal activities and projects are continuing without interruption.

He added that the Chamber staff remains "totally intact" and he expressed confidence that "things will continue to move in an orderly manner during the transition period."

In addition, Collier observed that the Credit Bureau will maintain its same status and undergo no changes, including personnel, "at this time or in the near future."

Mistake Brings Delay In Swine Flu Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is being forced to delay its mass swine flu vaccination program for four to six weeks because a pharmaceutical company made two million doses of the wrong vaccine.

The slip-up occurred at Parke Davis & Co., the U.S. Public Health Service said Wednesday.

It will push back the government's plans to provide the first shots to high-risk elderly and chronically-ill persons starting in late July.

"The company has since changed strains and has significantly increased its production," said Dr. Theodore Cooper, assistant secretary for health in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

But he added, "we will probably not have enough to begin inoculations of the high-risk group in late July."

The high-risk group will receive a combination vaccine against the swine-type influenza and A-Victoria influenza.

The government hopes to inoculate most Americans by fall against the rare but potentially deadly swine flu, which broke out at Ft. Dix, N.J., in February.

Parke-Davis was one of four drug companies producing the experimental vaccine for the government. The others have been making the right vaccine, officials said.

The mistake was discovered last week during routine government tests.

The Public Health Service said Parke-Davis used an older Shope strain of influenza virus instead of the A-New Jersey-76 strain which was isolated from servicemen at Ft. Dix. The older Shope virus also is a swine virus, but is not identical to the virus which infected about 500 recruits and killed one young trainee at Ft. Dix.

The Public Health Service said that antibodies produced by the Shope strain probably would provide some protection against the A-New Jersey-76 strain. The two million Shope doses will be held in reserve for use if the correct vaccine combination runs in short supply, it added.

"Use of vaccine grown from the Shope virus strain would have caused no harm and would probably have produced some immunity against the A-New Jersey virus," Cooper said.

Congress has appropriated $135 million to produce more than 200 million doses of swine flu vaccine to protect most Americans against the swine-type influenza virus.

Some public health officials believe that the virus is similar to one that caused a worldwide epidemic in 1918-19, killing 20 million persons including 548,000 Americans.

The shots are being offered on a voluntary basis.

Magna Carta To Be Shown

WASHINGTON (AP) — An original copy of the Magna Carta, the 761-year-old document that marked an early triumph for individual liberty over big government, is going on display in the U.S. Capitol.

A delegation from the British Parliament planned to deliver the document to Congress today as a loan in honor of the Bicentennial.

The British delegation includes Lord Chancellor Elwyn-Jones, speaker of the House of Lords, and George Thomas, Speaker of the House of Commons.

They will hand over the Latin-inscribed scroll amid full panoply to their American counterparts, including House Speaker Carl Albert and Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield.

Albert, Mansfield and 17 other congressmen journeyed to London for a previous Magna Carta ceremony in Westminster Hall May 26.

The Magna Carta will be displayed in the Capitol Rotunda in an elaborate case for one year, then returned to the British Library.

The vellum document is one of four surviving original copies of the pact that rebellious barons forced King John of England to sign at Runnymede in 1215.

Lest anyone accuse the British of being Indian givers, Britain also is giving its former colonies a modern copy engraved in gold and worth an estimated $1 million. The golden tablet will be permanently displayed in the rotunda.

The bedrock of England's constitutional history, the Magna Carta limited King John's royal authority and insured his subjects certain rights, including trial by a jury of peers. The barons felt John had abused his feudal rights with exorbitant taxes and levies. The king also angered them by expanding his royal courts at the expense of the baronial courts.

The noblemen took up arms and seized the city of London in May 1215, forcing King John to come to terms in the historic meeting at Runnymede on June 15, 1215.

Closed Hearing For Claudine

ASPEN, Colo. (AP) — A judge has shut the door to reporters and the public for a June 10 preliminary hearing for singer-actress Claudine Longet, accused of manslaughter in the death of a professional skier.

Miss Longet, 34, faces trial in the shooting death of Vladimir "Spider" Sabich, with whom she had been living for two years.

On Wednesday, District Court Judge George Lohr granted a defense motion asking that the hearing be closed to prevent prejudicial news coverage.

He also issued a gag order prohibiting participants in the hearing from discussing it outside the courtroom and ordered transcripts sealed until the proceedings are over.

Lohr called news coverage of the case "massive, pervasive and geographically widespread," and said he feared Miss Longet would be unable to get a fair trial in any area in which the case might be tried.

He said "sensitive" evidence, including a diary kept by Miss Longet and results of blood and urine tests, would be discussed at next week's hearing and might be inadmissible at the trial. The hearing was scheduled to argue a defense motion that the diary, considered an important piece of evidence in the case, be suppressed.

Miss Longet, who was not present Wednesday, was arrested March 21 shortly after Sabich, a former Olympic skier, was shot to death in his $250,000 home near this ski resort. She has been free on a $5,000 personal recognizance bond.

State Wants Squatters Out

RALEIGH (AP) — The state of North Carolina is standing firmly by its decision to evict squatting fishermen from their shacks on the Core Banks. The area is scheduled to become a national seashore park.

The Department of Natural and Economic Resources held the last in a series of public hearings on its plan to clear the banks area Wednesday. A number of angry squatters showed up to complain—futilely—about it.

The squatters are fishermen who over the years built hundreds of shacks and cabins on state-owned land. They were never told not to. The shacks became unwanted by the state when it proposed turning the land over to the federal government.

Where's Guy?

ATLANTA (AP) — Gov. George Busbee, visiting a local school Wednesday, brought along cards and letters some pupils had sent asking him for the visit.

"Here's a card from Marcia Davis," Busbee said. "Where's Marcia?"

A girl stood and said, "Here I am."

Busbee read another card and called to the writer, "Where's Tony?"

Tony rose and said, "I'm Tony."

"Here's one from Guy Webb," the governor continued jovially. "Guy, where are you?"

There was no answer until teacher Linda Lee tapped Busbee on the arm and said, "Governor, that's the name of the school."

Body May Be Ex-President

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — A bullet-riddled body found at San Andres de Giles is believed to be that of missing former Bolivian president Gen. Juan Jose Torres, federal police sources said today. However, there has been no official identification.

The conservative newspaper La Prensa said the body was wearing a coat purchased in La Paz, Bolivia, when it was found Wednesday evening about 65 miles west of here.

The dead man was in his middle 50s and had a moustache, the paper said. Torres is 52 and also had a moustache.

Bolivian sources close to the Torres family acknowledged that the former president was wearing a coat purchased in La Paz when he disappeared Tuesday.

La Prensa said the body, found under a bridge, had several bullet wounds. The dead man's fingerprints have been forwarded to police in the provincial capital of La Plata, the paper said.

The exiled leftist leader was reported missing Tuesday by his wife, Emma Obles de Torres. Mrs. Torres said her husband left their Buenos Aires apartment in the morning and never returned.

Interior Minister Gen. Albano Harguindey told reporters Wednesday the government is investigating. He hinted that Torres might have disappeared to embarrass the government.

Torres, who called himself a left-wing nationalist, was Bolivian president from Oct. 7, 1970, until Aug. 22, 1971, when he was toppled by a right-wing military coup headed by Gen. Hugo Banzer Suarez, who still rules the country.

Senator Is Divorcing

LITTLETON, Colo. (AP) — Sen. Floyd Haskell, D-Colo., and his wife of 34 years have filed a joint divorce petition in Arapahoe County District Court, an aide says.

The spokesman said Tuesday that a hearing on the petition by the first-term senator and his wife, Eileen, has been set for Oct. 12.

Grandparents Will Fight For Custody Of Child

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1976 by Chicago Tribune N.Y. News-Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter is 19, pregnant and unmarried. It's too late for her to have a safe abortion, so she has decided to put up the baby for adoption. She says she doesn't want to know who adopts it, and she doesn't want them to know who or where she is—ever.

Abby, my husband and I want this child. We would adopt it and give it a good home. It is our flesh and blood, and we feel that we have the right to raise this child. This will be our first grandchild, and perhaps our only one, as our daughter is an only child. She says she wants to put that entire episode out of her life and if we adopt it, that won't be possible.

Abby, don't grandparents have some rights? We don't want to fight her in court, but we will if we have to. Please tell us what your feelings are in this matter.

BROKENHEARTED

DEAR BROKENHEARTED: A lawyer must tell you what your legal rights are. I sympathize with you, but your daughter's feelings take precedence over yours. If I were you, I wouldn't fight it.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are the proud parents of a newly adopted baby.

A friend (?) asked, "Is the baby illegitimate?"

My husband spoke up and said, "Of course not. We've been married for years."

Thought maybe you'd like to share this with your readers.

NEW MAMA

DEAR MAMA: Beautiful! Consider it shared.

DEAR ABBY: May I enter an opinion on your recent columns on "Euthanasia and Living Wills"? You called upon three distinguished representatives of our major faiths to give their "official" views on these important topics.

The "majority" position of Traditional Judaism on these subjects is reflected by the chief rabbi of the British Commonwealth, Dr. Immanuel Jakobovits, in his revised book: "Jewish Medical Ethics."

On "Euthanasia": "...some authorities sanction the removal from a dying patient of medications or machines which only serve to prolong his agony, so long as no NATURAL means of subsistence (such as food, blood and oxygen) are withdrawn...however, some add that once artificial aids are utilized they also should not be removed."

On Kidney Transplants: "The generally prevailing view is to permit such donations as acts of supreme charity, but not as an obligation..."

On "Eye-banks": "...the donor should stipulate in his bequest that his eyes be used only for patients suffering from, or threatened by, complete blindness. There must be prior consent of the donor or his family, and the disused part of the eye after the cornea has been removed should not be disposed of except by burial..."

With blessings on your work,

Operator Of Truck Stop Hosts Many Travelers

By BRENDAN RILEY
Associated Press Writer

COALDALE JUNCTION, Nev. (AP) — The morning sun glints off a window 10 miles away. A mirage? No, it's a hint of civilization, and it looks good to a trucker after miles of empty Nevada desert.

Drawing closer, the trucker can soon make out a couple of main buildings, several smaller structures, trailers, fuel pumps, big truck rigs and cars. It's Jewel Parsons' truck stop, a landmark of sorts along state Route 95.

The road is a main link on the "Oregon Trail," a truck route running from Mexico to Canada. It's also the main road for motorists driving between Las Vegas and Reno. Jewel, after 30 years here, knows hundreds of the travelers on a first-name basis.

The place is in many ways typical of truck stops across the western United States — 24-hour operations located on isolated stretches of road, which provide a home away from home for truckers and other travelers.

Some truck stops have an air of exclusivity about them. Restaurant counters might be marked "truckers only." Fuel pumps are often limited to diesel for the truckers' rigs.

But Jewel, even though she sells most of her fuel to truckers, welcomes auto drivers too. They'd probably stop anyway. Her place is located in otherwise empty country midway along a 70-mile stretch between the central Nevada towns of Tonopah and Mina.

What she and other truck stop operators offer is a place to refuel, eat, drink, sleep, wash clothes, shoot pool or shoot the bull, dance, and — in Nevada — even gamble.

The idea, says Jewel, is to "try to make the place attractive... try to give service. You have to be good to the drivers or they won't stop."

Does that business formula work? Jewel says the rule of thumb is to look at the number of trucks parked at a truck stop. If there are many trucks, odds are the place has a reputation for good service.

"We get a lot more people than just the truck drivers," she says. "On a Friday or Saturday night, all the local people show up."

There's no sign of other buildings around the junction. But Jewel says miners who dig for turquoise in the nearby Monte Cristo Mountains and ranchers from nearby valleys often turn up.

Besides the accommodations for travelers, her place also serves as a meeting hall for area residents. Mail is dropped off daily and the stop serves as an unofficial post office.

On the walls there are notices about upcoming drivers' license tests, a fund-raiser for the fire department in Mina, maps showing locations of Nevada's legal bordellos — including one just a few miles from the truck stop.

Jewel's a former state assemblywoman and Esmeralda County commissioner. She also served on the state Fish and Game Commission. Why does she stay out in this seemingly barren land where even drinking water must be trucked in?

For one thing, says Jewel, the place is a good business. She says truck stops often fold but hers has operated since the 1940s.

Besides that, Jewel says that dealing with thousands of people over the years has given her enough of a glimpse of human nature to "write a book."

"After a while, you can tell what people are like as soon as they walk through the door. You can tell a lot of things about them, besides where they're from. It's interesting."

Then there are the travelers who over the years continue to stop and eventually become her friends, Jewel says.

Church Women Sponsor Sale

The women of First Christian Church will hold an attic sale Saturday, June 5, starting at 9:30 a.m. New items include a magazine rack, a luggage rack, a radio and small toys. Used items include a book case, a television, dishes, etc.

In case of rain, the sale will be held in the hall of the church at 520 Greenville By-pass, between Kroger's and Heilig-Meyers Co. Proceeds will go to the Fellowship Hall Building Fund.

Engagement Announced
Mr. and Mrs. Irvin M. Barber of Rt. 1, Greenville, announce the engagement of their daughter, Shelby Jean, to Lenwood Fred Hudson Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Lenwood Fred Hudson of Rt. 3, Greenville. The wedding will take place June 13.

Virginia Evans, state president. It was announced that $1,125.53 has been donated to the VFW Cancer Aid and Research Fund, and that $125 has been made from the rummage sale. Delegates to the department convention in Greensboro June 18-20 include Mrs. Margaret Joyner, Mrs. Alice Moseley, Mrs. Ruth Evans and Mrs. Carrie West.

Mrs. Jane Englect was enrolled as a new member. Mrs. Hattie Manning, Mrs. Belle Manning and Mrs. Cora Wilson served refreshments.

Exotic Flowers Highlight Shower

An arrangement of pink and red anthuriums, flanked by gold candlesticks with pink flowers, set an exotic mood at a bridal shower given Friday night, May 28, for Miss Sandra Downing at the home of Mrs. William Wiggs of Wilson.

The flowers were flown from Hawaii by Mrs. William Barnes of Lucama, cousin of the bride. The bride's corsage was of matching pee wee anthuriums.

Guests were served from gold appointments on a white lace tablecloth.

Hostesses were Mrs. William Wiggs, Miss Virginia Downing, Mrs. Cecil Hinnant, Mrs. Dan Jordan, Mrs. Richard Downing, Mrs. Mittie Flowers, Mrs. William Barnes and Mrs. Stela Bryan.

Miss Downing will be married to John Barber June 19.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

This month, all over the country, routines will be broken with the dismissal of school.

Working mothers will have the added responsibility of supervising their children via telephone or messages on the refrigerator door.

It is in their interest that we offer a SUMMER PRIMER FOR IMAGINATIVE CHILDREN.

This is a house.

Vehicles are not permitted in the house.

Occupancy of this house by more than 200 people is dangerous and unlawful. Violators will be prosecuted.

There is a dog in the house. His name is Spot. Spot likes to run and play and chase sticks. He also likes to relieve himself with some regularity. Watch Spot for telltale signs of urgency such as jumping higher than the ceiling, gnawing on the doorknob, or unrelenting under the door.

It is fun to eat. See the milk? See the butter? See the lunch meat? They cannot run. They cannot walk. They have no legs. They must be picked up and returned to the refrigerator or they will turn green. Green is not a happy color.

Hear the phone ring? That means someone wants to talk to you. Ring. Ring. Ring. When the phone rings pick it up and speak directly into it. Say "Hello." Say "Good bye." Say anything.

A bedroom is a special place. Find your bed each day. Try. Sometimes you cannot see your bed because it is covered with clutter. This is not healthy. A cluttered room is a messy room. Fish die in a messy room. Mothers cannot breathe in a messy room. A messy room is unfit for humans. Many people in this house are human.

A bathroom is your friend. It is there when you need it. Lids do not like to be standing all the time. They get tired. Towels do not like to be on the floor. They cannot see anything. Ugh. Soap does not like to die in a drain and melt. Boo.

See Mommy come home. See Daddy come home. They are walking on their knees. Be kind to Mommy and Daddy. "Look, look, Mommy! Brucie is bloody!" "I'm telling, Debbie." "I didn't do it, Daddy!"

Do you want to make Mommy crazy?

Do you want to make Daddy rupture a neck vein?

Then shape up, up, up.

Candidate To Be Honored

Irma Sermons Worthington, Democratic candidate for an Eighth District seat in the North Carolina House of Representatives, will be the honored guest at a dessert Wed., June 9, 7:30-9 p.m., to be given by the Pitt County Women's Political Caucus at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Howard, 105 Hardee Street, Cherry Oaks.

Changes In Our Needs Ahead

A couple of decades ago, the United States was warned that there would be a sharp increase in secondary and the college aged population, and our society should get ready for it.

It is still a matter of question how well the nation got ready for that rapidly increasing age group during the 1960s. We expanded our school systems and increased the training of teachers to take care of the boom. Then we expanded our colleges to make room for the young people as they moved to higher education.

Despite all the youthful turmoil of the 1960s we suppose it can be said that the nation at least heeded the warning and handled rising number of young people as best as it could.

Now comes a new warning. The U. S. Census Bureau says that the nation's elderly population has nearly doubled in the last 25 years and by the early part of the 21st century the elderly population will double again.

The birth rate is now steadily falling and the older population is gradually making up a larger percentage of the total population. By the year 2020, it is expected that the elderly will total almost 43 million.

It doesn't take a crystal ball to foresee that, even with no changes in the present benefit formula, the increasing elderly population is going to put a tremendous demand on Social Security — and that will come at a time when there are fewer people of working age to pay for the benefits. Since the elderly have more health problems there will be heavier demands on Medicaid and Medicare. Instead of building new schools we will likely be providing more hospital space, and training medical personnel to take care of the elderly demands.

There will also be the need to provide activities for these older folks. Recreational activities designed for the elderly will be needed. And we will have to act on something that we have merely talked about for years — that is, drawing on the talents and knowledge that these older people have to offer.

The changing population will demand new efforts on the part of our nation in the years ahead. We can sit around until this is a major problem, or we can get to work on answers right now.

Election year . . . and all of official Washington appears to be running scared.

Quality Tobacco Will Still Compete

A long talked about nicotine-free lettuce cigarette, developed in Israel, appears about to hit the market.

It has yet to be proven, of course, how the tobaccoless cigarette will be accepted by smokers. Nevertheless it is one more threat to tobacco producing areas such as ours.

We predict the lettuce cigarette won't replace Eastern North Carolina grown tobacco, but we will have to continue to produce a quality product to make this so.

Whole House On Trial

It is not Wayne Hays who stands metaphorically on trial this month. It is the whole House of Representatives. And it is imperative, or so it seems to me, that the House leadership be made to understand what is at stake in this affair.

We are not dealing here with private morals. We are dealing with the public trust. The concern of the House is not for Wayne Hays in bed, but for Wayne Hays in office. It's not the hanky-panky that counts.

The Ohio congressman, by his own belated admission, enjoyed a "relationship" over an extended period of time with a luscious blonde model, Elizabeth Ray. Make your own moral judgment. In Washington, we might have to wait a long time before someone cast the first stone. The 400-odd male members of the House are probably no less virtuous, and no more sinful, than any other body of men that might be assembled. Their private lives, generally speaking, are their own private business.

But the charge against Hays—the only charge that matters—is that he entangled his private life with the public business. Specifically, the charge is that he put his paramour on the public payroll at $14,000 a year, knowing that she was incapable of performing work approaching that value to the people. The question Hays must answer is: If it had not been for your "relationship," would you have employed her as a committee clerk?

An answer to that question may be inferred from Hays' speech on the floor last Wednesday. He said that he arranged to have Miss Ray employed last summer on the staff of another member. "I did not inform this member of my personal relationship with Miss Ray, but I felt he knew and was willing to try to help her at my request."

According to Miss Ray's own statement, she cannot type, cannot even file papers efficiently, and can barely summon up the competence to answer a telephone. She has said that she kept her own hours, grew bored in her own private office, and did no work of any kind.

The federal government is operating this year on a budget approaching $400 billion. The Congress itself operates on a budget of $827 million. The $14,000 paid to Elizabeth Ray is thus very small. And this is how small it is: It is just small enough to be clearly understood.

Few of us can understand billions or millions, but every working man and woman in the country can understand $14,000. The widow who pays $1,500 in federal income taxes; the carpenter who pays $4,000; the school teacher who pays $2,500; the farmer who pays $3,200—each of them knows exactly what it is to labor and to pay taxes. If the charge against Hays is true, every hard-earned dollar these little people pay in taxes—theirs and much more—was squandered by Wayne Hays in order "to help" Elizabeth Ray.

The last time we heard such charges was in the case of Congressman Adam Clayton Powell. We tend now to measure time by the Watergate clock; so measured, the Powell case was a long time ago. The American people, disillusioned and disenchanted by the Watergate experience, never have held their public institutions in lower regard. The loss of confidence is pervasive. In this context, the House leadership must act on the Hays affair; and it must act promptly.

The House has a committee on "Standards of Official Conduct." In the eight years of its existence, the committee has done nothing to maintain standards of official conduct. The committee has now been dragged, kicking and struggling, into an investigation of charges that Florida's Congressman Robert L.F. Sikes has abused his position for private gain. The Sikes case is serious and ought not to be ignored.

But the charges against Sikes are complex and the evidence at the moment is unclear. By contrast, the charge against Hays is clear, concise, and susceptible to immediate investigation. The committee must act, or it

Energy Supplies Are Key

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—The availability of energy, and its cost, have suddenly become critical to the future economic growth of North Carolinas.

Speaking before the 15th annual meeting of the Southern Interstate Nuclear Board in Winston-Salem recently, George R. Herbert, president of the Research Triangle Institute, said energy costs and availability have shifted from "a position of relative insignificance in the industrial development equation to a dominant decisional factor . . ."

That equation generally contains cost and availability of labor, transportation, proximity to markets, raw materials and a host of other factors. Energy has been important to only a limited few, since it has been readily available and cheap.

North Carolina and the South, by reason of lower labor costs and population growth which meant expanding market opportunities has benefited greatly in part from the movement of industrial operations into the region.

Formula Changed Herbert (pronounced er-bear) warned that the formula has now changed and "a return to the days of cheap and easy energy is most improbable. Development planners must go about their quest for increased per capita income fully aware of the energy constraints they face."

Herbert, whose research teams have carried out numerous development and growth policy studies for North Carolina and other states, predicted that the trend of late to combat labor costs by using more energy will reverse.

"The trend of the past, to substitute—whenever possible—what then was cheap energy for labor will slow and, in the case of some industries, be reversed.

"The South, with its relatively cheaper labor will be the beneficiary," he said, pointing to the strength of the other factors of the equation in the South.

But of particular concern to North Carolinians is Herbert's contention that while higher priced energy will not derail progress in the region, it will "tend to direct job and income growth toward those states with domestic energy resources. . . Southern states without gas and oil will have to turn increasingly to electricity to provide the energy for future economic growth."

He predicted that continued clashes will occur involving the various interests—environmental, consumer, regulatory—until there emerges a clear definition of the linkages between plentiful electric power and economic growth.

Additionally, he sees southern states without gas or oil energy directing industry—hunting efforts toward prospects that pay higher wages and use less energy than existing firms.

Herbert warned that state and local industrial development experts had been largely caught off guard by the emergency of energy as a key factor in the equation, and must shift their thinking rapidly in order to cope with that condition.

Failure could mean trouble for the recent trend upward in per capita income. "Development planners must go about their quest for per capita income fully aware of the energy constraints they face," Herbert said.

The South's energy future will affect employment and income," Herbert believes, "and could dictate which wage strategy may be most effective."

North Carolina's lower wages, weighed against higher energy costs, means relocating firms will likely view her along with other southern states "as offering a comparatively advantageous location," Herbert said."

THE INSIDE REPORT

Jordan's Turn Tragedy

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—The tragic turn toward Moscow by Jordan's King Hussein, one of this country's staunchest friends in the Mideast until his humiliation by the U. S. Congress over the Hawk missile deal, threatens to harden still further Israel's refusal to give up the West Bank of the Jordan River.

If Hussein decides to buy Soviet anti-aircraft missiles during his June visit to Moscow (his first in almost 10 years), the Israeli reaction will be both predictable and hard to refute: the insinuation of Soviet power on the East Bank of the Jordan makes continued Israeli occupation of the Arab West Bank imperative.

The West Bank could then become a counterpart of the Israeli-occupied Golan Heights of Syria: Arab territory Israel says will never be returned. That would destroy the key element of every U.S. peace plan ever devised to settle the bloody Arab-Israeli struggle: the return of the West Bank to Jordan—or to the Palestinians—under some form of international guarantee.

Even worse, King Hussein may feel compelled to turn to radical, oil-rich Libya for help in financing the purchase of anti-aircraft missiles from Moscow, now that the price of the U.S. Hawks has spiraled to $800 million.

Hussein originally wanted to buy 14 American Hawk batteries with about $350 million supplied by Saudi Arabia, like Jordan a traditional friend of the U.S. Saudi Arabia, however, will not pay $800 million and is not eager to help Jordan buy much cheaper equipment from Moscow.

Soviet weapons, possibly accompanied by Soviet advisers and technicians, in neighboring Jordan would be anathema to Communist-hating Saudi Arabia.

Hence, with the U. S. Hawks (including spare parts, training, computerized radar tracking and an inflation factor) now priced far beyond Jordan's and Saudi Arabia's capacity, Hussein is known to be considering help from Libya, the Arab world's well-heeled radical rogue.

Libya ended financial help to impoverished Jordan in 1970, when Hussein's troops swept Libyan-backed Palestinians out of Jordan in a shooting war. Until then, Hussein had been receiving about $30 million a year from Libya following Jordan's defeat by Israel in the Six Day War of 1967.

Now, with Hussein turning toward Moscow for help in protecting his totally exposed country from possible Israeli air attack in some future war, Libya in showing renewed interest in helping. Libya might agree to make up the full $180 million in unpaid subsidies to Jordan. With financing unavailable in Saudi Arabia for any Soviet arms deal, Hussein might use that $180 million to buy Soviet surface-to-air (SAM) missiles.

The irony of Jordan turning to Moscow and Libya instead of Washington and Saudi Arabia for help in its most essential aspect of self-defense is supreme. It would play directly into the hands of Israeli hawks (probably considerably less than a majority there) by leap-

Public Forum

Letters submitted for Public Forum must be limited to 300 words.

To the editor:

In 1920 the Carnegie Foundation led the successful American Medical Association-sponsored fight to close over half our country's medical schools. As a result in the five decades since, physicians' incomes have soared to the point where the American doctor is the richest professional in the world, the cost of medical care has gone out of sight, and a severe shortage of doctors has developed.

Now that same Foundation is pandering to the doctors' union once again. The Carnegie "front men" in San Francisco now say we have too many medical training facilities in North Carolina (Durham Morning Herald, May 28, 1976). They and their local synchophants keep insisting that there are plenty of doctors around, they're just "badly distributed."

There is just not a sufficient number of doctors in San Francisco or Manhattan where the artificial shortage that their union has created allows them to extract more exorbitant fees than they can rip off in North Carolina. There may even be plenty of doctors in Medical Centers using their monopoly power to corner grants for research that could be done more effectively by our underemployed Ph.D. scientists. The problem is that there are not enough doctors carefully treating the people at fees they can afford. I call that a shortage; the 50 cents AMA word is "maldistribution."

That is why our country, the richest on earth, has such shameful health statistics when compared to other Western nations. That is also why these harried fat cats of medicine make such attractive targets for malpractice suits. In fact, the malpractice rage is so intense that the fat cats are now screaming for the government to protect them. Instead, the government should break the AMA's strangle-hold on medical training so as to allow abundant, careful, and low cost medical care.

Finance Costs Drive Price Up

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—The average new single-family home now costs about $100,000.

Shocking as that price might be, it is a fact if you include the cost of financing which over the past 10 years has added much more to the price of housing than have building costs.

In 1966 a new single-family house cost about $25,000. If a $5,000 down payment were made it would leave $20,000 to be financed at 6 per cent for 25 years. Total cost: $43,661.

A comparable house in 1976 costs $45,000. After a $9,000, 20 per cent, down payment, $36,000 would remain to be financed at 9 per cent for 25 years. Total cost: $99,636. In terms of monthly payments, the 1966 purchaser must come up with $128.87—generally rounded off to $129—while the 1976 buyer has to pay a note of $302.12.

Stated starkly, the typical purchaser cannot afford the typical house, and no agency of government or private enterprise seems able to resolve the dilemma.

Builders have literally cut corners, reducing the size of models. They have cut out the extra bath and the fourth bedroom, have left attics unfinished, eliminated the garage, reduced the quality of cabinetry.

Individuals have resorted to their own devices. On a small scale, some companies offer kits to individuals capable of erecting their own homes. Many young couples have bought and refinished older, run down homes.

The over-all problem remains, however. A survey by "Professional Builder Magazine" indicates that at least 40 per cent of potential buyers in the age group to 34 years cannot afford to pay more than $35,000.

Moreover, the trend continues to worsen. Often ignored in time and price comparisons is that worker income, while increasing, is not rising as fast as housing prices.

Once purchased, the typical house also proves to be expensive to operate, with costs of taxes, fuel, repairs and general maintenance all rising swiftly, in some instances much more sharply than the general inflation level.

Curiously, however, discussion of the problem seems to be absent from public debates, or at least treated with apathy. So long as it persisted, it seems that courage to face the issue seems to have waned.

In the political campaigns it appears to be hardly an issue at all, and yet there are no more basic needs than food, clothing and shelter. And quality shelter, a home of one's own, remains one of the great American aspirations.

The commencement exercises for Greenville High School came to a close last night with the presentation of diplomas to the seventy graduates.

Preceding the awarding of diplomas, J. L. Little, chairman of the local school board, and the audience of about 1,600 heard an address by Dr. M. R. Trabue, director of the Division of Education of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

The exercises were held in the Wright Building at East Carolina Teachers College. School superintendent Junius H. Rose presided. Among the awards presented were the Dixon Athletic Trophy to Carl Pierce and the Distinguished Service Cup to Harding Sugg.

WEATHER FORECAST—Cool weather is forecast Thursday for the Northwest, but seasonably mild weather is expected for most of the country. Showers are forecast for the central and northern Rockies. Rain is expected in the Southeast. (AP Wirephoto)

By The Associated Press
A tornado, mud slides, rising river waters, the evacuation of a family—all followed heavy rain and thunderstorms in North Carolina Wednesday. It was continued wet and cooler today, but the potential for severe weather diminished.

The funnel cloud of a tornado was seen in the Fort Bragg area, but no damage was reported. A tornado watch had been in effect for most of eastern North Carolina during the afternoon and evening.

Winds gusted to near 65 miles an hour during the evening at the Pitt-Greenville airport.

Between one and two inches of rain fell in the southern coastal area.

Hail fell in near Zebulon in the Raleigh vicinity.

A family was evacuated at Pinola in Avery County when the Linville River flooded a home with a foot of water.

There were mud slides in the northwestern county but the sheriff's department reported roads were passable.

In Wilkes County, the Redies River overflowed and some electric power was out temporarily. Land slides closed N.C. 16 which leads from Wilkes into the Blue Ridge Mountains.

High temperatures outside the mountains ranged Wednesday from 76 degrees at Greensboro to 90 at Jacksonville. The mountains remained in the 70s except for a maximum of 57 atop mile-high Grandfather Mountain, where there is a weather observer.

Winds from the east and northeast kept today's highs in the 60s in the mountains and northern portion, and the 70s in the southern portion. The overnight lows will be in the 50s in the mountains, and the upper 50s to upper 60s elsewhere.

MEMPHIS (AP)—It would be a waste of time for James Earl Ray, convicted killer of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., to appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court, Ray's Memphis attorney said.

"I, as well as attorney James Lesar, do not believe that the present U.S. Supreme Court would grant a writ of certiorari," said attorney Robert I. Livingston in a telephone interview Wednesday. "I feel it would be a waste of time to appeal to the Supreme Court, of course that doesn't mean we won't be prepared to file papers for an appeal."

Livingston said one of the reasons for his pessimism was the Supreme Court seldom grants the removal of such a case from the jurisdiction of a lower court.

The U.S. 6th Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati two weeks ago denied Ray's request for a trial in the 1968 shooting death of Dr. King.

Ray, who is serving 99 years at the Tennessee State Prison in Nashville, claims he was coerced into confessing to the slaying of the civil rights leader in Memphis.

"If there is no criminal case to be tried, then Ray has no need of a criminal lawyer at this time," said Livingston. "My role was to steer his case through the Tennessee courts and his Washington attorneys were to cover the federal appeal courts."

The next step in Ray's battle for a new trial will be up to Lesar, a Washington, D.C., attorney, Livingston said.

Bernard Fensterwald, who had been Ray's chief counsel, was granted a petition to withdraw from the case Wednesday by the appellate court in Cincinnati.

Fensterwald asked to be freed from his duties after he was informed by Ray that he was to be replaced.

Fensterwald said he was not certain about Ray's wishes concerning the other two attorneys, Livingston and Lesar.

"Nor am I," said Livingston. "As I said, I have been serving as Ray's Tennessee counsel, and he has not notified me to the contrary.

"But right now I can do nothing, absolutely nothing, unless the Supreme Court overturns the 6th U.S. Circuit Court's decision and Ray is given a trial in Shelby County."

Livingston said he and Lesar had been serving as associate counsels to Fensterwald. "I suppose that Lesar is the chief counsel for the time being since I am not a civil lawyer, I handle only criminal cases," he said.

"It was our plan that in event of a criminal trial I would become chief counsel."

"I don't think Mr. Fensterwald's leaving will set Ray's plans back any," he said. "Plans are to still file our petition again before the appellate court."

frogging Soviet weapons to the long Jordan-Israel border, submerging the fundamental issue of returning the West Bank and inviting some Israeli response.

Equally ironic is the fact that Moscow is not likely to impose non-mobility limitations on its missiles for Amman, as Congress did. Nor would Moscow's sale of SAM to Jordan, probably at cut-rate prices, likely be the end of a new Soviet-Jordanian connection.

Yet, had the pro-Israel bloc in the U.S. Congress not savaged Hussein and his half-occupied country when the Hawk deal was first pressed by the Ford administration, the turn to Moscow would never have been contemplated by Hussein.

Congress required the Hawks to be paid for in cash, with no U.S. aid of any kind, and that the missiles be placed in fixed, immovable positions. For weeks such pro-Israel stalwarts as Republican Sen. Clifford P. Case of New Jersey tried to reduce the requested 14 batteries to less than half that number.

It was this series of humiliations to the king, who took so many grave political risks so often for his American friends, that persuaded him to seek weapons in Moscow when the cost of the U.S. deal skyrocketed beyond his reach.

No Soviet deal has yet been pinned down, but government officials here fear it probably will be on the king's June visit to the Kremlin or soon thereafter. If so, the dangerously soft-headed, pro-Israel politics so long in vogue in Capitol Hill will claim its greatest triumph: an invitation for a Soviet presence in hitherto forbidden territory and a devastating setback for all forces of moderation seeking a fair political settlement along the Jordan.

Five Accidents In Greenville

More than $5,600 property damage resulted from a series of five traffic collisions investigated by Police yesterday.

Officers said heaviest damage resulted from a 9 a.m. mishap on Dickinson Avenue East of the Westwood Drive intersection involving a car driven by Leota Jenkins Tyson of Route 8, Greenville.

Police reported the Tyson car collided with a sign then ran into a ditch, causing an estimated $2,200 damage to her car and injuring Mrs. Tyson and a passenger in her auto.

Damage to the sign was set at $25 by officers, who made no charges in connection with the mishap.

Tom Adams of 1302 Powell St. was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 9:11 a.m. collision at the intersection of Memorial Drive and N.C. 33.

Investigators reported the Adams car collided with an auto operated by William Robert Glover Jr. of Plymouth causing an estimated $800 damage to the Glover vehicle and $1,500 damage to the Adams car.

inch. Also, the cardboard matchbooks would have an extra catch to discourage children from opening them. Declaring that its proposals would "eliminate or reduce unreasonable risks of death or injury" from matchbooks, the safety agency said that in fiscal 1975 some 9,500 persons were treated in hospital emergency rooms for match-related injuries.

But the wage and price control noted that 97 per cent of those who went to hospitals for burns or related injuries were released after minor treatment. And although the safety agency cited concern about children playing with matches, the council said only 7.4 per cent of those treated at hospitals were children aged 5 or under.

Wooden matches would not fall under the new standards, which the safety commission has said may take until mid-1987 to implement. Stiff resistance is expected from the matchbook industry.

Defense Aims At Key Witness

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Defense attorneys for 10 men accused of smuggling heroin into the United States are trying to impugn the integrity of prosecution witnesses.

Sowing doubts with the jury will be the last thing that they try to do, as the trial of Leslie "Ike" Atkinson and his accused co-conspirators draws to a close.

Government prosecutor Joseph Dean, in his summation Wednesday, said that Atkinson and other others operated "a big business—a General Motors-sized business" in heroin.

Atkinson is a retired Army master sergeant and nearly all of the codendants are active or retired military enlisted men. The government contends that they used their military connections to smuggle heroin.

Most were stationed at one time or another in Thailand. There, according to prosecution witnesses, they purchased heroin for $4,100 per kilogram from Thai sources.

A kilogram of pure heroin, cut and recut for retail street sales, would be worth about $3 million, according to federal narcotics agents.

Prosecution testimony has put the amount smuggled by the conspirators at 166 kilograms. They allegedly used military mails and household furniture shipments to transport the heroin.

Defense attorney Howard Diller of New York was the first to speak after Dean's presentation. Diller said there was a conspiracy, but it did not involve the defendants.

He said the leader of the ring was not Atkinson but Freddie Clay Thornton, who was the prosecution's chief witness. He said Thornton's confederates were James Smedley and Luchai Ruviwat. All three of them were indicted, but Smedley and Ruviwat were detained by Thai authorities.

Thornton pleaded guilty and testified in return for a prosecution promise to ask Judge Franklin T. Dupree to give him probation instead of the 15-year sentence that each defendant faces.

Thornton, Diller said, was a degenerate who would lie if it suited his purposes. He said the jurors ought to acquit all 10 defendants to show the government it should not use such testimony.

Diller acknowledged that Atkinson's prints were on a heroin shipment. But he said that Atkinson pleaded guilty to that charge last year and is currently serving a 19-year sentence because of it.

The defense's testimony ended earlier Wednesday. Atkinson never took the stand in his own defense.

Cancer Linked With Estrogen

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — The drug estrogen, which emerged in the 1960s as a common cure for the miseries of menopause, probably is responsible for a dramatic increase in uterine cancer among middle-age women, say two research studies published today.

The studies show uterine cancer increased markedly in the 1970s and is closely linked with women who took estrogen during menopause.

The reports were published in the New England Journal of Medicine.

One of the studies, a statistical report, showed uterine cancer increased at least 40 per cent and as much as 150 per cent among middle-age women between 1969 and 1973. The rate of increase varied among sections of the country.

The researchers said the findings "give evidence for a rapid increase of a magnitude that has rarely been paralleled in the history of cancer reporting in this country."

Dr. Noel S. Weiss, who directed the statistical study at the University of Washington, said the use of estrogen has increased rapidly to treat the hot flashes, depression and irritability of menopause. Across the United States, the dollar value of the drug prescribed in 1973 was almost four times more than 10 years earlier, he said.

"The important point is that it makes it unlikely that the assertion can be made that the disease is due to some characteristic of the women rather than the medicine they are taking," he said in an interview.

The other study was directed by Dr. Thomas M. Mack of the University of Southern California. It concluded that there is "a high level of statistical significance" to the theory that estrogen causes uterine cancer.

The disease appeared from four to eight years after the women stopped using the drug, Mack said. Generally, the greatest risk of getting cancer was among those who took the largest doses over the longest periods, he said.

Sets Piano Recital

Elizabeth Braxton a student of Karen Hause, will present a recital of piano music Friday, June 4 at 8 p.m. in the Winterville Christian Church.

Miss Braxton has studied piano for eight years and has been a national winner in the National Piano Playing Auditions for three years. She will enter the ECU School of Music this fall.

A few of the selections to be presented at the recital are Prelude and Fugue No. 11 in c minor by Bach, Intermezzo, Op. 76, No. 2 by Brahms, and Valse, Op. 34 No. 2 by Chopin.

Evangelist Will Speak

Dr. West Shields, Jr. an evangelist of Greenville will be the guest speaker at Powell's Chapel Baptist Church in Scotland Neck Sunday at 6 p.m. The public is invited to the special service.

Wrongfully Billed Them

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Eighteen North Carolinians, most of them in the Charlotte and Gastonia area, complained to the state attorney general's office Tuesday that New York City had wrongfully billed them for parking violations.

Evidently, their current license plate number is the same as the plate of someone in years past, when the violations occurred.

The 18, who were asked to pay fines ranging from $40 to $355, said they either have never been in New York City, were there before the tickets were issued, or didn't have the license plates when the tickets were issued.

Mary Jane Owen, a consumer affairs specialist with the attorney general's office, said the North Carolinians are being told to ignore the bills. She said a staff attorney is asking New York officials to investigate where they got the information from.

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (AP) — The secrecy Martha Mitchell fought as one of President Richard M. Nixon's most outspoken critics enveloped her in death today at the request of her estranged husband, former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell.

Services were planned for today for Mrs. Mitchell, who won the nation's attention as a colorful, sometimes caustic critic of Nixon's administration.

She lay in state in a covered casket, but hundreds of residents of this Arkansas River community were kept outside locked doors of the funeral home at Mitchell's orders.

"Martha wouldn't have wanted it that way," said one disappointed woman Wednesday after she was turned away from the funeral home.

Entrance apparently was restricted to the family and at least one close friend.

Mitchell set down strict instructions that reporters covering the funeral remain in the back pews of the colonial-style Presbyterian Church during today's services.

The former attorney general, the couple's daughter and Mrs. Mitchell's son by a previous marriage were given front-row pews.

When asked about the tight security, funeral director Adam

Robinson said: "that's what he (Mitchell) asked for, and that's what I'm going to honor."

Mitchell refused to talk with reporters.

Mrs. Mitchell, 57, died Monday of a rare and painful form of bone cancer. She is the ninth person to be buried in the family plot and a spot was picked for her at the foot of her mother's grave beneath massive oak trees.

After the initial news of her death, this city began preparing for the homecoming of "their Martha."

The Pine Bluff Commercial characterized Mrs. Mitchell as having an "iron hand under a velvet glove." Many townspeople interviewed said they were proud of Martha Mitchell.

"The image she presented in Washington was one of a very dedicated American," said Ray West Sr. of Pine Bluff, a distant relative and long-time friend. "She has lots of friends here."

Grocery Shoppers Got Less In May

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
Supermarket shoppers got hit during May with the sharpest and most widespread price increases in well over a year, an Associated Press marketbasket survey shows.

The price boosts spread across the aisles, but hit hardest at the meat counter. Pork chops and frankfurters in particular rose sharply.

The AP drew up a random list of 15 commonly purchased food and nonfood items, checked the price at one supermarket in each of 13 cities on March 1, 1973, and has rechecked on or about the start of each succeeding month.

The latest survey, with the checks made just before the start of the holiday weekend, showed the marketbasket total increased at the checklist store in every city. The average boost was 4.2 per cent.

The last time the marketbasket bill went up in every city was in July 1974, when the average increase was 4 per cent. The latest boost was the steepest percentage rise since November 1974 when the marketbasket bill was up at the checklist store in 12 cities and the over-all average increase was 5.6 per cent.

The 1974 increases were caused mainly by soaring sugar prices; the May 1976 increases in many areas covered more basic items, including orange juice, butter, eggs and coffee as well as some meats.

Comparing current prices with those at the start of June 1975, the AP survey showed that the marketbasket total at the checklist stores was an average of 7.6 per cent higher than it was 12 months earlier.

Government officials have been warning that food prices, which remained stable during the first quarter of 1976, would start rising again. But they also have said that the rate of increase will be less than in 1975 when food prices went up 8.5 per cent.

The AP survey showed that pork prices, which rose to record highs last fall and then declined slightly as supplies increased temporarily, are on the increase again. The price of a pound of pork chops increased during May at the checklist store in nine of the cities checked and was unchanged in the remaining cities. Increases generally ranged from 10 to 30 per cent.

The high level of pork prices can be traced to the 1974 corn crop, which was smaller than expected. Farmers, unable to afford the high cost of grain, cut back the size of their herds.

Large crops have helped lower grain prices, and farmers are rebuilding their herds, but it will take time before the animals reach market.

Coming months also may bring decreases in beef prices. The American National Cattle-men's Association said its 19-city survey showed average retail beef prices in mid-May were 15 cents a pound higher than a month earlier.

The AP survey showed that during May, the price of a pound of meat frankfurters went up at the checklist store in seven of the cities checked. The price was down in four cities and unchanged in two.

GOOD PRICES

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — An economist at the Texas Agricultural Extension Service predicts good cotton prices this year. The economist attributes the forecast to low supplies on one hand and increased domestic and foreign consumption on the other.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market inched ahead again today in continued sluggish activity.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up 1.72 at 977.65 on top of Wednesday's 2.80-point gain.

Advances held a 5-3 lead over losers in the over-all count of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Brokers said many investors were holding back awaiting further evidence of the outlook for interest rates and inflation.

The Federal Reserve's weekly report on money and credit conditions was due at the close today.

And the May reading on wholesale price trends was expected from the government Friday morning.

Analysts said what strength the market was able to muster today stemmed largely from internal forces.

"The market has refused to give any additional ground this week after last week's large loss," commented Newton D. Zinder at E.F. Hutton & Co. "I think that has encouraged traders."

Cyprus Mines, the most active Big Board issue, rose 3/4 to 25 1/2. A 163,000-share block traded at 25 1/2.

Oil stocks did well, adding to their recent gains. Market-watchers noted that the group has attracted buyers amid signs of rising gasoline consumption.

Exxon, for example, climbed 3/4 to 103, moving to the verge of its all-time high of 103 1/2 reached three years ago.

The company, which announced plans for a 2-for-1 stock split last month, today raised wholesale gasoline prices by 1.3 cents a gallon.

Syrians Draw Protests From Beirut Moslems

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Lebanese Moslems and their Palestinian allies blockaded the streets of Beirut's Moslem quarters and closed all shops today to protest the Syrian invasion.

Two MIG17 Syrian jets streaked over the city, apparently on a reconnaissance mission. Witnesses said the planes flew at low altitude, and some gunmen dived for cover.

It was the first appearance of Syrian jets over Beirut since Syrian troops and tanks rolled across the eastern and northern Lebanese borders Tuesday to force peace on the warring Lebanese and preserve a Christian-Moslem balance of power.

The Syrian troops will be withdrawn from Lebanon when security is restored, Syrian Foreign Minister Abdel Halim Khaddam said in Paris. Khaddam met with French officials to discuss the Syrian intervention.

Khaddam said Syrian troops were sent into Lebanon "only with the aim of reestablishing peace and order in the country." Baghdad radio reported that Iraq has notified the Arab League that it opposes the invasion.

In Algiers, cabinet ministers from 17 nonaligned countries issued a communique upholding independence and territorial integrity for Lebanon.

In Cairo, a group of Palestinian and other Arab students occupied the Syrian Embassy to protest the intervention. Arab students in Moscow gathered in front of the Syrian Embassy carrying a poster reading "Hands Off Lebanon."

The invading force halted the 14-month-old civil war in northern and eastern Lebanon. Advance units at a mountain pass 20 miles east of Beirut were reported moving north in an apparent attempt to stop leftist Moslem forces shelling the fringes of the Christian enclave north of the capital.

Meanwhile, the Lebanese Moslems and Christians kept up sporadic street battles and artillery exchanges in Beirut during the night and in the nearby hill resorts. Security officials and hospitals estimated about 50 persons were killed and 80 were wounded.

Kamal Jumblatt, leader of leftist Lebanese forces, called a 24-hour general strike to protest the invasion. His troops set up street barricades of burning tires that halted traffic and most other activity on the streets of the Moslem quarters.

Palestinian guerrillas with Soviet AK47 assault rifles and hand grenades helped man the roadblocks. They turned back housewives, and bakeries, groceries and pharmacies were shuttered. Sidewalk vendors disappeared as the militiamen and guerrillas fired machine-gun volleys into the air.

The Independent newspaper An Nahar said Christian political leaders, who welcomed the Syrian invaders, were going to ask France to send troops to "balance and complement" the Syrian military intervention.

The newspaper said President Suleiman Franjeh, a Christian, scheduled a meeting with French Ambassador Hubert Argod to make the request.

Beirut was without electric power for the second day. The last of 12 high-tension lines supplying the capital and its suburbs was knocked out Wednesday, a government spokesman said.

"Unless a cease-fire is arranged to allow repair teams to put the line in order, Beirut will remain without power indefinitely," the spokesman said. "Of course, this also raises the specter of hunger because bakeries, refrigerators and many other facilities are not working."

British Pound Takes Licking

By ED BLANCHE
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — Britain's pound continued its slide today, dropping another two cents to a new low of $1.7010.

Political commentators predicted that the Labor government would ride out the crisis for at least two more weeks to insure union approval of the 4 1/2 per cent ceiling on wage increases.

Chancellor of the Exchequer Denis Healey declared in two television appearances Wednesday night that it would be foolish "to take measures which ... would bust the relationship between the government and the unions."

This in effect rejected growing demands from the business community and the Conservative opposition for sizable cuts in government spending to reduce government borrowing and help restore foreign confidence in the pound.

The British currency fell to a new low of $1.716 Wednesday, then recovered slightly to close at $1.7213.

The commentators said the government believes that if it reduced spending on welfare, schools, the medical service and other government programs, the 10-million-member Trades Union Congress, would not ratify the wage restraint ceiling when it meets June 16.

Union leaders agreed to the deal several weeks ago, but it needs TUC approval. Many unions have accepted the deal reluctantly, and there are strong indications that the 260,000 coal miners will reject it in a vote now being taken.

Healey in his television appearances appealed for calm. "The important thing is to keep our nerve and not panic because panic action now would do infinitely more damage than good," he declared in broadcasts at home and abroad.

Minor Problems From Weather

Pitt County suffered from severe wind and thunder storms Wednesday afternoon. Wind gusts were measured at 75 miles per hour at the Pitt-Greenville Airport at 5:15 p.m. and 1.72 inches of rain was measured by Greenville Utilities.

Wednesday's high temperature of 88 degrees recorded by the Greenville Utilities Department, dropped quickly in the afternoon to 65 degrees. The Thursday 8 a.m. temperature was recorded at 62 degrees and raining.

The wind and thunder storms caused a few minor electrical power outages in Greenville Wednesday night.

"We were extremely lucky in that we had very few outages and those that we did have were caused by maintenance problems," Malcolm Green Greenville Utilities Director said.

"We did have short outages in the Red Oak subdivision, the Bell Arthur area and Highway 43."

The Highway Patrol office reported no major traffic accidents in the area due to the storm and the Pitt County Fire Control office reported no major wind or lightning damage in the county due to the weather conditions.

Hays...

Chairman John J. Flynt, D-Ga., said it was necessary to close the proceedings because names in addition to those of Hays and Elizabeth Ray would be used and disclosing them could be damaging.

Flynt added: "There are some things and some words I don't want to use publicly."

But Rep. Charles F. Bennett, D-Fla., a member of the committee, said: "We're not really confronted with filthy, dirty, four-letter words. We're confronted with acts that can be described delicately."

House Majority Leader Thomas O'Neill urged Hays on Wednesday to temporarily relinquish his chairmanship of the House Administration Committee as well. O'Neill said if Hays refuses to step down voluntarily, he believes the House Democratic Caucus will strip him of the post when it meets June 16.

Meanwhile, the woman who made the charge against Hays, Elizabeth Ray, denied a Chicago Tribune report that says she told federal agents she tape recorded bedroom intimacies with 13 congressmen and two senators, and that she dated official White House photographer David Kennedy.

"I did not make any accusation like that at any time," Miss Ray told CBS News.

The Tribune, in a copyrighted story, said the recordings included: —"A well-known senator whose pillow talk in Miss Ray's apartment revolved around the adventures of his grandchildren...."

—"A congressman whose name is a household word who talked compulsively while he was with her...."

year-old woman to submit to bondage during his liaison." Asked what she would say to "the men in this town who are shaking in their boots" because of her revelations, Miss Ray replied: "Have no fear, gentlemen, I will not do anything to hurt you."

Kennery said he dated Miss Ray on one occasion two years ago. He said, "I'm probably the only single guy she ever went out with."

Miss Ray has said she was paid a $14,000-a-year government salary to work for Hays' administration committee, but had no duties except as Hays' mistress. Hays admitted he had a "personal relationship" with Miss Ray, but said she was paid to be and was a secretary.

Atlanta Gets The Lead Only To Have The Game Rained Out

By HOWARD SMITH
AP Sports Writer

The Atlanta Braves have the worst record in the majors and they may also have the worst luck.

Ask slugger Earl Williams. Williams clubbed home runs in the second and third innings Wednesday night as the Braves built a 5-0 lead against San Diego, and then watched it all go down the drain — the victim of an untimely Atlanta thunderstorm.

"How do you rationalize it?" asked a disgusted Williams after umpires called off the game in the fourth inning, just four outs short of being an official contest.

"It's a pain in the back. It's what you root for when you are losing by a lot and what you root against when you are ahead."

Elsewhere in the National League, Philadelphia dumped St. Louis 4-1, Pittsburgh beat Montreal 4-2, Los Angeles bombed San Francisco 11-3, Cincinnati shaded Houston 8-7 and Chicago beat New York 5-3.

Atlanta was the only city that got rained on Wednesday night and the Braves were the team that could least afford it. They are 17-30 so far, 12 games out of first place in the NL West.

Williams, off to a slow start, had shown signs of rounding into form and had his average up to .242. Then came the fireworks — then came the rain.

Phillies 4, Cardinals 1 — Lefty Tom Underwood tossed a five-hitter and contributed a two-run single as Philadelphia won its 13th straight road game and 19th in 23 games over-all. Dick Allen doubled home one run and Bob Boone singled in another. John Curtis, 3-5, lost it and Hector Cruz homered for the Cards.

Pirates 4, Expos 2 — Sacrifice flies by Richie Zisk in the eighth and Bob Robertson in the ninth helped Bruce Kison even his record at 4-4 with relief help from Dave Giusti. Woody Fryman, 6-3, lost it for Montreal which has dropped six straight. Manny Sanguillen had a single, double and triple for the winners.

Dodgers 11, Giants 3 — Rick Rhoden picked up his fourth victory without a loss and drove in four runs with two singles and a squeeze bunt for Los Angeles. Rhoden spaced 10 hits, including home runs by Dave Rader and Bobby Murcer. The Dodgers pounded out 18 base hits off John Montefusco, 6-4, and four relievers, including three each by Ron Cey and Dusty Baker.

Reds 8, Astros 7 — Cincinnati got a pair of runs in the seventh — Dan Driessen's RBI single and Joe Morgan's sacrifice fly — to go ahead for good in the see-saw contest. Will McEnany won it and Ken Forsch lost it, both in relief. Tony Perez knocked in three runs with a pair of singles for the Reds.

Rubs 5, Mets 3 — Chicago struck for four runs off Craig Swan, 2-5, in the fifth.

two of them on Manny Trillo's single. Bill Bonham, 4-2, went the distance with a nine-hitter to notch the Cubs' second complete game of the year. Rick Monday had three hits for Chicago which trails third-place New York by one game in the NL East. The Mets have dropped 10 of their last 12 games.

Homers Washed Down The Drain

By ED SHEARER
AP Sports Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — Earl Williams was obviously nervous. The Atlanta Braves' catcher had just smashed home runs in his first two trips Wednesday night against the San Diego Padres and was anxiously awaiting a rain delay to end.

"Let's talk about it later," Williams said. "I'm sitting on pins and needles."

He had 1 hour, 27 minutes to fret over it before the umpires finally called the game off with the Braves lead 5-0 only four outs away from an official ball game.

"How do you rationalize it?" Williams asked. "It's a pain in the back. It's what you root for when you are losing by a lot and what you root against when you are ahead."

It was especially exasperating for Williams, who entered this season full of hope only to find himself on the bench when the season opened. He got in a few games, usually at first base, but he had geared himself to catching.

He appeared to be back in the groove. In fact, the homers were his fifth and sixth of the year and gave him four in his last eight official at bats over a three-game span.

Someone asked if he could see anything good in the fact that at least he was now hitting the ball exceptionally well.

"I really can't see anything good in this rainout," he said. "There's nothing favorable in it. But there's nothing you can do about it."

The 1971 National League rookie of the year said he had only one solution to the problem of losing homers to rain — and these were the first he's lost in his career, he said.

"Maybe I'll try to wait until after the fifth inning from now on." That is the point when a game becomes official.

Williams was asked if he favored a rules change that would provide for no rainouts on games that got under way, merely classify them as suspended games to be continued from that point at a later date.

"That's the way it should be," chimed in Ken Henderson, a Braves' outfielder occupying the locker adjacent to Williams. "They ought to be suspended games."

Williams disagreed. "The rule's been the same for a hundred years. I'm sure it's happened to other guys. Now it's happen to me. There's nothing you can do about it."

Sobers Shines As Suns Beat Celtics To Even Playoff Series

PHOENIX (AP) — Ricky Sobers, Phoenix' "other" rookie, played like number one in Game Four of the National Basketball Association chamampionship series. And because of his performance, the underdog Suns, the longest shot in the 10-team field that began the NBA playoffs this season, beat the Boston Celtics 109-107 Wednesday night and tied the best-of-seven series 2-2.

Surprisingly, Sobers credited Boston's John Havlicek with helping him perform well ... not because of anything the Celtics' captain did in the game, but because of something he remembered the 36-year-old star saying on television.

The incident occurred during a telecast of a Boston game that Sobers was watching while he was at the University of Nevada-Las Vegas.

"I remember Havlicek saying that defense is the key to the game of basketball," said the 23-year-old Sobers, a defensive specialist. "He said the best way to get into the NBA was to know how to play defense, and ever since then I've been stressing defense."

Sobers took charge in the third period of Game Four. With Boston leading 71-70 midway through the quarter, the Suns reeled off 12 consecutive points, eight of them by the embattled rookie. Sobers also fed Keith Erickson for another basket during this spree.

The streak put the Suns ahead 82-71 — and they never trailed after that.

However, they did experience some scares. Eight times in the last period, Boston drew within two points — but each time, the inexperienced Suns, the team expected to crack under the intense pressure of a championship series, repulsed the threats.

"Pressure is a thing you put only upon yourself and you have to be oblivious to it," said the fiery Sobers.

Giles Heading Toward Title

By GEOFFREY MILLER
AP Sports Writer

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) — Vinny Giles scored a quick victory on a docile old course at St. Andrews today and marched on toward his target of winning the British Amateur Golf Championship for the second straight year.

Giles, a 33-year-old lawyer from Richmond, Va., defeated Sandy Dunlop of England 6 and 5 and was three under par over 13 holes. That took him into the last 16 of the tournament and he faced another match later in the day.

The weather was calm and sunny on the 6,914-yard, par 36-36-72 links, and Giles took advantage of it.

Dunlop presented the defending champion with the second and third holes by three-putting. Giles sank an 18-foot putt for a birdie at the sixth to go 3-up, and reached the turn in 35, one under par.

Seven other Americans were among the 32 golfers who started out in the fourth round.

Alan Pate of Mobile, Ala., led Norman Chesses of England all the way and won 3 and 2 to reach the last 16.

Pate, a bearded 23-year-old graduate of the University of Alabama, went out in two under 34 and was two holes up at the turn.

John Cain, a Houston stockbroker, came back from two holes down to defeat Bill Raymond of Scotland 2 and 1.

Raymond surged ahead with birdies at the first and third. Cain won the fourth and fifth with pars, and they stayed even until the 16th. The American won that with a par four and the match finished at the next hole where his opponent shot onto the road and made a bogey five.

Pirate pitchers Bob Moose and George (Doc) Medich and outfielder Bill Robinson are native Pennsylvanians.

Wins Putting Tournament

Jim Edmundson scored a 92 to win the $230 professional putters tournament held at the local Putt-Putt, last night.

Don Lewis finished second with a 94 and Ken Paramore took first in the novice division with a 99.

Here's something a soybean farmer can rely on.

Roger Walker

From almost invisible bugs, to hail stones big as your fist, when it comes to all the variables soybean farmers contend with, it's a wonder they have any crop at all.

Most times, it's just not enough to do a good days work. Things can just turn against you and your crop. That's why it's so important to have good weed control you can count on. And in this uncertain business of coaxing soybeans out of the ground, it's wise to rely on a tested and proven tool. Like a labeled Lasso® plus Lorox® tank mix, proven performance for many growers.

It's one of the best soybean tank mixes because Lasso plus Lorox controls many grasses like giant, green and yellow foxtails, fall panicum, and crabgrass. The tank mix also controls many tough weeds like smartweed, ragweed, and teaweed—even reduces buttonweed competition.

And you won't be experimenting with your soybean seedlings with Lasso plus Lorox. Its good crop tolerance has been proven by many farmers.

Lasso plus Lorox. Now, you can at least be sure of your weed control.

Lasso the herbicide to start with. And stay with.

Lasso is a registered trademark of Monsanto Company
Lorox is a trademark of E. I. DuPont de Nemours and Company

Davis Snaps Idle String Sparking California Victory

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer
Maybe Tommy Davis can't roll out of bed on Christmas morning and swing a mean bat, but he wasn't too bad on the evening of June 2 after two months of idleness.

The 16-year major league veteran, released by the New York Yankees just before the season started, signed on Wednesday with California. A few hours later he made his 1976 debut with a tie-breaking two-run pinch single in the eighth inning that sparked the Angels to a 5-2 victory over the Minnesota Twins.

"I hadn't worked out since spring training until this week-end after they called me about the possibility of coming back," the 37-year-old Davis said after collecting the 2,059th hit of his career. "I figure my days are numbered, but I thought I could do the job for four months."

In other American League action, the New York Yankees whipped the Boston Red Sox 7-

2, the Baltimore Orioles outlasted the Cleveland Indians 2-0 in 14 innings, the Chicago White Sox nipped the Texas Rangers 1-0 in 11, the Kansas City Royals edged the Oakland A's 4-3 in 12 and the Detroit Tigers downed the Milwaukee Brewers 6-4.

Davis was supposed to start work with a record promotion company in Los Angeles this week. However, he received a call from Angels general manager Harry Dalton last Friday and decided to resume his playing career.

"It wasn't tough coming back to baseball," he said after delivering his clutch hit on a 2-2 curve from Minnesota reliever ace Bill Campbell.

Dave Chalk drove in the other three California runs with a two-run single in the second inning and a sacrifice fly following Davis' hit.

Yankees 7, Red Sox 2
Ed Figueroa hurled a four-hitter and the Yankees chased Boston starter Dick Pole in piling up a 6-0 second-inning lead.

The Yankees scored five times in the second on four walks, a hit batter, a run-scoring wild pitch and only two hits, one of them Chris Chambliss' two-run single. Cecil Cooper accounted for Boston's runs with a sixth-inning homer.

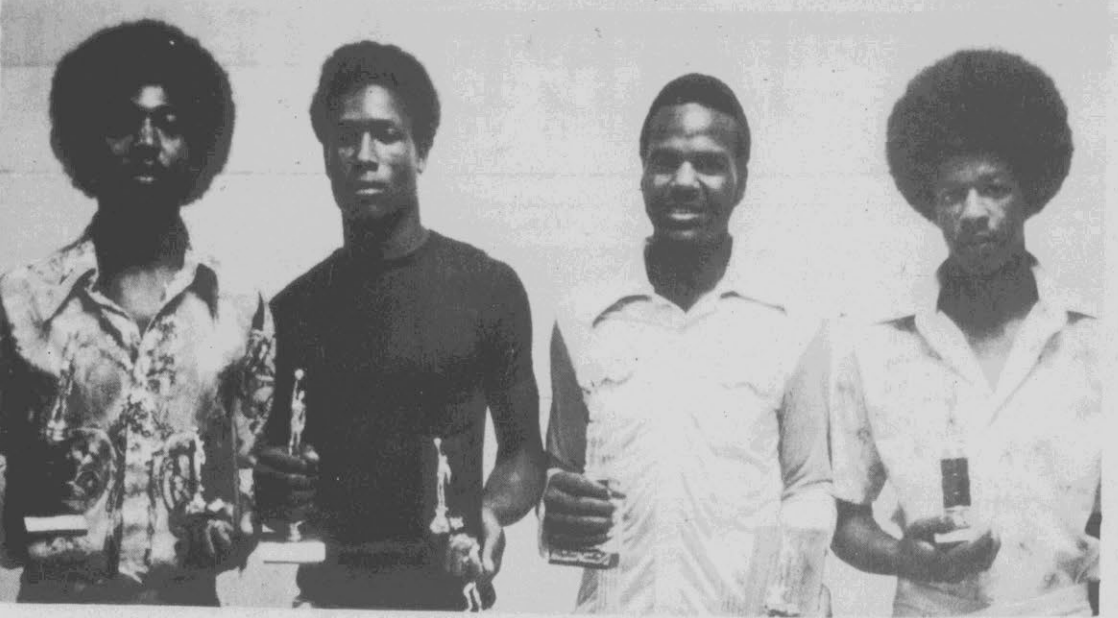

Orioles 2, Indians 0
Lee May crashed a two-run homer in the 14th inning off Cleveland reliever Tom Buskey following a single by Reggie Jackson. Jim Palmer and Wayne Garland combined for an eight-hit shutout, the first against the Indians this season. The drive by May negated a two-hit pitching performance by Cleveland's Jackie Brown. Dave LaRoche and Buskey through the first 13 innings.

White Sox 1, Rangers 0
Jorge Orta's single with the bases loaded in the bottom of the 11th produced the game's only run and ended a string of 24 consecutive scoreless innings by loser Jim Umberger. The White Sox loaded the bases on Jim Essian's double, a sacrifice and a pair of intentional walks. Chicago starter Bart Johnson gave up just three hits in nine innings.

Royals 4, A's 3
John Mayberry's sacrifice fly in the 12th inning scored Amos Otis with the winning run. Otis opened the 12th by drawing a walk off Rollie Fingers and George Brett singled for his fourth hit of the game, moving Otis to third. Mayberry then hit a long fly to score the run.

Kansas City had tied the game in the ninth on a walk to Fred Patek, a sacrifice by Frank White and a long sacrifice fly by Tony Solaita that scored Patek all the way from second base. The A's had taken a 3-2 lead in the seventh inning on Sal Bando's two-run homer.

Tigers 6, Brewers 4
Willie Torton drove in two runs with a single and a sacrifice fly and Ben Oglivie hit a two-run inside-the-park pinch homer as Detroit posted its fourth consecutive victory over Milwaukee in the five-game series. Oglivie's home run came in the eighth inning and provided Detroit's winning margin. Brewers starter Jim Colborn, 2-7, lost his sixth straight game while Detroit starter Vern Ruhle raised his record to 4-1.

Brewer Leading NAIA Golf

BURLINGTON, N.C. (AP) — First round leader Will Brewer carried a nine-hole 34 onto the Alamance Country Club course today as second round play was completed in the NAIA national golf championships, prior to getting the third round under way.

Second round action was suspended Wednesday by rain with about one-third of the field still on the course. With completion of the second round, the field was to be cut by half for the third round in the afternoon.

Brewer, of David Lipscomb in Nashville, Tenn., shot a three under par 68 Tuesday for the first round lead and his 34, one under for the club's back nine which he played first, left him in good shape to maintain his lead.

Smith Cancels Practice

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Olympic basketball coach Dean Smith called off this morning's practice session to let the candidates for the American team rest and recover.

After four arduous days of drills in the mornings and scrimmages at night, Smith said the 48 players left at the tryouts needed a break.

Elon held the team lead with a score of 294, but U. S. International and Gardner-Webb, on the basis of rounds completed Wednesday, appeared to be mounting a charge on the leader.

Sam Houston was second at 296 and U. S. International was tied with Pembroke State at 297 for third after the opening round of the 72-hole tournament, which ends Friday.

Only four players shot par or better Wednesday among those who finished play before the rains came.

Dan Sheffer of Florida Atlantic shot a 68 and three players were tied at 71. They were Chuck Waters of Elon, Terry Schaumleffel of Taylor and John Barry of St. Bernard.

Soloman Looking For First Win

By JOHN VINOCUR
Associated Press Writer
PARIS (AP) — His last match produced one thrown racket, a beanballed ball boy, three soda bottles smashed in rage and an official dumped into the hedges. Harold Solomon still is driving opponents crazy, but now he says there's a new line in his routine as tennis' premier torturer and mind-bender.

The master of the moon-ball and junk shot, who has driven enough opponents deep into trembling frustration to rank No. 7 in the United States, thinks he can win his first big tournament at the French Open.

"This is the place," said Solomon, the 23-year-old from Silver Spring, Md. "I like everything about it."

Everything means the slow, de-pressurized balls that just about remove the top spin from the big hitters' drives, and the equally slow red clay that dulls their services and weighs down their legs.

Solomon, who entered the third round of competition today against Sashi Menon of India, just smiled when he heard that Kim Warwick, the Australian, got a little upset about losing to him Tuesday and was lined $100 for his self-control problems.

"I don't deliberately set out to drive a guy crazy," said Solomon. "But I understand it. I work them so hard. It's a cumulative process. They do most of the running. The big guys know with me that they have to stay out there all day. They've got to work and work and work. They say they've got to bring their lunch and bed roll to the court. A lot of guys don't want to pay the price to beat me. You need an unbelievable amount of mental determination to do it."

At 5-foot-6, Solomon says his technique developed from his size, which eliminated any chance at the Arthur Ashe-John Newcombe-Stan Smith type big game.

Solomon beat Ashe in the World Championship Tennis tournament in Dallas, has done in Ilie Nastase, and went out to Bjorn Borg here in the semifinals two years ago.

Other matches involving seeded players today include Borg against Hans Kary of Austria, Eddie Dibbs of North Miami, Fla., the second most irritating player after Solomon, against Hans Pohmann of West Germany, and Adriano Panatta of Italy against Jun Kuki of Japan.

Bold Forbes Is Favored

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Bold Forbes, fast and lucky, is set to close out the tough Triple Crown series as the favorite to win the Belmont Stakes Saturday.

"In this kind of racing you have to have luck to keep your horses sound," said trainer Laz Barrera, who saddled Bold Forbes for the Kentucky Derby and Preakness.

The only other Belmont probable who is a veteran of the first two Triple Crown races was Play The Red, a disappointing eighth in the Derby but a solid second in the Preakness.

Others expected to be entered today for the 1 1/2-mile classic at Belmont Park were Howard P. Wilson's Great Contractor, Ogden Mills Phipps' Majestic Light, Mrs. Douglas Carver's McKenzie Bridge and Christiana Stable's Best Laid Plans.

Among the missing will be Honest Pleasure, the beaten favorite in the 1 1/4-mile Derby and the 13-16-mile Preakness, and Elocutionist, third in the Derby and the winner of the Preakness. Honest Pleasure is being rested while Elocutionist, who was pointed for the Belmont, suffered a wrenched ankle.

Johnny Campo, who tains Play The Red for Max Gluck, felt that Elocutionist, not Bold Forbes, would have been the horse to beat and that the Preakness winner's injury boosts his colt's chances of making the $150,000-added Belmont the first stakes win of a 15-race career.

Strange Planning To Turn Pro

By GEOFFREY MILLER
AP Sports Writer

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) — Curtis Strange, bumped out of the British Amateur Golf Championship for the second straight year, may have played in the old tournament for the last time.

"By this time next year I may be a professional," said the 21-year-old stroker-maker from Virginia Beach, Va.

"If I am still an amateur I shall be back, but I am going to turn professional some time and my plans are very open at the moment."

Strange decided to be a pro after finishing 14th in this year's Masters at Augusta, Ga. He was favored to win the British Amateur title on the old course at St. Andrews, but like last year, he was beaten in the second round — this time by Tommy Cochran, a 23-year-old Scottish printer who took a week's holiday to play in the big tournament.

How does a man who outscored some of the world's top pros at Augusta fail so regularly in the British Amateur, where many of the competitors just play golf for fun on the weekend?

"Well, that's match play," Strange said. "There are days when you do not play well. One bad round, and you are out."

"On this occasion, my opponent putted very well, and I did not make any putts at all."

Cochran won 3 and 2 after pulverizing Strange by rolling in two fantastic putts from 30 yards.

The formula of match play and head-to-head knockout wrecked the organizing committee's plans for the quarter-finals. After two rounds, only three of the eight seeded players were left in contention.

These included two Americans — Vinny Giles, the defending champion from Richmond, Va., and Dick Siderowf, the 1973 champion from Westport, Conn.

Giles had a tough time Wednesday against Michael Miller, another of Scotland's multitude of talented amateur golfers.

Giles said he covered the first eight holes of the 6,914-yard par-72 course "about as well as I know how to play."

He was three holes up on Miller at that stage but in the end he won by only one hole.

Siderowf, 38, did a good day's work with victories over two Englishmen — by 6 and 4 over Michael Reece and by one hole over Ian Porteous.

Female Jockeys Have Hard Time Getting Good Mounts

HALLANDALE, Fla. (AP) — Donna Hillman says she is quitting her career as a thoroughbred jockey because if women riders don't cooperate sexually, they wind up riding "impossible horses no one else would touch."

The 27-year-old told the Sun-Sentinel she is returning to California to train and possibly breed horses and write a book exposing tracks as "a hooker's paradise."

"I came into the game with a great attitude," she said. "But slowly, it's turned into a bitter one. If you don't cooperate sexually, you don't get the mounts. It's that simple."

"I'm not saying they (trainers) are all that way," said Miss Hillman, who has combined her six-year riding career with TV commercials and modeling. "But there's enough that they're ruining the sport."

"There are more women coming on the track today who have made a lot of wrong moves to obtain their mounts. In return, they've made it tougher on the others."

"Many times a trainer will say, 'Sure, I'll ride you on one of my horses. I've got a lot of horses you can ride, if you'll have dinner with me tonight.' It was well understood by everyone what he meant."

Miss Hillman was the leading percentage rider at Delaware Park in 1972 and at Atlantic City in 1973 and claims if she were a man, "I'd be a leading rider today. I would have had all the shots in the world. I'd never have run into the problem."

She said, "Ninety per cent of racing is a good mount. It's the good mounts that make a name for a rider. You wouldn't believe the bums I've ridden. Impossible horses no one else would touch. Very seldom did I get a chance to ride a horse that belonged in the field he ran in." Eliza Chase, 26, now racing at Calder, agreed with Miss Hillman. "It's there from the day you want onto the track," she said. "There are trainers who made it clear they wouldn't talk to me unless I talked to them the way they wanted to talk. You just laugh at it, ignore it and go on." Miss Hillman explained, "Sure, I could have complained to the racing commission. But what good would that have done? I'd only have been labeled a troublemaker and then nobody would have let me have a mount. If I knew in the beginning what I know now I never would have gotten into the business."

Chapman, Morris Win Member-Guest

Wayne Chapman and Urquit Morris won a Member-Guest tournament held this past weekend at the Brook Valley Golf Club.

In second place were Tommy Little and Harold McClain. Third went to Bill Tripp and Alley Hart.

In the first flight, first place went to Lee Alcorn and Charles Fiveash, second to Allen Adams and Tom Powers, third to Skip Collier and Bruce Sauter. John Ward and Reid Joyner won the second flight with Mac MacKenzie and Bobby Orr second and Butch Grubbs and Ed Honeycutt third.

Charles Rose and David Womack won the third flight with Van Harrington and Tom Dixon second and Doug Morgan and Dan Kinlaw third. First place in the fourth flight went to Ted Hall and Mike McMillan. Kelly Kee and Jordan Best won second and Joe Hallow and Don Mattox third.

Louis Clark shot a 79 for his best round ever and Harry Hastings a 78 at Brook Valley for his best. Janet McGlohn carded a 97 for her best score.

All Kincaid, An East Carolina Assistant football coach recently scored a double eagle on the 490-yard par five second using a driver and a two iron. He was playing with his father, Paul Kincaid and Ken Smith ECU Sports Information Director.

There will be a junior tourney at Brook Valley June 8 at 4:30. Boys and girls should report to the Pro Shop by 4:15. Junior Clinics will be held June 16, 17, and 18 for children 8-18.

Interested persons may sign up in the pro shop before June 16. A Jack and Jill Twilight Spectacular will be held June 17 beginning at 5:30. Details are posted at the club and sign-ups should be before noon, June 17.

Sports Shorts

By The Associated Press CAMBRIDGE, Ohio (AP) — Marcia Smoke has retired, but a handful with Olympic experience will lead a field of 300 in the U.S. Olympic canoe and kayak trials the next two weekends at Salt Fork State Park.

Smoke, who won a bronze medal in the Tokyo games 12 years ago, has retired from the sport. However, those with Olympic experience in the competition in the next two weeks include Andy Weigand and Roland Muhlen, sixth in the two-man kayak in the Munich games four years ago; Nancy Leahy of Dundak, Md., and Sperry Rademaker of Floral City, Fla.

Twelve spots on the American Olympic team will be settled this weekend. The remaining five will be decided the following weekend at the state lake in eastern Ohio.

The Olympic qualifying this weekend will be spread over Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

ATLANTA (AP) — Biff Pocaroba of the Atlanta Braves will be out of action for three weeks with a fractured right knee suffered this week while catching Dick Ruthven in the bullpen, the National League club announced Wednesday.

Pocaroba, who had been handling most of the catching chores for Atlanta, was hitting .230 with seven runs batted in.

Anderson said he is inclined not to watch his language and his coaches avoid him during the games fearing their words will be picked up.

Anderson said he uttered a few expletives during Saturday's game with Los Angeles. He did it again Monday during the game with the Astros at Houston, but fortunately the microphone had gone dead.

"Klu (batting coach Ted Kluszewski) was standing next to me and was afraid to say anything and George Scherger stayed down at the other end of the dugout like I had the plague," Anderson said.

ATLANTA (AP) — Former major league pitcher Larry Jaster has been hired as a pitching coach for the Atlanta Braves' farm club at Savannah. Jaster pitched six seasons in the major leagues with St. Louis, Montreal and Atlanta. His hiring was announced Wednesday.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Phillies activated catcher Johnny Oates Tuesday and optioned catcher Tim Blackwell to their Reading farm team in the Class AA Eastern League.

Oates broke his collar bone in a home plate collision with Pittsburgh's Dave Parker on opening day, April 10, at Veterans Stadium.

Blackwell, acquired from the Boston Red Sox, appeared in two games for the Phillies and had one hit in five at-bats.

LEANING—This old barn, blown by the wind for years, has finally given away and begun leaning. Its boards are bent with time and a few are missing, here and there. For this Martin County barn the days are numbered; one hard gust could mean the end. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest.)

All-Student Circus In 180 Performances

By DONALD SANDERS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—It's a little unusual to find a young woman clown who is also a practicing electrician or another, a chemical engineering student, delivering a circus bally or spiel.

This is Circus Kirk, which bills itself as the only all-student tented circus, which plans more than 180 one-night performances in nine states this summer.

He said, "There's a daily challenge in which there are immediate goals and satisfactions. We do not have the caste system that exists in other circuses—here everybody has a job. We place a good deal of responsibility on the individual, and long about the second week things fall into place."

Some Agencies Up Paper Work

By DON KENDALL
Associated Press-Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—Some government agencies are reducing their public questionnaires in response to White House orders to cut such paperwork, but other agencies actually have increased the number of their forms.

campaign began. And by March 31, HEW had increased its reports eight-tenths of 1 percent to 966 from 958.

Other major agencies which also increased their reports during the five-month period included the Commerce Department, 574 to 577; the Justice Department, 166 to 167, and the State Department, 31 to 32.

Over-all, about 50 departments, independent agencies and other offices are involved in the White House campaign to reduce public paperwork 10 percent by June 30.

The Department of Transportation was the only major agency that met or exceeded Ford's reduction goal by March 31, trimming its reports 11 percent from 299 to 266, according to the review.

Last Oct. 31, these units were regularly circulating 5,133 such forms. The goal is to reduce them to 4,637.

The Agriculture Department, which ranked second only to HEW in original volume, had cut its questionnaires about 5.1 percent, from 794 to 754.

But a recent report by the Office of Management and Budget in the White House said that by March 31 the reports still totaled 5,012 or a reduction of only 2.7 percent from last fall.

Some of the new government forms include a new USDA annual report to determine the progress of providing school meals to needy children in cities of 100,000 or more.

When Ford announced his campaign last fall to reduce the reports, he said that "American citizens are understandably exasperated by the complexity of reporting to the federal government." The President directed that agencies produce "prompt results" in reducing the volume of reports.

The Interior Department started a new questionnaire to find out more about the use of helium, and in the Defense Department, officials started one for gathering information about scrap paper.

One reason that progress has been slow is that new reports keep cropping up. For example, the OMB analysis said that in March some 147 forms were abandoned by the federal bureaucracy. But between March 16 and April 15, 79 new ones were put in operation.

Fear Halts Laboratory Work

By PIET BENNETT
Associated Press Writer
Fear has halted Dr. Thomas Corbett's research into polychlorinated biphenyl or PBB.

"I just can't in good conscience ask our lab workers to expose themselves any more. We have deferred all studies for the time being because we're afraid to get near the stuff," Corbett said.

The researcher, who is employed by the Veterans Administration and the University of Michigan Medical School, said his work with rodents fed PBB two years ago gave him "plenty of reason to suspect it can cause cancer in humans. But there is no proof."

Another top medical official takes a another view. "We cannot define a syndrome that is clearly attributable to PBB," said Dr. John Isbister, disease control officer for the Michigan Department of Public Health.

Corbett and Isbister represent the wide difference of opinion remaining almost three years after the chemical fire retardant was introduced into Michigan's food chain. PBB was spread across Michigan when it accidentally was mixed into livestock feed during 1973.

probably more not known than is known about PBB," Isbister said.

The first full-scale effort to check the chemical's effect upon humans has not begun. Isbister said that study, under the auspices of the National Cancer Institute, should begin about July 1 and may last 10 to 15 years.

"We don't know for sure whether these chemicals will cause cancer in humans for at least 10 years. It may take 20 years ... Cancer is a long-term disease," Corbett said.

"This is like thalidomide (a drug which caused widespread birth defects in the 1960s). We've got a problem here," said Dr. David Salvati. The Big Rapids physician said he is treating about 150 patients with problems they blame on PBB.

Both Corbett and Salvati said they also fear the chemical may cause birth defects. But they stressed far more research is needed.

Corbett's work with mice and rats gave hints PBB may cause both cancer and birth defects. But he cautioned his research was limited. Now, he has halted PBB work until new protective equipment reaches his lab.

Based upon his findings, Corbett said he expressed concern nearly two years ago at meetings with the state Agriculture Department and Michigan Farm Bureau. "My warnings were ignored," he said.

Isbister said Corbett's research, which involved doses up to 1,000 parts per million, "was much higher than animals got in this accident."

George Fries, a U.S. Department of Agriculture researcher who first confirmed PBB in the feed, said he found up to 4,000 parts per million in some samples.

Isbister also contended rodents eat a far greater portion of their feed compared with their body weight than do large animals. He insisted no cause-effect relations between high doses of PBB and illnesses has been established conclusively.

Corbett agreed he noted varying reactions to the same-sized doses of PBB and "we just don't know how to explain this."

One possibility is that the PBB contained other chemicals. A Harvard researcher found 25 parts per million of naphthalene in samples of PBB. That chemical was blamed for a widespread livestock poisoning in the 1940s.

But Isbister said that incident came after cattle licked oil from farm machinery. He said the oil contained "a hell of a quantity" of naphthalene.

Corbett said the symptoms of that so-called "X disease" later traced to naphthalenes were similar to those reported by some Michigan farmers with herds contaminated by PBB.

He also noted that Firemaster, the brand name Michigan Chemical Co. used for its PBB product, was mixed under varying conditions and that could indicate it contained different mixtures of chemicals in addition to PBB.

During a recent tour of PBB-tainted farms, Corbett reported spotting many persons with skin problems "more severe than I would normally expect."

"These deserve intensive investigation. This could be a condition called chloracne, which is seen with exposure to chemicals. And this has not been studied."

But Corbett added: "My main concern is, what's going to happen to the cancer rate in this state 10 or 20 years from now? If the material is carcinogenic in humans, the major damage has already been done."

He noted finding answers to PBB's impact upon humans requires "a lot of animal studies. They should have started immediately."

During June of our Nation's Bicentennial, a very special celebration will take place throughout the Southeast. Dairy farmers and the entire dairy industry will join together with consumers to celebrate June Dairy Month 1976 under the theme "Milk Keeps America Strong."

Although milk production and promotion takes place all year long, since 1937, June has been set aside for a special salute to the dairy farmers and dairy industry that help keep our Nation strong.

Dairying was one of the first industries in our Nation's history. Throughout the years the dairy industry has made major contributions to keeping our country strong. This year, special recognition will be given to the product, the people, and the industry that has played a major part in the development of the United States.

The dairy farmers help keep us strong by providing a major food we need to continue our Nation's food supply, and keep us free from dependence on foreign sources. Milk and dairy products help keep us strong through their unique nutrition contribution to our diets. And the dairy industry helps keep America strong by providing jobs, paying taxes, and helping the farmers operate efficiently to provide consumers an adequate supply of high quality milk without seasonal shortages.

Millions of consumers will no doubt hear and see the message "Milk Keeps America Strong" during June of this year. June will be a time to pay a special tribute to this very important industry. It will be a time to salute the dairy industry's contribution during the past 200 years, and recognize its potential contributions during the next 200 years.

Pollution Is Becoming Threat

MURRELLS INLET, S.C. (AP)—Contaminated water is threatening the shellfishing industry and seafood restaurants in this Georgetown County community along South Carolina's Grand Strand, according to the South Carolina Department of Health and Environmental Control.

Agency officials have said in a statement that the bacteria count in the waters around Murrells Inlet continues to rise and could result in the closing of oyster and clam fishing areas. Most of the restaurants in the area serve fish caught at or near the inlet.

Shellfishing already is limited in certain spots along the Grand Strand, which runs from Little River, near the North Carolina border to Pawley's Island.

The contamination is caused by worsening sewage disposal problems, resulting from road building and other development along the strand, officials say.

Shellfish that have lived in contaminated water tend to store bacteria and other pollutants, making them dangerous to eat. The fish are capable of transmitting typhoid, hepatitis and dysentery, officials say.

Construction of modern sewage treatment plants would solve the contamination problem, the DHEC statement said. Septic tanks and other smaller forms of waste treatment are inadequate for congested and environmentally sensitive areas, it said.

DRIVING UP TO THE LEAN-IN WINDOW—At the drive-in window of a bank, what do you do? That's a silly question, you drive in. Even if you are riding in an Amish buggy? Yep. And if the wheels are so much wider than the seat that you must lean at a dangerous angle? Then you simply brace yourself against the window ledge and lean. (AP Wirephoto)

No U. S. Help For Mercenary

KENSINGTON, Md. (AP) — Daniel Gearhart, a 34-year-old Vietnam veteran, left his wife, four children and a mounting stack of bills last February to fight for pro-Western forces in Angola's civil war.

After less than a week in the war, Gearhart disappeared. His whereabouts were a mystery until April 1 when the victorious Soviet-backed revolutionary government of Angola announced he had been captured.

Gearhart and another captured American mercenary, Gary Acker of Sacramento, Calif., are scheduled to stand trial June 8 before a "people's revolutionary tribunal" in Angola. The State Department says there is "absolutely nothing the U.S. government can do" to bail them out.

Gearhart and Acker disappeared near the Zaire border while fighting for the National Front for the Liberation of Angola (FNLA).

In Kensington, a suburb of Washington, D.C., Sheila Gearhart waited in the three-bedroom home on a pleasant tree-lined street for word of her husband's fate. The money her husband had promised to send her never arrived, so she applied for welfare.

"I had almost accepted the fact that I would never see him again," Mrs. Gearhart said. "And then April 1, bam, your husband's been captured."

The new Angolan government said 13 captured mercenaries, including two Americans, would be tried by a 30-member "international free jury" composed of Angolans and their African and Cuban supporters.

Three weeks later, the Angolans said the trial would be conducted instead by an Angolan "people's revolutionary tribunal." They identified Gearhart and Acker as two of the defendants.

Gearhart's predicament has been extremely delicate for the U.S. government, which has no diplomatic relations with the Communist-backed government in Angola.

A State Department spokesman said that the government is relying on the International Red Cross to protect the prisoners' interests. To date, however, not even the Red Cross has seen the captured men.

A spokesman for the Central Intelligence Agency, which spent millions of dollars in Angola, said it has no information on the prisoners and "has only mild interest in the matter."

It is illegal to recruit mercenaries in the United States. It is also illegal for an American citizen to leave the country to fight in a foreign army, and conviction carries a $1,000 fine and up to three years in jail.

"There is absolutely nothing the U.S. government can do. They went over there in violation of American law and they happened to get caught," the State Department spokesman said.

Private Eye At Age 13

SEATTLE (AP) — Doug Poth is one 13-year-old who doesn't come to the door selling baseball raffle tickets or asking if he can mow the lawn.

When Doug comes to the door, he's more likely to be looking for a stolen television or serving a subpoena.

The quiet, 5-foot, red-haired boy is a licensed private detective. His private eye father, Jerry Poth, put Doug to work when he was 3.

"Dad took me with him so we could get into a house where some stolen goods were supposed to be," he said. "He asked if I could use the bathroom, and while I was there he found two stolen TV sets in the living room."

Doug's father encouraged him to get his investigator's license "to wake up those phony senators in Olympia (the state capital)," the elder Poth said.

In most states, licensees have to pass a written exam, but in Washington "there's no age limit and no special qualifications required," Poth said. "I think that's a shame."

He said the legislature has since taken a good look at the licensing law. Some changes are in the offing.

"It could be kind of a hassle if there were a lot of little kid detectives around," Poth said.

Doug can investigate areas where an adult would be too conspicuous. He worries sometimes that publicity will ruin his advantage.

"The kids at school all know what I do, and they think it's neat. I guess I do, too," he said. "But it would be hard to investigate something there now."

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Get at tasks awaiting your attention early and do them in a clever and interesting manner, using your own ingenuity. Later you need to pay more attention to the small chores that require your best efforts to handle sensibly.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Be conscientious in handling duties of any nature whatever. Improve your health through proper treatments, also. Be conservative.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Visit beauty or barber shop so you can make a fine impression on others later. Accept any worthwhile social invitation for the evening.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get rid of those accumulated small tasks. Streamline your living and be happier. Improve home and establish harmony with kin.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Keep busy at errands and shopping so you can handle your daily routines more intelligently in the days ahead.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Study your assets, and plan how to repair and add to them wisely. Get rid of whatever may be draining your assets. Take it easy tonight.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Good day to repay social obligations and show you appreciate favors done you by others. This gains goodwill for the future. Improve appearance to impress others. Be charming.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Get rid of stumbling blocks in the path of progress in daily routines and have time for more important activity as well.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Get the aid of a good friend early for some cherished aim. Join with good friends; the social can bring progress now.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Handle business and public affairs with the aid of influential persons for good results. Take care of vital credit matter.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Some new contact can be of great help to you, so be sure to get in touch with this person early in the day.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Carry through with your responsibilities intelligently. Showing more thought and devotion for your mate pays off handsomely and gets fine response in p.m.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You can handle any association matters in a most clever way now and in detail and come to fine understanding with partners.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be able to study any situation thoroughly and master details before acting on it and then will get fine results. Slant the education toward professions that require the ability to investigate and then reduce to workable levels. Teach early to look into the policy behind every situation. Give good religious training early to set the life on the right course.

No Challenges Left For Eddy Arnold

By JOE EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — For legendary Eddy Arnold, there are no goals left.

"I hate to say it, but there's no more," said Arnold, 58, who's sold some 70 million records in a 30-year career.

"Sure, I'd like to have another hit. But I've been everywhere they said a country boy could never go. I've been to Carnegie Hall, the Waldorf Astoria, Vegas. That sounds dull, but I've done everything.

"Right now I'm doing as little as possible, and that's the way I want it. I still do the Nevada scene and have been doing the theater-in-the-round I could quit entirely, but probably wouldn't be happy."

Arnold recently returned to RCA records and another single, "Cowboy," has just been released.

"I still get a big thrill out of singing," he said. "It feeds a hunger in me."

His impact on the music industry has been overwhelming. In the early days of television some 25 years ago, he exposed country music to the masses.

And he crossed into the pop field more consistently than anyone before him.

Since his first smash hit in 1947, "I'll Hold You In My Heart," he's seen the public's musical taste expand.

"The musical tastes have broadened — homogenized is a good word. People used to never dream of a country boy having violins behind him."

Pop music, he said, has no young superstar.

"Today there's no one young hot pop singer coming along. There's no young Andy Williams, Eddie Fisher, Steve Lawrence or Jack Jones. There used to be a young, All-American type every year. That's a tremendous change to me."

"There's no more Tin Pan Alley. The public taste has changed. It's either rock or country."

His advice to young singers: be business-oriented.

"This is a business. It's no lark. Get a good accountant, a good lawyer, a good manager, and listen to them. And be on time."

"I grew into my role; I think I learned to live with my success. If I had had a million seller right off, it would have destroyed me. I wasn't ready for a million seller."

His image causes him problems.

"You cannot satisfy all the people. They have an image of me. Some people think I'm Billy Graham's half brother, but I'm not. I want people to get his hero thing off their mind and just let me be."

"I cross the country and pop lines. If I like it, I like it. I just do my best and go to bed."

Most of his thoughts, though, don't concern the music industry. The overriding concern in his life is his 27-year-old son who suffered brain damage in a traffic accident five years ago.

"I spend about 90 per cent of my time dealing with him," Arnold said.

"There's no more Tin Pan Alley. The public taste has changed. It's either rock or country."

His advice to young singers: be business-oriented.

"This is a business. It's no lark. Get a good accountant, a good lawyer, a good manager, and listen to them. And be on time."

"I grew into my role; I think I learned to live with my success. If I had had a million seller right off, it would have destroyed me. I wasn't ready for a million seller."

His image causes him problems.

"You cannot satisfy all the people. They have an image of me. Some people think I'm Billy Graham's half brother, but I'm not. I want people to get his hero thing off their mind and just let me be."

"I cross the country and pop lines. If I like it, I like it. I just do my best and go to bed."

Most of his thoughts, though, don't concern the music industry. The overriding concern in his life is his 27-year-old son who suffered brain damage in a traffic accident five years ago.

"I spend about 90 per cent of my time dealing with him," Arnold said.

The bidding:
West North East South
1 ♦ Pass Pass Dble.
Pass 2 ♥ Pass 2 NT
Pass 3 NT Pass Pass

Opening lead: Queen of ♠.

There are times when, to set up your long suit, it can be of crucial importance to lose the lead to the "safe" hand at the critical moment.

South's technique on this deal was noteworthy.

North-South bid well to reach their optimum contract. Note that South chose to double at his first turn—a bid of one no trump in a passout seat denotes a hand of fewer than 16 points; in fact, it might be made on a count as low as 12. When South bid no trump at his next turn, he was announcing a hand as good as an opening no trump bid, and North had just enough to go on to game.

After West led the top of his spade sequence, declarer took time out to review the situation. He had only six fast tricks, and the other three tricks would have to come from the club suit.

West surely had the ace of clubs for his opening bid, and unless he was lucky enough to find West with a doubleton ace, he would have to lose two club tricks. That in itself was no problem, for declarer needed only three club tricks to fulfill his contract. However, he could not afford to lose two club tricks to West, for then the defenders' spade suit would be established before the clubs, and the contract would fail.

Declarer made his first good play when he allowed the queen of spades to hold at trick one. He won the spade continuation with the king and made his second key maneuver—he led a low club to the nine!

East won the ten, but had no spade to return. He shifted to a diamond. A careless declarer would have ducked and gone down when West won the king and cleared the last spade stopper before the club suit was established.

But since West's opening bid marked him with the king of diamonds, declarer rose with the ace and led a club to the queen. He could knock out the ace of clubs while he still controlled the spade suit, and nine tricks came rolling home.

(The opening lead is the most important single play in bridge. And Charles Goren's "Opening Leads" will help you to substantially increase your winnings. For a copy, send $1.50 to "Goren Leads," c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 259, Norwood, N.J. 07648. Make checks payable to NEWSPAPERBOOKS.)

Mesic Citizens Sue Over Incorporation

By TILLIE KNOWLES
 Editor of Pamlico County News
MESIC — A suit of $11,000,000 in compensatory damages and a $2,000,000 suit for punitive damages were filed Wednesday in the office of the Clerk of Superior Court in Bayboro, county seat of Pamlico County.

The suit was filed against Mesic Mayor Edward Jeanette and Mesic town commissioners H. L. Henries, Holon Gibbs, Edward Cradle, Julius Ollison and the town of Mesic. The mayor and all commissioners except Henries are black.

Some citizens of Mesic are taxed on land not even within the city limits, but elsewhere in Pamlico. Among numerous other complaints listed in the 23 page document, some of the complainants believe that money derived from the tax on property has allegedly never been used for public programs but for private use and only to keep the administration of the town going.

Defendants are also accused in the suit of misconduct in office of holding secret meetings, failure to set regular dates for meetings, and failure to notify the public of meetings. Landowners have recently received bills for 1974 and 1975 unpaid taxes. The majority of landowners have refused to pay the taxes.

In the complaint, it is stated that on May 31, 1976, a notice of sale for tax liens was carried in the New Bern "Sun Journal," a newspaper not in the county; but that the notice did not appear in a county newspaper, "The Pamlico County News."

Escapee

LAWTON, Okla. (AP) — James Gattison, 31, who escaped from a North Carolina prison nearly seven years ago has been found on Ft. Sill Army Base.

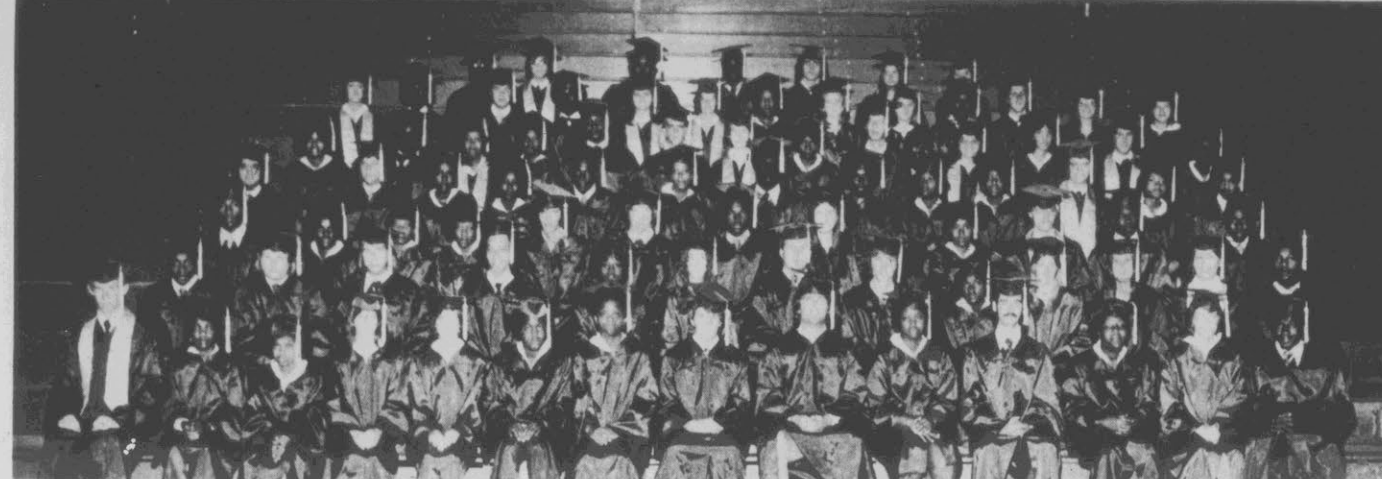

Comanche County sheriff deputies arrested Gattison after receiving a fugitive warrant from Wilmington, N.C.

County authorities said they found a military identification card and military papers among Gattison's effects, but Ft. Sill officials said they were unable to find any Army records on him.

Little Bear Catches 'Em

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — With a new Citizens Band radio in his green limousine and the handle "Little Bear," Gov. Meldrim Thomson is more of a threat than ever to speeders on New Hampshire highways.

For some time now, Thomson has snatched on speeders via the police radio in his luxury sedan, but now he's also equipped with a mobile CB radio.

Ford May Ask For New Busing Law Restricting Federal Judges

By MARGARET GENTRY
 Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford may ask Congress to create a national council that would negotiate local school desegregation plans in an effort to avoid court-ordered busing.

The legislation would establish a national council to mediate desegregation disputes in local communities, a Justice Department official said. The make-up of such a council was not learned but at least some members would be appointed by the president.

The proposal is designed to help community leaders reach voluntary desegregation plans before a federal court imposes a mandatory plan.

Without disclosing details, Nessen said Mathews outlined for Ford several approaches to help local school districts "avoid reaching the point at which the court steps in and orders massive busing."

The proposed legislation also would place new restrictions on federal judges and could rule out city-wide integration plans in some cases.

Ford expects to decide "as soon as possible" on details of the legislative proposal he has promised to send Congress, White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Wednesday.

The plan would allow a court to impose desegregation remedies, including widespread busing, throughout a city and its suburbs only if the court concluded that illegal government discrimination caused area-wide segregation.

But the court could not impose city-wide desegregation plans to correct segregation resulting from housing patterns. The department proposal would apply this rule whether or not busing was involved.

The President, his key aides and three Cabinet members discussed the legislative plan in a 90-minute session Wednesday.

"There were no decisions made at the meeting," Nessen said.

The plan would require the courts to determine how much segregation was caused by official government acts, such as maintaining separate schools for black students or drawing district boundaries in a way that "guarantees segregated schools."

Formal approval of the merger was voted earlier this week at separate conventions of each organization. At the same time, their leaders prepared plans for a new drive to organize clothing and textile workers in the South and Southwest.

Nessen said Ford plans to talk with civil rights and congressional leaders before reaching a final decision.

The Wednesday meeting focused on draft legislation prepared by Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi and the Justice Department and other proposals offered by David Mathews, secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Official government acts of discrimination are clearly illegal.

The merger of the two unions, representing a combined strength of more than 500,000 workers in the textile and men's apparel industries, consummated a year of negotiations.

Official government acts of discrimination are clearly illegal.

The courts would be free to use whatever remedies they considered necessary to correct any segregation caused by official acts. This would include busing, which the Supreme Court listed as a "permissible tool" of desegregation in a landmark 1971 decision.

The plan would allow a court to impose desegregation remedies, including widespread busing, throughout a city and its suburbs only if the court concluded that illegal government discrimination caused area-wide segregation.

Hughes Talked Of Written Will

By MIKE GOODKIND
 Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — An attorney who spent three decades working with Howard Hughes says the late billionaire consulted him several times about composing an unwitnessed, handwritten will and sought details that would insure its legality.

Gregson Bautzer, who served as a personal and corporate attorney to Hughes starting in 1946, said Wednesday he talked with Hughes several times by telephone and once personally about handwritten, unwitnessed wills.

student honor committee of cheating. And at New London, Conn., the U.S. Coast Guard Academy held graduation ceremonies Wednesday minus one senior who resigned the last minute after the academy's executive board convicted him of cheating.

Hughes "either wanted to draw a holographic (handwritten) will or had drawn one and wanted to be sure it conformed to the (legal) standards," Bautzer said.

Bautzer recalled that all the conversations about wills took place in Las Vegas.

West Point's cheating scandal began in April when 177 cadets in next year's graduating class were accused of cheating on a take-home exam in electrical engineering. Four resigned, 65 were cleared and 48 have appealed rulings of the cadet honor committees. Forty-six additional cadets were accused on Tuesday of cheating.

Hughes "either wanted to draw a holographic (handwritten) will or had drawn one and wanted to be sure it conformed to the (legal) standards," Bautzer said.

A three-page handwritten document, dated March 19, 1968, was delivered in late April to Clark County officials in Las Vegas by representatives of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon).

Army Secretary Martin R. Hoffmann told 835 graduates and about 20,000 spectators at West Point there was no need for him to defend the honor code that says "a cadet will not lie, cheat, or steal, nor tolerate those who do."

Hughes "either wanted to draw a holographic (handwritten) will or had drawn one and wanted to be sure it conformed to the (legal) standards," Bautzer said.

The document bears the signature, "Howard R. Hughes," and has become the subject of close scrutiny by handwriting experts. So far, two say it is genuine, while three others term it phony.

But he told reporters later it is "very likely" that the code and honor system will be reviewed by a civilian Pentagon panel composed of the service secretaries.

But, he said, he never learned whether Hughes had actually prepared one. Hughes died April 5.

Bautzer said he believes the document is "patently invalid... because it just doesn't look like (the work of) Howard Hughes."

Only the Naval Academy at Annapolis is free this year of a cheating scandal. It has had no such problems since seven midshipmen were dismissed in 1974.

The Los Angeles attorney said he could not remember exactly when the conversations took place "but they might have been in 1970," just before Hughes left his Desert Inn penthouse in Las Vegas for the Bahamas.

But six cadets resigned from the Air Force Academy last week after being convicted by a
