$16.2 Million Budget Study Set

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County commissioners will begin hearings on the 1976-77 budget tomorrow, which, if approved as recommended by county manager Reginald Gray, would total about $16.2 million.

The list of expenditures as proposed by Gray is, however, $1.46 million less than the $17.66 million requested by the various agencies funded by the county government. The proposal is also less than the $17.5 million approved a year ago for the current fiscal year.

Gray explained that the total proposed budget is smaller than the current fiscal year's budget because of a reduction in the amount of grant funds coming to the county. He said Pitt will receive some $400,000 less (47.84 per cent) in revenue sharing funds and noted that grants for mental health and health department capital construction, reflected in the current budget, have been expended.

Commissioners have indicated a desire to hold the tax rate as low as possible, but according to Gray, if the board approves the entire budget proposal, without making cuts, the tax rate would be 73.1 cents per $100 valuation as compared with the current year's rate of 62.5 cents per $100.

In addition, persons owning property in the Pitt County School district (all property outside the Greenville School District), would be required to pay 20 cents per $100 valuation for Pitt schools' current expenses as compared with 15 cents per $100 valuation during 1975-1976. Under the proposal, the Greenville school district current expense levy would remain at 15 cents per $100 valuation—the same as for the current fiscal year.

The estimated net valuation used last year for budget purposes was $691.3 million, while the estimated valuation this year is $760 million.

Gray noted that surpluses—used to hold the 1975-1976 tax rate at the 1974-1975 level—are no longer available.

The major increases in the proposed budget are in the areas of salaries and in spending for schools.

According to Gray, "I have made recommendations based on the State Personnel Board's standard pay scale" of five per cent as far as pay increases for county employees is concerned. However, Gray said if the commissioners follow the state — based on action by the 1976 General Assembly — county workers would receive a four per cent plus $300 cost-of-living raise.

In his budget message to the board, Gray said additional personnel for the Sheriff's Department are needed because the Sheriff is now "required to have two men in each courtroom at all times" while court is in session, and to establish an identification unit.

According to Gray, "the City

County Identification Bureau is not functioning satisfactorily for either the City or the County" and therefore recommended that we establish an identification unit."

Gray did not recommend a request by the county Fire Marshall for an assistant fire marshal and dispatchers to handle fire and rescue calls in the county from a central dispatch point. However, he said the board "may wish to consider" the requests.

Fire Marshall Bobby Joyner requested $9,310 for an assistant and $31,152 for full-time dispatchers.

Gray did, however, recommend that the board increase from $2,200 to $3,000 the amount appropriated for each of the rural fire departments in Pitt.

Even with the increases in the regular budget (major ones being the Department of Social Services from $2.15 million to $2.42 million proposed and the general fund from $2.35 million to $2.69 million proposed) the

Lunched In New Hospital

Pitt County Commissioners and Pitt Memorial Hospital officials yesterday became the first group formally to dine in the new hospital building.

Commissioners were guests of the Hospital at a luncheon held in the medical staff library in the North wing of the new medical complex.

Following the luncheon, commissioners toured the facility, part of which would be ready for occupancy August 1. Present plans call for patients to be moved from the present hospital to the new building about the first of the year.

Rick Gilstrap, associate director of Pitt Memorial told commissioners at their meeting yesterday that accreditation has been received for the old hospital "which should carry us through" until the move to the new building.

The hospital official also said the X-ray technician training program — conducted cooperatively by the hospital and Pitt Technical Institute — has been accredited.

Commissioners, at their afternoon session, approved a list of discovered property to be added to the tax rolls of the county.

Included were 1,900 autos that were not listed for 1975 taxes as required by law which will add $37,000 in taxes if the tax bills are paid, and about 700 autos — owned by East Carolina University students — that were not listed in 1976 as required.

UTILITIES MEETING

Greenville Utilities Commission will meet tonight at 7:30 in the utilities building on Fifth Street.

The meeting will be held in the board room on the third floor.

Battles In Lebanon Despite Truce Talk

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Beirut radio reported street fighting in Sidon and raging battles east and north of Beirut between Syrian troops and Lebanese-Palestinian forces today, despite reports of a ceasefire.

The leftist-controlled radio said Syrian tanks rumbled into Sidon, a port city 25 miles south of the capital, behind an artillery barrage and more tanks were closing in.

The broadcast said the Syrian forces made a three-pronged attack on Sidon from Jezzine, a small town in the mountain 10 miles to the east. The Sidon population had prepared for the attack by erecting sandbag barricades in the streets, the radio said.

Sidon, Lebanon's third largest city, is predominantly Moslem.

Earlier broadcasts said a Syrian push toward Beirut was stopped by Lebanese leftist and Palestinian guerrilla forces at Sofar, a mountain town 15 miles east of the capital, for the second day.

The radio claimed leftist forces knocked out three Syrian tanks at Sofar this morning.

Communications with the Lebanese capital were cut Monday night and the city was without electricity after shells knocked out power lines.

Radio Beirut also reported fighting at an air base in north Lebanon, where the leftist-Moslem-guerrilla alliance was resisting a surrounding Syrian force.

A broadcast charged that the Lebanese Christians in their enclave to the north of the battle zone opened up with their artillery on the leftist Lebanese and Palestinians to support the Syrians.

The Christians welcomed the Syrian intervention because Syrian President Hafez Assad apparently is trying to establish a Christian-Moslem balance of power in Lebanon and to prevent a radical leftist regime.

Negotiations 'Advancing' On Apartments For The Elderly

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Negotiations with the private owner of property proposed on E. Third Street as the site for the construction of 50 apartments for the elderly have taken a favorable turn, it was reported at Monday's Housing Authority meeting.

Joe Laney, executive director, told commissioners that since the May meeting, when it was reported that purchase negotiations for the site had been unsuccessful, the private owner involved has submitted a counter offer for the Authority to consider.

Laney noted that although the counter offer is slightly above the amount that could be justified by an appraisal, he feels the offer is such that the purchase can be resolved.

The site involves a total tract of some 66,490 square feet located east of St. Paul's Episcopal Church parking lot on Third Street. Of the 1.5 acres, 15,190 square feet is owned by the church with the remaining 51,300 held by private owner.

According to Laney, negotiations have also been proceeding with the church vestry concerning purchase of the 15,190 square foot portion of the tract and he feels that the matter will be worked out to the mutual agreement of both the church and the authority.

The director reported last month that the City Council would be informed of the status of negotiations and either select an alternate site for the units or have the Authority acquire the property through eminent domain proceedings.

The Third Street site was selected for the elderly units under the Section Eight housing plan, which is aimed at providing housing through private development and ownership.

In another development, Laney reported that the Authority has also received a counter offer from the Arthur heirs concerning the purchase of a site in the Southside area off Evans Street that is proposed for 117 units of new housing.

Laney, who told the commissioners at the last meeting that purchase negotiations for the tract of roughly 19 acres had also been unsuccessful, said that the Arthur heirs proposed in their counter offer since then to retain two small commercial lots on Evans Street and convey the remainder of the property to the Authority at a price that is slightly above the Department of Housing and Urban Development appraisal. The price, however is one that he feels can be worked out, he added.

The executive director said that if the tract is purchased minus the two commercial lots, which would reduce the overall parcel to an estimated 18 acres, the Authority may have to move some of its single family units proposed for the site to property it owns on Howell Street west of South Greenville School. Laney estimated that probably eight to ten units would have to be shifted to the Howell Street site.

In other business, it was noted that the Authority has requested HUD to approve a final payment to the general contractor for the Newtown project. The final payment had been delayed due to landscaping problems but they have been resolved to the satisfaction of the Authority, Laney said.

Word is expected from HUD any day concerning the final payment, he said.

All 531 housing units operated by the Authority were occupied during May, according to Mrs. Sallye Streeter, director of tenant affairs, and overall rent averaged $57.77.

In N.C. 22-1 (Meadowbrook), rent averaged $51.71 while N.C. 22-2 (Kearney Park) rent averaged $57.66. Rent in N.C. 22-3 (Moyewood) averaged $57.79 while N.C. 22-4 (Moyewood) rent averaged $59.83, she said. In N.C. 22-6 (Newtown), the overall average was $48.37.

Holshouser Says 1984 Avoided In New System

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Holshouser says that "1984 and Big Brother" have been kept away from North Carolina by a new master plan adopted to guide the computerization of the state's criminal information system.

The governor's committee on law and order Monday approved the master plan. It contains modified provisions insisted upon by Holshouser and agreed to by the U.S. Department of Justice.

The new computer network eventually will be a centralized system that will provide instant access to a person's criminal and prison records.

It will be tied into a national system that the federal government is establishing in connection with the 50 states.

Both Holshouser and Atty. Gen. Rufus Edmisten said they were confident that their earlier fears about loss of individual privacy and misuse of information will not be realized.

Investigative reports, such as a detective's notes on an arrest, will not be part of the system under the plan adopted Monday. Individuals must be allowed to challenge data in the system and be assured of corrections in case of errors.

The new plan also says that data now deemed confidential—such as juvenile and mental health records—will remain that way under the computerized system.

"All that information in a centralized system makes you nervous. But you would get the same information if you went to all 100 courthouses," Holshouser said.

The new system means that the old "rap sheet," a dog-eared card with hand-entered records of arrests and convictions, will be replaced by a computerized printout of records from all the computers in the system.

The action taken by the committee set the stage for the establishment of two boards to oversee the system. The system itself will be called the North Carolina Criminal Justice Information System (NCCJIS).

"One oversight board will be charged with writing rules that protect confidentiality and at the same time insure accuracy and access by individuals, reporters, prospective employers and other members of the public.

Holshouser made public access to the records a major bone of contention between the state and the U.S. Department of Justice. The original federal guidelines would have made it difficult or impossible for a member of the public to gain access to computerized data that is now a matter of public record.

The second board will be charged with enforcing the rules and helping to run the system.

'Proposition 15' In California Is Big Public Test

By LINDA DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A proposal on today's primary election ballot in California will provide the first test of public reaction to the question of nuclear power safety. The outcome could have national impact on atomic energy as a source for electricity.

Proposition 15, the Nuclear Power Plants Initiative, is the first of 16 similar proposals pending nationwide.

No one is predicting the outcome, and at one point pollster Mervin Field declared the public was "incredibly confused" on the crucial issue of nuclear energy development versus guaranteed safety from radiation.

"It's the most important issue facing Californians in at least 50 years," said Assemblyman Charles Warren, a Democrat from Los Angeles, whose Assembly committee held hearings on the subject last year.

Colorado and Oregon have similar initiatives on their November ballots.

Proposition 15 asks voters to say "yes" or "no" to a safety plan so stringent it could shut down the state's three existing nuclear plants by 1987 and hamper progress on two plants now under construction.

The proposition would not, in itself, cause a shutdown or ban nuclear plants. But it would leave in the hands of the legislature a decision by 1979 on whether plants could operate safely and nuclear waste could be stored without risk.

If these requirements are not met, existing plants would have to reduce output to 60 per cent of licensed capacity in 1981 and shut down by 1987 unless the safety verdict changed.

Utility companies say this would force them to seek alternate sources of electricity, increasing expense and possible pollution.

The controversial proposal also would remove the utility companies' shield of a $560 million liability limit in the event of a nuclear disaster.

In months of emotional campaigning, utility companies have thrown millions into their effort to defeat the measure, which they say is unnecessary and threatens economic disaster.

"It's the people against the money," insisted David Personen, a San Francisco attorney who drafted Prop. 15 and saw it as a contest between powerful utility companies and radiation-threatened customers.

Proponents of the measure repeatedly raised the spectre of a "nuclear accident" at one of the nation's more than 50 nuclear reactor plants — a nightmarish vision of slow death for perhaps 30,000 Americans.

Opponents of the measure note there has never been such an accident and chances of one are a five-billion-to-one longshot.

Plan Carter Fund Dinner

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — The campaign staff of democratic presidential hopeful Jimmy Carter has announced plans for a $1,000-a-plate fund-raising dinner here June 28.

The purpose of the dinner is to repay campaign loans from U.S. Sen. Robert Morgan, D-N.C., and others, according to Joel McCleary, Carter's national campaign finance director.

Carter will attend the dinner, which will be held at the home of William A.V. Cecils, near the Biltmore Estate, McCleary said.

Morgan said at a press conference the proceeds will be used to repay himself and 14 others for money they loaned the Carter campaign during the Maryland primary.

McCleary estimated Morgan's contribution at about $15,000 for "crucial media" advertising.

McCleary said the dinner will be one of the last fund-raising events before the July 12 Democratic National Convention in New York.

"No political contributions are allowed after the convention," McCleary said.

Found Dead In A Creek

HUDSON, N.C. (AP) — The body of a Caldwell County woman who was last seen when she left for work last Thursday was found Monday night in her wrecked car.

R. D. Presley of the Highway Patrol said the body of Irene Margaret McCrary, 51, of Rt. 3, Granite Falls was found in a car which was almost completely submerged in a rain-swollen creek. Presley said Mrs. McCrary apparently ran off U.S. 321A and her car tumbled into the creek.

Presley said there was no evidence of foul play. Mrs. McCrary was reported missing by her family after she did not report to work at a textile mill in Hudson and did not come home, according to a spokesman for the Caldwell County Sheriff's Department. Her car was found about five miles from her home.

How can a bank ask you to sign a loan agreement only bankers understand?

Most banks talk a lot about loans, but they don't talk much about what happens before you get the money.

Maybe it's because, in that sea of fine print and mumbo-jumbo that you have to sign, there are a lot of rather unpleasant "details."

The kind of "details" most people don't bother to read because they look complicated. And sound complicated.

But at NCNB, we think you should know just what we expect from you and, more importantly, exactly what you can expect from us.

That's why we've written our forms in plain English. Here's an example:

BANKER TALK VS. PEOPLE TALK

BANKER TALK:

Debtor has good, indefeasible, marketable title thereto and will warrant and defend same against all claims. Debtor is not to, and will not attempt to transfer, sell or encumber the Collateral or use it for hire or in violation of any statute or ordinance.

PEOPLE TALK:

You guarantee you have good and clear title to the Collateral and won't sell or dispose of it.

We don't have to do this, but we think it's something a bank should do.

We have $25 million a month to lend and we're going to lend it.

So, instead of looking for ways to turn you down on a loan, we look for ways to make you the loan.

Which may be one reason why we lend money to more people than any other bank in North Carolina.

Here's another:

When you need a loan, you need money. Not a runaround.

In most cases, the bigger the bank, the longer you wait for an answer.

Because the person you ask has to ask someone else (who, often, may have to ask yet another someone else.)

But not at NCNB. The person that you talk with about the loan can give you the answer.

So, if you have the idea that getting a bank loan is going to be just one big hassle, see us. At NCNB, we're in the business of making loans. Not hassles.

Playing Games With Kids Helps Get Good Photos

NEW YORK (AP) — Two small boys wear trousers or short pants with knit tops and that girls wear one-piece dresses or play clothes. Since the photos will be in color he suggests parents bear that in mind as they select the outfit.

According to him, the pose conveys the feeling you want to impart in your photograph. Since the difficulty lies in coaxing an active youngster to maintain one position the few seconds needed for the photograph, Semprini plays games.

"I place two bright, shiny pennies on the floor," he says, "and I challenge the child to keep each covered with a foot. It works every time."

He has other methods for achieving good results. Since "involved" children are more photogenic, he has toys and games on hand to help strike lively, responsive moods. He also has tall props, such as stuffed animals, so the child remains preoccupied.

The parent is another attention-getter he uses to maintain interest. "The presence of mother or father reduces fears of unfamiliar surroundings," he says. "At the same time, the parent can coax different facial expressions, if they are needed."

And he takes plenty of poses. "The amateur often stops clicking when he thinks he has it. The pro keeps on shooting until he knows he has it," he declares.

Gone are the days when well-scrubbed children, primed in starched sartorial splendor, stared stiffly out of a photograph with waxen expressions engraved on their young faces, Semprini points out.

"Modern lighting and fast film have changed all that," he explains. "Today, children look more casual in realistic portraits that are every bit as appealing."

"And apparel no longer makes a difference. Children look just as well in everyday school clothes as in Sunday-best outfits."

Semprini recommends that

Piano Player Makes Awful Church Music

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: One of the reasons I used to love to go to church was the organ music. Well, our organist moved out of town, and now a piano player is playing the organ. It is punishment to listen to her.

She brags that she has never had an organ lesson in her life, and believe me, it is obvious.

She is such a pleasant and willing person that nobody wants to complain, but if they don't get rid of her and get an organist, I will quit coming to church, and so will several of my friends.

Our clergyman must be tone deaf. So what's the solution? This is a small town. No name, please.

CHURCHGOER

DEAR GOER: You and the others who share your view should call on the clergyman and suggest that he consider getting an organist—or educate the piano player.

DEAR ABBY: Please don't put me down and call me a starry-eyed dreamer, but I have a terrific crush on my doctor. I am a happily married young woman with a perfectly good husband and two beautiful children. So why is this doctor on my mind all the time?

I told my husband about it and even asked him if maybe I should change doctors, and he said it wouldn't do any good—that I would probably develop a crush on the next one. And besides, he says, it's nothing unusual because nearly every woman is in love with her doctor. Is that true?

I am sure my doctor doesn't have a clue that I have this wild crush on him, and I know there's no chance of his becoming interested in me, but that doesn't change my feelings about him.

Any suggestions?

GOT A CRUSH

DEAR GOT: Not every woman has a crush on her doctor, but it's not unusual to mistake feelings of gratitude, admiration, respect and hero-worship for romantic love.

Analyze your feelings and recognize them for what they are before your next appointment, or your doctor won't be able to get an accurate history of your normal blood pressure, pulse and heartbeat.

DEAR ABBY: Perhaps I am overreacting, but I don't think so.

After 38 years of a wonderful marriage, my husband passed away. Lately, and especially at Christmastime, I received a large number of cards addressed to "Mrs. Agnes Smith." I even received some lovely stationery with "MRS. AGNES SMITH" printed on it.

It is like a knife cutting off the last tie with my late husband. Isn't it proper to be addressed as "Mrs. Harold Smith"? I realize that for business purposes, my legal name is "Agnes Smith," but socially, until and unless I remarry, I am "Mrs. Harold Smith," am I not?

Perhaps if you publish this, some of my friends will realize how deeply they have hurt me. Thank you.

MRS. HAROLD SMITH

DEAR MRS. SMITH: You are indeed Mrs. Harold Smith, and should be addressed as such socially.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a grown man, well over 21, and I've had enough experience along this line to know better, but I got myself into a tight spot.

About six months ago I started dating this cute young chick, and we really dug each other. The problem is, I did mention marriage, but I most definitely did not say when. Well, I really don't want to get married, Abby. I've been that route and it's not for me, but you know how it is when the lights are low and the music gets to you—a guy makes a lot of "campaign promises."

I guess this chick told her mother and all her friends that we're getting married sometime late summer. Abby, I'm not about to marry this gal or anybody else right now, so what should I do?

TALKS TOO MUCH

DEAR TALKS: A man who makes "campaign promises" is definitely a candidate, so prepare to run—in one direction or the other.

DEAR ABBY: Because you are able to solve so many diverse problems, I am presenting mine.

In our home we have color TV, which is on almost all of the time. It is situated so that I am very close to it while I am in my kitchen doing my laundry.

I have read that radiation from color TV can be dangerous, so I don't dare do the laundry while the TV is on.

My husband insists that I am being foolish to worry about the radiation. What are the facts?

MRS. S.

DEAR MRS. S.: After considerable research, the consensus is that the radiation from a color TV is so minimal, it is no threat whatsoever, so go ahead and do your laundry, lady.

Weakening Family Influence Causes Loss Of Identity

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

Modern families are in trouble partly because the historic function of the family is passing away, says Prof. John H. Plumb, a distinguished British historian and educator.

"The family was a way of transmitting property and educating children," Plumb said in an interview. Fathers trained their sons in the areas in which they themselves worked. Farmers' sons became farmers, weavers' sons became weavers.

"Until recent times in most of the world, children didn't go to school. They learned skills, social wisdom and morality within the family.

"In the old days, the father controlled not only jobs, but also the way you married.

"I'm not suggesting these things are right," he said. "I'm a doctor diagnosing a disease, saying why the family is weakening."

Plumb, 64, and a bachelor, is a professor of modern English history at Cambridge University in England, editorial consultant to American Heritage Publications Co. in New York City and a guest lecturer who often speaks to audiences in the United States.

He said teen-age shoplifting is one result of weakening family influence.

"It is extremely widespread in England," Plumb said. He said cases involving shoplifting Iranian princesses and other foreigners have been highly publicized there in the press.

"Middle-aged women in England get away even with TV.

"These things are like cancers... Quite often (shoplifters) can well afford what they steal."

Most shoplifting by children is done by those from middle and higher income families, he said.

"The family unit in the hard-hat (lower socio-economic) family is more economically interdependent. (These) children have a closer sense of identity with their parents."

And apparently, a stricter moral code.

Growing numbers of American communities now deal with shoplifters by publishing their names in an apparent attempt to shame them into reforming.

Plumb thinks it's a good idea. "Shaming devices worked in Puritan England. A girl who had a baby only six months after her marriage was made to stand in church during services wearing a white sheet with the word, 'fornicator,' on it.

"Industrial society tends not to have shaming devices."

The best solution, Plumb feels, is not punishment, but prevention.

"We don't put enough pressure on children. They love to work — weaving, potting, mending a motorcar. They should be encouraged to work as soon as they can walk."

He said children are given too many play situations and not enough learning, at home, at school, and in children's television programming.

He said we almost always underestimate the intellectual capacity of readers and viewers. "I think there is a tremendous longing for tougher, more learned TV scripts (for all ages).

"I think newspapers, certainly those outside of New York and Washington, (also) greatly underestimate the intellectual appetite of their readers."

Plumb, who reads local papers in every airport he passes through during his frequent trips to the U.S., deplores their infrequent use of foreign news.

He also thinks achievement elitism is a good thing. "We run it down too much. Competitive children have been led away from mental to more emotional, economic elitism.

"I would like to see more achievement in skills all the way down the social scale. We need elitism in mechanical skills as well as intellectual. A truck driver needs to take pride in his work."

Craftsmen and artisans merit the same (social) recognition for their skills as eggheads do for intellectual achievement, he said, adding that social and financial recognition are not the same thing.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

When the great humorists of our times are recorded, there is no doubt in my mind that the Wright Brothers will lead the list.

These Sunshine Boys of the sky refined humor. They bypassed the one-liners, eliminated the pie-in-the-face routine, and replaced the scantily-clad assistant with one prop: a plane.

They got their 12-second act together in 1903, and played Kittyhawk, N.C., before bringing it into New York. Hardly anyone laughed.

It wasn't until 1905 they got their first big break. They performed for the United States government who thought the routine had possibilities, but that before the public would accept it, it had to be punched up with lines.

Orville and Wilbur talked about it.

"Let's go over it again, Orv, we're talking safety and comfort in flying, right? Okay, so in the lobby, just before you get to board the plane, we'll have a counter to sell insurance."

"Go on."

"Then, a little farther down, we'll have a security check to make sure no one with guns is boarding."

"I like it! I like it! Then when they're on board, we'll strap them in and a cute hostess will appear and..."

"I thought we weren't going to have the scantily-clad assistant. They always remind me of a magic act."

"What are you talking about, Wilb, this whole thing is a magic act if we can pull it off. Anyway, she can stand there and tell them where the oxygen is when they can't breathe."

"You sure that's funny."

Challenge Promises Big Split

The cat-and-mouse game continues in Democratic presidential politics.

Jimmy Carter has mounted an astounding campaign which has sent his delegate count soaring. Still, at this point he does not yet have enough delegates pledged to win the Democratic nomination on the first ballot, even though he has sent several potential challengers to the sidelines.

Sen. Hubert Humphrey was at one time considered the most likely to get the nomination if there were any fight between the candidates actively seeking the nomination. He more or less closed the door on a Convention fight. Now, however, Humphrey says that he could reassess his position against an active campaign if Carter falters in today's primaries.

Humphrey said that if Carter came out of the Ohio, California and New Jersey primaries with less than 1,200 to 1,300 delegates he would look into the possibility of becoming active candidate.

Humphrey is said to believe that Carter "has lost a lot of his zip."

Sen. Humphrey is an old political war horse and we can be certain that he will never fully close the door on his old dream of becoming president.

We can be sure though that regardless of what happens in today's primaries, a Humphrey challenge of Carter is going to be a party-splitting affair. Even if Humphrey should wrest the nomination away from Carter the intra-party carnage would still make it unlikely that Humphrey would become president.

New Leadership For House Coming

Carl Albert speaker of the House of Representatives, announced during the weekend that he will retire this year and return to Oklahoma.

Albert, 68, has served in Congress for 30 years. There was immediate speculation as to who would inherit the post with the most likely choice seeming to be Thomas "Tip" O'Neill of Massachusetts.

Speaker Albert, has served ably in Congress. Nevertheless it may not be a bad time for new leadership to emerge.

Equal Education In State?

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — For the first time in the history of North Carolina public schools, per pupil spending has climbed past the $1,000 per year mark.

But is that true for all students, in a state which prides itself on equal educational opportunities under a statewide system?

Far from it. But there are still school systems in the state spending far below the magic $1,000 line. The state average is $1,055.

Local funds committed to education, supplementing the basic state money, account for some of the differential. Not all of it, however. Some systems are more aggressive than others in seeking federal funds, as well.

The combined state, local, and federal dollars go together to make up the total per pupil expenditure.

Even so, some of the difference comes from fluctuation in per pupil spending of state funds.

How can that be, in a state where equal spending of state dollars on education is supposed to be the rule? How, for instance, can Iredell County get $687.17 per pupil in state funds to rank 115th in the state; the Mooresville school system (in the same county) get $664.31 per pupil in state funds to rank 143rd; and the county seat of Statesville get $709.38 per child to rank 23rd among the state's 147 school systems?

The answer, says A. C. Davis, controller of the State Department of Public Instruction, is complex. One big factor is teacher and administrative salary. Sufficient state funds to pay the people at the salary level they have reached must be provided. So if most of the teachers are veterans at the top of the scale, have advanced degrees, and some administrators are also in top levels, the dollars will be higher.

Then, geography is a big factor, Davis explained: in rural, mountainous sections, school bus transportation will require more and so will heating of the school. Variable formulas cover such differences. Another factor would be special demonstration programs funded in various school systems — experimental reading projects, for example.

Still, it seems hard to account for the overall gap between one of the highest ranking school systems, and one of the lowest.

The lowest Randolph County, for instance, spends $864.88 per child, with $688.49 coming from the state; $68.67 from federal; and $107.72 from local funds.

Coastal Tyrrell County spends $1,454.01 per child to rank first in the state. The breakdown is $409.04 federal (a big difference from Randolph); $174.70 locally (not such a big difference), and $870.27 in state funds (nearly $200 difference from Randolph).

A few other disparities illustrate the situation: Madison County ranks first in per pupil spending of state funds ($876.48) compared to Randolph's total $864.88 spending from all sources.

Guilford County spends only $65.34 in federal funds per child, compared to Tyrrell's $409.04 federal. Davidson County is lowest at $63.59.

Local funds tell another story: Charlotte-Mecklenburg spends $459.86 per child compared to $70.25 in Yancey County.

Still, there is sharp variation in state funds from the high mark of $876.48 in Madison down to low points just over $660 per child in numerous low Piedmont and Coastal Plains counties. Cumberland, for instance, is lowest at $655.12 state funds.

Per pupil spending of over $1,000? Hardly. Here is a partial list of systems below that mark: Lincoln, Iredell, Henderson, Roanoke Rapids, Gaston, Cleveland, Hickory, Catawba, Cabarrus, Kannapolis, Burke, Washington, Alamanace, Yadkin, Wilkes, Monroe, Union, Transylvania, Mount Airy, Surry, Stokes, Stanly, Rowan, Riedsveld, Mayodan, Eden, Lumberton, Richmond, Asheboro, Randolph, Onslow, Mitchell, McDowell.

Blowing In The Wind

WASHINGTON — Two Lockheed engineers filed a report the other day on the generation of electric energy by windmills. Their proposals may be visionary — they surely would be expensive — but, by George, they make a lot of sense.

Michael Dusey and Ugo Coty, working under a grant from the Energy Research and Development Administration, came up with a comprehensive plan. Over the next 20 years, they would like to see 54,000 wind generators erected. If their calculations are correct, their giant structures, equipped with rotor blades as long as a football field, could provide one trillion kilowatt hours of electricity annually — equal to one-fifth of the nation's anticipated power consumption.

The advantages of such a system, assuming its technological feasibility, are instantly apparent. Viewed as a "fuel," wind is in infinite supply. Its availability does not depend upon Venezuelan politics or Arab caprice. Wind generators produce no radioactive wastes; they create no polluting clouds of smoke. The engineers estimate that their system would conserve two billion barrels of oil a year.

It seems too good to be true. At the moment, alas, it is indeed too good to be true. Inventors and engineers have been entranced with the possibilities of wind generators for nearly a century. The Danish Wind Electricity Company, formed in 1903, built 1,300 generators by 1916. The Soviets gave the idea a good try at Yalta in 1931. In the 1950's, the Germans, French, British and Hungarians had a go at it. None of the experiments ever had proved economically workable.

The most significant United States experiment began in 1941 at Grandpa's Knob in central Vermont. Under the enthusiastic promotion of Palmer C. Putnam, an engineer ahead of his time, a team of scientists and designers assembled a great tower equipped with a two-blade rotor having a diameter of 175 feet. Twenty minutes after they started it up, the windmill was generating 700 kilowatts of power. Until a main bearing burned out in 1943, the station produced beautifully. The war prevented proper repairs, and by the time the windmill finally was restarted in 1945, the elements had done such damage that the generator blew itself to bits. Farewell, Grandpa's Knob.

Much has happened in the past 30 years. The cost of fuel oil has greatly increased. Environmentalists have raised sobering questions about the impact of coal-burning and nuclear stations. Thanks in part to the space program, the sciences of metallurgy and aeronautical design have made quantum jumps. Now the feasibility of wind power once more is attracting serious interest.

At Plum Brook Station in Sandusky, Ohio, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration has funded a wind turbine generator project on the Lake Erie shore. The system features a two-bladed rotor, 125 feet across, mounted on a 100-foot tower. The structure begins

Civil Defense Studies

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pentagon studies show that millions of Americans could be moved from U.S. cities to safer rural areas and small towns in face of threatened nuclear missile attacks, officials say.

But these studies, still under way, have not yet produced solutions for potentially gigantic problems of how to feed, shelter, provide medical attention and otherwise care for the hordes of uprooted city folk.

"The cost of preparing for temporary relocation of city populations in a war threat crisis would be staggering, we admit," said one official of the Defense Civil Preparedness Agency. "We don't yet know how much it would cost."

At the moment, the civil defense agency is budgeted for $71 million in the coming year, one of its lowest budgets in an up-and-down history.

Studies begun six years ago have identified 400 U.S. "high risk" areas, including military bases and urban-industrial complexes with populations of 50,000 or more. Experts esti-

THE INSIDE REPORT

Ford's Absentee Campaign

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

SACRAMENTO — The brutal contrast between an absent President, represented by marginal stand-ins, and a popular ex-governor, campaigning as though at a homecoming jamboree, now threatens a defeat for President Ford in today's Super Bowl primary far more costly than the White House thought possible a few short weeks ago.

Indeed, moving through the rich, lush Central Valley last week, Ronald Reagan's campaign had the sweet smell of a victory march before the battle has been fought with an invisible enemy. Mr. Ford's campaign, on the contrary, was bland and absentee. Those conditions were imposed by the President himself after several Republican Senators — including John Tower of Texas, Barry Goldwater of Arizona and Robert Dole of Kansas — pointedly urged him to "go easy" on Reagan here, despite the fact that California, scene of Reagan's greatest triumphs, is also the source of his gravest vulnerabilities.

That advice, relayed to the President's managers here by campaign chairman Rogers Morton, resulted not just from the fact that Reagan is the national darling of the Republican right wing, thus desperately needed in the fall campaign, but also because the man the President faces here was twice elected governor by large majorities whose support he still seems to enjoy.

But the decision to eschew bloodletting for fear of party fratricide has handed Reagan two valuable points, both of which he is now exploiting to the fullest.

Point 1: The wildfire of political gossip across the state, abetted by the press, that the President has "given up" on California and its 167 winner-take-all delegates. Such gossip sapped morale and energies of pro-Ford campaigners.

Point 2: Reagan's freedom to roam the state (in the company of aging but still-adored Hollywood hero Jimmy Stewart) with attendant play in the media. That freedom was absolute, without serious competition.

The measure of competition can be grasped by the fact that the minority leader of the state Assembly, Paul Priolo, agreed to take 90 minutes out of a hard schedule to provide a touch of glitter at a Coffee-For Ford hour here Wednesday morning arranged by Mrs. Lynn Galster, a pro-Ford volunteer. Exactly five women showed up — and four were already committed to the President. Yet, so out of touch with political reality is the Ford White House that the President himself had gratefully telephoned Mrs. Galster to thank her for giving the party.

In sadly similar fashion, another Ford leader here agreed to invite all 25 Republican assemblymen to dinner with Virginia Knauer, the President's consumer affairs specialist, last Tuesday night. The affair was another embarrassing bust. Only eight assemblymen showed up and Mrs. Knauer, instead of sticking to the Ford record on consumerism (admittedly less than glittering) made a 20-minute political speech that angered those she was supposed to win over.

Such puny competition further enhanced the full week of Reagan's personal campaigning. It gave play to the theme Reagan is now laboring to get across: that he, not the President, "has been winning the states the Republicans must have" to win in November. Those states exclude the Northeast and the industrial North, where Reagan has been shut out in his primary battles with Mr. Ford; they include the South, the sun belt, the mountain states, the agricultural Midwest — and California.

Ridiculing warnings of Republican moderates and liberals that his nomination would doom the party, Reagan won surprisingly enthusiastic applause in denying that he is a "jingoistic warmonger" and in informing packed rallies in

Strength For Today

CLIMBING VINES
Many varieties of climbing vines will wilt and die soon after sprouting unless they have a wall, tree, post, or some other kind of support on which they can climb toward light and air.

The same process of wilting and dying occurs in the spiritual life of mankind, if there is no strong religious belief on which the vine can mature toward eventual fulfillment. Everyone is born with spiritual potentialities. There is an instinctive realization of deity in human beings just as there is an instinctive desire to climb in vines.

But the realization of deity needs support before it can mature into spiritual life. This support can only be supplied by strong religious beliefs. These are not instinctive but come only after deep thought and the exertion of will to follow in the path of Christ. Without these beliefs the original spiritual impulse weakens and finally disappears.

The Law Of Supply And Demand

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — At a private luncheon in the small executive dining room of a very large corporation last week the president was bemoaning the "lack of discipline" in a basic industry. The competition, he said, was cutting prices.

"But isn't that the way it should be?" he was asked. "You can't cut your prices," he replied calmly and with certainty. "Your competition will just cut theirs. And if you cut, you won't make sufficient income to recover your investment."

Therefore, in his view, you must seek to maintain pricing discipline. You must keep order in the industry, for the common good of all those in the industry.

Most of us were brought up on the notion that prices tend to fall when demand weakens, even though we've become suspicious in recent months that the theory isn't the practice.

But, as was demonstrated in that conversation, not everyone believes the market should or can work that way, and some of them are in very powerful positions, such as the chairmanship and presidency of large companies.

"Isn't such pricing unfair to the public?" the president was asked.

"They benefit too, he said. "If we cut our prices and cannot obtain a fair return on our investment, then when demand rises again we won't be in a position to meet demand and our prices will rise sharply."

It is much better, he said, to maintain stability in the industry, to keep people and plants working, to avoid pricing dips and surges that throw the market into even greater chaos and threatens producers with bankruptcy.

Not enough emphasis these days is put on industry's return on equity, the chairman and chief executive officer — the top man — volunteered. "There's too much emphasis on the return on sales, but it's the return on investment that counts."

Look at those equity returns, he suggested. "A company that makes a basic product needed by mankind, like steel, gets the lowest return on equity. The producer of a frivolous item makes the biggest return, and nobody kicks."

The president corrected the chairman. "Discretionary items, not frivolous," he said. "People have every right to buy cosmetics and pay what they will for them. It's a discretionary matter, a choice defended by the Constitution."

The points were conceded, but the corporate officers were asked if some of this behavior might not be termed oligarchic and of the kind that gets a company into conflicts with the Justice Department.

One of the officers might have nodded. None said no. All were outstanding members of various communities, charitable people, busy executives who give their time to causes — concerned, dedicated, capable, accomplished, convinced.

What is wrong, they seemed to say, is the simplistic belief that the law of supply and demand is always at work or can be made to work or is always best for the market.

The Sandusky station
 understandably offers few economic attractions. It is intended for research. At $5,000 per kilowatt, no one could afford its costs of generation. Project spokesmen say costs will drop to $2,000 with a second unit. In more or less mass production, they believe costs could be further reduced to $600 to $1,000 per kilowatt.
 This would compare with recent estimates of $208 for an oil-fueled plant and $470 for nuclear power.

Manifestly, windmills will work only where the wind truly blows, but meteorologists insist the United States offers many feasible locations. In the Great Plains, in southern Florida, in many coastal areas, winds of 10 to 25 miles constant. It is an attractive dream, to envision great this is what lies ahead. After years of looking to the future mate about 137 million Americans live in these prime target areas.

The concept of "crisis relocation" is based on a belief that there would be at least several days of rising tension preceding a possible nuclear attack, and that populations could be moved out of high risk areas in an orderly manner during that time. Among other things, U.S. officials would direct evacuation of American cities if U.S. spy satellites detected the movement of populations from Russian cities.

U.S. city dwellers would be distributed by train, bus and automobile among relatively sparsely populated "host areas" which officials feel could not be targets of Soviet missiles. In some cases, Americans might be sent 100 or more miles from their homes.

A special civil defense agency study focuses on the intensely populated Northeast urban corridor stretching from Boston to Washington and including New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and other cities.

The agency estimated, on the basis of the 1970 census, that as many as 47 million people might have to be relocated from Northeast cities in an impending nuclear war situation.
 Officials say results of the Northeast study, begun 11 months ago, may apply to other thickly populated regions such as the Chicago-Detroit corridor and California.

At least one congressional group backs the idea of gearing up for possible evacuation of big U.S. cities, even if it is a costly process.

"The capability to remove populations is important in deterring an attack as well as in reducing casualties if deterrence fails," said a House armed services subcommittee in a recent report.

Some other congressmen, however, oppose a major U.S.
 civil defense effort on grounds
 it would make nuclear war
 "thinkable." They argue that such a U.S. effort might be read by the Russians as a sign that the United States was preparing for nuclear aggression, and that this might heighten
 the chances that the Russians might consider a pre-emptive strike.

MORGANTON, N.C. (AP) — Three persons were killed and one was injured Monday in a head-on collision on Interstate 40 near here.

The Highway Patrol identified the victims as Jerry Lee Goss, 20, Herschel Stephen Coker, 20, and Raymond L. Stringer, 21, all of Little Rock, Ark.

The patrol said Mrs. Evelyn Fleming Barbatelli, 53, of Ft. Pierce, Fla., suffered a broken hip in the 10:40 a.m. wreck. She was in stable condition at Grace Memorial Hospital here. Trooper Edward W. Jones said Mrs. Barbatelli's van crossed the median and hit a car driven by Goss about one-half mile south of the Morganton exit on I-40.

Jones said Mrs. Barbatelli said she swerved to avoid hitting a vehicle stopped in front of her.

Pitt Budget...

major proposed increases for the coming fiscal year are in the area of education.

In explaining his proposal for school expenditures—especially in light of the proposed five-cents per $100 valuation hike in the Pitt district current expense special levy—Gray said "an attempt was made to equalize local tax dollars between the county local district, and the Greenville district. I have made recommendations to equalize appropriations on a per pupil basis."

He said, "I feel like equal money should go to each child no matter where he is in the county."

Gray noted, too, that he has recommended a supplement for county teachers "equal to the present supplement of the Greenville system." In the past, teachers in the Greenville district have received a supplement in addition to the regular state pay scale, while teachers in the county system have not.

Baby Dies In Trailer Fire

BURNSVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A 5-month-old girl died in a mobile home fire late Monday while her parents were at work in a nearby dairy, Yancey County authorities said today.

A funeral home official identified the victim as Angela Michelle Waldrup, daughter of Glenn and Vivian Waldrup of Yancey County.

THE N.C. HEART ASSOCIATION'S ... highest award is accepted by William S. Corbett Jr. (left) on behalf of the Pitt County Unit of the Heart Association. Charlie "Choo-Choo" Justice (right) presents the award "for excellence in fund-raising and accomplishing significant year-round medical and community programs, rendering continuous educational information to the public, and maintaining an active organization of interested volunteers." Pitt was chosen from among 120 units in the state.

For the schools, the proposed budget recommends $3.63 million in current expense funds from the county wide levy, of which the Greenville district would receive $885,060, based on a per capita distribution (33.26 per cent to Greenville). That compares with a total of $3.65 million for the current year, including a turnover of $785,470 to the Greenville district.

Under the proposed special district current expense plan, the Pitt District would receive $1.04 million (including $125,000 for teacher supplements) based on the 20-cents per $100 special district current expense levy. This compares with $723,000 the county schools received this year.

Greenville, under the proposed budget, would receive $500,000 from the special district levy as compared to $436,397 this year. Gray noted that the proposed current expense budget for the city school system includes only $149,500 for maintenance expenses as compared to a proposed $628,921 for the county system.

According to the county manager, state law specifies "maintenance of buildings is a current expense item. In my opinion," he continued, "there is not enough emphasis placed by their (the city schools) requests" on maintenance "in comparison to what the county's request is."

In the area of capital outlay for the public schools, Gray said the "county schools requested $847,000 in current funds for capital outlay" while the city schools requested $578,500 from county appropriations and a $500,000 loan by the county from the State Literary Fund, which is the same as a bond issue as far as the debt of the county is concerned."

In his recommendations for the school's capital outlay budget, Gray said tax revenue and "every dollar of revenue sharing" were combined to provide a total of $894,597 available. He recommended Greenville receive its pro rata share totaling $297,543, leaving $597,054 for the county district. In addition, Gray said he has recommended the city receive the $500,000 Literary Fund loan, which would, if approved, give the city system $797,543 for capital improvements.

Gray emphasized, "I am concerned about the needs in capital outlay," for the schools,

"but noted, 'I feel that it is must that the county commissioners require the school systems to seek authorization the people for a sufficient amount (bond issue) to satisfy the needs now in this area firmly believe that the people will support such a program, if the needs can be shown.'"

The county manager said in his opinion, the county "can afford" to continue school capital construction programs "on a current appropriation basis."

Gray compared school construction to a family buying a home or a business constructing a new plant.

"When you buy a home, you have to borrow the money to do it. How many businesses can go out and build a new building without having to borrow the money?"

As far as Pitt Technical Institute is concerned, the proposed budget includes $406,896 for PTI, including $187,498 in capital outlay money.

A public hearing on the 1976-1977 budget has been scheduled for 10 a.m. Wednesday in the Law Library at the Pitt County Court House.

Ultra Checking. Not just another ball park figure.

Balancing your checkbook with your bank statement can be such a problem, that it's often tempting to settle for a ball park figure.

Unless you have PNB's Ultra Checking. It's the easiest bank statement to balance in North Carolina.

With Ultra Checking, your checks are listed on your statement in the same order they appear in your checkbook. So it's easy for you to maintain an accurate balance.

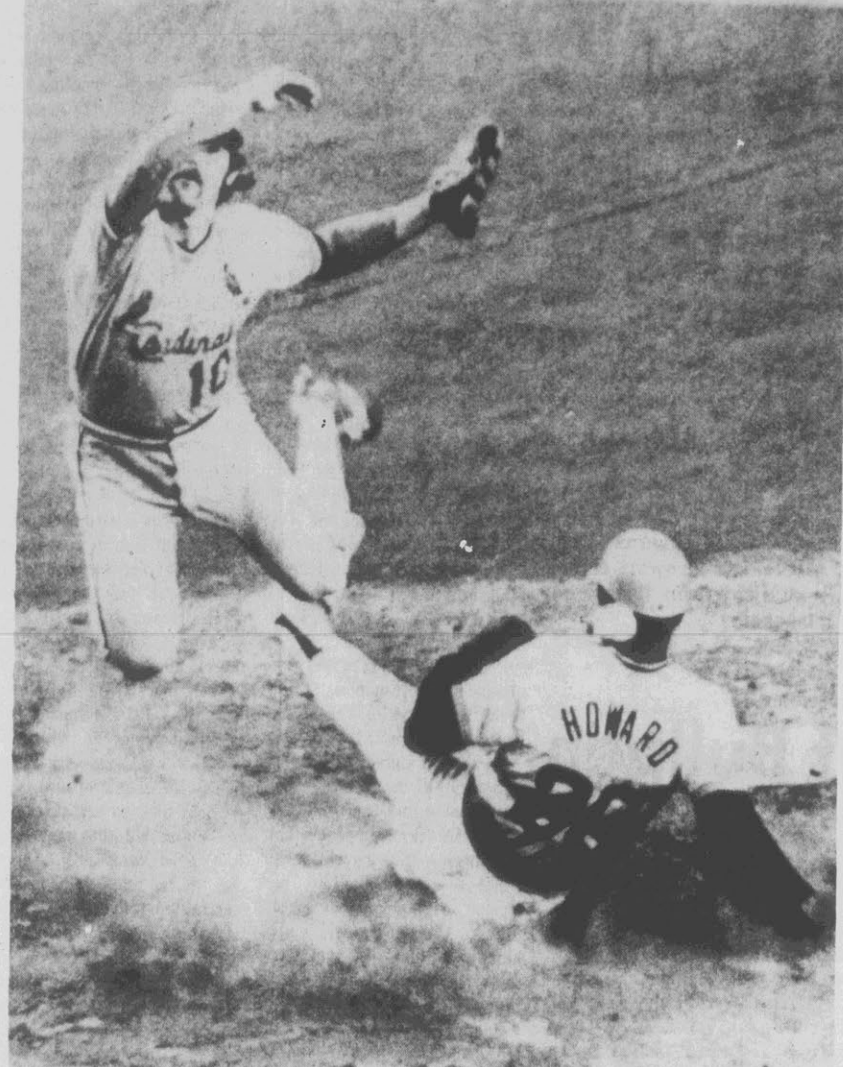

There are many other benefits of an Ultra Checking Account. Ask your PNB banker for details. Or ask someone who already has an Ultra Checking Account. Jim "Catfish" Hunter, for instance.

He knows enough about ball park figures to know that they don't belong in his checkbook.

Wilson Romps Past Greenville By 10-2

Wilson's Post 13 grabbed off its second straight victory over Greenville last night, rolling to a 10-2 victory over the locals.

The loss was the third straight for Post 39, which has yet to win this season.

Wilson jumped into an early lead, grabbing a run in the first inning. Ellis doubled and scored on a single by Fassnacht. Greenville came back to tie up in the bottom of the frame, however. Eddy Connolly reached on a fielder's choice and stole second. Wright Hooks singled, and a wild pitch let Connolly score.

Greenville then pushed into a 2-1 lead in the third. Mike Belton led off with a double and Connolly reached on an error. Hooks reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Belton.

But that was it for the locals, who failed to produce again. Meanwhile, Wilson went to work and got three runs in the fifth to regain the lead.

Williams led off the frame with a single and Whitley got a hit. Ellis reached on a fielder's choice, getting Whitley at second. Corbett doubled in Williams, and a double by Fassnacht brought in the other two runs, giving Wilson a 4-2 lead.

They added four more in the sixth. Jones reached on an error and Prince singled. Both were sacrificed up, and Ellis walked to load the bases. Corbett also walked forcing in Jones. Barnes reached on an error, scoring Prince. Errors let the other runs in.

Wilson closed out with two in the eight. Ellis singled and Corbett doubled him in, moving to third on an error. He scored on a wild pitch.

Williams, Fassnacht, Corbett and Ellis each picked up two hits for Wilson. No one got more than one for Greenville.

Greenville travels to Rocky Mount on Thursday.

Moose Slip By Big Value

Lloyd Jackson threw a two-hitter at the Moose Monday but gave up 11 walks and lost, 6-5, as Big Value dropped its fifth game.

Big Value rallied for three in the fourth to take a 5-4 lead but failed to hold it as the Moose picked up two in the bottom of the fifth. Big Value got seven hits but failed to get them when they needed them.

The Moose got their first in the second. Billy Stancill walked and scored when Eric Woodworth reached on an error.

Kosta Murakis led off the third with a single ending the no-hitter and Carl Woodworth reached on an error. Billy Godley walked and a walk to Stancill forced in Murakis. A walk to Barry Nichols forced in a run and Curt Lorimer reached on a fielder's choice scoring Stancill.

Big Value had taken a brief lead in the top of the third on Emmett Walsh's two-run homer.

Winterville Gets Victory

WINTERVILLE—Winterville captured a 13-2 victory over Ayden last night in the Pitt County Babe Ruth League.

Ronnie Jones hurled the victory for Winterville, allowing just three hits. He struck out 10. Pony Credley, Johnny Bryant and Ben Hyman each had two hits to lead the Winterville batting. One of Hyman's hits was a double.

All Not Roses For Mark Spitz

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
NEW YORK (AP) — Swimmer Mark Spitz parlayed his seven Olympic gold medals into a $5 million contract, but found only tarnished riches at the end of his rainbow.

Some have labeled him the "$5 Million Dud."

"I was a porpoise out of water," the handsome, 26-year-old swimming wizard said as he pondered one of sport's most astonishing disappointments.

"I was not prepared for the adulation I received. I could not handle the total world," added Spitz in his first introspective interview since dropping out of the spotlight after his 1972 triumph.

Hollywood-handsome, one of the great athletes of the age, a natural for a lucrative career in the movies and on television, the young Californian discovered that his greatest claim to fame was that he drank milk.

"Every time I went into a restaurant or a lounge, they wanted to give me a free glass of milk," Spitz said, recalling the reaction to one of his many television commercials. "I may have helped the milk industry but I found people joking and making fun of me for drinking milk."

Returning from Munich in 1972, with his unprecedented seven gold medals and seven world records, Spitz was hailed as a national hero. He was invited to Washington, where members of Congress gave him a reception normally accorded princes and potentates. Agents fawned over him. Women gushed.

Madison Avenue went batty. He was the hottest commercial commodity of the generation. He was called "the greatest hero since Lindbergh." The William Morris Agency, which specializes in Hollywood talent, landed him for $5 million.

Endorsement bids poured in from all over the world. A clothes manufacturer in Portugal offered $1 million for a five-year contract. A West German sporting goods company proposed $40,000 if Spitz would plug its products. Similar offers came from other companies.

The Morris Agency went to work getting America accustomed to the face of the good-looking Olympic champion. He made his public debut on the Bob Hope Show—normally a springboard to stardom. He saturated the TV screens with appearances on the talk shows—Dinah Shore, Mike Douglas, Merv Griffin, Johnny Carson.

He began—for a princely price—plugging everything from electric razors to swimming pools, milk to hair dryers and credit cards. His price tag for personal appearances was $12,500.

The "Mark Spitz Look" became the thing. Young business types copied the bushy dark hair hanging just slightly over the ears and the well-trimmed mustache.

Then, suddenly, Spitz all but disappeared from the nation's TV screens, except in periodic commercials. His projected movie career went sour.

Norman Brokaw, the agency executive who handled this fragile piece of china, made the excuse that Spitz had been offered as many as 30 movie roles but all had been turned down because they were wrong for his image.

"Everyone wanted to do a Tarzan remake," Brokaw said. "You can't take a hero and have him play a bank robber right away."

Looking back, Spitz could see the matter with greater objectivity and honesty.

"In the beginning, there might have been some exploitation," he said. "Some of the parts were real crazy, not adaptable to my personality. But the situation is stagnant now. I think Hollywood has forgotten about me."

Spitz acknowledged that the fault may lie with his personality. As the world's best swimmer, he was sullen and introverted. He hated interviews. He often ignored and even insulted the press. He was jealous of his own privacy.

"I will admit it, I am a complex person," he said. "I am the first to realize my faults."

"After all, I had spent 12 years of my life swimming and disciplining myself. During that period, I had no chance to cultivate a grace in dealing with other people. I hated to have people always pulling at me, saying, 'Do this, do that.' Undoubtedly, I built up an animosity."

Spitz said he was not resentful of all of the press—"I have had a good press and a bad press"—but that a few may have turned him against the whole.

"First of all, I don't like to talk about myself," he said. "Then I started to get the same questions over and over. All I heard was about medals and money. Nobody ever tried to find out what makes me tick."

Spitz said one of his problems was that he was too honest. He wasn't able to smile and roll with the punches, as some people can. He resented tinsel and phyness.

"Everything with me has been concrete," he continued. "I always tried to give honest answers. When I came back from the Olympics, I wasn't professional. I was functional, not adaptive. That was the trouble."

Once in 1973, Spitz became so discouraged that he threatened to throw everything overboard and devote his life to the cause of Israel. He also said he might return to dental school.

About three years ago Spitz met and married Suzy Weiner, 22, daughter of one of his father's business associates. They live in a two-room condominium in Marina del Rey, on the outskirts of Los Angeles. "We go to some Hollywood affairs, but we are not part of the Hollywood swing set," Spitz said. "Our friends are young like ourselves. They don't drive Rolls-Royces. They treat us as average people. We play tennis and golf. I still swim some. But I never look at the clock."

Lions Run By Union Carbide

Troy Hudson had three of the Lions' five hits yesterday helping the Lions a 14-8 victory over Union Carbide eliminating Carbide from the North State Little League race.

Marshall Rand started for the Lions and went five innings getting the win. He struck out four, walked two and gave up nine hits. Hudson finished the game preserving the win.

The Lions broke into the lead with four runs in the third. Scott Galloway walked and Ed Frazier reached on an error scoring Galloway. Roger Williams singled scoring Frazier and after Hudson single, both he and Williams scored on a fielder's choice.

Union Carbide cut the lead to 4-3 in the bottom of the frame when Vince Hankins popped a three-run homer.

Two walks and a single in the fourth loaded the bases for the Lions and Hudson knocked in a run with a second hit. Two runs scored on passed balls and Hudson stole home for an 8-3 lead.

David Moon scored on Greg Wright's double and after moving to third on an error, Wright scored on a passed ball as Union Carbide again trimmed down the lead to 8-5.

But David Jester walked and moved all the way around on passed balls giving the Lions the eventual winner.

The Lions added one more in the fifth and four in the sixth. Union Carbide got a run in the fifth on a hit by Wright and Hankins added a two-run homer in sixth.

Wright, Moon and Hankins had two hits each for Union Carbide.

Carolina Dairy, Pepsi In Wins

Pepsi-Cola and Carolina Dairy earned come-from-behind victories in the Babe Ruth League last night. Pepsi's 7-2 win over NCNB was its first of the year, while Carolina Dairy's 7-6 squeaker over College View was its third straight.

NCNB pushed over both of its runs in the first inning of the opening game. Mark Shank walked and moved up on a wild pitch. Cliff Fearington reached on an error and stole second. Joey Mattheis grounded out, scoring Shank, and Glenn Moore also bounced out, bringing in Fearington for the 2-0 lead.

It stayed that way until the fifth, when Pepsi exploded for six runs. Randy Lorimer led off with a walk and Chip Davis also got a free trip. Lorimer moved to third on an error on a pickoff attempt, and Davis stole second. Bob Morehead reached on a fielder's choice that was errored at home, scoring Lorimer. Marty Worthington also was safe on a fielder's choice, scoring Davis. Calvin Parker grounded out, bringing in Morehead. Mike Norfleet singled in Worthington and Ashley Taylor walked. Both advanced on a balk and scored on Al Shackelford's single.

The other run came in the sixth. Davis opened with a double, moved up on Morehead's grounder that was errored, and scored on Worthington's single.

No one on either team had more than one hit.

Carolina Dairy leaped into the lead in the first inning of the second game, scoring four runs. Peter Pace doubled and Mitch Meeks singled him in. Bobby Woronoff also got a hit, as did Rufus Sutton, scoring Meeks. David Carroll reached on an error, loading the bases, and Howard Tucker singled to score Woronoff and Sutton.

College View came up with three in the fourth. Lindsey Winstead doubled and Steve Hawkins got a hit. Jimmy Clemons doubled both runners across, and scored on Patrick Wilson's double.

In the fifth, College View tied it up with a run. Hawkins reached on an error, stole second, and Clemons singled. Wilson reached on an error, scoring Hawkins.

Two more came across in the sixth, giving College View a 6-4 lead. Tim Harris reached on an error and was sacrificed up. He scored on Ricky West's single. West moved around to third on the play and scored on Winstead's hit.

But Carolina Dairy came back with three in the bottom of the sixth to win it. Marshall Heath singled and was sacrificed up. George Wilson reached on an error and both moved up on a balk. Pace reached on an error, scoring both runners. Pace stole second, and Mike Williams singled. An error on the play moved both up, but Williams was caught off second and chased in a rundown. During the play, Pace scampered home to score the game-winning run.

West, Winstead and Clemons each had two hits for College View, while Tucker had two for Carolina Dairy.

NBA Draft Had Olympic Effect

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Today's National Basketball Association draft had a great effect on last week's United States Olympic basketball trials.

Robert Parish of Centenary and Leon Douglas of Alabama, both certain first-round choices in the NBA draft, pulled out of the trials because they feared damaging their chances at pro contracts. They felt an injury or bad showing during the trials or Games could have been devastating.

But two other sure first-round picks, All Americans Scott May of Indiana and Adrian Dantley of Notre Dame, tried out and made the Olympic team with no concern about the draft.

"I'm not here to impress the pros," said May, college basketball's player of the year. "My value won't change. What does the Olympics decide compared to what I've done for the last four years?"

Dantley, who did not withdraw his name from the hardship draft list, agreed.

"I know a lot of guys dropped out because they didn't want to get hurt," he said. "But you don't play the same here as you do during the season. There's much more of a team concept."

Others expected to go early in the draft but missing from the Olympic trials were UCLA teammates Richard Washington and Marques Johnson, both hardship cases, and guard John Lucas of Maryland.

The hardship players had until 5 p.m. EDT Monday to withdraw their names from draft consideration. Among those who pulled back and decided to remain in college were Bo Ellis of Marquette, Bernard King of Tennessee, Tree Rollins of Clemson, and Rickey Green of Michigan.

Houston owned the first choice in today's draft, acquiring it from Atlanta Monday along with center Dwight Jones in exchange for center Joe Muiweather, guard Gus Bailey and the Rockets' first-round pick.

Until that deal was made, Atlanta had been expected to go for Parish to solve the team's problem at center.

Moving Umbarger Out Of Bullpen Proved Good Move For Rangers

By GORDON BEARD
AP Sports Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) — When Frank Lucchesi replaced Billy Martin as manager of the stumbling Texas Rangers last July 21, he was able to experiment while evaluating the club for the remainder of the season.

The Rangers, expected to challenge Oakland in the American League's Western Division, had a 44-51 record when Martin departed. Lucchesi had little to lose by making changes.

One of the moves was to take rookie pitcher Jim Umbarger out of the bullpen and make him a starter. Lucchesi's reasoning may not have come from the managerial handbook, but so far it's worked.

Umbarger relieved 44 times last season, but his last eight appearances were starts and he won the last four to finish at 8-7. This year, Umbarger has been strictly a starter, and he is 6-4 after beating the Baltimore Orioles 6-4 Monday night with ninth-inning relief help from Steve Foucault.

In the only other American League games played, the Kansas City Royals blanked the Detroit Tigers 10-0 and the Minnesota Twins trimmed the Cleveland Indians 7-2.

In his last four starts, the slender Umbarger has allowed three earned runs in 33 1-3 innings. He pitched two shutouts, one shortened to five innings by rain, and lost 1-0 in 11 innings. Against the Orioles, he took a 6-2 lead into the ninth inning after scattering seven hits, including a solo home run by Bobby Grich in the eighth.

But after Baltimore loaded the bases on a fielding error by Texas shortstop Toby Harrah, a single by Ken Singleton and a walk, Umbarger was replaced by Foucault, an old nemesis of the Orioles.

Pinch hitter Tony Muser fouled out on the first pitch and then after Mark Belanger singled for two unearned runs, Grich fanned while bidding for his fourth hit and the slumping Orioles lost for the seventh time in nine starts.

Texas rapped out 12 hits off Ross Grimsley, 1-4, and Mike Cuellar, who made his first relief appearance in eight years with Baltimore. Gene Clines, who opened the game with a triple and scored on Lenny Randle's single, also singled home two runs in the second. During a three-run sixth, Tom Grieve drove in his 11th run in 12 games.

Baltimore's Reggie Jackson, who left the game after re-injuring his right wrist while striking out in the eighth, was hitless in three trips. With two hits in his last 26 at bats, Jackson is batting .205.

Royals 10, Tigers 0

Frank White drove in five runs with a single and a triple and Hal McRae had four hits, including a homer, as Kansas City maintained its 2 1/2-game lead over Texas in the AL West. Steve Busby, 2-1, got the win with relief help from Mark Littell. Vern Ruhle, 4-2, took the loss.

Twins 7, Indians 2

Butch Wynegar's two-run homer and Larry Hise's two-run single helped Minnesota send Cleveland down to its fifth loss in its last six games. Dave Goltz, 6-2, scattered nine hits for the victory. Rick Waits, 0-1, was the loser.

Pirates Outslug Reds In Homer Hitting Contest By 5-4 Score

By HOWARD SMITH
AP Sports Writer

The Pittsburgh Pirates and the Cincinnati Reds put on a home run hitting contest before a regional television audience Monday night and the early reviews were mixed.

The Pirates came out on top 5-4, so the 16,001 fans at Three Rivers Stadium loved it. So did Richie Zisk because his pinch homer in the eighth, the seventh solo home run of the night, was the decisive blow.

"It looked like a driving range," said Zisk. "It was spectacular, an exciting game."

Pirate starter Bruce Kison enjoyed some of it. "It was really fun when we were doing it to them," said Kison. "But it wasn't so much fun when they reversed it on me."

And Cincinnati manager Sparky Anderson didn't like it at all. "It was dull," grumbled Anderson. "They're all dull when you lose."

Elsewhere in the National League, Philadelphia trimmed Los Angeles 8-6, San Diego dumped the New York Mets 5-1 and St. Louis edged Houston 7-6.

Pittsburgh didn't get a hit Monday night until the fifth inning and Cincinnati didn't get one until the sixth. The Pirates stole a run in the sixth when Frank Taveras singled, stole second and came all the way home on throwing errors by Reds' catcher Bill Plummer and center fielder Cesar Geronimo.

Then balls started jumping into the seats. Joe Morgan ended Kison's no-hitter with a lead-off homer in the seventh. The Pirates countered on round-trippers by Al Oliver, Willie Stargell and Bill Robinson off Jack Billingham in their half of the seventh to go ahead 4-1.

Not to be outdone, Cincinnati struck back in the eighth to tie it 4-4. Morgan clouted his second homer of the night, Pete Rose hit one and the Reds picked up another run when Tony Perez scored from first base as Pittsburgh right fielder Dave Parker misplayed George Foster's single.

Then Zisk settled matters with his drive off Reds' reliever Will McEnaney in the eighth. The seven home runs tied the major league record for most solo homers in a nine-inning game.

Four ABA Clubs Seeking Merger

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Owners of four American Basketball Association franchises say they are willing to pay the price, steep though it may be, to join the National Basketball Association and end the often heated, nine-year-old rivalry of the two pro leagues.

Heads of the ABA's Denver, New York, Indiana and San Antonio franchises have decided that if they get the opportunity, they will agree to an initiation fee of $4.5 million apiece to join the NBA.

But that $4.5 million is just the beginning. High ABA sources estimate that it could cost a franchise anywhere from $6.5 million to $8 million to get into the NBA. And for the New York Nets, who would almost certainly have to pay a territorial indemnity to the NBA's New York Knicks, it could run as high as $12 million.

For the owners of the two other ABA franchises, Kentucky and St. Louis, those figures were simply too high.

Those two clubs have agreed to bow out of the picture on one condition — that the remaining four ABA teams buy out their franchises. It was not clear whether the other clubs had agreed to do so at their meeting in Chicago which ended Monday, although it was there the only thing holding up a merger they undoubtedly would.

Such action would remove one major stumbling block to consolidation of the rival leagues. Though no formal offer was made, the NBA's expansion committee, at an inter-league meeting May 28, laid the groundwork for future negotiation by suggesting that the senior circuit might be willing to accept four ABA teams at $4.5 million per.

The immediate problem was that the ABA had six clubs — what to do about the other two? That has apparently been resolved by the cost factor.

The reason Kentucky — and the owners of the St. Louis club, which had been slated to be moved to Utah — declined is money.

John Y. Brown, outspoken president of the ABA and husband of Ellie, owner of the Colonels, said the price for joining the NBA "was totally unrealistic. They priced Louisville out of the market. Somewhere in pro sports, rational reason is going to have to take its place."

The money is also a big windfall, if you look at it from the other side. The $4.5 million initiation fee for the four incoming teams breaks down to an even $1 million for each of the existing 18 NBA clubs.

Then there's the TV money. When the NBA signed a new four-year contract with CBS last month, the network agreed to pay the league a total of $43 million, plus an additional $4.9 million should the league add four more teams — thus creating extra television markets and making the NBA a more attractive proposition for advertisers.

Sources indicate that one provision of the consolidation would be that the ex-ABA teams would not share in television revenue for the first few years.

Pitchers Paul and Rick Reuschel of the Chicago Cubs are natives of Quincy, Ill.

BOWLING GREEN, Ohio (AP) — "It sounded like it might be ominous but it turned out just to be a lightbulb," President Ford said after he and his Secret Service detail were startled by a flashbulb burst.

Ford was leaving the Bowling Green University field house Monday after a campaign appearance when the flashbulb on a coed's camera apparently malfunctioned and exploded with a loud pop, sending fragments flying through the air.

The President, sunburned from a weekend of outdoor campaigning, turned ashen as Secret Service agents grabbed him, spun him around and pushed him to the floor while other bodyguards rushed into the crowd.

Within moments, Ford was on his feet and announced "I'm all right." He left the auditorium smiling and waving.

White House physician William Lukash said the President was unharmed.

The photographer was released immediately after the agents realized it had been an accident.

When Ford later told newsmen the explosion had sounded "ominous," he was asked if he were injured. "I look pretty healthy, don't I," he replied.

Martin Board OKs Kindergarten Plans

WILLIAMSTON — The Martin County Board of Education on Monday approved the 1976-77 kindergarten status report. The report shows that because of the loss of Title I funds for the coming fiscal year in support of the kindergarten program, there will be fewer kindergarten spaces and teachers although more kindergarten students will be enrolled in the program.

A resolution was approved for Jamesville High School to begin a self-study reevaluation program in connection with efforts to meet Southern Accreditation standards.

Four students presented appeals asking for relief from failing to meet the state required 150 day attendance record in order to be promoted to the next higher grade. Two of the requests were approved, based on extenuating circumstances; the other two were tabled to be considered at the next board meeting.

Superintendent of Martin County Schools Eugene Rogers reported that beginning with the next fiscal year, the Budget Fiscal Control Act requires that the board of education, instead of the County Commissioners, handle the administration of school funds.

Two types of contracts were approved — one is for career teachers, the other for teachers on a probationary status.

A special call budget meeting for the board to present the budget request to the County Commissioners was set for tonight.

The bidding:

2NT Pass 3♦ Pass
4♦ Pass 5♦ Pass
6♦ Pass 5♣ Pass
Opening lead: Four of ♣.

Imagine that you are South and how you play six spades on this hand will determine whether or not you represent your country in this year's world championship. Cover up the East and West hands with your thumbs and plan your play after the lead of a low diamond from West. Trumps split 2-2.

You were a trifle ambitious in the auction. Since your side was employing a 21-22 range for an opening two no trump bid, North correctly judged that, for a spade contract, his hand was an absolute maximum. He showed this by cue-bidding the ace of clubs after you bid your spade suit. When you then elected to cue-bid your second round club control, North would have been timid indeed had he bid less than six spades.

After the lead of a low diamond, it would seem that you have a loser in each red suit. However, all is not lost—there is always the possibility of an endplay. For this to succeed, you have to find one defender with both high hearts and no more than two diamonds.

Correct technique is to win the king of diamonds and draw two rounds of trumps. Now cash the king and ace of clubs and ruff a club. Enter dummy with the ace of diamonds and ruff the remaining club. This leaves you with a trump in your hand and two in dummy.

You have completed your groundwork for the partial strip. You know that East has no more diamonds. All you have to do now is find him with both the king and queen of hearts. Cash the ace of hearts and continue with a heart to the jack. Your excellent technique is rewarded. East must win the heart and, since he is forced to return a heart, you can ruff in your hand while discarding dummy's diamond loser. Dummy's two trumps take the last two tricks, and you chalk up your vulnerable slam.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day and evening that could bring arguments, so make sure to refuse to become involved in any controversies. Handle difficult situations with tact.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Follow through with plans you have made. Be more gentle with mate who is in an argumentative mood. Don't spend money foolishly.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Make sure you carry through with agreements made with associates. Don't have a confrontation with one who opposes you.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Being more cooperative with fellow workers brings good results at this time. Do nothing that could injure your health or your clothing.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Once your work is done, engage in your favorite hobby. Don't criticize good friends. Help them instead. Show kindness.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Try to handle outside affairs early in the day and accomplish a great deal. A new interest needs more study before going ahead with your plan.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Make sure that you exercise care in motion and avoid a possible accident. Sidelstep any controversies with others at this time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Be careful not to overspend when out shopping. Try to add to your savings account instead of spending money unwisely. Be sure of yourself.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't be so determined to have your own way all the time or you could get into trouble. Listen carefully to the good suggestions of others.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Attend to important work early in the day. Take time for improving your health during spare hours. Don't waste valuable time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Try to find the right way to gain your aims so that you need not put up with annoyances. Don't rely on a friend at this time.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Know what your true position is in the community and then take steps to improve it. Stop putting off a credit affair.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You may want to engage in new activities but it best you carry through with work at hand. A new plan needs more revision before going ahead.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will do most anything to have own way so be sure to give the finest moral teaching early so that efforts will be trended in the right direction. Be sure to praise for any exceptional work done. Don't neglect spiritual training.

Traynham said conference ministers' salaries since 1971 increased 35.62 per cent. He also said per capita contributions have increased during the period from $70.68 in 1971 to $93.27 in 1975.

Thirty persons were named

$2.8 Million Budget Presented For Williamston

WILLIAMSTON—A 1976-77 budget proposal for a total of $2,801,854 was presented by budget planners to the Williamston Town Board at the board's June meeting on Monday night.

Of this amount, $1,069,000 is proposed for general services; $1,040,000 for community development; and $212,000 for the water and sewage system. Other items and budget amounts proposed are: General revenue sharing, $238,705; sewage treatment plant, $103,489; the Martin County Communications System, $56,666; debt service, $50,135; the senior citizens program, $18,359; and Title 10 Manpower funds, $13,500.

The board will study the budget proposal and will take action at an early date.

A Martin County surgeon, Dr. Frank Sheldon, presented a report recommending needs to upgrade the rescue squad service. Among his recommendations are the establishment of a joint Williamston-Martin County full time service that would expand the current two full-time employees now in the rescue service. Another proposal is for cross-training of police and fire department personnel in rescue operations. The board will study Dr. Sheldon's recommendations and make a decision on what can be done.

The town board authorized payment of $5 weekly as a bonus to all employees who qualify to give emergency medical treatment. The program of emergency treatment training extends over a number of weeks.

Bids opened for a new fire-truck chassis resulted in a low bid of $19,495 by Du-Rall Ford Truck Sales in Raleigh. Bids from other firms were for $24,763 and $23,720. Sherman Pickett, League of Municipalities advisor for Williamston, asked and the board granted him time to review the bids prior to action by the town board. The town has a 30 day period before having to accept a bid. On bids for a 1,000 per minute water pump, only one bid was received. As a result, bids for this item will be readvertised.

The General Revenue Sharing plan for the coming fiscal year was approved, amounting to a total of $94,498. Of this amount, $60,000 is for salaries and general operation; $10,000 for recreation; $20,000 for the library; and $4,498 for capital improvement projects.

Also approved was a lease with Dan Bowen at $2,500 annually for the land and building now being used as the Police Club. The lease is for a period of three years.

The board designated John Boykin and Henry Leggett as staff personnel to review any labor complaints that may arise in the community's development programs. Such liaison personnel are required by HUD for community development programs.

In a report to the board, Town Administrator John Boykin informed that on May 13 the N.C. Division of Environmental Management had approved the 201 facility proposal for the sewage plant and had forwarded the plan to the environmental regional office in Atlanta. Boykin noted that Atlanta has advised that a grant offer can be expected by June 30. A public hearing has been set for June 25 on three rezoning proposals, all for the western development area of Williamston. Each proposal deals with a request for commercial usage in a highway zone.

Sees No Prison Internal Control

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — "We don't have internal control here," said Central Prison warden Sam Garrison. "We have periphery control in the sense of walls and gun towers."

"We have internal supervision in the sense of one officer overseeing 140 inmates in a dormitory, but that doesn't dictate control," he said.

Garrison has what some call the hardest job in state government — trying to keep the lid on an aging building that is bursting at the seams because of acute overcrowding.

The 92-year-old prison was built to house 860 inmates. Its present population is about 1,350.

The state must either provide additional space immediately or face the prospect of a federal takeover of the corrections system, Garrison said in an interview with The Charlotte News.

"We're full. There's no place else to put anybody," he said.

FBI agents toured Central Prison a few weeks ago to investigate charges filed by inmates in Asheville of intolerable conditions.

Garrison said he personally spends two half-days a week visiting the cellblocks and dormitories to listen to complaints and problems.

"There's a lot of frustration to being so crowded and having to move in masses," he said.

"But, I think they (the inmates) know we've done the best we could under the circumstances."

The problem has forced housing of some inmates in corridors, a converted gymnasium and converted supply rooms. Makeshift bathrooms have been installed in closets and prisoners are doubled up in cells.

"The population is generally responsive," Garrison said. "They know we're trying to do our best."

Cable Facilities Being Placed To Serve Hospital

D. A. Collier, Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company's manager, said today that cable facilities are being placed to serve the Pitt County hospital.

The complexity of the area west of Greenville is changing rapidly, Collier said. A 2-200-acre medical district development plan has been approved by the city of Greenville, and residential and shopping growth will also be a part of the complex.

The telephone project will cost approximately $43,500. The proposed underground cable is sized to conform with existing feeder facilities and will meet the forecast ten-year requirements in this area, according to Collier.

Food Service Chapter Meets

The newly organized Pitt County School Food Service Association Chapter met recently at E. B. Aycock School. This is a professional organization of the Pitt County and Greenville City school food service employees.

Mrs. Mary Rogers, president, welcomed the 36 members and four guests present and presided over the business session.

Mrs. Rogers announced that the chapter affiliation certificate had been received March 31, 1976 making the organization of the chapter official. The chapter was organized with a membership of 55.

Mrs. Linda Nobles, area school food service consultant, was guest speaker. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Mary Johnson and Mrs. Erma Jones.

A program is being planned for the September meeting. The program will be centered around getting new members and telling the story and purpose of the chapter.

Women's Golf Class Planned

The Greenville Recreation and Parks Department will begin a new session of women's beginning golf instructions on Wednesday, June 9. Classes will be held each Monday, Wednesday and Friday thru June 18, and will meet from 10:00 until 11:00. Anyone interested should come to the field adjacent to the Allied Health Building, Wednesday at 10:00 a.m.

For further information call the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department, 752-4137, extension 251.

Belvoir Cleanup Slated Thursday

In support of Keep Pitt County Beautiful, the Belvoir Extension Homemaker Club is spearheading a community clean-up on Thursday. Scouts and church youth will be going along Belvoir roads picking up trash. Members of the community will be driving trucks to take the trash to the county landfill.

Members of the planning committee are Mrs. Clarence Barnhill, chairman, Mrs. E. C. Lewis, and Mrs. W. K. Clark. Anyone in the community who wants a junk car moved or dilapidated building burned should call Mrs. Barnhill.

Volunteers are to meet at the Belvoir Fire Department at 9:00 a.m. Thursday. The Extension Homemakers will be serving hot dogs at lunch to the volunteers.

Agenda Readied

Three agenda items, all reports, are scheduled for the June meeting of the Recreation and Parks Commission at 8 p.m. on Wednesday, June 9. The meeting will take place in the office of director Boyd Lee at the Elm Street Gymnasium. Items listed are: a report from the nominating committee; a report on the resolution adopted by the City Council for nonresident user fees; and a report on the summer playground program.
