

Carter Juggernaut Picks Up Near-Certain Victory On First Ballot At N.Y.

By DICK BARNES Associated Press Writer It's all over but the counting. Delegates by the dozens are joining the Jimmy Carter juggernaut, making it nearly certain the Georgia peanut farmer will be the Democratic presidential nominee.

endorsements in a show of party unity. Many of his primary opponents — George Wallace, Henry Jackson, Frank Church and Morris Udall — proclaimed Carter a certain winner. The scorecard at the Democratic National Committee showed Carter with 1,514 delegates, nine more than needed for a convention victory in July.

second-place finishes in New Jersey and California, catapulted Carter to the fabled tipping point; by today the opposing field had dwindled away.

As dozens of uncommitted delegates pledged support for Carter, he was within grasp of hundreds more now officially committed elsewhere or still uncommitted.

While the delegate roundup continued, Carter's tasks became the selection of a running mate, solidifying party unity, and planning a general election campaign against either Gerald Ford or Ronald Reagan.

According to the Associated Press survey of publicly committed delegates, Carter already can claim a definite 1,206, with enough more to bring him the nomination expected to join the bandwagon in the weeks before the mid-July Democratic national convention in New York.

Chicago Mayor Richard Daley, barred from the 1972 Democratic convention, studied the Ohio results and said he'd vote for Carter. Adlai Stevenson III released the bloc of 86 Illinois delegates committed to him and most were likely to go to the former Georgia governor.

George Wallace, crippled by a gunman while seeking the nomination four years ago and routed in the early Southern primaries by Carter, endorsed Carter and asked his 168 delegates to follow suit. It ended the Alabama governor's fourth and final try for the White House.

Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, seeker of the presidency since 1960 who hoped the party would come to him this year, refused to authorize a campaign in his behalf, saying Carter was "virtually certain" to be nominated.

Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington, well financed as the campaign began but badly drubbed by Carter in the Pennsylvania primary, told supporters he will endorse Carter and try to deliver his 248 delegates.

Sen. Frank Church of Idaho and Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona, who also challenged Carter, as much as acknowledged the race was over.

Liberal party leaders, such as Sens. George McGovern and Edward Kennedy, also noted Carter's victory and pledged support.

Wallace, cool to previous party nominees, said all he asked of Carter was "to try to make all the people of his country one of the finest presidents we've ever had."

Only California Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., who started late but beat Carter in every primary where they met, insisted the race remained open.

The Republican chase was neck-and-neck, and was not likely to end before the party's national convention in August.

Reagan won 167 delegates when he stomped Ford in California's winner-take-all primary. But Ford countered with a 67-delegate sweep in New Jersey and a 94-3 margin in Ohio.

Ford now takes a 965 to 862 lead in total delegates into the climactic series of GOP conventions and delegate-awarding meetings in 13 states where nearly 300 delegates are at stake. At the August convention in Kansas City, 1,130 votes will be required for nomination.

For Carter, the arithmetic was far clearer

More School Funds Asked From County

By STUART SAVAGE Reflector Staff Writer

Nine individuals, representing groups or speaking for themselves, appeared in support of increased funding for the Greenville City Schools at a public hearing held by Pitt County Commissioners yesterday.

The pro-city schools spokesmen dominated the hearing, designed to give the public an opportunity to comment on all aspects of the county's proposed $16.2 million 1976-1977 budget.

Only the first person appearing at the hearing — Mrs. Rhea Resnik, representing the League of Women Voters — commented on other aspects of the budget.

Mrs. Resnik said, "We are sorry that again you have elected not to embark upon a program of development of county recreational facilities."

"I and 'likewise, regret that you have failed to recommend token funding for... a Pitt County Council on the Status of Women." But then, just as the speakers to follow, she turned her attention to the school funding issue.

According to the spokesman, the League of Women voters "feel we must focus our attention on the plight of our schools. Even though a large portion of our county budget is already allocated to schools, we feel there is a pressing need for additional funds."

Mrs. Resnik continued, "We do not understand why the Pitt County School District's current expense levy was raised, since the explanation given a few years ago when the Greenville District supplementary levy was dropped was that the city and county school district tax rates were to be equalized. Now, the terminology regarding equalization has changed; it is used for per pupil appropriations, rather than tax rates."

Saying that the league believes both the county and city system need "a massive infusion of funds for capital outlay above and beyond that in the proposed budget," Mrs. Resnik suggested "the reinstatement of the Greenville district 20-cents capital outlay supplemental levy and an equivalent appropriation for the county system." (A 20-cents levy for capital improvements would yield $640,000 operation of the school plant, repairs and maintenance of existing buildings, as well as new buildings

"Obviously some needs must be assigned greater priorities than others," Mrs. Frost continued. "Mr. Gray has stated in his budget message that he has focused attention on the child, and we commend his recommendation to raise the current expense levy in the Pitt County schools to 20 cents per $100 valuation."

She suggested that a similar raise in the Greenville district levy would "go a long way" toward meeting the requests of the Greenville schools. "It would permit the restoration to their instructional services budget the approximate amount that has been cut — around $122,000."

As far as the capital outlay program is concerned, Mrs. Frost recommended "the restoration of the 20-cents capital outlay levy" for the Greenville district.

"Mr. Gray has told you that he believes you should seek voter approval for such capital expenditures. To us, it is better fiscal management to levy a tax for capital expenditures than to float a bond — which must be repaid, by tax money, and with interest."

The other speakers that followed, including Linda Shuping (representing the professional teachers associations in Greenville) and Art Galya (speaking for the Greenville Chamber of Commerce) — Merchants Association also urged the levying of the special 20-cents capital outlay levy for Greenville.

Galya said if the commissioners would approve the levy "the Chamber of Commerce will create a committee" to educate the public as to the need for and support for the special tax.

During a discussion session before school officials from both the Pitt and Greenville districts explained their requests, Gray pointed out that from local money raised for current expenses, pupils in the county system received, $198.94 per child while students in the city system received $232.33, during the current fiscal year.

The county manager, who has recommended a five cents increase in the special district levy for the Pitt District in order to equalize the per-child expenditure, noted that in the past few years, both the city and county systems have received "equal dollars for capital outlay." On a per-pupil basis, he added that the county has built two new schools and made additions to seven buildings with its money.

Gray pointed out also, that while the city district has one

Transit Manager

City Manager James E. Caldwell announced the appointment of Robert Tallo as the Transit Manager for the Greenville Area Transit System.

Prior to accepting the transit position here, Tallo had served as acting superintendent of operations for the Chapel Hill Transit System, it was noted. Caldwell said that Tallo has "acquired a strong working knowledge of the operation and administration of a transit system by serving as dispatcher, training instructor, and supervisor with the Chapel Hill system."

A 1969 graduate of Cornell University, Tallo attended graduate school at the University of North Carolina prior to his employment with the town of Chapel Hill.

The post of transit manager here carries a salary range of $12,326-$15,732.

RALEIGH (AP) — The number of ineligible receiving Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) is decreasing in North Carolina, according to a social services report.

A six-month quality control report by the Division of Social Services of the Department of Human Resources indicates that the number of ineligible receiving AFDC decreased from 4.6 per cent of the cases during the first six months of 1975 to 3.9 per cent during the last six months. Overpayments decreased from 16.2 to 13.0 per cent. Underpayments went from 12.4 per cent to 8.5 per cent.

The Division noted that the percentage of eligibles receiving AFDC in 1975 was 7.7, with 21.3 per cent overpayments and 19.2 per cent underpayments.

AFDC eligibility is determined by county social services specialists. They also determine the amount of monthly payments for which recipients are eligible.

Budget Hearing

The City Council will hold a public hearing tonight at city hall on the 1976-77 budget proposal for Greenville as submitted by J. E. Caldwell, City Manager.

The budget hearing is scheduled to get underway at 8 p.m.

Recreation Bd. Elections Held

Dr. Edgar Hooks was elected chairman of the Greenville Parks and Recreation Commission and Mrs. Dorothy Wooles was elected vice-chairman for the coming year.

The elections took place at the June meeting of the commission last night.

Dr. Hooks succeeds Tom Foreman, Sr., and Mrs. Wooles succeeds Mrs. John East.

In a meeting otherwise dealing only with a couple of reports, the committee previously appointed to study nonresident user fees was asked to bring to the July meeting a recommendation for a schedule of fees applicable for non-Greenville residents making use of the facilities.

The City Council earlier this month adopted a resolution to charge fees to persons living outside the city limits who use the Greenville recreational facilities.

The committee recommendation will have to take into account a number of factors, such as individual use and that of persons participating in a group activity, such as Babe Ruth and Little Leagues and the Tennis Club.

The report on the summer playground program made by Director Boyd Lee revealed that plans are for the mobile recreation van to visit several communities this summer on a rotating basis. The van carries personnel and various equipment to serve young people in outlying communities not near a regular recreational facility.

In his concluding remarks, Dr. Carter stated "the president needs the freedom to serve as the Chief Administrative Officer, the full authority to make decisions granted by policy and laws and the full support of the board of trustees."

The president then asked to be excused from the meeting. Before he left, one trustee, Mrs. Patsy Bowser,

There are no reserved tickets left for the All-Star game and no orders are being accepted by mail, according to the Baseball Commissioner's office in New York City. There will be a limited number of standing-room-only tickets sold at Veterans' Stadium in Philadelphia, but these will have to be purchased at the stadium box office, beginning June 26. The address of the stadium, which has sole authority for issuing all-star game tickets is Veterans' Stadium, Broad Street and Patterson Avenue, Philadelphia, Pa. 19148.

A local baseball fan we consulted suggested that you find out right away where the All-Star game will be played next year and write and ask to be put on this stadium's mailing list so you can be in line to be among the first mail-order ticket getters next year if you wish.

Martin Tech's Prexy Given Confidence Vote

By JERRY RAYNOR Reflector Staff Writer WILLIAMSTON — By a vote of nine to two, members of the Board of Trustees of Martin Technical Institute (MTI) on Wednesday night reaffirmed their confidence in Dr. Joseph B. Carter, newly-elected president of the institute.

The majority confidence vote given the school's president is expected to calm the current controversy that has revolved around Martin Tech following Dr. Carter's recent recommendation that six staff members not have their contracts renewed. Martin County citizens have expressed grave concern about the future of MTI and the image of the institute, which is slated to become a community college in July.

In an explanation made following the trustees meeting, Dr. Carter noted that as of Wednesday, two of the six — Dr. Rudolph Everett, Coordinator of Title 3 Consortium Funds and Bill Harrison, MTI's Evening Director, would remain "after our having reached a compromise." Miss Lynn Cutrell, a PBX operator, has resigned, and a decision on Miss Hazel Frady, a bookkeeper, Dr. Carter said, "is pending."

The two whose "renewal of contracts are not being recommended" are Spencer McRorie, an English teacher, and Miss Julianna Dowell, a math teacher.

Under provisions of county laws, trustee regulations and state laws, the institute's president has the authority to recommend or not recommend the renewal of contracts of the school's staff.

At the beginning of the call meeting, Dr. Carter read a ten-point position paper to the board of trustees. Among the hopes for goals stated in his paper "in order for Martin Tech to become as well as be sustained as a comprehensive community college," Dr. Carter included:

"Build quality programs relevant to local needs with limited equipment and operation funds;

"Ready the total institution to pass Southern Association by May 1977;

"Recruit a large number of students for the vocational, technical and college parallel programs from Martin and surrounding counties;

"Assess existing programs — eliminate, modify or add (programs) relevant to student needs as well as set minimum proficiency standards for graduation;

"Develop a comprehensive pay plan, recruit faculty for college transfer programs.

"Establish harmony and a sense of unity and duty among faculty and staff; and

"Maintain a proficient faculty and staff by attrition, inservice training and recruitment."

Dr. Carter told the board (you) "have been kept informed of all personnel recommendations. These recommendations were made after working with the faculty and staff for approximately nine months.

(Dr. Carter took over as acting president on September 11, 1975 following the dismissal of the previous president, Dr. E. M. Hunt. The board of trustees later asked him to submit an application for the position of president, and approved him as president on April 15, 1976.

The board's choice was given final approval by the N.C. State Board of Education a month ago, on May 6.

In his concluding remarks, Dr. Carter stated "the president needs the freedom to serve as the Chief Administrative Officer, the full authority to make decisions granted by policy and laws and the full support of the board of trustees."

The president then asked to be excused from the meeting. Before he left, one trustee, Mrs. Patsy Bowser,

Miss Jane Wilson Porter Weds Sunday Afternoon

SIMPSON — The marriage ceremony of Jane Wilson Porter and Alfred Jeffrey Tucker was solemnized Sunday afternoon at three o'clock in the Salem United Methodist Church.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Richard Arno. A program of wedding music was presented by Lois Jane Stocks of Greenville, organist, and Mrs. Mary F. Fornes of Greenville, aunt of the bride, vocalist.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Judson Porter of Rt. 9, Greenville, the bride was given in marriage by her parents. She wore a formal length gown of white organza over white taffeta designed with an open squared neckline outlined in white cluny lace beaded with pearls. The waistline of the empire fitted bodice was encircled in the matching lace. The full bishop sleeves were trimmed in the cluny lace with ruffles at the cuffs. Panels of matching lace were featured on the modified A-line skirt. A deep ruffled flounce edged in miniature Venise lace complemented the skirt and attached chapel train.

The bride wore a tiered illusion veil edged in cluny lace held in place by a Camelot cap covered in lace to match her gown. She carried a full cascade tapered bouquet of phalaenopsis orchids, cascades of miniature carnations, centered with white orchids and baby's breath tied with satin.

Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Burney Tucker of Winterville.

The matron of honor was Teresa Cobb of Farmville, sister of the bride, and the maid of honor was Polly Fornes, cousin of the bride. They wore floral print gowns of voile over taffeta in apricot with a touch of blue. The gowns were styled with sweetheart necklines, puff sleeves, high waistlines with a sash and a ruffle around the hemline. They wore apricot garden hats.

Bridesmaids were Vicki Harrell of New Bern, Sylvia White, Cathy Buck, Denyse Buck, cousin of the bride, Loretta Adams and Susan Moore, sister of the bridegroom, all of Greenville. ## Brass Buttons Are Intriguing

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: A girl I work with is uniform-crazy. When she sees a man in a uniform she just flips. She has lost her head over policemen, airline pilots, ushers, servicemen and even bellhops. I saw her tip a doorman a dollar once for opening a door for her just because she liked his looks. She's not a kid. She's a 28-year-old woman and should know better. How can I talk her out of it?

SANDY

DEAR SANDY: Talking won't do it. She has a fixation—brass buttons. Introduce her to a Salvation Army man. Maybe he can save her soul.

DEAR ABBY: While buying postage stamps at the post office, the man behind me complained to the stamp clerk that the price of postage was about to break him. The postal employee said, "Well, either deliver the letter yourself or call long distance!"

That postal employee should bear these facts in mind: Since 1956, long-distance telephone rates have been DECREASED 14 times and increased only twice!

On the other hand, look at what has happened to the postal rates:

First Class	Air Mail
1956-- 3 cents	1956-- 5 cents
1958-- 4 cents	1958-- 7 cents
1963-- 5 cents	1964-- 8 cents
1968-- 6 cents	1968--10 cents
1971-- 8 cents	1971--11 cents
1974--10 cents	1974--13 cents
1975--13 cents (first ounce and 11 cents for each additional ounce)	1975--(All first-class mail now goes air.)

WOONSOCKET

DEAR WOON: It's still a bargain. And that last increase has had a sobering effect on us. Now we stop and wonder if what we have to say is really worth 13 cents.

How To Create New Recipe

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

It usually takes experience, ingenuity and good taste to create a new and interesting recipe. On the other hand, sometimes an inexperienced cook will have a bit of luck and come up with a just-right combination.

Marie Walsh belongs in the first category of cooks. As the editor of a cookbook series, she often has to fill a gap: a particular kind of dish is needed—one that will both please readers and make a smashing color photograph. Her latest effort in this direction is a chicken dish with vegetables and fruit that should appeal to America's current taste for Far Eastern and Hawaiian flavors.

Marie says that inspiration for a cook who's ready to create may be "what's in the house." In her case she wanted to use economical chicken wings. What to put with them? She happened to have a good many vegetables (fresh and frozen) on hand, cans of fruit in the cupboard and a tried-and-true recipe for a sweet-sour sauce that a friend and colleague brought from Hawaii. Marie put them all together and they spelled Polynesian Chicken Wings—a main dish that, when tried in our test kitchen, all tasters enjoyed. The recipe, colorfully photographed, appears in Marie's latest effort, "Best Ever Chicken Recipes," the May 1976 issue of Family Circle's Great Idea Cookbooks, available now through June in supermarkets. We're happy to offer it to you here.

- POLYNESIAN CHICKEN WINGS
- 12 chicken wings (2 pounds)
  - 1/4 cup all-purpose flour
  - 1 teaspoon salt
  - 1/4 teaspoon pepper
  - 1/4 cup peanut oil
  - 1 cup sliced green onions or 1 large onion, chopped (1 cup)
  - 12 baby carrots, pared

- (from 1-pound bag)
- 1 can (1 pound, 4 ounces) pineapple chunks
- 2 tablespoons lime or lemon juice
- 1 package (6 ounces) frozen Chinese pea pods, thawed (optional)
- 1 large red pepper, halved, seeded and cut into strips
- 1 cup sliced celery
- 1 cup sliced mushrooms
- Sweet sour Sauce, see below
- Shredded Chinese cabbage

1. Fold chicken tips up and under thickest joint. Shake in a plastic bag with flour, salt and pepper to coat wings evenly.
2. Brown chicken wings in oil in a large skillet; remove and reserve. Stir-fry green onion slices and baby carrots in skillet until glistening; return chicken wings to skillet; add 1/4 cup pineapple liquid from canned chunks and lime or lemon juice to skillet; cover and simmer 15 minutes.

3. Add pea pods, red pepper, celery, mushrooms and pineapple chunks; toss to mix well; cover; simmer 5 minutes longer, or until chicken wings are tender and vegetables are crisply tender. Pour Sweet sour Sauce over and toss to blend well; spoon over shredded Chinese cabbage and sprinkle with chopped parsley. Or, sprinkle a handful of crunchy Chinese fried noodles over the top. Makes 4 servings.

Sweet sour Sauce: Combine 1-3rd cup firmly packed brown sugar, 3 tablespoons cornstarch, 1 cup pineapple juice, 3 tablespoons cider vinegar and 3 tablespoons soy sauce in a small saucepan. Cook, stirring constantly, until sauce thickens and bubbles 1 minute.

FOOD SOLUTION

ITHACA, N.Y. (UPI) — A Cornell University food economist says China has solved its food problem.

C. Peter Timmer, H.E. Babcock professor of food economics, says the solution resulted from the system the People's Republic of China uses to increase its agricultural productivity and in its ability to successfully distribute increased harvests.

Timmer reached his conclusions while visiting China as a member of a National Academy of Sciences delegation studying small-scale rural industry. He said the Chinese method that calls for mechanized farming and high and stable yields is very similar to plans in developing capitalist countries.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

My sister is coming for a visit next week.

We have grown up together, shared the same bed, the same parents, and eaten off the same ice cream cone. We're very close.

I do not want her to know that I have poker chips in my planters and winter ironing hidden in a beer cooler.

I've broken my back to make this house look like people have never lived here. For the first time in four years (her last visit) the dining-room table is visible.

I don't know how the White House handles state visits, but I work from a Master Plan. Weeks ago, I made a list of things that needed to be done according to priorities.

1. Get the Christmas candle off the hall table in the entranceway.
2. Throw away junk mail on back of commode.
3. Get the dog laundered.
4. Gather together silverware that matches. Offer rewards.
5. Replace pocketbook of "Valley of the Dolls" on coffee table with new historical hard-cover.
6. Remove light bulb in the oven.

7. Take Colonel Sanders phone number off bulletin board and replace with bread recipes.
8. Buy children new underwear and shoes.
9. Buy size 10 bathrobe and offer to loan it to her while she is here.
10. Harvest household of dead plants and replace with new ones three hours before she arrives.

Call it pride. Call it pressure from the Board of Health, but I want things to be perfect.

My husband found me trying to get the ironing board down. "Help me with this," I said. "What are you trying to do?" he asked.

"Take this thing down. It is collapsible, isn't it?"

"Haven't you ever taken it down before?"

"Never."

"Maybe there's a release here somewhere. Here we go. Now, where do you want it?"

"I don't know. Wherever people put these things. Try under the bed with the electric football and the Easter baskets."

"Now what?"

"Whatever's on the list. Me? I have to work on my thin wish."

Officers Named By Auxiliary

American Legion Auxiliary Unit No. 39 installed new officers at its June meeting.

The new officers are Mrs. Sarah J. Ashton, president, Mrs. Frances Strawn, vice president, Mrs. Faye Adams, secretary, Mrs. Lois Dail, treasurer, Mrs. Mary B. Whichard, historian, Mrs. Janie Adams, chaplain, and Mrs. Mamie Raper, sergeant-at-arms.

A report from the Poppy chairman, Dr. Betty Levey, showed that $1,038.04 was collected on Poppy Day and the evening before. This money will be spent on disabled veterans and their families and veterans' program, when needed, she said.

A nursing scholarship of $100 was given to Miss Diana Cayton from the M. M. Tucker Scholarship Fund. Mrs. Faye Adams, scholarship chairman, presented it.

Mrs. Ashton, Mrs. Dail, and Miss Margaret Register will attend the state convention in Raleigh June 24-27 at the Royal Villa. The next meeting will be Aug. 5, a covered-dish supper at 7 p.m. at the American Legion Building.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Adams and Mrs. Ashton.

NEW MAGAZINE

NEW YORK (UPI) — The rapidly growing popularity of collecting or making and furnishing miniature rooms and dollhouses led to the founding of a new magazine for hobbyists. The first issue of Miniature Magazine, a Carstens' Publication monthly, began circulation in April this year. Editor Sybil Harp says most reader requests so far are for dollhouse plans.

RECYCLED PAPER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Recycled paperboard production for the first quarter this year is expected to be 40 per cent greater than in the same period last year.

A spokesman for the American Paper Institute says a recent national survey indicates consumers prefer recycled packaging for most grocery products. They also indicated recycled packaging would enhance their feelings about brands.

School Financing Is Complex

The complexities of school financing in Pitt County are obvious in the recommended county budget.

The budget prepared by County Manager Reginald Gray provides for $3.63 million in current expense funds from a county wide levy. Greenville school district would receive $885,060 from this based on per capita distribution. The remainder would go to the county school district.

But there is also a recommended tax levy of 15 cents per $100 valuation in Greenville and 20 cents in the county, which is recommended by the county manager. There would be a five cents differential between the county and the city special tax rate but Gray says this would provide for equal expenditures on a per capita basis for the two school systems. And Gray says, "I feel like equal money should go to each child no matter where he is in the county."

Included in the school funds recommended for 1976-77 would be provision for supplements to county school teachers equal to that which has been received for some time by city school teachers—a provision that we support.

The county commission, however, could levy a higher tax in the Greenville school district—and city school authorities strongly maintain that they need more money to take care of pressing needs like completing financing on the planned middle school, possible renovation to Third Street School and other needs. Again these needs are recognized.

The county, though says the school systems should propose bond issues for capital improvements.

"I firmly believe that the people will support such a program, for the needs can be shown," Gray says.

And the problem as the county government sees it, if the Greenville tax levy is increased, is that there will again be an imbalance of funds appropriated per capita for the city school district, as opposed to the county per capita appropriation.

Of course, there is still considerable work to be done on the proposed 1976-77 budget as the county commissioners delve into it, and likely some of the differences will be resolved.

We do think, though that part of the problems arise from the operation of two separate school systems—city and county. We think the case for a merger of the two systems becomes stronger every day.

"Mercy sakes! Don't tell me you're finally leavin' me alone!"

Govm't A Great Swamp

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Big Government is not restricted to the federal level. More and more criticism is being leveled at Big Government in North Carolina and even Big Government in many smaller cities and counties.

As Gov. James E. Holshouser sees it, "The people are concerned about so many big, expensive programs that never seem to live up to their expectations... that simply don't do the job they're designed to do."

People are wondering where all those tax dollars they worked for from January til May are going, and questioning whether they want to keep paying for so many programs and services, the governor commented to top governmental and business officials at a state forum on "Improving Productivity in State and Local Government."

Productivity in government—efficiency, effectiveness, and figuring out what government ought really to be doing for the people—is "one of the hottest topics going," Holshouser believes.

Alligators
And while lots of people want to do something about the tough job of bringing better management to government, "when you're up to your knees in alligators, it's hard to remember that you started out to drain the swamp," the governor said.

Holshouser suggested a form of "sunset law" to periodically end governmental programs unless a review justifies them, or "zero-based" budgets to accomplish the same purpose.

Other ideas put forth at the seminar were wide-ranging, but touched on constant monitoring and review of governmental programs to see if they are worthwhile, and if the money is well spent.

But the battle of the budget bulge in North Carolina's towns and counties has to be fought at home, not imposed from Washington or Raleigh. After all, many agreed, the imposition of programs from Raleigh and Washington is part of the reason local taxes have soared to meet the high-level demands.

As much as business methods for government might prove efficient and effective, however, some notes of caution were sounded: government is people, and that means politics, and that means trying to respond to what people want and need, or think they want and need.

Henry W. Lewis, director of the Institute of Government at Chapel Hill, put the difference between business and government in the clearest terms.

Those who designed our form of government had reason to reject centralized authority. Thus, our separation of powers and our checks and balances: the executive, the legislative, the judicial—all elected in North Carolina and reflecting Colonial resentments, the governor not even given veto power or right to run again.

Share Power
Was this democratic system set up because all men are good and wise and should be involved, or because "fallen men (are) so wicked that not one of them can be trusted with any irresponsible power over his fellows?" as C. S. Lewis wondered.

"For a moment contrast the organizational structure of government with that of a business firm... the three-part division of responsibility but common source of authority (the people) held by the branches of the government, then consider the unity of responsibility and single source of authority in the corporate structure," Lewis said.

"I suggest that democratic government is intended, first, to be sensitive to its constituents; second, to curb centralized and unchecked power—whether or not exercised for good ends—and third, to be responsive... if government fails to attain the first two goals, productivity will be an empty shell."

Lewis continued to describe the many conflicts in government trying to determine true needs and respond properly, and endorsed the idea of productivity properly pushed, but raised the question of how a governmental bureaucrat can face constant reports and studies and changing demands from a "multiplicity of superiors, not all of whom are in agreement and not all of whom are themselves truly responsible to the people for the agency's performance."

"Is it any wonder that in this graveyard of initiative the motto is 'never volunteer'?"

Another Licensing Body

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK
It had been a long time since I thought about how best to light a bulbous nose, but a couple of weeks ago the Senate Banking Committee brought it all back. This has to do with the Investment Advisers Act Amendments of 1976.

The purpose of the pending bill is to set up an elaborate new program of federal standards, qualifications, examinations and licensing for investment advisers. An investment adviser is a person who advises you how to invest your money.

And what, you may well inquire, does this have to do with the lighting of a bulbous nose? Twenty-odd years ago — maybe more — we had a lovely little controversy going in the City of Richmond. A couple of sidewalk photographers appeared on Broad Street. They snapped away, or pretended to snap away, and they were making a few bucks by selling pictures to the passersby.

All this mightily offended a couple of venerable professional photographers. These old geezers complained bitterly that they were maintaining studios, paying taxes, and providing splendid services in portrait photography. And here were these impertinent rascals selling their inferior wares on the sidewalks! So the professional photographers went to the Virginia General Assembly and got a bill passed creating a Virginia State Board of Photographic Examiners. The law said that nobody could sell a picture of a human being until he had passed an examination.

One of the questions on the examination was, "How do you photograph a subject with a large nose in order to make the nose smaller?"

A silly setup, to be sure. The purpose of the Virginia act (long since repealed) was to preserve a cozy little closed shop for the "qualified" photographers. The need for the law was nil, or nearly so. The talk of "defrauded consumers" was so much hot air. This was special interest legislation, camouflaged in the pious trappings of consumer protection.

The same observations apply to Senator Harrison Williams' investment adviser examination law. The gentleman from New Jersey says that his bill would "provide important additional protections to clients of investment advisers."

The committee report notes that "in the investment of their sayings, individuals place great reliance on the competence and expertise of their investment advisers."

Sad to say, existing regulations do not establish "even the most basic standards of qualification and responsibility." As a result — horrors! — "virtually anyone can become registered to give advice to others."

The bill would correct this deplorable situation by requiring prospective investment advisers to pass an appropriate test. Naturally, there would be a grandfather clause to protect the proper people already doing business.

Ah, me. It appears from the committee report that 3,600 registered investment advisers now have $260 billion in assets under management. The awful possibility is raised that someone with a hundred thousand bucks to invest — or a million, or a billion — might turn his money over to an untrained, unseasoned or unethical adviser. Blooey! The poor fellow might be wiped out.

But such a risk would be minimized if a truly professional analyst were put in charge. And so on.

The idle thought will not go away that an idiot who acts on the advice of an unqualified stranger is too dumb to be saved by this legislation. No act of Congress will repeal Barum's Law. If the Williams bill is enacted, tomorrow or the next day some sucker will take a tip from his barber or his cab driver and sink a wad in Peruvian gold mine stocks. And who knows? He might make a killing.

Senator Jesse Helms (R-N.C.) said in a dissenting statement that "no facts, no statistics, no compelling evidence" ever were presented to demonstrate the need for this legislation. Thirty-five states already have substantially equivalent laws. The federal examination program will cost an estimated $400,000 a

Grand Juries Studied

By JAMES GERSTENZANG

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal grand jury system is coming under congressional scrutiny, and a focus of reformers is expected to be the use of immunity from prosecution to loosen the tongues of reluctant witnesses.

"(Federal) prosecutors can maneuver their targets into jail without going through the bother of a trial," says former Michigan Supreme Court Justice John Swainson, himself the target of an indictment.

Under immunity procedures, a witness who refuses to talk to the grand jury can be jailed for contempt of court. Political activists, feminist leaders, union officials and organized crime figures have all been jailed under such circumstances.

A House Judiciary subcommittee begins hearings today on proposals to end abuse of grand jury proceedings by U.S. attorneys who, a critic said, have turned the grand juries into "a sword ... against the people."

Atty. Gen. Edward Levi is scheduled to be the first witness before the House panel to present the administration's ideas on how to deal with the situation.

A Senate subcommittee will begin hearings on similar proposals later this month.

VOLUNTARY STUDIES

N.C. History Is Kept Alive

By Dr. H. G. JONES, Curator North Carolina Collection

Written for The AP

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. —

About three hundred students of history in the schools of the state gathered in Raleigh recently for the annual Tar Heel Junior Historian Day, and many of them returned home with awards.

Time was when North Carolina history was a standard course in the seventh or eighth grade, but curriculum changes have eliminated that statewide requirement. Fortunately, however, many schools still voluntarily offer studies in state history, though usually of less than a year's duration.

The Tar Heel Junior Historian Association, sponsored by Division of Archives and History, was organized back when every public school student was expected to be exposed to the state's history. Instrumental in its organization many years ago were Dr. William H. Cartwright, professor of education at Duke University; Dr. Christopher Crittenden, director of the Department of Archives and History; and Mrs. Joyce E. Jordan, head of the Museum of History. Mrs. Natalie Miller is presently the executive secretary of the association.

With the decline in number of students studying North Carolina history, there has been a decline in the number of clubs. But there apparently has been no decline in the enthusiasm among those schools which have continued their courses and clubs.

The North Carolina Literary and Historical Association sponsors annually a competition among all clubs and cosponsors the annual junior historian day. Two other organizations offer incentive awards — the Bloomsbury Chapter of the Daughters of the Revolution gives prizes for community service, and the North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs makes awards to students scoring highest in a statewide examination in state history.

Among the highlights of the recent junior historian day, the Martin 76ers of LeRoy Martin Junior High School, Raleigh, presented a drama depicting North Carolina history during the past two hundred years. This group, under the innovative guidance of Mrs. Anne Kennedy, has often won awards for its projects. During the past year, the students contributed over 12,000 hours to community service undertakings.

First place winners in various contests sponsored by the Literary and Historical Association were as follows:

Individual art projects—Vernon Tolliver, Jonesboro Middle School, Sanford; and Denetra Taylor, Albemarle Junior High School.

Group art projects—History Seekers, Albemarle Junior High School; Yadkinville Tar Heel Junior Historians of Yadkinville Elementary School; and the Skewarkians, Bear Grass School, Williamston.

Individual literary projects—Tom Slaughter, J.W. Cannon Junior High School, Kannapolis; and Anne Dennis, Albemarle Junior High School.

Group literary projects—Company Shops Historians, Turrentine Middle School, Burlington; the Skewarkians, Bear Grass School; and the Martin 76ers, LeRoy Martin Junior High School, Raleigh. The top five scores on the statewide history examination were made by students of Mrs. Dorothy Lambert of the Turrentine Middle School, Burlington. This record clearly demonstrates that history is still being taught and taught well by good teachers such as Mrs. Lambert.

State officials and visitors who participated in the Tar Heel Junior Historian Day were impressed by the excitement that the students exhibited during the performances and awards (Continued on page 5)

Other Editors Say The Way To Lose

(Washington Daily News)

We cannot help but wonder about the political common sense of people who profess to know something about politics, but in what they espouse they leave too much to be desired.

We read that there is a call now before Democrats of this nation that any Democrat in any state who cannot and does not support the national Democratic platform should be thrown out.

How politically stupid some folks are! Here in North Carolina if a candidate for any Democratic office, be it a local position or governor of the state, should champion the national Democratic party platform, he is asking for defeat surely and certainly.

The truth is that there is so very little in common between the national Democratic platform and the thinking of people in North Carolina. They are worlds apart, and if we fail to recognize that fact, we are failing to recognize the truth.

We wish it were not so, but we would be a real hypocrite if we tried to say to others or tried to make pretend that something else could be true.

If we might look at a candidate for Congress of the United States, for instance, and examine how he might fare by embracing the national Democratic platform, we might say that he would hardly be considered a serious contender from the start.

The truth is that even a presidential candidate within the Democratic party can hardly stomach the platform, and we remember so very often among Democratic presidential nominees and even Democratic presidents when the party platform has been bypassed, forgotten, or discarded. Too often they cannot accept it, and in the opinion of a lot of people over this nation, party platforms have become right much of exercises in futility.

People are not going to be fooled continuously. Maybe a candidate can fool people a little while, and maybe a party platform appeals to a lot of people, but in general it seems to represent a lot of work, a lot of words, and in full truth a lot of bull.

If a North Carolina Democrat wishes to run as a candidate for some public office, the best way we know not to get elected is to say "I stand squarely on the platform of the national Democratic party."

Strength For Today

INJURY OR HEALING?

If a person hits us over the head with a club, he both hurts and injures us. But if a doctor takes a scalpel and opens an infection on our hand, he hurts us but does not injure us. Quite the opposite, he helps us.

There is pain in this world which hurts and injures, but there is another variety of pain which brings healing and recovery. It is the pain that comes when we confront the evil of this world and try to overcome it by sacrificing to help others and by helping people to bear their burdens. Sacrifice in the interest of others can bring much discomfort, but like the pain which the doctor causes, it brings healing in its wake and not injury.

The agony of the cross is, of course, the best example of pain which resulted in healing and new life. The sinful world which inflicted pain on Jesus meant to injure him, but he turned it about and made it contribute to the healing of all.

Revised Revenue Sharing Ahead

WASHINGTON (AP) — A revision of the revenue sharing law, extending massive federal aid to local and state governments for 3 1/2 years, is headed for final action in the House, where approval is expected.

If the program is extended through Sept. 30, 1980, the end of fiscal 1980, as called for in the bill, it would distribute $24.9 billion with few federal controls on how the money could be spent.

A vote on the measure is expected today. Liberal opponents have little hope of defeating the extension, but they are fighting attempts to water down a series of amendments which include federal controls they say would correct deficiencies in the program.

The House was faced with alternatives offered by Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Tex., chairman of the House Government Operations Committee, and Rep. Frank Horton of New York, the committee's ranking Republican member.

The amendments are designed to impose a new formula for distributing $150 million of the program's $6.65 billion annual outlay, consolidate local government operations, boost wages on construction projects using revenue sharing money, and expand civil rights protections.

They were opposed by a coalition of Democrats and Republicans seeking to renew the revenue sharing program, set to expire Dec. 31, with as few changes as possible.

President Ford has sought a 5 1/2-year extension, with only minor changes. He reportedly said last week he would consider vetoing a measure containing the four controversial amendments. The Senate has awaited the House vote before beginning work on renewal legislation. Opposition there is considered less than in the House.

Congressional sources say there is little question that the program will be renewed in some form, but a White House staff member lobbying for a continued program said, "it's a question of how good or bad a bill it is," referring to the amendments.

Begun in 1972 as part of President Richard Nixon's "New Federalism," it has become the nation's largest system of direct aid to local government.

who has introduced one of the measures designed to end the alleged abuses, said the acceptance of immunity should be voluntary and should not be forced on witnesses. The grand jury works in secret. The juries in theory are independent bodies, but federal prosecutors in almost all cases have free rein in guiding the proceedings.

Witnesses are not allowed to consult with their attorneys during grand jury appearances and are not necessarily told they may be the targets of the panel's investigation. Prosecutors need not present evidence that might exonerate their targets in addition to evidence that might lead to an indictment.

"The list of grand jury horror stories... can only continue to grow as long as we allow prosecutors a blank check in the grand jury chamber," said Swainson, also a former governor. He was exonerated of a bribery charge but convicted of perjury — lying to the jury about a charge of which he later was cleared.

BY WILLIAM F. NICHOLSON Associated Press Writer SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger reported "significant progress" in the negotiations for a new Panama Canal treaty and said the pact will give "full regard to the aspiration of the Panamanian people."

Kissinger told the general assembly of the Organization of American States Wednesday that both the United States and Panama seek a treaty that will reflect "a new era of cooperation in the Americas."

He said the negotiators still have not reached agreement on two major points: the duration of the new treaty and the area that U.S. military bases will occupy in the Canal Zone.

The present canal treaty, signed in 1903, gives the United States nearly complete control in perpetuity over the canal and the Canal Zone.

Kissinger and Panamanian Foreign Minister Aquilino Boyd also submitted a joint declaration to the OAS foreign ministers which said the U.S. and Panamanian governments hope to reach agreement soon on the new treaty. The statement said the negotiations, which began 12 years ago, have been carried out in a spirit of "reciprocal good will."

Republican presidential hopeful Ronald Reagan's opposition to concessions to Panama raised the prospect that the canal would be an issue at the OAS meeting. But the joint declaration headed this off, and the 23 foreign ministers agreed on a resolution saying the statement was a "positive contribution" to hemispheric cooperation.

Kissinger also touched on economic issues in his speech Wednesday, proposing a "regional consultative mechanism" to help the American nations deal with fluctuations in commodity prices.

He said this new agency could function within the OAS and could oversee foreign investments in the region to insure that there was no infringement on the sovereignty of host countries.

"Our prospects of working together are brighter than ever before, more so in this hemisphere than in any other region of the world," said Kissinger.

Kissinger was flying today to Mexico, the last stop on his four-nation Latin-American tour. During a three-day visit he will meet with President Luis Echeverria, Foreign Minister Alfonso Garcia Robles and Jose Lopez Portillo, who succeeds Echeverria Dec. 1, and will visit the Mayan ruins at Uxmal, in Yucatan, and the Caribbean resort island of Cancun.

Child Growth Leveling Off

WASHINGTON (AP) — For years, fathers have felt uneasy about scolding their taller sons. But fathers and sons of the future may see more eye-to-eye because the growth rate for American children appears to have leveled off.

Boys and girls today are no taller than children were 20 years ago, the National Center for Health Statistics said Wednesday, noting the end of a 100-year trend of youths outstripping their elders in size.

The average 18-year-old American boy today stands 5 feet 9.2 inches and weighs over 150 pounds. In 1876 the average 18-year-old boy was 5 feet 5 inches. In 1776, Revolutionary War records indicate the average recruit stood a fraction over 5 feet 5.

The average 18-year-old girl today is 5 feet 4 1/2 inches and weighs 123 pounds. Girls, who mature sooner than boys, generally stop growing by 18. The age at which girls reach puberty also has stabilized at 12 years, 9 1/2 months — about 18 months before boys.

The government has no statistics on the size of girls a century ago. It based the boys' figures primarily on military records.

In the last 100 years, improved diet and the eradication of numerous childhood diseases spurred the upward growth rate, according to Dr. Peter V. Hamill, a medical adviser to the national center.

He speculated that the end to this trend "could be the result of our having reached the limits of our genetic potential regarding growth."

"However, all we can say with certainty is that whatever the factors that produced the trend of increasing size, they ceased having an effect... by 1955 or 1956," he added.

The statistics are based on studies of more than 20,000 children across the country over the past 15 years.

The government has used the figures to update child growth charts for the first time in more than four decades. Doctors use the charts to gauge whether their patients' growth rate is normal and to detect aberrations that may be caused by illness.

Textile Union's Failures Cited

By The Associated Press "By any standard of measurement, the efforts of the Amalgamated Clothing and Textile Workers Union have not succeeded," J.P. Stevens & Co., Inc., said Wednesday in a prepared statement.

"During its lengthy campaign, the union has demanded 14 separate employe elections under the supervision of the NLRB (National Labor Relations Board)," the statement said. "The employes represented by the union, after 13 years of effort, constitute only about seven per cent of the company's work force."

The statement came in response to a call by the union for a national boycott of Stevens textile products.

At its convention this week, the newly formed union said its "ultimate aim" is to organize the entire chain of Stevens plants, which it called the nation's number one labor-law violator.

Stevens employs 44,000 textile workers, mostly in North Carolina and South Carolina.

Stevens said the lack of union success in its mills "leads to a single conclusion: the overwhelming majority of the employes of Stevens do not want to be unionized. In short, Stevens employes have not bought what the union has been selling."

Stevens officials said the company had been targeted for unionization as "the prelude to organizing the entire textile industry."

Saying "the unionization of our work force would not be in the best interests of either our employes or our shareholders," company officials said they would continue to resist the union's organization efforts.

Stevens termed the boycott "an improper use of the combined power of many unions," and said it is protecting the rights of workers who decide not to be represented by a union.

New Fellowship Group Has First Meet

By START SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
About 200 people attended the North Tar River Fellowship Club meeting at the River Road Ranch off the Old River Road last night.

The club, patterned after the John Pierce Fellowship Club which meets at Camp Contentment on the Banks of Contentment Creek between Ayden and Grifton each Spring, is designed to promote fellowship among people from Pitt, Martin and Edgecombe Counties.

Marvin K. Blount Sr., host for last night's session, told those assembled, "This is the first regular meeting of the North Tar River Fellowship Club. The purpose . . . is as its name implies, good fellowship."

According to Blount, "We want to know our neighbors better in order that we might be better able to work for those things that are for the common good of all concerned."

"We are not a political organization, but we are very much interested in good government and are always pleased to have meet here those who are candidates for office and who may assume the burden of carrying on our government."

Blount continued, "We strongly favor good roads and highway safety. We are definitely in favor of good schools and all those things that work for the best interest of our people on the north side of Tar River and our state."

In closing, Blount said "we . . . trust that this organization will mean much for the future progress of, not only the north side of Tar River, but our entire county and state."

Dave Speir, of Bethel, president of the club, said the officers "expect to make it an annual affair," and told the group "I hope you'll meet a lot of the honest and reliable politicians running for office . . ." at the club meetings.

A number of candidates attended the meeting, while others were unable to attend due to prior commitments.

Those present running for state offices included: candidate for governor George Wood; lieutenant governor hopefuls Waverly Akins, James Green and Frank Stevenson; Lane Brown who is seeking the State Treasurers post; and Labor Commissioner candidates John Brooks and Robert Dunnigan.

Other candidates included Dr. Joe Ward, who is seeking the First Congressional District seat and a number of candidates seeking re-election to State House and Senate Posts and seats on the Board of County Commissioners and school boards.

The candidates were introduced following the barbecue and chicken supper.

Officers of the fellowship club, in addition to Speir, include: vice-president Ed Warren of Greenville, secretary-treasurer Bob Daniels of Greenville and assistant secretary-treasurer Ken Watkins.

Members of the Board of Directors, in addition to the officers, include Blount, Noel Lee of Pactolus, D. R. Hoke of Conetoe, John House of Robersonville, and Elmo Dupree of Belvoir.

AT FELLOWSHIP MEETING . . . Dave Speir, president of the North Tar River Fellowship Club looks on as Marvin K. Blount Sr., host for the meeting and a member of the groups board of directors, outlines for the 200 persons attending the meeting, the purposes of the organization. Lighting for the ball field there has been completed.

Birthday Cruise For 'Happy'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The President and Mrs. Ford helped Happy Rockefeller celebrate her 50th birthday with a dinner cruise on the Potomac River Wednesday night.

The Fords had the Vice President and Mrs. Rockefeller and 11 other guests join them

Investigated 2 Collisions

An estimated $3,475 property damage resulted yesterday from a series of three collisions investigated by Greenville Police.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from an 11:45 a.m. mishap on 14th Street, 114 feet North of the Spruce Street intersection involving a car driven by Juanita Moore Johnson of 300B Roundtree Dr. and a parked vehicle owned by Stella Singletary Worthington of Route 1, Aydeh.

Police, who estimated damage at $1,200 to the Johnson car and $1,500 to the Worthington vehicle, charged Mrs. Johnson with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety.

Diane Brown Smith of Route 2, Greenville was charged with failing to stop for a stop sign following investigation of a 1:36 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Library and Johnston Streets.

Investigators reported the Smith car collided with an auto driven by Jesse James Hooks Jr. of Winterville and set damage at $100 to the Smith car and $400 to the Hooks auto.

Cars driven by Barbara Ann Jones of 3709 East Second St. and Kathryn Ann McConnell of 220 York Rd. collided about 9:05 a.m. at the intersection of Fifth Street and Greene Springs Park Rd., according to police.

Officers, who charged Miss Jones with following too close, estimated damage from the mishap at $200 to the Jones car and $75 to the McConnell car.

aboard the Navy yacht aboard the Navy yacht Sequoia for the occasion.

While a red-jacketed Marine Corps combo provided music, the group dined on filets of mountain trout and boneless breast of capon and sampled two varieties of California wine, one a champagne.

The birthday cake was inscribed, "Happy Birthday, Happy."

Martin Tech...

questioned Dr. Carter about his meaning of a "comprehensive pay plan."

"When I came in September," Dr. Carter said, "I noticed a wide variation in salaries, in individual training and competence. A pay plan would take into consideration the experience, academic training, ability to do the job so that pay for every persons would be relative to his training and ability."

Mrs. Bowers wanted to know if such a plan would mean a decrease in pay for any of the staff.

"It would mean some would be frozen in their pay," Dr. Carter said. "A pay scale based on training and experience might show some are paid too high and we'd be authorized to decrease their pay by ten percent. It would all depend on what the formula would indicate."

When Dr. Carter had left the meeting site, Don Stout, chairman of the board of trustees, opened the discussion by saying "In his position paper, Dr. Carter basically is saying what he insists on if he is to remain president at MTI."

Trustee Russell Griffin added, "What Dr. Carter wants is the support of the board in order for him to perform his duties as Chief Administrative Officer and to do the things necessary to promote the school and to run it as it should be run."

Stout warned that failure on the part of the trustees to give Dr. Carter support at this time could result in serious repercussions.

"Dallas Herring, (chairman of the State Board of Education) told me that if the board does not support (Dr. Carter, so short a time after unanimously electing him as president, the State Board of Education would ask the Southern Association in Atlanta to come in immediately to determine if the governing body (trustees) has maintained professional procedures.

"This could mean," Stout continued, "that the State Board of Education would probably cut off funds transferred to the community college immediately, and possibly call for a cut off of all funds."

A broad consensus of support for Dr. Carter developed as discussions progressed. One point raised was whether support for Dr. Carter's position paper entailed agreement of the dismissal of staff members not recommended for contract renewal.

"The hearings we have granted personnel have been courtesy hearings," Stout said. "They have no legal basis. If Carter does not nominate a person, the board has no authority other than to dismiss that person." (Trustees have been holding personal, unofficial hearings for the six originally not recommended for contract renewal. Another meeting of this nature is scheduled in July.)

Trustee Russell Griffin defined what in his opinion was the root of the problem. "We've been in this situation for 14, 16, maybe 18 months," he said. "It all stems basically from the same thing. No president can carry out his functions unless given authority to act and decide with the Board of Trustees to support him."

"We have gotten into administration. We're out of our own field, out of our jurisdiction. I think the time has come for the Board of Trustees to perform our own duties to the best of our ability, and to let the president perform his duties without coercion or pressure. "After all," he added, "the president is serving at our pleasure and we can terminate his position with a 30 days notice."

Some trustees, while saying they agree with the concept of supporting whoever is president, voiced reservations on too broad a concept of support, because of experiences prior to Dr. Carter's tenure.

Mrs. Bowers cited as an example "$78,000 worth of chemistry equipment sitting in an empty classroom. People coming to the open house and seeing this thought something was wrong."

Stout placed the blame for such situations directly on the

Grifton Budget Hearing Monday

GRIFTON — The Grifton Town Board discussed plans for the public hearing on the proposed town budget for the 1976 fiscal year at its Tuesday meeting. The public hearing will be held Monday, June 14 at the Town Hall at 7:30 p.m.

Grifton Police Chief Linwood Outlaw presented an arrest report. He also presented a request from Grifton School Principal Nelson Baldrée for more overseeing of intersections near the school during school days and the posting of school crossing signs at the intersections near the school. The board directed Outlaw to contact the State Highway Department.

The Board approved the posting of speed limit signs in the Forrest Acres and Country Club subdivisions.

Jan Haseley presented several proposed budgets for the Grifton Recreation Department. Mrs. Haseley explained that funds are unavailable to finance a July 4th Picnic.

Maxine Harker and Jane Lambert were appointed by the board as coordinators for the Grifton Arts and Crafts.

In other business the board: —Voted to pay May bills.

—Tabled a proposal for curbing private soliciting in the town.

—Received a report form from the building inspector.

—Adopted a resolution to ask that all church bells and town sirens to be sounded at 2 p.m. EDT on July 4th in conjunction with a nationwide bell ringing at that time.

board. "If the board had done its job, the situation Mrs. Bowers referred to would have gone through the Building Committee.

"The board has not followed through on its duties. We have good by-laws, but unless we do our job no president can keep us informed."

Trustee Macon Holliday agreed with Stout on the board being to blame for some of the developments. "We have buildings we don't need because we did not do our duty," he said.

The motion to accept Dr. Carter's position paper as an integral part of the resolution of confidence was made by trustee Hugh Baker. Baker agreed also that the motion for the resolution would include a statement submitted by Russell Griffin, which reiterates assurance of board support within applicable governing regulations.

In another action, the board of trustees elected officers for the coming year. Don Stout remains chairman; Macon Holliday becomes vice-chairman; and Mrs. Lula Brown was elected secretary.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market pushed slowly ahead today, getting some support from hopes that upward pressure on interest rates was beginning to ease.

Trading remained light. The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up 4.75 at 962.84, and gainers held a 5-3 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Brokers noted that interest rates have shown signs of stabilizing lately after a substantial rise from their lows of earlier in the year.

They also cited hopes that Federal Reserve figures due after today's close would show a decline in the money supply that would encourage the Fed to go easy on any moves to tighten credit.

Other pluses for the market were hopes for a durable ceasefire in Lebanon, and a generally bright picture of the economic outlook in a mid-year review from the White House.

Walt Disney Productions was the most active NYSE issue, up 1/4 at 50 1/2. A 120,000-share block of the stock traded early in the session at 50.

Among other glamors, Digital equipment, IBM, Fairchild Camera and Texas Instruments all registered gains of more than a point.

The NYSE's composite index gained .22 to 52.84 in the first hour.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .05 at 101.48.

Responding to Gray's question, Greenville Board of Education member Ed Carter said "we have cut back on maintenance... in favor of the instructional program," and have "been cut back... on our requests," in the budget.

Greenville Board of Education chairman Henry Dunn, who appeared at the hearing, said, "It is difficult to me to comprehend how Mr. Gray can pull out figures... without consulting with people who should know... what the various agencies funded by the commissioners need, and added, "I don't believe Mr. Gray has had ample time to study and contact the various boards."

Dunn also said that the city school board has had "no real feeling of support from the commissioners... on the city's 'five year long range capital construction plan.'"

"All buildings" in the city school system "will be condemned by 1980 if we are funded at this level," Dunn said.

According to the board chairman, Greenville needs $5 million to carry out the five year plan. A bond issue totaling $15 million would be required to fund the plan, Dunn said, because the revenue would have to be divided on a pro-rata basis with the county system.

Dunn also commented that there is a possibility that the Greenville school board may be taken to court for alleged negligence in allowing the Third Street School to deteriorate to the point it had to be condemned.

"I can assure you," Dunn emphasized, "if we are sued, we will pass the suit along to the fiscal agents," meaning the Board of County Commissioners.

Following Dunn, Supt. Glenn Cox reviewed the city board's requests, in an "attempt to reaffirm our position..."

Cox termed the office expense budget as proposed by Gray "totally inadequate" and said that in light of the 1976 General Assembly's action in granting a four per cent plus $300 pay hike for teachers and state employees, funds for a five per cent cost of living increase reflected in the budget would be inadequate to meet the state pay hike.

(The four per cent plus $300 for many employees, especially the lower paid ones, would equal far more than a five per cent hike.)

Cox's main point, however, was made in the area of maintenance and capital outlay funds. He said the "situation is unbearable" as far as the proposed budget is concerned in those areas. "It won't come close to meeting the needs," he

School Funds...

(Continued from page 1) third of the entire student population in the county, the city district has 40 per cent of the total county valuation.

The county manager also noted that school enrollment has been on the decline for the past 10 years, and cited that during the 1970-1971 school year there were 18,375 students in the city and county district, while in 1974-1975 there were 16,785. "The city system has decreased in pupil population more than the county system," he said.

Gray questioned how funds earmarked for new construction and for maintenance in the city system have been programmed, citing the city's relatively low requests for maintenance money as compared with the county's requests, and in light of the condition of Third Street School which was condemned 12 school days before the term ended this spring.

Those items praised by Alford included the "well-deserved" supplement for county teachers, an increase in maintenance funds, additional positions, "opportunities to develop and expand" band programs in each of the high schools, funds to complete the Farmville and Wellcome middle schools and for additional facilities at Belvoir primary, and others.

Alford continued, "while strongly supporting Mr. Gray's recommendations... in some areas, 'I must call attention to several items' the Board of Education recommended but Gray did not propose.

Just as Cox had done, Alford pointed out the differential in the proposed 5 per cent salary hike and the four per cent plus $300 as approved for state employees. He also cited other areas, including among them a proposed budget of $65,000 for capital improvements for Ayden Grammar School (an escrow account) where $300,000 had been requested, funds to continue occupational education programs as two schools and other items.

In closing his presentation, Alford said "I ask that you take note of the fact that the following comments, while they may or may not reflect the position of the Board of Education, do express my personal feelings.

"While the Pitt County school facilities are in the best shape ever, they still are not equal to the Greenville school facilities. For many reasons, and I give credit where credit is due, a very fine job was done in the past in providing school facilities in Greenville." And, he emphasized, "This is no way is intended to reflect any discredit to the present Greenville City Board of Education nor to my friend, Supt. Glenn Cox."

According to Alford, "Facilities and programs should not be available in any manner to the benefit of youngsters in the Greenville City System without equal facilities and programs for county students.

"A major reason for present deficiencies in both areas," he said, "results from the accumulation of ad valorem wealth in and around the county seat of Pitt County..."

Continuing with this thought, Alford noted, "The concept of equalization of opportunities as recommended by Mr. Gray is one that should not be overlooked."

Alford took the position that "new construction projects and major additions to present facilities can best be financed and better planned with the passage of a bond issue providing for the needs of both systems. I totally support the recommendation of Mr. Gray." Otherwise, the county superintendent continued, "all capital outlay funds should be prorated — or else on a need basis — regardless of the source and including loans from the State Literary Fund."

Alford did say, however, "I would not support a bond issue of $15 million. It's totally foolish." But he added, he would support "something less than that."

Pitt County, according to Alford, will attract industries and other businesses in the future "which will help the agricultural base in this county in providing ad valorem wealth. But this will only be the case provided there is a first-class program of education available to students in both systems."

Alford continued, "In the reasonably near future — for both city and county systems — and right now for the Pitt County system, with no reduction in the city budget, the supplemental tax budget should be discarded and a per capita distribution system installed."

Alford then said, "I think merger is the only solution, personally."

Following Alford's presentation, several members of the county Board of Education spoke briefly.

Chairman Mark Owens said "My personal feeling is there is no need to come before this board (of County Commissioners) to make demands that cannot be met," adding that in the past the commissioners have provided "what we honestly needed for the schools."

Kenneth Dews noted that the county commissioners have "done their very best to provide funds when the money didn't seem to be available," adding "I'd like to commend Mr. Gray for his efforts and what he's tried to work out."

By ROBERT B. CULLEN Associated Press Writer RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — At least 50 of North Carolina's 61 Democratic convention delegates are now in the camp of former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter.

Carter added at least 14 delegates to the 36 he already had Wednesday when he got the endorsement of his rival in the March 23 primary: Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace.

Wallace told a news conference Wednesday that he was asking all of his delegates to switch to Carter.

Wallace won 25 delegates for finishing second in the primary. To date, 19 of them have been chosen in district conventions. The remaining six will be picked at the state convention this weekend.

Of the 19 Wallace delegates chosen thus far, 14 said Wednesday that they would switch to Carter. Two said they were uncommitted one was unavailable, and two said they would vote for Wallace regardless.

One of the diehards was Delmer Taylor, 60, of Greensboro. "I committed myself to that (voting for Wallace on the first ballot) when I was elected a delegate and I don't intend to change my mind. I do what I'll say I do and I always have," Taylor said.

The rest said they would switch, with varying degrees of enthusiasm.

"I'll take Gov. Wallace's judgment," said Thaddeus Teder of Candor. "I haven't heard Carter on some issues, but I guess he's the best of many evils. He's the only chance we have to win, now."

Graham Reich of Charlotte said he was not surprised by the move. "They're practically next-door neighbors (in Alabama and Georgia) and I don't think they ever got too rough with each other during the campaign. It's a little disappointing that Carter seems likely to get it on the first ballot. I was hoping for a little more excitement," said Reich.

At least one Wallace supporter found it difficult to contemplate the transition to a Carter man. That was C.J. Hyatt of Winston-Salem, Wallace's state campaign chairman. Hyatt is expected to win election as a delegate at large at Saturday's state party convention.

"I'll try my best to honor Gov. Wallace's wishes," Hyatt said. But he still suspects that Carter is too liberal for Wallace's supporters to vote for. "Eighty per cent of the people don't know where Carter stands on the issues," he said.

Atty. Gen. Rufus Edmisten said Thursday that he and his deputies believe "there is nothing in North Carolina law to prohibit Wallace from doing what he did," even though he has not officially withdrawn from the race.

"We all agreed under North Carolina law that Gov. Wallace had every right to say he prefers that his delegates vote for Jimmy Carter," Edmisten said. "In North Carolina, delegates are keyed to the wishes of the particular candidate they represent."

According to state law, delegates are apportioned in accordance with the results of the primary.

Wallace's campaign manager, Charles Snider, said that Wallace would do whatever he must do, including formally withdrawing, to make it possible for his delegates to go to Carter.

We wish to thank each and everyone for their prayers, expressions of sympathy, flowers, food and all the expressions of thoughtfulness extended to us during the illness and death of David Whichard.

Wilmington Hands Bucs Second Defeat

Planters, NCNB Capture Wins

Planters Bank and NCNB both put together last rallies to pull out victories in the Babe Ruth League last night. Planters nipped Home Builders, 7-6, while NBNC took a 5-2 win over College View.

Planters gained the initial lead in its game, scoring a run in the second. Calvin Jones led off with an infield hit and stole second. Jim Kernan reached on an error, moving Jones to third. A pickoff attempt at third was muffed, allowing Jones to score.

In the fourth, Home Builders rallied for two and gained a 2-1 lead. Ronnie Chapman reached on an error and Reggie Selby singled to center. An error on the play let both move up. Jeff Worthington reached on an error, scoring Chapman, and when the throw back across the field to try and get Selby at third was also misplayed, Selby scored.

The Builders picked up two more in the fifth for a 4-1 lead. Chapman walked and scored on Selby's triple. A balk brought Selby over.

But in the top of the seventh, Planters exploded for six runs, moving back into a 7-4 lead. Jarvis Campbell and Roger Clemons walked and Charles Daise reached on a fielder's choice. Jones was hit by a pitch, scoring Campbell, and a hit by Kernan brought in both Clemons and Daise. David Holley singled in Jones, and a double by William Snead brought in Kernan and Holley to end the scoring.

The Builders didn't give up, however, fighting back to pull within one. Doug Nichol reached on a fielder's choice and Chapman was safe on an error. Nichol scored on a sacrifice fly, and Jay Wood singled in Chapman to close within one. But with the tying run on third and the winning run on second, Planters picked up the third out on a popup to claim the win.

Micah Dixon and Holley each had three hits for Planters, while Jones added two. Selby had two to lead Home Builders.

NCNB got the first run in the second game, in the second inning.

Glenn Moore led off the inning, reached on an error. He was sacrificed to second and scored when the ball was thrown away trying to get him as he streaked to third on the play.

College View came up with two in the top of the fifth to take a 2-1 lead. Henry Wooten reached on a two-base error and Tim Harris tripled to right to score him. Harris scored on Ricky West's infield out.

But NCNB came right back in the bottom of the frame to push ahead, scoring three more runs. Mark Shank singled with two away and stole second. Don McGlohon reached on an error and Joey Mattheis was intentionally walked. Moore then followed with a three-run single hitting a three-and-two pitch into right.

NCNB added its other run in the sixth. Mike Campbell reached on an error, moved up on an out and scored when Shank's single to right was misplayed.

Harris had two hits to pace College View, while Shank had two of the three hits picked up by NCNB. Lindsey Winstead hurled the three-hitter, walking only three, including the intentional pass, while striking out four, but got little help behind him as the College View team made seven errors.

Snead Is Out Of It

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — As actress Thelma Ritter was to the Oscar, as turn-of-the-century populist William Jennings Bryan was to the American Presidency, so has Sam Snead been to the U.S. Open.

Snead, 64, who has won every major golf tournament except the Open, failed to make the cut in this week's qualifying here in yet another attempt to capture the elusive title.

"This is gonna be it, I think," Snead said wearily as he sat in the Myers Park Country Club grill, recovering from a three-over par 74 in the first qualifying round. "I've always tried to qualify in the past, but not anymore."

Still, he left the door open for 1977.

"Well, you better not say I won't ever try to qualify again. Next year, if it comes around and I'm playing well, I might give it a go, but I don't know."

Snead finished the day with a 72 for 146, two over the cutoff. Before the afternoon round, he candidly assessed the overwhelming odds against his ever realizing an Open championship.

"I'm not gonna win it now, I know that. But, I've had my chances," he said. "I must have had 20 chances. I was second four times, in a playoff once. Once I had an eight on the last hole. Now, how many times are you going to do that?"

Comparing his quest for the Open with Arnold Palmer's equally futile attempts for the PGA title, Snead said, "Hell, I don't think he's ever gonna win that, either. Although, what is he, 45 or 46? He's 46. At that age, I played some of my best golf."

"You're seasoned, you know."

Mickey Bell of Southern California rushed for 1,875 yards during 11 college football games last season.

HOWARD HITS THE SHOWERS—New York Yankees' first base coach Elston Howard, left, gets the ticket to the showers from umpire Larry McCoy Wednesday night at Yankee Stadium. Howard argued a McCoy call at first on play against the Yanks' Jim Mason in the eighth inning. Howard joined Yankee manager Billy Martin, who was ejected in the third for arguing with McCoy. The Yanks still won it, downing the California Angels, 4-3. (AP Wirephoto)

Strange On Top, But Deacons Are Trailing

By JIM McELROY
ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — It wasn't a surprise when the first round of the 79th annual National Collegiate Athletic Association Golf Championships ended with a Wake Forest golfer tied for the individual lead.

But it was a surprise that heavily favored and two-time defending champion Wake Forest wasn't closer to the lead in the team competition.

The Deacons' Curtis Strange, who won the 1974 individual crown in sparking Wake Forest to its first national title, fashioned a 68 over the par 72, 7-258-yard University of New Mexico South course Wednesday to nail down the tie for the top spot with two other golfers.

But Strange's teammates weren't able to keep up with his hot pace and the Deacons found themselves trailing Oklahoma State, the team they beat by 33 strokes in last year's title romp, by nine shots.

"We've been there before," Strange said of the Deacons being behind. "The rest of the team didn't play like they are capable...I won't name any names but some of the guys weren't playing smart, high percentage golf."

"I hope we'll start playing better as a team tomorrow (today)," he said in looking ahead to the second of the four-day tourney's four rounds. "I hope we'll start playing smarter, playing more percentage golf."

Strange was knotted in the three-way tie with one player, Scott Simpson of Southern California, who was expected to be a title contender and another player, Matt Sugerman of New Mexico State, who didn't figure to be anywhere near first place.

Strange carved his 68 by firing eagles on the first and last holes he played, which both were par 5s. He also had a birdie and a bogey to go with 14 pars.

Simpson played a steady round, playing par golf on all but four holes where he picked up birdies to tally his four un-

Special To The Reflector
WILMINGTON — The University of North Carolina - Wilmington climbed on East Carolina University starter Terry Durham for all the runs it needed in the second inning here Wednesday night (4) and cruised to a 5-2 win over the Pirates.

It was the second straight loss for the Pirates, who won their first two summer league games. The Seahawks are 3-2.

Pirate first baseman Sonny Wooten blasted a Thurston Watkins delivery for a two-run home run in the second, following a single by Robert Brinkley. That was all the Pirates could muster off Watkins, however. Watkins did not fan a Pirate while walking two and yielding six hits.

Brinkley had two hits in three trips to the plate to pace the visitors.

Richard King singled to lead off the Seahawk second. Mike Good walked and one out later, Mac McLean doubled to score King and Ray Toler singled to score Good and McLean. Larry Dove singled to plate Toler.

The Pirates got another runner as far as third in the sixth, then loaded the bases in the seventh, but couldn't scratch. Two errors and a single by Jerry Carraway loaded the bases, but force out and two pop ups ended the inning. ECU did not have another baserunner.

Dove singled to lead off the Seahawk eighth and advanced to third on a throwing error. He scored moments later on a single by King to close the scoring for the game.

The Pirates entertain Elon College at Harrington Field tonight at 7:30 p.m.

First Federal Takes 9-2 Win

Cliff Warren, Randy Warren and Mont Carter each hit home runs powering First Federal to a 9-2 win over the Graniteers Wednesday.

Cliff Warren pitched the win for First Federal striking out three, walking none and giving up eight hits. Stevie Holloman started for the Graniteers but was relieved in the fourth by Alan Dickens.

The Graniteers scored first with a first inning home run by Tony Ellis. Horace Barrett got the run back for First Federal driving in two runs with a single and Barrett stole home giving First Federal a 3-1 lead.

Barrett reached on an error and Cliff Warren knocked one out followed by a homer by Randy Warren upping the lead to 6-1. The Graniteers got their second run in the fourth as Art Pittman singled in Mike Tucker who had doubled.

Mont Brown scored on Carter's homer in the last of the fourth after singling his way on. Mike Holloman kept the rally going with a single and he moved up on an error. Randy Warren's single scored him.

The Graniteers loaded the bases in the sixth but failed to score.

Tucker led the Graniteers with two hits, Randy Warren had three hits and two RBI's. Mike Holloman had two hits for First Federal.

Optimists Tie For Loop Lead

Optimist rallied for six runs in the top of the second and added five more as Michael Moon and Kenny Kirkland pitched a one-hit 11-2 win over Kiwanis, yesterday.

Moon started and went the first four innings giving up two runs, six walks and one hit and he struck out six. Kirkland walked two and struck out seven.

Kiwanis scored first. Todd Jordan and John Parnell drew walks opening the first. A walk to Jeff Boyd forced in Jordan and a pass to Greg Davis scored Parnell. John Hause walked and Paul MacMillan singled starting the Optimist second. Hause scored on an error and MacMillan passed ball after Dickie Heller walked and Rudy Stalls singled. A hit by Michael Moon scored Stalls. Moon scored when Andy Holloman reached on a fielder's choice and Holloman later scored on a passed ball.

MacMillan made it 8-2 in the third with a two-run homer. The Optimists added three more in the top of the sixth. Kirkland, Sammy Hodges and MacMillan had two hits each for Optimists.

Evans Takes Both Sprints

By ESCAR THOMPSON
Associated Press Writer
KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Dwayne Evans, slender speedster from Phoenix, Ariz., swept the 100 and 200 meter sprints in the National Junior AAU track and field championship, but one victory was tainted by a false start.

Evans, 17, edged NCAA sprint champion Harvey Glance, Auburn freshman, in the 100, but only after the starter's gun misfired twice in attempting to stop the race after a false start.

Evans was timed at 10.1 and Glance at 10.2. Starter Jerry Scott said he saw Keith Brown in the number nine lane start too soon. Scott tried unsuccessfully to halt the race.

Glance, who won the 100 and 200 dashes in the NCAA meet in Philadelphia last week, said he heard Scott's gun misfire and pulled up momentarily.

"When nobody else stopped, I figured I'd better keep running too," Glance said. "I ran 10.2 from almost a standing start, which is not too bad."

Both Evans and Glance won berths on the U.S. National Junior Track Team, which will compete this summer in international meets in Montreal, Canada, the Soviet Union and West Germany.

The squad is made up of athletes who have not reached their 20th birthday.

The top two finishers in the 20 running and field events in two days of competition at University of Tennessee track won berths on the team.

Beside Evans and Glance, sprinters making the squad were Tim Dale, Villanova; Tony Darden, Norristown, Pa. and Rick Brown, Houston.

Other athletes winning squad berths were:
Conrad Suhr, UCLA and William Martin, Boston College, 800 meters; James Walker, Auburn, and Terry Bethel, Philadelphia Pioneers, 110 hurdles; Charles Roberts, Oklahoma State, and James Little, D.C. Stridders, 400 intermediate hurdles.

John Burns, Villanova, and Jeff Moody, Penbrooke State, 1,500 meters; Jim Shields and Devon Flynn, both of Long Island Track Club, 3,000 steeplechase; Jerry Young, St. Louis, and Stephen Casarella, White Plains, N.Y., 10 kilometer walk.

Ralph Serna, University of California at Irving and Alberto Salazar, Wayland, Mass., 5,000 meters; George Watts, Tennessee, and John Slaughter, Western Kentucky, 10,000 meters.

Manny Silverio and Tim Bruno, both of New York Athletic Club, hammer; Rick Thomas, Temple and Ron Parisi, Nittany Valley Track Club, javelin; Billy Hartley, New Jersey, and Tim Vahlstrom, University of Texas-El Paso, pole vault; Steve Montgomery, Lassen, Calif., High and Dave Kurusch, Maccabi, Calif., shot put; Larry Doubly, Beverly Hill Stridders, and Ken Harris, Lincoln, Mo., University, long jump.

Farmville Tourney

FARMVILLE — Jennifer Counterman captured first place in the Farmville Golf and Country Club's women's club championship tournament.

Second place in the championship flight went to Sheila Lee, who also picked up the honors for being closest to the pin on the fourth hole. Miss Counterman gained honors for the longest drive on the second hole.

A total of 38 women participated in the tournament.

Winning the first flight was Anne Bradman, followed by Ruby Counterman. Second flight honors went to Hazel Fiser with Annette Rose at runner-up.

In the third flight, Jean Allen took first place, while Mernie Outland and Nellie Outland tied for second. Frances Lewis won the fourth flight, while Lynda Wainwright and Joyce Hillard tied for second. Beulah Crawley won the fifth flight, with Ruby Johnson finishing second. Gaye Johnson won the low putts award.

The women also elected their officers for their association for the coming year. They are Jane Little, president; Sheila Lee, vice-president; and Reid Eason, secretary-treasurer.

Women tennis players from 32 nations will compete in the U.S. Federation Cup matches to be held in Philadelphia's Spectrum Aug. 22-29.

Road To Majors Is No Easy One For Draftees

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

NORTH CAROLINA — The major leagues, the dream of every kid who ever took fantasy swings as a Willie Mays or made pretend pitches as a Sandy Koufax, is not really a realistic goal for the 721 players selected the past two days in baseball's summer free agent draft.

The draft was to end today with 11 teams still picking players.

On the average, 50 per cent of the players selected in the draft sign contracts. Then, as a rule of thumb, only 10-15 per cent of those who sign make it to the major leagues for one game.

The percentage for those who will stick in the major leagues is less, and much less for those who will reach stardom.

The major leagues are glamorous, full of national exposure, deluxe hotels and first-class airfare, but there is no glory in the long, hard road up to the major. That cracked pavement is filled with bus rides, too many meals in hamburger joints and too many games when the players on the field outnumber the fans in the stands.

It's great to be a major leaguer, earn an average salary of $46,000 and play in New York, Los Angeles or Montreal.

Gary Roenicke just beat the odds and made it to the Montreal Expos in his fourth year of professional baseball. He played Tuesday night in his first big-league game, against the Giants in San Francisco. He was hitless in five at bats, but it was an achievement, nevertheless.

If he never plays again for the Expos, Roenicke will know he was one of the best baseball players in the world. For one day. Of the 600 active major leaguers Tuesday, he was one of them.

Only Roenicke can decide whether it was worth the three-plus years he spent in the minor. "Gary told me it was pretty rough in the minors," said his brother, Ron, who was drafted by the Atlanta Braves Wednesday on the second round of the secondary phase of the summer free agent draft.

"I know he didn't like Jamestown (N.Y. — his first minor league club), "but then he went to West Palm Beach (Fla.) and he liked the minors a lot more."

In 1974, Gary Roenicke, an outfielder, was elevated to the club's top farm club, Quebec. He played there in 1975 and even sat on the Montreal bench — but did not play — in the month of September.

Eddie Dibbs Feels He Can Win French Title

By JOHN VINOUCR
Associated Press Writer
PARIS (AP) — Fast Eddie Dibbs, the Brooklyn-to-Miami Beach tennis player, greyhound handicapper and one-time playground hustler, thinks the best longshot action in Paris is himself.

"I'm 110-to-1 to get out of bed in the morning," says Eddie Dibbs, "and if you don't like those odds you can get a better price on me in the French Open."

Dibbs is right. The odds on his winning here, a kind of hunch bet for a small group of Dibbs admirers until Tuesday, got considerably tighter after he moved into the semifinals with a 6-3, 6-3, 6-3 win over the Forest Hills champion, Manuel Orantes of Spain.

Dibbs didn't really feel like playing Bjorn Borg in the semis, whom he had never beaten. But Adriano Panatta, whom he has defeated, took care of that for him. Panatta, the Italian champion, beat Borg, the winner two years running here who said too much playing had dulled his concentration and reflexes. The scores were 6-3, 6-3, 2-6, 7-6.

Dibbs, who meets Panatta Friday, says, "I'm playing the best tennis of my life. I'm playing with a lot more confidence and that means that on a given day I can beat anybody. I can win one of these major tournaments."

Dibbs was born in Brooklyn and moved to Miami Beach as a boy. He became a public parks tennis rat and hustled older players who thought his small size made easy prey. The Bobby Riggs routine fit into the mentality of a street fighter and gambler who has told people that his tennis winnings will probably let him start buying greyhounds for racing on the Miami dog tracks.

Dibbs' ambition this year was to reach the final eight in the World Championship finals in Dallas and to win a tournament like the French Open or Forest Hills where his abilities on clay give him his best pop. The first is accomplished and the second is at hand.

In the women's quarters, Britain's Sue Barker beat Czechoslovak Regina Mariskova 3-6, 6-2, 8-6, and Romania's Virginia Ruzici defeated Miloslava Holukova, another Czech, 6-1, 6-3.

Messersmith Hurls Third Shutout

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer
Only last month, Andy Messersmith was worried about winning a game. Now he's thinking "no-hitter" with each start.

"Sure, I was thinking 'no-hitter' again," the Atlanta pitcher said Wednesday after shutting out the Chicago Cubs 2-0. "I always do. Why not?"

The celebrated free agent signed a million dollar contract with the Braves earlier in the year, but was unable to win a game until May 17. Since then, he's won four of five, including three shutouts.

In his last appearance, he came within two outs of a no-hitter against Montreal and finished with a one-hit beauty. On Wednesday, he only allowed three hits, one of them a bunt single in the ninth.

"Right now I'm throwing as good as I ever did and just can't pitch any better," said Messersmith, who improved his record to 4-5.

In the other National League games, the San Francisco Giants beat the Montreal Expos 6-2; the Cincinnati Reds turned back the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-1; the Houston Astros trimmed the St. Louis Cardinals 5-2; the Los Angeles Dodgers nipped the Philadelphia Phillies 3-2, and the San Diego Padres blanked the New York Mets 3-0.

straight strong performance spoiled the National League debut of veteran right-hander Joe Coleman and handed the Cubs their sixth straight loss. Catcher Steve Swisher got two hits off Messersmith, who faced three batters over the minimum of 27. Messersmith walked one and struck out six.

The Braves scored their winning run in the sixth. Jerry Royster opened the inning with a walk, stole second and went to third on Swisher's throwing error. He scored when Rowland Office singled past second. The Braves added a run in the eighth when Royster, who had singled and gone to third on a sacrifice and an error, came across on Rod Gilbreath's sacrifice fly.

Coleman, who came to the Cubs in a cash deal Tuesday from Detroit, now is 2-6 for the season.

Giants 6, Expos 2

Jim Barr pitched 8 1-3 innings of six-hit ball — including a no-hitter for the first six — and belted a two-run single to lead San Francisco over Montreal, 4-4, held the Expos hitless until Andy Thornton opened the seventh with a line single to center.

The Giants peppered loser Don Stanhouse, 3-2, throughout the early innings, chasing the Expos' starter in a two-run fifth.

Reds 6, Pirates 1

Gary Nolan pitched a five-hitter and Tony Perez drove in three runs, two with a 400-foot home run, to lead Cincinnati over Pittsburgh. The Reds gave Nolan, 5-3, all the support he needed in the opening inning when they scored twice off loser Jerry Reuss on a run-scoring double by Ken Griffey and an RBI single by Joe Morgan.

Nolan set down the Pirates on a total of only 77 pitches, and merely 20 of them were balls.

Astros 5, Cardinals 2

J.R. Richard scattered seven hits and Enos Cabell's two-run single keyed a three-run first inning as streaking Houston defeated St. Louis. Richard, 7-5, struck out six and walked only two as the Astros won for the seventh time in the last eight games. St. Louis starter Lynn McGlothen, 5-5, absorbed the loss.

Padres 3, Mets 0

San Diego left-hander Randy Jones outdueled Tom Seaver and shut out New York with a seven-hitter as the surging Padres extended their winning streak to a club record five straight. Jones' victory was his 10th complete game of the season and ran his record to 11-2 as he continued rolling as baseball's winningest pitcher.

Dodgers 3, Phillies 2

White's Status Is Up In Air

By JAMES SAGGUS
Associated Press Writer
STARKVILLE, Miss. (AP) — Disciplinary officer Harold Hall reports a full investigation will be made before Mississippi State University decides the case of basketball star Ray White, accused of taking $250 from an Australian bank.

Hall announced plans for the investigation Wednesday and declined to comment on White's status.

"I can't say anything about the case just now," he said. "I have the case under study. I will be talking with him later. After I get all the facts together, a decision on disciplinary action will be made."

White, a 19-year-old freshman from Gulfport, was charged with leaning over a bank counter in Adelaide, Australia, last month and taking the money from an open drawer.

Accompanied by White, who was released on a $2,500 good behavior bond, the team arrived home Tuesday after extended tour of Australia.

Coaches parried questions about the case and Wednesday Coach Kermit Davis issued a statement saying only: "The matter has been referred to the Mississippi State University disciplinary officer, Harold Hall, dean of students. I have no further comment to make at this time."

Hall said he would follow regular procedures in handling White's case.

"We look at Mr. White as we look at any student at Mississippi State University who becomes involved in a conflict with regulations of the university."

"When a student is subject to disciplinary action, he can go before an appropriate judicial council for a hearing, or he can waive this hearing and request an administrative hearing. If he elects to do this, an administrative hearing is held before me and other school administrative officials."

There are two judicial councils at the university. One is composed of students and one of students and faculty. The case could be assigned to either.

Hall said because he had not conferred yet with White, he did not know which procedure White would want to use.

Ump Cools Off Martin; Perry Hurls 4-Hitter

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

When Billy Martin kicks up a fuss, he does it right — right into the umpire's shins.

The New York Yankees' fiery manager reached the boiling point Wednesday night — then cooled off in the Yankees' clubhouse for the final six innings of their 4-3 victory over California.

He went after first base umpire Larry McCoy with a vengeance in the third inning, then went after him verbally in the clubhouse, a bit of blowing off steam that might shrink his wallet considerably.

McCoy gave Martin his first heave-ho of the season after Martin had taken exception to the ump's out call, a close call on a Mickey Rivers grounder.

If McCoy had lowered his palms instead of raising his thumb on the play, the Yankees would've had a run. Instead, he had Martin on his hands — or, more precisely, his legs.

According to McCoy, Martin stormed out to first, shouted a few words relating to McCoy's family tree, then threw his hat and kicked the ump in the shins a couple of times.

Exit Billy Martin.

Five innings later, Elston Howard, the Yankees' first base coach, argued another close call with McCoy.

Exit Elston Howard.

In the rest of the American League, Kansas City beat Detroit 6-3, Boston defeated Oakland 6-4, Texas trimmed Baltimore 4-1, Cleveland clipped Minnesota 4-1 and Chicago downed Milwaukee 4-2.

"Billy came out, used an obscenity and threw his hat," McCoy said of Martin's explosive third-inning appearance. "Either deserved ejection. I'm not sure which one I threw him out for."

"The call on Rivers was very close. I called it like I saw it. If there were 10 calls like that, there would probably be 10 arguments."

And Martin insisted McCoy "missed the play. In my opinion, he's an incompetent umpire. The other three guys on the crew are okay, even (rookie ump Allan) Clark. He's good."

But McCoy, Martin fumed, "runs scared when the going's tough. I haven't tried to get him fired, but he is incompetent."

"I didn't kick McCoy. I certainly didn't mean to. I hope I didn't touch him in any way."

With Martin gone, coach Yogi Berra managed the Yankees. "If I would've gotten thrown out," Berra said, "we would've had to call in (pitching coach) Bob Lemon from the bullpen."

Instead of Lemon, it was Sparky Lyle who came in from the bullpen, replacing a weary Catfish Hunter in the ninth inning and picking up his eighth save of the year.

Hunter shut out the Angels until the eighth, when they scored twice on singles by Jerry Remy and Tommy Davis. In the ninth, Ron Jackson led off with a double and, after Leroy Stanton's grounder sent him to third, Lyle came on and gave up Orlando Alvarez' grounder for California's final run.

New York got a run in the sixth on Rivers' triple and Roy White single, two in the seventh on Willie Randolph's infield single and Rivers' sacrifice fly, and the winner in the eighth on Oscar Gamble's single.

Royals 6, Tigers 3

John Mayberry's fourth and fifth home runs of the year led the Royals past Detroit and to their seventh victory in nine games, keeping them atop the AL West by 1½ games.

Mayberry's first blast over the right field wall followed a two-out walk to George Brett by Ray Bare and ignited a four-run first inning. The second homer came off John Hiller in the eighth.

Red Sox 6, A's 4
Carl Yastremski, Carlton Fisk, Jim Rice and Cecil Cooper slammed home runs that propelled Boston into second place in the East, 6½ games back of the Yanks and one-half game ahead of sagging Baltimore.

Cooper's shot was the big one, a two-run job that broke a seventh-inning tie. The A's got homers by Sal Bando and Don Baylor.

Rangers 4, Orioles 1
Gaylord Perry's four-hit, nine-strikeout performance for Texas sent the Orioles crumbling to their fifth straight loss and ninth in 11 games. He got all the support he needed in the second inning via Tom Grieve's two-run double off Ken Holtzman.

Indians 4, Twins 1
Pat Dobson also pitched a four-hitter and Buddy Bell also had a two-run double, leading the Indians past Minnesota. Dobson lost a shutout on Steve Braun's ninth-inning homer.

White Sox 4, Brewers 2
Rick Gossage, a reliever for Chicago last year but a solid starter this season, got his fourth straight victory, although he needed Clay Carroll's eighth-inning relief help.

POW Ransom Offer Claimed

By PIET BENNETT
Associated Press Writer

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — A private detective says he was offered the chance to ransom two American prisoners of war from Laos two years ago and was told then that up to 300 others might be held in the Asian country.

Theodore R. Grevers, who runs the Fatman International Detective Agency, said he decided to talk about his secret mission after North Vietnam insisted this week it no longer holds any Americans captive.

Grevers said he agrees the North Vietnamese probably have no American prisoners. "I believe they are in Laos near the Chinese border," he said.

The detective said he met three times in May 1974, with Pathet Lao officials in Vientiane, Laos, before negotiations broke off after the American Embassy there learned about them.

"It just died because I was no longer private," Grevers said about the negotiations he said he conducted with a woman and three men he would not identify. He said the woman was the wife of Pragna Kham-souk Keola, vice chairman of the Pathet Lao party and of the then newly formed National Coalition Political Council in Laos.

Grevers said he was told he could ransom two Americans for $225,000. Later, there were indications others might be freed without ransom.

"They had almost a burning desire to negotiate with someone who had the ability to unburden them from the care of these POWs in an honorable, private, nongovernment manner," Grevers said.

The Pentagon currently lists 816 Americans missing in Indochina.

Besides Americans, Grevers said he heard the Pathet Lao was holding 600 or 700 Thai prisoners, whom he said may have been mercenaries hired to fight in Laos by the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency.

Grevers was in the news last year when his long-standing claim that a Navy plane with 10 men aboard was downed in the Baltic in April 1950 was confirmed by the Pentagon. His agency has offices in Los Angeles, Detroit, Zurich and Hong Kong.

WASHINGTON (AP) — As the House approved subpoenas to delve into the Wayne Hays payroll-sex scandal, Republican leader John Rhodes blasted Speaker Carl Albert's handling of the controversy.

Rhodes said Albert erred badly in dealing with the charges against Hays by naming only three Democrats to study House payroll and staffing procedures. He plans to introduce a proposal to create a bipartisan committee to examine salary and expense account practices.

Rhodes said the three-Democrat panel named by Albert is doomed to failure because even if it can accurately assess the House payroll and expense account system, no one will believe the conclusions.

Earlier Wednesday, the House agreed to turn over to a federal grand jury the subpoenaed payroll records of four House committee staffers, including Hays' former mistress, Elizabeth Ray, and Paul Panzarella, who shared an office with Miss Ray and is a close friend of Hays' niece.

The grand jury is investigating whether Hays misused public funds in hiring Miss Ray, Panzarella, or others.

The House also agreed to comply with the grand jury's subpoena of payroll records of four staff members of former Rep. James Hastings, R-N.Y., covering a period from September 1969 to March 31 of this year.

It was not known why the records were being sought. A Justice Department source said the Hastings investigation is entirely separate from that of Hays, "and does not involve girls."

Meanwhile, a source said the FBI is investigating an unsubstantiated allegation that Hays used public funds to buy paintings, antiques and oriental rugs during trips abroad. A Hays spokesman said Wednesday that the objects were bought with his own money.

Hays remained under heavy pressure to resign as chairman of the House Administration Committee, which oversees salary and expense allocations. Majority leader Thomas O'Neill continued to demand that Hays step aside until investigations of his conduct are completed.

In an interview, Rhodes said he knew of no instances of payroll padding or falsified travel vouchers, but he said a system-wide investigation of House expenditures is merited anyway.

"We've got to do something because the standing of the Congress in the country is getting so low," Rhodes said. "It's really immaterial whether there is payroll padding in the Congress. It's that people think there is."

An aide to O'Neill predicted that few Democrats would support the proposal for a bipartisan study group.

WOTM Chapter Night Tonight

Greenville Chapter No. 1308, Women of the Moose, will hold the final chapter night program of the current year tonight at eight o'clock at the Moose Temple.

Green Beanie Night will be observed with Mrs. Peggy Jamieson, junior graduate regent and chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, in charge of the program.

Mrs. Wilma Turner, senior regent, said that plans also call for the enrollment of new members. Refreshments will be served following the meeting. She also reminded members of the annual installation of officers June 24 and of the chapter's Spring Party June 26.

Widespread Abuse Reported Of Ft. Bragg Food Inse Inspection

FT. BRAGG, N.C. (AP) — The head of the food inspection program here reprimanded commissary officials and ordered a halt to operations "which could easily endanger the health of consumers," according to a copyrighted story Thursday in The Fayetteville Times.

The June 4 reprimand by Lt. Col. Orville C. Schlinke Jr. was part of written documentation of widespread abuses in the food inspection program at the Army's largest military installation, the Times reported.

The newspaper probe followed a U.S. Senate subcommittee's investigation last month of abuses in the military meat inspection system. The investigation revealed that inspectors in Boston, Mass., accepted bribes and allowed the sale of inferior meat to the Army.

No evidence of bribery was uncovered at Ft. Bragg, but Schlinke's reprimand of commissary officials noted "very unsatisfactory" operations, which had been brought to his attention on "several occasions."

Other claims of bad meat management practices persist within the Veterinary Inspection Service, mostly from individual Ft. Bragg food inspectors who spoke privately with the Times.

The commissary system was cited for abuses including:

—Discolored meat reportedly repackaged with fresh meat to make it look and sell better.

—Frozen meat that was thawed, placed on the counter as fresh meat and refrozen several times.

—Handling of meat under conditions labeled by food inspectors as unsanitary.

Commissary chief Jacques B. Loraine Jr. has denied any allegations of abuses in commissary management.

The Times reported it also uncovered claims and documentation of inadequate facilities resulting in waste and abuse in the handling of food items supplied to GIs.

Commissary items are sold to military personnel and do not involve subsistence items that are routed to the troops.

A Senate subcommittee investigator said a probe of the Ft. Bragg operations had not been ruled out. He said the panel was "concerned and interested" in the Ft. Bragg disclosures.

The subcommittee also found some problems in the sale of commissary items in other areas, including Homestead Air Force Base in Florida, the subcommittee spokesman said.

Propose New Commission To Study U.S. Postal Service

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eight years after a blue-ribbon commission made recommendations on what to do about the nation's mail service, another commission is being proposed to study the situation again.

President Ford and leaders of the postal committees of Congress reportedly agreed Wednesday to pump more taxpayer money into the deficit-ridden Postal Service to keep it from becoming insolvent while a new commission studies its financial problems.

"A blue-ribbon commission is the best chance for updating and modernizing the postal system," said Sen. Gale W. McGee, D-Wyo., chairman of the Senate Post Office Committee.

McGee and Sen. Hiram Fong, of Hawaii, the senior Republican on the committee, announced the agreement. A White House spokesman said of their description of an agreement with the Ford administration, "I don't think that is far afield" but he declined to elaborate.

Commander Joins Board

ROCKY MOUNT — The Rev. Richard T. Commander of Greenville has been elected to the N. C. Wesleyan College Board of Trustees by the North Carolina Annual Conference of The United Methodist Church.

Commander, superintendent of the Greenville District of the N. C. Conference of The United Methodist Church, succeeds Rev. H. Langill Watson.

A graduate of Auburn University and Duke University Divinity School, Rev. Commander has served as chairperson of both the Commission on Worship and the Committee on Family Life of the N. C. United Methodist Conference.

The study commission proposal bears a striking resemblance to one in April 1967 when then-President Lyndon B. Johnson appointed a commission to "conduct the most searching and exhaustive review ever undertaken" of the American postal service.

Nativity Scene Is A Tradition

CINCINNATI (AP) — A life-size, outdoor nativity scene that attracts more than 150,000 viewers here annually has been assembled by the Biedenbarn family of Florence, Ky., for 36 years now.

Financed by a life insurance company as a Christmas present for the people of Cincinnati, the traditional creche has been installed in Eden Park in recent years.

Andy Biedenbarn, 66, began creating the scene in 1939. Now his son, Jerry, 32, who succeeded his father as a tree nursery owner, assembles the scene.

In June 1968, the commission issued a voluminous report entitled "Towards Postal Excellence." The report urged Congress to charter "a government-owned corporation to operate the Postal Service."

This proposal became the basis for the Postal Reorganization Act of 1970 which abolished the governmental Post Office Department and created the quasi-independent Postal Service in its place.

The new postal agency was supposed to be supported by its users rather than by the federal treasury. But in its first four years of operation, it racked up a deficit of $1.6 billion and the agency expects to lose nearly that much in the current fiscal year alone.

Postal officials say either service is going to have to be further reduced or more tax money turned over to the mails.

Under the agreement announced by McGee and Fong, the Postal Service would be given another $1 billion in addition to the $1.5 billion annual subsidy already authorized for the next two years.

'Major' Status For Symphony

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Symphony has been awarded "major orchestra status" by the American Symphony Orchestra League.

The symphony was awarded the designation for its artistic achievement and $1 million-level budget, according to symphony manager Ralph Guthrie.

Other "major orchestras" are the New York and Los Angeles Philharmonics, the Chicago Symphony and the Philadelphia Orchestra.

Cablevision Cutoff Is Taken To Judge

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — U.S. District Court Judge John Larkins has been asked to review a request for a court order forcing Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co. to restore cable television in Harnett and Columbus counties.

CT&T "unplugged" cablevision lines in the Dunn-Erwin and Whiteville-Chadbourn areas Tuesday in a dispute over payments for use of CT&T utility poles. The cutoff affected about 1,200 cablevision customers.

Wednesday's request was made by attorneys for American Cablevision.

CT&T has threatened to cut off 20,000 more customers next week in the Fayetteville area.

Judge Larkins will hear the Cablevision request Friday in Trenton. He is expected to also hear a request for an injunction against CT&T in an effort to prevent termination of service to Fayetteville until the utility pole dispute can be heard in court.

CT&T claims Cablevision owes $40,000 in delinquent payments, dating back to January 1975 when the company refused to pay an increased pole fee. At that time, CT&T raised its fee from $3 to $5 per pole per year.

Cablevision claims the increase was never discussed and that CT&T has refused to negotiate the rate.

CT&T maintains there is nothing to discuss because the increase is allowed under its Cablevision contract.

Cablevision attorneys said Wednesday their suit against CT&T will charge the telephone company with operating in restraint of commerce and with violating the Sherman Antitrust Act.

Looks And Sounds Like Hank Williams

By KATHERINE G. BEAN
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Jim Owen is used to hearing people say he looks and sounds just like legendary country singer Hank Williams.

He's used to hearing audiences cheer as he belts out "Jambalaya" and seeing tears when he wails "I'm So Lonesome I Could Cry," both songs that Williams made famous before he died suddenly in 1953.

Owen, a 34-year-old former golf pro and psychological counselor, has turned a life-long fascination with the hard-drinking, hard-living Williams into a one-man traveling musical show that wins rave reviews and sell-out audiences even in Williams' home town of Montgomery, Ala.

The show features a collection of the songs Williams wrote and made famous, interspersed with a rambling first-person monologue detailing the lanky guitar-playing star's rise to stardom and eventual death spurred by a combination of drugs and liquor.

Owen bears an uncanny resemblance to Williams when on-stage and has immersed himself so thoroughly in his role that even the singer's old friends and associates are unhappy, my marriage was unhappy because of it — I felt like a nomad being forced to live in one tent and I didn't like it."

Owen credits his wife, Yvette, with the idea for his show.

"One night she had gone to bed and I was up writing songs in the kitchen, when she came in and said she had had a dream. She dreamed she had seen me on the stage of the Grand Ole Opry singing and Hank Williams' voice was coming out."

Inspired by Hal Holbrook's one-man Mark Twain show, Owen compiled songs and reminiscences into a moving 90-minute production. The music is taped, but Owen performs every song live.

As he hunches over the microphone with his eyes closed and his knees dipping in time to the music, audiences swear he is indistinguishable from remembered images of their hero.

Owen even finds himself "thinking like Hank" on occasion.

"Once, when a drunk gave me some trouble and I realized he wasn't going to shut up, I looked down and just said what Hank said to a heckler once. 'Hey buddy. Wait right there. Yore mama and daddy are comin' by in a minute, and we're gonna get 'em married. ... That shut him up all right.'"

Asked how a family man who doesn't drink or take drugs can relate to the private hell that Williams endured, Owen replies simply:

"I lived in that world as a counselor, and my dad's an alcoholic. I know what they go through. I understand why Hank fell apart. He was so scared of failing, it was on his mind all the time."

"He just began thinking, 'Oh Hell, here it all goes' — and it did."

Owen has no plans to end his show, which is booked across the country and is being considered for television. Eventually he would like to be an actor "to express all the people that live inside of me."

"What I'm happy doing right now is trying to show some of the things Hank Williams did and some of the things he felt, to let people touch Hank again," he says. "There will always be an audience for that."

New Radio News Plan In The Red

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Come June 18, NBC Radio's "News and Information Service" starts its second year on the air, still in the red, still costing $10 million a year to operate and still trying to persuade prospective station clients that all-news radio is the only way to go.

NBC executives initially hoped to have 75 stations in the nation's top 100 markets signed for NIS' 24-hour-a-day, seven-day-a-week news service when it began. It only began with 27 stations in major and minor markets.

Too optimistic? "No, I wasn't too optimistic," says Jack G. Thayer, head of NBC's radio division, adding that NIS now serves 62 all-news stations with another 11 scheduled to start the service in the next three months.

"What happened was simply this: This happens to be the best year radio has ever had. And as a consequence, stations that normally don't do too well are doing fantastic business."

He said even though the nation's economic recession was at its worst last year, sponsors planning their 1976 budgets poured more money than ever before into radio because (a) TV time was scarce, and (b) they cut back on their more costly-to-make TV ads, opting for more advertising for the same dollar on radio.

"So, many of the clients we'd talked to before, the guys who'd made certain commitments to us, said, 'Jack, just let us go through this year (1976) because it's going to be just so much gravy,'" he said.

"They said, 'Nobody's asking what our ratings numbers are. They're just calling up and placing business.' As a result, some stations we thought would be on line this year probably won't be on until next year."

He predicted that by the end of 1976, NIS will be serving a total of 100 stations, 65 of them in major markets. The service costs each client from $750 to $15,000 a month, depending on the size of the market.

He also said that NIS, which cost $10 million in its first year of operation, will cost NBC the same amount in its second year. He declined for competitive reasons to say how much it's running in the red.

"We hadn't intended to make money the first year," he said. "We hoped that the first year would be one of experimenting, an opportunity to see if the thing would fly and what kind of responses the stations get."

He said once NIS reaches the 100-station mark by the end of this year, "we'll get another year under our belt, developing a ratings story (for advertisers), and then we'll be very competitive."

Thayer predicted that the all-news service would start turning a profit when 1978 begins, at which time it'll have enough revenue from subscribing stations and sponsors to take it out of the red.

List Content Of Sodium

LOMBARD, Ill. (AP) — Sodium, a prime ingredient of ordinary table salt, worries some people who think they're getting too much of it in their diet, says a report just published by the Water Quality Association, which offers reassurance on this point.

"Sodium is essential in human nutrition," the report states. "A person in normal health will excrete any excess of it."

For those who must restrict sodium for medical reasons, and those others who are merely concerned, the report lists the sodium content of nearly 200 foods, beverages, and common nonprescription medications. A slice of white bread, for example, contains 129 milligrams of sodium, a frankfurter 610, and two antacid tablets 1064.

Though water, even when softened, is a minor source of sodium, the report lists the sodium content of water in the 100 largest U.S. cities. Long Beach, Calif., tops them all with just over 29 milligrams in an eight-ounce glass. Seattle is at the bottom with only a fraction of a milligram. Seventy of the 100 cities surveyed have less than 5 milligrams.

A typical normal adult takes in 4500 milligrams of sodium a day — about one-eighth of an ounce.

Egyptians Visit Summer Capital

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt (UPI) — A brilliant array of multicolored beach umbrellas has begun to hide the blanched sands of this resort city's 10 miles of shoreline.

The heat of May transforms the ancient city, Egypt's second largest, into a "summer capital" as millions leave blistering Cairo for the cool breezes of the Mediterranean. Some may not return south until late September.

Many of the modest hotels that line the snaking Corniche boulevard maintain their own beaches, and if a room can be had, foreign tourists find it more convenient to pay the $7-10 a night each than to seek out a cheaper pension and struggle for space on the public sands.

A clever bit of defense by East caused declarer to lose a seemingly impregnable contract. Under the circumstances, however, we are not sure that we would have played the hand any differently.

North had a difficult response to make. His hand was too good for two spades, but he had neither the power nor the trump length to jump to three spades. So he made a temporizing bid in hearts and then corrected to spades after his partner had shown a strong hand by redoubling and raising hearts. South went on to game, and for reasons known only to himself, West announced to the world that he felt he could defeat four spades.

West led his singleton club and East won the ace. Remembering Howard Schenken's Bols bridge tip, East took some time to consider his return. He knew he could give his partner a club ruff, but he realized that that would not be enough to defeat the contract. Even if West had another trump trick, that would only complete the defensive book. Declarer would be able to ruff a couple of diamonds in dummy and take the heart finesse for his trick.

Another trick was desperately needed, so East shifted to the seven of hearts! Consider declarer's predicament. If he let the heart run and West held the king, he could run into a defensive crossruff. Since dummy's clubs would provide discards for declarer's low diamonds, it seemed like a good idea to be prepared to lose a trick in each suit except diamonds. So declarer rose with the ace of hearts, cashed the ace of trumps and led a low trump. West was not fooled. He grabbed the queen of trumps, led a heart to his partner's king and now scored his club ruff for a one-trick set.

We do not blame declarer too harshly for being taken in by East's devilish shift at trick two. Instead, we offer our sincere congratulations to East for a thoughtful defense which deserved to be rewarded.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Cool weather is forecast today from the Pacific Coast to the western edge of the Plains but warm or mild weather is expected for most of the country.

By The Associated Press
Hot is the weather word for most of the U.S. through Friday. A large stable air mass is making its influence felt over much of the nation east of the Rockies. Near 90-degree weather was not only common to our state but was recorded as far west as the Plains states and as far north as the Canadian border Wednesday.

The center of this high-pressure system was drifting east and is presently centered in western North Carolina. This high is expected to reinforce the Bermuda high over the Atlantic, helping to keep this mid-summer weather over the eastern half of the U.S.

Highs Wednesday ranged from 92 at Raleigh-Durham Airport to 70 at Grandfather Mountain. Last night, thunder-showers lingered in the Southern Piedmont region, but were confined mainly to South Carolina and Georgia.

Otherwise, a warm quiet night was the rule for the rest of the state. Temperatures overnight were mainly in the 60s with some 50s in the mountains. Rainfall amounts were rather light. Raleigh-Durham Airport managed only a trace of rain yesterday. Another hot and hazy day is in store for the Tar Heel State. This, in fact, will be the weather picture through the weekend with a few scattered afternoon and evening thunderstorms added to the picture. Highs will average in the 90s with lows in the 60 through the weekend.

Recreational weather outlook: It looks as if this weekend will be a great time to escape to the Carolina beaches and mountains. Hot and hazy weather will stick with us through Sunday. Winds will remain light and variable into tonight as high pressure remains over our state. A few afternoon and evening thunder-showers can be expected, but will provide no relief from the summer sun.

Claims Cover-Up By James Ray

By LES SEAGO
Associated Press Writer
MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The only hope for convicted killer James Earl Ray is to tell all he knows about the 1968 slaying of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., his former Memphis lawyer has said.

"I'm convinced he's covering up for someone," Robert I. Livingston said Wednesday in a telephone interview. "If he's withholding information—and I think he is—he might have hope of executive clemency from the governor of this state if he made a clean breast of what he knows...I think there are those who have not been brought to justice."

Livingston said Wednesday that Ray intended to proceed without an attorney to seek Supreme Court review of the case.

"It would be an exercise in futility," said Livingston. "I don't think he has a prayer in the courts. I think I would fall over if the U.S. Supreme Court granted certiorari—I know I would fall over dead if they reversed the lower courts."

Ray, in his petition to have Livingston and Lesar removed from his case, did not indicate he was upset at his attorneys.

"Both attorneys have represented petitioner (Ray) without fee for the past six years in what petitioner believes a commendable manner," Ray wrote from his prison cell at Nashville. "And while there is still a possibility of relief...it is of such in percentages that petitioner does not intend to burden said attorneys with the appeal and the resulting time and expenses although the petitioner does intend asking the high court pro se (for self) to review the record."

Last month Ray dismissed another Washington attorney, Bernard Fensterwald, by mutual agreement.

Although Livingston said he was happy with Ray's decision to relieve him of further legal duties, he said he is willing to act for him in a petition for executive clemency.

"I stand ready now or 30 years from now to go to the governor and ask for clemency in return for the information I think he has," Livingston said.

"It's been so difficult to represent a man for six years when you feel he's holding back."

New Location For 'Big Value'

Ronnie Tripp, general manager of Big Value Discount Drugs here, announced that the firm will move to new and enlarged facilities adjacent to A & P Food Store on E. Tenth Street.

Big Value, currently located at 2800 E. Tenth Street, will have a 2814 Tenth address following the move to and opening of the new store around the first of August.

Tripp said that Big Value will occupy some 7,000 square feet in its new drug facility which will feature a much-enlarged and modern prescription department as well as expanded cosmetic and gift departments. The firm currently has some 2,000 square feet of floor space.

The general manager noted that the store will have wall to wall carpeting and feature a decor by Streeter Fixture Co. Dennis Warren, present manager of the Greenville store, will manage the new business following the relocation, according to Tripp.

Big Value will occupy almost half of the facility, he added, which was built by Eugene West, West Construction Co. as general contractor.

"We are moving to this new store to increase the amount of merchandise and different lines we can carry to better accommodate our customers," Tripp commented.

Big Value Discount Drugs operates a facility in Ayden, in addition to the Greenville store.

Joining In Opposition

ROCKY MOUNT — Four state legislators joined about 200 townspeople in voicing opposition to a proposed prison at a public hearing here Wednesday night.

At issue is the establishment of a minimum security prison at the Richard Fountain School, which, until recently, was part of the youth correction system.

Ralph Edwards, director of prisons, told the gathering he felt mandated by the legislature to seek funds to establish a prison unit for 250 inmates on the site.

Citizens living in the vicinity of the Fountain school said they oppose the change because they fear for their safety and the devaluation of their property.

They were supported by state representatives John Davenport of Nashville, Hartwell Campbell of Wilson, Allen Barbee of Spring Hope and Larry Eagles of Tarboro.

The legislators' contention is that the bill giving the school to the corrections department was tacked on to the end of an appropriations bill, which passed the day before the legislature adjourned.

They said they did not support the bill because there was no time to gather input on the issue from local citizens.

Edwards told the audience he did not believe the prison would be detrimental to the Rocky Mount area.

Edwards said he will seek operating funds for the prison before the advisory budget commission meets June 18.

Comatose Daughter Is Now In Nursing Home

By PETER MATTIACE
Associated Press Writer
MORRIS PLAINS, N.J. (AP) — Karen Anne Quinlan, the comatose woman whose right to die became a celebrated court case, has been moved under tight security from St. Clare's Hospital in Denville to the Morris View Nursing Home here.

Miss Quinlan was moved by ambulance late Wednesday. At least two patrol cars escorted the ambulance in a slow five-mile trip to the nursing home, where about 25 Morris County sheriff's deputies waited to keep away reporters.

The young woman's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Quinlan, preceded the ambulance by a few minutes. Lights in the nursing home were put out as the couple arrived by car with their attorney, Paul Armstrong.

The ambulance backed up to the front door and deputies huddled as a stretch covered by white sheets was carried into the county-run facility.

Miss Quinlan, 22, who has been in a coma for more than a year, was removed from the hospital through a seldom-used exit to a waiting ambulance manned by volunteers from Jefferson Township. The Quinlan family lives in Landing, which is some distance from Jefferson Township.

In a statement to reporters at the nursing home, Armstrong said: "The transfer was decided upon by Mr. Quinlan in the exercise of the authority granted to him by the state Supreme Court in its humane and farsighted judgment rendered on March 31."

In its landmark decision, the high court ruled Miss Quinlan's father could make arrangements to disconnect the hospital respirator that sustained her breathing. The respirator was removed May 22 and Miss Quinlan has been breathing on her own since.

Miss Quinlan entered the coma April 15, 1975, after apparently ingesting a combination of tranquilizers and alcohol. Doctors have said she has irreversible brain damage and is in a chronic vegetative state.

Her parents said they initiated the court action to allow her to "die with dignity."

HUD Approves $395,000 Grant To Williamston

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Congressman Walter B. Jones announced approval by the Department of Housing and Urban Development of a grant under the Community Development block grant program to the town of Williamston in Martin County.

Jones said that the amount obligated under the grant is $395,000. He noted that a grant in the same amount was awarded previously to Williamston for an overall total of $790,000.

This grant, the congressman reported, will enable the town to acquire a site for the proposed construction of subsidized housing. It will also provide for improvements to the Central Business District including the replacement of water lines, and construction of a pedestrian mall and offstreet parking facility.

Peruvian Revolution Moving Today From Left To Center

By STEPHEN MORROW
LIMA, Peru, (UPI) — Since scholarly economist Francisco Morales Bermudez replaced the feisty Juan Velasco as leader of the military government in a bloodless coup last August, the "Peruvian revolution of the armed forces" has moved from left to center with increasing speed.

Gen. Morales Bermudez himself now acknowledges the shift, explaining it in his frequent speeches with these words:

"Every revolution has two phases, a first phase of change and innovation, a second phase of consolidation and integration."

Morales Bermudez fully supports the basic changes of the seven years of Velasco's presidency. They include:

- Extensive land reform.
- Nationalizations of the great foreign-owned companies which had dominated the economy.
- Expropriation of the major newspapers under a plan to turn them over to organizations representing sectors of society.
- Profit sharing plans in industry.

His policies have halted further movement toward the left, a movement which, in Velasco's time, most observers thought would only end in Eastern European-style socialism.

Morales Bermudez has pushed leftists out of positions of influence, emphasized efficiency over ideology, made peace offerings to private industry, the United States and the old political parties, permitted a wider range of freedom of speech and altered the style of leadership.

When Morales Bermudez took office, half the all-military cabinet was identified with the left. One by one, those generals have been forced into retirement, leaving only one radical, Prime Minister Gen. Jorge Fernandez Maldonado, effectively isolated.

In April, the government abruptly sacked seven editors of the expropriated newspapers, most of whom were leftist intellectuals, and replaced them with moderates. A purge of leftist writers on the papers followed.

In recent speeches, Morales Bermudez denounced leaders of labor unions and radical peasant groups as ingrate, sabotaging efforts to pull Peru out of the economic crisis caused by the world depression.

Meanwhile, in the two government-owned industries most vital for export earnings — mining and fishing — strikes have been prohibited and job security suspended. Copper exports fell 10 per cent last year because of strikes, and the anchovy fishing, fishmeal grinding industry is by most estimates 100 per cent overstaffed.

Whereas Velasco deliberately downgraded "reformed private industry," leaving it a minor role in the economy in his comprehensive blueprint for a predominantly socialist Peru known as "Plan Inca," Morales Bermudez specifically included the businessman in his calls for national unity and increased production.

Plan Inca has been scrapped in favor of a yet incomplete plan "more suitable to the second phase." A new law offers various incentives to small business, including exemption from the requirements to share ownership with the workers.

In a major speech April 30, Morales Bermudez admitted that the government had overemphasized state ownership of state industries, he said, were contributing to Peru's financial crisis.

Peruvian and U.S. diplomats have almost completed negotiations on compensation for expropriated mining facilities of the Marcona Mining Co., nationalized by Velasco in July, 1975, with a decree blasting multinational companies and swearing that no payments would be made.

Anti-American rhetoric has been greatly reduced and Henry Kissinger received a far more cordial reception last March than his predecessor as U.S. secretary of state, William Rogers, in 1973.

Morales Bermudez' policies of "consolidation" apparently even extend to the APRA (for American Political Revolutionary Alliance) political party and its 82-year-old leader, Victor Raul Haya de la Torre.

Since 1931, when Aprista revolutionaries massacred army officers in an uprising in Trujillo, the armed forces have been implacable enemies of APRA and Haya. But Morales Bermudez in Trujillo itself, called for the burying animosities based on incidents of 43 years ago.

In the speech, he announced a general amnesty would soon be made for all political prisoners, now mostly labor leaders, and for political exiles, now mostly high officials of the last civilian government, accused by Velasco of "selling out the country."

Almost all the journalists expelled by Velasco for criticizing his policies have returned and started up their magazines again. A lively collection of more than half a dozen weeklies now showers incidental criticism on the government from the far right to the far left.

A contrast to his predecessor in so many policies, Morales Bermudez also differs from Velasco's impulsive, one-man rule. By his own statements and the accounts of all insiders, he runs a consensus government of the armed forces, seeking advice from all his cabinet for big decisions.

But in one vital respect, at least in the opinion of almost all foreign observers, Morales Bermudez resembles Velasco — his government has not been able to win wide popular backing, chiefly because of inflation, shortages and other economic woes. Few economic analysts see much hope for improvement until world recovery from economic recession brings higher prices for Peru's exports.

Plant Without Bosses Is Experimental Effort

ADDY, Wash. (AP) — "I don't think I'll ever get to the point of hating to come to work in the morning," says Chuck Taylor, who works in a magnesium plant — one where there are no bosses breathing down workers' necks.

Taylor, who taught junior high school for 12 years, is one of 280 employees involved in an Aluminum Company of America experiment in worker self-government. The new Northwest Alloys, Inc., plant here has no foremen, no unions, and is run by worker "teams" who decide what has to be done and do it.

"My father-in-law worked at Kaiser. It was the same thing every day. Here, if you have any ability at all you can use it," Taylor said.

Social conscience was not necessarily what prompted the experiment, which is also being tried in a Pennsylvania coal mine, a Tennessee auto-parts plant and by West German companies.

"It's for the primary purpose of improving production," Carl Hudson, the Addy plant's personnel manager, said.

In its first five months of operation, the plant's turnover rate has been low and absenteeism is running a low 1 per cent. But it's too soon to tell if the experiment is working.

"I'd say three to five years is the shakedown period," Hudson said.

The plant's managers caution that the method might not work everywhere. Workers were hand-picked from about 5,000 applicants — only those willing to rotate assignments, doing both skilled and menial work, were hired.

"We were looking for people who would feel comfortable in an unstructured situation, in small groups," said Hudson. "We turned down highly skilled electricians, with 30 years' experience, who weren't interested in learning to be mechanics."

The 7-to-12-member teams hash out work assignments and deal with personality problems, right down

On Signal, Bulldozers Clear Away Slums In India

By JOHN NEEDHAM
NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — The police trucks come in the evening, their loudspeakers blaring: "Get out in 24 hours. Take your personal possessions. These structures will be bulldozed."

There have been previous threats of eviction, but for families who have lived in the slum huts for 20 or 25 years, this is the final warning. The bulldozers come and demolish all.

To the casual passerby, yesterday's teeming colony of hundreds of shops and hovels that were home to thousands of people is today's vast dusty field strewn with bricks.

The government has a resettlement program allotting 25 square feet of land to each evicted slum family. A resident can bring bricks from his old dwelling or obtain a $330 loan from a nationalized bank.

With a bit of luck, a family might be resettled to Dakshinipuri, about seven miles from downtown, which has plots where eventually there will be children's parks.

There is a dispensary, school, shopping center, public latrines and water pumps, as well as a shop where goods are sold at fixed prices.

Resettled residents, however, complain of bus fares and income lost by women who could do odd jobs in the old slum area.

For Munniammi, a 28-year-old mother of three, slum clearance means an upheaval in her life.

"This place is terrible," Munniammi said in her new single-room home — 25 square feet — in the Kalyanpuri complex.

"I used to make some extra money, which came in handy, but that's all gone now. We are living here a hand-to-mouth existence."

Every family member did some sort of work close to home. Fathers might be office sweepers, mothers laundresses, children beggars or scavengers.

With every member of the family contributing, many of the slum dwellers eked out an almost middle class income, as much as $100 per month. But finding housing on their own is difficult because many are unemployable and are thus considered off-limits by landlords.

Their houses were "unauthorized structures," violating zoning laws, but a sense of "squatters' rights" had grown up over the years.

There was no rent and electricity was free, obtained illegally by tapping the street lighting power system.

The hovels presented a stunning portrait of misery and squalor to visitors, an embarrassment to the government. Attempts at eviction were blocked by politicians who received the slum dwellers' votes in return.

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi imposed a nationwide state of emergency last June and efforts at slum clearance and resettlement moved into high gear about four months ago.

Now when the police trucks come and the warnings sound, residents know it is the end.

"What can we do since the emergency?" one person asked hours before the bulldozers arrived. "The government can bring in soldiers."

The only violence thus far in the resettlement program occurred April 19 near Turkman Gate in the Old Delhi section of the capital.

Police razed hundreds of dwellings and shops in a teeming commercial district marked by narrow alleys and buildings of one to three stories, erected at crazy angles. But residents said a family planning program underway in the district was as much or more to blame for the violence.

The government insists it does not carry out compulsory sterilization, but residents said they were told they would receive new housing only if they underwent such operations.

Six hours of riots in the heavily Moslem area left five persons dead by government count — 10 according to official sources, more according to residents. Hundreds were arrested and hundreds more injured.

Even for those evicted peacefully, the changes are difficult.

Prem Kishore, a 32-year-old resident of Kalyanpuri, is a street vendor, one of many on the streets offering ice cream or cold water by the glass for the equivalent of about half a cent.

The vendors usually make 55 to 66 cents a day, but in the old areas they could walk or bicycle to work. Kishore now has to pay for a bus.

"I get up at 5 a.m. to get to work by 9 a.m.," he said. "I hardly see my children now."

The government says there are frequent, free deluxe buses to take residents the five miles from the complex into town, across the Jamuna River.

The "resettlement area" consists of hundreds of row houses of white-washed brick and mortar with ceilings perhaps eight feet high. There are no trees to relieve the 104 degrees heat of early summer.

Officials know it is a low-lying area susceptible to floods and hope to plant eucalyptus trees to siphon subsoil water and build a lake to drain the excess water that will come with the monsoons in late June.

Residents say the water supply is inadequate and three of the four water pumps do not work. There is danger of disease unless more latrines are installed and people taught to use them.

The poor are not the only ones affected by the New Delhi government's campaign to implement zoning laws that have been on the books for decades.

One retired Indian army major, a medal-winner in the last war, had spent about $11,000 to improve his house, setting it apart from those of his neighbors like the Taj Mahal next to a tenement.

But it was in an unauthorized area and the bulldozers swept it aside as if it were straw.

On one recent morning, lawyers in Old Delhi showed up at their offices and found rubble. The offices had been unauthorized or had protruded too far into the streets and were razed.

About 60 lawyers took a bus to the Supreme Court to complain. On the trip back, some apparently shouted anti-government slogans, prompting police to board the bus.

The lawyers were arrested and their colleagues went on strike for several days, halting court business, until they were freed and promised help in their search for new offices.

SLUM CLEARANCE—India, which has some of the worst slums in the world, is doing something about them. Police trucks come in the evening, loud-

Artificial Bone Said Promising

By WARREN E. LEARY
AP Science Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A glass-like material that fuses directly into bone could lead to saving thousands of limbs now amputated because they aren't suitable for artificial bone implants, a researcher says.

Dr. Larry L. Hench reported Monday that artificial bone attached to the real thing with a substance called bioglass has been successfully tested in animals and the results show "great promise" for human use.

Hench, director of the Biomedical Engineering Program at the University of Florida and the inventor of bioglass, said human trials are under way in Europe and are likely to start in the United States within two years.

Addressing a symposium sponsored by the American Chemical Society and 12 other scientific organizations, Hench said bioglass was used successfully to install hip joints in sheep, artificial leg bones in dogs and parts of jawbones in baboons.

One of the most exciting possibilities for bioglass is to bind replacement sections to long bones, as in legs and arms, when a seriously damaged section has been removed, Hench said.

It is extremely difficult to replace such sections because the forces they must withstand in use were too much for normal attachment methods, he said. As a result, otherwise healthy limbs often must be amputated.

The bioglass bond is strong enough to overcome such difficulties, he added.

Bioglass is similar to window glass, but contains carefully formulated amounts of certain elements — chiefly calcium and phosphorus — which make it resemble hydroxyapatite, the principal mineral in bone.

This chemical closeness results in the interaction between the artificial implant and bone when brought into contact, and the two gradually fuse together, said Hench.

This interaction forms a layer of byproducts that eventually stops the chemical reaction and prevents the bioglass from being totally absorbed by the bone, he said.

"Bioglass has the capability of forming a true bond with bone whereas normal (bone) adhesive agents don't — they just cement," Hench said in an interview.

Plane Studies Stratosphere

HOUSTON (UPI) — The National Aeronautics and Space Administration says an earth survey aircraft is studying the stratosphere over Central America, part of South America, Canada and the Caribbean and Pacific Oceans to measure ozone and man-made pollutants in the air.

NASA said the aircraft is one of two U2 high-altitude research planes flown by the space agency.

The purpose of the mission is to help scientists understand how these gases and particles will affect the global climate over a long period of time.

Shellfish Can Clean Selves

HOUSTON (UPI) — Shellfish contaminated by an oil spill cleanse themselves of pollution, according to a six-year study by the American Petroleum Institute.

The study's conclusion contradicts other studies that shellfish, particularly oysters, do not purge themselves of oil once they are covered with it.

The API study said within three weeks of being exposed to an oil spill, mussels no longer contained detectable amounts of oil in their tissues.

Tree Bundles Are Requested

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UPI) — More than 1,600 requests for Heritage Bundles have come to the Missouri Department of Conservation from the state's communities.

The program, expected to attract about 500 towns and cities, provides bundles of 14 trees to be planted as part of the community's Bicentennial celebration.
