Celebrations Mark A Pride In America

By JULES LOH
Associated Press Writer

National self-pride became truth self-evident this weekend as Americans set aside their inhibitions and put on the grandest and gaudiest birthday party in the course of human events. They rang the church bells, shot the cannons, paraded to a fare thee well and assembled a maritime display unmatched in history.

And as the sun set on the Glorious Fourth, from Atlantic to Pacific, the great cities and small hamlets of the land lit the summery sky with a kaleidoscope of fireworks and filled the air with a booming serenade to 200 years of independence.

New York harbor, abloom with pennant and sail the day long, by night was a garden of glittering heavenly flowers that draped America's sweetheart, the Statue of Liberty, in red, white and blue.

But beyond the super-scale, star-spangled hoopla an almost tangible sense of national unity emerged, which became a national gaiety, a spontaneous moment of uplift after the long sad years of Vietnam and Watergate.

"It is history," said Josh Milon of Kansas City, one of 25,000 who journeyed to Valley Forge, "and darn if they ain't doing it right."

History it was, with Americans waiting 3½ hours to get a glimpse of the Declaration of Independence, the real thing, on display in Washington; and pageantry it was, with the rockets' red glare shattering the dawn's early light over Ft. McHenry; and homespun Americana it was as well, with clambakes and ox roasts and ball games and beer.

It was a day of unabashed optimism. Said Alf Landon, the 88-year-old elder statesman of the Kansas plains, "I envy the lastborn baby today, the future he has in this land."

And a day of instinctive neighborliness. "Happy birthday," strangers said, passing. President Ford visited the historic seedbeds of American liberty — Valley Forge, where he reminded the throng of the soldiers who "came here in the snows of winter over a trail marked with the blood of their rag-bound feet," and Independence Hall in Philadelphia where he sounded anew the principles laid down there by Jefferson and Adams:

"The world knows where we stand. The world may or may not follow, but we lead because our whole history says we must. Liberty is for all men and women as a matter of inalienable right."

The President then helicoptered to the bunting-draped deck of the USS Forrestal in New York harbor to view — along with five million shorebound viewers straining from every point of vantage — the anachronism of tall ships of billowing square sails and steel-hulled warships from 22 nations, there to salute the world's oldest democracy. The flotilla of vessels small and large sailed and motored up the Hudson River and down again, each bedecked with pennant fore and aft snapping in the wind, a stately procession of unhurried grace in marked contrast to other more typical festivities of the day.

In Muskegon, Mich., they baked a 400-pound birthday cake and in Orchard Lake, Mich., a beauty shop operator painted flags on her customers' fingernails, one dollar a nail, and in Terre Haute, Ind., Judith Grimes and Thomas Davisson got married: the bride wore red, white and blue and "Stars and Stripes Forever" was the wedding march.

In cities across the land naturalization ceremonies made a special occasion of a special day, poignantly honoring a nation of immigrants — in Miami, 7,141 new Americans swore allegiance; in Detroit, 1,000 more; and in Chicago a carefully chosen 1,776.

"I feel so good and happy," said 90-year-old Alexandra Jawor in her thick Polish accent at the Chicago ceremonies, "I'll never forget today."

Good and happy feelings were the order of the day but, inevitably in a land honoring two centuries of free speech and assembly, there were various protests — but no violence.

In Philadelphia 15,000 rallied to "get the rich off our backs" and in Washington a group espousing economic revolution summoned 5,000.

On the Pine Ridge Indian reservation in South Dakota, Kevin Red Cloud, 59, the great-grandson of Red Cloud, the Oglala chief, made no protest but made a statement: "I think in a couple more generations everything will be worked out."

A sabbath Fourth punctuated another aspect of the American heritage, with celebrations beginning everywhere as church service in many patriotic music replaced hymns.

And at 2 p.m. Eastern time — 8 a.m. Honolulu time — President Ford rang a ceremonial bell which signaled a tin-tinabulation of bells throughout the land, from the cathedrals of Washington's great cathedrals to the chapel bells of California's adobe shrines.

And in Boston Harbor, the USS Constitution — Old Ironsides — shivered her venerable timbers with a rousing 21-gun salute, the first time her guns had been fired in 95 years.

Never had America celebrated a holiday to equal it.

Thousands At Greenville Bicentennial Observance

By BARBARA MATHEWS
Reflector Staff Writer

A crowd estimated at 10,000 watched a "dazzling" display of fireworks last night as the Greenville Bicentennial celebration came to an end, according to co-chairmen David Duffus and Cliff Barbee of the Greenville Jaycees.

"We feel that the Fourth of July celebration was an outstanding success, such a success that we are going to sign up for next year and put on an even greater show," said Duffus.

"We really appreciate the support of everyone involved who made it the success that it was."

Yesterday's activities began with a bicycle race at 1 p.m., one of three bicycle races on the East Coast and the only one held in the South.

Winners were as follows: Intermediate class (ages 12-14) — Brian Sayer with the NVCV for 12 miles in 25 minutes, 35 seconds; veteran's class (age 40 and over) — Robert White with the TBA for 11.5 miles in 25 minutes, 35 seconds; women's — Donna Edwards, unattached, of Greenville for 12 miles in 29 minutes, 29 seconds; juniors (ages 15-17) — Boyd Fasick from the Hartz Racing Club for 24 miles in 48 minutes, 17 seconds; senior 3 and 4 class (ages 18-39) — David Wilson of the TBA for 24 miles in 47 minutes, 10 seconds; senior 1 and 2 class (ages 18-39) — Bernard Seagle of the TBA for 30 miles in 1 hour, 18 minutes; and novice division — Dan Starr of Greenville for five miles in 13 minutes, 13 seconds.

Winners in other contests yesterday included Stephen Higdon in the tricycle race; Urban Turnage, 14, in the sack race (25 and under); Tim Knowlton, 25, in the sack race (25 and over); Angela Artis, 11, in the spoon race (12 and under); Karen Jeffreys, 16, in the spoon race (12 and over); Richard Lang in the watermelon seed spitting contest, with a distance of 27 feet; Allan Kirk, who caught six fish in the fishing contest; Lori Garrish in the girl's softball throw, with a throw of 98 feet; Danny Puryear in the boys' softball throw, with a distance of 175 feet; and Danny Smith in the still-walking contest.

A model airplane combat flying demonstration, where the object was to cut the opponent's streamer off the tail of his plane, was also held. Ray Richardson of Tarboro took first place, second place was won by Walter Williamson of Norfolk, Va., and Joe Lundy of Wilmington took third.

Following the afternoon contests, a gospel sing was held from 4-6 p.m., featuring the Temple Quartet and the Melody Makers.

"The gospel sing attracted a large number of people," said David Duffus.

"The sing gave even more meaning to the Fourth of July. In fact, someone told me that after the gospel sing, you didn't even have to have someone get up and tell what the Fourth meant."

A karate demonstration, presented by the Karate Club, followed.

"The most outstanding program presented yesterday was the 'Sunday in the Park' sponsored by the Greenville Recreation Department," said Duffus.

"The Plank Road String Band played bluegrass music for two hours with a special performance by the Green Grass Cloggers. Clown Alley also entertained."

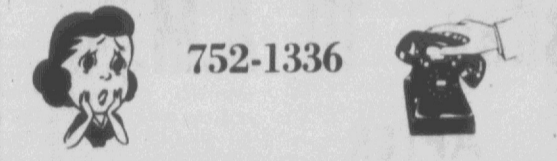

"Then Ed Rawl, a licensed pyrotechnician, put on a dazzling display of fireworks for the capacity crowd."

David Flaherty, Republican gubernatorial candidate, was on hand for the festivities.

NEVER TOO YOUNG — This young man was a little small for the rigors of the sack race in Sunday's Bicentennial activities, so he accepted a little assistance from his father. (Reflector photo by Barbara Mathews).

REFLECTOR HOTLINE

752-1336

Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell your problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used. Transcribing is done once a day.

A HOTLINE APPEAL

READERS NEEDED

Volunteer Greenville has asked Hotline to appeal for readers for the blind. "The volunteer's role," says Susan Mescher, coordinator of Volunteer Greenville, "would be to read information from text books and story books, recording them on tapes. The recordings can be done on the volunteers' own time and in their own homes or offices. Anyone interested should call Volunteer Greenville at 752-4137, Ext. 255."

This is a need of the N.C. Division of Services for the blind and quite a few volunteers are needed, she said.

NEEDS FRESH DILL

Several of us in the neighborhood who can pickle are wondering where we can get fresh dill. There doesn't seem to be any available in the supermarkets. M.R.

According to Evelyn Spangler of the Home Economics department of the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Service, this problem is very common each summer.

Mrs. Spangler suggested that for next year, the best thing to do for those who plan to pickle is to plant the dill themselves. She said it is very easy to grow.

For this summer, we contacted the produce department at Overton's supermarket at 211 N. Jarvis St. Although they are temporarily out of fresh dill, they are expecting to have some in a few days.

Pres. Ford Personally Greets New Americans At Monticello

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — President Ford wound up his participation in the weekend's Bicentennial celebration by personally greeting 105 new citizens today at Monticello, the mountaintop home of the nation's third president.

"After two centuries, there is still something wonderful about being an American," the President said. New citizens from 23 countries took the citizenship oath, administered by Supreme Court Justice Lewis F. Powell.

About 1,500 persons stood on the front lawn at Monticello, built near Charlottesville by Thomas Jefferson, to witness the ceremony.

Ford emphasized patriotic themes for the day after the country's 200th anniversary. But he also declared, "I see a growing danger to this country in the conformity of thought and taste and behavior. We need more encouragement and protection for individuality. The wealth we have of cultural, ethnic, religious and racial traditions are valuable counterbalances to the overpowering sameness and subordination of totalitarian societies."

Referring to the ideas of Jefferson, author of the Declaration of Independence, Ford said the revolutionaries believed that men could be trusted to govern themselves without a master.

"This was the most revolutionary idea in the world at that time," Ford said. "It remains the most revolutionary idea in the world today."

Ford traveled by helicopter Sunday to participate in a variety of Bicentennial events. He flew to George Washington's wintering camp site at Valley Forge; visited Philadelphia's Independence Hall, where the Declaration of Independence was signed 200 years ago Sunday; and spoke from the deck of the aircraft carrier Forrestal in New York harbor.

Later, the President ended the Bicentennial day watching a huge fireworks display on the national Mall in Washington.

In his Monticello speech, Ford expanded on the theme that the infant United States granted citizenship broadly when other nations regarded it as a special privilege.

"The essential fact is that the United States — as a national policy and in the hearts of most Americans — has been willing to absorb anyone, from anywhere," he said. "We were confident that, simply by sharing our American adventure, these newcomers would become loyal, law-abiding productive citizens. And they did."

To the new citizens, Ford said, "Remember that none of us are more than caretakers of this great country. Remember that the more freedom you give to others, the more you will have for yourself. Remember that without law, there can be no liberty."

"And remember, as well, the rich treasures you brought with you from whence you came, and let us share your pride in that."

"This is the way we keep our independence as exciting as the day it was declared, and the United States of America even more beautiful than Joseph's coat."

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israel gloried today in the commando rescue of more than 100 hijacking victims from the Ugandan airport where pro-Palestinian terrorists held them captive for nearly a week.

But its border troops watched for revenge raids from Arab guerrillas.

Palestinian guerrillas in Lebanon vowed reprisals for the rescue mission. A broadcast from Beirut warned Jewish settlements would be attacked and the hostages would be recaptured.

The 2,400-mile, three-plane raid into the heart of East Africa Saturday night was Israel's most proudest military accomplishment since the Six-Day War in 1967. There was nationwide rejoicing.

"This operation will become a legend," Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin told the Knesset, Israel's parliament. "It is Israel's contribution to the fight against terrorism."

"I'm proud of the army, and I'm proud of the nation," said Defense Minister Shimon Peres. "I am very proud and happy."

President Ford messaged Rabin that the American people joined him in expressing "great satisfaction that the passengers of the Air France flight seized earlier this week have been saved and a senseless act of terrorism thwarted."

Prime Minister Robert D.

Muldoon of New Zealand said everyone in his country was thrilled to learn of "this audacious operation."

Israeli officials said 101 hostages were brought back to Israel, but at least 11 of them were hospitalized. They said three hostages, one of the commandos and seven hijackers were killed, and one hostage was left behind because she had been hospitalized in Kampala before the rescue. One wounded hostage was hospitalized in Nairobi.

President Idi Amin mobilized his army after the raid. He said 20 Ugandan troops were killed and 32 injured in the hour-long battle at Entebbe international airport 21 miles south of Kampala. He called for worldwide condemnation of Israel and said he would complain to the United Nations Security Council.

Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy charged the Israelis with "aggression against all Africa." But in Paris, some of the French among the hostages accused Amin's troops of "flagrant complicity" with the hijackers and said they were "more afraid of the Ugandans than the hijackers."

Most of those freed were Israelis or Jews with Israeli passports and dual nationality. Among them was a native of Madison, Wis., Janet Robey Almog, who is married to an Israeli. They also included the 12 members of the crew of the Air France jetliner which two Palestinians and two Germans hijacked on June 27 shortly after it took off from Athens on a flight from Tel Aviv to Paris.

At least three more heavily armed Palestinians joined the hijackers after the plane landed early last Monday at the Entebbe airport. This aroused suspicions that Amin knew of the hijacking in advance and was cooperating with it.

The hijackers freed 148 of the passengers last Wednesday and Thursday but kept all the Israelis and Jews of other nationalities. As ransom for them, they demanded that Israel, West Germany, France, Switzerland and Kenya deliver 52 Palestinians or Palestinian supporters they claimed were imprisoned in those countries.

Israel, reversing a seven-year-old policy of refusing to treat with terrorists, agreed to negotiate an exchange of prisoners for the hostages. But at sunset Saturday night two Israeli air force 707 jets and a C130 transport took off for Entebbe. Aboard was an elite commando unit trained in anti-guerrilla warfare. Various sources gave this account of the operation:

The hostages had been imprisoned all week in the lounge of an unused old terminal building several hundred feet from the airport control tower. At least seven terrorists were guarding them Saturday night, and about 70 Ugandan troops were on the second floor of the building or on guard duty outside.

BRIG. DAN SHOMRON led Sunday's commando raid into Entebbe Airport. (AP Wirephoto)

The commandos split into two groups, one to storm into the building and rescue the hostages, the other to take care of any opposition outside.

A diversionary explosion, possibly the bombing of an oil tank, was set off to distract the Ugandans' attention. The Israelis also opened fire on Ugandan air force MIG fighters parked in the open and set six to 10 of them on fire.

As the Ugandans recovered from their surprise, they began firing. One of the commandos, Col. Yehonatan Netanyahu, 30, whose parents brought him to Israel from the United States when he was two, was killed by a shot in the back.

"We heard firing and explosions and we thought the guerrillas were blowing up the airport building," said Sarah Davidson. "Then we saw the Israeli soldiers and we rejoiced, we rejoiced."

"We heard all the noise, and we thought the Arabs were coming to liquidate us," said Idit Hirsch. "Then we heard men yelling in Hebrew. We were saved."

The hostages said they dropped to the floor when the shooting started. Then the commandos broke into the building, and one of the hijackers threw a grenade into the room.

Miss Hatch Weds Sunday

ALBERTSON — Miss Betty Lou Hatch and Glenwood Sanderson, both of Greenville, were united in marriage Sunday at 5 p.m. at the home of the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Woodrow Sanderson, in Albertson.

The bride was escorted by her father. She wore a formal length gown of white bridal satin which she made and style, featuring short puffed sleeves. The raised stand-up collar and open V-neckline extended into an empire waistline. Cluny lace seeded with pearls trimmed the collar, neckline and encircled the waistline. The full A-line skirt fell into a sweep length train.

She wore a fingertip length mantilla of illusion net, which she also made. The mantilla was edged with cluny lace seeded with pearls to complement the gown. The bride carried a long-stemmed pink rose tied with a white satin bow with streamers.

Ronald Pate of Mount Olive served the bridegroom as best man. Mike Bolt of Goldsboro served as usher.

The bride's mother wore a street length dress of beige with a green and orange overprint. The mother of the bridegroom wore a street length sleeveless yellow dress of chiffon with an accordion-pleated skirt. Both wore carnation corsages.

After a wedding trip to Florida, the couple will reside in Greenville.

as a computer operator. He is a graduate of East Duplin High School in Beulaville and attended East Carolina University.

A reception was given by the bride and groom and the bridegroom's mother and sister, Betty Lou Sanderson, at the Sanderson home in Albertson. The bride and bridegroom cut the first slice of the three-tier wedding cake. The centerpiece was an arrangement of pink sweetheart roses, white carnations and baby's breath.

For her going-away outfit, the bride chose a street length white cotton dress with a scooped neckline, short sleeves and a dirndl skirt.

The bride-elect was honored Thursday at a luncheon at the home of Mrs. Rosalie Trotman of Greenville and at a party given by the Daily Reflector staff, hosted by Miss Susan Quinn.

Confirm Groom's Dead Before Gifts Go Back

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My daughter was to have been married in the spring, but two weeks before the wedding, the groom took a charter flight to Tucson and did not return.

The authorities and the FAA told us that his plane crashed in Mexico and that he is dead. We have had eight different versions of the plane crash, but as yet, no body was found, and there is no proof that he is dead.

When a wedding is cancelled, I know that the bride should return the wedding gifts, but what should we do in a case like this? If it turns out that he is still alive, I am sure she will want to marry him.

Does she have to return the shower gifts, too? PUZZLED

DEAR PUZZLED: If your daughter's fiancé's plane crashed and he died in the wreckage, there should have been a body identified as his.

Eight different versions of the plane crash? No body? You may need a lawyer to investigate this "crash." First determine whether the absent groom is in fact dead—then worry about the disposition of wedding and shower gifts.

DEAR ABBY: Saw the letter from the woman who had sent thousands of cards to people and was complaining because few people thanked her. She could be a woman I know.

She sends me cards for Christmas, Easter, New Years, St. Patrick's Day, April Fools Day, May Day, Fourth of July, Halloween, my anniversary and birthday, and even Mother's Day! Once I sent her a note to thank her, and she sent me a card to thank me for thanking her!

Then I tried calling her instead, and she kept me on the phone for an hour listening to her health problems and complaints because no one thanks her for her cards. (I can see why they don't.)

She called and asked me for my son's address so she could send cards to him and his wife. They live out of town, and she hasn't seen him for six years and she's never met his wife.

I may be boorish, but I am not going to write to thank someone for wishing me a "bang-up Fourth of July," or a "ghoulish Halloween."

Oh, yes, I also received a "farewell" card when I went on my vacation last year and a "welcome home" card when I returned.

McGlohon Receives Boys' Club Community Award

Winterville native Donald (Don) C. McGlohon, owner and president of Hines Agency, Inc. in Greenville, is the first recipient of The Community Leadership Award, sponsored by the Pitt-Greenville Boys' Club.

Presentation of the award was made during a brief ceremony at intermission time of "Sunday in the Park" program yesterday.

The award, which is part of the Boys' Club observance of the Bicentennial year, was presented to McGlohon by Chet Emerson, Executive Director of the club, and Bobby Hall, current president of the Boys' Club.

Ms. Etsik Gordon, chairwoman of the club's Special Projects Committee, said McGlohon was selected for the award because "he is the kind of person that young people look up to, an unsung hero type of man."

"Don is a person whose deeds exemplify the highest standards of community leadership," Ms. Gordon added.

Active in numerous community, civic, professional and church service projects, McGlohon recently spearheaded the drive to secure signatures on a petition to present to county commissioners on the matter of requesting reinstatement of the 20 cents supplementary levy for the Greenville School District. McGlohon is a graduate of East Carolina University with a BS degree in Business Education. In the mid 1950's, he served as a pilot in the U.S. Air Force, stationed in Kinston, in Oklahoma and in Texas.

He is married to the former Janet Williams of Elm City. They have three children, Keila, 17, Margaret, 15, and Don, Jr., 14. He is a member of Immanuel Baptist Church where he is a deacon, and formerly was a Sunday School teacher and superintendent of the Sunday School there.

Currently, McGlohon is district director of Eastern Carolina Chapter of the Certified Property and Casualty Underwriter's association, and is a board member of the Independent Insurance Agents of North Carolina. He also serves on the Education and the Management Committees of the latter agency.

One field in which he has been especially active is that of helping form the Pitt County Insurance Women. He has donated time to teach three courses at Pitt Tech for certification of women in the insurance field, and each year teaches a course in this field at UNC-Chapel Hill.

McGlohon is a board member of the American Red Cross, is director of the board of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce, and is a member of Greenville-Martinsborough Lions Club, the ECU Pirates Club, and the Moose Lodge.

Formerly active in the Greenville Jaycees, he was a member of that group's board of directors and was chairman of the Boys' Home All-star Game one year.

Other activities include past president of the Elmhurst PTA and also the Greenville PTA Council. In the United Fund, he has been captain of the Leadership Division and was chairman of the Business Division of Pitt County.

RECEIVES AWARD — Bobby Hall, president of the Pitt-Greenville Boy's Club, presents The Community Leadership Award, sponsored by the Boys' Club to Don McGlohon.

New Citizens Take Oath Of Allegiance

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — "This is what I feel," said one of the nation's newest citizens as he pointed to a line on a song sheet: "God bless America, my home sweet home."

Marcos Marcos, 42, a plastics factory worker, had bought a blue suit with silver piping for naturalization ceremonies Sunday. He became a U.S. citizen — along with 7,140 others — in one of the largest swearing-in ceremonies ever, specially planned for the Bicentennial.

"I worked hard in Cuba," Marcos said in halting English, "but I had nothing. I work hard here, but I have everything I want: a car, a TV, a home — everything."

The group, almost entirely Cuban refugees, stood before a handmade 30-by-40 foot American flag to take the oath of citizenship, recite the pledge of allegiance and sing the national anthem.

The new citizens applauded after hearing a message from President Ford. "I hope the knowledge that you are now a vital part of the nation that Abraham Lincoln once called 'the last, best hope on earth' will always be a source of pride to you," the President's message said.

"I've sung 'America The Beautiful' many times before," Virginia B. Torres said as she wiped away tears. "But today 'America The Beautiful' became my song."

Mercedes Acosta sat in a wheelchair with her daughter, Angelina, on her lap. She cried, she said, "because America has been so good."

"My skin was so excited I had shivers," said Consuelo Benson, five months pregnant. "It is beautiful to be an American."

Bilked By A Motel Guest

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The management of a motel here may have been bilked by an expensive guest posing as a Roman Catholic priest.

"He left us owing a bill of something over $100," said Helen Martin, assistant manager of the motor inn. "He ate high up on the hog. He had steak three times a day, and he stuck us with a $30 long-distance call to Germany."

Desk clerk Mary Duncan remembered the bearded visitor checking in on a Friday afternoon, carrying only a flight bag and registering as Father Gordon of Snowmass, Colo.

"He said we should send the bill for his room and meals to the Catholic diocese here in Charlotte," she recalled.

Miss Duncan said she took a call about 30 minutes later from a man calling himself Bishop Michael Begley, bishop of the Catholic Diocese of Charlotte.

She said she now believes the caller was Gordon disguising his voice.

The caller gave permission to charge Gordon's room and board to the diocesan account, Miss Duncan said. "So me, like an idiot, I said okay."

Restaurant manager Hazel Finch said the visitor's behavior might have indicated he was a fraud.

Most of the time he spoke with an accent, she said. "But once, I heard him talking to people at the next table and he had no accent at all," she said.

"He ate steak three times a day," she said. "He said his doctor told him to do that for a blood deficiency he suffered."

Miss Finch also said Gordon would not sign his meal checks. "Said he couldn't sign his name in English."

At last report, the man called Gordon had boarded a bus for New Orleans.

A call to the diocesan office Monday brought bad news for the motel. Father Joseph S. Showfety, chancellor of the diocese, said he never heard of Father Gordon and couldn't help with the visitor's bills.

Pilot Killed

MERRIMON, N.C. (AP) — Rescue workers pulled the body of a New Bern pilot from the wreckage of a single-engine plane on the banks of the South River near here early today, authorities said.

A spokesman for the Carteret County sheriff's department said identity of the crash victim was being withheld pending notification of relatives.

The plane apparently crashed sometime Saturday night when a citizen in the area reported hearing a crash in the woods, the spokesman said. Sunday, the Civil Air Patrol reported that a plane was missing and joined Carteret County rescue workers in a search.

The wreckage was found early today.

An FAA spokesman said the pilot, who was alone in the plane, apparently was on a local pleasure flight when the accident occurred.

A HOT TIME LOS ANGELES (AP) — The World Championship Chili Cook-off is to be held Oct. 24 at the Tropico Gold Mine in Rosamond, Calif., an Old West settlement 90 miles north of here.

The International Chili Society says "the foremost chili cooks from nearly every state in the union, including Hawaii and Alaska, will converge on the tented grounds to vie for the world title."

Confidence In A Rescue

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Janet Almog, one of the hostages freed from a hijacked airliner in a daring raid by Israeli commandos, believed throughout her ordeal that she would be rescued eventually, her mother says.

Mrs. Harvey Robey said Sunday from her home here that she had spoken by telephone to her daughter and son-in-law, Israeli Ezra Almog, when they reached Tel Aviv.

Mrs. Almog "sounded strong and good," her mother said. "She said it never occurred to them that they would not get out. But they never dreamed they would get out the way they did."

The Almogs were among more than 100 passengers and crew on a French jetliner held hostage at Entebbe Airport in Uganda by pro-Palestinian guerrillas who said they would kill their captives unless political prisoners in five countries were freed by 7 a.m. EDT Sunday. Hours before the deadline was to expire, Israeli commandos rescued the hostages in an hour-long raid on the airport.

Security At Trial Scene

By DAVID R. NELSEN Associated Press Writer HENDERSON, N.C. (AP) — Dozens of policemen enforced tight security today for the trial of Sandra Dupree, 34, the white fundamentalist minister's wife who is charged with murder in the pistol slaying of a young black man.

Half an hour before the trial was scheduled to begin in Superior Court Judge George Fountain's court, policemen stood guard at the locked doors of the Vance County courthouse.

Highway patrolmen and sheriff's deputies also were stationed at the courthouse, where blacks have threatened to stage demonstrations during the trial.

Officers set up a metal detection device to screen courtroom visitors.

Mrs. Dupree, a mother of four from Scotland Neck, is charged with first-degree murder in the March 11 shooting death of Harry Lee Dickens, 21.

She faces a possible mandatory life sentence rather than the mandatory death sentence for first-degree murder which existed until the U.S. Supreme Court struck down the state death penalty statute last Friday.

The trial was moved from Scotland Neck on a change of venue motion.

Medical Care

HOUSTON (UPI) — The average family spent $258 more last year on medical care than in 1970, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

The bureau said the average family spent 6.6 per cent of after-tax income on medical care in 1975.

The study included the costs of hospital and surgical insurance plus out-of-pocket costs for physician care, dental care and eye care, and prescription drugs.

Another Big Greenville Effort

Mayor Percy Cox and other city officials unveiled four Mercedes Benz buses here last Wednesday which will form the base for GREAT—Greenville Area Transit system.

"We have done everything possible to provide a convenient and reliable transit system," the mayor said. "It is now up to you (the citizens) to make it work."

Mayor Cox said it makes sense to ride the bus. "Housewives can use it to go shopping, school children can use it to go to our parks, retired persons can now go almost any place they want to without relying on friends. We feel very strongly that the transit system is needed by all our citizens—all you have to do is try it once, and I know you'll agree that it will be a GREAT experience."

The service will get underway with trial runs and free rides on July 29. Aug. 2, 25 cents fares will begin.

The buses with rearranged seating will carry 22 passengers. They were selected with maximum efficiency in local operations in mind.

Robert Tallo, who helped start the successful Chapel Hill bus system will serve as manager of GREAT.

We think the city is about to embark on a much needed service for a growing municipality. Two things, however are essential to the success of the system. First GREAT will have to be efficiently operated. The buses will have to run on schedule since people will time their activities to them. Courteous drivers and clean vehicles will be a must. Next, local citizens will need to avail themselves of the transportation service. Unused buses riding empty around the routes won't be with us long.

We expect GREAT to be a success locally and we look forward to seeing this system inaugurated.

All That's Necessary Is A Fair Return

A recent Associated Press story says the United States can expand crop-growing land by one-third of the extra production is needed.

Much of the land is in the South and Southwest.

We don't find this surprising. We think the American farmer, given a fair return for his labors, will be able to produce adequate food supplies to feed our population for the foreseeable future.

THIS AFTERNOON

Speaker Race Taking Shape

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — It is apparently all over but the voting in selection of the Speaker of the North Carolina House of Representatives for the 1977 General Assembly.

Signals of that are evident in the jockeying now going on for leadership of the 1979 House of Representatives, involving one of the two major contenders for the post in the upcoming General Assembly.

State Rep. William T. Watkins, Oxford lawyer and veteran legislator who in the 1975-76 session chaired the Base Budget Committee, has been contacting legislators asking for their support in the 1979 session.

To those who support State Rep. Carl J. Stewart, Jr., D-Gaston, for speaker next year, this means that Watkins has given up for now.

Looking Ahead
Asked about that, Watkins insisted that he is "still working" on election as speaker in 1977, but confessed he is looking ahead to 1979 as a cushion in the event he is not picked this coming session.

But Watkins also made a point of saying that he is still an active candidate because some of his backers want him to be, and that possible changes in House membership resulting from the upcoming election process (August primary, November election) could change the head count.

But Stewart is not ready to concede even the 1979 speakership to Watkins, and has put the word out that he just might be interested in holding the post for two terms instead of the traditional one.

Stewart people say that Watkins offered to step down from the 1977 contest on condition that Stewart commit himself not to seek a second term in 1979.

Stewart has refused to make that commitment, and said recently he remains favorably inclined toward trying for four years.

Three other legislators have signaled their interest in the 1979 speakership: Robert L. Farmer of Raleigh, Daniel T. Lilley of Kinston, and H. Horton Rountree of Greenville. Neither is considered a formidable opponent should either Stewart or Watkins be in the race.

Big Stakes
There is much at stake in the battle for speaker in both the upcoming session, and the 1979 session. By his name of committee chairmen, members, and the assignment of proposed legislation to committees, the speaker can effectively control what is done by the General Assembly. Normally, such power is held in reserve for truly significant action, and not excised on routine matters.

With Watkins out of the picture, and Stewart headed for the speaker's post, a number of powerful legislators who have held committee posts under Speaker James C. Green will find themselves on the outside looking in.

Some of the very legislators most active in building up the power of the legislative staff offices, and seeking stronger legislative control over state agency departmental activities are among that group. With Green as a leading contender for election as lieutenant governor, and as such presiding officer of the Senate, the group which has been closest to him over the possibility of control over both houses of the legislature to create one of the most centralized power blocs ever in that body. But, with the battle apparently over for 1977, attention is turned to rebuilding that leadership structure for 1979.

The speaker will be picked at a Democratic Party caucus in December, then elected by the House when the session opens next year.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Sandbagging Of Uncle Sam

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — A dangerous last-minute hitch in plans to evacuate Americans from Beirut ten days ago resulted directly from efforts by the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) to sandbag Washington into using its power to accomplish the key PLO war aim of opening the Beirut airport.

With the PLO and the U.S. communicating indirectly through the British embassy in Beirut, the PLO's attempt to use the evacuation as a cover to enhance its military position finally failed. But the mere fact so blatant an attempt was made shows how far U.S. influence in the Middle East — particularly inside war-torn Lebanon — has declined in the past year.

The PLO's plot to straggle a world superpower, understandable in terms of its desperate need for medical and other supplies for besieged Beirut, contained these simple elements:

By declaring the overland route from Beirut to Damascus unsafe, the PLO could force the Americans to choose the air route as the only way to get out of Beirut. That would bring pressure from Washington the Syrian government to let the airport (closed by Syrian troops) open for the evacuation.

Having then opened the airport on behalf of fleeing Americans, the PLO believed that the Syrians would not dare close it to medical supplies desperately needed by hundreds of gravely wounded Palestinian Arabs.

This plan required the U.S. to brush aside major contradictions. Even though the British and the French had sent land convoys safely to Damascus on the four days immediately preceding the planned June 20 American exodus, the PLO quietly notified the British embassy in Beirut to inform the U.S. that the route had suddenly become unsafe. Yet, on that very day, June 20, non-Arab civilians made their way with utter safety through the war-littered region surrounding Beirut, up the mountain passes and into Damascus.

Thus, the White House reacted with immediate suspicion to this PLO ploy for U.S. pressure on Syria for air evacuation. Even before the land-route option was closed off, President Ford had been criticized for using the evacuation to promote himself as presidential crisis manager on the eve of the important Iowa Republican state convention.

Such criticism was deepened by the all-night White House meetings to find a new evacuation route (just after the overland evacuation of British and French nationals had worked without any trouble). Angered though they were by the PLO's sudden warning, Mr. Ford and his top military advisers could not prove the PLO was wrong and dared not risk finding out.

So, to avoid playing the obvious PLO game and taking to the air, Mr. Ford ordered evacuation by sea. Washington was determined to force the issue with the PLO, privately sending word through foreign embassies that a U.S. Marine assault battalion would be put on the ground in Lebanon if needed to safeguard the short land route from Beirut's Riviera Hotel to the docks.

Only then, threatened with U.S. force, did the embattled PLO admit it had lost the game to impose its will on Washington's crisis diplomacy. With the admission came fast and complete cooperation.

What is so disturbing about this sequence of events is its lessons for wider U.S. interests in the Middle East, as well as the immediate future course of this nation's diplomacy in Lebanon. The truth is that Washington has now become spectator to passions unleashed by the Mideast's bloodiest civil war in generations.

The U.S. has been unable even to tell the truth publicly about its private support for Syria's intervention in that civil war (first to help the PLO, then to save the beleaguered Christian Arab minority). Nor has the U.S. been able to impede the breakup of Arab unity, particularly between Syria and Egypt, that followed the second-stage Israeli withdrawal from Sinai and severely threatens Mideast settlement prospects.

Strength For Today

THE PAST IS EVERYTHING

People often say that the present is more important than the past or the future. Yet logically there is no such thing as the present or the future. The present exists for such an infinitesimal fraction of a second that it becomes the past before we can experience it. The future is as yet unborn and holds limitless options, most of which we cannot control. Therefore, the only one of these time frames which really exists is the past.

A famous English preacher many years ago delivered a sermon on the topic, "Making the Past a Success." His point was that it is up to us whether the past becomes for us a liability or an asset. If all we can do is forget the past, then the past becomes for us a huge and debasing failure. If, on the other hand, we use it as a light with which to guide us in the momentary present and upon which to build the still unborn future, then we get the full benefit of what has gone before.

To Pop On 4th Of July

Dear Pop: It's been four years since you passed away at the age of 79. On this Bicentennial holiday, with all the hoopla and overkill, I am not taking the 200th anniversary of the country lightly, mainly because I know you wouldn't.

First, I would like to thank you for leaving your home in Galitia, which you once explained was part of Poland, in 1910 when you were 17 years old. I know it wasn't an easy trip for you. You had to cross Europe all by yourself, and then you had to find a ship in Rotterdam that would take steerage passengers to New York City.

I've tried to imagine what it was like for a 17-year-old boy to arrive at Ellis Island without being able to speak a word of English. There were thousands like you, and fortunately there were people who came before you to help you through the maze of paper work and bewildering ways of New York City.

You wound up on the lower east side with so many of your fellow immigrants. They offered you a chance to go to night school, but you said you would learn English by reading every New York City newspaper every day. You kept reading then for 62 years, and you seemed to know more about the country and the world than any of your children who had been "educated" in American schools.

I know you started out working in a raincoat factory 14 or 15 hours a day, and when World War I came you worked even longer. They wouldn't let you serve in the Army because you were considered an "enemy alien." Once I asked you if you missed being a soldier and you replied, "Yes, only because it would have gotten me out of making raincoats."

Other Editors Say Accent On Spelling

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

More power to such organizations as the Noah Webster Bicentennial Spellingdown, which was conducted during the weekend at West Hartford, Conn. For that event provided a $500 prize in competition among contestants from the 13 original states.

This event was won on the 105th round of a four-hour spell-down by a 11-year-old New Hampshire youngster, Sherri Hearn, with the correct spelling of the word, "nonpareil." The youngster's foe in the spelling finals was Scott Casper of Virginia Beach, who was trapped in the spelling of "maelstrom."

It was also encouraging that a Gastonia lass, Beverly Sanford, won seventh place in the contest and she also is to be congratulated for making a valiant effort for the Old North State.

In addition to the fact that an 11-year-old is able to spell difficult words as "nonpareil" and "maelstrom," is the encouragement provided by such institutions as spelling bees.

Many old-timers remember those community spelling "matches," as they were called, which were held frequently on Friday nights in rural schools and which were attended by a whole community.

Somehow, those spelling bees or "matches" have been replaced by athletic events and other affairs which are all right but which still can offer nothing as a worthy substitute.

Yes, our forefathers—even our elders of a generation or so ago, learned how to spell, something which snares so many of our young people and many not so young, today.

As a matter of fact, it is downright embarrassing to observe a lot of people today as they foul up the language when they try to spell simple words.

Of course, we could forgive even our elders for failing to spell correctly such words as "nonpareil" and "maelstrom," and each of us perhaps has a pet word which defies our spelling ability on each occasion such a word is used.

But the real problem lies with those who simply cannot spell the ordinary words encountered every day.

Yes, we wish some way could be provided so that an evening could be devoted from time to time to old-fashioned spelling bees.

They would do all of us a lot of good in this age when we depend upon computers to do everything but partake of our daily meals.

Budget Cutting Secret

By ROBERT B. CULLEN

Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP)—Coy Privette has a secret. The Republican gubernatorial candidate is going to spring it on the state after he's been elected. He will reveal his plan to "cut the fat" out of the state's bureaucracy.

Privette cannot say right now where the "fat" is. But he's sure he'll find it. "Too many folks have told me, 'Coy, as soon as you're elected, I'll show you where the fat is.'"

Privette is not alone in his convictions. Almost every other candidate is saying that he's going to run state government without new taxes by removing the bureaucrats from the state payroll.

Lt. Gov. James B. Hunt says he is the man who can cut the cost of existing programs to pay for some of the new ones he is proposing. Hunt is committed to his program proposals. He is committed to opposing tax increases. There is no other place for him to get the money.

Edward O'Herron and Jacob Alexander say they are going to use their business expertise to bring efficiency to government. David Flaherty and George Wood have proposals for "sunset laws," that they say will phase out useless, unwanted programs and thereby save money.

About the only candidate not pledging a miraculous reduction in the state payroll is Democrat Thomas Strickland, who has made a point of pride during this campaign of refusing to intimate that he might perform the impossible. Strickland says that he just won't spend any more than is available and attractive new programs will have to wait.

The problem is that there is probably not going to be a lot of money in the state's coffers when the new governor takes office in 1977. What money is available will likely be eaten up by the normal increases in the cost of state government and a modest 5 per cent pay increase for teachers and state employees.

In addition, none of the candidates wants to be tagged with

To the editor:

On Saturday, June 26, 1976, an event of significant proportions occurred in Greenville and was completely ignored by your newspaper. Allison Taylor, the first-base person for the Exchange Little League Baseball Team, hit a home run over the left center field fence at Guy Smith Stadium and thus became the first girl in the history of the Greenville Little League Program.

In 1975 the sex barrier was broken in the Little League program by Miss Taylor, and she became the first female representative of a Little League team in Greenville. As it turns out, she was an ideal choice to break this barrier and not only has she been most diplomatic in her associations with the male members of the team, but she is also an excellent ball player. The Little League program has benefited by her presence. Let's hope there will be more girls involved in the program in the future.

Changing Small Claims Courts?

By LOUISE COOK

Associated Press Writer
More and more consumers are turning to small claims courts to settle their disputes with business, but critics charge that the system often is stacked against the individual.

Now, a business organization, the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, has proposed revamping small claims courts to eliminate some of the drawbacks.

"The small claims court system, for the most part, has acquired a 'collection agency' image that does not serve the consumer's interest," the chamber said. The organization said the system has failed because court hours are often inflexible and locations are inconvenient. In addition, the chamber said, court procedures are complicated and all too often a judgment goes uncollected.

The chamber urged each state to adopt a law mandating a system of small claims courts to be established and run by localities.

Under the proposal, small claims courts would have branch offices, open evenings and Saturdays. They would handle cases involving amounts up to $1,000. Lawyers could not act as trial principals although they could provide information and assistance if the court approves. If the defendant failed to pay a judgment, the court could issue an order for collection and fine the defendant for contempt.

The chamber is distributing its "Model Consumer Justice Act" among its 60,000 members as part of what it calls "a major educational effort to encourage broad support in the business community for efficient and effective methods of resolving consumer complaints in a fair manner."

The chamber said most states would have to amend existing laws to meet the standards set in the group's Consumer Justice Act. Forty states, for example, would have to raise the jurisdictional limits of the courts to $1,000; 47 states would need to make changes to prohibit lawyers from participating as trial principals.

The proposal calls for small claims courts to operate regular court hours, plus at least one evening a week and one Saturday morning a month. A court ombudsman would notify the parties involved of hearing dates, would help them to prepare their cases and would publicize the court's work.

Both individuals and companies would be allowed to use the courts, but take up complaints could not make more than 50 per cent of the court's time and could not be heard in the evenings or on Saturdays.

The model law would require hearings to be held within 45 days of a complaint filing; the judge's decision would come at the end of the hearing, although, under unusual circumstances, it could be delayed for up to 14 days.

As soon as the judgment was issued, with both parties still under oath, the court would work out a payment plan. If the defendant failed to pay, the court would ultimately assume the responsibility for collection.

Carter And Muskie Confer Today On 'Differences'

By LYNNE OLSON
Associated Press Writer
PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — Inter-rupting a quiet Bicentennial weekend, Jimmy Carter scheduled an interview today with Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine, a man Carter says is among his potential running mates.

Carter, who has more than enough delegate votes to win the Democratic presidential nomination, told reporters Sunday that he already has arranged to interview Muskie and two other possible candidates for vice president, and that there are two others he had not yet contacted. Of the five, he named only Muskie.

Carter said he might add more names to the list later.

Muskie, the vice presidential candidate on Hubert Humphrey's unsuccessful ticket in 1968, was to meet with Carter at the presidential candidate's home for several hours today after flying from Bangor, Maine, Sunday night.

In Bangor, Muskie said he had not decided whether to accept the vice presidential nomination if it is offered. He said he and Carter disagree on some issues and would discuss those differences today.

When he arrived at the airport in nearby Americus early this morning, Muskie, accompanied by his wife, Jane, told reporters he was completely surprised by Carter's invitation for the meeting.

"I'm involved in work in the Senate that I find extremely satisfying and meaningful," Muskie said. "I would not lightly turn from the direction in which I am now moving unless the change were meaningful...and offered an opportunity for higher service."

Muskie added, "I would like to know why he is interested in me, if he is. I am 62 years old and I'm not interested in just playing games."

The Muskies drove to the Carter home to spend the night. At an informal news conference on the front lawn of his home, Carter said Muskie "has management experience, he's been a superb governor of Maine, and he's shown remarkable ability in the Congress in heading up a new budget committee. I think he's demonstrated in the past as a vice presidential candidate his acceptance around the nation."

Carter said he would ask Muskie and the other contenders "a complete list of questions which I think are very probing."

"They involve attitudes toward the platform...financial investments, previous contributions or other action which may be of some embarrassment."

"I'm just going to search for compatibility between myself and them and (make) my own judgment about who might be best to govern the country."

He said he would also consider who could best balance a Carter ticket.

Carter said he probably would meet with one or two more on his list of five in Plains this week before leaving for the Democratic National Convention in New York on Saturday. The convention begins July 12.

Carter celebrated the Fourth of July and the Bicentennial in down-home fashion. He attended services at the Plains Baptist Church, then went to an old fashion town picnic at nearby Westville, a recreated Georgia town of the 1850s.

Carter's senior adviser, Charles Kirbo, interviewed seven prospective vice presidential candidates in Washington last week and expressed "some concern to me about individual persons, some things I ought to discuss with them individually," Carter said. "I have kept a catalogue of those questions."

He said Kirbo would return to Washington today for more interviews and as a result of those new interviews, Carter said, he might meet with more than the five persons already on the list.

Fears Too Much Riding On 'Payoff' By Viking

By PETER J. BOYER
Associated Press Writer
PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — A biologist on the team directing the Viking spacecraft to Mars says he is worried that unless life is found there funds will be cut from the nation's space exploration effort.

"As far as future planetary exploration is concerned, a lot is riding on Viking," said Dr. Harold Klein. "I think the posture of the project and NASA in general is that they're putting a lot on the question of life."

Klein and his six-man team of biologists will be the first to know if Viking turns up Martian life. Klein estimated the odds at 50-1 against life on Mars, and he said he thinks too many people are putting too much emphasis on the question of extraterrestrial life.

"But we believe it's damned important to look," he added quickly, "because the payoff is so high."

The cost of such planetary ventures as Viking has put a lot of pressure on the space program, and Klein said he feels that if Viking doesn't come up with something spectacular this summer, the funds now spent on space will go elsewhere.

Klein and his team will begin their search for life on Mars about eight days after the unmanned Viking lander touches down, probably about the 25th of July. The small, self-contained lander will be their laboratory.

Viking had been scheduled to make its Mars touchdown Sunday in conjunction with Bicentennial celebrations, but the spacecraft's cameras revealed the original landing site to be hazardous.

Scientists switched to a flatter, almost featureless site about 180 miles northwest of the original. The Viking team hopes to land the craft July 17.

Over the weekend, Viking transmitted an image of the red, white and blue Bicentennial seal from more than 203 million miles away.

The biology experiments begin when the lander's 10-foot "arm" extends itself beyond the immediate touchdown area, pushes into the Martian soil and grabs a handful of Mars with a claw-like device.

The sample will be deposited into three chutes for analysis, one of which is set up for biology experiments.

It will probably be weeks before the biology team commits itself to a finding. Even if it finds no sign of life, the issue will not be settled because the experiments have built-in limitations.

If it appears that Mars does indeed support life, Klein said, "it would be a momentous find, and would lead to many momentous questions."

the charge that he would raise taxes if elected.

Thus, the natural thing is to promise to cut the cost of government. It's a promise that seems valid to everyone who has passed five state workers leaning on their shovels on a road project this summer.

But it presupposes a couple of things that probably are not valid.

One misconception is that this year's group of candidates is the first to ever propose "cutting the fat out" of state government. In fact, there have been two major efforts in that direction in the past four years. The first was Gov. Jim Holshouser's efficiency study commission in 1973. The second was the legislative budget process of 1975-76.

Both efforts probably missed some things they could have cut. But they probably noted and eliminated all of the easily recognizable waste in state government.

None of the candidates has offered solid evidence that his budget-cutting procedures would be any more rigorous or successful. In fact, almost all of them were in or around state government during the past four years. None came forward with his budget ideas then.

The second misconception is the implication that there are state employees hired as "bureaucrats" or "fat." Every one on the state payroll is there in a job that someone, at some time, deemed necessary.

It would be far less popular for gubernatorial candidates to pledge some of the following: more pupils in every classroom; less security at state prisons; no one to monitor pollution by industries; and no one to check state welfare payments for evidence of fraud.

But those are the types of jobs that most state employees do. Some, undoubtedly, are in positions that could be eliminated. But cutting the jobs of others would be a painful process.

Ehrlichman Also Disenchanted

SEATTLE (AP) — John Ehrlichman, former presidential adviser turned novelist, says he has joined the ranks of "people who are disenchanted" with the Washington establishment.

"Washington is pretty unreal," Ehrlichman said in an interview with the Seattle Times and Seattle Post-Intelligencer published Sunday. But the former Nixon administration aide who is now appealing his conviction in the Watergate scandal added:

"I share some of the responsibility for it. I was part of the scene. I took all my meals in the White House mess — it's Navy subsidized. I had a limousine, a sauna. But it's got to change. It cuts you off from the real world when you don't ride a bus to work, or go to a lunch counter for a sandwich."

refusal to insist that Israel start long-overdue negotiations with the Palestinians — or with Jordan — over the Israeli-occupied West Bank of the Jordan River two years ago. Instead the U.S. allowed Israel to make a second-stage Sinai withdrawal agreement with Egypt, leaving the Palestinian problems both on the West Bank and in Lebanon ripe for exploding.

Washington's inability ten days ago to arrange a simple evacuation of its own citizens without being sandbagged by the relatively puny PLO is stark testimony to the truth. As of today, the U.S. seems to have no hand left to play in the bloody Middle East.

Europe for? I've been there already."

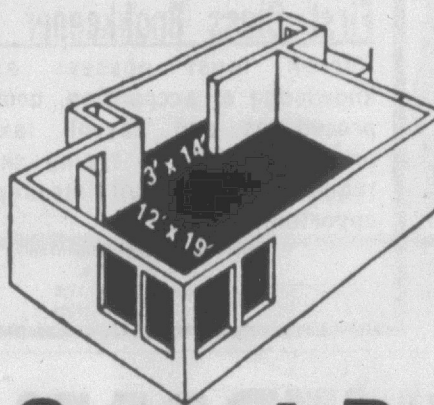

You were like so many foreign-born Americans—Jewish, Russian, Italian, Irish, German, Scandinavian and Greek—who considered this country the only land where your children would have a chance to become what they wanted to be.

You told me, "Everyone has dreams for their children, but here it's possible to make them come true."

Well, Pop, I just wanted you to know, as far as your children are concerned, you made the right decision when you left Poland. There are four of us, all first-generation Americans, and we will be celebrating the Fourth of July with many other first-generation Americans whose mothers and fathers arrived here in more or less the say way.

I don't know if all those great men in 1776 had you immigrants in mind when they signed the Declaration of Independence and formed a new country, but even if they didn't they made it possible for you and millions like you to come to a free land.

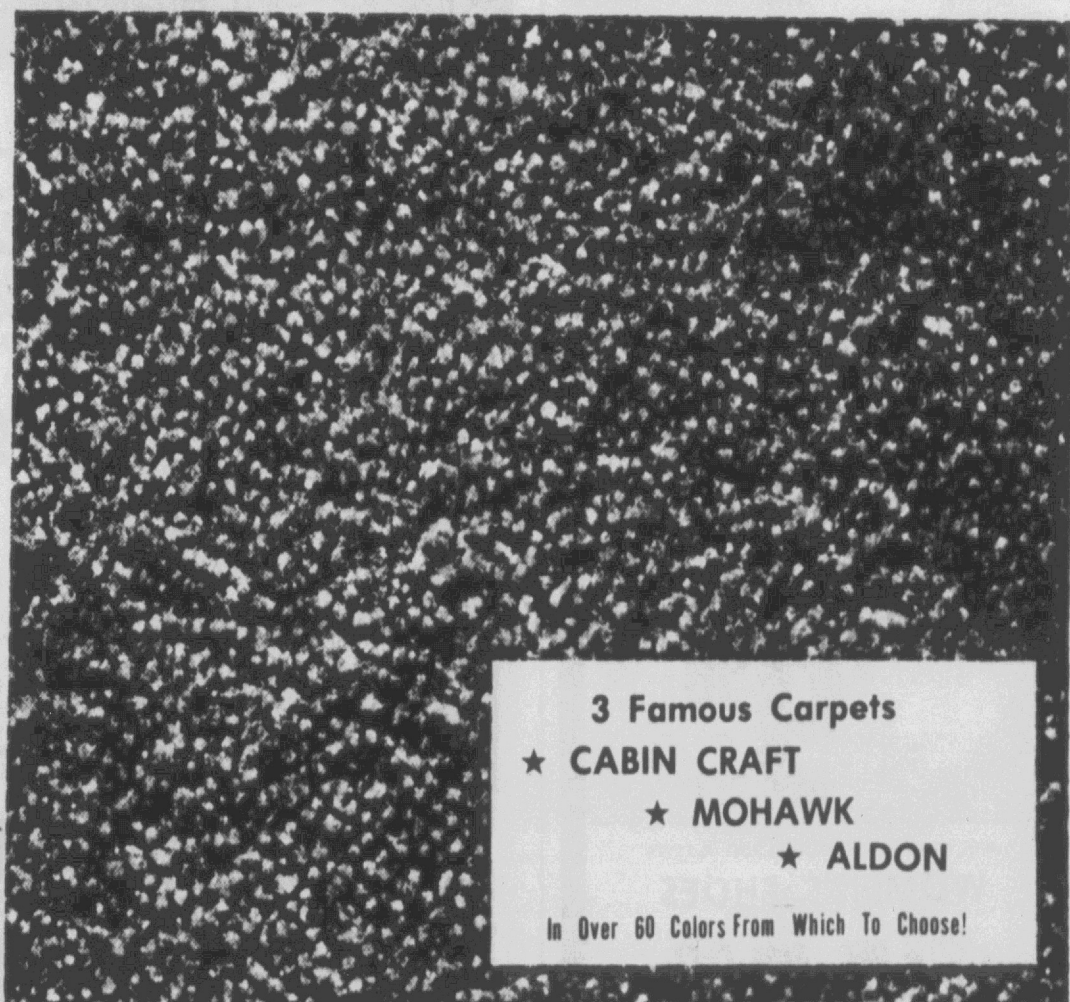

So let the tall ships sail and the fireworks explode. We're probably overdoing it, but if you were here I'm sure you would say, "It's probably a good thing people remember what a great place this country is, even if it's going to cost the city a lot of money."

Greenville Businessman Percy Pair, owner of Pair Electronics is shown here as he presents Pitt County Crime Prevention Officer Gordon Edwards with a Citizen's Band Base Station. According to Pitt County Sheriff Ralph Tyson, the unit is to be installed in the Sheriff's Department's Radio room, and will be utilized to help prevent crime. Crime Prevention Officer Edwards, says a group of CB radio owners will be organized through the Crime Prevention program to help watch Pitt County, and especially areas where the highest rate of break-ins have occurred. Sheriff Tyson added that when in operation the Crime Patrol program will essentially add forty sets of eyes and ears to the Patrol Division, and "we appreciate the concern of Pitt County Citizens such as Percy Pair, as they become involved in our Crime Prevention Program."

Death Penalty In N.C. To Require New Procedure

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — If North Carolina is to restore the death penalty, it will probably have to establish a new courtroom procedure known as the penalty hearing.

That is the import of Friday's U.S. Supreme Court ruling which held that the death penalty could be constitutional but struck down North Carolina's current way of applying it.

In the wake of the decision, influential legislators like Rep. Carl Stewart, D-Gaston, predicted that one of the first orders of business in the 1977 General Assembly will be enacting a new capital punishment statute.

The sympathy for the death penalty in the legislature is clear, and overwhelming, if votes in recent years are a guide.

Death penalty proponents in the legislature, it seems likely, will copy closely the Georgia statute which the court upheld Friday.

The Georgia law provides death as a possible penalty for a variety of crimes, including murder, rape, kidnapping and airline hijacking. The high court did not review the propriety of imposing death for crimes other than murder, however.

But the real distinction between the Georgia and North Carolina statutes lies in the way the death penalty can be imposed.

Back in 1972, both states had similar procedures. A jury determined whether a man was guilty of a capital crime. The same jury then either recommended clemency, and a life sentence, or it imposed the death penalty.

In a case called Furman vs. Georgia, the Supreme Court ruled that procedure unconstitutional. It gave juries too much discretion and tended to impose the death penalty on the impoverished and unpopular elements of society. That decision commuted the death sentences of all condemned men in the country at the time.

A total of 35 states reacted by trying to reinstate the death penalty and still stay within the court's guidelines.

North Carolina tried it by ostensibly taking away the jury's discretion. If a man was convicted of a capital crime, the only possible punishment was death.

But the state did not take away the possibility that a jury could, of its own volition, return lesser verdicts: guilty of second degree rape or murder, guilty of manslaughter, or not guilty at all.

The Supreme Court rejected that approach in its 5-4 Friday decision. It found that the law still gave juries unchecked discretion as to lives and who dies. It said that juries have often used such discretion arbitrarily and unfairly.

The court found other flaws in North Carolina's law. One was that it failed to make allowances for the legitimate differences in people who commit capital crimes. It treated all of them as a "faceless, undifferentiated mass."

Perhaps the court was thinking of the circumstances of the two North Carolina petitioners, Luby Waxton and James T. Woodson. Waxton went into a grocery store, took $700, and shot the clerk in the head. Woodson merely waited outside and drove the getaway car. Under North Carolina law, however, both were equally guilty and both got death sentences.

Those two flaws were not present in the Georgia statute. It sets up a bifurcated trial for capital offenses in which the first phase determines only guilt or innocence.

If the verdict is guilty, a second hearing is held. The prosecution and defense present evidence of aggravating or mitigating circumstances.

The law spells out 10 possible aggravating circumstances. Was the victim a policeman or a prison guard? Did the accused commit more than one capital crime in the same incident, such as rape and murder?

If there is at least one aggravating circumstance, the jury can impose a death sentence. More than 60 Georgia juries have. But the decision to impose the death penalty is immediately reviewable by the Georgia Supreme Court.

If the high court finds that the sentence was imposed in an atmosphere of passion or prejudice, it is voided. If it finds insufficient evidence of aggravating circumstances, it is voided. If it finds the death sentence out of line with verdicts in similar cases, it is voided.

Those types of controls and guidelines are apparently what North Carolina will have to establish if it wishes to begin filling its Death Row cells once again.

Communists Taking Top Italian Posts

BY MICHAEL J. DUFFY
Associated Press Writer
ROME (AP) — The Italian parliament opens today with the Communist party slated to take over some of the top posts for the first time in 30 years.

The Communists emerged from a six-party meeting Saturday with promises of the presidency of the Chamber of Deputies, one of the four vice presidencies of the Senate and a share in lesser leadership posts.

After the Christian Democrats maintained their traditional position as Italy's largest party with 38 per cent of the vote in the June 20-21 elections for the new parliament, they said they would exclude the Communists from the government.

The Communists, who increased their share of the vote from 27 per cent four years ago to 34 per cent, said they would seek a key role in the management of parliament rather than a place in the cabinet. The Christian Democrats' agreement to this was a recognition of the Communists' improved position and possibly a move toward securing tacit Communist backing for the new cabinet the Christian Democrats are going to try to form.

Holiday Traffic Toll Is Rising

By The Associated Press
More than 300 persons have been killed in traffic accidents of the Fourth of July weekend, with the homeward flow of vacationers still ahead.

The death count rose to 305. The National Safety Council had estimated that between 530 and 630 persons could die in traffic during the three-day period — from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Monday.

Last year, 491 persons lost their lives in Fourth of July holiday traffic.

The record for any Independence Day was 758 in 1972, a four-day observance.

To secure a majority the Christian Democrats must get the Socialists to join them in a coalition again, and so far the Socialists are balking. In an apparent move to woo Socialist support, the meeting Saturday agreed that Socialists would be first vice president of both the Senate and the Chamber of Deputies.

The Christian Democrats will retain the presidency of the Senate and will have two vice presidents of the Chamber of Deputies.

Bicentennial Is Marked Abroad

By The Associated Press
Britain celebrated her former colony's Bicentennial with more than 100 special events across the country, including fireworks, concerts, church services, picnics and softball games and a Frisbee competition.

More than 200,000 people visited the "1776" exhibit in southeast London, and more than 200 stars of the theatrical world appeared in a charity gala at London's Drury Lane Theater.

Americans around the world had their usual Fourth of July picnics and embassy receptions. But there were some unusual observances, too.

About 140 Americans in Mexico City's Santa Marta Prison were served hot dogs and punch sent them by the U.S. Embassy. One of the prisoners said it was the first time the Embassy had paid any attention to them, and they thought it was due to criticism at home because the State Department had not gotten them freed.

In Peking, Thomas S. Gates, chief of the U.S. liaison office, and his wife gave a reception attended by the diplomatic corps and several Chinese officials of cabinet level.

In Stockholm, about 200 people staged an anti-American demonstration sponsored by the American Deserter's Committee made up of U.S. servicemen who fled to Sweden during the Vietnam war.

Soviet President Nikolai Podgorny sent congratulations to President Ford. But Pravda, the Soviet Communist party newspaper, said American history shows the "suffering and difficulties that a society of class exploitation brings to many millions of working people." Panama's leader, Brig. Omar Torrijos, said in a message to Ford that Panamanians commemorated the U.S. Bicentennial "grieving the colonial state of the Canal Zone."

Americans visited the graves of their war dead in European countries, while the 41,000 American troops in South Korea celebrated with firecrackers and a 50-gun salute to the states. American forces in The Philippines opened the gates of Clark Air Base to more than 250,000 Filipinos.

NEW YORK (AP) — After highlighting the greatest maritime display in the nation's history and majestically celebrating America's 200th birthday, 14 tall ships from around the world held open house at their Manhattan piers today.

Two other square-riggers, from the Soviet Union, were kept closed because a "change of plans was requested by the Soviet Embassy in Washington," a spokesman for Operation Sail said.

According to a police estimate, the tall ships and 200 smaller sailing vessels, and the 53 warships they passed in review Sunday, drew at least seven million people to the shores of New York and New Jersey for the five-hour event.

The warships, from 22 countries, all flew the American flag.

In addition, some 10,000 pleasure craft took to the waters to share in the historic drama, caught up in nostalgia inspired by the windjammers from a bygone era.

"This is fantastic, a wonderful marine salute to the nation — it's incredible," said Vice President Nelson Rockefeller, who with President Ford headed a list of America officials who witnessed Operation Sail from the aircraft carrier USS Forrestal.

Despite the crush of pleasure boats, the parade passed without the anticipated rash of fatal or even serious accidents. A 37-year-old Canadian woman, identified as Amalia Tskis of Montreal, drowned in the East River when a boat capsized en route to view Operation Sail. Three companions were rescued.

The Coast Guard said that about 200 of the private boats needed assistance when their fuel ran out or their motors conked out for other reasons.

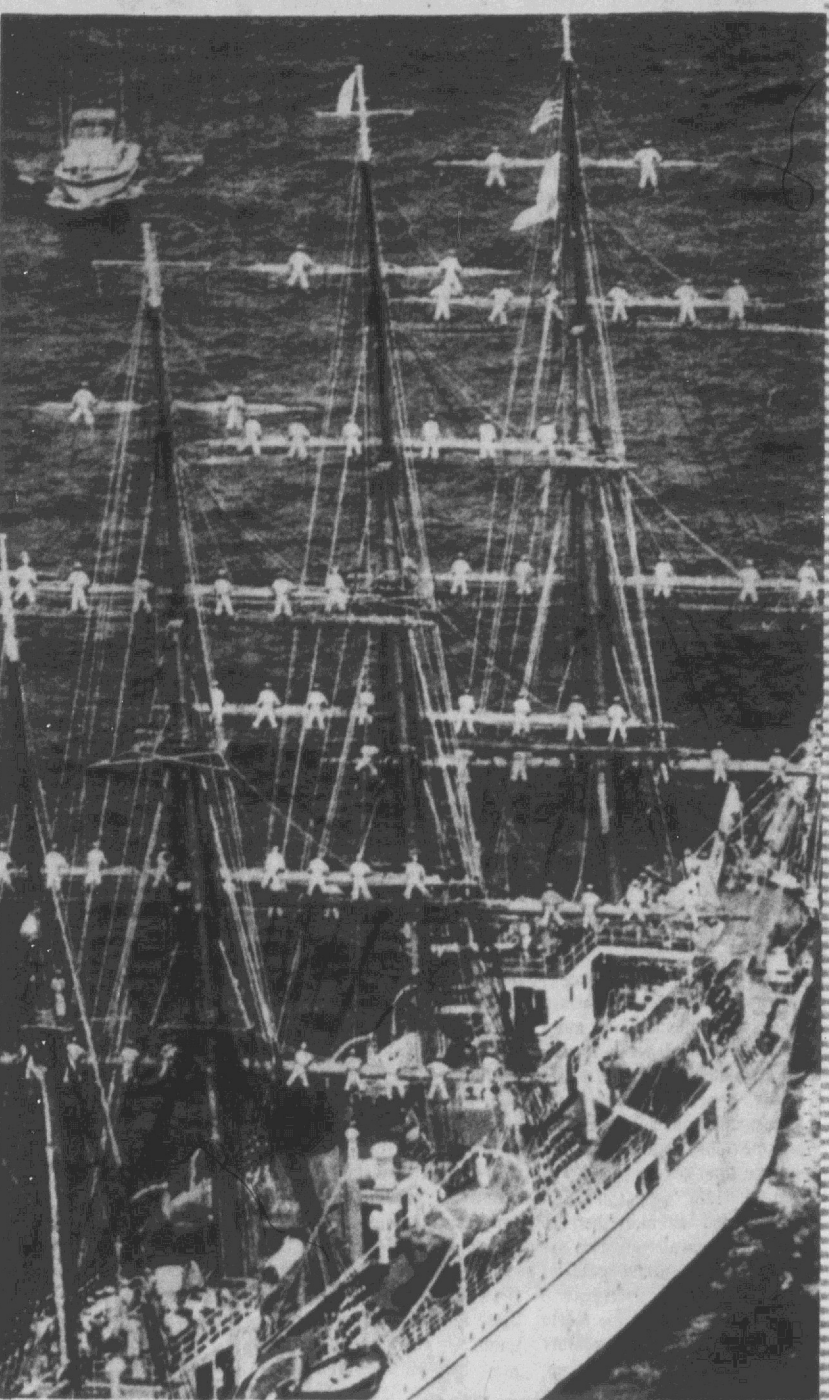

Except for a sudden brief afternoon squall, with thunder, lightning and high winds, the day was ideal. The sun burned off a morning haze, visibility was good and seas were calm.

Leading the 16 tall ships was the U.S. Coast Guard training vessel Eagle. Behind her in single file 1,000 feet apart came representatives from West Germany, Denmark, Norway, Argentina, Chile, Colombia, Italy, Japan, Poland, Portugal, Spain, Romania and the Soviet Union.

Five years in the making, Operation Sail cost an estimated $1.4 million. It was described by its sponsors as the greatest gathering of ships under sail since the French, British and Russian navies destroyed the fleets of Egypt and Turkey at the Battle of Navarino in 1827. The addition of the modern men-of-war made it one of the greatest maritime assemblages in the world's history.

BEST VIEW IN THE HOUSE — While thousands of spectators jammed the jetties at New York Harbor, vying for better views of Operation Sail Sunday, it appears that these crewmembers of the Japanese tall ship Nippon Maru have positions that would be tough to beat. (AP Wirephoto)

Rain Of Ping Pong Balls Opened Fete In Farmville

FARMVILLE — Raining ping pong balls opened the Farmville Bicentennial celebration this weekend and a fireworks show for which thousands turned out was its finale.

"You've never seen the like of people that poured out of their houses to catch or hunt for ping pong balls when Jim Hubbard of the Pitt Spraying Service dropped them Friday morning," Bicentennial celebration director Billy Wooten said. "Hubbard was kind enough to give us all a mini-air show, too," he added.

Certain of the ping pong balls could be redeemed for prizes donated by merchants. Between 150 and 200 people turned out for the bluegrass band performance Friday night and between 200 and 250 children attended the "Pepsi" show Saturday morning.

Beth Massey and Laura B. Shriver won the three-legged race Saturday afternoon; Phillip Gordon, the frisbee-throwing-for-accuracy contest; and Jimmy Whatley, the crab race.

Winners in the pet show were Coleman Allen's goat, the most unusual; Allison Baker's dog, the most colorful (he sported a crocheted flag blanket); Beverly Jo Allen's dog, the best all around; Angie O'Brien's dog, the best trick performer; and Moses Moyer's dog, the friendliest.

Free watermelon drew a large crowd, Wooten said. The egg toss had to be divided into parts because of the many participants. Ronnie Moore and Clark May won one session and the other ended in a draw among four teams.

In the water hose fight, there were no declared winners, but everyone got wildly wet, Wooten said.

People of all ages were on hand for a dance Saturday night. Essence, a local group, provided music. Happy birthday was sung at midnight.

The fireworks program Sunday night was preceded by a performance by the Pitt County 4-H Bicentennial Singers.

Lighter 'Crises' Part Of A Mayor's Burdens

CHATTANOOGA (AP) — Robert Walker, mayor between 1971 and 1975, had to cope with a racial disturbance that brought in the National Guard, the St. Patrick's Day flood of 1973, liquor-by-the-drink, and annexations.

But recently he spoke of the lighter crises — being asked to find a mate for a woman's canary and to stop poison rays that supposedly were spewing into a woman's living room from her television set.

The lesson he learned? An inane request can only be met with an equally inane response. Of the woman with the deadly TV set he said, "I tried unsuccessfully to reason with her. Finally, I tried a different approach. I told her I had checked into it and that she should do what I was going to do: go to the wall and jerk out the plug.

"But she said she couldn't do that because she wouldn't be able to watch 'As The World Turns.'"

After the bureau which monitors air pollution levels moved from city hall to new offices, Walker began receiving calls years. She was a member of the Vanceboro United Methodist Church and was formerly employed at Hill's Cleaners in Vanceboro.

Surviving are two brothers, Roy Morton of New Bern and Loney Morton of Durham.

that started, "Mayor, stop polluting me."

He immediately denied polluting anyone.

"Why did you put them out here?" the caller asked. "Since you put them out here I can hardly breathe."

Walker demanded to know who the "them" was.

"It's them people that come on the 6 o'clock news every night and tell how much pollution they've produced that day," explained the caller.

Walker recalls two persons coming to his office and saying he was going to "get" it.

"They told me it was the Communists who were going to 'get' me after they got Commissioner Roberts and the police chief.

"My visitors insisted that the Communists were going to put us in three cages at the corner of Seventh and Market Streets and let the rats eat us.

"At that time, the Model Cities people had a rat-control program that wasn't going very well. I related the cage story to my staff and told them they were going to have to kill more rats.

"I also told several of my friends that if they saw anyone building a cage at Seventh and Market to let me know — I was going to get out of town."

Garland Picks Up Ninth Victory Skinning Tigers

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Mark "The Bird" Fidrych isn't the only bird with a 9-1 record and a scintillating earned run average.

Wayne Garland, who hurls for the birds of Baltimore — alias the Orioles — also sports some nifty numbers very close to those of Fidrych after pitching the Orioles to a 7-4 triumph over the Detroit Tigers Sunday for his ninth victory in 10 decisions.

In 92-1/3 innings, Fidrych, Detroit's rookie sensation, has allowed 70 hits and 21 walks while striking out 40 with a 1.85 ERA. Garland, in 88-1/3 innings, had yielded 72 hits and 23 walks with 38 strikeouts and a 2.04 ERA.

Garland surrendered seven hits and four walks Sunday, including Dan Meyer's first home run of the season, but only two of Detroit's four runs were earned.

Elsewhere in the American League, the New York Yankees nipped the Cleveland Indians 4-3, the Oakland A's blanked the Kansas City Royals 6-0, the Texas Rangers edged the Chicago White Sox 3-2 after dropping the doubleheader opener 7-6 in 12 innings, the Boston Red Sox downed the Milwaukee Brewers 3-1 and the Minnesota Twins beat the California Angels 9-5 after losing the opener 5-3.

Garland and the Orioles trailed 3-2 until they pushed across two runs off Detroit relief ace John Hiller in the eighth inning. Mark Belanger got a bunt single and stole second, Bobby Grich walked and Reggie Jackson singled Belanger home with the tying run. Lee May was intentionally walked to load the bases and Hiller then walked Ken Singleton to force in the lead run.

A two-run double by Andres

Mora in the ninth iced the victory for the Orioles.

Yankees 4, Indians 3
Willie Randolph's two-run single keyed a three-run second inning and the Yankees survived three Cleveland homers, two by Rico Carty and one by George Hendrick. Dock Ellis, with help from Sparky Lyle in the ninth, posted his fifth consecutive triumph as the Yankees made it three in a row over the second-place Indians and pulled nine games ahead of them in the American League East. The Yankees got what turned out to be the winning run in the sixth on Thurman Munson's double, an infield out and Nettles' sacrifice fly.

A's 6, Royals 0
Mike Norris silenced Kansas City with a three-hitter for his second shutout and complete game as a major leaguer. The A's sent 10 men to the plate in the sixth inning as they pounded Al Fitzmorris for five runs. Joe Rudi drove in the first two runs with a double which was misjudged by right fielder Al Cowens.

White Sox 7-2, Rangers 6-3
Bill Fahey's two-run single in the eighth inning and Joe Hoerner's clutch relief pitching after Chicago scored twice in the bottom of the eighth paced the Rangers' triumph in the nightcap and lifted them within 3 1/2 games of Kansas City in the AL West.

Jorge Orta singled home an unearned run with two out in the bottom of the 12th to give the White Sox their victory in the opener. Orta also scored the tying run from second base with two out in the bottom of the ninth on Kevin Bell's infield single.

Red Sox 3, Brewers 1
Cecil Cooper hit a two-run homer to back the four-hit pitching of Rick Wise. Cooper connected off Pete Broberg in the fifth inning following a walk to Bob Montgomery. Cooper scored Boston's other run in the first inning when he walked and came around on a double by Fred Lynn.

NS Pops Beat TH

The North State dads outscored the Tar Heel pops, 17-5, to win the Pop's All-Star game highlighting the Moose Field Day, held Sunday.

There were also seven events for little leaguers from throwing for distance to base running. Entrants were divided into two divisions.

In the 11-12 group, Scott Johnson of the Jaycees won the distance throw; Roger Williams, Lions, won the home run hitting; Jeff Porter, Optimist, won the pitcher's throw for accuracy; Tony Burroughs of Big Value the catcher's throw for accuracy; Billy Stallings of Pepsi won the outfield throw; Optimist Sammy Hodges won the infielder's throw and Mike Pollard was the fastest base runner.

In the 9-10 age group, Audrey Wooten, Optimist won the distance throw, David Jester, Lions the home run hitting, Doyle Kirkland, Optimist, pitcher's throw, Jeff Stallings, Pepsi, catcher's throw, Michael Walsh, Big Value, outfielder's throw; Patrick Rand, Lions, infielder's throw and Timmy Norris, Exchange, base running.

Evert, King Threaten Walkout If Money Not Equally Shared

By HARVEY HUDSON
Associated Press Writer
WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Chris Evert was a winner and Billie Jean King a loser in the 1976 Wimbledon tennis championships, but both say they're willing to tear down the house where they won their greatest glory unless they can get equal prize money for women.

Ms. King is the past president of the Women's Tennis Association, the players group now headed by Miss Evert. They have brought women's lib, as well as women's lobs, to the famed Wimbledon center court.

But, speaking for their organization, they say they'll boycott the world's biggest tournament unless the prize money is split equally between the sexes.

The women thus pose the biggest threat to Wimbledon since 1973, when most of the top male professionals staged a boycott.

Miss Evert was the biggest winner in the 1976 tournament, which ended Saturday. She defeated Evonne Goolagong Cawley of Australia 6-3, 4-6, 8-6 to capture the singles title, then teamed with Martina Navratilova, the former Czech ace now living in the United States, to win the women's doubles crown 6-1, 3-6, 7-5 from Ms. King and Betty Stove of The Netherlands.

Bjorn Borg, Sweden's 20-year-old sensation, used all his devastating power to beat Ilie Nastase of Romania in the men's final 6-4, 6-2, 9-7. Despite taking pain-killing injections before each match to treat a stomach muscle injury, Borg swept through the tournament without losing a set. The last player to dominate his opponents so completely was Chuck McKinley of the United States in 1963, and Borg became the youngest man to win the Wimbledon singles crown in 35 years.

Brian Gottfried of Fort Lauderdale, Fla. and Raul Ramirez of Mexico took the men's doubles championship from Ross Case and Geoff Masters of Australia 3-6, 6-3, 8-6, 2-6, 7-5. Tony Roche of Australia and Francoise Durr of France beat Americans Dick Stockton and Rosemary Casals in the mixed doubles final 3-6, 6-2, 7-5.

Hill Survives Jacob's Rally For Milwaukee Win

By MIKE O'BRIEN
AP Sports Writer
MILWAUKEE (AP) — Dave Hill, who has won nearly $1 million on the pro golf tour, says he's more interested in having fun than winning tournaments.

But don't misunderstand — he thinks winning is plenty of fun. Johnny Jacobs and Ed Sneed threatened to spoil Hill's July 4th holiday Sunday, but the veteran from Denver held on to win the $130,000 Greater Milwaukee Open Golf Tournament.

His steady three-under-par 69 on the final round gave him a 270 total, 18 under par for 72 holes at the 7,010-yard Tuckaway Country Club course.

Jacobs, despite an erratic putter, finished with three successive birdies and a closing 67 for second place at 273.

Sneed, the 1974 winner here, shot a closing 70 to tie at 276 with 1971 GMO champion Dave Eichelberger, whose 63 Sunday tied the competitive course record set in the second round of the 1973 GMO by eventual champion Dave Stockton.

"It's always a thrill to win, but winning is not one of my goals in life," said Hill. "It's always enjoyable, but it's not first on my agenda."

Hill's 13th tournament victory in 18 years on the tour earned a $26,000 check. He has won $70,195 this year and $992,429 in his career, 12th on the all-time list.

Hill began the day 15 under at 201, four strokes ahead of Homero Blancas and five ahead of Sneed, Jacobs and young Fuzzy Zoeller. The only challenges Sunday were mild ones.

He pulled five strokes ahead of Jacobs and Sneed with a birdie on the par-five 12th hole. He bogeyed No. 13, while Sneed birdied 12 and 13 to close with three strokes at 13 under. However, Hill went 17 under again with a birdie on the par-three 14th, while Sneed bogeyed 15. Hill clinched the victory with a birdie on his final hole.

Jacobs said he "started my birdies a little late," and realized his closing run of three straight wouldn't be enough to win.

Jacobs said Hill had compounded difficulties for the challengers by attacking the holes on his final round, rather than playing conservatively.

Ms. King, who won the women's singles title in 1975 and announced immediately she wouldn't defend it, was a double loser. In a quest for a record 20th Wimbledon crown, she lost in the semifinals of the mixed doubles and the final of the women's doubles.

Ms. King said she didn't know whether she would be back to try again for another title, but she was adamant in saying she would not be back if the women don't get a better share of the money.

She said Wimbledon officials had promised her earlier this year that the women would get 80 per cent of the men's prize money this year, 90 per cent in 1977 and parity in 1978.

Borg got $21,875 as men's champion and Miss Evert took home $17,500 as women's titlist. The 80 per cent formula held up.

But men's third round losers got $950 dollars and women's third round losers only $525—about 55 per cent. This discrepancy in the lower rounds has the women fighting mad. "They keep stalling," Ms. King complained. "We've made such an effort, but it's so hard to communicate."

Killanin Hoping To Correct Taiwan Problem

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

Lord Killanin, who was to arrive in Montreal today, will meet later in the week with officials of the Canadian government. The subject will be the touchy Taiwan affair, which threatens to slice the life and breath out of the 21st Olympics. Killanin, president of the International Olympic Committee, was expected to have a statement today on the Chinese situation, a complicated issue that is charged by strong emotions and politics.

The basic dilemma is framed by the question: What's in a name?

Taiwan is the Republic of China, a small island nation off Mainland China. It has a national Olympic committee, which is a member of the IOC. Taiwan plans to send 51 athletes to the Olympics, which are scheduled to begin July 17. But the Canadian government, which recognizes Mainland China and not Taiwan, has refused to permit Taiwanese athletes into Canada unless they promise not to compete as the Republic of China.

Mainland China, the People's Republic of China, has almost one-fourth of the world's population inside its borders. It is not a member of the IOC and thus cannot compete in the Olympics.

The All-China Sports Federation, representing the athletes of Mainland China, has applied to the IOC for recognition. Its bid, however, had strings attached. The Communist Chinese want in only if the Nationalist Chinese are kicked out.

For years, the IOC's position has been that both Chinas were welcome.

Thus, Killanin is faced with a difficult dilemma. If he can't convince Canada to change its position, then the matter drops squarely into the laps of the IOC's executive board.

The board can vote to eliminate the Republic of China as an IOC member or it can permit Taiwan to compete as the Republic of China. A problem with the second approach is that Canada still could keep the Taiwanese athletes out. Canada has not issued passports to the Taiwanese, saying it won't budge unless the athletes say they are from Taiwan and not from the Republic of China.

Americans Take Trio Of Regatta Victories

By JEFF BRADLEY
AP Sports Writer

HENLEY-ON-THAMES (AP) — American crews come home this week clutching the most cherished winners' medals in the world of rowing after winning three of the 12 challenge cups at the Henley Royal Regatta.

When the four-day gala ended Sunday, Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., Harvard University's freshmen crew and the U.S. national schoolboy champions from Holy Spirit High School, Absecon, N.J., were among the winners.

Trinity rowed to victory in the Ladies' Challenge Plate. Harvard took the Thames Challenge Cup, and Holy Spirit regained the Princess Elizabeth Challenge Cup it had won in 1974.

These gleaming victories Sunday on the United States' 200th birthday were moments of magic, not just sporting achievements.

"Competing at Henley is not just another race," said Ted Washburn, Harvard coach.

"I guess it's all the pomp and ceremony that make it so special," said Mark Coleson, 25, an accountant from Arlington, Va., whose Potomac Boat Club coxless four reached the final of the Wyfold Challenge Cup.

Americans love the place, perhaps turning a blind eye to what some English critics see as the perpetuation of Britain's aristocratic empire-weaned upper classes.

For class division here most certainly is in this quiet corner of Oxfordshire where the River Thames, running its straightest course, prompted Henley's creators to found the annual ritual 137 years ago.

A modest, quiet town of 12,000 people, Henley makes its living off the four-day extravaganza and its residents open their stately doors to hundreds of American guests who learn the delights of roast beef and Yorkshire pudding and Bakewell tarts.

"You come to Henley for a lot of reasons, only one of which is winning," said Coach Fred Leonard, whose University of Pennsylvania lightweight eight lost in a Sunday final. "It's so unique."

Dressler Wins On Sacrifice

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — It wasn't exactly a masterpiece, but it was a very important victory for rookie right-hander Rob Dressler.

On the verge of being demoted from the starting rotation, Dressler pitched six strong innings Sunday as the Giants concluded a home stand with a 3-2 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

Manager Bill Rigney was nearing the end of his patience with Dressler, who entered Sunday's game with a 1-6 record and no victories in a month.

"I don't know if my job was on the line, but when you're 1-6 you never know how long they'll stick with you," said Dressler. "I just wanted to go out there and do a good job for my own self-respect."

Rigney, admitting he "had to make up my mind soon on Dressler — this isn't spring training," said he will reward the youngster with another start this weekend in Chicago.

Walks by Darrell Evans and Ken Reitz followed by Chris Speier's two-run double gave the Giants a two-run lead in the second. Ken Henderson's single and Darrel Chaney's double created a 2-2 tie in the fourth.

The Giants went ahead in the sixth when Evans led off with a single, chasing last-minute starter Frank LaCorte, 0-2, who was replaced by Mike Marshall. Reitz sacrificed, Speier singled and pinch-batter Gary Tommasson belted a sacrifice fly.

Dressler, 2-6, was lifted for a pinch batter in the sixth. Randy Moffitt took over and blanked the Braves over the final three innings for his fifth save.

"This is more like the way we're capable of playing," said Rigney, who suggested some changes may be in store for the club following the All-Star break next week. The moves would involve minor league players.

"We've been evaluating our farm system," Rigney explained. "If we bring some of the kids up we'll definitely play them — we don't want to pull them away from the minors to sit."

Braves Manager Dave Bristol reported that LaCorte was given a 10-minute notice that he was starting after Roger Moret felt ill with a cold.

and panned critics, including Norton, who said the heavyweight champ was faking to gain public attention and sympathy.

Earlier in the day, following a private visit, the two boxers met with the press and exchanged verbal punches.

Ali said the clots were serious and "could have caused death."

"But I'll do the fight," he added. "I have such will and determination."

Yarborough Edges Parsons To Take Firecracker Purse

By F.T. MacFEELEY
Associated Press Writer

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Cale Yarborough, one of stock car racing's biggest winners eight of the past 10 years but never the driving champion, would appear to be on the way to the title after sweeping to victory in the Firecracker 400.

But Yarborough is apprehensive.

"Our team has spent endless days and nights and tons of money to get to where we could run with the best, and now they are changing the rules again," Yarborough complained Sunday after winning the race.

He said the change, effective with a 500-miler at Pocono, Pa., Aug. 1, is aimed at penalizing the Chevrolets.

Lin Kuchler, competition director for the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing, says it is aimed at stopping the wealthier teams from buying victories while the independents can't afford to keep up.

NASCAR will require cars using engines bigger than 358 cubic inches to install a plate in the carburetor restricting the amount of fuel poured into the engine.

Yarborough's victory in the Firecracker 400-miler gave him 2,503 points for the season. Second-place Benny Parsons, with 2,413 points, also drives a Chevy. But third-place Bobby Allison, with 2,331 points, has a Mercury and fourth-place Richard Petty, with 2,303, a Dodge.

"If I don't win it, I'd bet the guy who won it six times will get it again," Yarborough said.

That would be Petty, very much in contention although he has won only one race this year and got 22nd place Sunday because of a broken valve spring.

Before his trouble, Petty was one of eight drivers who held the lead.

Yarborough took command in the final 100 miles and fought off charges by Allison and David Pearson in Mercurys.

"Allison was as fast as I was in the straights, but my car was handling better in the corner," Yarborough said. "I figure if I could keep Pearson on Bobby's tail, I could get away, and that's just the way it worked out."

Pearson passed Allison on the final lap for second place but was a half-mile behind Yarborough. A.J. Foyt, who started a Chevrolet on the pole but had vibration problems, finished fourth. Dave Marcis was fifth in a Dodge.

The next five finishers were Coo Coo Marlin in a Chevrolet, Parsons, Dick Brooks in a Ford, David Sisco in a Chevrolet and rookie Rick Rudd in a Chevrolet.

Yarborough said a spin by woman driver Janet Guthrie on the 133rd of 160 laps around the 2.5-mile high-banked tri-oval didn't bother him even though it let Pearson make up some ground and become a threat.

But, Yarborough said, women shouldn't be competing with men.

"There's no way a lady is strong enough to drive my race car like I did today," he said. "If there is one, I don't want to be around her."

Miss Guthrie finished 15th. Her spinout brought out only the second caution flag of the day. The first came 85 miles into the race, when Buddy Baker's Ford blew an engine.

"I was right on his tail," Yarborough said. "I was lucky I didn't hit anything or go into a spin."

Six other drivers weren't as lucky, and two of them were sent to a hospital for x-rays. One was Baker's father, veteran Buck Baker, who was admitted for overnight observation although he had no broken bones. Cecil Gordon was checked and released.

The Firecracker event followed two other Independence weekend road races on the International Motor Sports Association circuits. Al Holbert of Warrington, Pa., won the Paul Revere 250-miler in a Monza and Walt Bohren of Flemington, N.J., won the 100-mile radial challenge race in a Mazda.

McCarver Hits Single Out Of Three Rivers

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

It isn't every day that you hit a grand slam home run in the major leagues. It's even rarer when it turns into a three-run single.

That's what happened to Tim McCarver Sunday.

"That was the longest single I ever had," said McCarver after his grand slam was erased on a base-running mistake.

After McCarver hit the ball 380 feet into the right field seats at Pittsburgh's Three Rivers Stadium, he inadvertently passed teammate Garry Maddox as he rounded first base. McCarver was immediately called out by home plate umpire Satch Davidson and his blast was reduced to a three-run single.

Luckily, the Phillies didn't need the extra run and went on to a 10-5 victory before losing the nightcap, 7-1.

Philadelphia Vice President Paul Owens jokingly told McCarver that he would have gotten a $5,000 bonus for a grand slam. "I was getting ready to write a check when you wree called out," he told the catcher.

McCarver took the whole philosophically. "There's nobody to blame. We won 10-5. That was the important thing."

In the other National League games, the Cincinnati Reds beat the Houston Astros 7-2; the Montreal Expos nipped the St. Louis Cardinals 4-3; the San Diego Padres outscored the Los Angeles Dodgers 5-2; the San Francisco Giants turned back the Atlanta Braves 3-2 and the New York Mets defeated the Chicago Cubs 9-4 in the first game of a doubleheader before dropping a 4-2 decision in the nightcap.

McCarver's aborted grand slam came in the second inning off Pirates starter Larry Demery, 5-2 and gave the Phillies a 4-0 lead. Philadelphia starter Steve Carlton, 8-3, had a no-hitter until the fifth inning, when the Pirates scored four runs with the help of a bases-empty homer by Bill Robinson and a two-run shot by pinch-hitter Tommy Helms.

That reduced the Philadelphia lead to 6-4 but the Phillies added two runs in the sixth with the help of two errors by Pirate catcher Manny Sanguillen, who finished the game with three errors.

Bruce Kison and Bob Moose combined on a five-hitter and Bob Robertson highlighted a six-run seventh inning with a two-run triple as Pittsburgh won the second game and remained nine games behind the front-running Phillies in the National League East.

Reds 7, Astros 2

George Foster slugged four hits, including a three-run homer, to extend his hitting streak to a career-high 18 games as Cincinnati downed Houston.

Foster's homer in the eighth, his 17th of the year, came with two outs after Doug Flynn had walked and Joe Morgan singled. The Reds had snapped a 2-2 tie in the fifth on a two-run single by Johnny Bench.

Two hits by Rose moved him into 40th place on the all-time hit list with 2,655. He jumped over Ted Williams and Lafayette N. Cross.

Expos 4, Cardinals 3

Don Stanhouse, with last-out relief help from Dale Murray, scattered seven hits and drove in a run to lead Montreal over St. Louis. Stanhouse, 6-3, survived five walks and two Montreal errors to record his third triumph in his last four decisions. He left with two out after giving up his seventh hit and Murray loaded the bases on walks before getting the final out.

Padres 5, Dodgers 2

Randy Jones won his 15th game with a nine-hitter and Dave Winfield blasted a home run and two doubles as San Diego beat Los Angeles. The Padres' left-hander has now beaten the Dodgers three times this season and the victory was San Diego's seventh in nine games with Los Angeles.

Winfield hit a solo homer, his 12th, to highlight a three-run third inning against loser Tommy John, 5-5, then contributed a run-scoring double in the ninth. Jones, who walked none and struck out one, lost his chance for a shutout in the fourth when Dave Lopes singled and Bill Buckner doubled him home. He gave up a run-scoring single to Bill Russell in the ninth. The complete game was the 14th for Jones, who has lost only three times.

Giants 3, Braves 2

Pinch-hitter Gary Thomasson drove in the winning run with a sixth-inning sacrifice fly leading San Francisco passed Atlanta. Thomasson's winning fly ball scored Darrell Evans from third base and cracked a 2-2 tie.

Evans opened the sixth with a single, chasing starter Frank LaCorte. Ken Reitz greeted reliever Mike Marshall with a sacrifice bunt and Chris Speier singled before Thomasson belted his sacrifice fly to center.

Mets 9-2, Cubs 4-4

Mike Phillips knocked in one run with a sacrifice fly and the winning run with a grounder to lead New York past Chicago in the first game of their doubleheader. The Mets' 10-game winning streak was snapped in the nightcap as Chicago's Ray Burris scattered nine hits and Mick Kelleher drilled a two-run single.

Palmer Takes $7,000 Victory

By MARC ROSENWASSER
Associated Press Writer

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — It wasn't a vintage performance, but Sandra Palmer wasn't complaining. Not after her first victory of the year and a paycheck of $7,000.

"It feels good to win," said the Fort Worth, Tex. native, who broke a long slump Sunday with a one-stroke victory over JoAnne Carner and Laura Baugh in the inaugural $50,000 Bloomington Bicentennial Classic.

Miss Palmer, after tying for the second-round lead at 138, predicted she would need a 68 over the final 18 holes to take the tournament.

She was wrong — but won anyway.

In fact, the sturdily built, deeply tanned, 5-foot-3 blonde needed only a par 71 over the 5,970-yard Lake Monroe Golf Club course to hold off the unsteady Mrs. Carner and the fast-finishing Miss Baugh.

Mrs. Carner, "Big Mama" to her friends on the Ladies Professional Golf Association circuit, never got her game going during the final session and slumped to a one-over-par 72. Her round consisted of 15 pars, two bogeys and one birdie — a three on the 12th hole with a six-foot putt.

Miss Baugh, a crowd favorite all around the LPGA tour, injected herself into the late running by firing three birdies on the back nine en route to a two-under-par 69.

Her efforts were undone, though, when she took three putts to get down from 70 feet on the 17th hole. She followed with a birdie on No. 18, just missing an eagle; Miss Palmer finished uneasily with a bogey, but it was enough to win.

Judy Rankin closed to within $600 of the $100,000 earnings mark for 1976. She tied for third with Donna Young at one under-par 212.

No player has ever won $100,000 in a single season on the LPGA tour.

Ali Released From Hospital

By LYNDIA FILLMORE
AP Sports Writer

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali has left the hospital and is reported to be heading toward his New Jersey home, but will have to undergo continuous treatment for severe contusions on his left leg.

Ali, 34, was released from St. John's Hospital Sunday afternoon following a visit from boxer Ken Norton, who will meet Ali for the title Sept. 28 in Yankee Stadium.

The heavyweight champ was hospitalized upon arriving in Los Angeles last Thursday after he complained of pain and swelling in his legs. Doctors said the fighter was suffering from blood clots apparently sustained during Ali's widely criticized World Martial Arts match against Antonio Inoki in Tokyo.

Jeremiah Shabazz, Ali's business manager, said the fighter planned to spend Sunday night "at a private residence in Los Angeles where he can get some peace and quiet away from the fans, press and television."

A hospital representative said doctors had recommended that Ali remain at St. John's "several more days with his feet elevated," but that the boxer had insisted on being dismissed.

Shabazz said Ali did not think he was getting sufficient rest in the hospital and that he believed that he would be better off away from the media crush.

Shabazz said the heavyweight champion planned to leave Los Angeles today for his home in Cherry Hill, N.J.

"His legs, especially the left one, are still giving him trouble," Shabazz said. "He's really hurting, but he felt he had to get home and start into training for the September fight. The doctors told him he was still going to have to take it easy for awhile and continue daily treatments, but his plans now are to start training lightly."

Shabazz called Ali's injuries severe and panned critics, including Norton, who said the heavyweight champ was faking to gain public attention and sympathy.

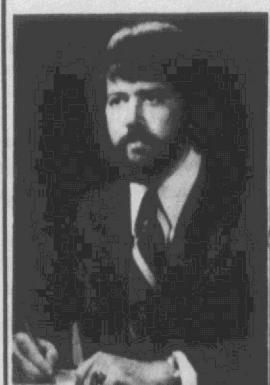

Earlier in the day, following a private visit, the two boxers met with the press and exchanged verbal punches.

Ali said the clots were serious and "could have caused death."

"But I'll do the fight," he added. "I have such will and determination."

Norton, 30, who once beat Ali, said Ali was exaggerating "and I'm not falling for any of it."

Sixth Inmate Dies Of Prison Fire; 22 Still In Hospitals

MARION, N.C. (AP) — A sixth inmate died Saturday night of injuries suffered when a fire, set by prisoners to protest disciplinary actions, raged through the McDowell county prison unit Wednesday.

Charlie Eugene Watson, 19, of Lenoir, died about 7 p.m. Saturday in an Asheville hospital. McDowell prison superintendent Fulmer Rudisell said.

Watson, who was serving an 18-month sentence for breaking and entering and larceny, suffered third degree burns over 60 per cent of his body. Rudisell said Watson had been at the McDowell prison for about three weeks before the fire.

Twenty-two prisoners were still in hospitals Sunday being treated for injuries suffered during the fire. Two were in critical condition at Mission Memorial Hospital in Asheville, where Watson died, and one was reported in poor condition there.

Two other inmates were in serious condition, one at N.C. Baptist Hospital in Winston-Salem, another at Duke University Hospital in Durham. Eleven were in satisfactory condition in the hospital unit at Central Prison in Raleigh. Six other inmates were hospitalized at N.C. Memorial Hospital in Chapel Hill, but hospital officials would not release their conditions.

W.L. Kautzky, deputy director of the state's prisons, said Sunday he thought "there will be some legal actions taken" by families of the victims.

"Some of the families have been obviously distressed and it is rather typical that the agency will get blamed," Kautzky said.

The blaze was caused by 20 inmates, Kautzky said, who set fire to their mattresses in a prison dormitory. He said the five officers on duty acted quickly to unlock doors to the unit and help inmates out of the building.

Kautzky said Sunday the State Bureau of Investigation is still investigating the fire. Officials say charges may be brought against one or more inmates following completion of the SBI report.

Rudisell said Watson had escaped May 31 from the Caldwell County prison unit. He was recaptured and sent to the McDowell prison June 4, he said.

More Suspects Sought In Series Of Bombings

TOPSFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Two men from Maine have been arrested, and two others persons were being sought today in connection with a series of bombings in New England. The latest explosion damaged a bank in Revere, Mass., on Sunday.

Joseph A. Aceto, 23, was being held by Massachusetts State Police for an arraignment, scheduled for Tuesday in Salem District Court, on a charge of transporting explosives. Aceto was captured Sunday while hitchhiking in Peabody, several hours after his car went off the road and crashed. He had been under surveillance since a May bombing in Augusta, Maine, officials said.

Authorities said they found a total of 46 sticks of dynamite in Aceto's car.

"There were 22 loose sticks, plus 19 formed into one bomb with a timing device and there was a five-stick bomb all ready to go," the FBI said.

A search of Aceto's home in Portland turned up 58 sticks of dynamite, 15 blasting caps, and a sawed-off shotgun.

Everett C. Carlson, 38, was arrested in Portland Sunday on a charge of interstate transportation of explosives with intent to injure or intimidate a person or damage property, authorities said.

Warrants on the same charge were also issued for Richard J. Picariello, 27, also of Portland, a "John Doe" and Aceto. Massachusetts State Police said Picariello and the unidentified suspect were believed to have been in the car with Aceto while they were being tailed by state police and FBI agents.

Investigators were trying to determine whether the arrests are connected to the wave of bombings in Massachusetts, Maine and New Hampshire in recent weeks. The blasts damaged three courthouses, a post office, an airplane, national guard trucks and several historic sites.

The most recent explosion took place in Revere, where a branch office of the First National Bank of Boston was damaged by an explosive apparently tossed from a car.

No one was hurt, police said.

Legalization Said Answer

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Superior Court Judge James H. Bailey says prostitution should be legalized because there is no way of controlling it and "it is not worth the time and effort."

Bailey, in an interview with The Fayetteville Times, called prostitution "the world's oldest profession" and said it is a "victimless crime."

Bailey last week finished a six-month rotation as presiding judge in Cumberland County Superior Court. He had been critical of efforts in Fayetteville to control prostitution and directed much of that criticism toward methods of the Fayetteville Police Department.

He once ruled that arrests made by officers who spied on prostitutes and clients in a "trick house" were illegal because officers did not have a warrant.

Bailey said he doubts prostitution is harmful to society.

"If you had unlimited funds to spend on every element of crime, prostitution would be well down on my list of priorities," he said.

Bailey said he thinks legalized prostitution might even reduce the levels of other crimes associated with it.

"The criminal element thrives on criminal activity," he said.

"It's a bad profession, but they don't call it the world's oldest profession for nothing."

Sees A Destiny Of Independence

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prince Philip says even if Britain had won the Revolutionary War the United States would probably have broken free of British control sooner or later.

"I cannot visualize the possibility of the United States as it eventually became, with the whole expansion to the West, that it would have remained somehow or other an enormous appendage to a small island," he said Sunday on ABC's "Issues and Answers."

The prince is Duke of Edinburgh, and husband of Queen Elizabeth II.

Project Is On Schedule

Construction work on the Contentnea Metropolitan Sewage District (CMSD) is progressing on schedule, according to CMSD Secretary Don Russell.

"The force main construction is proceeding right on schedule out of Grifton past Ayden-Grifton High School. The gravity flow lines should be installed soon South of Ayden toward the pumping station," Russell said.

"Form work and reinforcement of steel is being done at the ground level at the pumping station on Highway 11.

"Work is now being done at the different stations in the three towns. We are concentrating on the Grifton pumping station because it needed some repairs. Fence construction and necessary ground work are being done at the pumping stations," he said.

"At the plant site ground work is being done and buildings are being constructed. Chlorine buildings, the administration building, and the control building are now being constructed," he added.

Although the rainy weather of the past several weeks slowed down the construction process, the total project is working on schedule according to Russell.

Q.1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠K10763 ♥9 ♦4 ♣AQ8742
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
1 ♦ Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—We would not blame you if you bid four spades—that could easily be the limit of the hand. Or, if you are in a gay mood, you might venture into Blackwood, intending to bid a slam if partner shows two aces. It shouldn't be worse than a finesse. However, we prefer the more stodgy approach of first showing our club suit, then jumping in spades. That should give partner a reasonable idea of our distribution and what cards we need to make a slam.

Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠8 ♥J95 ♦762 ♣AKJ972
Partner opens the bidding with one spade. What do you respond?

A.—Two clubs. Although you have only 9 HCP, this is the ideal hand to show your suit at the two level, for you intend to rebid it at your next turn to indicate that your initial two-over-one response was made on minimal values with a good six-card suit. Had your strength been more scattered and your club suit weaker, one no trump would have been the right move.

Q.3—North-South vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠KQ9872 ♥K10 ♦7 ♣AKJ4
The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
1 ♦ Dble. Pass 1 ♥
Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—You have a very fine hand indeed, but it is not yet time to get excited. Partner has made minimum bids all along, and may still have little or no strength. A quiet bid of three clubs is all that is required, for each time you bid again you are showing additional values.

Q.4—You have the same hand as in question 3 above, and the bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
1 ♦ Dble. Pass 1 ♥
Pass 1 ♣ Pass 2 ♣
Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—Things are beginning to look up, but it is not yet time to get excited. Partner has made minimum bids all along, and may still have little or no strength. A quiet bid of three clubs is all that is required, for each time you bid again you are showing additional values.

Q.5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠Q854 ♥9732 ♦5 ♣A1054
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♣ Pass 2 ♣ Pass 3 ♣ Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—Four spades. If you bid less, you obviously do not trust partner's bidding. Partner has shown interest in game and asked you to evaluate your diamond holding in terms of suitability for game. It couldn't be better—a singleton with four-card trump support, and an ace on the side as a kicker.

Q.6—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠10 ♥J42 ♦A10653 ♣Q762
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
3 ♣ Pass ?
What action do you take?

A.—Bid five clubs, or even six. No, we haven't gone mad—we know that partner has preempted. But one thing is certain: the opponents have a game in a major suit, or even a slam. By acting boldly now, perhaps you might convince West that you hold all the cards you know East holds, and keep him silent. Admittedly, this is unlikely, but you will make it very difficult for the opponents to locate their best spot, and they may settle for a doubled penalty from five clubs, which shouldn't be costly.

Q.7—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠K85 ♥J764 ♦QJ954 ♣9
Partner opens the bidding with one no trump. What action do you take?

A.—Bid two clubs, the Stayman Convention. In support of hearts, your hand is worth 10 points, so there is a probable game if partner holds a four-card heart suit. If, however, partner bids two diamonds, denying a major, you can pass or try two no trump. If he bids two spades instead, you can pass and play a 4-3 fit. With a singleton in your hand, partner should be able to manage at least eight tricks at a spade contract.

Q.8—North-South vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AKJ764 ♥9 ♦KQJ7 ♣J4
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♣ Pass INT Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—Bid two diamonds. Two spades is an underbid and three spades is a slight overbid which could result in your playing a bad spade partial rather than a possibly good game in diamonds. Here is a sound principle to follow: When you are 6-4 and hold a minimum opening bid, rebid your six-card suit before showing your four-carder. When you hold a reasonably strong hand, bid your four-card suit before rebidding your six-card suit.

North Carolinians observed the nation's Bicentennial in various ways around the state, despite Sunday's scattered rain-showers.

Some 2,000 persons were left standing in the rain on Capitol Square in Raleigh when clouds drove the somewhat squeamish dignitaries indoors. The speakers, led by Gov. James E. Holshouser Jr., espoused the hardness of America's forefathers by means of a public address system. Crowds in Winston-Salem turned out at 8 a.m. to begin a day-long celebration at Old Salem. The ceremonies began with a call to worship by the Moravian Band at Salem Square.

Moravians lay claim, through their ancestors, to the nation's first Independence Day celebration. They say it occurred at Old Salem on July 4, 1783, after the preliminary signing of the Treaty of Peace at Paris.

A crowd estimated at between 20,000 and 50,000 gathered in Jamestown where the Guilford County Bicentennial Committee joined with sponsors of the annual Day in the Park celebration.

Rainfall and traffic jams did nothing to discourage some 25,000 young people from a less traditional observance—a rock concert in Winston-Salem's Grove Stadium. Police say they arrested a large number of spectators, mostly on drug charges.

Officials in Durham estimated that 50,000 spectators attended the North Carolina Bicentennial Folklore Festival at the Eno River Park.

The festival included demonstrations of traditional and modern crafts with music ranging from gospel to rock.

A much smaller crowd, estimated at a few hundred, huddled under umbrellas at Freedom Park in Charlotte to tap their feet in the mud and sing patriotic songs.

The rain "wouldn't have stopped them (the patriots) and it won't stop us," said Grant Whitney, chairman of the Charlotte-Mecklenburg Bicentennial Committee.

It did, however, stop celebrations in Asheville and reduced anticipated crowds at other observances in the western part of the state, which received the heaviest rainfall amounts Sunday.

Only about 100 persons turned out for a patriotic songfest at the Buncombe County courthouse and a fireworks display at Swannanoa was postponed until tonight.

In Wilmington, a small group of blacks gathered for the second day of the Freedom Festival, billed as an alternative to the Bicentennial. Much of the day was spent discussing how to help free the Wilmington 10—nine blacks and a white woman serving prison sentences on charges stemming from the city's 1971 racial violence.

Overnight lows were generally in the upper 50s and 60s. Considerable fog developed across the state after midnight.

Cloudbiness and rain kept temperatures on the mild side across most of the state. Highs ranged from the upper 60s mountains to the upper 80s in the extreme southeast with most of the state in the 70s. The range included 68 at Asheville and 89 at Wilmington. Rain ended from the west early Sunday night, but developed again early this morning across the mountains and Southern Piedmont.

A weak cold front pushed slowly across southern sections of North Carolina Sunday and into northern South Carolina Sunday night. An area of low pressure was located along the front in western South Carolina. This low pressure was expected to move eastward along the front today.

As a result, scattered showers occurred across northern sections of North Carolina today, while occasional showers and thundershowers occurred in the south.

'Mostly For Prisoners' TV Log

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—The most popular graffiti in the holding cell at the rear of Mecklenburg Superior Courtroom One is the single word, "Freedom"—freedom for whites, freedom for blacks, but mostly freedom for prisoners.

Other popular subjects for those who await their fate behind the steel doors are religion and Superior Court Judge B.T. Falls.

"You may be black or white but B.T. Falls don't give a damn," observed one anonymous author in what may be a bittersweet tribute to Falls' impartiality.

Other writings show that some transients invoked God to save themselves and others in the absence of help from the courts.

"Jesus saves," one wrote. "Pray and call to the name of the Lord and you will be free," wrote another.

"Love God and pray that your sins be forgiving (sic). Start over and try to live a better life," advised a third.

Those who want to be remembered also leave their mark.

"Squeaky was here," wrote one. Another enclosed his message inside a heart, "Sir, Bump loves you all."

A former cell resident known only as Mr. T was more expansive.

"Mr. T was here, but now he is gone. He left his name to carry on. For those who knew him, farewell. For those who didn't, go straight to Hell."

SOLUTION OF SATURDAY'S PUZZLE

Mexico Elects New President

By CHARLES GREEN
Associated Press Writer
MEXICO CITY (AP) — A balding former schoolteacher with a fondness for the fine arts and karate has been elected Mexico's next president by the overwhelming majority of the government party's candidate always gets.

Jose Lopez Portillo, the 56-year-old candidate of the Institutional Revolutionary Party (PRI), was opposed by only two weak write-in candidates in the voting Sunday. Early unofficial returns gave him an insurmountable lead over Communist Valentin Campa and minister Marina Gonzalez del Boy.

On Dec. 1, Lopez Portillo will become Mexico's 37th president, continuing nearly half a century of PRI dominance.
The strongest opposition party, National Action or PAN, had no presidential candidate because of internal squabbling. It did field candidates in 34 of the 64 senatorial districts and for 135 of the 196 seats in the Chamber of Deputies that are filled by direct election.

Under a complicated system of proportional representation, opposition parties could win as many as 25 seats without any one of their candidates winning a district outright. But PRI control of Congress is not in doubt.

Official returns will not be tabulated until midweek. But the early returns indicated that Lopez Portillo's 10-month campaign during which he crisscrossed the country was a success because the voter turnout was heavier than government opponents predicted.

PRI officials estimated that 60 per cent of the nation's 26 million voters went to the polls. In some presidential elections, 65 to 75 per cent stayed away.
Lopez Portillo was picked for the presidency by outgoing President Luis Echeverria, a boyhood friend, and a small handful of party leaders. As soon as his name was announced in September, his election was assured. The PRI has never lost a presidential election.

He is expected to be slightly more moderate than Echeverria, who has often attacked the United States and other industrialized nations and accused them of not being interested in the welfare of Third World nations.

CAR CRAMMING . . . was another exciting event in Greenville's July Fourth activities held on Saturday. Marines from Camp Lejeune are shown beginning their try. They won the event by fitting 19 in the car. (Reflector Photo By Tommy Forres).

Sudan Charges Libyan Aid In Attempted Coup

KHARTOUM, Sudan (AP) — Libya's radical government sent more than 1,000 mercenaries into Sudan for the attempt to overthrow President Jaafar el-Numairi last week, the Sudanese government charges.
"The Sudanese government has firm evidence proving that Libya trained and equipped about 1,000 mercenaries and provided them with transportation facilities in an attempt to topple the nation's legitimate regime," the government's Omdurman Radio said Sunday.

Numairi recalled his ambassador to Libya and asked for an urgent meeting of the United Nations Security Council to discuss "a treacherous invasion" of Sudan.

The Sudanese government also filed a complaint with the Arab League accusing Col. Moammar Khadafy's Libyan regime of armed invasion.

Khartoum's official newspapers said about 600 persons were killed or wounded in fighting Friday and Saturday before troops loyal to Numairi crushed the attempted coup.

Informed sources said three pro-Numairi generals were among those killed.

Troops toured Khartoum Sunday rounding up suspects. They reportedly killed some who attempted to flee.

An Egyptian spokesman in Cairo said Egyptian planes photographed a Libyan column of 10 trucks and four Land Rovers moving to the Libyan-Sudanese border on Saturday.

Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy said the Egyptian government flew more than 1,500 Sudanese troops home from Egypt to help put down the revolt. The troops had been in Egypt since the 1973 Arab-Israeli War.

Following his bloodless coup in 1969, Numairi was an ally of such radical Arabs as the Libyan regime. But after a Communist attempt to overthrow him in 1971 he moved away from them and now leans toward the West.

Another attempt to oust Numairi was made last September by dissident army officers. One of the leaders, Brig. Mohammed Nur, escaped to Libya, and informed sources said he took part in the fighting Friday and was wounded. The government called on the public to capture him.

Poll Indicates Gain In House

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House Democratic leader was told about the poll Wednesday. Caddell is on retainer to conduct polls for Carter. Carter campaign aides referred news- men to Caddell in Boston, but he declined to return telephone inquiries.

"We consider it pretty ludicrous, really," L. David LeRoy said Sunday. The Republicans expect to win back the 43 seats they lost in 1974, he added, and hope to fulfill their slogan to "Win 76 in '76."

Democrats already outnumber Republicans in the House by a 2 to 1 margin. If they should gain 30 seats, they would control the House by 320 to 115, or nearly 3 to 1. That would be the most lopsided House since 1939, when the GOP was outnumbered 333 to 89.

The poll reportedly was made for Jimmy Carter, the expected Democratic presidential nominee, by Pat Caddell.

Rep. Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., the majority leader, and other

House Democratic leaders were told about the poll Wednesday. Caddell is on retainer to conduct polls for Carter. Carter campaign aides referred news- men to Caddell in Boston, but he declined to return telephone inquiries.

The director of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, Paul Pendergast, said the poll concluded that Democrats could win 30 to 40 new House seats in November and lose 10 for a net gain of 20 to 30 seats.

The poll found Carter's coattails would help Democrats win back some seats in the South, border states and Southwest that they lost in recent years, he added.

Pendergast would not identify any of the 30 to 40 targeted GOP seats. He said he did not want to alert the GOP to its weaknesses.

Probe Possible Price-Fixing

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Federal authorities are investigating the possibility of international price-fixing in the uranium industry at a time when the industry is rapidly expanding, the Los Angeles Times says.

Sunday's Times said the possibility of criminal antitrust violations has resulted in subpoenas from a federal grand jury in Washington.

The newspaper said the investigation by the Justice Department is focusing on the world price structure of uranium and the activities of both foreign and domestic firms.

Justice Department officials could not be reached immediately for comment.

Uncle Sam Bequeathed His Estate

By JANE ANDERSON
EASTFORD, Conn. (UPI)—Many Americans today grumble when they pay their federal income tax, but in this Bicentennial year it might be well to reflect on a Connecticut citizen who gladly gave all his worldly possessions to the U.S. government.

The first income tax was not imposed in the United States until 1864, three years after Nathaniel Lyon was shot from his galloping horse leading a Civil War bayonet charge that played a part in the conflict's outcome.

You will find Lyon enshrined in history books because he was the first Northern general killed in the Civil War. A little known fact is that he bequeathed everything he had to the government.

The value was placed at $30,000, then a handsome estate that included land and buildings.

Lyon, a West Point graduate in charge of the United States arsenal at St. Louis, Mo., subdued the pro-Confederacy forces in Missouri in May, 1861. In August he led 5,000 men in a night attack on 23,000 Confederate men bivouacked at Wilson's Creek, Mo.

A contemporary newspaper account said: "A disabled colonel of a Kentucky regiment shouted, 'General, you come and lead us.'"

"Lyon did so, putting himself in front and while cheering on the men, he received a bullet in the left breast and fell from his horse. He was asked if he was hurt and the 43-year-old commander replied, 'No, not much,' but died within a few minutes."

The five-hour battle at Wilson Creek where Lyon died Aug. 10, 1861, was not considered a clear-cut Northern victory, but it inflicted such casualties on the Confederate forces their bugles sounded retreat and their troops withdrew.

News of the retreat swept through the Missouri prairie grass like wildfire and while it could have sided with the Confederacy Missouri stayed in the Union.

Lyon's body was placed in the historic State House in Hartford and then taken in a flag-draped train through the Connecticut countryside to his home town. Men, women and children turned out at dusk with lamps, lanterns and candles to light the way to the church for the fallen hero.

"A gun was fired at sunrise the next morning and a signal gun at 9 o'clock but long before that hour teams bearing people from the surrounding towns had filled the place," a newspaper account said.

Eastford then as now was a town of about 1,000 and residents saw thousands of mourners array on horseback, afoot, in buckboards, carriages and in stage coaches, all eager to pay homage to the general. A newspaper's estimate put the figure at 15,000.

"The funeral brought together more people than the town ever saw convened within its limits before or will again for many years to come," a newspaper correspondent wrote.

The funeral's cost was too burdensome for the little northeastern Connecticut town to absorb and so it asked the state of Connecticut to do so. A grateful state honored its native son by promptly paying the bill.

Phalangists Say Much Of Refugee Camp Taken

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer

party at Soufar, a mountain resort 12 miles east of Beirut.

A Palestinian spokesman said Arafat demanded an end to the Christian attack on Tal Zaatar as a prerequisite for peace negotiations. But the Phalangists reported they were blasting Palestinian holdouts from their last slit trenches and underground tunnels in the camp.

which 20,000 Palestinians lived when the Lebanese civil war started were "all ablaze."

The spokesman said the Palestinians were told by loudspeaker at noon Sunday that they would be treated as prisoners of war according to the Geneva Convention if they surrendered, but the guerrillas refused.

The battle for Tal Zaatar is considered the fiercest of the civil war. The guns of Tal Zaatar and Jisr el-Basha, both on the southeast side of Beirut, threatened traffic on roads between Christian East Beirut and the Christian territory between the coast and the mountains northeast of Beirut.

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Christian and Syrian representatives met all night with Palestinian chief Yasir Arafat as the Christians claimed they have conquered two-thirds of the Palestinians' Tal Zaatar refugee camp.

It was the first meeting between Arafat and the Phalangists since the Christian attack on Tal Zaatar and the neighboring Jisr el-Basha camp began two weeks ago. Jisr el-Basha fell to the Christians last week.

A Phalangist spokesman said the meeting was of a preparatory nature and got off "to a not quite satisfactory start." But Riad said all three factions agreed to begin detailed negotiations Wednesday for a ceasefire and an over-all settlement of the 14½-month Lebanese civil war.

Mahmoud Riad, the secretary-general of the Arab League, drove over from Damascus to arrange the meeting between Arafat, Syrian Foreign Minister Abdul Halim Khaddam and two leaders of the right-wing Christian Phalange

Thirteen Die In Holiday Traffic

By The Associated Press
Thirteen people have died on North Carolina highways so far during the long July 4th holiday weekend, the Highway Patrol reported today.

The fatalities pushed the death toll for the year to 691 — the same as the total for this day a year ago.

Two of the victims were killed late Sunday night in Spencer when their car backed onto U.S. 29 into the path of a southbound car. They were identified as James Elic Alams, 79, of Salisbury and Jim Finn, 77, of East Spencer.

James Calvin Little, 22, of Whitakers was killed late Sunday when his car ran off state highway 44 in Edgecombe County and struck a tree, troopers reported.

David E. Richardson, 23, of Wendell, was killed Sunday when the car he was in overturned on a rural road 15 miles west of Wilson.

Vidula S. Bangdiwala, 33, of Nashville, Tenn., died when her car swerved into an oncoming lane on N.C. 54 in Durham County.

Donald W. Morrow, 20, of Weaverville, died Sunday from injuries sustained in a wreck on U.S. 74 in Buncombe County

Saturday night. Also killed in that wreck were Arnold A. Hensley, 27, of Weaverville and Rubin A. Metcalfe of Marshall, 61.

A two-car collision on a rural Pender County road Saturday killed a 74-year-old Montana man identified as Ray Thomas Russell, who was a passenger in one of the cars.

Leon Satchell, 29, of Bath, was killed late Saturday when he was struck by a car on N.C. 92 just east of Bath in Beaufort County.

Two others died in car-pedestrian accidents, the patrol said. Hattie L. Cornegay, 85, of Seven Springs was struck and killed late Saturday as she walked along N.C. 77 in Wayne County, and Burleigh George Piatt, 44, of Newland, was killed Saturday when he was walking along U.S. 17 south of Newland.

A one-car wreck in Union County Saturday claimed the life of William Larry Preslar, 31, of Polkton, troopers said.
