

Adopt $17.7 Million Pitt Budget

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County Commissioners last night approved a $17.7 million budget for the 1976-77 fiscal year and tentatively set the county-wide tax rate at 92 cents per $100 valuation. Although every effort is being made to provide the necessary funds with a lower rate.

The 92-cent rate—an increase of 18.7 per cent over the 77.5 cents per $100 rate last year (including the special school district levies)—is the highest rate and greatest increase in any one year in the history of the county. But the board may be forced to adopt the rate to meet the needs of the schools.

Commissioners, expressing concern over the tax hike, emphasized that an increase is required primarily to provide funds for maintenance and repairs needed by the Greenville City Board of Education in order for schools to open in the fall.

One of the city's buildings—Third Street School—was condemned in the closing days of the 1975-76 term and reports of inspections by the city building inspector indicated that other schools in the system might not be allowed to re-open unless major repairs were made. And under state law, commissioners must provide the funds for needed maintenance and repairs to protect the health and safety of students.

County manager Reginald Gray noted that although the county-wide tax rate increased 18.7 per cent, the increase in the tax rate for schools this year represents a 21.36 per cent increase.

In adopting the tax rate last night, commissioners voted to move to a unified levy for schools—that is, levy one tax, county-wide, for the support of the city and county school systems and divide the revenue on a pro-rata basis according to the number of pupils in each system. Such a unified levy insures that each child in the county—whether living in the Greenville or the county school district—will receive equal dollar support.

In past years the schools, in addition to receiving funds from a county-wide tax levy divided on a pro-rata basis, have been financed in part by special district levies—special taxes paid by residents of either the Greenville city district or the Pitt County district (all property owners outside the city district, with all those funds going to the appropriate district. Under such a system, students did not necessarily receive the same rate of funding.

Under the budget adopted last night, a total of $5.39 million goes to support the public schools in Greenville and Pitt County from local money. Included in that figure is $4.7 million for current expense items (1.36 million to the city and $2.81 million to the county) and $1.21 million for capital outlay.

The current expense money is divided on the basis of 32.60 per cent to the city schools and 67.40 per cent to the county system, based on the number of pupils in each system as required by state law.

However, in light of the needs of the city system this year, Greenville district will receive $621,000 for capital outlay while the county schools will get $597,000—a 50.98 percent - 49.02 split.

In allotting Greenville a higher percentage—$223,900 more than their pro-rata share of the unified levy—to meet the current needs for maintenance and repair in the city system, commissioners stated their intention to consider the needs for maintenance and repairs of the county schools next year and in future years and, if necessary, make an addition to the county's pro-rata part of the capital outlay levy to equalize and compensate for the additional allowance to the city this year. At last night's session, just prior to adopting the budget, commissioners met with members of the Greenville Board of Education and school superintendent Glenn Cox.

Cox presented a summary of cost estimates, based on fire and building inspection reports, for Eastern, Elmhurst, Sadie Sautler, South Greenville, Agnes Fullilove, Aycock, Rose High, and Third Street schools which totaled $60,600, and commissioners approved those funds.

However, School board member Jim Bearden emphasized, "Saying we can open all these schools for this amount of money is wrong. I think they are low estimates," although it would provide funds to open the school system, he indicated.

School board member Terry Shank agreed, saying "We have no guarantee" that the work needed on the schools can be done for this amount of money. "This is a basic minimum . . . this is to make do."

Board chairman Henry Dunn then said, "I don't care if the commissioners give us $400,000 for Third Street School, there's not enough time" to complete needed repairs to that building so the building can open in the fall. He added, "the Board of Education has not made a final decision" on whether to reopen Third Street school.

In adopting the unified levy, commissioners emphasized that the city system will not be hurt. Care was taken, according to board members, to insure that the city schools would receive as much as they would under the old method of using a county-wide levy, plus a special district tax.

Commissioners, who were told that bids for a new middle school for Greenville are scheduled to be received July 17, expressed support for the project and indicated efforts will be made to provide additional funds for that project in the future.

In allocating the money needed for maintenance and repairs to the buildings in the city system, commissioners asked the Greenville Board of Education to provide reports on how the capital funds are being spent, progress reports on repairs, and copies of regular inspection reports on city school

Investigation of a complaint at a house in Oakdale Subdivision early today resulted in the arrest of one person by the Pitt County Sheriff's Department and confiscation of over $140,000 worth of marijuana.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that 19, of 121 Oakdale Road around 2 a.m. and charged him with felonious possession of marijuana with intent to distribute.

Sheriff Tyson said that officers confiscated some 450 pounds of marijuana at the Vara house. He noted that the marijuana was wrapped in bricked quantities of approximately 2.2 pounds each with a street value of some $320 per pound or total value of roughly $144,000.

The sheriff said the confiscation of some 200 kilos of marijuana represented the largest drug haul in his memory in Pitt County.

Bond for Vara was set at $25,000 with a bond hearing scheduled for today in District Court here.

According to Sheriff Tyson, deputies first went to the Vara house to investigate a complaint around 12:30 a.m. Deputies then obtained a search warrant and returned to the residence for the search.

Taking part in the investigation and arrest were Deputies Wayne Nobles and Jimmy Harrell as well as narcotics officer K. R. Evans.

Vara, it was pointed out, was the operator of Evergreen Enterprises of Greenville.

Incumbent N.C. Auditor Cites His Achievements

By BARBARA MATHEWS
Reflector Staff Writer

Democratic incumbent state auditor Henry L. Bridges considers overall improvement of state auditing procedures and the recruitment of a professional staff his greatest achievements in office, he said yesterday.

Bridges, who is completing his seventh term as state auditor, was in Greenville to attend a campaign fund-raising dinner.

"With this professional staff, which includes 21 certified public accountants, we are able to do a professional job in the overall improvement of auditing and administrative procedures," he said. "We are insuring proper expenditure of all funds.

"And in our effort to protect tax dollars, we see to it that all money is expended according to the directions of the General Assembly."

Bridges stated three priorities to which he will be devoted if re-elected.

"Although I am an elected official, my duties are prescribed by statute," he said. "My first priority is an annual post-audit of the $3.5 billion budget. That in itself is a great responsibility. "Second is the development and implementation of a statewide accounting system.

"We started work on this program 4½ years ago. We designed the program according to the problems existing and the information needed."

Bridges said the system has been implemented on 14 major departments of state government, and complete implementation is planned to be finished by 1977.

"This system is designed to generate reports needed by the governor, the legislature and the heads of state agencies," he said.

"The reports are needed so that administrative decisions can be made. It is a very valuable administrative tool."

Bridges' third priority is the performance of program or operational audits to determine the efficiency and effectiveness of management in state agencies.

"We started work in this area in January, 1975, and have issued eight reports, several of which have attracted the attention of the Joint Committee on Governmental Operations of the legislature," said Bridges.

"We have made several surveys at their request when they were interested in obtaining information in certain areas.

"Our report has been used as an input into the legislative decision-making process.

"In the past when we have found that improvement in accounting or administrative procedure was indicated, we would discuss the matter with the head of the agency.

"About 100 per cent of the time, he would agree with our recommendations and implement them."

In addition to serving as vice-chairman of the Southeast Intergovernmental Audit Forum, Bridges is also a member of the National Intergovernmental Audit Forum.

"The primary function of the Forum is to interchange ideas and information and resolve

Over Expectation

The Pitt County Blood drive for the new fiscal year got off to a good start Wednesday with a successful Bloodmobile visit at East Carolina University.

Acting chairman Billy Ross said that 207 pints of blood were collected during the visit at Wright Auditorium while 19 persons were rejected for various health reasons.

Ross said that the collection total was much better than had been expected in view of the season and he offered "special thanks" to the Greenville Service League women for their assistance and to Alpha Epsilon Delta, national pre-med honor society, for its sponsorship of the visit.

He also thanked the university for making the facilities available for the blood drive.

Ross said that the ECU visit was open to the general public and several local citizens turned out to donate.

The next visit to Pitt County will be at the Moose Lodge on Aug. 16, 17, and 18.

SUNDAY'S OK

I'd like to know if it is legal to write a check and date it on Sunday. O.H.

We talked to Mrs. Janet Ayers, operations officer of Planters' National Bank in Greenville. According to Mrs. Ayers, it is legal to write a check any day of the week, regardless of whether it is a holiday or on the weekend.

Mrs. Ayers said that on the money market, a check is more or less considered currency, and as such is "spendable" any day of the week.

RED CROSS CAN HELP

In response to Tuesday's appeal for donors of a rare blood type, Mrs. Walter Taylor, who's filling in for Mrs. Ruth Taylor at the Pitt County Red Cross office, says the Red Cross can help. "With the help of the Bloodmobile, we will be responsible for seeing there is all the fresh A-negative blood needed available for Ray Waters during his open heart surgery Aug. 10. We have a cooperative arrangement with the unit up there and will be absolutely sure it's taken care of," she said.

However, she said she is glad the Hotline appeal ran and hopes it will prompt healthy persons, especially those with rare blood types, to let the Red Cross office know if they might be available to help out in such emergencies here. The Red Cross phone number is 752-4222.

"The service we're providing the Waters family is one we'd offer any Pitt County resident," Mrs. Taylor added.

FIREMEN BATTLE BLAZE . . . Greenville firemen battle an early morning blaze that destroyed the

A 4 a.m. fire this morning destroyed the interior of Marty's — a night-spot at 122 East Fifth St. — and resulted in heavy smoke damage to Williard & Webb Insurance and the Olde Towne Inn restaurant. Greenville Police officers, on patrol in the downtown section this morning discovered smoke coming from the building and summoned the fire department.

Fire officers, who said the damaging blaze was quickly brought under control, said firefighters used 2½ and 1½ inch hose supplied by two pumpers to combat the blaze.

Officials said this morning that the cause of the fire which apparently began on a balcony in the building, has not been determined, but said an investigation into the cause is underway. The building was closed about 2:35 a.m., 1 hour and 25 minutes before the fire was discovered.

No estimate of the damage caused by the fire was available this morning.

Couple Exchanges Vows In Ceremony On Sunday

LITTLETON—Amidst a gathering of friends, relatives and fellow campers from all over the eastern coast, Janice Webb Walston and Elmo Everette were united in marriage at the American Heritage Campground on Lake Gaston near here Sunday at 3:00 p.m.

The Rev. Jerry Harper of Enterprise Baptist Church Littleton, officiated at the double ring ceremony. Mrs. Richard Roddy, organist, played musical selections of "America" and "Whiter Thou Goest."

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Homer F. Webb of Tarboro, and Mr. and Mrs. Odell Everette of Belvoir.

The bride was attired in an empire waisted formal length gown with a V-neck and bishop sleeves. Colors of Williamsburg blues, rose, beige, gold and greens were accentuated by the beige lace along the neck and sleeves. She wore matching accessories and carried a bouquet composed of the wild flowers found along the lake. The bouquet was tied with streamers of shades of pinks, blues, and greens.

The couple entered the campsite together, while the organist played "America" and proceeded to an improvised altar under pine trees with the American flags of 1976 and 1976 displayed.

The couple left for their wedding trip by boat to un-

The couple were honored at an old-fashioned picnic lunch preceding the wedding ceremony by their families and friends.

Mrs. Roach Entertained

On Sunday an appreciation day was given at the Moyewood Center honoring Mrs. Helen Roach of Greenville.

The honoree was remembered with a corsage of pink carnations which complemented her formal pink gown.

Special guests were the Eastern Travelers of Greenville. Mrs. Roach was remembered with gifts from the guests. The appreciation day was given by Mrs. Roach's children and grandchildren.

CALENDAR ART CHICAGO (UPI) — A large publisher says the industry gave away $240 million worth of calendars last year for advertising purposes.

Karl Weindel of the John Baumgarth Co. here said the most popular forms of calendar art are, in this order, scenic views, children and pets, floral arrangements and old western scenes. The company's sales figures indicates nudes and pin-up illustrations are declining in popularity.

How To Introduce His New Wife

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My husband's parents were divorced after 30 years of a very bad marriage.

My father-in-law was in business for himself and had an affair with his secretary, who was about my age. After the divorce, my father-in-law married this young secretary.

How do we introduce his new wife? Since we're about the same age, I can't very well call her my "stepmother."

Also, what should my children call her? They now call her by her first name.

PANAMA CITY, FLA.

DEAR PAN: I think you should introduce her as "my father-in-law's new wife." And your children should continue to call her by her first name.

DEAR ABBY: I know you'll think I'm crazy, but here goes: I am a 20-year-old college student who has a very strong desire to be babied.

It all started about six years ago when my older sister began telling me how I used to laugh and thrive happily around while my mother diapered me. Now I derive great pleasure out of just thinking of having a woman powder and diaper me. My desire to experience it again has become so strong that I have actually pinned a diaper on myself and wet myself!

I hope some day to marry a nice woman who will go along with this harmless little game of "playing baby," and agree to powder and diaper me.

I'm normal in every other way and have made the Dean's list, so I'm not crazy. Is there anything wrong with wanting to be a baby again? Please advise me, Abby, and try not to laugh.

WANTS TO BE BABIED IN GA.

DEAR WANTS: I am not laughing. Your strong desire to regress to your baby days and have a woman focus her attention on your genital area could indicate a serious emotional problem requiring expert help—perhaps psychoanalysis.

You can change the world for a woman who will "baby" you and change your diapers, and if you find her, have her see a psychiatrist, too. A marriage of emotional children is a real bumper. Get help.

DEAR ABBY: I have a great deal of respect for that man who sniffs his food before he eats it. (His lady friend found it a "disgusting" habit.)

I've never known a dog to trust his eyes when it comes to food. He trusts his nose, however, and he's absolutely right.

If human beings would take a good whiff of what they are about to eat, there would be a lot less food consumed and fewer bellyaches.

NOSEY AT MEALTIME

DEAR NOSEY: "Sniffing" food indicates that there are doubts about its edibility, which is no compliment to the host. So if sniffing is in order, it should be done subtly.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (24¢) envelope.

DEAR ABBY: Last week on the way home from work, my husband and I saw a little girl on the side of the road who had just been hit by a truck. That was bad enough, but when the ambulance arrived they found no identification on the girl, and no one knew who or where her parents were, so all they could do was take her to the hospital. At the hospital they couldn't do anything without parental consent because she was a minor.

If that child had been wearing an I.D. bracelet or necklace her parents could have been easily located and treatment could have been started sooner.

We make sure our pets have tags because they can't tell people where they live, but a child who is unconscious can't talk either. Please print this.

J.L.E.

DEAR J.L.E.: Pets are tagged because it's required by law, but you make a good point. An I.D. bracelet or necklace would make an ideal gift for a child's birthday or Christmas. And include the child's blood type. It could be a life-saver. Think about it.

The Diet You Can Live With

By DR. JEAN MAYER
Professor of Nutrition,
Harvard University
(First of a four-part Series on Dieting)

In Spring, thoughts of countless Americans turn not to love — or not just to love — but to weight reduction. Beaches, tennis courts and boats are beckoning, but those summer clothes! How little of you can be hidden by tennis shorts or bikinis? Most of us want to emerge from our winter wool cocoons as Beautiful People—as lean as a Robert Redford or as trim as a Mary Tyler Moore—embodiments of the quintessential American ideal.

If this is the kind of thing you've been thinking lately, I can try to help you. In a series of columns following this one, I will be introducing suggestions that should help you take off your winter weight and start you on the road to a sleek summer. The countdown on calories has become of prime importance to millions of Americans. And it has bred an army of "authorities" on nutrition in general and weight reduction in particular.

Yet the only scientific and workable diet is still based on good old simple arithmetic. And arithmetic is what physicians and dieticians use to select the amount and kind of food to include in a sensible, well-balanced diet.

First, you determine how many calories of food you should take in to cover your daily energy needs, then you cut that amount a little every day so that you'll get your body. But at the same time, you must make sure that cutting calories doesn't cut needed nutrients.

We know that a pound of fat tissue is equal to 3,500 calories.

If you cut out 500 calories a day, that will total 3,500 a week—or a pound of weight lost. A reduction of 1,000 calories a day will allow you to lose two pounds of fat a week. You can see that you could carry that arithmetic still further—but it isn't advisable without the supervision of a physician.

Unless you are a very large person or an unusually active one (rare among the overweight), you're almost bound to cut out required healthful nutrients if you cut more than 1,000 calories from your daily diet. Incidentally, cutting down on the number of calories you consume is not the only way to lose weight. An hour's cycling is the equivalent of 500 calories, for example. So you should take exercise into account when you are computing your needs.

We also know what nutrients you have to start from—your required daily energy needs—as calculated by the National Research Council:

Caloric Needs For Women
Age (yrs.)	Weight (lbs.)	Height (in.)	Calories (daily)
15-18	119	65	2,100
19-22	128	65	2,000
23-50	128	65	2,000
51+	128	65	1,800

Caloric Needs For Men
Age (yrs.)	Weight (lbs.)	Height (in.)	Calories (daily)
15-18	134	69	3,000
19-22	147	69	3,000
23-50	154	69	2,700
51+	154	69	2,400

Now all you have to do to lose weight is to choose a diet that eliminates 500 or 1,000 calories a day from your consumption—depending on whether you want to lose a pound a week or two.

$1.50 to "Diet Plan," c-o The Daily Reflector, P. O. Box 258, Norwood, N.J. 07648. Send payable to NEWSPAPER BOOKS.)

In choosing a diet, be sure to remember that energy is a key factor. Suppose you are a woman who chooses a 1,400 calorie a day diet to lose a pound a week. That will work fine if you continue expending energy in your usual way. But you can give yourself a break. Simply use up 200 extra calories a day in added activity—40 minutes worth of walking at a moderately fast pace—and you can allow yourself 1,600 calories a day instead.

Please, though, follow these suggestions by the rules. The important thing is not simply that they cut calories; my recommendations are also there for nutritional reasons. If you want to substitute a food from your chosen diet, choose an item with the same number of calories in the same food group: leafy green or yellow vegetables; citrus fruits tomatoes and salad greens; potatoes, other vegetables and fruits; milk and milk products; meat, poultry, fish, eggs, dried peas and beans and nuts; bread, flour and cereals; butter, fortified margarine, polyunsaturated fats.

Remember, even if you succeed in losing weight, you won't have accomplished much if you are thin but flabby or thin but unhealthy. Why not do it right, and be slim, trim, fit?

(To help readers put his ideas into action, Dr. Mayer has compiled his 31-Day Reducing Diet Plan with a month of menus, shaping-up exercises and recipes. For a copy, send to

Took A Chance, Reap Acclaim

The Israeli raid which freed more than 100 hijacking hostages from an airport in Uganda was dangerous but brilliantly executed.

The Air France plane was hijacked over Greece on June 27 and ordered to Entebbe, Uganda. The Palestinian terrorists held the plane there with threats to kill the Jewish passengers who remained on the plane.

Israel carried out a carefully planned raid which resulted in the freeing of the hostages.

The prime minister of Israel Yitzak Rabin said the operation would "become a legend."

"It is Israel's contribution to the fight against terrorism."

The mission brought praise from President Ford. He expressed "great satisfaction that the passengers of the Air France flight seized earlier this week have been saved and a senseless act of terrorism thwarted."

Of course, the operation could have gone badly and the terrorists could have carried out their threat to kill the hostages. It didn't because the Israeli force was carefully trained to carry out such a mission. Most of the hostages were brought out safely and the terrorists paid with their lives.

Those who use force against society only understand force and violence. No group has right to take the freedom of others and jeopardize their safety for whatever cause they represent.

There have already been calls for censuring of Israel for this daring and successful raid. The civilized world should pay no attention to such talk. The hijacking was reprehensible and it called for strong action.

Still A High Interest In Space Flights

The Soviets are far behind the United States in space exploration. They have yet, for instance, to put a man on the moon.

Still there is high interest in space in the Soviet Union as illustrated by the launch of a Soyuz space craft carrying two men this week. The Soviets say there will be a series of manned flights in space.

It is not certain what the Soviet aims are in space, but we can be sure that the United States should not give up its space efforts at this time.

THIS AFTERNOON

Varied Tax Methods Eyed

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — A legislative study committee is still trying to come up with some way to catch the tax cheaters who don't list their cars for local property tax purposes.

Two years ago, an effort to replace the property tax on cars with a state-collected excise tax was slaughtered by auto dealers who objected that this would turn them into tax collectors when selling a car.

Now, the lawmakers are looking into another approach—having the license plate dealer appointed a tax collector so the money can be gotten in hand before a new plate is sold the owner.

That approach is now being developed by the Committee for the Study of the Property Tax chaired by State Senator Wesley D. Webster, D-Rockingham.

Change Likely
A change of some sort is likely, since local tax experts say millions of dollars are lost each year from North Carolinians who simply do not report their cars for local tax purposes.

Estimates vary between $5 million and $10 million in losses.

The present system is this: The owner must put on his auto registration card the county of taxation. He also must list the car on his personal property report in his home county.

Some counties get the registration printouts from Raleigh to cross-check; others don't. Thus, simply not listing the car for tax purposes may escape detection.

It is also known that some fleet owners know of counties which do not check the lists, and so they register their vehicles in those counties.

The Division of Motor Vehicles argued against the state excise tax to be collected at the time a car is registered, with funds sent back to the various local governments, as being both costly and time consuming.

Objection from that agency is not expected on the proposal to let license dealers serve as tax collectors. Plate offices are variously operated by private contractors, auto clubs, or chambers of commerce.

Plans for the state to go to a staggered auto registration system rather than issuing all new plates at the first of the year would help make the tax system smoother, officials believe.

Basically, the proposed method would work this way:

Check List
The office at which license plates are sold would have a book giving the values of the various makes and models of cars.

A person getting a new plate would either produce a receipt for taxes paid, or the registration card would be used to check the value of the car and figure the local taxes due—city, county, or combined.

The license plate agent would have to be duly sworn as an assistant tax collector, and would actually collect the tax on the spot before issuing a new license plate to the owner.

Tax supervisors favor the proposed method of collecting the local tax. A survey of supervisors statewide showed 86 in favor, with three opposed.

The supervisors also favor removal of the household property tax from listings. Some counties use a percentage of the real estate value to figure household personal property; others actually require listing of refrigerators, washing machines, guns, jewelry, etc.

That system, legislators say, makes cheaters of us all.

"There isn't a diamond ring to be found in the State of North Carolina on January 1," says State Rep. Robert A. Jones, D-Rutherford, co-chairman of the tax study committee.

LESSON IN ELEMENTARY ECONOMICS!

Circus Aura Lingers

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The Democrats are doing their darndest not to make a circus out of their convention next week, but the smell of Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey lingers on.

Literally.

Their nominee will await his introduction as "the next President of the United States," in a concrete block locker room used normally by sweaty basketball players.

And the delegates themselves will be sitting on an ice rink.

These circumstances are dictated by the Democrats' choice of New York as their convention city. New York, Big Apple though it is, lacks the convention centers of a San Francisco, Miami Beach or Chicago. No Cow Palace here.

Instead there is Madison Square Garden, a nice compact little place that seats a shade more than 20,000 people at best, isn't on Madison Square, and surely is no garden.

Turning the hall into an arena for a political convention was the job of a firm headed by Raymond R. Hertler, who says he's voted Democratic sometimes.

With $1.4 million to spend, Hertler and his staff designed the convention hall down to the last camera stand and then coordinated the efforts of 80 to 90 firms that had something to do with building the thing.

"We anticipated a real rat race," he said. "But no, it was real calm. No major setbacks. No major labor problems. We worried about those big unknowns. But we were able to accomplish what you see here without substantial overtime."

By then, the place looked about 90 per cent ready. The podium lacked only the convention emblem, a thorough vacuuming, and the mums that will grace it when the delegates begin filing in for the 8 p.m. EDT opening Monday.

The transformation began June 1, a day after the circus left the garden. Out came 2,000 fixed seats on one side. In went benches for reporters covering the convention.

The huge exhibition space at the back of the hall, where the circus lions, tigers and horses had been quartered became office and equipment space for the television networks and other news organizations.

The unmistakable scent remained.

A Political Potato Race

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

The way of transgressors is hard, sayeth the Good Book, and the author of Proverbs might have been addressing his wisdom to third-party candidates who transgress the two-party system.

Running for President as a Democrat or Republican is no easy jog, but running as an independent is like running inside a potato sack.

Paul H. Blackman spells out the difficulties in a little book just published by the Heritage Foundation, "Third Party President?" His comprehensive study of confusing State requirements has a particular interest this year. If things go really badly for the Republicans, Blackman's manual may become a little bible for new-party promoters between now and 1980.

By every indication, our two-party system is in trouble. The principal reasons have been examined many times. The growth of a professional civil service has nullified the devices of party patronage. Television has eclipsed the organizing of a rally in the park. Public financing of presidential elections has weakened the party's fund-raising function.

Whatever the reasons may be, a general disenchantment has developed. The pollsters' findings vary, but roughly 42 percent of the voters consider themselves Democrats and only 18 to 20 percent identify with the Republicans. The rest are independents, and among voters 18 to 25, more than half are independents.

On paper, at least, it appears that a time is approaching for some basic realignment.

In terms of the presidency (and that is Blackman's only concern in his monograph), this means we must look to State laws and regulations governing new-party access to the ballot. The Constitution provides, with apparent clarity, that the naming of a President is not a national function, but a State function: "Each State shall appoint, in such manner as the legislature thereof may direct, a number of electors..." The power of Congress to make or to alter State regulations is plainly limited to the times, places and manner of holding elections "for Senators and Representatives" only.

Until this fundamental structure is altered by constitutional amendment, the power of the States will continue. The effective emergence of new parties therefore will depend upon the willingness of the 50 State legislatures to attack the problem of ballot access.

I count myself a Tenth Amendment conservative: I love diversity, I hate uniformity. But looking at Blackman's compendium of State election laws, I am minded to say: This is ridiculous. In the past hundred years, third-party candidates have won electoral votes in only five elections. The wonder is that third parties have done so well.

A candidate such as Eugene McCarthy, for example, must master 50 different requirements for the filing of petitions. In some States, the number of signatures is low; in some it is high. Here the signatures must be notarized; there they must be obtained by counties or congressional districts. Filing deadlines vary enormously. Filing fees are high and low. State laws on challenges are a swamp of

40 Years Ago Today

The nation counted at least 53 dead today as record-shattering heat engulfed the drought-damaged midwest for the sixth consecutive day.

Crop losses — already estimated at approximately $300 million — mounted rapidly under a sun that drove temperatures as high as 130 degrees.

No relief was sighted. Forecaster J. R. Lloyd predicted "abnormally warm weather, broken only by scattered and probably inconsequential showers in a few states, will continue over the northwest drought area today and tomorrow."

The Greenies outhit, out-pitched and outplayed Tarboro yesterday to win 3-1 from the Bunnies.

Local pitcher Reynolds May gave the spectators a thrill by hurling a two-hitter and knocking in two runs.

The GALLUP POLL

Enthusiasm Is Low-Keyed

By GEORGE GALLUP
PRINCETON, N.J.—None of the three leading presidential candidates today engenders the personal enthusiasm of a Kennedy, an Eisenhower or a Johnson.

In the current survey, Democrat Jimmy Carter is given a "highly favorable" rating by 25 per cent of voters nationwide, while President Gerald Ford and Ronald Reagan each receive a "highly favorable" rating of 22 per cent.

These ratings fall below those given most presidential candidates at roughly comparable times in presidential election years over the last quarter century, as indicated in the table below:

'Highly Favorable' Rating From 10-Point Scale (Plus 5 and 4)	August 1952	July 1956	May 1960	May 1964	May 1968	August 1972
Eisenhower	47%
Stevenson	37
Eisenhower		65%
Stevenson		28
Kennedy			41%
Nixon			41
Johnson				59%
Goldwater				15
Nixon					28%
Humphrey					27
Nixon						40%
McGovern						23

While the current charisma ratings given the three leading presidential candidates at the present time fall below those of most candidates at comparable points in earlier presidential years, it should be borne in mind that these ratings tend to improve following the nominating conventions and in the later stages of a presidential campaign.

To measure the personality factor, the Stapel Scalometer is used. The Scalometer consists of 10 squares ranging from plus five—or someone liked very much—down to minus five—or someone disliked very much. Each respondent is asked to indicate the square that best indicates his feelings about a particular person. These ratings are measurements of the appeal of a candidate as a person and should not be confused with test election results.

The following table shows the trend in "highly favorable" ratings (plus 5 and 4):

'Highly Favorable' Rating From 10-Point Scale (Plus 5 and 4)	Feb. 1976	May 1976
Jimmy Carter	29%	25%
Gerald Ford	28	22
Ronald Reagan	25	22

Behind Carter's Appeal
A question asked frequently in political discussions these days is—what is behind Carter's appeal? How did Carter, virtually unknown at the beginning of the year, rise so dramatically in the ranks of Democratic hopefuls to almost certain nomination?

When this question was put to voters, the overwhelming proportion of responses related to personality factors rather than to his stand on issues. His religious background is prominently mentioned.

"Honest and straightforward" and "a new face on the scene" are also reasons offered frequently by survey respondents. Still others say he has "the common touch" or is "direct and positive in his approach."

Here is the question asked:
"There has been much discussion about the reasons for Jimmy Carter's appeal. What would you say are the key reasons?"

Here are the findings:

Other Editors Say December Divorces

(Raleigh Times)

A $2,000 vacation or that amount stashed away in savings may not be a reasonable reason for divorce but it is as good, if not better than a lot of others in this divorce-happy society.

That's why thousands of Americans, since a "Sixty Minutes" CBS television show focused on the benefits, have been participating in the December divorce-January marriage arrangement that saves them money and shortchanges Uncle Sam's revenue agents.

IRS' problem began in 1969 when Congress passed a law attempting to remedy the inequity which gave marriage people a better tax break than their single counterparts. But Congress, never good at math or particularly guilty of common sense, swung the pendulum too far in the other direction. It became more advantageous in most cases to be single than married at tax time. Another law passed by Congress in 1975 made single status even more appealing financially.

Currently, the allowable deduction for a single person is $2,300, compared to only $2,600 for a couple. Take the example in which both earn $20,000. At the end of the year, they owe the government $10,300. As singles earning the same salary, they would pay IRS $8,300 collectively.

This inequity has, since the TV program, encouraged many happily married people to get a quickie divorce in December, file as singles in January and promptly remarry.

Now IRS says it's closing this loophole, and those who have filed tax returns based on sham are going to have to shell out anyway.

That may be the proper thing to do, though one wonders what other larger loopholes are being ignored. But the obvious shortcoming of IRS and Congress is their inability to work out a standard deduction that is exactly the same for the single and the married taxpayer.

Certainly, the single taxpayer should not be discriminated against because he chooses to pass up the joys—or sorrows—of matrimony and all of its encumbrances and rewards. Nor, by the same token, should the married taxpayer be given a less than equal break because he did indulge in the institution.

Pending congressional tax reform should address this item along with other inequities of the system.

Strength For Today

LAYING ASIDE THE ARMOUR
The historian Edward Gibbon tells us that at a certain time in the history of Rome there came a profound relaxation of discipline and training in its armies. The result was that the soldiers in the Roman legions became less able to perform hard and demanding military duty. The soldiers even complained about the weight of their armour and at last obtained permission to lay aside a part of it.

We observe the same kind of relaxation in contemporary religious life.

Many modern Christians complain about the weight of certain Christian disciplines such as church going, Sabbath observance, and daily reading of the Bible. Directly or indirectly, some of these Christians are asking permission from the church to lay aside a portion of the spiritual armour considered essential in times past for the protection of men's souls.

For Roman soldiers, the end result of the laying aside of their armour was the fall of Rome. We do not want a similar disaster to befall the spiritual edifice of our lives.

Plan For Elderly Homeowners

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — A Wharton School professor has devised a financial plan that would enable elderly homeowners to obtain a regular income from the equity in their homes while being guaranteed lifelong occupancy.

If implemented, the plan has the potential for greatly relieving the financial problems of elderly persons while simultaneously assuring them of independence and security in familiar surroundings.

Jack Guttentag, who holds the chair in banking at Wharton, the business and finance school of the University of Pennsylvania, has put his plan in the public domain, for possible promotion by insurers, government and savings institutions.

So far, he said, one large bank has seriously considered the plan, and many individuals have expressed interest, but it is not yet being marketed, even though he believes it can be offered with actuarial assurance equal to life insurance policies.

Guttentag's ideas, contained in "The Bulletin" of the New York University Graduate School of Business Administration, include two new financial instruments, a split equity plan and a nonrepayable loan plan.

In the split equity concept, the equity of a property is divided in two components, a lifetime interest or right of occupancy, and the residual equity, which is the right to dispose of the property after the occupant's death.

To implement, the elderly occupant sells the residual equity, but instead of obtaining a lump sum payment from the buyer, he or she receives a lifetime annuity or guaranteed income.

Upon the death of the occupant, the buyer ceases further payments and takes possession, sometimes obtaining a more substantial property for the money than would have been possible in a conventional transaction.

The possibility exists, of course, that the elderly owner or owners will enjoy a life span greater than those listed in the actuarial tables, in which the buyer would have to pay a larger sum.

Large institutions, however, can benefit from the laws of large numbers, which generally dictate that extremes average out.

The nonrepayable loan, the other instrument in the professor's concept, is simply a loan secured by a mortgage repayable only upon the death of the borrower or on the prior sale of the property.

Guttentag believes the time is ripe for the development of these instruments in the United States.

"With the proportion of elderly in the population steadily rising and concern for wealth bestowals through estates declining, the potential market is increasing rapidly," he said.

There is also a strong social interest in the development of the instruments, he believes, because the aged comprise a large part of the poverty problem. The median income for households over 65 is less than half that for all households.

Despite the income problems of many elderly, home ownership is higher than for the population in general.

Home From Korea Prison

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Roy Thomas Cash arrived home in Durham Wednesday after being freed last week from a prison in South Korea, where he had served more than two years on murder and robbery charges.

Cash, 22, was a private in the U. S. Army when he was arrested. The Korean government granted him amnesty.

Cash would say little about the charges filed against him in the death of a Korean merchant.

"Ten of us were involved and one is still in prison in Korea," he said. "More or less, I was a victim of circumstances. Evidently that's what the Army thought. They gave me an honorable discharge."

Cash said he left Suwon, Korea, on July 2 in an Army van, along with four other men.

"Two of the guys had been held on the same charge as me and the other two on different charges. One went home to Ohio, one to Arizona, one to San Francisco and one to Chicago. All of us were granted amnesty," he said.

Cash said they flew to Travis Air Force Base in California and spent the July 4 weekend in Oakland. Cash arrived in Durham Tuesday morning.

"I'm discharged from the Army — it's all over now and I'm ready to get adjusted, get back to civilian life," Cash said.

Irate Ford Orders HEW To Rescind Parent-Child Orders

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal ban on school-sponsored mother-daughter and father-son events irritated President Ford so much that he ordered it rescinded. But a women's group says such functions perpetuate sexual stereotypes and should be eliminated.

Ford ordered a study to determine if single-sex social events violate federal sex discrimination laws, as alleged by the civil rights office of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

White House spokesman Ron Nessen said Wednesday that Ford was irritated when he read of the ruling banning single-sex school events.

The HEW ruling was in response to an inquiry from the Scottsdale, Ariz., public schools, which sponsor father-son banquets and mother-daughter teas. Scottsdale officials wanted to know whether the events violated the laws prohibiting sex discrimination in public schools.

Officially, the ruling issued last week was suspended pending research by lawyers to determine whether Title IX of the Civil Rights Act is violated by such events.

Nessen said that if it is found that the law is being violated, Ford would immediately send legislation to Congress to change the law.

The National Organization for Women took opposition to Ford's stand.

"We are watching Title IX being nickled and dimed to death," charged Lynda Weston, a NOW staff member.

Dividing the sexes for school-sponsored fashion shows, softball games, banquets and breakfasts is a tradition in many communities.

"What happens is you get the girls together with the moms and you have teas and awards for sewing and fashion shows. You get the boys and dads together and you have community leaders come in and give rousing speeches," the NOW official said.

Other opponents argue such affairs are unfair to children with only one parent.

Ford phoned HEW Secretary David Mathews and "expressed displeasure at the ruling," said Nessen. "The President advised the secretary that he cannot believe that it was the intent of Congress to prohibit mother-daughter or father-son events at schools.

Nancy Low, spokeswoman for the civil rights office, said that after a five-month study the office determined that such events were prohibited by the antidiscrimination law.

"Arbitrary separation of the sexes is not permitted," she said.

Mathews, disclosing that HEW planned no enforcement action regarding the events during its review, said the department "will advise any school wishing to have such events to proceed."

Committee Votes To Restore Lt. Gov. Power

RALEIGH (AP) — A recommendation that the state Senate restore to the lieutenant governor the power to appoint Senate committees has been approved by the Senate Rules Committee.

The committee voted Wednesday after hearing a parade of witnesses Tuesday, most of whom urged that the Senate reverse the action it took in the closing minutes of the 1976 session to strip the lieutenant governor of the appointive power he had held at least since 1840.

Former Gov. Bob Scott, himself a former lieutenant governor, former Lt. Gov. Pat Taylor and Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt as well as several candidates for lieutenant governor were among those who urged that the committee recommend the Senate reverse itself.

"All we're doing is correcting the error we made," said Sen. Ralph Scott, D-Alamance, after the committee acted.

Sen W.D. Mills, D-Onslow, assistant Senate majority leader, said he has no doubts that the full Senate will vote to restore the lieutenant governor's power when it holds a caucus here July 16. However, the caucus can only recommend action to the 1977 Senate which convenes next January after its members are chosen in the general election this fall.

The Rules Committee also agreed to recommend that the Legislative Research Commission review the powers of the lieutenant governor, especially the duties which go beyond his legislative role.

The committee included in its report alternatives that it considered on the committee appointment issue.

One alternative was recommended by Sen. Wesley D. Webster, D-Rockingham, that Senate committee assignments be made by a committee consisting of the lieutenant governor, the majority leader and the assistant majority leader.

Sen. J.J. (Monk) Harrington, D-Bertie, had proposed that a committee consisting of one senator from each congressional district work with the lieutenant governor on appointments. Under his plan, it would require a two-thirds vote of the committee to override the lieutenant governor.

"Working within the framework of the Audit Forum, I can identify the saving of several millions of dollars that otherwise would have been subject to federal audit exceptions and refunds to the federal government."

Bridges is running what he calls a "low-key personalized campaign" stressing his accomplishments in office.

"For example, the last bond issue of $76 million sold at an interest cost of 5.45 per cent," he said.

"Anytime you can borrow at that rate, somebody has confidence in you."

"That tells me they have confidence in the financial integrity of the state of North Carolina. It is the result of the conscientious efforts on the part of those responsible for the financial integrity of the state to do what was necessary to maintain that integrity."

Reunion Held By 'Class Of 1965'

The class of 1965 of G. R. Whitfield School held its reunion Saturday at the Ramada Inn.

Mr. and Mrs. Amos Mills II of Greenville, former advisors, were guests of honor and both presented cheers and a short speech to the class members.

Mrs. Brenda Gatlin Hawkins of Simpson presented the Mr. and Mrs. Mills a gift.

Ms. Mary Hansley of Grimesland introduced the 1965 graduates and Mrs. Peggy H. Jones of Midway Park, welcomed the class members.

Dinner was served and entertainment followed.

A party was held after the reunion at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Vernice Ray Hawkins of Simpson.

Conservation Meeting Slated July 11-13

The Southeastern Regional Meeting of the National Association of Conservation Districts (NACD) will meet in Winston-Salem July 11-13.

Water quality, land and water conservation, mined area reclamation, and research needs of agriculture will be the featured topics at the meeting.

Keynote speakers will include Lt. Governor, Jim Hunt; Congressman Charlie Rose; NACD President George Bagley; SCS Assistant Administrator Ed Thomas; SCS State Conservationist Jesse L. Hicks; and Robert J. Bowers, NACD Research Committee Chairman.

Daily sessions, tours, and presentation of awards will highlight the program.

Nixon To Speak At Fund-Raiser

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Richard M. Nixon is scheduled to return to the town where he was born, Yorba Linda, Calif., next week for his first political appearance since he resigned the presidency.

The Secret Service confirmed Wednesday that Nixon will speak at a fund-raising event for Rep. Charles Wiggins, R-Calif.

Wiggins was a member of the House committee that voted three articles of impeachment before Nixon resigned his office in August 1974. Wiggins had led the anti-impeachment forces, but in the end he concluded that "the magnificent career of public service of Richard Nixon must be terminated involuntarily."

(Continued from page 4) ambiguity. Plainly, each of the States has gone its own untrammelled way. This is constitutional; it is also chaotic.

It is conceivable that Congress might seek to impose uniformity through some device that would circumvent the Constitution. For example, the granting of "Federal aid" might be conditioned upon each State's enactment of a model law. But Blackman is no friend, to such extortion, nor am I. Besides, the Democrats and Republicans in Congress are no more likely to make life easier for new-party competitors than their counterparts in State capitals.

But it would be a mistake cynically to assume bad faith in legislative halls. Without damage to the principle of diversity, the States voluntarily could move toward greater uniformity on petitions, fees, filing deadlines, and the like. The process should not be made too easy; otherwise we would have ballots cluttered with the names of merely frivolous candidates. But the process ought to be simplified. This is a pregnant time for the birth of new parties. In the name of a free society, we ought not to see them strangled in the womb.

Alternate Energy Sources Long Time In Coming

SOLAR ENERGY PROVIDER — Black-painted aluminum solar collectors are shown being installed in on a four-bedroom house in Marlboro,

Md., a Washington suburb, to provide heat and air conditioning energy. (A. Wirephoto)

Editor's Note: We heard a great deal about other, exotic sources of energy during the oil embargo — power from the sun, windmills, coal gasification, etc. Some said they could free us from foreign oil dependence. What's happened since the Arabs turned the oil back on? This first of two articles on energy alternatives brings things up to date.

By TERRY KIRKPATRICK
AP Business Writer

It is possible today to warm your home at night with heat from the sun, run your car on a fuel made from wheat or power your electric toothbrush with the wind. It's all possible, but unlikely to happen any time soon.

Since the oil embargo in late 1973, and the sudden jump in oil prices that followed, the dream of a cheap, clean and unlimited supply of energy has led a handful of people to build solar collectors on their roofs, install methane-burning engines in their cars or erect windmills in their backyards.

And millions of dollars have been poured into research and development of these alternative energy sources since American motorists first waited an hour in line to buy gasoline.

Such spending by government and industry jumped from $145.3 million in 1973 to $402.6 million in 1975, according to a survey prepared for the U.S. House Committee on Science and Technology. And the share of industry and government energy research money going to alternate sources has been growing — from roughly 9 per cent in 1973 to 16 per cent in 1975. The rest has gone to the more conventional energy sources.

Most research money supplied by industry goes to energy forms it currently produces and sells, petroleum being number one. More government money goes to nuclear research than anything else.

In fiscal 1976, for instance, the Energy Research and Development Administration spent almost half a billion on the breeder nuclear reactor — four times the amount allocated to any other single item.

So the more exotic energy alternatives account for only a fraction of the nation's total needs. Oil, natural gas and coal carry most of the load and will for some time to come.

Those who determine how research money will be spent foresee only a limited role for solar, geothermal and synthetic fuel energy in the next decade. One estimate, by the Federal Energy Administration, is that they will supply only about 1 per cent of the total energy demand in 1985.

For the most part, the technology needed to replace some of the limited oil with unlimited sun or wind is there. The hold-up barring their widespread use is economic: although the world price of crude oil has quadrupled in the past three years, it is still cheaper than most of the alternatives, say government and energy industry experts.

And some industry projects to produce a synthetic gas from coal or wring oil from shale rock, which were begun in earnest shortly after the embargo, sit idle.

"We had perceived the inevitable transformation to the more abundant resources well before the embargo," said A. I. Shrier, who directs special energy projects for Exxon Corp., the nation's largest oil company.

"We have followed shale and tar sands for 20 years. We bought coal reserves. What came instead was greater reserves in the Middle East and North Africa, which kept prices down."

That alternate fuels have not yet become competitive with Mideast oil was noted in June by Nicholas Sarkis, director of the Arab Petroleum Research Center, when he predicted that the oil exporting countries will raise their prices again later this year.

There are other problems and a look at them shows why alternative energy sources haven't developed more quickly.

—Consumer markets for new products, such as solar collectors or windmills, are undeveloped.

"What are the barriers in the way of establishing large-scale solar use?" Joseph Lindmayer, president of Solarex Corp., a leader in the development of solar cells, asked at a recent energy conference.

"We generally tend to think that what we need is a great technological break-through that tomorrow suddenly reduces the cost. I have slowly come to the conclusion that basically that is just not the case.

"I think that the real barriers are market development, user education, availability of capital and manpower."

For markets to function, buyers need to be aware of what is available. John M. Teem, who recently resigned as the government's chief of solar, geothermal and advanced energy systems, says there should be a greater federal role in stimulating the use of solar heating and cooling and the dissemination of information.

"I fear that without this stimulation, the private sector will not achieve the early commercial market development of solar energy which is needed," he said.

With enough buyers to support mass production, prices could come down. Lindmayer said solar cells, used almost exclusively for space projects just two years ago, have dropped to one-tenth the price since then as they have been put to use on earth.

"These changes are actually so dramatic that most individuals and organizations have not yet fully recognized this new situation," he said.

—The capital costs of some new energy forms are tremendous. (Capital is the money required to build or buy permanent plants or equipment.)

Some homeowners, for instance, could reduce their monthly utility bills by installing a rooftop solar collector to provide hot water and room heat.

But estimates of the cost of such collectors range from $4,400 to $8,000. It would take 10 to 20 years to pay for them with savings in utility bills, depending on whether they replace expensive electrical heating or cheaper oil or gas.

"Anyone buying electricity today and paying more than four or five cents a kilowatt hour is better off on economic grounds with a solar collector," Shrier says. "The problem is it has a large up-front cost. If you've got the money, that's fine. Most consumers don't."

—Industry faces enormous capital costs if it pursues the production of synthetic fuels.

Several coal-to-gas projects are in the planning stages, but such plants could cost as much as $800 million. And the gas they would produce would cost $3 to $5 per thousand cubic feet, compared with the current regulated price of 52 cents per thousand cubic feet of new, interstate gas.

A low-quality gas, called town gas, is produced in other nations and was produced in this country before the advent of natural gas pipelines.

"We hear a great deal of talk about the need to develop new technology for coal conversion," R. R. Breckenfeld of Shell Oil Co. said. "The real problem is not the availability of technology, but that the technology that is available is too expensive."

"Coal gasification has been practiced commercially for 125 to 150 years. Nearly 50 commercial gasifiers are operating today. One can hardly say that the technology is not available."

Several ventures that sprang up after the embargo to tap the tremendous reserves of shale oil beneath several Western states have also stalled under environmental and economic problems.

John McKinley, president of Texaco Inc., said recently that a plant to produce 100,000 barrels of oil a day from shale would cost between $1.5 billion and $2 billion and require the mining of 50 million tons of shale a year — five times the size of the largest coal mining operation in the country.

Its product would have to sell for $18 to $22 a barrel, compared with imported oil now costing $12 to $13 a barrel.

"It seems that as each year passes," McKinley said, "the possibility of oil shale making a real contribution moves two years forward."

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Near-normal temperatures are forecast Thursday for most of the country. Rain is due in the Northwest and showers are expected in the Dakotas. (AP Wirephoto Map)

By The Associated Press

It was mostly sunny and warm in North Carolina today.

However, scattered thunderstorms rumbled in the northwest mountains and on the south coast.

Highs ranged from the 70s in the mountains to near 90 on the lower coast. Those maximums-normal for early July—also will prevail Friday.

It will be sunny Friday except for a few thundershowers on the south coast. There is a chance of showers over across eastern North Carolina on Saturday.

Scattered showers fell over the state Wednesday. Skies were partly cloudy to cloudy much of the day, but by late afternoon they began to clear.

Highs Wednesday were in the low to mid 80s. Exceptions were the mountains and some coastal locations, where maximums remained in the 70s. Goldsboro was warmest at 86.

Rainfall during the 24 hours ended at 2 o'clock this morning was mostly light, and confined mainly to the eastern half of the state. The noticeable exceptions were along the south coast, where Cherry Point, Jacksonville and Wilmington had more than an inch of rain.

As skies became fair at night, temperatures cooled into the 50s in the mountains but ranged to around 70 along the south coast.

Patchy areas of fog developed early this morning.

N.J. Tornado Left Two Persons Hurt

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP) — A tornado has touched down in an industrial area of Hudson County, ripping walls and roofs from buildings and injuring a worker and a 14-year-old boy.

Linda Garretson, 27, of Jersey City, suffered head and arm injuries Wednesday when the roof collapsed at the C and M Envelope Corp. in Jersey City, where she worked. She was held overnight for observation at the Jersey City Medical Center.

Wayne Gibson, 14, of Bayonne, touched a dangling power line while he was looking at the damage in a railroad yard in Jersey City. He was knocked backwards and his heart stopped beating.

William Mullaney, a 42-year-old retired glazier who was with the boy, pushed the power line out of the boy's hand with a stick. He then began massaging the boy's chest.

Mullaney said after a few minutes the boy's heart began beating and he started to breathe slowly. The youth was taken to the medical center, where he was treated for electrical burns on his stomach. He was listed in satisfactory condition.

The tornado struck the industrial areas along the Hudson River just before noon and then dissipated quickly.

Iren Morello, who watched the tornado from her second floor apartment here, said, "It came so close to the fire escape I just froze. I couldn't move. I thought I was going to be like Dorothy in the Wizard of Oz. It got real quiet, like a vacuum, then the building shook." The New York-New Jersey metropolitan area is hit by a tornado about once a year, but the National Weather Service says the twisters are less destructive than the bigger ones in the Midwest and South.

Corn Crop Is One Of Best

RALEIGH (AP) — Agricultural leaders say North Carolina's corn crop promises to be one of the best in years.

"We've got the best corn crop that we've had in the 12 years I've been commissioner," said Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham. "I've driven throughout the area and without question the crop is excellent. We should have a record yield."

However, Graham noted that production costs are up this year. He also predicted there will be a shortage of railroad cars to transport the corn.

The state's corn acreage is 2.1 million, up 24 per cent from last year. It is the largest acreage since 1955. The production estimate is scheduled to be released July 12.

"I'm hoping there will be a big export demand for the crop since Europe has experienced a drought," Graham said.

"We're expecting a record yield in Wake," said Victor Lynn, Wake County agricultural extension agent. Lynn recalled that when the corn was planted in April the ground was dry.

More Women Share Farm Work, Management

Editor's note—In the view of some crusty old farmers it just ain't right. But it's a fact. More and more women are sharing the farm work, and the farm management, with their menfolk. But women's lib, it seems, has less to do with the development than power steering.

By DAVE BARTEL
Associated Press Writer
WICHITA, Kan. (AP) —

Emerging from the cattle pen, Jonny Scott kicked the dirt from her boots and brushed off her blue slacks.

"The fields are too muddy to work in, so I'm just helping my husband get things cleaned up a little," she said, the bright Kansas sunshine glinting from her sunglasses.

Cleaning cattle pens may seem a most unfeminine task, but Jonny Scott's labors on this spring day are a small indicator of the expanding roles women are playing down on the farm.

Mrs. Scott, a petite woman in her mid-30s, is a farmer's daughter and a farmer's wife. She also considers herself a farmer and a partner with her husband Norman, better known as Butch, in the family enterprise—1,000 acres of wheat, milo and a small cattle herd.

In her three decades from childhood to wife and mother of two teen-age girls, Mrs. Scott has been part of a slow revolution in which many farm women have moved from tending a garden and feeding the chickens to driving a tractor and sharing in the daily decisions of modern agriculture.

"I was one of five girls and we never went near the machinery," she says. "My mother never did field work. She had a big garden and some chickens, but her activities were centered around the home."

It's a different story for Jonny Scott, one of about 500,000 women helping produce the nation's food. She also is an emerging female farmer who is at home in the seat of a tractor as in her kitchen.

"I do some of the plowing and cultivating, help spread fertilizer and run a combine or truck during harvest," she says. "Planting, I don't do. Butch likes the rows straight as an arrow and the way I drive a tractor just doesn't do it."

She also is bookkeeper, cook, homemaker, seamstress and a kind of Jane-of-all-trades in the demanding world of farming and ranching.

The 1970 census indicated women made up about 10 per cent of the farm work force, but the U.S. Department of Labor estimates last year nearly 16 per cent of all farm workers were female.

"I don't think there is any doubt that women are taking a bigger role in agriculture these days," said Frank Carpenter, associate dean of the Kansas State University College of Agriculture.

Enrollment of women is up tremendously in the past five years and they're going into every field, from horticulture and animal science to agricultural economics and management.

But despite an enrollment boom, Carpenter says there continues to be a shortage of qualified women in major agribusiness firms.

"We can't fill the demand," he says. "Some companies come here just to interview women for their job openings."

Part of that may be because of affirmative action programs, but it's also because businesses have found women are doing an excellent job in places normally thought to be reserved for men.

In recent years, Kansas State has sent its women graduates to such jobs as hybrid hog research, agricultural chemical and fertilizer sales, riding fence for a large feedlot, and meat marketing specialist for the Kansas State Board of Agriculture.

Florence Dumler of Russell, Kans., assumed control of the family farm after the death of a husband.

A 54-year-old grandmother, she decided to continue farming with the help of her son, Carl, after her husband died in 1973. She farms 1,200 acres of wheat.

"I had always helped my husband," she says. "He always wanted me to work with him and be a full partner."

Mrs. Dumler is one of 100,000 women who own or manage a farm. Women farm managers remain a 6 per cent minority in the multibillion dollar business of agriculture, but Department of Labor statistics show their ranks have grown more than 30,000 in the past five years.

Mrs. Dumler was the first woman ever named to the Kansas Wheat Commission, an agency that supervises wheat research and promotion, and also the first woman to take a seat on the board of Great Plains Wheat Inc., a farmer's cooperative that develops foreign markets for American grain.

"Women are becoming more involved in all parts of agriculture," Mrs. Dumler said. "We've been active in agriculture for years but we haven't taken a leadership role. That's changing a little now and I think we'll see more of it in the future."

She concedes some resistance from both male and female colleagues, but nothing major. "I am a farmer. I own a farm, just like many men and like many other women. If you pay the taxes and buy the machinery, you're a farmer automatically. Whether you're a man or a woman has nothing to do with it."

Jonny Scott has similar sentiments.

"It's not a competitive thing for me; I don't feel I have to compete with Butch or prove something," Jonny Scott said. "I don't run things and I don't want to. Butch tells me what needs to be done and I do it."

Mrs. Dumler and Mrs. Scott say women's liberation isn't a force in the farm wife's expanding role. They say increased mechanization and a deepening shortage of skilled farm labor is the main reason.

"Twenty years ago it was physically impossible for most women to do field work because they didn't have the muscle to handle the machinery," Butch Scott said. "Now everything has power steering. The machinery is as easy to handle as the family car."

Bigger and more powerful machines also have displaced the full-time hired hand, but farmers like the Scotts still need help in the busy planting and harvesting seasons, and have trouble finding it.

"It's almost impossible to find good help anymore," he said. "But my wife is here all the time to run for a machinery part or help during the busy times. Without her, I'd have to find a hired hand to do it. She makes a big difference."

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, JULY 9, 1976

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day and evening when many changes can be in effect. You would be wise not to instigate them but to go along with them when they arise. These will come from other persons. You have the chance to make the decisions which are best for you.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Take time to find out what your position is regarding business and civic matters so you can handle everything more intelligently. Not a good day to discuss important matter with mate.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Listen to what a partner has to say about some mutual matter and think about it before coming to a decision. Avoid taking any risks in public matters or there could be trouble.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You have a seemingly difficult job to do, but if you study it well, you find you can handle it efficiently. Use tact with a cranky co-worker.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Take care you do not take any risks at this time. Do not take seriously some criticism from your mate and make a big issue of it.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Some situation at home has been troublesome but don't let it bother you. Involve yourself in something you enjoy doing. Don't jump into a new project which is just a flash in the pan. Be cautious.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Criticism of others could cause hard feelings. Take care in motion, driving or handling machines tonight. Do not overwork, either.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Arranging financial affairs better can bring you a greater abundance in the future. Make sure that bill is right before you pay it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't take your anger out on others just because you are out of sorts. Take time to improve appearance and then get busy adding to your present income. Find right new outlet.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You are wasting too much time on a problem that can be solved easily by studying the main factors of such. Then get busy on chores you have been postponing. Then relax tonight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A pal may be in a strange mood and inclined to argue, so don't take the bait. Try not to be forceful with others in order to gain your aims. Get busy at whatever is of a constructive nature.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Be careful where your good name is concerned, since it could come under a cloud of wrong actions. If someone criticizes your work, try to find out why. Coercion may be in back of the criticism.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Not a good day to get involved in a new undertaking or new surroundings. Wait for a better time to try something new. Find better ways to take care of chores.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those delightful persons who will be a problem-solver and should have the finest education possible. Success very likely in the fields of science, art and troubleshooting professions. Teach early to stay on the positive side of life and forget the negative.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

City, Businessmen Talk Buses

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

City officials met with members of the business community Wednesday to discuss the new Greenville transit venture and ways the city and business can benefit from a strong transit operation.

On hand for the informal luncheon meeting were members of the city staff, including the new transit manager Robert Tallo, as well as various business leaders and representatives of the Chamber of Commerce, East Carolina University, and county.

Mayor Percy Cox, in his invitation to the community leaders to attend the meeting, pointed out that starting late this month, the Greenville Area Transit System (GREAT) "will provide frequent transit service to all major shopping and institutional areas from many residential areas. Our recently completed transit survey indicates a strong demand to use the buses for shopping trips, and it is our intention to meet this demand."

Cox asked for the assistance of the business community in helping to make the new system a success.

Linda Hix, who has been involved in planning for the proposed system since initial studies were made to determine transit needs, told the gathering that three bus routes are planned initially, all involving Pitt Plaza and Evans Mall vicinity stops as well as two routes that include stops at the new hospital.

She said that three specific areas the transit system will hopefully deal with involve shopping, medical needs and social service needs.

City Planner John Schofield discussed the results of a transit needs study and survey and briefly mentioned various ideas that could be utilized in the promotion of the new system. He urged business leaders to explore ideas of tying in their sales promotions with use of the transit operation by the shopping public.

Schofield noted that the surveys generated a surprising number of responses from persons who desire transit opportunities to the downtown area of the city. He added that middle and higher income areas also responded more to the surveys than lower income neighborhoods.

The city planner said that the system will be a limited one initially that will progress ac-ording to the extent of use of the program. He said that efforts are not aimed at public awareness of the system and how local transit can be utilized.

Tallo explained that four Mercedes-Benz buses have been purchased by the city and will be outfitted with perimeter seating to accommodate 22 passengers.

The transit manager said the city is "hoping to be able to offer an alternative to the personal vehicle" and he encouraged local businesses to use the system when possible.

Tallo noted that a 25 cents fare will be utilized with one transfer provision per fare. Three days of free service is planned, beginning July 29 with regular service scheduled to get underway on Aug. 2.

According to Schofield, a series of newspaper, radio and television advertisements are scheduled soon to inform the public further as to routes and schedules as well as other details of the new system.

utilized in the training exercise. The 35 victims were transported to Pitt Memorial Hospital emergency room. The simulated disaster (tests) the skills of emergency medical technicians, law enforcement, and hospital staff. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Plan Initial Meeting Of World Trade Chapter

An organizational meeting to establish an Eastern North Carolina chapter of the N. C. World Trade Association will be held July 30 at East Carolina University.

Invitations have been sent to a large number of industrialists, businessmen, government and civic leaders who have expressed interest in such an organization first suggested by former Gov. Robert W. (Bob) Scott in a speech here. Scott proposed that such a center be headquartered here.

The invitations were sent by Col. Charles R. Blake on behalf of East Carolina University chancellor Leo W. Jenkins. Blake is assistant to the ECU chancellor.

"We are convinced that the need is great and that there is sufficient interest to move forward with our plans," Blake said.

"There is a great opportunity for many companies to add a new dimension to their business through foreign marketing," Blake said. "The most significant carriers to international trade are often psychological, relating to communication, language and procedure. A chapter of the N. C. World Trade Association can remove many of these obstacles and pave the way for new markets."

Blake said that representatives of the U. S. Department of Commerce, the N. C. World Trade Association and officers from the Triangle chapter in Raleigh will attend and "cover some of the general assistance which can be made available."

The meeting will provide opportunity to share ideas and "begin actions to form a strong organization," Blake said. "We envision an organization which will be meaningful to newcomers to the world market as well as to those who are currently exporting."

Meeting plans include a luncheon at the chancellor's home following the initial session.

Regional Grant

The Mid-East Commission has received notice of a Family Planning Grant Award in the amount of $278,051 from the North Carolina Department of Human Resources Division of Health Services.

The federal family planning project funds are used to continue and expand existing family planning programs in the local health departments of Beaufort, Bertie, Hertford, Martin and Pitt Counties.

In the Mid-East Region, the family planning program includes regional staff and nursing, clerical and outreach workers in the local public health departments. Local Departments of Social Services provide supportive social work assistance in local public health family planning clinics.

Dial-A-Teen Is Operating

The Dial-A-Teen Job Service Program for Greenville youth is now operating and has applicants for almost any type of job.

"Through this program it is hoped that young people who live in Greenville might be given the chance to use their summer vacations productively while gaining useful work experience," says Craig Hendrix, who's running the Program. "In order for this program to work, there must be jobs for these youths. Help yourself and the young people in your community by letting them do your yard work, lawn moving, babysitting, farm work, house cleaning, and the like."

To place a job order one may call 758-1976 Monday and Thursday from 10 a.m. to noon; Tuesday and Thursday from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. and Saturday from 9 a.m. to noon.

For further information, one may call Hendrix at 758-1976.

Spinal Seminar Set For ECU

Registration for a seminar workshop on spinal rehabilitation at East Carolina University will begin at 8 a.m. Saturday (July 10) at the Allied Health Auditorium of ECU's School of Allied Health, and Social Professions.

The seminar is open to all persons interested in rehabilitation management, such as physicians, physical therapists, occupational therapists, nurses, rehabilitation counselors students, aides and other allied health professionals.

Guest faculty person is Miss Ida Bromley, M.C.S.P., Superintendent Physiotherapist, Stoke Mandeville Hospital, Aylesbury, England.

Seville, Spain, boasts the largest Gothic church in the world, according to National Geographic.

CHILD KILLED IN FIRE—Bethel and Stokes firemen cool hot spots in the home of Mrs. Mary Coward after flames destroyed the rear portion of the home. The house located on highway 30 near Bethel was in flames when firemen arrived. Officials reported that Sharon Denise Coward, 13, was dead on arrival at Pitt

Memorial Hospital after she was pulled from a front bedroom of the house by Bethel Chief Delton Perry. Investigators said the child apparently died from smoke inhalation. Investigation into the cause of the 10:05 fire is continuing. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

West Plans Expand UN Debate On Israeli Rescue

By SERGE SCHEMANN
Associated Press Writer
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — American and other Western diplomats are going to try to expand the Security Council debate on Israel's rescue raid in Uganda into a broad condemnation of terrorism and hijacking.

The debate had been scheduled to begin today, but it was postponed until Friday afternoon to await the arrival of Uganda's Foreign Minister Juan Oris.

U.S. Ambassador William W. Scranton, back at his post after a good-will tour of Africa said the U.S. government feels strongly that the council's agenda should have wide scope.

African delegates who asked the Security Council to take up the Israeli rescue of more than 100 hijack hostages from Uganda have said they want to limit the debate to a condemnation of what they call Israel's "blatant aggression" against Uganda.

But some African diplomats indicated they were not opposed to broadening the debate into a forum on terrorism. From the outset, the Africans have made clear they called for the council meeting more out of bloc solidarity than out of sympathy for Ugandan President Idi Amin, an unpopular figure.

The United States and other Western countries have tried for years to get the United Nations to issue a strong condemnation of political terrorism and aerial hijacking. But resolutions of condemnation have always been blocked by Arab and Communist delegates who argued that Palestinian terrorism against Israel was a justifiable tactic in a struggle for national rights.

The Israelis are going to counterattack with the charge that Amin acted in complicity with the Palestinian and German terrorists who hijacked the Air France jetliner and demanded the release of 53 prisoners, 40 of them held in Israel.

"We believe the Ugandan government was part and parcel of this operation," Israel's ambassador to the United Nations, Chaim Herzog, said on the NBC Today show.

"It is quite clear they were accomplices," said Herzog.

"...We have a right and duty by international law to protect our citizens...as long as we do not overstay our welcome" or use excessive force, Herzog said.

American officials said the United States would veto any resolution condemning Israel.

The American Jewish Congress accused U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim of a "shocking partisan act" in terminating the Israeli raid a "serious violation" of Uganda's national sovereignty. The congress called on Waldheim to resign.

Waldheim made the comment in an interview with an Egyptian reporter in Cairo Monday. Later, a spokesman for the secretary-general said he was replying to a question about the legal aspect of the matter.

The Jewish congress said Waldheim's "rush to judgment in accusing Israel" and his "eagerness to appease the U.N. majority and abandon his proper role of neutrality and objectivity" disqualified him as secretary-general.

There was no comment from Waldheim.

Plan A Week Of Services

Week long services will begin on Friday at the Cedar Grove Missionary Baptist Church. On Friday at 7:30 p.m. the first event will be a monthly conference.

Sunday services are Church School at 9:45; meditation at 10:50; morning worship at 11 with Eldress Lottie Kee; and evening service at 7:30 p.m. with the pastor and congregation from Union Grove FWB Church providing the service.

A Christian Aid Society meeting will be held Monday at 7:30 p.m., a mid-week prayer service on Wednesday, July 14 at 7:30 p.m., and at 7:30 p.m., Thursday, July 15, a rehearsal will be held for the male chorus.

The Sunday morning service will be on observance of the 20th Woman's Day of the church. Special music will be performed by a combined community chorus. The guest speaker, Eldress Kee, is a native of Asheville with a Masters of Science Degree from N. C. Central University. She is presently a candidate for the Masters of Divinity Degree at Shaw University.

Rev. Kenneth Hammond, pastor and Rev. Leroy Adams, associate minister, invite the public to attend.

Blame Leak Of Nitrogen

RALEIGH (AP) — Saying it probably was a contributing factor in the formation of algae in the lower Chowan River, a state official has fined a Herford County fertilizer company for permitting nitrogen to seep into the river during a 12-day period in June.

W.E. Knight, director of the state division of environmental management, noted that the penalty against the Farmers Chemical Co. of Tunis, was $1,250 a day. He said he did not impose the maximum fine of $5,000 a day because there was no evidence of willful intent or negligence on the part of the company.

Page Benton, chief of the water quality section, had recommended the maximum penalty. The recommendation came after citizens had complained the seepage was polluting the river.

"In this particular case, there was no direct discharge, no pipe going into the river. The seepage resulted from dikes or storage ponds," Knight stated. He told a news conference the company has put 28 pumps into operation to intercept the seepage and pump it back.

Knight said the seepage was estimated at 500 to 600 pounds of nitrogen a day.

"It was likely a contributing factor to the growth of algae on the river," he said.

She's 83, And Pumping Gas

GRESHAM, Neb. (AP) — Sylvia Mickey, 83, is a grandmother who pumps gas 15 hours a day. She says she doesn't want to be like "old people who just sit and wait for the end."

"I'll keep going as long as I can," she says. Her two-pump gas station is managed by her son Lester.

She joined the work force while raising two children. In the 1920s, she sold periodical subscriptions. In the 1930s, she was a middleman in the chicken selling business. When her husband died in 1950, Mrs. Mickey took over their farm. At 74, she bought the gas station.

Today, she draws the line at patching tires and lifting car hoods.

Self-Defense Testified In Dupree Case

Eighth To Die Of Fire Burns

MARION, N.C. (AP) — The death toll from a fire which hit the McDowell County prison unit last week rose to eight today with the death of an inmate from Mount Airy, prison officials said.

The seventh victim, an inmate from Greensboro, died Wednesday.

Fulmer Rudidill, superintendent of the McDowell unit, said Archie Lee Williams, 23, died about 6 a.m. today at Mission Memorial Hospital. Rudidill said Williams was serving a 9- to 18-month sentence for misdemeanor temporary auto larceny.

Ronald Denny, 23, who was serving two years for larceny, died of burns Wednesday at Mission.

Four prisoners died outright in the fire, which destroyed a wing of the unit, and two succumbed later.

Prison officials are still investigating the fire, which they said was caused by 20 inmates setting their mattresses on fire to protest disciplinary actions. Twenty-three prisoners

 HENDERSON, N.C. (AP) — A white woman, Sandra Dupree, has testified in her murder trial that she fatally shot a black man in self defense after he had attacked her and her son. Other witnesses said there had been no struggle among them.

Mrs. Dupree, 34-year-old wife of a minister, said it was the first time in her life she had fired a pistol. She said she thought she had missed, and that after she had fired she and her 14-year-old son, Mark, jumped into her car and raced to their home, fearing the man, Harry Lee Dickens, 21, would be in pursuit. She said her 6-month-old daughter, Michelle, also was in the car.

"I was trying to get away from him," she testified Wednesday in Superior Court.

The shooting occurred in Scotland Neck. The trial has been moved to Henderson, another town in eastern North Carolina, after protest demonstrations by blacks in Scotland Neck.

Mrs. Dupree was the first person to testify for the defense. The prosecution rested its case after presenting three eyewitnesses who said there had been no struggle among Dickens, Mrs. Dupree or Mark.

Two sisters of Dickens and a neighbor testified that Mrs. Dupree shot Dickens March 11 as he was heading for his house.

Mrs. Dupree, her voice quivering on the verge of sobs, said she had gone into the Dickens neighborhood to check on her son the day Dickens was shot.

As she testified, the muted chanting of protesters could be heard through courthouse windows. About a dozen blacks marched in front of the courthouse carrying signs. One sign said, "Sandra Dupree must not go free."

Police blocked off the street in front of the courthouse. But no action was taken against demonstrators even though they did not have picketing permits as required by a city ordinance.

Mrs. Dupree testified that her son was in the Dickens neighborhood selling the weekly newspaper "Grit" the day of the shooting. She told the court she had planned to check on him as he made his rounds because he had been in a fight in another black neighborhood the previous week and she feared for his safety.

"I had great apprehension...and I picked up the gun from the shelf in the closet and dropped it in my pocketbook," she said.

Mrs. Dupree said she took her infant daughter with her and drove to check on her son. She said as she went down the street where Dickens lived, "I saw a black man holding my son down on the ground. I jumped out of the car and ran as hard as I could."

Mrs. Dupree haltingly said Dickens knocked her to the ground.

"Everything was black for a while. My ears was ringing...and I heard Mark say 'Leave my momma alone.' Then I got up again, and he knocked me back on the ground...he got me in a neck hold. He was holding me by the neck."

Dr. G.V. Byrum of Our Community Hospital in Scotland Neck testified today that he examined Mrs. Dupree after the incident.

He said her knees were scratched but he found no bruises or other evidence she had been injured. Byrum said Mrs. Dupree was complaining of pain in her neck when he saw her.

Mrs. Dupree testified that Dickens said, "I'm gonna kill you, I'm gonna kill you."

She said, "I was desperate. I reached in my purse and got hold of my gun."

She described Dickens as "wild" and beyond control and she said he cursed and threatened to kill her son. She said Dickens called her son a "white s.o.b."

I was no match for him physically; Mark was no match for him," she said. Mrs. Dupree said that when she saw her son being held on the ground, she slammed on the brakes of her car, throwing her infant daughter off the seat.

She said she left the baby on the floorboard and got out of the car, taking only her pocketbook.

The infant remained on the floorboard during the incident and the drive home, and was not taken out of the car until a neighbor noticed the child, Mrs. Dupree testified.

Buc Rally Falls Short Against 'Dogs'

BEATS TAG FOR SCORE — Atlanta first baseman Willie Montaner slides home to score for the Braves in the first inning of the National League game Wednesday night in Atlanta. Late with the tag is Pittsburgh catcher Manny Sanguillen. The Pirates defeated Atlanta, 9-7. (AP Wirephoto)

WILSON—Atlantic Christian rallied for five runs in the seventh inning, then stifled an East Carolina rally in the ninth to pull out a 9-8 Summer League victory over the Bucs last night. The victory by the Bulldogs snapped a three-game winning streak by the Pirates, dropping their record to 11-9. Atlantic Christian is now 8-16. Pete Conaty was charged with the loss, getting chased in the big Bulldog seventh. Jerry Hobgood got the win, although he needed help from John Wilder in the ninth to put out the last Pirate uprising. The Bucs outthrew the Bulldogs, 12-10, with Peter Paradossi leading the way with three. Sonny Wooten and Bobby Supel each added a pair. Hobgood helped his own cause with two hits, while Robin Rose and Darrell Jenkins also picked up a couple each. The Bulldogs drew first blood, getting a run in the third. Hobgood walked and was sacrificed up. Rose then singled in the run for the first ACC lead. East Carolina tied it up in the fourth with a run. Paradossi got a two out hit and moved up on a wild pitch. Supel singled him home and the Bucs were on the board. Atlantic Christian went back out with a run in its half of the fourth. Kevin Sutts doubled to open the inning and he came around when Wil Flowers also cracked out a double.

The Pirates tied it again in the fifth. Rick Koryda singled and was safe at second on an error on Robert Brinkley's infield grounder. Macon Moyer reached on a fielder's choice, and another error on the play let Koryda score. East Carolina took the lead in the sixth, scoring another run. Paradossi reached on a walk and moved up on a fielder's choice. Howard McCullough walked to load them up, and a sacrifice fly by Koryda brought the go-ahead run over, giving the Bucs a 3-2 edge. That held until the seventh, when the Bulldogs put on their rally that carried them to the lead. Hobgood led off with a single and Cloyce Wilson walked. With two down, Darrell Jenkins doubled, driving in both runners, returning ACC to the lead. Chuck Finklea walked, as did Kevin Sutts, loading the bases. Donnie Koontz singled in Jenkins, and a hit by Mike Stutts brought in the other two runs. East Carolina got another in the top of the eighth. Paradossi singled, moved up on a hit by Supel, and scored when McCullough's fielder's choice was errored. Atlantic Christian got two in the eighth, and that was the difference eventually. Hobgood singled and Robin Rose got a hit, moving Hobgood to third. Rose stole second, and an error on the play let Hobgood score. Jenkins reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Rose. The Pirates came back with four in the bottom of the inning, closing the gap to one, but they fell just short. Moyer opened up with a double and Wooten walked. Glenn Card singled to load them up, and Charlie

Overton Quits Charger Post

LITTLEFIELD — Mike Overton, head football coach at Ayden-Grifton for the past four years, has resigned. Overton's resignation took effect last week when he joined the North Carolina Wildlife Resources Commission. Overton came to Ayden-Grifton in 1971 from Elon College. He served as coach of the junior varsity football team that year, and as an assistant on the varsity. The following year he was elevated to the head coaching position, and during his four year career, he compiled a record of 29 wins, 10 losses and one tie. Tourney Postponed LITTLEFIELD — Last night's Area Babe Ruth Tournament at Ayden-Grifton High School was postponed because of wet grounds. The tournament will resume tonight with Greenville's 13-year-olds meeting Washington in a 6 p.m. game. The Greenville 14-15 will take on Pitt County in an 8 p.m. game. The tournament is scheduled to run through Saturday, with winners in each of the age bracket advancing into the next round.

Got Troubles? Have Sympathy For Snakebit Pair Of Pitchers

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON AP Sports Writer Think you've got troubles, pal? Spare a drop of sympathy for snakebit Andy Hassler and Bert Blyleven. Hassler made his debut for Kansas City and was sailing along with a three-hit 1-0 shut-out against the New York Yankees Wednesday night when shortstop Fred Patek and left fielder Hal McRae let a pop fly drop for a two-base error with one out in the eighth inning. Mickey Rivers singled home the unearned run, depriving Hassler of the victory, which would have been his first since April 29, 1975. In the interim, he lost a mere 17 in a row for the California Angels, just two shy of the American League record. The Royals won the game 2-1 but the victory went to reliever Mark Littell and Hassler's unenviable streak is still intact. On June 21, Blyleven was the Texas starter and the Rangers were shut out for nine innings. On June 26, the same thing happened. Both times, however, Blyleven emerged a 1-0 victor in 10 innings. But on July 2, the Rangers were again blanked for nine innings and this time Blyleven was nicked for a run and dropped a 1-0 heart-breaker. Wednesday night, they finally got him a run in regulation time against Detroit, but it came in the bottom of the ninth. Too late. Two Tiger runs in the top of the eighth made him a 2-1 loser. Elsewhere, the Chicago White Sox defeated the Boston Red Sox 6-3 in 10 innings, the California Angels blanked the Cleveland Indians 2-0, the Oakland A's downed the Baltimore Orioles 5-3 and the Minnesota Twins trimmed the Milwaukee Brewers 9-2. Frank White opened the Royals' ninth with a single off Catfish Hunter. One out later he stole second and continued to third when the throw got away from rookie shortstop Mickey Klutts. Making his major league debut, Amos Otis allowed with a sacrifice fly. Hal McRae homered in the eighth for Kansas City's first run. Tigers 2, Rangers 1 Pinch hitter Dan Meyer singled to open the Tigers' eighth in a scoreless game and Ron LeFlore's sacrifice bunt was booted by first baseman Mike Hargrove. Blyleven then hit Tom Verzyer and Ben Oglivie to force one run across before Rusty Staub's sacrifice fly drove in what proved to be the winner. "He can't go through his whole career with this happening to him," moaned Texas Manager Frank Lucchesi. "He just can't. We didn't even threaten for a while and this was against Dave Lemanczyk, with a five-something ERA." White Sox 6, Red Sox 3 Jim Essian drove in the tie-breaking run with a two-out single in the 10th inning and Bucky Dent followed with a two-run single. Chicago starter Bart Johnson earned his fourth consecutive victory by pitching the first nine innings although Boston tied the score with two out in the ninth on Dwight Evans' run-scoring single. Angels 2, Indians 0 Sore-armed Nolan Ryan blanked Cleveland on five hits for his 26th career shutout and struck out 10 while Bobby Bonds took care of the offense with a homer and run-scoring double. A's 5, Orioles 3 Sal Bando drove in two runs with a single and a sacrifice fly while ex-Oriole Paul Mitchell gained the victory with relief help from Rollie Fingers in the seventh. The A's broke a 1-1 tie with three runs in the fifth inning on consecutive singles by Bert Campaneris, Don Baylor, Joe Rudi, Bando and Gene Tenace. Twins 8, Brewers 2 Mike Cabbage's first home run of the season, a grand slam, capped a five-run eighth inning that broke open a tight game. Bill Singer was the winner, with help from Bill Campbell in the eighth.

Wilson In 3-0 Triumph

Darvis Simnos pitched Wilson to a 3-0, three-hit shutout of Greenville last night to take their best-of-three series, 2-0, and eliminate Greenville from further American Legion play. Wilson got all it needed picking up a run in the first. Donald Ellis walked and scored when Mitch Barnes reached on an error. A walk in the second led to another Wilson run as Michael Ward drew the pass and later scored on a bases-loaded walk to Barnes. Randy Davis scored on a bases loaded walk in the eighth finishing the Wilson scoring. Greenville had only one threat putting two men on with two out in the fourth. Greenville got only three hits, struck out five times and walked twice. Wilson 110 000 010-3 3 2 Greenville 000 000 000-0 3 5

Phillies Drop Fourth In A Row

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer
Manager Danny Ozark believes his Philadelphia Phillies are not tense — they're over-relaxed.

"I don't know what you call it," said Ozark. "I'm not talking about the entire team, but some guys are just over-relaxed. We're just not making the defensive plays we did in the past."

The Phils, leading the National League East Division by eight games, suffered their fourth straight defeat Wednesday, dropping a 6-5 verdict to the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"There's no excuse," said second baseman Dave Cash, the unofficial captain of the Phils. "We've just not been playing good baseball."

In other NL games Wednesday, the Chicago Cubs blanked San Diego 10-0, the New York Mets blasted Houston 12-4, Pittsburgh topped Atlanta 9-7, Cincinnati edged Montreal 4-3, and San Francisco nipped St. Louis 3-2.

Philadelphia built a 5-2 lead after five innings, largely on Garry Maddox' two doubles and four runs batted in. But Ron Cey led off the Dodgers' sixth with a home run and in the seventh Los Angeles scored three runs, the winning tally coming home on Mike Schmidt's second two-base error of the game.

Pirates 9, Braves 7
Manny Sanguillen's first homer of the season helped power Pittsburgh past Atlanta, whose late-inning explosion fell short.

Frank Taveras and Rennie Stennett each batted in a pair of runs for the Pirates, while Jim Wynn had three hits for the Braves, including his 11th homer of the season.

Cubs 10, Padres 0
The Chicago Cubs' pitching staff, which entered the game with the worst earned run average in baseball, hurled its third straight shutout, ran its scoreless streak to 29 innings and haven't given up an earned run in 35 innings.

While Rich Reuschel, 8-6, limited the Padres to just four hits while walking one and striking out four, Manny Trillo's three-home homer highlighted a five-run third inning explosion for Chicago.

Giants 3, Cardinals 2
Darrell Evans' leadoff homer in the top of the ninth carried

San Francisco to its victory over St. Louis. The victory went to Gary Lavelle, 4-4, who relieved John Montefusco when the Giants starter developed a blister on his right middle finger.

Montefusco, who has been named to the NL All-Star team, said he ripped open the same finger June 26.

The San Francisco right-hander has failed to gain a victory in his last five starts.

Mets 12, Astros 4
New York battered four Houston pitchers for 20 hits, including a double and single by John Milner, to post its 11th victory in 14 games. The Mets wrapped up the contest early with two runs in the first and four in the second.

Jerry Koonsman, 9-6, scattered 10 Houston hits over the first eight innings before Ken Sanders nailed down the victory by working the ninth.

Reds 4, Expos 3
Cincinnati rallied for three runs in the ninth to topple Montreal and complete a sweep of their three-game series.

Joe Morgan and Dan Driessen led off the ninth with singles and Cesar Geronimo tied the game with a triple to right center. Mike Lum's sacrifice fly scored Geronimo with the winning run.

Burned Greens Cause Americans To Anguish

By MIKE RECHT
SOUTHPORT, England (AP) — In a British heatwave you can't sleep, you can't keep cool, you can't get ice — gad sir, you can't even keep greens properly.

So has run the lament of some of the world's top golfers after surveying the parched straw-colored fairways and burned greens on the Royal Birkdale course, where the 105th British Open is being played.

A trio of American stars — Jack Nicklaus, Johnny Miller and Tom Weiskopf — sparked the controversy about whether the Birkdale greens were in as good a shape as they should be for this type of tournament.

Hale Irwin did not comment.

Nicklaus struggled home with a 74, Weiskopf a 73 and Miller a 72 in Wednesday's opening round. Irwin also had a 74. All still were well within range of surprise leaders Norio Suzuki of Japan, Severiano Ballesteros of Spain and Christy O'Connor Jr. of Ireland, each in at 69.

But the American group felt they deserved a better fate were it not for the greens.

"I thought I putted pretty well, but you never could tell what the ball was going to do," said Nicklaus. "Every green was a different pace, and that really was the problem. I hit some good putts and then they caught a bit of dry stuff and the ball would run past the hole or off the green."

Weiskopf, perhaps, was the most critical.

"I have not asked why the greens are like this — I am not an expert on greens," he said. "I just play tournaments. But I just don't agree with the excuses, because of what I have experienced in other countries."

"In national tournaments, where the temperatures are as high or higher, and where the greens are superb, it seems that there is a lack of knowledge how to deal with them here in the present conditions," Weiskopf continued.

"It was most frustrating to play — when did all the 60s take place? In the morning when the greens were in better condition."

Douglas Pate, the head groundskeeper, felt there was little more that could be done than what already had been done — watering the grass all night as soon as play ends each day.

Nicklaus, Miller and Weiskopf were to get an earlier crack at the greens on the second round as the order of play was changed.

Tom Kite, on the other hand, was to go out in the afternoon after producing the best score by an American, a 70. That tied him with Brian Barnes of Scotland and Jack Newton of Australia. The only others to break par among the 155 golfers from throughout the world were American Bill Brask, John Fourie of South Africa and Graham Marsh of Australia. They shot 71s.

Carew Knocks Yas Off Team

NEW YORK (AP) — In the battle between longtime All-Stars Rod Carew and Carl Yastrzemski, someone had to give. It was Yastrzemski.

Carew, a fixture at second base for the American League All-Star team the past nine years, had kept second baseman Bobby Grich of Baltimore on the also-ran list.

Now he's doing the same thing to Yastrzemski, another nine-time All-Star veteran.

Carew, the AL's top hitter the past four years, moved from second base to first base this year, and when the All-Star results were announced Wednesday by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's office, Boston's Yastrzemski was off the team.

Carew, of Minnesota, who now has made the AL's starting team each year he has been in the major leagues, collected 1,770,998 votes. Yastrzemski received 1,403,557 votes.

Catcher Thurman Munson of the New York Yankees joined Carew as the only All-Star repeater on the AL's starting team, which will face the National League All-Stars Tuesday night at Philadelphia. The AL has lost 12 of the last 13 mid-season games, including last year's 6-3 decision.

Munson beat out another Boston player, Carlton Fisk, in a close battle of previous All-Star performers. Munson is the All-Star catcher for the second year in a row. Munson and shortstop Toby Harrah of the Texas Rangers lead the AL starters in home runs, each with eight.

The rest of the starters are first-time electees, including outfielder Fred Lynn of Boston, the AL's Most Valuable Player and Rookie of the Year in 1975.

The remainder of the team includes third baseman George Brett of Kansas City, Grich, Harrah, and Detroit outfielders Ron LeFlore and Rusty Staub.

Grich, in his sixth major league season, beat out Yankees second baseman Willie Randolph, the first rookie ever listed on the All-Star ballot. Grich, who is batting .282 — the lowest of the AL starters — received 2,043,904 votes to 1,582,156 for Randolph.

Brett, leading the league with a .356 average, was an easy winner at third base, polling 1,873,481 votes to 1,315,602 for Don Money of Milwaukee.

The balloting at shortstop was much closer, with Harrah beating out Mark Belanger of Baltimore, 1,481,346 to 1,233,755.

Lynn, who is batting .313 with five homers and 31 runs batted in, topped the AL balloting, receiving 2,953,664 votes.

LeFlore, who had a 30-game hitting streak earlier in the year, was second in the outfield balloting with 1,911,335 votes. He also ranks second in hitting on the team, with a .332 average.

Staub, a five-time National League All-Star selection, made the AL squad in his first season in the league. He had 1,573,703 votes and was followed in the balloting by Mickey Rivers of the Yankees, 1,432,412, and Amos Otis of Kansas City, 1,431,688.

Boston's Darrell Johnson, AL manager, will name his reserves on Friday.

White water canoeists will be required to carry personal flotation devices beginning Oct. 1, 1977, under a U.S. Coast Guard requirement.

Five Reds On National List

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Morgan, baseball's top vote getter, joined four of his fellow teammates from the Cincinnati Reds in gaining starting berths on the National League's All-Star team, Commissioner Bowie Kuhn announced today.

Morgan, the powerful but pint-sized second baseman, will share the NL's infield starting assignment with two teammates, third baseman Pete Rose and shortstop Dave Concepcion. Catcher Johnny Bench and outfielder George Foster also will represent Cincinnati on the NL's starting team.

Steve Garvey of Los Angeles beat Cincinnati's Tony Perez in the first base balloting to prevent the world champion Reds from hogging the entire NL infield for the 47th midsummer classic, scheduled for Tuesday night at Philadelphia.

The power-laden outfield for the National Leaguers includes Foster, Greg Luzinski of Philadelphia and Dave Kingman of the New York Mets.

Fans cast a record 8,370,145 ballots this year, surpassing last year's total of 7,357,811.

Morgan, the NL Most Valuable Player in 1975, led both leagues in total votes, piling up 3,079,811. Morgan, an All-Star starter for the fifth year in the row, far outdistanced second baseman Dave Cash of Philadelphia, who had 2,194,627 votes. Morgan is batting .333 with 14 home runs and 60 runs batted in.

Rose made the All-Star squad as a third baseman for the first time in his career.

Rose, now a 10-time All-Star selection after beating Philadelphia third baseman Mike Schmidt by a 2,591,650-1,939,641 count, previously represented the NL at second base, left field and right field. Rose is batting .334 with six home runs and 38 RBI.

Concepcion, who made his first All-Star team last year, survived the closest battle, with a 2,130,721-1,941,092 spread over Philadelphia's Larry Bowa. Concepcion's six homers matches Rose for the lowest total among NL starters. He is batting .270 with 33 RBI.

Garvey, who was named the outstanding player in the NL's 6-3 victory last year, is batting .301 with seven homers and 44 RBI.

Luzinski, with a .310 batting average, 12 homers and 54 RBI, led the NL outfielders in the balloting with 1,946,379 votes, beating out first-time starter Foster, who leads the majors in RBI with 69. Foster, who has hit 17 homers while batting .334, amassed 1,482,045 votes.

Kingman, the major league home run leader with 27, finished with 1,415,050 votes in making the team for the first time.

Bench was named the NL catcher for the eighth straight year. He is batting .234—lowest on the squad, with nine homers and 44 RBI.

Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson will name his reserves on Friday. He previously selected an eight-man pitching staff that included Andy Messersmith of Atlanta. But because of an injury, Messersmith was replaced by Dick Ruthven of Atlanta.

Hectic Day Faces Queen

By FRANCES LEWINE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Britain's Queen Elizabeth II faced a hectic day that includes a variety of diplomatic duties, lunch at the Capitol and a reception and dinner at her country's Embassy.

The queen and Prince Philip were to spend most of the day meeting American dignitaries.

The royal couple was to dine with congressmen at a Capitol luncheon, to view the Magna Carta on loan from England at the Rotunda and to see British artworks on display in Washington.

In addition, the queen was scheduled to greet her Embassy personnel and to accept a key to the federal city.

It was the third day of a week-long visit in honor of the United States' 200th birthday and was to be highlighted by a major social event — a reception and dinner for President and Mrs. Ford at the British Embassy.

The Fords hosted a state banquet Wednesday night, the most glamorous and the largest they have given in the White House.

Mrs. Ford had said she wanted the party to be special because, among the world's queens, she considered Elizabeth to be "The Queen." The white-tie dinner under a white canopy in the White House rose garden was a major effort to impress the visiting monarch.

The 224 guests included some of the United States' wealthiest and most influential businessmen and the top officials of the government. Also in attendance were former First Lady Lady Bird Johnson, the 92-year-old Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, daughter of President Theodore Roosevelt, and entertainment and sports personalities.

After dining on Maine lobster and saddle of veal, the President and the queen exchanged toasts and clinked champagne glasses.

"In our third century, I know the United Kingdom will be on our side and the United States will be on your side," Ford told the queen. He said the continuing relationship between the two countries was "a reassuring symbol of our determination to continue the defense of freedom."

The queen wore a diamond tiara, necklace, earrings and bracelet with the blue sash of the British Order of the Garter on her striking yellow dress.

In her return toast, she noted that the times are uncertain. But, she said, "one thing is certain and that is the strength and permanence of Anglo-American friendship. May it long continue to flourish for the sake of both our countries and for the greater good of mankind."

The royal couple stayed at the party until 12:40 a.m., leaving after entertainment that included comedian Bob Hope and dancing in the state dining room. The Fords remained another hour.

Crowned At Convention

Miss Elaine Congleton was crown Miss Y.P.C.L. at the Young People Christian League Convention of the Northeast Conference "B" Division U.A.F.W.B. which was held at Zion Temple F.W.B. Church in Pantego recently.

Thirty churches of the conference had an opportunity to be represented with a queen in the contest.

Miss Congleton is a member of Mt. Calvary F.W.B. Church and is active in the local Y.P.C.L. She teaches Sunday School and is a member of the Junior Choir.

She will represent Mt. Calvary Church and the Y.P.C.L. Convention during the Annual Northeast Conference "B" to be held in October at the Good Hope F.W.B. Church in Winterville.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Congleton of Greenville.

Six Cars In 2 Accidents

An estimated $4,850 property damage resulted from two collisions investigated yesterday by Greenville Police.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from an 8:46 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Tenth Street and River Bluff Drive involving four vehicles.

Drivers of the cars were identified as Jeanette Hemby of Route 1, Grimesland; Lois Tucker Edwards of Simpson; Florence Fulfor Moore of 201 Foxhaven Rd. and Ann Sutton Daniel of River Bluff Apts.

Investigators, who charged Mrs. Moore with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety, estimated damage at $1,000 to the Hemby vehicle, $1,800 to the Edwards car, $550 to the Moore auto and $100 to the Daniel vehicle.

Bobby William Carter of Route 2, Richlands was charged with failing to stop for a red light following investigation of an 8:18 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Fifth and Tenth Streets.

Police said the Carter car collided with an auto operated by Richard Allan Hawkins of 2602B East Third St., causing an estimated $800 damage to the Carter car and $400 damage to the Hawkins vehicle.

Lifeline Computers Help To Ease Organ Shortage

By DALE SINGER
ST. LOUIS (UPI) — A man dies in a hospital emergency room, and a card in his wallet says he wants to donate his organs for transplants and research.

A quick computer check reveals details of his medical history, and within hours the badly needed organs are being rushed to operating rooms and laboratories to give new life and new hope.

Such a scenario is not off in the future. It is unfolding now at the Washington University Medical Center, where a pilot project called Lifeline uses computer technology to help relieve a critical shortage of donor organs.

The project now involves employees at the medical center and their families, but organizers are already making preliminary plans to extend it to other area hospitals and, eventually, nationwide.

Dr. Charles B. Anderson, a medical director of Lifeline, said a major aim of the program is educating Americans and changing their attitudes about donating organs.

"If your neighbor comes up to you and says, 'My daughter is dying, please donate some blood,' public reaction would be pretty negative if you refuse," he said in an interview.

"We'd like people to view donating organs like they view donating blood. We'd like American attitudes to be like those in the Scandinavian countries, where everyone is automatically considered to be an organ donor."

Many common objections to donating organs have no basis in fact, Anderson said. Bodies of donors can still be used for open-casket funerals, if the family wishes, and major religious groups do not object to the removal of organs that can save or improve the lives of others.

Lifeline donors sign up to donate all of any of a number of organs — eyes, kidneys, skin, bone and bone marrow, pancreas, heart and others. Some would be used for direct transplants, others for research, such as the pancreas for work toward a cure for diabetes.

Speed is essential, Anderson said, noting that even though some organs, such as bone chips, can be frozen and stored for long periods, they must be removed from the body quickly after death.

"If you try to process a will and say you want to donate your eyes, kidneys or whatever," he said, "by the time that will is processed you're long under the ground and your organs can't be used."

Lifeline will help tie together the efforts of many groups who have helped pioneer transplants of individual organs, Anderson said. Everyone will benefit from the centralized computer listings.

The public is becoming used to the idea of transplants, he said, citing opinion polls to show that as much as 70 per cent of the American public would donate organs if asked. There is no shortage of recipients. The problem has been getting the two groups together.

Anderson, who is most involved in kidney transplants, said that "right now it's catch as catch can" as far as matching kidney donors and recipients.

Lifeline, which is free both to donor and recipient, estimates that more than 200 patients in the St. Louis area awaited kidney transplants last year, but only 59 cadaver kidneys were harvested.

Participation in Lifeline is strictly voluntary and can be rescinded by a phone call if a donor changes his mind.

Anderson also said that doctors even if they went against the would yield to a family's patient's wishes expressed objections to organ donations, before death.

Terminal patients at the medical center may also be approached as possible donors.

but Anderson said the emphasis is on signing up donors while they are healthy.

"When you're healthy and can think about death, you're more likely to say, 'Yes, I'd like to donate my organs,'" he said. "It prevents the awkward position of having to decide the question under trying circumstances."

Hamner Claims Credit For Novelistic Series

By JERRY BUCK
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Earl Hamner says he doesn't understand why "Rich Man, Poor Man" is getting all the credit for introducing the novelistic technique to television. "We've been doing that on 'The Waltons' since we've been on the air," said Hamner, whose soft Piedmont accent is familiar as the narrator. "Although each episode is self-contained, it's been like a chapter in a novel."

At the beginning of each season, Hamner plots the story like a novel for the guidance of writers. Major story developments, which will carry from episode to episode, are outlined. He broadly sketches out what directions each character will take.

For the first time since it premiered four years ago, "The Waltons" is meeting stiff opposition in the ratings from ABC's "Welcome Back, Kotter" and "Barney Miller." But Hamner contends the show hasn't been hurt and is still CBS' highest-rated hour-long show and second-over-all only to "The $6 Million Man."

Hamner works in a spacious office where one wall of sketches, paintings and photographs from the show and his home in Virginia reflects the blend of fiction and fact.

"In the beginning I didn't think much about growth," he said. "It's just that the children have grown so rapidly. They're not the Walton kids any more but the Walton young people."

It was the necessity of keeping up with the growing children, as well as the fact that Hamner has his own family's history to draw on, that turned the series toward a novelistic approach.

Hamner, of course, takes dramatic license and warps time. For instance, John-Boy will publish his first novel at the age of 20, while Hamner didn't achieve that until he was 29. Jim-Bob adopts a peacock at the age of 13. Hamner's own brother Jim didn't come by the peacock until he was in his 30s.

In the fall season, the year will be 1937 and the family will continue to struggle against the effects of the Depression.

"What they don't know is that World War II is ahead of them," Hamner said. "In my family's case, five children went into the service. In some ways a greater struggle lies ahead. "I'd like the show to last long enough to get into the war years. I'd like to show what happens under the stress of war."

When the series does end, Hamner plans to return to writing books, such as the two that inspired the series, "Spencer's Mountain" and "The Homecoming."

Opening lead: Five of ♣

The anchor pair in the U.S. Bermuda Bowl victory at the recent World Championships held in Monte Carlo were Billy Eisenberg and Fred Hamilton, both now living in Los Angeles. Throughout the gruelling tournament they won many points with their fine card play. This hand, from a qualifying round match against Brazil, shows their ability to profit from inexact declarer play.

The auction in the two rooms was identical, and so was the play to the first few tricks. After winning the opening spade lead with the queen, declarer immediately played ace of clubs and another, the queen losing to the king. At this point, the Brazilian East returned a spade, and declarer was in charge. He won the dummy and forced out the ten of clubs. When East returned a heart, declarer played the jack, then took a diamond finesse for his ninth trick.

Fred Hamilton found a more aggressive defense when he held the East cards. After winning the king of clubs, he immediately shifted to a low heart. Declarer thought about this for a while, then went wrong when he elected to play low from his hand. West, Eisenberg, won the ten of hearts and exited with a diamond to the nine. The jack of diamonds was covered by the king and won by the ace. Declarer could still have made his contract by now establishing dummy's clubs but, instead, he elected to cash his spades and diamonds before exiting with a diamond. West won, cashed a winning spade (he had discarded one on the second round of clubs), and then put his partner in with the ace of hearts, allowing East to take his high club for a two-trick set.

Thus, the U.S. scored 600 in one room and 200 in the other for a total of 800 points, which translated into a 13 International Match Point pick-up for the Americans.

No New Death Penalty Law For N.C. In '76

RALEIGH (AP) — It will be January at least before North Carolina has a new death penalty law. Gov. Jim Holshouser, Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt and House Speaker James C. Green have stated they do not see the need of calling a special session of the General Assembly to re-write the death penalty law which the U.S. Supreme Court invalidated last Friday.

Hunt and Green, who favor the death penalty, said the regular legislative session which convenes in January would be the proper forum to consider new legislation.

"I do not believe a special session is needed and we can deal with this at the next legislative session," Hunt, who presides over the Senate, said Wednesday.

Holshouser, who has been attending the National Governors Conference in Hershey, Pa., has said he does not expect to call a special session. The governor opposed the death penalty when he was in the legislature.

In addition to a call by the governor, a special session can be convened on a petition signed by three-fifths of the legislators, but there was no evidence a petition was being considered.

"I've had no indication from any member they plan such a move," said Green. He had said earlier "Most people would agree the 77 session could address the issue."

The question of a special session was raised in the wake of the Supreme Court's ruling that the North Carolina law making capital punishment mandatory for convictions of first degree murder and first degree rape was unconstitutional. The court upheld capital punishment laws of other states which give judges or jurors some leeway in deciding on the death penalty.

Until a new law is passed, persons convicted of capital crimes in North Carolina will face life imprisonment.

WASHINGTON (AP) — North Carolina congressmen are relatively free from personal debt this election year. Official reports for 1975 show that eight of the 11 representatives own substantial amounts of stock.

Only three reported sizable outstanding loans. Rep. Charles Rose listed three debts of $10,000 or more. Reps. Stephen Neal and W.G. Hefner each listed one such debt.

Process Reduces Big Volumes

By C. G. McDANIEL
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — Hefty coffee-table books become almost pocket-size with a new method of book production being introduced by the University of Chicago Press.

An official compares the development with the change that came about in production of recordings with the introduction of long-playing records in 1948.

It is called text-fiche. Fiche is a French word meaning index card.

Illustrations for books produced with text-fiche are included in a pocket inside the cover of the book on 4-by-6-inch color transparencies. Each fiche can hold 84 individual illustrations.

These are placed in a viewer, which is common equipment in most libraries, and the reader can see the blown-up illustration while reading the text.

Howard M. Levin, assistant director of the press, and Wendy Strothman, an editor, writing about text-fiche, said "it can release vast amounts of cultural, historic, and scientific visual resources" which previously could not be published.

Levin said in an interview that a text-fiche book on archeology has 1,000 illustrations and weighs only 6 1/2 ounces, while a comparable book, about quilts, published in the usual manner with only 460 pictures, weighs 3 1/2 pounds.

The cost is significantly lower, too, he pointed out.

Miss Strothman said the press' new book on the Phillips art collection in Washington could not be published in one volume except by the text-fiche method.

It includes 419 color pictures. As slides, these alone would cost more than $400, she said.

Machines for viewing fiche can also be used to project individual pictures on a screen across a room, so the illustrations tions may also be used with a class of students.

The machines used in schools and libraries cost $200 to $250, but a pocket-size hand viewer costing about $3 also is available, so the text-fiche books can be used at home.

Levin pointed out that museums are able to display only a fraction of the artifacts and pictures they own, so many are not seen by the public. There are 5,000 museums in the United States and Canada alone.

Text-fiche will make possible the publication of extensively illustrated books of museum collections and at the same time make them accessible to people who might not be able to go to museums, he said.

Miss Strothman added that many museums put together temporary exhibitions, which later are dismantled. This bookmaking process can provide a permanent record of the exhibition, and also make it accessible to more people, she noted.

Book publishers must use large formats to preserve the detail of illustrations, and color reproduction seldom is faithful to the original, she said.

The first of these problems is eliminated by text-fiche, she said, and the color transparencies are truer to originals than color plates used in printing.

With the same set of illustrations on fiche, it is also possible to publish a number of editions for different audiences—foreign language, elementary and high school, academic.

Some problems remain to be solved. Levin said the color has been improved on the fiche, but still needs some work. The transparency also is subject to scratching and fading.

But he pointed out that a new fiche can be ordered at a reasonable price without the necessity of having to buy a new book.

NEW METHOD—Wendy Strothman, a University of Chicago Press editor, holds a microfiche, while Howard Levin, assistant director of the press, looks at a blown-up view of a segment. The press is introducing a new book production process, called text-fiche, that will make possible publication of extensively illustrated books through the use of small transparencies that are enlarged in a viewer.

Cemeteries Helpful In School Study Projects

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — After his class visited a local cemetery recently, Julian Shanks, 12, decided to do some research into the Civil, Spanish-American and two World Wars.

His study was prompted by the military markers at the graves of men who had fought in those battles.

Two other youngsters made rubbings of gravestones for an art class while Cheryl Rogers, 12, looked into the history of families buried in the same cemetery.

The students' projects were part of "Operation Cemetery" at the E. Washington Rhodes Middle School in north Philadelphia.

Dr. Edward Stranix, administrator at Rhodes, first thought of using cemeteries as outdoor classrooms for inner city children about three years ago.

He obtained a $3,000 grant from the U.S. Office of Education for the program. The grant, which was allocated under the agency's Project KARE (Knowledgeable Action to Restore the Environment), paid for the publication of a workbook that suggests learning projects to be conducted in cemeteries.

The idea has been picked up by dozens of other schools throughout the United States and Canada.

"Most people think that environmental studies can be conducted only in suburban or rural areas — in woods and forests," Stranix says. He sees cemeteries as perfect outdoor classroom-laboratories.

"The cemetery is a safe, open and available area for making discoveries," Stranix says. "A youngster can catch toads, collect rocks and observe butterflies that aren't to be found on city streets."

Stranix began the program during the 1973-74 school year with 30 fifth and sixth graders. Now 80 per cent of the Rhodes faculty are using the cemetery program in the regular curriculum.

Stranix notes the program is no substitute for the regular classroom, but he says it does get students interested in learning.

Jacob Hoffman, Rhodes principal, says "Operation Cemetery" proves that "everything good doesn't have to cost money." He said once youngsters get interested in a subject they will be more likely to take it back to the classrooms and learn more.

Julian Shanks is one student who did.

Julian admitted he was at first "a little scared" when his teacher said the class would be visiting three local cemeteries. Now, Julian thinks the cemetery is a "very nice place to go learn about nature and to study math and science and social studies."

Stranix notes the program is no substitute for the regular classroom, but he says it does get students interested in learning.

Starting Practice At Greene Center

WALSTONBURG — Dr. Clement H. Block has started his medical practice at Greene County Health Care's Walstonburg Health Center.

Dr. Block and other members of Health Care's medical staff are seeing patients at the Walstonburg Health Center and will be seeing patients at the Hookerton Health Center when it opens later this month.

A Louisville, Ky. native, Dr. Block is a graduate of the Vanderbilt Medical School in Nashville and has had two years of specialty training in internal medicine at the Nashville Veterans Administration Hospital.

"Both for myself and my family, I am very happy and excited about being here. Health Care's program offers me the opportunity to practice family style medicine, which I am very interested in and which I see as the cornerstone of optimal medical care. I am looking forward to working with the other medical and health professionals in the area in serving the needs of the people in this area."

During the past week Dr. Block has been working with Dr. Earl Trevathan of Greenville Pediatric Services and this week will work with Dr. Ed Beddingfield and Dr. John McCain and other physicians at the Wilson Clinic. This work is being conducted toward the goal of providing better referral and consultative relationships with area physicians.

Services are available at the Walstonburg Health Center Mondays and Thursdays from 9 a.m. to 7:30 p.m., Tuesdays and Wednesdays from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., Fridays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., and Saturdays from 9 a.m. to noon. Appointments may be made by calling 747-2504, 753-4613, or 237-5972.

Selected To Report Title III Program

Ayden Grammar School and Farmville Middle School's Training for Living and Learning Centers, both part of a Title III program, were selected to present information about their programs at the National Elementary Counselor's Conference, University of Maine, at Orno, Maine last week.

Dr. Richard Schumacher, of the N. C. Department of Public Instruction, Elementary Counselor Consultant, introduced the counseling program to the group of educators.

Mrs. Kathryn Lewis, Pupil Personnel Director of Pitt County Schools and director of the Title III program, led in presenting the program. Elaine King, Counselor Coordinator for Ayden Grammar School and Sarah Orgel, Counselor Coordinator of Farmville Middle School described their activities to counselors, principals, directors of pupil personnel and other educators. They explained the cooperative efforts with students, teachers, parents, community resource persons and administrators which promoted positive results in their programs.

Educators expressed plans to visit the two Pitt County Elementary Counseling programs and to observe the programs in action.

Thanks, Jack, For Your Confidence In Integon

Mr. John F. Mingos, President of Pepsi Cola Bottling Company of Greenville (seated) is shown receiving a $1,000,000 Life Insurance Policy from Jim Ridley, C.L.U., newly elected president of Integon Life Insurance Corporation. Stephanie Newman, Integon Vice President and Senior Underwriter, and W.M. Scales, Jr., General Agent, witness the presentation.

Just about everyone knows how much Jack Mingos has done for Eastern North Carolina, because of his love for this area and for his fellow man. Through the years he has also shown his concern for his family's future by providing for their financial security with a planned life insurance program.

Though Mr. Mingos was already Integon Life Insurance Corporation's most highly insured individual policy owner, he substantially increased this amount on Thursday, July 1, with the purchase of an additional policy. This policy represents the largest annual premium ever written on an individual life in the 56-year history of Integon. It is also the largest policy ever written by W.M. Scales, Jr., Integon's all-time leading life insurance producer.

We wish to thank Mr. Mingos for the confidence he places in Integon Life Insurance Corporation in providing for the future security of his family.
