Buckley Reserves Option Of Three-Man GOP Race

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
KANSAS CITY (AP) — Sen. James L. Buckley of New York is reserving the option of a third-man presidential candidacy, leaving Republican National Convention strategists for President Ford and Ronald Reagan to argue over which side would suffer if he ran.

GOP platform draftsmen worked through a sweltering night into early morning hours today, trying to fashion planks that both the Reagan and Ford camps could buy without a fight. Reagan's manager said he wasn't looking for platform trouble, but was ready for contests on the convention floor if necessary.

The close race was reflected in a platform subcommittee vote on the Panama Canal issue. By an 8 to 8 tie vote, a foreign policy panel rejected an attempt by Reagan backers to require that the United States maintain sovereignty over the canal.

Instead, by a 9 to 7 vote today, it adopted language accepted by the Ford administration which said U.S. negotiators should not give up any territory rights needed to protect U.S. security.

The Reagan campaign also readied its forces for a Saturday drive to undo a Ford-backed rule binding delegates from 18 states to vote in accordance with the outcome of presidential primary elections.

And, on a hundred-degree day Wednesday, the Buckley maneuver turned up the political temperature.

A Ford lieutenant tried to talk Buckley into renouncing presidential candidacy. Richard Rosenbaum, the New York GOP chairman, did so with a less-than-subtle suggestion that Buckley might suffer political damage at home, where he is running for re-election to the Senate.

John P. Sears, the Reagan manager, said that the challenger had not tried to encourage or dissuade any potential rival entry into the race for nomination. He disclaimed any involvement in the Buckley move.

Nonetheless, it appeared to mesh with a Reagan convention strategy built around maneuvers designed to keep the Ford organization off balance.

Furthermore, the fact that the move came from the Republican right, from a senator originally elected as a Conservative party candidate, led to speculation that Reagan forces were somehow involved. Buckley said he had been urged to consider candidacy by Republicans aligned with both Reagan and Ford, but he would not identify them.

"I am not a stalking horse," he told a New York news conference. "My only purpose would be to deadlock the convention on the first ballot and thus give all of the delegates a chance to later vote the way they want to."

"I am concerned because many delegates feel they are locked in by the rules and must vote for one candidate even though they prefer the other," Buckley said.

That would fit neatly with the Reagan effort to block the rule binding delegates from the primary states. Sears said the Reagan camp has not encouraged any Republican to vote in defiance of legally binding instructions from his state, or to abstain on a first convention ballot so as to avoid voting for Ford if he personally preferred Reagan.

could lead to court challenges after the nomination. Sears said the Reagan camp will press its opposition in the convention rules committee on Saturday and on the floor if necessary.

The Associated Press count of delegate votes put Ford at 1,105, 25 short of a nominating majority; Reagan at 1,032; with 122 uncommitted.

Sears said Reagan will have more than 1,140 votes on the first ballot. Sen. Robert P. Griffin of Michigan, Ford's floor manager said the President now has about 1,135.

That, of course, reckons without Buckley, who indicated he will decide this weekend whether he really will run.

It is doubtful Buckley could have his name formally placed in nomination, with the nominating speeches that herald major candidates. Republican rules require that a candidate demonstrate majority support in at least five delegations to be so entered. But nothing in the rules would bar delegates from voting for a candidate not formally nominated, and a relative handful could be crucial in the close Republican contest.

Moderate Rise In Wholesale Prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lower food prices held the climb in wholesale prices to a moderate three-tenths of a per cent during July, the government said today, but there was a signal of possible trouble ahead with inflation.

The Labor Department said the July figures mean wholesale prices are rising at an annual rate of 3.6 per cent, after adjustment for seasonal variations. The July increase was in line with increases of four-tenths of a per cent in June and three-tenths of a per cent in May.

The increase left wholesale prices 4.9 per cent ahead of where they were in July 1975, marking the first time in five months that the year-to-year change has been under 5 per cent.

Farm, food and feed prices were down 1 per cent in July for their first drop in four months. The Labor Department said meat, poultry, fish, wheat, green coffee and egg prices primarily were responsible for the drop. Prices of fresh and dried fruits and vegetables climbed.

A less encouraging signal was shown in the industrial commodities sector, which many economists consider to indicate the basic or long-term rate of inflation. The industrial sector is less volatile than the food sector and depends more on underlying economic factors rather than such things as weather changes which can affect food costs.

Industrial commodities climbed by seven-tenths of a per cent in July, the biggest increase since an identical jump in November. The July increase followed rises of five-tenths of a per cent in June and one-tenth of a per cent in May. Industrial commodities are 6.7 per cent ahead of a year ago.

The moderation comes amidst signals that the spurt in economic activity early in the recovery is settling down.

Retail sales, for example, recently have begun drifting after providing most of the push for the recovery. Sales growth dipped in two of the last three months, falling in July to a 7.7 per cent increase over a year ago. Retail sales started out the year up 12 per cent.

But the slower growth in the dollar value of sales has been counterbalanced by lower inflation. Consumer prices were up 6.8 per cent for the year ending in January but were up 5.9 per cent in June.

The slower erosion of buying power means that in terms of the volume of goods purchased, rather than the number of dollars spent, retail sales are growing at a fairly stable rate.

And steadily slowing inflation provides a political counterweight for President Ford, whose economic record has had to absorb two consecutive monthly increases in the unemployment rate to July's 7.8 per cent.

Ford has refused to stimulate employment on the grounds that such action would rekindle inflation.

Alice Rivlin, director of the Congressional Budget Office, testified Wednesday that Ford's veto of a bill designed to produce jobs, if not overridden by Congress, would have the effect of adding three-tenths of 1 per cent to the unemployment rates over the next 1 1/2 years.

Tal Zaatar Has Fallen

By ALY MAHMOUD
Associated Press Writer
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Right-Wing Christian forces today claimed the conquest of the long-besieged Tal Zaatar Palestinian refugee camp. Thousands of its inhabitants fled or were reported to have surrendered.

A Palestinian spokesman confirmed that Christian troops had invaded the camp. He said defenders and attackers were fighting hand-to-hand.

The Christian Phalange party radio said the camp had "ceased to exist." Another Christian-controlled radio claimed the camp "has fallen" and that 6,000 inhabitants surrendered.

The camp, a Moslem-Palestinian salient in Christian east Beirut, has been under siege for more than seven weeks. The Christians mounted their latest full-scale assault Tuesday, bombarding Tal Zaatar with incendiary and fragmentation shells.

The Palestinian spokesman said that Christian militiamen of the Phalange and National Liberal parties "managed to break into the camp."

"It was a trick," he said, "because those militias entered the camp under the pretext of wanting to continue evacuating civilian refugees, as originally agreed to with Arab League mediator Hassan Sabri Kholi."

He said that at 5 a.m. (11 p.m. EDT) "the Christians opened machine gun fire and penetrated the camp defenses. Hand-to-hand fighting still was going on inside the camp at 2 p.m. (8 a.m. EDT)."

Lebanese Moslems. A nurse evacuated from the camp last week estimated that up to 2,000 may have been killed in the long siege.

The Christian Amchit radio said the camp has been declared a military area by the combined Christian forces and they were forbidding entry because of the danger of land mines.

The radio advised residents of the Christian sector of Beirut to stay indoors because the Palestinians were expected to shell the area in retaliation for the fall of Tal Zaatar.

The Christians sought to "neutralize" Tal Zaatar because it represented a foothold for their civil war enemies — the alliance of leftist Moslems and Palestinians — in Christian east Beirut. The camp also controls roads leading from east Beirut to the Christian heartland to the east and north.

The Phalange radio had said earlier that a delegation from the camp led by Sheik Shams Eddin visited the Phalange militia leader Amin Gemayel early today and offered to surrender all civilians in the camp. But the Palestinian command ordered its troops inside the camp to fight on, the Christian radio said.

American Victim Of Hijacking Try

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — A staff aide to Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., was among four persons killed in an apparent Palestinian attempt to hijack an Israeli airliner at the Istanbul airport, the U.S. Consulate reported today.

The attack Wednesday night ended with the surrender of two Palestinian terrorists. Officials said 26 persons were wounded, two of them American women. The El Al jet flew safely to Tel Aviv.

Officials at the U.S. Embassy in Tel Aviv said the dead American was Harold Wallace Rosenthal, 29. They said he was a former aide to Sen. Walter F. Mondale of Minnesota, the Democratic vice presidential nominee, and was on his way to Jerusalem for a conference on the Middle East.

The other dead were a Japanese, an Israeli and a fourth man believed to have been a Spaniard.

Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin indicated Israel's campaign for tighter airport security has produced no practical results so far.

"I cannot say that the international community has done anything for better and more effective measures to counter air terror," Rabin said Wednesday night in Jerusalem. But he added:

"I can say that there is growing understanding that the so-called PLO (Palestine Liberation Organization) is the source ... and support of terror, and it has less acceptance in international organizations."

A spokesman for the Israeli Embassy in Ankara praised the "utmost bravery and extraordinary success" of Turkish police in the Istanbul attack.

N.C. BIKE ROUTE

I was interested in your recent item on the Bicycle Bicentennial route from the Atlantic to the Pacific. I believe I've heard of a similar idea — a route from one end of North Carolina to the other. M.B.

Curtis B. Yates, Bicycle Coordinator of the N.C. Department of Transportation says, "The Bicentennial Bicycle Route runs from deep within our North Carolina mountains to the Outer Banks of our coast. It is a part of a two-year project to define and describe the safer roads for bicycling throughout the state. The final product will be five or six major bicycling routes running east-west and north-south. Following the selection of these major bicycling highways, we will detail many regional loop routes which will act as connectors."

"The primary purpose of the project is to provide some measure of safety for cyclists," Yates went on. "Although no roadway where the automobile and bicycle mix will ever be totally safe, there are many highways that are relatively safe for cycling due to their low traffic volumes and good roadway conditions."

Route pamphlets containing detailed maps of 30-mile segments with road conditions, volumes of traffic, service facilities and points of interest described will be available in late August.

Persons interested in receiving any of the pamphlets should contact Curtis B. Yates, Bicycle Coordinator, N.C. Dept. of Transportation, Raleigh, N.C. 27611.

Going Ahead On Pulp Mill

ROANOKE RAPIDS, N.C. (AP) — An official of Georgia-Pacific Corp. says the firm still plans to construct a $180 million pulp mill near the town of Halifax.

"I want to make it clear we are going ahead with engineering plans and permit processing," said Richard Good, a Georgia-Pacific public relations official in an appearance Tuesday before the Halifax Development Corp. But he said a final decision would be made by Georgia-Pacific trustees.

Arrested In Bank Robbery

WEST JEFFERSON, N.C. (AP) — A 21-year-old man from the Boone area was arrested Thursday and charged with robbing the First National Bank of West Jefferson Wednesday.

A spokesman for the FBI said Donald Harold Burkett was arrested in Ashe County. The spokesman said money from the robbery has been recovered.

The bank was robbed Wednesday morning by a man who escaped on a motorcycle.

GOP Platform Sides With Ford's Panama Policy

By EDMOND LeBRETON
Associated Press Writer
KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Republican platform drafters are writing a document that sides with President Ford on the Panama Canal but agrees with Ronald Reagan on the issue of women's rights.

As the full Platform Committee turned to the final draft today, it was assured of disputes over some major issues because of a series of subcommittee votes as close as the race for the nomination itself.

By an 8 to 8 vote, a foreign policy subcommittee rejected attempts by Reagan supporters to require that U.S. "sovereignty" be retained over the canal in any agreement with Panama.

Instead, it adopted, 9 to 7, a compromise offered by Ford supporters which said U.S. negotiators should not give up any rights over territory or property that is "necessary for the protection and security of the United States and the entire Western Hemisphere."

Sponsors of that amendment conferred to decide whether to carry that fight to the full committee.

A committee fight over women's rights was assured, however, when the Republican Women's Task Force said it would try to include language favoring passage of the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA).

By an 8 to 7 vote, the human rights subcommittee adopted a plank putting the GOP in favor of "laws to ensure equal treatment for women." However, it said it was not necessary to take a position on the ERA since the amendment was currently before state legislatures.

The ERA, which prohibits discrimination on the basis of sex, has been supported by the party in every platform since 1940.

Reagan opposes ratification, while Ford favors its adoption. First Lady Betty Ford said Wednesday of the subcommittee decision. "I'm amazed. I find it incredible."

Setting the scene for the Panama Canal vote, the foreign affairs subcommittee rejected, also on an 8 to 8 vote, a position that would have implicitly criticized Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's stands in support of black majority rule and aid to emerging nations in Southern Africa.

The full platform committee hopes to complete the document by Friday so it can be given to arriving convention delegates.

As written by the subcommittees, it opposes abortion and a national health insurance program. It calls for welfare reform, less government regulation, extended revenue-sharing programs for the cities, and it opposes grain reserves while endorsing an open agricultural market system.

It promises "less government, less taxes, less inflation."

U.S. Women Have Long History As Activists

NEW YORK (AP) — Though the nation will focus on the accomplishments of today's women on Women's Equality Day Aug. 26, research shows women have been prominent in journalism, politics, sports and other fields throughout the country's history.

Even before there was a United States, Anne Franklin, Benjamin Franklin's sister-in-law, had become the first woman newspaper editor in America.

Mrs. Franklin took charge of the Newport, R.I., Mercury on Aug. 22, 1762, when her son, James Jr., died. And, she not only edited the publication then, but had previously kept her late husband's printing business going from 1735 to 1758 while James Jr. was growing up.

Women continued to make steady progress in the field of journalism, and by 1866 the United States had its first woman White House correspondent, Emily Edson Briggs. Using the penname, "Olivia," she wrote a regular report, "Olivia Letters," for the Philadelphia Press for 16 years.

During the same period, Elizabeth Cochrane Seaman, under the name "Nellie Bly," wrote sensational exposes of the conditions in women's prisons and mental hospitals.

An early investigative reporter, Mrs. Seaman once arranged to be arrested so she could report accurately on the treatment of women prisoners. And, according to The World Book Encyclopedia, she also feigned insanity to gain admittance to a New York City mental hospital, in order to write about conditions.

The suffrage movement of the 1800s brought the first heavy involvement of women in politics and one of the earliest efforts at mass consciousness-raising.

Victoria Claflin Woodhull was the first woman to run for president of the United States, in 1872, and other leaders of the movement who were in the news of their day included Elizabeth C. Stanton, Lucretia Mott and Susan B. Anthony.

Women racking up "firsts" today were preceded in U.S. history by earlier precedent-breakers: Susan Medora Salter, the first woman mayor, Argonia, Kan., 1867; Martha Hughes Cannon, first woman state senator, Utah, 1896; Nellie Tayloe Ross, first woman elected governor of a state, Wyoming, 1925, and the first woman director of the U.S. Mint, 1933-35; Hattie Ophelia Wyatt Caraway, D-Ark., in 1932 the first woman elected U.S. Senator.

Jeanette Rankin, R-Mont., became the first U.S. Congresswoman when she was elected to the House in 1916. Her unpopular vote against U.S. entry into World War I cost her the Republican nomination for Senator in 1918. Twenty-three years later she returned to Congress, just in time to become the only member to vote against America's entry into World War II after the bombing of Pearl Harbor. This vote effectively terminated her political career.

Female sports stars today are following in the footsteps of Babe Didrikson Zaharias (1914-1956), named by The Associated Press in 1950 as outstanding woman athlete of the first half of the 1900s.

She won fame as an outstanding golfer; she set world records in the 1932 Olympics in the women's 80-meter hurdles and the javelin throw; she was on the AAU All-American women's basketball team in 1930 and 1931; and she competed in swimming, baseball, football, billiards, tennis, and even did a little boxing.

But long before Babe was making news the first women's baseball team, The Young Ladies Baseball Club No. 1, was touring the country and competing with men's teams in 1890.

And while Billie Jean King may have struck a blow for women by defeating Bobby Riggs, Mary Ewing Outerbridge is credited with bringing the game of tennis to the United States. According to The World Book, Miss Outerbridge imported the first rackets and equipment from British army officers in Bermuda in 1874.

Parents: Help Get Teen Marriage Going

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune. N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My son David, 18, and Pam, his girlfriend, 16, came to us saying they wanted to marry because Pam was pregnant. We met with Pam's parents who agreed to the marriage, providing David could support Pam and the expected baby.

David tried to enlist in the Air Force but was told he needed the equivalent of a high school diploma (he had quit in his junior year), so he got some books from the library and studied for the exams he has to pass to get into the Air Force.

He passed the exams, and the kids were married at a little church wedding. David then went to Texas for his basic training. After one week, he was sent home with an honorable discharge. They said he was "unable to cope with military life."

This was a terrible blow to all of us. David and Pam are living with us now, but we can't keep them indefinitely. Pam's parents have been very good to the kids, but say they can't live with them. David has looked everywhere for work, but because he has no skills, he can't get a job. He is so discouraged. There is talk of their separating and Pam's going home to her parents.

There must be a solution, but what? If Pam leaves David, I don't think he could survive the blow. What should they do?

DESPERATE MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Urge David to inquire into the nearest vocational-technical school where, in a relatively short time, he can acquire a compensable skill. If you and Pam's parents can assist for a year or two longer, perhaps the marriage can be saved. If the kids are willing to try, can't you?

DEAR ABBY: I am a woman who has been in the business world for many years. I have been told that I "think" like a man.

Should a woman take that as a compliment? THINKS LIKE A MAN

DEAR THINKS: Only if she thinks a man's "thinking" is superior to that of a woman's.

DEAR ABBY: How do you tell a policeman that he has rights just like any other man?

Abby, this policeman I'm in love with says that he loves me but he will never marry again (he's divorced) because he can't expect a woman to sit home worrying about whether he will make it home that night or not.

Abby, I realize that his work involves a lot of danger, but I'm sure I can handle all the problems connected with it.

A policeman needs a good woman to come home to after a hard day's work, and I want to be his woman, but he won't let me.

He wants to continue seeing me, but he tells me not to expect marriage because he loves me too much to marry me.

Does this make sense? LOVES A COP

DEAR LOVES: I don't buy it. If it's marriage you want, don't waste any more time on him.

DEAR ABBY: I am the only female in an office of 10 men. Although the restrooms are clearly marked "MEN" and "WOMEN," the men use the women's restroom in addition to their own. I strongly resent that practice!

I do want privacy in the restroom, but if I mention it, I will be labeled a prude. My job is well paying, and I would hate to change for that reason, especially at age 50. May I have your suggestions? DESIRES PRIVACY

DEAR DESIRES: If you DON'T MENTION it, how will the offenders know that you resent their actions? The solution is obvious. Speak up. And don't worry about what they call you.

Delegates Attend Convention

Antoinette S. Jenkins, retired faculty member of the East Carolina University Department of English, and JoAnn B. Leith, member of the Pitt Technical Institute business faculty, were delegates to the recent biennial Delta Kappa Gamma convention in St. Louis, Mo.

Delta Kappa Gamma is an international honor society for women educators. Current membership includes about 300,000 persons.

Mrs. Jenkins, North Carolina state chairman of the Committee on World Fellowships, appeared on the program in a "Know How" workshop session for chairmen of states, provinces and nations. She was assisted in her presentation by Mrs. Leith.

Among 2,706 delegates present were 26 North Carolinians, including Phebe H. Emmons of Raleigh, immediate past international president, who chaired an American Bicentennial Celebration session, and Mildred Bingham of Mars Hill College, state Delta Kappa Gamma president.

Featured addresses were given by Peter McDonald, chief of the Navaho Nation, who summarized the progress of Navaho education, partly the result of Delta Kappa Gamma contributions, and Dr. Josephine Wexler, president of Hunter College.

Dr. Wexler's address, "From Patriarchy to Mutuality," traced some of the improvements in the status of women.

Delegates also heard a special concert performance by the St. Louis Symphony's Youth Orchestra, and participated in a flag presentation ceremony conducted by representatives of Delta Kappa Gamma's nine member nations.

Other events included a procession of presidents, all wearing evening dress and bearing small flags of the 50 United States, six Canadian provinces and eight other nations.

Mrs. Jenkins and Mrs. Leith represented Greenville's Beta Alpha Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma. The organization has 80 other chapters in North Carolina.

Cooking Is Fun

By CECILY BROWNSTONE

Associated Press Food Editor

When Mary Pickford, the Sweetheart of America's silent films, was recently given a special honorary award by the Motion Picture Academy of Arts and Sciences, we indulged in a piece of culinary nostalgia. We turned to a cookbook in our collection, privately published 60 years ago, to which she had contributed a recipe for Raspberry Jam Tarts. At the end of the recipe Miss Pickford wrote in endearing fashion, "They are so simple to make that I often do them myself."

When we baked the tarts at our house, our tasters were delighted to honor Mary Pickford — now 83 years old — by pronouncing them delicious. Because the film star's recipe directions are a bit scanty we've expanded them for cooks who like explicit rules.

MARY PICKFORD'S

RASPBERRY JAM TARTS

4 ounces cream cheese,

softened

½ cup butter or margarine,

softened

1 cup flour

Red raspberry jam, about

2-3rds cup

Beat together the cheese and butter to combine. Gradually stir in the flour to form a dough. Shape into a ball, then into a small rectangle. Chill if necessary to have firm enough to roll out. Divide in half.

On a floured pastry cloth, with a floured stockinet-covered rolling pin, roll out one half of the dough at a time until very thin; trim each half to a 12-by-9-inch rectangle and with a pastry wheel cut out 3-inch squares. Place 1 teaspoon raspberry jam in the center of each square. Fold over two opposite points of each square so they meet and slightly overlap; fold over the two remaining opposite points so one overlaps the other well; press down the overlapping point to seal. (The tarts should look like miniature square envelopes.) Shape trimmings from the two portions of dough into one small rectangle and roll out thin, then cut, fill and fold as above.

Place tarts well apart on ungreased cookie sheets. Bake in a preheated 400-degree oven until lightly browned — about 12 minutes. Serve warm or cold. Makes almost 2½ dozen tarts.

In behalf of the Thigpen family, we sincerely thank each of you for your prayers, acts of kindness, cards, flowers and the comfort that you extended to us in our time of mourning and sorrow. May God bless all of you.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

According to one of the world's far most astrologers, this is my year to become President of the United States.

This came to my attention when I read that Sen. Edward Kennedy and I were born a day apart and he was given a five-star rating, the highest of any of the other presidential contenders.

There's a catch to it. We both have to get off our cusps and work for it against some odds. Is that the story of my life? I don't know about Sen. Kennedy, but I never get anything for nothing. The sun never rises on my sign. My planets are always conspiring behind my back. And my destiny always reads like it's been out in the natal sun sign too long.

I don't like to sound bitter but other people get all the good signs. Their horoscopes always read, "Popularity and untold wealth will haunt you. There's no getting away from it." Or, "You are irresistible to every sign in the zodiac. Give in and enjoy."

Not mine. They always warn, "There is a chance for companionship around the 15th of the month, but it is a slim one. Your boring image can be lessened. Perhaps writing a check to someone who will sit with you."

Usually the people born under my sign are Martin Bormann and Anne Boleyn.

It's not nice to name names, but if my mother had held on just a little longer — a good month and a half — I'd have been a different person. As it is, I am basically weak and insecure and tend to go along with whomever is around me. When I ask someone for the time of day and they give it to me, I always reset my watch. It never occurs to me that I could be right.

Whenever I buy a weekender outfit with the jacket, slacks and skirt, I spill catsup on the jacket.

I never buy L'Oreal for my hair. I never figure I'm worth it. Take today. I read through all the other zodiac signs and my body quivered for what I knew was in store for them. Mine? Same old melody. "The potential for a bright day is there, but you will have to work on it. Don't become discouraged by others who take advantage of you."

I don't think I could handle the presidency. Only one other fellow on my cusp did it — George Washington — and then the poor devil had to bite the bullet with wooden teeth.

I'm not sure it's worth it.

Waverly Akins' Wife Campaigns And Copes With Their Children

ANNA AKINS

By SUSAN QUINN
Reflector Staff Writer

The campaign life for lieutenant Governor candidate, Waverly Akins has not changed his home life much, according to Mrs. Anna Akins.

"I am one of Waverly's biggest supporters. He does have the leadership and it does cause a certain amount of sacrifice on my part and our four children, but Waverly has always been an active man and we are accustomed to his travel and his involvement," Mrs. Akins said at a reception held in her honor Wednesday at the home of Col. and Mrs. Richard Blake.

Hostesses for the reception were Mrs. Richard Blake, Mrs. Max Joyner and Mrs. A. B. Whitley. Approximately 200 Greenville women were present to meet Mrs. Akins.

"I have enjoyed the campaign. I am working at least two or three days each week travelling and meeting people. I really enjoy meeting people and talking about Waverly and I wish that I could do more of it but it is necessary for me to be at home with the children," Mrs. Akins said.

Campaigning and taking care of the children has kept Mrs. Akins busy. The Akins have twins, a girl and boy, age 11, and boys ages eight and five.

"Recently I went to a rally in Davidson County which was a family picnic. Waverly couldn't make it so I went and took the children. When I had to get up to speak I saw one of my children jumping off of a bridge into the water and one came up and said that he had just phoned a tooth. Trying to keep everything going orderly is a job," Mrs. Akins said.

Mrs. Akins is a native of Sumter, S. C. She met Akins when she was teaching in the Raleigh City Schools in 1960.

"Waverly had just come home to Fuquay-Varina after working with the FBI. A mutual friend introduced us, since he knew that Waverly liked tall girls. He is 6'5" and I am 5'11", so I really enjoyed being with him," Mrs. Akins explained.

Mrs. Akins pointed out two main issues that Akins pledges to strive for if he is elected Lt. Governor.

"Waverly thinks that our state should get moving in recruiting high quality industry into our state so that we can raise our state's wages from the lowest in the nation. The industry would provide a bigger tax base which we could use to put more money in education and roads. He also thinks that something should be done with our criminal system," she said.

"Waverly is the only candidate running in the lieutenant governor race that has had experience in recruiting industry into the state and experience in law enforcement," she added.

"I feel that Waverly could get along with any of the candidates for governor. I just feel in my heart that he is man with the leadership for the job of lieutenant governor," Mrs. Akins said.

No-Smoking Law Hailed

By PETER J. SHAW
ROME (UPI) — Cinema owners shuddered and poised to count the empty seats when Italy's new law banning smoking in just about every enclosed public place took effect in June.

Now they're all smiles.

The feared exodus of moviegoing smokers hasn't happened and the exceptions, like the man who walked out of a soft porn film after telling the manager "you can't expect people to watch such films and not smoke," have been few.

Cleaners still find a few furtive cigarette butts under the seats or in empty candy packages. But cinema owners report no attendance drop and say the ban has met with overall approval.

"Parents are pleased because they can bring their children to the movies without encouraging them to become involuntary smokers," one manager said. "And the colors on the screen look more authentic."

Smoke-dulled screens only last about two years and cost around $40,000 to replace. Cinema owners also are saving on repairs of burn-damaged seats and carpeting.

On paper the antimoking law sounded tough.

But it carried a big loophole of exceptions if prescribed air-conditioning or circulation norms were met. And its limits, plus who must enforce it, were not clearly spelled out.

Most of Italy's cinemas are not air-conditioned and the owners had visions of costly conversions to lure back patrons who smoke.

Passed by parliament last November after several years of haggling, the law prohibits smoking in cinemas, theaters, premises "closed and used for public gatherings," museums, libraries, galleries, lecture halls, waiting rooms at railway stations, airports and sea ports, hospital and school corridors.

public agencies and public transport.

Some sectors, such as museums, libraries, theaters and municipal buses, were covered by previous antimoking regulations.

The new ban calls for fines ranging from 1,000 to 10,000 lire ($1.20 to $12) for offenders and requires premises without approved ventilation to post "no smoking" signs in four languages — Italian, English, French and German.

But waiting passengers at Rome's airports still puff away without interference, as do Italian officials traveling in state-owned automobiles — also technically covered by the ban.

A train traveler between Rome and Genoa recently complained in a letter to the Rome newspaper Il Messaggero that the other five persons in his no-smoking compartment were puffing away, one on a pipe, and the conductor refused to intervene.

In Santa Margherita Ligure, nonsmoking mayor Raffaele Bottino unhesitatingly said yes when several city councilmen asked if they might smoke during a meeting.

Matches were barely struck when an opposition councilwoman jumped up and accused Bottino of violating the antimoking law.

The mayor, somewhat embarrassed, retracted his permission.

The usual Italian interpretation of the law — bend or ignore it — is tempting because who should confront the offender isn't clear.

Owners and managers have sought an official clarification of how far they should go in enforcing the ban. Should they call the cops or demand a fine on the spot or take name and address and alert the police?

Although the police are the obvious enforcers, they argue they have neither the manpower nor the time to make antimoking rounds of public places.

"It's like the rule not to trespass in flower beds," one policeman in Rome said. "The public is entrusted to obey."

Incoming ABA President Says System Of Justice In Danger

By KATHRYN JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — Justin A. Stanley of Chicago, who takes office today as president of the American Bar Association, says the nation's system of justice is in danger.

"In a democracy such as ours people have a basic faith in the system of justice," he said. "If that faith is lost, then the whole thing is up for grabs."

Stanley told a news conference Wednesday as the ABA's 99th convention neared an end that too much litigation is being filed, there are too few judges and lawyers should not file appeals that their clients have little hope of winning.

Even U.S. Supreme Court justices have complained about the burdens of too many legal cases, Stanley said.

"A substantial number of cases from courts of appeals shouldn't get there," he said. "As a result, cases which should get full consideration are shortchanged."

Stanley said he thinks the ABA should give some consideration to the disputes or small claims court, manned by a judge or even specially trained paralegals. He said such small dispute courts could be located in downtown neighborhoods and be open nights and weekends.

The time has come for the bar to take a hand in educating law students, said Stanley. He proposed turning the last year of law school into a type of work-study program under the auspices of the bar.

Associate Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr. of the U.S. Supreme Court told the ABA Wednesday that the high court can take for argument and full disposition less than five per cent of the cases filed with it.

"We continue to be plagued by direct appeals from three-judge district courts," Powell said. He added that many of these have inadequate records and lack the benefit of having been reviewed by a court of appeals.

In another address Wednesday, Democrat presidential nominee Jimmy Carter said that as president he would "never turn my back on official misdeeds."

Club Discusses Flea Market

Plans for the upcoming flea market were discussed at the monthly meeting of the Greenville Collectors Club held Tuesday evening.

The flea market has been scheduled for Sunday, Sept. 19, at Antiek Curiosa, which is located on the Washington Highway. Persons interested in renting spaces should make a reservation. For further information call 752-3456.

Following the business session, Mickey Elmore showed an old cylinder record player. The meeting was held at the home of the Elmores.

The Sept. 14 meeting will be held at the home of Tom Arreno in Stokes.

RUDOLPH'S ORIGINATOR
CHICAGO (AP) — Robert L. May, whose Christmas story of Rudolph the red-nosed reindeer began as an advertising promotion, died Wednesday at 71.

Carter asked the lawyers to join him in improving America's judicial system, saying, "It is no secret that most professions, including your own profession, are in great disfavor with the American people."

The ABA was warned during a panel discussion that the recent 300 per cent rise in malpractice insurance for lawyers is only a foreshadowing of what lies ahead.

Monroe H. Freedman, dean of Hofstra University School of Law on Long Island, said the profession has brought the onslaught of malpractice suits upon itself. He said members had failed to report obvious incompetency and to provide adequate redress of clients' grievances.

Another panelist, James D. Mart of Sacramento, Calif., said, "It's clear to me that legal malpractice will not get better, it will get worse."

Along with the rise in legal malpractice suits will be a corresponding rise in insurance costs, Mart said.

Meanwhile, the law student division of the ABA urged the association to endorse mandatory minimum sentences for those "who commit crimes while in possession of a firearm."

They urged strengthening the 1968 gun control law, including a periodic review of a handgun owner's eligibility to possess a weapon.

In its week-long convention, the ABA's policy-making House of Delegates acted on a wide

Average Is Above $100

The season average on the Greenville Tobacco Market climbed over the $100 per hundred pounds mark Wednesday for the first time this year.

J.N. Bryan, sales supervisor for the Tobacco Board of Trade, said that yesterday's marketing results pushed the season average to $100.67 per hundred as figures totaled 12,131,940 pounds for $12,213,003 so far for the year.

Sales on Wednesday totaled 1,127,124 pounds, Bryan noted, and brought $1,267,490, an average of $112.45 per hundred pounds for the day.

Stabilization receipts dropped to 4.61 per cent, the lowest percentage of the season.

The majority of offerings consisted of lugs, leaf and cutters with the amount of primings and non-descript tobacco decreasing daily, he added.

range of issues brought before it by state bars.

The delegates condemned the United Nations resolution identifying Zionism as a form of racism and endorsed a set of guidelines for courts issuing judicial "gag" orders.

The 360-member body also urged criminal and economic sanctions against anyone who knowingly employs illegal aliens and defeated a resolution calling for legislation allowing courts to award attorney fees to persons who seek to defend public interests in court but cannot afford legal counsel.

Jobs Increased In Southeast

ATLANTA (AP) — Southeastern states reported an overall increase of more than 9,000 nonfarm jobs during June, with five states reporting increases and three decreases, the U.S. Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said.

Employment rose above May totals in Alabama, Georgia, Kentucky, North Carolina and Tennessee, with job increases noted mainly in construction, apparel, textile and food industries.

Employment declined in Florida, Mississippi and South Carolina, the bureau said.

Workers totaled just under 12 million in the eight states, an increase of about 250,000 over the total for June 1975, the bureau said.

The Southeast showed an overall monthly increase of 2,400 workers in the textile industry with textile payrolls up 1,500 in North Carolina and 700 in South Carolina.

Contract construction rose 14,700 workers over the May total, but decreases were recorded in retail trade, service industries and in government employment.

The average hourly earnings in May rose three cents to $4.10 in the Southeast, compared to a national average of $5.15 per hour. The average work in the Southeast increased to 40.5 hours from 40.3 hours in May.

Here are June employment figures in the eight states with comparison to May figures:

Alabama 1.18 million, up 8,500; Florida 2.71 million, down 17,400; Georgia 1.76 million, up 4,200; Kentucky 1.07 million, up 5,900; Mississippi 683,100, down 4,200; North Carolina 2.05 million, up 9,700; South Carolina 1.02 million, down 4,400, and Tennessee 1.52 million, up 6,800.

Walking After Hip Operation

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Rosalind Russell is walking again following surgery to replace her right hip joint, says her husband, Frederick Brisson.

Miss Russell, 64, is in an intensive care unit at UCLA Medical Center, where Brisson said Wednesday that she had "gotten up and is walking with the aid of a walker."

An artificial hip joint was implanted when Miss Russell underwent surgery last week to correct an arthritic condition.

Miss Russell is best known for performances in "His Girl Friday," "Auntie Mame" and "Mourning Becomes Electra."

Can Never Afford Complacency

Belle—a major hurricane—has moved up the eastern coast of the United States and mercifully has spared the land areas the worst of its blow.

The storm passed by North Carolina's Outer Banks during the week and most of its top 110 mile per hour winds were kept out to sea. There was quite a blow on the Outer Banks, however, and tourists and many resident evacuated the area as the storm's approach became imminent.

The churning seas recalled for those who had seen them storms of the past which have lashed at the thin strip of sand islands which make up the most eastern part of North Carolina. The veterans agreed, though that it wasn't much of a storm compared to so many others which have howled around the Outer Banks.

The rapidly moving storm later hit Long Island and moved into New England, but by that time it had lost much of its punch and it was mostly the heavy rains which accompanied the storm that affected the northern areas.

We should not be complacent about the relatively mild effects of Belle, however. The authorities were absolutely right to order evacuation on the Outer Banks even though it was an inconvenience to the thousands of visitors. A slight shift of Belle as it passed North Carolina could have brought its full fury over Nags Head and other coastal areas. In such a case the loss of life could have been awesome.

There will be other hurricanes and other calls to evacuate on the North Carolina coast. We should never grow complacent nor should we ever take such storms lightly. The consequences are too terrible.

A Regretful Entry Into Insurance Program

After much delay Congress has finally approved a swine flu insurance program which will allow the inoculation program to proceed.

The bill which Congress passed provides for the government to pay the legal defense bill against any law suits which might be brought by vaccine users. The drug companies had been unable to obtain private insurance coverage for potential claims.

It's a shame that government has to enter into the insurance program which should be provided by private industry. On the other hand Congress had no choice but to act favorably on the bill. The consequences of not carrying out the inoculation program are potentially grave.

THIS AFTERNOON

Left In Sheer Frustration

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — North Carolina's top health official has stepped down from his post.

Publicly, the parting was cordial.

Privately, Dr. Archie T. Johnson, Jr., admits he left in sheer frustration at the ineffectiveness of the entrenched bureaucracy in the State Department of Human Resources. He was assistant secretary for health affairs, and director of health planning and resource development.

You simply can't go from Point A to Point B when that is what needs to be done. You must go through layer after layer of decision-making and non decision-making and delay.

"There are solutions to some of our problems . . . solutions that could be effective in 48 hours. But instead things just drag on."

"The biggest thing I see is that reorganization of this department simply has not worked. We are nothing more than a lot of conflicting and competing agencies gathered together under the umbrella title of Human Resources," Johnson argues.

More Blasts

Before taking his leave, Johnson, an outspoken young pediatrician who is on faculty at the University of North Carolina medical school, active in the state Medical Society, chairman of the political action arm of that group, and president of the state's Pediatrics Association, delivered himself of some other blasts.

Veneral disease in North Carolina "is pandemic . . . it is of epidemic proportions and we are dodging the issue when we ought to be looking at ways to bring the situation under control."

"I disagree with Health Division arguments that this is not true," Johnson said. Referring specifically to several recent columns in this space which quoted concerned members of the Coalition on Sexually Transmitted Diseases as saying one-of-three young people will have been infected at some time during their high school or college years, Johnson urged public attention and work on the problem.

"From my experience as a physician, I am concerned. I have seen the problem increase tremendously in my 16 years of practice . . . and now, not just the traditional syphilis and gonorrhea, but new, viral forms which we are just beginning to find."

Human Resources Secretary Phillip J. Kirk said he is going to set up a meeting involving health officials and the coalition sponsored by the statewide United Way organization to determine "just how factual the reports of an epidemic are. It may be exaggeration on the one side, and defensiveness on the other."

More Funds

"We do plan to ask the General Assembly for additional funds to expand the program if the situation is nearly as bad as many think it is," Kirk said.

On another subject, Johnson said, "It is with some pride that I say that North Carolina's Comprehensive Health Planning Program is now on its way toward full implementation."

"North Carolina is far ahead of most others states in planning for comprehensive long range health needs. And we are ready to go forward with our regional Health Service Agencies and our State Coordinating Council . . ."

But that system is the one which Johnson previously labeled a step toward socialized medicine and the foundation for National Health Insurance and Controls over his profession.

The program sets up regional boards to review all health programs involving any federal funds, and requires new priorities and federal approvals.

North Carolina has joined the American Medical Association in a suit against the program, and Johnson said he is still all for pushing that suit.

"I don't like the act. It will mean too much bureaucracy. I'm fearful of its impact and intent. It is unconstitutional."

"But, it's the law of the land and we have worked hard to implement it. But I'm still dedicated to fighting it."

REALLY CRANKING IT UP!

Army's Long Search

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — More than a year after the hunt began, the Army says it still is trying to locate 225 former military personnel who were given LSD in tests dating back at least nine years.

The purpose of the search is to determine whether the test subjects, who did not know they were receiving the mind-altering drug, have suffered any negative after-effects from the Army experiments, conducted between 1955 and 1967.

A total of 516 subjects have been found, but officials said the trails of many have been hard to follow because of the lapse of time since they left the service.

Meanwhile, Army doctors said they finally have developed a battery of psychological and medical tests for gauging possible long-term damage to those who were given LSD.

"We had lots of information on short-term effects of LSD, but there is no body of experience on long-term effects," one doctor said.

Among other things, the Army will try to study some other persons of roughly the same age and military background as the LSD experiment subjects to differentiate between typical health problems resulting from passage of years and those problems stemming from LSD usage.

Forty-two former subjects in the LSD experiments have completed preliminary medical checks at Walter Reed Army Medical Center here.

Army doctors said the results of these examinations are being analyzed and that no conclusions have yet been reached on whether any of them have suffered lingering effects from the LSD experiments.

An additional 219 have agreed to undergo examinations and 143 others either are undecided or have not yet replied to Army offers. Nineteen others have died since leaving the service.

Only 35 of the LSD test subjects have refused to be examined.

A Rare Loss For Goliath

WASHINGTON — The struggle for personal freedom is a long and drawn-out war, composed of innumerable battles. The defenders of freedom, sad to say, don't win many fights these days, but they do win a few. They do win a few. And they won a fine one the other day in Columbus, Ohio.

There the State Supreme Court handed down an opinion dismissing all criminal charges against the Rev. Levi Whisner and his co-defendants in the matter of the Tabernacle Christian School. Word of the decision got back to Brother Levi's flock in the small town of Bradford about 3:30 in the afternoon, right in the middle of a week-long revival.

"I tell you," says Mrs. Whisner, "there was jubilation. There were shouts, and hymns, and testimonials, and praises. It was a hallelujah time."

And well it might have been. For the case of State v. Whisner was a combat of Goliath and David if ever such a combat came to court. The State of Ohio marshaled its power not through a civil proceeding, but through criminal prosecution, in an effort to punish a handful of parents for a dreadful crime against the state. The parents had dared to send their children to an unchartered private school!

Other Editors Say Industrial Growth

(The Wilson Times)

For those who live in North Carolina, it is easy to accept the high rank the state holds in attracting industry. Industry has certain standards which must be met, and this state can meet them all. Bill Noblitt, writing in his column for the Association of Afternoon Newspapers, tells of the survey made by Business Week magazine.

North Carolina ranks second behind California as the state most likely to be considered for a new plant or the expanding of one already in operation. Texas is in third place, and the three named are far ahead of the next state, which is South Carolina. The actual figures were 320 for California, 309 for North Carolina and 306 for Texas. The magazine did an in-depth survey.

Among the specific factors which make this state desirable to locate in are the transportation facilities. We have excellent trucking schedules, there is the railroad transportation. We are on a main line and also have airport facilities.

Another factor is liveability, the attitude of the community and residents to industry, and the needed facilities for the employees. You consider what Wilson has to offer and there isn't a single quality that is not covered.

We know whereof we speak for there are several industries interested in Wilson as a place to locate, and our industrial development committee under Charles M. Clayton is working hard to keep up the interest, and he is doing exceptionally well.

From all we hear Wilson County is doing its part to help the state hold its place in industrial growth.

Another factor in industrial development is the labor supply and we are told there is adequate trainable labor available, and if more employees are needed, the Wilson County Technical Institute will train workers.

We have had so much good news lately on industrial development the Noblitt article only nails down the facts.

Other assets include climate. We are especially blessed we have the four seasons, but it is never very cold for more than a few days at the time, and in the summer, it isn't hot but for a short time.

We have recreation facilities, educational facilities, medical facilities, on down the line. And when an industry does locate here, the industrialist will consider in selecting a site the chance for expansion.

Continuing the requirements for locating here are property values, construction costs and access to utilities.

Another asset is our small town and rural nature. Industrialists prefer suburban or rural sites far above cities and big population areas. We cannot name a single important factor for industrial growth and liveability that Wilson does not have, and the state does not have in quantity.

Yes, North Carolina ranks second as an attractive place to locate industry and for the owners and managers to live and it will be a pleasure to continue to keep Wilson County leading the way in industrial growth.

40 Years Ago Today

August 12, 1936

Rep. Lindsay Warren of North Carolina, taking cognizance of reports that he was slated to be the new comptroller general of the United States, said today he would not accept the position if it was offered.

Warren said he would decline the offer due to requests by constituents that he stay in Congress.

"This I prefer to do, believing that I can best serve the district, state and our great President in my present position," he said.

"Therefore if the position of comptroller general was tendered, I would not accept it."

The problem of what to do with old fruit jars, especially those not used for fruit, is being solved by the conversion of these fruit jars into substitutes for slot machines in those counties and towns where the law against slot machines is actually being enforced.

Several of these fruit jar substitutions for slot machines have made their appearance here in places where the feeding of nickels to one-armed bandits was the principal form of gambling.

THE INSIDE REPORT

The Hard-Sell For SALT

By ROWLAND EVANS and EVANS NOVAK
WASHINGTON—President Ford has quietly changed from impartial arbiter of arms control disagreements within his administration to forceful advocate of the State Department's latest SALT option, which hard-liners claim flirts with disaster for the U.S. and the West.

Assuming Mr. Ford's nomination and subsequent freedom from Ronald Reagan's restraining influence, he is expected to press hard for another strategic arms limitation (SALT) treaty with the Soviet Union before the Nov. 2 election. What's more, it is now clear that Mr. Ford is prepared to buy that treaty at high cost: sacrificing U.S.

cruise missiles while the Soviets keep their new Backfire bomber.

The last line of resistance is held by Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld and the Joint Chiefs of Staff. In recent top secret meetings, they have been unusually tough and plucky in standing up to the President and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger. But Mr. Ford seems so determined to have a SALT II agreement this fall that here is little optimism the Pentagon will prevail.

A SALT II treaty has been prevented for 18 months by two new weapons systems considered to be in the gray area of strategic weapons: the Soviets have the Backfire bomber; the U.S. has miniature-motored cruise missiles, which can be launched from planes or ships and which Moscow cannot duplicate today. The question: shall they be included in the limit of 2,400 offensive delivery vehicles each for the U.S. and the Soviet Union agreed to by Mr. Ford and Secretary Leonid Brezhnev at Vladivostok in 1974?

Several options were before the National Security Council (NSC) July 30 when it considered arms control for the last time before the Kansas City convention. But the option generating attention is Dr. Kissinger's latest proposal, regarded by many experts as certain to win Soviet assent.

It would limit cruise missiles by counting them under the strategic ceiling, delivering a fatal blow to the weapons system the Pentagon considers vital for conventional warfare. But the Kremlin would be permitted to go ahead producing (under a meaningless special ceiling) Backfire bombers, air refuelable and possessing obvious strategic potential.

In return, the Soviet Union would be forced to make this supposed concession: a reduction in the 2,400 strategic vehicles ceiling—perhaps by 100, perhaps 200, perhaps even more. The argument for the Kissinger option boils down to this: if Moscow is really prepared to reduce its overall nuclear war-making ability, why quibble over a few gray-area weapons?

To make this argument, it is necessary to prove that the Backfire is not and could not become a strategic weapon. Accordingly, Kissinger's position is strengthened by a top secret study of the Backfire, performed by McDonnell-Douglas Corp. under contract to the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA), showing a Backfire one-way range of only 3,400 miles.

Furious Pentagon experts, cursing both the CIA and McDonnell-Douglas, call the study worthless and claim the Backfire is a true strategic weapon with a 6,000-mile range.

Strength For Today

TRUST IN DEVINE PROVIDENCE

The longer a Christian believer lives the more certain he is that God's plans are always right.

We see this conclusion demonstrated in a number of ways. Sometimes we are denied something we want very much and years later we find that this denial was the best thing that ever happened to us. We set ourselves to carry out certain plans, and all along the line we find these plans turned back and at last overwhelmed. Frequently we find that this has been a blessing to us.

Sometimes the defeat of our plans has revealed to us some weakness of character or judgment, and with this discovery a new and better life has begun.

There are many occurrences in life which we cannot understand. But behind the unpenetrable veil stands the Almighty. How can he err? What motive would He have for perpetrating injustice upon us? These things we cannot understand have a purpose, and this purpose is consistent with the plan of a loving Heavenly Father.

It Depends On A Point Of View

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — It depends to a great extent upon your point of view, the two disputants agreed, and then they continued their argument, agreeing on nothing else thereafter.

"There are definite signs the economy is losing its momentum," said one, a union official. "Nonsense," snapped the other, a businessman. "No economic recovery ever proceeds without interruptions."

"Well, retail sales were down last month," said the union man. "Fell by 1.2 percent in July, which puts them right back where they were in March. You call that progress?"

Said the businessman: "I call it statistics. Just wait until they revise those figures. Do you realize they are based on incomplete data and that they are always — always — revised?"

The union man was not deterred. He suggested that people weren't taking out the median income but in the upper one-third income bracket. No, they're really not well off, but compared to most people they are.

"Do you really think," he asked, "that a couple earning $13,000 a year and supporting two kids can go out and buy a $5,000 automobile?" He didn't wait for an answer. "Of course they can't; they buy used cars."

"Well," said the businessman, failing to observe that the union man conceded that some union people apparently are relatively well off, "government economists agree that there's lots of money being saved. The records of the savings banks show that to be the case."

"Mere statistics," said the union man. "Did you ever try to break down those statistics? I say that the upper one-third of America came out of the recession but that two-thirds of the people remain in it."

He wasn't through. "This is a big country and it makes no sense to average out the millionaire's savings with those of the person earning the minimum wage, and then say that on average the people are doing well."

They agreed on nothing except that perhaps your approach to the subject depends upon your point of view.

Constitutional Convention Is Given George Woods' Priority

By BARBARA MATHEWS
Reflector Staff Writer

Democratic gubernatorial candidate George Wood, in Greenville on a brief whistle-stop, said yesterday his major goal as governor would be a constitutional convention.

"I think one of my major priorities would certainly be to have my constitutional convention idea enacted so we could restructure our government," he said.

"We should let the people of North Carolina vote on the governor's veto power. That proposal should be sent to the people to help achieve a better separation of power between the executive and legislative branches.

"The convention would also let the people decide if the governor should be able to succeed himself."

Wood said North Carolina is the only state in the Union where the governor cannot succeed himself.

GEORGE WOOD

"The convention would also define the duties and responsibilities of the lieutenant governor," said Wood.

"The lieutenant governor as of now has very little to do when the legislature is not in session. "Also, I feel the superintendent of public education should be an appointed official. He should be appointed by the state Board of Education.

"The state Board is a policy-making board, and the superintendent is an administrator. It's an awkward situation where an appointed board makes policy to be carried out by an elected official."

Wood said he also favors holding statewide elections in off-years.

"I think we need to elect our governors and other state officials during off election years," he said.

"That way, we could better inform the people about statewide issues.

"Right now, television is full of news about the national primaries and conventions. There is not enough information on the state candidates."

Wood also spoke about the need to attract industry to North Carolina.

"The next governor will have to emphasize industry," he said.

"We are losing our most valuable resource - our young people - to other states."

"Good-paying, clean industries will create a competitive atmosphere for our labor force. There will be tax benefits, too."

Roy Acuff His Old Self

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Roy Acuff, the "King of Country Music," has returned to the Grand Ole Opry stage following a four-month absence to recuperate from a heart attack.

"You know, I don't think anything could hurt me as bad as if I couldn't ever work the Opry again," Acuff said Wednesday after the Opry matinee. "I'd have to leave town — just get in my car and start going."

Acuff confessed after the first of two shows to having been "nervous, in need of experience and without the strength I'd like to have."

But on stage, he seemed his old self — yoyo tricks and all. Minnie Pearl, who dropped by the first show to see her oldest friend in his first performance, said proudly, "He was just fine. You know the old saying, a pro puts on a good show no matter what goes against him, and an amateur can't do a good show no matter what's going for him. And he's a pro."

Acuff told the audience that "if the management wanted him," he would be back this weekend for the regular Opry shows.

Harris Couple, Nice But Guilty

By LINDA DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A juror in the William and Emily Harris trial has given an inside view of deliberations among jurors who felt sorry for the "attractive couple" but convicted them of two crimes.

"There was a certain amount of sympathy involved," Richard Addison said of jurors' views of the Symbionese Liberation Army defendants.

"They are an attractive couple. They were not offensive in the courtroom. They were ordinary people," said Addison, 27.

Another juror, white-haired postman George Fields, said: "I think they were nice people. I saw nothing to disprove it."

The jury, which convicted the Harrises of kidnaping and robbery but acquitted them on six counts of assault, was not fazed by the couple's revolutionary ties, Addison said.

"Everyone is a revolutionary of sorts," he noted, "and we all do it in different ways."

The role of absent codefendant Patricia Hearst apparently was rarely discussed by the jurors, and they tried to ignore her part in the crime spree leading to the Harrises' indictment.

"We tried not to consider that," he said of Miss Hearst's actions. "We just kept our ideas on what was given to us through evidence."

Miss Hearst has admitted her part in a machine-gun assault and subsequent events in the Harris indictment. But she said she acted out of fear. She faces trial on the same charges Jan. 10 after her sentencing on a San Francisco bank robbery conviction.

Fields agreed with Addison on revolutionary references in testimony. "If they were revolutionaries, they appeared on the scene at the wrong time, possibly. The time has not yet come."

Addison said no single piece of evidence clinched the convictions: "It was not any one thing. It was a bundle."

Addison, one of three black jurors, agreed to a phone interview, breaking the jury's self-imposed silence, to deny charges of prejudice.

"This is mainly one of the reasons I'm speaking to you now," he told a reporter.

"I am convinced we gave them as fair a trial as we possibly could with the evidence before us. I don't see how they could ask for any more than what was given them based on the evidence."

Addison was resentful of accusations that the jury — and specifically juror Ronald Pruyn — had prejudged the Harrises.

"I feel it was unjust against the jury as a whole and especially Mr. Pruyn," said Addison. "He, as well as the rest of us, tried to be devoid of prejudice."

Citizens Group Meets Friday

Citizens for Total Positive Government will meet Friday at p.m. at St. Gabriel's School, 1101 Ward Street here.

The major item on the agenda will address the recent decision of the Greenville City Council to stagger the terms of members of the Council beginning with the 1977 elections. The available alternative is to petition the City Council to submit the question to a vote of the people. Other items of importance will also be discussed.

ined for possible after effects, the Army said.

The Air Force has taken over the task of examining 58 of its former personnel who were involved in the Army experiments.

The Army began looking for the 741 former military personnel in July 1975 after acknowledging publicly for the first time that it had given them LSD.

Army officials defended the experiments as a necessary part of a study of a variety of chemicals and drugs that might pose potential problems for the Army and the civilian population.

regulations allocated instructional time "almost to the minute," with the result that no time could be set aside for religious instruction. The rules demanded that "all" school activities must conform "to policies adopted by the Board of Education." Under the Minimum Standards, the Christian Tabernacle School would be compelled to submit constant written evidence of its "cooperation and interaction" with the community.

Within this little school house, the state decreed, "organized group life of all types must act in accordance with established rules of social relationships and a system of social controls." Brother Levi couldn't figure out what that sentence meant, but he figured it must mean something or it wouldn't be there. He saw his religious freedom in jeopardy, and he fought back. Hallelujah! He won.

The comprehensive Minimum Standards, said the court, could result in "the absolute suffocation of independent thought and educational policy." The effect of the standards is "to obliterate the philosophy of the school and to impose that of the state." Two members of the court, Justices Leonard J. Stern and Thomas M. Herbert, dissented from the majority opinion, but all participating justices concurred in the judgment: Convictions reversed, and defendants dismissed.

It was a victory not only for the Rev. Wiz, but also for William B. Ball of Harrisburg, Pa., the brilliant lawyer who five years ago led the fight for the Amish that resulted in Wisconsin v. Yoder. On the long hard road to religious freedom, this Ohio case is a happy milestone. Mark it, friend, as we all pass by.

Evans-Novak....

Moreover, the Kissinger option does not even consider yet another gray-area weapons system developed by ingenious Soviet technicians: the SS-20 missile. While claimed to be just short of intercontinental range, it could be hastily converted into a strategic weapon. Thus, the Kissinger option would permit development of two potentially strategic Soviet systems, the Backfire and the SS-20, outside the strategic ceiling—no matter how low that ceiling goes.

The military chiefs, more passive than Pentagon civilians in recent years, are now fighting hard over SALT II. The estimable Gen. Frederick Weyand, lameduck Army Chief of Staff and long the toughest of the Chiefs has been joined by Gen. George S. Brown, recently confirmed for another term as chairman of the Joint Chiefs. Brown's conversion may have been influenced by the prodding in secret confirmation hearings by hard-line Sen. Henry M. Jackson, who ended up voting for him.

The real hopes of the hard-liners rest with Secretary Rumsfeld. Normally a trimmer, he is now talking plain and hard: the Backfire is a strategic weapon, no matter what the CIA says, and it is intolerable to permit the Backfire while sacrificing cruise missiles. That's what Rumsfeld is saying not only privately but in high-level meetings.

Were Rumsfeld and Kissinger in a great debate for the President's mind, the issue would be in doubt. But the Gerald Ford of 1976, after so much time at Dr. Kissinger's side, is not the strategic arms neophyte who entered office 24 months ago on Aug. 9, 1974. "It would be wrong to call Ford a puppet of Henry," says one well-informed hard-liner on Capitol Hill. "I think he is now a convinced and committed disciple."

If this is correct, it is difficult to imagine the Pentagon staging a real revolt. That is why the Ford administration, in what could be its final major act, may exchange reduced overall strategic limits for clear Soviet advantages in gray-area systems—a cost military experts say is much too high to pay.

Sniper Seized After Two Killed

By DAVE BARTEL
Associated Press Writer
WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — An 11-minute hail of sniper bullets from the top floor of a Holiday Inn raked shoppers and workers in Wichita's downtown area, killing two persons and wounding seven. The gunfire on Wednesday from the top of the tallest building in Kansas ended when five police officers fired a volley of shots through a wall, wounding a 19-year-old man armed with two rifles. The man, identified as Michael Soles of Sand Springs, Okla., was under guard at a hospital. He was reported in fair condition with leg wounds.

Charges were expected to be filed today. Victims of what witnesses said was apparently random firing from the 26th floor of the Holiday Inn Plaza included workmen and office workers, shoppers, teen-agers waiting to buy tickets to a rock concert and a news photographer who had rushed to the scene.

Dead were Joe Goulart, 56, a free-lance photographer killed when a bullet smashed through the windshield of his car less than a block from the hotel; and Elmer W. Hensley, 57, a glass company worker, who died after he was struck in the back by a bullet as he stood on the roof of an adjoining building.

One of the seven persons wounded was in critical condition and two were listed as in serious condition.

Soles was described by relatives in Oklahoma as a "deeply religious boy" who had no history of trouble. A welder by trade, he had gone to Wichita several months ago seeking work, they said.

Friends and neighbors in Wichita described Soles as friendly and personable, a chunky, red-haired young man who helped one man fix his car and was a babysitter for the children of the minister with whom he was staying. The minister, the Rev. Timothy Hutton, would not talk with reporters.

Scores of police converged on the Holiday Inn within minutes of the first shooting report at 2:54 p.m. Wednesday. Shots were already raining down on the street as police opened fire. Bullets spattered buildings and streets during a light drizzle.

"I must have heard 30 or 35 shots," said Dan Bachmann, an attorney in a neighboring building. "Then I saw him (the gunman) throw down what appeared to be two rifles. The next thing I saw up there were two or three police officers."

Among the seven wounded was Mark Falen, 23, a bank loan officer, who was in critical condition with a neck wound he received while walking to his office.

In serious condition were Arnold Merritt, 51, another glass worker who was hit in the chest and knee, and Denise Guseman, 16, of Derby, Kan., who was hit in the neck.

Penny Guseman, 17, sister of Denise, was treated and released after receiving superficial wounds on her right arm and left leg. Also released were Janice Goodwin, 14, Chris Hoy, 24, and Larry Ade, 25, of Augusta, Kan.

At least two other persons were injured by flying glass during the shooting.

Witnesses said later they had seen a man carrying two weapons, identified as a 30-30 bolt-action rifle and a .22 caliber semiautomatic with a telescopic sight, from a car to the hotel.

FBI Informer Policies Will Undergo A Review

By MARGARET GENTRY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI Director Clarence Kelley is launching a major review of policies for recruiting, using and paying informers.

"I am not satisfied that our present program . . . best meets our needs," Kelley said in announcing the project Wednesday. "I am not satisfied that we have sufficiently explained to the American people the necessity for having sources."

At a news conference, Kelley said he could not state flatly that FBI agents and informers have stopped burglarizing homes and offices of American citizens.

"I wish I could say categorically, unquestionably, that this is not going on," Kelley said. "I will say, however, that I feel that it is not being done. I can also say if I determine it's being done now, I will take action."

Kelley said he was deceived by FBI officials when he said last year that there had been no FBI burglaries since 1969.

Six weeks ago, he said there had been burglaries as recently as 1973.

"I can no longer make categorical, sweeping statements," he said.

Kelley is initiating the review of the informer policy following reports that FBI informers have committed crimes, including burglaries, to gather information and sell it to the FBI.

The Justice Department currently is investigating whether a Denver informer, Timothy Redfean, broke into the Socialist Workers party office there and carted away scores of documents only six weeks ago.

During various investigations and lawsuits over the past two years, informers have claimed they committed crimes or encouraged violence while working for the FBI. The FBI has disputed some of the accounts.

An FBI spokesman said Kelley has not yet appointed the special task force that will make the internal review on informants, but the membership will be drawn from several divisions of the agency.

"They will go into how we recruit them, how we develop them, how we use them, the whole ball of wax," the spokesman said. "It will be a massive job. They will probably review every informant file."

FBI officials refuse to estimate how many informers they have. The FBI spends about $3.5 million on informer operations.

SAMPLES MARTIAN SOIL — The collector head of Viking's surface sampler is full of Martian soil destined for the gas chromatograph mass spectrometer, the instrument which will check for presence of organic molecules. Material was scooped up August 3, but arm stopped operating. It is now back in operation. Cameras were focused on collector head, throwing Martian surface view out of focus. (AP Wirephoto)

Phillips, Currin Seek Mandate

By GAIL GREGG
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — The contest for the Democratic nomination for state superintendent of public instruction appears to be on two levels.

On the one hand, incumbent A. Craig Phillips and Rocky Mount School Superintendent Ben Currin are out to get themselves elected.

On the other hand, the differing educational philosophies of the two candidates represented are also awaiting a voter's mandate.

Phillips came into office in 1968 on promises of "productive innovation." Currin calls himself a back-to-basics man. He charges that the Phillips administration has "put change and innovation above good solid teaching in the primary and secondary grades."

But Phillips' story is different. "When somebody talks about going back to the basics, I would tell you nobody ever left them," he says.

He maintains that the programs and changes instituted during his eight years as superintendent did not replace the basics and expanded and supplemented them.

"When you go to a specialized tutorial program, that's not leaving the basics, that emphasizes it," Phillips said.

Currin's campaign platform is a simple one: Concentrate on reading, writing and arithmetic in the early grades. Maybe even devote the first two years entirely to the subjects. Thus, his election style is primarily accusational.

He has criticized Phillips on an alleged breakdown of discipline in the school, unsuccessful career education programs, and the growth of the educational bureaucracy.

Phillips' administrative staff has grown by 1,000 per cent since he took office, Currin charges. The research and development staff alone has increased by 2,700 per cent, he says.

Those figures look different on Phillips' books, however. He confirms that the staff grew by 56.7 per cent during his tenure as head of public schools. The research and development staff increased from five positions in 1968 to 37 in 1976 (10.5 of those are federally funded. But that's nowhere near 2,700 per cent, he says.

According to the state budget office, staff positions grew from 157 in 1968 to 300 in 1976. The authorized budget for the public instruction administration increased from $1,474,686 to $4,821,659 during that same period.

Budget officer Janie Wheeler said, however, that the staff growth figures are misleading. They include 52 federally-funded positions and office clerical staff, not counted the 1968 figures.

The staff increases were needed, Phillips maintains. "For instance," he said, "in 1969, there was one classified educational researcher in an agency that was dealing with millions of dollars.

"One of the loudest cries of the legislature and the people in general was 'tell us how we're doing.' There was no capability for this sort of thing."

The testing program that Phillips' new research staff developed has enabled them to tell the public how students are doing. But, unfortunately for Phillips, the test results were not good. They showed that North Carolina pupils fall several months behind the national average in reading, writing and arithmetic.

Currin and state Board of Education Chairman Dallas Herring blame the results on Phillips. But he says they fail to point out that although students are below the national average in North Carolina, they are improving. "And we don't know where kids were three years before that (1971)," he notes.

The testing program has not been the only issue on which Herring has criticized Phillips. A classicist, he has opposed the superintendent's ideas on vocational education, and has challenged his claims of good results from new programs.

That Herring and Phillips have conflicting ideas about education stems partially from the organizational structure of the state school system. Unlike local school boards, whose members are elected and then choose their own chairmen, members of the state board are appointed by the governor.

Phillips favors a constitutional amendment that would allow citizens to elect the board, which would then choose a chairman. He also favored separating the community colleges and comptrollers departments from the board of education, now the umbrella agency for all three divisions.

Currin said he favors the present system.

Currin, who is 40 years old, grew up in Oxford, N.C. He received his undergraduate and graduate degrees from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. Currin has worked in public schools in North Carolina as teacher, principal and assistant superintendent (of Halifax County schools).

His campaign is being waged by fellow superintendents, primarily from the state's rural counties. His almost makeshift campaign headquarters in Raleigh is manned by two full-time staff members. Cole Porter, Currin's campaign manager, to accumulate more for a media campaign late in the summer.

"Teachers are a happy lot... when they put fewer dollars into taxes and more into retirement. Our annuities make it easy.

Let's talk happiness. Professionally."

Most Wanted Mexico Guerrilla Shot Down

By SALLY-ANN WELFORD
Associated Press Writer
MEXICO CITY (AP) — Police say Mexico's most wanted guerrilla has been killed in an unsuccessful attack on the sister of President-elect Jose Lopez Portillo.

Police spokesman Carlos Santini said the body of David Jimenez Sarmiento, the leader of the 23rd of September Communist League, was identified by fingerprints. Police are searching for two men and a woman who with Sarmiento attacked the car of Margarita Lopez Portillo on Wednesday.

"It was a miracle Mrs. Lopez Portillo escaped without a scratch," said Santini. One of her bodyguards was killed and three others were wounded. Her car was riddled with bullet holes and its rear windshield was blown out.

Police said a taxi pulled in front of the woman's car Wednesday morning in a residential section near downtown Mexico City, and three men and a young woman jumped out firing submachine guns and pistols.

Mrs. Lopez Portillo's driver was wounded and lost control of the car, which bounced off several others cars before crashing into the door of a drugstore, police said.

A carload of bodyguards following the president-elect's sister roared up with guns blazing. Police said Sarmiento died with a .38-caliber pistol in one hand.

Two cars and a taxi were found a few blocks away shortly after, and police said they apparently were the guerrillas' getaway cars. They said a .45-caliber revolver and explosives were found in one of the cars.

Authorities believed the guerrillas were trying to kidnap Mrs. Lopez Portillo, who although married uses her maiden name. Her brother was elected July 4 and takes office Dec. 1.

Neither Lopez Portillo nor President Luis Echeverria were available for comment.

The 23rd of September League is the most active of about a dozen urban guerrilla groups in Mexico. It has been blamed for killing at least 17 policemen in the past year, kidnapping the Belgian ambassador's daughter last May, and robbing several banks, including a theft of $500,000 last June in Monterrey.

The league is understood to include some 40 to 60 young men and women as active members, with perhaps another 500 supporters. It takes its name from the date guerrillas attacked a military barracks in the northern state of Chihuahua 10 years ago. All the attackers were killed.

Leaf Prices Still Improve

FARMVILLE — Grade for grade, prices were strong and the qualities continued to improve on the Farmville Tobacco Market Wednesday, according to Louis Williams Sales Supervisor of the Farmville Tobacco Board of Trade.

"Top price paid for several sheets of leaf grades was $1.26 per pound. Quality grades and primings were selling unusually good," Williams said.

"Offerings consisted of less primings and nondescript grades and more lugs and cutters and leaf grades," he added.

Stabilization receipts accounted for only 2.51 per cent of the gross sales. Wednesday 715,208 pounds were sold on the Farmville Tobacco Market for $812,208 with an average of $113.56 per 100 pounds. To date 7,466,676 pounds have been sold for $7,522,420 for an average of $100.75 per 100 pounds.

No Charges in Traffic Mishap

No charges were preferred or injuries reported as a result of a 12:50 p.m. wreck Tuesday on Chestnut Street west from Line Avenue.

Greenville Police reported that the traffic mishap involved cars operated by Tyrone Dixon of 118 S. Greene Street, and Thomas Jefferson Carmon of 603 E. McKinley Avenue.

Officers estimated damages at $175 to the Dixon vehicle and $125 to the car driven by Carmon.

WHO Blames 'Society' For Teenage Pregnancies

By JOHN A. CALLCOTT
GENEVA, Switzerland (UPI) — Abortions and pregnancies are on the increase among teenage girls around the world, but WHO says the girls are not to blame.

Doctors and sociologists contacted by the World Health Organization (WHO) say the fault lies with government and the society at large.

Girls today are losing their virginity at younger and younger ages and health experts are concerned at a serious increase in abortions and unwanted pregnancies among teenagers.

A report sent to WHO from Dr. Elsa Ryde-Blomquist of Stockholm's Karolinska Hospital said that between 50 and 75 per cent of girls the world over experience sex in their teens.

In some countries it's as high as 90 per cent, WHO says.

"The probability of coital relations before marriage has increased as has the likelihood of adolescents experiencing their first coital relations during their early teens," a WHO report said.

The experts say society has not recognized or accepted the fact that sexual behavior has changed and that youths today mature much faster.

Also, improved nutrition and health care have lowered the average age of menarche, or the first menstrual period, to just 12 years in developed countries. In developing nations it is still higher, but is dropping fast.

A number of countries have reported substantial increases in recent years in rates of birth out of wedlock and in abortion, with adolescents constituting a significant proportion of the cases.

But official facilities for providing teenagers with factual information about sex and contraception are badly lacking, or even illegal, in many countries, according to Dr. Karin E. Edstroem, of WHO's Maternal and Child Health Unit and formerly an obstetrician at Karolinska hospital.

"The attitude of governments must change because more and more young people are going to have sex anyway," she said. "Sex education would be like teaching young people how to drive and wouldn't make society more promiscuous," she added. "Values won't be threatened by factual information. Youth must be taught that sexuality involves responsibilities. This would reduce unwanted pregnancies and abortions."

In Finland, where 0.6 per cent of the female population had abortions, 32.1 per cent of abortion patients were found to have started sex before the age of 15.

"It has to be accepted that a large proportion of teenagers are sexually active and in need of sexual education or contraceptive advice," Dr. Ryde-Blomquist told WHO in her report.

"This need is urgent," she said. "Earlier, sexually-active teenagers were to be found most in the lower socioeconomic classes, but nowadays they tend to come just as often from the opposite end of the social scale."

Dr. Edstroem said perhaps only 25 per cent of sexually-active adolescents practice contraception.

"Sexual relations are over-romanticized in the media, especially the movies," she said. "There is certainly no information about what could happen."

Traditionally it was the family, and often the grandparents, that provided sex information to the younger members, she said. But the family is changing.

A meeting of 16 experts from 12 countries convened by WHO noted that young people increasingly leave the family home at earlier ages.

"Through education and mobility they have been more directly exposed than ever before to types of information and education not necessarily shared or understood by parents and other family members," the experts declared.

"The teenage girl is under considerable peer-group pressure to conform to new standards of behavior in sexual relations at a time when her knowledge of reproductive behavior and the implications of sexual intercourse may be limited," they said.

The meeting criticized the lack of legislative backing or approval of parents for schools to provide education on contraception.

Where family planning services do exist, it said, they are mainly designed for older, married women with "custom, tradition and even legislation tending to prohibit and limit their utilization by adolescents."

Schools may be likelier to help, and teachers more ready to discuss sex with pupils, if the term "sex education" is changed to a more acceptable "family life education," the experts concluded.

Recommending separate services for adolescents, the meeting stated that "social services are so designed to preclude the pregnant adolescent from taking advantage of privileges that are automatically available to older married women."

Crime Prevention Effort Paying Off

The "Burglary Reduction Program" initiated by the city's Crime Prevention office, in conjunction with "Operation Identification," is paying off, according to Chief of Police Glenn Cannon.

Cannon said that during the project period of July 1, 1975 through June 30, 1976, overall burglaries increased only seven-tenths of one per cent as compared with a 63 per cent increase from 1973 to 1974.

According to Cannon, total burglaries for 1974 amounted to 551, including 382 business incidents and 169 residential burglaries. For the project period, total burglaries increased by only four to 555, including a reduction to 292 in business burglaries and 263 in residential break-ins.

Dean Announced At Wayne CC

William P. Siler has been appointed Dean of Students at Wayne Community College, according to the college's president Dr. Clyde A. Erwin, Jr.

Siler replaces Bob Waller, who resigned last month. He has been employed at Wayne Community College since 1969 as a Counselor-Financial Aide Officer. He holds a B.A. degree from Agricultural and Technical College of North Carolina and a masters from ECU.

The chief said that the Crime Prevention section set a goal to engrave identification numbers on valuables in at least 150 homes and businesses during the project period. The service was actually performed at 203 locations, he said.

Of the homes that made use of the service, only two were broken into, he added. One of the homes was entered on a Sunday night and most of the items were recovered on Tuesday, Cannon reported. The second break-in occurred at a sorority house and the items taken had not been marked with the identification numbers.

Crime Prevention personnel made 41 public appearances before different groups during the project period in order to educate the public on the benefits of the program.

Cannon said that in addition to the "Operation Identification" visits, the Crime Prevention officer, with assistance from Uniform Division personnel, completed 405 "Breaking and Entering Scene Reports" and 5,366 "Vacation House Checks."

He said the city will continue to emphasize crime prevention through the activities of the Crime Prevention Squad.

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA) — The trend on the North Carolina f.o.b. dock broiler market was weak today with supplies fully adequate, demand moderate. The North Carolina dock weighted average price is 43.20 cents per pound this week for small purchases of sized plant grade broilers to be picked up at processing plants. Estimated slaughter today was 1,278,000.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today, pausing after some sharp swings in the two previous sessions. Trading was fairly quiet. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up 1.49 at 988.28 after the first half hour of the session. But losers held a slight edge on gainers in the over-all count of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The Dow jumped nearly 10 points on Tuesday, but fell back 6 on Wednesday, marking another failure by the market to mount a sustained rally. This morning, the government reported that its wholesale price index rose a moderate .3 per cent last month. The figure was apparently about what most investors had expected.

Tire and rubber stocks were mostly higher following the prediction from Labor Secretary W.J. Usery that the 16-week-old strike in the industry was near an end after agreement on some basic issues. Goodyear was up 1/4 at 22 1/2, B.F. Goodrich added 1/4 to 28 1/4, and Uniroyal picked up 1/4 to 9 1/4. Firestone held steady at 23 1/4.

Actively traded American Stock Exchange issues included Houston Oil & Minerals, down 1/4 at 54; Champion Home Builders, off 1/4 at 4, and Great Basins Petroleum, unchanged at 3 1/4.

Viking II Hunts For A Martian Landing Area

By RICHARD SALTUS
AP Science Writer

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—The second Viking probe has begun its hunt for a safe place to touch down in a region of Mars that appears more hazardous, but more interesting, than Viking 1's landing place.

From its orbit around Mars, Viking 2's cameras are searching for a smooth site in the planet's northern latitudes. Scientists hope the environment there might be more suitable for the existence of Martian life forms.

Ninety-six photographs were taken Wednesday, but they were mainly for calibrating and focusing the twin cameras.

Viking 2 is in an orbit that will bring it over different spots each day for photo-taking. This way it will be able to look at the three widely separated search areas during August.

A heat-sensing instrument is also being used in the site search because the roughness of terrain can be reckoned from a pattern of temperature changes on the surface.

Some of the potential landing areas have been photographed. Generally they appeared cratered and cracked, and even the smoother locations have protrusions that one scientist called "measles."

None of the potential landing areas for Viking 2 look as safe as the Viking 1 landing area. After the Viking 1 lander had safely touched down, the area was found to be strewn with boulders that could have wrecked the craft.

Meanwhile, researchers at Viking mission headquarters here reported Wednesday on some photos taken by Viking 1's mother ship, still in orbit about the planet. They said the photos are considered the first clear evidence of Martian ground fog. Dr. William Baum said the photos showed that water held in Martian soil, perhaps as permafrost, is given off into the atmosphere in the early morning and hangs as fog.

The importance of this process is biological. Some scientists think Martian organisms could have learned to use the very tiny amounts of water available near the surface for life. They have speculated that the organisms could pump the water vapor from the air or that the melting permafrost might exist temporarily as water on the surface.

In any case, the amount of water would be incredibly slight. At its wettest, Mars is drier than the driest deserts on earth.

Viking 1's life-search experiment had no new findings to report Wednesday, but the mechanical arm that had jammed in the middle of acquiring a soil sample last week was commanded to dump its load into a hopper of the lander's automated laboratory.

An important organic analysis of Martian soil was to be carried out today by the robot laboratory, with results due by Saturday.

Wayne Payton Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond P. Smith of Greenville was named a recipient for a three year Army ROTC Scholarship beginning the fall term of the school year at North Carolina Agricultural and Technical State University.

He is a sophomore biology major and plans to study medicine after graduation.

No-Fault Insurance 'Basically Better' Says Joseph Johnson

By BARBARA MATHEWS
Reflector Staff Writer
No-fault insurance is "basically a better system that will cost people more money," according to Joseph E. Johnson, Democratic candidate for commissioner of insurance.

Johnson was campaigning in Greenville yesterday.

"I'm proposing that the General Assembly authorize a study in 1977," he said.

"During the '78 term, specific cost estimates should be made known, and there should be public debate.

"The plan should not even be considered for adoption until 1979.

"The vast majority of accident victims have relatively minor injuries involving medical expenses and loss of income which otherwise go uncompensated under the current tort system.

"What we need is a system that will provide more compensation to more accident victims while still preserving the right to sue for ultimate recovery for those who are seriously injured."

Johnson said he has "nothing to apologize for" concerning his involvement with the insurance industry.

"As a professor of insurance, I obviously need to know people who are practicing in the business, just as a journalism professor needs to know people in the newspaper field," he said.

"I certainly have nothing to apologize for in my knowledge in the field in which I teach.

"Since I have been giving seminars and teaching classes, I know and am known by the insurance industry, and I'm proud they have enough respect for me to support me in my campaign."

Johnson said as insurance commissioner he would recommend that group insurance policies be convertible.

"Many people lost coverage in '74 and '75 because their group insurance did not convert to individual insurance when they lost their jobs," he said.

"All group policies should be converted to individual policies at full benefit. Employees should be notified at the time of termination as to how to convert their policy."

He also said he favors extending health insurance to cover mental and nervous disorders and alcoholism.

"Today, every county in the state has a mental health center," said Johnson.

"These disorders are treatable, curable and insurable.

"As commissioner of insurance, I would not approve any new health policies of a comprehensive nature for the state which did not include policies for these illnesses when treatment is provided by a licensed physician and accredited treatment facilities.

"There are a lot of people who go without treatment because their present health insurance will not cover it."

Woody's Ramblin's

BY WOODY PEELE

From looking at a number of the pre-season football forecasts, it would appear that East Carolina University is the solid favorite to win the Southern Conference title.

A couple of the magazines do not pick the Pirates, listing Appalachian State as the favored team. And one picks The Citadel to finish above the Pirates.

But none of them are really counting the Bucs out of the race.

It could all boil down to the final game of the season, when Appalachian State moves into Ficklen Stadium to meet the Pirates.

Naturally, ECU officials are hoping that the Pirates and Mountaineers can both get that far without a defeat. Such a game, matching 10-0 teams would certainly draw an overflow crowd, and might even get a shot at a television broadcast.

Both, however, have tough schedules to get through before that time. Appalachian must face South Carolina, a team it upset last year, and the Gamecocks will certainly be gunning for them. Then, there are their traditional rivalries with Lenoir Rhyne and Western Carolina, two teams who have caused big problems in Boone for some time.

East Carolina's opening game is no easy one. Southern Mississippi is no pushover by any means. They could have one of the better independent teams in the South this year.

They certainly will remember the upset the Bucs pulled on them several years back when Sonny Randle was the coach, and they'll be out to get revenge.

Then, the Bucs must face N.C. State in Raleigh. This has developed into one of the top state rivalries, with huge crowds attending each season, and this year should be no different.

If the Bucs should manage to get by both of these teams, then they might face their toughest assignment of the season — William & Mary.

Now don't laugh at that. The Pirates will be at their highest for the first two games and there will almost certainly be a letdown for the Indian contest. If they are to be ripe for an upset, this just might be the key game.

None of the rest will be easy either. The Citadel has always been a tough game for the Bucs, as has Furman. North Carolina will certainly be out for blood after last year's defeat, and any of the others are capable of pulling off a victory.

It's going to have to be a year of special people if the Bucs are to go into that final game unbeaten. It's possible, but it's going to take a lot of hard playing.

Several of the Bucs are tabbed for stardom this year by the football magazines.

Naturally, Jim Bolding heads the list, making the All-America teams (first unit) of several. On almost all, he's listed among the top men in the area. Cary Godette also draws a lot of praise and makes many of the all-area teams.

Playboy also lists Eddie Hicks as being one of the superstars of the ACC-Southern region.

And Greenville's Mike Brewington is listed by Playboy as one of the nation's Top Fifty Newcomers.

Fairfax Captures Babe Ruth Title

MONROE, N.C. (AP) — Fairfax, Va., won the Southeastern championship in Babe Ruth baseball by beating Clarksville, Tenn., 3-0 Wednesday on two-hit pitching.

The Fairfax players, aged 13 through 15, advanced to the Babe Ruth World Series, which starts Aug. 21 in Pueblo, Colo.

The winning pitcher, Greg Kot, held Clarksville hitless in the five innings he worked. Reliever Mark DeGiovanni yielded only two hits, singles, by Steve Blackwell and Mike Steadman.

The Clarksville starting pitcher, Ted Young, allowed all of Fairfax's six hits before he was relieved in the fourth inning by Guy Bass. One of the hits was a triple by Frank Holder that brought in a run in the first inning.

Status Of Richards Still Is Undecided

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The U.S. Open tournament committee volleyed the volatile problem, using a hot potato instead of a ball. A spokesman for the women players tried to quiet the tennis racket by discussing genetics. And as the sun set over the puzzled sport Wednesday, it seemed no progress had been made on the matter of a male transsexual trying to play professionally with — or against — female tennis players.

The tournament committee adjourned Wednesday without deciding to accept the application of Dr. Renee Richards — who as a male was known as Dr. Richard Raskind — for the women's competition at Forest Hills next month. All it would say through a spokesman is that "all entrants will be advised by Aug. 20 as to whether or not they've been accepted to compete in the tournament."

Dr. Richards already has been accepted to compete — as a woman — in the South Orange, N.J., Tennis Week Open which starts Aug. 21. That tournament's director, Gene Scott, said that he has received "a gynecological affirmation that she is a woman."

That affirmation was not sufficient for the Women's Tennis Association. WTA Executive Director Jerry Diamond said Wednesday that "women's tennis is for women. If she can pass the IOC (International Olympic Committee) test that she is genetically a woman, then she can play women's tennis."

It appeared, however, that the 6-foot-2 Dr. Richards would not pass such a test. "The physicians we've talked to say that a man has greater strength than a woman," explained Diamond. "If you have a 6-foot genetic man and a 6-foot genetic woman, the man is stronger than the woman. What they do to themselves is irrelevant."

And though Richard Raskind is now Renee Richards, chromosomes remain her genetic fingerprints. Doctors say the test will show Dr. Richards to be a man, despite appearance to the contrary.

"It's not a matter of discrimination," said Diamond. "If she can genetically prove it (her womanhood), we won't argue. If Renee Richards wants to challenge all the women's entrants at Forest Hills, they'll all have the chromosome-test. If they don't pass, they won't play, either."

Meanwhile, Dr. Richards claimed in a statement released through World Tennis magazine that she now is recognized as a woman "in the eyes of the law."

She is recognized, also, as a very good tennis player. "I knew Dr. Richard Raskind as a brilliant surgeon, an outstanding tennis player and a terrific sportsman," said Gene Scott. As Dr. Richards last month, the 41-year-old Renee beat the 21-year-old top seed Robin Harris to win a women's singles title at the La Jolla tennis tournament.

Whether she will be allowed to try at Forest Hills will be settled by Aug. 20.

Anderson Quit, But Morgan Knew Better

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson was ready to throw in the towel when his team fell nine runs behind the Cubs, but Reds second baseman Joe Morgan knew better.

When the wind is howling at Chicago's Wrigley Field, as it was Wednesday, no lead is safe.

"In the second inning, when we trailed 9-0, I told Morgan to mark one in the right-hand column — the loss column — for us," said Anderson. "There was no way we were going to win this game."

"But Joe told me I was out of my mind — when you play in Wrigley Field, you always have a shot."

The Reds, trailing the Cubs 9-0 and 10-1 in the early going, came back with their best shot. Two runs in the sixth on a Tony Perez homer. Four more in the seventh — three on a homer by Johnny Bench. One in the eighth on an RBI single by Bench. The gap was down to 10-8.

Then, in the ninth, Ken Griffey cracked his sixth homer of the year, a dramatic, two-out, two-run shot that brought the Reds even.

By the 10th, though the score was tied, the outcome was virtually assured. Three Reds runs, aided by a pair of Cub errors, capped the comeback.

Elsewhere in the National League, the Los Angeles Dodgers blanked the Pittsburgh Pirates 2-0, the Philadelphia Phillies beat the Atlanta Braves 4-1, the Montreal Expos outscored the San Francisco Giants 9-3, the New York Mets edged the San Diego Padres 2-1 and the Houston Astros defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 8-1.

"With the windblowing out in

The Chicago Cubs drew more than one million fans last season for the eighth straight year yet suffered a net loss of $154,783.

Wrigley Field, it's such a hitters' paradise that I'd really rather be behind than have a big lead," said Anderson, who got his wish as Steve Swisher drove in four runs with a single and a pair of triples — one in a seven-run second inning that featured eight consecutive hits — as Chicago built a 10-1 lead.

But Cubs starter Bill Bonham couldn't stand the prosperity.

Phils 4, Braves 1
Philadelphia snapped a 1-1 tie with a pair of runs in the fifth, thanks to two throwing errors by Atlanta third baseman Jerry Royster.

The Phillies now lead the second-place Pittsburgh Pirates in the NL East race by 1 1/2 games — their widest margin of the season.

Dodgers 2, Pirates 0
Ron Cey belted his 18th homer of the year to back the five-hit pitching of Rick Rhoden, who struck out four and walked three in raising his record to 10-1.

Mets 2, Padres 1
Mike Vail drove in both Mets runs with a first-inning double and Jon Matlack and Skip Lockwood made them stand up by combining on a seven-hitter. Matlack got his 12th victory and Lockwood his 13th save.

Expos 9, Giants 3

Tim Lincecum belted a two-run double to key a six-run outburst in the sixth inning which broke the game open for Montreal. Larry Parrish, Del Unser and Woodie Fryman had run-scoring singles and Gary Carter, who homered earlier, drove in a run with a triple in the big inning.

Astros 8, Cards 1
Larry Dierker, 12-10, scattered nine hits for Houston, which scored three runs in the third and four more in the sixth. Wilbur Howard's run-scoring triple was the key blow in the third and Ken Boswell's two-run double highlighted the seventh.

Tourney Opening

The Greenville Recreation and Parks Department is hosting the Ladies State USSSA Softball Tournament, today through Sunday.

A total of twenty-nine teams will be competing for the two berths to the Class A World Tournament to be held Sept. 3-6 in Petersburg, Va.

Several area teams will be participating. Beltone, the defending State champion; Grady White, Wachovia, and Brewer & Marshall, all from Greenville, along with Morgan Printers of Washington.

All games will be played at Evans Park. The tournament will start tonight with the finals slated for 6:00 p.m. Sunday. The public is invited.

ACC Football Teams Set To Open Drills

By The Associated Press
There are two new head football coaches among the seven Atlantic Coast Conference schools, Bo Rein at North Carolina State and Dick Bestwick at Virginia.

Rein, whose team starts pre-season practice next Monday, has 37 lettermen, including 12 of last season's starters under Lou Holtz, now with the pro New York Jets. The Wolfpack went to four consecutive bowls under Holtz. Running back Ted Brown, 1975 ACC rookie of the year, heads the ground attack, and Johnny Evans is a triple threat quarterback. Rein believes the team will have speed and quickness. Virginia begins practice Aug. 20. Bestwick takes over a squad that includes 46 lettermen, 19 of whom started last year. Under Sonny Randle, Virginia finished 1-10 last season, winning only over VMI, by a point. Bestwick says lack of an experienced quarterback and of "everyday football fundamentals" made for a trying spring practice.

North Carolina, next to last in the league a year ago, will be the first to start pre-season practice, on Friday the 13th. The early start is because the Tar Heels are one of three ACC teams which open the season Sept. 4, all at home. North Carolina will meet Miami of Ohio, N.C. State will play Furman and Wake Forest will meet Virginia Tech.

Wake Forest starts practice next Monday. Other starting practice dates are Clemson, Saturday; Maryland, Tuesday; and Duke, Aug. 23.

The first full slate of games will be Sept. 11. Clemson will be home to the Citadel; Maryland home to Richmond, and Virginia at Washington, all in the afternoon. There will be three games that night: N. C. State at Wake Forest, Duke at Tennessee and North Carolina vs. Florida at Tampa.

Bill Dooley, dean of conference head football coaches, starts his 10th year after a disappointing 3-7 record last year. It gave him a nine-year mark of 52-47-1. He has 38 lettermen back, including 17 starters.

He has 36 lettermen back, 18 of them 1975 starters. Last year's big, inexperienced line is back almost intact. There is quarterback maturity in Jerry McManus and Mike McGlamry. John Zeglinski, one of the nation leaders in all-purpose running, also returns. Mills looks to freshmen for depth in most positions. Mike McGee starts his fifth started last year when the Terps ran their conference winning streak to 15. The team finished 9-2-1 and beat Florida in the Gator Bowl last season.

Claiborne says his team is as strong as in the past, perhaps a little bit bigger, but may not have the speed of last year. He has such fine performers as quarterbacks Mark Manges and Larry Dick, offensive tackle Dave Conrad, offensive guard Ed Fulton, defensive tackle Joe Campbell, defensive back Ken Roy, and kicker Mike Sochko.

At Clemson, Coach Red Parker says the defensive unit made great progress in the spring, but has a long way to go. Parker says his offensive unit had its best spring, with quarterback Steve Fuller outstanding. Ten starters are back among 38 lettermen.

Wake Forest went 3-8 last fall to give coach Chuck Mills a three-year record of 5-27-1. He says the ACC was "a very young league" in 1975, which gave the Deacons a chance to be competitive.

"This fall we will be in a more mature league. We have lost our surprise factor," he says.

Field Goal Allows Giants To Take Win

NEW YORK (AP) — John Mendenhall, the New York Giants' defensive tackle, raced onto the field and jumped high in the air, giving the victory sign over and over, as a salute to George Hunt's third field goal, which had just beaten the New York Jets 16-14 Wednesday night.

Hunt's game winner came from 34 yards out with a mere 16 seconds left on the clock — and it meant nothing in the standings of the National Football League. But to Mendenhall and the Giants, it was bragging rights for the entire season.

"We proved we are better than them," said John. "This team is going to be all right this year and beating the Jets is still a big thing."

"Both teams played well," said Giants Coach Bill Arnsparger. "New York may have two good teams this year." Hunt, who had missed repeatedly in 1975 on field goal and extra point attempts, redeemed himself, with three for four, hitting on shots from 23, 37 and 34 yards, and missing on a 32-yarder which hit the right upright.

"We timed things tonight. I got my kicks off in 1.3 seconds. When they take as long as 1.4, it means you run a big chance of being blocked. After last year we worked long and hard to tighten up coordination between the line and myself. This is gratifying."

For the Giants, the victory was a morale booster, and they raised their record against the Jets in pre-season play since 1969 to 5-2-1. They split two regular-season games, with the Jets winning the last one, in 1974, in overtime.

The serious nature of the contest was shown by the fact that Arnsparger and Jets Coach Lou Holtz left their regulars in most of the game. Only Joe Namath (10 of 24 and 116 yards) and Craig Morton (19 of 32 and 211 yards) worked at quarterback.

After the Jets had seemingly scored the winning TD, with just 2:12 left via a seven-yard Namath pass to rookie running back Lou Giammona, the Giants roared back to win the game. Starting on their own 29, they reached striking distance for Hunt.

Jerry Claiborne has a 30-15-2 record and three bowl teams in four years at Maryland. The Terps will be trying for a record-equaling third straight ACC title.

Claiborne has 32 returning lettermen, including 10 who

Horton's Gift Best For Bird

By HOWARD SMITH
AP Sports Writer

They had a party for Mark Fidrych at Tiger Stadium and Willie Horton was the guest of honor.

Fidrych, the zany, mop-haired rookie right-hander with the live fastball, will turn 22 Saturday and 36,523 fans turned up Wednesday night to help him celebrate. Horton didn't get into the act until the ninth inning, but that was just in time to belt a pinch-hit home run for a 4-3 Detroit victory over the Texas Rangers.

"When he hit that ball I could have kissed him," said Tiger Manager Ralph Houk, not usually the kissing type.

Fidrych gave Horton a bear hug after he crossed the plate as the fans roared.

"When he hit that I felt so happy for him," said Fidrych. "He needed that. He hadn't hit a home run in a long time."

Tigers fans, who haven't had much to shout about in recent years, chanted and cheered long after the game ended until Fidrych and Horton returned from the clubhouse to take a bow.

Elsewhere in the American League, the New York Yankees beat Kansas City 5-3, California dumped Boston 6-0, Minnesota blanked Baltimore 2-0, Cleveland got by Chicago 4-3 in 10 innings and Oakland trimmed Milwaukee 8-5.

Fidrych, 13-4 with a league-leading 1.97 earned run average, has done more for the Tigers than win ballgames. In the last 10 games he's pitched 424-657 fans have come to the ballpark. He hasn't appeared before a crowd of less than 30,000 in that span.

Fidrych was not at his best Wednesday night, surrendering runs in the second on a pair of singles and a passed ball, in the fourth on a homer by Mike Hargrove and in the seventh on a single by Gene Clines.

But the Tigers kept pace as Rusty Staub knocked in a pair of runs with a single and a home run, and Alex Johnson singled in another.

Left-hander Frank Tanana stopped Boston on two hits — singles by Dwight Evans and Rick Burleson — to raise his record to 14-8. Tanana struck out 10 batters and walked just one as the Angels vacated the cellar in the AL West.

Indians 4, White Sox 3
Rick Manning's run-scoring single in the 10th inning won it for Cleveland. Tommie Smith drove in two runs with a homer and a single, and Jim Kern, 8-5, was the winner in relief.

Bill Singer snapped a personal five-game losing streak with a five-hitter for Minnesota. Dan Ford knocked in both Minnesota runs with a single and a sacrifice fly.

A's 8, Brewers 5
Bert Campaneris had four hits, scored twice, drove in a run and stole a base as Oakland moved within 8½ games of front-running Kansas City in the AL West. Don Baylor added a two-run homer and Mike Torrez evened his record at 10-10 for the A's.

Crenshaw Doesn't Feel He's The One To Beat

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Leading money winner Ben Crenshaw refuses to take seriously the prediction of many observers that he is the man to beat in the 58th PGA Golf Championship, starting today.

"If I won, I would feel like I stole it," the young Texan said bluntly.

As he prepared to tee off against 139 professional rivals, the 24-year-old tour fledgling found himself confronted with all sorts of pressures — topping the year's money list with $213,201, hailed as the future super star and headlined in Washington papers as the pre-tournament favorite.

"A lot of people are getting ready for me to go out and win a major tournament," he said. "The way I'm hitting the ball and the way the other guys are hitting the ball, I don't deserve it."

"It's as simple as that. I am not hitting enough fairways. I am not hitting enough greens. When I go out to play, I figure I've got to bale a lot of hay."

Crenshaw played his final practice round with two other of the most formidable young lions — Jerry Pate and George Burns III — and the recognized king of the game, Jack Nick-laus, winner of 16 major crowns.

Out of the tough Texas proving ground that produced such fairway greats as Ben Hogan, Byron Nelson, Jimmy Demaret and Lee Trevino and cut from the same bolt of cloth, Crenshaw has measured up to all expectations except one — he has not yet won a major championship.

Off to a strong start, he has turned this into one of his finest years. He won the Crosby and Hawaii tournaments on consecutive weekends, finished second in the Masters as well as Pleasant Valley and Westchester and tied for eighth in the U.S. Open at Atlanta.

He has finished in the top 10 in 12 of 23 starts, his total prize money of $213,201 exceeding that of second place Hubert Green by almost $25,000. Nicklaus, with only one tournament victory, has won $152,019.

The scene of the 58th PGA is an arduous, demanding test measuring 7,054 yards and playing a par-70. It was on this course that Ken Venturi, playing in suffocating heat and gulping pills to keep him upright, won the U.S. Open in 1964 with a score of 278.

Most of the pros figure that a similar score could win here this weekend.

In addition to Nicklaus and Crenshaw, advance favorites include Jerry Pate, 22-year-old rookie who won both the U.S.

Schools Pledge To Upgrade The Southern

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Presidents, faculty representatives and athletic directors of the Southern Conference's six continuing schools have unanimously pledged to do all within their power to "maintain and strengthen" the conference.

Conference Commissioner Ken Germann, who announced the outcome of Wednesday night's closed meeting, said the resolution won unanimous approval of Dr. Herbert Way, chancellor of Appalachian State University; Lt. Gen. George Seignious II, president of The Citadel; Dr. Gordon Blackwell, president of Furman University; Dr. Robert Hayes, president of Marshall University; Dr. James Drinnon, chancellor of the University of Tennessee at Chattanooga; and Dr. H. F. Robinson, chancellor of Western Carolina University.

Marshall, UT-Chattanooga and Western Carolina are new members of the conference.

Representatives from Virginia Military Institute and Davidson College, institutions which are leaving the conference effective in June of next year, sat in on the meeting as observers but took no action in the session.

William and Mary and East Carolina University, also scheduled to leave the conference next year, were not represented.

Other matters discussed at the session, which ended about 11 p.m., included expansion, future funding, championship criteria in football and basketball, and the role of Southern Conference school presidents in the administration of the conference.

Germann said Dr. Frank Bonner, vice president of Furman and president of the conference, will appoint committees in all four areas and they will report back to the conference at its annual meeting in December.

The resolution said in part, "... we pledge ourselves to an enthusiastic support of and commitment to the Southern Conference, promising to do all within our power and resources to maintain and strengthen it as a strong and viable organization which will compete on the Division I level of the NCAA."

Spinks Gets Big Welcome

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — About 3,000 Marines and civilians gathered at Camp Lejeune's Goette Field House Wednesday to welcome the return of Cpl. Leon Spinks, Gold Medal boxing winner in the recent Olympic Games.

Already honored in Montreal and his hometown St. Louis, Spinks, the amateur light-heavyweight champion of the world, received a roof-raising, cheering, standing ovation as he was called from a dressing room by the narrator.

The crowd already had paid respects to the flag carried by a Marine color guard as the 2nd Division band played the National Anthem.

Then as quiet fell over the gymnasium where Spinks had trained for so long, the narrator, Sgt. Mike Connaly, announced over the public address system: "Will Cpl. Leon Spinks please report to the ring."

Spinks, in summer Marine dress and wearing his gold medal, marched crisply to the ring while the crowd cheered and the band played "St. Louis Blues."

Spinks was joined in the ring by Maj. Gen. Herman Poggemeyer, commanding general of Camp Lejeune, who congratulated the "fighting Marine from Camp Lejeune," as he came to be known to television viewers.

Poggemeyer also read a letter of congratulation from the commandant of the U. S. Marines.

Earlier, Spinks had received a telegram from his commander in chief, President Ford, and a telephone call from the Marine commandant.

Relaxed Mood At AAU Event

By BOB DVORCHAK
Associated Press Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — When Casey Converse hit the wall first in the men's 400 freestyle in the AAU National Swimming Championships here, he reached over to hug teammate and double Olympic gold medal winner Brian Goodell.

"I told him winning the national championship is nothing like winning a gold medal," said the 18-year-old Converse, who is swimming for the Mission Viejo, Calif., Swim Club.

All the swimmers who competed Wednesday night in the opening of the four-day championships agreed the mood here is very relaxed from the Olympics. And the times are reflecting that.

Three meet records fell. But none approached the world marvels that fell so frequently in Montreal.

"It's awful hard coming back to a meet after the Olympics," admitted John Naber, who won the 200 backstroke in 2:03.73, over 4½ seconds slower than his world record time of 1:59.19.

"I gave it 100 per cent," said the 6-foot-6 crowd favorite. "I'd be embarrassed to say anything else."

Converse, a member of the U.S. Olympic team, failed to make the finals in Montreal. Goodell won the event in record time.

"After I missed the finals, I wanted to show the folks back home I can swim," said the 18-year-old Converse, who plans to attend Alabama in the fall. Converse won in 3:54.65 and Goodell had 3:57.00.

Wendy Boglioli, a member of the 400 freestyle relay team that claimed the only U.S. women's gold at Montreal, broke the AAU meet record in the 100-meter butterfly twice.

The 21-year-old senior at New Jersey's Monmouth College hit a 1:01.96 in the morning qualifiers, breaking her own 100 butterfly mark of 1:02.14 set earlier this year on a long course.

She lowered the mark again in the finals with a time of 1:01.76.

Shirley Babashoff, America's top woman swimmer, has scratched from all events here.

"I think Shirley's a little down," Boglioli said. "When she would come in second at the Olympics, the press would ask her questions like how does it feel to be at the bottom. That's tough for anyone to take."

Two Santa Clara, Calif., swimmers, John Hencken and Linda Jezek, also established new AAU records. Hencken broke his 1974 record of 1:04.38 with a clocking of 1:04.36 in the 100 breaststroke and Jezek swam the 200 backstroke in 2:17.33.

The old mark of 2:18.11 was set by Cheryl Gibson in April.

Other winners were Dawn Rodighiero of Mission Viejo in the women's 100 breaststroke (1:14.64); Rebecca Perrott of New Zealand in the 400 freestyle (4:17.60); and Greg Jagenburg of Newtown Square, Pa., in the men's 100 butterfly (55.72).

Tom-Tom Plant A Boon 'Catch 22' In Brazil's Welfare To Indian Community

drums use large cans collected by churches. At right, Caroline Andres puts finishing touches on tom-tom by attaching Milk Camp's label and a small feather.

ST. CHARLES, S.D. (AP) — An idea that drummed up community jobs and grew to an industry that produced 100,000 tom-toms last year is Milk Camp's success story.

Milk Camp is a community of Indian people south of St. Charles.

The Rosebud Sioux Indian Crafts Cooperative Inc. was formed in 1967-68 to spur jobs for the community, with Rev. Grandon Harris as coordinator. Hundreds of letters were written in an effort to locate jobs, import industry or create one.

When the effort proved unsuccessful, Julius Greenwald and the University of South Dakota's Community Action Project advised Milk Camp people to do their own manufacturing.

Hundreds of sample items were made, including wall hangings, tomahawks, beadwork and drums, to see which had marketable possibilities. The tom-tom was chosen.

Early in 1969, First Methodist Church of Brookings donated $2,400. By fall an old church parsonage had been converted into a manufacturing plant, but it was unheated and later the plant was transferred to the St. Charles Methodist Church building.

Joe Stars was hired to manage manufacture of the drums, and in January 1970 samples were taken to the Los Angeles Gift Show.

Donated trading stamps were used to buy St. Charles schoolhouse and seven acres of land. A New York City novelty distributor was contacted and a three-year contract written for 70 per cent of Milk Camp's production.

A small business loan was obtained and the first real production and sales began in January 1971. The industry, which switched to another jobber in mid-1972, now has 16 markets.

By early 1973 the industry was within 10 per cent of breaking even, having advanced from being 100 per cent subsidized in 1967 to needing an ever-diminishing amount of subsidizing.

Gross sales in 1973 were $45,000, and present hopes are for gross sales of about $140,000 annually.

New products introduced last year include a tomahawk, headdress and totem pole. Specially designed cardboard tubing is used for 5-inch drums and the 7-inch drums are made from large cans collected by churches.

Eight employees work at the plant, while a dozen Milk Camp families assemble drums in their homes. The home workers take out 500 drums at a time and return them for payment the next day. Drumsticks are also assembled at home.

By ROBERT E. SULLIVAN RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (UPI) — Leonardo David dos Santos, a 67-year-old retired lawyer living on the government-controlled social welfare retirement fund, poured a drink of imported scotch for a visitor and said, "I have no complaints."

He is one of the lucky ones in the Brazilian social welfare system. There are some less fortunate in a country where the minimum wage is $75 a month and minimum "welfare" even less, when they are available.

Dos Santos explained that as a self-employed lawyer for 39 years he had been paying a double contribution, — employer and employee — to the obligatory social welfare fund (INPS) and he now is reaping the benefits.

"I decided to retire after my third heart attack," he said. "I decided I would live a little less — a little less actively, a little less elaborately, and a lot longer."

Dos Santos' wife, Nadia, also 67, was a self-employed interior decorator for the same number of years, and also paid double contributions.

At the end of their active careers, the Dos Santos were paying almost $300 a month on a claimed monthly income of about $2,000.

Now retired, the INPS continues paying all their medical bills and provides them with about $1,500 a month on which to live.

The Dos Santos have a maid to whom they pay the government-set minimum wage. Dos Santos pays an additional eight per cent for INPS and the maid pays a matching eight per cent.

"I have no complaints," Dos Santos said. "It is a very, very good system."

Down the street in a slightly more modest home Roque Benjamin de Santo, an 80-year-old retired clerk living on INPS, said the system is "just enough to live modestly, but nothing more."

For 37 years de Santo contributed about eight per cent of his salary at the Canadian-owned electric light company of Rio and when he retired in 1965 he began receiving a continually re-adjusted pension which now amounts to about $290 a month.

Rent for the three-room apartment he shares with his wife, Neli, 71, and a mentally retarded 42-year-old daughter is about $100, and the rest, he says, "all goes, all of it goes, for food, medical attention and expenses. There's never anything left over at the end."

"I am very careful with the food expenditures," he said. "We always eat a kilo (2.2 lbs) of meat a week each."

Marlene Salgano, 70, hasn't worked a paying job in more than 40 years and, therefore, never contributed a cent to INPS. But recent legislation made her available for monthly payments anyway, and full medical coverage, on the basis of her age.

When her husband died on their small farm in southern Brazil she came to live with her daughter, Marlene de Souza, who is authorized to pick up her mother's benefits, which were readjusted upwards recently to $34 a month.

"That does not include the free medical care," said the daughter, "and she goes to the doctor often. She is well treated every time she goes to the clinic, and I am well treated when I come here (INPS office)".

With more than 50 per cent of all Brazilian workers being paid the minimum salary, and learning to live on it, the $34 that Mrs. Salgano receives is a help to her daughter's family.

About 56 million of Brazil's 110 million people are covered by INPS, a little more than 20 million more are entitled to similar services through the government fund for rural workers and their families.

Another one million people are entitled to more generous benefits of the government plan for military men and their dependents. Another two or three million people are wealthy enough to take care of their own without resorting to public funds at all.

The remainder, about 30 million people, are not covered by any welfare system. There is no unemployment insurance except in limited cases when an INPS contributor temporarily loses a job.

Persons not covered by INPS can still walk, or be carried, into any public hospital and receive free medical care from state-employed doctors and from otherwise high-priced specialists who are required by law to spend a certain amount of time working in the state hospitals.

But aside from medical care, those persons not covered by any social welfare insurance must rely on their relatives — in a country where the majority of workers are paid the minimum salary of $75 a month.

No Big Political Sums Yet By Interest Groups

RALEIGH (AP) — According to campaign finance reports filed this week, special interest groups are not investing heavily in 1976 political campaigns.

The reports may be somewhat misleading, however, because they list only donations and expenditures made before July 31. At least one major political committee has made contributions to campaigns since that date: the Political Action Committee for Education (PACE).

Its political finance report shows that although it had raised more than $60,000 from teachers across the state, it had not contributed to candidates for statewide office. Since the reporting deadline, however, PACE has donated $3,000 each to Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt, a Democratic candidate for governor, and David T. Flaherty, the group's choice in the Republican contest.

PACE has also given $2,000 each to two lieutenant gubernatorial candidates—Democrat Jimmy Green and GOP Odell Payne—and to Lane Brown, PACE's choice in the Democratic race for treasurer.

It is not known how many special interest groups, like PACE, have made contributions since the filing deadline.

The campaign finance reports do show that the same four or five special interest groups have made numerous contributions—often to several candidates for the same post.

They include Commonwealth Associations, the political arm of executives of Cameron Financial interests; PACE, the political arm of the state association of educators; the Public Affairs Fund, the political committee of United Carolina Bankshares; MED-PAC, the political group formed by North Carolina doctors; and a political action group formed by state chiropractors.

Hunt leads candidates in contributions from special interest groups. His report indicates that five groups donated $11,500 to his campaign, which has amassed total contributions of $938,305.

David Flaherty, GOP candidate for governor, has received $5,500 from several political groups and Green's special interest contributions total $7,000.

Sees End For Rubber Strike

By CHRIS CONNELL Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — Negotiators in the rubber workers' strike reached a breakthrough agreement on basic wage issues early today, and Labor Secretary W.J. Usery predicted it would bring the 16-week-old walkout to an end.

United Rubber Workers President Peter Bommarito reached the agreement on wages with Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. representatives in the middle of the night after five days of "virtually continuous bargaining," Usery said.

The agreement still must be approved by the URW-Firestone bargaining committee in Akron, Ohio, and other master contract issues remain to be resolved, Usery said.

But Usery and top federal mediator James F. Scarce predicted:

"We expect it to serve as a pattern for settlement of economic issues for other contracts between the United Rubber Workers and the rubber industry. And we feel it will bring an end to the 114-day-long strike by the union against the four major American rubber companies, Firestone, Goodyear, Goodyear and Uniroyal."

Some 60,000 rubbers workers have been on strike since April 21.

Usery and Scarce did not disclose details, but in a joint statement they said that "this economic package is more expensive than other settlements negotiated this year."

They added: "At the same time, we recognize that the members of the URW were caught in the restrictions of wage controls when they agreed to their last contract three years ago. URW members were among the few in major industries who received no cost of living protection during the time when inflation was at its worst."

They said the agreement "generally follows the recommendation for settlement made by us to the parties on Sunday."

Public Pensions: A Groping For Needed Solutions

By LEE MITGANG
Associated Press Writer

The cures for public pension funds that promise workers more than taxpayers can afford will have to come from the cities and states themselves. The search for solutions at the federal level is floundering.

Since the New York City crisis brought to light the pension problems of many cities and states, officials have tried to identify the nation's trouble spots.

A recent study by the brokerage firm of Smith Barney, Harris Upham & Co., for instance, concluded that five state-administered pension systems "appear to be underfunded to a significant degree." That means the state governments have made pension promises to its employees, but haven't faced up to the costs. Nor have they been willing or able to put aside the necessary cash to pay the future costs.

The states named in the study are Illinois, with a unfunded pension debt of $2.99 billion; Massachusetts with $7.4 billion; Connecticut with $2.1 billion; Michigan with $1.9 billion; and Florida with $1.8 billion.

Among city pension systems with giant unfunded pension debts are New York, where five plans have an estimated $8 billion in unfunded liabilities, and Washington, D.C., where three plans are unfunded by $1.8 billion. The Los Angeles City Fire and Police Pension System has unfunded liabilities of $1.69 billion.

Other city systems such as those in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh are facing pension problems, but no one really knows how many of the more than 6,000 public plans across the country might be headed for trouble.

Where problems do exist, experts believe the solutions lie in successfully answering several questions:

—What is the pension supposed to do for the worker?

—What will the city or state's pension promises cost future and present taxpayers?

—If the cost is too high, what can be done to control it?

The first question of what a pension is supposed to do is subject to disagreement.

In recent congressional testimony, Bernard Jump and Edward Cupoli of Syracuse University said: "Some would argue that a pension is merely a form of deferred compensation and should be evaluated accordingly. Some view pensions, or more precisely, extraordinarily large pensions after comparatively short service — as in the case of police and fire fighters — as rewards for hazardous work."

The two men said they disagreed with both views and accepted the position put forth by New York's Permanent Commission on Public Employe Pension and Retirement Systems which said: "The career public employee — the individual who devoted a working lifetime of 30 or more years to public service — should be guaranteed at normal retirement age an income which will allow him to maintain his pre-retirement standard of living."

The step of instituting benefit or contribution changes can be painful, costly and politically difficult for the city or state.

Massachusetts, whose 100 state-administered pension plans have always been on a pay-as-you-go basis, had to start from scratch in its search for solutions.

In 1974, the Massachusetts Retirement Law Commission identified a $7.4 billion unfunded pension liability in the state system. At that time, the state had appropriated $260 million in tax dollars to cover pension costs. A year later, costs shot up to $400 million. The commission estimated that $810 million a year for the next 40 years would be needed to put the state systems on a rational financial basis.

Commission Chairman Carmen Elio said one factor contributing to the problem was a cost-of-living provision fully matching each annual boost in the inflation rate. That provision contributed to an annual growth rate of about 30 per cent in the last five years, according to Elio.

The state legislature finally agreed to what amounted to a moratorium on new benefit increases until the commission could evaluate any boosts.

The commission created a databank of information on the state's active and retired employees which permitted the first systematic study of state pensions since 1946. The study found that 30 years ago, half of a worker's pension cost was funded by the employee's contributions of 5 per cent of his or her annual salary.

Today, the 5 per cent contribution finances only 10 to 15 per cent of the pension cost and the taxpayer must provide the rest.

Legislative proposals were made earlier this year to fund the plan more properly, but they were shunted aside and are considered dead for the rest of the year, largely because the state's general finances have been in difficulty.

What makes the choice between proper and improper funding of pensions so difficult is that improper funding is cheaper in the short run. Places like Massachusetts and Washington, D.C., simply budget enough money each year to cover the cost of current retirees.

The problem begins when the pension system "matures" — when a large and larger percentage of participants retire and a smaller and smaller number are left to pay the bill. If the benefits are increased and if cost-of-living adjustments are provided, the strain is compounded. If funds are not set aside each year to provide for these future cost increases, the pension costs will begin to rise sharply.

This already is happening in Washington. A study of the city's systems by Cedric W.

Kroll, government actuary for the U.S. Treasury secretary, showed that properly funding the plans would cost the city more than 150 per cent of the current payroll costs immediately. The figure would decline to 60 per cent over the next 40 years.

Even less severe solutions would involve city pension contributions of 72.2 per cent a year of the total payroll indefinitely. If Washington, D.C., does nothing to change its current funding practices, Kroll says the costs will mount steadily to close to 100 per cent of payroll by the year 2000 and will hold there indefinitely.

Beyond acceptance of the principle of proper funding, local pension systems can take a number of general steps to ease their problems, says pension expert Robert Tilove.

The most important step is to integrate benefits paid by the local plan with those from Social Security. This would involve fixing a certain percentage of final salary as a "fair" pension. Social Security and the local pension added together would not be permitted to exceed this percentage.

Since Social Security benefits have been rising so rapidly — about 83.6 per cent in the last six years alone — integration with the local pension plan could relieve a large chunk of the benefit burden.

It also would be a means of cutting back for future employees the generous benefits offered in places like New York City and Philadelphia where workers get both Social Security and a pension.

Another step many states have taken in recent years is consolidation of all local pension plans under a single administrative body, answerable only to the state legislature. This has been done, for instance, in Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and Illinois. The main benefits from consolidation are a considerable administrative saving and generally better expertise in management of the pension funds.

Some states require that the full present and future cost of any proposed pension increase be calculated and disclosed before the legislature approves it. Ohio, whose systems are among the best financed in the nation, has such a law. As a double check, a special state commission evaluates the health of Ohio's state plans at least once every five years.

Tilove and others have suggested a number of new federal laws, including one abolishing the loophole in the Social Security laws making membership in the system optional for state and local government bodies.

But the outlook for any federal action is bleak, according to congressional staffers working on the problem.

A recent Supreme Court ruling that the federal wage law did not apply to city and state employees was widely interpreted as damaging to federal efforts to regulate local pension plans.

In addition, the Municipal Finance Officers Association, representing state and local finance officers, voiced strong opposition to a House bill aimed at imposing reporting and disclosure regulations on local pension administrators.

FBI Changes Please Morgan

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Sen. Robert Morgan, a frequent critic of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, said today he was "extremely heartened" at changes made in the agency by director Clarence Kelley. He said "the only regrettable thing" is that the changes were not made long ago.

Morgan said that Kelley has drastically cut the Domestic Security Section, which was the section where most of the abuses occurred. The North Carolina senator said it was in this section that people's homes were burglarized and people's civil rights were abused.

"The other changes that were announced will, I hope, enable the FBI to function in a more responsible manner but it is in the domestic area that the most flagrant abuses were prevalent."

Kelley announced Wednesday that he is transferring domestic intelligence investigations into the bureau's general investigative division so those cases will be "managed like all other criminal cases."

Kelley also announced that he has established a special review committee to evaluate FBI policies on the use of informers.

Morgan said some "officials in the Bureau have completely ignored the warning voiced by Attorney General Harlan Fiske Stone, when he appointed J. Edgar Hoover as the first director in 1924."

Oorgan said Stone warned that the FBI "is not concerned with political or other opinions of individuals. It is concerned only with their conduct and then only with such conduct as is forbidden by the laws of the United States."

"When a police system passes beyond these limits, it is dangerous to the proper administration of justice and to human liberty, which should be our first concern to cherish."

Morgan alleged recently that he believed the agency was keeping him under surveillance in an effort to get him to tone down his criticism.

Flu Shot Program Racing Time

By JOHN STOWELL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's campaign to immunize nearly every American against the potentially deadly swine flu is in a race against time as the flu season approaches.

After months of delay, the program has cleared its last major hurdle and President Ford plans to sign a bill today providing insurance for the drug companies manufacturing vaccine for the mass inoculation.

The $135-million campaign to get flu shots into the arms of most Americans was delayed for months. The first vaccine won't be available until late September, and the flu season normally begins in November, peaks between January and mid-February and subsides in March.

Four drug companies already have produced about 120 million doses of flu vaccine in bulk form but refused to sell it to the U.S. Public Health Service until they received liability protection or insurance. The insurance industry would not cover the risk.

Congress acted late Tuesday, in an unusual display of speed before adjourning for the Republican National Convention, to pass the legislation making the government liable for any alleged injuries or deaths associated with the immunization program.

The Justice Department can, in turn, countersue vaccine manufacturers, doctors and nurses for negligence in public immunization clinics. The federal protection does not extend to doctors who give flu shots in their private practice.

The legislation also prohibits profit for manufacturers of vaccine against swine flu — more accurately called A-New Jersey influenza — and limits them to a "reasonable profit" for the combination vaccine against A-New Jersey and A-Victoria flu strains, to be given to the elderly and chronically ill.

Dr. W. Delano Meriwether, director of the national immunization program, said the measure removed the last major obstacle to mass flu shots but noted there now was a race against time.

"We have four months before the peak of the next flu season," he told the Washington Press Club on Wednesday.

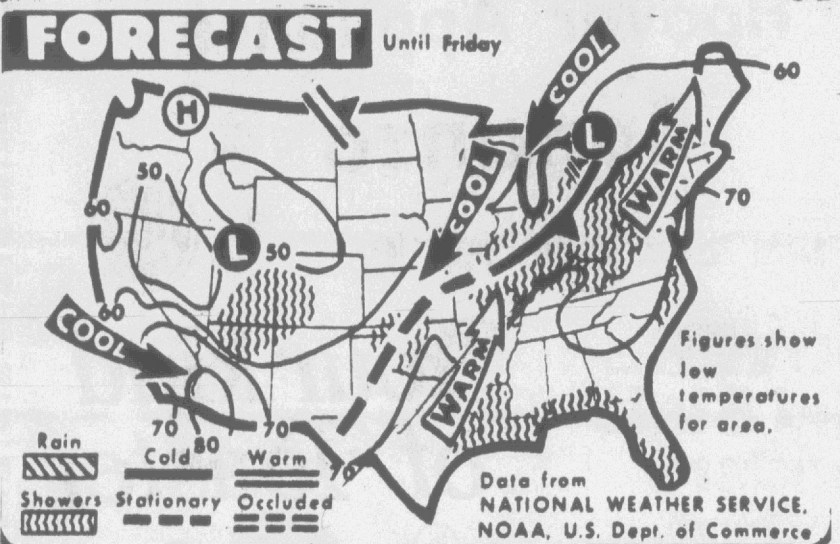

Meriwether said the first vaccine would not be available before late September. When the immunization program is in full swing, he said, more than one million Americans a day will get shots.

Vaccinations will be voluntary and the vaccine itself is free, but private doctors can charge for their services in giving the shots.

Original plans for giving high-risk patients their shots in July and August were scrapped because of delays, Meriwether noted, and they will no longer have first priority for immunization.

"We just don't have that luxury anymore," he said, and shots will be given on a first-come, first-served basis.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST—Cooler weather is due today from the Rockies to the Plains. The rest of the country is expected to be warm. Showers are forecast for the Gulf coast and from the Midwest to western New England. Showers are also expected from western Oklahoma and the Southwest. (AP Wirephoto Map)

By The Associated Press
It's been so dry in Piedmont North Carolina that federal financial help may be sought for farmers in Iredell County.

Willis Miller of the Iredell Soil Conservation Service says that unless drenching rains come soon, some farmers will need federal assistance, such as extra livestock feed grain bought at reduced cost from Midwest farmers. Pastures have turned brown, and there are a lot of cattle in the county.

The Iredell agricultural extension agent, Harry Myers, says he hopes rains of last weekend will save the tobacco and soybean crops.

No general rain is in sight for North Carolina.

A warming trend is in prospect through the weekend. Highs today were in the low 90s, except for the 80s in the mountains. It was sunny except for scattered showers on the coast.

Showers may fall Friday in the mountains and on the coast.

It was mostly sunny Wednesday. Afternoon temperatures climbed into the upper 80s to near 90 in many sections. It got to 90 at Charlotte, Fayetteville, New Bern, Raleigh, Durham and Wilmington.

Showers and thundershowers developed along the coast Wednesday afternoon.

The outlook for the weekend is for continued warm temperatures with widely scattered afternoon or evening thundershowers.

Police Try A 'Stun Gun'

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The Nashville police force is experimenting with a weapon that stuns instead of kills.

Don Earl, president of Comsafe, Ltd., a distributing firm for the weapon, the Taser, says it could eventually replace the nightstick and the repellent Mace in a policeman's arsenal.

Earl, a former St. Louis beat patrolman and homicide officer, said the Taser can stun a person within a 15-foot range by transmitting a 50,000-volt charge at low amperage through wires connected to darts.

The darts are fired by pressing a button on the weapon, described as resembling a large flashlight.

Tests have shown no other effect from being stunned than a lingering headache, he said.

The Taser was originally developed for use by sky marshals on planes, Earl said.

Nashville Police Chief Joe Casey said Tasers are being used by 12 officers on a trial basis. The policemen have been carrying the weapons for several weeks, but have not had to put them to use, he added.

Casey said one advantage of the Taser is that an officer can confront a suspicious individual at night with what appears to be a flashlight in hand, thus eliminating the necessity to reach for a weapon if the subject were to do so.

"We figure it's a safety measure for the policeman's life," Casey said. "We don't ever enjoy having to shoot people."

The weapon is also being used by the Lauderdale Lakes, Fla., police department, several sheriff's departments in Ohio and guards at Nevada gambling clubs, Earl said. It is also available to the public.

Cannon Intends Oppose Helms

RALEIGH (AP) — With the election still two years away, Hugh Cannon, associate of former Gov. Terry Sanford, has already announced plans to challenge Sen. Jesse Helms for his U.S. Senate seat.

Cannon said he announced his candidacy early because he believes he will have an easier time talking to people and politicians across the state as a candidate rather than as a private citizen.

"I want to alert the people so that if I go to Manteo to a filling station, I'll be able to say I'm a candidate," Cannon said.

Cannon, a Raleigh attorney and partner in Sanford's law firm, also noted that his announcement might pre-empt some potential rivals. He said one possible candidate—whom he would not identify—told him this week that he would not run as long as Cannon remained in the field.

Democrats Atty. Gen. Rufus Edmisten, Charlotte banker Luther Hodges Jr., State Sen. McNeill Smith of Greensboro and U.S. Rep. Richardson Preyer of Greensboro have been mentioned as 1978 hopefuls for the Senate seat.

Forty-five-year-old Cannon is a graduate of Davidson, Harvard Law School and Oxford University in England. His initiation into North Carolina politics in 1959 was as an unpaid speech-writer and campaign aide for Sanford. And during the Sanford administration, he served as an administrative assistant and as Director of Administration.

Cannon has also been a member of the University of North Carolina Board of Governors and serves as the parliamentarian for the Democratic National Committee.

Cannon said Wednesday that he did not expect Sanford to take an active role in the campaign. And he noted that he would not leave his law practice or hire a full-time staff for another year.

Beaches Unhurt

RALEIGH (AP) — Hurricane Belle's wind-whipped waves failed to severely erode North Carolina beaches.

U.S. Army Corps of Engineers official E. G. Long said Wednesday, "There was no severe erosion, or no more than would occur in a northeaster. The natives said they had seen more erosion after northeasters."

The corps had been concerned about possible damage to federal beach maintenance projects at Wrightsville Beach and Carolina Beach, Long said. But neither suffered observable damage.

Thousands of tourists fled the Outer Banks Sunday until the storm passed into New England. But Belle never came nearer to the banks than 45 miles.

A One-Woman Animal Shelter

MARYSVILLE, Calif. (AP) — Florence Miller is a one-woman animal shelter.

The 63-year-old widow takes care of as many as 3,000 stray dogs a year in her county-licensed kennel which costs her $1,000 a month to operate.

"I never know where my money's coming from, but I've never gone broke. Something always comes along just in the nick of time. All I can count on is my Social Security, $90 a month," she said.

She said the rest of her money comes mostly from donations from people who leave dogs with her or who have gotten pets from her.

O'Herron Calls For Cuts In State Govm't Payroll

By The Associated Press
Ed O'Herron, Democratic candidate for governor, told supporters Wednesday night that cuts must be made in state government payrolls.

He advanced a plan that would trim $450,000 a year from the state's $3.4 billion budget.

At the same time, O'Herron suggested a new way in which state money could be spent. He recommended that a productivity bonus plan for state employees be established. Under the plan, employees would be paid cash bonuses for ideas to improve productivity in state government.

O'Herron said cuts could be made in:

- The Department of Commerce. The drug-store chain owner said the commerce department spends $250,000 a year on 14 employees. "This department is supposed to regulate a half dozen state agencies which are regulated by statute, such as the Banking Commission, the Utilities Commission and the Industrial Commission. I will eliminate it at a saving of $250,000 yearly," he said.
- The State Revenue Department. O'Herron said he would eliminate four assistants to the revenue commissioner for a saving of $100,000 a year.
- The lieutenant governor's office. O'Herron said that post should be made a part-time position, a move which he said would save the state $100,000 a year.

Meanwhile, Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt, who is also seeking the Democratic nomination for governor, proposed that a Labor Force Council be created to right unemployment problems in the state.

Speaking at a Charlotte news conference Wednesday, Hunt said his council would be composed of representatives of labor, business and education and would replace the present Manpower Council and the Office on Employment and Training.

It would work in conjunction with other agencies Hunt has proposed—the Economic Development Board and the Council on State Goals and Policy—to coordinate economic expansion and the labor supply.

Golden Frinks, North Carolina field worker for the Southern Leadership Conference, charged Wednesday that black grass roots activists were "sold out" by the State Baptist General Convention when it endorsed Hunt.

Frinks said he and fellow civil rights leaders the Rev. Leon White of Raleigh and James Boone of Rich Square oppose the Hunt endorsement because the lieutenant governor favors the death penalty.

Democratic gubernatorial candidate George Wood said in a policy statement Wednesday that he supports the University of North Carolina Board of Governors in its role as the state's chief policy agency for public higher education.

Wood resigned from the board to run for office.

Wood endorsed the board's program of aiding private colleges and universities, but said the additional support should be proportional to that accorded public institutions.

Democratic gubernatorial aspirant Thomas Strickland criticized O'Herron Wednesday for "making unrealistic promises in the form of highway improvements" through a bond issue.

The state senator from Goldsboro told a Raleigh news conference that O'Herron's proposal for a $300 million bond referendum to fund an east-west highway system would either raise gas taxes by a penny per gallon or require a "painfully long debt service" that would "endanger North Carolina's excellent fiscal reputation."

Strickland said highways should be paid for "as you go." GOP gubernatorial candidate David Flaherty recommended Wednesday that "senior citizens 65 or older whose income is $7,500 or less receive a state income tax credit equal to the difference between the homestead property taxes they owe and 3 per cent of their annual income."

A former textile mill employee and present candidate for labor commissioner Jessie Rae Scott said Wednesday that job safety regulations in North Carolina should be more stringent.

She said brown lung disease, a textile mill hazard, "is an occupational hazard that can be eliminated almost entirely by an aggressive and concerned Department of Labor."

Mrs. Scott said on numerous documented occasions, the department of labor has turned its head when it came to violations of Occupational Safety and Health laws.

New Briefings Await Carter

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer
PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — Jimmy Carter is reunited with his vice presidential running mate today for an intelligence briefing from CIA Director George Bush and a political huddle with California Gov. Jerry Brown.

The CIA briefing is the second of a series intended to keep the Democratic candidates abreast of top secret developments affecting national security.

Brown, whose state has 45 electoral votes, was a late starting but effective campaigner against Carter and other Democrats in the recent presidential primary season.

He is currently considered his state's most popular officeholder. His help is considered important if Carter is to do well in California which also is the home base of former Republican Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Bush was to arrive in mid-morning by Army helicopter for the scheduled four and one-half hour briefing. Brown was to arrive in late afternoon, meet with Carter and his running mate, Sen. Walter Mondale, D-Minn., and then remain overnight in Plains.

The two nominees also were to meet with representatives Italian-American groups.

They include Jen Paulucci who is general chairman of the Italian-American Foundation Bicentennial Dinner to be held Sept. 16.

Carter earlier announced plans for a one-day trip Saturday to Charleston, W. Va., to help raise funds for the state Democratic party and to speak at the Jefferson-Jackson Day Dinner.

Carter returned to Plains Wednesday after addressing the American Bar Association convention in Atlanta and in late afternoon donned cutoff blue jeans and an old sports shirt for the now customary end-of-the-day softball game with reporters and others.

But this time he brought his own camera crew who filmed the game for a commercial advertisement to be used in the fall campaign.

The reporters said they didn't want to be part of a commercial for a candidate whose campaign they were covering and so they dropped out.

The game went on with teams made up of local businessmen and Carter staff members.

Carter pitched his team to a 7-2 victory.

Some Appear Recession-Proof

NEW YORK (UPI) — The professional and technical occupations were one particular group unaffected by unemployment during the recent recession, according to Labor Department official Herbert Bienstock. He pointed out that in May, 1975, when unemployment was at a cyclical high of 9.2 per cent, a total of 12.8 million professional and technical workers were employed, about a half million more than a year earlier.

Fresno Seeing A Movie Boom

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — If you want to go to the movies in Fresno, you have plenty of choices now.

Central California's two largest theater complexes — Festival and United Artists Cinemas — have opened their doors. Together they have 10 film theaters within their walls.

This figure doubles the number of general feature walk-in theaters here, and ranks as the most rapid theater expansion in the city's 65 years of film exhibition.

H.B. Sugg School Kindergarten To Have Full-Day Schedule This Term

H. B. Sugg School's Kindergarten schedule for the 1976-77 school year will vary from the previous years, according to Frederick Graham, principal. Kindergarten will be held a full day instead of the half-day session. Kindergarten students are to report to school each day at 8:15 p.m. along with students in the elementary grades. They will be dismissed at 3 p.m. as will the other elementary students.

Kindergarten students may ride elementary buses along with elementary pupils, but no special transportation will be provided for Kindergarten students.

August 30 will be Pupil Orientation Day from 8:15 a.m. to 12 noon. August 31 will be the first full day of the regular school year. Parents are urged to make sure that kindergartners are in full attendance during the first two weeks as the attendance will affect the allotment of personnel and testing for pupil placement will take place during the first two weeks.

Today's hand was an entry in the Bols Brillancy Prize competition at the 5th World Team Olympiad. Study all four hands and then decide whether you would rather play or defend four hearts after the lead of a trump.
 When this hand was played in the Denmark-Turkey match, South became declarer at four hearts—North's response of two diamonds was a transfer to hearts. The Danish West led a trump, and declarer went down on the following sequence:
 He won the heart, crossed to the ace of clubs and led a diamond, covered by the ten and king and won by the ace. Declarer won the trump return, ruffed a club and led a diamond. East played low and West was able to win with the nine and return a third trump. Now declarer tried the jack of clubs, and West passed the last test when he played low. Declarer ruffed and cashed dummy's last trump, and East ensured the contract's defeat when he carefully held on to two diamonds and came down to a doubleton queen of spades.
 So you did choose to defend, did you? Well suppose that, instead of covering the ten of diamonds with the king, declarer plays low. If West allows East to win the trick, he has no trump to return and declarer will have time to ruff a diamond and so make his contract. And, of course, it can't possibly help West to overtake the ten of diamonds for this would allow declarer to take the rest of the tricks!
 Now you want to declare? Very well. When declarer leads a diamond from dummy suppose East follows low! Now if declarer plays the king, West wins the ace and continues extracting trumps while he still has the nine of diamonds as a re-entry; if declarer plays low, West's diamond entries are reversed. In either case, the defenders can cooperate to give West two entries and to draw all declarer's trumps, thereby preventing him from ruffing a diamond.

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, AUG. 13, 1976

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You have new ideas which are generally good but there are some obstacles that need to be worked out or you could later have difficulties connected with them. Study and make plans for the future.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Once you have handled your responsibilities you can engage in the recreation that you desire. Avoid one who has an eye on your assets.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Contact business experts for the advice you need. Study your duties well and you will know how to handle them more efficiently.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Plan early for amusements later when planetary aspects are good for such. Group affairs can be most enjoyable this evening.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Handle civic affairs with great efficiency and gain many benefits from them. Think along very logical lines.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) A good day to go to places you have not been before. Periodicals can be of help to you if you study them well. Control your temper with others.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Using new tactics with close ties brings better results now. A responsibility you have been putting off can be handled well now.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A dynamic associate has good ideas that should be put in operation for mutual gain. You can benefit by attending a civic affair tonight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Put those new ideas to work that will help you in your line of endeavor. Suggestions from co-workers can be helpful to you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Make plans to engage in the amusements you enjoy. Showing more affection for mate is wise at this time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Show more affection for family members and increase harmony in the home. A new project can prove most worthwhile.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Improve conditions at routine work so that you increase production. Make this a happy evening in the company of good friends.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You can have a bigger income in the future by investing your assets wisely. A new idea can be put in operation quickly.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be a pioneer and can quickly seize some new idea and develop it to a worthwhile conclusion. Teach to follow orthodox methods and to complete whatever has once been started. Give as fine a college education as you can afford.

Private Life Of Spiders Screened

By JAY SHARBUTT
 AP Television Writer
 LOS ANGELES (AP) — Those who go outdoors each summer often get bugged. So we suggest you retreat indoors tonight for a nifty NBC special about some critters that keep you from getting even more bugged.

nov and produced by Britain's Survival Anglia Ltd. with World Wildlife Fund help. It's a wittily-written, painstakingly photographed close-up of various spiders at work and in love. Its premise is that spiders are good and shouldn't be feared, as they eat a lot of bothersome insects.

True, spiders got a bad image after one crept on a tuft occupied by Miss Muffet and ruined her whole whey. But the show, in pointing out there actually was a Miss Muffet, notes that her doctor father was said to treat her colds with crushed spiders. Which would ruin anyone's whey, particularly that of the spiders.

heather may contain 2 1/4 million spiders. If each consumed but one insect a day, the mass meal's weight would equal that of the entire human population of France or Great Britain.

Said critters are spiders. They star in NBC's "Come Into My Parlor," a one-hour special jovially narrated by Peter Ustinov.

True, spiders got a bad image after one crept on a tuft occupied by Miss Muffet and ruined her whole whey. But the show, in pointing out there actually was a Miss Muffet, notes that her doctor father was said to treat her colds with crushed spiders. Which would ruin anyone's whey, particularly that of the spiders.

For example, we see the courtship dance of a male wolf spider and a female wolf spider as tango music is heard. We are informed that for many male spiders, fooling around is quite hazardous. See, if passion doesn't consume them, the lady spider often will.

As Ustinov puts it, there's great danger "of starting out as a lover and winding up as a leftover," particularly with one species where m'lady is four times larger than her suitor.

SOUTHFIELD, Mich. (UPI) — Those who believe the automobiles of the good old days did much better on mileage than the current crop of cars don't know what they're talking about, according to Leslie Henry, curator of the Henry Ford Museum at Dearborn, Mich.

DENTAL VISITS

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Health Insurance Institute says a study by the American Dental Association shows that more than 50 per cent of children under 15 never have visited the dentist. The study also revealed that only 48 per cent of those over 15 visit their dentist at least once a year.

Bell-Ringer Earns Degree In Slowly Reviving Field

BELL TOWER — Sixty-six cast bronze bells are suspended in the Reese Memorial Carillon. The bells range in weight from 22 pounds to seven and a half tons. (AP Wirephoto)

By DENNIS MONTGOMERY
Associated Press Writer
SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) —
Concertist Karel Keldermans' name rings a bell only in the more esoteric circles of American musicology. But his accomplishment reverberates through its annals.

Keldermans is the first person to earn a master's degree from a college in the United States for campanology and carillon performance. In simple terms, that's bell ringing.

After two years' study abroad, he returned home a few weeks ago to accept his degree from Sangamon State University and a post as chief carillonneur for the Springfield Park District.

Four times a week he climbs aloft in the Thomas C. Reese Memorial Carillon — one of 165 such instruments in the nation — and tolls a 66-bell concert. Just to keep the record straight, there is one other person with a master's degree in theoretical campanology from a U.S. college, but it's not in carillon performance. And the University of Michigan offers a bachelor's degree, but no master's program.

Keldermans' studies, supervised by Sangamon State in a course he designed himself, covered the art of bell playing from casting to clapper.

"It's like studying any other musical instrument," he said in an interview. "You have to know things like harmony, theory, how to read notes and count time. I also studied theoretical stuff — how bells are cast, the mechanism, techniques, the types of keyboards. The paper I did was on comparing the foundry techniques of the 18th century with the 20th century."

Carillons got their start in Belgium, Holland and northern France in the 1500s. "Actually it developed out of about two or three bells that were hung in city halls to warn the city of fire, flood or invasion," Keldermans said. "Then somebody got to messing around with them. About 1450 they decided to add a keyboard."

Over the years the instrument died out. Generals like Napoleon found the bells a good source of brass cannon and the instrument was expensive.

"It's really revived," he said. "It wasn't until this century that they discovered how to cast bells like they used to. It really got started up again in Belgium around 1900."

Keldermans began to study the carillon in his teens under his father, a Belgium-born carillonneur of 40 years' experience who had the Springfield job until he lost it to his son.

Despite the instrument's massive size, one doesn't need a lot of muscles to play.

"You play it with your little finger," Keldermans said. "You've got your hand in the form of a fist. It's just a flick of the wrist. Your little finger is the only thing that hits the keys. If you know how to play correctly, it doesn't require any strength."

Unfortunately there is not enough money in carillon concerts to support a fellow and his family. So Keldermans must work another job.

He's employed by the largest producer and consumer of bells in the world, the telephone company.

New Political Science Programs Set At ECU

The East Carolina University Department of Political Science has announced details concerning two new program curricula for undergraduate students majoring in political science.

A new minor program, available to political science majors, will concentrate on comparative government and international relations. Students may specialize in American government and politics as their major fields of study, while electing the newly developed minor program.

According to Dr. William F. Troutman, chairman of the ECU political science department, the new minor in comparative government and international relations is designed to meet needs of students who desire a greater concentration of coursework in political science in order to become qualified for careers with governmental, business, industrial and cultural agencies operating internationally.

The department also announced a new BS degree program in political science, requiring special research and communication skills in lieu of a foreign language and a cluster of social science cognates rather than a traditional minor.

Troutman said the new BS degree program is a quasi-professional degree, intended to prepare students for certain types of jobs with governmental agencies, survey research organizations and private businesses and industries seeking employees with special skills.

The program is also strongly recommended as a major for pre-legal students. Students interested in further details about the programs may direct their inquiries to Dr. Troutman or to Herbert Carlton, political science undergraduate faculty advisor, at the departmental office, located in ECU's Brewster Building.

Rare Tule Elk Back In Valley

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — The arrival of a cattle truck bearing 18 tule elk at San Luis National Wildlife Refuge recently signaled the return of these rare members of the deer family after an absence of almost a century to their ancestral home in the northern San Joaquin Valley.

Prior to their transfer to San Luis Refuge, they had lived in a pen at the San Diego Wild Animal Park.

Once widespread in California's Great Central Valleys, the tule elk came near extermination under the guns of meat hunters in the late 1800s.

The present population of the elk in the whole world is estimated at a little over 500.

Colonial American Life Was Struggle To Survive

EDITOR'S NOTE — During the Revolution, colonial life was a struggle for survival, for man or woman, whether on the home front or the battle front. This is an account of struggles at home.

By SID MOODY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

If England was a nation of shopkeepers, America was a nation of farmers. Ninety per cent of Americans lived off the land in 1776, succeeding only because all the energies and abilities of each family member were as closely knit as an argyle sock.

It was a life of hand-hewn labor that never ceased, only changed with the seasons. For the man, field and forest; for the woman, kitchen and childrearing. The family was the atom at the core of the country. Together, the atoms formed a whole peculiarly American.

Life was hard and short. In 1775 life expectancy at birth was 34 years for males, 36 for females. But time was not a tick-tock; rather it passed by nature's clock — seed, till, harvest; shear, spin, sew — hours marked only by the sun's passage across the noon groove chiseled in the door sill.

Dark meant sleep; winter hibernation.

John Adams's escape from the New England winter was to wish he could sleep like a dormouse from the first frost to the first crocus. Instead, there was firewood to be cut, candles to be made from tallow, and other chores.

It was a gloomy time after nightfall. The average family groped about in the flickering light from the hearth or a burning knot of pitch pine until crawling between a muslin sheet and corn shock mattress to await the dawn.

In winter that was the only place to be. John Rowe wrote of his ink freezing as he filled out his diary. Even the sap oozing out of the end of the great log on the hearth frequently turned to ice. Franklin, wearied of being "almost smoked to bacon" in front of the hearth, invented his metal stove, but even when fully stoked, it could not raise the temperature above a dubious 58 degrees.

The only breakthrough was the making of better privies, also known as houses of office, houses of ease or necessary houses. The necessary of Col. and Mrs. Joseph Webb in Wethersfield, Conn., was called Hospitality Hall and was fitted with a semi-circle of accommodations.

Public duty reflected the basics of private life. Every town had its hog reeve (and some still do, the honor deemed the equivalent of a colonelcy in Kentucky) who kept the pigs from running wild in pastures and saw to it their ears were clipped to identify the owner.

Hay-wards turned other animals out of the fields and fined offending owners. Fence-viewers supervised fence repairs.

In winter everyone was expected to help plow the roads, the first path cleared being to the tavern, followed by the school, doctor's home and finally the meeting-house.

Group spirit extended far from the village. Besides the various bees and barn raisings, there were log-rollings when the neighborhood men spent all day undercutting trees and then felling a giant in hopes it would knock down all the rest, a progenitor of the domino theory.

Women married are puberty was hardly over and began child-bearing in their mid or late teens. Husbands were scarcely older.

A Virginian said that "an Old Maid ... among us (is) reckoned as ominous as a Blazing Star." At one time single men in Maryland and Pennsylvania were taxed, and Connecticut authorities forbade bachelors to live alone and assigned them quarters.

The vast majority of women were raised from the crib to be replicas of their mothers. They were taught to read, said Franklin, "and perhaps write their Name or So; and that is the Height of a Woman's Education." A young Connecticut girl recorded a day's activity in 1775:

"Fix'd gown for Prude, — Mend Mother's Riding-hood — spun short thread ... Carded tow, — Spun linen, — Worked on Cheesebasket, — Hatchel'd flax with Hannah ... Pleated and ironed, — Read a Sermon of Doddridge's, — Spooled a piece, — Milked the cows, — Spun linen, did 50 knots, — Made a Broom of Guinea wheat straw — Spun thread to whiten, — Set a Red dye ... I carded two pounds of whole wool ... Spun harness twine, — Scoured the pewter."

Once married, child-bearing joined the list of chores. Pretty young girls who could "talk saucily" to Hessian soldiers quickly aged from too frequent pregnancies. Calcium was literally drained from their bodies, rotting their teeth. A common folk saying was "one child, one tooth."

Mother's unrelenting place in this world was, of course, the kitchen. The cavernous colonial fireplaces were both furnace and stove and the cook was often burned along with the meat. The fire was set up with a huge backlog a foot in diameter that might burn a week. The fire was laid between that and a smaller forestick. Pots were hung from notched tram-mels, and meat was turned on a spit or boiled in a pot. Dutch ovens were used for baking, the bricks first heated by a fire to turn off the carbon which was then removed from the bread inserted.

One ingenious way of turning a roast was to suspend it from two strings which were twisted tightly and then allowed to unwind. When the meat stopped turning, one of the children wound it up again. Often meat was smoked by hanging it in the flue, a process called barbacoa in the West Indies. It survives as "barbecue."

Shipbuilding Study Aided

The East Carolina University Department of History has received a $1,200 award from the Marine Science Council - The University of North Carolina to continue a study of boat and shipbuilding in the state's past.

The study is being conducted by Dr. William N. Still, and ECU historian who has spent the past year compiling facts and data on the shipbuilding industry. He is centering his study on the Colonial period through the World War II.

Still says the importance of shipbuilding in North Carolina has never been fully recognized and is often overlooked as having been a major industry. But he says his research of historical records and interviews with shipbuilders and descendants of shipbuilders indicates that shipbuilding once employed thousands of people and ranked as one of the state's top industries.

Dr. Still plans to write a book on the subject when his research is completed.

Create Island Bird Refuge

BARRANQUILLA, Colombia (UPI) — The government has created a 30-mile-long bird refuge on Salamanca Island in the Caribbean just east of Barranquilla. Squatter settlements and other developments have been prohibited to provide a haven of tranquility for all types of seabirds. Colombia's main coastal highway crosses the island, but the trucks don't seem to bother the birds.

Relocation Aid Said Improving

NEW YORK (AP) — Relocation assistance to new employees is definitely improving, says Tigor Relocation Management Co., an employee relocation services firm. However, most U.S. companies still offer transferring employees more generous relocation benefits than those offered new hires.

The most marked differences involve real estate assistance. The fewest relate to expenses incurred during shipment of household goods and house-hunting trips.
