Transit System Running Ahead Of Projections

By BARBARA MATHEWS
Reflector Staff Writer

After a month of service to over 10,000 passengers, the Greenville Area Transit system is running smoothly, according to city planner John Schofield.

"We're very pleased with the system so far," said Schofield.

"We had hoped that after a couple of months of operation we would be averaging 300 passengers a day.

We have already been averaging over 400 per day, and we're where we hoped we'd be two months from now."

Schofield said some minor problems have been discovered with the routes, however.

"During the next month, we will be undertaking an extensive route evaluation," he said.

"We will consider taking service out of the areas that do not use it, and putting it into areas where it's needed.

"We hope we'll be able to provide a more convenient service in the next few months."

Schofield said five drivers are employed by the GREAT system at a salary of from $7,567 to $9,658 a year.

"We also have one man employed under the Comprehensive Employment Act to clean each bus each night as it comes in," he said.

"We expect to have all the bus stop signs up by the end of next week, and some have already been placed."

According to Robert Tallo, manager of the system, the citizens of Greenville "have every right to be pleased and proud of what we've done."

"We're operating a very successful system now," Tallo said.

"We're building an excellent base for full service to the whole community."

"We're conducting an on-board survey now to see how people are reacting to the system."

"People seem to find our drivers extremely friendly and helpful, and our service on time, reliable and convenient."

"The biggest complaints are that we do not operate at night or on the weekends."

"I don't have any objections about it. I think that would ruin the debate format. It would be more like a forum."

LIKES PARTICULAR EDITION

I wrote to the Collins and World Publishing Company in Cleveland, Ohio about two months ago inquiring about buying a "Light of the World" edition of the Bible. I have a copy of this edition, copyrighted in 1954, which I got through a book club, but it is worn out. It has the best references I've ever seen, though, and I would love to have another copy. Mrs. K. A.

Hotline checked with the Christian bookstore to make sure the address you gave us is the same one the store has for the company. It was. Mrs. Iris Davis at the Christian Bookstore said she has had inquiries about this edition, also, but has never been able to find it listed. Therefore, she assumes it is out of print.

We wrote to the company, explaining your wishes. They replied two days later saying that they have a limited supply of the Bibles in white and maroon at the list price of $16.95 per copy. These Bibles are out of print, they said, and will not be available once the existing stock is used.

We sent the message from the company on to you. You say you will order one at once. We also advised the Christian Bookstore of our findings.

Bus Service Is Regular, Some Acquire 'Habit'

(Staff Writer Barbara Mathews was assigned to ride all three GREAT bus route and give her assessment of the service being offered after approximately one month of the city bus systems' operation. Following is her report).

Travel on all three routes of the Greenville Area Transit (GREAT) system last week revealed that the buses are well-kept, running on schedule and being used.

Although signs indicating the actual location of the bus stops are just now being placed, most passengers seemed familiar with the routes and the procedure for boarding.

Drivers were courteous in explaining the future locations of the stops to passengers who boarded at other corners.

The drivers were also very informative and dispensed route schedules upon request.

The buses were generally clean, and the air conditioning was functioning well in all three.

The transfer procedure seems to be somewhat complicated, however. The transfers are given upon request while boarding, and are "good" for only a specified length of time.

The bus driver is required to punch the transfer ticket with information regarding the place the original bus is boarded, the time permitted in which to board the second bus and the direction of the route.

Some confusion seemed to exist regarding the punching of the ticket, but there was no difficulty with the collection of the ticket once the transfer was made.

Destination signs were changed properly on all three routes.

Usage of the buses seemed to be fairly constant. Several passengers said they ride the buses daily, and some seemed to have developed a friendship with the drivers along their route.

The percentage of children on the buses was low.

The most heavily traveled route seemed to be Route 3. Route 2 was the least busy, but all the buses had at least several passengers.

The buses generally ran on time, with arrival times at the major transfer points deviating somewhat from the schedule, but departures occurring at the designated time.

GREAT may be a slight exaggeration, but service on Greenville's buses seems to be quite worth the fare.

Betty Resting Another Week

VAIL, Colo. (AP) — Betty Ford was expected to rest for another week in this central Colorado resort before returning to Washington, a White House spokeswoman said.

Sheila Weidenfeld, the First Lady's press secretary, said on Sunday that Mrs. Ford will remain here until at least next Saturday.

Three Debates Are Tentatively Agreed

By LYNNE OLSON
Associated Press Writer
PLAINS, Ga. (AP) —

Jimmy Carter said today a tentative agreement has been reached between his campaign and that of President Ford on a format of three debates between the candidates, each lasting 75 minutes.

The Democratic presidential nominee said the subjects of the debates, if they are defined, "would be worked out in proper sequence."

Carter made the comments in an interview from Plains on the NBC Today program.

Representatives of the two candidates met in Washington last Thursday to discuss the debates' format. Another meeting is planned for this week.

After the interview today, Carter told reporters that according to the tentative agreement, the first debate would be held the third week in September and would be patterned primarily after a proposal put forth by the League of Women Voters.

According to that plan, the debates would be of a general nature, as Carter advocates, and not on specific topics, as Ford has said he would like.

"If President Ford can go in, briefed on just one narrow subject with a whole sheaf of documents and memorized statements, I think that would remove a great deal of the debate aspect," Carter told reporters.

The candidate said on television that he wanted the debates in "neutral territory."

"I personally don't favor the first debate, for instance, to be in the aura of Washington, where the presidency itself, the office, can be used for Ford's advantage," he said.

"We're both running for president for the first time, and it puts us on an equal basis."

Asked whether he would object to the participation of other presidential candidates in the debate, Carter replied, "I don't have any objections about it. I think that would ruin the debate format. It would be more like a forum."

He said he would let lawyers, the Federal Election Commission and his and Ford's representatives work out the problem.

"I don't want to try to decide that myself," Carter said.

Carter also said he and running mate Sen. Walter Mondale would campaign all over the country and not concentrate only on a few key states "until much later, and only if it's necessary."

"I don't think it will be necessary," he added.

Carter said, Mondale and their families would distribute their campaign time throughout all 50 states and would remain with that plan unless public opinion polls reveal a need for a shift.

"We still have some flexibility during the month of October," he said. "But during September, we'll be campaigning through the country."

Earlier this month, news secretary Jody Powell said Carter would focus much of his attention on so-called "battleground" states which include California and those in the industrial Midwest and the Northeast.

As he has done before, the Democratic nominee attacked Ford for alleged lack of leadership, saying he knew of no substantive proposal the President has made in his two years of office.

He sat there dormant in the White House, fearful of taking any action," Carter said.

Carter also said he expected a close election, but maintained he had issues on his side, along with a unified party and a carefully organized campaign effort.

Iran Executes 2 In Guerrilla Band

By PARVIS RAEIN
Associated Press Writer
TEHRAN, Iran (AP) —

A firing squad executed at dawn today a man and a woman convicted of murdering a billionaire factory owner in 1972, the government said. The two were reported to be members of the urban guerrilla group blamed for the killing of three Americans on Saturday.

Mohammed Safari Langroudi and Rouhi Ahangeran admitted during their trial that they received guerrilla training in another country — which was not identified — and smuggled arms and ammunition into Iran, the government statement said.

The Iranian government assured the United States it is doing everything it can to catch other members of the so-called Islamic Marxist group.

Tehran press reports said the families of the three assassinated Californians were preparing to leave Iran with the bodies of the men.

Many of the 24,000 Americans in Iran stayed home Sunday. American children were missing from playgrounds and sports fields.

However, a security expert said effective protection for all Americans in the country would be impossible because there are so many of them and they are stationed at a number of places.

The police were looking for six men who ambushed the three Californians on their way to work Saturday. NBC News said they were working on the installation of a $500-million intelligence-gathering system for the Iranian Air Force.

They were the first American civilians killed by Iranian urban guerrillas who have been active since 1971. Guerrillas killed a U.S. Army lieutenant colonel in 1973 and two U.S. Air Force lieutenant colonels in 1975.

The U.S. Embassy said the Iranian government delivered a note to Ambassador Richard Helms assuring him it was making "every effort to bring to justice the terrorists."

The killers left a car behind at the ambush scene, and the government said papers in it showed they were members of the same Islamic Marxist group blamed for the assassinations of the three American military officers.

Two men were executed last February for those slayings. The government said they also confessed to killing five Iranians and to being leaders of an urban guerrilla movement.

An exile Iranian group calling itself the Armed Forces Revolutionary Movement said in Paris last year that the two Americans slain in 1975 had been condemned by a revolutionary tribunal for cooperation with Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi's regime. But a woman who called The Associated Press in Tehran shortly after the 1975 slayings said they were done by the "Iranian People's Warriors Association" in retaliation for the police executions of nine revolutionaries.

Extend Tax Cuts Of 1975 Privette Says Refusal To Debate 'Good Move'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate and House conferees today agreed to extend through all of 1977 the individual tax cuts enacted last year.

The tax cuts are worth $180 a year to a typical family of four earning $15,000 annually; $182 for a single person earning $8,000; $204 for a couple making $10,000, and $445 for a family of four earning $6,000.

The conferees approved the tax-cut extension as they continued work on a big catch-all tax-revision bill.

When the conferees complete ironing out differences between Senate and House tax bills, a compromise version which includes the individual tax-cut provision will go to the Senate and House for final consideration, probably next month.

The conferees also agreed to make permanent the increases in the minimum and maximum standard deductions, which are taken by persons who do not itemize deductions.

The minimum standard deduction is $1,700 for single persons and $2,100 for joint returns. The maximum is 16 per cent, up to $2,400 for single persons and $2,800 for couples filing joint returns.

The Rev. Coy C. Privette, campaigning in Greenville today, labeled David Flaherty's refusal to debate "a good move on his part."

Privette will face Flaherty in a run-off for the Republican gubernatorial nomination September 14.

"I can't blame him at all for refusing the debate," Privette said.

"He'd have a hard time explaining his record as Secretary of the Department of Human Resources."

"He'd have a hard time explaining why a $405 million Medicaid contract was granted only on the basis on one bid. Why, when there are 300 health care agencies licensed to operate in North Carolina, was not one of them given the opportunity to bid?"

Privette said under Flaherty's leadership, the Department of Human Resources grew more than any other state agency.

"The operating budget went from $196 million to $302 million under Flaherty," he said. "That's a 53 per cent increase, while all the other state agencies only had a growth rate of 32 per cent."

"Flaherty said that today there are fewer employees in the welfare area than there were when he became Secretary of the Department of Human Resources."

"We called the department, and found out that when he took the office, there were 3,960 county welfare employees. Now there are 5,650."

Privette said this increase in the number of employees followed a reduction in the department's workload.

"Fifty-nine per cent of the welfare payment load of the Department of Human Resources was transferred to the Social Security department under the old age assistance program."

"Then the Medicaid contract was put to the private sector. You would think that with transferring this amount of work out of the department, there would be a reduction in the number of employees."

According to Privette, Flaherty cannot carry the conservative vote.

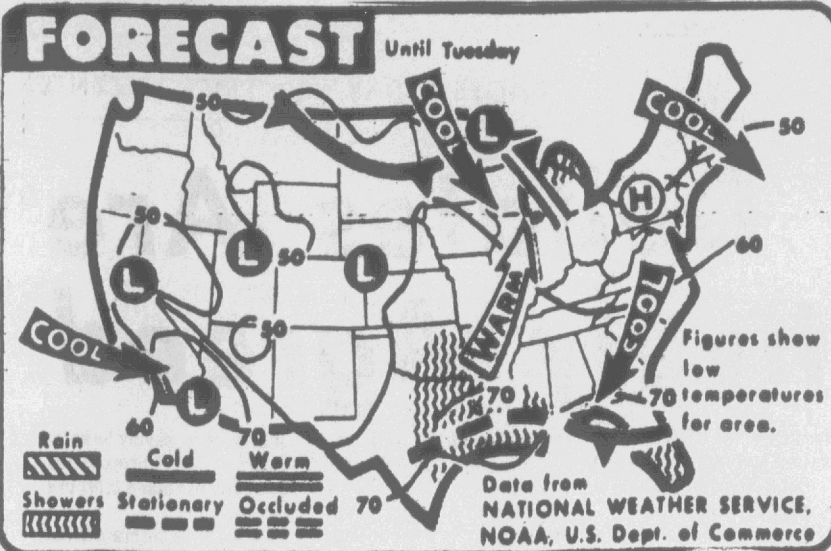

"I believe the voter deserves to have a clear-cut conservative choice," he said.

"It is quite evident my opponent is not a conservative. Republican voters must nominate a candidate who can defeat Jim Hunt, and with my opponent's record, he is in no position to talk about the lieutenant governor's big spending projects."

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST—Cooler air is forecast today for southern California, the Great Lakes and Northeast and the Atlantic coast. Warm weather is expected for the Midwest. Showers are due in southern Florida and from the central Gulf to eastern Texas and southeastern Oklahoma. (AP Wirephoto Map)

By The Associated Press
Drier air filtered into North Carolina during the night. A cold front moving south-eastward across the state was being pushed by a strong high pressure system. This high was spreading across the central and eastern states. It was centered this morning near the Great Lakes area.
Chilly temperatures were felt near the center of this air mass. While some of this cooler air reached North Carolina, the full effect was felt farther to the north. However, the dryness made for more pleasant conditions with lower humidity and temperatures.

There is little hope for showers in the immediate future. There were some widely scattered showers and thunderstorms Sunday and last night ahead of this front.
Rainfall reports were spotty and generally light. Goldsboro reported .30 inches Sunday afternoon, one of the largest amounts reported.
Temperatures Sunday were quite warm. High humidity also added discomfort. Some low and mid 90s were recorded through the interior portion of the state. Rocky Mount-Wilson led with 94, followed by Raleigh-Durham with 93 and Charlotte with 91.

Otherwise, mid and upper 80s were commonplace except for upper 70s to mid 80s in the mountains. Skies were variably cloudy last night, but some clearing occurred in some sections.
Spotty cloudiness lingered over portions of the Piedmont and coast into the pre-dawn hours. Temperatures gradually fell during the early morning hours. Some dipped into the 50s in the mountains with 60s more common to the interior and 70s along the coast.

Won't Leave Male In-law With Teen Sitter

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: In all the years I've been reading your column I've never disagreed with you—until today when you told that woman to apologize for kicking her 24-year-old brother-in-law out of the house before the 13-year-old sitter arrived. (He was a houseguest.)
The woman said the sitter's mother would be horrified if she knew her daughter was alone in the house with a 24-year-old man, and the girl herself might feel ill at ease. I guess you don't read the papers, Abby. Please retract your advice. You goofed.

L.A. TIMES READER

DEAR READER: Here's another one for your side:

DEAR ABBY: At first I thought you were right in telling that woman to apologize to her brother-in-law, but I changed my mind when my 14-year-old daughter said, "Abby blew it—I hope when I babysit I'll never be left alone in the house with a 24-year-old guy. Both you and Abby are too trusting, Mom."

Then she told us a few experiences her girlfriends had had while sitting.

My husband then entered the discussion saying, "Consider the young man's reputation; the girl could accuse him of molesting her even though he was innocent."

He was absolutely right. I recalled the time our young minister was accused of molesting a young girl, and he was saved only because I was present at the time he supposedly molested her.

So I think you were wrong, Abby. The woman had no need to apologize.

MRS. B. IN OAKLAND, ORE.

DEAR MRS. B. (and all others who wrote to protest my reply):

Are we becoming so paranoid, suspicious and evil-minded that we dare not trust a 24-year-old male (who was described by his sister-in-law as a "nice young man") alone in the same house with a 13-year-old girl for as long as it takes him to shower and dress? (He was going out with friends for the evening.)

Is it fair to assume that because the sitter is 13 and female and the houseguest is 24 and male he would try to seduce her?

I am aware that some girls have been known to holler "rape" without just cause, and some young men have been known to take advantage of young girls in similar circumstances, but to assume without a shred of evidence that this will take place, and to rush a houseguest out of the house on this assumption, is, in my judgment, a gross insult.

Doesn't someone out there agree with me? So far the score is Readers 289, Abby 0. Readers?

Plan For Student Phone-Rush

By BETTY SANDERSON
Reflector Staff Writer

As of Sept. 8, East Carolina University will be officially in session. Students will be registering for classes, picking up schedules, renewing acquaintances... and applying for telephones and utilities services.

One of the biggest student rushes in Greenville will be at Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co., where district commercial manager Don Collier expects requests for about 2,200 telephones on campus and 500 to 600 off campus.

"We will import people from other areas to help us get the phones working within nine days, with the possible exception of late applications. The company will also publish a student directory for the first time.

"We have found on-campus students to be very patient," he said, although they may have to wait several days for service. "They've been very responsible."

Current off-campus orders have numbered about 800 or 900, said Collier. The real rush, however, will start the week of Sept. 7.
The Greenville Utilities Commission has already scheduled a stand-by crew for the Labor Day weekend, according to George Reel, customer service supervisor. Although the office will not be open, persons can call a special number, 752-5627, for weekend service.

"We will cut on service over the weekend but the customer must come in by the first working (office) day to fill out an application and pay the deposit," Reel said. Student customers off campus this year will be subject to recently increased deposit rates, $75 or $80 depending on the types of utilities service provided.

"We will get as many people as we can into the office to take care of applications," Reel stated. No extra personnel will be hired, but persons may be taken away from duties in other offices during the first two weeks.

"We have already had several inquiries from people who have acquired their apartments already," he added, as many students returned to Greenville early to complete their home-hunting. "Later we may get as many as 100 (inquiries) on any particular day."

Carolina Drought Near End Of Its Fifth Month

By DAVID R. NELSEN
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A drought that has left much of Eastern North Carolina parched, continued unabated as the fifth month of it near an end.

Raleigh and Chapel Hill have been hit the hardest by the long dry spell. Both cities have been forced to rely on emergency water supplies from other towns and each has imposed ordinances setting out stiff penalties for anyone caught wasting water.

There had been some hope for a weekend rainfall as a cold front moved across the state. But, only traces of rain fell Sunday.

Raleigh's chief source of water is the Neuse River which normally has a flow of about 400 million gallons a day. Saturday the flow was only 8.6 million gallons and on Sunday it was about 11 million gallons. Sunday's flow was up only because Durham and Butner had released a combined 7.5 million gallons from their reservoirs upstream Friday.

The drought is the worst since recordkeeping began in 1887, weathermen said. In April through July, the normal rainfall is better than 15 inches but this year it was about 8.5 inches.

In Chapel Hill, 30 miles west of Raleigh, problems continued as University Lake, the city's main source of water, remained at little more than half its capacity.

The purchase of about three million gallons of water a day from Durham has saved Chapel Hill from a more severe crisis. Durham has promised to continue supplying the neighboring town unless its supplies become threatened.

Emergency ordinances in Raleigh and Chapel Hill are aimed at preventing wasteful uses of water. Anyone caught washing a car or watering lawns or shrubs could be fined $50 and jailed 30 days.

Chapel Hill restaurants may not give customers a glass of water unless it is requested and most restaurants are using plastic plates and utensils to avoid washing dishes.

Police have reported no arrests so far, but some warnings had been issued.

On July 23, Raleigh officials called on citizens to voluntarily cut water use. Though the emergency ordinance was later passed, it was not put into effect until last Saturday when the water supply dropped and use had gone up.

Chapel Hill, the home of the University of North Carolina, imposed its emergency ordinance Aug. 18, just days before the thousands of students returned for the fall semester. The university, which operates the area's water system, said it is a last resort, but it might temporarily close the university if the situation gets bad enough.

Students arrived for the fall semester at Chapel Hill and the several colleges in Raleigh including North Carolina State last week, pushing up the demand for water.

College officials have participated in water conservation efforts by passing out brochures and putting up signs and posters asking students to conserve water.

Defiance Is Denounced

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy (AP) — Pope Paul VI has denounced a traditionalist French bishop who celebrated Mass publicly in defiance of a papal ban, but a Vatican spokesman said further sanctions against Msgr. Marcel Lefebvre are not expected immediately.

"The situation now could be described as a moment of tranquility," the spokesman said.

Father Virgilio Levi, assistant editor of the Vatican newspaper Osservatore Romano, said in a television interview, "The consequences will be either a tacit setting apart of Lefebvre in that his conduct automatically excludes him from full union with the church; or there could be a declaration of this exclusion with the canonical penalty of excommunication."

Vatican observers noted that excommunication or removal from the priesthood would take some time because of the legalities involved.

Bishop Lefebvre celebrated Mass in Latin Sunday before 7,000 persons in a sports arena in his native Lille, France. This defied the Pope's suspension of him from all priestly functions a month ago.

Miss Stancill Wed At Liberty Church

AYDEN—The Liberty Free Will Baptist Church was the setting for the marriage of Sandra Kaye Stancill to Linwood Earl Thomas Jr. Sunday afternoon at three o'clock. The Rev. Raymond Gaskins, pastor of the church, officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Wade Stancill. She was given in marriage by her father. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Linwood Earl Thomas Sr.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Robert Weathersby, organist, and Tim Devinney of Winterville, soloist, who sang "We've Only Just Begun," "Whither Thou Goest" and the "Wedding Prayer."

The chancel of the church was centered with a fifteen branch candelabra draped with greenery. Spiral candelabras were used on each side of the chancel. Seven branch candelabras held assorted summer flowers and greenery. Standards of greenery were used as accents throughout. Daisy nosegays marked the honor pews. The couple knelt for the benediction on a white satin prie-dieu. After reciting their vows, the couple lit the unity candle, symbolic of their union.

The bride wore a formal length gown of white mirra-mist over white taffeta designed with a high neckline of ruffled pleated organza outlined in floral Venise lace. Panels of the floral lace outlined and trimmed the bib-shaped linear sheer bodice. The long fitted sleeves were trimmed in daisy Venise lace and ruffled organza at the cuffs.

The modified A-line skirt was enhanced with a deep ruffle flounce at the hemline, trimmed in daisy Venise lace that extended to the attached chapel length train. She wore a formal length mantilla edged in the matching daisy lace, and carried a colonial nosegay of daisies, miniature carnations and baby's breath centered around an orchid and tied with white satin ribbon.

Mrs. Paul Edwards Heath of Farmville served as matron of honor. She wore a formal length gown of white organza printed in a floral pattern in shades of rose, maize, blue and green. The gown was designed with an open scooped neckline and short flared sleeves. The empire bodice was encircled with green velvet ribbon, which also trimmed the white ruffled flounce that edged the hemline.

She wore a picture hat covered in the same floral print material and trimmed with green velvet ribbon. She carried a nosegay of daisies and baby's breath tied with green velvet ribbon.

Miss Tammy Stancill, sister of the bride, Miss Darlene Smith and Miss Debbie Smith, both of Ayden, Miss Cindy Jones of Wendell, and Mrs. Richard Hansen of Myrtle Beach, S.C., were the bridesmaids. They wore dresses identical to the honor attendant's and carried arm bouquets of daisies tied with green velvet ribbon.

Miss Missy Rose, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rose of Grifton, was flower girl. She wore a light green chiffon dress trimmed in matching ribbon and carried a bouquet of daisies.

Marc Cannon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Cannon of Ayden, served as ring bearer.

Linwood E. Thomas Sr., father of the bridegroom, was best man.

Groomsmen were Ricky Gaddy and Lloyd Allen Butler, both of Grifton, Bruce Samuel of Purcellville, Va., cousin of the bridegroom, Bruce Rollins of Virginia Beach, Va., cousin of the bridegroom, and Alan Stancill, brother of the bride.

Following the ceremony the bride's parents entertained with an outdoor reception on their lawn. The lawn was decorated with potted mums, hanging baskets and greenery. The bride's table was overlaid with a white cloth and flounce skirt. Assorted summer flowers were used to decorate the table, along with silver candelabras and greenery.

Miss Cindy Prince of Ayden presided at the punch bowl and Mrs. Billy Nobles served the bridal cake. Mrs. Donald Skinner and Mrs. Fred Wainwright assisted in serving. Miss Shirley Spence of Kinston presided at the guest register.

Mrs. Vernon Warren of Ayden directed the wedding.

The bride is a graduate of Ayden-Grifton High School and is currently a student at East Carolina University. The bridegroom is also a graduate of Ayden-Grifton and attended Lenoir Community College.

The bridegroom is currently employed by Proctor and Gamble, Greenville.

After a wedding trip to Myrtle Beach, S.C., the couple will reside in Ayden.

An after-rehearsal dinner was given by Mr. and Mrs. Linwood Earl Thomas Sr. for the wedding party, out-of-town guests and relatives at King's Kinston.

Mr. and Mrs. Ricky Gaddy of Grifton entertained at a cookout Friday for the bridal couple, their wedding attendants and other invited guests.

Mrs. Franklin Hawes and Miss Jane Hawes hosted a bridesmaids' luncheon Friday at their home.

Miss Harris, Mr. Dilda Exchanged Vows Sunday

Miss Janet Sue Harris became the bride of Milton Douglas Dilda in a double ring ceremony Sunday afternoon at three o'clock in the Maranatha Free Will Baptist Church here.

Parents of the couple are the Rev. and Mrs. Alvia Harris and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Dilda, all of Greenville.

Mrs. Carolyn Garris, organist, presented a program of nuptial music. Steve Jones of Kinston sang "More" and the "Wedding Prayer." The Rev. John Moran of Belvoir officiated at the ceremony assisted by the bride's father.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white formal gown of doe skin overlaid with chiffon. The gown was styled with an empire waist, scooped neckline and full gathered sleeves. The dress had daisy appliques on the bodice, neck and sleeve band. The dress featured a detachable train trimmed in daisy appliques.

Her floor length veil was attached to a headpiece designed with seed pearls and daisy trim to match the gown. She carried a bouquet of pink sweetheart roses and baby's breath with pink and white streamers tied in love knots.

Mrs. Edna H. Avery served her niece as matron of honor. She wore light blue and pink flocked voile gown featuring an empire waist, scooped neck and full sheer bishop sleeves. She carried a long-stemmed white mum with blue, white and pink streamers. She wore a pink picture hat.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Sue Tripp, Miss June Lord, and Miss Connie Lee Garris, all of Greenville. Their dresses and hats were styled identical to that of the honor attendant.

Junior bridesmaids were Miss

Angie Harris, sister of the bride, and Miss Paige Brown, cousin of the bridegroom. They wore pink dotted swiss dresses with an empire waist, scooped neck and a ruffle edged bottom. They wore bows in their hair.

Miss Sherrie Owens, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. She was dressed in a pink and white floral printed dress of dotted swiss and wore a matching bow in her hair. She carried a wicker basket of petals tied with pink and white streamers.

Lawrence Dilda served his cousin as best man. Ushers were Ronald Hodges and Jimmy Taunton, both of Greenville, and John Lawrence of Winterville. Terry Mills of Greenville was ring bearer.

Mrs. Margie Brown, aunt of the bridegroom, presided at the register.

Miss Stephanie Brown, cousin of the bridegroom, was rice carrier. The wedding was directed by Mrs. La Rue Mumford of Grifton, aunt of the bride.

For traveling, the bride changed into a yellow skirt with a matching floral blouse and wore her mother's corsage.

The bride is a graduate of Rose High School and is now employed with Taft and Taft Attorneys, Greenville. The bridegroom is a graduate of Rose High School and is attending East Carolina University. He is employed by Larry's Shoe Store, Greenville.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside in Greenville.

An after-rehearsal party was held Saturday night for the wedding party and friends of the family.

The refreshment table was covered with a lace cloth and centered with an arrangement of summer flowers. After the couple cut the first slice of the four tiered cake, refreshments were served. Punch was poured by the mother of the bridegroom and cake was served by the bride's mother.

Garden Ceremony Unites Miss Blount, Mr. Dees

BETHEL — Miss Margaret Elizabeth Blount and Julius Gladstone Dees III were united in marriage in a private garden ceremony Sunday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents.

The Rev. Ellis Bedsworth of Bethel officiated at the single ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full length gown of candlelight ivory quiana jersey. The bodice featured a portrait neckline and short sleeves with a yoke of alencon lace and pearls. The Aline skirt was accented by a full wateau train.

Following the ceremony, the parents of the bride entertained at a wedding dinner. The house and garden were decorated with ivory roses and hanging baskets of fern.

The bride is a graduate of St. Margaret's, Tappahannock, Va., and attended Stratford College, Danville, Va. She is a graduate of East Carolina University. Mr. Dees received his degree from East Carolina University.

KIDS MAY BENEFIT FROM MOM'S WORKING
URBANA, Ill. (AP) — The children may benefit when their mother is happily employed, says Lynda Harriman, University of Illinois Extension family life specialist.

As the quantity of time the mother spends with her family decreases, the quality — or how the time is used — may increase as she strives to compensate for her absence during the day. Thus, the employed mother may be involved in more activities with her children than a mother who is always home, Mrs. Harriman says.

As Usual, Board Lacked Funds

The Greenville city school board opened bids for the Greenville Middle School last week. As usual there was not enough money available to cover the cost of constructing the full plant, as envisioned by the planners of the facility. There is $1,686,971 in a fund now on hand for construction of the school. For package one, which would include 16 classrooms, media center, administrative area and cafeteria the total bid was $2,028,615. Package Five would include the base bid plus an auditorium, gymnasium, exploratory area and second increment of 16 classrooms at a total cost of $3,563,104. In between were packages which include various portions of the planned school facility at correspondingly varying bids. The school board could take no action on the bids since funds were not on hand to pay the total cost of any of the six plans. However, a meeting was held with the county commissioners to discuss the appropriation of additional funds for the middle school. The school board requested an estimated $535,000 to be added to the funds presently available for construction of the school. Officials have 30 days to accept or reject the bids for all or part of the planned structure. We are hopeful that the county commissioners will come up with some additional funds so that at least a portion of the planned middle school construction can get underway. The bids are reportedly within the estimates and it is not likely that a future bidding will be any cheaper. In addition the new middle school facility is sorely needed for the city's educational program.

Are Taxpayers Willing To Bear Burden?

The North Carolina Association of Educators wants a 20 percent pay raise for teachers for the 1977-79 biennium. Craig Phillips, superintendent of public instruction called the request a "responsible, reasonable salary request." That may be true, but if the increase were granted it would cost the state $240,000,000 over the two years. Not only that but other state employees will want a similar increase with a corresponding price tag. We are all for salary increases for teachers—but the 20 percent increase may boil down to whether the tax payers should be required to shoulder a tax increase in order to pay the bill.

Court Elections Confusing

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—Some see this year's election of judges as another indication of the need for reform in the method of selecting court officials in North Carolina.

The confusion is apparent in a surface review of the primary just held, and the November election upcoming.

Most of the action is at the Judicial District level; there are 30 such districts. Elections are being held in 21 of the districts, but only 19 of those have contested races this year.

A total of 90 seats at the bench are at stake, with 122 Democrats and 15 Republicans going into the primaries.

Three Elections
After the primaries, there will be election races in only three districts—that is, Democrats and Republicans running against each other for the same seat. Most of the weeding was done in the primaries, with party winners facing no opposition.

Contests will take place in the November voting in Forsyth County where four out of five judgeships are contested; in Guilford County with three out of eight seats contested; and in the southwestern counties of Henderson, Rutherford, Polk, and McDowell where one of three offices is contested.

There were four races for Superior Court judgeships, with only one primary contest, and three offices of prosecutor open, but only one primary contest.

Meanwhile, at the state level, three seats on the N.C. Court of Appeals and two on the N.C. Supreme Court are being filled. There is no contest in the Appeals Court election; and one Republican is running for the Supreme Court.

The question of merit selection of judges comes up from time to time in the General Assembly, and is likely to be considered again in 1977.

The direction currently points toward a system whereby a commission would recommend for appointment by the governor, or the General Assembly, or a combination of those two powers, judges found qualified to serve.

Citizen's Voice
Opponents of such an approach argue that direct voter involvement in selecting judges keeps citizen control over the courts; those in favor point to the lack of voter knowledge and the confusion of the election as making it all but impossible for citizens to elect good judges.

Opponents of merit selection also contend the system would provide for even stronger domination of the selection of judges by the legal profession since the statewide organization of lawyers would be involved; and also that the appointment system would allow politics to get involved.

Another problem under discussion is how to eliminate the occasional bad apple from the judicial barrel. The proposal on merit selection provides for an election every four or six years with the voter saying whether or not to keep a particular judge on the bench.

But that approach does not take into consideration the value of a personal battle between candidates to clearly focus the issues, and even sometimes bring into public view hidden facts regarding a judge or candidate.

Also disturbing to opponents is the "closed club" nature of the state's disciplinary system for judges. The Judicial Standards Commission protects a judge from public disclosure of charges, conducts investigations and hearings secretly, hands down discipline behind closed doors, and only if removal or censure by the State Supreme Court is called for does the public get a look at the record.

It's Tough Readjusting

SILENT COVE — One of the reasons people buy summer houses is to invite friends out to see how they have escaped the hustle and bustle of the city.

The Briarpatches have been trying to get us to visit them at their home in Silent Cove for months and we finally went up there last weekend.

Charles Briarpatch met us at the airport. "You're going to love Silent Cove," he assured us. "It's so beautiful and quiet you can't believe it."

We arrived at the house, a 1754 converted Colonial, overlooking the water.

Our bedroom was next to the bathroom which was very convenient because everyone used it and we got to meet all the friends of the Briarpatch children.

The first morning I woke up to hear someone pounding with a hammer.

My wife said, "What's that?"

I looked out the window and I saw three workmen building a new house.

At breakfast Charles explained that Silent Cove had been discovered a few years ago by a developer and they were building houses all over the place.

"We're going on a picnic today," Nancy Briarpatch said. "They have some lovely woods around here and it makes you wonder why anyone would live in a city."

We drove a few miles and then hiked a few miles and finally found ourselves in a beautiful glen overlooking Silent Cove. We spread out our blankets and started passing around daiquiris.

"Isn't this the life?" Charles said.

Suddenly I heard a buzz saw behind me.

Two men were cutting up a tree and the buzz saw was screaming in anger at the reluctant wood.

"What are you doing?" I shouted at one of the men.

"Got to clear out all the trees that fell down in the storm," he shouted back. "It's going to take us two months to do it."

We ate our picnic lunch to the accompaniment of the Buzz Saw Symphony in C Sharp Major.

ART BUCHWALD

When we got back to the house Charles suggested a tennis game with his wife and children.

"Why can't you play?" I asked.

"I have to cut the lawn," he said. "You go ahead and have a game without me."

While we were hitting the ball back and forth, Charles brought out his motorized Toro lawn mower, without a muffler, and started to cut the grass. Most of the lawn was located around the tennis court so we all tried to keep time to Charles' mowing while we concentrated on the game.

In the evening we sat out on the porch to watch the sunset when we heard the sound of an engine being revved up.

"Someone else cutting his lawn?" I inquired.

"No, that's a 10-year-old kid next door. His parents gave him a motorbike and he loves to use the throttle on it at this time of night," Nancy Briarpatch said. "He sits on it for hours pretending he's a motorcycle policeman."

About 10 o'clock we were about to go to bed only to be assaulted by sounds of rock music coming up from the beach.

"Somebody having a party?" I asked Charles.

"No," he told me. "They have a discotheque down at the beach and it's so quiet around here the sound travels for miles. You can hear the music every night."

THE INSIDE REPORT

Danger Signals For Carter

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The unexpectedly sharp drop by Jimmy Carter in the Gallup Poll may now unlock anxious tongues of Democratic professional politicians who feel their candidate has made a critical tactical error: failing to move to the right after the Democratic national convention.

This criticism was reinforced by Carter's televised confrontation Tuesday with the American Legion over his pledge to pardon Vietnam draft dodgers. Party pros perceive the spectacle of Legionnaires booing Carter having only the effect of pushing Carter's image further left.

Yet, apart from the Vietnam pardon, Carter's Legion speech in Seattle was conciliatory and intended to give a middle to hard-boiled impression of his defense policy. Indeed, the professed post-nomination intent of key Carter advisers was to project a centrist image — an admittedly rightward tack after his courtship of the liberals at Madison Square Garden in July.

Thus, Carter's false start in a vaguely leftist pose is not a conscious design, much less a sign of doctrinaire attitudes by an infinitely flexible candidate. Rather, it stems from two factors highly worrisome to Democratic politicians: first, the Carter campaign's continuing reflexive need to reassure liberals long after the nomination was won; second, the clear pattern of McGovernite infestation of Carter's campaign structure.

The first danger signal from Plains, Ga., after Carter's nomination was his lavishly publicized embrace of consumer advocate Ralph Nader. Some Democratic operatives relayed this warning: despite Carter's seemingly safe lead, don't count out President Ford's appeal for ordinary middle-class voters — voters who are not nearly so enthralled with Nader as liberal Democrats.

In disregard of this warning, Carter launched his campaign this week at Los Angeles in the new tradition of radical chic: talking about Georgia's rural poverty to McGovernite beautiful people from Beverly Hills. "I am amazed," one Democratic moderate told us. "He goes from Ralph Nader to Warren Beatty."

There is, then, a gap between intent and results.

Carter advisers say his speeches the past two weeks were intended to convey a centrist image by extolling the family. But front-page newspaper photos linking Carter and a grinning Beatty portray a different image.

This was in the minds of many national Democratic steering committee members when they lunched with Carter at the Pacifica Hotel in Los Angeles Monday. But with the latest published polls showing Carter 20 percentage points ahead, who was going to quarrel with the miracle maker from Plains? The closed portion of the meeting quibbled over nuts-and-bolts relations between Carter fieldmen and local politicians but ignored serious questions of tactics.

Not surprisingly, Carter left the meeting to engage in more of the same activity that worries old Democratic hands. He declared in San Francisco (a former hub of anti-Vietnam activity) that he would proclaim his support for Vietnam pardons to the American Legion convention in Seattle, thereby guaranteeing maximum attention.

This was certainly not hot news. Carter had fully revealed his position on amnesty last winter and now was obviously trying to squeeze some political credit from it by bearding the reactionary old Legionnaires in their den. Yet, Vietnam amnesty is a burning issue only in the left wing of the Democratic party, where potential votes for Mr. Ford are in short supply.

The result at Seattle was network news broadcasts of Carter being booed by fellow Legionnaires. Equally important, the parts of his speech that called for a strong national defense were predictably ignored by (Continued on page 5)

To the editor:

Recently, the aeromobile, the automobile that flies, has been grounded by one of the myriad Washington Federal Agencies, because, among other things, the aeromobile does not meet bumper standards. The thought occurred to this observer, suppose we had been blessed with Federal Agencies earlier in the Republic's history, say 1900. The news might sound like this...

"Today, Occupational Safety and Health Agents closed the Wright Brothers bicycle shop and levied a stiff fine for failing to comply with safety regulations regarding placement of ladders and exactly whether Orville Wright's grease pit constituted a hole as defined by OSHA regulation 12-A, section 3(c)(1)(d), paragraph 4. Orville explained he was trying to build a flying machine heavier than air and was unfamiliar with the regulation. Whereupon the agent asked if they applied for an EPA establishment number. Wilbur Wright, Orville's brother, answered 'No, but if it will help us get our machine in the air, we'll make application.'

"Application was denied by the Chief Administrator stating: 'This onerous contraption poses not only unreasonable adverse effects on the environment but an imminent hazard to the public.' Besides, the Chief Administrator added, 'If the good Lord meant for us to fly, he would have put wings on our back.'

"Consumer advocate, Raider Ralph, praised the actions of the Administrator characterizing the Environmental Protection Agency as the last line of defense against unscrupulous schemes to exploit the environment."

And that's the way it could have been...

Salesmanship Needs Watching

By JOHN CUNNIFF

AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Salesmanship is an art that moves goods and thus helps to keep our economy moving, but it is also an art that demands our closest examination and caution lest we become its victims.

Here are two situations in which you could become involved over the next few months:

The stock salesman — "If you had bought a dollar's worth of stock during the depth of the recession late in 1974, as represented by the Dow Jones industrial average, you could sell it today for more than $1.50."

"But if you had put your money into gold, as so many faddists were encouraging you to do, you would have lost almost the same amount. The Dow went up, but gold went down."

If you are presented with this argument, which is commonly used these days, you might consider asking in your most naive manner these questions:

How do I buy a dollar's worth of stock? How do I buy the Dow Jones average? Have you deducted commissions? Why do you compare a specific investment, gold, with stocks, of which there are thousands?

The truth is, you cannot invest in the industrial average, as such. You might purchase equal amounts of the 30 shares that make up the average, but to do so would involve costly commissions.

Neither, of course, can you invest in "the stock market." The New York Stock Exchange alone has more than a thousand issues listed, and that is only a fraction of the total. Never has anyone had an interest in the total market.

When somebody tells you that you would have earned a pile of money if you had invested in the market at such and such a time, ask him to which stock or stocks he refers. And then ask: Did you recommend them at the time?

The automobile salesman — "Sure the price is higher than last year, but what isn't? But look at it this way, you won't pay a nickel more per month. That's because we can get you 60-month financing, instead of 48 or 36."

"Look, fella, if you had to pay off $5,000 in 36 months at 12 per cent you'd be sending the bank a check for more than $166 every month. This way you'll only have to shell

Finance Law's Impact

By ROBERT B. CULLEN

Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — The 1976 state primary provided the first test of North Carolina's new campaign finance law. Predictably, the law had a major impact on the campaign and the election results.

Two of the most noticeable innovations were the $3,000 limit on contributions by individuals and the $363,000 limit on total media spending by a candidate.

Both shapes the course of the campaign. The spending limit made the three gubernatorial candidates who approached it — George Wood, Jim Hunt, and Edward O'Herron, plan their purchases of advertising carefully; none of them complained, however, that it impaired their ability to get their messages to the public.

Even more important was the $3,000 limit. For Hunt, it was no trouble. He had an extensive campaign organization and there were hundreds of people anxious to give $1,000 or more to the man they figured would be the next governor. He got more than 20,000 individual contributions.

But for O'Herron and Wood, it caused problems. Neither could rely on a few wealthy friends to finance their efforts. Both had to borrow in excess of $500,000 to personally finance their campaigns. Such loans to losing candidates generally turn into debts, which both Wood and O'Herron will now have to pay off.

In the future, it seems likely that gubernatorial candidates will have to have extensive organizations like Hunt's to raise money or they will have to be personally wealthy enough to borrow the money needed for a statewide campaign. The alternatives are to abandon the contribution limit or go to some type of public campaign financing.

The primary campaign also showed some areas where the law is vulnerable to efforts to bypass it.

One is the reporting schedule. It was changed by the 1975 legislature so that no reports are necessary from January until 10 days before the primary. This year, that was a Saturday, so the deadline was extended two days. Some reports were only mailed on that day.

That left the campaign staffs and the press less than a week to pore through the reports and try to analyze who was giving money to whom. With the multiplicity of candidates running, that was not enough time.

One reason more time was needed was the law's failure to require contributors to disclose their occupations, as the federal law requires. This meant that one reporter, for example, spent three days ferreting out the names of highway contractors who had given to the gubernatorial campaigns. Had the reports been filed on federal forms, the task would have taken three hours.

Another loophole lies in the reporting requirements for loans. A candidate can get a personal loan from a friend, a bank, or wherever he can find it. Then he can contribute the money to his campaign. The law allows him to name himself as the source of the money and avoid disclosing where it really came from.

Harlan Boyles, for example, listed himself as the donor of $125,000 to his campaign. Reporters wondered where Boyles, a careerstate employee, had gotten that much money.

It turned out he had borrowed $114,000 of it, at the (Continued on page 5)

Strength For Today

THE RIVER AND THE WAY

We read in Pilgrim's Progress, that great book written by a persecuted dissenting preacher in the middle of the seventeenth century, that as Christian and Hopeful made their journey toward the Celestial City they came to a place where the river and the way for a time parted.

The river was symbolic of refreshment. The author, John Bunyan, was here pointing out that in the pilgrimage we must all make along life's pathway we sometimes become separated from the things which refresh, console, and inspire us.

But this does not mean that God has forgotten us. There was divine purpose behind everything that happened to Pilgrim in his progress toward the Celestial City. For the good of our souls we need sometimes to be separated from the river with its refreshment and inspiration.

Then when we come to the end of the journey and look back, we see that it was all plainly a part of God's providence for us, and we can rejoice.

N.C. Traffic Took 10 Lives

By The Associated Press
Ten persons died this week-end on North Carolina's highways, bringing the state's total for the year to 951, the Highway Patrol reported Sunday night, compared to 961 as of the same date in 1975.

A Beaufort woman, Gladys Beatrice Hester, 29, was killed Sunday afternoon when she walked into the path of a vehicle on a rural paved road in Carteret County, the patrol said.

A Como teenager, Ronald Earl Reid, 15, died Sunday when he was struck by a vehicle while riding a bicycle on U.S. 258. The patrol said the accident occurred 3 1/4 miles north of Murfreesboro in Hertford County.

Eric Neil Nash, 20, of Plymouth, was killed Sunday morning in a single car accident. The patrol said Nash lost control of his car on a private road two miles west of Plymouth in Martin County. The vehicle ran off the road and overturned.

Also killed in a Sunday morning accident was 18-year-old Daryl Wayne Ward of Raleigh. The patrol said he was the driver of a car traveling at high speed on U.S. 401, two miles south of Raleigh. The car ran off the road and struck a culvert, throwing Ward from the vehicle.

Clyde Jones Jr., 46, of Roseboro, was killed late Saturday when he was struck by a hit and run vehicle. The patrol said Jones was lying on a rural paved road 12 miles west of Newton Grove in Sampson County.

A New Bern man, 33-year-old Charles H. Fulcher, died Saturday when he lost control of his speeding car on a curve. The patrol said the vehicle left the road and overturned. The accident occurred on a rural paved road in Craven County, 18 miles north of New Bern.

Francis Grandes Delazo, 25, of Cantonville, Md., died Saturday morning when a vehicle struck a bicycle she was riding on N.C. 12 near Salvo.

A Garysburg teenager, 18-year-old Cheryl Yvonne Lee, died Friday night in a wreck on Interstate 95 near Gaston. The patrol said the car in which she was a passenger ran under a tractor-trailer truck.

George Thomas Brodie, 45, of Battleboro, died Friday night in a single car accident four miles south of Battleboro. The patrol said his car ran off a rural road and struck a tree.

Thirty-year-old Barbara Council Clemons was killed in an accident early Saturday in Durham.

DIES — Mary Anissa Jones, who portrayed Buffy in the 1960s television series "Family Affair," was found dead Saturday at the home of friends, according to police. Officials refused to speculate on what caused her death. She was 18. She is shown here in character as Buffy in 1967. (AP Wirephoto)

Many Injured By Highchairs

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — The Consumer Product Safety Commission reports high chair accidents injured 7,000 infants and young children last year, says Claudia Mittel, a consumer information specialist with the Texas agricultural Extension Service.

"As the consumer selects high chairs, safety as well as comfort and convenience, need to be considered," she says.

The next morning we went sailing out in the cove. Unfortunately, everyone else in the cove was water-skiing and the roar of the motorboats drowned out all conversation.

Except for a seaplane that landed that night, a bulldozer that was clearing a lot next door for a new summer house and a motorcycle gang that camped up the hill, Silent Cove was everything the Briarpatches said it would be.

When we got back to Washington, my wife and I had a difficult job adjusting to the city. The damn birds outside our window started chirping at 8 o'clock in the morning.

CROP FORECAST
COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — This year's cotton crop in Texas may exceed the billion dollar mark if current market conditions remain strong and good weather prevails, according to a Texas Agricultural Extension Service economist.

This would make the crop second only to that produced in 1973, which brought in $1.2 billion.

That pleases liberals inside the Carter campaign who have worried disproportionately about the "Menace" of Eugene McCarthy's independent left candidacy. But a Gallup Poll showing a dramatic shrinking within two weeks of Carter's lead outside the South makes clear that his real rival is not Gene McCarthy but Jerry Ford.

"Thank God for the Gallup Poll," says one old-line Democratic politician who believes the Carter campaign might now get serious about heading for the middle of the road. The test will come on the first debate, particularly if the subject is defense policy as Mr. Ford proposes. To the old pros, that provide an opening for criticism of detente, Henry Kissinger and the Nixon-Ford foreign policy. Whether the Carter campaign perceives it in the same light remains to be seen.

Similarly, there were no listings of the banks and individuals from whom O'Herron and Wood borrowed their money or whether they got favorable interest rates.

Hargrove Bowles, the 1972 Democratic gubernatorial nominee, found and used another loophole in helping out his friend, Wood.

Bowles spent $3,000 of his own to make and show some ads endorsing Wood. The total didn't count against Wood's $363,000 limit, because Bowles acted as an independent individual.

The Bowles ads would not have pushed Wood over the limit anyway, but they raise the possibility that in some future campaign, candidates could evade the limit with the help of wealthy friends.

Bowles himself says he had no intention of evading the spirit of the law. He just wanted to help a friend and he doesn't think it would be constitutional to tell an individual he cannot buy time and speak his mind on television.

Changes in the law will undoubtedly be introduced in the 1977 General Assembly. Their chances for passage will probably depend on how onerous the legislators themselves found the reporting requirements in their own campaigns.

Hike-Bike Benefit Chairman Named

Ms. Vivian Crickmore has been named chairman of the Pitt County 1976 Hike-Bike for Retarded Citizens. It was announced today by Dr. Frank A. Close, president of the Pitt County Association for Retarded Citizens.

Ms. Crickmore said, "Residents of Pitt County will have an opportunity to take part in this worthwhile event. We hope everyone who can will join us in the 'hike-bike' either as participants or sponsors."

The hike-bike campaign calls on volunteer citizens to either "hike" or "bike" for retarded citizens, over a measured course. Businesses and individuals are asked to pledge so much per mile for each mile walked or ridden by participants.

The hike-bike will take place Oct. 2 from 9:30 a.m. until 1:30.

Hikers and bikers will rally at E.B. Aycock School where the measured course will run from start to finish. Check points will be set up at intervals along the route, to accurately clock miles walked or ridden by participants. "Walks and rides have been very successful in other parts of the country," Ms. Crickmore state, "and have raised thousands of dollars for the mentally retarded. I know we can count on the citizens of Pitt County to make the campaign here an outstanding success."

Interested walkers, riders or sponsors are urged to contact the Pitt County Association for Retarded Citizens, 758-1683.

TALK IS CHEAPER
WHEN YOU DO IT
BY THE BOOK.

Or, how to save money (and time) on directory assistance calls.

First, before calling Directory Assistance:

Check your telephone directory. You'll probably find the number already listed there.

Check your personal directory. Your frequently called numbers are always at your finger tips in this handy little directory, and they're available at no extra charge from your local telephone business office.

Check letterheads, business forms and invoices. Most businesses list their phone numbers on their stationary and printed forms. Then, if you still find it necessary to call Directory Assistance:

Remember that you can get two local numbers with one call, and that you can get up to five free calls each month.

And don't forget to record the number you get in your telephone directory, personal directory or address book.

The fact is, most of the numbers now being requested are already included in your current local telephone directory.

So, do it by the book. And save.

Use Directory Assistance wisely. It pays. Carolina Telephone

N.C. Visitor Remembers Flash Over Hiroshima

EDITORS NOTE — Most agree it was a cloudless day complete with a gentle breeze — until the bomb came. And suddenly the bright summer sun was upon Hiroshima. Here is an account by E. Bryant Phillips of the New Bern Sun-Journal.

MINNESOTT BEACH, N.C. (AP) — It is a long way from Pamlico Sound to Hiroshima and it has been a long time since Aug. 6, 1945, but Luna Hisada remembers the flash that caused her to see "every color in the rainbow."

It was that Aug. 6 morning when the first atomic bomb exploded over the 4-square-mile city of 300,000. The clocks stopped at 8:15 a.m.

Very few people in the city survived, but Luna Hisada did. While on vacation this Pamlico County resort with the family of her brother Juan recently, she recalled what it was like to be in Hiroshima the day the sun touched the earth. Her brother acted as interpreter during the interview.

Luna, a native of Bolivia, worked in Hiroshima in 1945. Then 20, she was working at the University of Hiroshima.

Air raid warnings were common in the city, she said, so everyone routinely sought shelter when the sirens wailed the morning of Aug. 6. But after the sirens sounded for a brief period, they stopped because there was only one American plane high above the city.

Luna was still on the floor under her desk when other secretaries went to the surrounding windows to see what was happening.

Then came the flash. She quickly closed her eyes, but Luna said the flash caused her to see "every color in the rainbow." She glanced up and saw her friends at the window "have their clothes melt off of them."

Suddenly it was pitch dark. "I thought I was dead," Luna recalled. The darkness was followed by a twilight and a "black rain" of radioactive ashes and debris.

Luna said she remained under her desk for about 30 minutes before she went outside to search for some friends.

The building she had been in was one of two in the city which were not flattened by the blast. The building, in the heart of Hiroshima, was about two kilometers from the center of the explosion.

"The whole city was completely flat," Luna said. She saw fires burning everywhere and dazed people wandering about.

Most of the people in the street were badly burned and naked because the heat had disintegrated their clothes, she said.

"Nobody knew what happened. Everyone thought the American planes had come the night before and covered the whole city with kerosene."

The lone plane, they speculated, "dropped a fire bomb and set the whole city on fire."

Luna found a friend who was badly cut and burned. Both began searching for medical attention.

When they finally found doctors, they were not treated because the doctors said their wounds were not as bad as those of other persons.

"The doctors didn't know how to treat the wounded. They just bandaged the wounds," she said.

Two days later, Luna and her friend decided to leave the city, following a path of railroad tracks.

As they walked, they passed the Japanese military headquarters in the city. They went in to look for help, but no one was alive in the building.

"Dead soldiers were lying everywhere," Luna said.

As she made her way out of Hiroshima, Luna saw the shadow of a man who had been sitting on the steps of a bank. The man had been disintegrated by the blast, but the bright flash left a permanent imprint on the granite wall.

Luna and her friend finally arrived at the home of her friend's family and stayed there to recuperate.

She said communications in the area were so poor that no one heard that another atomic bomb had been dropped on Nagasaki just three days after the Hiroshima blast. Not until 15 days had passed after the Hiroshima explosion did the people know it came from a "special weapon," Luna said.

Luna said there were few angry feelings expressed toward the United States after the blast because people thought "the people caused the war, not the United States."

She said she believed the atomic bomb was the best thing that could have happened to end the war because she believed the Japanese were going to "fight until the very end."

Luna said she has never felt any ill effects from the blast and she has no scars to hint that she was one of the fortunate few to live through Hiroshima.

And she is still working for the University of Hiroshima, in a new building beside the one that saved her life.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market posted a moderate gain in very light trading today, continuing last Friday's slow-motion advance.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up 2.58 at 966.51, after a 3.49-point rise Friday.

Gainers held a 5-3 advantage over losers in the over-all tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Big Board volume lagged behind last Friday's pace, when the full session's total was the third lightest of the year.

Brokers said traders appeared to be doing a little cautious buying in the hope that the market might gain some vitality next week after Labor Day—the traditional "business New Year".

They also noted encouragement that the Dow had stabilized late last week before it could slip below the bottom of the range in which it has fluctuated for more than six months.

At the same time the market seemed to be inhibited by doubts about the future direction of Federal Reserve credit policy and the resulting pressures on interest rates.

Dow Chemical, the most active NYSE issue, was unchanged at 44 1/2.

Most other stocks showed only minor price changes.

The Big Board's composite index rose .10 to 54.33 in the first hour.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .08 at 101.51.

Sector Leading Nation

ATLANTA (AP) — Individual manufacturing output has risen more in the Southeast than in any other region in the nation, the Federal Reserve Bank in Atlanta said.

The bank report by Dr. William D. Toal was based on the 1972 manufacturing output in the area.

Toal's study said that high capital spending has been an important factor in the rise of output. He further speculated that it is still lower than elsewhere in the nation "because of a different industry mix than the United States as a whole."

The report noted that some industries—rubber, electrical machinery, paper, furniture, leather, stone, clay, glass and textiles—show higher output per manhour in the Southeast than nationally.

Also of note was the wage gap between the Southeast and the nation as a whole.

"While labor productivity differs approximately 5 per cent the manufacturing wage gap between the Southeast and the nation is 19 per cent," Toal said.

Investigate Lenoir Firm

KINSTON, N.C. (AP) — The awarding of federal contracts to Lenoir Contractors here has been ordered stopped by the Small Business Administration (SBA), while it investigates charges that the company benefited from a minority business program for which it did not qualify.

The SBA is trying to determine whether the construction firm was run by two whites, rather than being "minority-controlled," the Knight-Ridder newspaper chain reported.

Louis F. Laun, SBA associate administrator, announced the investigation in Washington. Knight-Ridder published reports that John T. Scruggs, SBA assistant regional director for procurement in the South, pressured other employees to give government contracts to Lenoir.

Lenoir has received 37 contracts in the last five years, more than any other construction firm in the region, the newspaper chain said.

It identified one of the two men running the company as treasurer Fred C. Gardner of Kinston, once related by marriage to Scruggs.

The reports identified the other man as Reese B. Gardner, also of Kinston, president of the firm and one time spokesman for Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace.

The reports said he also ran for Congress on a platform opposing school desegregation.

Flaherty Vows Hang Carter On Hunt's Neck

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Republican gubernatorial candidate David Flaherty plans to "hang Jimmy Carter on Jim Hunt's back," paying particular attention to Carter's plan to pardon Vietnam War draft resisters.

Flaherty's strategy begins this week, despite the fact that he is in a runoff with fellow Republican Coy Privette.

He said in an interview at his campaign headquarters that he plans to ignore Privette and run against Hunt as much as possible.

That means, Flaherty said, a concentrated effort to tie Hunt to everything Carter says that Flaherty feels will be unpopular in North Carolina.

The first item on Flaherty's list, he said, is the pardon issue. Carter told a veterans' group last week that he would offer unconditional pardons to those who fled the country rather than be drafted into service for Vietnam.

Carter said the pardons would not be a determination of whether draft resistance was right or wrong. He said they would help bring the internal strife and bitterness caused by Vietnam to a close.

Hunt, in a separate interview, said he was reconciled to the fact that Carter's stand would not be popular in North Carolina. "I would guess there is a substantial minority of people in agreement with him, but a majority probably feels that the resisters should have to work for their pardons," Hunt said.

He said he personally favored the latter approach. His solution would be a program similar to the one President Ford held last year, where resisters could earn pardons by taking low-paid social service jobs.

Hunt said that his differences with Carter on the pardon issue are not going to cause him to disassociate himself from the man who heads the ticket. "I intend to run as a team with all Democrats."

Hunt jumped on the Carter bandwagon earlier this year. One widely distributed campaign leaflet had a cover picture of him and Carter smiling together at an Asheville fundraising event.

"And I'm still going to be with him whenever he comes into this state," Hunt said. That attitude contrasts sharply to that displayed by recent Democratic candidates, who stayed at arm's length from the party's national nominees.

Hunt said he wished Flaherty would stick to issues that affect North Carolina, rather than national problems like the pardon. He said he did not think the pardon issue would hurt his campaign.

But Flaherty said the fact that Hunt differs with Carter on the issue would not deter his attack. "I think the voters need to be reminded of what the man Hunt is backing stands for," he said.

Alerted As To Dangers

ATLANTA (AP) — Warnings of possible explosions have been sent to hospitals and plumbing and other trade associations around the world by the Center for Disease Control and the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health, a spokesman said Saturday.

The warnings went out to some 15,000 institutions identifying a chemical reagent, sodium azide, as the possible source for these explosions which have rocked three hospitals in the Los Angeles area as well as clinics in Washington, D.C. and in Pennsylvania.

Sodium azide is injected into the blood and used to activate electronic blood-cell counters. Once tests are complete, the blood, containing the sodium azide, is discarded into the hospital plumbing system.

The explosions came when the azides reacted with lead, brass, copper, or solder in the pipes.

They were activated by metal-to-metal contact in the plumbing systems as plumbers and other maintenance workers sought to make repairs.

Dr. Roscoe Moore of NIOSH said that in at least one case warning signs were posted. "But the plumbers came in and didn't see the signs or didn't know what they were for an explosion resulted," he said.

Moore said that Coulter Electronics, Inc., a Florida-based firm which manufactures about 90 per cent of the blood cell counters used in hospitals and clinics in the country, had notified its customers of the potential danger.

"We feel certain that most of the urban centers were notified, but we're concerned about the rural areas, and the overseas areas," he said.

Coulter Electronics, Inc. and the CDC have developed a decontamination procedure for the azide containing pipes. It involves a chemical mixed with water which is used to flush drainage systems.

Additionally, Coulter had developed another reagent which does not use azides for its blood-counter.

"We're concerned that there have been explosions that were not attributed to sodium azide simply because hospital officials didn't know of its existence," Moore said.

Cleaver Ready Accept Prison

WASHINGTON (AP) — "If it's the will of the Lord that I go to prison, I'll go to prison," says former Black Panther Eldridge Cleaver.

Eldridge, appearing on NBC-TV's "Meet the Press" Sunday, attributed his resigned attitude to his conversion to Christianity.

"I'll do whatever work the Lord brings to me," he added, whether it is writing, lecturing or criticizing politicians.

Cleaver jumped $50,000 bail and fled the country, returning only last November after seven years abroad.

Forums will be held later on criminal justice, education, travel and economic development.

Seattle Fans' Boos Change To Cheers In Minutes

By The Associated Press
One second they were booing and the next they were cheering. Football fans in the crowd of 59,092 didn't understand why the expansion Seattle Seahawks were not calling a time out as the precious seconds ticked away and the club was headed toward its fifth exhibition loss in as many outings.

"We wanted to let the clock run down so they (the Chargers) wouldn't have any time left if we scored," explained Seattle Coach Jack Patera after his club edged San Diego 17-16 Sunday.

"We would have preferred that there would have been only one second left when we scored," said Patera. "Yes, the conversion attempt was tipped, but I found that if you don't watch it makes the game more exciting."

Seattle was on the three-yard line with 29 seconds left and trailing 16-10 when the fans started their chorus of boos. The Seahawks just stood around in a huddle until only 25 seconds remained on the clock.

The gamble paid off when quarterback Jim Zorn completed a three-yard touchdown pass to tight end Ron Howard with only 13 seconds to play. Don Bitterlich then booted the extra point which won the game.

The Oakland Raiders, 4-1, knocked Bay rival San Francisco from the ranks of the unbeaten 14-9 in a nationally televised game.

In Saturday exhibitions, Los Angeles and Miami each upped their preseason records to 5-0 with Los Angeles crushing Buffalo 31-7 and Miami edging Houston 10-6.

In other Saturday games, Washington whipped the New York Jets 38-7, Atlanta beat Baltimore 21-7, Chicago clipped Tampa Bay 10-7, Denver downed St. Louis 21-7, Detroit defeated Kansas City 23-21, the New York Giants nipped Green Bay 20-16, Minnesota trimmed

Philadelphia 20-16, New Orleans shaded Cincinnati 13-10 and Dallas punished Pittsburgh 20-10.

New England is at Cleveland tonight in the final game of the fifth weekend of NFL exhibitions.

The Seahawks' heroics began when Chargers punter Mitch Hoopes couldn't handle the center snap on fourth down and was dropped at the San Diego 21 with 1:53 left.

On first down, Seattle was penalized 15 yards when Zorn was called for intentionally grounding the ball. But he followed with passes of 21 yards to Andrew Bolton and 11 to Sherman Smith, the latter going to the Chargers four. Bill Olds then ran one yard.

Ken Stabler played a little more than half of the game for Oakland, completing 14 of 20 passes for 129 yards. Two of his completions in the second quarter went for touchdowns to Dave Casper and Carl Garrett.

Los Angeles lost No. 1 quarterback James Harris for at least three weeks in its game against the Bills. Harris broke his right thumb and his hand will be in a cast for at least three weeks.

Rams' Coach Chuck Knox said he would go with Ron Jaworski for the season opener. Jaworski had a good night against the Bills, passing for one touchdown and engineering two other LA scoring drives. Harris hurled a 60-yard TD passing before being injured.

Cornerback Tim Foley blocked a punt by Houston's Dan Pastorini late in the game and Dolphins defensive tackle Randy Crowder scored from seven yards out after grabbing the loose ball to give Miami its victory over the Oilers.

Bill Kilmer threw for two touchdowns and Harold McLinton intercepted a pair of Joe Namath passes to set up touchdowns for Washington in the Redskins' rout of the Jets while Steve Bartkowski had three touchdown strikes in Atlanta's victory over Baltimore.

A 44-yard field goal by Bob Thomas with 1:43 left lifted Chicago past Tampa Bay and Otis Armstrong gained 118 yards and scored twice, once on an 81-yard romp, to pace Denver over St. Louis.

Charley West's 52-yard interception return in the third quarter gave Detroit its final touchdown of the night but the Lions had to hang on in the final quarter to preserve their victory over Kansas City, which rallied for two touchdowns, including rookie Lynn Harrison's 62-yard punt return.

Rookie Gordon Bell raced 13 yards to score against Green Bay with 43 seconds left to give the New York Giants their fourth exhibition in five starts and Minnesota's Mark Keller providing the winning points for the Vikings against Philadelphia when he scored from the one with 2:81 to play.

A 41-yard field goal by Bobby Howfield in the third period accounted for the Saints' victory over Cincinnati. Earlier, the Saints had gotten a touchdown on a 27-yard halfback pass from Chuck Muncie to wide receiver Don Hermann.

A pair of Roger Staubach touchdowns passed helped Dallas beat Pittsburgh in a nationally televised rematch of Super Bowl X, which the Steelers won last January.

North Pitt Coach Cautious, But On Paper Panthers Are Improved

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
(One of a Series)

BETHEL — North Pitt High School football coach Pat Smith is cautiously optimistic about the coming season. But he's not making any predictions about the Panther successes.

"On paper, we look like we're better than we were last year," Smith said. "But I don't know whether we'll have a better record than last year."

That version of the Panther team had a 3-7 record overall and a 2-5 mark in the Eastern Carolina Conference, tying for sixth place.

"I'm a little disappointed in our turnout this year," the coach said. "We've got only about 30 people out; we usually have about 35. On the other side of the coin, we have a lot more who can play for us. Usually it's only 15 or 16. Now we have at least 20."

There are a few faces that Smith expected to be out that have not shown. One of his stars from last year didn't come back out, and another didn't do well enough in his battle with the books.

"I don't know if we can improve on our record. I don't know how good the other teams in the conference are. I think we will be better. We're quicker than we've been in the past, but we're not as big," Smith said.

Another plus for the Panthers is the addition of former East Carolina All-Conference lineman Willie Bryant as an assistant coach. "He is handling the lines and really doing a great job for us. He gets along well with the players, and they respect him. He's taught them a lot."

Perhaps the biggest problem Smith and his staff have to overcome, it's that there is no feeder program bringing players into the program. This throws North Pitt behind in getting players ready for varsity football.

On offense, North Pitt will work from a split back backfield. "We've looked good in practice, but it's hard to tell until we work against someone other than ourselves. We'll get some of the answers when we scrimmage with Washington." (Ed. note: that scrimmage was held last night.)

Calvin Carmack returns to one of the halfback positions, while Donnie Daniels, a sophomore out for the first time, or William Knight, also a sophomore, will be at the other back slot.

John Hunt will be at quarterback. He has some experience, and rates as a good runner, but only an average passer.

The receiver group has Larry Spencer, a third-year starter, at flanker, and Bently Jones, another third-year returnee, at split end. Virgil Pilgreen, a senior with experience, will share the split end duties. Tim Corey, a sophomore who started last year, will be at tight end. Lawaskia Jenkins, a veteran, and Rubin Matthews, up from the junior varsity, will be the likely candidates to handle the tackle slots. Boyce Johnson and Sam Mayo, both starters last year, return as guards, with Steve Whitehurst, another newcomer, at center.

"I feel we're going to have to move the ball on the ground this year to be successful," Smith said.

"We don't have any depth at all, either offensively or defensively. We have only three people going both ways, but if we get anyone hurt, we're going to have to start doubling up, and this could hurt us."

On defense, North Pitt will run a five-two formation. Melvin Vines, a senior who didn't play last year, will be at the middle guard — if he's ready. He's recovering from an injury, and may miss the opener. Johnson will take for him otherwise.

Jenkins and Jay Bedsworth will work at the tackle spots. Both were starters last year, although Bedsworth was a middle guard. Jeff Nelson and Pilgreen will be the defensive ends. Both have limited experience.

Richard Pitt and George Little will be the linebackers. Both are moving from other positions. Pitt was an offensive guard, and Little a running back. Also there is Aubrey Wynne, but his status is uncertain because of an injury. "If he's able to play, we'll use him somewhere for sure," Smith said.

The backfield will have Spencer at strong safety, and Jones at strong corner. Knight will handle the other corner, with Eddie Hemingway, converted from center, at the free safety.

"Our defense is the big question mark," Smith said. "We haven't had much defense in the past, and I think how well we play here this year could tell how good we will be this year."

"As I said before, on paper, we look better, but injuries could also really hurt us," he added.

In the kicking game, Bedsworth returns to handle the kickoffs and placements. Either Bedsworth or John Hunt will do the punting.

As to the conference race, Smith looks to Farmville Central, Ayden-Grifton and Greene Central to be in the thick of things. "They usually fight it out for the title, and I guess this year will be no different."

Sandra Palmer Clinched Title

By JOHN MOSSMAN
AP Sports Writer

DENVER (AP) — If they staged the National Jewish Hospital LPGA Open at Green Gables Country Club every year, it wouldn't be too often for Sandra Palmer.

The last time the five-year-old tournament was held at Green Gables, in 1973, Miss Palmer triumphed. She repeated Sunday, helped by a putting lesson from club pro Paul Runyan that enabled her to hold off challenges from two players.

Miss Palmer fired a five-under-par 67 in Sunday's closing round for a 54-hole total of 206 — 10 under par — and the $7,000 first-place prize.

Four consecutive birdies, on the eighth through eleventh holes, gave her the lead, and she clinched the title by calmly dropping a 20-foot downhill birdie putt on No. 18.

In second place, two strokes back, was Pat Bradley, who also closed with a 67 for a 208 total. Tied for third were Sandra Post and the second-round leader, Penny Pulz, both at 209.

"I love Green Gables," said the 35-year-old Miss Palmer after her triumph. "I wish they could find a way to hold the tournament here each year."

The Fort Worth, Tex., native said a tip from Runyan, one of the top golf instructors in the country, helped her to be more steady over the ball while putting. "He told me I had been leaning too much to the left, so I got more balanced," she said.

Two strokes off the pace entering the final round, Miss Palmer put the lesson to work, first overtaking Miss Pulz and then Miss Post, who had gone three-under-par on the front side.

Miss Post trailed the Texan by a single stroke until she met disaster on No. 18, hooking a fairway wood under a tree and bunkering her third shot. She took a bogey six and fell back.

It was then Miss Bradley who challenged, making a 20-foot putt for birdie at the 17th hole to move within one stroke of Miss Palmer, who was one hole ahead.

Miss Bradley, playing cautiously in a swirling wind, then parred the final hole to wind up two shots behind. Her 67, aided by an eagle on the par-five ninth hole, was her best-ever score.

"Picking up five shots after being three under usually would be enough to win a tournament, but not today," Miss Bradley said, fingering a $5,200 paycheck. "I'm just thrilled — I charged a difficult course and shot 67, and I did it in a pressure-packed situation."

Cale Yarborough's Policy: Treat Fans

BRISTOL, Tenn. (AP) — For Cale Yarborough of Timonville, S. C., the Volunteer 400 Grand National stock car race was more like a two-hour Sunday afternoon pleasure trip along a scenic highway.

The veteran Chevrolet driver took the lead after just 27 laps on the high-banked, half-mile Bristol International Speedway track and finished two laps ahead of his nearest challengers.

"When you get in the groove of things and get a rhythm going, you just keep on going," said Yarborough, who won the Southeastern 400 over the same track earlier this spring and who now has won five of his last eight starts here.

As to why he kept running hard with such a commanding lead most of the way, Yarborough remarked:

"We came here to give the fans in the grandstand their money's worth, and that's what we did."

Yarborough got his money's worth, too — to the tune of $8,950. In addition, he remained in front in the scrap for the point lead in the third leg of the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing's Grand National series.

Behind him were his two closest challengers in the point standings, Dodge driver Richard Petty of Randleman, N.C., and Chevrolet driver Benny Parsons of Ellerbe, N.C. Petty, who won both races here last year, finished second and the pole-winner, Chevrolet driver Darrell Waltrip of Daytona Beach, Fla., was third. Waltrip led the first 27 laps before Yarborough passed him on the 28th and remained in front the rest of the way.

Parsons was fourth and Buddy Baker of Charlotte, N. C., was fifth in a Ford. Both were five laps behind Yarborough.

Although there were only two caution flags for 13 laps, Yarborough missed the track record of 99.755 miles per hour.

Jack Rainis and Parker Overton qualified in the open division in the Men's Two Tricks. The next water ski tournament will be held in Virginia Beach September 24 and 25.

Which Illie Nastase will the fans see in the upcoming U.S. Open Tennis championships that begin at Forest Hills, N.Y., Wednesday?
Will it be the Nastase whose antics have infuriated fans, officials and opponents around the world?
Or will it be the Nastase who on Sunday entertained the crowd at the finals of the Tennis Week Open at South Orange, N.J., with his shot-making, negating Chuck Tanner's game with brilliant cross-court winners for a 6-4, 6-2 triumph.
"I wanted to win. I wanted to get in shape for Forest Hills," said Nastase, whose victory earned him $10,000 and permanent possession of the tournament's cup sine he won the tournament twice previously.
After receiving his second-place check of $5,000, Tanner said of the 30-year-old Romanian champion, victor, "Today I just played a terrific player, probably the best player in the world."
"He showed me he could play without doing a lot of other things," Tanner said of Nastase. "He concentrated today.

He didn't spend a lot of time horsing around. He played his stuff."
Marise Kruger, 18, of South Africa, won the women's tournament, which was dominated by the issue of trans-sexualism since Dr. Renee Richards, a former male tennis player, who had a surgical operation and reached the semifinals of the women's competition.
Miss Kruger defeated Lea Antonoplis, 17, of Glendora, Calif., 6-3, 6-2. Miss Antonoplis eliminated the 42-year-old Dr. Richards Saturday, 6-7, 6-3, 6-0.
At Harrison, N.Y., fifth-seeded Beth Norton, Fairfield, Conn., rallied to defeat unseeded Ruta Gerulaitis, 1-6, 7-5, 6-3 for the championship in the $10,000 Women's Tennis Association Invitational tournament Sunday. The tournament had been hastily organized when 25 women withdrew from the Tennis Week tournament due to Dr. Richards' participation.
In Philadelphia, 32-year-old Billie Jean King teamed with Rosemary Casals to give the United States its first Federation Cup title since 1969 with a 7-5, 6-3 doubles victory over Australia's Evonne Goolagong and Mrs. Kerry Melville Reid.

Oakland's Don Baylor discovered that one way to clip the wings of Detroit's high-flying Mark "The Bird" Fidrych was by doing some flying of his own ... like from first to third on a sacrifice bunt.
Baylor did just that in the 12th inning Sunday, scoring on a single by Gene Tenace to give the A's a 2-1 triumph over Fidrych and the Tigers.
Oakland's victory, coupled with Kansas City's 15-6 loss to the Boston Red Sox, left the second-place A's eight games behind the Royals in the American League West. Elsewhere, the California Angels edged the New York Yankees 5-4 with an unearned run in the 11th inning, the Texas Rangers turned on the Baltimore Orioles 11-0, the Cleveland Indians beat the Minnesota Twins and the Chicago White Sox blanked the Milwaukee Brewers 2-0.
Fidrych, who made his major league debut April 20 with a brief relief stint against the A's and pitched an 11-inning shut-out in his only previous start against them, allowed only five hits through 11 innings — including Phil Garner's third-inning homer — in a duel with Mike Torrez.

Baylor led off the Oakland 12th with a single and Joe Rudi bunted down the first base line. Fidrych fielded the bunt and threw to first for the out. But third baseman Mickey Stanley had charged the plate and catcher Bruce Kimm had to cover the bag as Baylor slid in safely. He remained at third as Sal Bando reached first on an error by Stanley and Tenace then hit a drive over the head of left fielder Dan Meyer, who was playing shallow to guard against a short hit.
Fidrych, 15-6, pitched his 19th complete game in his longest outing as a major leaguer.
Red Sox 15, Royals 6
Boston exploded for seven runs in the first inning and Butch Hobson's three-run homer paced a five-run second as the Red Sox pounded out 18 hits, their best offensive showing of the year. Dwight Evans also homered while Carlton Fisk had a triple and three singles. Kansas City managed 14 hits, including home runs by Al Cowens, Ruppert Jones and Frank White.

Angels 5, Yankees 4
Jerry Remy walked to start the 11th inning, was sacrificed to second and raced home with the winning run on a throwing error by New York third baseman Graig Nettles as the Yankees' five-game winning streak came to an end.
Elrod Hendricks' homer gave the Yankees a 2-0 lead in the second, the Angels ripped Ken Holtzman for four runs in the fourth — two on Rusty Torres' bases-loaded single — and the Yanks tied the game with two runs in the ninth on doubles by Graig Nettles and Lou Piniella and a single by Thurman Munson.

Rangers 11, Orioles 0
Jim Umberger hurled a six-hitter and was the beneficiary of Texas' club record 19-hit attack as the Rangers ended a six-game skid. The outburst against Wayne Garland and three relief pitchers included home run by Toby Harrah and Roy Howell and two singles and two doubles by Juan Beniquez.
Indians 7, Twins 4
George Hendrick's three-run homer in the third inning and Larvell Blanks' two-run single in the fourth sparked Cleveland to its sixth triumph in the last seven games. Stan Thomas came on in the sixth inning in relief of Dennis Eckersley and pitched hitless ball the rest of the way.
White Sox 2, Brewers 0

Two Backs Sidelined

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina's football team will open its season at home against Miami of Ohio Saturday with two strikes already against the Tar Heels.
The team's top quarterback, Johnny Stratton, suffered a broken wrist during scrimmage Saturday, putting him out of action for about six weeks, team officials said.
To make matters worse, North Carolina's No.2 quarterback, P.J. Gay, was already sidelined by a torn knee cartilage, an injury that is expected to keep him benched for half the season.
Coach Bill Dooley now must decide between two youngsters in picking a starter for Saturday. Possible starters are Bernie Menapace, a sophomore from Sterling, Va., and Matt Kupec, a freshman from Syoset, N.Y.
In the 1974 season, Kupec's older brother, Chris, was the Tar Heel quarterback and set a NCAA record by completing 69.3 per cent of his attempted passes.
North Carolina was going into the 1976 season with hopes of improving its dismal 3-7-1 performance last year.

Mike Strachan Idled By Injury

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Running back Mike Strachan of the New Orleans Saints will be out of action at least a week because of a shoulder separation, according to Coach Hank Stram.
Strachan suffered the injury during Saturday night's 13-10 exhibition victory over Cincinnati.
Tom Myers, a Saint safety, sprained an ankle but is expected to return to work after a couple of days. Terry Schmidt, another safety, bruised his hip but is expected to play against Miami next Saturday.

VENTURI TO MARCO
MARCO ISLAND, Fla. (AP) — Ken Venturi, 1964 U.S. Open champion and television golfer, will spend much of his time at the Marco Island Country Club here working on sports and recreation public relations. Venturi and his wife, Beau, and sons Matt and Tim, became Marco Island residents this summer.
Venturi, despite being overcome by heat in 100 degree Washington, D.C., temperatures in 1964, literally staggered around the fairways in winning the Open at Congressional. It was the last time 36 holes were played in the Open in one day.

'Third World' Demands New Missionary Policy

By LEONARD KIRSCHEN
Associated Press Writer
DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Third World delegates at the 13th World Methodist Conference, impatient with the traditionalism of the church's Anglo-American majority, are demanding a more modern approach to missionary work in the poor nations.

Some delegates say if the Methodist movement fails to adjust its missionary work to the demands from Asia, Africa and Latin America, the churches there may form a separate group.

The conference, which opened Wednesday and ends Tuesday, is made up of 450 council members who vote on resolutions and make decisions, and 2,050 other delegates who make their views and reactions known from the conference floor.

Of the 20 million Methodists in the world, some 13.5 million are in the United States, half a million are in Britain, where John Wesley founded Methodism, and the rest are scattered over the rest of the globe. Speeches at the conference have made clear the disagreement with the old paternalistic missionary approach of the Anglo-American majority that it knows what is best for its less-developed brothers and sisters overseas.

Cornish Rogers of New York, an editor of Christian Century magazine and a regional delegate, said the majority of the rank-and-file delegates want to hammer out a contemporary approach to the church's objectives but are frustrated because they have no policy-making powers.

Bishop Fredericks da Silva of Sri Lanka told one session: "My people say, 'Your book talks about dashing the heads of newborn babes against the stones and you talk to us about peace.' Of course, I understand the book and so does the church. But how are my people to be made to understand?" "Evangelism by itself is not enough unless it comes to grips with human suffering and oppression," said Bishop Lawi Imathiu of Kenya. "... The duty of the people called Methodists and of all people of good will is to draw attention to the human suffering caused by oppressive racial regimes."

The delegates have not been powerless. On Friday, the conference unanimously adopted a resolution condemning South Africa's apartheid policy of racial separation and calling for global sanctions against that country until it ends segregation. The resolution took the place of a watered-down expression of concern for the Methodist church in South Africa which drew angry protests from the floor when the council presented it.

Their 'Handles' On Bumpers Of Trucks

By CHARLES GREEN
Associated Press Writer
MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexican truckers seldom use Citizen Band radio units as do their counterparts to the north. But they still have their "handles."

Any brief excursion down a Mexican highway turns up trucks — old and new — with names painted on the bumpers. Like handles in the United States they often reflect hidden desires, a man's image of himself or wry humor:

Alma Grande or Big Soul; Fina Estampa or Good Breed; Yo No Soy Aquel or I'm Not The One; Se Los Dije or I Warned You; Tabanero or Barfly; Solo Borracho or Only If I'm Drunk.

Some of the handles reflect the truckers' long hours alone on the road: Eterno Vagabundo or Eternal Vagabond; Eterno Viajero or Eternal Traveler; Hercules, which needs no translation; Caminate or The Walker; El Vikingo or The Viking; El Ausente or The Absent One.

Many handles reflect religious feelings popular in a nation where more than 90 percent of the population is Roman Catholic. The favorite by far is Guadalupe for Mexico's patron saint, the virgin of Guadalupe. Others are Regalo de Reyes or Christmas Gift; Cristo Rey or Christ the King.

A few drivers take their handles straight from English with names such as Blue Power, Starshell, Brave Hero, Mission Impossible, The Godfather, Albatross.

CB radio is still in its infancy in Mexico with probably less than 1,000 units in operation in Mexico City. Units are expensive, at double or triple their cost in the United States, and hard to find.

Most of the existing ones were purchased during trips north of the border.

A spokesman in the Mexican Communications Ministry said the ministry is not even trying to license CB users.

"There are not very many," he said, "and we have neither the people nor the time to try to keep up with them. They are supposed to have a license to operate but now we are just ignoring them."

In Mexico City the radios are used much as they were intended to be used; by businessmen or businesses who wish to stay in contact with salesmen or collectors. Some CB slang has drifted south and the "10 code" is often used.

Units are not widely used, as yet, to avoid speed traps or spot police on the highways.

Theft of CB radios has not yet become a major problem in Mexico City because most cars with antennas belong to the police.

Seek Proof Of Panthers

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — "Wanted posters" will be distributed by the N.C. State Museum of Natural History, which is trying to determine whether any wild panthers are left in the state.

The long-tailed recluses, often called pumas, cougars, mountain lions and catamounts, were believed to have largely disappeared from North Carolina and most of the East by the early 1900s.

The posters are part of the museum's first statewide effort to determine whether recurring reports of panther sightings in the state's mountain forests and coastal swamps are true.

Officials say dozens of sightings have been reported, but no conclusive proof, such as a photograph or carcass, has been presented.

The last documented panther kill in North Carolina was in 1920 near what is now Fontana Village. South Carolina's last kill was in 1916 near Camden.

David S. Lee, curator of birds and mammals for the museum, said 1,000 black-and-white panther posters will be distributed in mid-September to hunting check-in stations, country stores and park and forest agencies.

The posters provide the museum's telephone number for reporting sightings or other information. The posters also warn that the panther is an endangered species and protected by federal law.

The maximum penalty for killing, capturing or even harassing a panther is a year in prison or a $20,000 fine, or both.

By The Associated Press
As the state Republican party filled out its slate of candidates for state office, the two Democrats in the runoff for nomination for lieutenant governor disagreed about the value of experience for the office.

Meeting in Greensboro Sunday, the state GOP executive committee nominated Ed Tenney of Chapel Hill for commissioner of insurance and Evelyn Tyler of Greensboro for superintendent of public instruction. The nominations gave the party a full slate of statewide candidates in the Nov. 2 general election.

Tenney, a licensed insurance salesman who says his principle business is real estate, said he would work to abolish the office if elected. He said he believes the industry should be regulated by a panel chosen by the governor and approved by the legislature.

Tenney-nominated over two other insurance agents—will face incumbent Commissioner John Ingram who handily won renomination over Joe Johnson, an insurance professor at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

Mrs. Tyler won over Wayne County teacher Gene Baker. Though she said she hadn't worked up her campaign platform, she said her beliefs were similar to those of Rocky Mount school Superintendent Ben Curran, easily beaten in the Aug. 17 primary by incumbent A. Craig Phillips.

Saying she favored the superintendent being appointed, Mrs. Tyler offered her support for a proposed 20 per cent pay increase for teachers in the next two-year budget. The State Board of Education proposed that increase last week.

Tenney's nomination is to replace George Little, secretary of natural and economic resources, and Mrs. Tyler's is to replace Phillip J. Kirk, secretary of human resources. Little and Kirk bowed out of the race when they learned last month that their candidacies violated the Hatch Act because the supervised spending of federal funds.

Meanwhile in Winston-Salem Sunday, Howard Lee and Jimmy Green disagreed about how important prior legislative experience is in being lieutenant governor. Lee is a former mayor of Chapel Hill and Green is a 16-year legislative veteran, serving last term as speaker of the House.

Jukebox Is Prized Item

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP) — Paula Jones, having tired of getting her records ripped off at parties, plunked down $350 for a used jukebox and joined what has become a popular trend.

Ms. Jones, 30, an administrative assistant at Adventure Knits here, found the gleaming chrome and plastic music machine a perfect addition to her apartment.

It fit right in with her yellow mailbox and orange upright piano.

Linda Patterson, 23, Ms. Jones' roommate, decided to join suit and purchased her own jukebox, also for $350.

Now the women rock away their evening hours, having discovered "it's fun just to be able to punch up a song anytime you want to," Ms. Jones said.

Once the prime source of entertainment in truck stops and bars across the land, jukeboxes are finding their way into the most respectable of homes and apartments, at prices ranging from a few hundred dollars for used machines to $2,000 and more for new ones.

Besides offering entertainment to the owner's fingertips, jukeboxes also have their practical side, according to Chet Smith.

Smith, 33, general sales manager of a Gastonia car dealership, bought a $400 used jukebox and installed it next to the pool table in his den.

Smith said he saves money with the machine because he is no longer forced to buy a record album, just to get one song he likes. Instead, he buys a 45 r.p.m. record for about $1.

Dealers and manufacturers say one reason for the jukebox boom seems to be nostalgia for decades past.

Dan Collins, manager of South Atlantic Distributors in Raleigh, said people often buy 50's-model jukeboxes from him, even though they don't work.

"They just want them for decoration," he said.

Separate interviews of the candidates were televised on WXII-TV Sunday night.

Green, who took second place in the eight-candidate field Aug. 17, said he is running on his experience and his knowledge of state government.

Lee, admitting experience is important, said it "is not the greatest virtue," that "the ability to have vision" is a political asset.

The candidates are to appear on four television stations before the Sept. 14 runoff with the only joint appearance being on WBTV-TV of Charlotte at 10 p.m. Sept. 6.

In a telephone interview from his Haw River home last weekend, state Sen. Ralph Scott endorsed Lee. Scott, 72, is considered an influential lawmaker who is related to two former governors, has served 11 terms in the legislature.

Brooks had suggested three debates: one in the East, another in the West. The debates would give the public an opportunity to judge the merits of each candidate's ability to achieve stated objectives if elected.

The Sept. 14 winner will face incumbent T. Avery Nye who was appointed last year.

Though he's not in a runoff, Hunt has been active. He announced Saturday that he will have a series of public forums to help work up an "agenda for action" that he would try to achieve as governor.

The first forum will be on agriculture and rural development and will be Wednesday in Greenville. Criminal justice will be the topic Sept. 7 in Charlotte; travel and tourism, Sept. 9 in Asheville; and education, Sept. 10 in Greensboro.

Public Hearing

The Pitt County Board of Education will hold a public hearing at 7 p.m. in the District Courtroom Monday, August 30 to review traffic safety, school bus regulations for the 1976-77 school year according to Pitt County School Superintendent, Ott Alford.

"The regulations have been developed to strengthen the discipline on the buses due to the traffic death of a G.R. Whitfield student last year," Alford said.

The hearing will allow parents to become aware of the proposed regulations and to comment on the regulations.

Fall's TV Program-Juggling Goes On

By JAY SHARBUTT AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — If you're wondering what's afoot on TV next fall, don't hold your breath and expect the 1976-77 program schedules you read about in spring to be the same come this September.

So far, ABC has postponed one new series, "Feather and Father," and shifted five other shows, four of them new, to new time slots at night. NBC has fought back by postponing the September start of two new series, "Snip" and "Gibbsville," and making seven schedule changes, including installation of a 90-minute TV movie on Wednesdays.

Only CBS hasn't changed its announced fall schedule — yet. Such program-juggling, called "fine-tuning" or "counter-programming," occurs before the start of every season.

On this go, it's part and parcel of the push by ABC, traditionally the third-in-the-ratings network, to recapture the No. 1 ratings slot it held midway through last winter and early into spring.

For NBC, it's a battle to avoid a repeat of last season, when it suffered its worst ratings in recent years. At stake are millions of advertising dollars and the support — or defection — of affiliated stations. The way it stands now, ABC's new "Captain and Tennille" variety hour on Mondays will be battling CBS' "Rhoda" and "Phyllis" series, while "Little House on the Prairie," shifted from Wednesday, holds NBC's fort.

The rest of ABC's Monday night will have pro football pitted against CBS' "Maude" and "All's Fair" sitcoms and "Executive Suite," while NBC combats that with movie fare.

Tuesday, NBC has three one-hour shows — "Baa, Baa, Black Sheep," a World War II flying series, and the returning "Police Woman" and "Police Story" — trying to hold the line against a powerhouse ABC lineup — "Happy Days," "LaVerne and Shirley," "Rich Man, Poor Man" and "Family."

At CBS, "Tony Orlando and Dawn," "M-A-S-H," "One Day at a Time," and "Switch" are on hand to join the Tuesday night capering.

Wednesday night, a big viewing night, has ABC serving up three rock 'em, sock 'em shows — "Bionic Woman," "Baretta" and "Charlie's Angels." CBS' answer is two hours of hoped-for chuckles — "Good Times," "Ball Four," "All in the Family" and "Alice" — and then "The Blue Knight."

NBC's competing wares are a medical sitcom, "The Practice," a TV movie, and a new Western, "The Quest."

Thursday is chuckle night at ABC, the lineup consisting of the "Welcome Back, Kotter," "Barney Miller," "The Tony Randall" and "Nancy Walker" shows, followed by an old copper piece, "Streets of San Francisco."

CBS' retorts will be the gentle "Waltons," and the not-so-gentle "Hawaii Five-O" and "Barnaby Jones" series. NBC has the remake "Invisible Man," now called "Gemini Man," then, a miniseries based on best-selling novels, and then Dick Van Dyke's variety show, originally scheduled and doubtless written for the "family hour" trade.

Friday, NBC has its laughest "Sanford and Son" and "Chico and the Man," plus "The Rockford Files" and "Serpico" going against ABC's "Donny and Marie" and "Friday Movie" and CBS's "Spencer's Pilots" and "Friday Movie."

Saturdays, ABC will offer us two sitcoms, "Holmes and Yoyo" and "Mr. T. and Tina," plus the crime-fighting "Starsky and Hutch" and "Most Wanted." CBS will resume its Saturday comedy-variety custom, starting with "Doc," ending with "The Carol Burnett Show." NBC has the returning "Emergency" series and a movie.

The first Sunday evening hour has ABC's Bill Cosby pitted against CBS' "60 Minutes" of news features and NBC's durable "Disney." Thereafter ABC's "Six Million Dollar Man" and a movie face CBS'

"Sonny and Cher," "Kojak" and "Delvecchio." NBC offers a "Mystery Movie" and what it calls its "Big Event" series of big specials, movies, and all that.

Haggling Over Monument Ends

By S.C. WEE PENANG, Malaysia (UPI) —

A newly dedicated 12-ton granite monument, a symbol of one of the stranger cases of Soviet diplomacy and Southeast Asian suspicions, now marks the graves of eight Czarist Russian sailors.

The final resting place of the eight seamen — who died along with 74 shipmates on Oct. 27, 1914, when a German warship torpedoed the Russian cruiser Zhemchug in Penang harbor — remained unnoticed for over half a century.

But shortly after the Soviet Union established diplomatic relations with Malaysia in 1967, an embassy official stumbled on the forgotten graves at the Western Road Christian Cemetery here.

In 1973, the Russians sought Malaysian permission to erect a nine-foot-tall granite monument to the sailors. It would be massive. It would cover 12 graveyard plots and be surrounded by iron railings. The sheer size of the monumental plan gave rise to suspicions.

Rumors abounded. One was that the Russians intended to build a hollow monument, cram it with electronic gear and thus monitor ship traffic at the Indian Ocean mouth of the vital Straits of Malacca.

So the negotiations were protracted. They dragged on for two years. Finally, the Russians scaled down their proposal. They would settle for a 12-ton, six-foot-high memorial covering only three cemetery plots.

Malaysian authorities said they decorated with a huge ship's anchor, built by Soviet Communists to commemorate Czarist sailors, it was finally and formally dedicated early this year.

A Soviet Embassy spokesman said the monument was erected because "crews of Soviet merchant ships calling at Penang consider it their duty to revere the memory of the Russian sailors who died far from their homeland."

An official Soviet statement by Capt. I. Solovye, central state archives director in Moscow, said the cruiser Zhemchug was patrolling the Bay of Bengal when it put in at Penang harbor Oct. 26, 1914.

On the night of Oct. 27, after a full day of repair and maintenance work, the Russian crew was asleep when the German ship Emden penetrated harbor defenses and torpedoed the Zhemchug at point-blank range.

In addition to the 82 Russian crewmen killed, 115 were injured.

The Allied Command sent the French torpedo boat Mousquet in pursuit of the Emden but the Mousquet was also sent to the bottom.

Two weeks later the Australian warship HMS Sydney met the Emden in battle in the seas between Indonesia and Australia and sank her.

Marines Are Training In Mountain Warfare

By BRENDAN RILEY Associated Press Writer

PICKLE MEADOWS, Calif. (AP) — Thousands of Marines have been prowling through the high Sierra this summer as part of a recently resurrected mountain warfare training program.

By summer's end the Marine Corps expects to have trained about 6,000 Marines and Marine reservists in "mountain man" skills such as scaling sheer granite cliffs and crossing river gorges by rope.

Base for the activity is the Marine Corps' Mountain Warfare Training Center, located in this 7,000-foot-high meadow just north of Yosemite National Park.

The austere base, first built in 1951 after U.S. military setbacks in rugged sections of Korea, resumed full-time training last May after a nine-year break.

It is the only facility of its sort in the Marine Corps, and one of only two run by the U.S. military services in this country. The Army has a similar base in Alaska.

Lt. Col. George Knudson, commanding officer, says the training isn't designed to build up an elite fighting group within the Marines, or to deal with some impending conflict in mountain regions elsewhere in the world.

"We just want to build up the all-around capability of the Marine Corps," says Knudson, 42, who runs the base from a spruced-up quonset hut. "Marines should be able to go anywhere. We have never been able to pick where we go to war. Somebody else picks that for us."

What Marines get here is a crash course in mountain fighting. Training runs year round, from two to four weeks for each group sent here.

The Marines scale cliffs, both by rope and with bare hands, make rope bridges so they can crawl across ravines, and learn land navigation so they can find their way across trackless mountain stretches seldom seen by anyone but backpackers and hunters.

Marine reservists get quick courses in mountain survival, learning how to make shelters, build fires without matches, snare animals and survive on available vegetation.

One instructor will even pop a lizard into his mouth occasionally, just to show the trainees there is more than just pine nuts or berries to chew on.

During winter months Marines will learn how to camp in snow and below zero temperatures, and to showshoe and ski while carrying rifles, packs, and other gear.

Knudson says the Marine Corps hopes to run about 10,000 trainees through the program each year.

Knudson says many of the trainees have never been in mountains before, and there are many cases of pulled muscles. "They didn't know they had." He says there have been a few cases of sprains and broken bones but no one has died or suffered major injuries as a result of the arduous training.

He says the Marines seem to like the training. "The units really tighten up when they get here. They seem to get a lot more motivation."

Should Select Proper Needle

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — A clothing specialist says there's more to selecting proper needles and threads than matching fabric colors.

"For example, in buying needles, choose ballpoint needles when sewing knits and sharp needles when sewing woven fabrics," says Marlene Odle of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

House Plant

BARTLETT, Ill. (UPI) — Horticulture ware — planters, flower pots, watering devices and other items for growing house plants — is the fastest growing product line among all areas of retailing, according to Philipps Products Co., Inc., a leading manufacturer in the field. Furthermore, it predicts it will stay in the lead for at least two more years.

Soviet Has Its Corruption Too

By THOMAS KENT
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — "You need money and I need an apartment," a woman in Saratov tells a local housing official. Two thousand rubles change hands and the official tells his assistant: "Satisfy the request of our worthy client."

In Leningrad, a motorist finds his Volga automobile will be repaired a lot faster if he slips 50 rubles to the body shop manager. Another customer had warned him in advance: "Unless you grease the manager's palm, you won't be going anywhere in your Volga."

For the right bribe in Soviet Armenia, a clerk at the industrial Medical Examination Commission certifies pensioners for high disability payments they don't deserve. The total loss to the state by the time the scheme is uncovered: 22,500 rubles, equivalent to $29,700.

Stories like these, taken from angry exposes in the Soviet Press, suggest that Western countries are far from alone in their concern over official and private corruption.

Bribe-taking, industrial rackets and general swindling are alive and well here, too — where the official encyclopedia smugly claims that corruption is "characteristic of the bourgeois (Western countries) state apparatus and parliament."

In one celebrated incident earlier this year, construction officials of the Cheboksary Tractor Trust were found to have spent the equivalent of $845,000 of state money on a landscaped river retreat for themselves and their friends.

The Soviet weekly Literaturnaya Gazeta, aghast, noted that the retreat included marble baths and beautiful hostesses who played "love games" with the guests.

In another big-time operation, an Azerbaijan Republic newspaper recounted a complicated land swindle involving the leasing of land from a vegetable plant to state farms. After losses to the state of $11 million were uncovered, five people were sentenced to death and 59 packed off to prison.

It's small-scale corruption, however, at the level of the ordinary citizen, that is most noticeable in Soviet life. There are few elements of everyday life that can't be made a bit easier by the judicious use of "blat" — a word from Russian criminal slang that has come to mean getting what you need by bribes, influence or personal connections.

Thus, the man at the state-owned furniture store will get a bed shipped to his customer's house faster for a few rubles or a bottle of vodka. For the right price, a store clerk will watch for a rare automobile part or good leather jackets to come into stock and squirrel them aside for his client.

Money talks in more serious matters, as well. Officials in Georgia discovered a ring of teachers at the Tbilisi Medical Institute who, for a stiff bribe, would make sure the dullest student passed the admission test. The father of one aspiring doctor had to provide a bulldozer for work on the institute director's garage.

In an economy perpetually short of a high-quality goods, any store clerk has a chance to earn extra money by favoring certain customers.

The temptation is even greater for civil servants who dispense the best things in life: apartments, vacation trips and automobiles. Since only one organization in each city may dispense such items, people who work there can lay down any terms they want without fear their customers will go elsewhere.

In addition, the nation's rigid command economy puts tremendous emphasis on — and awards lavish prizes for — the fulfillment of work and production quotas. Bookkeepers and supervisors who compute whether quotas are being fulfilled are in excellent positions to depart from "Socialist morality" for the sake of a little old-fashioned profit.

Corruption serves at least two useful purposes in the Soviet Union. First, it can provide a way around obstinate bureaucracies when all other paths open to a citizen fail. It adds some flexibility to everyday life when the citizen is willing to pay the price.

More important, a form of industrial corruption known as "fixing" makes the economy more efficient. Though factories here don't compete with each other for orders, as they do in the West, Soviet plants do slug it out for supplies of rare raw materials.

Many factories have full-time fixers on their payrolls who prowl the country looking for these raw materials and trying to get them for their plant. It is widely believed the fixers use payoffs and other inducements to get the goods. But the efficiency of their home factory — and that factory's contribution to the national economy — depend on the outcome.

If there is a corruption capital of the Soviet Union, it must be Georgia, the sunny Caucasus mountain republic where a former secret policeman was made party chief in 1972 in an effort to stamp out cheating.

The ex-policeman, Eduard Shevardnadze, started his reign with the imprisonment of one of the top lieutenants of the previous party boss for embezzling nearly half a million dollars and building country mansions.

A spot check of Georgian stores found 68 per cent were swindling their customers by selling short. In the first two years of Shevardnadze's administration, 25,000 people were arrested for various kinds of corruption.

Nashville Police Have Shot 11 Fleeing Persons

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Nashville police have shot 11 persons fleeing from officers this year, including one man who died last week.

Police Chief Joe Casey said Sunday none of the department's investigations completed so far show police officers involved in the shootings overreacted. Casey added that Tennessee law gives law enforcement officers the right to use whatever force is necessary to stop a fleeing suspect.

"If it's apparent the person is going to get away, an officer can use his weapon as a last resort," Casey said. "He has to make a split-second decision. I don't believe any officer shoots to kill. He is just shooting to stop the person," Casey said.

Last Thursday, Tommy Elkins, 23, was seen fleeing from an apartment building where officers were investigating a burglary call, according to police.

After ordering Elkins to halt, Officer Larry Bingham fired a shotgun at Elkins, bringing him down, police said. Elkins later died in a hospital.

Theresa Grier, 19, who says she was soon to marry Elkins, had been waiting for him in a car in a nearby parking lot.

Miss Grier said she ran to Elkins' side when he was shot, but said she was pulled away by police.

She claimed police did not directly answer any of her questions about Elkins' condition, and she said she was told only in an offhand way later that Elkins had died.

Miss Grier said she was charged with second degree burglary and released on $2,500 bond after police first told her she would not be charged. She claimed she was charged "when I wouldn't say that Tommy tried to run."

Elkins' death brought criticism of police from his father James T. Elkins, who said police could have used a revolver rather than a shotgun and not have shot to kill.

But Casey said officers called to the scene of break-ins or burglaries do not know what has happened or whether a suspect is armed.

"Suppose it turned out somebody inside had been murdered or raped," Casey said. "If the officer fails to halt the suspect, people will ask why he's not doing his job. People would want to get rid of the policeman."

"I've got to believe someone mean enough or with enough nerve to break into someone's house is in the frame of mind to hurt somebody if they confront him."

The Elkins case is still under investigation. Bingham, the officer who reportedly fired the fatal shot, is on administrative leave pending results of the investigation.

LEE MEETING

The Howard Lee for Lieutenant Governor committee will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at St. Gabriel's school.

All interested persons are invited to attend.

Police Grant

GRIFTON — The Grifton Police Department recently received a state grant totalling $28,328 to provide additional police services.

The grant will allow the employment of three additional police officers, the purchase of one police vehicle, and equipment for the three new police officers, according to Grifton Police Chief Linwood Outlaw.

The grant is made up of state, federal and local funds. Grifton's share of the cost of the grant totals $1,417.

"The grant was approved in June but not awarded until recently. We hope to be hiring the new officers in September," Chief Outlaw said.

Cut-Rate Prices Offer Senior Citizens Some Help

EDITOR'S NOTE — More than 10 per cent of the U.S. population is over 65 and the proportion is growing steadily. Inflation has hit particularly hard at many of these people because of their fixed incomes. But lately there has been some relief in the form of senior citizen discounts on a growing variety of items.

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Norman A. Brinker of Charleston, S.C., gets a 10 per cent discount every week on his grocery bill. He estimates he and his wife save more than $200 a year.

Brinker also gets a cut-rate price at the drugstore. And there are discounts waiting for him at almost 200 other Charleston retail outlets, ranging from auto repair shops to motels.

He's a senior citizen, one of millions of Americans taking advantage of the growing number of discounts offered to the elderly by government and industry.

The discounted items include transit fares, groceries, movie tickets, auto repairs, medicines and motels. Some utilities offer "lifeline" electric rates, providing a minimum charge for a minimum amount of power for the elderly. The most popular programs are those offering savings on prescription drugs — which can account for up to 25 per cent of all the money spent by senior citizens on medical care. The minimum age for eligibility varies, but generally it is either 60 or 65.

The discounts are available in cities from coast to coast. Some are arranged by national organizations for senior citizens, but most are organized on a local basis. Merchants say the programs are good business: they draw customers and build goodwill.

Joan Barnes, director of Charleston Area Senior Citizens, Inc., said 190 South Carolina retailers in Charleston, Berkeley and Dorchester counties participate in discount programs. For a $3-a-year fee ($5 for couples), her group provides a list of the druggists, groceries, motels, movies, auto repair shops, restaurants, etc., offering discounts to the elderly.

Eleanor Mueller's membership in the Metropolitan Senior Federation of Minneapolis saved her $1,000 when she had to spend three weeks in the hospital recently. Miss Mueller had a private room and was treated by five specialists, but she paid nothing.

That's because the federation, organized four years ago, worked out an agreement with local hospitals and doctors to accept Medicare as full payment for outpatient care and all tests and physicals. The hospitals absorb the deductible portion usually paid by the patient.

Minneapolis senior citizens can also ride public transit free between rush hours.

The most widespread discount program is offered by the American Association of Retired Persons, a Washington-based group with 9.2 million members. You must be over 55 to join, but you don't have to be retired.

Members pay a $3 annual fee and get discounts at eight nationwide hotel and motel chains and two rent-a-car companies, Avis and Hertz. The group's other programs include a pharmacy service providing home delivery of prescription drugs and other medical items at low cost.

Another nationwide discount plan is offered by "VIP," a nonprofit group in Milton Township, Ill. The group issues ID cards to the elderly and publishes lists of available discounts.

"One man went out to the West Coast and went all up and down from San Francisco to Seattle and got discounts with it (the ID card)," said Janet Trojan, director of the program. "It is honored all over the country." She said 20,000 ID cards have been issued so far.

At the federal level, the National Park Service offers a Golden Age Passport to anyone 62 or over, as long as the individual is a citizen or permanent U.S. resident. The passport is good for life and can be obtained in person at any park.

The passport provides free admission to all National Park Service parks — about 70 in all — and is good for a 50 per cent discount on "user fees," such as charges for campsites, boat launchings and entry to historical sites. The discount also applies at facilities operated by other federal agencies such as the Forest Service.

Carl Christensen of the park service said almost 500,000 passports were issued last year and 300,000 to 400,000 are expected to be issued this year.

Among other local discount programs: —San Francisco started a discount program late in July. Among the savings available to holders of identification cards are reduced-price ice cream cones, lower movie admission prices and discounts at drugstores.

—The Los Angeles Department of Recreation and Parks distributes booklets, printed by local banks and savings and loan associations, listing firms giving discounts to the elderly. Chuck Geleide, manager of an International House of Pancakes branch offering 10 per cent off, said the discounts are good business. "Ten per cent ... is not a big deal and it makes someone happy," he said. "As long as they walk out of here full and smiling, that's where I'm at."

—Florida, retirement home for millions, has discounts on just about everything. Alice Jackson, supervisor of the Aging and Adult Services Program, says banks offer no-charge checking, motels take 10 per cent off bills and some community colleges provide free tuition. Not everyone is pleased, however. Max Friedson, 78, head of the Congress of Senior Citizens, a statewide group, says inflation and high prices make the discounts meaningless. "Sure they give you 10 per cent off the top," he says. "But it doesn't help. Ten per cent off what top? They charge us more and then give us discounts."

—Chicago residents 65 and older pay 20 cents instead of 45 on transit authority facilities under a program paid for by the state. A spokesman for the Chicago Transit Authority said 52.2 million riders used the reduced fare in 1975 and the city was reimbursed $12 million by the state. The city offers senior citizens municipal licenses at half price and the Chicago Metropolitan Senior Citizen's Center lists discounts at 1,300 retail outlets.

—Revco D.S. Inc., an Ohio-based drugstore chain with outlets in 21 states, began a 10 per cent discount program in 1962.

—The National Tea Co. of Rosemont, Ill., offers a 5 per cent discount on foodbaskets of less than $30. "It's an image thing," said Linda K. Anderson, director of consumer affairs. "It is not whether we are making money or not making money." The chain, however, is running at a loss over-all and has not decided whether to extend the program past December.

—A coalition of groups in the Washington area is trying to build a network of stores to provide discounts for the elderly. "We're after everyone in the metro area to recognize every county's (senior citizen) cards," said organizer Virginia Skaggs, 68.

—The Elderly Affairs Commission in Boston offers a discount coupon book to over-60 residents, with savings ranging from 10 to 30 per cent. The commission also provides $5 worth of taxi cabs for $4 to people over 65. "We got a lot of input before we started from the 100 or so (senior citizen) clubs we're in touch with," said Jack McCarthy, deputy commissioner. "They all said it was getting harder and harder to live on fixed incomes and we wanted to do something."
