

Last Night, Carter And Ford Came Out Slugging

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — This time they came out swinging, and Jimmy Carter swung harder — on the very issues President Ford had chosen. The voters will decide how many punches landed.

While the final impact will only come clear in an election 26 days away, it was evident that in the second of the presidential campaign debates, Democrat Carter was on the offensive.

President Ford did his share of slugging, too, in a San Francisco rematch that was far more heated and contentious than the leadoff debate.

They meet once more, on Oct. 22, in a debate that is not limited as to subject. That one, perhaps, will get to the topics people are talking about, things like Earl L. Butz and racial slurs; Carter, Playboy and secret lusts; the still unsettled inquiry into Republican campaign finances in Ford's old congressional district.

Those matters have not come up in the opening debates, under ground rules that limited the subject matter. In San Francisco on Wednesday night, the agenda was foreign policy and defense. Ford had wanted those topics debated first, since he considered them his strong points. Instead, the leadoff debate two weeks ago was on domestic affairs and the economy — supposedly heavy issues for Carter.

An Associated Press survey showed Carter gained a narrow edge in Wednesday night's debate in the eyes of the voters. A similar poll had rated Ford slightly ahead in the first debate.

In San Francisco, while Ford boasted of peace, performance and experience in foreign and security affairs, he was cast as the candidate with a record to defend. He did so.

He also used the powers of his office to disclose a hint of possible opening toward progress in the stalemated negotiations with Moscow for a new strategic arms limitation agreement, and to announce that the administration will publish today a list of U.S. firms that have participated in the Arab boycott aimed against Israel. While incumbency worked to Ford's advantage on those points, Carter made maximum use of his role as challenger.

For him, there were no inhibitions born of the need to defend current policies. Almost every answer carried a built-in challenge, another slap at administration policies he called horrible, immoral, overly secretive and unsuccessful.

He said Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger "has been the president of this country" in foreign affairs.

In fact, the language with which he keynoted his denunciation of Republican foreign policy could well serve as a capsule review of the debate:

"... Almost all style and spectacle and not substance."

Once again, the candidates generally restated positions already taken, although this time there were nuggets of new information, as on the SALT talks, the boycott list, and Carter's insistence on continuing U.S. control of the Panama Canal Zone for the foreseeable future.

There also were misstatements, notably Ford's claim that there is no Soviet domination in Eastern Europe. Not even his own national security adviser could second that.

During the debate, Ford defended that statement, saying he did not think Yugoslavia, Romania or Poland considered themselves dominated by Russia. He said they are independent and autonomous.

Carter said Ford would have a hard time convincing Polish, Czech or Hungarian-Americans that their ancestral homelands are not dominated by the Soviet Union.

Ford said he thought he had done all right in the debate, said he had been specific and Carter had dealt in generalities.

It was a point Ford raised repeatedly during the debate, saying that Carter spoke generalities and lacked information.

Carter's basic theme, in the debate as on the campaign trail, was that Ford has failed as a leader, and that administration policy has spurned morality and the principles of American democracy.

Even when he seemed in general agreement with Ford, Carter pressed the attack. Both candidates said they would move for normalization of relations with China, but without yielding the independence and freedom of Taiwan. Carter said, however, that Ford had "pretty well ... frittered away" a great opportunity to improve ties with Peking.

Ford said the United States must and will maintain full access to the Panama Canal. Carter said he would not relinquish practical control of the Panama Canal Zone in the foreseeable future — but would continue negotiations with Panama.

When Ford spoke of possible progress toward a SALT agreement, Carter acidly remarked that the President apparently had just learned that the current accord will expire in a year. "Mr. Ford acts like he's running for president for the first time," Carter said. And, in fact, he is.

By the time the debaters got to the Arab boycott, there seemed to be some hyperbole on both sides. Carter said the administration had proceeded disgracefully, and was permitting foreign nations to circumvent the Bill of Rights.

Ford then claimed credit for legislation to deny tax advantages to countries that have cooperated with the boycott, although the administration actually opposed the measure as too restrictive. He also said the administration had pressed for legislation to take strong and effective action against companies that cooperate with the boycott. Legislation to penalize such companies was shelved at the insistence of a Republican senator acting in behalf of the administration.

Of such items are debate points scored. But in a jejeve political debate, style may, after all, be the major point. And Carter changed his.

"I think in the first debate I deferred too much to him because he was President," Carter said. This time, Carter deferred to Ford not at all.

Question Of Electing School Board Will Be Heard By City Council

By a unanimous vote, a City Council Committee has recommended that a non-partisan, nine member school board be elected.

Voters authorized to cast votes for elected school board members would be registered voters living in the Greenville

City School district, which includes persons living within the city and in certain areas outside the city limits.

A Greenville City Council Special Committee for School Board Elections, was chaired by Councilwoman Millie McGrath with Dr. Frank Fuller and Rev.

William Hadden as committee members. The recommendations will be presented to the City Council at tonight's council meeting in City Hall.

Among other recommendations offered by the committee are:

—Nominations for three members on an at-large basis;

—The remaining six candidates would be nominated from within the ward in which each resides.

—The Greenville City School district would be divided into six wards. One ward would include all of the area in the school district that is north of the Tar River. Another ward would be the area outside the city limits but within the school district east of Greenville (the Brook Valley area). The remainder of the school district would be the city divided into fourths using Evans Street as the north-south division line and the Norfolk and Southern Railway as the east-west division line.

—School Board members would serve four-year staggered terms after the first election. At the time of the first election, the five candidates receiving the highest number of votes would

Wholesale Price Index Is Going Up

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices soared nine-tenths of 1 per cent in September, the sharpest increase in 11 months, due primarily to higher costs for farm products and a broad range of industrial goods, the government reported today.

The Labor Department report indicated strong inflationary pressure in the economy, and was certain to provide Democrat Jimmy Carter and other administration critics with fresh ammunition in the presidential campaign.

President Ford's economic advisers were concerned that today's statistics, as well as some yet to come before the Nov. 2 election, would increase public anxiety and put their man on the defensive.

The September increase was the largest since wholesale prices rose 1.1 per cent last October. It followed a decline of one-tenth of 1 per cent in August, and increases which averaged three-tenths of 1 per cent in the three preceding months.

The new surge in prices is likely to mean higher costs ahead for consumers, since changes at the wholesale level are generally followed at the retail level.

The increases probably will be reflected first at supermarket counters, since at least part of the food price hikes at the farm level usually are passed along to shoppers within a short time.

Consumer finished foods — that is, goods ready for sale on grocery shelves — rose seven-tenths per cent last month, following declines in each of the preceding three months.

Farm prices rose 1.9 per cent last month, following declines of 2.9 per cent in August and 1 per cent in July. Processed foods and feeds were up one-half per cent in September, after also declining in July and August.

Industrial commodity prices increased nine-tenths per cent, the largest rise since a 1.2 per cent advance last October.

Economists usually are more concerned about price trends for industrial commodities as an indication of the underlying inflationary pressures in the economy, since they are less volatile than farm prices.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tatum O'Neal has been named "Female Star of the Year" by the National Association of Theatre Owners. She will be honored Oct. 13 at a Disneyland awards ceremony.

The 12-year-old actress, daughter of movie star Ryan O'Neal, won an Oscar for her debut performance in "Paper Moon." Her second film was "Bad News Bears" with Walter Matthau.

chartering new corporations; acting as custodian of the Constitution and laws of the state; administering oaths to officials; and sundry other duties assigned in provisions set forth in numerous state statutes.

"One of the ideas I'm strongly advocating," Spaulding said, "is the establishment of a small business agency. I would like to see North Carolina assure small and medium sized business opportunities to bid competitively on state contracts."

Measures to initiate such a program, Spaulding says, "has a federal precedent. There would be no constitutional problems."

Spaulding cited a practical example of the way this could be set up. "The State could set aside certain contracts and let these be bid on by businesses in the small business category."

Defining a small business, Spaulding said the exact determination could be worked out based "on a scale of the number of employees, gross sales and other business factors."

"A small business agency is urgently needed in North Carolina when you consider that such businesses still employ about 90 per cent of all North Carolina workers employed in the private sector," he added.

HOUSE BURNED
Mrs. Annie McCray Lee's house in the Belvoir area burned Monday night. She lost everything, including her pocketbook in which the little cash she had was kept.

Social Services has been able to find a few clothes to tide her over, but is in need of a house for her to rent — preferably in the Belvoir area where she has always lived — and household furnishings. The only thing she has so far is a bed. Kitchen appliances, furniture, linens, dishes — everything except the bed — is needed. Anyone knowing of a house Mrs. Lee might rent for $65 a month or less and anyone who has donations to make for her well-being is asked to contact Peggy Smith at the Social Services Department, 758-2167.

Spaulding Feels Time For Change Is At Hand

Republican candidate for Secretary of State for North Carolina, Asa T. Spaulding, Jr., emphasizes that he has nothing personally against longtime incumbent Thad Eure when he stresses Eure's 40 years of service and his age, 76.

"But I think you'll agree it's time he had a rest, time he retired," Spaulding said in an interview here Wednesday afternoon.

"There's a more important reason, however, that I think it's time for a change," the 42 year old Durham native stated. "That is this state needs new leadership in the Secretary of State's office, new ideas, a new vitality. These things I can provide our people."

He expressed concern several times about "finding, during this campaign, that North Carolinians really have little knowledge of what the Secretary of State's office is doing.

"Some of the principal tasks assigned that office are those of

Annual Ducks Unlimited Dinner Set October 20

The annual Greenville Area Ducks Unlimited Dinner will be held Wednesday night, Oct. 20, it was announced by Eddie Smith Jr., area DU chairman.

Smith said that the annual session will begin at 6:30 p.m. at the Greenville Golf and Country Club with a social hour, followed by dinner and the popular Ducks Unlimited program.

The highlight of this year's gathering of area sportsmen will be the auction of various items, including a special DU limited edition shotgun, on behalf of Ducks Unlimited with all funds going to the organization's national fund to further the waterfowl conservation effort.

Several limited edition framed waterfowl prints, in addition to the Ducks Unlimited Print of the Year, will be available at the meeting, as well as a number of items made and donated by local craftsmen.

Members attending the session will have the opportunity to view various displays of sporting merchandise prior to the dinner.

As in recent years, a popular area auctioneer is expected to be on hand to assist the local chapter in raising funds for the overall DU project.

The Greenville area chapter held its most successful meeting ever last year with members digging into their pockets to raise approximately $22,000 on behalf of the northern conservation program. The year before, some $16,000 was raised by the local sportsmen.

Smith urged area persons interested in attending the meeting to obtain their tickets as early as possible. Tickets are available from Joe Albea, Dr. Ed Clement, Roger Collins III, Coffman's Men's Wear, John Farley, Graham Flanagan, Dr. Charles Gilbert, Melvin Hoot, H. L. Hodges Hardware, W. C. King, Dr. Ray Minges, Hoover Taft III, Tom Taft, Century Service Center, Jack Whichard,

Warren Wilkerson, and Smith. Ducks Unlimited Inc., headquartered in Chicago, is a private, non-profit membership organization dedicated to the conservation and propagation of North America's waterfowl as a valuable natural resource. The organization was founded by a group of sportsmen and incorporated by them in 1937. Funds raised by the local chapter and at other DU dinners and meetings are channeled into the national fund for work involving the long range welfare of the waterfowl population.

Dear Abby

Wants Censorship, To Protect Youth

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am aware that you find pornography offensive but feel that adults should be free to take it or leave it. How about children?

I recently found pictures in my 14-year-old son's room that would make Sodom and Gomorrah look like a Sunday school picnic!

While hard-core pornography is supposedly available only to adults, like drugs, it's available in abundance to kids of all ages on every street corner in America.

Our enemies suppress pornography and drugs in their own countries because they know that the way to destroy a nation is first to corrupt the morals of its youth. Corny, you think? I disagree with you and others who say that censorship violates our freedom.

If this constitutes freedom, you can have it! Believe me, a country that suppresses the ancient profession of prostitution but suppresses pornography is sick, sick, sick!
A FATHER

DEAR FATHER: If hard-core pornography is "available in abundance" to kids of all ages on every street corner in America (and I doubt that it is), I think the peddlers should be pinched and prosecuted.

I remind you that "our enemies" suppress many things besides pornography allegedly to avoid "moral corruption" of their youth. And if I read you right, we'd gain little by legalizing prostitution but denying adults the freedom to choose their own reading material.

DEAR ABBY: I've gone with this guy for over a year and I love him very much. He says he loves me, too, but listen to this. The other night my girlfriend and I were together changing from our regular clothes into our swimsuits in a little beach house.

My boyfriend later told me that he was "amazed" that I would show my naked body to another girl, and he actually accused me of being a lesbian! Abby, nothing could be further from the truth, but that's the way this guy had it figured out.

I did my best to assure him that he was mistaken, but he wouldn't believe me. Have you ever heard of anything so ridiculous? I swear, in today's society a woman can't even kiss her own sister without someone thinking she's gay. Help me!

STRAIGHT & HURT

DEAR STRAIGHT: Your boyfriend is jumping to some rather strange conclusions. His apparent hangup needs professional counseling. If he can't see it that way, you'd better look elsewhere for a boyfriend.

DEAR ABBY: A reader asked why he should tip a waiter when the chef cooked the excellent meal. Having been in the restaurant business for nearly 50 years, I think I can answer that question.

The chef (or cook) draws the highest salary in the place, and most chefs get "tipped" from the waiters and waitresses "in appreciation" for getting their orders out quickly.

You could call it "blackmail" for want of a better name, but that's the way it's done in the better restaurants. And there is no use going to the boss because a good chef is hard to find, but waiters can be had by the dozens.

Talk about your prima donna! Artists could learn a lot about temperament from these kings of the kitchen!

Sen. Helms Stirred Ire

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., has raised the ire of Jimmy Carter's state campaign director because of a remark made at a ribbon-cutting ceremony yesterday in Wilmington.

Helms was appearing with Republican vice presidential nominee Robert Dole, Gov. Jim Holshouser and GOP gubernatorial nominee David Flaherty at the opening of a local campaign headquarters.

As the ribbon snipping began, Helms remarked to the crowd, "We will imagine this is Jimmy Carter's neck. How about that!"

The joke drew chuckles from the partisan crowd and an angry reaction from Carter campaign director Joel McCleary in Raleigh.

McCleary said Helms' remark was "at the very least, in very poor taste" and "typical of the Republican attitude toward people and the political process in our country."

"I don't believe our elected officials should make such comments or allusions, in public or otherwise," McCleary said.

A spokesman at the Carter for President headquarters in Raleigh said about 20 persons had called to complain about Helms' choice of words. He said some had heard it on radio.

No Danger To N.C. From Light Fallout

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina is receiving a light radioactive fallout from a recent Chinese atomic blast, but an official says the amount is so low that it poses no danger.

Dayne H. Brown, head of the state's Radiation Protection Branch, said Wednesday the fallout sprinkling North Carolina "is way below the amount that we experienced during the 1950s from atomic tests."

Tests were made at an air sample station in Raleigh late Tuesday and Tuesday night, Brown said. Additional tests will be made at other stations in the state.

Brown said that based on the test and conversations with officials of the Environmental Protection Agency in Washington, "The quantities of fallout are small, very low in comparison with the amount of radioactive fallout in the 1950s."

"What we're seeing," he explained, "is typical of any detonation above ground. There is nothing unusual or anything different about this detonation than others."

Brown said milk samples will be taken from cows to determine how much, if any, fallout had been consumed from contaminated grass.

"We will probably have a hard time determining if there is an increase in the radioactive material in milk," he said. Radioactive fallout has showed up in milk since the 1950s when atomic tests were being conducted above ground, but it was not enough to hurt anybody, Brown said.

He added that the amount of fallout in milk has steadily decreased during the past decade.

Miss Bettina King Weds Miss Moseley Named Officer In Raleigh On Sunday

RALEIGH — Bettina King became the bride of Edward Windell Slavin Sunday afternoon on the Meredith College campus. The Rev. Travis Owens performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Wesley King of Ayden. She was given in marriage by her parents. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Calvin Slavin of Rocky Mount.

A program of wedding music was presented by Beverly Sing, pianist, Meg Bird, trumpeter, and Mrs. Lena Nall, who sang "People", "Sunrise, Sunset," and "One Hand, One Heart."

The bride wore her mother's gown of white pantique satin and chantilly lace. It was designed with a fitted bodice, sweetheart neckline trimmed with chantilly lace, and long lace sleeves. Satin buttons lined the bodice to the full skirt, which ended in a chapel train.

Her fingertip chantilly lace mantilla was edged in matching lace to complement the gown. The bride wore an emerald lavalere which had been worn in the weddings of her mother and grandmother. She carried a colonial bouquet of white bridal roses, stephanotis, and baby's breath, tied with white satin ribbon.

Mrs. June Smith of Stoneville, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Teresa Long of Rocky Mount, sister of the bridegroom, Miss Cathy Gibson of Ayden, and Miss Jill McDuffie of Red Springs.

The attendants wore formal length quina gowns of blue with bronze accents. The long sleeve gowns were designed with an open scooped neckline with a gathered overlay on the empire fitted bodice, giving a draped effect. They carried nosegays of bronze daisies and baby's breath.

Honorary bridesmaids were Mrs. Loretta Howell of Raleigh, Miss Kathy Lewis of Rocky Mount, Miss Ann Harris of Virginia Beach, Va., and Miss Julia Turner of Winston-Salem. They wore identical formal length gowns of deep apricot and carried a matching daisy with baby's breath and ribbon.

The mother of the bride selected a formal length blue plush knit gown designed with a V-neckline and fitted empire bodice with gathered triangle overlay. The mother of the bridegroom wore a formal length pink gown styled with an A-lined skirt. Both mothers wore miniature white carnation corsages.

The grandmother of the bride wore a formal length gown of blue, trimmed in light blue lace. She was remembered with a corsage similar to that of the mothers.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers were Bruce and David Slavin of Rocky Mount, brothers of the bridegroom, Mark and Melvin King, brothers of the bride.

A reception was given by the parents of the bride on the balcony of Johnson Rotunda at Meredith.

The parents of the bridegroom entertained the wedding party and guests for an after-rehearsal dinner at the Flying Cloud Restaurant Saturday night.

The bride is a graduate of Meredith College. The bridegroom attended North Carolina Wesleyan College and is employed with Coastal Plains Life Insurance as a district manager.

After a wedding trip to Williamsburg, Va., the couple will reside in Cary.

When I'm ready to drown in a pool of self-pity, I don't want anyone throwing me a sanctimonious line.

As I told a well-meaning friend the other day, "I walked by the mirror today and said, 'Mirror, mirror on the wall, who's the fairest of them all?'"

"What did it say?" Esther asked.

"I don't have to listen to language like that."

"At least you've got your health," said Esther. "No one should be this healthy. Do you realize I've only got two dresses I can squeeze into?"

"You can only wear one dress at a time," she smiled stolidly.

"That's the point, turkey, I may have to start wearing both of them at the same time."

"Waste not, want not," she said.

"You know the trouble with me? I'm too cheap to throw anything away. I clean up the kids' plates like a suction nozzle on the sweeper. I don't have a mouth. I have a trunk."

"A woman never stands so tall as when she stoops to eat a crumbled cookie."

"Where did you hear that?"

"In the Bible, I think."

"Mayva said the other day I wasn't obese. I just had a lot of fat that didn't fit."

"Consider the source."

"I am considering the source, Esther. The mouth of the Nile should have such a source. Does it bother you the way Mary Tyler Moore stands around with both hands on her hips? You just know they can span her waist."

"Yes, but is she happy?"

"If she isn't, I never want to smile again. I could be a size five if I wanted to. If I could just stop rewarding myself for answering the phone and bringing in the milk."

"Rome wasn't built in a day," she smiled charitably.

"It's your fault I'm fat!" I charged. "You and your platiitudes."

"Well, maybe you could lose a few pounds."

"Boy, Esther, I never figured you for a mean mouth."

Cans of evaporated milk require no refrigeration until they are opened. However, they should not be kept overly long — nor should other canned foods — on pantry shelves.

Important Issues Played Down

Two national polls were reported to have come up with major differences in the outlook for the presidential race.

The Associated Press said that the most recent Gallup Poll gives Jimmy Carter, the Democratic candidate, an eight-point lead over President Ford (50 to 42). The Yankelovich poll, conducted for Time magazine, gives the picture of a virtually deadlocked race at 43-43.

As usual, there was some argument about how accurate polls are, but we think the difference, as much as anything else, reflects the public confusion over this presidential campaign of 1976.

Important issues just don't seem getting the play in the media that they should. More news space and time seem to be taken up with Carter's Playboy interview and Butz' intemperate remarks than anything else.

Those things should be of some interest to the public, but they certainly should not be the main issues of the presidential campaign of 1976. We should be looking at how the candidates plan to deal with the twin spectres of inflation and recession. We should be most concerned with how the two men intend to approach the problems of unemployment and poverty in this nation. We need to know how each will provide for the defense needs of the nation.

Maybe the campaign is so dull that off-handed comments take on importance by comparison. Or perhaps a nation, fascinated by Watergate, simply wants more sensationalism. Whatever, we believe it is time for candidates, newsmen and the public to concern themselves with the real issues that face this nation. It is time to get down to serious things in the less than a month we have remaining before we elect a president of the United States.

N.C. No Longer 'Sure' For Democrats

North Carolina at one time was considered to be well into the Jimmy Carter column, and it was said to be likely that Carter would not visit the state to campaign.

Some observers are changing the assessment, however, with former governor Bob Scott saying that the presidential race is going to be close in the Tar Heel state.

We are inclined to agree. It has become easier for many North Carolinians to vote Republican in recent elections, and the Democrats this year are going to have to fight to win the state for Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter.

THIS AFTERNOON

N.C. Growth Appears Sure

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Industrial growth is certain for North Carolina's future—the big question is what is done to shape and control it to the most desirable ends, says Gov. James E. Holshouser, Jr.

Just back from an industry-hunting foray to Japan, the governor reflected on that, and previous, contacts with future prospects:

"Industrial expansion is coming regardless of what state government does," he said, listing a number of attractions which will influence that direction.

"The question is, what we can do to enhance and encourage desirable development. . . to make certain we have dispersal and location of industry in the state to assure that we are not causing serious urban problems which have been seen elsewhere.

Plan Now

"We need to look ahead, now, with long-range planning to avoid some of those problems which have caused serious trouble in northern industrial states."

One thing has been clearly demonstrated by his work in economic growth, Holshouser said: "The more we go after, the more we can get." Selling North Carolina, he finds, produces results.

What does the state offer? Large, open spaces where land is significantly cheaper than elsewhere—either in this country, and especially in the more crowded nations of Western Europe and Japan.

Another plus: relatively lower construction costs here, and the lower costs of energy—electricity, fuel, natural gas. Also a plentiful supply of willing labor, and a Community College-Technical Institute system capable of providing workers with necessary skills.

Above all, though, the governor finds potential investors impressed with, "A state program that stresses cooperation between government and business, rather than antagonism."

Governors of some industrial states gathered recently in Tennessee to lament the loss of jobs, tax bases, and middle-income people to the newly prospering "Sun Belt" states, including North Carolina.

Sympathy

Does Holshouser feel sympathy for his fellow governors? Not at all. He figures the states which are hurting brought the pain on themselves.

"They face some serious problems—not necessarily of their own making. Some were inherited from previous administration. Our concern must be to avoid making those same mistakes," he said of his colleagues. North Carolina must plan now to avoid the congestion, pollution, transportation woes, etc.

The "climate is right in North Carolina" for an industrial boom, the governor feels, especially for foreign firms. Overseas pressures are mounting on business, economists say: land costs have risen sharply, socialistic governments are creating roadblocks, and labor costs are up tremendously as one result of various social and welfare programs for workers, not simply salary rates.

Thus, when prospects look at the total formula for operating costs in making a relocation decision, it is clear why the Southeastern United States represents a major attraction to both foreign and domestic firms.

North Carolina currently has 127 foreign firms operating here, employing over 11,000 people and representing an investment in facilities of more than one billion dollars.

The governor is convinced that development will continue to bring different, and higher paying, jobs to the state.

HIS BUILDING BLOCKS!

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

Where The Money Goes

Jerry Ford gave it the old college try. He put veto number 59 on the massive appropriations bill for labor, health and welfare, but it was a straw bridge on a bucking bronco. With a whoop and a holler, the members of both houses voted to override. Then they stamped to adjournment and fled the city. For another three months, praise the Lord, the liberties of the people are secure.

In his veto message, Ford termed the HEW appropriations bill "a perfect example of the triumph of election-year politics over fiscal restraint." That was the least that could be said.

The bill was wholly in character with every other action this spendthrift Congress has taken over the past two years. Within the sphere of earthly gravity, everything that goes up eventually must come down, but the rule does not apply on Capitol Hill. There a different principle applies: Everything that goes up, goes up.

During the fiscal year that began October 1, our masters propose to spend $413.1 billion. They propose to receive only $362.5 billion. The difference between income and outgo will produce an estimated deficit of $50.6 billion. Would you like to hear a good joke? They put a limit of $700 billion on the federal debt. That's a real knee-slapper, son.

During the final hours of the 94th Congress, we did witness one commendable gesture toward economy. On the motion of Senator Dewey Bartlett of Oklahoma, the Senate voted to reduce the number of elevator operators from 125 to 63. The cutback will save half a million dollars. Thank you, Senator Bartlett. The amendment left the budget for the legislative branch at only $971 million, three times the budget for 1970.

It was not as if opportunities for significant economies were not provided. The Congress, for one example, might have made a start at reducing the costly program of peanut price supports. The bill sank without a trace. The Congress might have voted a few sensible reforms in the $5.5 billion outlay for food stamps — but not when a rollcall would have demanded the yeas and nays on food stamps for striking workers. In an outbreak of virtue, our masters denied themselves a raise in fiscal '77 — but a small, cynical voice suggests the path of virtue will not lead much beyond next winter's report from the quadrennial pay raise commission.

Against this background, there never was any realistic prospect that Ford's veto of the Labor-HEW bill would be sustained. The President, mind you, had not been parsimonious in his own recommendations for these particular spending programs. Ford had proposed a tidy sum: $52,618,208,000. The Congress raised him by four — by four billion, that is, to $56,618,207,575.

Embraced within that staggering total are dozens of programs of great political appeal. It is understandable that few members, only a month before electionday, would want to be accused of voting against funds to support the schools and to improve the public health. The autumns of even-numbered years are compassionate times. Ford himself is a compassionate fellow. He had proposed, for example, $236 million in education for the handicapped. The Congress voted twice as much compassion: It wrote in $468 million. The increased amount cannot possibly be spent efficiently.

"I believe the American people are wiser than the Congress thinks," Ford said in his veto message. "They know that compassion is

Button Demand Is Off

By F.N. D'ALESSIO
Associated Press Writer
BROADVIEW, Ill. (AP) — A man who mints campaign buttons by the millions says business has fallen off sharply, and he pins the blame on new campaign finance laws.

Frank Sitzberger, president of Adcraft Manufacturing Co., said Wednesday that he's turning out far fewer of the colorful discs this fall than in any recent presidential campaign.

The problem this year is that both President Ford and Democratic challenger Jimmy Carter accepted tax-supported federal funding for their campaigns, he said in an interview.

"They've only got $28.1 million apiece, and they're going to spend that on television, not on buttons, pamphlets or the other traditional stuff," Sitzberger said.

He said Ford and Carter have ordered one million buttons each from his firm, compared with the 17 million discs that were made for Richard Nixon's 1972 campaign effort.

Sitzberger believes the buttons are valuable because they stimulate political discussions.

"You don't see the button, you don't get the discussion and the issues don't get aired," he said. "It's as simple as that."

Sitzberger, whose firm has been making buttons since 1919, says he considers a few as masterpieces.

"I Like Ike," that got him elected," he said of the 1952 button for late President Dwight Eisenhower. "All The Way With L.B.J." (1964) was a great one. You can go all the way back to 1898 and I'm for (William Jennings) Bryan and Free Silver."

Sitzberger said local and state candidates still rely heavily on buttons for their advertising.

He added that the button business was much better during this year's primary campaigns "when there were about 12 candidates, (Ronald) Reagan

Judge J. Will Pless, Jr. today quashed a burglary indictment against a Negro defendant and deferred the trial of two Negroes accused of murdering a taxi driver because there were no Negroes on the Mecklenburg County jury that voted the indictment.

Judge Pless in Superior Court upheld the contention of the defense that the grand jury was "without constitutional status" owing to the failure of the county commissioners to have the black race represented.

Before announcing his ruling Judge Pless heard the chairman of the board of county commissioners, testify that it had been the practice to discard the names of Negroes drawn for both grand and petit jury service.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Boo-Boos Hurt Moynihan

By ROWLANDE EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

SYRACUSE — As Daniel Patrick Moynihan was stilling a gossipy crowd of Democrats at a highly successful fund-raiser in the Syracuse Hotel here last Wednesday with his wit and rhetoric, a leading Democratic officeholder whispered to his companion.

"Pat's got it locked up — unless he makes another bad boo-boo."

Moynihan squeaked out a primary election win on Sept. 14 without a single bad boo-boo. But three days later in Buffalo — the most heavily unionized city in heavily unionized New York state — he committed a costly blunder, declaring that teachers and other municipal employees not charged with protecting the public's safety should have the right to strike.

That response infuriated heavily Democratic Buffalo, whose loyalties in the embittered teachers' strike were strongly against the strike (illegal to begin with under the state's Taylor law). Thus, Moynihan made a grave misjudgment in his Senate campaign against Sen. James Buckley, the Conservative-Republican incumbent.

Running as an old-fashioned Democratic liberal on bread-and-butter issues, he forgot that most municipal unions are viewed even by labor-oriented Democrats as tax-devouring evils, a switch in political thinking which has converted tax-paid unions with swollen pension plans and extravagant fringe benefits into a social issue with highly negative ramifications.

Moynihan's Buffalo boo-boo last month had its predictable result last week: a poll by the Buffalo Evening News showing Buckley actually leading Moynihan by 4 percentage points in the most Democratic upstate city. This Moynihan deficit is almost certain to be reversed well before the Nov. 2 election, but it points directly to the battle of strategies in perhaps the single most important Senate race in the nation: Catholic Moynihan striving to exploit the bread-and-butter issues of jobs and unemployment and to capture ethnic Catholics and blue-collar workers; Catholic Buckley seeking support on social issues like abortion and gun control from these same Catholic ethnics.

Thus, the way the Buffalo teachers' strike backfired on Moynihan symbolized the campaign of conflicting strategies. The campaign is dramatized further by stark differences in personality between flamboyant, gregarious Moynihan, the towering Harvard professor, diplomat and one-time Nixon staffer; and Buckley, shy and diffident.

Indeed, the campaign performance of Buckley (who was elected in 1970 with only 39 per cent of the vote in a three-way contest) may test whether post-Watergate disillusion with politics and politicians now puts a premium on candidates who refuse to act like candidates.

Campaigning in the old Brooklyn Navy Yard one day last week, Buckley shyly declined to be prodded into saying a few words to several hundred construction workers in a new tanker-building operation that owes its very existence to government loans that Buckley himself made possible several years ago.

"Jim is a helluva guy," a top officer of the tanker firm told us, "and a terrible politician."

The tour of what used to be the Brooklyn Navy Yard followed a long and acerbic question-and-answer session

Strength For Today

ETERNAL LIFE

One of the greatest souls of all ages was David Livingstone. This Scotch physician buried himself in the jungles of Africa that he might bring healing to broken men and women he found there and preach to them the Christian gospel.

Writing to Sir Thomas MacLear in 1862, Livingstone declared: "I suppose I shall die in these uplands, and someone will carry out the plan I have longed to put into practice. I have been thinking a great deal since the death of my wife about the regions whither she has gone, and I imagine from the way the Bible describes it . . . that there will be work there as well as here, and probably not such a vast difference in our being as is expected. We shall see Him by whose inexpressible love and mercy we get there, and all whom we have loved, and all the lovable."

The Christian doctrine of immortality is always welcome to those who have lived a full life of service to their fellows.

Letters submitted for Public Forum must be limited to 300 words.

To the editor:

After being a reluctant participant in a car-truck accident Friday afternoon at the corner of Elm Street and Greenville Boulevard, it became painfully clear that a change in the current bypass speed limit is needed.

Trucks, particularly those towing or heavily loaded, slide through the caution and red lights, unable to stop their rigs in time. Some deliberately rush the light or fail to heed it at all. Greenville Boulevard is no longer a convenient 45 mph bypass. It is a congested traffic area where even more needless accidents are sure to occur. Although some beautiful strangers assisted me after my experience, and I deeply appreciate their many kindnesses, some change must be made to protect others. The ideal remedy would be a new limited access bypass. The practical calls for a lower speed limit, at least for trucks. Otherwise, Greenville may someday rename the boulevard "suicide alley" and institute a special award for those who assist accident victims there.

Sandy Wurth-Hough

To the editor:

Recently when North Carolina passed a law making it legal to turn right on red at an automatic traffic signal, it seemed to be quite an improvement, although Florida and other states had this feature for many years before North Carolina.

I have noticed since the law was passed, however, that at just about every intersection where this feature applies, a sign has been erected prohibiting a right turn on red.

Naturally some common sense is involved in making these right turns on red. In Florida we never do see any sign prohibiting right turns on red.

Do North Carolina people have less common sense than Florida people?

Threat Is Forcing Efficiencies

By JOHN CUNNIFF

AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The threat of socialized medicine appears to be forcing the health care industry into efficiencies that might eventually slow the rise in patients' medical bills.

The threat, which has been a sword over the industry's head, may be one of the main reasons why during the past five years the length of inpatient stay at hospitals has been cut by almost a full day, from 8.4 to 7.5 days.

While that reduces the average stay to about where it was in 1962 — the figure rose sharply when Medicare was introduced in 1966 — it represents a genuine decline from the 9.1 day figure of 1946.

Alexander McMahon, president of the American Hospital Association, now foresees the possibility that the figure might be reduced even more, cutting billions of dollars from the nation's health care bill.

The pressure from possible government action in the health care field has, among other things, forced hospitals to screen patients before admitting, to develop one-day surgery stays, to utilize home care, to reduce convalescent periods.

What it views as a threat also has led to more cooperation between health insurers and hospitals, and may even lead to a universal claim form acceptable to most insurers and hospitals.

A test of the new form in California indicated that state alone would save $8 million a year, said McMahon, leading him to suggest a national saving of about $80 million.

Such a development also would reduce a level of confusion that is probably unmatched in American industry, involving patient, doctor, hospital, insurer and regulator in an incoherent babble and shuffling of papers.

McMahon concedes that some of the efficiencies being introduced result from adverse public opinion and possible government action. In that sense, he said, "competition is good."

At the same time, McMahon maintains that a good deal of the change is internally motivated by staffs who recognize that the role of the hospital is changing and that they must respond to newer demands.

Years ago, he points out, "All a doctor could do was sit and hold the patient's hand and wait for mother nature's healing process. And in the earliest days, a patient went to the hospital to die rather than get well."

By contrast, today's hospital, with its expensive technology and high operating costs, is seen as a facility that must be used intensively, not as a rest home or even as a recuperative facility.

McMahon maintains that hospitals today are better audited medically and financially, that doctors often fail to get their patients admitted if the work can be done elsewhere, that insurers

Amendment Has Board Approval

WILLIAMSTON—The Martin County School board Monday approved a budget amendment to permit use of federal funds (through state allotment) for a "New Model Me" project. The project, a low-cost one, is designed to give students a new self-image and self-awareness. It has been assigned to the Bear Grass School.

are refusing to pay for unnecessary care, and that follow-up checks by accreditation agencies and others keep hospital personnel on their toes.

McMahon, of course, is fighting a battle to keep the health care industry beyond the long arm of government control, and so can be expected to emphasize the positive response to complaints.

From this position he insists the battle is being won. "We're responding," he said. "It suggests to Congress and others that lots of positive activity is going on to control costs and that we may bring it off without additional regulation."

He feels also that people today are less likely to rely on regulation, having learned that it sometimes doesn't solve the problem, and may in itself be a factor in rising costs.

But, he was asked, what happens if the pressure relaxes? McMahon insists that efficiencies would continue.

"Overutilization of hospitals and other health care facilities tend to be one of the major causes of higher costs," he said, and that means cuts must be made everywhere, from front office to operating room.

with elderly Brooklyn Jews at the William and Anna Blankstein community house. A hint of what was to come was discernible in his introduction as a Senator "who many here don't agree with, so please use this opportunity to tell him."

Minutes later Buckley was attacked by an angry 29-year-old Jewish lady for his opposition to the first proposal of federal aid to New York City last year. "How can we send you back to the Senate?" she said. "How do you justify coming and asking us to send you back?"

Buckley refused the usual refuge of politicians caught by angry constituents. Instead of excuses, he attacked "clubhouse politics" in New York City as the cause of bankruptcy, meaning sweetheart labor contracts between politicians (most of them Democrats) and the municipal unions. The remedy was discipline, not money.

Such seemingly suicidal back talk to voters is a major part of Buckley's strategy, and carries the deliberate implication that Moynihan (invariably called "Professor Moynihan" by Buckley) is a gregarious trimmer who says what he thinks the voters want to hear. Few politicians think Buckley can carry it off and they are probably right — if Pat Moynihan commits no more bad boo-boos before Nov. 2.

Board members also voted a resolution of thanks to Elizabeth Roberson of the Bear Grass School faculty for an article in "New East" magazine outlining work done by her students on the study of eastern North Carolina Indians.

Dr. Julio George of UNC-Chapel Hill, gave a report on the Sixth Year Advance Degree Program. This two and one-half year program for principals and supervisors leading to the sixth year advanced degree is part of the six-county Alliance for Progress overall program. Dr. George's report showed progress reached at the half-way point of the program.

Approval was given to making an application to the State Board of Education for possible additional teachers to relieve classes larger than the authorized size at several of the county schools.

Action on disposition of the old Everetts school building was again delayed until a later date. School board members also agreed to again ask county commissioners for funds to purchase additional property adjacent to the East End School in Robersonville.

An agreement was reached to permit students in the six county Alliance for Progress area to sign up for American Institute for Foreign Student's study. A representative from the institute explained that forthcoming tours are slated for Italy, France, Austria, England, Germany and some African countries.

part of the federal government involves more than taking additional cash from their paychecks. They know that inflationary spending and larger deficits must be paid for not only by all federal taxpayers, but by every citizen, including the poor, the unemployed, the retired persons on fixed incomes, through the inevitable reduction in the purchasing power of their dollars.

"I believe strongly in compassionate concern for those who cannot help themselves, but I have compassion for the taxpayer, too. My sense of compassion says that we shouldn't ask the taxpayers to spend their money for a tangled mess of programs that the Congress itself has shown all too often to be wasteful and inefficient — programs which all too often fail to really help those in need."

The vote to override was 312-93 in the House, 67-15 in the Senate. Don't let anyone ever tell you elections come cheap.

"Then it turned out nobody wanted them," he recalled. "Maybe that's why business is so bad."

Awards For 2 Students

Wanda Pendergraft of Garner and Mark Lloyd of Bules Creek, both senior environmental health majors in the East Carolina University School of Allied Health and Social Professions, have received $150 scholarship awards.

The two received their awards last week at the Greensboro meeting of the N.C. Public Health Association.

Wanda Pendergraft was presented an award from the N.C. Restaurant Association by Jerry Williams, NCRA Executive Director. The scholarship is presented annually to a North Carolina student who has demonstrated unusual interest in the field of restaurant sanitation.

Mark Lloyd received the first Environmental Health Memorial Scholarship awarded by the Environmental Health Section of the N. C. Public Health Association.

He was a student intern this summer with the Durham County Health Dept. and plans to pursue a career as a professional sanitarian upon graduation from ECU.

Spring in Dixie will be cold and rainy, followed by a hot summer and rainy fall, Abe says.

Be that as it may, a cold front set off showers in North Carolina today.

They will diminish somewhat across the mountains and increase in the east tonight and Friday.

There will be a wide variation in temperatures across the state for the next few days. Highs today ranged from the 60s in the mountains to the low 80s along the coast. That also will be the variation Friday.

Lows tonight will be from the 50s in the west to the 60s in the east.

Showers fell in the mountains and foothills Wednesday. It was mostly sunny elsewhere. Afternoon high temperatures ranged from the 60s in the mountains to the low 80s along the south coast. The warmest were Jacksonville with 81 and New Bern and Wilmington with 80.

Cloudiness spread eastward across the Piedmont into the coastal early today. Occasional rain fell in the mountains and southern Piedmont. Overnight lows ranged from the mid 50s to the mid 60s. The coolest temperatures were in the east, where there was less cloudiness.

Rainfall in the 24 hours ended at 2 o'clock this morning was mostly light, although Asheville had almost half an inch.

Sen. Dole And N.C. GOP Candidates In Asheville

She Brought Pies To Rob The Bank

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP)—Everybody was waiting for the whipped cream to be put on the two chocolate pies during the lunch break at the bank.

But the woman who had slipped out to get the whipped cream, a former employe fired four months before and who had returned for a visit, stole $2,000 before she returned, it was testified.

An FBI agent testified in U.S. Middle District Court that Mary Edith Mabe, 23, of Mount Airy, admitted having taken the pies to employes of the Planters National Bank and Trust Co. June 22 during the bank's lunch hour.

The agent said Mrs. Mabe left the employes' lounge on the pretext of getting whipped cream to top the pies, and slipped the money in $20 bills from a teller's drawer.

Mrs. Mabe, who was fired last February, admitted taking the money when the agent visited her home. He testified she went into the kitchen, took $1,900 from a cookie jar and handed it over, along with $100 from her wallet.

Mrs. Mabe's attorney pointed out that she had returned all the money. He said she had made a shopping trip to Winston-Salem to spend it, but found she was unable in good conscience to do so.

By MONTE PLOTT
Associated Press Writer
ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Republican vice presidential nominee Robert Dole brought national politics to a tree-line

Judge Hiram H. Ward placed Mrs. Mabe on five years probation. He told her she would find herself back in court for sentencing if she committed the slightest transgression or broke any conditions of her parole. "She's already been punished," Ward said, "and will be punished for the rest of her life because she's pleaded guilty to a felony."

WANTS MORE
WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Republican gubernatorial candidate David Flaherty today called for Jim Hunt, his Democrat opponent, to face him for two more debates.

residential street in Buncombe County Wednesday. The Kansas senator led a bevy of North Carolina GOP candidates.

"North Carolina is a very important state. We believe there is a big movement in this state and in many Southern states," Dole said in a brief news conference at the Asheville airport.

After campaigning in Wilmington Wednesday morning, Dole came here in an effort to garner support for Republicans on every level, from local to national. Democrats outnumber Republicans 3 to 1 in Buncombe, according to Bob Thomson, chairman of the county GOP.

Gov. Jim Holshouser, Sen. Jesse Helms, gubernatorial candidate David Flaherty, 11th District congressional candidate Bruce Briggs, and Dole's wife, Elizabeth, followed him to a house where he opened a Republican neighborhood headquarters.

A high school band, complete with majorettes, saluted Dole from the driveway at the Dennis Lilly residence, and Republican supporters packed the front yard. "We didn't know for sure he was coming until Monday night," said Mrs. Margie Lilly, who greeted Dole with her husband and two young children.

She said local Republicans approached her last week, asking which candidate she and her husband supported for president. "We said Ford, and they asked if we would like to do this. We just cooperated with them."

Her husband said the Dole visit was a surprise because, "We're relatively new here. We moved here from New Jersey six months ago." Holshouser told the crowd that Dole was "a straight shooter" and the "perfect contrast to (Democratic vice presidential candidate Sen. Walter) Mondale."

Dole praised Briggs, who faces Democrat Lamar Gudgeon in the congressional race. Dole also said, "I also want to work with David Flaherty as your governor."

Labeling North Carolina a "high priority, key state," Dole said he did not believe the predictions of success for Democratic vice presidential candidate Jimmy Carter in the South.

He said he detected a "movement away from Gov. Carter to the President."

Dole attacked Carter several times during his two-hour stay in Asheville.

At the airport news conference, he said Carter's recent remarks on sex in an interview with Playboy magazine were a "slur on all womankind." Carter said in the interview that he had committed adultery in his heart.

Dole also referred to Carter's criticism of a slur against blacks which was attributed to Earl Butz and which prompted Butz to resign as secretary of agriculture. Dole said Carter was criticizing Butz "for something he's done himself — made off-color remarks." Dole said he was talking about the Playboy interview.

In his remarks at the Lilly house, Dole again aimed at Carter. He said, "You don't want someone who will repeal your right-to-work law in North Carolina. After speaking at the Lilly neighborhood headquarters, Dole visited two nearby houses for what a Republican press release described as "neighborhood canvassing."

Larry Woldt, a Republican staffer from Washington, said the houses were selected "kind of at random." He said local GOP workers "just drove around" the neighborhood last week, asking residents whom they supported for president.

Dr. Wayne Montgomery, chairman of the Ford campaign in Buncombe County, said he was sure the two houses were selected well in advance, although he did not know the particulars of how Dole's itinerary was planned.

"Wouldn't it have been something if he went to a door unannounced and a German shepherd came out and bit him?" Montgomery said.

Bangkok Is Under Martial Law

BANGKOK, Thailand — Thailand's new military ruler clamped the iron hand of martial law on Bangkok's blood-stained streets today, arresting 3,000 students in the wake of clashes that left at least 26 persons dead and 180 wounded.

Strict controls were imposed on the local press, gatherings of more than five persons were prohibited and soldiers stood guard at some public buildings as Sangad Chalwyu sought to bring the country under his control. He met no public opposition and the capital was quiet.

Tanks were posted near key government offices and sandbags and barbed wire put up, but the tanks were ordered away after a short time.

All schools and universities in Bangkok were closed.

A police spokesman said the university students were arrested in sweeps through the city today and charged with various antigovernment activities. All were being held without bail. An estimated 1,300 persons were arrested in Wednesday's brutal fighting between student leftists and right-wing groups.

The takeover Wednesday by Sangad, a hard-line anti-Communist, was Thailand's 14th coup since World War II. It came after months of complaints by rightists about growing lawlessness, corruption and student violence and the weakness of ousted Prime Minister Seni Pramroj's government.

Sangad dismissed all government ministers from the former regime. He met with the ministry undersecretaries he had named as temporary replacements for their former bosses.

The 60-year-old admiral and former defense minister refused to speak with reporters after the meeting.

The military regime told all local newspapers today to apply for new publishing licenses and established a press censorship committee. However, specific instructions on how newspapers would operate in the future were not immediately issued.

A military spokesman told reporters that international news agencies would have to submit stories "critical of the government" and those dealing with Communist activities in the country to the committee for review but other stories could be sent out unimpeded.

Details of what the government considered "critical" were not provided by the spokesman.

In imposing martial law Wednesday, Sangad abolished parliament and the constitution, slapped a midnight-to-dawn curfew on the country, placed all civilian courts under military jurisdiction and banned political meetings of more than five people.

There was no open opposition to the moves either in the capital or the provinces.

Sangad contended that the Seni government had shown itself incapable of governing and that a new regime was needed to halt Communism in Thailand. The coup ended three years of democracy.

Thailand's change of government was expected to evoke strong reaction from its Communist neighbors, particularly Vietnam, which in the past has criticized Bangkok's "reactionary, military clique."

The stage was set Wednesday for Sangad's takeover after rightist groups clashed with leftist students at Thammasat University and special riot police stormed the campus in a full-scale military assault, complete with heavy weapons.

Rightists hanged two leftists and beat the bodies with sticks, gouged out the eyes and cut the throats. The body of another victim lay headless on the university grounds.

In another incident, a mob dragged four leftist students from the university gates through nearby streets, beat them, soaked them with gasoline and set them afire. Strips of automobile tire were used to feed the flames.

The violence grew out of leftist protests against the return home last month of former dictator Thanom Kittikachorn, who was ousted in student-led riots in October 1973.

See Higher Leaf Prices

Some of the highest prices ever paid by buying companies on the Greenville Tobacco Market were recorded on Wednesday's sale, according to J. N. Bryan, sales supervisor.

Bryan said that the companies bought some of the top grade offerings yesterday for as high as $1.66 per pound and quite a bit of tobacco sold for $1.50 to $1.66 per pound. He added that all local warehouses had tobacco that brought $1.40 per pound or better.

Sales on Wednesday totaled $966,028 pounds, he said, and brought $1,180,496, an average of $122.20 per hundred pounds.

Top practical price paid on the market was $1.30 per pound. Stabilization receipts amounted to 4.11 per cent of total sales.

For the season, the market has sold 39,973, 124 pounds for $45,990,513, an average of $115.05 per hundred pounds.

Debate Poll Leaned To Carter

By EVANS WITT
Associated Press Writer
RADNOR, Pa. (AP) — Jimmy Carter, impressing viewers with confident stands on foreign and defense policy, scored slightly better than President Ford in their second debate, a nationwide Associated Press poll found today.

The telephone survey of 1,071 registered voters made immediately after the debate Wednesday night found neither Carter nor Ford the clearcut winner.

But 38.2 per cent of those polled said Carter had won, while 34.6 gave the nod to Ford. And 27.2 per cent called it a draw or said they didn't know who won.

While Carter's margin over Ford was statistically small, the scores in his favor were consistent throughout the varied questions asked in the poll, giving strength to the poll's basic finding on who won.

The figures from this survey of scientifically selected Americans were almost exactly a reverse of those found in the AP poll after the first presidential debate, from which Ford emerged with a slight edge.

In that survey after the Sept. 23 debate, 34.4 per cent of those polled said Ford won, while 31.8 per cent said Carter was the victor. A draw or "don't know" response came from 33.8 per cent.

The theoretical margin of error for samples of the size used in these surveys is about 2.9 per cent in either direction if the results are projected to stand for the reaction of the entire viewing audience.

Technically, this means that Carter's margin over Ford in the second debate could be due to variations in the sample.

But all the figures tabulated from interviews conducted for

The AP by Chilton Research Services of Radnor, Pa., pointed narrowly but consistently to a Carter victory.

The Carter showing came despite predebate expectation that Ford's experience in Washington and especially his last two years in the White House would give him the edge over the former Georgia governor.

Carter's good showing was reflected by such survey results as these:

—Both men gained some support, but Carter more than Ford. Before the debate, Carter led Ford 45.8 per cent to 43.0 per cent, according to interviews with these same respondents within the past week. After the debate, Carter's margin had widened, 48.5 to 44.8.

—Carter picked up some new support among college-educated viewers, while Ford's support among this group slipped slightly.

—Ford did not strengthen his backing among those voters who consider themselves independent. This group was a major source of increased support for Ford after the first debate.

A panel of 1,500 respondents was contacted in the week before the debate. Their presidential preference was determined during the initial call, and they agreed to accept a telephone call after the debate. Starting at 11 p.m. EDT Wednesday, interviewers completed 1,071 calls.

As was true after the first debate, each candidate tended to solidify his support among those who watched the second debate. And after each debate, the percentage of undecided voters dropped.

Curbing Money Supply

LONDON (AP) — The Bank of England raised its minimum lending rate, the key to Britain's interest rate structure, by 2 per cent today to a record high of 15 per cent.

The hike in the minimum lending rate, the lowest interest rate at which the country's central bank will lend money, was aimed at curbing the money supply and bringing down inflation, currently running at 13.8 per cent a year.

In another move to curb the money supply, the Bank of England called on the nation's banks to pay in 2 per cent of their deposits to the central bank.

This takes out of the banking system, and thus out of the lending market, about $1.21 billion. Half of the amount is to be paid Nov. 2 and the remaining half Nov. 15.

This latest call by the Bank of England for so-called "special deposits" from the nation's banks follows a similar move last month. Then the Bank of England called for 1 per cent of the banks' deposits and that took about $95 million out of the banking system.

The Bank of England said the action was taken primarily to prevent the nation's money supply from expanding too rapidly and to reduce inflation.

The news hit London's financial district like a bombshell.

On the stock exchange share prices took a tumble.

reported that data collected by the institute to date indicates that the company's operation has had no adverse impact on the river.

The mine and manufacturing plant employs more than 1,000 persons, the tour group was told. The annual payroll is more than $14 million.

Some 25 of the company's employees reside in Pitt County, according to Texasgulf, while the majority, or 69 per cent, reside in Beaufort County.

Gov. James Holshouser proclaimed "Texasgulf Day in North Carolina" on July 25 when the company celebrated the tenth anniversary of production.

serve for four years; the other four candidates would have to run for re-election at the end of two years and then would be elected for four-year terms.

—Election for the school board would fall on the same date as the primary election for state and national offices. This is the same date that Pitt County School Board members are voted into office.

A final recommendation is that in the event of a vacancy during a school board member's term of office, the vacancy would be filled by appointment by the City Council, for that member to serve until the next regular election.

Commenting on the recommendations drawn up by the committee, Mrs. McGrath said, "speaking for myself personally, and I think I also speak for the committee, I'm concerned that some people will be thinking or will be reading into these recommendations negative reactions to the current school board."

"This is not the case at all. The idea of an elected school board has been discussed all along, even before I ran for office. The issue of an elected board is one that many of us ran on for the council, and we're carrying out our election promises in considering this."

"With all the talk of merger, I think it's doubly important we consider an elected school board at this time. I feel the recommendations we have made will permit an orderly process," Mrs. McGrath stated.

Another plank in his campaign is that of "going to the people. Instead of the 'you come to us' attitude that has so long been the policy at the State Department, it's time to find ways to let the people know what this office does and can do for them. I'd get the word out."

Asked about an issue that is increasingly the topic of concern in many communities of the nation—that of the proliferation of non-profit, tax-exempt institutions and establishments, Spaulding said "it is not easy for me to define anything definite at this time. It's an issue that should be studied for the purpose of establishing realistic controls. I feel that guidelines for controls would be in the purview of the Attorney General's office."

Spaulding is for a change in the term of office of the governor. "A governor should be allowed to succeed himself at least once," he commented. On the veto power of the governor, Spaulding said "I have no opinion. This is something I need to look into."

He praised Holshouser's ombudsmen program and said "I feel definitely this should be continued, and I'm for taking a long, hard look to see if the Secretary of State's office should be the place for the State's 'People's Man.'"

A trim, athletic man, Spaulding in 1964 became the first North Carolina black admitted to the Junior Chambers of Commerce in North Carolina. A graduate of Morehouse

Hearing Set On Pitt Ordinance

A county mobile home ordinance and a mass gathering ordinance will be considered at a public hearing to be held Thursday, Oct. 21 at 7:30 p.m. in the District Court Room, Court House Annex.

The hearing was announced by Dr. Charles Fitzgerald, chairman of the Pitt County Board of Health, which is conducting the hearing. The public is invited to provide input at this hearing, he said.

Set Bake Sale, Flea Market

The junior ladies' auxiliary of Sycamore Hill Baptist Church will sponsor a flea market and bake sale on Saturday beginning at 10 a.m.

The sale will be held in the church parking lot facing Dickinson Avenue. A variety of articles and foods will be offered.

Just Wanted The Coupons

MORGANTON, N.C. (AP) — A woman accused of stealing a pickup truck load of old newspapers from a civic club's collection center is quoted by police as saying she wanted them to cut out discount coupons.

Police in Morganton said she was charged Wednesday with misdemeanor larceny of newspapers.

Heads Drive By NAACP

MRS. FANNIE JENKINS
Mrs. Fannie Langley Jenkins of Bethel is this year's chairwoman of the Pitt County NAACP membership drive.

"Where would civil right be if there wasn't any NAACP to take organized action against racial injustice and knock down fences still standing in the way of complete freedom and opportunity for black and oppressed Americans," a membership newsletter circulated by the local chapter asks.

Mrs. Jenkins, a cosmetologist who operates Mae's Beauty Shop in Bethel, said the Pitt County group would like to add 1,000 members during October. Membership fees are $4 and up.

Four Collisions In Three Dead City Are Reported Men Found

More than $2,800 property damage resulted from a series of four collisions investigated yesterday by Greenville Police. Officers reported heaviest damage resulted when a car driven by Diane Sumrell Leggett of Oakmont Square Apts. collided with brickwork at the entrance to the apartment complex, causing an estimated $600 damage to the Leggett car and $1,000 damage to the brick entrance.

That mishap occurred about 8:35 a.m., officers noted. A 4:05 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Dickinson and Line Avenues caused an estimated $25 damage to a truck driven by Charlie Glen Langley of Grimesland and $650 damage to a car driven by Anne Clemmons Langdale of 101 Greenwood Dr.

Cars driven by William Edward Ellington II of 1618 Longwood Dr. and Ruby Clark Forrest of Route 1, Vanceboro collided about 4 p.m. at the intersection of Charles and 14th Streets, police reported.

Damage from that mishap was set at $40 to the Ellington vehicle and $300 to the Forrest car.

A 4:20 p.m. mishap on Greenville Boulevard, 118 feet East of the Hooker Road intersection involved a truck driven by Carlton Hubert Mills of Route 3, Greenville and car operated by Shelia Mae Johnson of Route 1, Winterville.

Damage from that mishap was set at $200 to the Johnson car. No damage resulted to the Mills truck, investigators said.

No charges were reported in connection with either of the four collisions.

Kiwanis Club Officers For Year Are Installed

Dr. David B. Stevens was installed last night as the new president of the Greenville Kiwanis Club. Stevens, who is student attorney advisor, equal opportunity officer and a faculty member at ECU, was installed by Ira Norfolk, lieutenant governor for Division 7.

Other officers installed last night were: John McConney, vice-president; Dixie McGlohn, secretary-treasurer; and Don Clemens, Mayo Allen, Harry Hagerty and Charles Vincent, members of the board of directors.

Other board members are Buddy Cobb, Trenton Davis, David Reid and Jack Richardson.

According to Stevens, the Greenville Kiwanis Club is the oldest Kiwanis Club in Pitt County, having been established in 1921.

"We have been in continuous service to the Greenville community since then," said Stevens.

"The Greenville Kiwanis Club

sells peanuts jointly with the University City Kiwanis Club as a fund raising project for various community projects, such as the Salvation Army, Boys' Club, educational scholarships for two ECU students and other projects."

The immediate past president of the Greenville Kiwanis Club is Ed Yancey.

Leaf Quality Sees Decline Solicitation Permits Okayed

FARMVILLE — The quality of tobacco on yesterday's sales was not as good as previous sales days this week. Non-descript grades accounted for a large per cent of total sales.

Volume of leaf and smoking leaf grades was heavy, with Stabilization receipts about the same as on Tuesday.

The Farmville market sold 689,694 pounds for $847,084 for an average of $122.82 per 100 pounds.

To date the market has sold 24,755,875 pounds for $38,617,462 for a season average of $115.60 per 100 pounds. This compares to $99.45 per 100 pounds a year ago.

All tobacco markets will be closed on Monday in observance of Columbus Day.

The city manager's office has approved the applications of two local organizations for solicitation permits.

City Manager Jim Caldwell announced that approval has been given to a request by the East Carolina University Campus Chaplains for permission to conduct a sidewalk solicitation on Oct. 19 to raise funds for Church World Service for Hungry for World.

Caldwell said that a request of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary 7032 for permission to conduct the Buddy Poppy sidewalk sale on Oct. 29 and 30 was also approved.

Mid-East Director Is Resigning

WASHINGTON, N. C. — Ed Jones, Executive director of the Mid-East Commission since 1972, submitted his resignation at a meeting of the commission's board Tuesday night. The resignation becomes effective December 1. Jones gave no reason for his resignation other than to say "I've gotten to the point where I need a little more time at home."

The Mid-East Commission serves as a planning body and clearing house for a wide range of federal and state funded projects for state planning region Q — a five-county area including Pitt, Beaufort, Martin, Bertie and Hertford Counties.

As executive director, Jones heads a 19-member staff of planners and local government consultants that assist local governments within the area with long-range planning problems, grant applications, and other areas.

Mid-East Commission activities are controlled by a board composed primarily of local government officials from the five counties and the municipalities within them who offer financial support for the agency.

Rule Trooper 'Justified'

WILLIAMSTON, N.C. (AP) — Last month's fatal shooting of a 62-year old man by a state Highway Patrolman has been ruled justifiable by Dist. Atty. William C. Griffin Jr.

"There is not one shred of evidence—nothing—in any way lead you to conclude other than it was justifiable," Griffin said Wednesday.

The Sept. 18 shooting of Christopher Columbus Willis, 62, by R.W. Dale, a seven-year patrol veteran, was investigated by the State Bureau of Investigation which turned over its report to Griffin.

Dale stopped Willis because the victim's pickup truck was travelling erratically on U.S. 264 near Engelhard. The patrol said Willis was shot three times when he approached Dale with a 12-inch hunting knife and failed to stop on orders.

"What happened was (Dale) shot him one time and the man kept right on coming and he shot him two more times in succession," Griffin said. Dale backed up twice but Willis continued to advance and was about four feet away when the shots were fired, Griffin said.

Willis had been convicted of second degree murder in Hyde County in 1962 and spent 10 years in mental institutions. A Hyde County authority also said Willis was a suspect in the slaying of a woman in August.

Five Counts Of False Receipts

Larry Feemster, 38, of 236 Fairview Way, charged by police with five counts of issuing receipts for which no goods were received in connection with a fraud case involving payments for corn at the Fred Webb Inc. grain elevator on North Greene St. has been charged with three counts of fraud and two counts of attempted fraud, Chief Glenn Cannon reported this morning.

The chief said Feemster was arrested on the fraud counts following further investigation into the case. Feemster, a mill foreman, allegedly issued receipts for which no grain was received on five different occasions. Others took the receipts to the grain elevator office where checks were issued for the amount of corn allegedly delivered to the grain firm.

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
A number of local businesses are facing problems because of a strike by United Parcel Service drivers which began September 15.

Percy Pair of Pair Electronics said today, "I think the government ought to take over and make them go back to work. It's created quite a few problems for us... a tie-up in merchandise." Pair said his electronics wholesale firm had given UPS "just about 99 per cent of our business, because of their efficiency. UPS had better rates and better service..." than the U.S. Postal Service's parcel post.

He noted that with UPS on strike, it's been difficult to "get merchandise in or out."

In the past, Pair said, "we'd get one or two packages a day from parcel post. Now it's 15 or so..."

Al Tetterton of Tetterton's Jewelers said his firm receives "75 or 80 per cent" of its merchandise through UPS. He said the strike has "really fouled up" incoming shipments.

Greenville Banks said "I wish I really knew at this point... what effect the UPS strike has had on Belk-Tyler Co. here. "We don't really have any idea," Banks noted, because "invoices come packed in the boxes. We don't know where the merchandise is."

He said, however, that the strike has "definitely slowed down deliveries in sports wear and ready-to-wear items.

Spokesmen for H. L. Hodges Co. said the strike by UPS has affected them, too.

Freddie Stokes said the Hodges firm is "getting invoices for many items that have been shipped," but that the items are tied up between there and here, "because of the strike."

"Parcel post is not as quick," he explained. Postmaster Lloyd Mills said the UPS strike has had its effect on the U.S. Postal Service, too.

"We no longer run a fiscal count on parcels," Mills explained, but the parcel post volume "has increased by at least 50 per cent" since UPS drivers walked out.

"It's causing additional time and vehicle costs to deliver" the increase in the number of packages, Mills said, but "we are remaining current. We don't have any backlog of parcels..." to deliver.

Three Opening Hurlers Known; Sparky Keeping Choice Secret

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Catfish Hunter, Larry Gura, Steve Carlton and the "Masked Marvel" will be the starting pitchers for Saturday's baseball playoff opener.

The playoff-tested Hunter has been officially tapped to pitch for the New York Yankees and a revengeful Gura has been chosen to go for the Kansas City Royals in the first game of the American League series.

The National League managers, however, are still playing "I've Got A Secret."

Manager Danny Ozark of the Philadelphia Phillies indicates that Carlton will be the Phillies' choice, although he has made no official announcement yet. Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson is pulling out all the psychological stops. He hasn't named anyone yet — and won't until Friday, 24 hours before the NL playoff game in Philadelphia.

"I know right now who it'll be, but I'm not saying," says a mysterious Anderson.

New York's Billy Martin was the first of the four managers to reveal his playoff plans when earlier this week, he selected Hunter, 17-15, and Ed Figueroa, 19-10, as the pitchers for the first two AL games in Kansas City. Either Dock Ellis, 17-8, or Ken Holtzman, 14-11, will pitch in Game No. 3 for the Yankees when the playoffs shift to New York next Tuesday.

Martin, in fact, has been the most talkative of the managers during the week prior to playoff time. On Wednesday, the verbose Martin revealed that Hunter has had a sore arm this year, perhaps explaining his sub-par season. Hunter, who led the Oakland A's to three world championships in the early 1970s, failed to make the 20-victory circle for the first time in six years.

"We decided not to say anything about it during the season," Martin told reporters about Hunter's tortured arm.

"I think we said he had something wrong with his leg. But it was not a hamstring as we led you to believe. He had tendonitis in his right arm."

Hunter was given a shot for the pain and pitched admirably in his final three starts at the end of the season, allowing only five runs in 21 innings. On Wednesday he hurled two innings of an intra-squad game without discomfort.

Hunter admits that his arm did give him trouble during the season. "I didn't get on top of the ball," said the right-hander. "I was short-arming the ball and I couldn't make it stay down."

Gura, a Yankee castoff with bitter feelings toward Martin, is looking forward to pitching against his former team. Gura fashioned a 4-0 record after coming to the Royals in May in a trade for catcher Fran Healy.

"I was hoping against hope I would get to start Saturday," said the left-hander. "Martin told me in spring training he would use me for long relief and spot starting. But he never did. He never even let me warm up in the bullpen. This will be the biggest, most emotional game of my life. I don't have anything against the Yankee organization. But I do against Billy Martin."

Pressure Off Wolfpack Now

By The Associated Press
North Carolina State has gone without a victory in three straight home football games this season. And seventh-ranked Maryland is an 11-point favorite to keep that State string going when the teams meet in Carter Stadium in Raleigh on Saturday.

The N.C. State Wolfpack played a 31-31 tie with Michigan State two weeks ago to bring its home record to 0-2-1. And last week the Wolfpack finally won its first game of the season, 24-21 at Indiana. State had been the favorite, but quarterback Johnny Evans says, "The Indiana game takes a lot of pressure off us. A lot of things had been building up. Now, instead of questioning ourselves, we now we can think solely about winning from now on."

Until this year, no N.C. State team had gone without a victory in three straight home games since 1968-1969.

Maryland has won all its four games this season.

In other games for Atlantic Coast Conference teams this Saturday, Wake Forest will be home to Clemson as the Deacons try to rebound from a 31-0 defeat at first-ranked Michigan. Deacon coach Chuck Mills says that several of his players suffered bumps and bruises at Ann Arbor, but is relieved that there were no serious injuries.

Clemson coach Red Parker was unhappy about the costly penalties in the 21-19 loss to Tennessee.

"I feel like it takes a special kind of class for our players to come back from the adversity we faced. I'm awfully disappointed with the outcome," he said.

Parker said he thinks the Wake Forest defenders are better than Georgia Tech's. Clemson salvaged a 24-24 tie with Tech two weeks ago, and will be looking for its first ACC victory against Wake Forest.

North Carolina, which lost 24-3 to Missouri last week after winning its first four games, has an open date before meeting N.C. State the following Saturday.

Duke, which gave second-ranked Pitt a game before losing 44-31, is a touchdown underdog at Miami of Florida Saturday night. And Virginia is a three-touchdown underdog at South Carolina that night.

Buc Cage Staff Headed For Cuba

The East Carolina University basketball staff left this morning for a four-day visit to Guantanamo Naval Base in Cuba to conduct basketball clinics.

The four members of the Pirate staff will hold a series of clinics for service personnel and their dependents in the base area.

Coach Dave Patton, assistant coach Butch Estes, and graduate assistants Dan Kenney and Billy Lee left this morning from Norfolk Naval Air Station for "Gitmo." They are slated to hold clinics tonight and on Friday on the base. Following further clinics on Saturday morning, they will be flown to a carrier operating in the Caribbean for clinics on board that ship. They will return to Guantanamo for further clinics on Sunday night and Monday, and return to Norfolk early Tuesday morning.

The Pirate staff was invited to make the trip to Guantanamo after it offered to put on a clinic at Camp Lejeune. Naval authorities forwarded their request from Camp Lejeune to Washington, where officials suggested the Guantanamo trip as an alternate to Camp Lejeune.

Patton and his staff open drills for the 1976-77 season on Friday, October 15, three days after their return.

May Tournament Set Next Week

The Eighth Annual Reynolds May Four Ball Invitational Tournament will be held on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 15-17.

This year, for the first time, the tournament will be over 54 holes. In the past, it has covered 36 holes. The event is a best ball two-man team play event. Handicaps will not be used except for pairing the first round.

The first 36 hole score will establish flights for Sunday's round, but scores from all three rounds will be used to determine flight winners. Prizes will be awarded to the first four teams in each flight.

Tea off times will begin at 9 a.m. Friday. A special ladies event will be held Saturday after the men's tee times have been completed. A cocktail party is planned following Friday's play, with a dinner-dance on Saturday. An awards party will be held following Sunday's play.

Lytton Perritt and Carl Bell of New Bern are the defending champions in the tournament. Brook Valley assistant professional Dave Martin said the field for the 64 team event is filled.

A Mixed Spectacular was held Sunday at the club. The team of Lee Alcorn, Mary McPherson, Dick Worsley and Evelyn Ward took first, followed by the team of Jim Marlowe, Jane Sauve, Joe Dudley, and Carol McFarlane. Third place went to Perk Ashby, Sandra Smith, Chip Pennington and Nancy Baker.

All three teams tied with 65s, and it was settled by matching cards. Alcorn's team carded an eagle on two to win, while Marlowe's had a birdie to Ashby's par. Eleven teams participated.

Jill Carney had her best round, a 43-44-83. Bud Dail got his first eagle on the 17th hole, using a driver, three-wood and wedge.

Dr. Al Woodworth shot a 38 on the front for his best nine-hole score. Mike Kachmer Jr. show a 41-37-78 for his best round from the blue tees.

Mary McPherson had her best round while playing in the Pitt County Ladies League at the Greenville Golf and Country Club, with a 47-50-97. Wally Howard had his best round ever at Brook Valley with a 71.

Namath Angry Over Reports He Is Not Quarterback He Once Was Pearson Takes Seventh Straight Pole Position At Charlotte Track

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP) — "Stupid. Stupid. The stupidest thing I ever heard."

Joe Namath, the New York Jets' million-dollar quarterback, reacted testily to the suggestion that his passing skills have become so eroded that besides being unable to scramble he no longer takes the step into the pocket before delivering a pass.

"I've been reading that stuff. It's ridiculous. How are you going to step if there is no place to step?" Namath said.

With the Jets 0-4 for the season and facing O.J. Simpson and the Buffalo Bills in New York's home opener Sunday at Shea Stadium, both Namath and rookie coach Lou Holtz are having to weather an increasing barrage of criticism.

"When is Holtz going to bench Namath?" was one of the most asked questions after the Jets lost their fourth straight game last Sunday, bowing to the San Francisco 49ers 17-6. It was a game in which Namath was sacked five times and was thwarted in attempts to initiate a touchdown for the third game.

Has Broadway Joe, 33, with fragile knees and carrying the pain of a pulled hamstring muscle, lost his old magic?

Joe doesn't think so, but the very mention of it almost sends him up the wall.

"I don't want to talk about it," he snapped while dressing for a workout Wednesday at the Jets' Hofstra College training complex.

"If you want to know how I am playing, look at the films. That's all I ask. Am I missing any reads? Am I doing anything differently than I did last year or the year before?"

"It's the media. I am sick and tired of it."

Namath stuck a wad of tobacco in his lower lip. He thumbed through a handful of mail. He kidded with his quarterback understudy, Richard Todd, occupying the adjacent stall, and swapped quips with other teammates.

But Broadway Joe doesn't see any humor in a line of questioning that casts a cloud on his ability to direct a pro football team.

"I feel fine," he replies tartly to questions of his health. "As good as I have in the last two or three years."

Does he think that advancing age and patched-up knees are tarnishing his ability as a front-line quarterback?

"I think can throw the ball as well as ever," he said. "As for my knees, they aren't responsible for whatever immobility I have. The real reason is this torn hamstring muscle — I have had it for three years."

Namath refused to blame poor protection for his lackluster performance to date — 50 completions in 92 attempts for 484 yards — but not so Coach Holtz.

"It's difficult for a quarterback to throw out of a well or from a supine position," the coach said, adding that Namath's protection has broken down badly.

Playing the last year of a two-year, $900,000 contract with an option coming up in 1977, Namath declined to speculate on his future.

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — "All I've heard since they started talking about the National 500 was 'Stop David Pearson,'" the graying, 41-year-old grandfather from Spartanburg, S.C., said after winning his seventh consecutive pole position at the Charlotte Motor Speedway.

Pearson, who has won nine stock car races in 18 starts this year, put his Mercury on the inside starting spot Wednesday for Sunday's $216,555, 500-mile race. His two-lap qualifying speed of 161.223 miles per hour earned him $10,500, the second biggest pole prize in Grand National history.

It boosted his pole winnings for the last three races here to $31,900. Pearson won the sport's richest such prize, $11,000, in trials for the World 600 in May, and $10,400 in qualifying for last year's National 500.

He said the 'Stop Pearson' movement bothered him. "I usually don't get nervous before qualifying. I really wanted to win the pole here. I wasn't sure how fast Cale Yarborough was running. Someone told me he ran better than 160 yesterday. I didn't know if he was holding back or not. That's the thing you have to worry about, someone holding back."

Buddy Baker put his Ford beside Pearson on the front row with the second best speed of 159.915 m.p.h. When Pearson's speed was announced, Baker dropped his head and said, "Deep down I knew he was faster. I was just hoping. He's really got his stuff together."

Richard Petty, whose Dodge was third quickest at 159.726 m.p.h., said, "That was good for me. We weren't running for the pole, we never do. It takes too much time and preparation. We were thinking about Sunday's race." Petty is the National 500 defending champion.

Yarborough, whose Chevrolet was clocked at 159.297, qualified fourth.

Bobby Allison's Mercury was fifth at 158.898.

Forty cars will start. Among drivers who got in on the first day were: Darrell Waltrip, 7th, Chevrolet, 158.493 m.p.h.; Dave Marcis, 8th, Dodge, 157.141; Gordon Johncock, 9th, Dodge, 157.109; A.J. Foyt, 11th, Chevrolet, 156.182; Johnny Rutherford, 18th, Chevrolet, 154.985; and Neil Bonnett, 20th, Chevrolet, 154.440.

Nineteen drivers failed to qualify, including Janet Guthrie, Buck Baker, James Hylton and Coo Cool Marlin.

The National 500 is one of three long-distance events scheduled at the track this weekend. The so-called "World Series of Stock Car Racing" begins Friday at 4 p.m. with the inaugural $12,500 International 200 for IMSA radial sedans. The $125,000 World Service Life 300 for late model sportsman cars begins at 1 p.m. Saturday.

Both Teams Are Chasing Wins

By The Associated Press
As they prepare their teams for Saturday's meeting in the Tobacco Festival football game in Richmond, there's one thing Coaches Bob Thalman of Virginia Military's Keydets and Jimmy Sharpe of Virginia Tech's Gobblers agree on.

"Coach Sharpe (on his television show) that I'll have our team all jacked up and foaming at the mouth to beat Tech," said Thalman.

"He's right."

Chances are Sharpe will have the Gobblers foaming at the mouth to beat VMI, too, for Tech is coming off a surprising 27-15 defeat last Saturday at the hands of William and Mary's Indians.

While that was going on, the Keydets were winning for the first time in four starts, scoring 17 points in the final quarter for a 17-3 upset over Furman's Paladins.

"We picked up the pieces when they were scattered all over the place," said Thalman of the Keydets, who had lost three in a row and were down 3-0 going into the final period against Furman.

"Tech is a great rivalry. We always look forward to the game. This year we are especially pleased that it is in Richmond, because we have been wanting to go back there and redeem ourselves," Thalman says.

He was referring to VMI's third defeat, in which the Keydets were handed a 43-0 licking by Richmond's Spiders.

The defeat by William and Mary dropped Tech to 2-2, but Sharpe said, "We've been here before. I think we'll bounce back."

Both teams have had problems on offense most of the season.

VMI appeared to have found a cure against Furman when tailback Andre Gibson ran for two touchdowns in the final period and finished with 120 yards on nine carries.

Speedy tailback Roscoe Coles was just about Tech's entire offense against William and Mary as he ran 15 times for 115 yards, the ninth time he's been over the 100-yard mark in his career. He thus tied a Tech record set by Phil Rogers in 1973-75.

Sharpe has said he's looking for the intangible of "making something happen."

The ball hasn't always bounced Tech's way so far, but Sharpe noted that "you make the ball bounce."

Wilson In Net Win

Wilson came away with a 5-2 victory over the Greenville Recreation Department's Junior High School girl's tennis team yesterday.

It was the opening match of the year for the Greenville team, and the second for Wilson.

Wilson took all five of the singles events, but Greenville captured the two doubles.

Greenville travels to Kinston next Wednesday.

Summary:

Katherine Rand (W) defeated Ruth Huber, 6-0.
Sue Morris (W) defeated Angela Slater, 6-4.
Katherine Vincent (WW) defeated Jan Stoughton, 8-3.
Montine Pihai (W) defeated Kim Waller, 6-4.
Paige Whitley (W) defeated Susan Peele, 6-1.
Huber-Kerrie Logue (G) defeated Kim Adkins-Rachel Grode, 6-5.
Chris Galva-Vita Anthony (G) defeated Wendy Cox-Cindy Simms, 6-5.

Bubas To Head New Conference

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Vic Bubas, basketball star at North Carolina State in the late 1940s and early '50s, has been named the recently formed Sun Belt Conference's first commissioner.

The basketball-conscious conference claims as members this year's National Invitational Tournament runnerup University of North Carolina at Charlotte, Jacksonville, South Florida, New Orleans, South Alabama and Georgia State.

At Duke University where he coached for 10 years, Bubas' teams won four Atlantic Coast Conference championships. He guided Duke to the runnerup spot behind UCLA in the NCAA national tournament of 1964, and to third place in 1963 and 1969.

His appointment to head the Sun Belt Conference was announced at a news conference in Charlotte Wednesday night.

Bubas, 49, quit as Duke head coach in 1969. He remained on the campus, however, as director of public relations until the following year, when he became assistant to the president.

In 1974, he was named vice president for university community relations, a post he relinquished to take the Sun Belt position.

Also present for Wednesday night's announcement were South Florida Athletic Director

Thomas Turner, Sun Belt Search Committee chairman, and coaches Lee Rose of UNCC and Chip Conner of South Florida, both obviously pleased at the choice.

"In the world of athletics, the name Bubas is a household word," said Turner.

"But I don't want to make a big deal out of Vic Bubas being commissioner," said Bubas himself. "The league has fine institutions and will go on without Vic Bubas."

"I'm impressed with people I've met and where the league is going."

Bubas said he "loved" his duties at Duke but gave several reasons for leaving. "It's a challenge — something new and exciting."

He added, "I love the South. I'm from Gary, Ind., but my wife and I are transplanted Southerners and you can't get rid of us anymore. We want to stay here, and this is a good chance."

Bubas said he does not know where the Sun Belt office will be established, but he will open temporary headquarters in Durham and begin work this weekend at a conference meeting.

"We'll decide then what needs to be done first," he said. "I know I want to explore what other institutions might be wanted to join. We've got six now and will possibly go to eight in the future."

"I want to get on with the planning on the conference tournament we'll have at the end of the season. Charlotte is a logical place for the tournament, at least at this time."

Cowboys Get Win

The Cowboys opened their flag football season yesterday by handling the Eagles their second straight defeat, 26-18.

The Cowboys took the lead in the first period with a 61-yard run by Roderick Harrell. Harrell also took in the PAT for a 7-0 lead. He scored again in the second period on a 27-yard run to up it to 13-0.

The Eagles came up with one score in the second frame as Tony Clemmons scored from seven yards out.

In the third period, Edward Frazier scored on a 13-yard run for the Cowboys, with Harrell scoring the PAT. Clemmons got another Eagle score, on a three-yard run.

In the final period, Harrell scored on a 60-yard run, with Clemmons matching it for the Eagles, on a 50-yarder.

Eric Woodworth and Jeff Austin led the Cowboy defense, while Kenny Kirkland and Clemmons led the Eagles.

The winter headquarters for the Ringling Bros. Barnum and Bailey Circus is located in Venice, Florida.

British physician Edward Jenner introduced the first smallpox vaccine in 1798.

Los Angeles Dodger coach Tom LaSorda struck out 25 Amsterdam, N.Y., batters pitching a 15-inning game for Schenectady, N.Y., in 1946 in the Canadian-American League.

San Francisco's Victorians: 19th Century Foam

By ALICE Z. CUNEO
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Architecture, the psychologist Jung said, is the foam society leaves behind when the wave of life ebbs.

For San Francisco, the foam of the 19th century is "gingerbread" redwood houses, now sporting new color schemes of purple, brown and blue in various combinations and price tags up as much as $100,000 in ten years.

The Victorians, named for a Queen Victoria the city never had, were built in the mid-1800s first as simple white or gray wooden box-like homes, similar to a 5-year-old's drawing of a house.

Over the years they were decked out with elaborate ornamentation until today they have evolved into what one commentator said produces "the effect of a nightmare about to explode."

The first Victorians in Northern California were built from pattern books, some entitled "Cheap Dwellings," and reflected the prejudice of eastern architects for the pitched roof to prevent winter snow buildup and an open porch for muggy summer afternoons. San Francisco, however, has almost no snowfall and boasts cool, crisp temperatures year-round.

These first Victorians were painted dark gray at the base, to imitate a granite foundation, and lighter gray at the top to imitate stone. Only the window sashes were painted a dark color.

More and more ornaments were heaped on the squared-off box design of the early homes.

From street level, a false front which extends a few feet above the actual roof gives the impression of a bigger home. From the side, the house hints of a Hollywood western movie set.

During the hippie era of the 1960s, one commune painted every piece of wood on its Haight-Asbury Victorian a different color.

"There was a new appreciation of the sensuousity of color and as people tripped out of their brains, they painted these buildings," said Randolph Delehanty, who calls himself an urban and architectural historian and works for the Foundation for San Francisco's Architectural Heritage, a preservation group.

The trend caught on, and now many Victorians are sporting two or more combinations of plum, or blue, or maroon, to articulate carved wood design and to produce "some of the owner's personality right out there on the street."

"To some extent San Francisco is becoming Disneylandized" by the overuse of color, he said. "It's like the graffiti in the New York subways, the color assaults you. You don't need to emphasize all the gingerbread."

The old paint in shades and tones of white produced a harmonious block, while the elaborate combinations of colors as neighbors may not have a flattering effect.

"Respect thy neighbors," Delehanty warns.

To say the price of Victorians has soared is an understatement, according to realtor Tom Vugovich.

In established Victorian areas such as Pacific Heights he estimates the price of a Victorian has gone up 15 percent a year.

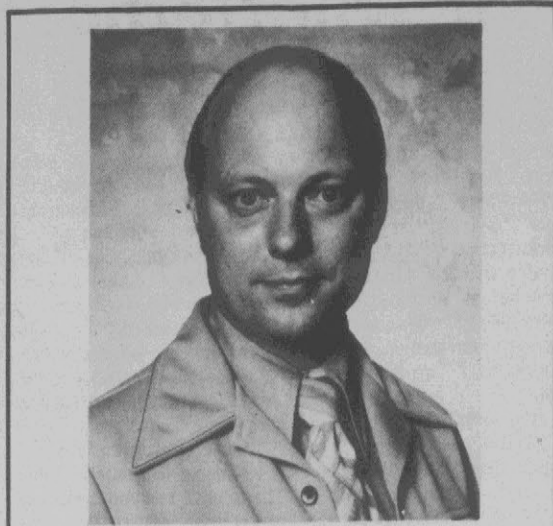

In developing Victorian areas, such as parts of the Haight-Asbury, a home sold nine years ago for $27,000 is now up for sale at $120,000.

"There's lots of things people can do with a Victorian when they buy one," the realtor said. "They can remodel, making the place modern, restore the home to its original state, renovate by cleaning it up and using the original parts, or 're-muddle' it — goof it up with aluminum windows and removal of original embellishments."

The builders of the Victorians used native redwood, so malleable it could be carved like furniture. To some extent, the redwood resists weathering and bugs. The only problem to this day is the danger of the wood drying out and becoming a fire hazard.

Another virtue of the redwood Victorian is its "balloon" frame, where 2-by-4's are nailed together and the rest of the house is nailed to the frame, making it easily movable, important when urban renewal forced the relocation of several historic homes.

In the 1850s, the "Italianate" Victorian developed, fitting its long, narrow and rectangular lot shape and innovating sliding doors on the first floor, a way to open up the first floor for

Jack Jensen earns top Nutrena honor

For outstanding service to farmers and feed dealers in this area, we are proud to recognize Jack Jensen, Greenville. Jensen was named to the Nutrena President's Club at the recent Nutrena sales convention in Chicago. Mrs. Jensen (Dorothy) was a special guest for the occasion.

Just 15 President's Club members are named annually, from a total of over 200 Nutrena sales representatives. It is the highest honor awarded to its representatives by the Nutrena Feed Division of Cargill.

Jensen and other 1976 President's Club members will attend a four-day business council with company management in October.

Driving In Turkey Has Free-For-All Qualities

By EMEL ANIL
ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — An average of 6,000 persons die on Turkish roads every year. Traffic accident and death rates here are among the highest in the world and are on the rise.

Turkey, with its population of 40 million, claims 6 per cent of the world's traffic fatalities. Authorities estimate that traffic deaths will reach an unprecedented 10,000 in 1976.

In the first seven months of this year, 4,526 persons were killed in traffic accidents and thousands injured. On the first three days of August, 50 lives were lost — two of them traffic policemen on motorcycles.

Many causes are cited for the mess which is Turkish traffic. According to Premier Suleyman Demirel, the inadequacy of roads is an important factor. He has pointed out that the main thoroughfare connecting Turkey's largest cities, Ankara and Istanbul, was built to accommodate daily traffic of 10,000 vehicles, but it now carries 40,000.

Highway improvement has not caught up with a significant boost in auto registration. The number of cars has risen from 153,000 to 393,000 in the last four years and the number of other motor vehicles has nearly doubled.

Interior Ministry statistics list driver negligence as the cause of 70 per cent of all accidents.

Most Turks are daredevil drivers with little respect for traffic regulations. Red lights are not necessarily considered stop signals. If the other side seems clear, few Turkish drivers can resist the temptation to speed through a red light. At night, many vehicles do not bother to dim their bright lights and blind approaching cars. Trucks park on highways without any warning lights.

Bus and truck drivers are overworked and have been known to fall asleep at the wheel. In the cities, jay-walking is virtually a national sport.

Writings painted on to the back windows of taxis and buses say more about the Turkish philosophy of driving than the official book of traffic rules. Mostly in rhyme, they read: "This is fate, my friend," or "Do not come near you will be smashed, do not attempt to pass you shall regret, or 'If you are a lover, play the guitar; if you are a driver step on the gas pedal.'"

Turkish traffic acquired a semblance of order when the military took over for a few months in 1971, during a period of martial law. Thousands of speeding drivers and jay-walkers were fined. But troops are back in their barracks now, having left the roads to civilian traffic police who stand and watch as every rule in the book is flouted.

A new traffic bill increasing fines and bringing prison terms for traffic violations has been introduced in the Parliament. But the legislature has recessed without tackling it this year.

Inflation has rendered fines — $2 for passing through a red light — meaningless. According to the new bill, fines are to be upped as much as $60 or $70.

Interior Minister Oguzhan Asilturk has promised to double the 5,000-man traffic police force. But it is estimated that it will take at least a year before the passage of the new bill and its enforcement can be realized.

In the meantime, Turkish roads are likely to remain a free-for-all, with towing trucks busy and first aid stations overcrowded.

Backpackers Find Wilderness Losing Its Solitude

By PETER H. KING
Associated Press Writer
POINT REYES NATIONAL SEASHORE, Calif. (AP) — Moss-covered Douglas firs, leafy ferns and California buckeye grass form a gantlet of green, defining the trail of rich brown dirt.
Turkey vultures, warblers and woodpeckers soar overhead. The gurgling Santa Maria creek is heard but not seen.

It's a wet and dreary weekday in this bastion of nature on the coast north of San Francisco. But the dismal weather has failed to dampen an increasingly prominent feature of the wilderness scenery — backpackers.
In the space of two hours, 11

backpackers troop by a hiker who had hoped for something like solitude — shuffling examples of a leisure-time pursuit that has attracted thousands, spawned a million-dollar industry and posed a threat to the very countryside that lured it.
"Not only the terrain, but the wilderness experience is being eroded," the National Park Service states in a leaflet distributed to hikers at Wyoming's Grand Teton National Park. "Soon conditions may be little different from those we wanted to leave behind at the roadhead."

From the Pemigewasset Wilderness in New Hampshire to Point Reyes here, a new breed of backpackers is giving the wilderness a workout:
—In 1966, Point Reyes was visited by only 1,505 backpackers, park records show. By 1973, the number had risen to 32 thousand.
—Use of the John Muir Wilderness in California more than doubled between 1965 and 1975, according to U.S. Forest Service figures.
—The number of backpackers using Utah's Wasatch mountain range increases five to six percent each year, a Forest Service recreation planner estimates.
—A single trail in the Pemigewasset Wilderness was hiked by more than 40,000 persons in one year, forcing the Forest Service to place restrictions on camping and campfire use.
—At some points on the Appalachian Trail, a 2,000-mile scenic corridor which cuts through Eastern mountains from Georgia to Maine, hikers pass every 20 seconds.
"People are loving the trail to death," laments an official.
Backpacking, sport of the hardy and curse of the tenderfoot, has blossomed into a $200-million-a-year business. As a result, purists now complain about the cascade of footfalls and the loss of the days when the challenge of backpacking, as one veteran hiker put it, was to "leave the wilderness just as you popped your last raisin into your mouth."

"People have more time," says Tommy Winnett, author of "Backpacking for Fun," one of 33 works published by his Wilderness Press. "New highways have made wilderness areas much nearer in driving time. Lightweight, durable backpacking equipment is widely available, and dehydrated and freeze-dried foods have been developed.
"But the main reason is that city life has begun to drive us crazy ...," concludes the 55-year-old Winnett, who started backpacking as a Boy Scout. "The worst thing about a backpacking trip for me is the car noise I have to endure to get to the mountains."
Gene Rose, a veteran backpacker from Fresno, Calif., attributes a large measure of the sport's popularity to the environmental movement.
"We're having some fairly serious impacts," says Ned Therrien, information officer for the White Mountain National Forest in New Hampshire. "There's some serious trail erosion, loss of vegetation and problems with the disposal of human waste."
Many trails have strict quotas placed on their use. Here at Point Reyes, for example, there's a two-month waiting list of people who want to make weekend reservations for one of the park's tightly controlled backpacking campsites.

At Yosemite National Park in California, backcountry use has tripled in the past 10 years while total park use has increased by just 15 percent, according to a report by Dr. Jan van Wagendonk, National Park Service researcher.
Wagendonk notes that park managers, "faced with the problem of a deteriorating wilderness resource and experience," decided in 1972 to initiate a program of backcountry management that included use limits.
The efforts to control the flow of humans into the forests is taking several forms. Since 1971, for example, the U.S. Forest Service has required permits for visitors to designated wilderness areas.
Fires no longer are permitted in most wilderness regions because the scars they leave heal slowly and cause erosion damage.
Pets, too, are banned, and shortcutting from trails is frowned on by rangers because of the erosion would-be trailblazers leave behind.
But despite the rules and the wave of backpackers, veteran mountaineers agree it is still possible to find solitude in the forest.
"There's a rule among those who write about the mountains, not to write about the already popular trails but to write about unknown trails instead," says Gene Rose, a Fresno journalist. "That way maybe the crowds will be more evenly dispersed."

Charlie Schwartz, a backpacking devotee from Salt Lake City, won't share his secrets. "If I told you, they wouldn't be uncrowded any more," he said.

Mangum Scholarship Is Established At ECU

East Carolina University has been selected by The American Arthritis Association, Inc. for the establishment of the Bessie Ruck Mangum Scholarship, named in honor of the late Mrs. Charles V. Mangum of Rocky Mount, N.C.
In announcing the scholarship establishment, Dr. Edwin W. Monroe, Vice Chancellor for Health Affairs, stated it will be awarded annually to a worthy student enrolled in the East Carolina University School of Medicine when the school begins admitting students. In the interim it is available to a student in the ECU School of Nursing.
Clifton P. Jones of Chapel Hill, President of The American Arthritis Association stated:

"The Association is privileged to honor a great lady and humanitarian with the establishment of the Bessie Ruck Mangum Scholarship at East Carolina University. In this way we can perpetuate her memory and her work."
Mrs. Mangum and her late husband owned and operated the Rocky Mount Book Store for many years. Mrs. Mangum was also a certified tax consultant and operated her own business after the death of her husband. She held many positions in the Order of the Eastern Star including Grand Matron and Grand Secretary of the Grand Chapter of North Carolina. In 1966, due to severe arthritis, Mrs. Mangum resigned as Grand Secretary and was immediately elected Grand Secretary Emeritus of the Grand Chapter of North Carolina. Her interest and support for all efforts in the fight against arthritis continued until her death in 1969.

Mrs. Mangum was born at Ridgway, Pa. on April 24, 1897; the only child of George and Lula Searfass Ruck, and moved with her parents to Rocky Mount, N.C., in 1907. She was a graduate of Rocky Mount High School, attended Woman's College (now UNC-G) in Greensboro, and received a BS Degree from Benjamin Franklin University in Washington, D.C.

More Gas Station Jobs Go To Women

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Next time you drive in and say "fill'er up" there's a good chance the pump jockey will be a woman.
WIGS — Women in Gas Stations — are showing up in every city, town and hamlet in the country, says an official of a company that operates some 1,500 gas stations in mid-America.
In 1975 almost 10 percent of station employees in the country were female, according to Richard J. Boushka, president of Vickers Energy Corp., a subholding company of Esmark, Inc.
"There were approximately 70,000 women pumping gas, changing oil and tires, checking batteries and cleaning windshields — in addition to giving information on the next entrance to the interstate highway," said Boushka.
In 1970, there were 51,000 employed — 7 percent of the total station attendants — and Boushka predicted that by 1980, 14.5 percent of all filling station employees will be women.
"Station owners report their female employees are competent and well respected. Some, the more proficient ones, service racing cars at various tracks," he said.
Why are young women turning to these jobs — work that has traditionally been a man's bailiwick?

One WIGS remarked that she took up her job to insure her own car's being properly serviced and cared for.
"And many of them are mechanically inclined and feel they can repair a car as well as any male," Boushka added. "They have either developed a knack for maintenance of an automobile from fathers, brothers or boyfriends, or have studied in vocational schools."
The spirit of adventure is another reason given for girls in the 18-to-22-year range — typical station staffers' age — applying for jobs. Another is the relaxed, informal atmosphere of a gasoline station, which offers an opportunity to chat casually with customers from all over the country.
The largest number of WIGS are to be found in resort areas, or in sunny climates, according to Boushka. Arizona, California, Florida and the East Coast states attract the majority, but current reports indicate that the job of pumping gas is becoming increasingly popular in small towns in the Midwest and South as well.

Research Finds Stress With 55 MPH Limit

By RON HUTCHERSON
SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Drivers in late model cars without speedometers to nag them about speeding are most comfortable traveling about 70 miles an hour on the highway, according to student safety researchers.
The conclusion was reached in a research project carried out by students at Texas A & M University.
"The experiment clearly demonstrates that the average comfortable speed is well above the existing national speed limit of 55 miles per hour," said Dr. Ronald S. Morris of Texas A & M, when he presented a paper on the experiment at a meeting here of the SAFE Association, an organization of safety equipment researchers, manufacturers and users.
"The analysis of our data resulted in an overall mean comfortable speed of 69.94 miles per hour with a standard deviation of 4.25 miles per hour. From this it is reasonable to conclude that the probability that the entire population's comfortable speed is 55 miles per hour is essentially zero."
Morris, also secretary of the association, said 18 volunteer students drove both ways over an isolated segment of Interstate 30 west of Texarkana, Tex., during daylight hours when weather was dry and sunny.
The students used a 1970 Datsun 240Z, a 1973 Ford Torino station wagon and a 1973 GMC Sports Van selected to represent the range of commercially available passenger vehicles.
In each vehicle, the speedometer was masked. Road speeds were logged with a special speed recorder placed in the rear seats and camouflaged so drivers did not know speed was being measured.

Each was instructed to "find a speed which is comfortable to you and maintain it," Morris said. As to purpose, the student volunteers were told only that the experiment was "intended to measure various human factors associated with driving."
Morris said he and graduate student Charles H. Berry Jr. theorized, in setting up the experiment that any driver desiring "to remain legal" when the gap between comfortable speed and legal speed is wide would be "continually required to adjust his vehicle speed by throttle changes" and keep an eye on the speedometer.
"The net effect of this mismatch then will be increased control effort by the driver and consequently increased fatigue," he said. "Further, any relaxation of constant vigilance by the driver will result in a tendency to return to the comfortable speed."
The experiment showed differences in comfortable speeds for each vehicle with "mean" velocities of 66 miles an hour for the station wagon, 70 miles an hour for the sports car and 77 miles an hour for the van.
"The comfortable speed demonstrates that if the present speed limit of 55 miles per hour is to be continued, further research is needed in the areas of vehicle and roadway design to establish a more acceptable interface between inherent vehicle characteristics and legal speed limits," Morris concluded.

"If the difference between the comfortable speed and the legal speed is large, the driver is placed in a stressful and fatiguing situation. This additional stress can lead to exposure to greater accident hazard."
"Further, the constant throttle correction will result in poor engine performance and efficiency ...."
Nudity Stopped The Sneezing
IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Nudity may not be a cure for the common cold — but it can provide temporary relief from the sniffles.
At least, that's what officials at the University of Iowa deduced after a performance of the award-winning play, "Eques."
Much of the play was punctuated by the audience's hacking, sneezing and coughing that one official termed "rude, inconsiderate and unthinking."
But then Ellen Parker, who played the seductress, and Bill Barrett, who played a mentally disturbed stable boy, took off their clothes.
For eight minutes, there wasn't even a sniffle.

sponder must bid any four-card major he holds, we do not subscribe to it. Our choice would be a response of two clubs, a suit where we have values, and that might have gotten North-South to their impregnable five-diamond contract.

West led the top of his club sequence. Declarer played low from dummy. East contributed the two and declarer won the ace. Now he led a low heart from his hand, and the defense was at the crossroads.

A look at the full diagram makes it obvious that, to defeat the contract, West must rise with the ace of hearts and shift to spades. The defenders can then take six tricks. However, that assumes that declarer had bid a spade suit containing no top honor cards. From West's point of view, it is more reasonable to assume that South has something in the suit he bid. Since East's two of clubs makes it likely that declarer started with both the ace and king of clubs, it looks more promising to play partner for some stoppers in the red suits. In that event, it is correct to duck the ace of hearts—indeed, the only reason to grab the ace would be to shift to spades. West must hope that declarer needs some heart tricks for his contract, and that if he ducks twice when declarer leads hearts, East might score the jack of hearts, if he holds it.

There are many contracts which succeed which could have been defeated. This does not necessarily mean that a defender made a clear-cut error. Consider this hand.

We are not enchanted with South's response of one spade. While there is a school that believes that re-

But ducking hearts even once proved to be once too often, for declarer ran nine tricks to make his contract. Does that mean that West erred? We leave it to you to decide.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A good day to continue with plans previously made and to make sure they are completed in a satisfactory manner. Study all phases of a new situation that appeals to you for future use.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You have personal goals to reach that require effort on your part right now. Find the happiness that is rightfully yours.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Think over carefully what should be done so that you can gain your most personal ambitions. Avoid one who prevaricates.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Make plans how to gain your private aims with less effort. Your relationship with friends

International Students Are Listed At ECU

Twenty-nine foreign students have enrolled at East Carolina University for the fall quarter. They include graduate and undergraduate students from several European, African, Asian and Central American nations and two students from Canada.

Among the nations represented are France, Finland, Germany, Nigeria, Hong Kong, Taiwan, Iran, Thailand, Burma, Vietnam, Korea, India and Costa Rica.

Nine of the students are permanent residents or U. S. citizens who were born or have lived extensively outside the U. S. and list foreign nations as their homes.

study of the carpentry apprenticeship programs in the country.

The department is exploring the possibility of an apprentice learning the trade at his own pace.

The committee, composed of representatives of both labor and management, will also attempt to establish a set of performance standards to measure the skill attainment of the apprentices.

Apprenticeship Plan Financed

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The United States Department of Labor is financing a year-long and associates can be most pleasant at this time.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Find the right appliances that will make your work easier. Sidestep an opponent who wants to stir up trouble.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) A new plan you have in mind requires more study before you can put it in motion successfully. Think along constructive lines.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Plan time for putting some new methods to work that can bring you greater efficiency. Strive for more harmony with mate.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Study every phase of any projects you are connected with and then state your ideas to allies. Try to understand your mate more.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Handle any work at hand in a most diligent way since higher-ups could be watching your efforts now. Improve your appearance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Take time to set up recreational activities better so they run smoothly. Use extreme caution in motion at this time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Spend some time cleaning up odds and ends and clear the work slate for next week. Be more courteous with higher-ups.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Ideal time for seeing friends you haven't seen in a long while. Take care of correspondence with precision. Express happiness.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Study your expenses well and do whatever will place you in a better financial position. Show more devotion to mate.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she possess fine ideas for making a big success in life but could fall short of goals unless you give the best education possible. There is a fine sense of cooperation here which could lead to ideal mutual undertakings with others.

Travel Papers Are Reduced

Visitors entering Panama no longer are required to show immigration officials a certificate of smallpox vaccination unless arriving from a small-pox-infected area, the Panama Government Tourist Bureau announced.

Thus, the only travel documents now required by U.S. and Canadian citizens visiting Panama are a tourist card, which costs $2.00, and proof of citizenship, preferably a valid passport or a birth certificate.

SPEND 10¢ FOR $15,000-$25,000 INVEST IN YOUR FUTURE

One phone call can change your life if you desire a career in which you can DOUBLE YOUR PRESENT INCOME while a salesperson and advance management within two years! You alone determine your earnings and your advancement by your performance.

All you need is an interest in sports, a great need to achieve more in life than ever before, be enthusiastic, have a good educational and employment record, be the owner of a good car, bondable, and have a tremendous desire to succeed.

You will receive two weeks of proven, effective training—expenses paid—then four weeks of successful field development in your area... calling on established business and professional accounts and developing new customers. You will be selected and trained for success as a salesperson—and for advancement into management.

As we are an established international company and yet one of the fastest growing organizations in the world... THIS IS A LIFETIME CAREER AND THE CHANCE OF A LIFETIME IF YOU WANT WHAT WE WANT.

TOYOTA
ONE OF THE FINEST CARS IN THE WORLD

TARHEEL TOYOTA'S 100,000 MILE WARRANTY

For 100,000 miles or 3 years we guarantee the motor, transmission, and rear end of every new Toyota we sell. This warranty is in the form of a legal document and supplements the new car warranty of Toyota Motor Sales, USA. Commercial vehicles are excluded.

"OPERATION SELLOUT"
Don't Miss A Great Opportunity
SEE US TODAY!

USED CAR WARRANTY 12 MONTHS OR 12,000 MILES

This guarantee applies to cars selling for $1000.00 and up. On a 50-50 basis. All work must be done in our shop. This warranty does not apply to any sport cars, high performance or air cooled engines or 4 speed transmissions (except economy cars). Most good used cars (even if they look like new) are only guaranteed for a month. Of for a thousand miles. No more. And some are not guaranteed at all. But at Tarheel when we say a used car is in excellent condition, we're willing to stand behind it. We're willing to do something a little extra for it. So we guarantee its motor, its rear end and its transmission for twelve months or twelve thousand miles. If you're in the market for a better used car, come out to Tarheel and look at ours. We'll show you some as good as new. Guaranteed. Asterisk denotes warranted car.
