

Red China's Premier Is Mao's Successor

REPORTED ARRESTED — Chiang Ching, right, widow of China's Chairman Mao Tse-tung and three other ultraleftist Chinese Communist Party Politburo members have been reportedly arrested by TOKYO (AP) — A Chinese government spokesman announced that Premier Hua Kuo-feng has been appointed to succeed the late Mao Tse-tung as chairman of the Chinese Communist party, Japan's Kyodo news service reported today from Peking. The announcement followed reports that Mao's widow and three other Politburo officials were under arrest.

Wall posters appeared in Peking last week reporting the succession of the 57-year-old Hua, but there had been no official announcement. The spokesman said it had been delayed to allow the entire Communist party organization to be informed in advance, Kyodo said.

The Japanese agency said the spokesman made the announcement to reporters just before a reception for the visiting prime minister of Papua New Guinea, Michael Thomas Somaré.

There still was no confirmation of unofficial reports from Peking that Mao's widow, Chiang Ching, and three other high ranking officials associated with the party's radical wing had been arrested, accused of plotting a coup. These reports suggested that serious infighting was going on and that positions still might not have solidified since Mao died on Sept. 9.

The official Hsinhua news agency had not reported Hua's appointment. In a communique on the establishment of diplomatic relations with Papua New Guinea, Hua signed as premier, Hsinhua said.

However, in a story Saturday, Hsinhua referred to the party Central Committee "headed by Comrade Hua Kuo-feng."

Hua, a big, friendly man relatively unknown to the outside world, first made his name in party circles as an agricultural specialist and local administrator during the 1950s. At some point, he came under the wing of Mao, who named his public security minister in 1971.

Last April he was named premier and first party vice chairman, second only to Mao, after Teng Hsiao-ping was fired as vice premier and party vice chairman. Teng, who had been expected to succeed his mentor, Chou En-lai, as premier, instead became the target of a massive campaign of criticism, accused of trying to restore capitalism in China.

Chou's death Jan. 8 touched off a power struggle between the moderates led by Teng and party radicals led by Chiang Ching.

Foreign analysts saw Hua as a compromise candidate, and it seems unlikely that his elevation will settle the intraparty differences. Chinese broadcasts continue to insist on deepening the criticism campaign against Teng.

A Nationalist Chinese specialist on mainland affairs said today that the arrest of Mao's widow, if the reports are true, could be the result of an alliance between Hua and military leaders.

Tsai Wei-ping, director of the Institute of International Relations in Taipei, said the arrest of Chiang Ching and the three others would protect both Hua and the military from radical pressures and attacks. Tsai's institute is a private political research organization.

The Yugoslav news agency Tanjug reported from Peking that life continued normally there, except for the larger than usual number of soldiers patrolling central Tien An Men Square and in front of the most important offices.

Residents in the Chinese capital, contacted by telephone from Hong Kong, said the reports of the arrests were first heard in the city Monday evening and were the topic of open conversation today.

Ethnic Groups Invited To 'Clarification' By Ford

By DAVE RILEY
Associated Press Writer

Estonians, Latvians, Poles and Ukrainians are among the American ethnic groups being represented at a White House meeting with President Ford, who is hoping he can "put the Eastern European matter behind him."

Democratic nominee Jimmy Carter, at home today in Plains, Ga., denied rumors about his love life amid charges that they were spread by the Ford campaign. And Ford campaign spokesmen denied spreading the rumors.

Ford scheduled meetings today with representatives of groups representing Americans of Polish, Hungarian, Lithuanian, Latvian, Estonian, Czech, Slovak, Serbian and Ukrainian descent.

Ford will attempt to make up for his remark during last week's debate with Carter when the President asserted, "There is no Soviet domination of Eastern Europe."

That remark brought immediate outcries from leaders of various groups representing Americans of Eastern European descent. The next day, Ford began backing off the comment and later said he did not concede Soviet domination of Eastern European countries.

At least one of the ethnic leaders meeting with Ford today, Aloysius Mazewski, head of the Polish American Congress, got a call last week from Ford, who reportedly apologized for the statement.

A White House aide said Ford called the meeting in hopes he can "put the Eastern European matter behind him" before he departs for a campaign trip into New York and New Jersey.

At a Columbus Day ceremony Monday in Washington, Ford again tried to smooth over the debate remark by saying: "People of the Old World still look to the New World as the champion of freedom, the champion of human rights. America has been their hope and their help and we will never let them down."

Ford held a strategy session at the White House on Monday, and one of those attending was Sen. Bob Dole, his running mate. Dole, addressing the Eastern Europe issue, said Ford's debate statement had had no adverse effect other than a "ferocious outpouring of bitter words by Mr. Carter."

Carter's running mate, Sen. Walter Mondale, campaigned Monday in New York.

Carter, in Eau Claire, Wis., Monday, said rumors allegedly being spread by Ford campaign workers about his having had an extramarital affair are "seamy" lies.

Housing Authority Is Qualified As Developer Of Southside Project

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

The Redevelopment Commission last night qualified the Housing Authority as the developer and purchaser of two parcels that the Authority plans to utilize as part of the proposed Southside housing project.

The two Commission-owned tracts involve Disposal Parcel M-1, covering approximately 48,000 square feet, and a parcel of roughly 25,000 square feet that was originally planned as right-of-way for the proposed extension of Elk Street.

The parcels, which will be sold to the Authority at the appraisal price set by the Department of Housing and Urban Development, will become a part of the overall Southside development.

The HUD appraisal is slightly lower than the market valuation, it was explained.

Disposal Parcel M-1 fronts on 16th Street while the right-of-way property bisects the Southside acreage. In the preliminary Southside site plan, the Authority is proposing to utilize Arthur Street extension, the next street south of Elk, rather than the Elk extension.

Large Turnout At Combining Schools Discussion

By SUSAN QUINN
Reflector Staff Writer

Approximately 115 citizens of Grifton attended the Ayden Advisory Council meeting Monday night at Ayden Grifton High School to discuss the proposal of combining the Ayden and Grifton Middle Schools.

The Council was seated in a panel and was accompanied by Tom Craft, associate superintendent of Pitt County Schools; Dr. J. O. Carson, Pitt County Board of Education member representing Grifton; and Ike Baldree, principal of Grifton School. The meeting was directed by Bruce Phillips, chairman of the Grifton Advisory Council.

The council was asked to explain its position about the proposal of combining the middle schools. Joe Padgett, a council member answered as

"As past chairman of the Ayden-Grifton Advisory Council and past vice chairman of the Grifton Advisory Council I have seen the upcoming problem. Mr. Baldree has been dropping hints about the decrease in enrollment and the need for a difference in the subject matter for the sixth, seventh, and eighth grades. We became aware that the next school to be built would be Ayden. Finally a month ago Ayden began looking at three pieces of property in Ayden. The Grifton Advisory Council addressed the Ayden Advisory Council and told it that we are losing pupils and asked if Ayden would consider consolidating our sixth, seventh, and eighth grades in the vicinity of the high school and they voted to agree, if it would not delay the construction of the Ayden school. The two county board representatives from Grifton, Dr. Carson, and from Ayden, Bill McLawhorn met with us and agreed with the recommendation. The thing that we had in mind was the proper education of students," Padgett said.

Janet Haseley presented a chart which showed a projected increase in student enrollment at the Grifton School within the next three of four years and printed material which showed the advantages of extracurricular activities, classroom education, and the impact on the community of having the school remain in the local area.

"We have been presented a chart to show the decline of the future student enrollment. This chart (Mrs. Haseley's chart), shows that within the next two years we may lose 20 students, but the following year the lower grades will actually have stabilized."

"If the school is moved we will have no gain of families in the Grifton area. We had 35 newcomer families in Grifton this year. Nobody wants to live where their children have to be bused. Newcomers look to see if it is a nice community, and if the school is the center of the community. If we don't have the school we won't attract the newcomers. We are a growing area with a growing economy. This area is healthy and there is no reason to lose families if we keep the school," Mrs. Haseley said.

"The first question is the welfare of the students. We recognize that general education throughout the country is not good as it was planned. A middle school idea may not be good throughout the country as planned. If children were articles of commerce and did not exist except from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. busing would be okay. Unfortunately, they are not. They have families and live the other 16 hours of the day," Dave Boseley, mayor of Grifton said.

"Two things are inevitable. If we build in this location (the area of Ayden-Grifton High School) within the next 25 or 30 years other schools will become abandoned and neither Ayden or Grifton will have its own school. The Contentnea Metropolitan Sewage District is another consideration.

"For the past five or six years Ayden, Grifton and Winterville have committed their future to CMSD. The CMSD is to provide for the sewage and water needs in the Ayden Winterville and Grifton areas in the next 25 to 30 years, but not the country areas. In Ayden and Grifton the water and sewer bills are already higher. If we do not attract more families, water and sewer bills will not go down. If we lose some families the water and sewer bills will be paid anyway," Mayor Boseley said.

Mayor Boseley pointed out that the school affects many things and the fact that once the building is built, both towns will be committed to use it.

"Is the location of the proposed middle school to the benefit of both towns? If the students are bused two or three miles they might as well be bused two or three miles more. Everyone projects an increase of population. If we combine the school either in Ayden or Grifton it doesn't matter if the population of Ayden or Grifton

CHRISTIAN DRUG REHAB

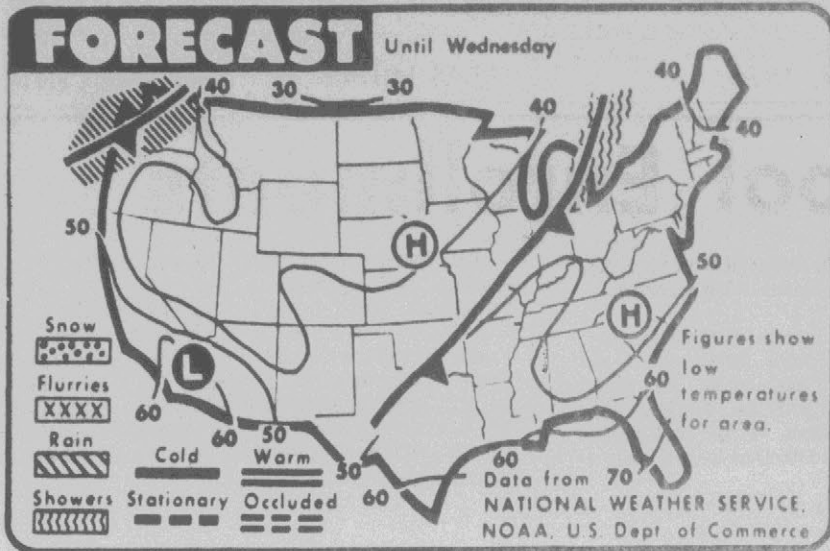

I need information as to how to contact Teen Challenge Rehabilitation Center in New York City, the one set up by the Rev. David Wilkerson. There's a young lady in my congregation who had become involved in the drug culture. Her psychiatrist has suggested she attend such a place for a couple of months. The family needs help in contacting them.

We called Teen Challenge's Brooklyn headquarters and were given the name of the intake officer, Joe Revish, and his phone number. There are Teen Challenge centers in places other than New York, we were told, but the speaker said Revish would fill you in if you would call him.

We also checked about religiously oriented drug rehabilitation centers in this state. The only one we were able to come up with was The Way, The Truth and The Life at Sevier in the far western part of the state. The person we talked to there said there are branches in other places in North Carolina and Tennessee and that you could discuss all this if you wish to call.

From the Pitt County Mental Health Center we learned that there are state-supported residence programs in Winston Salem, Greensboro, and Charlotte. More information about these may be obtained from the Mental Health Center.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST—Cool weather with partly cloudy skies is due today for northern half of the nation. Seasonably mild temperatures are expected in the southern half. Rain is forecast for the Pacific Northwest. (AP Wirephoto Map)

By The Associated Press
Warmer temperatures will come to North Carolina Wednesday as a high-pressure ridge drifts off the coast. This high-pressure cell has been in control since Sunday, bringing crisp, clear weather. It has been almost stationary, with north to northeasterly winds spreading cold air across the state. Temperatures dipped below freezing Monday morning and this morning in the northern mountains. This caused scattered frost. Skies were sunny today and high temperatures were about the same as Monday's. The maximums Monday ranged from 61 at Canton to 72 at Wilmington. By tonight, the high-pressure ridge will have moved just enough to keep lows above freezing across the state. Under clear skies, the overnight lows will range from the mid 30s in the mountains to mid 50s on the Outer Banks. By Wednesday, the ridge will be far enough off the coast to shift winds into a southerly direction. Highs will be from the upper 60s in the mountains to upper 70s in the southeastern counties. Skies will be sunny, with some scattered cloudiness in the afternoon in advance of a cold front. This front will bring high cloudiness and slightly cooler temperatures Thursday through Saturday. Skies will stay fair during the period. Highs will be in the 60s to low 70s. Overnight lows will be in the 40s to 50s. Small-craft advisories remain in effect for the sounds and offshore waters. Winds were two to four feet. Winds will remain northeasterly and decrease to 10 to 20 knots tonight.

No Bombshells In Dean's Book

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—John Dean's Watergate book offers no new bombshells, but his 415-page memoir is sprinkled with humor and detail to fascinate confirmed Watergate addicts and others. The former White House counsel's book, "Blind Ambition," being published by Simon and Schuster, plows the already well-cultivated ground of the break-in at Democratic headquarters in the Watergate complex here and the ensuing

White House conspiracy to keep the lid on the scandal. But Dean's plow has unearthed a bit of sex, a dash of drama and even a hint of mystery to freshen the familiar soil. Dean, whose revelation of White House involvement in the coverup was a major breakthrough in the investigation of the scandal, recently revealed that a member of President Ford's Cabinet made an obscene slur against blacks. Other sources later identified the Cabinet member as Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz, who then resigned in the resulting controversy. In his book, Dean lets go with these anecdotes:

—Shortly after Dean joined the Nixon White House, he started collecting intelligence of interest to his bosses and came across a report that a potentially embarrassing address book kept by Xavier Hollander, the "Happy Hooker," might surface in New York. "I began asking the more adventurous men at the White House if they might have anything to fear from Xavier Hollander's address book," Dean wrote. "When I whispered my story to Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler, his face went white as a sheet. "I'll deny it," he said quickly. "I'll deny it."

—When Dean was in New York, he was offered the apartment of a former aide, John J. Caulfield, and Caulfield's investigator, Tony Ulasiewicz. "It was then being used for a special Ehrlichman-approved assignment which required a luxurious ambience, and Jack had described it as 'quite a pad.'" (John Ehrlichman was Nixon's chief domestic affairs aide.) "I walked to the apartment with my blind date.... The woman, who had high expectations of the counsel to the President, had one quick drink and left. The apartment looked like a Chicago warehouse — red velvet wallpaper, black lace curtains, white Salvation Army furniture, and a fake-fur rug." —Dean was sent to talk to then-Asst. Atty. Gen. Henry Petersen about trying to turn off some Justice Department investigations of suspected labor racketeers. Petersen is said to have told Dean: "The only time a case could ever be stopped is before an investigation has commenced. "Hell, I've got a recommendation right here on my desk that I authorize an investigation of Lyndon Johnson on some little banking violation down in Texas. Now, I'm not going to authorize an investigation of a former president. This is a case that will never start, and need not start." Petersen later came under fire for failing to keep at arm's length from Nixon during the Watergate probe. He has since retired from government.

Porter-Edwards Vows Exchanged On Sunday

The Black Jack Free Will Baptist Church was the scene of the Sunday wedding ceremony of Mary Kay Edwards and Franklin Leroy Porter. The double ring ceremony was conducted by the Rev. Ola Porter, grandfather of the bridegroom, at 3:00 p.m.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee Edwards Jr. of Rt. 2, Greenville, the bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a floor length gown with a chapel train of organza and Venise lace etched with seed pearls. The empire bodice featured a high neckline with an illusion yoke and full lantern sleeves. Venise lace etched with seed pearls outlined the yoke, encircled the collar and trimmed the bodice and sleeves. The full length skirt extended into a chapel train. Venise lace motifs graced the skirt and lace bordered the hemline and train.

The bride chose a fingertip mantilla of Venise lace with an illusion blusher attached to a lace profile headpiece. She carried a bouquet of white daisies and baby's breath.

Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Eugene Porter of Rt. 2, Greenville.

The bride and bridegroom are graduates of D. H. Conley High School. She is employed at the Greenville Nursing and Convalescent Center and the bridegroom is employed with her father.

A program of wedding music was presented by Randy Buck of Rt. 2, Greenville, organist, and Jimmy Page of Rt. 3, Greenville, who sang the "Wedding Prayer," "We've Only Just Begun" and "If."

The church was decorated with two baskets of white gladioli and daisies, ferns, an arch candelabra and two spiral candelabra.

Mrs. Robert Cannon of Ayden directed the wedding. Susie Orr of Greenville presided at the register.

The matron of honor was Jo Ann Mosley of Simpson, sister of the bride. She wore a coral formal dress of crepe fashioned with a smock sleeveless bodice enhanced with pearl centered flowerettes of white Venise lace. The dress had a V-neckline and flared skirt. A short silk chiffon caplet was closed with a bow and streamers. The maid of honor was Lelie McDonald of Simpson. Her dress was like that of the matron of honor's in apple green.

Bridesmaids were Sue Edwards, sister of the bride, Vicky Edwards, sister-in-law of the bride, and Terry Gonzales, sister of the bridegroom, all of Rt. 2, Greenville, and Diana Wooten of Ayden. Their dresses were in rust and styled like those of the honor attendants. They all wore white wide brim hats with matching ribbon trim and each carried a long-stemmed yellow rose.

The junior bridesmaids were Sandy Kite and Josina Mills, both of Greenville. They were dressed in blue and pink dresses. The flower girl was Christie Shivers of Rt. 1, Grimesland. She was dressed in a light green polyester gown trimmed with lace and carried a basket of yellow and white daisies. The ring bearer was Stevie Peele of Greenville.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were Bobby and Danny Edwards of Rt. 2 Greenville, brothers of the bride, Wayne Jones of Greenville, cousin of the bridegroom, Danny Gonzales, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, Ricky Buck, cousin of the bride, and Hyman Earl Hudson, all of Rt. 2, Greenville.

The mother of the bride wore a blue and white floor length gown with a chiffon cape and a corsage of pink roses. The mother of the bridegroom selected a mint green floor length gown with a chiffon cape and a corsage of yellow roses.

The bride's grandmother, Mrs. Josie Shivers, and grandmothers of the bridegroom, Mrs. Ola Porter and Mrs. Annie M. Manning, were remembered with white carnation corsages.

The couple will reside at Rt. 2, Greenville, following a wedding trip to unannounced points.

A cake cutting was held Saturday evening given by parents of the bridal couple. Friends and relatives assisted in serving at the event.

Over 16 million people visit New York each year.

Some Waiters Would Receive A Surprise

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Begging to disagree with you, "regrets only" on an invitation DOES NOT simplify matters. What about those persons who are out of town and do not receive the invitation? How could THEY attend? "Acceptances only" is much more practical. That way the hostess knows definitely who is coming.

The best idea of all is a firm "Please reply," followed by a phone call should the hostess receive no response.

G.W.H., PASADENA

DEAR ABBY: TIRED OF ACTING wrote: "After eight years of marriage, I've fallen out of love with my husband. He's generous, a wonderful father and easy to live with. I have a car of my own, don't have to work, and I know he loves me, but I'm sick to death of faking it in the bedroom."

Well, Abby, I've been married and divorced three times and all three husbands were great in the bedroom. But the first was allergic to work, the second chased women and the third was the world's worst father.

I've been alone for five years and I'm soured on men, but if TIRED OF ACTING decides to dump her husband, I'll be waiting in the wings for a man with his credentials. Sex isn't everything.

ALONE

DEAR ALONE: Those wings must be pretty crowded, judging from the number of letters I've received from women who'd like to be on that waiting list. Which only goes to reaffirm that one woman's leftovers is another woman's banquet.

DEAR ABBY: Congratulations to SICK OF TIPPING! He's the first person who's made me furious enough to actually write a Dear Abby letter.

My husband supervises the dining room of a large hotel. He started as a busboy and worked his way up. We have four children who have depended on tips for the roof over their heads for quite a while.

Abby, the responsibilities of a waiter are unbelievable. It's the waiter who makes sure that four or five tables are served the drinks they ordered, and that six different dinners (which all require different cooking times) arrive at the table at the same time, and all hot. He brings water, coffee, keeps the ash trays clean and clears the table before being asked. Many waiters work for eight hours consecutively without sitting down once!

I know everyone who works with my husband, and they earn every tip they get.

SICK OF TIPPING should look around and see how many services a waiter performs. He'll be in for a big surprise.

WASHINGTONIAN

DEAR WASH: A waiter who performs the services you describe has certainly earned a generous tip. But what about the waiter who's incompetent, indifferent or surly? Does such a waiter "earn every tip he (or she) gets"? If tips were given for performance instead of automatically, some waiters would be "in for a big surprise."

Presiding at the register was Miss Joyce Stokes, niece of Mr. Stokes. Cake was served by Mrs. Maggie Whitehead, sister of Mr. Stokes, and Mrs. Florence Harrell, sister of Mrs. Stokes. Punch was poured by Mrs. Goldie Anderson, sister of Mr. Stokes, and Mrs. Mary Stokes, sister of Mrs. Stokes. Cooking Is Fun

By CECILY BROWNSTONE

Associated Press Food Editor.

Italian-American cooks sometimes add chunks of ham to their plain bread dough. We presume this is what inspired another cook, with a different culinary heritage, to dream up raisin bread loaves that include ham and cheese. When we tried her recipe and offered the bread, fresh from the oven, to our teen-age nephew and a husky friend of his they gobbled up almost a whole loaf!

RAISIN SANDWICH BREAD

- 1 envelope active dry yeast
- 1 cup warm water
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1½ tablespoons sugar
- 3 cups (about) flour
- 1 cup finely diced cooked ham
- 1 cup finely diced extra-sharp cheddar cheese
- ½ cup seedless raisins

In a large bowl dissolve the yeast in the water. Stir in the salt and sugar. Gradually work in enough flour to make a soft dough. Turn out onto a lightly floured smooth surface and knead until smooth and elastic — about 10 minutes. Cover with plastic wrap and let rise in a draft-free, warm (80 to 85 degrees) place until doubled — about 1 hour. Punch down dough. Turn out onto lightly floured surface and knead in the ham, cheese and raisins. Divide in half. Shape into 2 loaves, keeping the raisins from studding the tops so the fruit won't dry during the baking. Place in 2 buttered loaf pans, each 8½ by 4½ by 2½ inches. Cover and let rise as previously until doubled — 45 to 60 minutes. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven, on a rack below the center, until golden and loaves sound hollow when tapped — about 45 minutes. Loosen edges and turn out on wire racks; turn right side up; cool. Delicious sliced and slathered with butter; or made into sandwiches with lettuce and mayonnaise with or without sliced chicken or turkey. Makes 2 loaves; do not expect them to rise high above the pans or the crust to be dark brown.

You always hear about fashion's success stories.

But what about the losers? The fashions that came in and went out the same day? The hopes and dreams of designers that were shattered by the sound of 50 million women... laughing.

Some styles, for one reason or another, just don't make it. These are some of them.

Scratch and Smell T-Shirt. This should have been a smash. The principle was great: you scratched and voila... a scent was circulated that ran the gamut from perfume to pizza. Unfortunately, there were too many imposters. People scratched for status and stirred up only perspiration. This gave the official scratch-and-smell shirt a bad name... not to mention the smell.

The Gladiator Boots. Remember them? They were the polished leather boots that hit just above the knee. You could look stylish in them or sit down. You couldn't have both.

The Diaper Bikini would have been a real seller if wearers had been able to keep their weight down to under 8½ pounds.

Fanny Sweater: This is one of the many knit styles designed to fit a hanger and not the human body. The name was deceiving. It suggested that everyone who had a fanny should cover it with a sweater. In many instances, that's all the sweater covered and the sides and front were left wide open.

By actual count, there were only three women in the country who could actually button a fanny sweater. They were ill.

The Satin Pillow Stomach: I'm not making this up. A few years ago a manufacturer came out with a fake satin stomach that you tied around your waist for thin girls who wanted to look healthy.

I looked so healthy in it, two men on the bus hoisted me into their seats and another called the police who reported I was in the final stages of delivery.

The "fake" stomach now resides on the living room sofa.

This year, once again, we'll be looking over the nominees for the fashion losers. What will it be? The cigarette jeans for legs that don't need circulation? The jump suits for people who swear off liquids after 4 p.m. the night before? Or the tube dress for women who want to be mailed?

May I have the envelope, please?

Ours Are Pale By Comparison

The United States has its economic problems, but they pale in the light of England's financial woes.

Prime Minister James Callaghan told his fellow countrymen recently that the nation hasn't earned its standard of living for years.

England had a pound crisis and the currency fell to a record low of $1.636 Tuesday.

Callaghan said the pound crisis means that England is "now coming to the crunch."

The financial crisis means more austerity for England, a nation which has suffered through wars, loss of its empire and other crises in recent decades. Ahead are policies aimed at attempting to reduce the budget deficit, reducing wage settlements, and giving capital investment incentives.

Among the British economic problems are a 13.8 percent inflation rate, high unemployment, low industrial productivity and a deficit in international balance of trade.

The British have always been resourceful in solving their various problems and we would expect that nation to come through this economic crisis. Obviously belt tightening will be necessary, however, and Britons will no longer be able to live as in the old days when the Empire flourished.

Utilities Looking To Needed Facility

The City Council last week accepted a Greenville Utilities 201 Facilities plan for the Greenville planning area.

The plan is necessary for the city to qualify for federal funds for a wastewater treatment plan.

A new wastewater facility will likely be located north of the river. There could be a grant of 75 percent of the cost from federal funds, and 12.5 percent from N. C. Clean Water Bond funds.

The need for a new wastewater plan can already be seen. By qualifying for federal and state funds we will cut the cost of the expensive facility to the minimum insofar as local tax payers are concerned.

Shaping Of Future Growth

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — A nagging question lurks beneath upcoming debate over land management legislation for North Carolina: can—or should—the General Assembly involve itself in control of economic growth and development across the state?

Forces are at work in several seemingly unrelated areas of state government in preparation for the 1977 General Assembly, unrelated on the surface, but each containing important elements of one important subject—economic expansion.

If tradition prevails, then, legislators will tangle with several different measures—at different times—without squarely facing the central issue of the state's role in controlling local development.

There are those who believe that question should be openly put to the lawmakers and citizens of the state, so that hot debate and public exploration of all the hidden ramifications might produce a state policy either for or against central direction of growth.

No Control
Without such forthright recognition of the state's various activities affecting development, and some effort to bring the forces under control, government cannot effectively shape tomorrow, those who favor control argue.

That may be so, say the critics, but we are not yet willing to let government tell private industry what it can do, and where it can do it.

Boiled down to its essentials, then, the conflict is between those who see state interference with free enterprise, versus those who see state control shaping a more desirable future.

Given that enormous conflict, those close to the situation expect both sides to be the question, allow the various factors to continue their various ways without openly and directly confronting the question of policy. Sooner or later, though, the issue must be met.

In 1977, the North Carolina General Assembly will nibble away at the different parts of the overall growth and development scene with no guiding strategy or overall policy; what little policy exists will continue to come from the executive branch, subject to change and varying interpretation without overall guidance.

On the other hand, there are those who insist the executive branch with its flexibility is the proper place for economic growth policy-making. That leads to central authority and responsibility without the conflicts liable if legislators—with their own self interests and narrow regional interests at heart—were directing things.

Many Forces
At present there are a host of state activities which do in fact shape future economic growth—absent any guiding philosophy: location of power plants, highways, airports, seaports, sewerage facilities, pollution controls, drain-and-fill permits, erosion control, etc. Locally, other forces shape development: water and sewer lines, zoning, property taxes, roads, building permits, etc.

Further, private decisions affect other development: a major shopping center spurs residential development and discourages farms use of nearby land; apartment or other density housing puts pressure on schools, streets, police and fire facilities; a new industry spreads all sorts of impacts across the landscape.

Even a surface examination of the problem illustrates the complexities when exploring the question of shaping future growth.

Most experts agree that what North Carolina needs is moderately rapid growth in high-skill, high-pay industry widely dispersed so that jobs are created where the people live and not concentrated in such a way that future congestion results.

Given the diverse and conflicting forces involved in meeting such a goal, is it possible to influence growth without central control and strategy?

That is the key argument between those who favor government use of taxation, land management, permitting devices and other tools to control development; and those who favor a cooperative, voluntary relationship between government, private industry, and local officials.

The Conspiracy Hunters Wall Street Uneasy

Just before it closed up shop for the year, the House of Representatives created a select committee to investigate the assassinations of John F. Kennedy and Martin Luther King. On balance — on very close balance — the venture may prove a useful undertaking.

Especially in the case of Kennedy, and to a lesser extent in the case of King, unanswered questions abound. These are questions of pervasive public interest. Nearly 13 years have passed since Kennedy was slain in Dallas; more than eight years have passed since King was slain in Memphis. The questions may be unanswerable. But if the House investigators cannot tie up all the loose ends, they may be able to settle some of the doubts. It is worth a try.

The House committee will be headed by Congressman Thomas N. Downing of Virginia. I happen to have known Tom Downing for 30 years. He is a man of exceptional integrity and common sense. He is not altogether unbiased in the matter of Kennedy's assassination. "I am convinced," he says, "that there was a conspiracy involved."

But Downing is perhaps as unbiased as any person who has become fascinated by the Kennedy mystery. Downing is a lawyer, a former judge, a low-profile veteran of 18 years in the House. He is retiring at the end of this term, and has no political interest to promote.

Downing's 12-member committee will have a budget of $150,000 to finance its work until the 95th Congress convenes in January. Richard A. Sprague, of Philadelphia, an experienced federal prosecutor, has signed on as chief investigator. No one expects the inquiry to be completed in the next three months. By voting 280-65 to authorize the investigation, the House implicitly promised to renew its approval next year. So the committee will have time and money to make a responsible quest.

What are they searching for? Says Downing, with disarming simplicity, "the truth." He is satisfied that the original commission on Kennedy's assassination, headed by the late Chief Justice Earl Warren, never found the truth. For reasons that remain unclear to his day, the commission's staff never cleared up doubts that arose at the time; the Warren investigators obviously were unable to examine evidence that has developed in the ensuing years.

Some of the questions go directly to events that November day in Dallas. For one example, what kind of rifle was found on the sixth floor of the Book Depository Building? The rifle officially identified as the murder weapon, now in the National Archives, is a Mannlicher Carcano, a 6.5 Italian carbine. You can inspect it yourself. Yet the gun first identified in the Dallas press was a 7.65 bolt action Mauser.

The three officers who found the gun have confirmed that identification in statements under oath. It seems incredible that police officers, familiar with weapons, could have seen the words "Made in Italy Cal. 6.5," and read them as "7.65 Mauser."

Questions involving the rifle, the "miracle bullet,"

A siege of cold, rainy weather and the prospect of Russian intervention on the side of Madrid propelled the insurgent armies to new speed today in Spain.

Fascist leaders, holding the whiphand in the campaign against the capital with a front flanking it from the northeast to the southwest, aligned their forces for a thrust they hoped would carry them into the city in 10 days.

Workers and militiamen, however, resisted them actively on all fronts.

Rudolf Hess, Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's minister without portfolio, warned Europe tonight that Germany might have to employ "dumping" methods in international commerce if she fails to get her lost colonies back.

Hess, speaking at the opening of a new meeting hall, declared the restoration of the colonies taken from Germany as a result of the World War would be in the interest of other countries because otherwise "Germany would be forced to export at any price, thus impairing the exports of other nations."

THE INSIDE REPORT

U.S. vs. Israel Oil Fight

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — The deliberate destruction of a U.S. oil company's buoy markers by the Israeli navy in the Gulf of Suez last month is viewed here as a prelude to high-risk Israeli oil operations in occupied Egypt and a violation of Israel's secret 1975 pledge to meet its oil needs "through normal procedures."

The Ford administration has privately informed Israel in unambiguous terms that it regards Israel's interference with the U.S. company and Israel's pending oil exploration and pumping operations as illegal, dangerous and against U.S. interest.

But despite dispatch of a high-level Israeli negotiating team here shortly after Israeli gunboats shot out Standard Oil of Indiana's buoy markers in the disputed, oil-rich waters, the issue was not resolved.

With the U.S. election less than four weeks away, Mr. Ford and the State Department want no outbreak of a public U.S.-Israel confrontation. The President is already under rebuke from Israel and the pro Israel congressional lobby here for hedging on the Arab boycott of Israel and for sticking to his guns on arms for Saudi Arabia.

But beneath the surface, both U.S. and Israeli officials worry about escalation of the bitter Gulf of Suez dispute, now being fanned by Israeli hawks is Prince Minister Yitzhak Rabin's government. In preparation for drilling for oil near the mid-point of the narrow Gulf of Suez in the Ramadan oil field seven miles from Israeli-occupied Sinai, an Egyptian gunboat protecting the American drilling rig was shadowed for hours by an Israeli gunboat. When the Egyptian boat later withdrew, the Israeli vessel was joined by four other Israeli gunboats. Suddenly the buoys, anchored to mark the proposed location of the drilling rig were shattered by Israeli gunfire.

Israel claims that Standard of Indiana, whose Mideast subsidiary is called Amoco and which has been pumping oil under contract to Egypt for many years, is infringing on the sovereignty of Israel as the occupying power of most of Sinai and its adjoining waters.

But U.S. officials suspect Israel's purpose is darker: to lay the judicial groundwork for oil-impooverished Israel to engage in widespread exploration and drilling for oil over the long-term future in the disputed Gulf of Suez.

Suez. Diplomatic experts here concede that international law on the rights of occupying power is a tangle of ambiguities. But they see as an equal the U.S. claim on the good will of Israel, which is dependent on Washington for its military power, its economic well-being and its international standing.

Accordingly, high officials here were shocked when the Israeli navy destroyed American property by gunfire in a climax to the new "harassment" of Amoco's operations which have been routinely producing Gulf of Suez oil for Egypt both before and since the Six Day War of 1967 — without any harassment.

Israel's political obligations to the U.S., as experts here view them, arise not from multi-billion dollars in U.S. military and economic aid, but from Israel's secret agreements with Secretary of State Henry Kissinger last year. These preceded the Israeli pullout from Sinai's depleted Abu Rudeis oil fields as part of Phase Two of the Sinai withdrawal.

Those agreements, which leaked to the press soon after Sinai Two, committed Israel "to make its own, independent arrangements for oil supply to meet its requirements through non-

PAST MISTAKES
There are many people who appear to be incapable of forgetting past mistakes. Remorse continues to well up in their minds year after year as they interminably review all the mistakes they have made and the sins they have committed.

About sixty years ago a then-eminent literary figure approaching his eightieth birthday made it interesting statement about how he dealt with this problem. "I recall past follies, errors, and faults in order that I may learn their lessons and avoid their repetition. Then I forget them. The prophet tells me that my Father buries my sins in the depths of the sea. I have no intention to fish them up again and take inventory. I gladly dismiss from my memory what He no more remembers against me. Thus my religion is to me not a servitude, but an emancipation; not a self-torture because of past sins, but a divinely given joy because of present forgiveness."

ReaLemon Monopoly Decision

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — In the bottle of ReaLemon on the grocer's shelf is contained not just a widely used flavoring but a marketing drama that has shaken the manufacturer and stunned some antitrust and trademark lawyers.

It might change marketing techniques too, because a Federal Trade Commission judge has ruled that Borden, Inc., owner of ReaLemon, must license others to produce the reconstituted lemon juice product.

The decision, which is being appealed to the full commission, is viewed by Borden as "an unlawful confiscation of a valuable property right and is beyond the power of the commission."

The judge, it maintains, doesn't understand the operation of the market place or the function of trademarks. But the administrative law judge, Daniel Hanscom, didn't arrive at his decision easily; it totaled 170 pages.

Borden insists that in ReaLemon it offers customers a high quality product, and that its strong position in the market is derived from the respect and allegiance of those customers.

Hanscom, in his decision, of Sept. 3, didn't see it that way. He found that Borden unlawfully maintained a monopoly position in the processed lemon juice industry, a position that sometimes reached 90 per cent of the market.

In doing so, he rejected Borden's contention that in measuring the market fresh lemons should be included along with processed lemon juice, a position that would have reduced Borden's relative position.

Hanscom found factors that he said were "strongly demonstrative of monopoly power," one of them being "the overwhelming dominance of the ReaLemon brand, and its acceptance over the years by the trade and the public as the premium brand."

Viewing that conclusion, other food marketers are wondering if widespread acceptance, traditionally considered a measurement of success, now might be considered a marketing offense.

Further observations by the judge perhaps led to that uncertainty. Demonstrating monopoly, he suggested, were:

—The concomitant impotence and small market share of competing brands except possibly Golden Crown recently in some metropolitan areas.
—"The premium price commanded by the ReaLemon brand."
—"The competitive necessity for other lemon juice brands to sell at substantially lower retail prices on peril of losing shelf space and being forced from the market."

—"The exceptionally high profitability of ReaLemon lemon juice over the years amounting to three to four times the rate of return on assets realized by other firms in the...industry group."

But Hanscom had other observations that tended to suggest that quality alone was not the reason for ReaLemon success. Borden's marketing practices, he said, hindered, restrained and even prevented competition.

Among other things, he said, the company used promotional allowances to combat retail competition, special allowances to restrict sale of competitive products, and selective price cuts that left competitors unable to sell products above their costs.

and the autopsy findings are the relatively easy questions. Downing's committee wants to explore the tangled, shadowy trail of events over a span of three years preceding the November day. Who was Lee Harvey Oswald? Who was he really? How many "Oswalds" were floating around? Out of the mists of conspiracy and intrigue arising from the dark waters of the Bay of Pigs, grotesque possibilities emerge.

The truth may never be found. Downing recognizes that discouraging prospect; he recognizes, too, that it may be impossible ever to satisfy the conspiracy cult that has swarmed around the Kennedy assassination. In the whole of the Washington fruitcake, there are no nuttier nuts than the Kennedy nuts. They form a shrill chorus.

What troubles me is the precedent this select committee may set. Legislative committees have no authority to function as grand juries. Their only authority is to investigate in areas of specific legislative interest. It is specious to suggest that the committee's purpose is to study legislation "better to protect our presidents." That is bunk — a feeble and tenuous rationalization. The sole purpose of this investigation is to satisfy a gnawing national curiosity. I had not supposed this to be a function of the legislative branch, but it may be capacious to complain. Onward, Downing! And leave no stone unturned.

The Boyters say their divorces are a way to protest the "absurdity of the tax laws" which require married couples to pay higher federal income taxes than single persons in the same tax bracket who live together.

The Boyters, married for the first time in April 1966, had their first divorce in Haiti last Dec. 9. They remarried on Jan. 9, at the Howard County Court-house here.

This year, they plan a mid-November vacation in the Dominican Republic, with a stop at the capital of Santo Domingo for a $350 quickie divorce. They will wait until after the first of the year to remarry.

A New York City couple will also be in Santo Domingo to get their second tax-protest divorce, according to the Boyters.

"We take the trip for a vacation," Mrs. Boyter said Monday. "People spend over $1,000 just to do what we are going to do — swim and get a sun tan on the beaches.

"Only, we are also getting a divorce and expect to pay at least that much less income tax as single adults."

Both Boyters work for the U.S. Department of Defense and earn about $23,000 each annually.

"They (the IRS) have not bothered us, even though we filed as single adults, paying $1,300 less than a married couple would," Boyter said.

He said the IRS ruled earlier this year "not recognizing divorces like ours."

mal procedures."

What Israel extracted from Kissinger for this commitment to "normal procedures" was no minor favor: a pledge that the U.S. would guarantee Israel's access to oil "to meet all of (its) normal requirements"; and more important, in the event of an Arab oil embargo a pledge of scarce U.S. supplies "to meet Israel's essential requirements." That would be at the cost of the U.S. taxpayer, in terms of money, and the U.S. consumer, in terms of energy.

Israel's sudden use of naval power against an American company with the apparent purpose of securing a new oil supply is regarded here as anything but "normal."

Negotiations are continuing, but anti-Rabin hardliners in the Israeli cabinet are using this issue as a test of Israeli foreign policy, undercutting Rabin's freedom to negotiate.

That makes Rabin's diplomacy extremely difficult in the case of Israel's navy vs. Amoco. But it is not likely to change Mr. Ford's refusal to let the U.S. be pushed around by a gunboat diplomacy in 1976 — even when practiced by Israel.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A conference on rural Southern health was expected to recommend today federal legislation to encourage states to allow Medicare and Medicaid payments to physician assistants and nurse practitioners.

The federal government decides on the reimbursement of medical claims by the elderly, covered by Medicare, and states decide for the needy, covered by Medicaid.

A preliminary report of the Task Force on Southern Rural Development outlines the problem this way:

"While a greater proportion of rural residents is elderly, and Medicare has been of considerable assistance to them, the program systematically penalizes physicians practicing in rural areas by setting lower reimbursement levels for them."

Additionally, the report said, health insurance companies generally do not pay "for services rendered by nurse practitioners when a physician is not physically present. Medicare does not pay for services under these conditions.

"Even most of those states covering these services under Medicaid require the payments to be made directly to the sponsoring physician rather than to the health center."

Nonetheless, because of shortages of doctors, the conference has been told, nurse-practitioners and physician assistants frequently are the primary health care providers in rural areas.

"I think the group will recommend that they back some enabling legislation that will influence the states to adopt direct reimbursement to physician extenders — the physician assistants and health care providers," said Dr. Dana Copp.

Issue Recall

The Winchester Group of Olin Corporation is recalling one day's production of 22-caliber long rifle ammunition following discovery that excessive pressure in some cartridges makes them potentially hazardous to shoot.

The recall is for ammunition sold under the brand name Wildcat and identified with code number LF62PY. The number is stamped on the inside tuck flap of each 50-round box and on the upper right corner of the end panel of 5,000-round cases. Anyone with such ammunition should return it to a dealer for replacement.

Heavy Damage In Kitchen Fire

Greenville Fire Department officers reported heavy fire and smoke damage resulted to the kitchen of a dwelling at 402 Pittman Dr. last night.

Officers said food left on a stove started the blaze — reported at 11:20 p.m. — which was out when fire units arrived at the scene.

Heavy smoke damage resulted to others parts of the house, fire officers said.

Investigate A Cross-Burning

Chief Glenn Cannon said investigation is continuing into a cross-burning incident reported at 1:36 a.m. at 1217 South Evans St.

Cannon said the cross was made of two-by-fours covered with a sheet and soaked in what appeared to be kerosene.

No damage resulted, he noted.

Residents Of Subdivision Seeing Land Settle; Old Mines Collapse

By ROBERT L. SCHEIER
Associated Press Writer
ROCK SPRINGS, Wyo. (AP) — People have willingly burrowed into the earth for years in this coal-mining community, but now residents of one subdivision fear they may be swallowed up involuntarily.

Streets are collapsing, walls are cracking and parents fear for their children's safety as the earth settles into abandoned coal mines.

Large Turnout...

The subsidence is not new to the 23,000 people here. But it recently began to plague a subdivision made up mostly of mobile homes mounted on concrete foundations. "Our little boy just missed going under when the street started to crack," Sandy Kaumo said Monday after a 20-foot-wide hole appeared in a street near the family's trailer. "He stepped back just when it started up."

Some homeowners are afraid to let their children play outside or wander farther than their front yards.

"We have to spend most of our time inside," said Bonnie Fantin. "You're afraid to send them to school. You have to walk them across the street for fear the street is going to cave in." Parts of the two main streets leading out of the subdivision have already given way, she said. Some residents say they can feel the earth shift as they lie in bed at night. "It's kind of spooky," said Mrs. Kaumo. "It's so slight. The house creaks and doors swing. You can see the lines where the ground is splitting and opening wider every day."

Five times in a week, she said, the buckling earth cracked water mains, leaving the area without water.

The subdivision is inside the city limits. But Mayor Paul Wataha said Rock Springs doesn't accept maintenance responsibility for the streets and water lines there and is under no legal obligation to help. Wataha said the problems belong to developer Howard Routh. Routh blamed the subsidence on a U.S. Bureau of Mines project which pumped tons of water and sand into the old shafts. That was intended to stop the sinking, but Routh says he may sue to stop the backfilling. Agency officials could not be reached for comment.

"Everybody keeps pushing the blame off on everybody else," Mrs. Fantin said. She estimated that $6,000 in damage has been done to her family's property, and she said eight homeowners in the area are consulting with an attorney about possible legal action.

"The land just keeps moving," she said. "It's a scary, horrible feeling."

that we had a choice of staying in Grifton because things are going to level off. Since I have come to Grifton as an administrator we have lost seven state allotted teachers. My recommendation to the advisory council was because I don't want us to have to bus to Ayden. I felt that the lesser of problems would be to go in between the area," Baldree said.

"The objectives of the people of Grifton as compared with the objectives of the administration and the Board of Education shouldn't be a great deal different. The consolidation and the removal of the high school from Grifton affected the town and the effects of the elementary school leaving would be worse. Many parents cannot take the time necessary to drive their elementary children," Ed Bright, past principal of Grifton School said.

When asked who is responsible for determining the curriculum students should take, Associate Superintendent Tom Craft gave the following reply:

"The State Board of Education outlines the curriculum and it is the duty of the Board of Education to attempt to have a curriculum for all students and to have an innovative curriculum for individual students. In 1965-66 we had a bond issue for consolidating the high school. We surveyed the potential of the Ayden and Grifton communities and found that there is real potential there. It has been disappointing that the school has not received the support," Craft said.

"There are less students in the families now. We need more families in the town. If we take the school out of the community then we have taken the heart out of the community," Don Casey said.

Asked if the school is built in the Ayden Grifton High School area or in Ayden if the taxes of the people of Grifton will be increased, Assoc. Supt. Craft said that the taxes would not be any higher than the regular county taxes.

"When the proposal was brought up and approved we knew it would not be voted on for 30 days to allow time for persons to express their discontent. It's distressing to me that nobody called me before attending the Board of Education. This idea of saying that the proposal was being railroaded was unfair. Also earlier it was mentioned that the price of real estate has decreased from $1 million to $1 and one half million since the high school left Grifton. I talked with several realtors in the Grifton area who told me that the property value in the Grifton area has increased from 50 to 100 per cent since 1970," Dr. Carson said.

"I personally don't buy that moving the school will kill the town. The price of education is too important. If we leave the school in Grifton we will face inferior education or we will have to bus Grifton students to Ayden. Ayden has given us a golden opportunity. I favor quality education and I ask for your support," Dr. Carson added.

Other members of the audience pointed out that the notice of the special meeting when the proposal was decided upon was not sufficient in notifying the parents of the students. Advisory Council chairman, Bruce Phillips assured the group that when the council meets again to vote on the proposal the public will be notified.

The Ayden Advisory Council will meet with its citizens in a similar meeting October 20. Both the Ayden Advisory and the Grifton Advisory Council will meet again November 8 at Ayden Grifton High School and vote as separate councils about the proposal. Then the two councils will meet together and vote on a proposal that will be recommended to the Pitt County Board of Education at its December meeting.

Close Vote Shapes Up On Ford Co.-UAW Contract

By OWEN ULLMANN
Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — Hopes for an end to the 28-day-old Ford Motor Co. strike remained clouded by a possible veto from skilled workers, as union officials began tallying votes from around the country today.

United Auto Workers leaders have given the 25,000 tradesmen authority to reject the new three-year accord even if a majority of the 145,000 UAW Ford production workers ratify the agreement.

"There's no question it'll be a close vote," one union official conceded Monday after early returns showed tradesmen accepting the proposed pact only by very slim margins. But another UAW spokesman said, "It's not down the tube yet."

Most locals have refused to disclose their votes, citing the official union position that totals will be withheld until all votes are counted, late tonight or early Wednesday.

However, some locals volunteered their tallies. And those results — representing only 10 of the 99 skilled trades units — showed a narrow margin of 2,657 votes for ratification against 2,622 for rejection.

The negative vote included tradesmen at the largest local in the country, Local 600 at the Rouge complex near the No. 2 auto maker's world headquarters in suburban Dearborn. They rejected the accord 2,269-1,703. The local represents more than a quarter of the UAW tradesmen at 102 U.S. Ford plants.

Union officials said production workers were voting about 2-1 in favor of ratification.

Highlights of the new agreement include seven additional paid days off by 1979, a 3 per cent annual wage hike plus an additional 20 cents in the first year, and improved fringe benefits.

It also provides a special supplemental wage premium of between 25 and 35½ cents an hour over three years for the trades, which include electricians, repairmen, millwrights and tool and die makers.

Under the new package, hourly wages for the average assembly line worker would rise from the current $6.57 to $7.36 by 1979, while the average toolmaker's wage would go up from $8.15 to $9.34.

Many tradesmen have complained that the wage increase is not sufficient. They also have griped about not getting adequate representation within the union, and the bargainers' failure to protect them from losing their jobs to outside contractors.

After 30 Years, Indian Tribe Collects $6.6 Million Payoff

By GWEN FLORIO
Associated Press Writer
TAMA, Iowa (AP) — After 30 years of legal pow-wows, the Mesquakie Indians have collected $6.6 million from Uncle Sam as settlement of a century-old debt for 17 million acres of land.

The tribe that lives in Tama's pine-forested hills got the money for land it once owned in Iowa, Missouri, Illinois and Kansas. The U.S. government acquired it in 10 treaties between 1804 and 1867. "The government is very slow when it comes to Indians," Frank Pushetonequa, the tribal planner, said in an interview. President Ford signed a bill appropriating the money last year, after the tribe won a court suit.

The tribe decided to divide 80 per cent of the money — $5,267,738 — among its 902 members now and put the rest into a trust held by the federal government. If the Mesquakie want some of that $1,316,395 or its interest, they must say how they intend to use it.

"People think we're getting so much money, but they don't realize how small the individual payments are," said Pushetonequa.

Per capita payments were $5,840. The tribe's 329 minors get their shares when they reach age 18.

"That kind of money is nothing today," said a Mesquakie housewife, who spent most of her $5,840 on bills.

Merchants in this central Iowa town reported increased sales to the Indians after the windfall arrived last month, especially of household appliances, television sets and clothing.

Several Mesquakie bought cars and trucks, new and used, "and they're still coming in," said auto dealer Ruth Kasal. "A lot have invested their money and will borrow to buy the vehicles."

The Mesquakie, whose nation is known as the Sac and Fox of the Mississippi in Iowa, don't feel the government gave them the money as a goodwill gesture or apology.

"We sued them for it and we beat them," Pushetonequa said. "We've had to battle them for everything we have."

The suit was filed in 1948 but didn't even get to court until 1956. The long battle was fought for the Indians primarily by Lawrence Mills, a Chicago attorney.

"The blankety-blank government found all kinds of excuses," Mills said. "They don't like to see the Indians get what's coming to them."

Drop-Out Becomes An Instant-Millionaire

By TONI DONINA
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — A year and a half ago, Robert Netto dropped out of high school to pump gas in Watertown, N.Y. Now the 19-year-old has become a millionaire as New York State's first $1 million instant lottery winner.

"I was content with him just as he was, a gas station attendant," his 18-year-old wife, Judy, said Monday night as she helped him on stage to accept the first $1,000 of his reward.

He can look forward to receiving that much every week for the rest of his life, and lottery officials estimate that, at his age, Netto could live to collect $4 million from the $1 lottery ticket he bought at the station where he works.

Netto said he's not going to quit that $60-a-week job, at least not right away.

"My biggest dream has always been to win $1,000," he said. "I'd like to own a gas station someday. Now maybe I'll own a line of them."

His wife of 4½ months didn't think twice before announcing that she will quit her $60-a-week job as a department store cashier.

"This was it, this did it," she screamed from the stage, still clutching a 4-inch tall plastic statue of the infant Jesus, which she said she had been holding all day. It was given to her by her mother-in-law before the couple drove to Manhattan on Sunday for the final award program.

Netto said he will give his mother a house and will donate $5,000 of his winnings to the Roman Catholic Church.

"I was sitting there praying, and I said, 'If I win, I'll give $5,000 to the church,'" Netto added.

Netto also plans to take a trip now that he is a millionaire. He and his wife will go to Kansas, he said, because, "I've been there before and I like it."

The following area students were appointed as district officers at a recent District I Vocational Industrial Clubs of America (VICA) meeting at Bertie High School: Bryan Sickle, District I Editor, of Farmville Central High School; Tammy Lockhart, District I Secretary, of Rose High School and Melvin King, District I President, of Ayden-Grifton High School.

According to David Creech, State VICA President of Ayden-Grifton High School, the three Pitt County students represent the southeastern part of District I as officers.

Sentenced In Son's Death

FLORENCE, S.C. (AP) — Mrs. Earline Young, 22, of Columbia, pregnant with her fourth child, was formally sentenced to life in prison Monday for the slaying of her son, Timothy, who died of a broken neck on his second birthday.

Judge Dan C. McEachin imposed the mandatory sentence. Mrs. Young was convicted of murder by a jury last week. Her husband, Willie Chester Young, was found guilty of involuntary manslaughter by the same jury and drew the maximum sentence of three years.

In contrast to last Friday when she was carried screaming from the courtroom after the jury delivered its verdict, Mrs. Young, apparently seated, was quiet when the sentence was read Monday. Tears streamed down her face as she was helped from the courtroom by a policeman. She will be eligible for parole in 1986.

Timothy died July 1 from a broken neck. The child also had cuts, bruises, pin pricks and burns on his body.

Before her marriage to Young, Mrs. Young had another son who died of a broken neck in 1973 at the age of 19 months. That death was ruled accidental. The trial of the Youngs was transferred to Klorence from Richland County because of pretrial publicity about the case.

No Charges In Auto Accident

No charges were made following investigation of an 8:10 a.m. mishap yesterday on Memorial Drive a half-mile South of the Moore Street intersection which caused an estimated $800 damage to car driven by Deborah Bryant Boyd of 101B Lakeview Terr.

Police said the Boyd car ran off the road, rolled over on its side, flipped back onto its wheels and came to rest at the bottom of a 20-foot embankment.

Charlie Hustling To The Phillies?

By NORM CLARKE AP Sports Writer CINCINNATI (AP) — Pete Rose, a red-blooded member of the Cincinnati Reds, talking about switching uniforms? That possibility surfaced Monday as the Reds were attempting to eliminate the Philadelphia Phillies in three straight for their second National League playoff sweep. Unhappy over references to his age during recent negotiations with the Reds, Rose has told friends he is disgruntled with annual contract haggling with the Reds' front office and is considering a move that could land him with the Phils. "Sure I'm unhappy. But it didn't just come up. I've been unhappy with my salary a long time," said the 10-time All-Star. Rose, who ironically has been the chief tormentor of the Phils during the regular season and in postseason play, could wind up in a Philadelphia uniform. Under major league baseball contract rules Rose holds the right to select where he would like to be traded. A player with 10 years experience in the major leagues and five with the same club can veto a trade to another club. The 35-year-old third baseman-outfielder, who was raised in Cincinnati and became one of baseball's biggest drawing cards with his hustling, aggressive style, has been a thorn in Philadelphia's side all season. He hit .442 against Phils' pitching during the season and went into today's game with a 5-for-10 effort. Rose is reportedly irritated over the Reds' initial contract offer which called for a two-year contract at $200,000 a year. He is currently receiving $190,000 a year. Teammates Johnny Bench and Joe Morgan are the highest paid players on the world champions, both at a reported $250,000 a year. Rose would neither confirm nor deny the report, saying: "My lawyer has met with them and we're still talking. I don't want to get into it now. This is not the right time to discuss it." When pressed on the trade possibility, he told The Associated Press: "Philadelphia is the only other team I'd like to play for. I could play left field there." A Reds' spokesman, who asked to remain anonymous, said the report "is strictly rumor at this point." He added, "I have to believe that Pete Rose will always be in a Cincinnati Reds' uniform."

Quarterback Pete Conaty In Action

Conaty Conference's Top Offensive Player

RESTON, Va. (AP) — Reserve quarterback Pete Conaty of East Carolina and defensive tackle Greg James of The Citadel today were named the Southern Conference football players of the week. Conaty, the conference scoring leader with an average of 10.8 points per game, was selected the offensive player for his performance in a 49-14 victory Saturday night over Southern Illinois. The 6-foot-3, 175-pound senior from Annandale, Va., took over for injured starter Mike Weaver and ran 10 times for 103 yards and one touchdown and completed his only pass for another 15 yards. Conaty, who missed a field goal for the first time in 11 tries this season, scored 13 points. He ran 62 yards for his touchdown, kicked three extra points and ran for a pair of two-point conversions. "Conaty ran the Wishbone more than any time this year and did a great job," said East Carolina Coach Pat Dye. James was named the defensive player for his performance in The Citadel's 14-10 victory over Tennessee-Chattanooga. The 6-foot-3, 225-pound senior from Memphis, Tenn., had eight primary tackles, six assists, recovered two fumbles, sacked the quarterback once and had two tackles for losses. One of his fumble recoveries set up the Bulldogs' winning touchdown. "James kept the pressure on the quarterback all night, which is what we had to do to win," said Coach Bobby Ross of The Citadel.

Western Group Will Bow Out

MOORESVILLE, N.C. (AP) — The 47-year-old Western North Carolina High School Activities Association will fold at the end of the school year, says its executive secretary, W.C. Clary. This would leave the much larger North Carolina High School Athletic Association as the sole governing organization for high school conferences in the state. The activities association began the school year with 38 schools compared with 325 for the athletic association. Clary, a Winston-Salem resident, said officials of the western activities association met at headquarters in Mooresville Monday to discuss possible realignment of schools. But one of the four conferences in the league, the six-school Northwestern Conference, applied this summer for membership in the North Carolina Association beginning with the 1977 school year, and the meeting focused on the fate of the western association. Clary said the other three conferences "had to decide whether to stay or to go. They decided to go." Simon Terrell, executive director of the North Carolina Association, said, "We will be meeting with three or four groups to determine what will happen to the schools currently in (the western) association."

ROCKY MOUNT — Northern Nash put four runners into the top ten and eased past Rose High School in a three-way cross-country meet yesterday. The Knights finished the event with 32 points, while Rose was close behind with 38. Rocky Mount, the host team, finished with 59 points. Rose had four runners in the top ten, but couldn't put enough of them into the top positions to win. The Rampants' Jesse Baker turned in the top time, finishing the meet in 13:02 for first place. Northern's M. Davis was second in 13:09, followed by O. Osterkamp of Rocky Mount in 13:21. Northern's B. Smith was fourth at 13:24, followed by J. Jones of Rocky Mount at 13:25. John Nobles of Rose finished sixth in 13:33, followed by E. Hardy and R. Hardy of Northern Nash, in 13:35 and 13:40 respectively. Rose took the final two spots in the top ten, with Til Jolly finishing ninth in 13:41, and Cliff Hagan, tenth in 13:42. Yankees Hope They've Gotten Over Mistakes

By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer NEW YORK (AP) — It is said that if you are going to make mistakes, it is best to make them all at once and get them out of your system. If that's the case, then the New York Yankees should be in good shape for tonight's third game of their American League playoff series against Kansas City. Dock Ellis, a 17-game winner, gets the start for New York against Andy Hassler, 5-12, of the Royals. The teams are tied 1-1 in the best-of-five playoff that will send the survivor into the World Series. The Yankees barely survived Sunday's 7-3 second-game loss. There were a season-high five errors of commission and at least one error of omission. There were pop flies falling all over the place. There was a missed cutoff throw and base-running blunders. It was a team loss in the truest sense. "Did you ever see anybody look good when they lose?" wondered New York catcher Thurman Munson, who made two of the errors of commission, both bad throws on stolen bases. "I don't pay attention to errors," said Yankees Manager Billy Martin. "My players are human. It was just one of those games."

Although the five Yankees errors cost only one unearned run, they were symbolic of the sloppiness of the game. Kansas City's go-ahead rally in the sixth inning was ignited by George Brett's triple, a hit that started out looking like a routine fly ball. "I thought I was going to catch it," said Yankees centerfielder Mickey Rivers, who plays his position notoriously shallow. "It took off and there was no chance." Brett gambled trying for the triple and barely beat the throw. He might not have if Rivers had hit the cutoff man. But the throw sailed past second baseman Willie Randolph, and shortstop Fred Stanfield had to make the relay. That was the error of omission. Earlier, Royals' shortstop Freddie Patek had fanned Chris Chambliss on the bases. Chambliss was on first base in the third inning with New York leading 3-2. Carlos May bounced a single into right field and Chambliss took off for second. Waiting for him was Patek, faking a play that sent the runner sliding in, safe by 200 feet as the ball bounced into right field. Another mistake. In the eighth inning, the Royals wrapped up their victory with a three-run rally on a pop-fly attack of looping singles by Frank White, Patek and Buck Martinez, a trio of hitters who never will be confused with Murderer's Row. "It's about time," decided rookie Tom Poquette, who drove in two of the Royals' seven runs with a single and double. "Things had to start evening out. We haven't been getting any breaks."

Brett thought the victory might be a turning point for the Royals, who staggered into the playoffs with nine losses in their final 11 regular-season games. "We had to beat them Sunday," said Brett, who had four hits in the first two games. "That's pretty obvious. If we lost that one, we'd have to win three in New York. I'm a confident guy but that would have been kind of ridiculous."

The Jets and the Cowboys captured victories yesterday in the Greenville Recreation Department's football programs. In the tackle program, the Jets took an opening season win over the Redskins, 14-12. The Cowboys are now 2-0 and the Dolphins, 0-2. Rodrick Harrell scored on a three-yard run in the first period, and Ed Frazier scored on a 20-yarder in the second. Bucs, 'Cats Play To Tie DAVIDSON — East Carolina's soccer team remains unbeaten in Southern Conference play after getting a tie with Davidson College yesterday, 1-1. Two overtime periods were played after the regulation game ended, but neither team could score, so by soccer rules the game ended in a tie. The Pirates are now 2-0-1 in conference play, leaving them atop the league standings. Overall, however, ECU is 2-7-1. Senior Pete Angus scored a penalty shot goal for the Pirates with 1:43 to go in regulation play to offset the first period goal of Davidson's Ronnie Walters. "We completely dominated the game as we did at Furman on Saturday," said a happy ECU coach Curtis Frye. "But the problem was getting the shots to go in; they just would not do it. We really poured it on offensively." "I think we are beginning to get it together now, behind fine senior leadership of Pete Angus and defensive player Tom Long." East Carolina had 31 shots on goal as compared to Davidson's 18. Pirate goalie John Keener had 16 saves while Davidson goalie Jay Alters stopped 22 Pirate shots.

Golfers In 2nd Place

BUIES CREEK — East Carolina junior golfer Keith Hiller fired a one over par 73 yesterday to pace the Pirate golf team to a second place standing after the first round of the Atlantic Christian College — Campbell College Bicentennial Collegiate Golf Invitational at Buies Creek. Hiller stands second in the field, trailing first-round medalist Jim Brombley of Campbell, who fired a three under par 69. The Pirates recorded a team total of 391, three strokes back of first place Campbell College "A" team with a 388. UNC-Charlotte stands third at 395. "Overall, I was not pleased with our play," said coach Mac McLendon. "I thought Keith played a super round, but after that we did not do as well as we should have. But then we have three freshmen trying to gain valuable experience in our fall schedule that played today." Play took place over the 6,735 yard Keith Hills Country Club that plays to par 72. The final round was to be played today. EAST CAROLINA SCORES: Keith Hiller, 73; David Brogan, 77; Donnie Owens, 78; Mike Buckmaster, 79; Ben Gilliam, 84; Ernie Masie, 92. EXPLANATION—The Dunkel system provides a continuous index to the relative strength of all teams. It reflects average scoring margin combined with average opposition rating, weighted in favor of recent performance. Example: a 50.0 team has been 10 scoring points stronger, per game, than a 40.0 team against opposition of identical strength. Originated in 1929 by Dick Dunkel.

San Francisco Surprises Rams, 16-0

By JACK STEVENSON
AP Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tommy Hart proved the silent giant of the San Francisco 49ers as he smashed through the line, tossed Los Angeles quarterback James Harris for losses on six occasions and didn't say a word.

"I didn't say anything to him and he didn't say anything to me," was the response of the 251-pound Hart after his 49ers had upset the Rams 16-0 in their nationally televised National Football League battle.

San Francisco quarterback Jim Plunkett threw touchdown passes of 36 yards to Willie McGee and six to Tom Mitchell in a third quarter blitz, but few defensive lines have done the job of the 49ers' front four. They tossed the 210-pound Harris for losses 10 times, a 49ers' club record, and reminded the big quarterback of when he was playing for the embryo Buffalo Bills.

"That," said the 6-foot-4 Hart, "was the greatest game of my career," and no one would argue with the nine-year pro veteran from Morris Brown College who has been the starting defensive left end for the 49ers the past six years.

His greatest game propelled San Francisco to a 4-1 record and ahead of the 3-1 Rams in the NFC West. The Southern California team had been favored by 13 points.

The Rams dominated the first quarter but picked up four penalties for holding. As Plunkett saw it, "That was the only way they could keep our defensive guys out."

Coach Chuck Knox of the previously undefeated Rams admitted, "They have one of the most active defensive lines in the league. They just got us in situations they would like us to be in. We tried adjustments in our blocking, but it just got to be third and 12 and here they come."

"We knew if we could stop the Rams' running game, particularly on the first down, we could beat them," Hart explained. "They have the best running in the conference and usually are good for four to six yards on that first down. We stopped them, and that is the difference."

In the first two league games, both Lawrence McCutcheon and John Cappelletti, the 1-2 running attack of the Rams gained more than 100 yards each per game.

The 49ers stopped McCutcheon at 72 yards on 16 carries and throttled Cappelletti at 12 yards in seven carries.

San Francisco, after a 0-0 first half, whizzed 73 yards in four plays after taking the second-half kickoff. A Plunkett to Del Williams pass gained 20 yards and another eight when the receiver fumbled out of bounds. On the next play, Plunkett hit McGee for the touchdown.

Then Hart's sacks on Harris with resultant fumbles set up the second touchdown and an 18-yard field goal by Steve Mike-Mayer — all the scoring in 5 minutes 56 seconds of the third quarter.

The game marked the first time the Rams had been shut out at home in a regular season game since they came to Los Angeles from Cleveland in 1946.

'Out-Luckied' Phils Try Scrambling

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
AP Sports Writer

CINCINNATI (AP) — Manager Danny Ozark discovered what was wrong with his Philadelphia Phillies, but it may have been too late to save the Eastern Division champions from elimination in the National League playoffs.

"We've been out-luckied," explained Ozark, the master of the malaprop.

Ozark hoped the Phils' luck changed in today's third game of the best-of-five series in which they trailed the Cincinnati Reds 2-0. Left-hander Jim Kaat, 12-14, pitched for the Phils, and Gary Nolan, 15-9, tried to put the Reds in the World Series for the second straight year.

The Phillies, who won 101 games enroute to the East title with the help of an often spectacular defense, have fallen apart in the field during the playoffs. They made only two physical errors in the first two games, but mental miscues — throwing to the wrong base against the aggressively running Reds was very damaging.

Ozark insisted at Monday's workout at Riverfront Stadium that the Phillies had not been intimidated by Cincinnati's tactics. He pointed to his players, who were bantering as they worked, and asked if it appeared they were tight.

"If they were standing around (quietly), I'd be very embarrassed having them out there," he said.

The Reds' Joe Morgan, however, disagreed with Ozark.

"When we're doing our thing we create pressure," said Morgan, who walked five times in two games but has yet to get a hit.

"It's not the pressure of the playoff that has been forcing Philadelphia to make mistakes. It's been us," Morgan said.

Morgan said the Reds' strategy would be different for the third game. "We can play for the big inning now, because we're two games up. That doesn't mean we'll take it easy. We're going to play like it's the seventh game of the World Series. But we can take more chances."

The 37-year-old Kaat, who at Minnesota pitched in one championship series and one World Series, believed the Phillies were in a relaxed position.

"We're two down, and nobody gives us a chance to win (the series) now," Kaat said. "No one expects us to win three here. We just might shock a lot of people. If we win tomorrow (Tuesday), we have a good chance of going all the way."

Kaat was prepared for the Reds' basestealing game.

"I'll have to hold them in close," said Kaat, who has a good pickoff move. "But the main problem is to get 'em out before they get to first."

Kaat was 2-1 against Cincinnati during the regular season, but gave up 39 hits and 14 runs in 25 2-3 innings.

The 28-year-old Nolan was Cincinnati's biggest winner in the drive to the Western Division championship. He was second on the staff in complete games with seven, and was involved in three shutouts. Nolan was 1-1 against the Phillies this season. He was, however, battered for 22 hits and 12 runs in 20 innings against the East champions.

Group Claims Support For Canadian Boycott

By GEOFFREY MILLER
AP Sports Writer

BARCELONA, Spain (AP) — Charles Palmer, outspoken president of the International Judo Federation, claims he is gathering support for a plan to deprive Canada of all international sports events for the next 10 years.

He seized the initiative during meetings of the 26 Olympic sports federations with the Executive Board of the International Olympic Committee, which opened Monday.

Palmer wants to slap sanctions on Canada because the Canadian government shut out the athletes of Taiwan from the Montreal Olympics last July — an act which the IOC claimed was a breach of faith.

"I think we must take the Commonwealth Games away from Canada in 1978," Palmer said. "I don't like hypocrisy. If we apply sanctions, we should make them stick properly."

"At least a half-dozen federations have told me they will support my plan. Another half-dozen are violently opposed to it. All the others presumably are somewhere in the middle, and we shall have to wait and see."

Palmer is an Englishman of growing influence, because he is the secretary of the General Assembly of Federations (GAIF).

He put his plan for Canada before Monday's opening session of the IOC's Tripartite Commission, on which representatives of the federations and the national Olympic committees sit.

"It was not the place to discuss my plan at length, because this committee merely advises the IOC and does not make decisions," Palmer said. "But at least I aired it, and I am glad to say nobody fainted and fell on the floor."

"This would hurt a lot of people in Canada. I don't like hurting people, but I feel we have to take action to prevent what happened in Montreal happening again in the future."

The IOC has no jurisdiction over the Commonwealth Games, which are scheduled for Edmonton. But the federations could force the games to be moved. Judo, Palmer's sport, is not a part of the Commonwealth Games program.

The Canadian government refused visas to the Taiwanese because they would not abandon their chosen name of the Republic of China.

Meanwhile, Lord Killanin, president of the IOC, said he has had repeated promises from the Soviet Union that athletes from all countries recognized by the IOC will be free to compete in the 1980 Olympics in Moscow.

The IOC protested loudly when Canada shut out the Taiwanese, but resisted pressure from some quarters to cancel the Olympics.

Now the IOC has to decide what to do about 29 African countries which walked out of the Montreal Games at short notice in protest against a New Zealand rugby team touring South Africa.

Palmer wants all the African nations involved in the boycott banned from international events for five years.

The IOC will listen to the views of the federations but will make no decision on the Africans until its annual assembly in Prague next June.

Peppler New Falcon Coach

By ED SHEARER
AP Sports Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — General Manager Pat Peppler, who never has served as a head football coach above the high school level, was on the practice field today as the new coach of the Atlanta Falcons.

Peppler, 54, was named Monday night as the field boss of the faltering Falcons for the remainder of the National Football League season, succeeding Marion Campbell, who was fired by owner Rankin Smith.

Peppler, who has not actually coached on the field since serving as an assistant at Wake Forest in 1962, also will continue as general manager, a position he will return to when the season ends.

"He's got a thankless task," said Smith, who called the dismissal of Campbell "the most difficult decision of my life."

Smith said he would name a new coach for the 1977 season "as soon as I can after this season ends."

Campbell, 47, moved up from an assistant's post when Smith fired outspoken Norm Van Brocklin in November, 1974.

During his tenure, Campbell had a record of 6-19, with the end becoming apparent Sunday when his team was embarrassed 30-0 by the New Orleans Saints. It was Atlanta's fourth defeat in five games this season.

Atlanta never got untracked this year, having trouble during both the exhibition and regular seasons. The team faced what many considered its most favorable schedule in years.

Smith said he did not offer Campbell another spot in the organization "because he doesn't need it." He said Campbell should have no trouble getting another job and, besides, his contract with Atlanta runs through the 1977 season.

Peppler said that his first move was to ask Bill Walsh, the offensive line coach, to remain in that capacity and also as an assistant head coach.

The bidding:

1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass
3 ♥ Pass 4 ♥ Pass
6 ♣ Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: Five of ♣.

No one seems to know just who Murphy was, but his Law is well known: "If something can go wrong, it will". In a state of euphoria at reaching a splendid vulnerable slam, South forgot about this Law and paid a heavy penalty. Despite his tremendous playing potential, South contented himself with an opening bid of one diamond because it was highly unlikely that the auction would die there. When North could respond at the two-level and then raise his partner's second suit, South atoned for any initial sluggishness by leaping straight to slam.

West led a trump, won in dummy. The hand seemed to present no problem. Declarer, however, was mesmerized by the diamond suit and felt he might have to ruff two diamonds in dummy, so he did not want to draw trumps immediately. Instead, he led a diamond to his ace, and West's ruff was a mortal blow. Declarer still had to lose a diamond for down one.

Had South been prepared for the worst to happen, he would have realized that he could handle a 4-0 diamond break in either hand once both defenders had followed to the first trick. Declarer should simply have drawn three rounds of trumps, ending in dummy. Now, he leads a diamond, finessing, if East follows low.

If West wins with an honor, that means diamonds will break no worse than 3-1, and the ace of diamonds followed by a ruff will set up the suit. If West shows out in diamonds, as happens here, declarer has a number of options to limit the defenders to one diamond trick. The easiest is to concede a diamond and ruff one in dummy.

What if East shows out on the first diamond lead? Again declarer can make the hand in different ways, one of which is to simply pass the first diamond to West. When declarer regains the lead, he cashes the ace of diamonds and takes the marked ruffing finesse against West's remaining honor. In either case, declarer can lose no more than one diamond trick.

Mel Tillis CMA 'Entertainer Of Year'

By JOE EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Moments before the nationally televised 10th annual Country Music Association awards show, Mel Tillis was still trying to find his wife and his assigned seat.

It's a good thing he finally found them, because 90 minutes later he was chosen entertainer of the year — the CMA's top award.

But the most honors Monday night went to entertainers Waylon Jennings and Willie Nelson.

who shared three awards — single of the year for "Good Hearted Woman," vocal duo of the year, and album of the year for "Wanted — The Outlaws" along with Jessi Colter and Tompall Glaser.

Jennings was not present for the awards show at the Grand Ole Opry House because of "personal and private reasons."

The versatile Tillis — a singer, songwriter, comedian and television personality — was chosen over Jennings, Nelson, Dolly Parton and Ronnie Milsap for the most coveted award.

"I was completely surprised," said Tillis, known to country music fans as the entertainer who stutters except when he sings.

"I had no idea I had a chance with Waylon and Willie being so popular and Ronnie Milsap and Dolly being in there," the 43-year-old Tillis said.

Checking Soil Under A Rock

By RICHARD SALTUS
AP Science Writer
PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Soil from under an oddly shaped Martian rock nicknamed "Mr. Badger" will be studied by Viking 2's laboratory, as scientists begin to run out of places near the lander to seek life.

Scientists hope to begin analysis on Friday of a scoopful of soil scraped from the protected environment underneath the rock to see if it contains organic molecules.

Scientists today awaited photographs to confirm that Viking 2's mechanical arm made its scheduled soil collection Monday night from under the rock, which was shoved aside earlier by the arm.

Beneath rocks, where soil is protected from the withering solar radiation glaring through Mars' thin atmosphere, "is really the only different environment accessible to Vikings 1 and 2," Dr. Klaus Biemann said.

Scientists will wait a few days to ensure that the digging was properly done before ordering the robot lab on Friday to begin analyzing the soil sample.

Biemann, head of the Viking molecular analysis team, reported Monday that, once again, Viking's organic analysis instrument had failed to find any trace of the carbon-based organic molecules related to all forms of living organisms found on earth.

Although it was the latest in a long series of negative reports, scientists said they were not ready to "throw in the sponge" in the Mars life search.

Project Manager James Martin announced that the lab will prod two other rocks next week, then push the looser of the two aside to dig a new sample for the biology experiments aboard Viking 2.

Moments before the show began, announcer Ralph Emery noticed that Tillis couldn't find his seat.

"Would Mel Tillis' wife please stand so he can find his seat?" he asked over the loudspeakers. After much laughter, Tillis sheepishly sat down.

Milsap, blind since birth and a country singer for only three years, and Miss Parton were voted top vocalists, Miss Parton for the second straight year.

Nelson, generally considered the favorite for the top award, said he was "a little disappointed" that Jennings passed up the show.

"It was his decision and I respect it," said Nelson, a former door-to-door Bible and vacuum cleaner salesman.

"I kind of thought we might win something, but not this much," he said.

Miss Parton said afterwards:

"I just want to continue doing better."

Kitty Wells, "the queen of country music," and the late recording executive Paul Cohen were voted into the Country Music Hall of Fame.

Other winners were: "Rhinestone Cowboy," written by Larry Weiss and recorded by Glen Campbell, song of the year; the Statler Brothers, vocal group of the year; Roy Clark and Buck Trent, instrumental group of the year, and blind pianist Hargus "Pig" Robbins, instrumentalist of the year.

Flaherty Favors A Recall Proviso

RALEIGH (AP) — Republican gubernatorial candidate David Flaherty says the state constitution should be amended to permit voters to remove from office state officials who did not please them.

Flaherty told a news conference Monday a recall provision should be considered by a constitutional convention which he has proposed to deal with a number of other issues. Flaherty said the constitution should allow the issue of recall to be placed on the ballot upon petition by 25 per cent of the votes cast in the last general election for governor, and in a recall election "a majority of the popular vote would be required to actually recall an official."

"A constitutional convention," Flaherty said, "would be healthy for North Carolina. It could resolve some of the issues that have plagued us for many years. It could give the people a new sense of involvement and participation in government."

Flaherty noted that Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt, his Democratic opponent, has opposed a constitutional convention, "but he offers no substantive reasons for his opposition."

Flaherty said other issues a constitutional convention should consider include:

- Veto power for the governor.
- Election of the State Board of Education and appointment of the state superintendent of public instruction.

—The right of the governor to succeed himself, or a six-year term for the governor.

—The role of the lieutenant governor.

—Appointment of certain other Council of State members.

—Providing for an initiative provision in North Carolina's Constitution.

Flaherty told newsmen in answer to questions he believes the Nov. 2 general election would reveal "a Republican year."

"I think we are going to pick up three congressional seats in North Carolina," he said, including Bruce Briggs in the 11th District, Wilmer Mizell in the 5th, and Jack Blanchard in the 3rd. He said Republican John Galloway could win in the 4th District if he does well in a debate with Rep. Ike Andrews, D-N.C.

In addition, Flaherty said he believed Avery Nye would be elected to continue as commissioner of labor.

"I personally feel I'm ahead, but I have nothing to substantiate it," Flaherty said of his race with Hunt.

"I'm ahead in so many counties, you wouldn't believe it," he added.

"The biggest obstacle" in his campaign, Flaherty said, has been money—getting sufficient money to buy the TV advertising he needs. He pointed out, however, his campaign had already raised more money than any other Republican campaign in North Carolina history.

Asked if he intended to borrow additional money to help finance his campaign, Flaherty said that would depend on the results of an upcoming poll.

He said he was not "going to hook everything" to buy TV time if the poll doesn't look good.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market showed some scattered losses today, struggling to halt the steep decline of the past two weeks.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was little changed from Monday's close in early trading today. But declines outnumbered advances by about a 4-3 margin in the over-all count of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Brokers reported a continued reluctance to buy among traders unnerved by the market's steep drop of late.

On Monday the Dow Jones industrial average tumbled 11.56 to 940.82, its lowest close in nearly nine months.

The loss brought the average's total decline for the past 10 trading days to 72.31 points.

Losers outnumbered gainers by about a 5-1 margin on the NYSE, and the exchange's composite index fell 53 to 54.32. Big Board volume slowed to 14.62 million shares with many banks and other important investing institutions closed for Columbus Day.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index dropped 1.24 to 98.72.

GATLINBURG, Tenn. (AP) — The fate of a 16-year-old Knoxville girl, missing since Friday in the Great Smoky Mountain National Park, grew dimmer with searchers finding no trace of her after nearly 3 1/2 days.

But park officials say they will renew their search today, adding they have not given up hope that Trenny Gibson is still alive.

"There's a lot of territory out there and it is quite easy to get lost," said Gene Phillips, the park ranger coordinating the search.

"We'll continue as long as we think there is a possibility we may find her."

Hunt Proposes...

policy, Hunt proposed the establishment of "a permanent Governor's Advisory Committee on Agriculture, to provide ideas, information and advice on a continuing basis."

He suggested that any policy should assure that agricultural interests have a voice in the decisions that affect them; emphasize the development of export markets and the use of the state's ports; attract young people to agriculture and train them for farming careers; and keep the state's research and extension efforts strong.

He also said a state agriculture policy should put more emphasis on preserving and strengthening the family farm as well as preserve farm land from urban development, and outline the proper state role in providing leadership and support for agricultural development.

"All of these ideas add up to one thing," Hunt said. "Our farmers need a governor who understands their problems and is committed to helping them. Our farmers haven't had the strong leadership and support that they need from the Governor's office in the last 3 1/2 years. I think it's time they got it."

Hunt noted, "If I am elected governor, I will provide that leadership and support for agriculture in North Carolina."

The candidate said his campaign will continue to be positive. "North Carolina deserves that kind of campaign telling the voters what we ought to be doing... the kind of leadership we ought to have."

Hunt also said this morning that former Georgia Governor Jimmy Carter, the Democrat candidate for president, is "going to carry the state," in the November election.

The lieutenant governor said first, Carter is a farmer, and second, "he'll shake it up in Washington."

"We've got to cut out the red tape and make the bureaucracy more responsive to the people. He can shake it up..."

subject to approval by the City Council.

Real Estate Officer Kirby Boyd told commissioners that two structures were demolished in the Central Business District since the September meeting. In addition to the demolition of Rogers Warehouse and the building north of Taft Furniture Co., preparation is being made for the demolition of the Pollard Building, located at the corner of Third and Cotanche Streets, Boyd said.

He reported that a severance was acquired in Southside and two structures were removed during the past month. One of the structures was demolished, Boyd said, while the other was removed to another site with plans for rehabilitation.

In West Meadowbrook, 13 parcels were acquired and two houses were removed.

Boyd noted that two relocations were completed in the CBD since the last meeting, involving Provident Finance on Dickinson Avenue and a tenant from the Brewer house.

Faye Brewington, Southside Project manager, reported that two families were relocated from the area while six homeowners moved from West Meadowbrook. The six homeowners purchased homes in other areas, she said.

Commission Rehabilitation Officer Ed Cobb told the board members that eight rehabilitation projects have been completed in West Meadowbrook and five have been finished in Southside. Two houses have been rehabilitated by their owners in Southside, he added.

Cobb noted that three 312 Loans have been approved totaling $17,750. That money has been placed in escrow for rehabilitation work, he said.

Joe Laney, executive director, reported that Boyd and Cobb

Lawson, Mrs. Barbara Best, Mrs. Lizzie Williams, Mrs. Elsie D. Suggs, James W. Taylor, Joe Blount, Mrs. Magnora Hyman, John Howard, Mrs. Viola Boyd, and Mrs. Queenie Harris. Their report will be made at the November meeting at Mount Olive Baptist Church in Ayden.

It was reported that there appears to be discrimination in the sale and maintenance of burial plots in the Town of Winterville. The Town tax-have been assigned additional duties as business relocation and business rehabilitation officers, respectively. Laney said that the new duties are part of a transition by the Commission from urban renewal to community development work.

The director contended that as the transition is made, he feels there is a need to move away from a project-oriented organization and back to a more centralized approach for community development execution. The approach will mean a smaller staff in that Dan Sullivan, who resigned last month as assistant CBD project manager, will not be replaced.

In other business, commissioners approved an increase in the commission travel allowance from $40 per day to $50 per day. The new limit was previously authorized by HUD. Laney said that the travel pay includes lodging and meals, both of which have increased in cost since the Commission last reviewed the travel policy in 1971.

The attendance of two staff members at a workshop of the Carolinas Council of Housing, Redevelopment and Codes Officials, scheduled for Nov. 18-19 in Charlotte, was approved.
