Carter, Ford Exchange Telegrams On Issues

By MIKE FEINSILBER

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (UPI) — Jimmy Carter complained in a telegram to the President and to an outdoor rally Saturday that Ford was misrepresenting his positions and asked him to stop "as a man of integrity."

"Mr. Ford knows that he's telling the American people things that are not true," Carter shouted before an enthusiastic crowd in the steelmaking center of Youngstown.

"I want you to watch Mr. Ford the next few days. He's the President of the United States and he's supposed to tell the truth. If he repeats these statements, he is not telling the truth."

In his telegram, Carter complained that Ford had been making "misleading and erroneous statements" about Carter's positions on tax increases, tax reforms, the cost of Carter's proposals and the size of his proposed defense budget cuts.

After listing these areas, Carter told Ford: "I am sure that after these corrections you, as a man of integrity, will refrain from making these misleading and erroneous statements to the American people." He read the telegram aloud at the Youngstown rally.

"The midwest is historically considered Republican," he said. "But I don't concede any state in the midwest to Mr. Ford. We're well ahead in the South, holding our own in the East. We're having some trouble in the West, perhaps, and the Midwest is crutial."

Carter said Ford has been saying that Carter wants to increase taxes on low-and moderate-income families, wants to cut defense spending by $15 billion, wants to eliminate the income tax deduction for interest paid on home mortgages and advocates programs that would add $100 billion or more to the federal budget. None of those are correct, Carter said.

United Press International

President Ford whistle-stopped his way through the Abe Lincoln country of downstate Illinois Saturday, trading telegrams with Jimmy Carter on the issue of whose political claims are correct.

Ford sent Carter a reply citing specific press reports and public statements about alleged contradictions by the Democratic candidate. Ford said "I eagerly await" next Friday's final presidential debate to hear Carter's response.

The states each candidate chose to campaign in Saturday are among the most politically important in the nation. Both Illinois and Ohio have long records of voting for winning presidential candidates. Illinois has gone for the winner in each of the past 14 presidential elections.

As the 1976 campaign enters the home stretch, Illinois with its 26 electoral votes is considered Carter territory and Ohio with its 25 electoral votes is viewed as a toss-up.

Ford, increasing his stridency after a brief letup, told crowds Carter is a candidate who would "say anything, anywhere" to get elected and who "wanders, wavers, waffles and wiggles. He's not the man you want to be president."

Ford repeated the claims to a crowd in Lincoln, Ill. and said he had replied to Carter's telegram, citing interviews, press conferences and other public statements as suporting his version of the Democratic candidate's policies.

The President also repeated the charge, first made at his Thursday night news conference, that when Carter says the country is not respected abroad "he's slandering the United States."

Ford said Carter wants to raise taxes for the middle class, eliminate the income tax deduction for home mortgage interest payments, cut the defense budget $15 billion and increase federal spending by $100 billion. Each of those claims — denied by Carter — has been raised before, and sometimes in similar language, by GOP running mate Robert Dole.

Carter won editorial endorsement in Sunday editions of the Denver Post and the Hutchinson, Kan., News, largest newspaper in Dole's home area. Ford won the endorsement of the Sunday Chattanooga News Free Press.

The Post said Carter's "freshness outweighs his experience" and "represents the best shot for the Rocky Mountain west." The News praised Carter's "sensitivity" and advocacy of foreign policy "with a sense of morality."

The News Free Press said Ford "will provide leadership in a moderately conserviative direction that will be generally good."

DURHAM, N.C. (UPI) — The cause of a fire that killed two elderly women and left three others injured at a nursing home here Friday night was still under investigation Saturday, with officials saying a cigarette may have touched off the blaze.

In addition to the nursing home residents, three Durham public safety officers suffered minor injuries while fighting the blaze.

The fire, which broke out shortly after 9 p.m., claimed the lives of Maggie Turner and Edna Jones, both 80 years old.

Big Carter Majority Predicted By Hunt

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (UPI) — Lt. Gov. James B. Hunt Jr. predicted Saturday that North Carolina will "give Jimmy Carter his biggest majority outside of Georgia" in the Nov. 2 presidential election.

In remarks prepared for delivery at the Democratic Party's annual Vance-Aycock Dinner here, the Democratic nominee for governor said "this nation and our state have been wounded by the Republicans."

Hunt said the national Republican administration had been guilty of "lies and deceptions" in the last eight years.

Hunt criticized the handling of the economy, agriculture, housing and education by the administrations of President Nixon and President Ford and said "in all endeavors that affect people and their quality of life, the Democratic party has offered the leadership."

Fervent Demonstrations Reported In Shanghai

BY CHARLES R. SMITH
UPI Senior Editor

HONG KONG (UPI) — A Western visitor to Shanghai said "all hell broke loose" in China's largest city Saturday with tens of thousands of people demonstrating in support of the purge of Mao Tse-tung's widow and three Communist party leaders.

The visitor, who spent several days in Shanghai, said demonstrations went on throughout the day Friday and resumed early Saturday.

He said the demonstrators plastered posters on buildings along Nanking road, the city's main thoroughfare, and other streets. They put up caricatures of Mao's widow Chiang Ching and the three Shanghai leaders who composed the radical group in the Communist party's central leadership. The Shanghai leaders are Chang Chun-chao, Wang Hung-wen and Yao Wen-yuan.

"All hell broke loose there," the vistor told UPI in a telephone conversation. "I have never seen anything like it. Nanking road was impassable...there were at least 70,000 people in those areas when I left Saturday afternoon, and the crowd was getting bigger.

"They plastered posters everywhere. They started putting posters on the ground floor yesterday and moved steadily up the floors with the posters today.

"The first posters did not mention any names. But later, the posters actually named the four and said, 'Smash the Anti-Party Clique'."

The visitor said the caricatures showed the four with nooses around their necks and large "X's" across their faces.

"They were putting up yellowish green caricatures today, distorting the faces of the four to look like animals. One poster showed a large red steel fist coming down to crush them."

Some posters were put on the outside of the Peace Hotel where the visitor and other foreigners were staying.

"The people began rushing the hotel as if to attack it. Some carried ladders. We were frightened, thinking they were attacking the hotel. Then we saw they were putting up caricatures and posters. The hotel staff rolled down steel shutters at the entrance and did not let the foreigners leave the hotel," he said.

In a broadcast earlier this week Shanghai Radio gave support to Hua as the new party leader and also supported party decisions connected with the purge of the four.

Flaherty Stumps For East-West Highway

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Republican gubernatorial candidate David Flaherty vowed Saturday that he would push a bond issue to pay for construction of an east-west highway if elected.

"The east-west highway is not something I'm going to promise. I'm going to build it," Flaherty said in a televised interview aired Saturday night. "I don't know what else has to go by the wayside, but I'm going to build an east-west highway."

Flaherty said he would like to have a $500 million bond issue, but believes $300 million is as much as the state can afford for the project. "That's what we will promote and we'll go for it — a $300 million dollar bond issue for secondary roads," he said. Flaherty made his comments on WXII-TV's "Report to the People" program.

Flaherty predicted the presidential and gubernatorial races would be close in North Carolina. And he said if elected, he would hold "People's Days," and regularly visit newspapers and radio and television stations in the state.

N.C. AAUP Meeting Focused On Higher Education Issues

By BETTY SANDERSON
Reflector Staff Writer

"The issue which will probably be the most controversial one for the next General Assembly is the support of students attending private institutions of higher education," N.C. Senator Katherine Sebo said in a luncheon talk Saturday.

The senator, keynote speaker of the annual state fall convention of the North Carolina chapter of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP) that opened here Friday, added "We need to make a decision on long-range support provided by the state."

Sen. Sebo noted she had remained neutral on the subject in the General Assembly, due to her affiliation with Guilford College, but she cited information from a recent Carnegie Endowments report which favors state support of private institutions of higher education.

"Then there is the aspect of increased state involvement in community colleges and technical institutes," she remarked. "Complexities are developing now because they are under the administration of the State Board of Education. The board's efforts have not been very successful," she said, "and there is a question of effective administration by a board concerned mainly with primary and secondary education.

The lady senator noted that "the proportion of state funds for higher education in North Carolina is greater than in other states." Because of urgent problems in other areas, such as prisons, Ms. Sebo said "General Assembly support for higher education will probably not be expanding, nor will it receive

A Challenge To Congressional Candidates

The time limit for political campaigns for this year is slowly winding down. For the citizens of the first district, our Congressional campaign has not really heated up! How can the voters have anything but apathy towards our government if our candidates for political office will not express their views? We as voters have a right to know how each candidate feels on the problems confronting us as a nation.

For too long now, the government in Washington has bounced the blame for this country's ills back and forth. The people know that the blame belongs on Capitol Hill. The majority of Congress has been elected year after year and the country gets the same old line "politics as usual". Both houses of Congress have demonstrated that they are unwilling and unable to move with deliberate action on this country's problems. Only when it concerns a pay raise for themselves and a vote that doesn't call for a strong stand do we see swift action!

I believe that as Congress now functions within itself, it is unable and unwilling to tackle this country's troubles at a pace our changing society needs. This is because too many Senators and Congressmen owe their political wellbeing to many special interest groups and not to the people as a nation!

I challenge the candidates for Congress to take a stand for a change in our government with the public announcement of the inclusion of the following points in their campaign platforms and to actively work towards getting these points passed as legislation in the next Congress!

1. That a Supreme Court Justice be limited to 12 years of service.
2. The President and Vice President be limited to one 4 year term of office.
3. Both candidates for President and Vice President be chosen by the vote of the people in the primarys.
4. A Senator to serve for only two consecutive 6 year terms.
5. A Congressman's length of service be six consecutive two year terms.
6. In 1978 the senior half of all Senators and Congressmen with over 12 years of service are to step down. In 1980 all other Senators and Congressmen with over 12 years of service to step down.
7. Each Congressional candidate publish his Income Tax return for the past year.
8. The members of Congress to publish a list of supporters and the amount of their donations for campaign use.
9. All members to make public the amount of all finances for their office and staff and to report all allowances and expense funds along with the amount of money spent on trips taken.
10. All members of the Congress who are accused of wrong doings are to be investigated by the Attorney General of the United States.

If the members of our government have the courage to make into law the above suggestions, I feel that they will be on the road to regaining their political dignity and the respect of the American people.

Artist–Author Tulie Speight Dies At Age 85

DOYLESTOWN, PA.—Miss Tulie Irene Speight, 85, sister of Greenville artist Dr. Francis Speight, died in the Philadelphia suburb on Thursday, October 14.

Plans for funeral services are incomplete at this time. The burial is planned on Saturday, October 23, in the Speight Family Cemetery near Windsor in Bertie County.

Miss Speight, who was the person most instrumental in convincing her brother Francis to give up an early career in writing to concentrate on painting, was herself an artist of note as well as an author, a teacher and a devoted crusader for teaching children to read by the phonetic—or as she called it, the alphabet system of learning to read. In her early life she taught in the Bertie County public schools for several years.

A graduate of Chowan College, where she first formally studied art, Miss Speight also studied with Miss Ida Poteat at Meredith College. While an art student at the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Art in Philadelphia, in 1926 Miss Speight won a Cresson Traveling Scholarship for travel and study in Europe. In 1928 she was awarded the Pennsylvania Academy's coveted first Toppan Prize for an oil painting.

She lived and studied in Europe for three years and was accepted for study with the noted French artist Henri L'Hote.

On returning to the U.S., she made her home in Washington, D.C. with her late sister Margaret. During this time, she was injured in a fall on a street which invalided her for more than a year. Miss Speight remained a semi-invalid for the remainder of her life.

Among her numerous achievements was writing and illustrating a basic Latin reader for young students.

About 1940, she became interested in teaching children to read by the phonetic system and began a crusade opposing the teaching of reading by the word system and other methods. Although unsuccessful in her attempts, she continued efforts for this cause until the time of her death.

Dr. Francis Speight is the sole survivor left by Miss Speight.

Three Arrested, Deputy Dies

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Three men, including two Ft. Bragg soldiers, were charged with armed robbery in connection with Friday's holdup of a Fair Bluff bank, the FBI said Saturday in Charlotte.

The soldiers, Grover Lee Hall, 26, and Aldace Walker Hynson, 23, were being held Saturday in the Cumberland County Jail at Fayetteville, an FBI spokesman said.

The third suspect, Dole Williams, 24, was in stable condition at Southeastern General Hospital in Lumberton, where he underwent surgery for a fractured skull.

The FBI said three men entered the First Union National Bank in Fair Bluff Friday afternoon and robbed the tellers at gunpoint.

Two Fair Bluff policemen, Linneau D. Hammond, 52, and Grady Powell Jr., 39, saw the getaway car and gave pursuit, across the county line into Fairmont in Robeson County. Their car was involved in an accident and Hammond died shortly before 9 p.m. in Southeastern General Hospital, apparently of internal injuries, according to a hospital spokesman.

For Candidate George Grayiel

Highways Top Priority

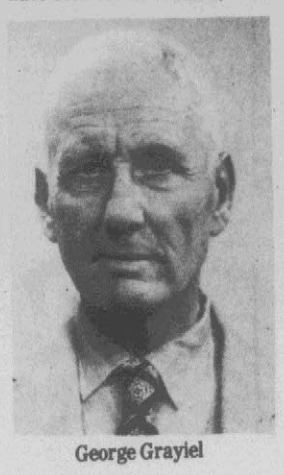
By BARBARA MATHEWS
Reflector Staff Writer

Improvement of the highway system in eastern North Carolina is the top priority of George Alton Grayiel, Republican candidate for state senator from the sixth senatorial district. Grayiel, 58, was campaigning in Greenville yesterday.

"Nowhere have highways 264 or 64 been mentioned in the new programs for this area," he said. "A consultant has suggested what should be done, but nothing has been done yet. "This problem is not only in the four-county area (Pitt, Edgecombe, Martin and Halifax counties), but is in Greene County as well. "I would want to see these roads improved now."

Grayiel also said he would encourage the further industrialization of eastern North Carolina.

He said he feels the industries would absorb the labor now being displaced by the use of highly technical farm machinery. "Since we have gotten into agribusiness, we need a place for what would have been our farm labor," said Grayiel. "The tenant farmers have gone to work for the industries now. And they are working for their homes, cars and necessities. They are not just receiving these things from the government."



George Grayiel

Grayiel favors the building of airports in the area. "Another big need is for airports for the industries," he said. "Greenville is fortunate enough to have one, but the other towns do not. We have a definite need for that in this industrial area."

Grayiel also supports capital punishment. "I would uphold capital punishment for the major offenses it is set up for," said Grayiel. "I would not want it mandatory, though. Those offenses are premeditated, and the jury must decide."

Grayiel, who recently retired after 35 years with the Postal Service "especially to run for the North Carolina state senate", is chairman of the Edgecombe County Republican Party. "I'm definitely interested in this section of North Carolina," he said. "I'm mighty proud of it."

Boys' Club Repainted By Area PDCA Firms

The Pitt County-Greenville Boys' Club took on what director Chet Emerson calls "A really beautiful shade of smokey gray, all trimmed in white."

The fresh new look of the club is a volunteer donation from firms in three towns—Greenville, Wilson, and Rocky Mount.

"Billy Davis headed the project," Emerson said. "He's president of the Eastern Carolina Chapter of Painting and Decorating Contractors of America (PDCA), the people who gave both time and material to help us."

Several painters from the five firms, A.B. Whitley, Inc. of Greenville; Brewer Paint and Wallpaper Co., Rocky Mount; Bridger Paint and Wallpaper Col., Wilson; Raymond Gaster Paint Contractor, Wilson; and G.T. Brown and Company, Wilson, completed the entire job on the club building on Skinner Street in one day's time—last Friday.

"I understand the paint and labor donated by these firms would have cost us about $2,000 if we had had to contract and pay for the job," Emerson said. "We're really grateful for this fine help."

The project is one of many similar projects undertaken nationally by PDCA members for Boys' Clubs throughout America.

In a letter last week, President Ford expressed his appreciation and recognition for their assistance. Also, Sen. Mark Hatfield of Oregon, paid special tribute to the group for their service to communities and to the nation.

very high priority in relation to other problems."

At a dinner held Friday night, David J. Whichard, II, editor of The Daily Reflector, delivered an address prepared by Lt. Governor Jim Hunt, Democratic gubernatorial candidate for North Carolina. Phillip Kirk, who was scheduled to deliver an address prepared by Republican gubernatorial candidate David Flaherty, was unable to attend the AAUP dinner meeting.

On the issue of state support to private institutions of higher education, Hunt states in his address: "I supported the increase for state aid to private higher educational institutions for North Carolina residents in order to help offset the difference in cost . . ."

Other remarks were that "private schools must survive," and that "each North Carolina resident attending private school is saving taxpayers approximately $2,000 per year."

In the address read by Whichard, Hunt touched on a broad spectrum of higher education issues. These include:

—On guaranteeing academic freedom to all faculty . . . "I strongly believe that academic freedom is an important factor in preserving our higher education system . . . (it) also protects research and recommendations from becoming politicized."

—On tenure . . . "I support tenure for both higher education and public school faculty . . . I believe that our faculty have the right to job security and that our education system improves with continuity resulting from tenure."

—Hunt's address urges "development of written and clearly defined personnel policies, grievance procedures, and due process for all public employees. But," he adds, "I cannot support a collective bargaining act.

Whichard noted that Hunt was unable to be in Greenville to make the talk himself due to a prior commitment to be in Asheville.

In addition to Sen. Sebo's keynote speech Saturday and the Friday night dinner session, the AAUP agenda included an executive meeting Friday and sectional caucuses also held on that date.

At 9 a.m. Saturday, chapter presidents held a meeting followed by a business meeting in the Willis Building.

The East Carolina University Chapter of the N.C. American Association of University Professors hosted the two day statewide meeting.

University Budget Big, But—

The UNC board of governors has proposed a budget of over $1 billion for the operation and improvement of the 16 universities which make up the system.

The big budget would provide funds for the next biennium. The budget is around $350 million more than that of the current biennium. It includes $178.6 million for capital improvements. In this amount are funds for an additional bed tower at Pitt Memorial Hospital for the ECU medical school, and funds for the long-needed renovation of McGinnis Auditorium and the drama building. There are also other funds for improvements on the main campus of the university, where no needs were met in the recent higher education bond issue.

Also in the proposed budget are recommended funds for a 10 percent pay hike for faculty members in each of the two years of the biennium.

No where are the increases needed more than at ECU if we are to continue to retain and attract outstanding faculty members to provide the kind of academic program we think is needed here in the east.

In addition, and with a high priority, the budget includes $10 million for operation of the new ECU medical school. It calls for an operation budget of $3,574,451 the first year and $5,491, 482 the second year of the biennium.

Also in the budget is $9,280,000 for planning, site development and construction of the first portion of a veterinary medicine school at N. C. State University.

The proposed university budget is big by any standards; however the need for faculty salary increases, proceeding with the medical school's development, initiating the veterinary school and other improvements is undeniable.

We feel that what is invested in higher education by the state of North Carolina will be returned many times over.

Someday A Balloonist Will Cross Ocean

Men dream, and try to make their dreams come true.

Balloonist Ed Yost almost made his come true; that of being the first person to cross the Atlantic in a balloon. Never mind that the Atlantic is now crossed many times daily in jet aircraft, crossing in a balloon was the thing.

Yost didn't quite make it and was rescued by a ship after the balloon came down in the Atlantic, but he had gone further and flown in a balloon longer than anyone else.

The dream of crossing the Atlantic in a balloon still is a dream, but someday someone will do it.

Roadside Hazards Remain

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Despite the change in recent years toward safer road design, roadside hazards continue to be a major problem for motorists in North Carolina.

During the first eight months of this year, 139 people were killed when vehicle ran into trees or utility poles along side the highways.

Traffic engineers with the state Division of Highways have just completed a survey of such roadside hazards: they found 8.6 million trees within 30 feet of the pavement in areas where the speed limit is over 50 miles per hour, or within 10 feet of the pavement in areas where the limit is under 50 miles per hour.

Price Tag

There are 1.4 million utility poles falling in that same category. State engineers figure it would cost from $10 to $50 each to get rid of the trees in the danger zone; from $150 to $500 each to remove the utility poles. . .a total cost of about half a billion dollars. Additional hazards are created by the design of roadside signs, guard rails, and bridge columns.

During the first eight months of 1976, 836 people were killed on state roads, continuing the downward trend since speed limits were lowered. In 1975, 884 died during the same period; a decline of 5.4 per cent this year.

Billion-Dollar Year

If the final three months of the year hold true to form, state industry hunters expect 1976 to be North Carolina's first billion-dollar year for investment in new or expanded business operations.

For the first nine months, building total $718.8 million. The experts say generally the investments grow by 28.2 per cent during the final quarter.

Also pleasing officials at the State Department of Natural and Economic Resources is the return to dominance over South Carolina—a not particularly significant, but emotionally satisfying, yard-stick.

Usually North Carolina has more than double the growth of South Carolina. But the gap narrowed a few years back, then when South Carolina netted the Michelin Tire operation, our sister state actually pulled ahead—but only for one year.

Statisticians now predict that this year's tally will show North Carolina more than double the rate of growth in South Carolina.

No Independence

North Carolina led the way nationally some six years ago by setting up the Governor's Advocacy Council on Children and Youth. That system was supposed to be the omsbudsman for people needing state services.

But then, the agency was placed under direct supervision of the Department of Human Resources, provider of the most of the very services over which problems are likely to arise.

The council, chaired by Carolyn London, is now making a push for separation from Human Resources. A formal statement endorsed by the council states that, "It is virtually impossible for the Advocacy Council to carry out its advocacy responsibilities with respect to Human Resources and other major service delivery systems. In short, the advocacy Council does not have adequate independence to allow it to advocate for the children of North Carolina."

The Legislature will be asked to move the agency to an independent status within the Department of Administration.

RURAL HEALTH

Only Rarely See Doctors

By BILL RAWLINS
Associated Press Writer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Nearly half of the nation's poor live in 13, largely rural Southern states in remote areas where it's hardest to get doctors.

One result, the Southern Rural Health Conference has been told, is generations of poor who have seen doctors only rarely.

"There are a lot of people who don't have enough contact with the rest of the world even to know when they are seriously ill," said Dr. Raymond Wheeler, Charlotte, N.C.

A past-president of the Southern Regional Council, Wheeler said health education for these persons is as important as health care — or, at least, must come first.

Dr. Ray Marshall of the University of Texas says the New South, the industrial South, has masked much of its problems in the health field behind industrial promotion.

"We hear a lot of talk about how prosperous the South, the so-called Sunbelt, has become," he said. "That conceals the fact that we have whole areas that seem to be completely left out of this progress."

The conclusion of the conference, Wheeler said, is "that economic development in the rural South is intimately related to the development of an effective health care delivery system."

And, the conference reported, "the first order of business in initiating these. . .changes is the implementation of universal, comprehensive, national health insurance."

Such insurance, along with medicaid and medicare, must pay nurses and physician assistants who are the only medical contacts that many rural areas have, the conference reported. At present, medicare will make payments only to doctors.

Laws of the various states decide who gets medicaid payments, for the needy, but in most cases physicians must be present or must supervise the nurses or physician assistants — and, again, the payments go to the physicians.

Unless the laws are changed to permit payments to nonphysicians, said Marshall, "It will be very difficult for many of these clinics. ..to extend health care to these remote areas. You can't get a doctor in a town of 500."

There was considerable discussion at the final session of the conference, and in task force meetings prior to the windup of the conference last Tuesday, about the role of local medical societies.

One recommendation was against a veto power for local medical socieities over the establishment of clinics and similar agencies for health care for the poor.

The recommendation was watered down at the suggestion of Dr. Ben Saltzman, Little Rock, Ark. A past president of the Arkansas Medical Socieity, he said the language "was like waving a red flag."

Dick Acuff, in charge of the primary health care clinics for the Tennessee health department, agreed with Saltzman.

"The best way to fail to win the cooperation of local medical societies is to go in fighting," he said.

Physicians have lobbied against direct payments to nonphysicians involved in health care programs and against national health insurance. But the conference went on record as saying national health insurance is the necessary first step toward improving health care in the rural South.

Asked the chances of Congress' passing national health insurance,. Marshall said, "I think they (doctors) will be throwing as big a wrench as they can. But I

OUTSTANDING SERVICE

One of the great philanthropists of the nineteenth century was a British surgeon named Bernardo.

One evening he came across a neglected little boy asleep on a London park bench. After awakening the boy the doctor learned that there were hundreds of such youngsters sleeping in alleys and byways all through the city. The boy on the park bench led the doctor to a shed where he found thirteen such homeless boys.

As he looked at these poor waifs Doctor Bernardo had a vision of a life of great service. He began an extensive and effective campaign to build homes for the boys. Eventually he raised money all over the British empire for his purpose. By 1900 it was estimated that there were ten thousand "graduates" of these homes in Britain.

Few of us can carry out philanthropy on such a large scale as Dr. Bernardo, but all of us can carry the spirit of charity in our hearts.

Sunday Morning Notes

A pretty and shapely blonde exhibited her jean overall outfit to two male friends.

"You like my new outfit?" she asked.

Not bad.

Ray Minges, who is area chairman for the ECU Ficklen Stadium drive, peered at his hand at a recent Utilities meeting.

Someone inquired. Seems he had prospects for contributions to the stadium fund written in his palm, complete with amounts.

"That's a new definition of money in hand," someone commented.

The local drive doesn't actually kick off until Nov. 1, but Minges is doing some advance work.

His secretary was typing up the news release when your columnist dropped by to pick it up the other day.

"Be sure to add an extra paragraph about something," Jim suggested. "The Daily Reflector always cuts the last paragraph.

Sometimes the last paragraph is all we leave.

Mary Jane Schlienz says she spent a lunch hour watching a ladder propped against the new First State Bank on the mall at Third Street recently.

She says she counted 21 people who walked around the ladder. None walked under it. Bad luck, you know.

"I asked one man why he walked around the ladder," Mary Jane said.

The man looked puzzled and answered, "I don't know."

Well it is bad luck.

Gene Smith, editor of the Havelock Progress, visited Greenville recently and said he was amazed at the changes in the downtown area.

Coming down Reade, he said, "all the old landmarks were gone."

That made him wonder if it had been that long since he visited.

Well, time gets by. A parent of local school students commented the other day that the younger school children no longer remember the old school at Reade and Fifth, which served so long as a high school and then a junior high. It burned, of course, and was later demolished.

Now that was a landmark.

TO THE PEOPLE OF GREENVILLE

If I could live anywhere in this big country, I would pick Greenville, NC! And, it happened just like that.

I saw Greenville for the very first time in August this year. Only a month later I registered at a Greenville motel (as the vanguard of the family) to begin the rest of our lives here. I thought perhaps you would be interested to hear - "why Greenville".

The Eastern Carolina coastal region has held our fondest attention for several years. The Outer Banks, Atlantic, Harkers Island, New Bern and especially Oriental have been visited for many happy times. We think the Neuse River and Pamlico Sound offer the best sailing water from Maine to Florida. But it is the Eastern Carolina people, most of all, who make the stranger feel that this is where he wants to settle down. During this past vacation we drove the 70 miles from Oriental to visit this town of Greenville that we had been hearing more and more about (the new medical school, for instance, the great football team, and Greenville's industrial expansion).

The very first impression a stranger has of Greenville is its cleanliness and newness. The Town Common and the Mall were features totally unexpected, but very impressive. The carefully planned renovation and development was much more evident than in any other city I have visited.

Beautiful as your little city is, I think the overwhelming impression is the sense of pride and the feeling of destiny one gets from meeting the people of Greenville. It is worn like a badge and is exciting and contagious. Still another general characteristic of the people of Greenville is their friendliness and hospitality. Nowhere have people extended the kind of welcome we have received here. We appreciate it and thank you.

Someday the four lane highways will integrate us with the rest of the state, the medical school campus will be a fact and jets will arrive at our airport. We are looking forward to contributing in any way possible to the future of Greenville. We think we are privileged to live in the best of both worlds - a dynamic and growing city with a purpose located only a few miles from the beauty and tranquility of the Eastern Carolina coast.

40 Years Ago Today

October 17, 1936

Dedicating a civic stadium in Niagara Falls, N. Y., today, President Roosevelt said he believed this city was a happier one now than four years ago.

"There are many reasons why we should feel proud of what we are doing," he told the crowd.

Such projects as the stadium, he said, meant not only jobs for the needy, but also a step toward building for the future.

"My only regret is you haven't got a football game today for my benefit," he said.

Pointing to the closeness of Canada, FDR said he was happy that "The undefended border of ours is becoming internationally famous. You who live on the border are responsible for this friendly feeling and a better understanding of peace between nations."

As a special added attraction to the Pitt County Fair, to be held at the fair grounds here the week of October 26, the management is making plans to stage a public wedding on Thursday night.

The couple, to be selected later, will receive a sum of money and in addition the Fair Association will pay for the wedding, marriage licenses and will make all preparations and pay expenses of the ceremony.

Price Index Has Limitations

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The Wholesale Price Index leaped in September by a 10.8 per cent annual rate. It might affect the elections. It might mean economic troubles. It might change investment decisions.

It might also be misleading.

While it is still early to make a positive assessment that this is so, it isn't too early to point out some of the possible defects or limitations of the index.

First off, there is the opinion of some professional economists that we should disregard the index as irrelevant. That's an opinion, but it's shared by some knowledgeable people, including Prof. Richard Ruggles of Yale, who has a contract to study it. It is, he states, "quite meaningless."

That a statistical index might be off the mark, even known to be in error, sometimes isn't considered a sound enough reason for the federal government to issue a warning. As they say, right or wrong, the figures are the best available.

The WPI is based on list prices, but list prices aren't always being charged these days. In some companies the list is for show purposes only. It gives the salesman the opportunity to offer discounts from the list.

There are at least two widespread reasons for this practice:

1. The less than vigorous demand in recent months.

2. Fears, probably unjustified, that a Jimmy Carter victory would mean price controls in 1977.

While it is difficult to prove that some recently announced increases are to get the new prices on record safely in advance of any price controls, a lot of informed people are fairly certain this is so.

Whatever, those new prices in many instances aren't the ones being charged, and there is statistical support for this statement.

Raw commodity prices, for example, fell rather than rose in September.

And a survey of National Association of Purchasing Management members showed the year's smallest percentage of responses in which purchasers said they were paying higher prices.

In almost all statistical measures there are conceptual difficulties that sometimes lead to "aberrations." There are also faulty estimates, and frequently faulty seasonal adjustments. All these lead to later revisions.

The U.S. government doesn't deny this. It openly acknowledges that its numbers, while generally considered to be the best anywhere, usually have some human errors. And it often assumes that the public knows this.

In explaining why no warning was made about errors in an economic series, a responsible official in a large government bureau explained the other day: "We do our very best; the public knows these are the very best statistics we can produce."

There seems to be a real question, however, whether the public does recognize the limitations of statistics, or whether it simply accepts the figures as computer-perfect and not to be questioned.

Observations From Editorial Columns

Very Singular

When we read the story about the interstate highway system in North Carolina being 80 per cent complete, we simply are flabbergasted.

We look at the map in the Daily News of these Interstate highways, and we see Highways 95, 85, and 77 running North and South. We see Highway 40 running East and West. But singularly Highway 40 runs from Zebulon to Asheville, and I-95, I-85, and I-77 are all in that area from Rocky Mount in the East to Winston-Salem in the West.

We wish very humbly but very strongly to make one pertinent observation. If the Interstate system in North Carolina today is 80 per cent complete, then that remaining 20 per cent belongs to that area of our state East of the Rocky Mount-Wilson-Lumberton line.

And we who live in far Eastern North Carolina are just as deserving as people living elsewhere in our state.

We'd like to see that remaining 20 per cent completed. — The Washington Daily News

A Worthy Goal

While each generation of youngsters, including our current batch, has managed to become more educated in most areas than the previous one, there is one area where many people believe there has been a let down.

That is in the area of the first two of the "three R's" — reading and 'riting.

For that reason we applaud the efforts of the Lee County Task Force of Citizens United for the Improvement of Reading. The plan is to use volunteers for the project. We are in favor of such a project.

A lot of factors — television is not the least of them — have contributed to a condition where many of our youngsters and older people too no longer read with facility. Anything that helps to eradicate that situation has to be a step in the right direction. —The Sanford Herald

"Watchdog Of Treasury"

Senator Jesse Helms has been awarded the National Associated Businessmen's "Watchdog of the Treasury" plaque for 1976.

Secretary of Treasury William E. Simon taking note of the award, praised Senator Helms with this comment:

"Your economy voting record ranks you with the courageous few in Congress who put the economic health of the entire country above the organized pressure blocs clamoring for even greater spending. All our citizens owe you their thanks. Your resistance to excessive government spending relieves them from an onerous tax burden and protects their jobs and savings from the ravages of inflation..."

Every candidate for public office who has come down the path in our life time has talked about holding down government spending and weeding out the bureaucracy. What they say on the campaign trail and what they do in office are often entirely different matters.

Jesse Helms is not the fair-haired boy of every voter or pressure group in North Carolina. But even his staunchest political enemies will have to agree that he is the same man in the U.S. Senate that he was during his campaign for office.

You might not like him, but there's no question about where he stands and the direction he is going to take. —The Goldsboro News-Argus

A Small Political Assassination Underscored

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

In the rush of political events, last week's report from a Senate sub-committee on the Bo Callaway affair received less attention than it truly deserved. This was a shameful piece of business, but the shame falls not on Callaway. It falls on the Democrats who contrived this small assassination, and especially on the chief hit man, Colorado's Senator Floyd K. Haskell.

From the beginning of this shabby investigation to its exquisitely timed end, Haskell's operation was an exercise in political partisanship at public expense. It would be interesting to learn how many thousands of dollars were spent, and how many thousands of man-hours were devoted to the preparation and printing of more than 1,500 pages of material adding up to — nothing.

Howard H. "Bo" Callaway, it will be recalled, is a former Georgia congressman who served for a little more than two years, from May 1973 to July 1975, as Secretary of the Army. He resigned on July 3 of last year to become chairman of the President Ford Committee. He resigned from that post last March under a cloud of supposed disgrace. It was supposed that he had abused his office as Secretary of the Army for purposes of private gain.

Under Haskell's direction, the subcommittee staff labored to produce evidence to support the charge. Haskell himself huffed and puffed through pages of repetitive questioning in an effort to get some incriminating answers. But the staff was composed of honest men, and the Senator's industry proved unavailing. No such evidence could be adduced. In the end, about the worst the committee majority could find to say was that Callaway's conduct "bespeaks an insenitivity" on his part.

The story goes back to 1970, when Callaway formed the Crested Butte Development Corporation to purchase and operate 580 acres of land in Colardo. The area was embraced within what came to be known as the East River Unit of the Gunnison National Forest development program.

From the very outset, Callaway and his associates made it clear that they wanted to develop additional skiing facilities at Snodgrass Mountain. In January of 1975, the Forest Service prepared a tentative plan for development of the East River Unit. The plan recommended that Snodgrass be postponed for perhaps ten years. The following December, when a more or less final plan was put forth, the earlier tentative recommendation was reversed; Snodgrass was approved. Meanwhile, three members of the Forest Service who had participated in the January report were reassigned.

On March 8, 1976, in the wake of Callaway's resignation from the President Ford Committee, Senator Haskell invoked his power as chairman of the Interior Committee's subcommittee on environment and land resources. He ordered an investigation into two charges in particular — that Callaway had corruptly put pressure on the Forest Service and the Department of Agriculture, and that Callaway had conspired to get the Forest Service employees transferred.

Both charges blew up in Haskell's face. One by one, the responsible officials were put under oath; and one by one, every witness denied absolutely that Callaway had abused his office. The most critical evidence that could be adduced came voluntarily from Callaway himself. He openly acknowledged speaking to Agriculture officials about the Crested Butte plan, but his intervention was plainly miniscule.

As for the transferred employees, exhaustive investigation turned up nothing sinister whatever. The man in question testified under oath. Two of them were long overdue for transfer from Gunnison. The third welcomed his promotion to a higher position in Denver. The charge against Callaway was absolutely unfounded.

Haskell's hearings wound up on May 14. A formal report — if a report were warranted at all — could have been prepared in a month or six weeks. By astounding coincidence, the report at last appeared under date of September 30. It was first leaked, and then released to the press last week, right in the middle of the Ford campaign. Anyone who believes this timing was non-political will believe in elves, trolls, tooth fairies and little green men.

Callaway's worst offense was poor judgment. To that he himself pleads guilty. What is the offense of Senator Haskell? He manipulated his own power as a subcommittee chairman, in order to curry favor at home, and to smear an innocent man.

Facing South

A Man Of Words, With His Typewriter Primed

RED RIVER GORGE, Ky. — "Cancel Red River Dam and Save God's Wonderland the Gorge, Our Heritage, Homes, Land, and Our Very Lives Indeed in the Land of a Eden."

The words jumped from the hand-lettered placard made in the Red River Gorge to the front pages of Kentucky's Sunday newspapers in April, 1974. They were occasioned by a march on the state capitol of those bent on preservation of the Gorge: environmentalists from cities, college students, rural residents of the Red River Valley and their kin.

The words were silently accompanied by the picture of their author. Erect as the beech trees growing along the Red, H. B. Farmer, now 75, shouldered his placard amidst the throng. Although he made no speeches, Herbert Farmer had become a man of words.

Two years later the Corps of Engineers refused to ask for funds to build Red River Dam for fear of getting their eyes blackened. Such has been the public outcry, and H. B. Farmer is in the public's mind no less than the spectacular Red River Gorge.

In 1971 when the Corps began to move forward with the dam, Farmer armed himself with a typewriter, although he possessed only a fourth grade education. He is an eighth generation descendent of a Revolutionary War soldier who obtained title to Red River land from none other than Patrick Henry. H.B. intended to live nowhere else. At first he wrote the Corps and his congressman but discontinued that tack with the realization that all he ever got was "pacification."

Slowly punching the keys, he has typed letters to an assortment of agencies, officials, newspapers, conservationists and just about anyone who might care about the destruction of the Gorge and his way of life. At last count the total was over 600.

Some make the newspapers. Occasionally one of them will appear in a Corps' report as if they want to show the exasperating nature of antiquated individuals. "Building tomorrow today" is their motto.

H.B. does not write, however, in "Bureaucratese" but with undeniable forthrightness: "We will strive vehemently to see that this land is preserved to be around at least the duration of another ice age."

Farmer plows through his sentences as if they are long bottomland furrows. And generally there is more than enough seed in each one to insure an ample harvest: "I have dwelled, eat, saw and beheld, tasted and drank of this land's many fascinations and fountains and am as much a part of it as the cliffs, flora and the soil beneath my feet. If the ashes after the cremation of my body were chemically analyzed, you may be amazed to discover the 14 major, primary chemical elements identical the same that exist in this fertile valley."

His typewriter has a position for red-ink print, which he uses to type out "Red River," When spelling was a problem, he would hunt in the newspapers till he found the word he wanted. After a reporter described the process, he received two dictionaries in the mail.

People responded. Journalists, photographers and TV crews have made the trek to the Eastern Kentucky valley and found him to be more than a signbearer and letter writer. The Corps' plans have been halted and apparently H.B.'s home will be spared.

But the passion which inspired him hasn't lessened. He has confronted something immense. Something more threatening than the loss of his own land.

"There is a growing disillusionment throughout the U. S. of America, by patriotic pioneer American families, against the way our Congress is promoting excessive dam-building through & by the Corps. Our land is being confiscated and the people driven out of their native homeland by the thousands every year. To make room for a Corps of Engineers Dam & Lake, to never see again much less possess their native, cherished and beloved homeland, they will all have vanished beneath the waves, throughout all eternity."

He still writing. He is still making placards for rallies where others are opposing dams, which could displace over 500 families in Kentucky alone this year.

For Herbert Farmer the bottomline is that "their biased method of evaluating these projects is wrong and dangerous to a supposed to be free people."

think time and the force of public attention and the concern about it (makes it) generally conceded that it won't be long before we have such a program."

The conference cited a preliminary task force report on rural Southern health, which showed:

—The death rate in the rural South generally is 22 per cent higher than the national average.

—Infant deaths in the rural South are higher than in the rest of the nation but "for rural blacks the rate is 64 per cent higher than that of their white neighbors."

—In some areas of the South, doctors still have segregated waiting rooms for blacks and whites.

"Unfortunately, access to medical care in this nation depends on one's ability to pay for it and upon the availability of adequate health resources," said the report.

Since the ability to pay for it is lower and the resoources are less available, Wheeler said, "This means that our medical care in the United States is biased against the rural South."

The problem is compounded by what the conference called "a disturbing decrease in black enrollment" in medical schools. Unless this trend is reversed, the report said, "it may be difficult to recruit medical professionals to meet health needs of minorities in certain areas of the South."

Marshall said the decrease seems concurrent with raising unemployment among blacks which, coupled with inflation, "makes them unable to pursue a medical education even if it is heavily subsidized."

TOUGH MAN TO SHARE THE SPOTLIGHT WITH!

during the Depression now lives a subdued life in his suburban Bloomfield Township condominium. He says Mass once a day and mostly reflects, or watches television.

But ask him about politics, and the priest who will be 85 this month is still good for a short blast.

"I am definitely becoming stronger physically," Coughlin said, responding to a question relayed by his secretary, "and I have a most normal appraisal of current events, including the subgraduate presentations of the presidential candidates.

"Probably fewer than 50 per cent of the registered voters will vote because they are disgusted and disillusioned with the lack of depth on the part of the candidates."

That's all he would say, but Marilyn Conway, his secretary, added that a lack of leadership in the nation is his greatest concern.

"He watches TV and gets upset," Mrs. Conway said. "It's the political situation. He feels we're in a bad situation now and no one is doing anything about it."

Coughlin's attitude apparently is nonpartisan. Associates said the priest is not a Gerald Ford fan, but he doesn't like Jimmy Carter's stand on abortion.

Despite his strong views, Father Coughlin sees virtually no one except his housekeeper and Mrs. Conway while living on a moderate retirement stipend.

But his political interest lingers from his days as a fiery radio personality and head of the National Union for Social Justice that espoused causes for the underprivileged, assailed Jews and Communists and frequently blasted Franklin D. Roosevelt.

In 1936 the party's only presidential candidate, Rep. William Lemke of North Dakota, polled less than a million votes. Reprimands from government and church and the start of World War II eventually pushed Coughlin out of public life.

He retired in 1966 as pastor of the Shrine of the Little Flower, which he founded in suburban Royal Oak.

He emerged in 1971 to blast President Nixon's trip to China and again last June 29 for a half-hour sermon marking his 60th anniversary as a priest and the shrine's 50th anniversary.

In the last two years he has survived two serious heart attacks, and he now is kept alive by a pacemaker.

"He leads a quiet life of reflecting," Mrs. Conway said, "and he is prepared to meet his Maker."

But Coughlin still has the energy to find new interests.

"He loves sports," she said, "and for some reason he has picked up on tennis. He really enjoys watching that."

Experience Proves Hair Is Unreliable Indicator

When Meg was being born, I kept asking the doctor whether she was a boy or a girl.

"How do you expect me to tell her sex by her head?" he asked.

You still can't tell by the head. I've done everything short of using Grecian Formula 66, but Meg's hair simply refuses to grow. Now her feet are an entirely different matter. I think some of the growth signals for her hair got routed to the wrong end of her body. Since she started walking, her feet have grown two sizes. If she keeps it up, I'm going to send her out to California to live with Bigfoot. At least, he won't have to worry about buying shoes for her.

But feet do not come near presenting the kinds of problems that hair does. No one looks at a baby's feet and says, "What a fine boy you have." However, for some reason people assume that just because a baby doesn't have hair - and most babies, at some point in time, don't - it's a boy.

Now, I was absolutely delighted to get a girl, and it tears me up for someone to mistake her for a boy. I can bear it when she's dressed in rompers or something like that, but when I go to all the trouble of dressing her in pink frills and Mary Janes, and someone asks me if it's a boy or a girl, I get positvely hostile.

The other day Phillip and I were at Pitt Plaza with Meg, who was dressed in corduroy pants and a ruffly blouse with "Sugar n' Spice" embroidered on it. She was toddling down the sidewalk, stopping to examine every cigarette butt she happened to pass when a lady came up to us and said, "I bet he keeps you busy, doesn't he?"

"No, HE doesn't. SHE does," he said.

"When is she going to get hair?" I moaned after the woman walked away, still firmly convinced that we had a little boy.

"Probably when we have to pay to get it cut," Phillip said. "I'm not going to worry about it till then."

"Doesn't it bother you when Meg is called a boy?"

"Not really," he said. "It's an honest mistake."

A few minutes later a couple stopped us and said, "What a handsome little boy."

"Little girl," Phillip said, with just a hint of nastiness in his voice.

I waited till they moved on, then said, "It's such a stupid mistake. I'll never pull something like that."

Just then a woman passed us carrying a baby with a head full of the most beautiful curls I had ever seen. I was immobilized with envy. "What a precious little girl," I cooed.

The woman glared coldly at me. "Boy," she said.

Apathy On The Campus Over Current Presidential Campaign

By MIKE SILVERMAN
Associated Press Writer

With less than a month to go until the presidential election, many of the nation's college students apparently plan to mark their ballots: "Not Interested."

Two reasons for this year's apathy are lack of identifiable "youth issues" and failure of either President Ford or Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter to inspire students.

Political activity on campuses seems geared more toward local campaigns and issues, with the national election almost an afterthought, an informal survey shows.

At Stanford University in Palo Alto, Calif., Kathryn Ma said she organized an election "issues" meeting in her coed dormitory with modest success. But Miss Ma says there's little talk of politics at the dinner table.

"On the dorm level, it's mostly a social thing — like an election-night party with popcorn around the television set."

At Penn State in rural central Pennsylvania, walls are cluttered with posters for rival candidates in a hotly contested U.S. Senate race, but there isn't much activity for Ford or Carter.

Campus Republican leader William Reiber stands in a makeshift office where six students are conducting a political telephone poll.

"Unfortunately, the reason they're doing it is that they have been assigned to work here by a political science teacher," he said.

John Frazier, president of Penn State's Students for Carter, said: "Most students aren't interested in politics. They're interested in sports and beer."

At the urban University of Pittsburgh, campus Republicans and Democrats share the same small office, and both groups say they're lucky to get 75 volunteers on the 19,000-student campus.

"Today's student is less the crusader and more the standard American," says Tony Hillerman, assistant to the president at the University of New Mexico in Albuquerque. "Attitudes here toward the presidential campaign have reverted to early-1960s apathy."

Says H. Edwin Young, chancellor at the University of Wisconsin in Madison: "The excitement that other candidates produced in the past is just not there."

A national survey of voting habits released in early September showed about half the 150 million voting-age Americans (1) haven't registered and don't plan to, or (2) say their chances of voting in November are 50-50 or less, or (3) have voted in two or fewer past federal elections.

"The events of the last eight years have brought a good deal of student disillusionment with the political process," said Vic Petroff, student body president at Stanford. "I don't see widespread apathy, but I don't think we're going to break any voting records either."

Chris Pearson, student body president of the University of Washington in Seattle, said: "It's not so much apathy as being fed up with politicians in general."

Carolyn Booth, national youth director of the President Ford Committee, said there are "no identified youth issues this year," in contrast to 1968 and 1972.

In both previous years, she said, "There were special issues like the Vietnam War and ecology that the college voter was more concerned about than the rest of the country."

Miss Booth said the Republicans have set up a network of volunteers on campus to attract uncommitted voters.

"Republican college students have a greater propensity to vote than others, but they're a minority — in some instances a very small minority," she said.

'Coaches' Gave Mondale Top Rating In Debate

By EVANS WITT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGON (AP) — Walter Mondale got the best of Bob Dole in their televised vice presidential debate, four prominent debate coaches say.

The coaches, judging the Friday night debate for The Associated Press, gave Mondale a unanimous verdict.

The panelists used a scorecard that allowed each candidate one to five points in each of six categories. Only one coach gave Dole a higher mark than Mondale in any of the six categories, which are similar to those used to score college debate.

"The major losers in the debate were both presidential candidates. When measured against their running mates, they seemed all too wooden, dull and less brilliant," said professor James Unger of Georgetown University.

Unger, who gave the debate to Mondale 24-22, said Dole's repeated humor and sarcasm did not "wear well."

"I think Dole is a much better speaker. The humor was very funny to start with ... but that got very grating. It went a little too far," said Dr. Barbara O'Connor of California State University aat Sacramento.

She scored the debate for Mondale by the narrowest margin of any of the coaches, 25-24.

She also said the vice presidential debate was "much livelier than the presidential ones."

Dr. Donn Parson of the University of Kansas said the distinction between Mondale and Dole was very clear in this debate, as contrasted to the two presidential confrontations.

"I have scored Mondale higher than I scored Carter on the previous two debates. I scored Dole lower than Ford on the earlier two," Parson said.

Parson gave Mondale the widest margin of any of the coaches, 25-19.

He said Mondale's answers were more direct, better organized and more supported with facts than Dole's answers.

"Mr. Dole was essentially unresponsive to the questions," he said.

Professor William Southworth of the University of Redlands (Calif.) agreed that Mondale won the debate in terms of issues.

"Mondale sustained on the basis of evidence that the Democrats could finance their programs. Dole had no response. Ford did a good job in the earlier debate outlining how much the Democratic programs would cost," he said.

Unger compared the vice presidential candidates this way:

"Sen. Mondale created an image of independence, an intelligent but concerned public official. On the other hand, by the conclusion, Sen. Dole seemed to be running for Johnny Carson's replacement."

Professor Melissa Maxcy Wade of Emory University, Atlanta, normally a member of The AP panel, was unable to judge Friday's debate.

The coaches decided Ford won the first debate, Carter the second.

Scotland Yard Has Same Problems Of U.S. Police

By ROBERT MUSEL

LONDON (UPI) — Police Commissioner Sir Robert Mark of Scotland Yard, speaking at the start of London's longest and hottest summer, said, "There is a growing tendency for groups of black people to react in violent opposition to police officers carrying out their duties."

The long-feared explosion implicit in his remarks came at the end of August as blacks and whites in the seedy, integrated Notting Hill district celebrated their annual, and usually peaceful, street carnival.

Suddenly a riot whose origin is a matter of dispute turned the carnival into turmoil. In the streets police fought with scores of bitter, alienated West Indians, most of whom had come from a West Indian enclave across the Thames.

Scotland Yard says its men moved in to stop a wave of new-style street robberies in which well-coordinated teams isolate and surround a victim, rip off watches and jewelry, clean out pockets and handbags and quickly disperse to reform elsewhere.

The West Indians claim police provoked the confrontation and had massed a force of more than 1,500 in the area in preparation for it. But casualties among the police from knives, bricks and bottles — more than 360 were treated — were nearly three times the civilian number.

"Why," said Constable W.D. Robinson, reflecting on the tense and often terrifying events of the day in a letter to a police publication, "do we persist in saying we have no color problem in London when it's quite plain to every officer that there is a color problem and an immense one at that."

Scotland Yard's official view is that the Notting Hill riot was a clash between criminal elements and the police and not basically a question of black and white, although the 326,000 West Indians in London are admittedly a matter of deep and growing concern.

How to overcome their suspicion of a system they believe discriminates against them is one of the vexing questions the Yard faces in the changing society of the metropolis.

One day eight years ago Scotland Yard officially departed the baronial red brick building on the Thames where it had written so much of the history of crime and moved to a functional new skyscraper whose proper address is 10 Broadway — though no one will ever call it that.

Less than half a mile separates the rabbit-warrens of the storied old headquarters of the Metropolitan Police from the computers and other electronic marvels of the new. But in traveling those few blocks Scotland Yard symbolically — as Commander Bob Bryan, who heads its Community Relations program puts it — entered a new era challenging many of the concepts that had served it well in other, easier days.

Violence against a police force which, whatever its failings, is regarded by many experts as probably the best in the world, is one grim fact.

Race is another. The first influx of West Indians came as late as the 1950s, many of the immigrants recruited because of the labor shortage of the time. It is the second generation that warned a Committee of Race Relations and Immigration it has reached "the point of no return" in its demands for social and academic skills and considered the police "our enemies in the community."

There is the cherished theory of opposite force — don't arm the police or the underworld will arm itself as well. The evidence that big time lawbreakers now habitually do carry weapons is omnipresent. Some cops have been shot courageously advancing into the muzzle of a gun armed only with nightstick and flashlight, where American and other police would have laid down a barrage of lead.

And there is corruption. This may clash with the stereotype of Scotland Yard built up by novelists and Hollywood films but Deputy Assistant Commissioner Peter Marshall says it is a fact of modern life (though not unknown in the past) and the Yard is using surgery to root it out.

PHONE SERVICE

NEW YORK (UPI) — Telephone service is on its way to many remote Alaskan villages for the first time. The state of Alaska and RCA jointly are building 100 small earth stations which, with the use of other space-age technology, will eventually provide telephone service to more than 160 villages.

French Expel Soviet Diplomat

PARIS (UPI) — France disclosed Saturday it expelled a Soviet diplomat caught redhanded trying to buy the plans for a secret new jet engine at a church.

Interior Minister Michel Poniatowski, a frequent target of Soviet press attacks, gave unusual publicity to the spy case, indicating a sudden cooling of relations between Paris and Moscow.

Interior ministry officials said counter-espionage agents arrested Michael Soloviev, 36, who was wearing a wig and dark glasses, after he was handed a dossier allegedly containing the plans Tuesday night under the porch of Notre Dame de La Gare church at Paris' Place Jeanne d'Arc. The Soviet diplomat refused to answer any questions at counter-intelligence headquarters except to confirm his identity, officials said.

Hundreds Arrested In Thailand

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Hundreds of politicians, journalists and students have been arrested throughout Thailand as suspected left-wing subversives, police have reported.

All but about 100 were released after questioning but the others may be detained without bail or charges for up to 30 days under martial law decreed after the military coup 10 days ago, Police Commissioner Gen. Vichien Saengkaew said.

Planned Soyuz Linkup Aborted

MOSCOW (UPI) — Two Soviet cosmonauts cut short their mission after less than two days and prepared to return to earth Saturday after failing to dock their Soyuz 23 with the orbiting Salyut 5 space laboratory.

The official Tass news agency said the planned linkup was aborted because of a fault in the approach control system.

"The crew is completing the mission and preparing to return to earth," Tass said in a terse announcement more than 16 hours after the mishap.

Suit Against Reynolds Filed

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — A California shipping firm has filed a federal suit, asking that R.J. Reynolds Industries divest itself of all shipping and trucking interests.

Pacific Far East Lines, Inc., filed the suit Friday in San Francisco, charging Reynolds with trying to monopolize the shipping trade.

Reynolds owns one shipping subsidiary, Sea-Land Service, Inc.

Pacific's suit says Reynolds used anti-competitive practices, bribes, rebates and illegal political contributions in an attempt to procure business for Sea-Land.

Reynolds officials had not commented on the suit Saturday.

Castro Claims Possible Plot

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro says he has access to secret CIA communications that lead him to believe the CIA may still be plotting to assassinate him.

In a Havana broadcast monitored in Washington Friday, Castro disclosed the existence of a Cuban double-agent who Castro said has been on the CIA payroll for a decade.

Indications Of Increase

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — Indications are that federal price supports for flue-cured tobacco will increase by about 7 per cent next season and by a similar amount the following year, according to a federal tobacco official.

"Support levels went up nearly 14 per cent this season, a rise that outstrips the production cost hike," said Robert H. Miller of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's commodity economics division.

Speaking Friday at the 28th annual meeting of the Tobacco Growers Information Committee in Raleigh, Miller also voiced concern about the volume of low quality leaf placed under government loan.

Miller said the Department of Agriculture will probably have to continue to add a larger share of the increase in price supports to the upper stalk tobacco

Buys 698 Playboys

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — An unidentified man described as middleaged and dressed in "working clothes," purchased the entire supply of "Playboy" magazine from two Raleigh bookstores at a total cost of $714.48.

The man volunteered no reason for buying the 458 copies of the magazine. The current issue contains the celebrated interview with Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter.

Scott Whiteside, manager of one of the stores, said that when he asked, "Exactly how many of those do you want?" the man replied, "How many you got?"

Pulling out a wad of $100 bills the mysterious man paid for the at $1.50 each plus 4 per cent sales tax for the 240 copies in that store, Whiteside said.

The man then went to a second bookstore and purchased an additional 218 "Playboy" magazines. Donald Cates, a clerk at the store, said the man stacked the magazines on the counter then "he asked if we had any more."

The bookstore employes speculated that the man might be planning to resell the magazines for a profit. But, they said, he might have thought the magazines will be collectors items, or possibly he was a Carter supporter keeping them from voters or a Ford supporter planning to give them away.

"He didn't say and I didn't ask," Whiteside said, adding, "All he said was, 'You're about to make the biggest sale of your life.'"

A woman companion who helped the man load the magazines into a truck, the bookstore workers said.

For One Day—Time Stood Still

NEW YORK (AP) — Though nearly everybody in the United States observes official standard time, almost nobody today remembers Dr. Charles Ferdinand Dowd — or Nov. 18, 1883, the day time stood still in this country.

A hundred years ago most Americans did not own or carry watches — pocket watches, that is, as wristwatches did not even exist — and practically nobody had the "right time."

The problem was that there was no "official time," either nationally or internationally. Each city, town and village operated on its own time. Usually this was determined by a leading local jeweler who set his most accurate clock to 12 noon from time to time throughout the year, at that moment when he judged the sun was directly overhead, according to Bulova Watch Co. researchers.

This system created havoc with railroad schedules and each railroad line, as a result, operated on its own time. Frequently but not always this was the time displayed by the clock on City Hall in the largest city on the line. At a main railroad station, typically, there was a series of "railroad clocks," each set to the times used by the different railroads using the same station.

Dr. Dowd, a Saratoga, N.Y. school principal, strongly disapproved of all this confusion and long campaigned to establish "standard time zones" in the United States. He thought such a system would improve railroad service for the public, and also make railroad crossings safer.

Finally, his proposal won acceptance, and on Nov. 18, 1883, time "stood still" throughout the United States as clocks were reset to conform to "standard time" as required by Congress.

In New York City, the clocks at City Hall and in classrooms were stopped for three minutes and 58 seconds — the amount local time had previously been officially ahead of new Eastern Standard Time. In Philadelphia the change amounted to only 36 seconds.

But in Chicago, in the new Central Time Zone, local pride resisted conforming to the new time standard, and Chicagoans persisted in keeping their clocks 17 minutes ahead of everybody else in the Central Time Zone.

The most serious resistance took place, however, in Bangor, Me., where the mayor vetoed ordinances for the local adoption of Eastern Standard Time. The new time standard, he declared, "violates one of the immutable laws of God and is a farce and a lie." Most citizens accepted the new time standard anyway, setting their watches and clocks at 9 a.m. on Nov. 18, while the mayor, with his assistants, stood guard over the town clocks which read 9:28.

For Dr. Dowd, the adoption of standard time zones was a great personal satisfaction. Ironically, he met sudden death when he was run down by a train at a railroad crossing nearly 30 years later, on Nov. 12, 1904. Apparently, the train involved was not on time.

The immediate popular success of standard time zones led to the convening of the Washington Maridian Conference by President Chester A. Arthur a year later, in 1884. At this conference, it was agreed to establish standard time zones around the world, so that a universal time standard would be recognized by all nations.

The treaty signed at the conference recognized Greenwich Mean Time as the standard time for the so-called "Prime Meridian," which runs through Greenwich, a small town near London, England.

Every 15 degrees geographically west or east of Greenwich calls for a one-hour change in standard time. (A degree is one 360th of the earth's circumference, or about 70 miles at the equator.)

There is, for example, a five-hour difference in standard time between Greenwich, England, and Cape Kennedy, which is nearly 81 degrees to the west. When it's noon GMT, it's only 7 a.m. standard time in Florida.

But not every country today recognizes the decisions of the Washington Meridian Conference. In Saudi Arabia, for example, the official time each day is determined by the rising of the sun. In other areas of the world, political and geographical considerations result in wide variations of the "15 degree rule." And in the mid-Pacific, Tonga, the only remaining Polynesian kingdom, has its own time zone, Tongan Standard Time, where each of the earth's calendar days officially begins, Bulova researchers report.

Self-Fulfilling Labels Cited

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) — Classifying young persons as predelinquent is a self-fulfilling prophesy, says Dr. John D. Swisher, director of the addictions prevention laboratory at Pennsylvania State University.

Swisher said there is a difference between primary prevention and early intervention, described as an approach that classifies persons likely to have problems and provides them with special programs.

He said major hazards include untrustworthy diagnostic tools. The second, more serious problem is that young persons identified as most likely to become troublesome probably will, he said.

Would Teach Money Skills

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — School clothes and expenses can be used to help teach young people money management skills, says Ronald T. Daly, Extension family life specialist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Daily suggests turning school shopping into a family affair so that everyone can learn from every one else. He recommends beginning by having each child make a complete list of his or her required school expenses, including clothing, books, activity cards and gym clothes. The next step: have the child divide the list into needs and wants, to help learn there are limitations to their resources.

COAL RESERVES

ROLLA, Mo. (UPI) — The Missouri Geological Survey says there are an estimated 200 million tons of coal in reserve in the St. Louis-southern Illinois area.

Oilseed Price

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prices in the world market for high-protein oilseed meal are expected to continue significantly above last year's all the way through 1977, the Foreign Agricultural Service says.

Demand for the soybean and other meals continues high. But if the forecasts for reduced use in the United States and more exports from other countries hold true, the FAS said this week, the total supply should "be sufficient to satisfy global high-protein requirements."

The Agriculture Department agency had lowered to 67.8 million metric tons (of 2,204.6 pounds each) its estimate of world high-protein-meal production into next year. That would be a 3.5-million-ton drop or almost 5 per cent fom 1976 levels.

There's Nothing Wrong With A Checking Account That A Key Account Can't Cure!

First Federal is proud to announce an entirely new concept in personal money management, the Key Account.

The Key Account is better than a checking account, better than a savings account – because it combines the best features of both. It lets you control every extra dollar of your cash to keep it hard at work earning 5% daily interest. And that includes the money you use to pay your bills and for day-to-day expenses.

Here's how the Key Account works.

Instant telephone access to your Key Account and checking account is one of the primary benefits.

When you open your Key Account at First Federal, you retain your checking account at the bank. But instead of putting all or most of your salary into checking, and drawing it down slowly as you pay bills and handle other expenses throughout the month, put your paycheck into your Key Account instead.

Then, whenever you have a few bills to pay or need cash for daily use, just telephone a special First Federal number. Tell us how much to transfer to your checking account to cover those bills or expenses. We'll transfer the money to the bank for you – and that includes any bank in the Pitt County area. (We also record the phone call, for your further protection.)

An important part of the Key Account concept in cash control is that you can make these transfers to your checking account, or from your checking account back to your Key Account, just as often as you need to. Daily, if you like. Twice a week. Whenever you need only a few dollars or a sizeable amount for bill-paying from your checking account. There's never a charge for any transfer.

And you can phone us any time of day or night, any day of the week. If you call before 11:00 a.m., your transfer will be handled by your bank the same day. If you call later, it will be handled the next business day.

The main objective is to keep as much of your cash as possible working continually for you, earning 5% daily interest, in your profitable Key Account.

You receive a monthly statement of your Key Account that lists all deposits, withdrawals, transfers, interest earned and your present balance.

Your statement is issued automatically. You don't have to waste time coming in to have your account updated.

You get a personal Prestige Key Account Card that identifies you as a Key Account holder.

The First Federal Prestige Machine – operated by your Prestige Key Account Card – provides pushbutton cash control services at your convenience, 24 hours a day, 365 days a year.

Use the Prestige Machine to deposit or withdraw funds from your Key account, to cash a check, or to make transfers between your Key Account and checking account – without charge; or to make a payment on your home loan.

You automatically get a receipt for each transaction.

Out-of-town Prestige Emergency Cash and free travelers checks are extra benefits of your First Federal Key Account.

First Federal will issue you free travelers checks before you go on a trip. If you need more cash along the way, you can get it from your Key Account – without charge – through any of over 3,000 savings and loan locations across the nation.

Only First Federal offers the Key Account in this trade area an entirely new concept in cash control. Stop by your nearest First Federal office and open yours. Now, before the rush begins.

Politics Is A Passion To People Of Puerto Rico

By DANIEL DROSDOFF

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (UPI) — Politics in Puerto Rico is more than a national pastime — it is a passion more akin to war and religion than it is to civic duty.

Puerto Rico has perhaps a higher voter turnout than any other state or territory under the American flag — 84 per cent of the registered voters cast ballots in 1972 and the same percentage or more is expected to vote this year.

"You might say we are the most democratic place of the United States," said Jose Rodriguez Aponte, president of the electoral tribunal — Puerto Rico's board of elections.

"People in Puerto Rico are poorer than the mainland, and they depend on their government to a much greater degree for all kinds of services," he told UPI. "As the saying goes, in Puerto Rico everything is politics.'"

Puerto Rico, an associate state of the United States, is not elegible to vote for president. But its own gubernatorial race, held simultaneously with the U.S. presidential elections, is always crucial for the island's future. This year, as in the past, voting will reflect sentiment on statehood, independence, or the present commonwealth arrangement with the United States.

Emotions run strong.

Although violence is the exception rather than the rule, one campaign worker for the New Progressive party was shot to death in San Juan in September. Earlier in the year the 24-year-old son of Socialist candidate for governor Juan Mari Bras was shot to death. Mari Bras charged the crime was political but police denied it.

Cheerleaders, Salsa

Turn on the radio in Puerto Rico on any given morning and chances are you will hear a blistering harangue from one party leader or another, blaming his opponents for nearly every problem on the island.

In San Juan and in cities and towns scattered throughout the Connecticut-sized island of three million persons, crowds stand for hours, braving either the semi-tropical sun or rainstorms, to hear candidates of their choice.

Sound trucks weave through city streets and narrow country roads, broadcasting praises of candidates to the tune of the "salsa," Puerto Rico's tropical rhythm, and inevitably creating monumental traffic jams.

At the typical small town political rally, called a "mitin," orators — backed by strategically placed cheerleaders — whip up enthusiasm by denouncing the opposition as "crooks," "degenerates," "barbarians," and "traitors."

Then the candidate for governor will appear, usually giving a speech in a more moderate tone. But by the time he arrives the crowd is in such a frenzy it matters little what he says.

Invective Obscures Issues

There are a number of important campaign issues this year besides the perennial debate over the island's status. Unemployment, ranging between 17 and 21 per cent, is at one of the highest levels in Puerto Rico's history. The government takeover of the telephone company and shipping facilities are other potentially controversial issues.

Yet at the typical campaign rally the island's economic issues are obscured by torrents of invective and innuendo.

An outsider just listening to the speeches may have a difficult time distinguishing one party from another. The sweeping personal attacks against one candidate or another tend to have a similar ring. But the politicians have made it easier to draw the battle lines by adopting flags.

The symbol of the pro-commonwealth Popular Democratic Party is the red silhouette of the farmer with the straw hat, known as the "pava." That of the pro-statehood New Progressive party is the "palma," a blue palm tree on a white banner.

Pava and Palma

During the election season entire neighborhoods are dotted with the red and white flags of the "pava" and the blue and white "palma".

Less common but occasionally spotted are the red flags with the gold star of the Socalist party — a Marxist-Leninist group — and the green flag with the white cross of the Independence party.

Both these minority parties are not expected to make much of a dent in the strongholds of the Popular Democrats and New Progressives, which are running close. But a surprise strong showing by either of the small parties could give them an important moral victory.

Each gubernatorial candidate has his own style. San Juan Mayor Carlos Romero Barcelo, running for the New Progressives, knows his party is weakest in the countryside. Nearly every week during the past year, he has been barnstorming small towns and housing developments scattered throughout the mountains and coastal plains, shaking hands and handing out color autographed photos.

Governor Taunts Mayor

Gov. Rafael Hernandez Colon, running for reelection for the Popular Democrats, takes full advantage of his position as incumbent. He often flies into towns in a helicopter and methodically tells cheering crowds the number of roads, schools, hospitals and other public works his administration built.

Hernandez, tossing aside the old political rule that the incumbent should never mention his opponent's name, has denounced Romero constantly as a know-nothing who "criticizes everything and supports nothing — he can't even collect the garbage of San Juan."

Romero, in turn, has accused Hernandez of "character assasination" and "defamation".

He has soft-pedaled his party's pro-statehood views and appeared upset at opposition leaflets taunting him as "Mister Charlie."

"My name is Carlos, not Charlie," he told a crowd. "Puerto Ricans should learn Spanish first, English second."

Like politics everywhere, the campaign in Puerto Rico has produced strange bedfellows.

Wiretap Issue

Mari Bras caused a brief uproar when he denounced the government-run telephone company for wiretapping and waved reels of tape at a press conference as proof.

The government contended the tapping was legal, for purposes of "quality control," but it nevertheless ordered the practice of taping phone calls for the first 12 seconds stopped.

Romero immediately denounced the government for "abuse of power." Normally the New Progressives and the Socialists are bitter enemies — at opposite ends of the political spectrum.

Although his party is generally thought to be the most conservative of the four competing for power, Romero has supported striking bus drivers and criticized the government for closing the University of Puerto Rico in a tough stand against a student strike.

He gave a speech saying he didn't "trust businessmen," a pitch for labor support that might have poured more money from the business community into the campaign coffers of Gov. Hernandez.

"It's like this in every election," Rodriguez Aponte explained. "The party out of power will always criticize everything the government did — everything!"

'Quiet Week' At Pitt Hospital

This week has been designated by Pitt Memorial Hospital as "Quiet Week."

"Every so often we see the need to remind both employees and visitors of how important quiet is to sick people," Hospital Administrator Jack Richardson said. "We're having signs posted throughout the building to the effect and are distributing smile buttons.

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

LEXINGTON, Va.—East Carolina University's unbeaten football team made the easy seem difficult yesterday afternoon in gaining a 17-3 victory over Virginia Military Institute.

The contest was only a 10-3 one until very late in the game, when Gerald Hall worked his magic and picked off a pass that set up the final Pirate touchdown.

That came on an eight-yard run by Willie Hawkins with 2:07 left in the game, enabling the Bucs to get away with their sixth straight victory this year and their 12th in a row over the past two seasons.

It also raised their Southern Conference mark to 3-0, tops in the loop.

For VMI, it was the fifth loss in six games and left them with a 1-3 league mark.

East Carolina scored on its first possession of the game, moving 63 yards in just five plays. The scoring run was a 44-yard race down the sidelines by Eddie Hicks.

Pete Conaty, who's bad luck with the boot continued for the second straight game, kicked two PAT's and added a 29-yard field goal. But he missed on three other shots of 23, 35 and 51 yards. All three had the length, but missed the mark.

The lone VMI score came on the second series by the Keydets, and was a 37-yarder by Craig Jones following the first Pirate score.

Never again did the Keydets threaten, however, as the Buc defense bottled them up, forcing six turnovers, including three in the final three minutes.

Only twice more did the Keydets get into Pirate territory. Late in the first half, the Keydets reached the 47 on fourth down, and the other time came on the final play of the game, when a penalty put it on the 48.

Their lone scoring drive was also set up by a penalty, a 33-yard pass interference call. That came from the VMI 32, when Ernest Madison stumbled and fell into Johnny Garnett on a pass pattern on the Buc 34.

East Carolina, which ground out 302 yards rushing and 334 overall, gave up just 122 on the ground and 54 through the air. What hurt the Pirates most was their inability to cash in on the good field position they constantly got into.

The first score seemed like a portent of things to come. It seemed almost too simple.

After a VMI kick, the Bucs took over on their own 37. Raymond Jones picked up seven, then got five more. Hawkins took a pitch for five yards, then Jones added two more to the 44.

On the fifth play, Hicks got the pitchout from Mike Weaver, and raced around the left side of the line, prancing past defenders and avoiding the sidelines as he went the distance. Conaty's kick with 11:30 left made it 7-0.

But VMI came racing back. From the 20, the Keydets got a first down at the 32, then came the long penalty to the Pirate 34. A Robbie Clark to Tom Mihalik pass got 13 yards to the 22, but after three plays netted just two yards. Jones kicked his 37-yarder to cut it to 7-3. That came with 6:13 left.

VMI threatened no more.

After an exchange of punts, the Bucs moved to Conaty's field goal. Taking over on the 23, the Pirates moved, with Weaver hitting Terry Gallaher for 17 yards, to the VMI 49. After 12 more yards, Weaver broke away for 17 to the 20, and on fourth down at the 13, Conaty kicked a 29-yarder with 12:32 left in the half for a 10-3 edge.

A fumble turned it over to the Pirates at the VMI 48, but after a first down at the 37, a penalty and a long loss forced a punt.

Reggie Pinkney picked off the first of two interceptions after that, giving the Bucs the ball at midfield. The Pirates drove to the 13, but a fourth and three play failed to get a first down.

Coach Pat Dye said afterwards that he thought only one yard was needed. "We should have kicked a field goal. I think it could have changed the complexion of the game."

Another drive late in the period, from the Buc 27, failed on a fourth and one at the VMI 36.

In the opening minutes of the second half, the Bucs drove from their 20 to the six, where on fourth down, Conaty's 23-yarder was wide.

Two plays later, the Bucs got it back on a fumble at the 22, but a 15-yard penalty put them out of good position, and they punted.

The next possession saw another good chance go by. A punt to the 42 saw a personal foul against VMI, putting the ball on the 27, but the Pirates failed to get a first down.

The next possession moved just across midfield before a loss halted the drive. Early in the fourth period, another drive started at the Buc 49 and went to the 35 where Conaty missed a 51-yarder.

As the game ticked down, it remained a nail-biter until Hall came up with the ball at the 37 of VMI and returned it to the eight.

Hawkins went right up the middle on the counter on the next play, and that slammed the door. Conaty again kicked the PAT for a 17-3 lead with 2:02 left.

The Bucs twice got it back on interceptions, the last on the final play of the game; one was by Hall and the other by Pinkney.

East Carolina now travels to Chapel Hill to meet the University of North Carolina next Saturday.

Reds Jump Into Series Lead With 5-1 Victory

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds successfully opened defense of their World Series crown with a 5-1 triumph over the New York Yankees Saturday, but they lost their top pitcher in the process.

Left-hander Don Gullett suffered a dislocated tendon in his right ankle while facing New York's Mickey Rivers in the eighth inning.

He "felt something pop" in his right ankle, but continued to pitch. "It popped again when I pitched to Roy White," Gullett added, but when White, the next batter, singled for New York's fifth and last hit, Gullett was removed from the game.

Reliever Pedro Borbon finished up.

The young pitcher then was taken to a hospital, where X-rays of the injury disclosed a dislocated peroneus longus tendon in the ankle. It was placed in a cast and will remain there for six to seven weeks, a team spokesman said.

Gullett's injury placed a damper on the opening-game triumph, one started by Joe Morgan's home run off Doyle Alexander in the first inning.

"They're a fine club," the Reds second baseman said after the game. "We're an exceptional club. That's the difference."

Morgan got the "exceptional" Reds off and running in Saturday's contest, triggering a blitz of extra-base hits which carried Cincinnati to the easy victory.

The Reds also had two doubles and two triples. The five extra-base hits were the most a Cincinnati team ever has accumulated in a World Series game. Now you know why they call this club the Big Red Machine.

Morgan's homer came on a fastball from Alexander, who doesn't throw many of those.

"Alexander lets you hit the ball," said Pete Rose, the Reds' leadoff man. "And we did, all over the place."

Morgan said he knew his ball was a homer right away. "I'm a little guy," said the 5-foot-7 second baseman. "To hit a homer, I've got to get all of it. When I do, I know."

There is a certain psychological edge in putting the other team behind early, said Morgan.

"It's always important to be first to score in a World Series or playoff or All-Star game," he said.

"When you do, it means they already have their job cut out for them. They've got to get somebody on base. They've got to get something going. And if you're going to score early, I can't think of any better way to do it than a home run."

The game went Cincinnati's way, and so did the only controversy.

That arose when baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn withdrew permission for the Yankees to use walkie-talkie communications between a scout in the upper deck and a coach in the dugout. The Yankees wanted to use such a system to help position defensive players. The commissioner's office withdrew permission after learning that the scout was operating from the press box area instead of a regular seat in the upper deck.

No defensive positioning could have helped the Yankees on Morgan, unless they placed their right fielder in the stands, where his home run landed.

Trailing early was nothing new for New York. The Yankees had fallen behind in each of the last four American League playoff games against Kansas City. Each time, they wiped out those Royals' leads, and they quickly wiped out the Reds' edge this time.

Lou Piniella, New York's designated hitter, opened the second inning with a double to right field. He moved to third as pennant hero Chris Chambliss grounded out, then scored on a long fly ball to center field by Graig Nettles.

Cesar Geronimo, reputed to have baseball's best outfield arm, grabbed the ball on the running track in front of the wall, but he would have needed a rifle to cut down Piniella at the plate.

In the third inning, the Riverfront Stadium crowd of 54,826 got its chance to yell as Cincinnati took the lead for good.

With one out, Dave Concepcion, the ninth hitter in the Reds' lineup, sent a shot up the alley in left-center field and turned it into a triple.

A moment later, Concepcion trotted home as Pete Rose sent a sacrifice fly to Yankees centerfielder Mickey Rivers. Rose's fly ball was considerably shorter than Nettles' sacrifice fly had been, but Rivers doesn't have nearly the arm that Geronimo does, either.

Gullett wiped out nine straight Yankees batters following Piniella's double in the second. Chambliss opened the fifth with a single, but Nettles banged into a double play.

The double play saved a run because Elliott Maddox followed with a triple into the left-field corner that bounced away from George Foster. Willie Randolph tagged a long drive to center, but again Geronimo backed to the wall and pulled the ball down, stranding Maddox at third.

Fred Stanley led off with a walk but was forced at second on Rivers' attempted sacrifice. Then Roy White reached second when Geronimo dropped his drive after a long run in left-center field. Geronimo was charged with a two-base error on the play.

Early Touchdowns Help Wolfpack Stomp 'Heels

By REESE HART
Associated Press Writer

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Johnny Evans and Ted Brown led North Carolina State to three touchdowns in the first half and the Wolfpack made it stand up for a 21-13 victory over North Carolina Saturday in an Atlantic Coast Conference football game.

A sellout crowd of 50,000 watched in shirtsleeve weather as N.C. State put it all together in the first two quarters. Richard Wheeler intercepted a Matt Kupec pass in the first period and set up State's first score on North Carolina's 31. Seven plays later, Brown scored from the one.

State put together drives of 98 and 97 yards for second period touchdowns, Evans scoring from the one and Brown from the eight. It was the Wolfpack's second victory against four losses and a tie.

North Carolina, now 4-2, scored shortly before the half on a 32-yard pass from Kupec to Wayne Tucker. The Tar Heels scored again late in third period on a two-yard run by Mike Voight.

The Wolfpack, showing tremendous drive, dominated the first half behind Brown and the outstanding passing and running of Evans. It was perhaps the best performance of Evans' career. He completed eight of 14 passes for 129 yards, had no interceptions and carried 17 times for 44 yards. Most of his running yards came in the first two scoring drives.

After grabbing a 7-0 first period lead, the Wolfpack began a scoring drive late in the first quarter that carried over into the second period. On a daring play, Evans completed a 35-yard pass to Dave Moody from State's two to get the 98-yard march rolling. A 17-yard pass from Evans to Elijah Marshall also figured in it.

Later in the second quarter State rolled 97 yards in nine plays to score. A 26-yard run by Billy Ray Vickers and a 19-yard pass from Brown to Mike Crabtree were the highlights.

State threatened again seconds before the half, when Jay Sherrill attempted a 34-yard field goal that was wide.

The Tar Heels missed a scoring opportunity in the third quarter when Evans fumbled and Bobby Gay recovered on the Wolfpack 46. Kupec fired a 16-yard pass to Bob Loomis on the 23 and a personal foul penalty carried it to the 12. After an incomplete pass, Voight crashed to the six, but two more passes were incomplete and State took over.

Unable to gain, the Wolfpack kicked to North Carolina's 26 and from there the Tar Heels began their second touchdown drive behind Kupec. He hit Bill Johnson on a 16-yard pass, connected on tosses of seven and 12 yards to Billy Mabry and hit Voight on a 14-yarder at the State two where Voight later went over.

Voight gained 84 yards to run his career total to 3,173, a new school and ACC record. Kuped completed 11 of 22 passes for 158 yards and had one interception.

Maryland Comes From Behind To Gain 17-15 Win Over Deacs

By GORDON BEARD
AP Sports Writer

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — A 27-yard field goal by Mike Sochko with 2:56 remaining, following a blocked punt by Ken Roy, provided the winning points for unbeaten, fifth-ranked Maryland in a hard-earned 17-15 football victory over Wake Forest Saturday.

Maryland, a 17-point favorite, scored early in the fourth quarter on a one-yard run by freshman George Scott, took a 17-7 lead on Sochko's kick, then held off a late rally by the Demon Deacons.

Wake Forest, which was blanked by Maryland the past four seasons, scored on a 29-yard pass from Mike McGlamry with 1:31 left and added a two-point conversion on a pass from McGlamry to Solomon Everett.

The Deacons, who inexplicibly passed up a field goal attempt from the Maryland 25 in the third quarter, then tried an onside kick. But the ball was recovered by the Terps, who held on for their sixth consecutive triumph this season while extending to 17 their Atlantic Coast Conference record for consecutive victories.

The Terps, 2-0 in the ACC this season, snuffed out Wake Forest's final chance in the last 29 seconds on two incomplete passes and a quarterback sack. The loss was the first in three league starts for the Deacons, who have a 3-4 record for the season.

Maryland, the conference champion the past two years, moved to the top of the current standings as North Carolina lost 21-13 to North Carolina State and Duke, the only other unbeaten team in league play, was tied 18-18 by Clemson.

A 47-yard pass from Mark Manges to Tim Wilson gave Maryland a 7-0 lead in the homecoming game watched by representatives of the Orange and Sugar bowls, but Wake Forest tied it 7-7 in the second quarter on a one-yard TD plunge by James McDougald.

The field goal attempt passed up by Wake would have come against the wind, which gusted between eight and 18 miles an hour.

Wake Forest, which stopped a Maryland drive on a pass interception by James Royster in the final minute of the first half, had a chance to take the lead in the third period after Dan Snading recovered a fumble at the Maryland 27.

But a fake field goal from the Maryland 25 wound up in a 10-yard loss while Bob Hely, who had converted seven of 12 this season, stood watching holder Bill Millner being smothered by the Terps.

Maryland's tie-breaking touchdown was set up a favoring wind which limited two Wake punts in the third quarter to 23 and 28 yards. Scott, subbing for injured tailback Steve Atkins, scored the TD after a third-down fumble by Manges was recorded by guard Ed Fulton for an 11-yard gain on the Wake 32.

McGlamry completed three passes for 49 yards on Wake's initial TD drive and then hit Steve Young with a 48-yarder prior to the scoring toss to Milner late in the game.

McGlamry completed 11 of 24 passes for 183 yards as Wake was held to 55 yards on the ground. Milner had five of the receptions for 99 yards.

Scott, who carried the ball only twice before this season for minus two yards, finished with 83 yards on 17 attempts. Manges, the ACC total-offense leader, completed three passes for 69 yards on Maryland's first two possessions, but had only one more completion the rest of the way.

Each team missed long-distance field goal attempts in the first half, Wake from 56 yards and Maryland from 52.

Tide Swamps Tennessee

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Quarterback Jack O'Rear scored once on a 15-yard run and setup the winning touchdown with two 15-yard scampers as 20th ranked Alabama downed Tennessee, 20-13, Saturday in a nationally televised Southeastern Conference football game.

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Quarterback Thomas Lott scored two touchdowns as Oklahoma converted four Kansas turnovers into second half scores in their Big Eight Conference football clash Saturday and beat the Jayhawks 28-10.

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Fullback Rob Lytle smashed for 172 yards and two touchdowns and Michigan's top-ranked Wolverines rolled over winless Northwestern 38-7 Saturday in a Big Ten Conference football game.

Held to only a field goal in the first quarter, the Wolverines struck for four touchdowns within nine minutes of the second quarter, wrapping up their sixth victory of the season and third in the Big Ten.

Hunter Gets Three TD's In Irish Win

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Al Hunter rushed for three touchdowns and Notre Dame's defense recorded its third shutout of the season Saturday as the 14th-ranked Irish swamped Oregon 41-0 in an intersectional college football game.

Notre Dame, now 4-1, has yielded just two field goals since its season-opening 31-10 loss to Pittsburgh. Oregon dropped to 3-3 and suffered its second shutout this year.

The Irish composed touchdown drives on four of their first five possessions while holding the Ducks without a first down until 3:26 remained in the first half. Notre Dame led 27-0 at intermission.

Quarterback Rick Slager plunged over from the one with 4:54 left in the opening period, following a razzle-dazzle 33-yard completion off a double reverse, and the rout was on.

The Irish defense, anchored by defensive ends Ross Browner and Willie Fry, stopped Oregon inside its 10 on the next possession and the Irish regained control at the Ducks' 32. Six plays later, Slager rolled right and passed 11 yards to Mark McLane, who was alone in the right front corner of the end zone.

The second quarter was much the same, only Hunter was responsible for most of the damage. The fleet-footed junior halfback scored on runs of nine and six yards during the period—the first on a burst up the middle and the second on a sweep around left end.

He scored his third touchdown on a 31-yard run late in the third period.

Barber Carves Out Tourney Lead; Blasts Golf Association Policy

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Miller Barber fought gusty winds and blustery, raw cold for a two-under-par 70 Saturday, then leveled an angry blast at the PGA Tour policy that stretched the second round of the $125,000 San Antonio-Texas Open Golf Tournament over two days.

"The ones who played yesterday had it at least three shots better," said Barber, whose 138 total was the best posted by the 95 golfers who had to finish their second rounds Saturday. He trailed seven players—all of whom finished their rounds before play was suspended by a series of showers and thunderstorms Friday.

"I'm definitely going to sit down and write a letter to our commissioner (Deane Beman) about it," Barber said. "It wasn't at all equitable. It just isn't right. I haven't heard a single player who had to play today say it was right."

At the completion of the second round, Don Iverson, South African Bobby Cole and rookie John Harris—all of whom finished in the driving rain that eventually halted play Friday—were at 136, eight under par.

The group at 137—all of whom also played in Friday's rain but were spared the more difficult wind and cold of Saturday's round—are George Cadle, Peter Oosterhuis of England, Steve Taylor, Mason Rudolph and Tom Jenkins.

Barber's effort—"considering the weather, just about as good as I can play," he said—lifted him into a group at 138, two back. The others at that figure all finished their rounds Friday.

The biggest casualty of Saturday's play was first-round leader Tom Shaw. He had an opening 66, had parred two holes when play was stopped Friday, then returned for 16 more Saturday. Of those 16 holes, he bogeyed seven, double-bogeyed another and finished with an 80. And he missed the cut for Sunday's double-round, 36-hole wind-up.

Ben Crenshaw, the gallery favorite who finished Friday, and defending champion Don January, who played Saturday, were at 142. January had a second straight 71.

Only 55 men in the 150-man field had completed their rounds when play was suspended Friday. Another 95 either were stranded on the course or still were awaiting their starting times. Those on the course marked their positions and returned to complete their rounds Saturday.

"The round should have been rained out," said Barber, a veteran of two decades on the tour and winner of more than $1 million. "Have everybody come back and play 18 today. If we're going to play 36 on Sunday, what difference does it make. It wasn't fair to the guys who had to play today."

Jack Tuthill, Tournament Director for the PGA tour and the one in charge of this tournament, said the new policy, which allows the completion of play the following day even though less than half the field has finished, was set by the Tour's Policy Board.

"We got in one round in two days instead of no rounds in two days," Tuthill said.

"Look, we started at 10:30 a.m. today. If we'd played the whole field, we couldn't have started any earlier because of the condition of the course. If we play a full field starting at 10:30, we probably couldn't have finished. That means we've got in no rounds in two days and then where are we? We're looking at a Monday finish."

Blue Devils Tie Tigers Behind Record Field Goals

CLEMSON, S.C.(AP)—Duke's senior kicker Vince Fusco's sixth field goal of the game, a 57-yarder which bounced off the crossbar after time had run out, gave the Blue Devils an 18-18 tie with Clemson in an Atlantic Coast Conference Game Saturday afternoon.

Duke took over at its own 19-yard line with 59 seconds left in the game and marched to the Clemson 34 on the passing of quarterback Mike Dunn to Tom Hall. Duke was called for a five-yard penalty which pushed the Blue Devils back to the 39 with nine seconds left.

An incomplete pass stopped the clock with one minute remaining. Then Fusco kicked his game-tying field goal which barely escaped the outstretched arms of Clemson safety Jerry Butler at the goal post, hit the crossbar and bounced over.

Clemson, behind 12-0 at the half, bounced back in the third quarter to score 15 points, going ahead on an eight-yard pass from Steve Fuller to Butler on the final play of the third quarter.

Warren Ratchford ran the two-point conversion to put the Tigers ahead 15-12.

Clemson then drove to the Duke 14 on the running of Fuller and Ratchford, and Jimmy Russell put the Tigers ahead for the second time with a 36-yard field goal that came with just 1:49 left in the contest.

Clemson is now 0-1-1 in the ACC and 1-3-2 overall. Duke is 1-0-1 in the conference and 3-2-1 overall.

Bertie Gets Overtime Win Over Rose

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

WINDSOR — Bertie tackle Reginald Speller broke through the line to block Derek Brewington's extra point attempt in overtime to give the Falcons a 13-12 victory over Rose High School Friday night.

The play came after Mike Joyner scored a touchdown on a fourth-and-goal play from less than a foot in the Rampant's overtime possession.

Moments before, Bertie quarterback Billy Eubanks had snuck over from the one and Timmy Parker added the extra point on Bertie's poossession in the overtime, which gave each team a first-and-goal opportunity from the opposing 10-yardline.

The fact that Bertie was able to score seven points in the overtime while holding Rose to six gave the Falcons the game.

The loss was costly to the Rampants, dropping them to 0-2 in Division 1 and all but eliminating them from the conference race.

Bertie's other touchdown was scored by Larry Bass in the first quarter. David Northrup scored Rose's first touchdown on a one-yard run just before the half.

Bertie took the opening kickoff of the game and threatened to score on its first possession. Starting from their 26, the Falcons moved to the Rose 30 before a clipping penalty and sack by Rampant Raymond Wooten forced them to punt.

Rose was able to move the ball, with the help of facemask penalty, to the Bertie 40 where a 3-yard run on fourth down by Joyner was inches short and Bertie took over on downs.

Falcon quarterback Jack Culrings picked up five yards around left end and a holding penalty against the Rampants gave Bertie 15 more. Bass then picked up 14 on a run to move the ball to the Rose 29.

A pass and run moved the ball to the 15 where it took Bass two runs around right end to score. He picked up two yards on the first one, then broke several Rampant tackles on the next play to score. Timmy Parker's kick attempt was wide.

Rose moved the ball well on their next possession, but were unable to score.

The Rampants took over at their 36 following an 18-yard kick-off return by Robert Williams. Williams, Joyner, Doug Selby and quarterback Scott Brady picked up yardage on the ground to move the ball to the Bertie 12.

Rose converted three straight fourth down plays on the drive, but were unable to make the fourth, when Brewington faked a field goal but was unable to haul in Ronnie Chapman's pass. Brewington was also called for pass interference on the play, but the penalty was denied and Bertie took over.

The Falcons didn't hold the ball long however. On third down, Robert Morehead intercepted a Curlings pass at Bertie 40.

Williams then picked up seven yards on the first play and Brady got one on the second. Williams got four more on third down and Joyner added an eight-yard run to move the ball to the Falcon 20.

An offside penalty on first down hurt the Rampants and three runs by Northrup still left them in another fourth down situation at the Bertie nine. Williams picked up the first down off tackle before fumbling at the seven. Fraeger Sanders recovered for the Rampants, however, to give them a first and goal at the six.

Williams picked up four yards on first down to put the ball at the two, where it took Northrup two carries to score.

Rose threatened again on its first possession of the second half moving the ball from its own 32 to the Bertie 29 before Brewington missed on a 46-yard field goal attempt with 7:48 left in the third quarter. The Rampants actually moved the ball to the 23, on carries by Williams, Joyner and Northrup, but an illegal procedure penalty cost them five yards and forced the field goal attempt on fourth-and-11.

Bertie took over and the 20 and quickly moved downfield. The Rampants appeared to have them held at midfield but got a roughing the kicker penalty on the ensuing punt which kept the Falcon drive alive.

Before the Falcons could run another play, the Rampants were zapped with an unsportsman-like conduct penalty which gave Bertie the ball at the Rose 20. Three runs by fullback Larry Cooper, the Falcon workhorse all night, moved the ball to the nine. The Rampants dropped Bass for a loss of two on the next play, however, and Bill Collier intercepted Curlings' third-and-goal pass from the 10 in the end zone.

The Rampants moved the ball from their 20 to the Bertie 48 on their next possession, but Linwood Bazemore intercepted a Brady pass on Bertie's 15 on the last play of the third quarter.

The teams exchanged punts for the remainder of the regulation game, although Rose was able to keep the ball mostly within Bertie territory.

The Rampants moved to the Bertie 35 on their last drive of the fourth period, but they were unable to get a first down or move into Brewington's field goal range.

Bertie won the toss for the overtime playoff and elected to have the first offensive possession. Starting with a first and goal on the Rose 10, the Falcons moved in for a touchdown in three plays—a seven-yard run by Bass and two sneaks by Curlings. Parker added the extra-point kick which proved to be the difference in the game.

It took the Rampants four plays to score on their possession. Northrup got four yards in the drive while Joyner picked up the rest, and the TD, setting up Speller's block.

The win gives Bertie a 3-4 overall and 1-1 conference record. They host Rocky Mount next week.

The Rampants, who drop to 1-6 overall and 0-2 in the conference, will play host to Northern Nash next week.

Late Drive Helps Tech Over Virginia, 14-10

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — Virginia Tech's Roscoe Coles plunged over from the one-yard line with 1:08 left Saturday, capping a 70-yard drive that gave the Gobblers a 14-10 football victory over Virginia's Cavaliers.

Coles and fullback Paul Adams turned on the power in the 16-play march that began on the Gobblers' 30. Quarterback Mitcheal Barnes went to the air only once, hitting Moses Foster on the Virginia 46 before Tech began the relentless ground drive for the score.

The Cavaliers, trailing 7-3 at the half, took the lead with 7:12 left in the game. Quarterback Andy Hitt hit Jim Wicks with two passes, one a 17-yarder.

With the ball on the 17 after a nine-yard pass from Hitt to Wicks, running back Raymond Keys took over, carrying five consecutive times and scoring from a yard out to send Virginia ahead 10-7.

The victory lifted Tech's record to 4-2 and dropped Virginia to 0-6. It was the Cavaliers' 15th consecutive defeat, the longest losing streak in major college football.

Tech took a 7-0 lead in the first period on an 87-yard march in 14 plays with Adams scoring from seven yards out.

The Cavaliers, who had a field goal try nullified by a fumbled snap from center and lost a fumble at the Tech 15 after a pass interception, got a 21-yard field goal by Jenkins after failing to penetrate the end zone in three tries from the Tech nine.

Davidson Bows To Madison

DAVIDSON, N.C. (AP) — Ron Stith scampered 70 yards for a second quarter touchdown as Madison defeated Davidson 17-12 in an intersectional college football game Saturday at Davidson.

Madison extended its lead to 10-0 on a 41-yard second period field goal by Bob Ward, setting a school record.

The Dukes, now 5-2, scored on the first offensive series of the second half, driving 52 yards in three plays, with Jeff Knox scoring on a 40-yard pass from quarterback Stan Jones.

The Wildcats, 0-3-1, made a comeback bid late in the third quarter, scoring on a 54-yard, 10-play drive with quarterback Bob McCarthy passing the final nine yards to tight end Larry Crees.

Davidsonclosed the gap to five points in the fourth period, with the Wildcats driving 42 yards in eight plays for a second score.

Fullback Page Wally bolted the final yard to cap the drive.

Davidson was able to move the ball on the Dukes' defense, rolling up 256 yards total offense to 22 for the visitors.

But Madison was able to come up with the big play and build up an early lead big enough to hold off the struggling Wildcats.

McCarthy completed 11 of 15 pass attempts for 109 yards, but the air game was not enough to offset a weak ground game. McCarthy also led Wildcat rushers with 39 yards in 23 carries.

Madison linemen accounted for seven sacks, including two by Jim McHugh.

Madison Coach Challis McMillin criticized his game plan, saying, "I think I got too conservative in the second half because our defense was playing so well.

Davidson Coach Ed Farrell expressed optimism after the game for his team's development.

"I think we're so close to turning that corner we've been trying to turn. A comeback win today would have been great. There's no question we can hit, but we've got to do all the time," Farrell said.

Indians Sink Middies, 21-13

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Junior tailback Jim Kruis ran 18 yards for one touchdown and caught a six-yard pass for another Saturday as William & Mary defeated Navy 21-13 Saturday.

Kruis and quarterback Tom Rozantz, running the option play almost to perfection during the second half, carried the Indians to two touchdowns in the third period to break the game open.

William & Mary moved ahead early in the second half on a 68-yard scoring drive, with Kruis getting 42 of those yards on five carries.

Later in the period, fullback Keith Fimian went over left tackle for one-yard and a touchdown to cap a 75-yard drive by William & Mary.

Both Navy touchdowns came on passes from subsititute quarterback Bob Leszczynski to end Steve Scott. Leszczynski hit Scott with a 45-yard scoring pass in the second quarter and a 29-yarder in the final period.

Palmer Ties For Lead

PARIS (AP) — Arnold Palmer, the 47-year-old aging American master, and Severiano Ballesteros, Spain's 19-year-old prodigy, each put on closing rushes Saturday and shared the third-round lead in the Lancome Trophy golf tournament at 214, two under par.

Ballesteros birdied three of the last four holes over the 6,875-yard St. Nom la Breteche course for a four-under-par 68. Palmer dropped birdies at two of the last three holes for a 69 in the sunny but cool fall weather.

David Graham of Australia took a 70 for a 215 total and third place. Gary Player of South Africa, who had shared the second-round lead with Palmer, Graham and Jean Garaialde of France, needed birdies at the last two holes for a 70 that left him in fourth place at 216.

Borg Takes Tennis Win

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Playing almost flawless tennis, Bjorn Borg of Sweden crushed Arthur Ashe 6-1, 6-2 to win the $50,000 top prize in the World Invitational Tennis Classic.

"When Borg is moving and anticipating his shots like he was today, he is just too strong for me on clay," Ashe said after the match.

Borg also collected a new car as part of the top winnings in the tournament.

The Swedish star edged Evonne Goolagong by one point for the over-all title. They each won three matches and accumulate three points in the point-per-match tournament. But Borg won seven sets to Miss Goolagong's six.

Farmville Central Downs C.B. Aycock

FARMVILLE — Farmville Central's Ted Dunn scored three touchdowns and added five extra-point kicks to lead the Jaguars 42-20 win over C.B. Aycock in a battle of undefeated teams in the Eastern Carolina Conference.

The Jaguars scored 14 points in each of the first three periods to win the important conference game. They were able to take advantage of good field position most of the night on Dunn's punting.

Ted Dunn got Farmville's first two TD's on runs of five and seven yards and added the kicks. But Aycock's Jackie Dunn came back in the first quarter on a 73-yard run which pulled the Falcons to 14-6.

That was as close as they could get, however, as Mike Jenkins grabbed a 24-yard touchdown pass from Carroll Griffin and Keno Farrow scored on a one-yard run for Farmville in the second quarter. Ted Dunn again kicked the PAT's.

Farrow got the second half scoring started on a four-yard run before Jackie Dunn returned an interception 53 yards for a Falcon TD.

Ted Dunn got his final touchdown next on a 10-yard pass from Griffin and Jackie Dunn scored Aycock's final TD on an 86-yard fumble return.

The win leaves Farmville tied with Ayden-Grifton at the top of the Eastern Carolina Conference, both with 4-0 conference records. Farmville is now 5-2 overall. Farmville and Ayden-Grifton will battle it out next week at Ayden-Grifton.

Aycock drops to 3-4 overall and 3-1 in the conference. The Falcons will play at D.H. Conley next week.

S. Nash Defeats Conley

SPRING HOPE — D.H. Conley dropped its third straight Eastern Carolina Conference game Friday night, losing to Southern Nash 26-6.

Richard Matthews scored the first two touchdowns for the winners on runs of one and three yards. The second was set up by the Firebirds' recovery of a bad punt snap at the Viking two-yard line.

Greg Pope added Southern Nash's third TD on a six-yard run and Walter Williams had a one-yard run for the Firebirds' final score. Joyner rounded out the Southern Nash scoring with PAT kicks on the last two touchdowns.

D.H. Conley finally got into the scoring act just before halftime when Charles Nobles took a 15-yard scoring pass from Jeff McDaniel. It wasn't enough, however, as both teams went scoreless in the second half.

Conley is now 3-4 on the season and 1-3 in the conference. They will host C. B. Aycock this Friday.

Southern Nash evened its conference record with the win at 2-2. The Firebirds are 3-4 overall and play host to North Lenior next week.

Hawks Grab Win Over North Pitt

BETHEL—North Lenoir scored seven points in overtime and held North Pitt to six to take its first win of the year, 27-26, in a battle of winless teams.

Each team scored seven points in the second quarter and 13 points in the fourth to leave the game in a 20-20 deadlock at the end of regulation play. North Pitt won the overtime toss and elected to play offense on the first possession. The Panthers scored on a 15-yard run by George Little. The PAT kick attempt failed, however.

That set up North Lenoir's win when Michael Gardner scored on a six-yard run during the Hawks' overtime possession and Ronnie Chapman came on to kick the extra point.

Johnny Wiggins scored first for the Hawks on a two-yard pass from Holloman. Chapman kicked the extra point. North Pitt came back, however, as Virgil Pilgreen took a 19-yard pass from John Hunt. Jay Bedworth kicked the PAT.

North Lenoir scored again on Cecil Turner's 31-yard run and North Pitt countered with a four-yard TD run by Little. Chapman and Bedworth added the kicks.

Again the Hawks scored on Gardner's one-yard rush and again the Panthers tied it when Little took it in from 10 yards out. On those drives, both the extra points kicks failed, leaving the game tied and setting up the overtime.

North Pitt is now 0-7 and 0-4. The Panthers travel to Greene Central next week.

North Lenoir is now 1-6 overall and 1-3 in the conference and the Hawks travel to take on Southern Nash next Friday.

Steelers Will Try To End Loss String

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Chuck Noll doesn't need another critic in the stands, but he might have one when his desultory Pittsburgh Steelers play the Cincinnati Bengals Sunday.

Terry Bradshaw will have a chance to second-guess his coach from the vantage point of the press box at Three Rivers Stadium. The Steelers' regular quarterback will be a grandstand quarterback for a change because of a neck injury suffered against Cleveland last week.

"I could dress this week and hand off if I have to," says Bradshaw, his neck in a brace.

Don't bet on it, though.

The Steelers' blond bomber thought he might never walk again after a vicious flip by Cleveland's Joe Jones.

"I feel I'm lucky to be alive," says Bradshaw, just released from a hospital on Thursday. "I thought I broke my neck. I thought I was paralyzed."

His future is in limbo.

"I may not play a down this year—or I may be back in two weeks," says Bradshaw.

Bradshaw's injury is really a pain in the neck for the Steelers, who now will have to go with rookie Mike Kruczek for a while. The defending National Football League champions have lost four of their first five games and sorely need to beat the Bengals to make headway in the American Conference's Central Division.

The imperfect start has put Noll on the hot seat in Pittsburgh, where newspapermen have been throwing barbs his way. Noll has not been a big fan of sports writers this year.

"I've always threatened to go to the press box for a quarterback," says Noll with a chuckle. "...and now I can."

In other NFL action Sunday, it will be Dallas at St. Louis, the New York Giants at Minnesota, Kansas City at Miami, Detroit at Washington, Seattle at Tampa Bay, Cleveland at Atlanta, Baltimore at Buffalo, Philadelphia at Green Bay, Oakland at Denver, Chicago at Los Angeles, Houston at San Diego and New Orleans at San Francisco. In the Monday night game, it's the New York Jets at New England.

Dallas and St. Louis possess two of the high-octane offenses in football with Roger Staubach piloting the Cowboys and Jim Hart the Cardinals. The Cowboys, 5-0, hold a tenuous, one-game margin over the Cardinals, 4-1, in the NFC Eastern Division.

"This isn't a do-or-die game for the Cardinals," said Cowboys Coach Tom Landry. "They have been the champions of the East the past two years and until they are replaced, they are the team to beat."

The Cowboys, of course, were Super Bowl participants last season despite bowing to St. Louis in the East—making it to the championship game as a wild card team.

The NFL's only other undefeated team, Minnesota, will be playing a winless team in the Giants—but won't be taking them lightly.

"Teams like this are coming up and beating good teams," says Grant, whose club has a 4-0-1 record this season compared to the Giants' 0-5. "We're scared to death they could beat us."

Miami, 2-3, a perennial contender, is off to an inexplicable poor start this season and will be trying to keep alive in the AFC East against Kansas City, 1-4. Washington, 3-2, has lost two games in a row while Detroit is coming off a big victory over New England.

Tampa Bay and Seattle will play a game flippantly billed as "Expansion Bowl I." Both expansion teams are winless and the contest will be for no more than bragging rights among losers.

Fresh off an upset of Pittsburgh, sky-high Cleveland will go with quarterback Brian Sipe against Atlanta's Kim McQuilken, the backup for injured Steve Bartkowski. Baltimore, 4-1, leader in the AFC East, is coming off a handsome victory over Miami. Buffalo, 2-3, is struggling with an ineffective O.J. Simpson but may be motivated by the coaching change Friday, with Jim Ringo replacing Lou Saban as top man.

Green Bay has won two straight games and hopes to wind up a three-game home stand with a victory over Philadelphia. Oakland, 4-1, with a power offense directed by Ken Stabler and aided by Cliff Branch's running talents, leads Denver 3-2, in the AFC West. Los Angeles hopes to rebound after an embarrassing 16-0 loss to San Francisco last week.

Dan Fouts leads San Diego against injury-plagued Houston. Quarterback Mike Strachan will be facing a tough San Francisco defense that sacked Los Angeles quarterback James Harris 10 times last week. New England, 30-10 losers to Detroit last week, should have an easier time with the hapless Jets this week.

Reds Fearful Of Yankee Stadium

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

CINCINNATI (AP) — A wave of fear has struck this old Ohio River town, home of baseball's world champion Cincinnati Reds.

It isn't the arrival of the pinstriped New York Yankees and their boasting skipper for the annual World Series, opening today, that has produced this outbreak of shivers.

It is the memory of the mad scene at Yankee Stadium Thursday night after the Yankees had clinched the American League playoff with a 7-6 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

After the Yankees had nailed down the pennant with a dramatic ninth-inning home run by Chris Chambliss, mobs poured out of the stands and through the gates, jeopardizing players and umpires.

The scene came through the television tubes here like some horror movie, leaving Cincinnati fans and the Reds players themselves shaken by the potential of violence.

"It was really frightening," said Johnny Bench, the Reds' all-star catcher.

"When I played outfield I was afriad I would get a knife in the back," said Pete Rose. "I'm glad I am playing third base instead of the outfield. It would be hard for somebody to hit me from such a distance."

A number of the Reds said they were concerned whether they should allow their wives to accompany them back to New York when the Series moves into Yankee Stadium Tuesday night after the opening two games here.

The unruly action of the madcap Yankee fans was the main topic of conversation at the World Series headquarters hotel here Friday night, on the even of the Series inaugural.

"Tell me," said a bearded Cincinnati businessman, a longtime Reds supporter, "what would happen to us if the Reds happened to clinch the Series in Yankee Stadium. Would our lives be in danger?"

"I will tell you," said another man. "I wouldn't wear a Cincinnati button or a red cap with a "C" on it for anything in the world."

The conversation took some ludicrous bends.

"You know what," a man in another group was overheard to say, "I thought it was terrible the way the security at Yankee Stadium broke down and let all those ruffians on the field."

"I think the only way to protect the players is to build a double wall like they have at bull fights. There is one restraining wall, then a smaller wall for the protection of the matador with about 15 feet between. The space should be filled with rattlesnakes."

"The ball players ought to wear their batting helmets in the field," another Cincinnati observer observed, "to protect them from all those beer bottles."

This was suggested to Ken Griffey, Cincinnati right fielder, who shrugged and responded:

New Yorkers, arriving on the scene, thought their midwestern friends were overreacting.

"Our people get a little excited sometimes," an Eastern defender said. "But I seem to have read earlier this week that there was a little celebration at Fountain Square here after the Reds beat the Phillies.

"What were the statistics? Two shootings, half a dozen knifings and about 70 injured. Rabid baseball fans, it seems, are the same everywhere."

Chargers Down Greene Central

LITTLEFIELD — Ayden-Grifton kept its unbeaten conference record intact Friday night with a 29-12 victory over Greene Central.

William West got three touchdowns for the Chargers on runs of seven, 61 and 25 yards. Ayden-Grifton actually scored all it needed for the win in the first quarter on two of Best's TD runs and Ogden Braxton's extra point kicks.

James Best scored in the first quarter for Greene Central on a three-yard run and Chris Streeter got a 10-yard pass from Best to pull the Rams to 14-12 at halftime.

Those were Greene Central's only scores; however, and Ayden-Grifton added 15 points in the fourth quarter to stretch its lead. Markham Wheatley scored on a three-yard run and the team picked up a safety before West got his final touchdown, a 25-yard run.

The win gives the Chargers a 4-0 conference record and 4-3 overall record. They host the only other undefeated team in the conference, Farmville Central, next Friday.

Greene Central drops to 1-3 in the conference and 1-5 overall. The Rams will entertain North Pitt Friday.

Five different Redskins scored in the game as Roanoke ran up 476 total yards while holding North Edgecombe to minus one.

Quarterback Charlie Smith threw four touchdown passes for Roanoke, two to Lee Smith and two to Sammy Boyd. He also ran for another Roanoke score.

Larry Williams added another Roanoke TD on a 63-yard run and David Spruill scored on a 15-yard run.

On the extra points, Doug Lane kicked one, Spruill and Danny Brown each ran for one and David Hall took a pass from Clay Roberson for Roanoke's final conversion.

Ahoskie Hands Tigers First Loss Of Year

AHOSKIE — Williamston High School lost its first game of the year Friday night, a 20-0 defeat at the hands of conference foe Ahoskie.

Ahoskie's first score was set up when a Tiger fumble was recovered by Ahoskie at the Williamston 43. Carlton Watson capped the drive with a three-yard scoring run. Mike Watford added the extra-point.

Ahoskie wasn't able to score again until the fourth quarter when Watson again capped a 45-yard drive. Watson was the workhorse of the drive, carrying 10 of 12 plays. Watford again added the kick.

Watford scored Ahoskie's final TD, taking a 21-yard pass from Mark Sharp. The PAT kick failed.

Williamston had several threats in the game, but was unable to capitalize. A field goal attempt from the 11 was blocked in the second quarter and time ran out at the half with the Tigers on the Ahoskie one-yard line.

Fonzie Fan Fad Is Amazing To Actor

By LEO LLOYD

NEW YORK (UPI) — The fans ask him to sign them — the Fonzie T-shirts.

"It's amazing to see this phenomenon," says Henry Winkler, the Fonzie of television. "I've signed thousands of these T-shirts ... shoes and socks, hats.

"But I won't sign flesh — even brassieres."

The Fonzie fad is having a resurgence amid the "Happy Days" series' return to television. Winkler has found "Fonz" fans extend over most age groups although the majority appear to be pre-teenage.

This applies even more to the shirts and other memorabilia, manufacturers say. Adults wear beer brand emblems or "witty" slogans. Teen-agers go for rock band insignia. But many pre-teens prefer "The Fonz."

Phillip Sarubbi, 8, wears a Fonz shirt. And a Fonzie motorcycle jacket, too. He decorates his room with a Fonz poster. He'll wear a "Fonzie for President" button, if he can get one.

"I think he's cool," says Phillip, who imitates Fonzie's walk and says he wants to "be cool" too.

"The way he combs his hair," says Phillip of Fonzie's 50s style. "I comb mine like that."

Such pre-teens are making an industry out of The Fonz.

"It's very flattering to have The Fonz on somebody's chest," says Winkler. "But if it were up to me, I wouldn't commercialize it so much. There's something about keeping the mystique."

Not Marvin Herbert. He's delighted with the fad — and the sales.

To Herbert, executive vice-president of Allison Manufacturing Company, which makes the shirts, it all means dollars. His firm has sold close to two million Fonz T-shirts since March. Mainly, he says, they are worn by "kids anywhere from three to fourteen."

The Fonzie fad slowed this summer. Now it is coming back strong with the resumption of the series.

"It's just a crazy fad," he says. "It's one of those things, you can't explain it.

"You're going through a period of television promotions," says Mermelstein, explaining it. "When a child sees something advertised on the tube, he says, 'Mommy, I want one of those things,' and the Mommy buys it."

Winkler, 30, who studied acting at Emerson College and Yale School of Drama before repertory theater. Then came his film role in "The Lords of Flatbush" and fame as The Fonz on ABC-TV's "Happy Days" series. He says the notoriety and the fad have their good effects.

"The little boy in Jerry Lewis' Muscular Dystrophy Telethon said, 'Don't worry about me. I'll become a doctor and find a cure for this. You've gotta be like The Fonz.'

"There was a little boy from Texas that came on the set. He was supposed to have died from a muscular sclerosis. But he found the courage to live because of The Fonz.

"I received letters from classrooms of unmotivated children, the first letters they have ever written in their lives. He's being used as a learning tool, too.

"I've been asked if I sold out because I was trained first in classical theater. If these stories keep happening, I'll sell out each and every time."

The fad goes on.

Not every youngster likes Fonzie. Jeffrey Wolf, 11, complains, "He's always telling people what to do. You can't really talk back to him or Fonzie will punch your brains out."

Like it says on the t-shirts, The Fonz would have a two-word expression for that — "Ay, Ay!"

John Kerivan, 11, a Fonz fan, confesses his belief that, if he acted the way The Fonz does on television, "I probably would have no friends."

But he'd wear a "Fonzie for President" button. He says the Fonz would probably be like other presidents except:

"He'd do it quieter, he wouldn't go around making all these speeches and everything."

'Duke Of Duval' Is No More; Changes Ahead

By RAYMUNDO PEREZ

SAN DIEGO, Tex. (UPI) — If it weren't for the late model cars and long hair styles on a few young men, this languid little town in the heart of South Texas could easily be mistaken for the setting of "The Last Picture Show."

The Regis Theater, the town's only movie house, has been closed for more than a decade. An arsonist set fire to the building after it was closed and now only parts of the old theater still stand.

Tacho's candy and ice cream store on Main Street is still open. Tacho sells cigarettes for a nickel apiece. Most of his customers come from across the street, the unemployed who spend lazy afternoons hanging out at the run-down pool hall run by Johnny Benavides.

Despite the sameness of appearances, there is something different about Duval County, a place which for Texans automatically brings to mind crooked officials and was presented to the rest of the nation on television as a flagrant example of rural corruption at work.

Those were the days of "The Duke of Duval" and his legacy. It is because those days are gone that change is at hand.

For the first time in 60 years the Parr family is no longer in control of the sprawling South Texas county of ranch land dotted with mesquite trees and cattle. Duval County, with the help of federal and state prosecutors, is cleaning house.

George Parr, 73-year-old "Duke of Duval," committed suicide last year after being ordered to serve a prison sentence for failing to report and evading hundreds of thousands of dollars in federal income taxes.

Insiders said Parr chose to die rather than go to prison. In the early 1950s, at the height of his power, Parr did go to prison for mail fraud in the theft of money from the Benavides school district. That prison stay was cut short by a pardon by then President Harry S. Truman.

In the past two years more than 100 officials and county employes were indicted to put an end to the political machine started by George Parr's father at the turn of the century.

Investigators in the Texas attorney general's office say millions of dollars in public funds were stolen during the Parr's regime from a county with a population of only 12,000.

"The county bought his (George Parr's) groceries and gasoline," one investigator said. "The county was his personal bank account."

Now, Gilberto Uresti, a short, slender pharmacist and admitted political novice, is trying to put Duval County back on a firm financial basis.

Uresti was elected county judge this year, one of the winners in an election which saw 87 candidates vying for the county's political positions — which in itself was new for Duval County where contested races were rare for more than half a century.

When Uresti, 40, took office the county was broke and owed $450,000. Now, Uresti said Duval County has an operating fund of $900,000, plus $350,000 in certificates of deposit in a local bank earning 7¾ per cent interest.

But equally important to Uresti has been an end to the secrecy and shady dealings of the Parr regime.

"I promised the people I would not hide anything and I've tried to fulfill that promise," he said. "I schedule county commission meetings at night and invite the citizens to participate.

"I have many plans for this county. But it takes time and money — and help."

Among his plans are building of multi-purpose centers, landfills, better housing and recreational parks — all luxuries almost unknown in a county where some of the residents still do without indoor plumbing.

Uresti wants Duval County to apply for federal grants so his plans can be realized. "As far as I know, no one ever applied for federal funds," he said.

While Duval County was undergoing its shakedown early this year, the CBS-tv program, "60 Minutes," visited the county and portrayed its corruption.

"I challenged 60 Minutes," Uresti said. "I told them to come back and see the improvements we've made.

"I don't condone what went on here for so long. But things are changing and things are getting better."

QUIT WEST POINT—Leslie Davies displays West Point uniform and boots, mementoes of her two weeks at West Point this summer. She quit, saying West Point turns boys into men, adding she didn't want to be turned into a man. She now works in a St. Paul, Minn. bank. (AP Wirephoto)

DALLAS (UPI) — Clothing designer Halston has branched out into airline uniforms. Braniff International says the American designer will create its 1977 flight attendant wardrobe for all uniformed personnel. Russell Thayer, the airline's executive vice president, said he also will have design suggestions for other areas of passenger service.

DON'T RAKE LEAVES. SNAPPERIZE THEM.

Why waste time raking leaves when the Snapperizer can do the job faster, easier and better? The Snapperizer is an easy-to-install accessory that turns the Snapper V-Series mower into a leaf pulverizer and outdoor vacuum. The Snapperizer pulverizes leaves so that the grass catcher can hold twice as much. And when you've finished, you'll not only have a beautifully vacuumed lawn, you'll also have a fine mulch to use in your flower and shrubbery beds. Ask us for a free demonstration.

ONE OF THE FINEST CARS IN THE WORLD

TARHEEL TOYOTA'S 100,000 MILE WARRANTY

For 100,000 miles or 3 years we guarantee the motor, transmission, and rear end of every new Toyota we sell. This warranty is in the form of a legal document and supplements the new car warranty of Toyota Motor Sales, USA. Commercial vehicles are excluded.

"OPERATION SELLOUT"

Don't Miss A Great Opportunity

SEE US TODAY!

USED CAR WARRANTY — 12 MONTHS OR 12,000 MILES

This guarantee applies to cars selling for $1000.00 and up. On a 50-50 basis. All work must be done in our shop. This warranty does not apply to any sport cars, high performance or air cooled engines or 4 speed transmissions (except economy cars). Most good used cars (even if they look like new) are only guaranteed for a month. Of for a thousand miles. No more. And some are not guaranteed at all. But at Tarheel when we say a used car is in excellent condition, we're willing to stand behind it. We're willing to do something a little extra for it. So we guarantee its motor, its rear end and its transmission for twelve months or twelve thousand miles. If you're in the market for a better used car, come out to Tarheel and look at ours. We'll show you some as good as new. Guaranteed. Asterisk denotes warranted car.

Christmas In October Held By WOTM

Christmas in October was the theme for a chapter night meeting of the Women of the Moose, Greenville Chapter No. 1308, Thursday night at the Moose Temple.

WOTM members brought gifts, or made donations to purchase gifts, for Mooseheart, the children's city in Illinois, and Moosehaven, a home for the elderly in Florida. Both were built by and are operated by the Loyal Order of Moose.

Mrs. Dorothy Gronert, chairman of the Mooseheart committee, was in charge of the program which included a film, "Listen to Your Heart," showing daily life at Mooseheart.

The Christmas theme prevailed in refreshments, games, and background music which were held following the meeting. Mrs. Francis Breedlove, Moosehaven chairman, and Mrs. Darlene Peszko, publicity chairman, assisted Mrs. Gronert at the refreshment table.

Two new members, Mrs. Melba Hargett and Mrs. Gladys Booker, were enrolled and the chapter approved a fund-raising project for the Membership Committee. Mrs. Marie Bullock, chairman, said the committee will sponsor portrait sittings at the Moose Temple Nov. 6.

Plans for a visit of Mrs. Lois Harvey of Winston-Salem, deputy grand regent for North Carolina, on Dec. 9 were also discussed.

On The Local Scene

by Rosalie Trotman

"Reflections: Lifestyles Today — History Tomorrow," a benefit for the North Carolina Museum of History Associates, will be held Wednesday, Oct. 27, at noon at the North Ridge Country Club, Raleigh.

The benefit, a fashion salute by Thalhimers, is in celebration of the charter membership year of the Museum of History Associates. The group was formed a year ago to assist the Museum of History with funds for acquisitions and to create a wider interest throughout the state for the museum, its programs and the 22 historic sites it assists.

Under the leadership of Mrs. Thomas W. Steed Jr. of Raleigh and a statewide Board of Directors, the membership has grown to over 1,600 from all parts of the state.

Invitations to the event have been mailed to associates members. The public is also invited to attend according to Mrs. H. A. Underwood III and Mrs. Lucius W. Pullen, co-chairmen for Reflections. Reservations may be made by calling the associates office at the Museum of History, 829-3894.

Among those helping Mrs. Pullen and Mrs. Underwood with the planning for the show are associates members, Mrs. Charles F. Merrill, Mrs. John A. Remling and Mrs. A. C. Hattaway III. The show will feature fall and holiday fashions and will also reflect the purpose and goals of the Museum of History.

The proceeds from the production will be used for the restoration of historic flags owned by the museum and for the reproduction of some of the flags for a traveling exhibit. Among the 230 flags of the collection are those representing the Revolution, the Civil War, the Spanish-American War, Korea and Vietnam.

Helping to set the scenes for the "flag waving fashions" will be a young singing group from Burlington, known as the Company Shop Tar Heel Junior Historians. This group, last year, wrote the words and music to a number of ballads based on North Carolina history as part of the museum's Tar Heel Junior Historian program. They will be singing four of their original ballads in the show.

Reservations have to be turned in by Oct. 20.

Mrs. Alfred Williams III of Raleigh, the former Lucy Clyde Blount of Greenville, is wearing a camel classic double breasted blazer and front pleated skirt by Jerry Silverman.

Couple Weds In Candlelight Ceremony

WINTERVILLE — The Reedy Branch Free Will Baptist Church here was the scene of the candlelight wedding ceremony of Vickie Carolyn Little and John Bennett Haralson Jr. Saturday evening at eight o'clock.

The Rev. Willis Wilson performed the double ring ceremony. Mrs. Marlene Stroud of Ayden, organist, and Ms. Lynn Hicks of Greenville, vocalist, presented a program of wedding music.

She wore a Juliet cap of gathered maracaine jersey with pearl trim which held in place, the chapel length illusion veil which was edged in white satin tubing. She carried a nosegay of white miniature carnations and baby's breath centered with a white cattleya orchid.

The chancel of the church was centered with a fifteen branched candelabrum with three candelabra on each side. Hurricane candles marked the honor pews. The couple knelt for the benediction on a white prie-dieu.

The maid of honor was Teresa Adeline Little of Ayden, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Ms. Gwendolyn Proctor Soyars of New Bern, and Ms. Pamela Thompson Stokes of Greenville.

The attendants wore formal length gowns of shrimp chiffon over shrimp taffeta designed with an open V-neckline accented by a double capelet collar. The attendants carried nosegays of sprengeric, sonya roses and baby's breath.

Honorary bridesmaids were Mrs. Jane G. Martin of Fort Worth, Tex., Mrs. Gayle H. Disney of North Wilkesboro, and Ms. Juanita Lee Masten of Greenville. They wore formal length gowns and carried clutch bouquets of sonya roses and baby's breath.

The mother of the bride selected a formal length ensemble of blue knit and raschel lace. The sleeveless gown was styled with a solid blue knit flowing skirt with the bodice of raschel lace complemented by a short lace jacket. The mother of the bridegroom selected a floor length pearl gray nyestra antron gown with a short jacket with long sleeves. Both mothers and the bride's parental grandmother, Mrs. Nina Hart Little, wore white miniature carnation corsages.

The bridegroom's father was best man and ushers were Edwin Albion Little Jr. of Ayden, brother of the bride, and Richard Barclay Ransom of Arlington, Va.

Music Lessons Are A Party

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

Music teacher Madeleine Carabo-Cone makes every lesson a party.

For the past 25 years her favorite occupation has been teaching music to preschoolers and early elementary children, using a system she began developing in her own childhood.

The walls and floor of her studio in New York City's Carnegie Hall are covered with musical symbols, not for decoration but as teaching aides. Her pupils wear child-sized sandwich boards depicting musical notes, cocked hats made of newspapers and decorated with musical notes and more notes in varied sizes cut from black construction paper. Even the tunic of her teacher's uniform is appliqued with staff and notes.

Carabo, as she prefers to be called, uses these larger-than-life symbols to teach music and music appreciation to children by playing games with them, matching the paper notes to musical ones she strikes on an upright piano. The children wiggle their toes, shake their knees, pat their tummies, tickle their noses and pat their heads in response to various notes on the staff. Then she plays the notes out of order for them to identify.

She hands out sticks to determine who will pretend to be a particular note.

"Close your eyes and grab when I say 'grab'," she tells them. "I used to say 'pick' or 'choose'," but when I was working in day care centers, deprived children didn't know what pick or choose was, so I had to say 'grab'."

The youngest, Alexander Bellia, a pixieish 3-year-old from Teaneck, N.J., responded slowly.

"No," said Carabo, "you've got to come right in on the beat. That's what orchestra leaders do.

"They learn while having fun," she said in an interview. "Their hearing is developed, and rhythmic coordination.

"They can teach themselves things they want to know. One child went home and took all the music books out of the shelves in the library. His mother found him going through her Beethoven. He was looking for whole notes (that he had learned about in class). 'They didn't have very many,' he told his mother when she asked for an explanation."

Carabo even uses snacks to teach music. The tablecloth on which she serves orange juice, cookies and pretzels is marked with musical staffs. The children use round cookies and circular and stick pretzels to make musical notes and half notes before they eat.

Sonia Strawn of New York City, who had brought her two daughters to class, said Sarah, 5 and a half years old, plays the violin and reads music. "She was barely 5 when she started this (class) for 10 weeks last spring," said Mrs. Strawn.

"My husband played the clarinet in college, and I play the piano and organ, but not professionally."

Some pupils are children of professional musicians, but most are from families who simply want the youngsters to appreciate music and learn for their own pleasure.

In addition to teaching, Carabo lectures at colleges and universities and conducts teachers' workshops to which she invites some staff members from day care centers.

She is confident any mother who can read and any classroom teacher can learn her method quickly. "I have taught day care center people how to teach this in a three-day workshop."

The Dapper Dresser Links Fashion , Jewelry

NEW YORK (AP) — Forget that old, torn T-shirt and wrinkled jeans, men. The Age of Elegance is here, says the Jewelry Industry Council.

Today men are as fashion-conscious as women and while they may never become slaves to style, indications are that the casual look in men's wear is on its way out, the council reports.

Shirts with ties are back, and there's a strong trend toward French cuffs to set off handsome suitings of serge and flannel.

And, as with women's fashions, jewelry adds the finishing touch to apparel, with tie bars, pins, tie chains and cuff links and vest chains setting off collars, cuffs and waistlines.

Men's watches and watch bands are ornamental as well as functional. There are flexible metal bands, often in two tones of gold, fine leather straps in reptile, and watch faces that show lapis lazuli or mosaic opal.

Diamonds — so long taboo for men, although historically male royalty only sported them — have come full circle, and are fashion-right for men, the council says. Rings, often studded with tiny diamonds and colored stones, are big and bold. Tiger's eye, cat's eye and onyx are most popular, as are individual birthstone gems. Bold, geometric and free form designs in gold give the rings a sturdy, masculine look.

Today's new tie pins are much more imaginative than formerly, and are worn on ascots as well as on ties. The dapper dresser might well choose to wear two small pins on a tie to create a theme. For example, a tiny sculptured gold retriever pin sits below a golden pheasant in flight.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I don't know what vistors to a hospital did before television. It must have been dreary for them to come into a room and talk to a sick person.

One cannot imagine how vital this hospital accessory has become until you check into a hospital. Recently, during my confinement as a patient, a friend of mine called and said, "I'll drop in on you this afternoon. Do you have color?"

"I'm a little pale," I apologized, "but . . ."

"Not you, you ninny. I mean is the TV set in color?"

"Sure, but I don't know what. . ."

That afternoon, she dropped in and for the next two hours cried in her knotted henderchief through "The Young and the Restless," "All My Children," "Ryan's Hope" and the "$20,000 Pyramid."

During the credits, she turned to me, shook her head in disgust and said, "You think YOU have problems!" and left.

My children were even less subtle. One crashed through the door, snatched the remote control out of my hands and said, "What are you doing watching the Boston Pops when Starsky and Hutch are on?"

On his heels was my other son who grappled the controls out of his brother's hand and flipped to a movie. "The Bionic Nostril."

"I was sick today," I ventured.

"Tell us during the commercial."

"Wanta play with my bed? If you push the right button my back breaks in half."

"Shh."

When their father walked in, he kissed may call button (his eyes never leaving the set) and said, "Boys, your mother doesn't want to watch this drivel," and flipped it to a ballgame.

"I met Robert Redford in X-ray today," I said.

"There's a lot of it going around," one of them mumbled.

"Oh hello, Doctor," I said as my physician entered the room.

"Could you keep it down?" said my husband. "There are men trying to play ball here."

"Maybe it isn't important," I whispered to my doctor, "but I have this invisible feeling that I'm here and no one can see me. Do you know what I mean, Doctor? Doctor? DOCTOR!"

They'll all be sorry when I get my own series.

Joint Negoiations Needed Now!

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Our wedding date is rapidly approaching, and we face a terrible problem. My fiancee's parents are paying for the entire wedding. As a result they want to control everything (number of guests my family may invite, place for the wedding, etc.).

My parents are upset that they are not even being consulted. Please tell me whether it's proper for the groom's side to have a voice in wedding arrangements when the bride's parents are footing the whole bill.

CAUGHT IN THE MIDDLE

DEAR CAUGHT: In the spirit of parental detente, some joint negotiations would seem to be in order. To proceed otherwise is to invite ill feelings when joy should reign.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married only three months and the other night my husband came home with marks on his back as if a tiger got ahold of him. I noticed it when Ken tried to make love to me with his shirt on. I thought it was peculiar because Ken never sleeps in anything. When I asked him how come he was a wearing a shirt to bed he said he was trying to sweat out a cold.

Well, I felt those scratches right through his shirt and insisted on getting a good look at them. I nearly fainted when I saw those deep marks across his shoulders and under his arms!

At first he said he had fallen in the shower at the club, but I knew he couldn't get messed up like that from a fall, so I kept after him until he told me the whole story. It seems Ken ran into an old girlfriend, she invited him up to her place where they killed a fifth of vodka between them and that's when it happened!

He said she didn't mean a thing to him, and there was nothing wrong with our sex life. Abby, if I'm all the woman he needs, how could this have happened?

BATTLE IN SEATTLE

DEAR BATTLE: After "a fifth of vodka between them," I'm surprised (a) that it happened at all, (b) that your husband remembered when, where and with whom. Ken at least came clean. Forgive him. Every dog's entitled to one bite.

DEAR ABBY: How come in the State of Pennsylvania a 16-year-old girl can get an abortion without her parents' consent, but she needs their permission to get her ears pierced?

JUST ASKING

DEAR JUST: That's one for a Philadelphia lawyer to figure out.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

TEEN-AGERS LIKE BEING THIN

NEW YORK (AP) — Most teen-agers would rather be thinner, reports a Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare survey of health conditions of youths between ages 12 and 17.

Although two-thirds of the youngsters felt that their weight was right for their age, more than half of the survey group felt they should weigh less.

Response to survey questions showed that more than half the girls who considered themselves "below average" on the popularity scale preferred to be thinner. About half of the boys would rather be taller, regardless of popularity.

Disabled Persons Can 'Talk' Using Symbols

By ROSEMARY SINGLETON
Kitchener-Waterloo Record

WATERLOO, Canada (AP) — Cameron Callfas of Waterloo in Ontario province is a friendly, outgoing 22-year-old.

He likes people and enjoys communicating with them. But he has a problem.

Callfas suffers from severe cerebral palsy. He has difficulty communicating verbally because he lacks the muscular coordination necessary for controlled movement and speech.

It has been frustrating — and isolating.

But last October this changed. A neighbor, Suzanne Stark, a teacher of the disabled, cracked the communication barrier. She introduced Callfas to a substitute for the spoken word — a symbol board that enables him to express his wants and needs.

Blissymbolics is a finger-pointing system designed to teach by symbols those unable to read. Under each symbol is written the corresponding word.

There is also a symbol for action that turns a noun into a verb. When the action symbol tops the word "mouth" it becomes the verb "to speak." Similarly with the sign for legs: when topped with the action symbol it becomes the verb "to walk."

Callfas and three other nonverbal people were the first physically-disabled adults in the Kitchener-Waterloo area to participate in the $26,358 Local Initiative Program (LIP) grant project spearheaded by Mrs. Stark.

She was assisted in the eight-month program by Audrey Gellatly, Dorinda Keith, Jacqueline Maynes, Terri Romenco and Barry Clark.

Prior to applying for the LIP grant, Mrs. Stark had been teaching six disabled adults spelling, reading, history and geography for the Kitchener-Waterloo Servcces for Physically Disabled Adults.

Because of a lack of facilities when they were children, these adults could read very little or not at all. Callfas, a member of the class, "was so enthusiastic he rarely missed a lesson in four years." Being nonverbal, however, limited his answers to a simple "yes" or "no."

Mrs. Stark felt a better communication method could be developed for these adults, so she visited the Ontario Center for Crippled Children in Toronto to study the Blissymbolics method of finger-pointing communication.

She found a champion in Shirley McNaughton, program director of the Blissymbolics Foundation in Toronto. Mrs. McNaughton pioneered the communication method at the crippled children's center in 1972.

The symbols were devised in 1942 by Austrian-born chemical engineer Charles Bliss to promote international understanding. He had no idea it would be nearly 30 years before the method would be used or that its first use would be by physically disabled youngsters.

Mrs. Stark and her team of five found that the disabled adults responded well to the symbols method. Being able to "speak" eased their frustration.

Mrs. Stark noted that word boards were irregular in design and content. She did research on the subject and found a lack of standardization.

Mrs. Stark, with Mrs. Gellatly and Clark, developed a series of word boards to adequately meet the emotional dynamics and social concerns of nonverbal adults who can read.

Using the name Basic Experimental Communication System (Basecom) they devised two types of boards which are currently under applied use at Kitchener-Waterloo Hospital. The boards will eventually be available in French, German, Polish and Spanish.

The first board serves to relay primary physical and emotional messages and the second encompasses a wide range of physical, emotional and social areas of experience.

Blank spaces on the color-coded boards allow for addition of words meaningful to the particular person using them.

The research team found a need for a vocabulary to express grief, despair and hope so they added a "Good Grief" section.

"This emotional vocabulary is vital. It enables a nonverbal person to work through rough times with someone else, just as a verbal person does," said Mrs. Stark.

Now that the LIP funds have run out the team is seeking further funding. "We're still working with our students. Just because we haven't funds, we can't desert them at this plateau of learning," the group's leader said.

Cookbooks Make Good Business

By PAMELA HUEY

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI) — Dorothy Surratt had no idea when she started printing newsletters for her husband's business back in the early 1960s it would mushroom into an around-the-world business.

Mrs. Surratt and Phyllis Harris, both of Iowa Falls, started General Publishing and Binding Co. 14 years ago, printing cookbooks for churches and other organizations as a fund-raising device. In those 14 years, they have printed books for over 3,000 organizations from across the United States to countries as far away as Saudi Arabia.

Mrs. Surratt said it all began when she was printing newsletters for her husband's business.

"Somebody asked me if I would print a cookbook for them," Mrs. Surratt said. She said it took a while for the business to catch on, but that it has really mushroomed in the past three years.

Mrs. Harris joined the enterprise and the two have built a business that now employs 80 persons.

"We have built on three times to my office and we need to do it again," she said. "Mrs. Harris is responsible for all the typing at her home, and I take care of the shipping and office work."

Mrs. Surratt said the business's one goal is keeping prices down so the organizations can make money. Most of the groups, including church groups, sororities, firemen's auxiliaries and snowmobile clubs, make $1.00 to $1.50 per book.

"Our aim is to help others with money-making projects by printing favorite recipes of organization members in book form," she said.

Mrs. Surratt thinks such cookbooks are able to compete with big name books because they are for fund-raising and have a personal touch.

She also said the Bicentennial has boosted the business. "It used to be we would just about shut down in the summer, but there are no slack times anymore and business has really boomed because of the Bicentennial," she said. "Everything is red, white and blue this year."

She said groups have dug out revolutionary era recipes for 200 to 300 Bicentennial cookbooks this year.

One of her company's best sellers over the years has been done for the Lithuanian Speaking Sisters of Chicago with recipes from Lithuania translated into English.

"We've also had a number of ethnic books for German and Polish organizations and Spanish recipes translated for a group in the Philippines," she said.

The business used to be an excellent way for Mrs. Surratt to find new recipes for her family.

"But now that my family is grown up I don't do that much cooking anymore," she said. "However, many of the women who work for us are constantly trying the many new recipes we receive."

Mrs. Surratt said she enjoys the work because, "It's fun, it's different, and it's a challenge all the time."

"I never thought the business would come to this. But my husband, who died four years ago, was the dreamer of the four of us. He thought it could be quite a business."

New School Bus Safety Regulations Due In Spring

By JAY PERKINS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — On Oct. 2, 1967, four sleepy-eyed students boarded a school bus in Waterloo, Neb., for their last ride to class.

They died minutes later when a Union Pacific freight ripped the bus apart, twisting the sheet metal skin and exposing sharp, lethal edges. The nine other children aboard were injured, some of them on the exposed edges. Federal investigators later would label them child-lacerating "cookie cutters."

Investigators from the National Transportation Safety Board (NTSB) found the bus came apart too easily. Joints failed under too little pressure. Seats ripped from the floor. Children riding in the disintegrated portion were tossed about and "probably . . . struck many hard and sharp surfaces."

It was the first time a federal agency found fault with the way most of the nation's 250,000 school buses are made, although independent testing laboratories previously had reported problems.

Yet, it would be another five years before the government would propose the first regulation to improve school bus construction. And it will be April 1, 1977, when the three federal regulations finally agreed upon go into effect.

Why the delay? Because the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration felt there weren't many fatal school bus accidents.

"We found it (school bus transportation) was the safest mode of transportation we had, bar none," says Bob Boaz, the NHTSA's public information officer. "We had a limited amount of funds and we're dealing with the whole spectrum of highway accidents. So when we looked at priorities, there was no way to say 100 fatalities here should be a high priority when we had so many more being killed in passenger cars. But then Congress got involved and said the heck with cost benefits, issue some standards, so we did."

The NHTSA's three regulations will have the force of law, unless overturned by Congress.

How effective will these regulations be? One of them, designed to eliminate "cookie cutter" edges, has a loophole that allows manufacturers to make a school bus's metal skin even thinner and less safe than it is today. The builders say they won't use the loophole.

Another regulation, aimed at keeping the roof from collapsing when a bus overturns, relies on a test that even the NHTSA once said wouldn't determine if the roof were really safe.

And the third, requiring padded bus seats and seats designed to hold children in place during an accident, is not as strong as originally proposed. The original regulation specified seat backs eight or nine inches higher than they now are. But school administrators said this might create a discipline problem because drivers wouldn't be able to see children. So the NHTSA compromised with a regulation that adds four or five inches to present seatbacks.

Until now, there have been no federal regulations governing school buses. And no state has set safety regulations as strong as the NHTSA rules effective next spring.

Despite their shortcomings, the NHTSA and the six principal manufacturers of school buses believe the regulations will produce safer buses, once the buses now in use are replaced. That will take a decade or more.

Meanwhile, more than 20 million children ride those traditional yellow school buses each school day. Fifteen to 20 are killed and 5,000 are injured in an average year, the government reports.

That's not an alarming accident rate. The buses avoid accidents by travelling slowly, other drivers watch out for them, and school bus drivers are good drivers, Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., told a 1973 congressional hearing. But he added: "School buses are probably the unsafest vehicles on the road because when they are involved in an accident, the results are often catastrophic. Today's school bus is shoddily constructed ..."

Dr. Stanley J. Behrman, representing the American Society of Oral Surgeons, told the National Safety Council in 1972 nearly 10 per cent of the 16,000 children treated by society members in one year were injured on school buses.

Why then do school districts buy the unsafe buses — those made by attaching a riveted, sheet metal bus body to a truck frame and motor purchased from an outside supplier? This type of construction, which is about half as expensive as building the bus as a unit, is used for 97 per cent of the school buses made today. The remaining three per cent are safer. They are mostly buses made as a unit, much like the commercial buses that carry passengers cross-country.

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., noted during a 1973 congressional hearing that school administrators usually purchase buses from the lowest bidder. "So long as there are not adequate standards, then the bids come in for a school bus but not necessarily for a safe school bus," Percy said.

Between 30,000 and 35,000 school buses are made each year. Most cost $12,000 to $15,000. The new regulations are expected to add $1,200 to the price of each bus.

The NTSB reported in 1971 that many injuries in two Alabama school bus accidents were caused by "the laceration of child passengers by exposed edges of the bus interior sheet metal, including the ceiling ..."

There are six major manufacturers of the body-on-frame type of school bus — Blue Bird Body Co. of Fort Valley, Ga.; Carpenter Body Works, Mitchell, Ind.; Superior Coach Division, Lima, Ohio; Thomas Built Buses, High Point, N.C.; Ward School Bus Co., Conway, Ark., and Wayne Corp., Richmond, Ind.

Most of them still use numerous sheets of metal to form the skin — a practice criticized by the NTSB in the 1971 report, which said the panels were poorly fastened. Spacing between rivets was so wide — four to 10 inches — that it resisted "wind and weather but the joint could contribute little to structural strength."

Wayne Corp. now uses sheet metal panels that run the length of the passenger compartment. This eliminates many joints and produces a safer cabin compartment.

Ward has been marketing since 1971 a safety bus containing more than twice as many rivets than in pre-1971 buses. Other manufacturers are using better fasteners and more rivets than they did nine years ago.

The principal concern about the adequacy of the new regulations concerns a loophole in the rule designed to keep the sheet metal skin panels from breaking loose in an accident.

The regulation says the joints between panels must have 60 per cent of the strength of the panels. But it doesn't say how strong the panels themselves must be. So manufacturers can meet the standard by doubling the number of rivets at the joints — as NHTSA intends — or by reducing the strength of the panels. "You can make those panels out of tissue paper and meet the standard," said one expert.

Guy Hunter, an NHTSA specialist in school bus construction, said the agency was aware of the loophole when the regulation was issued, but left it in to give manufacturers leeway in future designs.

He also said the loophole can't be used because strong panels are needed to make the buses rigid enough to pass the rollover test.

The regulation designed to keep school bus roofs from collapsing when buses overturn requires each roof to be strong enough to hold 150 per cent of the bus's weight. That's 50 per cent stronger than most school bus roofs today. But these roofs usually collapse during a rollover accident not because weight is put directly on them, but because side pressures bend the roof columns, federal officials say.

The National Education Association and other school organizations have tried in the past to produce uniform bus safety standards. Some states have adopted some of the recommendations made — among them Maryland, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Connecticut, New York, Ohio and Wisconsin.

Eleanor Had Gun Permit

HYDE PARK, N.Y. (AP) — A glass case displaying Eleanor Roosevelt's worn red pocketbook and its contents when she died in 1962 is one of the most popular exhibits at the Franklin D. Roosevelt Library and Museum here.

With one exception, as many visitors remark, her cards and papers are the sort carried by many women. The exception is a Dutchess County permit dated Aug. 5, 1957, saying "license to carry a pistol is hereby granted to Eleanor Roosevelt, writer and lecturer."

Displayed are her membership cards in the New York League of Business and Professional Women and the Metropolitan Museum of Art; a Diner's Club membership and six other credit cards; a press card for the United Nations; and a driver's license marked "slightly defective hearing."

She also carried five prayers, including one by Sir Francis Drake as he sailed into Cadiz Bay; and a dozen bits of poetry, mostly hand-written, including some lines by E.R. Bulwer-Lytton ending "... we may live without books; but civilized man cannot live without cooks."

Salary No Guideline On Quality Of Forecasts

By MIKE GOODKIND
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — George Fischbeck claps his hands, adjusts his unstylish bow tie, kneels and even crawls under tables.

He also details the movement of ridges and troughs and points knowingly at a low pressure area moving eastward from the Pacific.

Then he tells his Los Angeles television audience whether it's going to rain or not.

He has become a well-known television personality, and he is just part of a showmanship trend in television weather forecasting, a trend aimed at raising the ratings of news shows while maintaining the integrity of the weather forecast.

Troy Dungan, a Dallas television weatherman, also wears bow ties. His weather report is laced with tips about lawn care and protection against insects.

In New York, weatherman Frank Field occasionally has to ad lib when anchorman Tom Snyder drapes "a plucked chicken over my pointer or grabs the pointer from me."

Fischbeck says he learned during 23 years as a junior high school teacher that humor is a useful tool in getting across a serious point. He really did crawl under a table once — to demonstrate a safe place to be during an earthquake. When a weather map is placed too low, he'll kneel down to point to features on it.

Nobody knows for sure whether the new weather forecasters are boosting the ratings of nightly news shows.

Rating services, like A.C. Nielsen, rank viewership in no less than 15-minute segments. Who is to say which member of the news stable is bringing the ratings up or down? But the prevailing belief is that a good weather forecaster makes the ratings go up.

"You can have fun with the weatherman, but you can't ever flirt with his credibility," says Jack Cafferty, news director of WHO-TV in Des Moines.

"All the stations want meteorologists, but there aren't too many around," says Sherlee Barish, a New York-based "headhunter," who places weather forecasters with stations nationwide.

In the largest markets, weathermen earn more than $100,000 annually. In the lower half of the top 20 markets, places like Miami or Seattle, the yearly pay dips to about $30,000.

But Kenneth Spengler, executive director of the American Meteorological Society, says big salaries don't necessarily mean good weather forecasts. "I think some of the worst weathercasts are in places like New York and Los Angeles. I don't know whether it's the influence of the show business people there who make the people believe they have to perform."

The AMS hands out seals of approval to TV weathermen it feels have met a high standard of expertise and presentation. Currently 138 weathercasters, including more than one person at some stations, hold the seal.

Fischbeck's boss, KABC news director Bill Fyffe, believes professional credentials "are important for the matter of credibility. The subliminal knowledge that the person knows what he's talking about."

Fischbeck, called "Dr. George" by colleagues and viewers, says he taught himself meteorology. He held an AMS seal in Albuquerque but was turned down when he applied in Los Angeles. A member of the AMS review panel, who asked not to be identified, noted Fischbeck's lack of formal meteorological training, his antics and his occasional mispronounciation of scientific words.

Coach Dye To Speak At Annual Church Event

"Estimate of Giving Night" is the theme for the Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church annual dinner meeting scheduled at the Moose Lodge Tuesday, Oct. 19, at 6:30 p.m.

Jarvis members will be treated with a free hot barbecued chicken dinner, cold slaw, hot rolls and dessert, and a varied program, including a talk by East Carolina University's Football Coach Pat Dye on "Prayer and Football", special music, and a solo number by Doug Newell of Roxboro, an ECU tenor who won the local level competition of the National Association for Teachers of Singing after having competed with singers throughout the state.

The dinner will be cooked and served by 20 members of the Carson Bible Class under the direction of S. J. Waters. The Rev. James H. Bailey, pastor of Jarvis Memorial, will give the invocation.

Special music will include two numbers by the Children's Choirs combined with the Chancel Choir under the direction of Dr. David Foster, minister of music; and the "Mysterious Four" barbershop quartet.

Judge J. W. H. Roberts will follow with a scripture reading and Ray Spears, a member of the Carson Bible Class, will give the evening prayer.

Newell, a sophomore student, will conclude the program by singing "How Great Thou Art". He is a student of Mrs. Gladys White of the ECU School of Music and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Newell of Roxboro. In Roxboro he is the choir director of the Presbyterian Church.

Reservations for the meeting are being handled by mail and by telephone calls by the following committee members: Mrs. Robert I. Barnes Jr., Mrs. Marvin Blount, Jr., Mrs. Dick Douglas, Mrs. Orren E. Dowd, Sr., Mrs. C. L. Gilbert, Mrs. Dixie E. Greene, Miss Frances Gross, Mrs. H. A. Hendrix, Mrs. Susan V. Haines, Mrs. Helene Higgs Kirkpatrick, Mrs. Jack A. Koontz, Mrs. Ben Mann, Mrs. H. Ted Smith, Mrs. Jack Spain, and Miss Annie Turner.

Charles Kavanaugh, Stewardship Chairman, and his committee composed of Buff Chalk, Dr. Steve Creech, Dr. Dick Douglas and Dr. Dan Warren have planned an opportunity for the membership of the church to cast their "Estimate of Giving" ballots for the continuance and expansion of the Jarvis Church programs.

The Jarvis Methodist Church Boy Scout Troop under the leadership of Joe Goodson will be in charge of registering the membership as they arrive.

A nursery will be provided by Mrs. Ralph Tucker.

Fabled Jordan River Shrinks

By JOEL EPSTEIN

TEL AVIV (AP) — The Jordan River is neither chilly nor cold, deep nor wide. In fact, the Jordan is slowly drying up.

"I estimate it is only a third or a quarter the size it was 10 years ago," says Menahem Kantor, of Israel's National Water Commission.

Hardly the mighty torrent of fable, the Jordan is a brackish little stream so narrow in places that the Children of Israel, if they forded it today, could almost wade across during the dry season. For most of its length, it supports a narrow ribbon of bamboo and greenery flanked by yellow, sun-parched desert.

More and more of the Jordan's tributaries are being dammed and the water used for agriculture. Now, the Jordanians are planning a new dam on the Yarmuk River, which supplies half the Jordan's flow.

"There has been tremendous agricultural development in Jordan," says Kantor. "About 10 or 15 small tributaries have been dammed up so far."

Israeli farmers also take water from the Jordan — about 50 million cubic meters a year. "This is a very small amount, compared to the total flow," says Kantor. But Israelis also use some spring and well water which would eventually find its way into the river.

Some Israeli farmers fear a Jordanian dam on the Yurmuk would dry up their fields. But so far it is only in the initial planning stage, and Kantor says Israel does not begrudge Jordan the water it uses.

"The river is used much more efficiently now than in the past. The Israelis agreed years ago on water rights with the Jordanians, and so far all the dams have been within the limits agreed.

"But soon Israel and Jordan will have to reopen talks to prevent conflict," he said.

Until now, it has been impossible to keep accurate figures on volume of flow, because of lack of cooperation between Jordan and Israel.

The stream is also facing the threat of pollution. Nitrate fertilizers are seeping into Lake Tiberias, the river's main reservoir, from Israeli farms above, and the town of Tiberias is producing more and more sewerage.

While scientists battle algae growing on the lake's surface, planners envision a complex new system of drainage and sewage disposal to keep pollutants out of the lake.

THE GUARNERI STRING QUARTET . . . will be in concert at Mendenhall Student Center Theater on Wednesday, Oct. 20 at 8 p.m. Tickets for the concert are available at the ticket office and will also be sold at the door. (Photo by Dorthea V. Haeften)

The highly acclaimed RCA Red Seal recording artists, the Guarneri String Quartet, will appear in concert in Mendenhall Student Center Theater on Wednesday, October 20 at 8 p.m.

Arnold Steinhardt and John Dalley, violinists; Michalè Tree, violist; and David Soyer, cellist; the four musicians comprising the quartet, have been called the "World's Master of Chamber Music" by a critic of Time magazine. Another critic, R. H. Haggin, wrote of their "tonal beauty, the sensitive reflection, the integrated progression" that "establishes the Guarneri String Quartet as the ranking quartet in this country."

The concert is one of six outstanding events in the 1976-77 Artists Series sponsored by the Student Union Artists Series Committee.

Admittance to the concert is by season ticket or by purchase of individual tickets at $4 each, in advance from the Mendenhall Student Center ticket office or at the door.

Percussion Event On Monday

The East Carolina University Percussion Pops Orchestra will be featured in concert on Monday, October 18 at 8:00 p.m. The performance is an MSC Production and will be held in the Mendenhall Student Center Theatre. No admission will be charged, and the public is invited.

The Percussion Pops Orchestra is an active organization that has performed for audiences throughout the Eastern United States. Past performances include concerts at Music Education Conventions in North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia, Georgia, Florida, and Tennessee.

The organization has also been invited to perform for the National Music Educators Convention in Atlanta, the College Band Directors National Association in Memphis, and at the All-Eastern Conference at the United States Navy School of Music.

In addition, the orchestra has performed at many college performance series . . . i.e., the University of South Carolina, University of North Carolina and Atlantic Christian College.

Literature performed by the orchestra represents a wide variety of styles and tonal contrasts. The group offers compositions that span from arrangements of the Baroque era to current popular works and original compositions for the percussion medium.

In addition to the variety of literature performed, the group uses a considerable number of instruments to perform a program. Generally, the number of instruments is in excess of one-hundred and includes standard orchestral percussion instruments, Far Eastern instruments and exotic contemporary percussion instruments.

'Student Prince' Opens Oct. 26

The Student Prince, the first production of the 1976-77 season at East Carolina Playhouse, is currently in rehearsal under the direction of Edgar R. Loessin.

The cast of more than 50 is comprised of students from the Department of Drama and the School of Music at ECU. The title role will be performed by a guest artist, Bill McDonald of Washington D.C.

The setting of The Student Prince is Heidelberg in 1860. A young Prince, Karl Franz, has come to Heidelberg University to spend a year. Karl Franz quickly learns the happiness of student life and falls in love with Kathie, waitress at the local inn. The romantic musical has been a perennial favorite around America from many performances in summer stock, road shows, and on campuses since its highly successful Broadway engagement in the mid-1920's.

The Student Prince will be presented in McGinnis Auditorium nightly October 26-30 at 8:15 p.m. Season tickets are still available. Information may be obtained by calling the Playhouse at 757-6390.

Rotating Shows For Students

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Sunday Editor

The occasion is the first venture in recent years to exhibit East Carolina University student art work to the public through display in a public place.

Now on view at the Greenville office of the N. C. Employment Security Commission, 3101 Bismarck Drive is a small collection of five paintings by ECU art students, the first of a planned series of rotating shows to be on the walls of that office.

"I think it's great," Hannan, manager of the commission remarked. "People are looking at the paintings, they're making comments."

Of the first five selections, none of which are of a realistic vein, Hannan said "most people say they like one or another, but not all of them.

"This kind of reaction makes me think" he continued, "that's it a challenging experience for the people who come to our office. We know they're thinking about these works."

Funderburk, who calls himself "a go between" for artists and the public in general, said that Bill Bass, who heads the Student Union Art Exhibition Committee (ILLUMINA), had the job of coordinating acquisitions from students to be considered by for showing.

"We feel this will not only encourage people who make art, but will give people in the area a chance to see, to possibly appreciate more what the students are achieving.

"Hopefully," Funderburk added, "this outlet will be a stepping-stone for offers from other offices, firms or businesses who might be interested in working out a relationship, an arrangement for students to show the public their work on a rotating basis.

"All of us here would certainly welcome such an opportunity," Funderburk added.

The five artists whose work is currently on view in the initial Employment Security Commission office show are:

(Title of painting follows the name of the artist) — C. W. Kesler, "Homage to De Kooning;" Sam Phillips, "Self-Portrait;" Tony Eder, "Calligraphy;" Gigi Tease, "This End Up;" and Brent Funderburk, "Crisco Self-Portrait."

A new show will be installed within a short time.

—A Review—

A Cocky Young Patriot

First For Freedom. By Maxville Burt Williams. Durham. Moore Publishing Co. 1976. 312 pp. $7.95.

Maxville Burt (Mack) Williams begins his very readable book on a dramatic note — the announcement of what became a memorable event, "the Fourth Provincial Congress taking place on April 4, 1776."

Williams, native of Sharpsburg near Rocky Mount, is a graduate of East Carolina University. His background as a social studies teacher in Scotland Neck and also a principal of a school in Hobgood spurred his interest in local history. The result is this book which adds considerably to our knowledge of North Carolina history.

First For Freedom was chosen by the Halifax Historical Association and adapted to an outdoor drama of the same name as the historic town's bicentennial drama last June.

Sam Pickett, an 18 year old resident of Halifax is the book's central figure. Young Pickett, after reading the notice, becomes involved in an argument with older patrons at Dudley's bar.

Readers will undoubtedly question the wisdom of having a man of such young years arguing with men older than himself. This same questionable personal characterististic surfaces again when Pickett engages Mr. Hamilton, a leading merchant, in verbal combat. In other passages, the role played by Sam Pickett is exaggerated in various episodes when the youth exercises positions of command without the necessary official authority.

The author proceeds to show, by well researched documentary evidence, the feelings of American patriots toward English rule. Williams also includes evidence to reveal the Tory side of the Picture.

Williams has done a good job in writing about the spread of the separation movement. Social and political beliefs of the time are convincingly presented.

One criticism of the book must be made — a careful proof reading of the galleys would have eliminated a number of obvious errors.

Robert W. Wechter

(Editor's Note: Wechter, a retired Coast Guard Chief Petty Officer, served for a number of years as the senior medical person for military and civilians on the Outer Banks. He is a graduate of ECU and taught school for 15 years before a second retirement. He and his wife, author Nell Wise Wechter, now live in Stumpy Point in Dare County)

Book News

From Sheppard Memorial Library

By JOE R. STINES

Vera and Bill Cleaver have offered children a number of memorable and provocative reading experiences, but none greater than Grover (1970). No one told eleven year old Grover Ezell that his mother was dying, but he knew. He had never known the loss of a loved one to death nor the emotional atmosphere which accompanies such a loss. He wasn't even sure what death really meant.

Grover is not an essay on death but a story rich in humor and sorrow about a living character so unforgettable and yet so universal that each reader can identify with his thoughts and actions. Grover has to decide for himself if a person has the moral right to take her own life, and so too must the reader decide.

The Cleavers have not robbed Grover of his ability to think logically and maturely, and he is permitted to realize the issues of existence and survival. He is not a masculine stereotype but a sensitive and reasoning individual.

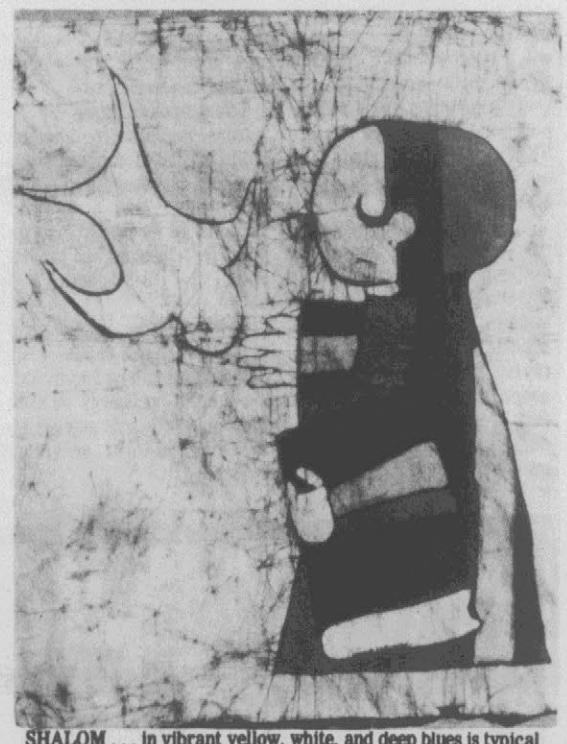
Never, from the moment the story begins until it ends, is there an absence of hope. By the time Grover and the reader realize the inevitable fate of Mrs. Ezell, she has created a new hope through her warm and informative conversations with her son.

Grover is a realistic tragedy with tragic moments that grow and build upon each other until climax, and still they occur. Its catharsis is as vivid as any to be found within literature. In the end, a faint smile on Mr. Ezell's face tells Grover and the reader that hope is still present and that life, although altered by death, can become bright again.

In 1960 Scott O'Dell gave to young readers a courageous heroine, Karana, in his Island of the Blue Dolphins. Since that date millions of readers have wondered about Karana's fate after she left the island. O'Dell's new work, Zia, answers those questions and introduces a new and unforgettable individual. Finding her Aunt, Zia's dead mother's sister, is the strongest force in the young Indian girl's life. This force leads Zia and her brother Mondo on a dangerous journey during which they are made prisoners on an American whaling ship.

Zia is a story of maturation involving a young girl caught between two worlds — the world of her mother's tribal past and the strange world of the Spanish mission.

Harriet Lieberman Exhibit At EEii's



SHALOM . . . in vibrant yellow, white, and deep blues is typical of the Batik work by Greenville artist Harriet Lieberman. She is having a show opening at EEii's in Belhaven today, to which the public is invited.

An exhibit of batiks and wheat straw craft by Greenville Artist Harriet Lieberman will open today at EEii's little KORNERS of the world in Belhaven, with a reception from one until five in the afternoon. The show will continue through the month of November.

Mrs. Lieberman, who has a B.S. from Boston University, has studied silk screen methods in Winston-Salem under Mary Goslen. A member of the North Carolina League of Creative Arts and Crafts, she is also an associate member of the Piedmont Craftsman's Guild.

The batiks have an oriental feeling in color and subject matter. Used as both framed works and as tapestries, each design lends itself to both traditional and contemporary decor.

Mrs. Lieberman's husband, Dr. Edward M. Lieberman, is on the faculty of the East Carolina University School of Medicine. The Lieberman's moved to Greenville recently from Winston-Salem.

The public is invited to meet the artist and to see the exhibition of her work at the open house at EEii's today.

CAPE COD PLAN MERGES OLD, NEW

TRADITIONAL HOME SHOWS UP-TO-DATE FLOOR PLAN

By Jerry Bishop

With a design that restates the traditional charm of a Cape Cod dwelling, the Rock Harbor, a spacious two story home, embodies a surprisingly updated floor plan featuring foyer, family room, and first floor laundry.

The exterior reflects tasteful simplicity and balance, with small-paned windows used liberally, even in the front door. The two story construction suggests space, and, inside, the design fulfills the promise.

A doorway separates the dining room from the kitchen, a U-shaped arrangement with ample light and counter space. Cross-traffic through the dining room, however, is minimized by a central hallway that stretches from foyer to family room.

Spanning 22 feet to fill the needs of an active family, the two story family room is windowed on three sides, including sliding glass doors that link the room to the semi-private patio.

High on the list of modern priorities is the first floor laundry room. In this design, the room is large enough to function in several ways. It includes a storage closet and might also be fitted with a sewing table or used as a headquarters for the family pet.

Set on the second level for quiet, three bedrooms and two baths are featured. double linen closets line the hallway, and an excellent master bedroom suite is indulged with private bath, dressing room, and walk-in closet.

Basement and double garage are incorporated in the plan, which boasts 1961 sq. ft. of living space.

Don't Be Careless About Fires

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

In their concentration on other home security, some people have become careless about fire prevention.

Not long ago several youngsters lost their lives because they were trapped by other security — a dead bolt lock which could be opened inside only by a key.

Many homes do not have an emergency fire extinguisher. Some youngsters have no idea what to do in the event of fire. One woman froze when she saw her range on fire. She had nothing to fight it with, but fortunately managed to turn off the burner which controlled the oil fire that had started in a frying pan — in seconds the flames had reached three feet and were licking the cupboards.

Safeguarding the home and family against fire should become a habit, not a once-in-a-while consideration. For example:

—Small children should not be left at home alone and baby sitters should be told how to escort children to safety in the event of fire. Older children in the family should know what to do in an emergency. It isn't enough to leave a telephone number where parents might be reached, the usual idea. By the time they are contacted the home might be in flames. A fire department number and a neighbor's number are more important.

—Before leaving on a trip, paints, gasoline and other flammable things should be removed from the house. Stacks of papers should be removed. Many towns now have restrictions about burning papers and some people are storing them, sometimes in closets, before taking them to a disposal depot.

—Be sure fire insurance is paid and that you have updated it before you go on a trip. The smallest fire can be costly, and even with a policy may still cost the insured person $100, the deductible figure. A small fire can smudge wallpaper, paint and ceilings in such a way that an entire room may need to be refurbished.

—Some utilities should be shut off even if you are going on a short trip. If electric service boxes have separate switches for different areas, timers can be left on even though the range, refrigerator, dishwasher, water and so on, are turned off.

—Try to use perishable foods so that the freezer and refrigerator can be turned off if you plan an extended vacation. In the event of a power outage you can lose everything in the freezer. Some people make exchange deals with neighbors to store freezer food.

—If someone will check out your furnace, it can be safely left on. During a cold period you may have no alternative because of pipes.

—Fire extinguishers should be put in rooms that are away from exits and in utility rooms that might contain solvents and electrical wiring and in garages and kitchens, if you are making choices. Baking soda is a good emergency fire fighter in the kitchen (never throw water on a grease fire.)

—A great many fires are started by faulty electrical systems. Overloading circuits is one reason and improper wiring may be another. Worn and frayed electric cords can be dangerous. An electrician can check your home to make sure you have the proper voltage for the load your wiring is carrying. Some electric companies permit billing new wiring to the monthly electric bill to be paid off in installments.

—A chimney should be cleaned once a year if it is used frequently. A hearth used for cooking should be checked carefully for sparks before you leave the house.

—After a party in your home, remove chair cushions and inspect the upholstery for burning cigarettes that can smolder undetected, a frequent cause of fires. The fumes can be deadly. Always check rooms after teenagers have had a social evening. Some cigarette butts may have inadvertently been tossed into waste baskets and may flare up later.

—If you have a fire extinguisher, make sure it is still workable, following the directions for testing. If there is a pressure gauge, make sure it maintains capacity.

—Many kinds of smoke detectors are available and touted as good fire alarms. Local fire departments might be consulted about the efficiency of the various kinds, if you are interested.

In the event even of a small fire that could get out of hand one person should call the fire department while another tries to control the blaze.

Q. — The paint on the outside of our house is blistering in a few places. The house hasn't been painted in several years and I would like to work on it soon. Is there any way to prevent blistering in the future? The house has regular wood siding.

A. — This condition is usually caused by moisture that escapes through the interior walls and works its way under the paint film. One way to get rid of this moisture is to install small vents in the exterior walls. Another is to insert small metal wedges under each board where it is nailed to a stud. If the blistering is occurring only on one exterior wall — such as outside a kitchen or bathroom — an exhaust fan in the window or wall of that room will remove the moisture. Or you can use a dehumidifier to trap the moisture. Once you have taken steps to allow the moisture to escape, scrape all loose paint from the trouble spots, sand smooth, apply a primer and go ahead with the repainting. All this is based on the assumption that it is moisture inside the house that is the culprit. Sometimes exterior paint problems are caused by openings in the wall which are permitting rain to get behind the siding and even by bushes and plants that are too close to the house and keep it continually damp.

Q. — I bought an electric chain saw recently. I know that the tension on the chain should be checked periodically to see that it is correct. How do I do this?

A. — You must have received an owner's manual with the saw. If not, go back to the dealer and ask for it. This will tell you precisely what you want to know about checking a chain's tension. One test is to rotate the chain by hand — AFTER you have made sure the cord is unplugged from the outlet. The chain should have no slack in it as you move it. When operating the saw, if the chain hangs down a bit at the middle of the bar, it is too loose. After the switch is shut off, the chain should coast to a stop. If it stops very abruptly, it is too tight. The manual will tell you how to reset the tension for your particular brand of saw.

Q. — We have been told that we need insulation on our water heater. My husband is an invalid and can no longer do this kind of work himself. Is there some kind of insulation that can be placed around a water heater by someone who isn't skilled?

A. — Yes, there are several types of such insulation. One company puts out a water heater insulation kit which enables anyone to wrap fiber glass insulation around the heater without the use of any special tools or expertise.

Q. — The wood shingles on the outside walls of the new house we just bought have no finish on them. My wife thanks it might be a good idea to use varnish as a finish. What do you think?

A. — It's NOT a good idea. Varnish used in that way — even the type which is recommended for the outdoors — will require more frequent refinishing than paint, stain or a preservative.

Hold Hope For 70,000 Deaf

HOUSTON (UPI) — Implant research at Baylor College of Medicine is offering new hope for some of the nation's 70,000 deaf persons.

Researchers are working on an electronic inner ear implant for persons with profound sensory deafness. Investigators have found that electrical stimulation of the auditory nerve of cochlear deaf patients produces sensations of "sound" and that these electrodes can continue to stimulate the nerve over a period of years without deterioration of the nerve's response.

The cochlea is a tiny spiral containing thousands of sensory cells which are connected to nerve fibers that lead to the brain. Researchers hope to provide a mechanical means of duplicating the frequency coding that tells the brain what sound is.

Hammer back the lid on a paint can to be sure it is airtight. Place a cloth over the top of the can while doing this to avoid splattering ... Where space is at a premium in a home workshop, the table saw should be placed in the center of the area so that large pieces of lumber can be handled conveniently ... Knee walls in an attic should be at least 4 feet high ... The slope of roof gutters to the downspouts should be one-quarter of an inch per foot ... Most paint can labels estimate the coverage of that particular paint. When one doesn't, the rough rule-of-thumb is 500 square feet per gallon ... Before cutting glass, clean it thoroughly, since dust that is barely visible can interfere with the cutting operation.

Ceramic tiles need be cleaned only with detergent and warm water ... To get a perfectly matched seam when installing resilient sheet flooring, overlap the adjacent pieces, then cut through both pieces at the same time with a sharp knife and a straight-edge ... When directions call for the use of boiled linseed oil, buy it that way; don't try to boil it at home ... If any paint drips on the hard surfaces of kitchen appliances while you are painting, dip a soft cloth in turpentine or a paint thinner and wipe it off.

When working with lacquer and a brush, go from a dry area into a wet one and never go back over a section you have just completed ... Rubber toilet bumpers available in hardware stores can be screwed to the tops of wooden ladder rails to prevent damage to the house siding when the ladder is placed against it ... Gas burners that become clogged can be opened with a toothpick ... Enamel should be flowed on the surface rather than brushed back and forth ... The Garden Clinic

Q. What trees should I plant to get the best fall color? (B. B., Durham)

A. Depends upon what colors you wish. Vivid reds are to be found in the leaves of red maple and blackgum. For colorful combinations ranging from reds to purplish reds to orange reds, plant sweetgum, sourwood, sassafras, Northern red oak or scarlet oak. Sugar maples produce brilliant orange and yellow leaves. Gingko, yellow poplar, hickory and ash all add a dash of yellow to the landscape. (Bill Stanton, extension forester)

Q. I have found an attractive weed growing wild that looks like Queen Ann Lace. My husband says it is Rabbit Tobacco. Is he right as usual! (Mrs. J. B., New Bern)

A. If the weed described looks like Queen Ann Lace, I doubt that it is Rabbit Tobacco. They are not similar—at least not to me. (Carl Blake, extension agronomist)

Q. Somewhere I read about a new muscadine grape released by N. C. State University. Tell me something about it. (P.B., Mebane)

A. You are referring to "Dixie", a new muscadine developed jointly by state agricultural experiment stations in North Carolina and Florida. Dixie is fairly large, perfect flowered, sweet and productive in North Carolina. But it has two weaknesses. It doesn't make good wine, and it is susceptible to the fungus disease powdery mildew, for which it would need spraying. (Joe Brooks, extensuon horticulturst)

Q. Please give me some tips on growing a rubber tree plant indoor. (B. T., Greensboro)

A. Rubber plant grows best at a temperature above 60 degrees. It appreciates a moist soil, but will suffer from overwatering. Too much water will cause leaves to yellow and fall quickly. Although growth is best in bright light, the rubber plant will endure poor light. (Henry J. Smith, extension landscape horticulturist)

Aurora Borealis A Zonal Show

HOUSTON (UPI) — Contrary to common belief, and for reasons not yet understood, the northern lights do not increase in intensity with closesness to the North Pole. Instead the aurora is seen most frequently in a zonal region that extends around the world.

Scientifically known as the Aurora Borealis, the northern lights are created by an actual glowing of gases in the high atmosphere. They occur when streams of energetic charged particles, electrons and protons, enter the atmosphere from above.

These particles, called auroral primaries, collide with atmospheric atoms and molecules, imparting energy to them. The energy then is given off in the form of light of various colors.

FIVE TATTOOS . . . on Yanguas' back includes a self-portrait, a disgruntled Grumpy, a small butterfly, a dragon's head and in the lower middle of his back, Yanguas' favorite tattoo, "Battle Royal." The battle depicts the American eagle defending itself against both the traditional serpent and an Oriental dragon.

Tattoing—An Ancient Body Art

Text And Photographs By Jerry Raynor

At 22, Orlando, Florida native Mark Yanguas is a good example of the growing number of devotees of the anicient art of body decoration, tattooing.

"It's something I got onto four years ago," Yanguas said. "I was in Charlotte with a friend of mine who got himself another tattoo, and I decided then to get my first one.

"It didn't hurt as much as I had expected it would," he added, "but still," you might say it's probably the most painful way to collect art."

Yanguas and his younger brother, Dwight, 20, travelers with the Buck-Page Exposition, have a deep interest in art that date from their childhood. For both, this interest has found an expression in tattoo.

Mark Yanguas said he's only recently found the confidence to have his own designs tattooed on his body. "Most of what I have are standard designs available at tattoo parlors," he said.

He takes pride in one standard design he had modified—one expanding the traditional American Eagle struggling with a serpent theme to include another foe, an Oriental dragon.

"This I call the 'Battle Royal,' he explained. "It's the most prominent of all my tattoos."

The tattoos range from a very small star on his hand to a much favored depiction of the word "mother" enclosed in a heart, as well as typical illustrations of dragons, birds, serpents, flowers, butterflies and patriotic themes.

The major dragon tattoo sported by Yanguas, however, is different from the usual dragon. Five wings resembling those of a butterfly are shown in a raised position on the mythical creature's shoulders.

"Three of my tattoos," Yanguas pointed out, "are about my work." The three he pointed to are a front view of a man riding a motorcycle, on the left side of his chest; a rose in which a skull is embedded in an open rose with ribbons proclaiming, "My Way, My Life, Love," located on the right side of his chest; and a skull and crossbones with the words "Wall of Death" on his upper right arm.

Yanguas is the junior member of a two rider daredevil team who perform dizzying motorcycle feats inside a 12 foot high wooden circular drome.

Asked about the reaction of women to his tattoos, Yanguas said "most seem to be fascinated by them. Quite a number, however, ask why in the world would anybody want to put them on?"

Yanguas said he has "no particular plan at this time to go all the way in having my entire body covered with tattoos. There's one more I especially want, one called 'Merlin the Magician.'"

An an indication of the growing popularity of the art of tattooing, Yanguas mentioned the annual meeting of tattoo artists and tattooed persons.

"I was invited to attend the convention held last summer in Houston," he said, "but I couldn't get off work. Maybe I'll get to go later."

A Brief History

Decorating the body, or tattoing, is, according to Encyclopaedia Brittanica, an ancient art that is known to date back to at least 2,000 B.C., occuring on Egyptian mummies of that time.

Now experiencing another resurgence in popularity, tattoing is attracting a growing number of young and not-so-young devotees world wide.

Though decoration for the beauty of permament body adornment is the most common motive for tattoing, the art has among various people attributes of magic — such as protection against sickness or misfortune. Among other people, tattoos have been used to show the rank or membership in some particular group.

Tattooing has been recorded in numerous documents relating to American Indian tribes; most Eskimos and among some inhabitants of eastern Siberia; in Polynesia and Micronesia; and in Japan and Burma, among other nations and peoples.

For a short time in the late 19th century, tattoing was the "in" thing among British upper classes, for both men and women.

The Japanese are particularly noted for the sophistication and fine art of their tattoo work, often encompassing nearly every inch of the body.

To most Americans, the tattoo is most closely identified with the sailors of the world. It is true that sailors are still among the most tattooed of any single group, but this picture is rapidly changing as tattoo parlors in the U.S. and Europe, bolstered by modern methods with less health dangers, are drawing in more customers from all walks of life.

A FEMININE LOOKING . . . fanciful dragon with five wings and a skull and crossbones with a tall hat are side by side on Yanguas' left arm. The words "Wall of Death" is the name of the act in which he appears as a stunt motorcycle rider.

ANTIQUITIES THREATENED — A figure of a woman, used as a supporting column for the Acropolis in Athens, is prepared for removal to a museum to protect it from atmospheric pollution. Several sculptures will be removed from the 2,500-year-old Acropolis Hill and replaced by marble copies. A study ruled that the monuments have suffered more damage from pollution in the last 40 years than overall damage through the past four centuries. (AP Wirephoto)

Same Substance Among Humans

COLUMBIA, Mo. (UPI) — Researchers at the University of Missouri have found chemical substances in human blood and skin cells which they say occur naturally in plants but previously were believed foreign to animals.

The substances, called cytokinins, were found among molecules necessary in production and regulation of protein cells. The substances act as growth hormones in plants, but have differing functions in humans.

Their effect on human cancers is being investigated.

MAJOR DROUGHTS

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Records show Texas has experienced a major drought every 20 to 25 years.

The last drought, which put 235 of the state's 254 counties on federal drought disaster relief, ended in the spring of 1957 after searing parts of the state for almost a decade.

The drought ended with massive floods.

Her Cudgel May Be Fad

DANBURY, Conn. (UPI) — Cudgel-carrying may be the new fad on campus this year.

Along with her books and class schedule, Mary Jane Burdick carries a 24-inch, hand-turned oak cudgel with a leather wrist strap that has already discouraged a stray dog and a few upper classmen and prompted queries from other students here at Western Connecticut State College.

"I started carrying it because a stray dog chased me when I was registering for classes," Miss Burdick said. "The dog hasn't bothered me since," the young business administration student from Bethel (Conn.) added.

Several girls saw it and asked where she got it. Apparently a number of them wrote to the mail order house in Evanston, Ill. (Downs, Inc.), which is the exclusive distributor for the friendly persuader because other students have recently been seen carrying the cudgels.

Whether it will become a full-blown campus fad, like streaking, goldfish swallowing and telephone booth-stuffing, or develop any real social significance, such as protection against would-be muggers, remains to be seen.

Right now Miss Burdick is content to carry it as a conversation piece. And a campus security cop has offered to teach her how to twirl it.

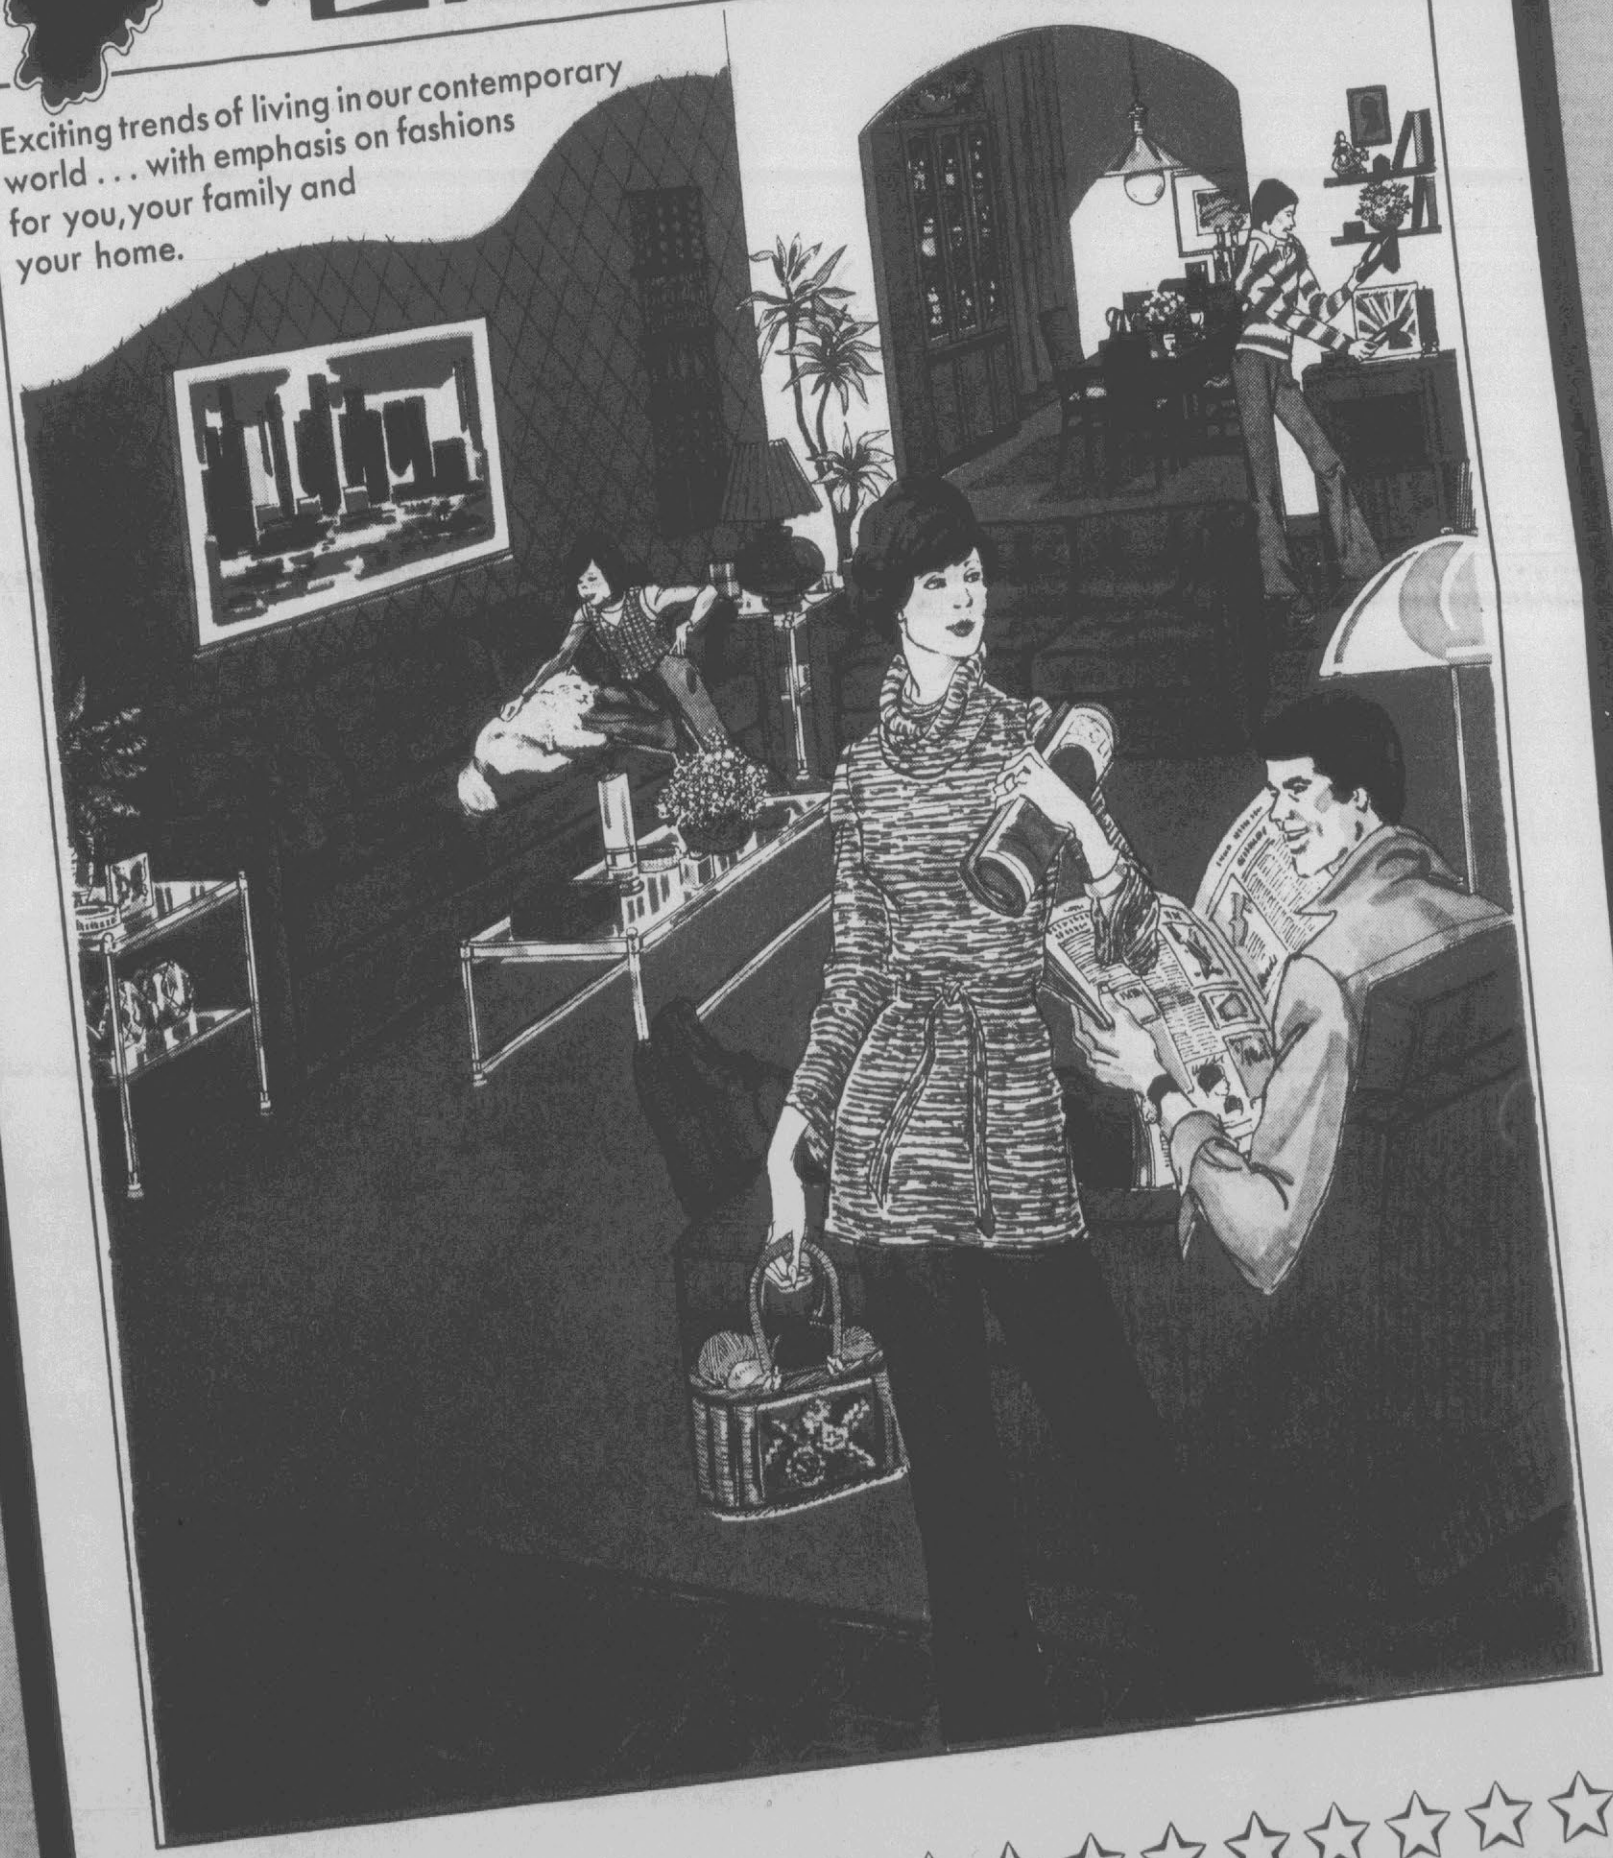
Fall '76 LIFESTYLE

Exciting trends of living in our contemporary world . . . with emphasis on fashions for you, your family and your home.



Wallcoverings come of age in variety of patterns and styles

Remember when your mother hauled out the ladder and the paste pot to wallpaper the living room?

Decorating with wallcoverings is a lot different today. The do-it-yourself decorator has more options now than ever before.

Today's wallcoverings are made of grasscloth, bamboo, cork, cloth, synthetic-backed vinyl and traditional paper. Many come pre-pasted, strippable, stainproof and scrubbable.

Chris Wearsch, national decorating consultant for Sherwin-Williams, has some tips for do-it-yourselfers embarking on a wallcovering project.

"First decide which wallcovering material is best-suited for the room where it will be hung," Wearsch advises.

"Fabric-backed vinyls stand up well in bathroom and kitchen areas, where moisture and stains can be problems. Papers and flocks give elegance to a dining or living room where durability is less of a concern."

Next, consider the decor. "Wallcoverings come in regular prints, engraved or embossed prints, wet looks, flocks, foils, florals, textures, weaves and stripes," Wearsch says.

If you intend to change your decor often, as in a child's room, Wearsch recommends using a strippable wallcovering that can be peeled off easily.

How to hang wallcoverings is another subject. "It really is not all that difficult," Wearsch says. "Many of our lines are prepasted, and Sherwin-Williams Decorating Centers nationwide offer free instruction and literature to help."

NEW THREE-WAY Aqua-Cleer appliances by Culligan control most undesirable water impurities and produce sparkling-clean, chlorine-free, good-tasting drinking water, either chilled, hot, or room temperature.

Fresher and purer water for everyone!

City waterworks strive to make the water we drink safe and palatable, but reports indicate they may be having trouble meeting these goals. A Gallup Poll shows there is widespread discontent with the way water tastes and with its appearance. In addition, scientific evidence is mounting that water from both public and private sources may sometimes be hazardous to health.

What is the consumer to do?

One of the best answers appears to be a new three-way drinking water system that substantially removes most of water's worrisome substances. Developed by Culligan, it produces water of outstanding quality.

Reverse osmosis

It is a system in which "reverse osmosis," or R.O., is a key element. Pioneered for home use by the Culligan people, R.O. units employ a filmlike membrane that rejects dissolved salts and minerals, organic contaminants, and also removes even the smallest particles by ultrafiltration.

Culligan has teamed R.O. with protective cellulose pre-filtration and activated carbon adsorption, to control tastes and odors, as well as residual organic impurities. No treatment method, using one or even two ordinary filters, can be as effective as this new three-way system.

Latest in the Culligan family of drinking water systems are the Aqua-Cleer Consoles. These new appliances are housed in an attractively-designed compact cabinet, 43" high, occupying only a square foot of floor space.

Designed to help solve the problem of undesirable or potentially dangerous impurities found in some municipal and private water supplies, Aqua-Cleer Systems remove sediment, asbestos particles, tastes, odors, brackish water mineral salts, nitrates, laxative sulfates; as well as unhealthful dissolved metals such as arsenic, barium, cadmium, lead, mercury and sodium; and organic contaminants such as detergents, insecticides and pesticides.

The Aqua-Cleer Drinking Water Consoles not only remove impurities, but are available in models that improve the usefulness of water for drinking and cooking. One model offers the availability of refreshingly-chilled water for drinking, combined with piping-hot water for instant coffee, tea, soups, and other foods.

Other models offer room-temperature water only, or chilled and room-temperature water.

Ideal for homes, business, or industry, they are easy to connect.

Fashion colors you and your bathroom love to live with!

Just because your bathroom color scheme may be pink today, doesn't mean you will want it pink tomorrow. Tastes change, you may want to change your color scheme. But one thing you can't afford to change every time you change colors is your bathroom fixtures.

White is boring

And so most people install white fixtures when building or remodeling. But this makes for a stark, look-alike bathroom. That doesn't have to be the case.

You can now choose bathroom fixtures in color and still have decorating flexibility with the help of new Fashion Colors from Eljer Plumbingware, a leading fixture manufacturer.

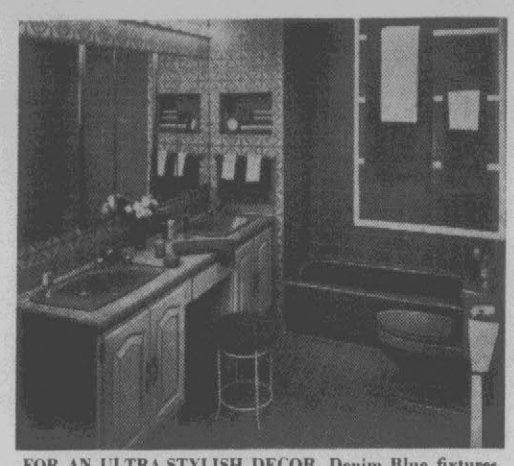
Eljer worked with noted color consultant Ms. Beatrice West to develop a series of new fashion colors, designed to adapt to changes in bathroom decor.

Ms. West conducted a study on bathroom colors and found the color trend away from harsh, bold colors to softer, more elegant hues. Colors like Misty Rose, Desert Gold, Twilight Blue, Natural, Frost Green and Denim Blue. Subtle and adaptable for a bathroom you can live with, and a bathroom that will stay in style.

That's because these new Fashion Colors let you have a change of heart without a change of fixtures. Simply splash on a fresh coat of paint, roll out a new plush carpet, fluff up some flowered towels, and Fashion Colors adapt — whenever you're ready.

Tips from pros

But not everyone can be a professional decorator. So a new 32-page booklet available from Eljer, entitled "Eljer Fashions Your Bathroom With Color," illustrates six beautiful, believable bathrooms designed by the editors of House Beautiful Magazine, each featuring bathroom fixtures in one of Eljer's Fashion Colors.



FOR AN ULTRA-STYLISH DECOR, Denim Blue fixtures are matched with the fine feel and look of tapestry — in wallpaper. Beige and copper colored accents with warm honey toned tile for the shower, counter top and floor add to the richness of the cool Denim Blue. Fixtures by Eljer Plumbingware.

DENIM BLUE COMBINED WITH WHITE makes for a very different, bright, lustrous bath. Denim Blue fixtures combine with cobalt ceramic tile and tailored blue and white stripes on the walls. A splash of chocolate brown in towels and accessories and this glamour bathroom is complete. Fixtures by Eljer Plumbingware.

Three color schemes for each bathroom are included to show the versatility of these new colors, in 18 different color schemes to inspire decorating ideas. Sources for papers, paints, carpet, tiles, cabinetry, towels and accessories are included to help you design and complete your bathroom from top to bottom.

Living in a haunted house? You may have a fire hazard

Does your house sometimes seem haunted? Do lights dim without warning . . . do whole sections of the place suddenly go completely dark . . . do toasters, lamps and other appliances act up without explanation?

You don't need "things that go bump in the night" to feel you're sharing your home with spooks, points out the head of the National Fire Protection Association (NFPA).

Things like dimming lights, blown fuses and balky appliances are genuine causes for alarm — not for fear of ghosts, but for the very real fear of an electrical fire which could destroy your house and everyone in it.

Faulty and misused electrical wiring and appliances are the leading cause of building fires in the United States, points out NFPA President Charles S. Morgan.

Use extension cords as little as possible and, if they feed a heating appliance, make sure they are designed for heavy duty.

Replace appliance and extension cords at the first sign of cracked insulation or loose connections.

Also, never run electric cords under rugs or hang them over nails . . . and, if you have an outdoor antenna for your television set, make sure the antenna has a properly grounded lightning arrestor and is installed so it can't fall across power lines.

If the roof over your head isn't flame retardant, you could be in for some trouble. Flammable roofing materials can be ignited by sparks from your own chimney, or by flying bits of burning debris from a nearby building or brush fire.

Acceptable roof coverings are listed by recognized testing laboratories as Class A, B or C. Class A passes the most severe fire exposure tests, Class B intermediate, and Class C the least severe.

Slate or tile roofs offer the best fire protection, according to the National Fire Protection Association (NFPA).

Next best are those rated A, B or C. This includes most asphalt shingles as well as wood shingles which have been chemically treated to retard ignition and flame spread.

But beware of untreated wood shingles, warns NFPA. They quickly spread fire and endanger entire neighborhoods.

'Do-it-yourself' home insulation saves money

The best year-round air conditioner has no motor and doesn't fit in the window. And, rather than increasing electric bills, it usually reduces costs significantly.

It's fiber glass insulation, designed to reduce heat transfer and keep air temperature at the proper level.

A fully insulated home can require up to half as much fuel as one with no insulation.

Most of the homes that do have insulation fall short of the minimum standard necessary to meet today's energy crunch.

Knowing where and how to insulate is easy with some expert advice from the Johns-Manville Insulation Center.

Set up exclusively as a free service to answer any simple or complex question about insulation from engineers to consumers, the Insulation Center has vast, sophisticated resources from which to supply the latest information.

Here's grandson

"CONTEMPORARY" IS THE COMING LIFESTYLE — and with some home furnishings firms, it's very much here! An example is this digital grandfather clock by Howard Miller, referred to by some as "the grandson" for its sleek lines and to-the-second time-telling. A column of bronze acrylic framed in polished chrome, it has an electronic solid state movement and LED read-out. Retail price of this innovation in the stately world of grandfather clocks is under $650. Furniture is by Selig.

Months with 'R' place focus on the cozy family fireplace

Gathering around the blazing hearth has been a human instinct since man discovered fire. And as the months spelled with an "r" arrive, fireplaces become focuses once more — even in places where leaves don't fall and the landscape isn't white.

Many an unlit chimney piece has the same magnetic attraction as the flickering flames.

Rooms take on a different look when they focus on the fireplace, sofa and chairs are pulled closer together within easy conversation distance of each other.

Casual tables are brought within handy reach so that they can offer a convenient place for lamps, books, magazines, drinks, snacks. And helping to complete the cozy circle is the "hearth" rug, traditional for centuries, lately re-discovered all over the house as the area rug.

The cool, bare floors of summer get a sudden splash of warm color from the right rug. It can help heat up the room before you even light the logs!

Area rug pioneers Ege Rya, came from Denmark a few years ago to change American ideas about floor decoration. With their thick, shaggy textures and richly-colored yarns, the rya rugs have since become a decorating basic, with modern designs and fibers continuing the old Viking tradition.

Recent introductions of many unusual and beautiful patterns, based on ethnic designs or adapted from historical motifs, assure something for every room's style and everybody's personal taste.

Beside adding that psychological warmth, the colors and designs make the new rugs works of art that just happen to be on the floor.

LIVING ROOM ARRANGEMENT for the cooler months, brings everything closer to the fireplace to be grouped around the hearthrug. In modern terms the gay colors and warm, shaggy texture make this Ege Rya "Ararat" rug a catalyst for the rest of the room, adding emphasis to the fireplace as the room's focal point. New weaving techniques create the three-dimensional surface which is combined with a dazzling splash of color to make it a work of "hearth art." This one is made in easy-care, long-wear Acrilan, and it is moderately priced.

If you've just taken your own apartment, are making wedding plans or going off to school, you'll need certain bed linen basics. These include pillows, a comforter, and a mattress pad as well as linens.

The rule of thumb for buying sheets and pillowcases is to have one set on the bed, one in the laundry and one set in the closet. This way you'll always have clean linens in case you don't have a chance to do a laundry or if you have unexpected company.

Company can always camp out on the sofa unless you have the room for overnight guests on a regular basis. If you do, you'll want to have an extra set of sheets, extra pillows and an extra comforter.

When you're starting out it pays to buy good quality items. The better pillow and comforter will give you more years of comfortable sleep and actually cost you less because they will last longer than the less expensive ones.

Also we spend one third or more of our lives sleeping and if you don't get a good night's sleep you won't have a good day. An investment in your sleep is really one in your working and leisure time hours too.

There are certain tips to keep in mind when you select a pillow.

There's no perfect bed pillow for everyone and there's no way to tell about a pillow by just looking at it. You have to pick it up and handle it to see if it is comfortable to your touch.

See if it has the feel, elevation and firmness you like in a pillow. Then place your head on it and see if it still feels comfortable.

Pillows come in a wide range of prices, types and sizes so you should consider how you want to sleep and what size bed you have.

Most manufacturers offer pillows which meet your firmness, elevation and size needs.

The top of the line is a down pillow; it is luxuriously soft and lightweight.

Next are the blends of feathers and down in various combinations which determine the firmness. More feathers in the blend will make the pillow firmer.

There are also goose or duck feather pillows. These are the firmest and will also give you many years of comfortable sleep. They are less expensive than an all down or blended feather and down pillow.

Pillows are also made of polyester fills or foam rubber. A good pillow should be odorless, resilient and free from lumps regardless of the filling.

Comforters are the most popular bedcovers today because they give a finished look to your bedroom without the nuisance of using both a blanket and bedspread. They also save time in making up the bed.

When you select a comforter keep in mind that there are down comforters, down and feather comforters and some filled with polyester.

The comforter filled with natural materials will drape to your body and insulate you so that you are warm in the winter and comfortable in the warmer months.

A polyester fill comforter will be best in the warmer months. A good comforter will give you years of service and still look fluffy while it keeps you comfortable.

With all the wonderful sheet patterns on the market today, it makes sense to buy a solid color comforter that will coordinate with the basic color scheme in your bedroom.

Remember, in selecting your bed linen basics, it is smart to buy good quality items that will give you years of comfort and service. That's why it's important to pick carefully.

Helpful hints for the househusband

"I'm a househusband."

Sounds strange the first time you hear it. But you'll get used to it. You may even be one yourself.

More and more men are volunteering for the cooking-and-cleaning corps while their wives pursue an education or career.

If you're a husband who's made the big switch from breadwinning to bread baking, take heart. The Eureka Home Care Institute has some do's and don'ts to help you outshine the househusband next door:

Do set up a schedule of daily, weekly and monthly chores — and stick to it. Don't let things pile up until you can't stand the mess anymore and your wife threatens to send you back to work.

Do wash dishes, including pots and pans, after every meal. Three little jobs are better than one big one. Don't wait till you're in the middle of preparing dinner to scour out a pot that's still dirty from lunch.

Do straighten the living room early each day. Take out old newspapers, put away books and games, and empty ash trays. Don't let yesterday's debris greet your wife when she comes home at night.

Do give your living, dining and family rooms a good going-over once a week. Don't wait till your kids start writing their names in the dust on the table tops and the carpeting makes crunchy noises when you walk on it.

Thoroughly vacuum the rugs and carpets, and wash and polish bare floors. Use your vacuum's dusting brush on tables, mirrors, pictures and bric-a-brac, and the upholstery tool on pillows, slipcovers and draperies.

In the bathroom, do change the towels when they get dirty — daily if necessary. Don't put soiled towels in the hamper while they're wet, unless you like things growing on them.

Do clean the tub and spread out the shower curtain to dry every day.

Don't put off making the bed till afternoon, or you'll end up never making it at all. Make it as soon as you've straightened the living room. While you're at it, hang up clothes and put away slippers.

Do clean the bathroom floor, sink and toilet at least once a week. If you have bathroom carpeting, vacuum it as needed. Don't wait until things get so bad that you're embarrassed to have company use the bathroom.

Do set yourself a few big chores to do once a month or every six weeks: Wash the windows, clean venetian blinds with the dusting brush of your vacuum, wash the bathroom walls, woodwork and shower curtain, shampoo carpets in heavy traffic areas.

Do a little research on housekeeping, just as you would on any new job. One useful source of information is the Four Seasons Home Care Guide, available from The Eureka Home Care Institute, Dept. M, 1201 East Bell Street, Bloomington, Illinois 61701, for 25 cents and a stamped, self-addressed #10 envelope.

Finally, don't let housework rule your life. With today's super-efficient cleaners and appliances, it's easy to keep your house looking great — and still have enough time for Thursday afternoon poker games with the boys.

COLORFUL WALLCOVERINGS by J. Josephson and interior organizers by Rubbermaid suit this small kitchen to today's lifestyle: they make it attractive and they make it convenient.

Small kitchens have big possibilities for original, decorative organization

Proving that a small kitchen needn't be either dull or disorganized, J. Josephson and Rubbermaid joined forces to convert a boxy all-white "utility room" into something special, with exterior application of bright wallcoverings and interior installation of organizers widely available and inexpensive.

The wallcoverings are pre-pasted hang-it-yourself vinyls called "Calico Jane" and "Slim Jim," in red, orange, green and white at about $6 per roll.

The organizers in upper and lower cabinets — all avocado in color — include stacking modulars, swing-out shelves, slide-out drawers, turntables, storage bins and canisters to put and keep everything in its place. Thus the boxes, bottles, canned goods and small appliances that are as essential to today's lifestyle as fresh foods, tablewares and utensils are available without groping. And the things you want to show off, you do show — in style!

SILKEN WALLS

Do you have an extra-pretty scarf — one that's just too pretty to fold into a knot or tie in a triangle and wear? Don't stash it away for that "special occasion" which may never come. Give it a light pressing, frame it, and you'll have a great new look for a room!

BED FLIPS

Don't forget to flip your mattress occasionally. Aside from the obvious benefits — it extends the life of the mattress and prevents saggy pockets from forming — it's a great way to get some exercise! And it gives all of your bedding a chance to really air out.

Care of garden tools

After a busy season of heavy use, garden tools and equipment require some basic care to keep them in good condition.

Rust and corrosion can wreak havoc on tools that are stored improperly. Before storing your equipment for the winter, be sure to clean and condition it:

- Start by scraping mud from hand tools. All traces of fertilizer, which attracts moisture and invites rust, should be removed from your spreader and other metal garden equipment. Wash spreader and other metal tools with full-strength Janitor In A Drum®, rinse and let dry.
- To remove any existing rust spots on tools, rub them with coarse steel wool, apply liquid rust remover and rub it into surfaces with a cloth.
- Coat all metal tools with oil, to protect them from moisture and rust, and store them in a dry place.
- Before storing your insecticide sprayer can, be certain to clean, rinse and thoroughly dry it, too. Insecticides left in your sprayer can ruin it in just a few months.
- Remember to drain your garden hose of water before the cold weather sets in. If the water freezes, it could damage the hose and cause leaks. Store the hose coiled, on a reel or on a flat surface.

Mini-sized washing system for maximum energy savings

So you've really decided to buckle down and save on energy. Fine. Now, where do you start?

Well, there is one household chore where most homemakers have the opportunity to save energy over 400 times a year — whenever they do the laundry.

According to the National Bureau of Standards, the average American family uses its automatic washer on the average of eight times per week or 416 loads a year. You can imagine that a substantial number of these many wash cycles are incomplete loads.

Often only one or two urgently needed items are tossed into a family-sized washer, resulting in a waste of hot water — especially if the washer is not equipped with a variable water level control.

General Electric reports that these frequent, small launderings represent opportunities for the cost-conscious family to economize. Therefore, many GE automatic washers feature the Mini-Wash® system.

This washing system utilizes a Mini-Basket™ feature and a reduced water level (about half that of a regular small load setting) to provide an energy saving and economical method of handling delicates, leftovers or last-minute wash loads.

Capable of washing up to 2½ pounds of mixed fabrics and using about 15 gallons of water — versus about 27 for a normal load — and ¼ cup of detergent, General Electric's Mini-Wash system can reduce energy usage by as much as 40% compared with a regular small load setting.

However, the largest potential energy savings in the home laundry can be realized by conserving the energy required for water heating by changing temperature selections.

For example, a typical homemaker who does eight full-size wash loads a week using hot wash/warm rinse could switch to warm wash/cold rinse and save about 6,000 gallons of hot water annually. That's enough for about 425 showers.

And, combining lower wash/rinse temperatures with the Mini-Wash system can provide extra cost reductions.

For maximum energy savings, General Electric suggests that you adjust the hot and cold water faucets leading into the washer so that the water temperature is near 80 degrees for the warm-water setting. (At 80 degrees, water feels slightly cool to the hand and wrist, or a candy thermometer can be used.)

However, some heavily soiled articles of clothing will still require hot water wash (about 140 degrees) for removal of soil.

And since lower rinse water temperature provides effective rinsing, the appliance maker recommends the use of cold water rinses exclusively.

Remember, you're still ahead in the energy saving game with the Mini-Wash system, regardless of the water temperature you select, when those "right now" laundry needs pop up.

GE's Mini-Wash system can prove to be the energy-conscious homemaker's Maxi-Energy saver in the laundry room.

IT'S CLOSET ORGANIZING TIME . . . and what a beautiful way to do it! Dress up old boxes with inexpensive fabric — even mix and match prints and solids — and finish off with pretty ribbons and lace. Do it all with trusty Elmer's Glue-All . . . then sit back and enjoy closet accessories a queen would envy. With such pretty helpers, who wouldn't get organized — and stay that way!

Turn old boxes into beautiful organizers

Are you a box-lover? If you're one of those people who can't bear to throw out a good box because someday it might come in handy — this is for you.

Picture all those assorted dress boxes, hat boxes, shoe boxes and what-not boxes languishing in your closet right now. And now picture them as a matched set . . . they'd look like custom-made closet organizers, the kind you'd pay a small fortune for in a store.

To turn them into elegant closet accessories, all you need to do is cover them with pretty fabric (even inexpensive dress goods could be elegant), and add trimmings or ribbon and lace.

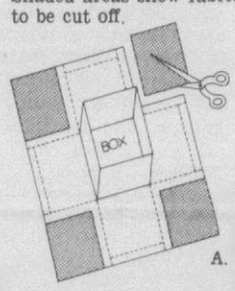
Here's how:

1. Lay out fabric, face down.

2. Position box on it in a way that leaves enough fabric to bring up over all sides, allowing for 1" turn-ins at all sides. Mark position. Cut off excess fabric. (See diagram A.) Shaded areas show fabric to be cut off.

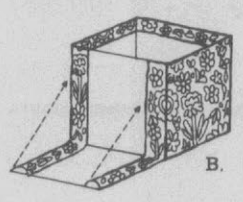


A.

3. Apply Elmer's Glue-All around edges of box base. Re-place box on fabric.

4. Bring fabric up on two opposite sides of box. Turn over top edges and glue. Smooth fabric as you go.

5. Bring 1" turn-ins around remaining two sides of box, and glue. Also glue along fabric edges, forming hems. Then turn fabric up over sides of box, and glue as before. (See diagram B.)



B.

Hint: For outsize boxes, or round ones, use separate fabric pieces for bottom and sides. First do sides, wrapping a length of fabric around box.

Fabric should be 2" wider than needed — 1" to turn under top edge, the other 1" to turn under bottom. When this is glued, trace bottom, cut a separate piece of fabric to fit and glue in place.

Glued-down fabric edges won't fray, so there's no need to turn under.

Hint: To line boxes, it's easier to work on cardboard cut to fit loosely on each side and bottom. Cover the cardboard, then glue in the box.

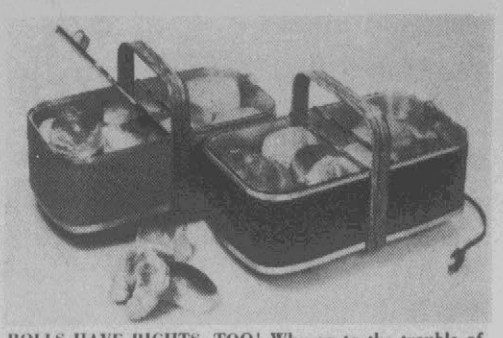
Hint: Instead of lining, start by spray-painting the insides. Use a fast-drying paint like Krylon and spray two coats to get a lustrous and sturdy finish.

Functional, decorative, 'oddball' — useful appliances that are fun to use

For over 25 years, the Salton company has taken pride in introducing innovative, functional and beautifully designed "oddball" appliances to the American home.

Now, in celebration of 200 years of development in the American housewares field, the company is presenting some new FUNctional appliances.

Salton believes that buns and rolls have rights, too! The Hot Basket is a wonderful addition to any table. Buns, rolls, pastries, baked potatoes and finger foods will stay warm and tasty throughout the meal.



ROLLS HAVE RIGHTS, TOO! Why go to the trouble of preparing tasty rolls and pastries if you can't serve them at their piping-hot best? With the Salton Hot Basket, your croissants and biscuits are guaranteed to stay evenly warm and delicious throughout the meal.

Homemade peanut butter is as different from commercial peanut butter as bread out of the oven compared to bread off a shelf. And if you want peanut butter that's fresh warm and natural — you have to make it yourself.

The Salton Peanut Butter Maker transforms peanuts into any consistency desired (from chunky to smooth) using the natural oils already in the peanut.

Come to think of it, what's so "oddball" about convenience, freshness, and purity for all products? It's a great tradition!

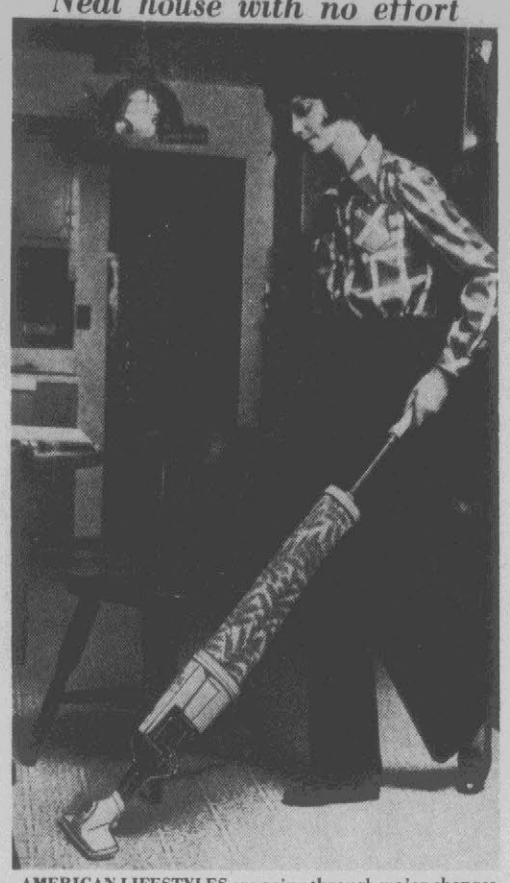
Neat house with no effort



AMERICAN LIFESTYLES are going through major changes because there is nothing more permanent in life than change. Today's homemaker is living proof. She is actively involved in home, a career, sports and/or community affairs. The percentage of "single" households has increased dramatically in the USA, meaning a strong swing to apartment, and mobile or smaller home dwellings. Everything is more compact and efficient — and that includes appliances like Regina's Electrikbroom® which is the perfect floor care "pickup" tool for cleaning bare floors to deep carpets. Just 7 lbs., it is easy and fast to use. There are no bags to buy, dirt collects in a dust cap that empties easily as an ashtray. It can hang on a closet hook so storage space is minimal. For that wanted neat environment, it's the neatest!

What could be nicer?

GRIND WITH A NEW TWIST! What could be nicer than your own freshly ground personal blend of coffee? Or fresh chopped nuts and ground spices? Salton introduces a new version of their popular Quick Mill Grinder. This new model features an added double safety control, along with the high speed cutting blade and contoured hopper that assure uniform grinding every time . . . in seconds!

Welcome retreat

IN THE READING AREA of this comfortable den, a Kay-Lyn wing chair and Finishing Touch's unique Old Salt winch table beckon affectionately. If work is the order of the day, one can chart any number of courses at the wide-winged roll-top desk, also from Finishing Touch. The numerous drawers allow for plenty of storage. It's almost 1500 hours now, according to Ridgeway's ship's wheel clock — a good time to relax and enjoy life. Late afternoon sunlight slants through the shuttered window to the captain's sea chest, below. It shines with deep oak veneers and polished hardware.

Chinoiserie

SOME PROUD AMERICAN 18th CENTURY DESIGNS, then as now, are lacquered and decorated furniture pieces which the French appropriately dubbed "Chinoiserie." The black lacquer case highlighting this delightful drawing room is typical of those museum pieces from early times and all designs are from Hickory Furniture Company's new "American Masterpiece Collection." The Chinoiserie cabinet with its reverse-curved pagoda-like pediment, decorations in gold with floral and scenic panels in raised gesso fits handsomely into a decor for any century.

New times . . .

Living happily after all— option to change lifestyles

It takes no genie to know that rapidly changing lifestyles are causing many people to take a fresh look at their values.

For instance, the widow and widower in the mid or late 60's who are deeply committed to each other may now be exploring the possibility of setting up a joint residence without forfeiting their individual social security benefits.

Changing values

In a recent survey when this problem was posed, 83 percent of those questioned replied, "why not." But, don't forget, these 65 year olds first acquired their values in the mid thirties, lived through two wars plus a depression and a couple of recessions as well as the good years.

Now they are faced with a complete turnaround in their thinking, a reversal of value judgments which guided them for over half a century. It's not easy, but nonetheless, some couples are choosing to move in together and establish one household.

Decision facing

They are faced with all types of decisions, both big and small. Many encompass the choice of what dishes to ditch, which ones to keep. Will his sofa work with her easy chairs, or do they buy new lamps and put a whole new light on the situation.

Each decision is highly individual, with no precedents. Not the way Aunt Mary did it, Aunt Mary didn't. Not that way, anyway, but there weren't the same economic pressures or alternatives.

Contemporary realities

But when making the big move, letting the so-called insignificant aspects take over sometimes takes the edge off shattering storybook ideals in favor of contemporary realities.

For those fortunate enough to start completely from scratch in furnishing a new home, here are some contemporary guidelines.

Forget about how long things will last. That was for the first time 'round. The big question is how one feels about buying something new. Does the sofa fabric feel good? Does it sit well?

Earned status

Now is the time to satisfy personal preferences. And, perhaps, this is truly for the first time — a status that has been earned after long years of selflessness.

If one wants to wrap oneself up in a contemporary environment, or a traditional one, who's to say no? Or to keeping some old treasures. And choosing new things doesn't necessarily mean going out on a buying binge.

So many designs on the market today offer taste, value, and a fresh approach to decorating a home.

Quality names

Staying with good brand names is always a valid concept. Names like Syroco when choosing wall accessories, or Hickory Furniture Company for dining, bedroom and living room designs, Ridgeway for fine tall case clocks or Finishing Touch for original accent pieces are all old friends to be relied upon for quality and for a complete across-the-board choice in design, as well.

This time around, it can be comforting to draw upon past experience. Add to this a zest for the future and put it all together for a recipe that can mean living happily after all.

Three cheers for the do-it-yourself four poster bed—instant heirloom!

If you're lucky, your great-great grandfather's 18th century four poster bed is still in the family. If not, you can re-create this classic with the help of The Bedroom Book from the makers of Serta Perfect Sleeper mattresses.

The four poster is reportedly so easy to make even a husband can do it.

The Bedroom Book contains detailed construction plans for a Colonial four poster. It's queen size, in keeping with the trend toward more comfortable supersize bedding.

Like the original, this four poster can be made with basic hand tools. No nails are required and screws are used only to fasten the slat rails to the side rails. Materials should run approximately $50.

In addition to the construction plans, The Bedroom Book offers ideas for living and lounging in the bedroom. It contains an illustrated section on figure-slimming exercises to do in bed, a breakfast-in-bed menu and consumer information on selecting a mattress and foundation.

The bedding firm advises that while you may wish to sleep in an old-fashioned bed, the mattress and foundation should be up-to-date in providing the right combination of comfort and support.

The Bedroom Book is available from Serta, Inc., 666 North Lake Shore Drive, Chicago, Ill. 60611. There is a charge of 50¢ for postage and handling.

ALMOST INSTANT HEIRLOOM. Only basic hand tools and readily available materials are required to make this Colonial four poster with a shaped headboard. Most of the labor will be in cutting the lumber and finishing the tapered posts. Serta's "The Bedroom Book" offers exclusive construction plans and guidelines for buying bedding.

Windowshades - pretty, practical

Functionalism plus . . . the windowshade. It adds privacy, filters light, helps energy control by keeping temperature on an even keel in winter or summer, and usually is washable.

Who could ask for more? Homemakers did! So windowshades are now beautiful, too — in a wonderful range of mix-and-match colors and patterns that make you forget how utilitarian they are.

Don't despair if the budget is out of whack by the time you get around to planning your window treatment.

Even penny-pinchers can keep in step by choosing colorful, ready-made window shades to add a new and charming note to their decorating scheme.

Cupboards are coming out! Rooms open up to new styles

The move is on because the cupboard is no longer a cupboard, it's a cabinet. About 99 per cent of the time it's a built-in, not a free-standing unit, and it's furniture, embodying the same characteristics of style and finish as furniture for any other room of the home.

No longer is your choice confined to colonial, contemporary, mediterranean or provincial: you can have 'most any exterior styling your eye finds appealing, be it oriental or alpine!

And inside, manufacturers offer all kinds of options to organize storage: revolving racks, roll-out shelves and trays, vertical dividers, drawer dividers, letter files, food files, wine racks, can racks, cutting boards, towel bars.

What makes these and other fittings good for the kitchen — the fact that what was once fixed is now flexible — makes them useful in other rooms, too. And the same people who plan cabinetry for kitchens design its installation in these other rooms.

Many of the country's "space specialists" are members of the American Institute of Kitchen Dealers, who operate as independent retailers or are affiliated with a lumber yard, or an appliance or home center.

These professionals are equipped to plan and install, or to plan the cabinetry and let you install it.

From AIKD members come these beyond-the-kitchen storage suggestions.

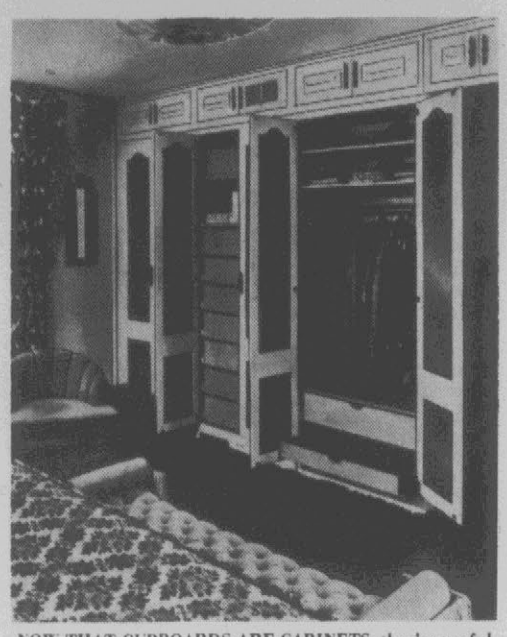
Master Bedroom: Transform a sleeping room into a 24-hour-a-day room by building in niches for stereo and TV; nightstands with bookshelves above.

Install a small refrigerator for midnight snacks, in a cabinet that by day is a desk.

Library or Den: Use cabinets and shelves to contain books of all sizes and to keep paperwork in place; to house stereo equipment, television set, tapes and tape deck; to store and keep records at hand.

Build in a desk with a letter file above; a bar with roll-out bottle shelf and wine rack.

Family or Hobby Room: Use a plastic vegetable bin to hold yarns; drawer dividers to keep art supplies orderly; a pull-out shelf as a game table.



NOW THAT CUPBOARDS ARE CABINETS, they're useful in every room — not just in the kitchen! A member of the American Institute of Kitchen Dealers designed this bedroom storage wall with Wood-Mode cabinetry incorporating roll-out drawers and adjustable shelves.

Child's Room: End chaos with cabinets for records, pictures, toys and games, and the various oddments that children collect — from stamps to stuffed animals.

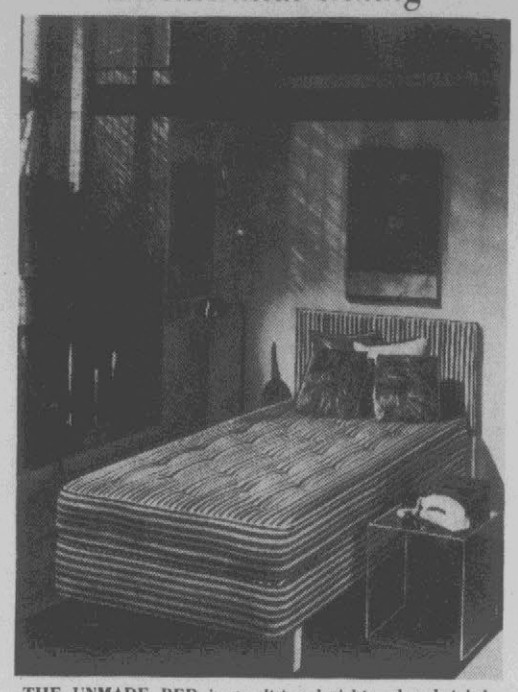
Have a drop-down ironing board that hides behind its own door; a corner carrousel for soaps and detergents.

These are just a few of many ways that professionals "find" space and use it all over the house, in cabinets that no longer are cupboards.

Natural luxury

FOR THE SERENE, light, airy look, try an all white room combined with naturals, such as rattan, bleached oak, rich parquet floors and greenery galore! This luxurious living needn't be impractical when the components are washable slip covers and an easy-to-care-for "Elekati" rug of synthetic fur by Collins & Aikman.

Bicentennial ticking



THE UNMADE BED in traditional ticking but brightly striped for the Bicentennial in red, white, and blue, is perfect for son, daughter, or guest room. With matching headboard, it is pretty enough to leave as shown requiring no extra linens or bedspreads for covers when not in use. The whole room has taken its color cue from the Minute Man ensemble. Note the use of a broad foil strip edged in red and blue which visually lowers the inordinately high ceiling. Available in twin size, suggested retail under $160.

New system and local service centers help to save time on appliance repair

Most Americans live very scheduled lives. That's why General Electric tries to build and service its major appliances so schedules will be interrupted as little as possible.

For instance, most GE no-frost refrigerators are equipped with a system called Rapid Electrical Diagnosis, so if something does go wrong a trained GE service technician can plug into the system with a special tester to help him quickly pinpoint the problem.

With Rapid Electrical Diagnosis, the technician can check the refrigerator's electrical components in about six minutes without moving the refrigerator out from the wall, without removing any food, and usually without even opening the door.

And with this testing system, the chances are very good that any problem will be diagnosed right the first time, so there's less chance you'll need a second service call.

Another plus for General Electric appliances is that in most major metropolitan areas GE Factory Service is available. That means GE owns and operates the service center so you can be assured technicians are factory trained, specialize only in GE products and will use genuine GE replacement parts.

With GE's Factory Service you'll also be able to get an appointment — a given morning or afternoon — to have your appliance fixed. And better than nine times out of 10 the technician will be there within the four-hour period you expect him.

It would be nice if appliances never needed repair. But since they do, it's good to know that GE Factory Service and diagnostic techniques such as Rapid Electrical Diagnosis will help you get things back to normal with as little inconvenience as possible.

Fire extinguisher a kitchen safety must

With gourmet and ethnic cookbooks, specialty stores and utensils, and "how to" classes on the rise, everybody's getting into the act, learning how to prepare gastronomical feasts for family and friends.

Ample counter space, a wide selection of paring, chopping or butcher knives or even a time-saving microwave oven, can all contribute to creative cookery.

But no matter how modern your appliances or how abundant your utensils, no kitchen is ever complete without a reliable fire extinguisher, according to home safety experts at Gillette.

Because 65 per cent of home fires start in the kitchen, even the most expert cooks should be wary of "cooking up a storm."

The Captain Kelly Dry Chemical Fire Extinguisher, for simple, effective control of kitchen fires, is decorator-designed in chrome yellow with orange lettering to fit into any kitchen decor. With one hand, the unit releases from the decorator bracket and operates with push-button ease to fight common household fires, including grease, oil, gasoline and electrical fires.

So next time you're taking stock of your kitchen, make sure to list your priorities sensibly, starting with a Captain Kelly Dry Chemical Fire Extinguisher.

KITCHEN CABINET SYSTEMS, made of beautiful oak wood construction provide fun-style living in a family room, one of 10 room designs by Excel Wood Products Co. Easy to install yourself, the storage units are perfect organizers for recreational equipment.

Kitchen cabinets are moving into every room of the home

Storage space. Everybody needs more. When it comes to storing everyday needs, you should like what the designers at Excel Wood Products Co., Lakewood, N.J., have come up with.

It's the new kitchen cabinet storage system lifestyle you can have built into any room of your home, or, if you're handy with tools, can install yourself. And there's something in it for everyone in the family, from mother for her laundry and sewing needs, to dad for his workshop, and the son or daughter who is a budding artist or photographer.

Excel, a manufacturer of kitchen cabinets and bathroom vanities, has put it all together in a series of 10 designs that put fun into room planning whether it be for entertaining or crafts.

For example, to create a sewing room, Excel has an easy answer; attach four door cabinets overhead to the wall, place two drawer cabinets beneath on the floor, and the counter space in between handles your sewing machine and sewing aids.

Those new oak cabinets, in cherry, pecan or walnut, look great in a family room or basement game room. With just seven modular door units you make an arrangement that will provide space for sports equipment, serving sets, and shelf space for the TV and stereo.

The new concept in modular cabinets for the home is the way to go when remodeling. The most valuable features of the cabinet lines are all wood construction, wooden drawers, self-closing ball bearing drawer suspension, mortise and tenon joints and dove-tail assembly as found in the most expensive furniture.

The cabinets and room plans are available nationally through kitchen dealers, home centers, contractors and distributors.

Homeowners urged to select only energy-saving devices

The homeowner in the market for a new refrigerator will discover some surprising innovations, particularly power-saving features and improved insulation, according to the National Home Improvement Council.

One energy-saving model uses about a third less electricity than other models not equipped with its special thermostatically controlled motor.

While it is true that the amount of electricity consumed by a refrigerator each operating hour is a modest amount, it's also true that it is operated 24 hours around the clock for 365 days a year.

Even though frost-free refrigerators do use more kilowatts of energy annually than non frost-free models, they avoid the extra energy drain resulting from frost accumulation.

Today's power-saving refrigerators also preserve food longer during power failures, which become alarmingly more common each year.

As is to be expected, there's a higher price tag on these models, but operating savings in the long run more than repay the initial purchase price.

The self-cleaning oven, certainly a time and labor saver, uses minimal energy for a year's normal use. Presuming monthly cleaning, only 20 to 30 kilowatt hours of electricity are consumed yearly. Some gas ranges even clean while the oven is cooking.

With thermostats on cooking tops as well as in the ovens, total automatic cooking is possible today. A "keep warm" setting permits preparation of meals hours in advance, freeing host and hostess to entertain guests.

The lower temperature settings on the keep-warm oven are safe even for the finest china.

Manufacturers of building materials and decorative accessories have responded beautifully to the imagination and needs of the remodeling homeowner, according to the National Home Improvement Council.

From self-adhesive vinyl instant door and wall covering to carpeting for every room in the home, the list of attractive and reasonably priced products for the home grows day by day.

A number of these products are designed for do-it-yourself installation.

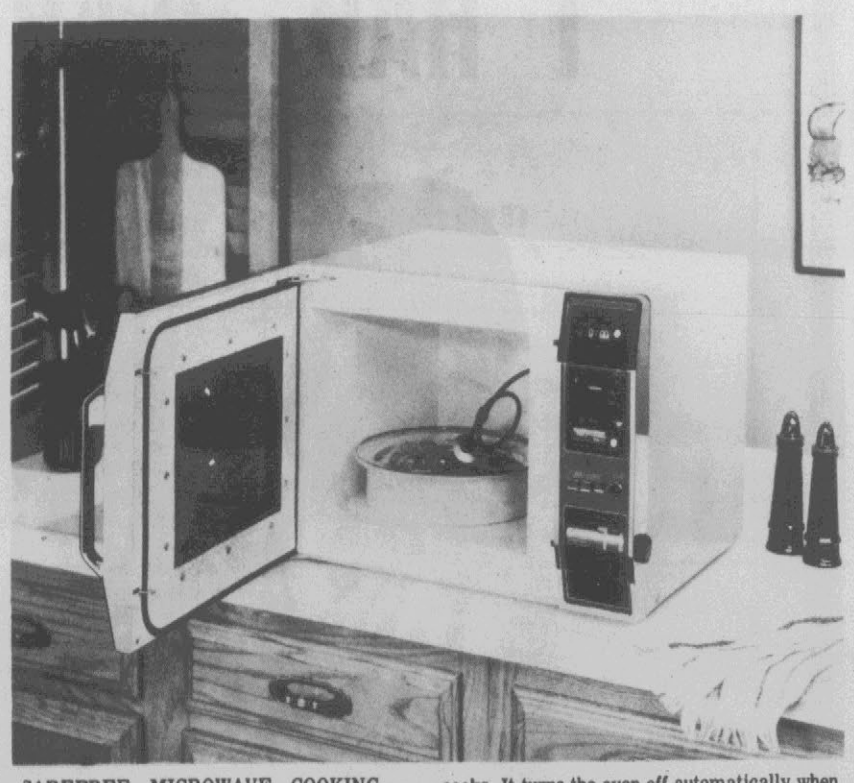
For example, the colorful new lightweight plywood panels that will bring a livingroom to life.

They're extremly easy to install and come in solid colors, patterns and textures. What's more, one can paint, paste, pin or nail on them. And they are washable, scuff-proof and fade-proof.

On the exterior of the house the homeowner remodeler might consider using a new self-adhesive vinyl siding which goes on right over wood siding, eliminating the need for painting.

A powerful adhesive assures permanent bonding and the vinyl resists staining and peeling.

Acoustical tile provides an attractive ceiling at the same time that it helps to trap sound. Keep in mind that it will only absorb sounds from inside the house.



CAREFREE MICROWAVE COOKING — Hotpoint's new RE930T Countertop Microwave Oven now gives the option of cooking by time or temperature at microwave speeds. An Automatic Temperature Control takes the guesswork out of microwave cooking many foods by sensing the internal temperature of food as it cooks. It turns the oven off automatically when the food is cooked, eliminating undercooking or overcooking. Distinctively styled with full window and black vinyl handle. (Shown is a sausage and bean casserole, with the sensing device inserted, ready for cooking.) Available in Greenville at Greenville TV & Appliance Center.

THE BUTCHER BLOCK LOOK has certainly become a way of life in dining sets. Isn't it wonderful to know that a totally coordinated butcher block dining grouping is now available — thanks to Chromcraft Furniture. There's even the additional contemporary element of natural cane on the Breuer-inspired chairs and doors on the functional serving unit.

Strong modern look marries rustic wood

A totally new concept of combining heavy wood turnings with chrome collars and glass has been introduced as an important leisure living group from Chromcraft Furniture.

Chromcraft's designer, Bob Wilson, states, "we combined the strong modern message by using chrome and glass with the popular return to naturals trend of solid oak or natural wood looks and created the Centurian Collection.

"By marrying the two design concepts, it's a new, fresh, rustic modern look."

The upholstered pieces also carry out this feeling of an unpretentious homey environment in a series of fabrics in keeping with this theme.

There's a handsome wide cotton corduroy; soft and appealing urethane vinyls — including Royale — with a unique softness of hand spun backing for additional softness, and a rich top grain leather look.

There are also two new Herculon styles in handcrafted-looking designs such as an Indian-motif and subtle stripes. All fabrics are in Mother Earth's favorite colorations.

The entire collection consists of the following pieces:

- Dining table with uniquely designed double leg pedestal or bold 3-inch hardwood turnings, chrome collar and tubing.
- Coordinated dining chairs are available with open arm or with rolled upholstered arm. Both versions again combine the wood turnings, chrome and natural-looking upholstery.
- Five occasional tables in various dimensions are available in a rectangular or round glass, or rustic elm laminate.
- A party group is offered with a lower 48-inch round top in a practical rustic elm laminate and similar styled chairs.
- The upholstered lounge group consists of sofa, loveseat and chair with a decided sling styling. The wood turning is again accented with chrome collars and a selection of soft urethane coated vinyls, updated wide cotton corduroys, and handcrafted-styled Herculon olefins.

Some dollars and sense ways to creative improvements

If the idea of taking on a hefty home improvement loan gives you the willies, it's time you learn what today's great wallcoverings can do.

Starting small

Admittedly, a wallcovering cannot stand in for a new roof. But it'll no doubt surprise you how much else it can do.

So before you raise the roof, knock down walls, put in more windows, or whatever, check these ideas from the Wallcovering Industry Bureau. They can save you a pretty penny.

You can turn most any architectural minus into a plus with the pattern power of wallcoverings.

Creative cover-up

Be it dormer walls, structural beams, or uneven and oddly placed windows that irritate you, they can be handled with a small, all-over design. And if you use matching fabric for curtains, those funny-looking windows will blend right into the wall.

Got too many doors? Make them less conspicuous by covering them to match the walls.

Atmosphere

Use dark colors, prominent patterns on all walls if your problem is a too large room. This will "close in" the room. Good design choices: ornate tree-of-life and tapestry designs.

To cool a southern exposure room, consider the icy gleam of silver foil. And bring coziness of a northern exposure room with calico or gingham patterns in dark browns, yellows, orange. Or choose a damask or flocked design in some rich color, if you want something more formal.

Down to earth

Too high ceilings won't look as lofty if you treat them to a dark color or dramatic design. Or try a border at ceiling level, to break the height.

A TOTALLY NEW APPROACH to leisure living furnishings is found in Chromcraft's new Centurian Collection. New elements include the blending of bold wood turnings with chrome collars and glass. This fresh modern mood also includes solid oak table tops or a natural-looking rustic elm laminate. Coordinated lounge and dining chairs are covered in a handsome wide wale cotton corduroy in earthy tones. Even the occasional tables carry out this same theme.

THE YAMAHA GRAND PIANO, with the Yamaha Metal Action Rail brings a new strength and consistency to piano action. It is impervious to weather changes (unlike the traditional wood action rail) and eliminates rail warping, disfiguration, breathing, and provides long-lasting stable regulation. To fight the pinblock's archenemy, daily humidity changes, the Yamaha Humid-A-Seal Pinblock was created. It's made of 3 layers of hard rock maple crossbanded and sealed on both sides by 19 thin layers of maple, and it uses a waterproof film to seal moisture both in and out. Available at Eastern Keyboard.

HOMESPUN FABRICS, HARVEST HUES, needlepoint samplers, a hand-crocheted afghan on a cherished old rocking chair and the warmth of a pine-cone-scented fire fairly glow in this Colonial style living room. Standing guard above it all is a reproduction of a hand-carved Federal eagle newly executed by Syroco in a weathered oak finish. Such a combination of sentimental and historical touches classify this couple as one that lives happily in the present without ever truly forgetting the past.

Durable ceramic tile lends bright new spark to kitchen

The look of obsolescence comes to the kitchen faster than to any other room in the house.

Appliances look outdated in just a few years, and there's no other area that needs repainting and a general overhaul quite as frequently.

But there's ONE material that never grows obsolete: ceramic tile! So if you're about to remodel your kitchen, it makes sense to think tile.

Put it in as many places as possible. For every area that's tiled is one less surface to worry about through all future overhauls and remodeling jobs. That's a lot of dollars saved!

"A tile floor won't show distinct paths from stove to refrigerator to sink. And chopping onions or parking hot pots right on a tiled counter is perfectly OK."

Also think tile for the walls . . . at the very least for those behind the stove and the sink.

And what a lot of paint jobs you could save if you put tile on the walls of that center work aisle. Not to mention the breakfast bar!

Ceramic tile will save energy, too. Namely yours. Once-over with a damp mop or sponge will keep those tile surfaces spanking clean. No waxing needed either. Not ever.

CERAMIC TILE COUNTERS and floors make beautiful sense in kitchens. They add a distinct note of luxury, they're the easiest of all surfaces to keep clean and never need waxing, they'll last for forever, and not even the hottest pots or vigorous chopping can mar those tile counters.

And now that you're convinced that it's time to tile, you'll be pleased to find that great fashion has come to this classic product.

Even tried and true quarry tile now comes in such colors as caramel and black walnut.

Then there's design. Such as floor tiles with the looks of flashed bark, pebbles, shells, tide-rippled sand, used brick, cobble stones, parquet and wicker. And wall tiles handsomely decorated in the tradition of Delft and Lisbon or with up-to-date nature motifs, such as cane or bamboo.

So whatever your kitchen decor — city-slick or countryfied, serene or zesty, stream-lined or funky — you'll have no problem finding the right tile to amplify its mood.

For more tile ideas—for your kitchen as well as the rest of your rooms, send 50 cents to Tile Council of America, Dept. M, P.O. Box 2222, Princeton, N.J. 08540.

Planning to insulate? Attic floor is best place to begin

As the world's energy resources become even more limited, the role of adequate insulation becomes increasingly important.

A well insulated home can require up to half the fuel as one without insulation, says Johns-Manville.

A leading manufacturer of thermal insulations, J-M recommends that fiber glass insulation be installed wherever necessary to form a complete thermal blanket around the home's heated and mechanically cooled areas: ceilings, walls and floors.

Insulating these areas reduces heat transfer and keeps the air temperature at the proper level all year long.

But, if the budget doesn't permit the insulation of all these places, start with the attic floor where most homes lose the greatest amount of heat.

Here, the recommended minimum insulation is six inches or an "R" value of 19 (the higher the "R" value, the greater the insulating value). Thus, the more insulation, the greater the fuel savings.

For the thousands of homes that fall short of the minimum standard, J-M has developed an attic insulation that can be added to existing insulation. The 5" thick insulation has an "R" value of 14, and comes in 15" and 23" widths.

It's simply rolled out between attic floor joists, an easy job for most homeowners to do themselves.

Johns-Manville also offers a complete line of fiber glass insulations from 3½" thick (R-11) to 8½" thick (R-30).

Unlike competitive insulations, Johns-Manville insulation is compression packed in heavy-duty kraft bags that make it easy to fit more insulation in a car or truck when bringing it home from the store or lumber yard.

And with the bulk minimized, it's easier to carry and install.

After the attic job is completed and budget allows, insulate the walls. In an existing house, an applicator with special equipment is usually required to blow insulation into the wall cavities.

Fire safety checklist for every family home

Behind nearly every injury or death in a dwelling fire is the fact that the family was totally unprepared for a fire emergency, says the head of the National Fire Protection Association (NFPA).

"Our studies show that the great majority of the 6,500 lives lost due to fire in homes last year were needless tragedies — tragedies which occurred because members of the household failed to preplan and practice escape measures," points out NFPA President Charles S. Morgan.

"The first rule of safety from fire is escape: get everyone out at the very first sign of smoke or flame. Advance thinking and rehearsing now, before there is an emergency, may well save lives."

Here are some pointers from the NFPA president to help the family prepare for a home fire:

- Carefully figure out at least two routes to the outside from every room in the house, especially bedrooms. Allow for blocking of stairways and halls by fire and choking smoke.
- Make it a rule for everyone to sleep with bedroom doors closed. In case of fire, the doors will hold back flame, heat and smoke, allowing occupants of the bedroom extra time to escape by an alternate route.
- A window may be the only alternate escape route from an upper floor of the house. Be sure exit windows work easily, and are large and low enough to get through.

Use any available porch, shed and garage roofs as ways down to safety. If needed, install an escape ladder. Assign children to bedrooms with easy rooftop escape.

- Pick an assembly point well away from the house where all members of the household will meet for "roll call," and be sure everyone understands that the house must not be reentered for any purpose.

Let cool air come right in through walls

Why swelter through another summer?

If you've been putting off whole house air conditioning for financial reasons, why not consider air conditioning only the parts of the house where you spend most of your time?

With built-in room air conditioning, you can have cooling comfort in your living room, family room, bedroom or kitchen — wherever you want it — without losing the benefit of a window you can open on those mild days when you need neither heating nor air conditioning.

For instance, the General Electric Company offers 13 models which can be mounted through the wall, ranging from a 6,000-BTUH Thinline™ model for a small bedroom or den to a 24,000-BTUH Superthrust™ unit, capable of cooling several large, adjoining rooms.

Eight of these air conditioners are high-efficiency models.

I NEVER KNEW I HAD HEART

I never had a Yamaha Electone Organ before.

My husband recently bought one for himself.

He said, "In times like these, I'm investing in the only sure thing I know of.

"Myself."

Now I know what he meant.

A Yamaha Electone is a control center for your soul, for all your feelings and moods.

And it makes it simple to do not so simple things.

It automatically gives you a whole rhythm and chordal and bass accompaniment just by using one finger.

I also like using Yamaha Auto Rhythms, which give you a bunch of beats to play with.

I only have a small Yamaha, but it does all of what I mentioned and other things too.

Obviously, I'm no budding virtuoso at my age.

But I do have heart.

Floors and walls offer challenges!

Both solid vinyl and the less costly but no less attractive vinyl asbestos flooring are available in a variety of colors and textures never seen before, says the National Home Improvement Council.

These include simulated brick, slate and marble as well as many other unique designs. And self-adherent tiles that offer real ease of installation are also available.

Wood flooring comes in random-length strips and in parquet blocks in the same sizes as resilient floor tiles (9" x 9" and 12" x 12").

Only a few short years ago, the remodeling homeowner contemplating a change of walls had an easy decision: plaster or plaster board.

Now, in addition to the new colorful lightweight plywood panels, he can choose from a variety of other new products—metal and hardboard and even plastic and glass fiber panels.

Prefinished hardwood, plywood, cement board, stained lumber, ornamental tiles, marble, glass and masonry!

In addition, supported and unsupported vinyl coverings for unfinished walls, peel-and-stick plastics and pre-pasted papers are available.

For a colonial touch for windows, ornamental shutters have all the authentic charm of early-day designs with none of the inconvenience of installation and maintenance.

In a choice of vinyl or aluminum, they come ready to hang, and can be installed in a short time.

AN EASY WAY to change the personality of a room is by having several sets of light bulbs in colors which can be changed to match your mood or decorative theme. Available in Tru-White, clear, yellow, chrome, coppertone, gold, transparent red, black, smoke, green, blue, purple, amber and other colors, these Globelite bulbs by Duro-Lite also come in five sizes and wattages ranging from 25 to 300. They're available at hardware, electrical supply, department and specialty stores.

Sheets are off and 'in'

Sheets have come from the days of a linen closet necessity to one of the hottest and most fashionable items in the retail market!

Sheets are in. There are now designer sheets, washable satin sheets, sheets with museum print reproductions, round sheets, waterbed sheets, even heart-shaped sheets!

With such a sheet boom in progress, it's only natural that decorators and designers everywhere are coming up with hundreds of unique ideas for taking the sheet off the bed and putting it into the total decor of the home.

Sheets can be purchased in mix and match styles and colors for pillow covers — especially popular are the large, overstuffed floor pillows scattered around a room.

The only limit is your own creativity!

Stepladders: stepping up safely

You can't climb very high on a stepladder, but you can still get hurt if you don't follow these stepladder safety rules:

- Always open the ladder wide enough so that the spreader locks itself in the open position.
- Never stand on top of a stepladder; use a ladder tall enough to let you stand at least two steps from its top.
- Always make sure that the feet are on a firm, level foundation.
- Never lean a stepladder against a wall and use it as a straight ladder.
- Don't overreach. Move the ladder.
- Never use a defective ladder. Never patch up a ladder with wire or makeshift steps.

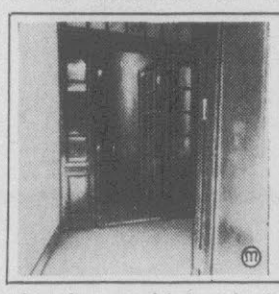
OLD WORLD CHARM is the striking effect the new entranceway brings to this remodeled building. The beauty of hand-beveled leaded glass, now available in single or double doors from Pease Ever-Strait permits tenants a charming way to welcome guests, while two steel facings laminated together give much needed protection from intruders.

Old world charm in safe double doors

Today's city dweller is concerned about the safety of his building, and that safety starts at the entranceway.

But city dwellers want their entranceway to also be as attractive as possible — a welcoming sight for guests.

The owner of one New York City apartment building recently got the tenants' unanimous vote when he remodeled and installed a Pease Ever-Strait door system.



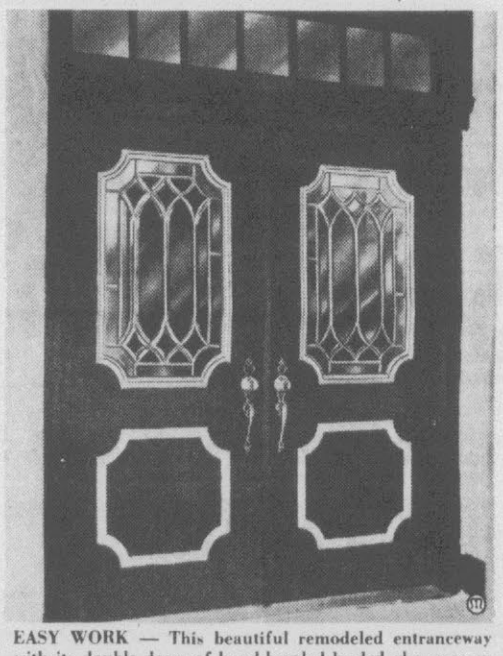
BEFORE: Tenants of a city building were delighted when the owner remodeled, removing the ugly, drab, and uninviting doors shown here. In their place the owner installed the new double-door Pease Ever-Strait door system — a complete unit ready for relatively simple installation.

The old doors of wood with glass panes were removed and the new remodeling door unit was easily installed. No need for expensive alterations, since the Pease Ever-Strait door system provides the full unit.

With 32 patterns and styles to choose from, the owner of the building had no worry about finding a door that would match the style he had in mind.

The construction of the doors creates warp–and swell-free characteristics for durability, and external and internal steel facings, laminated to an insulation core of polystyrene, "thermal break," makes the door weather resistant.

The new entranceway now sports double doors with hand-beveled leaded glass that brings an old world charm to the entrance.



EASY WORK — This beautiful remodeled entranceway with its double doors of hand-beveled leaded glass was an easy and neat job to finish thanks to the Pease Ever-Strait door systems. The Ever-Strait doors are warp-free. They are designed as a unit to replace existing door systems. The package includes all jambs, hinges, installation instruction — everything right down to the nails!

Self-cleaning is not energy waste

Electric ranges with the Self-Cleaning oven feature have often been accused of being wasteful of energy.

But the facts are that such ranges use no more electricity than do conventional ranges that must be sprayed, foamed, scrubbed and scoured by hand. And because it takes only 30 seconds to set the Self-Clean controls, they save hours of the homemaker's time over the course of a year.

According to General Electric Company, which developed the Self-Cleaning oven feature in the early '60s, it costs about 15c for the oven to clean itself. That is the present national average cost of the approximately 4 kilowatts-hours of electricity used by the range during the cleaning process.

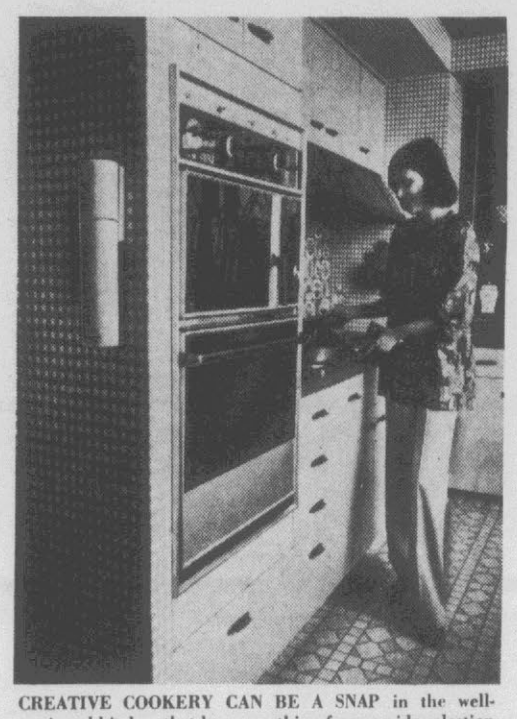
However, because of the special insulation system used in GE Self-Cleaning ranges, they actually use about 15 per cent less energy during normal baking and roasting than do less well insulated conventional ovens. So the energy saved while cooking normally balances the energy used in cleaning.

Depending on the frequency of oven use, and oven cleaning, the Self-Cleaning oven feature can even provide operating savings.

But even if it did cost 15c extra to clean the oven, GE points out, that is still far less than the cost of aerosol, paste and foam cleaning agents which are offered to help the homemaker with the messy, elbow-scraping chore of removing burnt-on spills and splatter.

With all its advantages, one might easily assume that a Self-Cleaning oven is expensive to buy. Not so.

General Electric now is offering a model (JBP21) with a manufacturer's suggested retail price of only $299.95, less than a consumer would have paid for a GE range with that special feature when it was first introduced in 1963.



CREATIVE COOKERY CAN BE A SNAP in the well-equipped kitchen that has everything from a wide selection of paring, chopping or butcher knives to a time-saving microwave oven. But no kitchen is ever complete without a reliable fire extinguisher, according to home safety experts at Gillette. For example, the Captain Kelly Dry Chemical Fire Extinguisher, attractively designed to fit any decor, works with push-button ease to fight common household fires, including grease, oil, gasoline and electrical fires.

Problem solver — air conditioners that heat

Adding a room to fit your family's changed living or recreational needs?

Many homeowners are — and most find themselves faced with the problem of such additional space overtaxing their present heating and/or cooling systems.

The solution is relatively simple: plan the room addition to include a built-in air conditioner which can both heat and cool, so you can be assured year-round comfort in the new room without affecting the rest of the home.

One manufacturer, Hotpoint, offers four heat/cool models with capacities ranging from 8,200- to 18,000-BTUH for cooling and from 3,700- to 13,200-BTUH for heating.

These heating/cooling capacities are adequate for rooms ranging from approximately 360- to 1,100-square feet, depending on extremes in exposure, shading, insulation, and building construction. (Metric equivalents: approximately 33.4- to 102.2-square meters.)

The smallest unit, the Deluxe Heat/Cool, operates on 115 volts, so no special wiring is required. It can be plugged into any properly grounded electrical outlets you'll install in the new room.

This two-speed model has a 10-position thermostat and four-way adjustable air direction.

The three Heritage II Heat/Cool models operate on either 230 or 208 volts and feature fine furniture styling with a hinged front panel concealing the controls.

They are two-speed models with eight thermostat positions, and four-way adjustable air direction.

All four models are designed to fit standard window sizes, and are also suitable for through-the-wall installation.

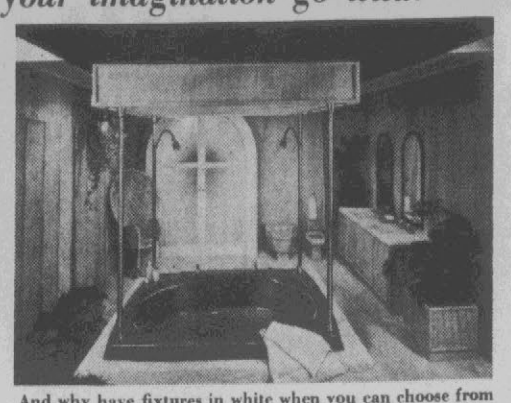
Remodeling your bathroom is a matter of making the best use of the newest colors, products and convenience features available, says Kohler Co., a leading plumbingware manufacturer. Or a luxurious 5½ by 7 foot fiberglass bathing oval called "The Bath," with twin faucets and twin showers?



And why have fixtures in white when you can choose from such colors as subtle Parchment, bubbly Pink Champagne, bold Antique Red, elegant Black Black or 11 others? To end the morning traffic jam in the bath, why not install convenient side-by-side lavatories. And for complete family hygiene, select a Caravelle bidet to complement your stylish, low silhouette toilet. Fix before you freeze!

To paraphrase an old saying, "Don't put off until cold weather what you can do today!" Applied to maintenance of your household heating system, this timely recommendation comes from the President of the National Fire Protection Association.

"Now, before cold weather sets in, is the best time to have your home's heating system, individual room heaters and all portable heating appliances cleaned and put in good working order," advises NFPA President Charles S. Morgan.

"Then, if repairs or replacements are needed, you'll have time to get everything into top notch shape before the first cold snap."

CUT FUEL COSTS THIS WINTER with the Water Heater Insulation Kit from Johns-Manville. Because under-insulated water heaters are among the biggest fuel wasters in most homes, the special J-M fiber glass insulation is critical for containing precious heat. It's simply wrapped around the water heater in minutes, and installation requires no special tools or expertise. The J-M insulation quickly pays for itself in fuel savings.

More efficiency saves more fuel

But since it's difficult to suddenly sacrifice our free-wheeling fuel consumption, the Energy Research and Development Administration (E.R.D.A.) is seeking another alternative.

The target of their conservation program is the increase of technology to improve the efficiency of the things Americans use.

Homeowners can play an important role in this program by better utilizing something found in almost every basement — the water heater.

If 20 million homes install water heater insulation, E.R.D.A. estimates that 44 million barrels of fuel can be saved by 1985. The insulation is available in a kit from Johns-Manville, a leading manufacturer of thermal insulations.

Since under-insulated water heaters rank only behind uninsulated attics as the biggest fuel waster in most homes, much is at stake if this precious fuel continues to escape.

When the water heater is wrapped with the special Johns-Manville fiber glass insulation, heat is contained. This promising new concept in energy conservation quickly pays for itself in fuel savings.

Simply and quickly installed by measuring the water heater dimensions, cutting the insulation and taping the tabs, the Water Heater Insulation Kit includes all necessary materials in one box.

No special tools or expertise are required. And the J-M insulation is U.L. listed for fire safety.

To find out more about the Water Heater Insulation Kit, write to Johns-Manville, Box 5705RP, Greenwood Plaza, Denver, Colo. 80217.

Liberated cooks will love freedom found in compact portable oven

The easy way to update the cooking facilities in your kitchen is to add a Turbo-Oven, make it your first, second or only oven.

Due to its compact size, weight and swinging door, it can fit on a kitchen counter, on a shelf above the counter or on a cart that can be moved back and forth from family room to the kitchen.

To operate, it needs at least four inches of free air space on each side and at least eight inches above the louvers found on the top surface.

It operates on an economical 1500 watts so it needs no special household wiring; nor does it require special cooking utensils.

With the Farberware Turbo-Oven it is possible to cook foods faster and better while using less energy. It roasts meat in two-thirds the time, broils with no turning necessary and bakes picture perfect food.

It works by continuously recycling heated air. Among its features are a removable tempered glass door for full visibility and easy cleaning, a stay-clean coating which continuously cleans itself during normal cooking. Plus a four hour timer programmed to shut off the oven while signaling that the food is ready.

For a demonstration, visit the housewares department in your large department store.

GET OUT OF THE KITCHEN! No matter how creative a chef one might be, no one likes to waste unnecessary time in the kitchen. There is a way, however, to update your kitchen facilities and give you some more time to yourself. The portable Turbo-Oven makes cooking a breeze — it bakes, broils and roasts to perfection, uses very little energy, cleans itself, and has an automatic timer. It's the latest answer to cook's liberation!

Give your family a breather with a breezy room for fun

As summer approaches, you'll want a room where everyone feels free to kick off his shoes, curl up on a sofa and relax over a cooling drink and casual conversation.

To invite a free flow of sociability, create one room in your home that's not off limits to children, or even four-footed creatures great and small.

If this room already exists in your home and you've just been procrastinating fixing it over, don't delay further.

Beat the heat and plan your remodeling job with an eye on economics and simple decor additions. Using economical do-it-yourself home improvement materials such as GAF Sure-Stik tile, with an adhesive-backing already on them, will make the project a lot easier. An average room may be refloored for under $30.

If you select the new pattern "Bakuba" in a family room, coordinate its African motif elsewhere, such as with complementary wall paneling and bamboo blinds.

The nicest part of all these additions is they subtract from the final work load of housecleaning — the GAF floor is stain-resistant and wipes clean with a damp mop, while laminated furniture and wall surfaces are wipe-cleanable, too.

IT'S POSSIBLE TO CREATE this breezy environment for your family by using simple decorating ideas and do-it-yourself materials. An African motif in the adhesive-backed GAF Sure-Stik floor tiles is coordinated with bamboo window shades, wall paneling and a jungle of greens. Grouping furniture creates greater floor area so the room feels more spacious. All is wipe-cleanable, from the durable GAF tiles up!

PERFECT BEDSIDE COMPANIONS, vinyl wallcoverings from United DeSoto's Romantic Bedrooms collection wrap a plain room in spring bouquets. Color dances on walls and ceiling with selection of "Guinivere" as main pattern. "Lady in Waiting" repeats the floral pattern in striped miniature to emphasize architectural detailing of moldings and window alcove.

'Bedroom blues' may be cured with decorating

"Bedroom blues" may be to blame if you often get out of the wrong side of bed. Colors and patterns can have a strong, often subconscious effect on moods.

While most people find blue a restful and calming color, other people find it too cold and depressing for bedroom decor.

Start with a basic color you like, and develop a total color scheme for the room with harmonizing and contrasting color accents.

Complete "WARDROBE FOR YOUR WALLS" decorating ideas, with instructions for measuring and hanging wallcoverings, are in a new booklet available for 50 cents from United DeSoto, 3101 South Kedzie Avenue, Chicago, Illinois 60623.

Home security systems are a sound investment

According to the National Home Improvement Council, security systems for the home continue to enjoy popularity among the nation's homeowners.

Some excellent crime and fire deterrent security systems have been developed and are currently doing a brisk business on the market.

Generally smaller than the average stereo component, these units include provision for both fire and burglar alarms tied in with a local central station.

When the system detects an intrusion or smoke, it immediately relays a signal to the station from which security personnel notify police or fire departments.

The system is prevented from disrupting normal family activity by a personal code tapped out on a series of keys.

Another more elaborate system actually senses the presence of intruders by means of ultrasonic waves. This same system can also detect when secured doors and windows are opened.

TUB SAFETY

The Consumer Product Safety Commission reports that more than 75 percent of all bathtub-shower fatalities were children under five years of age who were not supervised while bathing.

NO CHEMISTRY

Do not mix household cleaning products! When blended, even cleaners that are harmless when used as directed may give off noxious gases (this is particularly true of solutions containing bleach.)

Black glass wall oven is both pretty and practical

Built-in wall ovens can add a lot of class and convenience to the remodeled kitchen, especially if they have full black glass doors and are completely Self-Cleaning.

But doesn't the Self-Cleaning feature add to the energy use compared with conventional models? No, says Hotpoint.

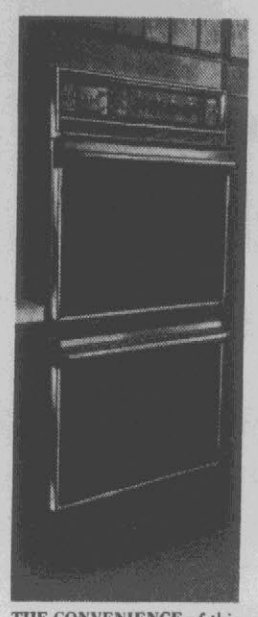
Their engineers point out that the thermal design of Hotpoint Self-Cleaning ovens is better than that used in its conventional ovens, so it reduces the energy requirements during normal baking and roasting.

Operation of the Hotpoint Self-Cleaning oven feature, on the average, uses 4.3 kilowatts of electricity per cleaning. Based on a national average of 3.4 cents per kw, it would cost about 15 cents to clean the oven automatically.

Moreover, the Hotpoint engineers note that a Self-Cleaning oven costs no more to operate, on the average, than a conventional oven that must be cleaned manually, because the cost of operating the Self-Cleaning feature is offset by the savings during normal oven use for baking and roasting.

And since black glass is an increasingly popular counterpoint to white appliances and decor in the kitchen, according to Hotpoint kitchen planners, the remodeled kitchen can be all the more distinctive.

Single- or double-oven built-in models are available, and they also have black glass control panels, helping to give your kitchen additional style . . . and you'll have the convenience of no more ovens to clean manually.



THE CONVENIENCE of this built-in wall oven with a Self-Cleaning feature has the added attraction of full black glass doors. Hotpoint engineers note that a Self-Cleaning oven costs no more to operate, on the average, than a conventional oven.

Versatile is the word for this workshop-in-a-case. Mr., Mrs. or Ms. Fix-it will find 101-and-more uses for the Mini-Shop in home improvement, repair, craft and hobby projects.

The 46-piece kit consists of a lightweight, 115-volt powered hand unit and an assortment of attachments, easily and securely inserted to perform a practically endless variety of operations.

You can sand and smooth; carve, cut or rout wood, plastics and metals; grind and sharpen; clean and polish; shape and saw; and drill.

You can go from one operation to another in seconds — just the time it takes to change attachments.

For example, select and insert the brush wire disc to remove rust or dirt from garden tools.

The felt polishing wheel with common metal polish will put a super-shine on silverware. The abrasive bands are well suited for rough-shaping wood, smoothing fiberglass, sculpturing and sanding.

With the emery cut-off wheel, you can cut almost any material such as plexiglass, fiberglass and tubing.

THE MINI-SHOP KIT is a precision power tool with a high speed motor unit that does all the work for you.

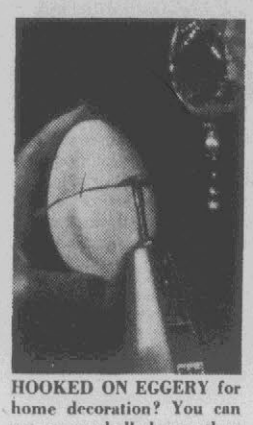
The grinding wheels and points are particularly handy in the workshop. There are seven different types for use with metals.

You can grind rivets, remove metal burrs, countersink holes and remove nail heads. Or give a broken or worn screwdriver tip new life by reshaping it.

The Mini-Shop is one of the most versatile tools available. Used correctly, it can perform all kinds of jobs and give you years of satisfaction.

Careless use, as with any power tool, can lead to trouble. When you pick up your new kit at the hardware store, step #1 is to read the general use rules in the manual.

PUT A KEEN EDGE on garden shears, knives, scissors, chisels, hatchets, and even your lawn mower blades.



HOOKED ON EGGERY for home decoration? You can cut an eggshell cleaner than a knife does butter.

Cut costs by pushing a button!

Each family member can give an assist in energy management in a variety of ways, but one of the easiest is accomplished by merely pushing a button on the dishwasher.

That button tells the dishwasher not to use electricity to dry the dishes, thus letting the contents dry with only the retained heat from the washing and rinsing cycles.

This natural drying is made possible by a cycle which the user can preselect on six models of Hotpoint's built-in and portable dishwashers.

So when you aren't in a hurry for your dishes, such as overnight or when everyone is leaving for work or school, selecting the "Power Saver Dry" option can be a real contribution to energy saving.

Moreover, all Hotpoint dishwashers offer an energy- and water-saving Short Wash cycle which is ideal for lightly soiled loads.

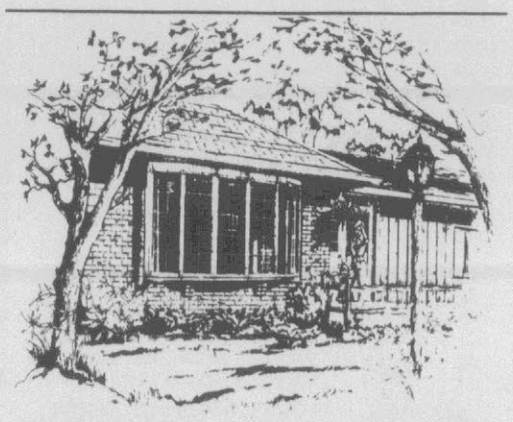
And all but one model also has the Power Saver cycle, so the combination of the two energy-saving features really gives the family a helping hand toward effective energy management in the home.

PLANTS!

Fifty percent of common garden plants, as well as many wild plants, are poisonous. A single bite of certain mushrooms can be fatal. Caution children never to taste any part of any plant.

KID STUFF

Teach your children that electrical appliances, lights, outlets and cords are not playthings. The best teaching method by far is to let them learn by your good example.



A ROOM ADDITION can go a long way towards easing overcrowding. To keep heating costs within reason, be sure to provide for energy conservation. This handsome Andersen Perma-Shield bow window affords plenty of viewing area while the double-pane insulating glass and factory-applied weatherstripping guard against excessive heat loss.

Adding a room? Careful planning can save fuel

With heating and cooling costs up sharply, energy conservation in a home environment project has become nearly as important as additional living space.

Suppose, for example, you're thinking of adding a bedroom to a home that faces south. Should you place the addition at the east end or the west end?

In the warmer climate of the South, it's best to position the new bedroom at the east end where it will receive the morning sun. At the west end, the bedroom would receive the warm afternoon sun, making it harder to cool at night.

In colder areas of the North, it might be best to place the bedroom at the west end to take advantage of the heat gain from the low winter sun.

Andersen Corporation, a leading manufacturer of Perma-Shield windows and gliding doors, points out, however, that proper orientation should not be considered an alternative to good window design and workmanship.

When planning windows for any home improvement, remember that considerable heat loss can occur through and around loose-fitting windows. With factory-engineered windows glazed with double-pane insulating glass and factory-applied weatherstripping, heat loss from both conduction and air infiltration can be reduced significantly, with resultant lower fuel bills, compared with units of lesser quality.

Double-pane insulating glass achieves approximately the same effect as tight-fitting storm sash over single-glazed windows without the bother. It is available in all Andersen Perma-Shield windows and gliding doors. Preservative-treated wood, a natural insulator, is used as the core for the sash and frame in Perma-Shield units. The wood is encased in tough, rigid vinyl for long life and low maintenance.

With energy costs increasing daily, home heating and cooling bills are rapidly escalating.

"With all that bad news, it's refreshing to know that many homeowners can save up to 30% on utility bills by insulating between the joists on the attic floor," notes Sharon Kay Ritchie, Director of the Home Institute for Certain-teed Corporation, Valley Forge, Pa. "That's a significant amount of money.

"In addition to the economic advantages to individual homeowners, the national impact of each person's insulating his home is staggering," Miss Ritchie reports.

"There are about 40 million homes today which have little or no insulation at all. Just bringing these existing homes up to the National Bureau of Standards would save the equivalent of 600,000 barrels of oil daily during the heating season. Additional savings are gained with summer cooling, too."

To put that into perspective, 1,000 barrels of oil will run the city of Baltimore for about 10 minutes. One million barrels will supply all the energy needs for California for about 8 hours.

The minimum level now recommended for most homes is R-30, which is equal to 9½ inches of fiber glass batt insulation on the attic floor. That can easily be achieved by installing 6-inch batts of fiber glass insulation between the joists on the attic floor and then laying 3½ inch batts across the joists. "R" is the measure of the insulation's ability to resist heat flowing through it. The higher the R-value, the better the insulation.

For more information on how much insulation you need in your locale to save the most money on your utility bills, write to the Certain-teed Home Institute, P.O. Box 860, Valley Forge, Pa. 19482. Ask for the free booklet "Insulating for Maximum Economic Return."

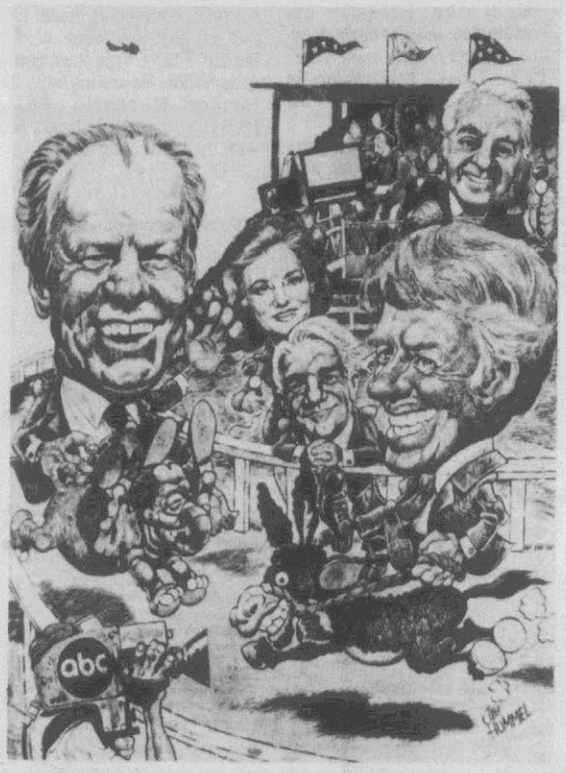
Final Presidential Debate Airs Friday On All Networks



BIG EVENT — The Presidential Candidates Debates — Pres. Ford and Jimmy Carter meet head-on in the third and final nationally televised debate sponsored by the Women League of Voters Friday, Oct. 22, (9:30-11 p.m.) on ABC-TV, CBS-TV, and NBC-TV.

The peaceful, tree-shaded campus of the College of William and Mary is anything but peaceful and quiet this week - especially the area around the Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall, sight of the third and final debate between President Gerald R. Ford and Jimmy Carter. The debate, which will be on general topics, will air Friday, Oct. 22, at 9:30 p.m. on all major networks.

The stage set will be decorated as the Philadelphia and San Francisco debate sites, with a dark blue background and twin lecturns about eight feet apart.

NBC-TV will handle the pool broadcasting, and crews are slated to arrive Oct. 20 to set up the stage, lighting and cameras.

Although the hall is large, seats will be at a premium with stage arrangements expected to call for at least 300 or 400 seats, while the press is expected to need another 200. The remaining seats, which will be 200 at the most, will be assigned by the local League of Women Voters, according to a college spokesman.

Headquarters for the 900 to 1,000 press personnel expected to cover the debate have been established at the Colonial Williamsburg Conference Center. Colonial Williamsburg is also coordinating requests for hotel reservations, which may well be an almost impossible task: this is Parent's Weekend at the college, and many of the area motels are already solidly booked.

On Dec. 5, 1776, five students gathered at Raleigh Tavern and founded a secret society that would evolve into the most prestigious college honorary society in the United States.

The hall was built in 1957, commemorating the founding of this society, Phi Beta Kappa. It replaced another building dedicated to the Greek letter scholastic honor society which burned. The society's Alpha chapter is located at William and Mary.

In a statement issued immediately after the decision on the Virginia location for the debate was announced, the college's President, Dr. Thomas A. Graves, noted: "We are delighted to make available for this purpose Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall in the year that Alpha Chapter celebrates its 200 anniversary."

Everybody's happy with the site of the debate. Everybody, that is, except the ghosts of Gilbert and Sullivan - one of their operettas was slated to be performed in the hall the night of Oct. 22. But this duo will have to make way for a less melodic two-some, Ford and Carter.

Charlie Is Compassionate

To Charlie Brown, "in all this world there is nothing more upsetting than the clobbering of a cherished belief."

As a little fellow who has been clobbered from all sides — for his beliefs in just about everything from a Christmas tree with meaning to becoming a baseball hero - poor Charlie is the most compassionate Peanut in the famous package of Charles M. Schulz's cartoon characters.

Because of this emphatic streak in his complex little personality, Charlie Brown tries not to shatter Linus' belief in the Great Pumpkin when the blanket - toting member of the Peanuts clan awaits the appearance of the legendary Halloween visitor in "It's the Great Pumpkin, Charlie Brown," animated special to be rebroadcast Saturday, Oct. 23, 8 to 8:30 p.m., on CBS Channel 9-11.

Charlie's comprehension of his pal's devotion to this rather uncommon tradition of shivering in the "most sincere" pumpkin patch, while waiting for the elusive vision to appear with "toys for all the good little children of the world," is not shared by the other Peanuts.

Snoopy thinks the whole Great Pumpkin idea is hilarious, although the braggart beagle sees nothing funny about his own flight into fantasy, costumed as a World War I flying ace carrying out an imaginary raid against the Red Baron from atop his doghouse.

Charlie's ghost costume makes him look more like a peeled potato than a phantom. He gets rocks in his shopping bag, when all the other Peanuts get treats. And, to top it all off, when he tries to console Linus by admitting that he's done some "stupid" things, too, Linus gets mad at him for his choice of words.

But, after all, that's life, Charlie Brown.

KEEPING ON TOP OF HALLOWEEN, Snoopy, who is pumpkin-prone in his own special way, bungles through a beagle dream of World War I flying acemanship, on "It's the Great Pumpkin, Charlie Brown," animated Peanuts special to be rebroadcast Saturday, Oct. 23 (8-8:30 p.m.) on CBS Channels 3N-9-11.

World Series

Every year in the month of October approximately half the listening, reading and viewping population of the United States is infected with the fever of baseball; a condition which has been adequately stimulated through the regular 162-game season, and the best of five playoffs between each league's two divisional winners.

The end result pits the American League and National League pennant winners against each other in a best-of-seven series which is baseball's greatest show — the World Series.

Other championship events may be older, like the U. S. Open or the Kentucky Derby, and still others — like the Indianapolis 500 — may draw more fans on a single day. Yet, the World Series with its best of seven format, as established in 1902, has drawn more people and more money than any other sports playoff in the world.

The 1976 World series, if it goes the full seven games, will be watched by an estimated 115,000,000 different television viewers. This also marks the 30th consecutive year of coverage by NBC-TV which pioneered the first World Series telecast in 1947.

Joe Garagiola and Tony Kubek, both former World Series performers and veteran World Series broadcasters, will be in the announcer's booth with announcer representatives from the league champions.

"In my two careers — ballplayer and broadcaster — the World Series has provided me with my greatest thrills," said Garagiola, who played in his only Fall Classic as a 20-year-old rookie catcher with the St. Louis Cardinals against the Boston Red Sox in 1946.

Baseball analyst Tony Kubeck, who played in six World Series with the New York Yankees, says: "The World Series is unmatched in sports for sustained pressure on the field and in the broadcast booth. In my book, the pressure that builds from game to game makes the commentary of the World Series the best of the year."

Wins Top Ratings

ABC-TV took home the bacon in the ratings of the beginning of the new 1976-'77 season, with specials and blockbuster movies carrying the major load of each network's first efforts. NBC came in second and CBS finished third. Four nights of premiere week were won by ABC (Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Sunday), with NBC grabbing the remaining three. Where does that leaves CBS? Frantic, that's where.

There's no such thing as a 'typical' week at this time of the TV year, and this Fall is no exception, with 40 percent of the week's programming (52 half-hours) being occupied by specials or programs not airing in their proper timeslot — much of the latter caused by the Ford-Carter debates which are further complicating an already convoluted lineup.

To absolutely no one's surprise, "Happy Days" walked away as the winner in the series race, followed by "Bionic Woman," "All in the Family," "Rich Man, Poor Man," "Charies's Angels," "M*A*S*H," "Six Million Dollar Man," "Baretta," "Sanford and Son" and "The Captain and Tennille."

The only ABC series to run disappointing races are "Cos" and "Holmes and Yoyo." "Executive Suite" ran ahead of the others wearing the CBS colors, but even it ran a poor race, while "Ball Four" and "All's Fair" trailed behind.

'Meet The Press' Continues To Inform

From the start, NBC-TV's "Meet the Press" has been television's most authoritative and influential public affairs program, bringing its audience a continuing roster of prominent people discussing significant issues of the day. Five presidents — Hoover, Kennedy, Johnson, Nixon and Ford — have appeared on the program at various times in their political careers.

The roster of guests have included poets as well as kings, scientists as well as politicians, labor leaders and business tycoons. All had one thing in common: they were "in the news" at the time of their appearance.

Occasionally the program comes from New York or from 'remote' locations in other American cities which are the sites for annual Mayors' or 'Governors' Conferences. This Sunday, Oct. 17, there will be a special 90-minute segment beginning at 11 a.m. featuring the presidential and vice presidential candidates as guests.

Credit for the longevity of "Meet the Press" has been attributed to the fact that it has kept the same basic news-conference format: a guest of national or international prominence is questioned by a panel of four newsmen.

In addition to establishing a reputation for making front page news more frequently than any other show in the history of broadcasting, "Meet the Press" has been responsible for a number of 'news beats.' It has also won virtually every major award given to television programs.

Moderator and executive producer of the show is Bill Monroe. Prior to his joining "Meet the Press," his Washington interviews and by-line reports helped make NBC-TV's "Today" gain rapidly in popularity. Just before his departure from "Today," a survey showed that the program was watched more often than any other by government people.

A 1972 Peabody Award for excellence in news reporting to Monroe documented what the nation's officials and lawmakers had known for a long time — that his interviews made news.

While attending Tulane University, he began his news career with United Press International. He graduated Phi Beta Kappa in 1942 and, after serving three years in the Army Air Corps, he returned to New Orleans. He spent four years in radio news with WNOE, five years as associate editor of the New Orleans Item, and was the news director of WDSU-TV for six years. Monroe joined NBC News in 1961 as Washington Bureau chief.

Nurse Serves Athletes, Families

Florrie Segelman, R.N., heard her share of pained gasps from college athletes when she tended to the bumps and breaks of big bruisers during her five-year stint as the UCLA team nurse. But now, a lot of people are breathing easier because of Florrie.

Mrs. Segelman now educates parents - to - be in the Lamaze method of natural childbirth and served as technical advisor on "The ABC Sunday Night Movie" presentation, "Having Babies," which airs Oct. 17, 9 to 11 p.m., on Channel 3-5-12. And as Florrie explains: "The Lamaze method is basically a conditioning method using breathing techniques and relaxation and concentration techniques."

Mrs. Segelman has had her own two children by the method she advocates.

"Because of my nursing experience," she says, "I had seen too many women in pain and I wanted my baby born without that."

While there are other techniques of natural childbirth, there is only one Lamaze method, according to Mrs. Segelman, which is sponsored by the American Society for Psycho - Prophylaxis in Obstetrics.

She points out that the method has been in use in the United States since 1958. "Where formerly there was much resistence to the techniques, many hospitals now will take patients who are using the method."

Women are also under the care of physicians, she says, and parents - to - be attend classes one night a week. Couples then practice once a day together at home and once alone. The husband learns what labor is about and how to support his wife both physically and emotionally.

"The main positive," according to Mrs. Segelman, "is in allowing the woman to go through a very difficult time able to control her body with dignity. And it gives a man a chance to get as close as he can to giving birth himself."

Mrs. Segelman emphasizes that women are taught total relaxation. "When you are afraid, you tense up and experience pain. In the classes we strive to avoid this. Pain is not eliminated but you can cope with it."

She also points out that the Lamaze method by no means eliminates medication or anesthesia.

About her years as the UCLA team nurse and her association with trainer Ducky Drake, now retired, Mrs. Segelman has fond memories. Some of the men she treated have since become parents, and some of these men and their wives have adopted the Lamaze method.

When asked what she treated mainly during those UCLA years, she smilingly says, "A lot of broken hearts."

'Quincy' Is A Pathologist

When Lt. Columbo arrives at the scene of a slaying, he usually asks a gentleman hovering over the body, "Okay doc, what've we got?"

The actor who responds portrays a qualified physician trained in forensic pathology. Detective series usually don't dwell on that apsect of the homicide, but this season, there is a program which does just that.

"Quincy," starring Jack Klugman in the title role of a forensic pathologist, is telecast Sundays, 9:30 to 11 p.m., on "NBC Sunday Mystery Movie."

A forensic pathologist is a doctor who has trained for one years as a medical examiner in the office of a coroner. Upon completion of the training, the doctor receives a certificate of qualification to do autopsies on accident or homicide victims to determine the cause of death and in some cases, the identity of the person.

Dealing in crime is what sets the forensic pathologist apart from other doctors. He invetigates various aspects of the cause of death — patterns of wounds, poisoning, ballistics — in a way that regular physicians don't learn to do in medical school, according to Dr. Victor Rosen, technical advisor on "Quincy."

"But also, a medical examiner is a law officer and has the power to go out and investigate," Rosen explained. "It is a limited specialty and dealing with the more gruesome side of death is not attractive."

On "Quincy," however, the presence of dry humor keeps the program from being 'dead' serious.

Noble Sails Through Life

"We're kidded a lot about sailing through life together," says Trisha Noble, pretty Australian actress who's just beginning to learn the fine points of seamanship from her new husband. She's found it a great way to relax from the hard life she leads — on film — in the new continuing dramatic series, "Executive Suite," seen Mondays, 10 to 11 p.m., on CBS Channel 9-11.

In the series, she plays the sweetheart of a young executive whose promising career is cut short by Trisha's scandalous past.

"We all go through a lot in the show," Trisha says. But off screen, she says she couldn't be having more fun. She was recently married to Scott McKenzie, a top commercial model, who has introduced her to his favorite sport of sailing.

She's learning about the mysteries of winches, bowsprits, taking the helm, binnacles and sextants aboard the 41-foot ketch, Savage Lady, which they sail out of busy Marina del Rey in Los Angeles.

Miss Noble comes from a well known theatrical family Down Under - her father, Buster dePaul, is a comedian and eccentric dancer; her mother, Helen dePaul, a choreographer and producer.

"Before I met Scott, the most I knew about the ocean was flying over it," Trisha says. "He can take all kinds of weather but like it best on calm days. He doesn't even notice when it's choppy, but my stomach does."

Liked Being Sherlock

Since he was created 90 years ago by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, Sherlock Holmes has become the most famous fictional detective of all time.

A number of distinguished actors, including Basil Rathbone, John Barrymore, William Gillette and Peter Cushing, have portrayed him on the stage or screen.

So when Roger Moore took the title role in "Sherlock Holmes in New York," an NBC World Premiere film seen Monday, Oct. 18, 9 to 11 p.m. on Ch. 6-7-28, he scrupulously avoided imitating any past performances. "I do my own interpretation," he says simply.

"It's a funny, campy script so I've played it straight. But it was so much fun to do I hope I didn't ham it up."

In the screenplay by Alvin Sapinsley, Holmes rushes to New York when he learns that his longtime love — a famous actress — is in jeopardy. Then he discovers that the infamous Prof. Moriarity (played by John Huston) is not only behind that plot but has an even bigger one in mind: Stealing the world's gold supply.

At first Moore resisted playing Holmes, but after reading the script, which he found "funny and original," he decided to do it.

"It was great fun" he says. "I got to wear a number of different disguises and that appealed to me. But the disguises took forever to put on and take off. I suspect they work better in fiction than in reality."

First Family Votes

The telephone rang in the prerecording studio and a production assistant hurried over to Toni Tennille, who costars with husband Daryl Dragon in the new variety series, "The Captain & Tennille" (Seen Mondays, 8 to 9 p.m., on ABC-TV).

"Toni," she said, "the operator says it's the White House on the line."

"Oh, come on," Toni replied. But sure enough, it was the White House and President Gerald Ford.

The President told Toni that he had just returned from a Southern swing on the campaign trail and his first opportunity to relax had been spent watching "The Captain & Tennille."

The President said he had just wanted to congratulate Toni and the Captain on their series and to tell them how much the First Family had enjoyed their performance.

Then he said, "Just a second, Betty would like to speak to you," and he put Mrs. Ford on the line. Daryl joined in and the four talked for about ten minutes.

Daryl and Toni met the President and Mrs. Ford earlier this year when they were featured guest stars in a White House performance for the Queen of England.

Hotels Guests

You never know who'll drop into the "Not-So-Grand Hotel," especially on "The Sonny and Cher Show," guest starring Charo, and with special guest star Wayne Rogers, Sunday, Oct. 17, 8 to 9 p.m., on CBS Channel 3N-9-11.

Sonny and Cher sing duets of "Don't Go Breaking My Heart," "Never Fall in Love Again" and "Fooled Around and Fell in Love," Cher's solo is "Ain't Misbehavin'."

In comedy sketches, Cher, as Mother Goose, discloses the never-before-told truth about Litte Bo Peep (Charo), Pease Porridge Hot (Sonny and Rogers), and "What Little Girls Are Made Of" (Cher and Charo).

With "In the Beginning," Rogers and Ted Zeigler tell the story of the first bank. And Sonny and Charo play a distressed couple honeymooning in a house that has three rooms in three separate countries - complete with border guards at every door.

Where Stars Meet

John Ireland has returned to acting after a brief leave — during which he bought a restaurant and gained 20 pounds.

"I don't know why, but I've always wanted to own my own classy restaurant," said Ireland, who will guest - star on "Little House on the Prairie," Monday, Oct. 18, 8 to 9 p.m., on NBC Channel 6-7-28. "My place, called Ireland's, has been open a year now, and boy have I learned a lot."

He learned how to move very fast when, one hour before opening time, a chef threw the meat against the wall and tipped over the spaghetti, screaming "I go home."

"He actually quit and returned to Rome," recalls Ireland. "You should have seen the aprons flying that night as the rest of us tried to prepare the meals."

The restaurant, located in a posh section of Santa Barbara, Calif., caters to such clients as Loretta Young, Barbra Streisand, Burt Lancaster and "Little House" star Michael Landon.

John admits that the prices at Ireland's are pretty steep.

"I recently had a call from a man who asked, 'Is it very expensive there?' I said, 'fairly,' then he asked 'What should I wear?' and I told him that a recognized credit card would suffice."

NEW LEASE FOR "WHAT'S HAPPENING!"

ABC's four-part series, "What's Happening!," has been picked up for 13 additonal episodes. It is being readied for a network berth as early as November, although its exact date is contingent on the success of ABC's fall lineup.

Centering on a trio of black teenagers, the situation comedy was a success story from its premiere episode Aug. 5, never falling out of the top 10 during its short run.

Orlando Is Enthusiastic

TONY — Tony Orlando and Susan Lanier, a member of the show's new comedy troupe, appear in a sketch on "The Tony Orlando & Dawn Rainbow Hour," Tuesday, Oct. 19 (8-9 p.m.) on CBS Channels 3N-9-11.

Tony Orlando is bubbling with enthusiasm over the challenge of a new time slot (Tuesday 8 p.m., CBS Channel 3N-9-11), a spot he finds "really exciting because I love a good game . . . a good challenge. It's interesting CBS put us in that spot. It shows we do have strength."

Orlando, 30 last April, also has a new format for the show and a new name: "The Tony Orlando and Dawn Rainbow Hour."

"They put us up against 'The Fonz' ("Happy Days"), and we lead into 'M.A.S.H.' That also indicates what they think about our new show," he said.

And the format?

"Well, the network looked at it, I looked at it, and I like the changes. It wasn't really that bad. But we wanted a fresh look, so we added George Carlin and booked some of the major rock and top 40 groups."

Why the new name?

"The first reason is the word 'variety' - it's gotten stale. People hear a monotone . . . Joes X and the variety show, Joe Z, etc. We want a complete spectrum and spectrum equals rainbow. People ooh and aah when they see a rainbow. It's visual form. Using a rainbow will give us a more visual effect throughout the show.

"We see a shooting star rainbow that's merely used as an ingredient, even if for two seconds. 'Eyeball entertainment' implies a spectrum of music, comedy stars, and the rainbow becomes a meaningful word. 1976 people want their ears entertained, too, so that's why we'll make more use of a synthesizer. You see motion pictures into audiovisual more than ever before."

Orlando says he does not work hard on his comedy for the skits because "I'm not a comedian. I am a Puerto Rican singer. Freddie Prinze, my buddy, is the Puerto Rican comedian. I did find it difficult at the brginning, but not now. I simply go in as Tony, whether I'm starring in a show, acting in a skit or being a guest performer. We've had great comedians on the show, so why should I try to act like one?"

What are the new things viewers will see?

"We have one monologue, 'It's Time for George (Carlin),' and a bunch of new comics called 'Comedy Flahs.' And, Telma (Hopkins) is coming out front more. She is capable of being the new Carol Burnett. She's one of the strongest young female talents.

"I can't tell you how excited I am about the new innovations. That puts me on camera less, but one can overstay his welcome. People get tired of people after awhile, and this new talent is like a springboard into the rainbow. But, we have to execute it properly, so it's going to take hard work."

Mimieux Writes Script

If you can't find a good woman's part to play, write your own script. That's what Yvette Mimieux did.

The resourceful Miss Mimieux will be seen in the title role of "Hit Lady" on ABC-TV's "Tuesday Movie of the Week," Oct. 19 (11:30 p.m. on Ch. 3-5-12), in a screenplay authored by the blonde star.

"Interesting roles for men come along frequently," Yvette points out, "but ones for women, no. That's why I wrote this story."

Yvette's original title was "Counerpoint," which she believes describes her story.

"The character of Angela is multi-faceted," she says, "just as I think most people are. We behave very differently with some people than we do with others."

With her script completed, Yvette took it to producers Aaron Spelling and Leonard Goldberg who were intrigued with the idea of an attractive girl leading such a diametrically opposed double life.

In one life she is an artist with cultured tastes, in the other a hired killer for a syndicate. Spelling and Goldberg bought the script and signed Yvette to star.

"I can't express how much fun it was to act in something I had written," she says. "I never felt so comfortable in a part."

A smart girl in more ways than one, Yvette wrote a part that made her the only female in a cast with four men — Dack Rambo, Joseph Campanella, Clu Gulager and Keenan Wynn — and plays love scenes with two of them Rambo and Campanella.

She also included directions for an eye-filling wardrobe designed for her by Nolan Miller.

Friends of Yvette desdribe her as "a one-woman dynamo," with interests and accomplishments that are many and far-ranging.

The daughter of a Mexican mother and a French father, she was reared and educated in Los Angeles and Mexico City. A multi-lingual world traveler (she is fluent in French, Spanish and Italian), she energetically pursues her diverse activities.

WALL-TO-WALL PEOPLE

There was an overflow crowd present for the soap opera wedding of Susan Seaforth Hayes and Bill Hayes in a recent segment of "Days of Our Lives." Fans had been invited through a newspaper ad offering wedding cake and coffee and the chance to take photographs after the ceremony. This was the second wedding for the couple, who were legitimately married some time ago.

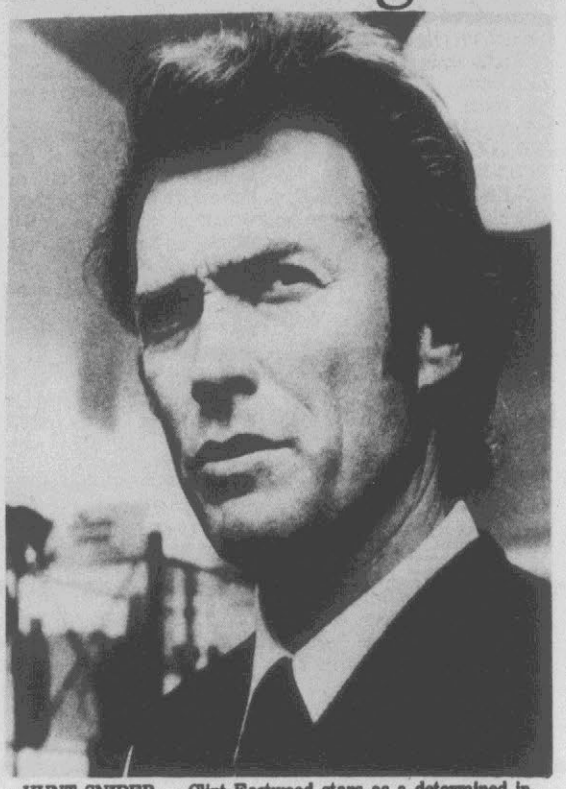
Characters Are Legend



HUNT SNIPER — Clint Eastwood stars as a determined investigator who conducts a manhunt for a sniper who terrorizes a big city in "Dirty Harry," a suspense drama to be rebroadcast on "NBC Saturday Night at the Movies," Oct. 23 (9-11 p.m.) on Channels 6-7.

Every generation has one or two movie stars who have a special magnetism that rivets an audience. What they project on film rises above scripts, directors and plots — good or bad — and they establish an almost personal rapport with the audience.

Clint Eastwood, starring in "Dirty Harry," is one of those actors. The film will be a repeat telecast on "NBC Saturday Night at the Movies" Oct. 23, 9 to 11 p.m., on Channel 6-7-28.

Rising from odd jobs and bit-casting, Eastwood has become one of the top box-office attractions in the world, the idol of millions of moviegoers for his portrayal of the strong, silent man who knows what he wants and goes out to get it.

In an age when most movie stars portray anti-heroes who are beset by frustrations, the confused victims of chaotic times, Eastwood projects a fascinating person, whether he plays a westerner, or a detective — such as "Dirty Harry" Callahan in "Dirty Harry" — or a soldier.

"The secret of the man I play," says Eastwood, "is that he's a super hero, a dream character for most men. The average guy in the audience says, 'I want to handle it just the way he's doing it on the screen.' In these days of lost individualism, in a computerized world where everyone is a number, this is appealing.

"A guy sits in the audience. He's scared stiff about his life. He wants to be that self-sufficient legend he sees in my pictures: a superhuman character who has all the answers, is doubly cool, exists without society, without anyone's help. Of course, it will never happen that way. Man is always dreaming of being an individual, but man, like other social animals, is really a flock animal."

It is true that when Eastwood is on the screen he is a dynamic presence. And because his screen characters coincide with the needs of the audience, he has universal appeal for men and women.

Marshall Is Behind Bars

On a Friday the 13th, when Emmy Award-winner E. G. Marshall was expected at an important press conference in the nation's capital, he was hard at work in prison garb at a Los Angeles County prison.

Marshall, sporting prisoner No. 24735 on the back of his denim work shirt, was participating in location filming of scenes with Mildred Natwick, who plays his wife in "Money to Burn," the "CBS Late Movie" airing Tuesday, Oct. 19, at 12:30 a.m.

The veteran actor stars as Jed Finnegan, an ingenious convict who uses an unwitting warden to smuggle out $1 million he has counterfeited in prison, to his dedicated wife and accomplices to exchange for legal tender.

During a brief production break Marshall, who won an Emmy for his starring role in "The Defenders" series, spoke of his good fortune in opting for an acting career more than 30 years ago.

"Moving from role to disparate role certainly helps to keep the mind elastic and tends to keep an actor youthful in terms of enthusiasm for new areas of interest," he explained.

Referring to his stellar series as a lawyer in "The Defenders" and a doctor in "The Bold Ones," he commented on how acting had expanded his personal life.

"I identify with law and medicine as a result of my acting career and have developed a genuine inerest in these areas," said Marshall. "I do things for the American Judicial Society. Since I pay my own way and am speaking from self-interest, I come into it with clean hands."

Marshall, who narrated "In Search of the Lost World," a special which explored pre-Columbian civilizations in the Americans, referred enthusiastically to archaeology as another "real life interest." In fact, he remarked, "I've tried to stir up interest in an archaeological series."

A highlight of his travels to learn more about this field was a visit to Nice, where land was being bulldozed for the construction of low income housing. "The work stopped immediately when they thought they had found an early human dwelling. There was seaweed and shells for bedding, yet no evidence that they had eaten anything from the sea. It is a great mystery of archaeology," he said.

Fonda Plays Officer

A dedicated probation officer, forced into premature retirement, recruits three of his parolees to heist and fence several million dollars in gold ingots from a heavily armored convoy, in "The Alpha Caper," an original motion picture airing as the "CBS Late Movie" Wednesday, Oct. 20, at 11:30 p.m., on Channel 9-11.

The suspense - adventure drama stars Henry Fonda, Leonard Nimoy, James McEachin, Elena Verdugo, and John Marley. Larry Hagman, special guest star, portrays Tudor.

Mark Forbes (Fonda) learns from a dying parolee, trapped in a police warehouse while stealing guns, that he and three others were planning to heist a $30 million shipment of gold bullion, scheduled to be moved 12 blocks away to a new depository.

Feeling rejected by the establishment due to his early retirement, Forbes joins forces with Tudor (Hagman), the best powderman in the business; Mitch (Nimoy), an electronic genius, and Scat (McEachlin), who can open or steal anything.

Hearings Highlighted

"A Call to Action," highlights from a series of Bicentennial hearings conducted around the U. S. by the National Council of Catholic Bishops over the past two years, will be presented on "Look Up and Live" Sunday, Oct. 17, 10:30 to 11 a.m., on CBS-TV.

In preparation for a major conference that begins Wednesday, Oct. 20, the N.C.C.B., addressing itself to the past, present and future of the Church in America, invited Catholic individuals, parishes and associations in six different areas of the country to reflect upon various aspects of national life. Testimony from these meetings, which wre modelled after Senate hearings, will provide a base for a five-year social action program for the Catholic church.

"Look Up and Live," focusing on three areas—Tidy Creek (near Atlanta), Ga.; Sacramento, Calif.; and Newark, N. J. — recorded testimony and statements on topics ranging from nationhood, work and family to 'personhood,' ethnicity and humankind.

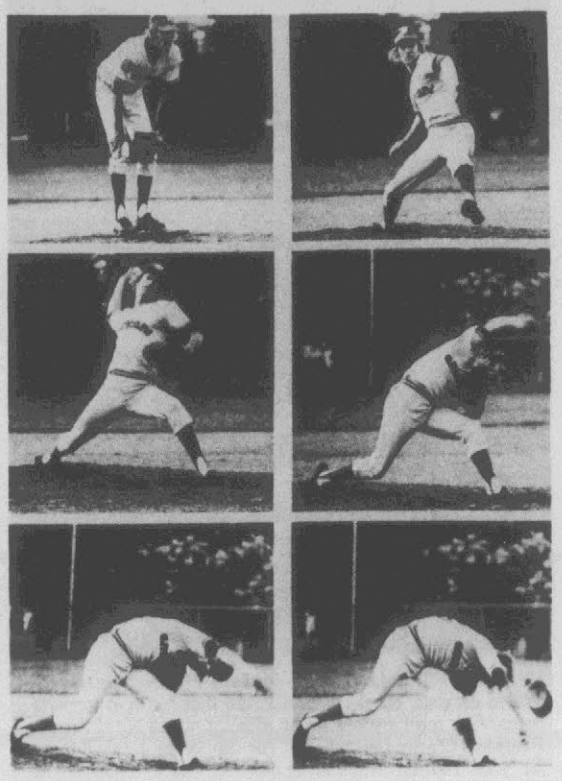
Determination Pays Off



BASEBALL — Jim Bouton, starring in "Ball Four," a new contemporary comedy series based on his bestselling book of the same title and seen Wednesdays (8:30-9 p.m.) on CBS Channels 9-11, shows the pitching form with which he won 21 games for the New York Yankees in 1963 and 18 games (plus two in the World Series) in 1964. His "team" in the new comedy series is the Washington Americans.

Jim Bouton is about as close as you can come to finding a "Renaissance man" in these non-Renaissance times. Still only in his mid-30's, the affable and outspoken Bouton has already had several major careers, any one of which most people would sign their names in blood to achieve.

He was a major - league pitcher, winning 21 games for the New York Yankees in 1963 and 18 in 1964 (plus two more in the World Series), before developing a sore arm that cut short that career. Then he wrote "Ball Four," a brash insider's look at life in the "bigs" which has sold over four million copies so far. Then he became a television sportscaster, with a not - so - surprising reputation for outspokenness, and worked at that for six years in New York City.

Now he is starring in "Ball Four," a contemporary comedy series based, of course, on his book. It premiered this season and is seen Wednesdays, 8:30 to 9 p.m., on CBS Channel 9-11.

How does Bouton account for this unbroken string of winning games? "I really don't think I have, or anyone else has, an inborn talent for these things," he says modestly. "Things don't come easy to me, but I'm a hard worker and I have a way of perceiving what needs to be done to accomplish something. And I think it helps to have a good imagination. And that's the secret of my success, boys and girls."

The word that describes these attributes in combination is determination. As a ball player, Bouton wasn't nicknamed "Bulldog" for nothing.

Bouton feels that television is finally ready for "locker-room" humor, for at least a couple of reasons: There was something in the tone of the book which attracted four million buyers; and locker-room humor is analogous to Army humor, which has already proved popular.

"In the Army you have a bunch of men away from home," he says. "Men from all over the country, with different age levels, different lifestyles, and so on, thrown together in very tight living quarters, with a lot of tension, pressure and boredom. How they deal with the boredom and pressures is what makes their lives or situations humorous and interesting.

"Well, ballplayers' lives aren't on the line like soldiers' lives are, but their careers could end at any time with an injury. The players can be traded like Monopoly cards to other teams, often against their wishes.

Lynley Stars In Thriller

Carol Lynley stars as a successful fashion model surrounded by numerous male admirers, including an anonymous heavy - breathing phone caller who begins to voice jealousy over his rivals in "If It's a Man, Hang Up," on "Mystery of the Week" Wednesday, Oct. 20, 12:30 to 2 a.m., on ABC-TV.

Miss Lynley, as Suzy Martin, numbers among her suitors photographer Terry Cleeves, his friend Bruno Varella, his professional rival Greg Miles, and even Murchison, the caretaker of the apartment house in which she lives. When the mysterious phoner calls for the first time, he professes his love and demands that Suzy stop seeing her gentlemen friends.

Accidents soon befall Suzy's suitors and two policemen are assigned to protect her. One of them, Henry Venner, who admits he is fond of her, suggests that she escape from the terrorizing phone calls for a weekend with him in his country cottage. It is there that she is to meet her tormentor.

Landon Directs, Performs

Michael Landon will direct and perform in "The Loneliest Runner," a 90-minute film which will air on NBC-TV this season.

Lance Kerwin will play a 12-year-old whose life is severly damaged by his own shame over bed-wetting and his parent's fierce reaction to his nocturnal 'crime.'

Landon will portray the youth as an adult.

"There are literally millions of kids all across this country who are miserable and ashamed because they are bed-wetters," Landon said. "I have been thinking about a movie like this for years. I think it is a subject that must be brought to the public's attention — to help stop the humiliation and mental damage our present attitudes are inflicting on youngsters."

Pike's Peeks

By Charlie Pike
TV Showtime Staff Writer

HOLLYWOOD—The jury is still out but two of the bigger disappointments of the new TV season as eyed by network officials are "Rich Man, Poor Man," and "Mr. T and Tina." The critics have panned both shows, and the higher-ups at ABC are watching closely since the series seem to be the weaker links in an otherwise super season for ABC.

Look for NBC to revamp their Thursday night lineup in the not too distant future. "Gemini Man," "Best Sellers" and "Van Dyke and Company" have been dismal in the ratings, although the show squeezed in the middle will probably get a better timeslot since the potential is there. The same can't be said for the other two.

Meanwhile, CBS is taking a severe beating on Fridays where "Spencer's Pilots" doesn't stand a chance opposite "Donny and Marie" and "Sanford and Son." "Ball Four" will probably do it's own vanishing act before the holidays, and don't be surprised if some standards on CBS are pink slipped soon.

Ann Meara is "loving" her new role on "Rhoda," and confides that the toughest part of doing the show is commuting between Hollywood and her New York home. Ann's a devoted wife and mother, and she doesn't like leaving her family a week at a time.

Alan Alda of "MASH," actor-comedian Charles Nelson and Miss Meara were the center of attention on a recent New York to L.A. flight. With those three on board, it was hardly necessary for the airline to provide it's other passengers with entertainment.

Liz Torres, who was so popular on "Phyllis" last season, has been signed as a new regular on "All in the Family."

Fox Plays Assassin

Edward Fox, who won the British Academy Award as Best Supporting Actor in "The Go-Between" in 1971, stars as a British assassin hired by a French underground organization to take the life of President Charles DeGaulle in "The Day of the Jackal," to be colorcast on "NBC Thursday Night at the Movies," Oct. 21, 8 to 11 p.m., on Ch. 6-7-28.

The 1973 Universal Pictures release which received an Academy Award nomination for Best Film Editing, also stars Alan Badel, Tony Britton, Cyril Cusack, Michael Lonsdale and Delphine Seyrig.

Filmed on location in Vienna, Paris, Genoa and Nice, and at the French - Italian border by director Fred Zimmerman, the suspense thriller is based on the best - selling novel by Frederick Forsythe.

Zimmerman, whose many honors include four Academy Awards ("That Mothers Might Live," 1938; "Benjy" 1951; "From Here To Eternity," 1953; "A Man For All Seasons," 1966), employed an international cast of established performers and authentic locales to bring a realistic aura to the film.

Football Made Actor

"If it weren't for college football, I might still be living on the wrong side of the tracks in the Bronx," says Barry Sullivan.

As it turned out, Sullivan grew to an impressive 6-2 and had the size and ability the Temple University Owls were looking for in a fullback. It was at Temple, on a football scholarship, that he fell in love with acting.

Sullivan guest - stars as a U.S. Supreme Court nominee whose character is being questioned in "Savage," the "CBS Late Night Movie" Thursday, Oct. 21, at 12:30 a.m. Also starring in "Savage" are Martin Landau and Barbara Bain.

"When I was at Temple," Sullivan said, "I was being pulled in two directions. The school's Tent Players, a theatrical group, needed a tall fellow for a football minstrel show they were staging and they tapped me."

But Barry quickly found himself in the middle of a conflict between football practice and stage rehearsals. The coach tried to pull him out of rehearsals but Barry was beginning to feel the lure of the footlights more than the gridiron.

So he applied for and got an acting scholarship which made him independent of the football team.

"The move turned out rather well, I like to think," said Sullivan.

CLEVER QUIP

'Tonight Show' Helped Prinze

It all began with a guest appearance on the 'Tonight Show' in December, 1973. From that time on, the life of Freddie Prinze has not been the same. Watching the comedian was James Komack, creator - executive producer of the "Chico and the Man" series, who moved fast. The following September, Prinze premiered as star of the popular series which is seen Fridays, 8:30 to 9 p.m., on NBC Channel 6-7-28, and "Chico and the Man" quickly became one of the most widely viewed programs which is still high in the weekly ratings.

Prinze, a product of a Puerto Rican mother and a Hungarian father, has been acting since his early youth and appeared in New York City Street Theatre Productions such as "West Side Story" and "Bye Bye Birdie."

He attended various parochial grade schools in his native New York City, and then was accepted into New York's High School of Performing Arts.

"So I would go down to Bud Friedman's Improvisation Club every night and wait for my turn to get on stage," Prinze says. "Lots of times I wouldn't get on until 3 a.m. Friedman liked me and I made a few bucks at it but it was tough getting to school for the first class." His Improvisation Club appearances led to a spot on "The Jack Paar Show."

Freddie credits television, and particularly "The Ed Sullivan Show," with helping him perfect his technique. "I learned a lot from the guests Sullivan put on," he says.

Prinze writes all of his night club material, composes music, plays the guitar, drums, and piano and once studied ballet. His hobbies include music and kung fu.

His continued success, Prinze says, is due in large measure to his strong religious training, his faith in God, and a home that was filled with love and respect. Still strongly family oriented, Prinze purchased a house in Southern California for his parents and is a frequent visitor there.

He and his wife, Katherine, reside in Hollywood. They have one child, Freddie James.

CHICO POWER — Freddie Prinze stars as Chico, an outspoken young Chicano recently returned from Vietnam who forms a stormy partnership with the feisty owner of a one-man garage, in "Chico and the Man," the hit comedy series telecast on Friday (8:30-9 p.m.) on NBC Channels 6-7.

Muhammad Ali Meets Norton

Muhammad Ali vs. Ken Norton, one of the most controversial fights in the history of the heavyweight division, will be broadcast by CBS Sports Friday, Oct. 22, 8 to 9:30 p.m.

The 15-round bout, in which Ali retained his title in a close decision that has since been seriously questioned, will be shown in its entirety.

The controversy surrounding this decision is in keeping with the career of Ali during his 16 years as a professional fighter. Although he is still 'the greatest' (if you should doubt this, ask him yourself), he has never really conformed to the mold other boxing ring champs have been shaped from.

—During his years as an amateur he had 167 fights and his boyhood idol was Floyd Patterson, who he later defeated in the ring. In the 1960 Olympics, just before he turned 'pro,' he fought in the light heavyweight category.

—For his first professional fight Ali got $2,000. As of the first of this year, his estimated ring earnings were $29,751,115. Included in this sum are 7 one-million dollar purses.

— To the delight of the hordes of newsmen and fans who are in contant attendence, Ali quotes poetry endlessly and has a nickname for opponents as well as his ring tactics: Sonny Liston is referred to as "The Big Ugly Bear," and the "rope-a-dope" is when he lies on the ropes, protecting his lead and letting his opponent punch himself out.

— He has tasted the bitter dregs of defeat—since he's been a 'pro,' he's lost two bouts. On the other side of the coin he has to his credit 35 KO's and TKO's in his professional career, and in his professional heavyweight championship fights he's won 12 with KO's and TKO's. In one of these championship fights, Ali scored a first-round knockout when he floored Liston.

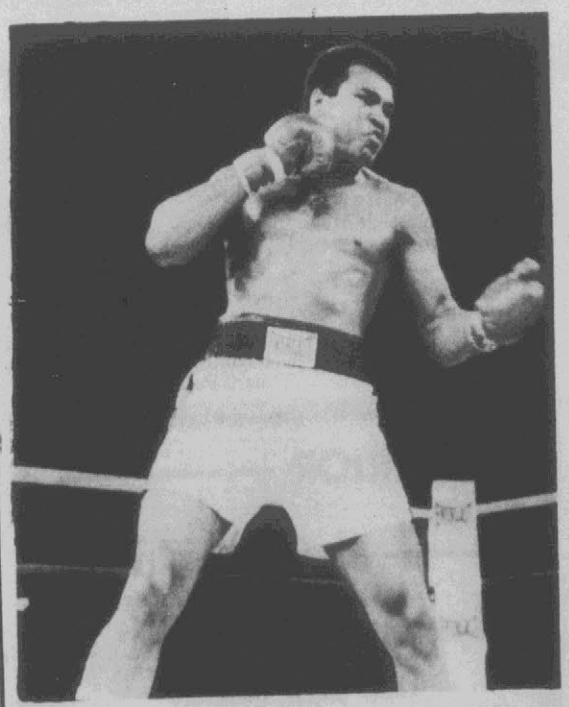
Host for the clash from Yankee Stadium in New York City is Jack Whitaker, with ringside reporting by Brent Musburger, and round-by-round commentary by Tom Brookshier and former heavyweight contender Jerry Quarry.



ALI — Viewers will have a chance to evaluate the Ali-Norton bout for themselves when CBS telecasts the fight Friday, Oct. 22 (8-9:30 p.m.) on Channels 3N-9-11.

Signs For Role

Patricia Neal, 1963 Academy Award winner for her performance in "Hud," will play the starring role of Margaret Chase Smith in "Tail Gunner Joe," the three-hour NBC World Premiere movie starring Peter Boyle as the late Sen. Joseph McCarthy.

McCarthy caused a furor in the 1950s with his widespread charges of Communist infiltration into the American military and government. Sen. Margaret Chase Smith (R.-Maine) introduced a motion in the Senate to censure McCarthy.

Ms. Neal won the 1947 Donaldson and Drama Critics Awards for her performance on Broadway in "Another Part of the Forest." She was nominated for a 1968 Oscar for "The Subject Was Roses." Other films include "The Fountainhead," "The Day the Earth Stood Still," "A Face in the Crowd" and "In Harms Way."

OFF AND RUNNING

Darryl Hickman, busily overseeing "Love of Life" for CBS, has also formed a partnership with Art Baer and Ben Jolson to put together a daytime comedy serial called "Friends and Relations."

New Season Brings Changes

"The Electric Company," television's successful reading series, launches its 1976-77 season on public television Monday, Oct. 18, with two new characters, one live and one animated, and with format changes designed to let viewers know exactly what skills will be included in each program.

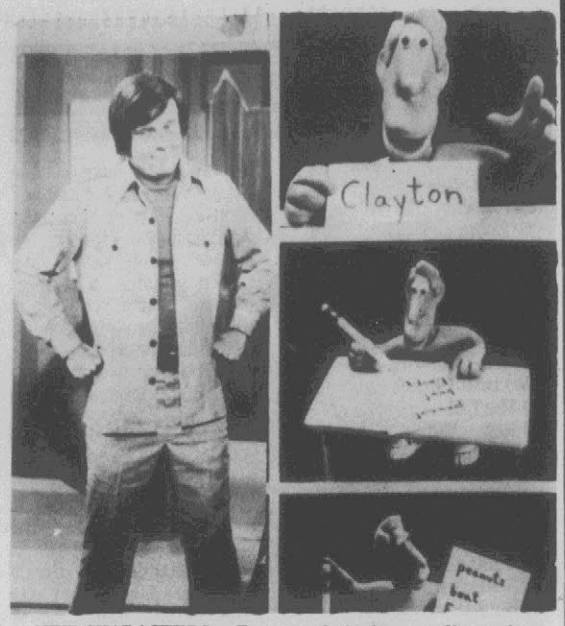
One of the characters is a cut-rate but pedagogically potent counterpart of the "Six Million Dollar Man." He is Steve Awesome, the "Six Dollar and Thirty-Nine Cent Man." The other is Clayton, an animated figure who will introduce curriculum elements.

"The Electric Company," designed to teach basic reading skills to seven-to-ten-year-olds, is the most widely viewed in-school program in television history, and was the first classroom program honored with an Emmy Award. Most of the PBS's 265 stations air the half-hour program twice a day, once during school hours for teacher and student use, and once in late afternoon for home viewing and reinforcement.

Since last season the producers have been making subtle changes in an effort to increase the educational impact of the curriculum of each program. This season they will emphasize "curriculum clusters" — groups of segments that deal with the same reading skill. For example, the 'double e' may be taught in a song, a skit and a piece of animation, each following directly on the other.

Clayton and members of the repertory company will introduce the "clusters" so that viewers will know exactly what to look for. In other instances he will review the material already presented.

Awesome is played by Jim Boyd, and the character's appeal may be attributed to the fact that he possesses superhuman powers including a macrobionic eye capable of photographing and then projecting his instructions. But he is not infallible. In one segment he photographs his orders to "grab the map" but when he projects the order at the villain's hideout he misreads them as "grab the mat."



NEW CHARACTERS — Two new characters, one live and one animated join "The Electric Company" this season. The "Six Dollar and Thirty-Nine Cent Man" named Steve Awesome and played by Jim Boyd (left) enjoys remarkable powers with a bionic ear and a macrobionic eye. The new animated figure named "Clayton" (right) has a special role this season — he will introduce clusters of segments that deal with the same reading skill.

Tournament Colorcast

Chris Evert and Billie Jean King — fierce competitors who have done much to bring women's tennis to a high plane of excellence and acceptance the world over — will lead a strong field of international female stars when the $200,000 Colgate Inaugural Tennis Tournament is colorcast on NBC-TV Saturday, Oct. 23.

Popular favorites to advance to the singles final in the richest women's tennis tournament in history, Everett and King will be renewing a rivalry which has captivated tennis fans everywhere.

The competition, which will be played at the Mission Hills Country Club in Palm Springs, Calif., will be King's first outing at a major singles competition since she defeated Evert in the semi-finals of the 1975 Wimbledon All-England Tournament. She went on to a stunning triumph over Evonne Goolagong in the final round.

Evert and King will go into the Colgate Inaugural virtually even. They have clashed in eight singles finals and each has won four times. The last time they met in a final was at the L'Eggs World Series in Austin, Texas in April 1975, when Evert defeated King, 4-6, 6-3.

Among the other international stars vying for the top singles prize of $45,000 are such tournament-tested performers as Virginia Wade, Olga Morozova, Rosemary Casals, Martina Navratilova, Francoise Durr, Maria Bueno and Betty Stove.

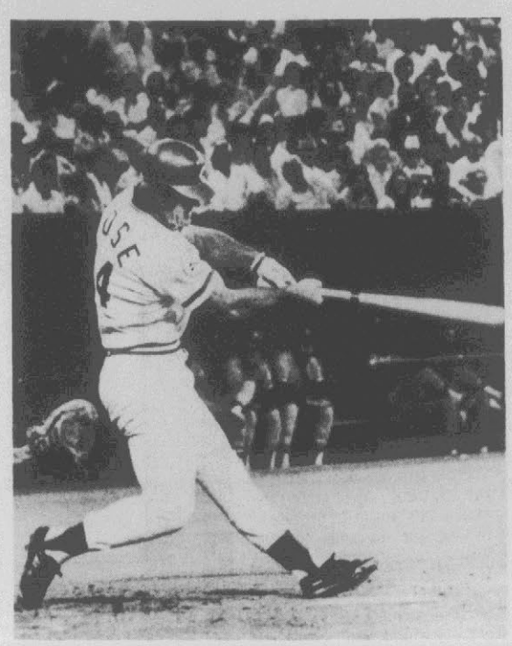
Rose Is Pitcher's Nightmare



RED — Pete Rose, a stand-out in last year's World Series will be on hand once again as the Cincinnati Reds try to make it two in a row on the 30th Anniversary of the World Series on NBC-TV.

When Cincinnati's Pete Rose was presented the 1976 Roberto Clemente Award by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn last May, the Reds' standout admitted it gave him satisfaction to be mentioned in the same breath as the late Pittsburgh standout.

Rose, who was described as "the apex of professionalism" by Commissioner Kuhn, became the sixth recipent of the award, given annually to the player who best exemplifies the game of baseball on and off the field.

"I consider Roberto the best hitter I've ever played against," said Rose, a three-time National League batting champion. "In a way I've tried to be the same type of hitter he was. We both hit to all three fields and neither of us hit home runs."

Pete Rose, who will help the Cincinnati Reds in their attempt to make it two-in-a-row in this year's World Series, is a man who takes great pride in what he does. He is not one to let fame or fortune go to his head. The one thing that does go to his head is giving 100 percent of himself everytime he goes onto the field.

Pete was not born a super-hitter, he made himself a hitter by hard work and determination. Many pitchers think that Rose is one of the toughest men to strike out in the league. The manager of the Reds, Sparky Anderson, says it is even tougher to get Rose out of the lineup for even one game. We all know that most of the good players take days off to rest up for the more important games, but not Rose. He hasn't missed a game in the last two years.

The one word that sums up Pete Rose is 'aggressiveness.' As Rose puts it, "What makes you a good hitter is really the same thing that makes the Reds a good team. It's aggressiveness. You have to go up to the plate thinking you're going to hit the ball. You have to watch it all the way to the plate, but especially when it comes right up near you. I mean, that may not sound like much — but it's very important."

Rose jokes with various pitchers in the league about his ability to see the ball well. A smile comes to his face as he remembers one story: "I pulled a cool one out in Chicago the other day," he said. "I have this habit of watching the ball in the catcher's mitt, and I noticed that it had a black spot on it. Well, I didn't say anything, but on the next pitch I yelled, 'Hey ump, that ball has a black spot on it.' The catcher and the ump both thought that I had seen the black spot as the ball went by me. Boy, it really shook them up! The ump said, 'How the hell did you see that?' And I said, 'Hey, I can see Chub Feeney's name on the ball when it comes in.' It shook 'em up good. It helped destroy the pitcher's rhythm, and I got a homer."

Cardinals Meet Cowboys

It all started with an offhand remark by Alex Karras during an ABC Monday night game in 1975. Conrad Dobler flashed onto the TV screen and the nation heard Karras say: "This is Conrad Dobler, fans, the dirtiest player in the league." The cameras proceeded to show him biting, kicking, tripping and doing all the things he's been accused of doing. Dobler denies biting anyone. He's a strong believer in personal hygiene and he's never bitten anyone; so he maintains.

He'll be before the TV cameras again-this time when the St. Louis Cardinals meet the Dallas Cowboys Sunday, Oct. 17, at 4 p.m. on CBS-TV.

Conrad Dobler is perhaps the most-feared member of the St. Louis offensive line, if not the best of the Wild Bunch that protects quarterback Jim Hart. "I'm one of its (NFL) best offensive guards," he says matter-of-factly. "I just do what I must on the field to get my job done."

Born in Chicago 26 years ago, Conrad Francis Dobler is the fourth of seven children. At the age of two, he and his family moved to Twenty-Nine Palms, Calif. In high school, Dobler attracted many football scholarships, and he finally decided on the University of Wyoming. In his senior year there he made the Western Athletic Conference second team as a defensive tackle.

Drafted fifth by the Cardinals, Dobler was released in the final 1972 cut. At that time he considered himself a 'straight' football player.

Meanwhile, in the off-season, the Cards hired Don Coryell as coach. Dobler appeared at the 1973 training camp in the best condition of his life and with a new outlook. "I decided I would play the way you have to play to do the job," he recalls. His perserverance and aggressiveness finally paid off - he was wearing jersey No. 66 for the Cardinals.

Opponets wasted no time spouting off steam about 'Nasty Conrad.' They said he was a biter, that he used the cast that was on his arm like a bludgeon, that he hit after the whistle, and that he even poked them in their eyes.

Dobler insists the only biting incident he was ever involved in was when retired middle linebacker Lee Roy Jordan (Dallas) tried to chew through the cast he wore during much of the '74 season.

"Yeah, I tried to bite him," Jordan admitted. "But I was on my back and he was trying to shove his cast through my face mask."

After the Cardinals defeated the New York Giants to clinch the 1974 divisional title, Giant tackle Jim Pietrzak stated, "I just went up to him and wished him good luck in the playoffs, and he turned around and punched me in the throat."

You would think that, with all these allegations, Dobler would be one of the most penalized players in the NFL. Whatever he does in the bottom of that pile, he is discreet about it. He was penalized only once during the 1975 season for holding, and only six times in 1974 for holding, jumping off-sides and hitting late.

It might be well for the Cowboys to take heed: Dirty Dobler will be there to meet you. As he says simply: "All I know is that I'd hate to play across from someone like me."

Winning Counts

In New York City, Yankee manager Bill Virdon fell on hard times and Billy Martin was summoned on Aug. 2, 1975. The appointment came exactly 18 years and six weeks after Martin was traded from the Yankees to the Kansas City A's.

Martin, who'll be guiding the American League's Champions through this year's World Series, has a reputation for colorful behavior on and off the field. He also has a track record as a manager which has inspired four American League teams to hire him in the past decade.

He was a division champion at Minnesota in '69 and managed the Detroit Tigers to a division title in 1972. Martin spent three years with Detroit before moving to Texas.

His heroics with the Rangers in 1974 transformed the patsy of the American League into bona fide contenders.

Julie Andrews Is A Guest Of 'Magazine'

"Wholesome" and "sweet" are terms which aptly describe the characters portrayed by actress Julie Andrews, star of such box - office hits as "Mary Poppins" and "The Sound of Music." But even though that image may be viewed as too saccharine, Miss Andrews says she is comfortable with it.

The actress discusses her image, and offers some very definite views on the changing image of women, during an interview with Reporter David Sheehan for a segment, "Whatever Happened to Mary Poppins?" on "October Magazine," which will premiere this season on Tuesday, Oct. 19, 10 to 11 a.m., on CBS.

Although Miss Andrews says she is a "very liberated woman," she seems quite traditional to some. Her marriage, her films, and pornography are among the varied subjects she discusses with Sheehan.

The performer will be shown in concert at Caesars Palace in Las Vegas, where she sang to SRO audiences. Also, clips from her films will be seen.

Another segment to be presented on 'Magazine' is "What I Lost on My Summer Vacation," which focuses on diet camps and problems of being an overweight teen-ager.

CBS News Correspondent Sylvia Chase visited such a camp in Massachusetts last summer to follow the progress of one teen-ager as she whittled away 23 pounds through a program of supervised dieting and rigorous exercise.

In addition to showing the special routines and activities unique to diet camps for fat children, "October Magazine" records the sometimes painful impressions of the young subject as she reflects on what it's like to be fat, and of her life with family and friends. Ms. Chase also interviews the camper's parents, who offer another point of view regarding overweight teen-agers: what it's like being the parent of one.

Paramedics Watch Closely

Paramedic organizations throughout the United States are lauding NBC-TV's "Emergency!" series for its practical demonstration of innovative equipment as well as for its authentic dramatizations of paramedics' real-life exploits in emergency medical care.

Good examples of the attention given the top-rated series by emergency crews around the country are the recent responses to "The Game," the episode that launched the sixth season of "Emergency!" (Sept. 25).

A reporter for the Fort Myers News-Press in Naples, Fla., called the "Emergency!" production office to inquire about a new ambulance used in the segment. Apparently, the community was in the process of buying one just like it and wanted some information about it. The reporter, Donna Jablonski, said: "We understand that ours is the 'sister' of the one used on the show. That is, ours is the second one off the assembly line and the one on 'Emergency!' was the first."

Series executive producer Rovert A. Cinader confirmed that "Emergency!" does have the first such model produced by a custom ambulance manufacturer in Texas.

"I was happy to recommend it," said Cinader. "It has all the latest in modern emergency equipment. What we particularly like about it is its size. It is larger than any others we've had and enables us to film scenes inside the vehicle much more easily."

Gary Griessinger, a paramedic with the Mundelein Fire Department in a Chicago, Ill. suburb, called to ask about a belt pouch worn by "Emergency!" stars Kevin Tighe and Randy Mantooth (paramedics DeSoto and Gage) in the episode. "We had been looking for just something like it," said Greissinger, "and since we were just in the process of ordering new equipment for our unit, I thought I'd check in to see if it was on the market. It's something we'd never seen before."

The belt provides a simple means for carrying such small but key items as a flashlight, shears, knife, etc. It was custom - designed for Tighe and Mantooth for use on the show and now is being produced by Bob McCulloch, a paramedic with the Santa Clarita Valley, Calif., fire - rescue squad and an occasional technical adviser on "Emergency!"

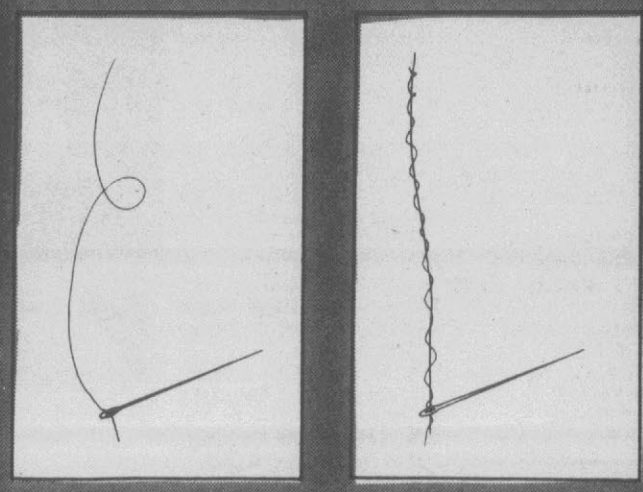
Happy Fellow

If he is what he says he is — happiest when he is busiest — then Ed McMahon will be a most happy person in the upcoming months.

He plays Caesar's Palace in Las Vegas, Oct. 21 through Nov. 3, sharing the bill with Steve Lawrence and Eydie Gorme.

On Nov. 4, he will be honored with a roast by the City of Hope, at the Century Plaza Hotel in Los Angeles. Among those roasting him will be Frank Sinatra, Pat Henry and Pat McCormick.

One-ply, two-ply and which to buy.



Some suit fabrics are one-ply, others, two-ply. It takes years of experience to tell the difference in quality. But that difference shows up after only a few wearings.

All Coffman's suits are made of two-ply fabric.

Two-ply fabric stands up to years of wear. Our suits don't wrinkle after the first wearing. And there's no bagging that dry cleaning can't restore. Most manufacturers make only one-ply suits, we specify only those who tailor two-ply fabrics.

Fabric quality is hard to recognize in the store. So it makes sense to ask the experts at Coffman's. We take pride in our customers' wardrobes and the quality they experience year after year. Visit us on the mall in Greenville and try on a suit you'll enjoy for years to come.

FOR REP. MORRIS K. UDALL (D.-Ariz.)

Until recently, you spent two years traveling around the country, running for the Presidency. Didn't you feel guilty accepting your salary and not spending more time representing the people who elected you? —J. Tyson Lee, Swans Island, Maine

● No. The present tradition of allowing candidates for higher office to remain in their present office is better than the alternative, which would result in only the rich running for the Presidency. Many times, congressmen have served in party leadership positions without resigning their elected offices or waiving their salaries. I doubt that many governors, senators or congressmen would seek party and national leadership jobs if that meant giving up their present positions. Our tradition is a sound one. Without it, we would suffer a real loss of experienced and dedicated national leaders.

FOR GEORGE MEANY, president of the A.F.L.-C.I.O.

Have you ever considered running for a political office?—David Allen, Durham, N.C.

● No—for two reasons: First, the A.F.L.-C.I.O. does not believe that any private-interest group, including labor, should seek or hold political power. Second, the office which I hold is the highest one I have ever aspired to. Just doing this job to the best of my ability is the height of my ambition.

FOR JEAN PETERS

Why, after quitting your career 20 years ago to marry Howard Hughes, did you decide to return to acting?—Violet Pavelec, Waterloo, Iowa

● I'll be darned if I know. A moment of madness, I think. I ran into my old friend Ross Hunter, who was producing "The Moneychangers" for NBC-TV, and he asked me if I wanted to be in it. It seemed like fun. It's a nice part—not too big—and I greatly admire Christopher Plummer, whom I play opposite.

FOR MARY BROOKS, Director of the U.S. Mint

What part of your job gives you the biggest headache?—H.C., Lowell, Mass.

● Estimating the coin demand so we can keep Americans well-stocked with a big enough supply of coins—all of which have to be ordered in advance. You know, the Mint has one of the biggest industrial plants in Government, so that's why our biggest problems revolve around running the rolling mills . . . and melting and casting the strip.

FOR REAR ADM. WILLIAM M. LUKASH, physician to President Ford

Is it an awesome task, being entrusted with the care of the President?—S.A., Tupelo, Miss.

● Awesome only in that I recognize my responsibility as his personal physician and am committed to care for his health to the best of my ability. When there's a need for it, I seek the most competent advice available. In order to respond to the demands of his job, the President must maintain good health—that's where I come in.

FOR JAMES KILPATRICK, syndicated political columnist

Do you consider the second Woodward-Bernstein book, "The Final Days," to be accurate?—M.A.M., Gloversville, N.Y.

● I suppose the book is generally accurate, but I find it tasteless, needless and cruel. It will be enormously profitable besides.

FOR FANNIE FLAGG

How many sweaters do you have, how often do you wear them, and what eventually happens to them?—Lois A. Oberg, Cheyenne, Wyo.

● I have about 60, all custom-made. I wear them about two or three times on TV before donating them to charity.

FOR SUSAN SARANDON, star of "Dragonfly"

If you could choose your next leading man, who would it be?—R.P., Waterbury, Conn.

● In my age group, Robert DeNiro, Dustin Hoffman, Al Pacino, Richard Dreyfuss or Sam Waterston. They're all incredibly bright and original. I like to work with people who surprise me and who are professional. Someone who makes me want to produce more than I think I'm capable of doing. Among "older" actors, either Cary Grant or Paul Newman.

FOR FRAN TARKENTON of the Minnesota Vikings

Do you believe the death of the reserve clause, allowing players freedom of movement between teams, will mean all the players will want to play for the so-called "glamour" teams, such as New York or Los Angeles?—John Wilson, Waco, Texas

● No, the end of the reserve clause won't be the ruination of the sport, if that's what you mean. Not everybody wants to play in New York City or Los Angeles. The best organized and best managed teams will win, not the richest. That's as it's always been.

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

I've always enjoyed Ed Asner on the "Mary Tyler Moore Show and am sorry the series is ending. I'd like to know more about him. What can you tell me?—S.S., Boise, Idaho

● Ed is also sorry that filming of the series is ending. But, at the same time, he's glad he's being forced out. ("After six years, there's the danger of getting into a rut.") You haven't seen the last of Ed, though. He says that a new show, structured around him, is in the works at CBS. If Ed wasn't an actor, he'd probably be a sportsman. He became an all-city tackle in high school, and during his service in the Army in France, he managed a basketball team, which was rated second-best in Europe. In 1958 Ed married the former Nancy Lou Sykes and, since 1961, they've lived on the West Coast. They have 13-year-old twins, Matthew and Liza, and Kate, 9. Also three dogs, three cats, two goldfish and one turtle. The entire Asner family are animal lovers.

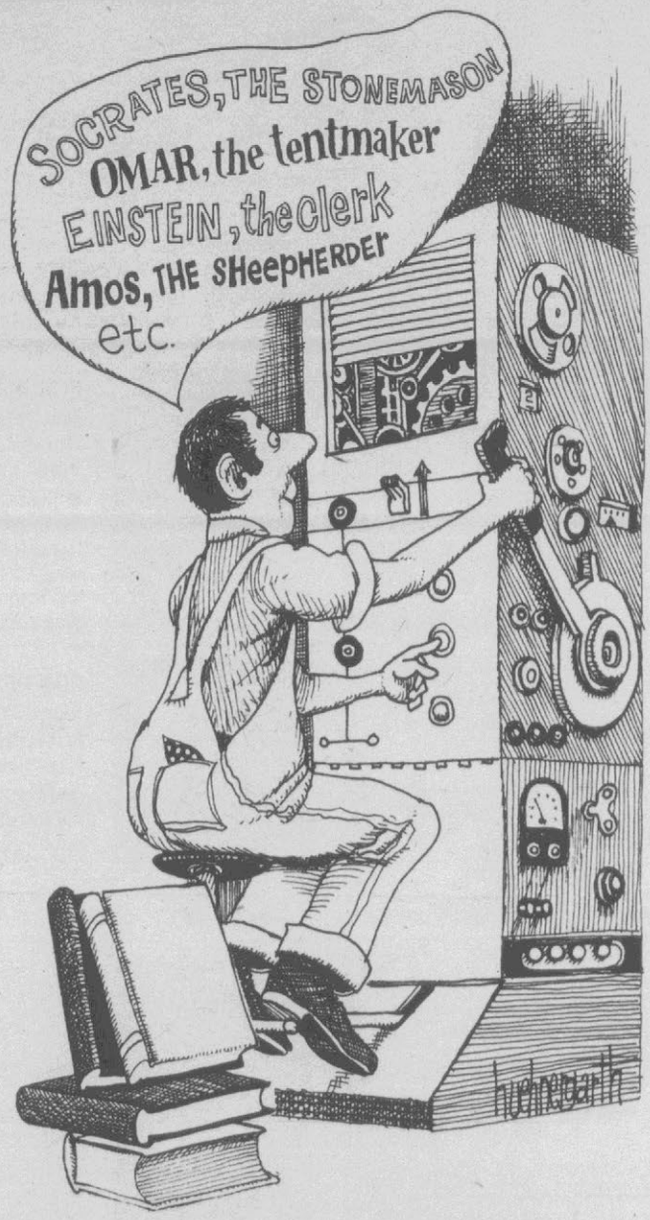
"I SAVOR THE JOY OF DULL WORK"

Excerpts from the new book by Eric Hoffer, who works with both his hands and his mind and who believes in the value of monotony and routine.



There is no evidence that great achievers live exciting lives. Einstein worked out his theory of relativity while still a clerk in a Swiss patent office.

By Eric Hoffer

There seems to be a general assumption that brilliant people cannot stand routine, that they need a varied, exciting life in order to do their best. It is also assumed that dull people are particularly suited for dull work. We are told that the reason the present-day young protest so loudly against the dullness of factory jobs is that they are better educated and brighter than the young of the past.

MUST WORK BE INTERESTING?

Actually, there is no evidence that people who achieve much crave for, let alone live, eventful lives. The opposite is nearer the truth. One thinks of Amos the sheepherder, Socrates the stonemason, Omar the tentmaker. Jesus may have had his first revelations while doing humdrum carpenter work. Einstein worked out his theory of relativity while serving as a clerk in a Swiss patent office. Machiavelli wrote The Prince and the Discourses while immersed in the dull life of a small country town where the only excitement he knew was playing cards with muleteers at the inn. Immanuel Kant's daily life was an unalterable routine. The housewives of Königsberg set their clocks when they saw him pass on his way to the university. He took the same walk each morning rain or shine. The greatest distance Kant ever traveled was 60 miles from Königsberg.

The outstanding characteristics of man's creativeness is the ability to transmute trivial impulses into momentous consequences. The greatness of man is in what he can do with petty grievances and joys and with common physiological pressures and hungers. "When I have a little vexation," wrote Keats, "it grows in five minutes into a theme for Sophocles." To a creative individual all experience is seminal—all events are equidistant from new ideas and insights—and his inordinate humanness shows itself in the ability to make the trivial and common reach an enormous way.

An eventful life exhausts rather than stimulates. Milton, who in 1640 was a poet of great promise, spent 20 sterile years in the eventful atmosphere of the Puritan Revolution. He fulfilled his great promise when the Revolution was dead and he in solitary disgrace. Cellini's exciting life kept him from becoming the great artist he could have been. It is legitimate to doubt whether Machiavelli would have written his great books had he been allowed to continue in the diplomatic service of Florence and go on interesting missions. It is usually the mediocre poet or writer who goes in search of stimulating events to release his creative flow.

But it may be true that work on the assembly line dulls the faculties and empties the mind. The cure would be fewer hours of work at higher pay. But during 50 years as a workingman, I have found dull routine compatible with an active mind. I can still savor the joy I used to derive from the fact that while doing dull, repetitive work on the waterfront, I could talk with my partners and compose sentences in the back of my mind, all at the same time. Life seemed glorious. Chances are that had my work been of absorbing interest I could not have done any thinking and composing on the company's time or even on my own time after returning from work.

People who find dull jobs unendurable are often dull people who do not know what to do with themselves when at leisure. Children and mature people thrive on dull routine, while the adolescent who has lost the child's capacity for concentration and who is without the inner resources of the mature, needs excitement and novelty to stave off boredom.

A JOB TO DO

You ask yourself: What are the essential attributes a country must have if it is to remain vigorous? The answer is simple: So long as a country has courage and a passion for excellence, it can face the future confidently no matter how fearsome its difficulties. Courage is not only a serviceable substitute for hope but also, as we know, it is a chief factor in the maintenance of personal security. As to the passion for excellence, it may sound highfalutin, but it actually concerns common, everyday affairs. I have spent 50 years doing backbreaking work in the fields, in lumber camps and on the waterfront. Many of the people I lived and worked with had courage and, whether they knew it or not, a passion for excellence.

The word "job" used to have a magical connotation in this country. It was something you had to do the best way you knew how. A job might be unpleasant, dangerous or trivial, but it still had to be done, and it had a claim on your skill and ingenuity. Even the simplest job had its mysteries, and once you fathomed them, time flew.

As one would expect, the formula, "There is a job to do," cropped up in situations that had nothing to do with work. The American's performance on the battlefield, for instance, had a matter-of-fact, job-doing quality. He did not fight for a motherland, fatherland or some ideal. There was a job to do, and he did it. Field Marshal Rommel was astonished by the prosaic, practical manner in which Americans mastered modern warfare.

I remember first reading Marx's description of the worker's attitude toward work in a capitalist society. The worker, he said, feels physically and morally debased by his work. He is like an exile in his place of work and feels at home only when away from his job. Marx never did a day's work in his life and never took the trouble to find out how a worker really feels when on the job. He naturally assumed that workers were a lesser breed of intellectuals.

By now, many workers have indeed become a lesser breed of intellectuals, and their attitude toward work fits Marx's description. They feel demeaned and dehumanized by the work they have to do and see a job as a trap. Workingmen who have never read a book talk glibly about frustration, alienation and relevance. Like intellectuals, they expect a job not only to give them the wherewithal of a living but to fill their lives with meaning.

its magic is affecting America's performance and style in every field. Will we need the tribal magic of charismatic leaders and medicine men to get things done in peacetime and in war?

No matter how high the wages and how generous the fringe benefits, the feeling persists that all a workingman can get out of his job is a living, and he is in it for life. The prospect before him is an endless daily grind, an endless deadening routine which so bruises body and mind that retirement at 65 means a mere fading out.

Revulsion from work can be counteracted by offering the workingman a tangible and relatively immediate goal. Assuming that a year has 240 working days of six hours each, then 20 years of work—4,800 days—should qualify a worker for a pension. A day in the mine or on the assembly line should count double and so should overtime work. Under such an arrangement, a youth who started working at 18 would have (counting overtime) a fair chance of retiring at 35 or so. If he becomes a miner or works on the assembly line, he could retire sooner. Moreover, a six-hour workday might make it possible for many to get an education while they are working. Two hours of book learning a day should give a workingman a college education by the time he retires.

COMPASSION

In the alchemy of man's soul almost all noble attributes—courage, honor, love, hope, faith, duty, loyalty—can be transmuted into ruthlessness. Compassion alone stands apart from the continuous traffic between good and evil proceeding within us. Compassion is the antitoxin of the soul: Where there is compassion even the most poisonous impulses remain relatively harmless. Thus the survival of the species may well depend on the ability to foster a boundless capacity for compassion.

Compassion seems to have its roots in the family. We think of those we love as easily bruised, and our love is shot through with imaginings of the hurts lying in wait for them. A loving wife cannot help imagining the wounds which a day's participation in the rat race may inflict on her husband, and he in turn senses the fears, born of unavoidable physical decline, which prey on his wife's mind. Their impulse is to protect, console and reassure each other. Parents overflow with compassion as they see their children go out into a strange, cold world.

It is conceivable that the present weakening of the family may allow compassion to leak into wider circles. So, too, the creation of family ties between strangers by esprit de corps should aid the spread of compassion. But the question is whether we can make people compassionate by education. It amazes me that well-educated people are not more compassionate than the uneducated. The reverse seems to be true. When Gandhi was asked what worried him most, he replied: "The hardness of heart of the educated." The enormities of the 20th century were committed by people who were better educated than the average and who felt competent to instruct and guide the ignorant. It was not farfetched of Churchill to speak of the members of the Soviet politburo as "the bloody-minded professors of the Kremlin." There was a high percentage of schoolteachers among the Nazi Gauleiters. Among the 20 members of the group in charge of the extermination of the Jews there were a university professor, eight lawyers, a dental surgeon, an architect, an art expert and an ex-pastor. FW

By Farrah Fawcett-Majors

When I first heard from Lee Majors, I thought he was the rudest man I'd ever encountered.

It all started when his publicist saw my picture at a friend's office. He said, "She looks great—I know someone who would probably love to meet her!" So he took my photo to Lee, who agreed and called me up. He was working on location in "The Big Valley" TV series when he called. I was out, and when I came back, there was this rather brusque message from him: "Please tell her I'll be by at eight to pick her up."

Of course, I knew who he was, but I'd never met him, and I was surprised to find out he knew about me. All I could think was: How rude! How dare he just leave a message like that. When he called, I was all prepared to turn him down. But I changed my mind when he said, "I'm so sorry to have left that message. You know when you work on the set, you can't always get back to a phone, and I just didn't want you to make plans . . ." Well, he was so charming and sweet, I just melted and said, "Ohhhh, yes . . ." That was seven years ago. We've been together ever since.

We got married two years ago, and at this point in our lives, children are not an issue. In a year or two, though, I'd like to start a family.

Now that Lee and I are both becoming increasingly busy, I'm often asked how we manage our marriage. I'll admit it gets more difficult to work out our schedules. I do believe, though, that my career is secondary to Lee's, and if he said, "Tomorrow I have to leave for Europe for four months, and you have to come with me," then I'd go. If I were offered a picture and had to be away from him, I'd talk it over with him first. If he said no, then that's the way it would be. My marriage comes first. When I was doing a pilot for a series, I got a six-o'clock cutoff clause in the contract so I could get home before Lee and have dinner ready. He would never have insisted on that, but I wanted to do it.

For instance, there have been a couple of film offers. I thought I wanted to do them at first, but after we'd discussed them, I realized that I didn't want them after all. Had I not married Lee, I probably would have gone to New York more, modeled more. But I have no regrets.

I'm glad I didn't rush into a film career.

I'm better prepared now, and without the commercials I've done I would be unrecognized today. Those commercials provided my training since I never took drama.

There's no competition between Lee and me as far as our careers are concerned. There is, however, when it comes to sports. He's such an athlete, such a competitor, and he'll sometimes yell at me on the tennis court if I don't return a volley the right way. I'm just not competitive—but he's always got to win. Even though I'm better at some things than he, I can't think of anything I can beat him in! I really play better tennis than Lee, but he beats me out of sheer determination.

Because he's so strong and capable, few people realize how sensitive Lee is. For instance, with the success of his show, "The Six Million Dollar Man," a lot of rumors sprung up about us—that we're divorced, we're separated, we're arguing, we're this, we're that. None of them was true. So when Lee took out a big page ad in the trade papers to publicize his directorial debut in the series, he added a postscript to the effect that he wanted the world to know we were going to be together forever. I don't know of any actor who's ever taken out an ad in Variety or The Reporter who hasn't used his own picture, but here was Lee with his first directorial effort coming up, and he used a picture of me!

One odd thing about me, I never thought about what I was going to be. I've asked my mother what I said on the subject when I was a child, and she said that when I was 4 or 5, I wanted to be a nun. And that's the last time I ever said anything about it.

I'm told my friends brag about my being a marvelous housekeeper. I can't stand dust or dirt, and I am constantly cleaning. Lee, on the other hand, is the opposite. His clothes are everywhere. He couldn't care less.

We do have a housekeeper, but that's because we have two dogs and need her mainly when we go out of town. She doesn't do the cooking. She just cleans the house.

I love to cook, too! People say, "You're great—you come home and make homemade breads and dinner. Does Lee really appreciate all this?" I think he does—I think he'll always appreciate me because I'm a great cook.

"It's a hindrance to be good-looking—you don't get the good roles..."

I seem to surprise people a lot. Most don't expect me to be able to do anything. Many think that because I've modeled and my looks have been exploited on commercials, I haven't any talent or mental capacity. I've heard producers say, "We really have to be truthful with you; we're glad you came in and read because we thought you were a dumb blonde—beautiful, but nothing going on upstairs!" It didn't upset me, because I made very good grades in high school and college. I got straight A's.

I know I'm no dummy, but it's a hindrance to be good-looking. You don't get the great roles because people will say, "It's just not believable that you would be pining away, waiting for your husband to get home from prison or the war—or that you'd be a waitress . . ." You know, there really aren't that many good roles for great-looking women! There used to be—but no more.

One problem in selecting parts is the nudity. I won't do that, and I've turned down a lot of roles because of my attitude. Not that I think there's anything wrong with it—I see films with nudity in them all the time. It's just that I'm too private a person to do that. Lee knows how I feel.

The only thing that's been an issue is my art work. I have a talent for sculpting and painting. I sculpt realistic heads and torsos, and paint abstracts. I've sold a couple of things to an art dealer in Texas, but Lee really doesn't want me to sell anything. He wants to keep it all. So my sculptures are all out in the entrance hall. But my paintings . . . well, there is only so much wall space. I'd have to say I'm half and half—half inside the hall closet, half out.
And that's okay with me.

WINDOWS AND WALLS

What to Do About Them

Walls. There they are, four of them, in every room.

You can paint them; panel them; cover them with fabric or wallpaper. (Actually "wallpaper" is somewhat of a misnomer, because the majority of "papers" today are not paper, they're vinyl—and, consequently, they're more practical for current lifestyles.)

Vinyls are washable and strippable. You can't take them with you when you move, but you can cover your walls with a pretty pattern and strip it off when you move out, leaving walls as they were when you moved in.

Most people think wallcoverings are appropriate only for bedrooms, children's rooms, kitchens, baths, stairwells and dens. People use them infrequently in dining rooms and even less frequently in the living room—the most "public" room, which should have the most eye appeal.

It used to be that wallcoverings were everywhere. You, or your parents, probably grew up in a living room that had a pattern of cabbage roses climbing all four of its walls and in a bedroom that had a smaller floral motif. The natural reaction to "too much" was the "too little" of the bland, one-color wall—apple green in the 1950's, beige or white in the 60's. In the 70's, walls are still fairly neutral.

If this is where your decorating is "at," it's time to rethink, to consider the pleasure that

Another "if" to keep in mind: If you're fearful that you'll tire of a pattern after living with it for a while, consider that vinyl wallcoverings today are relatively inexpensive and that you can replace them as easily as you can slipcover a sofa.

There are lots of things that wallcoverings can do—and that you can do with them. Some are obvious, others creative. Examples of the obvious are alternate uses of stripes to heighten or lengthen a room. (You hang stripes vertically to add height, "railroad" them—that is, hang them horizontally—to add length.)

What if you want to add height without stripes? Perhaps you want to use a floral pattern, instead. One way is to paper within a foot of the ceiling, install a molding and watch the remaining 12 inches give the illusion of a taller ceiling.

Illustrations by Loring Eutemey

Want to separate a dining foyer or "L" from the living room? You can do this by using a screen to partition off the two areas. An attractive decorating idea you might try: Cover one side of the screen's two or three panels with a plaid wallpaper design, the other with a floral (A wealth of color-coordinating patterns are available these days.) to create an architectural divider that's an add-on, not a built-in. If the plaid is on the dining side, use its matching fabric on living-room lounge chairs or, reversing the sequence, pick up the living-room pattern on dining chairs.

When do you use one pattern throughout a room? According to interior designer Ann Heller, the "all-over" concept works best in a bathroom or bedroom.

"It's sometimes difficult to pull a bedroom together," Mrs. Heller observes. "You buy a bedspread in one department, and often you have to go elsewhere for draperies. Matching bedspread and draperies to walls makes a room cozy, and with coordinates from the same company, you know they'll match."

As for the bathroom, a sensational wallcovering—"maybe a color or pattern so flamboyant you'd not think of using it elsewhere," Mrs. Heller suggests—offers the quickest, least expensive way to do over a room where you can't change the basics.

"Fixtures are fixed," says Mrs. Heller. "And, very often, so is flooring. In an old house you begin to hate it. So you simply work around it," she explains.

Here are more of Mrs. Heller's ideas for creating decorative and/or architectural changes:

- Lower a ceiling by papering it and painting the walls to match the paper's background color. (Mrs. Heller suggests doing this in a child's room, just to keep it neat-looking, especially if the youngster "plasters" the walls with pictures of friends and favorite rock stars!)
- Break up a long solid-colored wall by adding vertical panels of wallcovering framed with decorative molding.
- Create a focal point by papering only one wall or—as Mrs. Heller did in our cover picture—by papering one wall in a floral and the remaining walls in a coordinating geometric.
- If a wall is broken up by too many windows or doors, camouflage the fact by carrying one pattern the length of the wall. Paper

Take a long look at the 100 sweepstakes from Benson & Hedges 100's.

Let's see: how about barging down the Nile, rafting down the Colorado, or steamboating down the Mississippi? Or does money look better to you — like 100 days interest on $100,000? 100 English pounds? 100 grams of gold? Or perhaps a car? A totem pole? Taffy? Topsoil? Or one of 90 other prizes?

In any case, any winner may have a change of mind and ask for 100 ft. of dollar bills ($200) instead.

Each winner will get a letter telling exactly what the prize includes, what choice there is (if any) of style or color or flavor, and what options there are on deliveries of perishable goods.

Please read the rules carefully and note especially that such sweepstakes must be entered individually, with each entry mailed separately in its own envelope, with the sweepstakes number in the lower left corner.

The longer you look, the more you'll see. And the more sweepstakes you enter, the more chances for you to be one of Benson & Hedges 100's 100 winners.

the doors and use a matching fabric for curtains or draperies. A small print, plaid or check, is more effective in this instance than a large, dramatic design, Mrs. Heller advises, because it calls less attention to architectural imperfections.

• Add a touch of the traditional to a plain pipe-rack room by installing a carved wood molding to create a dado or chair rail. Use a plaid or a stripe below it, a coordinating floral above. Or if the floral is the "heavier" pattern, reverse the two.

• Generally speaking, in using a single pattern, use a large pattern in a large room, a small one in a small room—unless, of course, you want the large space to appear larger or the small space to appear smaller. "Regardless of a room's dimensions, you can combine large and small patterns, depending upon placement," Mrs. Heller observes. "But if you use a minute geometric throughout a large room, you often get a blurry effect—all you see is color, not pattern. So you're better off using just an interesting-looking textured solid."

Mrs. Heller also offers some shopping suggestions.

• When you select a wallcovering, look at it in daylight as well as lamplight. Colors tend to change in different light.

• If you're coordinating wallcovering with an existing fabric, take along a swatch of the fabric to check against sample books.

• Study the photographs in sample books to determine a wallcovering's scale and to check the repeat (the number of inches a pattern occupies before repeating itself). This way, you can determine whether or not the floral you fancy for the bedroom will overpower it or whether the geometric you like for the living room will lose itself in so large a space.

• If you have a preconceived notion of the type of pattern you want, ask your dealer to recommend the books you should study. Books, besides indicating scale, often provide you with decorating ideas—ways to use wallcoverings that are more interesting than the "four walls, one-pattern" approach.

• Measure carefully before you place an order. Even the most expensive wallcoverings vary in color from run to run, and if you have to go back for more, it's unlikely that your second order will be from the same run. Your dealer will help estimate your needs. He will also advise you on the proper adhesive to use if yours is to be a do-it-yourself installation (more than 50 percent are today).

Trends? Don't worry about them, Mrs. Heller advises. What's in good taste today will be tasteful tomorrow. Many of today's most handsome wallcoverings are traditional designs recolored for contemporary interiors.

Patterns run the gamut from Colonial to contemporary; from country chintz to Art Deco; from herbs and birds for the kitchen and shells for the bath to elegant moirés, grass cloths and damasks for more formal rooms. In scale, they run from petite geometrics to giant graphics; in surfaces, from shiny Mylar and slick patents to cork, pebble and woodgrains.

Ways to Wake Up Your Windows

A paradox in decorating today is that while our society is reaching new levels of standardization and mechanization, we are simultaneously creating an imaginative, highly personal approach to living. Style is no longer something to be followed blindly but something to be created on one's own terms. This is apparent in how we dress and in how we decorate our homes.

An outstanding feature of any room is its windows—which open up all sorts of possibilities for dramatic innovations in room décor. One of the more important trends occurring in window treatments today is that heavily swathed, elaborate "putting-on-the-dog" looks are out . . . trim, casual lines and color are in.

Our Government Won't Accept Claims Made By Doctors, Scientists & Medical Agents About

100% PURE NATURAL GINSENG

Why Do Millions Of Chinese, Russians, And Europeans Praise It?

Ginseng has been whispered about, talked about, written about, tested, experimented with, prescribed, sold, and taken for more than 5,000 years. Was it the first wonder drug? Consider these facts:

The Chinese Book of Drugs, written almost a century before the birth of Christ, advised doctors to prescribe Ginseng for a tranquilizing effect on the brain, to soothe nervous irritation, to help concentration, to improve the memory, and to lengthen the life span. In fact, in Ancient China, when every medicine failed to work, the doctor prescribed Ginseng.

Kan-Jin, personal physician to the great Buddha of Nara, gave Ginseng to his patients to relieve tension and restore serenity. It was advised that Ginseng should be used to overcome fatigue.

In the Thirteenth Century, Marco Polo brought Ginseng back from China and introduced it to the Western world. Jesuit missionaries sent back reports of all the various illnesses for which Ginseng was being prescribed in Fifteenth Century Japan, as a guide for Spanish and Portuguese doctors. Today, more people are studying, researching, prescribing, and taking Ginseng.

Russian doctors now supply Ginseng to their Olympic athletes and their cosmonauts, to help combat fatigue and relieve the symptoms of stress.

In Switzerland, a country famous for its work in prolonging human life, 70 percent of the doctors report that they are prescribing Ginseng to their patients. Chinese soldiers are being issued Ginseng on a regular monthly basis to guard them against shock when injured and before reaching a hospital.

In 1974, the first International Ginseng Symposium was held in Korea. Scientists from more than a score of countries, exchanged the latest information on this "original wonder drug", as they called it.

Last April, when the Symposium on Gerontology was held in Lugano, Switzerland, research papers on Ginseng were presented by five different countries.

Through the centuries, Ginseng was credited with relieving more symptoms than perhaps any other natural drug. The list included, but was not limited to: heart palpitations, rheumatic pains, aching joints, tiredness, tension, strain, malaise, poor circulation, tremors, heartburn, nervousness, anxiety, diarrhea, insomnia, lassitude, dullness, stress, impotence, loss of memory, sciatica, neuritis, and neuralgia.

Can all the scientific evidence be ignored?

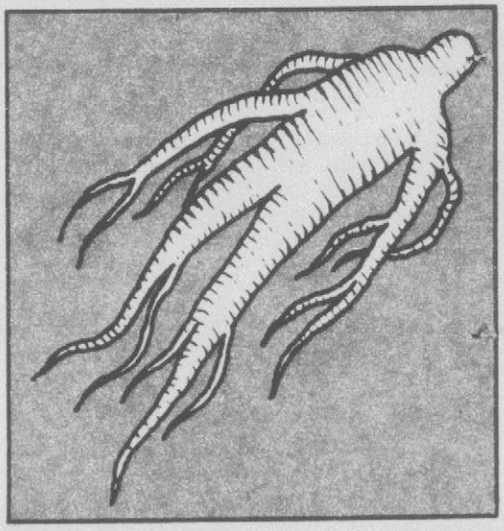
It took hundreds of years for thousands of drugs and treatment techniques to be approved and accepted. Acupuncture was not permitted in the United States until the 1970's. Do you know it took 38 years for vitamins to win acceptance since their discovery in 1913? Will it be Ginseng's turn, next? Perhaps. After all, we don't usually stay too far behind the rest of the world for very long. In the last Olympics, when the athletes of every country had their stamina and endurance pushed to new limits, Ginseng was supplied to Russian athletes as a natural way to increase strength and stamina.

More articles have been written about Ginseng than any other herb! It's one of the hottest products in America today — millions are going out of their way to find original Ginseng. One person tells another about what it does! Called "The all-healing root of man", Chinese Emperors spent as much as $400 an ounce on this Oriental wonder.

Should you try Ginseng? Well, that is up to you. From all we have learned and read and studied, if you are going to try Ginseng, for whatever reason you may have, it would be better to buy only 100% pure natural Ginseng in easy-to-take tablet form. That's the only kind we sell.



Please note this: with the increasing demand for Ginseng all over the world, the supply of the natural root takes five to seven years to mature — so get your supply now.

Don't you think it's about time you found out what Ginseng will do for you . . . as so many millions have done?

You'll never know until you try it. Fill out the handy coupon below and mail it today. It only costs you 20¢ a day for the thirty day supply, virtually 13¢ a day for the sixty day supply. Money cheerfully refunded if you aren't delighted.

Observations™

Political pollution. With Congressional election campaigns raging hot and heavy across America, we've noticed that some candidates continue to play politics with energy issues. In the interest of cleaning up some of this political pollution, we hereby publish a "Voters' Guide to the Political Cheap Shot."

The "dollar-a-gallon" ploy. Candidates using this one tell the voters that only their heroic efforts have kept gasoline prices from reaching a buck at the pump. Those "efforts" consist largely of the retention of price controls only for petroleum and some petroleum products, including gasoline. But the fact is, many brands of gasoline are selling for under their legal ceilings, because of competition in the marketplace. Even if all controls were lifted, and all the crude oil used in this country climbed to the price of imported oil, a gallon of gasoline at the pump would still cost substantially less than a dollar. Which makes this whole approach nothing but a cheap shot.

The "obscene profits" bit. Below-the-belt campaigners charge the oil companies with assorted rip-offs, resulting in huge windfalls. But the numbers tell a different story: In 1975, for example, Mobil's rate of return on shareholders' equity was 12.3 percent—the average for all U.S. manufacturing. (According to Forbes magazine, Mobil ranks only 327th in return on equity among major U.S. corporations. Our profit in the first half of 1976 was 1.4 cents on every gallon of petroleum sold worldwide.)

"IT'S DAYS LIKE THIS I'M THANKFUL FOR A FREE PRESS. I'M THE LEAD STORY."

The "keep it vague" crowd. These campaigners simply run against oil company "conspiracies" and claim the industry constitutes a "monopoly." But they never get specific, doubtlessly because the facts give lie to their claims. How can 8,000 oil and gas producers, 130 refiners and 15,000 wholesale marketers constitute a "monopoly"? And can you imagine so many companies, with their thousands of employees, privy to any "conspiracy"? Besides, laws against monopoly and conspiracy are vigorously enforced. So let the voter beware of broad charges, lacking in substance. Almost always, these are cheap shots.

The good-guy checklist. How about the other side of the coin? How can you tell if your candidate is an energy good guy? The best way is to ask. Where does the candidate stand on the decontrol of natural gas, as an incentive to greater production? On more offshore drilling to make America less dependent on foreign sources? On putting more of our country's coal resources to work?

Good questions deserve good answers. And the energy good guys (or gals) won't resort to political cheap shots.

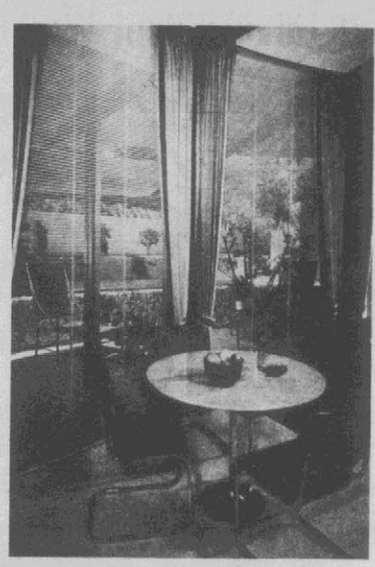
AT HOME

Continued



Since decorating is very personal, you need to decide what you want to achieve early in the development of a room. This will be based on your style of living, on the character of your home, on the furniture you already own. Do you like formal things such as brocades, rich carpets and crystal chandeliers or informal cotton prints and tweeds? Do you want a period room or a contemporary one? The mood you choose will help determine the type of window treatment you use—as well as everything else you select for the room. Both shades and curtains can help style your room and create the special effect or mood you're striving for.

Sophisticated dining (above) with a sweeping view. At the window are Levolor's slim aluminum blinds, punctuated by reed-like tailored draperies.

Fabric-laminated shades (left), with scalloped hems, grace the windows in a young girl's room. Curtains sport tiebacks caught up in Directoire style.

Shades or Blinds? The Difference Makes the Décor

Window shades in cloth or vinyl, whether custom-made or from stock, have never looked smarter nor been produced in greater colors or textures. They make delightful teammates with shutters, swags, valances and curtains; or they can stand alone, most strikingly, in contemporary rooms.

Shades are particularly important in these energy-saving days, too. Controlled tests show that they save up to 8 percent on the fuel dollar in winter and 21 percent in summer!

You might consider woven wood blinds, which also are becoming popular for casual room settings, as are thin-lined Venetians. Both come in a choice of bright and low-key colors. The matchstick blind—in natural or tortoise shell—has a great following, too.

Shade-Cloth vertical blinds work beautifully with sliding glass doors and look smart on regular windows as well. When hung from the ceiling, they create an illusion of height, as indicated in the bedroom illustration on the cover page of our "At Home" section.

Curtains for Colorful Window Dressing

If you're curtain-oriented, there's news for you, too. Tiebacks are coming back! The sassiest ones are caught up high, in French Directoire fashion. Matching window shades with scalloped hems echo the classic mood.

Homemakers skilled in using the sewing machine are stitching up pretty patterned sheets to make curtains. Sheets can be used also to sew comforters and dust ruffles.

Here are some tricks of the decorating trade to help you plan:

- Ceiling-high installation of curtains, shades or blinds creates a long, clean line and makes both the ceiling and window seem taller. Also a set of windows varying in height can be easily unified in this way.
- Wide windows can be treated as a single unit or divided into sections. A series of shades can create a partitioned effect; while one wide element across a picture window or a shallow bay window unifies the area.
- Sliding glass doors are usually aluminum-framed, and it is best to hang your curtain or shade beyond the door-frame itself. Vertical blinds are the latest way to treat the sliding door, because the blinds fold back neatly when you want to use the terrace.
- A too-narrow window can be made to look wider by setting your curtains well outside the window frame to expose as much glass area as possible. Then use a shade or narrow-slat Venetian blind over the glass so that it can be raised to let in plenty of light.
- The small window and the awkwardly placed window benefit most from being dramatized within the frame. Here's an eye catcher! Line the jambs of the window with mirrors. Then, whatever you put inside the frame will be beautifully reflected.

That's the news—slimmed-down, less fussy window dressing is less "paneful," more with it. Just choose the one that will do most for your window, the room it flatters, and of course, your budget!

Talking 'Patty Prayer' Doll

now I lay me down to sleep...

Kneels and says her bedtime prayer!

Nothing to wind up—no string to pull.
Whenever you want her to she says

"Now I lay me down to sleep
I pray Thee Lord my soul to keep Guide me safely through the night
Wake me with the morning light.
God bless Mommy . . . and Daddy, and make me a good girl. Amen."

Makes a beautiful gift!

Just press her tummy and Patty recites the entire children's bedtime prayer in her precious childlike voice. Almost 20 inches tall, she's soft and lovable and dressed in a silken nylon nightie. Under the nightie her body and arms are cloth covered foam. Hands and head are soft washable vinyl—her beautiful lifelike hair can be combed and styled. Patty's delightful voice comes from a miniature record player in her tummy. Open the zipper on her back to turn the record over and she sings "Brother John"! Operates on a single penlight battery (included). Money back refund if you (and your favorite little girl) are not perfectly delighted.

Woman with arthritis increases grip strength with Mentholatum Deep Heating Rub

PHILADELPHIA—"My grip strength improved," said Sara Kait. A spritely 75 year old nursing home resident, Miss Kait had taken part in tests conducted by Mentholatum Deep Heating Rub and Extra Strength Lotion. First an instrument was used to measure grip strength. Then Mentholatum Deep Heating Rub was applied for temporary relief of minor pain and to improve mobility. Later, when tested again, the grip strength of most of those tested had significantly improved. "It certainly works," said Miss Kait. Use as directed.

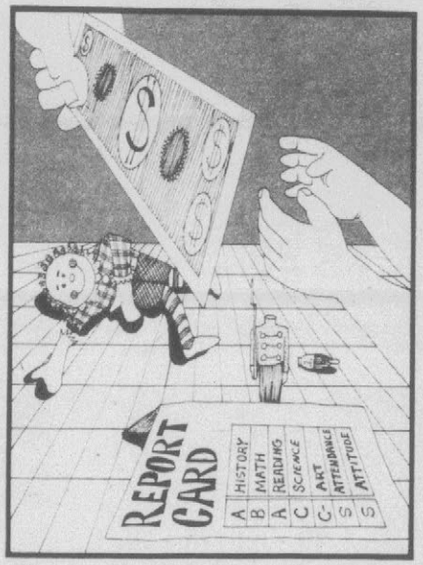
MISTAKES PARENTS MAKE ABOUT CHILDREN'S ALLOWANCES



Recently a group of parents was agonizing over the "problem" of children's allowances. One father finally said, "We're going to give them whatever they need, anyway, so what difference will rules make?" Child psychologists believe, however, that some of the conditions under which a youngster gets his or her allowance are important. For example, some parents add a bonus to the allowance when a child gets a good report card and withhold all or part of it if the youngster does something to displease them. Children raised on the "reward and punishment" system subconsciously learn that money can be used as a device to bribe a person, to goad him or to penalize him. Even more unfortunate is the implicit message that money is a medium of "ethical exchange" in which cash replaces personal standards of values or ethics. A second error parents make regarding allowances is criticizing the way children spend their money. For example, one parent has a rule that if his child buys a toy and it breaks within a week, the cost of the toy is deducted from next-week's allowance. The theory is that the youngster will learn to look for good value when he buys. But experts say these kinds of controls destroy the whole learning process of receiving allowances. "It is important to allow a child to make mistakes with his own money," points out child psychologist E. Nora Ryan. A parent may give advice or set a good example of wise buying, but to criticize a youngster's errors constantly will either make him secretive about what he does with his money or make him feel incompetent about handling it. Caution: Conversely, the doting parent who gives extra money to make up for what the youngster wasted on a poor purchase is not preparing the child for the realities of adulthood. —By Norman Lobsenz

THESE FLOWERS LAUGH AT WINTER SNOW!

TREES ARE BARE BUT FLOWERS BLOOM!

First discovered by plant explorers in icy arctic wastes, then perfected by Dutch bulb scientists, these amazing SNOW-FLOWERING BULBS from Holland are finally here in America. And they are guaranteed to turn your garden into a WINTER WONDERLAND OF BEAUTY this very Winter. In fact, the only garden in your neighborhood so aflame with bloom while snow still blankets the ground!

EACH SNOW-BLOOMING RAINBOW COLLECTION INCLUDES:

ERANTHIS — Solid banks of golden blooms so dazzling bright they make the sun look pale.

SIBERIAN SCILLA — Velvety purple flowers erupt in blooms by the hundreds in the dead of winter.

ALL SENT TO YOU ON OUR MONEY-BACK POLICY OF SATISFACTION

NOW! PICK FRESH FLOWERS BY THE HUNDREDS ALL WINTER LONG

Just picture this incredible scene a few short months from now: Outside it's a solid sheet of snow. Icicles hang from the trees. Every other garden is a ghostly white. Yet your garden — and only your garden — is bursting with color as dazzling masses of red, yellow, purple, orange, and gold flowers erupt in rainbow drifts. Yes, your beds, borders, shrubs, and the walk up to your home will all be lined with a riot of continuous bloom, so warm they seem to melt away the snow.

JUST DROP THEM IN THE GROUND — THEY BLOOM ANYWHERE

Best of all they're so easy to grow . . . require virtually no care. And even more amazing because they actually multiply with each passing year. Where you have hundreds of flowers this Winter, you'll see thousands more Winter after Winter, year after year.

FOR BLOOMS THIS WINTER YOU MUST ACT NOW!

However, since now is the time they must be shipped if you want to be the first in your neighborhood to enjoy a parade of SNOW-BLOOMING FLOWERS this very Winter, you must act immediately.

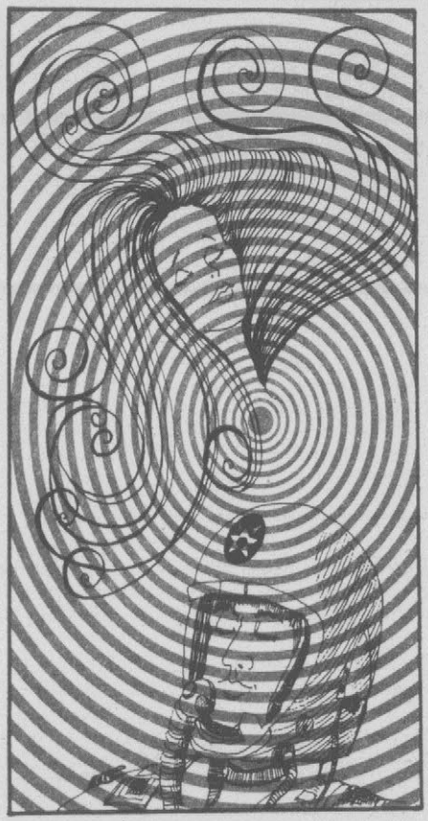
PEOPLE AND YOU

HOW WOULD YOU REACT TO NEAR-DEATH?



People who've been in near-fatal car accidents, near-drownings, a near-disaster of any kind have come back with surprising tales. A 21-year-old girl, whose car was spinning toward a wall, remembers entering "a calm dreamlike state with a feeling of being at peace with everything." A doctor, who almost drowned, says, "Once I realized I couldn't rescue myself, an indescribable calmness came over me." A 24-year-old mountain climber, recalling the time he clung to a spot above a 2,000-foot drop, says "My thoughts speeded up; time slowed down. I developed an understanding of death as something beautiful." A psychiatrist and clinical psychologist have interviewed 114 people who've experienced near-death. These researchers discovered that as long as people struggled to rescue themselves, they felt anger. As soon as they believed their efforts were hopeless and they resigned themselves to dying, they experienced calm, pleasurable emotions. A jet pilot, endangered in an abortive takeoff in Vietnam, found this peace also gave him a sense of complete control. In that temporary, dreamlike state, he was suddenly capable of doing what was needed to make an escape. The experts believe the evidence indicates that when people are faced with sudden death, they find the strength to cope and accept it serenely.

WHAT IN THE WORLD!

CINDERELLA ASKS FOR A RAIN CHECK

She'd rather be a movie "queen"

A Lebanese beauty contest winner could have said "yes" to a proposal of marriage by a wealthy Arab prince and lived the rest of her life in luxury. But Suhaila Farhat wants to be a movie queen, and not all the oil in Kuwait can change her mind. The 22-year-old beauty left her prince in Kuwait, the richest country in the world, to seek her own fame and success in the land of Hollywood. And while she struggles for stardom (She has appeared in three movies in the two years she has been in Hollywood.), the prince waits patiently for her return as his fertile oil lands make him wealthier every day. "I must live for myself," Suhaila declares. "I'd much rather strive for success than be a princess. I want a movie career. If I accomplish this, as far as I'm concerned, I will have everything. Then it is possible that I will return to the prince." Meanwhile, the prince tries to win her back with frequent telephone calls, expensive gifts and promises of a Cinderella life. But Suhaila is determined. "My father is furious at me," she says, "and he won't help me with money—after all, I had turned down the prince. When you go against the wishes of everybody—parents and fiancé—it is not easy. But knowing I can stand on my own two feet is very rewarding. I have no regrets. The prince says I am the only one he loves. He telephones me and always asks, 'Are you a success yet?' And I reply, 'No, but I'm working on it.' He knows that this is something I must do. And he promises he will wait for me."

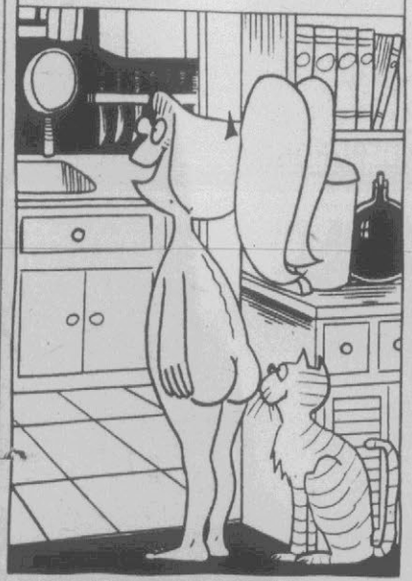
LITTLE EMILY



"Mom? There was a lady at the door asking for old clothes for a rummage sale . . . and I contributed!"

Facts about the Finicky One: Among the many letters to celebrities received at FAMILY WEEKLY offices each week, are sacks addressed to Morris the Cat. Morris can't write, so we have his royal nod to speak on his behalf. He's annoyed by the same questions asked time and time again and, once and for all, wants to put the record straight. For those wanting to know "Do you live a normal cat life?" the answer is "Certainly. During the day, I have the run of the place where my trainer, Bob Martwick, works. At night, I'm in Bob's apartment. Cozy beds aren't for me. I like corners, also the area under a desk. After all, I'm a cat, not a prince." In response to "Do you know who your parents are?" Morris gets a little misty-eyed. He has no idea. There have been innumerable claims, but all check out as false. As to Morris's favorite food, it's tuna. He can't get enough of it. His marital status is of countrywide concern. He is a bachelor and spurns the ladies. But he wasn't always that way. According to Mary Daniels, author of Morris: An Intimate Biography, that's how Morris got hauled into the animal shelter where he was discovered; a result of an annoyed lady who kept complaining that Morris was forever romancing her cat.

THE YOUNGEST MAYOR IN THE U.S.

Serving a town without a generation gap

Keep your eye on 21-year-old Jimmy Chapman, who can't go any higher in his hometown government because he's already the No.-1 man. He's the mayor. And there is no generation gap in Susanville, Calif., a town of 7,200 people. The mayor's greatest boosters are the senior citizens of the town. "They are wonderful," says the mayor. "It's just like having dozens of grandparents." Chapman, who's been Susanville's mayor since March of this year, won the support of the older residents by displaying a keen awareness of their problems. He is also concerned with the development of steam-energy resources to boost the area's waning economy. The young mayor is also "proud of making every cent of the $1.5 million budget count." The city employees include 10 firemen and 10 policemen. "I have proved myself to the doubting Thomases," Chapman said, "and many of the citizens are proud to have such a young mayor." The aggressive Democrat has sandwiched his public service between a full-time position as a graphic artist and studies at California State in Chico—where he graduated in May with a degree in public administration. He has already set his sights higher and will be running in November for a seat on the Board of Supervisors. And beyond that? "Well, if I don't get elected to a position in public service of some sort, I don't know what I'll do. That's where I know I can do the most good," the mayor said.

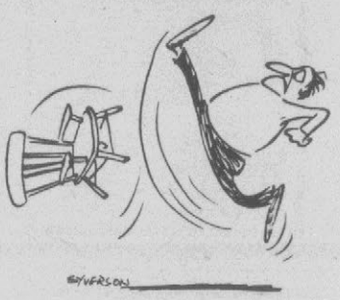
ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour



FALL GUY

Let's say I bump my head against
A ledge or opened door.
I'll not quote here the things
I've said,
Including oaths I swore.

Or maybe what I did was trip
Upon a step or boulder
And cut my face or sprain a wrist
Or bruise a knee or shoulder.

Do I denounce my clumsiness?
Am I at me incensed?
No, I, as maybe you have done,
Blame what I fell against.

While an Indian film was showing recently at a movie theater in New York City, two Indians were employed to stand in front of the theater for advertising purposes. Accosting one of them, an inquisitive woman asked:

"You are a real Indian, aren't you?"

"Yes, madam," was the courteous reply.

"How do you like our city?" she asked.

"Fine, madam. How do you like our country?"

Our Story: VAL BEGINS THE DAY IN A BAD HUMOR. HE WILL MAKE ONE MORE EFFORT TO BRING HELENE HOME TO THE MISTY ISLES. THEN HE REMEMBERS THAT THE NEW KING, TELAMON, IS UNMARRIED.

"MAYBE HE IS ALREADY IN LOVE WITH HER, FOR HIS EYES FOLLOW HER EVERYWHERE. PERHAPS I CAN FIND A FEW WORDS, NOT NECESSARILY TRUE, THAT WILL PROMPT CUPID TO DO HIS WORK."

"WITHOUT A DOWRY, MARRIAGE INTO A NOBLE FAMILY IS IMPOSSIBLE, SUCH IS THE CUSTOM. NOW HER BEAUTY BECOMES A MENACE TO HER."

"SHE IS A PRINCESS, DESCENDANT OF A LONG LINE OF KINGS," MUTTERS TELAMON, "AND I BUT KING OF TWO POOR TOWNS..... WOULD SHE.....?"
"ASK HER.'" ANSWERS THE DEPARTING VAL.
