Ford Aides Say He's Very Close To Winning

By DAVE RILEY
Associated Press Writer
President Ford's key aides say he is "very close" to capturing the White House for the next four years as he prepares for his last campaign weekend on the road before Tuesday's balloting.

As Ford stressed his foreign policy experience Thursday night, Democratic nominee Jimmy Carter was assailing the Republican administration as being incapable of stopping inflation or fighting unemployment.

Ford was heading today for Milwaukee, St. Louis and Houston. Carter was to campaign in Philadelphia, St. Louis and Toledo, Ohio.

As for the vice presidential candidates, Republican Sen. Bob Dole was on the road today, and Democratic Sen. Walter Mondale took the day off. In New York on Thursday night, Carter asserted that Ford's administration was a captive of special interest groups, and he said Ford's efforts to portray himself as "the champion of the middle class are a cruel hoax."

In a position paper issued from New York, Carter said the Republicans "failed to stop inflation because they believed that unemployment was the cure, because they were afraid to stand up to powerful special interests, because they have sought to play business and labor and agriculture and consumers against each other, rather than seeking cooperation, understanding and restraint."

Carter said his administration would aim economic aid programs at areas of high unemployment, would more intensively enforce antitrust laws and would launch an active White House effort to hold down inflationary price increases in basic industries.

White House chief of staff Richard Cheney said Thursday that Ford is "very close" to victory and is overtaking Carter largely because of his smooth-running campaign and his television blitz.

Ford apparently has confidence in his ability to win California and will not return there. But Cheney said that as a result of Republican polls, Ford will spend part of this final pre-election weekend in New York, although he had earlier been considered too far behind Carter there to merit another visit.

Ford aides appear pleased with the "Jerry and Joe Shows," paid television programs that allow Ford to field questions he wants to answer in a talk-show format. In those 30-minute programs, beamed into key states, Ford is lobbied questions by sportscaster Joe Garagiola.

Cheney said that foreign policy is becoming an increasingly important issue and that's what Ford concentrated on in the program with Garagiola in Cleveland on Thursday night.

"I've had the experience of dealing with the serious problems in the area of foreign policy," Ford said on the show. "I don't think there's any substitute for that kind of experience...."

He stressed his meetings with Soviet Leader Leonid Brezhnev, saying, "That experience is sitting across the table from General Secretary Brezhnev and saying, 'I don't agree with you. We aren't going to make that kind of a deal.' Or sitting across from a group of allies and saying, 'We can't do it this way, we can't do that way.'"

Gas Leak Idles Elizabeth City Shopping Center

ELIZABETH CITY, N.C. (AP) — A leak in a propane gas tank forced the closing today of Southgate Mall and Southgate Plaza Shopping Center, the city's largest shopping area outside downtown.

Police ordered the area closed after the leak was discovered late Thursday, when the tanks were being refilled. No injuries were reported, and a few homes surrounding the area were not evacuated, police said.

The order affected 33 businesses in the mall and about a dozen in the shopping center, authorities said.

Police said it was determined that the gas could only be removed through the leak, and firemen began burning the gas as it escaped. Police said the process was expected to take about 12 hours, meaning the stores might be opened late this afternoon.

Economic Indicators Dip For 2nd Month

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government index designed to predict future economic growth declined for the second month in a row in September, the Commerce Department said today, bringing more bad pre-election news for the Ford administration.

The decline in the index of leading economic indicators was seventh-tenths of a percent in September, the same as in August. It indicates that the economic slowdown may continue.

Economists say they are not certain that the index points to an economic decline until it has gone down for three months in a row.

But the latest report seems certain to raise new questions about the strength of the economic recovery, since other recent statistics on economic growth and unemployment have also been disappointing.

However, one Commerce Department analyst said it wasn't clear from the index whether the decline reflected the slowdown in economic growth that has already occurred, or whether it pointed to a further slowdown in the months ahead.

The Commerce Department revised upward the decline in the August index which originally was reported to have dropped 1.5 per cent. However, the decline of seven-tenths of a percent for the month still is considered substantial.

The August decline was the first in 18 months since the nation began to pull out of the deep recession of 1974-75.

The index stood at 107.9 in September, compared with the 1967 base index figure of 100.

The major factor contributing to the September decline was a drop in new orders for consumer goods and materials.

Also contributing to the decline were the average work week, down to 39.6 hours from 39.9 hours the month before; the manufacturing job layoff rate, up to 1.5 per cent from 1.3 per cent in August; vendor performance, change in liquid assets; changes of sensitive prices, and the money balance.

Partially offsetting these declines were gains in business formation, contracts and orders for plant and equipment, building permits and stock prices. Building permits showed the strongest gain.

Top administration economic spokesmen, already under pressure because of the recent unfavorable statistics on unemployment and economic growth, acknowledged in advance that the indicators index probably would be down again.

But they continued to maintain that the slowdown in the economy was about over and that the economic recovery remains basically sound.

The indicators index, compiled by the Commerce Department from other statistics, is designed to foreshadow future trends in the economy.

Commerce Department economists say the figures aren't conclusive unless they show a similar result of three consecutive months. But one analyst said the September report was certain to raise new questions about the strength of the recovery.

In another unfavorable economic report, the Commerce Department reported Thursday that the nation had a trade deficit of $757.7 million in September, bringing the total deficit for the year to $3.4 billion. The United States had a 1975 surplus of about $11 billion.

A Commerce Department analyst said the chief reason for the big deficits this year is that U.S. trading partners have not recovered sufficiently to create a major demand for U.S. goods.

Fighting In Beirut Again Shakes Hope

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Heavy fighting broke out in Beirut during the night for the first time in the nine-day-old cease-fire. The civil war's 57th truce was also threatened by fighting south of the capital and by the return of more Palestinians to southeast Lebanon.

Leftist Moslem and right-wing Christian forces in Beirut traded grenades and machine-gun fire at close range all night. Hospital and militia sources reported that more than 45 persons were killed and 65 wounded, a toll comparable to the nightly totals before the cease-fire began Oct. 21.

Each side said it repulsed repeated tank and armored-car assaults along the front line dividing the city into Moslem and Christian sectors.

A spokesman for the small Arab League peacekeeping force said the outbreak was a "serious setback that we are trying hard to contain before it undermines the whole Arab-sponsored peace plan to end the Lebanese conflict."

Frightened civilians are fleeing the area. Press reports said at least 300 truckloads of families left the border regions for Sidon, the Moslem port 40 miles north of the frontier, and for Beirut, 25 miles north of Sidon.

Galileo Experiment Is Tried And Refuted By ECU Physicist Group

By GEORGE THREEWITTS
ECU News Bureau

You've heard the story about Galileo, the 16th century Italian physicist and astronomer who climbed to the top of Pisa's leaning tower, braced his body against the masonry rail and simultaneously released two objects into the air.

As the books tell it, the lighter of the two objects hit the ground at almost the same instant that the heavier object smacked into the earth.

It proved, Galileo proclaimed, that weight has no influence on the velocity of falling bodies.

But, "Not so!" says a group of physicists at East Carolina University. Drs. Carl Adler, George Bissinger and Byron Coulter contend that if Galileo had actually conducted his Pisa experiment—which they doubt—the heavier ball would have outdistanced the lighter object by several feet. And they have scientific evidence to support their claim.

They also have information about how a TV network faked a 20th century reenactment of the Galileo experiment and tell how a military bomb squad nearly cancelled a similar experiment at ECU.

Using a specially-constructed release gate, a 12 pound shotput, and a rubber ball of the same size but weighing less than a pound, two of the scientists, Adler and Coulter, restaged the experiment by climbing to the roof of one of ECU's tallest dormitories. They attached the release gate to the edge of the precipice and loaded the balls into the wooden slots.

At the base of the dorm, George Bissinger prepared his 16mm movie camera to take a slow motion film of the descension.

The signal was given to release the balls and they fell simultaneously from the launching mechanism. But within a split second the heavier ball increased its momentum. When the shotput hit the ground it was a full 25 feet ahead of the lighter ball. The physicists repeated the experiment again and again and each time the results were the same.

"Galileo said they would hit within two 'fingerbreadths' of each other and they certainly didn't," says Dr. Adler, who teaches a history of physical ideas course at ECU.

"The dormitory is about 125 feet high. If we were to drop these objects off the Tower of Pisa which is about 180 feet, they would have been about 50 feet apart," he said.

But Adler admits that Galileo was not wrong. If the balls had been dropped in a vacuum they would have hit at the same time.

"What we are trying to disprove is a statement in most all freshman physics books that Galileo dropped two balls of greatly different weights off the top of the Tower of Pisa and that they hit at virtually the same time.

"The movies show clearly that they didn't hit anywhere near the same time," he said.

The film of the experiment has been shown at the national meeting of the American Physical Society and to the N.C. Academy of Science. It was recently accepted by the American Association of Physics Teachers to be added to their repository of what they consider significant films.

After the film was viewed by members of the APS Adler talked with a television network film man who had been to Pisa to help produce a children's film about the Galileo experiment.

"The television crew discovered that one of the

Fire Chief Fined $25 For Reckless Driving

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

AYDEN — Greenville Fire Chief Ray Smith pled guilty to reckless driving charges in District Court this morning after a witness for the State testified that he did not seem to be under the influence of alcohol.

Smith was charged with driving under the influence and failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following a collision on a rural road West of Winterville on July 30.

Willie Ivey Baker of Route 1, Winterville, driver of the second vehicle involved in the 10:30 p.m. collision, told the court that the weather was bad on the night of the accident, the roads wet and that it was foggy.

He said he was stopped at a stop sign, looked in his rearview mirror and saw a car approaching from the rear, heard tires squealing, and was struck from the rear by the Smith vehicle.

Baker said following the collision, he and his wife got out of their vehicle and that Smith got out of his car, "came over . . . asked if any of us was hurt . . . put his hand on my wife's shoulder. He said he was hurt . . . had a skinned leg."

The witness continued by saying he "smelled alcohol" but couldn't tell where it was coming from, adding later that Smith

"talked all right," and "appeared to be nervous" but otherwise, Smith "seemed normal."

Defense attorney Louis Gaylord then tendered a plea of guilty to reckless driving, which the court accepted.

Judge J. W. H. Roberts ordered Smith to pay a $25 fine and cost of court.

Smith, who has served 35 years as a Greenville fireman was suspended as chief following the incident.

City Manager Jim Caldwell could not be reached for comment on the suspension this morning.

Pauling Says Vitamin C Gives Cancer Patients A Longer Life

By WARREN E. LEARY
AP Science Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Terminal cancer patients live about four times longer after receiving large doses of vitamin C, says Nobel laureate Dr. Linus Pauling. Other researchers say his findings look promising enough to warrant further study.

A study conducted in Scotland by Pauling and Dr. Ewan Cameron says the mean survival time of 100 dying cancer patients was more than 210 days after they were declared untreatable by conventional methods.

This compared with a mean survival time of 50 days for 1,000 terminal patients who were used as study controls because they did not get the vitamin.

said the report in the October issue of Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences.

Pauling, awarded the Nobel Prize in chemistry in 1954 and the Nobel Peace Prize in 1962, has been at odds with much of the medical community for advocating large vitamin C doses to prevent and treat common colds. There still is no overwhelming consensus on that issue.

Dr. Paul Chretien of the National Cancer Institute said Thursday there are serious questions about the methods used to conduct the cancer study. But the results still are encouraging enough to indicate vitamin C may be useful in conjunction with other therapies in treating cancer, he said.

"This study should prompt a repeat study of an identical nature that is controlled by a statistician," said Chretien, chief of tumor immunology in NCI's surgical branch.

"There would be no question about the results if it had been done by random patient selection as a double-blind test in which neither doctors nor patients knew what medication was being given," he said.

In the study, conducted at Vale of Leven District General Hospital in Loch Lomondside, the researchers knew all patients getting vitamin C. The 1,000 control cases were drawn from the hospital's records over the last 10 years and not selected at random.

Statisticians say these methods leave room for unintentional bias in selecting patients and interpreting results.

In the study, patients were listed as "terminal" on the date anticancer treatment, such as surgery, drugs and radiation, was abandoned, or when they were hospitalized for "terminal care."

The 100 patients, who suffered with a variety of cancers, received 10 grams of vitamin C per day intravenously for 10 days and the same amount orally thereafter.

The researchers concluded that there is strong evidence that the treatment increased survival time "by a factor of about 3 for most" patients in the experiment.

They added, "It is our opinion that a similar effect would be found for untreatable cancer patients in other countries."

The researchers said 16 percent of the vitamin C patients survived for more than a year, and those treated generally felt better.

SPARTANBURG, S.C. (AP) — North Carolina's gubernatorial candidates nearly had an impromptu television debate Thursday night but Jim Hunt, the Democrat, insisted that he and David Flaherty appear separately.

Hunt came here thinking the candidates would each tape half of the 30-minute program. When he arrived, however, he learned that he was only minutes ahead of Flaherty.

The program, to be broadcast Sunday at 10:30 p.m., was taped by WSPA-TV. Though the station is in South Carolina, about half of its audience is in the western part of North Carolina.

Hunt said later that he had assumed he and Flaherty were to appear at different times. The letter inviting him to the show described it as having a "Face the Nation" format, he said.

Flaherty, however, said he understood from the letter and telephone conversations his staff had with the station that the program would be a debate format. He complained that Hunt's refusal deprived the voters of a chance to see them together.

Hunt, when asked on the program why he refused to appear with Flaherty, said that he had thought the candidates were to appear separately. He also noted that an hour-long debate between them had been televised statewide and that he and Flaherty have appeared on the same platform on several other occasions.

Throughout the campaign, Flaherty has sought joint appearances and televised debates.

With the exception of the one televised debate and a few joint appearances, Hunt has sidestepped Flaherty's efforts. As is common for a frontrunner, Hunt has taken the stand that events such as debates stand to benefit his opponent most. "Why should I give him free publicity?" Hunt said earlier in the campaign.

The television show capped a day of campaigning for Hunt that began before dawn.

Flaherty, on the other hand, has stopped active campaigning, appearing only in cases where the commitments had been made long in advance. A decision was reached Monday night to drop the usual rush around the state and to spend the campaign's last effort on a half-hour television special.

Flaherty, who said he began his day about 4 a.m., taped the show Thursday. He refused to reveal details, but said, "It's different from anything that's ever been done." It will be aired Saturday night.

One factor in Flaherty's decision to curtail campaign activities was an illness that cropped up last weekend. An intestinal ailment that is still present and undiagnosed put the candidate in the hospital Sunday. It will be treated after the election, he said.

Hunt spent his day in the western Piedmont, beginning with a breakfast in Monroe then a number of appearances in Charlotte.

At the University of North Carolina at Charlotte, Hunt indicated that if elected, he would be interested in seeking a second term if it becomes possible. He said he would ask the 1977 legislature to let the people vote on whether to change the state constitution so that the governor would have the veto power and a chance to serve two terms.

"The veto power is my top priority," he said, adding that he would still vigorously support the second term provision even if it forbade the incumbent—him—from enjoying benefit of the change.

"It's for the people, not the governor," he said. "A governor needs those tools to help carry out the mandate of his election," he said in an interview.

Hunt later appeared in two 10th congressional district rallies. At the first one near Shelby, he began by saying "I'm glad to be here in Cleveland County," only to find out he was in Burke County and no one had told him the site of the rally was just across the county line. Laughter exploded from the more than 200 Democrats on hand.

Hunt then went to Gastonia for a rally attended by about 400 Democrats. He urged those on hand to support the full Democratic ticket and gave heavy emphasis to boosting Jimmy Carter.

Pupils Work For Stadium

Eighth grade students from Farmville Middle School at nearby Farmville, spent a cool, crisp but sunny Saturday last weekend washing cars to raise funds to help enlarge East Carolina University's Ficklen Stadium.

Their efforts netted $100 which has been contributed toward the $2.5 million goal of the stadium fund drive. At the same time, they issued a challenge, according to Gino M. Abessino, assistant principal.

"We hope the stadium drive goal is realized quickly," Abessino wrote to Dr. Ray Minges, Pitt fund drive chairman. He added, "We challenge all other schools in eastern North Carolina to meet our total."

In accepting the $100, Minges said, "Your spirit and donation illustrates the cooperative enthusiasm that is necessary if we, as a team, can hope to reach our Pitt County goal of one million dollars."

How's The Weather?

By The Associated Press
The current cold snap is expected to slip out to sea, leaving behind record low temperatures across inland North Carolina.

A 23 degree reading at Asheville airport this morning set an all time low for October at that spot, breaking the old record set in 1965 by one degree. A low of 31 at midnight equaled the low for the date at Charlotte, and a 33 reading was a record at Wilmington.

Other records included lowest maximums of 49 at Charlotte, 48 at Greensboro and 49 at Raleigh-Durham, breaking marks set as far back as 1936.

The cold high pressure is to begin drifting out of the state today, led by some warmer westerly winds.

Today will be sunny with temperatures moderating somewhat during the afternoon. Some clouds will appear in the western portion of the state later today and tonight.

Some rain is expected to spread into the western and southern counties Saturday as a low pressure area is beginning to form over the western Gulf of Mexico. That should head northeast toward North Carolina, arriving during the weekend and leaving rain by Sunday.

Yesterday daytime highs averaged in the upper 40s to low 50s across the state. The highest report was 54 at Jacksonville, while the coldest high was 44 at West Jefferson.

Temperatures fell to freezing or below away from the coast by midnight, dipping into the 20s during the early morning except near the coast.

Pilot Club Pays Honor To Sue Howell

A resolution of appreciation was given in honor of Greenville Pilot Club's only active charter member, Sue C. Howell, at the club's October meeting.

Mrs. Howell was honored for her 19 years in the Greenville Pilot Club, her enthusiasm and inspiration to others, service to the community, and her life's example of the true meaning of Pilot.

Along with a copy of the resolution, a gift of $100 in honor of Mrs. Howell will be sent to Pilot International as a donation to the Pilot International Foundation, a special project for the handicapped.

The covered-dish dinner meeting, honoring Founders' Day, was co-hosted by members of the Rose High Anchor Club and the Greenville Pilots. Foreign students at East Carolina University were invited guests.

Speaker for the evening was Mrs. Howell, who recounted memorable occasions in the history of the Greenville Pilot Club—its beginnings, growth and intentions.

Anchor vice president Lois Phelps told of the recent trip to Valley Forge, Pa., where five Rose High Anchors attended a leadership conference earlier in October. The Greenville Pilot Club helped with the expenses of the trip.

During the business meeting that followed, division reports were given by Mavis Butts and Shirley Moore. Special reports were heard from the Community Service Projects Committee, the Fund-Raising Committee, and the delegates to the Fall Council. Announcements included information on the Christmas Tour of Homes being sponsored by Jarvis Memorial United

After we had traced Russian Tea back to a 1925 cookbook that includes recipes from various parts of the United States, another researcher told us that in recent years this delicious beverage has been particularly favored in the South. This may be because, according to a 1951 Southern cookbook, Russian Tea was then "served often for state and social parties at the North Carolina Executive Mansion" in Raleigh.

The Executive Mansion recipe includes tea, spice and citrus juice. Present-day cooks who are in a "waste not, want not" mood may be interested in the following directions for grating the peel (usually discarded) from oranges and lemons, drying it at home in a regular or microwave oven and using it in the tea instead of citrus juice. One caution: commercially dried orange and lemon peel is not suitable for use in this particular recipe.

RUSSIAN TEA

3 tea bags
15 whole cloves
3 whole cinnamon sticks
2 tablespoons home-dried grated orange peel, see directions below
1 teaspoon home-dried grated lemon peel, see directions below
3 cups boiling water

Into a large teapot, turn the tea bags, cloves, cinnamon, grated orange and lemon peel. Add water; stir; steep 5 minutes. Serve in 6 to 8-ounce glasses; use a tea strainer and put a silver teaspoon in each glass to absorb the heat as you pour the tea. Pass sugar. Makes 4 servings.

DRIED GRATED ORANGE AND LEMON PEEL
Wash and dry 5 oranges; grate enough peel from them to make 6 tablespoons. Wash and dry 6 lemons; grate enough peel from them to make 6 tablespoons. Spread the orange peel in a single layer over a large cookie sheet; spread the lemon peel in a single layer over another large cookie sheet. Dry in a preheated 200-degree oven, alternating and turning the pans as necessary, for about 1 hour. Cool. Makes about 3 tablespoons of each kind of peel. Store in small covered jars. The dried peels not needed for the Russian Tea may be added in judicious amounts to baked products, sauces and frostings.

To dry in a countertop microwave oven, grate enough orange peel to make ¼ cup; you'll need about 3 oranges. Spread in a single layer between paper towels. Microwave 3 to 4 minutes for a 600-watt oven, adjusting the time if the wattage is lower or higher. If a slight dampness remains, finish drying at room temperature. Makes about 2 tablespoons. Use the same method for drying lemon peel; you'll need 4 lemons to make the ¼ cup called for. Store in small covered jars.

PRICE RISE

NEW YORK (UPI) — The retail cost of diamonds rose 35 per cent last year, and the price of gold has jumped about 200 per cent in the past five years, says the Insurance Information Institute, which recommends periodic reappraisal for diamonds and other jewelry to be sure they are adequately insured.

Daughter's Joy Is Rated As 'Zero'

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I recently attended the wedding of a dear friend. It was the second marriage for both of them. The bridegroom's married daughter attended the wedding dressed completely in black. She wore no jewelry whatsoever and all during the ceremony, she wept so uncontrollably she had to be comforted by relatives. What would you make of such dress and behavior? WEDDING OR FUNERAL?

DEAR WEDDING OR: Were I rating her joy on that occasion, on a scale of one to 10, I'd give her a zero.

DEAR ABBY: I disagree with your answer to the 47-year-old woman, signed PUSHOVER, who described her date as the kind of man she'd like to marry, even though she went to bed with him on their first date. She regretted having yielded so easily, thinking that now she may not be "marriage material."

You said a man may want a pushover for a date, but not a wife. That's upholding a double standard!

I would hope that the man would appreciate her as a sensitive, affectionate woman ready to act on her own basic needs. I would hope, also, that she would have a little more pride than she seems to in her honest desire for fulfillment and closeness. If she did, she might be asking herself whether a man who did not appreciate this in her would be the kind of man SHE wants to marry.

If I were testing for marriage material, I'd score affection, honesty and openness a lot higher than game-playing and holding out.

ALSO 47

DEAR 47: What I call caution, modesty and restraint on a first date you see as "game-playing and holding out." I prefer the former, and I think most men do, too.

DEAR ABBY: There is a simple, foolproof way to pay your restaurant check when you are consistently ignored by the management and waiter after you are long finished with eating and would like to leave. I first used this method at the Ft. Riley Officers' Club, but it works in almost any kind of establishment from Howard Johnson's to the Waldorf.

The Daily Reflector, Greenville, N.C.—Friday, October 29, 1976—3

You simply draw a reasonable facsimile of your restaurant check on the tablecloth or placemat. If you know what you owe, fill it in. If you don't, write in what you were served, sign your name, print your name and address and note how long you waited.

If the management has the guts to send you a bill instead of an apology, you can then pay it.

W.T. RABE

(P.S. The cavalry officer running the Ft. Riley Club requested that I pay $2 for the tablecloth, which I did. I then insisted that I owned the tablecloth and asked him to cut out the check, which I framed. He finally thought it was funny, too, and pinned the tablecloth with the hole in it to the wall of his pantry for his help to see.)

DEAR W.T.: That might have worked at the Ft. Riley Officers' Club back in the days when a tablecloth was $2, but I don't recommend that stunt today at the Waldorf or any other posh eatery.

Some Kids Need Sports

STORRS, Conn. (AP) — Children who show delinquent tendencies get more out of individual sports such as weightlifting, backpacking and bicycling than from team-oriented ones, says an athletics instructor here.

Dr. Andrew Yiannakis, assistant professor of physical education at the University of Connecticut, says that organized athletic programs have little appeal to potential delinquents because they represent "just another classroom."

The coaches and rules and regulations reflect outside authority and controlled conditions that potential delinquents hate, he added.

Instead of competitive games with rigid structures, Yiannakis recommends that children who show delinquent tendencies be

Don't Spoil The Weekend Fun

This is Halloween weekend and we hope it will be a time of fun for all, but with no adverse developments.

Chief of Police Glenn Cannon has urged parents to see that their trick-or-treating children are at home by nightfall on Sunday night. He urged that children trick or treat in their own neighborhoods and that they accept nothing from strangers.

It was also suggested that children wear nothing over their faces which might obstruct their vision, and that parents accompany their children on trick-or-treating rounds.

Extensive plans have been made by the Greenville Night Club Association and by the city to avoid any repetition of the problems of last year. Some downtown streets will be blocked off to traffic Saturday night for the safety of pedestrians. Club owners are planning a music festival near Stokes Sunday.

A number of activities are planned on campus in connection with Homecoming weekend.

It should be a pleasant and untroubled weekend for everyone—but it will take the cooperation of all of us to make it so.

Larger GI Bill Checks

By JERRY T. BAULCH
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Some 1.2 million veterans attending school under the GI Bill will begin getting higher benefit checks, starting Monday, and the first check will have an extra bonus.

A new law boosts veterans' education benefits 8 per cent, effective Oct. 1. The new benefit checks due in the mail Monday also will include the higher benefits that were retroactive to Oct. 1.

The law also increased from 36 months to 45 months the eligibility time period for undergraduate study; previously the extra nine months could be used only for graduate study.

Since men and women who join the military after Jan. 31 are not eligible for that program, the VA and the Pentagon are preparing a new program for them. Under the new law, men and women joining the military after Dec. 31 may contribute $50 to $75 monthly from their salaries, up to a maximum of $2,700. The VA will match that at the rate of $2 for every $1 contributed, and the total can be used for education.

VA Administrator Richard L. Roudebush said that for a single veteran attending school full time, the new monthly allowance is $292, up $22 from the previous rate. The new monthly rate for veterans enrolled in full-time training with one dependent is $347, compared with $321; with two dependents $396, compared with $366. For each dependent above two, the rate is $24, up by $2.

The 8 per cent increase applies to all GI Bill training, except

Land Map System Detailed

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Imagine being able to walk into the county office building, push the buttons on a computer and being handed a sheet of paper giving every possible detail involving a particular piece of property.

In seconds, you would have in hand a map of the tract with buildings outlined on scale; the tax record; the land use classification and zoning reference; the complete history of the property as far as records exist, including all title transfers, mortgages, etc.

Further, the printout would show a soil survey giving slopes, flood-plains, and major types of soil important to decisions on locating building foundations or particular crops in agriculture.

Taxes, Too

Too, the evaluations for tax purposes, appraisals, a complete description of the property (size of building, type of construction, fixtures and appliances, etc.) and current tax assessment information would be shown.

That is the dream of members of the legislative Property Tax Study Commission chaired by State Rep. Robert A. Jones, D-Rutherford.

But it admittedly is a long way in the future. So far, not even a tentative price tag can be put on such a "Tomorrow File" approach.

The task would involve computerizing centrally all current data available from several different sources on any given piece of property, building in a system for constant updating, and designing a way to standardize evaluations and description techniques statewide.

Then the even bigger task: mapping with aerial photos all land in the state. Currently only 11 North Carolina counties have what are considered adequate maps. Fifty-five have no maps at all. The remaining 44 counties have a property mapping system of sorts.

Even in the face of such obstacles, however, the study group thinks procedures should be nailed down now so that at some future date things will come together properly. A proposal will be submitted in the 1977 General Assembly standardizing records and mapping techniques and providing state help to county governments wanting to move ahead with mapping and computer programming.

Many Uses

Aside from the obvious benefits of the planned system, it will have major uses in some other fields: statewide land management will eventually call for detailed land classification and use designations. The maps will be helpful in that; there is much agitation for speedier property revaluation for tax purposes than every eight years as now required. The maps would permit constant revaluation.

Fringe benefits also are many, the study group has found: presently much land owned by local or state governments is "lost" and it is reliably estimated that thousands of acres would be "discovered" through thorough mapping and record-updating; considerable unowned acres will also be found, some think.

For landowners and purchasers, the computers would provide, in seconds, complete title information without lengthy delay for a record would immediately reveal any property line discrepancies and overlaps so owners could take steps to straighten them out avoiding future disputes.

The study commission is drafting a proposed law for action in the 1977 General Assembly moving the proposal into gear, with mapping as the first step, and creation of a technical committee to write regulations and oversee the system included. Even though completion may be years away, the commission hopes to move in the direction of improved land records on a uniform basis.

Arrived-At Conclusions

WASHINGTON—As the exciting election campaign comes to a close we must come to the following conclusions.

Had Gerry Ford chewed gum on the second debate and walked at the same time, he would have never put his foot in his mouth.

The best time for Israel to get weapons from the United States is during the last three weeks of the presidential campaign.

The best time for American farmers to get increased supports for grain is three weeks before the election.

Vice President Rockefeller points with the wrong finger.

Jimmy Carter does things in his heart that he could be arrested for if he did them in 30 of the 50 states he's been campaigning in. President Ford can't balance his checkbook.

If Ford is elected, he will probably appoint a Polish-American to the Supreme Court.

If Carter is elected, he will pardon the editor of Playboy magazine.

Congress is responsible for everything that has gone wrong in the United States since Ford was sworn in as President.

It doesn't pay to play golf in Washington with a lobbyist.

The United States, according to President Ford, is respected throughout the world and anyone who says it isn't is tearing down the United States.

The United States, according to Jimmy Carter, is not respected around the world because Henry Kissinger makes secret promises he never keeps.

The League of Women Voters is on Eugene McCarthy's enemy list.

When someone apologizes for a goof during a presidential campaign, it's called a "clarification."

If Jimmy Carter gets elected, according to President Roosevelt reiterated today that a "handful" of employers were spreading pay envelope "propaganda" against the Social Security Act and linked with it a suggestion that it "might be well for them to move to some other nations in which they have greater faith."

Speaking in Wilkes Barre's miners park on John Mitchell day — set aside to honor the leader of the union movement among miners — the President said:

"Today we aim to make the public conscious that the welfare of labor is the welfare of all."

But for the most part we spoke of the Social Security Act and its system of old age pensions and unemployment insurance, contending that some employers were trying to "mislead and coerce labor" with regard to it.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Post-Watergate Politics

By ROWLANE EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

NASHVILLE — Sen. William Brock of Tennessee, who has been emerging as the principal national hope for the future of the Republican party's dominant conservative wing, is fading badly in his race for reelection and may lose on an issue typifying post-Watergate politics: his personal income tax returns.

Nobody alleges any illegality by Brock. Rather, his refusal to fully disclose details of his personal finances has been compounded by the revelation that he paid only $2,026 federal income tax on $51,670 of adjusted gross income for 1975. The political result is reflected by a campaign button sweeping the state: "I paid more taxes than Brock."

Simultaneously, Brock has failed to draw ideological battle lines between himself and his opponent, former Democratic state chairman James Sasser, a 40-year-old Nashville lawyer making his first try at public office. Sasser is unquestionably a liberal and surely would vote that way in the Senate but shows no ideological inclination in his campaign based on "trust" and "credibility."

Although the race is considered a tossup, there are confident smiles in the Sasser camp and worried frowns in the Brock camp — underlining the problems of conservative Republicans in 1976. Tennessee is no less conservative now than it was in 1970 when Brock defeated liberal Sen. Albert Gore on the Vietnam war, gun control, school prayer and racial busing; today, however, the issues are less emotional and Sasser is more careful than Gore. Furthermore, in post-Watergate politics, how much taxes Bill Brock pays is more important than what he thinks.

Actually, Brock has evolved into one of the Senate's most thoughtful and innovative conservatives since arriving six years ago with a reputation of a neanderthal. While the hard right grumbles he is moving leftward, Brock has attempted conservative solutions—often using tax incentives—for such human problems as unemployment and catastrophic illness. He has been expected to seek the presidential nomination in 1980 with considerable conservative support.

What got Brock's Senate reelection in trouble in the first place was not of his own making: President Ford's precipitous fall in Tennessee, mainly because of Jimmy Carter's popularity but also because of the outspoken First Lady's impact on the important Baptist vote. "We still haven't recovered from Betty Ford here," one state Republican leader told us.

What happened next was Brock's own fault: his decision not to publicly disclose details of a blind investment trust containing his considerable inherited assets. When the numbers of his 1975 tax return leaked out, millionaire Brock released the figures showing that heavy business losses and charitable deductions resulted in a tax payment lower than what is paid by most working men. By refusing to reveal the taxes paid for earlier years, he keeps alive an issue that could have been disposed of weeks ago by full disclosure.

Democrats have had a field day. Addressing a coffee in Kingsport last Friday, Sasser evoked hearty laughter and applause by saying that a Brock billboard showing the Senator holding two fingers closely together "indicates that he's saying, 'I just paid that much tax last year.'"

This non-issue dominates the campaign. Sen. Howard Baker, probably the state's most popular politician, came to Nashville last week to boost Brock. What received the publicity, however, was Baker responding to a press conference question by saying yes, he would disclose his own tax returns in any future campaign.

Frustrated and annoyed by the turn his campaign has taken, Brock tried to assume the offensive last Thursday by declaring that Sasser is a McGovern liberal who "has sought in recent weeks to hide his philosophy behind a negative campaign." This will be Brock's constantly reasserted theme in the campaign's final week.

But Sasser is no Albert Gore; in the eyes of prominent Democrats here, he is less idealistic and less venturesome but also less vulnerable. Sasser not only denies any ties to George McGovern but says he opposes gun controls, forced busing, the Kennedy-Corman

To the editor:

There are approximately 30,000 registered voters in Pitt County. In the August Primary approximately 12,000 voted. That is 40 percent of all registered voters in Pitt County. In the State approximately 38 percent of all the registered voters voted, so we in Pitt County did average better than the State, but is that anything to brag about?

There are approximately 77,000 people in Pitt County. Of course all are not of voting age but the majority are. In the Primary Election it cost the taxpayers approximately $5 per vote cast. This cost of course goes down as the number of voters increase. In the Primary Election 15 percent of the population of Pitt County elected the officials to run in the November General Election, to make the decisions for all the people.

Are you a registered voter? If not Why? Did you vote in the August Primary? If not WHY? You took the time and effort to put your name on the voter registration list, why didn't you take the time to exercise your privilege and right to vote a secret ballot?

Many people in our countries have lost their right to free and secret ballot because of this very thing, apathy. No matter which party you belong to, you have an obligation not only to your country but to yourself to vote.

On November 2, 1976 you will have the opportunity to cast your vote in what could very well be the most important election of your life time. Will you do so?

If you stay away from the polls and do not vote on November 2, 1976, please don't get up on November 3, and gripe about who was elected to lead our county, state and country for the next four years. If so, why don't you have your name removed from the voter registration list and save the tax payers' money? See you at the Polls on November 2, 1976.

Nuclear Referenda On Nov. 2

By STAN BENJAMIN

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) —

Although overshadowed by presidential and congressional elections, the Nov. 2 balloting will also determine the future of nuclear power in six states.

The nuclear power industry beat back an antinuclear initiative in a California referendum last June, only to see six more spring up on the ballots of Arizona, Colorado, Washington, Oregon, Montana and Ohio.

The passage of any one of them on Nov. 2 would be a grave setback to the nuclear industry.

All six ballot proposals are essentially similar, requiring guarantees of safety and full accident-compensation, affirmed by both houses of a state's legislature, before that state can permit a nuclear power plant or related facility.

Environment groups and other supporters say such guarantees are justified by the alleged hazards of nuclear power.

The nuclear and electric utility industries say the proposed guarantees are so tough they would actually ban further nuclear power in any state adopting them, leading to electricity shortages.

Opponents of the initiatives are pouring millions of dollars into campaigns against the proposals, outspending the antinuclear forces many times over.

In Ohio alone, utility-backed foes of the antinuclear initiative have a $1 million budget, 25 times the budget of its supporters, a coalition of seven consumer groups.

The pattern appears similar in the other states, but the ballot proposals seem to stand a better chance of passage, here and there, than the dollar-power alone might indicate.

In Washington, public opinion polls have indicated a strong chance of passing the antinuclear measure; observers in Oregon believe the measure has an even chance or better, while polls indicate a close vote.

In Montana, without benefit of opinion polls, both sides were predicting a close contest.

In Colorado, a poll published earlier this month by the Denver Post showed that 55 per cent of those polled appeared to favor the antinuclear measure, 25 per cent were against and 20 per cent were undecided.

In Ohio, both sides claimed favorable polls but the measure is opposed by a broad range of interest groups.

An independent poll in Arizona recently pointed to failure of the initiative in November.

All six ballot initiatives would require that nuclear facilities be proven safe by prior equipment testing before they may be built or operated within the state.

All six would also require proof that nuclear materials will be safely stored and handled, before facilities can be authorized.

All six would require that the nuclear power industry assume responsibility for "full compensation" of all damages resulting from a nuclear accident.

Five of them include a ban on nuclear facilities until and unless Congress repeals the so-called Price-Anderson Act, which provided liability insurance for commercial nuclear power plants, but only up to a limit of some $560 million; these states would

UNDERSTANDING

SCRIPTURE

People who are of a skeptical turn of mind complain a great deal about the difficulty of understanding Scripture. They say that there is very little in religion about which one can be sure.

It is true that there are many things in the Bible that are hard to understand. But as the great Englishman, William Willberforce, said many decades ago, "Let it also be remembered that if in Scripture some things are difficult, that which we are most concerned to know is plain and obvious." While nobody has seen God, we see continually in the world around us plain evidence of design. An intelligent power made the universe and now sustains it.

The teachings of Jesus are difficult to put into operation but not difficult to understand. Love, fair dealing, goodness, and faith can be understood by everyone. God has not left us in the dark. The Christian gospel is the proclamation of His intentions for mankind.

insist on unlimited liability. Only Ohio's nuclear initiative omits a specific requirement for removal of federal liability limitation of nuclear facilities by municipal corporations. In all six initiatives, authorization of nuclear facilities would require explicit approval by both houses of the state legislature.

In Arizona and Ohio, a simple majority in each house would be required; and in Montana a legislative joint resolution would be called for, also apparently meaning majority votes.

In Colorado, Washington and Oregon, legislative approval would require a two-thirds vote of each house — a stiff requirement that particularly outrages foes of the ballot initiatives.

Nuclear facilities would also require approval of the governor in Arizona's version of the initiative; of the sitting council in Washington; and of a review board in Montana.

Oswald Greager, of Richland, Wash., co-chairman of the campaign against that state's nuclear initiative, says that "the sponsors aren't interested in regulated nuclear safety. They want to ban the construction of any more nuclear power plants, and they intend to achieve that goal with bureaucratic suffocation, political leverage and public fear."

Peter Lauritzen of Seattle, heading the proinitiative campaign, argues that it will mean "we have a voice in future energy decisions. These decisions should not be left solely to a small number of utility executives."

The six initiatives differ mainly in defining the cut-off dates, beyond which new facilities or applications would have to meet the proposed requirements.

That was one lesson apparently learned from the defeat of the California nuclear initiative, which could have applied tough new regulations to power plants already in operation, raising the fear of actual plant shutdowns and power shut-offs.

An anti-initiative advertisement in Washington State shows a light bulb slowly fading, but in fact the six November ballot proposals would probably affect no existing power plants, although they might cover some already under construction.

Passage of any one of these initiatives would not affect the legal status of nuclear plants in other states, but would certainly inject one more element of uncertainty into the already nervous industry, encouraging the antinuclear forces to stronger efforts.

Maddox Said Looking Ahead To 1980.

By DICK PETTYS
Associated Press Writer
ATLANTA (AP) — Off to a late start and with a budget that wouldn't even run a good congressional race, American Independent party presidential candidate Lester Maddox admits he doesn't have much of a chance in next week's election. But his campaign manager, Ned Young, one of a handful of unpaid Maddox volunteers, suggests that Maddox may spend his time after the election building the party into a major force for the 1980 election. The former Georgia governor, who was Jimmy Carter's predecessor in that office, is on the ballot in 20 states, according to his staff, and is waging write-in campaigns in three others. He is not on the ballot in Georgia.

With a budget of just $53,000 — most of that spent on his travel expenses — and no national television advertising campaign, Maddox's efforts have been limited. He's taken campaign trips to 10 states, and he planned to wind up with visits to Salt Lake City today, appearances in Alabama Saturday, and a final swing in Alabama, Mississippi, and Tennessee on Monday.

He has appeared at airport news conferences, walked through shopping centers and given speeches, using a folksy person-to-person style that he refined during his Georgia campaigns.

Maddox won the nomination of the American Independent party in August on a platform that among other things advocates segregation.

Some may remember the 61-year-old Georgian as the slight, balding chap who was governor of Georgia from 1967 through 1970, and used to pop up in parades riding a bicycle backwards.

Those with longer memories may recall that he gained national attention in the early 1960s with a determined stand against integrating his restaurant. He sold it rather than serve blacks.

Barred by law from seeking a consecutive term, Maddox ran for lieutenant governor, defeated the incumbent, and took the oath of office for the state's second highest job moments after surrendering the governor's office to Carter.

He soon became Carter's most vigorous opponent in the state Capitol.

Defeated when he ran for governor again in 1974, Maddox had been out of the headlines until winning the third party's nomination.

He conceded last week during an interview at Paducah, Ky., that he didn't have much of a chance. But he added, "I didn't have much chance of winning the Georgia governorship, either. I think I have as much chance to be elected president as I did to be elected governor of Georgia."

As a presidential candidate, Maddox attacks both Carter and Ford, saying Carter "has a socialistic platform similar to (Communist party candidate) Gus Hall's," and that Ford's platform was dictated by former California Gov. Ronald Reagan.

"They're both soft on communism and weak on Americanism," he says.

Campaign director Young, also conceding that "it would be extremely difficult to win," says Maddox's nomination may mark a rebirth of the party founded by Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace.

"There'll be an executive committee meeting after the election and a whole revamping of the party. We'll probably hire an executive director and become ballot-qualified in all 50 states. In 1980, we'll be in 50 states with adequate funds. It's time the AIP settled down and started acting like a big party. And as titular head of the party, I would think Lester Maddox will play a big role in that."

New Official Name For C-of-C Now In Effect

The official name of the Chamber of Commerce will now be the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce Inc. according to Don Collier, President of the local Chamber.

He explained that this is the outcome of the consolidation of the formerly two existing corporations, the Greenville Chamber of Commerce formed in 1949 and the merger organization of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association of 1963.

The Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce will have the same objectives and goals as the former organizations. The new By-Laws of the organization do allow for a restructuring of the business and professional organization to get the best job done in total community development.

Collier said, The Chamber of Commerce is a voluntary organization that unites the business and professional people in an effort to solve the problem of a growing area. "The chamber is people who work collectively to create a pooling of resources from which to draw ideas, energies and finances," he said. The Chamber is not a department of the city, county or state government. The overall objective of the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce is to assure progressive, orderly, community development; effective government at all levels; and maintain a high climate for a sound expanding economy."

Presently the 460 members of the Chamber includes members in Ayden, Bethel, Falkland, Farmville, Fountain, Grifton, Grimesland, Kingston, Lewisville, New Bern, Rocky Mount, Stokes, Washington, Williamston, Winterville, Columbia, S. C. and Philadelphia.

A membership campaign will be held in the near future to enlist businesses and professionals in the area.

Ingram Offers '2 Promises'

State Insurance Commissioner John Ingram, campaigning for reelection here Thursday, said that he is "again asking the people... to help us keep fighting for them against the special interests."

Ingram, who is seeking a second four-year term, noted that he made two specific promises in 1972: to abolish the Assigned Risk, and to abolish age and sex discrimination in automobile insurance.

The Democrat nominee said that, "Laws have been written on the books fulfilling these two promises."

He observed, "Even after the General Assembly changed the law and I approved the only plan ever to abolish age and sex discrimination, the insurance industry, through court appeal, is keeping our safe driving young people from getting the immediate benefits from the new law."

Rate reductions now in effect include 33 per cent for tobacco sales warehouses; 66.7 per cent for uninsured motorists; 50 per cent for mobile bulk tobacco barns; ten per cent for crop hail; 16.4 per cent for medical payments insurance; and 50 per cent for recreational motor homes, Ingram reported.

The commissioner added, "My record is clear — I have reduced rates and prevented unjustified increases. In spite of almost total insurance industry opposition, we in North Carolina have changed more laws to abolish discrimination than any other state."

Urge Care For Terminally Ill

NEW YORK (AP) — More suitable, humane institutions for the terminally ill were urged at a conference on death at Yeshiva University, an Orthodox Jewish institution. Dr. Ira S. Goldenberg, Yale University professor of clinical surgery, said "loneliness and helplessness dominate each day" for the terminally ill, and that present institutional settings "where cure and recovery are keystones of success become inappropriate and accentuate despair in the patient who anticipates the brevity of existence."

A musical program and Baby contest will be held Sunday at 5 p.m. The public is invited.

Campaign Marked By Religious Notes

Laymen Calling Other Baptists

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — A group of Baptist laymen in North Carolina is trying to set off a telephone campaign to make sure other Baptists in the state understand what Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter meant in his Playboy magazine interview. The idea is for Baptists to call other Baptists and suggest they call their friends, both in their own church and other churches, said W.T. Harris, a member of Pritchard Memorial Baptist Church in Charlotte. Harris, chairman of the board of Harris-Teeter Supermarkets, said the telephone campaign originated in a recently-formed organization called Baptist Laymen for Carter.

The organization was formed after the Rev. W.A. Criswell, pastor of the 19,000-member First Baptist Church of Dallas, Tex., recently criticized Carter for the interview and endorsed President Gerald Ford while Ford was visiting the church. Harris said he expects as many as 1,000 persons will be involved in the telephone campaign.

Sees 'Divisive Pull' On Purses

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP) — A Baptist World Alliance leader says that nondenominational groups are exerting a divisive "pull on the purses" of the churches. The Rev. Dr. Carl W. Tiller, associate secretary of the alliance, said many people are responding to "expensive advertising and promotional efforts" of nondenominational faith missions and relief organizations "seemingly unaware that our own Baptist denominational bodies are doing effective work toward accomplishing the same objectives."

Disagree Over Death Penalty

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — A lawyer and a theologian disagreed at a United Methodist conference here over whether the reinstatement of capital punishment will reduce homicides. Florida Atty. Gen. Robert L. Shevin argued it will, saying the "absence of capital punishment" was a major cause of a dramatic jump in the number of homicides to 22,500 annually in the period between 1965 and 1975 during the Supreme Court's ban on capital punishment.

But the Rev. Dr. L. Harold DeWolf, a United Methodist theologian, now teaching at Florida Southern College, blamed the easy availability of handguns and various social trends for the rise in homicides, saying capital punishment itself is "the killing of a human being."

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — You couldn't call it a hymn sing, but religious notes have run like a refrain through the presidential campaign. The reverent overtures still were sounding as the windup neared. Not to miss a beat, Democratic candidate Jimmy Carter met for about an hour with evangelical leaders in mid-October, just as the Republican, President Ford, had done the month before.

They also had huddled with Roman Catholic bishops. And they had given their assurance to Jews about sustaining the state of Israel. The religious chord also hummed through a score of other moral issues — abortion, honesty in government, Arab anti-Jewish pressure on business firms, the Supreme Court ban on school-sponsored prayers, racial justice, armaments, foreign policy, relieving the poor and jobs, even about taste in language.

Piracy Charges For 'Defector'

By RICHARD HOFER
Associated Press Writer

MUNICH, West Germany (AP) — The West German government has refused to return a young defector who hijacked a Czechoslovak airliner with 111 persons aboard and probably will try him on air piracy charges, authorities said.

The government rebuffed the Communist government's demand that the hijacker be returned immediately, and the Il-yushin 18 flew back to Prague before dawn today without him.

None of the other 104 passengers or six crew members sought asylum, police said, and all were aboard the four-engine turboprop when it took off from the Munich airport. Police said the hijacker was named Rudolf Becvar and that he was 26. Sources in Prague said he was a railway worker. The plane had loaded at Prague Thursday for a flight to eastern Czechoslovakia, and Becvar took control of it as soon as its engines were started, a source at the Prague airport reported.

He was armed with a Russian submachine gun and a Czech pistol. It was not disclosed how he slipped the weapons through the tight security checks at the Prague airport. Evidently mindful of the killing of another Czechoslovak pilot during a hijacking four years ago, authorities in the Prague control tower told the captain to use his own judgment in responding to Becvar's demands.

The pilot took off nearly five hours behind schedule at 9:30 p.m. and landed in Munich at 10:58 p.m. Becvar immediately surrendered and was taken to the airport police station for questioning. The police said the young man was obviously politically motivated and hoped to secure asylum in the West. But West Germany is leading a campaign in the United Nations to get an international agreement against the taking of hostages.

Three years ago, a West German court sentenced nine young Czechoslovaks to prison terms ranging from three to seven years for bringing a Slovaik plane with 17 persons aboard across the border. The pilot of the plane was killed during a struggle in the cockpit, and the 22-year-old hijacker accused of firing the fatal shot hanged himself in his cell before the trial.

but offered the comparison to help voters make up their minds. Similar nonpartisanship was stressed by various other church appraisals of the issues, including those by the Roman Catholic bishops, the interdenominational National Council of Churches and by a series of articles for the Southern Baptist Press.

"Southern Baptists must neither support nor oppose Jimmy Carter simply because he is a fellow Southern Baptist," advised the Rev. C. Welton Gaddy of the Southern Baptist Christian Life Commission. "Episcopalians should neither support nor oppose Gerald Ford because he is an Episcopalian." But the church guidance about the issues flowed heavily, and paid political ads for the candidates showed up in religious publications.

At his meeting in the White House with evangelical leaders, Ford declared his "commitment to the Christian faith" and that he had a "relationship with Jesus Christ through my church and through my daily life."

"Prayer is very important to me," he told leaders of the National Association of Evangelicals and National Association of Religious Broadcasters. To questions, he also discussed ethical issues in various national and foreign policy matters. Carter, at his later meeting with some of the same leaders at a campaign stop in Indianapolis, also responded to questions, said he clings to the "Judeo-Christian ethic," that he prays "many times during the day," and reads the Bible daily.

"I haven't missed a day this year," he said. "It's a very good way in the hectic world of politics to close the evening with a quiet prayer and reading the Bible."

While the religious organizations shunned specific endorsements, some individual clergymen went all the way, coming out for one man or the other.

Ice On Bridge

Ice on the Memorial Drive Bridge across the Tar River was blamed for three separate traffic collisions involving six cars about 6:25 a.m. today. Officers said the ice formed from water flowing from a fire hydrant turned on to flush the city water mains in the area. Heaviest damage came when cars driven by Samuel Clifton Hobgood of Route 2, Farmville, Donald Ralph Mazingo of 104 Josie Lane and Robert Connor Merritt of 104 Deerwood Dr collided after skidding on the ice. Damage was estimated at $450 to the Hobgood car, $800 to the Mazingo vehicle and $400 to the Merritt vehicle. Vehicle operated by Johnny Ebron of 1504 Myrtle Ave. and Linda Cherry Williams of 1218 Myrtle Ave. collided after the Ebron car skidded across the roadway. Damage from that mishap was set at $150 to the Ebron car and $50 to the Williams auto. A car driven by Jeanette Parker Artis of 304 Roundtree Dr. struck the bridge railing when she applied brakes and her vehicle skidded after she saw the other collisions. Damage to her vehicle was estimated at $500.

CAN'T REACH HIM...

They call him a problem child. "Can't reach him," say some. "He won't respond," echo others. Young as he is, he's already been in trouble with the police. Why? There are lots of words, lots of phrases, to describe youngsters like this. The papers are full of them every day. There are lots of excuses given — for him, and for society. Are they valid? This boy has parents. Why can't they reach him? Is it, perhaps, because they can't really reach themselves? Because they've never found themselves? Self-discovery takes courage. It doesn't come easily. It takes help. It demands faith. The starting point for a quest of this kind is in the Church. This boy needs the Church. So do his parents. So, for that matter, do we all!

Recalls Role As A Patriotic Job

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Ralph Clontz, a 54-year-old Charlotte lawyer, worked as an FBI undercover agent spying on Communists in the United States as "a service to my country."

Clontz lived a double life from 1948 to 1953, spying on Communists' activities in North Carolina and New York. His testimony helped to convict Julius Irving Scales, a Greensboro native who spent 15 months in prison for his activities.

The case of Scales, now 56 and living in New York, is the subject of a play, "Limits of Dissent," which is being performed in the state.

Since his conviction, Scales has disavowed the Communist party. But Clontz contends that 25 years ago Scales "taught me most of what I knew about Communism."

In a recent interview, Clontz said his undercover work began after World War II when he was a law student at Duke University. Clontz, a veteran of military intelligence, wrote a letter to Army intelligence expressing concern of the talk of Communism he was hearing from other students.

The FBI asked him to investigate further.

"They wanted me to get inside, to be one of them so I could see what they were up to," Clontz said.

Scales, a University of North Carolina student, had announced his Communist affiliation in numerous letters to college newspapers across the state.

Clontz got in touch with Scales, who "wooded, tutored and nurtured me. He took me under his wing and taught me all I know about the Communist line."

Clontz' affiliation with Scales, son of a Greensboro developer, lasted two years before Clontz actually joined the party.

Clontz said Scales told him of a revolution which, in Scales' words, "will be a bloody time for all."

After Clontz graduated from law school, he moved to New York at Scales' request. There he worked for an insurance agent during the day and "six nights a week I worked for the party." His boss at the insurance company was the only outsider who knew his double identity.

Clontz said the FBI assigned him to attend meetings and rallies of organizations such as the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and the American Civil Liberties Union. His identity was so well concealed that a Communist leader once confided, "The only thing I can say about you, Clontz, is I'll never have to worry about seeing you in court."

From 1954 to 1958, Clontz testified at "seven or eight trials." The defendants were arrested for violating the Smith Act, which forbids membership in a organization that advocates violent overthrow of the government.

Scales, tried and convicted in Greensboro in 1955, appealed the decision and was found guilty a second time. He was sentenced to six years in jail but pardoned in 1962.

Scales, now a proof reader for the New York Times, said in an interview earlier this month, "Anyone has a right to make a damn fool of himself or to stick his neck out without being politically persecuted."

would "do the same thing again." "It's old fashioned, I know, but I believe in my country. I make no bones about it, no apologies," he said.

Ehrlichman Begins His Term In Desert Prison

SAFFORD, Ariz. (AP) — John D. Ehrlichman, highest ranking member of the Nixon administration to go to jail, will be treated "no better or no worse than anyone else" at the Swift Trail Federal Prison Camp here, officials say.

The 51-year-old former No. 2 adviser to Richard Nixon spent his first night in a barracks-like dormitory at this minimum-security desert prison. There are no bars or fences here, and prisoners are called by their names instead of wearing numbers.

One of Ehrlichman's daughters drove him to the camp at the base of 10,000-foot Mt. Graham on Thursday, after he received judicial permission to begin serving sentences for two Watergate convictions.

He had decided not to wait for a review of his case by the U.S. Supreme Court, which he hopes will reverse the convictions. Unless he wins a reversal, or his sentence is reduced at the discretion of his trial judge, Ehrlichman must serve 2½ years before parole.

The balding Ehrlichman, who had grown a thick beard in the months after the Watergate coverup trial, arrived at the prison clean shaven. Federal prison rules prohibit beards.

Camp administrator John Haddin said Ehrlichman would be placed in the general work pool for two weeks, and then given an assignment that suits his qualifications. Prison factories make trousers and leather gloves, with glove sales reaching $970,000 last year.

Haddin said glove-making is a "pretty popular assignment here because men can earn money at the job. The 100 men who make the gloves sit at sewing machines to do their work."

The prison has a few private rooms, but most inmates live in dormitories with 55 to 60 beds, Haddin said.

Art Espinoza, community programs director for the prison, said a third of the inmates are enrolled in college or vocational programs. Ehrlichman recently published his first novel, "The Company," and is said to be working on another.

Volunteers are trained in fighting forest fires, and more than 100 inmates fought fires in national forests in the summer of 1976.

Because the camp is minimum security, the walls are low and serve mainly for landscaping.

"If they decide to go, they go," said Haddin. "Then we apprehend them and send them to a tighter institution."

Ehrlichman, who was Nixon's domestic counselor, is serving concurrent sentences of 20 months to 5 years in the so-called White House "plumbers" case and 30 months to 8 years in the Watergate coverup. His codefendants in the latter, former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and former White House chief of staff H.R. Haldeman, remain free pending appeal.

Speaking At Dinner Meet

A.J. RAINWATER

A.J. "Jimmy" Rainwater, vice president of Logos Publishing Company, will speak to the Greenville Chapter dinner-meeting of the Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship Monday night.

His talk, his own personal testimony to Christ, is scheduled at 7:30 p.m. in the American Legion Building located on St. Andrews Drive. A dinner will be served at 6:45 p.m. All interested persons including ladies are invited to attend. There is no charge for the meeting.

Mr. Rainwater a Methodist, makes his home in Florence, S. C. He was in his family business from 1950 to 1958 in land development, real estate, insurance, public utilities and home construction.

In 1973 he was invited to serve as a Director of Logos International Fellowship and in 1976 he became active in the management of the Logos Fellowship.

of the Blue Ridge mountains had taxed some of the best minds in road engineering. The work was begun in 1968 by Asheville Contracting, which completed the rough grading on the upper and lower flat stretches.

But the rest of the construction was complicated by loose soil which geologists say turns to slush when wet and crumbles when it's dry. Also, numerous artesian springs sent water bubbling to the surface whenever the workers prepared to grade.

That problem was solved by drilling holes in the rock to drain off the water before it reached the surface.

At one point, a landslide almost a mile long occurred, resulting in North Carolina authorities stopping the work altogether for a while. They also terminated the Asheville firm's contract.

The engineers solved the landslide problem through a type of stepped grading called bench grading. It involved a series of three steep rises called cut slopes separated by flat steps or benches.

Authorities said the bench provides a greater base support than a continuous rise would. It also assures that if the soil moves, it will not slide further than the next step, they said.

Computer Systems To Be Sold To Red China

By BARRY SCHWEID Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials say the Ford administration will allow the sale of two "relatively advanced" computer systems to China as a symbol of support for the new government consolidating its power in Peking.

The Chinese say the first of the $2-million Control Data Corp. computers will be used to aid in oil exploration. The second, to be delivered later, is to assist in the detection of earthquakes which regularly plague the country, the Chinese said.

A knowledgeable U.S. official said "conceivably it has defense uses." However, informed sources said Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger overcame skepticism within the Pentagon and among some intelligence specialists with the argument that the sale has international political value.

In his third debate with Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter last Friday, Ford was asked whether he would sell military equipment to China.

"I do not believe that we, the United States, should sell, give or otherwise transfer military hardware to the People's Republic of China, or any other Communist nation, such as the Soviet Union and the like," he responded.

With Hua Kuo-feng, the new premier, succeeding the late Chairman Mao Tse-tung and gaining the upper hand over so-called "radical elements," the State Department was said to be eager to demonstrate friendship for the new regime.

The deal still must be approved by "COCOM," an association of NATO allies and Japan, that monitors the supply of sensitive equipment to the Soviet Union and other Communist countries.

Some research analysts at the Pentagon and others in some intelligence areas were said to have had reservations about the potential use of the computers in radar operations. As a general rule the Pentagon especially is reluctant to see foreign sales of electronic systems such as computers, semiconductors and microcircuitry, which this country leads in.

Sale of the Cyber 172 system is to be arranged through a French subsidiary of Control Data, with the Chinese restricting the number of Americans permitted to oversee the installation.

A group of Chinese computer experts on a recent visit to the United States had expressed interest in buying the computer, which one U.S. official described as "relatively advanced."

On the Chinese side, the deal demonstrates Peking's interest in importing western technology. Unlike radical Chinese elements, the moderates now in power are known for their practical interest in commercial ties with the West, an inclination the Ford administration wants to encourage.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market advanced slightly today, apparently drawing some encouragement from a spreading reduction in the bank prime lending rate.

Trading was quiet. The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up 1.91 at 954.54. Gainers held a 4-3 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Two major New York banks—Citibank and Morgan Guaranty Trust—this morning matched a quarter-point cut in the prime rate to 6 1/2 per cent initiated on Thursday by Chicago's Continental Illinois National Bank.

Late in the morning Philadelphia's First Pennsylvania Bank also joined in the move. The market, meanwhile, showed few ill effects from the government's report that its index of leading economic indicators posted its second decline in a row last month.

The news had been expected all week on Wall Street. Time Inc. topped the active list, down 3/4 at 33 1/4. A 100,000-share block traded at 33.

Aetna Life & Casualty, which reported a sharp rise in its quarterly operating earnings, picked up 1 1/4 to 33 1/4.

Texaco, on the other hand, slipped 3/4 to 27 on lower quarterly profits.

The NYSE's composite index rose .08 to 54.32 in the first hour.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .08 at 98.37.

NCNB Branch Closing Office On Five-Points

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
Some 62 years of banking activity ended today with the closing of North Carolina National Bank's Five Points office.

NCNB announced that it is consolidating its Five Points operations with the bank's main offices in conjunction with the Redevelopment Commission's plans to remove the structure under the Central Business District Urban Renewal program.

Ann Guerrant, manager of the Five Points office, said today that although she had only been working at the location for two years, some of the bank's employees had really become attached to the unusually shaped building.

The manager noted that the corner location was a convenient banking spot for many of NCNB's customers and she said that employees will miss a special element of personal contact with customers that was evident at the office.

"Many of our customers are already banking at the main office," she said, "and we look forward to serving them there."

She noted that "we hate to see the building come down but we realize that it is part of progress." Three of the five employees at Five Points will move to the main offices while the other two will relocate to the east end and west end offices, respectively, she reported.

Jerry Powell, vice president and NCNB city executive, said that the move from the Five Points facility was being made in "full cooperation with downtown merchants and the Redevelopment Commission's Urban Renewal Plan" for the Central Business District.

Powell added that the improved parking and banking facilities at the main office have attracted many of the downtown customers already.

The city executive pointed out that North Carolina National Bank is continuing to look for possible new office space in the Five Points section of town.

Originally constructed in 1914 for the National Bank of Greenville, the Five Points structure was occupied by State Bank and Trust Co. on July 25, 1931 and served as the bank's headquarters.

The wedge-shaped building became the main office of North Carolina National Bank following its merger with State Bank in 1969. The Redevelopment Commission acquired the building in 1972.

Joe Laney, commission executive director, pointed out that the building will probably be demolished sometime in November.

The urban renewal plan for the area calls for the removal of a total of seven structures, including the four-story bank building, according to Laney. The demolition program will allow for the development of a new square block, he said, and the elimination of the five point intersection.

Laney said that the new block will be bounded by Evans, Washington, Fifth and a new Sixth Street segment which will be cut through just north of the library. The block will encompass about one and one-half acres.

Planned reuse of the property calls for the southern portion of the block bordering on the new Sixth Street to be used for parking. The northern half of the block bordering on Fifth Street would be scheduled for commercial reuse, he reported.

Bucs Seek To Rebound vs. Western

Offensive Guard Randy Parrish

Parrish Finally Finds A Home

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Randy Parrish has a locker in the East Carolina football dressing room, but it's a wonder. Some of his teammates might think that he carries his gear in a bandana tied at the end of a stick.

Parrish, a senior guard on the team, has been in many places during the past five years, he probably feels like a hobo. Even at East Carolina, he's seldom had a place to call his own.

For instance, in his four-year career at East Carolina, he's played every position in the offensive line except for the split end.

"As a sophomore, I started out at guard," Parrish said. "But then, Timmy (Hightower) got hurt, and they moved me to center. He missed the first couple of games due to sickness, and I started. Then, he came back and got hurt right away, so I started nearly the entire year."

Even as a freshman, Parrish found himself moved around. "I played mostly on the scout team, and I played both at the guard and the center positions."

The following year, as a junior, Parrish thought that he might get back to his real position, that of guard. But it was not to be. Instead, he found himself moved again, this time to tackle. "This time, Ricky Bennett got hurt, so they moved me over to take his place. I started about half of the games and alternated the rest of them. I also played some at guard, and I was trained to play the tight end position, too," Randy said. "I never had to play tight end in a game, however."

Now, Parrish is a senior and at last is at the position he is meant to play—guard. Playing all those positions has not been a great problem for Parrish, but playing center did give him some moments. "You have to learn not to block high on the opposing player. Most of the time, the nose guard against you is a 'down' player too, and you've got to stay low on him to make your block. At guard and tackle, the biggest difference is in assignments."

Parrish is somewhat used to moving around. Prior to coming to East Carolina he did a lot of that. He started his high school football career at Wade Hampton High School in Greenville, South Carolina, but as a junior, a new school opened, and he was transferred to that. Then, as a senior, he was living in Lumberton, and played an additional year of prep ball at Fork Union Military Academy.

"All that moving really wasn't that much trouble to me. At the new school in Greenville, everyone was new, so it was no trouble. Then, in Lumberton, I just tried to do my best and I tried extra hard to make the team and start. Playing at Fork Union was no problem. That was an unbeaten team."

Parrish hopes that he won't be moving any more at least this year. He plans to finish up his education following the end of his football career, then go into coaching.

"When I was younger, I used to dream of a career in pro football, but there aren't too many 5-11½ inch linemen around in the pros. I realize that this isn't likely to come about."

Like some of the other Pirates, Randy enjoys skiing when not on the football field. "I've learned to like both water and snow skiing. It's a lot of fun."

He also enjoys hunting and fishing. Like his Pirate teammates, Randy is looking forward to Saturday's Homecoming game against Western Carolina. "We want to come back and win the rest of our games. Our goal of winning the Southern Conference is still alive, and we still think we can get a bowl invitation. But we've got to win these last four to have a shot at it."

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Saturday's game between East Carolina University and Western Carolina University might not have seemed like much at the start of the season, but it's taken on a lot more meaning than it had a couple of weeks ago.

East Carolina's loss, 12-10, last week to the University of North Carolina snapped a 12-game Pirate winning streak and gave the Bucs their first loss of the year. The Pirates still have high hopes of a bowl game invitation, but they must win the rest of their games to have a true shot at one.

And Western has proved to be a quality opponent, despite its Division II status. The Catamounts have a quality running game and they come into the game with a fine record, 5-3.

Perhaps the biggest surprise of the year for Western fans was the Cats' loss week to Wofford, 10-6. Some feel that Western might just have been looking ahead to East Carolina and did not have their full attention on the Terriers.

For the Pirates, the big job is getting the team back up after its heart-breaking loss to the Tar Heels.

"We seem to be over it," Coach Pat Dye said. "We had a real good practice on Monday, but things didn't go quite as well on Tuesday. I think the cold weather, plus probably we were looking back just a little helped this."

Dye does feel that the Pirates will be ready for the challenge of Western Carolina however.

"If we have the kind of players I think we have, we'll be ready to play. These players should take this loss as a personal one and want to win again."

As to the bowl possibilities, Dye said there is no way of knowing what lies ahead now. "We've just got to win the rest of them and let the bowl game take care of itself. If we don't win these last four, it won't make any difference about a bowl."

Two members of the Pirate team will be sidelined for the contest, both members of the defensive unit. Lineman Wayne Poole will sit out the game, along with end Fred Chavis. Cary Godette will be in his usual place at the end (Chavis was his back-up) while freshman Noah Clark will take over for Poole.

Clark is the lone freshman starting now, and Dye feels he is doing an outstanding job. "Western has a fine team," Dye warned. "Their defense may be the quickest we've played this year. They are small, but quick and they get around the ball on defense."

"On offense, they have a good line and a great tailback in Darrell Lipford. They've got two good receivers and a good quarterback who does a good job running the team."

Playing back in Ficklen Stadium should be a bonus for the Pirates. "Homecoming will help us too," Dye said.

Western runs its offense from the I formation, taking full advantage of Lipford's speed and ability. "He's a great runner," Dye said.

Through the first seven games, Lipford was the leading rusher for the Catamounts, picking up 728 yards on 189 carries, a 3.9 yard per rush average. Mitchell Ray, who backs up Lipford, has picked up 231 yards, while fullback Andy Jordan has rushed for 230.

Quarterback Keith Scoggins has hit on 52 of 118 passes for 869 yards. He's had 10 picked off, however. His chief targets have been Wayne Tolleson, who has 23 catches for 445 yards, and Fred Meadows, who has six for 141 and Wayne Smith with eight for 134.

Overall, the Catamounts have rushed for 1139 yards, while allowing 977. They have passed for 946 and allowed 570, giving them a 2085 to 1547 advantage in total offense.

Is here is a problem in their game, it could be in the punting game, averaging just 32.4 yards a kick. They have covered their kicks well, however.

East Carolina has rushed for 2169 yards and allowed 733 this year. They've picked up 423 on the ground and given up 667. Overall that's a 2592 to 1400 majority for the Bucs.

Eddie Hicks leads the rushing with 644 yards, while Willie Hawkins has picked up 483. Raymond Jones has 371, and Mike Weaver has 316. Weaver has hit on 28 of 58 passes for 405 yards, and has had just four picked off.

The Pirates will be going for their seventh win on the year, and their seventh in a row in Ficklen Stadium.

"There is nothing wrong with this team that a victory wouldn't cure."

So says John McVay, new head coach of the New York Giants, who will be looking for a victory Sunday to start off the second half of the National Football League season.

McVay, a refugee from one of the defunct World Football League's more successful teams, the Memphis Southmen, replaced Bill Arnsparger, fired last Monday after the Giants lost for the seventh time in seven games.

Their eighth game Sunday is at home against the Philadelphia Eagles. The Giants are slight favorites — just as they were back in the second week of the season, when they lost 20-7 in Philadelphia.

In Sunday's other games, it will be Dallas at Washington, San Francisco at St. Louis, Minnesota at Chicago, Denver at Oakland, Seattle at Los Angeles, the New York Jets at Buffalo, Kansas City at Tampa Bay, New England at Miami, New Orleans at Atlanta, San Diego at Pittsburgh, Cleveland at Cincinnati and Green Bay at Detroit. On Monday night, it will be Houston at Baltimore.

"I say this honestly," McVay insists, "I believe we are very, very close to being a good football team."

The loss to the Eagles was New York's first poor showing of the season. The week before, the Giants were beaten in the last minute 19-17 by Washington.

After the upset by the Eagles, things got out of hand. New York, playing one strong team after another, lost 24-10 to Dallas.

Dallas goes into Washington's RFK Stadium with a one-game lead over the Redskins and St. Louis in the National Conference East. The 'Skins are coming off a 20-10 upset of the Cardinals that kept them alive in the playoff race. And they've got a bit of history going for them against the Cowboys. Dallas hasn't won in Washington in five games — one of them a playoff — dating back to 1971.

The Cards, meanwhile, need a victory to stay close to the Cowboys and Redskins while the 49ers figure a victory is a must if they are to stay atop the NFC West, since they lead Los Angeles by one-half game and the Rams are prohibitive favorites over Seattle.

Minnesota can virtually clinch the NFC Central title. The Vikings are the NFL's only unbeaten team at 6-0-1 while Chicago is locked in second place with Green Bay and Detroit, each at 3-4.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Southern California's Ricky Bell played bit roles in television during the summer. He was a "policeman," a "parking lot attendant" and an "ambulance driver." But once the season began, Bell was taking no bit parts.

After two games he had averaged 182.5 yards per game on 61 carries for the Trojans and had five touchdowns.

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Henry Aaron, who wore uniform No. 44, hit 44 home runs four times in his career.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Karl Chandler sent letters to all 26 National Football League teams upon his graduation in 1974 from Princeton where he played center. He only got four responses, signed with the New York Giants, and has been one of the club's most versatile linemen ever since, shuffling back and forth from center and guard.

Wilson Cruises Past Rampants, 16-0

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Rose High School twice missed on third quarter scoring bids, and Wilson's Titans came back to score ten points in the final period to take a 16-0 win.

Wilson had gained a 6-0 lead in the first period on two field goals by Soc Gliarmis, but Rose threatened throughout the third period to tie it up or to take the lead.

But after a fumble spoiled the final chance, Wilson drove 84 yards for the lone touchdown of the night, with quarterback Tim Wilkerson scoring from the one. Gliarmis, who added the PAT, later kicked a third field goal for the final margin.

Rose was troubled by penalties and fumbles most of the night. The two combined to help Wilson along—or to hurt the Rampants. The Rose team drew a total of 80 yards in penalties, and lost three of nine fumbles. Wilson, in contrast, had 50 yards in penalties, and lost its only fumble.

Still, despite it all, the Rampants weren't out of the game until Wilson's touchdown drive staked the Titans to a 13-0 lead midway through the final period.

It could have been worse, too, as Wilson was on the Rose nine when the game ended.

The defeat dropped Rose to an 0-4 Division I record, while Wilson is now 4-0 and has iced a share of the title. Whether the Titans represent the conference in the state playoffs will be determined next week, however, when they play once-beaten Rocky Mount. Wilson is 6-3 overall and Rose is 1-8.

Wilson got off a minor threat on its first possession, moving over the 50 to the Rose 46 before being forced to punt. Rose then drove down to the Wilson 39 before a pair of losses and a penalty forced them to kick it away.

Wilson again pushed across the center stripe, going to the Rose 20 before Bill Collier picked off a Wilkerson pass at the six.

On the first play after the interception, Rose fumbled it away and Keither Williams recovered for Wilson on the 10. Wilson lost a yard, gained back three, then lost another before electing to go for the field goal. Gliarmis kicked it 26 yards for a 3-0 lead with 11:16 left in the second quarter.

After holding Rose, Wilson took over on its own 45 and moved to a second field goal, helped by a pass interference penalty. That came on third and 13 from the Wilson 42, and most observers felt offensive interference should have been called instead.

Nevertheless, Wilson got a first down at the Rose 43, and Wilkerson hit two passes around a five-yard run by Spencer Allen for a first down at the 18. Wilkerson lost six yards run by Spencer Allen for a first down at the 18. Wilkerson lost six yards on first down, and finally, on fourth and three, Gliarmis kicked a 27-yard field goal, running the score to 6-0 with 5:34 left.

After Rose drove to the Wilson 43 and failed to make a first down, Wilson had another chance to score. Two penalties against Rose helped the drive along—both 15 yards. A delay of game penalty helped to kill the Wilson drive, and Gliarmis missed on a 27-yarder with 35 seconds left.

Rose appeared headed for a score early in the third period, driving from its own 40. A pass interference call against Wilson moved it to the Titan 36, and Mike Joyner picked up 12 yards on a pitchout to the 16, after an eight yard game by Scott Brady. Robert Williams carried it down to the nine, but on fourth and one, Elijah White threw Joyner for a loss, ending the threat.

Rose had one final chance, when Jeff Aldridge recovered a fumble at the 31. MacDonald Washington got a first down at the 18, but another fumble cost them the ball at the 16.

Wilson took that back down the field for their only touchdown.

The Titans got a first down at the 32, then got another on an 18-yard run by Allen to the Rose 43. He added 14 more on the next play to the 24. After six yards, a penalty against Rose put it on the 18. Wilkerson scrambled on third down for a first down at the two, and on the second play he went over the middle on a sneak for the score. Gliarmis kicked for a 13-0 lead with 7:26 left in the game.

Two plays after the kickoff, Rose gain fumbled and Wilson recovered on the 10. But after a nine-yard loss on first down, Wilson could not pick up the first down, and Gliarmis again kicked a field goal, this one from 23 yards out, for the final 16-0 margin. It came with 5:21 left in the game.

Rose had another chance to get going, thanks to a 41 yard kickoff return by Williams to the Wilson 44, but an 11-yard loss on first down ended any hopes of a score. Wilson, after holding on downs, saw Carl Sanders break away for 40 yards to the Rose 15, but time ran out on the drive before a score came.

The Rampants finish the season next Friday, traveling to Elizabeth City to meet Northeastern.

DARN IT! — The ball squirts loose from the hands of Rose High School's Mike Joyner as he gets a helmet to the midsection from a Wilson player during action last night. Knicks Have Respect For Cleveland Five

By The Associated Press

Before meeting the New York Knicks, the Cleveland Cavaliers gave them great respect.

"We figured the Knicks were the best team in the league ... we lived in fear of their fast break," said Cleveland Coach Bill Fitch.

After beating the Knicks, the respect was reversed.

"They didn't allow us to run as well as we did in the past," said New York Coach Red Holzman after his team lost a 114-90 National Basketball Association decision to the Cavs Thursday night. "We didn't play well and they did. They are a good ball club."

Good preparation was the key to Cleveland's victory.

"We had to stop their fast break," said Fitch, "... and we did. They just got one out of their system. We played well with the lead tonight — unlike our first two games."

The loss was the first after three victories for the Knicks while the unbeaten Cavaliers won their third game.

In other NBA games, the Boston Celtics whipped the Buffalo Braves 112-105, the Denver Nuggets stopped the Milwaukee Bucks 119-100, and the Golden State Warriors trimmed the Portland Trail Blazers 112-92.

Bobby Smith scored 23 points and Campy Russell added 18, leading Cleveland's victory. The Cavaliers went on a 31-11 tear in the second quarter to break open the game.

The Knicks played without guard Walt Frazier, who was out due to a death in his family. Austin Carr came off the bench to score nine points and ignite the Cavaliers' second-quarter burst as the Knicks never got within 14 points after that.

Celtics 112, Braves 105
Charlie Scott scored 31 points, pacing Boston over Buffalo. The unbeaten Celtics, who won their third game, had a 14-point lead by halftime and maintained an 11-point bulge at the close of the third period. The outcome never was in doubt after that.

Nuggets 119, Bucks 100
Dan Issel poured in 26 of his game-high 30 points as Denver, also unbeaten in three games, jumped to a 60-51 first-half lead and cruised past winless Milwaukee.

Warriors 112, Trail Blazers 92
Rick Barry scored 34 points with the help of a newly developed set shot in leading Golden State over Portland. Rookie center Robert Parish and substitute Charles Dudley, along with Barry, keyed the Warriors offense in the third quarter when they went ahead to stay.

NO WHERE TO GO — Rose High School's Mike Joyner finds he has no place to go on this attempt to gain yardage as Wilson defenders surround him. Wilson halted a third period drive by the Rampants and went on to record a 16-0 victory over Rose last night. (Reflector Photo)

Anderson Challenges Garvey's Leadership

By GORDON BEARD
AP Sports Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) — Dick Anderson, president of the National Football League Players Association, has split publicly with executive director Ed Garvey in a personal letter to player representatives of the 26 NFL teams.

"I really believe that we will never be able to achieve an agreement with the owners that would be acceptable to Ed Garvey," Anderson wrote. "He wants too many things from them that they will never give up."

The Associated Press obtained a copy of the letter, which Anderson suggested be made available to all members of the NFLPA if Garvey failed to honor a request and publish its contents in the Checkoff, a NFLPA publication.

It understood that Anderson's letter, dated Oct. 14, already has been posted in the locker rooms of several NFL clubs.

In challenging Garvey, a move which could lead to a struggle for control, Anderson acknowledged there was a split in the ranks on how to deal with the owners.

But he refuted accusations that he had sold out the players to the owners while working out an agreement with Dan Rooney, president of the Pittsburgh Steelers and management's representative in the talks.

Anderson said in signing the memorandum of understanding with Rooney, which was not binding on the association, he was merely trying to gain benefits for the players and to help create more jobs.

BILL COBEY:
"CAROLINA FANS FOIL PROMOTION"

Our Sports Promotion Director, Bob Savod, originally contracted this space to run last week in promotion of our game with East Carolina, but Tar Heel fans put a crimp in his plans. They bought out every available ticket for the East Carolina game and made it a sellout just as they did our games with N.C. State and Duke, so now we're committed to lots of ad space with nothing to say this week, except to tell Carolina fans everywhere how grateful we are for giving us these kinds of problems. Thanks to you, your loyalty, support and great enthusiasm for our program, this has been Carolina's most successful attendance year in nearly two decades. We deeply appreciate it and we want you to know it.

To those of you who have had difficulty obtaining tickets to Kenan Stadium this season, we do regret the inconvenience. However, we might take this opportunity to remind you that you can still see the Tar Heels play in North Carolina this coming Saturday at Wake Forest. The Wake Forest people tell us there are still plenty of good tickets available for that A.C.C. contest in Winston-Salem.

So in closing, on behalf of all of us in the Athletic Department, we again express our deep thanks as we dedicate this ad to you, our Carolina Fans, the greatest fans around, anywhere!

East Carolina Pick Of Panel

Another disaster week—and one not so good for just about everyone else, has seen Tom Baines and Joe Jenkins take over the lead in our football poll.

Jenkins had a 9-3 week to post the best among the six, while the best anyone else could muster was 7-5. Still, there are only two games between top and bottom and anything can happen again.

Overall, Jenkins and Baines are atop the list with a 57-23-4 record, followed by Jack Whichard with a 56-24-4 mark. This writer, George Holland and Barbara Mathews follow at 55-25-4.

What will happen this week remains to be seen, but there may be more changes in the list by the time it's over.

First, we'll take a look at the high school action for the weekend, and there's not too much of it, considering Rose played last night and our four Pitt County teams are all playing each other.

In the Eastern Carolina Conference, Farmville Central goes to North Pitt. A victory for the Jaguars could ice a tie for the league title for them, and make them the league's representative in post-season play. In other words, it's a ripe time for an upset.

But we think that it's more likely not to happen that way, and Farmville will come away the winner.

Ayden-Grifton travels over to D. H. Conley to visit the Vikings. The Chargers are smarting from the licking given them last week by the Jaguars. They might be looking back—or they might just take out their frustrations on the Vikes. It could turn into a good game, but we pick Ayden-Grifton to win.

Greene Central meets North Lenoir. The Hawks have only won one game this fall, and this might be their last chance—they play Farmville next week. Nevertheless, our pick is Greene Central.

Williamston will meet Plymouth in a key game. The Tigers still have a chance to take the conference playoff berth if they win this one. Then, they'll have to wait and see if Edenton can beat Ahsokie. The Tigers should want this one bad, but Plymouth has been tough. Still, we'll go with Williamston.

Finally, Jamesville meets Creswell. The Bullets will be playing their final varsity game of the year. They have a meeting left with the Roanoke JVs next week. Jamesville would like a win here, but we pick Creswell.

Turning to our panel of experts, we find that the key game is the East Carolina-Western Carolina meeting. Everyone was disappointed (of course) with the loss by the Bucs to North Carolina last week. A couple of players (who shall remain nameless) have hindsight that they should have picked the Tar Heels.

This week, the Bucs could be down—or they could make Western pay. Our panel looks at it like this: there is a 6-0 vote for East Carolina.

Our other consensus picks find: Appalachian over Citadel; William & Mary over Furman; Florida State over Clemson; Maryland over Kentucky; South Carolina over N.C. State; Oklahoma over Colorado; Virginia and VMI a tossup; Georgia Tech over Duke; North Carolina over Wake Forest; Missouri over Oklahoma State; and Virginia Tech over West Virginia.

Peach Bowl Scouts Looking At Outcome Of UNC-Wake Contest

By The Associated Press

Only one conference game is set Saturday in the Atlantic Coast Conference, but the North Carolina-Wake Forest contest has attracted the attention of Peach Bowl scouts who are eyeing the Tar Heels.

"It's a little early to say North Carolina is our official No. 1 choice," said Tommy Crumbley, information director for the Atlanta classic.

He said Peach Bowl scouts are watching other teams and North Carolina's loss to ACC rival N.C. State two weeks ago may have temporarily dimmed the Tar Heels' bowl chances because, "for some reason, our people consider conference games more important."

"But we follow North Carolina closely every year and I don't want to minimize that there is a whole lot of interest at this point," he said.

The Tar Heels boosted their overall mark to 5-2 last week with a win over East Carolina, but they take an 0-1 conference record to Winston-Salem.

The game will pit North Carolina's Mike Voight against Wake Forest's James McDougald, the second- and third-place rushers in the conference. Defensively, the two teams have almost identical averages against the rush but the Deacons have a better figure in total defense.

The other five ACC schools are against non-conference opponents this week.

Maryland plays host to Kentucky in a regionally televised event, with the fifth-ranked Terps hoping to add another win to their previous 10 straight. Maryland leads the ACC in all four major defensive categories and are fifth in the nation in total defense.

The Wildcats, behind a ground-oriented attack, have defeated nationally ranked Penn State and LSU.

Duke plays host to Georgia Tech, and the two schools have more in common than their identical 3-3-1 records. Both teams have beaten Virginia. Duke quarterback Mike Dunn is second in the ACC in total offense and in passing with 9.1 completions per game.

N.C. State is hoping to be the first ACC team to beat former league member South Carolina this year. The Gamecocks have already downed Duke and Virginia.

The Wolfpack boasts the ACC's leading rusher, Ted Brown, who has rolled up 100 or more yards in five of N.C. State's eight games. He has a 902-yard total and a 112.7 average.

Virginia, fresh from a conference win over Wake Forest, takes on Virginia Military Institute Saturday at Norfolk. The Cavaliers are having to do without Bill Copeland, who was their leading rusher until a head injury sidelined him.

Clemson travels to Florida State, where the Tigers hope to improve their 1-4-2 record. Tiger running backs Harold Goggins and Warren Ratchford are both averaging over 60 yards a game and rank fourth and fifth, respectively, in the ACC and the Tigers are third in the ACC in both rushing and passing offense. Defensively, they are next to last in all four categories.

The Seminoles, under first-year coach Bobby Bowden, have taken wins over Kansas State and Boston College this season.

Michigan Heavy Favorite For Jug

By The Associated Press

Top-ranked Michigan takes on a crippled Minnesota Saturday in the 59th renewal of their battle for the Little Brown Jug.

The rivalry, which will be televised on the East and West coasts, started in 1903 when the Wolverines forgot their water jug after a game in Minneapolis. When Michigan Coach Fielding Yost asked that the jug be returned, he was told, in effect, "Come and get it."

The Wolverines have won the Jug 36 times, Minnesota 19 times and twice the game has been tied. Minnesota owns the longest winning streak in the series — nine games from 1934 through 1942 — but Michigan, 7-0, is a heavy favorite to post its eighth straight victory in the series Saturday at Ann Arbor.

"We'll be ready," Minnesota Coach Cal Stoll said. "We're not traveling that far just to show up."

But what kind of a chance does Minnesota, with a 5-2 record its best since 1967, have against the Wolverines?

"This Minnesota team is a squad that must play healthy and with great emotions," Stoll said, noting that 16 of his players are either out with injuries or playing hurt.

Another ABC regional telecast will pit 10th-ranked Missouri against 16th-ranked Oklahoma State.

The Missouri Tigers include fourth-ranked Southern California, eighth-ranked Ohio State and ninth-rated Nebraska among their victims this season. But they also have lost twice.

Oklahoma State, upset victors

Indians Face Paladins, Citadel At Appalachian In Loop Games

By The Associated Press

Despite an earlier 20-19 loss to East Carolina's front-running Pirates, William and Mary's Indians still have an outside shot at the Southern Conference football title and Coach Jim Root hopes it doesn't vanish against Furman's last-place Paladins.

"Furman has a very sound football team. They have lost some very tough ball games and could be undefeated instead of 3-4-1," says Root of the Paladins, who won their first three starts but now are 0-2-1 in the league. W&M is 1-1 in the conference, 5-2 over-all.

The Saturday game is one of two that's crucial to the league race.

The other has Appalachian State's second-place Mountaineers, 1-0-1 and 5-2-1, at home against The Citadel's Bulldogs, who also have championship hopes at 1-1 and 5-2.

East Carolina, 3-0 in the conference and 6-1 over-all, tries to bounce back from a 12-10 defeat by North Carolina that ended a 12-game winning streak at home against Western Carolina, 5-3, a new member whose games don't count in the league race.

Four other teams have games against outside opponents.

Virginia Military's b5s, 2-5, meet Virginia's Cavaliers, 1-6, in the Oyster Bowl at Norfolk, Va.; new member Tennessee-Chattanooga, 3-3, goes to Richmond, 3-4; title-ineligible Davidson, 1-3-1, plays at Guilford; and new member Marshall, 4-3, is host to Akron.

Sophomore quarterback Tom Rozantz, the league leader in total offense, and junior tailback Jimmy Krus, the league's top rusher, will be tested by a veteran Furman defense.

"Turnovers have plagued us (22 lost fumbles, 10 interceptions)," says Furman Coach Art Baker. "As far as William and Mary's execution of the offense and the lack of mistakes they make, they are the most impressive team we have played."

All-Southern quarterback Robby Price, who has missed much of the season, may be back for Appalachian, but the Mountaineers must halt the Bulldogs' sophomore quarterback, Marty Crosby, who leads the conference in passing.

A defeat would be costly to the hopes of Appalachian, William and Mary and The Citadel, for East Carolina has league games left only against Furman and Appalachian.

For the moment, though, Pirate Coach Pat Dye is worried only about Western Carolina and how his players will come back from defeat.

"I know they will be ready to play," says Dye of Western Carolina. "This is their big game, so we have to fight back now and get ready for another tough one. Now's when we just show our real class and character."

Jerry McGee Would Like A New Trophy

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Jerry McGee is building a new home in Ohio, which should be ready for occupancy in a couple of weeks.

"It's got a trophy room in it," McGee said, and grinned. "And I've only got one trophy. It sure would be nice to get another one."

He took a step in that direction with a four-under-par 67 that gave McGee a share of the first-round lead Thursday in the $125,000 Pensacola Open Golf Tournament, the event that last year prodded him with the only trophy he now owns.

"After playing out here on the tour as long as I have, I didn't think it would happen, but I was really nervous on the first tee," McGee said. "I've never been a defending champion before."

"There's a lot of pride out here on this tour we play. I really wanted to play well. It was awfully important to me. I didn't put particularly well, but I played that last nine about as well as I can play."

"And I will play well the rest of the way. If I can get that putter rolling a little, I will be in the hunt."

McGee, who missed only one green and didn't have a five on his card, played his back nine in 32 — and had to do it to hold off the afternoon challenges of Tommy Aaron, John Schlee and Bob Murphy, who matched McGee's effort on the 6,549-yard Pensacola Country Club course and took a share of the top spot.

Tom Weiskopf, former champion Lee Elder, Grier Jones, Bob E. Smith and Mark Hayes were just one stroke back at 68.

U.S. Open champion Jerry Pate, playing before his hometown friends and neighbors, could do no better than a 75. "I just didn't have my mind on my game," he said.

Lee Trevino was well back at 73 and Hubert Green shot a 72 in the chilly, cloudy weather.

While McGee, with more than $100,000 in earnings this year, is looking for his second career title, Murphy and Schlee have something else at stake — an exemption from having to play qualifying rounds before each tournament next year.

Find Attitudes Vary In Mental Health Field

Personnel of community mental health centers are "significantly less authoritarian and socially restrictive" and more acceptant of non-traditional mental health viewpoints than personnel of mental hospitals, according to a recent East Carolina University study.

Drs. Stephen K. Creech and Clinton R. Prewett of the ECU faculty are co-authors of an article detailing their research which appears in the October "Journal of Community Psychology."

The research involved recording the opinions about mental illness held by personnel of a large state psychiatric hospital and five community health centers.

Results of the investigation indicate sharp differences between the opinions of hospital personnel and mental health center personnel regarding mental illness and mental patients. The latter group discovered to be more open to new methods of treatment of mental illness.

In addition, the Creech-Prewett report showed considerable variance between professional and non-professional staff at both kinds of institutions: non-professional staff indicated a much stronger endorsement of authoritative and socially restrictive attitudes.

Dr. Creech is an adjunct associate professor of community health at ECU and Area Director of the Pitt County Mental Health Center. Dr. Prewett is a professor of psychology at ECU.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, OCTOBER 30, 1976

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A good day to get together with friends who mean much to you and to work out a plan of action whereby you can see them regularly in the days ahead. Also good for attending social gatherings where you meet interesting persons.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Plan some time to be with good friends who are devoted to you and can give you the relaxation you need. New aims can be gone after with good results following. Avoid one who does not really respect you.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Consulting with influential persons can lead to advancement with little effort now, so get at this early. Become more interested in civic matters as this can help you get ahead.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A new plan you have in mind should be discussed with an expert. This can lead to a successful venture.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Find the right formula to carry through with contracts you have made. Show more affection for a loved one and the evening is a happier one.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Study contracts with others and find out how they can be improved, worked out more satisfactorily. Use your smile more in order to reconcile with one who has opposed you.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Doing whatever pleases associates and friends is wise today and tonight. First get some important work completed, though.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Ideal day to have fun at sports that you like and get relief from tension. Do whatever is dramatic in order to gain the affection of your mate.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Ideal day to take care of domestic chores. Study into some new projects that interest you. Avoid one who is tiresome and detrimental to your best interests.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Consider how to make your usual interests more successful and put brilliant ideas across nicely. Convincing a co-worker is wise in order to gain cooperation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Put across those ideas that will help to you to add appreciably to your present abundance. Make necessary repairs to property. Avoid one who has strange ideas and could get you into trouble.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Try to gain the aid of influential persons you know so that you gain your aims more readily. Attending group affairs is wise since you meet interesting personalities. Avoid being extravagant.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Give some thought to what it is you want out of life and how best to attain it. Listen to what an expert has to suggest.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be most gregarious and will do well in humanitarian and social endeavors and should have many playmates in order to learn to mix well with others and understand them better. There is much ability at solving problems and should be given an opportunity to do so early in life.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

of French internationalist, Jacques Stetten, from a world championship match against the United States.

North-South were a trifle pushy to get to game after West opened the bidding. South's aggressive action was based on the fact that the hand rated to play well since his partner's strong hand was poised over the opening bid.

Stetten hit on a good attack when he led a low spade. Defender finessed the ten, East won and continued the suit to dummy's queen. Declarer led a low heart and misguessed by inserting the nine, which lost to West's ten.

The automatic play would seem to be another spade, but as so often happens, the automatic play would be wrong. Declarer could then make the contract by winning the ace of spades, leading a diamond to the king and taking the diamond finesse. When the suit splits, declarer can take his fourth diamond and tuck West in with the ace of hearts. After cashing his long spade, West will have to lead a club away from his king, giving declarer two tricks in the suit and nine altogether.

But Stetten was aware of this possibility, and thwarted it with a simple but far-sighted maneuver. After winning the ten of hearts, Stetten cashed the ace before exiting with a spade. Now, there was no way he could be thrown in to lead away from his king of clubs. All he had to do was sit back and wait to collect two more tricks for down one.

Hair Stylist Chooses Music

By JOE EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Two years ago, Larry G. Hudson was one of the best hair stylists in the country. He owned two shops, employed eight persons and was making good money.

Now he's cutting records like he used to cut hair. And he says he's happier than he ever thought he could be and on the verge of becoming a country music star.

"I was just at the point where I was making a comfortable living," said Hudson of Macon, Ga. "Hair styling was great to me; I enjoyed success beyond wildest dreams, and for that I'm thankful.

"But music was, and always will be, my first and all-consuming love," said Hudson, 27, also known as "Larry G."

He and his seven-piece band — you guessed it, they're called "The Stylists" — will soon be touring the West Coast, the Midwest and the Eastern Seaboard. His current single is

"You Light Up My World." If he's as successful at singing as he was at styling hair, country music will have a new star.

He won a Georgia hair-styling contest and was second among 7,000 other contestants in national competition in Pittsburgh.

"I lost by one point," he recalled. "It must have been a very minute details, a technical thing. Since I was from a small town, it was something for a country boy to go up there and win among all the city slickers. They made fun of the way I talked.

"I've not cut hair for two years, and I won't go back. I've not even renewed my license and that costs only $5 a year. I gave my tools to friends. When I quit, my friends told me I'd lost my mind."

He says he wasn't much of a singer at first.

"The first thing you have to do is to be honest with yourself. I was not a good singer when I started out. I spent two years studying the other singers. I've picked the brains of every major artist I could find.

"I'm sincere. It's no front. I know where I'm at and where I want to go. Other people are more talented than I am, but none will outwork me.

"I believe I'm just now coming into my own. I'm a good entertainer, and working on being a good singer.

"I could never place myself above others. Everybody is kind of on the same level, some have just achieved more. There's no such thing as a superstar.

"I'm thankful to be able to do what I do and love it. I suppose 95 per cent of the people hate their jobs."

He's recorded two songs that became hits later by other artists. They are "9,999,999 Tears," now a hit by Dickey Lee, and "Shop Around," one of the Captain and Tennille's hits.

LARRY HUDSON was once a top hair-stylist, but is now a rising country music singer. He says music is his first love. (AP Wirephoto)

Find Drinks Cost Less In Returnable Containers

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A soft drink in a refillable bottle costs an average of five cents less than in a throwaway bottle or can. Beer in returnable containers costs $2 a case less than a case of throwaways.

Those are the key findings of a 28-city survey conducted by the League of Women Voters and announced today by the Environmental Protection Agency.

The study provides further ammunition for groups seeking to ban throwaway bottles and cans to save energy and protect the environment. In some states and localities, voters will be asked to decide whether to adopt laws or constitutional amendments designed to discourage throwaway containers either through outright bans or economic incentives. The issue is expected to be hotly contested in Congress next year.

The League of Women Voters found that a six-pack of soft drinks in 7-to 16-ounce refillable bottles costs about 30 cents less than the same size of throwaway containers. The biggest saving potential is for users of 32-ounce soft drinks: refillables cost an average of 16.8 cents less than throwaways.

Of 37 direct comparisons, all but one found refillable bottles were cheaper. The 37th, at a market in San Francisco, had a 28-ounce refillable bottle of ginger ale at the same price as a disposable.

The biggest price spread between the two types of containers was found in Roseville, Minn., where a quart of 7-Up in a refillable bottle was 66.7 per cent cheaper than in a throwaway.

Nationwide, the savings per refillable ranged from one to 10 cents per container of up to 16 ounces when purchased in six- or eight-packs. The range on quart bottles was from 14 to 18 cents.

The survey showed that a beer drinker could expect to spend from 30 cents to $2 a case less for beer purchased in refillable containers. The saving for premium beer would be slightly less.

However, the League found that beer in refillables is available in only a few areas. An in-depth survey of the metropolitan Washington area found refillable beer bottles available at 37.5 per cent of stores in the city, 38.4 per cent in suburban Virginia and 20.6 per cent of outlets in suburban Maryland.

By contrast, the survey found refillable bottles of soft drinks generally available across the United States, although in some areas there is a limit on sizes and flavors.

Earlier this month, a report commissioned by the Federal Energy Administration concluded that banning disposable bottles and cans could cut the beverage industry's energy needs by 44 per cent, saving the equivalent of 81,000 barrels of oil per day.

Three Hours Of Movie Nostalgia Sunday Night

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — This Sunday, NBC is airing a three-hour night of flicks called "Life Goes to the Movies," offering clips of about 200 films made over a 36-year span for viewer inspection.

It represents more than a year's work, consideration of some 800 films, and long, arduous haggling with owners of the chosen films for rights to air excerpts of the movies, says coproducer Mel Stuart.

The theme of the opus is not simply that these films were what folks watched way back when, he adds, but rather "how they were a reflection of the manners, the mores and the political thrust of the American people when they were made..."

"The easiest way to explain it is that there's a helluva long way from Andy Hardy to 'The Graduate,'" he said. "The Graduate wouldn't have been possible in the 1930s. There would have been riots in the streets."

The show is based on and has the same title as the 1975 book about Life magazine's often starry-eyed coverage of moviedom from 1936, when the magazine began, to 1972, when it ceased weekly publication.

The book — and the show's script — were written by Richard Schickel, a former Life movie critic who several seasons ago produced the much-praised public TV series, "The Men Who Made the Movies."

Stuart, who coproduced "Life Goes to the Movies" with him and directed it, said the show covers four basic eras of film — the late 1930s, World War II and the postwar years, the 1950s through 1963 and from 1964 through 1972.

He said he'll try to show through those eras changing on-screen attitudes toward such things as romance and war, plus looks at the rash of Biblical epics in the 1950s and what caused them, and a phenomena of that decade — movies made specifically for the teen-age market.

Stuart, a thin, wiry veteran of movies and television who won an Emmy in 1969 for his "Making of the President" TV documentary about the 1968 elections, doesn't think three hours of Sunday night movie-watching will prove too much for the television viewer.

The show, to be hosted by Henry Fonda, Shirley MacLaine and Liza Minnelli, isn't coming cheaply. Stuart says it's "probably the most expensive documentary ever made."

Four Collisions Here Yesterday

Four traffic collisions investigated by Greenville Police yesterday resulted in an estimated $5,825 property damage, according to officers, who made no charges in connection with the series of mishaps.

Heaviest damage resulted from an 11:15 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Tenth Street and Forest Hill Circle involving vehicles driven by Mark Aaron Conway of 2001 Forest Hill Dr. and Charles Edison Crabtree of Route 4, New Bern.

Damage was estimated at $3,000 to the Conway car and $450 to the Crabtree truck.

A 4:20 p.m. collision on Fifth Street, 35 feet west of the Elm Street intersection involved cars driven by Charles Lewis Brown of 1716 South Elm St. and Thomas Hatcher Johnson Jr. of 1725 Beaumont Dr.

Damages were estimated at $900 to the Brown car and $25 to the Johnson vehicle.

An estimated $300 damage resulted to each of two cars involved in a 5:15 p.m. collision at the intersection of Fourth and Jarvis Streets.

Drivers involved in the collision were identified as Nancy Helen Sugg of 1103 East Fourth St., and Elizabeth Dees McCulley of Atlantic Beach.

An estimated $800 damage resulted to a car operated by Robert Blaine Holder of Route 4, Greenville following a collision on Dickinson Avenue, 30 feet North of the Ridgeway Street intersection about 3:10 p.m.

Officers said the Holder car collided with a vehicle driven by Ralph Roland Hall of 2810 South Evans St. causing an estimated $50 damage to the Hall auto.

Investigate Town's Service Failures

CLAREMONT, N.C. (AP) — A charge that this Catawba County town failed to provide water and sewer service for the only black property owners in the town is being investigated by federal authorities, according to officials.

City Atty. Larry W. Pitts said the U.S. Office of Revenue Sharing informed him that its agents were to begin the investigation Thursday.

The office has charged that Claremont discriminated in its failure to provide water and sewer service to the Russell Shuford family.

The town could face a cutoff of revenue sharing funds, and could be forced to pay back revenue already received if the charges are proven, federal officials said.

The revenue sharing office alleges that although the town used revenue sharing money to construct water and sewer lines in other parts of the town, the Shufords never received service.

The revenue sharing office said in a letter to town officials in August that the city is guilty of a "prima facie case" of discrimination. The charges were based on a brief investigation during the summer.

Pitts said Claremont has done all it can to provide services for the Shufords. He said any water and sewer lines to their home would have to cross private property, and that public money cannot be used to build lines across private land.

NEW BUILDINGS
JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The Missouri Department of Education says during the 1974-75 academic year, a total of 70 new buildings and 53 additions were constructed providing 837 new classrooms and special facilities in the state's public school districts.

Jim Hunt cares about your child's education.

Education must come first. That's Jim's Hunt's commitment. To our children. To our state.

He knows that education is the key to all that a child can accomplish in life. Without a good education, a child won't have the opportunity for a good job, a secure future.

The average child in North Carolina is below the national average in reading ability. Jim Hunt's reading program has shown that it can bring that child above the national average.

He'll expand that program to every child, in every school—to give every child a chance for a better life.

For the past four years, we have been standing still in North Carolina—in education and in many other areas. We need to be moving forward again. We need a governor who will provide real leadership.

We need a governor who cares about North Carolina and the people who live here. We need Jim Hunt.
