Vacations And Planning On Carter, Ford Agendas

By DON PHILLIPS
 SAINT SIMONS ISLAND, Ga. (UPI) — Taking his first trip aboard a presidential jet, flew Saturday to a working island vacation off the Georgia coast and said he plans no foreign travel for the first few months of his administration.

Carter, talking to reporters aboard a Boeing 707 that normally serves as one of President Ford's back-up planes, said the first aim of his administration will be to work with Congress on his legislative program.

"I think that when I have some successful and unsuccessful encounters with the Congress, then that will be a good time to restore my prestige by making a trip overseas," Carter said.

The blue-and-white plane that carried Carter and his family from Albany, Ga., to Glynn Naval Air Station near this resort was used for years as the main presidential jet. It is the same one that bore John Kennedy's body home from Dallas and that carried Richard Nixon on his first trip to China. Accompanying Carter were his wife, Rosalynn, their son Chip and Chip's wife Caron, and a small terrier, J.B.

Carter and his family are staying at Musgrove Plantation owned by Smith Bagley, a Washington socialite and heir to the R.J. Reynolds tobacco fortune.

The spacious, moss covered estate lies on 483 acres of "high ground" and 900 acres of marsh land. It is on an island off the Georgia coast.

Carter said he planned to catch up on his reading of transition documents but also wanted a rest after the long campaign.

"I've got a lot to read but I think today I'm going to be catching up on my sleep. We've been working pretty hard since we got home."

Carter also said he would meet with Ford this month and would be briefed "quite early" by the CIA.

Several hundred persons were scattered along the lengthy motorcade route from the air station to Musgrove Plantation, waving and cheering their former governor.

By HELEN THOMAS
 UPI White House Reporter
 WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford, described as "subdued" after his election defeat, met with top aides Saturday to clear the decks for a vacation in Palm Springs, Calif.

The President, still suffering from the hoarseness that plagued him during final days of the campaign, plans to fly to the desert resort this afternoon with his wife and three children after attending church services.

His mood was described as "subdued" by White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen, who said Ford met with aides Saturday to clear up any problems before beginning the trip — which will give the outgoing president some much-needed rest and time to plan his future.

Aides said Ford intends to remain active in public life — possibly making speeches, writing his memoirs and playing a role in the Republican Party as its most recent standard bearer — after leaving the White House.

The President has made it clear to Cabinet and top agency heads that his administration has total responsibility for running government until inauguration day, Jan. 20.

While relaxing at the Palm Springs estate of former Ambassador to Belgium Leonard Firestone, Ford will spend a few hours each day working on his State of the Union message. He also must submit a new federal budget by mid-January.

He expects to carry on his own policies over the remaining 10 weeks. But Ford also has directed administration officials to make the transfer of power as smooth as possible.

Jack Watson, Jimmy Carter's liaison with the White House, during the transition period, had his initial briefing Friday. Ford and President-elect Carter may meet later this month. Carter's press secretary, Jody Powell, also has been in touch with Nessen, and they will get together in a week or so.

The scene at the White House remains somber. Suddenly it appears all the action is somewhere else.

"Suddenly there is nothing to do," said Nessen, whose telephone calls and file of homework have dropped sharply.

While others on the staff already are looking for jobs, Nessen said he would take time out in Palm Springs to contemplate his future.

What They Said About Humpty-Dumpty Is True

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Duke University's first annual egg drop contest was a shattering experience.

Ten of the 45 eggs entered in the packaging contest Friday survived a rude drop onto a slab of concrete. Packaged in peanut butter, popcorn, gelatin, styrofoam and other shock absorbers, the winning eggs proved that modern design has conquered the forces of gravity.

The contest was sponsored by the Duke chapter of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. It achieved its purpose of getting students to create practical designs.

"We're trying to get students thinking about design in a practical sense," said Dr. E.J.

Shaughnessy. "And we're just having fun, too."

The fun came from the flops. An egg in a cardboard container filled with chocolate pudding bounced 10 feet, then cracked with perfect symmetry.

Eggs set in a pink plastic ball filled with axle grease and a plastic cup filled with grape jelly both exploded.

Another egg jammed inside a full roll of toilet paper splattered so thoroughly that the paper proved useless in attempting to remove the mess.

The group is laying plans for an egg drop next spring that Duke officials could well break up. "We're hoping," Shaughnessy said, "to drop 'em off Duke Chapel."

UF Within 17 Per Cent Of Goal

A contribution of over $23,800 by the employees of Procter & Gamble Co. here, coupled with a corporate donation of $7,900, has enabled the Pitt County United Fund to pull within 17 per cent of its goal.

Don Parrott, UF campaign chairman, said that the "generous contribution" from the P&G employees and company pushed the current drive past the 83 per cent mark.

He noted that the total contribution from Procter & Gamble and its employees of $31,700 represents some 13 per cent of the entire 1977 Pitt County goal.

According to Parrott, the contribution puts the current fund drive at $214,439.68 toward attainment of the overall goal of $248,418. The P&G check was presented to Parrott on Friday.

Making the check presentation were plant United Fund fair share givers Virginia Alcock, Linwood Lee and Ed Rentschler. Rentschler coordinated the in-plant efforts and cited the employee's achievement of an average donation of almost $60 per person.

Parrott said that the "example set by these employees should make every Pitt County citizen stop and consider what he or she is doing for our campaign this year."

The campaign chairman noted that if person or businesses has not been contacted by a representative of the 1977 campaign, they should call the Pitt United Fund office at 758-1604.

Says Carter Supports Black Majority Rule In S. Africa

By JOHN A. CALLCOTT
 GENEVA, Switzerland (UPI) — President-elect Jimmy Carter fully supports the Ford Administration's policy on establishing black majority rule in southern Africa, Rep. Charles C. Diggs Jr. said Saturday.

The Michigan Democrat also said Carter would support the intervention of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger at the Geneva Conference on Rhodesia to help break the current deadlock between black and white delegations, including talks between Kissinger and Rhodesian Premier Ian Smith.

Speaking at a news conference after conferring with the four black nationalist Rhodesian leaders at the conference, Diggs said he met Kissinger before coming to Geneva on behalf of the black caucus in the U.S. Congress and was told Kissinger "is prepared to lend a hand."

"If Kissinger can make a constructive contribution he would have the full backing of the president-elect," Diggs said.

Diggs said he thinks it is Smith who is holding up agreement on fixing a date for black majority rule at the conference.

He said Smith sticks to Kissinger's proposal for majority rule within two years although the so-called Kissinger package was "deliberately ambiguous" and was not a hard and fast proposal.

Diggs said the Kissinger plan was more of a "starting point" for the negotiations.

Kissinger negotiated the basis for the conference during his African shuttle in September, bringing the four black nationalist leaders and Smith together to discuss Rhodesia's future under British chairmanship.

At the conference itself there was hardly any activity following the failure Friday to reach agreement on an independence date.

The nationalists demand independence under majority rule within one year while the white government argues it would take slightly under two years to complete the necessary constitutional and legal process.

Spokesmen for Robert Mugabe, most militant of the four black nationalist leaders, said they knew nothing about reports he would leave Geneva shortly.

"He's still here," was all Mugabe's spokesman would say.

Friday Comments

RALEIGH (AP) — William C. Friday, president of the University of North Carolina, has squelched reports that he is being considered for a cabinet post in the administration of President-elect Jimmy Carter.

"All that kind of talk is speculation in which I don't care to participate," he said Friday.

The UNC president said he had worked with the Carter organization in helping to shape an educational policy but that there had never been any mention of his taking a post in the Carter administration.

Former Gov. Bob Scott has also been mentioned as being considered for a cabinet post.

A report speculated that Scott, a dairy farmer, was under consideration for secretary of agriculture and Friday was being mentioned for secretary of health, education and welfare.

News Briefs

2nd Coastal Area Suit Filed
 BEAUFORT, N.C. (AP) — A second lawsuit filed in Carteret County superior court is seeking to have the Coastal Area Management Act declared unconstitutional.

The complaint was filed Friday by five individuals and Crowhill Properties of Greensboro, which owns property near Otway.

A similar suit was filed last month by the Carteret Board of Commissioners.

Both suits are seeking a declaratory judgment against the 1974 law, charging it unconstitutionally gives the state control of coastal property.

Says His Bid Strengthened
 GASTONIA, N.C. (AP) — State Rep. Carl Stewart says the election results strengthened his bid for speaker of the House.

"I am very happy with the outcome of the election," said the Gaston County Democrat, who easily won reelection. "I can't detect that anyone committed to me lost, and in addition I think I picked up one or two votes."

Stewart is running against Rep. Billy Watkins of Granville for the House leadership. The speaker is elected by the House at the beginning of the legislative session.

Wants Jordan Lake Filled
 DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Grey Culbreth, director of utilities for the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, says the B. Everett Jordan Lake should be filled. He believes it would be Chapel Hill's best resource to relieve a year-long water shortage.

The university owns the water system, which serves the university, the town of Chapel Hill and adjoining Carrboro.

Chapel Hill, however, is one of the groups seeking to block filling of the lake. Chapel Hill joined the city of Durham in taking the side of environmentalists who oppose the project.

Prisoner-Swap Treaty Signed By United States And Mexico

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hundreds of Americans who say they are trapped in rat-infested Mexican cells, subjected to torture and forced to sign confessions, may be returned to the United States to complete their sentences as a result of a new treaty.

And more than 1,000 Mexicans in U.S. federal prisons would have the option of transferring to Mexican cells under a prisoner-swap treaty announced Friday by the State Department.

Americans who return from Mexican prisons may apply for parole and those who could prove they had been abused in Mexican prisons probably would have better chances of being freed by U.S. authorities.

That is the view of U.S. legal experts who worked out the tentative treaty with Mexico. The treaty provides for a general exchange of some 60 American and 1,200 Mexican federal prisoners.

All will have the right to request transfer to prisons in their home country. But the two governments must approve each transfer, and the treaty depends on ratification by the U.S. and Mexican senates.

Some legal experts say some prisoners, once returned to the United States, may try to seek freedom by suing to revoke the treaty. One U.S. legal expert says they may argue that they cannot be kept in an American jail because they were not convicted under U.S. laws.

The treaty grew out of complaints by Americans and their relatives who said they were beaten in Mexican jails and that they were denied access to lawyers and U.S. consular officials. Most Americans in Mexican prisons are serving sentences arising from drug offenses.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger took up the problem on a visit to Mexico City last June. After a series of meetings, U.S. and Mexican negotiators completed a general agreement on Thursday.

Mexicans convicted in California and other states, most of them on charges of illegal entry into the United States, would be eligible for transfer to Mexican prisons if the states agree. The few Americans in Mexican state prisons, as opposed to federal prisons, would be covered under a Mexican constitutional amendment.

Mexican President Luis Echeverria proposed the amendment to his country's constitution, along with separate reform legislation that would allow prisoners held on drug-related charges to become eligible for parole, a right taken away several years ago.

Officials in Mexico have said at least 200 Americans would be eligible for parole once the measure is passed.

About 100 U.S. prisoners in Mexico staged a 36-hour hunger strike.

GOP Control Struggle Underway

By DONALD LAMBRO
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The struggle for control of the GOP began anew the moment Gerald R. Ford was defeated. The split is certain to intensify as conservatives and liberal-moderates fight for the soul of the Republican Party. It could well decide whether it survives to fight another day or is destroyed, possibly by a new third party.

No sooner had Ford issued his concession to a triumphant Jimmy Carter than at least one Capitol Hill strategist with close ties to congressional conservatives was making plans to "change the leadership at the Republican National Committee."

"We've got to get rid of (National Chairman) Mary Louise Smith and that crew around her and see to it that tough minded conservatives get control of the party apparatus," he said. It is generally believed that conservatives make up the workers and activists in the GOP.

Reduced to 12 governorships, their minority in the House and Senate shrunken even further, out of the White House after eight years — the Grand Old Party is at its lowest ebb since Johnson beat Goldwater in 1964.

The scars left by Ronald Reagan's losing battle for the nomination remain. His conservative supporters believe more than ever that Reagan could have defeated Carter.

Reagan, meanwhile, is talking about the possibility of a third party and broadly hinting he may lead such a movement in 1980 — he will be 69 — or even try again for the GOP nomination.

His closest associates say he is merely "keeping his options open."

But among conservative party professionals and activists, the idea of a third party does not appear to be gaining any strong new adherents, particularly in light of Ford's strong showing against Carter.

"Even with Watergate, the economy and a united Democratic party overwhelmingly against him, Ford still made a very decent showing," said one GOP pro. "The country will still vote heavily Republican with the right candidate."

Richard Nixon won narrowly in 1968 and in a landslide in 1972.

Other conservatives expected to play a prominent role in the fight for control of the GOP include Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., and Rep. Philip Crane, R-Ill., both Reagan supporters. Each is known to have higher ambitions and each has developed loyal national followings within the GOP. Both have written books about their political philosophy being distributed throughout the conservative community.

Helms' operatives already are laying the groundwork for a major effort to organize conservatives into a cohesive fighting force on Capitol Hill next year.

But moderates such as Sens. Charles Percy of Illinois and Howard Baker of Tennessee, who have played at one time or another with presidential politics, also may be eying the White House in 1980.

Despite the overwhelming conservatism of their party, both take comfort in the fact that the GOP's bloc of moderates is being enlarged in the Senate by the election of John Danforth of Missouri, John Heinz of Pennsylvania and John Chafee of Rhode Island.

Anyone of these attractive and articulate new faces could try for national office.

Former Texas Gov. John Connally, who barnstormed the country campaigning for GOP candidates this year, may make an all-out try in 1980. Governor-elect James "Big Jim" Thompson of Illinois is another new moderate GOP star rising out of the Midwest who could jump onto the national political stage.

Whatever happens, however, it is certain another painful period of ideological infighting and bickering lies ahead.

Conservatives say the GOP lost the White House because it wasn't conservative enough. Moderates and liberals the party lost because it was not in the middle of the road and will lose again unless it moves to that position.

The answer may have to wait until 1980.

"I'm just waiting for instructions," said deputy campaign manager Ben Brown.

Deputy field director Jim Ellsbery left his New York educational consulting firm to work for Carter and said he hasn't "given much thought" to working in the administration. He said he would take a job, but only if it has "significant policy-making power."

The wire tapper that churned out news dispatches in the corner of the press office has been removed and left-over press releases have been packed.

Lawson Hooks New NAACP Head

NEW YORK (UPI) — Benjamin Lawson Hooks, the first black appointed to the Federal Communications Commission, was named Saturday to succeed Roy Wilkins as executive director of the NAACP.

Hooks, 51, a native of Memphis, Tenn., was elected unanimously during 2½ hour special meeting of the organization's national Board of Directors at the New York Sheraton Hotel, an NAACP spokesman said.

The press staff, which has been overburdened with queries from around the world, will dwindle next week to two or three just to answer the telephone.

Press Secretary Jody Powell said the press operation may be moved "lock, stock and barrel" to Plains, Carter's south Georgia hometown where he is expected to spend most of his time until inauguration day.

The once top-secret "situation room" on the 24th floor is unstaffed and unlocked. "There aren't any situations left," said one aide.

Hunt Has Voters Mandate, Enthusiastic Assembly

By DAVID R. NELSEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — When Jim Hunt becomes governor in January, he will take office with a substantial mandate from the voters plus an enthusiastic General Assembly that, on the whole, supports him and his programs.

Moreover, interviews with legislative leaders show that the lawmakers are anxious to get to work on Hunt's programs and a number of other proposals, many of which have been shelved for the last four years.

In giving their views on the coming session, lawmakers and spokesmen for Hunt talk about teamwork, cooperation, harmony, action and productivity. Indications also are that the 1977 session will be longer than usual with another, but shorter, session needed in 1978.

"I think it's certainly going to be an active and productive session. We literally have scores of bills and proposals waiting in the departments of state government which have been lying dormant the last four years and which will now be resurrected and sent over to the General Assembly," said state Rep. Carl Stewart, D-Gaston, who is expected to be elector speaker of the House. Because there are "so many things to be done," Stewart predicts a six-to-seven-month 1977 session followed by about a three-month session in 1978.

"I just don't think the governor can get all of his proposals through the legislative process in the first six months of 1977," he said, adding it will be necessary to review the budget and consider important new proposals the second year of the biennium.

If the session goes as anticipated, Stewart said he believes members of the House will see a need to break with tradition and have the speaker serve two terms to coincide with the terms of office of governor and lieutenant governor. Also, he predicted that he, Hunt and Lt. Gov.-elect Jimmy Green will form an effective team.

Hunt's landslide election—65 per cent of the vote—is interpreted by legislative leaders as strong public support for the programs he advocated in the campaign. In addition, the Democrats maintained domination of the legislature with only four Republicans elected to the 50-member Senate and six Republicans elected to the 120-member House.

For the last four years, Republican Gov. Jim Holshouser has been waging a running battle with the legislature over programs and priorities. Holshouser frequently complained about how much trouble he had with the legislature and how he had to be careful not to offend the lawmakers and incur their wrath.

As Sen. Harold Hardison, D-Lenoir, put it, "You can't agree on priorities with opposing parties. What we (Democrats) may consider the No. 1 priority, he (Holshouser) may consider No. 17. You really have a hard job to do when you've got it like that."

"I don't think there's any doubt that the legislature and executive branch have been at each other's throats in the past four years. There's great relief that that's past and there's a lot of exuberance," Stewart said, adding, "The coming session is going to be more enjoyable from a legislator's viewpoint."

At a news conference Wednesday, Hunt promised to have his major appointments made before inauguration so "we can hit the ground running." Also, his staff is now working up legislative proposals on the issues Hunt discussed during the campaign, such as his reading program, crime control, prisons and utilities.

"Hunt is going to be an activist governor. He's going to propose a lot of things (to the legislature)," said Gary Pearce, Hunt's campaign press aide.

"In the past four years the legislature has had to operate in a vacuum," said state Rep. J.P. Huskins, D-Iredell, who also looked ahead and said, "I feel pretty good...I think he'll (Hunt) be sending over something new all the time."

Sen. Wesley Webster, D-Rockingham, predicted that Hunt's programs will win legislative approval because they reflect the public will. "I think that we're geared up and ready to get to work," he said.

In addition to the different relationship with the legislature, Pearce said there will be a dramatic shift in the governor's relationship with state agencies. At his news conference, Hunt said he will become personally aware of the functions of each state agency and set its goals and priorities. Hunt will give the department heads direction and tell them what is expected of them so the agencies can work together, Pearce said.

"I think people are going to be really surprised. There's going to be direction and activism. Something's going to be going on in state government," he said.

All is not going to be smooth for the new administration, however. One problem mentioned by those interviewed was a money shortage which might limit the number of new programs that can be implemented.

"I think the governor will be able to get through most of his programs that don't require too much funding," Huskins said, adding that he believes Hunt and the legislature will work together to find additional savings in state government.

"Money's going to be a problem. We're not going to have what we thought we'd have," Webster said, adding, "As a team, though, we'll go right at it and do a damn good job."

Despite all the talk of harmony and teamwork, lawmakers are not going to rubber stamp Hunt's proposals.

"I think the legislature needs to be on guard against accepting and adopting as a matter of course everything that is sent over from the governor," Stewart said. "We will assume his intentions are good, but we must examine his proposals carefully."

Also facing Hunt is the problem of deciding which state workers must be replaced. Pearce said Hunt will not have a wholesale housecleaning, but will put his own people in only where it is necessary in implementing his programs.

News Briefs

State Courts Might Be Best

RALEIGH (AP) — A U.S. Magistrate says it might be best to let the state courts have first crack at considering evidence of perjured testimony in the trial of the Wilmington 10 now serving prison terms.

Logan Howell said Friday that "obviously it's a matter affecting the integrity of the state court proceedings."

However, Howell said there are other factors to be considered in the decision, notably the arguments presented by attorneys for the Wilmington 10.

Alliance Revocation Threatened

AMSTERDAM, The Netherlands (AP) — President Zulfikar Ali Bhutto of Pakistan says his country will revoke its military alliance with the United States if Washington blocks the purchase by Pakistan of nuclear equipment from France, a Dutch newspaper reported Saturday.

The independent De Telegraaf said Bhutto, in an interview conducted three weeks ago in Rawalpindi, accused the United States of not treating Pakistan as an ally. Both countries belong to the Central Treaty Organization — CENTO.

"We are the only country associated with America that can't buy weapons on credit in the United States," Bhutto said in the interview. "We just can't afford to pay cash for those expensive weapons."

"The Americans want to spare certain feelings in India by imposing restrictions on our weapon purchases. But do we form a threat for India?"

Salem's Party Wins Majority

CAIRO (AP) — With all but a few races decided, Prime Minister Mamdouh Salem's centrist political faction has won an overwhelming majority in the Egyptian parliament, according to election results announced Saturday.

Salem is expected to announce the members of his new government on Monday.

The elections held over the past two weeks are the first in which Egyptian voters have been given a choice of candidates since the military overthrow of King Farouk more than 25 years ago.

The outcome of the second round of voting Thursday is still not known in several areas, officials said. They said disturbances forced postponement until next Thursday of voting in three other districts.

Public Funding Said Equalizer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new system of public funding of presidential elections was a great equalizer that benefitted Jimmy Carter this year, says the man who authored the law.

"For the first time in recent years," Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., said Friday, "the Republicans were not able to outspend the Democrats with a deluge of money in the final month...I am convinced this was a key to Mr. Carter's victory over President Ford."

Moreover, said Long, the outcome of the previous two presidential elections might have been reversed if, as he had proposed, the law was in effect then.

The Carter-Ford campaign was the first financed with tax money rather than private contributions. The candidates received $21.8 million each from the government for the general election and were barred from taking money from other sources.

Chowchilla Trial Site Moved

MADERA, Calif. (AP) — The judge in the Chowchilla kidnaping case — after ordering the trial moved from Madera County — says he will select a new trial site from a list of counties provided by the court system.

Superior Court Judge Jack L. Hammerberg said Friday that he granted a defense motion for change of venue to avoid any possibility that the case might be prejudiced and overturned on appeal.

Attorneys for the three young San Francisco Peninsula men accused of the kidnapings had argued that the switch was necessary because everyone in Madera County became emotionally involved.

Had Portraits In Readiness

TOKYO (AP) — China's radical leaders had large portraits of Chiang Ching, Mao Tsetung's widow, prepared for distribution if their planned coup against Hua Kuo-feng had succeeded, a Japanese report from Peking said Saturday.

The newspaper Asahi Shimbun said the prepared portraits had identified Madame Mao as "Chairman Chiang Ching" in line with plans by the so-called "gang of four" to install her as China's new communist party chairman, succeeding Mao.

The plot to seize power was crushed last month with the arrest of the four radicals shortly before Premier Hua Kuo-feng was named chairman.

Little Prestige

NEW YORK (UPI) — Most doctors in the Soviet Union earn low pay and have little prestige, reports Medical World News.

The McGraw-Hill publication points out that about 70 per cent of the doctors who care for the health needs of the average Soviet citizen are women who earn about $150 a month.

Wildcat Strikers Close Chrysler

By EDWARD S. LECHTZIN
UPI Auto Writer

DETROIT (UPI) — About 9,000 wildcat strikers forced the closing of three key Chrysler Corp. manufacturing plants Saturday despite agreement a day earlier on a new national contract for 109,000 U.S. and Canadian production workers.

Chrysler and United Auto Workers negotiators continued to meet Saturday in an attempt to wrap up a separate agreement for 9,000 salaried workers whose strike deadline was extended indefinitely.

Also plaguing the firm's attempt to maintain normal operations were the lack of local agreements at 158 of 205 bargaining units.

With the Chrysler negotiations nearly behind it, the UAW plans early next week to set a strike deadline at giant General Motors for a new contract for its 390,000 U.S. workers. Separate negotiations also will continue to wrap up pacts for 26,000 GM of Canada workers and 12,000 employees of American Motors.

UAW President Leonard Woodcock said Friday that he expects GM to match both the wage and fringe benefits packages worked out at Ford during a 28-day strike and matched at Chrysler with some improvements job-protecting issues. Asked if he thought GM would follow the pattern, Woodcock said:

"I have no reason to believe they will not. On the other hand, since they have done nothing I have no positive assurance they will."

The union has never called two nationwide strikes in any year since it began its "target" bargaining strategy in 1955.

Picket lines were set up Saturday morning outside the Trenton, Mich., engine plant; the Twinsburg, Ohio, stamping plant; and the Etobicoke, Ont., casting plant. All three have been working heavy overtime and are considered critical to continued operations, a spokesman said.

Even before the 6 p.m. strike deadline on Friday, some 24,000 workers left their jobs in unauthorized walkouts that forced seven assembly and manufacturing plants in the Detroit and Windsor, Ont., areas to close. Both union and company spokesmen said they expected those plants would reopen at their normal times Monday.

Tentative Contract Approved With Striking Bus Workers

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) —

Union representatives of 500 striking Continental Trailways Southeastern Bus Lines workers tentatively approved a negotiated contract with the company Saturday evening.

Striking workers were to be polled on the contract this morning and could be back on the job, ending the two-day strike, by tonight if the new contract is approved, according to union boss Bruce Odom.

Contract negotiations between Amalgamated Transit Union and the bus lines broke down shortly before midnight Thursday with the union leaders calling for a strike.

A federal mediator began working with the company and the union Saturday to try and put together a contract with pay and benefit provisions that would satisfy both sides of the dispute.

The strike affected service in five southeastern states.

Almost 300 drivers and 200 ticket agents, baggage and maintenance personnel walked off the job at midnight Friday, and picket lines were set up at the Charlotte bus terminal Friday and Saturday. No incidents were reported.

Continental Trailways officials said the strike was affecting passenger service in a five-state area, but the effects were not crippling.

"It's really not as bad as it could be," said Tom Davis, area sales manager for Southeastern Lines.

Davis said Carolina Trailways and Greyhound Bus Co. could provide service to most stations served by Continental Trailways. Greyhound officials said they did not plan to add extra bus trips to their schedule.

Problems For A New Governor

From the beginning Jim Hunt seemed destined to be governor of North Carolina.

He had an outstanding record in state government capped by his four years as lieutenant governor, a position which took on more significance than usual, since he was serving with a Republican governor.

That is not to make it appear that the path which led to Hunt's election Tuesday was an easy one. Indeed it was not. The governor-elect had to win the Democratic nomination in a field of candidates which was as good as any the party had offered in modern times. He won the nomination, however, without the need for a second primary.

Then Hunt faced a formidable challenge from GOP candidate David Flaherty, and while the final vote was not close, Hunt's election was not a sure thing as the campaign progressed.

When the final results were in, however, Hunt was North Carolina's new governor, and with him comes new hope for tackling and solving some of North Carolina's problems. There are roads to be built and we need to do something about our low standing in industrial wages. We must strive to keep our environment clean. We need to improve the quality of education in our public schools. These are some of the things that Jim Hunt will face.

Can we bring about improvement in these areas? Well, when the public became aroused enough North Carolina did something about its health care problems. We established the new medical school at East Carolina University and the AHEC program, both of which offer hope of alleviating our physician shortage.

If the public is concerned enough we can solve other problems in the state, and that is where leadership comes in.

Hunt said after the victory, "I promise to work hard and to try hard . . . because I want to make you proud you elected me your governor."

Prior to the election Hunt was asked about road building plans. He said he wanted to be known as a "highway building governor." He considered east-west highways as "absolutely vital for the growth of the economy for North Carolina."

"I'll be as fair as I can as to where the new highways are built," he said.

The people of North Carolina can't ask anymore of a new governor than that, whether it involves highways or education or the state's economy.

"Gentlemen, please! Stop this silly bickering! Someone could get hurt!"

One More Try For Better Politicking

Now that one more four-year election is over we need to look for ways to shorten the campaigning on both the state and federal levels.

Something needs to be done about the hodge-podge of primaries which precede our presidential nominations, and the campaign times should be shorter all the way around.

Campaigns shouldn't be marathons; rather they should involve a reasonable length of time for the public to see how the candidates stand on various issues.

THIS AFTERNOON

State Has Safety Valves

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — North Carolina has some interesting safety valves built into the state government, many dating back to Colonial times with the abuses of royal governors and appointed legislatures.

We are now in one of those "safety-valve" periods. New members of the General Assembly chosen by the voters this week are now officially legislators, although they won't be legally sworn into office until the 1977 session next January.

The New Lawmakers will begin drawing their pay and expense money, and receiving mailings effective this week. Those who retired voluntarily (or were defeated) are off the rolls.

The explanation for such a procedure is simply that should a situation require a special legislative session, it would be the new members who will be making decisions—decisions they will have to live with for their term in office, and be held accountable for by those who elected them.

Thus, no "lame-duck" special session of the Legislature can be called at which any person bitter in defeat could precipitate vengeful action.

Braying
Jim Graham, North Carolina's agricultural commissioner and staunch Democratic Party spokesman, has won statewide acclaim and some national notoriety for his Democrat bray.

He displayed that talent when Jimmy Carter campaigned in Winston-Salem just before the election: grasping his nostrils and flailing wildly with his hind leg, Graham renders an ear-splitting version of the donkey bray. That critter, not so incidentally, is the symbol of the party which Graham loves so much.

And those who hear the concert (it can run on seemingly for minutes) generally love it.

Except for an incident during the campaign in a particular Down East town.

A silver-haired lady, obviously a little hard of hearing, sat near the front. Graham was introduced, and Secretary of State Thad Eure announced, "And now, Jim will bray for us."

The lady bowed reverently, and closed her eyes, hidden beneath the brim of a straw bonnet. At the first echo of Graham's "braying" her head jerked upright within the the bonnet; she lifted the hat and stared unbelieving at what was going on. Later she complained, "That was the most irreverent thing I've ever seen."

First Hand
One way to lid industrial prospects get the unvarnished truth about North Carolina is to have them talk with some recent newcomers, now firmly established as Tar Heels.

A major feature of the state's new promotion campaign kicked off this week in the Wall Street Journal in a section that lists the names and phone numbers of top executives for 35 North Carolina companies—most of which located here in the past five years.

Readers of the advertisement (a two-page spread highlighted by a survey which found this state second in the choices of people seeking a new location) are invited to call and find out, "What is it really like to locate a plant in North Carolina?"

George Little, head of the Department of Natural and Economic Resources, said response from North Carolina companies "willing to brag about their success stories was almost overwhelming. We had more companies agree to participate than we had room to list them in the ad . . . indicative of the positive attitude of companies in this state toward business and industrial recruitment."

Sunday Morning Notes

In the waning hours of the election coverage Wednesday morning it was clear that Georgia's Jimmy Carter had won.

NBC correspondent Tom Brokaw predicted that there would be a period of interest in southern traditions on the Washington scene. Everyone would be looking for a southern relative to claim and so on, he predicted.

David Brinkley, who as most folks around here know comes from Wilmington, commented, "Well, I hope you all are right." Sho 'nuf.

And in the thick of tabulating the votes in The Daily Reflector office Tuesday night, one report sheet, for Greenville 3, showed up with 304 write-in votes for Howard Lee.

Lee, if you recall, was defeated for lieutenant governor in the Democratic primary. Election workers marveled over this display of loyalty on the part of the voters, but it was decided to double check.

Actually, we were told, what the poll holder had reported was "three or four" write-in votes for Lee.

And in The Daily Reflector lounge on the morning after the election there appeared a sign. It read, "Free Jimmy Carter peanut butter and crackers. Help yourself."

On the table was a jar of peanut butter, packages of crackers and a knife for spreading the peanut butter.

Come to think of it there might be a lot of peanut butter consumed in Washington during the next four years.

Most everybody got caught up in this year's election as the heavy vote indicated. Not the least of "everybody" was Mrs. Nancy Higdon's third grade of South Greenville School.

The children's letters and posters were displayed at North Carolina National Bank during the election week.

"I'm glad I live in America," wrote Kelly Jones. "If I lived in another country we might have to speak another language."

Katherine Pruitt wrote, "I want Jimmy Carter to be president because he would be good at it and Ford would not."

Michele Hursey said in a letter to Carter, "I hope you win. I think it's a good idea to raise taxes. Then maybe you can use the money to stop air pollution."

Timothy Wood addressed his letter to Ford, "I think you, Mr. Ford would make a fine president again. I know you were one last year, but I want you to be another one."

Kosannya Daniels wrote to Ford, "I voted for you because you were not going to raise prices. If you do not win I am still going to vote for you."

Tommy Rosche wrote to Carter, "I think that you should win because you are an honest man."

Lilia Ryan did a poster of a bird which was singing, "I am for Ford."

Billy Hall said "Carter is a nerd."

Jim Hall said, "Ford is a nerd."

A difference of opinion, as well as spelling.

Saturday, November 21, will be homecoming day at East Carolina Teachers College. More than a thousand teachers will already be assembled at the College for a north-eastern district meeting of the North Carolina Education Association on Friday and Saturday, and a large proportion of the teachers are graduates of the College.

In some counties in the district E.C.T.C. graduates outnumber the graduates of all other colleges combined. Additional hundreds of alumnae and alumni teaching in other sections of this state, and in other states, together with the large number of alumnae who have long since forgotten that they have ever been members of the teaching profession, are expected to return on that day and make up one of the largest representations from past classes ever to assemble at the Greenville college.

The homecoming celebration will include an alumni luncheon, a football game between the E.C.T.C. Pirates and the Louisburg College eleven and a dance in the evening.

THE INSIDE REPORT

High Price Of Politics

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The increasingly aggressive courting by both presidential candidates of the small but strategically placed Jewish vote in Tuesday's election had immediate and harmful results, so far unpublished, among Arab countries long regarded as friends and economic allies of the U.S.

One major result: Ashraf Ghorbal, the highly respected Egyptian Ambassador in Washington, has been in virtual hiding from American reporters ever since President Ford stunned Egypt — along with high Defense and State Department officials — with his unexpected announcement that Israel would receive super — sophisticated weapons so new they had not yet been delivered to the U.S. Army. Ghorbal knew anything he said would either advertise his country's lack of influence with the U.S. or damage future U.S.-Egyptian relations.

Another result is rising radical pressure against the strongly pro-Western government of Kuwait (which recently suspended its parliament out of fear of Palestinian political pressures). One-sided Middle East policy — what Israel asks, Israel gets — enunciated from the political stump by both Mr. Ford and Jimmy Carter undercuts any pro-Western Arab state.

Relations between the U.S. and the Arabs will probably survive the rhetorical excesses of the just-concluded campaign. Nevertheless, the foreign price of domestic politics is high. Egypt, which has invested its whole future in the U.S. instead of Moscow, is embittered. So is Saudi Arabia, which controls the price and availability of the oil the U.S. must buy in ever — increasing amounts. Overall, the whole Arab world has been infuriated — a reckless price to pay indeed.

Ever since the creation of the state of Israel in 1948, presidential candidates have perceived only political danger in an even-handed policy toward the Arabs and potential benefits in the support of Israel. But 1976 may have escalated this trend to new peaks.

Thus, Mr. Ford in a White House question and answer session limited to editors of the Jewish weekly press, committed the U.S. to "very substantial economic and military assistance" to Israel for the long-range future. There was no mention of any quid pro quo from Israel. Moreover, Mr. Ford took credit for sending Israel "60 per cent of the total military and economic assistance" that Israel has received from the U.S. since statehood, nearly 30 years ago.

Precisely such open-handed promises and deliveries are believed by American diplomats to have been the principal factor in the failure of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's March 1975 effort to persuade Israel to agree to a second withdrawal of its forces from Sinai. "We sent Israel so much stuff after the Yom Kippur war (October 1973) that we lost our bargaining power," one government

To the editor:

Farmville is a beautiful town, a nice place to live. Or is it? Is it a peaceful, secure place to bring up our children? It isn't if certain town fathers and others continue to change our chiefs of police every year or two, supposedly in our interest. Anyone can see this is not solving our town's problems. And we do have problems—drug problems affecting our children and crime, as was pointed out in a recent armed robbery here.

These problems can't be solved overnight. It takes years. Therefore, we must have a law enforcement program that spans several years. We must have police personnel to institute these plans and then be around to carry them out. So far the town fathers have not seemed to agree. Farmville has had at least four chiefs of police in six years. I cannot believe that not one of these men was qualified to carry out such a program. Now I understand some of our commissioners and self-styled politicians are about to push out another police chief because of petty quarrels, not because of lack of ability or dedication, ignoring our families welfare.

It's time Farmville people went to a few town meetings. They need to find out if there are any valid reasons why Chief Canady needs replacing or if, again, a few people are removing him because of petty dislikes.

I don't live in Farmville, but I live nearby. My children attend school there and my relatives live there, so I feel I have valid concern. Farmville citizens need to see to it the town is not permanently awarded the reputation of pettiness and inadequate law enforcement because of these incessant changes. If not, our peaceful decent town may cease to exist. It's up to us to demand an end to secrecy and pettiness and come to the support of our police chief, unless it's proved to US that this support is unwarranted.

Economist Looks For Activist

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analysis

NEW YORK (AP) — The major difference between the Ford and Carter administrations will be the difference between a passive and an active president, said Walter Heller, the economist.

"Out of that activity we can look for both a bolder attack on the jobless problem and a more broad gauge, broad spectrum anti-inflationary program, said Heller, one of the Democratic party's most influential advisers.

Heller said that despite a more active role, Carter's respect for and understanding of the market mechanism makes it highly unlikely that wage-price controls will be imposed, as businessmen and others have feared.

"There's been a lot of misunderstanding on that issue," said Heller, adding: "He doesn't want legal sanctions but instead a sense of responsibility from big business and big labor." Carter's wage-price program will be voluntary, he said.

"I've discussed this with Mondale and with Carter and I see real respect for the working of the market system. But where it doesn't work and where antitrust cannot handle the problem there will be guidelines," Heller said.

Because of his close association with Carter and Vice President-elect Walter F. Mondale as an adviser, and because he served as chief economic adviser in the most recent Democratic administrations, Heller was asked his opinions Wednesday on changes to be expected.

On the issue of jobs, which appeared to play a large role in Carter's victory, Heller said he found the president-elect listening to a variety of programs but that no final choice has been made.

"I find that Carter understands you cannot get down below 5 per cent unemployment with fiscal and monetary measures without getting into inflation," said Heller. "He knows you have to go the last mile with structural measures."

Heller said "It is very important that he understands that, and very important that the country knows Carter doesn't fit the big spending image." He realizes, said Heller, "you can't just open the spigots."

Carter, he said, will not "try to flood the economy with fiscal and monetary stimulus," but instead will seek to focus his efforts on the specific employment problems, on the "structure" of unemployment.

The thrust of Carter's effort therefore, he said, would be to have government provide "meaningful incentives to private business to give jobs and training to the hard-core unemployed."

Carter, he said, will also seek deregulation of industry in cases where it leads to

"price propping" and the stifling of competition.

The president-elect, he said, is also sympathetic to the concept of government acquiring buffer stocks of commodities that could be released in order to control speculative demand that leads to higher prices for basic goods.

Similar stocks have been maintained before but solely for national defense purposes. The idea of using such stocks to control prices results from a staff study of the 1974 commodities price explosion that, said Heller, indicated 40 per cent of the spiral could have been averted.

Speaking again of Carter's feelings on wage-price restraints, Heller commented: "He wants to retain and unchain the Council on Wage-Price Stability to focus just on the concentrated industries and really big business and big labor and

Strength For Today

ELIMINATING WEEDS

One of the best ways of keeping weeds out of a lawn is to fertilize the lawn generously in the fall. If the grass has plenty of food to tide it over the winter and to encourage its growth in the spring, it will crowd most of the weeds out of existence.

The same process is equally effective in keeping the weeds out of our spiritual lives. If we carefully foster the growth of good moral principles and habits, the evil things of life will have much less chance to take root and grow.

Of course, if weeds in our lives get a head start, it is necessary to get down and dig them out by the roots. This is at best a painful and laborious procedure, and wherever it is done, it will leave scars. Wisdom dictates, therefore, that the best way to foster the growth of our spiritual lives is to feed into them those things which will lead to fruition.

Americans Among Most 'Satisfied'

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N.J. — Americans — despite their complaints about many aspects of U.S. society today — appear to be considerably more satisfied with the quality of their life than are most other people of the free world.

Specifically, Americans express a higher level of satisfaction with important aspects of daily living, including family life, health, leisure time, housing, work, their communities, their standard of living, their education for work and for life, and, finally life in their nation today.

Even among the lower economic groups in the U.S., satisfaction levels for the items tested are higher than the national averages recorded in the developing regions of the world.

These findings emerge from the first global public opinion study ever undertaken, covering 70 nations and 90 per cent of the population of the free world. One of the chief goals of the study was to gain greater insight into the views of people with respect to their lives and self-image, and to explore their views on such critical world problems as overpopulation, food supply, crime, urbanization, pollution and the like. The study was funded by the Charles F. Kettering Foundation and the research was carried out in most nations by the thirty members comprising Gallup International Research Institutes.

Interviewing in most nations was carried out during the last 24 months. Presently efforts are being made to include Communist nations in the survey.

Gulf Separates Advanced, Developing Nations

The first effort to appraise the quality of life on a global basis indicates that the gulf which separates the advanced societies from the developing nations in respect to material well-being is just as wide in respect to psychological well-being. The nations with the highest per capita income almost invariably top every test of psychological well-being and satisfaction in major aspects of life.

To measure the level or degree of satisfaction or dissatisfaction with important aspects of one's life, a 10-point scale was used. Each respondent was asked to point to the step on the scale that best represented his feelings of satisfaction or dissatisfaction with a particular aspect of his life—including his job, family life, housing, standard of living, health, community, education, leisure time and nation.

The top step represented the highest level of satisfaction and the bottom step the lowest level of dissatisfaction.

As the table below shows, family life rates at the top of all satisfactions among the more advanced societies, but lower on the satisfaction scale among the developing nations, with the exception of Latin America.

In the case of each of the 10 items tested, North America comes out on top (including the U.S. which represents the vast majority of the total population of North America).

	North America	Western Europe	Latin America	Africa	Far East
Your family life	73%	64%	60%	18%	18%
Your present health	63	51	48	33	18
Your leisure time	58	48	51	30	13

United States for abortions until amendment of the West German law to permit abortion in some circumstances.

The U.S. Army in Europe, the U.S. Air Force in Europe and the Defense Department's Office of Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services revealed details of abortion policies and practices in replies to questions submitted by UPI.

A spokesman for the Army in Europe says about 7,500 women soldiers are assigned to the organization.

In 1975, 361 of these women soldiers were flown to the United States for abortions and then returned to duty in Europe, while another 402 unmarried women soldiers elected to keep their babies, the spokesman said.

The figures for 1976 are running at about the same rate, the spokesman said.

The Air Force said 50 airwomen assigned to it had abortions in 1975, in hospitals in Germany, with abortions continuing this year at the same rate.

CHAMPUS reported that during the year ending June 30, 1976, it paid out $100,808.69 to defray part of the costs of 539 abortions for American civilian women attached to the U.S. armed services in Europe, Africa and the Middle East.

Women soldiers who elect to have abortions are "excused from duty status," an Army spokesman said. Those who choose to keep their babies get two or three weeks off duty before the child's birth and six weeks postnatal leave. They must make their own baby-sitting arrangements thereafter. The army does not pay for baby-sitters.

A woman soldier who wants an abortion must consult with at least two physicians, one of whom must be a military obstetrician-gynecologist, and who also will suggest alternative solutions, the army said.

But an abortion will be scheduled for the woman if she still insists on it after that consultation, and providing the abortion "is medically indicated to avoid danger to the woman's life or serious prejudice to her physical or mental state of health," the conditions laid down by the amended German penal code.

Humpty-Dumpty On The Highest Bench In U.S.

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

In a familiar phrase, we often speak of the "body of the law." By metaphorical extension, one gets to the anatomy of the law and thence to dissection of the law. In his recently published book, "Disaster by Decree," Lino A. Graglia has performed a masterful job of dissection on the body of law concerned with race and schools. This is a superlative work.

Graglia brings impeccable credentials to his pathological task. He is a native New Yorker, a graduate of City College of New York, a graduate in law from Columbia, a former Department of Justice attorney. He is now a professor of constitutional law at the University of Texas Law School. His book is published by the Cornell University Press. He suffers no Southern stigma.

Step by patient step, Graglia traces the course of desegregation law from a point before the famous Brown decision of 1954 to the most recent decisions affecting Boston and Detroit. He finds the course "incredible." The Supreme Court, he observes, began by prohibiting and deploring racial discrimination; the Court now stands in a position of requiring and approving the very racial discrimination it once condemned.

"This impossible task has required it to resort to methods — unfair and inaccurate statements of fact, patently fallacious reasoning, and perversion of the 1964 Civil Rights Act—that would be considered scandalous in any other institution or official of American government."

In some years of reading books about the law, I cannot recall a critique more comprehensive, or more devastating, than Graglia's assault upon the Supreme Court's twisted trail in the matter of school desegregation. He has no trouble with the Brown decision as such; the South's scheme of compulsory segregation plainly disadvantaged some children and therefore denied these children equal protection of the law. But Graglia has great trouble with Chief Justice Warren's opinion supporting that decision, and he has still greater trouble with the contradictory decrees that have followed in its wake.

The Brown case of 1954 led directly to the Civil Rights Act of 1964. In construing the 1964 act, Graglia demonstrates, the Supreme Court disdained the history, the spirit, the intention, and the plain language of the law.

The Civil Rights Act spelled out explicitly what "desegregation" means and what it does not mean. Desegregation, said Congress, "means the assignment of students to public schools and within such schools without regard to their race." "Desegregation," said Congress, "shall not mean the assignment of students to public schools in order to overcome racial imbalance."

Graglia marshals irrefutable evidence that Congress meant what it said. The leading liberals of that time — Humphrey, Javits, Kuchel and Celler — repeatedly insisted that the Civil Rights Act could never be misunderstood; it could not be perverted into a requirement of racial integration or racial balancing. But the bureaucracy, and the courts, proceeded at once to pervert the language all the same.

By a feat of dazzling word play, Graglia observes, the courts asserted that their decrees required only that racial discrimination be eliminated; they then required discrimination in the name of eliminating discrimination. The Court "was thus able to retain the enormous advantage of seeming to combat racism while in fact imposing a racist requirement." It was law by Humpty-Dumpty.

What troubles Graglia especially is that the high court, by its judicial activism, has "reintroduced race as a permissible, and made it for the first time a sometimes constitutionally required, basic of government action." This feat has been accomplished by judges appointed for life, accountable only to themselves. So far as the public schools are concerned, the judges have brought the country "to a position increasingly recognized as intolerable." And the autocracy goes on.

Graglia's scholarly polemic may not influence a willful court; but if his work is sufficiently read, it could have great effect upon a constitutional amendment intended to undo the evils of racism the Court has wrought.

Oldest McCoy Doubts It Could Happen Again

WILLIAMSON, W. Va. —

The feud between the Hatfields and McCoy's, a West Virginia mountain war lasting more than thirty years and taking its toll of more than 100 men, women and children, has become a myth to most Americans. But this amazing epic is more than myth to 91-year-old Jim McCoy of Stringtown, Kentucky. The oldest living member of the McCoy family clearly remembers this bloody vendetta. When he talks of the famous feud, he lowers his voice and glances over his shoulder to make sure there's no one within hearing distance who might take offense.

"I still feel the Hatfields were responsible for the feud," says Jim McCoy. "They killed Harmon McCoy after the Civil War and they burnt our home. That was a horrible thing, burning our home. They didn't have to do that." His voice trembles as he reminisces about that night in 1888 when the Hatfields, infuriated by detectives sent into their territory by the McCoy's to capture the Hatfield clan, burned the McCoy's log cabin and killed two of Jim McCoy's cousins, Allfair and Calvin. Jim McCoy was dragged from the burning timbers that night. "I was just a young whooper then," he said. "But, I remember all we were able to save was our bedclothes."

Even after the May 2, 1976 official truce, when a memorial was dedicated to the McCoy's by the Hatfields, the scars remain of the feud that sent a fusillade of bullets plowing through the Appalachians. Jim points to the hill where his home once stood, near the memorial, outside Williamson, West Virginia, overlooking a trickling stream the mountain folk call Blackberry Creek. His voice grows deep and his whisper harsh as he speaks with enthusiasm of the days when a man took the law into his own hands.

"Yes sir, the McCoy's had a reputation for being hospitable to strangers, but a person better look out if he stole anything from them," says Jim. "My cousin Leland had this here plum tree in the backyard. Once everyday for a week, he found plums missing from that tree. Finally he decided he was gonna fix whoever it was who was taking those plums. So, he put poison on that tree. Next day, I heard tell that a man died. He must of 'cause that fruit was never stolen again."

Jim also remembers a time when the high sheriff of his county came to the McCoy home. "He had it in his mind to end the feud," says Jim. "But, we captured him and took him to a hill." Once there, the McCoy's crammed some bushes under him, typing one end of a rope around the marshall's neck and the other end to a tree. "We asked if he wanted to pray," said Jim. "And we'd take the rope off his neck. But he said 'no,' so we turned the bush loose. My daddy said that a man with that much nerve should be killed 'cause he'd surely cause us harm later on."

When Jim was young, he wasn't allowed to speak to the Hatfields. But as he grew older and the feud neared its end, he remembered going to get supplies with Allen Hatfield. Once, he even drank some moonshine with Devil Anse, the feared leader of the enemy clan. "The Hatfields are my friends now," he said. "Just the other day a Hatfield boy brought me over three squirrels he had killed. Imagine that — a Hatfield doing that for a McCoy."

Times have changed. Motorboats have replaced flat-bottomed boats and muddy scows that once traveled the riverbeds of the Tug, which divided the two clans. Asphalt has paved the buffalo trails. And everyday, coal is bringing more silver to the pockets of families who could once only afford one-room shanties and log cabin homes. Jim McCoy has seen that change. "I don't think it could happen again," he says. "People recognize themselves more now; they have more respect."

Several months ago, McCoy stood beside the feud's memorial, his hands clasped by a Hatfield. As he declared a truce, his emotions welled. The need for vengeance has died with the passing of an era, but for Jim McCoy the scars of bitterness and violence will probably never be completely healed.

Mideast expert told us. "Ford is now running exactly the same risk."

Ironically, the result of Kissinger's failure in the spring of 1975 was, a "reassessment" of the U.S.-Israeli political link — sounding distinctly dangerous overtones for Israel itself. The reassessment did not end until Israel and Egypt finally agreed on Israel's withdrawal from the Sinai mountain passes and the Abu Rudeis oilfields.

But even more ardent support of Israel (thereby courting American Jews, who vote in a higher percentage than any other ethnic group) came from Carter in the second debate. Carter charged that Mr. Ford "has permitted a boycott" against American firms doing business with Israel because get them to sit down together."

He said Carter has expressed himself very specifically on this approach. The president-elect, he said, wants large units "we think of as noncompetitive" to report major wage-price decisions in advance to the council.

Heller said he thinks a good objective analysis then can be made, and that when it is determined that increases are unjustified, "the President will use jawboning."

Heller said Carter believes presidential leadership might he allowed the Arabs "to put pressure on him."

Carter's apparent solution: end the Arab boycott against Israel by U.S. executive fiat. That suggests Arab hostility toward Israel is somehow controllable by Washington and is unrelated to Israel's continuing military occupation of Egyptian, Jordanian and Syrian territory.

Carter's charge was later put in proper perspective by Gerald Parsky, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury. The only way to end the Arab boycott, he told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, was to settle the Arab-Israeli dispute.

work where other methods have failed. An example of this, he said would be in convincing labor that "it is just as well off with 5 per cent wage increases and 2.5 per cent inflation as it would be with 8 per cent increases and 5.5 per cent inflation."

A prerequisite of such leadership, he said, is responsible fiscal and monetary policy. "While Carter is an activist, he'll have a well modulated fiscal and monetary program," said Heller.

"He really understands that no longer can you handle inflation by the demand side only, but that you have to move to supply," he observed.

DAMOCLES HAD A SWORD TO WORRY ABOUT!

By GAIL MICHAELS

First Milestone For A Pint-Sized Entertainer

Dear Meg,

Today is your first birthday. I'm relieved that you — and I — have made it through your first year. You are here in spite of two trips to the emergency room, a deadly rash (later identified as Red Flair-Tip), and protracted irritability and restlessness symptomatic of, according to Dr. Spock, either beri-beri or teething. I am here in spite of a new ulcer (aggravated by trying to suppress questionable language after you dropped a crock-pot on my toe), a fall backwards over a Fisher-Price Corn Popper left resting at my heels while I was doing dishes, and the word "KEDS" permanently imprinted on my knee when I tried to bring you in early from the playground.

You're a lucky little girl. Every child should be surrounded with the love you have — from parents, four grandparents, and four great-grandparents. But you have given all of us much more than we could ever give you. Your daddy and I didn't think we could love you any more than we did when you first registered your lusty complaint over the indignity of birth. You have proved us wrong in this, your first year. How could we anticipate then the way our love would grow with each new facet of your personality? We knew that little girls were "sugar 'n spice," but how were we to know that somewhere in those nine months before you made your grand entrance, you got an overdose of spice?

How could we have known when you were born that we had invested in a pint-sized entertainment center? Not even Mel Brooks could make us laugh as hard as we do when you flap around in your over-sized pajamas like a seal or when you insist on waving to all the good-looking men you see. Or when your dainty little mouth stretches into a grin that covers your entire face. Long after we have forgotten exactly what happened in The Sting, we will remember your first joke — pointing to yourself and saying "da-da." And the way you walk around kissing your dolls and your penchant for washing your hands in the toilet. And the times we've been awakened at 3 a.m. by "The Farmer in the Dell" being played over and over on your Busy Koo-Koo. And the way you listened patiently while I lectured you on the dangers of standing up in chairs, then shook your finger back at me with the stern admonition, "Bedoogabee!" I barely remember the way "The Godfather" affected me, but I will never forget my misery the first time you had to cry yourself to sleep or my terror at your first high fever.

Because I doubt that you are capable yet of making a wish on your first birthday candle (although your father is sure that you are capable of doing anything), I will make a wish for you. I wish that you will always have as much love as you have now, and I hope that, no matter what happens in your coming years, your father and I will always remember the vivid joy you have given us in your first one.

CB Radio Buyers Market Expected End Soon

By JOHN D. MCCLAIN

Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — If you're looking for a Citizens Band radio set, now might be the best time to buy.

A combination of factors has depressed the market, so much so that many dealers are offering greatly reduced prices as well as free accessories to attract reluctant buyers. Despite this, some distributors have gone bankrupt in recent months.

But industry spokesmen say the buyers' market is expected to end by the first of the year, when the Federal Communications Commission decision to expand the CB spectrum from 23 to 40 channels takes effect.

It was confusion over that decision — together with what one industry representative described as the usual summer sales slump and supply finally meeting demand after an unprecedented boom — that produced the many bargains now available.

"Many dealers in the weeks after the (August) FCC decision reported that retail sales had stopped dead," said a spokesman for one major manufacturer.

Other industry representatives agreed with his report of "very, very difficult times for anybody in the CB business" during the last two months.

But most agreed the slump may be ending as Christmas approaches and with the addition of the new channels on Jan. 1 and better public understanding of the effects of the FCC channel-expansion decision.

The main problem, said John Sodolski, vice president of the Electronic Industries Association, has been a lot of confusion over whether 23-channel sets will be operable after Jan. 1.

Sodolski said there had been erroneous reports that either 23-channel sets will be obsolete or illegal then or that somehow the channels will be different.

But the only difference will be additional frequencies for CB use which the FCC and CBers themselves hope will help relieve congestion on the current 23 channels, and increased interference protection.

CBs now in use or being sold will continue to be operated as they are now, particularly on emergency channel 9 and travelers channel 19.

But CBers buying 40-channel sets are expected to utilize the new upper 17 channels and thus lessen the crowded conditions on the current 23.

As one industry spokesman said: "Most people use only three channels — 9, 19 and one of their hoosing for conversation. When the 40-channel sets go into operation, those seeking a conversation channel probably will go to the upper 17," where conditions will be less crowded and range much farther.

CBers wishing to use the new channels will have to buy new sets, however, since the FCC has ruled illegal the addition of any equipment to current 23 channel models to permit use of the new channels.

They Climb The Biggest, Tallest And Deepest

DAN BUNCE, who will climb Nanga Parbat, has some blood removed from his arm. The climbers will be re-injected with their own red blood cells while on the climb. (UPI Photo)

By STEVEN PRÓKESCH PITTSBURGH (UPI) — One spent the summer laying the groundwork and jogs six miles a day. Another concentrates on his yoga.

They'll be ready next summer, 10 seasoned climbers of the Explorers Club of Pittsburgh "to meet the test of the mountain."

That is when they intend to launch the first American assault on Nanga Parbat, the ninth highest mountain in the world.

"We try to do the biggest, the tallest and the deepest," said Al Michael, 32, president of the club, of the trip to Pakistan to conquer the 26,660-foot Himalayan peak.

Already among the club's laurels: the first ascent of Angel Falls, a vertical face in Venezuela, and the descent of the 1,200-foot deep Sotono de Las Golondrinas in Mexico, which has been the deepest vertical pit in the world.

"Climbing is a constant testing of oneself to see if you can survive the rigors, to see if you can meet the test of the mountain," Michael said.

The 10 explorers are not the only ones concerned with the outcome of the climb next July. The medical profession and the military are also interested in the Nanga Parbat expedition, or more accurately, in the effects of a treatment known as "auto-transfusion" to be monitored during the trip.

The treatment involves increasing the oxygen-bearing capacity of a person's blood by injecting the subject with his own red blood cells before the trip.

Dr. Ronald O. Gilcher of the Central Blood Bank in Pittsburgh said auto-transfusion could make brain surgery and other operations less hazardous.

"Due to shortages of blood, the current trend is to dilute blood with plasma," he said. "Transfusions of red blood cells would be better. A patient is even better off when the red blood cells are his own. His body will not reject his own blood while it could someone else's."

Auto-transfusions could also help soldiers adjust to high altitudes.

"The Chinese currently keep soldiers at high altitudes to acclimate them," Gilcher said. "The Russians, however, are already familiar with hyper-transfusions to acclimate their troops."

The experiments on Nanga

Parbat might also provide some answers to the cause of high altitude sickness, publicized after the recent death of Nanda Devi Unsoeld, 21, the daughter of Willie Unsoeld, the first American to climb Mt. Everest. She died while climbing her Himalayan namesake.

Gilcher said he hoped to accompany the Pittsburgh climbers as high as 20,000 feet in order to conduct the experiments himself. The explorers, most of whom are physics graduate students or engineers, will receive the transfusions before leaving the United States.

While the Explorers Club is just beginning to raise the $87,000 from corporate and private donations that it projects the expedition will cost, other preparations for the summer ascent have already begun.

Expedition co-leader Dan Bunce, 31, spent eight weeks in Pakistan last summer laying the groundwork for the trip. He even accompanied a Japanese team partway up the western "Daimir" flank, the approach to be taken by the Explorers next July. High winds prevented the Japanese from completing the climb.

The Daimir flank was scaled once, in 1963, by a German-Austrian team.

"The mountain itself has only been climbed three times since Hans Bruhl, an Austrian, reached the top in 1953, the same year (Sir Edmund) Hillary did Everest," Bunce said.

The climbers are also beginning to physically ready themselves for the trip. Bunce said he is running six miles a day.

Another club member is practicing yoga.

"Some of us would also like to take on a peak in Bolivia in December," Bunce said. Last summer, the club sponsored an expedition against Huandoy, a 21,000-foot peak in the Peruvian Andes, to prepare for Nanga Parbat.

Bunce, who climbs mountains "for the challenge," said he might be willing to quit mountaineering after conquering Nanga Parbat, Persian for "naked mountain."

Judge And Wife Are Hypnotists

WARDEN, Wash. (AP) — When Municipal Court Judge F. E. Robertson looks you in the eye, you don't take it lightly. He and his wife are professional hypnotists.

And while Robertson says he has enjoyed most of his clients, he admits he's also had "some of the meanest" people in the world to treat.

"A young ornery boy with criminal tendencies was sent to me by authorities who asked me to try to keep him from getting into trouble again," the judge recalled. "After some hypnosis therapy the boy never was in trouble with the law again and went on to become one of the best wrestlers this state ever produced."

Nor has his off-the-bench practice been limited to juvenile delinquents. He said 43 students at Eastern Washington State College in Cheney, more than 80 miles away, came to his Hypnotic Therapy Clinic when they feared they might flunk out of school.

After being hypnotized and told that their interest in school would grow each day, and that they would no longer let outside pressures hinder their concentration, Robertson says, "Every one of them passed."

In fact, he says hypnosis can cure just about anything — obesity, alcoholism, chain-smoking and yes, even corns.

"If a person has an ailment somewhere, I tell the body to create the chemicals to heal the wounds," he said.

Robertson recalled a nurse with corns all over her feet.

"I rubbed her feet and told her that her body would create acid to dissolve the corns," he said, "and within a few weeks they disappeared."

Robertson, 65, says he was a busy building contractor and was handling 500 court cases a month when a truck accident left him with a broken back.

"The doctor just about gave up on it ever healing and said I would be dead in six months unless I put my faith in God or learned hypnosis to try to heal it," he said.

Choosing the latter course, Robertson and his wife trekked south to Los Angeles to attend a school of hypnosis.

However, he says he quit accepting patients recently because of a stroke, all the while maintaining that even the stroke might have been prevented.

"If I had known even 15 minutes before it hit me that the stroke was coming," Robertson said, "I could have stopped it through hypnosis."

4-H Club Members Visited Greenville

Forty 4-H members from Northeastern North Carolina visited in Pitt County Thursday and Friday while on a three-day business-industry study.

The high school juniors and seniors are taking part in an "Economics in Action" program, designed to allow them to observe business and industry operations first-hand.

Mike Davis, Pitt County 4-H Co-ordinator, said the program is designed to orientate the older 4-H'er to occupational requirements and to help them learn more about economics of business and industrial operations.

The group arrived in Pitt County Thursday afternoon after stops Wednesday in Williamston and Washington. They visited Worthington Farms, Inc., where Kinsey Worthington discussed the operation in terms of managing a large agricultural enterprise.

Friday morning they visited Burroughs-Wellcome and Carolina Leaf Tobacco Company to concentrate upon production operations.

Later, visits to Brody's, Inc. and Blount-Harvey's acquainted the youths primarily with merchandising.

Lawton Nisbit of Interstate Securities Corporation discussed the stock market and its economic function. Reginald Gray, Pitt County Manager, related the increasing function of government as it affects and responds to the economic situation.

The program concluded with a panel discussion of "The Ethics of Business". Panel members included Janice Buck, Lawton Nisbit, Ray Rogers, and Andy Warren.

Ed Walker, executive vice-president Greenville Chamber of Commerce, and the Industrial Relations Committee of the Chamber arranged the educational business and industry tours.

SEASON'S GREETINGS—Chilly weather reached South Florida Friday, keeping would-be bathers from the inviting waters of Miami Beach. This young man found the opportunity to

Week Is To Honor Youth

Nov. 8-14 has been proclaimed "Youth Appreciation Week" in Greenville by Mayor Percy Cox.

The mayor's proclamation pointed out that the "vast majority of the youth are concerned, knowledgeable and responsible citizens."

He observed, "The accomplishments and achievements of these young citizens deserve recognition and praise of their elders."

Saying that Optimist International has, since 1954, developed and promoted a program entitled Youth Appreciation Week, Cox added that the "citizens of Greenville have indicated a desire to join with the Optimists in expressing appreciation and approval of the contributions of youth."

Greensboro Youth Scores Big Hit 'Disco Duck'

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Disc jockey Rick Dees has hit the jackpot with his recording of "Disco Duck," about a character who gets out on a discotheque floor and turns into a dancing duck.

"I feel like I'm going to wake up from all this and be back in Greensboro working at Phipps Exxon," the 26-year-old former Greensboro gas station attendant said.

"What is funny is the fact that it feels like it's happening to somebody else."

Dees, a former baseball standout at Grimsley High School here, says his hit has sold more than two million copies and has earned him more than $100,000 in as yet uncollected royalties.

But while his pocketbook is still empty, the job offers and other opportunities are pouring his way.

He is being invited to perform at colleges and to do television commercials. And he has been signed up as the morning disc jockey at WHBQ in Memphis, where he now lives, for what he says is in the neighborhood of $65,000 a year.

"At this stage there is very little privacy in my life," he said in an interview with The Greensboro Record. "Even when I go out to eat, people say, 'Look, Rick Dees cuts his food and then changes hands before putting it into his mouth.' There's no time to myself any more."

He already has recorded another album for later release called Disgorilla, featuring the voice of a singing gorilla (Dees). It is to be released, he said, about a week before the new moving version of "King Kong" is released to theaters next month.

Magic Enjoying Another Renaissance

By DAVID L. LANGFORD

NEW YORK (UPI) — It was lunchtime at a midtown men's club built on fantasies of another sort, but The Bunny couldn't wait to show her new trick to The Magician, the black-bearded man holding court in the corner booth.

"Watch," said bunny-costumed Merrie Terrell, balancing a tray of martinis at her left shoulder while she fingered matches in her right hand. The matches appeared to switch from white to black in color. "I stayed up most of the night practicing."

The magician was pleased. He showed her a way to improve the illusion.

"You see?" said Harry Blackstone Jr., a second-generation wizard, turning to his table companions. "Magic is coming back."

"They say that magic is the second oldest profession," added Blackstone, who got his start in the profession cleaning rabbit cages for his famous father. "But for so long we were in a period in which surrealism had no place, with the coming of television, the Vietnam war, the space program, etc."

"From the days of the pagan priests, the illusionist had relied on the audience's willingness to believe."

Perhaps it's part of the trend toward nostalgia, but magic is indeed enjoying a renaissance today. And television, which may have contributed to its earlier decline, is a factor in its revival.

Even though Bill Bixby's popular series, "The Magician," is now in reruns, two major networks scheduled magic specials this fall.

Hundreds of magic specialty stores are springing up all over the country and toy manufacturers have found a new Christmas craze in magic sets. Amateur magicians are turning out for conventions in 10 times their former numbers and the once-hungry pros are now finding ample bookings.

And on a recent night, a truck driver walked up to the ticket window at New York's Cort Theatre and shelled out $72 to take his kids to see "The Magic Show," the Broadway hit now in its third year starring the young Canadian magician, Doug Henning.

"I wish I knew the exact reason," said TV veteran Mark Wilson, who dabbles in magic in a big, corporate way. "There's a big interest in tennis now, too. Why?"

Wilson was the pioneer of network television magic in the Sixties with his show, "The Magic Land of Allakazam," which ran two years on CBS and five on ABC, and he was the sole creative consultant for the Bixby series. He likes to think those shows helped ignite the renaissance.

"After the end of vaudeville, the only place the magician was working was in nightclubs and fairs," he said. "Now, through television, the public is being exposed to really good magic."

A record 1,700 amateurs and professionals registered for a recent convention of the Society of American Magicians in Philadelphia. (The magicians checked out of the Bellview Stratford Hotel just before the ill-fated Legionnaires checked in.)

"We use to have only 200 to 300 at those meetings," said Wilson, who's son Greg is already a pro at age 11.

Wilson said a few years ago there were only 20 to 30 magic specialty stores in all of the United States. "Now there are 250 to 300."

MEETING DATE

The regular meeting of the Planning and Zoning Commission will be held on Dec. 1 rather than on the normal meeting date of Nov. 24, which falls on the day before Thanksgiving.

Ted Erickson, a spokesman for the Toy Manufacturers of America, said his industry first started noticing the trend about two years ago and it's still building.

"Magic sets have been a staple part of the toy industry for 100 years, but a couple of years ago we noticed a greater number of sets coming onto the market," Erickson said. "The impetus seemed to come from the Bixby television show and there was some ruboff, among the adults, from the Magic Show on Broadway."

Wilson, Henning, Blackstone and 200 to 300 other pros are befuddling their audiences with the traditional tricks of the masters of theatre's oldest art, which had its origins 3,500 years ago in Shamanism and the priesthood. Most times, it is only new packaging for illusions created by such men as Harry Kellar, Howard Thurston, Charles Joseph Carter and, of course, the tormented Harry Houdini during the golden age of magic from 1875 to 1925.

Much of that tradition is preserved in The Magic Castle, a private club in California for some 4,000 members of the Academy of Magical Arts, whose board of directors includes Wilson and actor Cary Grant.

But the magician is adapting to the contemporary world. As Wilson insists, "new tricks are being invented all the time." And with the Bixby series, the magician shed the cloak of the villain and became the hero.

Henning, a long-haired young man of 22, looks downright silly in a top hat and tuxedo as shown in one poster. At the Cort theatre he wears a tee-shirt and tight pants while performing such feats as the famous "Houdini metamorphosis," instantaneously swapping places with a pretty girl in a sack in a box, and producing a live puma on stage.

While magicians of the past, even the great Houdini, have never been good box office draws on Broadway, this Toronto-born lad with the flower-child image conjured up a winning show.

He will star in another NBC special, "Doug Henning's World of Magic," following the success of a similar show last Dec. 26 which a network spokesman said drew a solid 50 per cent share of the viewing audience.

ABC in October aired "The Great Houdini," a drama based on the life of the famed escape artist and his obsession with spiritualism and the occult. Technical adviser for this special was the young Blackstone.

Blackstone, a one-time translator of Chinese for the Army, practices his father's art in the unlikely atmosphere of Playboy Clubs, surrounded by illuminated pictures of naked ladies.

"That's not so unusual when you think about it," said the tall and handsome performer whose hair and beard has the color and sheen of wet coal. "Fantasy is what this place is all about."

But like many other pros, Blackstone spends at least half his time performing at trade shows and making promotional appearances for such enterprises as hamburger chains. In between club dates and television shows, he also did 19 commercials last year, including one for Butterfinger candy bars.

"Butterfingers," he laughed. "That's a great sponsor for a magician."

Blackstone, born 41 years ago in Michigan, didn't intend to follow in the footsteps of his father and his uncle, Pete, who started out as the Bouton Brothers featuring "straight and crooked magic." (Harry Bouton, who started as a magician at age 14 in 1899, later took the stage name "Frederick the Great," changed it to Blackstone in 1914 and made the latter legal in 1927.)

But after graduation from high school the younger Blackstone joined his father's show. "I was mostly interested in the technical side of theatre." In the process he became skilled at performing tricks.

"My dad use to say there is nothing he does that could not be done by a 10-year-old child with 15 years of practice," said Blackstone, who was named "America's Bicentennial Magician" by the Bicentennial Commission.

James Mark Wilson, 46, on the other hand, decided he wanted to be a magician at age 8 when his father, a traveling salesman, took him to a fair in Minneapolis. He wound up majoring in advertising at Southern Methodist University.

While working at a magic shop in Dallas he performed at Rotary Club meetings and put together an act appearing locally on several Texas television stations. In 1958 he decided it was time to try the networks and left for Los Angeles.

"I couldn't even get in to see a program director at the local stations," Wilson recalls. "I went back to my hotel room

Magical Arts, Wilson also was recognized by the Society of American Magicians as the "Superstar of Magic." Constantly in demand as a guest on TV variety and talk shows, Wilson will appear on a Peggy Fleming CBS special Nov. 16.

"Five or six years ago no magician would get billing along with an Andy Williams or a Peggy Fleming," he said. Wilson said he made magic work on television by always performing before a live audience and by announcing that no trick photography was used.

He thinks the time is ripe for a magic variety series on TV. "I just hope it's done right."

Restaurateur Shed 276 Lbs.

By CAROL CHALBERG

Mitchell Republic Writer EMERY S.D. (AP) — Down through the centuries, men have been known to fight fiery dragons, cross high mountains and even pit nation against nation — all in the name of love.

But to anyone who has ever fought his or her own "battle of the bulge," Bob Hoscheid's efforts to lose 276 pounds while managing a small-town cafe may go down as one of the major battles for love in history.

Even his doctor's warnings three years ago when Hoscheid weighed "only" 385 pounds were not enough to convince him he should lose weight.

Neither were experiences such as being able to find only one car in Mitchell large enough for his 486 pounds, giving up movies because the seats were too small, or being able to walk only less than half a block without getting tired.

It was in January, 1975, that Hoscheid finally decided to make an effort to lose some of his excess baggage, and attended a Weight Watchers meeting.

"I was so embarrassed to go to that first meeting and even more so when they weighed me," he said. "I just couldn't believe that I really had gotten up to 486 pounds. I was sure the weigher had made a mistake."

The first hurdle over, Hoscheid then had to follow his diet program despite being faced daily by pots of gravy, cakes and his own homemade bread and rolls.

"I remember when Bob used to sit down with a loaf of fresh bread, a plate of butter and some gravy," said his wife, Dorothy, who worked with Hoscheid when he operated a restaurant at Alexandria. "He'd eat the whole loaf instead of a regular meal."

Now, 20 months later and 276 pounds lighter, Hoscheid says he no longer likes many of the fattening foods he ate on his way to nearly 500 pounds.

"Except for bread and rolls, nothing tempts me that much," he said.

A 276-pound weight loss can make for quite a few changes in one's life as Hoscheid can testify.

"I used to always hide in the kitchen at the restaurant so that no one would see how fat I was," he said. "But now I go out and talk with the customers. And while I used to always wear a coat when I went to Mitchell to hide my fat, I've now become a real nut about clothes."

"And even though the doctor has set 210 as a good weight for my six foot, two-inch frame, I hope to get down to 199 for a while just so I can be able to say I once weighed less than 200 pounds."

THE PROPER ADVICE CAN KEEP YOU IN THE GAME.

A COMMENT FROM GAYLORD PERRY.

When I'm struggling along in the late innings and my curve ball has deserted me, a word of advice from my pitching coach can often keep me in the game.

I look at my investment program the same way. That's why I let an NCNB Trust Department pro like Miles Frost advise me on investments and financial planning. (They've been doing it for the past 7 years.)

Why don't you drop by and talk with the pros at NCNB about your investment objectives. It could mean the difference between winning and losing.

Film Studios Already Gearing Up For Oscar Race

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — The 1976 Oscars won't be presented until March 28, 1977, but already the film studios are gearing up their awards campaigns. Sales chiefs are booking choice sites for their December releases — theaters in Westwood and Beverly Hills are preferred because most academy voters live near the area. Publicity departments have reserved the deluxe private screening rooms through January. (The nominations will be announced on St. Valentine's Day). Many of the Oscar hopefuls will receive mass releases throughout the country this month and in December. Thus, if they catch on with the general public, a steamroller effect could influence Academy voters; monetary success is often equated with quality in their eyes.

The race cannot yet be judged, since some of the last-minute releases have not been previewed. At this point in the race, "All The President's Men," now in rerelease throughout the country, appears the front-runner. Warner Brothers is making sure the Watergate film maintains its visibility; it's currently playing in more than 600 theaters and will be playing in some metro areas, including Los Angeles, well into 1977.

"When a film is released earlier in the year, you've got to book it locally to remind the voters," explains a publicity executive. The year's releases so far offer few possible contenders. "All The President's Men" is likely to be nominated in most major categories, including stars Dustin Hoffman and Robert Redford, and Jason Roberts and Jane Alexander in support.

"The Omen" was a surprise blockbuster for 20th Century-Fox, and it may draw nominations for star Gregory Peck and director Clive Donner. The company's fiscal health was also revived by "Silent Movie," and it could be among the nominees, although the academy often overlooks comedy. Both films are in first release around the nation.

John Wayne appears a sure nominee for his dying gunslinger in "The Shootist," easily his best role since "True Grit." Although the film was not well received, "W.C. Fields and Me" could reward Rod Steiger with a nomination. Another repeater could be Walter Matthau for "Bad News Bears." As in recent years, the field for best actress and supporting actress appears slender. There may be sentimental votes for the returns of Lauren Bacall in "The Shootist" and Audrey Hepburn in "Robin and Marian." Sarah Miles could get a mention for "The Sailor Who Fell from Grace with the Sea."

Shelley Winters, already a double winner, seems likely to be in the supporting-actress race again with her Jewish mother of "Next Stop, Greenwich Village." Young Jodie Foster is another good choice for "Taxi Driver."

Robert DeNiro, winner as supporting actor in "The Godfather, Part II," may be competing with himself as best actor. He could be nominated for "Taxi Driver," "The Last Tycoon" or "1900," although it's undecided whether the latter will be released in 1976.

Another self-competitor: Faye Dunaway. She is being mentioned for both "Network" and "Voyage of the Damned." "Marathon Man" might score for Dustin Hoffman instead of "All The President's Men." And "Network" is being touted for the star performances of William Holden and Peter Finch, and support by Robert Duvall.

hopes include: "Bound for Glory," David Carradine; "The Last Tycoon"; "The Seven percent Solution," Nicol Williamson, Alan Arkin; "Voyage of the Damned," Dunaway, Oskar Werner, Max Von Sydow, etc.;

"A Star is Born," Barbra Streisand; "Silver Streak"; "Nickelodeon"; "Rocky." And don't forget another Christmas release. If "Jaws" can be nominated as best picture, why not "King Kong"?

Decided World Needs Coconut Jellybean

COCONUT JELLYBEANS? — Dave Klein, a 30-year-old jellybean entrepreneur, pours a scoopful of his exotically-flavored Jelly Bellies. In addition to the traditional grape, cherry and lemon flavors, Klein has developed flavors such as tangerine, root beer, country melon, green apple, coconut and cotton candy. Klein says the concept has really caught on, and he is marketing his jellybeans in stores as well as ice cream parlors and theaters. (AP Wirephoto)

By STEPHEN FOX
AP Business Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Does the world really need a coconut jellybean?

Yes, says Dave Klein, a 30-year-old lawyer turned jellybean entrepreneur. Of course, he also says the same thing about his tangerine, root beer, green apple and cotton candy jellybeans.

"Jellybeans have been around for a long time, but no one's ever done anything with them — this is a breakthrough," says Klein, who sells his "gourmet jellybeans" under the name "Jelly Bellies."

At $2 a pound Jelly Bellies are the world's most expensive jellybeans, according to Klein, who claims to have researched their history extensively. There are 417 to the pound, give or take a bean, and each has four calories.

Klein is marketing Jelly Bellies to department and food stores and is offering franchises in theaters and ice cream parlors. A pilot franchise in an Alhambra ice cream parlor has been quite successful, according to store owner Bob Fosselman.

"They really seem to have caught on," said Fosselman, who has been in the ice cream business for 35 years. "The concept catches people's imaginations. Originally, it was sales to kids, but now they've developed party business — showers, weddings and so on."

In addition to the above flavors, Jelly Bellies come in ordinary strains like lemon, lime, cherry and grape. For the more adventurous, there are licorice, cream soda and country melon jellybeans.

Klein, who developed the flavors with the aid of a food chemist, originally had concocted a watermelon Jelly Belly. However, he couldn't decide whether to color it red or green — two-tone jellybeans present technical problems — so he picked green and named the flavor country melon.

Klein went to law school after working his way through UCLA selling "Big Dave's Popcorn" but decided against practicing law.

"I have friends who are lawyers who get sick in the morning when they have to go to court," says Klein, who felt the pressures of the legal field might be a bit much.

Atlanta Ballet To Perform Here Twin Pianists Concert Nov. 10

America's oldest ballet company, The Atlanta Ballet, will be seen twice in performance at East Carolina University—first at 8 p.m. Tuesday, November 9 and in a matinee at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday, November 10. Both performances will be in McGinnis Auditorium.

Founded in 1929 by Dorothy Alexander, the company has performed abroad and in 30 states, with frequent appearances with symphony orchestras in the Southeast. A lively force in the South, the company presents over 80 performances per season.

Ticket prices are: Tuesday evening performance, $4 for adults and $3 for non-ECU students; Wednesday matinee, $3 for adults and $2 for non-ECU students. Tickets will be available at the door or may be procured in advance at the Central Ticket Office in Mendenhall Student Center. Group discount rates are available.

In addition to performances, the ballet company will be here in residency for a brief period. Both the residency and the performances are sponsored and supported by the Student Union Theater Arts Committee, with support from the National Endowment for the Arts and the North Carolina Arts Council.

AMERICAN TWINS...Richard and John Contiguglia, highly acclaimed duo-pianists, will perform in Mendenhall Theater at 8 p.m. Wednesday. Tickets are priced at $4.

American twins Richard and John Contiguglia are probably the most acclaimed duo-pianists on the concert stage today. Hailed recently by the Washington Star as "perhaps the most extraordinary two-piano team of this or any other generation", the Contiguglias have stimulated an interest in duo-pianism unknown for many decades.

Their latest recording of the Beethoven-Liszt 9th Symphony became a classical best seller in the United States and in Japan. It was a winner of the 1975 Grand Prix in the piano category by the Liszt Society of Budapest, Hungary.

The Contiguglias will perform here on Wednesday, November 10, at 8:00 p.m. in the Mendenhall Student Center Theatre.

Tickets are priced at $4.00. The concert is sponsored by the Student Union Artist Series Committee.

Symphony Society Meeting Set

The annual meeting of the North Carolina Symphony Society will be held Thursday, November 11 at the Holiday Inn-Downtown in Raleigh.

The meeting, which begins at 1:30 p.m., is open to anyone who has purchased a 1976-77 membership in the symphony society.

ECU Woodwind Concert

The ECU Faculty Woodwind Quintet will be in concert in the Recital Hall of the A. J. Fletcher Music Building on campus at 8:15 p.m., Thursday, November 11.

Quintet members are John Heard, oboe; Eldred Spell, flute; George Knight, clarinet; James Parnell, horn; and Freddie McLean, bassoon.

Selections to be performed are: Divertimento for Woodwind Quintet by Haydn; Suite No. 2 by John Verrall; Quintet in B Major, Franz Danzi; Variations on a Folk Song, Jan Pieters Swellink; and Parade and Burlesque by Pierre Max Dubois.

There is no admission charge.

FROM ATLANTA... Members of the Atlanta Ballet, America's oldest Ballet Company, will perform at ECU on Nov. 9 and 10 in McGinnis. Tickets are available at the Central Ticket Office in Mendenhall. The company is also here for a brief residency.

Wind Concert Features ECU Dancers

A variety of traditional and contemporary music will be performed by the East Carolina University Symphonic Wind Ensemble at its fall concert today at 8:15 p.m. in Wright Auditorium.

Conducted by Herbert L. Carter, the Wind Ensemble will begin its program with the Fanfare from La Peri by Paul Dukas, featuring a complete brass choir; a four-section arrangement of Russian Christmas music by Alfred Reed, which includes a harp solo by ECU harp student Paula Scarangella of Norfolk, Va.; and a Henk Badings setting of Green-sleeves; Vincent Persichetti's Symphony for Band, a work the composer conducted at East Carolina several years ago, will again be performed by the Wind Ensemble at its Sunday concert.

A performance of The Solitary Dancer by Warren Benson will be highlighted by a ballet danced by ECU students Terri Leggette of Rocky Mount and Daniel Nichols of Greensboro. Patricia Peralton of the ECU dance faculty choreographed the dance.

The program will conclude with the humorous Grand Serenade for an Awful Lot of Winds and Percussion, by "P.D. Q. Bach."

The Wind Ensemble concert is free and open to the public.

ECU STUDENT DANCERS... Daniel Nichols of Greensboro and Terri Leggette of Rocky Mount will dance in Warren Benson's "The Solitary Dancer." The dance is part of the ECU Symphonic Wind Ensemble fall concert being given today at 8:15 p.m. in Wright Auditorium. There is no admission charge and the public is invited to attend. ## Competition Now Open

The ninth annual Crucible competition for writers, sponsored by the Department of English, Atlantic Christian College, is now open.

The competition, open to writers currently living in North Carolina (including college students from other states), is in two categories—short stories and poetry.

All entries must be completely original, never published, must not be currently involved in other competitions, and must be typed in manuscript form (double spaced). Fiction is to be limited to a maximum of 8,000 words.

Contestants are also to include a statement of permission to use the work (as other than a prize winner) if the editors so choose; and a short biographical statement.

Prizes to be awarded are $150 in first prize each for a short story and a poem; and $100 each in second prize for a short story and poem.

A high school writer's competition is also being held for North Carolina High School students (grades 9-12) with rules and prizes the same as for the adult writer's competition.

Entries are to be sent to: Dr. James B. Hemby, Chairman, Dept. of English, Atlantic Christian College, Wilson, N.C. 27893. If the sender wants the manuscript returned, it must be accompanied by a self-addressed stamped envelope.

All entries must be taken to the college or mailed in time to be received there no later than January 14, 1977.

Book News

From Sheppard Memorial Library

By MARGARET CLARK

A classic story of survival that enhances the reader's sense of life itself is THE YEAR-LONG DAY by A. E. Maxwell and Ivar Ruud. It is the true story of a young man who chose to live totally alone in the Arctic region, hunting and trapping, never for a moment able to take his daily survival for granted. Ivar Ruud did it for adventure and freedom, and because it was a challenge that only a handful of other men had ever faced. Trapped in his cabin for days at the time by fierce storms, awakened by polarbear claws slashing at his sleeping bag, left nearly helpless for two weeks after breaking his hand—all these adventurous sides of Ivar's remarkable Arctic life are told with a rare sense of immediacy that often leaves the reader literally chilled. This narrative also reveals Ivar Ruud as a man with a profound, poetic appreciation and respect for the polar world he comes to accept.

The strange story of the Great Siberian Explosion is told by John Baxter and Thomas Atkins in THE FIRE CAME BY. In the year 1908, a cylindrical object blazed across the cloudless skies of central Siberia, and the desolate Central Plateau shuddered under the impact of a cataclysmic explosion. The initial thermal blast was followed by primary and secondary shock waves, a hideous firestorm, and a black rain that contaminated hundreds of square miles. The seismic shock was registered around the World. In this account of the explosion, the authors tell of the first expeditions to the area in 1927, when scientists set out looking for a meteor crater that would explain the blast and found none to the nuclear space age when the discoveries of modern astrophysics had led to speculations involving the possibility of black holes and antimatter. The evidence reportedly supports a theory that a nuclear-powered space craft destructed while attempting to land on earth. As gripping as a detective story—THE FIRE CAME BY is an enthralling investigation of one of the most intriguing yet-to-be-solved mysteries of this century.

Thomas Thompson's BLOOD AND MONEY is a shattering true story of modern Texas. It begins in 1969 when one of Houston's most celebrated young women falls mysteriously ill in a great colonial mansion. She is Joan Robinson Hill, a society horsewoman of world rank and the wife of Dr. John Hill, a talented and ambitious plastic surgeon. Their story moves from the moneyed elegance of River Oaks, one of America's most exclusive confines, deep into the brutal and deadly world of professional killers. The author, himself a native Texan, has written a complex drama—one that will hold you in its spell, through suspense of terror until the final verdict of a gripping murder trial. Once you are in its power, BLOOD AND MONEY will not let you go.

Library Event At Sheppard Tuesday

The final hearing in a series of five on the services of the N.C. State Library is scheduled for next week in Greenville. Librarians and users of library services are invited to attend the hearings to be held at the Sheppard Memorial Library, Tuesday, Nov. 9 at 2 p.m.

Secretary of Cultural Resources Grace J. Rohrer, State Librarian David N. McKay, Assistant State Librarian Marian P. Leith, other State Library staff and members of the State Library Committee will meet with those citizens who wish to comment on the State Library service in a public-hearing type of meeting. "The purpose of the meetings," McKay explained, "is for the State Library to have direct contact with the citizenry to hear what is good about the library service, and to hear citizens' suggestions for improvement."

The first four hearings in the series were held in Bryson City on May 19; in Fayetteville on June 29; Winston-Salem on Sept. 10; and in Charlotte on Oct. 18.

Second Annual Parade Of Favorite Books

Tomorrow, November 8 is the date of the Second Annual Parade at Wahl-Coates Elementary School celebrating the Annual Children's Book Week.

Highlighting the colorful celebration will be the parade on the front campus of the school, with wagons, carts and other vehicles decorated by students to represent characters from favorite books.

The book day parade will also include music by the school drummers and the glee club, the appearance of clowns, acrobats, and pets.

The parade of floats begins at 10:00 a.m. Scheduled to be on hand as judges of the floats are Mayor Percy Cox, ECU Chancellor Dr. Leo Jenkins, WITN TV's personality Kay Currie and school board member Mrs. Terry Shank. Mrs. David Middleton will act as Mistress of Ceremonies.

Earlier on Monday morning, the event will be discussed at 7:30 a.m. on the "Carolina Today" show over WNCT-TV.

Parents, friends and all interested persons are invited to attend the Second Annual Children's Book Week Parade at Wahl-Coates.

LWV Benefit Art Auction

A benefit exhibit and auction of art will take place on Friday, November 12, at 8 p.m. at St. Paul's Episcopal Church, 401 E. Fourth Street. A preview of the selections to be auctioned will begin at 7 p.m.

Profits realized from the auction will be for the benefit of the League of Women Voters of Greenville-Pitt County.

The public is invited to attend. Refreshments will be served.

Hospitality House

A quartet of craftsmen will be guests on Kay Currie's "Hospitality House" today from 11:30 to noon, over WITN-TV, Channel 7.

Mrs. Martha Ellen Rose of Rocky Mt., Mrs. Mildred McClees of Elm City, and Mrs. Gwen Wells and Mrs. Judy Jones, both of Bailey, will demonstrate and show a varied cross-section of crafts, old and new. The four are among numerous crafts people to be represented in the three day 11th Annual Coastal Plain Arts and Crafts Fair being held in Rocky Mount for a three day period, November 11-13. Some 50,000 are expected to attend

At The Greenville Art Center Artists Honored Today

'Taming Of The Shrew' On PBS Theater

The nationally acclaimed American Conservatory Theatre (ACT) will bring its interpretation of William Shakespeare's The Taming of the Shrew to "Theater in America" over PBS on Channel 25, Greenville, Wednesday, Nov. 10, at 9 p.m.. This program, part of the Great Performances series, was made possible by support from Exxon Corporation and member stations of Public Broadcasting Service. The play will also be on Channel 25 at 10 p.m. on Sunday, November 14.

Under the direction of William Ball, the ACT version was originally performed at San Francisco's Geary Theatre. Reviewers praised the company's rendering of Shakespeare's classic comedy, declaring that the production "would have delighted the Elizabethans" and displayed "the visceral impact of a rock concert."

Petruchio is played by Marc Singer, and Katherina, is performed by Fredi Olster. The two fight the universal and historical battle between the sexes.

Writers Meet On Tuesday

The first meeting of the Writers Club of Greenville for the month of November will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Michaels, 3 Yorktown Square, Yorktown Square Townhouses, just off N.C. 43 south of Pitt Plaza, at 8 p.m. on Tuesday, November 9.

Persons interested in any form of creative writing are invited to attend.

Lord Roy Thomson of Fleet on Sept. 30, 1966, acquired ownership of The London Times.

SHAKESPEARE'S CLASSIC . . . comedy, "The Taming of the Shrew" is being aired over Channel 25, Greenville at 9 p.m. Nov. 10 and again at 10 p.m. Nov. 14. Marc Singer is Petruchio, and Fredi Olster is Katherina in the American Conservatory Theatre Production.

Autograph Party For Novelist Sue Ellen Bridgers

An autograph party honoring novelist Sue Ellen Bridgers will be held Tuesday, November 9 at Woodruff Gallery, 116 Railroad Street, Winterville, from 3 to 7 p.m.

Sue Ellen Hunsucker Bridgers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayland Hunsucker, is a Winterville native and attended East Carolina University. She is a graduate of Western Carolina University and is married to Ben Bridgers. The Bridgers make their home in Sylva and are the parents of three children.

The novel, Home Before Dark, is Ms. Bridgers' first novel and is published by Alfred N. Knopf publishers of New York. The setting is eastern North Carolina.

Ms. Bridgers has had short stories and articles published in a number of magazines, including "Redbook," "Ingenue," and "Carolina Quarterly."

While in this area, Ms. Bridgers will be appearing on the "Carolina Today" program and on Kay Currie's "Hospitality House" on Sunday, November 14.

The public is invited to attend the Tuesday autograph party and to meet the author.

Three Senior Shows Next Week

Marsha Wickham of Tarboro, Trish Monnett of Greensboro and Miriam Humphrey of Kinston, senior students in the East Carolina University School of Art, will display examples of their art today through Saturday.

All are candidates for the Bachelor of Fine Arts degree. Wickham and Monnett are exhibiting raku and stoneware pottery and weavings at the Greenville Art Center. Both are ceramics majors, with minor concentrations in design.

Miriam Humphrey, a painting major with a minor in drawing, will show paintings and drawings in the gallery of Mendenhall Student Center. Her show will include acrylic, oil and mixed-media paintings, both abstract and figurative, and a selection of pencil, ink and mixed-media drawings of figures and landscapes.

Handcrafted items by Nancy Wallen of Burlington, N. J., senior student in the East Carolina University School of Art, will be exhibited in Rawl Building today through Saturday.

The exhibition includes handwoven wearables, wall hangings and decorator accessories.

A candidate for the BS degree in design, Wallen will be an intern teacher during the winter quarter in the Greenville City Schools.

Carter's Church Caught In Dispute

By MATTHEW C. QUINN
PLAINS, Ga. (UPI) — Plains Baptist Church, where president-elect Jimmy Carter worships, is caught up in a heated dispute over an 11-year-old ban on black attendance.

The deacons want to fire the pastor, who has refused to step down, and the 250-member congregation is being called upon to decide the matter next Sunday.

The dispute started last Sunday when four blacks, including Rev. Clennon King of nearby Albany, Ga., arrived at the church to find the doors locked and services cancelled. King had applied for membership to test the 1965 ban on attendance by blacks and "other civil rights agitators."

The church's pastor, Rev. Bruce Edwards, later announced before national television cameras that the church deacons had closed the doors rather than admit King. He charged King's visit, just 48 hours before the election, was timed to embarrass Carter and contended it was a Republican "dirty trick."

Nonetheless, Rev. Edwards clashed with the deacons over the continued enforcement of the ban, contending it put the church in a bad light, particularly since Carter has risen to such prominence.

"I see this as a unique opportunity of this church to share its fate with the world," said the Rev. Edwards. "Plains Baptist Church happens to find itself in the political spotlight and it has the responsibility to bear Christian witness in that setting."

He said "this witness has been completely marred if not completely destroyed. I hope that this church will stand up to the world and say, 'This is not us. This is not what we want.'"

Carter opposed the ban in 1965 and has pledged to work to lift it. He met with Edwards last week at his home just blocks from the church.

Edwards said deacons had criticized him for publicly supporting Carter and for defending the President-elect's controversial Playboy magazine interview.

He said it was also alleged that he and Carter "conspired" to trigger King's appearance, but Rev. Edwards said later that "I don't think the person who made that suggestion seriously believed that."

Deacon Frank Williams, Carter's competitor in the peanut business, said the matter "is going to tear up the church" but he still wants Edwards fired.

"It burns me up to think the preacher has turned our church into a three-ring circus and I think people are just sick of it," he said.

Of Animals And Birds Babysitting Pregnant Gorilla

By ANDY LIPPMAN
Associated Press Writer
CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Zoo is calling on a small army of volunteers to take turns sitting around-the-clock with a pregnant gorilla.

Megera, a lowland gorilla, is expected to become a mother by early next year. Zoo Director Ed Maruska said it's impossible to be more precise with primates, so the baby watch has already begun.

"There is no way that we could perform all the everyday tasks we have to do and still have someone in front of that gorilla's cage every minute," he said.

This is Megera's first pregnancy, but eight other lowland gorillas have been born at the zoo — a world record — and officials say they have learned from experience not to predict how a mother will react.

"We don't know what kind of mother she's going to be," Maruska said. Another of the zoo's gorillas, Penelope, isn't much of a mother at all. Maruska said her rejection of a baby in 1967 started the baby watch.

"Penelope didn't even bother to clean the baby," Maruska said. Zookeepers managed to rush in and provide the bath, and Penelope had to be educated in motherhood. "Since then, on the other four occasions that she was pregnant, we had observers and we were able to save all four."

"There are times with Penelope that we even have to have the observers go into the cage and help the keeper clean the baby," Maruska said. He said the observer program is a big reason for the zoo's success in breeding the lowland gorilla, which is native to West Africa.

Volunteers take their post in front of the gorilla's cage in shifts of three or four hours all day long.

The zoo also has had baby watches for some of its exotic cats.

Besides providing help at birth, the around-the-clock watch guarantees some other benefits for the zoo.

"What we ask the volunteers to do is chart the gorilla's activity and note any unusual occurrences," Maruska said. "It gives us a good chance to learn about the lowland gorilla."

Then there's the matter of economics, he adds. "These animals are worth between $15,000 and $20,000."

But most important is the new gorilla itself.

"These animals are on the endangered species list, and if we're going to continue to have them in zoos, we're going to have to become proficient in breeding them," the director said.

A Loving Care Gift

PULLMAN, Wash. (AP) — Washington State University is the recipient of a $750,000 endowment, part of which will go for a lifetime of luxury for a dog and two cats.

The animals belonged to Stan Adler, a journalist and drama critic in New York after World War I, who died in 1975.

When his health failed in 1930, Adler moved to Hereford, Ariz., and built the Smiling Tiger Ranch, which became a haven for birds, horses, dogs and cats.

As stipulated in Adler's will, a WSU veterinary medicine staffer chauffeurs his dog, Penguin, for three rides a week in a pickup truck.

Whitey, a 16-year-old blind cat, gets all the fondling he needs. And Barretta, a 7-year-old cat, spends her time exploring the Washington State veterinary clinic.

WSU officials said the endowment also will be used for research on diseases and ailments of horses and other animals, in accordance with Adler's will.

Case Of Early Bird

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Earlys lost their bird three years ago.

It was a myna they had taught to say, "Hello, Sweetheart," "I am beautiful" and "I am the Earlys' Bird," among other things.

Ross F. Early testified Friday in Jackson County Circuit Court that he and his wife, Susan, found the missing myna last April in a suburban pet shop, and recognized the bird from its phraseology.

Early went to court, he said, because the store refused to give him the bird.

Judge Paul E. Vardeman awarded the Earlys the bird on a default judgment because the pet shop was not represented in court. The bird, still in possession of the pet shop, did not appear.

"I suppose an appropriate judgment in this case would be for me to say, 'Give them the bird,' but that's really not very judicious," the judge commented.

Prisoner Swap...

The strike ended when Echeverria's administration announced it would seek the right of parole for drug-law violators.

Americans held in Mexico have said they were tortured with electric cattle prods, kept in rat-infested cells and forced to sign confessions written in Spanish, which they could not understand.

They also have accused Mexican lawyers of swindling them and their relatives out of money supposedly to be used to bribe officials.

Many of the Americans now held in Mexican prisons were arrested and jailed under Operation Intercept, a U.S.-financed campaign against the smuggling of drugs into the United States that began in 1969.

Slum Teenagers Recruited

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — An increasing number of teenagers are being caught as gunmen, bombers and common criminals in Northern Ireland's vicious sectarian warfare, police say.

A spokesman for the Royal Ulster Constabulary said police believe Protestant and Roman Catholic extremists, pressed for manpower following increased arrests, have been recruiting slum teenagers.

Twenty of the 96 persons charged with murder in Northern Ireland in the first 10 months of this year were 18 years old or younger, compared with 11 of 138 in all of 1975, the spokesman said Friday.

"What is most disturbing is that three of those charged are in the 14 to 16 year bracket," he said. "Perhaps the saddest thing of all ... is the fact that five youngsters accused of petrol bombing and hijacking offenses have not even reached the age of 14."

Radioactive Material Missing

MILTON, MASS. (AP) — Police and nuclear experts said today they had not located a small bar of radioactive material missing from a stolen car recovered in a wooded area here.

Elaborate security measures were set up Thursday after the radioactive isotope, Cobalt 57, was reported missing. The material was in a lead box and officials said it was not dangerous unless someone opened the box and was exposed to the radioactive material for a period of time.

Pirates Break Jinx, Down Spiders

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
RICHMOND, Va.—Some years back Andy Griffith came out with a record about someone seeing his first football game: "What It Was, Was Football."

If he'd been in City Stadium in Richmond yesterday, he still might be scratching his head. Nevertheless, what it was—WAS football.

It was also a comedy of errors also that saw about everything go wrong that could. About all East Carolina could do was be happy that when the clock finally ran out—if it did—the Bucs won, 20-10.

Twice the Pirates were foiled on scoring chances. A late touchdown was wiped out by a clip, and a 98-yard interception return by Reggie Pinkney didn't score a touchdown, but a touchback.

And when everyone thought the first half was over, Richmond went on to score a go-ahead field goal.

Join that in with a couple of fights in the stands right in front of the press box, and a total of 13 turnovers, and you've got the mixing of a real Chinese fire-drill.

East Carolina got the win, their first over Richmond since Pat Dye opened his coaching career, with two second half touchdowns. The Bucs had taken the lead on an eight yard run by Mike Weaver, and a PAT by Pete Conaty. But Richmond took a halftime edge of 10-7 on a one-yard plunge by Milton Ruffin, a PAT kick by Johnnie Jones, and a 45-yard field goal by Jones.

The Pirates came back with a one-yard plunge by Raymond Jones and a 16-yard run by Weaver. Conaty added a PAT kick after the final one.

But it was the scores that didn't happen that meant quite a bit to the Pirates—and nearly cost them the game.

East Carolina got an early score after Jake Dove recovered a fumble three plays into the game on the Spider 21. Jones hit three times for 13 yards to the eight. From there, Weaver kept the ball around the left side and just made it into the end zone. Conaty's kick made it 7-0 with 11:41 left in the period.

Later in the quarter, Richmond took over on its own 22 and moved to the Pirate 48, where on fourth down, the Spiders punted. But the Bucs were charged with roughing the kicker, then had another 15-yarder tacked on for unsportsmanlike conduct. That moved it all the way to the 18.

On the third play after that, from the 13, Spider quarterback Dave Taylor was intercepted by Pinkney at the one yard line. And after just a few steps, there was nothing but daylight ahead of the Pirate defending defensive back. Down the field he raced, but just as he got to the goal line, he bobbled the ball, and fumbled it out the back of the end zone for a touchdown, giving it back to Richmond on the 20. His run was the longest non-scoring run with an interception by a Pirate.

Midway through the second period, the Pirates lost another chance after Zack Valentine recovered a fumble at the Spider 40. East Carolina drove it to the 19 before fumbling it back to the Spiders.

That set up Richmond's lone touchdown drive. Taylor hit Rickey Brown for 16 yards to start it up, then went to Tim Manwaring for nine more to the Pirate 48. The drive appeared stalled at the Pirate 35, where Richmond set up for a field goal attempt. But it was a fake, and Taylor, the holder, hit Ed Krellis for 12 yards and a first down at the 23, despite the protests from the Pirate bench that at least three Spider linemen were downfield.

It kept the drive alive, and after a 15-yard run by Krellis put the ball on the five, it took four plays before Ruffin finally made it in from the one. Jones' kick tied it up at 7-7 with 2:12 left in the game. Or was it 1:12. No one seemed to know. Richmond's clock is the old round type with a 15-division face on it, rather than a more modern one that shows the exact time. The last 2-minutes are represented by a red pie-shaped wedge.

At any rate, the Pirates were forced to punt with what was thought to be just seconds left in the half. Richmond ran off five plays, however, as the hands kept sweeping on past the zero

Terrapins Blank Cincinnati, 21-0

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Mark Manges completed 11 of 19 passes, including two for touchdowns, and added 71 yards rushing to lead unbeaten and sixth-ranked Maryland to a 21-0 victory over Cincinnati in college football Saturday.

The Terps, now 9-0 and winners of 13 in a row over the two seasons, dominated the visitors on defense, allowing just four first downs through the end of the third quarter as they opened up their lead.

Maryland missed a scoring chance following a fumble recovery deep in Bearcat territory early in the game, which was watched by scouts from the Orange and Gator bowls. The Terps then drove 52 yards in the second period, throwing a 33-in 15 plays late in the first period. They capped the march with a one-yard touchdown plunge by tailback Alvin "Preacher" Maddox.

Manges took to the air in the yard strike to Dean Richards, who made a tumbling catch at the Cincinnati 26.

From there, a pair of Manges scrambles moved the ball to the 21, where the junior quarterback flipped a screen pass to split end Vince Kinney, who sped down the sideline for the touchdown.

Manges struck with his second touchdown pass on the fourth play of the final period, going 20 yards to a wide-open Richards in the end zone.

The deepest penetration for Cincinnati, now 6-2, came in the fourth period when they moved the ball inside the Maryland 30. Penalties killed the drive, however, and the Bearcats turned the ball back to Maryland.

The victory was the 100th for Jerry Claiborne as a college head coach and his 39th since coming to Maryland five years ago.

Manges gained 151 yards passing before being intercepted on his final throw of the game midway through the last quarter.

Indians Topple Appalachian To

Knock Mountaineers From Race

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — Quarterback Tom Rozantz' second touchdown pass to tight end Ken Cloud, a 38-yard strike with 4:04 remaining, gave William and Mary's Indians a 23-22 Southern Conference football victory Saturday over Appalachian State's Mountaineers.

The triumph improved William and Mary's overall record to 6-3 and conference mark to 2-2, while the Mountaineers fell to 6-3-1 and 2-1-1.

Appalachian State recovered a Rozantz fumble on the William and Mary 34 with 1:34 to go, but Gary Davis' 47-yard field goal attempt was wide to the right with 1:01 remaining.

The Indians' other scores came on Keith Fimian's three-yard run, a 17-yard pass from Rozantz to Cloud and Bill Watson's 27-yard field goal.

The Mountaineers' scoring came on John Craig's touchdown runs of 54 yards and one yard, Scott McConnell's 24-yard run and Davis' 34-yard field goal.

The Indians bolted to a 14-0 lead within a 1:21 span of the first quarter on Fimian's score and Rozantz' first scoring pass to Cloud following Jim Ryan's recovery of Tom Gary's fumble on the Mountaineers' 18.

Appalachian State wasted no time getting back in the game, taking the ensuing kickoff and going 71 yards with McConnell's scoring from 24 yards out on a fourth and four play.

The Indians made it 17-7 midway through the second quarter on Watson's field goal following cornerback Ken Smith's interception of a Gary pass on the Mountaineer 48.

Appalachian State narrowed the gap to 17-10 with 1:38 left in the second period on Davis' field goal.

Craig rambled for his two touchdowns within a 40-second span of the third period to put the Mountaineers out front 22-17.

However following Craig's first touchdown, Davis' extra point kick was too low, failing to get over his blockers' heads.

Gary's pass for two extra points following Craig's second touchdown sailed out of the end zone incomplete.

The Indians drove into Mountaineer territory several times in the second half but were thwarted by two fumbles by reserve quarterback Preston Green and an interception of a Rozantz pass by safety Bill Medlin on the Mountaineers' 12.

Rozantz completed seven of 14 passes for 98 yards and had two interceptions.

The Indians got 250 yards on the ground with tailback Jimmy Krus running 24 times for 100 yards and Fimian gaining 78 yards on 19 carries. Rozantz rushed 12 times for 60 yards.

McGee, Miller Fight To Tie After Television Cameras Cut Off

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) — A birdie-birdie-birdie finish—well after the national television cameras had ended their coverage for the day—enabled Jerry McGee and Allen Miller to retain a share of the lead after Saturday's third round of the $200,000 National Team Golf Championship.

"It was a great way to finish," said McGee, who notched two of those closing birdies. "It really gives you a lift going into the final round."

They enter that one Sunday in a deadlock at 194, 22 under par, with longest rookies Bill Kratzert and Woody Blackburn, who were in sole control of the top spot when the television coverage ended.

"We were just going along not doing much of anything and then we finish bam-bam-bam," said Miller.

"Neither one of us really played very good today, and that's a good sign," said McGee, whose team has led or shared the lead at the end of each 18 holes. "We're both ready for a good round tomorrow. The way we were playing, it's just amazing we're still in there."

"And I want to apologize to Donald Duck. I said the other day I was playing like Donald. That's wrong and I owe him an apology. I'm not playing that well."

Still, his lofted eight-iron shot to within four feet of the flag set up the birdie on the final hole that finished off a 66 and set up the tie. Scoring in this event is based on the better ball of each two-man team.

Kratzert made eight birdies on his own ball as he and Blackburn romped to a 63, nine under par on the 7,197-yard Magnolia course at Walt Disney World.

Cal Peete and Slugger White had a 63 in the warm, sunny, breezy weather and were another stroke back at 197.

Three teams were tied at 198. John Schlee and South African Bobby Cole had a 63, including 30 on their last nine; Joe Porter and Bob Zender had a 69, and Tom Jenkins and Bobby Walzel a 66.

U.S. Open champ Jerry Pate and George Burns combined for a 66 and 199, five shots back.

Kratzert, who has won $21,000 in his brief time on the tour, had a phenomenal round. With Blackburn, his long-time friend and rival reading the putts for him, he dropped birdies from 30, 25, 15 and 15 feet, once hit a par-five in two and two-putted and stroked irons 6, 4 and 11-2 feet for eight birdies on his first 15 holes.

Blackburn finally got into the act on the 16th, scoring from eight feet on the 16th.

"Bill actually stood there and clapped for me," Blackburn said. "I think he was more relieved than I was."

Miller kept his team in the running over the first 15 holes, making birdie on three par-five holes.

"I kept looking at the leader board and I couldn't believe we were still tied, or close to the top," McGee said. "It was a very poor start and Kratzert was playing great."

They regained a share of the lead with a birdie-birdie-birdie finish. McGee scored on the 16th, from about 10 feet, Miller pulled them to within a single stroke of the lead with a 15 footer on the 17th and McGee lofted an eight-iron shot to within four feet of the cup and made the putt for a tie on the final hole.

Tar Heels Hang On To Defeat Tigers, 27-24

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP)—Senior tailback Mike Voight scored three touchdowns here Saturday afternoon to lead the North Carolina Tar Heels to a 27-23 Atlantic Coast Conference victory over the Clemson Tigers.

The win was North Carolina's seventh in nine games and the second in three conference starts, while Clemson fell to 2-5-2 overall and 0-3-1 in the ACC.

North Carolina jumped to a 21-0 lead in the second quarter before Clemson put together single touchdowns in the second and third quarters and added a field goal early in the final quarter to cut the Tar Heel's lead to 21-17 before Voight scored a one-yard sneak to ice the victory.

Voight, who picked up 161 yards in 19 carries, put the Tar Heels ahead with 10:46 left in the first quarter when he ran up the middle for 18 yards in his first tally. After Matt Kupec put UNC ahead 14-0 on a five-yard bootleg play on the first play of the second quarter, Voight capped a 99-yard drive by going through the middle of the Clemson line and outracing the entire Clemson secondary on an 84-yard touchdown romp.

Clemson made it 21-7 by going 80 yards in six plays in the closing minutes of the first half with Tracy Perry scoring on a seven-yard run.

Clemson came roaring back in the third quarter, going 80 yards in 13 plays and scored on a Steve Fuller pass up the middle to Anthony King. Jim Russell's kick closed the gap at 21-14.

The Tigers put together two more long drives but could muster only a 36-yard field goal by Russell with 14:13 left in the game to come within four points at 21-17.

Clemson picked up the first 13 first downs of the second half and outgained UNC 160-15, but still trailed 21-17.

North Carolina put together what turned out to be the game-winning touchdown drive midway through the final quarter.

With Billy Johnson and Voight doing most of the carrying, the Tar Heels drove to the Clemson one-yard line from where Voight carried over for his third touchdown to seal the victory, and put UNC ahead 27-17.

A big play in the game-winning drive was an 18-yard pass from Kupec to Mel Collins to the Clemson one-yard line to set up Voight's final touchdown. Clemson put together an 81-yard drive in the final minutes and closed out the scoring on Harold Goggins' 10-yard touchdown run up the middle.

While the Tar Heels won on the scoreboard, it was Clemson that won the battle of the statics. The Tigers amassed 460 yards total offense to UNC's 419 and Clemson led in first downs 29-15, including a 19-5 margin in the second half.

Voight was the game's leading rusher with 161 in 19 carries and Johnson added 93 in 10 carries.

Nittany Lions Turn Wolfpack Turnovers Into Victory, 41-20

AP Sports Writer

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — Penn State's defense set up three touchdowns and a field goal with three fumble recoveries and an intercepted pass Saturday as the Nittany Lions thundered past North Carolina State 41-20 for their fifth straight victory.

Two fumbles set up two short Penn State scoring drives in the opening quarter. Quarterback Chuck Fusina banged one yard for a touchdown, and passed 29 yards to Jim Cefalo for another and a 14-0 lead.

After North Carolina State, 3-6-1, cut the margin to 14-7 on a four-yard touchdown pass from quarterback John Evans to flanker Dave Moody, Penn State recovered a third fumble which led to a 34-yard field goal by Tony Capozzoli. Capozzoli kicked a 28-yarder with 10 seconds left in the half to make it 20-7.

The Lions, now 6-3, turned the game into a rout in the third quarter on touchdown runs of 64 yards by Steve Geise and 46 yards by Mike Guman.

North Carolina State scored with 3:29 left in the third period when tackle Bill Druschel recovered an Evans' fumble in the end zone to climax a 10-play, 59-yard drive. The Wolfpack's final score was on an eight-yard run by Rickey Adams.

Penn State's final score came in the fourth period on a four-yard run by senior fullback Larry Suhey.

The victory kept Penn State in the running for a minor post-season bowl game. Officials from the Fiesta and Sun bowls watched the game and both expressed strong interest should the Lions beat Miami next week.

Penn State also has second-ranked and unbeaten Pittsburgh on the schedule, but bowls will name their teams before the Nov. 26 Friday night meeting with the Panthers on national television.

Penn State went ahead 7-0 at 7:51 of the first period after recovering a fumble by Evans at the North Carolina State 22 yard line. Fusina lost a yard, then passed 22 to tight end Mickey Shuler for a first down at the one, and then scored himself.

Twenty-three seconds later it was 14-0. North Carolina State fumbled the ball away at its 29. On first down, Fusina threw to Cefalo for a touchdown.

In the second period, NCS drove 89 yards on 12 plays and cut the Penn State lead to 14-7. The big play was a fourth down faked punt on which Adams gained 29 yards for a first down at the Penn State 20. Three running plays picked up a first at the 10, but a penalty set the Wolfpack back to the 15. On fourth down at the four, Evans hit Moody in the end zone.

Later in the second quarter, NCS' Ted Brown fumbled and Penn State again turned the mistake into points. Matt Suhey gained 14 yards for a first down at the 16, and after three plays netted a minus one yard, Capozzoli kicked a 34-yard field goal to make it 17-7.

With 59 seconds left in the half, North Carolina State turned the ball over on downs at the Penn State 44. The Lions moved to a first down at the 39 on a 17-yard run by Guman and then to the 13 on a 13-yard burst by Guman. When the attack stalled, Capozzoli kicked a 28-yard field goal.

Penn State drove 80 yards on three plays after taking the second half kickoff. Geise gained 12 and two plays later romped 64 yards for the score. Later, defensive back Bill Crummy intercepted a North Carolina State pass and returned 25 yards. Guman put seven more on the boards for the Lions when he galloped 46 yards into the end zone.

'Skins Close With Victory

ROBERSONVILLE — Roanoke closed out its football season with a 22-6 win over Eastern Plains Conference foe North Johnston.

Charles Smith led the way for the Redskins, scoring one touchdown and two conversions, as Roanoke played one of its better games, despite six turnovers.

The Redskins got on the scoreboard in the first quarter when Larry Williams raced in on 59 yards out. Smith added the conversion.

North Johnston came back in the second quarter when Marion Frazier made a 12-yard touchdown run but the conversion failed.

In the third quarter, Ricky

Duggins scored for Roanoke on a 14-yard run and Smith again added the conversion. Roanoke's last TD came on Smith's 35-yard run in the fourth quarter. The extra-point attempt failed.

The win ends the Roanoke season with a 6-4 overall and 6-2 conference record. North Johnston finishes with a 6-2 overall and 5-3 conference mark.

Chargers Finish Second With Win

PIKEVILLE—Ayden-Griffon finished the year in sole possession of second place in the Eastern Carolina Conference with a 14-0 win over C.B. Aycock Friday night.

William West scored all the Charger points on two touchdowns and a conversion run.

West's first score came on a three-yard run in the second quarter and capped a 69-yard Ayden-Griffon drive. The extra-point kick failed.

He scored again in the third quarter on a 49-yard drive after Aycock failed to make a first down on a fake punt. West also ran for the conversion.

The Falcons threatened twice during the game, getting down the five in the first quarter before two penalties pushed them back.

They also moved down to the punt about a minute left in the game, but the Chargers held on downs.

The win leaves the Chargers with a 6-1 conference record and 6-4 overall mark. C.B. Aycock finishes the year with a 6-4 overall record and 4-3 conference record.

Jackson Has A High Price Tag

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
NEW YORK (AP) — Reggie Jackson's reported $2.9 million price tag doesn't discourage Dick Williams, who hopes to make the long-hitting outfielder the cornerstone of a new baseball dynasty at Montreal just as he did at Oakland.

"We want him and we think we will sign him," the new Expos manager said today, reflecting on Montreal's No. 1 pick in baseball' re-entry draft Thursday.

"Our guy (Owner Charles Bronfman, Canadian whisky baron) has money to spend. He wants a winning ball club. So do I. Jackson is just part of our plans."

Jackson was the All-Star outfielder of the Oakland A's when Williams guided them to three consecutive World Series titles, starting in 1972. He was traded to Baltimore in April in the first step of the disintegration of the great A's team.

Since then, eight A's stalwarts, including such stars as Gene Tenace, Sal Bando, Bert Campanaris and Joe Rudi, played out their options and—like Jackson—put themselves on the open market.

Williams, who produced winners at Boston and at Oakland, made it clear that he did not accept the Montreal job to ride the caboose in the National League East.

"We need another big hitter to back up Jackson," the Expos pilot said, "and some more rebuilding here and there. Our goal is to be a contender in three years."

Williams must realize Jackson won't come cheaply and it may take more than greenbacks to lure him to such a frigid climate. Jackson has said he wants to play in a warm weather city and with a contender—two requirements which Montreal automatically doesn't meet.

Also, sources close to Jackson say he wants a five-year, $2.9 million package calling for an escalating salary starting at $275,000 in 1977 plus other benefits.

Williams admitted that he suffered certain pangs in watching the dissolution of the once mighty A's.

"They were a remarkable team," he said. "They were free-swingers and brawlers with intense pride. With all their locker room friction, they seemed to find a unity in their dislike of Finley."

"I will say this for Charles Finley. He came up with some tremendous ideas and some kooky ones. He yelled and roared but he never interfered with me on the field and he never once embarrassed me in public. I think he has been tremendous for baseball."

Panthers Get First Win In Final Game Of Year

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer
BETHEL—North Pitt's Panthers ended a frustrating season with a victory Friday night, edging D.H. Conley 7-6 in the final game for both teams.

North Pitt scored the winning points with 5:25 left in the game on George Little's 26-yard run and Jay Bedsworth's extra point kick in a game controlled by the defenses. Big defensive plays were the order of the evening as several threats by both teams were thwarted during the game.

D.H. Conley's touchdown was scored in the third quarter when Bernard Hawkins returned a Panther punt 77 yards for a score. The extra point kick attempt failed, however, and that was the difference in the game.

Neither team was able to score in the first half, although both made drives into enemy territory.

North Pitt, after returning the opening kick-off to its 36, drove down to the Viking 39 before being forced to punt. The biggest play in the drive was a 16-yard pass from John Hunt to Larry Spencer.

Conley took over following the punt at their own 11 and moved the ball out to their 43 behind the running of Hawkins and Nuggie Worthington before a procedure penalty and quarterback sack forced a punt on fourth-and-18 on the Viking 35.

Tim McClanahan's boot rolled down to the North Pitt 15, where the Panthers took over. The Vikings forced them to punt in four downs, however, and a bad kick gave Conley the ball at the Panther 41.

On first down, Hawkins took a pitch around his right end for 12 yards. Then, Worthington carried twice for a total of 17 yards, giving the Vikings a first down on the North Pitt 12.

Worthington picked up two yards on first down but fumbled the ball on the next play and Larry Spencer recovered for the Panthers at the nine, just before the end of the first quarter.

North Pitt was able to get some breathing room, moving the ball to the Conley 47 before the drive stalled and the Vikings took over on downs.

Conley was caught holding on first down, however, and North Pitt's Virgil Pilgreen read a reverse play perfectly on the next snap to move the Vikings even farther back. Quarterback Jeff Allen missed on two pass attempts and the Vikings were forced to punt.

The Panthers took over on their 47 and, on first down, Hunt laid the ball right in the hands of receiver Tim Corey, but the ball was dropped at about the 15 for an incomplete pass. On the next play, Hunt's pass was intercepted by McClanahan at the Viking 26 and returned to the 32.

Conley's next drive was stopped at the North Pitt 48. Melvin Vines forced a fumble with a good hit on Jeff Allen, and the ball was recovered by Jeff Nelson for the Panthers.

North Pitt was held on downs at their 48 with less than a minute to go in the half, but the Vikings were unable to score on a desperation pass which fell incomplete at the goal line as time ran out.

Conley was forced to punt in four downs following the second-half kick-off and the Panthers took over at the Viking 49.

Little went off-tackle for five yards on first down and Hunt ran a keeper for 11 more on second down.

Little picked up 11 more on the next play to give the Panthers a first down at the 22. A sneak by Hunt got two yards and Calvin Carmack carried for three more, but on the next play, Hunt was sacked by Kevin Adams at the 19. From there, North Pitt attempted a field goal which was blocked by Adams and recovered back at the Viking 30.

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago Bears offensive tackle Lione-Antoine is listed as questionable for Sunday's National Football League encounter against the Oakland Raiders because of a knee strain.

Recreation Football

The Jets ran to a 42-8 win over the Oilers Friday in Greenville Recreation Department tackle football.

The Oilers scored first in the game on Roger Williams' six-yard run and Sammy Hodges' two-point conversion run.

The Jets came back to tie later in the first period, though, as Dwayne Pitt scored a touchdown from 20 yards out and added the conversion.

The Jets picked up another touchdown in the second quarter on Woody Whichard's two-yard plunge. Whichard added his own conversion.

Pitt scored again in the third quarter on an 18-yard run and Troy Perkins and Ricky Jackson added TD's on runs of 23 and 30 yards to put the Jets way out in front.

Another score in the fourth quarter by Bill Saunders and a conversion run by Woody Whichard made the final score 42-8.

Keith Frizzell and Ronald Keel played good defensive games for the Jets, each coming up with an interception.

Tournament Record Set

GUNTERSVILLE, Ala. (AP) — Ricky Clunn said he found an eight-foot hole in Lake Guntersville's bed that made him $25,000 richer Friday with a victory in the sixth annual BASS Masters Classic.

After winning with a total of 59 pounds, 15 ounces of bass during the three-day tournament, he said: "The cold weather that dropped the water temperature moved my fish out of the back of the shallow creek" and into the hole he found.

In addition to the first prize, Clunn earned $950 in big fish bonus money.

His winning total also set a BASS Classic record, bettering the previous mark of 52 pounds, 8 ounces by Rayo Breckenridge of Paragould, Ark., at the 1973 world finals at Clark Hill, S.C.

Along with setting the record, it was the first victory on the professional angling circuit for the Montgomery, Tex., fishing guide.

Jags Down Hawks; Finish Unbeaten In Loop

FARMVILLE — Farmville Central took a 36-7 win over North Lenoir Friday night to end the Eastern Carolina Conference regular season with a perfect 7-0 conference record.

As conference champions, the Jaguars now move into the state 3-A playoffs next week against Williamson, champs of the Tobacco Belt Conference.

Keno Farrow scored three touchdowns for Farmville as the Jags built up a 26-0 halftime lead. His first TD came on Farmville's first play from scrimmage. It was a 37-yard run set up by Ted Dunn's 41-yard punt return.

Dunn capped a 68-yard drive later in the first quarter with a 19-yard touchdown and added the kick to give Farmville a 13-0 lead.

Following a short Hawk punt, the Jaguars mounted a 35-yard scoring drive, with Farrow doing the honors from eight yards out. Dunn kicked the extra point.

Farrow scored again on the next drive with a four-yard run. That drive covered 75 yards in seven plays with Farrow and Dunn picking up most of the yardage. Dunn's kick was good.

Later in the second quarter, Timmy Hall scored on a two-yard run after Jaguar Scott Evans had intercepted a Ronnie Chapman pass at the Hawk 20. Dunn again added the conversion.

North Lenoir's touchdown came in the fourth quarter when Dennis Turnage scored on a one-yard plunge to end a 55-yard drive. Lynwood Dudley picked up most of the yardage in the drive on a 32-yard run. Ben Holloman kicked the extra point.

Dunn set a new ECC field goal record in the fourth quarter with a 43-yard boot. The kick was the longest in conference history and gives Dunn six field goals for the season, also a conference record.

The win leaves the Jaguars with a regular season record of 8-2 overall and 7-0 in the conference.

North Lenoir finishes 2-8 overall and 2-5 in the conference.

New Teams Stock Up At AL Expansion Draft

By HAL BOCK
 AP Sports Writer
 NEW YORK (AP) — Carrying out a commitment to youth, the Seattle Mariners and Toronto Blue Jays stocked their brand new baseball franchises at the American League expansion draft Friday.

Both teams ignored a host of tried and true names available and concentrated instead on building their clubs with many younger and, for the most part, unknown players.

Occasionally a familiar veteran like designated hitter Rico Carty, picked by Toronto, popped up, but for the most part this draft was a farm director's delight with minor league prospects dominating the selections.

The trend was set on the very first pick when Seattle went for speedy Ruppert Jones, an outfielder from the Kansas City organization.

"He was one of our top prospects," said Whitey Herzog, manager of the AL West Division champion Royals. "He's a player of great potential."

The Mariners thought so too. "He was the one we wanted," said Lou Gorman, Seattle's chief of baseball operations. "He can play."

Jones' 1976 statistics are only average. He batted .262 with 19 homers and 73 RBI at Omaha of the American Association and .216 in 28 games with the Royals.

After the Mariners took Jones, Toronto's first pick was shortstop Bob Bailor, drafted out of the Baltimore organization. He has spent the last three seasons with the Orioles' Rochester affiliate in the International League, batting .311 this year.

"He is young, aggressive, has outstanding speed and excellent range," said Pat Gillick, vice president of player personnel for the Blue Jays. "We're delighted to have him at this key position."

The established teams protected 15 players each for the first round leaving familiar names like Lou Piniella, Dick Tidrow, Elliott Maddox and Carlos May of the pennant winning New York Yankees, Brooks Robinson and Paul Blair of Baltimore, Charlie Spikes of Cleveland and a host of others open. But the Mariners and Blue Jays preferred younger, untried talent.

"We've filled some key positions with the best young talent available," said Peter Bavasi, executive vice president of the Blue Jays. "I'm delighted."

Besides Carty, Toronto's most familiar names include pitchers Bill Singer, Steve Hargan and Jesse Jefferson, outfielder Otto Velez, and infielders Jim Mason and Dave McKay.

Darrell Johnson, manager of the Mariners, also was happy with the outcome of the draft which supplied Seattle with a few more familiar names than Toronto drafted.

Included on the Mariners' roster are pitchers Grant Jackson, Pete Broberg, Rick Jones, Stan Thomas, Glenn Abbott, Dick Pole and Dave Pagan; outfielders Dave Collins, Steve Braun and Leroy Stanton; catcher Bob Stinson, and first basemen Joe Lis and Dan Meyer, all with major league experience.

"Over-all, we have a better team than we ever thought we'd get when played this on dry runs," said Johnson.

Kansas City proved the most popular shopping spot for the two new teams. For the first four rounds of the draft, the Royals had the first player selected. After Seattle took Jones on the first round, Toronto tabbed KC pitcher Al Fitzmorris in the second, Seattle went for Stinson in the third and Toronto chose Steve Staggs, a minor league second baseman in the Kansas City organization.

After the draft, the Blue Jays swapped Fitzmorris, 15-11 with the Royals last season, to Cleveland for catcher Alan Ashby and first baseman-outfielder Doug Howard.

Toronto concentrated on young pitchers. In the first round, the Blue Jays used three of their six picks to grab a trio of 20-year-old pitchers, Ted Garvin from Minnesota, Jim Clancy from Texas and Claude Edge from Milwaukee. None of the three has pitched a single inning in the major leagues.

"We thought they were the best young arms available, so we took them," said Bavasi.

Cale Trying To Grab King Richard's Crown

By JERRY GARRETT
 AP Motorsports Writer
 HAMPTON, Ga. (AP) — This has been Cale Yarborough's season in Grand National stock car racing. He's unsurpassed in the number of races won, nine. He's led more races, for more laps, than anyone else. And he's been a top five finisher in 21 of 28 races so far.

But going into Sunday's $160,000 Dixie 500, the next-to-last race of the season, Yarborough has been unable to snatch the national championship away from defending titleholder Richard Petty, who is having his poorest year since 1961.

How is that possible? The determined Petty, seldom a dominating factor this season, has kept within striking distance by steadily finishing somewhere in the top ten. And NASCAR's point system gives a winner only 41 points more than a 10th place finisher, 175-134.

Petty was able to stay afloat in the points battle—now narrowed down to just these two—by winning at Rockingham two weeks ago while Yarborough took fifth. That closed the gap by 30 points to 4,380-4,283.

Yarborough could conceivably clinch the title here Sunday, but he'd just about have to win, with Petty finishing out of the top ten to do so. If he could add another 46 or more points Sunday to his lead over Petty, Yarborough would only need to start the season finale at Ontario, Calif., two weeks from now to take his first title in 20 years of Grand National competition.

The 37-year-old Yarborough, a newly reelected county commissioner from Timmonsville, S.C., has a good track record at Atlanta International Raceway, but so has Petty, 39, a six-time national champ.

Both have won four times here, although all of Yarborough's victories have come in the Atlanta 500, the spring race, while Petty is a three-time Dixie 500 winner.

Yarborough said he wouldn't avoid running for the lead here Sunday, but he added he would do nothing to endanger his chances of finishing the race.

"We will run cautious, but still run hard," he said.

Yarborough is starting seventh and Petty fourth Sunday. Buddy Baker was the fastest qualifier at 161.652 miles per hour, a record.

Rock Hill Man Wins PGA Event

PINE MOUNTAIN, Ga. (AP) — Bob Galloway is $16,500 richer today after coming from behind to win the ninth annual PGA Club Professional Golf Championship Friday at Callaway Gardens.

Galloway of Rock Hill, S.C., overtook third round leader Jim Ferriell Jr. of Milford, Ohio, by firing a 1-under-par 71 and collecting five birdies over the 7,040-yard championship course.

Ferriell shot a 75 to end the tournament at 281 in a three-way tie for second place, one stroke behind Galloway.

Also in second place were George Lanning, Tacoma, Wash., and Larry Gilbert, Brandenburg, Ky. Lanning shot a 72 and Gilbert a 74.

Aspromonte Wins Suit

HOUSTON (AP) — Former Houston Astros first baseman Bob Aspromonte, who claimed he was injured when a battery exploded, has been awarded $675,000 in damages by a state court jury ruling.

The jury, in a 10-2 verdict after two hours of deliberation ruled Friday against the manufacturers and seller of battery jumper cables which Aspromonte said were responsible for a 1974 accident that resulted in loss of vision in his right eye.

The defendants were Richards Manufacturing Co. and Sears, Roebuck & Co.

Aspromonte testified that when he leaned over to hook the cable to a battery of a car, the battery exploded and one of its caps struck him in the eye.

LUXURY HOME OFFERS GUEST ROOM, 4 BATHS

By Jerry Bishop

Four full baths, a first floor guest room, and 20-ft. screened porch merge with a floor plan lavishly with space in the Carleton, an expansive two level home design.

On the facade, diamond light windows, hip roof, and columned porch add interest to an exterior that neatly encloses over 2600 sq. ft. of living space. Beginning with the foyer, the floor plan seeks to accommodate with multiple activities of a large family.

The gracious foyer brings family and guests into the center of activity and is equally convenient to formal and informal living areas. At left is the spacious guest room, thoughtfully closeted, and adjacent to the full bath, which, for efficiency, opens to hallway as well.

Tucked in a corner to prevent cross-traffic, the formal living room enjoys a wood-burning fireplace and opens to the terrace via sliding glass doors.

Informal living areas, equally well furnished, include a family room with fireplace and access to terrace and a 17-ft. kitchen that takes in dining space, center cook island, and liberal counter space. Double doors separate family room from foyer.

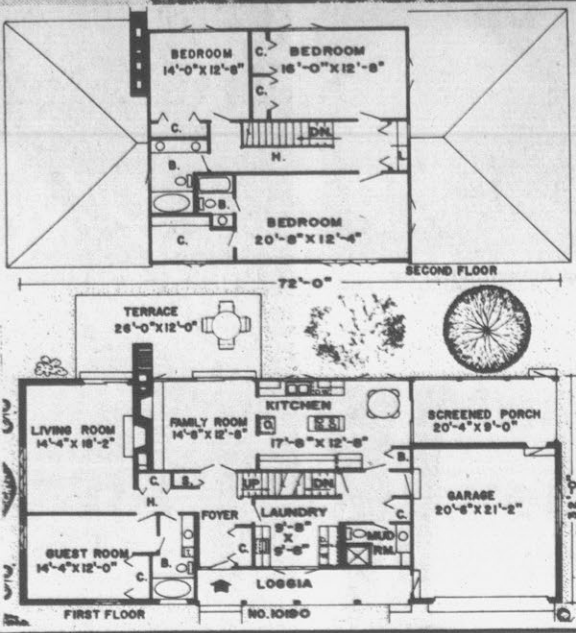

Linked to the dining area by sliding glass doors, the long screened porch promises a delightful spot for summer meals or naps. The first level also boasts a windowed laundry room and mud room with full bath.

Three large bedrooms fill the upper level. Front-facing, the master bedroom offers a lavish room with walk-in closet, and corners its own private bath. Another bath with built-in double vanity serves the remaining bedrooms.

Separate storage space is sprinkled throughout the plan, and a basement provides another 944 sq. ft. of space.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
 AP Newsfeatures

Buying an old house? Let's say, one built before 1914?

Some persons are. Old, old houses that were proverbial white elephants for years and years are being looked over and bought with the purpose of restoring them. It's getting to be an almost "in" thing to acquire a very old house and put it back into livable shape. But if you find one that enchants you, better be sure you have enough time and money to follow through. The less time you have, the more money you need. The less money you have, the more time you'll need, whether you are doing all or part of the work yourself. As Clem Labine, editor of the Old-House Journal puts it, "While restoring an old house can be an exciting and creative process, it can also be a money-gobbling trap for the unwary."

An evaluation by a professional house inspector, who may charge anywhere between $50 and $150, is a sound investment when you are considering a purchase. Until you find a house that appears to warrant such an inspection, a knowledge of what to look for will enable you to weed out the definitely undesirable structures.

That's easier said than done, since there are literally dozens and dozens of defects in the mechanical and structural systems of a house that can cause headaches. The trick is to know which can be fixed with a reasonable outlay of time and money and which are better forgotten.

A checklist compiled by Labine's publication gives 73 hints about inspecting a pre-1914 house. Here are a few of them: —Look for signs of damp plaster, especially on top-floor ceilings, the inside of exterior walls and the ceilings and partitions under bathrooms, since these can indicate leaks from roofs or internal pipes.

—Be sure the ground slopes away from the house so that rain water drains off.

—If the outside paint is badly peeling, blistering and curling, it could mean a serious water problem, either a leak or lack of sufficient vapor barriers.

—Missing, broken or warped shingles on a pitched roof could mean the need for a quick roof replacement.

—Cracks that run vertically through bricks and mortar on a masonry wall are more serious than those that run horizontally.

The complete 73-item checklist can be obtained free from The Old-House Journal, 199 Berkeley Place, Brooklyn, N.Y. 11217.

(An aid to fixing things around the house, Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," is available by sending $1.50 to this newspaper at Box 5, Teaneck, N.J. 07666.)

 Answers Timely Gardening Questions

Q. I have a small plot of land that I would like to plant in vegetables next spring. It has been in weeds for 12 years. How should I get it prepared? (S.G., Sanford)

A. Disk and then turn the soil with a bottom plow. This will permit the accumulation of organic matter to decay. Take a soil sample. You will probably need to apply lime. If so, disk it in thoroughly. Finally, get ready to control weeds. (George Hughes, extension horticulturist)

Q. Under what circumstances should a lawn be aerated? (G.F., Goldsboro)

A. When the surface has become packed to the extent that it forms a crust or compacted layer. Such a crust prevents water and air movement. Plant roots cannot carry on respiration and will in acute or prolonged cases die. (Carl Blake, Extension agronomist)

Q. I have recently purchased a shredder-grinder. How should I use the mulch that it produces? (M.N., Greensboro)

A. If it is mostly pine needles, use as a mulch around shrubs, trees, walkways or spread it around areas where the natural look is desired. Pine needles do not decompose readily due to their high woody material content. One of the better uses for the other shredded leaves is to construct a compost pile. With the addition of lime, fertilizer and occasional water to the pile, you could use the compost for a potting mix, fertilizer or improving soils. Shredded hardwood leaves may also be incorporated into your garden plots. (William M. Stanton, extension forestry specialist)

Q. Our soil is somewhat heavy clay. We plan to set out some trees and shrubs this winter. Since our soil becomes very "sticky" when wet, should we plant during a dry period? (Mrs. W.G. Jr., Sharpsburg)

A. Trees and shrubs should not be planted when clay soil is wet since this has a cementing effect on the soil. Under such conditions, plants should be "heeled in" a temporary location until soil dries out. (Henry J. Smith, extension landscape horticulturist)

Home Living Space Opened Up

By VIVIAN BROWN
 AP Newsfeatures

Being married to a builder may have advantages for an interior designer who is interested in how to make space work. You can get him to listen, says Jane Victor of New York, who believes "living space should be redefined. What is predefined by architects is not applicable to today's living."

"We must ask ourselves who we are and how we want to live. Some people have children, some have animals, some are single, some couples are retired. They all must function differently, so how can they all be happy in the same structured environment," explains the popular designer, who is in her 30s.

And that's where her husband comes in. She has persuaded him — it wasn't easy — to lease square footage rather than rooms. Walls would be flexible and people could define their own living areas. As she points out, we shouldn't need boundaries. People should be able to spend time wherever they desire for whatever purpose.

"Why should we say we must sit here, we must dine there although we'd like the dining view more than just at dinner. As for dining rooms, we may use them only six times a year."

People shouldn't be put into surroundings where they cannot feel free in space as we once knew it in apartments and homes that had music rooms, sewing rooms and enormous cooking areas where we could roam about, she says. Space should provide more flexibility. Ten years ago a one-bedroom apartment had 1,500 square feet, now it is 1,000 square feet "if you are lucky."

Her husband has had a trial run of the "look, no walls" idea in a loft where it has proved to be successful. Now she has persuaded him to build a small, 40-unit cooperative apartment building as an experiment. She plans to do overlays — showing how the space can be divided so that one can do what one wants to do. She has an idea for a wall system of fire retardant materials and electrical things totally within a grid system that could be flexible, which she hopes to patent.

"Builders often cannot do what they want to do because banks may be too conservative, but I think it will change because people are becoming more resistant to the way apartments in particular are structured and they are paying more attention to function."

For example, some bedrooms are often not used enough for the amount of space allotted to them. And some bedrooms will hold only a bed, although people might like to lounge. In finding their own way in a two-bedroom apartment, one couple didn't use the bedrooms at all for sleeping, she says. They each took a bedroom for their respective pursuits — writing and painting — and they had a bed arrangement that didn't look like a bed in the living area which was useful for seating when they entertained.

Miss Victor often "changes the physical square footage" as she is doing now in a 40-year-old house. She removed half the 15 by 28 foot living room floor so that one half of the 28-foot length drops off into a basement, giving her a height of 16 feet at one end. The other level is 14 by 15. Instead of having a flight of stairs to the lower area, she made steps "like a Greek amphitheater, starting from the top you circle your way down."

"This provides a sculptural quality on 20 different levels that are totally seatable. Sit on the steps (which are also used for storage) in jeans or cocktail dress and enjoy the casual living and entertainment below — better than sitting on chairs and easier than rising from the floor."

Miss Victor has designed every kind of interior from medical clinics to hotels in the last 11 years, and she has found that all design must be based on an individual approach whether it is a factory planned for 500 people or a home for one individual who likes to cook.

Kennedy Home Being Restored

By LARRY LAUGHLIN
 Associated Press Writer
 BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) —

From the horsehair plaster in the kitchen to the wallpaper in the bedroom, workmen are putting the finishing touches on repairs at the birthplace of the late John F. Kennedy to get it ready to reopen to the public.

The restored home on Beals Street was damaged the night of Sept. 9, 1975, the day Boston's public schools opened for a second year of court-ordered busing. An arsonist's firebomb crashed through the kitchen door at the rear of the house.

Nov. 15 is the target date for the reopening of the two-story house as a historic site.

The physical restoration continued into October, according to John Heath, the National Park Service ranger overseeing the work. Then came the house-cleaning.

The fire left the kitchen a charred ruin. The rest of the house, spared from flames by the quick response of firefighters, was damaged by heat and smoke.

The arsonist apparently also spray-painted the words "Bus Teddy" on a sidewalk in front of the house, in a reference to the late president's brother, U.S. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, a supporter of the busing program. Heath said chemicals were used to erase the slogan.

The president's parents — Rose and Joseph Kennedy — moved into the house in 1914. Four of their children, including the future president, were born there. The family moved to New York in 1921.

The house passed through about six owners before the Kennedy family bought it back in 1966 and deeded it to the federal government. The park service dedicated the site in 1969.

The kitchen furnishings, selected with Rose Kennedy's advice in order to recreate conditions when the family lived there, were not authentic pieces. Heath said none of the genuine Kennedy furnishings were lost in the fire.

All the articles of furniture had to be cleaned afterward, but the unfortunate incident gave officials the chance to assess the landmark fully.

"The fire gave us an opportunity to have a professional analysis of the home done," said Heath. "We went back to the original layers of paint to see exactly what kind was used."

The fire also revealed a china hutch in the wall between the kitchen and dining room. "No one even knew it was there. It must have been covered over years ago," said Heath.

"The original plaster in the kitchen was made with horsehair," said Heath of another post-fire discovery. "They don't make it that way nowadays. In order to replaster the kitchen, we had to go to Suffolk Downs racetrack to purchase horsehair, and then we had to find someone old enough to have worked with it."

A craftsman with experience in working horsehair plaster, which resists cracking with the settling of walls, was located in Boston and another historic detail was preserved.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG

Q. — I have heard that there is a way of suspending a ceiling using metal furring strips and would like to try it for a project I have in mind. Is there such a way and where can I find out about it?

A. — There are several ways of suspending ceilings. One method utilizes metal moldings and steel furring channels. The moldings are fastened to the walls. The channels are installed at right angles to the joists. Ceiling tiles are then set into place. Almost all building supply dealers and lumber yards sell the materials necessary for the installation of suspended ceilings. They also have literature on the subject so that you can get some idea of the nature of the job.

Q. — The water in our toilet tank continues to run after the tank has been filled. I took off the tank cover and noticed that the water was higher than the "level" mark and was running down into the vertical hollow pipe. A friend told me that, aside from being annoying, this was not dangerous and could be left as it is. However, I want to fix it. Can you tell me what is causing this and how to repair it?

A. — Your friend is correct as far as he goes with his advice. It isn't dangerous, but it sure is wasting hundreds and thousands of gallons of water. That vertical hollow pipe, as you call it, is the overflow pipe and is there for the specific purpose of preventing the tank from filling up and spilling over in case of the kind of trouble you've encountered. The problem is probably a leaky float ball, the large one at the end of the horizontal rod. Unscrew it and install a new one. The less likely possibility is that something is wrong with the intake valve, which is at the opposite end of the float ball. The valve can be replaced, but it takes a little knowledge and a lot of care. Do you have a friend — another one — who can show you how it's done?

Q. — I have inherited a coffee table which has a very glossy top. The finish appears to be varnish, but it might be lacquer. I can never tell the difference. Anyway, my wife doesn't like the glossy appearance of the finish and wants me to cut down the shine. Can it be done?

A. — Yes. Use powdered pumice and a little oil. Sprinkle a little of the powder on one section of the table top and our a bit of oil on the powder. Use a dry, clean, lintless cloth and rub the one area. It not only will cut the gloss, but will make it very smooth to the touch. Repeat the operation on a second and third section. Be sure to wipe off all excess oil and powder.

Cost Of Having Baby Going Up

NEW YORK (AP) — A newborn baby costs his parents $2,194, reports the Health Insurance Institute. While the major part of this is hospital and medical costs, the figure also includes the expense of the baby's initial wardrobe and nursery items, as well as the mother's maternity clothes.

In the past five years, the price tag on an addition to the family has gone up by nearly 40 per cent. When the institute conducted its last study in 1971 the cost of having a baby came to about $1,600.

Indians Open A Door Can Now See Ancestors

By JOHN BREWER
Associated Press Writer
OZETTE, Wash. (AP) — Imagine that one night your neighborhood suddenly was buried under a torrent of mud.

The centuries pass. Other houses and buildings in your town that survived the mudslide have vanished. Your descendants have forgotten how you lived.

Three hundred years later, archeologists unearth the houses in your neighborhood — and find a Pompeii. A mixing bowl, a screwdriver, the TV, in fact everything in your house the night of the mudslide have been preserved under layers of sticky blue clay.

Archeologists figure the slide must have hit in the spring or summer. Green tree leaves are sealed in the goo.

Your descendants are ecstatic. Suddenly they have a window on their past. They plan a museum — and even go to court to win certain rights that were yours, using your household belongings as evidence.

Far-fetched? It has happened this way at Ozette, a Makah Indian village where four cedar-planked long-houses were buried — and preserved — by a mudslide that rolled down a bluff more than 300 years ago.

Ozette has been hailed as "North America's Pompeii," "a time capsule," "an archeologist's dream." It is helping the Makah descendants of that village reconstruct their history and establish their ancient right to fish off the Washington coast.

Located on the Pacific Ocean near the rugged, forest-hemmed tip of the Olympic Peninsula, about 150 miles west of Seattle, the houses are being excavated under the direction of Dr. Richard D. Daugherty, professor of anthropology at Washington State University.

Daugherty, in his early 40s, and a team of colleagues and archeology students have been there since 1970. They expect to continue five more years.

The wet muck, 8 to 12 feet deep, sealed off air, preserving almost everything except flesh, animal skin and feathers. There is no estimate yet of the number of people buried. The slide may have been triggered by an earthquake, Daugherty says.

The team has recovered and catalogued almost 40,000 artifacts — conical rain hats woven of spruce roots, baskets, wooden bowls for the seal oil they dipped their food in, mats, fish hooks, combs, harpoons, rope, knives, canoe paddles, bows and arrows, splitting wedges, looms, and green ferns and cedar leaves that quickly turned brown when exposed to the air.

The Ozette dig has shown that the Makah were a rich and well-fed people with time for art — unlike their descendants today, a tribe of 1,000 that just manages to make a living from fishing.

The ancient Makah were seal and whale hunters, occasional slave-owners, weavers of baskets, makers of exquisitely carved boxes, spinners of blanket yarn from dog hair.

A striking item is a whale fin carved of red cedar and inlaid with 700 sea otter teeth.

Nothing comparable exists in any collection or is mentioned in any report, says Daugherty, except for a drawing made by an artist with Captain Cook's third voyage, which touched the Northwest coast in 1778.

Daugherty believes the effigy was used in a rite before the Indians went whaling. Killing the huge animals from frail canoes, like going to the moon, was not something everyone did. Like astronauts, whalers were special people in the community.

The seafaring Makah made fishing nets from, of all things, the fierce stinging nettles abounding in the area. They boiled the nettles to remove the formic acid poison, then wove the nets from the tough fibers that remained.

The discovery of nets in one of the four buried houses has helped today's Makah tribe members establish their traditional right to net fish during all seasons. The federal government was about to rule against netting by the Indians on the ground the practice had been introduced by whites. The Ozette find established beyond doubt the existence of nets before white men came.

Before Ozette, the modern-day Makah had known his people's past only since 1800 — and only through white men's writings. The ancient Makah, like most Indians, had no written records.

Makahs lived in Ozette until they had to move to Neah Bay, about 35 miles away, in the 1920s because there was no school in the village. Whales and seals migrate closer to shore at Ozette than anywhere along the Northwest coast.

Radiocarbon tests show that man has occupied Ozette for 2,500 years.

The Makah are enthralled at the richness of their past.

"Halibut hooks and seal oil bowls were part of their livelihood, even their survival," says a Makah leader, Joseph Lawrence, Jr. "But still they had time for carving, for decorating their things."

The dig is part of the Makah reservation and is funded with federal and private funds. Each year about 65,000 tourists hike four miles through an evergreen forest to the seaside site.

This summer work began on a $1.7 million museum and cultural center at Neah Bay. The Makahs will reconstruct one of the four buried houses, using as much as they can of the original materials and artifacts.

Gerald Grosso, project conservator — he stores the Ozette artifacts at a Neah Bay laboratory — says the ancient Makah lived in extended family groups — like you'd invite for Thanksgiving dinner — about 25 or 30 to a house. The houses averaged 35 by 65 feet.

Rich families, like the whalers, kept slaves, captured Indians from rival tribes, as evidence of their wealth and power, much like today's business baron might keep race horses.

Greek Caves Yield Many More Finds In Watery Depths

By PAUL ANASTASSIADES
Associated Press Writer

ATHENS (AP) — A fossilized, paleolithic-age animal skeleton dating back 1.5 million years has been discovered in underground waters by the Greek Speleologist Assn., one of several finds considered of vast archaeological, scientific and economic value.

Mrs. Anna Petrochilou, president of the association popularly known as "the cave hunters," said the kind of animal has not yet been determined nor is its extraction possible at this stage since it is located at a depth of 30 meters in what is called the "big ocean."

The cave is at Diros, in the Peloponnese, southern Greece, and is rich in stalagmites and underground passages and streams. Although it was discovered several years ago, the association president said that newly found openings disclosed passages and cave-rooms "adorned with rare jewels of underground nature."

It was at the Diros caves that Mrs. Petrochilou's husband was killed during a steep descent.

Mrs. Petrochilou said an underground vertical "precipice" was found in another part of the Peloponnese, which she claimed was the biggest in the world. She said that at a depth of 418 meters it surpassed the Devil's Precipice in Mexico so far considered the deepest with 410 meters.

At Leonidi, also in the Peloponnese, original investigations into a small water spring led to the discovery of an underground river which has been traversed to a length of 600 meters without its end yet being reached. Mrs. Petrochilou said adjoining passages with running water were also found, all of which could be used for the badly needed irrigation of above-ground surrounding plains usually parched during the summer.

In Ioannina, northwestern Greece, the explorers went into the catacombs underneath the Castle Museum of the city, which were once used by Turkish Ottoman ruler Ali Pasha as an ammunition store, and found an adjoining enormous cave. The association president said it was richly adorned with stalagmites and stalactites, low-ceilinged smaller caves, lakes and waterfalls.

A similar find, but this time with the stalagmites protruding above ground, was made along a riverside near the Albanian border in the northeast. Mrs. Petrochilou said these stalagmites contained fossilized plants.

The last significant find made recently by the association was the tracing of a shallow mountain lake at the Omalos Runge on Crete Island in the southern Aegean Sea. Collecting waters from surrounding peaks in the winter, it dried up rapidly in the summer "leaving a barrenness resembling the moon's surface," Mrs. Petrochilou said.

Greek and foreign speleologists investigating the phenomenon discovered the so-called "Tzannis Hole," which drained the waters down a three-kilometer-long and 300-meter-deep gorge into the mountain core, at the bottom forming underground lakes, waterfalls and stalactites.

His Weighing Station Clucks

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Truckers never mistake Hugh Fletcher's truck-weighing station for any other. It's the only one that clucks.

"I didn't get the chickens on purpose," says Fletcher, 59, who has nine in a fenced area behind the scales. "The chickens fly off poultry trucks as the trucks pull away from the scales. I holler at the drivers, but they never hear me. Sometimes the chickens are injured falling from the trucks. I nurse them back to health."

Fletcher weighs trucks carrying not only chickens but crushed automobiles, watermelons and tires among other things.

Preservation Hall Still Flourishes In New Orleans

By BILL CRIDER
Associated Press Writer
NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Everybody sweats in Preservation Hall except the musicians. They're so old the heat of a humid summer night is soothing to their ancient bones.

But these creaky old black men, in their 70s and 80s, still pack 'em in at the dimly lit, dingy French Quarter room where the second coming of jazz took place 14 years ago. "Aren't they incredible?" says Clayton Ramsey, a traveling man from Monticello, Ga., during a brief intermission. "I never miss the hall when I'm in New Orleans. Been coming here for years." When jazz moved up the Mississippi River after World War I it evolved into newer styles. That original jazz grew into Dixieland, then married into just about every musical form it encountered. The variations include big band swing, bebop, cool. Rock has jazz in its ancestry. But the original New Orleans jazz almost died out.

Then along came Allan Jaffe, a rotund jazz buff of 40 who likes to blow the sousaphone. He converted the Sunday jazz soirees staged by art dealer Larry Borenstein at his gallery into a public jazz hall — Preservation Hall. No air conditioning. No bar. A bare room and a band.

Jaffe dropped out of his job as a systems analyst for a department store and now he wouldn't go back into business for any reason short of starvation.

Jaffe's little jazz joint did so well he made it into home base for jazz bands that criss-cross the United States, Europe, South America and Japan on tours.

In the beginning, Jaffe had 200 of his rare musical breed to call on. There have been a lot of funerals since then. There are a dozen of the old originals left.

Most of Jaffe's musicians never blew their way to fame in younger days. World tours that grew out of Preservation Hall were a glimpse of what might have been.

"Captain" John Handy, for instance, an alto sax man. He died in 1971 after discovering, to his amazement, that the old music was alive and kicking, especially in Europe. "Things is funny," his widow said at the funeral. "It all came so late. Seems like just as he was making it, out goes his life."

When the last of the originals are gone, Jaffe says Preservation Hall may go down, too. The living history gimmick that made it famous will be no more. He figures tours wouldn't draw.

But that's debatable. Dick Allen, who presides over Tulane University's Jazz Archives, says original New Orleans jazz has a hard core of fans in Europe and Japan, and musicians who can play it.

These days, you find some thriving oases of "pure" jazz around the United States, but much of the action is abroad.

"There is no city in this country where I could go to put on a concert aimed at jazz fans alone," said Jaffe, "but I can do it in Europe."

"In Europe there are 50 to 60 jazz records of all types issued every month," said Allen. "If I wanted a record of jazz the way it was played in New Orleans back in the 1940s I would have to buy it from Japan. The label named Storyville, which was the old red light district of New Orleans, is out of Copenhagen. It's kind of strange."

For now, Preservation Hall still flourishes just off Bourbon Street, a raucous stretch of strip joints and bars that is a tourist stamping ground. Conversations are as likely to be in French, German or Japanese as in English. The hall is high on the list of things foreign tourists want to see.

The one-time art gallery was never your average, ordinary nightclub. For one thing, it only costs a dollar a head to get in.

Oil paintings of old jazz musicians molder on the walls. Six wooden benches provide a perch for the first 25 or 30 people to arrive. The rest sit on the floor up front or stand in the dark at the rear. A tall window overlooking St. Peter Street plainly hasn't been washed in 10 years but has a few clean spots scoured in the grime by people standing outside peering in. The band sits on rickety chairs and the piano is an old upright, battered but in excellent tone. Rather than risk injury by tripping over tourists sitting on the floor directly in front of them, the old men often simply remain placidly in their chairs during intermission, warmed by the glow of admiration from the audience.

Patients Pay Insurance Cost

CHICAGO (UPI) — Cost of physicians' malpractice insurance is hitting the patient where it hurts — in the pocketbook.

Patients paid an estimated $1.24 for malpractice insurance each time they visited a doctor in 1975. That amount was about 8.1 per cent of the full amount the patient paid for the visit, according to preliminary estimates of the American Medical Association. The impact on the patient this year is even greater, the AMA said, because malpractice insurance rates are still on the upswing.

Moving Families Told Eye Schools

CHICAGO (AP) — "Schools remain the single most important factor in a family's choice of one community over another when people are looking for a new home," says Dr. Kenton E. Stephens, an educational specialist with the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW).

Recent Census Bureau figures indicate that about half (46.5 per cent) of all U.S. households move every five years. An estimated 500,000 of these moves each year are job related and many involve families with school-age children, according to the head of a nationwide organization of real estate brokers.

"We recently surveyed a number of leading educators to determine ways in which the quality and style of a community's school system can be best evaluated," says William

A. Ellis, president of RELO, a home referral service made up of 850 brokers who specialize in family relocation services.

Many of the educators queried agree that parents are concerned about quality education but caution that too few know how to assess a school system properly, Ellis reports.

HEW's Stephens, former superintendent of the Oak Park, Ill., public schools, says that "compatibility" is the single most important quality to look for in any school system.

"People should seek out schools that reflect the particular set of values they hold," he advises.

"You can find a school system that is completely oriented towards high academic standards, for instance, but this approach may de-emphasize the humanistic qualities some parents consider important for their children. If, however, a family wants academic excellence to the exclusion of all else, parents should look for scholastic emphasis in choosing the school community," Stephens suggests.

To properly gauge schools, Stephens encourages parents to talk with teachers, principals, and with some of the people in the community. He also advises checking into the availability, quality and scope of programs — music, art, dance or auto-mechanics — that are important to parents and their children.

Dr. Donald Thomas, formerly a school superintendent in Illinois and California, and now head of the Salt Lake City, Utah, system, comments, "The extent to which parents are encouraged to participate in a school system can be an important key in evaluating a community's schools."

Dr. Thomas also recommends that home shoppers look at the adult-student ratio in the schools. "Most people consider the student-teacher ratio, but this leaves out an important element," he says. "Aides, volunteers, tutoring by high school students, utilization of experts from industries, professions and business are all important resources that a progressive school system can call on to provide quality programs.

"There is another quality that marks a superior school," he says. "That's the system's ability to identify students who are having trouble keeping up and its ability to provide extra services for these children. I would ask school officials to discuss programs for gifted and exceptional children and for underachievers."

Ellis says RELO's survey of educators found other questions parents should ask to evaluate school systems:

- What percentage of graduates go on to higher education?
- How much does the school district spend per pupil?
- How do the schools rate on national achievement tests?
- What extracurricular activities are available? Are these broad in scope, or limited to team sports?
- Is there a lunch program?
- To what extent does the community support its school referenda and bond issues?
- Are schools within walking distance of the new home? Or is adequate transportation provided?
- Are there well developed vocational programs for those students who are not oriented towards college?
- Are there in-service training programs for teachers?

"Once you've made the choice and moved into the new community," advises HEW official Stephens, "give the new school some time. It will certainly take three to four months before your youngsters feel comfortable and settled in the new environment, but the magic day will come when the kids bounce in from school and announce 'It's going great!'"

Contact Sports Not Ruled Out

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Young persons who have heart murmurs or who have had heart surgery don't always have to be excluded from contact sports, says a Yale University cardiologist.

Dr. Norman S. Talner says some "innocent type" heart murmurs don't necessarily mean a heart ailment.

A heart murmur is the noise caused by blood flowing across a heart valve. He says it can show up in a person who has a normal but very slow heart beat.

The slow beat could create a murmur when a large quantity of blood is forced through the arteries during strenuous activity, Talner said at a Yale Medical School seminar on "Sports Medicine for Community Physicians."

He cautioned, however, that many of the traditional reasons still apply for prohibiting heart patients from playing contact sports.

A significant lesion in the heart or high blood pressure should rule a youngster out of action, he explained.

But, said Talner, doctors now have special instruments to distinguish between different heart ailments and can advise patients what activities they are suited for.

"We may be able to allow participation in sports of those who may have rather trivial cardiac defects," he said.

One device used by heart specialists is "ultrasound." That involves passing a beam through areas of the heart and then viewing it on a video screen to provide exact analyses of possible ailments, Talner said.

Talner said even heart surgery patients who have had holes closed in the heart between the upper and lower chambers may be able to play in contact sports. He added that more complex heart surgery does not automatically rule out an active sports life.

The specialist emphasized that persons affected with heart conditions should seek the advice of their doctors and should undergo rigorous testing to make sure they don't aggravate their condition.

Nurses Will Meet Nov. 9

WILLIAMSTON — District 30 of the North Carolina Nurses Association will hold its meeting Tuesday at 7 p.m. at the Town and Country Restaurant here.

Dinner will be served banquet style at a cost of $3.50 per person.

"Swine Flu as of Today" including history, current statistics, and reaction to injections will be the topic for the evening. Presenting the program is Frank Bradham, immunization officer from the Eastern Regional Office of the Department of Human Resources.

There will be a business meeting after the program.

A telephone committee is being organized throughout the six counties of District 30. This is being done to enhance communication in the geographical area that the district covers. A key person in each county acts as a resource to the other members as the observance of the 75th anniversary of nursing in North Carolina is continued.

All nurses in the area and their guests are invited to attend Tuesday's meeting.

SALES REPORTED

Values for the first nine months of 1976 by the Ordinary, Group and Home Service Divisions of Pilot Life Insurance Co. totaled over $1.27 billion, according to H. H. Howard, Greenville Home Service Division district manager and H. L. Groomer Jr., Greenville Ordinary Division unit manager.

Sales of individual policies during their first nine months amounted to more than $402 million and group insurance sales amounted to $873 million.

The company's gain of insurance in force during the period, $763 million, was 237 per cent greater than the gain during the corresponding period of 1975. Total insurance in force with Pilot at the end of September was $9.7 billion.

APPOINTMENT NOTED

David Taylor, president of Metalwood Inc., 506 W. 13th Street, announced that Ralph Crawford has been appointed vice president and a member of the company's board of directors.

Prior to joining Metalwood Inc., Crawford was associated with Carolina Sales Corp. here. A resident of Winterville, he is married to the former Margaret Cox of Winterville and the family attends Arlington Street Baptist Church.

Metalwood, the city's newest glass dealer, specializes in all forms of aluminum building products.

NAMED SUPERVISOR

Burroughs Wellcome Co. announced the appointment of Mrs. Marilyn C. Loftin to the position of production supervisor at the company's Research Triangle Park facilities.

A graduate of N.C. Central University, she is presently completing work on a Masters degree at East Carolina University.

HONOR AWARD

The Ormond Wholesale Co. Inc., a franchised Foodland affiliate wholesaler, was awarded the 1976 International Honor Award during the 50th Golden Anniversary convention of the Foodland International Corp. in San Francisco, Calif.

The firm was recognized for its contributions to the participation of group development of Foodland International.

H. L. Ormond, president of the Greenville firm, accepted the winning award. Ormond Wholesale is located at 1901 Dickinson Avenue.

HIGHEST FIGURES

Vermont American Corp., a manufacturer of precision cutting tools for consumer and industry, reported the highest sales and earnings for any quarter and nine-month period in the company's history.

Lee B. Thomas Jr., president, said that in the three months ended Sept. 30, sales were $27.21 million compared with $19.73 million last year. Net income was $2,414,000 or $1.20 per share compared with $1,319,000 or 66 cents per share in the year-ago period.

In the nine months, sales were $78,123,000 compared with $54,370,000 a year ago. Net income was $6,398,000 or $3.19 per share compared with $2,983,000 or $1.49 per share in the same period in 1975.

GAIN REFLECTED

Consolidated earnings from operations of Jefferson-Pilot Corp. for the first nine months of 1976 showed a gain of 17 1/2 per cent or 29 cents per share over the same period last year, it was reported by W. Roger Soles, president.

Jefferson-Pilot directors declared a quarterly dividend of 20 cents per share, payable on Dec. 3 to shareholders of record at the close of business on Nov. 12.

Consolidated earnings for the first nine months of 1976 were $47,800,000 compared with $40,809,000 for the same period last year. Net income was $49,545,000 compared with $41,369,000 for the same period in 1975.

AWARDED CERTIFICATE

Fred Austin, supervisor of Happy Stores Inc. in Greenville, was awarded a certificate of achievement for having completed the Supervisory Development Institute held at the Georgia Center for Continuing Education, University of Georgia in Athens.

The Institute was sponsored by the National Association of Convenience Stores and the Extension Marketing Department of the University of Georgia. The program was designed for newly appointed convenience store supervisors.

Topics included personnel training and motivation, time management, financial and operations analysis, employee hiring practices, store controls, merchandising, communications and customer relations.

SALES AHEAD

Life insurance sales this year are running almost ten per cent ahead of the first nine months of 1975 for the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co., the company reported.

Northwestern said that nine months sales of $3.7 billion compared with $3.4 billion for the same period last year.

New premium dollars are $66.7 million so far in 1976, a 6.1 per cent increase over a year ago. The number of policies sold is $138,000, four per cent ahead of the first nine months of 1975.

INCREASES CITED

Heilig-Meyers Co., Richmond based retail furniture chain, announced increases in revenues and earnings for the second quarter ended Sept. 30.

On revenues of $11.9 million, earnings for the second quarter were $550,000 or 25 cents per share compared with revenues of $11.0 million and earnings of $537,000 or 24 cents per share for the corresponding period last year.

For the six months ended Sept. 30, revenues and earnings were the highest for any comparable period in the company's 63 year history, it was reported. Total revenues increased by 11.2 per cent to $25.3 million from $22.8 million last year and net earnings increased by 12.1 per cent to $1,636,000 from $1,460,000. Earnings per share close to 74 cents compared to 66 last year.

APPROVED MERGER

The shareholders of Branch Banking and Trust Co. voted to approve a proposed merger between BB&T and The Citizens Bank of Warrenton. Shareholders of The Citizens Bank voted in favor of the merger at their special meeting on Nov. 3.

Under the proposed plan of merger, 112,500 shares of Branch Corp. common stock will be exchanged for the 30,000 outstanding shares of The Citizens Bank. Branch Corp. is the parent holding company of Branch Banking and Trust Co.

BEST QUARTER

Third quarter net earnings for Evans Products Co., increased sharply over the same period in 1975, the company reported, resulting in the most profitable third quarter in history.

Net earnings for the quarter were $9.8 million or 59 cents per primary common share, on revenues of $220 million, it was reported. Earnings of $8.8 million before an extraordinary gain of $1 million were 67 per cent higher than the net figure of $5.3 million in the third quarter of 1975.

Net earnings for the first nine months of 1976 were $22.8 million, or $1.36 per primary common share, on revenues of $607 million. In the first nine months of 1975, net earnings were $8.8 million on revenues of $624 million.

FUEL CHARGE LOWER

The "approved fuel charge" paid by retail customers of Carolina Power & Light Co. during November will be 29 cents per thousand kilowatt-hours, compared to $1.98 per thousand billed during October, CP&L announced.

The reduction of $1.69 per thousand kw h in the "approved fuel charge" was proposed by CP&L and approved by the North Carolina Utilities Commission.

James M. Davis Jr., the company's assistant director of rates and regulations, said the reduction is largely due to an increased amount of nuclear generation, with its lower fuel cost, during August.

MANAGER NAMED

Burroughs Wellcome Co. announced the appointment of Jerry Whitehurst to the position of manager of data processing operations in the Data Processing Department, Research Triangle Park.

Whitehurst, who attended East Carolina University, joined the company in 1969.

CREDIT INCREASED

According to the weekly figures released by the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, bank credit at 27 of the large commercial banks in the Fifth Federal Reserve District increased $163,193,000 in the week ended Oct. 27, raising bank credit to a level of $20,514,238,000.

Net loans adjusted—total loans exclusive of loans to other banks and loan valuation reserves—increased $86,490,000 while total investments increased $76,693,000.

Included in the Fifth Federal Reserve District are North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia, Maryland, the District of Columbia, and most of West Virginia.

ATTENDED SESSION

Approximately 120 North Carolina convenience store owners and their suppliers attended the recent first annual convention of the North Carolina Association of Convenience Stores in Pinehurst.

Vice president of the association is Joseph Condra, who is associated with Stop & Go Inc. in Greenville.

The association was founded one year ago to serve as an active force in dealing with a variety of subjects which affect the business success of their industry within the state.

DECLARED DIVIDEND

The board of directors of First Union Corp. declared the regular cash dividend of 23 cents a share, payable on Dec. 20 to shareholders of record on Nov. 15.

First Union reported unaudited income before security transactions of $1,834,000 or 30 cents per share for the third quarter of 1976. The figures compared to $778,000 or 13 cents per share for the same period in 1975.

For the first nine months of 1976, unaudited income before security transactions was $5,329,000 or 87 cents per share, compared to $6,628,000 or $1.09 per share for the same period last year.

Natural Fiber Prospect Not So Good

By BRIAN B. KING Associated Press Writer...

WASHINGTON (AP) — The resurgence of natural fibers in American fashion, led by the demand for denim, may be over for a while, according to a new look at the cotton and wool markets by the Agriculture Department.

For farmers, the Outlook and Situation Board's analysis found bright spots.

Early this month, the market price of the basic grade of cotton was nearly 80 cents a pound, more than 25 cents higher than a year earlier. The return to farmers was a strong 62.5 cents in October.

The average farm price for wool at the same time last month was 77 cents a pound, up eight cents in a month and 24 cents more than the year before. Moderate increases are expected through the spring.

But for consumers now and farmers and ranchers later, the prospects are not so good, as the board saw them.

"The recent pause in U.S.

general economic recovery is having repercussions on domestic textile activity. Fiber consumption has been adversely affected by sluggish retail textile sales during recent months and resulting production cutbacks," the report said.

U.S. mill consumption of all fibers is expected to reach 11.5 billion pounds for 1976, from 10 per cent from 1975's depressed levels. But growth in real income for consumers and a better unemployment picture would be necessary for moderate gains next year, it added.

The tightest cotton supply in 53 years, a 24 to 40 per cent expected jump in foreign demand for raw U.S. cotton and a price level for synthetic fibers that is running about 50 per cent below cotton prices are pushing the mills more toward artificial fibers and imports once again, the board said.

The analysts said they expect more cotton to be planted for the marketing year that begins next Aug. 1 because its prices are competitive for farmers who might think about soybeans or corn. But, they said, "the exact level of production is very uncertain."

The 1976 crop was last estimated at 10.25 million bales, sharply higher than last season's abnormally small harvest. But next week's crop-production report is expected to reflect bad weather last month in the Mississippi Delta and Southwest growing areas.

Record imports of cotton textiles are coming to U.S. mills, the board said. They are expected to use only about 6.6 million bales this season, a decline of almost 9 per cent.

Consumption of wool for clothing was up 25 per cent this year, through August, but the amount going into carpets is slipping.

For the first eight months, some 52.7 million pounds more wool textiles have been imported than have been exported, double the trade deficit of a year ago.

Gas Rate Hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Power Commission reaffirmed today with some revisions a massive increase of new natural gas prices which may cost the average residential consumer an extra $15 to $18 per year on his gas bill.

Some householders may be hit much harder or much softer, depending on whether they live in areas with severe winters and whether the gas pipelines serving them must purchase large amounts of new, high-priced gas.

As soon as the FPC decision was initially announced, a citizen group called Energy Action petitioned the U.S. Court of Appeals here to review the action, in a bid to force the FPC to retreat to lower gas rates.

Oyster Contamination Extensive

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — Alabama shoppers are playing a dangerous game of "oyster roulette" in which the chances of buying bacteria contaminated oysters are 9 in 10, according to the state health officer odds-maker.

Dr. Ira Myers says oysters coming into the state are "universally bad," with bacteria levels "way out of the acceptable range."

"It is not a safe time to be eating oysters," Myers declared. "The chances of buying oysters with an acceptable bacteria content are 1 in 10."

To combat what he feels is "a potential and very real danger," Myers has alerted state and county health officials to warn consumers not to eat oysters.

One county health officer, Dr. Paul Pate of Jefferson County, says he has no knowledge of any illnesses associated with the contaminated oysters in his area.

Neither Pate nor Myers has identified the firms by name, but Pate says the oysters came from the Atlantic Coast south of Maryland and all along the Gulf Coast and were shipped by "about half a dozen" companies.

According to Myers, bacteria of the coccus and streptococcus strains have been detected in the oysters. Pate says the contamination could have been caused by polluted water or by a variety of processing errors.

Joys Of Medieval Life And Jousting Are Re-Lived

By DALE SINGER
ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Knights joust for fair maidens. The medieval costumes, complete with armor and weapons, are authentic reproductions. The food and entertainment are of the style of the Middle Ages. The weapons are, however, made of rattan. That doesn't mean the blows don't hurt. "We essentially draw the line at broken bones but serious bruises are another question," said Brock Hanke, a graduate student who assumes the role of an American Aztec at such times. Most of the time Steve Block is involved with the modern mysteries of cancer research and Susan Carna is a psychology major at Washington University. But they also are members of the Society for Creative Anachronism.

The society has gone a long way — into the past, not the future — since celebrants at a 1965 costume party in Berkeley, Calif., thought they were having so much fun they would continue to relive the good old days. Word spread. Now SCA has thousands of members divided into four kingdoms across the United States and Canada — all devoted to the joys of the simple life before 1650, when the introduction of gunpowder to Europe helped end the Middle Ages with a bang.

The society does not merely study the Middle Ages. Each member assumes a persona, a character whose life is acted out at society feasts, tournaments and celebrations. The research that goes into the events is extensive. It can also be expensive if members have the resources and the interest. Costumes range from a simple tunic or caftan to an authentic Elizabethan outfit, complete with codpiece, padding and other touches ignored by the modern world. The feasts also supply the best of the Middle Ages had to offer. Food is cooked according to recipes found in long-ignored books in library reference sections. A recent feast in St. Louis — or, in SCA terms, Three Rivers — featured dishes from medieval Austria.

There are problems, of course, in coming up with food such as wild boar. So there tend to be some substitutions. But that doesn't mean wild boar never will grace an SCA table. "We haven't tried anything like that yet," said Hanke. "We generally go with standard beef dishes and pretty much restrict ourselves to that. The difference is mainly the cost," he said. "There is only so much money available, and if we tried to find a dead boar to roast, the cost would probably be prohibitive." The feasts usually follow tournaments, where those rattle weapons substitute for the real thing. McMillan Courtyard at Washington University is the site for Three Rivers events. "The problem with indoor sites is most floors are a little hard for people to fall down with the surety of not being hurt at all," Hanke said. A persona may be the realization of a childhood dream, but it may also be related to a member's everyday life — what members call the mundane. The pageantry is helped by the fact one member is a student in costume design. "The guiding principle of SCA is you make an attempt to behave like your persona," Hanke said. "You are expected to dress like it, act like it and know a great deal about the place you come from." The society is organized in a highly structured hierarchy, beginning with the Imperium at Berkeley. It continues with kingdoms, principalities, provinces, baronies, cantons and shires. Most groups meet in university settings. Stephen Ironhand and Arwyn Antarae founded the Three Rivers Shire in July 1975. Since then they have brought together a group that visits other nearby enthusiasts in places such as Treegirtsea Province in Chicago and the Barony of Wurm Wald at the University of Illinois. Crown tournaments are staged to determine the head of a kingdom. Participants are expected to fight hard but fair. To quote rules from a society publication, written by Sir Raymond the Quiet and Lord Kristjan Olavssen Ankestjerne: "Judging of blows is ultimately up to the person struck. If it is felt hard enough to him to cut through armour, he will accept it. If it is to an arm or leg, he will lose use of that limb. If it is to the head or torso, he will die, probably dramatically." All of this might sound as if society members are candidates for a time machine — ready and willing to turn the clock back 400 years. But they explain they are just having a little fun. "You're not expected to forget you exist," Hanke said. "Basically SCA is augmentation," Miss Carna said. "It adds a little more color, a little more flavor to your life you otherwise miss." Sometimes, they said, members may have to be reminded that SCA is fantasy and shouldn't be used to hide from the problems of real life. The two worlds must be kept separate, but it isn't easy to maintain such a split personality. "You have to develop the ability to drive your car, get your equipment out, lock it up so nothing gets stolen, walk through the gates to a catharsis, beating someone with a sword as hard as you can." "You're expected to behave differently, operate with a whole different philosophy," Miss Carna added. "I guess the closest thing you could call it is compassion. Things like that you don't leave behind with your costume."

Loan, Grant Are Okayed

LEWISTON — Congressman Walter B. Jones announced the approval by the Farmers Home Administration of a loan of $147,500 and a grant of $115,000 to the Lewiston-Woodville Utilities Association Inc. for water and waste disposal systems. The loan is to be repaid in 40 years at five per cent interest. The Association plans to run six-inch water mains into the community of Woodville and out N.C. Highway 308 toward Windsor. Also, an eight-inch sanitary sewer line will be run out the Windsor highway about a half mile. Water and sewer lines on N.C. Highway 308 will serve 20 users and the water line in the Woodville community will serve 42 users. Present customers and new users total 195.

FWB Historical Society Will Meet Nov. 20

The Semi-annual meeting of the Free Will Baptist Historical Society will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday, November 20, at the Free Will Baptist Press in Ayden. Members should note the variation in meeting time and place. All persons interested in the history of the Free Will Baptists are urged to attend and join the Society.

The Society was organized in 1974 by a group of persons interested in the study and preservation of materials related to the history of the Free Will Baptists. Meetings are held twice a year in May and November, featuring guest speakers or members of the Society who present papers or lectures on various aspects of Free Will Baptist history or subjects believed to advanced the purposes of the organization. The November program will focus on biographies of some prominent early Free Will Baptist ministers.

Most Can Be Achievers

CHICAGO (AP) — When conditions for learning are favorable, almost all children in a classroom can master the lesson, says Benjamin S. Bloom, professor of education at the University of Chicago. Although the notion that practically all students can achieve in the classroom isn't new, Bloom says it has only recently gained acceptance among educators.

Bloom said that studies he has conducted over the past decade have indicated that as much as 95 per cent of a class can grasp the lesson under the right conditions.

The conventional method of group instruction in the schools, he explains, is "likely to be very effective for some learners and ineffective for others. Teachers unconsciously direct their teaching to some students and ignore others."

The educator says that favorable conditions exist when students can master one learning task as a whole class — before the entire group moves on to the next lesson. This approach, Bloom notes, requires a "self-correcting" mechanism which enables students and teachers to correct any errors in learning before they are compounded later.

Extra time and help outside the regular classroom for students slow in learning the lesson can help result in greater student achievement, he adds.

Supplements Free Of Charge

City Clerk Lois Worthington announced that the 1976 supplements to the City Code are now available at city hall without charge.

Mrs. Worthington said that the supplements, which are prepared each year, serve to update the City Code. Persons having copies of the City Code were urged to pick up their copies of the updated material.

I'm the only microwave oven with a brain!

My name is Amana Touchmatic Radarange MICROWAVE OVEN with COOKMATIC Power Shift™

I can save you 50%-75% of the electricity that you normally use in cooking!

The reasons it saves so much electricity are simple: The Amana Touchmatic Radarange Microwave Oven does not require pre-heating like an ordinary oven. It cooks with time, not heat. And because it cooks almost everything in about one-fourth the usual time — it is only "on" about one-fourth the time. Obviously, it only uses about one-fourth the electricity.

Come in and see it now!

MICRO-WAVE COOKING . . . is demonstrated by Mrs. Bunch for her son, Thomas (seated) and family friends, Ann Davis and Steve Rogers.

NEW RECIPES . . . are quickly and easily tried by Mrs. Bunch with her microwave oven.

Micro-Wave Is 'Samantha's Magic Nose' Way Of Cooking

"A BOILED EGG" . . . has been cooked out of the shell, without water in the microwave by Mrs. Bunch in 60 seconds.

By MARGARET BUNCH
Recently, while I was unloading my grocery cart at the check-out counter, I threw a thin volume of micro-wave recipes on the counter and attracted the attention of the customer just ahead of me. We talked briefly about micro-wave cooking. The lady said she had tried her unit twice on a roast and a ham - neither had turned out as well as conventional methods so she stopped using the oven. Now she has an expensive piece of equipment sitting idle.

Talking to micro-wave owners convinced me that purchasers take the name at face value and use the appliance only as a replacement for a range oven. A micro-wave's greatest usefulness is as a replacement for range top cooking. The micro-wave has three assets that appeal to every homemaker. It is economical because it works on regular 110 house current and cooks in much less time. It is cooler - which saves air conditioning in the summer. You can use the serving dishes to cook in and out your dishwashing chores by a good percentage.

Mico-wave cooking is ideal for people on special diets because so many things can be cooked without grease and special dishes can be made ahead and heated later. The best liked feature, no doubt, is the time saved by using a micro-wave.

15-Minute Meal

After reading your instruction manual thoroughly, and with a little experimenting, you can begin to cook as if you had Samantha's magic nose. It is possible, with the skillful use of microwave and regular range, to prepare a meal of ribeye steak (frozen), corn-on-the-cob (unshucked) and a baked potato in 15 minutes. Do it like this. Put the frozen steak, on a paper towel, in the micro-wave to thaw (3 minutes), put on the water to cook the corn (regular range), wash the potato, and shuck the corn. By this time the steak is thawed. Put the potato in the micro-wave (4 minutes), put the steak on to pan broil, and drop the corn in the boiling water. It will all be ready by the time the potato has cooked.

A microwave is most convenient doing the small cooking jobs that mess up stacks of dishes. If you like to bake, you know about scalding milk, melting chocolate and butter-dump it all in the mixing bowl and melt it in the micro-wave.

Make tea by putting tea bags in tap water in a pitcher. One quart bag to a pint of water for about 3½ minutes, add cold tap water to dilute, sweeten and pour over ice. The tea has a great flavor every time because the water never boils. The tea does not oversteep and is never bitter.

Make perked coffee, refrigerate it and heat each cup as you drink it.

To make gelatin desserts, dump the gelatin and one cup tap water in a bowl, heat until dissolved (about 2½ minutes) then add ice cubes and refrigerate.

If you have a busy afternoon planned, cook dinner ahead of time, dish up the plates and heat individual servings when you are ready to eat. Nothing tastes warmed over.

Micro-wave cooked frozen vegetables have marvelous flavor, color and nutritional value because you add only a tablespoon or two of water. Cook by the instruction manual timetable and season.

The micro-wave is probably at its best during lunch hour. You can make melted cheese, hot beef, turkey or chicken sandwiches. Put a weiner in a roll, wrap it in a paper towel and in 1½ minutes you have a tasty, greaseless hot dog.

Heat pies, soups, rolls or any left-overs right in your bowl or plate. Always wrap breads in paper towels and cover plates and bowls with wax paper.

Use For Eggs

One of the most difficult things to cook in the Micro-wave is eggs. But even that can be done with some care. You can purchase a special browning dish to scramble eggs. But an oven proof custard cup makes a good egg dish. Spray the dish with a grease substitute, break the egg in the dish and prick a hole in the yolk to prevent it from exploding. Set the timer for a minute and a half. Cover with a paper towel. Turn the dish ½ turn every 30 seconds. You can remove the egg when it reaches the desired doneness. The white will cook first and you can have soft or hard yolks. For sandwiches or "fried" eggs, spray a saucer with grease substitute, break an egg in the saucer and beat slightly with a fork. Set the time on one and one-half minutes. Watch the egg through the glass door and as it begins to cook on the outer edges, push the cooked part to the center of the saucer. Take the egg out the second it looks firm and remove from the saucer. It will be a tender, fluffy egg.

You will discover your own favorite time savers with a micro-wave, but for people who have a small amount of time to cook or for people who have special diet problems, or for those who are simply shopping for economy a micro-wave can be virtually indispensable.

Trim Form Is Result of Low-Triglyceride Diet

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Marilyn King has a trim new figure and improved health, and she knows the diet that gave both to her is a lifetime thing.

Last April Marilyn, an Ayden resident and Daily Reflector composing room employee, went to Greenville internist Dr. Michael Ramsdell for a routine physical examination. "I knew I was overweight," she said, "but I had found it so very hard to do anything about it. Dr. Ramsdell ordered a blood test which showed I had a high triglyceride level. He told me this is a high blood fat condition similar to cholesterol problems and that I'd have to begin a diet which would restrict my sugar and animal fat intake. If I'd do this and lose some weight, the triglyceride level would probably take care of itself, he said.

He told me of a nutrition counselor, Mrs. Mary Ann Barnes, who at that time visited his office on a regular basis to consult with patients who wished to have her help. I made an appointment.

"Contrary to most popular reducing diets, the one Mrs. Barnes suggested for me is extremely high in carbohydrates. It consists of two servings of poultry, fish or lean trimmed meat; five servings of non-hydrogenated fat like mayonnaise and margarine; three servings of fruit, unlimited servings of most vegetables; and would you believe, SIX servings of bread and cereal. It comes out to about 1,300 calories a day."

"Marilyn's diet could have been a 1,500-calorie one," Mrs. Barnes said, "but since she told me that she would not drink milk, I eliminated the two servings of skim milk she might have had, thus making it 1,300 calories.

"The main consideration in Marilyn's diet, as she explained earlier," Mrs. Barnes went on, "is to as nearly as possible eliminate sugar and animal fat. Because we know people are human, we do offer some sweet substitutions for part of the bread and cereal allowance that may be used occasionally. These exceptions should not be made every day, however. For the most part, getting away from sweets seems to decrease the desire for them."

"Mrs. Barnes answered all my questions and gave me hints about eating away from home and about grocery shopping," Marilyn said. "She suggested I get to know a restaurateur and my grocer better; so I could make special requests when I needed to. A regular customer is more likely to receive special attention, she reminded me. For instance, in the grocery store I might have to ask that round steak be ground into minimal-fat hamburger or that a special fat-free cheese be ordered. In a restaurant I might have to ask that meat be trimmed and broiled or that sauce be left off a vegetable or that tea be served unsweetened."

Dr. Ramsdell had suggested that Marilyn try to lose at least 10 pounds before she went back for a checkup three months later. She went back 20 pounds lighter.

The followup blood test revealed that her triglyceride level was normal. Her aim had been accomplished in a very short time. Now she must maintain, but she knows how—simply leave off sugar and animal fat.

Dr. Ramsdell said in a phone interview that he is quite pleased with Marilyn's weight loss and quick elimination of her triglyceride problem. He emphasized that all persons with high triglyceride levels are not so fortunate—some must have medication in addition to diet control.

There are several kinds of high blood fat problems, he said, and nutrition plays an important part in all of them.

As a consumer information specialist for Johnson Wax, Sandra Conrad of Atlanta, Ga., covers an eight-state southeastern area.

She travels as far north as Virginia and as far west as Mississippi. She has been doing this for 16 months. While on the road, Sandra appears on television, radio and before school and club groups. "I work primarily with the media—this is one of the best ways to reach the consumer. On call-in radio shows, I talk with consumers about their home care questions.

"Through appearing before schools and club groups throughout my territory, this is another way to be in contact with consumers. I enjoy talking with consumers on a variety of subjects such as home care and aerosols and help clarify their questions on aerosols," she said.

"Aerosol products are the least understood and most efficient tools available to the American homemaker and they were very handy. The Johnson Wax Co. recently removed fluorocarbon propellants, the kind that are suspected of damaging the earth's ozone layer, from all of its aerosols," she emphasized.

She can tell you how to strip a floor or how never to need to, why your vinyl flooring turned yellow, how to remove an alcohol ring from your grandmother's Chippendale chest, how to save time doing your laundry and how to keep moths out of your closet.

Born in Chicago, Sandra has lived in the midwest, west coast and south. She graduated from San Diego State University with a degree in home economics. Upon graduation, she went to St. Petersburg to work with a major electronics company. A year later, she became a home economist at Iowa-based kitchen and laundry appliance manufacturer.

Sandra is a nature lover and enjoys being outside—hiking, canoeing and playing tennis. She also enjoys crafty home improvements which include designing wall hangings, needlepoint patterns and shell-framed mirrors.

Sandra was in the Greenville-Kinston area last week. While in Kinston, she was on a consumer call-in show.

Couple Exchanges Vows Friday

MRS. WILLIAM RAY MCLAWHORN

AYDEN — Sharon Van Wagenen Hopkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Van Wagenen Jr. of Greenville, and William Ray McLawhorn, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Ray McLawhorn of Ayden, were united in marriage Friday night at eight o'clock.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Clifton Garris at the Ayden Christian Church. The church was decorated with two nine branched candelabra filled with yellow chrysanthemums.

A program of organ music was presented by Mrs. Tyree Buck of Winterville.

Miss Elaine Nichols of Greenville, presided at the register.

The bride wore a gown of candlelight silk organza over taffeta. The bodice of Venise lace featured a high neckline which had a short organza yoke and featured miniature lace daisies with seed pearls. The front bodice has a satin ribbon belt with an applique on the satin bow in center and had gathers at waist. The lantern sleeves were trimmed with Venise lace with fitted cuffs. The organza train was attached to a rounded yoke in the back. The full length train featured appliques of lace and satin bows. The hemline was trimmed with miniature daisies.

The bride chose an ivory fingertip veil of silk illusion attached to a lace caplette for her headpiece. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses, baby's breath and ivy. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

Miss Robin McLawhorn sister of the bridegroom, was the honor attendant. She wore a formal length gown of Nile green knit designed with an open V-neckline featuring a collar of emerald green velvet edged in ruffled Nile knit. The waistline of the empire gown was styled with an inset band centered with buttons of emerald velvet. The long fitted sleeves were cuffed in the emerald velvet and edged in the ruffled Nile knit. She carried a nosegay of yellow daisy pompons with baby's breath and streamers.

The ring bearer was Anthony Hopkins, son of the bride. James Ray McLawhorn served as best man. Ushers were Richard McLawhorn of Gates, brother of the bridegroom and Micheal Van Wagenen of Greenville, brother of the bride.

For the wedding, the bride's mother selected a formal length ensemble in sea green knit. Venise lace encircled the empire waistline. The gown was complemented by a short jacket. The bridegroom's mother chose a formal gown with matching jacket of melon poly crepe with metallic trim. Both mothers wore miniature white carnation corsage.

Grandmothers of the bride and bridegroom were remembered with corsages.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. Tyree Buck, aunt of the bridegroom.

The bride is a graduate of J. H. Rose High School and is employed as a secretary at Pitt County Memorial Hospital. The bridegroom is a graduate of Ayden-Grifton High School and is employed by Stroud Wholesale.

Doctor Enjoys Nurturing Role

By CONNIE GRZELKA
NEW YORK (AP) — Dr. Cyrille Halkin laughs when she recalls walking down the hall of a Manhattan hospital as an intern back in 1946.

"Some of the elderly men didn't know what to call me, so they'd yell out 'Gollie,' 'Nurse,' and I was startled. I wasn't used to hearing this."

Now that she's known as Dr. Halkin, the pediatrician, and as the first woman vice president of the New York Medical College, things have changed a little, she says.

Over the last 30 years she became a wife and a mother, and in a light moment adds that she only recently discovered that she's an "earth mother" of sorts.

The "earth mother" concept might sound odd coming from a college vice president, but Dr. Halkin says that's how she approaches her job:

"I just really like people. I think of my work as a doctor and as a person as an all-embracing effort. Reaching out, nurturing, healing ... from the basic family unit up through the work of the medical college and the lives it touches."

"This is why I chose pediatrics as a specialty. My personal bent is towards nurturing."

Dr. Halkin, who says she "long antedates the women's lib movement," was one of a dozen women to graduate from the New York Medical College in 1945.

"From then on, I made a commitment to not only participate in medicine to the best of my ability, but also to use my assets as a woman. The sensitivity, compassion and a little more thoughtfulness that I think women have are a great help in medicine," she explains.

The women in her family were achievers, she adds. "They never stopped along the way. And I've always felt that anything a man can do, I can do, too."

Dr. Halkin officially became vice president for development at the college in January, 1976. Working on the executive level, she notes, "is still people to people. It's just on a larger scale."

The 54-year-old physician says her job is to help develop plans for the medical school in two areas — its city campus in Manhattan and the suburban Valhalla, N.Y., campus.

She has her own private practice and has been teaching at NYMC since 1949. Her new role as college vice president adds more hours to her working day, but Dr. Halkin states that "the only problem that presents is finding a place to park the car."

Her husband, Dr. Ralph Schwartz, is also a pediatrician who has been in practice in the Bronx for some 25 years. Dr. Schwartz teaches at the college, too.

Cooking Is Fun

CARAMEL COFFEE CREAM
Complicated to make, but worth it.

- 1 envelope unflavored gelatin
- 2 1/4 cups milk
- 3/4 cup sugar
- 4 egg yolks, slightly beaten with a dash of salt
- 1 teaspoon powdered instant coffee
- 4 egg whites, stiffly beaten
- 1 cup heavy cream, whipped

Sprinkle the gelatin over 2 tablespoons water (in a cup) to soften. In a 2-quart heavy saucepan heat the milk until very hot. In an 8-inch skillet over moderate heat, stirring constantly, dissolve the sugar in 1/4 cup water; boil gently, stirring often, until golden; remove syrup and milk from the range; at once carefully stir the syrup into the milk — it will bubble up. Stir about half the milk-syrup into the egg yolks; stir back into milk-syrup mixture; cook gently without boiling, stirring constantly, until mixture coats a metal spoon. Stir in the gelatin and coffee until dissolved; pour into a large mixing bowl. Chill, stirring often, until beginning to thicken. Fold in the egg whites, then the cream. Turn into individual serving bowls. Chill until set — it will not be firm enough to unmold. Makes 8 servings.

Abby's Rules For Rearing Children

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I know the libraries are full of books on the subjects, but you seem able to put so much into a few words. What makes some kids good and some bad? In other words, is there a formula for raising good kids? Is it heredity or environment?

TRYING HARD

DEAR TRYING: That battle has been going on for a long time, but I'm inclined to be on the side of environment.

All kids need discipline. ("Discipline" does not mean punishment; it means "teaching.") Kids need to know how far they can go. And they don't really want everything they ask for.

Reward them when they're good, and deprive them of something they enjoy when they misbehave.

I don't believe in hitting a child. A little slap on the wrist (just enough to hurt his dignity) is all right. However, hitting a child hard enough to hurt him physically may rid you of YOUR hostilities, but it will only teach the child that violence is the answer to all conflicts.

Don't ever tell a child he's "bad." If he misbehaves, tell him you do not like what he DID; don't tell him you don't

Substituting Margarine Is Not Enough

By AL ROSSITER JR.

UPI Science Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Substituting a margarine, salad or cooking oil for butter or other sources of saturated fats helps a diet designed to reduce cholesterol levels in your blood, a doctor's newsletter reports.

But The Medical Letter said merely replacing butter with a margarine while maintaining an otherwise high-fat, high-calorie intake does little to help reduce cholesterol levels.

"Lowering of markedly elevated blood cholesterol levels by diet is generally considered desirable, even though it remains to be proven that such a reduction decreases the risk of coronary heart disease," the nonprofit publication said in a recent report.

About 40 per cent of all fat consumed in the United States comes from foods that contain fat as the sole or principal ingredient, such as margarine, shortening, butter, lard, salad and cooking oils, mayonnaise and salad dressings.

Coconut oil, palm oil and the fats of beef, pork and lamb contain large amounts of saturated fatty acids. The fatty acids of soybean, cottonseed, safflower seed, corn and olive oils and poultry and fish are predominately unsaturated.

The Medical Letter said processing of margarines, salad oils and dressings for commercial use often alters the fatty acid composition.

"Therefore, the selection of a margarine, for example, for inclusion in a cholesterol-lowering diet should be based on the number of calories, cholesterol, saturated and polyunsaturated fatty acids in the final product," the newsletter said.

The Medical Letter also said that margarines sold in a stick that holds its shape at room temperature usually contain a relatively low proportion of polyunsaturated acids. When a larger amount of liquid oil is used to increase the proportion of polyunsaturated acids in a margarine, it cannot be formed into a stable stick and is usually packaged in a bowl or tub.

But not all soft or tub margarines are formed this way. The Medical Letter said "diet" margarines may be soft because they contain large amounts of water.

like HIM.
Give a child lots of love, and when he comes to you with a confession, don't be too hard on him.

DEAR ABBY: Another guy and I have shared an apartment for three years. (I'll call him Bob.) We're both adults and don't depend on our parents for financial aid, but Bob is still afraid of his mother. Or maybe I should say he's afraid of hurting her feelings, so he lies to her.

She's very religious, and so was Bob until he left home, but he hardly ever goes to church anymore.

What should I say when Bob's mother calls here on Sunday morning and asks me if her son is home from church yet?

Sometimes he doesn't even come home to sleep on Saturday night, but I can't tell his mother that.

I wish Bob would tell his mother the truth and get it over with, but he can't seem to do it. In the meantime I have to lie for him. So what's the solution?

HATES TO LIE

DEAR HATES: You don't HAVE to lie. You're not obligated to give Bob's mother any information. When she phones, tell her her son is out and you'll ask him to return her call when he returns.

DEAR ABBY: I am not a vain man, but I'm only 29 and I'm rapidly losing my hair. I suppose I could consider a hairpiece, but I'd rather keep what hair I have if it's at all possible.

I've heard that taking female hormones can prevent baldness in men. It makes sense to me because you never see any bald women.

Have you ever heard of men taking female hormones to prevent baldness? Can it be dangerous? If it's okay, will I need a prescription to get it?

GOING BALD

DEAR GOING: Baldness is hereditary. And my consultants tell me that if men start monkeying around with female hormones, they'll have to start making brassieres in men's sizes. And yes, you DO need a prescription for it, so the word from here is to forget it.

Hyman-Mozingo Vows Solemnized On Friday

MRS. CRAWFORD EUGENE HYMAN

TARBORO — Miss Sally Jo Mozingo and Crawford Eugene Hyman were united in marriage Friday at 7:30 in the evening in a private ceremony at the First Baptist Church.

The Rev. Monte Bishop performed the double ring ceremony. A program of organ music was presented by Michael Edmondson of Bethel.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Fred Lee Mozingo Sr. of Greenville, and the late Mr. Mozingo. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carlton E. Hyman of Tarboro.

Immediately following the ceremony, the mother of the bride entertained at a reception in the fellowship hall of the church. Receiving guests were Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Satterwaite.

Mrs. J.C. Carlisle and Mrs. William H. Gray assisted in serving. Good-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Richard C. Hux.

The bride is a nursing student at Pitt Technical Institute and the bridegroom is engaged in farming. Following a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside at Rt. 4, Tarboro.

Birthday Dinner Held Saturday

GRIFTON — On Saturday Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Rakestraw entertained at their home at a 'pig picking' for family and friends on the occasion of their daughter, Julie Anna's first birthday.

Guests included her maternal grandparents, Dr. and Mrs. Jesse McDaniel, grandmothers, Mrs. Anna McDaniel, Mrs. Erma Perry, Mr. and Mrs. Eldridge Thigpen, Doyle Thigpen, Mr. and Mrs. Don Wilcox, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Boykin, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Gay, Allen McDaniel, Lloyd Allen Butler, Stephen Butler, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Lamb.

ONE DRAWBACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — The city Department of Consumer Affairs estimates that members of food co-ops can save as much as 33 per cent of the cost of some foods. A spokesman also said there is an apparently high casualty rate among such stores; most do not offer a complete line of food, and all depend on time and work volunteered by members.

Cooking Is Fun Engagement Announced

MARYLAND CHOWDER
A slightly revised version of a good quick recipe.

- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1/4 cup finely chopped onion
- 1/2 cup thinly sliced celery
- 2 cans (each 10 1/2 ounces) condensed cream of potato soup
- Milk
- 1 can (8 ounces) minced clams, undrained
- 1 can (6 1/2 ounces) chunky light tuna, drained
- 1 can (8 ounces) sliced tomatoes, undrained
- Pepper to Taste

In a medium saucepan gently cook together until softened, stirring often, the butter, onion and celery. Stir in the soup just as it comes from the cans; fill 1 can with milk and the other can with water and add. Add clams, tuna, tomatoes and pepper. Heat, stirring often. Makes 6 generous servings.

MISS DEBORAH DARLENE GARRIS . . . is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Peele Garriss of Rt. 1, Fountain, who announce her engagement to James Michael Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Ray Brown of Rt. 1, Colerain. The wedding will take place Dec. 19.

Face Being 40 With A Smile

By LILLIAN O'CONNELL
UPI Life-Style Editor

Ever since Judith Viorst left home, "a nice middle-class girl from New Jersey planning to live a life of wild abandon in Greenwich Village, with roches and bullfighter prints and my mother calling every day to tell me 'whatever you're doing, don't do it,'" she has been chronicling her life and "the lives of an awful lot of women like me" in books of lighthearted poetry.

Her latest book, "How Did I Get to Be 40 and Other Atrocities," (Simon and Schuster) takes a look at the decade of "the sagging kneecap and upper eyelid droop."

The earlier books are "The Village Square," "It's Hard to Be Hip Over 30 and Other Tragedies of Married Life," and "People and Other Aggravations."

"Each decade in a woman's life is a milestone that requires dealing with," Mrs. Viorst said in an interview. "You don't just sort of slide into them. You give up certain things; you come into your own in certain ways."

She feels 40 is a little more difficult to deal with because "a lot of things tend to get kind of fixed."

"When you're 40 there are things that you put away forever. Really put away forever. Even when you're 30 you can probably go to medical school if you really decided that you wanted to be a brain surgeon. At 40, that whole kind of open-ended feeling about life is simply not there any more. "You will never read all the books, go to all the places, become the president of the United States or a love goddess or a tennis star because those things are over."

Today the wife of political writer Milton Viorst, her mother's fears that she would marry "somebody of a different race, color or creed that would give her at least a heart attack," went unfounded. The couple live in Washington, D.C., with their three sons, Anthony, 15, Nicholas, 13, and Alexander, 9 — "all jocks," interested only in sports.

While her poems zero in with hilarious accuracy on life's foibles, Mrs. Viorst, an ultrachic woman with a warm personality, is quick to point out that she doesn't "go bouncing through life chuckling."

"I tend to see things sadly and then to deal with them humorously at some point."

And being in your 40s isn't all down hill, she said. "A woman in her 40s enjoys the knowledge that she is a very specific person — less narcissistic and more generous than she was earlier in life."

There is a mid-life crisis, not only for women but for men, Mrs. Viorst said, "a time of self-confrontation, reassessment — some kind of genuine knowledge that you're not immortal."

The women's movement has helped American women to better define themselves outside of men-women relations, she said, but she thinks that aging is still more of a problem for women and that it really becomes an issue when they get into their 40s.

One reason for this is that sexuality is probably tied more to youth here than in other countries, Mrs. Viorst said. Men, she feels, "can more easily parlay power, charm, intelligence and money into sexuality than women can, so that if they're not attractive and if they're aging, they can seduce with these other qualities."

"When women are not attractive, they can be powerful, smart, charming, but it is hard to translate that into sexual terms," she said. "Somebody said a woman who looked like Henry Kissinger would not make out as well as Henry Kissinger. They meant sexually, and I think that's correct."

Mrs. Viorst, who has been married for 16 years and readily admits that her own "conspiratorial powers are very poor," doesn't think having an affair bolsters a marriage.

"What I really think people ought to do is not get married until they are 30 — that they ought to have interesting, varied, good relationships with other people. Then they ought to settle down and stay faithful."

"I think what we see is an awful lot of women in their 40s who got married young, who never had a relationship with another man, who are really feeling, my God, if I don't do it now nobody will want me in a few years. Or they don't do it, but they feel this kind of almost sexual rage and disappointment that they've missed something. "I think some women can come to terms with that, but for some women it is really a sense of loss, particularly since the period of the 60s. They watch their young daughters doing things that their mother would have killed them if they did."

Mrs. Viorst, who does a monthly column for Redbook magazine, doesn't feel marriage is outdated. "Marriage is something that can hold you together during periods of unlove while you work it out."

She also feels men need the security of marriage as much as women. "I really don't think men are a different breed — mere tom cats, emotionally shallow, uncaring. I think that they need to know that there's somebody that they can absolutely count on to love them and be there just as women do, and I think that's very nice. That the need is mutual."

Junior Club Women Hold Business Meet

The November meeting of the Junior Women's Club of Greenville was held Wednesday night at First Federal.

Ann Lichtfeld, Home Life Department chairperson, led the program entitled "Cast the First Stone." Each member painted a stone as a reminder by the telephone to not cast the first stone. Prizes for the most original and prettiest stones went to Lou McNamee and Betty Wilkerson.

Eight new members were installed into the club by acting Membership Chairperson Katherine Gary. They were: Donna Blash; Trudy Bowen; Mary Carraway; Elaine Gilbert; Lee Masten; Carol Maxon; Gail McClung; and Vickie Waggoner.

President Karen Collier crowned Dianne White "Queen for the Night" for all the outstanding work done and hours spent for the club.

Mrs. Collier reminded members of the mini-bazaar workshops being held next week in preparation of the Public Affairs Mini-Bazaar Nov. 20. Mid-Year Board Meeting is Nov. 15-16 in Wilmington.

Guests attending the meeting were Bedie Hester, Deborah Shaw and Jan Danson.

Hostesses for the meeting were Libby Swinson Linda Threewits, Mary Lehman, and Betty Wilkerson. The devotional was given by Brenda Whichard.

On The Young Side

By JANET GANTT

After climatic Homecoming ceremonies, Rose High students found it difficult to settle down to their regular activities.

To conclude all Homecoming honors, the senior class floatwon the first place award, the Art Club garnered second place, and third place in the float competitions went to the elated sophomores. The students were able to acquire some rest during the week after when the teachers had a work day on Friday and students did not go to school.

However, not all students enjoyed a day of rest Friday. Many volunteered to work at various chores during the North Carolina Association of Educators meeting held at Rose High. Ellis Banks, Rose High chemistry teacher and president of the Greenville NCAE, directed several students who assisted by parking cars and ushering visiting teachers unfamiliar with Rose to their proper meeting rooms.

Helpful members of the Keywanettes were also available during the morning. The club sponsored a coffee and doughnut sale.

Key Club members aided in constructing some of the exhibits for the affair. Exhibit work began in earnest Thursday afternoon to prepare Elm Street Gym for the next day's activities.

The week could have been named Teachers' Week as the Keywanettes also gave the Rose High faculty a Halloween party Thursday afternoon. Decorated in a Halloween fashion, the school cafeteria had a delightful atmosphere for the affair. The serving table were covered with Jack O'Lantern cloths and refreshments consisted of Halloween cake and candies. Orange aide was served as a beverage.

School Jackets

School jacket sales got underway this week. Student Government representatives were selling the coats before school and during the lunch period. The jackets are light blue sweat-shirt type pull-overs featuring a Rose High signet in an upper corner.

Some of Rose High's finest musicians traveled to Raleigh Thursday to audition for a spot in North Carolina's All-State Orchestra. Competing from Rose were Serena Matney, Jennifer O'Neal, Dan Nelson, Pam Bath, and Jim Kittrell. Final selections will be announced Thanksgiving. Best of luck to our Rose contestants.

Recently, the Future Business Leaders of America and the Industrial Arts Club received awards for booths presented at the county fair. Second place went to the FBLA for their booth dealing with the future of office workers. The Industrial Arts Club received first place for their exhibition featuring a theme on solar energy.

Seniors and juniors planning to attend college or technical school following high school graduation are reminded of Opportunities' Day Tuesday. Secondary institutions. Students will be excused from from approximately 100 schools school in the afternoon to discuss from eastern North Carolina will different possibilities with many attend the event in Elm Street representatives from post-Gym.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Remember those wonderful people who brought you the "Pet Rock" in time for Christmas giving last year?

Well, they're back again and this time it's the Sand Breeding kit. This one contains two glass test tubes filled with "male" and "female" sand, along with a fully-illustrated, easy-to-read training manual.

The manual gives you "how to" hints on how to get your sand to breed and grow a beach, a desert, hard-to-fill landfill, kitty litter, or filler for hotel ashtrays.

Have you ever wondered what it would be like day after day to sell these faddies? It could make a real yo-yo out of you.

I interviewed a salesperson at one of the local gift shops that carries a complete line of these mind blowers.

"How are the pet rocks moving?" I asked her.

"They slowed up a bit after Christmas," she said, "but the Stud rocks are going well."

"How do the Stud rocks work?" I asked.

"How would a Stud rock work?" she said disgustedly. "It mates and has pebbles. Then, there are the Horny stones, complete with booklet."

"I don't want to see it. What's this kit all about?"

She showed me a glass bowl, complete with sand and rocks. "This is our invisible goldfish bowl. Hey, I wouldn't put my finger in that bowl. It contains the invisible piranha." Instinctively, I pulled my hand out of the bowl and felt like a fool.

"This is new this year. It's called the Dinosaur Eggs."

"Where?"

"Here in the nest. You have to sit on 'em for 118 hours before they hatch. Oh, and these are good this year — the Miracle Rocks. They change color with your mood like the rings did last year."

As I walked toward the door, I discovered something. I was smiling and had been all during the conversation. For a few minutes, I had forgotten about U.S. foreign policy, busing, abortion, my son's report card, natural disasters, and the way my car shook when I got it up to 35 mph. Would I pay $3, $4, or even $5 for this ridiculous instant joke? Absolutely not. It was silly. I'm a full-grown, mature woman with more regard for money than that.

Besides, when my pet rock ran away from home last year I got stuck with a jump suit and a water bed for it!

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day which has interchangeably good and difficult aspects and you find that you would be wise in conscientiously handling whatever details arise to claim your attention. Be careful and exact about money matters.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Plan time for regular Sunday duties and then study monetary affairs well for the future. Read your paper well and know what is happening. Home is best bet in evening.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Talk over with an expert some experience of a personal nature you cannot cope with. Attend a social affair where you are able to meet interesting persons. Avoid a known troublemaker.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You have puzzling personal affairs that need handling, but first think them out carefully. Try to understand a loved one better and be happier. Think constructively.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Try to help others who have been good to you in the past. Study your own desires and know what they actually are. Make the evening a happy one from a social standpoint.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Good day for getting into charitable work that will add to your present prestige within the community in which you reside. Seek the assistance you need from a bigwig.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Contact someone who can give you the information you need at this time. You can deepen friendships today and turn acquaintances into friends, but you have to take the initiative.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Use your intuition more now so that it can lead you in the right direction. Try to be more consistent with your mate and have greater harmony between you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Ideal day to think over what is expected of you by any associates, either in business or public life, and plan how to please them more. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Plan your social activities early so that they will work out fine later. Use your finest talents and make a good impression on others. Be careful with money tonight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Know exactly what is expected of you by a loved one and change your attitude so that more happiness ensues. Handle creative ideas more intelligently. Avoid a constant nagger.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Plan how to become more successful in your daily life, career work. Don't let talents become stagnant. An influential person could give you more backing, if you handle properly now.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Think over new ideas on how to work more harmoniously with co-workers. Data you need that has been difficult to get can now be yours.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will have a practical mind and should have a good business education. Include spiritual and ethical teachings also for a well-balanced life. More than usual care with the diet is important here early, too. Teach self-control early.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, NOV. 8, 1976

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Delays are now in effect and you would be wise to be as patient as possible in the handling of your special interests. You are under good influences for using new forms of expression.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Make sure you handle business matters wisely early in the day. Make constructive plans for the future. Be logical.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You have fine ideas now and should follow through on them without delay. Listen to what a clever newcomer has to suggest.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Give further attention to a personal matter that is important to your welfare. Come to a better understanding with your mate.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Gain the cooperation of good friends and don't get tied up in anything of a monetary nature. Keep alert.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Concentrate more on civic and career matters now and less on the personal side of life. Think along constructive lines.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Don't let any chances in a financial matter of long standing. Study a new outlet, carefully before making an important decision.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Handle important business obligations you have early in the day. Later good friends can be of assistance to you. Think objectively.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Try to cooperate more with an associate and get excellent results. Sidelstep a higher-up who is not in a good mood today.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Find a better system for handling work at hand. Stop going around in circles so much. Use a more direct approach.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Make plans early for recreation you wish to engage in later today. Being more reasonable with mate brings fine results now.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Strive for increased harmony in the home. Take a new attitude in an important business matter and get excellent results.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Talk over with associates how to improve a situation that is important to you. Obtain the data you need from the right sources.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be very practical but needs to be taught ethics early in life. Your progeny will have good creative ideas that will lead to a successful life. Give as fine an education as you can afford. Don't neglect religion.

Trials Of A Guest Star In The USSR

By HOWARD A. TYNER

MOSCOW (UPI) — It was one of those moments, Grace Bumbry recalled, that can give a prima donna an ulcer.

The occasion was her Moscow debut with the Bolshoi Opera company, before a 6,000-strong audience in the cavernous Palace of Congresses inside the Kremlin walls.

Verdi's "Don Carlos" was the opera and Miss Bumbry, singing Princess Eboli — one of her best-known roles — stood left-center on stage. The Verdi libretto called at that point for another soprano, as Elizabeth, to ask for a cross being held by the princess.

"The cross is big, about a foot long, and is clipped to the front of my costume," Miss Bumbry explained later, her long arms going through the same motions at the front of her yellow dress.

"I had that cross unclipped, ready to give it to Elizabeth when she asked. But then I noticed she was too far away for me to hand it to her."

"I was singing with one part of my brain and thinking with the other: Shall I walk to her or is she going to come here? Then it didn't matter."

"Next thing I knew she sang right past that part without even asking for the cross. There I was with it left in my hand and no one to give it to."

What Miss Bumbry did was conceal the cross in a flowing white scarf for the rest of the scene until she could make her exit.

"Elizabeth never did get around to asking for it," she told an interviewer. "I ended up giving the cross to the dressing room attendant."

Miss Bumbry, a native of St. Louis, with more than 100 Metropolitan Opera performances behind her, is enough of a professional to save such a situation on stage and laugh at it later.

But she admitted that cuts and changes of opera scores as presented by different companies confronted her with one of the biggest of many problems during a four-opera tour of the Soviet Union in early October.

"That 'Don Carlos' we did in Moscow, that could only be described as the 'Moscow version,'" she said, eyes rolling in mock horror. "There's the five-act version, the four-act version and now I've done the Moscow version."

"There was music in there that I had never heard before and I know that opera backwards as well as forwards."

Waiting in the stage wings, but having practiced only her own parts with the rest of the cast, Miss Bumbry said, she heard one of parts of the "Don Carlos" score that was new to her.

"You get clocked, timed, ready to go on a certain cue and then you hear something that shouldn't be there. Maybe they've changed the order of things or used music everyone else has thrown out from the original," she said.

"It's really disconcerting. You say to yourself, 'Hey, am I in the wrong theater, or what?'"

Miss Bumbry, invited by the Bolshoi to make four appearances in the Soviet Union, faced the usual difficulties with room reservations ("they didn't seem to exist") and restaurant service ("that really doesn't exist") that confound many

She avoided one problem that often bedevils guest performers by bringing her own costumes for the three roles she sang. But still there was the language barrier and rehearsals.

"Rehearsals? Really, there just weren't any," she said. "When I came to the Palace of Congresses to sing 'Don Carlos' it was the first time I had laid eyes on the place. The stage, the sets, the whole arrangements. And that was my Moscow debut."

She had two brief practice sessions, one along with the orchestra director and a pianist, another with the main cast — seated in a recital hall at the old Bolshoi building.

"We worked through my parts up in that room in the crew's nest of the Bolshoi," Miss Bumbry said. "There was a translator and I could ask about this and that cut. But, of course, I know the music. But what about the curtain drops, the microphones? That you just have to remember."

How then, does it work on the night of the performance? A stage official — again speaking through a translator — stood with her in the wings at the start of each act.

"He would point out where I was to enter, where other singers were coming and going. Then he sort of shoves you out there with a smile and the rest is up to you."

As if the cut problem weren't enough, there was also the Russian language. Opera in this country is sung in Russian, regardless of the composition's origin. The guest star usually sings in Italian or German.

Thus, in "Don Carlos" Miss Bumbry ended up at several points standing back-to-back with another singer in an ear-bending Italian-Russian duet.

"Bother me? No, you just learn to tune out. I know the opera, so I know what they should be singing at that time. You can follow."

"But in a way it's disconcerting as a professional. Timing is so essential, this gesture, that movement. You are supposed to be an actor, to react, but you may be reacting to the wrong syllable. It may be you are a beat ahead or behind. Worst of all, you never know."

'Dropout' Term Called Unfair

By KENNETH L. WHITING SINGAPORE (AP) — Principals and teachers have been asked to stop using the term "dropout" for students unable to finish their primary schooling because it is "derogatory, cruel and unfair," says the Education Ministry here.

Instead of using "dropout," they've been told to try "pre-mature school leaver."

The Ministry itself has often used dropout when referring to students who failed the Primary School Leaving Exam (PSLE). Students must obtain a passing grade on this test to enter high school.

The semantic change came about after Law and Environment Minister E. W. Barker suggested in a speech that a "psychosis of fear" of manual labor might spread among Singapore youth with too frequent use of the word dropout.

"By using the term dropout in this negative way, we are by definition underscoring and confirming the sense of inferiority that such students may already have developed," Barker said.

Young people should not feel guilty or useless for not having graduated, he asserted.

Not everybody agreed that dropout should be replaced by premature school leaver, however.

"The new dubbing does not make any difference at all. It still gives the same connotation of a dropout," said Dr. Nalla Tan, associate professor at the University of Singapore's department of social medicine and public health.

Mrs. Florence Lee, a secretary, said, "I know of many intelligent children who had to leave school halfway because of their family background or other financial problems. Do you call them school dropouts when they never asked for it?" she asked.

A distinctive label isn't necessary for those who leave before graduation, according to one primary school principal.

"It is not important and failing the PSLE or dropping out of school midway is not the end of the road for a child," he said.

"What is more important is to ensure that he is placed in a trade or skill to which he is inclined without making him feel inferior."

A new approach will soon require students who fail the PSLE three times to be enrolled in a "basic four" course in which they are to study reading, writing and arithmetic before entering the Junior Training Scheme to acquire an industrial trade.

Homemaker Can Enjoy Feast If Starting Early

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — During the coming holidays the harried homemaker can prepare the bird and eat it too, claims Michigan State University foods specialist Marilyn Mook.

By beginning a few days early the cook can relax and enjoy the meal along with the guests.

Begin by defrosting the turkey, chopping the bread for dressing and making and freezing the rolls. The day before mix the dry ingredients for dressing, make and roll out the pie dough and cook the potatoes.

On the holiday morning bake the pie, prepare the stuffing and begin roasting the turkey. Make the salad and refrigerate it in a plastic bag and cook the sweet potatoes.

At the last minute heat the rolls, mash the potatoes, make the gravy, carve the turkey and smile.

Schoolboy's Dream: Sandy Beach And A Wrecked Ship

COPENHAGEN (AP) — It was every schoolboy's dream come true. A sandy beach and a wrecked ship — packed with gold coins.

A Danish schoolboy, Jesper Egersoe, 16, found the ship — not on some palm-fringed coral strand, but right at home in Denmark.

His find won the amateur archeologist local fame and a reward.

Jesper found the remains of a 14th-century trading vessel in the water near his family's summer cottage on the west coast of the island of Zealand while diving with a simple mask and snorkel. In the summer of 1975 he fished up an antique pewter plate, which he sent to the Danish National Museum. This summer he made the big catch — 94 gold coins.

To keep away vandals, Jesper kept his find a secret, except for telling his parents and the National Museum, which sent professional searchers to the spot. They found a further 16 coins, pewter plates, part of a bronze cooking pot, sailcloth and some textiles.

There were remains of animal bones, possibly from the last meal for the crew before the ship foundered on the Danish coast near the Skaggerak. It was probably on its way to the Baltic for trading.

Archeologists identified the coins as English nobles minted in the reign of Edward III (1327-77). There were 74 nobles, 30 halves and four quarters. None was from the time of Edward's successor, Richard II, making the wreck at least 600 years old. There was one gold gulden from Luebeck, Germany and a silver coin from Flanders, Belgium.

At the time they were minted the gold nobles would have bought 450 cows — a fortune for those times. Experts valued the coins at present day prices at about $100,000.

The ship was a kogge, or sailing barge, 45 to 60 feet in length. It was lost between Tisvildeleje and Raageleje on the west coast of Zealand. The exact location of the wreck is still a secret as the National Museum hopes to raise the wreck and they don't want anybody tinkering with it. The plan depends on raising money as neither the Museum nor the Maritime Museum of historic ships at Roskilde have enough funds.

Jesper used only a mask and snorkel for his search. But now he plans to buy a real scuba outfit with part of his finder's reward. The Museum awarded him $2,450. They said he deserved more, but that was all they could afford. Jesper said he was content, although he would have liked to keep just one gold coin as a souvenir.

He said he was first attracted to the area when he found the pewter plate. He took a look at the ribs of what local people said was the wreck of a fishing boat. But when he saw wooden nails in the ribs, he knew he was looking at an ancient vessel. He dived and dived, scraping at the sand for the first time he was able to stay under. Then his fingers touched the first gold coin. He rushed home with it, clutching it to his stomach so people on the beach would not see it. Next day he went back and retrieved another 93 coins.

Submarine archeologist Ole Crumlin-Pedersen hurried to the spot after Jesper's tip. He and his assistants pretended to be tourists camping on the beach while they searched for more treasure.

The National Museum recently opened a special exhibition of "Treasure from Sea." Jesper and his parents were honored guests at the opening and he was ceremoniously presented with his reward check.

November 2, 1976

Dear Bill,

As proud residents of Lake Ellsworth we decided to share with you, the developer, some of the pleasurable community activities that make our neighborhood such a fun place to live.

As you know the residents formed a civic association that has become very active. We have enjoyed such things as a day of family water olympics this summer, a community pig-picking this fall, a Halloween party for the children and many other special functions. The association has also formed a garden club and an exercise club. We publish a monthly newsletter and our most recent accomplishment was the publication of a community directory, a copy of which you will find enclosed.

The association has many other activities planned. We have various steering committees established to determine our different needs not only social functions, but any other pursuits that may enhance the community in which we live.

On an individual basis as well as a community basis we have enjoyed utilizing the club house and other recreational facilities offered here.

We have lived in Lake Ellsworth for a little over two years and the entire time has been a progressively enjoyable experience for our family, an experience we wanted to share with you.

Sincerely,

Allen + Nikki

SHOWTIME

For The Week Of November 7-13, 1976

'Gone With The Wind' Will Make Its TV Debut Sunday Night On NBC

IMMORTAL LOVERS—Clark Gable stars as Rhett Butler and Vivien Leigh as Scarlett O'Hara whose love affair is a predominant theme in the 1939 classic, "Gone With The Wind," to be colorcast in two parts—as a "Big Event" Sunday, Nov. 7 (8-11 p.m.) and Monday, Nov. 8 (8-10 p.m.) on NBC Channels 6-7.

Filming Emotional Job

Filming on the actual sites where the shocking events of Sept. 22, 1972, took place during the Olympics in Munich, Germany, when Arab terrorists invaded the Olympic Village, had a disturbing effect on both the cast and crew, says William Holden.

The events which began in the early hours of Sept. 5 ended with the deaths of 17 persons: 11 Israelis, five guerillas and one West German.

Holden, who stars as Police Chief Manfred Schreiber in "21 Hours at Munich," a dramatic recreation airing as "The ABC Sunday Night Movie," Nov. 7, 9 to 11 p.m., on Channel 3-5-12, says, "Professionally, we were there to recreate that particular time and we were grateful for the realism and the accuracy. Emotionally, we were in awe of being on the actual sites.

"The first night that I went to 31 Connollystrasse my imagination went wild. Like a camera, my mind panned around and I felt as though I were reliving the entire time," he says.

Holden has played living persons before, but this was the first time that his real life counterpart was a frequent visitor to the set.

"Dr. Schreiber (he has a Doctor of Laws degree) could have been critical but he wasn't," Holden says, adding, "He had, of course, read and approved the script."

"Gone With The Wind," the panoramic Civil War drama, will have its much anticipated television premiere this week. Colorcast in two parts as a "Big Event," it will air Sunday, Nov. 7 (8 to 11 p.m.), and Monday, Nov. 8 (8 to 10 p.m.) on NBC Ch. 6-7-28.

Volumes of material have appeared since the movie was made almost 40 years ago — about the stars, Clark Gable, Vivien Leigh, Leslie Howard, Olivia de Havilland and Hattie McDaniel — about the actual production of the film, and behind-the scene stories that are too numerous to count.

However, little, if anything, has been written about what could be one of the most important qualities of 'GWTW' to a Southerner — the southern accent so effectively acquired by the cast. True, they were all accomplished in the drama field, but other equally well-qualified actors have fallen far short when it comes to saying "Y'all" 'southern style.'

Credit for the 'authentic' accent heard in 'GWTW' goes to a journalist from Ga., Susan Myrick, who became technical advisor at the request of authoress Margaret Mitchell.

"Susan is the youngest child of a Confederate soldier and God knows she's heard enough about the good old days," Ms. Mitchell wrote producer David O. Selznick. "But the main thing that recommends her to me is her common sense and utter lack of sentimentality about 'The Old South.'"

Thus it became Susan Myrick's duty to see that the actors laced the dialogue with enough inflections and cadences of Southern speech to capture the flavor of the South. After each take, director Victor Fleming would turn to her and ask: "Okay for Dixie?" If she said it was not, the take was usually reshot. The worst offenders were Gable and Howard.

Gable had no ear for accents; Susan tried without success to get rid of his Midwestern 'r' by getting him to repeat such phonetic tongue-twisters as "Ah cain't afford a foah doah Foah-d." She would go over each scene with him before shooting, but then in the effort of concentrating on the scene, the accent, was usually forgotten.

Howard also forgot due to intense concentration and, when the director called "Action" the lines would come flowing out in his smooth English diction. "Mr. Howard," reminded Susan, "please don't say 'bean,' remember it's 'bin.'"

Ms. Mitchell warned Selznick that the accents had better be right or not be there at all, because Southerners were tired of "the bogus Southern talk they have heard on the stage and screen so often."

Future Shows Previewed

Throughout the past several months, the main thrust of the television industry was to prepare voters to choose their political candidates wisely — through debates, discussions, interviews, special reports and on-the-spot coverage. Now that the elections are past, broadcasters are now endeavoring to provide you with a broad array of programs to satisfy your other interests.

With the younger viewers in mind — as well as the more 'seasoned' viewers — here is a list of programs created especially for them. Among the list are not only old, familiar favorites, but also a wealth of fresh, new programs from which can be gleaned enriching experiences.

This week, for instance, are two afternoon shows — NBC's "Big Henry and the Polka Dot Kid" and "P. J. and the President's Son." Big Henry' is a drama of an orphan boy who loves and protects his uncle's blind dog, and 'P. J.' is a modern-day "Prince and the Pauper."

The following week, two movies air — "Sybil," the true case history of a woman with 16 personalities, and "Sister Aimee," which focuses on an episode in the life of controversial evangelist Aimee Semple McPherson. Also of interest to the younger set is "Davy Crockett on the Mississippi," airing on "Famous Classic Tales" Saturday, Nov. 21.

An NBC Religious Special, "Food For All" explores the food shortage due to the increase in the world population Sunday, Nov. 21, and that evening viewers are in for a treat when "The First Fifty Years" airs. The special, with Orson Wells and Gene Kelly as key participants, honors NBC's 50 years of broadcasting.

"A Charlie Brown Thanksgiving" and "Carnival of the Animals" will be seen the following evening. Noted conductor Michael Tilson Thomas conducts Saint-Saens work in the partially animated special, "Carnival." Also, that same date, will be "Johnny, We Hardly Knew Ye," the drama about John F. Kennedy's early years in politics.

Little folks (big folk, too) will enjoy "Winnie the Pooh and Tigger Too," the animated version of A. A. Milne's children's classic, which will be broadcast Thanksgiving evening. Later that night is "Sills and Burnett at the Met," which features Beverly Sills and Carol Burnett in concert.

The month's special programming ends with a colossal tribute to John Wayne with the "John Wayne Special." The veteran film star will receive tributes from other great performers, including Frank Sinatra. Also, there will be highlights from Wayne's film career flashed on the small screen.

So, as you see, there's a vast amount of entertainment scheduled for November. And it's yours — if you stay at home and enjoy it.

Begins New Season

ABC News' award-winning Public Affairs series, "Directions," begins its fourth quarter programming this week, continuing with the "Conscience of America" theme saluting the nation's Bicentennial. ABC-TV's Sid Darion, recently announced,

"The central concept of the 'Conscience of America' theme is that each person can take a stand and affect the society in which he or she lives and indeed has the responsibility to do so,"

Darion said.

The edition of "Directions" airing Sunday, Nov. 7, 12:30 to 1 p.m., is "Hearings on Justice — The Catholic Church Responds," will feature filmed highlights of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops' hearing on racial and ethnic problems in the U.S. held in Newark, N. J., earlier this year, and various filmed segments from the recent National Assembly of American Bishops in Detroit, Michigan.

Mouseketeers Guest Star On Walt Disney

"The New Mickey Mouse Club," gives Donald Duck's nephews, Huey, Dewey and Louie, something to shout about when "Happy Birthday Donald Duck" airs on "The Wonderful World of Disney," Sunday, Nov. 7, at 7 p.m., on NBC Ch. 6-7-28.

To celebrate his own birthday, Donald decides to throw a party complete with home movies featuring his favorite star — himself. Having seen Donald's cartoons time and time again, Huey, Dewey and Louie foil their uncle's plans and send him on a wild duck chase.

With Donald out of the house, the nephews quickly grab their mouse ears and rush to the TV set to turn on "The New Mickey Mouse Club." What they see is a sneak peek of the all-color show that is scheduled to be released nationwide through syndication beginning Jan., 1977.

After the brand new animated Mickey Mouse Club March, the twelve talented youngsters chosen to fill the shoes (and ears) of the former Mouseketeers introduce themselves. The "new Mice" are: Billy "Pope" Attmore, 11; Scott Craig, 12; Nita Dee (Benita Di Giampolo) 10, Mindy Feldman, 8; Angel Florez, 13; Allison Fonte, 12; Shawnte Northcutte, 11; Kelly Parsons, 12; Julie Peikarski, 12; Todd Turquand, 11; Lisa Whelchel, 13; Curtis Wong, 14.

The numbers performed by the Mouseketeers give an indication of what's in store for the new club — a contemporary look and sound that's hard to beat.

In the "Discovery Day" production number, the kids sing and dance their way through three decades of pop music, from the swing of the '60s, to the DISCOvery of the '70s.

And a new craze is bound to take the nation by storm as the Mouseketeers unveil the "Mousekedance." To paraphrase the lyrics, "you can feel the beat now, right down to your feet now!"

If the reaction of Huey, Dewey and Louie are any indication, then it's pretty obvious that "The New Mickey Mouse Club" will be a hit among children and ducks of all ages!

Lifestyles Switched

"P. J. & the President's Son," a contemporary drama paralleling the Mark Twain classic, "The Prince and the Pauper," airs Wednesday, Nov. 10, 4:30 to 5:30 p.m., as a delightfully intriguing "ABC Afterschool Specials" presentation.

"This is the story of two boys who realize secret wishes," said

Squire D. Rushnell, Vice President, Children's Programs, ABC Entertainment. "P. J., the son of a middle class Washington, D.C., family, and Preston, the son of a President of the United States, switch places for a few days after a chance encounter reveals that they are exact look-alikes."

Neither youngster expects the swirl of controversy that will surround them while impersonating each other, but the situations are happily resolved with each boy learning the value of free speech, and that the "grass is not always greener" on the other side of the fence.

Lance Kerwin, who has appeared in four previous "ABC Afterschool Specials," stars in the dual roles as both boys.

To insure authenticity of detail in the White House scenes, Jack Ford, son of President Gerald R. Ford, acted as consultant for the program, which was produced by Emmy Award-winning Danny Wilson.

Also appearing in "P. J. & the President's Son" are Irene Redrow as P. J.'s grandmother, Larry Haddon as Mr. Nolan, and Robert Miller Driscoll as Piccard, an aide to Preston.

Lynn Redgrave Discusses Her Roles And Images

"I've been a hooker in a biographical film about a New York madam; played a score of roles in which I was not exactly unattractive, but then not really appealing either, including a fat girl on Broadway; and now I'm making my dramatic debut on American television as a heroin addict going 'cold turkey.'"

So says Lynn Redgrave, a devoted mother, lovely wife, and one of the two successful daughters — the other being Vanessa — in the distinguished British acting family headed by Sir Michael Redgrave. Miss Redgrave's television debut occurs on an episode of "Kojak," Sunday, Nov. 7, 9 to 10 p.m., on CBS Ch. 9-11.

"I've done all sorts of films both here and in Europe," she notes, "and all the relatives were mildly enthusiastic about each film role, but calmness prevailed. I did lots of stage work, but it was expected, you see, since ours is a theatrical family.

"There wasn't even much of a ripple when I conquered Broadway in 'My Fat Friend' two years ago. But when I was asked to do a part on 'Kojak,' they went fairly 'bonkers.' Now, they think I'm a star."

Asked about her roles in general and her selection of the young drug addict she plays on "Kojak," Miss Redgrave answered: "Well, I'm an actress and any role that's a challenge is something I think I ought to try. When I decided to play the addict — and, incidentally, the rest of the cast in this episode is fabulous, including Walter McGinn as my boyfriend and Hurd Hatfield as a loathsome gangster—I went to a halfway house and studied drug addicts the process of getting off stuff. I talked with the doctors, who told me about symptoms, and it helped me to build an honest character.

"In television, more than in films, there's so little time. When you get on the set, you must have a very firm idea of the history of the character you're playing because you have a crack at showing millions of viewers only a few minutes in the entire life of a character. Now that's a challenge."

Miss Redgrave lives in New York with her actor-husband, John Clark, and their two children, in one of the landmark structures in mid-town Manhattan.

"We love New York and the kids love 'Kojak,'" she reports.

"John is rehearsing 'The Comedians,' which Mike Nichols is directing, and I'm preparing for 'Hellzapoppin' with Jerry Lewis, which opens on Broadway later this year."

"I have a little old aunt in Oxfordshire who won't be in the least impressed that I just got a drama award in Chicago, or that I'm going back on Broadway — but she's ecstatic that I've worked on television with Telly Savalas."

Great Lovers Hailed

Sonny and Cher pay tribute to some great lovers on "The Sonny and Cher Show," guest starring Ed McMahon, The Sylvers and special guest star Betty White, Sunday, Nov. 7, 8 to 9 p.m., on CBS Channel 9-11.

Sonny and Cher sing "Right Back Where We Started From," Cher solos with "Love Hurts," and The Sylvers perform "Boogie Fever" and "Hot Line."

In comedy sketches, Sonny plays detective Sam Spade, whose mission is to deliver $1 million to a secret agent who could be any one of seven people, including McMahon and Miss White.

BIONIC BOY — Vincent Van Patten guest stars as Andy Sheffield, a 16-year-old boy whose paralyzed legs are restored by an atomic-bionic implant in "The Bionic Boy," special two-hour presentation of ABC-TV's "The Six Million Dollar Man," Sunday, Nov. 7 (7-9 p.m.). Seated, in photo at left, Andy looks much like any other handsome youngster his age. In action, in photo at right, he gives an idea of the extraordinary power and agility — far beyond normal human capabilities — with which science has endowed him.

"Elvis' office contacted me and sent the $100 check," Lange explained.

Dean Martin Show Airs

For a fellow who appears to go through life with the casual air of someone who feels that the entire world is a golf course or a cocktail lounge, Dean Martin enjoys a continuing popularity that is as difficult to achieve as it is to maintain. There's nothing casual about that kind of popularity.

Martin, who signed a new long-term contract with NBC last year, began his association with the network in 1948, when he was still teamed with Jerry Lewis. Dean, who has never been associated with any other network, made his first solo appearance on NBC in 1957 when he starred in eight specials.

Monday, Nov. 8, his first special of the new season airs, "Dean Martin's Red Hot Scandals of 1926," from 10 to 11 p.m. on Channel 6-7-28.

Appearing with Dean are Jonathan Winters, Dom DeLuise, Abe Vigoda, Hermione Baddeley, Georgia Engel, Charlene Ryan and the Goldiggers.

Born Dino Crocetti in Steubenville, Ohio, Dean was a gas station attendant, a boxer and a croupier in a gambling-house before he turned to singing.

The early years as a vocalist were lean but by 1946 he was making up to $750 a week for some engagements. That same year he shared the bill with a young comic at the 500 Club in Atlantic City. The owner suggested that Dean and the comedian, Jerry Lewis, pool their talents.

After a cool reception the first night, the pair found success when they turned to ad libbing.

They appeared at the top nightclubs, did 16 movies together and were a smash success in the relatively new medium of television. In 1956 Martin severed the partnership for reasons that, characteristically, he kept pretty much to himself.

Today, Martin enjoys success in every phase of show business he cares to pursue. His multi-year contract with NBC, a very lucrative deal with the MGM Grand Hotel in Las Vegas, recording and motion pictures keep him as busy as he wants to be.

Though it all, Dean has kept up what he says really is his main business... golf. All the rest — he claims — is a sideline.

Martin's musical numbers on the special include "Ain't We Got Fun," "All I Do Is Dream of You," "I Can't Give You Anything But Love," "The Best Things In Life Are Free" and "Now's the Time to Fall in Love."

Georgia Engel and Charlene Ryan join Dean in a spoof of radio jingles; Georgia and Charlene do "Shakin' the Blues Away"; Dean and Hermione appear in a skit, "It Had to Be You"; and Winters does impressions of Babe Ruth and Charles Lindbergh.

SCANDALS — Dean Martin's Red Hot Scandals of 1926 — Dean is hot to Jonathan Winters (above), and Dom DeLuise, Hermione Baddeley, Abe Vigoda, Georgia Engel, Charlene Ryan and the Goldiggers in a special that takes a nostalgic look at the 1920s on Monday, Nov. 8 (10-11 p.m.) on NBC Channels 6-7.

Dedicated To Barbara

An elderly widow in Huntington, West Virginia, faithfully followed the newspaper and magazine stories about her favorite television journalist, Barbara Walters, moving from NBC to the ABC Television Network, to co-anchor the evening news program with Harry Reasoner and Barbara Walters," Cunningham called her, introduced himself, and asked if she could reach her set while still maintaining contact on the phone. She could. He explained that the numbers she saw on the tuner meant that her set was indeed capable of receiving more than just the single station she had believed was her only choice.

At Cunningham's instruction, she turned the tuning dial for the first time to Channel 13, and there was Barbara Walters with her new partner, Harry Reasoner.

Not having enough money to buy a new set that could offer her more than one station, the widow called WOWK-TV, Channel 13, the ABC affiliate station in Huntington. She had read in the local papers that Barbara Walters could now be seen on Channel 13. She asked show? — and if they're ours, tell them to keep their backs out of camera view."

All eyes followed the trio as they arrived at a police car, entered it and drove away. Then everyone went back to work — those "actors" were, it turned out, the real thing.

what could be done with her old set so that she might tune in '13.

The problem was solved when Don Cunningham, WOWK's Program Director, learned of the widow's call for help. During a broadcast of the "ABC Evening News With Harry Reasoner and Barbara Walters," Cunningham called her, introduced himself, and asked if she could reach her set while still maintaining contact on the phone. She could. He explained that the numbers she saw on the tuner meant that her set was indeed capable of receiving more than just the single station she had believed was her only choice.

At Cunningham's instruction, she turned the tuning dial for the first time to Channel 13, and there was Barbara Walters with her new partner, Harry Reasoner.

Filming Causes Confusion

Talk about confrontation! It was near the Los Angeles intersection of Hollywood Boulevard and Western Avenue, an aging and decaying neighborhood, where the really big confrontation of the year recently took place.

There they stood, Judd Hirsch and Charles Haid, stars of "Delvecchio" (seen Sundays, 10 to 11 p.m., on CBS Ch. 9-11), eyeball-to-eyeball with the two co-stars of another police-action television series. And, as confrontations usually do, this one involved matters of territory and sovereignty. Both "Delvecchio" and the cast and crew of the other series planned to shoot there, on that spot, on that hot morning.

As it turned out, while the "Delvecchio" company was on hand to conduct a full day of filming, the other show's schedule for the day called for the shooting of only a couple of pages of the script at that precise spot. So, an agreement was reached whereby the "Delvecchio" people would simply relax and wait until the other show had filmed and moved on.

However, as the day progressed, things became even more hectic when two other police-action television series moved into position for filming at the same intersection.

What is it that made the area so compelling that all four shows chose to shoot there at the same time? The answer is easy. It's a crummy area, the type of place where you'd expect a crime to occur. Of course, Los Angeles being the sprawling metropolis it is, there is no shortage of such blocks in the city. So, it was coincidence that four filming companies had converged on that particular crummy intersection on that particular day.

The result was a circus, partly due to the filming activity and partly due to the neighborhood. Real and make-believe cops, winos and various other elements of society mingled, all doing their respective things.

At one point in the "Delvecchio" filming, a pair of uniformed officers walked past, escorting a man whose hands were handcuffed behind his back, creating considerable conferring among the "Delvecchio" bunch. "are they ours or are they on the wrong

Blind Dog Becomes Happy

A blind dog, left for dead on the roadside, became the star of a television special, turning a sad story into one with a happy ending.

The dog is Wolfie, who plays the role of a blind dog, Dan, in "Big Henry and the Polka Dot Kid," which will be colorcast as part of NBC-TV's "Special Treat," Tuesday, Nov. 9, 4 to 5 p.m.

"My daughter Bambi saw a dog, left for dead, at the side of the road while driving back to our animal sanctuary in Colts Neck, N. J.," says animal trainer Leonard Brook. "She picked him up and brought him bleeding to the sanctuary, where my wife, Bunny, gave him first aid.

"He was in terrible shape, so we took him to a veterinarian. There, his wounds were healed, and after three weeks we brought him home. We have over 600 animals of all kinds — animals that no one wants anymore. We keep them here to live out their lives.

The concept is solid, but the real reason "Happy Days" (seen Tuesdays, 8 to 8:30 on ABC-TV) stays on top of the ratings heap week after week is the combination of tightly worked scripts and inventive acting. So says Jerry Paris, the show's director.

"No one gave us a chance when we went on as a midseason replacement in 1974. It looked to many as though we had a rehash of 'Life With Father' or 'Leave It to Beaver.' But our dialogue was never mawkish, nor were the plots as contrived or predictable," he continued.

"Each character represents a point of view or a cluster of opinions, and each — in his own way — states his case. Initially, the Fonz character was seen as your basic punk, but he has evolved as a crude morality figure, one with a real code of ethics based on nonviolence and the Golden Rule.

"I think our scripts have gained dimension as our talent has grown. As a director it is gratifying to watch the cast grow up professionally during the course of a series, rather than atrophy.

"Henry Winkler came to us with a master's from Yale and good theatrical experience, but he was fairly green in TV. He didn't know his moves or how to hit his marks at first, but is he ever a quick study!

"He'll last in this business because he's a very good actor. The Fonz character gives him limited scope for his multidimensional talents, but he will be recognized once he's had a chance to do some film.

"The same with Ron Howard. Ronnie comes from a theatrical background and has been in the business since he was about three. Now he is going into directing, doing some exploitation-type films. Once he gets past this early stage, I think he'll become a major directing talent."

By way of explanation of the tight shooting schedule on "Happy Days," Paris said, "As we go from year to year, the cast is more and more critical of the way scenes are played. What might sound hilariously funny in script might not click in reality, or the business might not be as sharp as possible.

"When this happens I ask the cast to keep trying to work it out the way it's written, but if it's obviously not going to, we send it back to the writers. There've been times when the writers are still working late Thursday night and we tape Friday. You can't do that unless you have willing, no-clutch talent and actors who are quick studies."

Redford, Svenson Star In Flying Movie

"The Great Waldo Pepper" airs as the "NBC Wednesday Movie of the Week" Nov. 10, 8 to 10 p.m., on Channel 7-28.

As Waldo, Robert Redford finds himself back in the 1920s again, this time flying the Nebraska skies as one of the last of a dying breed of barnstorming pilots who didn't let the Armistice keep them from the challenge and freedom of the clouds.

The film begins in a delightful vein, introducing Waldo as a brash daredevil who introduces country bumpkins to the joys of flight for five bucks a throw. To add extra excitement, he backs up his flim-flam with guts and talent. Not above sabotaging a rival barnstormer or four-flushing innocent girls with make-believe tales of his war exploits, Waldo is initially in perpetual ecstasy. But as planes become more commonplace, barnstormers find it increasingly hard to rustle up a crowd, so Waldo and a rival (played by Bo Svenson) decide to link up and join a flying circus, put together a couple of wild stunts (one of which sends Waldo crashing through a barn at the end of an airborne ladder) and begin touring the midwest.

After a while however, even stunts like wing-walking fail to excite the voracious public so a girl (Susan Sarandon) is brought into the act, clinging to the wing struts as the plane flies low over Main Street. The act ends in a tragic accident which leads to Waldo's suspension by the Civil Aeronautics Board. Permanently barred from flying after another dangerous mishap, he winds up in Hollywood as a stunt pilot working under an assumed name. When Waldo finds himself matched in a staged dogfight with the legendary German flying ace

SPORT FLYERS — Robert Redford (1) and Bo Svenson star as two former World War I pilots who unsuccessfully attempt to join the ranks of barnstorming flyers as a team in the 1920s in "The Great Waldo Pepper," action drama to be colorcast on "NBC Wednesday Night Movie," Nov. 10 (8-10 p.m.) on Channel 7.

(Bo Brundin) he lied about having sparred with in the war, the myth comes full circle. With a choice between jail down below and the eternal freedom of the clouds, Waldo fights for real, then lifts his wounded plane forever heavenwards.

"The Great Waldo Pepper" is generously peppered with breathtaking aerial stunts, refreshingly devoid of any corner-cutting process shots. Wing-walking, choreographed dogfights, auto-to-airplane transfers and a stunning hop from the wing of one plane to the wing of another while in mid-flight are flawlessly executed.

One Man Seeks To Wipe Out Crime

Charles Bronson stars in "Death Wish," a graphic drama of one man's vendetta against crime in the streets, to be broadcast for the first time on television as the premiere presentation of "The CBS Wednesday Night Movies," Nov. 10, 9 to 11 p.m., on Channel 9-11.

The wife and daughter of Paul Kersey, a liberal-minded New York City architect, are brutally assaulted in their home by three hoodlums, resulting in his wife's death and his daughter's confinement to a mental hospital. Outraged, Kersey almost single-handedly reduced the city's crime rate by fifty percent by seeking out the city's muggers in secluded places, using himself as a decoy and, when attacked, shooting them to death. Frank Ochoa, a tough, eccentric police chief, eventually determines that Bronson is the vigilante who has captured the hearts and minds of the city through his efforts to rid the city of violence. Ochoa is ordered to kill him, but to persuade Kersey to quit. He is also told not to inform the media of the vigilante's identity or that he has gone, and hope that the crime rate maintains its record low.

Charles Bronson plays Kersey, and Vincent Gardenia is the police chief, Ochoa, and Hope Lange is Kersey's wife, Joanna. "Death Wish" was produced by Hal Landers, Bobby Roberts and Michael Winner, directed by Winner and written by Wendell Mayes, based on Brian Gar-

Handicapped Men Plan Heist In "Beg, Borrow Or Steal"

Three handicapped men test their courage and abilities by plotting and executing a daring heist after they lose their jobs in "Beg, Borrow . . . or Steal," a drama airing as the "CBS Late Movie" Thursday, Nov. 11, at 12:30 a.m. on Ch. 9-11.

Three of TV's most popular investigative aces — Michael Connors ("Mannix"), Michael Cole ("Mod Squad") and Ken McCord ("Adam 12") — star in the 90-minute feature; co-starring are Russell Johnson, Henry Beckman, Joel Fabiani and Roger Perry.

In "Beg, Borrow . . . or Steal," Vic Cummings (Connors), Cliff Norris (Cole) and Lester Yates (McCord) are three disabled men who have lost their jobs and try to open a laundromat. No one will finance their venture and the three men find themselves in severe financial trouble.

Frustrated at every turn, Vic, a former security guard and analyst, formulates a plan for robbing a newly opened museum of a priceless statue. Vic figures that he can sell the plan to a gang of thieves, but when he presents it, the plan is rejected as being too complicated.

Realizing that the robbery is the only way to get the money, the three men decide to pull off the heist themselves.

CBS WEDNESDAY NIGHT MOVIE — "Death Wish," a world television premiere movie, Nov. 10 at 9 p.m. on Channels 3N-9-11. Charles Bronson stars as a mild-mannered architect who, when outraged at the brutal murder of his wife and daughter, wages a one-man war of vengeance against the three muggers responsible.

"I'm really a bum at heart," old. He doesn't like to talk about how much he's making, except to admit that the sum is "unbelievable." Now one of the highest-paid movie stars in film history, Bronson's new screen contracts must pay him a minimum of $20,000 for each day the movie is in production. What he does like to talk about are the things that mean the most to him — his family, and the time he spends with them.

"I'd much rather be at home with my family, sitting in my den, painting, going for long walks than in front of a camera."

Are there any secret wishes or desires yet unfulfilled in the life of Charles Bronson?

"Yes! he exclaims with a laugh. "Someday I want to make just one movie where I wear a tuxedo and act just like Cary Grant from the opening scene to the closing one."

His paintings can best be described as extraordinary, and are scenes of the things he's done, seen and lived. Many are paintings of childhood experiences.

Bronson was one of 15 children who lived in poverty in the Pennsylvania coal-mining hills. He watched his father choke to death and later replaced him in the mines, working 16 hours a day when he was just 10-years-

Not Like His Role

"The Jeffersons," seen Wednesdays, 8:30 to 9 p.m. on CBS-TV, is a huge hit, thanks largely to two factors — the situation and the casting! The situation revolves around a black family that is moving up the social ladder. The patriarch, George Jefferson, is a feisty, bombastic, opinionated little man who speaks his mind in no uncertain terms. If there ever was a man who was totally sure of himself, it's George Jefferson. The man who plays the part is as different from George as Sonny is from Cher. Sherman Hemsley may know his own mind, but he speaks softly, and, seemingly, would rather do anything than hurt somebody's feelings. It may be the most un-typecasting in Hollywood history. The success of Hemsley in the show is a tribute both to his own acting ability and to the astuteness of the casting by Norman Lear. Lear is the man who's credited with creating and producing many hits, starting with "All In The Family," and many other shows which evolved from 'Family,' including "The Jeffersons". He is also famous for remembering actors from plays or movies or TV shows he saw years before.

When the time came to choose an actor to play George in 'Family,' Lear remembered seeing Hemsley in a Broadway show and eventually found him. (Lear couldn't remember Sherman's name. After solving this problem, another one developed: Sherman was touring the country in another play, and the ensuing search found him in San Francisco.)

Sherman liked the 'Jefferson' script at first sight, and has continued to enjoy the show. He thinks — and his prejudice is understandable — that it's the best of the black family shows on TV. "It differs from the other black families on TV in one respect — the 'Jeffersons' have money. But there is another, more basic difference. I think we're more real."

"The Taming of the Shrew" The American Conservatory Theatre in San Francisco presents their commedia dell'arte treatment of Shakespeare's classic. (2 hrs)

10:00 (3W,5,12) Charlie's Angels: "To Kill an Angel" Kelly is shot when a child mishandles a firearm and she is hospitalized in critical condition. (60 min)

Hatch Is New Cop

When "All My Children" premiered on TV in 1970, it boasted as its stars Rosemary Prinz, Mary Fickett and Ruth Warrick. No one realized then that it would give the entertainment world new stars. Almost immediately, Richard Hatch won the hearts of America as he wound his way through a bittersweet love story with his portrayal of Phillip Brent.

renew his contract, and instead, he headed to Hollywood, bound for more success that has now culminated in his role as Inspector Dan Robbins in "Streets of San Francisco," seen Thursdays, 10 to 11 p.m., on ABC Channel 3-5.
 "I was very lucky," says Richard. "All My Children" gave me very good exposure, and even before I left the show I flew back to Hollywood to do "Hawaii Five-O" and "Room 222."

After a year on the daytime series, Hatch decided not to extort money from the man whose daughter disappeared at that time. (60 min)

Pike's Peeks

By CHARLIE PIKE,
 TV Showtime Staff Writer

HOLLYWOOD - Rumor has it that Farrah Fawcett-Majors has more ambitions to become a mother than to continue her highly successful acting-modeling career. Not necessarily in the immediate future, but don't be surprised if you hear that Farrah's pregnant before too long.
 "May-Day at 40,000 Feet" promises to be one of TV's best movies. David Janssen stars in the film, which was done at Salt Lake City, Utah because the script, while depicting Chicago, called for snow and Salt Lake was the biggest city with snow when filming began. It airs on CBS Friday, Nov. 12.
 Brenda Dickson, Jill Foster on daytime's "The Young and the Restless," shocked her co-workers when she recently announced that she and long-time boyfriend Robert Rifkin were wed Sept. 30th. They had called off a July 3rd wedding date, but only because of all the publicity surrounding it. Thus the reason for an elopment that had 12 invited guests.
 Cindy Williams of "Laverne & Shirley" on a diet? what we hear. Rather disgusting when a young woman who weighs 111 pounds goes on a diet, but Cindy says she feels and looks better at 105 pounds.
 Carmine Caridi, Cloris Leachman's new boss on "Phyllis," has relinquished to Cloris' demands that he enroll in an est class, which is an influence Cloris credits for getting her life better organized.
 We understand Jackie Smith of "Charlie's Angels" not only wears clothes designed by Allan Austin, but she's also with him on a regular basis.
 Donny Most, Ralph on "Happy Days," has turned recording artist with the release of his first single. As a result, Anson Williams, Potsie on the show, might very well hold the release of his first single and album until after the first of the year.
 Bob Strompf is rapidly becoming one of Hollywood's most popular artists. Pieces of his original water colors adorn the homes of Frank Sinatra and Dean Martin, just to name a couple.

Van Dyke Goofed

Dick Van Dyke made a silly mistake recently - and it made him think of his idol and old friend, the late Stan Laurel.
 Van Dyke, who lives in San Diego, Calif., spends weekdays in Burbank taping the variety-comedy show, "Van Dyke and Company," seen Thursdays, 10 to 11 p.m., on NBC Channel 6-7-28. Rather than fly back and forth each night, he has rented a small house near the studio, and lives there Monday through Thursday.
 Last week the plumbing in his Burbank home backed up, and that's when he made the mistake.
 "The bathtub was full of water," explained Dick, "so I got a great big pan and knelt down next to the tub.
 "I'd scoop up a pan, turn, and pour it into the sink, then I'd scoop up another panful and pour it into the sink.
 "I had been doing that for roughly 45 minutes, making no headway whatever, when suddenly I realized that every drop of water I poured into the sink was coming right back up in the tub.

'Spencer's Pilots' Cancelled

"Spencer's Pilots," an adventure-drama show in one of CBS-TV's worst time slots — Friday nights at 8 p.m. — has been cancelled. Replacing it early next year will be a new hour news show to feature Dan Rather as on-air editor and chief reporter, with Charles Kuralt featured in "On the Road" segments. Another regular reporter is still to be announced. There will also be contributions from other CBS News Correspondents and outside reporters.

In announcing the as yet untitled new series, CBS-TV President Robert Wussler said:

"This is an exciting project. The remarkable success of '60 Minutes' in prime time this year has paved the way for new concepts in informational programming — and this new series will break new ground."

This second weekly primetime series gives CBS an opportunity to experiment with new ideas and new forms. The range of subjects is expected to be as broad as the human experience.

John Sharnik, Director of Public Affairs Broadcasts for CBS, says, "Obviously, some of the elements that have earned such respect and attention for '60 Minutes' will go into the new series. But it will go its own way, develop its own style. It will be 'hard' — yet, above all, it will be human. It will cover a wide range of subjects — politics, business, entertainment — nothing will be excluded," he said. "But the focal point will always be the people involved in the story. It will present headliner interviews and three-dimensional action profiles. Its interviews will be tough-fibered and tough-minded. Its subjects will be important people and also unknown people whose doings and misdoings make them worthy of attention."

"Dan Rather has a special skill for getting people to explain themselves, and in the process, to reveal themselves. And that's precisely what he will be after in this new series."

Kuralt, who has been "On the Road," reporting for the "CBS Evening News," for the past nine years, will report regularly on the new series. His unique reports, focusing on people who have, as he calls it, "hearty individualism," will be expanded in this new broadcast.

Stars As Pilot

An airliner has been disabled and the lives of its terrified passengers depend on the untried skill of its co-pilot, in "Mayday at 40,000 Feet" a made-for television movie making its world premiere on "The CBS Friday Night Movies" Nov. 12, 9 to 11 p.m., on Channel 9-11.

David Janssen, Don Meredith and Christopher George star as the plane's flight crew, with Ray Milland, Lynda Day George, Maggie Blye and Marjoe Gortner also starring. Featured guest stars are Broderick Crawford, Tom Drake, Christopher Norris, Harry Rhodes, Warren Vanders, Shani Wallace and Jane Powell.

Aboard Transcon Flight 602 are a disgruntled doctor, a Federal marshal, an Army officer and the co-pilot's girlfriend, all of whose lives are placed in jeopardy when the flight picks up a ruthless killer at a stopover in Salt Lake City.

Worries About Protege

Producer Jimmy Kormack made a star of Freddie Prinze, seen in "Chico and the Man" on Fridays, 8:30 to 9 p.m. on NBC-TV, and today their relationship is almost like father-son.

"Freddie Prinze was nineteen when, in seven months, he shot to superstardom on 'Chico and the Man.' Of course, I worried about Freddie; I still do. He is the greatest comedy discovery in years, a bona fide superstar and a warm, endearing human being. But the same thing that shot him to the top could shoot him down. That's something we can't let happen. I guess I'm essentially a surrogate father."

This could possibly be called type-casting, because Kormack is the type of man his Spanish-speaking friends might call 'mucho hombre.' He is one of Hollywood's most creative people: an actor turned creative producer, writer, director, responsible first for "The Courtship of Eddie's Father" (he played Norman in the series), "Chico and the Man," "Welcome Back, Kotter," and "Mr. T. and Tina." Since all are filmed before an audience, it takes a person with superhuman energy and a strong blend of creativity and business ability. It also takes a heart filled with love to make the show work for both the audience and those backstage.

The idea of 'Chico' was in Kormack's mind long before the series was born. Fascinated with the Spanish language and those who speak it, his house always resembled a half-way house for Mexicans — there've always been some Spanish-speaking residents.

Then he met the comedy team, Cheech and Chong, and it dawned on him that he could do a series on two young Americans, a Chicano and a Nesei. When he realized that both would be too much in comedy at the same time, he hit on the idea of the surrogate father and son. Jack Albertson was a natural for the Man, but Chico? That was a problem.

About this time Freddie Prinze was getting rave reviews for his guest appearance on the "Tonight Show," and the rest of the story is history.

Harbor Refugees

A sea captain and his grandson, stranded off a German-occupied island, valiantly strive to get a boatload of Yugoslavian refugees to safety, in "Captain Mikula, the Kid," a film from Yugoslavia that will be broadcast on "The CBS Children's Film Festival," Saturday, Nov. 13, 1 to 2 p.m.

The captain rows ashore to get a new part for the disabled engine, and then discovers he has stowaways — his grandson Mikula, and two of his friends. The Captain now is arrested because the Germans believe he came to rescue the pilot of a British plane they shot down.

Mikula tricks the Germans into letting his grandfather go, and, in a daring maneuver obtains the needed part and repairs the boat's engine.

The wounded pilot is found. Then, while the captain creates a diversion, Mikula pilots the boat and its passengers to safety.

"Captain Mikula, the Kid," a 1974 production of Jadran Film and Croatia Film Zagreb, was directed by Obrad Gluscevic and produced by Stipe Gurdelic.

Burr Tillstrom's Kukla, Fran and Ollie with Fran Allison are hosts of "The CBS Children's Festival."

Impersonates A Niece

Jaime Sommers is assigned to impersonate the niece of slippery Manfred Carstairs who expects to inherit a fortune upon the demise of brother Cyrus at the latter's eerie bayou mansion, on "The Bionic Woman" Wednesday, Nov. 10, 8 to 9 p.m., on ABC Channel 3-5-12. Vincent Price makes a rare television guest star appearance in dual roles as Manfred and Cyrus. Also guest starring with Price are William Windom as Warfield and Hermoine Baderly as Tess.

Julie Newmar is special guest star as Claudette and Abe Vigoda (Detective Fish of the "Barney Miller" series) as Barlow.

In "Black Magic," Jaime, arriving at La Fittle Island for the reading of Cyrus' will, sees a grotesque "creature" in the swamp before she reaches the manor where she meets Barlow, Cyrus' manservant, odd members of the Carstairs clan, and Warfield, the attorney.

TO O. C. BRINKLEY, FLORENCE, S.C.: "Space 1999" is filmed in studios in Bray, England, near Windsor. ITC (555 Madison Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022) produces the show.

TO A. ELTSAC, FREDERICKSBURG, VA: Merv Griffin was married to Julann Wright, a comedienne he met when they worked together on a radio show, but they are now divorced. Their son, Anthony Patrick (Tony), is 15.

TO S. WOOD, EFLAND, NC.: 46-year-old Ben Gazzara played Paul Bryan, a lawyer who ran toward life when told he had less than 3 years to live, in "Run For Your Life." Gazzara didn't die, but the series did after three years ('65-67).

TO L. COFFEY, FISHERVILLE, VA.: Richard Jordan, who plays the central character (Joseph Armagh) in "Captains and the Kings," co-starred in the current film "Logan's Run," and also appeared in others — "Lawman," "Valdez Is Coming" and "Rooster Cogburn," to name a few. On TV he starred in the special, "Incident at Vichy."

Crimson Tide Meets Irish Saturday

When the Fighting Irish of Notre Dame and the Crimson Tide of Alabama have a few first-class players, immediately fans start planning for a national title. In their off-seasons — when these annual powerhouses are not loaded with their usual allotment of super-stars — they will usually post something like an 8-3 record, certainly below-par for them.

This season has shaped up as an off year for both clubs with each being condemned to the second-ten of the nation's top-twenty teams. Nevertheless, when Alabama travels to South Bend, Indiana to meet Notre Dame on Saturday, Nov. 13, at 12:30 p.m. on ABC-TV, the Crimson Tide will be seeking revenge.

The rivalry that has been generated between the two collegiate giants assures another classic dual as has been the case in their previous meetings. They have met only twice before, Notre Dame was the victor — 24-23 — in the 1973 Sugar Bowl, and 13-11 in the 1975

Cardinals Meet Eagles Sunday

In a contest that began in 1935 when the Cardinals represented the city of Chicago, the St. Louis Cardinals have a slight 30-27-4 edge in the series with the Philadelphia Eagles. St. Louis has won the last five games in the series, including two last year by scores of 31-20 and 24-23 and one earlier this season - 33-14.

The first Cardinal and Eagle contest was originally scheduled for Veterans Stadium in Philadelphia but was switched to St. Louis to allow the Phillies and Cincinnati Reds the use of the stadium for their National Baseball League playoff game. St. Louis will now meet the Eagles in Philadelphia for their game on Sunday, Nov. 7 at 1 p.m. on CBS-TV.

After the Philadelphia loss to St. Louis in October headcoach Dick Vermeil had this to say about the high-powered Cardinals, "St. Louis just outplayed us, out-coached us, out-everythinged us in any category you can think of... they're a far better team." The Eagles were held to less than 100 yards rushing (58) for the first time this season while being out-gained in total yardage, 384 to 175.

Part of the reason for this defeat was the loss of quarterback Mike Boryla, who staked the Eagles to a 7-0 lead on a three yard pass to Keith Kreple before leaving the game for good with a concussion late in the first period. Boryla's departure left the quarterbacking to inexperienced John Walton, who played sparingly in the pre-season and even less in the regular season. With Boryla back in the quarterback slot, the unpredictable Eagles have the potential to make things pretty rough for the high flying Cardinals.

FOOTBALL — James McAlister, the former UCLA Bruin, is looking to play an even greater role in the Philadelphia offense. The Eagles would like to knock down the high flying St. Louis Cardinals when they meet Sunday, Nov. 7 at 1 p.m. on CBS-TV.

Curtis Gets Even

Isaac Curtis may be the fastest man in the NFL when he's sprinting under a Ken Anderson bomb, but he seldom moves faster than a turtle until the ball is snapped. When the Cincinnati Bengals meet the Los Angeles Rams on Monday, Nov. 8, at 9 p.m. on ABC-TV, you can almost always expect to see Curtis as the best man to leave the huddle and jog to the scrimmage. In fact, he moves so slowly you wonder if he's going to get in his stance in time to avoid a delay of game penalty.

Since all of Curtis' moves are well planned, the slow motion routine is indeed deliberate.

"Part of it's because I'm making sure in my own mind what I'm going to do," he explained. "But mainly I'm giving the defensive back something else to worry about. I want him to wonder if Kenny is calling an audible and I'm thinking about my new assignment."

"It may not seem like much of an edge," Curtis continued, "but it doesn't hurt to have my man guarding against something else when he's trying to keep up with me."

Curtis has been most successful in reaching the end zone, a habit that appears to be increasing in frequency. To accomplish this mission, Curtis combines his skills and talents with his ability to gain a psychological edge over the defender.

Throughout the NFL, players enter the end zone and spike the ball, or do a dance or some other expression of achievement. Not Curtis, he nonchalantly flips the ball back over his head and disdainfully returns to the bench without breaking stride or even looking back.

"It's something I've been doing since college," he said. "A lot of guys like to make a big show of slamming the ball down, but I wanted to do something different."

Aggies, Razorbacks Compete Saturday

Although the Texas A&M Aggies appear to be falling off the pace in the scramble for supremacy in the Southwest Conference, they are a factor of great concern to several contenders, especially Arkansas.

Last season, the Arkansas Razorbacks posted a 31-6 victory over Texas A&M in the final game of the regular schedule, thus making Arkansas, will host the Aggies on Saturday, Nov. 13, at 4 p.m. on ABC-TV in a contest that could well have an influence on the conference crown.

The Aggies scrapped the Wishbone offense, which Coach Emory Ballard helped create while at Texas in the late '60s. They are now running from a two-back, split-back offense. "We feel as if the Wishbone just did not give us enough versatility," explained offensive coach Tom Wilson. "The Wishbone is an offense that you run when you out personnel people. But, sooner or later, you'll come up against people as good as you, who put nine people up on the line and dare you to throw. That happened to us in the Arkansas game."

Another Aggie weapon is their arsenal placekicker, Tony Franklin, who also puts the Aggies in scoring position

everytime they cross their own forty-yard line. Against Baylor, Franklin — who kicks soccer-style with a bare right foot — hit 64 and 65 yard field goals to set and break his own record in the same game.

Senior David Shipman, who shares quarterbacking chores with David Walker, holds for Franklin and was equally excited with the two kicks. "It was a great feeling. This was the third field goal record in my four years at A&M, and I wasn't in on the first two. I wanted to carry Tony off the field. I didn't have any doubt he could make it, and I didn't feel any extra pressure because of the distance. Heck, he kicks them that far every day in practice, and he was kicking them from 65 yards in pre-game warmups. I'm just real proud to be involved in it."

One of Franklin's dreams was to bring the NCAA record to A&M. "If I'm dreaming, I don't ever want to wake up," he said. "Who would have dreamed of two back-to-back?"

What's next for Tony? "A 70-yarder would be nice," he said.

A 70-yarder on national television would cause many viewers to think they were dreaming.

Star Is Made

Some great defensive ends are made, not born. And Tommy Hart is one of these. When the San Francisco 49ers drafted Hart as a defensive end 6 years ago, Tommy reported for training camp at 6'4" and a slim 213 pounds. Too small for his position, the coaches suggested a crash weight-training program and Hart rapidly added the needed pounds to his frame. With the added size came strength, and eventually a starting berth. Now he is recognized as one of the most dependable and effective players on the 49ers squad.

Paul Wiggins, now head coach of the Kansas City Chiefs and former 49er defensive line coach, states: "Tommy Hart's evolving into a defensive end was built around his personality. Tommy's an attack guy. At linebacker you have to be ready to cover the pass, but everything Tommy does, he wants to be on the attack, and that's the perfect personality for a lineman."

Studies Violence

"Macon County Line," airing as the "NBC Saturday Night at the Movies" Nov. 13, 9 to 11 p.m. on Channel 6-7-28, is the story of unfortunate chance and circumstance.

Two brothers, Chris and Wayne Dixon, take a two-week joy ride through the South prior to their induction into the Army. Along the way, they pick up a girl here and there and are not so scrupulously honest that they don't mind skipping out on a lunch counter bill from time to time. Later, they meet and team up with a young girl, Jenny, who's similarly, though not slovenly, on the road.

Their troubles start when their fan belt breaks in a small Louisiana locale and they meet up with the local sheriff, Reed Morgan, who's hostile and bigoted towards them. What they don't know is that the sheriff's wife is to be raped and murdered that very day by a pair of psychotics, and fate takes a hand when their fan belt breaks again on the road near the sheriff's house. The sheriff discovers his wife's body and, crazed almost to incoherence, assumes that the Dixons had something to do with the murder and begins a vendetta against them.

Alan and Jesse Vint portray the Dixon Brothers, and Cheryl Waters plays Jenny. Max Baer, who also produced the movie, makes a believably belligerent sheriff, and Joan Blackman is cast as Carol Morgan, the sheriff's attractive but ill-fated wife.

Baer and Richard Compton wrote the script for "Macon County Line," a 1974 American International Pictures release, and Compton directed.

Repeats Performance

Valery and Galina Panov, former stars of Russia's famed Kirov Ballet, will return to "In Performance At Wolf Trap" Monday, Nov. 8, at 9 p.m. on UNC-TV.

The program will feature the Panovs in five ballet selections accompanied by the Filene Center Orchestra, with Seymour Lipkin conducting. The selections are: The pas de deux from Petipa's "Don Quixote"; Konstantin Boyarsky's "The Lady and the Hooligan"; the Adagio from Lev Ivanov's "The Nutcracker"; Scene Two from Fokine's "Petrouchka"; and the pas de deux from Petipa's "Harlequinade."

In his review of the Panov's performance at Wolf Trap, Washington Post dance critic Alan Kriegsman wrote, "The Panovs dance with a grand sweep."

Fox Heads Children's Programs

Irwin (Sonny) Fox, a leading on-camera host and producer of television programming for youngsters for more than 20 years, has joined NBC-TV as Vice President, Children's Programs.

Fox's professional career dates back more than a quarter of a century and includes a variety of accomplishments. He has worked as a writer, producer, performer and consultant, and for two years he served as Chairman of the Board of the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences.

He was the recipient of four Emmy nominations in the field of children's programming: three for "Wonderama," a weekly TV series produced for Metromedia; and one for "Speak-out," a weekly show aimed at the teen-age audience. He is also the recipient of the highest civilian award of the Department of Justice, the Distinguished Service Award for his work with minorities in television.

From 1959-67, Fox was host and associate producer of "Wonderama." Other on-air assignments have included hosting "The $64,000 Challenge," "Let's Take a Trip," "On Your Mark," and "Expo '67."

He is currently host of "Way Out Games," a Saturday morning series for young viewers on CBS-TV which has completed taping for the season.

Making Sure You Have Enough Time For Each Other

ASK THEM YOURSELF

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question, on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR REP. SHIRLEY CHISHOLM (D.-N.Y.)

How did you become interested in politics? If you had to give it up, what would you do instead?—A.S., Great Falls, Mont.

● I became involved when the area in which I lived (Brooklyn) was without representation by a "community" person. I saw the need for bringing the problems and perspective of my people into the democratic process. I was outspoken enough to earn the attention and support of many sharing my concern for a better quality of life for minorities. I have been interested in the needs of children, education, day care, and preventive health care. If I wasn't in politics, I wouldn't be content without a full-time pursuit. I'd write and work with young people.

FOR POLLY BERGEN, co-host of NBC-TV's "Not for Women Only"

Was there ever a time when you made a fool of yourself in public?—B.R., Devil's Lake, N.D.

● Yes, and it was very public. I was doing commercials for a soft-drink company, and we just could not get it right. We went through endless takes, with me drinking what seemed to be gallons and gallons of the stuff. Finally, we got a perfect take; and then—a drowning rumble came from my stomach (due to all that soda). It was louder than the voice-over, so we started all over again.

FOR WOODY ALLEN, star of "The Front"

Why do you make films?—S.B., Stockton, Calif.

● This might sound dull, but it's because I have the opportunity to, and I'm living in a world where everyone wants to make movies. Also, more by luck than judgment, due to a series of bizarre quirks, I'm in a position where I can write, direct and star in my own films. I have total control; no one else approves the script. Had anyone told me 15 years ago that I'd be the lead in any movie, I'd have laughed. I still can't believe it.

FOR ARA PARSEGHIAN, former football coach of Notre Dame

Did not being a Catholic have anything to do with your decision to leave Notre Dame?—Walter Doll, E. Lansing, Mich.

● No way! Nor did it hinder me in my 11-year association with that school. My decision to leave Notre Dame was based totally on my physical, emotional and mental exhaustion. Essentially, I was living too fast a pace.

FOR HILDEGARDE

I understand you wanted to be a nun when you were young. True?—J. J. O'Brien, Durham, N.C.

● Yes. In fact, I am a member of the Third Order of the Carmelites with the privilege of being buried as a nun in the Carmelite religious habit. I have the option of retiring some day to a convent as a nun.

FOR MARY BROOKS, U.S. Director of the Mint

Has the phrase "In God We Trust" always appeared on our coins?—Mrs. Carl Hutte, Largo, Fla.

● It first appeared on the bronze two-cent piece in 1864. The Act of July 11, 1955, mandated that the motto henceforth be inscribed on all our coins.

FOR LLOYD M. BUCHER, former captain of the U.S.S. Pueblo

Is it true that Hal Holbrook offered to give you the Emmy he won for his portrayal of you in the TV special on the U.S.S. Pueblo?—D. J. Sullivan, Brighton, Mass.

● Yes, that's true. I wrote him back and said that since no one at ABC-TV had bothered to contact my crew members or me before the special was made, we were not able to make any suggestions or help in any way. So I didn't believe I should accept his Emmy.

FOR IAN ANDERSON of the rock group Jethro Tull

Why did you cut your long, beautiful hair?—J.D., Poughkeepsie, N.Y.

● For the same reason that I lopped off part of my beard. The ends were starting to split, and the result was horrible. I asked my barber and hairdresser for advice. They suggested the drastic action that I took—a substantial trim.

FOR SYLVIA WALLACE, author of "The Fountains"

Since your book is about beauty spas, can you tell me whether these places cater exclusively to the wealthy?—G.S., Athens, Ohio

● Mostly, but not entirely. There are secretaries saving up for one memorable week, their big splurge. One spa (I won't say which one) runs a kind of F.B.I. check on all inquiries. If the applicant doesn't appear up to par, she'll get a "sorry, we're full-up" response. But that doesn't happen too often. Spas are usually welcoming and friendly.

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

Could you tell me if there are any upcoming films with dogs in them? I recently saw "Won Ton Ton—the Dog That Saved Hollywood" and loved the dog more than the movie.—Barbara Warnoke, Flint, Mich.

● One is "The Deep" (a film made from Peter Benchley's new book), in which the dog, Tiger (playing the part of "Charlotte" in the film), is making her screen debut. "Here's one of the funny stories about her," says director Peter Yates: "She didn't always do what she was supposed to do in front of the cameras. For instance, in the movie, when Jacqueline Bisset sees Charlotte for the first time, the dog is supposed to snap and look ferocious. Jackie's line is, 'Does she bite?' Instead of barking, Charlotte waddled up to Jackie, wagged her tail and started licking her. It required five takes just for Charlotte to keep her tail still."

SOONER THAN YOU THINK: AT HOME IN SPACE

"The earth is the cradle of mankind but one cannot live in the cradle forever." Government plans are now under way that may alter the course of human existence...

A space colony of this type could accommodate several hundred thousand inhabitants. Cylinders would rotate to create earthlike gravity, and solar energy would be the source of power. Lunar or asteroid raw materials would be used for constructing the colony.

Imagine yourself in the next 20 or 30 years living in this space colony, stationed a quarter of a million miles from earth.

By Polly Dranov

First, we walked on the moon. Then, we took pictures of Mars. Now, we're nearly ready to live in outer space.

It will all begin with 10,000 men and women being rocketed to a tropical island midway between the earth and the moon. Their destination will be our first colony in space, an outpost the size of a small town wrapped inside a huge man-made sphere. From afar, the colony will look like a giant bottle-stopper with a cylinder protruding from an even larger cap. On the inside it will be a cosy community of terraced apartments and villagelike shops nestled in a space-age Garden of Eden.

We won't need space suits and air masks. Physicists already have figured out how to simulate the earth's atmosphere and gravity as well as how to light the place and produce weather.

It sounds like science fiction, but it isn't. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) is already financing the research.

The space colony is the brainchild of Gerard K. O'Neill, a physicist and professor at Princeton, who thinks it may be the permanent solution to the world's most pressing problems: the energy shortage, overpopulation, diminishing natural resources and environmental pollution.

Upon arrival, the first order of business for the "colonists" will be construction of solar power stations to collect the sun's energy and beam it back to earth via microwave. Then, they will build an even bigger second colony, and the two together will build a still bigger third to join them in orbit around the earth. Much later colonies might be 10-times larger than the third, with enough room for hundreds of thousands of people to live comfortably. And since there's plenty of room in space, there will someday be thousands of colonies.

The slim and athletic 49-year-old O'Neill looks more like a tennis pro than a man with an idea that could change the course of history. He is a man as concerned with people as he is with technology. And he's designed a place as free from space-age sterility as the Italian village where he and his wife someday dream of living.

O'Neill thinks the space colony could be built from minerals scooped from the moon and heaved through space to a point where the gravitational pulls of the earth and the moon cancel each other out. Then a construction crew of 2,000 men and women working out of temporary quarters on a space station would construct the first colony. The settlers from earth would come next, a carefully screened group of 10,000 volunteers trained to build the solar power station.

Sound like Buck Rogers? O'Neill doesn't think so. "We've already got the technology," he explains. "That's why this could be done relatively soon and at a relatively modest cost." By "soon" he means about 15 years. And by "modest cost" he is talking about $150 billion. That's an awful lot of money, but it's considerably less than the $800 billion the electric utilities companies say they'll have to spend during the next 25 years to meet the nation's energy needs.

"Technologically speaking, the know-how needed to make the space colony a reality is high-school physics," O'Neill says. What's more, the Apollo program paved the way for just such a project—no major scientific breakthroughs would be necessary to carry out O'Neill's ideas. That being the case, O'Neill makes no secret of the fact he's more interested in other aspects of the proposal. He has indulged his own fantasies by working out all sorts of details—from the system of government to the architecture of the living quarters to the kind of games people could play in the weightless nooks and crannies of the colony.

The place has got to be attractive, O'Neill insists, if people are going to be happy living and working there. He wants it to look as familiar—as "earth-like"—as possible, but on a small, unimposing scale. The cylinders would rotate to provide earth-normal gravity for the colonists. The interior would be lighted via a system of mirrors that would reflect sunlight. Colonists would be able to turn off the light by blocking its path during the hours designated as "night."

Since there is no climate in space, that, too, has to be simulated, a task that initially will require combining lunar oxygen with hydrogen which will have to be brought from earth to create water. Because the climate will have to be artificially induced, anything is possible. Some colonies could be tropical paradises, others could be snowy man-made duplicates of the Swiss Alps, complete with slopes for skiing and sledding.

O'Neill's idea for governing the colonies is a flexible one. Essentially, each habitat could choose its own form of government. He suggests, however, that all of them could be under the juris-

Something for smokers to think about.

There are cigarettes and there are cigarettes. And if you're a smoker you certainly know by now which brand you really enjoy smoking.

So what makes us think we'll ever get a crack at switching you?

Well, we're going to try.

A lot of cigarette smokers smoke menthol. But they're probably just as concerned about the 'tar' and nicotine stories that all cigarette smokers have been hearing these days.

Frankly, if a cigarette is going to bring you flavor, it's also going to bring you smoke. And where there's smoke, there has to be 'tar.' In fact, in most cigarettes, the more flavor, the more 'tar.' Except for Vantage.

You must know that Vantage cigarettes have a special filter which reduces 'tar' and nicotine without destroying flavor.

What you may not know is that Vantage is also available in menthol.

Not surprisingly, what separates Vantage Menthol from ordinary menthols is that Vantage Menthol gives you all the flavor you want, with a lot less of the 'tar' and the nicotine that you probably don't want.

Now Vantage Menthol is not the lowest 'tar' and nicotine menthol you'll find. It may well be the lowest one you'll enjoy smoking.

Since you're the best judge of what you like about menthol cigarettes, don't just take our word for it.

Observations

The greening of TV. Television quality gets better tonight, as Masterpiece Theatre presents the first episode in Richard Llewellyn's classic, "How Green Was My Valley." Times may change, but the warmth, conflicts and physical hardships of a Welsh coal miner's family have an enduring quality—which is why Llewellyn's novel lends itself so well to this new adaptation for television. The six-part series stars Stanley Baker, Sian Phillips and Rhys Powys: father, mother and son coping with life. Underwritten by a grant from Mobil, Masterpiece Theatre is seen over PBS stations. Later in the season, it will bring back the Bellamys and their servants in "Upstairs, Downstairs" against a background of the Roaring Twenties.

What doth it profit a man? About a nickel on every sales dollar, whether he runs a giant corporation or a neighborhood hardware store. According to latest statistics from Robert Morris Associates, the national association of bank loan and credit officers, a typical hardware store makes $13,200 a year on sales of $300,000, after salaries, including the owner's, are paid. That's a profit of 4.4 percent on sales, and 16.8 percent on "shareholders' equity," assuming the business has a net worth of nearly $80,000. Meanwhile, a study by Citibank put the profit of leading manufacturers last year at 4.4 percent of sales, 12.3 percent on the basis of shareholders' equity. Interestingly, a major research organization found that many people think these companies make as much as 33 cents on every sales dollar.

Nobody's perfect. Which is why we get so many opportunities to tweak the noses of governmental agencies. On the other hand, sometimes an agency has a kudo coming. Like the Commission on Federal Paperwork, which has been instrumental in passing legislation calling for annual reporting of employee wages, rather than the present quarterly method. If carried out at the state level, too, the new law could save employers—especially small businessmen—millions of hours and some $250 million annually, says the Commission. It will also reduce the Federal Government's paper load by approximately 24 million pages, and save Uncle Sam $20 million a year.

LIVING IN SPACE

Constructing colonies in space is man's next challenge—one that looms in the very near future. Someday the majority of "earthlings" may be living in space and taking occasional vacations to earth and places beyond.

dition of a multinational profit-making corporation set up under a United Nations treaty. But just who will run the colonies will depend on who builds them—whether the impetus comes from the U.S. Government, from several countries working together or from private industry.

Whoever is ultimately responsible, it is clear even at this point that a space colony will have to be more than an awe-inspiring demonstration of scientific know-how. It is far too expensive a proposition for that. To exist at all, the colonies will have to be self-supporting and justify their existence by enriching the earth. The construction of solar power stations would probably be the main purpose of the colonies. That activity alone could prove to be well worth the initial investment, especially when measured against the future costs of generating power here on earth.

The power stations O'Neill contemplates would be much bigger than the colonies themselves and would orbit the earth transmitting solar energy toward us in the form of low-density microwaves. The idea for orbiting solar power stations has been around for some time, but the costs of launching them from the earth were so immense that plans never got off the drawing board. It makes much better economic sense, O'Neill contends, to construct the satellites in space from materials readily available from the moon and then nudge them into orbit. Figures presented at a 1975 Congressional hearing showed that 13 years after the start of construction of satellite solar power stations in space they would provide more energy than the Alaskan pipeline operating at its peak capacity.

The big advantage to solar energy is that it is clean—no polluting by-products to create new environmental and economic burdens. And best of all, there's no limit to it. The power stations, then, may well be the permanent solution to the energy shortage. In addition, extracting high-grade iron ore and nickel from the asteroids could be highly profitable for the colonies. The iron from a single big asteroid might be able to supply the earth's total need for steel for 10 years.

Once the idea of life in space is accepted, millions of people may choose to emigrate to new colonies rather than battle crowded conditions here on earth. There have even been suggestions that most humans will eventually move to colonies in space, thus giving the earth a chance to recover from centuries of depletion and development. The earth might someday become a natural wilderness, a vacationland for colonists who come to see what their world in space was modeled upon.

Indeed, future generations might find the earth a bit too primitive for their tastes. As O'Neill points out, the colonies would have certain advantages: fresh vegetables and fruits would be in season there all the time because there would be insect-free agricultural cylinders for every month of the year, each one with its own day-length. There would be more time for outdoor sports and recreation because daylight could last as long as each colony wanted it to last.

The journey between earth and the colonies would be a major undertaking—a week-long trip in a giant spaceship that could accommodate 150 passengers. The first of the colonists would probably want to return to earth at least for a visit after a few years in space. But later generations may be more interested in going in the other direction, visiting new colonies farther out in space or setting off by themselves to explore a nearby asteroid. Space colonies could thus become the edge of a vast new frontier, one that man with his inquisitive spirit would seek to conquer just as he once set out to cross the oceans or to follow the sun westward across the continent.

It is this pioneer spirit more than our technological capabilities that O'Neill believes eventually will propel us beyond the confines of Mother Earth. But combined with that spirit is the very real necessity of finding an alternative to life on our increasingly crowded and polluted planet. It is fear of what we may have to become if we stay here that lends urgency to O'Neill's efforts and fuels his hopes for the future. He isn't the first man to let his imagination soar into space or to see its potential. He pays living tribute to the Russian scientist Konstantin Tsiolkovsky, who considered the same possibilities almost a century ago. "The earth is the cradle of mankind," Tsiolkovsky wrote in 1895, "but one cannot live in the cradle forever."

AIR FORCE JOBS AVAILABLE NOW

A year or so ago, Sergeant Hunter and Airman First Class Morrow were up in the air about their futures.

The Air Force put them on solid ground.

They were paid to learn how to produce for the aerospace team.

Now they have interesting good-paying jobs — skilled in an area that could lead to civilian employment should they decide to leave the Air Force.

But it will be a rare employer that will offer 30 days of paid time off annually — from the first year. Medical and dental care. A solid retirement plan. And the opportunity to serve with dignity and pride as part of the worldwide Air Force community.

It's a great way of life for those young men and women dedicated to the continuation of 200 years of American freedom. Are you one of these people? If you believe you could meet our high mental and physical standards and help make a great Air Force better, and are between the ages of 17-27 call toll free 800-447-4700 (in Illinois call 800-322-4400) for the location of your nearest Air Force recruiter. ## KAREN GRASSLE: Her Role as "Pioneer Mom" Almost Drove Her Crazy

"I was into Caroline's character more than my own. I was being so good I'd come back from the studio and smash dishes in the backyard!"

By Patricia Baum

As Caroline Ingalls in the TV series "Little House on the Prairie," Karen Grassle portrays a devoted wife and mother coping with the hardships of pioneer living in the 1870's. In real life, Karen is the exact opposite. She is single, career-oriented and has been coping with the problems of being a modern woman and an ambitious actress.

FAMILY WEEKLY: Since you are primarily a theatrical actress, were you surprised to get a lead part in a TV series? (Karen has appeared on Broadway in "Butterflies Are Free" and numerous Shakespearean productions.)

KAREN GRASSLE: I guess I was chosen because I have that clean-cut American look, and I think co-star Michael Landon (who interviewed me) perceived a strong streak of the Earth Mother in me, which I was not aware of then. Looking back, I realize that, even as a little girl, I had a tendency to mother my friends.

FW: Was switching from theater to television difficult?

KAREN: At first I found it hard to react in the morning to a scene that had been shot the afternoon before because in the theater the action is continuous. But the main problem with my work was the nature of the part! Playing a character who never expressed anything negative except disapproval (perhaps, when the children were noisy) had a severe effect on me emotionally. I was in Caroline's clothes and character more hours than I was into being myself, with no outlet for my own feelings. On the surface everything seemed fine, but I was being so good it was driving me crazy! When I got home from the studio, I'd be hit by such overwhelming frustration I'd go out to the backyard and smash up my jars and dishes.

FW: How did you finally solve this problem?

KAREN: Fortunately the character has changed somewhat so that I'm not always standing in the background stirring a pot of stew—but can let loose in some dramatic scenes now and then.

FW: Are you close to your TV family in real life?

KAREN: Except for special cast parties now and then, we don't see much of each other after work. We just get out of our "work" clothes and go our separate ways. But while we're together the atmosphere is warm and friendly, especially with all the jokes flying back and forth.

FW: Have you had any conflict in portraying such an old-fashioned, unliberated woman?

KAREN: Yes, at first. But now I realize some women either have to or want to remain at home. I use my mother as an inspiration. She was a one-room schoolteacher and farmer and cooked on a wood-burning stove.

FW: You were married to an actor some years ago in New York. What caused the divorce?

KAREN: I made a dreadful mistake by trying to be a superwoman and a perfect wife and at the same time pursue my career. I was crazy! I expected too much of myself. No one is perfect. I was living in the precarious theater world, and I saw in marriage an identity and security.

FW: I've heard that you changed your name professionally many times. Why?

KAREN: I once felt so vulnerable that I took the name Kay Dillinger, figuring that with a gangster association I could keep people at a safe distance, yet dazzle them at the same time. Later, out in California, I used the name Gabriel Tree, from an English theatrical family. I had been moving around a great deal and thought this name would help give me roots and a feeling of belonging. Now I feel so comfortable about Karen that I can't see erasing any of her with another name.

Commemorating the 150th Anniversary of John James Audubon's classic
"Birds of America" engravings....

The
OF AMERICA
Bell Collection

□ A Series of 12 Bavarian Porcelain Bells depicting America's Most Beautiful Songbirds □ Exclusive Original Works of Art □ Hand Decorated and Trimmed in 22kt. Gold □ A Limited Edition Available Only in This 150th Anniversary Year of Audubon's "Birds of America" □ Original issue price guaranteed.

Birds delight even the most casual observer. They grace our world with beauty and song and inspire us with their freedom of flight. Now the minstrels of the meadows, woodlands, deserts and streams—the songbirds of America—have been captured brilliantly in a series of finely crafted porcelain bells.

Honoring John James Audubon

No one in recorded history has ever devoted such enormous energies and talents to capturing the wondrous beauty of birds as John James Audubon. In his almost life-long quest he recorded in brilliant watercolors the hundreds of birds native to North America.

To honor Audubon's herculean task in this the 150th anniversary year of his "Birds of America," the Danbury Mint has chosen 12 of the most beautiful songbirds of America and portrayed them on fine porcelain bells.

Exclusive Works of Art

One of the nation's foremost American wildlife artists has been commissioned to execute the original watercolor enhancing each bell. Jo Polseno, renowned bird painter, has created the original works of art for the 12 bells in this series. Working directly from life, in the woods and fields of America, the artist has conceived and created his designs—portraying each bird in authentic and exacting detail. By following the techniques used 150 years ago by John James Audubon, Polseno has created birds which seem to come alive. Each brushstroke captures the beauty, color and texture of the songbirds. We believe his achievements are remarkable. The accompanying full color illustrations demonstrate the painstaking accuracy and style which will be characteristic of the original watercolors for this fine collection.

Finest Bavarian Porcelain

The finest Bavarian porcelain has been used in creating this exquisite series. The shape of the bell was specially selected to complement the delicate scenes vividly portrayed. Each bell has been hand decorated with a band of precious 22kt gold. The fine skill of old world craftsmen has been employed to reproduce the fine detail of the birds on each bell. Every bell in the series will bear the hallmark of the Danbury Mint.

A Limited Edition At A Guaranteed Price

The Songbirds of America Bell Collection is being issued as a strictly limited edition. It is available only by advance reservation and only until December 31, 1976. The original issue price of $35.00 per bell is guaranteed to each subscriber throughout the series. Each subscriber will receive a numbered certificate of registration authenticating the status of the individual collection within the limited edition.

Actual size of bells 5 inches in height.

IS THERE ANY TIME LEFT FOR EACH OTHER?

Happiness Requires a Little Planning

By Norman M. Lobsenz and Marcia Lasswell

Not long ago, we talked with a young couple troubled by one of the most common, but seldom-mentioned, problems of marriage today. They did not have time to be together. "We operate on such a hectic schedule," they said, "that we almost have to make appointments to see each other."

Time is one of life's most precious assets. Unfortunately, time is exactly what most people want from us. Children, family, friends, co-workers, employers—all "outsiders" to the core relationship of husband and wife—make constant demands on our time. And on top of their claims are piled the irrelevant trivia of life—the lost keys, missing buttons, committee meetings, auto breakdowns, that take additional toll of our time.

Yet if there is one thing above all that a marriage needs for growth, for support, for understanding and for intimacy, it is time. Time for a couple to talk or to share warm silences. Time to work or to play together. Time to plan for the future. Time for sex. Time to be oneself.

How can a couple manage their lives so that they can meet their own time needs? Here are some practical suggestions:

● Find out how you are now using your marital time. Most of us "don't know where the time goes." But we can find out if we take the trouble to keep a fairly detailed "log" for a week or two. It doesn't have to be a moment-by-moment record. Simply make a note of what you do in each major block of hours.

For instance, a salesman discovered from his record-keeping that he spent less than 17 hours a week with his family. By cutting his work schedule 30 minutes a day and sleeping half an hour less each night, he gained almost 50 percent more time to be with his wife and children.

● Keep a "family calendar." A couple with four busy youngsters found that most of their "free" time was spent driving the children to or from their activities. To change that, the couple set up a Sunday night "family meeting" where each person blocked out the next week's schedule to preserve some "open" time for everyone. "When my husband and I locate a mutual block of open time," the wife said, "we put an X through it on the calendar. That means it is reserved for us to share alone."

● Stay loose. Many couples prefer to make decisions about their intimate time on the spur of the moment. And spontaneity does add spice. But to make sure you do have time for yourselves on that basis means you must avoid getting locked into too many scheduled responsibilities or activities. "We're not joiners," one man observes, "and we have asked friends to invite us only to informal gatherings, so that if we cancel at the last minute it won't matter. Would you call us selfish about time? I suppose so. But we think it's for a good cause!"

● Learn how to say "no." Many spouses take on so many outside responsibilities that they have little time left for their marriage. If you are one of them, you can gain a great deal of extra time by cultivating the ability to say "no." One couple hit upon the idea of "buying" time. "When someone asks us to be on a committee or join a club," they explained, "we say we will let them know in an hour or a day or however long we need to decide. Then we talk it over, figure out what we would have to give up if we accepted, and make a choice. It's surprising how often we say no—and feel all right about it!"

"Marital time involves not only 'how much,' but also 'how good.' Continuing emotional contact is essential . . . but the quality of that contact is as important as its quantity."

In our new book, No-Fault Marriage, we spell out the principles and techniques of self-counseling so that couples may deal constructively with their own marital problems. Couples can counsel themselves in matters of intimate time if they keep in mind these main points:

● Keep marital time intimate without letting it deteriorate into problem-solving sessions.

Marital time involves not only "how much," but also "how good." Continuing emotional contact is essential to a vital marriage. But the quality of that contact is as important as its quantity. Too often, spouses save their best energies for "outsiders" and give each other what remains.

● Don't feel guilty about jealously guarding intimate time. When you exclude the children, tell them why. A husband's and wife's first loyalties should be to each other.

No solution to the time problem will ever be perfect. One husband will want more togetherness, one wife will want more time alone. There almost is never as much time as we'd like to have to be me, you and us. The important thing, therefore, is to make the most of the time we do have. Ask yourself, "Where in my list of priorities do I rank marital closeness?" If you believe it ranks at the top, then arrange to spend more time nourishing and fostering it.

Marcia Lasswell, a California marriage counselor, and Norman Lobsenz, a writer on family relationships, are authors of the just-published book, No-Fault Marriage—The New Technique of Self-Counseling (Doubleday, $8.95).

PEOPLE QUIZ By John E. Gibson

How Much Does Your Appearance Really Count?

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Most people judge us by the way we look.
2. It makes sense to equate good looks with good behavior.
3. When accused of committing a crime, a good-looking person is generally judged more leniently.
4. The more beautiful a girl is, the better impression she makes on others, with regard to her character and personality.

It's said that beauty is only skin-deep—but are most people inclined to look deeper?

5. When a person meets you, his first impression is more likely to be influenced by your facial expression than how good-looking you are or how you're dressed.

ANSWERS

1. True—and this is particularly the case at a first meeting. Studies at Miami University show physical attractiveness to be a strong determinant of first impressions. And another psychological study has shown that physically attractive people are judged "to have attained higher occupational status than others, to be more socially outgoing, and to be more pleasant to be with." (Though beauty may be only skin-deep, many people aren't inclined to look deeper.)

2. False—according to an Iowa State University study of behavior differences between attractive and unattractive individuals. In tests involving four behavioral dimensions, "Actual differences in intelligence, honesty, helpfulness and nonprejudiced behavior between attractive and unattractive subjects were not found."

3. True. Studies indicate that, in general, people tend to be significantly more lenient in judging a person accused of a crime if he presents an attractive appearance. However, State University of New York investigators report research showing that in attempting to be impartial, judges or jurors may "lean over backward" and be more severe with the attractive defendant.

4. False. In one investigation, for example, subjects rated outstandingly beautiful girls "more negatively on personality traits, on expected marital happiness and adequacy as a wife and mother." The results ran the same for estimates of her general character. One explanation is that exceptionally attractive females are considered "a source of ego-threat to other females and, to a lesser extent, to males, and that such females are viewed as deficient in nonphysical areas."

5. True. Studies in nonverbal communication, conducted at Ohio State University, show that facial expression clearly dominates the perception of liking or disliking. And it follows that the expression on your face when another person first sees you is likely to carry more weight in influencing a positive or negative reaction than how you rate in the good-looks department or how well dressed you happen to be.

Fix a Fast Dinner-Starting With Chicken Marengo

This week, Food Editor Marilyn Hansen prepares a quick family meal using delicious foods from the supermarket's freezer. "It's fun," says Marilyn, "when you combine these products and add your own touch."

An easy dinner of Chicken Marengo uses frozen fried chicken and frozen potato tots.

MARILYN'S MENU

Chicken Marengo
Yellow Turnips and Carrots
Hot Rolls
Celery, Olive and Pickle Tray
Fall Gelatin Delight
Coffee Tea Milk

CHICKEN MARENGO

- 1 pkg. (1 lb., 12 ozs.) frozen fried chicken
- ½ teaspoon thyme leaves
- 1 pkg. (1 lb.) frozen potato tots
- 2 cans (1-lb. size) stewed tomatoes
- 1 can (6 ozs.) sliced mushrooms, undrained
- 1 clove garlic, crushed, or ¼ teaspoon garlic powder
- ½ cup frozen chopped onions
- 1 bay leaf
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- ¼ cup sherry or water
- Dash salt
- Few twists freshly ground black pepper
- Sprinkle of parsley for garnish

1. Preheat oven to 425° F. Arrange chicken pieces in large shallow baking pan and sprinkle with thyme. Spread potato tots in another shallow foil-lined, oiled baking pan. Bake both chicken and potato tots for 25 minutes.
2. In medium saucepan, combine stewed tomatoes, mushrooms, garlic, onion and bay leaf. Heat to boiling, stirring; then reduce heat, cover and simmer for 10 minutes.
3. Combine cornstarch and sherry until smooth. Stir into hot tomato mixture and heat, stirring, until sauce boils. Season to taste with a dash of salt and pepper.

4. Arrange chicken and potato tots on a large serving dish. Then pour hot sauce over all and sprinkle with parsley. Pass extra sauce in gravy boat.

Makes 4 to 6 servings

YELLOW TURNIPS AND CARROTS

- ½ pkg. (24-oz. size) frozen yellow turnips, cubed
- ½ pkg. (20-oz. size) frozen sliced carrots
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- 1 cup boiling water
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
- Few twists freshly ground black pepper
- 1 tablespoon chopped parsley

1. In medium saucepan, combine yellow turnips, carrots, salt, sugar and boiling water. Heat to boiling, cover, reduce heat and simmer for 5 to 8 minutes until vegetables are tender. Drain.

2. Toss vegetables with butter, pepper and parsley. Turn into serving dish.

Makes 4 servings

FALL GELATIN DELIGHT

- 1 pkg. (3 ozs.) orange-flavored gelatin
- 1 pkg. (3 ozs.) cherry-flavored gelatin
- 2 cups boiling water
- 20 ice cubes
- 1 cup sliced pitted grapes
- 1 cup coarsely chopped walnuts
- 1 can (8¼ ozs.) crushed pineapple, drained
- Whipped cream

1. In large bowl, dissolve orange- and cherry-flavored gelatin in boiling water.
2. Add ice cubes and stir until partially thickened. Remove remaining ice cubes. Stir in grapes, walnuts and pineapple.
3. Cover and refrigerate until firm, about one hour. Stir once during setting time to prevent fruits and nuts from settling.
4. Top with whipped cream and serve in dessert glasses.

Makes 6 to 8 servings

What's Smart: Our recipes take advantage of a number of frozen foods—fried chicken, potato tots, chopped onions, carrots and turnips. Frozen turnip chunks are a new addition to the freezer section at your supermarket. We suggest them for the rushed cook who is anxious to eliminate the "cutting up" steps in meal preparation.

AT LAST!

Natural Face Lifting By Exercise!

Now, from Hollywood, California, comes what may be the most important beauty book of the decade: FACE LIFTING BY EXERCISE, written by Madame Senta Maria Rungé. This book reveals a proven, minutes-a-day method of facial muscle shortening — done in your own home with your own ten fingers — that has been called, "the only method in the world by which one can lift a face naturally"

For What Is Loose, Aging, Flabby Skin Really? According To Madame Rungé, It Is Merely STRETCHED-OUT MUSCLES, That The Years Have Caused To Lose Their Ability To Hold Themselves Tight And Firm!

As Madame Rungé says, it is not the skin, but the firmness or looseness of the muscle flesh beneath that skin that really portrays a man's or woman's age.

In fact, as she points out, the collapse of the upper cheek muscles alone may cause more than 50 per cent of the aging appearance in the face. As she so vividly states:

"Between the ages of 21 and 40, for instance, the upper cheek muscles may have sagged as much as half an inch; and by the age of 60 by as much as one inch, which means that we have an inch too much hanging over the lower part of the face. This results in hollowness in the upper cheeks below the cheek bones, fullness and flabbiness in the lower cheeks, pouches from the mouth to the chin, folds above the laugh line, drooping mouth corners and jowls."

"In addition, the muscles of the upper eyelids may sag as much as half an inch or more between the ages of 20 and 60, causing eyebrows to shift down and upper eyelids to overlap lashes, making the eyes appear smaller. And those muscles attached to our throat skin may sag as much as two inches, resulting in what is termed a "turkey neck."

Thus, She Says, Since The Cause Of This Facial Aging Is Muscle Sagging, "It Stands To Reason That To Remedy It, WE HAVE TO SHORTEN THE MUSCLE GROUP RESPONSIBLE!"

"My method of isometric facial exercises remedies the cause of the aging process of the face by tightening these sagging muscles... thereby producing a firming where the face appears flabby, and a filling out by rebuilding atrophying muscle tissues. All in a natural and healthy way, thus providing a natural youthful face which may be retained throughout life."

"And the skin itself will always adapt to the size of its underlying foundation... The skin is merely a thin covering over the

IF YOU READ NOTHING ELSE, Read This One Paragraph From This Book

"You cannot help but see yourself looking younger, since each correctly applied exercise in this book has the power to turn your clock back regardless of age. And, if you can afford to eliminate 20 years from your appearance, this book can teach you how to do this in 3 to 4 months."

flesh that has to return to the size of the muscle flesh when it is shortened through isometric exercise."

And Says Madame Rungé: This NATURAL Way To Lift The Face Is Much More ENDURING Than Even The Finest Face Lift Through Plastic Surgery!

"Surgery can never restore the tone to either skin or muscles... It should be understood that no plastic surgeon, and in fact nothing but exercises, can tighten up unelastic muscles.

"For example, even the result from peeling off the wrinkled surface skin lasts only temporarily, since the poor muscle condition beneath the skin very soon causes the same wrinkles to form."

"A woman whose career depended on public performances consulted me at the recommendation of her plastic surgeon, after he had performed surgical skin tightening on her neck eight times."

"The new tight skin (from plastic surgery) does hold the contour of the face somewhat up, consequently giving it a rejuvenated look. Unfortunately, however, the collapsed muscle structure beneath it soon pushes the new skin downward again, which makes it necessary to repeat the lift."

But Now These Temporary, Artificial Methods, Can Be Replaced By Simple, Natural Exercise, Says Madame Rungé, WITH RESULTS LIKE THESE:

"Some people I knew were practicing grimaces, and foolishly believed they were exercising their facial muscles. But reason and logic tell us that grimacing merely misforms muscles into lines, furrows and ugly features."

"The actual application of every one of these exercises takes only about one minute. The process causes to tighten and to shorten specific muscles, by expanding them to their fullest natural limit. In this natural way, neither muscles nor skin can be overexpanded. In fact, the skin also benefits from the increased circulation."

Consequently, Madame Rungé states, "YOU MUST SEE INSTANT RESULTS FROM EVERY ISOMETRIC PERFORMANCE... because if you do not see results, it tells you that you have done something incorrectly."

repeated three times in succession. With this technique, models removed wrinkles from under the eyes, crow's feet, scowl and frown lines in just a few minutes right in front of the TV camera."

"Puffiness in the upper and lower eyelids containing fluid cannot be removed surgically. For its remedy refer to the eye exercise."

"A contour fault may be eliminated in a relatively short time. However, it usually takes from three to four months to restore sufficient tone to those muscles, to enable them to HOLD the acquired condition without having to exercise every day. (After that) perhaps two or three times a week will be sufficient."

"If my exercises are applied as instructed, the results are nothing short of amazing at any age. Most of my exercises if done correctly, produce instantaneous results, especially in areas where muscles are attached to the skin — as on the forehead, underneath

FROM A PLASTIC SURGEON:

As a practicing plastic surgeon for over thirty years, I have found that your work can play an important role in facial rehabilitation; and even the avoidance of excessive wrinkling and sagging.

The surgical face-lift is the only procedure that can remove the excess sagging skin in advanced cases; but even after the most complete lift, it is not long before the vertical folds on the neck and under the chin reappear.

The facial exercises as advocated by you offer promise to prevent this recurrence after the surgical lift, and possibly in many cases effect sufficient improvement that the lift could be postponed indefinitely.

CAN MADAME RUNGÉ TAKE UP TO 20 YEARS OFF THE APPEARANCE OF YOUR FACE... AS SHE HAS DONE FOR THOUSANDS OF OTHERS!

Senta Maria Rungé first introduced her FACE LIFTING BY EXERCISE method through a four-and-a-half page, cover-line article in Vogue Magazine.

After the overwhelming success of this article, Madame Rungé conducted a daily half-hour television program, demonstrating to Southern Californians the amazing effectiveness of her natural method. On this live program, right before their very eyes, women all over California saw almost "unbelievable" transformations take place in the facial contours of her mature models — and were able to duplicate these transformations, at the same time, in their own homes.

Soon, the walls of her Hollywood salon were literally covered with testimonials she received from approximately 12,000 viewers who followed the simple, step-by-step instructions given them on their television screens.

And now, in her great book, she has released this exact same FACE LIFTING BY EXERCISE method to women all over America!

the eyes, and in the crow's feet area. But we also get marvelous results on parts where the muscles lie deeper, as in the cheeks and jowls, which produces an immediate lift."

Prove Every Word Of It Yourself — At Our Risk!

Try this revolutionary, proven method for one full month, entirely at our risk. If you don't see results that astound you — from the very first day...if you are not completely delighted, simply return the book for every cent of your money back!

FAMILY WEEKLY'S "IT'LL NEVER SELL" AWARD Your last banana-split nightmare?

Bet you think this little number was sewn together at the last minute by the young lady's Aunt Tillie. Not on your life! The high-fashion designers of Paris have begun presenting their new collections for fall and winter, and this is designer Courreges's own inspired fashion vision. The vest is made of fox and lynx fur and features a "button fantasy" (you may recognize it as your last banana-split nightmare) and a big hood to play peek-a-boo in. Courreges suggests white gloves (but if you want a vest in every color, you will have to adjust your accessories accordingly). Regardless, you'll have to decide on a place to wear it—preferably not on the slopes this winter, where you might be mistaken for a snow bunny.

HAROLD ROBBINS TELLS IT LIKE IT IS "Attack a sacred cow"

Harold Robbins, one of the world's highest-paid authors, knows new writers haven't got it easy. His advice to beginners: "Go in for nonfiction. The most successful books are the 'how to' kind — sewing, cooking, exercising, whatever. Also the debunking books are a good bet — attack a sacred cow. Essays on unbelievable subjects do well — like what to do to combat insomnia during a hike through the Amazon Jungle when you're suffering from hay fever." As for those not yet in the budding stage but concerned with planting literary seeds, Robbins (his latest novel is The Lonely Lady) suggests: "Read a lot; start off with the greats. Read someone like Steinbeck. Next get to the papers; go through them from cover to cover. Next the magazines. You'll soon know what you should not write about!"

How much are your old books, magazines and letters worth? In your attic or cellar you might have some rare publications, says Charles W. Mann, professor of English and curator of the Rare Books Room at Pennsylvania State University's Pattee Library. "If you're talking $15 or $20, you surely have some valuable items," he says. "If you want $500 to $1,000, that's different, but there are still some items you might well have." A seemingly worthless pre-W.W.I book that might show up on the tables at your neighborhood garage sale or auction, Hike and the Aeroplane, by Tom Graham, is worth up to $1,000 — since Graham is really Sinclair Lewis. Books that were part of the W.W.II Armed Forces Project for Free Reading," read by thousands of soldiers throughout the world, are worth up to $30. And if you have old books and pamphlets on Black history, you're in luck. Professor Mann notes that, "Books on the history of the Negro in America, which sold for 50 cents three or four years ago, are now going for $10 to $15." Other items of possible value include: letters from soldiers; Stephen Foster original sheet music; the 1911 Encyclopedia Britannica; pamphlets and books on social experiments, like Old Economy, Pa., or New Harmony, Ind.; National Geographic before 1910; local histories; old books on handicrafts; books from the Victorian era, illustrated with color plates; and ornate Bibles from the Gilded Age. When trying to determine whether you have something of worth, there is certain basic information you must provide to a collector: title, author, binding, publisher, where published, date, number of pages and illustrations and condition.

PAUL FREES

You'd know that voice anywhere

We know a man with a keen ear and a set of gold-plated pipes who is able to work just a few hours a month and earn a six-figure income. You've never seen him. But you've heard him as the Pillsbury Doughboy on TV and as the voice of Boris Badinov on the "Bullwinkle" show and as the insects on the Raid commercials and as all the little people who sing "ho, ho, ho" along with the Jolly Green Giant. On radio he was that scary character who chanted: "A tale well-calculated to keep you in... Suspense." His name is Paul Frees, and he resides with his wife in San Francisco, where he works a little at his craft while watching the residuals roll in. "My voice is considered unique," states Frees, "so a deal had to be worked out after my retirement. I now record locally in a studio, and somebody from the agency drops by and picks up the tape." Another of Frees's specialties is what is known in the trade as "voice looping." When a movie is completed and an actor is not available, Frees is hired to dub in the actor's voice. But his range of picking up voice patterns is so great, it is not uncommon for him to "loop" dozens of voices in the same film. Take the case of the Jolly Green Giant commercials: Three helpers hold up cards reading: "ho." As the absolutely unique voice of all three, he is thus paid three times — one payment per "ho." Nice work if you can get it.

Shhh. Nobody's looking. House is all quiet. No one will ever know.

This year, you're giving yourself a wonderful Christmas present.

Because there are so many great albums that came out this year. Albums you've wanted to get.

And now you can get them!

You can get any 11 of them. In records or tapes. And not just any music, but the eleven albums you want the most. All for only $1.00, plus shipping and handling. By joining the Columbia Record & Tape Club now, as explained on the next page.

(P.S. Of course, you can also give some of the eleven records or tapes as gifts to others. Can you think of a better Christmas present for your music-loving friends?)

HOW THE CLUB OPERATES

Simply mail the application together with check or money order for $1.49 as payment (that's $1.00 for your first 11 selections, plus 49¢ for shipping and handling).

Every four weeks (13 times a year) you'll receive the Club's music magazine, which describes the Selection of the Month for each musical interest... plus hundreds of alternates from every field of music. In addition, up to six times a year you may receive offers of Special Selections, usually at a discount off regular prices.

If you wish to receive the Selection of the Month or the Special Selection, you need do nothing—it will be shipped automatically. If you prefer an alternate selection, or none at all, simply fill in the response card always provided and mail it by the date specified.

You will always have at least 10 days in which to make your decision. If you ever receive any Selection without having had at least 10 days to decide, you may return it at our expense, for full credit.

Your own charge account will be opened... the selections you order will be mailed and billed at the regular Club prices, which currently are: 8-track tapes and cassettes, $6.98 or $7.98; reel tapes, $7.98; records, $5.98 or $6.98—plus shipping and handling. (Multiple unit sets and Double Selections may be somewhat higher.)

After completing your enrollment agreement (by buying 8 selections within 3 years), you may cancel membership at any time. If you decide to continue, you'll be eligible for our generous money-saving bonus plan. Here, indeed, is the most convenient way possible to acquire the records and tapes you want—at the greatest savings possible! So don't delay.

Special Start-Your-Membership-Now Offer: you may also choose your first selection right now—and we'll give it to you at 50% off regular Club prices (only $3.49 for a record, $3.99 for a tape). Enclose payment now and you'll receive it with your 11 introductory selections. This half-price purchase reduces your membership obligation (immediately you'll then be required to buy just 7 more (instead of 8) in the next three years. Just check box in application and fill in the number of your first selection.

NOTE: all applications are subject to review and Columbia House reserves the right to reject any application.

WE'D PROBABLY BE BEST OFF TO START WITH KICKING

GOOD

I'LL BE THE KICKER AND YOU'LL BE THE RECEIVER...

YOU GO DOWN THE FIELD, SEE, AND I'LL KICK THE BALL TO YOU

BONK!

WHAT HAPPENED?

MAYBE YOU WEREN'T REALLY READY... MAYBE YOU WEREN'T IN THE RIGHT POSITION... THIS TIME GET IN THE RIGHT POSITION AND THEN TELL ME YOU'RE READY..

READY?

READY!

READY!

GOOD MORNING, BONNIE. HOW ARE YOU?

WELL, MY TOE HURTS WHERE I DROPPED A POT ON IT...

AND I GOT A RASH ON MY BACK 'CAUSE I'M ALLERGIC TO STRAWBERRIES

AND I CUT MY FINGER MAKING AN APPLE PIE...

AND I THINK I'M GETTING A STY IN MY EYE...

I WASHED MY HAIR AND IT CAME OUT ALL STRINGY...

AND I THINK I'M CATCHING A COLD...

AND AS FOR MY BRUISED ELBOW...

IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR
by JIM FOSTER

Our Story: NOW, IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR, THE HOTEL BUSINESS WAS SOMEWHAT PRIMITIVE, AND WHEN TWO PARTIES CLAIMED THE SAME RESERVATIONS THE PROBLEM WAS SETTLED IN THE FASHION OF THOSE DAYS.

THE LANDLORD RETURNS WITH THE PATROL JUST IN TIME, FOR TEMPERS ARE FLARING AND SOON WEAPONS WILL BE DRAWN.

IVOSH THE TERRIBLE BULGAR, AS HE CALLS HIMSELF, HAS MISGIVINGS. HE AND HIS MEN HAVE TRAINED FOR THIS ENCOUNTER ON LIQUID COURAGE, AND HE WONDERS IF, PERHAPS, HE HAS OVERDONE IT. PRINCE VALIANT HEROICALLY HOLDS THE STAIRS, BUT THE STAIRS FAIL TO HOLD VAL. THEN THE PATROL TAKES OVER.

NEXT WEEK - Repairs

What kept you?

We stopped to see Queenie!

Queenie?

A ol' an' dear fr'en' o' mine, Miz Wallet!

She got one o' them CBs!

Here's the attic junk I want hauled away, Joel!

Queenie here!

Yer ol' man spend all his time in front o' th' idiot box?

Has you try givin' th' idiot a box?

She's kinda th' "Dear Abby" o' th' City dump!

HI, GROUP! WHERE ARE YOU OFF TO?
BETTY HAS AN ITCH TO GO TO THE FLEA MARKET!

ARE YOU GOING TO BUY A FLEA COLLAR FOR YOUR DOG?
JUGHEAD, A FLEA MARKET IS A PLACE THAT SPECIALIZES IN CAST-OFF, OBSOLETE ITEMS!

OH, YOU'RE GOING TO BUY PARTS FOR ARCHIE'S CAR!

DON'T YOU JUST LOVE BROWSING IN THIS FLEA MARKET?
I'D PREFER FLEEING THIS MARKET!

JUGHEAD SHOULD HAVE COME WITH US TO SEE ALL THESE LOVELY KNICKKNACKS!
IT'S JUST AS WELL HE DIDN'T, HE HAS A KNACK FOR NICKING THINGS!

I'D LIKE TO GET A NICE CONVERSATION PIECE!
HOW ABOUT SOME OF THAT CONFEDERATE MONEY? THEY SAY MONEY TALKS!

SOMEONE BOUGHT A WATCH HERE FOR FIVE DOLLARS AND SOLD IT FOR $1,000!

BOY - I DIDN'T THINK THE RATE OF INFLATION WAS THAT BAD!

NO - A JEWELER FOUND AN INSCRIPTION INSIDE TO MARIE ANTOINETTE!

WELL, HERE'S A WHOLE BOX FULL OF WATCHES! MAYBE YOU'LL FIND NAPOLEON'S TINY TIM TICKER.

ARCHIE, DO YOU SUPPOSE THIS WATCH I BOUGHT IS REALLY VALUABLE?
LET'S GO TO MY WORKSHOP AND OPEN IT AND SEE!

THERE DOES SEEM TO BE SOME SORT OF INSCRIPTION IN IT!
OH, HOW EXCITING! QUICK! WHAT DOES IT SAY?

BARNEY GOOGLE and SNUFFY with FRED LASSWELL

IT SEEMS LIKE PAW'S BEEN GONE OFF A MIGHTY LONG TIME - I'D A-MARKED TH' DAYS OFF ON TH' CALENDAR--

-- IF I HAD A CALENDAR AN' A MARKER

YORE THREE DAYS ARE UP, SNUFFY-- YE CAN GO HOME NOW

HOW LONG ARE YOU IN FER, TATER?

Hi and Lois by MORT WALKER and DIK BROWNE

OKAY, LOIS, FACE THE HARD, COLD FACTS...

THERE'S ONLY ONE LIVING ROOM IN THIS HOUSE...

AND THERE'S NO WAY IT'S GOING TO CLEAN ITSELF UP!

I GUESS I'D BETTER NOT THROW THESE OUT TILL I GO THROUGH THEM!

THIS DOESN'T LOOK RIGHT HERE, IT'S TOO CROWDED.

THE BEST WAY TO STRAIGHTEN UP THIS DESK IS TO GET THINGS OUT OF SIGHT TILL I CAN SORT THEM.

WHAT'S WRONG, HONEY?
OH, I CLEANED THE LIVING ROOM TODAY. IT'S SO DISCOURAGING.

GEE! IT LOOKS GREAT TO ME!

REDEYE by GORDON BESS

HERE COMES THE STAGECOACH!

QUICK, TANGLEFOOT! SLIP INTO THIS DISGUISE

OKAY--- NOW WHAT?

GO STAND IN THE MIDDLE OF THE ROAD AND WHEN THE STAGECOACH STOPS FOR YOU, THE REST OF US WILL ATTACK!

WHY DO I ALWAYS GET THE CRUMMY JOBS?!

YOU SURE THIS WILL WORK?!
OF COURSE! YOU DON'T THINK THE DRIVER IS GOING TO RUN OVER AN OLD LADY DO YOU?!

STEVE PLUNGES INTO WORK IN ORDER TO EASE THE PAIN OF SUMMER'S DISAPPEARANCE

STEVE, WE HAD A CRACK BLACK AGENT COMING OUT OF AFRICA ON THAT HIJACKED AIRLINER

BUT HE DID NOT SHOW UP AMONG THE RESCUED PASSENGERS

EITHER THE BADDIES CAUGHT UP WITH HIM AT THE TIME OR HE SLID BACK UNDERGROUND TO PROTECT HIMSELF!

THE DATA IN HIS HEAD IS ON THE RED AVIATION BUILDUP IN THE EMERGING NATIONS

WHICH HE WAS ON HIS WAY HOME TO REPORT IN DETAIL

WITH YOU AT HAND WE HOPE HE WILL CONTACT YOU... YOUR JOB IS TO GET HIM OUT!

ANY SIGNS OR RECOGNITION SIGNALS?

NO! HE WAS SAFELY OUT... THEN THE HI-JACK DUMPED HIM BACK IN!

THE BIG JET DRONES ON THROUGH THE NIGHT...

THEN, AS STEVE FLIES DEEP INTO EMERGING AFRICA... EACH STOP BECOMES MORE CHARGED WITH TENSION!

HOW DOES THE DIRTY YANK ENTER OUR COUNTRY WITH SUCH EASE?

THE DIRTY YANK PAYS OUT CLEAN MONEY!

...FOR A BETTER PRICE THAN THE NEW RED CRAFT

EL KOBOKO WILL LISTEN! HE NEEDS THE 'FINDER'S FEE' TO BUY NEW WIVES!

PONYTAIL BY LEE HOLLEY

GET LOST

HEY, WHAT'S BUGGING YOU TODAY?!

NEVER MIND, DONALD!

CAN'T YOU GIVE ME A HINT?!

I DON'T HAPPEN TO FEEL LIKE IT, DONALD

WOW! MY FATHER DIDN'T TELL ME THIS PART ABOUT GIRLS!

POOR DONALD!

BUT I DON'T KNOW IF YOU'RE MAD AT ME OR NOT!

WELL, A WOMAN LIKES TO KEEP A MAN GUESSING!

I'LL LET YOU KNOW WHEN I FEEL LIKE IT!

OH, OKAY...

I'LL JUST HELP YOU TO DECIDE A LITTLE SOONER!

HÄGAR The Horrible

I'M SICK OF MY HAIR!

DO YOU LIKE THE WAY I WEAR MY HAIR?

YEAH, FINE...

WELL, I HATE IT! I'VE GOT TO DO SOMETHING ABOUT IT!

HOW ABOUT IF I TEASED IT?

FINE...

SIGH

OH, STOP IT!

IF YOU DON'T LIKE IT JUST SAY SO!
