

Tax Cut Pressures Growing On Carter

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - President-elect Carter is getting nearly unanimous advice from his staff, big business and organized labor that tax breaks are needed to boost the economy.

But Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill, who will be House speaker in the new Congress, was more cautious after a leadership meeting with Carter today.

O'Neill said 60 per cent of the money from the nation's last tax cut "went into the banks of America," where it did little to stimulate the economy.

preceded Carter sessions with the 250 members of the House Democratic Caucus and with a group of 25 senators, including freshmen.

A participant in the House leadership meeting, who asked not to be identified, said Carter emphasized that he wants Congress to approve an economic package including public works jobs along with a possible tax cut.

Carter agreed to meet with the leaders again before Congress organizes in January, the participant said.

The President-elect conferred Thursday with 15 business leaders who gave him a plan to reduce taxes and boost jobs.

The plan called for a $15-billion tax cut, a $3-billion increase in the investment tax credit and a $5-billion program to create jobs primarily among youth, welfare recipients and the long-term unemployed.

Reginald Jones, chairman of General Electric Co., who spoke for the group of corporate executives, and Thomas B. Lance, Carter's choice for budget director, later said the President-elect observed that the plan was similar to one suggested by Carter's staff.

The executives' tax plan would reduce taxes for persons earning less than $20,000 by an average of 19 per cent. Seventy-two per cent of the tax cut would go to such persons.

Jones said the proposal was designed to restore to taxpayers the money they lost due to inflation-related increases in taxes since 1972.

Lance told reporters that "from the standpoint of real growth and unemployment, we're in a recession already." He indicated that the seriousness of the economic situation would require quick action by Carter after he takes the oath of office Jan. 20.

Another form of tax relief was recommended Thursday by Leonard Woodcock, president of the United Auto Workers. After a separate meeting with Carter, Woodcock said he favored a tax rebate because "it can be done quickly" and would have "an immediate effect."

A tax cut would be strung out over a period of many months. The tax issue was only one in a series reviewed by the President-elect in meetings that stretched over nearly 15 hours.

United States To Collect All Nobel Prizes Tonight

By JOHN VINOCUR
Associated Press Writer

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) - The United States collects all the Nobel Prizes being given this year at ceremonies tonight, but the physics winner says it may not make a clean sweep again unless the U.S. government puts more money into basic scientific research.

Another 1976 laureate, novelist Saul Bellow, said some of the credit must go to Hitler, Mussolini and Stalin because they drove Europe's best minds to America.

King Carl Gustaf hands out the five prizes - worth $160,000 each - to seven Americans at ceremonies this evening in the Stockholm Concert Hall.

In addition to Bellow for literature, the winners are Burton Richter of Stanford University and Samuel C.C. Ting of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology for physics, William N. Lipscomb of Harvard for chemistry, Milton Friedman of the University of Chicago for economics, and Baruch S. Blumberg of the University of Pennsylvania and D. Carleton Gajdusek of the National Institute for Neurological Diseases for medicine.

No Peace Prize is being given this year.

In the last 25 years, 48 of the 100 prizes given have been won by Americans, and Americans have won all the science prizes four times. But never before in the 75-year history of the awards have all of them gone to one country.

Richter, leaving a U.S. Embassy luncheon Thursday as a loudspeaker in the vestibule played Kate Smith's record of "God Bless America," told reporters:

"There's a certain amount of pride that we're all Americans, but I think it's an accident. The awards are for work that was done over a long period of time and started a long time ago. You can't say it's because of the great way America treats science. The fact is government support for basic research is going down.

"If this stimulates more support, then I'm all for a little nationalism. But we'd better be careful or there won't be another such occasion."

"It's a country full of foreigners who are Americans," said Bellow. "It was meant to be a universal country and it is. Its support for science has been lavish, but Europe drove out its best minds. Mussolini, Hitler and Stalin were very big contributors in providing us with thinkers and teachers."

Warn Expected Oil Price Hike To Spur Inflation

By KENNETH J. FREED
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - An expected increase in the cost of imported oil will boost the U.S. price of gasoline and fuel oil and accelerate the country's inflation rate, a new government study says.

The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries meets next week in Qatar in the Persian Gulf to consider raising oil prices now set at about $12 to $13 a barrel.

The United States opposes any increase in OPEC prices. "An increase of even a penny a barrel cannot be justified," says Federal Energy Administrator Frank Zarb.

Yet U.S. officials and diplomats say the only real question is how severe the increase will be, not whether there will be a rise. Educated guesses put the hike at between 5 per cent and 15 per cent.

Whatever the final figure, the impact will be great on the American economy as a whole and on individual U.S. consumers.

At the moment, nearly 43 per cent of all oil used in the United States is brought in from other countries, a statistic likely to reach 46 per cent in 1977. During the Arab oil embargo of 1973, the United States imported about 36 per cent of its oil.

A new State Department study, released Thursday after being cabled to American embassies around the world Wednesday, predicts that a rise in OPEC charges will have the following effects on the American consumer:

-Gasoline prices now averaging about 60 cents a gallon will go up .8 cents a gallon for every 5 per cent increase in OPEC costs.

-Heating oil prices will also jump about .8 cents a gallon for every 5 per cent boost in OPEC prices. Heating fuel now costs about 41 cents a gallon. In New England, add another tenth of a cent because of a greater dependence on imported oil.

-The current 5-6 per cent inflation rate as measured by consumer prices would probably go up by half a per cent for every 5 per cent OPEC raises prices.

-The current U.S. balance-of-trade deficit will deepen as the United States buys more overseas than it sells.

-The increase in the Gross National Product, the measure of the value of all goods and services produced in the country, would be slowed by 2 per cent per year for every 5 per cent OPEC increase.

Near 500 Pints Of Blood Given

Nearly 500 pints of blood were collected during a three-day Bloodmobile drive for Pitt County this week, according to Mrs. Ruth Taylor, executive secretary of the Pitt Red Cross.

Mrs. Taylor said that the three day blood program saw total collections of 493 pints of blood and 21 persons rejected for various health reasons.

She reported that Tuesday's Bloodmobile visit to Farmville resulted in the collection of 87 pints of blood and three persons rejected.

On Wednesday at the Moose Lodge here, local citizens gave 157 pints of blood. Mrs. Taylor said, and there were five persons rejected.

The Bloodmobile visited the Du Pont Plant at Kinston on Thursday and collected 249 pints of blood, she said. The Du Pont effort, with all collections credited to Pitt's blood quota, saw 13 rejects.

Mrs. Taylor noted that everyone was pleased with the three-day turnout and she thanked each person who donated. Several area firms sent groups of donors to the Moose Lodge and that effort helped the overall total, she added.

She thanked the women of the Greenville Service League for their help and also the volunteer nurses and other volunteer help who assisted in the Farmville and Du Pont visits.

Leo Jenkins Recipient Of N.C. Public Service Award

ROCKY MOUNT - Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, Chancellor of East Carolina University, has been named recipient of the 1977 North Carolina Public Service Award.

The announcement was made by Gus Tulloss of Rocky Mount, chairman of the North Carolina Public Service Award Society.

Tulloss said that Jenkins, who announced recently that he will step down as chancellor in 1978, is the fifth North Carolinian to receive the award.

A banquet honoring Jenkins will be held in Raleigh on Feb. 15, according to Tulloss, who pointed out that speakers for the event will be announced later. The Cystic Fibrosis Foundation is the beneficiary of the annual banquet, he added.

The chancellor has served East Carolina as its president and then chancellor since 1960. Prior to that time, he had served as Dean of East Carolina Teachers College for 13 years.

The North Carolina Public Service Award Society was organized to recognize annually an elected or non-elected public servant in the state who has made major contributions to the welfare of the citizenry.

Former award recipients have been former Governor Robert W. Scott, the late Senator B. Everett Jordan, former Senator Sam J. Ervin Jr., and R. Philip Hanes Jr.

RECORD-FINALLY

I ordered a record album from WCTI-TV. It was called "Convoy." I mailed the check Feb. 16 and it said allow six weeks for delivery. I haven't received it yet. I called the tv station and they gave me the address to write to. I wrote, but still haven't heard anything. I want to get either the record or my $5.15 back. P. S.

Hotline wrote to Homestead Marketing Corporation, Box 23117, Tampa, Fla. 33622 in June. We, like you, got no answer. So, in October, we called. We talked to Phyllis Blandi in Customer Service who said she'd mail out a replacement album the same day. She said the first had been mailed, but apparently had been lost. She said to allow up to eight weeks, as the mails were slow because of the UPS strike. It did take nearly eight weeks, but you recently called Hotline to report you have your album.

HOTLINE FEEDBACK

WRONG NUMBER

A telephone at a private residence rang too much Wednesday night because its number was incorrectly given as that of St. Gabriel's Catholic Rectory, which one was to call with questions about gifts for prisoners at the Maury prison unit. The number should have been 758-1504. One digit was incorrect. We're glad the response to the Wednesday appeal was so good, but we apologize to the couple so inconvenienced. They say they simply left their phone receiver off the hook last night.

Ending UPS Walkout

GREENWICH, Conn. (AP) - United Parcel Service will begin accepting packages Monday in the 15 eastern states, the company said today. The Teamsters Union ended an 84-day strike against the firm Thursday.

UPS officials said the 17,000 strikers will return to work Monday. Packages will be accepted within the 15-state area for delivery anywhere beginning that day.

But packages coming into the area affected by the strike - for instance, a package to be sent from Chicago to Hartford - will not be accepted until Tuesday or Wednesday. Complete service will be restored by midweek, officials said.

UPS will make deliveries within the normal time limits, which range from one to three days, depending on how far the package is going. A spokesman said there is a "minimum" backlog in storage centers and UPS does not store parcels in warehouses.

Japanese Designers Making Big Splash In International Fashion

By KATHRYN TOLBERT TOKYO (AP) — Ten years ago, it would not have been possible for a Japanese designer like Jun Ashida to buy a boutique in the fashionable Ginza section of Tokyo. He was surprised then, when a Japanese bank had enough faith in the booming business of fashion in Japan to lend him nearly a million dollars to purchase a shop among the business establishments in downtown Tokyo.

The land is reputed to be the most expensive in Japan at $16,363 U.S. per square meter. "We're really just a small company," said Ashida manager Paul Jeffers. "We thought we would rent it, but the bank suggested we purchase and agreed to the loan."

It is a sign of the success Japanese fashion designers are enjoying, presenting collections and opening shops in Tokyo, New York and Paris. Yet most of them are the first generation of Japanese to design Western clothes, which came to the Far East on a large scale only after World War II.

Hanae Mori recently opened her second boutique in New York, where she is known for her Japanese style prints on flowing chiffon gowns, and she will soon have a Paris boutique as well.

Kenzo Takada became the first Japanese to have his designs chosen for "Clothes of the Year" by the "Museum of Costume" in Bath, England.

"Fashion in the mid-'70s can be summed up as the Age of Jap, the time when Kenzo Takada rose to share with Saint Laurent the status of the world's most pacesetter and influential designer," the museum's pamphlet says.

"Japanese designers have been studying the French spirit and feeling of clothing for a long time," said Jun Ashida. "Now we have become more confident and we are able to make clothes in our own feeling, using traditional styles."

But while some Japanese designers are impressing the West with the flavor of the Orient, Japanese women still prefer purely European and American styles in their clothes.

Hanae Mori has had to create different lines for her Japanese customers, staying away from the traditional woodblock print influence on the materials she uses for dresses in New York. Ashida has begun to manufacture clothes in France and import them into Japan with "Made in France" on the label.

Department stores have been competing for licensing rights to manufacture the clothes of Saint Laurent, Nina Ricci, Givenchy and Cardin, all of which are advertised widely in trains and subways.

"They don't get back in sales what they put into advertising," said one designer's business manager. He complained the stores spent more money promoting the French names than the Japanese, just for prestige.

The clothing market in Japan, however, can accommodate more than one nationality of designer. Statistics show the average household spends more for clothing than housing, and 26 Tokyo department stores had sales in August of $326 million of which clothing sales accounted for $137 million.

"Japanese women definitely spend more money on clothing than French or American women," said Pierre Baudry of the French Fashion Center in Tokyo.

"I think it's because of the kimono. It's nothing to pay from $500 to $1,000 for one kimono, and when you buy all the accessories, it's way over a thousand dollars. Just think of the type of Western clothing you can buy for that," he said.

The French Fashion Center began a year ago to help French manufacturers export to Japan. Representing the French textile industries and the Union of French Apparel Industries, it has sponsored two French fashion fairs in Tokyo.

"Technically we represent the union, but in fact we represent the whole profession," Baudry said.

At the fairs, French manufacturers show their ready-to-wear lines to Japanese businessmen, even ahead of the showings in France.

Sales in the first fair totaled $4.5 million.

Baudry said they had been a little worried that Japanese manufacturers would resent the French intrusion but, on the contrary, they were found anxious to widen their lines.

"If a Japanese manufacturer offers the higher-class, imported French clothing along with his medium-priced, Japanese-made clothing, he can get into more department stores," Baudry said.

"The consumption of textile goods in Japan has been going up and Japanese women are ready to pay 20 per cent more for imported dresses," he said. He noted that there were more American-style clothes being sold in Japan and said it started when the recession hit the United States.

"American manufacturers tried to get into Japan, but only the designers have been successful. The real manufacturers couldn't get in.

Program Gives Students Preview

NEW YORK (AP) — Students still in school are getting a taste of the business world via a realistic career education program, and as a result of their participation many who have graduated have started successful business careers.

Project Invest, which stands for Insurance Vocational Education Student Training, provides high school and junior college students with a laboratory model of an automobile insurance agency.

"We use auto insurance as the vehicle, because high school students have such a keen interest in the automobile," says Arthur F. Blum, executive vice president of the Independent Insurance Agents of America, which sponsors the program nationally.

"But the training in business practices allows the student to go into a different field.

"The program puts the students in realistic business situations and makes them responsible for making management decisions," he explains. "Those in the program compete for fictitious clients and profits, thereby learning to function in the competitive U.S. economic system."

After being screened for grades, attitudes, typing skills, math aptitude and good attendance, qualified students attend classes two hours a day for the entire school year.

Students set up and operate their own insurance agency. As starting capital, each agency obtains a loan of $1,000 from the "bank." They are expected to repay this loan with "interest" as one of the operating expenses of their agency.

Policy applications are processed, simulated premiums are received and commissions are earned. The agents are encouraged to solicit customers among their friends, relatives, driver training students and others.

Students rotate positions so that each one has the responsibilities of mail and supplies, policywriting, underwriting, accounting, secretary-receptionist, adjuster and office manager.

Though some who take Project Invest go on to college and other professions, many choose to remain in the business world, says Blum, adding that "Invest has meant higher salaries, opportunities for promotion and greater satisfaction."

The pilot Invest program was started at Hollywood High in 1970, a joint venture of the Los Angeles unified school district and the independent insurance agents of that city. "It confirmed that young people learn faster and better by doing what interests them, rather than by reading about it from a textbook," Blum says.

Sharon Watson, a business major, was recruited for that first Project Invest program by her accounting teacher. After graduation she was immediately hired by one of the many insurance company executives who regularly visit the laboratories and compete to hire the graduates.

"When I was in high school my goal was to try to be a gal Friday in any business. But Project Invest pointed me to a specific career," says Miss Watson, who today is a personal lines underwriter carrying a full load of responsibility.

Donna McPherson graduated from Thomas Jefferson High School in Dallas last June after completing the program. She now holds a responsible position in a Dallas insurance agency doing auto rating and fire and homeowner's insurance.

"There are no boundaries on individual initiative or creativity with the program," says Charlene Geier, an instructor in Greenfield, Wis., High. "When a class finds that it needs new job positions, it creates them. For example, we created the position of advertising executive, who is responsible for making posters for the school and designing ads for the school newspaper, to advertise

Bride Sends Bill With Thank-You

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1976 by Chicago Tribune, N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: A niece of mine was recently married, so I sent her a set of crystal and silver salt and pepper shakers for a wedding gift. It was not inexpensive for a woman of my means.

With her thank-you note she enclosed a bill for half again the amount I had spent on her gift. It seems that this bride had returned my gift to the jewelry store from which it was purchased, and selected a more expensive set of salt and pepper shakers in its place.

This girl is not dumb. She's a college graduate. Not wanting to make a fuss, I paid the difference. What would you have done?

FLABBERGASTED IN FLORIDA

DEAR FLABBERGASTED: I'd have made a fuss and NOT paid the difference. Furthermore, the salesperson at the jewelry store should not have allowed the exchange without your approval.

DEAR ABBY: I am very much in love with a man I work with. The problem is his wife. Every time he starts to tell her he wants a divorce, she gets herself pregnant and he decides that he can't go through with it.

This is the third time she's pulled that on him, Abby, and I am tired of waiting for him, but I can't break it off because I love him too much.

He is 34 and I'm 20, but I've been on my own since I was 15. We've been seeing each other for three years. I could get another man real fast, but I don't want anyone but him. I know he loves me because he's so jealous, he's threatened to mess up my face if I go out on him.

Do you think he'll ever leave his wife and marry me? Am I foolish to wait for him? What should I do?

ONE-MAN GIRL

DEAR GIRL: Wake up! No woman "gets herself pregnant." The man who claims he "loves" you is using you. No, I don't think he'll ever leave his wife and marry you. And yes, I think you're foolish to wait for him.

DEAR ABBY: I have a beautiful adult daughter who is afraid to smile because she has yellowish teeth. She brushes her teeth regularly and visits her dentist often, but her teeth just naturally have that dingy look.

This is a big problem for her. She looks so pretty when she smiles, but she is so self-conscious about her teeth she won't let herself smile.

Is there a solution? How about caps like the movie stars wear?

MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: If there is a way to whiten naturally yellowish, well-cared for teeth, I've never heard of it, and neither has any dentist I've consulted. Covering all the front teeth with artificial caps would accomplish the desired effect, but it would necessitate partially destroying healthy teeth, which is not recommended by most dental experts.

ANTIBURGLARY HINTS FROM A PRO BURGLAR

SOMERS, Conn. (AP) — A few precautions by homeowners, including leaving lights on when not at home, could help prevent burglaries, says a professional house burglar now in Connecticut's maximum security prison.

"The majority of burglaries occur at homes that are in the blackout stage. For fear of losing a few pennies of electricity, these people bring a lot of sorrow upon themselves," the inmate said in a recent interview at the Somers prison. He's serving a three-to-eight-year term for breaking and entering.

In addition to leaving some lights on, he suggests closing doors to an empty garage and frosting the windows so a burglar can't see inside, leaving a radio on near a rear entrance and keeping a dog that barks loudly.

Non-Political Lebanese Cabinet Is Assembled

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Premier Salim el-Hoss has formed a postwar Lebanese cabinet of eight nonpoliticians, half of them Christians and half of them Moslems.

"You will be guided by the basic reality that Lebanon is the homeland of Moslems and Christians without any privilege or distinction for one over the other," Christian President Elias Sarkis told the new government of nonpartisan technocrats at its first meeting Thursday night.

The president's words and the religious division of the cabinet reflect the equal division of power which Syria wants to replace the prewar Christian dominance. It is also symbolic of the defeat in the civil war of the leftist Moslems and their Palestinian allies, who demanded majority rule because the Moslems are now in the numerical majority.

The cabinet includes three economists, an industrialist, a lawyer, two doctors and an architect. Two of them are Sunni Moslems, two are Maronite Christians, and the rest are one Shiite Mospem, one Druze moslem, one Roman Catholic and one Greek Orthodox Christian.

"The whole nation has to be rebuilt anew, including state institutions, the army, internal security forces, the crippled economy and devastated cities and villages," Sarkis told the cabinet after he named it by decree.

"I know the task is monumental, but I am confident you will all take up the historic challenge with me. I am certain you will shoulder the heaviest burden any Lebanese government has ever carried with a spirit of responsibility and dededication."

Hoss, a Sunni Moslem who was an economics professor and the head of a government bank, will also head the ministries of economics, trade, petroleum, industry and information.

Hoss goes before the 99-man parliament with a policy statement next week to seek a vote of confidence.

He declined to comment on reports that he would ask for sweeping powers to declare a state of emergency and rule with Sarkis by decree.

The Palestinians and their leftist Lebanese Moslem allies pledged support and cooperation for the new government. So did the right-wing Phalange party, which has the largest Christian militia.

But former President Camille Chamoun, who heads the second-largest Christian militia, said he would wait for the government's policy statement. He had wanted a cabinet of warlord politicians like Lebanon always had before the civil war.

Obstacle Is Lifted On Treaty Over 'Hostages'

By SERGE SCHMEMANN
Associated Press Writer
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — A compromise between

Western and Arab nations has lifted the first big obstacle to a comprehensive United Nations treaty against the taking of hostages.

As a result, a West German resolution calling for a 35-nation panel to draft the treaty next year was expected to win strong approval today from the General Assembly's legal committee.

Subsequent passage by the full assembly is largely a formality.

Previous efforts to get concrete U.N. action against acts of terrorism have been blocked by Arab nations and others of the Third World because usually the terrorists' targets were Israel, white colonialists or West European governments.

Conservative Middle East and African governments had a change of heart when their own radicals began using terrorism against them. The eyeopener was the raid in December, 1975, on the Vienna headquarters of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, when the raiders threatened to kill the oil ministers of Iran and Saudi Arabia.

The breakthrough on the latest proposal came Thursday when Libya agreed to drop a proposed amendment, that would have limited the scope of the treaty to those taking "innocent hostages." In the Libyan view, this would have exempted Arab guerrillas taking Israeli hostages, for example.

In return, the West Germans and their 37 cosponsors, most of them Western governments but including a number from the Third World, dropped reference in the resolution to punishment or extradition of those taking hostages.

The sponsors also amended the resolution to instruct the drafting committee "to consider suggestions and proposals from any state, bearing in mind the views expressed during the debate on this item" at the current assembly.

A West German diplomat said the compromise was the "product of a remarkable sense of cooperation and good will from all nations." An American diplomat said it was an "encouraging sign."

Observers agreed that militant Arabs could still give trouble in the drafting committee or when the treaty comes before the General Assembly for a vote next year. But one American source said approval of the preliminary resolution would "in itself wield a political force."

DENVER, Col (AP) — The United Methodist Committee on Relief, at a meeting here, voted a record $3 million in allotments to a variety of projects ranging from world hunger to disaster relief and rehabilitation to refugee service.

Police List 3 Accidents

An estimated $1,775 property damage resulted yesterday from a series of three collisions investigated by Greenville Police.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 2:55 p.m. mishap at the intersection of First and Reade Streets involving a truck driven by Johnny Ray Taylor of Route 1, Vanceboro, and a car driven by Pettie Clyde Kemp of 208 River Dr.

Police, who made no charges, estimated damage at $300 to the Taylor vehicle and $400 to the Kemp car.

Martha Gray Whitley of Kinston was charged with failing to yield the right of way following investigation of a 4:09 p.m. mishap on Charles Street, 300 feet North of the Greenville Boulevard intersection.

Officers reported the Whitley car collided with an auto driven by Leland Bruce Whitaker of 404 Pittman Dr., causing an estimated $150 damage to the Whitaker car and $400 damage to the Whitley vehicle.

No charges were reported following investigation of a 1:52 p.m. mishap at the intersection of First and Greene Streets.

Police reported a truck driven by Nadine Savage Carroll of Route 2, Ayden, collided with a car operated by Earl Wayne Mills of 2602 Tryon Dr.

Damage was estimated at $225 to the Carroll truck and $300 to the Mills car.

Public Education Will Change

It has long been evident that some changes in North Carolina public education were overdue. A recent two-year study by the Department of Public Instruction confirms this.

The study says there are economic inequities between school districts, and also that there are too many school administrative units in the state. According to the study, "It has been noted that disparities in services for students across North Carolina are a reflection, in part, of basic economic and social disparities from region-to-region in the state. People living in poor areas just cannot afford the level of service that those in wealthier areas can provide."

It recommends increasing state financing from the current 70 percent to nearly 100 percent. The study also recommends reducing the number of school districts from 145 to around 70. Finally the recommendations call for statewide standards for curriculum, personnel and facilities. Presently there is a variety of local standards.

Change comes slowly, of course, but there is a need for reducing the number of school administrative units in the state. Certainly, too, more uniform financing of the schools — and this would have to be done through the state picking up most of the cost — would go far toward providing more equitable educational opportunities for students throughout the state.

There would, too, have to be some state-wide standards for the public schools. Having said that, however, we would have to question whether the State Department of Public Instruction should exert so much control over local schools that the ability to innovate and experiment on the local level would be lost.

There is considerable room for change in North Carolina public education, and the state and local educational units should begin planning for some of the changes that the Department's study recommends.

What Next For Henry?

WASHINGTON — The question of who will be the new secretary of state under President-elect Jimmy Carter has been answered. He is Cyrus Vance, and almost everyone agrees he is a very nice person.

But the question of what happens to Henry Kissinger still hangs in the air. How do you take a man who for the past eight years has had more power than anyone in the world and suddenly put him out to pasture? The answer is that in a free country you can't.

If Henry was foreign minister of China it would be a simple matter. All you would have to do is put up wall posters on January 21, denouncing Kissinger as a "capitalist roader" who imported X-rated films from helicopters and his press corps. He may still be invited to embassy parties and state dinners, but protocol will demand he sit below the salt. Henry hasn't sat below the salt for so long he has no idea what that end of the table looks like. Actually, it's not much different than sitting above the salt except that everyone notices it.

So the question is what can we do to help Henry Kissinger get through his decompression tank with the least amount of damage to his psyche.

The most unfair thing you

could ask of a man who has won the Nobel Peace Prize is to suddenly start using the Eastern Airline Shuttle from Washington to New York. This is a cruel and unusual punishment and after the comforts of Air Force One it could send a man into a tailspin from which he would never recover.

As a taxpayer I would have no objection if we let Henry keep Air Force One for at least a year. (It wasn't generally known, but even though President Ford had custody of Air Force One he always had to ask Henry whether he was going on a trip before the President could use it.)

I would also let Kissinger keep his Secret Service men for a year—not just to keep reporters from prying through his garbage but to protect him from publishers for whom Henry has promised to write a book. When Kissinger finally signs his book contract there will be 50 publishers who feel they have been double-crossed. Henry's life will still be in danger when several editors and agents discover Henry made a deal with somebody else.

Lastly, I would give Mr. Kissinger a very large office at the State Department—as large as the one he has now.

This is not just for the sake of appearance. In the past eight years Henry has met

Abused Child's Friend

By ERIC NEWHOUSE
Associated Press Writer

CLEVELAND, Tenn. (AP) — Saying he still bears the scars of his own beatings, country music star Hank Snow promised Thursday night to spearhead a drive to help abused children.

"My parents were divorced when I was 8," Snow told an audience of about 3,000 at a benefit concert for the Melisha Gibson Memorial Fund, named for the 4-year-old beaten to death here Oct. 13.

"That divorce sent two of my sisters to foster homes and me to live with my grandmother," said Snow. "And that's where my abuse started—I was beaten nearly every day. And when I could stand it no longer, I ran away to join my mother, whom I loved dearly."

But, Snow said, his mother had remarried for security.

"And I realized I had again fallen victim to child abuse

Fighting Crime Is Costly

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Crime is a costly business to every North Carolinian, even those who escaped being a direct victim.

Last year in North Carolina it cost every man, woman, and child more than $67 each to operate the criminal justice system; more than $360 million was spent fighting crime; about half of that for courts and prisons and jails; the rest for law enforcement activities.

Those are just local and state dollars. Not counted are the millions in federal dollars spent through grants to local agencies, operations of the federal courts and federal police agencies; and there is no way to estimate the millions of private dollars spent on security devices and guards. Conservatively, the fight against crime is costing twice that $67 figure when all expenditures are considered. That means for a family of four, anti-crime efforts total more than $536 per year... either directly in Texas, or indirectly in higher prices for goods purchased.

Not Winning
Despite the investment and the best efforts of those involved by many, including those at the top administrative level in Washington, is the federal Law Enforcement Assistance Act (LEAA) money which was set up to explore innovative solutions at the local level.

One of the approaches which has been labeled a failure by many, including those at the top administrative level in Washington, is the federal Law Enforcement Assistance Act (LEAA) money which was set up to explore innovative solutions at the local level.

The Congress almost killed that program for the coming fiscal year, but decided to keep it going for a short time longer, but with major changes.

In North Carolina, that LEAA money is funneled through the Governor's Law and Order Commission to local and state agencies. Don

R. Nichols, director of that program, has been meeting with local officials in recent days to outline the changes which are in store.

Red Tape
"We have, perhaps, turned the corner in cutting red tape," Nichols believes. One of the most consistent criticisms has been an inordinate amount of grant writing and paperwork for a local agency to get a piece of the $14 million LEAA pie in North Carolina.

The other major criticism has been a domination of the funds by state officials. "There has been a real hue and cry from locals that they have not had the involvement they felt they should... and that is not without some justification," Nichols said.

Next fiscal year the system will shift from a central Raleigh emphasis to a regional one: each of the 17 Regional Councils of Government will draw up a crime-fighting plan and once that is formally approved in Raleigh and Washington and the funds provided, implementation can go ahead without the need for voluminous grant applications on each piece.

The dollars will be allocated on a formula using population and crime statistics for each region, with the urban centers getting in the neighborhood of $860,000, while less populous regions get considerably less — as low as $15,000.

Two particular areas of the crime scene must receive emphasis in the new plan, Nichols said: almost 20 per cent of all federal funds must be spent on juvenile programs; and while no percentage is set forth, a similar proportion must go to the courts. A judicial committee headed by the Chief Justice of the State Supreme Court and with other court officials on it must be included in the process, he added.

THE TROUBLED SCHOOLS

Chicago's Schools Strain

By DAVID TREADWELL
AP Urban Affairs Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Twice each school year Chicago schools have to borrow money because of temporary cash crunches.

But this year the creditors were unusually edgy over mounting budget deficits and accusations that the school board resorted to fiscal gimmickry to appear solvent.

Robert Stickle, school controller, said he dreaded the thought of the $68.5 million short-term note sale before it was finalized in October at a 5.99 per cent interest rate, a full percentage point lower than the previous borrowing effort last May.

At the heart of the borrowing problem was the school board's large deficit and the future ability to balance its budget. Unless cuts are made and sources of outside aid are found, the deficit would rise to an estimated $115.3 million by the end of the year.

The problems of the Chicago Board of Education differ from those of the Detroit school system, for example, which is not allowed to run a deficit. Its books must be balanced, not just appear balanced.

But problems of borrowing and deficit spending aren't unique to Chicago. Part of the huge debt load run up by New York City went to fund education. Philadelphia's schools accounted for some of the deficit spending there.

Money problems have brought staff cutbacks, delayed maintenance, and other spending cuts in school districts across the country.

With 667 schools, 521,000 pupils and 50,000 employees, including 28,000 teachers, Chicago is the second largest school system in the country.

The Chicago Board of Education will finance about 41 per cent of this year's $1.1 billion school budget. The state pays 47 per cent of the tab and federal aid covers the rest.

A task force appointed by the governor to study the financial condition of the Chicago schools charged the board with engaging in questionable fiscal practices and resorting to budgetary gimmickry.

The task force criticized the school board for getting legislative permission in 1972 to borrow $33.2 million from the building rehabilitation fund to cover a deficit in the operating fund.

It also said the board budgeted 3,177 positions in the 1974-75 fiscal year at a salary of $1 a year each "thereby hiding the real salary costs of $32 million."

Whether the school board can overcome this deficit spending is one of the biggest problems facing the Chicago public education system, already mired in controversy over the education it provides the city's children.

Reading scores have consistently been below national norms. Although average scores on reading tests given last spring were above those of a year earlier, the pupils remained below the national average.

By the time a Chicago pupil reaches the eighth grade, the pupil is two years behind his national counterpart in reading ability.

Joseph Hannon, who took over as superintendent of Chicago's schools in 1975, declined to comment on whatever past abuses may have been committed. In an effort to bring present spending in line, he has called for such measures as closing outdated buildings, a hiring freeze and a streamlining of the bureaucracy.

"That's a tough job for a group used to growthmanship," he admitted. "But growthmanship is not it anymore. There's a new ball game in school financing. It's staying within revenues."

The bankers who handle the sale of the short-term bonds the system has to sell to get through periods before tax revenues are paid agree. "We're going to keep a close eye on them," said Thomas Vaughn, vice president of First National Bank of Chicago. "We're concerned that they demonstrate they can live within their means."

The plan Hannon submitted to the school board is designed to whittle $38.4 million from the budget. With the expected restoration of $9 million in state special education funds, the deficit would be reduced to $67.9 million by June.

Paul E. Peterson, an education professor at the University of Chicago, says that part of the problem stems from pay hikes given the teachers over the past 10 years. From 1966 to 1972 beginning teachers' salaries climbed from $5,500 to $9,572, a 72 per cent increase, or an average yearly hike of 12 per cent. Starting teachers now make $11,138, unchanged from last year because of the money pinch.

"You can't increase public employees salaries at that rate without incurring enormous fiscal problems," he said.

Even now, he added, beginning teachers in Chicago receive up to 15 per cent more than their counterparts in New York, Los Angeles, Detroit and Houston after adjusting for the cost of living.

But school officials say that if the state would fulfill its financial commitments the schools could stay out of the red.

"The uncertainty of state aid is our greatest peril," Hannon said. "We put our

Other Editors Say Gilmore A Hero?

(Goldsboro News-Argus)

Amid all the sensationalism surrounding the on again — off again execution of Gary Gilmore, it was not surprising to read that a book or movie of his life might be in the offing.

No doubt the man who insisted that he be executed would be cast as some sort of hero or another victim of society's mismanagement of human affairs.

A quote from one story already has held: "Despite the violence that has punctuated his life in and out of prison, Mr. Gilmore had one side of his personality that showed some sensitivity, and he dabbled in poetry and oil painting."

Poetry and oil painting aren't the only things that Gary Gilmore dabbled in.

And certainly they had nothing to do with his now being on death row.

Before we get too carried away with misguided hero worship and sentimentality, let's pause for a moment to review what brought Gary Gilmore to where he is today:

David Jensen, 24, was working at a gas station to help pay his way through law school and support his wife and baby. Earlier he had been a missionary in the Mormon church.

Gary Gilmore held up the service station and shot Jensen in cold blood.

Bennie Bushnell was working as a motel clerk trying to earn extra money to return to school. He was married and the father of one child. His wife was expecting another baby.

Gary Gilmore entered the motel, held a gun on Bushnell and demanded money.

Bushnell gave him all that was in the cash drawer — $120. Gilmore ordered Bushnell to lie on the floor, face down.

Bushnell did as he was instructed.

Gilmore then fired two shots through his head.

Whatever else those who have studied Gilmore's personality have found him to be, he also is one of the mad-dog killers who have preyed on innocent people.

It is a sad commentary on our times that amid the national concern and sensationalism surrounding Gilmore's death sentence, there has been no outcry in behalf of David Jensen and Bennie Bushnell and their widows — and their children who will never know their fathers.

King Edward of England abdicated his ancient, mighty throne today.

He will marry Wallis Warfield Simpson as man, not monarch.

Albert Frederick Arthur George, the tall 40-year-old Duke of York will rule over the 495 million subjects of the greatest empire on earth.

He will reign as George VI. Somber Stanley Baldwin, the kingdom's first minister, announced the abdication to a House of Commons in which tension and hysteria were breathing living things.

Edward's abdication was officially announced in the House of Commons by Captain Edward Fitzroy, speaker of the House.

Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson "has nothing to say" regarding the abdication of King Edward, according to her spokesman, Lord Brownlow.

Strength For Today

GOD WITH US

Do you experience a sense of the divine fellowship every day?

If God is with us in this warm and intimate fellowship, there is no sorrow that is not eventually understood. If God is with us, there are no troublesome circumstances which cannot be surmounted. If God is with us, there are no temptations which cannot be faced and overcome. If God is with us, there are no anxieties which cannot be put aside and eventually forgotten. Our religion promises us nothing less than fellowship with God. Yet many people attend church and assume the responsibilities of church membership without ever experiencing that joy. The reason is that they do not prepare their hearts to receive God. They are not ready to give up their usual routines and ways of doing things.

It is when we really trust God that He stills the tempest, surrounds us with His providence, inspires us and makes us new by His grace.

Consumers And Regulation Q

NEW YORK (AP) — You might not even understand the significance of Regulation Q, but among financial people it is likely to mean either of two things, that (1) it is good for you, (2) it is bad for you.

Wise, and wary of accepting seemingly selfless advice from financial institutions, modern consumers quickly distill such expressions of concern into something more nearly the truth:

It is good for some financial institutions, bad for others, and it probably remains to be seen whether it is good or bad for the public.

Regulation Q is an edict of the Federal Reserve that, in effect, permits savings banks and savings and loan associations to pay one-quarter of 1 per cent more interest than do commercial banks.

It establishes ceilings on time deposits — on passbook savings and certificates of deposit. A savings institution can pay 5.25 per cent on passbook savings, a commercial bank just 5. On savings certificates the limits are 7.75 per cent and 7.5 per cent, respectively.

Regulation Q is due to expire March 1.

The savings, or thrift, institutions want it to remain, arguing that they need an incentive to draw savings dollars that, in turn, they will loan out on home mortgages, their primary lending function.

Some commercial banks which are permitted by law to offer a wide array of services to individuals and businesses, insist that it is unfair competition. The thrifts, they say, no longer need the advantage.

In so arguing, the commercial banks have some support from events, since in recent months thrift institutions have been providing what amounts to checking accounts, services they once were forbidden to offer.

But there is another facet to this battle, that between big and little. Viewed from that perspective, the participants in the skirmish are realigned, with some small commercial banks favoring retention of Q.

As the latter see it, the elimination of a ceiling on permissible interest rates might very well mean they would be pitted against mammoth, big-city institutions that could outbid them for savings dollars.

But what about you? Here are some of the arguments for retention of Regulation Q:

1. A ceiling on interest rates works two ways. True, it limits the amount of interest that can be earned on small deposits, but it also serves to limit the amount that lenders charge, especially on home mortgages.

If competition forces up interest rates on deposits, it inevitably would mean higher mortgage rates also.

2. If thrift institutions cannot compete for funds, they will not have funds available for mortgages. Savings and loans alone make more home mortgages than other institutions combined.

Remove their one-quarter point advantage on deposits and they may be unable to fulfill their housing commitment.

Large, Relatively Fresh Water Supply Discovered

WASHINGTON (AP) — A large area of relatively fresh water that may extend all the way from Georgia to New England along the Atlantic Coast has been discovered by scientists.

The U.S. Geological Survey said Thursday the water zone has a low salt content and is believed to act as a buffer protecting very fresh water close to shore from the intrusion of the sea water.

The scientists believe the subsurface zone stretches beneath the continental shelf from the coast of Georgia as far north as Georges Bank off New England.

The U.S. Geological Survey said that much of the water may have entered continental shelf sediments during an Ice Age about 10,000 years ago when the sea level was about 650 feet lower than now.

John C. Hathaway, chief scientist on a 60-day ocean drilling project last summer, said the water had less than three parts per thousand of salt, "slightly saltier than most drinking water." He noted that seawater averages about 35 parts per thousand.

Hathaway said the discovery could lead to useful development of water resources along the coast.

Burned Building Was Condemned

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. (AP) — City officials say the owner of a 50-year-old hotel in which four men burned to death on Nov. 27 had been cited for several alleged fire and building code violations just five days before the fatal blaze.

60 days to repair the building. Abbott said he and a fire department official discovered the alleged violations of state building codes in the Nov. 17 inspection.

Ask Help To Identify Body

UNION GROVE, N.C. (AP) — Officials Friday were trying to identify a nude body found in a field just north of Union Grove in Iredell County.

The woman was believed to be between the ages of 18 and 25. There were no visible wounds on the body, which has been sent to the state medical examiner's office for an autopsy, authorities said.

The SBI has been asked to help in the investigation.

A early morning fire that apparently started when a cigarette ignited a mattress gutted the Terminal Hotel.

An inspection on Nov. 17 uncovered at least seven building code violations in the two-story structure in downtown Rocky Mount, officials said. The owner, Farouk Hamad, was charged with violating building standards in a warrant filed on Nov. 22.

Hamad was convicted of the charges in district court last week and fined $100 and court costs. He has appealed the conviction to Edgecombe Superior Court.

The building inspection was part of an investigation which began last summer, officials said.

Gordon Abbott, Rocky Mount building inspector, said Hamad was notified in July that he had 15 days to vacate the hotel and 30 days in which to make repairs. He said after a hearing on Sept. 10 Hamad was given Chicago lost about $47 million in general aid for the 1975-76 year when Gov. Daniel Walker cut all state appropriations by 6 per cent.

Off-Reservation Indians May See Dream Realized

By DAVID TOMLIN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) —
North Carolina's 40,000 off-reservation Indians have a shot next year at full federal recognition for their tribes, something for which they have long fought but never quite achieved.

If they get it—and it appears they may—the change in status will mean more federal help in health care, education, employment and other areas.

But the material benefits, important as they are, probably are not what makes the prospect of recognition significant for the state's Lumbee, Cohari, Haliwa and Waccamaw-Siouan Indians.

"The people decide who is Indian," says Dr. Adolph Dial, a Pembroke State University professor who is a Lumbee and a member of the American Indian Policy Review Commission.

But he added: "There's something just in the business of recognition. The Lumbees have fought this business of identity for a hundred years."

It is the review commission on which Dial sits that is now giving the Lumbees a chance for victory in that fight.

The commission was established by Congress to study the nation's Indians and recommend a comprehensive national Indian policy. Eleven task forces are now completing voluminous reports with which the commission will draft its recommendations. A final draft is expected to be completed next May.

One of the task force reports is of special interest to North Carolina's native Americans, the majority of which do not live on reservations. The largest group is the Lumbees, who number about 30,000 concentrated in and around Robeson County.

The task force studied the status of so-called non-recognized tribes, which are tribes who have no reservations or tribal governments and therefore do not qualify for many of the benefits other Indians enjoy.

"In my opinion the commission will recommend recognition of non-recognized tribes," said commission special counsel Don Wharton.

Technically, Dial says, the Lumbees were recognized as a tribe by Congress in 1956. But the law carried a proviso that the recognition did not entitle the tribe to the same benefits other tribes get.

The Lumbees want the benefits, but they are also anxious to erase the implication that they are somehow less Indian than other tribes.

Despite Wharton's optimism, some obstacles remain to congressional acceptance of the idea. There may be pressure against it from tribes on reservations who are worried that the limited benefits available to them will be divided still further.

"Some reservation people oppose this because they feel the pie is only so large," Dial says. "What I say is that if the pie isn't big enough for everyone, you bake a bigger pie."

Navy Suffered Record Desertion Rate In '76

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy suffered its highest desertion rate on record during fiscal 1976, and Navy officials say they don't know why.

As a result, the Navy has formed a special study group to determine the cause and recommend actions to cure the problem.

The Navy experienced a mounting desertion problem during the fiscal year that ended last summer, while the Army was registering its best record in 10 years.

The Marine Corps record was improving, although its desertion rate still is the highest of all the services, and figures show the Air Force has virtually no desertion problem, and never has had one.

Desertion became a major problem, particularly for the Army and the Marines, during the Vietnam war. With the end of that war and the change from a draft-based to an all-volunteer force, Pentagon officials had voiced hope that the problem would recede and possibly all but disappear.

But the newly released figures suggest the problem persists, although the Army appears to be getting it under control.

The Pentagon figures show the Navy desertion rate climbed to 24.8 per 1,000 enlisted men during the fiscal year that ended June 30. This was more than 2 per cent worse than 1975 and more than double the highest Navy rate during the Vietnam war.

The Army, which was hit by a desertion rate as high as 73.5 per 1,000 men in 1971, was down to 17.7 in fiscal 1976.

The Marine desertion rate of 69.2 per 1,000 men last year was much worse than all the other services, but it represented a major improvement over the 105 rate the Marines suffered the previous year.

The Air Force's desertion rate was only 1.2 per 1,000 men. It never has risen above 2.8, even during the Vietnam war.

Asked why its desertion rate has climbed to a record level, the Navy said it has established "no confirmed reasons for the trend."

Vice Adm. James D. Watkins, the Navy's personnel

chief, created a study group in September "to research all facets of the problem and to make recommendations to deal with it," the Navy said.

Patty Hearst Trial Delayed

By LINDA DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Patricia Hearst, her own trial put off until April 4, will start the new year instead by testifying as a prosecution witness in several courtrooms, her attorney says.

Some of those court appearances are likely to be secret, behind the closed doors of grand jury rooms, said attorney Albert Johnson.

Johnson, who brought Miss Hearst to Los Angeles for a hearing Thursday, said she will be a witness in "several jurisdictions" in January. He declined to name dates and places, saying only that she would testify for both federal and state governments.

Johnson also said Miss Hearst will be a key witness against William and Emily Harris at their trial next spring. They are charged with her kidnaping on Feb. 4, 1974.

Miss Hearst has been mentioned as a potential witness for grand jury investigations of her onetime underground acquaintances at San Francisco, Sacramento, Calif., and Harrisburg, Pa.

The 22-year-old newspaper heiress was surrounded by six private bodyguards as she appeared before Superior Court Judge William Ritz.

Johnson has said Miss Hearst fears she will be harmed by the former underground associates she has denounced.

After the hearing, Miss Hearst and her guards returned to her parents' San Francisco apartment on exclusive Nob Hill. She has been in seclusion there since her release Nov. 19 on $1.25-million bail posted by her parents pending appeal of a federal bank robbery conviction. She was sentenced to seven years in prison.

Dogs Track Two In Bank Robbery

FREMONT, N.C. (AP) — Sheriffs deputies arrested two men in a wooded area on bank robbery charges Thursday after using dogs to track them down.

Those arrested in the robbery of a Fremont branch of Branch Banking and Trust Co. were identified as Carlson Earl Sutton, 20, of Fremont and William Michael Smith, 28, of Goldsboro.

Wayne County Sheriff William Adams said the bank robbers had fled into a wooded area after their car ran off the road with officers in pursuit.

Newest Entry In '78 Race

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — "I will not dodge any issue with the possible exception of my sex life," the latest announced candidate for the 1978 Democratic Senate nomination pledged Friday.

Joe Felmet, 55, of Winston-Salem, an unsuccessful congressional candidate in 1974, said he was starting early to get his name before the voters in his bid for the seat now held by Republican Jesse A. Helms.

Two others have already said they are running: Raleigh attorney Hugh Cannon and state Sen. McNeill Smith, a Greensboro attorney.

Other potential hopefuls include Sam J. Ervin III, a superior court judge, Atty. Gen. Rufus Edmisten, North Carolina National Bank board chairman Luther Hodges Jr. and former Gov. Robert W. Scott.

"Smith is probably the closest to me in philosophy," Felmet said. "I don't mind saying that I'd hate to see a Democratic Jesse Helms win just because Smith and I were splitting votes."

Felmet, who is frequently labelled a liberal although he calls himself a "fiscal conservative," said he planned to campaign from a camper equipped with a copying machine.

Airliner Named For Bob Hope

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bob Hope bashed the airliner named in his honor with two bottles and sent it, dripping champagne, on its way to Houston.

The DC10 is part of National Airlines' new "Starship" program, said National spokesman Hugh Emmons. He said 14 planes will be named for celebrities, not yet selected, with dedication ceremonies conducted around the nation.

At Thursday's ceremony, National president L.B. Maytag praised Hope, 73, for his achievements as an "entertainer and citizen of the world" and then Hope hit the fuselage with a champagne bottle right under his picture.

A standby bottle was on hand in case the first one didn't work, so the comic bashed the Bob Hope Starship again as Miss America, Dorothy Benham, who will be in Hope's upcoming Christmas television special, looked on.

GOP Leadership Talks Goals

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford wants to join a high command that would aim to unify the Republican party and drive toward a 1980 GOP victory.

He summoned the reigning factional leaders of the GOP to a White House summit Thursday and get them to agree to a party superstructure in which all would take part.

"We are not kingmakers," Ford said after meeting with Ronald Reagan, John B. Connally and Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller.

For that reason, Ford said, they had agreed to "not pick or choose" the party's next national chairman, a selection the Republican National Committee will make Jan. 14-15.

The high command the President envisions would be similar to the one formed after the Republican party was drubbed in '64 election when Barry Goldwater was the GOP's presidential candidate. Ford called it a coordinating committee.

"I think it would be constructive to have all four of the group that met this afternoon on the (coordinating) committee, but they would not necessarily dominate the committee," the President said. "In 1965 there were roughly 30 members, so I think the four of us could contribute to the work...."

Ford also said, "I think the Republican tent is big enough, broad enough, to encompass the four individuals who met here this afternoon."

Ford said that when the four-some meets again it will draft "some recommendation to the new national chairman as to the format or the organization" of the coordinating committee. He gave no further details of how the group would work or what relationship it would have to the Republican National Committee.

The President was asked whether he would seek to head the high command. "I wouldn't want to pre-empt any position at the present time," he said. "I want to be a participant."

Ford said the four agreed that five or six state chairman or national committeemen mentioned for the chairman's post would be acceptable to them. He declined to list the candidates discussed even though "the names have been banded around."

Those in the running for the post being vacated by Mary Louise Smith include state chairmen Thomas Milligan of Indiana, Kent B. McGough of Ohio and William F. McLaughlin of Michigan, and national committeemen Richard Richards of Utah and Ody J. Fish of Wisconsin.

Nostalgic Farewell To Friends For President

By PEGGY SIMPSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford paid a subdued, nostalgic farewell to his political friends at the White House Christmas party for Congress, one of the last big social events of the waning Ford administration.

It was an emotional occasion for Ford and his wife, Betty, and for many members of Congress of both parties who came to the White House — 800 strong — to pay homage to the Fords Thursday evening.

While the White House parted, President-elect Carter was across the street in the Blair House, the official presidential guest house, after a day of interviewing prospective members of his incoming administration and being briefed on issues he will confront as president after Jan. 20.

With few exceptions, the guests had praise for Ford the man and Ford the President as the man who "restored decency and integrity to the White House," as Rep. John Buchanan, R-Ala., put it.

Outgoing Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield said, "I think he'll be seen as a great president, filling a difficult period with grace and candor and openness."

The Christmas party was invented by Mrs. Ford three years ago. She called Thursday night a sentimental occasion because it was the last party and added, "I hope someone continues them."

Ford spent more than an hour shaking hands, arms and shoulders of his colleagues and hugging or kissing their wives. More often than not, he took the compliments and condolences with a gracious smile and turned the talk to the member's own victory or to skiing vacations. "We'll be around in spirit as well as in person again," he said to one person.

In a brief ceremony soon after the party began, Ford said that without a doubt the 26 years he spent in Congress were the happiest for him and Betty. "We missed it. We miss it now. And we wish each and every one of you the very best."

Throughout the night, Betty Ford had nearly as many admirers around her as did the President. "You were the most terrific first lady ever," one emotional guest said.

Big Test Range For Cigarettes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's latest laboratory tests of 169 varieties of cigarettes again reflect a tremendous range in which the brand ranked worst, Players, contains 64 times the tar and 44 times the nicotine found in the best-rated Carlton 70's.

Federal health authorities have warned for years that the more tar and nicotine a cigarette contains, the more dangerous it is to health — with cancer and heart disease the chief threats. The tobacco industry argues that questions about smoking and health are still unanswered.

Tar and nicotine tests are conducted periodically by the Federal Trade Commission under a mandate from Congress. The results announced today show few substantial changes from previous ratings, though one comparatively new brand, Now, improved its composition to move into a virtual tie with Carlton for lowest tar and nicotine content.

Carlton 70's, an unusually short, filter cigarette not widely sold, was technically the leader with 5 milligrams of tar and .5 mg. of nicotine. Next were the more popular Carlton king-size cigarettes and Now, both with 1 mg. of tar and .1 mg. of nicotine.

Now, introduced to the market last year, previously was rated at twice these amounts. True placed next on the new list with 5 mg. of tar and 4 mg. of nicotine. Most of the popular, long-established brands showed little or no change from previous ratings. Players, at the bottom of the list, is a nonfilter cigarette containing 32 mg. of tar and 2.2 mg. of nicotine.

Pollution By Mirex Apparently Curbed

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — The Hooker Chemicals & Plastics Corp. plant here no longer is discharging the toxic chemical Mirex, believed to be a cancer-causing agent, a report says.

Hooker and the state Department of Environmental Conservation EnCon said Thursday that tests made by three laboratories on samples taken in September showed no trace of the chemical, which the state had identified as a major source of Mirex found in certain species of Lake Ontario fish.

Mirex is a pesticide used mostly by farmers in the south to fight fire ants.

Hooker manufactured the chemical here until 1965. It continued grinding and processing it until last April, when all Mirex operations ceased. The company still has 147 tons in storage.

Most of the pollution occurred during the manufacturing years, an AnCon spokesman said.

The tests made by a team of scientists were to determine whether there was a residual flow of Mirex from the plant, which is on the Niagara River. The river flows into Lake Ontario.

State and federal tests made in July indicated that Mirex was seeping from the plant at the rate of about 1 1/2 pounds a day.

Eye Surgery For George Meany

WASHINGTON (AP) — AFL-CIO President George Meany is reported in good condition at Suburban Hospital in nearby Bethesda, Md., after undergoing surgery for removal of a cataract from his right eye.

The 82-year-old labor leader will have normal vision, with corrective lenses, according to Dr. W. Paxson Chalfant Jr.

"Mr. Meany is doing very well, and the prognosis is good at this time," Chalfant said Thursday.

Cash Registers Across N.C. Are Frantically Busy

By RICHARD O. WATERS
Associated Press Writer
Cash registers across North Carolina are ringing as frantically as the bells on Santa's sleigh on Christmas eve as merchants brace for what may be a record-breaking shopping season.
Retail sales in some cities are reported between 8 and 18 per cent higher than last year in some cities, a survey by the Associated Press shows.

The buying season also started earlier in some areas this year, apparently because of the public's confidence in the economy, a drop in unemployment and unusually cold weather in November, business leaders say.

"Many of our merchants claim it is really going great and say it is going to be the biggest Christmas they ever had," said Stanley Culbreth, executive vice president of the Greater Greensboro Merchant's Association. "The cold weather precipitated earlier buying this year. That gets people in the mood for Christmas. I feel it's a better economy and the consumers are loosening up with their money," he said.

Here is what was found in the AP's survey of nine North Carolina cities Thursday:
ASHEVILLE
"I can't talk for all the stores, but I know we're ahead of last year considerably," said Roy Taylor, president of the Asheville Merchant's Association and manager of an Ivey's department store. "Christmas shopping actually started in the latter part of October, and heavy buying began in November. Normally, it's the day after Thanksgiving."

CHAPEL HILL
"It seems like things got off a little bit earlier than normal and sales appear to be up by 12 to 18 per cent over last year," said Joe Augustine, executive director of both the Chapel Hill-Carboro Merchants Association and the Chamber of Commerce. "Our survey is just random, but the stores indicate people began shopping about two weeks before normal. I don't think it's going to be a record season, but it will be a substantial increase."

CHARLOTTE
"Maybe our toothy friend has something to do with the increased Christmas buying," said George Henderson, executive vice president of the Charlotte Merchant's Association, referring to the election of Jimmy Carter as president. "From the indications we get, it appears to be a record-breaking season. Apparently, it started early. The merchants had a wild day the Friday after Thanksgiving. It was a madhouse. I guess it was the little bit of a turnaround in the economy."

FAYETTEVILLE
"It's breaking records over the last two or three years," said John Swope, executive vice president of the Fayetteville Area Chamber of Commerce. "The Cross Creek Shopping Center—the largest between Washington and Atlanta, with five major department stores and over 100 stores—says it will do over $100 million this year."
LEXINGTON
"It's much better," said Virginia Barber, executive director of the Lexington Retail Merchant's Association. "In checking with about four of my largest stores, they said their sales were far above last year at this same time. I would say it will be one of the best Christmas seasons in years."

RALEIGH
"Based on daily contacts with merchants, retail sales had a very good November," said Wesley Williams, executive director of the Raleigh Merchant's Bureau. "It was very noticeable that Christmas shopping started earlier and intensified earlier, which I attribute primarily to the necessity for getting packages in the mail by Dec. 3 as a result of the United Parcel Service strike, plus more confidence by the consumers in the economy. Through September our retail sales were up by about 14 per cent over 1975."

WILMINGTON
"The day after Thanksgiving they had record-breaking sales here, but it has slowed down," said Thurman Sallade, president of the Wilmington Merchant's Association. "I suspect with the early shopping and the slowing now, there will be a big surge before Christmas. Overall, most stores are showing some slight increases, but not as high as they anticipated at this point."

WINSTON-SALEM
"All indications are that the merchants are extremely pleased with the shopping so far," said Thomas Blair, managing director of the Winston-Salem Retail Merchant's the month of November. Generally speaking, an 8 to 10 per cent increase in sales overall is very realistic."

TVA To Conduct Feasibility Test Of Peak-Load Pricing

By MATT YANCEY
Associated Press Writer
KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)

A general power rate increase has been delayed until at least next spring by the Tennessee Valley Authority, but a $97,000 test is planned to determine the feasibility of peak-load pricing.
The agency's two board members — Chairman Aubrey Wagner and William Jenkins — approved a recommendation Thursday not to implement a general rate increase. The decision followed a quarterly financial review of the utility's seven-state power system.
Excluded from the action is the monthly fuel adjustment charge that reflects the price TVA has to pay for coal and power purchased from other utilities.
Wagner and Jenkins informally approved a one-year test of peak-load pricing involving 200 homes in Knoxville, half of which would be billed according to what hours electricity is consumed.

The rate for daytime electricity would be about three times that of the night rate and about 50 per cent greater than the current nonfluctuating rate, which is about $25 per 1,000 kilowatt hours.
Daytime, or peak power, costs more to produce because more fuel and less efficient generators have to be used to meet the greater demand.
TVA officials said the rates accurately reflect the cost of producing electricity at the various hours.
However, East Tennessee Research Corp., a Jacksboro-based public interest group that supports peak-load pricing, has criticized TVA's proposed test as being too timid and charged it was "designed to fail."
The authorization for the test was included on the board's agenda, but Jenkins asked that any formal action be postponed until after the board heard from Neil McBride, an attorney for the public interest group.

McBride said the time period for the test should be extended beyond a year to allow homeowners in the survey the opportunity to buy heat storage devices and special water heaters that operate at night, when the rate is lower.
He also said the test should include industrial and commercial consumers. Citing support from the Federal Energy Administration for peak-load pricing, McBride said different ratios should be considered.
Wagner said the three-to-one ratio reflects the cost of supplying electricity at peak and non-peak periods. He said TVA does not want to use its rates to force persons to alter their lifestyles.
"The purpose of the rate reform is to help people get the electricity they want and need at a lower cost and conserve energy," Wagner said. "We're not out to punish people, to make them live in cold homes when they want them warm."

May Ask For New Charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — The phone company, which already charges in some places for local information calls, may soon be asking for the right to bill for long-distance directory assistance.
AT&T Chairman John D. DeButts said Bell's subsidiaries probably will seek the right to impose the charges in the near future. He wasn't more specific about the timing.
It could be up to either the Federal Communications Commission or state regulatory agencies to decide if the charges are approved, depending on what form the proposals take.
An FCC official said if the charge were related to long-distance service, it would have to be filed with the federal agency, which regulates interstate rates.
But he said state commissions would have jurisdiction if the phone company proposed to charge for long-distance information after allowing a specified number of directory assistance calls free of charge.

Ford Defers Plan Of Nuclear Controls

By ARTHUR L. GAVSHON
associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Ford administration will not put into effect a new policy aimed at curbing nuclear proliferation in order to give President-elect Carter a chance to offer his own plans, government officials say.

At the same time, European diplomats disclosed that President Ford's program of controls, proposed during the election campaign, won greater support from the Soviet Union and its Communist partners than from America's own allies in a secret London conference last month.

Five days before the Nov. 2 election, Carter labeled Ford's proposals "a pale echo" of his own plans for stricter controls on the spread of nuclear technology.

Yet the initial assessment of administration officials and foreign diplomats seems to be that there are few fundamental differences between the policies Ford and Carter have proposed. But they acknowledge that Carter may want to use means less gentle than those Ford suggests to stop the spread of nuclear material.

At the center of Ford's now-dormant plan was an effort to evaluate whether spent nuclear fuel could be used in ways other than the extraction of plutonium. Plutonium can be used to make atomic bombs.

Ford also called for a three-year moratorium in the export of nuclear reprocessing technology and facilities.

Experts of 14 nations that export nuclear technology secretly met in London last month in one of a series of sessions to map new safeguards against misuse of nuclear equipment and information.

Diplomatic sources said the Soviets, Poland, East Germany and Czechoslovakia displayed broad support for Ford's proposals.

But the Communist countries are not so involved in competition for foreign markets for their reactors and technology. Nor do they have to answer to public opinion for their policies.

Diplomatic sources said the French, British and West Germans, while sharing Ford's wish to curb the spread of nuclear weapons, gave his proposals a qualified reception. The French and Germans, for instance, were portrayed as being suspicious of Ford's motives, thinking commercial factors may have conditioned them.

The British indicated a feeling that some of Ford's ideas were ambiguous, difficult to put into effect and in need of clarification if their own freedom of action were to be preserved. All three Western countries indicated a need to know more about the U.S. ideas before arguing the case for new controls with their own private industries.

FLORIDA'S MASTODON — Leroy Glenn, advisor from the Smithsonian Institute, supervises placement of the giant skull of the mastodon in the new Florida Archives building in Tallahassee. The giant skeleton will take some three weeks to assemble and is one of many exhibits which will be on display after the museum is complete early next year. Glenn, atop the ladder, said the skull alone weighs over 400 pounds. (AP Wirephoto)

New Trial For Manson Woman

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Charles Manson follower Leslie Van Houten will get a new murder trial, but her leader's conviction and life sentence will stand, the California Supreme Court says.

The court agreed 4 to 3 Thursday with a lower court ruling that Miss Van Houten, now 27 and the youngest of three women tried with Manson, was denied effective legal counsel because her attorney vanished before closing arguments were held. She was sentenced to life in prison after being convicted on two counts of murder and conspiracy.

In Los Angeles, a prosecutor who assisted in the original trial in 1970-71 said a new trial for Miss Van Houten could begin within two months. California's speedy trial law gives a defendant the right to go to trial within 60 days after a reversal is affirmed.

'Fibber McGee' Injured In Fall

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Jim Jordan, radio's Fibber McGee, has been hospitalized after possibly fracturing his hip in a fall at his home.

A spokesman at St. John's Hospital said Thursday that the 79-year-old actor had been admitted to the hospital for X-rays to determine the extent of his injury.

On "Fibber McGee and Molly," he was noted for his junk-filled closet.

nia's speedy trial law gives a defendant the right to go to trial within 60 days after a reversal is affirmed.

Stephen Kay said he has been preparing for a new trial since the Court of Appeals action in August.

"I have located all of the witnesses I intend to use, except for Linda Kasabian," Kay said. "I've had an investigator looking for her, but we can't find her."

Mrs. Kasabian, last reported living in New Hampshire, was a member of the Manson "family" who was granted immunity from prosecution in exchange for testimony against Manson and the others.

Miss Van Houten was not charged in the Aug. 9, 1969, killings of pregnant actress Sharon Tate and four others at a Benedict Canyon estate, but she was convicted of the slayings of Leno and Rosemary LaBianca at their Los Feliz-area home the following night.

No appeals were filed by the other two defendants convicted after a 10-month trial. Patricia Krenwinkel, 30, and Susan Atkins, 28, are serving life terms along with Miss Van Houten at the California Institution for Women at Frontera.

The high court was unanimous in upholding Manson's conviction.

Manson, 43, had claimed that publicity about the murders made it impossible for him to get a fair trial.

Big Cache Of Guns And Explosives Is Uncovered

ONTARIO, Calif. (AP) — Hundreds of pounds of explosives, two machine guns, shotguns and pistols have been found hidden in the desert near here and police said a self-employed 41-year-old man is being questioned.

Officers said shortly after the discovery of the caches on Thursday Donald G. Wiggins walked into the police department and volunteered to be questioned.

Some material found Thursday in the Antelope Valley was so volatile, said Lt. Tom Vetter of the Los Angeles County sheriff's Department, that it could not be moved and will have to be detonated at the site. The most unstable material is nitroglycerin, stored in several barrels holding 30 gallons each, he said.

The nitroglycerin could be touched off by jarring or by an electrical charge, Vetter said.

Experts from the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department already have blown up two bunkers holding an estimated 350 pounds of hand grenades, plastic explosive, disassembled mortars and the chemical components of napalm.

Police said a search of Wiggins' home turned up dozens of guns and more than 50 pounds of high explosives.

Ontario police spokesman

James Valdez said Wiggins surrendered while officers were trying to obtain a warrant to search his property. Police said he had been under surveillance since Sunday, when the first cache was discovered by two children whose family owns a nearby weekend retreat.

Los Angeles sheriff's Deputy Jim Borland said Wiggins had not yet been booked on any charges, because "he's been cooperating as far as the search (of his home) goes."

Pirates Host AIA Grapplers

East Carolina will open its 1976-77 home wrestling season tonight, facing the Athletes in Action squad. AIA is coached by Olympic Gold Medalist John Peterson.

Peterson joined the AIA in the summer of 1973 after capturing a silver medal for the United States in the 1972 Munich Olympics. The following season, he posted a 10-1 mark, losing only to a Polish National opponent touring the U.S. This past season was highlighted by Peterson's winning the only gold medal in wrestling for the U.S. in the Montreal Olympics.

The Athletes in Action team was the National AAU champion in 1975.

"They are as good a team as we'll wrestle all year," said East Carolina wrestling coach John Welborn. "They've got an Olympic Champion, several national champions or qualifiers as well as NAIA and Federation champions."

"We look forward to AIA coming here, because they work with us before the matches on techniques. The learning and teaching we get from them makes their trip here worthwhile whether we wrestle a match against them or not."

The match is set for tonight at 8 p.m. in Minges Coliseum. The Pirates carry a 3-0 dual meet record.

East Carolina's Pirates seek to raise their record above the .500 mark Saturday night when they play host to surprising UNC-Wilmington.

The Pirates went down to their second straight loss Wednesday night, bowing to Maryland, 80-69, on the Terps home court. But only a lack of experience during a brief period in the closing minutes of the first half, allowed Maryland to carry a lead into halftime, and the 17th-ranked Terrapins were never able to blow the Pirates off the court.

Coach Dave Patton felt that the final minutes of the half took the Pirates out of the game. They were never able to recover against the strong Maryland rebounding, which gave the Terps several shots at the bucket each time.

"We were more patient and we worked the boards better against Maryland," he said. "But we still didn't do as good a job as we could be doing."

The coach again praised the defensive effort of the Pirates, but felt that the offensive phase of the game, while somewhat improved, still isn't where he'd like for it to be. "But that's going to come. It's just a question of our maturity."

Against UNC-Wilmington, a team that has shown a great deal of improvement since last year, Patton feels the Pirates will have to put forth the same type effort they did against Maryland.

"In fact, we really need to play that way the rest of the schedule," he added.

Wilmington has been playing up to its potential more than any team the Pirates have faced so far this year, Patton warns. "They have their best talent ever. They like to fast break, and they played a tough zone defense when we scouted them." Patton expects them to play a combination of zone and man-to-man defenses against the Pirates.

One of their starters should be easily recognized by local fans. He's Lonnie Payton, a Rose High School product. After two years at Chowan, Payton is now playing one of the guard spots for the Seahawks. "He's made a good transition from junior college to senior college," Patton said.

Jim Brogden, the point guard, is listed as one of the better ones the Pirates will see.

"David Wolfe is the man they like to go to in the clutch," Patton added. "But they have a very good man in freshman Gary Cooper (6-6 center). He's a very strong rebounder, one of the best we'll see." Delaney Jones rounds out the starting five.

Billy and Bobby Martin, a set of twins, are the top reserves for Wilmington.

"They are only 1-2 so far, but they've played very well. They will certainly be no pushover for us," Patton warned. Tipoff is set for 7:30 p.m. in Minges Coliseum.

U.S. Team Is One Stroke Back

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf writer

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — "I suspect," mused Brian Barnes of Scotland, "the Americans rather like to see some overseas players leading in the early going — so long as the Americans can be on top at the end."

Americans Dave Stockton and Jerry Pate, however, were considerably less than enthusiastic about their positions in the pack after the first round of the 48-nation World Cup international golf tournament.

"I want to win so bad ... I'm getting really angry with myself ... I'm pounding clubs on the ground. I'm frustrated," said Stockton, who struggled to a 74 in Thursday's opening round.

Pate, the U.S. Open champion, had the individual lead alone until stumbling to a bogey-bogey finish that left him with a two-under-par 70.

That gave the defending champion United States a 144 team total, one shot back of leading Scotland, which got a 70 from the veteran Barnes and a 73 from Sam Torrance. Taiwan also was at 144, with New Zealand and Australia at 145.

In the individual race, Mexico's Ernesto Perez Acosta and veteran Kuo Chie-Hsiung of Taiwan matched 69s, and shared the lead. Pate, with his 70, was one stroke back and tied with Barnes, Park Jung Ung of South Korea and Craig DeKoy of Wales.

The only others to break par on the warm, sunny, 7,181-yard Mission Hills Country Club course were Baldovino Dassau of Italy, Severiano Ballesteros of Spain, Bob Shearer of Australia and Simon Owen of New Zealand.

Kinston's girls' basketball team rolled up its second straight top-sided score against Rose High School's lassies yesterday, 54-32.

The defeat was the second in as many games for the Rampettes, in their second year of basketball.

Kinston rolled out to a 17-5 lead after one period, and came back to push that to 31-11 at halftime.

Rose was unable to close the gap in the third period, as the Kinston lead widened to 44-20. Rose outthit them, 12-10, in the final period.

Vanessa Richardson led Kinston with 24 points, while Tammv Abashan had 12 and Bonita Richardson had 10. Rose was led by Cheryl Taylor with 15.

Rose will host New Bern on Monday.

After the first seven games of the 1976 football season, defensive end Jeff Green lost 23 pounds, according to Duke information director Tom Mickie. Green began the final month of the season at 177.

One Negotiation Is Over, Another Started

NEW YORK (AP) — The long, sometimes bitter negotiations that brought three-time National Basketball Association scoring champion Bob McAdoo to the New York Knicks from Buffalo finally are over. But now the Knicks have to negotiate all over again — with McAdoo.

The struggling Knicks, who have been playing sub-.500 ball this season before thousands of empty seats nearly every game in Madison Square Garden, acquired the coveted McAdoo, a lithe 6-foot-10 center-forward, and reserve forward Tom McMillen from the Braves Thursday night for center-forward John Gianelli and a reported 73 million.

The deal was consummated only one day after it appeared that the trade was dead and Buffalo co-owner Paul Snyder had said he would try to sign McAdoo to a new contract.

Also, McAdoo's agent, Bill Madden, had said Wednesday that the Knicks "were definitely out of this thing."

McAdoo, the Braves' No. 1 pick in the 1972 draft, the NBA's Rookie of the Year in 1972-73 and the league's Most Valuable Player in 1974-75, is in the final year of a five-year contract worth $400,000 — $200,000 in cash and $200,000 in deferred payments.

Now, the Knicks have to sign him and reportedly will give him a five-year contract worth $500,000 per year. They also will pick up his deferred payments — which the Braves did not want to do — starting in 1988.

However, if the Knicks do not sign him, he becomes a free agent at the end of the season.

When the Knicks will be able to use him, however, is questionable.

McAdoo suffered a pulled groin muscle Wednesday night during Buffalo's game against the Philadelphia 76ers and his status for New York's next game — at home against Phoenix Saturday night — is uncertain.

Obtaining the 25-year-old McAdoo ended the Knicks' 1½-year quest for the outside-shooting big man who has won the NBA scoring title each of the past three seasons and has averaged 23.7 points and 13.2 rebounds per game this season. His NBA career scoring average is 28.2, including 34.5 in 1974-75 — his best season.

He is trying to become only the second player in NBA history to win four consecutive scoring championships. Wilt Chamberlain won the title seven years in a row, from 1959-60 to 1965-66.

The 6-foot-11 McMillen, 23, is in his second NBA season and averaging 5.1 points and 3.5 rebounds. He was Buffalo's top draft selection in 1974, but the Rhodes scholar did not join the Braves until last season.

The slender 6-10 Gianelli, 26, is averaging 10.8 points in his fifth NBA season. The Knicks acquired him from Houston in 1972.

Old Faithful.

New Faithful.

Good Old Faithful. Always got you where you were going. Always did it economically. And now, after 27 years and 33 million cars, it's still a symbol of dependability and economy.

Now there's a car that's just as reliable and economical as Old Faithful ever was. It's New Faithful. The 1977 VW Rabbit. With engineering so advanced that automotive experts have hailed it as the kind of car Detroit will be building in the 1980's.

The Rabbit has a new fuel injection system, so it starts up quick as a bunny. Springs like one, too. 0 to 50 in just 7.7 seconds. The Rabbit also has advanced engineering features like negative steering roll radius, rack-and-pinion steering, and an independent stabilizer rear axle.

New Faithful lives up to Old Faithful's reputation for economy, too. Because it has fuel injection, you can use the most economical grade of gas. But you won't have to use it very often. Rabbit gets 37 mpg on the highway, 24 in the city. (That's EPA's estimate for manual transmission. Actual mileage may vary, depending on driving habits, car's condition and optional equipment.)

Dependability and economy. That's what Old Faithful gave a whole generation of Americans. And that's what New Faithful is giving a whole new generation of Americans.

One Day Later, Lou Holtz Says He's Headed Back To The Campus

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP) — For Lou Holtz, who loved the college life, the dream of coaching a pro team in New York turned out to be a nightmare. And the prospect of four more years with the Jets was more than he could bear.

"Lou Holtz is not made for professional football," said the affable 39-year-old blond with the horn-rimmed glasses and a penchant for speaking his mind. "I can't give professional football my heart. God did not put Lou Holtz on this earth for that."

So the miracle worker from North Carolina State, who could not work his magic in the Big Apple, cast a soulful look toward Arkansas Thursday—and the $100,000-a-year contract he had signed last Feb. 10 came to an abrupt end four years before its expiration date.

The Jets have one more game to play this National Football League season and are expected to end it the way they ended 1975, with a 3-11 record—the worst in their history. Mike Holovak, director of scouting and, since midseason, offensive backfield coach, will direct them Sunday against heavily favored Cincinnati.

Holtz' ambition is to become head coach at the University of Arkansas, where Frank Broyles has stepped aside to spend all his time as athletic director. "If Arkansas would be interested in talking to me, I would be interested in talking to them," Holtz said.

Arkansas is interested. Dr. Charles Bishop, the university's president, said Broyles had contacted Holtz. Bishop also said he could rely heavily on Broyles' judgment in filling the post and called Holtz the "kind of man we would like to hire."

Holtz spent three years as head coach at William & Mary where he had a 1969-71 record of 13-15. Then he moved to N.C. State and the Wolfpack, which had posted a three-year mark of 9-21-2 before he arrived, went 33-12-2 in four years under him. That brought him to New York to replace Charley Winner. "I was impressed with New York City and the opportunities, impressed with professional football, and there were things I didn't know I would miss as much as I did," he said.

Two of the Jets said Thursday it was clear Holtz had made a mistake. David Knight, a wide receiver who had played under him at William & Mary, said Holtz "was sure he could work his magic here, but obviously he couldn't."

And safety Phil Wise said: "He just didn't like it here ... You've got to be a little bit cold in this business and he's not like that."

Al Ward, the Jets' general manager, whose announcement earlier this year that Holtz was New York's new on-field leader, caught a lot of people off guard, announced: "The coaching hunt is on—again."

Walt Michaels, the Jets' longtime defensive coordinator, has been mentioned as a successor, even though he has been bypassed twice since Weeb Ewbank retired after the 1973 season.

Regular Season Clinching Berth Pittsburgh Hopes To Wind Up

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer
You remember the Pittsburgh Steelers, don't you ... the team everyone was burying at the beginning of the season when it lost four of its first five games.

Well, they are so deep, they are about to strike oil—Houston oil, that is. On Saturday, it could all come together.

That 1-4 start this National Football League season had people wondering. Obviously something was wrong with the two-time Super Bowl champions.

Whatever it was, it is gone. There has not been a better team since then. The Steelers have reeled off eight straight victories and allowed a minuscule 28 points in those games, four of them shutouts.

And after trailing Cincinnati virtually all season, they stand one victory away from killing the Bengals' and longshot Cleveland's hopes of winning the American Football Conference Central title.

Cincinnati is at the New York Jets and Cleveland is at Kansas City Sunday. If the Steelers lose Saturday, the Sunday games would be important since Cincinnati could be the division champion with a victory or, if the Bengals lose, too, the Browns would be the divisional champions. But if Pittsburgh wins, the Browns and Bengals will be just playing out a season of frustration.

In Saturday's other action, it will be Minnesota at Miami and Los Angeles at Detroit. In Sunday's other games, it will be St. Louis at the New York Giants and Washington at Dallas with the cards and Redskins fighting for the National Football Conference wild card playoff berth; Buffalo at Baltimore and

New England at Tampa Bay, with the Colts and Patriots fighting for the AFC East title and the loser winding up with the conference wild card spot; Seattle at Philadelphia, Green Bay at Atlanta, Denver at Chicago, San Francisco at New Orleans and San Diego at Oakland.

The one team not at 9-4 in the AFC Central division is Houston, 5-8. "If they can't beat us and prove they should be in the playoffs, then they don't deserve it," Oilers Coach Bum Phillips said of the Steelers.

Three weeks ago, Pittsburgh beat Houston 32-16, allowing the only two touchdowns in its eight-game winning streak. "They look like the bears when they get out at the circus," Phillips said. "They scatter everybody."

The Bengals are rated heavy favorites to beat the 3-10 Jets — but they are cunning into an emotionally charged team. Lou Holtz resigned as head coach Thursday and New York, under Mike Holovak, will be trying to avoid a repeat of the 3-11 finish in 1975, the club's worst ever. Added to that is the possibility that it will be Joe Namath's last game as the Jets' quarterback.

The Browns were 3-11 in 1975 and have made an astonishing about-face. They have gone virtually unnoticed, lurking around the fringes of the Pittsburgh-Cincinnati dogfight. But they cannot be counted out yet.

Woody's Ramblin's

BY WOODY PEELE

East Carolina University's 1977 football schedule hasn't been released yet, and officials at the university are most reluctant to talk about it. Reportedly, it will be announced sometime late this month or during January.

But as to who is or isn't on the schedule, one can only guess.

The latest report is that Furman University may not be on the list. The Greenville (S.C.) News reported this morning that Furman wished to drop VMI, William & Mary and East Carolina from its 1977 schedule to play Marshall, UT-Chattanooga and East Tennessee State. The first two are new members of the Southern Conference.

Furman, according to one source, was to play East Carolina in Ficklen Stadium, and it would be assumed that a contract would have already been signed. What will happen cannot be known now, at least, until East Carolina athletic director Bill Cain returns from the current Southern Conference meeting now going on.

As we said, while the schedule has not been announced it is felt that the five Southern teams that were on the list this year will return, pending the outcome of the Furman situation, along with N.C. State, South Carolina, Richmond, Southern Illinois, Toledo and Texas-Arlington. All have been mentioned in various conversations with ECU officials. Where and when are the only questions.

Having his leg in a cast hasn't taken the flair out of Lefty Driesell. Wednesday night, the fiery Maryland coach made his way courtside on crutches and propped his leg up on a wooden folding chair.

But as things went bad for the Terrapins against the unsung Pirates, Coach Driesell got more and more upset. Finally, at one point, he raised his injured leg and brought it down on the chair, smashing out several of the slats that make up the seat of it.

Being a coach does have its problems. Take for instance what happened recently here.

East Carolina assistant basketball coach Dan Kenney got home late on a recruiting trip and went home to bed instead of dropping by the campus. Early in the morning, he was awakened by the sound of a car driving off. He looked outside and found that the ECU car he had driven on his trip was gone.

Kenney promptly called the police to report the car stolen. But minutes later, he was called back and told that the thief had been caught.

Therein was the problem. Seems the car was scheduled to be used by another coach the next day. He had been dropped off to pick up the car to make his trip, but no one had let Kenney know the situation.

It proved to be embarrassing not only to Kenney, but to the red-faced Ray Scharf, the Pirate swim coach, who was explaining it all to the officers who had picked him up.

Antitrust Days May Be Ending

By TOM SEPPY
AP Sports Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Select House Committee on Professional Sports is expected to approve a staff report recommending that baseball be stripped of its exemption from the antitrust laws.

In its report today to the full committee headed by Rep. B.F. Sisk, D-Calif., the staff said it had concluded that "adequate justification does not exist for baseball's special exemption from the antitrust laws and that its exemption should be removed in the contest of over-all sports antitrust reform."

Baseball, among all the major professional sports, has been excluded from the antitrust laws since the Supreme Court ruled in 1922 that the game was not "commerce" in the legal sense of the word.

The nation's highest court ruled, and several subsequent decisions confirmed, that if baseball was to be included with football, basketball and hockey Congress should pass legislation doing so.

The House sports committee was formed last May after baseball refused to return a team to the nation's capital to replace the Washington Senators, who were moved to Texas and became the Rangers in 1971. Sisk headed an ad hoc congressional committee which unsuccessfully sought the return of baseball to Washington.

The house committee, which goes out of existence at the end of the current Congress in January, has no legislative authority but can only recommend possible solutions to standing panels such as the Judiciary Committee, which would take up any antitrust legislation.

The committee recommended that another oversight panel be created which would "be directed to prepare and transmit to the appropriate committees of the House, a comprehensive report on sports antitrust law, together with recommendations for the treatment of professional sports under federal antitrust laws.

"The committee also recommends that its successor committee be directed to monitor the effects of court ordered or negotiated changes in the player allocation systems in professional sports, including, but not limited to, football's option system and college draft, the re-entry draft in baseball, and the elimination of option clauses in basketball."

In its other recommendations, the staff urged the Congress to determine the most appropriate means of expediting the resolution of labor disputes in sports.

It also recommended that the proposed committee investigate the "nature and scope of abuses of the agent-client relationship in professional sports, the appropriateness of federal involvement in the area, and the need for protective legislation."

Other recommendations deal with the restrictive immigration laws dealing with Canadian hockey players and Spanish baseball players, adoption of a new anti-blackout law for sold-out football games, player and fan violence, rejection of gambling on sports events and promote safety in the playing conditions.

Bucs Host Appy State

The East Carolina swim team will try to keep its Southern Conference winning streak alive Saturday, when it faces Appalachian State University in a dual meet.

Coach Ray Scharf has not lost to a Southern Conference opponent since he came to the Pirates, and is untarnished in his only try in the league this year. The meet will be held at Minges Natatorium at 1 p.m. Saturday. "Appalachian will be a tough meet," Scharf said. "They have some good swimmers on the team. Plus, since we've had some past success in the conference, the other schools will be extra ready to beat us. I think we'll do well, though."

Overall, the ECU swim team is 2-0, with wins over Virginia Commonwealth and Furman. This will be their last meet before the Holiday break.

Home Court Is Help To Nuggets

DENVER (AP) — Forward Paul Silas of the Denver Nuggets says that playing on a home court makes a difference. And that difference was a big reason why the Nuggets beat the Cleveland Cavaliers 104-94 Thursday night in a National Basketball Association game.

"If we had played in Cleveland the way we played tonight, we would have won," Silas said, referring to Denver's 99-93 loss to the Cavs on Dec. 2.

"If they played tonight the way they played in Cleveland, they would have beat us. The home court does make a difference," he said.

In the only other NBA game, the Atlanta Hawks edged the Kansas City Kings 102-100.

The Nuggets scored their 12th straight home victory, taking advantage of a big free-throw margin in the second half and 29 points from David Thompson. The triumph gave Denver a 17-7 over-all record and a four-game lead over Detroit in the Midwest Division.

For Cleveland, the loss was its fourth straight and ended a five-game road trip. The Cavs are 16-8, second in the Central Division.

Denver broke away from a 50-46 halftime edge and led by 11 points going into the final quarter. Center Dan Issel scored eight points during the decisive third period as Denver hit nine of 13 free throws, while the Cavaliers never went to the foul line.

Cleveland closed within 100-94 on John Lambert's two free throws with 1:29 remaining, but Denver clinched the victory with two foul shots by Ted McClain and a stuff shot by Thompson.

Bingo Smith led Cleveland with 20 points.

Hawks 102, Kings 100
Lou Hudson had the hot hand for Atlanta, tossing in 24 points in the third quarter and setting a record for KEMPER Areen in Kansas City. But it was his two free throws with 38 seconds remaining that gave Atlanta the victory.

"In the third quarter, I just had that feel for the ball," said Hudson who hit 12 of 13 shots in the third period on his way to a 34-point game.

Runners Opening

The indoor track season at East Carolina officially gets underway Saturday as Coach Bill Carson takes his team to the North Carolina State Open meet at Raleigh. Other teams entered include Clemson, South Carolina, Furman, Duke and Western Carolina, among others.

"We'll run out best and hope to do well," Carson said. "But there is good competition from all teams. Any man who finishes in the top five in any event will have done an excellent job."

Carson figures that East Carolina will be strongest in the 60-yard high hurdles, the long jump, the triple jump, the 60-yard dash and the mile relay.

Superior Jayhawks Finally Pull Off Victory Over Fordham Rams

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports writer
NEW YORK (AP) — At Kansas, basketball is a shining image and there is no trouble recruiting good players.

At Fordham, the image is tarnished and the school is trying to keep up with the others in New York, no less the Kansases of the world.

For a few hopeful moments Thursday night at Madison Square Garden, Fordham's rookie coach, Dick Stewart, thought he had made a giant leap forward. But he wound up taking a step backward with a 57-48 loss to the Jayhawks.

"I hate to lose," said Stewart, who has lost two of four games so far this season, "but I'm afraid we might lose a few more before I get this program back on its feet."

The Rams, who played prior to Rutgers' 73-52 victory over Manhattan, played with finesse through most of the game. But they finally were checkmated by the superior Jayhawks.

"They did a good job," said Kansas Coach Ted Owens of Fordham's deliberate offensive game that provided the Rams with a 31-30 lead as late as eight minutes into the second half. "They dictated most of the game."

But at that point, the Rams played less than perfect ball, making sophomore mistakes. And the bigger, quicker Jayhawks took advantage of them and outscored Fordham 19-5. That burst provided them with a commanding 49-36 lead with less than three minutes remaining.

John Douglas led the Jayhawks with 20 points and helped them with their decisive spurt in the middle of the second half.

The Manhattan-Rutgers game was interesting until the Scarlet Knights broke it open with a 20-6 burst at the start of the second half. Hollis Copeland scored 20 points and Ed Jordan added 16 for the winners.

"We played two different halves," said Manhattan Coach Jack Powers, whose club held a 28-27 lead at intermission. "But when we needed it, we didn't get any help off the boards."

Syracuse, the nation's No. 20 team, was the only ranked club in action Thursday night. The Orangemen, led by Roosevelt Bouie and Larry Kelley, crushed Biscayne 87-63.

Elsewhere, Jake Poole scored 20 points and Texas-El Paso withstood a frantic west Texas State rally to post a 59-58 victory over the Buffaloes; Terry

Tyler scored 18 points, pacing a balanced attack as the University of Detroit stopped Cleveland State 78-66; Alvin Wright's 26 points powered Memphis State over Drake 79-74; Lynbert Johnson connected for 20 points as Wichita State defeated Hardin-Simmons 84-74, and Mississippi State trimmed Northeast Missouri State 107-58 behind Rickey Brown's 29 points.

Trent Grooms and James Collins sparked a 10-point scoring burst in the second half as Kent State defeated Penn State 73-70; Edgar Jones' field goal with four seconds left gave Nevada-Reno a 53-51 victory over Oregon State; Geoff Huston scored 26 points and rallied his teammates from a nine-point deficit as Texas Tech edged Air Force 62-56, and Colorado State crushed Pacific University 74-43 behind Fred Anzures' 22 points.

Slow Start By Ayden-Grifton Girls Is Not Pleasing To Coach

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

Before the season began, Ayden-Grifton girls basketball coach Debra Pfeil thought her team would do well. But, the Chargettes got off to a slow start and are "not really getting into it like we should," according to Pfeil.

Four experienced players returned from last year's squad, which finished in fifth place in the Eastern Carolina Conference. But, only forward Cindy Potter was a starter for the entire year.

Joining Potter are three players who started in some of the ballgames for the Chargettes last year. They are center Karen Haseley, guard Vertha Dixon and guard Janet Loftin. Dixon and Loftin missed playing time due to injuries last year, Pfeil said.

Potter should be Ayden-Grifton's top player this year, but she is "slow to get in gear," according to Pfeil. She was third in the conference in rebounding last year and will be counted on for a lot of the scoring and rebounding load this year.

Haseley, a 6-0 center, is the type of player who has to be pushed in order for her to play to her full potential, Pfeil said. At this point, she is not playing up to her potential, but she should progress.

Dixon is a good shooter, but is favoring her shoulder, which was injured last year. In addition to playing guard, she can also play forward, according to Pfeil.

Besides these four, Pfeil has two other guards she shuffles in and out of the lineup. They are Vivian Ellis and Aretha Cannon. Ellis is quick and big, but has been making some mistakes. Cannon is small, but a good hustler.

Shonda Brock and Rex Anne Thorne back up the front line. Both of these girls are forwards who have been playing some this season.

Thus far this year, the Chargettes have not been "totally together," Pfeil said

Smith Not Upset With His Ranking

By The Associated Press

Though he thinks his Tar Heels should be ranked higher than 12th in the AP poll, North Carolina basketball Coach Dean Smith isn't too upset—at least not yet.

"I think we are playing a little better than the AP has us ranked. But, that's understandable since it's so early. We started getting better against Michigan State Monday and we kept it up," he said.

The Tar Heels defeated Athletes in Action in Chapel Hill 99-86 Wednesday night.

"This is the best team we've faced," said AIA Coach Bob Oates of the Carolina squad. "They've got great speed. They

Baseball Again Sets Up Games In Capital

By DICK JOYCE
AP Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Major league baseball extended a tentative, if weak, hand in the direction of Washington, D.C., today in an obvious effort to placate an impatient Congress.

Again, baseball has proposed a fragmented schedule for Washington, whereby the Baltimore Orioles of the American League would play some of their home games in RFK Stadium in the nation's capital starting in 1978.

Commissioner Bowie Kuhn made the announcement Thursday night, then immediately left for Washington to meet today with the Select House Committee on Professional Sports. The committee was expected to recommend today to Congress that baseball lose its exemption from antitrust laws, a privilege it has enjoyed since 1922.

return the sport to Washington, from which it last withdrew after the 1971 season. And Kuhn has long been urging that Washington land a franchise.

Calling it "the most appropriate method of providing baseball to Washington, D.C.," both the National and American leagues proposed that Baltimore play a "suitable" number of games in the nation's capital, plus the presidential opening game, the All-Star game every three years and exhibitions.

If that plan fails, the National League cleared the way for either an existing National or American League team to move to Washington. That would seem to be an open invitation for Charles O. Finley to move his troubled Oakland A's AL franchise to Washington. But the cantankerous owner steadfastly insists he will not be tied to the nation's capital.

were to move to the National, that would give each league 13 teams. Charles Feeney, the National League president, said in that case, there would have to be interleague play.

Meanwhile, the NL extended Feeney's contract for two years. He has held the post since 1969.

Can't Afford To Give Up Crown

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Muhammad Ali said flatly today that he is not retiring as boxing's world heavyweight champion.

"I'm not quitting," Ali said in an interview. "One reason is my wife is suing me, and the settlement with my wife is for $2 million and more.

"Two million dollars cash is a lot of money," he said. "I've got to pay her two million cash dollars. If I didn't have that I could forget about fighting."

Banks Lower Prime Rates

NEW YORK (AP) — Two of America's biggest commercial banks cut their prime lending rates today.

Morgan Guaranty Trust Co., the nation's sixth largest, cut its rate from 6 1/4 to 6 percent, while No. 2-ranked Citibank reduced its rate from 6 1/2 to 6 percent.

While interest rates generally have been declining nationwide, many large banks had kept their prime rate at 6 1/2 percent, despite Morgan's N.Y. 19 move to 6 1/4 percent.

The last major round of rate-cutting was in late October, when the rate generally dropped from 6 3/4 to 6 1/2 percent.

The prime rate is its bank's charge on loans to its most credit-worthy corporate customers. While it is not linked directly to consumer or mortgage loans, its movements can signal the direction of interest rates in general.

Winterville To Change Speed Limits For Several Sections

WINTERVILLE — The Winterville Town Board set a public hearing to consider amending the zoning ordinance and received approval for changing several in-town speed limits at its meeting Monday night.

The public hearing was set for January 17 at 7 p.m. at the town hall. The hearing will be held to consider the zoning ordinance to allow for conditional use for funeral homes in a residential zone. The request was approved by the Planning Board.

Alderman Danny Martin reported that the N.C. Board of Transportation had approved a highway traffic ordinance that the town submitted which would allow for changing several speed limits in the town.

The following speed limit changes were approved: On Mill Street from .10 miles south of Main Street to a point .10 miles south of Main Street will be a 35 m.p.h. zone. On Mill Street from Liberty Street to a point .10 south of Main Street will be a 35 m.p.h. zone. On Mill Street from a point .10 miles north of Depot Street to a point .30 miles north of Depot Street will be a 35 m.p.h. zone.

The board voted to supply utilities to the new concession stand located at A.G. Cox School field until the new budget for 1977-78 is approved. The building is owned by the Winterville Recreation Commission and will serve as restrooms and a concession area for Winterville Recreation Commission activities year around.

The board voted to amend the 1976-77 budget to include Anti-Recession Aid Grant Funds to be spent for street department salaries.

The board approved a bicycle registration ordinance which will require all bicycles in the Town of Winterville to be registered with the Winterville Police Department and to display a registration decal. The registration decal which may be purchased at the Winterville Police Department costs $1 and is effective for one year. Bicycle registration will be handled at the police department between January 1 and February 15. All bicycles will be inspected before a registration decal will be issued.

In other business Elwood Nobles said that December is the last month to pay 1976 town taxes without penalty.

The board accepted an offer for donation of a Christmas tree that owned by Michael Joyner. The tree will be placed on the corner of Main Street in front of the Town Hall.

Third Victim Of Accident Dies

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — A victim of an industrial accident Wednesday has died, raising the death toll in the incident to three.

Charles Long, 25, of Wilmington, an employe of the Southeast Machine and Welding Co., died at 12:30 a.m. today in New Hanover Memorial Hospital.

Long and other victims were working at the Federal Paperboard Co. plant at Riegelwood when a one-million gallon tank ruptured, spilling hot liquid which ruptured the building in which victims were working.

Another victim, Eddie Lewis, also of Wilmington, remained in critical condition today in the same hospital. Five others were still hospitalized in the burn center at the Medical University of South Carolina in Charleston.

Charles Sykes, 32, of Wilmington, and James R. Lennon, 38, of Bladenboro were killed in the accident. Officials were still trying to find out why the tank, which contained what they called "a black liquor," came apart.

Collection Firm To Fight Step

RALEIGH (AP) — A debt collection agency says it will go to court in an effort to keep the North Carolina Department of Insurance from enforcing suspension of the firm's permit to operate.

The suspension was ordered Dec. 7 against ICP Bureau of Services, Inc., which collects debts for the Wake Medical Center, after state investigators found irregularities in the firm's collecting and accounting practices in Asheville and Raleigh.

ICP general counsel J. Reid Potter said he would file a motion in Wake Superior Court to restrain the department from enforcing the suspension if officials do not try to do so.

Beautiful. But DEADLY

There is a man — he's a U.S. park ranger — who spends a lot of time deliberately starting avalanches on mountains like this.

His job is to produce carefully small, controlled snowslides to prevent devastating avalanches that could wreak terrible damage and claim lives.

Going to church can be like that. It can give you solutions to spiritual problems while they are small and manageable instead of letting them build up until they're too big to handle. Like snow on the side of a mountain, unfaced problems can swell into an avalanche of monumental proportions and simply swallow up your useful life.

The strength to face your day-to-day problems is waiting for you right now — at your church.

May Lose Welfare Benefits Due Strangers' Generosity

By DOUGLAS E. CALDWELL
Associated Press Writer
ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — For three years the Douglas Darnell family has tried to cope privately as daughter Melinda has been wasting away, a malignant, inoperable, tumor spreading through her brain.

Now, as the family starts to make arrangements for the funeral it fears will come soon, family members may lose their welfare benefits because strangers have been so generous. Welfare officials say the family will no longer be qualified for food stamps, Medicaid and money under the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program because more than $400 in gifts count as family income. The gifts came from persons who have read news accounts of the dying 15-year-old girl, according to her mother, Mary Darnell. Edward Amundson, deputy director of the Fairfax County, Va., social services department, said he planned to speak with the social worker who told the family of the pending cutoff in benefits. Amundson said to higher officials in the department. After the Washington Star ran a series of stories about Melinda, her faith in God and the family's sacrifices, dozens of persons mailed or brought food, clothing "and a little money" to the family. "We weren't prepared for people to take that much interest," Mrs. Darnell said. "We had been fighting this thing by ourselves for years. We didn't look for the publicity."

She said the response heartened them and "restored our faith."

A benefit for Melinda is set for Sunday at a local high school. The day has been declared "Melinda Day" by Virginia Gov. Mills Godwin.

When the proclamation from the governor arrived, Mrs. Darnell read it to her bedridden daughter.

"Read it to me again Mommy," she told me," Mrs. Darnell said Thursday. "She thought it was a joke, but I got a magnifying glass and showed her the governor's signature. She said, 'Gosh!' She wanted me to frame it."

It was uncertain whether Melinda would be able to attend the Sunday benefit.

"It looks bad. Every day is worse," her mother said. "She's a little weaker and is not eating well. She's not able to use her hands."

Not knowing if Melinda will live to see Christmas Day, the family has been celebrating it in advance, giving her a small present to open each day.

"She (can no longer) tear the paper off the packages," Mrs. Darnell said.

The City of Greenville proposes to request the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development to release Federal funds under Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 (PL 93-383) to be used for the following project:
A) Purchase of approximately 350 acres of land.
B) The purchased site would be used for construction of a sewage treatment facility.
C) The site is located west of Greenville, south of NC 1534, west of NC 1533 and north of the Tar River.
D) Project cost—$250,000.

It has been determined that such request for release of funds will not constitute an action significantly affecting the quality of the human environment and, accordingly, the City of Greenville has decided not to prepare an Environmental Impact Statement under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (PL 91-190).

The reasons for such a decision not to prepare such Statement were as follows:
Although this project would not have any impact on the environment, the Environmental Advisory Commission evaluated the possible impacts from the proposed sewage treatment facility. With adequate safeguards implemented during construction such as erosion control devices, no adverse impacts were determined.

Environmental Review Records respecting the within project have been made by the City of Greenville which document the environmental review of the project and more fully set forth the reasons why such Statement is not required. These Environmental Review Records are on file at the City Hall and are available for public examination and copying upon request at the City engineer's office between the hours of 9:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. during week days.

No further environmental review of such project is proposed to be conducted prior to the request for release of Federal funds.

All interested agencies, groups or persons disagreeing with this decision are invited to submit written comments for consideration by the City of Greenville to the Office of the Mayor. Such written comments should be received at the City Hall on or before January 7, 1977. All such comments so received will be considered, and the City of Greenville will not request the release of Federal funds or take any administrative action on the written project prior to January 7, 1977.

Everything you always wanted to know about IRA.

- Q. What is IRA?
A. An Individual Retirement Account.
- Q. How does it work?
A. Each year you deposit a portion of your income to your IRA. The amount you deposit can legally be up to 15% of your annual earnings, but cannot exceed $1,500 per year.
- Q. Does IRA earn interest?
A. Yes. The highest rate allowed by law.
- Q. How is it different from a regular savings account?
A. There are some big differences. The amount you deposit isn't subject to taxes. For example, if you earn $15,000 this year and deposit $1,500 to your IRA, your tax base would drop to $13,500. The tax break applies to interest earned too.
- Q. How do I start an IRA?
A. Come to Home Savings before December 31, and we'll be glad to get you started.

FINAL AMENDMENT TO FINAL COMPREHENSIVE ANNUAL SERVICES PLAN UNDER TITLE XX

THE DEPARTMENT OF HUMAN RESOURCES STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA

PROGRAM YEAR JULY 1, 1976 TO JUNE 30, 1977

Changes in State policy, Federal interpretations of the law, and service delivery proposals have necessitated the amendment of the Final Comprehensive Annual Services Plan for Social Services under Title XX of the Federal Social Security Act.

- Revision in definition of Chore Services
- Revision in definition of Foster Care Services for Adults
- Revision in definition of services to Meet Special Needs of the Blind
- Incorporation of the definition of "institution" into the CASP
- Inclusion of a third type of special study for evaluating the Title XX program in North Carolina
- Revision in county plans for service delivery (direct and by local contract)
- Reinstatement of fees at county option for individuals receiving Preparation and Delivery of Meals whose family incomes are below 65% of the State's median
- Revision in fee policy so that no fees for services will be charged to persons who are recipients of Aid to Families with Dependent Children payments or of Supplemental Security Income benefits; and that no fees for services will be charged to recipients of Medicaid unless their family income exceeds 80% of the State's median for their family size; and that no fees will be charged for the six services that are available to members of families with incomes up to the 100% median income level when provided in conjunction with Protective Services for Adults and Children

DIFFERENCES between the PROPOSED AMENDMENT and the FINAL AMENDMENT include changes in services listed as available in Rowan, Clay, and Johnston counties and a change in the fee schedule for Preparation and Delivery of Meals in Cleveland County. These changes were the result of local review of the Proposed Amendment.

THE EFFECTIVE DATE OF THESE CHANGES IS DECEMBER 10, 1976.

APPLICATION FOR SOCIAL SERVICES AND PUBLIC REVIEW OF THE FINAL AMENDMENT may be done at all county departments of social services, MONDAY-FRIDAY, from 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.

THE FINAL AMENDMENT may be obtained free of charge by calling 1-800-662-7030 (toll free) or by written request to the office listed below:

The bidding:
South West North East
1NT Pass 3NT Pass
Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: Five of ♣.

Knowing that partner will do the right thing can be a great help on defense. Consider the effect that trust in partner had on the outcome of this hand.

North was a trifle aggressive in jumping to game over his partner's no trump opening bid. He hoped that his diamond suit would produce five tricks, and that his playing strength would compensate for a missing point or two.

West made his natural lead of the fourth-best spade, and declarer paused to take stock of the situation. Obviously, if the club finesse succeeded, he would have more than enough tricks. However, if it failed and the defenders found the heart shift, they would be able to collect at least four heart tricks and a club to set the contract.

In an effort to deflect the defenders from the winning defense, declarer captured the jack of spades with the ace! He wanted to create the illusion that East held the queen of spades. Dummy was entered with a high diamond and the club finesse lost.

At this point, the average West, duped by declarer's falsecard at trick one, would continue a low spade, expecting his partner to win the queen and return the suit to defeat the contract! That would allow declarer to get home with an overtrick.

Our West was made of sterner stuff. After winning the king of clubs he laid down the king of spades. When the queen failed to drop, West shifted to the king of hearts, and in response to his partner's enthusiastic signal, continued hearts to rack up a three-trick set.

How did West know that it was futile to continue with spades? Faith in his partner's ability was the answer. A good defender would drop the queen of spades under the king. Since East failed to do so, West placed declarer with that card. Obviously, declarer was trying to conceal a weakness with his play at trick one, and it could only be in the heart suit. Therefore, the shift to hearts was clearcut.

Your play to the first trick could decide the fate of the contract! A writer once remarked: "There's no such thing as a blind opening lead, only deaf opening leaders!" GINGERBREAD HOUSE — The Christmas season has begun with the aroma of gingerbread and the scent of fresh evergreens. Inspired by the festive period a Berlin inkeeper turned to his saw to create these lively wooden pieces of gingerbread. Film Buff Applied His Detective Skill

By MALCOLM N. CARTER
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — He fancies himself a gardener of sorts. But Christopher Sarson, the gardener, is also Christopher Sarson, the film buff, the detective and, perhaps, the artist.

Who is this Christopher Sarson? He is the transplanted Briton who is project director of the Public Broadcasting System's $1.4-million classical film series, which the Exxon Corp. has helped support.

That sounds easy enough, but "classic" implies more problems than just broadcasting the 100 films from the Janus Collection, such as "Rashomon," "Potemkin," "The Red Shoes" and "Black Orpheus."

"The thing that I've learned is that there is no such thing as the original film," Sarson says. "This is the real problem." Omitted scenes are at the core of the problem, he adds. "Potemkin" is a case in point. Seeking the authentic print of the Russian film by Sergei Eisenstein, Sarson had conflicting sources.

They were the cameraman; an elderly buff who claimed to recall every shot from a version seen two years after the film was made in 1925; Eisenstein's script; and the "definitive" version released in 1968 by the Soviet Union, which thought the original too violent.

None of the sources agreed. For example, the script calls for two children playing with hammers as the horrible Odessa Steps sequence unfolds, and Eisenstein in fact filmed it. But everyone recalls that he never included the footage in any version.

What, then, is the real version? And how does Sarson, an independent producer who created the popular "Zoom" show, decide what is?

"You immerse yourself in it, and you begin to get some sense how he works," Sarson explains. "You can't recreate it. You just make a judgment how it might have been done." He continues:

"You're dealing with living things — it's just like gardening. You're watching things grow."

Once authenticity is determined, locating the version can be a chore as well. Sarson found the print he wanted of "Alexander Nevsky" only after learning that director Francis Ford Coppola had obtained it — without subtitles — from Russia in exchange for his films.

In return for a video cassette with the desired subtitles, Coppola lent PBS the print. Thus did he and PBS come out ahead.

Sarson has also wrestled with the problem of translations. Although he rejected dubbing because it's too obvious and distracting, Sarson thought subtitles hard to read on television.

The solution was to superimpose the subtitles electronically, making them larger than usual and outlining them in black. "A lot of movies we're running have never been seen in America, period," Sarson says

'Magic' Also Is Wart-Cure

By C.G. McDANIEL
AP Science writer
CHICAGO (AP) — Burying a dead cat at midnight can cure warts as effectively as medical treatment, a dermatologist says. Or you might try rubbing the wart with grasshopper spit or milkweed juice.

Whatever the treatment, the crucial ingredient is faith that it will work, said skin specialist Dr. Jerome Litt of the Case Western Reserve University school of medicine in Cleveland.

He told a news conference at the annual meeting of the American Academy of Dermatology this week that he has had "spectacular results" using a "special wart tape" — ordinary sticky tape on which he puts an impressive-looking label.

Litt said he tells his patients that if they wear the tape over the wart, the wart will drop off. It usually does, he said, especially when the patients are impressionable children.

Doctors aren't sure how the "witchcraft" works, he said. It has been suggested that the methods stimulate secretion of body chemicals which fight the virus that causes the horny growths.

Almost everybody has warts at one time or another, although they may not be recognized and often go away without treatment.

Dr. H.J. Whyte of Emory University's School of Medicine in Atlanta said all warts are caused by the same virus, but they vary in appearance depending on where they are situated — such as planter warts flattened by pressure on the bottom of the foot.

Medical means of removal include cutting them off or using chemicals to burn them off. But the problem often is to remove them so that they do not leave a scar, Whyte said.

Because warts are caused by a virus, they are contagious. They most often affect children, who have not developed immunity to the virus as most adults do.

Club's Gift To Foster Children

The Progressive City Kiwanis Club of Greenville has presented $400 to the Pitt County Department of Social Services to use for Christmas gifts for foster children.

This sum was raised during a yard sale this fall, Bert Daniel, president of the club, said.

The check was presented Wednesday to Mrs. Mary Lehman, social work supervisor with the department. Mrs. Lehman expressed gratitude for the gift and reminded that Social Services is still accepting donations for foster children's gifts and other Christmas good will projects.

Textile Industry's Employment Dipped

ATLANTA (AP) — There were 653,400 persons employed in the southern textile industry in October, a one per cent drop from September, the U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics reported Thursday.

North Carolina, the region's chief textile state, recorded the largest reduction for the month with a loss of 2,100 workers, the report said. Alabama and South Carolina reported declines of about 800 workers each.

Other states showing declines included: Florida, 300; Virginia, 200, and Mississippi, 100. Georgia had the only increase, 300 workers, and Tennessee's employment was unchanged.

Five of the eight states contributed to a 12-month expansion of 9,200 workers. They are Georgia, 2,300; Virginia, 1,800; Florida, 1,100; Alabama, 700, and Mississippi, 100. Tennessee employment was unchanged.

North Carolina had 2,800 fewer jobs than in October 1975.

Textile workers averaged 39.8 hours per week in October, up 12 minutes from September, but down nearly two hours from the same month in 1975.

Gross average hourly earnings of $3.74 increased by one per cent over September and 30 cents from the previous October.

Gross weekly earnings of $148.85 were up $1.14 from September and $5.40 for the year, the bureau said.

Liggett Group To Buy Tetley

DURHAM (AP) — An agreement has been reached for the purchase of Tetley Inc., the tea and coffee company, by the Liggett Group of Durham.

A Liggett announcement said total price of the agreement is about $27 million. The agreement was reached between Liggett and J. Lyons & Co. Ltd., of London, Tetley's parent company.

A Delaware corporation, Tetley manufactures Tetley brand tea products and coffee products under the names Martinson, Bustelo (expresso) and Mr. Automatic.

The proposed transaction would involve cash or a combination of cash and the assumption of Tetley's debt, the announcement said.

If the sale is completed, Tetley will continue to operate under its present management in the United States as a wholly owned subsidiary of the Liggett Group, the firm said.

Town Will Be Tourist Center

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet authorities have begun work to convert Gatchina, a small town 30 miles from Leningrad famed for its 18th century parks and palaces, into a tourist center.

Nazi troops occupied the town in World War II, and pavilions, bridges and gardens were destroyed.

Tass, the official Soviet news agency, said much restoration work already has been completed, and one of the most famed palaces of the area, Yegerska Sloboda, is being prepared as a tourist hotel.
