Improvements, costing $265,000, have recently been completed at the Pitt-Greenville Airport.

Airport Authority chairman James T. Little Jr., said the most costly of the improvements involved the resurfacing of the airport's main North-South runway and the related taxiways. That project, costing $209,000, was begun in October and completed December 20.

Little noted that due to the widening of Memorial Drive to a four-lane roadway near the airport, one of the field's three runways — one running Southeast to Northwest — has been shortened. He said 2,700 feet of the strip at the Northwest end has been retained as an active runway for light aircraft.

In addition to the runway improvements, new aids to navigation have been installed.

According to Little, a new Simplified Direction Finder (SDF) system has been installed on the primary North-South runway.

"The SDF," Little said, "gives an accurate left to right indication of runway location," to pilots approaching the airport. "It brings them down the center of the runway," enabling planes to operate more safely in bad weather.

The SDF system, Little noted, cost about $40,000.

In addition to the SDF, Little said Visual Airport Slope Indicators (VASI) and Runway End Identification Lights (REILS) have been installed on the North-South runway.

The VASI system, Little explained, "gives pilots a reference to the correct slope angle on approach to the runway through a series of lights." Little said the system is "especially valuable at night."

The REILS system on the primary runway are strobe lights at "at the threshold of the runway" for use in bad weather. Little said they can be activated by aircraft pilots to mark the end of the runway.

The VASI and REILS installation cost $16,000.

Little said too, that a new hanger is under construction at the airfield.

Alpha Aviation, according to Little, is constructing a hanger for a new fixed base operation on land leased to the firm by the Airport Authority.

Little said the Alpha operation will include all aircraft services, such as maintenance, charters, training, sales and parking.

The Alpha Aviation hanger, scheduled for completion in February, will be the fourth private hanger constructed on leased property at the airport.

The Pitt-Greenville facility now, Little said, is in the "best condition it has ever been in

Nat'l Inoculation Effort Suspended

By JACK STILLMAN
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — The national swine flu inoculation program has been suspended indefinitely pending a more detailed study of a strange paralysis associated with the vaccine.

Public health officials acted Wednesday on the advice of a federal advisory committee on immunization practices and more than a score of consultants.

During the meeting, there arose a hint that the program might not be resumed this winter.

For one thing, officials said, there seems to be a tremendous lack of information about Guillain-Barre syndrome, which showed up in about 250 of the more than 41 million people who were vaccinated.

And for another, they noted, there appears to be no threat of an influenza outbreak—either of A-New Jersey (swine), or A-Victoria, the predominant influenza virus last winter.

Health officials began the program after a Ft. Dix, N. J., outbreak of swine flu last year because, they said, the virus was similar to that which killed 20 million persons in the 1918-19 pandemic.

The inoculation program was suspended Dec. 16, and Dr. David J. Sencer, director of the national Center for Disease Control, said Wednesday the search for additional facts about Guillain-Barre would take several more weeks at least.

So far, 496 cases of the syndrome have been reported in 47 states. Of these, 252 had received swine flu vaccine, 234 had not and the status of 16 is unknown. Another four of the victims had received B-Hong Kong vaccine.

There have been 19 deaths, including 11 who had received swine flu vaccine and eight who had not received it.

Dr. Edwin D. Kilbourne, chairman of the Department of Microbiology at Mount Sinai School of Medicine in New York and a committee member, noted the small difference in the number of syndrome victims who had not received the vaccine and the number who had.

Six Die In 2-Car Collision

SHOTWELL, N.C. (AP) — Five teenagers and a young woman were killed late Wednesday and six other persons were injured when two cars crowded with passengers collided head on along a rural dirt road.

The highway patrol said the two cars met head on at the crest of a hill on a narrow unpaved road near this Wake County community, which is near the Johnston County line.

A patrol spokesman today identified the dead as Susan Frances Underhill, 21, of Wendell, driver of one of the vehicles; William Harold Wheeler, 16, driver of the other car; and Kim Spence, 14, Lisa Jo Wright, 15, Lisa Rosa Lynch, 15, and Ken Smith, 15, all of Clayton and all passengers in the car driven by Wheeler.

Four of the victims were pronounced dead at the scene. Two others died later at a Wake County hospital.

Asked about the cause of the wreck, the patrol spokesman said, "The investigation is still continuing and probably won't be concluded until late today, if then."

A Wake County Hospital spokesman identified the injured as Helen Jean Brewer, 18, in critical condition; Braxton Williams, 21, good condition; Charles Randy Gurley, 15, good condition; James Greg Sasser, 15, fair condition; Paul Timothy Lee, 19, serious condition; and Donald Martin Lee, 19, critical condition.

All the injured were believed to be from the Clayton area, the hospital spokesman said.

Job For Faircloth

RALEIGH (AP) — Clinton businessman-farmer Lauch Faircloth was named state secretary of commerce today by Gov.-elect Jim Hunt, who praised Faircloth's successes as "a Horatio Alger success story."

"We need a strong Secretary of Commerce who can talk the language of both business leaders and the working people of this state," Hunt told a mid-morning news conference. "Lauch Faircloth has those qualities."

Faircloth, 48, is a Sampson County native who grew up on a farm and "literally built his businesses from scratch," said Hunt.

"I chose him because he has the dedication to work the long, hard hours that are going to be essential here," Hunt said. "He understands the need for better jobs and better pay. And he has a special concern for expanding businesses."

Faircloth was a member of the State Highway Commission from 1961 to 1965 and served as commission chairman from 1969 to 1973.

He has business interests in farming, construction, automobile dealerships, farm equipment, milling and commercial real estate.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used. Transcribing is done once a day.

HOTLINE FEEDBACK

PAGER RETURNED

The pager told of in last Thursday's Hotline column as having been found in the pot with a poinsettia purchased at a local nursery has been returned to the owner.

Pitt County Fire Marshal Bobby Joyner said it belongs to the Farmville Fire Department. He said he was able to identify the owner, both because of the frequency and because of four digits engraved on the case. How the pager got into the pot was not told to Hotline.

WATKINS DEALER

Our appeal for a Watkins Products dealer Tuesday resulted in calls from several of our readers telling us of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Tyson. We talked to Mrs. Tyson, who said she and her husband work mainly in the Farmville-Fountain area, but would be glad to help anyone in the Greenville area wishing it. Anyone who would like to may call them at 756-1806.

Watkins Products consist mainly of cosmetic and household items, Mrs. Tyson said.

China Reports Suppression Of Radical Element

HONG KONG (AP) — Chinese troops have put an end to "great chaos" spread by supporters of the purged widow of Mao Tse-tung in the city of Baoding, about 100 miles southwest of Peking, according to official and foreign news reports from China.

The reports, which spoke of bombings and armed raids by the rebels, did not make clear when the antigovernment disturbances occurred.

A Dec. 20 issue of Peking's People's Daily newspaper obtained here said the armed bands in Baoding had been "threatening the security of Peking so that they could usurp the party power" and were suppressed by army troops.

A Hopeh provincial radio report quoted by the London Daily Telegraph today said it took a "concerted effort" by the army to restore order after a long period of "confusion" in the city, the provincial capital. The Sydney (Australia) Morning Herald's China correspondent also reported the Baoding disturbances.

The Telegraph's Peking correspondent, Nigel Wade, noted that foreign travelers had reported as early as last spring that radical opponents of the Hopeh provincial leadership in Baoding had broken into an armory, blown up factories and committed murder, rape and robbery.

The Baoding disclosures were the latest in a series of reports of disturbances directed against the regime of Chairman Hua Kuo-feng and said to have been fomented by radical followers of Mao's widow, Chiang Ching, and her associates in the "Gang of Four."

The disorders are believed to have been most widespread in late summer and fall.

The Sydney Morning Herald's Yvonne Preston wrote in a dispatch from Peking today, "Reports reaching Peking say that armed groups supporting the ousted 'Gang of Four' and opposing Hua robbed banks."

Early farm tools such as a subsoil cutter used before the Civil War and one of the earliest tobacco trucks made by Leon Cox and Sons are among items which are being loaned by John Smith of Grifton.

A flax wheel, and a chair with corn-shuck seat and early dentist's tools are being loaned and donated by Mrs. Ruth Tucker of Grifton. Raeford Blizzard of Richlands is loaning many household and farm items.

Other items that have been loaned include the following: an old smoothing plane made of wood by Paul Hines of Kinston; a set of American currency

Robersonville Woman Is Killed, 2 Hurt In Wreck

By TOMMY FORREST
Reflector Staff Writer

A Robersonville woman was killed and two others injured last night in an accident at the intersection of U. S. 13 and highway 903 about one mile north of Greenville.

The woman was identified by highway patrolman Fred Davis as Judy Weaver, 26, of Robersonville, a passenger in the car driven by her father, Dennis Oirel Weaver, who was listed in critical condition at Pitt Memorial Hospital.

The car, according to the patrolman, pulled into the path of a tractor-trailer truck being operated by Jesus Rodriguez Garcia of Bailey. The car was demolished and there was no estimate of damage to the truck.

Davis said Garcia was charged with having an expired chauffeur's license and Weaver was charged with failure to yield the right of way and death by vehicle.

Garcia was also slightly injured, but was treated and released.

Members of the Staton-House fire department were called to the scene when fuel spilled from the truck. There was no fire.

Classified Documents

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hundreds of pages of classified documents have been found at the home of a former Central Intelligence Agency employee who is charged with trying to sell CIA papers to the Soviet Union, the FBI says.

The FBI said it found the documents when it searched the suburban Bethesda, Md., home of Edwin G. Moore II after his arrest last week. The statements came in an FBI inventory filed Wednesday with a U.S. magistrate.

Meanwhile, Moore was hospitalized in Montgomery County (Md.) General Hospital for treatment of a possible heart attack, the FBI said. Moore, 56, has a history of heart problems. Hospital officials declined to disclose his condition.

According to the inventory, the halls and closets of Moore's home were full of material which should never have left the CIA's headquarters in Langley, Va. Much of it was marked "secret" or "confidential," although none was classified "top secret" or higher.

Some were dated after Moore retired from the CIA's mapping and logistics department in 1973. The CIA would not comment on whether it believed someone still working inside the agency might have given Moore some of the documents dated after his retirement.

The FBI's list gave no specifics other than a general description of the items seized. It included directories with weekly schedule marked "Executive Office of the President, official use only," and a "typewritten original of a note offering to provide penetration into the CIA for 10 million dollars."

Anti-Satellite Weapon Tested

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The

Russians have staged their fourth test of a satellite interceptor this year, but it tentatively is being classified as a failure by U.S. intelligence sources.

The Russians resumed flight testing of antisatellite devices early this year after a lapse of about five years and the U.S. sources said the latest test was conducted Monday.

All tests have involved only Russian satellites and no effort has been made by the Soviets to disable, destroy or interfere with U.S. spy-in-the-sky vehicles, U.S. intelligence sources said.

Officials who closely track the Soviet antisatellite development program have dismissed as untrue recent published reports that said the Russians have used high intensity laser beams or other devices against American satellites.

In Monday's test, sources say, Soviet Cosmos satellite 886 was launched from Tyuratam in central Russia on Dec. 27 and on its second orbit around the earth it apparently attempted to intercept Cosmos 880. Cosmos 880 was launched Dec. 9 and originally was thought to be a photo reconnaissance vehicle.

The hunter satellite never came closer than one mile to its target satellite, sources said, and the vehicle disintegrated on its third orbit. Cosmos 880, the target, is said to be still in space.

U.S. analysts tentatively rate the new test as a failure because the hunter satellite did not get closer to the target. In past tests, intelligence sources have said, the Soviet hunter satellite came within 100 feet of its target.

It is believed the Soviet system under development involves blowing up the hunter satellite in close proximity to its target, which would be destroyed by pieces of the exploding hunter vehicle.

This week's test was reported to be the first conducted by the Russians since July. A mid-December simultaneous launch of two Soviet Cosmos satellites at first was thought to have been such a test. But analysts subsequently decided it actually was an experiment connected with Russian manned space work.

The annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce will be held Thursday, Jan. 27, at 7 p.m. at the Moose Lodge. Tickets have been mailed to all members, and all members and their spouses are invited to attend.

The meeting will feature a guest speaker, introduction of new officers, presentation of the Chamber program of work for 1977 and recognition of the outstanding citizen of Greenville for 1976.

Cold Strains Fuel Supply

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The early cold this winter is putting severe strain on the state's supplies of propane and heating fuel, but officials say nobody is being cut off.

Propane distributors have asked for 30 per cent more fuel from emergency reserves this year than last, according to Paul L. Hitchcock, director of the state Energy Division.

"It's creating a very tight distribution problem with propane," Hitchcock said.

Heating fuel is held back by distributors each month for emergencies. They must get permission before using the reserves. Anything not used by the end of each month is automatically released.

Last week, Hitchcock said, the state released all December reserves of propane and fuel oil to avoid shortages.

"We think that's taken care of the problem," he said.

"We don't see any real problem," said Don M. Ward, executive director of the North Carolina Oil Jobbers Association. "Some companies are having minor problems...but the other distributors are coming to their rescue."

Prefer Carter Be A Delegate

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Southern Baptist officials would prefer that President-elect Jimmy Carter attend their 1977 convention as a church representative rather than in his capacity as the nation's leader.

Three members of a convention planning committee which invited President Ford to appear at the 1976 meeting, said Carter would not be invited to speak at the next session.

"We would rather have President Carter come as a registered Southern Baptist from his church," Gene Puckett, a committee member, said.

Puckett, of Lutherville, Md., recalled the "flak" he received when Ford was invited as an SBC speaker last year.

Mrs. Maruan Grant, a member from Raleigh, N.C., also recalled the anger many persons expressed when their handbags and briefcases were searched by federal agents when Ford spoke in Norfolk, Va.

"Some people did not like the trappings when the President of the United States comes to speak at the Southern Baptist convention," she said.

"The general mood is that we should not invite President Carter and we should not get into a rut about inviting him," said committee member W. F. Howard, a Dallas, Tex., minister.

Howard said he would not be surprised if Carter came voluntarily as a delegate, but added such a visit probably would create problems for the Secret Service.

The planning committee is to discuss the situation further at a meeting next month, Howard said.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Snow and rain are due today from the Southwest to the eastern Gulf. Unseasonably cold weather is due for the eastern two-thirds of the nation but milder temperatures are forecast for the West. (AP Wirephoto)

By The Associated Press

A low pressure area is expected to develop over North and South Carolina tonight, bringing with it light rain for most of the state and more snow in the mountains.

The low pressure, located over northern Missouri early this morning, was expected to begin moving southeastward rapidly. It is expected to reach North Carolina by tonight before moving off the coast early Friday.

Cloudiness will return this afternoon and early tonight. The rain will be mixed with snow in the southern mountain regions, but the northern mountains are expected to get only snow.

Rain, freezing rain, sleet and a few snow flurries are expected in the foothills and across the northern Piedmont tonight. Over the remainder of North Carolina there will be a chance of rain tonight and early Friday.

Because the weather system will be moving so fast, it will not collect enough moisture for heavy amounts of precipitation.

It was partly cloudy with brisk northwesterly winds across the state Wednesday. Afternoon highs remained in the 30s in the mountains, where they received some snowfall. In the northern mountains, accumulations of new snow ranged up to four inches.

To the east of the mountains, afternoon temperatures ranged from 40 degrees at Hickory to 54 degrees at Wilmington and Cherry Point.

The recreational weather outlook calls for increasing cloudiness today. Afternoon highs will range from 30 degrees in the northwest mountains to the low 50s along the south coast. By Friday there will be some lingering rain along the coast with mostly cloudy skies over the rest of the state.

Palestinian Guerrillas Trade Shots In Beirut

By ALY MAHMOUD
Associated Press Writer
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Feuding Palestinian guerrilla factions traded mortar and machine gun fire in Beirut today, and fighting between Christians and the Moslem-Palestinian alliance continued in southern Lebanon.

There were no casualty reports from either area.

"Tension mounted during the night in Palestinian refugee camps," a security official said. "Officers of the Arab peace force have warned those delinquents to stop shooting at once."

Witnesses said the fighting in the capital involved the pro-Syrian Saiga guerrilla group and Yasir Arafat's Al Fatah command.

The Saiga guerrillas fought with Syrian troops earlier this year when Syria intervened in the Lebanese conflict and routed the Palestinian-Moslem allies, paving the way for an Arab League sponsored ceasefire enforced mostly by Syrian soldiers and armor.

In the south, Christians and Palestinian-backed Moslems exchanged light and heavy arms fire at the villages of Kfar Kela and Odeisseh near the Israeli border, right-wing Christian militia sources said.

Christian leaders renewed their demand that Arab peace troops be sent to southern Lebanon to "protect Christian villages against the Palestinians." The Syrians have stayed clear of the border area to avoid friction with Israel.

The Christian leaders again urged the Syrians to force the guerrillas to surrender their heavy weapons, in line with the provisions of the Arab League ceasefire.

The Palestinians have refused to give up the weapons, saying they will be needed in the south for renewed attacks on Israel.

Tole Painting Growing In Popularity In U.S.

By DALE SINGER
ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Have you ever seen one of those dark stained wooden wall plaques with painted grapes that look so real you want to pluck one off and pop it into your mouth?

Such plaques are examples of tole painting, one of many crafts growing dramatically in popularity in the United States. You may not think you have the talent to do it, but Gerry Klein says all you have to do is follow instructions, one step at a time.

"A lot of people are interested in these crafts, but they're afraid to try," said Mrs. Klein, who began painting nine years ago and now owns her own crafts shop and shares her love of art with scores of students.

"They think they're just for people with a lot of talent, but the things we do don't take any special talent at all. They're all done according to a system, step-by-step."

Tole painting is based on method, not artistic ability, she said. With a proper stroke, a minimum amount of paint on the brush and careful wiping of the brush between each stroke, the proper effect can be achieved.

The object of tole painting, Mrs. Klein said, is a smooth picture that appears to have no brush strokes at all. Unlike some other types of painted pictures, a tole painting should look as good close up as it does from a distance.

Technically, toleware is tin, but tole painting is done on many surfaces, so it is often termed tole and decorative painting to more accurately describe its wide range of forms. Its popularity in the United States began in the mid-18th century, with folk art evolving into sophisticated designs.

An increasingly industrialized society pushed such painstaking art into the background, but its beauty and simplicity have made it popular once more. All age groups enjoy tole painting, from widows with time on their hands to young adults who want to give gifts that show more imagination and personal attention than money.

Mrs. Klein, 38, didn't know anything about art when she first started. "If someone had asked me what I could do," she said in an interview, "I would have said, 'scrub floors and wash diapers,' because that's all I had ever done."

"But once I got started, I gained confidence. It gives you the courage to go on and do other things."

One of the things she has done is open her own business, The Idea Shop. It's a storefront studio marked with a bright yellow awning on the city's south side where Mrs. Klein is surrounded with the materials and the students of the art she loves.

She talked of tole painting as she wandered among half a dozen students involved in different projects — giving encouragement along with her instruction. ("You're still swishing it too much," she told one woman. "Glop it a little more.")

Her expertise led to writing four booklets on decorative painting, complete with designs for students to try, and trips to other states to help satisfy a growing demand for accomplished teachers.

"So many people don't know anything about it," she said. "I was in Ohio and Pennsylvania and they're just starving for it. Before I could even get started they were asking when I could come back. Some were coming 300 miles for lessons — can you imagine that?"

In 1972 the National Society of Tole and Decorative Painters was formed, with 84 charter members. The society now has more than 3,000 painters and has a program for designating certified degree teachers and master teachers to spread the art even more.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Welcome to the Twilight Zone between Christmas and the new year.

It was all rather predictable, wasn't it? The trash can is full of pictures from the can't-fail-simple-a-child-can-operate-it camera that makes our family look like a moon crater.

The rummaging through billfolds for sales slips that we threw into the fire when we burnt the paper.

My husband spreading joy by announcing every three hours, "This place is going to burn to the ground."

The search for off-sized batteries that are available only in Communist countries.

My husband warning the kids they are going to be sliced in half if they don't stop dropping their flip tops into their cans.

A food shredder. I wonder if Farrah Fawcett-Majors got a food shredder for Christmas. I'll bet her yearbook didn't say, "Girl most likely to have her cold treated by a vet."

The poinsettias are going. I knew they would. What the heck. I saw plastic plants in church the other day. If you can't grow real ones in church, what chance do I have?

Mom wants me to go to the after-Christmas sales tomorrow. I don't think I've got the strength. What was it my Dad said? "Your mother's been gone for three days, but I'm not worried. She's only shopping."

Can you believe someone actually bought me a social calendar? Let's see, I'll worm the dog on the 18th, rotate the wheels on my vacuum sweeper the 25th and maybe I'll visit my meat in the food locker on the third of next month.

Thank goodness the bicentennial year is over. It's just as well. I didn't recognize anyone on the bicentennial minute anymore.

1977. Mayva says the reason I don't make new year's resolutions is because I think I'm perfect. That's not true. I don't know where to start. I'd like to be wonderful, punctual, wise, understanding, patient, and if God has a minute, I'd like to see my hipbones before I die.

But you know what I'd really like to be again? Selfish. I'd like to love me. Be patient with me, understand me, listen to me and

DEAR ABBY: I applaud that clergyman who was man enough to admit that confessing his infidelity to his wife was a terrible mistake.

My husband of 15 years, whom I loved, respected and trusted implicitly, confessed such an affair to me two years ago, and our marriage will never be the same again.

That boastful confession was deadly, despite his proclaimed love for me. It was the biggest mistake he ever made.

If only one person reading this is considering such a confession to "cleanse his soul," I urge you, please, please, don't!

EMPTY IN NEW JERSEY

DEAR EMPTY: Your letter is full of wisdom. Thanks for sharing.

DEAR ABBY: I think I'm pregnant. I've made love with my boyfriend, but it wasn't planned or we would have used something. I need some information on a clinic I can go to if I need an abortion.

This really scares me as I've never been to a hospital in my life. I've heard a lot of stories about girls who have had abortions. Some die, and others can never have children.

Are there any free clinics? I can't raise a lot of money. Maybe a few hundred dollars. Is that enough for a safe abortion? I'm in good health except for this problem.

I can't tell my parents. It would kill them. They've already been through this with my sister, only she got married. I swore this would never happen to me.

Please answer me in the column. No way can a reply go to my home. I am 19 and was a "nice" girl before this happened.

SCARED TO DEATH

DEAR SCARED: First, go to your local Planned Parenthood Clinic. They will arrange for an examination to determine whether or not you are pregnant. If you are, they will provide expert counseling to help you make the decision that is best for you. Please write again and let me know how you are. I care.

DEAR ABBY: It's easy to understand why a married man of 45 would leave his wife for a younger woman, but how about a man that age who would leave a beautiful 36-year-old wife for an old, wrinkled grandmother of 55?

That is exactly what my brother did. He can't be in his right mind. Don't tell me he is looking for "mother substitute." Our mother is still living, and if ever a man got his share of mother love, Brother did. He was the "baby" of the family, and the only boy, born after four girls.

So please tell me what an intelligent, good-looking, professional man can see in a 55-year-old divorced rethead. It's not money. She doesn't have any, and he has plenty.

DISGUSTED IN CHICAGO

DEAR DISGUSTED: One of life's most baffling mysteries is what people "in love" see in each other. But I suspect your brother's reasons are older than the hills and younger than springtime. (P.S. You are not your brother's keeper.)

Tighter Standards Are Needed

The break-up of the oil tanker Argo Merchant off the coast of New England indicates there should be stronger controls over how ships are operated on the high seas.

According to the skipper's testimony in U. S. District Court the tanker was 24.5 miles off course and its gyrocompass was not operating.

The ship broke up on the shoals and spilled its cargo of 7.5 million gallons of oil off the coast.

The Coast Guard is still coping with that, with the possibility that some of the oil might wash up on the shores of the United States. It could even be carried eastward by the Gulf Stream to contaminate the beaches of England.

It will be a long time before all the facts of this disaster are sorted out by the courts and other authorities. We don't have to wait until this particular oil spill problem has been settled in order to seek ways to prevent future ones.

With the super tankers sailing the oceans now, there should be international tightening of standards for officers who are to operate the ships, and there should be adequate equipment, with proper back-up, to control the ship while it sails.

If we can't obtain international agreement on higher standards for personnel and equipment for the super tankers, then the United States should set its own. We shouldn't allow the tankers in our ports if they don't meet our set standards.

How Much 'Power' Can Mondale Keep

Most presidents start out with the idea of giving their vice presidents some significant duties.

As time goes along, however, the vice president becomes less influential with the president, and is often left out of the planning process altogether.

President-Elect Jimmy Carter says he will give his vice president, Walter F. Mondale, significant duties. He called the vice president his "chief staff person."

Mondale is an able man and it would be well that his abilities be used by the White House. It remains to be seen how much power Mondale will retain as the inevitable power struggle goes on among the executive staff.

THIS AFTERNOON The Unresolved Dilemma

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Months of study by legislative commissions and the collection of reams of data have left unresolved the dilemma of how the state's Community College System should be operated at the top.

In fact, two legislative study groups will report to the 1977 General Assembly with two very opposite recommendations based on their separate findings.

One will call for a split at the top: the State Board of Education should look after the public schools and a separate policy board and administrative agency should run the technical institutes and community colleges.

Another will present arguments for keeping the community colleges and technical institutes under the overall direction of the State Board of Education as a co-equal unit along with the public schools.

Appoint Superintendent
Both study commissions, however, are calling for a halt to the statewide election of the state superintendent of schools, with that post to be filled by appointment of the State Board of Education.

There is strong emotional conflict, political fighting, and personality differences at work in a struggle over governance of the Community College System. Arguments can be tabulated almost endlessly on either side of the issue; witness the opposite conclusions of two legislative study commissions.

But briefly described, the clash covers these positions:
—Those who want the system split off claim community colleges get more than a fair share of funds from the State Board of Education which also makes the decisions on funding of the public schools. Further, proponents of two separate systems believe rules and regulations espoused by the State Board of Education work to the advantage of the community colleges rather than the public schools.

The system should be required to fight in the legislative arena rather than under the protection of the State Board of Education, some argue.

—Keep community colleges under the State Board to insure continued success of a valued community program which is an integral part of the total educational program; not just a splinter, say those opposed to a change. The young system with its alumni of working people would be devoured in a three-way battle in the General Assembly involving the public schools, higher education, and community colleges.

Completing Ideas
Further, the importance of adult education is increasing rapidly, and without central direction it is likely that public schools and community colleges would find themselves in competition for clients in short order.

There is already evidence of that potential in efforts of the State Department of Public Instruction to branch out into optional school programs, offering adult classes in certain fields.

It is important to the nature of the argument and the eventual resolution of it that Craig Phillips, superintendent of Public Instruction, is the principal battler for separation of the community colleges from the State Board of Education. Board Chairman A. Dallas Herring is the chief proponent of maintaining community colleges as a key part of the public education program under his policy board.

Herring and Phillips have a history of disagreement as to philosophy and function which is deep-rooted.

The Legislative Commission on Public School Law is recommending that the two agencies be separated, and that a new State Board of Education with members nominated from local school boards and appointed by the General Assembly be empowered to name the state superintendent. State Senator Ed Renfrow, D-Johnston, is chairman.

The Legislative Commission on Community Colleges is recommending that there not be a separate board. But being "aware of the existing structural problems within the system" that commission also calls for appointment of the superintendent by the State Board of Education without spelling out any proposed change in method of selection of board members now appointed by the governor. Defeated State Senator Bob L. Barker, D-Wake, is chairman.

Wintry Test A Lesson

By JULES LOH
AP Newsfeatures Writer
INTERNATIONAL FALLS, Minn. (AP) — At the close of a year, a time for reflection, hardly a place is better suited than this for that worthy exercise.

There is something to be learned from this place, something other than what everybody already knows from the nightly weather report: that it is the coldest place in the 48 contiguous states.

When winter's fangs bite into this little spot on the Canadian border — in the first half of this month the thermometer managed to hang above zero for only four brief hours — living becomes an adventure and humility a daily lesson. Nature's elemental severity invites long thoughts about man's standing in the Great Scheme.

"I think we worry more about the simple necessities of survival than most people do," said Frank Bohman, a philosophic aviator who has lived here all his 52 years.

"Having enough food in the house, enough fuel, a backup heating system, these are real concerns. I would imagine that in gentler climates people take survival for granted."

For the record, when the earth tilts toward winter, winds borne on the jet stream sweep from the North Pole down the interior flank of the Canadian Rockies and pivot eastward right at this point, so that the average yearly temperature here is 37.5 degrees and the annual snowfall 50 inches. Readings in the minus 30s and 40s are commonplace during the winter.

The cold grips so fiercely, in fact, that it all but refuses to let go. The ground freezes five feet down, until late June.

The town is on the granite shore of Rainy Lake, one of creation's masterpieces, a 340-square-mile work of art done in a freeform of coves and bays and flecked with 1,600 tiny

40 Years Ago Today

December 30, 1936

Adolf Hitler summoned the sub-leaders of the Third Reich to important conferences today, faced with Benito Mussolini's advice to get away from Spain.

German political strategists were called into consultation in Berlin after Hitler had returned to the capital to pay tribute at the grave of General Hans von Seeckt, post world war organizer of the German army, who died Sunday.

Mussolini's advice, said reputable sources, was to withdraw from Spain as gracefully as possible. Duce was represented as having washed his hands of General Francisco Franco and the Spanish insurgents and to have suggested Hitler follow suit.

Momentous decisions on naval construction and far-Eastern policy lie ahead for this country with termination at midnight tomorrow of the Washington and London naval limitation treaties.

Officers expressed general satisfaction with the American fleet's state at the year end and hailed progress toward the Navy's objective of a combat fleet of allotted strength by 1942.

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK Looking Between Lines

One of the oldest guessing games in Washington—a game that dates back to the days of John Marshall—lies in guessing what the Supreme Court is up to. The good guessers these days are guessing the Supreme Court has shifted position on the business of racial-balance busing. If so, high time!

As every court observer knows, the high tribunal moves in mysterious ways its wonders to perform. Perhaps two or three times a precedent no longer controls. This happened last June in a California case involving state employees and the Federal Fair Labor Standards Act. Far more frequently, the Court abandons a precedent, as they say, "sub silentio." The precedent vanishes as slowly as the smile on the Cheshire cat. After a while it wholly disappears.

In a long memorandum order on December 7, written by Mr. Justice Powell, the Court vacated a lower court judgment involving the schools of Austin, Texas. The Court sent the case back on remand, with a few suggestions attached.

The suggestions were deliberately vague. Mr. Justice Powell is possessed of a mind as precise as the gears of a very fine watch. If he had wanted to signal a U-turn in the course that busing has taken, he would have done so. Instead, he hinted; he nudged; he indicated. He was like Polonius, instructing the Fifth Circuit how by indirect means it might find directions out.

In the Austin case, the Fifth Circuit had decreed a desegregation plan that struck Mr. Justice Powell as "remarkably sweeping." The plan called for the cross-town busing of 6-to-10-year-old children from East Austin

"through the congested center of the city to West Austin." For older children, the cross-town pattern would be reversed. All told, from 18,000 to 25,000 students—representing from 32 to 42 percent of the entire school population—would have to be bused in an effort "to achieve a degree of racial balance in every school."

So drastic a mandate may have impressed Mr. Justice Powell as a stupid piece of business. We can infer as much from his memorandum opinion. But Supreme Court justices shun the blunt weapon. Instead, Mr. Justice Powell gently implied that apparently the circuit court had "misconceived the import" of the famous New Kent County case of 1968. The lower court "may have erred by a readiness to impute to Austin school officials a segregative intent far more pervasive than the evidence justified." Alas, the circuit court "also seems to have erred in ordering a desegregation plan for exceeding any identifiable violations of constitutional rights."

Behind these apparent misconceptions, may have, and seems to have, if my own guess is correct, was a veiled judicial intent. The high court would like the trial and appellate courts to apply a tougher standard in desegregation cases. The concept of racial balance, if it ever existed, no longer is to be honored. Remedies hereafter must be limited: They must be limited to correcting only those conditions plainly caused by the unconstitutional acts of local officials.

Mr. Justice Powell had a thought for the day: "The principal cause of racial and ethnic imbalance in urban public schools across the country—North and South—is the imbalance in residential patterns. Such residential patterns are typically beyond the control of school authorities."

The justice had this further observation: "I do not suggest that transportation of pupils is never a permissible means of implementing desegregation. I merely emphasize the limitation (continued on page 5)

Other Editors Say To Beggar Status

(Watauga Democrat)

Unemployment statistics and federal statistics defining the "poor" are often of limited meaning. The bureaucrats like to spend more money (that makes for a bigger bureaucracy) and they paint the picture as very bad. That makes their work sound important, or vital. That's human nature.

Many American families with no cash income today are not poor. In fact, they are well cared for by working taxpayers. Take, for example, families in metropolitan housing complexes. It costs the government about $6,500 a year to keep the average family in a government housing apartment.

The family then draws welfare — about $3,500 a year. The family also receives food stamps, medical and dental care. To build the apartment cost working taxpayers another $30,000. So that family isn't poor by any standards. In fact, it's riding a bureaucratic gravy train at the expense of middle income, taxpaying Americans, with about a $13,000 annual income.

Another example of misleading government statistics involves the unemployed. With politicians, modern philosophers and others trying to run the housewife out of her home, to the factory, and many of them departing, we now have families with two or three members working.

If a son or daughter or wife is temporarily unemployed, that's not necessarily a hardship. Employment today is at an all-time high and yet unemployment is also high. But not all those numbers mean there's economic hardship in American homes. Even the Labor Department is now conceding as much.

The basic economic dilemma for working Americans is caused by politicians promising too much to too many and painting a black economic picture to justify giveaways. Americans must continue to accept their traditional responsibility for their own living, barring special circumstances. Unless we do that, we are on the way to the same woes now reducing once-proud and mighty England to beggar status — brought on by too many goodies promised to too many.

Next Month, The True Figures

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Next month, in 1977, we finally will find what the monthly jobless rates were for 1976.

Yes, the corrected, seasonally adjusted rates for all those figures that in the past year were the basis for so many headlines, so much concern, so many personal, business, political and governmental decisions.

They might not have been correct, you know. Little attention was brought to this possibility at the time, but the fact is that those fractional ups and downs that seemed so precisely accurate might not have been.

No matter; we made our decisions, and among them was the decision to change presidents. Whatever decisions were made cannot be recalled. But the numbers can, and they will be.

Each January, you see, the Bureau of Labor Statistics takes another look at the numbers and revises some of them. Last January, for instance, we lowered the 1975 jobless peak to 8.9 per cent from 9.2 per cent.

This may not seem to be very significant. It is, you might say, only three-tenths of 1 per cent. But do you recall how much was made of even smaller changes when the monthly figures were being announced?

Do you recall how, when unemployment jumped three-tenths of 1 per cent from June to July, it was widely said to have damaged President Ford's election chances? That figure too might be revised — next month.

Why should they be revised? In this day of electronic calculators it is possible that errors in additions can be made? No, that's not the issue at all. The issue is that the announced figures never were counted at all.

The fact that all these numbers are formulations rather than actual counts is very little appreciated. When the jobless rate rises or falls it need not mean that more or fewer people are without jobs.

Instead, a formula is applied to the raw count and there emerges from the process a seasonally adjusted figure. It may be larger or smaller than the raw count, depending on the month involved.

The figure we use, therefore, is one arrived at in the statistical laboratory rather than on the unemployment line. You seldom hear about the raw count; for popular usage it is all but discarded.

The goal of these adjustments is to eliminate routine, seasonal changes. The purpose for so doing, it is said, is to reveal the persistent, underlying trend.

The total impact of this on the presidential election hasn't been calculated yet, and it probably cannot be. But there seems little doubt that the rising, seasonally adjusted jobless totals just before the election swayed many voters.

Could it be that a president was one of those seasonally adjusted out of a job? We can never know.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Trimming That Tax Cut

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — Under intense pressure from politically muscular supporters, President-elect Carter's senior aides are now tending toward a tax reduction considerably lower than economists say is needed to stimulate the economy effectively.

Carterites explain the tax cut may be trimmed because of better economic indicators, specifically the big increase in national income reported for November. But what seems more influential is heavy lobbying from substantial segments of the Carter coalition — Congressmen, mayors, labor, blacks — to stimulate the economy through heavier federal spending rather than tax reduction.

While refusing even to approach the 12 to 20 billion dollars in immediate spending for the creation of new jobs that is demanded by these groups, Carter advisers are talking $5 billion and hinting the figure could go to $7 billion — about twice as much as the economists advise. What's more important, they are now talking about $10 billion in tax cuts, instead of the $15 billion mentioned by Budget Director-designate Bert Lance and other advisers.

"I would say that is potentially a very serious mistake," one economist advising President-elect Carter told us. He and other experts say $15 billion is the bare minimum figure for effectiveness and would prefer more. The impact of $10 billion might be further diluted if, as the Carter camp is considering, it is divided between a flat rebate and reduced withholding.

Efforts by Lance and the economic advisers to promote industrial expansion by increasing the investment credit also has run into trouble among congressional Democrats, including key members of the House Ways and Means Committee.

Pushing For Simon
The conservative push for Treasury Secretary William Simon as Republican national chairman reached a peak last week when Rep. Philip Crane of Illinois tried — with mixed results — to get help from Ronald Reagan.

Crane, an early and ardent Reagan-for-President backer, telephoned Reagan in California with this request: without withdrawing your support for state chairman Richard Richards of Utah, would you make clear that you have no objection to Simon? Crane expressed fear that Reagan's support of Richards might split the conservative camp and elect a non-conservative as national chairman.

While first wondering about ex-Wall Streeter Simon's image as excessively establishment, Reagan went on to tell Crane that he certainly would have no objections to Simon and would say so publicly. However, at this writing Reagan has made no public statement — much to Crane's disappointment.

Besides Crane, prominent conservatives who have begun promoting Simon include Rep. Jack Kemp of New York, Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina and national committeeman Clarke Reed of Mississippi. Their view, concentrated in the House and among Southern Republican leaders, is that the party out of power desperately needs an articulate spokesman such as Simon rather than an anonymous technician such as Richards.

Simon's major problem may be his desire to pursue business interests as national chairman. His opponents, including some Reagan operatives, say that runs afoul of the new Republican rule requiring a full-time chairman. The compromise pushed by Sen. Helms: Simon as chairman with Richards as his full-time deputy.

Strength For Today

SPIRITUAL SINS
The average reader of the New Testament can pass over without knowing it the very important teaching that there are two kinds of sins—gross sins and spiritual sins.

The gross sins are obvious and are so-called because they are connected with gross passions. Adultery, murder, theft, assault, false witness are in this category. Our Lord dwelt very little upon them. Instead he repeatedly called people's attention to the spiritual sins which they very often do not recognize as sins at all. Among these are avarice, covetousness, pride, love of power, selfishness, jealousy, envy, hypocrisy.

A person may have any or all of these sins and, under favorable conditions, can be regarded by the world as a good citizen. Jesus said that these sins eat so deeply into a person's heart that almost before he knows it he has been brought to spiritual death.

Such sins are hard to detect, harder still to confess, and hardest of all to withstand.

Pres. Ford Prepares End Gasoline Price Controls

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press Writer
VAIL, Colo. (AP) — President Ford is preparing to end government controls on the price of gasoline, a move already drawing criticism from a Democratic Congress that has the power to block the plan.

Ford aide John Carlson said freeing oil companies of price controls would have little effect on the cost of fuel at the service station pump, but opponents of decontrol have claimed that such a move could increase prices by as much as six cents per gallon.

order would be the last step in a program aimed at lifting price controls on energy products by the end of his administration. Gasoline is the only major oil product still under federal controls at the retail level.

Carlson said Ford probably will issue the order by Jan. 4, the day Congress reconvenes. Congress then would decide whether to override the order.

before President-elect Carter's inauguration on Jan. 20.

Carlson quoted Ford as saying he thinks it will be a "close call" to win approval of the plan in what could shape up as his final struggle with Congress.

Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., quickly vowed to fight Ford's proposal, calling it "a belated Christmas gift to the oil industry." Udall said the move would be unfair to consumers as well as inflationary.

to Vietnam draft evaders and deserters.

He said he ordered a review of the amnesty question after receiving a request for a blanket amnesty from Jane Hart, the widow of Sen. Philip Hart, D-Mich., who died Sunday.

He said the review would take into consideration how a new program would affect military moral and how it would be received by the public. He also said he wants to determine whether granting the request would be fair to those who participated in his earlier program.

granite islands timbered with pine.

Thus in the summertime the area is awash with tourists, regulars who return to their summer places on the islands, weekenders seeking walleys, pike and clean air, visitors with cameras, water skis and time to make the two-hour drive up from Duluth.

When the summer crop of frolickers is harvested, however, only a bold band of the hearty remain to face the long dark winter.

That yearly experience has given them a palpable sense of neighborliness, a closeness such as a shared secret brings. When the ice breaks up each May they have earned a communal handshake that says nice going everybody, we did it again, we didn't quit.

Those brave souls number 9-109 in International Falls and the nearby communities of South International Falls and Ranier. About the same number live across the Rainy River Bridge at Fort Frances, Canada.

The spirit of hands-across-the-sea, or in this case, the river, comes naturally; nature's legacy knows no international boundary. Indeed, one longtime Chamber of Commerce president in International Falls, Gordy McBride, was a Canadian citizen.

repeatedly expressed by this Court that the extent of an equitable remedy is determined by and may not properly exceed the effect of the constitutional violation."

The Supreme Court often rows to port with muffled oars. Judges, lawyers, scholars, plaintiffs, defendants and newsmen may read that language as they please. For my own part, I am pleased to read it as a long overdue attempt by the Court to retreat without actually backing up. This is the art of one-upmanship. In correcting the monstrous folly of racial-balance busing, the art should have been applied long ago.

Senate confirmation hearings is escalating with this probable demand from Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana: admit your error in supporting G. Harrold Carswell for the Supreme Court in 1970.

Moreover, Bayh and other liberal Democrats on the Judiciary Committee are also going to press Bell to resign — permanently, not temporarily as he has suggested — from segregated clubs in Atlanta. But his biggest problem will be Carswell. Bell has defended his support as federal appeals court judge for Carswell, which continued even after the nomination was in hopeless trouble.

Carter insiders are not happy with Bell's performance so far in seeming not to appreciate the seriousness of the Carswell and country club problems. Moreover, he blundered by failing to point out to reporters that nine other judges on the 5th Circuit Court signed the pro-Carswell telegram to then President Richard Nixon.

However, Carter intimates believe the Carswell and club issues are smokescreens for opposition by national civil rights leaders to Judge Bell's moderate position on busing — particularly his judicial endorsement of Atlanta's voluntary busing plan.

Less U.S. Leaf Sold To Britain

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Import duties and new tobacco policies contributed to a drop last year in United Kingdom imports of American tobacco.

Extension economists at North Carolina State University said the U.K. is buying more tobacco from British Commonwealth countries and using cheaper leaf.

They also noted Great Britain had increased its specific duty on leaf tobacco by 35 per cent.

The tax, plus inflation, has boosted retail prices for more expensive British cigarettes to between 96 cents and $1.05 per pack.

Vodka Running A Close Second In N.C. Sales

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina drinkers are turning to lighter proof liquors and vodka is running bourbon a close second as the state's favorite alcoholic beverage.

Wiley Ruth, administrator of the state Alcoholic Beverage Control Board, says many manufacturers are lowering the content of their products from 86 to 80 proof.

"Bourbon is still No. 1 in the state," Ruth said. But "vodka is making great strides and on some months outsells bourbon in the stores."

"It's a more neutral distilled spirit than the others, and mixes more easily with a number of items," he said. "It's also cheaper as a rule than bourbon."

The liquor industry says its lowering of the alcohol content of its products is being dictated by consumer tastes. Ruth also notes the move reduces the tax on each gallon.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market shrugged off some early profit taking today and made a new bid to reach the 1,000 level in the Dow Jones industrial average.

The Dow average of 30 blue chips, off 5.15 on Wednesday, rebounded 3.49 to 998.42 by 11:30 a.m. today.

Gainers outpaced losers by about a 5-3 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Trading was moderate. The Dow slipped about a point in the early going in a continuation of the selling that set in on Wednesday.

But at mid-morning the market summoned up the energy to make another assault on the Dow-1,000 mark, where it has faltered numerous times this year.

Analysts said buying was encouraged by recent evidence that the economy might be gathering strength again after a sluggish spell since last summer.

Pittston lost 7/8 to 35 1/4 in active trading on word that U.S. Steel had decided not to buy metallurgical coal from the company in 1977, but to turn instead to the open market for lower prices.

The NYSE's composite index rose .11 to 57.39 in the first hour. The American Stock Exchange market value index was up .28 at 108.10.

Files Suit In Fire Fatality

TARBORO, N.C. (AP) — The son of a man killed in a Rocky Mount hotel fire Nov. 27 has filed a $500,000 damage suit which charges the owners violated state and local fire safety codes.

Wayne Allen Raynor filed the suit in Edgecombe County Superior Court against Farouk Hamad and Fatma Hamad, owners of the Terminal hotel.

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Morehead City, Beaufort and Harkers Island are beach towns only a geologist could love.

That's right, beach towns, according to a paper by Duke University researcher Orrin H. Pilkey and Robert M. Mixon of the U.S. Geological Survey.

The beaches that draw thousands of sun worshippers each summer are a couple of miles away from these mainland towns, which once were themselves a part of the Outer Banks.

They cite the following evidence: —The topography of the lower coastal plain was carved not once, but many times by invasion and retreat of the sea.

—Prominent scarps 40 feet above the surrounding land in some places are relics of ancient barrier islands. Some are miles inland today.

—The rich farm land behind Morehead City and other towns along the Cape Lookout coast

Rites Today For Warren

WASHINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Funeral services for Lindsay C. Warren, who once was known as the "lion of Beaufort," were scheduled today at St. Peter's Episcopal Church here at 2 p.m.

Warren, former congressman and former comptroller of the United States, died Tuesday night in Beaufort County Memorial Hospital at the age of 87.

For many years Warren was one of North Carolina's most influential politicians on both the state and national scenes. He represented the first congressional district in the U.S. House of Representatives for 16 years.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt named him comptroller of the United States, a post in which he served as the "watchdog of the treasury," retiring in 1954.

Returning to North Carolina at 68, Warren went back to the state Senate where he began his political career in 1917. He served in the Senate sessions in 1959 and 1961 where he was affectionately known as "the lion of Beaufort."

Following the funeral services, Warren will be buried in Oakdale Cemetery.

He is survived by his widow, Emily H. Warren; a daughter, Mrs. Emily Warren Jones of Wilson; two sons, Lindsay Warren Jr. of Goldsboro, and Charles F. Warren of Washington, D.C. and four grandchildren.

—Deposits of grains of calcium carbonate off Cape Lookout indicate shorelines were once far removed from their present locations.

—The present barbed appearance of the cape is probably no more than 3,000 to 4,000 years old," Pilkey said. "It is an ephemeral feature."

Halts Project

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP) — A federal judge has ordered a local urban renewal project to be stopped although the project is barely half completed.

U.S. District Judge James McMillan Wednesday halted the project after 14 downtown merchants sued. The merchants claimed the construction had hurt their businesses and they said the city had not completed a required study of the project's impact on the city environment.

McMillan ordered work stopped on the project by Jan. 15.

He said no more work could be done on a $1 million effort until an environmental impact study was completed. Gastonia officials said that could take from four months to two years.

FIGHTING — Armed fighting has been reported in China between supporters of the widow of Mao Tse-tung and the "gang of four" and Chairman Hua's regime. One of the worst flareups was said to be at Paoting, an industrial city about 100 miles south of Peking. (AP Wirephoto Map)

Bicentennial Committee Going Out Of Business

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The night is still young, but the party's over. The state's Bicentennial Committee goes out of business today, its funds all spent and the residue of its work on the way to the state Archives.

"All that's left now is a time capsule and our desks," said committee director Dick Ellis. The time capsule may be the most intriguing portion of the committee's legacy.

Packed inside a small aluminum cylinder are samples of the committee's publications plus party hose, headache powder, a Bic pen, a can opener, cigarettes and scotch tape. "Things necessary to keep the world together," Ellis observed.

The committee is also leaving behind $1 million worth of work, which Ellis said was worth the money. "There were highly successful intangible results from the Bicentennial," he said. "It brought the nation's birthday to the hearts and minds of the people."

As for more tangible results, Ellis noted the Bicentennial Plaza across from the General Assembly where the capsule is to be buried until 2075; a collection of biographies of significant North Carolina blacks and Indians called "Paths Toward Freedom;" and assistance given to local Bicentennial projects, celebrations and building restorations in more than 100 communities.

Though the Bicentennial year ends Dec. 30, the committee had hoped to continue operating through the end of fiscal 1977 in July.

"That would have given us six months to write a final report and have everything filed with the Archives," Ellis said. "The General Assembly didn't name a closing date, but we're leaving because there are no more funds."

Guest Singers To Be Featured

The Byrd Family Singers of Pink Hill will be the guest singers Saturday night at seven o'clock at the monthly sing at the Grindle Creek Church of God.

The program will also feature groups from the local church. The pastor, J. B. Morris, invites the public to attend.

Continued from page 1 since it was turned over to the city and county by the government at the end of World War II.

He noted that the airport now is capable of handling any corporate aircraft. The improvements, according to Little, are part of the long range plan for the local flight facility.

He noted that the improvements were funded with a 50 per cent grant from the state. The city and county each provided 25 per cent of the cost of the projects.

Hot-Shooting Duke Guns Down Pirates

RALEIGH — East Carolina University's shooting problems continued last night, and the match-up with hot-shooting Duke produced an 88-65 victory for the Blue Devils in the first game of the Holiday Doubleheader in N. C. State's Reynolds Coliseum.

The Wolfpack romped to a 93-72 victory over Rice Institute in the second game of the evening. State and the Pirates play tonight while Rice and Duke complete the exchange of games.

The Pirates could make but 38.2 per cent of their shots from the floor, while Duke hit 58.2 per cent. In addition, East Carolina made just seven of 22 free throw attempts for 31.8 per cent in that category. Duke made 12 of 17 for 70.6 per cent.

Still, the Pirates, down by as much as 16 points in the first half, fought back to as close as four in the second, and were still in it with 11:21 to go on a jumper by Louis Crosby making it 62-54 for the Blue Devils.

But for the next seven minutes, the Pirates failed to add a single point to their total, not scoring again until Larry Hunt made a free throw with 4:18 to go, and not hitting from the field until Crosby followed at 3:39.

Duke, meanwhile, poured through 18 points and took an 80-54 lead. It ran that out to 88-57 before pulling the regulars.

"Shooting," muttered a disgusted Pirate Coach Dave Patton afterwards. "It was shooting for us and shooting for them that did it. We couldn't hit and they couldn't miss. They shot the eyes out of the basket and we shot pitiful."

The missed free throws also disgusted the coach. "When you can't step up to the 15-foot line and hit them, you wonder. But I think the more we dwell on this the more it will hurt us. We will get even more psyched out. But that's the difference in the game."

Patton said it wasn't the Duke defense that forced the Pirates into bad shots. "We had the shots, we just couldn't get them to fall for us. We played well except for our shooting."

Duke's Tate Armstrong fired through 26 points to lead the scoring, hitting seven of 11 in the first half, but only five of 10 in the second. "He got the points they needed," Patton said, "and we played good defense on him, he just got them anyway."

Duke also controlled the backboards, pulling away 50 rebounds to just 40 for the Pirates. Mark Crow led Duke with 12 while Mike Gminski snatched away 11. Greg Cornelius led East Carolina with 10. Hunt, who was averaging 13 per game, got only five.

East Carolina led briefly at the start, taking the initial lead and holding it until Armstrong hit from the top of the key for a 6-4 edge. East Carolina regained the lead at 7-6 on a free throw by Cornelius and a shot off a rebound by Hunt. The two teams exchanged shots until Harold Morrison hit for a 10-9 edge. Crow and Armstrong followed that up for a 14-9 lead.

Minutes later, Duke pushed its lead out to eight as Jim Spanarkel hit from the lane and Cameron Hall made a free throw, making it 21-13. Crow and Gminski later hit back to back baskets to run it to 28-17.

A three-pointer by Armstrong ran the lead to 35-23 and another jumper by the Olympian ran it to 39-25. Finally, Spanarkel hit with 3:30 left to run the lead to 16 at 44-28.

But Crosby hit off a drive then added two free throws. Herb Gray got two jumpers and Ty Edwards scored off the baseline to trim it back to 46-38 at intermission.

Gray and Crosby both hit early in the second half to cut the lead to 46-42 but five straight points by Morrison ran it back to nine.

Still, the Pirates hung on. And over the next seven minutes lost only another point from the nine-point edge and had come as close as five before the drought started.

While the Pirates were failing to connect, Duke seemed to have more success than usual as they streaked to a 31-point lead before clearing the bench.

Besides Armstrong's 26, Gminski added 22, hitting 10 of 14 from the floor. Crow had 13 and Morrison 11.

Hunt led the Pirates with 17 while Crosby had 14 and Gray 12.

The defeat dropped the Pirate record to an even 4-4 mark while Duke climbed to 7-1. The lone Blue Devil loss was in the opening game to Wake Forest, 81-80.

North Pitt Panthers Stop Rampants

By JIM KYLE

Reflector Sports Writer
Rose High School played North Pitt evenly for three quarters before allowing the Panthers to squeeze out a 79-70 win in the nightcap of the Rose High Holiday Doubleheader last night.

The Rampants, playing one of their better games of the season, were tied with the Panthers late in the third quarter and had another chance to tie in the fourth quarter but missed a free throw and then committed a tur-novor.

Rose was within reach all the way and it wasn't until Panther Jay Bedsworth hit a layup with 53 seconds left to give North Pitt a 76-68 lead that the game was really on ice.

The game was close through the first quarter and started out sloppy as both teams committed turnovers during the early going. North Pitt finally broke the scoring with a Virgil Pilgreen jumper with 6:42 left. Rose tied it up a few seconds later when Derek Brewington hit a shot from underneath.

The game was tied five times in the quarter. Greg Guthrie hit a jumper with 1:49 left to give the Rampants the lead for the first time, 14-13. Kenneth Roberson hit a jumper for North Pitt to put them back out in front before Guthrie sank another jump shot to again give the Rampants the lead, 16-15, with 47 seconds left.

Seconds later, Lawaski Jenkins tied it up with a free throw and a jumper shot by Donnie Perkins with two seconds left gave the Panthers an 18-16 lead at the end of the quarter.

Anthony Bryant hit a layup at the beginning of the second period to tie it up again for the Rampants before North Pitt scored six straight points to take the lead.

Leading 37-31 with 1:41 left in the quarter, the Panthers again ran off a string of six unanswered points on two shots by Bedsworth and another by Roberson.

The Rampants got a field goal from William Barnes and a free throw from Mike Joyner to pull to within 41-35 before a shot by Jenkins gave the Panthers a 43-35 halftime lead.

Rose tied it up again in the third quarter on a rally led by Greg Guthrie. The Rampant guard hit 12 of his game-high 32 points in the period as Rose came from behind to tie the game at 55 on a dunk by Bryant with 2:38 left in the quarter.

A free throw by Roberson and a dunk by Perkins put the Panther back in front, however, this time for good.

Rose, down 62-57 at the start of the fourth quarter, got a field goal from Brewington and then had a chance to tie when a technical foul for illegal substitution was called on the Panthers.

Guthrie missed the free throw, however, and the Rampants turned the ball over to blow the opportunity. North Pitt built on its lead for the remainder of the period to make the final score, 79-70.

Besides Guthrie's 32 points, the Rampants got 14 from James Hawkins. Virgil Pilgreen led the Panther scoring with 15 points while Jay Bedsworth and Donnie Perkins each pitched in 14. Jimmy Hardy had 12 for North Pitt and Kenneth Roberson added 11.

The Panthers hit on 36 of 74 attempts from the field for a 48 per cent. The Rampants hit 31 of 69 for 45 per cent. North Pitt also led in rebounding, pulling down 46 to Rose's 38.

The Panthers will play in the first game of the Doubleheader tomorrow night against Farmville at 7 and the Rampants will face D. H. Conley at 8:30.

Farmville Tops D.H. Conley

By JIM KYLE

Reflector Sports Writer
Farmville Central's Jaguars broke open a close game with a scoring flurry just before halftime and went on to down D. H. Conley's Vikings 77-68 in the first game of the Rose High Holiday Doubleheader last night.

The Jaguars scored eight straight points in the last minute of the second quarter to break out of a 33-33 tie and take a 41-33 lead into the dressing room. Five points was as close as the Vikings could get after that as Farmville Central stretched the lead to as many as 16.

D. H. Conley jumped out to a 6-0 lead in the first quarter on two shots by Mike Cox and one by Ricky Rountree. The Vikings held the lead throughout the first period, leading by as much as seven before the Jaguars cut it to 18-15 at the end of the period on jumpers by Kenno Farrow and Jeff Fields.

Conley held its lead for much of the second period, with Viking Shawn Little doing most of the scoring. Little hit for nine points in the frame to keep Conley ahead until Fields hit a jump shot with 2:25 left to tie the game at 29.

Farrow put the Jags in front for the first time with a layup at the 2:05 mark which gave them a 33-31 lead before Little tied it up for Conley with a jump shot.

The game was tied again at 33 on a shot by Fields and two free throws by Conley's Kenny Phillips before the Jaguar flurry which gave them the lead for good.

In the third period, with Farmville leading 43-34, Rountree and Bernard Hawkins both hit field goals for the Vikings to pull them to within five, 43-38. But that was as close as they could get as Fields hit a layup and Timmy Ward added two free throws to push the Jags back out by nine.

In the fourth quarter, the Vikings again began to cut into the Farmville lead. Hawkins hit two free throws and then added a long jump shot a few seconds later to make the score 66-54 before Fields hit a jump shot for Farmville.

Then, Cox hit a shot underneath and added two free throws and Phillips added two more with 3:44 left to make it 68-60.

A minute later, Rountree hit another layup to cut the lead to six, 70-64 before the Jaguars scored six unanswered points to put it out of reach.

Farrow led all scorers with 30 points and Fields had 26 for the Jaguars. Conley had four men in double figures. Hawkins scored 18, Cox 14, Rountree 13 and Little 11.

Farmville hit 33 of 71 shots from the field for 46 per cent while the Vikings were 27 of 64 for 42 per cent.

The Jaguars also held the rebounding edge, 37-33.

Both teams will play again tonight with Farmville taking on North Pitt at 7 and Conley playing Rose at 8:30 in the final games of the doubleheader series.

Both Vikings And Raiders Predict Win

OAKLAND (AP) — Coach John Madden of the Oakland Raiders, aware that Fran Tarkenton has "guaranteed" a Minnesota Vikings' victory in the Super Bowl, had a simple response to the quarterback's boast.

"I guess if both sides guarantee a victory, they've got to play the game," Madden said Wednesday as the Raiders began preparing for the Jan. 9 National Football League showdown, Super Bowl XI.

After the Vikings beat Los Angeles for the National Conference title Sunday and advanced to the Super Bowl for a record fourth time, Tarkenton said, "I want the whole world to know that this time we're going to win it."

Several Raiders, however, predicted a Super Bowl victory themselves after beating Pittsburgh's defending Super Bowl champs 24-7 for the AFC crown. Oakland made its only Super Bowl appearance following the 1967 season, losing to Green Bay, and had been eliminated seven times in the playoffs before earning the return trip.

"We won this time and we'll win at Pasadena," said safety Jack Tatum after the victory over Pittsburgh.

"Who started all this 'guarantee' stuff, anyway?" Raiders guard Gene Upshaw asked Wednesday. He was reminded that it was Joe Namath, who followed up his pledge by leading the New York Jets to an upset victory over the Baltimore Colts in Super Bowl III.

"I've got a 10-year guarantee and it has almost run out," said Upshaw, one of four current Raiders remaining from the 1967 Super Bowl team.

Oakland quarterback Ken Stabler, who suffered bruised ribs in the AFC title game, has had treatment including long whirlpool baths the last three days and indicated Wednesday he'd participate in the light workout scheduled for today.

Providence Ends Michigan's Streak

By FRANK BROWN AP Sports Writer The pressure is off; the winning streak ended. Michigan has lost and Coach Johnny Orr is relieved.

junior pivot Bob Misevicious, whose short jump shot with one second left gave the Friars an 82-81 triumph and, as a dividend, the championship of the first Friar Classic.

Friars hand the Wolverines their first loss after six victories this season. "This is the first time I've ever been involved, either as a player or a coach, against a No. 1 team, so you have to say it's one of my greatest thrills," said Providence Coach Dave Gavitt, whose Friars are 7-2.

Misevicious came through again after Michigan's John Robinson was fouled and missed his first free throw in a one-and-one situation. There were 20 seconds to go and the Wolverines were ahead, 81-80.

85 for the championship of the Maryland Invitational, and No. 20 Auburn trimmed Rutgers 78-75 for third place in the Louisville Classic.

Kansas beat Kansas State 81-64 and Missouri bested Colorado 86-77 in the semifinals of the Big Eight; Oklahoma City beat Brigham Young 78-68 and Virginia Military clipped California 73-71 in the semifinals of the All-College; Purdue drubbed Georgetown, D.C. 83-65 and Manhattan topped Penn 68-61 in the ECAC Holiday Festival; Indiana beat Georgia 74-52 in other first-round action at the Sugar Bowl; Weber State bopped St. Louis 64-57 in the other Far West semifinal; Texas topped Rhode Island 76-66 in the Friar Classic consolation game; Eastern Michigan got past South Florida 60-48 in the Las Vegas consolation; Duquesne beat Cincinnati Xavier 86-80; Old Dominion beat Mississippi 86-80 for third place in its tournament, and Columbia won the Pointsettia Classic by beating Furman 93-79.

Boone Paces Kings To Win

Kansas City's Ron Boone is a changed man. He's piling up points when a few weeks ago his shots were bouncing off the rim. His confidence has returned after reaching a valley in a game of highs and lows.

Bob Lanier won the battle of giants against Bill Walton by scoring 24 of his 40 points in the second half, hauling in 14 rebounds, collecting four assists and making four steals to lead Detroit past Portland.

Len Robinson scored 15 of his 19 points in the second half to help Washington hand Atlanta its seventh straight loss. Lou Hudson led Atlanta with 24 points.

Paul Westphal's 30 points helped Phoenix overcome an early 16-2 Boston lead. Sidney Wicks topped Boston scorers with 24 points.

Slick Watts scored 10 of his 13 points in the fourth quarter and Fred Brown's jumper with 43 seconds remaining broke the game's ninth tie as Seattle topped the Nets.

Calvin Murphy's 26 points helped the Houston Rockets rally from a third-period deficit and dump Philadelphia.

Bert Jones Is MVP

By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer NEW YORK (AP) — Bert Jones, named earlier as National Football League Offensive Player of the Year, completed a double award triumph today when he was chosen overwhelmingly as Most Valuable Player by The Associated Press.

broadcasters representing each of the NFL's 28 franchises. Pittsburgh linebacker Jack Lambert, the Defensive Player of the Year, finished second in the MVP race with 19 votes, just ahead of Oakland quarterback Ken Stabler, who had 16.

"My ability hasn't changed much in the last five or six years," he said. "But through coaching, I've been able to progress and become the player I have. It's a great honor to me but also a great tribute to the coaching staff of the Colts."

Ted Marchibroda, coach of the Colts, said Jones was a deserving winner of the twin honors. "He had as much to do about carrying us to the playoffs as any single individual for any club," said Marchibroda. "He has great ability and works hard. His talents on offense are more easily recognizable."

In the final game of his second season, he set an NFL record with 17 consecutive completions against the New York Jets. That performance moved him in the NFL record book alongside his father, who once scored a record six TDs in a single game. They are the only father-son combination to hold NFL marks.

Tar Heels Dump Ducks

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — North Carolina's ninth-ranked Tar Heels gave Oregon a lesson in defense Wednesday night as they humiliated the Ducks 86-60 in a semifinal of the Far West Classic college basketball tournament.

The Tar Heels meet the winner of the later contest between Weber State and St. Louis University in Thursday's championship game. Oregon meets the loser of that game for third place.

Earlier, in consolation play, Oral Roberts, behind the hot shooting of Anthony Roberts, defeated Bowling Green 83-76 and Oregon State drubbed Texas A&M 80-58.

Oregon came into the tournament ranked third in the nation in team defense, but it was the Tar Heels who put on the defensive show Wednesday night. Freshman Mike O'Koren put the clamps on Oregon's All-America candidate Greg Ballard, last year's scoring leader in the Pacific-8 Conference, holding him to 10 points and one rebound.

O'Koren also led the Tar Heels in scoring with 16 points. Olympic veterans Tommy LaGarde, Phil Ford and Walter Davis all were in double figures.

La Garde had 14 while Davis and Ford each added 11.

Ernie Kent led Oregon with 15 points, but many of them came late in the game after North Carolina Coach Dean Smith emptied his bench. Ballard was the only other Duck in double figures.

Rec Teams Make Finals

Po-Boys and the East Carolina Sheltered Workshop both won close games last night to advance to tonight's finals in the Greenville Recreation Department's pre-season basketball tournament.

Po-Boys defeated the Wildcats 57-53 while E.C.S.W. slipped by the Happy Store 80-78. The two teams will meet tonight for the championship at 7:10.

Eddie Chance scored 14 points and Charlie Jenkins hit 13 for the Po-Boys as they defeated the Wildcats. The Po-Boys led at the half 27-24 and outscored the Wildcats by only one point in the second half. The Wildcats were led by Darnell Speight with 15 and Cleveland Johnson with 14.

In the second game last night, the E.C.S.W. held off a second-half rally by the Happy Store to preserve an 80-78 win. E.C.S.W. led by six at the half, 39-33, but saw that lead cut down in the second half and held on for the victory.

Cliff Barrett led the E.C.S.W. with 21 points while Bobby Thompson pumped in 20. Thomas Mullin led all scorers for the Happy Store with 27 and Bernie Flynn hit 21.

'Barney Miller' Moves To A Later Time Slot

JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — After months of asking ABC to move "Barney Miller" from the sanitized "family hour," producer Danny Arnold is getting his wish. The series starts tonight in its new 9 p.m. EST time slot.

Tonight's yarn is about what occurs when the gang down at the copshop consume brownies laced with hashish. The eats were given by a lady to detective Wojo, who didn't know the brownies were wired.

Question: Could this epic, with its mention of that potent marijuana derivative called hashish, ever have aired in the family hour?

"Yeah, I think so," producer Arnold said. He noted that ABC originally scheduled it for the old 8:30 p.m. "Miller" slot on Thursdays before deciding to reschedule it for the show's new time period tonight.

"There's nothing particularly controversial about it. We've done shows far more controversial than this. I just thought it was a very funny show and it's good to start the new time period with it."

Arnold is one of the Hollywood producers who last fall won a major court victory when the "family hour" was declared unlawful as an industry-wide standard — but not as a individual network standard.

Until now, his "Miller" series has appeared in the "family hour" that in September 1975 became part of the National Association of Broadcasters' TV code. The policy was adopted in response to public gripes about violence or sexually oriented programs aired early at night when kids still are watching the tube.

Arnold feels that parents should be the censors of what their kids watch, not the NAB or the networks.

And he doesn't buy the suggestion that youngsters who watch TV early at night leave when the supposedly adult stuff arrives at 9 p.m. EST, or an hour earlier in the Midwest.

But, he said, "after nine o'clock, the theory always has been that they're supposed to be away from the sets, that you have a more adult audience and the censors are less apt to whack away at our scripts."

He said he grew extremely weary battling ABC censors whenever they found fault with the content of a "Miller" episode and kept telling him, "We can't put something like that on at 8 or 8:30 p.m."

So in time, he said, "I thought, 'Well, if you can't lick 'em, join 'em.'" He commenced campaigning for a 9 p.m. start time and feels the long campaign helped get the show put in that time slot.

But he thinks the shift primarily was due to ABC's effort to salvage a struggling comedy, "What's Happening," by putting it between two hit Thursday shows — "Welcome Back, Kotter" and his "Miller" series.

Ape Competes With A Shark

By JERRY BUCK
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — "King Kong" is roaring around the world, but whether the 40-foot ape can take a bite out of "Jaws" remains to be seen.

In 1,500 theaters worldwide, the movie has grossed more than $26 million in 10 days or less, said Gordon Armstrong, a spokesman for Italian producer Dino De Laurentis. It opened in 2,200 theaters on or immediately after Dec. 17, but not all have reported.

"It's going extremely well," De Laurentis said Wednesday. "We'll know by Jan. 15 if we can top the goal we've set for ourselves."

That goal is to top the $192 million taken by "Jaws," the top money-making film of all time. At present "King Kong" is running behind the early take of "Jaws" in the United States.

De Laurentis' remake of the 1932 film classic was considered a gamble. Early in production he had difficulty with the 40-foot mechanical monster, and some people thought he had a disaster on his hands. But the problems were ironed out and the film opened to generally favorable reviews.

Kong, an intriguing blend of innocence and terror, is the star of the film. Supporting him are Jeff Bridges, Jessica Lange and Charles Grodin.

Early comparisons with "Jaws" are difficult because "King Kong" opened worldwide, while Universal's "Jaws" did not open overseas until some time after its June 20, 1975, American premiere. Universal spokesmen said they have not separated foreign from domestic box office figures for "Jaws" and can only report the $192 million total.

"King Kong" took in $18 million in its first 10 days in 964 theaters in the United States, while in the same period "Jaws" grossed $21 million in 409 theaters. Figures from Canada were not available.

"Kong" will also take a longer time to return a profit because it cost $24 million, while "Jaws" cost only $8 million. All gross figures cited represent total box office receipts and do not reflect profit.

Overseas gross to date is $9,890,233 in 554 theaters. The film did not open at the same time in all theaters and the figures are for 10 days or less, Armstrong said.

Your progeny will be able to reduce ideas to a most workable and profitable level, so be sure to give as fine an education as you can afford. Give your child music lessons, too, since there could also be much talent here for such.

Goobers Not On Menu For Home

KADOKA, S.D. (AP) — Residents of the Kadoka retirement home got a surprise in their latest shipment of foodstuffs from the federal government.

Three pounds of roasted peanuts for each resident were shipped with the normal supplies of milk, margarine and other foods for the first three months of 1977.

Home administrator Nona Prang says she doesn't know what to do with the goobers.

"So many of our people don't have any teeth," she said. "And doctors say peanuts are hard to digest."

The home includes about 17 people on welfare who use the federal commodities. The home pays freight on the shipment.

"I'll wait and see what I get on the next shipment," Mrs. Prang said. "If we get them again I think I'll write to the President and tell him he can keep his peanuts in Georgia."

Petition Viet Govm't Permit Human Rights

By SERGE SCHEMANN
Associated Press Writer
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Acting "more in sorrow than in anger," a group of prominent antiwar activists, including folksinger Joan Baez, has appealed to the Communist government of Vietnam to halt its "grievous and systematic violations of human rights."

The group of more than 90 persons who were active in the antiwar movement of the late 1960s and early 1970s submitted its plea in a petition to Vietnam's permanent observer at the United Nations.

The signers said at a news conference Wednesday they had "no choice but to go public" with the appeal after months of futile efforts to deliver the petition privately to Vietnamese authorities.

Signatures on the petition included Miss Baez, New York City Council President Paul O'Dwyer, Episcopal priest Malcolm Boyd, poet Allen Ginsberg, Roman Catholic Bishop Carroll Dozier of Memphis, Tenn., and Rabbi Arnold Wolf of Yale University.

Organizers of the appeal said several other prominent signers, including Catholic activists Daniel and Philip Berrigan and Daniel Ellsberg, asked that their names not be used in a formal public statement because they believed it might work against their interest in improving conditions within Vietnam.

The petition cited reports of the detention of 20,000 to 30,000 Vietnamese in "re-education centers" since the fall of Saigon to Communist forces in April 1975. It also referred to reports of religious repression and other human rights violations "too specific and persuasive for us to ignore."

The statement told Hanoi: "The actions of your government constitute a great disappointment to all those who expected not the 'bloodbath' so eagerly predicted by the American White House but rather an example of reconciliation built on tolerance."

"We voice our protest in the hope that your government can avoid repetition of the tragic historical pattern in which liberators gain power only to impose a new oppression."

gesturing toward the lady he calls "Jo".

Foxx showed up at the license bureau with his prospective bride and stayed just long enough to purchase a license.

Foxx, 54-year-old star of television's "Sanford and Son," plans to marry Yun Chi Chung, 34, a Korean native who lives in Los Angeles. It will be Miss Chung's second marriage, Foxx's third.

At the bureau Wednesday, Foxx said they would decide later where the ceremony would be. He indicated it would be sometime today.

"I'm going to have a glass of champagne and we'll talk it over," said Foxx. "I haven't had a drink in a year."

As always with Foxx, it was an occasion for quips.

When the clerk asked for the $10 fee, Foxx turned to the bride-to-be and asked, "Have you got the money?"

And when he was asked where he met his future wife, Foxx replied, "I just opened my wallet and there she was."

U.S. 'Cosy Relationship' With Canada Now Shaky

By PETER ARNETT
AP Special Correspondent
OTTAWA, Canada (AP) — Impatiently striving for a distinctive North American personality, the Canadian government is running against some important U.S. interests, and there is a rising backlash of concern in Canada and in the United States.

The once-cosy "special relationship" enjoyed by the continental neighbors has been shaken by what U.S. officials characterize as the "single-minded" pursuit of Canadian economic and cultural nationalism at the expense of her southern neighbor.

"They've said for years that the U.S. threatens Canadian cultural and economic nationalism, but we're more on the short end of the stick now," said one U.S. official, detailing the areas of conflict.

Canadians claim that the United States started the downside in relations in the early 1970s with unfair economic surcharges.

Relations between the federal government in Ottawa and Washington are sour in several major areas. From the Atlantic Ocean to the Pacific, and up to the Arctic Sea, both countries are embroiled in border disputes ranging from the important to the trivial.

The political differences are allayed by close personal and business relationships between millions of Americans and Canadians.

These major issues trouble the two countries today:

—Anti-Americanism remains strong, particularly in Ottawa, the federal capital and the industrial center of Toronto. However, leaders and ordinary Canadians in the Maritime provinces and to the West see Americans as much less of a threat, and some charge that Ottawa is conducting "smear campaign."

—Uncertainty toward the federal government's attitude to foreign investment has almost dried up the flow of American money, and increased the flow of Canadian money into the United States.

—Gas prices and policies, and protectionist bills, have concerned the U.S. government and Congress.

—The Canadian government is continuing to pursue a "third option" aimed at putting some distance between the Canada and American economy by developing markets abroad. It has had little success so far.

—Both countries have made headway on some long-standing border issues including fishing rights, but a dozen others remain unsolved and potentially inflammable.

"The United States enters into our every conversation; it takes up all our time," said a government political scientist in Ottawa. It is from Ottawa that the belief flows that Canada is strong enough to take the necessary measures to reduce its dependence on America.

That belief is reinforced in Toronto, not only by the English Canadian intellectual elite, but also by the vast industrial and economic strength that southern Ontario has amassed. U.S. companies control 58 per cent of Canada's oil and natural gas industry, 45 per cent of manufacturing, 43 per cent of mining and smelting and 36 per cent of the pulp and paper industry. This amounts to 40 of the largest 100 companies in Canada.

While this angers Ottawa and Toronto, the feeling seems to diminish the further one moves away. Out West in Vancouver, an aide of British Columbia Premier Bill Bennett declared, "The federal government has unnecessarily exacerbated distrust of the U.S. We have no hangups about America."

Canada's 10 provinces are loosely linked in a 110-year-old confederation to the federal government in Ottawa. Each province has its own parliamentary-style government, headed by a premier, with far greater autonomy than a U.S. state.

Canada's economic nationalism began biting with a series of policies including the Foreign Investment Review Act that restricts foreign companies in establishing or expanding operations. Concerned about possible discrimination against American firms, U.S. Ambassador Thomas Enders told a Toronto audience that the United States' need for energy capital

"is so compelling that we would be reluctant to see a large-scale inflow of U.S. investment in this sector without being confident that Canada would not subsequently change the rules to disadvantage U.S. investors."

Another U.S. official commented, "There is a growing awareness in the U.S. that Canada is fat, rich and happy. A lot of that is because of U.S. risk capital. Once everything is developed up here Canadians ask 'So why is this America?' It's American because we developed it." Canada will need an estimated $90 billion in foreign capital in the next 15 years.

The federal government's protective economic policies are having an unexpected backlash, driving Canadian money to the United States where it can be located freely without controls.

The United States is digging in its heels on some issues, bluntly informing Canada that the American consumers of around one trillion cubic feet of Canadian gas each year expect the same treatment as Canadian consumers, even if there are shortfalls. U.S. senators have threatened to retaliate against a bill that attempts to stop the flow of Canadian dollars to American border TV stations. The same bill forced Time magazine's Canadian edition out of business by placing restrictions on Canadian advertisements in the publication.

Border conflicts with Canada go from coast to coast. Canada is still unwilling to accept the American view that the Northwest Passage through the Arctic Islands is an international waterway, but has embarked on what one American observer called "creeping sovereignty" to claim the passage.

Both countries have strong feelings about fishing grounds in the Gulf of Maine that will be in dispute because of the 200-mile fishing zone. The United States wants total control of the Georges Bank.

Five dam and river projects have raised tempers across the mainland border, two potentially harming Canadian ecology and farmland, three possibly hurting the United States.

They are Washington's Ross Dam project, the Garrison water diversion in North Dakota, and smaller projects bordering New York, British Columbia and Saskatchewan.

Criticism Said Not 'Contempt'

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — A federal court judge ruled Wednesday a Rockingham businessman had the right to criticize the behavior of a state Superior Court judge and should not have been cited for contempt.

The ruling by U.S. District Court Judge Eugene A. Gordon apparently ended a dispute between Judge Robert Gavin and Rockingham businessman Michael S. Smith.

Smith had charged in a newspaper advertisement earlier this year that Richmond County commissioners had granted illegal tax write-offs to certain local companies, including one in which County Sheriff Raymond Goodman was said to hold a financial interest.

A State Bureau of Investigation probe was ordered. After reading it, Gavin said it did not support Smith's accusations.

Smith told newsmen he did not think Gavin had taken sufficient time to examine the report. Gavin summoned Smith to court and ordered him placed briefly in custody for contempt of court.

Shortly afterward, he summoned Smith from the jail and released him after saying he would be watching for further public statements and "if you want to threaten this court...you will spend 30 days in Mr. Goodman's hotel back there."

In a hearing earlier this month Smith contended his right to freedom of speech had been violated and sought $50-

000 damages. Gavin argued he was protected from any liability in the matter by the doctrine of "judicial immunity."

In a consent judgment agreed to by attorneys for both sides, Gordon held that Gavin's conduct "constituted an interference with the plaintiff's right of free expression beyond that permitted by the First and Fourteenth Amendments to the U.S. Constitution."

No damages were awarded, but Smith said through his attorney he was satisfied.

They'll Restore Death Penalty

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — The General Assembly which convenes Jan. 12 is virtually certain to restore the death penalty in North Carolina for first degree murder.

But a legislative battle seems certain on whether to make it apply to first degree rape. That was the only other crime punishable by death in North Carolina when the U.S. Supreme Court last summer ruled the state's capital punishment statute unconstitutional.

Even Gov.-elect Jim Hunt is not certain rape should be punishable by death.

"He has an open mind on it and wants to look at it and decide later," said Gary Pearce, Hunt's press aide. Pearce noted that the U.S. Supreme Court has a case before it that's supposed to decide whether the death penalty is constitutional for rape and that's one of the things he (Hunt) is waiting for.

The death penalty issue is expected to come up on the first day of the 1977 session. Rep. Robert Jones, D-Rutherford, has a bill ready for introduction. He'll likely be joined by a host of lawmakers in sponsoring the bill.

Jones' bill would make both first degree murder and first degree rape punishable by death, but Jones says he's not convinced it should include rape.

"Frankly, I am not wholeheartedly convinced that first degree rape should be a capital crime," he said.

Jones pointed out that only three years ago the House voted against having the death penalty for rape and only agreed to it at the insistence of the Senate. Jones predicted the House would take the same stand again in 1977 and that the Senate would again insist that the death penalty be applied for first degree rape. He would not predict how the disagreement would be settled.

Jones' bill is aimed at getting around the objections the U.S. Supreme Court found in the North Carolina law. It calls for a jury, after it convicts a man of first degree murder or first degree rape, to hold another hearing to decide whether the defendant should be executed or given life imprisonment.

Jones said that the ordinary rules of evidence would not apply to the second hearing and all relevant testimony about the defendant and the crime would be admissible. The jury would have to vote unanimously for the death penalty or else the punishment would be life imprisonment.

"It's going to be very difficult under this law to get a death sentence but at least it would be legally possible which is not the case now," Jones observed.

Gov.-elect Jimmy Green is a strong supporter of capital punishment in cases of vicious murders. Citing a recent case in which the manager of a Raleigh hamburger stand was killed for a small amount of money, Green said of the killer: "Well, hell, death is good for a fellow like that."

The death penalty, he said, should not be viewed as punishment but as a method of deterring others from committing such crimes.

Here are some comments by leading legislators on the death penalty issue:

Rep. William T. Watkins, D-Granville, the House majority leader in the 1975-76 legislature, said he was "not bitterly opposed" to having the death penalty for first degree rape, "but my feeling would be that the death penalty ought to apply only where a death has occurred."

"I think the big debate will be on whether to add rape to it, but I don't think it will succeed," said Sen. James B. Garrison, D-Stanly.

"My feeling about the death penalty and rape is if they do serious bodily harm to anyone, they ought to get the works."

sen. Ralph Scott, D-Alamance.

"Rape can be highly questionable," said Sen. J. J. "Mark" Harrington, D-Bertie, in stating he was inclined to vote for the death penalty for first degree murder only.

"It's hard to draw up a law to fit first degree rape," said Rep. Horton Rountree, D-Pitt.

Sen. John Henley, D-Cumberland, the Senate majority leader, said he favored death for both murder and rape, but "most of them are thinking about first degree murder right now from what I hear."

Rep. John Ed Davenport, D-Mash, said the bill applying the death penalty to rape "passed pretty substantially before. I think it would again."

Rep. Roberts Jernigan, D-Hertford, said he thought legislation covering both murder and rape would be passed. Rep. J. P. Huskins, D-Iredell, agreed.

Sen. Talmadge Asks Divorce

LOVEJOY, Ga. (AP) — Six days after his 35th wedding anniversary, U.S. Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., has asked a Superior Court judge to grant him a divorce from his wife Betty.

In the petition filed Wednesday in nearby Henry County with Judge Hugh D. Sosebee, Talmadge, the 63-year-old chairman of the Senate Agriculture and Forestry Committee, said his marriage was "irretrievably broken."

The petition also said that the couple had been living separately.

Talmadge's complaint asks that no alimony or division of property be awarded his wife because "the defendant (Mrs. Talmadge) owns assets having a greater market value than the assets owned by the plaintiff (Sen. Talmadge), and has a greater annual income than does the plaintiff..."

Mrs. Talmadge runs the family owned country-cured ham business, which operates from a large plant at Talmadge Farms, 26 miles south of Atlanta.

Sosebee ordered that neither party dispose of any assets.

When asked about the divorce proceedings, Talmadge, who lives near here, said, "The declaration speaks for itself."

It was the senator's second marriage. His first, to professional model Kathryn Williams in 1937, ended in divorce three years later.

Mrs. Talmadge was with friends at Sea Island much of Wednesday before reportedly returning to Lovejoy. She had not yet been served with copies of the divorce suit, court officials said Wednesday.

The couple has one living son, Herman E. Talmadge Jr., 34. Another son, Robert S. Talmadge, drowned at the age of 29 in 1975 during a holiday accident at Lake Lanier north of Atlanta. There are five grandchildren.

Talmadge married the former Leila Elizabeth Shingler of Ashburn, Ga., at the Georgia governor's mansion on Christmas Eve, 1941. His father, Eugene Talmadge, was elected governor of the state four times.

Talmadge served as governor from 1948 through 1955. He was elected to the U.S. Senate in 1956.

Tracks Of A Clubfoot Led To N.C. Execution

By Dr. H.G. Jones, Curator
North Carolina Collection
For The Associated Press

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — He was born with a clubfoot, and this physical mark was to be his undoing.

His whole life seemed to be jinxed. He was characterized in the press as a "bad man from his youth up — ungovernable as a child." He gave his profession as a gambler. He claimed to have had at least a dozen wives. And he was hanged on his 24th birthday.

The Superior Court minutes gave his name as William Meisemer. Newspapers spelled it Messimer and Misamor. But from the moment Mrs. Sarah Heilig's body was pulled from her well, the name of this son-in-law, however spelled, was implicated.

The crime was committed in Rowan County, but the case was moved first to Cabarrus and then to Iredell where Judge Furches presided at the June 1876 term.

Though there were no witnesses to the crime, the state built a persuasive case on circumstantial evidence. Said the Charlotte Observer, "The chain was a long one, but every link was perfect." Less than three hours before his execution, Meisemer essentially confirmed the state's contentions.

A native of Rowan County, Meisemer was a troublesome child and early developed a love for adventure. As a youth he lived awhile in Florida, then in England and then in New York, where he worked on the police force. He was in Philadelphia a short time and later worked in Wynne's livery stable in Raleigh a few months.

Finally he moved to Salisbury where he proudly called himself a gambler and confidence man, having been "fully matriculated in this school in New York and Philadelphia." But he made the mistake of bilking J. B. Kearns out of more than $2,000. Meisemer spent two years in jail for the deed, and his Negro partner, who escaped punishment for this crime, was later hanged at Lexington for rape.

Meisemer had the habit of marrying wherever he located, so back in Rowan he married the widow Rowan, daughter of Mrs. Sarah Heilig. Perhaps it was his looks that made him a successful suitor. He was 5-foot-7, weighed 130 pounds and had dark hair, blue eyes and a dark moustache.

Obviously, though, the Heiligs did not see in him what Mrs. Peeler saw, for they considered him an outcast and would have nothing to do with him. Meisemer blamed his domestic problems on his mother-in-law, and he claimed that it was to find out why she disliked him so (and, incidentally, to tell her where she could buy a good cow) that he went to see Mrs. Heilig one Saturday morning.

The mother-in-law in her kitchen told him of his faults and threatened to sic her "violent" dog on him, and Meisemer replied with a whack of a cedar walking stick. He helped her up and begged her forgiveness. But when she went to the well and began drawing water, "all the while quarreling," Meisemer choked her and thrust her head-first down the well.

His deed done, Meisemer walked to China Grove and caught the train for Salisbury. There he ran into Mrs. Heilig's grandson, who allowed him to ride home with him. When the grandson drew a fresh bucket of water from Mrs. Heilig's well, Meisemer refused to drink.

The following day, the search for the missing woman ended when her body was pulled from the well. Authorities found tracks, unmistakably of a person with a left clubfoot, leading into a field. In fact, according to the newspapers, they followed the tracks for several miles toward China Grove.

After a four-day trial, Meisemer was convicted on circumstantial evidence and sentenced to hang. The State Supreme Court found no error, and the date for hanging was set for Dec. 22, 1876, his birthday.

They hadn't had a hanging in Statesville since Tom Dula went to the gallows 18 years earlier, so the decision of Sheriff T. A. Watts to curtain off the execution site was a great disappointment to the "large number of sight-seers who came into town at an early hour to witness the grim spectacle."

The Boston Police Gazette photographer was not allowed to take pictures, but the New York Herald reporter paid $429 in telegraph charges for his story. North Carolina papers also gave a lurid account of the execution:

After Meisemer's body was cut down, it was put in a pine box and buried in a field a mile from town. He died, reported the Charlotte Observer, "the death of a murderer with no one to regret his loss."

'Slasher' Is Facing Life For Murders

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Vaughn Orrin Greenwood faces possible life imprisonment when he is sentenced Jan. 19 for eight of the "Skid Row Slasher" murders that terrorized Los Angeles transients two years ago.

After six days of deliberations, a Los Angeles Superior Court jury Wednesday found the 33-year-old drifter guilty of nine counts of murder. Originally, prosecutors had indicated they wanted the death penalty, but California's capital punishment law was declared unconstitutional while the trial was under way.

Greenwood was convicted of eight of the nine killings attributed to the "Slasher." He was also convicted of a 1964 murder and one count of assault with intent to commit murder. The jury failed to reach a verdict on two other murder counts, and Superior Court Clerk Steve Brown said a mistrial would be declared in those cases.

Greenwood was indicted for 11 murders, including two in 1964 and the nine "Slasher" killings between Dec. 1, 1974, and Jan. 31, 1975. All victims had their throats slashed from ear to ear down to the spine.

Investigators said they found evidence that the killer drank the blood of at least two victims and that he removed their shoes and placed them in a pattern around the body. Salt was sprinkled around the bodies, forming a gruesome mosaic, authorities said.

Most of the deaths centered in the downtown Skid Row area, with transients the victims. The last two murders occurred in Hollywood.

Greenwood is already serving a 32-year-to-life sentence stemming from a robbery at the home of actor Burt Reynolds and a hatchet attack on two men in a house in the Hollywood Hills. He has been in custody since he was arrested Feb. 3, 1975, in those cases.

Prosecutors based their case on similarities among the killings and the testimony of a witness who said he saw Greenwood outside a hotel room where a "Slasher" victim was found.

Deputy Public Defender Charles Gessler claimed the evidence in most of the cases was circumstantial.

Recycling For Small Towns

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP) — Small communities can save money by recycling waste materials, says Pennsylvania State University engineering professor Raymond W. Regan. Recycled materials may be a substitute for something a community would normally have to buy, says Dr. Regan, who suggests using glass as "glassphalt" for roadway repairs, and dried, sterilized domestic sludge as a soil additive for local parks. Waste paper, he says, could be used as supplemental fuel in small furnaces. "Possibly several neighboring population centers could join together to recycle their materials in a regional facility," suggests Dr. Regan, "but then the economic benefits could be reduced by the transportation costs."

Girls Bid For Book Of Records

ROCK SPRINGS, Wyo. (AP) — Twenty girls on Rock Springs High School's swim team swam a total of 100 miles in 36 hours.
 Why? Well, for one thing, they had hoped to make it into the Guinness Book of World Records — which coach Stewart Dulaney says doesn't have a category that fits their feat.
 While the Guinness book doesn't list a separate category for girls' swimming marathon records, which Dulaney said they were aiming for, it does list under "Odd Swimming Records" a fastest time recorded for 100 miles by a team of 20 swimmers.
 According to the 1976 edition, that was 25 hours 55 minutes 8.2 seconds by a high school team in Dundee, Scotland, on Dec. 14 and 15, 1974 — which would seem to rule the girls out of the running. The only chance would seem to lie in the book's failure to mention whether the Scots were boys or girls.
 The 20 girls began swimming at 8 a.m. Monday and stopped just after 8 p.m. Tuesday night, Coach Dulaney said.
