Citizens Seek Help In Securing Money

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

A groundswell of discontent and impatience with the progress of investigation at the state level on missing grant funds earmarked for South Greenville Elementary School has triggered a move on the part of local people to seek assistance from the governor's office in providing substitute money for the missing funds.

The unaccounted for funds are from a private enrichment grant to South Greenville from Atlantic-Richfield Company, designed to cover all expenses (except student private spending money) for study trips to Tidewater Virginia by fifth grade students over a period of three years. This year's trip is the second in the three year project. Investigation into the missing funds was initiated by the State Department of Public Instruction in early December.

State Senator Thomas Taft is acting as the official liasion for local citizens in an effort to procure funds from the governor's contingency and emergency funds. "There has been some thought that only the office of the State Department of Public Instruction can present a request on the school's behalf," Taft said Saturday morning. "That is not the case. I have the authority to make the official request, to move independently on this matter."

Taft is working through Ward Purrington, the governor's legislative liaison in placing the request before the state council for funds from the state's contingency and emergency fund. "I talked to him yesterday (Friday) afternoon and expect to hear from him again soon," Taft commented.

Local discontent over the status of the investigative progress by the State Department of Public Instruction surfaced when South Greenville teachers and parents of students at the school met recently to discuss the situation.

Kurt Fickling, president of South Greenville's PTA, is the key spokesman for concerned teachers and parents. "I feel that some officials believe this can be swept under the rug," Fickling said, "but I'm convinced at this point the only way the money is going to be replaced in time for the children to make their trip is to put public pressure to work.

"I do not like what I'm having to do," he added, "I believe in operating

President Gets Good News From Physician

By SUSANNE M. SCHAFER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three small polyps removed from President Reagan's colon during a post-cancer surgery checkup were found to be benign along with a sample of skin taken from a bump on his face, the White House said Saturday.

The president, resting over the weekend at his Camp David, Md., retreat, was given the results of the tests by his personal physician, Dr. T. Burton Smith, according to White House spokesman Albert Brashear.

On Saturday, Reagan kept to his normal schedule and delivered his weekly radio address from the presidential retreat.

The president, his wife Nancy, and their dog Rex flew to the Catoctin Mountain retreat Friday evening after the president's six-hour visit to the Bethesda Naval Hospital.

The 74-year-old president underwent the first examination of his colon since his successful cancer surgery in July. Blood tests, X-rays, and a CAT scan were also done.

The White House issued a terse, two-sentence statement Saturday on the results of the president's medical tests.

"Final laboratory evaluation on the three intestinal polyps and facial tissue removed from the president yesterday has been completed and

Six Americans Among Dead

Jetliner Crash Kills 90

By ALFONSO ANZUETO
Associated Press Writer

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) — A jetliner carrying tourists to famed Mayan ruins in northern Guatemala crashed Saturday in a remote jungle area, killing all 90 people aboard including six Americans, the airline Aerovias said.

Col. Adolfo Corzo, director of Civil Aeronautics, had initially said there were 88 dead and 11 of the victims were from the United States. The airline at first said the toll was 87, including 10 Americans.

The twin-engine Caravelle jetliner, operated by the private Aerovias company, went down as it approached the airport at Santa Elena, about 150 miles north of the capital of Guatemala City.

Gerry Waters, a spokesman at the U.S. Embassy, said airline officials reported the control tower's last contact with the plane was at 7:58 a.m. and the pilot had not indicated there were any problems.

He said an embassy official was sent to the crash site to confirm the number of U.S. victims.

"Right now, we are just saying there were a number of Americans on the flight," Waters said. "We don't want to say specifically until we can get it nailed down." He said the jungle where the plane crashed is so dense that an area had to be cleared for a Guatemalan air force helicopter to land.

The airline released a tentative list of the dead Saturday night. It said 53 passengers and five crew members were Guatemalans, and the other 32 victims were foreigners, including a Colombian flight engineer.

It said of the foreigners killed, six were Americans; six from Colombia; four from Venezuela; two from Mexico; two from Costa Rica; two from the Netherlands; two from Britain; two from Canada; two from the Netherland Antillas; and one each from West Germany, Greece, France and Italy.

Corzo said the accident, the worst in Guaemala's aviation history, occurred eight miles northwest of Santa Elena in the northern department of Peten. Military patrols based at the airport arrived at the site soon after the crash.

Aerovias had rented the French-build aircraft from the Ecuadoran airline Saeta for flights to Santa

Enrollment Curb On Agenda

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The University of North Carolina Board of Governors is expected to consider a policy next month that would limit the number of out-of-state students that can be admitted by schools in the UNC system to 18 percent, beginning in 1988.

Raymond Dawson, the UNC system's vice president for academic affairs, said out-of-state enrollment has been increasing steadily since 1980, and has become particularly acute at five UNC campuses.

Out-of-state enrollment accounted for 34 percent of N.C. A&T State University's freshman class last fall, 32.5 percent at Elizabeth City State University, 25 per cent at N.C. Central University, 24 percent at East Carolina University, and 20 percent at UNC-Greensboro. At UNC-Chapel Hill, 19 percent of the incoming freshmen were out-of-state students while at N.C. State, non-residents accounted for 17.6 percent of the freshman class.

"It's been an issue for several years," ECU Chancellor John Howell said last week. "The board of governors is concerned with it because the Legislature and tax payers have reservations about spending a lot of state money on out-of-state residents.

"There has been some effort over a long peoiod of time," to deal with the problem, Howell said. Tuition for non-residents has been raised several times. "But out-of-state enrollment continues to grow. That's what

One Incumbent Says No

Candidates File For Pitt Posts

Three candidates, including two incumbents, have filed for election to Pitt County offices, while a third incumbent official has announced that he will not seek another term.

Incumbents James W. (Jim) Black of Winterville and Charles L. McLawhorn of Ayden filed for re-election to the Pitt County Board of Education and Pitt County Board of Commissioners, respectively, in the May 6 primary.

Levi C. Smith said he will run for a seat on the county education board.

Kelly Barnhill, a member of the county Board of Commissioners since 1980, said Friday that he will not seek re-election to the seat representing Greenville Township.

Black, who represents Winterville on the eight-member board, will be seeking his third term in office.

In announcing his candidacy, Black said he felt the consolidated Pitt County school system has "the potential to be one of the finest school systems in the state."

"When I was first elected to the board in 1978, the consolidation of the Pitt County and Greenville City systems was being studied," Black said. "Now, after all these years, those plans are about to become a reality. Having been a part of this process, I would like to see it (consolidation) to its conclusion."

Black, of Winterville, is a stockbroker and branch office manager with Wheat, First Securities, Inc. in Greenville. He holds a bachelor's degree in business administration from Atlantic Christian College and did graduate work in mathematics at the University of Maryland. He serves on the Atlantic Christian College Board of Trustees and is a past president of the ACC Alumni Association. He also served on the alumni search committee for the school's new president in 1985.

Black serves on the Greenville Museum of Art Board of Trustees and is a member of the Pitt County Development Commission. He is past secretary and past president of the Winterville Kiwanis Club and is past lieutenant governor of the Carolinas District of Kiwanis.

Before his election to the Pitt County Board of Education, he served for a number of years on the Winterville school advisory council, serving as chairman in 1977. He is past president of the A.G. Cox Parent-Teacher Association.

Moslem Leader Urges Rebellion

By MONA ZIADE
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Shiite Moslem leader Nabih Berri on Saturday called on the Lebanese army to rebel against President Amin Gemayel and accused the Christian leader of pushing the country into a new spasm of civil violence.

Berri, who serves as justice minister in Lebanon's nine-man coalition government, called Gemayel the "Nero of Lebanon" and said ending the country's decade-old war was impossible "unless the presidential term is cut."

Gemayel, 43, a Maronite Catholic, who was elected president in September 1982 for a six-year term, has refused to support a Syria-brokered peace accord signed by the leaders of Lebanon's three warring factions.

"He (the president) has decided to be the Nero of Lebanon. What is required now of the army is to rebel against Nero and avoid being sucked into Amin Gemayel's war against Lebanon," Berri told a news conference at his west Beirut home.

Nero was a tyrannical 1st century Roman emperor who initiated Rome's first persecution of Christians after accusing them of starting a fire that burned down half the city.

By police count, at least 403 people have been killed and more than 800 wounded in fighting since Monday.

Most of the casualties came from street battles Wednesday when Gemayel's supporters crushed Syrian-backed Christian rivals.

The 37,000-man U.S.-trained Lebanese army, split along sectarian lines, stayed out of the inter-Christian feud but has been dragged into sectarian fighting on other fronts.

Syrian-backed leftist and Moslem factions launched an offensive against Christian areas Wednesday after the inter-Christian fighting, but later retreated.

Elena because of a greater-than-normal demand to travel to the area, authorities said.

Calvani, like some of the others aboard the flight, were in Guatemala to attend last Tuesday's swearing-in of President Vinicio Cerezo, the nation's first civilian head of state in 16 years.

The Venezuelan Embassy said Calvani was traveling with his wife, Adelita, and two daughters, Graciela, 23, and Maria Elena, 25.

The plane left Guatemala City at 7:25 a.m. for the 40-minute flight to Santa Elena, which is 37 miles south of the Mayan ruins of Tikal. The airport is used by travelersurts and pld:bs built on hilly land above surrounding swamps and interconnected by bridges and causeways.

Aerovias has regularly scheduled flights and charter flights in Guatemala.

Calvani, who would have celebrated his 68th birthday on Sunday, was active in the international Christian Democrat organization and a leader of that party in his country.

He was the father of six children and a close friend of President Cerezo, also a Christian Democrat.

Officials said Cerezo sent a personal message of condolence to Venezuela's government and political leaders.

Producer Slain

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The maid of a producer accused of beating him to death with a baseball bat has been ordered to stand trial on a murder charge even though she insists she acted in self defense.

A municipal court judge in Van Nuys ordered the trial for Mayra Edith Melendez Lopez, 25, in the death of Herbert Wallerstein, whose 40-year career included producing episodes of "Happy Days," "Star Trek" and "Lady Blue."

within the system, but there are times when that doesn't work."

Fickling said "West (superintendent of Greenville and Pitt County Schools Dr. Eddie West) could not find time to see me or talk to me, but after the problem was made public he called me."

According to Fickling, "the principal and teachers at South Greenville were instructed not to say anything to anyone about the matter. It is my feeling the time has come to stop waiting, to take every action possible to get this resolved at an early date."

In a letter dated January 6 to South Greenville principal J. B. Smith, West wrote: "I have made a personal appeal to state agency personnel on behalf of the fifth grade teachers at South Greenville. However, the facts remains that there are no funds available from either state or federal sources for this purpose. Similary, there are no local funds available either. Regretfully, since no monies are available, the field trip cannot take place this year."

Initial reports in a Jan. 10 article that the trip had been canceled and deposits for reservations had been forfeited were denied by South Greenville principal J. B. Smith. In a telephone conversation Saturday morning, Smith refuted cancellation of the planned trip and said the information on forfeiture is in error. "We are continuing to make arrangements for the students to go on the trip," Smith said. "At this time there are 128 students scheduled for the trip. A sum of $300 has been deposited by the PTA to reserve rooms. So far as forfeiture is concerned, that is totally not true. We have not lost one dime because of any penalty.

"If the money does not become available from state sources," Smith said, "the PTA group and others are standing ready to step in and to take action somehow to try to raise money for the trip."

In a telephone interview on Friday with Robert Powell, a budget administrator in the office of the State Budget, Powell indicated chances of the school receiving funds through state contingency and emergency funds are slim.

"I certainly would not say it's impossible," Powell said. "Each request is considered for determination on the basis of information provided, taking into account the consequences of the loss of funds in cases such as this. As a rule," Powell added, "contingency funds are not used to pick up lost funds. Last month, for example, a hospital requested contingency funds for which a decision was made that contingency funds could not be used to help them.

"Just now," Powell added, "we are down to counting dollars and the situation is compounded by the fact that contingency support to victims of the last hurricane has not been closed out."

Powell said that favorable consideration of the request by South Greenville "could very easily open up a Pandora's box."

all are benign. The President was informed of the results by his physician at Camp David this morning," the statement said.

Brashear, asked for more detail, refused comment. "I can not and will not elaborate on the statement," he said. Asked for Reagan's reaction to the apparent clean bill of health, the spokesman said, "He's fine. We expected nothing less."

The spokesman said no further details on the president's health or checkup would be forthcoming. Reagan was expected to remain secluded at Camp David until Monday, a federal holiday honoring Martin Luther King, Jr.

The statement issued by the White House did not state how the results were obtained or who performed the tests. Although it did not state which physician discussed the checkup with Reagan, Brashear checked and said Smith had spoken with the president.

On Friday, the White House had issued a brief statement saying that initial tests had shown that three "very small" polyps were removed and had been evaluated as "clinically benign."

After a two-inch cancerous tumor and a two-foot section of Reagan's colon were removed in July, Reagan's physicians recommended that he undergo regular tests to be sure that there is no recurrence of the cancer.

Cancer specialists don't regard cancer patients as cured until they have survived five years without a recurrence.

The president had a patch of skin cancer removed from his nose last summer, which was unrelated to his colon cancer.

The three new growths were taken from Reagan's colon in a non-surgical procedure known as a colonoscopy. The blood tests, X-rays and CAT scan — which provides highly detailed and accurate pictures of the brain, lungs, pancreas, kidneys and other organs — are used to detect whether any new tumors are forming.

In it's statement on Friday, the White House said that all other test results and examinations were normal and revealed no evidence of any disease.

A colonoscopy is a procedure in which a long, flexibile tube is inserted in the rectum and guided through the organ by remote control. A tiny wire snare is located at the end of the device to lasso growths and clip them off. The wound is sealed with a coagulating electrical current that runs through the wire.

The three growths discovered in Reagan's colon were polyps, one to two millimeters in size. The vast majority of polyps — which are fleshy growths — are benign, but some become cancerous.

They rarely cause discomfort or illness, but some polyps — doctors cannot predict which ones — develop into colon cancer, which is among the most common and the most deadly forms of the disease.

Each year, colon cancer kills 60,000 Americans.

"Polyps, if left to their own devices, might grow to be cancerous," said Dr. Stan Benjamin, director of gastroenterology at Georgetown University Hospital.

"Polyps of the size removed yesterday are very common, and we believe that they are the beginning of a sequence that can lead to cancerous growth," said Benjamin, who performed a colonoscopy on Reagan in 1981 but was not involved in Friday's treatment.

"No one is surprised, given the size of the polyps removed, that they are benign," he said.

Before the discovery of Reagan's large growth last year, doctors using a similar but shorter proctosygmoidoscope found two other small polyps that were removed and found to be benign.

Because Reagan has had at least three polyps, he is regarded as having a greater-than-average chance of developing more. Chances of a recurrence of cancerous tumors are considered to be less than 50 percent.

children and are members of the Winterville Missionary Baptist Church.

McLawhorn has represented Ayden, Grifton and Swift Creek townships on the Board of Commissioners.

In filing for another term, McLawhorn, a farmer, said "A major priority should be the continuing industrial development of Pitt County, in order that we provide not only for economic growth but for a healthy overall economy.

"It is important that Pitt County retain its ability to pick and choose its industry," McLawhorn said. "And to attract corporate citizens, like the ones we have now, who put so much more into our communities than they take out."

McLawhorn also said "it is more important than ever that we receive full value for every dollar invested in county services. This has been a number one concern for me."

McLawhorn was elected to the board in 1982, replacing B. Alton Gardner, who did not seek re-election to the board after serving 28 years as a commissioner.

A member of the Pitt County Development Commission, the Pitt County Board of Health, and the board of directors of the Eastern Carolina Vocational Center, McLawhorn serves as president of the East Carolina Milk Producers Association. He is also a member of the Pitt County Farm Bureau, the N.C. Farm Bureau dairy services committee, and is a director of the N.C. Milk Producers Federation.

A graduate of Ayden High School, McLawhorn attended Oak Ridge Military Institute and N.C. State University. He served in the United States Navy During World War II.

McLawhorn, 58, served on the N.C. Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service Committee from 1977 to 1981, and also served on the Governor's advisory committee on agriculture, forestry and the seafood industry. He is a member of the board of directors of Planters National Bank in Ayden, is a director of the Ayden Council of the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce, and a member of Bethany Free Will Baptist Church.

He is married to the former Brownie Dail and they have three sons.

Levi C. Smith filed as a candidate for the education seat from the Winterville Township. "I am committed to a more progressive Board of Education for our children," he said.

Smith is a native of the Winterville community, and was graduated from Winterville High School. He has a degree from Pitt Community College in Business Administration and has been an employee of the Kinston Du Pont Plant for 18 years, where he is a yarn lab day supervisor.

He is the founder of the A.G. Cox Grammar School Athletic Booster's Club, Winterville Pee Wee Baseball League and the Winterville Little League Basketball Commission. He has served as co-chairman of the Pee Wee and Little League baseball programs, and serves as board of directors of the D.H. Conley High School Viking Booster Club.

Smith has served as a member of the A.G. Cox School advisory counsel and as an officer of the W.H. Robinson School Parent Teacher Organization. He is a veteran of the United States Air Force and is a member of the Winterville Ruritans.

Smith is a member of the Immanuel Free Will Baptist Church where he is a Sunday school teacher and Youth Director. He and his wife, the former Judy Paramore, have three sons, Mark, 15; Bryan, 12; and Levi Jr., 11, who all attend Winterville schools.

Barnhill, whose present term ends in December, said, "I do not plan to seek re-election, due primarily to the need to spend more time with my business.

"The time I have spent as a County Commissioner has been enjoyable for the most part," Barnhill said. "I feel like the time I have spent as a commissioner has been very worthwhile and I would hope that the things we have done have been for the good of the county."

Barnhill said. "I hope that some day in the future I can find the time to run again for the office."

Barnhill has been a member of the board since he was appointed to fill the unexpired term of Ed Warren, who resigned after being elected to the N.C. House of Representatives. He was elected for a full four-year term in 1982.

President of Hendrix-Barnhill Co., Barnhill served as chairman of the board of commissioners in 1985.

'Unity'

NEW YORK (AP) — Christians of many lands and branches observe their annual "Week of Prayer for Christian Unity" Jan. 18-25, featuring widespread pulpit exchanges, ecumenical worship and studies.

It is a time when the unified "vision of the church is strengthened and deepened as Christians...seek to make vital their common witness," says Brother Jeffrey Gros of the National Council of Churches.

About 2,000 public schools will fly the North Carolina flag as a result of a $40,000 appropriation by the General Assembly.

Dr. Craig Phillips, state superintendent of public instruction, said the flags will "promote patriotism and build pride in our state among all students in our public schools."

Phillips said local schools can expect to receive their flags from area legislators.

Post Office Schedule

The Greenville post office and ECU station will close Monday in observance of the birthday of the late Martin Luther King Jr. There will be no deliveries made by rural and city carriers and no window service. Mail will be delivered to post office boxes.

Express and special delivery mail will be delivered within the city and a special 3 p.m. holiday collection will be made from all boxes at 5 p.m. The self-service postal unit at the main post office will supply customers with most postal supplies.

Art Classes Set

The school of art at East Carolina University is offering free creative art classes for area children beginning Jan. 27.

The classes are conducted by the art education faculty and are designed for children in elementary grades four through six.

The classes will meet in room 1342 of the Jenkins Building at ECU and will provide experiences in drawing, painting, printmaking and crafts. Hours are 4-5 p.m. Mondays, Tuesdays Wednesdays.

For registration, call the school of art, 757-6665, between 2 and 4 p.m., Jan. 20 through Jan. 27. Each class enrollment will be limited to 20.

Workshop Scheduled

Graphic artist Patrick Keough will conduct a workshop on "Production: Materials and Methods," Feb. 8 from 9 a.m. until noon in the Willis Building auditorium, corner of First and Reade streets.

The workshop is part of a series sponsored by the department of library and information studies at East Carolina University.

For more information, contact the division of continuing education at ECU or the department of library and information studies.

Course Planned

An "effective parenting skills" workshop designed for low-income parents with young children will begin Wednesday and continue each Wednesday from 9-11 a.m. at the Pitt County Mental Health Center.

The goal of the 8-week course is to improve family relations. A spokesman said workshop size is limited.

Staff Recruitment

Directors of three North Carolina Conference camps begin recruitment at East Carolina University Feb. 10 for summer staff to fill camp positions.

Students interested in applying should contact ECU's Career Planning and Placement Center, Bloxton House, on the ECU campus.

The theme of the camping program in the North Carolina Conference is "Camping...The Gift of Summer."

Tuesday Concert

Greenville resident Mickey Terry and Mary Lazarus will present an organ and trumpet concert at noon Tuesday at Howard Univeristy, Washington, D.C.

Terry is currently pursuing his doctorate at Georgetown University. He received his bachelor's and master's degrees at East Carolina University. Ms. Lazarus is a music student at Georgetown University.

Moskop Will Speak

Dr. John C. Moskop, associate professor of medical humanities at East Carolina University, will discuss the impact of recent federal regulation of the treatment of handicapped newborns at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Moskop will be the guest speaker of the American Association of University Women, which meets at the E.F. Hutton building, 102 E. Arlington Blvd.

Memorial Service

A memorial service in honor of the late Martin Luther King Jr. will be held Monday at 8 p.m. at Mount Calvary Free Will Baptist Church.

The Rev. Kenneth Hammond will be the guest speaker and music will be provided by the combined choirs of the church. The film "The Life and Times of Martin Luther King Jr.," will be presented following the service.

Doctorate Earned

Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Quinerly of Greenville. She is the husband of Wade L. Pitt, a former resident of Greenville.

Service Recognition

State Reps. Walter B. Jones Jr. and Ed Warren of the 9th District were honored this week by the Greene County Fire and Rescue Department for their service and support.

Jones and Warren were presented plaques by the Greene County Fireman's Association at a dinner in Show Hill. Approximately 200 volunteers and Greene County citizens gathered to honor the legislators for their work on behalf of the county and the district.

Radio Guests

Guests on the "City Hall Notes" radio program this week will be Harry Hamilton, planner with the city's planning and community development department, and Nadine Bowen, administrative assistant to the city manager.

Hamilton will discuss responsibilities of the Historic Properties Commission, and Mrs. Bowen will report on activities of the City Council at its Jan. 9 meeting.

The program is aired on WOOW radio each Monday and Friday at 7:55 a.m.

NCNB Scholarship

Mona Kay Bell of Oriental, a senior accounting major in the business school at East Carolina University, is the recipient of one of four North Carolina National Bank scholarships given to outstanding ECU students this year.

Each scholarship carries a cash award of $500.

Ms. Bell, a graduate of Pamlico High School, is the daughter of Lester B. Sadler of Route 1, New Bern.

Computer Seminars

Saturday computer seminars will be offered by East Carolina University this semester, including programs for beginners and experienced computer users.

Most of the programs will run from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. and will be held either at ECU or in computer classroom facilities at local computer retail outlets.

The seminars include: Feb. 8 — "The Small Computer Revolution: An Introduction to the Machine" and "Introduction to Lotus 1-2-3;" Feb. 15 — "Introduction to Multiplan," "Introduction to Programming in BASIC" and "Managing Your Computer-Using DOS, and Feb. 22 — "Introduction to dBASE III," "Introduction to Computers in Education" and "Multimate."

The seminars on March 1 are "Introduction to Word Processing" and "Lotus II," and "DisplayWrite 3" will be held March 8. On March 15, the seminar will be "Writing and Using MACROs for Lotus 1-2-3," and on March 22, the seminar will be "Computers in the School Media Center."

The courses are offered through the ECU Division of Continuing Education.

Modlin Recipient

The scholarship includes a cash award of $500.

She is a graduate of Jamesville High School and has earned an associate in science degree from Mount Olive College. She is the daughter of James Perry of Route 2, Jamesville.

PTA Event Planned

The Sadie Saulter PTA will have a pizza and bingo party Wednesday in the school all-purpose room from 5:30-7:30 p.m. Proceeds will be used for school projects.

First Meeting Set

"Communication Skills and Interpersonal Relationships" will be the topic at the inaugural meeting of Eastern Carolina Single Professionals at 8 p.m. Saturday at the Windy Ridge clubhouse.

Dr. Steven Deters of the East Carolina University Counseling Center will be the guest speaker. Refreshments and a social will follow the program.

PAC To Meet

The Parents Advisory Council for Exceptional Children will meet at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the fourth floor conference room of the Pitt County office building, 1717 W. Fifth St.

School psychologists will discuss their roles regarding exceptional children's identification and educational planning. Jean Averette, coordinator of exceptional children's services, will present listings of resources for parents of exceptional children and information about the potential impact of federal budget cuts.

Sunday Opinion

Democrats Seek Spirit Of Unity For '86 Election

Democrats have been looking for a "name" candidate to seek the U.S. Senate seat now held by Sen. John East of Greenville.

Last week that "name" surfaced. Terry Sanford, former governor and retired president of Duke University, changed his mind and announced he would be a candidate.

It caused an immediate realignment of candidates seeking the Democratic nomination. D.M. "Lauch" Faircloth, a potential candidate, pondered the situation and then said he would not run against his old political ally.

That was followed by the announcement from Marvin Blount Jr. that he was withdrawing as a candidate and would support the Sanford candidacy.

Blount, a former judge and Greenville attorney, had entered the race after Sanford and former Gov. Jim Hunt had said they would not run.

Obviously the scene changed when Sanford decided to seek the nomination. Democratic leaders are keenly aware that they cannot afford a major intraparty fight in the upcoming primary if they want to recapture one of the Senate seats now held by Republicans. They only had to look to last year's bitter Democratic gubernatorial primary fight for evidence of that.

There are still other Democrats in the primary, of course, and there is nothing to say that additional ones will not announce. It is the privilege of any of the candidates to continue and, indeed is in the spirit of Democracy to encourage candidate participation.

Down the road, however, the winner of the Democratic primary faces the task of campaigning against a major and well financed Republican candidate, one who may even be favored to win. Thus Democratic party unity seems to be what most of the party's leaders want. All of the party's energies must be preserved for the upcoming general election.

In Death, King Realized Dreams

It was Congress that declared the third Monday of January a time "to reflect on the principles of racial equality and non-violent social change" that guided Martin Luther King Jr. and forged his dream for the United States.

His birthday actually fell on the 15th, so admirers and followers of Dr. King were really given two dates for commemorating his dream and accomplishments.

For many, April 4 (the day of his assassination in 19n8) will be one more occasion for reflection and thanksgiving on his legacy.

Dr. King had several things going for him in his lifetime.

His father, a talented minister and successful pastor, planted the seed of a dream that became the younger King's hallmark. The lessons of Mahatma Gandhi and the collective conscience of America were other powerful factors.

Accepting change was not easy; prejudices remain but their voices are fewer and notably dispersed.

"Every man," King once said, "should have something he'd be willing to die for. A man who won't die for something is not really fit to live." Die, he did.

In retrospect we can only wonder if perhaps the death of Martin Luther King Jr. was as untimely as we are wont to say. Perhaps, more truly, his death was the climactic finale, the capping stone that fixed into place the changes in America that he sought. The quality of martyrdom has had that effect in the past.

Sunday Morning Notes

Jack Edwards and his wife, Rachel, have a list of events and places they want to attend.

Included among them is the Rose Bowl parade and football game and they concluded this was the year to do it.

Edwards wrote the Pasadena Chamber of Commerce for assistance. Back came a group of package deals for the event. Typically they included football tickets, parade tickets, bus ride, box lunch. The cost was $550 for two people.

Edwards said he called one company and was told they have to get the tickets on the black market, accounting for the high prices.

Stymied, Edwards, a Rotarian, called Rotary International in Evanston, Ill. and obtained the name of the president of the Pasadena Rotary Club.

"We got fabulous parade tickets, grandstand seats at the beginning of the parade, 30 yard line football tickets, tickets to two luncheons, two parking passes, all for a total of $167," Edwards said.

Thus for a third of the package deal the Edwards' got far better treatment.

The Rose Bowl Parade was all that Edwards had hoped for. Floats cost from $40,000 to $300,000 with the average cost being $150,000. He had thought they were made totally of flowers but other organic matter can be used if its natural color is maintained ... barks, seeds, leaves are permissible.

Edwards recalled a float with an airplane on it with tires which appeared to be rubber. They were made from a certain species of seaweed which is black and slick. Faces on a float were made of crushed almond shells, which have a skin-like color.

Edwards noted that the Pasadena Tournament of Roses Association consists of 800 volunteers, some of whom work year around. They receive no pay and actually pay dues to belong. Participants age out at 62 and the organization is so prestigous that every year with 40 to 50 aging out, some 200 apply. They wear white suits, white shoes and red ties and perform various jobs in connection with the events.

Edwards met the Rotary Club president and attended a meeting of the Rotary Club which has about 300 members. He also attended what may be the world's largest civic club meeting sponsored by the Kiwanis Club on New Year's Eve.

There were about 4,000 people there, many of them using it as a make-up meeting for regular club meetings. They were fed with box lunches. Many of the dignitaries there for the Rose Bowl appeared.

A Campaign That's Different

RALEIGH — Here's a twist for you.

Several reporters covering the Republican primary campaign for the U.S. Senate say they've developed a better working relationship with David Funderburk than with Rep. Jim Broyhill.

That's a twist because Funderburk is being supported very closely by the National Congressional Club, the campaign organization of Sen. Jesse Helms. The club has been strongly critical of both state and national press in the past and has, at times, refused to cooperate with press coverage of their candidates' campaigns.

But the Funderburk campaign is different. Club officials are quite approachable this year, making it very easy to get quotes from them. The candidate himself has shown a willingness to stop and jaw with reporters. Palmer Sugg, Funderburk's press secretary, has been more helpful to this reporter at least than any other person who has held a press job with a club-backed campaign since 1979.

Broyhill has not been ugly to the press. But his campaign has shown indifference at times to the physical and time limits the news media encounter.

The difference in attitude was evident the day both Funderburk and Broyhill filed for office. Funderburk filed and then held the traditional news conference at the State Board of Elections. The questioning got a bit rough at times but Funderburk held in there for a half hour and then smiled and shook hands with reporters as he left.

Broyhill, on the other hand, filed and then refused to answer questions. He said he'd hold a press conference across town. That meant some afternoon newspapers missed their deadlines and that television reporters had to lug all of their equipment to another site.

In the time between the two filings, reporters sat around comparing notes. One television reporter said he'd travelled all the way to Gastonia to cover a Broyhill event only to find the congressman wouldn't talk with reporters. A Piedment print reporter countered by saying Funderburk had given him a long one-on-one interview in his office at Campbell University.

This is not to say that all is rosy between the press and the club. The Funderburk campaign exercises an old club trick when it holds press conferences. It packs the room with supporters who cheer for their candidate and who sometimes interrupt with loaded questions of their own. When their candidate comes up against tough questions, they'll often begin applauding, presumably in hopes of intimidating the reporter. Broyhill's people do nothing of that kind.

Why are club — press relations better this time?

There are two good theories — and then one which is a bit Machiavellian.

Good theory one. Funderburk is 42. Most capitol reporters are in their late 20s to mid-30s. Funderburk is loose, pleasant and not as intense, personally, as Sens. John East and Jesse Helms, for example. He doesn't have a history of bad relations with the press. The personal chemistry is just better.

Good theory two. Funderburk is a self-avowed underdog who can't rely solely on television ads to win in May and therefore needs better press coverage.

Machiavellian theory. This is espoused by a down east conservative editor. The ultra-liberal Demcratic controlled press "is being overly fair" to Funderburk because it wants to keep his campaign afloat in hopes it will get dirty and divide the Republican Party for the fall campaign.

The Pace That Stalls

WASHINGTON — The quietest place in town these days is the U.S. Capitol. The guards are here, being helpful to a trickle of tourists. Some maintenance people are at work. A few reporters are doing crossword puzzles in the press galleries. Otherwise the place is one great yawning vacuum. Congress has gone home.

In a cynical sense, one ought not to complain about the situation. Until Jan. 21, when the next session begins, the liberties of the people are secure. That is the hoary joke. It contains a kernel of truth for those who hold by the theory of the fewer laws, the better. It's not a bad theory.

Yet we ought to take a long, slow look at how the U.S. Congress operates. If a private business ran on the same take-it-easy schedule, the business would go broke in six weeks.

Look back at 1985. Congress came into session on Jan. 3. For the next three weeks, members did nothing but go to parties and hang pictures. The rigors of Inauguration Day left them exhausted. They did nothing for a week, and then recessed to honor Presidents Washington and Lincoln. It was March before they got down to work. Then they took a vacation for Easter. They took a week off for Memorial Day. They slaved away in June, and took another long recess over the Fourth of July. Wearied by this frenzied pace, they fled Washington for the whole month of August and didn't come back until early September. They took another week at Thanksgiving. On a great cresting wave of fulsome oratory, they adjourned five days before Christmas.

During the year, our heroes introduced 6,000 bills and almost 1,800 resolutions. The good news is that only 187 bills were enacted into law. The Senate met on 170 days, the House on only 152. The members' remarks — plus the extensions of their remarks — filled 37,200 pages of the Congressional Record.

The waste of time around this place is horrendous. Sen. David Pryor of Arkansas kept notes last year. By his reckoning, the Senate spent 327 hours and 15 minutes in quorum calls — the equivalent of 41 days of work in any other occupation. Senate roll calls are supposed to be cut off after 15 minutes, but they rarely are. Pryor found that another 47 hours were frittered away last year in excess time after the 15-minute periods expired.

Congress ended the 1985 session with two major pieces of legislation. These were the farm bill and the Gramm-Rudman Deficit Reduction Act. The farm bill has some good features, but it perpetuates the worst of the follies that afflict our agricultural policy. Gramm-Rudman is a disaster.

What else was accomplished? Let us see. In its closing hours, Congress provided for naming the John W. Byrnes Post Office Building in Green Bay, Wis., the Jennings Randolph Lake near Keyser, W.Va., the Captain John Foster Williams Coast Guard Building in Boston, the Robert N.C. Nix Building in Philadelphia, and the James A. Welsh Courthouse in Tucson.

Congress designated a Truck and Bus Safety Week, a National Fetal Alcohol Syndrome Awareness Week, a National Organ and Tissue Donor Awareness Week, a National Jaycee Week, an Ethnic Americans Day, a National Agricultural Day, and a Save the U.S.A. Year. A decade might have been better.

After appropriate thought and hard reflection, Congress declared that it opposes childhood diseases and the occupation of Afghanistan. It favors the Camp Fire girls and Lithuanian independence. A resolution to oppose Man's Inhumanity to Man on April 24 of every year was postponed for further consideration in 1986. Federal recognition was restored to the Coushatta Indian Tribe of Texas.

There is no reason on earth for Congress to fritter away the whole month of January. In what other industry or occupation do people get vacations so extensive? It is said that members work at home, talking with the common people, getting their constitutents' views. Some do, some don't. Mainly what members do in recess is hustle for re-election. Meanwhile, nothing is being done in the Senate on tax reform. The House is sitting on a major banking bill. Both chambers are ducking needed changes in election laws. The ret of the country is working. Why are these clowns in the hammock?

To the editor:

Jan. 22 is the anniversary of the Supreme Court's abortion decision, a date fraught with controversy, conflict and even confrontation.

Today, Jan. 19, several local churches will join with others across the country to be a "voice for the voiceless" in a worship event declared "Sanctity of Human Life Sunday."

In 1984 and 1985, thousands of churches participated in Sanctity of Human Life Sunday, a day which President Reagan called citizens to gather "in homes and places of worship to give thanks for the gift of life and to reaffirm our commitment to the dignity of every human being and the sanctity of each human life."

In reference to the abortion issue, the president has aptly stated, "The tragedy of abortion extends beyond the loss of the nearly 17 million children who have been robbed of the gift of life. This tragedy is multifaceted — inflicting emotional harm on women, denying prospective adoptive couples the joy of sharing their loving homes with children, and eroding respect for the most fundamental of rights, the right to life."

The Carolina Crisis Pregnancy of Greenville is a non-profit, non-political, non-sectarian service which offers free counseling and assistance to people struggling with unexpected, unplanned pregnancies. CCPC exists because many people in this area believe in the sanctity of human life and actively demonstrate this belief in positive, peaceful ways.

To the editor:

Since my last letter to the Public Forum, I have obtained the following information from the N.C. Utilities Commission.

On Oct. 17, 1985, Carolina Telephone wrote a letter to the N.C. Utilities Commission stating that the following organizations had petitioned for Extended Services to Grifton, Fountain and Ayden: Pitt County-Ayden-Grifton Chamber of Commerce, Town Board of Ayden-Grifton and Greenville City Council.

I was not surprised to find who was requesting this service until the City Council endorsement was mentioned, considering that only 7 percent of Greenville subscribers would benefit. I thought the City Council's first priority was the welfare of the majority of the people they serve. I really felt betrayed, so I set out to find how this came about.

I know of two City Coiuncil members serving at the time who privately voted against this service. On Oct. 10, 1985, motion was made by Mayor Pro-Tem Ed Carter, seconded by Councilwman Judy Greene to adopt a resolution requesting CT&T to provide toll-free telephone services between Ayden, Grifton, Greenville and Fountain. Motion unanimously carried (res. 931).

This is something the majority of us may want to remember come election time. I will remind you.

I strongly resent the N.C. Utilities Commission's way of approaching CT&T's subscribers. I think it is deceiving on their part to compose a letter and then print it on CT&T stationery, giving the impression that CT&T wrote it. I think we are entitled to know exactly how the vote is being tallied, the names of the persons supervising this task, how many votes were received, etc. Attorney Phil Dixon's support of this issue is understandable. In 1986 he will hold the following positions with the chamber: executive committee chairman, board of directors, also committee chairman. That's what I call dedication.

To the editor:

The Democratic Party has really done it this time. In a frantic attempt to field a "real" candidate for the Senate race, they have regurgitated old Terry Sanford, who won one election in 1960 and has lost soundly in his every other attempt.

This certainly reveals the true direction of the "new" Democratic Party after its 1984 disaster. Sanford personifies the same liberal left-wing big spending party that the voters have known and rejected.

I was surprised by our local candidate, Marvin Blount, running for cover so fast. In his very brief campaign, he had promised a fresh view not burdened by past mistakes. Ironically enough, he would have had a better chance than Sanford, who has none.

The Republicans are delighted by the announcement and, if Sanford can get the political endorsement of the News and Observer and the Daily Reflector, we can be assured of a new Republican senator in November.

To the editor:

I read with a great deal of interest your article of Jan. 13 concerning a Houston lawyer's assistant who read "Fatal Vision" and is convinced that Dr. Jeffrey MacDonald is innocent of the murders of his pregnant wife and two daughters.

It is extremely difficult for me to believe that any person with a modicum of intelligence could come to that conclusion after reading the facts and evidence presented to the jury. The evidence against MacDonald is irrefutable and the Supreme Court has unanimously agreed that there are no grounds for a new trial.

Ironically, the man who committed this cold-blooded heinous crime will be eligible for parole in the early 1990s. Has justice been served?

I think not. It's time for the laws of our country to be changed so that a life sentence is exactly that and nothing less.

Soviets Seek An Impact

MOSCOW (AP) — The new Kremlin proposal to end the threat of nuclear war in 15 years was timed and presented by Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev to gain maximum impact.

Moscow's official press quickly followed up by asserting on Thursday that the next move was up to the United States.

The three-stage plan repackaged Kremlin arms reduction proposals, offered a step-by-step timetable and reiterated that the United States must abandon "Star Wars" research before arms cuts can start.

In presenting it, Gorbachev again showed his flair for offering proposals in public to achieve the widest publicity and put the Kremlin position in the best light.

He issued a statement announcing the plan on national television Wednesday, the eve of resumption of the arms talks in Geneva. Kremlin negotiators formally presented the plan at Thursday's opening session.

In an interview Thursday, Secretary of State George P. Shultz said he welcomed the Soviet proposal but wished it "could have been made quietly and negotiated about."

The Soviet plan appeared to be a response to a comprehensive American proposal introduced in November at the arms negotiations. But Gorbachev preferred to go public with the Soviet proposals.

Since becoming Soviet leader in March, Gorbachev has worked hard on public relations. He has used television, the official Tass news agency and trips abroad to announce and promote Kremlin positions.

He has put his personal stamp on arms control statements in an effort to convince the West, especially Western Europe, that the Soviet Union is ready for serious negotiations and willing to present initiatives.

Last year Gorbachev announced a unilateral moratorium on nuclear tests. He contended the Soviet Union was willing to take the first step even if the American side was unwilling to go along.

U.S. officials said the Soviets had already carried out all of the nuclear tests they planned for 1985.

Now, Gorbachev has said the moratorium will be continued for three months and can be extended beyond that if the United States agrees.

He said, "We propose once again to the United States to join this initiative whose significance is evident to practically everyone in the world."

In the same way, Gorbachev has portrayed the Soviet Union as the initiator of detente and improved relations with the United States. He announced in an interview with the party daily newspaper Pravda in April that he had agreed to a U.S.-Soviet summit meeting at a time and place to be arranged later and was ordering a six-month halt to deployment of Soviet medium-range missiles in Europe.

On a visit to Paris in October, Gorbachev said the Soviet Union was proposing that both superpowers cut strategic nuclear missiles by 50 percent.

The Soviet press was quick to portray the new package of proposals as an initiative that tested American willingness to achieve disarmament.

"If the United States, as it has repeatedly affirmed, is dedicated to the goal of complete elimination of nuclear weapons everywhere, it now has a practical possibility really to engage in it," Tass said.

The news agency said world response "will undoubtedly make it possible to find out more clearly and fully who is indeed striving sincerely and consistently to put an end to the threat of nuclear self-annihilation and who, paying lip service to peace, in actual fact would like to work in the opposite direction, trying not only to carry on with the nuclear arms race on earth, but also to project it into outer space."

New Ball Game This Time

Terry Sanford's friends, who greeted his decision to run for the U.S. Senate with a tinge of regret for fear Jesse Helms' Congressional Club would savage him the way it did Jim Hunt, should cheer up. This is another year, an entirely new ball game and it's just possible that 1986 will see the Congressional Club get its comeuppance.

Sure Sanford is vulnerable to the type of character assassination that the Congressional Club practiced on Hunt so successfully. Sanford was a fine governor — among the top three of the 12 governors whose offices I covered for the Associated Press, but he will always be remembered as the governor who put the sales tax on food.

I can hear them now, those Congressional Club TV spots attacking Sanford's record. "High Tax Terry," they will say. "He put the sales tax on the food you eat. He took the bread right out of your children's mouths." They'll describe Sanford as a "liberal" and accuse him of being a renegade Southerner because he helped elect John F. Kennedy president.

But this is a new ball game because this year there is a primary contest for the Republican nomination for the Senate seat being vacated by John East. And the Congressional Club could come out of that contest with a bloody nose — a very bloody nose.

In my opinion, the club made a serious mistake when it chose to run a nonentity, David E. Funderburk, against veteran Congressman James T. Broyhill for the Republican nomination. If it had had any concern for the welfare of the Republican Party in North Carolina — a tender growth that needs all the help it can get — the club would have welcomed Broyhill, given him its endorsement, allowed Funderburk to return to his job as professor of government at Campbell College, and presented the Democrats with a united front that would have been difficult for Sanford or anyone else to attack. Instead, the club in its arrogance decided to give Broyhill the kind of treatment it used so successfully against Hunt and Robert Morgan. Now we have the spectacle of the Congressional Club and Funderburk seeking to paint Broyhill, a veteran congressman with an impeccable conservative record, as a flaming liberal.

In my opinion the gambit will fail, the Funderburk campaign will fall flat on its face and Broyhill will easily win the Republican nomination. I base this on the fact that Broyhill is an honored member of the Holshouser-Martin wing of the North Carolina GOP. These Old Line Republicans, in my opinion, constitute a majority of the state's registered Republicans. This is a primary election, remember, and Funderburk and the Congressional Club will not have the help of those who are registered Democrats but who voted Republican in sufficient numbers to defeat Robert Morgan and Jim Hunt.

Whether this scenario holds true remains to be seen, but any way you slice it, if the Congressional Club persists in its strategy of destroying Broyhill, it will emerge from the primary with egg all over its face. If it belatedly sees the error of its ways, decides to dump Funderburk and embrace Broyhill, it'll still have egg on its face, although possibly not as much.

If Sanford and Broyhill emerge as the Democratic and Republican nominees, politics in North Carolina should be the winner. The people will be able to choose between Broyhill, the conservative Republican with an excellent record in Congress, and Sanford, a moderate Democrat who was a top-notch governor and a fine president of Duke University for 17 years. Then, if Broyhill can manage to restrain the Congressional Club, the people may have the opportunity to evaluate the two men on their records. If they do that no one can complain.

Sanford, of course, realizes he will have to explain again — again, again and again probably — why he chose to ask the Legislature to restore the sales tax on food which had been exempted since the administration of Gov. J. Melville Broughton. He will say he saw it was the only practical way to finance his Quality Education Program which Dr. Frank Porter Graham described as the greatest advance for education in North Carolina history.

Even so, Sanford will have to display some of the quick wit and fast footwork he exhibited during his campaign for governor when one opponent accused him of playing Santa Claus and another charged he was promising "pie in the sky."

He replied with a quick grin that "if it's pie in the sky, let's put it in the oven and start cooking."

Sanford was painfully aware while governor that his proposal to place the sales tax back on food was not popular and that his critics were asking why he didn't call for a luxury tax instead of taking bread out of the mouths of children with the sales tax on food. He replied to his critics in an address at Smithfield while the 1961 Legislature was still debating the tax issue:

"If we tax bread, we will also be taxing cake. If we tax fatback, we will also tax caviar. If we tax cornmeal, we also will tax filet mignon.

"No one is going to go hungry because of this tax. But the children of North Carolina will go thirsty for quality education if we do not enact this program for better schools."

When their man is labeled "High Tax Terry," Sanford's backers should point out that when it was enacted in 1961, the food tax brought school teachers an immediate pay boost of 22 percent and hefty raises to other school personnel, that it enabled the state to hire 2,826 new teachers, and to provide principals with clerical assistance and to double the appropriation for school libraries. The Sanford program prompted the National Education Association to rank North Carolina as the pacesetter for the entire nation in the advancement of education.

In addition, the Sanford backers will be able to point out that the sales tax on food was much more far-reaching even than Sanford had imagined. They can point out that it helped the state to pile up huge surpluses in the general fund that have enabled all governors since Sanford to advance their programs with full confidence that there would be money in the state treasury to pay for them. For example, Gov. Dan Moore, Sanford's immediate successor, was able to say that his administration appropriated more money for the public schools than did Sanford. Without the sales tax on food he could not have done this.

But Sanford was not merely a one-program governor. The achievements of his administration in other fields — in higher education, industrialization, race relations, court reform, prisons, highway construction and highway safety and others — were nearly as impressive.

George Gallup

Poll

PRINCETON, N.J. — One-third (33-percent) of Americans predict an increase in strikes and industrial disputes during 1986, while 16 percent see a decrease and 44 percent little change.

Most pessimistic are blacks, with 49 percent anticipating labor upset in the coming year.

The labor outlook of Americans today closely parallels that of a year ago, when 32 percent predicted strikes and industrial disputes during 1985, 20 percent saw a decrease, and 38 percent felt there would be little change.

The expectations of U.S. citizens are similar to the average of persons in 36 nations recently interviewed by Gallup International Research Institutes. The 36-nation average: 36 percent predict an increase in strikes and industrial disputes, 18 percent a decrease and 36 percent little change.

In the industrial nations, those anticipating the greatest incidence of industrial strife are Greece (51 percent) and Ireland (45 percent).

Among the developing nations, pessimism runs highest in Mexico (67 percent predict 1986 will be a year of strikes and industrial disputes), Colombia (62 percent) and South Africia (whites only, 57 percent).

During the last weeks of 1986, Gallup-affiliated organizations in 36 nations interviewed representative samples of the public in each country. In the U.S. 1,008 adults, 18 and older, were interviewed by telephone during the period Nov. 11-18.

For results based on samples of this size, one can say with 95 percent confidence that the error attributable to sampling and other random effects could be 4 percentage points in either direction.

Roughly similar margins of error can be applied to the survey results from other nations in this survey.

In addition to sampling error, the reader should bear in mind that question wording and practical difficulties encountered in conducting surveys can introduce error or bias into the findings of opinion polls.

About Gallup International Research Institutes

Gallup International Research Institutes is a global survey research network providing research capabilities and facilities through its member institutes, or affiliates. For nearly half a century, GIRI has conducted research on an international basis serving a wide range of clients, including multinational corporations, national governments, universities, foundations and international institutions.

Gallup-affiliated organizations were in operation in half a dozen countries before the start of World War II, beginning with the U.S. Gallup Poll in 1935, and the British Institute of Public Opinion/Gallup Poll in 1938. GIRI was formally founded in May of 1947 with 11 member organizations. Today, GIRI consists of 39 affiliate members which conduct research in 86 nations on six continents.

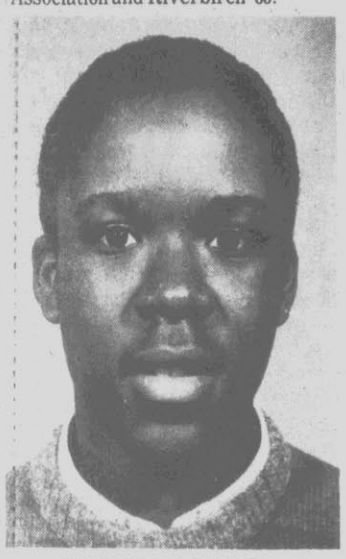
Hines Selected

J.H. Rose student Wiley Earl Hines has been selected to participate in the medical careers program at the Bowman Gray School of Medicine, Wake Forest University.

The program is an awareness project for minority high school students funded by a Robert Wood Johnson grant.

Hines is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Wiley Hines of 406 Sedgefield Drive. His activities at Rose include baseball, football, medical explorer scouts, Student Government Association and marching band. He has served as class president for four years and is currently junior class vice president. He is a Boy Scout, a member of the Greenville Tennis Association and Riverbirch '85.



WILEY EARL HINES

Hines participated in Duke University's Talent Identification program, the Scholastic Arts Program at Mars Hill College and a junior leadership conference at Benedict College in Columbia, S.C. He plans to pursue medicine as a career.

Council Sessions

The Greenville City Council will conduct a workshop Monday at 5:30 p.m. in the first floor conference room at City Hall.

Agenda items include discussion and consideration of the method of election study.

The City Council and the Pitt County Board of Commissioners will conduct a joint meeting Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

Conley Schedule

D.H. Conley High School will operate on a special exam schedule Monday through Wednesday, school officials have announced.

Exams will begin at 8:30 a.m. each day and end at 11:36 a.m. Students with special parental permission may leave at 11:36 a.m. but regular dismissal for those without parental permission will be at 12:15 p.m.

Annual Jelly Sale

The Greenville Jaycees will sell jelly this month to raise funds for the North Carolina Jaycee Burn Center in Chapel Hill.

The chapter has announced the appointment of Clyde Naylor as chairman of the local project.

The Greenville Jaycees, who have set a sales goal of 6,000 jars, have placed jelly for sale in the Harris supermarkets in Greenville, Ayden and Bethel, Piggly Wiggly, Overton's Supermarket and Farm Fresh.

The burn center, named in honor of the N.C. Jaycees who initiated the first statewide fund-raising drive, can accomodate up to 23 patients at a time. Located at North Carolina Memorial Hospital, the center is one of only 14 comprehensive burn care facilities in the country.

The North Carolina Jaycees hope to raise $5 million for an endowment fund to support the programs of the center.

Creche To Be On Display

A nativity scene that has caused considerable discussion in Europe and the United States will be on display in Joyner Library at East Carolina University from 2 p.m. Sunday until Saturday at 5 p.m.

Clay figures of Mary and Joseph and the Christ Child are surrounded by clay rockets and rubble symbolizing the threat of nuclear destruction. The infant is depicted protecting his eyes from glare and Mary reaching out to him and Joseph attempting to protect both of them from harm.

The creche titled "The Nuclear Creche" is the work of Berta Kals of Aachen, West Germany. It was shown first at the International Exhibit of Creches in Hofen, West Germany, in 1982 and was brought to the United States by Mel Goertz, a Vermont woman.

Part of the display is a book for comments which will be returned to the artist.

The creche has recently been in Chapel Hill and its Greenville visit is sponsored by the East Carolina University-Greenville Peace Committee and the Greenville Peacemakers.

Trustees Hold Executive Session

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The East Carolina University Board of Trustees heard reports from various board committees at a meeting Friday afternoon, but took no action before going into executive session to discuss personnel matters.

Friday morning, Chancellor John Howell said the board would discuss criteria for selection of a new chancellor for the university, the settlement of a suit brought against the university by former head football coach Ed Emory and the matter of alleged violations of NCAA rules during the time Emory was employed by the school, in the executive session.

Howell last year announced that he will retire on or before July 1, 1987, and the board is expected to become fully involved in the process of selecting a replacement for him in the near future.

Emory's suit against the university, which sought $1.2 million for breech of contract, was settled in November, when Emory agreed to accept $139,583, without interest, in 25 monthly payments. The settlement amount represents the balance of the salary Emory would have been paid had he remained employed as ECU's head football coach for the full term of his contract.

As part of the settlement, Emory agreed to submit to an oral examination, under oath, regarding his compliance with NCAA regulations during the time he coached at the university.

During the committee reports, Trustee James Wornom said the medical affairs committee reviewed the proposed East Carolina Medical Park plan recommended by a committee appointed by the Greenville City Council. The report recommends the creation of a 5,300 acre medical park to attract health-related industry and research to the area. The ECU School of Medicine and Pitt County Memorial Hospital would serve as cornerstones of the proposed park.

Athletic Director Ken Karr said the university has submitted a bid to host the Colonial Athletic Association baseball championships in the Spring, and reported that ECU — as directed by University of North Carolina system President William Friday — was one of 94 schools voting against modifications of NCAA rule 48, dealing with the eligibility of athletes. Karr said 206 schools voted in favor of indexing SAT scores and high school grade point averages as part of the eligibility process.

In his report to the board, Howell said "it was a good year at ECU in 1985," citing several accomplishments at the school during the past year.

He also said "we were very pleased" with a U.S. News and World Report survey which ranked ECU seventh among comprehensive universities in the southeast. Howell stressed that the ranking among the top 10 schools was "not a popularity contest," but was done by knowledgeable educators.

Howell also cited trustees for their increased involvement with the university. "As each day passes, I observe that the trustees are becoming more and more involved" and said such action "is a major development in this institution."

The chancellor told trustees that Edgar Loessin, chairman of theater arts at ECU has been nominated for the O. Max Gardner Award — the highest award which can be given to to a faculty member by the UNC system. Howell noted that ECU'S Francis Speight, Ovid Pierce and Stan Riggs are former recipients of the honor.

The next regular meeting of the board will be during the first week in March, Chairman Ralph Kinsey announced.

Moscow Said Willing To Pull Missiles If U.S. Does

By ALISON SMALE
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — The Kremlin will scrap its medium-range missiles in Europe if Washington does the same, but highly mobile SS-20 missiles would remain in Soviet Asia until the last stage of the new Soviet disarmament proposal, senior officials said Saturday.

Discussing Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev's new arms control proposals, the officials also confirmed that Moscow is offering for the first time to scrap superpower missiles in Europe without insisting on simultaneous elimination of British and French nuclear weapons.

But they said the plan called for Britain and France to hold their nuclear forces at current levels and eventually eliminate them.

Kremlin spokesman Leonid M. Zamyatin, First Deputy Foreign Minister Georgy M. Kornienko and the chief of staff, Marshal Sergei F. Akhromeyev, also said nuclear reductions depend on U.S. abandonment of research into a space-based defense system, known as "Star Wars."

Kornienko indicated that SS-20 missiles deployed east of the Ural Mountains would not be removed until the final stage of the proposal which was unveiled Wednesday.

This puts Gorbachev's plan at odds with President Reagan's so-called Zero Option proposal, which eliminates U.S. medium-range nuclear missiles in Europe only if the Kremlin scraps its SS-20s in both Europe and Asia.

Kornienko reiterated previous Soviet arguments that the SS-20s in Asia are needed to counter any nuclear attack from planes aboard U.S. aircraft carriers in the Pacific and based on land.

He countered Western arguments that SS-20s in Asia can quickly be moved to threaten Western Europe by suggesting the United States could redeploy Pershing 2 missiles in Europe just as swiftly.

Washington's refusal to drop space weapons research has been the main stumbling block to an accord at the arms control talks in Geneva.

Kornienko said Soviet linkage of a ban on space weapons to nuclear disarmament remained firm.

"This is not just an arbitrary linkage of different issues, not at all," he said. "We speak of an organic, I would say, intrinsic relationship."

Kornienko also indicated that Gorbachev's new proposal would not allow any space weapons research beyond limits already discounted in Washington.

The proposal calls for a three-stage plan to rid the world of nuclear weapons by the year 2000.

Major features were the new position on European nuclear missiles and an announcement Gorbachev was extending a five-month moratorium on nuclear tests until March 31. He renewed pleas for Washington to join the moratorium.

The hint of flexibility on the European missile issue seemed designed to get West Europeans to put pressure on Reagan to abandon the Star Wars research.

Shuttle Finally Touches Down At Edwards

By DENNIS ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — The space shuttle Columbia ended its hard-luck mission Saturday with a faultless pre-dawn touchdown in the California desert, two days late and a continent away from its intended landing site.

After a record seven launch postponements and three wave-offs from the Kennedy Space Center in Florida, where it was supposed to have landed Thursday, the shuttle landed at 8:59 a.m. EST on a floodlit concrete runway in the Mojave Desert.

Florida had been the target again Saturday, but a threat of rain for a third straight day forced shuttle commander Robert Gibson to keep the ship in orbit for an extra swing around the Earth for the California landing.

"Columbia performed magnificently," said Jesse Moore, who administers the shuttle program for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Moore said the refurbished Columbia, which was out of service for two years for overhaul, suffered no ill effects from the six-day voyage, and the seven-member crew appeared to be in good condition.

An initial inspection showed the shuttle suffered minimal damage, only losing about a dozen heat-resistant tiles on re-entry.

Despite the failure of a device that was to enhance photographs of Halley's comet and of some of the mission's experiments, Moore said the mission achieved 90 percent of its objectives.

"It sure took us a number of tries to get up and a number of tries to get down, but it surely was worth it," Gibson said.

In an interview on his return to Houston on Saturday, astronaut George Nelson, the astronomer who tried taking pictures of the comet, said neither he nor his colleague Steve Hawley could see the comet because it has gotten too close to the sun from the perspective of space, obscuring the comet's light.

"Steve and I knew right where to look and we used binoculars but neither one of us could see it," he said.

When the next shuttle, Challenger, takes off Jan. 25 carrying Christa McAufliffe of Concorde, N.H., the teacher selected to go into space, the comet will be even closer to the sun.

"They won't be able to see it all," said Nelson, an astronomer.

Columbia's crew included Rep. Bill Nelson, D-Fla., flying as a congressional observer.

"To see this magnificent flying machine and experience how this is all integrated ... is a story I can take back to Congress," Nelson said before leaving with the rest of the crew for Johnson Space Center in Houston.

The delay caused by the launch and landing postponements will force NASA workers to scramble to get it prepared for a March 6 flight. That mission is to carry a telescope for observations of Halley's comet.

NASA officials hoped to cut turnaround time by landing in Florida, doing away with the need to ferry the shuttle 3,000 miles across the country atop a modified Boeing 747.

Touchdown was originally set for Friday, then was moved up to Thursday, partly because of the need to ready Columbia for the March mission.

But rainy weather blocked Florida landings on Thursday and Friday and again Saturday.

Columbia could have landed at Edwards on Thursday or Friday, but NASA kept the shuttle in space in hopes that the weather would clear at the Florida spaceport.

A landing in the rain could damage Columbia's heat-resistant tiles, and that would further delay preparations for the next flight, Moore said.

"We do not want to take any risks," Moore said. "This is a very valuable machine. It's an asset to the American people."

A Florida landing would have helped NASA meet its record schedule of 15 shuttle launchings this year.

Moore, speaking at a Florida news conference Saturday, said NASA would trim optional projects and pre-flight procedures to meet its schedule. But he said no shortcuts would be taken that would hinder safety.

"We will not short-circuit the integrity of the check system," he said. "We will not sacrifice that to hold the schedule."

Last week, a statement from NASA said the March launch opportunity would be missed if Columbia had to land in California. But NASA backtracked Friday, saying the flight could be achieved, even if delayed a few days.

"We're determined to have that March mission," said NASA's acting administrator, William R. Graham. "We'll put our sequence planning and our processing in such a way we have the shuttle as close to the March 6 launch date as possible."

Columbia, originally set for launch Dec. 18, went through a record seven launch date delays before lifting off Jan. 12, and it was the first shuttle to experience two landing postponements.

The astronauts successfully launched an RCA communications satellite, photographed potential sources of ultraviolet radiation in space and conducted medical and other experiments.

Several experiments failed, including two materials processing machines in addition to the Halley's photography device.

The mission cost NASA about $150 million, not counting the delays which cost an additional $1.2 million in lost propellant and overtime pay. The landing in California added $1.5 million to the tab, NASA spokesman Dick Young said.

The rest of the crew members were Franklin Chang-Diaz, the first Hispanic-American astronaut; Charles Bolden and Robert Cenker.

mander Elie Hobeika was a serious blow to the Dec. 28 peace accord signed in Damascus, Syria, by Hobeika, Berri and Druse chieftain Walid Jumblatt.

The president vetoed the pact, mainly because Hobeika signed for the Christians and because it gives the Moslems an equal share of power. That would end Christians' domination since Lebanon's independence from France in 1943.

Gemayel regained his stature as leader of Lebanon's 1.5 million Christians after defeating Hobeika in fighting this week that pitted Christians against Christians. Hobeika fled to exile in France.

But Berri, who heads the dominant Shiite Amal militia, and Jumblatt, leader of the Progressive Socialist Party, have made clear they will not negotiate with Gemayel.

Jumblatt told reporters Saturday, "The last chance for peace in Lebanon has been lost" and called for "a general boycott" against Gemayel.

Jumblatt and Berri control an estimated 12,000 fighters and have about 200 Soviet-made tanks. They and their allies ring the Christian heartland north and northeast of Beirut.

the board of governors is facing."

Howell said, "It's to the advantage of our programs to have students from out-of-state. Some become North Carolina residents and contribute a lot to the economy. It gives our programs better reputations if they go back home and are successful as ECU graduates. We've always operated on the assumption that it's advantagous for our educational system and the state to have students from a broader area.

"It's down to the question now of how much we can afford," Howell suggested.

Angelo Volpe, ECU's vice chancellor for academic affairs said "up to this point it's (ECU's out-of-state enrollment) pretty much been in line with out-of-state enrollment at other campuses....15 to 17 percent."

But Volpe suggested that this year's high of 24 percent of the freshman class is due to "the reputation that East Carolina University has...the quality of education."

Volpe also suggested that "in many states the cost of higher education has really skyrocketed. Many students from those areas look toward the University of North Carolina (system) for the quality and for the favorable comparison to out-of-state costs here and in-state tuition in their own state."

"I'd simply re-enforce what Dr. Volpe said," Howell commented. "Our programs are attractive to students. They are attracted to this university. The U.S. News and World Report rated East Carolina as one of the top 10 comprehensive universities in the southeast."

Howell noted that any reduction in the number of out-of-state students will be "gradual." And he said "I think that with the economy of North Carolina developing, in-state enrollment will increase" to prevent a drop in the total number of students.

"Our overall enrollment (of out-of-state students) is not much above what has usually been regarded as reasonable. But if we continue to admit 24 percent (out-of-state) each year, eventually we'd have 24 percent of the student body" non residents.

According to Billy Helton, associate director for institutional research at ECU, 2,506, or 17.9 percent of the 14,117 students enrolled at East Carolina last Fall were from out of state.

Broken down by classes, Helton said the 1,110 out-of-state freshmen accounted for 7.9 percent of the school's total enrollment, while the 545 sophomores accounted for 4 percent of total enrollment. The 396 out-of-state juniors accounted for 3 percent, while the 319 seniors enrolled in the fall amounted to 2 percent of total school enrollment.

The three out-of-state medical school students accounted for .1 percent of total enrollment, while the 130 out-of-state masters degree candidates accounted for .9 percent.

Helton said the 1,110 non-resident freshmen accounted for 44 percent of the total number of out-of-state students on campus, while the 545 sophomores accounted for 22 percent of the non-residents.

Over the past five years Helton said, Virginia has contributed more non-resident students than any other state, followed in turn by New Jersey, Maryland and New York.

Enrollment figures from the Fall semester show that 1,022 Virginia residents were attending East Carolina, 305 from New Jersey, 235 from Maryland and 111 from New York.

Rescue Work On Hold As Fighting Sees An Increase

By The Associated Press

Fierce fighting Saturday between warring Marxist factions in South Yemen forced Soviet, British and French ships to abandon their efforts to rescue foreigners and retreat from the port of Aden, the capital, diplomats reported.

An Israeli short-wave radio monitor in Tel Aviv said President Ali Nasser Mohammed flew from Aden to Marxist-ruled Ethiopia on Saturday in his personal airplane.

Persian Gulf shipping executives had said earlier that Mohammed was seriously wounded in an assassination attempt Monday when the revolt began.

Diplomats said fighting intensified Saturday between military units loyal to the president and radicals opposed to Mohammed's reported plans to liberalize the economy and improve relations with pro-Western Arab countries.

The Bahrain-based Gulf News Agency said as many as 9,000 people had been killed or wounded in Aden alone and there also was fighting in the north of this small country on the southeastern coast of the Red Sea. It attributed its report to official sources in San'a, the capital of North Yemen. South Yemen has a population of about two million.

Israeli radio monitor Mickey Gurdus told The Associated Press that Mohammed's plane was allowed to land at the airport at Addis Ababa, the Ethiopian capital, only after the pilot told the control tower his passenger was the president and identified the plane as South Yemen 001, Mohammed's personal aircraft.

There was no independent confirmation of the landing or that Mohammed was aboard the plane.

The aircraft was turned away the first time it approached Addis Ababa because the airport control tower said it would take three hours to get authorization for the pilot to land, according to Gurdus, who said he monitored the conversation.

It flew to San'a where it landed and then received clearance and returned to the Ethiopian capital, about 90 minutes away, arriving shortly before 10 p.m. (3 p.m. EST), Gurdus said.

North Yemen and Ethiopia are separated by the 30-mile wide Red Sea channel of Bab al Mandab.

Gurdus is a private citizen with long experience monitoring the Arab world by short-wave radio.

Diplomats reported that troops loyal to Mohammed were advancing on rebel strongholds in the northern province of Lahej Saturday.

"The situation in Aden has suddenly worsened, and the evacuation (of foreigner) had to be interrupted," said an Arab diplomat in contact with his country's mission in the South Yemeni capital.

Soviet and Western European citizens fled pick-up points on beaches as renewed fighting broke out, Western and Arab diplomatic sources said, speaking on condition of anonymity.

The refugees were believed to have sought shelter in the Soviet Embassy compound, they said.

The Soviet Union, which signed a 20-year friendship treaty with South Yemen in 1979 and has important bases in Aden and nearby Socotra Island, coordinated the initial evacuation of Soviet, British, French, West German and Italian dependents, the sources said.

The Soviets reportedly tried to bring the warring factions together for peace talks, but the Kuwait News Agency said Friday the talks failed because Mohammed insisted all coup leaders be exiled.

In London, British Broadcasting Corp. radio said Queen Elizabeth II's royal yacht Britannia was carrying 300 people of 25 nationalities rescued Friday and at dawn Saturday to Djibouti, an east African country 160 miles away.

A British Defense Ministry spokesman said that at dawn Saturday, small boats from the queen's yacht picked up people from a beach east of Aden, where 140 people had been rescued the previous evening.

The spokesman said heavy shooting broke out and the evacuation was halted. Three British and several French warships were also reported standing by.

Most of the 70 to 80 Britons in South Yemen were evacuated, said a British Foreign Office spokesman.

Five West Germans remain unaccounted for and are believed to have taken refugee in a hotel and a brewery, a West German Foreign Ministry spokesman said in Bonn.

Three Soviet freighters brought about 1,000 refugees, mostly Eastern European and some Arabs, to Djibouti earlier Saturday, reported the BBC.

The United States has no diplomatic ties with South Yemen, and State Department officials in Washington say they have no "confirmed reports" of Americans there.

Diplomats in non-Marxist neighboring North Yemen said Mohammed had mustered troops to attack tribal warriors north and east of Aden and rebel strongholds in Lahaj, 32 miles north of the capital.

Professor Says South Africans Feel Revolution Is Inevitable

By TOM MINEHART
Associated Press Writer

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — While many Christians in South Africa are committed to working peacefully to bring full citizenship to the black majority, many fear violent revolution is inevitable, says a Davidson College religion professor back from a tour of the troubled nation.

"We talked to people who believe things have gone so far that they don't think anything is possible except violent upheaval," said Alexander McKelway, who visited South Africa Nov. 22-Dec. 7 with nine other U.S. academics. "One great hope for South Africa is the commitment of a large number of Christians ... to the movement to end apartheid and bring about a just society.... But I think they're becoming more and more discouraged as the government does not proceed more quickly with reform."

McKelway, who is also a Presbyterian minister, said the crisis in South Africa appears in many ways a magnified version of what happened in the U.S. South from the mid-1940s to the mid-1960s. Like black and white Southerners — and unlike participants in most other revolutions — most South Africans consider themselves Christians, he said.

"You've got some people who are just a little liberal, and some who are radicals, conservatives and radical conservatives," he said. "You've got some racists and some who are not, but still believe in segregation. No one denomination doesn't have both sides.

"Even within the white Dutch Reformed Church, there are some ministers who are preaching against apartheid," he said.

As in the South, where the Rev. Martin Luther King was the most influential civil rights leader, the most influential South African reformers are clergymen, said McKelway. They include Alan Boesak, a man of mixed race who is president of the World Alliance of Reformed Churches, and Bishop Desmond Tutu of the Anglican diocese of Johannesburg.

Meanwhile, some conservative white Christians are using the Bible to justify racism, he said. Some interpret the Old Testament story of the Tower of Babel to prove that God wanted different ethnic and linguistic groups to live separately.

The major difference between South Africa and the U.S. South is that the dominant whites are only a quarter of the population in South Africa, he said.

"There's a great debate within the church (in South Africa) over the extent to which the church ought to commit itself to a political party, like the African National Congress," which is waging a guerilla war against the white minority government, said McKelway. "There are those who think the church ought to stand apart from any party loyalties and simply continue to work for change and justice. My own views are the latter, shared by many who are working very hard and at some risk to themselves."

But that may change if the government doesn't announce major reforms and plans to negotiate with black revolutionaries during President P.W. Botha's state of the nation speech at the end of this month, he said.

"If they don't, I think they're going to find more resources made available to the ANC and may well be faced with increasing military violence in their own country with guerilla and terrorist activity," he said.

One point in favor of peaceful change is the support of the South African business community, said McKelway. In fact, his trip was sponsored by the South Africa Foundation, a group of reform-minded businessmen.

McKelway said he and some other professors on the tour feared at first the foundation would try to manipulate their opinions. But the group let them contact people at all levels of society, including black leaders out of favor with the government, people who had been jailed, children who had been beaten by the police and journalists who had been harassed by the government.

He said the foundation also hoped to persuade the tour members that divestment was not the way to pressure the South African government into reform. But members left with the belief that economic sanctions "have to be continued until the government makes really radical changes — it's the only weapon to get the attention of important segments of society," he said.

McKelway said the trip intensified but did not change his previous views on South Africa.

"I wasn't aware of how intransigent and self-defeating the government's policies are," he said. "They seem remarkably stupid. The government does want faster change, but the government is afraid of a conservative backlash. And they're withholding from the Afrikaaners the kinds of information they need to understand why the government needs to move forward."

Not only has the government banned much reporting of civil strife, it has also destroyed the United Democratic Front — the largest organization supporting moderate means to reform, he said.

Still, McKelway said he's "cautiously optimistic" that reform will evolve peacefully in South Africa.

"I think a Christian minister and theologian has to be optimistic," he said. "If one believes in the operation of God's grace in history, you have to believe it can happen."

State: Kids With AIDS No Threat

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina children with AIDS safely can be allowed to attend public schools in regular classrooms, state officials said Friday.

In guidelines on acquired immune deficiency syndrome sent to local school boards and health departments, the state Division of Health Services said children with AIDS represent no threat to others because the disease is not spread easily.

"AIDS is not transmitted by casual contact," said Dr. Rebecca Merriwether, head of the division's communicable disease section. Studies have show that AIDS is transmitted through the blood or from sexual contact, she said, not by touching, coughing or tears.

Local school boards can accept or reject the guidelines, Ms. Merriwether said, but state officials hope their recommendations will be considered.

"We're hopeful that they will accept them and follow them," she said. "I certainly hope that schools don't choose to categorically deny school to children with AIDS."

Dr. Ronald H. Levine, the state health director, said no school-age children are among the 83 reported cases of AIDS in North Carolina.

The guidelines say it might be appropriate to remove children with AIDS from the classroom if they cannot control their body functions, have open wounds that cannot be covered or have behavorial problems that might lead them to bite or attack others.

The guidelines say children who become so ill from AIDS they cannot come to schools can be given instruction at home or provided with other alternatives.

The N.C. School Boards Association this week released a draft policy that is almost identical to the state guidelines. That draft was sent to local school boards for consideration.

Publisher Dies

RALEIGH (AP) — Publisher Roy Rabon of Raleigh died Friday of a heart attack. He was 49.

Since 1980, Rabon had been publisher of The Leader Magazine, a Research Triangle publication.

Rabon, a native of Marion, was a former managing editor of The Asheboro Courier-Tribune, and was a reporter for The News & Observer of Raleigh and The Durham Morning Herald.

FLORAL VALENTINES THAT LAST AND LAST

A collection of floral Valentines that last and last are being featured for Valentine's Week this year by Cox Floral Service, 117 W. 4th Street and 638 E. Arlington Blvd., Greenville. Valentine's Week is Feb. 10-14.

Leading the floral parade is the FTD Hearts 'n' Flowers™ Bouquet, an arrangement of red, white and pink flowers in a bright red acrylic box that can be used later for jewelry, sewing needs and other little treasures.
The flowers include carnations, daisies and pompon chrysanthemums. The box has a hinged lid with a sparkling white carrying handle and lock hasp.

The FTD Crystal Hearts™ Bouquet features the same flowers and colors, plus variegated red and white carnations, in a lead crystal vase. The vase, which can be reused for flowers, plants, candy and snacks, has a circle of hearts etched into the crystal along its scalloped rim.

Both bouquets come with a heart-shaped red card wishing "Happy Valentine's Day" and carrying instructions on how to care for the flowers.

These are just two of a wide selection of Valentine gifts in a range of prices to suit any budget available at Cox Floral Service, Inc.

Moonshine Raids No Longer Commonplace

CHARLOTTE (AP) — After a week of around-the-clock surveillance, a dozen officers grabbed a man who had come to check on an Iredell County still, smashed a hole in the oak mash barrel and let the clear "white lightning" run out.

It was once a commonplace scene, but officers say moonshine raids like the one this month in Iredell County are becoming more of a rarity.

"It used to be pretty regular," said Iredell County Detective Sgt. Cecil Cook. "We were way out of practice. But it comes back to you."

For decades, Wilkes County and northern Iredell County were reputed to be the national hotbed of moonshining.

But the still broken up this month was the first in Iredell County in more than a year, Cook said. In neighboring Wilkes, no still has been seized since December 1984.

"We hardly have any reports at all," said Wilkes County Detective Nick Nixon. "You're talking about a whole different time than you were 20 years ago."

In the 1950s and 1960s, raiding stills was a routine job for federal agents and local law officers. But in July 1979, the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms closed its Wilkesboro office.

Bob Powell, a former federal alcohol agent based in Wilkesboro from 1968 to 1975, said his tenure in the four-county area wasn't as wild as the 1950s, but officers had all they could handle.

"If you were in law enforcement and wanted to suppress the liquor traffic, then this was the place to be," said Powell, who now owns a real estate office in North Wilkesboro. "It was just like throwing a kid into an ice cream factory. You could pick and choose cases."

Law enforcement officials say the decline in moonshining can be attributed to changes in the economy and social conditions, their enforcement efforts and a new generation that has not taken much interest in learning the art of moonshining.

State Alcholic Beverage Control stores have opened in Wilkesboro, North Wilkesboro and Statesville in the last 20 years, cutting the demand for illegal liquor.

And officials say the jump in sugar prices in 1974 was disastrous to the moonshining business, which uses sugar as a major ingredient. Although sugar prices dropped in 1975, many moonshiners had already gotten out of the business, officers said.

Some replaced moonshine with another illegal activity — marijuana growing.

"Stills sort of got obsolete," Cook said. "They got into marijuana and found it more profitable."

"If you can make a good white liquor," Cook said, "there's always been a market for it."

Tutu Feels Negotiations Critical

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Archbishop Desmond Tutu believes South Africa is "on the verge of catastrophe," and predicts the white minority government faces a violent end if it doesn't open negotiations.

"I have said that unless international communities, especially America, pressure South Africa so we can negotiate, the only way forward is to overthrow by force," Tutu said Friday. "I wouldn't like to do it that way, but we may have to. And, I hope I'll be around to pick up the pieces."

Tutu, the 1984 winner of the Nobel Peace Prize, is scheduled to speak at Duke University in Durham, N.C., Sunday at 8 p.m.

The speech, sponsored by the North Carolina Council of Churches, the North Carolina Episcopal Diocese and Duke Chapel, is part of a three-week American by Tutu to raise money for the South African Council of Churches.

Tutu said at a press conference Friday that the situation in South Africa has deteriorated rapidly, and if the violence doesn't end by the end of March, he will call for punitive sanctions against his homeland.

"We really have one last chance to prevent catastrophe at home," Tutu told a group of business executives Friday. He said he didn't receive any promises from the companies who do business in South Africa, but that "it was a very good meeting."

Tutu also received an honorary doctorate of divinity degree Friday from Trinity College. The institution has $11 million invested in companies that do business in South Africa, said Kathy Frederick, a Trinity spokeswoman.

Asked why he didn't mention the issue of divestment in relation to Trinity's portfolio, Tutu said, "I know when to be direct and when to be apparently gentle."

Mistakes Costly

LEXINGTON, N.C. (AP) — The city of Lexington lost "tens of thousands of dollars" in potential interest income during fiscal 1984-85 because of accounting mistakes, an outside auditor says.

A report from Daniel and Brown, P.A., a Lexington accounting firm, said the city's finance department had lapses in keeping the books balanced. In some instances, accounts were never been balanced during the fiscal year, which ran from July 1984 through June 1985.

Eddie G. Carrick, the accountant who headed the city audit, said Friday that most of the city's accounting problems began after a computer was installed in the finance office. The previous year's audit revealed few problems, he said.

Reagan, Gray Differ On Gains

By The Associated Press

President Reagan, looking forward to Monday's federal holiday in honor of the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., contended Saturday that blacks have "shared widely" in the economic expansion during his administration, but a Democratic congressman said blacks are worse off.

The Ku Klux Klan, meanwhile, returned to its birthplace to march in protest of the holiday honoring the slain civil rights leader.

"The answer to the question, 'How are blacks doing in America?" is better than ever before, but not good enough," Reagan said in his weekly radio address.

"If we continue to allow the economy to expand and continue to work for a more perfect society, then people of all color will prosper, and isn't that what Dr. King's dream and the American dream are all about?" the president said.

In the Democratic response, Rep. William Gray of Pennsylvania said blacks had fallen back in five years of Reagan's administration.

"We are producing fewer jobs in the first five years of your administration than in the previous one. Thus black adult unemployment stands at 15.6 percent today when in 1978 it was 12.3 percent. Black family median income is 56 percent of white family income," Gray said.

"Thirty-two percent of black families lived in poverty in 1980. Today 42 percent of black families live in poverty."

Reagan quoted King in support of the president's opposition to racial quotas to atone for past discrimination.

"We are committed to a society in which all men and women have equal opportunities to succeed, and so we oppose the use of quotas," Reagan said. "We want a color-blind society. A society, that in the words of Dr. King, judges people not by the color of their skin, but by the content of their character."

Reagan's Cabinet has been debating changes in a 1965 executive order and barring the Labor Department from using goals and timetables in pushing federal contractors to hire more minorities and women.

At several appearances this week marking King's Jan. 15 birthday and the federal holiday on Monday honoring him, Reagan has either refused to comment on the dispute or said it had not reached his desk.

"They praise ... King more than they do any king or queen," said James R. Venable, who spoke to about 75 people at the three-hour rally. Venable, 81, of Stone Mountain, Ga., said he had been a Klan member since 1923. field named for a Confederate war hero.

The original Ku Klux Klan was formed in Pulaski on Dec. 24, 1865, by community leaders who feared losing control of local government to former slaves and Northerners in the wake of the Civil War.

In King's hometown of Atlanta, a day-long symposium on poverty and world hunger was followed by a gala "Salute to Greatness" dinner honoring former President Jimmy Carter, Mayor Andrew Young and Coca-Cola President Donald Keough.

Mack Will Pick New Location For Facility

ALLENTOWN, Pa. (AP) — Mack Trucks Inc. will build a new plant elsewhere, rejecting a union cost-cutting proposal aimed at preventing the loss of an estimated 1,800 jobs in the area, the company announced Saturday.

The nation's No. 2 heavy truck maker said a proposal by the United Auto Workers was unacceptable because it would not cut the new plant's costs to a level "substantially equivalent to those that could be realized at an out-of-state location."

Company spokesman William McCullough said no timetable was set to decide on a location for the new plant, which would employ about 1,000 people and is scheduled to be operating by mid-1987.

Mack, which has operated in Allentown since 1905 and is the area's largest employer, plans a modern $80 million assembly plant to replace its 60-year-old plant, which employs about 1,800 people. The company has said its plant at nearby Macungie, whis employs about 1,600, would not be affected by the decision.

According to the union, the company demanded last month a seven-year contract cutting the average hourly wage from $13 to $9.15, with the only pay raises being cost-of-living increases. Mack also wanted substantial changes in work rules, the union said.

The UAW responded with a plan that would save the company more than $90 million annually, according to union international representative Jack Derry.

UAW officials said Thursday its counteroffer called for employees to invest up to 6 percent of their pay in Mack securities to help finance the new plant.

But "we made it clear to them that if they want wage and benefit cuts that they will not get them," said William Casstevens, the union's vice president for Mack Trucks.

Record Coffee Crop

WASHINGTON (AP) — The world coffee crop for 1985-86 is estimated at a record high of 98.6 million bags, up 9 percent from last season, the Agriculture Department said Friday.

Officials said the current estimate is about 1 percent above the previous record crop of 98.2 million bags harvested in 1981-82. A bag of green, unroasted coffee weighs 60 kilograms or about 132 pounds.

Ministers Call For Japan To Increase Imports

By TOM RAUM
AP Economics Writer

CORONADO, Calif. (AP) — Japan must import far more than it has to date if world trade equilibrium is to be restored, the trade ministers of the United States and the European Common market are cautioning.

"It seems to me the government of Japan could do more to open up their markets to a whole host of goods," U.S. Trade Representative Clayton Yeutter told reporters in advance of Saturday's final session in a three-day, trade conference.

In a separate briefing, Willy deClercq, vice president for external relations for the European Community, said: "Discontent in the European Community is the same as in the United States."

"The Japanese should know that impatience is growing. Discontent is real," he added.

Japanese officials at the trade talks, led by Trade Minister Michio Watanabe, have said the Japanese government is doing what it can to open more Japanese markets, pointing to recent programs designed to boost imports.

But deClercq and Yeutter said that these programs are not enough and that more is needed.

"There is an unequal share of the burden between the three great economic, industrial and trading powers of the world. The lack of equilibrium is causing great concern," deClercq said.

The talks, which also include Canada, have been held here to set the stage for an upcoming new round of international trade talks under the 90-nation General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT).

Those formal talks are expected to get under way later this year.

In addition to the four-way talks, each party has been holding one-on-one sessions with each of the other four.

The Common Market held its meeting with Japan on Friday. The United States has already had one, on Thursday, and planned another on Saturday.

Yeutter said that he told Japanese Trade Minister Watanabe at the Friday session that the United States would not seek to persuade Japan to keep its voluntary auto export restraints in place once they expire shortly.

"That is a decision of Japan, not of the United States," Yeutter said.

He said the first session with the Japanese was more "a discussion of macroeconomics" than a hard-hitting talk about trade differences.

Yeutter said that other trade talks between the two governments have produced some recent breakthroughs, including recent action that will allow sales of more U.S. leather products in Japan.

However, Yeutter said that he is not satisfied that Japanese officials are doing enough to help right that nation's trade surplus with the United States, which soared close to $50 billion last year.

"We still have a long way to go," Yeutter said.

Yeutter said that Watanabe "feels strongly that we need to follow through with reductions in our fiscal deficit" as a step toward levelling out trde with Japan.

The United States' $200 billion-plus annual budget deficit has been blamed for keeping the value of the dollar unrealistically high on foreign markets, making U.S. goods in Japan expensive and Japanese goods here less costly.

Although the value of the dollar against the yen has plunged more than 20 percent since last February, it still remains relatively high.

Donna Reed Laid To Rest In Los Angeles Ceremony

BY BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Donna Reed, who portrayed a wholesome American wife and mother in a 1960s television series, was praised at a memorial service as "a woman of hope, vitality and verve" who faced death bravely.

About 50 onlookers watched Friday as a handful of celebrities filed into the Beverly Hills Presbyterian Church for the ceremony.

"I'll always remember her as a wonderful woman and as my wife in 'It's a Wonderful Life,'" actor James Stewart said later. "I don't know of anybody who could have played the role better. She was absolutely marvelous."

Miss Reed's years during the golden era of MGM were represented by Oscar winner Greer Garson ("Mrs. Miniver") and swimming star Esther Williams.

Also attending were the two children of "The Donna Reed Show," Paul Petersen and Shelley Fabares, along with actresses Eva Marie Saint, Maria Windsor and Patty Duke.

Susan Howard, a member of the "Dallas" cast, was the sole representative spotted by reporters of the television series from which Miss Reed was fired last year. She had played the mother of J.R. Ewing for a season during the illness of Barbara Bel Geddes.

The service was conducted by Rev. James H. Morrison, who told of a visiting Miss Reed last Sunday night. "She was obviously ill, but she was not acting like an ill woman," he said. "She was a woman of hope and vitality and verve, a lady of grace, a lady of life.

"Over the years through her upbringing in Iowa and through the triumphs and disappointments of life, she learned that life was a gift."

Members of the family attending the services included her husband, former Army Col. Grover Asmus, sons Tony and Tim Owen, and daughters Penny Stigers of Seattle and Mary Anne Owen, of San Francisco, and two brothers and two sisters.

Car Ads Were A Hoax

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Commercials on several local radio stations described the Stardrive 2000 as a car of the future that needed no gasoline, required service every 200,000 miles and could accelerate from zero to 50 mph in 5.2 seconds.

The price was less than $8,000 and the car was to be available Feb. 1 "at a dealer near you."

Sound too good to be true? It was.

The Stardrive 2000 was unmasked Friday as an advertising experiment conceived and sponsored by the Portland Area Radio Council, which hoped it would show how effective radio is as an advertising tool.

Friday, after a crush of press inquiries and pressure from the Oregon attorney general's office, the council began broadcasting spots acknowledging that the car did not exist. The ads unveiling the hoax had not been scheduled to air until next week.

"We are in the middle of looking at the situation," said Jan Margosian, consumer information coordinator in the financial fraud division of the attorney general's office.

She said the advertising campaign for a nonexistent product appeared to violate various provisions of the Unlawful Trade Practices Act, which permits fines of up to $25,000 per violation.

The commercials ran dozens of times on various stations.

"Unfortunately, it was done to prove the effectiveness of advertising, but I'm afraid this is going to do the opposite," Margosian said. "It was pretty shocking to us because when we heard the advertising we wondered how they were going to prove those claims."

She said "not one person we asked believed it was a hoax. It was a very believable hoax."

Chapters Still To Be Written In Subway Saga

By RAYNER PIKE
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Thirteen months have passed since Bernhard Goetz fired an unlicensed pistol and wounded four young men he claims menaced him on a subway train, but the case against Goetz is far from being resolved.

The so-called subway vigilante won an important decision Thursday when a judge threw out attempted murder and assault charges against him.

In the first flush of victory after state Supreme Court Justice Stephen Crane's ruling, Barry Slotnick, Goetz's lawyer, said the worst was over. Goetz, who said he had armed himself without a permit for protection after an earlier mugging, said, "It means that the system will abandon the concept of prosecuting victims."

But Manhattan District Attorney Robert Morgenthau immediately said he would appeal the dismissal.

And a day after the ruling, Slotnick predicted, "I have a very strong feeling that the district attorney is going to abandon proper caution and proceed with another grand jury."

The case already has been before two grand juries. The first panel indicted Goetz only on weapons charges and sparked widespread public criticism — Goetz is white and the wounded youths are black.

But many in New York and around the nation applauded the 38-year-old electronics technician as standing up to criminals.

The district attorney was urged by black leaders to pursue the case. The Rev. Herbert Daughtry, president of the African Peoples' Christian Organization, said Crane's decision "sends a signal that if you are white you can do almost anything to blacks and the law enforcement apparatus is going to stand behind you."

Crane let stand lesser charges against Goetz — reckless endangerment and illegal weapon possession, which are punishable by prison terms of up to four and five years, respectively. A hearing on those counts was scheduled for Tuesday. The dismissed charges carry 25-year maximum sentences.

Slotnick said Morgenthau was pushing on because of a desire to get Goetz, a belief shared by a lawyer on the other side.

Attorney William Kunstler, who represents Darrell Cabey, one of the wounded youths, said Morgenthau has been playing to public opinion throughout the case.

"When Goetz was a big hero, (Morgenthau's) initial objective was to get rid of it as soon as possible, get him indicted only for the gun charges," said Kunstler. "But when things changed and people thought Goetz might be a little psychotic and dangerous, he resubmitted it."

Public sentiment began to swing away from Goetz with the revelation that he had shot Cabey a second time, saying, "You don't look too bad, here's another."

Kunstler said he thinks the case should go to trial to educate the public "to think twice about shooting too quickly."

"It was pretty scary when they made a hero out of a vigilante," he said.

Goetz shot Cabey, Barry Allen, Troy Canty and James Ramseur on Dec. 22, 1984. He fled, but surrendered to police in Concord, N.H., on Dec. 31.

The wounded youths refused to testify before the first grand jury without immunity. On Jan. 25, the panel charged Goetz only with weapons law violations.

The case was presented to a second grand jury in March, this time with Ramseur and Canty testifying that Goetz fired when they did no more than ask him for $5. Attempted murder, assault and reckless endangerment charges were returned.

Crane held Thursday that the prosecutor failed to properly instruct the second grand jury about when the law permits someone to use a gun in self-defense.

The judge also said Ramseur and Canty may have committed perjury.

Cabey, permanently disabled by his wounds, told an interviewer in November that his three companions had planned to rob Goetz. Canty was quoted by a police officer as having said immediately after the shooting, "We were gonna rob (Goetz), but the white guy shot us first."

Crane ruled that if Morgenthau tries for new indictments, Goetz could testify with limited immunity that would protect him from having to talk about having bought handguns.

This means Goetz would have a chance "to properly explain his side of the story," said Slotnick, "which is what I asked for and was one of the things that was a legal impediment to the second grand jury."

Residents Boil Water

McKEESPORT, Pa. (AP) — About 45,000 residents in four western Pennsylvania communities will be urged to boil their drinking water at least until early next week, health officials said Saturday.

The order was imposed late Friday afternoon for McKeesport, Port Vue, Versailles and White Oak after giardia cysts were found in the McKeesport Water Authority.

The parasite, which has been traced to raw sewage, can cause giardiasis, a painful intestinal disease.

No cases of the illness have been reported, said Tom Griffiths, the water authority's executive director.

Three portable water tanks were sent to the Allegheny County communities Friday evening, and most stores quickly sold out of bottled water.

Residents were forced to boil their drinking and cooking water for three months in early 1984 when giardia cysts infiltrated the water system. During that outbreak, 344 cases of giardiasis were confirmed.

Authority Chairwoman Bonita Waters said she's puzzled by the origin of the cysts. The parasite was found in 1984 in the municipal reservoir, which has since been cleaned up.

Teen Deaths Puzzle Town

LEOMINSTER, Mass. (AP) — The mayor says that after meeting with about two dozen teen-agers he still remains puzzled about the rash of teen deaths that has struck this central Massachusetts city.

"I was surprised by their openness tonight," Mayor Richard J. Girouard told the Worcester Telegram following the Thursday meeting. "I think they were ready to talk and get their frustrations out. But I was trying to find out a direct reason for the suicides. It is very difficult. It's a complex issue."

"I have a position and the kids have a different position," he said. "They think it's the pressures and the depression. I can't believe that. I think the only difference between this generation and other generations is that there are more drugs and alcohol."

The teen-agers urged the mayor to set up a teen recreation center and asked for more dances at Leominster High School as an alternative to parties where drugs and alcohol are available.

Several of the teen-agers complained that media attention has hurt the school and the city of 34,500 people, where nine students have died over the past two years in suicides, accidents that police said may have been suicides, and a shooting.

"They keep bringing it up and it just hurts us more," said one girl, who was not named by the newspaper.

When the mayor asked the students what led young people to take their own lives, one boy said, "For some reason they think life is too tough, but no problem is too tough to overcome."

"You can't say why any one of these kids committed suicide, but the only ones who know for sure are the kids," one girl said. "You can't blame it on school, or drugs, or because they didn't get along with their mothers. Maybe it was everything combined."

The City has revised its noise control laws. For details on noise regulations and permits, call the Police Department at 752-3342.

Voyager May Help Unlock Secrets On Earth Origin

By LEE SIEGEL
AP Science Writer

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — When Voyager 2 hurtles past dark and icy Uranus this week, the spacecraft's instruments may reveal clues about the origin of Earth and the beginnings of life, astronomer Carl Sagan says.

"You learn about your own world by studying other worlds," said Sagan, 51, author of the best-selling books "Contact" and "Comet" (with his wife, Ann Druyan), and host of the 1981 public television series "Cosmos."

"You find out what else is possible, how else a world can be put together, how worlds evolve," he said. "If there's life here (on Earth) and not somewhere else, how come? You learn about life here even if you don't find it elsewhere, because you have to ask what went right here and wrong there."

Voyager 2, which was launched in 1977 and explored Jupiter in 1979 and Saturn in 1981, will fly within 50,600 miles of Uranus' cloud tops Friday, yielding more information about the seventh planet from the sun than has been learned since it was discovered in 1781.

On Thursday, the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, which operates America's unmanned space exploration program, announced that Voyager 2's television cameras discovered the six moons during the past two weeks, doubling the number of moons known to orbit Uranus. Voyager still may discover 18 more moons, scientists said.

Sagan, who directs Cornell University's planetary studies laboratory in Ithaca, N.Y., will spend the next six weeks at Jet Propulsion Laboratory as a member of the Voyager imaging team, analyzing pictures returned 1.86 billion miles to Earth by the probe's television cameras.

Rings of dust and ice encircling Uranus are similar to the vastly larger solar nebula — the huge, swirling disk of gas and dust from which the solar system and its planets formed 4½ billion years ago, Sagan said.

"Here at our doorstep are these beautiful ring systems of Saturn, Uranus and, to some extent, Jupiter," he said. "If we can really understand them, we have a real leg up in understanding our own planet's origins."

Sagan said Uranus' nine known charcoal-black rings and dark patches on its moons also could provide clues about the early stages of the process that led to life on Earth, although Uranus and its moons appear far too cold to harbor life.

Experiments in Sagan's laboratory showed that bombarding frozen methane with ultraviolet and other types of radiation produced a dark red organic chemical that matches the color of the dark material in the Uranian rings and moons.

If Voyager proves "that the dark stuff in the Uranus system is partly complex organic matter produced from methane ice, then we have a very nice story," Sagan said. "The point is that the irradiation of methane to make organic matter also happened on Earth ... and that is widely thought to be a critical step in the origin of life on Earth."

Boy, Mom Reunited

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An 8-year-old Polish boy who was separated from his mother when he was an infant was reunited with her at Los Angeles International Airport before television crews recording their meeting.

Jakub Potemkin wept as he hugged his mother for the first time Friday. Aleksandra Potemkin had not seen her son since he was 3½ months old, when she left Poland for the United States, said family spokesman Ralph Andrews.

"He's like a boy from another planet. This country is beyond his imagination," Andrews said.

When Jakub was an infant, his father got a job in the United States and his parents moved here. But the boy was left behind in Poland because the government feared defections and would not let the entire family leave, Andrews said.

Jakub's father died shortly after arriving, and his mother began a long struggle for political asylum.

She recently won asylum, and Jakub was granted a visa, Andrews said.

The family will try to win asylum too for Jakub, who has been enrolled in a Catholic grade school in the San Fernando Valley, he said.

Meanwhile, the boy will get a tour of Southern California.

"We're taking him to Gelson's Supermarket, McDonald's and Marineland, where Jakub will be kissed by Shamu, the killer whale," Andrews said.

Jakub's grandmother accompanied him to the United States and will return to Poland in about a month, Andrews said.

Former Official Dies

MOSCOW (AP) — Valerian A. Zorin, the tough-talking Soviet diplomat to the United Nations during the Cuban missile crisis in 1962, is dead, the Communist Party newspaper Pravda reported Friday.

It said Zorin died Thursday on his 84th birthday, but gave no cause of death. Zorin had been removed from key positions in 1971 and held the post of ambassador-at-large.

Pravda said Zorin was "highly valued" as a diplomat, but the obituary was signed by only three full Politburo members, while those for honored officials normally are signed by the full complement of the dozen or more Politburo members.

Tar Heels Christen Smith SAC

Hale, Daughtery Lift UNC By Duke

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — Steve Hale came in through the back door to christen North Carolina's new $33.8 million Dean E. Smith Student Activities Center.

Hale, 6-foot-4 senior, scored a career-high 28 points, and 6-11¾ center Brad Daughtery had another 23 to lead top-ranked North Carolina to a 95-92 Atlantic Coast Conference victory over No. 3 Duke before a capacity crowd of 21,444 at the new arena, named for the Tar Heels coach.

Hale started the second half with a steal and a layup, then shook loose for three back-door layups as the unbeaten Tar Heels broke the game open with a 16-5 spurt afer intermission. The run gave North Carolina a 64-48 margin, its biggest lead of the game.

During an ensuing timeout, the North Carolina cheerleaders ran across the court, carrying a streamer which said, "Dean's Dome — The Tradition Continues." The Tar Heels had posted a 169-20 record in 20½ seasons at their old home, Carmichael Auditorium.

But this opener was not easy. Several times, Duke rallied in the waning minutes, and the previously undefeated Blue Devils scored the game's final seven points to cut the final margin to three.

In explaining the easy layups, Hale said, "They were overplaying us. ... You have to give a good fake and go."

Smith said he talked about the play with his team at halftime, "and we thought we could get those back-door layups." He said "there was no particular reason" that Hale was the beneficiary of the play. "It's part of the offense, and whoever is in that position can get them," the Tar Heels coach said.

Hale said he and his teammates tried not to get caught up in the hype over the new arena and the dream matchup against Duke "because we've got too much of the season left to put all our marbles in one game."

North Carolina raised its record to 18-0 and 4-0 in the ACC, while Duke now is 16-1 and 4-1. The Tar Heels, who must travel to Marquette for a game Sunday, are one of only three remaining unbeatens in the nation. The other two are sixth-ranked Memphis State and No. 7 Oklahoma.

Duke Coach Mike Krzyzewski called the game "very physical" and said, "that's where we really got hurt. Today they were just a little too big, and it seemed like on some second and third shots where we would do a good job defensively, they would still come up with the ball."

Hale, who had been averaging 10.8 points a game, scored 13 points in the first half, and the Tar Heels led 48-43 at intermission. North Carolina had taken the lead for good with a 12-0 spree, aided by a technical foul call against Krzyzewski, that made the score 33-26.

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — North Carolina coach Dean Smith served as director and his players were the principal actors, leaving Duke to play the foil.

Later, however, the Tar Heels downplayed their 95-92 victory over the third-ranked Blue Devils as just another Atlantic Coast Conference basketball game.

"I think it was speical to open up with a win here," freshman guard Jeff Lebo said. "But we tried to take it like just another game."

Senior center Brad Daugherty, who scored 23 points and grabbed a game-high 11 rebounds, agreed.

"We thought all the hype before the game was out of bounds," Daugherty said. "We knew there was a lot of extenuating things going on around us, but we had to go out and play basketball."

Steve Hale keyed the Tar Heels, hitting 10 of 12 field goals for a career-high 28 points. He, too, said the pregame publicity was overdone.

"Prior to the game there was a lot going on. It was almost a carnival atmosphere," said Hale, who fouled out with 3:37 left.

"We tried not to build this up because there is too much of the season left to put all our marbles in one game," added Hale.

The hoopla surrounding the 21,444 seat arena began Friday night when it was named for Smith, who has compiled a 569-165 record in his 25th season as Tar Heel coach. The Tar Heels were scheduled to begin play in the $33.8 million arena in mid-

Rowsom's 25 Powers Wilmington

WILMINGTON, N.C. — Center Brian Rowsom scored a game-high 25 points and grabbed 11 rebounds to lead North Carolina-Wilmington to a 68-54 Colonial Athletic Association basketball victory over East Carolina Saturday night.

The Seahawks, 10-6 and 2-3, took a 14-5 lead with 15:03 left in the opening half and held the margin to 31-23 at intermission. Rowsom had 11 first-half points.

"I felt like we played well defensively," ECU Coach Charlie Harrison said. "Defensively we did what we had to, but their free throw shooting hurt us.

"Rowsom has come such a long way as a player; he poses problems for everyone.

"We've got to pick it up and go on from here; we're one game over the midpoint of the season, and we're tied with Wilmington."

The Seahawks upped the lead to 35-23 by scoring the first four points of the second half and the Pirates, 7-8 and 2-3, could get no closer than 10 points the rest of the way despite shooting 47.2 percent from the field. Wilmington's defense forced the Pirates outside, and ECU used most of the 45-second clock numerous times in the second half.

UNC-W shot 39 percent from the floor for the contest, but hit 24 of 30 free throws. East Carolina shot just seven free throws, connecting on four.

Top 20 Results.....B3-5

Bobby Jo Springer added 14 points for the Seahawks, while Greg Bender added 11.

Freshman Manuel Jones, starting at center in place of injured Leon Bass, led the Pirates with 17 points and Curt Vanderhorst added 14. Jones connected on eight out of nine from the floor and one of two free throw attempts, while Vanderhorst struggled with 6 of 13 from the field.

"I thought Manuel Jones played well considering he had to play 40 minutes in his first start," Harrison said. "Leon couldn't run well, and we had to go with the smaller team when we got behind. We wanted to play a more physical game on the boards, but we just got behind.

"They pushed our entry pass from the wing up higher and higher as the game went on."

Lady Pirates Win

East Carolina's Lady Pirates used three players in double figures to post their 13th victory of the season, handing the visiting University of North Carolina-Wilmington Lady Seahawks an 83-67 defeat Saturday night in Minges Coliseum.

The victory upped the Lady Pirates' overall record to 13-5 while improving their Colonial Athletic Association record to a perfect 3-0. ECU remains tied with James Madison for the top spot in the CAA standings after the Lady Dukes defeated William & Mary 70-44 Saturday.

Lisa Squirewell, who finished the night with 22 points, scored six of those in a 1:02 stretch to help the Lady Pirates to a quick 10-0 lead. But UNCW quickly closed that to three at 15-12, outscoring ECU 12-5 over a four-minute stretch following a timeout.

However, the Lady Pirates worked their lead to 12 points with 6:30 remaining in the first half on a Sylvia Bragg layup, making it 30-18. Bragg finished the night with 19 points.

ECU enjoyed a 44-30 halftime advantage, and quickly increased that to 18 points at 52-34 when Squirewell connected on a 15-foot jumper. ECU's lead hit 20 points at 62-42 on Gretta O'Neal's layup with 11:29 to play.

UNCW, however, put on surge of its own when the Lady Seahawks outscored ECU 8-0 from the nine-minute mark to 6:32, trimming ECU's advantage to 64-55. Wilmington drew even closer when Charlene Page connected on a baseline jumper to pull UNCW to within seven, 70-63.

However, that was the closest UNCW would get.

The Lady Pirates ran off nine unanswered points for a 79-63 advantage, with Squirewell and Bragg accounting for eight of those nine points.

"We're not ready for James Madison yet," said head coach Emily Manwaring. "Hopefully this game will wake us up and make us play at both ends of the floor. I was satisfied with 83 points, but a team like Wilmington should not score 63 points.

"They beat us down the floor on the fastbreak," Manwaring said. 'They came into our gym and beat us at our own game. We've been fighting pride on defense all year long. How can you go up 10-0 and then in 15 minutes let them score 30 points."

ECU held a slim 29-26 rebounding advantage, but went to the free throw line 34 times to UNCW's 14.

The game was the last of a six-game homestand for the Lady Pirates, who play their first road game since Dec. 30 Monday night at American.

Center Alma Bethea was the third Lady Pirate in double figures as the 6-0 center finished with 18 points. Leading scorers for the Lady Seahawks were Sissy Morse with 21 points and Phyllis Edwards with 19.

Binns' FTs Lift Pack By Wake

AP Sports Writer

GREENSBORO — North Carolina State basketball coach Jim Valvano was looking for a field goal, but what he got was two clutch free throws from Teviin Binns in a 45-44 victory over Wake Forest.

Binns sank his free throws with 12 seconds left to give the Wolfpack a two-game winning streak in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

"We didn't get the key bucket when we needed it," Valvano said, possibly in reference to the fact that the Wolfpack didn't get a field goal in the final 2½ minutes.

Valvano was also complimentary of Wake Forest.

"They never quit. They hung in there all the time," Valvano said. "They did the job when they had to."

Binns, a junior college transfer, was fouled by Dee Calvert in a scramble under the Wolfpack basket. He sank the free throws to push the Wolfpack edge to 45-42.

Paul Diebert missed a layup but Mark Cline hit the follow shot with five seconds remaining for what turned out to be the final score.

Ferrell's 21 Leads Tech By Clemson

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — Forward Duane Ferrell scored 21 points to pace four Georgia Tech players in double figures as the fifth-ranked Yellow Jackets defeated Clemson 82-71 in a rgionally televised Atlantic Coast Conference basketball game here Saturday night.

Georgia Tech is now 15-1 and 4-0 in the ACC while Clemson is 13-4 and 1-3 in the conference.

Senior guard Mark Price scored 17 points for Tech, center John Salley had 13 and forward Tom Hammonds had 12.

Forward Horace Grant led Clemson with 17 points and Michael Tait, a resrve guard, came off the bench to score 16.

With Salley hitting a basket and a three-point play in the first two minutes of play, Georgia Tech bounced out front 9-0 and was never in serious trouble except for a brief rally by the Tigers late in the game.

Tech stretched its early lead to 27-11 on a pair of baskets by Ferrell, a field goal by Hammonds and two baskets by Salley with 7:04 to to play in the opening half and led at halftime 43-32.

Clemson scored only two baskets in the first eight minutes of the second period as Georgia Tech pulled ahead 54-36.

Gomez Excited Over Lendl-Becker Final

NEW YORK (AP) — Andres Gomez of Ecuador is excited about Sunday's final in the $500,000 Nabisco Masters tennis championships — and he's not even in it.

"It's going to be a good match, one of the biggest matches in New York — bigger than the U.S. Open final," Gomez gushed after falling to top-seeded Ivan Lendl in Saturday's semifinal 6-4, 7-5.

The title match will feature two of the game's biggest hitters — Lendl and West Germany's Boris Becker. Becker advanced by outlasting Sweden's Anders Jarryd 6-3, 6-4.

"Lendl won the U.S. Open and Boris, Wimbledon," said Gomez. "It will be interesting to see this kind of match. Becker played him two months ago and it will be interesting to see how much Boris has improved since then."

The last time the two met was at Wembley in London, a five-setter that took nearly four hours to play. Lendl won that one, as he has the other two matches the two have had, but just barely.

"I tried to beat him from the baseline, and I almost did it," Becker said of that match with Lendl. "I lost 6-4 in the fifth set. So I know that I can also play against him from the baseline, but I'm probably going to go to the net more than I did in London.

"It's maybe easier."

Lendl said he would spend Saturday night watching a tape of that match. But asked if he could say what his strategy for Sunday's match would be, he replied:

"I could, but I wouldn't. I just want to keep it to myself and use it to my best advantage."

Sunday's nationally televised title match on the indoor carpet at Madison Square Garden is scheduled to begin at 12:30 p.m. EST. The victory is worth $100,000, while the runnerup will collect $70,000.

Although the 18-year-old Becker and Lendl, the world's No. 1-ranked player, were favored in their semifinal battles, neither one had an easy time of it.

Lendl broke Gomez's service to begin the match. And when he held serve at love, beginning with the first of his 11 aces, it appeared he would easily crush the Ecuadorian, a last-minute replacement when fourth-seeded Jimmy Connors was forced to withdraw because of illness.

Gomez lost his serve again in the fifth game when he double-faulted at break point. Lendl then held for a 5-1 lead and a seemingly quick trip into the final.

It was not to be.

Gomez, a powerful left-hander with a small but vocal group of supporters cheering him on, matched Lendl stroke for stroke, power for power, slice for slice.

He broke Lendl's service at love in the eighth game when the Czech was serving for the opening set. And when he held his own serve at love, he had pulled to 5-4.

Lendl, however, stopped any thought Gomez may have had of a first-set comeback by racing out to a 40-love lead, then, after dropping a point, closing out the set with a service winner.

The battle had just begun.

With the small band of Ecuadorians sitting high up in the arena chanting "Gomez, Gomez" and ringing a cowbell, the left-hander battled Lendl on even terms through the first 10 games. But, aided by a double-fault — the fifth for Gomez in the match — Lendl finally broke service in the 11th game and served for the match.

It was to be the longest game of the match, a 14-point battle with both players racing around the court making seemingly impossible retrievals. At 40-15, Lendl had double match point, but Gomez saved them both.

Two deuces later, Lendl reached match point for a third time. And for a third time, Gomez rose to the challenge, winning a stirring exchange when Lend's forehand drop volley was just wide.

Lendl double-faulted, giving Gomez the advantage. Then he rifled a forehand deep into the corner that Gomez couldn't reach, bringing the game back to deuce.

His 10th ace gave Lendl his fourth match point. And this time, finally, he closed out the 1-hour, 40-minute battle when Gomez netted the service return.

"He's hitting the ball really hard," Gomez said of Lendl. "His main weapon is that his serve is so big and that puts a lot of pressure on you when you serve.

"I think I stayed more with him today, but if he's serving well, it's hard."

Becker, a flamboyant redhead from Leiman, West Germany, had the Madison Square Garden crowd chanting "Boris, Boris" as he advanced to the championship match in this, his first trip to the Masters. And he didn't disappoint his fans, many of whom cheered him on in German.

Duran Training For Comeback Attempt

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — His finances exhausted after three years of high living in retirement, former boxing champion Roberto Duran is training hard in his comeback attempt.

But Alberto Aleman Jr., chairman of the World Boxing Association championship committee, said that if Duran wins, promoter Bob Arum would give him the chance to fight the winner of a bout between John Collins and Robbie Sims March 9 in Las Vegas, Nev.

Collins is ranked No. 5 among middleweights by the WBA and Sims No. 7.

So, Duran — who was fondly called "Manos de Piedra" or "Hands of Stone" because of his powerful punch — is training every day at the Rodrigo Colon Sanchez Gymnasium in the impoverished San Miguelito neighborhood where he grew up.

At 34, he says he is down to 175 pounds from the 200 pounds he weighed a couple of months ago, but has another 15 pounds or so to lose.

Rypien Keys North Win

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Mark Rypien of Washington State wasn't even scheduled to play in the game, but injuries to a trio of quarterbacks opened the door for him.

"I don't think I did anything to hurt myself," Rypien said of his potential draft slot in the National Football League after he fired three touchdown passes Saturday to lead the North to a 31-17 victory over the South in the 37th Senior Bowl game.

"I showed 'em I could (put) touch (on) the ball," Rypien said after hitting on 13 of 17 attempts for 168 yards.

Rypien wasn't on the original Senior Bowl roster, but added when two other North quarterbacks — Robbie Boscoe of Brigham Young and Jack Trudeau of Illinois — pulled out of the game with injuries.

He was thrust into Saturday's action on the North's first possession when starter Mike Norseth of Kansas was knocked out of the game with a mouth injury.

North Coach Dan Reeves of the Denver Broncos said Rypien "showed great poise and threw the ball extremely well.

"They played like they'd been together all season," Reeves said of his squad.

"To sum up the game, the North just dominated the second half," said South Coach Leeman Bennett of Tampa Bay.

Each member of the winning team was paid $2,250 and the losing team members each got $2,000.

The game's Most Valuable Player award, an automobile, went to Napolean McCallum of Navy, who rushed for 91 yards on eight carries and also caught three passes for 31 yards, including one touchdown.

Two of Rypien's TD passes came in a span of 49 seconds of the fourth quarter and put the North in control.

Rypien gave the North a 21-10 lead when he fired a 36-yard scoring strike to Rennie Benn of Lehigh with 9:20 left in the game and he stretched the advantage to 28-10 with 8:31 to go with a 40-yard completion to Reggie Bynum of Oregon State.

Bynum's score came on the first play after Joe Kelly of Washington intercepted a pass by the South's Jeff Wickersham of Louisiana State.

Rypien entered the game on the North's first offensive possession after Mike Norseth had engineered a drive from the 21 to the South 36. Norseth had to have 40 stitches in his mouth after being injured on a 9-yard scramble to the 36.

Rypien then completed the 79-yard drive with an 11-yard touchdown pass to Napoleon McCallum of Navy.

The North's other touchdown came on a 2-yard plunge by Darryl Clack of Arizona State in the third quarter, capping a 68-yard drive that saw Rypien complete 4 of 5 passes for 40 yards, including a 15-yarder on which McCallum made a one-handed catch.

Ken Harper of Duke kicked a 24-yard field goal for the North with 1:47 left in the game.

The victory ended the South's two-game winning streak in the all-star event and cut the South's series lead to 18-16-3.

The South's scoring came on John Lee's 53-yard field goal with four seconds left in the first half and on a pair of pass receptions by Louisville's Ernest Givins — 20 yards from Pat Washington of Auburn and 32 yards from Wickersham.

Heisman Trophy winner Bo Jackson of Auburn was held to 48 yards rushing, but did scamper 48 yards after taking a short pass from Washington to set up a touchdown.

Jordan Tops Rampants

Both Rose squads are now 4-3 on the season and host Kinston, Goldsboro, North Durham and Ravenscroft in a five-way meet Feb. 1 at Minges.

Louisville Upsets Syracuse

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Guard Milt Wagner scored 24 points as No. 18 Louisville took an early lead and stubbornly resisted several Syracuse comebacks for an 83-73 victory over the fourth-ranked Orangemen in a nationally televised college basketball game Saturday.

The victory upped Louisville of the Metro Conference to 11-4, while Syracuse of the Big East suffered its second loss in a row after winning its first 13 games.

Louisville sailed out to a 19-9 lead with 12:18 left in the first half behind Wagner's outside shooting and a tenacious full-court defense that forced several Syracuse turnovers and took the Orangemen out of their offense.

The Cardinals, with some strong bench play from freshman forward Tony Kimbro, stretched that lead to 41-21 with 3:23 left.

Guard Dwayne Washington started a Syracuse comeback with a three-point play at 2:53 and the Orangemen trimmed Louisville's lead to 13 at the half.

Louisville used its fast break to extend the lead to 51-34 at the start of the second half.

The Orangemen cut Louisville's lead to 63-57 with 7:43 to play, but Kimbro and Wagner responded with two quick buckets to put the Cardinals back in control for the rest of the game.

Wagner's running mate, Jeff Hall, added 16 points as the two played havoc with Syracuse's zone defense most of the game. Kimbro and Herbert Crook added 11 each for Louisville.

Washington paced Syracuse with 16 points, while Wendell Alexis and Rafael Addison added 14 each.

Louisville, playing for most of the game without its big man, 6-foot-9 freshman center Pervis Ellison, shot 55.8 percent from the field for the game, including 61 percent in the first half.

The Cardinals also hit 25 of 33 free throws, to 11 of 19 for Syracuse.

Michigan (2).....61
Iowa 57

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Richard Rellford scored six points in a 12-5 run during a five-minute stretch late in the game to rally second-ranked Michigan to a 61-57 victory over Iowa in the Big Ten Conference Saturday.

Michigan, bouncing back from Thursday night's 73-63 loss to Minnesota, wiped out a five-point Iowa lead with its charge and sent its record to 17-1, 5-1 in the conference. Iowa fell to 13-5 and 3-2.

Center Roy Tarpley led Michigan with 18 points and 16 rebounds despite picking up his fourth foul with 8:24 left, and Rellford finished with 15. The Wolverines were in foul trouble for most of the second half but were able to compensate with a 45-27 rebounding edge.

Andre Banks led Iowa with 15 points, but missed two free throws that could have cut Michigan's lead to one point with 31 seconds left. Gerry Wright, Al Lorenzen and Bill Jones each scored 11 points for the Hawkeyes.

The score was tied at 28-28 at halftime. Neither team led by more than four points until Roy Marble hit a jump shot to cap a run of nine straight Iowa points that gave the Hawkeyes a 47-42 lead with 7:10 left. Rellford countered with a rebound shot for Michigan, but Jones made two free throws at the 6:16 mark to return the Iowa lead to five points, 49-44.

Michigan then began its game-winning charge.

Iowa St.....82

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Forward Darryl Kennedy scored 30 points, and point guard Linwood Davis added a career-high 19 as No. 7 Oklahoma beat Iowa State 95-82 in Big Eight Conference basketball Saturday.

Kennedy, who also grabbed 13 rebounds, got 22 of his points in the second half as the Sooners held off a late Iowa State rally.

Oklahoma, 17-0 and 2-0 in the conference, won for the 43rd straight time at home. Iowa State fell to 11-5 and 2-1.

With Kennedy scoring 10 points and Davis eight, Oklahoma opened its widest lead, 77-61, with 8:11 to play. But the Cyclones ran off 10 straight points in the next three minutes to make it 77-71 with 5:05 remaining.

Kennedy, the second-leading scorer in the conference with a 21.3 average, answered with six of Oklahoma's next eight points in an 8-2 run that made it 85-74 with 2:04 remaining. The Cyclones pulled within six on a three-point play by Jeff Grayer and a layup by Tom Schafer, but got no closer.

Iowa State stayed with Oklahoma early, but a 10-0 run midway through the first half gave the Sooners a 12-point lead that they held at halftime. Iowa State committed 13 of its 18 turnovers in the first half.

Dave Sieger scored 13 points, and Anthony Bowie and Tim McCalister had 12 each to give Oklahoma five players in double figures.

Wingate Powers Hoyas Past Seton Hall 82-72

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — David Wingate scored 22 points and ignited a 18-3 Georgetown spurt with 7:36 remaining as the 15th-ranked Hoyas downed Seton Hall 82-72 in a Big East Conference game Saturday.

Reggie Williams added 21 points for Georgetown, which has not lost to Seton Hall since the the 1976-77 season, winning 16 straight games. The victory raised the Hoyas' record to 13-3 overall and 4-2 in the Big East.

But it was a hard-fought victory as Seton Hall rallied from a two-point halftime deficit and held a 69-64 lead with 7:36 remaining after a basket by James Major.

However, that was the last point the Pirates scored for a while.

Wingate hit a layup that started the Hoyas on a 16-point run over the next seven minutes. Horace Broadnax brought Georgetown within two points on another layup and Michael Jackson gave them the lead for good with a 20-foot jumper from the top of the key.

Broadnax and Perry McDonald both added 10 points for Georgetown.

John Morton and Andre McCloud both had 16 points for Seton Hall, which has lost seven straight games. The Pirates now are 9-9 overall and 0-5 in the league. Major added 14 points.

Georgetown blew a 12-point lead it built in the opening minutes with a pressure defense and 14-2 spurt that featured six points by Broadnax.

Over the next nine minutes, Seton Hall learned to handle the press and outscored the Hoyas 19-8 to close within 22-21 on a foul shot by Morton with 7:57 to go in the foul plagued half.

Georgetown, which never trailed in the half managed to open a 36-28 lead with 3:33 to go, but an 8-2 spurt sparked by five points by Morton got the Pitates within 38-36 at intermission.

Iona 58
Army.....54

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — Iona made four free throws in the final minute of play to for a 58-54 victory Saturday over Army in a Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference basketball game.

Army, down by seven at the half, erased a 50-48 Iona lead with a run of seven straight points to ahead 52-50 with 5:36 remaining. It was Army's first lead since a 15-14 advantage midway through the first half.

Iona, winning its third straight to stand at 7-10 overall and 3-1 in the MAAC, hit four straight points to regain the lead at 54-52, but Army retaliated with a basket by Darren Blackwell to tie the score at 54-54 with 2:12 still remaining.

John Kijonek broke the deadlock and gave Iona the lead for good when he converted two free throws with 59 seconds remaining. Army, working the clock down to the final seconds, lost its chance to tie the game when a desperation shot by Kevin Houston was off target with eight seconds left.

Iona's Nestor Payne then scored his only points of the game when he hit two free throws with six seconds to go to give Iona its final margin.

Richie Simmonds and Kijonek set the scoring pace for Iona with 16 and 15 points, respectively, while Bob Coleman added 12. Houston and Blackwell led Army, 6-7 overall and 2-2 in the conference.

Kansas Downs Cowboys

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Sophomore forward Danny Manning hit all 10 of his field goal attempts and scored 21 points as eighth-ranked Kansas crushed Oklahoma State 95-72 in Big Eight basketball Saturday.

Manning scored the first two points of the game for the hot-shooting Jayhawks, who jumped to 14-4 lead with 15:41 left in the first half. Kansas, which made 21 of 26 field goal attempts in the first half for 80.8 percent, built a 30-14 lead on Manning's seventh field goal midway through the half.

The Jayhawks, 15-2 overall and 2-0 in the Big Eight, then broke the game open late in the first half and held a 45-24 lead on Cedric Hunter's basket just before the intermission. Kansas led at halftime 45-26.

The closest the Cowboys got was within 11 points, 31-20, on a basket by 7-foot-4 center Alan Bannister, who scored a career-high 22 points.

Ron Kellogg had 16 points for Kansas while Calvin Thompson had 14 and Archie Marshall 10.

Terry Faggins and Andre Ivy each added 13 points for the Cowboys, who dropped to 9-6 and 0-2.

Fullerton St.....51

FULLERTON, Calif. (AP) — Guard Freddie Banks scored 20 points and forward Anthony Jones added 14 and a team-high six rebounds Saturday to lead 10th-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas to a 62-51 victory over Cal State Fullerton in a Pacific Coast Athletic Association college basketball game.

Cal State Fullerton pulled to with seven points, 50-43 with 2:00 to play, but the Rebels hit all 10 free throws down the stretch, including all six by center Richard Robinson, to put the game away.

Forward Armon Gilliam scored 13 points for the Rebels, who improved their record to 6-0 in the PCAA and 17-2 overall.

Forward Henry Turner scored 15 points and had a game-high eight rebounds to lead Cal State Fullerton, which fell to 3-4 in the conference and 10-9 overall. Guard Alexander Hamilton and forward Kerry Boagni each scored nine for the Titans.

Pirate Swimmers Dunk Seahawks

WILMINGTON, N.C. — East Carolina swept the men's and women's meets against UNC-Wilmington Saturday in Colonial Athletic Association action.

The ECU men took a 73-42 victory over the Seahawks, while the Lady Pirates posted a 77-34 win. The Pirates are now 6-2 on the season, while the ECU women are 9-1.

"This is the finest duel meet I've been involved with in my six years at East Carolina," ECU Coach Rick Kobe said. "We have never swam as fast as a total time as this before. Everybody had a great meet. We dominated a good conference opponent."

UNC-Wilmington's men are now 4-4 overall, with the women 2-6.

Walker, Bennett Lead Cats

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Kenny Walker, virtually unstoppable in the first half, scored 25 points, and Winston Bennett added 16 Saturday to power 11th-ranked Kentucky to a 72-55 Southeastern Conference basketball victory over Florida.

The victory was the fourth straight for Kentucky, 14-2, and enabled the Wildcats to retain sole possession of first place in the SEC at 5-1. The loss was the third straight for Florida, 8-5 after a promising 3-0 start in conference play.

Walker scored 18 of his game-high total in the first half when Kentucky built a 12-point lead and watched most of it dissipate before pulling away again in the closing minutes before intermission.

The Wildcats scored 12 straight points after falling behind 2-0 and led 18-6 after Walker, who hit 11 of 17 shots from the field, canned a 15-footer.

Vernon Maxwell, who led Florida with 16 points, and reserve guard Ronnie Montgomery keyed a burst that helped the Gators trim the deficit to 25-24 before Walker, who also had 10 rebounds, took command and sent Kentucky on its way to a 36-28 halftime lead.

The 6-foot-8 senior scored the Wildcats next six points and Bennett — the game's leading rebounder with 11 — poured in Kentucky's last five points before halftime.

Kentucky ran off nine of the first 11 points scored in the second half and held Florida without a field goal for nearly five minutes while hiking its advantage to 47-30 with 16:18 remaining.

Florida, led by Maxwell, cut the lead to 10 points with 8:43 to go, but two free throws by Roger Harden, one by Ed Davender and a Bennett layup pushed Kentucky back into a 56-41 lead with a little less than seven minutes left.

Davender added 12 points for Kentucky.

Montgomery came off the bench to score 12 points for the Gators, but Kentucky held Maxwell's high-scoring backcourt mate, Andrew Moten, to four points, 12 below his average.

Boston College.....87
Ohio St.....74

BOSTON (AP) — Senior forward Roger McCready equalled his career high with 29 points Saturday as Boston College outmuscled Ohio State under the boards for an 87-74 nonconference basketball victory.

McCready was joined by four other starters in double figures as the Big East Eagles posted their 14th victory in the last 16 appearances in Boston Garden, about seven miles from the BC campus.

Center Troy Bowers connected for 16 points, freshman forward Steve Benton 14 and guards Dana Barros and Dominic Pressley 10 each as BC improved its overall record to 11-5.

Ohio State, 9-6 overall and 3-2 in the Big Ten, jumped to a 4-0 lead, fell behind by as much as five points, then rallied briefly for a 23-22 advantage. The lead was the Buckeyes' last as the Eagles shot ahead 44-38 at halftime.

In the first half, McCready had 18 points, and Benton, making his first intercollegiate start, contributed 10, all in the game's first six minutes. Barros had eight points and Barros and Pressley just 2 each at the intermission

Ohio State was unable to get closer than four points the rest of the way as BC broke away from a 54-50 lead on a three-point play by McCready and a layup by Pressley.

The Buckeyes were led by Brad Sellers with 20 points, Dennis Hopson with 18, Jay Burson with 16 and Jerry Francis with 11.

Notre Dame Thumps UCLA

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — David Rivers scored 21 points, including five free throws in the closing two minutes, and powerful Tim Kempton added 20 as No. 13 Notre Dame defeated UCLA 74-64 Saturday in a nonconference college basketball game.

UCLA's Montel Hatcher scored a game-high 22 points for the Bruins. Reggie Miller, the No. 6 scorer in the nation with a 24.5 average going into the game, finished with 17 points for the Bruins after being held to only six in the first half.

The Bruins pulled to within 67-64 with 1:35 remaining on a lay-in by Jerome "Pooh" Richardson after Rivers hit a pair of free throws.

UCLA fouled Rivers three times in the closing minute as the Irish worked the 45-second shot clock to its advantage. Tim Dolan of Notre Dame controlled the ball after Rivers made the first free throw, then missed the second, in each of the first two fouls.

Rivers was fouled a third time with 22 seconds left. He hit the first shot, then missed the second, but Notre Dame's Ken Barlow tipped the ball in for the final score.

Notre Dame led 39-27 at the half powered by Kempton, who scored eight of his points in the half, and an aggressive inside game.

Donald Royal and Mark Stevenson of the Irish played oppressive defense that buried the outside shooting game of Miller and Hatcher and held both scoreless for the first five minutes.

The lead changed hands four times during the early minutes before Notre Dame could take advantage of its size and bring the slender Bruin squad inside.

The 6-foot-9, 245-pound Kempton hit a lay-in at 15:29 off a pass from Rivers, giving Notre Dame a 10-7 lead, then followed seconds later with another lay-in from a Barlow pass.

Kempton scored Notre Dame's next two points on a jumper for a 14-9 lead after Hatcher scored his first basket at 14:30 on a jump shot from the right side.

The Irish built the first-half margin to 14 late in the half, 37-23 on an eight-foot jumper by Barlow.

UAB (12).....61

ROSEMONT, ILL. (AP) — Marty Embry scored 17 points and Rod Strickland added 15 Saturday night to lead DePaul to a 70-61 college basketball upset of 12th-ranked Alabama-Birmingham.

Strickland, a freshman, directed a patient DePaul offenye'that opened up passing lanes to Embry beneath the basket.

On defense, an aggressive zone denied scoring opportunities to Jerome Mincy, a 225-pound forward, who had 12 points for UAB. James Ponder led UAB with 16.

DePaul took a 33-22 halftime lead as Strickland ran the passing game. Embry opened the second half with three baskets from underneath, and UAB Coach Gene Bartow signalled for a timeout to regroup.

The Blazers came back with six points, but a long jump shot by Strickland quelled the uprising. Seven minutes later, DePaul had moved to its biggest lead at 54-38.

DePaul is now 10-5, while Alabama-Birmingham fell to 16-4.

LSU (14).....84
Vanderbilt.....67

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Sophomore guard Ricky Blanton scored 16 points Saturday night to lead 14th-ranked Louisiana State to an 84-67 Southeastern Conference basketball victory over Vanderbilt.

Vanderbilt, getting a game-high 22 points from freshman forward Bud Adams, played the Tigers even early in the first half, tying the score three times before LSU moved out to a 34-28 halftime lead.

The victory improved LSU's record to 16-2 overall and 4-2 in conference play, and dropped Vanderbilt to 9-6 overall, 3-3 in the SEC.

Don Redding added 14 points for LSU, Nikita Wilson 12, John Williams 11 and Anthony Wilson and Derrick Taylor 10 each.

Cincinnati.....107
Va. Tech (16).....104

CINCINNATI (AP) — Senior forward Myron Hughes hit a career-high 30 points, including a pair of field goals in the second overtime that helped the University of Cincinnati upset No. 16 Virginia Tech 107-104 Saturday in Metro Conference basketball.

Hughes hit a seven-foot jumper to give Cincinnati a six-point lead 98-92 at the start of the second overtime, and the Bearcats stayed ahead the rest of the way.

Senior guard Dell Curry scored a career-high 41 points to lead Virginia Tech, including a pair of free throws that cut the UC lead to 105-104 with 48 seconds remaining. But forward Ken Henry sank two free throws with 13 seconds to play to snap Virginia Tech's six-game winning streak.

Cincinnati controlled the boards 55-37.

The Bearcats improved to 6-8 overall and 2-3 in the conference. Virginia Tech fell to 14-3 overall and 2-1 in the Metro.

Henry hit two free throws with 19 seconds left in regulation to tie the game 88-88 and send it to overtime.

Center Brian Helm hit a field goal and a pair of free throws for UC, and Curry and center Dave Burgess had field goals to keep the score knotted after the first overtime at 92.

Cincinnati quickly took command in the second overtime, running off six straight points on a dunk by Helm, a layup by guard Tony Wilson and Hughes' jumper.

Bradley (20).....71
Tulsa.....58

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — Sophomore guard Hersey Hawkins scored 24 points and senior guard Jim Les added 11 points and 10 assists Saturday to lead 20th-ranked Bradley to a 71-58 Missouri Valley Conference basketball victory over Tulsa.

The win, Bradley's ninth in a row, gives the Braves an 18-1 overall record, and 5-0 in the conference. The Golden Hurricane, led by David Moss' game-high 31 points, fell to 13-4 overall and 3-2 in the MVC.

Tulsa opened the game with hot shooting by making seven of its first 10 shots to lead 15-7 with 12:27 remaining in the first half. The Braves ran a 19-8 streak for a 26-23 lead with 4:10 remaining in the first half. Bradley had a 32-29 lead at halftime.

Tulsa made its first four shots in the second half, all by Moss, to take a 37-34 lead with 16:35 remaining. The teams exchanged baskets until the 10:16 mark when Tulsa's junior guard, Byron Boudreaux, hit a jumper for a 45-41 lead.

Bradley then came back with a run of 16 unanswered points as its defense shut down Tulsa for seven minutes. The Braves held a 57-45 lead with 3:39 remaining and coasted to victory.

freshman Rod Watson, but Bolton missed the front end of the one-and-one. Diebert grabbed the rebound and fired a pass to Tyrone Bogues, who in turn passed to Cline. But Cline's jumper glanced off the rim and wouldn't have counted had the ball gone in.

"Our kids played hard and they certainly played very well," Wake Forest coach Bob Staak said of his team, which dropped its fifth straight game and fell to 6-11 and 0-6 while N.C. State climbed to 11-5, 3-2 in the ACC.

"The last couple of weeks have not been very easy — a lot of things have happened to us," Staak said. "We kept our heads up and executed very well."

The Demon Deacons remained patient, however, and got to within one three times, the latest at 43-42 when Cline scored on an off-balance jumper with 30 seconds left before Binns won the game for N.C. State.

McMillan led the Wolfpack with 10 points.

Watson scored 15 and Cline added 14 for Wake Forest.

November against UCLA, but construction delays pushed back the opener until Saturday.

□ Duke forward Mark Alarie made the first varsity basket in the center at the 19:14 mark with a hook in the lane.

□ The Tar Heels scored their first bucket at 17:54 on a dunk by Warren Martin, who started his first game ever.

"This is a great place to play, definitely," said guard Kenny Smith, who scored 11 points and dished out six assists. "A lot of things were unfamiliar to us. It really didn't feel like we had the home-court advantage."

Lebo, who also had 11 points, agreed, but said it will take a little longer for the Tar Heels to feel comfortable in the arena.

"We had a couple of weeks of practice in it," Lebo said. "But it will take a few more practices and games for it to feel like a home court for real."

Duke, which had not even shot at the basket until the pregame warmups Saturday, didn't seem bothered by the new facility.

"I don't think that really affected the game," guard Tommy Amaker said. "It was a fun game to play, but it wasn't that much fun because we lost."

West Craven Holds Off D.H. Conley

By JIMMY DuPREE
Reflector Sports Writer

HOLLYWOOD — Jesse Campbell stole the ball, drove the length of the court for a dunk and added two free throws on a flagrant foul to propel West Craven to a 46-40 victory over D.H. Conley Friday in Coastal 3-A basketball action.

Campbell's acrobatics didn't take place in the closing moments; it happened with 4:25 remaining in the fourth quarter and the Eagles leading 32-31.

Campbell's free throws put the Eagles ahead 36-31, and Eric Rasberry added a jumper with 2:57 left to spread the margin to seven. Conley never pulled closer than five points after that.

"We had taken a couple of minutes off the clock, and it looked pretty good," Conley Coach Walter Claybrook said. "One of our guards made a weak pass, (Campbell) came down and made the dunk and two free throws. In one big swing we went from being one down and in the game to being five down and struggling."

Ricky Farrow, who paced Conley with 19 points, scored all 9 fourth-quarter points for the Vikes. But West Craven connected on 8-of-10 from the free throw line in the final two minutes to seal the victory.

Eric Rasberry added four free throws for his team-high 14 points, while Campbell and Mickey Rasberry added two each.

"Everybody I talked to before the game said we couldn't afford to play man-to-man against them; to go up-and-down the floor with them," Claybrook said. "Against their zone (defense), we did all right. We weren't as patient in our man-to-man offense."

But the Vikings had things going their way much of the first three quarters.

After falling behind 6-4 with 2:44 left in the opening period, Farrow posted five points to lead a 7-2 swing that gave Conley an 11-8 lead going into the second quarter.

The Vikings led by five points three times in the second quarter, the final coming on a pair of free throws by Phillips with 3:57 left for a 27-22 tally. But The Eagles trimmed the margin to 21-20 with 1:12 till halftime before Phillips notched two more free throw for a 23-20 Conley lead at intermission.

The lead switched four times late in the third quarter, and Stevie Harris put the Eagles ahead at 32-31 with five seconds left in the period.

VALKYRIES, LADY EAGLES

West Craven held a 44-30 advantage going into the final period, but Conley responded by outscoring the Lady Eagles 11-4 through the 3:23 mark for a 48-41 deficit.

But Crowell connected from 10 feet out for West Craven, and Conley was cold at the free throw line missing five attempts in the fourth quarter.

"(West Craven) started substituting in the fourth quarter, and I knew our starters could cut the lead against their reserves," Conley Coach Joy Riddick said. "We really should have played better against their starters. The big difference in the game was that we made bad passes. When we cut it to eight, we couldn't make our free throws.

"We're getting there; everybody is taking the scoring pressure off Trellaney. We're still young; sometimes I think I expect too much of them. I don't know of any other team that starts three freshmen."

Friendship Runs Past GCA 69-62

RALEIGH — Friendship Christian rallied with 21 points in the fourth quarter to take a 69-62 victory over Greenville Christian Friday in high school basketball action.

Mike Cooper netted 22 points, Mike Knight 17 and Jon Eshelman 13 for Friendship.

Robin House paced GCA with 24 points, followed by Paul Hollingsworth with 16 and Derrick Leupen with 12.

Greenville held a 35-32 halftime lead and expanded the margin to 55-48 going into the final period. But Friendship took advantage of GCA's fatigue in the fourth quarter for a 21-7 scoring bulge.

"We had some turnovers that hurt us in the fourth quarter," GCA Coach Dale Thatcher said. "We were playing sick, and we were just trying to hold on. We held on as long as we could, but they ended up hitting some key baskets at the end.

"I'm really proud of my players; they stuck it out and had a chance to win. I'm really excited about what I saw."

Patti Carr fired in 18 points to lead the GCA girls past Friendship 43-40.

Jessie Frankie led Friendship with 14 points.

"We played poorly to begin wih and it got us in a hole," Thatcher said. "Fortunately, Patti Carr took some leadership. We've got to work on some things if we're going to accomplish some of the goals we have for ourselves this year."

Greenville Christian's girls are now 9-2 on the season, while the boys are 7-5. GCA returns to action Tuesday, Jan. 28 at Goldsboro.

Rampants Upset Fike

WILSON — Dwight Smith came up with a key steal and Lenny Langley sank two free throws with seven seconds remaining to give Rose High School a 61-58 victory over Wilson Fike Friday in Big East 4-A basketball action.

In the girls' game, the Rampettes took a 39-35 win over Fike. Details of the game were not available.

Fike came into the boys' game 4-0 in the conference, but Rose got 16 points by Langley, 15 from Martin Norville and 12 by Melvin Jenkins to post the upset.

Rose held a 51-46 lead midway through the fourth quarter, but Fike forced turnovers and closed the gap to one point with 3:12 remaining. Norville gave Rose a three-point lead, but Anthony Thompson responded with a bucket inside as Fike trimmed the margin to 53-52 at the 2:49 mark.

The Rampants posted two more field goals while Fike settled for a free throw as the margin spread to 57-52 with 2:27 left. Kevin Watson hit from outside for the Golden Demons, and Fike added another bucket on a steal to cut the gap to 57-56 with 1:40 remaining.

Langley connected for Rose, and Thompson retaliated for Fike to maintain the one-point margin with 40 seconds remaining. Rose trapped John McNeil, and Smith's steal put the Rampants in control.

Langley's free throws set the final margin.

Thompson paced Fike with 16 points, while McNeil chipped in 12 points and Watson 14 for the Golden Demons.

Rose took the lead for the first time with 7:43 remaining in the second quarter on a bucket by Norville, and the Rampants went on to take a 28-23 halftime lead.

Rose maintained a 46-40 advantage going into the final period and held on for the victory.

The Rampants took just 35 shots in the game but connected on 24 for 68 percent. Fike, meanwhile, hit on 25 out of 55 shots for 45 percent and held a 30-25 rebounding edge.

Wirnsberger Wins Race

KITZBUEHEL, Austria (AP) — Peter Wirnsberger of Austria won his fourth straight World Cup downhill race Saturday, recording his second skiing triumph in two days here.

Wirnsberger became the first men's skier to win four downhill races in one season since Austria's Franz Klammer dominated the sport in 1977. Wirnsberger's time of 2 minutes, 2.04 seconds nipped Erwin Resch of Austria, who finished in 2:02.19.

Michael Mair of Italy was third in 2:02.52, followed by three Swiss skiers, Franz Heinzer, Gustav Oehrli and reigning World Cup champion Pirmin Zurbriggen.

Witherspoon Takes Split Decision

ATLANTA (AP) — Tim Witherspoon said he is the World Boxing Association heavyweight champion because Tony Tubbs didn't fight like one.

"I was surprised in a way. He didn't do nothing," Witherspoon said after winning a 15-round, split decision Friday night. "He did a lot of jabbing but he didn't fight like a champion tonight."

Witherspoon said he looked for Tubbs to fight his usual style, as a counterpuncher, "but he didn't want to counter off the left jab, so I had to lunge at him. I had to chase him down at certain points. He was stepping back too much."

"Tim won and I am happy for him," Tubbs said. "It's back to the drawing board and then back to the title."

Witherspoon promised Tubbs a rematch, and said he wants a rematch with World Boxing Council champion Pinklon Thomas.

Witherspoon failed to win the WBC title when he lost a 12-round split decision to Larry Holmes May 20, 1983. He won the WBC crown on a 12-round majority decision over Greg Page on March 9, 1984, then lost to Thomas on a 12-round majority decision Aug. 31, 1984.

Witherspoon said he was not going to be like Holmes "and not give people a chance to fight for the title," or like Thomas. "Pinklon got the belt and said he was going on a trip on a boat."

"Whenever Don (promotor Don King) can hook it up, I'm ready. I feel that everything that has happened, I'm rewarded with it now. We fought hard and we worked hard. I'm going to start training next week" for another fight.

He said among other things, Tubb's body attack showed him he needed to work on tightening and toughening his stomach.

Several hours before the fight, promoters King and Butch Lewis and Home Box Office, which televised this fight, announced a series of seven championship fights which would culminate in an undisputed heavyweight champion in 1987.

Tubbs said he felt the fight was close and the judges agreed with Tubbs' assessment, to an extent. Judge Edward Woods Jr. scored it 144-141 and Harry Cecchini had it 144-143 for Witherspoon. Judge Robert Ferrara scored it 143-143.

The AP card favored Witherspoon 146-139.

Witherspoon joined Floyd Patterson and Muhammad Ali as the only men to win heavyweight titles twice. Patterson was undisputed champion twice while Ali was undisputed champion twice and a WBA champion on another occasion.

Page, at 236, took a beating in the undercard, losing a 10-round unanimous decision to James Douglas, 230, of Columbus, Ohio. Page is 24-5 and Douglas is 20-3-1. David Bey, 236, of Philadelphia, 15-2, with one of his losses to Holmes, took a majority decision over Wes Smith, 16-5, of Louisville.

Trevor Berbick of Miami, who is scheduled to fight Thomas for the WBC title March 22, stopped Mike Perkins at 1:16 of the 10th after nine rounds of routinely hitting Perkins' head.

Berbick is 34-1 with 23 knockouts. Perkins, 209, of Hallandale, Fla., is 17-10-2 with 12 knockouts.

Also on the all heavyweight card, Mitch Green, 16-1-1, of New York took a unanimous decision over Percel Davis, 19-4, of Detroit and Eddie Gregg, 24-1-1, of New York won a unanimous decision over Walter Santemore, 17-15, of New Orleans. All were 10-round bouts.

James Pritchard, 2-0, of Louisville, Ky., took a unanimous four-round decision over Jack Jackson, 8-4, of Atlanta.

Before the fight, Witherspoon said he would concentrate on Tubbs' 244-pound body, and he did.

Beginning in the fifth round, Witherspoon, who weighed 227, landed with great frequency to Tubbs' body with both hands. In the sixth, he landed eight straight hard body shots.

In the eighth, Witherspoon, winning for the 24th time against two losses, landed several body shots early, then sent Tubbs reeling to the ropes with a left hook to the jaw. Just before the bell, Witherspoon was battering Tubbs' body again.

Pamlico Holds Off Rams' Rally, 47-45

SNOW HILL — Pamlico managed a three-point halftime lead and held off Greene Central 47-45 Friday in Eastern Plains 2-A high school basketball action.

O.J. Sheppard led the Rams with 11 points. Greene Central slipped to 2-3 in the league and 7-7 overall with the loss.

The Rams fell behind in the second quarter, as Pamlico held an 11-5 scoring edge in the period. Pamlico built the margin to 33-29 going into the final period and held off the Rams charge.

"We just didn't come to play," Greene Central Coach Greg Ashorn said. "We haven't for the last two nights. We cut it down to one point and had the ball but didn't score at the end."

Greene Central's Lady Rams snapped a 13-game losing string with a 55-44 win over Pamlico. Sherry Williams posted 14 points and Chanel Hooker 12 for the Lady Rams.

Noc-A-Homa Out For 1986

ATLANTA (AP) — The Atlanta Braves will enter baseball's National League fray next season without the spirited war dances of mascot Chief Noc-A-Homa.

Levi Walker, the third person to portray the mascot since the Braves Eohed to Atlanta in 1966, and the Braves parted company Friday after 17 years together. The decision was a mutual agreement, said Wayne Minshew, the Braves public relations and promotions director.

Minshew said Walker had complained that his pay, $60 per game and an estimated $4,860 for 80 personal appearances last year, was too low.

Richardson Not Rushed For Return To Lineup

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Micheal Ray Richardson will not be rushed back into the New Jersey Nets' lineup now that he has completed drug rehabilitation for a cocaine problem, sources close to the team said.

Richardson, the talented but troubled Nets guard, was released from a California drug rehabilitation center on Thursday and returned home, the source said Friday.

Nets officials plan to have Richardson practice with the team for three or four days before getting him into a game, said the source, who added the former All Star probably will see action first on the road rather than at home to make his comeback easier.

Richardson spent less than three weeks at the rehabilitation center. He was admitted at the start of the year after acknowledging on Dec. 31 that he once again had used cocaine.

It was his second offense under the league's drug policy and he was suspended Jan. 2 without pay.

Nets officials were to meet today with Richardson, his drug counselors and his agent to discuss his future with the team, the source said.

Charles Grantham, the player's agent, did not return repeated telephone calls by The Associated Press.

National Basketball Association spokesman Brian McIntyre said the league had no official comment, noting that all matters with a player involved in the anti-drug program are confidential.

The Nets are 5-5 in games that Richardson has missed, including a 116-96 loss to Washington Friday night. The Nets are currently 24-17 and in third place in the Atlantic Division of the Eastern Conference.

Reserve Darwin Cook has been averaging 6.4 points a game while running the offense in Richardson's absence.

Richardson, the NBA's comeback player of the year last season, was averaging a team-leading 17.3 points per game this season and was second in the league with 2.97 steals per game. The former Montana player also was averaging 7.8 assists and 5.7 rebounds.

The 30-year-old Richardson twice before has been through cocaine addiction rehabilitation, the second time in 1983 when he was suspended by the Nets for two months. He rejoined the team in December 1983.

Richardson's latest problem began in late December after he dropped out of sight following a team Christmas party in Moonachie on Dec. 27. He did not contact team officials for three days, finally surfacing after the NBA made an announcement concerning his drug status.

The league said it viewed Richardson as a one-time offender of the drug policy, saying if he came forward voluntarily and admitted having a relapse, it would be regarded as his second offense.

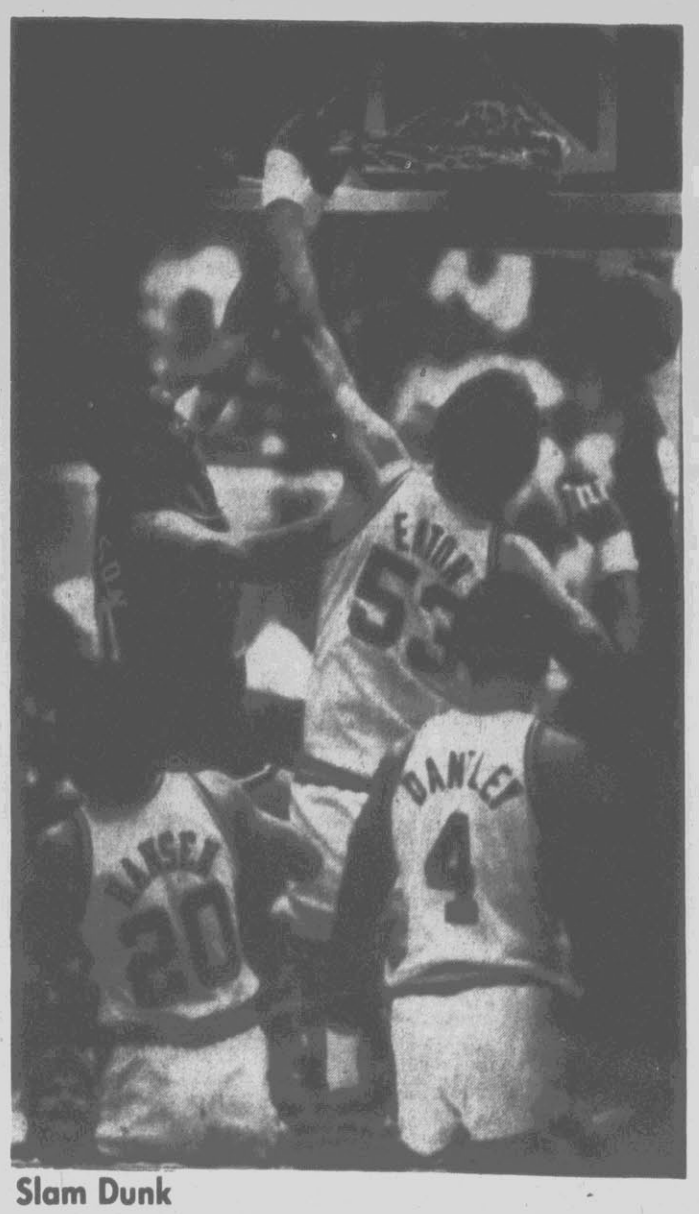
Bullets' Wood Catching On



Slam Dunk

James Donaldson (40) of Dallas scores ona dunk over Utah's Mark Eaton (53) Friday night. Utah won the NBA game 139-112. (AP Laserphoto)

By The Associated Press

If Leon Wood is really confused by the Washington offense, the Bullets may be wondering what to expect when he figures it out.

"I still don't know the plays," Wood said Friday night after scoring a career-high 30 points in leading the Bullets to a 116-96 rout of the New Jersey Nets. "When one is called, I have to ask the other guys what I'm supposed to do."

Wood, playing in just his fifth game with the Bullets — he came from Philadelphia for Kenny Green — added a career-high eight assists.

"With Philadelphia, I'd come off screens and hit jumpers, but I couldn't take a guy one-on-one," Wood said. "If I had turnovers, they'd take me out of the game."

No longer.

"Coach (Gene Shue) tells me to create something and beat the pressure," Wood said.

After scoring nine points in his debut with Washington, Wood has set personal highs with games of 17, 22, 25 and 30 points. For the night, he hit 10 of 15 shots, including two from three-point range, in 27 minutes of action. He scored 16 points in the final quarter.

Wood got considerable help from Dan Roundfield, who scored 13 of his 14 points as Washington took a 48-39 halftime lead. And the Bullet defense was superb, blocking 15 shots — including nine by 7-foot-7 rookie Manute Bol.

Jeff Malone scored 25 points and Gus Williams added 17 for the injury-riddled Bullets, who played without Jeff Ruland, Cliff Robinson, Tom McMillen and Frank Johnson.

Spurs 113, Knicks 100

San Antonio's Steve Johnson — who was expected to rest a strained neck — had a great game, while it lasted. Johnson scored 15 points in the first quarter, but was banished in second period for fighting with New York's Bob Thornton.

Johnson had not missed from the floor or the free-throw line until his involvement in a bench-clearing brawl that delayed the game for more than 10 minutes and upset Spurs Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons.

"We could have locked that guy (Thornton, who went scoreless) up in the gym all night by himself and he wouldn't have scored, then we lose Johnson," Fitzsimmons said.

Artis Gilmore led San Antonio with 22 points, Mike Mitchell added 21, Alvin Robertson had 18 and Johnson finished with 17.

Celtics 123, Pacers 105

The visiting Celtics got 28 points from Kevin McHale, including 17 as they took charge in the first half. Larry Bird had 21 points, nine rebounds and eight assists. Robert Parish added 20 points.

Rookie Wayman Tisdale led the Pacers with with 20 points. Clint Richardson and Terence Stansbury had 16 each.

Pistons 129, Nuggets 113

Struggling Detroit, winning for just the third time in 11 games, put away visiting Denver with a 21-4 onslaught in an eight-minute span of the third period.

Earl Cureton scored a season-high 25 points to lead the Pistons, who also got 22 points and 19 rebounds from Bill Laimbeer and 20 points from rookie Joe Dumars in just his second start.

The Nuggets got 26 points from Alex English, although all but four came in the first half. Bill Hanzlik added 20.

Chicago's Jawann Oldham had tied the score on a slam dunk eight seconds earlier.

Jazz 139, Mavericks 112

Utah's Rickey Green provided first-quarter momentum — scoring 18 of his 22 points — as the Jazz rolled to a 45-31 lead and won easily with Adrian Dantley scoring 31 points and rookie Karl Malone 26.

Suns 103, SuperSonics 100

Phoenix has trouble beating several clubs, but not Seattle. The Suns, 15-22, made it 4-0 against the SuperSonics.

Larry Nance led Phoenix with 25 points, Alvan Adams finished with 19,

Mike Woodson led all scorers with 31 points, while Reggie Theus had 26 for the Kings. Purvis Short led Golden State with 28 points, Chris Mullin added 25 and Joe Barry Carroll 21.

Bernard Thompson 16 and James Edwards 14.

Kings 125, Warriors 111

Pat Sullivan Named Auburn QB Coach

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — Pat Sullivan, the Auburn Heisman Trophy winner hired to coach Tiger quarterbacks, said his goal is to make the school as well-known for quality signal callers as it is for top running backs.

"We've got to make it known for quarterbacks, where the best kids in the country will want to go to school there," Sullivan said.

Auburn has long been known as a school that produces tremendous running backs, such as Bo Jackson, this year's Heisman winner, and National Football League stars William Andrews, Joe Cribbs, James Brooks and Lionel James.

On Friday, Auburn Coach Pat Dye confirmed a week of rumors by announcing the hiring of Sullivan, who won the Heisman in 1971.

Sullivan will play a major role in designing the Tiger offensive strategy because Dye decided not to hire an offensive coordinator to replace Jack Crowe. Crowe resigned after Auburn's 8-4 finish in 1985.

"I want to help Auburn build a situation at quarterback where the top players in the nation will want to be a part of it," said Sullivan. "I want to help them be better people and better football players."

Sullivan, who set 20 Auburn passing records and played pro football for four years, has been a Birmingham businessman and radio commentator at Auburn games.

Sullivan said he does not expect Dye to fill the air with passes.

"I think Coach Dye wants to do whatever it takes to put points on the board, and that's how I feel about it," Sullivan said. "I don't think we need to say we are going to throw the ball 30 times a game or five times a game. You do what the defense dictates."

"I am more excited about our future than ever before," said Dye.

North Edgecombe Tops Bear Grass

BEAR GRASS — Clifton Williams poured in 24 points while Ronald Whitaker and Donald Whitaker combined for 25 points as North Edgecombe downed Bear Grass 72-55 in in Tobacco Belt 1-A high school basketball Friday night.

The Warriors jumped ahead early and led 17-11 after the first quarter. North Edecombe went on to take a 32-27 halftime edge.

North Edgecombe increased its lead to 50-41 after three periods and put the game out of reach with a 22-14 margin in the fourth quarter.

Bear Grass fell to 2-8 in the conference and 2-9 overall.

In the girl's game, Karen Tillery scored 12 points to lead North Edgecombe to a 40-24 victory.

Cynthia McFarland added 10 points for the Lady Warriors.

The Lady Bears fell to 2-7 in the Tobacco Belt and 2-8 overall.

Bears Realistic Going Into Super Bowl

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Chicago's Dan Hampton has no problem with the New England Patriots being the underdogs in the Super Bowl. He is, however, sick and tired of people thinking the Bears are overconfident.

"That's all I heard all year," Hampton groused Friday. "Fifteen-and-one peaks for itself.

"We don't overestimate or underestimate anybody," he said. "Anytime you do that, you're selling yourself short and not preparing yourself to play the best game you can."

The Bears wrapped up practice under the inflatable dome covering the University of Illinois football field Saturday and headed back to Chicago. They are to leave Monday afternoon for New Orleans, site of the Jan. 26 Super Bowl.

"The only thing left for us to do is win the Super Bowl," said cornerback Leslie Frazier. "The Patriots are the Cinderella playoff team. We want to take the glass slipper away from Cinderella.

"We are the best team in football."

"The key is stopping their running game and getting to (quarterback Tony) Eason," said 10th-year safety Gary Fencik, making his first Super Bowl appearance. "If we can control them as effectively as we did earlier in the year, we'll be wearing Super Bowl rings."

But he would not guarantee victory.

"I wish I could guarantee you something," he said diplomatically.

"I'm glad I got here," Fencik said in recalling the team's lean years. "I'm glad Walter's (Payton) here and I'm here. I wish some of the other players, like Terry Schmidt and Jim Osborne, could have lasted one more year and enjoyed this week."

"We've already beaten New England," said the 6-foot-5, 267-pound defensive tackle. "They've made a big campaign out of how they've improved so dramatically.

"Raymond (Berry, the Patriots' coach) is trying to rally his team around the underdog aspect. We're the ones that are the giants and they're the giant-killers," Hampton said. "That's not going to affect us a lick."

While the Bears waltzed through the regular season and shut out both their playoff opponents, the Patriots finished 11-5, earning a wild-card berth, then had to win three playoff games on the road to make the Super Bowl.

Much has been made of the fact that perennial all-pro offensive lineman John Hannah did not play when the Patriots lost to the Bears 20-7 in the second game of the season. But Hampton, who will be 29 on Sunday, said Hannah won't make that much difference.

"We've been looking at him on films and he looks like John Hannah should," said Hampton. "But he's not superman. I think William Perry will do very well against him."

Hampton, who started slowly after off-season surgery but came on strong as the season progressed, will line up across from New England right tackle Steve Moore.

"He did a great job on Howie Long (of the Los Angeles Raiders), and everybody says he's the best defensive lineman in the game," Hampton said. "I might need to be chained to my bed right before the game so I don't run away and go home."

Hampton admitted he is glad the Bears are facing Eason and not Miami's Dan Marino, who threw three touchdown passes as the Dolphins handed the Bears their only loss this season.

"I've never felt as useless as in Miami this year," Hampton said. "Marino (because of his quick release) is the only quarterback who can take me out of the game."

Although Eason can "do it all," Hampton said, "he doesn't have that type of arm."

Eason 'Never Watched' Bears During College

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — Tony Eason didn't pay much attention to the nearby Chicago Bears when he starred at the University of Illinois. He's making up for that now.

"I never watched football" on television during college, said the quarterback of the New England Patriots. "We played on Saturdays, and on Sundays I didn't want to sit there and watch football all day."

As he prepares for the Patriots' first Super Bowl on Jan. 26, Eason will spend the next eight days thinking plenty about the Bears and defensive coordinator Buddy Ryan's complex system for shutting New England down.

Fortunately for Eason, he will have had two weeks to get ready for the variations that make Chicago's defense so confusing for opponents.

"It's sure nice to have the extra days, especially when you're playing Buddy Ryan," he said. "If you're playing them once every three years, then a week (to prepare) could be tough."

The only time Eason faced Chicago in his three-year career was earlier in this National Football League season, when the Patriots lost 20-7. He completed 15 of 35 passes for 234 yards and a touchdown but had three passes intercepted. He also was sacked six times.

He hasn't seen a defense like that since then.

"There's 28 teams in the NFL and there's 27 fairly similar defenses," Eason said. "These guys are entirely different. Buddy Ryan has given them a fantastic scheme. He's got great personnel to play it and they all understand what they're supposed to be doing."

But the Bears haven't seen an Eason like the one they'll see in New Orleans in the Super Bowl. He struggled early with the rest of the offense, but has completed 29 of 42 passes for five touchdowns and without an interception in three playoff victories.

"I think the offense has matured," he said. "We had a brand new offense at the beginning of the year. We were going through some growing pains and made a lot of strides during the season. I haven't changed at all."

Eason admitted that the Bears may force him to change some of the things he normally does on the field.

"You've got to change things around," he said. "I mean, you're not going to sit in the pocket all day and read their defense for four seconds and see seven receivers and pick out the right guy. You've got to get back and get rid of the ball."

The pressure that sometimes affects Super Bowl players hasn't hit Eason. The biggest day in the Patriots' history is just another game to the casual Californian.

"I'm not going to treat this game any differently than I do the first however many we played," he said.

Eason has been struck by the realization that he is the quarterback on New England's only Super Bowl team, but "not in a storybook sense.

Fishing Contest

The annual Grifton Shad Festival Hickory Shad Fishing Contest has officially opened, according to contest chairman George Sugg of Grifton. Although the first fish of the season is not usually caught until early February, the contest traditionally opens on Jan. 1 and closes the first day of the festival in April.

Dates for the 1986 festival are April 9-13, with a bass fishing tournament scheduled for Saturday, April 5. Danny Joe Humphrey of Kinston and the W.E.T.S.U. Bassmasters will head this year's event.

The hickory shad fishing contest is limited to fish caught on hook and line. American shad are not eligible. Fish must be weighed and recorded at the Sport Shop in Grifton.

Shad, a migratory fish living in the ocean, swim up coastal rivers to spawn in freshwater creeks further upstream. The date when the fish "run" up the creek varies according to the temperature of the coastal waters. Tagging studies have shown the same fish off Florida in the winter and then 2,000 miles away in Nova Scotia in the summer.

In eastern North Carolina, the peak of the "shad run" is March. Trophies will be awarded to the fisherman who enters the first shad, and to the adult and youth catching the largest shad.

Wildlife Meeting

The N.C. Wildlife Resources Commission deferred any comments on a federal proposal to introduce endangered red wolves to the Alligator River National Wildlife Refuge in Dare County until more information can be obtained. This decision was reached by the commission at its meeting Jan. 13 in Raleigh.

"We need to first see what the local citizens have to say and also review the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service management plan for the refuge before we can make any decision on this matter," said commission chairman Jerry Wright.

In other action, the commission authorized the establishment of six fishery management and habitat development crews across the state. Two crews will be stationed in each region to concentrate on improving fisheries habitat and angler access to fishing waters.

"This work will be supported by the Wallop-Breaux expansion of Dingell-Johnson Fund," said Richard B. Hamilton, chief of the commission's division of boating and inland fisheries.

"The Dingell-Johnson Fund is supported by a federal excise tax on fishing equipment, and the Wallop-Breaux Act broadened this fund to include placing this excise on fish finders, electric trolling motors, and other items not included in the original legislation. In addition, the federal tax on marine fuels is being returned to the fund," he said.

The Wallop-Breaux expansion brings the total of the Dingell-Johnson Fund to $123 million for 1986. This revenue is distributed to states based on their water area and numbers of licensed fishermen. North Carolina's share of the fund is approximately $1.7 million.

The commission will receive over $1.2 million to bolster sport fishing programs in inland waters. The N.C. Division of Marine Fisheries will also receive over $400,000 to improve sport fishing programs in coastal waters.

"The funds will support a number of projects in inland waters," Hamilton said. "For example, fishery habitat and development crews will open boat corridors in coastal streams that are choked with obstacles, build and place fish attractors in certain lakes, construct fishing piers, clear access trails for fishermen, improve trout habitat in mountain streams and develop additional boating access areas."

Hamilton added that this legislation is the brightest note to come along for fishermen in a long time.

"The original Sport Fishing Restoration Act (which established the Dingell-Johnson Fund) was passed in 1952. This is the biggest thing to come along for funding of fisheries programs since then. As a result of this legislation, anglers should soon see better fishing in North Carolina waters," he said.

Olson, Foster Head World Record List

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Sunkist Invitational got the U.S. indoor track season off to a sensational start, with four athletes coming up with world best performances.

Bill Olson soared 19 feet, 3½ inches Friday night to regain the world indoor pole vault mark he'd lost to Sergey Bubka of the Soviet Union just two days earlier. Hurdler Greg Foster bettered a world best that had been set by his old nemesis, Renaldo Nehemiah, with a 5.88-second clocking in the 50-yard hurdles.

Triple jumper Charlie Simpkins bounded 57-5, farther than any man had gone before indoors. And Johnny Gray rewrote his own 880-yard world standard with a blazing 1 minute, 46.8 seconds clocking.

Olson, practically written off after disappointing campaigns in 1984 and most of 1985, had broken through again with a world indoor best of 19-2¾ late last month in Canada. But Bubka topped that with a 19-3 last Wednesday in Japan.

"It didn't matter that he (Bubka) had set a world record in Japan because I came here with the intention of setting a record anyway," Olson said of the meet at the Los Angeles Sports Arena.

Olson, who cleared 19-3½ on his third and final try at the height, said another American vaulter who was at the meet in Japan related that Bubka commented after he went 19-3, "Tell Billy Olson to take that."

"Well," Olson said with a grin, "Here's a present for you, Sergey."

The 27-year-old Olson, who now has raised the indoor world standard in the pole vault on nine different occasions, said his rivalry with Bubka was a friendly one.

"It's not the United States versus the Soviet Union," he said. "Sergey's my friend, I think he likes me. We're both just trying to win."

Foster said after he bettered Nehemiah's old standard 5.92 set in 1982: "I'm still competing in track to break the indoor and outdoor records of Renaldo Nehemiah. I'm running now for world records, I'm not concerned about my won-loss record."

Simpkins, a 22-year-old Baptist College student in South Carolina, said after he sailed 3½ inches beyond the previous world best set by Willie Banks in 1982: "I didn't know I was going to break the record. Afterward Willie came over and said, 'Charlie, what's got into you?' I said, "I've just got to get you to come out here and jump against me."

In his world best performance, Gray was clocked in 1:46.8, lowering his standard of 1:46.9 of last year.

"I predicted a world record," he said. "I wanted to be in a pressure situation and test myself."

In another highlight event, Ireland's Marcus O'Sullivan dealt countryman Eamonn Coghlan his first loss in the event indoors since 1981, a stretch covering 15 Coghlan victories.

O'Sullivan, winning a late duel with Coghlan, was clocked in 3:58.37 to Coghlan's 3:58.55. Steve Scott was a late scratch because of the flu.

Other winners included Jarmila Kratochvilova of Czechoslovakia, who won the women's 880-yard run in 2:06.08; Valerie Brisco-Hooks, who took the women's 300 yards in 34.21; Jimmy Howard, who captured the men's high jump at 7-7; and Doug Padilla, who won the men's 2 miles at 8:28.59.

Spinks-Holmes Rematch Set

ATLANTA (AP) — Larry Holmes will try to avenge the only defeat of his career when he challenges Michael Spinks for the International Boxing Federation title next April as part of series of title bouts which will lead to an undisputed heavyweight champion in 1987.

Both the Holmes-Spinks rematch and the series of seven title fights, all of which will be televised by Home Box Office, were announced at a news conference here Friday by promoters Don King and Butch Lewis and Seth Abraham, senior vice president for sports and operations for HBO.

No price tag for the package was given but it has been reportedly valued at $26 million. Abraham placed the figure in the $20 million area.

The Holmes-Spinks rematch, for which no date or site has been selected, knocks out Gerry Cooney's bid for a title shot at Spinks. Lewis, who has promoted Spinks fights, said the unranked Cooney could become involved in the series, but apparently would have to fight and earn a ranking before getting a title shot.

"This is a boxing series for fans," Abraham said. "A people's champion will emerge."

"It's the biggest deal in boxing since Muhammad Ali," King said.

Lewis said the first fight of the series would take place March 22 at a site to be named when Pinklon Thomas defends the World Boxing Council title against Trevor Berbick. It will be followed in April by the Spinks-Holmes match.

Fryar Hopes To End Injury Publicity

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — Irving Fryar, cleared to play in the Super Bowl, hopes his denial of a report that he was stabbed by his wife in a restaurant parking lot will end publicity about his finger injury.

After the wide receiver returned to practice Friday, the New England Patriots issued a three-paragraph statement which said Fryar would have no further comment. But in the locker room after his light workout, he spoke with reporters for about 20 minutes.

"Do me a favor. Get your stories on this before we go to New Orleans," he said. "I'm not a person who can keep to himself. I'm outgoing, and saying nothing wouldn't do me any good in the long run.

"If you want me to do well, if you care about my well-being, which hasn't been so far, this will be it," he added. "After today, put the spotlight on the team."

Coach Raymond Berry said, "I assume he'll be able to catch punts" in the Super Bowl against the Chicago Bears on Jan. 26, although Stephen Starring will start at wide receiver for the second consecutive game.

Fryar said that he and his wife of one year, Jacqueline, have had misunderstandings but that "I didn't beat her up and she didn't cut me."

The Boston Globe reported last Sunday that Fryar allegedly struck his wife several times, knocking her down once, in a South Shore parking lot the night of Jan. 7. She allegedly took a knife from her purse and Fryar tried to ward off her lunge with his right hand, the newspaper added.

Fryar, the National Football League's top draft choice in 1984 and its leading punt returner this season, suffered a severed tendon in his right little finger that kept him out of the Patriots' 31-14 victory over Miami last Sunday in the American Football Conference championship game.

Dr. Bertram Zarins, the team's physician, said Friday that Fryar wouldn't jeopardize his career by playing in the Super Bowl. He also said Fryar probably would need surgery after the season, according to club spokesman Jim Greenidge.

Two days before the Globe story appeared, the Patriot Ledger of Quincy, Mass., reported that Fryar was hurt in a quarrel with his wife, who is midway through her pregnancy. That report came one day after the player told reporters in Miami that he was injured while putting a knife in a kitchen drawer at his Easton, Mass., home.

"I didn't do anything I regret in terms of things I said," Fryar said Friday. "I don't believe a man's personal life is anybody else's business."

Fryar reiterated that he was cut in his kitchen the morning of Jan. 8.

"I'm not denying there was an argument," he said, "but that stuff about parking lots and stabbings did not happen."

Mary Hill, executive vice president of Goddard Memorial Hospital in Stoughton, said Jacqueline Fryar was examined there the morning of Jan. 8 shortly after Fryar arrived.

In their statement Friday, the Patriots said, "Irving and Jackie Fryar announced today that they are working to build a stronger marriage by resolving the issues which resulted in a domestic altercation last Wednesday (Jan. 8).

"In addition, Fryar apologized for misleading the public with an explanation that he said was designed to protect his wife and himself."

Fryar was examined Wednesday and late Thursday night by Zarins, Dr. Richard Smith and Dr. James May at Massachusetts General Hospital, Greenidge said.

During practice Friday, Fryar wore a splint on his injured finger which assistant receivers coach Harold Jackson said "won't hinder him from catching the ball." He caught one pass, but the team didn't work on punt returns.

"He used his body, but the main thing he did is catch the ball," Jackson said. "I think he's going to be OK.

"It's real important for him to feel he's part of the club. ... He was one of the horses who helped get us here and we want to have him."

"I think he'll be fine," Zarins said at a news conference. "The question is, will the splint get in the way or will be be favoring the finger? That's something we're going to have to find out during the week in practice and see how he handles punts.

"I want him playing for the next 10 years. If I thought there was a possibility this would jeopardize his career, then I would say that he should not play."

Fryar said he watched the Patriots' game against the Dolphins on television but had to leave the room several times because he wanted to be playing.

"It was hard for me, but no one said life was going to be easy," he added. "I let my team down by not being on the field."

Fryar had missed the team flight to Miami and said he arrived by himself early on the morning of Jan. 9. He returned home before the Patriot Ledger story appeared the next day.

"He just felt it was best for him to go home" because his wife was listening to what the Fryars considered erroneous media reports, Jackson said Friday.

He added that the couple told him last Monday that "a lot of things that were said" in reports of his injury weren't true.

"When I was with them, both were very happy," Jackson said. "Both of them are two lovely people and they didn't want to be branded."

Berry 'Looked Terrible' As Freshman At SMU

DALLAS (AP) — A tall, frail-looking guy appeared for spring football training at Southern Methodist University in 1952, and Lamar Hunt was amused.

"This guy looked terrible," Hunt recalled. "Someone said that the skinny kid was one of our new ends. I said, 'Well, that's one guy I can beat out.'"

The skinny kid, it turned out, was Raymond Berry, now coach of the Super Bowl-bound New England Patriots. He put Hunt, the son of a billionaire, on the bench.

By taking different routes, both made it to the National Football League Hall of Fame (along with another SMU teammate, Forrest Gregg, now the Green Bay Packers coach) — Berry as one of the game's greatest pass receivers and Hunt as founder of the American Football League, which later merged with the NFL.

Last Sunday, after the Pats beat the Miami Dolphins 31-14, Hunt presented the AFC championship trophy with his name on it to team owner Billy Sullivan and to Berry, the guy he couldn't beat out.

"I would never be surprised by anything Raymond achieved," Hunt said. "He is a remarkable person. He is one of the most self-made people I've ever seen."

Nevertheless, Hunt said he still finds it hard to believe Berry took the underdog Pats to their first-ever AFC title in his first full year as coach.

"He's very shy and not outgoing at all," Hunt said. "But he got the respect of the players. Some just barely know about him and his career, but it was his door opener. They respect him."

The son of a Paris, Texas, high school football coach, Berry arrived at SMU from Schriener Institute in Kerrville, Texas.

Nicknamed "ski foot" because of his large feet, Berry soon became known for his relentless work habits.

"He would practice, practice, practice. He was very fastidious. He's the first person I saw who wrapped his ankles," Hunt said.

Berry worked hours on his pass routes so he had everything down just right, and he cut up towels to make wristbands to keep his hands dry. Now almost every player in the NFL wears wristbands.

Hunt said Berry surprised people because "he just didn't look like a football player."

"He wore glasses. He was a studious-looking guy."

Hunt and Berry didn't socialize much because they were "sort of competitors," Hunt said. But the slight 6-foot-1, 188-pound Berry made a big impression on his SMU teammates.

Said the 1954 press guide: "In a tribute to Berry's leadership, he was chosen co-captain even though he never started a game."

And Hunt said Berry, who went to the Baltimore Colts as a 12th-round draft pick, was a terror on defense.

"In those days, you had to go both ways, and he was a great defensive end," Hunt said. "He never really caught that many passes because we didn't throw the ball very much."

With Berry's leadership under Coach Woody Woodard, SMU came within a missed extra point of a Cotton Bowl berth in 1954. A 13-13 tie against Texas cost the Mustangs.

"It hurt ... but you couldn't tell with Raymond. He never showed excitement and he never showed despair," Hunt said.

Even today, nothing seems to shake Berry.

"On the sideline against Miami, he looked just about like I always remembered him at SMU — calm and studying his notes," Hunt said.

Goggles Help Cats' Walker Keep Vision

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Protective goggles are helping Kentucky's Kenny Walker keep sight of what he wants to do on the basketball court.

The goggles arrived shortly after Walker was accidentally poked last month during a game against Kansas — the third time the 6-foot-8 forward has suffered a minor eye injury playing for the Wildcats.

Walker's goggles are the same make and model as those worn by Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of the Los Angeles Lakers, who has had numerous scraps with stray fingers during his 16 seasons in the National Basketball Association.

Walker says so far, so good.

"They feel comfortable now, but it took some time getting used to wearing them," he said. "Some people wondered if they would affect my peripheral vision, but they're clear on the sides so that hasn't been a problem. I can see fine with them."

Occasionally, they fog up, he said, usually during halftime or timeouts, and they've been knocked off a few times.

Becker, Lendl On Target For Final

NEW YORK (AP) — Two of the biggest hitters in tennis — West Germany's Boris Becker and Czechoslovakia's Ivan Lendl — are right on line to clash in the final of the $500,000 Nabisco Masters tennis championships.

Becker, the 18-year-old "wunderkind," became the youngest player, the first unseeded player and the first German to win the men's singles title at Wimbledon last July. Lendl, the world's top-ranked player and the No. 1 seed in this season-ending event, is the reigning U.S. Open champion.

For the first time since 1974, no American has reached the Masters semifinals.

Gomez failed to make the elite 16-player singles field. But when Jimmy Connors, the No. 4 seed, had to withdraw because of illness, Gomez was pressed into action at the last minute — almost literally.

The left-hander was attending a U.S. State Department luncheon for Ecuador President Leon Febres Cordero when he was summoned to participate in the Masters at New York's Madison Square Garden. He ousted Henri Leconte of France in the opening round and America's Johan Kriek in the quarterfinals.

Lendl, on the other hand, came into this tournament as the No. 1-ranked player in the world. He crushed fellow Czechoslovak Tomas Smid in the opening round, then escaped the hard-hitting Tim Mayotte in Friday night's quarterfinals 6-3, 6-3.

In Friday's other quarterfinal, Jarryd stopped giant-killer Brad Gilbert 6-1, 6-2. Gilbert had eliminated defending champion John McEnroe in the opening round 5-7, 6-4, 6-1.

"He always tries to give me no rhythm, and I didn't want to let him get away with that," Lendl said of Mayotte, a native of Springfield, Mass., who captured the NCAA title in 1981. "If you let him do something crazy at the beginning and he gets ahead of you, he could be dangerous."

Dangerous Mayotte was, as he matched Lendl almost stroke for stroke. But when the 74-minute match ended, Lendl had his 10th consecutive career victory over the big-serving right-hander without a loss.

"I was a little bit lucky tonight because I had good points at the break points against me," Lendl said. "He actually had more break chances than I did, but I was lucky and it ended up 3-3 for me."

Actually, Lendl was wrong. He had six break points to five for Mayotte. But he converted three of his, while Mayotte failed to break Lendl at all.

"It's frustrating, but it's the ultimate challenge to play the best player in the world," Mayotte said. "He's been playing this well for the past nine months. I've played him three times in those nine months, and he's been equally dangerous all three times.

"He seems to be able to do what he needs to do when he has to, and that's definitely the mark of the best player there is."

Lendl boomed five aces to two for Mayotte. And while Mayotte got 64 percent of his first serves in, he won just 62 percent of the points. Lendl, on the other hand, got 54 percent of his first serves in and won 87 percent of those points.

Jarryd had an easy time with Gilbert, who played nowhere near the form he displayed in ousting McEnroe.

"He just played really well," Gilbert admitted. "he jumped on me, and he played really well. ... He took the pace off the ball, and whenever I played short, he took advantage of it. I never felt like I really got into the match.

"Tonight I was thinking about how great I was playing and that I had hit the ball so great in practice," Gilbert said. "I just figured I'd go out there are do it again. ... He never really gave me a second chance."

Orlando Gives Sabres, Bowman Win In Debut

By The Associated Press

Scotty's back and the Sabres have got him — for the fourth time.

Scotty Bowman, the winningest coach in National Hockey League history, resumed his dual role as general manager and coach in Buffalo on Friday when he fired Jim Schoenfeld. Only three months ago, Schoenfeld was making his debut as Sabres coach.

Friday night, Bowman's latest debut was a successful one, thanks to Gates Orlando, who scored 71 seconds into overtime to lift the Sabres past the Montreal Canadiens 5-4. For Bowman, who previously had replaced Roger Neilson and Jim Roberts behind the Buffalo bench — after he had names them his successor as coach — it was career victory No. 719.

"This could turn things around and help our confidence," Bowman said after the Sabres helped tighten the Adams Division race a bit.

Quebec, which is tied with the Canadiens for first place in the sector, was routed 11-6 at Hartford. The Whalers and Sabres are tied for fourth, only seven points behind Montreal and Quebec. Boston is two points in front of the Whalers and Sabres.

Elsewhere Friday, the Islanders' Bryan Trottier scored with one second to play to give his team a 4-3 win at Philadelphia; Washington edged New Jersey 4-3; Winnipeg belted Chicago 5-1, and Los Angeles outlasted Vancouver 9-7.

"Tonight, we were trying to get the puck out of our end as fast as we could and it worked," said Bowman. "It was a type of game where we took a lot of chances, but I think we were in a position where we had to."

They were in a position to win because of Orlando, who was recalled from the minor leagues about the same time Schoenfeld was canned. Orlando scored twice, including the winner that deflected off the skate of Montreal defenseman Petr Svoboda and into the net.

Whalers 11, Nordiques 6

At Hartford, Ron Francis and Paul MacDermid scored two goals each as the Whalers tied a team record for most goals in an NHL game. Dean Evason and Tim Bothwell were the only Hartford players who didn't score points as the Whalers scored four goals in the opening period, broke open the game with six more in the second and added another goal in the third.

The Whalers also scored 11 times against the Canadiens on Oct. 19 of this season, and beat Edmonton 11-0 on Feb. 12, 1984.

Anton Stastny and John Anderson each scored twice for Quebec.

Islanders 4, Flyers 3

Trottier converted a pass from Mike Bossy just before the final buzzer to cap a New York comeback as the Islanders snapped the Flyers' four-game winning streak.

Down 3-1, the Isles tied the game 3-3 after goals by Mark Hamway and Brent Sutter. Philadelphia applied pressure in the final minute but it was Trottier who poked a shot from close range past goalie Bob Froese.

A five-minute discussion followed Trottier's goal, which was shown on television replays to have clearly entered the net before time ran out.

"(Linesman Kevin) Collins' whistle did not blow before the puck entered the net," said referee Brian Lewis. "At first, I had to consult with Collins to determine whether it was a goal because I saw the blue light out of the corner of my eye."

Collins insisted it was a goal and a call up to a league observer in the press box confirmed it.

Kings 9, Canucks 7

Visiting Los Angeles extended Vancouver's winless slide to nine game and moved ahead of the Canucks into fourth place in the Smythe.

Business Notes

Sales Achievement

Garris Evans Lumber Co. Inc., of Greenville, recently announced that it is one of almost 5,000 Ace Hardware stores nationwide which helped its dealer-owned cooperative, Ace Hardware Corp., reach a billion dollars in sales at the wholesale level in 1985.

David A. Evans Jr. of Garris Evans said the Greenville firm has been affliated with Ace Hardware since 1975.

Ace President Lawrence R. Gavin said the company has worked toward its sales goal for the past 60 years and at its present rate of growth expects to hit a second billion in sales in about eight years.

Senior VP Named

Blackwood is located in the company's Greenville office.

Planters Promotion

Ludie C. Smith has been promoted to mortgage loan officer and manager of the Planters Bank mortgage loan office in Greenville, according to Reuben M. Harris, senior vice president.

A Beaufort native, Ms. Smith joined Planters in 1984 as a mortgage loan processor in the Greenville office. She was previously employed by another financial institution in the area of mortgage loan servicing.

A graduate of East Carteret High School, Ms. Smith received a certificate in fundamentals of real estate from Pitt Technical Institute in 1976. She received her state real estate brokers license later that year.

She and her husband, Ken, have three children.

LUDIE C. SMITH

NCFCA Director

Larry Whitlow of Larry's Carpetland in Greenville is serving on the board of directors during 1986 of the North Carolina Floor Covering Associaton.

The trade association for persons working in the floor covering industry recently elected new leadership for 1986. A.B. Hair of A.B. Hair Carpets Inc. of Norlina is the organization's president.

General Manager

William E. Pittman, who had served as assistant manager of the Cricket Inn since the facility opened last June at 821 S. Memorial Drive, has been promoted to general manager.

Pittman, who has been in the motel business for 10 years, was associated with the John Yancy Motels in Newport News, Va., and a smaller motel in Greenville before joining Cricket Inn.

A North Carolina native, Pittman moved to Greenville after receiving a business degree from Emmanuel College, Franklin Springs, Ga. He is a member of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce and attends First Pentecostal Holiness Church.

Industrial Endeavor

Collins & Aikman Corp., manufacturer of industrial, commercial and residential products, has announced that it has entered the static control industry with a new line of products.

C&A, which operates a fashion fabrics plant at Farmville and has 17 of its 29 plants in North Carolina, said its newly formed Alpha Group, operating under its floor coverings division, has developed static-control products for industry, offices and homes. The product lines includes mats and desktops.

Recent Seminar

Ken D. Armstrong, owner of Down East Cleaning Service, attended a recent "water damage" seminar in Winston-Salem

Seminar topics included operating a 24-hour emergency program, job site inspection, water extraction, pad removals, application of sanitizers; structural damage, cleaning and deodorization, and anti-microbial treatments to carpets.

The session also covered restoration of wood and upholstered furniture, books, photographs and art works.

Switching Manager

Walter C. White, staff manager-analog service with Carolina Telephone in Tarboro, has relocated to Rocky Mount as district network switching manager.

White is responsible for the operation and maintenance of central office switching equipment in Tarboro, Greenville and Wilson as well as the company's long-distance facilities in Rocky Mount.

A Colerain native, White joined CT&T in 1955 as a central office repairman in Rocky Mount and currently resides there. He has two sons.

Service Meeting

Beltone Electronics Corp. said that Billy R. Nixon, Robert D. McPhee, Jack Sherrill, R.C. Bradley, Nancy Bradley, Gene Pittman, Hubert Smith, Joan Rouse, Charles Whiteford, Matilda Pate and Carolyn Prinz, local Beltone hearing aid specialists, attended a Beltone sales and service seminar in Greenville.

The company said the recent two-day meeting covered such subjects as psychology of the hearing impaired, problem solving and post-fitting care of clients.

The employees are associated with Smith Hearing Aid Service, 1716 W. Fifth St., which is owned and operated by Hubert Smith.

Survey Lists Firm

The Planters Corp., the parent holding company of Planters Bank, was recently listed in a survey of companies that have raised dividends for 10 consecutive years. The survey was published in "Dun's Business Month."

Marketing Director

Empire Brushes Inc. of Greenville has announced the appointment of C. Louis Spirrison to director of marketing and sales for its newly created sanitary supply division.

A Chicago native, Spirrison attended Northwestern University, majoring in management. He has held various sales positions with companies throughout the United States.

Spirrison will be responsible for the development of marketing and sales programs for Empire's sanitary supply business. The company said it manufactures approximately 550 sanitary products.

C. LOUIS SPIRRISON

Division Closing

Vermont American Corp. recently announced plans to close its American Saw & Tool Division located in Louisville, Ky., according to Lee B. Thomas Jr., board chairman.

Thomas said approximately 145 employees will be affected by the closing.

The company manufactures and markets cutting tools, power tool accessories, hand tools, and lawn and garden products for consumer and industrial use.

Vermont American operates a plant in Greenville.

Earnings Increased

Branch Corp. has announced that year-end earnings totaled $23,127,000, up 4.7 percent from last year.

Branch said that for the fourth quarter ended Dec. 31, net income was $5,137,000, down from the 5,900,000 reported last year.

The corporation is the parent holding company of Branch Banking and Trust Co., which operates 156 offices in 90 cities in North Carolina.

Figures Improved

The Peanut Shack of America Inc., recently reported higher earnings for the second consecutive quarter of fiscal year 1986.

Net income was reported at $136,000, up 167 percent from the same period last year. The company said 10 new stores were opened during the year.

Peanut Shack has a store in Greenville.

Marketing Director

Empire Brushes has announced the promotion of Donald L. Pack Jr. to director of marketing. The firm said Pack develops national marketing plans and strategies for the Greenville manufacturer.

Pack joined Empire in 1982 from East Carolina University where he was a lecturer. He was formerly owner of Cleanco and head of sales at Holland Distribution. He is a graduate of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and earned his master's degree in business administration in 1981 at ECU.

Insurance Sales

Harold H. Pittman, agency manager for Eastern Carolina Pittman and Associates, said the agency produced $174,440,917 volume in new insurance sales during 1985 as 2,932 policies were issued for the year.

Total premiums paid on the new sales in 1985 totaled $3,467,151.

New CT&T Post

William J. Carroll Jr., administrator-operator services with Carolina Telephone, has been named to the new position of administrator-number services.

Carolina Telephone said Carroll will direct the directory assistance personnel.

A native of Maury, Carroll joined Carolina Telephone in 1959 in Tarboro. Carroll, a member of Englewood United Methodist Church, is married to the former Jean Davis of Ormondsville and they have three children.

Familiarization Trip

Erin Benson of Greenville Travel Center, 200 Arlington Blvd., returned recently from a four-day familiarization trip to Snowmass, Colo., sponsored by Delta Airlines and Snowmass.

The itinerary for the trip included tours of the hotel properties of Snowmass and Aspen.

Highest Income

Peoples Bancorporation has reported that its net income for 1985 was the highest in its 54-year history, totaling $6.354 million compared to $3.066 million in 1984.

The corporation said net income in 1984 was lowered by bond losses taken by the bank as part of the restructuring of the investment portfolio.

At year end, the corporation's assets totaled $735 million, an increase of 12.3 percent over the $654.7 million reported a year earlier. Total deposits amounted to $636.4 million, up 11.5 percent from $570.8 million for 1984.

Driver Recognized

Jerry Harrell, who drives out of the United Parcel Service office in Greenville, was recognized recently by UPS for driving 20 years without an accident.

Harrell joined UPS as a delivery driver in 1965 in Williamston and moved to the UPS facility in Edenton. He transferred from Edenton to Greenville, his present assignment.

Harrell and his wife, Carolyn, reside on Red Banks Road and have four children and two stepchildren.

The local UPS facility, located on Route 10, Greenville, has 33 drivers working out of the location, with another 29 employees in various managerial, clerical and package handling positions.

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, JAN. 19, 1986

YOUR DAILY Horoscope
from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is a day fraught with considerable activity, and a potentially highly organized course of action is now replaced by a more imaginative set of circumstances.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) A good day to hunt around for artistic pieces to make your home more charming. Tonight be careful of shady persons.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Sunday pursuits can bring happiness during the daytime but steer clear of an argument in the evening.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Concentrate on improving your image and develop your character in right channels. Steer clear of one who can be sarcastic.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Be happy with your mate at recreations that you both enjoy, but tonight rest up and plan the new week well.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) You can have inspiring and worthwhile talks with partners today whose ideas are different to your own, but stick to your own beliefs.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Plan those activities that most please you during the daytime that will make the future brighter, but avoid dull tasks tonight.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Go out early with friends and have a happy time with them. In the evening, get to work on some project you started recently.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Be happy with your family today and tonight fix up your home as you want it to be. Plan for the new week's activities.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get into amusements that make you feel happy and alive, but tonight drive with care and avoid possible accidents.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Study how to improve your financial status and think in a more modern vein. Be frugal tonight.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Pursue what you most want in a positive and sure way, and it is yours, then take it easy tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You are inspired how to gain your aspirations so carry through quickly for best results to follow.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she can readily comprehend whatever is of a mdoern nature, so be sure you send to the most up-to-date schools where such an individual can be trained properly so that great success is possible during the lifetime. A new era product who needs special handling. Teach good manners.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, JAN. 20, 1986

YOUR DAILY Horoscope
from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Until noon you have the chance to work out from under practical difficulties and to see a light ahead for gaining more of the good things that you desire.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Get advice from financial experts and business moguls so that you can improve your position in life. You can add to your income.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You know how best to gain personal aims in the morning, but don't be forceful with your friends later.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get working on private matters and do so successfully in the morning. Think of others in the evening.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) A friend will help you to gain some cherished aim, so accept the assistance gracefully. Try not to irk your mate.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Do something in public that can add to prestige in the community in which you live. Later avoid one who is quite bizarre.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Be more willing to accept changes and take on new enterprises, and you can get ahead faster.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) An ideal morning for trying some novel way to handle your regular work and get better results.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Try to see a partner's side of a situation that is important to you both and reach an accord.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get into the specifics of your work and get fine results, early but later you find that an associate is not working satisfactorily.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Morning is fine for getting amusements arranged properly for tonight, and then complete dull tasks ahead of you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get your home in better shape early in the day. Tonight you may find that the pleasures you had anticipated do not work out.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Handle communication ideally in the morning, and then you can handle important home affairs.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she could be very clever at business matters so slant the education along such lines, and there can be much success in this lifetime. Later there may be a desire to get into other kinds of activities, but teach to be steadfast to whatever has been started.

Women Continue To Find Craft Talents

A DOLL VARIETY...is displayed by Mrs. Moore. The dolls, both male and female, are soft sculpture.

Three members of the Ormond family have talents they continue to develop. Marland Moore, her cousin, Barbara Edmondson, and her aunt, Blanche Ormond, all of near Winterville, create a variety of crafts.

A remodeled smoke house is used by Mrs. Ormond for painting her wood articles and a woodwork shop is being set up for sawing equipment.

She hasn't been into crafts very long — eight months to a year. "I planned to do this when I retire," she said.

"It's getting to the point now that I can do a lot of my cutting on the machine and sanding. I paint at night after our evening meal — it's relaxing to me. The more I paint, the better I can do it. I have carried some of my things to work and was told by one of my co-workers, 'I didn't know you could paint.' I told her I didn't know it either,'" she said.

"I enjoy painting more and more. It's like cooking, the longer you get it, the better you are," she said.

"I didn't know I could draw until about four months ago. I often look at a picture and then draw a pattern like it. Right now I am not trying to do anything original — I haven't gotten that far yet. I have also just found out that I can paint as well as I draw," she said.

Mrs. Ormond likes to do one thing for a while and then will try something else. She is trying to get a few things made and finished. She likes to work on three items at the time in order not to have a wait for something to dry. If the object is smaller, she makes more than three.

By Christmas of this year she would like to be making doll furniture such as beds possibly with canopies and high chairs. "I would also make the canopy top with a ruffle to match the one on the bedspread. If time permits I want to make door wreaths," she said.

She divides her time working full time at Union Carbide, housekeeping and her interests in crafts.

"Weather permitting, I enjoy yard work. In the summertime, my husband, Sidney, and I fish and shrimp. I am first mate on our boat for him," she said.

Mrs. Edmondson worked eight and a half years outside the home before deciding to stay at home. "After a week, I decided to attend Pitt Community College. I enjoyed it but I didn't have time for anything else. A friend and I took a course in making lampshades which gave use the basics and an idea of what to do," she said.

"We weren't satisfied with the way the shades looked — I have this thing — what I do has to look good to me — if it doesn't I will not show it. I am a perfectionist. When someone sees my work, I want them to appreciate the art there and be able to compare it and know that I am an artist," she added.

Mrs. Edmondson says she has no idea of the number of shades she has turned out. "I have calluses from using my Exacto knife for cutting and even on my finger from sliding it across the paper. Of course, I'm happy to have them because my fingers are now tough to the pain," she said.

She has sold a lot of her shades locally and also to two gift stores in New York. Mrs. Edmondson has also exhibited in several craft shows and sales.

She has some patterns and originals. "The shapes of the shades, I design. I either make alterations to the pattern as needed or shrink the pattern down or enlarge it to fit the lamp or to suit the person's personality," she said. She also does shades in a variety of colors.

Mrs. Edmondson has done a lot of research to find paper, lamp parts and color selections and shade frames.

"My painting ability is coming to me slowly. I'm getting into more detailed items rather than primitive forms. I am really happy about this. I had always envied people with real artistic ability in painting. Now I start with things that are more advanced. I keep practicing by doing harder to paint objects. I am now combining painting and making the lamp shades," she added.

"Before marriage, I enjoyed doing other things - like crocheting which I started when I was five, and cross stitch. Now that I am home, I am developing my talents and I'm happy with what I do," she said.

In woodworking Mrs. Edmondson and her husband, Dean, are trying to do things which are unique, cute and eye-catching. "A lot of people are doing wood; but the secret, in my opinion, is treating each piece like it is going into my house. That is also the secret of lamp shades," she said.

The couple's daughter, Bridget, is also learning to make lamp shades.

Marland and Jerry Moore are in the process of remodeling an old out building to serve as a workshop and place to store and display their craft work.

"Co-workers and friends have always encouraged me to get more involved in the craft business and open a shop, but I'm taking one step at the time. Currently we are using out outside utility room for our wood crafts," said Mrs. Moore.

"When I was little, we were visiting friends and my mother said I asked them to save their tin cans for me. I guess I saw them as 'pots and pans' to play with. Today, when I look at different cans and bottles and their unique shapes, I see flower planters, lamps, candle holders, dolls and much more. I'm still collecting 'tin cans,'" said Mrs. Moore.

"I don't like to throw anything away that might be useful in craft work. Even wood scraps can be something if you have imagination enough to discover it. Sometimes collecting these treasures can be a problem because of the space required for storage. I usually keep projects in boxes sitting around my sewing room and other areas in my house," she said.

Mrs. Moore was employed 30 years with Carolina Telephone and Telegraph. She chose an early retirement when the Greenville operator service department closed Oct. 12, 1985. This is her first experience in not having an outside job.

"Since I've always enjoyed sewing, this laid a good background for craft work which involved use of a sewing machine. This is one of the first things I bought when I started working and now I have accumulated three electric ones and one old peddle type machine plus an interlock machine which is very useful in craft work. My sewing experience has included wearing apparel for myself and other family members such as wedding dresses, lingerie, curtains, pillows and dolls. I especially enjoy making lingerie and dollmaking and dislike alterations," she said.

"I became interested in soft sculpture around 1975 when I read an article in one of my craft books. I didn't have much luck and wasn't satisfied with the results which led to my developing mu own methods for making soft sculptured heads from nylon hose. These first dolls were little old people which resembled the dried apple dolls. I later had an idea for a 'cupie' type made from hose and developed it. This led to more and larger dolls. Soft sculpting is very satisfying and is like taking a piece of clay and molding it. Soft sculpture material wasn't available when I first started making dolls. The nylon hose is more flexible to work with, allowing a more realistic look," she said.

"When the Cabbage Patch type dolls came out, materials became available along with patterns and instruction books. I have bought lots of books and patterns to experiment with and most of the time end up changing something or developing my own techniques. I like looking for a better and easier way. I have a strong desire to create the perfect soft sculpture doll. I do make one which comes close. I found a pattern which suited an idea I had for a moving baby. I had to adopt parts of the patterns to my idea but this does not quality my claiming it as my pattern. You cannot take parts of different patterns or slightly change a pattern and claim it as your own. I have corresponded with the owner of the pattern but have not decided what I want to do yet. This is one of my favorite dolls though," she said.

Mrs. Moore enjoys teaching others how to sew or do craft work. She has taught several classes in dollmaking and enjoys the challenge.

"I find wood work very relaxing also. Taking a piece of wood and creating something gives you a feeling of satisfaction. I have interested my husband in wood work and we work together in his spare time. My mother, Doris Grubbs, who lives next door, also works with me in my crafts. She makes dolls using procelain heads, arms and legs," she added.

Mrs. Moore likes candlewicking, cross stitch and reading. "However, I don't read as much as I'd like because once I start a good book, I hate to put it down. Now that I am retired, I have time to do all the things I like and to finish some of the projects I've started," she said.

"I believe you can do anything if you want to. Whether or not I'll have a craft business remains to be seen. I'm going to live one day at the time and enjoy being at home and doing the things I enjoy," Mrs. Moore said.

Valentine Cards For This Year Take New Look Of Romance

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Love is definitely not blind in the current crop of love cards and valentines, which take a clear-eyed, sometimes humorous, look at romance, reports a greeting card company official here.

"You can almost read society's mind by browsing through a card shop," says Wayne Miller, a product manager at Hallmark. "And today's cards say that people are very much interested in love — though not always in the traditional way.

"Several recent demographic changes have affected our attitudes toward love," he explains. "Some of these are people waiting longer to marry, singles created through divorce and an increase in first and subsequent marriages."

Many of the 830 million valentines expected to be given this year will reflect the singles scene, he said. One card, for example, features "personals" newspaper ads. Circled in red is an ad seeking a valentine who is adoring, vibrant, shy, intelligent and lots of fun. Inside, the card says, "Good luck, Kid, so am I!"

Another shows a woman in a singles bar being leered at by men. All heads turn as a knight arrives on a white horse. "I've been waiting for someone like you," the woman says.

A card that has no written message shows a middle-aged man and a middle-aged woman on separate paths in the park. Cupid has just shot an arrow at the man, who sees neither the arrow nor the woman whose path he is about to cross.

"But that's only one side of the love story," Miller points out. "Many cards are totally traditional and vow unending love. Some even have a Victorian look."

A card replete with cupids, hearts, flowers and lace talks of " ... happiness today and tomorrow and always ... " and one that opens into myriad roses, lovebirds and hearts carries the ever-popular simple message: "I love you."

Other cards are more sultry. One shows a couple in a hot tub. A transparent plastic post card presents its message via pink lip prints, and another shows a heart with three little words: "throb ... throb ... throb."

Miller says the variety in valentine messages should not be surprising. "Our research indicates an increasing year-round interest in communicating about love," he said.

So, newer cards designed to be used any time of the year include one that features the message, "Love means coming home to the someone who's been in your heart all day." Others suggest talking — or listening — after a quarrel. And some broach the topic of hurt when love doesn't last.

"The biggest change in love cards is that they are more direct," Miller said. "We have found that people want cards that say exactly what they feel at a particular time."

J.H. Rose High School

By GITA GULATI

This year, for the first time, Rose High School students will be participating in the United States Academic Decathalon. This unique program is a nationwide competition among high school students designed to "promote and reward academic endeavors." It is unique in that it uses the team concept, much like in athletic competitions, to motivate students.

The competition is divided into ten events: objective tests in the fine arts, English and grammar, social science, science, mathematics, and economics, in addition to essay writing, a planned and an impromptu speech, and an interview to test communication skills. The final event is the Super Quiz, in which students answer oral questions on a given topic. This year's topic is Immigration to the United States. All students are required to participate in all ten events. In this way, students who are strong in some subjects are able to gain knowledge in a wider range of areas.

The Academic Decathlon actually began in 1968 as a local competition in California. It was the brainchild of Dr. Robert Peterson, then Orange County Superintendent of Schools. His idea spread, went statewide in 1979, and became a national competition in 1982. Last year, over two thousand schools from America and Canada participated, and that number is expected to double for this year's event.

Rose High is among four high schools that will be competing at Davidson County Community College in Lexington, N.C., on February 14 for the chance to go on to the national championships in Los Angeles on April 3. The winning team will receive a lot of media attention. Last year, the finals were covered by the ABC Morning News, Newsweek, The New York Times and many other publications from across the country. Members of the team from Rose are Bella Kang, Lynn Worley, Lara Perry, Susan Hewitt, Eugene Lao, Gavin Sundwall, Melissa Monroe, Jenny Lail, and David McDonnell. Coaching the students are Mrs. Billie Lennon and Mrs. Barbara Mallory. The students are being taught in the required areas by teachers from Rose and East Carolina University.

Each team that is participating must consist of six students — two A students, two B students and two C or below students. The organizers of the Decathalon established this requirement to get more students involved and to prove that this competition is not just for the academic elite. Often, it is the C students who perform the best because they have finally found the motivation they need. And once they find this motivation, they continue to experience academic success.

The Rose High team has not had much time to prepare for the Decathlon. But everyone involved has put forth their best effort in the hopes of producing a strong, and hopefully unbeatable, team. It would be quite an honor for Rose High School — whose teams have always excelled in athletics — to win the "Super Bowl of Academics."

Retired Colonel Enjoys Woodworking With Kids

From WOOD MAGAZINE

Jim Woodruff, a retired Air Force colonel living in Arvada, Colo., firmly believes in woodworking with kids, just as his grandfather did.

"If it hadn't been for his interest in a darn ornery kid — letting me work in the shop — I could have ended up in trouble," Woodruff says. "I was orphaned and hated the world until he took me in and built up my confidence."

Because his service career kept him moving around, Woodruff's own kids grew up before he could set up a permanent shop. But now, his six grandchildren, ages 4 to 10, often congregate in his double-garage workshop.

According to WOOD magazine, other child-oriented woodworkers are just as positive as Woodruff regarding children in the shop.

Besides the confidence that comes from showing youngsters how to use their hands as well as their heads, there are other advantages: nurturing creativity, a sense of accomplishment, patience, and persistence.

"They find a whole new direction," comments Chicagoan Joe Veracka, a national demonstrator for Black & Decker's woodworking tools. He has guided kids through projects for the last dozen years. "It changes their lives when they end up being excellent craftspersons instead of klutzes."

Mike McPherson, who works in Des Moines' public schools, has a woodworking business as a family sideline. Mike, his wife, his dad, and his two preschool daughters often spend evenings and weekends in the shop working on their "Home Tweet Home" wren houses. "Our girls see us having fun together as a family," McPherson says.

In Tempe, Ariz., Paul McClure has often seen his own and his foster kids' reaction to an accomplishment in the shop. "When they can say 'I did it myself' their pride just bursts forth."

Ages 6 through 12 seem the prime time to introduce kids to the workshop.

Teens present more of a challenge, mainly because they have so many outside interests. Still, a woodworking interest fostered earlier probably will continue. Paul McClure's children — Sean, 13, Angie, 14, and Tess, 17 — regularly turn out projects which include elaborate chessboards and marquetry from exotic woods.

The tools kids can use depend on the individual child's maturity level. Preschoolers may not need tools at all — water-soluble glue, wood scraps, and sandpaper will be fine. Starting about age 7, they can usually manage some hand tools, such as hammers, pliers, hand planes, and a small twist drill.

Woodruff hesitates to let youngsters this age work with sharp tools; he prefers to make necessary cuts himself. At age 10 or 11 he introduces them to the portable jigsaw, which he feels is about the safest.

Graduating kids to power tools requires some individualized judgment. McClure looks at the child's strength, height and maturity. His son used the lathe at 8, but couldn't use a router unti he was 13. Veracka has found that kids from 12 to 15 might be old enough for the radial-arm saw, band saw, or drill press.

"Some kids at 10 are more mature than others at 16," he says. "Even then, they have to be taught respect. I tell them 'These tools can bite you, and you can't bite them back.'"

Many youngsters have a short attention span, easily become discouraged, or rebel at being told exactly what to do. That's why it takes a special sensitivity to work with them. Try these suggestions:

— Make kids comfortable in your shop. McClure and McPherson assembled pint-sized workbenches. But just a special space on your workbench will do.

— Don't push. Forcing kids into a project takes the fun out. If they get bored, let them take a break.

— Encourage originality. Should they insist on copying a design, have them alter it so it becomes their own.

— Ask for drawings. Drawing out what they want to build develops communication and thinking skills.

— Let them set the pace. Hurrying kids turns them off. "Work with them as an equal, not just as a teacher," suggests Veracka.

— Avoid criticizing. Help youngsters see their mistakes as learning opportunities — not as excuses for quitting.

— Make sure they complete projects. Kids, like adults, take pride in accomplishment. That means seeing a project through to the finish, even if it's not perfectly executed.

1 cup fresh bread crumbs
1 clove garlic, finely chopped
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon ground cumin
Six 6-inch pita (pocket breads)
Sliced tomatoes
Alfalfa sprouts

Make Yogurt Sauce. In a medium bowl, mix together lamb, sausage and egg; mix in bread crumbs, garlic, salt and cumin. Shape into 6 thin patties. Pan-fry for 2 to 3 minutes on each side or until well-done. Meanwhile heat pita; insert patties; spoon 1-3rd cup yogurt sauce into each pita; add tomatoes and sprouts. Serve at once. Makes 6 servings.

Yogurt Sauce: Stir together 2 cups plain yogurt, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon ground cumin, 1 teaspoon dried mint, 1-3rd cup finely chopped onion and 1 garlic clove (finely chopped). Let stand 30 to 60 minutes for flavors to blend. Makes 2 cups.

In Wintertime, Warm Up With Hot Spices

From BETTER HOMES AND GARDENS

To get the best and hottest flavor from herbs, spices and peppers, prepare and cook them right.

Follow recipe directions closely when adding seasonings. Remember, with extra cooking, some get stronger, others decrease in intensity. A little extra attention to detail yields big taste benefits when you serve hot and spicy foods, according to Better Homes and Gardens Low Calorie Recipes.

Peel fresh gingerroot, if desired. Then use a fine grater to make very small particles. Store whole fresh gingerroot by freezing it, wrapped in moisture- and vapor- proof wrap. You need not thaw it before grating.

Though ground ginger cannot match the flavor of fresh gingerroot, in a pinch you can substitute about one-fourth of the amount of ground ginger for grated gingerroot.

Measure dried herbs and spices before crushing by lightly filling the proper measuring spoon to the top. There's no need to level with a spatula.

To release their flavor, crush dried herbs and aromatic seeds into very fine particles with a mortar and pestle. Another way to crush herbs is to place them in the palm of one hand and crush them with the thumb of your other hand.

Fresh herbs are usually snipped into very fine pieces before measuring. Place the uncut herb in a measuring cup and snip it repeatedly with kitchen shears. Check to make sure you have the proper measure for the particular recipe.

To interchange fresh and dried herbs, use this rule of thumb: Three measures of fresh herb equal one measure of dried herb.

Best known of all hot seasonings is chili powder, a blend of spices which varies somewhat by manufacturer. Give your hot and spicy dishes distinctive flavor by making your own blend.

Wearing rubber or plastic gloves, remove the stems and seeds from four dried pequin, cayenne or whole red chili peppers and three dried ancho peppers. Using scissors or sharp knife, cut the dried peppers into small pieces. In a blender container combine the cut-up peppers with four teaspoons cumin seed, one teaspoon garlic powder, one teaspoon ground coriander, one teaspoon dried oregano, and one-half teaspoon whole cloves. Cover and blend to a fine powder. Store in an airtight container in a cool, dry place. Makes about one-third cup.

Though chilies do not belong to the pepper family, people started calling them chili peppers in the days of Christopher Columbus and the name has stuck.

Because chili peppers contain volatile oils that can burn skin and eyes, avoid direct contact with the peppers as much as possible. It's best to wear plastic or rubber gloves when cleaning peppers. If gloves are not available, work under cold running water. If your bare hands touch the chili peppers, wash your hands and nails well with soap and water.

It's a common fallacy that the seeds are the hottest part of the pepper, when in reality, it's the ribs and membrane to which the seeds are attached. You can adjust the hotness of your recipe by leaving or removing this portion of the pepper.

Store fresh chili peppers in paper bags in the refrigerator for up to one week. To freeze, broil peppers as directed below. Then cool and place in a plastic bag. Seal, label and freeze. The skins will peel off easily as the peppers thaw.

It is often best to peel the firm skin from fresh peppers before using. To loosen the skin for easier peeling, place peppers on a broiler pan 4 inches from heat. Broil, turning often till charred on all sides. Place broiled peppers in a paper or plastic bag. Close bag tightly. Let stand 10 minutes. This steams the peppers so the skin easily peels away from the flesh.

Cut the stems from the tops of the peppers. To remove the seeds, membrane and ribs, slit the peppers open. Place them, seed side up, on a flat surface. Then, use a sharp knife to scrape the seeds and ribs from the flesh. Slice or chop the peppers as directed in recipe.

Dried chili peppers are convenient because they have a long shelf life. They can be stored in a cool, dry place for up to a year. For longer storage, freeze them in an airtight container.

Before using dried chili peppers, rinse them in cold water. Cut them open and discard the stems and seeds. Cut the peppers into small pieces with scissors or knife. To soften peppers for use in a sauce, soak them in boiling water for 45 to 60 minutes or till pliable; drain well before adding to sauce.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

Many Claim Bouquet For Composing Flower Poem

DEAR ABBY: The residents of a seniors' retirement complex in Lubbock, Texas, share your philosophy that flowers should be given to the living.

This wonderful poem is framed and hanging in the entrance of our game room:

"I would rather have a little rose from the garden of a friend,
"Than flowers strewn around my casket when my days on earth must end.
"I would rather have a living smile from one I know is true,
"Than tears shed 'round my casket when this world I bid adieu.
"Bring me all the flowers today whether pink or white or red,
"I would rather have one blossom now than a truckload when I'm dead." (Author Unknown)

Abby, do you know who wrote it?

LUCILLE

DEAR LUCILLE: I've run that lovely poem a couple of times, hoping to locate the author. I couldn't. A sample of the responses:

DEAR ABBY: I read that poem in the Macon Telegraph News, and recognized it immediately. I was written by a prominent Macon, Ga., dentist, R. Holmes Mason, now deceased 34 years. Dr. Mason was dedicated to his family, church and profession.

E.H., MACON, GA.

DEAR ABBY: The author of the poem you published was my brother, Herman B. Stokes, now deceased. The name of the poem is "A Rose." It was set to music about 10 years ago. I was deeply touched when I read it.

THELMA STOKES, LOS ANGELES

DEAR ABBY: I read in the Tulsa Tribune the poem whose real title is "A Flower for the Living." It was written many years ago by my mother, Lela Snider, who lives in Okmulgee, Okla. She sent it to her sister, Mrs. Myrtle Acock, who lives in Ramona, Calif. Aunt Myrtle had copies made and sent it to her friends. Since then it has been published several times, always with "Author Unknown." My mother is 76, has had many strokes and is confined to a wheelchair.

AUTHOR'S PROUD DAUGHTER

DEAR ABBY: My husband noticed the poem in your column in The State paper of Columbia, S.C. The version you printed is slightly different from the original, titled, "Kindness Through Life." It was written by Austin K. Snyder, a professor at the U.S. Naval Academy. This poem appeared in Shipmate, a publication of the U.S. Naval Academy Alumni Association in September 1977.

VIRGINIA McMILLAN, MYRTLE BEACH, S.C.

DEAR ABBY: You can quit hunting for the author of that poem printed in the Sioux City Journal. The correct title is "I'd Rather," written by William Nick Gikas, a 32nd-degree Mason who lived in Everett, Wash. Dad, who is now 91, is a Mason and Shriner. He subscribed to the lodge publications, and Mother was always cutting out poems and putting them in her scrapbook. That poem has been in Mother's scrapbook for years.

Smart Grocery Shopping Strategy Helps Save Money

By REDBOOK
A Hearst Magazine

Don't get mad when your food bill goes up — get smart.

Smart shopping strategy helps you save money at the checkout counter without sacrificing taste, nutrition or convenience, according to food and consumer experts in an article in the February issue of Redbook. The key is to devise a shopping plan.

— Assess your spending habits. Pinpoint where you are overspending. Heinz Biesdorf, professor in the Department of Consumer Economics at Cornell University, suggested keeping a record of all food purchased, with prices, to compile a workable profile of your grocery spending. Or save supermarket tapes.

Many families overbuy meat, stock up on produce that spoils before it is eaten, or overspend on specialty items.

— Consult the weekly food specials. Since 30 percent of the average food dollar goes for meat and poultry, check these items carefully. Stock up on sale-priced canned or packaged goods — but only those items your family likes. Don't buy too much produce or it will spoil.

"Not every special really represents substantial savings," Biesdorf said. "Be familiar enough with average regular prices to spot the good deals."

— Make meal plans. Dianne Odland, home economist with the U.S. Department of Agriculture Human Nutrition Service in Hyattsville, Md., said meal planning helps cut down on both impulse buying and extra trips to the supermarket.

— Always go with a list. Odland said you can either go with a complete list of all specific foods needed for preplanned menus, or with a partial list of general categories such as cereal, bread, main courses and so on. That way you can buy bargains and plan meals based on what you bought.

— Avoid impulse buys. Stick with your list, except for specials you can use or items you need but forgot to write down. Snack before you shop — never hit the supermarket hungry.

— Use coupons wisely. Don't expect major savings with coupons — they seldom cover perishables that make up the lion's share of your food dollar. Check to see if the coupon requires a minimum purchase (often no bargain), and if the couponed item is cheaper than one on special. Don't buy a product you may not like just because you have a coupon.

— Pick your supermarket carefully. Biesdorf advised shopping where the specials are. Odland said if time is tight, shop around for a consistently reasonably priced convenient store.

— Consider warehouse stores. Biesdorf said they offer low prices on some items, but their stock is not consistent from week to week. To find a warehouse store, check newspaper food ads or your local Chamber of Commerce.

— Buy in bulk when possible. In warehouse stores and some supermarkets you can scoop up flour, sugar and other dry foods, saving packaging costs. But be sure all bulk-food containers are clean and tightly closed when not in use.

— Try store and generic brands. Generics offer the most savings. Both are as nutritious as brand name items, but before making big purchases buy a few to see if they meet your taste requirements.

— Understand unit pricing. Odland warned that the large size is usually — but not always — less expensive than smaller sizes. The only way to tell is to check unit pricing.

— Time your shopping trips. Avoid the late afternoon rush, when you will be tempted to grab the fastest, easiest items just to get out of the store in a hurry.

Follow these food shopping strategies, Maggie Morrison wrote in Redbook, and you will be able to buy more — for less money.

At Wits End

By Erma Bombeck

For all of you sedentary people out there ... and you all know who you are ... I thought I should alert you to the next aerobic sport geared to get your heart beating again.

Every three or four years, there's something. Golf gave way to the tennis craze which moved over for jogging which waned when aerobics came in, and now it's (drum roll) backpacking!

It's a swell sport. Unlike jogging where you just go out and run, this time you put a pack on your back filled with food, water, medical aids, or just strap another person on it who is too little or tires easily to walk with you. There is even a backpack for your dog.

Then you pick out a trail that is relatively free of rocks, fallen trees, snakes, fallen backpackers or snow and follow it to the top of a mountain or until you can't go anymore. You sit down and rest a spell and then you walk back.

Maybe this doesn't sound like much to you, but people are going crazy for it. More than 200,000 people signed up for treks in Nepal last year even though there was a war in Afghanistan and travel restrictions in France. It's just another little rock in the sock, as we say.

If you're one of those people who likes to get in at the beginning of a trend, you'd do well to listen to the advice of Dr. Cyril D. Foutz, Phoenix, before you start.

"Backpacking is planning and timing," he says. "All you need are a large Ace bandage, the smallest backpack possible, a small bottle of glycerine and an old sleeping bag.

"At the start of the trip, let everyone know (a) you are glad to go even though your doctor advised you to stay off your sore leg and (b) you borrowed the sleeping bag from a relative of Robert E. Peary who took it to the North Pole, therefore giving it sentimental value.

"Since your bag is small, offer to take the food. Then make sure it is eaten the first day. At the beginning, be generous with the water out of your canteen by sharing it with others. Now your canteen and bag are empty and everyone owes you water and food.

"On the second day, limp and apply Ace bandage to leg along with the glycerine to your face. It looks like sweat, but does not evaporate. Repeat story about valuable sleeping bag. Tell everyone what a wonderful time you are having.

"Single out the macho man of the group when he is talking with a lady and tell him you are dropping out of the hike. Macho man will immediately offer to carry your 'valuable' equipment to impress the lady. Do not accept his offer until a look of admiration appears in her eyes.

"Follow these rules and you will be able to enjoy a backpacking trip without the weight of a backpack."

I would add only one last word of advice. If there is a Dr. Cyril D. Foutz on your expedition, tell everyone you have a blister and maybe next time.

Mix And Match For Versatility

From BETTER HOMES AND GARDENS

These aggravations can often be attributed to low humidity levels inside your home. Low humidity results because cold air, heated to room temperature, has an enormous capacity to draw moisture from every available source — even you. You feel chilly because the dry air evaporates heat-retaining moisture from your skin. By installing a humidifier in your home, you can combat these wintertime annoyances and feel comfortable at lower thermostat settings, according to Better Homes and Gardens Building Ideas.

If your home lacks a forced-air heating system and isn't exceptionally spacious, you can add humidity with a freestanding humidifier. When centrally located, this type of unit can provide adequate humidification. Keep in mind, though, that these units have to be manually filled with water.

For homes equipped with a forced-air system, a better choice may be to install a power humidifier that connects with supply air ducts. Because these units require no manual filling and have greater humidification capacity, they're usually preferable to freestanding models.

All types of humidifiers come with a dial that lets you control the humidity level in the air. The settings are calculated for a home with insulating glass or storm windows. If you notice moisture on windows, the humidity level may be set too high, which can eventually cause structural damage to your home. In this case, dial down the control knob and ventilate as much as possible.

Although all power humidifiers have the same mission, not all of them accomplish it in the same way. Some spray a fine mist directly into the air stream; others rotate a porous water wheel through the heated air; still others pull the air through a moist pad.

Better power units are controlled by a humidistat — a moisture-sensing device similar to a thermostat — that installs in central living areas. When your home's relative humidity reaches a preset point, the humidistat turns off the humidifier until the moisture level drops again. The unit also turns on and off with the furnace blower.

As you shop for a humidifier, look for a high-quality unit with an accurate humidistat and features that resist rust and potential damage caused by hard water deposits.

You'll also want a unit with an adequate humidification capacity. Your dealer can help determine the correct capacity by considering your home's size and tightness of construction.

Western Fashion Classics Are Staging A Comeback

NEW YORK (AP) — Today's young men and women, who grew up watching Western shows on television, have recently seen the return of a classic, the Western movie. And now they're seeing the return of another classic: the Western look in fashion.

That look is emerging in virtually every type of casual wear, according to Gil Truedsson, Coty Award-winning fashion designer and spokesman for the Western Boot Council of America.

"I doubt that there has ever been a style of apparel that is more durable, more comfortable or better designed," he says. "The primary concerns about clothing years ago in the West were that it protected you from the elements and the terrain, and that it lasted. That quality is still present in today's more stylish designs."

The popularity of Western styles is enormous, especially in the Western-style boot, says Tom Duffy of the boot council.

"In 1983 alone, more than 10.6 million pairs of Western boots were sold in the United States, and now Western boots are hitting every sidewalk from Fifth Avenue to Rodeo Drive.

"Boots are perfect for winter wear in the city because they shield the wearer's legs and feet from snow, rain and winds," he adds. "The tough leather sole stands up to cement, and when it's been broken in, the boot conforms to the foot well and is very comfortable."

In the area of fashion, boots are equally durable, Truedsson points out. "They can be made from exotic skins such as ostrich or alligator, or from the more traditional cowhide, tanned in a multitude of colors, and worn with casual wear in any setting. More than any other article of Western clothing, boots are an expression of individuality."

Available to the boot purchaser are options that include two-toned leathers, a limitless number of stitching patterns, inlaid gold or silver, and even boots encrusted with gemstones.

Other items of Western apparel are gaining in popularity, Truedsson says. The hottest thing in handbags is the "saddlebag look," and denim jeans, in traditional blue and many fashion colors, are more popular than ever.

Western style cotton shirts in solids and plaids are staging a comeback. Suede and leather vests are fashion favorites, as are tooled belts with silver and turquoise buckles.

Champagne Buffet Set

The members of the Greenville Branch of the English-Speaking Union will hold a candlelight champagne buffet Saturday to honor the birthday of Scottish poet Robert Burns. The observance will be held in the home of Frank M. Wooten Jr.

Burns was born on Jan. 25, 1759 in a cottage near Ayr. His poems and songs, such as "Auld Lang Syne," are known by Scots and others throughout the world.

Plans for the celebration include bagpipe music and a tribute to Burns by the Rev. and Mrs. Richard R. Gammon. Those attending the party should wear Scottish evening wear, military evening wear or semiformal dress.

Reservations by members, guests and prospective members should be made by noon Tuesday by calling Scholarship Fund Chairman Elizabeth Webb or Secretary Helen S. Perkins.

The local E-SU branch established a scholarship for summer school study in British universities, including the University of Edinburgh, several years ago and the fund is now being endowed so that it will become a permanent award.

New Stamps Issues Are Announced

By SYD KRONISH
AP Newsfeatures

The year 1985 was saluted as International Youth Year, sponsored by the United Nations. Many countries issued stamps to hail the occasion and, as the year concluded, two more sets of stamps were added to the list — commemoratives by the Maldives and Singapore.

Singapore's set consists of three stamps noting the IYY themes of Participation, Development and Peace. Singapore is situated in Southeast Asia, just off the tip of the Malayan Peninsula and once was governed as a crown colony by Great Britain.

The 10-cent stamp features the badges and emblems of various major youth organizations on Singapore, such as the Boy Scouts, Boys Club and Boys Brigade. The 75-cent depicts the development and nurturing of the young sapling that symbolizes the potential of youth. The $1 shows a young man with hands raised within the international symbol of peace and hope — the dove.

The Republic of Maldives, in the Indian Ocean south of India, also has released a set of three and a souvenir sheet for the IYY.

The 90-laurees depicts young Maldavian men playing drums as part of their appreciation of their national culture. The 6-rufiyaas illustrates youngsters playing traditional games. the 10-r shows young people performing community service. The souvenir sheet features Maldavians at a flag raising ceremony.

The U.S. Postal Service has provided additional information on the booklet of commemorative stamps dedicated to the hobby of stamp collecting. It was jointly issued with Sweden's STOCKHOLMIA 86 IV stamp booklet, as previously reported in this column.

Two identical panes of four designs will comprise the U.S. booklet of eight 22-cent stamps. Sweden's booklet contains a single pane of four different stamps with various denominations.

Issuance of the U.S. "Stamp Collecting" booklet will pay tribute to the centennial this year of the Smithsonian Institution's first acceptance of philatelic items, and to the American Philatelic Society, which celebrates its centennial next year. The Smithsonian collection, which has grown to 16 million stamps, postal stationery items and postal-related artifacts, is now considered the largest and most comprehensive collection of its kind in the world.

Scott Publishing's 1986 "Specialized Catalogue of United States Stamps" is now off the presses and available to the public. This annual volume contains detailed reference and pricing information on regular and air post stamps, plate blocks, first day covers, postal stationery, revenue stamps, proofs, 19th-century locals, telegraphs, Confederate States, United Nations, and U.S. possessions and trust territories.

The cost is $20 and it can be obtained from your local dealer or by writing directly to Scott Publishing, P.O. Box 828, Sidney, OH 45365.

Volume I of the 1987 Scott Standard Postage Stamp Catalogue will be released in May, a full two months earlier that its normal schedule. Volume I covers the United States and its territories, Canada, Great Britain and the remainder of the British Commonwealth.

"Boogie in Black and White: Images From A Dream," a show of selected photographs, celebrates the 1986 re-premiering of the all black cast musical feature film, "Pitch A Boogie Woogie." The exhibition of the photographs will be at the Greenville Museum of Art during the month of February.

Made in Greenville in 1947 on silver nitrate 35 millimeter film, the movie was the only commercial product of North Carolina's first motion picture company, Lord-Warner Productions. The movie never showed outside the Carolinas nor in any white audience theatres, except for a single special screening in Greenville's State Theatre.

The movie was produced by a white man, John Warner, who had a dream of creating a major film production company in Greenville. His dream, however, was short-lived and was a long-forgotten event until a local young man, Bill Sheppard, discovered discarded reels of the film in the old Roxy Theater in Greenville.

Sheppard too had a dream — that somehow the film could be restored and viewed by contemporary Greenville audiences. His dream has come true through a project carried out by Alex Albright.

Over A Million Visitors In 1985

RALEIGH — Over a million people visited the state's three Marine Resources Centers during 1985.

According to Dr. Neal Conoley, director of the N.C. Office of Marine Affairs, last year some 1,020,554 people visited the centers, which will observe their 10th anniversary in September.

The centers, which are open year-round, are located on Roanoke Island, Bogue Banks and Fort Fisher. Admission is free.

"This is the first time we have topped a million" said Conoley, whose office in the N.C. Department of Administration oversees the centers.

Attendance has increased every year since the centers opened their doors in 1976.

Featured attractions include "touch" tanks with live sea animals, an expanding aquarium system with fish and other ocean inhabitants, exhibits and a wide variety of educational programs to inform and entertain visitors of all ages, according to Conoley.

Bibliotheque Treasures Going On Tour

By CONNOISSEUR
A Hearst Magazine

France's Bibliotheque Nationale — which contains everything from Celtic burial treasure to letters from the Marquis de Sade — is one of the world's least known cultural treasure houses.

For centuries only scholars have been allowed to see the works stored there but, according to an article in the January issue of Connoisseur, the B.N. is starting to go public and is even planning a 1988 tour that will include four American cities.

The tour will boast only a fraction of the B.N.'s 100,000 manuscripts, 12 million books and 15 million prints and drawings.

The B.N. dates back to 1367 or 1368 when Charles V began a manuscript collection. It was enhanced in the 15th century by Louis XI.

In 1573 a law was enacted — which remains in effect — obliging all French printers and publishers to donate a copy of everything they produce to the Bibliotheque. The Bibliotheque's collection more than doubled after the French Revolution of 1789, enriched by the contents of rich abbeys and aristocrats' houses.

Among the B.N.'s treasures are the manuscripts of Beethoven's "Appassionata" and Proust's "A La Recherche du Temps Perdu," two of the surviving Gutenberg Bibles, works of Albrecht Durer, Fragonard and Toulouse-Lautrec.

The B.N. has collections of everything from ancient maps to botanical engravings, from Celtic burial treasure to Greek coins, from comic books to century-old proclamations.

The treasures to go on tour include Marie Antoinette's luxury copy of the U.S. Constitution, Mozart's autograph score of "Don Giovanni" written without a single correction, Beethoven's scrawled and revised "Appassionata," Proust's manuscripts, letters of the Marquis de Sade and books bound for royalty in velvet, ivory and precious mosaic.

Only visitors armed with letters from recognized scholars or impressive personal introductions can gain access to the B.N.'s treasures. Roger Pierrot, the head of its manuscripts department, explained the reason.

"You can have a million people walk past the Mona Lisa," he said, "and if she's properly protected, no harm will come to her. But you can't let a million people finger a manuscript, no matter how careful they are. It would not survive."

Pierrot was asked to name the supreme document in his care.

"The 9th century Codex A of Plato," he said. "It is the single source from which all the other extant Plato manuscripts derived."

It is not kept on the shelves, but locked in the B.N. safe. Other documents that can be seen only by special arrangement include papers of Pierre and Marie Curie that are isolated because they are radioactive.

The B.N. wants more people to know of its treasures, Michael Peppiatt wrote in Connoisseur, but it is not about to fling open its doors.

"The Bibliotheque Nationale is a research facility," said its general administrator, Andre Miquel. "It will never be for the man on the street who wants to come in and read a mystery thriller. People see it as a silo of books. But they must understand that it is more. It is the memory of our nation."

Poetry Workshop At St. Andrews

LAURINGBURG — Chuck Sullivan, author of "A Dream of Lions, Vanishing Species" and "A Catechism of Hearts," will present a five-day poetry writing workshop Monday through Friday at St. Andrews Presbyterian College, Lauringburg.

The workshop, free and open to the public, is co-sponsored by St. Andrews, the North Crolina Arts Council and the National Endowment for the Arts.

Registration and scheduling of workshops will be from 3 to 5 p.m. in the Belk Center Meditation Room at the college. Sullivan will read from his works at 8 p.m. Wednesday, with workshop members to read from their writing at 8 p.m. Thursday.

Sullivan, a graduate of UNC-Greensboro, gave up a professional basketball career to become a teaching writer. He has been a poet-in-residence at Butler University and Mitchell College, and has published in Esquire, Rolling Stone, St. Andrews Review and Graffiti.

For more details, call 276-3652.

ECU Student Hopes To Join Operation Raleigh Venture

FUTURE ADVENTURER — Firoz Mohamedali of Kenya points to Australia, where he hopes to spend next summer helping out communities and exploring the country. Mohamedali was recently selected to participate in Operation Raleigh, a non-profit organization sponsored by England's Prince Charles. Mohamedali will begin fundraising efforts this week to help meet his tuition goal of $5,500 by June. (Reflector Photo By Chris Bennett)

By HAROLD JOYNER
Reflector Staff Writer

"Tomorrow's leaders meeting today's challenges" is just one of the goals of an East Carolina University student planning to venture into the wilderness of Australia in a few weeks.

But first he has to raise the $5,500 tuition — by himself.

Firoz Mohamedali of Kenya was recently selected to participate in a round-the-world series of expeditions initiated by Britain's Prince Charles. Operation Raleigh, which is headquartered in Raleigh, is a four-year project that brings youths from all around the world together. "We want to erase any cultural barriers and at the same time make the world a better place," said Mohamedali, a senior majoring in philosophy. "We strive for cooperation, not conflict, in this program."

Operation Raleigh, a non-profit organization which began in 1984, is an outgrowth of a former program, Operation Drake, in honor of Sir Francis Drake. Operation Drake was a marine-based youth leadership project sponsored by Prince Charles in the '70s. Operation Raleigh began after Prince Charles decided to expand the program to four years.

More than 4,000 young people from 40 countries will have participated in the program by 1988, just in time to follow on the heels of America's 400th anniversary observances. Mohamedali said there are about 1,500 openings left in America.

At first glance, the qualifications seem simple. The future venturer must be between 16-23-years-old to apply, speak English and swim 500 yards. Then the applicant goes through a grueling selection weekend.

During the 48-hour weekend, the group is tested for compatibility, problem solving skills, initiative and survival. Hiking and setting up camp in the wilderness and being blindfolded at night is the second stage of the weekend, with the final test being able to survive off of the rationed food of lemons, cauliflower and dog biscuits. Mohamedali said, "They (the selection staff) aren't trying to be mean when they put us through this. It is only a glimpse of what the actual venture may be like."

"We put people in a stressful condition in arduous situations, so that they are tired and hungry, added Operation Raleigh Coordinator Mark Ely. "During the weekend, we look for positive attitudes, a sense of humor and potential leadership qualities.

"We are not looking for world leaders — just young people with an adventurous spirit," said Ely, who is a native of Australia. "Probably two-thirds of the group will be successful during the selection weekend."

Mohamedali was able to survive that ordeal, and all that's left for him to do is to raise the tuition for the three-month expedition in June. He has already raised about $100 by participating in a recent bike-a-thon in Florida. For six days, Mohamedali and 10 other bikers traveled about 70 miles a day on a bicycle from Jacksonville to Miami. Mohamedali said his fundraising efforts will be closer to home by calling on local residents and businesses to fund his adventure. "I know it's going to be a mammoth task to raise the money," he said, "but I think I'll be able to do it with the help of local people."

If Mohamedali successfully completes his voyage and serves the community, he plans to lecture at ECU, and maybe even to residents of Kenya. "I want to clear up any misconceptions people may have of other countries," he said.

Ely sums up the effort of the adventurers: "If young people are to discover the world around them, they need special experiences over and above exploration."

Anyone desiring to make a donation to Operation Raleigh, or to Mohamedali, contact Ely at 109 E. Jones St., Raleigh, N.C., 27611. The phone number is 733-9366. Also, Ely said applications to the program may also be obtained by writing the above address.

Admission To Zoo Now Free

ASHEBORO - Admission to the North Carolina Zoological Park is free while the African Pavilion is closed for plumbing repairs and exhibit renovation. The zoo's newest exhibit closed to the public Jan. 6 and will reopen when the work is completed, on or before March 1.

One of the more exciting exhibits that takes visitors from winter to the atmosphere of the tropics is the aviary, which contains more than 100 exotic birds — 18 of which are new to the exhibit.

African spoonbills, Red-faced mousebirds, Sunbirds and Troupials took up residence in mid-December. They will be joined by Gray-headed kingfishers, Black-headed orioles, Pied barbets and Scarlet ibises next week.

"The aviary is a very healthy, very natural place for exotic birds to live," said Ron Morris, curator of birds. "It's an excellent place to see birds and get a broader impression of what birds are all about."

All the new birds are native to Africa except the Troupials which are found in the tropical forests of South America.

Morris has a few pointers to help visitors find the aviary's newest inhabitants. The large, white African spoonbills are the most obvious. They prefer the swamp area and are easily recognized by their spatula-shaped bills.

The mousebird is similar in size and color to the female cardinal. A crested, brownish bird with a long tail, it tends to climb around branches rather than flitting from branch to branch as many of the other aviary birds do.

The sunbirds, similar to hummingbirds, are very small and have long, slender beaks that curve downward. They hover briefly when probing into flowers for nectar or searching among leaves for tiny insects.

The 18,000-square-foot, walk-through forest aviary is one of the largest climate-controlled bird and plant exhibits in the country. Birds from nearly every continent live among 2,300 tropical plants within its glass dome.

The zoo is open 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily. The aviary opens at 9:30 a.m. and closes at 4:30 p.m. In addition to the aviary, zoogoers will be able to visit the African Plains every day, and weather permitting, be able to see lions, chimpanzees, elephants, rhinoceros and baboons.

The zoo is located six miles southeast of Asheboro off U.S. 64, U.S. 220 and N.C. 159. For more information, call (919) 879-5606.

Shark Head Exhibited At The Maritime

BEAUFORT — The mount of the head of the Great White Shark, Carcharodon caracharias, was recently donated to the North Carolina Maritime Museum in Beaufort and will be on permanent display there.

The shark mount is a gift to the museum from William Walker and was prepared by taxidermist Al Swanson, both of Virginia Beach, Va.

The 15 1/2 foot shark was caught about 40 miles off of Cape Lookout in the summer of 1984. Capt. Lloyd Davidson and mates John Dodrill and Sylvester Karasinski were longlining from their boat, the Alligator, when they caught the 2,080 pound shark.

The Great White was feeding on previously caught smaller sharks and once caught he managed to tangle his tail in the longline cable, doing considerable damage to the equipment.

Museum hours are weekdays 9 a.m.-5 p.m., Saturdays 10 a.m.-5 p.m., and Sundays 2-5 p.m. Admission is free. The museum is located in a new facility on the waterfront at Beaufort.

Some 40 years after the tragic Dust Bowl, the U.S. Soil Conservation Service finally began to determine systematically how much soil was eroding in the United States, says National Geographic. The SCS estimated that in 1977, the country lost about three billion tons of soil from plowed fields.

The giant crab of Japan dwarfs all other crustaceans with a span of 11 feet between outstretched claws, says National Geographic. The spider crabs reach adult size within 10 years and may live 50 years or more.

The ancient Aztecs considered chocolate such a prestigious drink that the golden goblets in which it was served were thrown away after one use, National Geographic reports.

Tobacco Usage By Early Indians Noted

RALEIGH — Native Americans smoked tobacco possibly as early as A.D. 800 according to a new report just issued.

For the first time, archaeologists have scientifically confirmed the smoking of tobacco by prehistoric Indians in North Carolina, documenting a tobacco history much longer than many have thought.

Some weeks ago, state archaeologists excavating along the banks of the Pamlico River in Beaufort County recovered a smoking pipe which contained carbonized residue in the bowl. About the same time, an amateur archaelogist made a simlar discovery in Northampton County.

Each time, the discoverer recognized the importance of the find and did not remove the residue from the pipe bowl.

According to Billy L. Oliver, staff archaelogist for the Department of Cultural Resources Archaeology and Historic Preservation Section, "we suspected the residue in the pipe bowls was tobacco, but lacked the equipment to verify the find, and so turned to the private sector."

Oliver contacted Dr. Alan Rodgman, director of the Research and Development Section of R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Company in Winston-Salem. Dr. Rodgman told Oliver his request came at an opportune moment. RJR had only recently acquired a very sophisticated piece of equipment (the TAGA 6000) and coincidentally, it was available for use.

Oliver took the samples to RJR where they were analyzed by Fred A. Thome, Guy Spence and Barbara Birdsong. In a cooperative effort between state government and industry and at no cost to the state, RJR provided the services of their staff and the unique high tech machine — one of only two or three in the country.

Oliver explained that the sensitive machine, which he describes as, "a marvel of high technology," performed the analysis in a day and a half — an operation that ordinarily would have taken several weeks. Moreover, the TAGA 6000 can identify composition of very small samples, as little as five milligrams in size, about the size of an aspirin tablet.

RJR had obtained this unique machine for environmental studies of tobacco smoke, little realizing the role it would play in the study of tobacco's past.

The RJR team examined the bowl contents to determine levels of nicotine and its by-products, since tobacco is the only know plant that produces nicotine. The team also examined a modern tobacco pipe for comparison.

The residue found in the Beaufort County pipe bowl also contained dirt and sand, part of a beetle, an insect claw and an animal hair. "These additional materials may date to the same general time period or they could represent later introductions," Oliver said.

"The RJR machine produced microphotographs of the material, some magnified as many as 30,000 times," Oliver said.

Because of this study and the ability to identify specific chemical components from tiny samples, Oliver believes it may now be possible to trace tobacco use further back by analysis of pipe bowl scrapings from even earlier periods. "Wood charcoal samples from the Beaufort County area where the pipe was found will be dated as soon as funds become available," he said.

Although an absolute date has not yet been determined, state archaeologists are jubliant about the conclusive result: tobacco definitely was contained within both the Beaufort County and Northampton pipes. This proves that prehistoric people in this area smoked tobacco between A.D. 800-1650 (called the "Late Woodland" period) and possibly even as early as 300 B.C.-A.D. 800 (called the "Middle Woodland" period).

Early Tobacco History

Oliver explained that up to now, tobacco's history was virtually begun with the voyages of Christopher Columbus.

With no direct evidence of tobacco use in the eastern United States, archaeologists have had to only assume that prehistoric Indians used tobacco, because of the discovery of smoking pipes and documented accounts of smoking. When Columbus' sailors landed in the West Indies in 1492, they reported natives smoking tobacco.

The word "tobacco" is believed to have originated from the Carib Indian term "tobacos" which referred to the long, hollow reed or cigar through which the Indians inhaled smoke from the burning of dried tobacco leaves.

The Spaniards introduced cigars to Spain in 1519; Sir John Hawkins introduced England to tobacco from Florida in 1573; and Sir Walter Raleigh did much to popularize tobacco by his use of a smoking pipe.

The "elbow type" pipe commonly found in use today as well as the pipe used by Sir Walter Raleigh are both copies of the style early colonists reported Indians used.

Archaeologists have long wondered what was smoked in these pipes. Oliver explained, "because Columbus reported the Indians claimed tobacco 'comforted the limbs, made them sleepy and lessened their weariness,' some have speculated that a mixture of narcotic plant materials may have been smoked rather than just tobacco."

He said it is even possible that other ingredients may have included cannabis (marijuana), sumac leaves or dogwood bark. He mentioned also that tobacco was used for recreation and diversion as well as for ceremonial purposes. Other reports said, "...tobacco was a part of almost every public religious ceremony such as puberty rites, funerals, preparations for war or harvest ceremonies."

Tobacco was also burned as incense, was cast into the air or on the ground or was buried as a part of ritual ceremony.

"The Beaufort County pipe specimen could have been associated with a ritual," Oliver said, "but it is more likely it was used for recreation, since it was recovered from a site which appears to have been a fishing and camping area."

Until a specific date is determined from the Beaufort County site, Oliver said it could be assumed that tobacco came from the latter portion of the period, or about A.D. 800, he said.

"There are very few sites in North America which can prove tobacco use before A.D. 800 and, other than a report of tobacco at a site in Illinois, this is the first direct evidence of smoking tobacco in the eastern United States."

Much of the analysis by the RJR team was done on their time, Oliver said.

Indian Leaders Exhibit On View

New Chief Named For Archaeology

RALEIGH — Stephen R. Claggett has been named chief archaeologist and head of the Archaeology Branch of the N. C. Department of Cultural Resources.

Claggett is responsible for supervision of state and federally supported archaeology programs administered under the Division of Archives and History.

The branch includes the Raleigh office, an office in Asheville and the underwater unit at Ft. Fisher.

Noting the "alarming rate" at which important sites in North Carolina are being lost through development and natural factors, Claggett asks that citizens knowing of archaeological sites or imminent destruction of sites should call him directly at 733-7342 or write to him at: 109 E. Jones Street, Raleigh, N.C., 27611.

In 1857, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled in the Dred Scott case that a slave was not a citizen, nor was he automatically made free by virtue of temporary residence in a Free State.

Restoration of the Statue of Liberty is underway, and will cost up to $30 million, reports National Geographic World. The statue, damaged by weather, salt air and vandals, was given to the United States by the people of France almost 100 years ago.

Tests show that the lobster's taste system is a million times more sensitive than a human's, says National Geographic World. Lobsters use hundreds of thousands of hairlike taste sensors on their bodies and shells to detect the presence of prey dozens of feet away.

BETSY DRAKE LEWIS' DECORATING TIPS

Having everything so matched that it looks as if a decorator just left is another common color mistake.

One creates interest not to have every color exactly matched. Lighter tints or darker shades of the hue or color is more interesting because it creates variety. For example, is one if using peach, rust mixes quite well and adds a little spark to the scheme. Remember, never use one color alone without repeating it at least in two other places.

Different textures also add interest. The heavier the texture the more masculine it looks, and the more informal.

You can achieve the look of a professional interior designer in your home or office without paying exorbitant interior design fees. At Betsy Drake Interiors we work with you to achieve that special look you are seeking and our interior design consultations are free. We feature 20,000 square feet of exquisite furniture, lamps, accessories, oriental rugs, wallcoverings and window treatments. St. Andrews Receives Arts Grant

LAURINBURG — St. Andrews weekly Writers' Forum has received a $1,211 grant from the N.C. Arts Council.

The Writers' Forum offers readings by outstanding North Carolina poets and fiction writers on a weekly basis.

The funds were made available through support from the N.C. State Legislature and the National Endowment for the Arts.

The work of the Writers' Forum will be evaluated through the calendar year by the Literature Panel of the Arts Council. Serving on this panel are Chairman Roy Parker of Fayetteville, Marianne Hayworth of High Point, Leo Jenkins of Greenville, John B. Lewis of Farmville, Shirley Anders of Winston-Salem and Michael McFee of Durham.

During the past three months a wide variety of North Carolina writers have addressed the Writers' Forum, including: Pulitzer Prize winner Carolyn Kizer, North Carolina novelists Clyde Edgerton and Jill McCorkle, writer and publisher Charlene Swansea, poets Charles Fort, Tony Nolan and St. Andrews writer-in-residence Ron Bayes.

In addition to providing opportunities for students and visitors to hear the works of leading North Carolina writers, it also offers students a chance to read their own work and have it evaluated by peers. Following all readings, the audience is encouraged to ask questions of the writers and they are often given a chance to meet in informal social settings.

Largest Collection Of Old, Rare Books

By GRAHAM HEATHCOTE
Associated Press Writer

HEREFORD, England (AP) — Look for a door in the north choir aisle of Hereford Cathedral. Climb the 54 stone steps of the circular staircase beyond it and you are in a room of chained books, the largest collection in the world.

The oldest among the 1,444 books in chains is an Anglo-Saxon Gospels, inscribed 300 years before England fell under Norman rule in 1066.

Until the invention of printing in Europe in the 15th century, books were written by hand, mostly by monks, who were the best-educated people. Thousands of hours' work went into the manuscripts.

"The early libraries often chained their books to make them secure, even when printing came in," said the librarian, Penelope Morgan, in an interview.

"The chain doesn't prevent the use of the book. It makes it available all day to readers — nobody could take one home."

The books can be pulled off the shelves and put down for reading on sloping desks attached to each bookcase. Readers sit on benches between the cases.

Each book has a chain fixed to the edge of a front cover. At the other end of the chain is a ring running upon a rod along the edge of the shelf. The method allows a book to be taken down and laid open without damaging its binding.

The books stand on the shelves front edge foremost, their spines out of sight. They are identified by labels on the bookcases showing their positions on the shelves.

"The whole collection is now so valuable that we only allow scholars to read them and there is a locked metal rod across the books to prevent visitors pulling them out," Canon John Tiller, chancellor of the Anglican cathedral, said.

Some books are displayed in glass cases under the windows so that visitors can admire the fine calligraphy and colored illuminations on the vellum pages.

"The windows are painted with a colorless solution to prevent ultraviolet light damaging the colors," Tiller said.

The atmosphere in the chained library is heavy with a sense of the past and a curious stillness prevails. Visitors who find it tend to speak in whispers.

The room was built in 1268 for documents and the books were first kept in chests, one of which survives. It has three locks and could only be opened by three clergy, each of whom had a key.

The first record of books being chained is in an order by Lewis Charlton, bishop of Hereford in 1361-69.

Hereford is a market town near the Welsh border and it's away from main travel routes.

"Being off the beaten track must have helped the library to survive," said Tiller, 47, who is responsible for the cathedral school and the library. "Since the Welsh were subdued, it's been a relative backwater."

Welsh raiders often crossed the border and in 1056 they destroyed a church in Hereford where the cathedral now stands. The Normans put a stop to the raids and began the building of the red sandstone cathedral about 1079.

The chained books are mostly copies of scripture, liturgy for services and Bible commentaries.

Among 28 manuscripts from the 15th century is a "Cider Bible," in which the words "strong drink" in the first chapter of John Wycliffe's translation of St. Luke were changed into "cider" — Hereford is in a cider-producing county.

As books became more common, the chains came off and there are only seven collections of chained books left in England today. Hereford is unique in having two of them: the other is of nearly 300 volumes in the 14th-century Church of All Saints.

The cathedral is appealing for 1 million pounds ($1.4 million) for repairs. It hopes to raise another 100,000 pounds ($140,000) for an endowment fund to pay for staff in the chained library and the cathedral's big reference and lending library, which is a draw for scholars in its own right.

Miss Morgan, formerly Hereford city librarian and curator of the museum and art gallery, has done the job unpaid for 32 years.

"I love it," she said. "It isn't work."

Book News

From Sheppard Memorial Library

By WILLIE NELMS

Nick Tosches is one of the best writers covering modern popular music. His articles have appeared in "Rolling Stone," "Esquire," and "The New York Times," among other national publications. He is the author of several books on contemporary music, including "Unsung Heroes Of Rock 'n' Roll," and "Hellfire: The Life Of Jerry Lee Lewis."

Tosches' style is very personal, and he freely admits his prejudices and dislikes concerning the music business. He uses this personal style effectively in his latest book "Country: Living Legends And Dying Metaphors In America's Biggest Music." Anyone expecting a public relations-type review of the lives of the best known stars in county music will be disappointed in this book.

"Country" is the author's view of the greats, near-greats and not-so-greats. He concentrates on many little known performers, showing how their musical styles or the songs they wrote affected other musicians who went on to great fame.

It is safe to say that Tosches seeks what he considers the best in country music, not what is most popular. Many of the performers, such as steel guitarist Buddy Jones will be unfamiliar to most readers. Yet, the author shows how obscure performers were influential in their own ways.

Tosches also takes dead aim at many of the myths of country music and shows how it has been influenced by other forms of music. Likewise, he has little patience with some of the major stars of the music, such as Roy Acuff or Johnny Cash, both of whom he considers to have achieved stardom far beyond their talents.

Readers will find "Country" to be provocative, somewhat controversial, but always entertaining. Even if one does not agree with all of Tosches' views, readers will enjoy his personal views of America's biggest music.

A Review

Book Of Excellence

TABLE OF CONTENTS. By John McPhee. New York: Farrar Straus Girous, 1985. $15.95.

This collection of eight nonfiction articles first published in the New Yorker, is as varied in content as the author's curiosity: wildlife biologists, family practitioners in Maine, entrepreneurs of small hydroelectric plants, Sen. Bill Bradley, physicist Theodore B. Taylor and a Maine game warden who shares the author's name.

However diverse the subject matter, this eclectic collection is tied together by each subject's sense of purpose and dedication to excellence.

McPhee is also dedicated to excellence in the writing of superb non-fiction, using complex structural organization, carefully crafted into a smooth literary form. In "Heirs of General Practice" McPhee takes the reader into the lives of family physicians in Maine: their patients, their medical school experiences, their thoughts, their personal lives and their goals.

The author's use of detail is designed so you glide through the pages without a rough bump, and without having to stop and reread a paragraph to absorb all the information. He uses critical details. When describing a flight through the Maine Woods, in "North of C.P. Line," he tells you the exact township and range, wind speed, temperature and the pilot's method of measuring the fuel.

In "Under the Snow" and "A Textbook Place for Bears," he takes you along with him as he watches wildlife biologists tag bears. The author's prose is sprinkled with lively figurative language such as his description of bear demographics: "Bears in winter in the Pocono Plateau are like chocolate chips in a cookie." Not only are McPhee's descriptions and semantics original — "He is short and sinewy, slight like a nail" — but his outstanding ability is turning technical information in "Minihydro" into interesting smooth rhetoric:

One did not have to be a theoretical physicist to figure out that if water was falling, say, twenty-five feet where the annual average flow was four hundred cubic feet per second, it could turn modest turbines that could turn small generators that would earn, at six cents a kilowatt-hour, about two hundred thousand dollars a year.

McPhee conveys so much information and detail that each article is similar to a textbook in amount of factual weight, but so lucid is his writing, that the reader, having finished an article, is left with a feeling of subtenance.

McPhee lives in Princeton, N.J., where he was raised and also attended Princeton University. He has worked with Time magazine and is now staff writer for the New Yorker, where he has worked since 1964.

He writes for readers who want to lose themselves, for readers who want to escape, not into the world of fiction, but rather into the real world of nonfiction. He may delve too deeply and research too thoroughly into a subject for some audiences, but for those who enjoy being absorbed into the lives and work of others, "Table of Contents" is as thoroughly engrossing as fine fiction.

New Casey Dance Book Published

AUSTIN — A new book on dance by Betty Casey has been published by the University of Texas Press, Austin.

"Dance Across Texas," is the third dance volume to be authored by Mrs. Casey. Her previous two books, both plublished by Doubleday, are "The Compleete Book of Square Dancing (and Round Dancing)" and "International Folk Dancing, U.S.A."

For several years, until the retirement from Voice of America by her husband, John Casey, Mrs. Casey lived in Greenville. She was co-founder, along with Helen Parks, of the Greenville Writers Club, which was established in 1968.

"Dance Across Texas" covers 22 authentic Texas style country-western dances and is illustrated with sketches and photographs.

The book is available in two formats, in hardcover at $17.95 and in paper at $8.95.

Mail orders will be filled through: Books, 59 Hilltop, Kerrville, Texas, 78028. Checks are to be made payable to: Betty Casey. No charge cards will be accepted for mail orders and orders are to include $1.50 per book for postage and handling fees.

The Durango & Silverton narrow-gauge railroad now carries 155,000 sightseers a year through a 45-mile stretch of Colorado's San Juan Mountains, says National Geographic. Opened a century ago, this steam-powered train once hauled gold, lead and zinc ore between the two mining towns.

Folk Artist Minnie Evans Exhibit At NCMA

N.C. Museum of Art

RALEIGH — "Heavenly Visions: The Art of Minnie Evans," is now on view at the North Carolina Museum of Art through April 13. The exhibition presents works produced across 40 years by this 93-year-old self-trained artist from Wilmington.

Deeply influenced by her lifelong study of the Bible and by the natural beauty of Airlie Gardens near Wilmington, where she was gatekeeper for 26 years, Ms. Evans has produced a body of work rich in religious and exotic imagery. Colorful flowers, trees and animals are often arranged in symmetrical formats reminiscent of Near Eastern art, with a central figure that may be interpreted as a divine or royal image. The symmetry of these works reinforces Ms. Evans' joyous vision of the world as orderly and stable, with a central focus on belief.

Born in 1892 in Pender County near Wilmington, Ms. Evans was reared in Wilmington and Wrightsville Beach by her mother and grandmother. She worked as a domestic during the period between the world wars and was gatekeeper of Airlie Gardens, a private tourist attraction, from 1948 to 1974.

Ms. Evans created her first images in 1935 as the result of a religious vision. Her two earliest works, on view in the exhibition, are abstract pencil drawings almost like hieroglyphics. Within a few years Ms. Evans began producing still lifes, figures and abstract designs, using crayons and colored pencils.

In the 1940s and 1950s, she experimented with a variety of formats and media, including oil paintings, and developed a use of traditional perspectives. Her work from this period includes exotic images, such as a temple by the sea, and religious themes like the Crucifixion and the Resurrection. By the 1960s, however, Ms. Evans had settled upon a flat, vertical arrangement of her images as her favored mode, working both with figures and with abstract designs. She is best known for the richly detailed, symmetrical paintings of this period.

The exhibition comprises 30 paintings, drawings and collages, tracing Ms. Evans' work from her earlier efforts through the late 1970s. In addition to the artist and other private individuals, lenders include the National Museum of American Art, Washington, D.C.; the Weatherspoon Art Gallery, UNC-Greensboro; the Ackland Art Museum, UNC-Chapel Hill, and the North Carolina Museum of History, Raleigh. Ms. Evans has had numerous solo exhibitions over the past 25 years, including a 1975 show at the Whitney Museum of American Art in New York.

The exhibition is supported by funding from the North Carolina Art Society. The accompanying 48-page catalogue includes an essay by Dr. Mitchell Kahan, curator of American and contemporary art, who has organized the exhibition. It is the first publication devoted entirely to Ms. Evans' work.

Related programs include "The Angel That Stands By Me," a free 30-minute film about Ms. Evans, to be shown today at 3 and 4 p.m. Three lectures on folk art and alternative art traditions will be presented on March 20, 27 and April 3 at 8 p.m. Speakers will be Henry Glassie of the University of Pennsylvania, author and collector Herbert Hemphill and Charles Zug of UNC-Chapel Hill. Tickets are $9 for the lecture series or $3.50 for individual lectures.

Museum hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday, Thursday, Saturday; 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Friday, and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday. There is no admission fee. For information, call (919) 833-1935.

GMA Plans March Art Trip

The Greenville Museum of Art will co-sponsor, with Quixote Travels Inc., a trip to Washington, D.C. and to The National Gallery to view "The Treasure Houses of Britain" exhibition March 1-2.

This exhibit, which will only be on view at The National Gallery, will close in March and be returned to England.

The exhibition, praised both in art circles and by the media, represents art and architectural items from a number of England's great country homes. This is the first time ever that a collection and exhibition of this nature has been undertaken.

Price for the overnight trip is $81 per person double occupancy and $108 per person for single occupancy. This covers roundtrip transportation by charter bus, one night's accomodation at a first class hotel including taxes, a recorded tour of the exhibition with an escort, and leisure time for theater, shopping, etc.

The group will depart the Greenville Museum at 7 a.m. March 1 and is due to return prior to midnight March 2. The hotel scheduled for use is within walkiing distance of the Kennedy Center. Theater reservations, if desired, can be made at the time of registration for the trip.

Registration deadline for the trip is Feb. 14 and travel arrangements are based on a minimum of 25 people. Reservations will not be accepted unless accompanied by payment. The right to withdraw the trip is reserved if there is insufficient registration. For more information, call Greenville Museum of Art at 758-1946.

Green Hill Print Show

The invitational exhibition features the printed works of 17 North Carolina printmakers working in relief, intaglio, lithography and silkscreening. The artists are:

Richard Mayberry, Charlotte; Roy Nydorf, Oak Ridge; Walter Peipke, Graham.

Accompanying the exhibition will be a second educational "mini-exhibition" displaying tools used in each of the four basic printmaking processes. Prints in various stages of development will illustrate the metamorphosis of the artwork from concept through process to completed work.

The exhibit is free and open to the public.

Art Exhibit In Tarboro

TARBORO — The Hobson Pittman Memorial Gallery in the Blount-Bridgers House in Tarboro is currently featuring the works of Piedmont artist Virginia Fishburne Stone.

Mrs. Stone, who now lives in Raleigh, lived and worked until recently in Charlotte. She received her B.F.A. at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill in 1972 and her M.F.A. in painting at Cranbrook Academy of Art in Bloomfield Hills, Mich. in 1975.

She has taught painting, drawing and art history in several schools in Michigan and in the Charlotte area, worked for a summer at the Art Student League in New York City.

She has exhibited extensively in Charlotte, with several one-man shows there, and in Greenville, S.C., Salisbury, Boone, Lenoir and Chapel Hill. She has also shown her work in Michigan. This will be Mrs. Stone's first exhibit in eastern North Carolina.

The show will remain in Tarboro through the month of February. Museum hours at the Pittman Gallery are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday through Friday, and 2-4 p.m. Sunday. There is no admission charge.

Film On Great Britain To Be Shown On Wednesday

THE GREAT CIRCLE . . . of stones at Stonehenge, England, is thought to be an astronomoical observatory. It dates back to before the time of Tutankhamen and is one of the sites covered by Kenneth Richter in his travel film, "Pageant of Britain" which will be shown at 8 p.m. Wednesday in Hendrix Theatre on the ECU campus.

The East Carolina University Student Union Travel Committee will present Ken Richter's film "Pageant of Britain"in Hendrix Theatre Wednesday at 8 p.m. as part of the 1985-86 Travel-Adventure Film Series.

The film opens with scenes of the white cliffs of Dover and tours through all of England, Wales and Scotland. Richter's film explores many places through colorful scenes and narration. From the Dover coastline and the bustle of London to the quaint country towns of Wales and the moody beauty of the moors of Scotland, Richter reveals to his audience more than the local scenery.

There's afternoon tea with a young family in their country garden, the making of stone-ground flour in 16th century watermill, the pageantry of the Royal Family at the Highland games and the Queen's Procession to Parliament.

Tickets for this program are available from the Central Ticket Office, Mendenhall Student Center, 757-6611, ext. 266. The Ticket Office is open Monday-Friday, 11 a.m.-6 p.m. Tickets are $3.50 in advance or at the door. Group rates are available.

NCNB Music Competition

CHARLOTTE — Applications for the 1986 NCNB Music Competition have been mailed to music teachers throughout North Carolina.

The competition for young North Carolina musicians begins Feb. 22 with regional auditions in Marion, Wilmington, Wilson and Winston-Salem. Regional auditions determine the musicians to be invited to the final competition at NCNB Performance Place in Charlotte's Spirit Square on March 11.

NCNB National Bank will award scholarships and cash awards totaling $26,000 to the top contestants. First prize is a $12,000 scholarship to the North Carolina School of the Arts in Winston-Salem.

The competition is open to residents of North Carolina who are not more than 20 years of age at the time of the final competition, and who are not enrolled as a music major in a North Carolina college or university. Competition includes strings, woodwinds, brass, percussion, harp, piano, classical guitar and voice.

Circle In Square Auditions Listed

NEW YORK — Auditions for New York's Circle in the Square Theatre School will be held at the Circle in the Square Theatre in New York March 24-27.

The audition committee will review 950 applicants nationwide for 50 places in the two-year graduate-level training program, which is affiliated with New York's oldest professional theatre.

Students selected by the committee will work and study with New York actors and directors.

Because admissions are extremely selective, the rate of graduate employment in professional theatre, film and television is very high among Circle in the Square alumni.

Play By Navy Surgeon To Have Greenville Readings

The first Playwrights' Fund of North Carolina production of 1986 will faeature Lawrence A. Wood's "No Marks, Just Memories," a one-act play. It will be presented in two reading performances Wednesday — at noon in The Best Lunch Theater Ever series at the Greenville Museum of Art, 802 South Evans Street, and again at 8 p.m. Wednesday at the Downtown, Downstairs site in the Humber House, corner of West Fifth and Washington streets.

Both are free and open to the public. Those attending the noon reading at the museum can bring along bag lunches, with refreshements to be provided by the museum staff.

At the 8 p.m. reading, an informal discussion of the play with the playwright will be led by Gay Wilentz of the East Carolina University English Department.

Tracy Donohue, a member of the ECU Theatre Arts faculty will direct the play. Readers will be Tracy Mills as Kathryn Baker, Sidney Horton as Jake, and Teresa Brooks as Kathryn's mother. All are ECU drama students.

His play explores the power of love, the mysteries of the mind, and the boundaries of time. The play centers on Kathryn Baker, a teacher who takes care of her ailing mother in a southern town in the 1940s, and who falls in love with Jake, a mysterious stranger, a traveler through time from the 1980s.

Moderator Wilentz, a specialist in African, Afro-American and Caribbean literature and now a visiting assistant professor at ECU, is also a native of New York City. She has lived and worked in North Carolina for 12 years as a VISTA volunteer with community projects in Raleigh and as a staff member of the Graham Center in Anson County where she worked in literacy programs.

She has also lived in Sierra Leone as a Peace Corps volunteer and in Nigeria, where was a Fulbright Scholar at the University of Nigeria from 1979-81.

The Playwrights' Fund of North, Inc., headquartered in Greenville, is in its fifth season of producing first performances of original one-act plays from national submissions by new and established writers.

It is a non-profit organization, partially funded by a Creative Projects grant from the North Carolina Arts Council and the National Endowment for the Arts.

Linda MacKay Senior Recital

Linda S. MacKay of Wilmington, a student of Dr. E. Robert Irwin in the School of Music, East Carolina University, will present her graduate organ recital at 3:15 p.m. today in the First Presbyterian Church, corner of Elm and 14th streets.

The recital is free and open to the public.

For her performance, she has chosen: Bach's "Prelude in C minor;" the Dumage "Suite du premiere ton;" two Reger pieces, "Orgel Stucke" and "Benedictus Toccata;" Mendelssohn's "Sonata III," and Bach's "Prelude & Fugue in G Major."

Winners Announced

RALEIGH — Baritone Todd A. Thomas, 24, from Philadelphia and violinist Kerry C. McDermott, 23, of New York City, are the recipients of top honors in the 1986 voice and instrumental categories of the Kathleen and Joseph M. Bryan Young Artists Competition held recently in Raleigh.

This year more than 114 contestants from all across the nation entered the vocal and string competitions. Top winners will appear as soloists with the North Caroliina Symphony during the 1986-87 season, and first place in each of the two categories carries a cash award of $1,500.

Other winners were:

Voice — Mark Bowman Hester, 29, of Roxboro, second place $750 award. Additionally, Hester received $400 given to the best entrant from North Carolina; and third place, Marilyn A. Moore, Brunswick, Ga., third place, $400 award.

Instrumental — Two persons, violinist Vesna Stankovich, Belgrade, Yugoslavia and Mary Ellen Woodside, Rochester, N.Y., shared the combined second and third prizes of $1,150.

The North Carolina Award in string competition for $400 went to Lisa Kim, 15, of Raleigh, a student at Sanderson High School.

La Scala Enters The Age Of Satellites

By PIERO VALSECCHI
Associated Press Writer

MILAN, Italy (AP) — La Scala, Italy's most prestigious opera theater, is expected to end a long streak of multimillion dollar deficits and break even this year thanks to growing commercial sponsorship and television rights.

Carlo Maria Badini, who took over the financially troubled "temple of bel canto" in 1977, says a new managerial approach and timely delivery of state funds have helped restore La Scala's financial health.

The popular telecasts of La Scala productions to households around the world also will help the company, Badini said.

"We are prepared to enter the era of satellites, to telecast our operas into the houses of Americans, Russians and Japanese," he said.

Milan's opera purists were upset when the name of the first commercial sponsor showed on La Scala's playbills three years ago. They said that television lights and cameras "disturbed the sacred atmosphere."

However, sponsorships and other commercial activities of the Milan theater have been greatly expanded since then to increase earnings, said Sergio Escobar, a theater official in charge of commercial activities and contracts.

The yearly 200 performances of the theater are always sold out despite an average cost of tickets believed to be among the highest in the world.

The best seats in the house, with a capaccity of 2,100, sell for $70. An orchestra seat cost $388 on opening night, Dec. 7. At the Metropolitan Opera in New York, tickets range from $14 for a family circle seat to $85 for a parterre box seat.

Milan's economic weekly, Il Mondo, reported that the gala opening, which featured Giuseppe Verdi's "Aida" with Luciano Pavarotti, brought in $820,000 in box-office receipts, commercial sponsorship and TV and video rights.

La Scala officials would not disclose the amount of the company's commercial activities. However, observers have said the 1984-85 season was almost $1.2 million and $1.76 million for the current season.

Commercial enterprises included a joint venture with the British group, National Video Corporation, for marketing radio and TV productions of La Scala works, and royalties from a perfume called "Teatro Alla Scala" launched by the Italian fashion designer, Krizia.

La Scala's future, said Badini, will be in television and videocassettes.

La Scala has organized only a few tours abroad because theater officials maintain that performances lose much of their glamour away from the original theater.

Despite growing commercial income, state funds delivered to all Italian opera theaters still represent a major share of La Scala's yearly business.

Last year, La Scala received $24 million in state subsidies, between 65 percent to 70 percent of its total revenue.

But improved finances have not ended controversies which have been a tradition in the theater's history, from the naughtiness of opera stars to last-minute orchestra strikes.

The latest controversy was fueled earlier this month by former baritone Giuseppe Zecchillo who filed suit in a Milan court accusing La Scala of poor management because he said dozens of complimentary tickets were given to celebrities on opening night.

"A theater also plays a social role and we cannot turn down a request for a ticket from a foreign ambassador," Badini said.

Court souces said the case was likely to be dismissed.

Flutist Khalsa To Be ECU Guest Recitalist

Flutist Akal Dev K. Khalsa and pianist Margaret Mary Barela will present a guest recital at 8:15 p.m. Wednesday in the A. J. Fletcher Recital Hall on the East Carolina University campus. The recital is free and open to the public.

The duo will also perform at 3 p.m. today in the Pittman Gallery at the Blount-Bridgers House in Tarboro in a free and open to the public performance.

The two guest artists have scheduled a program that includes Mozart's "Andante in C Major;" Prokofieff's "Sonata in D Major" and Franck's "Sonata in A Major."

She received a B.M. degree with highest honors from the New England Conservatory of Music, and was subsequently awarded the Master of Music with honors and the Artist's Diploma, that institution's highest performance degree.

She has attended master classes with Jean-Pierre Rampal among others, and studied in Paris as the recipient of several grants. Among honors and awards she has received has been the "Night at Pops" competition, which won her a solo appearance with the Boston Pops.

Khalso has taught at the University of Rhode Island and Williams College.

Margaret Mary Barela studied at Tulane University, and completed her doctoral studies in performance there. She has taught at several colleges and universities, including Tulane University and Williams College. Additionally, she is a published free-lance writer and critic, and has performed extensively in concerts throughout the U.S.

Gounod Opera To Air On Local Stations Jan. 25

NEW BERN — Charles Gounod's opera, "Romeo et Juliette," will have its first Met production since 1974, when the Metropolitan Opera stages a performance on Saturday. The opera, based on the Shakespeare tragedy, will be broadcast live from the Metropolitan Opera House beginning at 1:30 p.m.

It will be heard on two local radio stations, WTEB, New Bern and WRRF, Washington, N. C.

Neil Shicoff will sing teh role of Romeo with Catherine Malfitano as Juliette. Others in the cast include Hilda Harris as Stephana; Brian Schexnayder as Mercutio; Paul Plishka as Friar Laurent; and Dimitri Kavrakos as Capulet.

The French conductor Sylvain Cambreling will make his debut as a conductor for the Metropolitan.

The opera, in three acts, will end at about 5:05 p.m.

Two ECU Music Events Have Been Cancelled

Announcement has been made of the cancellation of two previously scheduled events by the School of Music, East Carolina University.

The chamber music recital originally scheduled for today featuring Bruce Berg, Selma Gokcen and Paul Tardif; and The Contemporary Festival, scheduled for Jan. 24 and 25 have both been cancelled.

Musical Next At Footlight Theater

Performances will be given at 8:15 p.m. on Jan. 24, 25 and 31, and on Feb. 1, 7 and 8. Dinner is at 7 p.m.

Willie Sumner directs the play, which he calls "a madcap musical melodrama. Tickets are priced at $15. It is suggested reservations be made at least two days in advance of the performance date desired.

'Greater Tuna' Opens Thursday At ATW

AYDEN — The Ayden Theatre Workshop's production of "Greater Tuna" will be presented on Thursday and Saturday at 8 p.m. and at 3 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 26 at Ayden-Grifton High School.

"GREATER TUNA" STARS . . . Bob Coates, (a.k.a. Bob Koffee) left, and Joey Pollock are starring in the Ayden Theater Workshop production of "Greater Tuna." Three performances will be given at the Ayden-Grifton High School, at 8 p.m. Thursday and Saturday, and at 3 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 26. Tickets, available at the door, are priced at $3. (Photograph by Glenda Wilkins)

Bob Coates (a.k.a. Bob Koffee), formerly of WRQR-FM, and Joey Pollock will star in this off-Broadway show written by Jaston Williams, Joe Sears and Ed Howard. Maxine Harker is the director.

The unusual feature of the play is watching these two actors transform themselves into 10 characters each.

The action centers around two radio announcers who keep every citizen in the small town of Tuna, Texas informed of the latest happenings locally, and when time permits, worldwide. Not only will you get to hear and see them "on the air," you will meet members of their radio audience as well.

Koffee, well-known in the area for his morning radio show, "Moore Koffee," is originally from Pennsylvania. He is making his debut as an actor in "Greater Tuna."

Joey Pollock has been on the ATW stage many times; in musicals such as "My Fair Lady" and "Carnival," and dramatic plays such as "The Lady's Not For Burning" and "The Lion in Winter." He directed the ATW production of "The Fantasticks" and most recently directed the 1985 season of the summer outdoor drama "Blackbeard" at Bath.

Admission is by season ticket or $3.00 at the door. ATW is spnosored in part by the Grass Roots Program of the North Carolina Arts Council and the Town of Ayden.

Musician Goes High-Tech In Creating Sound Effects

By JOE KULLMAN
Arizona Business Gazette

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — Pick a sound, any sound. Waves splashing on a beach. A jet taking off. A single bird chirping or the bold flourish of a full-scale symphony orchestra.

In his small "mad scientist's laboratory" of computers, recorders and synthesizers, John Berry can make them for you. He can make — literally create, not just copy or imitate — the sound of "any musical instrument or sound effect you've ever heard, and a lot more you've never heard."

Then he can mix them up, multiply them, weave dozens of them together, layer them one on top of another, and do "frightening things" with them.

Frightening, perhaps, to the musical traditionalist, Berry says, because from a 15-foot by 12-foot room in his apartment-studio he can electronically produce "an entire sound track for a major movie, and very few people would be able to tell the difference between that and the London Symphony."

The art of music-making has gone high-tech. And composer, arranger, producer Berry has decided to go with it.

Last year he formed Advertising Music Productions. Along with creative associate Chuck Marohnic, "world-class keyboardist" and director of jazz studies at Arizona State University, Berry wants to create original sound tracks for local film and video productions and radio advertisements.

That pursuit will mean educating the local market about the marvels and budgetary benefits of new sound and synthesizer technology.

"We want to convince people that they don't have to go to the million-dollar studios in LA or hire large orchestras," Berry says. With his and Marohnic's "modest investment" of $50,000 or so worth of synthesizers and recording equipment, they can make those million-dollar sounds very cost-effectively, he says, without sacrificing quality.

Berry and Marohnic demonstrate their claim with a slickly produced five-minute promotional tape featuring the spectrum of music and sound effects their machines can make.

Guitar, strings, brass, percussion, keyboard and vocal sounds mix and match in riffs of synthesizer-produced country, rock, jazz and classical music.

"We can get everything from that high-tech 'Miami Vice' kind of sound to simple music that might go with a commercial for Country Kitchen Restaurant or something like that," Berry says.

In a series of mock commercials, the tape also presents a catalog of sound effects, an amusing display ranging from an other-worldly whirring flying-saucer sound to panicking bugs screeching "Yipes, yipes, yipes" as they flee from a pest spray called Bug Blasters. The helium-voiced little critters, alas, get blasted and dispatched with a convincing squish.

What makes it all possible are the latest strides in synthesizer science: digital synthesis or digital sampling.

Analog synthesis, the basis of synthesized sound prevalent in popular music in the past decade or so, is now the old way, Berry says.

The analog process was merely an electronic imitation of various sounds. But digital synthesis, he says, "is an actual creation of musical sounds based on computer-assisted sampling of any given sound's hundreds of characteristics."

That's why Berry says he feels akin to a Dr. Frankenstein of composing as he dissects bits and pieces from old sounds, rearranges and molds them together to bring new sounds to life.

"A whole new generation of sounds is being created," Marohnic says. "We are drawing out musical thought that was heretofore hidden in composers' minds because it was music that instruments were not capable of producing."

It has all radically changed the nature of the business, Marohnic says. "We still depend on the fact that we are musicians, and on our basic musical skills to create. But the days of composing by just sitting down and playing a piano are over."

Other Voices

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Maurice White, the creator of the hot rock group Earth, Wind & Fire, was driving alone to his Los Angeles home one day when he heard a soft voice say: "Stand by me."

"I looked in the back seat and there was nobody sitting back there. I said, 'OK.' I went home and pulled out the record of 'Stand by Me,' the Ben E. King version, and listened to it and decided to do it. It's a strange story," said White about how the song came to be recorded on his new solo LP, "Maurice White."

He did his arrangement of the song with keyboardist Robbie Buchanan. "I didn't want to stray too far away from the melody," White said in an interview. "I wanted people that were familiar with the song to remember. It has been a hit two or three times."

White usually picked the singles for EW&F. But for his self-produced solo album, he recorded 13 songs and sent them to Columbia Records which selected 11 for the LP.

The concept of the video that goes with the single, he said, "is about human spirit, relationships and people standing by each other." His son, Kahlran, 7, is in it and the late Marvin Gaye's daughter is one of the girls jumping rope.

White, who has been called the guiding light and musical talent behind EW&F, said the group hasn't terminated. "We just went on a hiatus from each other for a while," he said. "We'd worked together since 1971. There's a possibility we might even do another album together. At this time, it's necessary for us to develop individually."

The last EWF concert was in 1982; the last album, "Electric Universe," came out in 1983. "The albums are timeless," White said.

White calls himself a workaholic and an overachiever. "I'm the kind of guy who'll hand the tapes in to the record company, steal the tapes back and work on them again," he said.

"I just love to work. When I don't work, I feel left out. I have a demo studio in my house. I write songs there, on a keyboard or on a computer, sometimes till 4 in the morning. I get up at 9:30 or 10 a.m. Even when Earth, Wind & Fire was on the road, I didn't sleep late in the morning.

"Since I've started playing tennis I play early, before it's real hot, for a couple of hours." After a nap, he goes into the studio. After his evening meal — he skips lunch — he returns to the studio.

White isn't surprised if people say "Maurice White" sounds like EW&F. "There's a certain stamp I have on my records. I didn't try to get away from that; I would have been running from myself," he said.

White has produced records for other artists and has enjoyed it. "You become a vehicle for them to express their creativity. . .. I can't wait to get back in a studio and do somebody."

He usually composes something for an artist he's producing. "And sometimes, a song just falls out of the sky. You play it for different artists and see if somebody likes it," he said.

White was born in Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 19, 1941. The family moved to Chicago where his doctor father hoped he'd study medicine. But he was drawn to music and became jazz pianist Ramsey Lewis' drummer for four years.

"The first record I made with him was 'Wade in the Water.' I cut about nine albums with him. It was nice not having responsibility, just getting on the bus before it pulls out," White said.

"I didn't start out wanting to be a leader. I had an idea in my head and started to assume responsibility for everything. It had to be done. I went straight from Ramsey to creating a group. We started to have acceptance in the colleges. They were my age group. The first two or three years the kids in the schools knew us and nobody else did. We used to stay on the road all year, traveling in station wagons all the time."

Lately, it has been his own car in Los Angeles and limousines in other cities. "I remixed the 12-inch single in New York and for the first time in maybe five years I actually got out in the street and walked around.

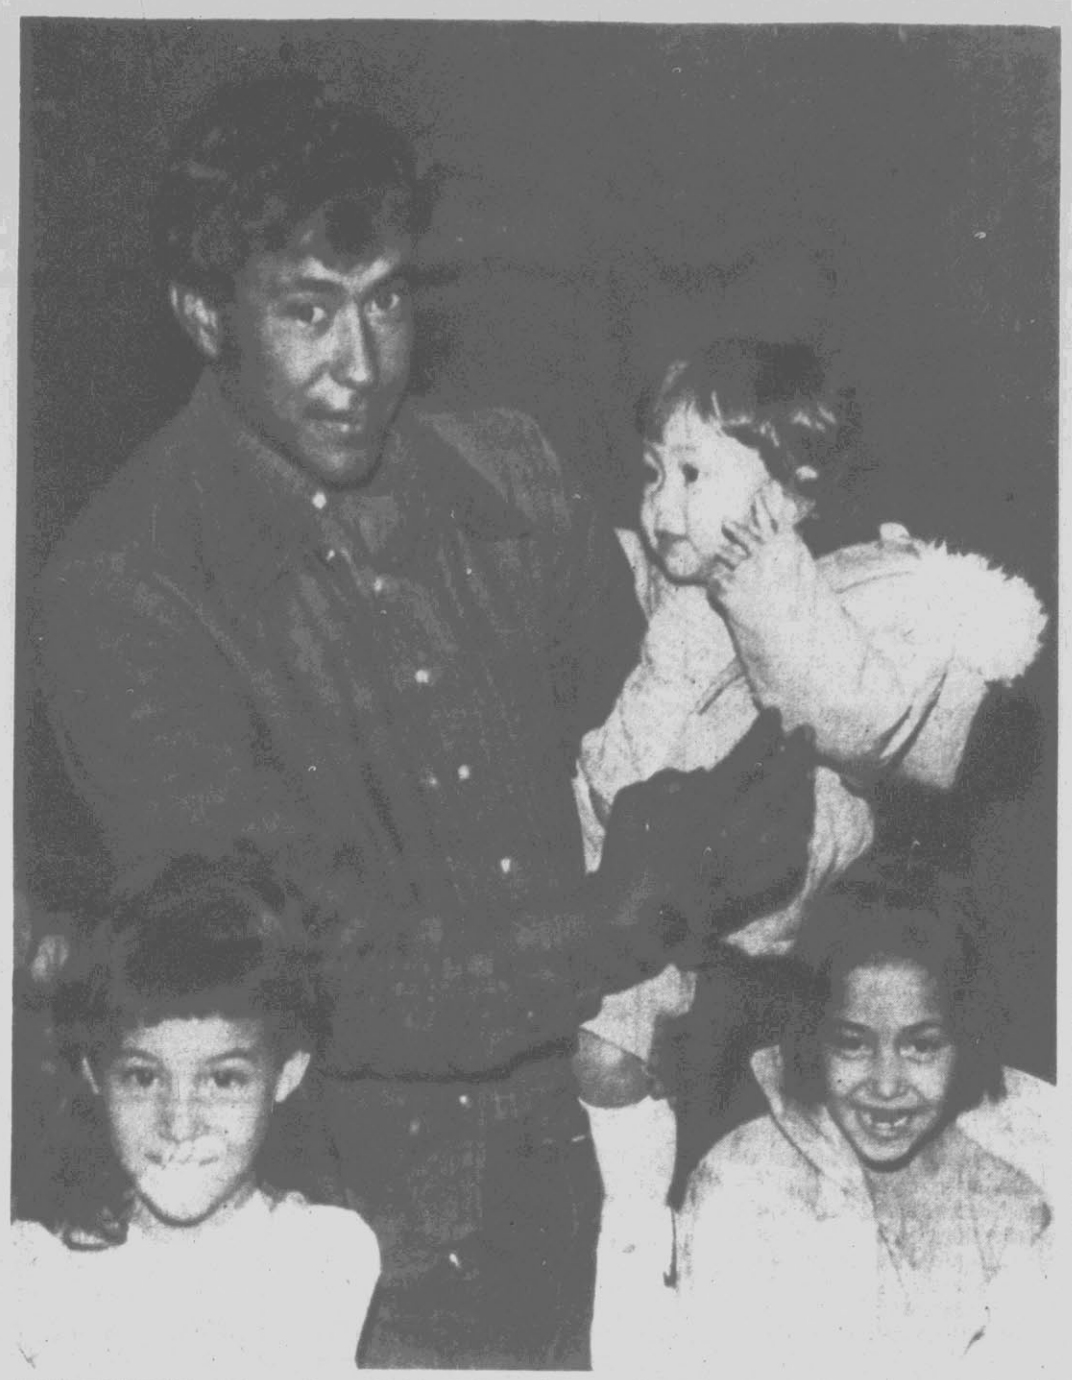
1986, Year Of The Native American



A LUMBEE VISITOR . . . Everett Jones of Knightsdale is a member of North Carolina's Lumbee Indian tribe, whose people live mostly in Robeson County. He spent considerable time viewing the Cherokee Indian demonstrations at the North Carolina Museum of History Jan. 11. With Jones are his three young daughters, Katherine, in his arms, Christinia at left and Danielle.

It seems a new definition is evolving to describe the people who now live and formerly lived in North and South America before the arrival of European settlers. Today, instead of referring to the original inhabitants as American Indian, the term "native American" is becoming more widely used.

Whichever term one prefers, 1986 promises to be a year of intensified interest about the lives of those who for long centuries have called North Carolina home, under whatever name. The focus of attention also brings into play a look at Indians of other areas of the U.S.

Governor Martin has designated 1986 as "The Year of the Native American" throughout North Carolina. Numerous activities and observations are planned in conjunction with the ongoing observance of America's 400th Anniversary.

Indians from North Carolina tribes will be principal participants in this year of homage, with various local and state, including Indian, agencies serving as planners and coordinators.

In North Carolina, "The Year of the Native American" got underway January 10 at the N. C. Museum of History, when an informative and colorful exhibition, "Great American Leaders," consisting of life-size costumed models of 12 notable Indian chiefs went on public view (to be up through February). It was developed and provided without cost by Encyclopaedia Britannica, with support by a grant from Philip Morris U.S.A.

A fascinating look at contemporary Indian life in North Carolina was given Jan. 11 at the museum. For that day only, craftsmen from North Carolina's Cherokee Tribe demonstrated their arts. More on this event is provided in the accompanying article.

CREATES A BASKET . . . Annie Driver weaves a Cherokee basket from strips of white oak and maple, some dyed, some not dyed. The basket she works on is a picnic basket, as is the finished basket on a table in the foreground.

North Carolina Cherokee craftsmen keep alive their heritage of traditional Indian artistry

Five of them — four women and one man, residents of the Cherokee Indian Reservation in the mountains of far western North Carolina were in Raleigh January 11 to take part in an opening round of year-long activities to celebrate "The Native American Year" being observed throughout the state in 1986.

This quintet represented top artisans among many Cherokees gifted with skills required to carry on traditional Indian arts employing both old and new materials and techniques.

Time after time, as new groups of visitors watched them, talked to them, they answered questions about their art with admirable tact and patience.

One thing noticeable about all five is the musical quality of their voices, the absence of pronounced Southern accents, doubtless a reflection of early and long association with descendents of Scotch and Irish settlers.

It is obvious the five are accustomed to the art of maintaining the rhythm of their particular craft while simultaneously carrying on conversations with visitors.

• Annie Driver, weaver of beautifully crafted baskets, explained the choice of materials and dyes she uses in fashioning baskets both utilitarian and decorative. "I decide what I want to make, put my material near me and begin," she smiled. "This basket I'm working on now is a picnic basket with a decorative design. The strips I use," she indicated two a pile of strips next to her on a work table, "are white oak and maple. The maple strips have a shiny quality. Dyes I use are natural ones. Bloodroot gives an orangish color, and black walnut a rich brown color. You can see I alternate dyed strips with ones not dyed."

• The lone male artisan, Bob Reed, demonstrated two traditional Indian arts — shaping arrowheads and making blowguns and darts for the weapon.

As he flaked away fragments from a piece of flint with a chipping stone, he spoke about the history of arrowhead making among Cherokees. "Today I use Texas flint. In the old days, flint for these came primarily from Tennessee and Kentucky. The artifacts I make range from very small arrowheads to spear points up to six or seven inches long."

Reed's blowguns, about eight feet long, are made from a native bamboo, river cane. "I get the cane from different rivers. The best canes come from Georgia. The shafts of the slender darts are of yellow locust, and I use dried thistle instead of feathers to propel the dart."

The tall, strongly built craftsman seemed pleased with the enthusiastic response of watchers when he blew several darts through the blowgun into a tight pattern on a small target 15 feet distant.

• Textile craftsman Geneva Ledford demonstrated single weave and double weave finger weaving to make colorful belts and sashes. "Mostly, I use acrylic threads to make these," she said. "I select a pattern in my mind and work from that decision. I like bright colors," she added.

• Another who displayed a preference for bright colors is Oceola Smith. She creates brilliantly colored pieces — "strands of necklaces, head bands and two-inch wide belts. For these I used glass beads, string or sew them into the pattern I desire." The attractive belts "are sewn into deerskins trimmed down to the size I want. At one time," she recalled, "our people knew the meaning of the symbols used in this art, now the meaning is lost. We must depend on our memory to try to recreate these symbols."

• Dean Reed, wife of Bob Reed and a potter, brought along with her an assortment of small finished pottery pieces, and worked on unfinished pieces. "I try to stay with traditional forms," she explained. "I used native clay which is plentiful and create my own glazes. I rub the surface with smooth river stones, abundant in our area." One design that was the object of consistent questions is a small elegant piece with two openings at top. "This is a vase used in wedding ceremonies," she explained. "The bride drinks from one side, the groom from the other."

COLORFUL BELTS . . . are the handiwork of Oceola Smith. She uses hundreds of tiny red, blue, green, yellow, white and black glass beads, strung on thread or sewn in various designs onto narrow strips of deerskin leather to fashion necklaces, head bands and beaded belts.

MALE CRAFTSMAN . . . Bob Reed showed his skill in two areas of crafts practiced by master Cherokee craftsmen. Here, he chips away at a piece of flint to create a small arrowhead. He also demonstrated the making of blow guns and darts, and, using a small target, showed how effective such weapons can be.

SHAPING POTTERY . . . Dean Reed, wife of craftsman Bob Reed, applies an incised design to a piece of pottery while answering questions to an interested spectator cradling a tired young son. Mrs. Reed said Cherokee crafts people take pleasure in explaining their craft making to the visiting public.

Evaluate Your Attic Treasures

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

Were you planning to clean out the attic or basement and call the trashman for an extra pickup to prepare for a neater new year?

Before so much as throwing out a candy wrapper, take Helaine Fendelman's advice and stop. Mrs. Fendelman, who held her first tag sale 17 years ago when she and her husband discovered they had bought too much to fit into their new home, says you owe it to yourself to find out whether you're throwing away trash or treasure.

Her own passion for holding onto odd bits and pieces has led her to a satisfying career as a tag-sale planner, dealer, appraiser and author of books on collectibles.

Recently, Mrs. Fendelman co-authored a book to tell others how to evaluate what they have, find out what the things are worth, and how to dispose of some and insure and appraise those they decide to keep.

In "Money in Your Attic," she says, recycling your "junk" into someone else's home at a tag sale can lead to fun and profit.

Naturally, one of the first questions to ask is: What do I have? She has found a common error is to value the wrong things and overlook gold among the dross. For example, while old Christmas ornaments dating as late as the 1940s are collectible today, old books, encyclopedias and most old magazines are almost valueless.

Those who have been saving National Geographics and World Books have probably been wasting storage space. On the other hand, if you've saved old movie magazines, or the first issue of Antiques Magazine which she says is worth between $75 and $100, you are in a position to profit.

Many think that old children's toys are valuable — and they are. But generally they must be in mint condition, preferably in the original box, to garner good prices. Broken toys aren't wanted by most collectors and dealers and are not worth saving (unless they happen to be from the 17th or 18th century). Old china and jewelry are popular right now, as are linens, handmade lace textiles and even old clothing. But they have to be in good condition.

Many people have taken in the fact that old pieces have value, but like some vaccinations, they have taken it in too well. They are victims of what Mrs. Fendelman calls the "exactly-like-it" syndrome.

These people may see a china set at an antique show marked $500. They have a set that is in the same design or is, perhaps, by the same maker, so they set out to sell it for the same price. Perhaps theirs is the wrong color, the wrong maker, badly damaged, cracked and chipped. Or some significant pieces may be missing. "Then they have a hard time understanding why they are offered only a small fraction of the $500 for their set," she said.

Condition and completeness govern the value of most objects that can be used in the home, she said. An old set of bed linen is in great demand, as are banquet cloths and napkins. But if your tablecloth has a large brown spot and there are only three napkins, the value will be significantly reduced.

You have five choices when it comes to disposing of objects, says Mrs. Fendelman. You can have a tag sale or house sale; you can take the pieces to a consignment shop; consign them to an auction house; call in a dealer to buy the lot for an inclusive price, or give the stuff to charity for a tax deduction.

When donating items to charity, however, if the dollar value is over $5,000 you'll have to get a professional appraisal to satisfy the Internal Revenue Service, and Mrs. Fendelman advises getting an appraisal when values reach $1,000.

When there is a fair amount of merchandise, it can be worthwhile to have an appraiser go over it. You can find someone by contacting groups such as the Appraisers Association of America (the book lists a number of sources for information). The author's advice is to choose someone who is a member of a professional appraisal group, to avoid anyone who charges a fee as a percentage of appraised value.

What's new on the market?

THE PRODUCT — A computerized wall switch.

Manyfacturer's claim — That this product is designed to replace any standard wall light switch ... that it can be programmed to switch lights on and off up to eight times a day ... that it has a built-in digital clock, plus a program button and is ideal for operating on an outside porch, stairway, hallway or room lights to make a home look "lived in" when nobody is there ... that it can be operated automatically or manually ... that a touch of its panel swtiches the light on or off or activates a dimmer control ... and that it is simple to install in place of any single pole light switch.

THE PRODUCT — A polyurethane and stain in one.

Manufacturer's claim — That this finishing material can be applied to any interior wood surface to enhance the beauty of the grain ... that it can be used on previously varnished surfaces in good condition to change or darken the color without removing the old finish ... that it protects finished surfaces from ring marks and requires no waxing or polishing ... and that it is available in six colors.

Manufacturer's claim — That the system has a two-piece modular design which is attached to a special receptacle that is installed into the 4-inch junction box in the ceiling ... That a jack is wired to the fixture while standing on the floor, then attached to the receptacle ... that this eliminates holding a heavy fixture ... that it can support up to 200 pounds ... that it is corrosion-resistant and has received an Underwriters Laboratories listing.

THE PRODUCT — A clipper-shredder for turning plant and kitchen waste into mature compost.

Manfacurer's claim — That this machine gives big-farm results but weighs less than 50 pounds ... that, in two or three weeks in a compost pile, chipped organic material from the chipper-shredder becomes a rich humus that improves soil texture and structure, and helps it to retain air, water and essential nutrients ... that it resists hot and cold temperature extremes ... that it is rustproof and shockproof ... and that its blades detach easily for resharpening or replacement.

(The wall switch is manufctured by Intermatic Inc., Intermatic Plaza, Spring Grove, IL 60081; the finishing material by United Gilsonite Laboratories, P.O. Box 70, Scranton, PA 18501; the fixture installation method by Lightech Industries, 6 Landmark Square, Stamford, CT 06901; and the clipper-shredder by Mantis Manufacturing, 1458 County Line Road, Huntingdon Valley, PA 19006).

(Do-it-yourselfers will find much helpful data in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," which can be obtained by sending $2 to this newspaper at Box 5, Teaneck, NJ 07666.)

Here's The Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — I recently refinished an old bedroom bureau. I removed the old finish, sealed the wood and then applied stain. After the stain had dried, I finished the entire bureau with varnish. When I got through the finish had a slight cloudiness to it, not too bad but enough to make me realize I had done something wrong. I used a fresh can of varnish, so I am sure it wasn't that. What is your opinion?

A. — The cloudy condition of the final finish may have been due to the application of the varnish directly over the stain. Even though the stain is dry when you put on the varnish, some of its pigment may be disturbed by the varnish. You should have put a sealer over the stain, waited a day or two and then used the varnish. The sealer could have been shellac or whatever might have been recommended on the label of the container as a suitable undercoat for varnish. Shellac is usually fine, although it generally should not be used when the final finish is polyurethane. Again, let the instructions on the container be your guide.

Q. — I bought a second-hand dining room table. I stripped off the old finish and found a wood with a slightly reddish color. A friend tells me it is cherry wood. Is there any special way to finish this kind of wood, since I understand it must be treated in a certain way?

A. — Cherry wood usually has its own fine coloring so it is seldom stained. But it will take varnish or lacquer well. Wood finishers who do not believe it should be given a built-up finish are in favor of using a rubbing oil.

Q. — My grandfather used to finish wood as a hobby. I remember one kind of finish that was partly linseed oil and partly turpentine. Can you tell me what percentage of each goes into the mixture?

A. — There are several different combinations of these ingredients, with each having its adherents. One that we know calls for two parts of boiled linseed oil to one of turpentine. It must be rubbed in well. Be sure to use boiled linseed oil. It must say that on the container. Raw linseed oil usually is used on wood that will be exposed to the elements. The mixture of boiled linseed oil and turpentine does not produce the kind of glossy finish you see on most furniture. Instead, it gives the wood a kind of satiny appearance or patina. After rubbing in the mixture well, go over the finish with a dry cloth to pick up any oily residue. Such a finish will retain its smooth look if you repeat the process about once a year.

(The techiques of using varnish, lacquer, shellac, linseed oil, turpentine, stain, bleach, remover, etc., are detailed in Andy Lang's booklet, "Wood Finishing in the Home," which can be obtained by sending 50 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, NY 11743. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column.)

Q. How can I prevent English sparrows (house sparrows) from nesting in my birdhouses?

A. English sparrows will not nest in any birdhouse with an opening of less than one and one-eighths inch, but unfortunately this size also excludes almost all desirable birds, except for chickadees and house wrens. English sparrows usually shun birdhouses mounted on a low post, four or five feet off the ground as bluebird houses are. Also, do not put perches on houses for bluebirds since the perches discourage the bluebirds but not the English sparrows.

Q. How far apart should periwinkle be planted?

A. Use about nine plants per square yard. Periwinkle (Vinca minor) is a popular groundcover for banks and under trees and around buildings.

Q. What are some plants which are attractive to honeybees?

A. Plants which are especially attractive to bees are sometimes called "bee plants." Bees must have nectar in order to make honey, and they need pollen to feed young bees. In North Carolina, the most important source of nectar and pollen, at least in quantity, is tulip poplar (also called yellow poplar). In the Coastal Plain where the tulip poplar is less common, the gallberries (Ilex glabra and Ilex coriacea) take its place as probably the most important bee plants. Other important bee plants either for their nectar, pollen or both include: clover, goldenrod, black locust, honey locust, sourwood, maples, tupelo, any of the willows (Salix spp.), sweet corn, dandelion, certain oaks, sarvisberry, Judas tree or redbud, Cornelian cherry (Cornus mas, not really a cherry but a member of the dogwood family), any of the cherries, plums and peaches (Prunus spp.), any of the pears (Pyrus spp.), Japanese barberry, any of the basswoods or lindens (Tilia spp.), any of the hollies (Ilex spp.) and any of the apples (Malus spp.). Bee balm (Monarda didyma) and other monardas also attract bees. Asters are especially important bee plants in the fall. Several species and hybrids of sedums are known for atracting bees and butterflies to the flower garden.

No. 10396 — The Ashland
Three Levels Of Living Space

This passive solar design is suitable for vacation or year 'round living. The rear or southern elevation of the home is highlighted by an abundance of decks and glass. A minimum of windows are found on the north, east and west sides. On the basement level are found large shop, storage, and recreation areas plus a bedroom. Unique aspects of the first level living room are its location up two steps from the rest of the first floor, two stories of glass on its southern wall and its openness with a railing to the hall and stairway adjacent. An angled wall lends character to the kitchen/dining area. The master suite occupies the entire second level with its own bath, dressing area, walk-in closet, storage nook and private deck.

Concerns Prompted By Boom In Boating

By BRUCE SMITH
Associated Press Writer

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — With yachts at Hilton Head Island, Hobie Cats at Myrtle Beach and fishing boats docked up and down the coast, more South Carolinians are going down to the sea in ships.

And while thousands enjoy being weekend captains, the boating boom is bringing environmental concerns with it.

Planners mapping the future of the coast must worry about everything from the environmental impact of new marinas to simple access to the water for those with smaller boats.

Figures from the South Carolina Department of Wildlife and Marine Resources show 235,500 boats were registered in the state on Dec. 31.

On June 30, the state had 228,735 registered. And department official A.C. West says the number of registrations is growing from 5 percent to 10 percent a year.

In addition to registered boats, there are an estimated 30,000 smaller boats plying the waters of South Carolina — giving a state with only about 3 million people more than a quarter million boats.

Boating is big business in the state.

Figures from the National Marine Manufacturers Association, an industry trade group in Chicago, show that during 1984, retail sales of boats in South Carolina totaled $33.4 million. When spending for motors, trailers and accessories is added, that figure reaches almost $74 million.

Almost 30 percent of the state's boats are registered in the coastal counties. But the number is considerably higher when one considers the hundreds of boats berthed on the coast but registered in inland counties or out-of-state.

In addition, hundreds of transient boats pass through the state each year as they ply their way along the Atlantic coast.

One problem for planners is where to dock all those boats.

There are 64 coastal marinas with an average of about 150 slips per facility, said Damien Zanetti, president of the South Carolina Marina Association. In the past 18 months, the South Carolina Coastal Council has approved permits for 13 new marinas and applications for seven others are pending.

Zanetti, the director of operations for Bohicket Marina near Charleston, says marina space is generally available in outlying areas but is at a premium in urban areas.

"A lot of the marinas being built are not working facilities. They're built to support a landside development," such as a condominium complex, he said. The marina industry has grown rapidly in recent years and the association is working on studies to better gauge the economic impact of the business, he said.

Where to allow marina construction is one of the issues facing coastal planners.

Mac Burdette, the planning director for the South Carolina Coastal Council, said water quality is a concern as more marinas are planned in the pristine waters of undeveloped areas. In urban areas, planners must consider both water quality and the impact a marina might have on opening the drawbridges which dot the coast.

Burdette also sees a growing problem with providing access to the water for those with smaller boats.

"Boating access is going to be a real problem in the future. The average person can't afford a $50 slip to put their 15-foot runabout in," he said. "The smaller boat is going to be more prevalent than the big boat that needs a marina. It will mean we'll need more boat ramp access."

There are 92 public boat ramps along the coast, according to wildlife department figures. But access is fast becoming a concern in urban areas, Burdette said. With waterfront property values skyrocketing, it becomes more expensive for local governments to find land for boat ramps.

Burdette said another concern is that urban residents usually don't want the ramps — with the inevitable noise and traffic that accompanies them — built near their homes.

But he said while the growth of recreational boating causes planning concerns, there's also a positive spinoff in getting people out on the water.

"Water is like a drive up in the mountains," Burdette said. "It attracts people. People want to look at it whether it's the beach, the river or the (view from the Charleston) Battery. It's a true natural magnet.

Car Payments Slashed up to $100 a Month

Don Whitehurst Pontiac-Buick-Chrysler-GMC in Tarboro
Announces
The New Buying System
with RPM's: Reduced Payments Monthly

A Revolutionary New Buying System is now available in this area exclusively at Don Whitehurst Pontiac-Buick-Chrysler-GMC in Tarboro. It makes new cars affordable again.

"We all knew that something had to be done", says Don Whitehurst. "Monthly payments have gotten out of hand. You have to have a car these days, but most families have just about gotten priced out of the marked. And the small businessman is in the same boat."

Revolutionary New System

The new buying system is a revolutionary approach to car ownership. Whitehurst says. "We knew something had to be done, so we analyzed the whole system as it was, took inventory of our own strengths in automobile marketing, and came up with a new plan that substantially reduces the amount of cash outlay for the average customer."

The New Buying System has RPM's Reduced Payments Monthly. You save $50, $75, $100 or more.

Unbelievable Money Saving Advantages

1. It can reduce monthly payments by $50, $75, $100 or more from terms customers have been quoted from other dealerships.
2. It puts buyers in new cars with little or no down-payment.
3. A built in trade option can put you in a new car after 30 to 36 months.

The New Buying System makes cars affordable again.

Saved $89 a Month

"We had one customer come in looking for a Buick Skylark Custom," Don Whitehurst says. "The monthly payments quoted by another dealer was $334 monthly. We were able to give him exactly the same car for $245, and he was able to keep the proceeds from the sale of his old car to invest or use for other purposes."

Now You Can Afford Top-Of-The-Line

Buyers are often excited to find that The New Buying system permits them to drive a top-of-the-line automobile for the same money they are currently spending for a mid-price model.

Everyone Can Take Advantage

"There are no special requirements for participating in The New Buying System. Don emphasizes. "Anyone can take advantage of it", he says, "from the young couple shopping for their first new car to the executive who owns a fleet of company cars."

Many Styles of Cars to Choose From

Our inventory includes the best new & used cars on the market. New cars include Chrysler, Dodge, Plymouth, Buick, Pontiac and GMC trucks. Our selection of used cars is one of the largest in the area.

You Must See It to Believe It

Individuals and companies are urged to call toll free 1-800-682-8146 or stop by Don Whitehurst Pontiac-Buick-Chrysler-GMC in Tarboro for details about the revolutionary New Buying System today.

Respect for a dollar and insistence on solid value shouldn't imply a willingness to be bored.

The Saab 900 is moderately priced, conservative of fuel and built to last for a very long time. It can accommodate four adults very comfortably; or it can be used, with the rear seat folded, as a sort of emergency station wagon to carry bulky cargo.

All of which is very much beside the point when you're piloting the Saab 900, one of Europe's most respected sports sedans, over some challenging piece of two-lane blacktop.

Test drive one today.

States Are Turning To Lotteries For Revenue

By CHRISTOPHER SULLIVAN
Associated Press Writer

When Missourians cross their fingers and line up to buy "Jackpot '86" tickets Monday, theirs becomes the latest state to bet on lotteries as a source of revenue, a wager that returned $10 billion to 20 states and the District of Columbia last year.

Of the 24 lotteries now operating, including a regional game in New England, six started within the last nine months. And while opposition to the games on moral grounds remains firm in many places, in others observers say it has eroded.

In all, Americans won about $5 billion in jackpots, and lottery spending is on the rise, according to a survey by The Associated Press. This year, 17 state legislatures are considering measures to legalize the games, while ballot proposals are being pushed in two other states, Florida and Nevada.

Last year's $10 billion in gross ticket sales netted more than $4 billion for state coffers.

Since its start last Oct. 3, California's huge lottery has taken in $800 million, paying half that amount in prizes. Also taking a chance on lotteries last year were Oregon and Iowa, while Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont pooled resources to add a weekly regional lottery to their daily individual state games.

Opposition to the lottery as a revenue raiser "is getting less and less as it becomes more and more a fact of life," said Ray Grimes, spokesman for Rhode Island's lottery, which grossed $52 million in fiscal 1985.

"I detect some softening," agreed state Senate President Jim Risch in Idaho, one of several states where legislators are considering measures to remove a constitutional prohibition against lotteries.

In Idaho and many other places, there are difficult hurdles to clear to get an amendment proposal on the ballot, but some surveys indicate voters support the games.

Asked about the prospects of passage of an Idaho lottery referendum, one supporter, state Sen. Vernon Lannen, said he'd give 2-to-1 odds, "and I'd borrow an awful lot of money."

"What's wrong with someone purchasing a 50-cent chance on a dream?" wondered state Sen. Lawrence Borst of Indiana, where a lottery bill is given little chance of passage.

Lottery revenues support education and other public causes, helping to forestall tax increases. Together, the New York, Ohio and Illinois lotteries generated $1.5 billion for schools, while Pennsylvania's produced $565 million to help the elderly. Still, not all agree that the end justifies the means.

"We can't wash gambling money clean," insisted Jane Fribley, past president of the Indiana Council of Churches. And even lottery backers in some states criticize the use of "slick" advertising to promote the games.

"It's a ripoff," said the Rev. Allen Rice, executive director of the Michigan Interfaith Council on Alcohol Problems. "It is the function of government to help people, not exploit them."

Almost everywhere that lotteries operated last year, sales were up, and four states grossed more than a billion dollars apiece — Pennsylvania with $1.295 billion, New York ($1.27 billion), Illinois ($1.2 billion) and Massachusetts ($1.003 billion).

"Our impression is that as we maintain sales and contributions to the state General Fund at the levels we projected, the opposition tends to be quieter," said lottery spokesman Dick Paulson in Washington, where the games netted $68.8 million for the state, mostly for schools and social programs.

In Michigan, lottery spokeswoman Laurie Kipp said ticket sale revenues made up for money endangered by federal budget cuts, noting that last year lottery money going toward education exceeded federal allotments for the first time.

"If it were not for the lottery revenue this past fiscal year, it would have cost Michigan households nearly $115 more each to keep school aid at the same level," she said.

Federal reductions were cited by Kansas state Sen. Clive L. DuVal II when he introduced his lottery bill this year, and other officials, from Alabama to the nation's capital, made the same argument.

"We're suffering as much as any jurisdiction," said Kay Hixson, chief of marketing for D.C. Lottery, which grossed $112 million.

Lottery success breeds more lotteries, and backers of the games in Kentucky say the fact that their state is virtually surrounded by lottery states — with reports of "instant millionaires" just across the state lines — can only help their cause.

Frank Mirabella, a spokesman for the Florida group pushing for a lottery referendum, argued: "Sixty percent of the people in this country live in a state with a lottery. There are a lot of people moving in from those states or people who have family or friends in a state with a lottery. They know most of the arguments against them are just not true."

Pro-lottery forces often tailor their pleas to answer local issues and worries. Part of Iowa's lottery revenue, by law, supports a gambling addicts hotline.

GOREN BRIDGE

DEAR MR. GOREN

Q.—My partner and I do not open four-card majors. There is one type of hand that always causes us problems: where opener has five hearts and four spades. How do you handle that?—J.L., Orlando, Fla.

A.—That is a pesky problem no matter whether you play four- or five-card major opening bids. Actually, though, you only have difficulties when your hand is a minimum opening bid; if you have an intermediate or stronger opener, you can afford to open one heart and then make a reverse bid in spades.

Take a look at these two hands:

(1) ♠KQ83 ♡AQ852 ◇J5 ♣72
(2) ♠KQ83 ♡AK852 ◇A5 ♣72

The second example is easily handled with a reverse bid. The first poses problems for even expert partnerships. Let's assume that you play a sophisticated system that includes five-card major opening bids and forcing no trump responses. You open one heart and partner forces with one no trump. What now?

You don't even have a three-card minor to choose for your rebid! You have to lie to partner either about your strength or your shape, for a rebid of two hearts in this situation virtually guarantees a six-card suit.

Some experts overcome this by simply choosing the anti-system opening bid of one spade. That leaves them with a convenient rebid of two hearts over any action b. partner. That is not an ideal solution, and on oecasion will result in your side struggling in a 4-2 spade fit.

A larger body of experts has adopted the Flannery Convention. They play that an opening bid of two diamonds shows exactly the hand shown above: a limited opening bid of 11-15 high-card points which includes four spades and five hearts. If responder has game-going values, he can check on opener's distribution by bidding two no trump. Opener bids a side three-card minor if his shape is 4-5-3-1, or jumps in the minor if it is a four-card suit and his shape is 4-5-4-0.

With 4-5-2-2 and a minimum for his bid, opener signs off with three hearts. With a maximum and stoppers in the minor suits, he bids three no trump.

There are some flaws to this method—it sometimes makes the defense easier. And you have to give up using two diamonds as a weak two-bid, but that is no big drawback.

If you want to know more about the Flannery Convention, last year Devyn Press brought out a book on it.

'Murrow' Captures The Man And His Times

By Andrew J. Edelstein

HBO's "Murrow" (debuting Jan. 19) is a taut, albeit preachy, drama filled with ideas and issues, not action. It has accurately captured the excitement of the early days of electronic journalism — when TV's potential for good was still considered a reality, not an empty promise.

Daniel J. Travanti ("Hill Street Blues") gives a bravura performance as Murrow, the rumpled, chain-smoking broadcast journalist. Playing an essentially tight-lipped, emotionally reserved man, Travanti conveys his feelings superbly by an arched eyebrow, furrowed brow, downcast eyes.

The docudrama concentrates on the public Murrow — the man who reported from wartime London and later challenged the anti-communist demagoguery of Sen. Joseph McCarthy, as well as his battles with CBS founder William Paley and former CBS President Frank Stanton over the scope of the network's news operation.

The docudrama, authored by veteran TV writer Ernest Kinoy ("Roots," "Skokie") tends to portray Murrow in an ideal light more often than not.

"He was an austere man, a conscientious man," says Kinoy. "Most people thought of him as saintly. The role he had to play made it easier. As Paley said, 'All he was called on to do was the good things.'

"If there are any dark secrets in Murrow's life, no one is saying anything," says Kinoy. "What's interesting about the man is his role as a broadcast journalist — not what he did at home."

The drama offers several fine performances, including Edward Herrmann as Fred Friendly, Murrow's co-producer and Dabney Coleman as Paley. Coleman, who has tended to play sleazy characters (the unctuous boss in "9 to 5," the obnoxious talk-show host on "Buffalo Bill"), plays Paley sympathetically and with restraint. It's a performance that will surprise a lot of viewers.

It's a case of Muppet mania when Jim Henson makes an appearance on "The Muppets — A Celebration of 30 Years," a special one-hour tribute to those lovable creatures, airing Tuesday, Jan. 21 on CBS. Expect Miss Piggy to hog the camera.

of War." The 30-hour miniseries, set in the turmoil of World War II, began production this month in France and is scheduled to this spring.

Bravo Valentino!

Fashion-designer Valentino has introduced Italian haute couture on the set of the CBS miniseries "Sins." Star Joan Collins will sport more than 35 Valentino creations during the seven-hour tale of a career-woman demogague in the fashion industry. The first episode of "Sins" is scheduled to air February 2.

Warring Winds Remembered

Jane Seymour, Sir John Gielgud and David Dukes are the first stars to be signed for "War and Remembrance," the ABC sequel to 1983's "The Winds

A Star is Torn

February TV viewers can look forward to a CBS miniseries starring Kris Kristofferson as a Honolulu police detective. "Blood and Orchids," also starring Jane Alexander, Jose Ferrer and Sean Young, is a fictitious four-hour drama in which Kristofferson tackles the case of four Hawaiian youths falsely accused of raping a U.S. Navy officer's wife.

Richard Gere portrays the warrior king in the biblical epic KING DAVID
Roy Scheider and John Lithgow star in 2010, the sequel to 2001.
Fantasy becomes reality in the romantic thriller THIEF OF HEARTS.

FREE HEARING TESTS
30 DAY FREE HEARING AID TRIAL
To someone with a hearing loss, a casual remark can often lead to misunderstandings and hurt feelings. Feelings you may never be able to set right. Because even though a friend or relative may hear what you say, he or she may have trouble understanding certain words. And one misunderstood word is all it takes.
Why take the chance? Be a good friend. Show someone how much you care. Call Beltone and make an appointment for or a loved one now. Many hearing problems can be helped.

Mike Malloy (Douglas Seale) stars as a drunk who's the target of a murder plot —and who's caught in a snowstorm — in "One for the Road," the episode of "Amazing Stories" airing Sunday, Jan. 19 on NBC.

"Night Court"

By Bob Andelman

"I don't know what concept the producers had about Bull's look," Richard Moll says, "but when I walked in doing my Frankenstein impression, it was a big hit."

At 6-foot-8-inches, Moll is the biggest star on NBC's "Night Court," even if Harry Anderson is the main attraction. For the past three seasons, Moll has played the gentle, but firm bailiff Bull Shannon.

Both Moll's height and shaved head impressed the producers of "Night Court." But the head bit was unintentional. Moll had just completed a sci-fi film called "Metalstorm," playing "the leader of a race of bald, one-eyed, desert-dwelling mutants." The role was typecasting, Moll says; "They always have me play that kind of role. I don't know why."

"When I went in to read for 'Night Court,' the producers said, 'Richard, the shaved head looks good. Will you shave your head for the part?' And I said, 'I'll shave my legs for the part.' Fortunately, they didn't ask me to do that."

"Bull was originally conceived as a law and order man. But the producers drifted away from that idea."

But Bull's menacing exterior remains. He doesn't take any nonsense. He's fiercely loyal to Judge Stone (Anderson) and likes everybody, including abrasive assistant district attorney Dan Fielding (John Larroquette).

Bull tends to be a bit of a bull in a china shop. "He's very fond of adopting creatures in need of comfort," says Moll. "During Thanksgiving, he stole Mac's turkey and saved him from death. Bull always wants to become a volunteer father. There was another episode when he adopted a blind man who had been arrested for shoplifting."

And one show used an abandoned child as a vehicle to take viewers into Bull's apartment.

"That was quite a triumph," Moll says. The apartment featured doorways bashed out at the top so Bull could go through without stooping, a mud flap over the main doorway and a couch made out of cement. An elevated railway went by outside the window.

Moll hasn't always been such an amusing character. In the past, he has made his daily bread mostly from playing hideous heavies.

In "The Sword and The Sorcerer," he played the title role of Xusia, the Sorcerer. And then there was his role on the Saturday-morning show "Bigfoot and Wildboy," where Moll played a faceless creature.

Other jobs have included an appearance as the abominable snowman in "Caveman," an ox-man in "The Archer," a snake-man for PBS' special "Reach for the Sun," a demonic wizard in "Ragewar" and a devil-worshipping monk in "Evilspeak."

"One of these days I think it would be nice to make the transition to leading man, perhaps, or character leads," says Moll. "But I'm real pleased with what my size, demeanor and all have done for me. I get to play really juicy roles."

TV Chatter

Meredith Baxter Birney and David Birney keep close family ties. Last year, the couple hosted "Missing ... Have You Seen This Person?" the NBC special that helped reunite several missing adults and children with their parents. On Monday, Jan. 22, the Birneys will host "Missing ... Have You Seen This Person? Part Two." ("Missing ... Part Three" will air in April.) "People are going to say we're over-publicizing the cause," Birney, 44, says, "but it's a dangerous world out there, and somebody's got to tell the little guys about it." Birney and his wife have five children, including 15-month-old twins. "If I didn't do these shows," he adds, "how would I feel getting an ear in the mail with a ransom note asking for $2 million?"

Sex. Drugs. Rock 'n' roll. Even obesity. Michelle Phillips promises to tackle these topics — and more — in "California Dreamin': The True Story of the Mamas and the Papas," a tell-all tome she's penning for Warner Books. Miss Phillips, an original member of the '60s group that gave us such gems as "Creeque Alley" and "Monday, Monday," is working closely with the Cass Elliot estate. Cass, better known as the rotund "Mama" Cass, died in 1974. "They were very close," explains a publishing source at Warners. "Michelle and Cass loved, hated and respected each other." Adds Miss Phillips, 41, now finding her fortune as an actress: "I'm also going to talk about being unceremoniously thrown out of the group."

Everyone has to make a living. Even Danny Thomas. The veteran actor just completed "Dr. Danny," an episode of "It's a Living" scheduled to air the weekend of Feb. 1. It's no wonder there was an incredible feeling of deja vu during the filming of the syndicated sitcom. "It's a Living" is shot on the same set Thomas used to film his classic series "Make Room for Daddy," and "Dr. Danny" was produced by Thomas's son, Tony Thomas. Was it difficult to make room for daddy? "Sometimes Tony told me I put too much Danny Thomas in the character," Danny says, "but I listened to him because he was the boss. After all, the greatest compliment a father can give himself is to pay attention to his son."

John Denver was recently awarded a NASA medal, an honor usually reserved for space flight designers and engineers. The country crooner copped the accolade because, says NASA head James Beggs, Denver has "increased the awareness of space exploration by the peoples of the world." Still, it's not enough. "I love the medal," Denver says, "but there's something I'm looking forward to even more. The day when I'll be able to ride the space shuttle." ... Joan Rivers never forgets. Neither do Dick Cavett, Linda Lavin, Bert Convy or Kaye Ballard. On Monday, Feb. 3, the bevy of big names will honor Jan Wallman, the restaurateur who gave them their first big break in the '60s. But two faces will be missing from the Carnegie Hall festivities: Woody Allen and Barbra Streisand. "They love Jan," says a friend of Miss Wallman, "but they're too shy to come out."

Principle Playwright

The third annual ABC playwright award has been given to Richard Nelson for "Principia Scriptoriae," a political play dealing with two writers who meet in a Central American prison cell. Nelson's works have appeared on Broadway, off-Broadway and in regional theater.

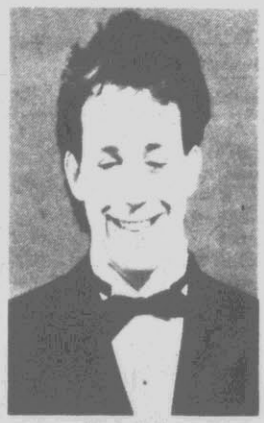
'Rocket' sends Tom's career soaring again

By Gillian George

Some acts are hard to follow. And Tom Hulce knows. After stunning the film world and winning a Oscar nomination for his performance in the title role of "Amadeus," Hulce got his first taste of superstardom. The red carpet was rolled out throughout the world as he was flown first class to promote the ambitious film. Overnight, his agent's phone started ringing off the hook and scripts poured in from everywhere.



Tom Hulce

How did Hulce, a boyish-looking 30, respond? He says he enjoyed the experience for what it was, and, out of myriad opportunities for his next film project, chose to fulfill an old obligation.

The result will be seen tomorrow night when "American Playhouse" launches its fifth season with "The Rise and Rise of Daniel Rocket," airing on PBS.

In the film, Hulce recreates the title character he created on stage at Manhattan's prestigious off-Broadway Playwrights Horizons Theater. When the play opened, critics lauded Hulce's performance. Unfortunately, the actor was cast in "Amadeus," and had to leave the production after only three weeks. This is why, as soon as he was free again, the Michigan-born actor chose to do what he terms "justice" to "Daniel Rocket" by appearing in the TV version.

In describing what happens to his airborne character, Hulce draws a few parallels to what's happened to him in real life.

"As a child, Daniel is made to feel like an outcast," the actor explains, "and much later, when he's world famous, he returns home in triumph to the people who made him feel like a freak. Something a little like that happened to me after 'Amadeus.'

"Like Daniel, I didn't really feel there was a place for me in the small community of Plymouth, where I grew up. I was considered a troublemaker who was interested in all the wrong things — and not many of the right ones. But last year, after nearly 15 years, I was invited back. And it was eerie, almost as if a page had been ripped from the 'Daniel Rocket' script. For a while, I felt just like I was part of a Frank Capra movie. But eventually all was forgiven and, for me at least, nearly forgotten."

You Can't Refuse This Gangster Chronicle

By Robert DiMatteo

Our seemingly insatiable fascination with underworld crime figures, coupled with the recent shooting of top mobster Paul Castellano, should make NBC's Mafia Princess (Jan. 19) a must-see for a lot of viewers. Based on the autobiographical book by Antoinette "Annette" Giancana (and Thomas C. Renner), this made-for-TV movie takes us inside one such underworld family, detailing the struggle of the daughter of a Mafia chieftain to achieve an identity independent of her father's.

The family is the Giancanas, led by Salvatore ("Sam"), a man who tries to juggle his heinous work with his role as patriarch. Daughter Annette (played by Susan Lucci of "All My Children") is a casualty of her father's schizoid existence. "Mafia Princess" centers on Annette's desperate efforts to reconcile her needs as a daughter and as a woman. Mediating between father and daughter is Angelina (Kathleen Widdoes), wife and mother.

"Mafia Princess" comes on the heels of "Prizzi's Honor," the maliciously funny John Huston film that suggested that the problems of a Mafia family are basically the same as those of any other family: There's just a lot more blood-spilling involved. "Mafia Princess" takes a less-savage view, though it does show how bizarrely normal the family life of an underworld figure can be from moment to moment.

What tears at Annette is her primal love for a man who can turn around and casually authorize the murder of someone. Susan Lucci — the actress who was deemed "too refined" by Francis Coppola when she auditioned for his "Godfather" film — seizes the plum role of Annette and delivers a forceful perfomance.

ASK ME ABOUT TV

By Val Carew

I think Bruce Boxleitner, the actor who portrays Lee Stetson on "Scarecrow and Mrs. King," is gorgeous. What can you tell me about him? — M.C., Edmonton, Alberta, Canada

Bruce Boxleitner

Boxleitner is from Elgin, Ill., where he was born on May 12. He grew up in nearby Mt. Prospect, a suburb of Chicago. He got his first taste of acting in high school, and upon graduation in 1968, Boxleitner enrolled in Chicago's prestigious Goodman Theater.

Three years later, he was hired to understudy the lead in the Ivanhoe Theater's production of "Status Quo Vadis." A week later, the leading man walked out of the show — and Boxleitner took over the role.

After the actor appeared in the New York production of "My Daughter Is Rated X," he returned to Chicago for a repeat production of "Status Quo Vadis." In 1972, he moved to Los Angeles.

Boxleitner made his television debut in a five-line role in "The Mary Tyler Moore Show." After a series of screen tests, he was cast as James Arness's nephew in "How the West Was Won."

The actor is married to Kathryn Holcomb, the actress who played his sister on "The Macahans." You can write to Boxleitner c/o The Burbank Studios, Burbank, CA 91505.

I'm visiting New York this spring and would like to attend a taping of "The Guiding Light." Can you help? — J.B., Kittrell, N.C.

Soap operas are usually filmed without an audience, although there are frequent set visitors. Why don't you write to "GL" executive producer Gail Kobe and ask her advice? Drop your letters c/o "The Guiding Light," 51 West 52 St., New York, NY 10019. Good luck!

(Do you have a question about TV? Write Val Carew at 200 Park Ave., Room 602, New York, NY 10166. Questions cannot be answered personally, but those of general interest will be answered in future columns.)

'Tender' Marks Steenburgen's Return

By Jay Carman

Mary Steenburgen says a funny thing happened to her on the very first day's shooting on the six-hour miniseries of F. Scott Fitzgerald's "Tender Is the Night," premiering on CBC channels on Tuesday, Jan. 21.

"We were on a train somewhere in the Swiss Alps and as soon as the director yelled, 'Action!' tears just started spurting from my eyes," she says. "I was completely unprepared for the outburst and the part didn't even call for crying at that point. Then I realized it happened because I had just discovered how much I missed acting during the year I'd taken off to be with my second son after he was born."

Since Miss Steenburgen is a true professional, she recovered her poise within moments and went on to do what she considers one of the toughest acting jobs she has ever tackled. Fitzgerald's novel is about the bittersweet relationship of Dick and Nicole Diver, a glamorous young American couple who cavort through the Europe of the Roaring '20s.

An obvious echo of the author's relationship with his own psychologically troubled wife, Zelda, the story begins when the psychiatrist Diver begins treating his soon-to-be wife for what might be described as hysterical melancholia. Peter Strauss plays Dick Diver.

Miss Steenburgen, 32, says that Nicole "is an extraordinary character and one of the most difficult roles I've ever played, because some parts of her remain constant while others go through tumultuous changes. It's a real actor's part, one that allowed me to chew up the scenery flat out. Needless to say, I loved every second of it."

She's quick to add, however, that she also loved every moment of her time off. And, by sheer coincidence, with absolutely no knowledge that the powers-that-be were planning a new production of "Tender Is the Night," she had re-read the novel while looking after little Charlie (now 2) and his older sister Lily (now 4). The family was in Dubrovnik, Yugoslavia, where daddy Malcolm McDowell was then filming "King Arthur."

Punky Prevention

As a public service, NBC has begun its new "Just Say No" campaign against drug and alcohol abuse. Network efforts include a half-hour special entitled "Wasted," on-air announcments by NBC series stars and "Just Say No" clubs with NBC's "Punky Brewster" star Soleil Moon Frye as chairkid.

Michele Will Tell

Dear Michele: One of my all-time favorite actors, Richard Widmark, appeared in the HBO special "Blackout." Why doesn't Widmark appear in more films? Please tell me something about this special actor. — M. SANFORD, EVERETT, WASH.

Seventy-one-year-old Richard Widmark was born on Dec. 26, 1914, in Sunrise, Minn. He spent his early childhood years in and around Chicago, attended Princeton High School in Princeton, Ill., and matriculated at Lake Forest University. He graduated with a degree in dramatics and stayed on as a professor in dramatic literature. Fulfillment, however, was not to be found in teaching. He decided to practice what he was preaching and headed for New York to act. During the late '30s and early '40s, Widmark lent his voice to such radio classics as "Front Page Farrell," "Inner Sanctum" and "Big Sister." He first burst forth on the big screen in 1947 as the vile and psychopathic gangster, Tommy Udo, in "Kiss of Death." Since then, Widmark has appeared in more than 40 films, including "Halls of Montezuma" (1950), "Judgment at Nuremberg" (1961), "The Bedford Incident" (1961) and "Madigan" (1968). He also starred in the NBC series "Madigan" from 1972-73.

On the personal front, Widmark married screenwriter Jean Hazlewood in 1942. Their marriage produced one daughter, Anne, in 1945. Anne later married baseball legend Sandy Koufax. Today, Widmark rarely performs. "Nowadays I work once a year, and I like to enjoy it if I can," he says. The veteran actor and his wife spend much of their time at their Connecticut home or at their California horse ranch.

Dear Michele: I know Marjorie Main played Ma Kettle in the Ma and Pa Kettle films of yesteryear. Who played Pa Kettle? Is he still alive? And who played the female lead in the film "The Egg and I"? Didn't Ma and Pa Kettle appear in this film, too? — CLARA DAVIS, ALHAMBRA, CALIF.

"The Egg and I" (1947) starred Fred MacMurray as a chicken farmer and Claudette Colbert as the city girl who marries him. This feature marked the first appearance of Ma and Pa Kettle, and spawned a series of nine spin-off films starring Marjorie Main and Percy Killbride as Ma and Pa. Killbride died in 1964, Miss Main in 1975.

Shaughnessy Heading For Soap Stardom

By Connie Passalacqua

From the soap opera star-making apparatus that brought you Tony Geary ("General Hospital"), Vincent Irizarry ("Guiding Light") and Jackee Harry ("Another World") — all of whom were initially hired as minor day players and soared on to become soap superstars — comes Charles Shaughnessy. He came onto "Days of Our Lives" last spring playing good-guy spy Shane Donovan and has already reached the top fan magazines' popularity polls.

But, says Shaughnessy, a charming, if self-depreciating Englishman, his quick fame wasn't entirely of his own doing.

"Wayne (Northrop, an enormously popular actor who played detective Roman Brady) was planning on leaving the show at the time, so they needed someone who was a good-guy cop," he says. "I was transformed overnight from a sinister hit man to a fully ensconced ISA agent." (The ISA is the fictional equivalent of the CIA on "Days of Our Lives.")

As "DOOL" has evolved into an action soap during the last few years, Shane has already been involved in countless dangerous adventures as well as a moving love story with Kimberly Brady (Patsy Pease).

But although Shaughnessy has fast become a top soap star, he says he is not overwhelmed with fan-in-the-street recognition.

Mellencamp Gives Fans' Money Back

By E.A. Vare

Putting his money where his mouth is, friend-of-the-workingman John Cougar Mellencamp voluntarily refunded the price of admission to the audience at his much-anticipated Madison Square Garden performance when the sound system failed twice during his set. Although Mellencamp went on to perform a full show, he told his fans, "This one's on me," and anyone with a valid ticket stub became entitled to claim the $17.50 back. Many fans indicated they would send the money to Mellencamp's charity project, Farm-Aid.

Ebenezer Scrooge was a sweetheart compared to the record manufacturers of Indonesia. According to findings of the Band-Aid Trust, major companies in Jakarta have bootlegged 1.5 million copies of Live-Aid albums and cassettes for sale in Southeast Asia, the Middle East and Italy. The profits — which have gone directly into the manufacturers' pockets — amount to "enough to keep 2 million people alive for a month" had they gone to the Trust, said a charity representative.

Joining the drive to feed the hungry with song are some of the nation's premier jazz artists. "Jazz Aid" will take place at the 17,000-seat Los Angeles Forum on Feb. 13, featuring performances by Dizzy Gillespie, Sarah Vaughan, Stanley Clarke and others, with a live album and TV special to follow. Proceeds will be donated, according to the organizers, "to feed the hungry first in the United States, then India and Africa."

SOAP OPERA WEEK

Wallace has bloomed into a daytime hunk

By Kimberly Redmond

Please give me some facts about that handsome blond hunk, David Wallace, who portrays Tod Chandler on "Days of Our Lives." He's the best thing to hit daytime in quite a while. — B.L., Lakewood, N.Y.

Wallace has fast become a leading afternoon heartthrob since he joined the NBC soap last summer. Raised in Long Beach, Wallace was a typical California teen who enjoyed surfing and working in his dad's shop, where he bought, repaired and sold cars and motorcycles.

Wallace attended charm school, which led to an interest in acting. He eventually landed several TV commercials. He attended drama classes at Long Beach City College and earned roles in several feature films, including "Money to Burn" and "Miracle on Ice." He has also appeared in many TV movies and television shows, including "The Facts of Life" and "Hart to Hart." His role in "Days" marks his soap debut.

The actor, who has several brothers and sisters, still resides in Long Beach. He loves to party, but is able to keep the Hollywood scene at a distance.

I think Brian Bloom, the actor who portrays Dustin Donovan on "As the World Turns," is gorgeous. I also think I'm in love with him. Does he already have a girlfriend? — M.S., Guymon, Okla.

Sorry, M.S., Bloom is already taken — sort of. He's been seen at all the New York holiday parties with his "best friend" (and date) Allison Smith, the lovely teenager who portrays Jennie Lowell on the nighttime series "Kate & Allie." Not to worry: The young couple is chaperoned by one of their parents.

Snowbound

The cast of "Dream West," the CBS miniseries chronicling the life of American adventurer and pioneer John Charles Fremont, return from their Christmas hiatus this month. Richard Chamberlain and company can look forward to two weeks of filming in mountain snow scenes, dramatizing Fremont's Western exploits.

BEHIND THE SCENES

Herbert still brings wizardry to television

By Frank Lovece

Before Carl Sagan, David Attenborough or even Jacques Cousteau, Don Herbert was everybody's favorite scientist. Because before Mister Rogers, Mr. Ed or Mr. Peabody, there was Mr. Wizard."

Don Herbert

For 14 years, from 1951-65 (and, later, for an extra year in 1971), Mr. Wizard (Don Herbert) was the adult kids turned to when they wanted to learn how to make omelettes without breaking eggs. Mr. Wizard could do anything, it seemed, with eggs — as well as with rubber bands, corks, dry cells and all those other households items that he'd turn into demonstrations of everyday science. Herbert returned to the small screen in 1983 with "Mr. Wizard's World," airing on cable's Nickelodeon.

"Nobody remembers the old show well enough to know how awful it really was," Herbert, 68, says with a laugh. "I still have a few old kinescopes — God, are they awful!" The original show was done live for most of its run, which led to a few on-air fizzles and flubs. Mr. Wizard's demonstrations are now shot live on tape, both in a Calgary, Alberta studio and in outdoor locales.

One thing that hasn't changed is Herbert's love of classic experiments. "A lot of them come from old books dating back to the 1890s," he says, puffing on an ever-present corncob pipe. "Science to the average person used to be a parlor-game kind of thing. In fact, one of my standard experiments — getting an egg into a narrow-necked wine bottle — comes from an old book called 'After-Dinner Science.'"

The tanned, gray-haired Herbert has kept his career active in between the three Mr. Wizard shows. He's written books, produced classroom films and designed home science kits. He also runs his own production company, Prism Productions, and produced the charming 30-second vignettes, "Mr. Wizard's Close-Ups," for NBC, followed by the 80-second science-report series, "How About" (as in "How about that?"). And for eight years, he was the science reporter on TV's "General Electric Theater," alongside the other host — Ronald Reagan.

The president-to-be, he recalls, "was a very quick study with his lines, which I assume is handy for a president. He was always convincing."

Not that Mr. Wizard doesn't understand the media himself. "TV," he says, "has helped make people much more aware of science than they used to be." He smiles. "And I've tried to do my bit."

This Year's Lakers May Be The Best Ever

By Adam Beckerman

There is no pro football today. But don't panic. The screen won't be blank.

CBS affords us the opportunity to eat brunch with possibly the greatest basketball team ever, the 1985-86 Los Angeles Lakers. At noon (ET) on Sunday, Jan. 19, they play the Detroit Pistons in Pontiac, Mich. In 1972, a Bill Sharman-coached Laker squad finished 69-13, at one time winning 33 straight. That's three months without a loss!

With the addition of offensive boards terrors Maurice Lucas and rookie A.C. Green, this year's team could fashion an even better season mark as they attempt to become the first NBA franchise sincethe '69 Celtics to win consecutive titles. Incidentally, when the Lakers and Celtics most likely meet in the finals come May, Lucas will be jostling for position against Bill Walton, his old buddy from the 1977 Portland Trail Blazer juggernaut, who's now thriving in Beantown.

On NBC, it's tennis on carpet: the finals of the Nabisco Masters Tennis Championships, live from Madison Square Garden in New York. The world's top 12 male players have wittled themselves down to two. If you watch one indoor tennis match this year, NBC would appreciate it being this one.

After tennis, NBC airs the World Pro Figure Skating Championships, which took place in Landover, Md., this past Dec. 13. If it has been ages since you last saw Jo Jo Starbuck, NBC would appreciate your getting reacquainted.

What could be the most entertaining tube event this week airs on Saturday, Jan. 25. Golden Boy Mark Breland will be putting his 8-0 record on the line against another undefeated welterweight, Troy Wortham. The fight is on ABC.

Curtis Doesn't Mind Playing Mafia Biggie

By Ian Harmer

HOLLYWOOD — There's nothing like a few screaming real-life newspaper headlines to beef up public interest in a TV movie, and the role that brings Tony Curtis back to the small screen after a long layoff has taken on an unexpected relevance following last month's execution of Mafia chieftain "Big Paul" Castellano in New York.

In "Mafia Princess," (NBC, Jan. 19), Curtis plays Salvatore "Sam" Giancana, a Chicago mobster who is somehow able to reconcile his deep religious beliefs and his love for his family with his function as a ruthless underworld czar, organizing crime in all its un-Christian shades and ordering executions at the drop of a hat.

Q With all the loot she has, why hasn't Barbra Streisand ever had her nose altered by a good plastic surgeon? Is she proud of that schnozzola? —Don H., New York, N.Y.

A In the early '60s, before she left New York to star in "Funny Girl" in Hollywood, Streisand thought long and hard about having her nose straightened. After consulting various surgeons, she learned that they could reshape her nose. They were careful to point out, however, that the surgery might also alter her nasal sound and consequently the timbre of her voice. After much soul-searching, she decided against it. Today, at age 43 and 13 motion pictures later, Streisand is reconciled to living with her original, distinctive nose.

Cesar Romero and Jane Wyman, "Falcon Crest" co-stars

Q How true is the story that Jane Wyman, 72, and Cesar Romero, 78, have fallen in love as a result of working together in "Falcon Crest" and plan to get married?—Marianne Gonzalez, Laredo, Tex.

A Not true at all. They are, however, dear friends.

Q What background does Ronald Reagan Jr. have to be sent to Geneva to cover the summit? Isn't he a college dropout who became a ballet dancer? As a literary magazine, isn't "Playboy" last on the totem pole?—Ethel S. Schofield, Sebring, Fla.

A The President's son has been educated at some of the best private institutions in America: the John Thomas Dye School and Harvard School in Los Angeles, the Webb School in Claremont, Calif., and a year at Yale. He is bright, curious, perceptive and boasts several years of experience as a free-lance writer. "Playboy," admittedly no leading literary magazine, undoubtedly sent young Reagan to Geneva to cover the summit conference last year because his father was one of the principals to whom he had access. The magazine has used Ron on previous assignments, generating much publicity in the process.

Q How many big-name actresses married their husbands twice or three times? Isn't Elizabeth Taylor the only one?—Virginia M., Nashville, Tenn.

A Married twice to each other: Natalie Wood and Robert Wagner; Colleen Dewhurst and George C. Scott; Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton. Married thrice to each other: none we can think of.

Q I understand that when John Allison, a British actor, recently died of AIDS in Hollywood, one of his closest friends—a world-famous actor—was afraid to appear at the funeral, lest he be identified as gay and his career be ruined. I think such behavior is contemptible, and I ask you: Is AIDS hysteria sweeping Hollywood?—Noah C., Newport News, Va.

A "Hysteria" is probably too melodramatic a word. "Caution" would be more accurate. In the Allison case, the "world-famous actor" you refer to is gay. His relationship with Allison was intimate, and had he attended the funeral, he might very well have endangered his established career.

Q My brother says that Max Schmeling, the German boxer who knocked out Joe Louis to win the world heavyweight title, owns Coca-Cola of Germany. I say that Max Schmeling was killed in World War II and that, if he wasn't, he must be 110 by now. Who is right? Please let us have the facts. —Mike Schwartz, Newark, N.J.

A Your brother is more right than you are. Max Schmeling, Germany's first and only world heavyweight boxing champion, won the title in 1930, when Jack Sharkey was disqualified for fouling him. Schmeling, 80, owns and runs a Coca-Cola bottling plant in Hamburg. He lives in nearby Hollenstedt with his wife of 52 years, the former Anny Ondra. Schmeling defeated Joe Louis in their first meeting—on June 19, 1936, at Yankee Stadium in New York—knocking him out in the 12th round. In their rematch two years later, Louis kayoed Schmeling in little more than two minutes of the first round.

Scott Schneider has overcome far more than a crippling disease

This Man Won't Give Up

SCOTT SCHNEIDER USUALLY MOVES WITH SUCH ATHLETIC GRACE AND DIGNITY THAT SOMETIMES EVEN HIS WIFE FORGETS HE HAS MUSCULAR DYSTROPHY.

Scott himself never forgets. He falls down, on the average, twice a day, 365 days a year.

"I'm constantly reminded," he says, "every second that I'm awake, that I have MD."

And he knows that, every second, inexorably, because of the progressive nature of muscular dystrophy, his strength and mobility are diminishing.

But Scott Schneider is determined to do everything he can, mentally and physically, to combat that debilitative process—not to stop it, but to slow it down to an almost imperceptible pace. He is determined not to give in, not to take the easy way, not to surrender his cane and settle, instead, for the comfort and security of a habitual wheelchair.

Scott Schneider generally stays out of wheelchairs—except when he is playing basketball, soccer or tennis; racing, skiing or throwing the discus.

Tall and lean at 29, with light brown hair and brown eyes, Scott Schneider of Houston is a world-class wheelchair athlete, winner of six gold medals in the 1985 National Cerebral Palsy/Les Autres Games.

Schneider competed among Les Autres (French for "The Others"), the disabled athletes without cerebral palsy. Among wheelchair Les Autres, ranging from the weakest in Class 1 to the strongest in Class 4, Schneider, based on his difficulties with balance and musculature, qualified to compete in Class 3.

He won the 60-meter dash, the 400-meter race, the discus throw, the club throw and the flat-surface slalom, setting national records in all these events and an international record in the club throw. He also played on the championship soccer team. The year before, at the 1984 International Games for the Disabled, Scott won a gold medal in the 100-meter dash, a silver medal at 400 meters and a bronze medal in the discus.

Scott Schneider is also a world-class human being.

He is a graphic designer, a gifted artist and photographer who, with his wife Patricia, an interior designer, operates the Schneider Design Studio. Recently, he has branched into public relations. He is an idea man, he says, and he defies muscular dystrophy to rob him of his ideas.

Scott considers MD his enemy—and his ally.

"If I had to do it all over again," he says, "and I made out a checklist, I would check to be perfectly healthy. But, in a real sense, I think I'm very lucky having MD. It has caused me not to take things for granted, to live life to the fullest. I don't know how I would have turned out if I didn't have muscular dystrophy. I might have been a real jerk."

He smiles, a bright, infectious smile. "Of course,

He's world class—as a wheelchair athlete (six gold medals in 1985) and as a human being

I may be a real jerk now," he says.

Schneider is a gem. He has a zest for life, a boldness that Ernest Hemingway might have envied. He has terrorized ski slopes on a plastic racing sled that is a cross between skis and a toboggan. He also has gone mountain-climbing and white-water canoeing.

He drives around Houston—his lightweight wheelchair, designed for athletics, in the back of his car—on the alert for pickup basketball games in the parks. He stops, waits till a player abandons the game, then asks, "Want a replacement?"

The able-bodied at first regard him with surprise. He often must ask several times before he gets a game. Then he startles. In the wheelchair, he can dribble, he can shoot, he can rebound and he can intimidate. Schneider, in his wheelchair, thrives on fierce contact.

Scott puts the same energy into his work. He will stay up all night laying out a brochure or designing a logo. Patricia is tempted to suggest he slow down but understands that he feels compelled to do what he does while he can. She is supportive and self-reliant, an attractive Houston native with a mildly self-deprecating sense of humor. She doesn't pretend to be a saint. She gets angry because she always has to carry the groceries, angry with MD, angry with her anger.

Scott gets angry too. But only three or four times a year, he maintains, do the anger and the frustration reach the point where he has to be alone, has to fight off the demons of bitterness.

Once, when Patricia and Scott went to a movie, and he dropped her off to buy the tickets while he parked the car, the only space he could find was at the far end of the parking lot. He raced back to the box office as fast as he could, supporting himself with his cane, pausing every 10 feet or so to gather his strength.

By the time he arrived, everyone was inside except Patricia. The theater was dark, crowded. Scott, who risks losing his delicate balance and falling whenever he cannot see where he is walking, insisted they skip the movie.

"I really wanted to see the movie," Patricia complained. Then she said, "What took you so long?"

Scott exploded. "How the hell do you think I feel?" he said. "I was walking as fast as I could, but because of my stupid MD, I couldn't move any faster. What do you think took me so long?"

The explosions are rare, the warmth and mutual respect and trust real. They met four years ago, both graduates of schools of design, and at first, even though Scott sensed Patricia liked him, he hesitated to ask her out. "Then, on our first date," Scott says, "I hit her with everything, all the horror stories about what might happen to me, all the gimp jokes."

When Patricia didn't recoil, Scott knew they would have a good relationship. Still, he was reluctant to ask her to marry him. "I didn't think it would be fair to ask her to spend her life with someone who had a progressive disease," he says. "But then a friend told me, 'That's hogwash. If she wants to spend her life with you, that's her choice, not yours. How dare you impose your insecurities on someone else?' "

The marriage has flourished, reinforced by Patricia's family (her brothers enjoy thinking up ways to make Scott's wheelchairs smoother, faster). Scott and Patricia want to have children but are waiting for the perfection of a test (perhaps in 1987) that would determine whether their child would be likely to have muscular dystrophy. "MD is not the kind of thing you want to give someone," Scott says. "If the test warns us, 'Better not,' then we'll probably adopt."

Scott himself did not find out that he had muscular dystrophy until he was 14. Before then, growing up in Des Moines, where his late father founded the Iowa chapter of the Arthritis Foundation, Scott just thought he was a little slow, a little ungainly. Some of his friends called him "Turtle Legs"; they tried to apologize after his MD was diagnosed.

Still, Scott was a versatile and talented teenage athlete. He played sandlot football and basketball, swam and shot golf in the high 80s until he could no longer safely bend over to pick the ball out of the cup. Scott played tennis until he was 21. While on his high school tennis team, he heard opponents, unaware of his MD, make fun of his stiff walk and less-than-classic strokes. "It gave me great satisfaction to beat the guy who was laughing at me," he recalls.

Shelly Katz

Now Scott is able to laugh at himself. When a stray pebble disturbs his balance and his knees or his back give way, his usual reaction is to laugh, or to try to be nonchalant, until Patricia or a friend can help him regain his feet and his dignity. He has experienced, he calculates, more than 10,000 falls, which makes him a bruised expert. His worst injury: a broken ankle.

He accepts falling. He does not accept some of the other hazards of disabled life. Scott's good nature vanishes, for example, when he sees the able-bodied parking in spaces reserved for the handicapped.

He once confronted a perfectly healthy woman who was parking in a restricted area. "I'll only be a minute," she insisted. Scott harassed her, lectured her, threatened to call the police. "If she ever saw me again," he says, "she'd probably try to run me over."

He often will pass up parking spaces for the handicapped, figuring he can maneuver 50 or 60 yards without great difficulty. He leaves those spaces to the more severely disabled.

Occasionally, on trips, for instance, instead of walking, Scott will use a wheelchair. When he does, he finds he is often treated as if he does not exist or as if, because he cannot walk, he cannot think or speak. An airline agent frequently will ignore Scott and ask Patricia, standing next to him, for the tickets—ask her if they want smoking or nonsmoking. Scott always answers. He insists upon being considered a person.

Sports and work keep him busy, but Scott finds time to be an elected corporate member of the national Muscular Dystrophy Association—he has met and admires the father figure of the MDA, Jerry Lewis—and a professional public relations consultant to the local MDA chapter. He also works with physicians, helping them to recognize and treat the various forms of muscular dystrophy. Scott suffers from a blend of Becker and limb-girdle MD, not the more common and more lethal Duchenne muscular dystrophy, and he participates in coping sessions, helping other MD patients to battle the mental and physical stress of the disease.

He warns against the dangers of overprotection and stresses the importance of independence, of fostering the attitude that enabled him to leave home after high school to study, graduate, find a job and create an adult life. He counsels, "If you're negative, you might just as well go die."

Scott Schneider is positive personified. "Muscular dystrophy may beat me physically," he admits, "but it will never beat me mentally."

55,000 READERS RESPOND TO PARADE'S POLL

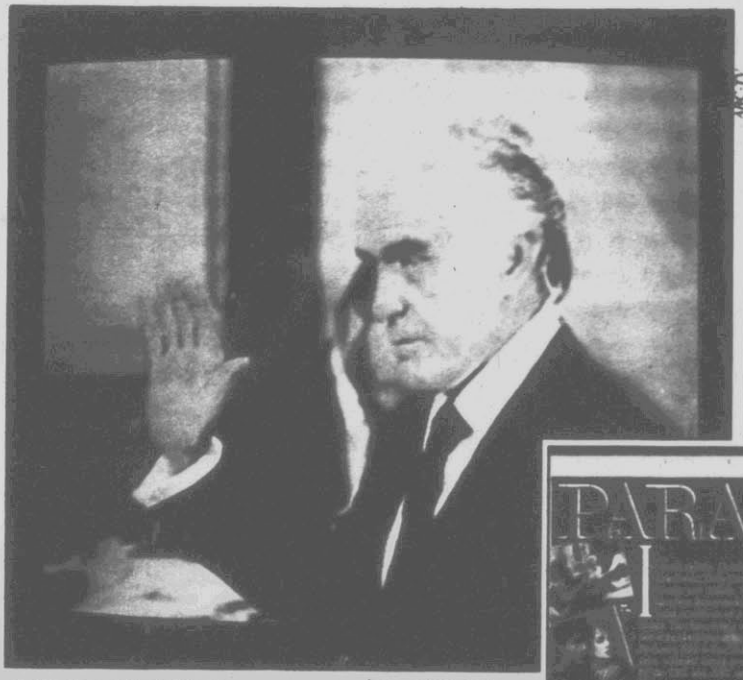
Do Something About Drugs In Movies

ARE SOME HOLLYWOOD movies glamorizing drugs? The overwhelming consensus of PARADE readers responding to a recent ballot on this question is Yes—and they want something done about it. From First Lady Nancy Reagan, who has conducted a vigorous anti-drug campaign around the country, to anguished parents of teenage drug-abuse victims, readers of our July 21 cover story titled "Does Hollywood Sell Drugs to Kids?" reacted with an outpouring of concern, anger and support for change. Among the suggestions: a modified ratings system that would warn parents when movies contain "drug favorable" scenes.

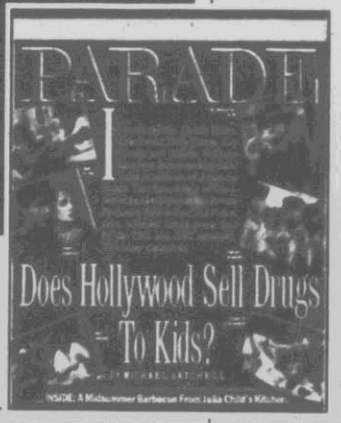
"The strong reader response to PARADE's article demonstrates the growing concern among the American public that something must be done to protect our children from the sometimes subtle but persistent messages that drugs are acceptable," Mrs. Reagan told us. "The entertainment world—film, theater, television and music—has a great capacity to influence millions and to change lives, for better or worse. Kids see a television show or movie as a glamorous example, and if drugs or alcohol are depicted in a favorable light, then they will assume it's 'cool.'"

The article in PARADE detailed how many major films included scenes in which drugs, from marijuana to cocaine, were used and abused by movie characters without ill effects or negative consequences—often in the context of drug abuse being fun and normal social behavior. A ballot included with the story asked if readers favored adding the letters "SA" for "Substance Abuse" to the movie's rating to alert parents if the film contained scenes that glamorized drug use or excessive drinking.

About 55,000 readers sent in ballots, and 96 percent said they favored adding the "SA" warning to offending movies. A second question asked whether films that appear favorable to drugs should be rated X—a possibility ventured by Richard D. Heffner, chairman of the motion picture industry's Classification and Rating Administration.



Jack Valenti is sworn in before testifying at Senate hearing on treatment of drugs in movies.



Once again, the response was overwhelming, with nine out of 10 readers saying they would place drug-positive films in the X category.

A regional breakdown of the responses showed readers from the South, West, Midwest and Northeast voting in virtually identical patterns on the two questions. While no claim is made that the survey was scientifically balanced, it is a strong indication of the depth of public concern and frustration over the issue.

It had been PARADE's intention to pass along the survey results to Jack Valenti, president of the Motion Picture Association of America and a staunch opponent of any changes to the movie ratings system he founded 17 years ago.

In an interview for the July 21 article, Valenti insisted that he had never seen a single film that glamorized drugs. Despite numerous requests for a brief meeting to allow us to present the ballot results and get his reaction, Valenti declined, through a spokesman, to meet with us. He was too busy, he said.

Valenti did learn of the survey results, however, when he testified on Oct. 24 at a Congressional hearing before the Senate Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations. The hearing was called to explore the issues raised in our story. This reporter also was invited to testify, in part to announce the results of PARADE's movie ballot.

After reading Valenti's comments in PARADE's original story, Dr. Carlton E. Turner, President Reagan's adviser for drug-abuse policy, wrote the MPAA chief a strongly worded letter criticizing him for dismissing the issue offhandedly, downplaying the problems caused by marijuana and ridiculing the proposed "SA" drug warning.

The idea of adding a substance abuse warning to movies when they are rated was proposed by the Entertainment Industries Council, a Hollywood-based group that also is working to persuade writers, actors, producers and directors to be more balanced and responsible when portraying drug use. Larry Stewart, a veteran Hollywood writer, producer and director and a member of the council's board, said the campaign to add an "SA" drug warning to films had been widely embraced. "Somewhere along the line, the Motion Picture Association of America is going to have to pay a hell of a lot more attention to these films that depict alcohol and drug abuse without consequences," declared Stewart.

The survey strongly indicates the depth of public concern and frustration over the issue

That sentiment was echoed in many of the hundreds of letters PARADE readers sent in with their ballots, and in the reactions of various officials.

"Following the PARADE article," noted Sen. William Roth (R., Del.), chairman of the subcommittee on investigations, "I received numerous responses from parents calling on the movie industry to better inform them about the content of films and make a conscious effort not to glamorize the use of drugs. These seem to me to be reasonable steps for the industry to take."

How Doctors Can Save YOUR SKIN

Robert Graves

Renate Charbonneau. Discovery of her skin allergy ended 14 years of discomfort.

THE MEDICAL NEWS ABOUT OUR SKIN and hair—the most visible of our attributes—is good. Now, more than ever, medical science can reverse ugly disruptions of our skin and help us to display a smooth and healthy complexion and a clean, thick fleece atop our heads.

While skin doctors (dermatologists) cannot cure every skin affliction or grow a mop on a bald pate, they probably can do more for their patients than any other medical specialist.

Says Dr. J.E. Jelinek, clinical professor of dermatology at New York University Medical Center: "Today we have deep knowledge about the skin and powerful techniques to clear up infections and imperfections. And the skin is on the outside—we can get to it."

The skin, the largest organ of your body, weighs about 6 pounds and covers an area of about 20 square feet. It guards your internal organs against invading germs and regulates your temperature by sweating and cooling. The skin also makes vitamins, hormones and lubricants, and it stores energy.

When skin and hair are victims of the environment—sun, wind, germs, chemicals, missiles—dermatologists can offer the following help:

- Protect against cancer of the skin.
- Clear up acne in almost all cases.
- Block invasions of germs and fungus.
- Stop psoriasis, eczema and dermatitis.
- Smooth out scars, pits and wrinkles.
- Treat disease through the skin.
- Transplant hair to cover baldness.
- Grow some new hair on your head (not a lot).

Dermatologists see excessive tanning as Public Enemy No. 1 because it mars the skin with premature wrinkles, blotches, bloated blood vessels and freckles. Worse, it can lead to cancer.

Thanks to a doctor's quick action, Jane Kimbrough, 48, of Dobbs Ferry, N.Y., sailed past melanoma, or "black cancer." In 1983, her doctor found a black dot on her big toe. Because it was promptly removed, she has less than a 1 percent chance of dying of melanoma in the next 10 years. Left to grow, that cancer kills 50 percent of its victims within five years.

"I had a friend who died of melanoma," Kimbrough says. "I consider myself very fortunate." The fair-skinned actress once worked at tanning but now shuns sun and regularly checks her body. (See "Cancer Check.") Her physician, Dr. Darrell S. Rigel, a dermatologist at New York University Medical Center, estimates that 22,000 Americans developed melanoma last year, and 5500 died of it.

AN INFLAMED PIMPLE FORMS. When contents of a whitehead rupture the wall of a hair follicle, the result is an inflammatory reaction—a red papule or pustule. If swelling is great, a nodule or a cyst may appear.

BY EARL UBELL

Technology has many saving ways in medicine today. Here, a doctor lightens a port wine stain (purple birthmark) from a patient's forehead with an argon laser.

"The biggest advance is the development of sunscreens," says Dr. Rigel. "A No. 15 sunscreen lets in only 1/15th of the rays. If people use such creams, the cancer rate will fall." And, he adds, that includes basal cell cancer (the one that attacked President Reagan's nose) and squamous cell cancer.

Skin doctors also have special praise for Accutane, a derivative of vitamin A. Taken orally, it helps almost miraculously to dry up the great red sores of cystic acne. Dr. Alan Shalita, dermatology professor at the State University of New York Downstate Medical School in Brooklyn, says that, thanks to Accutane, "there is little reason for almost anybody to suffer with acne."

However, doctors reserve Accutane only for the most serious cases. It can cause liver problems, among others. If a woman gets pregnant while taking it, a deformed fetus might result.

Paul Smith, 23, a minister in Little Rock, Ark., has had acne since the seventh grade. Red sores covered him from his face, back, neck and chest down to his wrists and thighs.

'I felt that my body had played a very dirty trick on me," he says.

Today, Smith keeps his skin 90 percent clear, thanks to a method devised by Dr. Kenneth L. Flandermeyer, associate clinical professor of dermatology at the University of New Mexico at Albuquerque. Dr. Flandermeyer has written about the method in Clear Skin, published by Little, Brown & Co. Essentially, Flandermeyer asks patients to apply medicines that dry and peel the skin. Smith placed himself under Flandermeyer's supervision in 1980 and saw improvement in weeks. When Accutane became available in 1982, he tried it and found that it worked.

But four out of five persons between the ages of 12 and 23 with less terrible forms of acne can fight blackheads, pimples and sores with nonprescription medicines.

Dr. Shalita notes that over-the-counter drugs often effectively reach into hair follicles to combat germs living there. He contends that germs cause blackheads by turning natural skin oils into fatty acids that block follicle openings, as the drawing on page 8 shows. Not all acne responds well to self-treatment. About 25 percent of young Americans must seek a dermatologist's help. "We still don't know why some people get acne and others do not," says Shalita. (See "Acne Myths & Truths.")

In another big advance, dermatologists have learned to control allergic skin inflammation, or "contact dermatitis." For 14 years, Renate Charbonneau.

38, a hairdresser in Milwaukie, Ore., suffered unknowingly from chemicals in acid permanent-wave solutions. They caused severe eczema on her hands. Cortisone ointment relieves the pain, she says, adding, "By avoiding the acid perms and hair that has been permed, I can still work. I love my job."

Charbonneau's physician, Dr. Frances Storrs, professor of dermatology at the Oregon Health Science University at Portland, heads a committee that is studying the ingredients in cosmetics for the American Academy of Dermatology. "Many substances are irritating," says Dr. Storrs, "but allergy happens very, very rarely." Dr. Alexander Fisher, clinical professor of dermatology at New York University, calls cosmetics far safer than they used to be.

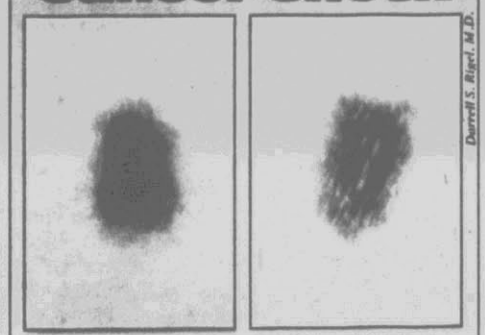
Medical cosmetics are safer too, thanks to today's technology and new research:

- Dermatologists have new cosmetic ways of filling in skin defects and wrinkles. They inject collagen—cowhide protein—into a big wrinkle to puff it up. There is always the danger of an allergic reaction, but less if the skin is tested first. Doctors place chances at fewer than one in 5000 that anything will go awry.
- As to hair loss, in addition to hair transplants, a drug used to treat high blood pressure—Minoxidyl—if applied as a poultice, actually grows hair. Only a third of a group of men who used it had significant hair growth; an additional third had a fine blond fuzz, and the final third experienced no hair growth. The drug is awaiting FDA approval.
- And for large purple patches of skin—port wine stains—dermatologists can lighten them with a laser.
- They also now use powerful hormones to clear up eczema, psoriasis and dermatitis in days rather than months.

Other help includes:

- A treatment called PUVA to clear the patchy, flaky skin of intractable psoriasis. The patient takes the medicine psoralen (P) and then stands naked under ultraviolet (UV) light in the A-band (A) wavelengths. This is reserved only for the worst cases; PUVA can increase your risk of skin cancer.
- The drug Etretinate, a cousin of Accutane, is under investigation here. In Europe, it's used to treat psoriasis.
- Oral drugs treat skin infected by bacteria, viruses or fungi. Hospitalization once was the rule for patients with cellulitis—a bacterial infection of the skin and its underlayers. Now an antibiotic called cephalosporin effects a cure just days after a doctor's treatment.
- Acyclovir, taken orally or in a salve, eases herpes virus symptoms.
- Ketoconazole, a new anti-fungus agent taken orally, cures deep fungal infections.

Cancer Check



Darrell S. Rigel, M.D.

Normal mole (l) and melanoma (r). See pointers below.

Find the early signs of melanoma on your own body and save your life. The American Cancer Society has developed this self-exam technique:

Look for skin moles that have changed in color, size, elevation, surface, sensation or consistency or whose surrounding skin has changed.

Dr. Darrell S. Rigel of New York University Medical Center has an ABCD rule, standing for Asymmetry, Border, Color and Diameter. Melanomas tend to be irregular in shape (asymmetrical). Their outlines (borders) are uneven, their colors are a mixture of browns and their diameters are wider than a pencil eraser.

See your doctor for regular checkups.

— Sister Antonia Brenner

She Brings Hope To Prisoners

UPON ARRIVAL AT LA MESA Penitentiary in Tijuana, Mexico, each inmate is introduced to his overseers through a ceremony called grito, Spanish for "scream." Alone, he is paraded between rows of guards and prison officials as he repeatedly calls out his name, his crime, the length of his sentence and his aliases.

Before being led to grito, however, the prisoner is briefed by a white-haired, blue-eyed woman known to all by her alias, "La Sister."

"Do not be frightened or embarrassed," she says softly in Spanish. "The Lord was a prisoner, just as you are a prisoner. You have something in common. Remember that when you go through grito."

Her words, a former inmate recalls, affected him deeply. "I'm not a religious man," he says. "I'd spent two years in another prison before being transferred to La Mesa and had turned off all my feelings, turned off the world. But when she spoke—mister, she's the most warm, caring person to walk the face of this earth. Her love changed the life of every prisoner she met."

Why does La Sister do it? "If I'm not part of the solution," she says, "I'm part of the problem."

The extraordinary love of Sister Antonia Brenner demonstrates that what we desperately wish to be true is true: Man is innately good. No one is beyond help. Love is the most powerful instrument for change. One person can make a difference.

La Sister arrived at La Mesa nine years ago, amid rumors and speculation. She had been married, it was said, but had murdered her husband and turned to a life of service and penance. Some of the prisoners wondered if she had been sent to spy on them. She was, after all, an Anglo-Saxon and had no apparent affiliation with a convent.

The stories proved to be largely fiction, but it took time for most of the 1300 male and 100 female prisoners to understand what brought her to La Mesa. She didn't preach about the sinfulness of their crimes. Instead, she asked, "How can I help you? What do you need?"

La Sister would read and write letters for them, visit their sick relatives, phone their lawyers. She fussed over those who were being released, buttoning their collars and bidding them, "Be careful, don't get into any trouble. Come back and visit and tell me how you're doing."

After a year, she moved into the prison itself, taking a small room in the women's quarter. When asked what her mission was, she would laugh and answer, "I'm just a mama figure. A mama with 1400 children."

In fact, the year before she came to La Mesa, Mary Brenner, the woman now known as Sister Antonia Brenner, was a 48-year-old divorced mother of seven who owned a carbon paper-manufacturing business in Hollywood. She applied, through Bishop Leo T. Maher of the Diocese of San Diego, to the Auxiliary of

We're looking for people to write children's books

By Alvin Tresselt,
Dean of Faculty

"Writing for children is the perfect way to take up writing," says the author of 53 children's books. "Your ideas come right out of your own experience. And while it's still a challenge, it's the straightest possible line between you and publication—if you're qualified to seek the success this rewarding field offers."

The Institute of Children's Literature deep in the Connecticut woods. The old mansion has been the home of this workshop for new writers since 1969.

IF YOU WANT TO WRITE AND GET PUBLISHED, I can't think of a better way to do it than writing books and stories for children and teenagers. Ideas flow naturally right out of your own life experience. While it's still a challenge, the odds of getting that first unforgettable check from a juvenile publisher are better than they are from any other kind of publisher I know.

Later on, you may get other checks from other publishers. But right now, the object is to begin—to break into print—to learn the feeling of writing and selling your work and seeing your name in type. After that, you can decide if you want your writing to take another direction.

But after 30 years of editing, publishing, and teaching—and 53 books of my own—I can tell you this: You'll go a long way before you discover anything as rewarding as writing for young readers.

Your words will never sound as sweet as they do from the lips of a child reading your books and stories. And the joy of creating books and stories that young people 'really like' is an experience you'll never have anywhere else. (In this age of boob tube illiteracy, convenient morality, and plastic values, do you know of a more important audience?)

A surprisingly big market

But, that's not all. The financial rewards go far beyond most people's expectations because there's a surprisingly big market out there for writers who are trained to crack it. More than 130 million young people's books are purchased each year. As many as 2,500 new titles appear annually and new authors account for up to half of them.

There are also 250 monthly magazines looking for material for young readers. You can imagine how much writing it takes just to keep them going!

Yet two big questions bedevil nearly every would-be writer: "Am I really qualified?" and "How can I get started?"

'Am I really qualified?'

This is our definition of a "qualified person": It's someone with an aptitude for writing who can take constructive criticism, learn from it, and turn it into a professional performance. That's the only kind of person we're looking for.

The reasons are simple: Our reputation is built on success, and if prospective students don't have the earmarks of success, we probably can't help them. And we tell them so. It's only fair to both of us.

To help us spot potential authors, we've developed a revealing test for writing aptitude. It's free, and we don't charge for our evaluation. But no one gets into The Institute without passing it. Those who pass and enroll receive our promise: You will complete at least one manuscript ready to submit to a publisher by the time you finish the Course.

I've learned a lot about writing for children and I love it. Now I'm passing my knowledge on to my students so they can profit from it. When I'm not writing my own books I spend my time at The Institute of Children's Literature, a workshop for new writers that does one thing and does it better than any other educational institution I know of: It trains qualified people to write for the young reader.

This is the way I work with my students, and my fellow instructors—all of whom are experienced writers or editors—work more or less the same way.

Learn at your own pace

When you're ready—at your own time and your own pace—you send your assignment to me and I read it and I reread it to get everything out of it you've put into it.

Then I edit your assignment with a red pencil just the way a publishing house editor would—if he had the time. I return it along with a detailed letter explaining my comments. I tell you what your strong points are, what your weaknesses are, and just what you can do to improve. It's a matter of push and pull with each assignment. You push and I pull and between us both, you learn to write.

'Now...I am a writer!'

This method really works. I wouldn't spend five minutes at it if it didn't. The proof of the pudding is that many students break into print even before they finish the Course. We receive hundreds of letters like these from students: "Before taking your Course, the short stories I scribbled for my two tiny tots never caught an editor's fancy," writes Emily Burns of Salem, Ore. "My first sale, to National Catholic Weekly, was a Course lesson. Then I sent another Course assignment to a writer's competition and won first prize of $400!"

"My instructor's advice was invaluable in plotting, character, motivation, and dialogue. I am most grateful for her personal interest. She helped me understand my own strengths and weaknesses and how to emphasize the first and remedy the second." Elizabeth Henley, New Cambria, Mo.

Marilyn Day of Marissa, Ill. says, "Now I'm no longer a housewife. I am a writer!"

And Mary Carruth, Dublin, Cal., writes, "I sent out my first article with a prayer and it was accepted. Your Course, with its structure and support, has been everything I hoped for."

"When I started, I did not really think I had the ability" writes Sister M. Laetitia Mudde, West Haven, CT. "But my instructor made me believe in myself."*

I have a file full of similar letters. People like yourself so full of pride they could easily convince you that it is a pity more people don't take up writing for children.

the Apostolate, a Catholic lay order of women who devote themselves to render divine charity to mankind. There are about 300 such lay workers in the U.S., says Bishop Maher, who toil among the poor, sick and imprisoned. They live alone, not in convents, pledge themselves to celibacy and are subject to the guidance of their bishop. Their missions are assigned or, in La Sister's case, chosen to meet their special talents.

"La Sister's special talent is that she relates to other people so well, especially suffering, lonely people," says Bishop Maher. "She lifts them up and gives them a greater appreciation for their own lives than they had before they met her. She restores their self-respect."

How and why then did these rumors start about La Sister's past? Perhaps it was because the real story of her life sounded too much like fantasy to the poverty-stricken prisoners.

Her life had been one of comfort. She grew up in Beverly Hills—just down the block from Cary Grant—and spent her vacations at the family summer home in Laguna Beach, Calif. "I lived what most people call the good life," she recalls. "I was happy, but deep inside I always felt that, with the short amount of time we are given to live and love in this world, we spend too much time loving things instead of people."

As an adolescent during World War II, she was devastated when she learned about the Holocaust. "I couldn't understand why everybody went on living as if nothing were happening," she says, adding that her father always encouraged her not to accept blindly the injustices of the world. "Instead, he told me I should say, 'That bothers me, and I've got to do something about it.'"

"Twenty-five years ago, animals were taken out of cages and put in their natural habitats because people began to think it was cruel to put animals in a cage," she explains. "A cage and a cell are the same. If I were in a room by myself and nobody ever touched me, I'd go crazy. I saw that prison environments are cruel, and I decided to work there because—have you ever heard the quote?—'If I'm not part of the solution, I'm part of the problem.'

"The Catholic faith taught me the value of every life. I have always been deeply appalled by the idea of locking a man in a cage and denying him basic human rights—by these, I mean the right to love and touch, to give advice to his children and have hope for tomorrow. I felt the time had come to do something about my feelings.

"People say to me that prisoners should lose their rights—that it is the price they pay for their crimes. I say, lose their freedom, yes. But deny the positive power of love within a prison, and you end up with only violent, vengeful energy. There is a high rate of violence in U.S. prisons, which we do not have in La Mesa."

Why, then, didn't La Sister devote her life to working in U.S. prisons?

"In Mexico, I encountered no bureaucratic problems or red tape," she says. "They have a word here, comprensivo, which means sensitivity, intelligence, comprehension, understanding. Because of their comprensivo, the prison officials knew I was there to help, not make trouble. They made me feel wanted and welcome, and I need that to do my work. Would San Quentin have made me welcome? Would Folsom prison? I don't think so. The need for love exists in the United States, but if I knocked on the doors of Chula Vista or Beverly Hills, would I be welcome?

"I love America, but charity knows no border. I first entered La Mesa 18 years ago to deliver supplies to the prison infirmary for a charity called Aid for Baja California. It was the first time I was ever in prison. When I walked into the infirmary, the men tried to stand up, out of respect. Many of them were terribly ill. It affected me profoundly. So I went not only where I was needed but where I was wanted. In fact, it's a miracle that I'm allowed to stay—I can be very annoying."

For example, four years ago, she lobbied—successfully—for the locked cells to be replaced with private and semi-private rooms and for a carpentry shop to be opened for the most difficult prisoners. Another time, she intervened on behalf of a man who was unwilling to shave his beard before being transferred to the U.S., in accordance with prison regulations. "The man had only one arm and told me, 'Sister, I have lost so much in my life. My beard is part of me, and I don't want to lose it too.'

"I felt something important was at stake for him—his self-respect, his dignity. The commandant agreed with me, and the man was allowed to keep his beard."

La Sister also initiated a program in the prison to help inmates start their lives over once they're released. For this, she enlisted the help of Dr. Merrill Olesen, chief of plastic surgery at the Scripps Clinic in La Jolla, Calif.

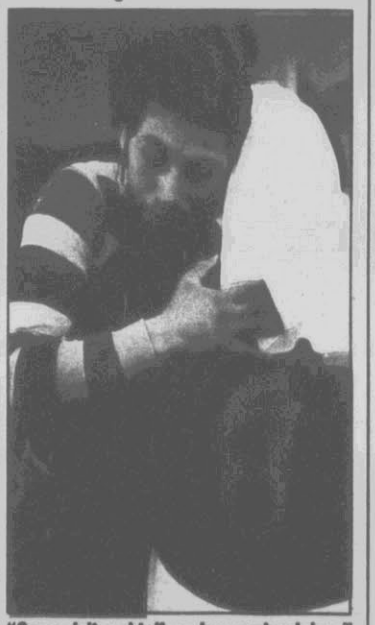
"I went to the warden with a dream I had," she explains. "I wanted to bring a plastic surgeon to the prison to remove tattoos from the men's faces, hands and necks." Many of the markings indicate membership in a gang, and employers avoid hiring tattooed men.

"Some men have tattooed a small tear coming from the corner of their eye, and that little tear tugs at my heart," she says. "It means that, to them, life is sad. It says, 'I can't cry, because I'm a man, but I have a tear that never stops.' When they see it in their reflections, they think of themselves as being unhappy forever. That's one tattoo I enjoy seeing removed."

Her most recent projects have taken La Sister outside the walls of La Mesa. "We're opening a place for the dying in Tijuana," she says. "One of my prison daughters has terminal tuberculosis, and she has no place to die—in the city, people are afraid to have her in their rooms. So we will find a room for her and others who have no place to go to die."

"What was so horrible about the Holocaust," she adds, "was that mankind stood by and let it happen. There's a very famous photograph of a little Jewish boy. His hands are up in the air, and men are pointing guns at him. From the moment I saw it, that image has lived in my heart, but I could never bring myself to look at his eyes. I'd ask myself why, but I simply couldn't do it. Now I can look into his eyes. I can look into his eyes."

La Sister encourages the inmates to remove the tattoos on their faces, hands and necks, which brand them as gang members. Then she follows the men through surgery.



"Come visit and tell me how you're doing," she bids the men when they're released. "I'm just a mama figure," she says.

Her love proves to all that man is innately good; no one is beyond help; one person can make a difference

Acquaintance Rape

Paul Hanson

Lynn Hanson

"One in three women will be raped in her lifetime. A woman is more apt to report a car theft than a rape. In more than two-thirds of reported rapes, the rapist is someone the woman knows—a boyfriend, neighbor, family friend. And most women who survive a so-called 'acquaintance rape' report it neither to the police nor anyone else, since they consider it a very private, personal and embarrassing affair."

Those are the words of Jeanne Le Page, a former graduate student at Stanford University who recently finished a documentary film, Rethinking Rape, for her master's degree. The film originally was commissioned by the Stanford Rape Education Project, formed in 1979 after a series of sexual attacks in Palo Alto, Calif., and the Stanford community. It premiered in Stanford's Kresge Auditorium in November and has earned flattering word-of-mouth advertising. Le Page, a petite, 25-year-old, blue-eyed blonde, is in the process of getting it distributed.

"A large portion of acquaintance rape," Le Page notes, "takes place in college dating situations. Yet I found it extremely difficult to get intelligent young women who had been victims to talk about it for the film. So many feel guilty—which is understandable because, in an acquaintance rape, the woman knows the man. She trusts him. She may have previously dated him or even slept with him.

"I have a case in the film where a young woman tells how she was in her apartment with her boyfriend, sipping rum and coke. He began to kiss her and asked her to make love. When she said 'no,' he got angry. She asked him to leave. Instead he pushed her onto the bed and raped her. 'I never, ever thought,' she said, crying, 'that my own boyfriend would rape me, that I couldn't stop what was happening. I'm so ashamed.'

"That woman," Le Page points out, "is a typical acquaintance-rape survivor. She was attacked early in 1984, yet she hasn't reported the rape or sought counseling. When she moved out of town, she left no forwarding address, so her boyfriend couldn't trace her. Worst of all, it took a year to destroy the intermittently rising belief within herself that her boyfriend didn't rape her, that she set herself up."

In Rethinking Rape, Le Page—through the expertise of a rape crisis center director, a psychologist, a male college student, and the personal stories of a former model and an ex-anchorwoman who was raped by a man she had been covering as a journalist—broadens her focus in an effort to explain the increase in sexual violence. Her film explores the forces and attitudes in our culture that make acquaintance rape so commonplace, including society's traditional sexual exploitation of women and the prevalence of pornography.

The 16mm color film, which runs 26 minutes, is available for purchase or rental from Film Distribution Center, 1028 Industry Drive, Seattle, Wash. 98188. Phone (206) 575-1575.

Memories

A few months ago, American Express opened an office in the Peking-Toronto Hotel to promote its traveler's checks and tourist services in China. Less than 10 years earlier, when we were staying at the Peking Hotel, the management there refused to accept American Express traveler's checks on the ground that there was only one China and American Express had chosen to believe erroneously that the government of the one China was situated in Taiwan.

The U.S., of course, no longer recognizes Taiwan as the official government of China. And, since 1981, the Bank of China has been selling American Express traveler's checks in Peking and some 10 other cities on the mainland.

Hope, the Eternal

Bob Hope—at 82, a physical miracle with endless stamina and energy—last month finished filming the first movie he has made in 13 years. Shot in Vancouver, Canada, A Nice Pleasant Deadly Weekend is a comedy starring Hope and Don Ameche, 77, in which Hope plays a bungling detective and Ameche a former art thief. NBC plans to show the movie on its TV network shortly, and 20th Century-Fox hopes to market it overseas as a theatrical feature film.

Population Growth of States

Five Sunbelt states—California, Florida, Texas, Arizona and North Carolina—will account for more than half of this nation's population growth for the period 1980-2000, according to the National Planning Association, an economic research organization in Washington, D.C. It projects those five states to have population increases totaling 21.8 million, or 54% of the nation's growth, during that 20-year span.

The association's demographic projection also shows that almost 80% of the population expansion in the last 20 years of the century will occur in the South and West, continuing the established trend of past decades. Herewith the top 10 states and the number of people they will gain by the year 2000:

State	Gain 1980-2000
1) California	6,668,000
2) Florida	5,767,000
3) Texas	5,708,000
4) Arizona	1,940,000
5) North Carolina	1,717,000
6) Georgia	1,457,000
7) Washington	1,178,000
8) Colorado	1,163,000
9) Virginia	1,031,000

Credit-Card Rates

Are you one of the 91 million Americans who use credit cards for their purchases? Are you a "credit-card junkie"? Would you make fewer purchases if you had no credit cards? Do you find credit cards a convenience and a help that afford you a better lifestyle, or do you find them an irresistible temptation to purchase goods and services that you don't really need?

Most important, do you have any idea of how much interest you pay on your credit-card charges? Herewith the 10 top credit-card lenders (listed in order of those with the largest outstanding debts) and their interest rates as of Dec. 15:

Lender	Rate
1) Sears	21%
2) Citibank	19.8%
3) Montgomery Ward	21.6%
4) Bank of America	19.8%
5) American Express*	18%
6) J.C. Penney	21%
7) First National Bank of Chicago	19.8%
8) Chemical Bank	19.5%
9) Chase Manhattan Bank	19.8%
10) Manufacturers Hanover Trust	17.8%

Why are we offering 100-piece sewing sets

for only

Hard to believe, but true!

As part of a nationwide publicity campaign, a leading New York firm will offer one million (1,000,000) of its most expensive sewing ensembles —the nationally advertised Clarissima™ 100-Piece Professional Deluxe—for the astonishing publicity price of only $5 each to the first one million persons who write to the company address (below) before Midnight, February 25, 1986.

These are the same famous Clarissima 100-Piece Professional Deluxe Sewing Ensembles similar to those nationally advertised by others in leading media at much higher prices. Each set includes a beautifully crafted sewing chest—measuring a full 165-cubic-inches in size—with a spacious triple-sized 10-inch drawer specially designed to keep all your needles, thimbles and other notions in handy, elegantly organized order.

Right on top of the chest you have room to display a full fifty (yes, fifty!) spools in handy at-a-glance order, each on its own individual spool holder for instant fingertip access.

And you can fill all 50 spool holders the minute your set arrives, because it includes 50 spools of famous Clarissima thread free! It also includes 50 fine quality Clarissima needles and thimbles—also free!

With over 100 pieces, it's no wonder the Clarissima Professional Deluxe is the fastest selling (and most expensive) sewing ensemble ever sold by this multi-million-dollar New York firm.

These 100-piece Clarissima Sewing Sets will not be sold at this price by the company in any store. To obtain one at this special publicity price, write to the company before Midnight, February 25.

There is a limit of two (2) sewing sets per address at this price, but if your order is mailed early enough (before February 17) you may request up to five. Every set is covered by the company's full one-year money-back guarantee.

To order your Clarissima 100-piece Sewing Set, mail your name and address and $5 for each set. Add $2 shipping and handling per set. (New York residents add sales tax.) Allow up to 6-8 weeks for shipment. Make check payable to A&C Company. Mail to: A&C SEWING SET, Dept. 931-137, Box 1790, Hicksville, New York 11802.(A20330)

Do You Have A Sore Knee?

Free Yourself From Pain

If you suffer from knee pain, we don't have to tell you how distressing it can be. Even the simplest, every-day activities such as walking or climbing stairs can cause severe discomfort.

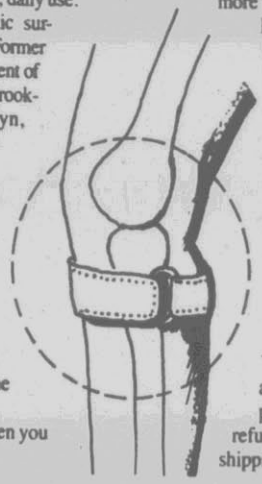
But now a revolutionary new knee strap offers genuine relief, whether you need it for sports or for ordinary, daily use. Designed by orthopedic surgeon Dr. Jack Levine, Former Director of the Department of Orthopedic Surgery, Brookdale Hospital, Brooklyn, N.Y., it has been discussed in leading medical journals. More importantly, thousands of people have actually tried it and liked it—The strap relieves pain and lets you move freely again.

Who needs the Levine Knee Strap?

If your knee hurts when you climb stairs...

If you have pain in your knee when sitting in one position for any length of time—and even worse pain when you get up...

If you have pain when playing tennis, when jogging, when engaging in any form of physical exercise—and even more pain after exercise...



If you occasionally feel your knee buckling when you're walking or running or dancing...

You need the Levine Knee Strap.

This method really works, even where ordinary elastic supports and traditional treatments have failed. The strap fits comfortably below the knee—weighs only one ounce—and will not be visible under your clothing. We guarantee you'll be thoroughly pleased—or return it for full refund of purchase price, except shipping charges of course.

Walter Matthau

WALTER MATTHAU CAME into the room in that familiar, hulking slouch, an oversized teddy bear, glowering and chewing gum. Walter Matthau always seems to be chewing gum. Sometimes I think he would chew gum while being presented to Mother Teresa.

It is all part of the Matthau persona, the duck-waddle walk, the hunched shoulders, the large, intelligent face, skeptical and forgiving at the same time.

The first time I ever saw Walter Matthau was out in Hollywood in 1967, when he won the Oscar for The Fortune Cookie. There was a big party afterward, and he was there, in white tie and tails, celebrating, a bottle of champagne at his bee-stung lips—everything you wanted a man to be in his moment of triumph.

Now he and his wife, Carol, who used to be married to the writer William Saroyan and who wed Matthau a quarter of a century ago, were spending a week in New York. He was born here, on the Lower East Side, in 1920. Matthau seemed glad to be back, his voice an amiable growl:

"There are fine restaurants here. You can get a good meal. You can't do that out in Los Angeles. There aren't many things you can do in Los Angeles." He had gone back to the old neighborhood, to where his brother still has an Army & Navy store, a jobber, with signs on the door now in Spanish, reflecting the changes in the old Jewish neighborhoods of the city.

But what really had Matthau exulting was a police arrest. "We came out of our hotel, and there were these three cops with their guns out, nailing this guy, a flim-flam man with a very large blonde." He paused. "I thought at first he was George Steinbrenner. But he was just a flim-flam man, and they arrested him, right there in front of us."

He shook his big head, marveling that he could come back to New York from the make-believe of Hollywood to be swept up in a real-life drama at his doorstep.

To some he will always be The Odd Couple's Oscar Madison, sloppy, grousing, loud, driving poor Felix to distraction. He is obviously much more. Starting tonight, he can be seen on PBS, introducing and providing commentary for a new series of Shakespeare plays. Oscar Madison and Shakespeare? Not so outrageous if you remember that years ago he and Larry Hagman did Ibsen dramas on television.

As Matthau left, in a tweed jacket, soft shirt and tie, all muted tans and beige, I realized something else: that he is a very well-dressed gent. Felix Unger would be proud of him.

BORN: Oct. 1, 1920, in New York City. GIVEN NAME: Walter Matuschanskayasky. PERSONAL: Married to Grace Geraldine Johnson 1948-58; children: David and Jenny. Married Carol Grace Marcus in 1959; one son, Charles. PHYSICAL: 6 feet 3, 180 pounds. ACADEMY AWARD: The Fortune Cookie, 1966. HOBBIES: Sports, Mozart, collecting such appliances as hospital beds and massage chairs.

Matthau and the Bard: The actor will talk about the plays' characters and themes in order to make them more accessible to audiences. First show: A Midsummer Night's Dream.

Harry Benson

Starting tonight, Walter Matthau will be on public television hosting Shakespeare. Shakespeare? Listen, he and J.R. Ewing once did Ibsen.

BRADY'S BITS

In his time, Walter Matthau has been awarded six battle stars as an Air Force sergeant, worked as a file clerk, coached basketball and taught boxing. You realize why he was so arrogantly right as the coach in Bad News Bears. I would give anything to see him teach the left jab to Tatum O'Neal.

Plus any 3 books for 98¢ with membership

Here's how the Club Plan works: You'll get 3 books for only 98¢ plus shipping and handling and your FREE BOOK and FREE HELICOPTER MODEL KIT—when accepted as a member. We reserve the right to reject any application. However, once accepted, if you are not completely satisfied with your introductory books, return them within 10 days at our expense. Your membership will be cancelled and you will owe nothing. The FREE BOOK and FREE MODEL KIT are yours to keep in any case.

Huge selection: As a Club member, you'll have over 350 titles to choose from—a tremendous variety of the very best military books in print. Many feature rarely seen photos, illustrations and maps. Many books are difficult to find anywhere else.

How you save money: The Club offers its own complete hardbound editions (sometimes altered in size to fit special presses). Club editions save you up to 30% off publishers' hardcover edition prices. A shipping and handling charge is added to each shipment.

Club magazine: About every 4 weeks (14 times a year) you'll receive the free Club magazine describing coming Selection(s) and Alternates. In addition, up to 4 times a year, you may receive offers of special Selections, always at discounts off publishers' prices. If you want the featured Selection(s), do nothing—shipment will be made automatically. If you prefer an Alternate—or no book at all—indicate this on the order form and return it by the date specified. You'll have at least 10 days to decide. If you have less than 10 days, and you receive an unwanted Selection, you may return it at our expense and owe nothing.

The choice is always yours: Your only obligation is to take just 4 books at regular low Club prices during the next 2 years. You may resign any time after purchasing your 4 books, or continue to enjoy Club membership for as long as you like.

PLUS HUEY HELICOPTER MODEL KIT FREE with membership

OR—IF YOU PREFER YOU MAY TAKE A SPECIAL TRIAL MEMBERSHIP AND RECEIVE

6 FOR 1 CENT

If you are just an occasional record or tape buyer...if you prefer not to obligate yourself to purchase eight more selections...or if you cannot find 11 selections you want right now—here's a perfect opportunity to "try out" the Club on a special trial membership basis!

Just fill in the Special "Trial-Membership Application" at the right—and we'll send you ANY 6 records or tapes—ALL 6 for only 1¢, plus shipping and handling. In exchange, you simply agree to buy as few as four selections (at regular Club prices) during the coming three years. Think of it—only four selections and you have three whole years in which to buy them!

As a trial member, you'll enjoy all of the benefits of regular membership as described on the following page—but without any lengthy commitment...you may cancel at any time after buying just four more selections. So if you'd prefer to enroll now under this special "get acquainted" offer—mail the special application today, together with only $1.00 (that's 1¢ for your 6 introductory selections, plus 99¢ to cover shipping and handling). Refer to the "How the Club operates" paragraph on the following page for further details.

Special Start-Your-Membership-Now Bonus Offer: you may also choose your first selection right now—and we'll give it to you for up to 50% off regular Club prices (only $4.98). Enclose payment now and you'll receive it with your 6 introductory selections. This discount purchase immediately reduces your membership obligation—you'll then be required to buy just 3 more (instead of 4) in the next three years. What's more, this discount purchase also entitles you to 2 more albums as a bonus, FREE. Just check box in application and fill in numbers of your first selection and 2 free bonus albums!

NOTE: all applications are subject to review and Columbia House reserves the right to reject any application.

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels. How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below.

Differences: 1. Doorknob is lower. 2. Cap is different. 3. Frame is different. 4. Rug is smaller. 5. Drawer is missing. 6. Vase is different.

TEE FORMATION! Challenge: Find the five numbers forming a T at right that have the highest total. Then similarly, find the five that have the lowest total. T's may be in any position, up, down, left, right, but not diagonal.

For your information, the difference between the two sums is 10.

Maximum, 32 — 829 across, 58 down. Minimum, 22 — 25 down, 483 across.

BELABORED NEIGHBOR!

"I'll bet I can wheel something in this wheelbarrow down to that gate that you can't wheel back," said a homeowner to a neighboring friend.

His neighbor considered the offer. He thought of bags of cement, heavy stones, old iron, etc., and concluded his friend was bluffing. "You've got a bet," he said.

Whereupon, the other man smiled, picked up the wheelbarrow and uttered just two words that caused his opponent to lose.

What were the two words he uttered?

The words were, "Get in."

• DOUBLE TAKE! Quickly, double this number and you get exactly 54 more than the number itself. What is the number? Time limit: 10 seconds.

The number is 54, of course.

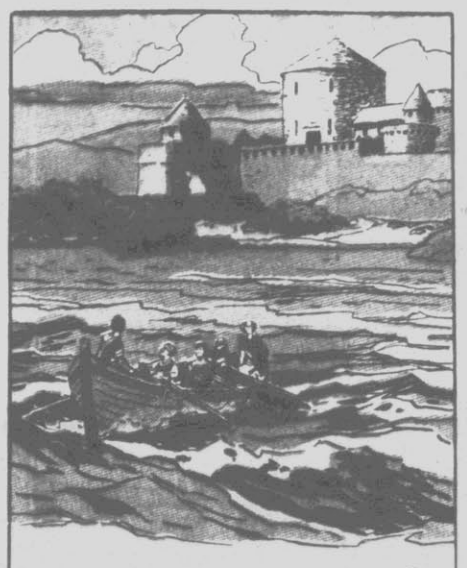
CREATED BY HAL FOSTER

Our Story: THE STORM-TOSSED WARSHIP BEARING PRINCE VALIANT AND ALETA MAKES DESPERATELY FOR SAFETY. THE CAPTAIN IS PUZZLED. "MY CHARTS SHOW NO ISLAND HERE," HE SAYS. BUT VAL DARES NOT LOOK A GIFT HORSE IN THE MOUTH. ON THE ISLAND'S LEEWARD SIDE THE VESSEL DROPS ANCHOR.



A CASTLE COMMANDS THE BAY, AND A SMALL LANDING PARTY SETS OUT TO OBTAIN WATER AND PROVISIONS.

AT THE CASTLE A SHRILL LITTLE MAN OPENS A WINDOW IN THE DOOR. "WHAT DO YOU WANT?" HE SNAPS. "YOU MUST WANT SOMETHING. EVERYBODY HERE WANTS SOMETHING." WHEN VAL EXPLAINS WHY HE HAS COME, THE LITTLE MAN CRIES, "SEE! WHAT DID I TELL YOU?"

"NOW GO AWAY." AND WITH THAT HE SLAMS THE WINDOW SHUT. PRINCE VALIANT KNOCKS ONCE MORE. OUT POPS THE LITTLE HEAD. "I WON'T TELL YOU AGAIN..." AND INDEED HE DOES NOT, FOR VAL HAS THE FELLOW BY THE THROAT.

THE DOOR IS QUICKLY OPENED, AND VAL AND ALETA BEHOLD THE PANDEMONIUM INSIDE. CHILDREN FIGHT OVER TOYS. MEN AND WOMEN STEAL FOOD FROM EACH OTHER'S PLATES. CRIES OF "IT'S MINE, IT'S MINE" FILL THE ROOM. "WHAT KIND OF PLACE IS THIS?" VAL WONDERS ALOUD. THE LITTLE MAN EYES HIM.
