PCMH Trustees Study Plan For Children's Unit

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County Memorial Hospital trustees are being asked to consider designating the departments of the hospital which serve infants and children an entity within the hospital to be named Children's Hospital of Eastern North Carolina or something similar.

They were given written materials Tuesday night on the concept, which was presented to them by Dr. Jon Tingelstad, chief of pediatrics, several months ago. And they heard a presentation by several members of various departments of the hospital which would be components of the children's hospital if it is established.

Dr. Edwin Monroe, representing the East Carolina University Medical School, reminded the group that perhaps it should also be looking at "what we can do for the people at the other end of the spectrum, our older folks."

Monroe also said local people need to consider how efforts to balance the federal budget over the next several years are going to affect medical care and research. He said it's predicted that by 1991 the budget of the National Institutes of Health will be cut to 36 percent of its current level and local health care will be affected similarly.

Dr. John Rose was welcomed as the new chief of the medical staff and Dr. Robert G. Brame as the new vice chief of staff.

Norma Van Veld was named chairman of a nominating committee to report next month. Serving with her will be Arlee Griffin and William Flowers.

Mrs. Van Veld told the board the hospital was given "an unqualified opinion" the best an auditor can give. The hospital has realized a net increase in assets of $1 million. Gross receivables were up 7 percent and net patient revenues were up 18 percent.

During discussion of the hospital's financial state, it was pointed out that the hospital is considered for Medicaid reimbursement purposes a rural referral center. If populations of Greenville and Pitt County were a little larger, it would be considered an urban referral center and reimbursements per average visit would be about $300 higher, financial officer Roy Clark said.

Capital requests totaling $78,832 were approved. Included were purchases of a power file for microfilm record for medical records at a cost of $14,461; surgical tables for the operating rooms at $59,049; and a volumetric controller for labor and delivery at a cost of $5,322.

President Jack Richardson said the administration is looking at how participation in a group titled Voluntary Hospitals of America can enhance the service of the local hospital. The initial participation in the North Carolina-South Carolina component of the group is expected to cost about $9,000, he said.

Inflation Level Holds Below 4% For Fourth Year

By TOM RAUM
AP Economics Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer prices edged up 3.8 percent in 1985, the fourth consecutive year that inflation at the retail level has been held to 4 percent or less, the government said today.

For December, retail prices rose just 0.4 percent.

The Labor Department's Consumer Price Index was down slightly from the 4 percent gain of 1984 and would have been down even more if not for last fall's gains in fuel and food costs.

And, while coffee prices began rising this month because of a drought in Brazil, economists predicted continued low overall inflation for months — and perhaps years — to come.

"Inflation is not a problem these days," said Michael Evans, president of an economic consulting firm based in Washington. He predicted that inflation would stay below 4 percent at least through 1988.

Meanwhile, the Commerce Department said in another report that the economy grew just 2.3 percent last year, the slowest pace in three years.

Analysts put growth in the last three months of 1985 at a revised 2.4 percent. It had earlier been calculated at 3.2 percent.

That revision stemmed from a sharply higher estimate of the country's trade deficit and a big jump in inflation, calculated by department analysts at 4.5 percent, the highest for a calendar quarter since the first quarter of 1984.

The big jump in the GNP fixed-weight price inflation index came from widespread increases in a variety of prices, including the first increase in the price of imported goods since the second quarter of 1984.

For all of 1985, however, the GNP-inflation index rose 3.6 percent, the best annual performance since a 3 percent rise in 1967.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said the figures for the fourth quarter of 1985 represented the 13th quarter in a row in which the GNP had grown, "making the current economic expansion one of the strongest in post-war history."

Speakes said the administration expects 4 percent economic growth in 1986 and added that "we ... see no reason to expect a re-ignition of the flames of inflation, particularly in light of falling crude oil prices."

For all of last year, the Labor Department said that food and beverage prices rose 2.8 percent while the cost of transportation-related items, including gasoline, increased 2.6 percent.

Most of the hike in food and fuel prices came in November, when consumer prices increased 0.6 percent over October — the highest one-month increase in two years. But that bulge abated in December.

In other areas, housing costs for the year increased 4.3 percent, apparel prices went up 2.9 percent, medical care costs gained 6.7 percent and entertainment expenses were up 3.2 percent.

HENRY A. ANDREWS

CLAUDIE G. McLAWHORN

McLawhorn, Andrews Vie For Commissioner's Post

Claudie G. McLawhorn and Henry A. Andrews have filed as candidates for the Pitt County Board of Commissioners from the Winterville district.

A resident of the Winterville community, McLawhorn has been a farmer for the past 24 years. Andrews, 37, is a lifelong resident of Pitt County and is employed by TRW as an engineering technician.

While filing for the commissioner's seat, McLawhorn, 42, said that he is concerned with re-evaluation of farm land and farming equipment. "Land values are down 30 to 40 percent from what they were two years ago," he said. "The same is true for farming equipment. The farming community needs some relief from over-taxed land and equipment."

He also said he would like to see a ward system for seats on the Board of Elections and the Pitt County Board of Commissioners.

"Orderly growth and development throughout Pitt County is one of my major concerns," McLawhorn stated.

He is a 1961 graduate of Winterville High School. He is married to the former Judy Worthington of Winterville, and they have one son, Winton.

McLawhorn is a member of the Winterville Free Will Baptist Church and serves on the church's Building and Improvement Committee. He is a member of the Winterville Kiwanis Club, the Winterville Board of Adjustments and the ASCS Community Committee.

He has served two terms on the A.G. Cox and W.H. Robinson school advisory councils. He also served two years on the D.H. Conley High School advisory council.

Andrews attended Greenville city schools and East Carolina University.

Andrews said his reason for filing is a belief that Pitt County needs new leadership capable of guiding a fast changing Pitt County. He said, "Being a new face on the commission will allow me to work with the other commissioners without having the pressure of being committed to past ideas and policies that no longer apply to the present needs of Pitt County."

Andrews stated that one of his main objectives is to encourage the Board of Commissioners to be more responsive to citizen input. He listed among his goals: maintaining a tax rate and financial base that facilitates county growth, creation of a tax evaluation system that would

Investigation Over ECU Set To Mail Football Report

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — East Carolina University officials have completed their report on possible violations of NCAA regulations in the football program under former coach Ed Emory, state Attorney General Lacy Thornburg says.

The report was to be mailed today to the NCAA offices in Shawnee Mission, Kan.

Thornburg said the report, and the transcript of an oral examination of Emory, would become public records once they are placed in the mail.

East Carolina Chancellor John Howell confirmed the report was finished but declined to discuss details. He said he wasn't sure when the report would become public — possibly not until it is received by the NCAA.

Thornburg denied a request last week from the Greensboro News & Record to provide a copy of the transcript, saying it was part of a "fact-finding investigation" and wouldn't be public before the report was completed. Evidence that some student-athletes on the Pirate football squad received cash payments, in violation of NCAA rules, was uncovered nearly a year ago as ECU officials and lawyers from the attorney general's office were preparing to defend a lawsuit filed by Emory protesting his firing.

Howell said he contacted NCAA officials last April about the evidence. Officials with the NCAA asked the university to conduct an investigation into the matter.

Emory has said he made no improper payments to players on his squad and didn't know of any from any other sources. He called the program at ECU "one of the cleanest in America."

MEAL DELIVERERS ASKED

The Pitt County Council on Aging is seeking to serve 28 more home-delivered hot meals in Greenville. "There are elderly shut-in people on our waiting list," Dot Partin, a Council on Aging staffer, said, "but we need more volunteer deliverers in order to serve them." Hours deliverers are needed are 11:15 a.m. to 12:15 p.m. Monday through Friday. Anyone willing to help may choose his or her day and is asked to call Ms. Partin at 752-1717 between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Percy Cox Says He'll File

As of this morning, no one had filed as a candidate for election to the Board of County Commissioners from Greenville Township, but former Mayor Percy Cox said he would file this afternoon.

The names of several other persons have been mentioned as possible candidates, including Wachovia Bank executive Reid Hooper, chairman of the Pitt County Memorial Hospital board of trustees, and Jo Ball, chairman of the Pitt County Juvenile Task Force.

Incumbent Commissioner Kelly Barnhill announced last week that he would not seek re-election to the post he has held since December 1980, thus leaving the Greenville Township seat up for grabs.

Cox, in a telephone interview this morning, said "I'm going to file today. I feel like my 17 years in city government (as a member of the City Council and more recently as mayor) qualifies me to do a good job as a county commissioner."

Cox also said, "I feel it is very important that the county commissioners and all the governing bodies in the county work closely together to make Pitt the most progressive county in eastern North Carolina."

Asked this morning if he would be a candidate, Hooper said "I am thinking about it ... just thinking about it."

According to Hooper, "I'm going to retire in late summer and will have some time. I've not made up my mind." He said a decision on becoming a candidate would be made this week.

Mrs. Ball said this morning that "I have considered it. I'm still considering filing for the position. Beyond that, I'm not sure."

C. MORT HURST

Hurst Seeks State Senate Post

C. Mort Hurst of Robersonville has announced he is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the North Carolina Senate for District 6.

The district represents nine townships in Edgecombe County, six in Pitt County, three in Wilson County and the Robersonville township in Martin County.

Hurst is a graduate of Atlantic Christian College and is serving his second term as mayor pro-tempore of Robersonville and his third term as a commissioner of Martin County.

He is a partner in a family-owned ice and coal business in Robersonville.

In announcing his candidacy, Hurst said, "It will be my platform to back the Mavretic bill to do away with property taxes and to replace it with an increased state sales tax. Under the Mavretic bill, lower income people would be protected. The bill provides an income tax credit or rebates for all at or below the federal poverty level."

Hurst also said his campaign would emphasize better roads in the district.

Hurst said that his experience in city government and being a businessman and coming from a farming family qualify him for the N.C. Senate.

"The farmers are in real trouble and without some relief many more will surely go under," Hurst said. "It is not right for the farmers to pay more than their fair share of the taxes. The Mavretic bill, which calls for a repeal of property taxes, will not solve all of their problems, but will surely take a burden off their shoulders."

"We need to push for more and better roads in our district," he added. "Without a good road system, industries are less apt to locate in our area. Better roads mean more industries and therefore will open the doors for more jobs."

Hurst is a member of the First Baptist Church of Robersonville, a former member of the board of directors of the N.C. Ice Association and a former member of the board of Martin Community Action. He is serving as a commissioner to ElectriCities.

Hurst is married to the former Elizabeth Lewis, a mathematics teacher at Martin Community College. They have two children, a daughter Lesley and a son Jeff.

Pat's Pointers

By Pat Trexler

Everyone's favorite needlework project — the crocheted afghan — used to be considered a long-term project. But in today's fast-paced world, the good news is that this lovely Popcorn Afghan can be made in jiffy time with a jumbo size Q crochet hook and wonderful cloud-soft brushed acrylic yarn.

The bulky yarn and big hook make this light, fluffy, feminine afghan fast; the easy popcorns and ruffled edge make it fun. The approximate finished measurements are 40 inches by 62 inches.

To obtain directions for making the Quick Popcorn Crochet Afghan, send your request for Leaflet No. Z-0119 with $1 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler Crafts, The Daily Reflector, P.O. Box 15922, Lenexa, Kan. 66215.

Or you may order Kit No. C-0119 by sending a check or money order for $29.95 to Pat Trexler Crafts at the same address. The kit price includes shipping charges, full instructions and Quickmist yarn in your choice of ecru, burgundy or dark colonial blue. Please specify your color choice.

Ruffles are going to be very big this year in personal and home fashions. Last week, I gave you instructions for knit ruffles. Now I will tell you how to make the crochet ruffling used by designer Stephanie Roselle on the afghan featured today.

When the afghan — or any item you would like to finish off with ruffling — is completed, work an edging as follows: Starting at any corner, with the right side of your work facing you, attach the yarn. Chain 2 and then work 1 round of half-double crochet around the entire afghan, working 2 half-doubles in each corner. At the end of this round, join with a slip stitch in the chain that began this round.

To start the next round, chain 4 and work 3 triple crochets in the joining stitch, chain 1. Step 1: Skip 1 stitch. Step 2: Work 4 triples in the next stitch. Step 3: Chain 1. Repeat Steps 1 through 3 in each stitch around the entire afghan, joining at the end with a slip stitch in the beginning chain of this round.

For the inexperienced crocheter, this might be a good time to go beyond the basics of chain and single crochet stitches, so you can branch out into more ambitious projects. In all of the following directions, when you are told to "yarnover," you are to wrap the yarn once around the hook.

To work a half-double crochet, Step 1: yarnover; Step 2: insert hook from front to back under the loops of the next stitch; Step 3: catch the strand of yarn with your hook and pull it through to the front of your work. At this point, you will have 3 loops on the hook. There was 1 loop to begin with. The yarnover gives you the second loop, and the strand you pulled through makes the third.

Step 4: Yarnover and pull the hook through all 3 loops. At the completion of Step 4, you have finished one half-double crochet and again have 1 loop on the hook. By the way, when you learn this stitch, you will find that you can do it much more quickly than I could write or you could read these directions.

To work a double crochet, start with the first 3 steps above the point where you have 3 loops on the hook.

Then work as follows: Step 4: Yarnover and pull the hook through 2 loops. After this step, 2 loops will remain on the hook (an additional loop is always added when you pull the yarn strand through the specified number of loops). Step 5: Yarnover and pull hook through 2 loops.

For a triple crochet, at Step 1, make a double yarnover, wrapping the yarn twice around the hook. Work Steps 2 through 5 as before. After Step 3, you will have 4 loops on the hook and at the end of Step 5, 2 loops will remain on the hook. For Step 6, yarnover and pull yarn through the 2 remaining loops.

When you are comfortable with these stitches, the door to the whole wonderful world of crochet pattern stitchery is open to you.

Keeping A Diary Called Way To Deal With Stress

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP) — If you're under a lot of stress, a diary may help you cope with the problem, says Dr. Glen M. Leonard, a historian and director of the Museum of Church History and Art in Salt Lake City.

"Diaries can be therapeutic, a way for people to unload their problems and get them off their minds," he explains. "In the past 100 years, with the advent of psychology, you find more people keeping diaries as a type of therapy. They put their thoughts on paper, which helps them discover what's troubling them."

A lot of teen-agers, travelers and people with a historical or genealogical interest keep diaries, too. Their reasons vary, says Leonard.

"Some people keep a diary to unload their problems, and others keep a diary with the idea that someday it's going to be published and the world will know them. But I think most diaries are kept as a historical record, an aid to memory, to help you remember the events that are important to you. Then you can go back to it in a few years and see what you were doing and feeling."

A diary keeper for the past 25 years, Leonard has found many reasons for writing down his feelings.

"Basically, I enjoy it. It's a release to sit down and just talk to myself through my writing," he says. "Another reason is, it's an aid to memory. Sometimes I go back to a diary to verify a date or event."

Diaries also provide a good historical record for your children, grandchildren and historians. And they let you see how you've changed over the years, which all of us do.

How does a person go about keeping a diary?

It doesn't need to be hard work, Leonard says.

"Computers make diary-keeping much easier these days," he says. "It's much quicker to type a daily or weekly entry on a computer than to write it out in longhand. Some people tape-record their diary entries, too. In fact, some business people dictate a journal entry, then have a secretary transcribe it for them."

"The important thing to remember is to get your thoughts on paper, not just trivial details like what the weather is that day. The National Weather Bureau keeps track of that."

A diary can be a way to explore your feelings about political situations or world events, elections, and happenings in your own life or in your community, Leonard points out.

"When people write about those events, they're usually revealing more about themselves than they are about the event they're describing," he adds.

After deciding what to write about, the writer needs to make sure that what he or she is writing about will last.

"I know one woman who kept a diary for 25 years in a looseleaf notebook, using an inexpensive ballpoint pen and paper that was poor quality," he says. "She wrote on both sides of the page, and after 25 years, the early diaries were looking like ink blotters."

"You need to use fairly good paper with high cotton or rag content, and a good quality ink. I like to type my diary. That way I don't get writer's cramp, I can write a lot more, and it will last longer than a ballpoint pen entry."

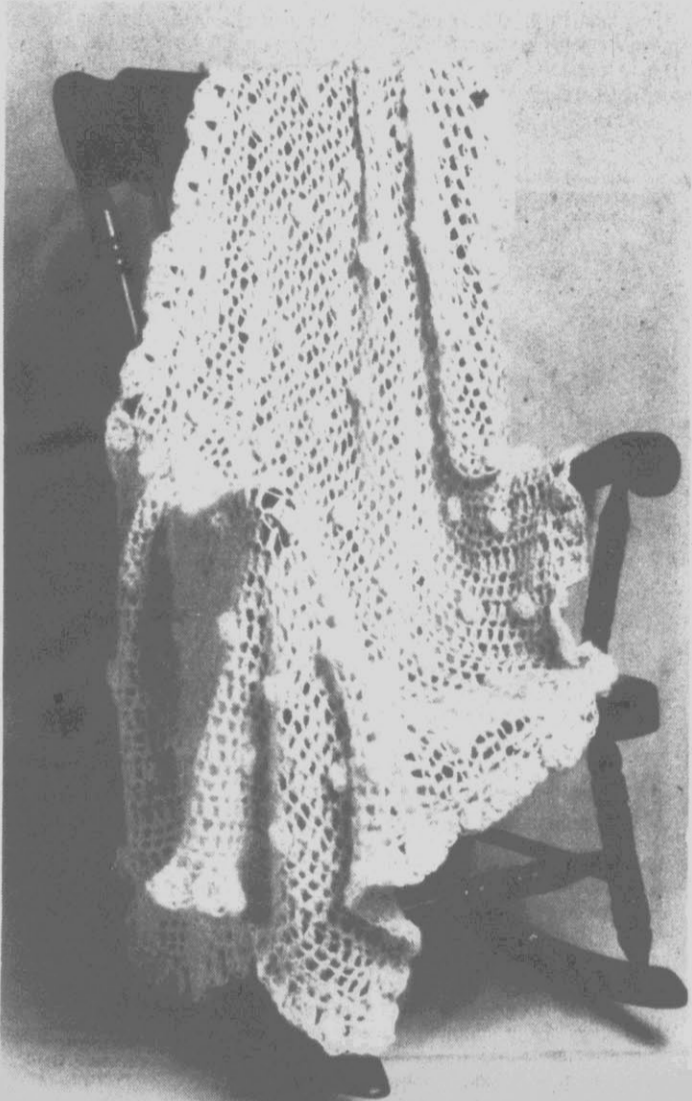

It's a good idea to date every entry with the day of the week as well as the date, and to identify people you're referring to, he suggests. Don't just say "Joe," but give his full name and explain who he is.

"A diary should also include a fair slice of life, a balance of the good and the bad events," Leonard advises.

The church for which Leonard works suggests that all its members keep journals.

"We have 3,000 or 4,000 diaries in the historical department of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, and hundreds of thousands of our members keep diaries today," he says. "The diaries are preserved for historical research and reference, and families use them for family histories."

"I believe each person who's been on Earth is important, and has something important to say about himself or herself," Leonard says. "As you record some of your feelings about what's happening inside of you, or what you're observing around you, you discover yourself and find out how important you really are. You begin to explore as you record things. Examining life helps you to understand its meaning for you."

BULKY YARN...and a large crochet hook combine to make afghan a fast project.

Exhibit Will Explore Craft Revival Since Turn Of The Century

CULLOWHEE — Back in 1895, a neighbor woman in Brittain's Cove near Asheville brought a coverlet as a gift to Frances Goodrich, a Presbyterian missionary and social worker trying to improve the mountain women's lives.

The coverlet, 40 years old and woven in the "Double Bowknot" pattern, "knocked her bonnet off, you might say," said Jan Davidson, curator of the Mountain Heritage Center at Western Carolina University. "She thought that was the answer for mountain women, whose weaving tradition was slipping away."

With an $8,600 grant from the National Endowment for the Arts, the Mountain Heritage Center plans to exhibit the overshot coverlet weaving of western North Carolina, beginning in mid-March and continuing through October. The exhibit will include demonstrations, information and coverlets like the one that inspired Frances Goodrich to organize weavers, market the coverlets through Allanstand Cottage Industries, and later help found the Southern Highland Handicraft Guild.

The exhibit will explore the crafts "revival" that started around the turn of the century, focusing on the works of Ms. Goodrich, John C. Campbell Folk School founder Olive Campbell and Penland School for Crafts founder Lucy Morgan.

"There are coverlets in the stories of all these women, and we hope to find them," said Suzanne McDowell, museum specialist and a weaver. The Mountain Heritage Center is looking for coverlets, "drafts" by which they were woven and old photographs to use during the exhibit's seven-month run.

"Coverlets are an important part of the Appalachian tradition and history, because people loved them and were proud of them," Ms. Davidson said. "You see a lot of old photographs of families posing in front of a coverlet. They must have symbolized the family."

The overshot weave is a ground-work of plain weaving on which or shot over it — appears a design of colored wool yarn. To produce the design, weavers followed a draft, which consisted of lines and figures written on narrow slips of paper or newsprint. "The drafts were like graphs telling the weaver how to thread the loom and tie the treadles to produce a certain pattern," Ms. McDowell said. "The ones we have are covered with pinpricks where weavers had marked their places," she said. "To a lot of people it looks like jibberish; people have found them in their attics and thrown them away."

The patterns have names that refer to nature or history, such as "Flowers of May," "Dogwood Blossoms," "Beautiful Wave," "Braddock's Defeat," "Bonaparte's March," "Lee's Surrender," "Tennessee Trouble," and "Double Bowknot" that first fascinated Frances Goodrich.

"Overshot-woven coverlets are interesting to study because they have a written component, the coverlet draft," Ms. Davidson said.

Coverlet weaving was done less and less in the late 1800s, she said, because the work was difficult and store-bought materials were becoming available. Ms. Goodrich recognized this and wanted to keep the tradition alive and give mountain women paying work. At about the same time, Murphy native Lucy Morgan, who taught at her brother's Episcopal mission school in Penland, also found weaving to be less and less common among the mountain women, and she wanted to help them supplement their generally meager incomes by weaving goods for people outside western North Carolina. Mrs. Campbell, who came to the mountains with her missionary husband, followed through after his death in about 1925 on his idea of establishing a Scandinavian folk school.

These institutions first taught weaving to local people and then marketed coverlets and other woven goods outside the region. "The women knew they were carrying on a tradition and they were proud of it," Ms. Davidson said.

"First coverlets were made for families and for warmth; later they were made for money," Ms. Davidson said. "It was part of the adjustment the mountain area made to change in the rest of the world."

"In the exhibit, we hope to look at the contributions of all three of these women and make people aware that when they see overshot weaving today, it's not only a part of the mountain tradition that goes back 200 years, but it's a new mountain tradition, that of the handicrafts revival, that goes back only 80 to 90 years," Ms. Davidson said.

The Mountain Heritage Center exhibit will include an on-going weaving project by members of the Smoky Mountain Fiber Guild and demonstrations of sheep shearing and wool dyeing, carding and spinning. Davidson and the center staff also will design a multi-image presentation and conduct an oral history project to accompany the exhibit.

To obtain further information about the exhibit or to lend a coverlet or photographs of weaving, call the Mountain Heritage Center at (704) 227-7129.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

Los Angeles Hairdresser Willing To Share

DEAR ABBY: This is for that Chicago woman who said she tipped her hairdresser and manicurist all during the year, and "come Christmas," instead of their giving her presents, she's on the giving end again.

Well, I have been a hairdresser for 26 years and have always given my customers a gift in appreciation of their patronage.

At Christmastime I am inundated with recycled candy, stale nuts, cheap cologne and wine I wouldn't give a wino on skid row.

During the year we hairdressers have to endure foul language, dirty jokes, bad breath, body odor, late arrivals and last-minute cancellations. We console people in their grief and listen to gripes about their husbands, children, grandchildren and neighbors, not to mention being exposed to colds, coughs and the flu. ("I got out of a sick bed to come here.")

In return we give sympathy, encouragement, understanding, advice and a shoulder to cry on. These women wouldn't get as much from a psychiatrist, and we're cheaper. In addition, we use our talent to the best of our abilities with what we have to work with—which in some cases is almost total baldness.

Abby, please tell that Chicago woman if she needs a present at Christmas to come here, and I will let her walk a mile in my shoes.

LOS ANGELES
HAIRDRESSER

DEAR ABBY: To get to the point, I blew it, but I have only myself to blame.

I'm a 40-year-old man. In the three years since I've been divorced, I've dated many women, but none of them caused sparks to fly—until I met "Kathy" at a singles club. She's 35, great looking, a wonderful personality, intelligent and has two children. I have one.

It was love at first sight—for me, anyway. The next weekend we went shopping at a mall. Just being with Kathy thrilled me. We laughed and joked, and I felt like a teen-ager again. I know she liked me, too. She was very open and wasn't afraid to show affection. She spontaneously took my hand, and hugged me a couple of times. I wanted to be close to her, so on the way home we stopped (in broad daylight) and I kissed her just once and she didn't fight me. Then I made the mistake of my life. I said, "Your place or mine? Or should we stop at a motel?" She said, "I don't want to be rushed into anything. Please take me home." Then her attitude changed completely. She turned very cold. I apologized and asked her to forgive me, but she stayed cold. I'm sure she thought I acted that way with every woman I met, which isn't true.

I called her the next day, apologized again for the way I acted and asked if I could see her again. She said, "No, I don't think so."

Now what do I do? I have never felt this way about a woman in my life. Should I call her again? I don't want to make a pest of myself, but I can't get her off my mind.

Plans were completed for the Good Citizen Day Saturday in Greenville. Nine chapters will be in attendance and the Greenville chapter will be hostesses. A tour of the VOA site with a film to be shown is planned followed by a luncheon. The district winner will be announced and will be competition with other district winners for the state $1,000 scholarship award.

Mrs. Ballengee and Mrs. Lee Williams, American Indian chairmen, served desserts which were foods used by Indians. Recipes were also distributed to members.

BLEW IT

DEAR BLEW IT: Wait a few days, then write a note to be delivered with flowers. Apologize again, assuring her that if she gives you another chance, your relationship will progress at the rate of her choosing. Then call her. If she's still cold, you'll know you really blew it, and call it a good learning experience.

Experience

The strike that has been tying up scores of fishing boats at the nation's richest port (New Bedford) is sharply cutting into seafood supplies and sending prices to record levels along the East Coast.

At issue is the size of profit shares going to owners of the boats (they want a bigger slice of the pie) and fishermen who object. The owners say poor catches and skyrocketing costs are to blame.

An elaborate and sophisticated distribution system makes impact of the dispute felt all along the East Coast but the largest number of victims might be in the New York City market which traditionally buys out of New Bedford. (It should be mentioned that, historically, this is also the season when seafood supplies are on the short side.)

Ironically, the strike isn't hurting nearby Boston's biggest wholesaler ... for a very good reason that New Bedford's disputants should heed. Boston's needs are being eased by shipments from overseas.

That happens often in other industrial disputes and casts doubts on strikes as being good problem-solvers. Once those overseas distributors get a good toe-hole in the American market it is hard to displace them. Sometimes they are not displaced. The New Bedford fishing business could be permanently damaged, even mortally.

Either experience is not the teacher it's long been cracked up to be, or Americans are proving to be awfully slow in learning their lessons.

Open Society

There is no person on earth whose ailments are so well reported as those of the president of the United States.

From President Eisenhower's heart attack to President Johnson's surgery and now President Reagan's polyps all the ills that might befall a president quickly become public property.

The public was fully briefed on President Reagan's recent colon surgery and it was also well reported when he went back to the hospital and exactly the procedure that would be followed. It was quickly reported that three polyps removed from the president's colon in the examination were benign as was a sample of skin taken from his face.

The rest of the world gazes in wonderment as the state of the president's health unfolds. We have, after all, watched several Soviet leaders virtually die before our eyes with hardly a hint of what ailed them.

Its it all that necessary? Well, sometimes we all become bored with so much detail. On the other hand, what could more impress on the world that when we talk of ours being an open society, we mean it?

Who Picks Taxi Drivers?

According to my contract I am entitled to write one column a year about taxi drivers. I don't always do it.

And speaking of taxis, what has happened in the United States is that more and more cabdrivers are being recruited from overseas. Our hack companies have their agents out on every road from Vietnam to the Vale of Kashmir scouting Persians, Ethiopians, Sudanese, Syrians and Cossacks. Each driver, in his own way, is a freedom fighter, determined not only to risk his life for his country, but his passenger's as well.

"Why so many foreign cabdrivers in the U.S.?" I asked Fleestreet, a Washington taxi company owner.

"American taxi drivers have lost their courage. They stop for red lights, slow down in school zones and pull over to the curb to let an ambulance go my. My foreign drivers have never seen a red light. They barrel through intersections at 60 miles an hour, jump lanes, honk their horns and don't know what the word 'yield' means."

"How do you find them?"
"We have people all over the world looking. I just received this cable from our man in New Delhi. He found a 6-foot-7 Sikh who has slam-dunked four cabs in less than 30 days."

"He sounds like an excellent prospect."

"When it comes to driving taxis the Sikhs are known as the 'warrior class.' I have one problem. New York is after him also. It's hard to compete with New York because we have nothing here to compare with their Queensborough Bridge gridlock."

"How do you persuade them to come here?"

"I assure them that as soon as they get through immigration they can work the airport. We promise our people they can drive as fast and as recklessly as they did in the old country. This keeps them from getting homesick."

RALEIGH — Ray DeBruhl, state construction officer, denies that he has any plans to either run for the Legislature or open an office in the Legislative Building.

The crowd that makes its living in the Legislative Building has been kidding DeBruhl about the amount of time he's spent in the Legislature in the past few months. "No doubt about it, Ray's become the best draw in Raleigh," one lobbyist quipped the other day.

DeBruhl has been called to speak before no less than four study committees that are looking into various phases of state property policy. He's practically the entire agenda every time the State Owned Property Committee meets. He's also appeared before the State Government Complex and State Infrastructure committees and will work with the State Judicial Center Committee when it starts its study.

When asked about the proliferation of study committees related to state property, DeBruhl only smiled and gave the answer all successful bureaucrats will learn, "We're just happy to serve," he said.

Tommy Rhodes, secretary of the Department of Natural Resources and Community Development, learned recently that you'd better have your numbers straight when you butt heads with Sen. Kenneth Royall, D-Durham.

Rhodes was asked the magnitude of the state's water and sewer needs and he said, "$1 billion, give or take 100 or 200 million dollars." He chuckled.

Sometimes Royall doesn't have a sense of humor. He shot back, "We're not in that position, to give or take 100 or 200 million dollars."

Rhodes was followed by Transportation Secretary Jim Harrington who also was asked an estimate and gave a figure, "give or take $1 million."

To which Royall said, "That's better."

You can always tell the politicians who aren't running for re-election. They act differently.

Rhodes was discussing a loan program for local governments when he was asked how the state would respond if a county defaulted.

Before he could respond, Rep. Chris Barker, D-Craven, quipped, "Shut 'em down." Barker, 74, is retiring after nine terms.

Harrington used a word in his address to the Infrastructure committee that no one in the press corps could ever remember hearing uttered before in the legislative halls.

Harrington said, "There is a consensus in North Carolina among the political cognoscenti ..."

According to Webster's Dictionary, cognoscenti are connoisseurs. They're probably experts at big words.

Pennsylvania Gov. Dick Thornburgh, a Republican, got a generous introduction from former Gov. Jim Hunt, a Democrat, when he spoke at N.C. State's Emerging Issues Forum this month.

Thornburgh was so pleased by Hunt's cross-party flattery that he told of the recent GOP fund-raiser he attended in the hinterlands of his own state.

According to Thornburgh, his introducer that night said, "I'm sure you all want to hear the dope from the Capital, so here's the governor."

ONE MORE LESSON HE'S HAD TO LEARN!

—Rowland Evans & Robert Novak—

Marcos Carries On

NAGA CITY, Philippines — The presence here of President Ferdinand Marcos on the campaign stump, delivering marathon speeches and abandoning his most notorious cronies, suggests that for better or for worse he probably will be running the Philippines into the foreseeable future.

Haranguing a crowd of 60,000 in this Southern Luzon opposition stronghold for one hour and 25 minutes, the 68-year-old Marcos scarcely looked like the Manila-bound invalid supposed in Washington. He went on to Legaspi to deliver another stemwinder to about 40,000, this one lasting over one hour.

In between speeches, Marcos confirmed to reporters at the Naga airport what he had told us in a television interview the previous night: He planned to replace his kinsman and political ally, Gen. Fabian Ver, as armed forces chief of staff before the Feb. 7 election. Nothing has so focused international disdain as the acquittal and reinstatement of Ver, accused of masterminding the 1983 assassination of opposition leader Benigno Aquino.

Taken together, Marcos' presence on the stump and his willingness to jettison Ver depict a campaign moving in high gear. The prospect is declining that Aquino's widow, Corazon, can end Marcos' 20 years of power, much of it under dictatorial martial law.

"It would take a miracle," one anti-Marcos businessman sadly confessed to us, claiming that vote-buying and vote-theft, if needed, will ensure his win. But more objective Western diplomats believe the president's superb political machine is enough to win honestly. Marcos concluded his Legaspi speech with a laundry list of goodies — local grants, electric cut rates, promotion of local officials, land distribution — that would make an American ward heeler blush.

What's more, while neophyte Cory Aquino has stumbled onto the defensive by fecklessly raising the issues of communists in the government and Moslem secession, Marcos has worked at disarming his critics at home and abroad. He showed that in an exclusive interview with us at the Malacanang Palace in Manila.

The president was primed to tell us he was following recommendations of U.S. critics: to name two opposition members to the electoral commission and to put the national constabulary (under command of an American favorite, Lt. Gen. Fidel Ramos) instead of the army in charge of policing the election.

Most significant was abandoning Ver, the prerequisite for military reform. He had privately informed U.S. diplomats that the general would go, but until our interview would not say so publicly. With Marcos seemingly reluctant to drop his old friend, it took three questions to get his public confirmation. When word of the taped interview quickly leaked out of the palace, reporters cornered Marcos the next day. Again grudgingly, he said Ver would go.

This was not the athletic Ferdinand Marcos we had interviewed in 1970, 1974 or even 1982. But neither was he the alleged terminally ill invalid who for much of 1984 delegated all powers to his wife, Imelda, and who has been described in Washington official circles as languishing at the Malacanang while Mrs. Aquino scoured the countryside.

In fact, his day-long excursion into Southern Luzon island began four non-stop days of campaigning.

—Elisha Douglas—

Strength For Today

The evangelist Stanley Jones once said that the morning after he was converted he walked out into the world and thought that he had never looked upon its beauties before.

All nature was atingle with joy and beauty. For the first time he knew that the earth was his. He had inherited it.

In Isaiah 55 the promise is made, "Ye shall go out with joy, and be led forth into peace: the mountains and the hills shall break forth before you in singing; and all the trees of the field shall clap their hands."

Religious joy is a very real thing for those who experience it. Some people never know anything about it throughout the whole of their lives. What is that perverse impulse within us which makes us perfectly content to live within the circle of a few narrow interests, when the vast universe of God beckons us with eager hands?

Public Forum

To the editor:
NCAA rules wishing to make eligibility compulsory or eliminate participants, now being considered at New Orleans meetings, have run into enormous opposition.

My personal contention, and few people could know less about the subject, is that the first real consideration should be to open avenues of paying these college and university athletes because we all know this is money, money and more money for these institutions and coaches and their assistants. Second: consider that a good athlete spends so much time in preparation and interest in competitive association that his studies do come second. He or she is expected to go to classes refreshed and prepared, something few attain. They sit with their bruises and pains and without the time needed to do both jobs properly.

I believe the athletic and scholastic departments should be separate. If a good player is a slow learner, give him the basics and certify him accordingly. For anyone with the plans or desires, let them excel in scholastics. Give them certification for their accomplishments, but don't expect everyone to fit into a molded medium for the sake of routine.

To homogenize individuals is like trying to homogenize the sea or forest. Satisfy both parties. To each his own. Cut the mustard. Chip the pot and let the professors handle those inclined scholastically, but don't refuse the same help for the athlete who excels in his area. Why penalize one for the other?

Last, but most important, everything must be properly financed or it fails. The entertainment world, and that includes all athletics, must take care of those who take the knocks, bumps and bruises or this, too, can be gone with the wind.

To the editor:
It has been said that "all the world's a stage," which is quite true here where our local educational establishment is giving quite a show.

On stage right, we see dozens of hopeful children waiting for the bus to Williamsburg which may never come. ... Meanwhile, on stage left assorted Pitt County school board members, Concerned Citizens and their lawyers are assembling for the trip to New Bern for a judicial duel and other entertainments. You can be sure that they will not miss their bus, and that their brief trip to New Bern will cost a great deal more than the fifth grade trip to Williamsburg.

From all I read of the current dispute between the board and the Concerned Citizens, money spent to send the kids to Williamsburg would be a much better bargain than that spent on lawyers at New Bern. As the fifth graders will one day learn, there are folks in and out of the educational system who enjoy using the system as part of a big adult game rather than in dedication to serving the kids. Unfortunately, the money they play with, and their games take lots of it, does not come from the Board of Education. It comes from the pockets of all Pitt County citizens, and in the long run, from the pockets of the kids the system should be serving.

From all that has been reported, this citizen is unable to discern that education in Pitt County is going to be helped, or hurt, no matter which way the dispute between the board and the Concerned Citizens is resolved. Furthermore, it is also common knowledge that Pitt County provides all of its citizens with one of the best educational systems in the state of North Carolina. Alas, none of that is important in the end, when fantasies are being played out. Maybe we would all be a lot better off if the Concerned Citizens and the board (without their attorneys) went to Williamsburg and learned again what it's all about. And they might just use their lawyer money to take along a bunch of kids who are suffering from a real unfairness of our education system.

To the editor:
Last week we went shopping in Greenville's attractive enclosed malls. The odor in most of the clothing areas in the stores was not attractive, however, and caused this writer to wonder whether the ventilation systems were working properly. Finally my previously clear nose stopped up so completely I had to leave the clothing areas of the mall so I could breathe — my shopping incomplete.

After I returned home I called the 800 number of the Environmental Protection Agency and asked what it could be that was causing such an allergic reaction. The person I talked with there said that some clothing manufacturers are spraying materials with insecticides to keep them free from rodents and insects.

We hear a lot about how leaded gas is poisoning the atmosphere and how tobacco smoke can give you everything bad, but what of the noxious odor coming from clothes, especially when ventilation seems inadequate? Those poor sales people!

I am told the environmentalists can test the air for pollutants if the owners of the malls request it. The question is, do the owners care?

Zoning Board Will Study Park Proposal

By KIM A. SMITH
The Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission Tuesday approved a schedule to review and evaluate a proposal to create an East Carolina Medical Park, a process which will result in specific recommendations to the City Council.

The proposal, developed by the Medical Arts Land Use Study Committee, calls for a medical park covering 5,300 acres between N.C.43 and U.S. 264 west of Greenville.

In a series of meetings, the commission will review zoning districts, land development regulations, street development, and utilities service in the proposed medical park. Future expansion of the area and creation of a non-profit corporation to administer the medical park will also be discussed.

A motion by Commissioner Willie Pate to invite the County Commissioners to send representatives to the review meetings was unanimously approved by the planning and zoning board. A portion of the land for the proposed site of the medical park is located in the county.

"We can't ignore the county and the part they play in this," Pate said. "We need to get them involved on the ground floor."

The meetings will be held in the Greenville Utilities Commission Board Room on these dates: Feb. 5 from 11:30 to 2:00 p.m.; Feb. 26 from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m., and March 12 from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m.

After the commission has completed its review of the proposal, additional meetings will be scheduled to formulate specific recommendations to the City Council, City Planning Director Bobby Roberson said. A public hearing will then be held on these recommendations.

Chairman Ric Miller said the commission will face "some tough questions" in formulating the recommendations to the City Council, adding that some of them could affect the market price of homes in the area.

In other business, the commission recommended approval of a request by J.T. Williams to rezone a 2.4 acre tract on East Fifth Street from commercial shopping (CS) to high-density multifamily (R-6). There are 24 mobile homes on this land which are not permitted under the current CS zoning designation.

The commission also recommended approval of a request by Derek P. Dunn to rezone a 17,165 square-foot lot located on Westhaven Drive from commercial highway (CH) to single-family (R-9S) use.

The commission also recommended approval Tuesday of the following requests:

•A revision of a preliminary plat of the Dalton T. Jones Subdivision, located west of NCSR 1590, south of NCSR 1529 and across from the Agri-Supply Co. The plat involves three lots on a 59-acre tract.

•A revision of a preliminary plat of University Medical Park, located at the southeast corner of Stantonsburg Road and NCSR 1203. The plat involves 58 lots on an 85-acre tract.

•A preliminary plat of Willoughby Park, located on the west side of Evans Street Extension, south of Sara Lane. The plat involves three lots on a 23-acre tract.

•A preliminary plat for group housing approval of Willoughby Park, Tract 1, located in the west side of the Evans Street Extension, south of Sara Lane. The plat involves 48 units on a three acre tract.

•A request by David A. Evans to annex three acres located in the Winterville Township, south of property owned by William H. Clark, Phillip E. Carroll, James M. Williamson, west of Arlington Boulevard and south of property owned by David A. Evans, River Hills Inc., and North State Savings and Loan. This annexation would be non-revenue producing and would allow the city to assume responsibility for maintenance of an access road into city neighborhoods in the area.

All recommendations made by the Planning and Zoning Commission now go the City Council for consideration.

Company and an additional $8,650 to be paid to Southern Piping Company.

Approval was given for the renting of a warehouse for storage of building materials at a cost of $730 per month. This will be temporary storage until a new storage facility is completed across Moye Boulevard from the hospital.

Ralph Hall, PCMH vice president for facilities, was given the go-ahead to negotiate with ECU for the purchase of an uninterruptible power supply system for the computer system being installed by the hospital. If these negotiations are not satisfactory, he will be authorized to purchase a similar new power supply from J.G. Blackmon Associates at a cost of $80,383.

five committee to the purchase of two CT scanners and the trade-in of one several years old. The new ones produce much better resolved images and the two together will cost about $1,400,000, the members were told. The old one will bring about $200,000 on trade-in, money that will be shared with the medical school which originally provided the first CT scanner for the hospital.

The certificate of need application for another catheterization lab is underway, members were told. Equipment to be used must be identified before the planning of the facility can be completed.

It was reported that consideration is being given to whether chiefs of staff should be paid for their services to the hospital.

Approval was given for two change orders for the construction of the minimum care unit of the hospital now under way — an additional $20,797 to be paid to W.M. Wiggins

Democrats Expand Primary Field; Sowers Endorses Broyhill

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — A member of former Gov. Bob Scott's Cabinet who says the Democratic Party leadership has abandoned its conservative members has endorsed U.S. Rep. Jim Broyhill, R-N.C., for the U.S. Senate.

Roy Sowers Jr., who ran for lieutenant governor as a Democrat in 1972 and lost to Jim Hunt, who later served two terms as governor, recently joined the Republican Party.

"It no longer represents the true beliefs, desires and hopes of our state and nation," Sowers said Tuesday in a news conference at state GOP headquarters.

Also Tuesday, Democrats announced bids for seats in the 3rd and 4th congressional districts, while a former Democratic congressman vowed to try to recapture the seat he lost two years ago.

Kirsten A. Nyrop announced her candidacy for the Democratic nomination to challenge 4th District Republican Rep. Bill Cobey. Nurham O. Warwick became the fourth Democrat in the race to succeed retiring Rep. Charlie Whitley in the 3rd District.

Former Democratic Rep. James M. Clarke said Tuesday he would try to turn the tables on Republican Rep. Bill Hendon, who unseated Clarke in 1984. Two years earlier, Clarke knocked off Hendon, who won his first term in 1980.

Sowers, 58, was appointed secretary of the Department of Natural and Economic Resources, now the Department of Natural Resources and Community Development, by Scott in 1971. Sowers held the post one year.

Once a political ally of former Gov. Terry Sanford, who is seeking the Democratic nomination for U.S. Senate, Sowers said he considered Broyhill the best candidate to succeed retiring Sen. John East, and called Broyhill "a great conservative in the true mold of North Carolina."

Sowers said he had been disenchanted with the Democratic Party's direction for some time, but switched his affiliation this year so he could work for Broyhill in the GOP primary. Broyhill is opposed by David Funderburk, former U.S. ambassador to Romania.

Funderburk is supported by the National Congressional Club, the political organization allied with Republican Sen. Jesse Helms. Sowers said he was a strong Helms backer, but did not know enough about Funderburk to support him.

Doug Haynes, a spokesman for the Broyhill campaign, said, "We are glad to get any Democrats to switch and decide that they want to support Congressman Broyhill. It shows that he is appealing to a broad base of voters in North Carolina."

Clarke, 68, formally entered the 11th District race with a criticism of Hendon for voting against the Democratic-backed House tax reform package and for failing to gather support from Republican colleagues to restrict textile imports.

"Our congressman has made a lot of noise and a lot of bombast, but he really hasn't gotten any legislation through, which you are well aware of," Clarke said at a news conference in Asheville.

Warwick, 45, secretary of the state Democratic Party, promised to make agriculture the centerpiece of his campaign platform.

"I am not afraid to tell the Republican administration that its national agricultural program reeks with a dead fish aroma," said Warwick, an official with the state Department of Public Instruction.

Other Democrats who have filed for the 3rd District seat include state Rep. H. Martin Lancaster of Goldsboro, Walter P. Henderson of Trenton, and Lewis Renn, Whitley's administrative assistant in Washington.

State Rep. Gerald Hurst, Onslow, is the only Republican to have filed for the seat.

Ms. Nyrop, former executive director of the North Carolina Technological Development Authority, said she was the 4th District Democratic candidate best able to represent a clear alternative to the GOP's economic program.

"The greatest need of this country, and the best opportunity for the Democratic Party, is to provide leadership and new approaches to strengthening the economy and creating new jobs," Ms. Nyrop of Hillsborough said.

Former state Democratic chairman David Price also is seeking the Democratic nomination for Cobey's seat. State Sen. Wilma Woodard, D-Wake, and Raleigh attorney Woody Webb have also said they will enter the primary.

FRUSTRATED — Iowa farmer Tim Kinklage sits in the commander center of his "Reaganomics Machine," a device he put together in a day's time to express his frustration over the state of agriculture today. He says

each item in the device represents some form of government policy or bureaucracy, including a pair of rose-colored glasses. (AP Laserphoto)

'Reaganomics' In Action

AVOCA, Iowa (AP) — If art reflects life, then a farmer's "Reaganomics Machine" reflects his frustration with the current state of agriculture.

Tim Dinklage, who farms 750 rented acres near Avoca, said the depressed farm economy and his inability to harvest corn through a wet fall pushed him to a personal protest of government bureaucracy.

Dinklage, who said he is a Republican and voted for President Reagan, recently combined pieces of farm equipment that reminded him of various government programs into one symbolic sculpture.

He said Tuesday that the contraption, which he built in a day, was dubbed the "Reaganomics Machine" because Reagan "is the ultimate person in charge" of what goes on in government.

Dinklage said the machine contains:

- An engine that "hasn't done much lately. ... It seems to work only around election time."

- A social program cutter that used to cut hay. "That's there out front where Reagan can keep an eye on it," he said.

- Rose-colored glasses to help the farmer view agriculture the same manner government reports do.

- A bureaucratic wheel on the lower left: "Nobody knows what it does."

- An auger, serving as worker's tax collection system that "scoops the money right up out of their pockets."

- A corporate tax-collection device, actually the chain portion of a portable grain elevator. "Notice there are plenty of loopholes here," he said.

- A Pentagon program vessel in the form of a black barrel. "You can see there is no bottom to that," Dinklage said.

- A corporate aid device consisting of a tank with bucket attached, because aid "comes out by the bucketful."

- A small-business aid device consisting of a knife over a chopping block, which Dinklage said symbolizes the cutting off of small banks and businesses in financial trouble.

- An agriculture device: the tines of a manure spreader. "That's us way back behind and just twirling in the breeze," the farmer said.

Anti-Smut Trial Ends In Acquittal

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — In the first trial under North Carolina's new anti-pornography law, a jury that found a Wilmington man innocent of selling an obscene video tape apparently had trouble with the law's tests of obscenity, a prosecutor says.

A New Hanover County Superior Court jury deliberated for about two hours Tuesday before acquitting William Ivan Jackson, 33. Jurors had spent much of Monday watching the tape "Battle of the Stars, Round Two, East vs. West." The film showed an Oriental woman and a white woman competing for the title of "hottest star" by engaging in a variety of sexual acts.

One of Jackson's attorneys, Robert Whitley of Kinston, said the verdict has statewide significance "only if the state looks at it as some kind of mandate."

But Assistant District Attorney John Smith said a conviction would have had a "tremendous impact" because the case against Jackson was "the weakest of all cases."

"You had an employee, not a proprietor, with a single, isolated sale of a film that did not show any bondage or torture or truly disgusting sexual perversions," Smith said.

Under a law enacted in 1974, there were no successful criminal prosecutions on obscenity charges.

Leaf Referendum Delay Is Sought

By The Associated Press

Tobacco state lawmakers were prepared this week to attempt Senate passage of a bill to postpone next week's referendum in which flue-cured growers are to decide whether to retain the federal tobacco program for the next three years.

Meanwhile, leaders said they would push the budget deficit-reduction legislation that contains the permanent changes in the tobacco program.

"We're going to try to move it," Sen. Pete Domenici, chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, told reporters.

Aides to Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., circulated a bill Tuesday to postpone the grower referendum to give Congress time to deal with the permanent legislation in the reconciliation bill. Under the stopgap bill, the vote would be held no later than March 15 unless superseded by the permanent legislation.

Agriculture Department officials plan to mail out ballots for the three-year referendum Friday, and the votes are to be counted between Jan. 27 and Jan. 30. Two-thirds of the voters must vote in favor of the program of price guarantees and production controls to continue it.

George Dunlop, chief agricultural aide to Helms, said Monday he was not optimistic that the bill to delay the referendum could be passed and signed into law before Friday, when the ballots are mailed.

Conviction Overturned

RALEIGH (AP) — The N.C. Court of Appeals has overturned the second-degree murder conviction of an ex-Fort Bragg soldier who says evidence at his trial wasn't sufficient to convict him in the bludgeoning death of a Belk-Tyler department store executive.

"After considering all of the evidence in the light most favorable to the state and giving to the state the benefit of every inference reasonably deductible from the evidence, we hold that the evidence ... is hardly sufficient to raise even a suspicion that the defendant killed Luther Bailey," the North Carolina Court of Appeals said in its ruling Tuesday.

In a unanimous decision, the court said there was no evidence that Bailey and Richard Dale Johnson knew each other or had ever met. They also said evidence taken from the Fayetteville motel room where Bailey's nude body was found, including hair and blood samples, did not tie Johnson to the scene.

The court also said police had apparently made no effort to trace Bailey's movements the day of his 1983 death, and had not investigated whether Johnson showed any injuries from a struggle around the time of Bailey's death.

The court said that "the record before us is remarkable for what it fails to show rather than what it discloses."

Today, teacher Christa McAuliffe is scheduled to become the first private U.S. citizen to fly with a space shuttle crew. The Soviets, however, set the precedent for space travel by amateurs. Valentina Tereshkova, a Soviet textile worker, wrote to authorities asking if a woman could participate in the space program. Even though she lacked proper education, she was selected for cosmonaut training. In June of 1963, she became the first woman to orbit the Earth.

Textiles See More White-Collar Jobs

By TOM MINEHART
AP Business Writer

CHARLOTTE (AP) — While the number of textile and apparel production workers continues to fall in North Carolina, the number of managerial employees is rising as the industry modernizes to meet the import challenge, officials say.

"Professionals, technicians, officers — without a doubt, those things have gone up," said Greg Sampson, research director for the state Employment Security Commission. "Textiles have modernized very dramatically in the last decade, and the effect of most of that has been to create higher wage jobs in general."

While exact figures on the number of textile managers in the state were not available, Sampson said the total number of textile workers in the state declined by about 7,500 during the year ending Nov. 30. Production workers accounted for about 7,300 of these and lower-level non-production workers, such as clerks, middle managers and sales and service employees, accounted for most of the rest.

Sampson said the total textile job loss would have been much greater if white-collar positions had not increased.

The North Carolina apparel industry had a net loss of 1,300 jobs for the same period with a loss of 2,100 production workers, indicating a gain of non-production workers, he said.

Nationwide, the number of managerial professional and technical employees increased by 33 percent in the textile industry and 59 percent in the apparel industry over the past 35 years, according to the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Some 105 of the 112 members of the 1984-85 graduating class of the North Carolina State University School of Textiles had found jobs by Aug. 1 because of this climate, said Dean Dame S. Hamby.

"We continue to set salary records every year," he said. Starting textile chemists averaged almost $25,000 and the school's average starting salary was about $23,000, he said.

Some of the graduates found jobs outside the textile industry. For example, General Motors employed 15 graduates, school officials said.

Charles Dunn, executive vice president of the North Carolina Textile Manufacturers Association, said the growing demand for managers is part of the industry's trend to more capital-intensive, technical operations.

"I could see with proper research and development that we could have a new textile industry that would encompass part of what we have now and also things to be developed," he said. "If we can balance the trade situation, share in market growth, create new products, uses and new products, then we can see some expansion. ... That's going to depend on the young people coming into the industry now."

But Sampson said the streamlining has also involved cutting out much of textiles' middle management.

Hunger Fight

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Federal budget cuts mean volunteers in the fight against hunger must move beyond charity to political action, speakers at a regional conference on hunger said.

"All the volunteer energy is going into a system that can provide maybe a bag of groceries in an emergency," Nancy Amidei told about 125 pastors and lay leaders at Providence Baptist Church on Tuesday. "Nobody is putting any energy into a system that can help with long-term needs."

Ms. Amidei, former director of the national Food Research and Action Center and now a commentator on National Public Radio, was part of the two-day conference on hunger concerns sponsored by the Christian Life Commission of the Southern Baptist Convention.

Doctor's Appeal

ASHEVILLE (AP) — Dr. George Guess has won permission from Wake County Superior Court to continue practicing homeopathy, an unorthodox form of medicine, while he appeals the state's efforts to revoke his medical license.

Guess is appealing a decision issued last week by the N.C. Board of Medical Examiners that would, if unchallenged, revoke the Asheville doctor's medical license for unprofessional conduct.

In practicing homeopathy, Guess dispenses remedies made from plant, animal and mineral substances such as club moss, bloodroot and rattlesnake venom.

Guess, 38, won a stay of the board's revocation order, meaning he can continue practicing homeopathy during the first phase of his appeal.

Mack Trucks

FAYETTEVILLE (AP) — The nation's second-largest truck manufacturer, Mack Trucks Inc., will decide in a couple of weeks whether to locate its new corporate headquarters in Fayetteville, city officials say.

A proposed $80 million assembly plant would bring up to 1,500 jobs and produce about 70 trucks a day, company officials said. The plant would be located in Cumberland Industrial Center, an industrial park off Interstate 95 south of Fayetteville Municipal Airport.

Patty Lee, executive director of the Fayetteville Area Chamber of Commerce's Economic Development Division, said the state has committed at least $1 million to build three access roads for the industrial park, and those funds are dependent on the company locating in the park.

EPA Study

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency plans to make a comprehensive study of the 5-year-old contamination of groundwater at the Sodyeco Inc. textile dye plant near Charlotte, officials say.

The site is one of three federally designated "superfund" cleanup sites in North Carolina.

The study will evaluate chemical contamination, the risk it poses and recommend cleanup strategies. The 300-foot-wide area of groundwater contamination, which appears to be moving about 70 feet a year, is still within the 1,000-acre site that adjoins the Catawba River.

Raeform Fire

RAEFORD, N.C. (AP) — About 50 Hoke County firefighters Tuesday battled a pre-dawn fire in downtown Raeform that gutted a hardware store.

The cause of the fire, reported at 2:20 a.m., was unknown, but Raeform Fire Chief Crawford Thomas said he believed it began inside a food store and spread to the adjoining McLauchlin Hardware & Lock Co.

"When we got here, it was burning in the back," Crawford said. "We thought we had it out but then it burst through the roof all of a sudden."

Crawford said the upstairs storage area of the hardware store held paint and other supplies which caught fire and burned through the roof.

Officer Wounded

WINTON-SALEM (AP) — A North Wilkesboro police officer wounded in a weekend shootout was listed in serious condition Tuesday night after undergoing surgery at Baptist Hospital in Winston-Salem.

Sgt. Dennis L. Johnson, 27, was wounded Sunday night in the left thigh by a shotgun blast fired by a man who apparently had just robbed a grocery store on N.C. 115 near North Wilkesboro, Wilkes County Sheriff Kyle Gentry said Tuesday.

Gentry said the assailant, Bradley E. Johnson, 26, of Moravian Falls, was killed when the off-duty officer and his companion, Ralph Johnson of North Wilkesboro, fired back at him.

Israel Volunteers To Refund Part Of Aid Package To Lower Deficit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Israel said it will refund $51.6 million in U.S. economic assistance to help the United States meet deficit-reduction targets, heading off the possibility other U.S. aid recipients will have to pay more than their fair share.

In what one State Department official described as "good public relations," Israeli Embassy economics minister Dan Halpern said Tuesday his government was making the refund in order to be helpful, even though it felt no legal obligation to do so.

Prime Minister Shimon Peres agreed to a voluntary refund after U.S. ambassador to Israel, Thomas Pickering, made a personal appeal during a flight from Tel Aviv to the Hague, Netherlands, where Peres was holding a series of meetings, said the State Department official, speaking on condition he not be identified.

Under the new Gramm-Rudman budget cutting law, the Reagan administration is required to trim 4.3 percent from most non-military programs for fiscal year 1986, including the $3.7 billion foreign economic aid fund.

Because of a quirk in the law, however, Israel already has received its $1.2 billion slice of aid, while other countries are faced with cuts because their aid is still being disbursed.

If the United States had decided to take Israel's $51.6 million share from other nations in order to balance the books, those countries would be losing 6.3 percent rather than 4.3 percent of their aid allotments.

"Basically, the government of Israel said if we can be helpful, we will, even though we don't owe it legally," Halpern said. The method of repayment is still to be worked out, he added.

Officially, the State Department was noncommittal, issuing a statement that "we have previously noted our expectation that budget cuts mandated by Gramm-Rudman will be shared across the board."

A U.S. foreign aid expert said, however, that the Israeli move solves "an interesting dilemma" for the United States.

The Israeli concession also may avoid any potential U.S. problems with Egypt on the aid issue. Since 1979, when Egypt became the first Arab country to sign a peace treaty with Israel, Congress has called for an even-handed approach to both Cairo and Tel Aviv.

Egypt's $815 million in 1986 economic assistance will now be cut about $34 million. Had it been forced to absorb part of the Israeli share, Egypt would have lost $51 million.

Although it hasn't been decided yet, Israel's refund could be taken from a supplementary assistance package of $750 million that also was deemed untouchable by both governments; or, Israel could simply hand over a check.

Ironically, much of the economic aid sent to Israel ends up in U.S. hands anyway. Israel owes the United States more than $10 billion for weapons purchases and the annual economic assistance is only slightly more than the annual interest payments on the borrowing.

Solon Says Marcos Owns U.S. Property

WASHINGTON (AP) — A New York congressman says he has evidence that Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos and his wife, Imelda, have secretly bought hundreds of millions dollars of American real estate as a hedge against possible defeat in the country's upcoming election.

Rep. Stephen Solarz, D-N.Y., chairman of an Asian and Pacific affairs subcommittee, presented documents Tuesday stating that a personal secretary of Mrs. Marcos paid at least $36,621 in taxes on a $19 million Long Island estate during the last two years.

One Republican, Rep. Toby Roth of Wisconsin, accused Solarz at a subcommittee hearing of backing his case with flimsy "circumstantial evidence" and of trying to unfairly influence the outcome of the Feb. 7 election.

Roth, who was outvoted in attempts to postpone or block the hearings, called them variously a "wild goose chase," a "kangaroo court," and an attempt by Solarz to influence the Philippine election by giving Marcos' opponents "a chance to throw a few mud balls."

Solarz said the investigation was launched well before Marcos scheduled the election and postponement might have led to accusations "that we were engaging in a cover-up of massive corruption in the Philippines."

"This is not an attempt to interfere in the elections," Solarz said. "The purpose of these hearings is to inform the Congress and the American people as to whether hundreds of millions of dollars have been invested in this country."

Stopping short of accusing the Marcos family of violating U.S. laws, Solarz contended that while the economy of the Philippines has crumbled and a communist insurgency has intensified, "Ferdinand and Imelda Marcos have secretly led a headlong, multibillion dollar flight of capital out of their country."

Solarz focused on what he said was Mrs. Marcos' ownership of a Long Island estate called Lindenmere through personal representatives and an offshore holding company, Ancor Holding, based in the Netherlands Antilles. The estate is near Center Moriches.

One document provided during the 3 1/2-hour hearing showed two tax payments on Lindenmere totaling $36,621.57, which were made to the treasurer of Suffolk County, N.Y., during 1984 and 1985.

The tax records state that the payments were made by Vilma Bautista, who was identified in testimony as a secretary at the Philippines mission to the United Nations. She was also said to serve as personal secretary to Mrs. Marcos when the Philippine first lady travels in the United States.

Three Convicted In Gandhi Murder

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — A judge today convicted a Sikh bodyguard of assassinating Prime Minister Indira Gandhi in October 1984 and found two co-defendants guilty of conspiracy to commit murder. He sentenced all three men to death.

"The present case is one of the rarest of the rare. The extreme penalty of death is called for," said Judge Mahesh Chandra of the Special Sessions Court, who heard the eight-month trial without a jury.

He said prosecutors had proved beyond a reasonable doubt that Satwant Singh, a bodyguard of Mrs. Gandhi, shot her to death as she walked in her compound garden on Oct. 31, 1984, and that Kehar Singh and Balbir Singh were involved with him in a conspiracy.

Besides the murder conviction, Satwant Singh was found guilty of conspiracy, illegal use of firearms and wounding a policeman at the scene.

All three are members of the Sikh religious minority, which makes up about 2 percent of India's population of 750 million. Their surname, Singh, means "lion" and is given to all male Sikh children.

But the chief defense lawyer, Pran

Nath Lekhi, called the trial a farce with "no parallel in Indian judicial history" and said he would file an appeal within seven days.

"The judge is bent on raping the law. ... No neck is safe in India the way this trial was conducted," Lekhi told reporters. He demanded a copy of the judgment and walked out of the courtroom.

DOE Will Submit Students' Names

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Department of Education will give the Selective Service System computer tapes with the names of 5 million student aid applicants in a move aimed at uncovering young men who have failed to register as potential draftees, officials said today.

William J. Bennett, the secretary of education, and Maj. Gen. Thomas

K. Turnage, director of selective service, announced the agreement at a news conference.

It is the latest step in government efforts to carry out a 1982 law called the Solomon Amendment, which bars student aid from males who fail to register with the Selective Service System.

The draft was abolished in 1973, but following the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan in 1979, the Carter administration and Congress began requiring young men to register at age 18. While their names are kept in a central file, they cannot be conscripted unless Congress passes new legislation reinstating the draft.

The Education Department will share the computer tapes from its Pell Grant program each year with Selective Service. More than 2 million students receive Pell Grants each year and 5 million apply for them through the College Scholarship Service and the American College Testing program.

The Solomon Amendment — named for its sponsor, Rep. Gerald B. Solomon, R-N.Y. — requires male students to register or be denied federal grants and loans. Students must sign a statement that they have complied with the registration law.

Bennett said the new arrangement "will not only protect the federal taxpayer, but also fulfill our obligation to those millions of fine young men who have registered to serve their country if ever needed."

He quoted Theodore Roosevelt as saying "the first requisite of a good citizen in this Republic of ours is that he shall be able and willing to pull his weight."

FCC Says Phone Rate Will Drop

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans who paid the price of confusion over the restructuring of the nation's telephone industry will soon receive the dividend of another drop in the cost of long-distance calling, a federal regulatory official says.

"I think we are over the hump of the costs we have seen from AT&T divestiture" and other government-ordered changes, the chairman of the Federal Communications Commission told reporters Tuesday.

"In June of this year we will be able to order another long-distance reduction on the order of 5 percent," FCC Chairman Mark S. Fowler said.

He predicted still another 17 percent reduction "in the next three to four years."

Since May 1984, long-distance rates have been lowered 12 percent by American Telephone & Telegraph Co., which handles the vast majority of the calls. AT&T's competitors usually reduce their rates every time AT&T does.

In June, residential telephone customers will start paying an additional dollar a month to help pay for the line that runs from their home to the telephone company switching office.

Long-distance companies, which had been absorbing part of that cost, will pass their savings on to consumers in the form of lower charges for out-of-state calls.

Consumer groups have argued that those savings, which amount to only pennies for people who make few long-distance calls, do not make up for the increases in the basic cost of telephone service since the breakup of the Bell System.

But Fowler argued that while those rates are up roughly 13 percent in the last two years, local rates have gone up less than the inflation rate over the last two decades.

"Telephone service is still a bargain," Fowler said.

He said local telephone costs have doubled since 1967, while the costs of all goods and services have more than tripled.

The average cost of local telephone service is $13.10 a month, up 3.1 percent over 1984. The average rate increased 10.4 percent in 1984.

Local rate increases in 1985 were $1.3 billion, a third of the previous year's increases.

Another $1.7 billion in rate increases were being considered by state regulators as 1985 ended, less than half the total requests pending at the end of 1984 and only a quarter of the total pending at the end of 1983.

Worst Dressed

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Princess Stephanie of Monaco topped Mr. Blackwell's list of the worst-dressed women of 1985, but her older sister, Caroline, was named one of the year's best-dressed.

Stephanie's "unisex wardrobe entitles her to use either bathroom," sniffed the fashion designer, who has been composing the lists for 26 years.

Others on the international worst-dressed list, in order, were: actress Joan Collins, rock singers Madonna and Tina Turner; and actresses Michele Lee, Whoopi Goldberg, Cybill Shepherd, Lisa Hartman, Apollonia and Heather Thomas.

Blackwell, whose first name is Richard, also chose actress Lauren Hutton as "Fabulous Woman of the Year" Tuesday.

He named 10 women to his list of "Fabulous Fashion Independence of 1985": first lady Nancy Reagan; Soviet first lady Raisa Gorbachev; Princess Caroline; Princess Diana; and actresses Jaclyn Smith, Meryl Streep, Mary Tyler Moore, Priscilla Presley, Jane Wyman, and Jane Seymour.

The City has revised its noise control laws. For details on noise regulations and permits, call the Police Department at 752-3342.

Government Fines Bank $4.75 Million

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The same day BankAmerica Corp. was hit with a record $4.75 million fine for currency transaction violations, the holding company for the nation's largest bank reported a huge loss and suspended dividends for the first time in 50 years.

"Nobody expected things to be this bad," said Donald Crowley, an analyst with Keefe, Bruyette and Woods in San Francisco.

Even Samuel H. Armacost, BankAmerica's president and chief executive, was forced to admit that "1985 was a year of wrenching change."

The U.S. Treasury Department ordered the fine Tuesday against Bank of America, the nation's largest bank in deposits, for failing to report 17,000 currency transactions, each exceeding $10,000, between 1980 and early 1985.

It was the largest penalty yet in a crackdown on those transactions that has resulted in fines against 11 other banks since June 1985.

While the government did not indicate any criminal activity on BankAmerica's part, it did say the bank's failure to report the transactions could have impeded investigations into "money-laundering" by drug dealers and tax evaders.

The fine, which exceeded the $2.25 million penalty levied against San Francisco-based Crocker Bank last year, was reflected in the parent corporation's 1985 financial results.

BankAmerica, also based here and the nation's second largest bank holding company behind Citicorp of New York, reported a net loss of $337 million, or $2.68 a share, for 1985, compared with earnings of $346 million, or $1.77 a share the year before. The loss was largely the result of loan problems.

It was the company's worst performance ever and the first annual loss since the Depression. It ranks third among the biggest losses in U.S. banking history behind the $1.1 billion by Continental Illinois in 1984 and the $456 million by Seafirst of Seattle in 1983. BankAmerica now owns Seafirst.

The financial results, which caused directors to suspend the February dividend for common stock — the first time since 1933 — included a net loss of $178 million, or $1.27 a share, for the fourth quarter that ended Dec. 31. That loss surprised some people.

"Things are much worse now than anyone had expected," said Brent Erensel, an analyst for Dean Witter Reynolds Inc. in New York.

Analysts had expected the company to show an operating loss, "but probably bottom-line black ink for the fourth quarter," added Crowley.

He said BankAmerica's $180 million pretax profit from the fourth-quarter sale of FinanceAmerica Corp., a financial services subsidiary, was expected to allow it to post a modest profit. But big increases in charge-offs for bad loans and provisions for possible future loan losses overshadowed that.

Loan areas particularly hard hit include California agriculture, real estate, shipping and Latin American countries, Armacost said.

Along with the gain from the sale of FinanceAmerica, the 1985 results include a pretax gain of $310 million from the sale of the company's headquarters building that was reflected in the third quarter.

The day of bad news caused BankAmerica stock to drop three-quarters of a point, closing at $12 a share, a three-year low.

"I'm not sure the stock price will stop," said Erensel.

The fine, although not a large amount of money considering other losses, was more significant as the latest in a string of setbacks for BankAmerica, including layoffs and branch closings, analysts say.

"It's just another embarrassment they didn't need," said Crowley.

Security

MANCHESTER, England (AP) — The check-in counter for Israel's state-run airline, El Al, has been moved to a restricted area at Manchester airport despite objections from the airline, the British government said.

El Al canceled its weekly flight to the northern England city, arguing that the airport's plan to move the check-in to a section of the airport used for high-risk flights to Northern Ireland was a concession to terrorism.

El Al counters were the target of terrorist attacks Dec. 27 at Rome and Vienna airports in which 19 people died.

Expedition Will Attempt To Match Peary's Trip

NEW YORK (AP) — This time in 1909, when explorer Robert Peary planted the American flag at the North Pole, has anyone attempted to duplicate the feat without air or land support — until now.

Seven men and one woman plan to set out across the icecap in early March with 46 dogs, five sleds and 5,000 pounds of gear in hopes of reaching the pole without the benefit of airlifted food or supplies.

"They will carry all that they need, nothing more."

"Traveling over the frozen ocean, we have only about 60 days before the ice melts too much," said expedition leader Will Steger. "They will carry only a 50-day food supply, 'but we can stretch it out if we have to.'"

They hope to prove whether it is possible to reach the pole navigating only with a sextant and the sun, as Peary claimed. Subsequent expeditions have relied upon electronic navigation and extensive airdrops of supplies.

"The only thing up there to tell you that you've made it is the angle of the sun," said co-leader Paul Schurke, 30. "You find the point overhead where the sun cuts a perfect circle in the sky."

When they reach what they believe is the pole, on or about April 20, they will radio the Canadian military, which has agreed to fly over their camp to verify their position, said Steger, 41.

The explorers will be picked up at the pole, and they plan to use the radio only in a life-threatening emergency. Even so, there is no guarantee a camp can land on the rugged terrain beyond the reach of helicopters.

Steger and Schurke, both of Ely, Minn., unveiled their plans Monday at the Explorers Club. Peary served as the club's third president.

The group planned to fly today to Frobisher Bay on Baffin Island, Canada, to set up a base camp and begin six weeks of training. Between March 1-3, they will fly to Resolute on Ward Hunt Island, "the last land in North America." From there is it 500 miles to the pole.

However, the explorers expect to cover twice that many miles because the surface — a thin layer of moving ice over the restless ocean — is so rugged. "It's a boulder field of broken icebergs," Schurke said.

The trip has been timed to coincide with the reappearance of the sun over the horizon, about March 1, when the days will be a mere three hours long at the pole. But within two weeks, there will be 24 hours of daylight.

And with light comes heat that melts the polar cap and causes "leads," or breaks, in the 12-foot-thick ice. Leads can swallow sleds or dogs or people and are considered the most dangerous aspect of the trip.

The dogs are the heart and soul of the operation, especially Zap, an eight-year-old Siberian Husky, who is one-year-old and was raised by Steger from a pup. "He's got 25,000 miles on him," Steger said.

At the halfway point, the group plans to airlift out half of the dogs, he said. "This represents the only acceptable alternative to the traditional practice of sacrificing dogs for food when they are no longer needed."

Steger says it is worth the $15,000 price and notes with pride that the Eskimos of Igloolik, Canada "loaned us some of our best dogs."

The adventure is being underwritten by several sponsors, chiefly DuPont, which supplied the high-tech clothing that must protect the explorers from the minus 50-degree arctic temperatures.

One trait that all good vegetable gardeners have is that they learn from their mistakes. They also learn from past experiences, different planning methods, different varieties and different cultural practices.

Anyone who is a vegetable gardener might do better this year by making a few New Year's gardening resolutions. If these resolutions actually become a set of written plans, then anyone can keep a yardstick of their gardening progress from year to year.

Here are a few ideas that may improve any garden in eastern North Carolina:

- Take a soil sample and follow the recommendations for adding lime especially. Unless the entire garden is low in phosphorus and potash, sidedressed fertilizer (8-8-8 or 10-10-10) will provide sufficient nutrition for the garden.

- Keep the soil pH between 5.6 and 6.4. Soil pH is a relative measure of the acidity of the soil. Most vegetables will grow well in this range.

- Provide adequate water. There is seldom a year that goes by that doesn't require supplemental irrigation. A good gardener knows that water is the cheapest fertilizer.

- Control weeds. Most weeds that plague the summer garden sprout during May and early June. By controlling weeds during these months and while they are small, labor can be reduced. In late summer prevent weeds from going to seed.

- Control pests. Most insects of the garden can be controlled with two chemicals, Sevin and Malathion. Use these and all other chemicals only when necessary.

- Control diseases. The home gardener's best defense against plant disease is through prevention. It is important not to best the same vegetable (or its relatives) in the same spot in the garden for two years in a row. Also, destroy vegetables as soon as they become less productive. This procedure will keep insects, diseases and nematodes from building up to high populations and causing big problems later.

- A written gardening log can help prevent making mistakes twice. Also, it can be a record of weather conditions, disease problems, soils samples information and a host of other things that can help the gardener.

- "There's no substitute for experience," is an old truism. It does help to read about gardening and it may be of help to talk to other people, but the best teaching tool is the actual planting of the garden and tending of it. More and more people each year find gardening to be beneficial to them as a recreational outlet and as a source of high quality fresh produce.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was narrowly mixed in early trading today as the blue chip sector eked out modest advances.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose 0.57 at 1,515.02 by 10:30 a.m. on Wall Street.

Decliners held a lead of about 20 issues over advancers on the New York Stock Exchange. The NYSE composite index edged up 0.05 to 119.00.

Before trading got underway, the government released its latest evaluations of inflation and economic growth last year.

The inflation rate registered 3.8 percent in 1985, the fourth straight year in which inflation at the retail level has been held to 4 percent or less.

The Labor Department also said the Consumer Price Index rose 0.4 percent in December.

Meanwhile, the Commerce Department said that in 1985 the economy didn't grow quite as much as previously thought.

The gross national product, measuring the nation's total output of goods and services, expanded 2.3 percent last year, not 2.4 percent at the department estimated earlier.

The revision reflected a downward revision in the fourth quarter's growth rate.

In the early going, stocks battered in Tuesday's session were among the volume leaders.

Meeting Tonight
The Pitt County Association of Insurance Women will hold its annual meeting tonight at 6:30 at the Ramada Inn and give its major awards. The Insurance Boss of the Year and the Insurance Woman of the Year will be announced.

Walston Sentenced For Insurance Fraud

George Truitt Walston, 34, of Route 7, Greenville, was sentenced to prison after he pleaded guilty in Pitt County Superior Court Tuesday to eight counts of filing false insurance claims.

Judge Napoleon Barefoot of Wilmington sentenced Walston to 12 years in prison — six years active and the remainder suspended on condition Walston be placed on probation for five years and repay insurance companies for the false claims filed — after he entered the guilty pleas to charges that he filed insurance claims for collisions he caused by driving into the paths of other drivers.

An investigation by the N.C. Department of Insurance and the Insurance Crime Prevention Institute of Westport, Conn., an investigative agency representing 420 insurance companies nationwide, implicated Walston in some 30 false claims. District Attorney Tom Haigwood said. But Haigwood said Walston was charged in only eight cases that could be easily prosecuted.

The eight cases in which Walston was charged involved incidents that occurred in the Greenville area from January 1981 to November 1983. Walston received a total of $31,481 by filing false claims.

W.G. O'Neal, an investigator for the Insurance Crime Prevention Institute, testified that Walston would cause other drivers to hit his car by driving into their path, then file claims for damages to his car, personal injury and loss of work.

Saying the investigation showed that 15 of the accidents involved the same car, O'Neal said "our indication was that the car was never repaired. It was used over and over."

"It was a cold, calculated course of conduct that affected a whole lot of people," usually women driving by themselves or elderly people, Haigwood said.

John Smith of Greenville, Walston's attorney, said Walston needed money to help pay his wife's medical bills and said that Walston cooperated with investigators.

League Of Women Voters Conducts Election Forum

Approximately 40 persons attended a public forum held by the Pitt-Greenville League of Women Voters Tuesday night in the First Presbyterian Church. The forum, conducted in panel form, was coordinated by Dr. Patricia Dunn, a faculty member at East Carolina University and chairman of the league's Local Government Study Committee.

The forum was centered on consideration of the proposed intent by the Greenville City Council to adopt a new method of elections for council members and the mayor.

The four spokesmen on the panel were Ron Kimble, finance director of the city of Greenville and three faculty members of the Political Science Department, East Carolina University.

Vaudeville

"Harlem Heyday," a vaudeville show created by AFRI Productions of New York, will be presented in the auditorium of D.H. Conley High School at 7 p.m. Thursday.

The production will be the kickoff event of Pitt Community College's first Cultural Arts Festival for Black History Week.

Admission is by pass only, which may be obtained from the counselor's office at Pitt Community College, room 4, White Building.

University — Drs. Tinsley Yarbrough, Robert Thompson and Dorothy Clayton.

"The focus, the purpose of the forum," Dr. Dunn said, "was to explain and describe the proposed four districts for four members and an at-large vote for two members outlined in a proposed new election system. Attention was also focused on the four districts as drawn by the consultant hired by the city and how the consultant arrived at the boundary lines of the proposed districts."

"The forum was also an opportunity to give people background information on the Voting Rights Act of 1965, which in the case of Greenville involves pre-clearance from the U.S. Justice Department after that body considers what impact an election change might have on the voters."

Guards Lead Tech By Duke

Jumper

ATLANTA (AP) — Fourth-ranked Georgia Tech is beginning to make a favorable impression on Coach Bobby Cremins.

The Yellow Jackets got strong efforts from two injured guards — Bruce Dalrymple and Mark Price — Tuesday night in claiming their 15th victory in a row with an 87-80 decision over second-ranked Duke in an Atlantic Coast Conference basketball game.

"They're really starting to come on and be an outstanding team," Cremins said of his Jackets. He has been claiming his team hasn't been operating smoothly, despite the long winning streak.

"I don't think I've ever had a team to play with so much guts down the wire," Cremins said. "Duke is a great team. It was a great basketball game. I'm worn out. I'm exhausted."

Dalrymple, slowed by a pulled leg muscle, and Price, playing on a sprained ankle, each sat out the two practice sessions before the game with Duke.

Dalrymple responded with a 21-point effort that included four key free throws in the final 35 seconds to help quell a torrid rally. The Blue Devils lopped an 11-point lead with just over three minutes remaining to four points on four occasions in the final 64 seconds.

Duke, which opened with 16 victories in a row, lost its second in succession and fell to 4-2 in the conference. North Carolina trimmed the Blue Devils 95-92 at Chapel Hill last Saturday.

"I probably play worse when I'm well because I don't concentrate as much," Dalrymple said. "I was hurting more this game because I injured myself at Clemson (Saturday)."

The victory lifted Tech to 16-1, matching the best start in school history, a record set by the 1962-63 team. The Jackets also are 5-0 in the ACC and own a half-game lead over top-ranked North Carolina, 4-0. The two teams will meet at Chapel Hill on Saturday in a first-place showdown.

Duke, which opened with 16 victories in a row, lost its second in succession and fell to 4-2 in the conference. North Carolina trimmed the Blue Devils 95-92 at Chapel Hill last Saturday.

"It was another top caliber game," Duke Coach Mike Krzyzewski said. "Dalrymple got the whole thing started, knocking balls free, getting loose balls. If you have to look for a margin of victory, Dalrymple set the tone."

Tech won the game at the free throw line, hitting 27 of 33 in the game and 13 of its last 14 attempts in the final six minutes.

Kansas Hands Oklahoma Its First Loss Of Year

By The Associated Press
The score should have been more lopsided, but Kansas Coach Larry Brown was satisfied that his seventh-ranked Jayhawks had affixed the first blemish of the season to Oklahoma's record.

Sophomore Danny Manning spearheaded an early second-half run as Kansas built a 15-point lead that soon evaporated under Oklahoma pressure. Then, Mark Turgeon and Cedric Hunter combined on a quick four points that boosted Kansas to a 98-92 victory over the fifth-ranked Sooners in a Big Eight Conference game in Lawrence, Kan., on Tuesday night.

That left only top-ranked North Carolina and No. 3 Memphis State unbeaten among the nation's Division I schools.

"When we have a 15-point lead, we should win by 25," Brown said. "We wanted to use the clock with about four minutes to go, but they took advantage of our inexperienced kids."

"We played some great ball to get the leads, though," Brown said.

In other Top Twenty games, it was No. 4 Georgia Tech 87, No. 2 Duke 80, and No. 18 Alabama-Birmingham 76, Jacksonville 67.

Manning scored eight points in an 11-2 run that gave Kansas a 65-51 lead with 12:39 left in the game, capping the burst with a fastbreak dunk, and the Jayhawks built the margin to 70-55 with about 10 minutes to play. Darryl Kennedy's basket for Oklahoma with 44 seconds left cut the lead to 94-92 before two free throws by Turgeon and a slam dunk by Hunter put Kansas in control.

In consolation, Sooners Coach Billy Tubbs said he liked the "hustle and desire" his club showed, adding, "We learned a lot tonight."

Manning led the Jayhawks, 17-2 and 3-0 in the conference, with 24 points, while junior center David Johnson scored 21 of his 26 points in the second half for Oklahoma, 17-1 and 2-1.

Top Twenty

No. 4 Georgia Tech 87, No. 2 Duke 80
Bruce Dalrymple scored four of his 21 points from the foul line in the final 35 seconds to help boost Georgia Tech over Duke in an Atlantic Coast Conference game. The loss was the second straight for Duke, which fell 95-92 to top-ranked North Carolina on Saturday.

Duke cut an 11-point disadvantage to four points four times in the final 1:04 before Tech went to the free-throw line. Mark Price led the Yellow Jackets with 25 points, while Mark Alarie had 26 for Duke. Georgia Tech was 5-0 in the ACC and 16-1 overall after winning its 15th straight, while Duke fell to 16-2 and 4-2.

No. 18 Ala.-Birmingham 76, Jacksonville 67

Steve Mitchell scored 22 points as Alabama-Birmingham broke a two-game losing streak with a 75-67 Sun Belt Conference victory over Jacksonville. UAB, 17-4 and 5-1 in the conference, led 39-27 at halftime but had to hold off a second-half Jacksonville rally that saw the Dolphins pull to within 60-57, with five minutes left. Jacksonville led 17-8 before UAB went on a 25-4 tear to end the first half.

Unranked

Missouri overcame a 32-26 halftime deficit with Derrick Chievous scoring 17 of his 23 points in the second half, and the Tigers went on to beat Kansas State 74-70 in a Big Eight Conference game. Missouri, 16-5 and 3-1 in the conference, built a 72-64 lead with 1:34 left on baskets by Chievous and Jeff Strong.

In another Big Eight game, Jeff Grayer scored 23 points to lead Iowa State over Colorado 90-62. The victory was Iowa State's 12th straight at home, a school record.

ECU To Host CAA Baseball

East Carolina University will be the host team for the first Colonial Athletic Association baseball tournament, to be held at Harrington Field, May 15-18, it was announced this morning.

The Pirates hosted the ECAC-South Tournament last year for the first time, but it included two teams from outside the group of teams which now form the CAA. George Mason, a current CAA member won the tournament, while Iona finished second and East Carolina — the regular season champ — finished third.

The tournament will begin on Thursday, May 15 and continue, if necessary, through Sunday to decide the champion. The winner will advance to the NCAA Regionals. No format, other than the fact that it will be a double elimination event, has been set.

Coach Gary Overton, beginning his second year at the helm of the Pirates, said the anticipated field for the tourney would be the top four finishers in the CAA, with the number one team meeting number four, and two taking on three in the first round of play.

East Carolina won the ECAC-South tournaments in 1982 and 1984 to advance to the NCAA.

Patriots Consider Recall Of Sims

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The New England Patriots, hoping to improve their pass rush against reckless Chicago quarterback Jim McMahon, say they could activate defensive end Kenneth Sims before Sunday's Super Bowl.

Team physician Bertram Zarins said Tuesday Sims would run this week with a plastic brace on his lower left leg, which he fractured Dec. 1 in a game against the Indianapolis Colts.

Sims, the Patriots' best defensive lineman, was placed on injured reserve for the last three regular-season games and all three playoff contests.

"The bone is healed well enough for normal walking," Zarins said Tuesday. "It's just borderline enough to allow full running on it."

He added that he expected that Sims' leg would get stronger each day before the Super Bowl against the Bears but that "it's going to be a real close call whether he's strong enough and can run well enough."

"We're racing against the clock," Zarins said Sims would try to run this week while wearing the brace, similar to a shin guard, on the outside of his left leg.

"Today he's starting fast walking with the device and maybe some jogging," said New England trainer Ron O'Neil.

Reached at his Boston office, Zarins said he would arrive here Thursday and confer with Sims and O'Neil.

If Sims improves enough this week, "it becomes a coaching decision as well as a medical decision" on whether he will be activated, O'Neil said.

"He could play with the thing braced," Zarins said. "The question is whether he has enough push off it and strength without pain."

Sims, the first choice in the 1982 draft, fractured his left fibula in a 38-31 victory over the Colts. Despite missing the last three games of the regular season, he led the Patriots' defensive linemen with 56 tackles.

New England has one move off injured reserve left without having to expose the player to waivers.

Zarins said he last examined Sims Saturday at Sullivan Stadium in Foxboro, Mass.

"I don't think there's any risk" that Sims will be more susceptible to injury if he plays than he was before being hurt, Zarins said. "The question is: Can he have enough strength to be effective?"

The fracture was about one inch from the site of another fracture which sidelined Sims for 11 weeks in 1983.

"He's very anxious to play," Zarins said. "He's a different player than he was a few years ago."

"He's matured a lot and he's much tougher than he was then, and I think that's been evidenced by his play. ... We're going to do everything we can to let him play this Sunday."

Sims started the first 13 regular-season games at left defensive end. Julius Adams and rookie Garin Veris, who had shared time at right end, started the Patriots' last three regular-season games and three playoff games.

Squirewell CAA Player Of Week

Lisa Squirewell, a senior on the East Carolina women's basketball team, has been named Colonial Athletic Association Women's Player of the Week, the conference office announced last night.

Squirewell, from Wake Forest, scored 22 points in the 83-67 win over Wilmington and added 16 points in the 77-73 win over American this past weekend. She was a perfect ten-for-ten from the free throw line for the week and shot 75 percent from the floor. She also pulled in 13 rebounds in the two games.

Squirewell has been the team leader in scoring and rebounding this year and is a two-time all-conference performer. She joins Sylvia Bragg, named CAA Player of the Week during December, in getting the honor this year.

Squirewell is on track to become the tenth Lady Pirate basketball player with a career total of over 1,000 points in the next few games. Squirewell currently has 960 points. Bragg earlier reached the 1,000-point level this year.

Havelock Tops Washington Five

HAVELOCK — Alvin West scored 25 points in leading Havelock to a 64-53 Coastal 3-A Conference basketball victory over Washington last night.

Washington's unbeaten girls remained atop their standings, however, with a 51-33 romp over the Lady Rams.

Washington powered out into a 15-11 lead during the first period of the boys' game, but slacked off to only seven points in the second frame. Havelock, meanwhile, dumped in 11 more points to tie it at intermission, 22-22.

The Rams doubled their score in the third period while again holding Washington to single figure scoring, 22-8. That gave Havelock a 44-30 lead. Washington managed a 23-20 comeback in the last period, but it was not enough.

Waldo Richards added 15 for Havelock, with Napoleon Simmons hitting 13. Frankie Warren led Washington with 24 points.

The Lady Pam Pack had trouble only for the first half. They were tied by Havelock, 8-8, after one period and led only 21-18 at the half. But in the third period, Washington blasted Havelock, 14-2, to run out to a 35-20 lead. They finished off the Lady Rams, 16-13 in the final quarter.

Sarah Gray led Washington with 26 points while Gloria Sherrod added 11. Tonya Nolan led Havelock with 12 while Laura Maxwell hit 10.

Washington returns to action on Friday at West Craven.

Media Invades Super Bowl Teams

Another Weapon?

Chicago Bear tackle William "Refrigerator" Perry rares back to throw a pass during a practice session in New Orleans Tuesday afternoon. The Bears will play the New England Patriots Sunday in Super Bowl XX. (AP Laserphoto)

Pats Unlikely To Prepare For 'Fridge' On Offense

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Ask Mike Ditka when William "The Refrigerator" Perry will again become instrumental in the team offense and the Chicago Bears coach breaks into a big grin.

"We'll just have to wait and see, won't we?" said Ditka, who enjoys a cat-and-mouse game if he can keep the opposition guessing.

Chances are the New England Patriots will not put in any extra practice defending the offensive exploits of Perry.

They will, however, be concerned about the 308-pounder's role on defense.

After all, for all his celebrity, Perry is also a regular football player.

Perry, who reported as a 350-pound rookie out of Clemson, started at defensive tackle in the Bears' last eight games of the season and in the two shutout playoff victories over the New York Giants and Los Angeles Rams.

Perry, with his gap-toothed smile, currently is known as much for his series of television commercials as his football exploits.

Advertisers were quick to latch onto his sudden fame and nickname and have him selling everything from hamburgers to soft drinks to automobiles and underwear. Eventually, he probably will earn more from his commercials than the four-year, $1.3 million contract he negotiated with the Bears last summer.

Perry also is the main target of the media blitz that has hit the Super Bowl. He clearly outdrew everyone, even Walter Payton, during interviews Tuesday.

"No, not at all," said Perry when asked if he was getting tired of being hounded by the press. "It's great."

Will he get a shot at offense, a Ditka maneuver that helped him explode as a celebrity?

"I don't know, but I don't think we'll have any trick plays Sunday" when the Bears take on the New England Patriots in the Super Bowl.

Although assistant coach Buddy Ryan called Perry "a fat, wasted draft choice" when the Bears made him their No. 1 pick last spring, Ryan holds no grudges.

"We get along great," Perry said. "He pats me on the back and kids me all the time."

His teammates also kid him about the commercials, but he says, "It's all in fun."

Most of the fun could end for "The Refrigerator" Sunday when he will have to play against New England veteran guard John Hannah, a perennial Pro Bowler.

"I'd have to say my work will be cut out for me," Perry said. "I'll have to do my job."

Hannah was injured and did not play when the Bears defeated the Patriots 20-7 in the second game of the season. Perry played in that game but saw little action.

"At the time I was playing a little behind (Steve) McMichael and (Dan) Hampton and that was it," Perry recalled. "Then everything happened so fast."

What happened was that Ditka used Perry on goal-line offense in two short yardage situations against the San Francisco 49ers on Oct. 13. It was considered a humorous move after a 26-10 victory had been secured.

On Oct. 21 in a Monday night, nationally televised game against the Green Bay Packers, Ditka again used Perry on offense.

This time it wasn't funny. Twice he opened holes for short touchdown runs by Payton, and once he carried for a touchdown himself in a 23-3 triumph.

Against the Packers on Nov. 3, Perry caught a 4-yard touchdown pass. But since then, except for isolated cases, he has concentrated on playing defensive tackle.

His last carry was a 1-yard touchdown run against Atlanta Nov. 20. His season totals added to five carries for seven yards.

"I started getting better in the pass rush and I thought I was doing all right," said Perry. "I never considered myself a wasted draft choice. I'm just a rookie and I have a long way to go. It's been great ever since I negotiated my contract and now we're in the Super Bowl."

His statistics on defense are so-so. Perry has a total of 31 tackles, 26 of them solos. He has forced one fumble, recovered two fumbles and has been credited for five sacks totaling 42 yards in losses.

"He graded a C-plus yesterday in the films of recent games," Ditka said. "That's not great, but it is good. He has come a long way. He's playing well on defense."

"If you watch the films, you'll see he does some things very well, but he also has a lot to learn."

To his credit, Perry earned a starting role in Ryan's defensive scheme, something neither star linebackers Mike Singletary or Otis Wilson were able to do as rookies. Ryan does not like to play rookies.

"You can play them" has been Ryan's stand concerning rookies, "but you can't win with them."

As for Perry's development, Ryan claims "he still has a long way to go. He lost a lot of weight and is recovering his stamina."

"It all depends on how he reports to camp next season," Ryan said. "If his weight is down, he'll be all right. If it's up, there could be a problem."

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Jim McMahon slouched and snarled his responses. Tony Eason gave ground to the onslaught, dropping back a step at a time, averting his eyes and muttering his answers.

John Hannah said the New England Patriots were "glad to be here, but we've got a job to get done and we can't let the distractions get in the way."

Dan Hampton said the Chicago Bears "are here to have a good time and win a ballgame."

On Tuesday, "photo opportunity day" as the National Football League calls it since all workouts are closed, the Patriots and later the Bears spent an hour apiece in the Superdome in uniform, New England in the home red it will wear on Sunday, Chicago in road white.

The Patriots began attracting attention only midway in the playoffs. They were a wild-card team whose season began erratically. Their victory over the New York Jets was not wholly unexpected. Only after they upset the Raiders and Dolphins did they become a target of the nation's media.

For the most part, they spoke Tuesday about the respect they deserve, how they love being underdogs, how it's just one more road game. "The Victory Tour," cornerback Raymond Clayborn called it, "except we're going to do it better than Michael Jackson."

But throughout the interviews came a common thread.

"We have to forget about all of this and just concentrate on why we're here," Eason, the Patriots' quarterback, said as he repeatedly glanced around the Superdome Astroturf at hundreds of writers, broadcasters, photographers and film crews.

Occasionally, as the crush of press threatened to engulf him, Eason stepped back, seemingly involuntarily. A few times, his answers were limited to shrugs. When someone took note of his apparent disinterest, Eason replied: "There's a few places I'd rather be than here."

"I think when you let yourself get caught up in all of this, when you begin thinking about it, you can really get butterflies in your stomach," said Steve Grogan, who began the season as the No. 2 quarterback, replaced Eason midway in the season, then was injured and returned to the bench.

"This is what you dream about for years. What you have to do is put it out of your mind, realize you still have a job to do and not get distracted."

The Patriots have a curfew. If anyone has broken it, it has not become public yet.

The Bears are used to the kind of attention being showered upon them this week. They have more than put up with it all season. They have invited it. What other team had the gall to make a music video during the season and call it the "Super Bowl Shuffle?"

McMahon, the funky punk quarterback; Walter Payton, the all-time rushing champ; William "Refrigerator" Perry, America's first cuddly, 308-pound appliance — they've all been subjected to the media blitz since winning their first dozen games of the season.

They stood or lounged about, trading questions and jibes with the assembled press.

"I don't think the distractions — if that's what you want to call them — are going to become a factor where if things don't go right we're going to say two weeks from now, 'It was this' or 'It was that,'" Hampton said. "If we don't play well on Sunday it'll be our own fault and I don't think anything here or in this town can distract us."

"Partying comes along with being here," said Otis Wilson, the fulltime linebacker and part-time dog impersonator. "We've earned the right to celebrate. Sure, we've come here for a purpose — but let's enjoy it now."

He was enjoying himself enough to predict that the Bears would be celebrating a week from now. Not many players — since Joe Namath, anyway — have been willing to go out on a limb and predict a victory. Wilson went further.

"There's never been three shutouts in a row in the playoffs," he said, looking back on the victories over the New York Giants and Los Angeles Rams. "We plan on being a history-making team. I see a big goose-egg. It's never been done. I want to be part of history."

Has anyone, he was asked, broken curfew? "What curfew?" Wilson laughed. "I think it was supposed to be 11 o'clock, but that's what's happened to our curfews all year. Saturday night, maybe Friday night, we'll probably get serious about it. But right now it's not exactly being enforced."

Curfews and comfort with the hyped surroundings have played a role in previous Super Bowls at the Superdome.

Twice before, this arena that resembles a nuclear reactor on the New Orleans skyline has been the setting for a Super Bowl, an annual weeklong media event which almost routinely supercedes the game itself.

In just about any city, the Super Bowl takes on a life of its own. But New Orleans adds extra life. It has Bourbon Street and the surrounding French Quarter, a sort of Gulf Coast Tijuana, a Creole Times Square. It doesn't so much beckon as it does scream: "Come 'n' get it!"

Eight years ago, the Dallas Cowboys, heading into the fourth of their five Super Bowl games, whirled into town and announced they were prepared to enjoy themselves and beat up Denver. The Broncos, including Coach Red Miller, were new to this sort of attention and said repeatedly they had to ignore it and concentrate on the task at hand.

Final score: Cowboys 27, Broncos 10.

Four years later, the Oakland Raiders fairly careened into the Crescent City. Publicly, they treated the game as something of an afterthought.

"If anybody's thinking of breaking curfew," John Matuszak said, "he'll have to get past me." It wasn't hard. The Tooz partied long and hard, returning from Bourbon Street about the same time most of his teammates were answering their wakeup calls.

Oakland's opponent were the Philadelphia Eagles, Coach Dick Vermeil's monument to the spartan life. Two-a-day workouts, heavy bookwork, early curfews, bed-checks — and accommodations near the airport, a half-hour drive from the French Quarter. No sidling into Sodom for these athletes. No distractions to detour them from their appointed task.

Edenton Sweeps Pair From 'Skins'

ROBERSONVILLE — Edenton swept a pair of Northeastern Conference basketball games from Roanoke last night, including a 56-55 cliff-hanger in the boys' game. The Lady Aces came away with a 32-28 victory in the girls' contest.

Both Edenton and Roanoke pushed through 13 first quarter points, but the Redskins held the Aces to just four points in the second period. Meanwhile Roanoke pushed in 16 and charged out into a 29-17 halftime lead.

Edenton began to rally in the third period, outscoring Roanoke, 17-13, to cut the lead back to 42-34. Then in the final quarter, the Aces pounded past Roanoke to take the lead. The Redskins tried to rally, missing on their final shot of the game with about six seconds to go.

Charles Holley led Edenton with 15 points while Milton Johnson added 11 and Deronne Felton had 10. Roanoke was led by Ricky Taylor and Derrick Boyd with 12 each while Herman Duggins had 10.

Edenton's girls eased out to a 10-4 lead in the opening period of the girls' game and increased the margin to 16-8 by halftime. In the third period, the Lady Aces continued to pull away, leading 25-15. Roanoke rallied, 13-7, in the final period, to no avail.

Stephanie Elliott led Edenton with 10 points while Joyce Outlaw had 13 and Debbie Atkinson had 10 for Roanoke.

Roanoke returns to action on Friday, traveling to Williamston.

Bears Agree Accupuncturist Can Treat McMahon, Others

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Bears have decided to let an acupuncturist treat quarterback Jim McMahon and several other players in a sudden turnaround from the team's previous refusal to allow the procedure.

Bears president Michael McCaskey said Tuesday night that he would allow acupuncturist Hiroshi Shirashi to treat McMahon, Walter Payton, Willie Gault, Dennis McKinon and Jay Hilgenberg, the Chicago Sun-Times reported today.

The Bears are in New Orleans preparing for Sunday's NFL championship game against the New England Patriots.

McCaskey's switch came after the Illinois State Acupuncture Association announced it was sending Shirashi to New Orleans to treat McMahon.

Gault's agent, Wesley Buford, said he did not know who would pay for the treatments or the trip to New Orleans for Shirashi, but he said he would send the bill to the Bears.

McCaskey changed his mind after a conversation with McMahon Tuesday.

"We're going to welcome him (Shirashi) with a brass band," the Sun-Times quoted McCaskey as saying sarcastically. "We'll give him a royal reception, then get him over to our quarterback as soon as possible."

The state acupuncture association was upset about the Bears' earlier lack of enthusiasm over the treatments.

"We're really upset with the Bears for denying McMahon ... the kind of treatment he wants," Bill Anderson, legislative liaison with the Illinois State Acupuncture Association said Tuesday at a news conference.

"The Bears made a statement that it's no time now, during Super Bowl week, to experiment with acupuncture," said Anderson, a practicing acupuncturist.

"This is no experiment."

So Anderson, an acupuncturist himself, spoke later to Steve Zucker, McMahon's agent, who said the quarterback wants Shirashi, who treated him Monday for a bruised backside, to treat him again before the Super Bowl on Sunday, according to ISAA spokeswoman Marti Ahern.

The association then decided to fly Anderson and Shirashi to New Orleans today, Ahern said. The pair was due to arrive this morning, she said.

McMahon, who suffered the injury to his left buttock Jan. 12 during the Bears' NFC championship victory over the Los Angeles Rams, didn't practice last week for Sunday's Super Bowl because it was painful to run, sit and follow through on passes.

McCaskey had said he preferred McMahon get conventional medical treatment and refused Shirashi permission to travel with the team to New Orleans on Tuesday.

Shirashi, a trainer for the Japanese national track team, was recommended to McMahon by Gault, a former track star who met the acupuncturist on the international track circuit.

Supermarket Chain Plays Cupid For Employees Seeking A Mate

By JIM ABRAMS
Associated Press Writer
OSAKA, Japan (AP) — Nichii, one of Japan's largest supermarket chains, has a matchmaking department where its employees can seek a mate. It already has arranged 140 marriages.

"We want to nourish the hearts of our employees," said Harue Nishibata, director of Nichii's 21 Family Club. "That's real social welfare."

Mrs. Nishibata, the widow of Nichii's founder, said the service was inaugurated two years ago to mark the 20th anniversary of Nichii, which with 170 stores nationwide is Japan's fifth largest supermarket chain.

Nichii's women employees were having trouble finding mates, she said, because of a scarcity of eligible men. Of almost 9,000 full-time workers, its 3,400 women average 23 years in age and almost all are single. The 5,600 men are 10 years older on average and generally married.

"Young women are also in a transitional stage," Mrs. Nishigata said. She explained that this was the stage in which families no longer exercise ultimate control over the choice of mates for the offspring but but where many women, and men, still need help in landing a partner.

The 21 Family Club sponsors ski tours, wine parties, boat rides, sports events and seminars, all designed to bring young couples together.

"We want to provide more than just a place to drink and dance," Mrs. Nishibata said in an interview. "We want our young people to get together to talk seriously about life and love."

For those preferring a more direct approach, the club offers the more traditional "o-miai," arranged introductions of young women to marriage-minded men.

The 16 women advisers at 21 Family Club office have extensive files from which to find a type of man who meets the qualifications — from salary and position to looks and hobbies — that a woman is looking for.

If the man agrees, the club sets up a meeting. Then the two parties, to avoid embarrassment, contact the office to say whether the first meeting warrants a second.

Although most young Japanese today prefer to find their own partners,

At Your Leisure

about one-third of all marriages are still the result of "o-miai," where family or friends bring two people together on the basis of similar interests and background.

Mrs. Nishibata said the club arranges 70 to 80 "o-miai" a month among its 2,800 members, made up primarily of young women from Nichii and single men from about 75 companies that do business with the supermarket chain.

The club also recently gave its members a wider choice by tying up with a matchmaking journal that has files on 9,000 unmarried people.

The membership fee is a nominal 5,000 yen ($26) and couples who decide to marry need pay only 30,000 yen ($148) to the supermarket middleman, far less than demanded by ordinary marriage brokers.

Betrothal usually means Nichii will lose a woman employee since many Japanese women still quit their jobs after marriage or pregnancy.

But many women later return as one of Nichii's 9,500 women part-timers, who generally work for less pay.

"We're not in it for the money," Mrs. Nishibata said. "Nichii was created out of a happy merging of several companies and we want to maintain that family spirit," she said.

Miss Oklahoma Wins Teen Title

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Miss Oklahoma Allison Brown, whose mother once demonstrated against beauty pageants, has won the Miss Teen USA title and $150,000 in cash and prizes, as feminists picketed outside.

Miss Brown, 17, of Edmond, Okla., defeated contestants from 49 states and the District of Columbia during the two-hour, nationally televised pageant Tuesday night. Contestants were judged in swimsuit and evening gown competitions.

During the contest, Miss Brown told host Michael Young her mother, Suzanne Brown, an author of historical books, had once picketed pageants.

"But she supports me now," said the blonde, blue-eyed student at Edmond Memorial High School.

The first runner-up was Miss Texas, Becky Pestana, 17, of San Antonio. Second runner-up was Miss New York, Claudia Liem, 15, of Glendale, and the third runner-up was Miss Virginia, Angela Thigpen, 15, of Portsmouth. Fourth runner-up was Miss South Dakota, Valerie Marsden, 17, of Rapid City.

During the program, about a dozen protesters carrying signs reading "For This We Pay Taxes" and "Taxes Should Not Fund Sexist Events" picketed the Ocean Center, where the pageant was held.

"We will be a small group, but no matter how small we are, I feel that we represent the majority of the people in the community," lawyer Bonnie Berns of the Volusia-Flagler chapter of the National Organization for Women said before the pageant.

Her group has asked the State Attorney's office to investigate the legality of the Volusia County Council spending $250,000 from tax receipts to promote and help produce the show. Supporters said it would boost tourism and industry.

Publicists had estimated that 70 million people would watch the pageant, which was televised by CBS.

Jeffrey Dees, executive director to State Attorney Stephen Boyles, said Monday he asked county officials to supply some information in connection with Ms. Berns' request for a probe.

Movie Titles May Make Difference At Box Office

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Here's a little movie quiz: What is "Kiss of the Spider Woman"?

(1) A remake of a 1940s zombie movie.

(2) A Mel Brooks spoof.

(3) A drama of two prisoners in a Brazilian jail.

Unless you're really informed about the movie scene, you might not know that "Kiss of the Spider Woman" is the highly acclaimed film in which William Hurt, a homosexual prisoner, relates old movie plots to Raul Julia, a political prisoner, in a Brazilian jail.

Despite the confusing title, the film has managed to sell $10 million worth of tickets in a limited U.S. release.

Titles. The subject has bedeviled the film industry from its earliest days.

Would "The Birth of a Nation" have been less successful with the title of the novel from which it sprang, "The Klansman"? Is it easy to sell a movie called "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse"?

Titles mean everything, David O. Selznick once said. "Combine a provocative, exciting title with star names and an intriguing subject and you're halfway home."

He proved his theory with such films as "A Star Is Born," "Gone With the Wind," "Spellbound" and "Duel in the Sun."

In earlier years, titles were often decided on a producer's whim. Milton Pickman, a former agent and studio executive, talked about an incident at the home of Louis B. Mayer, head of MGM.

"Some of the executives were arguing about 'Mrs. Miniver.' They said, 'What kind of a title is that? It won't mean anything to the ticket buyer.' But Mayer said, 'Greer Garson is a marvelous actress. It doesn't matter what the picture is called. They'll come,'" recalled Pickman.

"Mrs. Miniver" proved to be one of the biggest hits of World War II, winning Academy Awards for the film and Miss Garson.

Marketing is king in today's Hollywood, and all titles are now scrutinized and often tested for their audience appeal.

"At first there was never a question about 'The Karate Kid' title," recalled producer Jerry Weintraub. "But after the picture had been made, Columbia started to get worried. They kept saying it was not a good title, and I got nervous myself."

"I agreed to go to a testing center, where I sat behind a glass and watched the title and the campaign being tested to a cross-section of the public. I left more confused than when I arrived. The kids thought it was a karate picture, and the adults thought it was a kid's picture. But at least they discussed it, and I thought that would work in our favor."

"The Karate Kid" opened modestly in 1984; word-of-mouth helped generate a $100 million domestic gross.

Michael Douglas is another producer who saved his title by standing up to the marketing forces in 1979.

"I had tremendous grief with 'The China Syndrome,'" the actor-producer said. "Down to the wire, Columbia refused to accept it. They thought it was misleading, but I argued that people would not forget 'The China Syndrome,' which, after all, was what the picture was about (the supposed nuclear burn through the Earth to China)."

However, Douglas said that after he read "Romancing the Stone," he told the late Diane Thomas: "I love your script. I hate your title."

During the rewrites, though, she said: "I really like the title." Douglas replied, "You got it," and he had another box-office winner with the comedy-adventure about the pursuit of a fabulous gem.

Producer Irwin Winkler recalled that United Artists hated "Rocky" as a title for that movie.

"They kept asking, 'What does it mean? Is it about Rocky Marciano?' They wanted to call the picture 'The Contender.' But Bob (Chartoff, his co-producer) and I held out for 'Rocky,' and won."

"We had the same problem with 'They Shoot Horses, Don't They?' The distributor feared people would think that it was a Western. The same argument was used about 'Midnight Cowboy,' which demonstrates the limitation of (corporate) thinking."

Says Jeff Katzenberg, former production chief at Paramount and now at Disney: "You go through title discussions on every picture. At Paramount we even talked about different titles for 'Beverly Hills Cop' and '48HRS.' Luckily, we didn't change them."
