Soviets Free Dissident

BERLIN (AP) — Soviet dissident Anatoly Shcharansky walked to freedom across the snow-covered Glienicke Bridge today after nearly nine years in Soviet prisons and labor camps and flew out of Berlin soon after on his way to Israel.

Shcharansky, 38, and his wife, Avital, 34, were reunited at Frankfurt Airport. There they boarded an Israeli government executive jet and took off for Tel Aviv at 2:33 p.m. (8:33 a.m. EST), said airport spokesman Wolfgang Schwalm.

Israeli officials said a giant welcoming ceremony awaited him in Tel Aviv.

West German police said that Shcharansky, wearing a silver fur hat, was handed over to U.S. Ambassador Richard Burt at the Glienicke Bridge at 10:57 a.m. (4:57 a.m. EST).

Shcharansky waved to a crowd of bystanders and well-wishers, as Burt's Mercedes-Benz roared past a crowd of waiting journalists and headed down a road leading along the Berlin Wall.

U.S. and West German officials said five suspected Soviet bloc agents imprisoned in the West also were exchanged for three Westerners jailed in the East after Shcharansky was freed. The exchange was concluded at 11:30 a.m. (5:30 a.m. EST), officials said.

The temperature had dropped to 25 degrees when the exchange took place.

In Berlin, Shcharansky and Burt boarded a Lear jet after the U.S. Air Force plane that was to take them to Frankfurt developed mechanical trouble.

Shcharansky went directly into a VIP lounge to see his wife after landing at 1:15 p.m. (7:15 a.m. EST) in Frankfurt, said Schwalm.

"They greeted each other, but they (Please turn to page 8)

Tainted Tylenol Linked To Death

Investigators in Yonkers, N.Y., are trying to determine whether a woman's death by cyanide poisoning was linked to Extra-Strength Tylenol, and a Greenville store is among more than 1,000 in 24 states which have pulled the popular pain-killer from its shelves.

A&P pulled Extra-Strength Tylenol capsules from the shelves of stores on Monday after police said Diane Elstroth, 23, of Peekskill, was found dead Saturday about 12 hours after taking two Tylenol capsules, officials said. An employee of Sav-A-Center (formerly called A&P) in Greenville said Tylenol was taken off the shelves here on Monday, also.

After the deaths of seven people in the Chicago area who had taken cyanide-laced capsules of Extra-Strength Tylenol in 1982, its manufacturer and others took steps to make packages tamper-resistant. Deputy Chief Owen McClain would not comment on whether the Tylenol container found after Ms. Elstroth's death had been tampered with, although authorities said other capsules in the bottle she used contained cyanide.

Ms. Elstroth, who was visiting her boyfriend, "took a couple of tablets the night before because she was not feeling well," McClain said in a Monday night news conference. The bottle was bought at a Bronxville A&P.

A&P ordered the recall "as a precautionary measure," said Michael J. Rourke, a spokesman for the Montvale, N.J.-based company. "We're still waiting to hear more from the FDA and the Yonkers police and Johnson & Johnson. If this turns out to be an isolated incident, we'll put it back on the shelves."

Johnson & Johnson, the New Brunswick, N.J.-based manufacturer of Tylenol, said the batch in question was ADF916, shipped Aug. 22, 1985, with a May 1987 expiration date. It was in packages of 24 capsules, and the containers were designed to be tamper-resistant. Bottles of the pain-reliever have seals both underneath and over the cap.

which logged about 115,000 miles and over 8,000 hours of service. The Bookmobile cost $54,107. Sheppard Memorial Library has provided Bookmobile service to the county since 1947. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Ayden Board Authorizes Study

Ayden Town Board members Monday authorized the N.C. League of Municipalities to conduct a study of the town's organizational structure and management practices.

According to Town Manager Don Russell, the study should take approximately five months. Information generated by the study will be used in 1987-88 budget planning sessions to improve efficiency of town operations.

"In view of the federal cuts and unknowns on the status of some state revenues, I feel that a study of this nature made by an outside agency could be very beneficial," Russell said.

This will be the first time all town of Ayden departments have been examined.

In other business Monday, board members agreed to send a letter to senior Superior and District Court judges and the Pitt County Board of Commissioners protesting comments made by county employees and officials in a Jan. 26 article published by The Daily Reflector.

In the article, District Attorney Tom Haigwood and others cited the need for construction of additional courtroom facilities.

The Ayden Town Board is opposed to construction of new courts, Ford said, because there is already room available in the county — both in Ayden and Farmville. The Ayden courtroom is used only two times a month, Ford said.

Also receiving board approval was appointment of a five-member citizens' advisory commission to work with Ayden Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) administrators.

Committee members will meet with administrators to target houses in the current CDBG impact area for rehabilitation. The current impact area covers East Avenue and Turnage, Blount, Watermelon, Jackson, Thrower, Ormond and Joyner streets.

Appointees include Wanda Stewart, Queenie Cannon, Louise Ormond, Franklin Rogers and Lucille Harp.

CAMERA TRADE-INS

The Kodak Company has been ordered to discontinue its instant-print cameras and all film and accessories for them. A court has found that the company has infringed upon Polaroid patents. For assistance and information on trading in these cameras and film and accessories for them, call 800-792-3000.

The caller will give his or her name and phone number, which will be used to send instructions and mailers for returning to the company all instant-print items. A selection sheet for replacement options will be provided and the replacements will be promptly mailed, a Kodak fulfillment center supervisor named David, said. He said the deadline for completing the trade-in is Dec. 31, 1986.

Cold Replaces Rain

Rain that has been splattering eastern North Carolina since Monday is forecast to end during the day.

Weather Service forecasters said brisk northwest winds were expected to move into the state, bringing colder temperatures and clearer skies.

Figures provided by the Greenville Utilities water plant this morning bore out the predictions.

According to water plant Operator Cliff Strickland, the temperature dropped from 42 degrees Fahrenheit to 39 degrees Fahrenheit before 10 a.m. today. Monday's high was 50 degrees; the low was 37. Tonight's low will be in the 20s.

Strickland also reported that the Tar River is holding steady for this time of year at 4.1 feet above sea level.

Since Monday night, Pitt County received .87 inches of rain.

Attendance Has Been Low In Kinston City May Host Balloon Race

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Efforts to secure backing to relocate the annual East Carolina Balloon Race from Kinston to Greenville are now in the tentative stage. Planners are hopeful that relocation for the 1986 show will be possible.

The annual race, under the auspices of the National Balloon Racing Association, has been held in Kinston since 1983.

In a letter to the Kinston Free Press, Bill Meadows of Statesville, president of the association, said "our real problem (in Kinston) was attendance. Last year (1985) we had under 4,000 people and that's about half of what we need to break even."

The 1985 race was held at Kinston's Eastern Regional Airport and before that on property adjacent to Caswell Center.

The man in Greenville heading efforts to get authorization for the show to be held at Pitt-Greenville Airport this October is Iverson MacKenzie, a full-time commercial balloonist and director of operations for NBRA.

MacKenzie stressed that for the time being, "everything is tentative. I've been meeting with people at the airport, at the chamber of commerce, to determine what needs to be done in getting things lined up and approved. I'm also going to be meeting with fraternal groups at East Carolina University."

MacKenzie said he hopes within about two weeks to "really get into positive developments. My first talks with Jim Turcotte at the Pitt-Greenville Airport and with Ed Walker of the chamber of commerce have been well received."

"Turcotte will have to present the matter to his board, and Walker will have to talk to other people, too, to get something more concrete to tell me, but both seem pleased about the possibility of having the race here."

According to MacKenzie, if authority is granted to hold the October event in Greenville, "we envision something far more extensive than merely a competition between balloon racers."

The make-up of the tentative calendar of activities for the two and one-half day show covers a wide field. "We're thinking of a concept in which 50 or more balloon racers from all parts of the country would be invited to compete for cash and prizes. We also have in mind the inclusion of a World War II air show with both static displays and operational planes that would stage simulated air and air-to-ground battles, and the presence of helicopters for public rides."

MacKenzie said other possibilities being considered include lots of ground activities for those attending the show. "Such things as band performances, tug-of-war competitions, relay races, arts and crafts displays, the presence of local and professional concessionaires."

MacKenzie says he feels that given the volume of air traffic, commercial and private, at the Pitt-Greenville Airport, "there should be no problem in regulating our activities without interfering with such traffic."

"What we really hope to achieve, and at this time, feel confident about," he said "is providing area people two and a half-days of family-oriented entertainment."

Mrs. Reagan Says She Might Show Mrs. Gorbachev A U.S. Supermarket

By SUSANNE M. SCHAFER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nancy Reagan says Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev and his wife Raisa should get a chance during the upcoming summit to see first-hand how Americans live — and that might include a stop at a supermarket.

Mrs. Reagan says she wants the Soviet leader and his wife to see "how our people live, the openness of it."

"I don't want them to think that we've set things up, pre-arranged things — so you drop into a Safeway store," Mrs. Reagan suggested with a laugh.

That way, "They can see all of the people," she said Monday in an interview with The Associated Press.

The first lady laughed again and nodded her head in agreement when the suggestion was made that she should get a chance to reciprocate and go shopping with Mrs. Gorbachev during the third summit, set for Moscow.

Asked whether she had any plans for the Soviet couple, Mrs. Reagan said, "I'd like them to see all of America and how America lives," emphasizing the word "all."

But it is very important, Mrs. Reagan added, that the Gorbachevs do things that "would be fun and would be interesting to them."

Mrs. Reagan and Mrs. Gorbachev first met during the November summit in Geneva, and their reciprocal teas and other encounters were the focus of intense media attention.

The two have exchanged thank-you notes since then, but Mrs. Reagan says she has not had any contact with her Soviet counterpart about the next summit session.

No date has been set for the upcoming summit, which Reagan and Gorbachev agreed would be held in the United States this year.

In Monday's interview, Mrs. Reagan also spoke of the shuttle Challenger disaster, saying the television image of the spacecraft exploding remained etched in her memory.

She compared the incident with other tragedies that have occurred during the past several years and the memorial services she and the president have attended for U.S. military personnel who have lost their lives overseas.

"I think this one seemed harder to shake than the others. I think it was ... actually seeing it happen, I think that part added to making it hard to shake," she said.

Mrs. Reagan praised her husband's effort to console the astronauts' families and his statements to the nation about the tragedy.

"Billy Graham said he (the president) acted as pastor to the country, and I think he did," Mrs. Reagan said. "It brought the country together, in a funny way."

She said that she agreed with her husband's decision to go forward with the space program.

Turning to their plans after leaving the White House, the first lady said her husband intends to write a book, and that she might also.

"He feels, and I agree, that for the sake of history, (you have) to get it all down correctly," she said.

"We're the first ones to be here for eight years for a long time," she said. "There's lots of things that have happened, and that I've seen and that I've done that haven't been printed, that nobody knows. And that would be interesting."

Speaking a day after she and her husband watched a videotape of their son hosting the "Saturday Night Live" television show over the weekend, Mrs. Reagan said young Ron's performance showed he has "a nice sense of humor."

The president's younger son was the host on the late-night NBC comedy show. He did a takeoff from a scene in the movie "Risky Business," in which he danced around the White House in his underwear while his parents were at Camp David.

Mrs. Reagan explained that she and her husband watched the show on videotape because "We couldn't stay up that late — we had never seen the show before."

"I thought he was very good," Mrs. Reagan said with a bemused smile. She added that she knew her son had a comic flair that was evident in his writing.

Asked whether she thought the younger Reagan's prancing was a bit risqué, Mrs. Reagan laughed and said, "It's that kind of show — but I thought it was funny and I thought it was good."

Dear Abby — By Abigail Van Buren

Christmas Cheer Can Still Help Kids

DEAR ABBY: A big round of applause for Ed McMahon's suggestion to send the fronts of attractive religious Christmas cards to St. Jude's Ranch for Children, P.O. Box 985, Boulder City, Nev. 89005-0985. It is heartwarming to know that recycling used Christmas cards helps these abused children earn some money.

I have just sent off a package of Christmas cards to St. Jude's, plus a note to Father Herbert A. Ward Jr., enclosing a little donation for his wonderful work (your suggestion, Abby).

Reading Mr. McMahon's letter in your column gives one renewed faith that Christmas isn't just commercial (no pun intended for Mr. McMahon!), that people really do care about other people, and that the real meaning of Christmas is love.

AGGIE O'CONNOR
IN L.A.

DEAR AGGIE: I just called Father Ward's secretary, Edith, and was informed that the response has been incredible! (They had to get a new computer to handle all the information.)

Volunteers (bless them) go to the post office three times a day to pick up the mail, and they return looking like Santa Claus! The nicest people in the world read Dear Abby.

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for six years and have three beautiful children. My husband is a wonderful man, a hard worker and a caring father. He shares equally in all aspects of child rearing and house care.

The problem is our sex life. With each passing year we seem to grow less intimate. I miss the closeness we once had. At times I feel like we are just good friends, which is not wrong or bad; it's just not enough. The ironic thing is, he taught me how to be more demonstrative, less inhibited and to feel good about sharing my emotions.

This seems to have stopped, and when I broach the subject he says, "Yes, I agree with you, but it has nothing to do with you."

How do I get him to open up to me, or seek some outside advice?

JUST FRIENDS

DEAR FRIENDS: If you belong to a church, inquire about Marriage Encounter. Briefly, it is instruction (over a weekend) for couples who want to revitalize marriages that have lost their intimacy and excitement. I have had superlative feedback from Catholic, Protestant and Jewish couples of all ages who have benefited from Marriage Encounter.

Another suggestion: No woman can get her husband to "open up" unless he really wants to. Don't become a nag. Simply tell him how much you miss the closeness you once shared, and encourage him to get counseling with or without you. I sense that there is a reason for his lagging interest, but he's not ready to talk with you about it.

DEAR ABBY: Re the toplevel girl who knocked on a door one night: I had a similar experience a few years ago. I heard a knock on my door at 2 a.m. I went to the door, looked through the peephole, and there stood a young man—stark naked! He asked me for something to wear. He said he was a college student, and as a prank some college friends had pushed him out of a car. I had a chain on my door, so I got a beach towel and handed it to him. He thanked me and said he'd bring it back. And that was the last I saw of him.

ME, TOO, IN BOSTON

DEAR ME, TOO: I should think you saw enough of him. Poor guy.

Cherry Boston Cream Pie Can Be A Valentine Dessert

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

To my knowledge, Boston Cream Pie — a misnomer if ever there was one — received fullest cookbook treatment at the end of the past century. Then Fannie Farmer, in her first edition of The Boston Cooking-School Cookbook, gave a recipe for it along with several variations.

The name is puzzling because Boston Cream Pie is not a pie at all. It is made from two layers of cake (or one layer that is split) and it has a creamy filling. In Fannie Farmer's day the top was sprinkled with powdered sugar. In our day the top is usually covered with chocolate frosting.

Now a good cook has given Boston Cream Pie a new topping made with canned sweet red cherries. This makes the dessert eminently suitable for Valentine's Day parties. Around our house the Cherry Boston Cream Pie won plaudits — tasters enjoyed the lightness of the cake, the smooth filling and the fine flavor and color of the cherry topping.

CHERRY BOSTON CREAM PIE

Cherry Sauce, see recipe
Cream Filling, see recipe
1 1/4 cups stirred all-purpose flour (spoon and level)
1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 large eggs
3/4 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon grated orange rind
1/2 cup hot milk
Kirsch (clear cherry brandy) to taste
Make Cherry Sauce and Cream Filling.
Line a 9- by 1 1/2-inch round cake pan with wax paper.

In a small bowl stir together flour, baking powder and salt. In a medium bowl beat eggs until thickened and lemon color; gradually beat in sugar until pale and ivory color. Stir in orange rind. Fold in flour mixture, in 3 additions, alternately with hot milk, just until blended. Turn into prepared pan and bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean — about 25 minutes. Loosen edges and turn out on a cake rack; cool completely. With a long sharp serrated knife cut into 2 layers. Sandwich layers together with the Cream Filling. Refrigerate.

Before serving, let stand at room temperature and with a slotted spoon arrange cherries from Cherry Sauce on top of cake; spoon liquid part of sauce over cherries until it just dribbles down the sides. Add Kirsch to the remaining liquid part of Cherry Sauce and pass separately in a small

CHERRY SAUCE: Drain a 16 1/2-ounce can of dark sweet cherries, reserving both cherries and syrup. In a small saucepan gradually stir reserved cherry syrup into 2 teaspoons cornstarch, keeping smooth. Cook over moderate heat, stirring constantly, until thickened and boiling. Off heat stir in reserved cherries and 1/2 teaspoon grated orange rind. Cool.

CREAM FILLING: In a small saucepan stir together 1/2 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons cornstarch and 1/8 teaspoon salt; gradually stir in 1 1/2 cups milk, keeping smooth. Cook over moderate heat, stirring constantly, until thickened and boiling. In a small bowl whisk together 2 egg yolks; whisking constantly, add 1/2 of the hot mixture to egg yolks; return egg yolk mixture to saucepan. Stirring constantly, cook gently for a minute or two; off heat stir in 1 teaspoon vanilla. Cool. Makes 1 and 2/3 cups.

At Wits End

By Erma Bombeck

One of the things your mother never tells you about marriage is the importance of your husband's chair.

You make a lifelong commitment thinking he can sit on any chair and be happy. What a little fool you are. The first three months or so, he doesn't make a fuss about it. He just pulls you on his lap and says, "This chair is fine for the both of us."

It isn't until after the first year that he shoves you off his lap and begins to get picky. The chair will be too straight for his back and too short for his legs. The arms won't feel good and there will be no support of his neck. The great chair hunt is on.

The canvas butterfly chair in shocking pink that picks up the third color in the carpet will last only six months. He won't openly complain, but he will sit there lifeless and pained and whisper, "I'm ready to get out of the chair now. Could someone give me a hand?" You get the idea.

The antique chair out of grandma's attic with the narrow back and wings coming out of it will also fall into disfavor when he discovers there is no place to put his tackle box and flies when he sorts them.

The wooden rocker that follows is too slippery and he keeps falling out of it, so that is replaced by a padded rocker that makes him sick when it moves back and forth.

Thirteen "Daddy Chairs" later, you suggest he pick out his own. His choice is a recliner type that needs half a football field to do all of its tricks. If it had a Water Pik it would look like a dental chair.

A compromise is suggested with a large chair with leather arms that is very understated. The first time he sits in it like a ramrod and asks, "When do you pull the switch?," you know it's on its way out.

Beanbags, contours, with ottomans, without arms, with headrests, loose cushions, plastic, bucket seat, tufted arms, Queen Anne, Early attic, Victorian and recliners ... all history.

It is his throne whence all orders come: "Change the channel," "Turn it up," "Get me a cold one," "Has the paper come yet?," "Did you lock all the doors?," "Tell them I'll call them back."

I knew the Danish chair out of white Naugahyde that fit so well with the sofa was out when it made him sweat when he had his wool bathrobe on and the reading light trained on his newspaper. So, we went shopping again.

"That's it!" he said. "The perfect chair. Now that's what I need. It's soft, you can lie back in it, get your feet off the floor and really relax. What do they call it?"

They call it a bed!

Wrecks Leave One Person Hurt, $21,250 In Damage

One person was reported injured and an estimated $21,250 property damage caused in a series of five traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Monday.

Cars driven by Marjorie Jenkins Pollard of 509 Westchester Drive and Lillian Barnes Manning of Route 3, Greenville, collided about 5:05 p.m. on Fifth Street, 60 feet west of the Moyewood Drive intersection, causing an estimated $2,800 damage to the Pollard car and $1,800 damage to the Manning vehicle.

Moments later, cars driven by Lou Dickens Haddock of Route 4, Greenville, Cynthia Ebron Brown of B18 Glendale Court and Ronald Eugene Crisp of 310B E. 13th St. collided at the intersection of Fifth Street and Moyewood Drive, officers said.

Investigators, who charged Ms. Haddock with failing to reduce her speed enough to avoid an accident, said Ms. Brown was injured in the collision.

Damage was estimated at $2,800 to the Haddock car, $3,800 to the Brown car and $350 to the Crisp auto.

Cars driven by Parveen Saeed Dar of 115 Heritage St., Wanda Bass Cayton of Route 2, Winterville, and Olivia Jean Smith of Cary, collided about 4:22 p.m. at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Elm Street, causing an estimated $400 damage to the Dar vehicle, $1,000 damage to the Cayton car and $200 damage to the Smith auto.

Police reported Ms. Dar was charged with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of the collision.

Pattie Andrea Hardy of 1400 E. Tenth St. was charged with having improper equipment following investigation of a 6:44 p.m. collision on 10th Street, 260 feet west of the Rocksprings Road intersection.

Investigators, who listed the driver of the second car involved as Ronald Edward Goodall of Route 3, Greenville, estimated damage at $900 to the Hardy car and $3,200 to the Goodall vehicle.

An estimated $2,000 damage resulted to each of two cars involved in a 5:42 p.m. collision in the parking lot at Greenville Square Shopping Center.

Officers listed the drivers of the vehicles involved as David Braxton Lawrence of Route 1, Winterville, and Charles Edward Flanagan of 1611 Longwood Drive.

No Answers

It's time for answers.

The question mark that surrounds the missing grant for a South Greenville School field trip to Williamsburg, Va., needs to be erased. For over two months the state has been conducting an investigation into where the funds did (or perhaps didn't) come from and just how they disappeared.

From the beginning the issue of the grant has been an enigma. First, how an elementary school in Greenville wound up with a $50,000 three-year private grant was a bit puzzling.

Second, when the funds were hard to procure from the State Department of Public Instruction the first year, as school officials report they were, why wasn't an investigation initiated then? The payment method for the 1985 field trip was reportedly unorthodox. Is that so commonplace at that department that it went unnoticed?

Third, a two-month investigation by two state agencies has yielded no conclusions — or at least none the state will talk about. An employee has been suspended, but no explanation of the circumstances has surfaced. That's as damaging to the employee as to taxpayers who wonder what they are paying for.

Two months is adequate time to investigate a situation that has been under state officials' noses for over a year. The state was quick enough to deny special requests to fund the field trip. It should be equally expedient in providing answers — not just to satisfy the parents and children involved — but to assure all taxpayers that the department keeps shop well.

The grapevine hints that the state auditor's office is waiting on the personal banking records of the suspended employee. Adequate time to secure the records has passed. If enough information to suspend the individual exists, enough to make a plausible public explanation is also available.

State officials could feel that as time passes, the issue will become less volatile and the public explanation it offers will have less implications, consequently attracting less attention. That's a political solution but not a satisfying one to parents, students and taxpayers that wonder just what goes on in Raleigh.

The Department of Public Instruction owes South Greenville and North Carolina a clear, reasonable interpretation of the facts — now.

'Ugly' Dolls

We read that another kiddie fad is making its presence felt in parts of the country that has some parents and even teachers mightily upset. "The Garbage Pail Kids" are looked upon as ugly and nasty. They come on trading cards and in certain areas they are children's collectibles.

Intentional or not, the cards appear to be spoofs of another fad: the Cabbage Patch Kids.

Adult concern has resulted in letters of complaint and the banning by a few schools. That kind of reaction is often thought to make forbidden items even more attractive.

Another popularity factor might be that of an ugly duckling counterpoint to the saccharine quality surrounding what many grownups see as appropriate for young minds to accept as the norm or an ideal.

Fads run a course; and so will Acne Amy and Dead Fred if authority figures loosen up. There are worse dangers to young minds than poor jokes.

Domenici Loses His Edge

WASHINGTON — When the White House heard that Sen. Pete Domenici was supporting a move by Senate Budget Committee members calling for deficit reduction ahead of tax reform, the president's men did not panic as in past years.

That reflected Reagan administration unity on fiscal policy now that David Stockman is gone. White House strategy, determined to push tax reform on a fast track, takes a hard line against tax increases to meet Gramm-Rudman-Hollings deficit-reduction discipline.

What's more, chances are President Reagan will get his way on Capitol Hill this winter and spring. The Senate Finance Committee emerged from its West Virginia retreat several weekends ago without a tax-increasing consensus. With Congress back in town after the long recess, the odds are good for tax reform this summer and no shootout on higher taxes until autumn.

Thus, Domenici's support for a letter demanding that tax reform be sidetracked represents less a united, defiant Senate than his own insistence as chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, hardened over five years, that taxes must go up. Domenici collides with growing feeling in the Senate that, however desirable higher taxes might be, the initiative must come from the president.

Nor is there apprehension in the White House over getting such a letter from Budget Committee members. It would be ignored, with the administration insisting on a revenue-neutral tax bill as a priority matter.

That course is made possible by the transformation of Sen. Bob Packwood, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, from Reagan hairshirt to Reagan ally. "I was wrong," he says, referring to his comment a year ago that a tax reform bill not denting the deficit would waste time. He now is committed to tax reform without increasing taxes, and on a fast track intended to put a bill on Reagan's desk as early as the Fourth of July.

Although turning this bill into a tax increase is still cherished inside the Budget Committee, it probably would be spurned on the Senate floor. Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, a Democratic pillar on Budget, wants some $25 billion in the reform bill's corporate minimum tax switched to deficit reduction. But that would require higher individual rates to restore the reform bill to revenue neutrality, disrupting the mechanism of trade-offs inherent in tax reform.

That is why so inveterate a tax increaser as Sen. John Chafee, a liberal in the Senate Republican leadership and a senior Finance Committee member, now opposes turning the reform into a revenue booster. "I know it's a sloppy way to do it," Chafee told us, "but I think we have to do it with a separate bill."

Furthermore, any separate tax increase is apt to come later rather than sooner. The president's budget may be pronounced dead-on-arrival by the House's Democratic majority. But White House aides defy Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill to push a tax increase on the new budget resolution deadline of April 15.

Nor is there as much necessity for Draconian action as deficitarians Domenici and Hollings claim. Contrary to scare talk about deficits breaching $225 billion, a predicted 4 percent growth rate for 1986 would bring in enough additional revenue to drop the anticipated deficit to $180 billion. That leaves a gap of about $35 billion to hit this fall's Gramm-Rudman-Hollings target.

Even $35 billion would invite far too much trouble under the GRH "sequestration" formula, slashing such untouchables as funds for air traffic controllers and the FBI. But Sen.

Eastern Office's Fate Questionable

RALEIGH — Democratic leaders of the General Assembly, tired of losing their year-long public relations war with Republican Gov. Jim Martin, lashed back at a recent legislative inquiry. The Democrats didn't have a big issue, but they milked it for everything they could get out of it.

Martin has opened an eastern governor's office on the grounds of Tryon Palace in New Bern. He did so by moving money around in his office budget. He probably acted contrary to a special budget provision when he did so.

Marvin Dorman, deputy state budget officer, was called before the Legislature's Governmental Operations Committee for an explanation. He was asked if the governor had violated a special budget provision which says no funds can be transferred from one program to another.

Dorman said no. The money for the eastern office came from vacant positions in the governor's Raleigh office. Martin had simply decided to assign two of his Raleigh people to New Bern. The total money involved is $41,000 a year.

But the Democrats weren't willing to accept that explanation. The eastern governor's office is a new program, they argued, and therefore Martin violated state law in opening it. Funding for the eastern office should be consistent with funding for the western governor's office in Asheville. That is a separate item in the budget and the eastern office should be, also.

Rep. Bobby Hunter, D-McDowell, was chairman of the Appropriations subcommittee which handled the governor's budget in the 1985 session. Dorman had come before that committee and requested money for an eastern office. The subcommittee did not provide that money.

Hunter said Martin had cir-cumvented the legislative process by opening the office after the Legislature had denied him the money to do so. Dorman argued in return that the Legislature hadn't actually turned down the proposal, it had simply ignored it.

Other members of that subcommittee argued that they'd been deceived. Martin had been allowed to keep several vacant positions in his office after his administration argued that they were necessary to maintain current programs. Martin then used two of those vacant positions to staff the eastern office.

Sen. Kenneth Royall, D-Durham, charged more deception. The Advisory Budget Commission had to approve physical renovations for the office space. He, and other ABC members, said they had no recollection of such a proposal coming before them. If it did, it came disguised as a Tryon Palace item. Martin should have been upfront with the ABC and explained what the money was really for, they said.

Sen. Tony Rand, D-Cumberland, recalled another special provision of the budget. It says the budgetted money which goes unspent because a job is left open cannot be used to start new programs. The funding of the eastern office — according to the governor's explanation — sounded like a violation of that provision, Rand said.

Rand of Fayetteville and Rep. Gerald Anderson, D-Craven, of New Bern questioned the need of such an office. With Martin complaining so much about the Legislature's spending, maybe he ought to look at his own spending, they said. New Bern is about 115 miles from Raleigh and there are many points in the east which are closer to Raleigh than to New Bern. The office may serve little purpose, they said.

The Democrats had their fun grilling Dorman and Jim Lofton, Martin's top aide. Expect this committee to have more fun this spring when it recommends that the Legislature close down the eastern office.

Strength For Today

Calloused hands are honorable. A calloused mind or a calloused heart is dishonorable.

Our hands become calloused from frequent handling of heavy objects. Our minds and hearts become calloused from our obstinacy to face the truth, from our determination not to change our way of life, from our stubborn resistance to progress.

History tells us how a descendant of Jude, one of the Lord's "brethren," was accused of a serious crime, but he appealed to the emperor and when taken before him showed his calloused hands and declared they were the emblem of his honest and diligent work habits.

But remember that calloused hands are one thing and that calloused mind, heart and soul is something different. The first comes from work, the second comes from obstinacy, selfishness and the determination to have one's own way. Callouses on the mind are an offense against the Creator who has done all things well.

The Role Teachers Play

A few weeks ago I wrote a piece about schoolteachers going up in space. I speculated as to what kinds of candidates my own teachers at PS 35 would have made if they had applied for the trip. It was a light piece because, like most Americans, I never dreamed anything could happen to the flight of the shuttle Challenger.

During the last few days, as I watched the television screen, I got to thinking about teachers. Although Mrs. Christa McAuliffe wasn't a professional astronaut, she did leave behind a wonderful legacy.

Consider this. For the past 15 or 20 years, America's teachers could not have been held in lower esteem. They were underpaid, underrated and blamed for anything that went wrong with our schools.

It appeared the only time we saw teachers on TV was when they were on strike or arrested for child abuse.

The perception was that teachers were people who taught because they couldn't make it in the real world.

Except for covering vandalism and crime in schools, the media ignored what was going on in the classroom. And with reason: if teachers were teaching, and students were learning, it wasn't news — that is until the destruction of Challenger.

Suddenly our schools received more attention than they have ever been given before. Seven brave people died that morning, but it was the death of a schoolteacher that made our children cry.

When the TV cameras entered the nation's classrooms to record their grief, we saw principals and teachers fighting back their own tears as they tried to comfort the students.

The cameras not only focused on teachers but also panned to the agonized faces of the students. They showed teacher to pupil and pupil to teacher — and in that moment of sadness we witnessed the educational process at its best.

When these pictures came into our homes we were reminded of something we tend to take for granted: the role teachers quietly play in the lives of the children.

The lesson was not just for grown-ups. You had the feeling that the students had gained a new respect for teachers as well.

It went something like this. "Christa was a teacher, and Christa died in space, but it could have been anybody's teacher — including mine."

So what was Christa McAuliffe's legacy?

When Sputnik went up and we realized the Russians were ahead there was a great clamor to educate American children and make our schools second to none. Then after the successes of our own space program, the clamor died down. Education was dropped as our No. 1 priority.

At least it was until Challenger. After that one horrifying moment in Florida, things changed again. The parent-teacher-pupil bond that had been fraying for a generation seemed to be joined again.

Christa McAuliffe's gift to us is not in the skies but here on earth. From everything you can read, she was a teacher before she went up and she intended to be a teacher when she returned. In death her legacy is to give her fellow professionals new dignity and honor. Thanks to Christa, each one of them can say with pride, "I'm a teacher too."

Supreme Court Stays Rook Execution

By JOHN FLESHER

Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — John William Rook's life will likely be spared at least six months while his attorneys try to persuade the U.S. Supreme Court to hear an appeal, now that the court has granted a stay of his scheduled Valentine's Day execution.

"We are going to now turn our attention toward preparing a petition for them to review the case on the merits," said David Rudolf, a Durham attorney who heads Rook's defense team.

The Supreme Court, without a recorded dissenting vote, issued the stay Monday, ordering North Carolina officials to delay Friday's scheduled execution.

"We are very, very pleased that we've gotten a stay," Rudolf said.

Rook's lawyers have 90 days in which to file a petition asking the high court to consider new arguments. The state will have 30 days to respond, after which the court will decide whether to hear the case.

If the court lifts the stay, state law requires that a new execution date be set in a hearing in Wake County Superior Court, where Rook was convicted and sentenced. The execution would be scheduled for 60 to 90 days from the hearing date.

Rook, 26, learned of the stay from a fellow inmate who was watching television Monday, said Renee Mc-Coy, a state Department of Correction spokeswoman.

"I'm happy about the stay," Rook was quoted as saying to Central Prison Warden Nathan Rice, who brought him official word of the stay about 5 p.m., Ms. McCoy said.

Rook was convicted of killing Anne Marie Roche, 25, after abducting her from a Raleigh street in 1980. Rook told police he took the Raleigh nurse to an isolated field where he raped her, beat her with a tire iron and slashed her with a knife.

He was scheduled to die in North Carolina's Central Prison and had chosen lethal injection over the gas chamber as the form of execution.

Rook's lawyers were meeting with top aides to Gov. Jim Martin when the Supreme Court notified them of the ruling, said Sam Wilson, the governor's legal counsel. Rudolf said Martin would be asked to grant Rook executive clemency should legal appeals fail.

Rudolf and Wilson refused to provide details of the meeting, which Martin did not attend.

"The meeting today was something that needed to be done in case we didn't get a stay," Rudolf said.

After meeting with reporters, Rudolf departed for Central Prison to inform Rook of the court's decision. He would not comment on whether his client had held out much hope of a reprieve.

"I don't think it was a surprise,"

Rudolf said. "We were all hopeful. We thought we were going to get a stay but it's always nice to hear them say the words."

Wilson said in an interview that Martin had received no formal request for clemency. Monday afternoon's discussion was "just an information meeting" at which Rook's attorneys made a presentation about the case, Wilson said.

He said he was to have begun briefing Martin about the case shortly in anticipation of a clemency plea. The governor has not studied the case in detail and will not unless a clemency appeal appears imminent, Wilson said.

Martin is a death penalty supporter and as a member of Congress voted to make capital punishment applicable to certain federal crimes, Wilson said.

Rook's lawyers asked Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, who handles emergency requests from North Carolina for the high court, for help last week. Burger referred the request to the full court on Friday.

The request called Rook's case one of "tragic extremes," stating that he had been raised in "an environment of incredible violence and deprivation."

Rook's lawyers said his parents forced him to leave home at age 7 to live in trash bins and cardboard boxes, and that he had to sell himself as a child prostitute to survive.

Project Would Create 8,000 Construction Jobs

State Has Good Chance Of Being Site Of $6 Billion 'Proton Buster'

By TOM MINEHART

Associated Press Writer

North Carolina could be among the top three contenders for a $6 billion "proton buster" that would help scientists see what matter is made of by hurtling protons around a 60-mile ring at nearly the speed of light, says a University of North Carolina physicist.

"It would be the largest and most expensive scientific apparatus ever constructed, and it would be used purely to further our knowledge of the structure of matter," said Paul Frampton, a UNC-Chapel Hill physics professor who is leading an effort to bring the SSC — the superconducting super collider — to this state.

Frampton said that among the 20 states competing for the SSC, Illinois has a good chance because it already has the largest existing particle accelerator, the four-mile Fermilab Tevatron near Chicago. And Texas has the advantage of "a lot of money," he said.

"I think North Carolina may be third after those two," he said. "We're running a quiet campaign."

The campaign brought Frampton and Patricia Poteat, a policy analyst for the state Department of Administration, to a November meeting in Houston, where they touted North Carolina's stable geology, mild climate, quality of life, public and private research facilities, transportation and proximity to large East Coast cities.

"This seems like a real opportunity for this state to capture something that will bring in a lot of money, jobs and clean research," said Ms. Poteat. "It would also be very prestigious. It would be an honor to have it here."

The SSC is expected to employ up to 8,000 people for construction and some 3,000 people when it is completed as early as 1993. Another 3,000 jobs could be created in related areas, said Frampton.

Federal funding for the project is by no means assured, but Frampton said national pride suggests the United States won't let itself be outdone by two 15-mile-circumference accelerators being built in Europe and the Soviet Union with completion expected before 1990.

The federal government has already funded $40 million for research on the SSC. The Universities Research Association, which includes Duke and UNC among its 56 members, is overseeing the project.

Scientists had considered building the SSC 100 miles around, but current plans call for stronger magnets and a 60-mile circumference, he said.

Three sites, all near the Triangle area, are under consideration for the proton buster, which would be 200 feet underground with an above-ground laboratory site covering about five square miles, said Frampton.

"One site looks more interesting than the others," he said. "The state owns a few tens of thousands of acres in the vicinity near the Triangle area and sufficiently near the Raleigh-Durham Airport." He said he could not get more specific about the site.

Asked why it wouldn't be better to put the SSC on flat, unpopulated land out west, Frampton said its tunnel could be bored 200 feet underground without interfering with the surface. And Ms. Poteat said the scientists would work there where they would prefer to live closer to civilization than the Nevada desert.

"This accelerator is completely safe," said Frampton. "It has no comparison to a nuclear reactor or a nuclear waste dump. There are no long-lived radioactive isotopes produced, just a very small amount of energy involved in each proton-proton collision. The amount of radiation created is negligible at the surface of the earth."

"Surface activity even above the ring is completely safe," he said. "You could even put it under a city, although they usually try to put them in more sparsely populated areas."

The SSC's powerful magnets would accelerate protons to 99.999999 percent of the speed of light, or about 186,000 miles per second. Protons would be accelerated in each direction to make over 3,000 circuits per second, then collide head-on with an energy of 40 trillion electron volts at six intersecting stations. The protons would scatter into smaller particles, some of which scientists have predicted in theory but have not detected in experiments so far.

The larger accelerator is needed because increasing the energy of the collisions enables scientists to view shorter distances for the resulting particles, Frampton said. Scientists want to see whether previously unknown forces come into play within a distance 10,000 times smaller than the radius of a proton — about 20 times smaller than has ever been investigated.

"It's like building a bigger and more powerful microscope — it lets you look at things that are much smaller," he said.

The U.S. Department of Energy estimates it will cost each state about $500,000 to make a final proposal. Frampton said Gov. Jim Martin told him Dec. 19 that North Carolina could commit $100,000 to $200,000 for a preliminary exploration, but Ms. Poteat said that figure could be reduced considerably by using experts already employed by the state.

The full proposals would be submitted to the Department of Energy after spring 1987, said Frampton. Ms. Poteat said state experts hope to have something to present to Martin when the Legislature convenes in June.

"I should emphasize that no decision has been made yet to proceed with a full-scale and rather expensive proposal," she said. "We're still in the preliminary stages and have to answer certain technical questions before we know if we want to proceed."

Of the 20 states competing for the project, "some of them have merely drawn circles on maps," said Frampton.

"I think Illinois and Texas have done the most and are ahead of us," he said. "Two or three other states may already be ahead of us, but we can certainly catch up if we have a site proposal by the requisite time. But we have to move ahead now."

State Says Medical Rates Unsupported

RALEIGH (AP) — Medical Mutual Insurance Co. of North Carolina failed to provide sufficient data to justify its proposal for a 357 percent hike in medical malpractice insurance premiums for family practitioners who deliver babies, an Insurance Department official said.

"There appears to be no justification in the filing for a change of that magnitude," Roger Langley, deputy commissioner in charge of the department's fire and casualty division, said Monday.

He said the company's proposal did not provide data on losses for each of eight categories of physicians. The premium that a physician would pay is based on the category.

For example, a physician in category 1 performs no surgery and has the lowest premium of any category. A neurosurgeon would be in category 8 and would pay the largest premium.

In particular, Langley said, the proposal does not show why premiums would increase from $4,840 to $22,126 for most family practice doctors who deliver babies and have been in practice for five years or more.

That increase would put those doctors in a higher-premium category — boosting their premiums to the same as those paid by specialists in obstetrics and gynecology who also deliver babies.

The company proposed the increase Jan. 31 to take effect March 1. The company may put the increase into effect with the state insurance commissioner's approval. But state law gives the commissioner the right to reject a filing if he deems it inadequate. He may also call a hearing on a filing he considers insufficient.

Teen-Ager Gets Life Sentence

HILLSBOROUGH, N.C. (AP) — A prosecutor says he has no second thoughts about his pledge not to seek the death penalty against a Hillsborough teen-ager in lieu of information that helped officials find the body of a graduate student.

"It was not an easy decision to make," District Attorney Carl Fox said. "But it is one that I have not regretted from the moment it was done."

Maxwell Avery Wright, 16, was sentenced in Orange County Superior Court Monday to life plus 55 years after pleading guilty to second-degree murder in the slaying of University of North Carolina graduate student Sharon Lynn Stewart.

Wright also pleaded guilty to one count of first-degree kidnapping, one count of second-degree kidnapping, two counts of armed robbery and one count of attempted rape.

Fox said he did not think he could have convicted Wright of murder without recovering Miss. Stewart's body.

"We felt there was a slim or insignificant likelihood that we could proceed with first- or second-degree murder if we could not prove the death of Sharon Lynn Stewart," he said.

Before he was sentenced, Wright told Judge F. Gordon Battle he intended to prove while in prison that his regret for his actions was sincere.

"I'm not going to act sorry because that's all it would be, just an act ...," Wright said. "I have to go into the system, get my education, and when I'm eligible to get out, you and the community will know I meant what I said."

Fox said Wright might be eligible for parole in 37 years. Wright faced a maximum of 220 years in prison on all charges, with a presumptive sentence of 70 years under North Carolina's Fair Sentencing Act.

Wright was charged in the slaying of the 23-year-old Miss Stewart, who was kidnapped along with her roommate from a Chapel Hill parking lot Aug. 24, 1985. Miss Stewart's body was found Aug. 30 in an oil drum at a construction site near Greensboro.

Miss Stewart's roommate, Karla K. Hammett, told police a man wielding a knife forced the two women into Miss Hammett's car.

"Sharon kept protesting," Miss Hammett testified. "He bought out the knife and said, 'Do you want me to use this?'"

As they drove, Miss Hammett said the man kept saying "No tricks, no tricks, don't do anything."

IN THE STATE

Funds Awaited

ABERDEEN, N.C. (AP) — Congressional failure to provide more money for the federal Superfund has put cleanup of at least two hazardous waste sites in Moore County on hold, Environmental Protection Agency officials say.

"It's a real difficult situation," said Charliss Thompson, public affairs officer with the EPA's regional offices in Atlanta. "We're not getting any (Superfund) money and at the same time we're being criticized for not doing the job."

Three hazardous waste sites in Aberdeen have been cleaned up with more than $1.3 million in federal Superfund money, while a local company removed chemicals at a fourth disposal site. Two known dumps are still awaiting cleanup, and officials say other sites may be found in the area.

The dumps contain several dangerous chemicals, including DDT, DDD, BHC, lindane, dieldrin, heptachlor and toxaphene.

Once used as legal pesticides, some of the chemicals have been banned by federal and state governments because they are poisonous to fish and wildlife. Some also have been linked to cancer in animals and humans.

Funding for the EPA's Superfund was cut off with the end of the federal fiscal year last September. Part of the Comprehensive Environmental Response Compensation and Liability Act of 1980, Superfund includes two programs, Ms. Thompson said.

percent. A two-thirds majority was required for approval.

Anyone can grow peanuts and there are no acreage allotments. But only peanuts grown within a farm's assigned quota are eligible for government price supports at the higher quota loan rate. Peanuts grown in addition to the quota or by producers without quotas are supported at a lower rate.

Officials said the 1986 peanut support rates will be announced by Feb. 15.

Drilling

RALEIGH (AP) — The U.S. Interior Department has proposed to ban offshore oil and gas exploration in a 36-square-mile area surrounding the sunken Civil War ironclad USS Monitor.

Permanent protection for the Monitor site, discovered in 1973 about 16 miles southeast of Cape Hatteras, was proposed in a revised version of the Interior Department's plan for leasing offshore exploratory rights to petroleum companies from January 1987 through December 1991. The five-year plan will be submitted for public comment before it is adopted.

Two attempts to sell leases in the Monitor sanctuary in the past five years have been opposed by state officials, and the offers ultimately failed because no one bid for them.

Peanut Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — Peanut farmers have voted overwhelmingly, as they have since 1974, to continue federal controls over the next five crop years in return for "quota" rate price supports, the Agriculture Department said Monday.

The preliminary results of a referendum held Jan. 27-31, showed that 20,902 of 21,463 votes cast favored continuing annual poundage quotas. That was an approval margin of 97.4

NASA Says Investigation Still Covering All Factors

WASHINGTON (AP) — Acting NASA administrator William Graham said today that while initial suspicions about the cause of the space shuttle disaster have centered on rocket booster seals, space agency officials "are still looking across a broad range of issues to try to establish what actually happened."

Concern about seals on the rocket booster, raised in an internal NASA memorandum written last July, doesn't mean that space officials have "singled out any one area at point as a unique source of concern" in the destruction of the Challenger and the loss of its seven-member crew, Graham told a presidential commission probing the Jan. 28 accident.

Added top NASA official Jesse Moore, "We are not exonerating any aspect of this particular incident as being free either of cause or effect."

Graham also predicted that other NASA memoranda "expressing engineering issues and ... concerns" would probably surface as the probe unfolds.

Graham was the lead-off witness as the commission, headed by former Secretary of State William Rogers, resumed public hearings. As he did at the panel's opening public hearing last Thursday, the acting NASA head pledged his agency's full cooperation with the commission.

He also said NASA will be releasing on Wednesday a three-inch thick stack of documents concerning the accident. NASA has come under criticism from several news organizations for withholding even the most mundane details of the launch.

Graham made his comments before the commission in Washington while a top Kennedy Space Center official fielded questions from reporters in Florida, saying that he doesn't believe ground crew fatigue was a factor in the accident.

"We don't feel that fatigue was a factor with our work out here," said Thomas Utsman, adding that NASA was not running a "sweat factory."

He said the agency has a "policy that no one works seven days a week," although he also said there are exceptions to that rule.

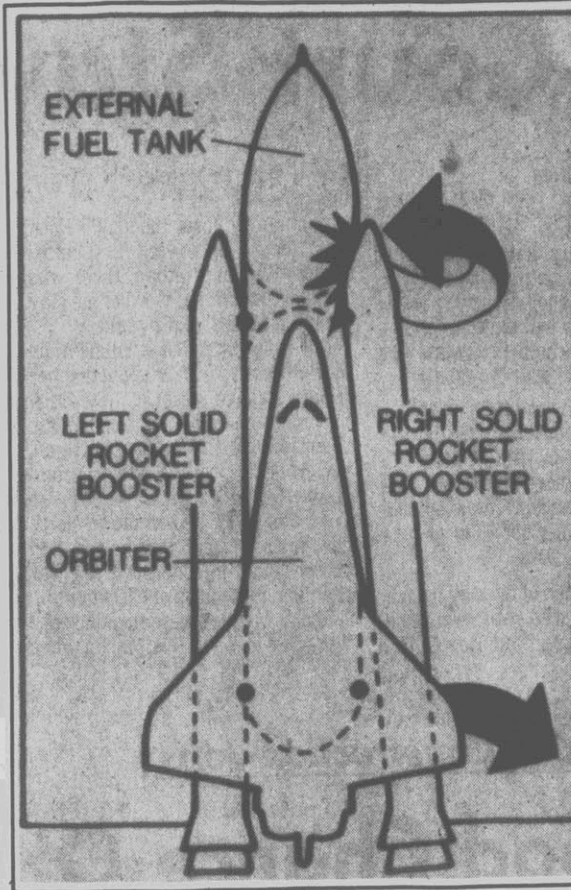

In Washington, the opening moments of today's hearing consisted of a colloquy between Rogers and Graham, in which each man went out of his way to stress that their two organizations are working together.

Rogers, in fact, said Graham had "asked me to have a public session today to make clear that NASA was not trying to brush anything under the rug."

Despite Graham's statement that NASA is continuing to cast a wide net in its investigation, early concern has focused heavily on the reliability of the seals.

Segments of the twin booster rockets that power the shuttle's ascent into space, and must be able to contain the hot gases generated by the burning fuel.

The early search for a cause of the Jan. 28 accident has focused on the

Near-Collision

ATLANTA (AP) — The pilot of a Delta Air Lines 727 had to dive "a couple hundred" feet to avoid an Eastern Airlines 727 after an air traffic controller mistakenly put the jetliners on a collision course, officials said.

No passengers were injured in the incident Monday over Toccoa in northern Georgia, said Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Jack Barker.

Barker said he did not know how low the Delta jetliner had to dive, and that "there was an error in air traffic control."

Jim Ewing, a Delta spokesman at its Atlanta headquarters, said evasive action by pilots is normally "a couple hundred" feet. Ewing said the Delta pilot would be interviewed today.

The Delta plane was en route from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., to Chicago, and the Eastern jet was heading from Philadelphia to Atlanta, Barker said.

James Stogner, director of airport operations at Hartsfield International Airport, said the Eastern flight landed safely in Atlanta. "We have had no problems out here at all," Stogner said.

U.S. Asks Soviets To Select Summit Despite Differences

By BARRY SCHWEID
AP Diplomatic Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is urging the Soviet Union to set a date for this year's summit meeting despite U.S.-Soviet differences over how to curb nuclear weapons.

A U.S. statement Monday seemed designed to counter Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev's move last week to tie the timing of his next meeting with President Reagan to evidence of progress toward elimination of intermediate-range U.S. and Soviet nuclear missiles in Europe.

The State Department publicly reminded the Soviet leader that he and Reagan agreed last November in Geneva to make preparations to meet again. An agreement on a date "is an important part of these preparations, and we would like the Soviets to move ahead on this issue," department spokesman Charles Redman said.

Another U.S. official, who insisted on anonymity, said the purpose of the statement was to separate preparations for the summit from the Geneva negotiations on nuclear weapons.

Reagan is awaiting a report from two special U.S. envoys, Paul H. Nitze and Edward L. Rowley, before replying to Gorbachev's proposal, which also envisaged ridding the world of all nuclear weapons within 15 years.

Nitze is due to return from a tour of West European capitals on Friday, a U.S. official said. Rowley's return from Asia, where he was meeting with the leaders of Japan, China, South Korea and Australia, was not set.

Even so, Gorbachev could receive the latest U.S. position from Reagan before the Soviet Communist party congress convenes in Moscow on Feb. 25.

The two former U.S. negotiators are discussing several options, including a suggestion by the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency that Reagan propose the Soviets reduce by 50 percent the more than 100 SS-20 missiles they have aimed at China and Japan.

Gorbachev made no mention of these missiles in proposing that the SS-20s in Europe be dismantled along with U.S. Pershing 2 and cruise missiles in West Germany, Britain and Italy.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., during a news conference Saturday on his return from Moscow, said Gorbachev "would question what the value (is) of having an immediate meeting in June or the very near future" if the two leaders could not sign an agreement to reduce nuclear weapons or to end weapons tests.

But the State Department said while arms control was a priority task, "we think progress should be made in other aspects of the relationship as well."

In an interview published in today's Washington Post, Reagan said he was "optimistic" that Washington and Moscow will reach an arms control accord this year on the European missile issue, now that the Soviets are not conditioning such an agreement on the United States abandoning its "Star Wars" missile defense plan.

The president also said he continues to hope for a second summit with Gorbachev in June or July, adding that he "can't believe" the Soviet leader would let the chance for a second meeting slip away.

The lack of a date for the next summit meeting had been treated by the administration until now as a noncontroversial issue. Some U.S. officials had suggested the Soviets were trying to shift Gorbachev's visit to September from June in order to influence the congressional elections.

After Gorbachev tried to tie the meeting to resolving differences over weapons, the administration changed its stance.

Kennedy also announced Saturday that Soviet authorities had agreed to permit the emigration of 25 people on a list provided by the senator.

The 25 are all Jews, comprising seven families, three of which have been seeking permits for more than 10 years, the State Department said Monday.

Hotel Fire Kills 19

TOKYO (AP) — Police recovered 19 bodies from the ruins of a three-story, wooden hotel building destroyed in a raging predawn fire today in a seaside resort spa west of Tokyo. Five people were still missing, a police official said.

The official, who insisted on anonymity, said no foreigners were among the victims in the fire that destroyed one building of the Daitokan Hotel at Atagawa, 81 miles west of Tokyo on the Izu Peninsula.

The official said the fire was believed to have started in a first-floor entertainment hall of the structure, built in 1939, and that investigators would look into reports that the fire alarms may not have worked.

He said the fire was brought under control at around 5 a.m., about three hours after it broke out.

At the time of the fire, 357 people were staying at a newer building that was untouched by the blaze, and 28 were in the wooden building across the street. Two guests and two employees escaped safely, the official said.

The Daitokan fire spread to the adjacent Atagawa Grand Hotel, causing damage there from the third through the fifth floors, but about 30 guests in that hotel escaped unharmed, police said.

It was Japan's worst hotel fire since a blaze at the Hotel New Japan in Tokyo on Feb. 8, 1982, killed 32 people.

Earlier reports had listed 23 people still missing although 10 bodies had been recovered, but the official said figures for missing and dead apparently had contained duplications since none of the victims had been identified.

One guest who escaped, Fujio Ida, 27, told Kyodo News Service he and his wife woke up choking on smoke in the middle of the night. He said the "room was white with smoke and we couldn't see a thing." He said they jumped onto the roof of an adjacent building.

State, National Officials Call For Farm Help

By JONATHAN W. OATIS
Associated Press Writer

Iowa's governor vowed not "to stand idly by" as the Farmers Home Administration begins pursuing overdue loans, the Rev. Jesse Jackson called for a moratorium on foreclosures, and Ohio Girl Scouts launched a fund drive for debt-laden farmers.

Farmers are being squeezed by crushing debt, low crop prices and plummeting land values, and the problems have driven some to suicide. Georgia officials on Monday announced a hotline to help in finding jobs and public assistance.

FmHA county offices in Georgia plan to begin notifying more than 4,000 farmers this week that they may face foreclosure if they don't get their loans in order. The Federal Land Bank and the Farmers Production Credit Association have already begun foreclosure proceedings against another 293 farms.

In Iowa, Gov. Terry Branstad said Monday that many farmers have received federal foreclosure notices, and that the state would probably sue the federal government if the foreclosures were pushed. "We're not going to stand idly by and let massive liquidations happen," he vowed.

Iowa farmer Larry Landt, 47, became the latest victim of the farm debt crisis when he used his shotgun to commit suicide Sunday. Landt was despondent about his finances, said Marshall County Medical Examiner Dr. David Bethel.

It was the second farm suicide in less than a week. Georgia farmer L.D. Hill III, 67, shot himself to death Feb. 5 in the hope that money from his life insurance policy would enable his family to keep the farm.

In a news conference, Branstad said he was losing patience with federal officials and the Iowa Legislature.

He declared an economic state of emergency in Iowa on Oct. 1, allowing farmers to seek one-year moratoriums on foreclosure proceedings.

"It's February 10 and we still haven't seen any action on the farm credit issue at the either the state or federal level," he said. "Time is wasting." Branstad said the federal government has been slow to reduce interest rates and made his strongest attack on federal farm officials.

"They've been working against farmers instead of for farmers," he said. "I'm serving them notice that it's time they begin to work and start representing the farmer and stop representing the bureaucrats."

In Missouri, Jackson began a two-day visit keyed on farmers' problems.

"I'm calling for a moratorium on farm foreclosures and repossession of farms," he said in Jefferson City. "I'm calling for emergency needs for farmers, like heat for their houses and food."

"We need to give the farmer a chance, as they have given the world food for their appetites and needs."

The civil rights activist and 1984 candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination was invited to Missouri to speak at a farm rally at the Capitol today. He was to meet with farmers and lawmakers, Gov. John Ashcroft and high school students.

Surrounded by farmers wearing buttons saying "Parity not Charity" and "Farms not Arms," Jackson said that if the government had the money to launch the "Star Wars" missile defense system, it could help the farmer.

"With the collapse of the agriculture industry, banks, insurance companies and home loans institutions are going to collapse," Jackson warned.

Georgia Gov. Joe Frank Harris said the hotline would begin operating March 15 after the state surveys public and private programs for farmers.

There will be no new state job training programs, but state Labor Commissioner Joe Tanner said the Labor Department is restructuring programs to help displaced farmers find work.

In Springfield, Ohio, the 11 members of Girl Scout Troop 560 are trying to raise $2,000 to help farmers. They have received about $30 cash and $350 worth of merchandise for an April 4 auction, said leader Linda LeBlanc.

Many of the girls live in a farm area and will stay there, Mrs. LeBlanc said. She said she told them that by raising the money, "You can look back and say, 'We made a difference.'"

Farm Crop Exceeding Projections

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 1985 corn harvest was even larger than the Agriculture Department had estimated last fall, and that spells further price difficulties for farmers.

An annual review said Monday that last year's corn harvest was about 8.87 billion bushels, up 16 percent from 1984 and about 150 million bushels more than the department's last estimate of 8.72 billion bushels in November. The previous high was 8.24 billion bushels in 1982.

In a related report, department economists projected the farm price of corn in the 1985-86 marketing year at an average of $2.30 to $2.50 per bushel, down a nickel from January's forecast. In 1984-85, corn prices at the farm averaged $2.65 per bushel, and in 1983-84 averaged $3.25 per bushel, reflecting a much smaller supply.

Still another report issued Monday showed the United States had 7.88 billion bushels of corn in storage as of Jan. 1, up 34 percent from Jan. 1, 1985. The indicated use of corn during the October-December quarter was 2.37 billion bushels, down 6 percent from the comparable period a year earlier.

The annual review of crop production showed last year's corn yields averaged a record 118 bushels per acre, up 11.8 bushels from 1984 and 4.8 bushels more than the old 1982 record.

Overall, 1985 crop production was rated at 116 percent of a 1977 base level used for comparison. The "all crops" indicator, however, fell short of the record of 118 percent in 1982. It dropped to 88 percent in 1983 as a result of drought and government acreage cutbacks, rising to 110 percent in 1984.

Total feed grains — mostly corn but also including sorghum, oats and barley — were shown at 274 million metric tons, up 16 percent from 237 million tons in 1984. A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds and is equal to 39.4 bushels of corn or 36.7 bushels of wheat.

Although bushels were used to describe yields and production of specific commodities, tonnages were used for basic groups.

Food grains, for example, were put at 72.7 million tons in 1985, down 6 percent from 77.7 million tons in 1984. The decline was due mainly to a 7 percent drop in 1985 wheat production to 2.42 billion bushels, and a 2 percent smaller rice crop, shown at 136 million hundredweight.

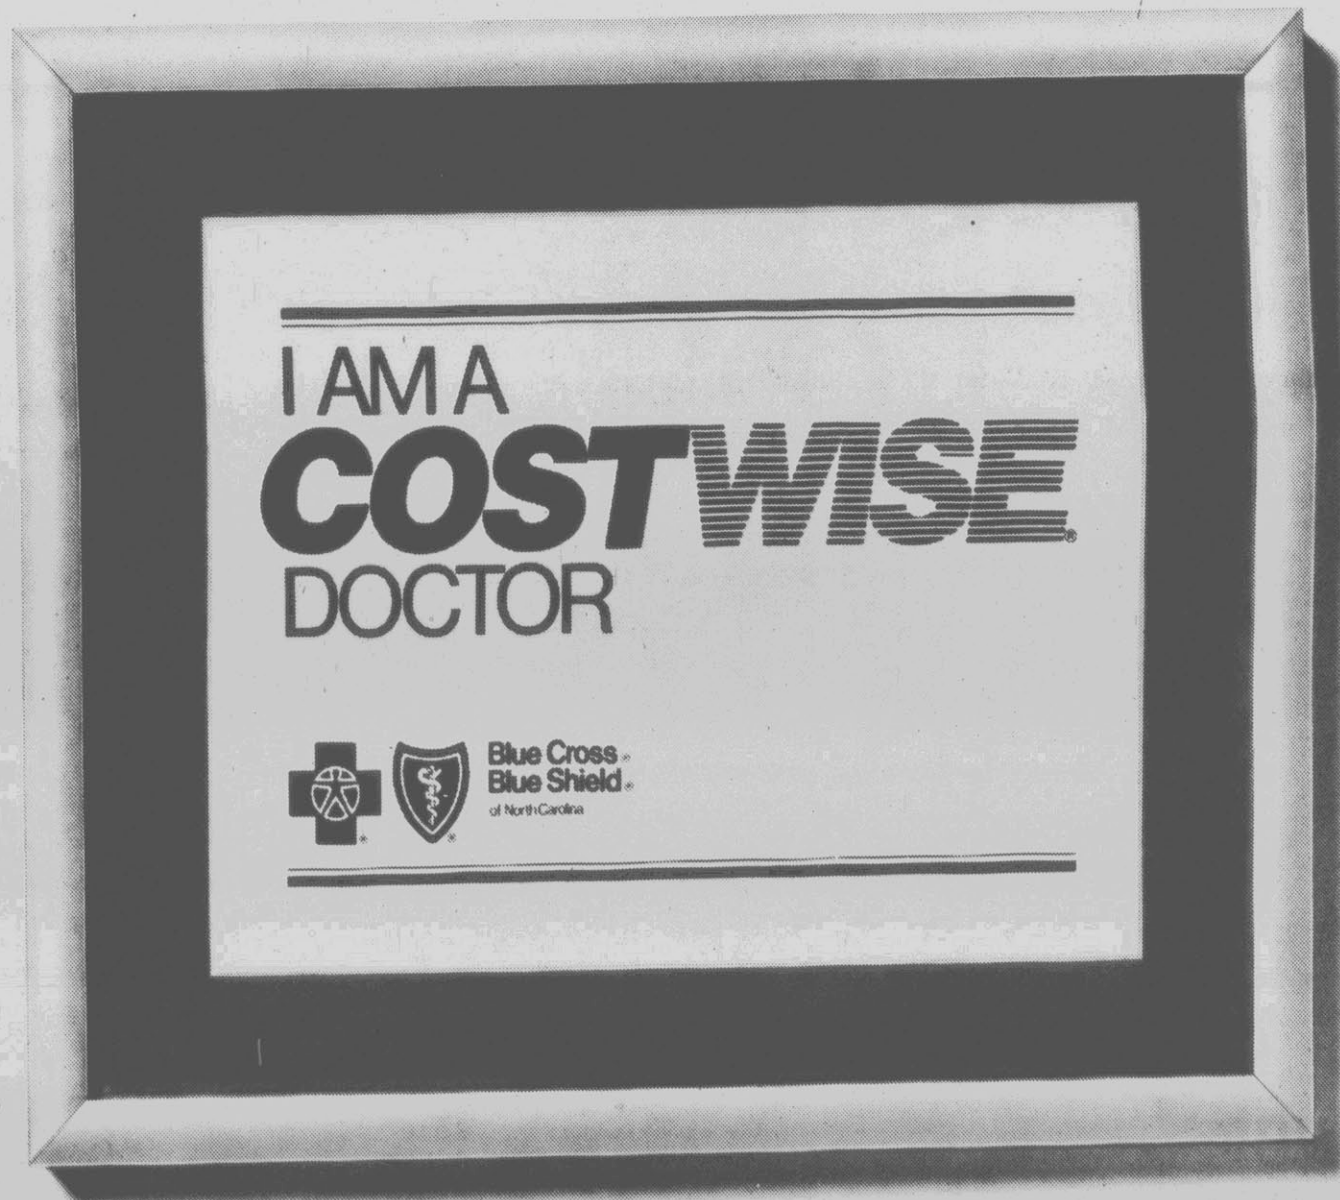

The 1985 soybean harvest was about 2.1 billion bushels, up 13 percent from 1984 and the third largest on record. The average yield of 34.1 bushels per acre was a record. In November, the soybean estimate had been 2.13 billion bushels.

Cotton production last year was estimated at 13.5 million bales, up 4 percent from 1984. Yields averaged a record of 630 pounds per acre, up from the previous high of 600 pounds in 1984. The record cotton crop was nearly 19 million bales in 1937.

Total tobacco output in 1985 was reported at 1.55 billion pounds, down 10 percent from 1984, although the per-acre yield was a record 2,207 pounds per acre, up 24 pounds from 1984.

Peanut production dropped 6 percent last year to 4.14 billion pounds, the report said.

CHECK YOUR DOCTOR'S VITAL SIGNS.

Signs like this are appearing in doctors' offices across the state. Doctors who display them have joined Blue Cross and Blue Shield of North Carolina in the battle against rising health care costs. They have become CostWise doctors. That's important for you to know. Because health care costs affect everyone. When costs go up, coverage premiums ultimately go up too.

Under the CostWise program, participating doctors agree to accept the amounts we allow for various treatments. In fact, you won't even have to file a claim form. The doctor will handle it for you. Your only obligation will be the co-payment, or deductible or non-covered services if applicable.

Of course, to benefit from all this you have to be a Blue Cross and Blue Shield of North Carolina member.

The CostWise doctors deserve a lot of credit. Because they're helping slow the rise in premiums and co-payments. Thanks to them, you'll be getting the best possible medical care at the lowest possible cost.

So check your doctor's vital signs. And if you see one that says CostWise, you'll know you're in the right place.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices edged lower early today as the market took a respite from the pace which has kept it at record highs for the past three sessions.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was 1.72 points lower at 1,624.66 by 10:30 a.m. on Wall Street.

Johnson & Johnson led the most active list, falling 1/2 to 49 1/4 as 1.39 million shares changed hands in the first 30 minutes of trading. Sales of the company's Extra Strength Tylenol were halted in Westchester County, N.Y., after a woman in Yonkers died of cyanide poisoning after taking the pain reliever. Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. took the product off the shelves of its more than 1,000 stores on Monday night.

Seven Chicago-area people died in 1982 after taking cyanide-laced Tylenol capsules.

On the New York Stock Exchange, losers outnumbered gainers by about 6-5, with Big Board volume reaching 17.31 million shares in the first 30 minutes of trading.

The NYSE's composite index fell 0.24 to 124.34. The American Stock Exchange's market value index fell 0.22 to 243.62.

Tornadoes Hit Georgia Area

By The Associated Press
A storm stretching from Texas into New York coated highways with ice and up to 8 inches of snow, causing hundreds of fender-benders and forcing school closings today, while tornadoes ripped through south Georgia, damaging homes and injuring at least 14 people.

A state of emergency was declared today in Ware County, Ga., to mobilize off duty emergency workers and volunteers to assist in the cleanup from the tornadoes, County Commission Chairman Revis Dixon said.

A surge of arctic air, meanwhile, held the Rockies in a deep freeze, and with temperatures expected to dip to the low teens today, volunteers in Little Rock, Ark., rounded up more than 100 homeless residents and brought them to the city's largest emergency shelter.

At least seven people died since the weekend in accidents blamed on the weather.

The storm-related traffic accidents included more than 500 Monday in Nashville, Tenn., due to icy streets, and 200 in the Dallas-Forth Worth area. Schools were closed Monday in Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Arkansas. Thousands of travelers sought shelter over the weekend as up to 4 feet of snow closed Interstate 40 between Santa Rosa, N.M., and Amarillo, Texas.

Philippines Begins Official Vote Count

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Security men carried 13 green ballot boxes into the raucous National Assembly hall today to begin a count that will determine who won the disputed Philippine presidential election.

Supporters of President Ferdinand E. Marcos and challenger Corazon Aquino argued and jeered as the National Assembly debated for a second day how to count the votes in an election marked by opposition charges of fraud.

Hundreds of uniformed police mingled in the assembly with about 7,000 supporters of Mrs. Aquino and Marcos, both of whom have claimed victory. Scores of soldiers with rifles were deployed outside the hall to prevent any violence between the two sides.

When the ballot boxes were carried in, opposition assemblymen immediately objected to returns from one province in Marcos' home region because the tally sheet did not have the required seal.

"The absence of a seal is a criminal offense which can be prosecuted," shouted Assemblyman Marcelo Fernan, a member of Mrs. Aquino's party. The assembly speaker said the objection would be noted.

didn't stay long," he said.

His wife had campaigned worldwide for Shcharansky's release.

The release of Shcharansky, who became one of the most prominent dissidents in the Soviet Union, ended his interment in the Soviet Union. He was sentenced in 1978 to 13 years after being convicted of spying for the CIA — a charge he repeatedly denied.

Shcharansky, a Jew, said his only crime was applying for permission to emigrate to Israel.

U.S. officials had said Shcharansky was released before the others to emphasize their insistence that the activist in human rights and Jewish causes was not a spy.

On Glienicke Bridge, Shcharansky engaged Burt in an animated conversation. Eyewitnesses, including Associated Press reporter George Jahn, said Shcharansky, whose health had reportedly suffered in prison, appeared in good shape.

They were accompanied by police cars with blue lights flashing, as the temperatures dropped below freezing and gray skies covered Berlin. Reporters and about 100 onlookers stood around the bridge as the exchange got under way.

Pirates Hold Off Tribe

By WOODY PEELE

Reflector Sports Editor

Charlie Harrison, coach of the East Carolina Pirates, never likes to call a game "key," but he admitted last night that ECU's 52-47 win over William & Mary was just that.

"It was a very key game," Harrison said as the Pirates took a big step toward clinching one of the four home court first round Colonial Athletic Association tournament spots. The Pirates are now 6-5 in league play while William & Mary dips to 2-9. East Carolina can, with a victory over UNC-Wilmington next Saturday, clinch no worse than fourth place in the league's final standings.

"We've just come off a hell of a trip," Harrison said, referring to the road trip that began a week ago Friday and ended in the early hours of this past Thursday morning. "Some people may think this isn't too much work to do, just lounge around a motel room, but I can tell you it's hard.

"Then, we get back here in the middle of the night on Thursday morning, and these kids have to get up and go to class just like any other student — plus they've got a lot of catching up to do for the week they were gone. Then, they've got practice that afternoon. It's not easy, and Saturday night (against Richmond) we were just mentally worn out.

"I don't think we were fully emotionally up tonight, but we were enough," the coach said.

The Pirates, who led by as much as eight points in both halves, had to hold off the rebounding Indians, however. And while they never lead in the second half, the Indians kept the pressure on the Pirates right down to the wire.

It wasn't until Curt Vanderhorst hit a key jumper from the baseline with 24 seconds to go that the Pirates appeared to have it on ice. But Greg Burzell brought it back to one, 48-47, with 12 seconds left.

Marchell Henry was then fouled with ten seconds to go, making both shots to ice it with a 50-47 lead.

Jack Turnbull then set up just over the midcourt line and drew a charge from Ken Lambiotte that ended it. Vanderhorst was fouled with one second to go, making both for the final margin.

Harrison said later that he didn't want the Pirates putting up their final field goal effort until less than ten seconds remained on the shot clock — to burn as much time as possible. They had gotten the ball back with 1:05 remaining with a one-point lead. "We stayed in our regular set to make it easier just to play basketball. We wanted to wait until less than ten was left and we wanted a good shot. Curt got one."

Harrison said that the tempo of play that the Tribe uses is a problem for the Pirates, who prefer a more up-tempo game. "They surprised us a couple of times with quick shots, but usually it was their slow pattern. It helps to put you to sleep, gets them on the foul line to rest and helps them out."

This time, however, it didn't work that well. The Pirates were called for only 11 fouls and only one Indian, Lambiotte even got to the line, where he made but three of eight.

And therein lay the difference. East Carolina was a perfect eight for eight at the stripe, as both teams made 22 field goals on the night. "We're shooting the ball pretty well now," Harrison said. "We're up among the leaders in free throw shooting in the conference, and I think we're over 70 percent now."

Harrison also praised William & Mary as an improved team. "They're not the same team we played in Williamsburg. They're playing like they think they can win and they execute 100 percent better. They were well prepared and we were well scouted."

While East Carolina made the opening basket, William & Mary came back and took the lead at 7-6 on a jumper by Scott Covall. Burzell added another long jumper to give the Indians their biggest advantage, 9-6.

The Pirates fought back, regaining the lead at 14-12 on short jumper by Henry with 9:50 left in the half. East Carolina led the rest of the half.

Scott Hardy made a layup and Henry followed with two free throws that ran the lead to six. Manuel Jones then scored on a layup after making a steal that gave the Pirates their biggest lead, 20-12.

The Indians regained their balance after that, however, and stayed within striking distance, then scored the final three baskets of the half — two of them by Covall — to cut the margin to just two, 24-22, at the half.

Covall hit the first basket of the second half and after an exchange of buckets, Hardy hit a jumper that put ECU on top to stay, 28-26.

Baskets by Keith Sledge, Vanderhorst and Henry again opened up an eight point lead, 34-26, but the Pirates were never able to break it open.

The Indians fought back once more, cutting the lead to one on a layup by Lambiotte at 38-37 with 7:47 to go. Turnbull and Vanderhorst both scored to up the lead to three again, and the Pirates continued to stretch it, finally reaching seven again, 46-39.

But three straight by the Tribe again cut it to one, 46-45, with 1:32 remaining.

The Indians, with four fouls to waste, did just that, committing all four within a 25 seconds period, but failed to gain anything from it.

That led to Vanderhorst's jumper with 24 seconds remaining, and the foul shots by Henry and Vanderhorst that gave the Pirates the win.

Vanderhorst finished with 16 points, moving him from tenth to eighth on the all-time ECU scoring list. He now had 1,126 points, having passed Lacy West (1,111) and Herb Krusen (1,115).

Henry added 14 points for the Pirates.

William & Mary was led by Lambiotte with 13, Coval with 12 and Mark Batzel with 10.

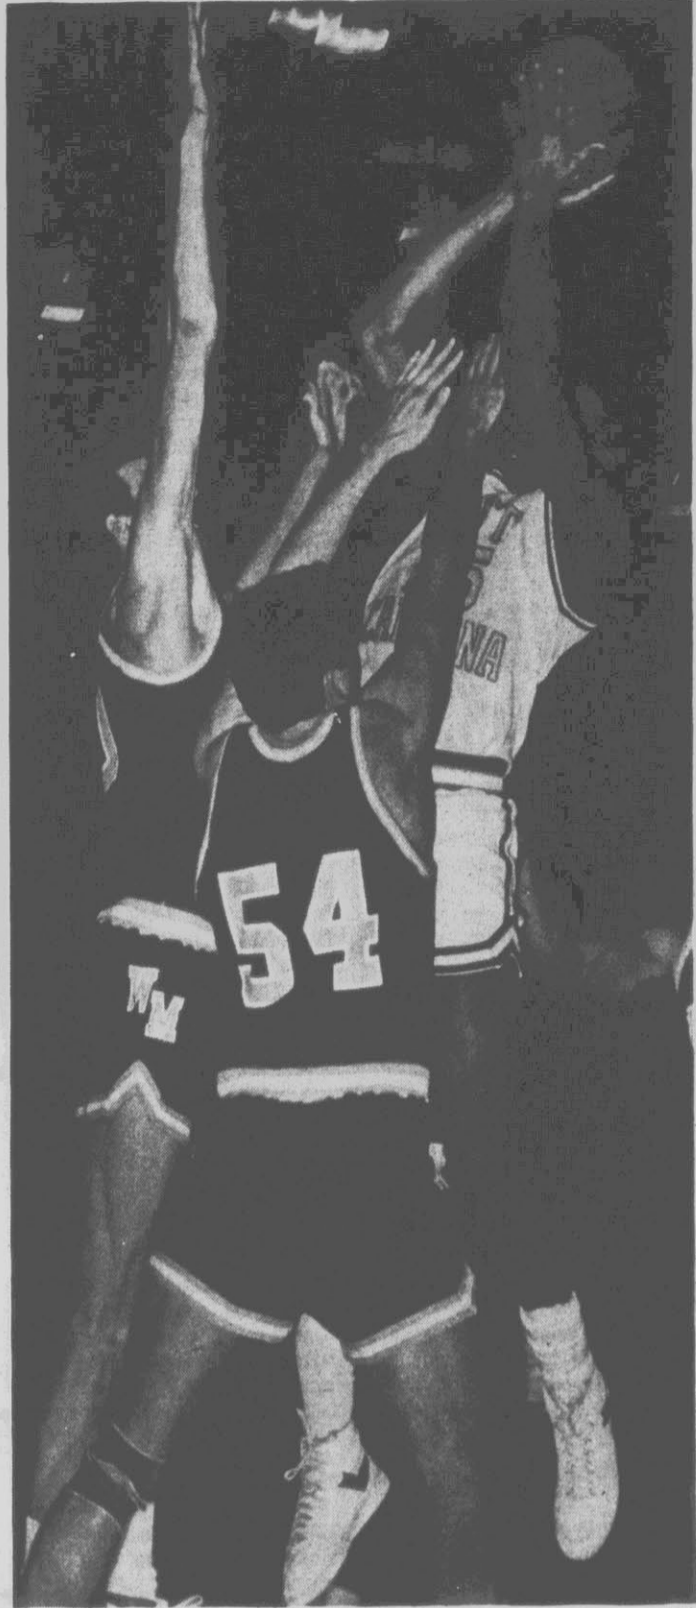

East Carolina is now off until Saturday when it entertains UNC-Wilmington in a very key CAA contest.

Lady Pirates Trim Indians

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. — Lisa Squirewell scored 18 points and pulled away nine rebounds to lead East Carolina's Lady Pirates to a 65-53 Colonial Athletic Association basketball victory over William & Mary last night.

The Lady Pirates, who knocked off the Lady Tribe earlier this year, 89-54, never were in any danger in the contest, but still never really put the pressure on the Indians.

"The game was much closer than I would have liked," Coach Emily Manwaring said afterwards. "I wasn't impressed with our offense or our defense tonight.

"We outrebounded them, but we also turned the ball over a lot."

East Carolina finished the game with a 45-34 margin in rebounding as Alma Bethea also added nine boards to Squirewell's and Delphine Mabry picked off eight. But the Lady Pirates committed 24 turnovers as compared to only 19 by the Tribe.

One of the big differences was the floor shooting. The Lady Pirates canned 27 of 54 shots for an even 50 percent. William & Mary made only 18 of 54, just 33 percent.

"We should be taking more steps toward preparing for (league-leading) James Madison, but we are at a standstill, still making mental errors," Manwaring said.

The Lady Pirates moved out into the lead early and built up a 35-24 edge in the first half. But in the second half, they went nearly five minutes without scoring, allowing the Lady Indians to get back into the game.

The Lady Pirates pulled away again, however, and although Squirewell fouled out with six minutes to go, the Tribe was unable to make another comeback.

"We had a lot of turnover and missed shots. It was a victory in the win column but not in our minds," Manwaring said. "Once you get a team down, you should keep them down."

Sylvia Bragg added 13 points to the ECU total while Loraine Foster hit 11.

William & Mary was led by Fonda Gray with 14 points while Karen Jordan was held to 11 on just four of 12 field goal attempts.

The victory boosted the ECU league record to 8-1 while the overall climbed to 18-6. The Indians dropped to 2-8 in the conference and 6-16 overall.

East Carolina returns to action on Saturday, traveling to UNC-Wilmington.

State Tops Brooklyn

RALEIGH (AP) — Center Chris Washburn scored a career-high 33 points, including 23 in the first half, to power North Carolina State to a 103-52 college basketball victory over Brooklyn College Monday night.

Brooklyn jumped out to a 4-0 lead before the Wolfpack, with Washburn getting 12 points, outscored the Kingsmen 24-4 to grab a 24-8 lead with 9:31 left in the opening half.

The closest Kingsmen could get from there was 24-12 on a pair of free throws by Joe Eley with 8:36 left in the half.

The Wolfpack then scored the last 10 points of the half to take a 44-21 lead.

Kinston To Play Two Here

BY DON REUTER
Reflector Staff Writer

The Kinston Eagles baseball club has announced plans to play two regular season games in Greenville this summer, marking the first time professional baseball will be played in the city in about 20 years.

Eagles President Gary Fitzpatrick announced the decision to play the games at Guy Smith Stadium in a news conference at the Greenville Sheraton on Monday.

Fitzpatrick said the club reached an agreement with Boyd Lee, director of Parks and Recreation for the City of Greenville.

The two games are scheduled for August 15th and 16th and will be played against the Hagerstown Suns of the Baltimore Orioles organization.

The decision to play the games in Greenville was made after Kinston was named the host city of the 1986

Babe Ruth World Series for 16-18 year olds. The Eagles home park, Grainger Stadium, will be the site of the week-long tournament.

"We're quite pleased to have an opportunity to bring our club to Greenville," Fitzpatrick said. "We've been trying to build a strong following in the Greenville area this year and this will provide us an excellent opportunity to show the people of Greenville what we have to offer."

Lee agreed that the idea of professional baseball should appeal to the people of Greenville.

"The City of Greenville is looking forward to having the Kinston Eagles in town this summer for good baseball and plenty of fun for the people of Greenville," Lee said.

The plans to play the contests in Greenville is more than just a substitute location for the Carolina League team.

"We're working very hard to become a regional recreation for the people in this part of the state," Fitzpatrick said. "In order for this franchise to be completely successful, we need a larger fan support base coming from a lot more people from outlying areas."

Fitzpatrick said fans who come to the games should be pleasantly surprised. "We're planning major promotions for both nights," he said. "Since Guy Smith Stadium has smaller dimensions to the fences than most professional ballparks, they should be exciting games because balls will be flying out of the park."

He said if the experiment is successful, more games will be scheduled in Greenville next year.

"We want to bring some exciting baseball here," Fitzpatrick said. "It's possible the Eagles could play eight, nine or 10 games here next year."

Guy Smith Stadium has a seating capacity of about 1,600 in the grandsstand, and officials say they plan to add bleachers which should accommodate up to 400 more fans.

Group ticket plans will be made available to area businesses.

Ticket prices for the general public have been set at $3 for grandstand seats and $2.50 for general admission. Tickets will also be sold at the gate the night of each game.

The Eagles plan to release additional ticket information at a later date.

Warren, Duggins Hold Leads

The leaders continue to hold their positions this week as Washington's Frankie Warren and Roanoke's Gloria Duggins pace the area's high school scoring races.

Warren continues to lead the area boys' race, but his average slipped a little this week, from 18.8 to 18.2.

Paul Hollingsworth of Greenville Christian holds onto second place among the boys at 17.5 while Henry Harris of Chocowinity is up from fourth to third at 16.3.

Last week's number three scorer, Derek Boyd of Roanoke, slipped to fourth at 16.1, while Art Reynolds of Trinity Christian held to fifth at 15.1. However, Marvin Smith of Ayden-Grifton has moved up to tie him for that spot also at 15.1.

Roanoke's Duggins, who can only watch from the sidelines after a season-ending knee injury a month ago and face the future with mixed emotions. She wants her teammates to do well and continue playing past next week's conference tournament, but at the same time, with only 13 games to her credit, should the Lady Redskins surpass 25 games this year, she would no longer be eligible for the scoring honors, since she must play in more than half of the team's contests.

Still, she leads the race with a 27.9 average while Lisa Lang of Farmville Central holds to second at 21.4.

Washington's Sarah Gray is still third at 19.5 while Karen Edmonds of Ayden-Grifton holds to fourth at 15.2. Trinity's Renee Deans is still fifth at 14.5.

Trinity is still the top team in boys' scoring with a 65.6 average with Ayden-Grifton second at 62.4.

Trinity also leads in defense at 44.6 with Farmville Central second at 49.3. Trinity's offense and defense gives it the top winning margin with a 20.9 separation. Ayden-Grifton is second at 10.8.

Greenville Christian tops the girls' offense with 54.1 while North Pitt is second at 47.4. Trinity leads in defense at 19.9 with GCA second at 28.6.

GCA has the top winning margin at 25.5, followed by North Pitt at 11.5.

Elliott, Bodine Will Sit On Daytona's Front Row

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Daytona International Speedway always has been considered a horsepower track, a place where the strength of your engine was the measure of your competitive ability.

But Bill Elliott and Geoff Bodine, the two men who nailed down the front-row positions for Sunday's Daytona 500 in a record-breaking qualifying session Monday, say that has changed.

"The track is another year older and it seems like it's slicker than it ever has been," said Elliott, who repeated as pole winner with a fast lap of 205.039 mph.

"You're gonna have to be handling just perfect to do well in the race," he added. "Earnhardt proved that (Sunday)."

Elliott was referring to Dale Earnhardt, who held off the pole-winning Ford Thunderbird to grab a $75,000 victory Sunday in the 50-mile Busch Clash sprint race for last year's pole winners.

"This has turned into a handling racetrack," Elliott continued. "I don't care how strong you come down the straightaway, you're gonna still have to get through the corners, especially with a lot of cars out there. And you won't get through the corners fast unless you get the car right."

Bodine, who was second to Elliott Monday with a fast lap of 204.545 in a Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS, said, "Handling has become very, very important here.

"Greg Sacks beat him (Elliott) and everybody else here last July (in the Firecracker 400) in a very good-handling car.

"A good-handling car will win this (Sunday's) race," Bodine added. "And it can be the car that starts 20th. You don't have to be one of the fastest cars. You have to be able to run fast and well through the corners lap after lap."

Still, horsepower played a major part in a record 25 cars running qualifying laps above 200 mph Monday.

Only seven cars were over 200 at Daytona last February. And Monday's total broke the single-session stock car record of 16 and the race record of 18, both set last May in qualifying for the Winston 500 at Talladega, Ala.

Most of the drivers said they were slowed by the combination of a strong headwind on the front straightaway and the slick 2½-mile track.

Those factors apparently kept

Elliott from breaking his own track qualifying record of 205.114, and it slowed his competition as well.

"We knew he (Elliott) was going to be the guy to beat, but, obviously, a lot of people are getting closer," said Bodine.

"We're a little disappointed we didn't run 205," he continued. "We ran that in testing and in practice (Sunday), but the conditions weren't right (Monday)."

The top 25 qualifiers in Monday's opening rounds of time trials for Sunday's Daytona 500, with type of car and qualifying lap in mph (only the top two qualifiers have locked in starting positions):

1. Bill Elliott, Ford Thunderbird, 205.039
2. Geoff Bodine, Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS, 204.545
3. Sterlin Marlin, Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS, 204.355
4. Cale Yarborough, Ford Thunderbird, 204.151

Heels Again Are Unanimous Pick

NEW YORK (AP) - North Carolina unanimously remains the No. 1 team in college basketball today, while neighbor North Carolina State has climbed back into The Associated Press' Top Twenty for the first time since the second week of the season.

The top-ranked Tar Heels have been first in every poll since the season began. They were unanimous choices twice before losing to Virginia but still remained No. 1 last week.

All 63 sports writers and broadcasters voting in this week's poll tabbed 24-1 North Carolina as the top team. The Tar Heels collected 1,260 points in the balloting, far ahead of the 1,186 for runner-up Duke. The Blue Devils, 22-2, second in the poll for the second time this season, moving up two spots this week.

beat the teams we have along the way, I couldn't be happier."

North Carolina State, meanwhile, jumped back into the ratings thanks to an upset of Louisville last week. The Wolfpack is 17-6 overall.

"I told the kids at the beginning of the season that being in the Top 20 doesn't mean anything then," Coach Jim Valvano said of the preseason poll, which placed N.C. State 17th. "But at the end of the season to be playing Top 20 basketball has got to make you feel good."

"I think we have an outstanding basketball team at this point. But it is the quality of the opposition that we face that most concerns me."

The Wolfpack still must face all of the top teams in the Atlantic Coast Conference, plus eighth-ranked Oklahoma.

"The kids have rallied from a low point in the season at Tallahassee (a loss to Florida State which dropped the Wolfpack to 3-3) to get where we are," said Valvano. "That means we have gone 14-3 since being 3-3 and to

'Sesame Street' Tops List For Young Kids' Viewing

RADNOR, Pa. (AP) — "Sesame Street" for preschoolers and "Afterschool Special" for teen-agers were unanimous choices of a panel of experts asked to name worthwhile television programs for children, TV Guide reports.

Absent from the lists compiled for the magazine's Feb. 15 edition were the popular action-adventure cartoons tied in with toys, such as "He-Man" and "Masters of the Universe."

"Program-length commercials," said Peggy Charren, president of Action for Children's Television.

"I see a lot of school-age boys in my practice who are very caught up in these aggressive cartoons," said Diane Koch, assistant professor of pediatric psychology at Cornell Medical Center.

The panel included pediatricians, child psychologists, educators, television network executives and consumer advocates. Each was asked to name at least one or two good programs for preschoolers, pre-teens and teen-agers.

"The quality is there, you just have to be willing to look for it," said Aimee Dorr, a UCLA educator.

The magazine did not specify the number of panelists or the number of votes needed to put a program on a list.

Of the 22 shows listed, "Sesame Street" and "Afterschool Special" were recommended by all the panel members. "Family Ties" was recommended for both teen-agers and pre-teens.

The lists:

— For preschoolers: "Sesame Street," Public Broadcasting System; "Mister Rogers' Neighborhood," PBS; "Pinwheel," Nickelodeon; "Fraggle Rock," Home Box Office; and "Welcome to Pooh Corner," the Disney Channel.

— For pre-teens: "3-2-1 Contact," PBS; "Reading Rainbow," PBS; "Faerie Tale Theater," Showtime; "Wonderworks," PBS; "Powerhouse," Nickelodeon; "Standby ... Lights! Camera! Action!," Nickelodeon; "You Can't Do That on Television," Nickelodeon; "Family Ties," NBC; and "Mr. Wizard's World," Nickelodeon.

— For teen-agers: "The Cosby Show," NBC; "Family Ties," NBC; "Highway to Heaven," NBC; "Main Street," NBC; "Afterschool Special," ABC; "Schoolbreak Special," CBS; "Family Playhouse," HBO; "National Geographic Explorer," WTBS; and "Livewire," Nickelodeon.

Some lone votes were recorded. Dorr liked ABC's "Diff'rent Strokes" and NBC's "Punky Brewster" and "Silver Spoons" because "they teach responsibility, honesty and taking care of your parents."

Ellen Wartella, a fellow at the Gannett Center for Media Studies at Columbia University, cast a vote for "Fame," now in syndication.

"The programming for teens is so preachy at times, that's why I chose 'Fame,'" she said. "My nephews love it because it deals with the essence of urban life and growing up."

Ambitious Capital Cable TV System Slow To Start

WASHINGTON (AP) — The District of Columbia had set lofty goals for its cable television system — local ownership with strong minority involvement, 80 channels with 16 set aside for public and municipal access and a two-way communications link for businesses, hospitals and schools.

Yet nearly two years after it negotiated the original contract for cable service, the system is in the hands of the country's largest cable operator, the proposed services have been scaled back and still none of the city's 250,000 households has been wired.

"There were a lot of unrealistic expectations on both sides about what cable operators could provide," said Richard Maulsby, executive director of the District of Columbia's office of cable television.

The District began debating cable legislation in the mid 1970s, finally passed a law in 1982 and two years later negotiated a contract with District Cablevision Inc., whose lead investor was Robert L. Johnson, a local black businessman.

But financing problems developed, and a new agreement was forged. While Johnson remains president of District Cablevision, Denver-based Tele-Communications Inc. is providing the lion's share of the financing and controls the operation.

In the new pact, the city made contract concessions, agreeing to fewer channels and reduced public access programming and abandoning the two-way communications link.

"If you look around the country, these are the same kinds of concessions being made" by a host of other cities trying to settle on a framework for cable, Maulsby said.

Johnson said through a spokeswoman he had no comment.

Of 32 of the largest cities where initial cable franchise awards were made over the past decade, there have been lawsuits in 18, said John Mansell, an analyst for Paul Kagan Associates, a research and consulting firm for the communications and financial industries. Contracts were renegotiated in eight cities before cable construction began and in 15 others after operators began building.

"This is something that has gone on in Chicago, Los Angeles, Minneapolis, Pittsburgh, Miami, Atlanta, Denver ... you can go right down the line," he said.

Backyard-Dish Sales Slumping

By BILL McCLOSKEY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The $1 billion-a-year home satellite antenna business is in a rut.

Experts disagree about reasons for the sales slump in the backyard dishes that people use to pull in television signals directly from satellites.

Vans Stevenson, editor of Home Satellite Newsletter, says dealers who sold 40,000 dishes last January "will be hard-pressed" to report half that figure this year. He said he based his estimate on interviews with manufacturers and distributors.

About 600,000 dishes were sold in 1985.

Joe Boyle, head of public relations for SPACE, the industry group representing manufacturers and installers, thinks the business downturn is temporary, brought on by confusion among potential buyers who think the scrambling of some television signals will make the backyard dishes useless.

"Once some of this bad information dissipates, we're going to see some of the sales come back up," he said.

Steve Tuttle, spokesman for the National Cable Television Association, said the market may be saturated, with most people who want a dish having one.

Nevertheless, Zenith, one of the nation's largest makers of electronic equipment, just got into the business, producing dishes that sell for $1,500 to $2,500 plus installation. RCA, another industry giant, also expects to become a major participant in the field.

Mass merchandisers like Radio Shack also are getting into the business, which started out with mostly "mom and pop" stores.

Home Box Office was the first cable channel to scramble its signals to keep earth station owners from watching for free the programs cable subscribers have to pay for. So far, it is the only one scrambling 24 hours a day.

Lyn Herrlinger, an HBO publicist, said 1,700 dish owners have subscribed to the network using decoders in the three weeks since full-time scrambling began. "We're very pleased with business to date," she said.

Elsewhere, there are predictions that sales of the dishes will stop, especially if the decoders, which sell for $400, are difficult to buy or if the programming companies charge too much for descrambling rights.

HBO charges $12.95 a month, close to what cable customers pay. Newsletter editor Stevenson thinks consumers may be waiting until the price of the decoder comes down or until the electronics companies put them in the dish.

"Potential buyers of home satellite systems are apparently confused and think that no programs will be available," said Rusty Galbreath, director of marketing for MA-Com.

MA-Com is the Hickory, N.C., company that developed the Videocipher scrambling equipment that has become the industry standard. It plans to build 200,000 of the units in 1986 for sale to dish owners. The units are being sold mostly through cable companies and dish installers.

Nineteen of the most popular satellite-delivered television services have agreed to use the Videocipher system. Among them are HBO, Cinemax, VHI, Cable News Network and CNN Headline service, USA, CBN and the Disney Channel.

Once the "box" is installed, the programmer "authorizes" it to descramble its programs by sending it a signal via satellite.

The bidding:

Opening lead: Five of ♠

It is difficult to resist something for nothing. But there is often a hidden cost, as this hand reported by Derek Rimington in "International Popular Bridge Monthly" proves.

It is debatable whether North's bid of four no trump was Blackwood, since no suit had been agreed upon by the partnership. Whatever the means of getting there, certainly the final contract of six no trump was quite reasonable.

West led the five of diamonds and South could not resist the temptation of a "free" finesse. East covered the jack with the queen and declarer was forced to win in hand. Only then did his predicament begin to dawn on him. If he unblocked his high clubs, he would have no entry back to hand to cash high spades.

Declarer led the king of spades. West took his ace and continued with a diamond. The ace won, and declarer now had to rely on a 3-2 club break, since if he did not clear the ace of hearts, he could not score the king and would have only 11 tricks. Unfortunately, clubs were 4-1, and declarer eventually went down two tricks.

A bit of foresight at trick one would have guaranteed the contract. Declarer should win the ace of diamonds, cash the ace-jack of clubs and then reenter dummy with the ace of hearts. After taking his four winning clubs, declarer simply leads a spade from the table and forces out the ace. No power on earth can stop him from winning six club tricks and two tricks in each of the other suits. The defenders have no choice but to present declarer with the lead in one of the red suits or spades.

GDANSK, Poland (AP) — Lech Walesa entered court today to begin standing trial on charges he slandered state officials by releasing independent voter turnout figures in an election boycotted by his Solidarity free trade federation.

"I'm feeling great today," a smiling Walesa told reporters before walking into Gdansk provincial court with his three lawyers. "I'm going in as you can see. I expect the court to be reasonable."

About three dozen supporters gathered outside the courthouse and sang the Polish song "Sto Lat," ("May You Live 100 Years") and waved V-for-victory signs. Walesa, 42, paused to wave a victory sign back at them before going inside.

Police patrolled the area around the court, but did not intervene against the crowd or reporters gathered outside in sub-freezing temperatures.

Walesa, the 1983 Nobel Peace Prize winner, is charged with slandering 12 state election officials by allegedly releasing false voter turnout figures for the October parliamentary elections that Solidarity boycotted as a protest against the communist government.

Walesa's three lawyers told a Monday night news conference that Walesa had acted within his rights to release the Solidarity turnout figures, and that he has repeatedly said he never intended to slander anyone.

"This is a typical political trial," said attorney Anna Skowronska. "It is held against Walesa because he is the head of Solidarity and gave the results counted by Solidarity, which is not recognized by the authorities and is de-legalized."

Jan Olszewski, another of Walesa's attorneys, said the defense would ask for his acquittal. "We maintain the charges are groundless," he said.

The Gdansk court scheduled three days for the trial and handed out passes to foreign and Polish journalists, although the trial has received scant coverage in the state-run press.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: ABLE, PROFESSIONAL ACUPUNCTURIST, JUST FINISHED SCHOOL, NEEDS A JAB.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: C equals S

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Orange You Sweet

A recent Florida freeze put oranges on ice prematurely. Oranges apparently originated in China, where cultivation of orange groves dates back at least to 2200 B.C. Alexander the Great's troops in the Orient discovered the banana but missed the orange. Oranges were brought to Rome in the first century A.D. Hernando de Soto carried orange seedlings to Florida in 1539, and, later, Seminole Indians learned to marinate orange slices in honey for several days.

U.S. Group Set For Hanoi Trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — A nine-member U.S. congressional delegation hopes to get "the fullest possible accounting" of Americans still missing from the Vietnam era during an upcoming trip to Southeast Asia, officials say.

The Task Force on American Prisoners of War and Missing in Southeast Asia, chaired by Rep. Gerald Solomon, R-N.Y., planned to leave today and visit Hanoi, Bangkok and a Cambodian refugee camp on the Thai border, said John Kostas, a Solomon spokesman.

"Our mission is to underscore the fact that achieving the fullest possible accounting of American MIAs is a bipartisan humanitarian concern of the highest national priority," Solomon said Monday.

He said the group will urge Vietnamese officials to "accelerate their pledge to resolve the MIA issue within the next two years."

Robert R. Garwood, a Marine convicted of collaborating with the enemy while a prisoner in Vietnam, had volunteered to go on the trip to serve as an interpreter and show where he claimed he last saw Americans alive in the late 1970s. Solomon rejected his offer, however, saying he did not want to be associated with a convicted collaborator.

Meanwhile, Indonesia's foreign minister, who is visiting Washington, said Monday that recent progress between the United States and Vietnam on the MIA issue has helped set the scene for an eventual Vietnamese pullout from Cambodia.

The official, Mochtar Kusumaatmadja, said Vietnam's occupation of Cambodia was the major topic of discussion when he met with Secretary of State George Shultz.

The problem of U.S. servicemen still missing in Indochina is "purely a bilateral question between Washington and Hanoi ... not linked to settlement of Cambodia," he told reporters.

However, he said, "Now that Vietnam has taken big steps to get it out of the way, it has, I think, improved the atmosphere ... to see a settlement of the Cambodian question also."

Haitians Seek Police Weapons

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — The leader of Haiti's new ruling council says it is having a hard time collecting all the weapons from the disbanded Tonton Macoutes, the secret police force of the deposed Duvalier dictatorship.

As many as 300 members of the feared militia, formed as a personal army to Francois "Papa Doc" Duvalier after he took over in 1957, have been slain by revenge-seeking Haitians after President-for-Life Jean-Claude Duvalier fled the country Friday.

"We are trying to get back all the guns but it is very difficult," said Lt. Gen. Henri Namphy, who heads the six-man council ruling Haiti since Duvalier left in the face of mounting protests to his authoritarian rule.

Monday, Namphy promised elections at swearing-in ceremonies for the six-member ruling council and the new Cabinet. He did not give dates.

Namphy also promised there would be a new "liberal" constitution for this impoverished Caribbean nation of 6 million, but did not elaborate.

The "Macoute hunts" have continued despite government requests that they be halted. Army troops have rescued some suspected Macoute agents from angry mobs.

Col. Prosper Avril, another member of the council, said "(The Macoutes) will become regular citizens like the rest of us and we offer protection if they feel they are in real danger. If they want to join the regular army, they can make application like anyone else."

The leader of the Macoutes, Rosalie "Madame Max" Alphonse, is being held at the army barracks next to the National Palace.

Haitian anger at the Duvaliers' private police force has gone beyond borders.

Monday night in Pointe-a-Pitre, Martinique, a former Macoute member was surrounded by Haitians at a theater and had to be rescued by police. Martinique is a two-hour flight from Haiti and a popular vacation spot, partly because of the shared French language.

Namphy spoke at an informal news conference in the National Palace.

"I bet you never got this close to Duvalier," joked Namphy at the informal session.

From the time he inherited the "President for Life" title from his father in 1971 until he fled Friday, Duvalier, 34, never held a news conference.

National television announced a "mass liberation celebration" today in the northern town of Gonaives.

"This is where it all began, with Gonaives holding the first anti-Duvalier rally May 25, 1984, and where the first fatalities (of three student protestors) occurred Nov. 27-28," said the broadcast.

Two Eastern Airlines jets and one from American Airlines were to arrive today at Francois Duvalier airport to take out any foreigners who want to leave.

An Air Canada Boeing 747 arrived Monday to take out dozens of Canadian citizens.
