Evergreen Terminates Contract With Kugel

By SUE HINSON
Reflector Staff Writer

Evergreen board members today voted unanimously to terminate the non-profit economic development corporation's contract with Owen Kugel and gave him 10 days to repay the $50,000 the corporation has paid him, according to President Dick McKee.

"Since the terms of the contract have not been met, Evergreen has notified Owen Kugel that he is in default and that a full refund of fees is expected," McKee said. Kugel was to be notified of the contract termination by mail today.

Kugel, a Lancaster, Pa., developer, was hired by Evergreen in February 1985 at a fee of $5,000 a month to conduct a market analysis of downtown Greenville properties, identify development opportunities and provide professional assistance needed to revitalize the heart of Greenville.

A provision of the contract with Kugel said if OK Properties, a development firm controlled by Kugel, failed to construct a $2 million development project in downtown Greenville within a year of the contract signing, Kugel would refund all management fees paid by Evergreen. To date, Evergreen has paid Kugel $50,000 — a third of which was provided by the city of Greenville and the remaining two-thirds by local business and industry.

"Kugel has proposed revisions to the contract to extend the deadline beyond Feb. 14, but (we) have been unable to reach an agreement," McKee said today, following an 11:30 a.m. meeting of the Evergreen board. Board members have been negotiating with Kugel since December.

According to McKee, Kugel had planned to convert the old Belk building in downtown Greenville for office and residential uses, but was unable to secure funding for the project in time to meet the deadline. Kugel, in a telephone interview, said his revitalization project in Kinston was also behind schedule.

According to Kugel, OK Properties is "confident of (its) ability to successfully conclude financing in Greenville."

"We need more time. It's just taking longer than we had expected," he said.

Asked what was the problem in securing funding, Kugel said "there's no mystery to it, it's Murphy's Law" — a reference to the adage that what can go wrong does.

Contract Let

The final contract to complete the four-laning of U.S. 264 between Greenville and Washington was awarded today by the N.C. Board of Transportation.

Board member Randy Doub of Greenville said in a telephone interview from Raleigh that Propst Construction Co. of Concord won the $4.8 million bid to grade, drain, pave and erect structures on the 6.9-mile project, from southeast of Secondary Road 1538 (the John Gray Road) to SR 1565 east of Greenville.

Doub said construction should begin by March 17 and the project is scheduled for completion by Oct. 15, 1987.

"All of the U.S. 264 projects scheduled for letting during this fiscal year are, at the present time, on schedule," Doub said.

Other area projects approved by the board this morning, Doub said, include: $50,000 for preliminary engineering on widening of Evans

FDA Warns Consumers Against Taking Tylenol

By The Associated Press

Seven states banned sales of Extra-Strength Tylenol and federal officials warned consumers nationwide to avoid the painkiller — "in any strength, in any lot" — because of the discovery of a second bottle containing cyanide-contaminated capsules, already blamed for one death.

North Carolina was among states warning residents not to use the painkiller. Robert L. Gordon, director of the North Carolina Food and Drug Protection Division, asked retailers to remove Tylenol from their shelves.

Poison in both bottles was chemically identical, indicating it came from a single source, Dr. Frank Young, commissioner of the federal Food and Drug Administration, said today on the "CBS Morning News."

The second bottle came from the shelves of a Woolworth's store in the New York City suburb of Bronxville, about two blocks from an A&P Food Store that was the source of tainted capsules taken by Diane Elstroth, 23, who died last weekend, authorities said. The second bottle apparently was manufactured at a different plant than the first.

Seven people died in Illinois after taking Tylenol capsules contaminated with cyanide in 1982.

As of today, New York, Florida, Massachusetts, Indiana, Rhode Island, California and Illinois had banned the sale of Extra-Strength Tylenol, and Wisconsin officials said they would issue an order later. Health officials in Colorado, North Carolina and Georgia asked retailers to remove Tylenol capsules from shelves.

Police in New Rochelle, N.Y., on Thursday found a letter demanding $2 million and claiming responsibility for the Tylenol poisoning death of Ms. Elstroth, but the police chief said today the letter apparently was not linked to the death.

Police Chief Carl Steinmuller would not say why he believed the letter and death were not related.

The warnings to consumers, issued by the federal Food and Drug Administration and Johnson & Johnson, extend to all Tylenol capsules, including both Regular and Extra-Strength Tylenol, which Miss Elstroth

Mavretic Seeks Local Help In Abolishing Property Tax

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

State Rep. Joe Mavretic is stumping North Carolina to promote and defend House Bill 1314, which would abolish property taxes by constitutional amendment and substitute a sales tax of up to 8 percent — 5 percent of which would be returned to the counties on a per-capita basis.

Mavretic appeared here Thursday night at the invitation of the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce. He said his proposal has come out of the need that has reached near-crisis proportions in many non-urban parts of the state — how can the needs of the people provided by local governments be met? He has become familiar with these needs, he said, serving on the state Revenue Laws Study Commission and the Property Tax System Study Commission.

Property taxation is providing a poor revenue base for all but the most urban of the counties, he said. He said all but eight counties in the state stand to gain millions of dollars in income if his plan is instituted. The eight which would not gain are Wake, Durham, Guilford, Forsyth, Mecklenburg, New Hanover, Brunswick and Dare — all either largely urban or largely resort.

Property tax can be abolished only by constitutional amendment and a constitutional amendment can be brought about only by an affirmative vote of the people. There must be a three-fifths vote of the General Assembly to create a referendum.

SPACE SHUTTLE DEBRIS? — Brenda Saulter, administrative secretary at the Greenville Police Department, holds what may be a piece of the space shuttle Challenger. The shuttle was destroyed in a fiery blast just after liftoff from Cape Canaveral, Fla., on Jan. 28. Edward D. Haak III of Asheboro, an East Carolina University student, brought the rigid cardboard-honeycombed fragment, covered with an aluminum-colored material, to the police department Thursday. He said he found the material on the beach a mile south of Rodanthe on Hatteras Island on Feb. 8. Haak said NASA officials told him to turn it in to the nearest police department and have it sent to Patrick Air Force Base in Florida. The section is about 12 inches long and about 8 inches wide at one end and about 12 inches wide at the other. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Garner Breaks Tie On Fund Shift

By SUE HINSON
Reflector Staff Writer

Greenville Mayor Leslie Garner cast a tie-breaking vote Thursday to approve a resolution giving City Council endorsement to a N.C. Department of Transportation proposal to cut down on Highway Fund expenses.

Garner's vote settled an even split between council members who voted 3-3 on the issue. Mayor Protem William Hadden and council members Inez Fridley and Janice Buck wanted to see consideration of the resolution held over until a Feb. 24 workshop session. Council members Lorraine Shinn, Nancy Jenkins and Ed Carter voted in favor of adopting the resolution Thursday.

The DOT proposal entails shifting monies for the Highway Patrol and drivers education program from the state's Highway Fund to the General Fund, freeing more of the Highway Fund money for the Department of Transportation.

According to Board of Transportation member Randy Doub of Greenville, the shift in funding responsibilities is needed to allow the highway fund to keep pace with growing traffic needs.

Transferring the programs, he said, would free about $85 million needed to meet an expected highway budget shortfall of $100 million in the coming fiscal year.

Doub said the programs could be funded out of the General Fund surplus, expected to total $290 million this year.

In comments opposing resolution approval, Hadden said he would like the issue continued to allow council members time to assess possible effects of shifting budgetary responsibilities. "When I talked to legislators (about the proposal) not one was in favor of ... accepting it," Hadden said.

Hadden said he was concerned that some council members were not viewing the General Fund surplus in the manner in which it should be. He said that while a $290 million surplus is expected this year, council members should note that last year the surplus totaled about $300 million, and five years ago it totaled $600 million. Surplus decreases are particularly important, he said, because of recent and proposed cutbacks in federal funding. "There will be more calls for this surplus," he said.

Hadden also said he would like to hear what the North Carolina Transportation Task Force has to say about the DOT proposal before giving council endorsement. The task force's report has not been finalized. Alternatives being looked at by the transportation task force in addition to shifting funding responsibilities include an increase in the gas tax and a bond issue.

Ms. Fridley said she was concerned about putting a stamp of approval on because of a possible demands on the surplus.

In The Area

Research Benefit

In an effort to raise money for research of Alzheimer's Disease, a rock 'n' roll jamboree will be held at the Guardian Care Nursing Home, located on Cunningham Road in Kinston, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday. All proceeds will go to East Carolina University School of Medicine for researching the cause of the disease.

Nursing home residents will be rocking in rocking chairs and rolling in wheelchairs for pledges. They will also sell various food items. Entertainment will be provided by the Neuse Knee Knockers, the Singing Taylors, the Hill Family Band. For more information, call Donna Mooneyham, activities director at 527-5146.

Parking Complaint

The city moves "too soon, too swift" to tow East Carolina University students' vehicles, ECU Student Government Association President David Brown told City Council members Thursday.

"It's a real problem," he said, "even though it's legal."

According to Brown, students whose cars have been parked 20 minutes over the allotted time on streets in the Tar River Neighborhood have not only been paying $5 parking citations, they also have had to track down their missing cars and pay $40 towing fines.

"It's wrong. I don't feel (their cars) should be towed if they aren't posing a hazard to other vehicular traffic," Brown said.

The council, in response to a request by Brown, agreed Thursday to consider reactivating the ECU-City Parking Commission, which up until approximately six years ago handled student-resident parking problems.

The matter will be discussed Feb. 24 in council workshop session.

Driver Charged

Cary Warren Sheppard of 1801 S. Greene St. was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 1:12 p.m. collision Thursday on Service Road, just north of the Sennie Road intersection.

Police said the Sheppard car collided with a vehicle driven by Michael William Shannon of Winterville, resulting in an estimated $750 damage to the Shannon car and $275 damage to the Sheppard vehicle.

Tool Theft Reported

Greenville police said a theft from a vehicle parked at the Deli Kitchen on Dickinson Avenue was reported to the department about 7:37 p.m. Thursday.

Officer D.C. Johnson said a tool box containing an estimated $50 worth of tools was taken.

Death Probed

A state medical examiner has suggested that the death of John Thomas Collier Jr., 28, of 600 E. 11th St. may have been from a drug overdose.

Greenville police found Collier dead about 10 p.m. Sunday when they forced their way into his second floor dwelling.

Dr. Paul Biddinger, who said that Collier had been dead about four days when found, said he found "no evidence of foul play" and "did not find any anatomic abnormality" which would have caused the death, during an autopsy early this week.

Biddinger said tissue and body fluid samples have been sent to the state medical examiners office in Chapel Hill for toxicology analysis, and said the "prime" suspicion is "some type of drug overdose."

Man Is Charged

Greenville police arrested Alvin Ronald Hooks, 37, of 1506 Dickinson Ave. on charges of second degree rape and taking indecent liberties with a minor Thursday.

According to Officer J.E. Harris, Hooks was charged in connection with a Dec. 26 incident involving a 14-year-old girl.

The J.H. Rose High School Academic Boosters will meet at 7 p.m. Monday in the school library. For more information, call 756-2807.

Alumni Chapter

The Eva J. Lewis Alumni Chapter of Elizabeth City State University will meet at 4 p.m. Sunday at the home of Effie Thompson, 210 Commerce St.

Bruschi To Speak

Dr. Carlo Bruschi of the East Carolina University School of Medicine will present "Genetic Aspects of Life in Space" at the 8 p.m. meeting Tuesday of the Eastern North Carolina section of the American Chemical Society.

A research project designed by Bruschi is scheduled on board a 1987 NASA space shuttle flight and is one of three in the United States selected as life sciences projects for the first International Microgravity Laboratory to go in space.

Reservations for the meeting at King's Restaurant of Kinston may be made by calling the chemistry department at ECU at 757-6711 by Monday.

Bag Limit Sentence

Superior Court Judge William Griffith Wednesday ordered a Greenville man charged with exceeding the bag limit on doves to pay a $50 fine and costs, pay the Wildlife Resources Commission $288 restitution, ordered him to do 50 hours of community service, and suspended his hunting privileges until Jan. 1, 1988.

Steven Kyle Price, 29, of 1310 Evergreen Drive was charged with taking 48 doves while hunting on Sept. 2, according to Wildlife Protector Kay Dunn.

Price, convicted in District Court and ordered to pay a fine, costs, restitution, as well as do 100 hours of community service and have his hunting privileges suspended for five years, appealed the case to Superior Court.

Judge Griffith handed down the sentence after Price entered a plea of guilty on Wednesday.

NAACP Committee

The Pitt County NAACP executive committee will meet at 7 p.m. Monday at 606 Albemarle Avenue.

Bank Evacuated

A Greenville Fire-Rescue Department official says he is pleased with the evacuation procedures at the Wachovia Bank & Trust Co. building at the intersection of Fourth and Washington streets Thursday, when relays burned out in an electric panel box, sending smoke and smoke odors throughout the building.

Capt. Michael Branch, the department's fire prevention specialist coordinator, termed the evacuation and securing of the building as "very good."

Firemen were called about 10:31 a.m. when a worker on the building's third floor saw smoke coming from the ceiling. The smoke was caused by a short circuit of electrical relays in the penthouse, which were part of a heating system.

FIRST ENTRY — Toby Cascioli of Grifton caught the first fish entered in Grifton's 1986 Hickory Shad fishing contest on Feb. 8. The fish weighed 1 pound, 9 ounces and was caught at the mouth of Contentnea Creek. The catch represents an early date and a much higher upstream location than from where the fish is usually taken. The first catch of the season normally takes place at Pitchkettle Creek. Cascioli will receive a trophy at the Shad Festival on April 12. (Photo by Janet Haseley)

Branch said a fire evacuation plan he helped establish at Wachovia "was activated ... very well. Each area fire marshal did what they were supposed to do," he said.

Wachovia employee Dolly Robertson, who is in charge of the firm's fire evacuation plan, which has 10 area fire marshalls trained to direct evacuations, said 100 employees, as well as a number of customers, moved from the building in good order.

Memorial Service

The Pitt County chapter of the A&T State University Alumni Association will hold a memorial service for Dr. Ronald E. McNair, one of the seven astronauts who died in the recent explosion of the Space Shuttle Challenger.

McNair, a 1971 graduate of A&T State, was the second black astronaut to fly in space.

The service is scheduled for 7 p.m. Sunday at Phillippi Church of Christ, 1610 Farmville Blvd.

Memorial tributes will be given by F.H. Mebane, retired director of special services at Beaufort Community College; Ethel Sutton, Pitt County school vocational education teacher; Earl Brown, Burroughs Wellcome Co.; Dr. Edward Treadwell, East Carolina University Medical School; and Dr. Andrew Best, local physician and former member of the board of trustees at A&T.

Other participants include the D.H. Conley JROTC; Annie M. Brown, president of the Pitt County chapter of A&T Alumni; Bernard Haselrig, coordinator of Pitt County schools staff development; the Rev. Alonza Mills; James Powell, saxophonist; and the Rev. J.R. Payton. The alumni chorus will provide music.

The service is one of several being presented by local alumni associations of A&T to honor the astronaut.

Supper will be at Western Sizzlin on 10th Street at 5:45 p.m.

Commissioners Meet

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners will meet Monday at 10 a.m. at the county office building at 1717 W. Fifth St.

Agenda items include: consideration of action closing Secondary Road 1240 near Fountain; a request from the town of Farmville for support in its request to have the Department of Transportation consider safety improvements at the intersection of Stanlonsburg Road and the new eastern bypass; various property matters, and rental of county-owned farm land.

Honor Additions

Ivela Jones made the honor roll at Greenville Christian Academy for the third six weeks marking period, and Karen Entzminger and Marlo Little were named to the principal's list. The information was incorrectly provided to the Daily Reflector.

Business Chairman

The Pitt County unit of the American Cancer Society has announced that Gene Briley will serve as business chairman for the 1986 crusade.

Briley is a retail banking manager, assistant vice president, for Wachovia Bank & Trust Co. He is a member of the Bethel Rotary Club, a board of directors member of the Pitt County Red Cross, and has served with the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce.

Briley and his wife, Sylvia, have one daughter.

The business campaign is now under way.

Studies Focus On What Makes Marriage Work

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Why do couples marry? What keeps them together? What makes them happy?

Clifford Swensen, professor of psychological sciences at Purdue University, has spent much of his professional life researching these questions. For the answers to this true-false quiz he draws from his own studies and the research of others:

1. The more alike they become, the happier and more satisfied two people become with their relationship.
2. The longer two people are married, the more they confide their feelings to their spouse.
3. Opposites may attract, but the longer they stay married, the less these differences hold.
4. A couple's happiest years may vary from one country to another.
5. The more differences in a couple — such as race, religion or ethnic background — the higher the rate of conflict in the relationship.
6. In general, people tend to be attracted to people with the same level of emotional development, or ego development.
7. As a relationship progresses over the years, men tend to become more assertive, while women become more mellow.
8. Women tend to be more interested in the relationship during the early years of marriage, while men become more interested as they grow older.
9. People who are highly committed to one another as individuals tend to have the fewest problems in marriage.

ANSWERS:

1. True. When couples "speak the same language," it reduces the potential for conflict and disagreement — there's less to argue about.
2. False. Even though long-married couples may feel comfortable and happy together, there is less of an inclination to "rock the boat" or expose feelings that might lead to controversy. Hence the hesitation to self-disclose.
3. True. When two people first meet, there is often an attraction for opposite traits — that is, we tend to need to complement our own qualities with those which we lack. But the longer a couple stays together, the more they tend to become similar, with their differences becoming less dramatic. For instance, when an extrovert marries an introvert, these tendencies will become less pronounced.
4. True. In a study conducted by Swensen in this country, most respondents said the post-retirement years were the happiest in their marriage — probably due to fewer problems. But the same study conducted in Norway found that couples were happiest during child-rearing years.

5. True. Couples from different backgrounds spend a lot of time "translating" — they just don't speak the same language. Unlike other couples, who can resolve basic issues early in their marriages, these couples are faced with constantly surfacing issues. As a result of cultural differences, they may have opposing ideas on how to raise the children, deal with the in-laws and even how to treat the grandchildren.

6. True. People tend to marry individuals much like themselves — even in emotional development. It's extremely rare to see a couple that is not similar in levels of emotional development. For instance, an individual who is extremely well-adjusted emotionally would rarely be married to one whose emotional adjustment was borderline.

7. False. Research suggests just the opposite. Women are less dominant in the early stages of a relationship, when men are more "in charge." But women become more assertive as the years pass — just as men become less dominant and more mellow.

8. True. When couples first marry, the woman usually is more interested in the relationship while the man focuses attention on his work. In later years, women become less interested in the relationship and more concerned with other accomplishments.

9. True. A high level of commitment to an individual as a person — not just to the marriage institution — makes for fewer problems in the marriage.

Comparable Worth Debate Planned

A debate on comparable worth — the concept of evaluating jobs and paying for work based on a point system that measures skills, effort and responsibility — will be held at Mendenhall Student Center on the East Carolina University campus at 8 p.m. Monday.

Debating will be Sarah Weddington and Phyllis Schafly.

Weddington is an advocate of the concept; Schafly an opponent.

Weddington was chief assistant for women's and minorities affairs during Carter's administration. She is a lawyer, teacher, writer and lecturer.

Schafly, long a spokesman against the Equal Rights Amendment, is also an author and lawyer.

The program is sponsored by the East Carolina University Student Union Forum Committee. Tickets are available at the Central Ticket Office in Mendenhall.

Ask Her Not To Send Items To Be Returned

DEAR ABBY: I'm one of four daughters—all married. We were a very close family and still are, although none of us lives in the town where we grew up.

Our mother loves to write letters. I answer as soon as I can, but I can never catch up because the day Mom receives a letter she answers it! The problem: She sends me snapshots, news clippings (some of your columns) and newsy letters from other relatives, and demands that I return the enclosures immediately. I'm not always able to answer her letters immediately, and there were times when I have misplaced (or lost) snapshots and letters she's asked me to return. This infuriates her, so she writes a scathing letter upbraiding me for being so disorganized, bumbling and undependable.

Abby, I love my mother and don't want to be disrespectful, but most of the stuff she sends is boring, and I wish she wouldn't saddle me with the responsibility of returning it. So how do I get this across to her?

MOM'S DISORGANIZED DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: In your next letter, respectfully ask her not to send you anything she wants returned. Tell her that the responsibility is more than you can handle, and if she continues that practice, she does so at her own risk. Period, paragraph, and "love."

Bridal Policy

A black and white glossy five by seven photograph is requested for engagement announcements in The Daily Reflector. For publication in a Sunday edition, the information must be submitted by 12 noon on the preceding Wednesday. Engagement pictures must be released at least three weeks prior to the wedding date. After three weeks, only an announcement will be printed.

Wedding write-ups will be printed through the first week with a one column picture. During the second week, a one column picture will be used with a write-up giving less description and after the second week, just as an announcement.

Wedding forms and pictures should be returned to The Daily Reflector one week prior to the date of the wedding. All information should be typed or written neatly.

High School Day Care Keeps Mothers In School

By SHARON COHEN
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Each morning, Sonja takes her 3-year-old daughter to her day-care class. Then she walks up three flights of stairs to begin her day, as a high school senior.

Sonja is a 16-year-old mother. She attends Farragut High School. So does her daughter.

At 7:45 a.m., Sonja drops off her child. Mother kisses Muffy. Muffy hugs mother. Then they go their separate ways — Muffy to her table with her playmates, mother to her art class with her classmates.

They participate in a special program aimed at keeping Farragut's teen-age mothers in school by providing day care for their sons and daughters. Three other city public high schools have similar programs.

Nationwide, education officials say high school day care is relatively unusual. They estimate some dozens of these programs exist across the country.

One reason is "people have not been sympathetic as a whole to the problem of young mothers," said Betsy McGee, assistant director of the New York-based Center for Public Advocacy Research.

The programs "are controversial," she said. "They're not really welcome." Some people feel these girls "got themselves into it, they can get themselves out of it."

At Farragut, where the enrollment is half black, half Hispanic, day care was initiated two years ago by officials searching for a way to keep in school the 80 to 100 girls who become pregnant each year. Farragut's dropout rate is 19 percent. "We realized many of our students have attendance problems," said Cecelia Morton, who helped develop the center. "We figured we'd head them off by providing a place to care for their children. It's more of an incentive to stay in school."

For Sonja, having her daughter nearby is a comfort and convenience.

"It helps out a lot," said Sonja, who works as a short-order cook after school and likes to roller-skate in her free time. She asked that her last name not be used. "I don't have to worry about taking her to a babysitter. I know where she's at. I don't have to go far to get her."

But day care is more than a baby-sitting service. It is a place where young mothers can stop by at lunch or study hours to learn how to be mothers.

"I think many of these girls do not have parenting skills," said Ms. Morton, Farragut's home economics chairwoman. "To see a trained professional ... give them some ideas about discipline is very important. Many don't understand how to teach their child."

Their model is teacher Janet Simmons, a large, energetic woman who calls her charges gremlins. With the help of Farragut students, who receive school credit, Ms. Simmons teaches toddlers about the alphabet, colors and sounds from a homey room decorated with a rocking chair, piano, tiny benches and brightly colored posters and calendars.

This year, only six of the 23 children have teen-age mothers or aunts in school. The others' parents are faculty members or local residents.

The program, which costs $40 a year, is offered to pre-schoolers aged 3 and above, so many Farragut students aren't yet able to take advantage of it.

But Ms. Morton said she expected that would change within a few years because younger girls are having babies.

"They're engaging in sex," she said. "They're having children. That's what you have to deal with — what is."

First Step

Departure of Jean-Claude Duvalier from Haiti is but one step toward solving that tormented land's miseries.

American help in persuading the "president-for-life" to leave the country and providing the means for him to go was proper and laudable; probably averting a disastrous chain of events in an atmosphere of frustration and hysteria.

For now, little is known of the backgrounds and qualifications shared by members of the group which replaced Duvalier to rule the country. Early assessments suggest the six lack experience or training suited to their new role. Truly qualified people may be next to impossible to find.

This can be said for those who stepped in: opportunism may have influenced some among them but awareness of a great need to quickly fill the vacated role of governing was shared by all. We'd assume they also shared an awareness of personal risk. They may look to the U.S. for a broad spectrum of help.

Past American intervention in Haitian lives proved more benevolent than their own leadership.

From 1915 until 1934 the country was occupied by American troops who helped reduce the national debt, built roads, extended telephone and telegraph lines, improved health and sanitation conditions as well as opening the country to U.S. investment.

Theorists and activists in the U.S. State Department must be wondering if involvement in the Duvalier departure carried with it responsibility for the future of Haiti's people.

Most of their years of independence have been years of one-man rule. A republican system of government has been tried several times but did not last.

The prospect is not a pleasant one, but the new government may have to turn to some of "Baby Doc's" henchmen to find managerial talents. Getting rid of Duvalier may have been the easiest step of reform.

'Goliath' Loses

Release of Anatoly Shcharansky, a Soviet human rights spokesman and activist in the Jewish emigration effort, made a big splash in the news of the Free World.

Only 38 years old, the dissident Ukrainian had been frequently arrested before being ruled guilty of spying for the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency in 1977 and sentenced to a 13-year prison and labor camp term. He was freed as part of a prisoner exchange in Berlin.

Shcharansky's lawyer reported earlier the Soviets had indicated they were ready to release the dissident and "get him off their backs". He was not what you might call a model prisoner ... waging his one-man war against Soviet policies through varied illnesses and a long hunger strike. His name and sufferings were well known outside the Soviet Union. He became an embarrassment to Moscow; and we suspect in the end his captors were glad to be rid of him.

Little "David" defeated "Goliath" one more time.

College Students Would Take Jobs

WASHINGTON — Most college students say they're satisfied with their education, but nearly half of them would drop out of school immediately were a job offered to them.

Maybe they're smarter than most people think.

That is just one conclusion to be drawn from a major survey of 5,000 undergraduates recently conducted by the Carnegie Foundation. Among the other highlights were that, of those surveyed:

•about 37 percent said they were bored in class;

•roughly 40 percent contended that no professors demonstrated a "special personal interest" in their academic performance;

•one-third didn't even know a professor to whom they could turn for advice;

•some 42 percent alluded to being treated as if they were "numbers in a book";

•fewer than one in five students rated their academic counseling programs "highly adequate";

•almost 40 percent considered their general courses irrelevant, and that general-education courses were rarely taught by the best professors.

The students were surveyed in the spring of 1984.

Sen. Max Baucus (D-Mont.) thinks young people watch too much television, and he wants Congress to do WASHINGTON (AP) — On Capitol Hill there are bills, bills and more bills, many of them pretty routine. But when one catches on, every Tom, Dick and Harry, or Phil, Warren and Ernest, wants to attach his name to it.

A case in point is the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act, also known as P.L. (Public Law) 99-177. The name or the number may not ring a bell, but its nickname, Gramm-Rudman, may have caught your ear.

Gramm-Rudman, as in the law that aims at shoveling away mountainous federal budget deficits until they are reduced to zero by 1991.

Gramm-Rudman, as in the last names of two of the authors of the deficit-reduction act, Sens. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, and Warren Rudman, R-N.H.

The center of the legislative stage has been captured by Gramm-Rudman, opening the possibility that the last names of its sponsors will become household names.

In the process, Gramm-Rudman has created something of a congressional bandwagon. The future of the law is far from clear, especially in light of the court of appeals decision last week declaring the core of the law unconstitutional. Nonetheless, a lot of lawmakers want to climb on board.

For example, the bill also has a principal Democratic sponsor, Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C., who makes clear that he does not wish to be ignored. In the beginning, the senator says, the bill used to be called "Gramm-Hollings-Rudman," with his name second, not third. But then the shorter "Gramm-Rudman" caught on.

Hollings joked that he had told William Casey, director of the Central Intelligence Agency, that "if he ever wanted to put an agent in deep undercover, have him sponsor a piece of legislation with Gramm and Rudman."

Later, apparently voicing second thoughts, at least for the sake of after-dinner-speech humor, Hollings told a press banquet that when people asked him why his name was not up there in lights with that of Gramm and Rudman his response was, "Because I've got more friends in the press than Gramm or Rudman."

Hollings eventually made his point, and many people, including President Reagan, now call it the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings Act. So does Rudman. And so does Gramm, at least most of the time.

"There's a tendency in the heat of battle to bite off Senator Hollings' last name, but in the normal course of things the senator does use it," said Larry Neal, Gramm's press secretary.

But the bill also had friends in the House of Representatives, including

Rep. Connie Mack, R-Fla., who introduced it on the House floor.

So many Republican House members call it "Gramm-Rudman-Mack," dropping the Hollings.

But another House sponsor was Rep. Richard Cheney, R-Wyo., so friends of Cheney tend to call it "Gramm-Rudman-Mack-Cheney."

Still other House members, possibly thinking too many senators are involved, call it simply "Gramm-Mack," dropping both Rudman and Hollings.

Meanwhile the phrase-makers and the name adapters and the nickname coiners are having a field day.

Many critics of Gramm-Rudman etc., call it "Grambo," referring to the movie hero, "Rambo," and likening the new law to a guerrilla warrior who, while trying to save the day, may burn down the house of government in the process.

Others shorten the whole thing to "Grudman," giving Sen. Rudman his full last name but leaving Gramm with just his "G."

The National Taxpayers Union, a supporter of the legislation, bows to Hollings and refers to it in news releases as "Grudho," "Gr" for Gramm, "ud" for Rudman and "ho" for Hollings.

Others refer to it in writing, or in notes, as simply "G-R" or "G-R-H" although in time that may lengthen to "G-R-H-M-C" if all the other names catch on.

The personalizing of laws with mind-numbing titles is a very old Washington habit, akin to the city's penchant for name dropping. It is a bid of sorts for legislative immortality, and, perhaps, also the easiest way to refer to something like the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Reduction Act.

So in decades past, other legislative products have taken on the names of their authors, carrying those last names into history even in those cases where the owners themselves have slipped into obscurity.

Washington has, for example, produced the Sherman Anti-Trust Act of 1891, named for Sen. John Sherman, R-Ohio; the Mann Act of 1910, which barred the interstate transportation of women for immoral purposes and which was named for Rep. James R. Mann, R-Ill.; the Volstead Act of 1919 which implemented prohibition and was named for Rep. Andrew Volstead, R-Minn.; and the 1951 Taft-Hartley labor relations act, named for its sponsors, Sen. Robert A. Taft, R-Ohio and Rep. Fred A. Hartley Jr., R-N.J.

In 1986, the freshman Republican senator whose name comes first in the nickname for P.L. 99-177, makes it clear that he is more than willing to extend the name to accommodate Hollings or Mack or Cheney, or anyone else for that matter.

"No objection," said Phil Gramm. "They're welcome. Plenty of room. The more the merrier."

If that's an open invitation, Gramm may have second thoughts.

Forty-one senators other than Gramm, Rudman and Hollings co-sponsored the deficit cutting legislation.

And 150 House members, other than Mack and Cheney, added their names to the co-sponsor list.

Altogether, a single-spaced computer printout takes up nearly 8 inches in listing the 195 congressional co-sponsors of Gramm-Rudman-Hollings-Mack-Cheney, et al.

Strength For Today

Losing one's identity! This is a phrase often encountered, and its meaning is not altogether clear.

For example, there are many people who are shy and hesitant to express themselves because they feel a latent sense of inferiority. They do not have as much money as their neighbors. Most painful of all, they lack that scintillating gift of conversation which can make them a center of attention and envy.

We have to take the looks, the personality, the temperament God gave us and make the best of them. What we can change is our characters. We can improve our minds. We can press forward with ambition toward achievement. But there is a lot about us what can't be changed, and what we are is just what the Lord works with, and apparently wants us to work with.

If you maintain your identity and character, you will find that it will become an object of approbation.

— Paul T. O'Connor —

Funds Theory Is Questioned

RALEIGH — In the spring, the General Assembly will almost certainly be asked to again consider shifting some programs from the financially strapped Highway Fund to the much wealthier General Fund. It's a request transportation officials have made repeatedly but which the legislature has almost always refused to accommodate.

With the exception of relatively small transfers of money in recent years, the General Assembly has refused such requests on the grounds that the Highway Fund, which is the repository of motor fuels taxes and motor vehicle fees, should be self-sufficient. Opponents of transfers argue that the state should not depart from the user-fee nature of the Highway Fund by subsidizing it with general tax collections.

State Treasurer Harlan Boyles thinks that line of reasoning is a lot of bunk.

Boyles, appearing before a legislative study commission, said that the idea of a separation of responsibilities between the two funds is a myth. One fund has been subsidizing the other for years. The Highway Fund, which has been in financial trouble at least since the mid-70s, has been subsidizing its rich sister, the General Fund.

"The Highway Fund has been subsidizing the General Fund for years," Boyles said. "We have been diverting money from the Highway Fund for years and years and if that money had not been diverted, we would not need as much money now" to meet transportation program needs.

The state motor fuels tax is 12 and one-quarter cents per gallon. Boyles figures that a nickel of that money is spent on General Fund subsidies. (The General Fund pays for public education and all other non-transportation programs.)

One quarter cent is given to the state Agricultural Department for inspection of gasoline pumps. A penny goes towards debt service. Three cents go to programs like the Highway Patrol and school bus driver training. These are programs which would be better housed in the General Fund, Boyles said. Finally, the equivalent of one cent is lost to the Highway Fund because of motor fuels tax exemptions for users who are considered non-highway users, farmers, taxicabs, cement-mixers.

Boyles also noted that the sales tax paid on highway related products goes into the General Fund. The General Fund collects three percent sales tax when you buy an oil filter at your local hardware store.

Turn those figures into hard dollars. The Highway Patrol costs the Highway Fund $65 million a year and school bus driver training $22 million. Another $70 million in sales tax on motor vehicle parts and accessories could go to the Highway Fund but goes instead to the General Fund. That is a total of $157 million of the estimated $200 million shortfall the Highway Fund faces.

In addition, Boyles asks if the Highway Fund would be in such dire shape today if, over the years, the money which rightfully belongs to it had gone into transportation programs.

A tax increase on motor vehicle fuels is certain to get serious consideration during the June session. Boyles says that, "Before we ask the taxpayers to pay any more gas tax as a user, we ought to say to that taxpayer that we don't have a Highway Trust Fund, we have a highway fund with a lot of other people feeding at the trough."

Only then, Boyles says, will the true subsidies in state funding responsibilities be presented to the taxpayers.

something about it. According to Baucus, the average American watches 15,000 hours of TV during his or her first 16 years. But the senator's plan has a dual-purpose way of attacking the problem: he would levy an excise tax on the price of each set. The tax, he hopes, would annually raise up to $100 million, to be funneled into math and science training costs.

Libya is trying to lure back, with higher pay, the American oilmen who have recently left the North African country under orders from President Reagan. Many of the technicians were making more than $100,000 a year there.

The London Observer reports that Israel and pre-revolutionary Iran entered into a joint effort to produce a missile capable of delivering a nuclear warhead. Code-named "Operation Flower," the project evolved in the late 1970s out of a long-standing oil-for-weapons trade between the two countries. According to the Observer, Iran bartered $260 million worth of oil as a down payment for its stake in Project Flower. Iranian engineers arrived in Israel to participate in the planning for a final assembly plant, which would be built in Iran. No parts were ever supplied to Iran, however.

Unanswered questions about the potential environmental effects of biotechnology products have prompted the Environmental Protection Agency to form a special task force. The EPA was criticized in a recent in-house report for having "essentially no program" for studying the possible effects of releasing genetically-produced organisms into the environment.

The numbers of new recruits found to be carrying the acquired immune deficiency syndrome virus has dropped, but the Veterans Administration is contending with a growing caseload of AIDS patients. After treating 900 such patients last year, the VA expects to treat as many as 1,000 new cases in 1986. The Pentagon reports that only 100 active-service members have been diagnosed thus far as AIDS-virus carriers.

Cigarettes, liquor and air travel are bread-and-butter subject matter for the billboard advertising industry. So it isn't surprising to learn that trade associations affiliated with these luxuries were among the sponsors of a Palm Springs (Calif.) reception in honor of House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. (D-Mass.), who is not seeking reelection this year. About 200 persons attended the event, which was held, coincidentally, just as Palm Springs was hosting the Bob Hope Chrysler Golf Classic. O'Neill, House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Dan Rostenkowski (D-Ill.) and three other congressmen played in the tournament.

Shuttle's Problem May Have Come Early

By HOWARD BENEDICT
Associated Press Writer
CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Photographs of a puzzling puff of black smoke between Challenger's right solid rocket booster and fuel tank indicate the ill-fated shuttle probably was in trouble the moment it left the launch pad, NASA officials say.

The presidential commission investigating the Jan. 28 explosion that killed Challenger's seven crewmembers reviewed film, video tapes and still photos of the smoke Thursday, and the evidence was released to reporters hours later.

Additional examination of film was planned today as the commission was concluding two days of closed-door hearings at this spaceport, scene of the worst tragedy in the U.S. space program. The investigation continued to focus on the possible rupture of a seal in the right booster.

The commission, headed by former Secretary of State William P. Rogers, also planned today to tour the Kennedy Space Center, including Challenger's launch pad, a building where shuttle wreckage from the Atlantic is being collected and an assembly building where the solid boosters and fuel tank are attached to the shuttle.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration released six photos, the first two showing normal conditions as Challenger left the launch pad. The next two clearly show the smoke between the right booster and the external tank, and the final two show the smoke has disappeared. The smoke plume appears to be about 4 to 5 feet high and 1 to 2 feet wide.

The sequence was less clear in a video tape lasting only two seconds.

NASA spokesman Jim Mizell termed the smoke unusual and said it first appeared about 1.4 seconds after liftoff, about one-quarter of the way up the 149-foot-long booster. That is near the lower aft O-ring seal, which joins two of the booster's four segments.

This is an area investigators have been concentrating on since photographs earlier disclosed a plume of flame bursting from the right booster 58 seconds into the flight. The theory is that this flame, perhaps spewing from a burst ring seal, caused the external tank and its half million gallons of fuel to explode 15 seconds later.

"All I can say is that it (the smoke) is there," said Mizell. "It appears to be on the back side of the SRB (solid rocket booster). It's very difficult to tell exactly where. I don't think it came from the main engines," which ignite 6.6 seconds before the boosters power the shuttle off the pad.

Documents released by NASA on Wednesday showed that the agency waived its requirement for effective backup safety seals on the boosters three years ago because engineers were confident the primary seal would do its job even though this seal had shown signs of erosion from hot gases on some flights.

The booster joints are designed with a primary seal and a backup seal intended to prevent hot gases from leaking out the side. But in late 1982, according to the documents, engineers found that rotational forces generated by the enormous pressures in the rocket could inactivate the backup seal.

Nevertheless, on March 28, 1983, officials at NASA headquarters approved a waiver exempting the booster joint assemblies from fail-safe requirements. The documents said they were confident the backup seal could be counted on to operate at the most critical early stages of launching and because tests showed no problems with having a single seal to hold the gases in.

The puff of smoke and its sudden disappearance raises another possibility that was discussed at a commission open hearing in Washington on Tuesday — that a test hole that leads into a section between the two seals might have sprung a leak.

Several days before launch, technicians open this test port and pressurize the gap between the seals with gas to determine if both are holding properly. Then they are supposed to close the port with a screw-like plug that has its own seal, and the work is supposed to be checked by contractor and Air Force personnel.

NASA's Lawrence Mulloy, project manager for the solid rocket boosters, testified that if there is undetected human error and the plug is left out or is installed loosely, "that would be a leak source." Other analysts testified a manufacturing defect also could cause the port to fail.

"The task force is continuing to conduct detailed analyses to determine the exact time, origin, dimensions and other characteristics of the smoke," a NASA statement said late Thursday.

While the commission looked for evidence, officials reported little progress in an underwater search for Challenger's main cabin or search rocket boosters. Winds that whipped up high waves hampered the efforts of divers Thursday.

SPACE TEACHER — Barbara Morgan of McCall, Idaho, leaves a press conference with her husband, Clay, on Thursday after announcing she has accepted NASA's offer to ride a space shuttle as part of the teacher-in-space program. Mrs. Morgan was backup to Christa McAuliffe, who died in the explosion of the shuttle Challenger. (AP Laserphoto)

Idaho Teacher Accepting Bid To Join Shuttle Flight

WASHINGTON (AP) — Plans to send a teacher and a journalist into space are back on track, but how soon they will fly will depend on the results of an investigation into the Challenger explosion, NASA officials say.

Barbara Morgan, a second-grade teacher from McCall, Idaho, who trained as a back-up to New Hampshire schoolteacher Christa McAuliffe for the ill-fated Challenger flight, has accepted NASA's offer to be the next "ordinary person" to ride aboard a space shuttle.

McAuliffe and six crew members were killed when the space shuttle exploded into a fireball shortly after liftoff from Cape Canaveral, Fla., on Jan. 28.

The remaining nine finalists in the teacher-in-space program say they are confident the National Aeronautics and Space Administration will correct problems with the space shuttle and that they would be willing to take a seat aboard the next shuttle flight.

"During my time with NASA ... I have learned one thing — that safety is the number-one priority of NASA," Judith M. Garcia, a French and Spanish teacher at Thomas Jefferson School for Science and Technology in Alexandria, Va., told reporters Thursday.

"I have tremendous confidence that when they deem the flight ready, it will be," said Michael Metcalf, a geography and government teacher at Hazen Union School in Hardwick, Vt.

The finalists were joined at the news conference by leaders of education groups and William R. Graham, acting administrator of NASA, who said they had found overwhelming support for continuing the teacher-in-space project and the education programs that are part of it.

"Space exploration ironically has been given an extraordinary lift among young people throughout America," said Wendell T. Butler, executive director of the Young Astronauts Council.

"Christa may well have influenced young people more by her sacrifice and example than what she might have been able to accomplish with her lesson," he said.

Graham said he did not know when shuttle flights would resume or how soon civilians would be scheduled for flights. He did say, however, that a teacher would be the next civilian to ride a shuttle, and the process of selecting a journalist for a future space mission would resume.

California, Texas Lead Pentagon Spending List

By NORMAN BLACK
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — California and Texas continued to pace the country as the top beneficiaries of Pentagon spending during fiscal 1985, thanks to the presence of numerous bases, large contractors and substantial numbers of retirees, a new report shows.

The report, released Thursday, indicates the race for the designation as the nation's largest defense contractor will apparently be a tight one. A preliminary tally for fiscal 1985, which ended Sept. 30, shows McDonnell Douglas Corp. running slightly ahead of General Dynamics Corp.

The annual report, the Defense Department's State Data Abstract Atlas, contains no narrative to explain trends. But it does have tables showing the breakdown of payroll and major contract spending across the 50 states.

As it has for years, California continued to far outstrip the other states in benefiting from Pentagon spending, thanks to its dozens of military facilities and such large contractors as Northrop Corp., Litton Industries Inc. and Lockheed Corp.

According to the atlas, $41 billion was spent there in 1985 — $11.9 billion for military, civilian, reserve and retired payrolls, and $29.1 billion in prime contract awards. That was only a slight increase over the $40 billion spent in the state the previous year.

Texas followed with $16.5 billion — $5.9 billion for payrolls and $10.6 billion in prime contract awards — up substantially from the $14.3 billion reported a year earlier.

Virginia followed in third place in 1985 with $13.9 billion, contrasting with a 1984 total of $12 billion. The Pentagon's spending in Virginia was split more evenly between payroll and contracts, with the former totaling $7.7 billion and the latter $6.2 billion.

The rest of the top 10, in order, were New York with $11.3 billion; Florida with $9.7 billion; Missouri with $8.8 billion; Massachusetts with $8.6 billion; Maryland with $7.1 billion; Pennsylvania with $6.4 billion, and Georgia with $6.3 billion.

The payroll totals also disclose that California, Florida, Texas, Virginia, Washington state and Georgia, in that order, remain the most attractive states to military retirees. Military pensions totaling $2.6 billion were paid out during the year to California residents, far surpassing second-ranked Florida's $1.7 billion.

As for defense contractors, preliminary figures showed that McDonnell Douglas retained its position as the nation's largest defense contractor for a second year, although a surging General Dynamics appears very close.

McDonnell Douglas is said to have received at least $7.6 billion in contract awards in 1985, compared to $7.4 billion for General Dynamics. Rockwell International Corp. is listed in third place, with contracts worth $6.3 billion. General Electric Co. and Boeing Co. round out the top five with totals of $5.8 billion and $4 billion, respectively.

Nationwide, the atlas says the Defense Department spent $76 billion in 1985 on all forms of pay, including retirees, and another $140.1 billion on prime contracts of $25,000 or more.

California, Texas, New York, Massachusetts and Missouri led the states in the contract awards distributed to companies operating within their borders.

Surgeon Defends Techniques

WASHINGTON (AP) — Navy surgeon Donal M. Billig, disavowing negligence in the deaths of patients in open-heart operations, says he used accepted surgical methods and above all did the best he could.

"I trained my residents with one concept in mind — don't ever do anything to a patient that you wouldn't do to yourself," Billig testified Thursday at his court-martial. "I think that's what I did."

The former chairman of heart surgery at Bethesda Naval Hospital was taking the stand today for the third day, this time facing cross-examination by prosecutors who contend that sloppy and rough handling of heart tissue and inappropriate methods by Billig caused five deaths in 1983 and 1984.

In testimony Thursday, Billig recounted each of those five cases and, trying to show an eye injury didn't hurt his surgical ability, took needle and thread in hand to sew stitches in rubber surgical gloves as jurors watched.

He is charged with five counts of involuntary manslaughter. Billig attributed one death to actions by others in the intensive care unit following surgery, and he said some cases involved unusually sick and risky patients. Events simply went badly in others.

"I don't feel I did anything technically that was not standard," he said. "Everything was done to the best of my ability. I cannot think of anything I did that was not done by other cardio-vascular surgeons."

The death of Maj. William F. Grubb shortly after coronary bypass surgery in August 1984 "flabbergasted" Billig, he said. He said someone in the intensive care unit switched off Grubb's pacemaker without his knowledge, and that may have brought on the heart attack that killed Grubb.

"My opinion was turning off the pacemaker was an error, and no, I was not responsible for that," he said.

The government charges in that case that Billig selected too narrow and too short a vein from the patient's leg for use in bypassing a diseased heart artery, and that he went ahead and used the vessel even though it didn't fit.

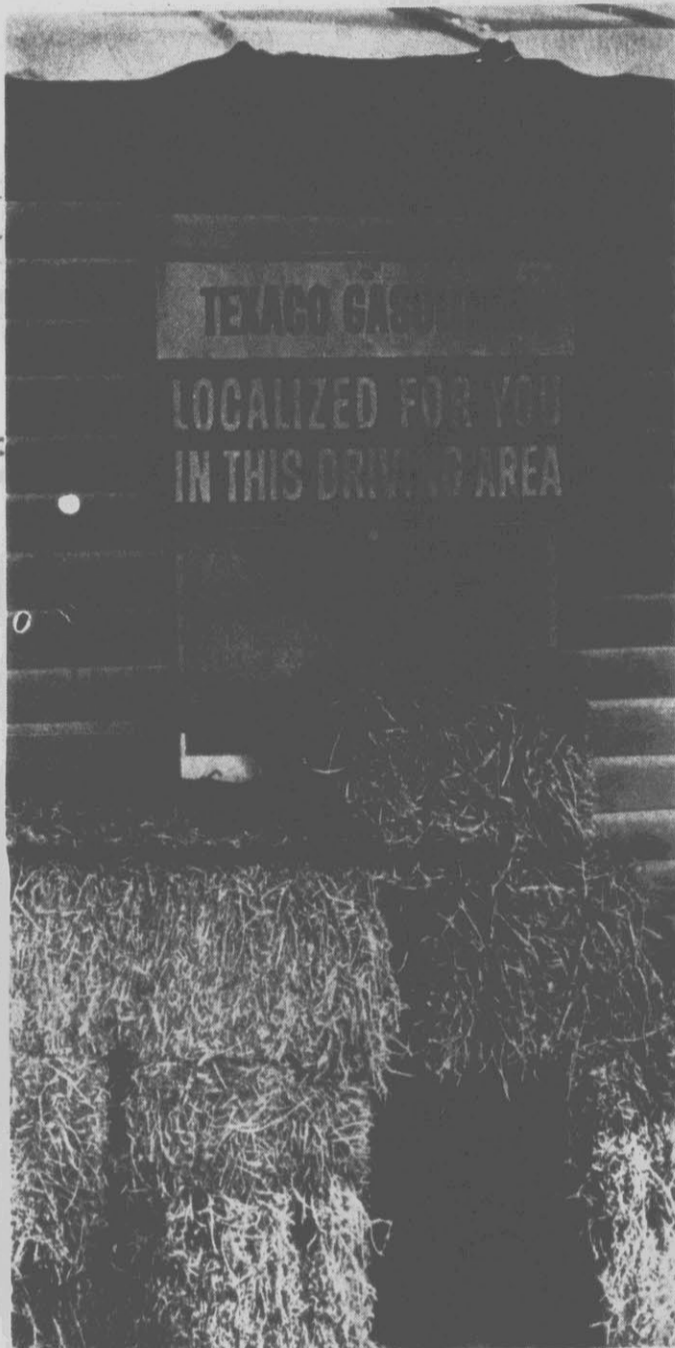

In another case that was the subject of graphic prosecution testimony earlier, Billig acknowledged that he at first mistook a vein for the artery to be bypassed and thus prolonged the operation.

In that operation on Lt. Col. John L. Kas, Billig installed a "vent," or hole, in the left ventricle chamber of the heart to empty it of blood so that he could repair another problem.

Prosecution witnesses have called this an outmoded and unwise technique, and the government says it led to Kas' bleeding to death from that hole shortly after surgery.

"It was the way I was taught to vent," Billig said. "I'd done it hundreds of times without any problem."

He also defended his lifting and manipulation of the heart, which the government contends caused it to become so swollen that the chest couldn't be closed following surgery.

Iacocca To Continue Fight Over Statue

HIGHLAND PARK, Mich. (AP) — Lee Iacocca, no stranger to being fired, vowed to continue fighting commercialization of the Statue of Liberty and Ellis Island on behalf of his immigrant parents and donors to the suddenly controversial restoration project.

The Chrysler Corp. chairman sparred at a distance Thursday with U.S. Interior Secretary Donald Hodel, who fired him Wednesday from his unpaid position as head of a government advisory commission on restoring the two landmarks in New York harbor. Iacocca remains chairman of a private foundation raising money for the work.

"In the end, a beautiful project gets hurt; I don't get hurt," Iacocca said in a news conference at Chrysler headquarters. "A lot of people have worked hard for four years on behalf of this project and so have I, and I don't appreciate being disenfranchised on somebody's whim."

"For me, from day one, it was, it is, it will continue to be what I said, a labor of love. I did this for my mother and my dad," the 61-year-old auto executive said. His parents immigrated to this country from Italy.

In Washington, Hodel replied, "I have tried to preserve and protect Mr. Iacocca's credibility ... (but) I don't believe anybody owns the position of chairman of a commission."

Hodel said he was firing Iacocca because of a conflict of interest between the auto executive's posts as head of both the commission and the foundation. But Iacocca maintained that Hodel had produced no evidence of a conflict in the 10 days "since this mess got under way."

Plans call for the renovated Statue of Liberty to be reopened on Independence Day with much hoopla. This year is the 100th anniversary of the statue, which was given to the United States by France.

Ellis Island marks its 100th anniversary in 1992.

Iacocca said he was not certain why he was fired, but said he believed it was related to the National Park Service's endorsement of a luxury hotel and conference center for Ellis Island, where the ancestors of millions of Americans trod their first steps in the New World.

Iacocca favors establishing an ethnic museum on the island.

He said the hotel plan by the park service, which is part of the Interior Department, would be financed by "tax shelters for the rich" and would denigrate the island's historic nature.

"They know I've been one tough hombre on this. That's not part of the deal we made with the American people," Iacocca said.

The fund-raising effort has been criticized for its emphasis on corporate participation. Some of the companies that have contributed to the statue's restoration have mentioned their donations in their advertisements.

New Rulers Restore Haiti's Earlier Red-And-Blue Flag

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — The new ruling council announced that Haiti's original red-and-blue flag, which was banned by the Duvalier family 22 years ago, will again become the Caribbean country's official emblem.

In another development on Thursday, students in the northern city of Gonaives called for the dismissal of two of Haiti's new leaders who had close ties to former President-for-life Jean-Claude Duvalier.

The six-man National Government Council which replaced Duvalier when he fled the country Feb. 7 said the flag change will occur next Tuesday. The original flag consists of two vertical stripes of blue and red, with Haiti's seal in the center.

Those colors became the symbol of the protest movement that began Nov. 27 in Gonaives, spread to Port-au-Prince and climaxed with the departure of Duvalier.

The late Francois "Papa Doc" Duvalier, Jean-Claude's father, had replaced the blue stripe with a black one in 1964, when the constitution was amended to establish the lifetime presidency.

In Gonaives, students said a petition was circulated seeking the dismissal of two members of the new military-civilian council who had close ties to Duvalier.

The two council members, former Public Works Minister Alix Cineas and Col. Prosper Avril, also were criticized Wednesday by students who marched on the national palace in Port-au-Prince.

The students did not say how many people had signed the petition in Gonaives, about 90 miles north of Port-au-Prince.

Teachers who spoke on condition of anonymity said they agreed with the students, saying there was "a strong Duvalier influence" on the council.

Also Thursday, Duvalier asked France for asylum even though he was previously told he would have to leave, and Brazil reportedly rejected a French request to accept him.

Duvalier and his family have been staying at a luxury hotel in Talloires in southern France.

France has said Duvalier cannot stay in the country permanently. A spokesman for the French Foreign Ministry said France's ambassador to Liberia had been instructed to meet with authorities in that country about giving Duvalier refuge.

Liberia's government said earlier Thursday it had not offered Duvalier asylum, but would consider it if he made a request.

Meanwhile, the first scheduled flight from the United States since Duvalier fled landed in Port-au-Prince Thursday, and Haitians aboard seemed split between happiness and caution about the change.

"It's good, I love it," said Eloi Christophe, 51, who said he had been living in Boston.

U.S. Maintains Libyan Exercises

By NORMAN BLACK
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — American aircraft carriers are expected to continue exercises in the central Mediterranean sea today as Libya increased its number of surveillance flights of the U.S. fleet, Pentagon officials said.

The officials, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said fighters from the Coral Sea and Saratoga had moved to intercept about 35 Libyan aircraft Thursday during flight operations that were interrupted at one point by heavy thunderstorms and squalls.

The Pentagon sources had earlier disclosed that the Libyans were launching substantially more surveillance flights this week than the total last month during a similar exercise.

The current U.S. exercise off the Libyan coast began Tuesday and is expected to continue through tonight.

Officials said the Libyan planes made no threatening gestures during Thursday's exercise. While there were some instances of U.S. planes moving close enough to observe the Libyans visually, most of the Libyan aircraft turned back toward home before the American fighters arrived nearby, the sources said.

"The daily intercept activity remains about the same as it was Wednesday," said one official.

One source said Thursday the Libyan operations had included a few night-time flights by lone maritime reconnaissance aircraft. While those planes turned toward Libya before actually reaching the Coral Sea and Saratoga, "it's not a usual thing" for them to fly at night, the source added.

The maneuvers have so far proved a duplicate of an exercise conducted during the last week of January, with American fighters flying within an area that is close enough to the coast that civilian airliners are controlled by the Tripoli tower.

That latter exercise was conducted as a "show of resolve" after the United States accused Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy of supporting a Palestinian terrorist faction believed responsible for the Dec. 27 attacks on the Rome and Vienna airports.

Khadafy has branded the exercises an "aggressive provocation" and reasserted his claim to the Gulf of Sidra as Libyan waters. The gulf is a large, U-shaped body of water that cuts into the central Libyan coastline. The United States recognizes only a 12-mile territorial limit and has vowed to conduct periodic operations within its waters.

The Pentagon sources said Thursday, however, that planes from the carriers were still operating to the north of the gulf, although within 75 miles of some parts of the Libyan coast. The sources added that they knew of no plans during this week's operation to actually move into the gulf.

On Wednesday, the sources said there had been roughly 12 cases of U.S. and Libyan jets crossing paths, but refused to say exactly how many planes were involved.

Cuba Urging More Respect For Church

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press Writer

HAVANA (AP) — In a new sign of detente between the government and Cuba's long-repressed Catholic community, the Marxist leadership is calling on citizens to respect the beliefs of churchgoers.

The recommendation is contained in a draft of the program the Communist Party will follow for the next five years. The program is subject to revision once it is debated at the grass roots level, but the essential elements are expected to remain intact and to be approved at a party meeting in December.

The draft has not been made public, but copies were made available to some diplomatic missions following a party conclave last week.

It calls on Cubans to honor "the moral integrity of believers" and to avoid any practice that could "wound religious sentiments."

"Within the party's policy of encouraging national unity, there is no room for discrimination against believers. Instead, they should be encouraged to participate voluntarily and consciously as citizens and patriots in the construction of socialism," it says.

The conciliatory tone is consistent with recent indications the government wants to allow more religious freedom.

In the early years of the revolution, the church was considered a hostile force. Foreign priests were expelled, and the number of prelates dropped from a pre-revolution high in the late 1950s of about 800 to 210 at present.

Christmas was abolished, and church schools, which once educated 100,000 Cuban youths, were shut down. At one time, practicing Catholics were purged from universities. Strict limits were imposed on the type of activities priests could engage in outside church grounds.

The more relaxed atmosphere was clearly in evidence last year when an office of religious affairs was created and President Fidel Castro held two meetings with delegations of Cuban bishops.

In addition, Castro outlined his views on religion in a series of interviews with a leftist churchman from Brazil, Frei Betto. In December, the interviews were published as a book, which has since topped Cuba's best-seller list.

In a reference to Jesus, Castro said in the interviews, "I never saw a contradiction between the ideas that sustain me and the ideas of that symbol, of that extraordinary figure."

Archbishop Carlos Manuel de Cespedes of Havana could not be reached for comment Thursday on the draft proposal. But in an interview earlier this week with a small group of foreign reporters, he said he welcomed the "more positive" attitude of the government on religious issues.

Cespedes, 49, said he wants to see an end to the practice of treating Catholics "as though they can't be trusted." He also called for a "neutral education" in which a youngster won't suffer the confusion of going to church on Sunday only to be told on Monday "that Christ didn't exist."

Cespedes said an additional concern is lack of church access to the means of communication. At present, church literature is limited to a two-page sheet titled "Vida Cristiana" (Christian Life), which has a distribution of 80,000, less than 1 percent of Cuba's population.

Finally, Cespedes said he favors the admission of practicing Catholics to Communist Party membership.

In a separate interview, the Archbishop of Cuba, Jaime Ortega, 49, said he believes Castro has changed his attitude toward the church for ethical as well as political reasons.

The president "may be trying to improve his image in Latin America, where the church cannot be ignored," Ortega said.

In response to the new attitude, Ortega said there has been a marked increase in the number of baptisms and church burials in recent months.

Echoing Ortega, Cespedes said he's cautiously optimistic about the new church-state dialogue.

"It's important to find solutions to all problems," Cespedes said, "but there can be greater understanding on those where agreement can't be reached."

Farm Advocate Calls For Ban On Foreclosures

RALEIGH (AP) — A moratorium on farm foreclosures and a state program for farm debt restructuring are needed "to preserve the productive middle of North Carolina agriculture," says an advocate for small family farms.

"It is time to be blunt," Allen Spalt, a research associate with the Rural Advancement Fund, told the Agricultural Study Commission on Thursday. "The farm crisis is real, and it is here in North Carolina.

"Such action is called for because the state could lose a quarter of its most productive farmers in the next two years," Spalt added. "North Carolina already leads the nation in losing farms."

In addition to a moratorium, the state should implement a program to help farmers rework their debts, he said. Other states have shifted state funds to banks in order to restructure loans and have used state money to subsidize interest rates on some loans, he said.

But critics said such actions could dry up credit for all farmers.

Larry Godwin, executive director of the Farmers Home Administration in North Carolina, said lenders need the threat of foreclosure to make sure borrowers will repay their loans.

"This moratorium idea is a very foolish proposition because the banks are scared to death; they're already pulling in their horns," he told the study commission. A two-year moratorium recently was lifted on foreclosures by the FmHA, the nation's farm lender of last resort.

"With operating credit or any other type of credit, if they (banks) can't enforce their liens, they're already hung out to dry," Godwin said.

Ralph Miller, special projects director for the FmHA in Raleigh, warned that a moratorium might help the 25 percent of farmers estimated both nationally and in North Carolina to be in serious debt, but might jeopardize the other 75 percent. And Rep. Robert Lee McAlister, D-Ruffin, a member of the study commission, worried about state finances.

"You're talking about our ability in contingency, and I don't think the legislature will go too hot on that," McAlister said.

But Spalt said he was not asking the state to forgive farmers' debts, only to share them.

He pointed to North Carolina State University Extension estimates that 4 percent of farmers are technically insolvent and 20 percent more have debts equal to more than 40 percent of their assets.

Some 3,000 to 4,000 farmers have called it quits each year for the past five years — a figure that places North Carolina first in the nation, Spalt said.

Symphony, Art Museum

Martin Rejects Private Operation Of Agencies

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Likely avoiding a sharp clash with the Legislature, Gov. Jim Martin has decided against recommending that the North Carolina Museum of Art and the N.C. Symphony be converted to private institutions.

"I don't see how they can sustain their operating expenses currently without the relationship to state government," Martin said at a news conference Thursday. "Maybe sometime in the future, who knows? Ten years down the road someone might re-evaluate that."

But Martin said his administration hoped to implement up to 80 percent of the 414 recommendations for up to $200 million per year in cost savings in last September's report by the Governor's Efficiency Study Commission.

Legislative leaders had expressed skepticism about phasing out funding for the museum and symphony. And museum and symphony officials who had ridiculed the proposal greeted Martin's decision with relief.

"We are extremely pleased," said Richard Schneiderman, who's scheduled to become art museum director in May. "We feel his decision reaffirms the mission of the museum to serve the people."

Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan said: "I took the position early on that these were not appropriate cuts, and I am happy that he (Martin) has decided that."

Last February Martin appointed a 37-member commission to seek ways to make state government less costly.

The commission, which included some of the state's best-known business leaders, said in its report that if all 414 of its proposals were implemented the state would save around $247 million per year.

Perhaps the two most controversial suggestions were that the museum and orchestra be converted to privately endowed and operated enterprises within five years. Now, both rely on state appropriations and funds from private sources.

The fiscal 1985-87 state budget includes $4.1 million for the museum, which raises about $600,000 annually in donations.

The symphony's state appropriation over the next two years is $2.9 million, or just under half of the orchestra's budget, said executive director Banks Talley. The rest comes from ticket sales and donations.

The symphony has been trying to reduce its dependency on the state, but is unable to support itself entirely, Talley said.

Martin said when the study was released that he supported most of its findings, but withheld judgment then and in ensuing months on the controversial symphony and museum items.

In a news conference Thursday, he said he had had serious doubts about the disputed proposals from the beginning, but felt no need immediately to repudiate them.

"I felt it was more important to take time to reflect on those objections and to evaluate them, rather than to suddenly start pulling the plug," he said.

Martin said the savings that would result from ending state assistance to the museum and orchestra would be "relatively modest."

Meanwhile, he said, his administration has made "substantial progress" in reviewing the rest of the report and implementing suggestions found to have merit and feasibility. Some 45 percent of the recommendations have been accepted, he said.

Another 16 percent have been labeled unreasonable or impractical by the various state departments that would implement the changes, Martin said. The State Budget Office has agreed with the departments in half of those cases and is reviewing the others.

The remaining 39 percent of the recommendations remain under study, Martin said, adding that he had set an April deadline for concluding the examination.

IN THE STATE

Per Pupil Spending Increases

RALEIGH (AP) — The amount of money spent on North Carolina school children rose in 1985-86 to push the state up 14 notches to 27th in the nation, but average pay for teachers is nothing to brag about, educators say.

"I wish the news were as good about the average teacher salary," said Dr. K.Z. Chavis, interim executive secretary of the N.C. Association of Educators. "Today we are $2,781 below the national average teacher's salary. Last year, we were $2,891 below the national average."

"While our per pupil expenditures have gained almost 60 percent against the national average, our average salary has gained only four percent," he said.

Chavis said the state can be proud of the progress it has made in per pupil spending.

"Last year we were $771 below the national average per pupil expenditure," he said. "Today we are only $312 below the national average. The General Assembly should be commended for appropriating the funds to bring our state's expenditure per pupil from $2,438 in 1984-85 to $3,179 this year."

North Carolina ranks 31st in the nation in average teacher salary, up two places over the 1984-85 rankings, according to an annual survey of state educators compiled by the National Education Association.

The average North Carolina teacher earns $22,476 this year. In 1984-85, the average salary was $20,691.

The highest average teacher salary for 1985-86 is the $41,480 paid in Alaska. The top nine are: District of Columbia, $33,990; New York, $30,200; Michigan, $30,168; California, $29,750; Rhode Island, $29,470; New Jersey, $28,216; Wyoming, $27,876; Illinois, $27,190; and Maryland, $27,186.

The highest per pupil expenditure in the nation was also Alaska with $7,007. The top nine are: Wyoming, $5,190; New Jersey, $5,178; New York, $5,073; Connecticut, $4,697; the District of Columbia, $4,507; Rhode Island, $4,335; Delaware, $4,203; Montana, $4,131; and Maryland $2,989.

Salary hikes given to teachers in the past two years generally brought North Carolina's ranking among the states back to where it was in 1979-80, when the state's average salary ranked 32nd, Chavis said.

"In order to make any real progress now, we must take some real steps forward during the last four years of this decade," he said. "Otherwise, the teaching profession will again be just marking time while the rest of the economy moves ahead."

Counties Discuss Problems

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Delegates from four counties in North Carolina and two in South Carolina have set aside county and state boundaries to discuss solutions to such common problems as growth and burying garbage.

"If we can share our utilities and resources with our neighbors across the border and do it more economically, we ought to explore it," Larry Hedrick, chairman of the Iredell County Commission, said Thursday. He proposed that municipalities share the cost of expensive solid-waste incinerators.

Hedrick and officials from Mecklenburg, Gaston and Cabarrus counties in North Carolina and York and Lancaster counties in South Carolina formed a new alliance, called the Carolinas Counties Coalition, to address common problems.

Thursday's talks produced such ideas as sharing the cost of solid-waste incinerators and sharing experiences in land-use planning during cooperative workshops.

Incinerator Permit Denied

RALEIGH (AP) — US Ecology's plans to build and run the nation's first commercial radioactive waste incinerator in Bladen County are dead unless the company successfully appeals to the state Environmental Management Commission.

R. Paul Wilms, director of the state Division of Environmental Management, denied US Ecology an air quality permit, one of three permits the company must obtain to construct the incinerator in Bladen County.

He said the Kentucky-based company could appeal or reapply for the permit seeking a different ruling.

ITT Lays Off 1,200 Workers

RALEIGH (AP) — Zbigniew M. Rubinstein says there were more brown envelopes than white ones handed out at ITT Telecom Products Corp. in Raleigh, and he was one of the unlucky ones.

An electronics technician at ITT Telecom for eight years, Rubinstein was one of 1,200 employees to get layoff notices Thursday. "They put envelopes on a table ... and the ones who got a brown envelope were less lucky," said the Raleigh man. "I got a brown envelope."

The subsidiary of ITT Corp. said it would lay off the workers after ITT discontinued development of its System 12 telephone switching system in the United States.

The area's fourth largest private employer, ITT Telecom Products Corp. was also one of the fastest growing since naming Raleigh its headquarters in 1982.

It still employs 1,800 people in making and selling office telephone systems and marine radios.

Graham Issues Warning

RALEIGH (AP) — Farmers who intend to import tobacco transplants for the 1986 growing season should be aware of the tobacco plant import regulations and understand their real intent, state Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham says.

Graham said permit applications may be obtained from the Plant Industry Division, Plant Protection Section, N.C. Department of Agriculture, P.O. Box 27647, Raleigh, N.C., 27611.

Marines Seek New Image

GREENSBORO (AP) — The image of Parris Island, S.C., as a Marine Corps boot camp where mental and physical abuse were part of the daily routine is fading, says the camp's commander.

The Marine Corps is working to keep drill instructors from going overboard in preparing young recruits for the corps, Maj. Gen. Stephen G. Olmstead said. Olmstead said a drill instructor who uses obscenities to chew out a recruit is the poorer for it. Each four-letter word means a $360 reduction in the instructor's paycheck.

"At $360 a pop, they don't curse much at Parris Island anymore," said Olmstead, who was in Greensboro for a public relations visit.

Shepherdess

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (AP) — A Bedouin shepherdess stabbed to death a wolf that tried to eat her, the newspaper Okaz reported.

Okaz said the wolf surprised shepherdess Umm Rajnan as she was tending her flock near the desert village of al-Ha'it about 125 miles from the city of Medina.

As the wolf began attacking her sheep, Umm Rajnan slipped into her tent and got a big knife, the newspaper said. The wolf jumped at her but she stabbed it repeatedly until it fell dead at her feet, Okaz said.

The 45-year-old shepherdess was treated for minor injuries, the newspaper added.

New Group Tries To Help Fundamentalists Get Out

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — While growing numbers of people are entering fundamentalist churches, a recently formed organization has gone to work to help dissatisfied people get out.

"Fundamentalists Anonymous," the group is called, saying it is modeled after "Alcoholics Anonymous." While AA carefully shields identities, leaders of FA seek public notice.

"We have obviously struck a raw nerve out there," says Richard Yao, head of the group in one of numerous press releases from its office in New York, reporting more than 3,000 responses to his appearance on a TV show.

Most came from fundamentalists trying to leave their folds, but who were having serious difficulties doing it, he says, adding: "The word is out. Fundamentalism could be a serious mental health hazard to millions."

Strongly disputing the charge, the Rev. Edward Dobson, editor of the Fundamentalist Journal, calls it misleading to draw blanket conclusions from "isolated cases of abuse" in most any religious group.

Christian fundamentalism, a resurgent force on the current religious scene, stresses literalistic views of the Bible and doctrines, strict behavioral codes and some avoidance of close associations with non-fundamentalists.

Yao's group accuses fundamentalism of "authoritarian tendencies" to control lives. He says ex-fundamentalists have "withdrawal symptoms" and need a "support group" to help them throw off the strict rules and develop a "celebration lifestyle."

"There is a way out and there is life after fundamentalism," says Yao, 32, an ex-fundamentalist himself, a New York lawyer and editor with a Yale theology degree, but no longer affiliated with any church institution.

He founded FA last year to help other ex-fundamentalists throw off their "fundamentalist mindset." He says it now has 28 chapters across the country, with 120 others forming, and has inquiries from more than 10,000 people.

"We want to be a support group for other people who have been hurt the way we have," says Sherry Burgdorf, who helped organize the Minnesota chapter.

"If a person leaves one of the so-called religious cults, usually their family and the other world welcomes them back," she says "But when you leave fundamentalism you are leaving everyone — the way you spend your time and money, the music you listen to, your hopes for the future — every single aspect of your life."

Yao says the organization began with a classified advertisement in the Village Voice weekly newspaper in New York. He says his group isn't trying to lure those content in fundamentalism but those who have been "burned."

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

WHAT'S IN A NAME!

TODAY, NAMES IN THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE SUCH AS JAMES, ROBERT, ANNE, HELEN, HAVE A MEANING BUT IT IS KNOWN ONLY TO THOSE WHO HAVE STUDIED ETYMOLOGY. IN BIBLICAL TIMES IT WAS FAR DIFFERENT! EVERYBODY KNEW THE MEANING OF A PERSON'S NAME AS SOON AS HE HEARD IT, BECAUSE ALL NAMES CAME FROM HIS OWN DAILY LANGUAGE! WHEN LEAH GAVE BIRTH TO JACOB'S FIRST SON, SHE NAMED HIM REUBEN, WHICH, WHEN TRANSLATED INTO ENGLISH, COMES OUT, "BEHOLD, A SON." MANY CHILDREN WERE NAMED AFTER NATURAL THINGS OR ANIMALS SUCH AS: LEAH, WILD COW; JONAH, DOVE; TAMAR, PALM TREE; TABITHA, GAZELLE. SOME PARENTS NAMED THEIR CHILDREN IN THE HOPE THAT THEY WOULD GROW UP TO HAVE THE SAME QUALITIES AS THEIR NAMES IMPLIED, SUCH AS: SHIPHRAH, BEAUTY; NOAH, RESTFUL; NAOMI, SWEETNESS!

NATHAN, "GOD HAS GIVEN"

DEBORAH, "A BEE"

DAVID "BELOVED"

DANIEL, "GOD HAS JUDGED"

SURNAMES WERE LACKING AMONG THE HEBREWS — PERSONS WERE DISTINGUISHED FROM OTHERS OF THE SAME NAME BY ADDING THE CITY THEY CAME FROM, SUCH AS, JESUS OF NAZARETH; JOSEPH OF ARIMATHAEA; AND MARY MAGDALENE, AS DISTINGUISHED FROM MARY OF BETHANY. . . STILL OTHERS BY THEIR TRADE SUCH AS, NATHAN THE PROPHET; JOSEPH THE CARPENTER; MATTHEW THE PUBLICAN. . . YOU CAN BE SURE THAT EVEN A STRANGER KNEW MORE ABOUT A PERSON, JUST ON HEARING HIS NAME, THAN WE DO TODAY!

JIM BURGDOFF
Ministering on the Subject of Worship
Sunday, Feb. 16-6:00 P.M.
Monday, Feb. 17-7:30 P.M.

MUSICIAN, SINGER, SONGWRITER, PSALMIST, EVANGELIST, TEACHER... Jim Burgdoff's ministry efforts have spanned fifteen years of singing, writing and teaching the Word, with several nationally known musical groups, and in recent years, with his wife Karyn, and their two children, Melissa and Jessica.
In addition to his numerous ministry appearances on local and cable syndicated programming, such as T.R.C. of California, Jim has ministered frequently on CBN, TBN, and P.T.L. networks.
For the past two and a half years, along with his own ministry efforts, Jim has worked closely with Kenneth Copeland Ministries as a vocalist and as a Praise leader.
As a teacher, Jim's ministry focuses toward the body of Christ, on the responsibility for and the benefits of a higher form of communion with the Father; well developed praise. He teaches that praise, in its higher forms is the entrance to deliverance. Across the United States and overseas, God has been proving and performing His Word through both the musical and the teaching aspects of this ministry.
Col. 3:16...teaching, and admonishing in psalms, hymns, and spiritual songs.

John Daigle was born in the Panama Canal Zone in 1948. While his father was serving there with the U.S. Marine Corps. Later, his father was stationed at Cherry Point where John finished high school. He graduated from E.C.U. in 1971 with a B.S. degree in Math. Since then, John has worked in sales with several major companies. Presently, he is a sales rep. with Nationwide Wolf and Printing, Inc. in Fayetteville, N.C. He is also founder of Eglewings Productions, a Christian Printing Co. which primarily serves ministries.
He is married to the former Eileen Lilley of Kinston and they have two children, John, Jr., 13 and Jeff, 10. They are members of Faith and Victory Church in Greenville, N.C. where John serves on the Advisory Board. He is also director of the ministry of helps there. John is a member of the Kinston chapter of the FGBM fellowship. He and his family live in Kinston. John came into a relationship with Jesus Christ in May, 1978, and he says, "Words are not adequate to describe what it means to have abundant life in Jesus." He has experienced physical and financial healings in his family, and his marriage has been completely restored.
John spends many hours each week sharing the great victories available through Jesus Christ. Proclaiming that all things are possible to them that believe.

Sows: (500 pounds up) Wilson 36.00; Fayetteville 35.00; Whiteville 34.00; Wallace 36.00; Spivey's Corner 36.50; Rowland 36.00.

BROILERS: The North Carolina fob dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 44.25 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2 1/2 to 3 pounds birds. 68 percent of the loads offered have been confirmed with a preliminary weighted average of 44.55 cents fob dock or equivalent. The market is steady and the live supply is adequate for a moderate demand. Average weights mostly desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Friday was 1,613,000, compared to 1,833,000 last Friday.

HENS: Market steady. Supply fully adequate for a light demand. The undertone for next week's trading is steady. Prices paid per pound for hens over seven pounds at farm for Wednesday, Thursday and Friday was 14 cents.

GRAIN: No. 2 yellow shelled corn steady to 1 cent lower at mostly 2.63-2.73 in East and mostly 2.74-2.85 in the Piedmont; No. 1 yellow soybeans 4 to 5 cents higher at mostly 5.19-5.37 1/2 in East and mostly 5.07-5.22 in the Piedmont; wheat mostly 3.15-3.26; (new crop corn 1.99-2.11, new crop soybean 4.73-5.00, new crop wheat 2.22-2.52).

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today, bogging down after Thursday's rise to record highs.

Gainers held a 3-2 lead over losers in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

But the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 3.21 to 1,641.86 in the first hour of trading.

The government reported this morning that the producer price index of finished goods fell 0.7 percent in January, for its biggest decline in three years.

Tax ...

"This is the hard part," Maveretic admitted. He said he believes that, if the General Assembly doesn't call for a referendum before 1991, it will not be done. The year following the census is when major redistricting takes place and then the urban centers will be too strong for the other counties to prevail, he said.

Questioned about the long-range effects of the proposal, he said, "We didn't know the long-range effects of income tax 50 years ago when it was instituted. We don't know all the long-range effects of this measure, but we've done all the study we possibly can and we do know that property taxation isn't meeting the needs of our local governments. Something must be done and I'm betting on this."

He said he believes the sales tax is the fairest, most dependable way to meet government needs "because we are a consumer society. People spend money in proportion to the amount they have."

He said this measure would undo the work of special interest groups over the years which have put ceilings on "big ticket" items like cars and boats. He said he sees no reason cars should be taxed differently from other consumer items — the rate is now 2 percent — or why there should be a ceiling to make a person buying a $20,000 car pay less in proportion than a person buying a much less expensive automobile. The ceiling is now $300.

Coupled with the 8 percent sales tax would be a requirement that 50 percent of the revenue from the state's corporate income tax be allocated to the cities and counties on a per-capita basis. Local governments would have the option of levying no-maximum local income taxes on those residing within their borders and a real estate transfer tax of up to 8 percent.

He said another possibility for local income would be user fees for certain services like fire protection. He said fees for fire protection would be fair if they were based on square footage of property to be protected and whether land is wooded or cleared.

Maveretic represents parts of Nash and Edgecombe counties. State Sen. Tom Taft and Reps. Ed Warren and Walter Jones Jr., legislators from Pitt County, attended the session Thursday night. They characterized Maveretic as a man who does prodigious homework on every issue and they said this one is no exception.

Warren and Jones both said they are generally supportive of his efforts, though each said he has not decided how to vote if the measure gets to the floor of the House during the next General Assembly session. Taft expressed more reservations, saying he believes the burden of proof for this idea is on the shoulders of Maveretic and other supporters. He said he is concerned about several issues related to it including equity, whether consumer-driven revenues will work long-term, what the effect on counties bordering other states with lower sales taxes will be, if it will cause a reduction in local government authority, and what the effect on local government general obligation bonds will be.

Hubert Terry, chairman of the State Concerns Committee of the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce, emphasized that the chamber is not endorsing Maveretic's position, but brought him here to provide information on an issue to chamber members and the public.

had taken. Tylenol in other forms was not affected by the warnings.

"While the area of immediate concern is New York, we are issuing a nationwide warning in the interest of giving the public the widest possible protection," said Johnson & Johnson, which also ordered the recall of all Tylenol capsules in Westchester County, where the tainted capsules were found.

Young said the poisoning "still appears to be a local occurrence in the greater New York area," but warned consumers to remove Tylenol capsules from medicine cabinets.

Tests on the bottle used by Miss Elstroth showed three of the remaining 21 capsules had been tainted.

Street in Greenville to four lanes, from 10th Street to Greenville Boulevard; widening .17 miles of SR 1907 (Church Street) in Grifton, from N.C. 118 to north of SR 1909, to Shackelford Paving Co. of Wilson for $101,514, and $80,000 for widening a section of U.S. 13 just west of the city limits at Snow Hill.

The board also approved small urban construction projects in Ayden, Fountain and Farmville.

Doub said the Ayden project provides for removal of asphalt on N.C. 102 (3rd Street) and resurfacing, while the Fountain project provides for drainage improvements on U.S. 258 between Blount Street and Lang Street.

The Farmville project provides for intersection revisions and resurfacing on SR 1225 (Field Street) at the intersection of U.S. 264.

Total cost of the three small urban projects is $62,000.

Doub said the transportation board was able to authorize the preliminary engineering funds for the Evans Street project in Greenville because the project was moved up in last year's transportation improvement plan.

Tests revealed Thursday that five of the 24 capsules in the second bottle, removed from the Woolworth's on Monday, been poisoned, authorities said.

Young said today that his agency's Cincinnati laboratory had obtained a "fingerprint" or detailed identification of the potassium cyanide in the second bottle and that it was identical to the poison in the first bottle.

Young said that while that indicated both amounts of cyanide came from a single source, he could not say how the poison was introduced into the second bottle because the seals and wrapping appeared to be unbroken.

"The three seals on the tainted product were, from all external signs, intact," deputy FDA commissioner John Norris told Associated Press Radio. "The seal on the box was intact and the two seals on the bottle appeared to be, based on actual expert observation, to be intact. As best we can tell, it would take an extremely gifted individual to fool the experts that reviewed the seals."

However, a source who asked not to be named said Kugel has been unable to secure local financing because his plans to convert the old Belk building were significantly above the existing market. "He wanted to charge 50 to 100 percent more than current lease rates in the downtown area, and because of that the banks felt that revenue projections on the project probably were not accurate," the source said.

Greenville was the first of 19 North Carolina towns to hire Kugel in 1985 to assist in urban revitalization projects. Since officials discovered Kugel's Raleigh office closed recently and that his chief aide in North Carolina, Oppie Jordan, had resigned to start another development firm, concern in those cities has reportedly mounted. "A few are satisfied, but a good many are very apprehensive," McKee said.

However, the logos printed on the capsule halves were misaligned, possible evidence of tampering, said George Gerstenberg, FDA director in Brooklyn.

Young noted that the chemical fingerprint was different from the cyanide found in the Illinois poisonings.

After Miss Elstroth died Saturday, A&P ordered Extra-Strength Tylenol temporarily removed from the shelves of more than 1,000 stores in 25 states and the District of Columbia.

After the Chicago poisonings, James E. Lewis of Kansas City was convicted of sending an extortion note to Johnson & Johnson, threatening to continue the poisonings unless he was given $1 million, but no charges in the deaths were ever filed. No one was ever charged in any of the deaths.

The Chicago deaths prompted a nationwide withdrawal of the popular painkiller and caused drug companies to design new ways to package their products to make them more resistant to tampering.

Leadership Session

Three Rose High students are among 135 high school juniors in eastern North Carolina who will take part in a Rotary Youth Leadership conference Feb. 28 through March 2 at the Ramada Inn in Ahoskie.

The Rose students are: Gita Gulati, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Umesh G. Gulati; Josh Hickman, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hickman, and Bella Kang, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Soo I. Kang, all of Greenville.

Discussion leaders will address such issues as free enterprise, attitudes and qualities of leadership. Participants will receive a personal profile analysis.

Discussion leaders include Dr. Tom Haggai of High Point, State Treasurer Harlan Boyles, and officials from NASA and the U.S. Military Academy at West Point.

Students were selected by local Rotarians in conjunction with school officials.

Scout Round Tables

The Cub Scout and Boy Scout leaders round tables will be held Tuesday at Red Oak Christian Church.

The theme for the Cubs will be "Mardi Gras," while the Boy Scout theme will be "Spring Wake-Up." Other meeting highlights will be discussion on the annual Scout show and the collection of "Name the District" ballots.

With deepest gratitude, the Mother and family of the late Earl Stokes wish to express their sincere appreciation to everyone for each kindness and support given at the sudden loss of their loved one.

May God Bless each of you.

Pirates Go After Home Berth

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Saturday night, East Carolina University's men's basketball team can do something it's never done before — clinch an upper division spot in the Colonial Athletic Association.

The Pirates host UNC-Wilmington in a 7:30 p.m. game in Minges and win will ensure no worse than a fourth place finish for East Carolina.

At stake is a home court site in the first round of the Colonial Athletic Association's post-season tournament. The top four teams in the eight-team league will host the lower four teams in the first round on Saturday, March 1. The winners then move on to George Mason's Patriot Center for the semifinals and finals on March 3-4.

The Pirates enter Saturday's game with a 6-5 league record and 11-12 overall. UNC-Wilmington posts a 4-7 conference mark, 13-11 overall.

A win by the Seahawks, however, would keep them in the race for one of the upper positions, and give them the advantage over the Pirates should the two end up tied for fourth. UNCW won the opening matchup of the two in Wilmington, 68-54.

Key to the Seahawk game are Brian Rowsom and Bobby Jo Springer.

Rowsom, a 6-10 junior center, is one of the top scorers and rebounders in the league with a 19.3 ppg. and 9.3 rebound average. He has been the dominant Seahawk player in most games so far this season, including the first game with ECU when he scored 25 points and pulled away 11 rebounds.

Springer, a 6-1 senior guard, is averaging 14.5 points a game and 3.5 assists. He scored 14 in the opening game with the Pirates.

The other starters include Greg Bender, a 6-6 freshman forward, averaging 9.5 points a game; Charles Cherry, a 6-5 junior forward, averaging 6.8 points and Mark Gary, a 6-2 sophomore, with a 4.7 average.

Bender contributed 11 points to the win over the Pirates.

"The only thing that makes this game more important than any other is that we're home," Coach Charlie Harrison said. "Every game we've played prior to it and every game we play afterwards is important in that we're still playing for something."

"Our goal this year was to make strides in the conference, and so far we've done this. But we have to continue. Nothing is settled or set."

Harrison recalled that at the start of the season, he said that Navy and Richmond, and probably George Mason were the class of the league and should battle for the top three spots — as they have. "And I said the race for fourth would be a dogfight. I'd like to win that dogfight."

Actually, Harrison and his charges still have a good chance to finish third in the league. With two more games remaining, wins in both of them, coupled with a win over UNCW, would give them no worse than a tie for third — and they would get third seeding by having beaten Mason twice.

The big thing the Pirates must overcome against Wilmington is their offensive board play and their transition game. "When they are scoring off the offensive glass and on their transition game, they are as good a team as there is in the conference," Harrison said.

Harrison feels that Springer is the key to the transition game, while Rowsom, Cherry and Bender all work the boards well. "When you get a lot of second shots, you're either going to score or you're going to go to the line a lot. And Wilmington is the best free throw shooting team in the league. We've got to keep them off the boards on their end of the court and stop the break. Stopping the break is helped by the type of shots that you take against them."

In the first meeting between the two schools, East Carolina's defense wasn't that bad, holding UNCW to only 38 percent.

However, the offense and board work were not at all acceptable for Harrison, and that turned into the difference in the game. That too, much be changed for this meeting.

While the men are battling in Minges, the Lady Pirates and Lady Seahawks will pair off in Trask Coliseum in Wilmington.

East Carolina's Lady Pirates will be winding up a three-game series on the road that saw them beat Richmond and William & Mary this past weekend.

However, Coach Emily Manwaring was not all that pleased with the way the Pirates played in the wins, criticizing their intensity in the two contests.

The Lady Pirates, trailing league-leading James Madison by one game, need to win to keep pace with the Lady Dukes, who visit ECU next weekend, along with George Mason, in the final CAA games of the year.

Earlier this year, ECU downed the Lady Seahawks, 83-67. In that game, 5-10 sophomore guard Sissy Morse led the UNCW scoring with 21 points while 5-10 sophomore forward Phyllis Edwards added 19.

"We were up by 20 points and let them come back to within seven," Manwaring recalled. "That should give them some confidence Saturday."

"Morse can shoot the ball — the whole team can. All three games we have left are going to come down to how well we play defense. I think we can score enough to win if we can play good defense and hold them down. We'll be trying to pick them up full court and deny them the ball and get them out of their game plan."

Manwaring also said she would like to see a little stronger inside game. "We've been getting good scoring from one or the other of our guards and one of our inside people. But I'd like to see good scoring from at least one more of our front court people too."

"We're running out of time. It's time to start pulling together and get geared up. We need to start peaking now with these last three games, to win them and go into the tournament on a high."

ECU Inks Miami Back

East Carolina University added one more player to its list of signees yesterday.

The Pirates signed Ernest Tynes of Miami, Florida. The 5-10, 170-pound from Miami Beach High School, is a defensive back.

He brings to 27 the number of players given grants-in-aid by East Carolina this signing period.

Tynes was voted one of the top ten players in Dade County by the Miami Herald.

"He's the best hitter we've seen among defensive backs," Assistant Coach Don Powers said.

The Pirates have two remaining grants this year, but are not expected to use them in the next few days, at least.

Chancellor Howell Didn't Know Visit Was Violation

From Wire and Staff Reports

The NCAA warned East Carolina two years ago that Chancellor John Howell had violated recruiting guidelines by contacting an athlete at his high school, a Raleigh newspaper reported in its Friday editions.

The News and Observer of Raleigh said school records indicated that the NCAA contacted the school. It reported that the incident involved a visit to Southwest Edgecombe High School in Pinetops in February 1984 by Howell to discuss ECU academic programs with J.R. Jenkins, a student-athlete who later signed with North Carolina.

According to records released by ECU on Thursday, the NCAA Committee on Infractions ruled that the visit violated NCAA regulations that restrict off-campus contact with potential recruits by staff members of an institution. The NCAA's notification of the violation said "no action contrary to the regulation was intended."

William B. Hunt, assistant executive director of the NCAA, said in a letter to Howell on Aug. 27, 1984, that the infractions committee chose to admonish East Carolina to make sure such an incident didn't occur again.

The newspaper quoted sources as saying ECU officials reported the incident after receiving a complaint from Tom Reed, then the head football coach at North Carolina State. Reed confirmed in a telephone interview Thursday night that he had contacted ECU after someone at the high school had told him about Howell's visit.

Reed, who said he did not remember details about the incident, added that he did not believe Howell was aware that his visit was a violation of NCAA rules. ECU officials also said the violation was unintentional.

The newspaper said that the violation was reported to it by an unnamed Greenville businessman saying that this incident was as "nit-picking" as those reported to the NCAA in a recent investigation which followed the firing of former coach Ed Emory.

Emory was charged in the report with paying bills for players, urging players to play in junior varsity games under assumed names, using graduate assistants for recruiting and maintaining illegal bank accounts. The alleged violations came to light during the preparation for the defense of a suit filed by Emory after his dismissal as coach. The suit was settled out of court late last year.

Dick Blake, assistant to Dr. Howell, said this morning that he and the chancellor were asked by Emory's defensive coordinator, Tom Throckmorton, if he and Howell would visit Jenkins.

"I asked at the time if this was within the NCAA rules, thinking mostly about the number of times a player can be visited," Blake said. "I was told it was okay."

He added that the NCAA regulations book does not deal — in the section checked — with who is permitted to visit, referring only to school officials. "We visited with Jenkins for about 30 minutes," Blake recalled. "Dr. Howell has never done anything in this manner since then."

"When we heard it was not within the rules," Blake said, "we asked that the rule book be further examined and found that it does indicate that only full-time assistant coaches are allowed to make contract with recruits off campus."

Blake said that Dr. Howell, who was out of town this morning, does continue to meet with recruits and their families when they visit the campus — as allowed by the NCAA rules.

"The rule book can be confusing at times," Dr. Earnest Schwarz, faculty athletic chairman said. "You can find things on one page that are contradicted on the next. It is easy for someone not involved in athletics on a day-to-day basis to make a mistake."

Bias' Prayer Answered As Terps Hold Off Pack

By RICK SCOPPE
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Maryland forward Len Bias was looking for some heavenly help in the final seconds against 17th-ranked North Carolina State.

After hitting two free throws with 1:26 remaining, Bias looked on as N.C. State missed two shots in the last 10 seconds, and the Terrapins escaped with a 67-66 Atlantic Coast Conference basketball victory Thursday night.

"I was praying," Bias said. "I said, 'Thank you Lord.'"

Bias, who scored a team-high 21 points, said the victory — the second ACC triumph in a row for the Terrapins — may prove to be the turning point of the season for Maryland.

"I think it is," Bias said. "We've won two ACC games in a row. I think this is what we needed. We got our confidence back tonight. I think we gained confidence as a team and as individuals. We needed this victory."

Coach Lefty Driesell, whose club beat Clemson 78-69 on Saturday, said the Terrapins were due.

"We've just been playing too well," Driesell said. "I told the kids if we just kept playing well, we'd get one. I think we knew we could win. People counted us out, but don't ever count us out."

The victory left Maryland at 13-10 overall and 3-6 in the ACC, while N.C. State fell to 17-7 and 6-4.

N.C. State coach Jim Valvano said the Wolfpack was "absolutely horrible" in the first half but played better in the final 20 minutes, when it closed a sizeable deficit and took a brief lead.

"We dug a hole for ourselves and then we had to extend an awful lot of energy to come back," Valvano said.

Washburn scored nine of his 24 points to key a 21-7 run over a nine-minute span that brought the Wolfpack back from a 52-39 deficit with 15:04 left to its first lead, 60-59.

Bias gave the Terrapins a 65-64 lead with 2:13 left on a three-point play, but Chris Washburn's baseline jumper put the Wolfpack ahead 66-65 with 2:04 left.

After Bias hit his two free throws, Ernie Myers missed a jumper from right of the foul line, and Washburn failed to connect on a follow shot from the lane in the final seconds as the Wolfpack saw their three-game winning streak snapped.

"I thought we had a good shot at the end," Valvano said. "I know some people wonder about a time out, but my philosophy is to push it up and hope you can get an easy one in transition."

"Ernie had a good shot, and Washburn had a second chance. You can't ask for more than that," he said.

The Terrapins hit their first five field goals and 11 of their first 14 shots to grab a 27-14 lead with 9:36 left in the first half.

Keith Gatlin, who scored 10 of his 12 points in the first 20 minutes, hit the first three baskets as Maryland raced to an 8-0 lead. The Terrapins pushed the lead to 20-8 on a pair of free throws by Bias with 11:41 left. The Wolfpack cut the lead to four early on but could get no closer until Bennie Bolton's three jumpers fueled a surge in the final 3½ minutes as N.C. State outscored Maryland 11-5 to cut the lead to 39-35 at the half.

Derrick Lewis added 15 points for Maryland, which hit 64 percent of its shots in the first half and 55.3 percent for the game.

Myers had 14 and a game-high eight assists and Bolton 11 for N.C. State, which shot 50.9 percent from the field.

In other action involving an ACC team Thursday night, Clemson snapped a five-game losing streak with a 96-52 non-conference rout of Florida A&M.

Allison Says Gap Not Closed

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Gone are the boxy General Motors cars that Bill Elliott toyed with a year ago when his awesome Ford Thunderbird ran away with the Daytona 500.

They have been replaced by a sleek lot designed to end the dominance of Elliott, whose 11 superspeedway victories in 1985 dampened NASCAR's tradition of competitiveness.

Dale Earnhardt, who joined Elliott as a winner Thursday in the two qualifying events for Sunday's $1.4-million race, was impressive in his Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS. But the gap separating Elliott and the rest hasn't been closed, at least not in the eyes of two-time Daytona winner Bobby Allison.

"He was just playing with me," said Allison, who finished second after Elliott passed him on the final lap of the first of the 7-Eleven Twin 125-mile races at the 2.5-mile Daytona International Speedway.

"I was running as hard as I could stand it," Elliott said.

Were the Pontiacs, Chevrolets, Oldsmobiles and Buicks running better than a year ago?

"I don't know," the 30-year-old Georgian answered. "I didn't run with them last year."

Elliott spent most of the time running in front on the NASCAR circuit's longest and fastest tracks. Frequently unchallenged, he earned a record $2.4 million.

Already assured of the pole position for Sunday's running of stock car racing's most prestigious event, Elliott rode as far back as eighth. Because his qualifying speed of 205.039 mph in Monday's time trials put him on the pole, the $110,000 race — setting positions 3 through 30 — was little more than a shakedown mission for Elliott.

"My car's been stable all week," said Earnhardt, who passed to the outside of pole-sitter Geoff Bodine with 12 laps remaining to claim his $22,000 winner's share in the other qualifier.

Earnhardt, who averaged 153.636 mph to Elliott's 153.270, refused to speculate on Sunday's matchup. But he conceded he would have to run the "ragged edge" to beat Elliott.

"It's sort of like messing with an angry lion," Earnhardt explained. "You mess with him too much, he's going to bite you."

Earnhardt will start fourth Sunday as a result of his victory, forged on the last of eight lead changes among five drivers in a race slowed twice for 10 laps by caution flags.

Elliott led only the first and last laps of his race in which first place changed hands 11 times among four drivers. There were three caution flags for 12 laps.

Allison, in a Buick, will start third after losing to Elliott by two car lengths. Bodine, who won the outside pole in a Chevrolet with a qualifying speed of 204.545 mph on Monday, was a car length behind Earnhardt.

The races were slowed by crashes which sent Tim Richmond and Rusty Wallace to a hospital for observation. Both were released later in the day and will start backup cars from spots 39 and 40, respectively, in the 42-car field.

Starting fifth Sunday will be Terry Labonte, driving an Oldsmobile.

Defending Winston Cup champion Darrell Waltrip will go sixth in a Chevrolet. Filling out the top 10 are Kyle Petty in a Ford, Morgan Shepherd in a Buick, Sterlin Marlin in a Chevrolet and Rusty Wallace in a Pontiac.

Seven-time Daytona 500 winner Richard Petty will start 11th, three spots ahead of four-time winner Cale Yarborough. Buddy Baker is the next of the former winners in 18th, followed by A.J. Foyt in 21st and Benny Parsons in 32nd.

Their chances appear to be slim, however, especially if Allison's assessment is accurate.

"Davey being in front didn't hold me up," Allison said of the involvement of his son, driving a lapped car being overtaken deep in the backstretch as Elliott was making a classic Daytona slingshot to claim the lead a mile from victory.

"As a matter of fact," Allison added, "he helped me. Bill would have blown my doors off if Davey hadn't been there."

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Results of Thursday's 7-Eleven Twin 125-mile qualifying races to determine positions 3 through 30 in Sunday's Daytona 500, with type of car, laps completed, money won and winner's average speed in mph:

Fulp Named Top Teacher

Gordon Fulp, golf professional at the Greenville Country Club, has been named the 1985 Carolinas PGA Teacher of the Year.

The award, the Palmer Maples Award, was presented during the annual meeting of the Carolinas PGA at Myrtle Beach, S.C., earlier this week.

Fulp, head pro at Greenville for 14 years, added the award to a list of others he has received from the PGA over the past few years. He won the Carolinas PGA Junior Golf Promoter of the Year award in 1984 and 1985 and is a candidate for the award again this year. In 1985, he finished as the national runner-up for the award.

He has served as junior golf chairman for the Carolinas PGA for the past three years, and this year, has been named to the National PGA Junior Golf Committee. He also is serving his second term on the PGA Board of Directors.

Nine Seek State Berths

Nine area wrestlers, including four each from D.H. Conley and Washington, advance into the Eastern Regional Wrestling Tournament, to be held Saturday in Goldsboro.

The top four wrestlers in each of 13 weight classes will advance to next week's state tournament, to be held in Winston-Salem.

All four of the Washington wrestlers won championships in the Northeastern Sectionals, held this past weekend at Conley. They include Mike Landon, 108 pounds; Brian Stokes, 122; Marty Hodges, 129, and Larry Harris, 158.

The four Conley representatives include two champions, David Farris at 101 and Martin Anderson at 148. Conley will also send Carter Adkins, the runner-up at 135 pounds, and Jackie King, who finished third in the 129-pound action.

The ninth wrestler will be Rose High School's Adam Levine, who won the 135-pound title.

Louisiana Downs has a stakes event called the Shiskabob Handicap. It is named for a horse not the food dish.

Sooners Bow Again In Big Eight Game

By The Associated Press

Oklahoma Coach Billy Tubbs felt the officials were calling the tune, and he didn't like the dance.

The eighth-ranked Sooners lost for the second time in their last three games Thursday night, bowing 101-88 to Missouri in a Big Eight Conference game during which both coaches were called for technicals and 62 personal fouls were whistled. Seven players fouled out in the game.

"I have nothing to say, fellas," an angry Tubbs told reporters when he emerged from his locker room 20 minutes after the game. "Go talk to Francis the talking horse. He was prancing up and down all night. It was his game."

Even Missouri Coach Norm Stewart was unhappy with the way the game was called. "This game was not called well," Stewart said. "They (the Sooners) haven't lost a game — at least that's what Billy thinks. With Big Eight officials, I don't think I've ever seen a smooth game."

In other Top Twenty results: No. 10 Michigan 92, Minnesota 56; No. 11 Kentucky 73, No. 18 Alabama 71; No. 13 Bradley 54, Indiana State 52; Maryland 67, No. 17 North Carolina State 66, and No. 19 Louisville 74, Cincinnati 58.

Jeff Strong had 29 points for Missouri and helped the home team get away to an 18-1 lead as the Sooners went 5:10 without a field goal. Although Oklahoma closed to 50-41 at halftime, they never really got back into the game.

Anthony Bowie had 31 points for Oklahoma, 22-3 and 7-3 in the Big Eight. Missouri, which had lost four in a row, is 18-11 and 5-5 in the conference.

No. 10 Michigan 92, Minnesota 56. Roy Tarpley, Richard Rellford and Garde Thompson led a hot-shooting Michigan team as the Wolverines avenged an early-season loss to Minnesota. The victory put Michigan into first place in the Big Ten, a half game ahead of Indiana.

Michigan, then ranked No. 2, lost to Minnesota 73-63 in mid-January, before suspensions costs the Gophers five players and a coach.

Michigan broke a 6-6 tie with a 17-2 spurt, and the rout was underway. The Wolverines led 49-23 at halftime and 83-47 with 4:17 left when Coach Bill Frieder sent in the subs.

Tarpley had 21 points, Rellford 16 and Thompson 14 for Michigan, 21-3 and 9-3.

No. 11 Kentucky 73, No. 18 Bama 71

Roger Harden's 22-footer with five seconds left broke a 71-71 tie, and Kentucky moved into a two-game lead over Alabama in the Southeastern Conference with a 12-1 record, 21-3 overall. James Blackmon scored 22 points for Kentucky.

Kenny Walker, who had 16 points, put the Wildcats ahead by a point with a free throw, and Ed Davender converted a three-point play to make it 71-67 with 2:38 left. Derrick McKey scored two straight baskets for Alabama to tie the score 71-71 with 30 seconds left, setting up Harden's shot.

Buck Johnson had 22 points for Alabama, 17-5 and 10-3 in the conference. The Crimson Tide had won eight in a row.

No. 13 Bradley 54, Indiana State 52

Mike Williams hit a layup with 2:16 to play to put Bradley up 54-50, and the Braves held on to beat Indiana State in the Missouri Valley Conference. Jim Les scored 16 points to lead Bradley, 25-1 and 12-0 in the MVC.

Bradley led 44-37 with 11:57 to play but needed a 22-footer from Les with 5:35 left to tie the score 48-48. Bradley then scored the next four points to go up 52-48 before Darrion Applewhite hit two foul shots to pull Indiana State within 52-50.

Jeff McComb hit two free throws for Indiana State with 50 seconds left to produce the final score.

Maryland 67, No. 17 N.C. State 66

Len Bias hit two free throws with 1:26 left to give Maryland only its third Atlantic Coast Conference victory and snap a three-game N.C. State winning streak. Bias finished with 21 points for the Terps. N.C. State, led by Chris Washburn's 24 points, fell to 17-7 and 6-4.

Wellcome, Cox Split

A.G. Cox and Wellcome Middle School split a pair of junior high school basketball games last night.

In the boys' game, Reggie Daniels poured in 20 points and Adrian Wooten added 17 as Wellcome downed Cox, 64-56.

William Crumble chipped in 10 points for Wellcome, which improved to 8-2.

Fred Streeter scored 16 points, while Louis Williams and Martin Patrick added 10 apiece for Cox.

In the girls' game, F. Moore poured in 14 points and F. Gardner added 11 to lead Cox to a 38-23 victory.

Tracy Nichols led Wellcome with 11 points.

On Monday, Wellcome plays G.R. Whitfield, and Cox meets Chicod.

'Miami Vice' Is Keeping Don Johnson 'Unattached'

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Don Johnson appears on lists for the world's sexiest men. He played the Paul Newman role in TV's remake of "The Long Hot Summer." He's now flying solo in his personal life.

And, to help stoke the fantasies of Johnson's female fans, an NBC executive is promising that the "Miami Vice" star won't have any strings attached in his professional life either.

Happy Valentine's Day. "Keeping him unattached makes a lot of sense," said Warren Littlefield, NBC's senior vice president for series programs. "I know of no plans to tie down Don Johnson with any female character."

That means Detective Sonny Crockett, the Ferrari-driving heartbreaker in the Italian silk suits, will continue having one-night stands and occasional dalliances with exotic women who get bumped off or leave in tears.

Sleazeballs, played by G. Gordon Liddy and Phil Collins, may return in future shows, but Crockett's love interests sign only one-episode deals. "The feeling now is that as TV's sexiest man, we're keeping him foot-loose and fancy-free," said Littlefield.

In real life, Johnson has parted company with Patti D'Arbanville, his long-time girlfriend and mother of his 3-year-old son, Jesse. In TV life, Johnson has had two torrid on-screen romances so far this season. Both were with bad girls, in the criminal sense.

In the season-opener, he was paired with a sophisticated-looking woman (Susan Hess) who was part of a drug-smuggling operation.

Last month, he was wooed by a classic beauty, played by French actress Arielle Dombasle. In one scene, the camera caressed her as it panned slowly over her bikini-clad body. Later, she traded the bathing suit for a T-shirt, which she dunked in ice-cold Perrier before slipping it on.

It turned out that she was part of a murderous scam — rock star Ted Nugent was her lover-accomplice — in which she lured men into drug deals before Nugent killed them and took their money.

Next Friday, Crockett will be smitten by another wrong woman. Lisa Eichorn ("Yanks") will play a mysterious French Interpol agent who really is part of a terrorist group. Don't expect them to celebrate any anniversaries together.

In each case, the producers achieved dynamic match-ups with women of substance. You won't see Crockett with "bimbos," as Diane calls Sam's stable of companions on "Cheers."

Critics Awards

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tommy Tune's acting, direction and choreography earned "My One and Only" three of the seven nominations it took to lead all stage productions in the 17th annual Los Angeles Drama Critics Circle awards.

Tune was nominated for performance in a leading role, and shared nominations for direction and choreography with Thommie Walsh.

"My One and Only," a revival of a 1927 George Gershwin musical, was also nominated for distinguished production, scenic design and musical direction.

"The key is that you don't know who he'll fall for," said Littlefield. "If he goes only for unattainable-stare types, the audience would get tired."

Part of Crockett's appeal is his sentimentality and vulnerability. He's not supposed to be a callous love-em-and-leave-em type. But, on the other hand, a long-term relationship might inhibit storylines and smother some of his fans' fantasy fires.

Littlefield acknowledged that "Miami Vice," an action show that gets steamier than Miami in August, must walk a fine line on Crockett's woman.

"If he had a romance every week the audience would tire of it," he said. "But if he never had any relationships with outside female characters, the series could become flat. The best way is to keep the audience guessing."

When the show opened to poor ratings in 1984, Crockett was married, but in the throes of a painful separation. Against the wishes of Littlefield, the producers sent Mrs. Crockett packing to Atlanta. Neither she nor their son has been seen since.

"I thought it showed his personal, warm side, and I didn't think it hurt his hot, leading-man sexuality," said Littlefield. "If it were up to me, I would have kept that alive. I thought it was an interesting investigation of a contemporary relationship."

Littlefield said NBC doesn't conduct viewer research on Crockett's romances. But, oddly enough, both

Johnson and co-star Philip Michael Thomas were panned by test audiences before the series began.

Al Ordovery, NBC's vice president for broadcast research, said neither star was a hit with men or women. "They were equally bad with everybody, including teen-agers," he said. NBC even tried to replace Johnson, who had failed in several other series pilots, but the producers held firm.

"Everybody was very nervous about Johnson," said Littlefield.

Littlefield said the policy against entangling alliances also applies to Thomas. "We think of the show as having two leads, and there are no plans to tie either one down."

Thomas and Johnson have had about the same number of on-air romances, but Thomas definitely had the most risqué scene. Last season, he and Pam Grier, both nearly in the buff, rolled around in the sheets. When the episode was rerun, parts of the scene were cut.

"It went too far," said Ralph Daniels, NBC's vice president of broadcast standards and practices. "Edits were made to make it less graphic and erotic."

That's just one more example of fleeting love — "Miami Vice" style.

'Killing Fields' Hero Is Citizen

NEW YORK (AP) — Dith Pran, whose ordeal in the Khmer Rouge work camps in Cambodia was recounted in the movie "The Killing Fields," says one of the first things he wants to do as a U.S. citizen is get a passport.

He was among 337 immigrants who became citizens Thursday in U.S. District Court in Brooklyn. "I'm glad I made it. My dream came true," he said. "Everybody likes to find freedom. I have found it. I'm very grateful to the people of United States of America."

Dith, 42, then said a phrase in his native Khmer, which he translated as "Long live freedom." The courtroom resounded with applause.

He was accompanied by his wife, Ser Moeun, who told reporters, "I'm so excited I cannot speak."

Dith said he wants to travel abroad, raising money for starving Cambodians and pleading for the Vietnamese to relinquish control of his homeland.

After Cambodia fell to the communist Khmer Rouge in 1975, Dith spent years in labor camps, slaving 14 hours a day for a spoonful of rice. Any knowledge of politics would have guaranteed death, so Dith pretended he had been a taxi driver before the war, instead of translator for then-New York Times correspondent Sydney Schanberg.

"I make myself a quiet man, like a Buddhist monk," he said later.

Dith's life was the basis of Schanberg's article "The Death and Life of Dith Pran," which was adapted into the Academy Award-winning movie "The Killing Fields." The film ends with Dith's escape to Thailand in 1979 and reunion with Schanberg, who had spent years searching for him. Schanberg missed Thursday's ceremonies because he had a speaking engagement in Chicago, Dith said.

Study Says Farm Income Dropping

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's new farm law will do little to reverse problems now facing American agriculture, according to a private study that says farmers will see their net income drop 18 percent in the next three years.

The new law, while helping increase the volume of farm commodity exports through the end of the decade, will make only a marginal improvement in dollar sales because of the substantially reduced prices for the goods, the analysis found.

The 18 percent decline in income under the new policy "will seriously exacerbate the farm financial situation," said the report by the Food and Agricultural Policy Research Institute at the University of Missouri and Iowa State University.

The report said net farm income would drop from $26.6 billion in 1985 to $21.8 billion in 1989 under the new law, despite the infusion of near-record government subsidies intended to insulate farmers from the shock of falling prices.

While export volume grows by as much as 25 percent due to lower, more competitive prices, the total value of those exports will be down next year and recover by 1989 to only 6 percent above present levels, the report said.

"A substantial and sustained turnaround in world and domestic markets will have to occur if net farm income is to improve appreciably," according to the study.

"The situation is relatively bleak," said Stan Johnson, a member of a group that analyzed the long-term 1985 farm law enacted by Congress and signed by President Reagan in December. Johnson and others discussed the findings Thursday at a forum sponsored by Resources for the Future, a policy research group.

Already, as the impacts of the new law begin to dawn on farmers, political pressures are growing to change it. Several bills have been introduced to alter the way income subsidy payments are figured, and one participant in Thursday's forum predicted "an epidemic of legislation" as the year wears on.

"We are in a permanent farm program debate until we reach some new economic and political equilibrium," said John A. Schnitker, a farm consultant who was an Agriculture Department policymaker under the Johnson administration.

"Exports were to be the great salvation" under the new policies, Schnitker said in a critique of the study. "But even as the bill was being adopted in December, people began to lose faith in the primacy of exports. There was a certain disillusionment."

The analysis did not include the potential effects of the new Gramm-Rudman deficit-reduction law, which will have a disproportionately heavy effect on farm programs. The mandatory cuts under that law, if they take effect, could pare another 10 percent to 30 percent off of subsidy payments.

The new balanced-budget law fails to address the conflict between the need to reduce government spending and the political desire to support farmers' incomes, the economists concluded. And, they said, it does not solve U.S. agriculture's fundamental problem: the ability to bury itself in excess production.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: THE TENNIS COURT'S MOTTO HAS REAL VALUE: "FIRST COME, FIRST SERVE."

Today's Cryptoquip clue: T equals B
 The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Chinqua-Penn Remains Closed

GREENSBORO (AP) — Chinqua-Penn Plantation House, a scenic mansion and tourist attraction near Reidsville, will not be reopened by the University of North Carolina at Greensboro for its spring tours, the school said Thursday.

Citing financial difficulties in the aging plantation's operating budget and capital improvement budget. The school's board of trustees voted unanimously not to reopen the house and to use existing financial resources to enhance security for the buildings and to preserve Chinqua-Penn artworks.

"It has been known for some time that we were heading toward a decision point in the operation of Chinqua-Penn," said UNC-G Chancellor William E. Moran. "This is not a pleasing problem, either for the university or for the community around Chinqua-Penn. But it is a fact of life and wishing it away yields nothing."

During his presentation, Moran told the trustees that the plantation's operating budget of approximately $299,000 was inadequate. He said that UNC-G estimates called for at least $450,000 in operating funds.

Tar River Mussel Joins Endangered Species List

By TOM MINEHART
Associated Press Writer

A flying squirrel found only in the Smoky Mountains, a shellfish found only in the Tar River and a nearly extinct goldenrod flower joined the North Carolina species on the federal endangered species list in 1985, officials say.

"These are species that deserve the protection and recognition the (endangered species) act gives," said Bob Currie, a biologist with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service in Asheville. "We're finally getting around to getting protection for them."

Curry said the number of North Carolina species on the list grew to 35 with the addition last year of the Carolina northern flying squirrel, the Tar River spiny mussel and the Blue Ridge goldenrod. The U.S. List of Endangered and Threatened Species now totals 883 with the addition of 60 species last year.

The squirrels live only in the upper elevations of the Smokies in North Carolina and Tennessee, said Don Pfitzer, spokesman for the service's southeastern headquarters in Atlanta. While nobody knows how many are left, their habitat has been shrinking as logging operations have reduced the size of the coniferous forests.

As hardwoods have taken over the land formerly covered with pines and firs, southern flying squirrels have moved in to compete with the endangered northern flying squirrels, he said.

The squirrel, which is gray and halfway between the size of a chipmunk and a common squirrel, has skin between its forelegs and hind legs that enable it to glide from tree to tree. Groups of five to 10 squirrels move through the forest only at night, emitting chirps and squeals, he said.

Why save the Carolina northern flying squirrel?

"Because it is a unique part of a unique habitat," said Pfitzer. "It's like asking, 'Why save the Smokies?'" ... If we were to lose one of those species, it would weaken the whole ecosystem."

The Tar River spiny mussel, found only in a 12-mile stretch of the Tar River below Rocky Mount, probably has only 100 to 500 individuals left, said service biologist Jim Widlak.

"If the population is reduced to that level, it may not be able to recover," he said.

Pollution and siltation are the major threats against the mussel, one of only three species of spined mussel in the world, he said.

"One reason we try to protect these fresh water mussels is they tend to accumulate pollutants like heavy metals and pesticides," he said. "They can be useful as biomonitors of water quality."

"So little is known about them that they may be found to have some value. There's a hypothesis that mussels are immune to cancer, so they have a value to medical research."

Similar mussels are used as seeds for the cultured pearl industry, he said.

The Blue Ridge goldenrod has been found only on rocky outcrops on Roan Mountain, Grandfather Mountain and on private property near Beech Mountain, said Currie.

Probably less than 2,000 of the plants still exist, and many have been "trampled out of existence" by hikers and climbers, he said.

The goldenrod should be saved partly because scientists may eventually find it useful for drugs, Currie said.

Americans Believe In UFOs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Forty percent or more of Americans believe flying saucers are real, that rockets change the weather and certain numbers bring good luck, says a new poll whose author suggests the results show a technologically confused society.

Those survey results and others indicate that while some of the American public is somewhat informed on technological issues, "a substantial portion is not well informed in these areas," Jon D. Miller, director of the Public Opinion Laboratory at Northern Illinois University, said Thursday.

For example, he said his poll,

Sweet Saint

St. Valentine may still be popular with sweethearts, but not with the Vatican. In 1969, the Vatican removed from its liturgical calendar feast days for more than 200 saints. St. Valentine was one casualty, along with St. Christopher, the patron saint of travelers, and St. Vitus, patron of epileptics. Still on the calendar are St. Matthew, the patron saint of tax collectors, St. Simeon of Stylites, patron of pillar sitters, and St. Martha, patron of housewives.

GOREN BRIDGE

By CHARLES GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF 1983 Tribune Company Syndicate, Inc.

TWO-WAY END PLAY

Neither vulnerable. South deals.

NORTH: ♠ 7 4 3, ♥ K J 9 8 3, ♦ A 7, ♣ 6 5 3. EAST: ♠ 10 9, ♥ 4, ♦ 9 8 4 3 2, ♣ Q J 9 8 4. SOUTH: ♠ K 6 2, ♥ A Q 10 7, ♦ K 6 5, ♣ A K 2.

The bidding: South West North East 1♥ 1♠ 2♥ Pass 3NT Pass 4♥ Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: Queen of ♠

On most hands, an end play is designed against a particular defender. Once in a rare while, however, it makes no difference which defender wins the key trick—the end play operates no matter who is on lead.

Since his hand was balanced, North would have done better to pass his partner's leap to three no trump despite his five-card heart support. At that contract there were at least nine tricks no matter what the lead. But then again, in that case this column would never have been written.

Against four hearts West made his normal lead of the top of his diamond sequence, won in dummy. Declarer drew three rounds of trumps, on which East discarded a low card in each minor suit. Obviously declarer's problem was to avoid losing three spade tricks and one club, and he found a most ingenious method of accomplishing that.

South cashed the ace-king of clubs and king of diamonds then ruffed a diamond on the table. Now he led a spade and, when East produced the nine, declarer covered with the king. West won, but an interesting position had arisen.

If West cashed two more spades, he would then have nothing left but spades and he would have to yield a ruff-and-stuff, allowing declarer to avoid losing a club trick. However, if West got off play with a low spade after winning the ace, East would win and could cash a club trick, but he, in turn, would be end played and would have to exit with a minor-suit card, thereby also permitting a ruff-and-stuff and allowing declarer to escape with only two spade losers and a club.

Daughter Enters Plea

SELDEN, N.Y. (AP) — A 16-year-old girl told police she arranged to have her father killed after they were involved in an incestuous relationship for at least four years and it became clear he was going to start a similar relationship with her younger sister, prosecutors say.

Cheryl A. Pierson pleaded innocent Thursday in First District Court in Hauppauge to a second-degree murder charge for the Feb. 5 shooting death of her father, James Pierson, a 42-year-old widowed electrician.

A classmate accused of firing the fatal shots was also charged with murder, and the girl's boyfriend was accused of conspiracy for paying the alleged killer $400.

Miss Pierson, whose mother died of cancer a year ago, appeared in court wearing a Newfield High School jacket with the word "cheerleader" emblazoned on it, said John Williams, a spokesman for Suffolk County District Attorney Patrick Henry.

"I've never seen a more heart wrenching scene in the courtroom," Williams said. He said the girl told police in a confession that she arranged to have her father killed after he had abused her for four to six years and had planned to begin a similar relationship with her 8-year-old sister.

Miss Pierson "had such inner turmoil that she turned to two friends to have her father killed," Williams said. She allegedly recruited Sean Pica, also 16, a classmate at Newfield High School in Coram, to kill her father, said county police spokesman Sgt. William Durham.

He said that on Feb. 5, as Pierson left his home to go to work, Pica stepped from behind a tree and fired five shots from a .22-caliber rifle into Pierson.

YOUR DAILY Horoscope from the Carroll Rieger Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is a day when you are impelled to get into the practical considerations that face you and require your immediate attention. Don't be surprised if you're met with considerable delays.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Study your bills and plan to pay them even if only in part, but don't get confused, and don't listen to the advice of one who is no help.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Place yourself in the hands of experts and improve your appearance properly. Forget amusements for now.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) It may take a little longer than you anticipated to get out of some touchy situation, but persevere and it is soon behind you.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Don't be so dependent upon friends to gain some aim that is important to you. Be more self-reliant.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) You may not be sure of how to handle credit and other outside matters, so work carefully and wisely.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You think you have fine ideas but friends do not agree with you, so discern whether it is due to jealousy or not.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You may find it difficult to work out a business matter with one of much experience, but not impossible.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A partner is just as stubborn as you are today, so don't endeavor to come to any agreement until the mood changes.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You may find it annoying that you cannot get your tasks handled quickly today, but allow time for delays here and there.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You may find it more expensive than you had anticipated to have pleasure, be it during the day or the evening.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Although the situation at home may be somewhat hectic, keep poised and all is soon rectified.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Be very careful in motion wherever you may be, and avoid accidents. Also, be on the lookout for those who are reckless.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be highly magnetic so be sure to send to fine schools and teach the importance of getting a good education. The life can become successful since there is much ability at business professions and much money can be honestly earned. Spiritual training is important.
