Aquino Meets Habib, Voices Her Objection To Reagan Comment

By RICHARD PYLE
Associated Press Writer

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Corazon Aquino, who met today with U.S. diplomatic troubleshooter Philip Habib, objected to any American action that could lend legitimacy to President Ferdinand E. Marcos's election victory over her.

Mrs. Aquino contends she won the Feb. 7 special presidential election, but was thwarted by government officials and the Marcos-controlled National Assembly, which declared Marcos the victor late Saturday.

The following day, Mrs. Aquino called for nationwide protest strikes and boycotts to begin the first working day after Marcos' Feb. 26 inauguration. She also called upon the Philippine military and police to disobey orders that were "unjust."

Mrs. Aquino, 53, met for an hour today with Habib, dispatched by President Reagan to the Philippines on a "fact-finding mission" following the fraud- and violence-marred election.

Earlier in the day, Habib had been received by Marcos at Malacanang Palace for two hours, but no details of the session were immediately disclosed.

Rene Saguisag, Mrs. Aquino's spokesman, said during the meeting with Habib she "repeated and stressed a position that the crisis could only be resolved by a swift and orderly transfer (of power) to the Aquino presidency that the Filipino people had chosen overwhelmingly at the polls."

Saguisag told reporters that Habib had "come here to listen," and would remain in the Philippines for some time.

As the parties conferred in private, Mrs. Aquino's headquarters issued a statement in which she said Filipinos "expect the understanding and support of the friends of democracy everywhere."

In her statement, Mrs. Aquino singled out a comment by Reagan that the election had furnished "heartening evidence" of a continuing Filipino commitment to the democratic process, saying that in reality it was "a persecuted people clinging on the ballot boxes for their lives against a government determined to trample all over their rights."

"There was nothing healthy or democratic about the violence, intimidation, cheating or bribes by which Mr. Marcos sought to snatch victory," she said.

"Any word or statement that seeks to obscure this blunt truth is not helping the Filipino people, and assists in the betrayal of their fight for democracy," she said.

She also criticized Reagan's assertion that the election had furthered bipartisan politics in the Philippines.

"Nobody should think that the two-party system is now in place because the winning party has been cheated of its landslide victory," she said.

Aides said the statement was a direct response to President

Sinking Cruise Ship Rescinds Distress Signal

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (AP) — A Soviet cruise liner carrying 739 people sent a distress message after slamming into rocks, but then radioed that it needed no help even as it was sinking in stormy seas, two New Zealand ship captains said.

Evacuated by lifeboats and a small armada of ships, all passengers and crewmembers of the 20,000-ton Mikhail Lermontov were accounted for today except a 34-year-old Soviet seaman missing and believed to have drowned between decks, search and rescue officials said.

The Leningrad-based ship was heading north in the scenic Marlborough Sounds area of New Zealand's South Island on Sunday when it ran into rocks that punched a hole in the hull and knocked the engines out of commission, the Search and Rescue Service said.

The 580-foot liner, with a 12-degree list, drifted into harbor at Port Gore, where rescue officials said the captain tried to beach it. But the ship drifted back offshore, where it sank in 100 feet of water.

The crippled vessel sent a distress call at 6 p.m. For almost two hours, it then radioed that it was heading under its own power to Port Gore, at the northern tip of South Island. The first rescue ship, arriving nearly two hours after the mayday call, found passengers being lowered into lifeboats.

Capt. John Reedman of the liquefied natural gas tanker Tarihiko said his ship picked up the distress call, but that the Mikhail Lermontov then signaled marine radio in Wellington that it did not require assistance.

Reedman said he gave orders to continue sailing to the scene anyway, and was the first ship to arrive.

The captain of another vessel that took part in the rescue flotilla, John Brew of the rail ferry Arahura, said he was also told by radio that the Mikhail Lermontov did not want help despite the mayday call.

Marine radio operators said other vessels responding to the distress signal were also told no help was needed.

New Zealand Prime Minister David Lange hailed the rescue as a "remarkable achievement." He said a preliminary inquiry had been set up to establish the cause of the sinking and determine if the Mikhail Lermontov's captain, Vladislav Vorodber, had been negligent.

Lange said the inquiry needed to resolve "concerns expressed about the need for an earlier warning (and) complications over (the) request for assistance." He said preliminary reports were "disquieting."

He said the Soviet ship's captain and senior officers from the 330-member crew would remain in Wellington until the initial inquiry was complete.

The Soviet news agency Tass today hailed the crew for the safe evacuation of passengers, and also confirmed that a crew member was missing.

Without elaborating, Tass said a New Zealand pilot was aboard the ship, but Marlborough Harbor Board officials said the Mikhail Lermontov's captain was in command when the liner hit the rocks.

On Sunday, Radio New Zealand quoted harbor board chairman Bruno Dalliessi as saying there was a disagreement between the Soviet captain and the pilot, identified as Capt. Don Jamieson, who the radio said was guiding the vessel to the open sea.

Dalliessi was further quoted as saying the Soviet captain had overruled the pilot on the seriousness of the situation after the ship crashed into the rocks, and had delayed calling for assistance.

Dalliessi today said he had been misquoted. "We were getting information second-hand by monitoring radio messages and I had no knowledge of what happened on the ship," he told The Associated Press.

The Mikhail Lermontov's 409 passengers, many of them elderly Australians and New Zealanders, were taken from lifeboats aboard rescue craft and brought to Wellington, 35 miles across Cook Strait from Port Gore.

Efforts to rescue people from lifeboats were hampered by darkness, driving rain and 15 mph winds.

Ten people were hospitalized with minor injuries, Chief Police Inspector Owen Dowse said.

Two passengers, John and Phyllis Madden of Sydney, Australia, said people were calm during the evacuation but that many older passengers had trouble climbing down rope ladders to the lifeboats.

Stan Smith, 65, also of Sydney, said there had been only one lifeboat drill

Federal Officials Say Ban On Drug Sales Premature

By EDWARD FROST
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A ban on sales of over-the-counter drugs in capsule form is premature, despite the scare over the death of a woman who swallowed Extra-Strength Tylenol capsules tainted with deadly cyanide, federal officials say.

The ban was suggested Sunday by Andrew P. O'Rourke, elected executive of Westchester County, the New York suburban area where Diane Elsrhot, 23, died last week. Investigation also turned up a second bottle containing tainted Tylenol in the same town where the bottle containing the fatal dose was purchased.

O'Rourke suggested the federal government control production and sale of all drugs in capsules, but federal Food and Drug Administration spokesman William Grigg said the government is not advocating such a ban.

"We think it's premature, until we know what the problem was and have discussed it thoroughly, to propose solutions," he told The Associated Press.

"You've had this happen twice now," O'Rourke said, referring to poisoning in Westchester County and the deaths in Chicago in 1982. "I think it's time that government came up with some type of a plan to prevent it from happening in the future."

Grigg said he expected representatives of the over-the-counter drug industry to discuss the issue during a meeting of the Proprietary Association in Washington this week.

James A. Burke, chairman of Johnson & Johnson, which manufactures Tylenol, also disagreed with O'Rourke's suggestion. He said selling the drug from behind store counters "would deprive the public of the freest system in the world in terms of marketing consumer products."

Today, investigators from the Westchester County district attorney's office, Yonkers police and the FBI went to Pennsylvania to tour the plant where the fatal capsule was manufactured and the distribution point that is the only known link between the two Tylenol bottles.

NASA Eyes Wreckage Photos

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Before and after photographs may determine today if wreckage spotted on the floor of the Atlantic Ocean is part of the right booster rocket that is a leading suspect in the explosion of space shuttle Challenger.

The four-man research submarine Johnson Sea-Link 2 reported Sunday it had photographed components believed to be sections of the 149-foot rocket 1,200 feet deep about 45 miles northeast of Cape Canaveral.

Meanwhile, a reliable source, speaking on condition he not be identified, said warnings before liftoff that Challenger might not have been safe prompted a presidential commission to say the decision to launch "may have been flawed."

In Washington, National Aeronautic and Space Administration spokesman Charles Redmond said that NASA general manager Philip E. Culbertson was relieved of his duties in a move tied to the shuttle disaster.

"I wouldn't say he's been dismissed," Redmond said. "However, the responsibilities of his job have been altered significantly."

The weekend move was an effort to streamline operations in the wake of the Jan. 28 accident that destroyed

Challenger and killed its seven-member crew, Redmond said.

NASA spokesman George Diller said the photographs of the wreckage will be compared today with pictures of the rocket taken before the Jan. 28 launching that ended in tragedy with the deaths of the seven crew members.

The submarine's floodlights illuminated the murky water, which had hampered previous efforts by smaller robot submersibles to locate the rocket. Sonar images earlier had indicated the booster parts might be in that area.

Officials said recovery of the parts will be tricky, because of the poor visibility and strong currents.

The Sea-Link 2, a private vessel, just Saturday joined four NASA ships and a Navy salvage vessel in the search for Challenger's debris on the ocean floor. More than 13 tons of wreckage from the 123-ton spacecraft has been recovered, most of it found floating.

"Some people raised red flags about the safety of the vehicle, especially the seals in the solid rocket boosters," said the source of the commission's finding that perhaps Challenger should not have been launched.

The source did not identify those who had misgivings, whether they were NASA or contractor personnel, or what specifically the concerns were.

Appearing before the commission in Washington last week, Lawrence Mulloy, NASA's booster project manager, testified that engineers for Morton Thiokol, which makes the booster rockets, had cautioned against a launch on Jan. 28 because of low temperatures that dropped to 24 degrees overnight and were only 38 degrees at liftoff.

Testimony also revealed that Rockwell International, which built the shuttle, had expressed reserva-

Oil Slick Sighted Where Plane Reported Missing

TAIPEI, Taiwan (AP) — Searchers today spotted a large oil slick in rough seas near the island where a China Airlines Boeing 737 with 13 people on board made an unsuccessful attempt to land, and then disappeared, officials said.

Wang Yu-yang, a spokesman for the Civil Aeronautics Administration, told reporters the oil slick was believed to be from the missing plane. However, searchers reported no sign of any wreckage, or the six passengers and seven crew aboard the plane, he said.

All those aboard the plane were Taiwanese. The jet was flying from Taipei, the Taiwanese capital, to Penghu, the largest island in the Pescadore chain, about 185 miles to the west. The flight normally takes about 40 minutes.

Wang said the plane's front wheels touched down briefly at Penghu airport, but the aircraft suddenly took off again, apparently because of landing gear problems.

The pilot radioed the control tower he would make another landing approach, but contact was lost with the plane four minutes later, he said.

The China Times newspaper quoted a resident of Penghu as saying he spotted a fire on the plane. The

Jet Attacks Airport In Chadian Capital

By JEFFREY ULBRICH
Associated Press Writer
PARIS (AP) — A Soviet-built jet damaged the airport in the Chadian capital of N'Djamena with a single bomb today, a day after French planes attacked an airfield built by Libyans in the rebel-held northern part of the country.

French Defense Minister Paul Quilès called the attack "a blind bombardment carried out by a Libyan Tupolev flying at very high altitude," and said France planned to send a "dissuasion force" to the north-central African country and station aircraft at N'Djamena's airport.

Quilès did not specify what kind of force was involved or how many men would be sent. He said, however, that it did not represent a second "Mantata," the name given the French military intervention in Chad in 1983-84.

"What happened this morning very much resembles a bluff, but France maintains its determination to help the Chadian government," Quilès said.

The N'Djamena airport, used for civilian and military purposes, was only partly damaged and no one was injured in the attack by the Tupolev-22, the French Defense Ministry said.

The runway "remains usable" for small planes despite the 7 a.m. attack, the ministry said. Quilès said it "will be used in the new few hours to station French aircraft."

Quilès also denied Libyan statements saying the airfield in northern Chad, attacked by the French on Sunday, was a civilian facility, and said it was bombed on President Francois Mitterrand's order following a request from Chad's president, Hissene Habre.

"Ouadi Doum," Quilès said, "is a military base equipped as such. It was widely damaged at six different places. Forty bombs were dropped."

Habre's government, based at N'Djamena in southern Chad, receives military assistance from France in its fight against Libyan-backed rebels of former President Goukouni Oueddei based in the northern part of the country.

Chad says Libyan soldiers have been fighting alongside the rebels in a new offensive that began Feb. 10.

The rebels are known to have only a few small planes, but a report by the Libyan news agency JANA from northern Chad said the jet that attacked the N'Djamena airport belonged to the "Government of Chadian National Unity."

Ahmed Allam-Mi, Chad's ambassador to Paris, said the Libyans were pursuing an "armed escalation" of the conflict.

But Libya charged France with conducting a "barbaric" attack for the domestic political benefit of the French government.

Official Tripoli radio has denied that the air strip in Ouadi Doum, about 550 miles north of N'Djamena, had any military function. "It is used for landing medical supplies and food for the famine victims in the north of Chad," the radio said Sunday.

Mohammed Sharfeddin Fitouri, the Libyan information minister, said in a statement issued in Tripoli: "We believe this barbaric act is criminal and without justification."

"We truly cannot accept that the Chad issue and the dignity of the Chadian people and the sanctity of its lands be used as an electoral gimmick for the benefit of the current French government," he said.

Mitterrand and his Socialist Party are involved in a tough campaign against conservatives for March 16 parliamentary elections.

Sharfeddin's said that "what the French forces did is a foolish action which will cause the whole world to rise against French presence in the African continent and will prompt Africans to continue their sustained struggle against this colonialism."

Abderrahman Moussa, the rebels' representative in Paris, called French intervention "unjustified" and said only rebel forces were involved in the fighting.

Moussa said today that the rebels and their Libyan allies would continue to retaliate as they deemed necessary. He said the rebel movement "renewed once more its warnings to the French government about the risks of internationalizing the internal conflict in Chad."

Friday night, the French military sent 200 commandos to N'Djamena to protect the airport during the unloading of French transport planes that are stepping up deliveries of promised military aid to the Habre government.

It was the second time France gave military support to Habre's government in its fight against Goukouni, whom Habre ousted in June 1982.

France sent 3,000 soldiers to Chad in 1983 to help halt an offensive by the rebels and Libyan forces. Fighting ended when France and Libya agreed to withdraw the following year, leaving Chad effectively divided into a rebel-controlled north and government-controlled south.

France said it would intervene again if the rebels attacked below the truce line, which they did on Feb. 10.

Senators Say Marcos Should Resign

By BRIAN BARGER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan should personally call on Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos "in unambiguous terms" to step down from office, say three Senate Democrats who claim they saw concrete evidence of election fraud during a fact-finding tour of that nation.

Sen. David L. Boren, D-Okla., a ranking member of the Senate Intelligence Committee who led the delegation, said, "If the elections had been held on a fair and honest basis, he (Marcos) would not have been elected by the people."

"There is simply no way to put Humpty Dumpty back together again," Boren said. "President Marcos has fallen off that wall. He's lost all credibility."

Marcos "has lost his popular mandate," Boren said of the Feb. 7 presidential election between Marcos and challenger Corazon Aquino.

"It is no longer a question of will President Marcos be forced to step down, it is a question of when that will happen and how that will happen," Boren said Sunday night at Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington.

Boren said the senators all would urge President Reagan "to let Humpty Dumpty know in unambiguous terms that it is the belief of the United States that he should seek a voluntary transfer of power to those who have truly won the election."

"Mrs. Aquino has won that election by all impartial observation," Boren added.

The senators said they did not believe fair elections could ever be held in the Philippines under a Marcos government, citing evidence they said showed fraud.

Sen. David Pryor, D-Ark., said the group saw counterfeit Philippine currency "that had been printed from the government presses ... to buy votes on election day."

Boren said the bills had identical serial numbers. He said they were also shown "counterfeit ballots, in which the very same handwriting was used over and over again."

The delegation, which traveled under the auspices of the Senate Intelligence Committee and was not part of the 20-member U.S. election observer team, expected to meet with President Reagan and Secretary of State George Shultz to pass on their findings.

Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich., charging that Marcos "engaged in massive fraud at the polls," said: "Our president should urge President Marcos to step aside. If we don't make our position clear, and if the Marcos government is removed by violence instead of by democratic principles, then the Filipino people's faith in both democracy and the United States may go down with him."

"The longer this instability remains, the longer that it appears that our government is propping up an illegitimate ruler," Pryor said.

The senators agreed that U.S. aid should not be channeled through the Marcos government, but they stopped short of calling for an aid cutoff.

Pryor said Marcos is "going to rip that aid off, and not allow that aid to get to the people." He suggested the aid instead be channeled through "private organizations and charitable institutions ... so that it would be out of the hands of President Marcos and his wife, Imelda."

Marcos on Sunday said in an interview on CBS-TV's "Face the Nation" that he might abrogate the military bases treaty with the United States if the Reagan administration cuts off aid to his government. The two largest U.S. military bases outside the United States are in the Philippines.

Levin suggested U.S. aid, which amounted to $245 million this fiscal year, be put in a trust fund. "We should not send any aid to this regime. It has no credibility anymore with the Filipino people," he said.

"I think that this government is so completely and extraordinarily corrupt that there is no way any of us could have any confidence that it would conduct an election that is fair," Boren said, adding, "Mrs. Aquino won, and the voice of the president of the United States should be directed at getting Mr. Marcos to recognize that election result for the sake of his country."

Portugal Election Won By Socialist

By PATRICK REYNA
Associated Press Writer
LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Mario Soares, a three-time Socialist prime minister, narrowly defeated conservative Diogo Freitas do Amaral for the presidency, and vowed to stabilize Portugal's fragmented political system as the first civilian elected head of state in 60 years.

With all but 16 of the country's 4,138 precincts reporting early today, Soares tallied 3,012,982 votes, or 51.29 percent of the total in Sunday's runoff election to Freitas do Amaral's 2,861,485, or 48.71 percent.

Freitas do Amaral, founder of the Christian Democratic Party, was the top vote-getter among four contenders in the first-round election last month, when he won 46.3 percent of the vote.

Soares, competing with two other left-of-center candidates, won 25.4 percent in the initial election. However, he managed to unite the country's fragmented left and center in Sunday's election.

"Based on the results now available I recognize that Mario Soares has won," the 44-year-old Freitas do Amaral told subdued supporters at his Lisbon campaign headquarters.

Soares had served as prime minister three times. His last term ended with parliamentary elections in October after which Anibal Cavaco Silva and his Social Democratic party formed a minority government.

The Social Democrats replaced the Socialists as the country's largest party, gaining 29.8 percent of the vote to the Socialists' 20.7 percent. The Social Democrats backed Freitas do Amaral in the presidential election.

Portugal has had 16 governments in the 12 years since the military ended nearly a half-century of rightist dictatorship with a coup. The 61-year-old Soares says he intends to serve as a stabilizing factor.

"I want to send a message of peace and hope to all Portuguese without exception," Soares told thousands of jubilant, flagwaving supporters from a balcony of his campaign headquarters after his victory.

"I will do all I can to cooperate with other branches of government, especially the Cabinet," said Soares, adding he acknowledged that Parliament was the "heart of Portugal's democratic system."

Soares will become the first civilian head of state since President Bernardino Machado resigned after a military coup in 1926.

Successive heads of state were hand-picked military men who owed their position to the late dictator Antonio de Oliveira Salazar and his successor, Marcelo Caetano, whose regime was overthrown in 1974.

The three presidents since all have come from the military, including outgoing President Antonio Ramalho Eanes who was unable to succeed himself under law, having already served two consecutive five-year terms.

The presidency in Portugal is usually described as somewhere between the strong U.S. and French models and the weak West German and Italian models.

Homes Evacuated Following Accident

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Residents of about 40 homes along the Stillwater River north of Dayton were evacuated today after a tanker truck plunged into the water, releasing a poisonous chemical, authorities said.

A three-mile stretch of Interstate 70 also was closed after the truck plunged into the water at 4:15 a.m., the State Highway Patrol said.

Allan Franks, a spokesman for the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency, said the truck was carrying about 4,000 gallons of MDI, or methylene diphenylene diisocyanate, which is used in making plastics and releases poisonous fumes. It was not immediately known how much escaped before the leak was stopped in mid-morning.

Two people were rescued from the truck, said Mike Denlinger, assistant chief of the Randolph Township police. One reportedly suffered minor injuries, he said.

Franks said cleanup crews would need special protective clothing before attempting to right the truck, which was reported to be about two-thirds submerged.

The Montgomery County Disaster Service Authority advised residents along the river who have wells not to drink or bathe in their water because of possible contamination. However, Franks said environmental officials were not overly concerned because it was likely "the stuff would go by before it would seep in."

He said the chemical reacts with water to form a foam, which could make cleanup easier.

The truck, owned by DSI of Baton Rouge, La., was en route from Louisiana to a BASF Wyandott chemical plant in Livonia, Mich., Franks said.

DISCREPANCIES IN YOUR BITE

If there are any discrepancies in your bite or in how your upper and lower teeth meet, don't leave this condition untreated. It may lead to the chronic pain of temporomandibular joint syndrome. Your temporomandibular joints are located on each side of your head, just internal and near the openings of your ears. You use them whenever you move your mouth and lower jaw. Discrepancies in bite or malocclusion, however, can cause painful stress and muscle spasms in this area. Sometimes your bite can be corrected by adjusting the surfaces of your teeth with high-speed burs so they will fit together better. But in other cases some of the tooth surfaces may need to be rebuilt by using onlays or crowns. It is also possible that more extensive orthodontic treatment may be needed so your teeth can be properly aligned. The inclined planes of the cusps of your teeth must be in good relationship, jaw to jaw, to relieve the muscle spasms caused by temporomandibular joint syndrome.

Double Ring Ceremony Performed On Sunday

Windy Elaine Bowen and Todd Turner Edwards were united in marriage Sunday at 3 p.m. in a double ring ceremony conducted by the Rev. C.B. Owens in Salem United Methodist Church in Simpson.

Parents of the couple are Faye B. Jones of Vanceboro and Willis Earl Bowen of Goldsboro, and Mr. and Mrs. Bruce McDonald Edwards of Simpson.

Andrea Norris was organist and Benjamin Arellano played the trumpet. Mary Arellano sang "The Lord's Prayer."

Cheryl Parker of Norfolk, Va., was honor attendant for her sister. Bridesmaids included Brenda Bowen of New Bern and Donna Bowen of Vanceboro, sisters of the bride, Lori Gibbs and Karen Gooding, both of Ayden, Cheryl Johnson, sister of the bridegroom, and Mary Arellano, both of Greenville, and Lori Jo Sutton of Simpson.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers included Allen Clark, Don Edwards, brother of the bridegroom, and Steve Johnson, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, all of Greenville, Kyle Edwards of Simpson and Warren Edwards of Cherry Hill, N.J., cousins of the bridegroom, Brian Hedspeith of Morehead City, and Christopher McDaniel of Winterville.

Susan Edwards, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, directed the wedding and Tina Dixon presided at the register.

The bride wore a formal candlelight gown of silk taffeta. The bodice, elbow length sleeves and V-shaped neckline were appliqued with re-embroidered alencon lace and seed pearls. She wore a fingertip veil of illusion held in place by a cloche headpiece overlaid in silk flowers and sprays of pearls. A pouf of illusion accented the headpiece. She carried a cascade bouquet of sweet-heart roses, lily of the valley and California ivy. Her only ornaments were a strand of pearls and pearl earrings.

The honor attendant wore an ivory tea length gown of point d'esprit and crocheted lace over satin. The fitted bodice featured a beau neckline of scalloped lace, short lace sleeves and natural waistline. A satin cummerbund encircled the waistline accenting the back with a satin bow. The tea length gown was bordered with a scalloped lace hemline. She carried three long-stemmed red roses accented with baby's breath and red ribbon. The bridesmaids wore dresses identical to that of the honor attendant and each carried a long-stemmed red rose accented with baby's breath and red ribbon.

The couple will live at Route 3, Greenville, after a wedding trip to Charleston, S.C., and Orlando, Fla.

The bride is a graduate of D.H. Conley High School and Pitt Community College. She is a junior at East Carolina University and is employed by Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

The bridegroom is a graduate of D.H. Conley High School and attended ECU. He is employed by Heileg-Meyers in Greenville.

After the ceremony the bridegroom's parents honored entertained at a reception in the American Legion Building. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Edwards Jr. greeted guests.

Mrs. Robert Williams, aunt of the bride, Mrs. Tab Joyner and Mrs. Don Turner, aunts of the bridegroom, assisted in pouring punch. Champagne was served by Robert Harris and Dene Castleberry. Serving the bride's cake were Mrs. C.D. Clark and Mrs. Dave Perkins, aunts of the bridegroom. Goodbyes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Williams, aunt and uncle of the bride.

Bridesmaids were honored at a champagne brunch Saturday held at the home of Mrs. Kyle Edwards. She was assisted by Mrs. Fred Edwards and Rebecca McLawhorn.

An after-rehearsal cocktail celebration was held at the Brook Valley Country Club. Music was provided by Steve Hardy.

Chattanooga Hospital Opens Regional Center For Women Patients

By MARGARET HABERMAN

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Mauve and teal have replaced the antiseptic hospital white, patients can order a continental breakfast or have a personal computer hooked up in their rooms, and beauticians and manicurists can be summoned with a telephone call.

The fifth floor at Erlanger Medical Center could be mistaken for a plush hotel, but the design with muted hues, water colors on the walls and all the amenities of a private health spa was created specifically for a regional health center exclusively for women.

The 42-bed Regional Women's Center became the first of its kind in the state when it opened last week to serve a 13-county area in Tennessee, Georgia and Alabama.

Each color-coordinated room is equipped with a vanity, a private bath, a chair that converts to a bed, a large closet, a corner cabinet and wider-than-average window sills and case work for flowers. Carpet covers the floors and hallways, plants are tucked in corners and a special conference room was added for patients and doctors.

"The typical hospital of the early days had semi-private rooms, a shared bathroom or a shower down the hall. But that's not what women want these days," said Carol Harris, the center's acting head and director of in-patient women's services. "They want bathrooms, closets and a place to fix themselves up when they want to."

"It's a little unusual for hospital colors and design. You don't usually see decor like this... But the ladies like it. They don't like a sterile atmosphere," Harris said.

With a physician's permission, patients also can get a copy of a local newspaper with their danish and coffee in the morning, order meals for a guest, have a secretary or notary public come in or arrange a visit by a masseuse, beautician, financial counselor or chaplain.

"Women today are really more informed about their health, about their bodies," Harris said. "They're making a lot more demands about the things that they want to do. They want to be more in control of their health care... and they are finding the physicians and the health care facilities that will meet these demands."

"We see it specifically in childbirth," she said. "These women know what they want... a birthing room, a 24-hour stay, an early discharge, and they'll tell you right down the line."

Margie Lively of Chattanooga, the center's first patient, picked out her room in advance and was waiting until she felt better after her hysterectomy before getting a massage.

"I thought it was the Music City Sheraton (in Nashville) instead of a hospital," she said. "The rooms I've had before have been just like a crackerbox. But this is just gorgeous. It makes a lot of difference."

The center, a year in the making, is more than just an answer to a marketing demand, however, Harris said. Eleven of the 20 most frequent surgeries are unique to women and women make 25 percent more visits to doctors than men, she said.

In addition to a "cradle club" for pregnant women and their families, the center also has education programs dealing with such topics as nutrition, exercise, osteoporosis and breast cancer. It also has a speaker's bureau, a resource center, support groups and a clinical referral service — all to serve women age 14 to 94, Harris said.

"A lot of what we hope to reach out with is the preventive and education aspects," she said. "One in 11 women will have breast cancer. The mammograms that they do now... are safe. You can see two years in advance, they say, a tumor forming before you can feel it. We want to take this story out to the women. The same with the heart, also plastic surgery — not only the cosmetic, but the reconstructive.

"What we're saying is that not all that's wrong with women is OB-GYN. There are so many different problems," she said. "Normally when people think of a woman going into the hospital, it's either to have a baby or to have a hysterectomy or one of those female-related things and that's not the case at all... There's the heart, arthritis.

"There's no one out there in this area or anywhere in the region that's really reaching out to the women. The problems are real and we're going to deal with them here," she added.

Bridge Winners Are Announced

A unit tournament was held Wednesday morning by the duplicate bridge club playing at Planters Bank.

Winners were: Effie Williams and Emma B. Warren, first with .630 percent; Mrs. C.F. Galloway and Mrs. C.D. Elks, second; Sam Taylor and George Martin, third; Sally Kirkwood and Mrs. Zeb Cummings, fourth.

North-South winners in the afternoon game included: Mrs. J.S. Rhodes Jr. and Mrs. Roger Critcher Jr., first with .634 percent; Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Webb, second; Mrs. J.M. Horton and George Martin, third; Mrs. Eli Bloom and Mrs. M.H. Bynum, fourth.

East-West: Mrs. Robert Barnhill and Joyce Lamm, first with .615 percent; tied for second were Mrs. William McConnell and Mrs. David Stevens with Estelle Eastwood and Graham Davis; Mrs. C.F. Galloway and Mrs. C.D. Elks, fourth.

Club championship winners Saturday afternoon in a game played at Planters Bank were: Sara Bradbury and Dr. Charles Duffy, first; Saralee Abbott and Wesley Webb, second; Delanie Webb and Ray Neeland, third; Estelle Eastwood and Graham Davis, fourth; Kathryn McConnell and Lewis Newsome, fifth; Beulah Eagles and Dorothy Barnhill, sixth; Elizabeth Roque and Barbara Wright, seventh; El Bass and Penny Blenk, eighth.

Club championship games will be played Wednesday morning and afternoon. The Saturday game will not be held due to the tournament in Wilson.

Chocolate Cake & Coffee
SOUR CREAM
CHOCOLATE CAKE

1½ cups stirred all-purpose flour (spoon and level)
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
1-3rd cup Dutch-process cocoa
¼-pound stick butter, cut in 8 equal pats
1¼ cups sugar
2 large eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 tablespoon coffee liqueur
1 cup sour cream

In a small bowl stir together flour, baking powder, baking soda and cocoa. In a medium bowl cream butter and sugar; beat in eggs, vanilla and coffee liqueur until blended. Stir in flour mixture, in 3 additions, alternately with sour cream, just until smooth. Turn into two 9-inch round (greased and floured) layer-cake pans. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean — about 20 minutes. Loosen edges and turn out on wire racks; cool completely. Fill and frost as desired.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

Problem With Slow Memory Is Solved By Some Fast Talking

DEAR ABBY: Here is a dilemma that I think we've all faced at one time. You are at a party and someone greets you by name. The face is familiar, but you can't remember the name. The person begins talking to you, then suddenly somebody you know joins you. You want to introduce the two but can't remember the name of the stranger. What do you do?

DEAR ABBY: I hope you don't mind lending me your ears (eyes?) for something seemingly trivial, but this bugs me no end.

I live alone, far from family. Last Christmas what do I get from my sister but a short note that amounts to a weather report. (We stopped exchanging gifts years ago, but we do exchange letters.) This "loquacious" lady with her university degree is married, has two children and lives near childhood friends and relatives, so she has plenty to write about. It's hard for me to believe that none of these people ever say or do anything worth mentioning.

In my last letter, I asked her to please send along some juicy gossip for a change. Nothing. I've inquired as to the state of the health of a dear neighbor who had celebrated his 100th birthday three years ago. Nothing. I mentioned that I had been mugged in the park. No comment. I recounted a recent automobile accident in which I narrowly escaped serious injury. No response.

I am wondering if I should quit writing to this sister, or should I continue to drop letters into a dark, bottomless pit.

WRITTEN OFF

ON THE SPOT

DEAR ON: You'll probably never believe this, but I just happen to have a brand-new book on my desk titled "Letitia Baldrige's Complete Guide to Executive Manners." I looked in the index under "Introducing People" and found the following:

"While the easiest solution is to admit that you have temporarily forgotten a name, there is another alternative. It's called the 'talk fast and maybe they won't guess the truth' solution. If you have forgotten the name of the person who has joined your group, begin talking quickly in a pleasant, even funny exaggerated way. Build up the ego of the person whose name you can't recall:

"Listen, everyone, this is someone I haven't seen for a long, long time, but he was such a fantastic salesman that the rumor is he almost sold the office building to his company president!"

"If the only thing you can remember about a person is where he lives, you can almost always drag out a little story that will cause everyone to smile. Soon they are shaking hands and everyone is introducing himself all around. Probably the newcomer and the others in the group don't even realize you never once mentioned his name. (It works, because I do it all the time.)

"Honesty, however, is always the best policy. Just admit the name has slipped your mind. Generally, you will be forgiven."

This book is an absolute treasure. You don't have to be an executive to learn from it; anyone who works with other people will find it enormously helpful. It's more than a guide to manners; it's a practical guide to common-sense behavior in hundreds of social and business situations. It's published by Rawson Associates, and can be found at your local book dealer's. The price is $22.95—not inexpensive, but worth every penny.

DEAR WRITTEN OFF: Your sister's newsless letters should signal a clearly spelled-out message. She wants nothing more than a polite let's-keep-in-touch correspondence with you—if that.

(Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents) self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

THIN IS IN
MARIN, Switzerland (AP) — When it comes to watches, bigger isn't always better.

In fact, Swiss watchmakers continuously search for ways to make thinner watches without increasing the cost to consumers. One solution is to use plastic instead of metal as a support for other components. According to a watch maker here, one sort of engineering plastic eliminates about 50 cutting operations that metal supports require.

Clear Choices

The choices are clear.

Pitt County can either create a first-rate medical district or be guaranteed a makeshift one. After it makes the choice, the county can profit from its preplanned, quality medical industry or it can be haunted into the 21st century by what might have been.

A zoning loophole that permits a motel to locate across from Pitt County Memorial Hospital is a giant step toward a makeshift medical district. The six months that city and county officials say it will take to OK a Medical District Study Report is a crucial second step.

Six months is too long to suspend the fate of prime medical district property. Too much can happen in six months; there are too many threats to a quality medical district.

Take, for example, a recent decision by Greenville's Board of Adjustment to grant a special use permit allowing a motel directly across from the hospital — prime medical use property. A motel facing the hospital is not congruous with a medical district. It's not even close. Yet medical district study recommendations allow motels as special uses in this critical area — a questionable choice.

A loophole that allows a special property use conflicting with medical district thinking is an immediate threat to a district. It opens the door to a flood of special use permit requests along the crucial medical corridor.

Granting a permit for the motel was a questionable decision by the Board of Adjustment, even though it is technically correct. Was the board familiar with the medical district issue? If it wasn't, why not? If it was, why did it let a piece of prime property fall to non-medical development?

The incident with the motel indicates three things.

First, the question of commercial development in the area immediately surrounding the hospital must be cleared up. Ban restaurants or motels in the proposed district up front — no "special use permit" subterfuge. The zoning requirements should be spelled out in black and white.

Second, the review commission for the study must act promptly — and six months is not promptly — to implement the study and its recommendations. Action, not discussion, will keep affected property from being gobbled up. Good groundwork for a medical district has been laid but decisions must be made quickly.

Third, the Board of Adjustment must more carefully consider requests for special use permits in the proposed medical district. Members should be armed with maps and study recommendations when they consider the next request. That board and the review commission should avoid more mistakes like motels.

Central Location

The Ayden Town Board has registered its opposition to construction of new courtrooms because, it says, courtrooms exist in Ayden and Farmville which are used only two days a month.

The board agreed to send letters to senior Superior and District Court judges and to the Pitt County Board of Commissioners concerning the question of new courtrooms.

The matter is not so simple as shifting cases to wherever courtrooms are available.

Many criminal cases involve security in moving prisoners about and providing adequate courtroom protection. There is the need to obtain maximum efficiency from both sheriff's department and clerk of court personnel. If deputies and court clerks have to be shuttling back and forth between widely separated courtrooms it is obvious that time is lost, which corresponds to money lost.

We favor using Ayden, Farmville or any other courtrooms which can be efficiently used to handle appropriate court cases. Nevertheless, most cases require close proximity to the county courthouse where court records, court clerks and sheriff's deputies are readily available.

Coping With The Insurance Crisis

RALEIGH — The special legislative session which starts Tuesday has ostensibly been called so the assembly can end the crisis created by the unavailability of certain forms of liability insurance.

In reality, the Legislature is meeting to give Insurance Commissioner Jim Long the clout needed to scare the insurance industry into solving its own problem.

Although there are crises throughout the insurance industry, two problems are of such magnitude that Long wants them handled immediately. The first is that many insurance companies aren't writing fire insurance on low-value houses and businesses in rural areas. The problem is mostly with properties valued at less than $20,000, but sometimes with those valued up to $50,000.

The second problem is that many lines of liability insurance, such as insurance for day-care centers and to protect against ecological catastrophes, aren't being offered. New businesses and those which have had old policies canceled can't buy this insurance for any price.

The unavailability of insurance means small businesses either have to go naked, without insurance, or close down. Some have chosen the latter course.

To deal with the problem of low-value properties, Long proposes to expand the North Carolina FAIR

Plan. That plan provides insurance pool coverage for low-value properties in areas of 10,000 population or more. This proposal is expected to be quickly accepted by the assembly.

More controversial is his second proposal. Long wants standby authority to create pool coverage in areas where liability insurance isn't being offered. Under this plan, when an insurance commissioner determined that certain lines of insurance were not available, he could order the formation of a joint underwriting pool of all companies selling liability insurance in the state. The pool would then have to offer the insurance and the individual companies would split any loss or profit the pool experienced.

Insurance companies could refuse to participate in such a pool by pulling their business out of the state. Insurance officials says they don't expect something like that to happen if pool coverage is ordered here. New Hampshire has already enacted such a law and has not seen an exodus of insurance companies.

The insurance companies find such an arrangement pretty distasteful and that is what Long is banking on. He hopes that the proposal just may be ugly enough to prompt them into action without his ever having to create a pool. In that sense, the legislation he's proposing to the General Assembly would serve as a hammer to be held over the heads of the insurance companies.

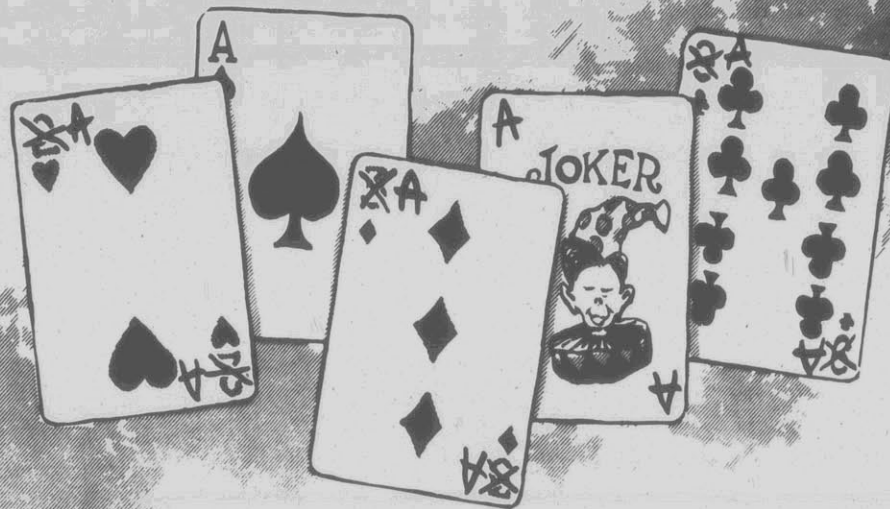

This kind of coercion isn't needed, the insurance industry says. The problem can be solved without government intervention through use of a private clearinghouse for hard-to-find insurance.

Under this plan, an agent who needed insurance for a day care center, for example, would contact the clearinghouse after finding that his regular carriers weren't writing this kind of insurance. The clearinghouse would then put the agent in contact with a company that was, and a policy would be written.

Long argues that this idea isn't working for two reasons. First, in some lines of insurance, no one, anywhere, is offering to write new policies. The clearinghouse can't find underwriters. Second, he says the insurance companies are ignoring the clearinghouse effort.

Long and insurance-conscious legislators feel the insurance industry has not made a good faith effort to solve this problem. They intend to beat them over the head with the idea that it is time to act.

Hooray For The Judges

WASHINGTON — Three federal judges this month performed a notable public service. They reaffirmed and buttressed one of the oldest principles of our government. In doing so, they effectively disarmed the worst feature of the legislative disaster known as the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings Act. It's not often that I cry hooray for federal judges, but this time — hooray!

The objects of my rah-rah-rah are Circuit Court Judge Antonin Scalia of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals and District Judges Oliver Gasch and Norma Holloway Johnson. They took a long, cool, 50-page look at this misbegotten act and found its key provision unconstitutional.

By this time, almost every person interested in our national government knows something about the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings Act. For the record: the act, passed in December, provided a crude mechanism for compelling annual reductions in the federal deficit. For fiscal 1987, the deficit could not exceed $144 billion. If it appeared to the Office of Management and Budget and the Congressional Budget Office that the deficit might be, let us say, $174 billion, the two agencies would apply a numerical reduction factor to all affected programs.

Thirty billion dollars would have to come out. Half would come from defense appropriations, half from non-defense. OMB and CBO then would transmit their calculations to the General Accounting Office, which would review the figures and transmit them to the president. The president would then have no choice. He would have to order the $30 billion in cuts whether he liked them or not.

The act constituted a congressional confession of irresponsibility. It said to the whole world, "We are incapable of making hard political decisions ourselves. We will let unlected bureaucrats and computers do the job for us." It the triggering mechanism had survived constitutional challenge, the indispensable agencies of government, such as the Internal Revenue Service, would have been cut by the same percentage applied to the dispensable agencies, such as the National Endowment for Democracy.

The mechanisms did not survive. The three judges held unanimously that in this respect the act violates the constitutional principle of separation of powers. The GAO is headed by a comptroller general who is nominated by the president but cannot be removed by the president. Once confirmed, a comptroller general is subject to dismissal only by Congress. He is thus a part of the legislative branch. Under Gramm-Rudman-Hollings, the GAO would be performing executive functions. This the Constitution forbids.

What happens now? The court told

Congress, in effect, that it must face the dismal music itself. If the act's $144 billion target is to be met for 1987, Congress must pass the necessary legislation to achieve the goal and the president must sign for it. This the very duty that Congress sought so desperately to run away from.

It is universally assumed that an appeal will be taken from the three-judge court to the U.S. Supreme Court. It is widely assumed that the high court will affirm last week's opinion.

The doctrine of "separation of powers" is one of our Constitution's great bulwarks against tyrannical government. In this instance, members of Congress were not trying to be tyrants; they were trying to be cowards. Now we are back to square one. The good ends of the act will have to be approached by the proper means.

Some Things One Can Agree On

The tobacco companies are fighting back against the steady drumbeat of anti-cigarette propaganda.

According to The Wall Street Journal, Philip Morris has launched a vigorous campaign to prevent discrimination against smokers. The tobacco company says anti-smoking zealots are harrasing smokers and violating their civil rights.

A Philip Morris spokesman also maintains that when it comes to reporting the smoking story, the media are grossly unfair to the tobacco interests and support the "fringe element in the country today bent on modifying Americans' behavior to conform to their own interpretation of Utopia."

I wish the spokesman had said "some of the media" because I believe that anybody in this country who wants to smoke should be allowed to do so. I refuse to be lumped with zealots or members of the fringe element. While I am a born-again ex-cigar smoker, I would never take sides between those courageous people who have given up smoking and the weak, miserable wretches who are still addicted to this filthy habit.

The newspaperman's job is to be fair and impartial on any political issue, whether it is tobacco or Colonel Khaddafi.

people who would have to be committed if they weren't permitted to smoke.

Smokers are among our biggest taxpayers. Through cigarette taxes they support schools, sewers and the hospitals they check into when they get sick from smoking.

Smoking contributes to the nation's economy. Cigarette addicts will spend their last dollar for a pack of smokes rather than throw it away on bread or milk.

One of the most telling health arguments in favor of smoking is that more women are doing it now than ever before. They wouldn't if it weren't safe, because women smokers are not dumb.

The more anxious people are about lighting up, the more they are bullied by non-smokers who will not tolerate smokers in the same room. These non-smoking zealots justify their rudeness by claiming they become dizzy from the fumes. This is a joke. It is a known medical fact that tobacco smoke cannot do any more physical harm to a non-smoker than a glass of warm water from the East River.

The biggest fear of the tobacco companies is that if the non-smoker is permitted to persecute the smoker today, he will persecute diesel trucks tomorrow and Consolidated Edison smokestacks next week. So the pro-smoker is fighting not just for his own rights, but the rights of everything that smokes in America.

Now let's be fair to the other side. The non-smokers are made up of wimps who sit around all day waiting for a smoker to pull out a cigarette. They are intolerant, selfish people.

When asked why they object to someone enjoying a few puffs from the filter tip, all the non-smoker can come up with is a weak, "I have asthma," which is no reason at all.

Besides the wimps, a large number of non-smokers are reformed puff-puff, who gave up the weed and now want everyone else to do the same. These people are unbearable because they not only ask smokers to put out their cigarettes but spend a half-hour telling them why they are no good.

So there you have it, the two opposing sides, each with their own truth: one composed of smoke worshippers, the other always praying for fresh air.

We, as Americans, should have tolerance for both — the side that believes in a long life, and the side that couldn't care less. No one has a monopoly on truth. The only thing we can all agree on is that the tobacco companies are not in business for our health.

—Elisha Douglas—

Strength For Today

Do miracles still occur?

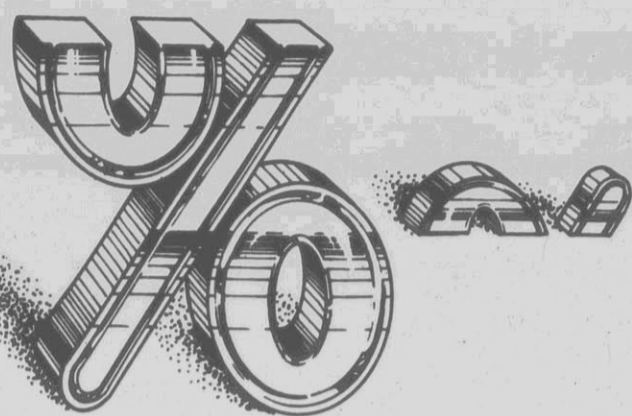

Every physician will tell you that he has had patients recover after every scientific indication showed that the person was headed for the cemetery. Miracles not only have occurred and are still occurring, but the whole of life is a miracle.

That two small cells, male and female, should unite to form a human being and to continue appearance, traits, abilities and weaknesses — generations old — is a miracle. The apparent dying of the landscape every fall and its resurrection in the spring is a miracle. Man cannot make it happen. This is something which God does.

Miracles occur when miracles are called for. They not only take place in medical practice and in nature, but if you will only look deeply enough into your own life, you will see that miracles are taking place constantly in your own experience.

What do big banks do with interest they don't pay you?

Ever wondered why First Federal's federally-insured investment accounts pay consistently higher rates than the big banks' federally-insured investment accounts? Good question.

But the difference in our rates and their rates is no great wonder. As the only financial institution that operates offices only in Pitt County, we neither need nor can afford, a huge television advertising campaign. Or a huge, granite building. No big operating centers with big computers—our smaller computer systems service our customers nicely. And since our offices are all close by, we save quite a bit on courier services too.

At First Federal, we feel that some of the larger financial institutions spend too much time and money being big and too little time and money on what made them big: their customers. That's why we take the time to learn your name and spend the money on higher interest rates. We don't skimp on products and services either. You'll find most every financial service you're likely to need at First Federal.

When you add it all up, a bigger bank isn't necessarily a better place for your investments. It's only, well, bigger.

Pacific Storms Continue To Blast Calif.

By JONATHAN OATIS
Associated Press Writer

Powerful storms with floods, mudslides and surf up to 16 feet high continued pummeling California today as another storm slapped the Midwest and the East with snow, sleet and freezing rain that made driving dangerous.

The Pacific storms, which began hitting California on Wednesday, left at least two dead and three missing over the weekend, authorities said. "We're trying to keep the land from going into the ocean," Marin County Sheriff's Lt. Tom McMains said Sunday.

A flash flood watch was posted in the state's northern and central sections as residents along streams sandbagged their homes or were advised to flee to higher ground.

Winter storm warnings were in effect in the Sierra Nevada, where winds up to 100 mph were reported; the Lake Tahoe area and Washington's Olympic and Cascade mountains.

In Colorado, more than 150 avalanches set off by up to 20 inches of mountain snow were reported in a 24-hour period Sunday, and there were probably up to 300 others that went unreported, the state Avalanche Information Center said. The snowslides temporarily closed two highways but there were apparently no injuries, authorities said.

The state's eastern foothills remained under a high wind warning, along with Montana's Upper Yellowstone Valley and southeast Wyoming. The Rockies were under a travelers advisory for snow, as well as northern and western Montana and western Wyoming.

The Eastern storm prompted travelers' advisories of snow for sections of Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, New York and Pennsylvania.

The rain swamping northern California was expected to continue falling, heavily at times, meteorologist Scott Tansey said from the National Weather Service's Severe Storms Center in Kansas City, Mo.

In three counties just north of San Francisco, authorities warned residents to beware of rising floodwaters today.

In Napa County, the sheriff's department said the Napa River could jump its banks late today, and told riverside residents to sandbag their homes.

In Marin County, about 80 people along Corte Madera Creek in the small community of Ross were advised to consider evacuating. Mudslides and severe flooding forced officials to close several roads, including southbound U.S. Highway 101, a major route.

In the Sonoma County city of Guerneville, several people left their homes amid warnings that the Russian River was expected to flood. Near the Petaluma River, a 100-home mobile home park was evacuated as roads were flooded Sunday, said Juelle Ann Boyer of the Petaluma Emergency Center.

A 17-year-old St. Helena boy drowned Saturday after he and a friend took a rubber raft into swollen Sulphur Creek, said Napa County Sheriff's Sgt. Richard Anderson.

In Concord, about 30 miles east of San Francisco, a 24-year-old man disappeared after being thrown from a raft he had taken early Sunday into the surging Walnut Creek Channel, authorities said.

Divers called in to search for the man's body found the waterway too treacherous, said Concord Police Sgt. Steve Krull.

The man's friend also fell out of a raft when the two reached a waterfall with a 68-foot drop, but managed to pull himself to the creekside and safety, Krull said.

Also missing was a woman whose home was destroyed by a mudslide in Boulder Creek about 35 miles southeast of San Francisco, said town fire department volunteer Roberta Rocca.

In Southern California, Sunday's heavy surf claimed the lives of a 28-year-old surfer off Hermosa Beach about 10 miles south of Los Angeles and of a man swept off the pedestrian walkway of a seawall in Ocean Beach in San Diego County, officials said.

Rain was expected to intensify late Tuesday or early Wednesday, said Tansey of the Severe Storms Center.

In the Midwest, storms in the mid-Mississippi and Ohio valleys dropped freezing rain, sleet and snow from the Great Lakes to New York and New Jersey, and showers and thunderstorms ranged across the lower Mississippi Valley.

Up to 5 inches of new snow piled up in southern Michigan; 2 to 4 inches in Kenosha County, Wis.; and around 3 inches in Chicago. By early today, Buffalo and Binghamton, N.Y., had about 2 inches of snow.

FLOOD EVACUATION CONTINUES — Two men pilot a rubber raft through the flooded streets of Guerneville, Calif., Sunday as residents of the town north of San Francisco continued to evacuate their flooded homes. A severe Pacific winter storm brought heavy rains and high winds to much of California over the weekend. (AP Laserphoto)

11 Children, Four Adults Killed In Weekend Fires

By The Associated Press

Weekend fires in five states killed four adults and 11 children, including three youngsters who died when fire engulfed their Indianapolis apartment after one of them apparently began playing with matches, authorities said.

A 9-year-old Florida girl was killed when she ran upstairs in a burning house, apparently to rescue a stuffed animal, and a woman and her three grandchildren died in a blaze in Oregon.

Two blazes in Indiana killed five children and one adult, while two young boys died in Virginia and two elderly sisters died when fire ripped through their Chicago bungalow.

In Indianapolis, Damone Adair, 17, told authorities he was baby-sitting the children when the fire began Sunday, but was unable to rescue them from the smoke-filled second-floor apartment.

Killed were 2-year-old Gione Johnson, her 4-year-old sister, Monique Hudson, 4, and their 4-year-old uncle, Marcus Adair.

He was staying at his sister's townhouse because a fire had gutted his mother's apartment a week earlier. Authorities said Sunday's fire might have been started by a child playing with matches.

In DeGonia Springs, Ind., a wood-burning stove may have caused a fire Sunday that killed a mother and her two children, officials said.

The victims were identified as Anna Duncan, 24, and her children, Jeremy, 5, and Jessica, 3.

In Portland, Ore., Rosanne E. Sponsler, 43, died when fire raced through her family's home Saturday night. Her grandchildren, Blair A. Stamm Jr., 6, Laticia Stamm, 4, and Joshua Stamm, 3, who were sleeping in the basement, died of apparent smoke inhalation shortly after arriving at hospital emergency rooms.

"It was like an inferno. It just exploded," said Jim Lewis, a neighbor.

The children's mother and grandfather were out of the house and their father is stationed overseas with the military.

In Titusville, Fla., Stefani Lauderbaugh, 9, was staying at the home of her friend, Kathy Thomson, when they smelled smoke and ran downstairs early Saturday. As Kathy alerted the rest of her family, Stefani ran upstairs. "I think she was looking for a stuffed animal," Kathy said.

Firefighters found Stefani's body in a bathroom. She died of smoke inhalation, authorities said.

Kathy's father, James Thomson, was burned on his hands, arms and face while searching for Stefani. He was hospitalized in stable condition.

Two elderly sisters died early Sunday in a fire in their brick bungalow on Chicago's South Side, authorities said.

Alice Prince, 85, and Bertha Vander Ark, 73, died in a blaze which apparently started in an improperly maintained furnace, said Police Bomb and Arson Sgt. Jerry Adams.

In Gloucester, Va., Philip Connon, 4, and his brother Stuart, 3, died Saturday when fire swept through their home while they were napping, authorities said.

Their mother, Mary Connon, escaped through a bedroom window and unsuccessfully tried to re-enter the house and save the children.

Philosopher Dead At The Age Of 90

OJAI, Calif. (AP) — Jiddu Krishnamurti, an Indian philosopher, author and educator who founded schools in the United States, England and India, died today at the age of 90.

Krishnamurti, who had been ill since returning from a trip to India on Jan. 12, died at 12:10 a.m. at his home at the Krishnamurti Foundation of America, said Erna Lilliefelt, a trustee of the foundation. She described the cause of death as cancer of the pancreas.

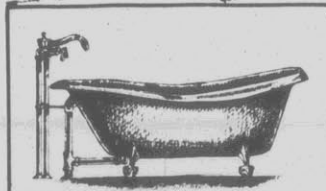

The foundation headquarters, and a school for children from preschool age through high school, are in Ojai, a community about 65 miles northwest of Los Angeles.

Krishnamurti did not espouse any doctrine, or require any particular behavior of those who followed his teachings, Ms. Lilliefelt said.

"He pointed out that people should not take orthodox religion as an authority," she said. "He pointed out very clearly the dangers in differences in religion, that they cause some of the problems in the world."

He taught, she said, "a way of life to look at things practically. He indicated that you cannot change the world without changing yourself first."

Can Makers Strike Targets

BAL HARBOUR, Fla. (AP) — About 13,300 United Steelworkers went on a nationwide strike today against the nation's four largest can manufacturers after rejecting management offers of $400 year-end bonuses in place of an increase in hourly wages.

The union began officially pulling its members out of about 75 plants across the country at 3 a.m.

Minutes earlier, USW local presidents voted 57-38 to turn down an industry pattern-setting contract offer by National Can Corp., the third largest of the four companies with about 2,200 Steelworkers on its payroll.

The three other companies also struck by the union are Continental Inc., with 6,000 Steelworkers on its payroll; American Can Co., with 4,500 union members, and Crown Cork & Seal Co., with 600 USW members.

None of the representatives for any of the companies could be reached early today. But Jack Hildner, a spokesman for American Can, said Sunday that they all wanted separate contracts with the union in place of the industrywide agreements that had prevailed for decades.

"The companies don't believe we'll take them on, despite their being profitable," Steelworkers Vice President Leon Lynch said today. "But we're not accepting any retreat."

The local union presidents had voted unanimously Sunday to authorize the strike. But as the midnight deadline approached, USW negotiators reported last-minute progress toward agreement with representatives of National, Gary Hubbard, a spokesman for the union said.

However, after more than two hours of sometimes "rancorous" debate among the local union chiefs, Hubbard said, the majority decided National Can's profits justified more pay.

He said the $400 year-end bonuses worked out to less than 10 cents an hour over the three-year life of the proposal.

With wages currently ranging between $11 and $16 per hour — and benefits valued at another $9 to $14 — the can workers are among the highest paid in the metal trades.

Lynch said union negotiators would be meeting today in an effort to resume the talks, but that the union can withstand a long strike if necessary.

Hubbard said picket lines were up at some plants several hours before the strike was officially called to stop workers from reporting for their midnight shift.

Hubbard, citing plant closings that have cost more than 30,000 jobs in the can industry since the last 1983 contract, said union officials had acknowledged that too rich a settlement threatened more shutdowns.

The First President

Today is the holiday commemorating the birth of George Washington, the ninth President of the United States. That's right, George was NOT the first President; John Hanson was. Hanson played a crucial role in getting the Continental Congress to pass the Articles of Confederation. He later became the first "President of the United States in Congress assembled." Seven other men presided over this Congress before the current Constitution was ratified.

Arrests Made

Two Fayetteville men were arrested early today by Greenville police on breaking, entering and larceny charges.

Officers J.E. Woolard and K.D. Lingerfelt said Kenneth Warren Melvin, 23, and Jose Rafael Brenes II, 23, were each charged with two counts of breaking and entering an auto, and with one count of larceny, in connection with a 1:28 a.m. incident in a parking lot at the intersection of Fifth and Reade Streets.

According to the officers, a video cassette tape, some change and other items were taken from one car and another car was entered.

Thefts Reported

Police are investigating four thefts reported to the department over the weekend.

Officer S.D. Furr said a video cassette recorder was taken from Greenville TV and Appliance at 200 E. Greenville Blvd. in an incident reported at 4:05 p.m. Saturday. Officer D.W. Nichols said a video cassette recorder was taken from 1700 S. Evans St. in a break-in reported at 6:02 p.m.

Officer C.M. Credle said a television, a video cassette recorder and 16 tapes were taken from 10 West Hills in a break-in reported at 9:15 p.m. Saturday. Officer F.G. Pruitt said a bicycle was taken from 305 S. Jarvis St. in an incident reported at 2:20 p.m. Sunday.

Charges

Greenville police arrested three people in connection with thefts reported to the department over the weekend.

Officer C.A. Sharp said Jewel Faye Taft, 33, of 1500 Chestnut St. was charged with shoplifting and possession of marijuana following investigation of a 6:03 p.m. incident at Kroger Sav-On on Greenville Boulevard Saturday. Officer B.M. Highland said Tony Allen Isler, 23, of Kinston, was charged with breaking, entering and larceny from a vehicle, possession of marijuana, possession of burglary tools and damage to personal property, after a purse was taken from a truck parked in the Buccaneer Theater parking lot on Arlington Boulevard about 10:16 p.m. Sunday.

Officer T.E. Evans said Gregory Kent Moore, 25, of 600G W. 14th St. was charged with breaking, entering and larceny after an undetermined amount of cash was reported taken from a car parked at 111 Pearl Drive about 6:15 a.m. Saturday.

Evans said police are continuing their investigation of a break-in and the theft of an undetermined amount of money from the house at 111 Pearl Drive which was reported to police about 6:33 a.m.

Election Changes

The League of Women Voters of Greenville-Pitt County will present two informal unit study meetings on the latest changes in North Carolina election laws as they pertain to Pitt County.

The first will be held at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at 202 Greenbriar Drive. The second at 10 a.m. Wednesday at 3107 Gordon Drive, Lake Ellsworth.

Lecture Tonight

The East Carolina University School of Art will host a public lecture by Kinji Akagawa, an environmental sculptor, at 7:30 tonight in the auditorium of the Jenkins Fine Arts Center, East Fifth Street.

A native of Japan, Akagawa has taught at universities and exhibited in museums in Japan, Canada and the U.S.

While in Greenville, Akagawa will build a site-specific piece of sculpture on campus. This project is funded by an Arts Council grant.

Theft Investigated

Police are continuing their investigation of the theft of several items from a car parked at the King and Queen Restaurant on Eastbrook Drive Friday night.

Officer J.G. Bridges, who said the incident was reported about 9:02 p.m., said a .22 caliber pistol, a coat and a camera were taken from the car.

Bridges said the items were recovered from a car parked at Branch Banking and Trust Company on Arlington Boulevard a short time later. Although the car from which the items were recovered was impounded, no arrests were made, Bridges said.

'Roots' Lecture

"The Background of Roots: The Significance of the Family" will be the topic of a public lecture by "Roots" author Alex Haley Tuesday night at 7:30 in Hendrix Theatre at the Mendenhall Student Center at East Carolina University. Haley is the distinguished guest lecturer for the annual ECU Lecture-Seminar series and will be on campus for two days.

A public seminar panel session will be held at 2 p.m. Wednesday at Mendenhall Student Center.

Data Collection

The U.S. Census Bureau has announced that it will visit area residents during the week of Feb. 18 to collect data on the labor force, according to Joseph Harris, director of the Census Bureau's Charlotte regional office. Only statistical totals will be published in the Bureau's monthly report.

In December, the national civilian unemployment rate was 6.9 percent, the report said.

Artists Program

Members of the Boys Club of Pitt County are taking part in the 1986 Boys Clubs of America Young Artists Program which opens in Orlando, Fla. today.

The program offers thousands of youngsters an opportunity to exhibit their works in oils, watercolors, pastels, sketches, drawings and sculptures.

The program has been providing scholarships through the Epstein Fine Arts Fund for more than 30 years.

Members of the Boys Club of Pitt County who have submitted work for the 1986 exhibition are:

- Ages 6-9: Bryan Crumpler, Ian Green, David Tucker, Terry Cratch, Carlos Thompson, Burt Jenkins, Terrell Edwards, Jarmaine Carmon, Tucker Brown, Patrick Wahlen, Matthew White, Steven Mann, DeMarco Allen, D.J. Credle.
- Ages 10-11: Troy Swain, Brittawn

Lloyd, Chris Giles, Matthew Mallard, Scott Nesbitt, Will Brown, Donald Bell, Philip Mann, Roger Green.

• Ages 12-13: Jeff McKinney, D.K. Wooten, James Holloway, Jeff Wilkins.

Two years ago, the local club had a regional winner, and in 1985 the club had four regional winners and one national winner.

Art work chosen as regional winners at Orlando will become eligible for the national exhibition to be held in Phoenix, Arizona.

Postponed

The Wahl-Coates PTA meeting scheduled for Tuesday has been postponed until March 18. The program will be given by the East Carolina Regional Training Center on "Stress and How it Affects Your Child."

Chapter Meet

Chapter 1530 of the National Association of Retired Federal Employees (NARFE) will meet at the Three Steers Restaurant at noon Wednesday for its monthly luncheon.

Pregnancy Sessions

The Greenville Recreation and Parks Department and Cathy Greer will sponsor a new session of Pregnancy Exercises beginning Tuesday. The Class meets Tuesdays and Thursdays from 6-7 p.m. at the Jaycee Park Activity Room for five weeks.

The sessions will include general muscle toning and aerobics for the pregnant woman. For registration information, call 752-4137, ext 200.

Passes CPA Exam

Paul Jeremiah Donohue, of Route 1, Stokes, has passed the North Carolina CPA examination. He received notification from the N.C. State Board of Certified Public Accountant Examiners.

He will now be completing experience requirements.

Revival

A revival will be held tonight through Friday at Clemmons Grove Pentecostal Holiness Church. Evangelist Evelyn Mark will conduct the services at 7:30 each night.

Communion will be celebrated Saturday at 7 p.m., and quarterly meeting services will be held Sunday at 11 a.m. with Elder Thomas D. Dixon.

Aquino ...

Reagan's remarks over the weekend that widespread fraud and violence in the election were "perpetrated largely by the ruling party" of Marcos, 68.

Reagan had earlier angered the Aquino camp by suggesting at a news conference last Tuesday that both sides might have been guilty of election abuses.

At a Sunday news conference, Marcos said Reagan was "wrongly informed" about the election, and said he would make sure "the right information reaches him."

Habib, who arrived in the Philippines Saturday night, was to meet later today with Cardinal Jaime Sin, the Roman Catholic archbishop of Manila and a persistent critic of Marcos.

The session with Sin, the most influential religious leader in this 85 percent Roman Catholic nation, was certain to include discussion of last week's charge by the Catholic Bishops' Conference of the Philippines that election was marred by "unparalleled fraudulence" at the polls.

Although the bishops' statement did not accuse pro-Marcos forces by name, it was widely interpreted as blaming the government.

In other developments, Marcos, in a move that may have been designed to placate U.S. critics, announced the resignation of his top military officer and long-time associate, Gen. Fabian C. Ver.

The 66-year-old Ver was acquitted in December, along with 25 others, of complicity in Aquino's assassination.

U.S. officials concerned with the performance of the Philippines armed forces have said they believe Ver was a hindrance to the military's efficiency in battling a communist insurgency.

Marcos said on Sunday that Ver would continue as a "consultant" to the military, and would be replaced as commander by Lt. Gen. Fidel V. Ramos, who has been deputy commander as well as head of the national police.

tions because of a fear that icicles on the pad might be knocked off by launch vibrations and damage the shuttle's heat-resistant tiles.

The commission was told by Jesse Moore, NASA's shuttle director, however, that when it came time to launch, everyone, including the contractors, agreed that the temperatures were acceptable.

Mulloy said the Morton Thiokol engineers had been concerned the low temperatures might degrade the seals intended to prevent hot gases from leaking through rocket segments.

NASA photos disclose a puff of smoke near a seal on the right booster rocket as Challenger is lifting off the pad and a flame spurting from the same area 59 seconds into the flight.

Commission Chairman William P. Rogers told reporters here Friday that his panel is focusing on the right booster but also is examining the external fuel tank and the cold weather on launch day as possible causes of the disaster. He said the panel has exonerated the shuttle itself as a cause.

The fuel tank, holding nearly 500,000 gallons of liquid hydrogen and liquid oxygen, exploded at 73 seconds, eight miles high, killing the seven crew members, including New Hampshire schoolteacher Christa McAuliffe.

In a statement issued in Washington Saturday, Rogers said the commission had concluded the decision to launch the shuttle "may have been flawed" and asked NASA

"We're all lucky people," he said. "Another half hour, and it would have been too late."

not to permit any of those involved in the decision to take part in the agency's own investigation of the accident.

"The commission statement was not very clear," said agency spokesman Dave Garrett in Washington. "We don't know whether it's talking about five people, 100 people or hundreds of people. You can talk about Mission Control in Houston, the contractors, the launch control center team at the Kennedy Space Center."

He said William Graham, NASA's acting administrator, "is reviewing the whole procedure" and that the agency probably would have no official comment before Tuesday.

Rogers, Graham and commission member Neil Armstrong, the first man to walk on the moon, are to testify Tuesday about the accident before the Senate subcommittee on science, technology and space.

The space agency has established its own investigative task force of several hundred engineers and technicians working in specialized units. It is coordinating its work with the commission.

Mark Weinberg, the commission spokesman, said he could not elaborate on Rogers' statement. Nor would he speculate on how many people might be excluded from the investigation.

"That will be up to Dr. Graham," he said. "This is standard for most accident investigations."

A NASA statement Sunday said only that its task force was being restructured.

Meanwhile, 14 states and at least one foreign country have banned the sale of Tylenol capsules. Italian newspapers reported Sunday that the nation's ministry of health had barred sales of Tylenol there because of concern about the Westchester findings.

Burke said the company lost $250 million after the Chicago scare but has since bounced back. "Now we're going to have to start all over again," he said.

"The public knowledge of this incident is almost universal. Ninety-seven percent of the public, in the research that we've just completed, knows that something has happened to Tylenol," he said. "That's more people than know the name of the president of the United States."

O'Rourke, interviewed with Burke and FDA head Frank E. Young on ABC's "This Week With David Brinkley," said a bottle of tainted Tylenol capsules found in a Woolworth's store in the Westchester community of Bronxville came from a batch different from others around it.

"That would appear to be reverse shoplifting, somebody came in and actually put it on the shelf," O'Rourke.

Capsules from a bottle bought at an A&P Food Store two blocks from the Woolworth's killed Ms. Elseroth.

Sunday night, FBI spokesman Jack French had no comment on O'Rourke's information about the Woolworth's bottle, and Grigg would neither confirm nor deny whether it was true.

But Bronxville police confirmed the bottle was the only one of its lot on the shelf.

Johnson & Johnson spokesman Robert Kniffen said the significance of that fact "is just not clear."

He said a Woolworth's distribution center had received a shipment of Tylenol in lot number AHA 090, the same as that of the poisoned bottle, and that all the other bottles from the same lot could have been sold previously.

Grigg said the agency would not discuss evidence in the investigation, but he did offer some insight into the process.

"Nothing we've seen would lead us to believe that it's anything but a localized situation so far," he said. "That doesn't mean that we've ruled out anything else, because we're collecting material from across the country."

He said a few bottles from the same lots as the two that were tainted have been turned over to the FDA but nothing unusual has been found. The agency has checked more than 100,000 of the red and white capsules without finding any more that have been poisoned, he said.

Burke challenged Westchester District Attorney Carl Vergari's belief that the pills were poisoned at the plants where they were manufactured.

Vergari has said FBI tests showed tamper-resistant seals on the bottles were not broken after they left the factories, one in Pennsylvania and one in Puerto Rico.

Burke also rejected a theory that the pills were tainted at a distribution center, also in Pennsylvania, where both bottles were handled last summer in the space of two weeks.

A tamperer at the distribution center would have had to penetrate "an awful lot of material" in which the capsules were packed, then ensure they were sent through A&P and Woolworth's distribution centers and ultimately arrive at two stores less than two blocks apart, he said.

newspaper gave no additional details, and authorities said they were checking the report.

Wang said the oil slick, covering about 33,500 square feet, was spotted 9.6 miles east of Penghu in the general area here the plane would have flown.

He said five vessels and a cargo plane were searching the area for signs of the plane.

Taiwan's last major air crash occurred in 1981 when a Boeing 737 belonging to the Far Eastern Air Transport crashed, killing 110 people. That was the worst air mishap in Taiwan's history.

Crash Kills 2

KUWAIT (AP) — A French-made military helicopter crashed during a night training mission, killing the two pilots, the Kuwait Defense Ministry said today.

A ministry statement said the Gazelle model helicopter crashed late Sunday near the Ali Salem Air Base after its engine caught fire. It did not give the exact location of the base.

The pilots were identified as Maj. Othman Abdul-Hadi and Maj. Mohammed Al-Khalaf.

Shuttle Fund

HICKORY, N.C. (AP) — An amusement center in Hickory will donate all February proceeds from a game called Space Shuttle Pinball Adventure to a trust fund for children of the Space Shuttle astronauts.

Time-Out Family Amusement Centers Inc. will donate all that month's proceeds from 39 space shuttle pinball games it operates in 12 states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico. Time-Out operates two space shuttle games in North Carolina, including the one at the Station-Break Family Amusement Center in Hickory and another game at an amusement center in Cary.

Man Shoots Himself Following Incident

NEW YORK (AP) — A former patient angry about his treatment at a hospital held a security guard hostage at gunpoint in the facility's emergency room for about two hours today, then shot himself after releasing her, officials said.

The man, identified as Victor Rives, 43, of the Bronx, was put on life-support systems after being declared brain dead while in surgery at Lincoln Medical and Mental Health Center's emergency room, said police spokesman Lt. Ed LeSchack.

A hospital administrator, who hung up when asked her name, said Rives was in critical condition and on life support systems. "We don't have that status at our hospital," she said when asked if Rives was brain dead.

The man shot himself at 5:20 a.m., five minutes after releasing the guard, who was taken hostage around 3:15 a.m., LeSchack said.

The man, who was in his 40s, was looking for a surgeon who was on vacation when he entered the hospital, said hospital deputy director Ralph Alvarado.

"He's disgruntled about his medical treatment," said an officer on the scene who spoke on condition that he not be identified.

Police sealed off the area and a police negotiating team tried to talk to the man, Alvarado said.

The guard was in her 20s and has worked at the hospital about three years, Alvarado said. He refused to release further information on her at the request of police.

group of members been so poorly served by inexperienced, inflexible local union representatives," UFCW President William Wynn wrote in the report.

Local P-9's strategies of roving pickets and a national boycott of Hormel products have been condemned by Wynn and other international officials who still sanction the strike.

The report was issued the same day about 2,000 union members and supporters from across the country came to Austin to rally for the strikers.

"We want to have kind of a love feast for P-9, to show them that we stand with them all the way," said Larry Dunham, one of a few hundred Twin Cities union members who came to the southern Minnesota city in a caravan.

Carrying signs of unions from New York, California, South Dakota, Colorado, Michigan, Pennsylvania and other states, supporters joined strikers in a march through Austin before the rally.

"We do intend to push forward and get that contract and turn the situation around in the meatpacking industry, and certainly for labor as well," Local P-9 President Jim Guyette said at the rally.

"We need a congressional investigation into what's going on in the meatpacking industry," Guyette said. "We need to find out why the financial institutions are doing so well, why the corporations are doing so well, and why we have to continually give back."

Last week, Hormel rejected what the union called major revisions in its contract proposal. The company says it has reached its goal of 1,025 employees and expects to be back in full production within several weeks.

Strike Enters Its 7th Month

AUSTIN, Minn. (AP) — The strike by union meatpackers against Hormel entered its seventh month today amid criticism from the parent union and company reports that Hormel's flagship plant has reached its full complement of workers.

More than 100 members of Local P-9 of the United Food and Commercial Workers Union set up pickets outside the FDL Foods plant in Dubuque, Iowa, today and urged Iowa union members not to report for work. FDL has a marketing agreement with Hormel and has been the subject of previous roving picket campaigns from the Austin local.

An estimated 150 of FDL's 500 employees were reported to have honored the picket line.

Merle Evans, a spokesman for the Austin workers, said the striking union would stay at FDL until the plant shut down. The FDL workers, members of Local 150-A, were urged by their president, Mel Maas, to ignore the picket line since P-9's roving pickets were not sanctioned by the international union.

On Saturday, Local P-9's parent union issued a report officials said was intended to spell out "myths and facts" of the dispute with the Geo. A. Hormel & Co.

"Never in my experience as a union representative has a better

Race Plagued By Cautions

Bodine Avoids Crashes, Takes 1st Daytona Win

By DICK BRINSTER
AP Sports Writer

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Kathy Bodine leaned into the car and embraced her husband, Geoff, for the better part of a minute, sharing considerably more than the thrill of winning the world's most important stock car race.

"It wasn't the world's longest kiss," Bodine said in explaining the scene in Victory Lane following Sunday's Daytona 500. "Kathy and I were recapping all the hard times."

On Sunday, before a national television audience, the 36-year-old driver from upstate New York was the beneficiary as fate slew the dragons one by one.

Defending champion Bill Elliott crashed along with four-time winner Cale Yarborough and former champion Buddy Baker. So did seven-time champion Richard Petty.

Neil Bonnett's transmission deserted him.

Darrell Waltrip's netting fell down. Terry Labonte got caught in traffic.

Dale Earnhardt ran out of gas.

"We were lucky to win the race," said Gary Nelson, Bodine's crew chief.

Bodine, who said the formative years of his career forced long and painful separations from his wife and two children, was neither apologizing nor gloating over a victory built largely on attrition. Only 19 of the 42 starters finished the crash-filled race.

Bodine, who won a record $192,715 from a record $1.4 million purse, was happy to have weathered the "rough financial times." But the support of his wife, he said, was always what kept him going.

That was literally the truth Sunday, because she was working in his pits figuring the team's gas mileage. Bodine's last serious challenger, Earnhardt, lost because the crew "made a bad call" on fuel that resulted in a stall and subsequent engine failure three laps from the end that relegated him to 14th place.

"We had enough for another lap," Kathy Bodine said.

She was right. A half-gallon remained in the tank of the Chevrolet Monte Carlo after 200 laps of the 2.5-mile Daytona International Speedway, negotiated at an average speed of 148.124 mph.

The race came down to Bodine against Earnhardt, winner of three preliminary events this week, after an accident in the treacherous fourth turn on lap 116 delayed, disabled or destroyed the cars of all the other remaining serious contenders.

Among them was Elliott, whose Ford Thunderbird — sitting on the pole after qualifying at 205.039 mph — surprisingly had run off the pace.

"It didn't run worth a darn after the accident," said Elliott, who finished 13th. "But Bodine and Earnhardt blew me away anyway."

Elliott won 11 superspeedway races last year, some with embarrassing ease. This year, the sanctioning body, NASCAR, approved a new line of sleek General Motors cars in hopes of closing the gap.

It worked. Chevrolets, Oldsmobiles and Pontiacs took the top 10 spots.

Perhaps the most dominant of the GM cars was the Chevrolet of Bonnett, who led for 41 laps before spending 16 in the pits with a broken transmission. He settled for 32nd position.

"The wind blew the window net right into the cockpit," said Waltrip, the defending Winston Cup points champion, who finished third in the race for the third straight year in a Chevrolet. "That cost me a lap, and I had to run hard just to get it back."

Labonte, who wound up second in an Oldsmobile, 11.26 seconds back in a race slowed eight times for 46 laps, had problems when the final restart came on lap 131.

"I got caught at the end of the field, and had to work my way through all that traffic," he said.

"It's a shame," said Baker, who finished 26th after cutting a tire in the 10-car crash on lap 116. "We were passing everyone on the bottom (of the track), like Earnhardt. We should have won the race."

The only injury reported in the race was to Petty, who suffered a dislocated left shoulder when he crashed on the 63rd lap. He finished 36th.

Twenty-two-year-old Bobby Hillin Jr., driving a Chevrolet, finished fourth as the only other driver on the lead lap.

Benny Parsons, a lap back in fifth, had the best finish among former Daytona champions. A.J. Foyt was 29th and Bobby Allison last.

Twice in the last week Bodine battled Earnhardt to the wire, with Bodine second-best each time — once in a qualifying race, the other in a sportsman event.

MULTIPLE CRASH — Lake Speed, 75, along with Joe Ruttman, 26, and Harry Gant, 33, are involved in a multiple crash on turn four during Sunday's Daytona 500. No drivers were seriously injured in the mishap. (AP Laserphoto)

Elliott Finishes Lucky 13th

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — It was an odd sight, Bill Elliott's battered, abused Ford Thunderbird limping to a 13th-place finish in the Daytona 500.

After all, this was "Awesome Bill from Dawsonville," the Georgia boy who virtually owned NASCAR's superspeedways in 1985.

But instead of taking a glorious victory lap as he did a year ago after winning the race by the enormous margin of 39 seconds, Elliott finished Sunday by pushing the car of fellow sufferer Dale Earnhardt slowly back to pit road from the backstretch.

Despite a new, more aerodynamic generation of General Motors cars that were expected to challenge the dominance of Elliott's Ford this year, the drawing red-haired driver still was the heavy favorite to repeat Sunday as champion of stock car racing's most prestigious event.

Despite the challenge of the GM cars, Elliott had won the pole position with a fast lap of 205.039 mph. Then he won one of the 125-mile qualifying races on Daytona International Speedway's 2.5-mile tri-oval.

Despite those performances, there were many people who believed that Elliott was sandbagging — holding back to keep people from seeing just how strong a hand he held.

A year ago, the 30-year-old driver was often too eager to show his power. Twice during the year, NASCAR made rule changes that were thinly disguised efforts to slow Elliott down.

The changes didn't work very well, because he won 11 poles, 11 races and $2.4 million while setting a number of speed records. But Elliott, who still was considered the man to beat, was not showing his power as clearly this year.

"One of the hard lessons Bill Elliott had to learn last year as a youngster is that if you look good and you're not certain teams, you fall under a lot of scrutiny," said 1983 Winston Cup champion Bobby Allison, who has had his periods of dominance as well.

Allison didn't go so far as to say that Elliott was sandbagging prior to Sunday's race, but he did say, "One of the few genuine people we've got left (in NASCAR racing) is Bill Elliott. But he's learning how to avoid some of the painful things that can happen. I think he's got everybody covered."

Now nobody will ever know exactly how good Elliott could have been in the 28th Daytona 500.

Devils Whip Irish 75-74

Body Shots Can't Score KO On Duke

By RICK SCOPPE
Associated Press Writer

Second-ranked Duke took plenty of body shots from No. 14 Notre Dame and No. 17 North Carolina State, but neither could knock out the Blue Devils — thanks to Johnny Dawkins.

Dawkins hit a pair of free throws with two seconds left Saturday as the Blue Devils edged N.C. State 72-70 and then blocked a last-second jumper by David Rivers to preserve a 75-74 victory over Notre Dame on Sunday.

"To come back after our game ... (Saturday) night is like a heavyweight boxer just going for the last few rounds," Coach Mike Krzyzewski said after Duke ran its record to 25-2.

No other Atlantic Coast Conference teams played Sunday. On Saturday, No. 5 Georgia Tech defeated Virginia 62-55 and Clemson downed Maryland 70-60, while Wake Forest lost to North Carolina-Charlotte 62-61.

In action tonight, Clemson hosts Furman, and Maryland entertains Maryland-Eastern Shore.

Krzyzewski said Dawkins did "a great job handling our club" when forced to play point guard for Tommy Amaker, who picked up his fourth foul with 18:44 to go and fouled out with 4:23 left.

"He's just done such a great job whatever role we put him in," he said. "His handling of our team while still guarding Rivers... was just great."

Dawkins scored 18 points and grabbed a game-high eight rebounds, but it was his defense that carried Duke to its ninth straight victory and its 12th consecutive triumph at home without a loss this season.

"Rivers was penetrating. I cut him off. He went up before me, but I went up for the block and, fortunately, I got it," he said.

Rivers said he "wasn't surprised" that Dawkins blocked his 15-foot jump shot from the right of the foul line.

"He definitely got a part of the ball, but there was contact," Rivers said. "But you're not going to get those foul calls down the stretch."

Duke led 73-65 with 2:16 remaining, but Notre Dame — helped by two missed one-and-one opportunities by the Blue Devils — rallied to cut the lead to one on a 3-point play by Jim Dolan with 29 seconds left.

Billy King, a 50 percent free-throw shooter, then missed the front end of a one-and-one with 13 seconds left, giving the Fighting Irish their last shot.

Duke stretched a 37-30 halftime lead to 51-41 with 14:27 left, but Notre Dame, 17-5, cut the lead to four several times before a 9-2 run in the final 1:44 pulled the Irish within one.

Dawkins was fouled by Nate McMillan after Henderson's jumper tied it at 70-70 with 1:14 left.

Chris Washburn, who scored 16 points, missed a short jumper in the lane with 35 seconds left as the Wolfpack fell to 17-8 and 6-5 after leading by as many as 11 in the first 20 minutes and 34-30 at the half.

McMillan said he "didn't touch"

Dawkins. But Dawkins said he was hit on the elbow on the "deperation shot" from the left corner.

"I was in the wrong place at the right time," Dawkins said. "I should have been on the other side of the court."

Coach Jim Valvano said losing the way his team did was "draining."

"That was a helluva call with two seconds left," Valvano said. "I'll have to see the film on the Dawkins foul."

Walker Could Join Cowboys

DALLAS (AP) — If the United States Football League announces on Wednesday a delay of its fall season, Herschel Walker could join the Dallas Cowboys this season, his agent said.

"Herschel will be playing this fall, either for the (New Jersey) Generals or the Cowboys. I can't get into specifics about his contract, but he is not going to wait for the USFL if they don't play this year," agent Peter Johnson told the Dallas Morning News on Sunday.

USFL owners are meeting Wednesday in New York, and one owner, Baltimore's Myles Tannenbaum, has suggested the league suspend play until the resolution of the USFL's $1.32 billion lawsuit against the National Football League, which would preclude the USFL's being ready for a fall 1986 season.

Celtics-Lakers Rivalry Heats Up NBA Action

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Basketball Writer
It's February, but it looked like June.

Sunday's Celtics-Lakers game, reminiscent of the last two NBA championship series, had three shoving matches in the second quarter before the two teams settled down and Boston won 105-99 to sweep the two-game regular-season matchups.

When it was over, both sides were looking ahead to another possible meeting this spring.

"This means nothing more than just another Lakers-Celtics game," Celtics Coach K.C. Jones said. "Sure, it's special, it's a rivalry since the '60's, but it's just the same as before, there's no carryover to the playoffs."

"Boston made the plays when they had to," the Lakers' Pat Riley said. "I'm sure they feel good about themselves with their two wins. But the playoffs are a long way off."

"We are 0-2 against Boston and I'm sure they think they are the better team," said James Worthy, who scored 35 points for the Lakers.

Elsewhere in the NBA, it was Atlanta 110, Portland 101; San Antonio 113, Sacramento 94; and Dallas 120, Chicago 114.

Midway through the second period,

Lakers guard Byron Scott had to be restrained after receiving a technical for throwing the ball at Boston's Jerry Sichting. Less than a minute later, another shoving match started when Greg Kite of the Celtics fouled Michael Cooper from behind.

Kite also got tempers flaring less than a minute before halftime when he knocked Kareem Abdul-Jabbar to the floor with another foul.

But in the second half, Dennis Johnson keyed a 13-2 streak that gave Boston its biggest lead at 71-59, and the Celtics held the advantage despite a Los Angeles rally at the end.

Dennis Johnson scored 23 points and Larry Bird added 22 points, 18 rebounds and seven assists for Boston, but the key to the game was three Boston reserves who had good performances.

Center Bill Walton had 10 points, seven rebounds and three assists filling in for Robert Parish, who was hampered by foul trouble.

Sichting had 11 points, nine of them in an eight-minute span in the second quarter to help the Celtics open a seven-point lead. And guard Rick Carlisle scored six of his 10 points and picked up a steal in a span of 2:42 early in the fourth quarter as Boston opened a 96-86 lead with 8:10 to play.

"It was a monumental team effort ... We got big lifts from Rick and Bill," Boston Coach K.C. Jones said. "Our bench now shows that it can do the job. It has been that way since Christmas. They now can control the ball and run the offense."

Los Angeles fought back to trail only 100-96 on a 15-foot jump shot by Scott with 3:53 to play. The Lakers then missed seven consecutive shots in the final minute.

The victory was the 15th in 16 games for the Celtics, who have won 41 of 50 games this season, best in the NBA. The Lakers are 39-13. Mavericks 120, Bulls 114

Rolando Blackman scored 13 of his 28 points in the fourth quarter, including seven points in the final 2:53, to lead Dallas over Chicago.

The Bulls trailed 101-93 midway through the fourth quarter, but Charles Oakley scored 11 straight Chicago points and George Gervin hit a jumper to cut the deficit to 107-106. But Blackman started his late streak with a basket to start an 8-2 run that clinched the victory.

Oakley had 28 points and 15 rebounds and George Gervin added 24 points for Chicago, which has lost six straight games. The Mavericks have won nine of 11.

Hawks 110, Trail Blazers 101
Atlanta beat Portland behind solid performances from forwards Cliff Levingston and Kevin Willis in the absence of all-star Dominique Wilkins.

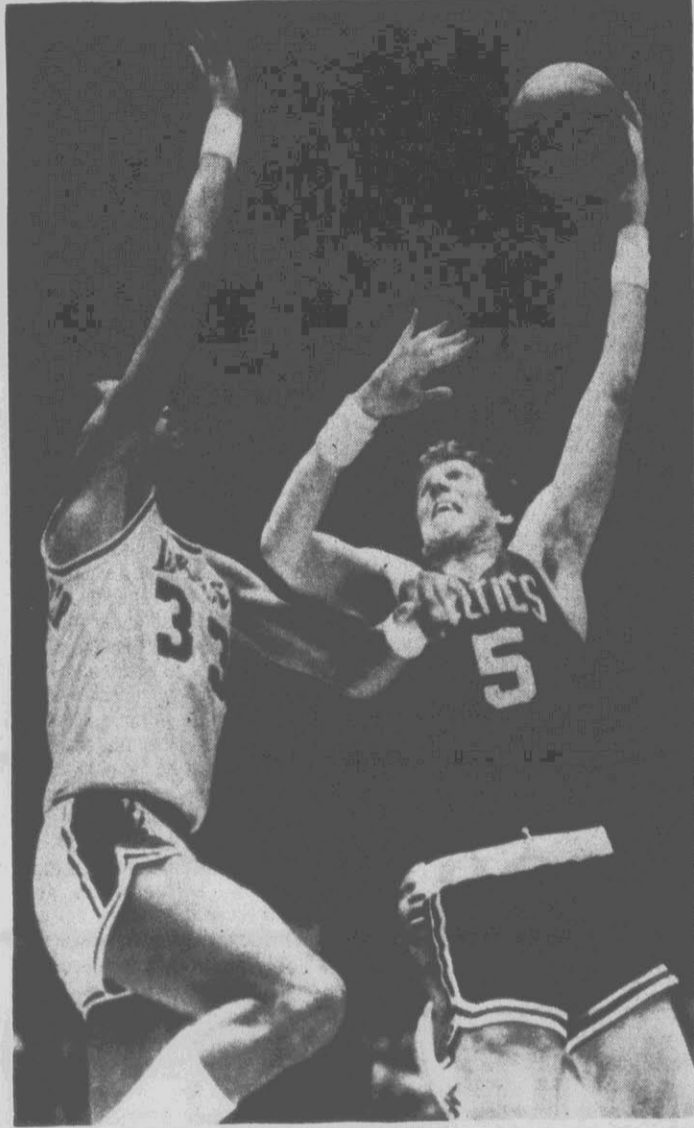

Levingston had 25 points and Willis 21 and both had 11 rebounds against the Trail Blazers, who lost their sixth straight game. A 10-2 streak in the third period gave the Hawks a 62-53 lead, and Portland got no closer than seven the rest of the way.

Kiki Vandeweghe led the Trail Blazers with 21 points. Spurs 113, Kings 94

Sacramento trimmed most of a 22-point deficit before succumbing to San Antonio.

The Spurs bench, led by Alfredrick Hughes and Jeff Lamp, built a 49-27 lead in the second quarter, and San Antonio still had a 17-point bulge at halftime. The Kings cut the deficit to 90-84 early in the fourth quarter before Steve Johnson, who scored 10 of his 15 points in the final period, led a rally that rebuilt San Antonio's advantage to 101-88 with 4:19 left.

Lamp led the Spurs with 16 points, while Larry Drew paced Sacramento with 18.

Retains Lightweight Title

Bramble Stops Crawley In 13

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Livingstone Bramble said he began boxing after his corner told him to go out and win the last three rounds of his World Boxing Association lightweight championship defense against Tyrone Crawley.

Less than a round later, Bramble stopped the challenger at 2:57 in the 13th round to retain the title and his hopes for an eventual unification match with World Boxing Council champion Hector "Macho" Comacho.

Bramble spent the first dozen rounds of the fight sapping Crawley's stamina with devastating body punches.

"In the 11th or 12th round, I wasn't even breathing hard," the champion said. "I knew then the fight was going to end in a knockout."

At 2:25 of the 13th, he caught Crawley with a short right-left combination to the jaw and followed with a flurry to the head that sent the weakened challenger tumbling to the floor.

"I don't know exactly what I hit him with. It happened so sudden. But I knew he was definitely in deep waters," Bramble said.

Crawley staggered to his feet.

wanted to continue fighting."

But as he lurched back into the ring, Crawley ran into the referee and dropped to the canvas. That's when Curtis stopped the fight.

Referee Joey Curtis said, "He gave me enough information that he still Bramble's victory came despite an injury to his left hand, which occurred when he left glove open while snapping a jab in the 10th or 11th round.

It was first thought that Bramble had broken the middle finger, but he said later that it was only a sprain. "It's OK. I'll be back in the gym in a week or two."

Bramble said he would continue training, probably for a 10-round fight later this year. Eventually, he said he wants to resolve the title question with Comacho.

"Right now ... I am without doubt the true lightweight champion of the world," he said.

Bramble demonstrated his championship skills Sunday, combining the brutal body attack with artful dodging that left most of Crawley's punches hanging in midair.

"I was slipping a lot of punches," Bramble said. "You got to move your head out of the way."

Lipton Tennis Quarterfinals

BOCA RATON, Fla. (AP) — A few big names such as reigning Wimbledon champion Boris Becker have fallen by the wayside, but for the most part, the matches went according to form in the first week of the $1.8 million Lipton International Players Championships tennis tournament.

The unseeded surprises have been

MATS WILANDER

Milan Srejber of Czechoslovakia, who ousted Becker in the third round, on the men's side and Terry Phelps and Dianne Fromholtz Balestrat on the women's side. Phelps and Balestrat meet today for the final spot in the women's quarterfinals, finishing a match suspended because of rain Sunday night with Phelps leading 2-1 in the first set.

Six of the eight berths in the men's quarterfinals also will be on the line today.

Top-seeded Ivan Lendl, a third-round winner over Greg Holmes on Sunday, heads the list of survivors seeking fourth-round victories. No.3 Jimmy Connors, No.5 Stefan Edberg, No.6 Yannick Noah and No.10 Joakim Nystrom are among the others who hope to join Sunday winners Sweden's Mats Wilander and Srejber in the quarters.

Lendl faces Jimmy Arias; Connors takes on Thierry Tulasne of France, and Edberg meets Marty Davis. Noah opposes Sweden's Jan Gunnarsson in a match originally scheduled for Sunday night.

The rest of the schedule includes Sweden's Nystrom against Pablo Arraya of Peru as well as a fourth-round match between South Africa's Michael Robertson and France's Guy Forget.

Seven spots in the women's quarterfinals were filled Sunday when top-seeded Chris Evert Lloyd defeated Kathy Jordan 7-5, 6-2. Second-seeded Steffi Graf of West Germany; No.6 Zina Garrison; No.7 Helena Sukova of Czechoslovakia and No.9 Kathy Rinaldi also won.

Two top 10 women weren't as fortunate. No. 14 Barbara Potter downed the fourth-seeded Manuela Maleeva 6-2, 2-6, 7-5, and Sukova dumped No. 10 Catarina Lindqvist of Sweden 6-1, 6-3. Lendl, playing with a sore right ring finger, struggled before eliminating Holmes 6-4, 7-6, while Lloyd's performance was streaky during a 7-5, 6-2 triumph over Jordan.

"I suspect it's from mis-hitting the ball and the racket turning in my hand," Lendl said of the injury. "It happened before the tournament, went away, and came back and got infected."

"I worried about it, but said I shouldn't get frustrated. There's nothing I can do about it."

Lloyd, who has yet to lose a set in 1986, broke Jordan three times in the first set, with the last one giving her a 6-5 advantage that turned the match around.

"The first set could have gone either way. After I won it, she may have been a little disappointed and my confidence picked up," said Lloyd.

"It's very disappointing, but I thought I was hanging in there in the second set," Jordan said. "But when she gets a lead, she can sense the kill and goes for it."

Lendl held serve to force a tie-breaker he won 7-2 to finish the match.

JOY JUMP — Corey Pavin shows his pleasure after sinking his putt on the 18th hole Sunday and to end the Hawaiian Open at 16 under par. Pavin won the tournament by two shots over Paul Azinger. (AP Laserphoto)

Pavin Cards 66 For PGA Victory

HONOLULU (AP) — Corey Pavin knew he had his work cut out for him.

"It's a hard thing to do, start the day three shots behind Tom Watson and know he's playing well. I knew I would have to get some pressure on him early."

And Pavin did just that. Despite severe kona winds, Pavin played the front side in 31, the applied the clincher with a picture-perfect approach that set up an eagle and destroyed Watson's comeback hopes in the $500,000 Hawaiian Open Golf Tournament on Sunday.

Pavin won it with a closing round of 66 over the wind-raked Waialae Country Club course and a 272 total, 16 shots under par.

"Under the conditions, the wind and the pressure, it was probably the best round I've ever played," said Pavin, 26, who picked up $90,000 for his third victory in as many years on the PGA Tour.

The slightly built Pavin used some long-range putting — three birdies from 20 feet or more — as the key to his 5-under-par effort over the front that wrested the lead from the deeply frustrated Watson.

Then he applied the clincher with a 5-iron second shot on the par-5 13th.

"A very gratifying shot, my best shot of the day," he said. "I played it into the wind and let the wind blow it back to the hole. It came off just the way I pictured it," Pavin said.

The ball rode the wind to within two feet of the flag and Pavin tapped it in for an eagle-3 and a three-shot lead.

Watson, a five-time British Open champion who was attempting to break a non-winning string that stretches back to the summer of 1984, was unable to respond. Instead, he backed away. He made bogey on three of the last five holes and drifted back into a tie for third.

Paul Azinger, who had a chance to win in San Diego a week earlier, came on with a 70 and took second at 274, 14 under par, a performance that delighted him.

"I'll put it in my memory book," he said.

Watson, quite obviously, will not. From the lead, with the tournament in his hands, he struggled to a closing 73 and was tied at 276 with Masters champion Bernhard Langer of West Germany. Langer moved up with a final round 68.

The group at 277, 11 under par but never really in the title hunt, included PGA champion Hubert Green, Andy Dillard and Dave Ogren. Ogren had a closing 67, Dillard 68 and Green 70.

Schultz Gets Medal For Eighth Place State Win

CHARLOTTE — Beth Schultz of the Greensboro Gymnastics Club received a medal for her eighth place finish on the balance beam in the North Carolina Class 3-C and 4 State Championships held at Weyandt's

Jewish Comic Is Hot Item At Box Offices In France

BY MARILYN AUGUST
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — Michel Boujenah pushed aside a plate of couscous and waved his hands in disgust.

"I think the ending is too realistic and logical, but since you're the director, I'll do it your way," the short, round-faced actor told Jacques Otmesguine on the set of his latest film. "I'll even play Mary Poppins in 'The Magnificent Seven,' if that's what you want."

Then his tone softened. "I'm not criticizing you. Think of us as two rabbis who can't agree."

The exchange was typical of the Tunisian-born Jewish comic who is France's latest box office hit.

Boujenah, 33, stars in "Trois Hommes et Un Couffin" ("3 Men and a Cradle"), a tender film critics call the best comedy in years. It has been nominated for an Academy Award in the foreign language category.

He's been a stage actor for 15 years. His popularity was cemented by the hit, "Les Magnifiques" ("The Magnificent Ones"), his one-man comedy show about a North African Jewish family which played to enthusiastic sell-out crowds and was later shown on prime-time French TV.

Since then he has starred in "Voyage a Paimpol" ("Voyage to Paimpol"), the story of a working girl who leaves her husband to find herself, and "La Derniere Image" ("The Last Image") an account of village life in the Algerian mountains in the 1940s.

He currently is filming "Prunelles Blues" ("Eyeball Blues") about a loser who turns into a hero.

Critics first ignored "3 Men and a Cradle," the low-budget comedy about three bachelors suddenly faced with the trials and tribulations of caring for a six-month-old baby. However, word spread fast, and critics later said Boujenah stole the show.

"It was a double challenge working with a baby," Boujenah said during a recent interview in the North African-style restaurant where "Eyeball Blues" was being filmed.

"First, you have to be a good actor — the baby doesn't let you be bad," he said. "Secondly, you have to be completely yourself, otherwise the baby doesn't respond to you. But you also have to play your role."

"You have to concentrate, but you also have to be tender and loving — it involves deep feelings, which an actor should draw from for any role."

In a country where moviegoers associate beauty with Catherine Deneuve's stunning blond looks and Alain Delon's finely chiseled features, Boujenah's meteoric rise is remarkable.

The son of a doctor and one of four boys, the entertainer was 11 years old when the family immigrated to France in 1963 along with thousands of other North African Jews.

"When I was 18, my drama teachers told me I was too fat, my voice was too nasal and my French too accented to ever be a success," he recalled.

But Boujenah has transformed his so-called handicaps into assets. In "The Magnificent Ones," which runs 90 minutes non-stop, he struts about the stage turning himself into 14 members of the Boujou family and friends, each with a separate accent.

Boujenah calls his accent "the main tool of my trade," and his characters' speech habits reflect the centuries which Sephardic Jews — those of Spanish origin — spent cohabitating with Arabs.

One of his characters, 18-year-old Victor, wants to be an actor, but his father warns: "You're such a character, how can you be an actor?"

"That line is important because it represents how immigrants are perceived by outsiders: They are seen as characters, as types, not as themselves," said Boujenah.

The father's question sums up Boujenah's own evolution. He remains true to his roots, yet he surpasses them.

"The father can't imagine his son finding his identity in acting, or using his 'character' as a way of breathing life into others, which is what I do," he said. "My father is not the father in my show, but I draw from my own sentiments and feelings, and I represent them in characters like the father and son."

DJ's King Joke Spurs Protests

By DIANE DUSTON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — An attempt at Martin Luther King Jr. Day humor by a local disc jockey known for his insults is spurring advertising cancellations and protests by black students.

Doug Tracht, 35, known as "The Greaseman" on WWDC-FM's morning show, joked Jan. 20 that if the assassination of one black leader was cause for a day off, then killing four more would mean a whole week off.

"We feel that it has gone too far," said one advertiser, Charles Cowdrey.

Cowdrey, who is vice president and general manager of WDCA-TV, Channel 20, in Washington, said last week that his television station is canceling all advertising on the radio station.

"We felt his comments in general are not the kind (we would broadcast)" said Cowdrey. He said advertising on the station amounts to about $600 a spot.

Earlier, Peoples Drug Stores dropped its ads from the Greaseman show, but decided to continue advertising on other WWDC programs.

Joseph Pollard, vice president of advertising and public relations for Peoples, said his company had been receiving complaints regularly about the show, but the objections increased after the Jan. 20 remark.

Tracht, whose freewheeling, improvisational style often deals with racial, ethnic and sexual subjects, apologized for the wisecrack the same day on the air after his general manager called him at home.

"I told him to make a U-turn and come back to apologize," Goff Lebar, president and general manager said. Tracht apologized again Feb. 7 on WRC-TV in a taped response to a WRC-TV editorial. The response was broadcast three times.

"Every entertainer and satirist has at one time or another said something that he or she wishes he could take back," Tracht's said in his response. "My attempted humor on Martin Luther King Day was reprehensible, and I'm glad I have the chance to look you in the eye and say that I'm sorry."

The disc jockey did not return several calls from a reporter.

WWDC was not commenting on the matter, said a station official who did not want to be named.

Members of Black United Youth at Howard University have picketed the radio station the last two Mondays and said they would be out again today.

"We want him fired or to resign," said Stephen Jackson, an organizer of the picketing, which has attracted 150 to 200 students each time.

He said the students also are asking advertisers to pressure for Tracht's dismissal.

Jackson said his organization didn't know about the offending remark until they read an article about it. "It's definitely not a station we listen to," he said.

According to Arbitron ratings, Tracht's listeners number about 63,000, putting him second in the Washington morning radio market.

His audience is generally believed to be mostly white males over 18 years old.

J. William Graff, publisher of The Business Review weekly, said he would be among those picketing today.

"He (Tracht) is just the little guy. I'm concerned about the people who are making money off his comments," Graff said.

According to Graff, some of the show's advertisers contacted by his publication said they were not doing anything, some said they were evaluating the matter and one said it was the station's problem.

Graff said the station told him the effects of the campaign against Tracht have been negligible.

Edythe Wise, chief of complaints at the Federal Communications Commission, said last week that about a dozen letters and between 25 and 30 phone calls had been received complaining about the Martin Luther King Day remark.

"It's larger than usual about a specific incident," she said. "In this case, it doesn't violate any statute. There is no action the commission can take other than informational."

"We explain to people the value of contacting the station and making their views known," she said.

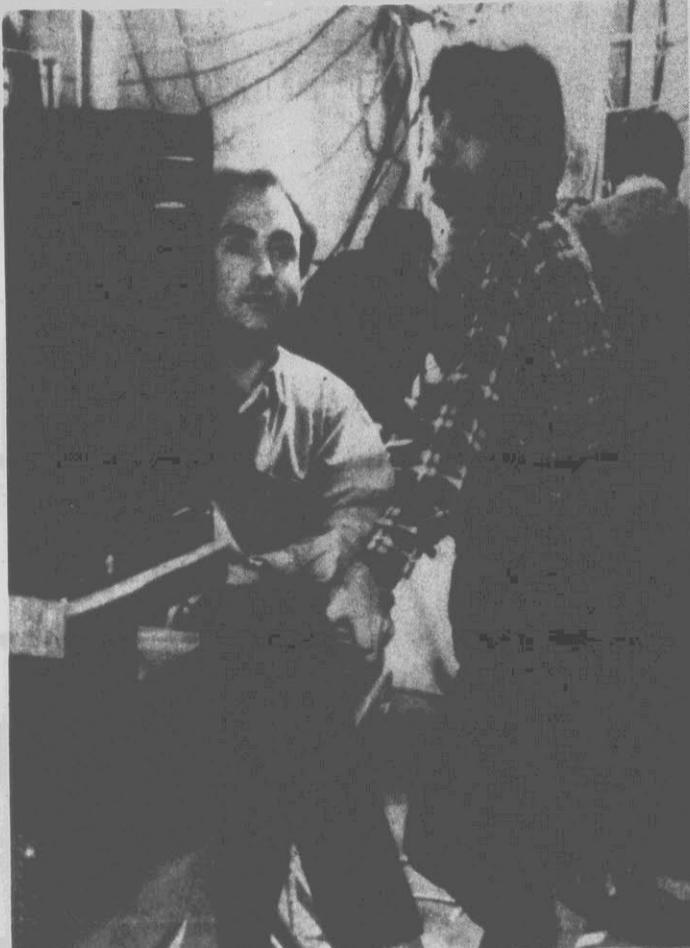

High Level Conflict

NEW YORK (AP) — Patti Davis says the quickest way to get her to do something "is tell me not to do it," which has caused some conflict with her parents, President and Mrs. Reagan.

Ms. Davis, 33, who took her mother's maiden name, also says in the Feb. 24 issue of People magazine that she wanted to be poor as a child.

"At some point when I was growing up, I wanted to be poor because I thought poor people were more real," she said.

Ms. Davis, married to yoga instructor Paul Grilley, 27, said it was a catharsis to write "Home Front," the "candidly autobiographical" novel that talks about conflicts between the fictional daughter of a California governor and her parents.

OFF STAGE — Rock star Mick Jagger of "The Rolling Stones," right, watches a television monitor back stage on the set of NBC's "Saturday Night Live" with the show's executive producer Lorne Michaels in New York Saturday night. Del. Visitation Law Changed

By THERESA HUMPHREY
Associated Press Writer
DOVER, Del. (AP) — This state's law allowing grandparents to petition courts for visitation rights to grandchildren has been used as a model across the nation with about 14 states passing similar measures.
But Delaware's law changed last week to give natural or adoptive parents, who are married and living together, the right to deny grandparents permission to visit their grandchildren.

The new law, which took effect at midnight Feb. 11, was the result of legislation introduced by Sen. Thurman Adams at the request of a constituent in a case where grandparent visitation was ordered over the objections of the parents.

Gov. Michael Castle allowed the legislation to become law without his signature because he agreed with its intent, said Michael Ratchford, Castle's legislative lobbyist. He said Family Court was in favor of the new law because it gives judges guidelines.
But Ratchford said the administration was unaware the old law was a model.

"What we will be proposing is another piece of legislation that will give the courts even more guidance on when to give visitation rights. Grandparents will have to show clear and convincing evidence that it is in the best interest of the children," he said.
Adams was out of town over the weekend and could not be reached for comment.
Lucile Sumpter, who founded Grandparents-Children's Rights Inc., a clearinghouse on grandparent visitation rights, along with her husband Lee, said she was appalled when she heard the Delaware law had been changed.

She said the key to Delaware's law was the right for grandparents to petition, regardless of the marital status of the parents or who had custody of the grandchildren.
"They have set this whole thing back forever," Mrs. Sumpter said in a telephone interview from her home in Haslett, Mich.
She said the old law was needed, particularly in cases where child abuse was suspected.
"Ninety percent of the children that are being abused in our nation are being abused in their homes ... Abusive parents are being protected by their marital status," she said.
Ellen S. Meyer, a Wilmington attorney and a member of a statewide grandparents rights task force that was established by the state senate, said opposition to the old law stemmed from belief that there was too much governmental intrusion into family privacy.

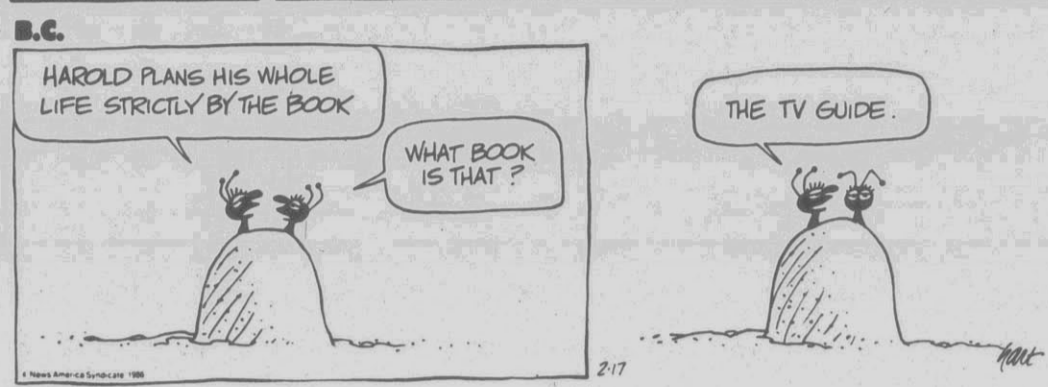

She said grandparents will have to be "much more creative" to get visitation under the new law through the courts by citing abuse, neglect or harm to grandchildren by lack of contact with grandparents.
"It has to be a greater wrong. Under the old law, you could say it was just a denial of visitation," Ms. Meyer said.
She and Ratchford said there are few cases of grandparents petitioning for visitation rights.
But Ms. Meyer added, "A family that denies visitation of grandparents with grandchildren is a family that's in trouble and it needs help."

Jars Of Baby Food Pulled From Shelves

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (AP) — Dozens of upstate New York supermarkets pulled Gerber baby food from shelves after two women in cities 30 miles apart complained of finding glass slivers in the jars, officials said.
Shoppers in this city about 18 miles north of Albany and in Gloversville, 30 miles northwest, reported the incidents to stores, but police said they had not been told of the incidents.
Gerber Food Co. spokesman John Whitlock attributed the supermarkets' quick removal of the products to public concern over the discovery of cyanide-contaminated capsules last week in two containers of Tylenol in Westchester County just north of New York City.
He said Gerber does not suspect tampering, but could not explain how glass may have gotten into the baby food.
Sue Ann Ritchko, vice president of consumer services for the Price Chopper supermarket chain, said glass was reported last week in a jar of strained peaches bought at a store here.
The jar was sent to Gerber headquarters in Fremont, Mich., for analysis, and a report on the tests was expected today, Ms. Ritchko said.
Price Chopper removed jars with the same code number from several dozen upstate stores, she said. The store has received no other complaints about Gerber.
In Gloversville, Sandra Prew reported to a local P&C supermarket Thursday that she had found a chunk of glass in a jar of Gerber peas bought by a friend.
That store removed several jars of Gerber baby food from the shelves after learning of the incident, said assistant store manager Jay Tilemann.
At least two Albany supermarkets belonging to different chains removed Gerber products from their shelves over the weekend.
Whitlock said Gerber found no sign of a problem in checking production records.
Slivers of glass could have lodged in the jars because of mishandling in shipping and storage or an accident in the consumer's home after the product had been opened, he said.

Saturday's Cryptoquip: THE BOYISH MITTEN MANUFACTURER SUCCESSFULLY USES A RULE OF THUMB.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: T equals P
The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, FEB. 18, 1986

YOUR DAILY Horoscope from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Until noon, conditions can occur that you do not understand, so don't make early morning decisions, but by early afternoon, situations have simmered down and you can see clearly.
ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Be quiet at home with family in the evening, after a day that has given you a fine opportunity to gain a fresh start.
TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Be sure to use your finest judgment in business during the daytime, and then spend time with people who can help you.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Until almost noon, you get good ideas on how to gain your personal wishes, so carry through with them.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) You finally figure out how to handle some troubling situation so state your decision and make it work.
LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) A good friend can be very helpful to you in some matter that is of importance to you. Gain the support of a charming person.
VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Get that idea working that can bring you more fame and fortune, and then handle personal affairs well.
LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A sudden inspirational idea can help you to gain personal aims, and later you can be very active in the outside world.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You have many good chances to make money today, so find the right outlets through which to express your talents better.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be sure to listen to the advice of a highly emotional friend since you can profit by it.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Get an early start at your work in the morning, and don't waste valuable time. This evening, get into new outlets.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You may be invited to do something that you like, so accept quickly and do dull routines later in the day.
PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Be ingenious at handling a problem at home in the morning, and later you can enjoy some pleasurable outlet.
IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be very energetic during early life and have difficulty in getting through school owing to the highly imaginative nature, but upon reaching maturity will change suddenly and become a solid citizen and have love of family and be very stable.

ANSWERS TO WEEKLY BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold.

♠AK95 ♥A6 ♦10932 ♣952

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♣ Pass

3 ♦ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—With our prime controls and excellent trump support, we would not be surprised if a slam were in the offing. Partner almost surely has a club control, so the ace of hearts is the key card. We would make an advance cue-bid of three hearts. Partner will get the picture of our hand when we support diamonds vigorously at our next turn.

Q.2—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold.

♠92 ♥K93 ♦Q52 ♣AJ1062

The bidding has proceeded:

East South West North
1 ♣ Pass 2 ♣ Dbie

Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Even at this vulnerability, partner must have a reasonable hand to force you to bid at the three-level. Therefore, we would not mind if you elected to leap to five clubs. However, we feel there is a good chance your best contract is four hearts, even on a 4-3 fit, since you can take a spade ruff in the short-trump hand. Therefore, we would content ourselves with a jump to four clubs.

Q.3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold.

♠9763 ♥5 ♦654 ♣AKQ2

The bidding has proceeded:

West North East South
1 ♥ 2 ♣ 4 ♥ ?

What action do you take?

A.—A double might work, but we think it's crazy to try to penalize the opposition when we have length in partner's suit. We would try four spades. True, that comes with no guarantee, but it certainly won't come to much grief and there should be play for the contract. Besides, it might force the opponents to five hearts, a contract we would be comfortable defending.

Q.4—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold.

♠843 ♥A9852 Q109 ♣103

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West
1 NT Pass 2 ♣ Pass

Pass 2 ♣ ?

What action do you take?

A.—You could have a near bust with nothing but a long suit for your response of two diamonds. Instead, you are near maximum for your bid. The way to tell partner of this is to double. He won't expect more than this from you, and he is not compelled to sit for the double if he thinks his hand is unsuitable.

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold.

♠Q93 ♥K1065 ♥A1032 ♣52

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West
Pass 2 ♣ Pass Pass

2 ♣ Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—You have a pretty good hand, but don't forget that partner passed originally. In view of that, we don't think you have enough to venture on. Don't punish partner for refusing to sell out to the opponents at too low a level.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠J982 ♥6 K1063 ♣AQ98

Your right-hand opponent opens the bidding with one heart. What action do you take?

A.—It is close whether you should double or pass, but we prefer the former even at this vulnerability. While you are not overly robust in terms of high cards, you have the perfect distribution. If you do not act now, by the time the auction gets back to you the level could be too high for you to have any margin of safety.

ROLLIN LAVON MOYE, PETITIONER FOR THE ADOPTION OF SHANE ARIE MOYE, AMINOR

NOTICE TO: PHILLIP DETRICK SIMMONS

Take notice that a pleading seeking relief against you has been filed in the above entitled special proceeding. The nature of the proceeding and the relief sought is:

A Petition filed by Rollin Lavon Moye to adopt Shane Arie Simmons was filed in the Office of the Clerk of Superior Court of Pitt County on October 16, 1974, and to secure a judicial determination and order that you have willfully abandoned your minor child, Shane Arie Simmons, who is under the age of eighteen years, and that such abandonment has existed for more than six months prior to the institution of the above action; the petitioner further requests that you consent for the adoption of said child be made unnecessary by reason of such abandonment and that you shall not be a necessary party to this proceeding.

You will further take notice that the undersigned will appear in the office of the Clerk of Superior Court of Pitt County, North Carolina at 10:00 o'clock A.M. on the 2nd day of April, 1986, to seek such relief and you are required to make defense to such pleading by such date, and upon your failure to do so, the undersigned will proceed to the Court for the relief sought.

This the 12th day of February, 1986.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

BEFORE THE N. C. BOARD OF AGRICULTURE

A public hearing will be held by the N. C. Board of Agriculture on March 18, 1986 at 10:00 a.m. in Room 359 of the Agriculture Building, 1 West Edenton Street, Raleigh, N. C. for the purpose of considering the adoption of the following proposed rule:

1. 2 NCAC 252 .0504, Avian Influenza (HSN2), as follows:

0504 AVIAN INFLUENZA (HSN2)
(a) The purpose of this Rule is to prevent the spread of Avian Influenza (HSN2) into North Carolina.

(b) Poultry, chicks, or eggs may be brought into North Carolina only under the following conditions:

(1) No poultry, chicks, or eggs from counties in which a confirmed diagnosis of AI (HSN2) has been made shall be admitted to North Carolina for a period ending six months after the elimination of every positive flock.

(2) Poultry, chicks, or eggs entering North Carolina from other counties in states with infested counties:

(A) shall be accompanied by a health certificate stating:

(i) the source of all hatching eggs;

(ii) that supply flocks have tested negative every two weeks;

(iii) That supply flocks records have been checked every two weeks for death loss and production drop; and

(B) shall be reported by the consignee within 48 hours to the State Veterinarian. Consignee shall submit at least a confirmed laboratory operated by the Veterinary Division of the North Carolina Department of Agriculture for testing whenever there has been a diagnosis of HSN2 anywhere in the United States within the previous six months.

(c) All other poultry, other than for slaughter, may be brought into North Carolina only under the following conditions:

(1) No live poultry will be admitted to North Carolina from counties in which a confirmed diagnosis of HSN2 has been made for a period of six months following the elimination of every positive flock.

(2) Poultry entering North Carolina from other counties in states with infested counties:

(A) shall be accompanied by a health certificate stating that the birds have tested negative for HSN2 in 10 days of shipment; and

(B) shall be reported by the consignee within 48 hours to the State Veterinarian whenever there is a diagnosis of HSN2 anywhere in the United States within the previous six months.

(d) Slaughter poultry from any state with a confirmed diagnosis of AI (HSN2) within the last six months may be imported only to North Carolina when the following conditions have been met:

(1) Birds have been tested negative for Avian Influenza within 10 days prior to entry.

(2) A certificate of veterinary inspection has been completed by the state vet of the state of origin or his designated representative for live poultry, shipment within five days of that shipment.

(e) Persons transporting live poultry shall comply with the following requirements for cleaning and disinfecting:

(1) No person, firm, or corporation shall use for transporting live poultry, any coop, crate, or other container that has been, or is being, previously used for live poultry, unless said coop, crate or other container has been thoroughly cleaned and properly disinfected. No person, firm, or corporation shall transport on the public highways of this state any empty coop, crate, or other container that has been, or is being, previously used for live poultry, except to transport such coop, crate, or other container to a designated point for cleaning and disinfecting.

(2) Any truck, trailer, or other conveyance used in transporting live poultry shall be thoroughly cleaned and disinfected after the hauling of each lot of live poultry.

002 Public Notices

(3) Disinfectants acceptable for use under this Regulation are limited to the chemicals approved in 9 CFR 71.10, 71.11, and 71.12.

(4) This Rule shall only apply to conveyance or containers that have been in AI infested counties.

Statutory Authority G.S. 106-307.5.

The proposed rule was adopted by the Board as a temporary rule on January 29, 1986 for a period of 120 days.

Interested persons may present statements either orally or in writing at the public hearing or in writing prior to the hearing by mail addressed to David S. Moore, Secretary to the Board of Agriculture, P.O. Box 27447, Raleigh, N.C. 27611.

The proposed effective date of this rule would be June 1, 1986.

Copies of the proposed rule may be obtained from the Secretary of the Board of Agriculture at the above address or by calling (919) 733-7125.

Duke Power Starts Drug Usage Tests

ANDERSON, S.C. (AP) — Duke Power Co. officials say they don't have an extensive problem with drug use among their employees, but they're starting screening tests as a precaution.

"It's better to take a stand on something because it's the right thing to do, rather than to wait to where there is a problem," said John Holland, Duke district manager in Anderson. "The result will be a healthier, safer and more productive work environment."

On June 1, Duke Power will begin the use of urinalysis to test prospective and current employees for drug usage.

People being considered for employment will be tested, as well as current employees in "sensitive" positions, such as nuclear power operators, technicians and bus drivers, Holland said.

Job applicants who fail the test will not be hired. Current employees who show drug or alcohol usage will be placed in a rehabilitation program and given a chance to solve their problems, Holland said.

"It's been only in the last four years that we have seen any significant interest on the part of industry," said Dr. Jerry McHan, chief of toxicology for Smith-Kline Bio-Science Laboratories in Atlanta, which will analyze the specimens sent in by Duke Power.

One other utility in South Carolina, South Carolina Electric & Gas Co., now screens some of its 4,000 employees for drug abuse, including its 500 nuclear power workers, according to corporate spokeswoman Becky McSwain.

But the practice is still relatively new to South Carolina. The state Commission on Alcohol and Drug Abuse does not even keep statistics on drug screening in the state.

Steven Bates, South Carolina director of the American Civil Liberties Union, says the test has limited value.

"The test is incapable of detecting whether someone is under the influence of drugs at the time of the test," Bates said. "The test doesn't tell you whether or not a person is high. All the test is capable of telling you is that maybe this person got high Saturday night two weeks ago."

McHan said the test is "an inefficient way to pick up drug abusers, but it's the best way we currently have."

"The difficulty with any type of urine drug screening is this: it will identify only those drugs that are in the individual's system at that point in time," McHan said. "It doesn't tell you when they took them, how much they took, but it does tell you they've been taken in the recent past."

National surveys of drug abuse indicate "a severe problem" in the United States, with businesses losing perhaps billions of dollars because of drug abuse each year, McHan said.

Holland said some of Duke's 20,000 employees in North Carolina and South Carolina inevitably will use drugs, which could impair their performance at work.

Insurance Availability Focus Of Legislative Short Session

RALEIGH (AP) — A legislative session this week will focus on insurance availability because it's less controversial than other issues surrounding high insurance costs, including proposed limits on the amount of awards in lawsuits, Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan says.

"Here was something that could be handled quickly, and the need was such that it certainly justified coming back for a couple days to do it," Jordan said.

Problems with the availability of liability insurance have prompted the General Assembly to return to Raleigh on Tuesday to consider emergency legislation drafted by Insurance Commissioner Jim Long's office.

Long said the problem first came to his attention at a briefing soon after he took office a year ago when advisers suggested he take out a liability policy for errors and omissions coverage.

Checks were made with insurance markets in New York and London. A price of $60,000, which Long said seemed a bit steep, was quoted. The Council of State made an emergency appropriation.

"We still couldn't get the coverage," Long said last week.

The problem simmered through much of last winter and spring, he said. By summer, Long was getting an increasing number of calls from businesses finding it impossible to get liability insurance coverage.

In September, the Insurance Commissioner's office started keeping a daily list of businesses and other organizations including local governments, hospitals and day care centers unable to locate the necessary insurance.

"The volume of phone calls was becoming so great, we couldn't handle it," Long said.

By mid-January, he became convinced the insurance industry was not going to act on its own, and his staff began working on proposals for a liability insurance pool that would have to be approved by a special legislative session.

Ken Harris, Martin's special adviser on insurance matters, said he met with Long for about two hours after he was appointed in December.

"I'd just come from New York and seen the effects," said Harris, a former state legislator and former Charlotte mayor. There, Gov. Mario Cuomo had called a special legislative session to deal with the liability insurance crisis.

"I was getting correspondence from all across the state once the appointment was made," Harris said. "You could easily see the flood of concern by municipalities and professionals, all kinds of businesses small and large."

He said he knew there would have to be special legislation. "I didn't know it would be this fast."

On Feb. 3, Long made his pitch for a special legislative session with the support of a legislative committee studying insurance problems. Martin, after meeting with other state officials over several days, issued the call for the special session.

Man Gets A New Heart

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A 53-year-old Charlotte man given three to six months to live without a new heart is recovering today after undergoing heart transplant surgery, doctors at Charlotte Memorial Hospital say.

"I hate to say it out loud, but everything went just as smooth as it could this time," said Dr. Harry Daugherty, lead surgeon during the four-hour operation Sunday.

Hospital spokeswoman Kay Braun said the man, whose identity is being withheld at the request of his family, received his new heart from a 25-year-old Kannapolis man who who was admitted to the hospital Saturday and pronounced brain dead at 3 a.m. Sunday from a head wound.

The operation was the third in Charlotte and the man was the city's second heart transplant recipient.

Five days ago Charlotte's first recipient, Sandra Collier, 31, of Forest City, was discharged from Charlotte Memorial.

Mrs. Collier received the first heart transplant on Jan. 6, but her new heart's right pumping chamber worked sluggishly. In a rare medical feat, hospital officials located a second heart donor about six hours after the first operation.

In less than 24 hours, surgeons performed a second, more successful transplant on Mrs. Collier.

THE Rook Look

AT GARMENT CARE,

Where's The Proof?

Consumers are often confused about garments labeled "stain resistant." Unfortunately, "stain resistant" does not mean that a fabric is "stain proof."

Textile mills often treat fabrics with finishes which can help repel water or oil. But these finishes, called "stain resistant" finishes, will not prevent a fabric from staining—it will merely prolong the amount of time it takes for a stain to set into the fibers of the material.

Stain resistant finishes are great. But don't expect them to be miracle workers. There are several things to watch for in helping your clothing maintain stain resistant finishes:

1. Don't allow stains to sit too long on the garment.
2. Avoid pressure and abrasion of a stained area. Such pressure will tend to force the stain into the fabric despite the stain resistant finish.
3. Avoid heat on the stained area. Heat will set a stain faster.
4. Rinse detergents from fabrics thoroughly. Detergent diminishes the effectiveness of stain resistant finishes. Please continue to rely on A CLEANER WORLD for your clothing and household fabrics. We understand value!

Referendum On Dump Is Debated

GREENSBORO (AP) — An environmentalist says a referendum on whether a radioactive waste dump should be allowed in the state would send Washington a message "loudly and clearly," but a U.S. Energy spokesman says the vote would carry little weight.

"The issue is not whether the people want one or not. In fact, it's pretty clear at this point nobody does," said Roger Gale, director of policy and outreach for the U.S. Department of Energy. "The issue on the table now is where in the country do we have the sites that are technically acceptable?"

But state officials and conservationists say the referendum should, and almost certainly will, be held May 6.

Last month, DOE designated two areas of North Carolina as possible nuclear repository sites — one northeast of Raleigh, the other northeast of Asheville. They are among 12 sites picked for further evaluation, including two in Virginia, one of which parallels the North Carolina border from Halifax to Danville.

The repository would be from 2,000 feet to 4,000 feet underground. Spent radioactive fuel rods from nuclear power generators would be taken down shafts and placed in extensive vaults. Those fuel rods remain radioactive for centuries.

Currently, more than 10,000 metric tons of spent fuel rods are being stored in deep-water pools at the nation's 98 nuclear generators. By the year 2,000, disposal space for about 50,000 metric tons will be needed, federal officials say. That is about the volume of a football field covered to a depth of 15 feet.

John Simmons, a spokesman for state Attorney General Lacy Thornburg who originally proposed the public referendum, said the General Assembly is almost certain to approve the referendum proposal during its special session, which begins Tuesday.

The issue would be presented to voters in the form of for or against "the location within North Carolina of a high-level radioactive waste repository," according to a bill drafted by Thornburg.

The vote would be certified by the state Board of Elections and sent to President Reagan and the Department of Energy.

"In fact," said Bill Holman, legislative lobbyist for the N.C. Conservation Council and the state chapter of the Sierra Club, "if the margin isn't something like 99 to 1, we may be in trouble."
