Congress To Tackle Budget, Farm Plans

By STEVEN KOMAROW
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress this week moves back into the trenches of the budget battle and the furrows of farm bills as it considers a wide range of legislation prompted in part by the new deficit-reduction law.

Before tackling President Reagan's fiscal 1987 budget, House and Senate leaders plan another scrap over a leftover from this past year's budget battle: a package of measures that includes offshore oil money, cigarette taxes and a new tobacco program.

The package would cut $21 billion from the deficits through fiscal 1988 compared with current law, according to the Congressional Budget Office. Those savings would make it easier for Congress to meet the guidelines of the Gramm-Rudman balanced-budget law, which limits next year's deficit to $144 billion.

But the White House Office of Management and Budget contends the savings are only about $12 billion and that the bill contains provisions that would be too costly in the long run. The administration has promised a veto unless the bill is changed.

The Republican-controlled Senate has been negotiating with the White House, but Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., said the measure would move ahead even without the president's approval. A previous attempt ended in a House-Senate stalemate in December, but lawmakers remain keenly interested in parts of the bill, including:

— The extension of the 16-cent-a-pack tax on cigarettes, which would drop to 8 cents later this month without new legislation. That would cost the treasury more than $1.5 billion a year.

— A new tobacco price support program in the bill drafted by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., to give tobacco companies control over tobacco production quotas. The bill also would write off up to $1.1 billion in tobacco loans, in the form of discounts to the companies for purchasing government tobacco stocks in the next five to eight years.

— A formula for dividing revenue from offshore oil leases. Nearly $6 billion has built up in an escrow account because of the dispute between some coastal states and the federal government over the formula. The Reagan administration opposes the formula in the bill as too generous to the states.

— New formulas for making Medicare payments to hospitals and doctors. The administration contends the changes are too costly.

— Sharp cutbacks in Small Business Administration loan programs. The bill would pare back the SBA and save more than $2 billion over three years, but the administration plans to continue fighting to abolish the agency.

The first round of cuts under the Gramm-Rudman bill, $11.7 billion, took effect Saturday. But the Department of Agriculture held back on cutting some programs as farm-state lawmakers prepared to battle anew this week for last-minute changes.

In a sometimes bitter floor debate, urban Democrats blocked a move by dairy interests to protect the price support level for milk products from Gramm-Rudman cuts. The Democrats, who opposed Gramm-Rudman, said farmers should be able to get out from under its ax any easier than those in jobs programs or public housing.

The dairy bill, also blocked in the Senate, would have maintained the price-support program through higher levies on dairy farmers.

The Agriculture Department has temporarily stopped dairy purchases and also delayed until Thursday the opening of the sign-up period for the 1986 wheat, food grains, cotton and rice programs.

Farmers had been scheduled to begin signing up today under a new conservation reserve program under which the government will pay farmers to retire their most erosion-prone land.

However, Congress was unable last week to clear a $5 billion infusion for the Commodity Credit Corp., which runs out of money Tuesday, and a package of other changes to commodities programs in the farm bill it passed late last year.

The Senate, which spent last week working out an agreement to televise its sessions, could turn its attention later this week to a constitutional amendment to require balanced budgets after Gramm-Rudman reaches that goal for fiscal 1991.

Tar Heel Solons Expect Approval Of Tobacco Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — As legislation to revamp the tobacco program approaches several deadlines, a major budget bill containing the leaf measure may be passed by the House just in time, two North Carolina congressmen say.

"Our time is totally running out," Rep. Charles Whitley, D-N.C., said. "I think we've got to do something before we recess for Easter, or I don't think we'll do anything this year."

Last week Whitley and Rep. Charlie Rose, D-N.C., told reporters they had solid assurances that House leaders would try to pass the bill this week. The House leadership has scheduled floor action as early as Wednesday afternoon.

Meanwhile, farmers are preparing for planting in Georgia and Florida, and the U.S. Department of Agriculture this week is getting ready to set in motion an important flue-cured grower referendum. In addition, the federal tax on cigarettes is due to be cut in half March 15 barring further congressional action.

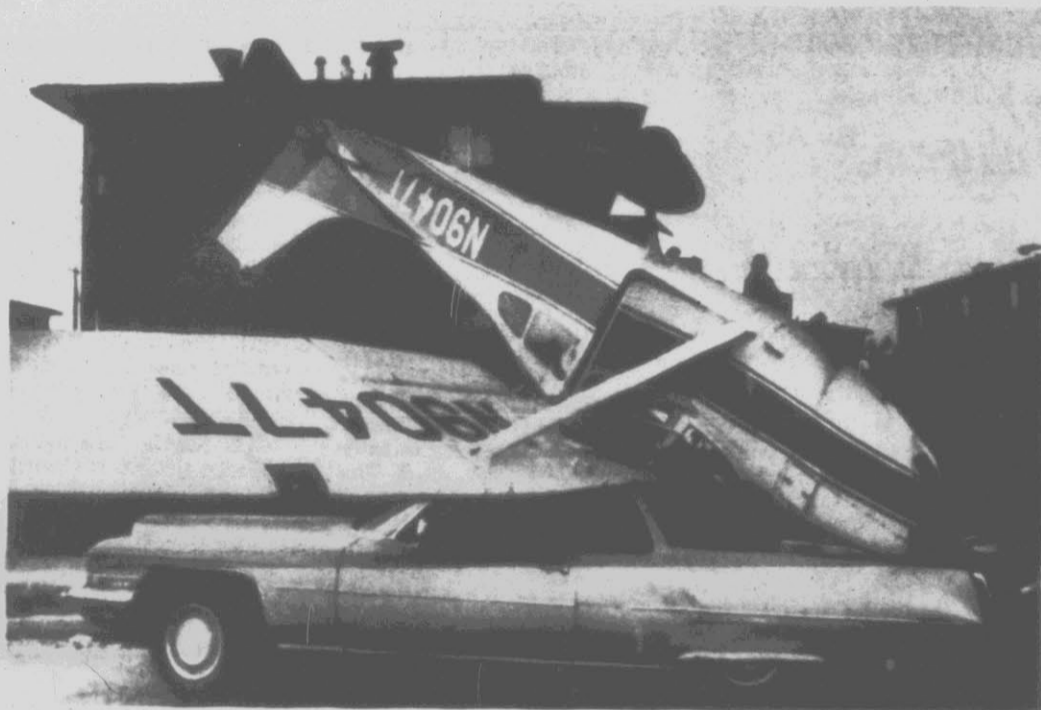

USDA officials tentatively have chosen March 10 through 13 for voting on whether flue-cured growers will keep the federal program of tobacco production limits and price guarantees for three more years. Referendum ballots are expected to be mailed Friday.

Tobacco-state legislators have twice delayed the vote, but they appear reluctant to seek another postponement unless passage of the tobacco legislation appears imminent.

Farmers fear they might be asked to vote on a program without knowing what form it will take or what their 1986 marketing quotas will be.

"I'm still relatively confident we'll get it done before March 15," said Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., in an interview last week.

Helms, Whitley, Rose and North Carolina Gov. Jim Martin last week lobbied Rep. Daniel Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, to go along with adding the tobacco program measure to a tax bill Rostenkowski has kept on the back burner in case the budget bill dies.

Senators Question Turncoat Defector

NEW YORK (AP) — Sixty senators want to reopen the case of the Soviet seaman who jumped into the Mississippi River four months ago but was returned to his ship and sent home after apparently changing his mind about defecting, according to a published report.

The senators are acting amid allegations that the man who jumped overboard near New Orleans may not have been the man who later told U.S. officials he wanted to return to the Soviet Union. The New York Times reported Sunday.

State Department officials say they are certain there was no switch. And Boris Malakhov, a spokesman for the Soviet Embassy in Washington, said, "It's crazy to think it was not Miroslav Medvid who was interviewed."

But several pieces of evidence support the possibility of a switch, the Times said, at least raising questions about the case of Medvid, whose attempted defection touched off a weekend crisis in Soviet-American relations two weeks before the Geneva summit.

According to an official form completed by Border Patrol officers, the man who jumped from the freighter Marshal Konev and then was hauled kicking and screaming back to the ship last October was 5 feet 10 inches tall and weighed 174 pounds. But a Navy doctor who examined a seaman on board the ship less than 24 hours later described the man in his report as "short stature, approximately 150" pounds.

Also, the man who jumped ship spoke fluent Ukrainian in his first evening ashore, according to the first interpreter who spoke with him. The man interviewed later spoke the language with difficulty, the State Department said afterward.

Two independent handwriting analysts concluded that handwriting samples taken on different days probably were written by different people.

Palestinians Mourn Mayor Assassinated On West Bank

NABLUS, Occupied West Bank (AP) — About 50,000 Palestinian men, many weeping and others chanting slogans, carried the body of their assassinated mayor through this city today and buried it in the courtyard of a mosque.

The funeral was peaceful, but a Palestinian refugee was shot dead by Israeli soldiers earlier in the day during a demonstration against the slaying of Mayor Zafer al-Masri.

The funeral procession lasted nearly two hours and was led by Palestinians beating drums and carrying the Palestinian flag, which is banned on the Israeli-occupied West Bank.

Al-Masri, 44, a moderate Palestinian appointed three months ago to lead the West Bank's largest city, was gunned down Sunday outside his office. Two pro-Syrian Palestinian groups have claimed responsibility.

His murder appeared to have set back Israel's plans to increase Palestinian control over local affairs in the territory captured by Israel in the 1967 Mideast war.

Foreign dignitaries, including U.S. Consul General Morris Draper, attended the funeral. Local Palestinians said it was the largest gathering ever in this city of 80,000 about 30 miles south of Jerusalem.

Israeli military sources said today's shooting occurred when a 57-year-old Palestinian man attacked an Israeli soldier trying to break up a demonstration at the Balata refugee camp on the outskirts of the city. Another Israeli soldier shot the man dead and injured the man's 17-year-old son, the sources said.

At the funeral, al-Masri's body was placed in a plain wooden box draped with the red, black, green and white Palestinian flag and carried down Nablus' main Faisal Street, through the winding streets of the marketplace to a green-domed mosque.

Only men attended the funeral, but women and children leaned from doorways and windows to watch the procession. Israeli soldiers blocked entrances to Nablus but most kept out of sight during the ceremony.

The body, draped in a blood-stained white shroud, was lifted from the coffin and passed overhead from hand to hand to a cinder-block tomb covered with stone slabs.

Several thousand Palestinians, mostly youths, shouted slogans opposing Syrian President Hafez Assad and King Hussein of Jordan, but in support of Palestinian Liberation Organization leader Yasser Arafat. Some West Bank Palestinians blame Hussein's break with Arafat two weeks ago for exposing the pro-Jordanian al-Masri to danger.

Al-Masri said on his appointment that he was not collaborating with the Israelis, but taking custody of the West Bank's largest town for the Palestinians until free elections could be held.

Space Fleet To Greet Halley's

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The first of a tiny fleet of spacecraft headed for Halley's comet make their closest approach to their target this week, training a battery of instruments on the lump of ice and dust to learn about the origins of the solar system.

The Soviet Union's camera-equipped Vega 1 flies within 5,555 miles of the comet's solid nucleus of ice and dust Wednesday night, followed Saturday by Japan's Suisei spacecraft, whose orbit will take it within about 93,960 miles.

About 18 hours later, the Soviet Vega 2 spacecraft, also carrying a television camera, will fly within 4,966 miles of the nucleus.

"It's the greatest week cometary science has ever had and is likely to have for quite some time," said John Brandt, astronomy laboratory chief at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, Md.

Late on March 10, Japan's Sakigake probe will swing within 4.3 million miles of the nucleus, mainly to study the collision between the comet and the solar wind of fast-moving sparticles thrown out by the sun.

Three days later, the European Space Agency's Giotto probe makes the closest approach to the comet.

Giotto, ESA's first interplanetary spacecraft, is targeted to sweep within a mere 565 miles of the comet's nucleus, but a late course correction may bring it within 300 miles.

"We're going closer than anyone else to the nucleus," said Ian Pryke, head of ESA's Washington office. "It's our premier science mission of the year."

The five spacecraft carry about 40 instruments to study the comet and magnetic fields, energized particles and other phenomena in surrounding space.

The five probes are "going to tell us more about comets than we have learned in all our past centuries of study," said Ray Newburn, co-leader of the 53-nation International Halley Watch organization at NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena.

"Comets are unchanged remnants of (material from) the formation of the solar system," said Louis Friedman, executive director of the Planetary Society in Pasadena. "So you're trying to understand the formation and evolution of the solar system by studying the comet."

Halley's comet was about 68 million miles from the sun as of Saturday and 115 million miles from Earth, traveling at 108,709 mph. It rounded the sun Feb. 9, and will make its closest approach to Earth, about 39 million miles, at 1:44 p.m. PST April 10.

Since emerging from the sun's glare in February, the comet has again been visible to observers at latitudes south of the northernmost United States. It appears very low on the east-southeast horizon just before dawn.

Homemaker's Haven

Perspiration is not only annoying and unpleasant, it is also hard on clothing. Perspiration is initially an acid that turns alkaline through bacterial reaction. It contains skin scales, oil and salts that can cause deteriorating effects in many dyes and fabrics.

Color may also be lost from perspiration, especially if left in clothing too long. The misuse of anti-perspirants and deodorants may also cause dyes and fabrics to deteriorate. Here are some tips for cleaning washable and non-washable fabrics:

For washable fabrics, spray the stained area with a pre-wash spray, and launder. If a perspiration odor or stain remains, try the following:

— Soak in a solution of one quart warm water, 1/2 teaspoon liquid hand dishwashing detergent and one tablespoon ammonia for 30 minutes.

— Rinse with water.

— Soak in a solution of one quart warm water and one tablespoon vinegar for one hour.

— Rinse with water. Dry.

If stain persists:

— For delicate fabrics, apply alcohol and cover with a pad dampened with alcohol. Let stand as long as stain is being removed. Keep stain and pad moist with alcohol.

— Rinse with water.

— Bleaching may remove the final traces of stain. Use bleach as directed on the container label. Test the dye of a garment in an inconspicuous section to be sure the color will not fade.

For non-washable fabrics, the removal of perspiration stains and soil is very complex and best left to a professional dry cleaner.

Professional spotting and cleaning procedures reduce the alkaline concentration and slow the destructive action of the perspiration.

WHAT IS RAMIE?

Ramie is now appearing on some clothing and household fabrics. Ramie, or grass-cloth, has been used for several thousand years in China. It is grown in areas that have a hot, humid climate. In the United States, ramie is grown in the Everglades region of Florida.

Under the microscope it looks like flax fiber. Ramie is strong in its resistance to pull, and its strength increases when it is wet. It has silklike luster. The fiber also has a very high resistance to rotting, mildew and other organisms.

Ramie will break if folded repeatedly in the same place, due to its stiff and brittle nature. It lacks resilience and is low in elasticity.

Ramie is used in fabrics resembling linen, such as suiting, tablecloths, napkins and handkerchiefs.

"COMFORT 12"

Comfort 12 is a new acrylic fiber of the DuPont Company. The company claims it gives comfort year round. The yarn provides cool comfort in warm weather because of its ability to wick moisture away from the body, and in cold weather the yarn has thermal qualities that retains warmth. The yarn can be machine washed, but consumers need to read care labels, as some garment manufacturers may design a garment that cannot be machine washed even though the yarn is washable.

Americans spent only 15 percent of their disposable income on food in 1985; and only 58 percent of America's food bill was for meals at home.

Dear Abby — By Abigail Van Buren

Marriage Encounter Works 'For' Couples

DEAR ABBY: I had to write in response to the woman who signed herself "Married With No Husband." I could have written that letter seven years ago. She's right—no job or hobby to get out of the house will cure her loneliness. Her husband will probably admit that the hunting, fishing and softball only fill his emptiness for a little while. My Joe ran daily and entered every amateur race and bicycling event within 50 miles. Weeknights he was busy with our church and Boy Scouts. I assumed there must be something wrong with me because he was a good provider and we had a good marriage, but I was still unhappy.

Two and a half years later, at the urging of another married couple, we made a Marriage Encounter weekend. We learned labels for the lifestyle we were living: It was "married singles." I also had behaviors that contributed to our separateness. Trying to be the perfect, understanding wife, I had taken charge of the household from mowing the lawn to child care. And as a result, I was often too tired to make love. We had a lot of changes to make, but today we are both better persons for it, and we are on our way to a great marriage.

MARGARET

DEAR MARGARET: I recently recommended Marriage Encounter for couples whose marriages needed some revitalizing. This is not for marriages that are in deep trouble—it's for couples who have lost the intimacy they once enjoyed, and seem to be living parallel lives.

Worldwide Marriage Encounter weekends are offered in over a dozen different religious faiths in more than 50 nations.

For the name of a couple to contact in your area, write to: Worldwide Marriage Encounter, 581 Braxton Place East, Westerville, Ohio 43081. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope as it is a non-profit organization.

And if you go, please let me know how yours turned out. I have heard nothing but praise about this fine organization.

then with a special banana mallet, you hit the other end a sharp blow, so that the banana goes flying out of its cover. Ideally, some member of the family stands across the way to catch the denuded fruit as it flies through the air. Then, quite simply, you stick it in your ear. Or up your nose."

CONFIDENTIAL TO CHUCK AND DORIS CARTER: Thanks for sending me the above from Joe's column.

(Is your social life in a slump? Lonely? Get Abby's updated, revised and expanded booklet, "How to Be Popular" for people of all ages. Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents) self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Popularity, P.O. Bridal Policy

A black and white glossy five by seven photograph is requested for engagement announcements in The Daily Reflector. For publication in a Sunday edition, the information must be submitted by 12 noon on the preceding Wednesday. Engagement pictures must be released at least three weeks prior to the wedding date. After three weeks, only an announcement will be printed.

Wedding write-ups will be printed through the first week with a one column picture. During the second week, a one column picture will be used with a write-up giving less description and after the second week, just as an announcement.

Wedding forms and pictures should be returned to The Daily Reflector one week prior to the date of the wedding. All information should be typed or written neatly.

DEAR READERS: Yes, I know, I promised not to print anything further on how to peel a banana, but how did I know I was going to slip on something as appealing as the following, excerpted from Joe Aaron's column, "Morning Assignment," in the Evansville (Ind.) Courier:

"Since Dear Abby is having such an incredibly difficult time in bringing the Great Banana Controversy to a satisfying conclusion, I have decided presumptuously to come to her rescue.

"She has certainly not asked for my help, but in my view she needs it and she needs it now: To eat a banana, you simply loosen the rind at one end and

CANKER SORES

If you've been troubled by canker sores in your mouth recently, your dentist may recommend treatment that can help them to heal more quickly. Canker sores are small white ulcers that may appear on the mucous membrane tissues of the mouth. They often appear on the inner lip, the lining of the cheek, or on the undersurface of the tongue. Even though this is considered a minor condition, it can be painful and last from one to two weeks before subsiding.

The exact cause is not known, but some scientists believe canker sores may be associated with an allergy to citrus fruits or result from a delayed hypersensitivity to certain mouth bacteria. Some believe that tension might be the culprit. Lots of students break out with canker sores before exam week. Brides before the wedding day, etc. It may help to get as much rest as possible and to eat a well-balanced diet and avoid salt and citrus fruits. These measures may help the sores to heal within a few days.

USDA Says Farm Decline May Be Ending

By JIM DRINKARD
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — American agriculture, trapped in a winter of despair for the past five years, is likely to see its first signs of spring this year as the drop in land values slows and declining farm income levels off, according to new projections by the Agriculture Department.

While stopping short of predicting any sort of immediate or vigorous recovery for U.S. farmers, the department's report on an array of economic indicators seems to indicate that the long-lived rural depression is bottoming out.

"Some of these economic adjustments are painful, but they are taking place and there is some cause for optimism in those adjustments," said Ronald Meekhof, a principal author of the 1986 financial outlook report. "I think 1986 is going to be a bottoming year."

The hopeful news is tempered, however, by the continuing harsh effects of farming's long decline, including the plight of farmers who will be unable to hang on even if conditions improve and the situation facing many rural banks whose loan portfolios are severely battered. "You can't totally pass by the amount of agony that is going on in Iowa, Kansas, parts of the Midwest and southern Plains states," said Meekhof. "But you've got a large share of the farm sector that's going to do quite well. They can produce a lot of corn for a fairly low price, and it's the same way in wheat."

One of the most promising signs, the report said, is a slowing of the precipitous drop in farm land values. From a record 13 percent in 1984, land value declines slowed to 8 percent last year. That rate is likely to be halved in 1986, to 4 percent, the report said.

The reason is that land values that had been inflated in the late 1970s to levels beyond their real productive value as farm land have now fallen back to near prices that can be supported by the crops and livestock they generate, department economists said.

Land values are the foundation of a farmer's financial security. Farm land often is collateral for loans, and the amount of a producer's equity frequently determines whether any new credit will be approved.

Another reason for optimism, the department said, is that farmers who have weathered the storm of the 1980s are emerging leaner and more competitive. They have learned to farm with less fertilizer and have cut other expenses to the bone.

And with the wariness of debt seen in many of those who lived through the 1930s Depression, they are depending less on borrowed money to make their operations work.

Eventually, those developments will lead to a slower growth in farm productivity, Meekhof said. But that lowered output will come closer to matching demand, and will ultimately improve commodity prices from current depressed levels caused by severe surpluses.

Net farm income will fall again in 1986, the department forecasted, to somewhere in the range of $22 billion to $26 billion. But the decline will be only about 8 percent, compared to the 20 percent falloff seen from 1984 to 1985, and other measures of farm earnings will be even more hopeful.

Net cash income, a measure of farm-sector liquidity (a key to obtaining new credit) is expected to be virtually the same as 1985 levels. And off-farm income, an important source of stability for the smallest classes of farms, is expected to actually rise in 1986.

Direct government payments, in the form of subsidies and conservation and storage checks, will continue to play an important role in keeping farm families going this year as well, according to the report. Such payments will remain near 1985's level of $8 billion.

Dark clouds persist in agriculture's economic outlook, however, particularly in the availability of new operating credit for the spring planting season and for small commercial banks with much of their loan portfolios tied up in farming.

Last year, about 4 percent to 5 percent of farmers were unable to get the loans they needed to put in a crop or otherwise stay in business. Bankers report they expect that figure to rise slightly this year, to nearly 6 percent, the department said.

Heavily indebted operators remain in the most serious trouble, and such stress is concentrated among the commercial-sized farms that are the backbone of America's food production. About 7 percent of the nation's farms are commercial-sized and have both heavy debt loads and negative cash flows, considered a lethal combination.

"Many of them appear to be in such a weak financial position they are not likely to be saved by the modest sector-wide improvements expected in the near term," the report said.

Farm banks, while they tend to be small and have little ripple effect on the nation's banking system, are important institutions in their communities and are suffering growing strains, the report said.

Projected growth in farm loan difficulties "could seriously affect the banking systems serving several states and regions," the department said, particularly Iowa, Nebraska and North Dakota.

Few Share U.S. Riches

WASHINGTON (AP) — Even though doctors, lawyers and accountants dominate high-income groups, the real wealth lies in the hands of bankers, real estate developers and insurance executives, a federal study shows.

Only 2 percent of American families are headed by someone who works in banking, insurance and real estate, the study said, but those professions make up 31 percent of the highest income group — families earning $280,000 or more annually.

GE, Unions Break Off Negotiations

LYNN, Mass. (AP) — Negotiations between union leaders and General Electric Co. officials broke off early today, and workers at two other plants joined the 10-day-old walkout by employees of an aircraft division.

About 1,500 union workers at GE's Medford and Everett plants joined the 3,700 striking Lynn aircraft division workers in the walkout over grievance procedures, said Barbara Sweeney, union spokeswoman. Workers at the Medford and Everett aircraft division plants had voted last week to join the strike if no progress was made in talks.

Negotiations between GE and Local 201 of the International Union of Electronic, Electrical, Technical, Salaried and Machine Workers broke down at 12:55 a.m., she said.

"The breakdown was precipitated by the unwarranted walkout by company representatives while union negotiators were still at the table," Kevin Mahar, president of the local, said in a statement. "This abruptly and unilaterally terminated what had been on some points fruitful dialogue."

No new negotiations were set, Ms. Sweeney said.

DEA Warns Drug Users

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal drug officials are warning that the cancer-causing agent, benzene, is turning up in about half the cocaine being seized in Florida.

Benzene, banned in consumer products by the Consumer Product Safety Commission because it has been shown to cause leukemia, was found in half the cocaine seized in Florida late last year, Robert H. Feldkamp, a spokesman for the Drug Enforcement Administration, said Sunday.

Rebels Killed
N'DJAMENA, Chad (AP) — The government said more than 1,000 rebels were killed and nearly 1,000 more were captured in fighting in northern Chad three weeks ago that rekindled the 20-year-old civil war.
It said 23 government soldiers were killed in fighting in Koro Toro, Ziguey, Kouba Olanga and Oum Chalouba. It said 1,055 members of the Libyan-backed rebel force had been killed, and that another 936 had been captured.
Authorities paraded three captured men around a public square in N'Djamena, the capital, on Sunday. It said they were captured during fighting in Oum Chalouba.

Solid Plan

Greenville's plan for redistricting is a sound proposal.

Slicing the city into districts based on racial population and combining election methods keeps the advantages of an at-large voting system while ensuring minority representation for Greenville. The plan can be successful because it is based on two factors: the need to do what's best for the city and the need to meet federal mandates for minority representation.

First, the plan is sound because it does what's best for the city. A completely at-large election method can handicap minority candidates. At-large voting provides no flexibility and could hinder the background and expertise of a city council by limiting successful candidates.

On the other hand, a strictly district election method is provincial and would promote squabbling, not cooperation. City Council members, if elected only by voters in their district, would be politically responsible solely to those voters. That's bad business.

Second, the plan clearly ensures minority representation. The two proposed minority districts meet Justice Department requirements. No concessions should be made over District 2's East Carolina University student population. The majority of dormitory students will not register and vote; the proposal correctly factors them out. In the 1985 municipal elections, 298 of the 18- to 26-year-olds in the entire city voted — a very small number.

The key to the plan's acceptance — by the City Council and by the U.S. Justice Department — is public support. City residents, both blacks and whites, should acknowledge the plan's advantages and back it. It is a solid redistricting proposal based on compromise and a team approach.

Expletive

At a photo session last week President Reagan delivered an expletive which one television commentator said your mother would teach you never to say in front of an open microphone.

The White House official transcript of the session showed it never happened; yet there it was on tape and the evening news for the present and posterity.

Reports were that the president was trying to end the session and reporters persisted in asking him questions when the unbecoming remark slipped out.

There are several possible conclusions as to the president's state of mind at the moment:

- The president was simply frustrated with a badgering press corps.
 - The president was delivering a vicious attack on the reporters of America.
 - The president was delivering a vicious attack on the dogs of America.
 - An ancient actor was finally tiring of playing the choicest role ever handed a thespian.
- Perhaps there are other possibilities.

Republicans Favor Southern Primary

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The Democratic push for a Southern presidential primary delights a lot of Republicans in the South because they think it is likely to prove a disaster for the Democrats.

The Southern primary was a hot topic of conversation last weekend at the Southern Republican Leadership Conference. There was the expected speculation on what impact it might have on the race for the 1988 Republican presidential primary.

Would a Southern primary have hidden dangers for Vice President George Bush and Rep. Jack Kemp of New York? Would it give the Rev. Pat Robertson a chance for an early show of strength?

Former Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee

liked the idea of voters from his native region playing a potentially decisive role in the nomination fight.

Gov. Lamar Alexander of Tennessee, chairman of Baker's presidential exploratory committee, also supports the regional primary, but he pointed out that Republicans won't have much role in deciding presidential primary schedules in the South. Those decisions will be made by legislatures, and they are solidly in the hands of the Democrats.

"It's going to happen anyway," said Alexander.

If the Democrats pushing the idea have their way, as many as 10 states will hold primaries or caucuses on March 8, 1988.

Their two main goals are to diminish the influence of Iowa and

New Hampshire by offering a far larger batch of delegates and to use Southern influence to lessen the weight of party liberals and diminish the chances of nominating a candidate with no chance of carrying the region in the general election — someone akin to Walter F. Mondale or Edward M. Kennedy.

It may work out that way, but there is a lot of betting that the result would be the opposite.

Most often mentioned is the likelihood that the Rev. Jesse Jackson would enter a Southern primary with the most solid base of any Democratic presidential candidate. In most Southern states, the Democratic Party base is black voters.

That advantage would be magnified if a hot contest on the Republican side attracts a lot of interest among the more conservative white electorate.

In many Southern states voters do not register by party and do not decide until the last minute whether to select a Republican or Democratic ballot on primary election day.

Many Republicans are tantalized by the idea that the GOP race will attract a large turnout and leave the most liberal voters making the choice among the Democrats.

The result might be not a shift away from the Mondale-Kennedy wing, but deeper into it, or in Jackson's case, to the left of it.

"We may see more votes cast in the 1988 Republican presidential primary than in the Democratic primary," said Marty Connors, executive director of the Alabama Republican Party. "If that's the case, it's going to elect the most liberal candidate on the Democratic side."

There also is deep skepticism of the theory that a Southern primary would diminish the influence of Iowa and particularly New Hampshire.

Opponents of the regional primary believe the real impact would be to enhance the influence of the two Northern states. They point to what happened in the South in 1984 to Sen. Gary Hart.

The Colorado senator had no following in the region until he upset Mondale in New Hampshire.

The candidates who had been expected to challenge Mondale in the South were Sens. John Glenn of Ohio and Ernest F. Hollings of South Carolina and former Gov. Reuben Askew of Florida.

But Hollings and Askew didn't survive poor showings in New Hampshire and Iowa. Glenn was still in the race when the scene shifted South but his disappointing showings in the North destroyed his credibility with Southern voters.

Hart, on the other hand, spurred well ahead of Mondale in Florida and gave him a tough challenge in Georgia. The Colorado senator's strength was based not on having campaigned widely in the South on Southern issues, but on the momentum he received in New Hampshire.

The New Hampshire momentum probably would play equally well in both parties.

But as with Jackson in the Democratic primaries, Robertson presents a possibility of someone to whom the normal rules might not apply.

Robertson's base among fundamentalist Christians might be less likely to desert him even if he does poorly in Iowa and New Hampshire.

That is a possibility that could be damaging to Kemp, who also would be seeking support from those voters.

The New York congressman was fatalistic about the potential dangers in such a primary.

"Never worry about something over which you have absolutely no control," he said.

Winner's arguments found very little support in either house and the commissions will be allowed to introduce legislation during the 1986 session. (Because the legislature tries to keep these budget sessions as short as possible, legislative rules restrict the kind of legislation that can be introduced during them.)

Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan said later that he doesn't believe the session will run as long as Winner says it will. "The danger is that the study commissions could bring back just about everything. But I don't intend to let that happen." Controversial insurance matters will have to wait for 1987, Jordan said. Only issues upon which a public consensus has been built will be introduced, he said.

But others aren't so sure. House

Speaker Liston Ramsey said, "If we can do anything to help the insurance problems in this state, I'm willing to stay all summer long." Ramsey said he hopes the session will be as short as usual but added, "We ought to be worrying about doing our elected duty (to solve the crisis) and not how long its going to take us."

Sen. Joe Johnson, D-Wake, chairman of the Insurance Committee, promised Winner on the floor that the bills introduced in 1986 will propose only interim changes. Major changes such as liability caps won't be handled until 1987, he said. But he also warned that the 1986 session could drag on. "We ought never do anything for expedience. Sure, (taking up these bills) could draw the session out," Johnson said.

Potholes Belong To All

"The Pothole Man" is happy to report the mailbox has been overflowing with letters. Thanks to a cold and wet winter, potholes are now flowering in neighborhoods that have never seen them before.

Unfortunately there is still a lot of ignorance about the care and feeding of potholes — and that's where The Pothole Man comes in.

Our first letter is from Laurie Kramer who writes:

"I have a beautiful pothole in front of my house measuring two feet by two feet, and one-and-a-half feet deep. What would you advise me to plant in it?"

Dear Laurie: What you plant in your pothole depends on whether you want to use it for show or eat from it. Since I assume it will be run over at least 200 times a day, I would plant something low to the ground, such as petunias for show or dwarf pear trees for food. Make sure you have a good drainage system in your pothole, or it will fill with water and become a breeding ground for malaria mosquitoes.

The second letter, from Connie Coopersmith, asks us to discuss pothole ownership:

"We bought a home last month with an art deco pothole that the previous owner insisted was at least 50 years old. Actually, we bought the house for the hole. Now it turns out we do not own the pothole — the city does. Can we still fertilize it and treat it as our own?"

Dear Connie: It is interesting that the city would claim ownership of a pothole on your street. Municipal authorities, when called, not only deny they own the pothole, but attempt to prove your street is not even within the city limits. Consider the street hole your own.

A letter from Joey Fontana deals with fixing up potholes:

"My hobby is finding run-down potholes in the neighborhood and improving them so they look almost brand-new. I drive a cement truck so I think I do as good a job as anyone. The other day at Cathedral and 44th streets, I made a beaut — I mean a Greyhound bus could disappear in it and never be heard from again.

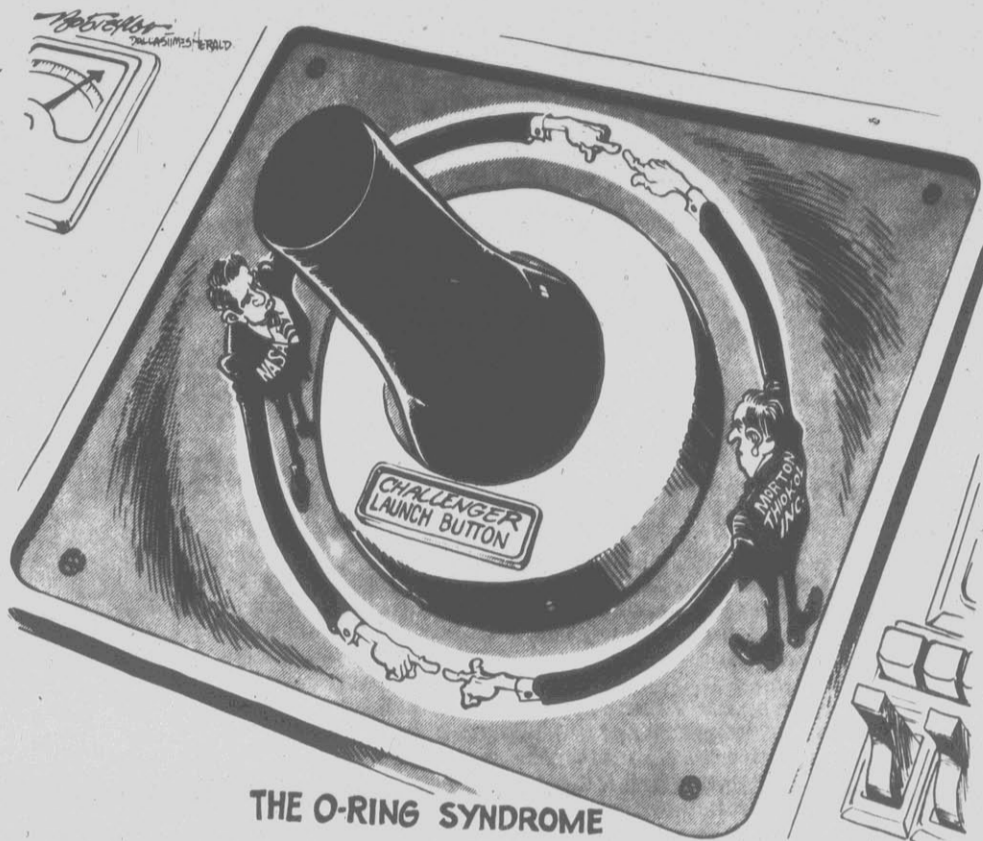

"Well, this guy Charlie Guggenheim, who owns a house right there, said I was getting too close to his pothole. He told me to fill it in or take it somewhere else. I'm not taking it anywhere. Am I right?"

Dear Joey: You certainly are. Guggenheim should be pleased with having your pothole in front of his house. If he had any class he'd fill it up with humus and plant some tulips. Recently the courts have ruled that a pothole belongs to all the people. Our founding fathers wanted America's potholes to be shared by everyone — from sea to shining sea. By enlarging and widening the pothole in front of Guggenheim's house you enhanced all the real estate values in the area.

Dana Williams wrote one of the most interesting letters:

"There was this pothole at the end of the block and it kept getting larger and larger. Every time a car went 'kerplunk,' an axle broke. Then one day a neighbor planted a bush in it so people could see it. The following Friday, for no reason at all, the bush caught on fire and burned. The next morning a city repair truck came by and filled in the hole. My question: Was the burning bush a miracle?"

Dear Dana: I'm not sure about the burning bush, but the city truck showing up to repair the pothole sure as heck was.

Long, Hot Legislative Session

RALEIGH — A procedural bill passed by the Legislature during its one-day February session may open the door for a long, hot session this summer.

On the same day it passed legislation that allows the insurance commissioner to order the creation of insurance pools, the Assembly also changed its reporting rules for several study commissions. Those commissions had been scheduled to report back to the full session of the 1987 General Assembly. The changes allow them to report back when the assembly reconvenes for its traditionally month-long June budget session.

In an interview before the change was voted on, Sen. Dennis Winner, D-Buncombe, said, "If we pass that bill, we'll be here all summer."

The commissions which will be allowed to report are studying the many facets of the insurance crisis. It was Winner's contention that the issues involved in that crisis are so great that they can't be settled in a three or four week session. It was his concern that the assembly, under pressure to keep the session short, would opt for simplistic solutions to the insurance crisis, something like caps on the amount of damages a jury can award a plaintiff in a lawsuit.

"I have been informed that proposals for radical changes in our tort laws ... have been proposed. Can we address that kind of legislation in three or four weeks, or will we go all summer long?" he said. (Tort law involves suits filed for wrongful acts and injuries stemming, for example, from incidents of medical malpractice or auto negligence.)

Winner's arguments found very little support in either house and the commissions will be allowed to introduce legislation during the 1986 session. (Because the legislature tries to keep these budget sessions as short as possible, legislative rules restrict the kind of legislation that can be introduced during them.)

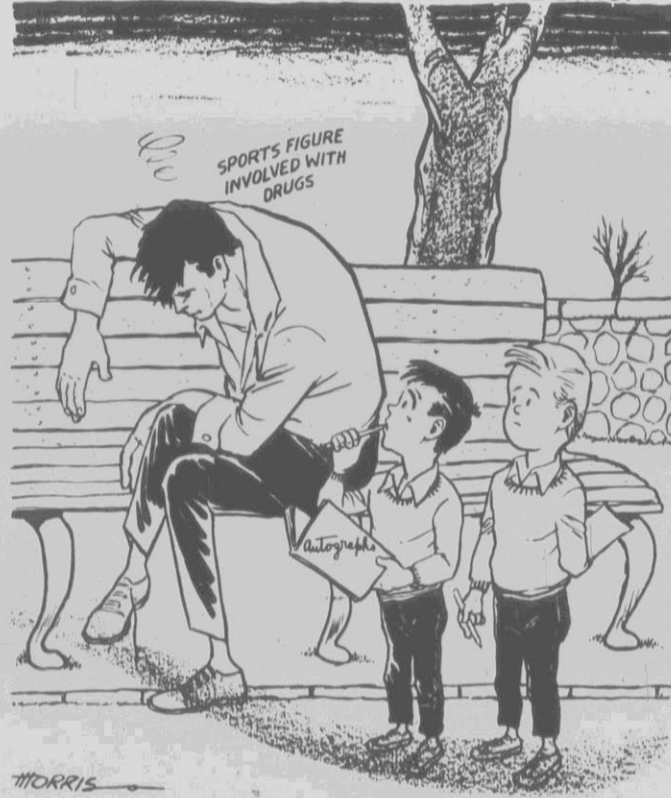

Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan said later that he doesn't believe the session will run as long as Winner says it will. "The danger is that the study commissions could bring back just about everything. But I don't intend to let that happen." Controversial insurance matters will have to wait for 1987, Jordan said. Only issues upon which a public consensus has been built will be introduced, he said.

Strength For Today

There are some losses in life which are staggering. But there is no hopelessness in life provided we do not give up hope.

A loved one cannot be returned, but the memory of that loved one may go on to give fragrance to life here on earth and significance to our belief in immortality. There are financial losses which cannot be recouped in any way. While money cannot purchase happiness, it can sometimes keep people from situations which would involve them in unhappiness.

If life went along like a pleasant dream, would we be any happier as a result? Perhaps. But perhaps not. Happiness is something which grows up unnoticed amid a multitude of right decisions and faithfully performed duties. Some people have had staggering losses and yet have lived to praise God for the blessing and light and power and peace of their lives.

Peace Marchers Need Insurance

IRWINDALE, Calif. (AP) — Participants in the Great Peace March put Hollywood hoopla behind and got down to the business of walking 3,200 miles across the United States in support of global nuclear disarmament.

The marchers, numbering more than 1,000, had logged 22 miles when they reached their second-day campsite Sunday evening at the Santa Fe Dam recreation area, eight hours after leaving California State University-Los Angeles.

"It's terrific," marcher Carol Kinsey, former assistant to a state assemblyman, said of the walkers' mood. "They're tired. I think a lot of people are realizing that 15 miles every day is tough."

The march began Saturday at Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum and briefly stopped at City Hall, where Mayor Tom Bradley gave the marchers a celebrity-studded send-off.

Actors Robert Blake and Ed

Begley Jr., actress Teri Garr, singers Melissa Manchester and Holly Near and the rock group Mr. Mister participated in the first leg to City Hall.

The marcher's route for the next few days lay east along the foothills of the San Gabriel and San Bernardino mountains before a northward swing to cross the broad expanse of the Mojave Desert to Las Vegas, Nev.

Lack of insurance clouded the future of the march, however. The California Department of Transportation and some cities along the march route wouldn't grant parade or other permits to the sponsoring PRO-Peace organization without $5 million coverage.

PRO-Peace had secured campsite insurance or waivers through tonight and were working to obtain campsite and walking insurance for the rest of the way, Ms. Kinsey said.

Marcos Supporters May Back Aquino

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Most members of Ferdinand E. Marcos' political party are willing to grant Corazon Aquino the constitutional legitimacy she lacked when she assumed power on the basis of a "people's resolution," a senior party official said today.

Jose Roco, a deputy prime minister in the ousted Marcos government, spoke to reporters during a break in a meeting of leaders of Marcos' New Society Movement. Party sources said they were likely to repudiate the National Assembly proclamation that Marcos defeated Mrs. Aquino in the fraud-tainted Feb. 7 election.

Mrs. Aquino took an oath of office on the basis of the "people's resolution" signed by about 100 opposition figures last Tuesday, the same day Marcos was sworn in.

The resolution had no basis in the constitution, but nevertheless said the election was invalid because of widespread cheating.

Marcos fled the country hours after taking office when it became apparent that his military and civilian support had crumbled, leaving Mrs. Aquino to take power. He flew first to the United States' Clark Air Base, then to Guam and on to Hawaii.

"I am not in a position to predict the outcome of the caucus," Roco said. "Nevertheless, I think it is relevant to state ... that the thinking of most KBL (New Society Movement) members is to extend to the new president all kinds of support and assistance ... to legitimize and constitutionalize her election."

About 90 of the party's 112 National Assembly members and 100 local officials were attending the caucus.

The National Assembly, which is controlled by Marcos' party, declared him the winner Feb. 15 on the basis of the official vote canvass, despite charges of widespread fraud and cheating in the balloting.

Marcos, 68, called the election a year early to prove to critics at home and abroad that after 20 years in power he still could muster the support of Filipino voters.

The news agency said the party was likely to be reorganized and change its name. The party said in a letter to news media that it would have "very important" announcements to make after the meeting, but did not elaborate.

The party leaders also were debating a draft resolution asking Mrs. Aquino to refrain from wholesale replacement of pro-Marcos mayors and other officials whose constitutional terms of office run through June 30.

Former Labor Minister Blas Ople said arbitrary dismissals by Mrs. Aquino's new minister for local governments, Aquilino Pimentel, amounted to "revolutionary terror," and would cause civil unrest.

There have been at least five demonstrations against the policy, he said.

Pimentel previously had been criticized for canceling May 30 local elections, and replacing incumbent officials before their terms ran out.

Diet Pill Sweeping U.S.

New Super "Dream Pill" Lose Weight As You Sleep!

No Dieting — Eat All You Want

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. — An amazing new super "dream pill" has recently been developed and perfected that reportedly "guarantees" that you will easily lose up to 10 pounds in 10 days. Best of all, it allows you to "eat as much as you want of your favorite foods and still lose a pound a day or more starting from the very first day until you achieve your ideal weight and figure."

This remarkable new diet pill combines two natural substances which cause adults to lose weight fast by "tricking" the body into acting like a teenager. These nutritional substances, called L-arginine and L-ornithine, stimulate the body's production of growth hormone. Dr. Robert Harris, a specialist in nutritional medicine in Stafford Springs, Connecticut, was recently quoted as explaining: "Growth Hormone may be what's responsible for allowing teenagers to down thousands of calories in hamburgers and other foods and still be thin as a rail."

"Growth Hormone is present in people up through the teenage years, then slowly diminishes with age. But L-arginine and L-ornithine make the body 'think' it belongs to a teenager again, allowing adults to eat as much as they want — and still be thin and wiry."

"Pill Does All The Work"

According to the manufacturer, "the pill itself does all the work while you quickly lose weight with NO starvation 'diet menus' to follow, NO calorie counting, NO exercise and NO hunger pangs." The pill is not a drug! It is 100% safe consisting of natural amino acids just like those found in the foods you eat everyday.

Life Extension Authors Confirm Results

Durk Pearson and Sandy Shaw, graduates of MIT and UCLA respectively, introduced these miracle substances to the public in their runaway best selling book, Life Extension. They discovered the weight-loss effects by accident.

Sandy fell and broke her foot and started taking L-arginine because of its well-known healing qualities. Much to her amazement Sandy lost 25 pounds of fat and put on 5 pounds of firm-toned muscle in six weeks. According to Durk's calculations, the pill caused Sandy to lose 400 times as much fat as she would otherwise have lost — without dieting!

Lose Weight While You Sleep

One beautiful thing about these miracle pills is the ease with which they work. You don't have to count calories and you don't have to follow special diets or eat special foods. You don't even have to exercise. The best time to take the pills is just before you go to bed at night. That way, the pounds melt away even as you sleep. You wake up every morning, slimmer, happier and feeling younger!

The super dream pill is already sweeping the country with glowing reports of easy and fast weight loss from formerly overweight people in all walks of life who are now slim, trim, and attractive again.

Extraordinary Guarantee

Place your order now. If you are not completely satisfied with the thinner "new you" simply return the empty container for a full refund of your entire purchase price. No questions asked. Now what could be fairer than that?

To order simply call Dream Pill TOLL FREE 1-800-453-4810 and use your VISA or MasterCard. Operators are standing by 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Bonn Casts Doubt On Terrorists' Claim To Palme Assassination

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — The Foreign Ministry said today that a West German terrorist group claimed responsibility for assassinating Prime Minister Olof Palme within hours of his death, but sources in Bonn said they thought the claim was bogus.

Swedish Foreign Ministry spokesman Lars Loennback said the claim on behalf of the Red Army Faction was made in a call to a Swedish official in the West German capital about three hours after Palme was shot in the back and fatally wounded in Stockholm late Friday night.

The 59-year-old prime minister, who had been strolling home unguarded with his wife from a film premiere, was declared dead on a hospital operating table at 12:06 a.m. Saturday. Lisbet Palme, 55, was grazed by a bullet but was not seriously injured. At about 3 a.m. Saturday, Loennback said an anonymous caller telephoned Swedish Embassy officer Peter Tejler in Bonn and told him, "This is the RAF. We have killed your prime minister."

Loennback said the Bonn embassy reported the call to the Foreign Ministry Saturday, and that police officials also were informed.

The Swedish national news agency TT, which earlier reported the Red Army Faction claim, quoted Tejler as saying he went back to bed after the call because he thought it "so improbable" Palme was killed.

In Bonn, West German Interior Ministry sources told The Associated Press they doubted the call's authenticity because its "style and circumstances" did not resemble previous such claims made by the leftist group, which has carried out assassinations, bomb attacks and robberies for nearly 15 years.

The sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the past claims had usually come by letter, and said West German authorities had informed Swedish police that they doubted the call's authenticity.

When asked today about the purported Red Army Faction claim, police Inspector Anders Sigurdson said, "We are making absolutely no comment."

On Sunday, police officials said the gunman had apparently kept Palme under surveillance for some time before staging a meticulously planned attack, but said it was not known if he worked alone or with a terrorist group.

"Carefully planned is as far as we go at this point," Stockholm Police Chief Hans Holmer said. "A lone lunatic could also plan a murder as well as an organization, and we prefer to keep all options open."

On Saturday, an anonymous caller to a news agency in London claimed that attack on Palme was carried out by the leftist West German terrorist group Holger Meins Commando, an offshoot of the Red Army Faction.

A member of that group was killed and five others were extradited to West Germany in 1975 after taking hostages at the West German Embassy in Stockholm. The Red Army Faction has normally targeted U.S. and NATO facilities in West Germany.

As part of their nationwide manhunt for the killer, Swedish security police were investigating various extremist factions. The Stockholm newspaper Expressen said Sunday that much of the effort involved right-wing groups, including neo-Nazis and Croatian activists opposed to the communist government of Yugoslavia.

Police were also said to be checking into other groups, including Kurdish and Palestinian activists. Palme's name was also at the top of a death list produced by one group of young neo-Nazis last year in the Swedish port city of Goteborg.

Combing the downtown intersection where Palme and his wife were shot, police collected a second .357 magnum bullet, and said they believed the ammunition could be used in heavy-caliber revolvers made by Smith & Wesson, Colt or Ruger, all U.S.-made firearms.

Police said Sunday the bullets did not match any of 500 sample projectiles they keep for identification purposes, and TT said they were eager to contact gun enthusiasts and other experts who could give them information about the ammunition and the revolver used to fire it. The unusual copper-jacketed bullets might make it more difficult to track the killer, police said.

Hidden S. African Police Kill 7 Alleged Ambushers

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Police lying in wait along a major road outside Cape Town today shot and killed seven black men who tried to ambush a vehicle taking black policemen to work, officials said.

Two policemen were slightly injured in the shootout, and police said they recovered an assault rifle, other guns and several grenades after the shooting.

Cape Town police spokesmen said the seven suspected guerrillas driving a light truck threw a hand grenade at the black policemen going to work in Guguletu township.

Police, who spoke on condition they not be identified, said the seven armed men got out of the truck and immediately were fired on by police who had been hiding beside the road in wait for four hours.

Four men were killed in a gun battle on the road and three others were chased by police into nearby bushes and shot there, police said. The shootout occurred along a main road on the edge of Guguletu near several hostels for migrant workers.

Gunshots broke a window in one of the hostels.

At least seven armored cars later sealed off the road as police conducted an investigation.

Guguletu and two other black communities near Cape Town, Langa and Nyanga, have seen some of the most violent unrest in South Africa. Police have restricted patrols in the communities, and police officers and their vehicles have been frequent targets of gunfire and grenade attacks.

Three other incidents of unrest were reported by police Sunday night, as vehicles were attacked with stones or firebombs in Soweto, the sprawling black township near Johannesburg, in Ashdown, near Pietermaritzburg, and in Claremont, near the Indian Ocean port of Durban.

Police reported the deaths of two black men late Saturday and Sunday. They said one was killed when police opened fire on a mob stoning buses in the black township of Claremont, near Durban.

At Robertson in western Cape province the charred body of a man was found with a burning tire around his neck. That method of killing is often used by anti-apartheid militants against blacks suspected of collaborating with the white government.

More than 1,100 blacks have been killed in the past 18 months of unrest and riots stemming from black protests against apartheid, the system of legalized racial separation imposed by the white-led government.

Most of the victims have died in clashes with police or soldiers, while others have been killed in fights between rival black groups.

Under apartheid, South Africa's 5 million whites deny the vote and most other rights to 24 million blacks.

A group representing the British Commonwealth scheduled meetings in Cape Town today in their effort to seek peaceful change in South Africa's apartheid system.

The group, including former Australian Prime Minister Malcolm Fraser and former Nigerian military leader Olusegun Obasanjo, returned to South Africa Sunday after weekend meetings in Luanda with Angolan leaders, and in Lusaka with Zambian and African National Congress guerrilla leaders.

An opposition party launched an advertising campaign Sunday claiming President P.W. Botha is committed to racial segregation despite his own publicity blitz to the contrary.

The opposition Progressive Federal Party said in advertisements in Sunday newspapers that Botha's National Party remains committed to apartheid.

Botha said in a Jan. 31 speech that "the concept of apartheid is outdated," and pledged that blacks would be included in decision-making at the highest level. Two days later, the government bought newspaper ads with a letter from Botha saying, "The wheel of reform is turning."

FOCUS

Helping Hands

The Peace Corps celebrates its 25th anniversary this week. But by 1961, the idea for an international service organization was already an old one. In 1904, philosopher William James first suggested the idea of a peace army to handle civilian projects. In 1960, two legislators called for a study of the idea. Later that year, Hubert Humphrey asked Congress to create a peace corps. John F. Kennedy then used the proposal as a campaign issue.

82-74 Win For Blue Devils

Duke Finishes 1st With Victory Over Heels

By DICK JOYCE
AP Basketball Writer
DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — "We came from the bottom and now have reached the top," David Henderson said Sunday after top-ranked Duke finished first in the Atlantic Coast Conference regular season with an 82-74 victory over No. 3 North Carolina.

Henderson, a freshman on Duke's 11-17 team in 1983, hit 13 of 20 shots from the field and scored 27 points, enabling the Blue Devils to finish alone in first place for the first time since 1966. They tied with North Carolina for the top spot in 1979.

Henderson, a 6-foot-5 senior guard, scored 11 points during a late 14-4 Blue Devils' spurt that turned back the Tar Heels.

The victory also gave Duke, 29-2 overall and 12-2 in the ACC, the No. 1 seed for the conference tournament which starts Friday. The Tar Heels, losing for the third time in the last four games, dropped to 10-4 in the conference and 26-4 overall.

Georgia Tech played Clemson later Sunday and a Georgia Tech victory would leave North Carolina third in the ACC, the first time in 20 years the Tar Heels would not finish first or second.

"I don't think anything could be finer than beating Carolina," senior forward Mark Alarie told the home crowd of 8,564 at Cameron Indoor Stadium.

Later, in the locker room, Alarie added, "I think they beat us in every department ... but we played with a lot of emotion and heart." North Carolina shot 64 percent from the field to Duke's 54 percent and outrebounded the Blue Devils 38-22 — but also committed 22 turnovers to Duke's nine.

"I thought the key to the game was the fact that our senior class and our whole team was able to handle the emotion of the day," Duke Coach Mike Krzyzewski said. "It was an extremely well-played game for both teams, certainly befitting a game for the regular-season championship."

North Carolina Coach Dean Smith called Duke "a great team." "We tried our best and just came up short," he said.

Senior guard Johnny Dawkins added 21 points, senior forward Mark Alarie had 16 and junior guard Tommy Amaker 14 for Duke. Dawkins raised his four-year point total to 2,343 and surpassed Mike Gminski to become the Blue Devils' all-time leading scorer. He is No. 2 in ACC history behind Dick Hemric, who had 2,587 for Wake Forest.

Brad Daugherty led North Carolina with 24 points, hitting 10 of 12 shots from the field, and had 16 rebounds. Jeff Lebo scored 18 points for the Tar Heels, followed by Joe Wolf's 14 and Curtis Hunter's 10.

North Carolina played its third game in a row without starting guard Steve Hale, out with a collapsed lung. Hale had 28 points in North Carolina's 95-92 victory over Duke earlier this season. The Tar Heels also were without Warren Martin, their top shot blocker, sidelined with a foot injury.

"Even with Warren and Steve back — and we expect them back by the tournament — Duke is still the No. 1 team," Smith said.

It was the 13th victory in a row for the Blue Devils after consecutive losses to North Carolina and Georgia Tech.

Duke led 37-34 at halftime and, paced by Dawkins and Henderson, went ahead 60-52 with 9:37 remaining on Amaker's three-point play. Four field goals by Daugherty, the Tar Heel center, and a jumper by Lebo reduced the Blue Devils' margin to 64-62 with just under seven minutes to go.

Henderson then scored the next seven points for Duke, which capitalized on Tar Heel turnovers and Daugherty's inability to connect on a pair of one-and-one free-throw situations.

Amaker's foul shot with 56 seconds left capped the 14-4 run which gave

JOHNNY DAWKINS

Duke a 78-66 advantage. North Carolina never got closer than six points thereafter, cutting the margin to 80-74 on Kenny Smith's jumper with 16 seconds to play.

Victory Nets Duke 'Storybook Ending'

Senior forward Mike Alarie called it "a storybook ending," and even Coach Mike Krzyzewski was unwilling to look beyond the biggest victory of his six years at Duke.

The top-ranked Blue Devils clinched the regular-season title in the Atlantic Coast Conference Sunday with an 82-74 victory over third-ranked North Carolina, getting 27 points from David Henderson, 21 from Johnny Dawkins and 16 from Alarie.

"It's like a dream come true," Alarie said, recalling the Blue Devils' 11-17 record in his freshman season. "I don't think anything could be finer than to beat Carolina."

The victory sent Duke, 29-2 and 12-2, into the ACC tournament next Friday as the No. 1 seed, while North Carolina finished third behind No. 4 Georgia Tech in the ACC regular-season standings. The Tar Heels finished at 26-4 and 10-4, while Georgia Tech was 23-4 and 11-3.

It was the first time since 1966 that the Tar Heels had not finished second or better.

"I'm not going to talk about what lies ahead," Krzyzewski said. "We're going to enjoy this. I'm not going to talk about the tournament or the NCAA's."

Lady Pirates Lose To James Madison

WILMINGTON — In a game that had 29 lead changes, James Madison's Lady Dukes placed four players in double-figures as they outmuscled East Carolina, 66-62, to win the Colonial Athletic Association's championship on Sunday at Trask Coliseum.

Alisa Harris led James Madison with 11 points, while Julie Franklin, Flo Jackson and Sandy Broughton chipped in 10 apiece. Lisa Squirewell, who was named the tournament's MVP, led the Lady Pirates with 18 points. Sylvia Bragg added 12 for ECU, which finished the season with a 23-6 record.

ECU Coach Emily Manwaring, who expected a close game, claimed the Lady Dukes played rough.

"We knew it was going to be an up and down game on the scoreboard," she said. "James Madison came down to play football."

However, Manwaring said the Lady Pirates didn't play up to par.

"We wanted to execute our offense a little better," Manwaring said. "And we didn't move to the ball very well on defense."

Manwaring praised Squirewell's play during the tournament and applauded her selection as the tournament's MVP.

"For somebody to make tournament MVP, somebody has to show a lot of class which she did," Manwaring said.

Along with Squirewell, ECU's Sylvia Bragg, James Madison's Alisa Harris, and Jodie Thornton and Kelly Lane, both of American, were named to the All-Tournament team.

For much of the game, the Lady Pirates had difficulty getting the ball inside against Harris and Franklin. The problems were intensified when ECU center Alma Bethea picked up her third foul and was forced to the bench.

After 17 lead changes in the first half, the Lady Dukes headed into the locker room with a 33-32 lead.

The game continued to go back and forth until ECU pulled ahead 45-41 with 12:55 left. But Broughton hit a five-foot jumper to knot it at 45-45 with 11:12 remaining.

With 7:14 left, Squirewell hit a 17-foot jumper to give the Lady Pirates a 52-51, but JMU bounced back and pulled ahead 57-51.

The score remained the same until Harris made a layup with 28 seconds to go, giving the Lady Dukes a 65-58 lead.

After Bragg sank two free throws, Jackson hit one of two to make it 66-60 with 19 seconds remaining.

Betha hit an eight-foot jumper with eight seconds left to close out the scoring and make the final score 66-62.

Breland Beats Richard Aguirre

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP) — Mark Breland stopped previously unbeaten Richard Aguirre 1½ minutes into the first round of a scheduled 10-round welterweight fight Sunday to earn his 10th professional victory and fifth knockout.

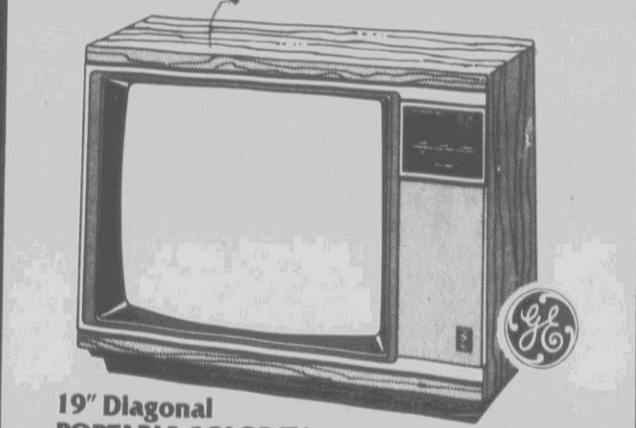

Breland, the 1984 Olympic gold medalist, used a quick left jab to set up a right that floored Aguirre, who was knocked down for the first time in his career.

Streaks End For NBA'ers

It was a dark day for 10-game winning streaks in the NBA.

For most of February, the Milwaukee Bucks and Detroit Pistons were unbeatable, but the double-digit runs by the Central Division rivals came to an end in Boston and Landover, Md. on Sunday.

"We had a good run, 10 in a row," Detroit Coach Chuck Daly said after the Celtics' 129-109 rout of the Pistons. "We're playing the best basketball we can, but they are, too. Their intensity was phenomenal."

Labonte Speeds To 6th Win

Nystrom Winner

LA QUINTA, Calif. (AP) — Fifth-seeded Joakim Nystrom defeated No. 4 seed Yannick Noah 6-1, 6-3, 6-2 in the final of the $405,000 Pilot Pen Classic men's tennis tournament Sunday.

Nystrom dominated the match from the outset, winning five straight games in the first set before a sellout crowd of 8,164 at La Quinta Hotel Tennis Club.

Nystrom won $55,250, while Noah received $27,625.

Evert Lloyd Victor

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Chris Evert Lloyd ended the giant-killing string of Kathy Jordan, winning 6-2, 6-4 Sunday in the finals of the $150,000 Virginia Slims of California.

Jordan began the match against Evert Lloyd less than 15 hours after toppling No. 1 Martina Navratilova 5-7, 6-3, 7-6 on Saturday night. In the second round of the tournament, Jordan had beaten third-seeded Hana Mandlikova in straight sets, 7-6 (9-7), 6-2.

Bounces Back

CORAL SPRINGS, Fla. (AP) — Kenny Knox holed out from off the green twice on his way to a 2-under-par 70 and a one-stroke victory Sunday in the $500,000 Honda Classic.

Knox, who twice lost his playing rights due to lack of performance, bounced back from an 80 Saturday to beat Clarence Rose and three others with a one-under-par 287 total on the TPC course at Eagle Trace.

The victory was worth $90,000, almost doubling the total amount Knox had won in the rest of his four career.

LPGA Action

COSTA MESA, Calif. (AP) — Mary Beth Zimmerman rolled in a five-foot birdie putt on the final hole of the $330,000 Uniden Invitational Sunday to win her second consecutive LPGA tournament, beating Laura Baugh by one stroke.

Zimmerman closed with birdies on the final three holes for a 1-under-par 71 at Mesa Verde Country Club. Baugh, who led by four shots going into the final round, struggled to a 76 that left her in a second-place tie with Pat Bradley.

Earnhardt Win

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (AP) — Dale Earnhardt outraced Jack Ingram Saturday in winning the Protecta Liner 200 auto race, his second straight Busch late model triumph.

Earnhardt wrestled the lead from Ingram for the final time just 28 laps from the end of the 200-mile event at North Carolina Motor Speedway.

Fangio Victor

MIAMI (AP) — Juan Manuel Fangio II of Argentina won his second straight Mazda InterAmerican Challenge Sunday, slipping past Tom Sneva in the 16th lap and pulling away to win by 3.387 seconds.

Sneva finished second, with Jack Baldwin third, Wally Dallenbach fourth and Willy T. Ribbs fifth. Fourteen of the 16 starters were in the lead lap at the finish.

Drug Grievance

NEW YORK (AP) — Keith Hernandez of the Mets, one of seven major leaguers slapped with a conditional one-year suspension for drug use, said Saturday that the players' union will file a grievance in an effort to overturn the ruling.

Hernandez refused to discuss his suspension, because of the pending grievance. Frank Cashen, the Mets general manager, said it was his understanding that a group grievance will be filed on behalf of all 21 players involved in the ruling announced by Commissioner Peter Ueberroth.

Top Coaches

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Billy Cunningham, Tom Heinsohn and Red Holzman, who became outstanding coaches after their playing careers, were elected to the Basketball Hall of Fame Saturday.

Also named were Ohio State's Coach Fred Taylor, whose 1960 squad won the NCAA championship, Stan Watts, who won eight conference titles at Brigham Young, and former collegiate referee Red Mihalik.

Road Racing

NEW YORK (AP) — Don Speranza of the New York Athletic Club was a 300-yard winner over Rich McNally of the Warren Street AC Saturday in the 25th Bob Preston Memorial 5-Mile race in Central Park. He finished with a time of 24 minutes, 9 seconds.

Cindi Gerard-Klein, in leading the Atlanta TC to the women's team championship with 10 points, was timed in 27:34, breaking the race record she set last year by 18 seconds.

By MIKE HARRIS
AP Motorsports Writer
ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (AP) — Terry Labonte said his victory in the Goodwrench 500 NASCAR stock car race has let the air out a pressure situation.

Labonte dominated Sunday's race, leading 304 of 492 laps, including the final 56, at North Carolina Motor Speedway. It was the sixth victory of his career and second on the 1.017-mile oval, but it was one that surprised some people.

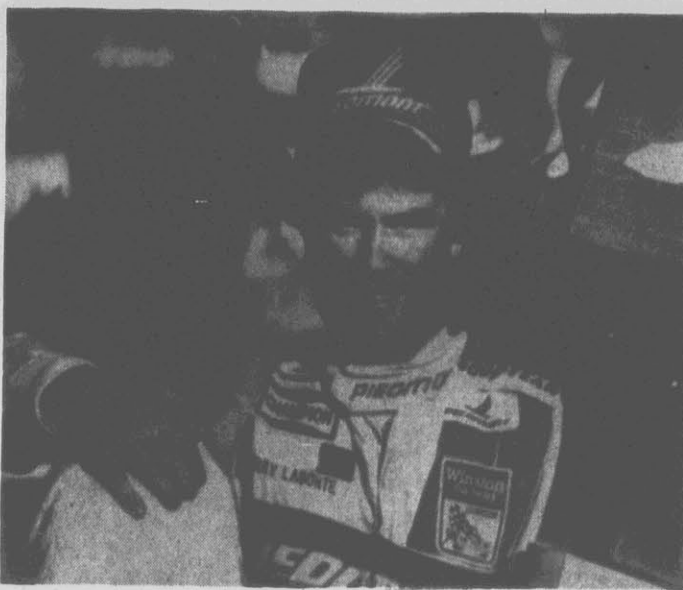

The doomsayers were strongly in evidence prior to the start of this season as Labonte's team tried to regroup after highly-regarded crew chief Dale Inman and assistant engine man Ken Wilson left late last season.

"I always felt we had a good team, even with the changes that took place," said Labonte, whose team is co-owned by Billy Hagan, Walter Wood and Wayne King. "But there were people who had doubts about our team. Some people felt we'd fall on our face. We just had to prove what we were capable of."

"This is the earliest in the season we've ever won a race and I'm really delighted."

The team has been reorganized with holdovers Steve Hmiel, Pete Wright and Labonte's father, Bob, acting as co-crew chiefs.

"It's a completely different situation," the younger Labonte said. "If somebody wants to try something, we try it. There's no arguments, nobody saying 'We can't do that.' It's a very good situation."

WINNER'S KISS — Terry Labonte of Trinity gets a victory kiss from his wife Kim Sunday in Victory Lane after he won the Goodwrench 500 stock car race at the North Carolina Motor Speedway in Rockingham. (AP Laserphoto)

A second-place finish last month in the Daytona 500 eased some of the tension. But Labonte finished 15th at Richmond last week.

"But this (victory) takes a lot of pressure off everybody," Labonte said. "We knew a lot of people were watching us."

Harry Gant managed to overcome lap loss early to finish a close second Sunday, driving his Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS across the finish line less than two car-lengths behind Labonte's Oldsmobile Delta 88.

He inherited the second spot 33 laps from the end when Geoff Bodine, the Daytona 500 winner who was in hot pursuit of Labonte, fell out of the race with a blown engine.

Gant was about three seconds behind Labonte, but he steadily cut into that margin until he was running less a second behind the leader over the last five laps.

"I was being a little too cautious with the lapped cars there at the end," Labonte said. "I felt when we had a clean lap, we could run faster than Harry. But any time he is in your mirror, you have to be concerned."

Gant, who has finished second here in three of the last five races, never thought he could catch Labonte, though.

"I'm tickled with the second because we had all kinds of trouble," Gant said. "We cut a tire down with about 50 laps to go. That cost us time. Then the car kept jumping out of gear. I had my hands everywhere trying to keep the car on the track and keep it in high gear."

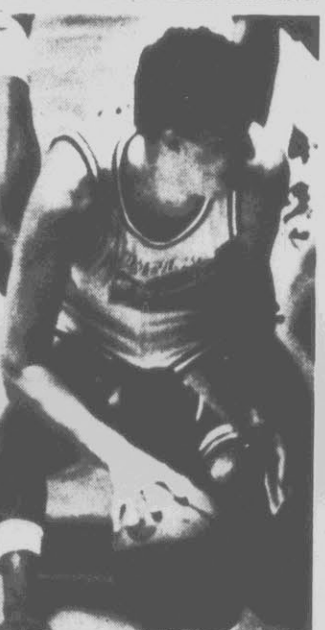

Richard Petty, the all-time victory leader at Rockingham with 11, was third, the only other competitor on the lead lap. Fourth-place went to Morgan Shepherd and fifth to Darrell Waltrip, both a lap down.

Waltrip's finish vaulted the defending champion into the Winston Cup lead with 490 points. Labonte moved up to second at 478, followed by Dale Earnhardt at 448 and previous leader Bodine at 440.

Jackets Victimize Tigers By 74-63 Score

ATLANTA (AP) — Emotion ruled the day in the final home game for Georgia Tech seniors Mark Price, John Salley and Jack Mansell and the Clemson Tigers were the victims.

Tech officials started Sunday's festivities by retiring Salley's and Price's jerseys. The fourth-ranked Yellow Jackets finished with a 74-63 Atlantic Coast Conference basketball victory over the Tigers.

"You start retiring jerseys and that sort of stuff and it only works in a positive manner," said Clemson Coach Cliff Ellis.

"Emotions carried us," said Salley, wearing lipstick on his cheek from many post-game kisses. "Going out there to play your last one, I've been thinking about this for I don't know how long, not knowing if I'm ready to get out of here or anything. But it's the last time you get to show your stuff."

"I just feel real fortunate to be a part of this program. I wasn't as emotional as I thought I would be," Price said. "It was my last game here, but not my last game. It'll be sad not playing anymore down there."

Salley scored 20 points and Price 16 as Tech never trailed in the game.

Tech wound up 11-3 in the ACC, in second place in the final standings, one game behind Duke and one ahead of North Carolina. Clemson wound up 3-11 and in seventh place, ahead of only Wake Forest, 0-14 in the league.

Tech, 23-5 overall, will meet Clemson, 17-13, again Friday night when the two teams collide at Greensboro, N.C., in the quarterfinals of the ACC tournament.

"Their shot-blocking ability was a big factor," Ellis said. Seven shots were blocked by the Jackets, including six by reserve center Antoine Ford. "It was intimidating defensively inside. It got to us."

"We obviously need to have a better shooting day when we play in the ACC tournament," Ellis said. "We must have better shooting from the wings. We'll have to have a great game to beat them. We must look at the film, throw out what did not work and make a comeback."

"I thought Antoine Ford was a real key today, no question about it," said

Tech Coach Bobby Cremins. "Price and Salley had great games. I knew it would be emotional, being their last game in the Coliseum."

Ueberroth's Decision's Just

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

Peter Ueberroth obviously labored long and hard over his drug ruling, since it was, after all, the most significant one of his 18-month tenure as commissioner of baseball.

Was it a just ruling? Well, the commissioner at least can be encouraged by the range of reactions it triggered. Hardliners thought he was too lenient. Softliners thought he was too punitive. That might mean he was right on target.

It was carrot and stick justice, administered on a sliding scale.

The carrot was the opportunity for drug offenders to continue in the game which made them rich enough to pursue their expensive extracurricular activities in the first place.

The stick for the most serious offenders was a 10 percent bite out of their salaries donated to rehabilitation programs, 100 hours of their spare time given to community service for the next two years, and permanent random drug testing as long as they continue to play. Other players were charged less in time and money, but all were invited to fill the testing bottles. That common denominator was the key to the commissioner's decision.

All of this might have to pass the scrutiny of an arbitrator because a grievance is almost certain to be filed. It was, though, an innovative solution, a handy method to enroll 21 more customers in the testing program that Ueberroth wants for all players, their union's continuing opposition notwithstanding.

There are, however, some unanswered questions. Most importantly, what happens to future offenders? It would be pollanna thinking to believe that this ruling will deter other players — perhaps current perhaps future — from sampling the forbidden fruit. Pete Rozelle's suspension of four pro football players a couple of years ago did not at all interfere with the recreational habits of the next generation of New England Patriots. After pro basketball's John Drew was swallowed up by drugs, Micheal Ray Richardson still followed him down the same destructive path.

Victims of this scourge always believe that they are the ones who can handle it, that they are the ones who won't be enslaved by it, that they are the ones who won't be caught.

Indeed, on the eve of his news conference and with the entire baseball community waiting for Ueberroth's decision, San Diego pitcher LaMarr Hoyt entered rehabilitation. It was ironic timing.

What happens to Hoyt and others who may be unfortunate enough to traverse this dark road? There was no policy outlined, no hard and fast rules to follow. There is a danger in that open end.

That is the advantage of the National Basketball Association's policy. It is easy to understand. Three strikes and you're out. Micheal Ray Richardson knew they were counting when he succumbed. He took his chances and he lost.

The Ueberroth 21 must submit to testing if they want to continue playing and that should be a deterrent. But it wasn't for Richardson. The siren song of cocaine precludes clear, reasonable thinking by its victims. If they were thinking clearly and reasonably, they would not have become involved with the junk in the first place.

Suppose one of them tests positive in the midst of a pennant race. Is he suspended on the spot? What of his team and the integrity of the championship chase? Is he allowed to

ECU Track

In an unofficial quarter-mile, Phil Estes finished first in a time of 48.79, while James Blue finished second at 49.10.

Dish Dealers Plan Rally

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Satellite dish dealers plan to lug hundreds of 10-and 12-foot dishes to the state Capitol Hill to protest signal scrambling by cable companies, an organizer says.

The newly formed Tennessee Satellite Dealers Association plans to take the "dish caravan" to Legislative Plaza on Wednesday, the eve of congressional hearings on scrambling in Washington.

"We hope to bring attention to the issues involved in scrambling and also call attention to the events taking place the next day in Washington," said Bill Brittain, the dealers' executive director.

He said the association was formed, with chapters in Memphis, Knoxville and Nashville, to protest scrambling by Home Box Office and Cinemax, two "premium" movie channels. Other cable stations also plan scrambling.

Dish owners can receive signals from HBO and Cinemax only by buying a $395 decoder and paying the full price of the cable service, he said, and they're concerned about the "unreasonable" cost of the services.

"We ... have always advocated paying for the program services, but to have to pay a 1,000 percent markup, when the cable companies are paying just a few dollars for a service which they resell to subscribers, is ridiculous," he said.

Sen. Albert Gore Jr., D-Tenn., introduced a bill in the Senate that calls for cable companies to offer programs to satellite dish owners at a "fair and reasonable price." U.S. Rep. Jim Cooper, D-Tenn., is a sponsor of a similar bill in the House.

Network News Shows Will Maintain Mobility

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — In the five years that the "CBS Evening News," Dan Rather reporting, has been on the air, the world has become a much smaller place, thanks to the new satellite technology that allows television to put today's news on tonight.

On March 9, 1981, Rather and his V-neck sweater replaced Walter Cronkite. Before long, the top-rated broadcast was providing more foreign news and shifting the emphasis in domestic news away from Washington-dated reports.

"Five years ago, we got out of Washington because we wanted to keep up with the technology," said Rather. "Now we don't have to do Washington stories just out of necessity. We can take you to the place where those decisions have an immediate effect."

When CBS used to round up a cross section of public reactions to a news event, it had to rely on its big-city bureaus. "Now we can go to the Boise, Idaho, of the world, and that broadens the base of understanding," said Lane Venardos, executive producer of the "CBS Evening News."

In the last five years, ABC and NBC also have used the new technology to cover a shrinking world, while refocusing their national coverage toward more human and personal stories. "People watch people," said Timothy J. Russert, an NBC News vice president.

Like CBS, ABC and NBC also tapped younger anchors for their evening newscasts in the early 1980s. Tom Brokaw replaced John Chancellor on the "NBC Nightly News" and Peter Jennings became sole anchor of "World News Tonight" after Frank Reynolds died and ABC scrapped its three-anchor format.

Last week, the three newscasts showed remarkable parity in popularity, with the "CBS Evening News" recording its 199th consecutive victory, but winning by only one tenth of a ratings point — the closest "Nightly News" has been in four years.

With the "Evening News" on the verge of No. 200 and with Rather's 10-year contract exactly at the halfway point, it seemed an appropriate time to gaze out five years and ponder the future of the networks' evening newscasts — those 30-minute combinations of headlines, news reports and features that shape the world for many Americans.

"They'll look a lot like they do today," said Jeff Gralnick, former executive producer of "World News Tonight" and now an ABC News vice president for special programming. "They'll continue to be the nation's evening newspaper."

ANSWER TO WEEKLY BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠AK93 ♠A1054 ♠A ♣AQ82
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♣ Pass 1 ♠ Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—How did such an easy question slip into this quiz? Despite a possible misfit, your hand is just too strong for any action other than a jump shift. We would choose two hearts, to give partner the opportunity of bidding spades at the two-level. The one bid we would not contemplate is three no trump: you have an unbalanced hand and should make every effort to locate a fit.

Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠83 ♠J652 ♠QJ5 ♣A876
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♣ Pass 1 NT Pass
3 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—You have an awkward rebid to make. You don't want to bid three no trump with only a single club stopper and a shaky stopper in the suit you have bid, and you shouldn't raise partner's second suit with only three-card support. Since partner's jump shift is forcing to game, the solution is to make a temporizing "preference" of three spades, and wait for partner to clarify his holding.

Q.3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠Q6 ♠AKQ3 ♠95 ♣Q7632
Your right-hand opponent opens the bidding with one diamond. What action do you take?

A.—You certainly want to get into the auction, but you can't afford a takeout double: should partner respond to such action with one spade, you would be in an untenable position; to bid two clubs then would show a much better hand than you have. Your club suit is not good enough for a two-level overcall, so that leaves just one option: one heart. You don't like to take such action, even at the one-level, on a four-card suit, but this is clearly the right hand for it.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠85 ♠AQJ103 ♠KQ5 ♣AQ3
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♣ Pass 2 ♠ Pass

What action do you take?
A.—Unless partner has hidden heart support, you have surely located an adequate trump suit. Now you have to tell partner about your strength, and a jump to four diamonds tells about your high-card values and the quality of your support. The alternative is a high reverse of three clubs, but that could lead to complications.

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠AQ76 ♠A98 ♠107 ♣KQ83
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 NT Pass Pass Dble
Pass 2 ♠ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Since most doubles of no trump contracts are for penalties, you can't expect much from partner in the way of high cards—with anything in the way of defense, he would have been happy to pass. All you can hope for from partner is diamond length, and the best spot for your side is right where you are now. Pass.

Q.6—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠Q763 ♠A ♠10952 ♣A632
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
Pass Pass 1 ♣ Pass
1 ♠ Pass Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—With so much of your strength concentrated in the opponents' suits, this is a close decision. However, the bidding of the opponents has made it clear that they do not have a great preponderance of the strength, and you should certainly find partner with some length in one of the unbid suits. We would make a takeout double.

Alamo Remembered

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Vice President George Bush helped thousands of fellow Texans remember the Alamo on the 150th anniversary of Texas' Declaration of Independence, saying the defenders of the old mission didn't die in vain. 'Without the Alamo, there would have been no Texas,' Bush told 4,000 people at the shrine in San Antonio on Sunday, after riding in a covered wagon to lead a parade. The 188 Texas defenders killed by Mexican troops during the 13-day siege of the Alamo fought for freedom and democracy, he said. The sesquicentennial is a salute to those who died building the state and those who have made Texas a special place, said Bush.

Martin Preparing 10-Year Prison Plan

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — The Martin administration this week will unveil one of its major policy initiatives: a 10-year plan for reducing overcrowding in North Carolina's prison system.

The topic isn't one that grabs everyone's attention. But as Martin noted in his Jan. 25 "Report to the People," the issue cannot be ignored "unless we want to have the federal courts running our lives once more."

Estimates of the number of inmates exceeding the capacity of North Carolina prisons range from 1,000 to 4,500. The administration adopted the latter figure recently, basing it on the federal standard of a minimum 50 square feet per inmate.

The state's prison population of late has hovered around 17,700, according to John Higgins, deputy secretary for policy and planning in the Department of Correction. Under the federal 50-foot standard, there should be no more than 13,000 inmates in the system at a time.

Without fundamental reforms, the limit could be exceeded by 10,000 within 10 years, warns Jack Hawke, the Martin administration's director of policy and planning. A more likely scenario, however, is that the federal courts would intervene as they did last year in Tennessee.

There, prison crowding was so severe that the courts appointed an official to overhaul the system. The Tennessee Legislature finally convened in special session, appropriated money for new prisons and made other improvements.

Danger signals are on the North Carolina horizon as well. A federal lawsuit last year forced the General Assembly to allocate $12.4 million to eliminate triple bunking and otherwise improve conditions in all prisons in the Southeast Piedmont region. A dozen similar suits are pending.

Everyone involved agrees the state should take all possible steps to avoid its own version of the Tennessee problem. But there are sharply differing ideas on what to do, and the June legislative session may see lively debate between those who want less incarceration of non-violent offenders and adherents to the lock-'em-up philosophy.

The Martin administration, fully aware of the issue's potential political explosiveness, is charting a middle-of-the-road course, hoping the plan does not get bogged down in the partisan skirmishing that bedeviled last year's tax reform initiative.

"It's not really a partisan matter," Higgins said. "We all have the same priorities — first, protect the public. Then you concentrate on punishing the offender and, hopefully, rehabilitating him. ... We're trying to solve on a long-term basis the problem as we see it, without having to stick a Band-Aid on it every two years."

Officials are guarding carefully the details of the governor's multimillion-dollar program, which he is expected to release at his regularly scheduled news conference Thursday.

But the general direction it will take is no secret, having been discussed publicly by Martin and his aides for weeks. And, as Higgins said in an interview last week, there are only three ways to reduce overcrowding: build more prisons, put fewer people behind bars, and release more quickly those who are incarcerated.

To those ends, Martin likely will propose:

— Expanding the state's intensive probation program by hiring about 77 new probation officers, who would supervise closely nearly 1,000 criminals judged not to be dangerous to society or themselves.

The influential Joint Legislative Commission on Governmental Operations, possibly anticipating that proposal, agreed Feb. 20 to recommend that lawmakers appropriate $2.7 million annually to hire a nearly identical number of probation officers.

— Contracting with the private sector to build and operate one or more minimum-security prisons, an unprecedented step for North Carolina.

Critics of private prisons, with which a number of states including Tennessee are experimenting, say the criminal justice system should stay entirely within the government's domain. They worry that a private company, motivated by the necessity of turning a profit, might cut corners and do other things not in the inmates' best interests.

Higgins says private construction would benefit the state because it would not have to make huge, up-front capital expenditures. He says the administration would contract with private builders only if certain the deal would save the state money. Also, he said, the contract would relieve the state of liability for damages resulting from any lawsuit alleging mistreatment of inmates at the private facility.

Even so, legislators have reacted warily to the private prison concept. Selling it will be a monumental task for the administration.

The administration also is likely to propose increased reliance on community-based alternatives to incarceration, such as halfway houses and adult treatment centers, plus community service and restitution.

Robbery Death

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — One restaurant employee was shot to death and two others were wounded during the armed robbery of a Western Steer Family Steakhouse, police said.

Sgt. Ted Clodfelter said Robert Page died early today after undergoing surgery at High Point Regional Hospital. The two other restaurant workers were in stable condition at the hospital's intensive care unit, he said.

The robbery occurred at 11:40 p.m. Sunday. Two suspects fled in a red Nissan belonging to a restaurant employee, Clodfelter said. The car was abandoned near Archdale and the suspects remained at large, he said.

House Fire

ELON COLLEGE, N.C. (AP) — Four people died Sunday morning in an Alamance County house fire, officials said.

Marie Patrick, 50, her son Mark Patrick, 27, and family friends William Turner, 43, and Josephine Pinnix, 60, were pronounced dead after the Alamance County medical examiner arrived at the scene, said P.M. Faust, a spokeswoman with the Alamance County Sheriff's Department. A second son, Wallace Earl Patrick, 35, survived the blaze.

All three Patricks and Turner lived in the house while Ms. Pinnix was a guest, Mrs. Faust said.

The fire was reported about 12:50 a.m. by Wallace Patrick, who told sheriff's deputies he was awakened by a noise and escaped through his first-floor bedroom window, Mrs. Faust said.

Fire Death

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — A 45-year-old man critically burned when a chair he was strapped into caught fire at Raleigh Community Hospital died Sunday at North Carolina Memorial Hospital in Chapel Hill, authorities said.

L.B. Eleby died about 8:50 a.m. of cardiorespiratory failure resulting from burns suffered Saturday, said Richard Bias, a spokesman for N.C. Memorial. Eleby suffered second- and third-degree burns over 80 percent of his body in the fire.

Anita Nyberg, an assistant nursing director at Raleigh Community, said Eleby had to be strapped into his chair to hold his body and head up properly. Eleby, who hospital officials said was mentally retarded, had been left alone no more than four minutes when the fire began, Harrison T. Ferris, a Raleigh Community administrator, said Sunday.

Jail Fire

SMITHFIELD, N.C. (AP) — Thirteen inmates in Johnston County Jail escaped injury Saturday night when an inmate set fire to his bed sheets, jailer William V. Jones said.

Jones said the inmate, whom he declined to identify, used matches, sheets and papers to start the fire around 9:30 p.m. in a cell he shared with 12 other people. Jones said he did not know of a motive behind the action.

The fire was put out with a fire extinguisher by the time Smithfield firefighters arrived, Jones said. The inmates were evacuated briefly to let the smoke clear and then returned.

Editor Says Schools Boosting Censorship

By TOM MINEHART
Associated Press Writer

Censorship of books could be avoided if parents talk more to their children about what they're reading and discover what the books are trying to say, the editor of a national publication on teen-age reading says.

"I think parents and teachers and librarians who have an opportunity to talk to kids are missing the boat by not doing that," Dr. Arthea Reed, editor of the ALAN Review and an associate professor of education at the University of North Carolina at Asheville, said. "They wouldn't need censorship if they would talk about what they're reading."

ALAN — the Assembly on Literature for Adolescents of the National Council of Teachers of English — is one of several organizations of teachers concerned about censorship. Another is the International Reading Association, whose Intellectual Freedom Committee of North Carolina is trying to document the frequency of censorship attempts in this state.

Ms. Reed, chairman of the committee, said in one school system, the librarian has set up a discussion group for parents who read the books their middle-school children are reading and talk about them.

In another case, Ms. Reed had a student teacher working with a teacher who was so worried about parental reaction that she refused to start a paperback library in the classroom. Ms. Reed helped work out a compromise where the parents would have the opportunity to preview the books, then sign a contract giving their children permission to read them.

"We shouldn't even have to do that," she said. "For whatever reason, professional educators don't have the respect they had when I went to school. Parents don't trust teachers to select good materials."

Ms. Reed said the increasing efforts to censor books available to young people in schools and libraries are "limiting the entire country's ability to think."

"It's limiting our young people's (opportunity) to read a wide variety of materials and come to their own conclusions, to select their own books and to become mature adults and mature readers," she said.

"It's limiting the entire country's ability to think, to make decisions based on our freedoms."

Efforts at censorship occur in a fifth of the nation's schools every year and succeed in half of the cases, said Ms. Reed.

"A lot of cases never get to court or see the light of day," she said, however. "It appears so far from our surveys from teachers that it (censorship) is far more frequent than anybody realized. Sometimes there are parents coming in and asking that the book be removed, then books in fact are removed so it appears no problem occurred."

"We're also trying to find out how much self-censorship goes on — teachers who remove books because they're afraid of criticism from parents and administration. That seems to be more prevalent than it is not."

Censorship attempts are aimed at books "all over the spectrum," said Ms. Reed.

Lawmakers Suggest Tax Penalties

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — North Carolina could recover more than $10 million in overdue taxes with the marriage of bills that would create a 90-day amnesty period and stiffen penalties for delinquent taxpayers, two lawmakers say.

"This could help us pay for the additional highway patrolmen we need or help pave some roads," Sen. William W. Redman Jr., R-Iredell, said. "And it's revenue that's already out there without the need to raise taxes."

Redman and Rep. Stephen W. Wood, R-Guilford, said they may try to combine separate bills they introduced last year to recover the tax revenue.

Redman, whose legislation would boost the penalty for tax cheating from a six-month misdemeanor to a five-year felony, said he would ask Gov. Jim Martin this week to support the proposal.

"In the light of the current austerity we're going to see from the Gramm-Rudman cutbacks, I don't see how the legislature can cough at this as a revenue generator," said Wood, whose bill would create the one-time amnesty period.

Eighteen other states have made similar attempts to recover overdue taxes.

South Carolina raised $6 million when it tried a three-month amnesty period late last year. A similar program in New York, which followed the amnesty with tougher penalties, generated $334 million in back taxes.

Redman's bill has passed the Senate and is awaiting action in a House judiciary committee, while Wood's measure lies in the Senate Appropriations Committee, after having taken a circuitous route through the House. Some of the resistance to his amnesty plan came from the state Revenue Department.

J. Ward Purrington, a deputy revenue commissioner last year, said the department wasn't convinced in the last session that Wood's bill would bring much money in back taxes unless there were tougher penalties for future violators.

Purrington, who is Martin's legislative liaison this year, says both bills look much better this time around.

Norma Jean Steals Show With Her Formal Debut

LUMBERTON, N.C. (AP) — A few months ago Norma Jean Sattler was just another lady living high on the hog, nibbling lobster and Godiva chocolates, but now she's become Lumberton's most celebrated porcine debutante.

The 20-month-old, 600-pound hog was formally introduced to Lumberton society on Saturday, National Pig Day, during a black-tie party hosted by her owners, Dr. Raymond Sattler, a neurosurgeon, and his wife, Debbie.

"We just wanted to have a good time and thought a spoof on the debutante ball would be fun," Mrs. Sattler said. "A lot of people in Lumberton have heard of Norma Jean, and we wanted to give them a chance to meet her."

Norma Jean, who has been the subject of stories in the Wall Street Journal, Reader's Digest and on network television programs, bathed in shampoo before TV cameras and newspaper photographers in a ceremonial hogwash anticipating the festivities.

A limousine carried the red-bristled Duroc to the party. The 1984 Cadillac stretch limousine provided Norma Jean with her own bar, sun roof, color TV and video-cassette recorder. The driver, James Baxley of Fayetteville, said he showed "Porky's" during the three-mile ride.

Named for Marilyn Monroe — the former Norma Jean Baker — Norma Jean Sattler stepped from the limousine onto a pillow as guests, photographers and interested area residents watched.

Red carpet was rolled out at the front door, and Norma Jean's introduction was highlighted by a brass fanfare, "Das Heldenschweinielid," composed for her by William Fritz, a music professor at Pembroke State University. Later in the evening his wife, Cindy Fritz, sang "Pig Of My Heart."

Dressed in pink tutu, white feather boa, rhinestone drop earrings and tiara, Norma Jean also wore her favorite perfume, Oscar de la Renta.

For the evening, ladies were presented pink long-stemmed roses as they entered the party. Guests were served Korbel Natural Champagne, hors d'oeuvres and Godiva chocolates — Norma Jean's favorite.

She was presented with a chocolate key to the city by Lumberton mayor Coble Wilson Jr., who read a resolution proclaiming March 1, 1986, "Pig Day" in Lumberton.

An ice-carving of a hog in a field of pink tulips served as a centerpiece.

Some 300 people attended the affair, and about 50 media representatives converged on the town for the gala.

"I never knew it would grow to such proportions," said Dr. Carl Hoffman of Lumberton, who, along with his wife, Norma, and Lumberton friends Dr. Nick and Jan Fax, had given a 10-day old, 10-pound Norma Jean to Sattler as a joke for his 40th birthday.
