City To Seek Another Election Alternative

By SUE HINSON
Reflector Staff Writer

City officials said today they will contact election method consultant Bobby Bowers of South Carolina to request information on another alternative to Greenville's current at-large method of election.

Hired by the city in May 1985 to come up with recommendations on an election system to replace Greenville's method of election, Bowers has drawn plans for three possible systems of election for Greenville.

According to City Manager Gail Meeks, Bowers will be asked to submit details on a 7-2-1 election system recently proposed by Councilwoman Lorraine Shinn.

Mrs. Shinn, in a March 17 council session, said she was not satisfied that an election system proposal considered as acceptable by Greenville's black community represented the best interests of area voters and asked that the council consider having another plan drawn.

At the March 17 meeting, Mrs. Shinn said she was in favor of a 4-2-1 plan for the city despite the lack of black community support for the proposal. She said, however, that since the plan probably could not pass U.S. Justice Department inspection without minority support, that she would like to see additional plans providing for more at-large representation.

Black community leaders have said they favor a 5-1-1 proposal that provides for five single-member districts and election of one council member and the mayor at-large.

Opposition to the 4-2-1 plan is based on minority community concern that student dormitory population included in a predominantly black district could adversely affect chances of a black City Council representative being elected. The 4-2-1 plan provides for four single-member districts and election of two council members and the mayor at-large. The 5-1-1 plan does not include university dormitory population in predominantly black voting districts.

A third plan, 6-0-1, providing for six single-member districts and at-large election of the mayor is also being considered by the council.

According to City Attorney Mac McCarley, the city will ask Bowers to develop the 7-2-1 plan which would retain a significant at-large component without using the dormitory population that is of concern to area minority citizens.

According to Bowers and McCarley, the 4-2-1 plan, is legally vulnerable without minority support.

"If minorities are fearful of the plan and are objecting, it could be a close shot to fight," Bowers said in a recent telephone interview.

Student Discounts Campus Influence

By SUE HINSON

Greenville blacks should consider East Carolina University students an asset rather than a detriment in their bid to ensure proportional minority representation in local government, according to ECU student representative David Brown.

"We are not a threat ... We don't want people to fear us, but apparently that is the case," Brown said in a recent interview.

Brown, president of the ECU Student Government Association, said he has carried to blacks his message about the positive factors of including the student dormitory population in a minority district proposed under an alternate method of election being considered for Greenville. He said, however, that fears about the possible impact of the student vote on municipal elections continue to be a concern for blacks — a concern he said he really does not understand.

"I have told some of the minority leaders we can be an asset, that we can help, that students are inclined to

Libya Fires Missile

Earlier story on page 9

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States sent several ships and waves of fighter planes across Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy's "line of death" today amid unconfirmed reports the Libyans had fired at least one anti-aircraft missile at the U.S. planes.

Pentagon sources acknowledged they had received fragmentary reports from the 6th Fleet that a missile — probably a Soviet-made SA-5 surface-to-air missile — had been fired toward American planes.

But the sources refused to immediately confirm the firing, saying they were awaiting additional information from the fleet. The sources said they had received no word of any American plane being hit by a missile.

Robert Sims, the Pentagon's chief spokesman, also declined comment on the matter, saying reports of hostile action had not been confirmed.

According to the sources, the first U.S. flights over the Gulf of Sidra, which Khadafy claims as Libyan waters, began late Sunday night EST.

The initial flights were uneventful, said the sources, who agreed to discuss the matter only if not identified.

By early today in Washington, however, the three U.S. aircraft carriers now steaming off Libya's coast had sent additional planes on reconnaissance flights into the gulf and they began to detect evidence of increased Libyan military activity.

The sources said that evidence included an increasing number of Libyan planes taking off from military bases.

The sources added there had been no reports of dogfights between U.S. and Libyan jets.

The Libyans recently received several batteries of SA-5 missiles from the Soviet Union. Pentagon officials disclosed last month that on the basis of classified intelligence reports, it appeared some of those missiles had been installed and activated.

THICK SMOKE — Greenville firefighters wearing self-contained breathing equipment attempt to put water on a fire at Farr Carr Inc. at 1530 S. Evans St. Sunday night. The fire, the second in less than a month at the auto parts store, destroyed a major portion of the building, officials said. Agents of the State Bureau of Investigation are assisting local fire and police investigators in efforts to determine the cause of the fire. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

SBI Investigating Fire

The State Bureau of Investigation along with local fire and police officials are investigating the cause of a late-night fire that destroyed a major portion of the Farr Carr Inc. auto parts store at 1530 S. Evans St., according to Fire-Rescue Department Chief Jenness Allen.

Allen said the fire was reported at 11:03 p.m. Sunday. Smoke pouring out of the building was so heavy that firefighters were forced to back out when they attempted to enter the two-story cement block structure, Allen said. He said efforts to cut a hole in the side of the building were also hampered by the intense smoke and heat.

The chief said it took firemen 1½ hours to bring the fire under control. One fire truck remained at the scene throughout the night.

"The main part of the building was a complete loss," Allen said, although he said a storage area at the rear escaped damage and a one-story section at the front was not heavily damaged.

The heaviest concentration of fire appeared to be in an area where paint and paint thinner were stored, according to Allen.

Sunday night's fire was the second fire this month at Farr Carr, Allen said. A pre-dawn fire March 7 caused heavy damage to a storage area where several hundred gallons of paint, thinner and related items were stored, he said.

Pitt County tax records indicate the Farr Carr Building, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Jammie Taylor of Route 7, Greenville, was valued at $33,640, while the equipment and inventory, listed to Farr Carr Inc., was valued at $41,759 in January.

APPEAL TO SPINAL CORD INJURED

Persons having spinal cord injuries are invited to contact the Pitt County Memorial Hospital's Regional Rehabilitation Center's Patient and Family Services Department.

Jean Ellis, a social worker in that department, wants to make reservations for each to attend a Spinal Cord Injury Spring Fling to be held April 5 from 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at the rehab center. A resource fair, lunch, and entertainment will be included in the event.

Mrs. Ellis said the rehab center does not have a complete registry of spinal cord injured persons in the area and needs this information in order to include everyone who should be included. Her phone number is 757-4490.

Filipino Rebels Ready For Negotiations

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Communist rebels today indicated for the first time they are willing to negotiate with the new government of President Corazon Aquino for a nationwide cease-fire.

The Communist Party of the Philippines and the communist-dominated National Democratic Front issued separate statements through a known rebel leader, Antonio Zummel, who was interviewed by Filipino reporters at an undisclosed location. Several reporters confirmed the interview took place.

"With just, sincere and prudent moves of the concerned parties, a negotiated cease-fire is possible on a nationwide scale," said a printed statement from the party and the "General Staff of the New People's Army," the party's rebel army. The statement was dated March 18 but previously had not been made public.

Meanwhile, a national television newscaster reported the government will proclaim a "revolutionary government" abolishing the National Assembly and giving Mrs. Aquino "nearly absolute powers."

However, presidential spokesman Rene Saguisag told The Associated Press that reports on the proclamation to be signed Tuesday are "highly speculative, hypothetical and premature." He said he has seen several drafts, and "I don't think the word revolutionary has been used, even once." Saguisag, informed of the rebel willingness to discuss a cease-fire, said it would have to be evaluated. "It would help if they would stop shooting in the meantime," he said.

A Cabinet official gave reporters a draft of a proposed new constitution last week.

OPEC Falls Short Of Agreement

GENEVA (AP) — OPEC oil ministers ended nine days of negotiations today with no agreement on a comprehensive strategy to reverse the oil market decline, and their failure to resolve the crisis sent prices into a fresh dive.

James Audu, a spokesman for the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, said the 13 ministers would resume negotiations April 15 in an effort to agree on major cuts in oil production.

Oil futures prices dropped sharply after the adjournment. On the New York Mercantile Exchange the May delivery price of West Texas Intermediate, the main U.S. crude and an important market indicator, dropped to $11.20 a barrel, down $2.74 from Friday's closing price, before recovering to just over $12.

"There's a very bearish mood this morning, there's a very negative feeling right now with panic-type selling," said Peter Beutel, assistant manager of Rudolf Wolff Futures Inc., a New York commodities futures firm. "It's crazy right now." Analysts had predicted that without an accord on reducing output, world oil prices would remain near currently depressed levels of about $15 a barrel or would fall even further.

Los Angeles analyst Dan Lundberg said Sunday that retail gasoline prices have fallen more than 24 cents a gallon since January to an average of 95.7 cents a gallon.

Audu said in a brief official statement that the talks broke off "in order to allow OPEC heads of delegation to consult with their governments as well as with other oil-producing countries."

He declined to answer questions. The cartel's president, Arturo Hernandez Grisanti of Venezuela, did not hold the usual news briefing that follows OPEC conferences.

Talking Surgery? Get Second Opinion

DEAR ABBY: Re the woman who hated her thin legs and inquired about silicone injections to make them more shapely: You advised her to consult three plastic surgeons before making that decision. Very good advice, Abby. I hope she took it.

Seventeen years ago, I consulted a plastic surgeon about the identical problem. My big mistake was consulting only one doctor. He assured me that silicone augmentation to fill out my calves was a simple procedure and involved very little risk.

I went ahead with it, and within a few days I noticed that the silicone had started to run down my ankle area! Not only did it look terrible, it was very painful when bumped. Shortly afterward, this doctor left town suddenly and was not to be found. A few years later, I read in the newspaper that he had been charged with wrongful death and malpractice suits in another state.

Now I must wrap my legs with Ace bandages daily and elevate my legs periodically to keep the silicone out of the ankle area. However, the silicone still gradually migrates down to my ankles.

Please keep repeating your advice to those who inquire about any kind of surgical procedure to get a second opinion. And a third is better yet.

SORRY I DIDN'T

DEAR SORRY: And I am sorry I didn't repeat this column that ran a year and a half ago:

DEAR ABBY: I am a healthy, active, 46-year-old man whose doctor told me I needed a triple (and possibly a quadruple) bypass operation immediately! It came as a shock to me because I had never had heart trouble of any kind. This news came to me on May 2, 1983. On the following day, I read something in your column that I believe was more than a coincidence. It was as though the good Lord had sent a message to me through you.

I acted on your recommendation and got not only a second opinion, but a third, and both doctors told me I did not need heart surgery. When I told my first doctor about the opinions of the other two doctors, he suggested that since I had so little confidence in his professional judgment, I should find another doctor. I did.

Please run the enclosed column again. And run it every year. Sign me ...

ALSO WISED UP IN SUNNY CALIFORNIA

DEAR ALSO: I will. And here it is:

DEAR ABBY: Thank you so much for printing the government's Second Surgical Opinion Hotline. (The toll-free number is 1-800-638-6833; in Maryland, it's 1-800-492-6603.) It's easy to see why you titled your column "Second Opinion Likely to Offend Doctor." It's been my experience that asking your original doctor for the name of a second-opinion specialist poses no problem for him. He will simply refer you to someone down the hall, in the same building or belonging to the same country club who will invariably corroborate his own opinion.

I cannot stress enough the importance of seeking out specialists totally independent from one another for second (and third and fourth) opinions in surgical or medical matters. Find a different doctor who will really take an objective look at your case, without regard to ego, fear of loss of control over a patient, his wallet, or any other irrelevant (to you) issues.

WISED UP IN SANTA BARBARA

DEAR WISED: I deserve no credit (or blame) for the headlines—they're dreamed up either by my syndicate editors or local editors.

Concerning second opinions: The Department of Health and Human Services offers a brochure titled "Thinking of Having Surgery?" It's excellent and it's free. So if you (or someone you care about) is considering any kind of surgery, write to Surgery, Dept. HHS, Washington, D.C. 20201, and request its brochure. You can also receive the brochure by calling the hotline number and requesting a copy.

CONFIDENTIAL TO YOU: Easter is nearly here, so if you plan to surprise a child with a gift, such as a live rabbit or a baby chick, please consider this: Living creatures need proper care, so unless you are certain that the rabbit or chick will receive the care it needs to survive, please give a stuffed bird or animal instead. Living creatures are not "toys" to be mauled, abused or neglected.

DEAR ABBY: A good friend of mine in Farmington Hills, Mich., recently sent me some of your columns from the Detroit News. The subject: "Where do the people of Scotland, Great Britain and Wales get their strange eating habits?"

I think the question should be, "Where did you Americans acquire yours?" Although I am a Welshman, I believe I know the answer.

Much of the early eating in the States was done on the trail. Since it was probably more comfortable to eat in the saddle than to sit on the ground, the cowpoke remained mounted, feeding himself with his right hand while using his left hand to prevent his falling off his horse. This undoubtedly accounts for the predominant use of the right hand in the United States.

Further on the subject of insularity, while on a flight from Chicago to Akron, Ohio, I was engaged in a conversation with a matronly woman. After some time she asked, "What is your mother tongue, young man?" She looked at me with astonishment when I replied, "It's English."

After she had recovered her composure, she drawled grudgingly, "Well, I guess they can speak it over there, too."

No doubt, Shakespeare turned in his grave.

Views On Dental Health
Kenneth T. Perkins, D.D.S., P.A.
BEWARE THE "PERFECT" LOOK

Maybe you think perfectly aligned teeth are an ideal that everyone should aspire to with the help of their dentist. But it is not unusual for teeth to shift out of line somewhat as people get older. Even teeth that seem to be lined up perfectly in childhood or adolescence may not remain that way when a person reaches adulthood. This is a natural consequence of their use in chewing food. Some teeth tend to pivot or jut out slightly, though this may not be very noticeable to the unpracticed eye. Unless there is malocclusion (improper bite problem), a minor misalignment may not be a serious problem.

For this reason, it is not recommended that anyone past the age of 35 select even, white teeth for partial or full dentures. If they are TOO even or TOO white they will not look natural and will not make a person look younger. Let your dentist help you select dentures that appear natural in color, shape, and size. Good false teeth do not beg to be seen. When they fit well and look natural, hardly anyone will notice the difference.

If you are interested in partials or dentures, call my office for an appointment. I will be happy to talk with you and help you select what looks natural for you.

Belts Come Full Circle From Fashions Far Back In History

NEW YORK (AP) — This season's wide, ornamented belts have come back to their beginnings, with a history spanning more than 1,500 years, say researchers at the Italian Trade Commission.

"In ancient civilizations the belt — or 'girdle' — was purely functional," says Rita Doganieri, associate director of the commission. "It first appeared as a thong to gird the waist or a sash to confine the loose, flowing tunics worn by the Egyptians."

Centuries later, in the Middle Ages, leather became the standard material for belts worn by men to carry small money pouches, keys and daggers, she adds. Women of the same era carried their pouches, combs and rosaries underneath full skirts. These items were attached to long chains that were hung from a "chatelaine" — a metal plate affixed to a girdle.

"As class structure became increasingly important, these functional girdles evolved into a highly ornamental, often status-telling detail of dress," Doganieri adds.

During the opulent Byzantine period, belts became more fashionable and less functional, she notes. In this era, Greek and Roman artisans flocked to Constantinople, the rich and fashionable capital of the Roman Empire, where they sold leather belts embellished with large gold disks and jewels.

These fashions spread to Rome and western Europe, and it was not long before girdles of gold, silk, tapestry and other precious materials were worn by French noblewomen. Their only claim to utility was to secure the tunic fashionably in place just above the hips, Doganieri points out.

Purely decorative belts became the most important accessory in the 14th century, when men and women adopted fitted garments as the mode of dress. The focal point of this newly defined fashion was a massive hip belt, usually crafted entirely in precious metals.

Disks or plaques of gold and bronze were engraved, filigreed and set with stones and enamel. The gem-encrusted pieces were hinged together or sewn to a band of ribbon or velvet.

"The extravagance displayed in these one-of-a-kind belts was staggering," Doganieri says. "In fact, prophecies of that era preached doom to the noble wearers of elaborate girdles."

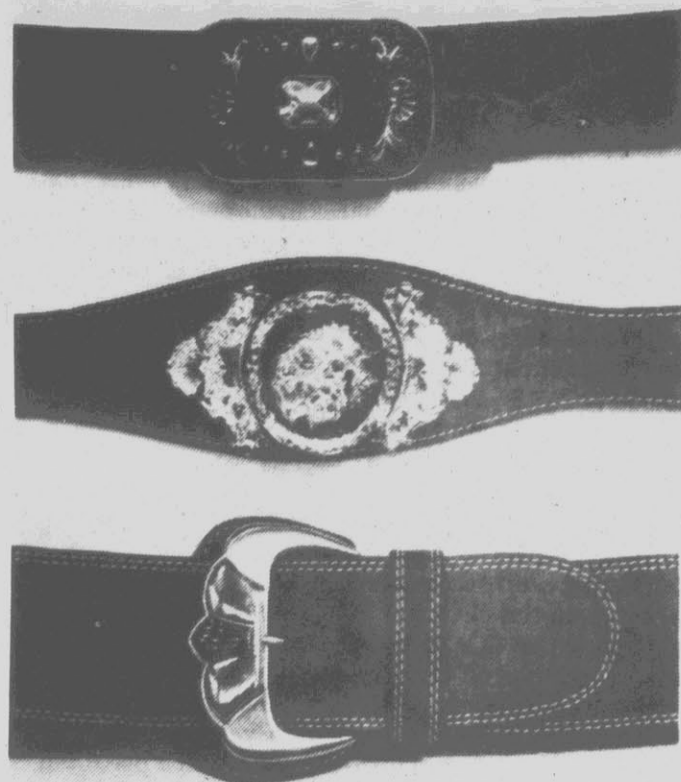

It wasn't until the 20th century, however, that belts evolved into fashion items for all classes, she says.

"After a centuries-long hiatus where men wore primarily functional belts, fashions for younger men in 1986 are calling for stylish belts in shiny reptile, woven fabric and embossed leather," she says. "Meanwhile, women's belts are as fashionably ornate as ever. This spring's newest collection of leather goods from Italy reveals an opulent Byzantine influence, showing that belts are once again focal points in fashion."

"This season, the waist is clearly accentuated in casual and evening ready-to-wear. Wide belts cinch tailored suits and outfits with peplums, spare jersey dresses, and colorful printed blouses and skirts. The widest belts are often quite simple and are crafted in shiny or glittering materials such as gold, silver, opalescent leathers, patent and luxe fabrics. Metallics are often embossed with fanciful patterns."

Casual belts in the Italian collections revive last season's Western motif, she reports, but the new twist is they are meant to be teamed with sophisticated clothes such as sleeveless turtlenecks and wrap skirts. These slim leather belts are topstitched, embossed and studded with silver, stones and burnished brass. Large buckles in silver and gold are engraved or decorated with floral patterns.

"Evening belts in the spring-summer collections from Italy follow the lavish Byzantine inspiration," Doganieri says. "Rich gold and silver lame, woven and patterned fabrics with an opalescent sheen and quilted leathers have a light feel. Yet they reflect the luxury, extravagance and beauty of the 'girdles' crafted for nobility throughout the ages."

The Home Away From Home Gives Sense Of Connection

By SCIENCE DIGEST
A Hearst Magazine

The office "family" of father-boss and sibling co-workers is replacing traditional family ties for some people for whom the office has become an emotional home away from home.

Many business concerns promote this family feeling, according to an article in the April issue of Science Digest, but this is not always healthy.

Jane Griffith, a psychologist at the Americas Institute of Adlerian Studies in Chicago, explained the reasons, saying that "with the breakdown of the neighborhood, religious life and the extended family, people are naturally turning to their jobs for a sense of connection."

Psychologists and personnel managers, however, are discovering that the merger of family and corporation does not always work for the best. Saul Pavlin, a New York psychologist who specializes in group counseling for corporate employees, said some people acted out family roles on the job — often unconsciously and with disastrous results.

People with an unresolved need for a caring parent, for instance, sometimes see the boss as a father. They idealize him — even if he does not deserve it — and are disappointed when he fails to take care of them.

Employees also may engage in sibling rivalries with co-workers, competing for the attention of their "boss-daddy."

Employees sometimes use their commitment to a job as an excuse for ignoring their real home life. "It's all too easy to have your first priority be your work and not the persons you love," said Jacqueline Plumez, author of "Divorcing a Corporation." "Relationships are hard work, and unlike a job, they sometimes do not have clear-cut reinforcers. At your job, at least you get a paycheck."

Dan O'Keefe, corporate manager for staffing and development at Helene Curtis Industries, said when he was personnel manager at another corporation he noticed some people were spending too much time at work.

"The comfort level was obviously higher at the office than it was at home," he said.

One danger for the individual is that when he is laid off or he retires or his job lets him down, he has nothing to fall back on.

Some people are so emotionally tied to their work they cannot quit, even when it would be in their best interest to do so.

Pat Heanue, co-owner of the recruiting firm of Vantage Careers, said one of the biggest problems she now faced was getting people to overcome the separation anxiety and guilt that attacked them when they switched jobs.

"Getting a divorce from your corporate marriage can be every bit as wrenching as getting a real divorce," Plumez said.

Many corporations foster office family feeling as a way to encourage loyalty, and their efforts range from holding picnics to offering "cradle to grave" benefits packages.

The tactic apparently works. In ternational Business Machines employees refer to "Mother IBM." Delta Air Lines workers not only speak of "Delta family feeling," but during an airline industry slump several years ago they chipped in to buy the company a Boeing 767.

These feelings of belonging and loyalty to a company are not bad, as long as they are kept in perspective.

Obsolescence

Economic obsolescence. That's the reason Pitt County Commissioners say they are revising tax schedules on tobacco bulk barns in the county.

The move is another public acknowledgement that monetarily, the tobacco business isn't what it used to be.

Although revising tax schedules on bulk barns won't make that much difference to the farmer — $15 annually at the most — it represents an admission that hard times are here for the gold leaf. The move is also a start toward bringing values of other farm-related equipment in line with what the equipment is really worth — for example, used tractors, plows, harvesters and combines.

The price farmers get for a piece of equipment now — even top condition equipment — is nothing close to the real value. It's no secret that these commodities are plentiful. The countryside is teeming with implement auctions and, like land auctions, the bids at these sales are bargain prices. Every farmer who has a tractor sitting in his front yard with a price tag on it has felt the crunch of a glutted machinery market.

It's discomfoting to apply a term meaning "no longer valuable" to everyday scenery. But a farm with implements lined up for sale and bulk barns disintegrating is a landscape of economic obsolescence.

The commissioners' tax relief attempts recognize the reality and the farmers feel it. The rural horizon, in the past lined with gold leaf, is changing colors.

Grace Period

Americans may be aglow over economic significance of OPEC's petroleum pricing collapse in terms of widespread benefits that are resulting and those new hardships are being shared by those who imposed exorbitant energy prices on the rest of the world.

As is often the case, a certain amount of "all-things-are-relative" creeps into the picture. OPEC members are still collecting far more revenues from their product than they knew before the cartel set price levels so high. We did learn to live with them. Now they (and we) face a period of readjustment.

Through some overdue measures to conserve consumption and increase available supplies we adjusted to the new facts of life. The adjustment was within our capability and the readjusting now required will be easier.

Lessons learned over the past decade must not be forgotten. Conservation is still essential; and those imposed practices should continue as part of our lifestyle.

The world supply of petroleum resources still has its limits and until the determination and adaptation of alternative energy sources really matures, we are very much at the mercy of world supply.

The added grace period should not be wasted.

Politician Will Screen Interviews

WASHINGTON — Rep. Jack Kemp's political handlers, in a state of shock since he was asked earlier this month on NBC's "Today" whether he had ever had a homosexual experience, will screen future interviews and bar any that go into the old slanders against him.

Kemp denied the rumor "categorically" and "absolutely" when asked about it in an interview by freelancer Nancy Collins taped in his home with his family present. But he looked stunned. Considering Collins' background as a show-business gossip reporter, his aides had prepared him for a soft interview.

Press Secretary John Buckley in the future will screen interviewers and refuse their requests if they intend to go into the homosexual rumor that popped up 20 years ago when Kemp was a professional football player and part-time aide to Gov. Ronald Reagan. Buckley's rationale is that Kemp has consistently and repeatedly denied the undocumented report, most recently in a Newsweek article, and there is no story there at all, period.

Ex-Reagan aide Michael K. Deaver may be flirting with the no-lobbying rules — limiting his conduct following his government service — by discussing with senior Reagan administration officials the question of continuing B-1 bomber production.

Deaver's consulting firm has been retained for $300,000 by the Rockwell International Corp., which produces the B-1. His ostensible role has been to offer "strategic advice," (but not to lobby) on what to do with the B-1 after production hits the 100 mark planned by the administration.

Although he has stayed out of the Pentagon, Deaver recently visited budget director James Miller for a meeting in which, administration sources told us, the B-1 was discussed. Talking points on the bomber question were prepared for Miller by his staff before the meeting. Miller refused to comment on the meeting.

The case of Soviet sailor Miroslav Medved, who was forcefully returned to his grain ship, the Marshal Konev, in New Orleans by U.S. Customs agents last October, took an ominous turn March 11 when Pravda published what was billed as a huge picture of him and labeled him a hero.

Senate investigators, still trying to find out why the U.S. government forced Medved back on his ship despite his initial appeal for asylum, believe the Pravda picture is Soviet propaganda. They think it was intended to sell the idea that the seaman eluded U.S. clutches and heroically returned to his ship and his homeland.

The investigators doubt that the picture in Pravda shows the real Medved. It could be the same stand-in from the ship's crew who, believed to have been posing as Medved, told U.S. authorities in the last New Orleans interview that he was not seeking asylum.

California-based consultant Stu Spencer, one of President Reagan's oldest and closest political advisers, told the court, that when parents divorce, mothers, by virtue of their sex, should get primary custody of children.

Tom was one of a couple dozen fathers who gathered in Raleigh this month to start an organization called Fathers for Equal Rights. His story was not the most poignant, but it was the only one this reporter could verify. Tom is a close friend.

What happened to Tom was essentially illegal. North Carolina law outlaws the type of sexual bias exhibited by the District Court judge in Tom's case. But other fathers, speaking with tear-filled eyes, told of similar situations. Judges don't care what the law is, these fathers said. Judges have their prejudices and they exercise them.

Art Hemmerlein, a Raleigh physician who is spearheading the drive for fathers' rights, said the judicial system in this state "emphasizes dad's responsibilities and ignores dad's rights." The fathers in attendance spoke bitterly of the flurry of recent legislative activity to assure that child-support payments are made. During the same period, these fathers said, the courts and Legislature have ignored the problem of mothers who deny court-ordered visitation to fathers or who move children cross-country so their fathers can't see them.

Hemmerlein and others stressed that their organization would not advocate smaller child-support payments and would not tolerate fathers who failed to pay child support. Instead, they said, it is time for the courts to begin to recognize that fathers have rights, too.

The group is a long way from having concrete proposals for the Legislature. But here are a number of ideas that were discussed.

In child custody hearings, in a day when sexual bias is supposed to be gone, the court should presume that joint custody will be awarded. Then, if testimony throws the case either way, one parent or the other can be granted primary custody.

A derivation of this idea would be to grant each parent a minimum amount of time with the child, something considerably better than two weekends a month, unless the court found the non-custodial parent to be unworthy.

Some states are considering mandatory mediation before a case can go to court. In such situations, the parents meet with a counselor who sees if they can't agree to a joint custody arrangement. Much of this occurs in North Carolina, but it is not mandatory.

When a custodial parent decides to move away, the other parent effectively loses all access to the children. The fathers expressed interest in some kind of restrictions on this practice, maybe the requirement of another court hearing before the children could be moved.

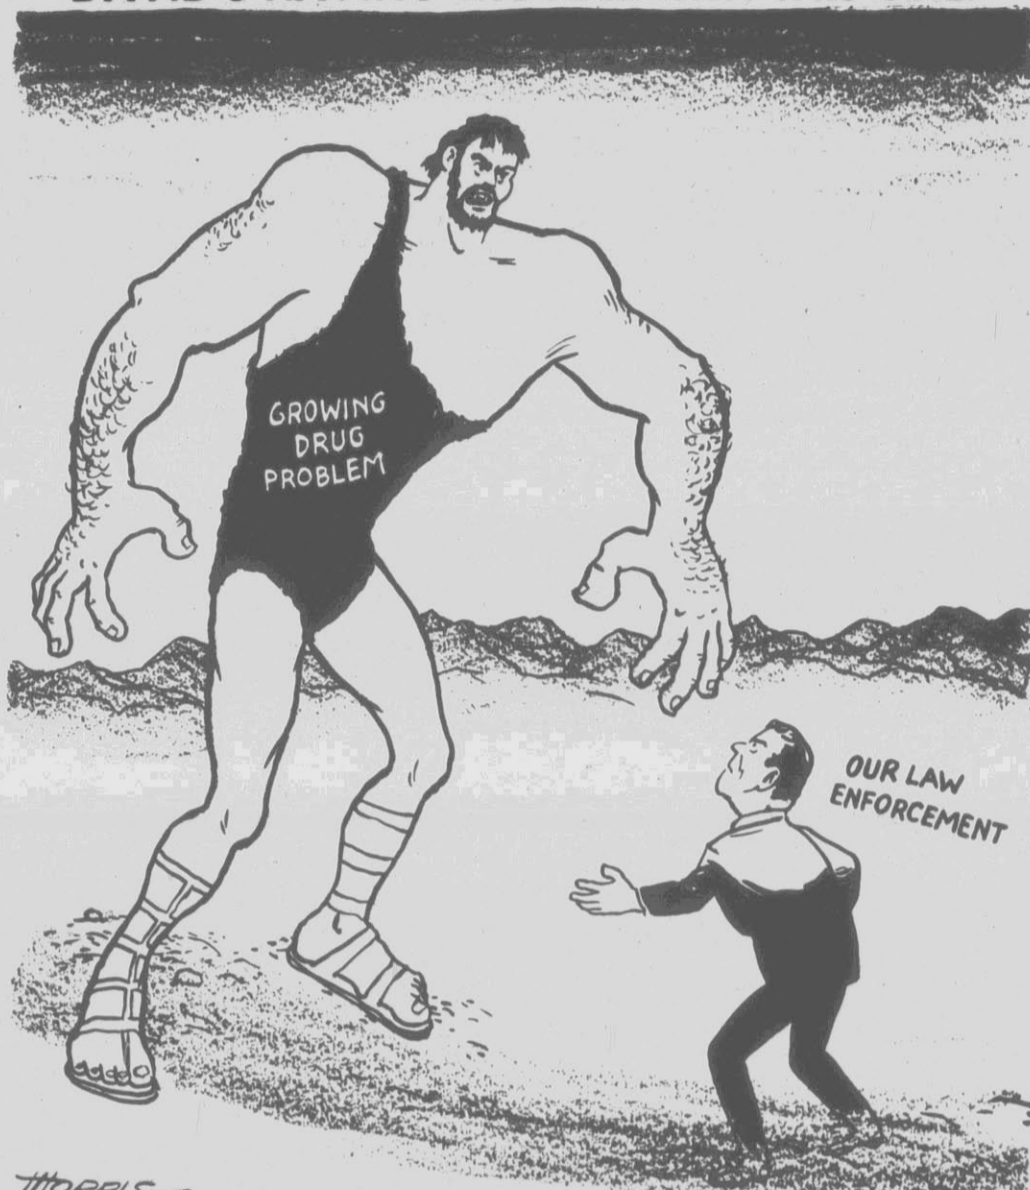

There was a lot of pent-up animosity in that meeting room. One father told of a judge who awarded his children to a mother who had been medically diagnosed as paranoid and schizophrenic. Another said he'd been able to see his children three hours in the last three years.

One father, sitting quietly in back, summed it all up, "You show me one child in the United States who doesn't also need a father."

A Lecture On Socks

WASHINGTON — What ingredients are "very important" to a successful marriage? Public Opinion magazine, a bimonthly published by the American Enterprise Institute, recently put together some fascinating statistics on the whole subject of marriage and the family, but maybe the pollsters didn't ask a couple of questions they should have asked.

They left out the socks-on-the-floor ingredient and the hair-in-the-bathroom-sink ingredient, and unless these are examined, a survey is likely to be less than definitive. It is on the difference between order and disorder that many a relationship goes to the bowwows.

The Gallup people offered respondents a list of well-known ingredients. Here in the United States, such elements as faithfulness, mutual respect and understanding ranked at the top. These were followed by enough money, same background, good housing and agreement in politics. Seventy-five percent of the respondents voted for "a good sex life," 59 percent for children, 52 percent for common interests, 48 percent for "living away from in-laws," and 43 percent for "sharing household chores." (In West Germany, by contrast, only 52 percent voted for a good sex life and only 19 percent for sharing household chores.)

Now, all these are important, but over the long haul of a marriage relationship, let us keep firmly in mind the socks on the floor and the hair in the sink. Some people are by nature creatures of order. The other day I interviewed Rep. Tom Kindness of Ohio. He's running for the Senate, which is beside the point. My first impression was of the top of his desk. It was immaculate. A few folders were lined up, files on parade, in precise geometric juxtaposition. Sight unseen, I can tell you that in Kindness' bureau drawers, all his socks are tidily arranged by color. He hangs up his ties at night. If he has occasion to prepare a meal for himself, he washes the dishes pronto and puts them away. His is an orderly mind at work.

I have interviewed other congressmen. Their desks look as if a tornado had just swept through. Everything is higgledy-piggledy. Order just isn't important to them. The immigration file must be around here somewhere. The speech on farm subsidies was in this stack the other day. Where is it now? A long-suffering secretary knows.

Back to the point: An orderly woman is never going to find marital happiness with a disorderly man, or vice versa. After a while the socks on the floor will get to her, or the hair in the sink will drive him to unforgivable howls of exasperation, and the next thing you know they are calling in their lawyers. If my grandchildren ever seek advice from grandfather on getting married, they'll get the lecture on socks and gummy sinks.

The pollsters find that things are looking up on the marriage front. Two-thirds of the people still find divorce an acceptable solution for marriages in "serious difficulties," but a Roper poll finds that divorce is less acceptable than it was a few years ago. Another Roper survey concludes that 72 percent of women agree that if their husbands are offered a very good job in another city, "wife should quit her job, relocate with husband, and try to get another job in new place."

Other surveys suggest that today's teen-agers are more in agreement with their parents than the teen-agers of 1975. Polls of high-school seniors indicate that mom and dad's opinions on marijuana, dress codes, spending money, racial issues and religion make more sense than they used to. Let us take heart from the statistics. The institution of marriage isn't about to be extinct — not as long as partners agree on socks on the floor and hair in the sink.

Strength For Today

An English wit has described the church in three words: "Attitude, Latitude and Platitude."

Those of us who are Christian believers would deny that this is an adequate description of the church, but we would confess that it reflects certain weaknesses in the church.

For those who take it as an attitude, it is a series of assumptions which are never used to make a change in one's life. Those who accept religion as latitude use it as a means of finding justification for all their weaknesses. When religion becomes a platitude, it is simply an often repeated formula which tires and bores everyone who comes in contact with it.

Religion avoids these dreary designations when we accept it for what it is and act upon it — the revelation of God and his infinite purpose.

Arson Charges

Greenville police arrested Bobby Ray Powell, 29, of 1900 Kennedy Circle on first degree arson charges Saturday.

Officer J.A. Bartlett said Powell was taken into custody about 7:29 p.m. at the intersection of Beatty and Howell Streets in connection with a fire at 807A Douglas Ave. that was reported to police at 7:09 p.m. Officer R.J. Brewington said Powell was also charged with trespassing.

The officers said Powell has been at the house earlier in the day and that a woman had gone to the magistrate's office to have a trespassing warrant issued for his arrest as a result of the earlier visit.

While Ms. Daniels was gone, investigators said, Powell allegedly returned and started a fire under the home.

The officers said four children, ranging in age from 7-13, were in the house when the fire was started but escaped uninjured.

City fire-rescue department employees extinguished the blaze, which caused an estimated $2,000 damage.

Fraternity Reopens

The East Carolina University Epsilon Mu chapter of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity was refounded Friday at a black tie banquet. During the dedication ceremony to re-establish the chapter, 45 pledges received brotherhood into the fraternity.

The Epsilon Mu chapter had its charter revoked in 1973 due to non-support from the student body. In March 1985, representatives from Pi Kappa Alpha national headquarters in Tennessee interviewed 120 men interested in beginning a new colony. Of that number, 30 students were chosen to be the Alpha class of the reformed Pikas, and with the fall semester rush, 15 new members were installed as the Beta class.

According to chapter president Eric Cleaves, the Epsilon Mu chapter has planned aid to the Special Olympics, help to the Boys Club and a fundraising event for the Ronald McDonald House. The chapter also is producing a calendar for the 1986-87 school year featuring co-eds from the campus.

The chapter hopes to purchase a fraternity house.

Blount Named To Sanford Panel

RALEIGH — Democratic Senate hopeful Terry Sanford, at a press conference here this morning, named Greenville attorney Marvin Blount Jr. as one of three co-chairmen for his state campaign advisory committee.

In addition to Blount, who withdrew from the Senate race earlier this year when Sanford decided to seek the nomination, other co-chairmen include Mrs. Dan K. Moore, wife of the late former governor, and former Raleigh Mayor Clarence E. Lightner.

Katie Morgan, wife of former U.S. Sen. Robert B. Morgan — both former members of the East Carolina University board of trustees — was named as a member of the committee.

In addition to naming the advisory committee, Sanford criticized the current administration for "lack of political courage," and said he would support a constitutional amendment requiring a balanced federal budget.

"For a long time I thought this did not need to be in the constitution," Sanford said. "But watching this administration proves its lack of political courage and requires that we tie the hands of the president and congress."

Saying North Carolina "needs a different voice in Washington," Sanford pledged to bring fiscal responsibility, "North Carolina-style," to the federal budget.

Farm Scene

By LEROY JAMES
Pitt Extension Chairman

Demand for soy meal could push soybeans to $6 a bushel or higher at some point over the next year. That rather optimistic forecast will depend on two factors, according to Dick Loewy, senior grain and oil seed analyst for Prudential Bache Securities Inc.

Those two factors are new crop production potential in this country and whether meal demand can offset sharp declines in the soy oil market.

"The United States will have significant export opportunities for beans and meal through next March," Loewy said.

The USDA's current forecast greatly underestimates the amount of beans that will be shipped in this marketing year. The agriculture department's latest supply-demand report puts soybean exports at 750 million bushels — primarily because of the expected shortfall in South American production.

The latter, Loewy believes, will be reduced by six-eight million tons from 1985-86.

Farm Sets Peanut Record

RALEIGH (AP) — A Pasquotank County farm has set a state record for peanut yield, surpassing the old mark by more than 500 pounds per acre, according to officials.

A.L. Madre and Sons Farm in Elizabeth City averaged 6,873 pounds per acre in 1985, the highest certified yield ever, said Gene Sullivan, North Carolina State University extension peanut specialist. The old record was set in 1983, he said.

The record yield was taken from a selected 1.33-acre plot.

Steven Burgess of Conway in Northampton County finished second in the 5,000-Pound Peanut Club contest with a yield of 6,313 pounds, only 13 pounds short of the old record.

"Last year's was the best peanut crop since 1981," Sullivan said. "I think we would have had several growers with yields of over three tons had it not been for heavy rains at harvest time."

"Those growers who got their crop

Southern Brazil experienced the driest November-December in over 100 years. Brazilian farmers have been reporting tremendous problems with disease in soybeans that were stunted during the dry weather in December and January. Oil content also appears to be very poor in the early beans.

"U.S. refiners reportedly adapting coconut oil and palm oil as a replacement for soy oil because of the 5-cent price advantage the former enjoys at present," Loewy said.

"Factors like those could push our carryover to 1.4 billion pounds this marketing year, unless the situation is reversed somehow. The final question mark in the soybean price equation is 1986 acreage in this country," he said.

The soybean-corn price ratio currently favors corn plantings but some Midwest producers are expected to stick to normal acreage patterns because of the high participation expected for the wheat and feed grain programs.

Soviet Schoolgirl Visits New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Soviet schoolgirl Katerina Lycheva said today she wants to meet "as many American kids as possible" on her peace mission to five U.S. cities.

Spending her first full day in the nation's largest city, Katerina appeared on network TV today, then headed for a meeting with American schoolchildren and a visit to the Statue of Liberty.

The 11-year-old's visit was prompted by a 1983 Soviet tour by Maine schoolgirl Samantha Smith, who died in a plane crash last year.

"Samantha was very much like our Soviet girls," Katerina said on NBC-TV's "Today" program. "We all saw something very familiar and very nice and she was close to our hearts."

"I like the people here, I like the kids here a lot. They are so good and kind," she said on the CBS Morning News. "And I've been really welcomed everywhere."

Katerina arrived Sunday in New York from Chicago, accompanied by a 10-year-old San Francisco girl selected to travel with her on the tour, which will take them to Washington, Houston and Los Angeles.

Both girls lighted a candle after they arrived at LaGuardia Airport.

"I light this candle because if we don't have peace in the world, we have no world," said Star Rowe.

"I light this candle and I hope the sun will always shine as bright as this candle," Katerina said. "And I think that it will shine to all children in the world, and for this we must struggle for peace."

"Sometimes grown-ups find it very hard to get together to agree about things," she told reporters. "I think if it was up to the children, it would take us about a minute or so to get together." The San Francisco-based Children As The Peacemakers is sponsoring Katerina's two-week tour — her first outside the Soviet Union.

Today, Katerina was to be interviewed on national television, participate in an exchange of "peace letters" at a Brooklyn public elementary school and do some sightseeing.

Katerina said she looked forward most to seeing the Statue of Liberty.

In Chicago, an American family welcomed Katerina into their home, where she sampled barbecued chicken, toyed with a computer and made friends with children oblivious to their nations' differences.

"It was just like having a friend over," said 11-year-old Kristy Mace of suburban Oak Park after Saturday night's visit. "She was shy at first, but then she loosened up. We talked about what anyone would talk about if you didn't know each other."

Katerina will be in Washington on Wednesday and Thursday, and goes to Houston and Los Angeles.

Katerina said at LaGuardia she had a doll for President Reagan, but organizers said it was unclear if she would meet the president.

Pat Montandon, founder of Children As The Peacemakers, said she came up with the idea of having a Soviet child make a peace mission to the United States after the group gave a posthumous award to Samantha Smith last November.

Star, the daughter of a San Francisco artist, won an essay contest sponsored by the group to select a traveling companion, Ms. Montandon said.

Katerina left Moscow with her mother, a research scientist, last week and arrived Thursday night in Chicago. Her father is a specialist in commercial advertising.

A fifth-grader at Moscow's English Speaking School No. 4, Katerina was chosen for the tour by her colleagues in the "Club of International Friendship of Moscow."

Legislative 'Short Session' May Have Packed Agenda

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — It may take one of the lengthiest "short sessions" ever for the General Assembly to get anywhere near completing the packed agenda it will face when convening June 5.

"It probably will be longer than any (short session) since I've been here," said four-term Rep. Martin Nesbitt, D-Buncombe.

But legislative leaders insist they plan to stay in town no longer than has become normal for off-year sessions — about a month. But that would require moving considerably faster on controversial issues than the Legislature did last year.

A News Analysis

Or, in a more likely scenario, it would mean postponing until 1987 action on many problems under study, and letting dozens of bills approved last year by either the House or Senate — but not both — die.

The Legislature began convening regularly in even-numbered years during the early 1970s to adjust the biennial budget to reflect changing economic conditions. But off-year sessions gradually have become abbreviated versions of regular sessions, with fewer and fewer limits on types of legislation eligible for consideration.

One reason why prospects seem good for an extraordinarily long summer session is that the Martin administration will seek action on some major initiatives.

Ordinarily, governors present the bulk of their programs to the Legislature during regular sessions. But Martin, a newcomer to state government when he was elected in 1984, spent much of 1985 learning the system and putting his administrative plan in place. His sparse legislative agenda featured a sweeping tax-cut plan, about a third of which was enacted.

This year, the administration will propose:

— A 20-point education plan, including modification of the landmark 1985 Basic Education Program by putting more emphasis on strengthening the teaching profession.

— A 10-year, $157 million program for dealing with chronic overcrowding in the state's prison system. Highlights include expansion of intensive probation and existing detention facilities and contracting with private firms to build and run three minimum-security prisons.

— A program for beefing up the state's troubled highway fund, for which officials estimate $12.7 billion will be needed by the year 2000. Martin is expected to unveil April 17 his package, which could include a gasoline tax increase.

— Adjustments to the 1986-87 budget, including appropriation of an expected $300 million to $400 million surplus. Pay raises for teachers and state employees are likely.

By anyone's standards, that's a load to handle in just one month. But there's more.

The 1985 Legislature authorized studies of 87 issues, and many of the committees established to conduct the investigations will send bills to the summer session. Among them could be a proposal to reshape the State Board of Education and make the superintendent of public instruction, now elected statewide, an appointed official.

Then there's insurance crisis, which prompted a one-day special session Feb. 18 during which Insurance Commissioner Jim Long was granted authority to force companies to provide hard-to-get liability coverage through pool arrangements.

Three study committees are looking at the insurance situation from different angles, including the rapid rise in medical malpractice premiums. Nesbitt, chairman of the House Insurance Committee, says insurance legislation will be debated this summer, although action on the most controversial issues will be postponed until 1987.

Finally, 173 bills were passed last year by one house but not the other, and all are eligible for consideration. Among them: proposals to expand the Open Meetings Law; limit phosphorus in laundry detergents; establish strict liability for hazardous waste handlers and broaden liability for bars and taverns; create grand juries to investigate drug trafficking; and drop the hearing to set a new execution date when a condemned criminal's stay of execution is lifted.

Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan, who presides over the Senate, agrees the Legislature cannot handle all this in a month. He says appropriations committees will return to Raleigh early to start on the budget. And he says lawmakers may approach big-ticket items by acting only on less controversial parts and delaying the rest.

The budget and highways will have top priority, he said.

"If the governor brings by May 1 a comprehensive highway package, I think we'll pass it," Jordan said. "I think it's his responsibility to do that. If he doesn't, it will delay things. It's his call."

IN THE STATE

Freeze Thins State's Fragile Peach Crop

By The Associated Press
Reeling from spring freezes over the weekend that thinned their crops, Sandhills peach growers say they'll remain wary until the peak blossom stage has passed in mid-April.

"We've got at least another month to watch the thermometer," said Clyde Auman, a grower in West End in Moore County. "But right now we still think we've got a good crop."

A record-setting low temperature of 22 degrees was recorded early Sunday morning at the National Weather Service Station in Raleigh, breaking the previous record of 25 set in 1969.

An April freeze last year virtually wiped out the North Carolina peach crop.

"That could really hurt us," said Ken Chappell, who owns about 90 acres of peach trees in Montgomery County south of Asheboro. "The buds can't take 22-degree weather for long."

The weekend freeze began a little later Saturday night than it did Friday night, and temperatures rose more quickly Sunday morning than they did the previous day, weather service officials said.

"We had some damage Friday night. The temperature got down to about 23 degrees," Auman said. "The buds that were in full blossom were killed. But there right many on the trees that wasn't. We think we have a crop of peaches left."

"We think we're all right at this time," he said. "I'd say we have about a normal crop left. We feel what happened is a blessing, it thinned them out."

Turpentine Found In Cough Medicine

TAYLORSVILLE, N.C. (AP) — The discovery of turpentine in cough medicine that had been given to a 2-year-old Alexander County boy was an "isolated situation," says A.H. Robins Co. Inc., which makes the medicine.

"The bottle in question is from a lot of more than 185,000 bottles that was distributed throughout the country in late January and the first week of February. No other problems with this or any other lot of Dimetapp Elixir has been reported," said Roscoe Puckett, a spokesman for A.H. Robins.

But, he said, "as a precaution the company understands that the outlet intends to remove from its shelves and quarantine all units of Dimetapp Elixir."

Robins has not recalled or ordered the removal of the cough medicine from any store, Puckett said.

Joshua McMillian of Stony Point was in stable condition Sunday after being treated at Alexander County Hospital in Taylorsville and was expected to be released today, hospital officials said.

Ray Warren, a detective with the Alexander County Sheriff's Department, said the boy's parents, Gary and Diane McMillian, told him they bought the nonprescription cough medicine Thursday at Ingles Food Store in Statesville, about 20 miles east of Stony Point.

The child was suffering from a bronchial illness. Warren said the child's parents told him the box was sealed, but that they did not notice if the bottle had a tamper-proof seal.

Warren said Mrs. McMillian gave the child two, half-teaspoon doses of the medicine, the first about 7 p.m. Saturday and the second an hour later. He said the boy went to sleep, then awoke wheezing and with a fever and she gave him the second dose.

About 9 p.m., Warren said, a visiting family member asked to see the boy. Mrs. McMillian tried to wake him, but he wouldn't come awake. When he opened his eyes, they were glassy.

"She tasted the cough medicine herself and got a terrible, burning taste. They then carried him to the hospital," Warren said.

Democrats Backing Odd-Year Elections

RALEIGH (AP) — The state Democratic Party has been "saddled" with national races when state and county offices elections were being held, but a referendum to move those elections to odd years shouldn't be seen as partisan, a party official says.

"It is going to be viewed as a partisan thing, and there is certainly that element to it," said James Van Hecke, state Democratic Party chairman. "There is no doubt that the party has been saddled with a national ticket which at times has not been to our benefit here. But I think it ought to be viewed in a non-partisan way."

"I think at times both parties have been hurt by the great swings that have occurred," he added. "I think our statewide candidates ought to stand on their own and talk about issues important to North Carolina and not be unduly influenced by the national ticket."

The statewide referendum May 6 was engineered by state Democrats who have twice in the past 14 years seen Republicans swept into the governor's office on the coattails of popular GOP presidential candidates. Supporters say it would ensure candidates run on their own merits, while opponents say it would result in more elections, lower voter turnout, reduced interest in local elections and higher cost.

Republicans say a lack of Democratic pressure for the referendum shows they have cooled to the idea.

"I frankly think this was pushed through with such haste that even the proponents may be a little embarrassed to step forward and push this," said state GOP Chairman Bob Bradshaw.

North Carolina is the sole remaining Southern state to hold elections for statewide offices in presidential years, but only four states — New Jersey, Virginia, Mississippi and Kentucky — hold their major statewide elections in odd-numbered years.

Race Issue Tops Senate Primary

HALIFAX, N.C. (AP) — Rep. Frank Ballance is trying to become one of the few blacks in the state Senate, but opponent J.J. Monk Harrington says he doesn't believe blacks should automatically represent predominantly black Senate districts.

"The United States is not made that way," said Harrington, a white senator who represents the 2nd District. "The judges have said this is a black district. But the voters are the ones who'll put in who they want."

Ballance, 44, of Warrenton, agrees there should be no guarantee.

"But there ought to be an opportunity," he said. "I'm not trying to get back at anybody for any past discrimination. What happened in the past is in the past."

The two Democrats are vying in the May 6 primary to represent an eight-county section of northeastern North Carolina where 61 percent of the population is black. The winner faces no Republican opposition in November.

The Rev. Robert Holloman, a 33-year-old black Baptist minister from Hertford County, said it is time the district sent a black to Raleigh.

"It's fine for me to tell my daughter, 'Look, if you work hard and go to school, you can be a state senator one day,'" Holloman said. "But then she can look at the state Senate and say, 'But why is everybody there white?'"

Three blacks are in the 50-member Senate, serving a state that is 20 percent black. But since 1963, most of what is now the 2nd District has been represented by Harrington, 67, who also has won support from some politically active black ministers.

"I don't believe people should be in power just because they're black if they can't deliver what the people need," said the Rev. John Bee Moore of First Baptist Church in Weldon, one of Harrington's two opponents in 1984. "If Frank's elected, he'd be nothing but a freshman senator. Monk's been there a long time. He knows a lot of people and he knows how to get things done."

Moore knows first-hand. When he told Harrington he wanted a state health agency as a tenant in a dwelling his evangelistic association is building in Weldon, the senator put him in touch with officials from the state Department of Human Resources.

The meeting did not end in an agreement. But Harrington's gesture was enough to win Moore's endorsement.

"I've always gotten along good with the blacks and love the blacks as I did the whites," Harrington said. "That's just my platform. It's just that damn simple."

U.S. Has Crossed Libyan 'Line Of Death' Several Times

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. forces have crossed or approached Col. Moammar Khadafy's "line of death" off the Libyan coast numerous times since 1981, and the Navy exercises there are not meant to provoke a military confrontation, Reagan administration officials say.

White House Chief of Staff Donald T. Regan and Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger both said Sunday that U.S. intentions were to declare the right of American ships to pass unmolested through international waters.

"We're not trying to provoke anyone into anything," Regan said on the ABC-TV program, "This Week With David Brinkley."

"We say there are certain places that have freedom of navigation, and whether it is the Black Sea, the Gulf of Sidra or the Gulf of Mexico, ships have a right of transit," Regan said.

"And if a ship has a right of transit, then we intend our ship to go there."

In 1981, two U.S. fighters shot down two Soviet-made Libyan jets that reportedly attacked them in the Gulf of Sidra, a U-shaped body of water that Khadafy claims as Libyan territory. Much of it lies beyond the 12-mile limit respected by the United States.

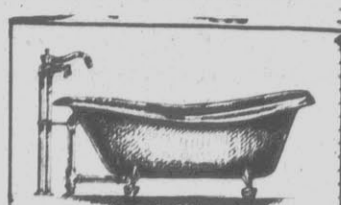

Asked whether U.S. forces would cross what Khadafy calls the "line of death" into the gulf, Weinberger said, "We've done it seven times since 1981, and we've done it in the general area 18 times since 1981."

Administration sources, speaking only on condition they not be identified, said a U.S. battle group of three carriers would at some point move southward across the line — an imaginary boundary across the top of the gulf drawn by Khadafy, who warned in January that U.S. planes or ships moving across it would be subject to attack.

Weinberger, appearing on the NBC-TV program "Meet the Press," declined to give details of operations being conducted in the central Mediterranean through April 1 by the three American aircraft carriers.

Shultz Says 'No' To Turkey

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz, in blunt talk to an economically struggling ally, says Turkey will not get the aid and trade increases it wants, even by "beating me over the head about it."

In a private meeting with Turkish businessmen in Istanbul on Sunday, Shultz gave a pointed response to assertions that the United States has raised unfair barriers to Turkish textile imports.

He told the Turkish Industrialists and Businessmen's Association that the worldwide textile quota system was to blame for the small market in the United States.

"It's perfectly all right not to be satisfied with it," Shultz said of the textile trade, according to a U.S. government transcript. "But that's the reality. So there's no point in bringing me here and beating me over the head about it."

Shultz, on a four-country trip to Europe, flew today to Ankara, the Turkish capital, for further talks with the country's leaders.

Turkey has raised the textile issue at a time when the United States is trying to seal a defense agreement governing the operation of more than a dozen U.S. military installations considered important to Western security.

Turkey, which shares a 280-mile border with the Soviet Union, also is strategically located near the Middle East.

Citing figures showing an overall

1985 U.S. trade deficit of $140 billion, Shultz told the businessmen "it's a little hard to come here and have you make the case to me that the United States doesn't have an open market."

His response was prompted by the business leaders' complaints that the United States permits imports of huge amounts of textiles from Hong Kong, Taiwan and other Asian countries but gives Turkey — a trusted military ally — only 1 percent of the U.S. market.

A Turkish official, speaking on condition he not be identified, said Turkey sells $120 million in textiles to the United States, has been offered a $190 million share, but wants the right to sell up to $400 million worth.

Stock And Market Reports

Some of the business items normally listed in this space were unavailable today due to technical problems experienced by The Associated Press. The full report will be resumed on Tuesday.

NEW YORK (AP) — Blue-chip issues snapped back quickly from Friday's decline in an otherwise mixed session in the stock market today.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials climbed 18.32 to 1,786.87 in the first hour of trading.

Gainers and losers were about evenly balanced in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The steep drop in blue chips Friday was attributed almost entirely to last-minute maneuvering by professional traders engaged in activity involving stock index options and futures that were approaching expiration.

Broader market measures that include the many smaller stocks not involved in this so-called program trading actually finished Friday's session with gains.

Today the secondary stocks leveled off, and buyers concentrated on the big-name issues, apparently acting on the belief that the drop in the blue-chip sector had pushed it down to "bargain" levels.

Brokers said most stocks also stood to benefit from the news that the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries had failed to reach agreement on production quotas as a means of shoring up world oil prices.

Among the blue chips, General Motors rose 1 to 84 3/4; International Business Machines 1/2 to 149 3/4; McDonald's 1 1/2 to 96 1/2, and DuPont 7/8 to 73 3/4.

Union Carbide, which reached a tentative settlement on claims against it arising from the 1984 disaster at its Bhopal, India, plant, gained 1 1/2 to 20 1/2.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks rose .70 to 135.50. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down 1.89 at 269.06.

On Friday the Dow Jones industrial average tumbled 35.68 points to 1,768.56, for its fourth largest drop ever. For the week, the average posted a 24.18 loss.

But advancing issues outnumbered declines by nearly 5 to 3 on the NYSE. Big Board volume totaled slightly more than 200 million shares, against 147.95 million in the previous session.

Libya ...

The SA-5 is a long-range missile that can be used against targets up to 150 miles away but it is generally considered ineffective against fast, low-flying jets. The missile is considered a threat, however, to slower radar and command-and-control planes.

In another development, one source disclosed today that several smaller combat ships with the 6th Fleet had followed the jet fighters across the "line of death" — an imaginary boundary drawn by Khadafy across the top of the Gulf of Sidra.

The sources refused to identify the ships, beyond saying they did not include the carriers Coral Sea, Saratoga and America. The three carriers are maintaining a position outside the gulf with most of their escorts deployed in defensive positions around them, the sources said.

Besides the carriers, there are more than two dozen U.S. combat ships operating in the area.

support minority interests, so I don't understand their reaction about the campus population," Brown said.

In recent meetings with city personnel, leaders of Greenville's black community have said they cannot support a council-favored election system proposal providing for creation of four single-member districts and at-large election of two council members and the mayor — a 4-2-1 system.

Leaders say they are opposed to the 4-2-1 system because inclusion of approximately half of the ECU dormitory population (2,907) in a predominantly black district proposed for location in northwest Greenville is too chancey. Because of those concerns, leaders have instead backed a plan that does not include university population in minority districts. The plan, called 5-1-1, provides for creation of five single-member voting districts and at-large election of one council member and the mayor.

Minority support of any alternative election system is needed in order for the system to receive approval from the U.S. Justice Department — a federal agency that reviews methods of election to determine if they adversely affect minority voting strength.

Minority community concern that students could rally and sway the outcome of municipal elections in one of two minority districts proposed under the 4-2-1 plan is questionable, however, according to Brown.

Students, Brown said, traditionally do not vote in municipal elections, nor do they respond favorably to registration drives. "We mounted a drive on campus (for the November 1985 municipal election) and I hate to say it, but we only registered about 25 new voters," he said.

Asked why he felt more students did not register during the drive, Brown said some preferred to stay registered in their hometowns and some "simply were not concerned

The sources said this morning that the initial reports from the fleet had not indicated any evidence of air-to-air missiles being fired by the Libyans at the U.S. planes.

"There were reports of surface-to-air missiles, not dog fights," one source added.

The indications of a military confrontation came during the second day of what has been planned as a 10-day exercise off the Libyan coast. The United States has already conducted four such exercises since January in what administration officials have described as a "show of resolve" following the Dec. 27 terrorist attacks on the Rome and Vienna airports.

President Reagan has accused Khadafy of supporting the Palestinian terrorist faction believed responsible for those attacks.

During the previous exercises, however, U.S. sources refrained from flying over the Gulf of Sidra — a large, U-shaped body of water that cuts into the central Libyan coastline.

The United States dismisses Khadafy's claims to the gulf, observing only a 12-mile territorial limit.

about what happens in Greenville elections."

In order for students to register in Greenville, they must give up registration in their hometown and consider Greenville their primary place of residence.

According to statistics provided by the Pitt County Board of Elections, 20 voters from Greenville Precinct 7 between the ages of 18 and 21 participated in the November municipal election. Precinct 7, a voting area described under the city's current at-large method of election, includes the total dormitory population of ECU, which Brown estimates to be 5,500. City wide, 298 people between the ages of 18 and 26 voted in the November municipal election.

Student turnout for federal and state elections is much stronger, Brown said. He added, however, that while students are traditionally apathetic about municipal elections, they are not apathetic about Greenville.

"The students want the same good things for Greenville that the rest of the citizens want," he said. "We want a beautiful city, parks for recreational purposes and a developed downtown district. We don't want to harm the city by any means. We want to make Greenville a better place," he said.

Senate Likely To Support Aid Plan For Nicaraguan Rebels

By ROBERT PARRY
 Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although stung by last week's House defeat, President Reagan appears likely to win Senate approval for his plan to send $100 million in military aid to rebels fighting Nicaragua's leftist government.

The Republican-controlled Senate expects to take up the proposal Tuesday, with a vote likely Thursday. Both Republican and Democratic vote-counters say Reagan is solidly ahead, although the vote could be closer than previous Senate tallies.

"We will never give up" until the House vote is reversed, Reagan said in his weekly radio address Saturday. "I will not rest until freedom is given a fighting chance in Nicaragua."

The Democratic-controlled House defeated Reagan's proposal last week, 222-210, but House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. promised conservative Democrats a chance on April 15 to propose alternatives to the president's plan.

One alternative, drafted by Rep. Dave McCurdy, D-Okla., resembles a last-minute offer that Reagan made, pledging to restrict the first 90 days of aid to anti-aircraft weapons, training and logistics while pursuing peace talks. Reagan could then lift all restrictions if he judged that Nicaragua's leftist government was not negotiating seriously.

However, other Democrats hope to tack on amendments that will block or sharply restrict the granting of lethal military aid. Democrats also are expected to try to retain bans on the CIA and the Defense Department administering the assistance.

Rep. Edward J. Markey, D-Mass., introduced a bill late last week that would provide $10 million from the federal budget to relocate and resettle the Contra rebels, most of whom have reportedly been driven back into Honduras by the Soviet-supplied Nicaraguan army.

In the Senate, Republican leaders say they plan to include Reagan's House offer in the text of the aid bill and thereby attract some moderate Republicans and Democrats who have criticized the president's initial $100 million aid package that contained almost no restrictions.

However, Sen. James Sasser, D-Tenn., has been working on another compromise that would provide $30 million in non-lethal aid to the Contras, but withhold $70 million in lethal assistance pending a last-ditch negotiation effort.

One Democratic congressional aide said Sasser wanted either a second congressional vote or a recommendation from an independent commission on whether a genuine diplomatic effort had been made before the money for weapons could be released.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Reagan would focus his lobbying efforts on "a fairly large pool of undecideds" in the Senate and would personally call some of them.

The Senate is expected to debate the Contra issue Tuesday, although it has been tied up by a filibuster waged by Sen. Paul S. Sarbanes, D-Md., against a bill to transfer ownership of Washington's National Airport and Dulles Airport in suburban Virginia to a regional authority.

Sarbanes opposes the bill because, he contends, it would put Baltimore-Washington airport, north of the capital, at a competitive disadvantage.

Correction

The meeting time of the ECU chapter of the State Employees Association gathering scheduled for Tuesday was incorrectly listed in Sunday's edition of The Daily Reflector.

The meeting will be held at 5:30 p.m. in the Brody Auditorium at the East Carolina University School of Medicine.

Committee Rejects Tax Proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee today handed its chairman, Sen. Bob Packwood, a defeat in its first vote on his wide-ranging plan for overhauling the federal income tax.

By a voice vote and without dissent, the committee rejected Packwood's proposal to subject to a "minimum tax" the interest earned on tax-exempt bonds already owned by a few hundred thousand of the wealthiest couples and individuals. Still to be decided is whether such bonds bought in the future will be taxed.

"To tax these after they've been bought is a violation of faith" with investors, said Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La.

If these bonds, which are issued by state and local governments for a variety of projects, are taxed, said Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, "there is no question but they are going to be paying higher taxes at the school district, city and county levels."

Packwood noted estimates that 56 percent of tax-free bonds are owned by 0.5 percent of the nation's wealthiest families. "We are not talking about taxing the poor..." he said, "not even about taxing the upper-middle income — we are talking about taxing the rich, the very rich."

As far as revenues are concerned, the loss was an insignificant one for Packwood.

Duke Sinks Midshipmen, 71-50

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — It was just what one would expect from the No. 1 college basketball team in the country: a blowout. It was thorough, business-like, well orchestrated and, if you'll excuse the use of the word, professional in appearance. The NCAA East final was all Duke.

The 36-2 Blue Devils eased on down the road to Dallas on Sunday, riding a 28-point performance by All-America Johnny Dawkins and dominating the backboards to rout Navy 71-50 at the Brendan Byrne Arena. The Blue Devils' 20th consecutive victory sent them to Dallas for a matchup on Saturday with the 35-3

Kansas Jayhawks, who captured the Midwest Regional on Sunday by knocking out North Carolina State. Louisville plays LSU in the other semifinal game.

"Right now, I'm so happy," Dawkins said. "It's one step at a time. That's our attitude. We're not subdued. We're happy about being in the Final Four, but we realize we still have work to do."

Duke's job against Navy was just about over at halftime despite a woeful 35 percent shooting percentage from the field. The Blue Devils rarely hit any of their initial shots from the field in the opening 20 minutes, but they were deadly on their second and third chances in building a 34-22 lead.

Of the 34 points the Blue Devils scored in the opening half, 20 came on second-chance opportunities.

"This and the DePaul game were two of our better efforts," Duke Coach Mike Krzyzewski said. "If we don't get rebounds, we are losing at the half."

Duke needed an 18-2 burst over the final 7:18 of the first half to overcome a 20-16 Navy edge. The run was capped by a spectacular reverse dunk by Dawkins off the break.

"I expected their guards to be really quick, but I didn't expect them to rebound like that," said David Robinson, the talented 6-foot-11 junior center who once again led the Middles, with 23 points. "They hit the boards really strong. I was out of position on a few occasions but we've never been outrebounded like that."

The first half rebound margin was 34-15 in favor of the Blue Devils and it stood 49-29 at the end of the game.

"We normally send three guys to the boards," Krzyzewski said. "In the last two games we felt we could send four guys to the boards without getting hurt by their fast break. So we sent Dawkins in and kept Tommy (Amaker) back."

Navy managed to cut Duke's lead to 10 points on two occasions early in the second half, but Dawkins hit his first seven shots after intermission to key a 20-9 burst that gave the Blue Devils a 54-31 lead with 11:01 to play.

The Middles never got closer than 15 points the rest of the way as their 16-game winning streak came to a halt and their season ended at 30-5.

Robinson, the nation's leading rebounder and shot blocker, did not get the usual scoring help from seniors Kaylor Whitaker and Vernon Butler, who had a combined average of almost 30 points per game.

They scored 18 between them against Duke, but only three came in the opening half. Most of the rest came when it didn't matter.

"We knew we had to keep an eye on David Robinson," said Duke forward Mark Alarie, who scored 18 points. "But we didn't want any of their other players to have a good game. We concentrated very much on stopping Butler."

"Johnny and Tommy concentrated very well on stopping Whitaker," added Alarie. "This allowed us to get a big lead in the first half."

And, a big lead is something Navy admittedly has trouble overcoming. "We got out of our game plan in the end of the first half and we panicked a little," Navy Coach Paul Evans said. "We are not the type of team that is quick enough to press or go man-to-man. We couldn't do that in the last 10 minutes and I'm not sure Mike (Krzyzewski) didn't go into a stall to help us."

The 36 victories by Duke this season tied the national single-season record set by Kentucky in 1948.

"We're going to enjoy this right now," Krzyzewski said, when asked about the Final Four. "I just hope we're healthy and hungry and we'll give it our best shot, like we've done all year long."

Coach "K" Praises Duke's Class Of '86

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
AP Sports Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Even if the national championship banner doesn't hang from Cameron Indoor Stadium at the end of this season, Duke Coach Mike Krzyzewski considers the four seniors who led his team to the Final Four as prized possessions.

"I would hope that people look at the trophies that we put out from Duke University as not being some banners or something you put in a trophy case," Krzyzewski said. "To me, we have five championship banners leaving us this May. In my estimation, they're living championships."

The senior class about to meet Kansas in the semifinals next Saturday has progressed from an 11-17 beginning in 1983 to today's top-ranked 36-2 club.

"We've been blessed to have a group of young men who have done so well for us on the court," Krzyzewski said. "I think one of the reasons they've done well on the court is that they've been so good off the court as far as getting themselves prepared to do well."

Krzyzewski called the seniors a good group to teach, but those seniors also taught the Atlantic Coast Conference that it might have been premature to count them out after their slow start.

Johnny Dawkins is the leader of the senior class, and during the NCAA tournament, the catalyst for the Blue Devils' march to Dallas next Saturday.

Dawkins, an All-America, led Duke from the verge of disaster in an opening-round contest against Mississippi Valley State, then guided Duke to victories over Old Dominion, DePaul, and on Sunday to a rout over Navy in the finals of the East Regional tournament. He is averaging more than 20 points per game for the tournament.

Kansas Outlasts N.C. State

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — There was always a piece missing in the Danny Manning puzzle.

Quick and graceful with a sure shot and a penchant for passing, Manning was hailed as the "Second Coming of Magic Johnson," if one could imagine any player at 6-foot-11 doing the things Magic does. At the same time, Manning was criticized for his wandering concentration and his lack of assertiveness.

The doubts about whether Manning would ever fully realize his potential may have been laid to rest for good after Kansas' splendid sophomore riddled North Carolina State with six straight baskets Sunday, powering the Jayhawks to a 75-67 basketball victory in the final of the NCAA Midwest Regional and into the Final Four.

Kansas, 35-3, will face top-rated Duke, 36-2, on Saturday. LSU goes against Louisville in the other semifinal.

"What Danny did today I haven't seen many guys do," said Kansas Coach Larry Brown. "He and Greg (center Greg Dreiling) just took over the game."

Trailing 57-52 with 8:53 left, the Jayhawks were given up for dead by even their loyal fans, who packed Kemper Arena with a show of support that effectively gave the Jayhawks the homecourt advantage, much to North Carolina State Coach Jim Valvano's chagrin. When the Wolfpack scored six straight points to take the five-point edge, however, the crowd went strangely silent.

"We had 'em," said Valvano. "At 57-52, I felt very confident."

But then some one-sided things started to happen. Wolfpack guard Ernie Myers had given his team its big lead on a layup. He was fouled on the play but missed the free throw.

"The next three possessions were critical for us," said Valvano. "Ernie missed the free throw, and Manning hit a great jumper. Chris (center Chris Washburn) walks and Manning gets loose along the baseline. Then we just broke down defensively, especially on second shots."

Manning, whose jumper with 10:03 left preceded State's six-point flurry that produced the 57-52 advantage, scored four straight baskets and, after a Washburn free throw, added a follow shot for a 62-58 Jayhawks lead.

"Danny wanted the ball and he played with confidence down the stretch," said Brown. "We stopped them at the other end and gave them only one shot. We did a good job on the defensive boards."

Then the 7-1 Dreiling, battling his way out of a late-season slump, bulldozed his way into the middle and scored the Jayhawks' next nine points.

Brown said he wasn't surprised at the play of either big man.

"Nothing Danny does surprises me," he said. "He's the best player in the country. Last season and at the beginning of this season we wanted him to demand the ball and be more assertive, and he has been. He plays the whole court. He's a complementary player, but at the times he finds himself open, he takes over."

"I was proud for Greg. I knew he'd play well. I thought he had his finest moment."

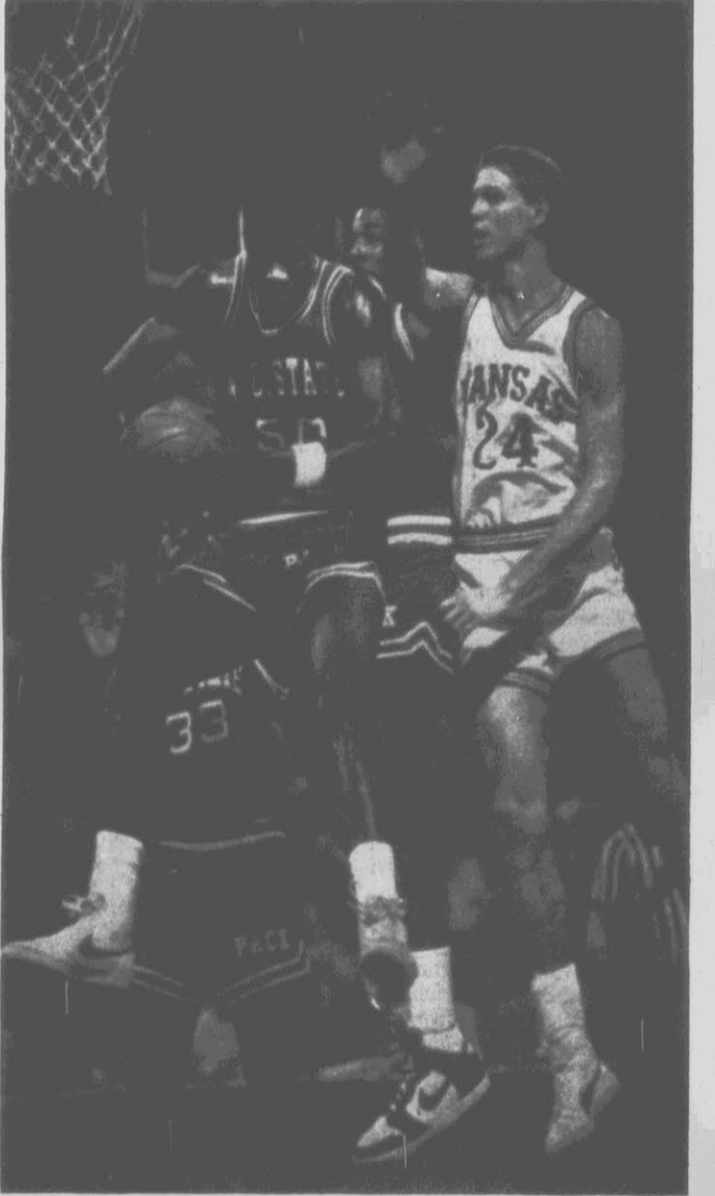

Manning finished with 22 points on 11-of-17 shooting, while Dreiling had 19 points and 12 rebounds.

Manning, a native of North Carolina whose departure from the state created ill feelings, said he was upset with a premature celebration along the North Carolina State sideline after the score went to 57-52.

"Coach told us to look over there, and he reminded us the game wasn't over," said Manning. "I was thinking about getting the ball down low and going to the basket, possibly looking for the three-point play against their zone defense."

"It all started when my teammates started creating an opening in their zone. They sagged in on us early, creating perimeter jump shots. Then in the second half, it balanced out and Greg and I did our share inside."

The Jayhawks will be appearing in the Final Four for the first time since 1974. Brown, who guided UCLA to the finals in 1980, said his team would celebrate for "about 30 seconds" and cautioned, "We can't be satisfied with just getting there. It's special to get there, but we have to do everything we can to win it all."

North Carolina State got 20 points from freshman forward Charles Shackelford, 16 of them in the first half. Washburn added 17 points.

Riley Ends Skid To Lift Pirates In 10th

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
Jay Riley was due.
The Pirate catcher had gone down ten straight times since last getting a base hit for East Carolina. But Sunday in the tenth inning, he came up with a single into center field that drove in Jay McGraw from second base and let the Pirates take a 9-8 ten inning decision from Vermont.

It was a fitting end to a somewhat frustrating day for the Pirates, who had appeared to bounce back well from their first loss of the season

Saturday to the University of Richmond.
East Carolina jumped out to as much as an 8-2 lead before a couple of home runs powered the Bearcats back into an 8-8 tie in the ninth inning.
Coach Gary Overton said he didn't think the Pirates took the Bearcats, now 0-7, lightly. "But there was a definite drop in intensity after we got the 8-2 lead," he admitted. "And we had the chances to score more runs and we didn't."
It was also frustrating for pitcher Craig Van Deventer who went the first seven innings and then saw his hopes for a fourth win this year go down the drain. Instead, reliever Keith Schaffer took the win, his second.

"Van Deventer threw well," Overton said. "And really, it was just two swings of the bat against the relievers that got them back into the game."
Overton said he thought the time was ripe to give freshman Paul Hill some work on the mound, so he pulled Van Deventer in the top of the eighth. The former Conley star threw hard, but Vermont quickly took a liking to his fast ball, banging out two hits off him, then getting a three-run homer from John Luter to close the gap to 8-5.

Then, in the ninth, after one out and a walk, Danny Culpepper came on to five up another hit and another homer, this one by Mike Stamer, tying it at 8-8.
"We needed to give Hill a chance to work. In retrospect, maybe it wasn't a good idea, but you've got to start somewhere, and he needs the experience."

Overton said he thought the Pirates did well at the plate throughout most of the game as they banged out 14 hits. Ken Trehub, who went all the way for the Bearcats, is the Vermont ace, and Overton pointed out that no one has hit him this year the way the Pirates did. "I'm pleased with that," he said.
East Carolina jumped into the lead in the first inning, scoring twice. With two away, Chris Bradberry singled to left and Winfred Johnson followed with a home run to right center.
For the big senior, it was his seventh of the season and 58th of his career. He is now two short in both homers and pitching victories of the 60-30 barrier. If he surpasses it, he will be the first NCAA Division I pitcher-batter to do so.

East Carolina is now 16-1 on the year and plays host to Slippery Rock today at 3 p.m. Ohio University visits Harrington Field on Tuesday for a 1 p.m. doubleheader, and the Pirates wind up their home stand with a single game with Ohio at 3 p.m. Wednesday. Saturday, they take to the road for the first time, meeting James Madison in Harrisonburg, Va., for a doubleheader and a single game on Sunday.

Berbick Decisions Thomas For Title

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — "I love a good fight," says Trevor Berbick. He put up a good one Saturday night when, looking like anything but a 6 1/2 underdog, he won the WBC heavyweight title on a 12-round unanimous decision over previously unbeaten Pinklon Thomas.

It was a war of attrition, and at its end, a tired Thomas said he could accept the decision, "but as a man, as a fighter, I cannot accept the loss."

The victory for the 31-year-old Berbick came almost five years after he lost a 15-round unanimous decision to Larry Holmes in a WBC title bid, and it put him in the hunt for a single heavyweight champion.

The HBO-televized fight in a ballroom at the Riviera was the first in a series of eight title bouts designed to produce an undisputed heavyweight champion. The series is being held under an agreement between HBO and promoters Don King and Butch Lewis.

HBO is paying about $20 million for the series.

Thomas could get back into the chase, according to Lewis. He said it is possible that Thomas could challenge for the IBF title against the winner of the second fight of the series — a rematch between champion Michael Spinks and Larry Holmes April 9 at the Las Vegas Hilton.

Holmes, who relinquished the WBC title in 1983 and lost the IBF title to Spinks last Sept. 15, was at ringside at the Riviera Saturday night. But Thomas could be pushed aside by Gerry Cooney.

Lewis said that if Cooney has a fight and earns a ranking, he could challenge the winner of the Spinks-Holmes match.

If that happens, the fight most likely would be shown on closed-circuit and pay-per-view television, with HBO showing the delayed telecast, Lewis said.

Cooney has fought only twice since he was stopped in the 13th round by Holmes in a WBC title bid June 11, 1982.

Shepherd Takes Second Straight

MARTINSVILLE, Va. (AP) — It's the best of times for Morgan Shepherd, who has won two major NASCAR races in a row.

The Conover, N.C., driver gunned his Buick around Martinsville Speedway's half-mile oval in a race record 69.592 mph Sunday to win the Grand National event in the $152,705 Miller 500 Classic tripleheader.

Last week Shepherd captured the Atlanta Winston Cup race. Elton Sawyer of Chesapeake guided his Pontiac through six caution flags to capture the Late Model race and Brett Bodine took the Modified event in a Chevrolet.

"It's really great to be able to win two weeks in a row," said Shepherd. "Right now, I'd say it's the best it's ever been for me. It seems like we got things together in both divisions."

Shepherd completed the 200 laps in 1 hour, 30 minutes, 42 seconds to record his fifth victory at Martinsville. He picked up $9,675 for the triumph. Shepherd, who has won five times at Martinsville including his first Winston Cup victory in 1981, broke the old Miller 500 Classic record of 61.202 mph set in 1985 by Bodine in a Pontiac.

There were three lead changes

Morgan Shepherd

among four drivers in the Grand National race. Dale Jarrett, who finished fifth, led the most laps, 134, to win the $1,000 bonus. Shepherd, who started fifth, led 26 laps, taking the lead for good on the 175th lap. Pole sitter Bodine led 21 laps and Kyle Petty 19.

"My car was a little better in the corner than Dale's and that was the difference," said Shepherd, who caught Jarrett on the back stretch of lap 174 and beat him to the corner, making a clean pass on the inside of turn three on the next lap. From then on, Shepherd began pulling away.

Golden State Comes From Behind To Upset Nuggets

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD

 The Denver Nuggets, needing only to beat the worst team in the Western Conference to pull within a half-game of the lead in the Midwest Division, instead suffered a devastating road defeat.
 "Without a doubt, this was our worst loss of the season, and I think it should destroy us," Denver Coach Doug Moe said after the Nuggets, 32-5 at home, fell to 11-24 on the road Sunday when Golden State's Joe Barry Carroll hit a 20-foot jump shot as time expired, giving the Warriors a 113-111 NBA victory.
 Carroll's game-winner climaxed a fourth quarter rally that saw the Warriors outscore the Nuggets 28-13 after trailing by 13 points going into the period.

WYOMING'S DEMBO HARRY TO BE PLAYING IN THE

NEW YORK (AP) — Wyoming forward Fennis Dembo, the hottest shooter in the 49th National Invitation Tournament, doesn't count himself among the players and coaches who moan about not being invited to the NCAA championship tournament.
 "We're trying to prove how good a team we are, but I wasn't upset with not getting an NCAA bid," said Dembo, who leads 23-11 Wyoming against Florida, 19-12, tonight in the opening NIT semifinal at Madison Square Garden. "I don't think we would have made as good a showing as we have in the NIT."
 Ohio State, 17-14, meets Louisiana Tech, 19-13, in the second semifinal. The winners meet in the championship game Wednesday night.
 Dembo, one of four sophomores who join senior Les Bolden in the Cowboys' starting lineup, is averaging 16.5 points per game this season, but has scored 22 or more in six of his last nine outings. Dembo, nicknamed "Buck" by his teammates, scored 24, 23 and 19 points in Wyoming's NIT victories over Texas A&M, Loyola Marymount and Clemson, respectively.

HBO Says Recorders Are Valuable Ally For Cable

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Home Box Office, the nation's largest pay-cable service, is learning to live with the video cassette recorder, once considered the bane of the pay-cable industry.

Next month, in a startling on-air campaign, HBO will urge subscribers to tape films at their convenience and begin a video film library. "If you can't get on our schedule, put us on yours," one HBO promo will say.

"A year ago we wouldn't have breathed a word about VCRs. Now you'll see mention of them all over the air," said Steve Scheffer, HBO's executive vice president for film programming and home video.

According to HBO, subscriptions were flat in early 1985 but improved in the second half of the year, despite increased VCR sales. Scheffer said the only negative impact from VCRs was in homes with more than one pay-cable service.

HBO's latest promotional push notes that, with 60 different films a month, viewers can program their VCRs to make HBO a more valuable service.

"The Hollywood studios may not completely endorse this (taping) campaign," Scheffer said, "but HBO feels because of the enormous amounts of money we're paying for movies, we have the right to demonstrate their value to the consumer."

Scheffer also said VCRs were beginning to influence Hollywood movie-making, which will benefit pay-cable and its older, stay-at-home crowd.

Not too long ago nearly every movie title seemed to be some variation of "Surfboard Teen Lover." Now, the studios are making a higher proportion of adult-oriented films, Scheffer said.

"The VCR is partly responsible," he added. "The VCR has made available an older population that doesn't necessarily go out to the movies."

According to Scheffer, last summer's slew of screaming teen films "was the last gasp of those exploitation movies, when the studios only had their eyes on the youth market in their pursuit of the mega-hit."

Last gasp for the theaters, maybe, but HBO will carry last summer's adolescent assault this summer. It takes about six months after theatrical release for films to be available on cassette and another six months before they reach pay-cable, so the graying of Hollywood cinema won't be noticeable on HBO until late this year or early 1987.

Scheffer said many recent films were aimed at adults, including all the current nominees for best picture: "Witness," "The Color Purple," "Out of Africa," "Kiss of the Spider Woman" and "Prizzi's Honor."

The 58th Academy Awards will be broadcast on ABC tonight.

Regardless which film wins best picture, Scheffer said the winner wouldn't get any added cable value from the Oscar. It didn't help HBO's showings of "Gandhi" or "Chariots of Fire," he noted.

Scheffer said "Out of Africa" should have the strongest TV appeal because of stars Robert Redford and Meryl Streep. He rated "The Color Purple" and "Prizzi's Honor" as good pay-cable movies. "Kiss of the Spider Woman" will have a limited audience, he said. The other nominee, "Witness," is the exclusive property of HBO's rival, Showtime.

"What keeps these good movies from being blockbusters is that they won't stand the test of repeatability," Scheffer said. The best pay-cable films are dramatic love stories, action-adventures or comedies.

"There hasn't been a 'Tootsie' since 'Tootsie,'" Scheffer added, referring to the Dustin Hoffman comedy that was an HBO favorite several years ago.

"Rocky" and "Jaws," two action films that pre-dated the home-video boom, have been HBO's most popular offerings.

Scheffer said "Prizzi's Honor" will be on HBO this summer, "Out of Africa" and "The Color Purple" by early 1987.

Among last year's Oscar nominees for best picture, only Sally Field's "Places in the Heart" made HBO's Top 10 films for 1985. HBO's most popular films last year included "Splash," "The Karate Kid," "The Natural" and "Romancing the Stone."

"Amadeus," which won the best-picture Oscar last year, hasn't been on HBO because the pay-service and distributors can't agree on a license fee.

Less-Than-Glamorous Stars Turn Out For Oscar Rehearsal

By LINDA DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Star-struck movie fans gathered outside the Los Angeles Music Center overnight for the 58th Academy Award vigil, a chance to grab a glimpse or a snapshot of a screen legend in the flesh.

The faithful who crowded the "Artists' Entrance" screamed their approval as such stars as Barbra Streisand, Cher, John Huston and Alan Alda arrived by limousine for Sunday night's less-than-glamorous rehearsal.

The rumpled actors and actresses wore sweat suits and jeans, but in 24 hours would be turned out in tuxedos and gowns for the magic moment when about 1 billion television viewers worldwide will hear a voice announce: "And the winner is..."

Will "Out of Africa" win best picture or "The Color Purple"? Or will both favorites be beaten out by such longshots as "Prizzi's Honor," "Kiss of the Spider Woman" or "Witness?"

Will Meryl Streep take home a second best actress Oscar for her portrayal of a writer in "Out of Africa"? Or will the Academy give the golden statuette to newcomer Whoopi Goldberg for her portrayal of an oppressed black woman in "The Color Purple?"

was cheerfully ready to hand out the award for best director.

In addition to presenters and recipients, the famous faces in tonight's show include past winners who have been invited to sit in the audience, including Sidney Poitier, Lee Marvin, Olivia de Havilland, Robert Duvall, Jose Ferrer, Joan Fontaine and Ernest Borgnine.

Donen, the director of "Singin' in the Rain" and "Seven Brides for Seven Brothers," also enlisted alumnae from MGM musicals for a musical number by Howard Keel, "Once a Star, Always a Star." The stars: Jane Powell, Ann Miller, Marge Champion, June Allyson, Kathryn Grayson, Esther Williams, Cyd Charisse, Leslie Caron, Debbie Reynolds.

Backstage politics may influence the ultimate outcome of the best picture race.

The Academy's failure to nominate director Steven Spielberg for "The Color Purple" angered some in the Hollywood film community. The Directors Guild responded by giving Spielberg its top award.

"Out of Africa," a lushly romantic film set in the vivid landscape of colonial Africa, is a favorite for best picture. But sentimental feelings about the 79-year-old Huston could boost "Prizzi's Honor," his sardonic comedy-drama of love and duplicity in the Mafia underworld which co-stars his daughter, Anjelica.

A split among voters could also throw votes to two sleepers, "Kiss of the Spider Woman," the powerful drama of politics and the prison life of a fiery revolutionary and a movie-mad homosexual; and

"Witness," the popular cop chase through Pennsylvania Amish country.

Only one acting nominee has said he won't be there. Harrison Ford, nominated as best actor for "Witness," is filming "The Mosquito Coast" in Belize, formerly British Honduras, with Australian Peter Weir, nominee for his direction of "Witness."

Paul Newman, who receives a special Oscar for "his many memorable and compelling screen performances and for his personal integrity and dedication to his craft," plans to accept from Chicago, where he is filming "The Color of Money," an update of "The Hustler."

The ABC telecast, featuring Alda, Jane Fonda and Robin Williams as hosts, begins at 9 p.m. EST.

Stallones Win Awards As Industry's 'Worst'

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — In a spoof in advance of tonight's Academy Awards, Sylvester Stallone, his wife and his brother swept the 6th annual Golden Raspberry Awards for the worst in movies.

Stallone's "Rambo: First Blood, Part II" was voted 1985's worst film by the 170-member Golden Raspberry Award Foundation. He took the Razzies for worst actor, director and screenplay; his actress-wife Brigitte Nielsen won for worst supporting actress and new star, and brother Frank Stallone's tune "Peace in Our Life" was picked worst song.

Miss Nielsen won the worst supporting actress trophy for Stallone's "Rocky IV," and her worst new star win was based on her performances in "Rocky IV" and "Red Sonja."

Stallone won the worst actor category for both "Rambo" and "Rocky IV," the first time someone has taken the worst actor award for two titles.

Stallone had another first of sorts, in that "Rambo" is the only Razzie worst picture winner to make money, foundation spokesman John Wilson said.

The Stallone family replaces John and Bo Derek as the favorite target of the association, which awards yellow, plastic raspberry trophies in ceremonies timed 24 hours ahead of today's Academy Awards.

Journal Reviews World Literature

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans know about bombings and battles in Lebanon and Afghanistan. However, not many people know about the arts and literature of those lands.

"They don't know anything about their dreams — the imagination of these people," said Ivar Ivask, who as editor of "World Literature Today," builds bridges between languages and cultures.

"World Literature Today" is the literary quarterly of the University of Oklahoma. The journal's most unique feature is that it regularly reviews books from every corner of the world, including those available only in their original languages which are unfamiliar to most American readers.

It has a stable of about 800 reviewers in the United States and abroad, and as a group they read as many as 72 languages, including Lithuanian, Icelandic, Esperanto, Basque, Maori, Tamil, Catalan, Afrikaans and Macedonian. Most of the reviewers are affiliated with universities, and they write their reviews in English.

The journal was founded in 1927 by a modern languages professor at the University of Oklahoma in Norman as "Books Abroad." It was designed to promote international understanding by disseminating literary information.

The cosmopolitan quarterly initially consisted of a mere 32 pages. Today, the handsome magazine runs about 176 pages, carrying some 300 short reviews as well as several articles and commentaries on world literature.

Space Panel Projects Settlements On Moon

WASHINGTON (AP) — A presidential panel is proposing an ambitious, $700 billion space program that would put manned settlements on the moon and Mars and vastly expand space travel to perhaps 1 million travelers a day, a published report says.

The National Commission on Space, appointed by President Reagan a year ago, said in its study that it envisions a time within the next half century when outposts on the moon and Mars would become permanent installations furnishing the necessities of life and sustaining exploration, scientific work and resource development. Aviation Week & Space Technology reports in its March 24 editions.

The commission is expected to present the report to the White House next month, says Aviation Week, which obtained a final draft of the panel's report.

The 200-page report, called "Pioneering the Space Frontier: Our Next 50 Years in Space," is dedicated to the seven-member crew of the Challenger who died when their space shuttle exploded Jan. 28.

Commission spokesman Leonard David said in a telephone interview Sunday night that the commission did not scale back any of its goals in the wake of the Challenger accident.

"We have been working since last March, looking at the full range of possibilities of where we would go beyond a space station. We have been looking at a lot of issues that didn't change after the Challenger accident," he said.

David declined to answer questions about details of the report, but said the commission was finished with its work and discussing the report's release date with the White House.

The panel is headed by Thomas O. Paine, former administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, and also includes Neil Armstrong, the first man on the moon; astronaut Kathryn Sullivan; and retired Air Force Brig. Gen. Chuck Yeager, the first pilot to fly faster than the speed of sound.

The commission proposes that in the early stages of the space program, new equipment be developed, including a low-orbit cargo vehicle, a passenger vehicle for travel to and from low Earth orbit, and a transfer ship to carry passengers and cargo beyond the moon.

That vehicle also would provide "ferry service" in the inner solar system, the report says.

Those new space vehicles would follow up the space station proposed by the Reagan administration for the mid-1990s.

Between 1995 to 2020, spending would total about $700 billion, the report said. That figure is pegged to NASA's budget growing proportionately to the gross national product.

The report envisions a "network of spaceports between the earth, the moon and Mars," with a permanent colony on Mars by 2027.

The commission also calls for use of a more advanced version of the space shuttle, a reusable rocket vehicle. The report says the eventual transportation of a million passengers a day in space is "not out of the question," given the growth of air transportation in the past 50 years.

The report also recommends expanded searches for asteroids that might contain mineral and other resources, and stepped-up development of robot technology for space operations.

After 50 Years, University Reviews Professor's Firing

PORT WASHINGTON, N.Y. (AP) — When a colleague at Rutgers University praised Adolf Hitler during a 1935 debate as a "German Roosevelt," Lienhard Bergel took exception.

The incident exacerbated tensions within the German department and before the end of the year Bergel was fired, allegedly for incompetence. He believes it was really for his criticizing his colleagues' view of the Nazis.

Bergel went on to a distinguished career at the City University of New York and three times was awarded Fulbright scholarships. Now 80 and retired here, he says he gave the incident little thought over the years.

A Rutgers alumnus, however, has persuaded the New Brunswick, N.J., school to investigate the firing. A committee formed in September to assess the case is scheduled to announce its findings in June, said Morris Roth, a Rutgers spokesman.

Professor David Oshinsky, who heads the investigation, said the committee has interviewed many people, looked through FBI files and examined university records.

"We're not writing this report to please the university president. We're not writing it to please Dr. Bergel. We're writing it to get at the truth," Oshinsky said.

In a recent interview, Bergel said that although he did not start the inquiry, when others did "I felt I owed it to members of my profession that people see what was possible then and might be possible in the future."

One result of the inquiry has been the discovery of an FBI file on Friederich J. Hauptmann, the department head who fired Bergel. The file says Hauptmann "made suspicious contacts with German vessels in 1934, 1935 and 1936."

One document says, "In the summer of 1934, while the U.S. Army was engaged in extensive maneuvers at Sandy Hook, Hauptmann and an unidentified woman doctor from New York City rented a cottage there and spent many hours observing and studying the details of these maneuvers. When the maneuvers were completed, Hauptmann very suddenly gave up the cottage and returned to New Brunswick."

The file characterizes the case as espionage and contains a letter from then-FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover ordering an investigation.

Bergel remembers an FBI agent at his front door the day after a panel appointed by the university upheld his firing.

"He said, 'We have been surveying him (Hauptmann) since 1933 and he is under suspicion of spying for the Nazis,'" Bergel recalled.

Bergel, who retired in 1975 as a professor of comparative literature at CUNY, was born in Germany.

He was disturbed by the rise of the Nazis, whom he remembers as "superpatriotic soldiers from World War I eager for a war of revenge." When the Rutgers job became available, he decided to leave Germany.

At Rutgers' New Jersey College for Women, now Douglass College, he wanted to talk with his colleagues about German literature.

"What they really wanted to talk about were the Nazis," he said. "It inevitably led to an argument. They insisted Germany needed a strong man and Hitler was the man."

A major turning point came at a League of Women Voters' debate where a member of the German department described Hitler as a German Roosevelt, Bergel said.

When Bergel attacked that comparison he was criticized by his colleagues and tensions intensified, he recalled.

His firing was upheld by the trustees when he appealed it.

In November 1940, Hauptmann sent a letter to Rutgers' president asking for a year's leave of absence with pay, according to the FBI files. Hauptmann apparently had left the country the day before, the files show.

The files contain a letter from Berlin to the German consulate in New York approving an expenditure by Germany for some of the costs "involving the repatriation of professor Hauptmann."

The letter said the costs were warranted "in consideration of the peculiar circumstances of the case."

Hauptmann later worked for Joseph Goebbels in the Nazi propaganda ministry. After the war, he was arrested and briefly imprisoned, according to U.S. Army records.

LIENHARD BERGEL

The 141-page FBI file was sent to Bergel by Alan Silver, a Highland Park, N.J., management consultant and member of Rutgers' Class of 1935 who led the effort for reconsideration of Bergel's case. Silver said he was inspired by Rutgers students' anti-apartheid rallies last year.

Hauptmann eventually departed from Berlin to his pro-Nazi stand, taught in Austria, and is believed dead, according to Silver.

Bergel, who has never met Silver, said he's not optimistic that the school will alter its official position that the firing was justified.

"I have no confidence in any official connected with Rutgers University," Bergel said. "What I believe will happen, they will say it was a case of incompatibility, that I couldn't get along with them."

Carbide Settlement Opposed By India

DANBURY, Conn. (AP) — Attorneys for the Indian government say they will try to block court approval of a proposed $350 million settlement for victims of the 1984 gas leak in Bhopal.

Union Carbide Corp. tentatively agreed to the settlement for damage and injury claims from the chemical leak that killed more than 2,000 people and injured at least 200,000 others, a company spokesman said Sunday.

The money would go into a fund that would generate between $500 million and $600 million for the victims, said Harvey Cobert, Carbide media relations manager.

Cobert said the agreement "was worked out with some of the most prominent of the plaintiffs' lawyers in the United States."

D.S. Sastri, an attorney representing the Indian government, said he will recommend that the government oppose the settlement. It had been seeking nearly $1 billion in damages.

"Who are these lawyers and whom do they represent?" Sastri said. "Do they really know who their clients are, and the extent of their injuries? I do not believe they have any clients."

The agreement still must be approved by U.S. District Judge John F. Keenan in New York City and the company's board of directors, Cobert said.

The leak occurred Dec. 2-3, 1984, at a central India plant that was producing methyl isocyanate, a pesticide ingredient.

Life Goes On At 100

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP) — Alfred Burin planned to celebrate his 100th birthday today where he spends most days: his office at Globe Shipping Co., where he has worked for 84 years.

"I think work is the best thing in life — to work hard," the company's chairman said today. And after his birthday, all he hopes to do is "continue to work, and to live a quiet ... life."

Age 100 feels "nothing different from normal times," he said in an interview on NBC-TV's "Today" show. "There isn't much to enjoy, really, but I do the best I can."

Harborside Financial Center, the office complex that houses Globe, is throwing a party for its oldest tenant, who up until a year ago went to the office five days a week.

"At age 99 he cut down a little, but only because of the commute" when the company left its quarters at the World Trade Center in New York City, said Aaron Biller, a spokesman for Harborside.

Now Burin works four days a week, traveling to the office by taxi service from his Manhattan apartment.

"Today we're going to roll out the cake and have a picture-taking session," Biller said.

VIPs Trade Barbs, Jokes At Annual Gridiron Dinner

WASHINGTON (A) — "I don't mind not being president," said Sen. Edward M. Kennedy. "I just mind that someone else is."

"They say I'm arrogant," said White House Chief of Staff Donald T. Regan. "I don't think that's right. I just believe that there's no human problem that can't be solved if people do as I tell them."

And, he added, "If I only had a little humility, I'd be perfect."

That's the kind of evening it was, Saturday night, as the most powerful people in Washington gathered to poke fun and be poked at in the 101-year-old Washington rite known as the Gridiron Dinner.

The Gridiron Club, an organization of 60 members of the Washington writing press, invited 600 guests, including the most powerful people in government, to its annual shindig. The head table bristled with VIPs, including Chief Justice Warren Burger, three associate justices, the secretaries of the treasury, defense, agriculture, commerce, transportation and education.

President and Nancy Reagan were there. So were Vice President George Bush and his wife, Barbara Bush, along with senators, representatives, generals, admirals and the director of the CIA.

The barbs went in both directions. "Senator Kennedy dropped out (of the 1988 presidential race) just as the polls started to show him gaining on Jimmy Carter," said the president. And of his chief of staff, he said, "Don's written a new book: 'Presidents Who Have Known Me.'"

Kennedy told the crowd, "Let's not be too tough on Don Regan tonight — he's the only dictator this administration's got left." And he said people may be divided about Regan's policies "but they admire the president for not getting involved in them."

Regan introduced himself to the white tie crowd by saying his middle initial stands for "throwweight."

"Power corrupts and absolute power is really neat," said the White House chief of staff, attempting to live up to his reputation as the power behind the throne. "Don, don't you ever stop and smell the flowers?" he recalled his wife as saying, "I said, what do we have a gardener for?"

Reporters have a way of "turning harmony into discord, joy into sadness, faith into doubt, and hope into despair," Regan told the journalists, adding "That's generally the way I operate, too."

Gridiron Club members celebrated the start of their second century with skits depicting Democrats searching in the wilderness for a candidate to lead them to the White House and Republicans awaiting Rambo, their symbol of new-found national strength.

"Oh, what a wreck of a party, no issues and no one of note," the Democrats sang. "Maybe we'd win an election, if Marcos were counting the vote."

In the Republican skit, an actor playing deposed Philippines President Ferdinand Marcos warbled, "Oh, we shipped out a barrel of money, billions for me and my honey; so we'll travel along, kicking the gong, side by side."

The show and dinner lasted nearly until midnight and the president and Mrs. Reagan stayed to the end.

"I'd like to talk longer," he said in closing his speech. "But you know my attention span."

Sweeteners From Corn Increasing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sweeteners made from corn probably will widen their lead over sugar this year in the race for American taste preferences, according to analysts in the Agriculture Department.

The use of corn sweeteners, particularly HFCS or high fructose corn syrup, has risen greatly in recent years while the overall U.S. consumption of total sweeteners has increased but not as rapidly. As a result, sugar is being displaced by the corn sweeteners.

In 1985, says the department's Economic Research Service, the total per capita consumption of "caloric" sweeteners such as sugar and syrup averaged 129.8 pounds. That was up 10 percent from 118.1 pounds in 1975.

But in the same 10-year span, the average consumption of refined sugar by Americans dropped from 89.2 pounds to 63.4 pounds, a 29 percent decline. The per capita use of all corn sweeteners, meanwhile, rose from 27.5 pounds in 1975 to 65 pounds last year, a 236 percent increase.

Most of the gain has been in the use of HFCS, which has been popular among soft drink manufacturers. From only five pounds consumed per capita in 1975, HFCS last year grew to 43.5 pounds.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: Q equals D

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

YOUR DAILY Horoscope from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: As the full moon approaches, the early part of the day finds many upsets apt to take place, and yet there is the opportunity to take advantage of these changes.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Make some changes in your routines so that you can be more efficient and produce more in the future.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You may have to revise some amusement plans so they will be more to your liking, so don't hesitate to do so.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Don't let that home condition knock you for a loop, but handle it wisely in the morning, and tonight you can go out for pleasure.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) You had made a plan that is not workable, so find a different way of accomplishing your aims. Gain your finest ambitions.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) You may make an error where finances are concerned, so check and double-check your figuring to be sure.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Things do not go just as you had planned them in the morning, but go along with the tide and all works out all right.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You think you have completed a dull task, but you find there are more details to be taken care of.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You find you are not in the position you thought you were in a private relationship, but let nature take its course.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Use much tact with bigwigs today and avoid trouble, but be happy with friends and relieve tensions you are under.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) The moon is full and you are inspired to improve your relationships with others, but the planets are not favorable just now.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You think you have more indebtednesses and work than you can handle, but take a step at a time and you do fine.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) A partner who is usually reliable can be quite difficult to handle today, so make allowances for an off day.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will suddenly do something startling or dramatic and upset those around, so teach to be more thoughtful of others. This implies quality can soon be conquered and your progeny becomes very helpful to those at home and others. Plan for a good education. There is an artistic bent here.

Opposition Forces Rally In Pakistan

RAWALPINDI, Pakistan (AP) — Tens of thousands of people crowded city streets calling for President Zia ul-Haq's resignation and shouting anti-American slogans in one of the biggest opposition rallies since martial law was lifted Dec. 30.

The Movement for the Restoration of Democracy, an alliance of 11 opposition parties, staged demonstrations throughout the nation Sunday commemorating Pakistan Day, celebrated as independence day here.

About 60,000 people chanting "Zia is a dog!" and "Down with the Americans!" marched through this city of about 1 million and listened to anti-government speeches calling for the end of military influence in politics and immediate free elections.

Hundreds of riot police armed with rifles, bamboo clubs and shields were stationed around the city.

The United States was repeatedly criticized for supporting Zia, the army chief of staff who seized power in 1977.

"If we want democracy in the country we must rid Pakistan of American influence, we must struggle against the Americans," said Afzal Zahda, a leader of the Peasants and Workers Party.

"American imperialism should stop interfering in the internal affairs of Pakistan," he said.

Malik Qasim, a leader of the Pakistan Moslem League, said Zia could not remain in power much longer and the people of Pakistan were ready to sweep him away and restore democracy.

"Peoples' rule is about to come. Your sufferings will come to an end," he said.

Zahda charged that Zia's government wanted Pakistanis to fight the communist regime in neighboring Afghanistan to serve U.S. interests.

ANSWERS TO WEEKLY BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠J ♡Q987 ♢AJ983 ♣AK6
 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South West
 1 ♣ Pass 2 ♠ Pass
 2 ♠ Pass ?
 What do you bid now?
 A.—If you play that a two-over-one response is forcing to game, you can simply set the trump suit now by bidding three hearts. If you do not, you cannot afford that action since partner might pass; and to bid four hearts could easily result in your missing a slam. Therefore, we suggest a bid of three clubs, with vigorous support for hearts at your next turn.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠10 ♡AQ763 ♢J982 ♣Q83
 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South West
 1 ♣ Pass 1 NT Dble
 Pass Pass ?
 What action do you take?
 A.—Since you are near maximum for your response with stoppers in all the unbid suits, we suggest you pass and be happy to make a doubled contract, perhaps with over-tricks worth, at this vulnerability, 200 points each. The alternative is to redouble, but that might force the opponents to a contract where a double would not be quite as lucrative for your side.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠AQ83 ♡AK952 ♢73 ♣A2
 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South West
 Pass Pass 1 ♠ Pass
 4 ♠ Pass ?
 What action do you take?
 A.—Since North is a passed hand, his jump to game shows a hand that revalues to at least the equivalent of an opening bid in support of hearts. That means you are in the slam zone, and we would certainly make a move. The obvious one is a cue-bid of four spades, to see if that inspires partner.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠AJ53 ♡AK102 ♢AK876
 The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 1 ♣ 1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ ?
 What do you bid now?
 A.—The auction makes it a certainty that you have an eight-card fit in some suit, and you want to be in game in that suit. The obvious choice lies between a double (for takeout, naturally) and a cue-bid of three hearts. Since we don't really want to give partner the opportunity of converting to a penalty double, we prefer the cue-bid.

Q.5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠Q6 ♡86 ♢A102 ♣KJ7643
 The bidding has proceeded:
 West North East South
 Pass 1 ♣ 3 ♠ ?
 What do you bid now?
 A.—East's preempt has lifted the auction to an uncomfortably high level, and you will have to guess. We can think of too many hands that partner might hold which will offer no play at all for 11 tricks, so we would rule out five clubs, and four clubs asks for us to be left hanging. We would opt for three no trump as the most flexible bid under the circumstances. If the defenders do run five tricks in a major, we will apologize to partner.

Q.6—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠AK ♡QJ3 ♢Q92 ♣106542
 Partner opens the bidding with one club. What do you respond?
 A.—Your choices are three clubs or two no trump. Although technically we need 13 points to jump to two no trump, our fifth club makes up for the 1 high-card point we are short. Since our hand is balanced and 11 tricks could be too high, we would opt for two no trump.

 Hollywood's stars will come out tonight, as the Academy of Motion Pictures meets to present the Oscar awards. George Stanley created the first golden Oscar statuettes in 1928. No bank should call itself American if it doesn't see people as individuals.

At First American we hold this truth to be self evident—that we are a nation of individuals.

We've become one of North Carolina's largest financial institutions because we understand this. Because we appreciate that people have individual hopes and dreams and goals. And because we realize that sometimes, pursuit of the American dream requires a helping hand from your bank.

More importantly, we also realize that we can only remain successful as long as we do three things well.

Offer a broad array of services. Tailor them to your individual needs. And remember that we grow larger one customer at a time.
