Libyan Gulf Quiet Again

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
AP White House Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — Calm prevailed today over the Gulf of Sidra, while Reagan administration officials defended the 6th Fleet's pounding of Libyan ships and an anti-aircraft base hours after Libya launched its last missile.

"There have been no incidents," Col. Arnold Williams, a Defense Department spokesman, said this morning.

Williams said that flight operations were continuing, but that no U.S. ships were in the disputed gulf.

"They are sailing around in the Mediterranean," Williams said.

The more than 24 hours of peace followed two straight days of fighting in the gulf.

Four Libyan ships were hit during the confrontations Monday and early Tuesday; three reportedly were sunk. Navy planes also struck a Libyan radar site Monday, then attacked it again less than four hours later after reports that at least one radar unit was back in operation.

U.S. officials said there was another "event" Tuesday involving a Libyan patrol ship, but no further details were immediately forthcoming. They said the boat may have slipped away.

In the wake of the U.S. attacks, Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy said it is "a time of war" over his claim to the Gulf of Sidra, and the U.S. government, fearing terrorist reprisals by the Libyans, tightened security at government buildings in the United States and at embassy buildings abroad.

U.S. officials in Washington issued conflicting and admittedly erroneous reports early Tuesday that the Libyans continued to fire on U.S. warplanes. They later justified the second round of firing by saying the Navy's 30-ship armada had orders declaring any Libyan plane or boat approaching them to have hostile intentions.

"We have been given ample evidence of hostile Libyan intentions ... and we will defend ourselves," Pentagon spokesman Robert Sims declared, referring to Libya's launching of ground-to-air missiles against U.S. planes on Monday.

In disclosing new confrontations Tuesday, the Pentagon and White House initially said as many as 12 missiles had been fired at U.S. planes and that some of the additional missile launches had occurred Tuesday.

Later, however, both the White House and Pentagon said Libya had not fired any missiles at U.S. planes since 1:14 p.m. EST Monday, or 7:14 p.m. in the Mediterranean. Only six missiles can be absolutely confirmed as having been fired but there were probably more, Sims said.

As outlined by Sims, the first Libyan ship was attacked with missiles fired by a U.S. A-6 jet at 2:26 p.m. EST Monday, or 8:26 p.m. local time.

American Eagle May Fly Here

Pitt-Greenville Airport may be served by a second commuter airline after American Airlines opens a new regional hub in mid-1987, but American officials say they won't make an announcement until 1987.

The regional hub is now under construction at Raleigh-Durham Airport.

Al Becker, a spokesman for American, said in a telephone interview from the airline's Dallas headquarters Tuesday that American has "no immediate plans" for service to Pitt-Greenville, but "will have a substantial commuter feeder network" serving the hub.

That commuter service, he said, will be provided by the airline's American Eagle commuter, operated by AVAir headquartered in Lynchburg, Va. AVAir, formerly Air Virginia, presently serves Raleigh-Durham, Becker said.

The smallest aircraft operated by American is a 115-passenger 727, Becker said. While many markets, such as Pitt-Greenville, "are not quite that large," Becker said the airline is "looking at a large number of passengers" being generated through commuter service at smaller airports.

Contra Aid Alternative Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supporters and opponents of President Reagan's $100 million aid package to Nicaraguan rebels tried today to negotiate a compromise that would win widespread Senate support.

As the Republican-controlled Senate met, Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., said the reported incursion by Nicaraguan troops into neighboring Honduras improves chances for Senate approval of the president's plan.

The Senate was scheduled later today to begin 10 hours of debate on the aid plan, with a vote likely tonight or Thursday.

Dole, referring to Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega, told reporters that "Ortega gave us a boost" by moving troops into Honduras. "I hope they don't pull out today."

Meanwhile, Dole and Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, met with Sen. James Sasser, D-Tenn., chief proponent of a Democratic alternative to Reagan's plan, to try to fashion a compromise.

"We're trying to work something out," said Sasser as he entered the meeting.

Dole said backers of Reagan's plan believe they have the votes to win outright, but said they are trying to work out a compromise to pick up as many Democratic votes as possible.

"If we can get a large vote here," Dole said, "we can send a clear, strong message to Managua" that the American government is united.

The Democratic-controlled House voted 222-210 last week against Reagan's aid package.

Rebels Blocking Returning Troops

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — More than 1,500 Nicaraguan soldiers who reportedly pursued U.S.-backed Contra rebels into Honduras are trying to fight their way out, but are meeting fierce rebel resistance, military intelligence sources said.

A spokesman for the U.S. Embassy told The Associated Press late Tuesday: "The anti-Sandinistas performed efficiently ... and they continue doing so after killing in combat more than 100 soldiers of the regular Nicaraguan army, which is now receding."

Nicaragua denied the reports of an incursion, which it said were aimed at securing additional U.S. aid for the Contras, and the accounts of fighting in southeast Honduras could not be independently verified.

Honduran soldiers were ordered to keep journalists from entering the area, military sources said.

The U.S. Embassy spokesman, who refused to be identified, said he had no additional details. But the Honduran sources said Nicaragua's Sandinista troops were facing about 3,000 members of the Nicaraguan Democratic Force, the largest of the Contra groups seeking to overthrow

Moye Hits Jones Vote On Rebels

By DON REUTER
Reflector Staff Writer

A vote by Rep. Walter B. Jones, D-N.C., denying support to Nicaraguan rebels demonstrates his failure to represent the people who elected him, Republican Howard Moye said at a news conference today at the Pitt County Courthouse.

"Congressman Jones' vote denying support to Nicaraguan Freedom Fighters once again demonstrates his failure to represent the best interests of this district," said Moye, who is seeking his party's nomination for the 1st District seat in the U.S. House of Representatives, which Jones now holds.

"Jones regularly joins Tip O'Neill and his liberals in aimless prostration regarding our allies' urgent plea for help."

Moye criticized the recent vote in the House, which rejected President Reagan's request for aid to the Contras.

"The effect of recently denying President Reagan permission to shift $100 million of already budgeted defense funds to Nicaragua came swiftly. The emboldened Russian and Cuban-backed Sandinistas brazenly invaded our loyal democratic ally, Honduras," Moye said. "This invasion is the direct result of the congressional liberals' demonstrated weakness toward militant communism in this hemisphere."

The recent invasion of Honduras should be a signal that communism is creeping toward America's back door and is deserving of attention, according to Moye.

School Banquets 'Part Of Process'

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County school administrators, a county school board member, a former administrator and an official of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools say they are comfortable with the long-used practice of allowing schools being surveyed for accreditation to hold banquets and receptions for visiting survey teams.

Anne McGaughey, a Pitt County school board member who attended several of this year's events, said she sees the costs of the practice as "money well spent" and the holding of the gatherings as, "in no way, a conflict of interest for those participating."

"These banquets and receptions have, as I understand it, over the years just become a part of the accreditation process," she said. "They're carried out everywhere the Southern Association conducts surveys and to be competitive, if for no other reason, we have come to believe they must be held."

"I guess the money spent on entertaining visiting surveyors is the only part of the money spent for accreditation that is not directly involved in upgrading equipment and teaching practice, but we think it has the intangible benefit of not only

Beaufort Man Fights To Recover

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Durwood Weston has eyes in his hands — or so people around Blount's Creek in Beaufort County say.

He has been known throughout the area since he came out of the Air Force in 1962 as a skilled mechanic, able and willing to provide reasonably priced repair of everything from automobiles to tractors to lawnmowers.

He was also known as a civic-minded person, a worker in Elizabeth Chapel Church of Christ, a Mason, and a member of the local fire and rescue department for as long as they've been in existence.

"I always enjoyed helping my neighbors," he said. "That's been what kept me going most of my life."

Now Weston's neighbors have a chance to help him, for he is fighting a long battle back from near-fatal injuries sustained while on a call with the Blount's Creek Rescue Squad.

The Saturday morning before Christmas 1985, Weston was awakened by the beeper by his bed announcing a wreck a couple of miles from his house. "I didn't have to go," he said. "I'd been on duty all day. But it was close and I knew I lived closer to the scene than any other member of our rescue squad. So I was there in about two minutes."

The first rescue person at the scene, he recognized the young man in the car wrapped around an electric pole. He also saw that the pole was broken off, with part of it lying across the hood of the car.

Weston knows electricity. He respects it and gives it plenty of space.

He was relieved to see the occupant of the car scooting himself out of the overturned car, and he rushed to help him. Then he was amazed to see that the man's foot and part of his leg was missing with the stub cooked flesh with no bleeding. Weston knew the man had contacted electricity.

By then other rescue personnel were arriving and a stretcher was brought. The group decided on a route to the rescue vehicle that they thought would not bring them in contact with the possibly live wires.

They thought wrong. Somehow a wire or field of electricity was contacted and the group was knocked to the ground, with Weston bearing the brunt of the new shock.

The wreck victim received further injuries.

Weston's colleagues quickly got him away from the area, gave him emergency care, including oxygenation, and radioed for EastCare ambulance service in Greenville to be standing by at Beaufort County Hospital. Both injured persons were taken to Beaufort. Weston was transferred by helicopter to Pitt County Memorial and the wreck victim went to the burn center in Chapel Hill by ground ambulance.

Weston said he remembers everything up until the moment he contacted the electricity and nothing more until the next morning when he

CHAPTER OFFICERS...Jane A. Adams, worthy matron, and Kenneth E. Caswell, worthy patron were installed Saturday night.

Eastern Star Chapter Has Open Installation

An open installation of officers was held Saturday night by Greenville chapter No. 149, Order of Eastern Star. Jane A. Adams was installed as worthy matron and Kenneth E. Caswell as worthy patron.

Others installed were: Mary Freeland, associate matron; A.E. Forrest, associate patron; Jean K. Tharp, secretary; Margaret C. Gray, treasurer; Jean Riggan, conductress; Melanie Bunch, associate conductress; Blanche Jackson, chaplain.

Grace Hill, marshal; Marguerite Cook, organist; Gertie Andrews, Adah; Ellen Bostick, Ruth; Margaret Schiller, Esther; Camille Leggett, Martha; Mabel Caswell, electa; Nancy Corbett, warder; and Jerome Bostick, sentinel.

Special guests present were Mrs. Glenn Whitfield Garner, past grand matron, and Mrs. Freeland, grand representative of Rhode Island in N.C. Installing officers were: Mrs. Garner, installing grand chapter officer; Joyce Wheelless, past matron of Farmville Chapter No. 146, installing grand marshal; Richard Dawson, installing grand chaplain, and Elizabeth Moore, past matron of Kinston Chapter No. 53, installing grand organist.

Martha G. Andrews, worthy matron, and Bryce W. Tharp, worthy patron, both of the Greenville chapter, conducted the opening.

Mrs. Adams gave an acceptance address and introduced members of her family including her husband, Tom. Caswell gave his acceptance talk and introduced his wife, Mabel.

The outgoing worthy matron and worthy patron were honored by the presentation of jewels and a gift from Lillie McLawhorn and Mrs. Tharp. A hand-crafted gavel was given Mrs. Adams by her husband and brother-in-law, Eli Parson.

Philip Evancho presented several musical selections accompanied by Mrs. Cook.

The Masonic Temple was decorated with red roses and violets, selected flowers of Mrs. Adams.

A reception followed the installation. The refreshment table was covered with a white lace cloth and centered with an arrangement of red roses and purple violets flanked by white candles in silver candelabra.

Mrs. Jackson welcomed guests and Estelle Tucker registered guests. Pages were Tani Shae Adams and Kristin Bobbitt. Jenny Riggan and Miss Adams were candlelighters.

Margaret Gray, Mrs. Riggan, Ruth Forrest, Mrs. Tharp and Dora Tyson were members of the refreshment committee. Mrs. Tharp, Mrs. Freeland and Sadie Wrae Carrington were members of the decorating committee.

Dear Abby

Book On Writing Letters Appreciated By Reader

DEAR ABBY: I am a U.S. postal employee who wants to say thank you, thank you, thank you for your booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." A co-worker of mine lost a grown child due to a tragic accident, and in your booklet I found just the words that reflected my true feelings. I later heard that my condolence note gave much comfort to the bereaved.

That booklet contains so much good material about how to write letters of every kind, I want you to know it was the best $2.50 I ever spent.

M.B. LAMAR,
MELBOURNE, FLA.

DEAR ABBY: You have often been asked a question like this: I am a 26-year-old female who would like to meet a decent, eligible man. I've tried the bar scene, but most men are after a one-night stand. I've tried church groups, but the few men who are present came because their wives made them go. So where do I go from here?

Abby, I have a suggestion: Join a chess club. Women are always welcome. Furthermore, they will find that men outnumber women 10-to-1. Not bad odds! Also, from 25 percent to 40 percent of the men will be unmarried. Men who play chess on a regular basis are usually of good character. The game requires that the player make individual, intelligent, patient and logical decisions. These attributes carry over into everyday life. For example, I estimate that 95 percent of steady tournament players do not smoke, and I have never met one who abuses alcohol or drugs. They are almost always employed, are high achievers and have a stable family life.

A woman could counter with, "But I don't know anything about chess." Well, that could be to her advantage. What better way to break the ice than to ask a man of her choice to show her the moves?

If you print this, some women will probably write in and say, "I married a chess player, and you can have him!"

I realize that not every chess player is necessarily an ideal prospect for marriage, but it's a good way to meet eligible men.

LYLE PROSTERMAN,
COLUMBUS

DEAR LYLE: It's a novel idea for a place for women to meet decent men, but the typical chess player (as I perceive him) is not exactly a barrel of laughs. He's apt to be quiet and pensive, more of an introvert than an extrovert, highly competitive, and slow to make decisions—which isn't all bad. The moves in chess have often been compared with those made by two opposing generals on a battlefield. A chess game resembles a war in that it consists of attack and defense, whose object is making the "king" surrender. On second thought, it could be a good training ground for marriage.

other as her husband had a long illness before he died, and she knew how I felt. She invited me to dinner at her apartment and I enjoyed her company so much I want to spend more time with her.

Now the problem: I feel guilty. I'm still a married man, Catholic, and want the respect of my children and friends, but life is lonely without some kind of companionship. Is this wrong?

I would also like some thoughts on this from priests, ministers and rabbis.

LONESOME

DEAR LONESOME: As I see it, you and the lady have suffered a great deal, and my heart goes out to both of you. I see no reason why you can't enjoy each other's company without feeling guilty. Talk to your priest.

Finding Good Doctor Is Worth The Effort

LOMBARD, Ill. (AP) — Finding the right doctor isn't always easy but it is important, says Dr. Robert J. Becker, president of both the American College of Allergists and the Illinois Society of Internal Medicine.

"Most people moving into a new community don't know how to go about finding a physician in the first place, and many are simply intimidated by the whole business," says Becker, who is founder and chairman of HealthCare COMPARE. Based in Lombard, it is a nationwide cost containment company that monitors physician performance and hospital admissions for employer-funded benefit plans.

The Illinois internist, who believes finding a suitable primary care doctor is critical for the maintenance of good health over a lifetime, offers suggestions to help in the search.

People who wait until an emergency arises usually end up, "for better or worse," with the first available physician in the Yellow Pages, Becker points out.

"A patient's former physician is an excellent starting point," he says. "Through medical school ties, conventions and professional activities, most doctors will probably know like-minded practitioners in many parts of the country."

Other useful referral sources, he adds, include neighbors, relatives, co-workers, county medical societies and nearby hospitals. Medical societies will not recommend specific doctors but only provide a list, he notes. Hospitals will supply names, but only of doctors who have admitting privileges at that particular institution.

After a patient has identified several doctors with convenient offices, Becker advises a check in the authoritative Directory of Medical Specialists, available at most public libraries. It lists all board-certified specialists in any given area, their education, training and membership in specialty organizations.

"But research is no substitute for a face-to-face meeting," he cautions. "In the emerging new competitive medical climate where the 'doctor glut' is an increasing reality, many physicians are now openly receptive to interviews by prospective patients."

The People's Medical Society, an information and medical consumer advocacy group in Emmaus, Pa., recommends a get-acquainted visit. The society also suggests drawing up a list of written questions relating to length of practice, fees, insurance reimbursement practices, hospital affiliation, education and degrees, plus asking for at least one patient reference.

Becker believes one of the most important questions a patient can ask a doctor concerns his, or her, attitude toward second opinions. Any hesitancy here should give a prospective patient considerable pause, he says.

Once a physician is chosen, the assessment process should continue, he explains.

"You first evaluate a physician on the basis of his, or her, relationship with you and, secondly, on the basis of professional ability," he says. "Most patients admit they aren't qualified to judge a doctor's medical ability, but they know when a physician is thorough and concerned, and listens to their symptoms."

In fact, according to Becker, a key point to consider is communication. "Does the physician explain what is going to be done? Is it a monologue or does the doctor engage in a genuine dialogue and encourage questions?"

"A physician should be no more intimidating than any other professional," he says. "Unfortunately, because of the healers' unique role in society, they have been placed on pedestals and become much more intimidating."

It's regrettable, Becker adds, that a great many patients still feel uncomfortable questioning a doctor.

"No matter how unhappy they are, they'll stay put because they're too shy to request medical records and switch doctors," he says. "Be as bold and assertive as you can be in a doctor's office. It's one place in life where it really matters."

It's rare to find a good, down-to-earth book of useful, understandable tips on knitting. Too many are written either by top-notch knitters without good writing skills or by excellent writers without a basic understanding of the problems faced by the average knitter.

In "Knitting in Plain English" by Maggie Righetti, you have the best of both worlds. Maggie writes as if she were talking to you over a cup of coffee, sharing with you the tips she has learned over the years — some gleaned from other people, some from trial and error, some from diligent research and some from sheer inspiration.

Like me, Maggie uses circular needles for almost everything and she gives a number of reasons for doing so — all of which I agree with. Then she tells you of the disadvantages and how to overcome them. For example: "As they come new from the package, the nylon cables (on circular needles) will be tightly curled and kinky. But if you place a new circular needle in a bowl or basin of very hot tap water for a few minutes, it will magically uncurl and straighten out."

In another chapter, she suggests putting emory boards and Band-Aids in your knitting bag. I knew to keep an emory board on hand to smooth a chip or rough edge on my fingernails or a rough spot on needle or hook, but a Band-Aid?

To quote Maggie: "Band-Aids were added to my knitting necessities the day I scratched a finger entering an auditorium to hear a lecture. Because my finger was bleeding, I couldn't knit during the lecture, and because the lecture turned out to be a bore, it was a miserable afternoon. I had to sit there motionless, but now I carry Band-Aids, and though I may not avoid being bored, I can at least engage my hands in constructive, creative and ingenious handwork."

Please don't get the idea that this book is just a collection of helpful but not absolutely necessary tips. Far from it. It is packed with detailed information on all aspects of successful knitting, from pattern selection and gauge to excellent instruction on blocking and finishing with all the in-between areas well covered.

CONSTRASTING YARNS...and patterns are used to make this cotton blend sweater.

A pound of ham serves 2½ to three people.

My only negative comment would be on a blurb on the front cover that states, "It's the only book any knitter will ever need." I can't honestly say that now I'll throw out all my other knitting books, but I am sure it will be one of my very favorites and one I can highly recommend.

I have never met Maggie Righetti, but I feel certain I would love to have her as a "knitting buddy." One thing that especially appeals to me is her lack of the "my way is the only right way" attitude taken by many authors and instructors. She is sharing with you the techniques that have made her own knitting more successful and enjoyable.

Quiet Relief

Congress has at last approved a tobacco program bill and there are high hopes it will be signed into law by the president. So why aren't the tobacco growers celebrating?

Well, it is certainly a relief that the bill may soon be on its way to the White House. Farmers may soon be able to begin to plan this year's crop and see continued the program they recently voted back in.

On the other hand the growers may also see price support prices drop from $1.72 to $1.44 per pound. In addition, much of the tobacco surplus will be purchased by domestic cigarette manufacturers. But then the "no net cost" assessment paid by growers may drop from 32 cents to a few cents. Another trade-off is that the tobacco tax will become 16 cents per pack permanently.

It thus comes down to the philosophy that a tobacco bill, any bill, is better than nothing at all.

County Extension Service Chairman Leroy James said, with the president's signature, the bill will allow farmers to "move on and make some sound decisions."

Tobacco Specialist Mitch Smith said, while there has been frustration because of the uncertainty, there should not be a lot of difference in the take-home portion of the warehouse check under the new program. Smith did, however, express concern over the effects of the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings budget-balancing bill. It is unclear how that bill will affect price support levels.

If it is signed into law, farmers can be thankful that they have a tobacco program for the coming year, particularly considering the uncertainty that it faced in its route through Congress. It is not perfect, but it does give relief from the backbreaking assessments for "no net cost." It also allows tobacco companies to purchase the huge backlog of tobacco that exists in this country. Most important, it can end the uncertainty that has plagued tobacco growers this year. With the president's signature, the job of planting and raising a tobacco crop can get under way.

Scholars

Eight high school seniors have been named to receive the 1986 University Scholars awards.

The awards will provide each recipient tuition and expenses at East Carolina University for four years.

Seven current students have already received awards from the budding scholarship program which was inaugurated in 1985. Each award is financed by private or alumni endowment of at least $40,000.

University officials say the University Scholars are chosen for academic excellence and leadership potential. Over 95 nominations were received this year. Following screening by regional selection committees 16 finalists were invited for interviews.

The ECU University scholars awards is but a budding program at present. Already, however, 15 scholars have benefited from it. Certainly the endowments will grow in the years ahead and the scholarships can become quite prestigious. If the scholarship program is to become one which fully complements a university of East Carolina University's stature, the program will require the generous financial support from all who love the university. We will all benefit from the exceptional young people the program brings to our area.

Public Supports Educational Plan

RALEIGH — A public opinion survey conducted by the State Office of Budget and Management apparently shows considerable popular support for the Legislature's recently enacted Basic Education Plan.

That, at least, was how several key members of the State Board of Education interpreted the survey results. They said the survey showed public support for basic skills education and public concern about the quality of education available to students in less prosperous areas of the state.

The 1985 Citizen Survey was conducted last fall and its results have just recently been released. OBM surveyed 1,400 North Carolinians using standard public opinion polling practices. The survey covered education, health, safety and consumer issues.

Nearly 61 percent of those polled said the public schools are doing a good or excellent job. But when that approval was broken down by region, OBM found that people in the east aren't as happy with their schools as are people in the west and Piedmont. Those surveyed were asked if they thought the schools in their area were doing as good a job as schools in other parts of North Carolina. Almost one-quarter of Piedmont and mountain residents said their schools were better than schools in other places. In the east, about half as many people thought their schools deserved such praise.

When the state board heard those figures, State Treasurer Harlan Boyles asked if testing data could back up this statement. Did students in the mountains and Piedmont fare better on standard tests, he asked? Yes, they do, he was told. Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan, a state board member, said, "There is a feeling out there that there is unequal educational opportunity in North Carolina. So, I would again make the point that the Basic Education Plan is pointed directly at that concern."

Under the BEP, the state is supposed to assume funding responsibility for a curriculum which is more complete than that offered in many poor school districts. For example, under the BEP, every high school student who wants to take physics and a foreign language should be able to do so. Some poor districts now have limited availability of such courses.

Betty Speir of Bethel said the approval rating coming out of the east reflected popular sentiment in her area "that there is an unequal distribution of funding (throughout the state) and that there are things their schools could be accomplishing that they are not." Mrs. Speir concluded, "There's a definite implication here that we need the BEP."

Another category of results also appears to support the BEP's curriculum. Those responding were nearly unanimous in saying that reading, writing, science and math were "very important" skills to learn in school. When "somewhat important" is added to "very important," near unanimity of support was also reached for personal health and safety, vocational and computer education, too.

Mebane Pritchett, state board chairman, says the "three R's are the things the public is clearly going to express as being critical." But he was happy to see that other studies included in the BEP — science, computers and vocational education, cultural arts and foreign languages — also received great public support.

The BEP has been criticized by some legislators as going beyond basics. State board members pointed to the survey and claimed to have the definition of "basic education" that the public wants.

Pinochet, Foes Watch Manila

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — The collapse of the Marcos regime across the Pacific has sent ripples of insecurity through Chile's military government, in power for 12½ years and scheduled to stay there until 1989.

Last month, after a popular uprising drove President Ferdinand E. Marcos from the Philippines, Chile's ambassador in Manila was quoted by a Santiago newspaper as saying how happy he was to see Philippine troops abandon their tanks in the face of thousands of Filipinos carrying flowers.

"It was admirable. The Filipinos have shown a deep faith in their convictions and the good sense to seek a peaceful solution," the ambassador was quoted as saying.

But the Manila drama struck Chilean President Augusto Pinochet differently. In fact, an angry Pinochet was ready to fire the ambassador but was talked out of it by aides, said sources in the Foreign Ministry who insisted on anonymity.

At the same time, few foreign events during Pinochet's years in power have sent so much optimism through the ranks of his opponents.

"After the Philippines, the conscience of the world turns toward Chile," Gabriel Valdes, the most prominent opposition figure, told a rally of his Christian Democratic Party. "The time has come here for the final choice between democracy and dictatorship."

Like Marcos, the 70-year-old Gen. Pinochet is an unpopular but shrewd strongman who seems determined to stay in power indefinitely, despite social unrest, an economy saddled with a $20 billion foreign debt, and pressure from two powerful critics — the Reagan administration and the Roman Catholic Church.

Having seized power in 1973 from President Salvador Allende, an elected Marxist, army commander Pinochet fashioned a constitution to keep him in office with emergency powers until 1989. Then he can seek military backing for a new eight-year term, subject to voter approval in a one-man election.

Well-informed sources reported in January that top leaders of the Chilean navy, air force and national police want Pinochet to step down in 1989. But the president appears to have retained his support within the all-important army.

Pointing to what he says is a growing Marxist threat, Pinochet has kept the army united behind him, the broader opposition divided, and much of the middle and upper classes frightened of a revival of the turbulent Allende years.

Without commenting publicly, the president is said to have followed every step of Marcos' downfall and even instructed aides to write memos on what lessons may apply here.

The result has been a dose of moderation at home coupled with defiant warnings against U.S. meddling, but no basic change in the government's authoritarian course.

Perhaps mindful of the church's catalytic role in the Philippine uprising, Pinochet quickly invited the Roman Catholic archbishop of Santiago, Cardinal Juan Francisco Fresno, over for tea.

The last time the two men met, last Christmas Eve, Pinochet angrily rejected the National Accord, an 11-party manifesto sponsored by the cardinal urging constitutional changes to permit open presidential elections. This time, Pinochet did not change his stance but talked vaguely of "reconciliation."

A few days later, facing new U.S. criticism of his human rights record, the general warned in a lectern-pounding speech that "no foreigner, however powerful, can impose his will" in Chile. Meantime, his police have broken up two large opposition rallies in as many weeks.

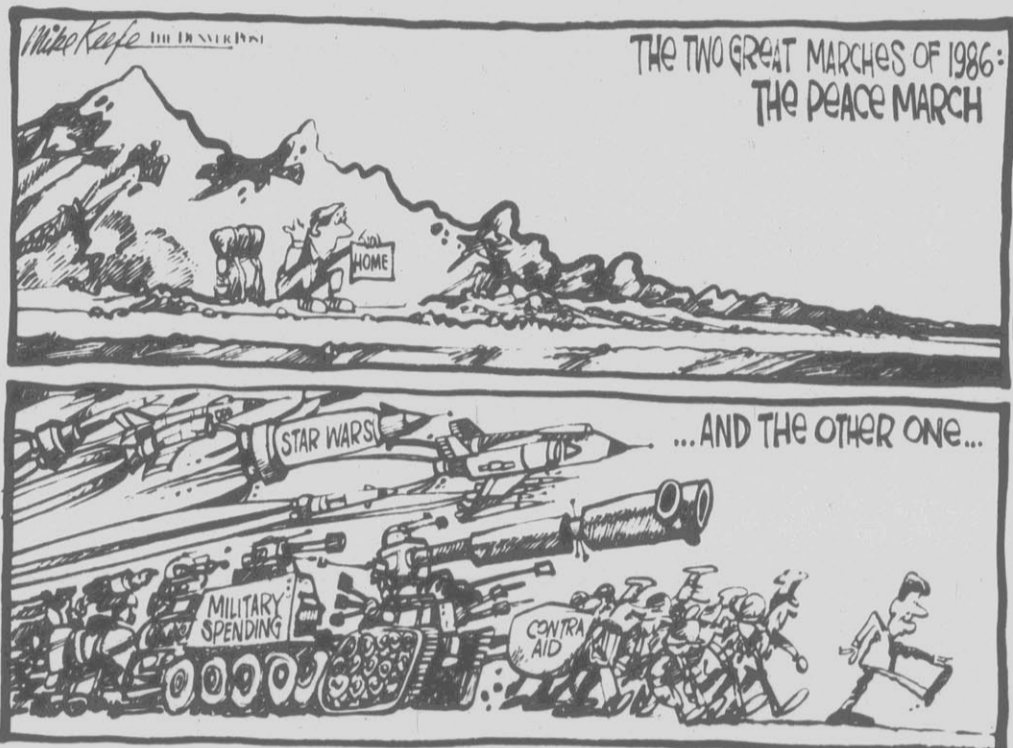

The degree of U.S. influence in Chile is debatable, since U.S. aid is far less important here than in the Philippines. American military assistance to Chile has been cut off for the past decade because of what Washington regards as human rights abuses.

"The United States cannot move Pinochet," said Francisco Hernandez, a presidential adviser who runs the state radio network. "It cannot stop military aid because there is none. If it blocks financial support, Chile could threaten to default on the debt."

Valdes told the Christian Democratic rally the regime "is not going to fall through the work of outsiders." But with the 11 parties of the National Accord in disarray, Pinochet does not appear immediately threatened by events at home either.

Chilean leftists call for a united opposition campaign of street agitation, but opposition conservatives object that violence would merely keep the army on Pinochet's side.

"The only way the opposition can defeat Pinochet is politically, but it has no precise, unifying proposal for doing so," said Manuel Antonio Garretón, a Chilean political scientist.

Trial Centers On Chemical Threat

WASHINGTON — During the past decade, Americans have been treated to a series of tragic stories about the dark side of chemicals. These tales have generally centered on the hard luck of people exposed to cancer-causing chemical pollution and the cold indifference of corporate polluters.

Unfortunately, victims have so far been unable to establish direct links between their illnesses and chemicals in the environment. But this may be about to change. A case in Judge Walter Jay Skinner's federal District Court in Woburn, Mass., could drastically alter the terms of the debate.

The Woburn case, as it is commonly known, focuses on the claims of eight families that contaminated drinking water caused at least five of their children to contract a rare form of leukemia. Between 1965 and 1980, there were 19 deaths attributed to this rare form of cancer. Six of the victims happened to live within a half-mile of one another.

The death of 12-year-old Jimmy Anderson in 1981 is what triggered the current litigation. When the boy's mother Anne noticed so many of the same mothers from Woburn time after time at the Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston, she became suspicious. She took her hunches to the state, which concluded there was no obvious explanation for the high incidence of leukemia in her town.

Mrs. Anderson then convinced biostatisticians at the Harvard University School of Public Health to conduct another study. This study found statistical correlations between leukemia and the proportion of water residents received from wells in the city's water system. Later research proved that environmental exposure to certain chemicals can alter body functions so radically that leukemia develops.

The defendants in the case include W.R. Grace & Co. of New York, whose Cryovac division runs a packaging machinery plant about a half-mile north of Woburn's polluted wells, and a former nearby landowner, Beatrice Foods Co. of Chicago. Both firms have been identified as possible polluters of the wells by the Environmental Protection Agency.

Grace will only acknowledge depositing small amounts of solvents on its property during the 1970s. Meanwhile, Beatrice maintains any dumping on its land was done without its knowledge.

Woburn is an industrial city of 36,000 residents, located 12 miles north of Boston. The wells in question sit near the Aberjona River, a small stream that drains a large industrial area. They were both in use from 1965 until May 1979 when they were shut down by state officials. The chemicals in dispute include trichloroethylene (TCE) and perchloroethylene (PCE). The first is a solvent used for washing metal parts and the latter is a dry-cleaning fluid. Both are suspected carcinogens.

To win this case the plaintiffs must prove, first, that the defendant companies allowed those chemical solvents to seep from their properties into the two nearby municipal wells and, second, that these seepages caused them harm. Based on the testimony from more than 30 medical and scientific experts, the plaintiffs believe they've got convincing evidence of damage to nervous systems, heart problems and birth defects among a majority of the 25 members of the eight families involved.

Not surprisingly, the chemical industry, among other businesses, is watching the Woburn case closely. Many insurance companies have already jumped the gun by canceling their policies with chemical and waste-disposal companies. A victory by the families would have serious financial consequences for the defendant companies.

If the residents of Woburn win this case, in the opinion of Anthony Roisman, executive director of Trial Lawyers for Public Justice, a non-profit organization in Washington, "then lawyers throughout American will join by the thousands to represent toxic-waste victims."

Until now, according to Roisman, lawyers have shied away from such cases because they were too expensive and difficult to prove. "Victims have asked for legal assistance," he said, "but lawyers were too reluctant to get involved."

Yet, big business is now lobbying Congress and state legislators to place caps on the financial rewards victims can obtain in such cases. The battle between corporate polluters and their victims may have only entered a new stage.

Strength For Today

After the Civil War, the College of William and Mary was unable to reopen because of the lack of funds.

There were neither teachers nor students on the campus. Yet every day the plucky president of the college rang the bell, just as it had been rung for generations to announce the change of classes and to call the students to convocation. And he kept on doing this until sufficient funds were collected to start the college on a normal basis.

Ring the bell for the cause of world peace. It's far from a lost cause in spite of what some may think. Ring the bell for the need of spiritual revival in our own land. Ring the bell for Christian home life that rebukes juvenile delinquency and the increasing divorce rate.

Keep on ringing the bell when you own spiritual life seems hopeless. God, who supports causes apparently lost, is still in His heaven, and His mercy is great toward those who trust Him.

DRIVER KILLED — The driver of this car, John Ewart Mitchell of Route 2, Farmville, died when the vehicle was struck by a Southern Railroad freight train about 6:55 p.m. Tuesday at a crossing on Secondary Road 1206 (Nichols Road) at Bell Arthur. Trooper L.O. Batts said the car was struck as Mitchell, the only occupant of the vehicle, apparently tried to cross the tracks. Batts, who said the car was destroyed, said the vehicle was pushed 1,098 feet down the track before it came to rest. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Company Sold

Foster Medical Corporation of Philadelphia announced Monday that it has acquired Medi-Care Supply Co., North Carolina's largest supplier of home health care equipment.

Medi-Care Supply operates 15 branches throughout the state, including one in Greenville, as well as one branch in Myrtle Beach, S.C.

Medi-Care, headquartered in Whiteville, was founded in 1978 and presently employs about 135 people, the majority of whom are expected to remain with Foster Medical.

"The acquisition is good not only for the future of our company and our employees, but it is also beneficial for the patients we serve," Medi-Care founder John A. "Sandy" McNeill said. McNeill will serve as regional operations manager with Foster Medical.

Foster Medical, which now has over 300 branches in 35 states, had only one branch in North Carolina — at Charlotte — prior to the acquisition.

Communion Service

An Ecumenical Maundy Thursday Communion Service, sponsored by the Ayden Ministerial Association, will be held at Ayden Free Will Baptist Church at 7:30 p.m. Thursday. Area worship leaders participating in the service are the Revs. J.B. Narron of Ayden F.W.B. Church, Bill Carden of Ayden United Methodist Church and James M. Daily of Ayden Christian Church.

Epilepsy Meeting

The Coastal Plains chapter of the Epilepsy Association of North Carolina will meet at 7:30 p.m. Thursday with Dr. M.W. Aldridge as the guest speaker. The meeting will be at the Pitt County Mental Health Center, 306 Stantonsburg Road.

Dr. Aldridge will talk about dental care and anti-convulsant drugs.

Thefts Reported

Greenville police said four thefts were reported to the department Tuesday.

Officers said radar detectors were taken from cars parked at 500 Kings Row Apartments in an incident reported at 7:50 a.m. and from F5 Cannon Court in an incident reported at 9:20 a.m. A bottle of Scotch whiskey was reported taken from the Pitt County ABC Store on Arlington Boulevard in an incident reported at 5:17 p.m.

Investigators said a bicycle was taken from 1026 Fleming St. in an incident reported at 8:50 p.m.

Outdoor Service

The community of St. Peter's Catholic Church will commemorate Good Friday by walking "The Way of the Cross" Friday. The outdoor prayer service will begin at 12:15 p.m.

Juveniles Charged

Police said two juveniles were turned over to their parents after being charged in connection with separate theft incidents at the K Mart store at Greenville Square Shopping Center Tuesday.

Officer R.J. Brewington said the first incident was reported at 5:17 p.m., while Officer K.A. Bedell said the second incident was reported at 7:01 p.m.

Citizens Concerned

A plan to discontinue operation of the swimming pool at Pitt County's Eastern Carolina Vocational Center is a vital concern, say some Martin County residents who are regular users of the pool for therapeutic purposes.

County Manager Donnie Pittman said Martin County "budgets $15,000 toward the vocational center each year, since some of our students are clients there." But the county doesn't have a breakdown of how the money is used by the center and how much goes to the pool, he said.

Martin County users were recently notified of the pool's possible closing in a memo from center director Daneel Leroux. The memo stated the pool will close April 15 unless new sources of revenue can be found to continue operation.

Offices Closed

All Pitt County government offices will be closed Monday in observance of the Easter holiday.

The offices will reopen at the regular hour Tuesday.

Deadline Set

People who wish to vote in this year's primary must register by April 7 at 5 p.m., according to Margaret Hardee, Pitt County Board of Elections director.

Mrs. Hardee said citizens can register at the Pitt County Board of Elections office, 201 E. Second St., Greenville, with registrars-at-large or at the following places: Ayden Town Hall, Ayden Housing Authority, Bethel Town Hall, the home of Willie K. Carney in Falkland, Farmville Housing Inspection Office, Fountain Town Hall, Grifton Town Hall, Grimesland Town Hall, Winterville Town Hall, Ayden-Grifton High School, Agnes Fullilove School in Greenville, D.H. Conley High School, Farmville Central High School, North Pitt High School, J.H. Rose High School in Greenville, Pitt County Memorial Hospital, Sheppard Library, East Branch Library, Carver Library and the Sheppard Library Bookmobile.

According to figures compiled Oct. 24, 1985, there are 41,560 registered voters in Pitt County. Of these, 32,540 are Democrats, 7,686 are Republicans and 1,334 are either unaffiliated or belong to other political parties.

Man Arrested

Howard Lee Moore Jr., 27, of 2523 S. Memorial Drive was arrested by Greenville police Monday on three counts of breaking, entering and larceny.

Detective J.E. Nichols said Moore was charged in connection with three residential break-ins that occurred in 1984 and 1985.

Decision Reversed

The North Carolina Supreme Court has reversed a superior court decision for felonious malicious throwing of acid against an Oak City man, Jeffrey Rondale Riddick, 35. But the court upheld eight other convictions and Riddick remains in Central Prison in Raleigh after the State Supreme Court confirmed a decision to keep him there.

Riddick was convicted on nine charges in May, 1984, for crimes that took place in Williamston and Everetts on Sept. 4, 1983.

Veterans Awareness

Veterans' Awareness Day is being observed today at East Carolina University.

A tribute to all veterans was held at 11 a.m. at the Veterans Monument on the west side of Memorial Gymnasium.

At noon free soft drinks were distributed in front of the Student Store, providing time for veterans and other university people to meet. A wine and cheese social was set for 6 p.m.

Two movies depicting aspects of the Vietnam War will be shown in Hendrix Theater at Mendenhall Student Center today. "The Anderson Platoon" will be shown at 8 p.m. and "Birdie" at 9 p.m.

Easter Story

The Easter story in scripture and song will be presented at 7:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday at Philippi Church of Christ, 1610 Farmville Blvd. The mass choir will participate in the service.

Endowment

Hackney Brothers Body Co. of Wilson has established a $100,000 endowed scholarship fund at Atlantic Christian College in conjunction with the college's Design for Excellence campaign.

The commitment is to be paid over a five-year period and will be used to fund four endowed scholarships for spouses and children of full-time Hackney employees. If at any time a spouse or dependent of an employee is not available or qualified, the college can award the scholarship to a full-time Atlantic Christian College student who meets the scholarship criteria.

The first scholarship is scheduled to be awarded in the fall of 1986, with one to be awarded each succeeding year until the four are in place at one time.

Rotary Winners

The three eastern North Carolina winners of the Rotary Foundation of Rotary International scholarships for 1986-87 have been announced for students within Rotary District 733.

The scholarships provide all necessary expenses for one year's study overseas from funds donated by Rotarians within the district.

The three winners this year are: Lillian Arendell Parrott of Kinston who will study Slavic languages at Ruhr-Universität at Bochum, West Germany; Gregory Campbell McCullum of Rowlands, who will study music at Hochschule fur Musik in Kurzburg, West Germany, and Laura Staples Woodworth of Fayetteville, who will study languages at Le Universite de Bordeaux in France.

Tom O'Brien of Snow Hill has announced that four scholarships will be available for 1987-88. Applications are now being accepted. For more details, write to O'Brien at P. O. Box 335, Snow Hill, N.C., 28580.

$1000 Reward!

A $1000 Reward is offered for information that results in the arrest and conviction of the person or persons that broke into Hatteras Hammocks on Clark Street sometime during the weekend of March 15 and 16, 1986. Calls should be made to: Crime Stoppers at 758-7777.

Recovery ...

found himself in Pitt Memorial.

"Once I knew all my injuries, I felt so fortunate to be thinking clearly. That capacity could so easily have been affected, along with all my other injuries. Thank God, it wasn't," Weston said.

"I think getting oxygen so quickly probably made the difference and I thank my friends on the rescue squad for that."

The electricity entered his head or his shoulder, he's not sure which. A section of his head was so badly burned that surgery had to be done to remove the killed flesh and be sure that the injury didn't extend to his brain. It did not. A middle finger, one of the places the electricity exited his body, was cooked and had to be removed. A toe, another exit point, looked as if it had a pencil-sized hole bored in it. Another burn on the palm of his hand had to have skin grafted, as did his right knee.

He is paralyzed from the diaphragm down and his limbs don't cooperate with his intentions. Until he went home from the hospital early this week, he was in therapy most of every day. He is pleased at his recovery so far and has confidence that he will regain more and more use of his body.

"I was in excellent health before this injury," he said, "and I'm doing everything I can to further my recovery, so I know I am going to recover."

Weston says he knows all that's ever happened to him has happened for a reason. He said his religious faith and his Masonic philosophy, which he said includes always taking full responsibility for everything that happens to you, have sustained him through weeks of near helplessness.

He had tears in his eyes when he talked about the gratitude he feels to hospital staff, to the EastCare team who took him to Pitt Memorial, and most of all to his fellow rescuers, firemen and other people in the Blount's Creek area.

"See those big bags over there," he said while he was in the regional rehabilitation center following release from the acute-care section of the hospital. "Look through them. They're filled with cards from my friends. I never knew I had so many friends."

Weston and his wife, Patsy, have four children aged 19, 17, 14 and 9 — one a student to the N.C. School for the Deaf in Wilson. He said his 19-year-old son, Mike, is keeping his business going and he's very proud of the work he is doing.

The Blount's Creek community went into action to assist Weston and his family from day one after the accident. Even though it was the busy Christmas season, the community planned a barbecue sale to benefit them and raised $11,000.

Rescuers from throughout the state, touched by the accident having happened while Weston was on a rescue call, have given money. A challenge was made at a recent Emergency Medical Services seminar held in Greenville and many rescue squads whose members didn't know him personally gave $100 each. The staff of EastCare Air Ambulance Service of PCMH has also been instrumental in money-raising for Weston and visited him often while he was in the hospital and rehab center.

Jury Acquits Guilford Sheriff

GREENSBORO (AP) — Although he contends the case against him was politically motivated, Guilford County Sheriff James L. Proffitt says he's ready to hit the campaign trail after his acquittal of bribery charges.

"I'm going out there to campaign," said Proffitt, who faces a primary re-election bid in six weeks. "And I'm going to work long and hard, and I'm going to be a better sheriff than you've ever seen."

After listening to six days of testimony, a six-woman, six-man Guilford County Superior Court jury deliberated two hours and twenty minutes Tuesday before finding Proffitt innocent of granting favors to an inmate in exchange for sex with the inmate's future wife.

The sheriff was accused of giving extra visiting privileges to Ronnie Odell Douglas and giving him a photograph of a partially clad woman — all in exchange for sex with Carmen Jobe Douglas.

Proffitt's family broke into tears and a gasp went through the courtroom as Superior Court Judge Donald L. Smith read the verdict.

"This has obviously been a trying experience for my family and friends," Proffitt said. "I am very grateful for everyone for sticking beside me. I knew that I had not violated any laws — and my wife stood with me through the entire thing."

During the trial, Proffitt said he had expected his campaign to be rough, but not as rough as it has been so far.

"After this became public, there were those who thought they could jump on it and use it to their advantage," he said. "There was politics involved in the charges, but that's behind us now."

Special Deputy Attorney General William Farrell declined to comment after the trial, but the state's chief witness, Mrs. Douglas, was disappointed.

"I guess we have a bunch of weak jurors," she said. "They were all weak and afraid to go against a powerful man like Proffitt."

Mrs. Douglas testified that she and Proffitt had sex three times while Douglas was serving time in the county jail in 1983.

Mrs. Douglas and her sisters, Lillian Wilson and Cindy Mitchell, testified that Proffitt not only had sex with Mrs. Douglas but molested Miss Wilson and Miss Mitchell at his office.

They said he did so in return for Proffitt's favors to Douglas.

Former prosecutor Robert L. Johnston, who also was charged with felonious bribery, and Proffitt admitted having sex with Mrs. Douglas, but both say it didn't compromise their handling of charges against Douglas.

Johnston dropped six felony charges against Douglas, including kidnapping, assault with a deadly weapon, burglary and attempted armed robbery. Johnston later resigned. His trial has not been scheduled.

IN THE STATE

More County Control Proposed

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina cities and counties would gain more control in preserving right of way for new highway projects under proposals state Transportation Secretary James Harrington will send to the Legislature in June.

Harrington told a legislative panel Tuesday that his proposals include legislation that would permit cities and counties to buy right of way, build, pave and improve roads with money from local property taxes.

He said state highway revenues this year have fallen $110 million short of paying for road needs and that the road-funds system is as full of holes as some of North Carolina's roads.

"Before we ask you to fill up the pot again, we want to replace the pot," Harrington told the Study Committee on State Infrastructure Needs. "The pot we have now leaks all over the place internally and is inefficient."

A major problem, Harrington said, is that the Department of Transportation has no authority to buy right of way for a road project far in advance of letting the contract for the road.

Harrington said most of the problems could be solved by laws that would give cities and counties the option to exercise local control.

Sentencing Plan

RALEIGH (AP) — Expanding throughout the state a program that recommends sentencing options for non-violent felons would cost an additional $1.5 million in 1986-87 and $2.6 million in 1987-88, the Department of Crime Control and Public Safety says.

Under the program, boards consisting of local officials and residents recommend sentences for non-violent felons. Their recommendations to judges might include short prison terms or community service and medical or psychological treatment.

The 1983 Legislature established the communities penalties program to help curb admissions to the state's crowded prisons.

The program is in effect in eight counties.

Gasoline Spill

SILER CITY, N.C. (AP) — About 1,000 gallons of gasoline spilled into a service station parking lot after a tractor-trailer truck hit a gasoline valve, the Highway Patrol said Tuesday.

No one was injured in the accident at the Lakeside Service Station and traffic along a segment of U.S. 421 was rerouted while state and local crews cleaned up the gasoline, said Highway Patrol spokesman Gary Michael.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission on Tuesday said it will accept applications between April 7 and May 7 from people who want to build a radio station in Windsor, N.C. Windsor was one of 16 communities where an FM frequency was recently made available.

Senate Powwow

RALEIGH (AP) — An effort by state Democratic Chairman James Van Hecke to arrange a powwow of U.S. Senate candidates fell through when not enough candidates said they would attend.

Van Hecke had hoped to get the 10 Democratic Senate candidates together over lunch Tuesday at state Democratic headquarters. But the luncheon was canceled when only former Gov. Terry Sanford of Durham, T.L. "Fountain" Odom of Charlotte and Betty C. Wallace of Raleigh said they planned to attend.

"We just didn't get the response that justified the folks coming in," Van Hecke said.

The purpose of the meeting was to stress Democratic unity.

Fuel Tax

RALEIGH (AP) — If Congress does not renew 5 cents of the 9-cent per gallon federal tax on motor fuel in September, the state should increase its motor fuel tax a corresponding amount, state Transportation Secretary James Harrington said.

In 1982, the federal tax was raised to 9 cents a gallon from 4 cents a gallon. That legislation expires Sept. 30.

Harrington said Tuesday that if the legislation was not renewed by its expiration date, the state should raise its sales tax on motor fuel by 5 cents, to 17 1/2 cents per gallon. He presented a proposal to do that to the General Assembly's Commission on State Infrastructure Needs.

Smith's Remains Identified

HONOLULU (AP) — NASA officials have identified the remains of shuttle astronaut Ellison Sizuka as being among those recovered from the wreckage of the Challenger, Onizuka's brother said.

The remains of another astronaut, Michael Smith, also have been identified. The New York Times reported in Wednesday editions, quoting a member of Smith's family. Smith was a native of Beaufort, N.C.

"We were notified. They have some of Ellison's remains," Claude Onizuka told The Associated Press on Tuesday. "We're just waiting for NASA to make an official announcement. We were told they won't complete the identification process for another two or three weeks."

Since the remains of Challenger's crew cabin were found 100 feet under water off the Florida coast earlier this month, NASA has refused comment on whether remains were recovered. But sources have told the AP that remains were recovered, and were being examined by forensic experts at Cape Canaveral Air Force Station.

The Times quoted Patrick Smith, brother of Michael Smith, as saying, "As far as we know, he has been identified." Smith said family members had been notified last week, the Times reported.

Seven astronauts died when the Challenger exploded Jan. 28.

Democrat Says Sanford Practicing 'Political Expediency' On Budget

By The Associated Press
U.S. Senate hopeful Betty Wallace has accused fellow Democrat Terry Sanford of "flip-flopping" on a balanced-budget amendment to court the Republican vote.

Ms. Wallace on Tuesday charged that Sanford was practicing "political expediency" with a statement Monday that he had changed his mind on a constitutional amendment to balance the federal budget. Sanford, who once opposed the amendment, said he now believes it is necessary to give some discipline to congressional budget-making.

Sanford also said some spending could be cut by reducing the number of bureaucrats in federal agencies.

"NCAE (the North Carolina Association of Educators) has long worked for increased federal funding and support for the U.S. Department of Education as a major cabinet position, and Sanford is turning his back on public school people," said Ms. Wallace, who is deputy assistant state superintendent of the state Department of Public Instruction.

Meanwhile, another Democratic Senate candidate, Katherine Harper, told reporters that God has "chosen me for this path to bring about understanding and unity."

Democrats Bill Belk met with textile workers in Gastonia, and Fountain Odom called for more federal dollars to expand the national forests.

On the Republican side of the campaign, White Patriot Party leader Glenn Miller accused the Carolina Poll of suppressing the amount of his support among GOP voters.

Mrs. Harper, a political novice, said Monday that she was awakened one morning last summer "by a strong voice within. 'Katherine, you will run for the U.S. Senate in North Carolina.'"

"I was stunned," the Charlotte businesswoman said. "Aloud, I replied: 'Who, me? U.S. Senate? Why me, Lord?' 'Because this is what you have been prepared for and my will be done,' came the reply."

Two weeks later, Mrs. Harper said, she asked for a divine sign and received one in the form of "the biggest, brightest rainbow."

A member of Charlotte's Greek Orthodox Church, Mrs. Harper said she had been reluctant to discuss the information because some people are "sort of a little gun-shy after Jesse and some of the fundamentalists." She was referring to Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C.

Mrs. Harper predicted that if former Gov. Terry Sanford wins the Democratic nomination, Rep. Jim Broyhill will beat him in "perhaps the biggest landslide ever." Broyhill is seeking the Republican nomination against David Funderburk, former U.S. ambassador to Romania.

Mrs. Harper, an officer in a family-owned manufacturing business, also called for a strong Social Security system and returning to the basics in education.

Also Tuesday, Belk, another Democratic Senate hopeful, passed out leaflets and shook hands with workers at the Ti-Caro thread plant in Gastonia.

"We buy a lot of U.S. textiles — Belk does," he said. "I'm running for the U.S. Senate — someone to protect U.S. textile jobs."

Belk said his family's department stores took a stand on textile imports over a decade ago when store officials decided that 95 percent of the apparel in its private labels would be domestic.

"These Johnny-come-latelies are all talking about the textile industry now, but the problem was happening years ago," he said.

Odom, a Mecklenburg County commissioner, endorsed national forest expansion during a stop at Uwharrie National Forest near Asheboro.

"Let us vow to renew our investment in the future," the Democratic Senate candidate said.

Odom called for developing buffer zones around sensitive areas of the forest, and buying mineral rights on forest lands to make sure mining operations won't impede hiking and camping.

He said he opposed selling national forest lands to private owners. "My solution is ... to speed up land acquisition and consolidate the forests into a more contiguous preserve."

Miller said before the results of the Carolina Poll were released Tuesday that an "inside source" had told him he received a 9.1 percent approval rating from Republican voters.

"I accuse them of downgrading my percentage," he said.

The poll, conducted Feb. 23-28 by students in the School of Journalism at the University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill and the political science and sociology departments at the University of North Carolina-Wilmington, showed Miller with a 4 percent favorable response.

The survey of 1,206 state residents showed Rep. Jim Broyhill the favored candidate among 42 percent of Republicans likely to vote. Campbell University professor David Funderburk received a 9 percent favorable response.

Among Democrats, Terry Sanford was preferred by 28 percent of his party's likely voters, followed by John Ingram, 18 percent; Bill Belk, 4 percent; Ms. Wallace, 2 percent; Odom, 2 percent; Theodore Kinney, less than 1 percent; Walt Atkins, less than 1 percent; Mrs. Harper, Milton Croom and Clinton Moore, zero votes in the poll.

The poll showed that 45 percent of Republicans and 44 percent of Democrats were still undecided six weeks before the primary.

The poll has a margin of error of 7 percent for the Republican voters and 5 percent for Democrats.

Insurance Bill Filed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation to reel in the cost of liability insurance for commercial fishermen has been introduced by Rep. Walter B. Jones, D-N.C., chairman of the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee.

"The fishing industry has been staggered in recent years by the doubling, tripling and quadrupling of insurance premiums for liability coverage," Jones said. "Fishermen today are faced with the no-win decision of paying enormous insurance bills — if they can find a company still offering this protection — fishing without insurance, or not fishing at all," Jones said.

Jones said the bill would limit the owner's liability for temporary disabilities — those of less than one year's duration — provided a vessel meets certain safety standards and the owner provides adequate compensation for an injured seaman.

The bill also authorizes the Coast Guard to compile risk assessments to help insurers differentiate between, and set rates for, the various segments of the industry, Jones said. The Coast Guard also would be authorized to set minimum safety standards on newly constructed vessels and for existing vessels if an owner desires, he said.

The bill amends the Fishery Conservation and Management Act to require that safety be added as one of the national standards that must be considered when developing and implementing a fishery management plan, Jones said.

Beach Considers Ban On Drinking

ATLANTIC BEACH, N.C. (AP) — Complaints about public drinking and littering in and around Atlantic Beach's downtown area have prompted officials of the tourist town to consider a ban on consumption of alcoholic beverages on public property.

The town board will discuss the proposed drinking ordinance at a town meeting Wednesday, said Mayor Max Graff. He said the board might try to work out a compromise where alcohol would be allowed in certain areas.

"The way it is now, you can drive around the circle and see people sitting on their cars drinking," Graff said. "If you're driving with your wife and family, that might be offensive."

The downtown area of Atlantic Beach is nicknamed "the circle."

The drinking ban issue is not new to the Carteret County resort town. The town will decide whether to restore an ordinance that was rescinded a year ago. Last April, the town passed an ordinance that made it illegal to possess open cans or bottles containing any food or beverage on public streets and highways. Violators were charged with a $20 fine.

Scientist Says Bats Don't Deserve Eerie Reputation

By WARREN E. LEARY
AP Science Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bats, those mysterious creatures that ride the night winds and chill the ethers with their piercing screams, engender a universal revulsion in many humans. But the killing of individual bats or routine slaughter of millions of them, often seen as justifiable acts of self-defense, ultimately may hurt people as much as it does the animals, according to a man devoted to preserving the world's only flying mammals.

Merlin D. Tuttle, a zoologist dedicating a career to enlightening the dark fears that surround bats, said Tuesday the creatures bear little resemblance to their public image as the personification of evil or harm.

On the whole, Tuttle said, bats are clean, valuable, harmless and misunderstood servants of mankind who do incalculable good around the world.

"People are out there killing them off, millions at a time, for no other reason than that they don't understand them," said Tuttle, a visiting scholar at the University of Texas at Austin and founder of Bat Conservation International.

Populations of flying fox bats, which have faces that look like dogs, have been reduced by 90 percent in parts of Australia, Southeast Asia and the Pacific islands, he said, because they are hunted as food or as pests.

In the United States, where five types of bats are on the endangered-species list, bats are subject to eradication programs by people who consider them a health threat, acts of vandalism and random killing by frightened people.

Myths have grown up around bats in the U.S. because people rarely see the small species native to this country and because the animals lurk in dark places that people fear, such as caves and attics, he said.

"The problem of bats carrying rabies and parasites is also greatly exaggerated," Tuttle said in an interview. "Bats have much less of a rabies problem than foxes and raccoons, and parasites are no worse than with dogs or cats."

More than 1,000 kinds of bats have been identified worldwide and they make up almost a quarter of all mammal species, he said. The animals vary greatly in color and description, and range in size from the giant flying fox bat with wingspans of up to six feet to the bumblebee bat of Thailand, which only spans a couple of inches and weighs less than a penny.

Bats are vital worldwide for insect control and for pollinating and spreading seeds for many economically valuable plants, including bananas, dates, avocados, figs and balsa trees, Tuttle told a briefing sponsored by the National Geographic Society.

IT'S A BAT — It has the face of a dog and shares some personality traits, too, but this is really a Buttkofer's bat, a type of flying fox bat. The retractable patches on its shoulders, apparently used only for sexual attraction, are found only on males. (AP Laserphoto)

Gramm-Rudman May Bring 17% Cut In Crop Supports

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Department economists are looking at the possibility of a 17 percent cut in price support loan rates for major 1987 crops if Congress and the administration don't settle on a way to trim the federal budget.

If no settlement is reached, the cuts could be mandated by the Gramm-Rudman formula as part of the law's requirement to reduce deficits to $144 billion in the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1 and to balance the federal budget in 1990-91.

The USDA's share this fiscal year of reductions tied to the Gramm-Rudman balanced-budget law was $1.3 billion, which will mean some employee layoffs and a reduction in the net loan rates farmers will get for 1986 crops.

But the impact could be far greater next fiscal year if Gramm-Rudman is allowed to take effect again, according to the department's Economic Research Service. That could happen if no 1987 budget agreement is reached by mid-August.

The agency stressed in its report that the figures used in describing the possible impact of Gramm-Rudman on agriculture are not predictions and serve only as examples.

In reality, however, Gramm-Rudman required a cut of 4.3 percent in most USDA programs during the remainder of this fiscal year. Price support loan rates are not being cut for 1986 crops, but the net loans made to farmers are being reduced by that percentage.

In the case of 1986 wheat loans, for example, the loan rate is $2.40 per bushel. Corn loans nationally are $1.92 per bushel. But under Gramm-Rudman, that means farmers actually will get $2.30 for a bushel of wheat and $1.84 for corn.

Looking at possibilities in 1987, the report said that if Gramm-Rudman is allowed to operate at full steam, defense programs could be reduced 10 percent and eligible non-defense programs by 17 percent.

Court Says Dress Codes Necessary

WASHINGTON (AP) — Religious groups disappointed over a Supreme Court ruling upholding strict military dress codes may turn to Congress for help.

"I hope that Congress will see fit to examine the issues," said Simcha Goldman, an Orthodox Jewish rabbi and former Air Force captain who lost a Supreme Court appeal over his right to wear a yarmulke while on active duty.

"I'm obviously quite disappointed," said Goldman, now a civilian psychologist in Los Angeles. "I guess my case illustrates the difficulty of applying to reality the theory that servicemen have civil rights."

In a 5-4 ruling Tuesday, the court approved enforcement of military dress codes even when religious freedom is at stake. It said the Air Force did not violate Goldman's constitutional rights by prohibiting him from wearing a yarmulke, the traditional Jewish skull cap, while in uniform.

The military must be given a free hand in setting dress codes to "foster instinctive obedience, unity, commitment and esprit de corps," Justice William H. Rehnquist said for the court.

But a dissenter, Justice William J. Brennan, said, "The contention that the discipline of the armed forces will be subverted if Orthodox Jews are allowed to wear yarmulkes with their uniforms surpasses belief."

Brennan suggested that opponents of the ruling might turn to Congress for help.

Car Bomb Kills Eight In Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A car bomb exploded outside an office of President Amin Gemayel's Phalange Party in Christian east Beirut today, killing at least eight people and wounding 39, officials said.

Moslem militias rocketed two Christian neighborhoods after the car bomb exploded. Rockets crashing into the residential Ashrafyeh neighborhood, where the car bomb exploded, and the Dikwani area killed two people and wounded 15 others, the police reported.

Beirut radio stations also reported that earlier today a bomb exploded in a six-story apartment block housing a Phalange center in another east Beirut neighborhood, injuring six people. Police reported seven people died and 30 were wounded in overnight battles between Christians and Moslems in Beirut and the hills east of the capital.

Police explosives expert Roland Jawdeh estimated the car bomb contained as much as 440 pounds of TNT.

A reporter for the Voice of Lebanon radio on the scene of the car bombing outside a shopping center said there were "dozens of casualties, and more people trapped in burning buildings."

Civil defense officials said at least eight bodies had been dragged from the rubble.

The blast set the nearby building housing the Phalange office on fire.

Rescuers said dozens of people were trapped in the blazing building at Bishop Ghafrael street off the Ashrafyeh district's crowded Fassouh shopping center.

"We are concentrating on combatting the blaze. We believe dozens are trapped in the building and their fate depends on how quickly we can put out the fire," said civil defense worker Elie Honnein.

People ran out in panic from adjacent smoke-blackened buildings. Buildings within 50 yards were heavily damaged by the blast.

A young woman who identified herself only as Sonia said she was making coffee for other employees of a store about 25 yards away when the car bomb exploded.

Swiss Freeze Marcos' Accounts

BERN, Switzerland (AP) — A Philippine government envoy said he would meet with Swiss officials after they ordered an unprecedented freeze on bank accounts linked to deposed President Ferdinand Marcos.

Pedro Yap, a member of the new government's Commission on Good Government, said he hoped to determine in a meeting with Justice Ministry officials today what legal action the Philippines should take to claim money Marcos is alleged to have salted away in Switzerland.

The government of President Corazon Aquino has estimated that Marcos and his associates moved between $5 billion and $10 billion out of the country during Marcos' 20 years in power.

Last week, The New York Times reported that documents taken from Marcos list accounts of $9.4 million at Swiss Bank Corp., $37.7 million at Credit Suisse and $32.4 million at the Swiss branch of Paribas bank.

Divorce Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans were about twice as likely to marry as to divorce last year, but new government statistics show the divorce rate was rising while marriage was on the decline.

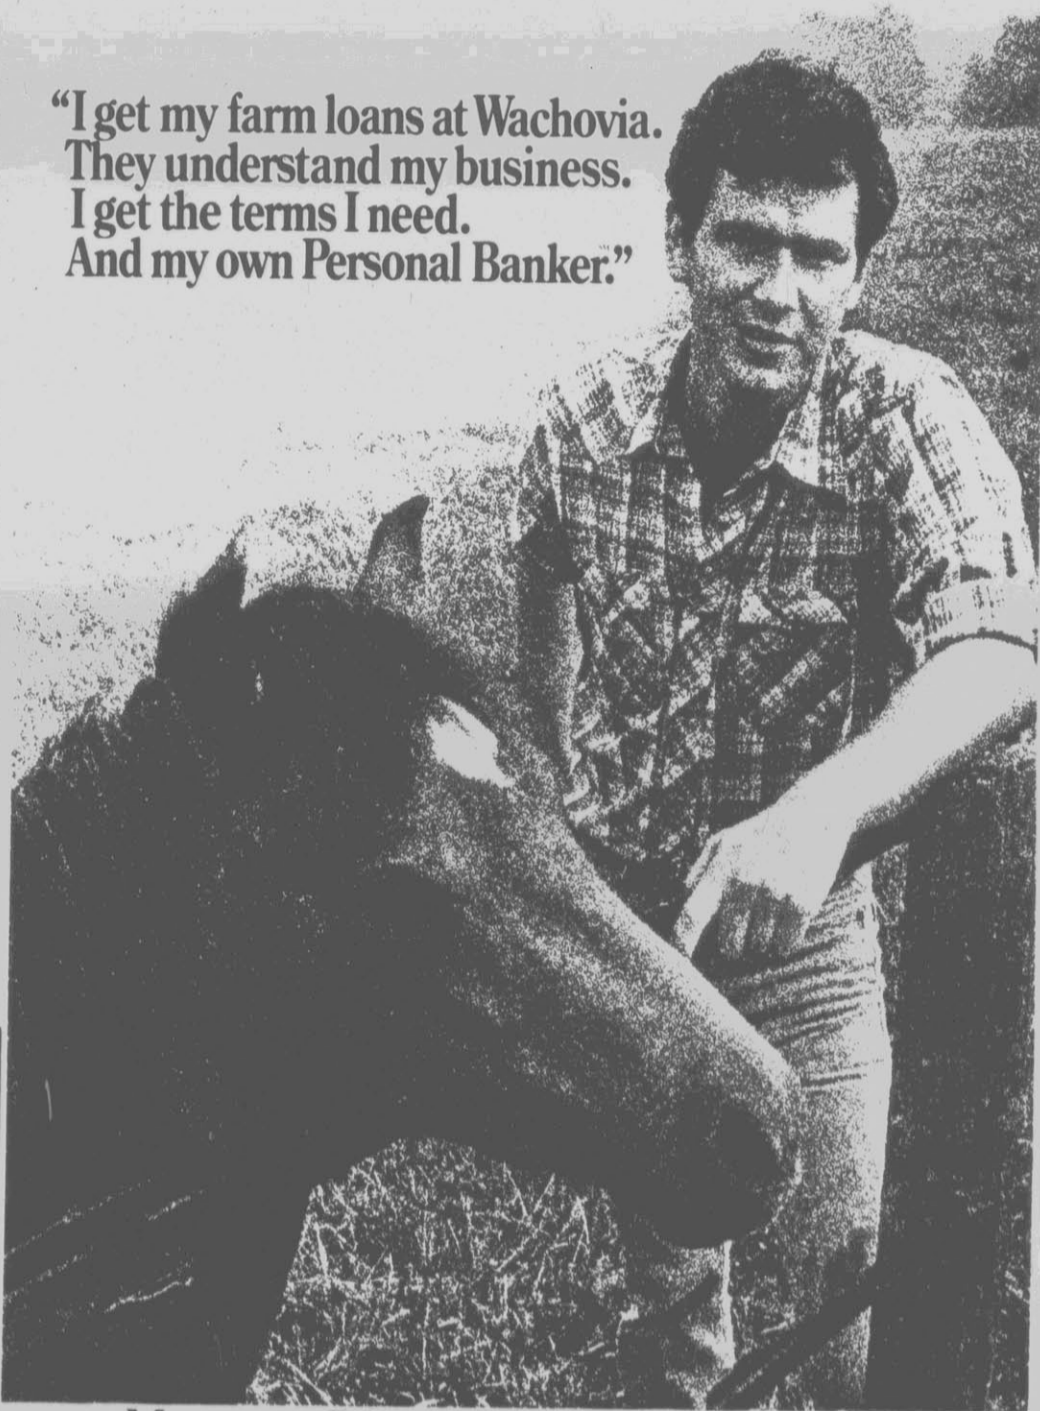

There were 10.2 marriages per 1,000 Americans in 1985, down 3 percent from 1984 and the lowest rate since 1977, according to the annual statistical summary from the National Center for Health Statistics.

At the same time, the divorce rate climbed 2 percent to 5 divorces per 1,000 people to match the rate of 1983.

The Center reported 2,425,000 marriages in 1985, down from 2,487,000 in 1984. And there were 1,187,000 divorces, up from 1,155,000.

Overall 1,665,000 people were added to the United States population last year as a result of natural increase — the excess of births over deaths.

Senate Defeats Balanced Budget Amendment By One-Vote Margin

WASHINGTON (AP) — After coming up just one vote short, backers of a balanced-budget constitutional amendment said they missed a crucial opportunity to win Senate passage that may not come again for several years.

"Unless we replace some of the members who voted against this, I don't see any way we are going to pass this in the next Congress," Sen. Orrin G. Hatch, R-Utah, said Tuesday after the Senate voted to kill the proposal he helped sponsor.

Senators voted 66-34 for the amendment, but supporters needed 67 votes — two-thirds of the Senate's 100 voting members — to win passage. The proposal would have required Congress to spend no more each year than the government collects in revenues.

"It's a big disappointment," said Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., another sponsor. "It's going to be a long time before we get an opportunity to pass it again."

Both supporters and opponents said the Gramm-Rudman deficit reduction law, passed last December on a 61-31 Senate vote, was a significant factor in the amendment's defeat.

"Gramm-Rudman was a crucial factor, people say 'we have Gramm-Rudman, we don't need this,'" said amendment supporter Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill.

After the vote, the White House issued a statement that President Reagan "is disappointed that the Senate failed by only a single vote to simply ask the American Congress to do what every American family must: spend no more money than they take in."

The "close vote merely spurs us to come back and try again," said the White House statement.

But Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., said the Senate "won't revisit this issue" in 1986.

"I regret we failed by one vote — one vote," Dole said. But "we demonstrated we are almost there."

The Senate's vote reversed one it took nearly four years ago when it approved a balanced budget amendment by a 69-31 margin. The proposal died in the House that year.

During the earlier vote, 47

Republicans voted for the proposal and seven opposed it.

In Tuesday's vote, 43 Republicans joined 23 Democrats to support the measure, while 10 Republicans and 24 Democrats voted no.

Sen. Daniel Evans, R-Wash., a leading opponent of the proposal, cited "a great reluctance to amend the Constitution" as a reason for the rejection.

"Our forefathers were wise to require a two-thirds vote," he added.

During a post-vote session with reporters, Hatch expressed "some real irritation" with two members of the Republican Senate leadership — Sens. John Heinz of Pennsylvania and John Chafee of Rhode Island — for voting to kill the proposal.

"We lost some very crucial votes, votes that should have come our way," Hatch said.

Both Heinz, who chairs the Republican Senate campaign committee, and Chafee, head of the GOP Senate conference, voted against the 1982 proposal. Two other Republicans who had supported the earlier amendment — Sens. Mark Hatfield of Oregon and Robert Stafford of Vermont — voted no on Tuesday.

Nicholas Brady, a New Jersey Republican who voted yes in 1982, has since been replaced by Democratic Sen. Frank Lautenberg, who voted against the latest proposal.

Two Democratic senators who voted yes four years ago, Minority Leader Robert C. Byrd, W.Va., and Quentin Burdick, D-N.D., were among the opponents Tuesday. Sens. Wendell H. Ford, D-Ky., and Claiborne Pell, R-R.I., also reversed their 1982 positions, this time casting yes votes.

"This was a very, very crucial vote," Hatch said. "Gramm-Rudman got the spendaholics back on the wagon. This constitutional amendment would have kept them there."

"I think the spendaholics are going to fall off the wagon in the next few years," he added.

But Evans disagreed, saying, "I don't consider myself a spendaholic, it's just a question of how you control spending."

"A constitutional amendment doesn't make a saint out of a sinner," he said.

Democrats Strike Out At LaRouche Slates

By The Associated Press

Two Illinois lawmakers have proposed changing the state's election laws in hopes of helping Adlai E. Stevenson III's gubernatorial bid rebound from the surprise nominations of two Lyndon LaRouche backers.

Democratic party officials in Texas, meanwhile, are distributing 18,000 lists that identify followers of the extremist politician running as Democrats.

In Springfield, Ill., a measure offered by Rep. Ellis Levin, a Democrat, would allow a candidate such as Stevenson to run as a third-party candidate and as a Democrat in the general election. Another bill, sponsored by Democratic Rep. Woods Bowman would end straight-ticket voting in hopes of improving the chances of a third-party bid.

The bills were introduced Tuesday as Stevenson met in Chicago with U.S. Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, one of the state's top Democratic leaders, to discuss a potential third-party candidacy for Stevenson.

"Rostenkowski said he would support a device that would allow a third-party bid without uprooting the entire Democratic party," said Bob Benjamin, a Stevenson spokesman.

"Rostenkowski doesn't want to throw the baby out with the bath water." Earlier this week, Stevenson met with Sen. Alan Dixon, D-Ill., who opposes formation of a third party, and other Democratic party leaders.

"Voices have been lowered, and we are in the middle of a consultation process," Benjamin said.

Stevenson has refused to run on the same ticket as LaRouche backers Mark Fairchild, who won the nomination for lieutenant governor, and Janice Hart, who won the nomination for secretary of state, in the Democratic primary earlier this month.

Benjamin said Stevenson, who faces Republican Gov. James Thompson in the November election, has ruled out a write-in candidacy for governor.

Under Levin's plan, Stevenson's total would be based on the number of votes he received while running on both tickets.

"This would give Adlai a fighting chance," Levin said.

Bowman said his plan to end the option of a straight-ticket vote would make a Stevenson third-party bid more feasible because it would force voters to select individual candidates.

In Texas, state party chairman Robert Slagle announced Tuesday he is sending out 18,000 copies of a list of the approximately 200 LaRouche candidates running in the May primary.

"Unless you know who it is you are voting for against an incumbent, you better vote for the incumbent," he warned party members.

A LaRouche backer said Slagle's decision to mail the list "smacks of Stalinism."

"But I thank him for sending out our names," said Harley Schlanger of Houston, a congressional candidate. "We've never hidden. Our candidates run as open LaRouche candidates."

Two other LaRouche congressional candidates from Houston are unopposed on the Democratic ballot but face Republican incumbents Bill Archer and Tom DeLay.

LaRouche blames many of the nation's problems on a conspiracy of bankers. The LaRouche backers also support nationwide screening for AIDS, and a quarantine of AIDS patients.

RECRUITING OF CHILDREN OPEN

The Martin County Community Action Head Start Program is recruiting handicapped children to take part in the program.

The children are being enrolled to use the full range of Head Start education, health and other program services under a Congressional mandate providing 10% per cent of Head Start enrollment nationwide for the handicapped.

The mixing of handicapped and non-handicapped is expected to give all the children a valuable experience in learning to understand and respect differences among people.

In the program, a handicapped child is encouraged to think less about his/her disability and more about his/her strength as he/she relates to other children. By learning and playing with children who are not handicapped, the child improves his/her self-image, overall development and sense of belonging.

Head Start staff workers are trained to work with handicapped children and their families. The program also works with other agencies in the community to provide the full range of services a handicapped child may need.

The Congressional directive defines handicapped as "mentally retarded, hard of hearing, deaf, speech impaired, visually handicapped, seriously emotionally disturbed, physically impaired, or other health impaired children who require special education and related services."

For more information or to enroll a child, please call Mrs. Gloriesten Matthewson at 792-1251 and/or Mrs. Mary Lloyd at 792-1761 or come by the Martin County Community Action Office on Ray Street in Williamston, North Carolina; or contact the West Sixth Street Head Start Center located at 1610 West Sixth Street.

Head Start began in 1965 under the Department of Health, Education and Welfare as a program for pre-school children from low-income families. Head Start is a comprehensive developmental program for children ages 3-4 and is based on the premise that all children share certain needs, and that children from low-income families, in particular, can benefit from a program designed to meet those needs. The Head Start program operates nine (9) months of the year - September through May. The Head Start centers are open Monday through Friday and the hours of operation are 8:00 a.m. - 1:00 p.m. Eligibility is determined by HHS income guidelines, family needs and handicapping and/or special conditions of the child.

making the visitors' stay here more pleasant but of rewarding the teachers and administrations a little for months and months of hard work they've put in, often on their own time, to get ready for the survey visits."

Christina Drye, the schools' director of certificated personnel, has coordinated this year's 10-year accreditation visits. She said the 16 K-8 schools had individual surveys and a joint central office survey on Feb. 5-6, with a joint banquet held at Wellcome Middle School the evening of Feb. 5 and an individual reception held the afternoon of the same day at each school. Each of the four high schools in the county system was surveyed separately. A banquet was held at D.H. Conley High School March 5 and each of the other county high schools held afternoon receptions more elaborate than the elementary receptions, she said.

"We have viewed having the banquets and receptions as just the courtesy you'd extend in your own home if you had guests arriving," school Superintendent Eddie West said.

He explained that accreditation evaluations must be requested by individual schools and, in doing so, the schools agree to pay the expenses of persons chosen as surveyors. He said that, unlike surveyors in most other professional areas, school surveyors are not paid for the services. Only their expenses — lodging, travel, food and substitute pay — are reimbursed.

"The staff of each school or group of schools choose what its members would like to do," West said. "Community people who have shown continuing interest in the schools are invited. We see the banquets and receptions as a way to acknowledge our staff, include community people in the accreditation process, and welcome our visitors."

He said he believes it is less expensive to provide the evening meal cooked by the school cafeteria staff than it would be to give each person an allowance to eat elsewhere. "Possibly some of the surveyors would like the free time better, but they very cordially attend the banquets, and often work afterwards," he said.

According to Donna Ware, the school system's child nutrition director, receptions at the high schools were planned with 150 guests in mind; 237 persons attended the banquet at D.H. Conley and 225 persons were fed during the Wellcome Middle School banquet held for the elementary schools. She said food and equipment rental costs of $2.50 per person were allowed for the receptions; $3.75 per person, for each banquet. Ms. Ware said she had no responsibility for the elementary schools' receptions, but understands food and decorations were provided largely by staff and community volunteers.

Much of the labor cost of the high school events was allayed by donated hours — Saturday work — of the central food service staff and by preparation by home economics students at Ayden-Grifton and North Pitt High Schools, she added.

Asked if he believes there is any possibility of conflict of interest developing during the social events, West said, "There is, of course, some socializing at both the banquets and the receptions, but I do not believe that what goes on can be construed as any attempt to influence decisions of the surveyors."

"It's done everywhere that the Southern Association operates," he said, "so how could something done here, however well, influence decision-making?"

Kathryn Lewis, now retired from the Pitt County schools' administration, is the administrator who first led schools in this county in preparing for accreditation. She said she has served on survey teams in many states over a long career in public education and has always been accorded similar hospitality. "I have never felt coercion anywhere I've been," she said, "and I see no possibility that conflict of interest could develop from the hospitality portion of the survey process here."

She said she has attended several of the banquets this year as a member of the community and has been struck by the community pride shown in the efforts of community members. As an example, she said, the Pactolus Home Demonstration Club provided the reception refreshments and decorations at the Pactolus Elementary School. "I don't think there could have been anything nicer or more constructive than the community spirit I saw there," she said. "One of the things schools are judged on is community support and a banquet or reception is certainly an opportunity for it to be evidenced or not evidenced."

Ms. Drye said she sees the banquet-reception component of the survey visits as a boon to the teachers, principals and administrators taking part because it is virtually the only time during the visit they are free to talk informally with the surveyors who are counterparts in other school systems. "I believe any professional truly interested in his or her work likes to talk to others in the field," she said, "The formal part of the survey is so demanding that there wouldn't be time for informal conversation."

Dr. Madeline Tripp, chief officer of the state accreditation program for elementary and middle schools, said, "We see the receptions, banquets, luncheons — whatever the schools being surveyed elect to have as ice-breakers — as good opportunities for the visiting educational professionals and the teachers and administrators in the schools to get to know each other."

She said that all, or virtually all, schools throughout the state, when surveyed, do hold social events, usually meals, but that it's not required by the association.

"I think one consideration," she said, "is that, since the surveyed school's parent system is required to meet the expenses of the visiting team, it can probably do it less expensively providing a major meal at the school than they could do it at local restaurants or hotels.

"If there's anything that's true about this organization's work," she said, "it's that it's very professionally carried out and that surveys and preparation for survey are unifying experiences. Principals and teachers and support staff learn that they can be successful only through team effort, because this is a task impossible for one or just a few to carry out. So I think it's entirely appropriate that the social portion of the process be very inclusive, just as the rest of the experience is. I think it's valuable."

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market headed higher today, rebounding from Tuesday's modest decline.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks climbed 9.93 to 1,788.43 in the first hour of trading.

Gainers outnumbered losers by more than 4 to 3 in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said the market's sluggish showing Tuesday was primarily the result of selling by investors looking to cash in on the remarkable gains in stock prices since last fall. But they said there had been no great change in the highly positive news background.

The 0.4 percent drop in the consumer price index reported by the government Tuesday exceeded most expectations on Wall Street.

With inflation dormant and economic activity remaining relatively subdued, many analysts believe the case has been strengthened lately for more easing of credit policy by the Federal Reserve.

Interest rates declined in the credit markets this morning. Prices of long-term government bonds, which move in the opposite direction from interest rates, rose about 5/8 for every $1,000 in face value.

NL Industries was up 3/4 at 147 1/2. Late Tuesday an investment group offered to acquire the company.

Among actively traded blue chips, General Motors rose 1/8 to 86 1/4; Eastman Kodak gained 1/4 to 61 1/2, and American Telephone & Telegraph added 1/8 to 22 1/4.

Where will Jones' group draw the line? If not in loyal, peaceful Honduras, must it be Brownsville, Texas? he said. "We must recognize the appeasers' pleas for negotiation without resolute and firm opposition to communist aggression for what it is: false hope and a deception of the American people."

Moye said the money spent in military aid to Honduras will be nothing compared to the money needed if something isn't done.

"If we fail to defend freedom only two days' drive south of Texas, we shall soon reap the bitter consequences. The cost of caring for millions of refugees will far exceed the cost of supporting freedom-loving patriots in Central America," he said. "If we allow our allies to languish without our support, we increase the likelihood that our sons will be forced to fight in their stead."

The estimated value of the property of the City of Greenville is $59,200; the estimated value of the property of Planters National Bank is $60,200.

No other consideration will change hands.

At the meeting, all interested persons will be given an opportunity to be heard.

Libya ...

That was followed by another A-6 attack on a larger patrol ship at 4:15 p.m. EST Monday. The second ship was hit and damaged but managed to return to Libyan waters, Sims said.

The third attack occurred at 6:15 p.m. Monday, or 12:15 a.m. Tuesday local time. A Libyan patrol boat was tracked as it left the port of Benghazi and moved northward toward the 6th Fleet. The cruiser Yorktown opened fire with two surface-to-surface missiles and sank the boat, Sims said.

The fourth attack occurred at 1:07 a.m. EST, when two A-6 jets moved in to attack another large patrol boat that also had left the port of Benghazi. The jets left the ship dead in the water and on fire, Sims said. Life rafts were spotted and Libyan rescue efforts were observed, he added.

As for the second attack on the missile-battery facility at Sirte, Sims said that occurred around 6:54 p.m. EST Monday, or 12:54 a.m. local time Tuesday. That site, from which SA-5 missiles had been fired, was initially knocked out of action at 3:06 p.m. EST Monday.

A second attack was ordered because U.S. forces determined that at least one radar unit at the site had been returned to operation, he said. Two A-7 jets from the Saratoga mounted the second strike.

The U.S. military actions continued to draw favorable response from Congress on Tuesday.

"We are asserting the right of passage, one of the oldest American foreign policy positions," said Rep. Thomas Foley, D-Wash., the third-ranking Democrat in the House leadership.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes insisted the United States used force Monday only because the Libyans fired Soviet-built anti-aircraft missiles at American planes operating over the gulf.

He said it was not President Reagan's intent to punish Khadafy for supporting international terrorism, a charge the United States had repeatedly leveled against him.

However, when asked if the United States wanted to put Khadafy "back in his box," Speakes replied: "Certainly, if the man would conduct himself within the norms of international behavior, he could run his country. But when he starts exporting terrorism and expanding and expanding, that's when he needs to be put back in his box."

Reagan himself remained out of public view, but, according to Speakes, the president followed his regular schedule of appointments. He telephoned some senators to lobby for his $100 million aid request for Nicaraguan rebels that is to be debated today and for a balanced budget amendment that was defeated in the Senate late Tuesday.

In other developments: — White House Chief of Staff Donald T. Regan said the War Powers Act, which requires presidents to report to Congress within 48 hours after American forces enter a conflict, does not apply to U.S. actions in Libya. "This is not something new," he told reporters. "We answered fire with fire."

But Speakes said the question was still under review by administration lawyers. If Reagan decides to notify Congress, he would have to do so by 2:26 p.m. EST today — 48 hours after a U.S. jet first fired missiles at a Libyan boat.

Rebels ...

the leftist Sandinista government in Nicaragua.

"The invading troops now want to return to Nicaragua, but that situation is being impeded by the insurgent forces, who continue inflicting large numbers of casualties on them," one source told the AP.

Information from the sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity, indicated the Nicaraguans began crossing the border Saturday with anti-aircraft guns and tanks to clean out Contra camps in Honduras.

In Washington, President Reagan approved $20 million in emergency aid to help Honduras cope with the reported incursion, and White House Chief of Staff Donald Regan said U.S. helicopters and pilots will help transport Honduran soldiers.

But Regan said the U.S. helicopters

"will go nowhere near the location of the invasion."

Pentagon officials said 18 U.S. multipurpose helicopters were stationed at Palmerola air base near Comayagua, 100 miles from the Nicaraguan border.

U.S. officials here and in Washington said no U.S. aircraft or personnel were used Tuesday in ferrying 3,000 Honduran troops to the border, and that no U.S. soldiers would be involved in combat.

President Jose Azcona Hoya of Honduras on Tuesday demanded Nicaragua remove its troops, estimated by military sources to number about 1,600.

Nicaragua denied it had any soldiers in Honduras, and claimed that the reports were aimed at influencing the Senate to approve Reagan's request for $100 million in aid to the Contras. The House rejected that request last week.

Manuel Espinoza, a Nicaraguan presidential spokesman, called the claim "one more lie by the Reagan administration."

The U.S. Embassy spokesman said the United States "is helping Honduras and will continue supporting this country against eventual armed intervention from Nicaragua."

"We are not prepared to say whether Greenville is one of those being considered," Becker said. American will announce schedules and service for the hub "after the first of the year (and) American Eagle will play a large role in it," he said.

Officials at AVAir could not be reached for comment this morning.

Commuter airline service to Greenville, which began in 1973, was provided by Wheeler Airlines until 1980.

Since 1980, Pitt-Greenville has been served by CCAir (formerly Sunbird Airlines), which became a Piedmont commuter airline in May 1985, providing service to Raleigh-Durham, Piedmont's hub in Charlotte and other cities.

New Store Opens

The Hub Limited, specializing in big and tall sizes for men, opened at 602 Arlington Blvd. last week.

Andy Archie, the manager, said The Hub, based in Raleigh, has two other big and tall specialty shops, one in Raleigh and one in Durham. There are six other regular men's shops affiliated with The Hub in western North Carolina and in South Carolina.

Archie built the 5,000 square feet Arlington Boulevard store, with 3,500 feet of sales area, has six full-time and six part-time sales people and two tailors.

The store is open from 9 a.m. until 9 p.m. Mondays through Saturdays.

Pirates Sweep Bobcats

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Winfred Johnson took another step toward the NCAA record books Tuesday, hurling East Carolina to an 8-6 baseball victory over Ohio University. Johnson then cracked his eighth home run of the season in the second game of the doubleheader as ECU rolled up a 10-5 victory.

The pitching win brought Johnson's career total to 29, setting a new school record. The old mark was held by Mickey Britt. And Johnson's homer was his 59th career, extending his own school mark. He now stands one pitching victory and one home run away from becoming the first man in NCAA history to record 30 pitching wins and hit 60 home runs.

Johnson, who went the distance in the opening game, and Jim Peterson, who went the route in the second contest, both worked with only two days rest and it showed.

"I thought they did remarkably well for only having two days rest," Coach Gary Overton said. "And they were facing an excellent hitting ball club in Ohio."

Ohio did hit the ball well, banging ten hits off both pitchers. East Carolina got nine in each game.

"I thought our defense played soundly, even though we had a few mental lapses in the opening innings of the second game," Overton continued. "Then, too, the big inning brought us all together."

The big inning Overton referred to was the third in the second game when the Pirates wiped out a 5-0 deficit with a ten-run explosion.

Mike Sullivan continued his torrid pace of the week. In the last four games, Sullivan has seven hits in 14 trips, driving in six runs and hit two homers, including one that ignited the ten-run rally. Greg Hardison, who had gone hitless in 12 straight trips since Saturday, broke out of that with three hits on the day.

"Right now Sullivan is on a tear. It seems like when one or two of the guys don't hit, someone else picks it up and does the job. Right now, it's Sullivan. Of course, it was good to see Hardison break out of his string too," Overton said.

The Pirates took the lead quickly in the first inning of the opening game. Mont Carter walked and came around on three successive wild pitches.

The Bobcats also got into the act early, scoring one in the second to tie it up. With two away, Mike Palivoda singled and moved up on another by Brian Cook. Rick Koch then doubled to drive in Palivoda.

The Pirates regained the lead with three in their half of the second. Sullivan singled and Jay McGraw walked. Both were sacrificed up and Mark Cockrell singled to score Sullivan. A double steal plated McGraw. Cockrell took third on a wild pitch and scored on a passed ball for a 4-1 edge.

Ohio came back with two in the third. Brian Ritter singled and Les Harrington slapped a two-run homer to trim the lead to 4-3.

Another homer, this by Cook, tied it up at 4-4 in the fourth.

Again, ECU quickly went back out with one in the bottom of the fourth. Steve Sides doubled and took third on a wild pitch. He scored when Jim Riley reached on an error.

Once more, however, Ohio tied it, scoring in the top of the fifth for a 5-5 deadlock. Harrington led off with a double and moved up on an infield out. He scored on Joe Jakse's sacrifice fly.

The Pirates finally put the Bobcats away with three in the fifth. Johnson walked and Sullivan singled. All three runs scored on a homer by McGraw to left, making it 8-5.

Ohio did come back with one more in the game, scoring in the sixth. Koch singled and courtesy runner

Andy Doll moved up on an infield hit by Andy Echstenkamper. Todd Nuzum walked to load them up and a sacrifice fly by Ritter scored Doll.

Chris Bradberry, Sullivan and Sides each had two hits to lead the Pirate attack in the game. Koch had three hits for Ohio, while Cook and Harrington each had two.

The Pirates found themselves down quickly in the second game when Ohio scored two in the top of the first. Palivoda opened with a single and Nuzum got a hit. Ritter reached on an infield hit, scoring Palivoda and Harrington doubled in Nuzum.

The Bobcats added three more in the third for a 5-0 edge. Nuzum singled and Ritter doubled. With one out, Mike Floak was intentionally walked. Jakse singled in both Nuzum and Ritter and Doll singled to score Florak.

But Peterson found new life after his teammates rallied, and only two more baserunners reached after that.

The Pirates blew it open with ten in the third. Hardison opened with a single but he was cut down at second on Bradberry's grounder. Johnson doubled, driving in Bradberry. Sullivan then homered to cut the lead to 5-3.

McGraw was hit by a pitch and Sides walked. With two away, Riley singled in McGraw and David Ritchie singled to score Sides. A double steal brought in courtesy runner Carter, giving the Pirates the lead, 6-5.

Hardison singled in Ritchie and Bradberry doubled. Johnson then finished third off with a three-run homer, running the lead out to 10-5.

Hardison, Johnson and Sullivan each collected two hits for the Pirates in the game, while Palivoda, Nuzum and Ritter each had a pair for Ohio.

The wins boosted the East Carolina record to 19-1 on the season while Ohio fell to an very unrealistic 0-6.

"They're a much better team than their record shows," Overton said.

The Pirates close out their current home stand today with a 3 p.m. game against the Bobcats. They then travel for the first time, going to Harrisonburg, Va., Saturday for a doubleheader with Colonial Athletic Association rival James Madison. The two meet in a single game Sunday.

Evans To Be Named At Pitt

BALTIMORE (AP) — Navy basketball Coach Paul Evans has decided to accept a post at the University of Pittsburgh following day-long negotiations with Pitt athletic director Ed Bozok and other officials, a published report said.

The Baltimore Sun reported in today's editions that an official announcement naming Evans as the new head basketball coach at the Big East Conference school would be made at an 11:30 a.m. news conference this morning.

"I'm happy with this opportunity," Evans told The Sun late Tuesday night in a telephone interview from his Annapolis home. "As I've said before, I like the Big East Conference, and I like the talent base of players. It's the career move I've been looking for, and it's on the East Coast."

Evans planned to return to Pittsburgh this morning for the news conference. He said he had returned to the Naval Academy Tuesday night to talk with Athletic Director J.O. Coppedge and some Navy players.

Evans said he told his players Sunday night after Navy's 71-50 loss to Duke in the NCAA East Regional finals that "I probably won't be back next year." Evans said the players he spoke to Tuesday night "understood why I was leaving."

It is thought Evans will receive a four-year contract worth about $200,000 a year for a total package that includes a base coaching salary, fringe benefits and radio and television shows, The Sun said. The contract is believed to be worth about four times what Evans was receiving at the Naval Academy, the newspaper said.

An earlier report in the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette said that Tuesday's meetings failed to produce a contract agreement, and a Pitt spokesman said no announcement would be forthcoming.

Evans emerged as the leading candidate to replace Roy Chipman, who retired last year, after Navy upset Syracuse in the second round of the NCAA tournament.

Evans, 41, a native of Arcade, N.Y., met with University of Houston officials Monday and said he had been impressed, but that discussions had not reached a serious stage of negotiations.

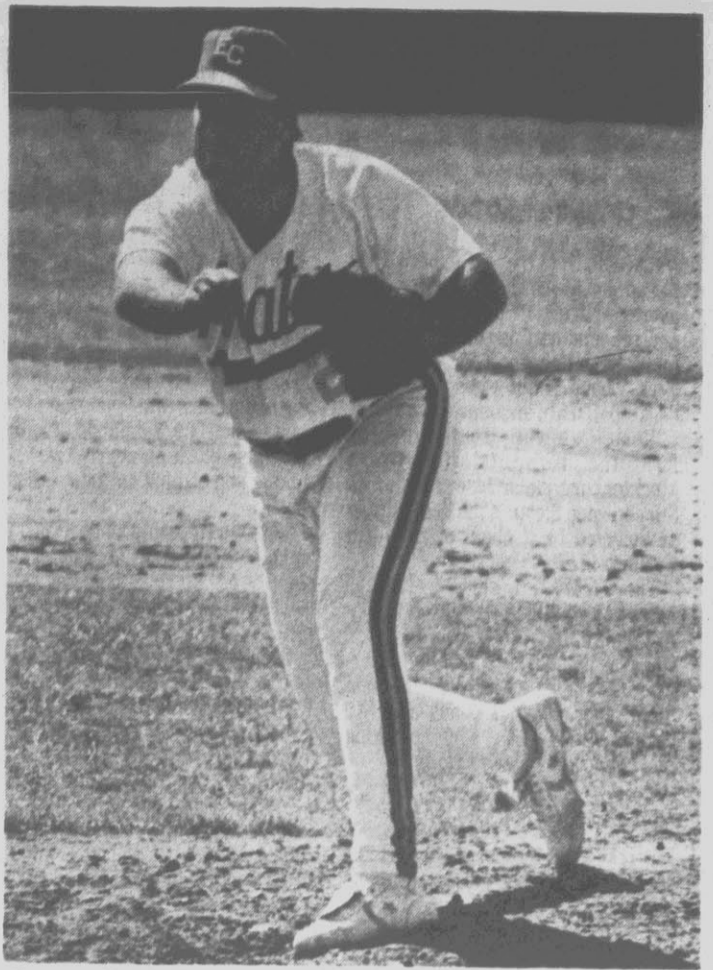

One source quoted by The Pittsburgh Press on Tuesday said Pitt offered Evans the job last weekend, but that formal terms were not discussed.

Record Win

East Carolina's Winfred Johnson hurled an 8-6 victory over Ohio University Tuesday for his 29th career victory. That erased the old school record of 28 wins set by Mickey Britt. Johnson also hit a homer during the two-game sweep by the Pirates to bring his homer total to 59. (Reflector Photo by Katie Zernhelt)

Rose, North Pitt Lead Cup Races

Rose High School, North Pitt, West Carteret, Plymouth and North Edgecombe lead their respective conferences in the race for the Wachovia Trophy after the completion of the winter sports season.

Rose, a member of the Big East 4-A Conference, earned a total of 30 1/2 points during the season to raise its total to 103 1/2 so far this year.

Northeastern is in second place with 88 points while Wilson Hunt is third with 87.

West Carteret heads to race in the Coastal 3-A Conference, with a total of 53 on the year. The Mariners finished the winter with 31 1/2 points.

Havelock is in second place with 46 1/2 while D.H. Conley is a very close third with 46.

North Pitt, in the Eastern Plains 2-A Conference, picked up a total of 10 3/4 points during the winter to boost its total for the year to 21.

Ayden-Grifton is in second place at 19 1/2, while C.B. Aycock and Farmville Central are tied for third with 19 points.

North Edgecombe heads up the running in the Tobacco Belt 1-A Conference. The Warriors finished the winter with a total of 31 points.

Belhaven is second with 30 while Chocowinity is third with 23.

In the Northeastern 3-A Conference, Plymouth has amassed 66 1/2 points. The Vikings won the boys and girls' basketball and the wrestling titles in the NEAC this winter.

Edenton is in second place with 58 1/2 while Northampton East is third with 56.

The Wachovia Trophy recognizes high schools that have the best overall sports programs for boys and girls within their respective conferences. Points are based on participation and excellence and are tallied after fall, winter and spring sports competition.

The trophy is a companion to the Wachovia Cup which is presented annually to the school (one in each of the four classifications) which has the best overall performance. Both programs are sponsored by Wachovia Bank and Trust Co.

Roanoke's Duggins Is All-State

By RICK SCOPPE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Roxboro Person senior forward Avie Lester, who averaged in double figures in scoring and rebounding this season, was the top vote-getter in The Associated Press boys' high school all-state basketball team announced today.

West Caldwell senior center Schonna Banner and North Mecklenburg junior forward Andrea Stinson pace the girls' all-state squad as selected by a panel of 23 North Carolina sportswriters.

The 6-foot-9½ Lester received 20 votes to outdistance Fayetteville E.E. Smith forward Robert Brickey, who was named on 16 ballots. Lester, who has signed with North Carolina State, averaged 16.5 points and 10.5 rebounds this year, while blocking more than three shots a game.

Lester was named to the AP all-state second team last year.

Brickey, a 6-5 senior, averaged 18.5 points and 11.5 rebounds a game and is being pursued by Duke and Wake Forest, among others.

North Forsyth forward Brian Howard, a 6-7 senior, received 13 votes, and Northeastern center Kenny Williams was named on nine ballots.

Howard, who has signed with North Carolina State, averaged 16.6 points and 11.9 rebounds a game, while also blocking nearly five shots a game and dishing out four assists a contest.

Williams, the only underclassman on the first-team, averaged 20.5 points and 12 rebounds per game while also blocking six shots a contest.

Three players tied for the fifth spot on the first-team: Tim Kincaid of Rutherford-Spindale, Kemp Phillips of North Surry and John McNeil of Wilson Fike.

Kincaid, a 6-3 senior guard, averaged 20.5 points and eight assists per game, while Phillips, a 5-11 senior guard, averaged 21 points and dished out five assists a game.

McNeil, a 6-4 senior guard who has signed with Pittsburgh, averaged 14 points a game this season.

The girls' first-team is headed by Banner, a 6-3 senior center, who got 19 votes, one more than Stinson, a 5-11 junior forward. Banner averaged 21.5 points and 11 rebounds a game in being named all-state for the second year in a row.

Stinson averaged 28 points, 10 rebounds and four assists a contest.

Rhonda Mapp, a 6-3 junior center from Asheville, received 11 votes, while Nettie Williams, a 5-4 senior guard from Orrum, was named on seven ballots. Mapp averaged 25.1 points, 14.9 rebounds and 4.4 blocked shots a game, while Williams averaged 28.2 points and 4.2 assists a game. Williams scored 40 points or more three times this season.

As with the boys' team, three girls tied for the final spot on the first team: Christa Hull of East Burke, Gloria Duggins of Roanoke and Monique Burnett of Cary.

Hull, a 6-2 junior center, averaged 23.5 points and 11 rebounds a game while hitting 62.4 percent of her field goals. Burnett, a 5-9 senior center, averaged 20.1 points and 10.6 rebounds per game.

Duggins, a 5-7 senior forward who was a second-team all-state pick last year, averaged 27.9 points and 7.6 steals a game despite playing in only 13 of 25 games this season because of injuries.

The boys' second-team consists of Antonio Johnson of Pinecrest, William Massenburg of Wake Forest-Rolesville, Charles Sowell of Fayetteville E.E. Smith, Mike Cottrell of Cullowhee, Jeff Denny of North Forsyth and Gary Mattison of Raleigh Broughton. Cottrell, a junior, is the only non-senior on the squad.

The girls' second team is made up of Wendy Beecher of North Stokes, Gerri Robuck of Raleigh Ravenscroft, Mandy Causey of West Davidson, Julia Buckner of Swananoa Owen and Danyel Parker of Clinton. Parker, a freshman, is the only non-senior on the team.

Wilkins Sparks Atlanta Win

By The Associated Press
Dominique Wilkins, who missed Atlanta's previous game because of food poisoning, returned to action and gave the Cleveland Cavaliers a touch of indigestion.

The NBA's second leading scorer tallied 34 of his 36 points in the first three quarters as the Hawks defeated the Cleveland Cavaliers 97-91 Tuesday night. The setback sliced Cleveland's lead in the race for the final Eastern Conference playoff spot to 1½ games over Chicago, which defeated New York 111-98, and Indiana, which was idle.

"I was very surprised. When the game started I was in my rhythm and felt very good," Wilkins said.

It also another was business as usual for the Sacramento Kings, who climbed out of the Midwest Division cellar by recording their 11th consecutive Tuesday night home-court victory, a 116-99 rout of the Portland Trail Blazers.

Elsewhere, it was the Los Angeles Lakers 121, Denver 115; Milwaukee

118, New Jersey 105; and Golden State 125, Detroit 121.

Wilkins scored 22 points as the Hawks took a 51-40 halftime lead and added 12 in the third period as Atlanta led 79-67. After Cliff Levingston put the Hawks ahead 81-67 with a basket off a rebound, Cleveland scored 10 straight points, cutting its deficit to 81-77 with 8:20 remaining.

But Wilkins, who missed all six of his floor shots in the final period, made two free throws and Randy Wittman and Johnny Davis hit jump shots to open the lead to 87-77 with 6:04 to play. Cleveland, which suffered its seventh defeat in the last eight games, was paced by Mel Turpin's 26 points and World B. Free's 23.

"Down the stretch I was kind of dragging. A little fatigue set in," Wilkins said.

The victory lifted Atlanta within two games of Philadelphia for the third best record in the Eastern Conference.

"We're working for position and building our confidence. We want to win all of our remaining games," Wilkins said. "We've set our goals high, but we want to go into the playoffs with momentum and confidence."

"We've come so far with the young team we have. A lot of people wrote us off at the start of the season as not being a top team. But we knew if we paid attention to our work we had a chance to play as well as we are."

Kings 116, Trail Blazers 99

Reggie Theus scored 18 points and dished out 17 assists, the most for the Kings in the last 13 seasons. Terry Tyler and Larry Drew also had 18 points each for Sacramento, which moved into fifth place, one-half game ahead of San Antonio in the Midwest Division. Kiki Vandeweghe topped Portland with 23 points.

Lakers 121, Nuggets 115

James Worthy scored 11 of his 30 points in the final seven minutes as the Lakers ended Denver's three-game winning streak over the defending NBA champions. The Nuggets still won the season series 3-2, the only team besides Boston to claim that distinction, but fell 1½ games behind idle Houston in the battle for the Midwest Division lead.

Los Angeles led 81-66 early in the third period but Denver pulled within 111-108 with 4:02 remaining. Magic Johnson, who had 19 assists, then scored on a drive and the Lakers were able to stave off the Nuggets' rally.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar had 24 points for Los Angeles while NBA scoring leader Alex English hit his season average of 29 for Denver but had only two points in the final period.

Bucks 118, Nets 105

Craig Hodges scored 24 points and Sidney Moncrief added 22 in leading Milwaukee to its fifth consecutive triumph. The Bucks took control of the game at the beginning of the fourth quarter when they outscored the Nets 10-5 for an 86-81 lead with 8:44 remaining on a long jumper by Hodges. Albert King led New Jersey with 34 points and Terry Cummings added 20 for the Bucks.

Warriors 125, Pistons 121

Joe Barry Carroll scored 24 points, Terry Teagle 23 and Eric Floyd 21 as Golden State won for the fifth time in six games in a late-season battle to escape from last place in the Pacific Division. The Warriors trail the Los Angeles Clippers by one-half game.

Isiah Thomas, Detroit's leading scorer, played only about half the game and scored six points. Kelly Tripucka and Vinnie Johnson scored 24 apiece for the Pistons and Bill Laimbeer had 20.

Ohio Rolls By Women

DURHAM — East Carolina University's women's tennis team was defeated by Ohio University, 8-1, Tuesday, in a match held at Duke University.

The lone win by the Lady Pirates came in the number two singles where Lisa Eichholz gained a three-set win over Traci Kenan.

The loss drops the spring record for the women to 2-3. They travel to UNC-Greensboro on April 2.

Summary:

Kelly Archibald (O) d. Becky Clements, 6-0, 6-0.
Lisa Eichholz (EC) d. Traci Kenan, 6-3, 1-6, 6-3.
Cheryl Trominski (O) d. Amy Ziemer, 7-5, 3-6, 6-1.
Polly Gray (O) d. Holly Murray, 6-0, 6-4.
Mary Novak (O) d. Ty Myers, 6-2, 6-2.
Kathy Maroscher (O) d. Susan Montjoy, 6-2, 6-3.
Trominski-Novak (O) d. Eichholz-Myers, 6-1, 6-1.
Gray-Kenan (O) d. Murray-Ziemer, 6-3, 6-2.
Maroscher-Archibald (O) d. Clements-Maria Swaim, 6-0, 7-6.

Bertie Tops Lady Jags

FARMVILLE — Bertie Senior High School outran Farmville Central in the first meet of the year for the Lady Jaguars Tuesday.

Bertie amassed a total of 80 points while Farmville came up with 46

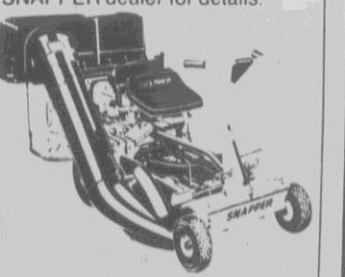

The Lady Jaguars won six individual events and one relay, but Bertie came up with the remaining seven individual events and took two of the relays.

Farmville will play host to C.B. Aycock, Greene Central and Pamlico in an Eastern Plains Conference meet Thursday.

Summary:

The Warriors did not commit a foul for the first 14 minutes and were charged with only 10 for the game.

Bulls 111, Knicks 98

Orlando Woolridge scored 22 points, Gene Banks added 20 and Michael Jordan had 19 as Chicago snapped a five-game losing streak. The Bulls, who had a 14-4 run late in the first half, put together a 14-6 spurt at the start of the second half to take a 66-55 lead. A three-point goal by Kyle Macy early in the fourth quarter made it 85-72 and the Bulls coasted the rest of the way. Ken Bannister led New York with 20 points.

Still No QB Leader

East Carolina's football team went through a one-hour controlled scrimmage Tuesday in Ficklen Stadium and ECU Head Coach Art Baker seemed pleased with his Pirate squad, but indicated that they had not found a clear-cut starting quarterback as yet.

"First of all I would have to say our defense is a little ahead of our offense, mainly because we just haven't established a quarterback yet," Baker said. "The fact that we haven't had someone come forward at quarterback disturbs me a little. I thought one of our quarterbacks would have emerged by now as the one to take us to a winning season in 1988."

"Our offensive line generally plays well, but they didn't look that good today. We just haven't come together offensively yet, but we're improving every day and we have some young players who are really coming on."

Baker recognized several defensive players for excellent practices including defensive ends Willie Powell, Billy Michel and John Williamson, free safety Ellis Dillahunt and defensive tackle Carl Carney.

The Pirates will work out Wednesday and Thursday before breaking for Easter weekend, with practice resuming Monday. The spring game is set for April 19.

To The Sports Editor:

ECU's motto of "We're Going After The Best" apparently does not apply to the Lady Pirates' basketball team as last week, ECU Athletic Director Ken Karr refused to allow the team to participate in the Women's NIT.

On television interviews, Dr. Karr cited finances as an obstacle. While ECU doesn't have the largest budget in collegiate athletics, I still find it difficult to understand why an athletic budget of over $1 million could not finance a trip that sources have reported would be in the $5,000 neighborhood. After all, Dr. Karr does find a way to fund the men's program that last year was reported to be over $200,000 in debt.

Dr. Karr also suggested that we would not go because Duke would receive a bid and they wouldn't go. Is our athletic program governed by what everyone else does? If so, does this mean our athletic director is resigning this summer because the A.D. at N.C. State is stepping down?

It's a shame that the Lady Pirates were denied an opportunity to participate in a post-season tournament that has NCAA approval and one that has drawn such teams as Notre Dame, Florida and LSU. Our ladies had a great season and were deserving of this opportunity that would have brought more recognition and prestige to the team and East Carolina University.

Seth Jones
Farmville

(Editor's Note: a check has shown that the trip to Amarillo, Texas, for the NIT would have cost close to $10,000 or more, not $5,000. Plane fares alone for the official party of 13 players, three coaches, two managers, a trainer and a sports information person would have been over $5,000, if booked a week in advance. If booked less than that, it would have cost three times as much. Motel rooms, meals and ground transportation would have been at least another $3,000 at best. And while the ECU men's basketball program did come up short by about $200,000 during the 1984-85 season, it should also be noted that ECU women's basketball was some $125,000 short, and it operates on a smaller budget.)

Jarman Leads Rose By Knights

Eric Jarman threw a two-hitter at Northern Nash and added three hits on the offensive side to lead Rose High School to an 8-1 Big East baseball victory over Nor Tuesday.

For the Rampants, it was the Big East game of the 1986 season.

"Eric Jarman pitched an outstanding game," Coach Ronald Vincent said. "Not only did he hold them to just two hits, he also got three hits himself to prove his worth on both sides."

"I'm just tickled to death to get this win. We played a really good game. We were aggressive at the plate and in the field too. Their pitcher was tough, but we hung in there against him and got the job done."

Vincent pointed to a play in the fifth inning that typified the play of the Rampants on the day. "(Dexter) Arrington hit a little chopper on the third base side of the mound and Eric picked it up and threw it over the head of Curtis (Perkins — first baseman). But Tyrone Jones (right fielder) was right there to prevent the ball from going all the way to the corner and the runner might have come all the way around on it. As it was, he only got to second."

Rose jumped in front with a pair of runs in the second inning. Axel Smith led off with a single and courtesy runner Lee Lewis moved up on a passed ball. He then scored on David Daniels' singled. Jason Galloway hit into a fielder's choice that got Daniels, but Galloway stole up and moved to third on a fielder's choice. He scored on Jarman's single.

Northern Nash got its only run in the third. Arrington reached on a fielder's choice and stole up. He scored when John Adams reached on an error.

Rose picked up three more in the fifth. Perkins singled and stole second. Scott Davis walked but was erased at second on Robbie Ehrmann's grounder. Ehrmann stole up and Smith singled in Perkins. Ehrmann scored on an error as Lewis, running for Smith, stole up, and another error let Lewis come the rest of the way.

The sixth saw the final three score. Travis King walked and pinchrunner George Saad moved up on a wild pitch, scoring on Jarman's single. Perkins singled to score Jarman, who had taken second on the relay home on his hit.

Perkins and Smith each added two hits to the Rose total.

"I continue to be very pleased with the play of Smith behind the plate," Vincent said. "And both he and Perkins and Ehrmann got key hits for us today."

Rose is now 5-1 overall and 1-0 in league play. The Rampants play at Rocky Mount on Thursday.

FARMVILLE — South Lenoir jumped on Farmville Central for four first innings runs, then rolled up a 15-3 Eastern Plains Conference baseball win Tuesday.

The Blue Devils got all they were to need in the first inning. K. Tyndall and T. Smith both singled. A hit by C. Howard brought in the first run, and a wild pitch plated Smith with the second. After walks to T. Dawson and L. Outlaw, another wild pitch scored Howard. Then, after D. Davenport walked, a third wild pitch brought in Dawson.

South Lenoir added one in the second, two in the third, four in the fourth, one in the fifth and three in the sixth.

All three of the Jaguar runs scored in the sixth. Mike Vandiford reached on an error and Eddie Little singled. Hugh Moore doubled both runners and Greg May doubled to drive in Moore.

Tyndal, Howard and Dawson each had two hits for South Lenoir. J. Dixon hit a solohomerin the third inning for the Blue Devils.

No one had more than one hit for Farmville, now 0-5 overall and 0-1 in league play.

BAYBORO — North Pitt rallied for four runs in the top of the seventh, then added three in the eighth to take a 9-6 Eastern Plains baseball victory over Pamlico Tuesday.

Pamlico jumped out to a 3-0 lead in the first inning. The Hurricanes then added two more in the third for a 5-0 edge.

North Pitt came up with two in the fifth while Pamlico scored once in the sixth to make it 6-2.

But the Panthers rallied for four in the seventh, tying it at 6-6.

Then, in the eighth, the Panthers pushed over three to win it. Rick Grimes walked and Jarvis Massenburg reached on an error. Staton Alleyne walked, loading the bases. Michael Brown doubled to drive in both Grimes and Massenburg and Scott Rawls sacrificed Alleyne in with the final run.

Brown led the North Pitt hitting with three while S. Squires had two to pace Pamlico.

North Pitt is now 2-2 overall and 1-1 in league play. The Panthers play host to North Pitt on Friday.

LITTLEFIELD — Ayden-Grifton rallied for six runs in the fifth inning and pulled out a 10-5 Eastern Plains Conference baseball victory over Charles B. Aycock Tuesday.

Both teams scored twice in the first inning, but Aycock moved back ahead with one in the second. Aycock then added two in the third for a 5-2 lead.

Ayden-Grifton came back with one in the fourth to trim the lead to 5-3.

Then, in the fifth, the Chargers pushed over six big runs to forge a 9-5 lead. Curt Tucker reached on a three-base error, scoring on Tony McLawhorn's single. Andy Swanson walked and Steve Tucker singled, scoring courtesy runner Jesse Hooker. An error on the relay allowed pinch-runner Ronnell Peterson to score also. Mike Burnham and Frank Mills walked, loading the bases and Todd Little singled in Tucker and Burnham. Another error on the play let Mills score too.

Ayden-Grifton picked up one more in the sixth on a solo homer by McLawhorn, who led the Charger hitting with three.

M. Casey led Aycock with two hits. Mike Burnham, who allowed only three hits in picking up the victory, struck out 11 on the day.

Now 2-5 overall and 2-0 in league play, the Chargers travel to Greene Central on Thursday.

MOREHEAD CITY — Bronswell Patrick won his fifth straight game of the year for D.H. Conley Tuesday as the Vikings downed West Carteret, 4-2, in a Coastal Conference baseball game.

Conley took the lead with one in the first, a solo homer by Jody Vines.

The Vikings then sewed it up with two in the sixth. Vines walked and was sacrificed up. He scored on a hit by Fred Bryant. Courtesy runner Martin Anderson stole second and scored on Brian Joyner's single.

Conley added one in the seventh while West Carteret got one each in the sixth and seventh.

Vines led the Viking hitting with two while John Wadsworth and Davie Willis each had two for the Patriots.

Conley is now 7-0 overall and 1-0 in league play. The Vikings travel to Washington on Thursday.

CHOCOWINITY — Columbia High School pushed over two runs in the top of the sixth inning and gained a 2-0 Tobacco Belt Conference baseball victory over Chocowinity Tuesday.

Jeff Spencer went the distance for the Wildcats, allowing only three hits in gaining the shutout victory. Maurice Tripp, who allowed only two hits, suffered the loss.

S. Crees led off the sixth with a walk. He stole second and took third on a passed ball, scoring on an infield out. Spencer then was hit by a pitch and also stole up. Two passed balls allowed him to come the rest of the way with the second run.

Brian Bateau had two of the three hits collected by Chocowinity.

The Indians are now 2-3 on the year, all in conference competition. The Tribe travels to Creswell on Thursday.

AHOSKIE — Williamston High School pushed over three runs in the first inning and made that stand up for a 3-2 Northeastern Conference baseball victory Tuesday over Ahoskie.

The Tigers got all they needed in the first. Les Thomas got a one-out double and Robert James singled. Then, with two away, Glenn Hardison doubled to drive in both Thomas and James. Jay Horton followed with yet another double, driving in Hardison for the 3-0 lead.

Ahoskie rallied for two in the sixth, but the Cougars were stopped just in time by the Tigers.

Robert James tossed the win, scattering five hits for Ahoskie. Brown and Young each had two of those. No one had more than one for Williamston.

The Tigers are now 4-0 overall and 1-0 in Northeastern Conference play. They return to action on Thursday, hosting Roanoke Rapids.

ROANOKE RAPIDS — Roanoke Rapids spotted Roanoke High School a 1-0 lead in the top of the first, then charged back to gain a 6-1 Northeastern Conference baseball win Tuesday.

Roanoke's run proved to be the only damage the Redskins could do in their conference opener. Ricky Taylor led off with a single and stole both second and third. An error on the throw down after the second steal allowed him to score.

Roanoke Rapids came right back with two in the bottom of the first, taking the lead for good. Munson doubled and moved to third on an error. Allen walked and stole second. Lucas' sacrifice fly scored Munson and another by Moore brought in Allen.

The Yellow Jackets added two more in second, one in the third and another in the sixth.

Munson and Moore each had two hits to lead Roanoke Rapids. No one had more than one for the Redskins.

Incaviglia Continues Assault

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

This year's spring training phenom is Pete Incaviglia, a 22-year-old outfielder who is about to join the New York Yankees. Dave Winfield and Atlanta's Bob Horner as the only three active players to jump directly from college to the major leagues.

Incaviglia, who has been named Texas' right fielder, hit two more home runs Tuesday, one of them traveling an estimated wind-aided 600 feet, as the Rangers trounced the Cincinnati Reds 14-5 in an exhibition game.

"I really don't even think about that," Incaviglia said of his new status. "I just came here to make this ballclub and help this ballclub win."

On Monday, Texas Manager Bobby Valentine named Incaviglia his starting right fielder.

Incaviglia, who set NCAA records with 48 home runs and 143 RBIs last season while leading Oklahoma State to the College World Series, is hitting .342 this spring — 13 for 38 — with a double, five homers and 13 RBIs in eight games.

"There was no doubt in my mind (that he could make the team)," Incaviglia said. "But I didn't want to come here and step on anybody's toes. If I can fit in with Larry Parrish, Gary Ward, Pete O'Brien and Oddibe McDowell and help this team win, that's all I want."

"I want to hit 30 to 40 home runs and drive in 100 runs," he added. "That's what I'm here for."

Incaviglia hit his home runs in the seventh and eighth innings after Larry Parrish capped a seven-run fourth against Mario Soto with a three-run shot. Before Parrish unloaded, Soto walked in two runs and O'Brien hit a two-run double. Curtis Wilkerson also homered for Texas and Eric Davis hit one for Cincinnati.

Before the game, the Rangers learned that knuckleballer Charlie Hough, who had been scheduled to start the season opener against Toronto, suffered a broken little finger on his right hand. Valentine said Hough was injured while shaking hands with a friend and will be out for three weeks. Rookie Jose Guzman was named to replace him on opening night.

Another spring sensation, Detroit's Mike Laga, hit his seventh home run and then tripled home the winning run in the eighth inning as the Tigers downed the St. Louis Cardinals 9-8. Frank Tanana gave up 13 hits and all eight St. Louis runs in the first six innings. Chet Lemon hit a three-run homer for Detroit.

The 25-year-old Laga, who has hit 100 home runs over the last four seasons with Detroit's top farm club in the Class AAA American Association, is hitting .371 in 14 games. Besides his seven homers he has two doubles, a triple and 14 RBIs. After Tuesday's game, Manager Sparky Anderson was asked if Laga had locked up a spot on the team.

"I would have to think he's doing real well," Anderson replied. "If he hasn't, let me put it this way: I will not call him in (and tell him). I'll let somebody else take care of that."

Anderson was asked who would play first base since both Laga and Darrell Evans, last year's American League home run king, both play the same position.

"I don't really care," he said. "It doesn't matter. That will take care of itself. That's a nice position for me to be in. Neither of them cares as long as they get their at-bats."

Two of the top pitchers this spring have been Seattle's Mark Langston and Ron Darling of the New York Mets.

Langston went six scoreless innings and allowed one hit while fanning eight as the Mariners trounced the Chicago Cubs 12-2. In 16 innings, he has been nicked for just one run — unearned.

"I had control of all four of my pitches, even my slow curve. And that surprised me, because I usually don't have command of that this early," said Langston, who slipped to a 7-14 record and a 5.47 earned run average last year after winning 17 games in 1984 — most by a major-league rookie left-hander in 21 years — and leading the American League in strikeouts.

Rams Take Win; Jaguars Bow

PIKEVILLE — C.B. Aycock handed Farmville Central a 7-2 defeat in the first Eastern Plains Conference tennis match of the year for the two Tuesday.

Farmville gained a victory in the number five singles, where Jay Morris downed Nick Stewart. Then, Eric Shine and Al Hedgepeth combined to take the number one doubles match.

The loss leaves Farmville at 4-1 on the year overall and 0-1 in league play. Aycock is 3-3, 1-0.

The Jaguars return to action on Thursday, hosting Greene Central.

SNOW HILL — Greene Central High School swept the singles matches and gained a 7-2 tennis victory over Rosewood Tuesday.

The Rams had to battle somewhat in the singles, having two matches extended to three sets, but they went throughout real damage. Rosewood's only wins came in the number one and two doubles.

The victory raises the Ram record to 3-0, 1-0 in league play. They return to action today at Ayden-Grifton.

Summary:

Not surprisingly when you consider their key position in a man's dressing scheme, the oxford shirts that bear our label must meet some stiff requirements. First, they must be made of pure cotton. Cotton is comfortable year round but especially so during spring and summer because of its natural absorbency that translates into coolness. Second, the single needle stitching, the shaping and turning of the collar, the strength of buttons and button holes, all must meet our stringent standards. Last, our oxford shirts must complement our natural shoulder suits and jackets.

For our grand opening at Carolina East Mall, we are offering our 100% cotton traditional oxford with softly rolled, button-down collar. Button cuffs. Available in solids-white and blue; tick stripes-blue and wine.

North Pitt, Conley Post Wins

BETHEL — Keisha Pilgreen hit for the cycle Tuesday as North Pitt outlasted Pamlico in the Pant-HERS opening softball game of the season Tuesday, 14-10.

It was also the first Eastern Plains Conference outing for North Pitt which is getting off to a late start because of the extension of the girls basketball season at the school.

North Pitt pushed into a 3-0 lead in the first inning. Pamlico came up with one in the second, but North Pitt outdid that with five for an 8-1 edge. Three of those were accounted for by a homer by Pilgreen.

Two more crossed in the fourth, while Pamlico equalized that with two in the fifth.

In the bottom of the inning, North Pitt put the game away with four more runs. Wendy Parker, Tammy Beacham and Gwen Pilgreen all reached on errors, loading the bases. All three then scored on a double by Keisha Pilgreen. Regina Cox later hit a sacrifice fly to score Pilgreen.

Pilgreen had four hits — a single, double, triple and homer — to account for the cycle. Alexis Scott and Esther Witherspoon each had three and Renee Ayers had two for North Pitt. Jordan led Pamlico with two.

North Pitt is now 1-0 both overall and in Eastern Plains play. The Pant-HERS return to action today at Rosewood.

Tugman had four hits including a three-run homer to spark D.H. Conley to a 12-5 softball victory over West Carteret in Coastal Conference action Tuesday.

Conley took the lead with a run in the first, but West Carteret bounced back with three in the bottom of the inning. Conley scored three in the top of the second, with the Lady Patriots getting one in the bottom of the frame to tie it at 4-4.

Conley then scored five times in the third to put it away. Trellaney Boyd walked and Darby Fulford singled. Michelle Waters also singled, loading the bases. Gale Cash singled in Boyd and Janelle Gaylord got a hit, driving in Fulford. Waters, however, was thrown out trying to score. Tugman then homered to drive in the remaining three for a 9-4 lead.

Conley added two in the fourth and one in the fifth while West Carteret picked up one more in the seventh.

Tugman also had a triple among her four while Fulford and Gaylord each had three hits, Rhonda Jackson, Waters and Cash each adding two. Gilbert had three hits to lead West Carteret while Kanuck and Bedsworth each had two.

Conley is now 4-1 overall and 1-0 in Coastal play. The Valkyries travel to Washington on Thursday.

School rolled up an 11-1 softball victory over Washington Tuesday in a Coastal Conference softball game.

The Lady Mariners pushed over two runs in the first inning of the game and added a killing five in the second. They went on to add one in the third and three in the fourth to wrap it up.

Washington's only run crossed in the sixth inning.

Tonya Gilliken led East Carteret with three hits while Wendy Fulcher and Mona Tathis each picked up two.

Stephanie Litzsey and Gloria Sherrod each had two hits to lead Washington.

The Lady Pam Pack is now 1-4 overall and 1-1 in Coastal play. They return to action on Thursday, hosting D.H. Conley.

in the second, Columbia came back with one in the fourth, and then scored seven times in the fourth. Chocowinity rallied for six in its half of the inning to make it 16-11.

Both teams scored four times in the sixth, and Columbia came up with five in the seventh to knot it at 20-20. The Lady Wildcats then pushed over two in the eighth while holding Chocowinity to just one.

P. Brickhouse led Columbia with four hits, three of them triples while K. Howelt added three.

Christy Bradley led Chocowinity with four including a three-run homer in the fifth and a triple. Tracy Dixon and Joy Woolard each added three while Wendy Dixon had two. Chris Machado added a three-run homer in the sixth for the Tribe.

Chocowinity is now 0-5, having lost the last two games by one run each. The Lady Indians travel to Creswell on Thursday.

high school softball action on Tuesday.

Myra Brown smacked a three-run homer, and Shirley Godard hit a two-run shot to lead Williamston. Jan Mills added three hits for the Lady Tigers.

Williamston jumped out to 3-0 lead in the top of the first and extended it to 4-0 with a run in the second.

The Lady Tigers upped their lead to 10-0 with four runs in the fifth and two in the sixth.

Ahoskie got on the board with a run in the bottom of the sixth, but Williamston countered with four runs in the seventh to make the final score 14-1.

The game was the season opener for Williamston.

Northern Nash scored six times in the last two innings to hand Rose High School its first softball loss Tuesday, 10-5.

Unfortunately, it also came in the first Big East Conference game of the season too.

Rose took the lead with a run in the second, and both teams scored single runs in the third. Northern came up with three in the fourth, however, taking a 4-3 lead.

The Lady Knights then picked up three in the sixth, all on a home run by Richardson. The final three came in the top of the seventh.

Rose rallied for two in the bottom of the seventh.

Arrington led the Knight hitting with three while Staton, Langston and Richardson each had two. Staton had a solo homer in the third.

Kim Bridges led Rose with two hits.

"We didn't play as well today as we have in the earlier games," Coach Bill Kuykendall said. "We made several mental mistakes in the game, and then got frustrated at ourselves."

Rose is now 4-1 on the year and 0-1 in league play.

FARMVILLE — South Lenoir scored early and went on to record an 11-1 Eastern Plains Conference softball victory over Farmville Central Tuesday.

The Lady Blue Devils pushed over one run in the top of the first and added two more in the second for a 3-0 lead. From there, South Lenoir added two each in the fourth and fifth and climaxed the game with four more in the sixth.

Farmville Central's only run crossed in the bottom of the second.

Humphrey, Hardison and Parrish each had two hits to lead South Lenoir. No one for Farmville had more than one.

The loss dropped the Lady Jaguars to 2-2 overall and to 0-1 in EPC play. Farmville travels to North Pitt on Friday for its next action.

"Going Bald?" Here's Help If Cause Is Sebum

HOUSTON, Texas—If you have symptoms of "sebum" hair loss; oily or greasy forehead; dandruff, dry or oily; itchy scalp; and if your hair pulls out easily on top of your head, here's help.

A firm of laboratory consultants has developed a scientifically advanced formula and regimen to remove and control the continuous discharge of toxic sebum, so the scalp can function normally and effectively. This, in turn, reduces hair loss...stimulates natural hair cell production...and reverses the balding process.

This scientific regimen has proven so successful the firm invites you to try it for 32 days, at their risk, and see for yourself.

These experts point out that the majority of cases of excessive hair fall and baldness are the beginning and more fully developed stages of male pattern baldness and cannot be helped.

But, if your hair loss is caused or effected by sebum, you can stop and reverse the balding process in the areas of the scalp where your scalp is still able to create hair. Areas already slick bald after years of gra-

Everyone has a full head of hair until some time after puberty. In the case of hair loss caused by "sebum", the problem starts when the male hormone production reaches its peak. This causes an excessive discharge of toxic sebum, which if not properly controlled, will gradually destroy the hair-producing cells on top of the head.

Hair loss caused by sebum can also run in your family, and, if you wait until you are slick bald and your hair-producing cells are destroyed, you are beyond help.

So, if you still have any hair on top of your head, and would like to reverse the balding process...now is the time to do something about it before it's too late.

Loesch Laboratory Consultants, Inc., will supply you with treatment of 32 days, at their risk...if you have the sebum symptoms and are not already slick bald. Just send them the information below. Or, call them toll-free at 1-800-231-7157 (in Texas 1-800-833-8387) 8:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. Monday thru Thursday and they will send complete information. Wild Elephants

DHAKA, Bangladesh (AP) - Wild elephants trampled a mud hut and killed five people, including three children, police said. The incident occurred in Chitagang Hill tracts, 219 miles southeast of Dhaka, at village Thalipara, according to a police spokesman. He said the five people killed in the incident were asleep in the hut at the time.

Polka Can Help You Keep In Shape

MONTROVIA, Pa. (AP) - Move over Jazzerise, Tappercise and other variations of the dance fitness craze. Roll out the barrel for PolkAerobics, a workout in which participants pant and puff to the three-step polka.
 "People hop and sweat to the polka at weddings and beer halls. I figured why not package it as a way to get in shape," said Andy LoRusso, 37, a former nightclub entertainer.
 "It's a combination of dance and exercise and getting people to dance together again. It's a rigorous dance that gets the heartbeat up. The program uses all the major muscle groups of the body," LoRusso said.

 After 30 minutes of warmups and stretches, common in other aerobics classes, LoRusso cranks up the brassy, bouncy music that has lyrics such as: "I don't want her, you can have her, she's too fat for me."
 Hand-clapping participants whoop and spin, twisting their trunks and kicking their legs to snappy tunes played at ethnic weddings.
 In PolkAerobics class, however, there's nary a babushka in sight. Color-coordinated leg warmers, head bands, warmup suits and jogging shoes are de rigueur.
 During a recent workout in a school gym, LoRusso exhorted his students to keep smiling and keep moving to a routine that included the three-step polka, side steps, lunges and chorus-line style knee kicks.

 "Pasta, pierogi and other delights - we put it on, and we polka it off," he said. "It's just like a wedding. We'll eat the cake later."
 Young and old participants sweated to keep up, then cooled down to a waltz.
 "That was great. Now I'm going home to die. But really, it makes you feel good. You're not straining anything," said Bill Hajek, 54.
 "I feel a lot better. It helps work off some of the stress from the job," said Robert Kocur, toweling off after a session.
 LoRusso, wearing chic high-top red Reebok aerobic shoes, a hot pink PolkAerobics sweatshirt and electric blue workout pants, said he picked the polka because he wanted something exciting and innovative.
 "Everybody was doing disco for exercise," he said. "The polka is lively. It has lots of energy."
 LoRusso got the idea three years ago in Los Angeles, where he had a fitness show on cable television. Then he moved to Pittsburgh, which has a large population with eastern European roots. In the past year, about 80 people have enrolled in his 10-week session, which cost $24 to $85.

 Participants get a cassette tape with a medley of "The Beer Barrel Polka" and "The Pennsylvania Polka," along with an exercise chart. This spring, LoRusso hopes to market a 45-minute video.
 LoRusso admits it's different to see trendy types shape up to a 150-year-old dance. But the polka, which originated in the early 1800s as a village folk dance in an area of what is now Czechoslovakia, is now enjoying popular appeal.

Telephone Hotline Caters To Children

CHICAGO (AP) - A 4-year-old left alone with his 2-year-old brother is in trouble: the younger child has cut his leg and the older boy doesn't know what to do.
 For him, and what some see as a burgeoning number of "latchkey kids," the answer is Kids Line, a 24-hour telephone counseling service for children 13 and under.

Volunteers for the hotline, which receives an estimated 18,000 calls a year, must be ready to field problems ranging from loneliness to danger.
 "Some of them just blow my socks off," said Lorraine LaSusa, executive director of the hotline based in the Chicago suburb of Elk Grove Village.
 The mother of five said her concern for children left at home alone prompted her to organize the hotline in August 1983.
 "We started off immediately getting unbelievable calls," she said in a recent interview.
 Kids Line is non-profit and supported by money from federal, state, and local governments, the United Way and other sources, said Mrs. LaSusa. Today, there are similar programs nationwide, including one each in Arizona, New York, Florida, New Jersey, North Carolina and Oklahoma.
 Each day, 6 million children ages 6 through 13 are left at home alone, according to a conservative estimate by the National Institute for Latchkey Children in Washington.
 "The numbers will continue to grow because you have more and more women entering the work force," said institute co-director Lynette Long.
 Most of the calls to Kids Line are from children who are lonely and

GIFTS OF LIFE — Peggy and Bob Childress of Alum Creek, W. Va., hold a picture of their son, Bentley, who died of a rare brain disorder last month. Bentley's organs were donated to the West Virginia Transplant Program and may help several people. (AP Laserphoto)

Family's Gift Allows Others To Find Life

By A.V. GALLAGHER
Associated Press Writer
CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — Bentley Childress never met any of the people he gave life to, but because of the 24-year-old Kanawha County native, hundreds of people have a brighter future.

Childress died in February of a rare brain disorder. "He was as healthy as a horse," recalled his mother, Peggy Childress, a clerk at the state Supreme Court.

He suffered severe headaches over the weekend before his death, then collapsed. He died at home about noon on a Tuesday.

Mrs. Childress said she and her husband, Bob, decided to fulfill their son's request that his body be used to help others. They called the West Virginia Transplant Program. "Bentley had wanted to do this," she said.

"Both kidneys were successfully transplanted and functioned immediately," the Childresses were told by Michael Gann, transplant coordinator for the program.

"A New Orleans man, 45 years old and the father of two children, was the recipient of one," Gann wrote to the parents.

"The other kidney went to a lady in Charlotte, N.C., who is 35 years of age. It was her second transplant as she was very ill. Both kidney recipients are free from dialysis and recovering very well.

"The heart recipient was a 56-year-old man in Pittsburgh who has suffered a severe heart disease. This father of two is doing great and will go home in just a few days.

"A gentleman 50 years of age received the liver when he was only hours from dying.

"Literally upwards of two hundred individuals may benefit from the bone and other tissue. Bone is processed in a way which will be used to correct spinal deformities and trauma as well as in orthopedic surgery to correct malformed and injured bones of the legs, arms, hips, etc.

"Skin will save the lives of those who have been victims of severe burns. Corneas will give sight to two blind individuals. Bone marrow will assist in treatment of leukemia."

Gann said he wanted to express the recipients', as well as his own, appreciation.

"As you see, the precious gifts you offered in Bentley's behalf have had an enormous impact on the lives of others. You were compassionate and unselfish in your own time of tremendous sorrow. For that, and on behalf of the grateful recipients and their families, I am sincerely grateful."

The Medical Eye Bank of West Virginia Inc. told the family that both corneas were used to restore the sight of two people who were blind.

"You can literally touch a couple of hundred people through such a donation," Gann said.

His group obtains about 20 organ and tissue donations each year. Some are arranged by families while others call his office and sign up for the program. A note is made on the person's driver's license.

"I realize your adjustment will not be an easy one," Gann wrote the Childresses, "but I hope you will take a sense of comfort in knowing just how much your decision to offer the gifts of life has meant to others."

Work On Colorado Trail May Be Completed, Finally

DENVER (AP) — Fifty-six more miles and the Colorado Trail finally will be done, after 14 years. Its 480 miles will meander among 10,000-foot mountain passes and old mining towns, historic sites and fire-blackened forestland.

"It shows the whole spectrum of the backcountry," says Gudy Gaskill, the woman in charge of getting the trail completed.

The trail is to stretch from southwest of Denver over the Continental Divide and down among the Rockies, then west to Durango. Only hikers and horses will be allowed on the trail.

Bill Lucas, then regional forester for the U.S. Forest Service's Rocky Mountain region, came up with the idea for the Colorado Trail back in 1973.

The Forest Service was being criticized for providing only the extremes of recreation — rugged wilderness treks or roadside camping enclaves. Families who wanted to walk in the woods without 50-pound packs had few places to go.

As Lucas met with others interested in the outdoors, his Colorado Trail idea grew. It would link major tourist centers, and a hut system would be developed so hikers wouldn't have to lug tents and stoves.

The route would pass near towns and cities often enough that hikers could easily replenish supplies. The path itself would be relatively easy to negotiate, to encourage family groups and armchair athletes to get out and take a closer look at Colorado.

The trail's route is meant to educate travelers, says Gaskill, who chairs the Colorado Mountain Club's trails and huts committee.

"There are areas close to historical sites and others close to man-made environmental damage, as well as reforestation sites where major forest fires occurred," she said. "We go near or through three ghost towns, (and) three mining towns."

The trail, built by volunteers, advanced as little as 2 miles per summer during some years. Now, spurred by the enthusiasm of Gov. Richard Lamm, the Colorado Mountain Club is gearing up to finish it in just two more seasons.

From Waterton, southwest of Denver, the trail climbs gradually over Kenosha Pass to Breckenridge. Then on to Copper Mountain, south near Leadville and past 14,000-foot peaks along the top edge of the Western Slope before turning southwest toward Durango.

At first, plans were for the Colorado Trail to be complete in 1978, two years after it was launched as one of the state's centennial-year projects. A trail foundation collected its first $150,000 easily, including a $100,000 grant from the Denver-based Gates Foundation.

Plans were for similar grants in future years, but the Gates Foundation stopped supporting the trail after its first grant. "It was conditioned on their making progress, and their progress didn't warrant further grants," a spokesman once explained.

Mayo "Butch" Sontermeyer, a Fort Collins lawyer who served on the trail foundation board, explained: "Everybody seemed to think the trail would get done quickly and that it would have something for everybody. When it didn't, people got discouraged."

"We had money, but it was going to administrative salaries, phone bills and office rent — not to building the trail."

About the time the trail foundation fell apart, leaving $10,000 or so left in a bank account, Gaskill got involved.

Many say Gaskill's work saved the Colorado Trail. Having seen that money alone wouldn't get the trail built, she set to work collecting people's time.

She estimates the U.S. Forest Service might spend $8,000 or more for each mile of such a trail. Using volunteer labor, she is able to get the work done for $500 a mile — the cost of groceries to feed them, she said.

Gaskill, 59, organizes the volunteer trail crews that clear a mile of trail a week. In the off-season, she raises money to pay for the crews' rations.

This year, Gaskill hopes to lure 350 volunteers to work on crews in one-week stints from June 7 through Labor Day.

Last fall, Lamm and his wife, Dottie, gave a weekend doing the sort of work summer volunteers perform. They hacked and chopped and dug and dragged material to clear part of the trail near Twin Lakes.

Trail-blazing expertise is not required of volunteers. They are provided a leader, base camp, food and most equipment.

"All they really have to do is bring a sleeping bag or tent and commit themselves to a week," says Gaskill. Four days a week — Monday and Tuesday, Thursday and Friday — go into trail work, and the other three days are free.

Most Wednesdays, the group uses the day off to scale a nearby mountain peak.

When the Colorado Trail is finally complete, Gaskill said service clubs and other groups will be asked to adopt certain sections and become responsible for their maintenance.

Then, Gaskill says, she'd like to get started with some side trails, loops through special areas that would make the trail even better.

Eds: Prospective volunteers may write to: Trail Crew Coordinator, Colorado Mountain Club, 2530 W. Alameda, Denver, Colo. 80219.

Finger Counting May Be Helpful

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Teachers should encourage children to count on their fingers as a way to develop basic math skills, says a psychologist.

"I think teachers may be making a mistake by discouraging the children from using the fingers," said Robert S. Siegler, professor of psychology and education at Carnegie-Mellon University.

"Teachers may in fact slow down the children's learning. You may actually be undercutting the very goal you've been seeking." Finger counting, in fact, is "a very elegant process," he said.

"The more accurately they use the strategy, the faster it's going to become obsolete. When you use the fingers accurately, you get correct answers and when you get correct answers, you learn," he said in a telephone interview Thursday.

Siegler's conclusions, reported in a number of technical articles and his book, "Children's Thinking," published by Prentice-Hall, could have applications outside arithmetic, he said.

"We see exactly the same kind of patterns emerging in beginning reading with sounding out words, looking up words in the dictionary, writing words in different ways to see which is right," he said.

Universe May Be 16 Billion Years Old

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — The universe is at least 16 billion years old and will keep expanding eternally, an astrophysicist has concluded from observing distant galaxies.

The age of the universe and whether it will keep growing or eventually collapse upon itself have been subjects of great debate in the scientific community.

Donald Hamilton of the National Optical Astronomy Observatories said that he has studied distant elliptical galaxies and judged their age from their color and their distance from Earth in light years.

From the reddish colors of the galaxies observed, Hamilton determined their ages to be about 8 billion years old, plus or minus 2 billion years, based on what is known from star formation.

He said the galaxies were 8 billion years away in time, or 8 billion light-years in distance. Light travels at the speed of 186,282 miles per second.

"Add the distance and that sets the minimum age of the universe," he said.

Hamilton said he used 4-meter telescopes at the Kitt Peak National Observatory southwest of Tucson and the Cerro Tololo Inter-American Observatory in Chile.

He compared the colors in the distant elliptical galaxies he chose with those in similar elliptical galaxies relatively close — about 500 million years away — which were of similar coloration.

Scientists have determined that young stars, those in the first few billion years of existence, are bluish in color. The older stars are, the redder they become.

In addition, elliptical galaxies are those believed to have formed most of their stars early, while spiral galaxies are believed to have continuing star formation.

He also concluded from his age finding that two mathematical factors led to the conclusion that the universe is "open" and will continue expanding forever. The factors deal with the distance between galaxies versus the velocity of their expansion, and how much matter there is in the universe.

Astronomers have speculated that the universe is between 10 billion and 20 billion years old, and "Hamilton's assertion that it is at least 16 billion years old is a big narrowing down of this uncertainty," said Sandra Faber, an astronomer at the Lick Observatory south of San Francisco.

Sicily May Get Its Bridge — Yet

By FRANCES D'EMILIO
Associated Press Writer
MESSINA, Sicily (AP) — After a century of talk, the government has decided to stitch Sicily to the rest of Italy, with planners favoring building the world's longest single-span suspension bridge.

The people of Calabria, the toe of the Italian boot, and of Sicily have heard about such ambitions for so long that the expression "when they build the bridge" has become the equivalent of "don't hold your breath."

Here, in one of Western Europe's most underdeveloped regions, there is widespread belief that the bridge, if ever built, might benefit organized crime and corrupt politicians more than the people.

Ancient Greek mariners cursed the 20-mile-long Strait of Messina, whose fickle currents gave rise to the mythological Scylla and Charybdis, the rock and the whirlpool.

Italy has been contemplating building a bridge at the strait's narrowest, two-mile wide, part since shortly after Giuseppe Garibaldi landed in Sicily in 1860 to complete the unification of the nation.

In December, Premier Bettino Craxi signed a document calling for a link to the mainland by 1996 and pledged to speed Italy's bureaucracy to keep to the timetable.

Although a tunnel is still a possibility, the government has indicated a bridge will almost certainly be the choice when the selection is announced later this year.

At more than 2 miles, the bridge would be more than double the length of the longest existing single span, the Humber Estuary Bridge in Britain.

The bridge would carry trains running along two tracks between six lanes of highway.

Now trains between Rome and Palermo interrupt their journey for an hour while rail cars are loaded on state-owned ferries. Private ferries also carry people, cars and trucks loaded with Sicilian citrus and manufactured goods to the north.

Engineers say the bridge would withstand winds up to 190 mph or an earthquake stronger than the one that destroyed most of Messina in 1908.

Craxi says it should spur the growth of business and tourism in the south.

But some critics say the projected $3 billion cost should go instead toward better housing or a power system that doesn't fail with every storm.

Giuseppe Piazza, now a municipal comptroller, was a city councilman in 1957 in Villa San Giovanni, the small city that would be at the Calabrian end of the bridge. "The people then were against the bridge," he recalls.

Today, he says, "the people still don't believe the state really has their interests at heart."

The south is dotted with reminders of unkept promises.

About 20 miles north of where the bridge would begin in Calabria is Gioia Tauro, site of a port that cost the state hundreds of millions of dollars but was never opened. To make way for the port, citrus groves were destroyed and along with them, the livelihood of those who worked them.

To build the bridge, homes would have to be destroyed to make room for approach ramps and exits. Bulldozers would cut into steep, terraced hillsides where goats graze and grape vines are tended, to create room for a winding railroad track. The train from Rome now travels on a track far below.

Some see opportunity in the would-be bridge, a chance to reduce the south's unemployment, running about double the national average of about 10 percent.

Giuseppe Naro, president of the province of Messina, envisions the south's largest metropolis, embracing 700,000 people. Pointing out that Reggio has an airport, he imagines the area a major hub of transportation.

But to reach Reggio's airport, taxis must leave the highway and drive down a winding, one-lane street.

Tests Slated

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Sen. Paula Hawkins, R-Fla., who suffers chronic back pain, will check into a North Carolina hospital for a spinal test this week after the Senate leaves for its Easter break, an aide said.

If surgery is recommended it may be performed Saturday, said spokesman Bill Hart. He said Mrs. Hawkins will check into Duke University Hospital in Durham, N.C., after the Senate adjourns. The recess is scheduled to begin Thursday.

Dr. Blaine S. Nashold, a neurosurgeon and co-founder of Duke's pain clinic, said last month that a myelogram was essential to determine if Mrs. Hawkins would be helped by disc surgery. A myelogram involves injecting dye into the spinal column to reveal otherwise indiscernible disc fractures or scar tissue that could put pressure on a spinal nerve.

Nashold has said the senator would need about a month to recover.

How They Voted

WASHINGTON — Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll-call votes during the week ending March 21.

House
NICARAGUA — The House rejected, 210 for and 222 against, President Reagan's request for $100 million in foreign aid for the "contra" army that is battling the Marxist Sandinista government of Nicaragua.

About $70 million of the total was for arms and some $30 million was earmarked for non-lethal purposes. Congress last year cleared $27 million in humanitarian aid to the Nicaragua rebels, but has not voted new military aid since 1973, when it approved $24 million that was funneled to the counter-revolutionaries through the CIA.

Despite this vote, foes and supporters of the president predicted Congress later this year will approve additional money for the contras, although with more restrictions than Reagan wants. Another House vote and a Senate vote are to be conducted in upcoming weeks.

Supporter Bill McCollum, R-Fla., said that if left unchecked the Sandinista government "will spread its revolution and terrorism to its neighbors and ultimately to the United States. Policies of continued negotiation only play into the hands of the communists in Nicaragua and the policy of containment simply cannot work in this case."

Opponent Howard Wolpe, D-Mich., said the Reagan Administration "is engaged in the buildup of a permanent military presence in Central America right now, and additional aid to the contras is only another step in the escalation of America's military involvement in the region and the steady march toward war."

Members voting yes supported Reagan's request for $100 million in aid to the Nicaraguan contras.

North Carolina representatives voting yes were William Cobey, R-4; Howard Coble, R-6; Alex McMillan, R-9; James Broyhill, R-10, and Bill Hendon, R-11.

Those representatives voting no were Walter Jones, D-1; Tim Valentine, D-2; Charles Whitley, D-3; Stephen Neal, D-5; Charles Rose, D-7, and W.G. Hefner, D-8.

TO BE ENTITLED — By a vote of 144 for and 252 against, the House rejected an amendment to put a pay-as-you-go fiscal foundation under a new federal program to compensate Americans victimized by terrorism overseas.

The amendment sought to subject the program to the annual congressional budget and appropriations process. Its defeat left intact an entitlement program under which payments to beneficiaries are to be automatic and undisciplined by congressional budget ceilings.

The vote occurred during debate on HR 4151, a wide-ranging anti-terrorism bill, later sent to the Senate, that authorizes $4.4 billion for such purposes as toughening security at American embassies and compensating the 52 Americans held hostage in Iran six years ago.

In addition to aiding the Iranian victims, the bill creates a structure of direct payments and medical and educational benefits for government employees and their families who suffer at the hands of foreign terrorists.

Robert Walker, R-Pa., who sponsored the amendment to subject these payments to annual congressional oversight, said, "This is not the time to foist upon the American taxpayer a new entitlement program. It is time to stick with the regular appropriations process."

Opponent Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo., said, "This is not a huge entitlement. We do not know that it will ever cost anything ... But let us be able to say as the U.S. Congress to people working for this government: 'If something happens to you, we are going to take care of your family ...'"

Members voting no favored the new entitlement program.

North Carolina representatives voting yes were Cobey, Coble and Broyhill.

Those voting no were Jones, Valentine, Whitley, Neal, Rose, Hefner, McMillan and Hendon.

Senate
FEDERAL JUDGE NOMINEE — By a vote of 52 for and 42 against, the Senate confirmed the nomination of Sidney A. Fitzwater, 32, as a federal district judge for the Northern District of Texas.

Although most federal court nominations breeze through the Senate confirmation process with a minimum of scrutiny by either the Judiciary Committee or the full Senate, this one was disputed because of Fitzwater's involvement in a Dallas electoral incident.

While a state judge up for re-election, Fitzwater on the eve of 1982 voting put up large signs in poor neighborhoods that warned against violating the Texas election code. Critics said the signs misstated Texas law and were designed to intimidate minority voters.

Supporter Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., said, "If you are against the man, of course, you can always find some reason to be against him. You do not want Mr. Reagan to appoint him. That is the whole thing."

Opponent Joseph Biden, D-Del., said Fitzwater has failed "to exercise the necessary judgment or temperament to qualify him to serve in the special and trusted position of a federal court judge."

Senators voting yes favored the nomination.

North Carolina Sens. John East, R, and Jesse Helms, R, both voted yes.

Cameroon Rare Example Of Success In Africa

YAOUNDE, Cameroon (AP) — Cameroon is an economic rarity in Africa. It feeds itself, has a balanced budget and shows a trade surplus.

But some Cameroonians complain that government reforms and development have been slow despite the promises of President Paul Biya when he took over from an authoritarian leader four years ago.

The economic successes are largely due to the conservative handling of oil revenues, especially at a time when falling petroleum prices have left other producer-nations in economic difficulty.

"We learned from the experiences of others that made oil the mainstay of their economies," said Mines and Power Minister Michael Kima Tabong, who noted in an interview that agriculture remains the country's top development priority.

Oil production has increased from an annual 5 million barrels in 1978, to over 60 million barrels in 1984, or about 155,000 barrels a day. The country now is said to be producing as much as 185,000 barrels a day.

Biya's government, in power since the retirement of Ahmadou Ahidjo in 1982, has maintained his predecessor's policy of withholding most of the petroleum revenues from the annual budgets.

The funds, kept in offshore accounts, are used sparingly as supplements to the regular budget, and to fund transportation, communications, health and education projects, or to subsidize the development of agriculture.

Roughly 80 percent of Cameroon's 10 million people derive their support from agriculture which continues from pre-oil days to be the economy's backbone, employing about 70 percent of the active labor force.

The varied climate and terrain of this central African country, which is slightly larger than California, allow for the production of a wide selection of grains, root crops, vegetables and cash crops such as cocoa, coffee, cotton, and rubber.

A study commissioned by a consortium of international banks said total export earnings figures for 1984, the latest available, were estimated at around $2.16 billion, with petroleum making up $1.4 billion, cocoa $246 million, coffee $147 million, and the rest derived from aluminum, timber, other cash crops, and manufactured goods. The country has a gross domestic product growth rate of about 7 percent a year.

But Biya has drawn criticism from Cameroonians and foreign businessmen who say his moves to liberalize the economy and eliminate the bureaucracy and corruption of the previous regime have been more talk than action.

Western businessmen commonly complain their applications for work permits and other official authorizations must pass through several layers of bureaucracy at three or four ministries, a costly and time-consuming process.

Edouard Nomo Ongolo, former head of a major Cameroonian bank and now minister of commerce and industry, says he too is frustrated by the bureaucratic delays in his and other ministries.

"We are in a stage of development, and are trying to improve things, but everyone has his own opinion about what should be done," he said.

He added that many investment and development decisions are now being taken in the provincial capitals, bypassing the bureaucratic logjam in Yaounde, the capital.

Biya has substantially expedited road and school projects that during Ahidjo's tenure were limited primarily to the port of Douala, Yaounde and Ahidjo's home region in the North.

Immature Cancer Cells May Lead To Healthy Cells

By MALCOLM RITTER
AP Science Writer

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — In a process a bit like making a juvenile delinquent grow up to become a responsible citizen, researchers are experimenting with turning cancerous, immature body cells into non-cancerous adults.

If the approach works, it might be useful in conjunction with surgery and standard chemotherapy, which seeks to kill cancer cells rather than mending their ways, said Dr. Paul Marks, president of the Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center in New York City.

Research has already shown people can tolerate one maturation drug without side effects, and another study is just starting to see if the substance works in people as it has in the laboratory, Marks told a science writers seminar sponsored by the American Cancer Society on Monday.

The approach is based on the idea that many kinds of cancer involve cells that are blocked from leaving an immature stage of development, he said. As such, they rapidly divide and don't take on the characteristic specialization of mature cells.

For example, some laboratory experiments have used mouse leukemia cells that were blocked by a virus on their way to becoming mature red blood cells. Most human cells have reached the mature state, but immature cells stand by to replace them as they wear out, Marks said.

"I think that most tumors do appear to be blocked in their normal (cell) development," he said in an interview. But Marks said it's hard to predict what kind of cancers will respond to the maturation therapy.

The cells don't become entirely normal adults during therapy, but they do acquire some adult characteristics, and, most importantly, they stop their rapid, cancerous proliferation, he said.

Research with a maturation-promoting substance called hexamethylene bisacetamide has shown it affects a cancer cell's genes, the blueprints of every cell. Scientists found that after treatment the genes related to growth were turned down or off, while those involved in the mature roles of specialization were turned on.

Scientists don't yet know why that occurs, Marks said.

Human experiments with the substance have found that people can tolerate the same concentrations of it in their blood that were sufficient to produce results in the laboratory, Marks said. Those levels produced no side effects in people.

Laboratory experiments show that the substance could induce all but a tiny fraction of cancer cells to enter adult-like stages. On the other hand, it doesn't seem to prod normal immature cells into development, said Marks.

The new human trials, aimed at looking for evidence of maturation in cancer cells, will be done using people with a form of leukemia and others with bladder cancer, he said. Those cancers were chosen because the cancerous cells can be observed without inconvenience to the patient.

It will take at least a year to obtain firm results, Marks said.

Similar experiments may be done with colon cancer, a more common disease that would allow scientists to study the therapy's effects at various stages of the illness.

While maturation therapy won't replace surgery in fighting cancer, it may find a role in combination with standard chemotherapy or substances that alert the body's immune system to fight cancer, Marks said. It may also turn out to be handy for mopping up residual cancer after surgery has removed a tumor.

Dr. Robert Hutter, chairman of the pathology department at St. Barnabas Medical Center in Livingston, N.J., said researchers have tried for years to force maturation in cancer cells, but "we haven't had a great deal of success."

Marks' work "shows he has identified a mechanism with a genetic understanding of what's happening" in maturation, he said.

The agent Marks has been testing won't be ready for therapeutic use for some time, but "it's a start," he said.

Snuff May Increase Chance Of Cancer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Long-time snuff users may face a 50 times greater risk of cancer of the cheek and gum than non-users, Surgeon General C. Everett Koop said today in a report condemning both snuff and chewing tobacco as addictive cancer risks.

Koop's report was prepared by a 12-member advisory committee based on studies by about 75 scientists and medical experts. It amounts to formal declaration by the government that snuff and chewing tobacco, which are rapidly growing in popularity among young people, must be placed in the same category as cigarettes as a public health threat.

"The committee concludes that the oral use of smokeless tobacco represents a significant health risk," the surgeon general's report said. "It is not a safe substitute for smoking cigarettes. It can cause cancer and a number of non-cancerous oral conditions and can lead to nicotine addiction and dependence."

A draft copy of the report was being released on Capitol Hill today by Sen. Orrin G. Hatch, R-Utah, chairman of the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee.

The same conclusions have been reached by others, and Koop has informally condemned both snuff and chewing tobacco before. The new report, however, formally adopts the findings as the position of the surgeon general and the Public Health Service.

"Almost 30 years after the Public Health Service's first statement on the health effects of cigarette smoking, it is now possible to issue the first comprehensive, in-depth review of the relationship between smokeless tobacco use and health," Koop said in a forward to the report.

"It is critical that our society prevents the use of this health hazard and avoids the tragic mistake of replacing the ashtray with the spittoon," he said.

The surgeon general said scientific evidence is strongest against snuff, with studies suggesting users will get mouth cancers "several times more frequently ... compared to non-tobacco users."

"The excess risk of cancer of the cheek and gum may reach nearly fiftyfold among long-time snuff users," the report said.

It said use of chewing tobacco "may also increase the risk of oral cancer, but the evidence is not as strong and the risks have yet to be quantified."

Both products contain potent cancer-causing agents, however, the report said, including nitrosamines, hydrocarbons and radioactive polonium. The nitrosamine levels may reach 100 times the level allowed in foods, it said.

Both snuff and chewing tobacco can lead to formation of oral leukoplakias, white patches on the gum that sometimes become cancerous, it said. And gum damage "is a commonly reported outcome" of use.

The report also concluded that snuff and chewing tobacco can be addictive. The conclusion is based on addiction studies of nicotine and cigarettes; the surgeon general said smokeless tobacco causes about the same increase in nicotine levels in the body as do cigarettes.

The report was prepared because of the growing popularity of snuff and chewing tobacco, particularly among children and teen-agers.

The report said recent national data suggest that more than 12 million people used some form of smokeless tobacco last year, with about half of those using the products weekly or more often.

The highest rates are among teen-age and young adult males, the report said.

Nuclear Plant Stirs Debate In Britain

By LARRY THORSON
Associated Press Writer
RAVENGLASS, England (AP) — Some here fear the nuclear plant. Others are proud of it. There's even a bit of gallows humor — a young mother showing off her infant in a pub asks with a laugh, "How's that for a good-looking radioactive baby?"

"But many only see 11,000 jobs going down the drain if the giant Sellafield nuclear reprocessing plant, focus of a quickening national debate, is shut down because of radiation dangers.

"Here on the Cumbrian coast, some grumble about environmentalists campaigning to close the facility, biggest of its kind in the world.

"The fish business here has gone to hell," said Paul Pedersen, a fisherman in this village just six miles from the plant.

"There's plenty of fish but you can't sell a one here. It happened when that bloody, rotten Greenpeace came. They only do damage, that's what they live for."

In late 1983 the Greenpeace environmentalist group sent boats to the coast to protest the accidental discharge of highly radioactive fluids into the Irish Sea via a pipeline that was supposed to carry only low-level radioactive waste.

The Greenpeace boats became contaminated, thus revealing that the waste was washing back toward shore rather than dispersing on the seabed.

The bottom dropped out of the tourism business along this scenic shoreline 200 miles northwest of London. And Pedersen saw his sales of fish drop to zero in one day.

The ruddy-faced immigrant from Denmark recently reached retirement age, 65, and now is not too worried about the fish business. But since he still eats the fish he catches from near the radioactive-waste pipeline, he is tested periodically for radiation in his body.

He used to test at about half the limit, he said, but now is down to about a quarter. "They're doing something better now," he said, returning to the plant management's efforts to reduce radioactive discharges.

As a public issue, the nuclear complex, which has both a power plant and a reprocessing unit, had been relatively quiet for two years, until Feb. 5, when at least 11 workers were contaminated by a plutonium-bearing mist from a leaking pump. Two weeks later, another accident involving low-radioactivity water slightly contaminated two workers.

British Nuclear Fuels, the government-owned company that runs the plant, said neither incident endangered the public and no one was seriously injured.

But coming atop a disclosure that emissions from the plant had been underestimated by a factor of 40 during a three-year period in the 1950s, the incidents caused the government to order an inquiry into safety, maintenance, management and operating procedures at the mile-square complex.

Results of the inquiry are expected in six months, but meanwhile Environment Minister William Waldegrave defended the plant's safety record. He noted that some of its equipment is aging and "there will be some problems from time to time. We have to keep a sense of proportion about them."

On Wednesday, the House of Commons Environment Committee issued its own report on Sellafield, saying persistent leaks have made the Irish Sea "the most radioactive sea in the world." But the committee's Conservative chairman, Sir Hugh Rossi, said the evidence indicates no danger to public health.

In a district with a population of 70,000, the plant provides 11,000 jobs — 6,500 in the plant itself, about 500 physicists from Britain's Atomic Energy Authority, and over 4,000 construction workers building an addition to expand the reprocessing capacity.

As its 400-foot exhaust towers and massive cooling towers dominate the seaside view, so does its $3-million weekly payroll dominate the local economy. And the argument has wider ramifications, since the Sellafield plant is an integral part of Britain's energy strategy.

The plutonium that the reprocessing facility extracts from spent nuclear fuel will be used in advanced "fast-breeder" nuclear reactors planned for Western Europe. It reprocesses or stores spent fuel elements not only from Britain, but also from five other European countries and Japan.

A British newspaper once said the plant made Britain "the nuclear dustbin of the world," but its defenders say it will earn the country $3.9 billion of foreign exchange in 10 years and put Britain in the forefront of nuclear technology.

Sellafield's only competitor is a facility in France. The United States decided against building a commercial reprocessing plant in the late 1970s.

In the town of Whitehaven, 10 miles north of Sellafield, three women posted themselves in an open-air Saturday market recently with signs saying "Let's have a chat about Sellafield, we won't bite" and "What price kids? Genetic abnormalities?"

Within minutes all three environmental activists were engaged in arguments with youngsters and adults.

"You're just going to take away all the jobs here. The plant has been here for 35 years, and nobody has been killed, there are no abnormalities," said Gary Flynn, one of four 16-year-old boys berating the women.

One of the women shot back, "You're a growing man, your genetic system is being changed all the time."

Jimmy Johnston, an administrator at the nuclear plant and a district council member, said the current government inquiry "obviously will make or break confidence in the industry."

Yesterdays Cryptiquip: OUR MILD METEOROLOGIST RESIGNED, HE WAS ABOUT TO BE WEATHER-BEATEN.

Today's Cryptiquip clue: H equals I
 The Cryptiquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

FORECAST FOR THURS., MARCH 27, 1986

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Until noon, you have a big chance to contact those persons you would like to have for associates, and, by your own cleverness, make them partners for some time to come.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) The morning is fine for reaching new accord with associates and then get busy handling your part of any deal.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Make your surroundings neater and more harmonious during the daytime. Improve your relationship with co-workers.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Complete matters of a policy nature, and then work on improving natural talents. Be kind with a good friend.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Take time to brighten up your home in the morning, and then later show your finest talents to prominent persons.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) You can communicate well with others in the morning, and later do likewise with family. Show more affection for them.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Put those added touches to your home and make it look more charming in the morning. Study your financial status.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) An ideal morning to pursue whatever you desire the most and gain it if you are more practical.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Devise a new course that can bring you greater prosperity in the morning, and then later start putting it to the test.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Ask those persons who can assist you in gaining personal goals in the morning, and they are willing to help you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Bring your talents to the attention of a bigwig you know and you find out how best to utilize them.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) One from a distance is very cooperative and gives good ideas for your advancement. Get the okay from an expert for them.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) See what it is in the morning that your mate expects of you and try to please. Later seek out those who can add to your knowledge.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she can understand others and want to be helpful to them in gaining goals, so be sure at school that subjects are given along such lines. Upon reaching adulthood, your progeny will know what motivates others and would do well in investigative or research work.

 Opening lead: Four of ♣

When you are playing a cross-ruff, don't send a boy to do a man's job. Trump as high as you can safely afford.

North-South bid well to reach a good club slam. When North showed a distributional hand by removing three no trump to four clubs, South felt his prime controls merited a jump to slam.

West led a spade, and declarer took time out to consider his lines of play. He had available finesses in both red suits and a choice of plays in the trump suit. Despite the fact he had only four winners in the side suits, declarer decided he would spurn all finesses and, instead, try to score eight trump tricks on a cross-ruff.

He won the opening lead in dummy, crossed to the ace of diamonds and discarded a diamond on the ace of spades. A diamond was ruffed low in dummy, the ace of hearts was cashed and a heart was ruffed low in the closed hand. Except for the queen, all of declarer's trumps were now high.

Declarer ruffed a diamond on the table, and the crucial moment had arrived. Had declarer continued with a heart and ruffed with the ten, West would have overruffed and returned a trump, and declarer would have been a trick short. But declarer took care to ruff the heart with the king of trumps, and it made no difference what West discarded. A spade was ruffed on the board, declarer returned to hand by ruffing a heart with the ace of trumps and he could claim his contract.

Declarer's last three cards were a diamond and the jack-ten of trumps. Dummy held the nine of trumps and two hearts. Declarer simply led his diamond and ruffed, and the defenders could score no more than the queen of trumps.

Mob Boss Sentenced To Prison

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A reputed organized leader from Chicago was sentenced today to 28½ years in prison for his conviction on charges of skimming untaxed gambling proceeds from Las Vegas casinos.

John P. Cerone, 71, described by the government as the underboss of the Chicago mob, was the first of five men convicted on Jan. 21 to be sentenced by U.S. District Judge Joseph E. Stevens Jr.

Stevens ordered a four-year term on a count of conspiracy plus 3½ years on each of seven other counts of traveling in interstate commerce to carry out the alleged conspiracy. The sentences are to be served consecutively.

The maximum prison sentence on the eight counts would have been 40 years.

Stevens also ordered Cerone to pay the maximum $80,000 in fines, $10,000 on each count; to pay $30,750.50 in restitution to the Nevada Gaming Control Board; and to pay $32,614.73 as his share of the cost of prosecuting the case.

Cerone's attorneys had asked the judge for less than the maximum sentence, saying that anything beyond five years would have the effect of a life sentence on their client.

Cerone and four other reputed organized crime leaders were convicted of conspiring to gain hidden control of Las Vegas casinos and skimming $2 million in unreported gambling proceeds.

Three more defendants are to be sentenced this week: Carl Angelo DeLuna, 58, of Kansas City, who pleaded guilty during the trial; Milton Rockman, 74, of Cleveland; and Angelo LaPietra, 66, of Chicago.

The sentencing of Joseph J. Aiuppa, 78, the alleged Chicago mob boss, and Joseph Lombardo, 58, of Chicago, was delayed until next month because their lawyers are involved in other trials.

Monkeys Seen

PEKING (AP) — About 20 rare, short-tailed monkeys have been spotted on Mount Huangshan, a tourist spot in the eastern province of Anhui, the official Xinhua news agency said.

The short-tailed monkey imitates human gestures and has been mistaken for a "wildman" whom legends say inhabits the Xhenngongjia mountains of Hubei province, which is next to Anhui province.

Xinhua said scientists working in a joint Chinese-Japanese exploration discovered the monkeys.

Poles Fight Back Against Heroin Addiction

By MATTHEW C. VITA
Associated Press Writer

BIALYSTOK, Poland (AP) — In summer, Polish farmlands sparkle with bright, red poppy flowers that peasants have been growing for centuries to make delicious poppy seed cakes and puddings.

In recent years, the poppy also has been the primary source of a home-brewed, heroin-like drug called compote that has made drug addiction one of the country's greatest social problems, especially among youth.

The government estimates there are 200,000 habitual drug users in Poland, although unofficial sources say there are two to three times as many. Seventy-five percent are under the age of 25 and 40 percent are younger than 20, according to press reports.

In 1978 there were 18 recorded deaths caused by drug overdose; by 1983, there were 102. The number reportedly grew to more than 200 last year.

The Communist Party Politburo in October said drug addiction among young people was growing and called it the greatest health threat to Polish youth after alcoholism.

Przeгляд Katolicki, the official newspaper of the Roman Catholic Church in Warsaw, wrote last month that drugs are an escape for a generation facing political and economic uncertainty.

"The current situation of deep economic crisis, which makes it impossible to realize the most basic goals of life, creates a social climate for the development of addictions," it said.

In a farmhouse in the countryside 10 miles outside Bialystok, a city in northeastern Poland, live 35 young drug addicts who are trying to do something about the problem.

They are participants in a four-year-old government-funded program called MONAR that operates 14 treatment centers where drug addicts live, work and are forced to face up to their addiction through group pressure and discussion.

The story of how Iwona Madra, a thoughtful, 26-year-old woman, began taking compote at the age of 18 was typical.

"It was just curiosity," she said, sitting in the farmhouse living room in a discussion group. "The group in my town that took drugs was different, they wore more attractive clothes. It helped me escape from reality, from my life."

"When I thought about addiction, I said, 'No, not me.'"

"But then I started looking around me," she continued. "More and more of my friends my age already had husbands, families and children. And I was doing nothing."

Miss Madra checked into MONAR late last year.

Unmowed or littered lawns should be reported to the City Engineering and Inspections Department at 752-4137.

Thru Mar. 29, we will redeem national manufacturer's cents off coupons up to 50¢ for double their value. Offer good on national manufacturer's coupons only. (Food retailer coupons not accepted.) Customer must purchase coupon product in specified size. Expired coupons will not be honored. Coupons for free merchandise excluded from this offer. Offer does not apply to Kroger or other store coupons whether manufacturer is mentioned or not. When the value of a coupon exceeds 50¢, this offer is limited to $1.00. If double the value of a coupon exceeds the value of the item, this offer is limited to the retail price. Limit one cigarette or coffee coupon per customer. Limit one coupon for any one particular item. If you, for example, have two coupons for 15¢ off on Miracle Whip and intend to purchase two jars of Miracle Whip, only one of these coupons will be doubled. You may use the second coupon, but its face value remains at face value.

Pharmacy Manager of the Year
St. Petersburg, FL

From Your Eckerd Pharmacist

Providing for your new baby is a tremendous job. Your Eckerd Pharmacist offers our Baby Bundle Club to make that job a little easier. With it, you'll save on nursery products, vaporizers, feeding accessories and all Eckerd Brand baby products. Join at your Eckerd pharmacy today.

With National Poison Prevention Week in mind, your Eckerd Pharmacist reminds you that an estimated 130,000 children under the age of five will ingest something poisonous this year. Childproof your house. Properly label and, if possible, lock up all household cleaning products and medicines, even if they are in safety containers. Be aware of the symptoms of poisoning: if your child vomits, appears sluggish or drowsy for no reason, has an unusual breath odor or has an unknown substance on teeth or around the mouth, contact your doctor, poison control center or your Eckerd Pharmacist immediately.

To an Eckerd Pharmacist, nothing's more important than your health.
