Known Terrorist Rode Plane Before Explosion

By The Associated Press
A known Arab terrorist occupied the seat of a TWA jet where a bomb exploded during a later flight to Greece, tearing open the cabin and killing four Americans, Italian officials said today.

After meeting with Premier Bettino Craxi, Interior Minister Oscar Luigi Scalfaro told reporters, "It is certain that a suspect person, who is on file as a terrorist, got on in Cairo and got off in Athens, occupying in the airplane the exact seat where the explosion occurred."

The Boeing 727 on Wednesday flew from Cairo, Egypt, to Athens, Greece, and then to Rome. There it picked up 112 passengers and headed back to Athens as TWA Flight 840, ultimately bound for Cairo.

The bomb exploded as the jetliner approached Athens airport from Rome, and the four victims were sucked out of the plane, flying at about 15,000 feet.

An Egyptian security official at Cairo International Airport said that after the explosion, Egyptian authorities checked the names of passengers who boarded in Cairo and "we had no suspicion about anyone on the list." The official spoke on condition of anonymity.

In other developments today: — Palestinian sources in Beirut said a little-known group that claimed it staged the attack, the Arab Revolutionary Cells, was associated with Abu Nidal, whose group was blamed by the United States for the Dec. 27 massacres at the Rome and Vienna airports in which 20 people died, including five Americans.

— In Athens, TWA experts, U.S. Federal Aviation Administration and FBI officials, and investigators from Greece and Italy began examining the jetliner to determine if the bomb exploded in the cargo bay or in the cabin.

Greek officials said Wednesday that the blast took place in the cargo hold, but TWA officials in New York said it was in the cabin.

The pilot, Capt. Richard Peterson, told reporters today at Athens Airport, "The explosion was above the floor. It looked like it must have been beneath a seat."

Athens airport officials said the plane's "black box," which records conversations between the pilot and the control tower, would be flown to New York for study.

The blast blew a 9-by-3-foot hole in the side of the plane in front of the right wing. TWA President Richard D. Pearson said in New York the explosion occurred on the cabin floor at row 10 or 11 of the passenger seats.

Family Doctors To Skip Babies In 29 Counties

By TOM MINEHART
Associated Press Writer
MOUNT GILEAD, N.C. (AP) — Dr. Peter Johnson, who has delivered some 1,300 babies in 10 years in this Montgomery County town, jokes and laughs with Rosemary Bernauer as he wraps a long measuring tape around the abdomen holding his 1,301st.

The baby, due this month, may also be one of his last. Quadrupling malpractice insurance premiums for North Carolina family practitioners who deliver babies may force all of them to stop deliveries this year, leaving Montgomery and 28 other counties without any obstetric service at all. About two-thirds of the doctors already have quit deliveries since July, officials say.

"We think we're providing a service, a service that also gives us a great deal of pleasure," Johnson said in an examination room filled with snapshots of the babies he has helped bring into the world. "I hate to see it go. ... It's a unique experience. You get to meet people and follow them all the way through."

Johnson, 39, said his malpractice rates would go up from $6,000 a year to more than $25,000 on Sept. 1. Most of his patients would be unable to afford a delivery at the price it would take to recoup that increase, so he says he'll have to quit deliveries unless the insurance problem changes.

"I'm telling my new patients I'll be glad to cover them till my policy lapses, then arrange for a transfer to somebody else," he said. "With those patients we've already worked up, the insurance company is allowing us to deliver those babies."

The problem is that the insurance company will lose money if it doesn't raise malpractice rates, said an official of Medical Mutual Insurance Co. of North Carolina, which has insured 75 percent of the state's family practitioners who deliver babies.

Malpractice claims against that type of doctor exploded last year, said executive vice president Douglass Phillips. Among the 148 that Medical Mutual insured, there were 12 claims, compared with a cumulative total of eight for 1975 through 1984, he said.

"Our monetary losses have gone up even more significantly than the number of claims," said Phillips. Through 1984, the company paid out only $694,000 in malpractice claims against family doctors practicing obstetrics. The 12 claims of 1985 totaled $4.3 million.

Sympathetic juries often decide in favor of a malformed child and require the defendant's insurance company to pay living expenses for most of his life, Phillips said.

"The child born with a defect is very enticing to that type of professional who makes his living off litigation," he said. "There's a great amount of income to be made."

Medical Mutual malpractice rates are going up from $4,840 to $22,126 for family practitioners who do obstetrics and who have been in practice for five years.

Family practitioners delivered some 6,000 babies in this state last year, said Sue Makey, executive director of the North Carolina Academy of Family Physicians. Figures on the number of total births for 1985 were unavailable, but there were 85,986 in 1984, according to the state Center for Health Statistics.

"Our family physicians only deliver an average of 30 babies per year," said Ms. Makey. "The difference is where they deliver — mostly in the rural areas." Most other babies are delivered by obstetricians in larger towns, she said.

Academy president Dr. C. Franklin Church, a family doctor in Raleigh, said there were about 600 family physicians delivering babies as of July 1985. By March, rising malpractice rates had whittled that number down to 222.

In addition to Montgomery, the counties that would be without obstetric care if family doctors can no longer deliver babies are: Alexander, Alleghany, Ashe, Bertie, Camden, Caswell, Clay, Currituck, Dare, Davie, Franklin, Gates, Graham, Granville, Hertford, Hoke, Hyde, Jones, McDowell, Madison, Northampton, Pamlico, Pender, Perquimans, Stokes, Swain, Tyrrell and Yancey.

PHONE SOLICITATION SUGGESTIONS

The Consumer's Resource Handbook prepared by the United States Office of Consumer Affairs offers the following suggestions for dealing with telephone solicitations:

1. Never give your credit card number over the phone unless you initiate the call.
2. Be cautious if the caller says an investment, purchase or charitable donation must be made immediately.
3. Ask who is in charge of the company or organization represented. Get specific names and titles.
4. Check with your state consumer protection office and the Better Business Bureau in the area in which the organization is located to see if any complaints have been filed. Addresses are available from the public library.

Be wary of offers of free merchandise or prizes. You may end up paying handling fees greater than the value of the gifts.

Commission Staff Backs Extended Phone Service

The Public Staff of the North Carolina Utilities Commission has recommended that the commission require Carolina Telephone to establish toll-free phone service between Grifton and Ayden and Grifton and Greenville.

It also recommended that Grifton and Ayden subscribers, the majority of whom voted for the service, be charged a higher rate, while Greenville residents, who voted in opposition, not be charged.

Some 31 Pitt County residents attended a public hearing held in Raleigh on Tuesday. Nine spoke in favor of the change while one, Nancy Colville of Greenville, expressed opposition.

Hugh Gerringer, a spokesman for the Public Staff, said, "The opposition of Greenville subscribers demonstrates again that subscribers of a larger exchange are unwilling to vote a rate increase upon themselves in order to allow a nearby community to be included in a local call to the larger exchange."

He said Greenville is Grifton's county seat and all county services are located there. He said the staff believes the public interest dictates that Extended Area Service is needed.

He said although only 25.2 percent of Greenville respondents favored the proposal, 90.6 of Grifton subscribers and 70.7 percent of Ayden subscribers indicated they want the extended service.

Because Greenville is much larger than Grifton and Ayden and can always out vote the smaller communities, he said standard ways of determining the need for Extended Area Service are not adequate to answer the public need in this case.

Ed Carter, Greenville City Council member, was among those who spoke in favor of the proposal. He said the City Council thinks it is unfortunate that Grifton citizens have to pay for long-distance calls to contact their children's school administration, the county hospital and county government.

State Sen. Tom Taft said that, "In the interest of fairness and equity, the archaic and arbitrary division should be abolished and extended area communication would give Pitt County the opportunity to operate as a cohesive unit."

State Rep. Ed Warren said it is not just Grifton area residents who would benefit from the change, but that county agencies would save money not having to pay for calls to Grifton-area clients.

Burney Tucker, a Pitt County commissioner, said the county commissioners have unanimously supported the extended area service.

Jack Derrick of Carolina Telephone said the phone company does not oppose extended area service.

County Employs Lawyer

By STUART SAVAGE

Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners on Wednesday voted to hire a Raleigh attorney to handle U.S. Justice Department preclearance of a 1967 law which added one member to the board and to serve as an adviser as the board moves toward restructuring the county's method of electing commissioners to ensure black representation on the board.

The action to hire Michael Crowell, an attorney with the Raleigh law firm of Tharrington, Smith & Hargrove came following an executive session to discuss legal issues involved with preclearance and redistricting. The same firm is representing the Pitt Board of Education in its effort to receive Justice Department preclearance on the method of electing the new consolidated board of education created to oversee operations of the merged county and city school systems.

Commissioners in early March, acting on a request by the local chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, agreed to move toward a district system which would guarantee black representation.

Then in a letter to County Attorney W.H. Watson, dated March 17, the Justice Department questioned a 1967 law which added a second member to the board from Greenville township.

"Our records fail to show that this change has been submitted ... for review as required by Section 5 of the Voting Rights Act of 1965," the letter said. "If our information is correct, it is necessary that this change either be brought before the District Court ... or submitted to the attorney general for the determination that the change does not have the purpose and will not have the effect of discriminating on account of race or color," the letter continued.

The 1967 act referred to in the letter added a sixth member to the five-member board — thus giving Greenville two representatives — to conform to the "one-man, one-vote" rule. The 1967 act did nothing to change the method of election in place since the mid-1950 under which Local officials, contractors and businesspeople gathered Wednesday at the Flowers Building for the grand opening of the first completed project under the Evergreen downtown revitalization program.

Evergreen, a non-profit citizen's organization in central city rehabilitation efforts, receives funding through a low-interest loan program arranged by the city of Greenville and four local lending institutions — NCNB, Wachovia, Branch Banking and Trust and Planters National Bank.

The completion of the Flowers Building on the corner of Evans and 14th streets marked the end of two years of renovation of the Carolina Sales Building at a cost of $2 million.

The Flowers Building, which supplies Greenville with 21,000 square feet of space, is phase one of the Flowers Office Complex, a five-building project planned by local businessman Phil Flowers. The complex will contain 100,000 square feet.

"The reason for the revitalization of downtown is to keep downtown Greenville from dying like so many other towns," Flowers said. "This is a monumental change, and we've gotten off to a good start."

Other local officials who attended the grand opening applauded the initial work of Evergreen.

"We've got a good possibility to show that downtown Greenville can make a go of it," said Ron Kimble, city finance director. "This also will lead to an increased tax base."

Kimble also said the revitalization project will not only improve the South Evans neighborhood but will improve Greenville's economy.

"This has stimulated a lot of public and private partnership and served as a catalyst to get them involved," he said. "It also provides a turnover in local economy in construction and jobs that will lead to a general growth in the economy."

State Rep. Walter Jones Jr. of Farmville, who also attended, applauded those people who have invested in the downtown area.

"Anytime anyone puts this kind of an effort into a project it shows they believe in the potential and future of the area," Jones said. "It is definitely a positive step for the people of Pitt County and the people in eastern North Carolina."

Evergreen President Dick McKee said the completion of the first project should mean a lot to Greenville residents and area businessmen.

"We hope we attract both businesses and residents. We're seeing some real work done here, and, hopefully people will see that and decide to live here," McKee said. "Since this is the first grand opening of an Evergreen sponsored development, it represents a great milestone for our city."

Homeowners Share Space With College Students

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Homesharing answered the prayers of a young wife dreading living another year in married-student housing.

It relieved the rent strain on her medical-student husband.

And for the 83-year-old diabetic widow who opened her home to the couple, it brought company and security.

Matchmaker Suzy Karberg pairs elderly central Indiana homeowners who have room to share and Purdue University students who have love to spare. So far, Karberg has logged 37 matches, all successes.

Karberg coordinates what began two years ago as a federal- and state-funded pilot program. It's now absorbed into the budget of the Lafayette-based area IV Agency on Aging and was one of only four such programs in the nation when it started.

The young couple, Pam and Mark Westfall, and the widow, Ruth Osborn, were Karberg's first match involving a married couple. Their sharing began in August 1984. Osborn was recovering from her husband Harold's death.

"The visiting nurse didn't want me to live alone," she recalls.

She moved into her home's back end, complete with private entry, kitchenette, bedroom, bath, family room and parakeet named Chipper. Pam and Mark took the front end, blending their modular couch and contemporary furniture with Osborn's antiques and family pictures telling of a century past.

"Working in a health-care facility like I do, I see a lot of older people who could live in their own home if they just had someone there," says Pam, an administrative intern in a nursing home.

One reason the elderly often run into trouble is that they eat improperly and become malnourished, Karberg says.

Osborn admits, "I'm seldom all that hungry. I'd just as soon eat this and that instead of cooking a meal just for myself."

"That's why we try to get her to eat with us when we can," Pam says.

This labor of love and care works both ways. Sometimes Osborn washes their dishes.

"They often take off for church, and I get fidgety," she says. "I don't mind doing the dishes. They have to work hard enough as it is."

She also takes comfort in knowing

"the children," as she calls them, are within calling distance.

"A night ago they thought I fell out of bed," she says. "Actually, I knocked my husband's cane down, and it made such a racket. About that time I heard Mark call. It's good to know they're there."

Mark also helps around the house with the mowing and snow shoveling, even though it's not a part of their contract.

That's just as well, because they've let their contract expire. Their relationship has grown beyond the type on a legal document.

The three agree their arrangement has worked because they didn't compromise what they really wanted during the selection process.

"At first the agency asked if I wanted to take in a boy who'd never been away from home before," Osborn says. "I said I didn't want to baby-sit."

Pam and Mark, who are gone at least nine hours a day during the week, were looking for a housemate who didn't require extensive care.

They have separate kitchens and living space connected by never-locked doors. They feel free to visit and borrow, yet respect each other's privacy.

"For example, I had stored some orange juice in their refrigerator because mine is so small," Osborn says. "One night I needed it, but Pam had company over, so I just called her on the telephone so I wouldn't disturb her company."

Each contract drawn up with Karberg's assistance is custom-made all the way down to who will provide the towels. In one case a student helps reduce his rent by house-sitting for a professor who is gone frequently and likes company when she's home. In another, the student sits with the homeowner's invalid spouse 10 hours a week.

"Our first matches enabled a lady to come home from a nursing home," Karberg recalls. "She was able to spend her last days at home because of that girl who shared her home."

"This program may not reach a large number of people, but for those that it does reach, it changes their lives."

Honey Used As Ancient Sweetening

By TOM HOGE
AP Wine and Food Writer

One of the treats I looked forward to as a boy was when my mother baked the week's bread and gave me a slice spread with a thick coating of honey. To this day, I eat pancakes with honey and spread it on homemade muffins.

This delectable syrup, made by bees from the nectar of plants, is said to be our oldest sweetener, and the only one most cooks used until modern methods of sugar refining were perfected in the 19th century.

Many Americans still use honey in making cake and puddings. And some prefer it to sugar in tea and other hot or cold drinks.

Honey was originally gathered from the hives that wild bees made in rocks and trees. In later years, the bees were encouraged to place their hives near monasteries, castles and farm gardens.

Today the honey we eat is usually taken from the hives of tame bees. It is best stored in tightly covered containers and kept in a dry place.

Honey is said to have a storage life of several months, but it is often kept much longer. I am told that oldtime German cooks refused to use honey until it had aged for about a year.

In France's Rhone Valley where bees abound, there are dozens of types of honey. Lavender honey is one of the most popular there but the bees find nectar from many other sources in the valley, including grasses and herbs. Thus the aromas of thyme, rosemary, marjoram and sage, to name a few, can be detected in Rhone Valley honey.

Here is a recipe for a honey glaze which I find good on coffee cake.

1/2 cup sugar
1/4 cup butter
1 unbeaten egg white
1/4 cup honey
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1/2 teaspoon cardamom
Cream together the sugar and butter and blend in the egg white. Add honey, lemon juice and cardamom. Mix well and spread on a 9- by 13-inch coffee cake that is ready to be baked. Place in oven preheated to 350 degrees and bake about 25 minutes.

WOMEN URGED TO STUDY MATH

BINGHAMTON, N.Y. (AP) — Societal conditioning has made women afraid of math, thus relegating them to the lowest paid sectors of the work force, believes Dolores Granito, associate professor of mathematics at the State University of New York at Binghamton.

"Women haven't come far enough to resist the 'remember, you're a girl' pressure that makes them drop out of mathematics courses as soon as their high school requirements are completed," she says.

It's more than "mathophobia," adds Granito, who is using a $50,000 grant from the New York State Education Department to launch a "More Math for More Females" project in nine upstate city, village and rural schools to find out why girls stop taking math.

She also plans to study girls in the Asian-American population to see if their aspirations, and the expectations placed on them, are different from those of Caucasian girls.

On the positive side, Granito thinks her study will prove to be an informative public relations effort that may convince teachers, parents and students to stick with those math courses.

"There are many reasons why girls give up on studying math," Granito says. "My research will attempt to pinpoint a few, including the influence of parents, teachers and friends, the belief that math is a 'male domain,' the lack of female math teachers as role models and the perception that women who study math are less feminine than those who choose courses in the humanities."

Granito, a math teacher for 28 years and a member of the executive committee of the Association of Mathematics Teachers of New York State, says the age to attack the problems is grades 6 through 9, when most girls develop "math anxiety."

At Wits End

By Erma Bombeck

I was waiting outside of a hotel in New York recently trying to hail a cab when a long limousine pulled up the curb in front of me. A few minutes later, a photographer asked me if I would mind stepping off to one side as they were taking a picture.

I hid behind a tired evergreen while the camera clicked away at a man with a dog on a leash. They both hopped into the limo and pulled off.

The excitement over, I asked the doorman, "Who WAS that man?" He shrugged, "Haven't the foggiest, but the dog is Mike, the star of 'Down and Out in Beverly Hills.' I cannot believe he wasn't nominated for an Academy Award."

Mike the dog was pictured in TIME a few weeks later, and a few days after that, I read where he was putting his paw prints in cement in front of Mann's Chinese Theater in Los Angeles.

What kind of life is that for a dog? It's all so predictable. He's already been on the cover of People magazine and he'll dance with Linda Evans on "Life Styles of the Rich and Famous." Before the end of summer, he'll be doing commercials for super-charged batteries, breakfast cereal and gelatin.

In the same week, he'll cut an album to benefit homeless strays and write a book with a foreword by Bette Midler. A 30-city tour will put him at the top of the nonfiction list.

A videocassette on Dog Aerobics will follow, and he will give lectures on how to keep stress at a minimum when you check into the Beverly Wilshire without reservations.

After his agent talks him into opening for Julio Iglesias in Vegas, he will forfeit any bit of privacy he ever had. The supermarket tabloids will run stories of how many men have bitten him, and he will be linked romantically with Mary Lou Retton, Dr. Ruth and Joan Collins. His line of clothes will be out in the fall, and the Mike Board Game will be out before next Christmas.

I've seen it all happen before. I was at a movie one night in L.A. when Benji was marched down the aisle and was given a center seat. Camera bulbs were flashing all about him. I think he nodded off and it was his own picture. Celebritydom takes its toll.

On another occasion I did a story with Morris the cat where we attended the musical "Cats" in Boston. He had been running all day, being filmed for a TV show, giving paw prints, meeting with pet food distributors and posing for pictures with the cast. He kept falling between the seat during the performance.

We build celebrities in this country like we build cars. When they get a few miles on them, we trade them in for new ones. I just got a fleeting glimpse of Mike before he hopped in the limo. His eyes looked sorta longing at me like He'd have liked to trade places. On the other hand, he could have been looking at the evergreen.

Bridal Policy

A black and white glossy five by seven photograph is requested for engagement announcements in The Daily Reflector. For publication in a Sunday edition, the information must be submitted by 12 noon on the preceding Wednesday. Engagement pictures must be released at least three weeks prior to the wedding date. After three weeks, only an announcement will be printed.

Wedding write-ups will be printed through the first week with a one column picture. During the second week, a one column picture will be used with a write-up giving less description and after the second week, just as an announcement.

Wedding forms and pictures should be returned to The Daily Reflector one week prior to the date of the wedding. All information should be typed or written neatly.

Teen-Ager's Parents Worry When Calls Are Made To Boys

DEAR ABBY: I have a simple question that has turned into quite a big issue in my family. Your answer will help my family along with other families who have the same problem.

What is wrong with a girl making a telephone call to a boy? I am a 16-year-old girl and my friends include boys as well as girls. If I want to call up a girlfriend to make plans, it's fine with my parents. But they frown on my calling a boy. They say, "Maybe we're old-fashioned, but we don't think it's proper for a girl to call a boy. Besides, what will his parents think of you?"

What do you say?

TO CALL OR NOT TO CALL

DEAR TO CALL: Much depends on the purpose of your call. To talk? Why not, but don't call a boy who never calls you to talk. To "make plans?" Plans for what? A special occasion? Fine. But don't call a boy repeatedly to "make plans" unless he also calls you to make plans.

Your parents are probably afraid that you will come over as a pushy girl who aggressively pursues boys, which is what a boy's parents will think of you if you overdo it. So don't.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please say a few words to the public on behalf of the shopkeepers whose customers arrive five minutes before closing time to do their shopping?

Most businesses have their hours clearly posted and rely on the good sense of the customers to be out of the store by closing time. However, there are always those who feel that if they are inside the door one minute before closing time, they are welcome to stay as long as they please.

This can be very difficult for the employees who have put their full shift in already. Transportation and appointments can be missed and baby sitters made angry when we are kept late. Once in a while is not minded, but I am writing after a 9 1/2 hour day on my feet, no coffee breaks, and an hour late out of the door. And this is the second time this week.

So, Abby, please be a dear and speak for those of us who can't very well speak for ourselves without offending our customers.

SPEAKING FOR MANY

DEAR SPEAKING: Consider me your spokesperson. I'm sure most customers who arrive late and shop leisurely are not deliberately thoughtless. Let's hope this makes the lateniks more aware of the inconvenience they may cause.

(P.S. I am addressing only customers who can't decide whether to buy one or two-and-a-half yards of ribbon. I have heard of jewelers who cheerfully stay open as long as it takes to close an important sale. And for a Texas oil tycoon, they might even have dinner sent in!)

DEAR ABBY: I've been reading you for years in the Leesburg (Va.) Commercial, so I know you are a great believer in donating organs. I recently saw a sign while driving on a Florida highway, and thought of you. It read: Recycle yourself. Be an organ donor!

ROBERT W. MERRIAM

DEAR ABBY: Here's a question I hope you have the answer to. I am a black female who had a mastectomy in 1981. I came through it and made a good recovery. I'm just getting to the point of thinking of myself as the same woman I was before I lost one breast, then every morning I have to put on this pink or rose-colored prosthesis made for whites, and I don't feel right. It looks very different, and I can't get used to it.

Abby, do you know of any company that makes prostheses for blacks? I haven't been able to find one in this area.

TWO-TONE IN NORTH CAROLINA

DEAR TWO-TONE: No. But after this hits print, I bet I will. Readers?

DEAR ABBY: Are you trying to catch the sleep-disorders medical community napping? The snoring remedy suggested by "Mrs. L.P. in L.A."—taping the snorer's mouth shut—would be laughable were it not so dangerous. You did suggest first checking with the family physician, but really, Abby, until the medical profession is 100 percent informed about serious sleep disorders, that may not be the best thing to do. Speaking as specialists, we think no one should try this remedy. And, Abby, if you're not convinced, please note that "Mrs. L.P." refers to her husband in the past tense.

Anyone who wants a list of sleep centers accredited by the Association of Sleep Disorders Centers should send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Carol Westbrook, ASDC, 604 Second St. S.W., Rochester, Minn. 55902

WILLIAM C. DEMENT, M.D., Ph.D., DIRECTOR, STANFORD SLEEP DISORDER CENTER

DEAR DR. DEMENT: The material you sent me on sleep disorders certainly woke me up! I hope that physicians will be sufficiently interested in this problem to take advantage of your offer. I, for one, thank you for it.

DEAR ABBY: Recently we were invited to a surprise 40th wedding anniversary party for a member of our family. The "hosts" were their two married children. The invitation read: A surprise anniversary party for Mom and Dad will be given on such and such a date at the ( ) restaurant. Time, place, etc. At the very bottom it also read: $15 per person.

Abby, I may be wrong, but when an invitation reads "is given by," I assume that the sender is paying for the party. Maybe things are done differently today, but I have never given a party in my life and asked my guests to pay for it.

Please answer. We are all wondering whether these two cheap kids are out of line, or are we out of touch?

RUTH IN BROOKLYN

DEAR RUTH: You are not out of touch, the "kids" are. Their invitation should have read: "We are organizing a party for Mom and Dad and if you want to be a part of it, please remit $15." When people give a party, they pay for it themselves.

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column you emphasized the importance of voting. May I share with your readers some examples of how one vote changed history?

In 1645, ONE VOTE gave Oliver Cromwell control of England.

In 1649, ONE VOTE caused Charles I of England to be executed.

In 1839, ONE VOTE elected Marcus Morton governor of Massachusetts.

In 1845, ONE VOTE brought Texas into the Union.

In 1868, ONE VOTE saved President Andrew Johnson from impeachment.

In 1876, ONE VOTE changed France from a monarchy to a republic.

In 1923, ONE VOTE gave Adolf Hitler leadership of the Nazi Party.

In 1960, ONE VOTE change in each precinct in Illinois would have defeated John F. Kennedy.

JAMES W. ANDERSON, TALLADEGA, ALABAMA

DEAR ABBY: Why does a woman sit around the house in front of her husband all day Saturday with a mud pack on her face and rollers in her hair just so she can look pretty for a bunch of strangers on Saturday night?

JUST ASKING

DEAR JUST: For the same reason a man shaves before going out among strangers, then comes home with a Brillo beard and nuzzles his wife.

(Every teen-ager should know the truth about sex, drugs and how to be happy. For Abby's booklet, send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents) self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

The South

We've never given thought to reaction of people from other parts of the country making new homes in the South as to their reaction to the natives.

Somebody else has, and it conveys its own gentle surprises.

Be honest. Did it ever occur to you they look upon us as different? Falkland, New Bern, Rocky Mount, Williamston and Greenville (it's a long list) we've usually considered representative of mainstream America. The shocker: we're not.

A six-week course on the South is being offered in Charlotte, Winston-Salem, the Research Triangle (and in South Carolina cities, as well). The North Carolina seminars are sponsored by the N.C. Humanities Committee.

UNC Professor Paul Escott is coping with the Charlotte program and he says the South perplexes newcomers. They want to understand it and how it works.

At one of the session's first meetings people wanted to let off steam and one man wanted to know why everybody asked where you go to church. "It's not the question," a Chicago native said, "It's the reaction when you say you don't belong."

"Why won't Southerners say what they think?" others asked.

Another man said "I have lived here nine months and I don't know how anybody feels about us."

"They hate us", responded one. "No, I can't say that," he said. "I just don't know."

The programs delve into Southern culture, cities, economics, sex roles and racial attitudes ... the whole bit.

Escott recalls his reputation adviser explaining the South had to be polite to keep everything from blowing up. It sounds fascinating.

The heart of his message is that the South is a stable, rural place where roots run deep and everyone knows everyone.

Those seminars would interest the natives, too. But their presence would probably discourage attendance of newcomers whose curiosity would be dampened by that presence.

Chinks

Omissions of relevant history in the new anti-U.S. propaganda movie with the made-in-Russia stamp tell one almost as much as the story-line and dialogue accompanying their version of the almost forgotten U-2 Incident.

For those who came in late ... (after all, the events occurred 26 years ago), downing of the CIA intelligence-gathering aircraft caught most spokesmen on U.S. activities by surprise and embarrassment was widespread.

The wire service account makes it plain the Soviet movie keeps Nikita Khrushchev in disfavor, ignores roots of the Cold War distrust, omits any account of exchanging U-2 pilot Francis Gary Powers for super-spy Rudolf Abel who ran a network of agents in the U.S., and depicts the KGB only as a paternal agency concerned with protecting Soviet borders.

Those are chinks in the Soviet armor of self-righteousness.

U.S. Will Offer Top Weapons

WASHINGTON — A secret decision to send Stinger anti-aircraft missiles to Jonas Savimbi's anti-communist rebels in Angola, though it may never be announced, is a breakthrough for the Reagan Doctrine that may soon reverberate in Nicaragua and Afghanistan.

It marks the first time in the long history of U.S. clandestine operations that a president has decided that top-of-the-line American weapons, not foreign-made castoffs, can be used to advance U.S. interests. The Stinger is at the very top. The shoulder-fired weapon can penetrate titanium-protected cockpits of Soviet MI-24 Hind helicopters, the gunships that control the battlefields of Angola as well as Nicaragua and Afghanistan.

The fact the previously skeptical Secretary of State George Shultz is as enthusiastic about the Stinger as Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger and CIA Director William Casey signals an end to prior restraints. That opens an important new chapter in the long struggle between the West and the Soviet Union where the ideological tide long has flowed for Moscow.

No other decision points up Reagan's heightened intent to bring to life his rhetoric that the West should be as committed to widening democracy as the Kremlin is committed to the spread of communism. Just how seriously this is taken is shown by the secret dispatch of the director of Central Intelligence to Pretoria to make sure the white South Africa government is not connected to covert U.S. help for Savimbi.

If the Stinger neutralizes the MI-24 "flying tanks" in Angola, it almost surely will be sent to anti-Sandinista guerrillas in Nicaragua once Congress finally approves Reagan's contra aid plan. The next prospective client: Mujahedin rebels in Afghanistan.

This represents a long path traveled by George Shultz, who started out skeptical about the whole idea of covert aid. When the secretary early in March journeyed up Pennsylvania Avenue for a crucial closed-door discussion of the aid program with Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole and several other Republican senators, he had previously agreed to the principle of anti-aircraft and anti-tank weapons for Savimbi.

Now, Shultz insisted that whatever covert aid was given, it must guarantee "sustainability" for Savimbi's rebellion. That is, it would do no good to give the rebels weapons that did not prevent their annihilation by with U.S. forces, had pledged to retaliate against Americans.

A new nightmare of terrorism in the spring, it was argued, could frighten American visitors from vacationing in Europe in the summer, adding to the economic woes of the region.

The fears appear to have been fulfilled Wednesday with the bombing of TWA Flight 840 between Rome and Athens and the death of four passengers, all Americans.

Khadafy has denounced the bombing, but in Beirut, a group identifying itself as the Arab Revolutionary Cells claimed responsibility and cited the U.S. actions against Libya as the provocation.

Travel agents in the United States were quoted as saying they expected many potential European visitors to change their plans as a result of the bombing.

The Reagan administration's initial reaction has been cautious, with officials stressing the need for a careful investigation and cooperation with Italy and Greece.

It took the State Department more than six hours to issue a statement confirming a Greek announcement that a bomb had indeed caused the deadly explosion. The only substantive announcement from the department was that FBI and Federal Aviation Administration investigators are being dispatched to the region.

The restrained tone appears to reflect uncertainty about who is responsible for the attack. State Department officials were not immediately able to identify the group that claimed responsibility.

Terrorism expert Robert Kupperman of the Georgetown Center for Strategic and International Studies said he did not think Khadafy ordered the attack but that it was connected to the Gulf of Sidra clashes.

"In my mind, I see it as purely a retaliation ... to make us look important," he said.

The quiet initial response by the administration appeared to stem as well from a desire to work harmoniously with the Italian and Greek governments in the aftermath of the bombing.

Security officials are clearly puzzled about how a bomb could have been slipped aboard the plane at the Rome airport, which has undergone a security tuneup since the Dec. 27 attack that killed more than a dozen people.

One of the Reagan administration's major foreign policy initiatives is to get the European allies to improve their cooperation in the war on terrorism.

Shultz said in Europe last week that he was encouraged by some of the anti-terrorism developments, but declined to give details of what the countries were doing.

The latest attack could serve as a test of how smooth that cooperation can be.

MISTER DEFIANCE!

Safeguard Can Cause Problems

WASHINGTON — Ricardo M. Armstrong insisted all along that he never robbed the two banks. He said he had solid alibis. He said the witnesses who identified him from old photos were wrong. He was right. When his case came to trial, it took a jury only 30 minutes to vote for acquittal. But he spent two months in jail anyhow.

How come? Armstrong was held in jail for two months before trial under the "preventive detention" provisions of the Comprehensive Crime Control Act of 1984. A federal magistrate concluded that Armstrong was potentially dangerous to the community. Therefore he could not obtain release on bail.

The act culminated 11 years of study and debate on Capitol Hill. It passed the Senate 91-1. The key vote in the House was 316-91. President Reagan signed the measure on Oct. 12, 1984. The act was in fact "comprehensive," but the provision that caused greatest controversy was the provision under which the 29-year-old Armstrong was locked up in Ohio.

The problem, as Congress perceived it, was the problem of too-easy bail. Federal magistrates were virtually compelled to release defendants on low bail — or no bail at all — upon a superficial showing that the suspects would show up for trial. In a number of highly publicized cases, the defendants went out and committed new crimes while awaiting trial. Congress decided the time had come to end that folly, and preventive detention was the result.

The National Law Journal recently took a look at 17 months of operation under the 1984 law and found the results mixed. Federal prosecutors have asked for preventive detention in 2,853 cases. Federal magistrates have granted their requests about 80 percent of the time. Roughly 1,100 defendants have been denied bail because of the high risk of their flight, 381 have been held as dangers to the community, and 705 have been locked up under a combination of both findings.

In this period crime rates generally have been dropping, but there is no convincing evidence to prove that preventive detention has been a contributing factor. It's hard to say one way or the other, but common sense suggests that the law is working. Surely incarceration has served to prevent at least some of the revolving-door crimes that were committed under the old system of lenient bail.

But critics ask: How can a magistrate reasonably predict future criminal behavior? Doesn't "preventive detention" turn old rules of criminal law on their head? Under our system, a defendant must be presumed innocent until proved guilty. If a magistrate locks up a "potentially dangerous" defendant before trial, isn't this effectively a finding of guilt?

Public defenders charge that the law simply is not working as proponents had hoped it would. In a typical criminal case, an arrested person is brought before a magistrate charged with a major drug offense or other serious crime. An overworked prosecutor must decide almost on the spot whether to ask for preventive detention. The temptation is to ask for detention in every doubtful case.

Often such hearings are perfunctory. No thorough investigation has been made of the suspect's work record or of his prior arrests or convictions. Critics say magistrates must rely in the end on their own gut hunches that a defendant is or is not dangerous, and that he will or will not show up for trial.

The program of preventive detention has increased costs of criminal prosecution: The federal prisoner population has gone up by 32 percent. In all probability these costs have been offset — more than offset — by a higher degree of community safety. Getting a thousand dangerous criminals off the streets strikes me as a pretty sound idea.

This columnist strongly supported preventive detention when the crime control act was pending on the Hill. I support it still. Granted, as Ricardo Armstrong could testify, the system works wrongly and unfairly in some cases. No system is perfect. The old system of lenient bail had its drawbacks, too, and the adverse consequences were worse.

—Elisha Douglas—

Strength For Today

Man is often called a social animal. The meaning of such a statement is that our lives are inextricably bound up with the lives of others. In reality, we can do nothing alone.

We begin our lives with the doctor giving us a reassuring slap in order to make us start breathing. We go to school with others. Even if we produce some product solely by our own efforts, somebody else has to sell it and others buy and use it.

Nonetheless, the development of the art of getting along with others is one of the most important in the world.

In order to give your child the best of advantages, help him meet plenty of people and learn how to get along with them. Encourage him to talk with all types of people, and do the same thing yourself. You will be amazed to encounter in conversation with so-called nobodies, ideas which may revolutionize your own life.

Farmville Board Approves Development At Terminal

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer
FARMVILLE — Farmville commissioners Wednesday night dissented over whether to allow Lee Miles, developer of a trucking terminal of the former Monk Tobacco Co. property on West Horne Avenue, to go ahead with his work, but a majority ruled in his favor.

Miles asked for permission to remove curbing from the west side of Ryon Drive and to install valley curbing to make it easier for trucks to back into the bays on the east side of his building.

Commissioner Moses Moye questioned whether Miles has brought the property into compliance with town building codes. One of the things Miles said he needs to complete is the demolition of a large portion of the buildings on the property in order to meet the town's requirement for not more than 50 percent of a piece of industrial property to be covered by a building or buildings. Miles said this work will be completed within the next 30 days. Moye questioned whether the curb removal permission should be given before the building complies with the codes. He also expressed dissatisfaction with trucks being allowed to turn around on Ryon Drive.

Frank Bradham, town administrator, said Miles will need to shoulder a large portion of the expense when West Horne Avenue, Ryon Drive and Fields Street Extension need resurfacing, because the trucks he is bringing into his 34-bay terminal will be by far the largest users of those streets. Miles said he would agree to contract with the town to pay for a portion of the repairs.

The board approved the town's participation in the Interlocal Risk Financing Fund of North Carolina, which seeks to secure liability insurance for municipalities as a group. Coverage could be $5 million, with a $2,500 deductible for each claim. Currently the town has only $1 million.

The board made it clear that because it is entering into this group does not mean it would not also entertain proposals from private insurers to see if they could be competitive with the interlocal group.

In response to a request from the police department, the board adopted an ordinance prohibiting the drinking in public of unfortified wines and malt beverages. It was pointed out that, while state laws prohibit the drinking in public of fortified wines and liquor, the town has had no way of legally prohibiting drinking of the unfortified wines and malt beverages. Members of the audience expressed delight that the ordinance had been passed and said the town should do all in its power to put an end to public drinking, especially in the Bennett Park area.

The planning board's recommendation for a public hearing on the rezoning of the portion of town bounded by West Church Street, Walnut Street, May Boulevard and the town limits was denied. Board members said they would consider rezoning of a smaller portion of this property, but not this large a block at one time.

The board approved the release of taxes of $487 on the property of the Gordon Lee heirs and W.R. Duke Sr.

at the corner of Wilson and Fields streets. The owners have recently demolished a warehouse at this address and the county has appraised the remaining property at $45,860. The previous value was said to be $156,640.

Greenville has employed the Council-Manager form of government since January 12, 1953.

commissioners are elected by county-wide vote, although they must be residents of the district they represent.

In discussing preclearance of the law adding a sixth member, Watson last month and Crowell on Wednesday suggested that if the 1967 act is not approved by the Justice Department, the board would go back to the five seats.

Section 5 of the Voting Rights Act, which requires review of elections changes, applies to only 40 counties in North Carolina — those in which fewer than 50 percent of the people eligible were registered or voted in the 1964 presidential election.

but believes that all persons who can use a service should help pay for it. He said that if Greenville subscribers are excused from paying their share of the cost, "mixed signals" will be sent to future proponents of EAS that "if you vote no, you can still have the service, but will get it free."

He said that if Greenville subscribers are required to pay the proposed increase of 43 cents per month, they will be paying "virtually the same that Southern Bell customers pay for the same scope of calling."

He said it is the duty of the Utilities Commission to make wise decisions for the public and that sometimes public policy issues may overrule majority votes; larger cities should not always have a veto over smaller ones.

Mrs. Colville said she resents the way the Extended Area Service survey was done, saying she believed no one in Greenville knew about the proposal prior to receiving the survey cards in their phone bills and that many did not notice them and threw them away.

She said she does not believe the county commissioners and state representatives advocating the change represent the will of the people. "To say they are community leaders is just a matter of opinion," she said. "They are elected officials, but some may be here only two years or four years."

Candidate Cites Voters' 'Apathy'

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Fountain Odom, a candidate for the Democratic nomination to the U.S. Senate, suggested today that many North Carolina voters seem to be "apathetic, non-interested" in the Senate primary race this year.

Campaigning in Greenville this morning, Odom, a member of the Mecklenburg County board of Commissioners, said one reason for the apathy may be "burnout" resulting from the 1984 elections.

"It's too bad," Odom said, because the Senate race "is a very critical race for all people of the state. The person who represents North Carolina in the U.S. Senate (could provide) the pivotal vote as to the direction the United States takes in foreign relations."

But even with the seeming lack of interest, Odom said his campaign is "doing very well. I feel good about it," he said.

A Rocky Mount native, Odom, 47, suggested his major interests are "the protection of the environment ...

protection of jobs," and a strong national defense.

Saying protection of air and water quality are important to the future of the state and nation, Odom said he is opposed to efforts to locate a nuclear waste disposal site in North Carolina.

"It's the epitome of stupidity" to suggest that North Carolina be the graveyard for the nation's nuclear waste, Odom said. "North Carolina ought to take care of its own waste (but) not the dumping ground for nuclear waste" from other states. Rather than spending so much money to "find a place to bury the stuff," Odom said the Department of Energy "ought to be finding ways to reuse it."

On the question of the economy, Odom said "we ought to protect our jobs with quotas and limits and even tariffs." He said he supports a constitutional amendment requiring a balanced federal budget.

"Education is important, too," Odom said, saying that the federal government "should be involved in funding" but not control education.

Top Peanut Farmer Says Winning Was Just Luck

By HAROLD JOYNER
Reflector Staff Writer

After farming for most of his life and then being named state champion peanut grower, Williamston farmer Joseph Wynn said winning the award was just luck.

"I feel real good about winning," Wynn said. "I've got a good piece of land that my daddy left me after he died. And peanuts are about the easiest thing I know to tend."

The 55-year-old Wynn also said he farms corn and soybeans, and leases his tobacco out.

For the past five years, Wynn has been in the N.C. Peanut Growers Association's 5,000 pound club. Last year's harvest resulted in 5,810 pounds of peanuts per acre on his 17.1-acre peanut farm. This means about 5,000 bags of peanuts per acre — a lot more peanuts than when his father's yield was about 25 to 30 bags per acre, the peanut farmer said.

"You've got good people to help you, good seed peas now that make a difference, spray to keep insects and diseases off of them," Wynn said.

Drainage and early planting is something else Wynn said he thought made a difference in his production of peanuts.

"I like to plant middle to late April," he said. "The earlier you get them planted, the earlier you get them out. It seems like you can get them before the weather gets bad."

"Try to plant when the land is dry because when you plant them in wet dirt, a lot of time they'll rot."

Planting peanuts also means a steady income, Wynn said. "You can't get a cash flow if you plant corn, beans and peanuts."

Wynn said he was going to continue farming, "but I wished they (Congress) would let me know something. Right now, I don't even know how many peanuts to plant for next year." The Wynn farmland is ready to plant now, he said, but added that he has not received information about this year's farm program legislation.

"There's no future out here in farming," he said. "But I hope there will be changes in four or five years to help the younger farmers."

As for winning next year's award, which is sponsored by the N.C. Agricultural Extension Service and the N.C. Peanut Growers Association, Wynn said, "I'll try to win next year's contest, if my luck holds out."

Cars Damaged By Grass Fire

Three vehicles were damaged today by fire that broke out in a grassy area near the New Greenville Warehouse on N.C. 33, site of Expo '86.

Police said the cause of the fire had not been determined. The flames were brought under control by Greenville firefighters.

Owners of the vehicles were identified as Rachel Mills, Mike Cannon and Anglene Venters.

Wednesday Thefts

Investigators said six thefts were reported to Greenville police Wednesday.

Officer D.R. Best said a record player was taken from 410B Tyson St. in an incident reported at 8:12 a.m., while Officer H.D. Hines said a bicycle was taken from The Plaza in an incident reported at 2:44 p.m.

Officer C.A. Sharpe said $60 was taken from 208 N. Elm St. in an incident reported at 5:54 p.m. and a radio-tape player, a cassette tape and two fog lights were taken from a vehicle parked at The Plaza in an incident reported at 9:06 p.m.

Officer C.M. Credle said a bicycle was taken from 201 N. Library St. in an incident reported at 6:35 p.m., while Officer D.C. Johnson said $16.15, a gym bag and aerobic clothing were taken from a vehicle parked behind the Aerobic Workshop at 417 Evans Mall in an incident reported at 8:40 p.m.

Drug Arrest

Officers assigned to the Greenville Police Department's special investigations section arrested a 19-year-old Miami man on drug charges Tuesday.

Investigators said Rocklen Leon Wilson was charged with possession with intent to sell and deliver heroin and possession of cocaine in connection with a 10 p.m. incident at the intersection of Sixth and Ford streets.

Larceny Incident

Two Rocky Mount women were arrested in Greenville Tuesday afternoon on larceny charges in connection with the theft of four watches from Lautares Jewelers at 414 Evans St.

Sgt. T.V. Woolard said Betty Jefferson Ojeda, 24, and Addie Kay Brock, 26, were taken into custody about 2:40 p.m. at the intersection of Evans and Third streets shortly after the watches, valued at $289, were taken.

According to Woolard, store employees followed the two women until police arrived and took them into custody.

Woolard, who said two watches were recovered, said Ms. Brock is wanted in Hawaii on felony larceny and prostitution charges.

Polling Places Relocated In Some Precincts

Polling places in Falkland, Farmville and Greenville No. 4 precincts have been relocated, according to the Pitt County Board of Elections.

The relocation became necessary, the board said, in order to provide adequate parking facilities and access for the handicapped; climate control for electronic tabulating equipment; better definition of and controlled access to the voting enclosure; to save the expense of hauling and rental of tables and chairs, and to save the cost of temporary telephone installation in each precinct.

For the May 6 primary and election, the voting places for the areas are:

•Falkland — Polling place moved from Falkland Community Building on Main Street to Falkland Presbyterian Church Fellowship Hall, located on Main Street.

•Farmville — Polling place moved from Farmville Fire Station on Main Street to Farmville Community Building, located on Main Street.

•Greenville No. 4 — Polling place moved from Old West End Fire Station on Chestnut and Skinner streets to Holy Trinity Holiness Church Fellowship Hall, Higgs Street entrance.

Officials at the Board of Elections said the changes are pending and they do not expect any objection from the Department of Justice. All registered voters living in the precincts will receive new registration cards informing them of their new voting place, the Board said.

Any qualified Pitt County citizen wanting to vote in the May 6 primary and election must register before Monday. The Board of Elections office is open daily from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Other places to register include Sheppard Memorial Library and its branches, Driver's License Bureau; Pitt County Memorial Hospital; Pitt County high schools, and municipal town halls. For more information, contact the elections supervisor at 758-4683.

Monday is also the last day for a voter to change party affiliation or residential address on registration records.

April 29 is the last day to apply for an absentee ballot.

Pastor's Anniversary

Pastor's anniversary services honoring the Rev. A.L. Miller are being held at Warren Chapel Free Will Baptist Church at 7:30 tonight through the weekend.

Elder R.E. Phillips and the Crisp Chapel congregation will lead tonight's service. Vice Bishop Stephen Jones and the congregation of Haddock's Chapel Church will lead Friday's service.

Sunday at 11 a.m., the Warren Chapel congregation will worship at its own church and at 3 p.m. at Friendship Free Will Baptist Church in Maury. Sunday at 7:30 p.m. Eldress Lucy Jones will lead the close-out service of the pastor's anniversary at the church.

Insurance Program

Bethel board members voted to participate in a liability insurance program being offered by the N.C. League of Municipalities at its town meeting Tuesday night.

A spokesman for the board said that in an effort to combat escalating liability insurance premiums faced by towns, the League set up the Interlocal Risk Finances of North Carolina program to create an insurance pool.

The board passed a resolution to open a 50-foot street extending east from Main Street. The corridor, to be called Cross Street, would be located between the new Southern Bank and the Tetterton property.

The board appointed Lynn Roger-son as recreation director.

Absentee Ballots

Absentee ballots are now available for the May 6 primary and election, according to the Pitt County Board of Elections.

A board spokesman said April 29 is the last day an application may be made, although absentee voting by qualified voters through the one-stop method will begin Tuesday and continue through May 2.

Voters going to the polls on May 6 will find ballots on a constitutional amendment providing for the election of state and county officers in odd-numbered years, and a statewide referendum concerning the location of a high-level radioactive nuclear waste site in North Carolina.

Three members of the Pitt County Board of Education will be elected on a countywide vote.

Primary elections will be in the Republican and Democrat party for the U.S. Senate; N.C. Senate, 6th district; judge of Court of Appeals; N.C. House of Representatives, 6th and 9th districts; county commissioners (three members); clerk of Superior Court, and sheriff.

For more information about the election, call 758-4683.

Marijuana Count

Police said Jonathan Gregory Martin of 507D E. 11th St. was arrested early today on a marijuana possession charge.

Officer T.E. Evans said Martin was charged in connection with a 1:53 a.m. incident at his residence.

Witnesses Condemn Plan To Build Nuclear Waste Site Near Raleigh

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — The public outcry at a Raleigh hearing against a high-level nuclear waste dump will influence energy officials even though the project is equally unpopular outside North Carolina, Rep. Bill Cobey, R.N.C., predicts.

"If you don't say how you feel ... in loud but not hysterical terms, somebody might assume that this is a good idea and the people aren't opposed to it," said Cobey, whose 4th Congressional District includes a potential waste dump site.

Cobey was one of hundreds of people who packed the Raleigh Civic Center Wednesday for a hearing sponsored by the U.S. Department of Energy on a Jan. 16 report that named 12 finalists for a possible nuclear waste repository for the Eastern United States.

A parade of local residents and officials condemned the inclusion on the list of the Rousesville Pluton, a 142-square mile area including parts of Wake, Franklin and Johnston counties. The other North Carolina site is the Elk River Complex near Asheville.

Gov. Jim Martin is scheduled to speak at a hearing on the Elk River Complex on Friday in Asheville.

Both North Carolina sites were chosen because of their large crystalline rock bodies that federal geologists say are needed for the repository. Plans call for drilling a cavern into the rock and placing inside thousands of containers of spent fuel and other wastes from nuclear power plants and weapon production factories.

But protesters Wednesday charged that flawed reasoning and shoddy research led federal officials to include the Rousesville site.

"We don't need a regiment of technicians and scientists sent from Washington to discover the obvious," Tommy Rhodes, state secretary of the Department of Natural Resources and Community Development, told DOE officials.

"There are certainly places in these United States" more suitable for the proposed landfill than two North Carolina sites under consideration, both of which are near large population centers, said Rep. Tim Valentine, D-N.C. "There are areas in our country where you can walk for days without seeing anything except a toad frog."

Most of the more than 60 people who signed up to speak at the Raleigh hearing, scheduled to last five hours, were elected officials or would-be officeholders — including several U.S. Senate candidates. After the first hour, no one had spoken in favor of a nuclear waste dump in North Carolina.

Banners and posters lined the walls of the large hearing room, bearing such messages as "We Will Not Stand By And Watch," "How Many Deaths Will It Take Till We Know," and "We Have Just Begun To Fight." In a corridor outside, tables were piled with information sheets and petitions in opposition to the repository.

Cobey said he had distributed petitions throughout the area and already had obtained several thousand signatures.

Rhodes, whose department is coordinating the state government's response to the DOE list, said both North Carolina areas were unsuitable for the landfill. Failure to remove them from consideration, he said, could "undermine public confidence and congressional support for the entire crystalline repository project."

An NRC technical and policy review of the DOE report concluded that "the data, methodology and policy rationale for identifying potentially acceptable areas ... are seriously flawed," Rhodes said.

The report ignored the fact that the Rousesville site is only seven miles from Raleigh, whose population is nearly 200,000 and growing rapidly, along with the rest of the Research Triangle area, he said.

Geologists have found several defects in the rock body that could enable nuclear waste to contaminate the groundwater, Rhodes said. And he said the complex should be disqualified because it contains two towns, Zebulon and Rousesville, that have populations exceeding the DOE maximum of 1,000 per square mile for potential landfill hosts.

Raleigh Mayor Avery Upchurch said there was no interstate highway access to the site, which would force trucks carrying the waste to traverse heavily traveled state roads. "Just think what an ... accident could cause," he said.

Louisburg Mayor Lucy Allen acknowledged that DOE faced a "not in my back yard" attitude throughout the nation. "But it does not apply here," Ms. Allen said. "The Rousesville site is the front yard of Louisburg and Franklin County. Our future is heavily dependent on how attractive our front yard is ..."

Court Upholds CP&L Increase

RALEIGH (AP) — A state Supreme Court ruling that the N.C. Utilities Commission was correct to let Carolina Power & Light Co. include in its rate base $663.2 million of construction work in progress won't mean higher bills for CP&L customers, a utility spokesman says.

Wayne Ennis, a CP&L spokesman, said the issues addressed by the court Wednesday related to a rate increase that went into effect in September 1984 after a three-member panel of the commission approved the increase.

The Supreme Court also ruled that the Utilities Commission erred in ordering CP&L to make refunds from a special account by lowering the company's annual rate increase.

Both the state Attorney General's Office and CP&L had appealed a November 1984 ruling that gave the company less than half of a requested 12.6 percent rate increase. The commission approved a rate-increase that generated $64.3 million of additional revenue, while the company had sought $151.6 million.

The attorney general's office had appealed, saying the commission erred in allowing the company to include the entire amount of construction work in progress at the Shearon Harris Nuclear Power Plant in its rate base.

But the court ruled that evidence presented to the Utilities Commission supported a finding that the $663.2 million construction-work-in-progress costs were in the public interest and necessary to the financial stability of the company.

CP&L argued in its appeal that the commission made errors in calculating the company's fuel costs, but the court upheld the commission.

The commission also ordered CP&L to refund to its customers money collected in a deferred fuel account the commission had ordered the company to establish in 1983. The company had been ordered to place in that account any over-collections when allowable fuel costs exceeded actual fuel costs.

The court held that the commission was correct in ordering the $2.4 million in over-collections refunded, but said the refunds should have come in a lump sum or a rate reduction over a period of time.

Instead, the commission deducted the money from the requested rate increase. The court ruled that decision effectively forced the company to keep refunding the money as long as the 1984 rates were in effect.

The court sent the refund issue back to the commission for further proceedings, but said any new decision by the commission must agree with the court order.

Court Upholds 90-Year Sentences In Mine Shaft Murders

RALEIGH (AP) — The state Supreme Court has ruled that two North Carolina men were properly sentenced to 90 years each for pushing two other men to their deaths down a 25-foot abandoned Ashe County mineshaft in 1981. The decision Wednesday left intact the two consecutive 45-year prison terms given Gary Hansford Miller and Alan Ray Hattaway, both of whom pleaded guilty to two counts of second-degree murder and three counts of first-degree kidnapping. Miller and Hattaway admitted kidnapping Thomas Forrester and his girlfriend, Betty Darlene Callahan, in December 1981. Forrester was pushed down the Ore Knob Mine, and Ms. Callahan was taken to Chicago and forced to work as a prostitute for a motorcycle gang, the court record said. The killings resulted from disputes involving drug dealings, the court said. Two weeks after Forrester's death, Miller and Hattaway also kidnapped Lonnie Marshall Gamboa and threw him into the mineshaft, the court said. The victims' bodies were recovered Jan. 25, 1982. Autopsies showed they had sustained multiple injuries and had died seconds after hitting the bottom of the mineshaft. The N.C. Court of Appeals agreed with the defendants, who appealed their sentences on the grounds that the murder and kidnapping pleas should not have been consolidated for sentencing. The defendants said the aggravating factors used to arrive at the murder sentence — including the cruel and heinous nature of the killings — did not apply to the kidnappings.

The appeals court ordered a new sentencing hearing. The Supreme Court disagreed, ruling that if it not prejudicial error for the judge to fail to establish separate mitigating and aggravating factors when cases are consolidated for sentencing. In another ruling Wednesday, the Supreme Court ordered a new trial for Anthony Elwood Heath, convicted in Lenoir County of raping a 13-year-old girl in February 1983. The court ruled that the trial judge improperly allowed the prosecutor to ask a clinical psychologist who had worked with the child whether the girl had a mental condition that might have led her to fabricate the rape. It is permissible to question witnesses about a person's general character and reputation, the court said. But the question in the Lenoir County case amounted to asking the psychologist for an expert opinion on whether the girl made up the story, which was not permissible, the Supreme Court said.

Aide Says Martin May Propose Fuel Tax Hike

RALEIGH (AP) — An assistant to Gov. Jim Martin says he's "just betting" the governor will propose an increase in the state's gasoline tax to fatten highway coffers for future needs.

C.C. Cameron, Martin's executive assistant for budget and management, said he favors a possible combination of a gasoline tax increase and imposing a sales tax on wholesale gasoline to provide money for roads.

But Cameron said Martin doesn't have to seek a fuel tax increase in this summer's legislative session. Martin could seek short-term solutions this year, such as transferring funding of the Highway Patrol from the Highway Fund to the General Fund, which is supplied mainly by income and sales taxes.

"My gosh, I guess we've worked out 50 different scenarios," Cameron said. "I am just betting that he will include in his package some form of tax increase, definitely in the highway fund, which means it has to be a gasoline tax ...," Cameron said Tuesday. "What I'd rather say is that with the history we've had ... I see no solution for the governor in a 10-year plan for highway maintenance and construction other than some form of tax increase in the highway fund."

He said he has not recommended a specific amount of gas tax increase to Martin. "What I have said to the governor is ... you don't have to be a Ph.D. to know that if your revenues are running like this (flat) and your demands are (increasing dramatically), you cannot fill that gap anyway except to increase taxes."

"The governor is still looking at it," said Tim Pittman, Martin's press secretary. "He is not going to make his decision public or discuss the advice he is getting until April 17."

Last month, Martin said a variety of steps — including a possible gasoline tax hike — must be taken to generate highway funds.

Several Sources Feed Neuse Algae

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Problems with nuisance algae blooms in the lower Neuse River won't be solved by a phosphate detergent ban or any other attack on a single source of nutrients, a marine scientist said Wednesday.

Numerous sources of nitrogen and phosphorus that feed algae will have to be controlled if algae levels are to be reduced, said H.W. Paerl, professor of marine sciences at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill Institute of Marine Sciences in Morehead City.

"There are a variety of ways nutrients in the Neuse River could be cut back," Paerl said in a telephone interview. "We will have to tackle excess nutrients from a variety of sources."

A paper written by Paerl and Wuseng Lung, a civil engineer at the University of Virginia, will be presented Thursday at the 1986 Triangle Conference on Environmental Technology being held in Chapel Hill. The three-day conference ends Thursday.

Paerl said phosphorus and nitrogen served as nutrients that promote growth and blooming of blue-algae. When climatic conditions are right and the river is fairly stagnant, the algae rise to the surface of the water to form a "thick, slimy, green scum," he said.

This occurs primarily in the spring and summer in the lower Neuse between Kinston and New Bern.

The blooming algae block light needed by other river plants and consume oxygen needed by fish. So far, he said, a massive fish kill has been avoided, but it is only a matter of time before it happens.

"Things are not that bad in the Neuse River," Paerl said. "But it's possible that those events could be common in the years to come."

Explosion

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — A high-pressure nitrogen pipeline exploded on an offshore oil platform, killing two workmen and injuring two others, officials said.

The 3-inch line, under 2,100 pounds of pressure, burst at a coupling on Island Freeman, close to shore inside the Long Beach-Los Angeles harbor, said fire dispatcher John Lendstrom said.

The platform is a cooperative effort of Texaco, Humble, Union, Marathon and Standard oil companies. The cause is under investigation, Lendstrom said.

IN THE STATE

Mechanical Faults Found In Trucks

HILLSBOROUGH, N.C. (AP) — Brake lights, signal lights, tires and brakes were the most defective parts found during inspections of 18-wheeler trucks in North Carolina, a state transportation official says.

Phil Lee, administrative assistant for enforcement in the Department of Transportation, said more than one-third of the 18-wheelers inspected in the state last year failed spot safety examinations and were temporarily taken off the highways.

Of 15,113 rigs inspected, 6,236 were placed out of service, pending corrective repairs, and in 1984, 1,563 of the 4,539 inspected were similarly sidetracked, he said.

Lee said more inspections were conducted in 1985 than the previous year because the state's force of inspectors was increased from 11 to 24 in April, 1985.

The inspectors, sometimes accompanied by federal transportation inspectors, set up at the state truck weigh stations near Hillsborough on random days and check trucks that appear to have defects.

While older, well-worn trucks generally are more likely to have such defects, numerous late-model rigs also are among the vehicles ordered off the road until repairs are made, Inspections Supervisor Jesse Hill said.

Lee said unless a truck or trailer has at least one brake light working, it will be taken off the highway.

If lights are working properly on the tractor but not on the trailer, the driver can continue on his way after unhooking and sidelining the defective trailer, Lee said.

"But, usually, there's not much point to a trucker going on without his trailer and cargo," Lee said, explaining the alternative is for the trucker to get the necessary repairs.

Hanging Death

LEXINGTON, N.C. (AP) — A 13-year-old boy playing in a barn behind his home in southern Davidson County died Tuesday night after he was found hanging from a rope attached to a rafter in the barn, the boy's father says.

John Stroud died after he was accidentally entangled in the rope, his father said. The boy's 9-year-old brother, Samuel, who had been playing with him earlier in the evening, found his body about 7:30 p.m.

A Davidson County Sheriff's Department spokesman said the death is under investigation.

March 3 in a wooded area of Robeson County. They were jailed under $25,000 bond each by the Fayetteville Police Department's Major Crimes Investigation Division.

Friday Named

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — William C. Friday, former president of the University of North Carolina System, has been named the third permanent member of the Research Triangle Institute's Board of Governors.

Friday joins George W. Hill and Paul M. Gross as a permanent member of the board of governors.

Friday has served on the board since 1958, when he and three other men founded the institute. RTI is a freestanding affiliate of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, North Carolina State University and Duke University.

Vaughn Dies

RALEIGH (AP) — Earl Ray Vaughn, who rose through the Democratic ranks from the state House to the state Supreme Court, died of cancer Tuesday in Raleigh. He was 57.

Vaughn was appointed to the Supreme Court in December 1984 by Gov. Jim Hunt, but retired seven months later when he discovered he had cancer.

Funeral services will be held Friday at Edenton Street United Methodist Church in Raleigh. Burial will be in Orange United Methodist Church cemetery in Chapel Hill.

Murder Charge

FAYETTEVILLE (AP) — A 33-year-old woman and her boyfriend have been arrested and charged in the March slaying of a Fort Bragg soldier, police say.

Betty Jean Johnson and Benny Golden Turner, 34, both of Fayetteville, were charged in the shooting and stabbing death of SFC Steven J. Young, 29, whose body was found

Boy Drowns

FAYETTEVILLE (AP) — The body of a 13-year-old Fayetteville boy has been recovered from the Lake Pine recreational area after an apparent accidental drowning, officials say.

Authorities identified the teen-ager as James Christopher Armwood. Officials said Armwood and several friends were playing in the area when the other boys noticed Armwood was missing. They did not think he was in the lake until they found his shoes near a picnic table.

Divers from the Cumberland County sheriff's department recovered the body Tuesday night, six hours after the boy disappeared. The body was taken to Cape Fear Valley Medical Center, where the youth was pronounced dead at about 8:25 p.m.

D.A. Sets Up Parking Lot Court To Get Pleas

RAEFORD, N.C. (AP) — An assistant Hoke County district attorney had to set up makeshift court in a parking lot Wednesday to accept pleas from 150 people charged with being involved in a cockfight.

Most of those charged were alleged spectators. Fayetteville lawyer Tony Rand said he was representing about 30 defendants, including S.T. Clark, who is accused of staging the cockfight in a remote section of Hoke County last February.

The spectators are charged with encouraging, aiding or assisting in a cockfight.

A total of 204 defendants were charged in connection with the cockfight raided by Hoke and Cumberland county officers. Thirty-one defendants pleaded guilty Wednesday, with most being given a $200 fine and a six-month suspended sentence by District Court Judge Warren L. Pate of Raeford.

Two of the defendants, both teen-age high school students from Moore County, pleaded guilty and were given 90-day suspended sentences and fined $100.

The remaining 171 people pleaded innocent, but only two cases came to trial, with both found guilty by the judge.

Before the pleas, Sheriff David Barrington said it would be impossible for all the defendants who pleaded innocent in the parking lot to be tried in District Court Wednesday.

Ingram Says Waste Site Should Be On U.S. Land

By The Associated Press
Democratic Senate hopeful John Ingram says the federal government should consider land it already owns for a possible nuclear waste repository, rather than condemning private land for a dump.

During a trip to Asheboro Wednesday, Ingram said the government should look at how its existing land holdings "compare with North Carolina for population centers." The Department of Energy has proposed a site near Raleigh and one west of Asheville for study as possible dump sites.

Ingram, one of 10 Democratic candidates trying to succeed retiring U.S. Sen. John East, said private polling done by his campaign shows he is leading Democratic candidate Terry Sanford. A Carolina Poll released by the University of North Carolina School of Journalism last week showed Sanford leading Ingram.

Meanwhile, 4th District Democrat David Price received support Wednesday from environmentalists, who said Price's position on nuclear energy reflected a "reasonable and responsible tone."

"He made it clear that he did not favor rushing headlong into a greater dependence on nuclear energy," Betsy Levitas of Environmentalists for Price, told a Raleigh news conference.

"He instead advocated a more balanced approach — a minimal reliance on nuclear power coupled with the conservation of oil resources, efforts to control the harmful side effects of coal production and use, and the continuing exploration of alternative energy sources."

Price faces Woody Webb, Kirsten Nyrop and Wilma Woodard in the Democratic primary for the seat now held by Rep. Bill Cobey, a Republican being opposed by Jo Ann Austell in his party primary.

David Howells, also of Environmentalists for Price, said Price opposed a proposal for possible location of a nuclear waste disposal site in North Carolina.

Price "would fight to end the Department of Energy's search for new dumpsites until we know for sure that storing radioactive wastes in crystalline rock is safe at all," Howells said.

Elsewhere in North Carolina politics, Sanford told a Raleigh news conference that farmers should receive government assistance in farm financing and restructuring debts.

Sanford, a former governor, said the Reagan administration is ignoring the farm crisis, which is threatening to shatter the economic and cultural backbone of North Carolina.

Sanford also said he would begin a statewide television advertising campaign today that would continue until the May 6 primary.

The first commercial will review Sanford's life "compressed into 27 neat seconds," he said. Others will focus on such issues as the economy, textiles, and agriculture.

George Wallace Says 'No' To Another Race

By KENDAL WEAVER
Associated Press Writer
MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Gov. George C. Wallace's farewell to politics ended nearly two decades of Statehouse power but may not remove the Wallace factor from this year's gubernatorial election.

A handful of Democrats running in the June 3 primary are angling for pieces of the splintering Wallace coalition or asserting themselves as alternatives to the Wallace machine that helped launch four presidential campaigns.

Wallace, who first won in 1962 with a battle cry of "segregation forever" but claimed the office a fourth time in 1982 by courting black voters, gave no indication who he might support when he said Wednesday he would not seek an unprecedented fifth four-year term.

"I think we've been in a political freezer for the past 25 years," said former Lt. Gov. George McMillan, who narrowly lost to Wallace four years ago but in recent polls has trailed two or three others in a crowded Democratic field. "Had he not been in Alabama politics, I think we would have eventually had a new breed of progressive, New South governors."

Lt. Gov. Bill Baxley, who has emerged in polls as the frontrunner in the primary campaign, looks to draw the most Wallace supporters to his side.

"Being realistic, I'd have to say that since I am the candidate who has worked the most closely with Governor Wallace over the years ... I should benefit more than the others," he said.

Former Gov. Fob James, the only person to win and serve a four-year term in Alabama since Wallace first won the governor's chair in 1962, campaigned on the theme "It's time for a new beginning" in 1978 but voiced no negative comments about Wallace on Wednesday.

"We never ran against each other," he said. "There was never any time for us to clash."

Attorney General Charles Graddick said Wallace "put Alabama on the map in this world. He was probably the greatest politician that Alabama will ever have and that the South will ever know." But, he said, "I believe everyone in this race breathed a sigh of relief."

Among those on hand for the governor's farewell was E.D. Nixon, an elderly black man considered the patriarch of the civil rights movement in Alabama.

"I wish he hadn't decided not to run," said Nixon. "We got more black people working since Governor Wallace has been governor than ever. Wallace has done more for black people than any other governor."

House Speaker Tom Drake, a Wallace ally, said, "To me it was a sad moment, to me very sad, because I came up under Governor Wallace. It's just the end of an era."

Wallace, 66, had kept his decision a closely guarded secret until he was wheeled into a packed House chamber at the Capitol.

"I feel that I must say I have climbed my last political mountain," said Wallace, who began his political career 40 years ago with election to the state House. "I must pass the rope and the pick to another climber and say 'Climb on. Climb to higher heights. Climb on until you reach the very peak, then look back and wave at me. For I, too, will still be climbing.'"

He was left crippled by a would-be assassin during a Democratic presidential campaign rally at Laurel, Md., in 1972, has suffered physical ailments in recent years and had begun dropping in the latest polls.

"These five bullets gave me a thorn in the flesh," he said. "I prayed that it be removed, but it was not."

"I may not be able to give you the fullest measure that you deserve from a governor."

After his 1962 election, Wallace was barred by law from running for re-election, so he ran his wife, Lurleen, in his place. She won overwhelmingly but died of cancer two years later. Wallace won his second term in 1970 and, under a revised law, was re-elected in 1974.

11 Perish In Crash Of Plane

MAGDALENA, N.M. (AP) — A board of officers is investigating the crash of an Air Force search-and-rescue plane that went down in a ball of flames while on a training mission, killing 11 crewmen.

The HC-130, assigned to Kirtland Air Force Base in Albuquerque, crashed Wednesday afternoon 16 miles north of Magdalena, authorities said.

"The wreckage is scattered over a mile radius" in rough terrain, said state police dispatcher Rudy Chavez.

Ruben Leal, public affairs specialist at Kirtland, said the airplane was on a training mission. The crew was performing low-level navigation exercises, said George Pearce, the base's deputy director of public affairs.

Joe Sanchez, a ranch hand from Magdalena, said he saw the crash from about 10 miles away.

"I was checking heifers that were having some calves. At the time I was looking at a cow out there and I looked up and saw it," he said.

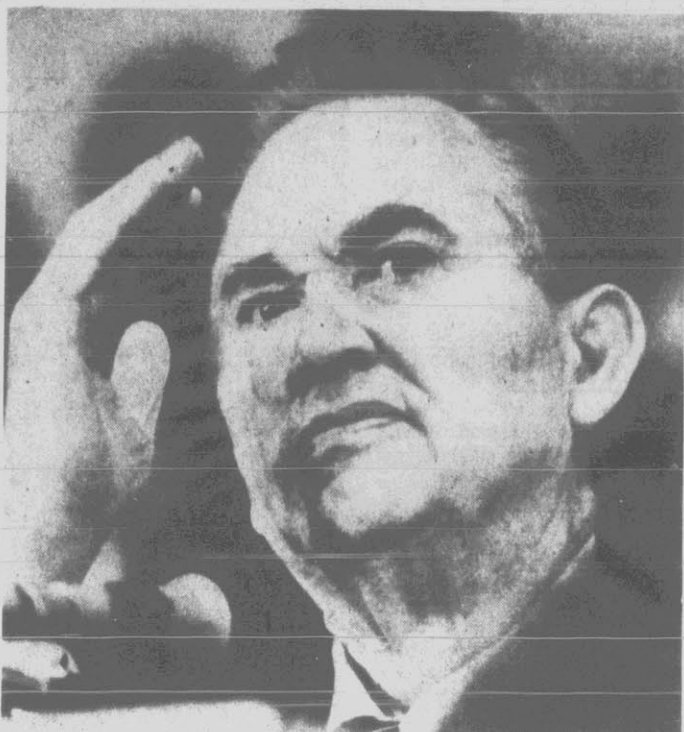

"We saw a big ball of smoke, then another one, then a big ball of fire. It was a big old explosion — like a forest fire."

He said he met sheriff's officers on the way to the crash site, an isolated area known as Bear Mountain.

The wreckage was "spread in little canyons and little hills ... and little trees," Sanchez said.

The HC-130, a four-engine turboprop, is a search and rescue version of the C-130 cargo plane, said base spokeswoman Kay Peterson said. She said a board of officers is investigating the crash.

The Air Force identified those killed as Tech. Sgt. Antonio C. Medina of Las Cruces; Lt. Col. Stephen J.

Housing

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The Reagan administration's proposed budget would allow this state only 90 new units of public housing in the next five years, North Carolina Housing Commission member Betty Chafin Rash told a housing forum Wednesday.

Those units would be scattered statewide, she told the Charlotte Women's Political Caucus.

By The Associated Press
HOGS: Trend is steady to 25 cents lower at N.C. buying stations. Kinston, Spivey's Corner, Murfreesboro, Siler City and Robersonville, 39.50; Clinton, Fayetteville, Dunn, Pink Hill, Pine Level, Chadburn, Ayden, Laurinburg and Benson 39.50; Wilson 39.25; Rowland 39.00. Sows: (500 pounds up) Fayetteville 36.00; Whiteville 35.00; Wallace 39.00; Spivey's Corner unreported; Rowland 39.00.

BROILERS: The North Carolina fob dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 45.00 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2 1/2 to 3 pounds birds. Too few of the percent of the loads offered have been confirmed for a preliminary weighted average. The market is steady to firm and the live supply is adequate for a good demand. Average weights desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Thursday was 1,953,000, compared to 1,725,000 last Thursday.

GRAIN: No. 2 yellow shelled corn steady to 1 cent lower at mostly 2.66-2.78 in East and mostly 2.80-2.89 in the Piedmont; No. 1 yellow soybeans 4 to 5 cents lower at mostly 5.37-5.48 1/2 in East and mostly 5.25-5.29 in the Piedmont; wheat mostly 3.17-3.55; (new crop corn 1.98-2.09, new crop soybeans 4.82-5.08, new crop wheat 2.14-2.64).

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today amid some uncertainty about the outlook for oil prices and interest rates.

Trading was moderate. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks dropped 3.71 to 1,791.55 in the first hour of trading.

Gainers outnumbered losers by about 4 to 3 in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Prices of crude oil futures declined on the New York Mercantile Exchange. But interest rates, which have been very sensitive lately to oil-price fluctuations, rose in the credit markets this morning.

Homestake Mining rose 1/8 to 23 1/2. The company said it agreed to buy 1.25 million shares of its stock held by Case, Pomeroy & Co.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks slipped .01 to 136.07. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .41 at 288.46.

On Wednesday the Dow Jones industrial average recovered from an early 12-point deficit to finish with a 5.15 gain at 1,795.26.

But declining issues outnumbered advances by about 6 to 5 on the NYSE. Big Board volume totaled 145.30 million shares, against 167.39 million in the previous session.

Security Tightened

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President George Bush sets out today on a trip to the Persian Gulf region, where officials say "prudent" security precautions are in place because of heightened concern for his safety.

Marlin Fitzwater, the vice president's press secretary, said there had been no change in Bush's schedule because of the bombing Wednesday of a TWA jetliner bound for Athens.

Administration officials say the trip poses greater-than-usual security risks for Bush because of recent threats by Libya's Moammar Khadafy to strike at Americans in retaliation for U.S. military action against Libya in the Gulf of Sidra.

After an overnight stop in Frankfurt, West Germany, the vice president will arrive in Riyadh, Saudi Arabia, on Saturday, the first stop on a 10-day tour that also will take him to Bahrain, Oman and North Yemen.

He is scheduled to return to Washington April 13.

Construction on the house, to be a home-away-from-home for families of children hospitalized at Pitt County Memorial Hospital, is scheduled to begin within 60 days. For information on "Coins for Kids" or the Ronald McDonald House, contact Kathy Brown, 756-7004.

Among the day care centers taking part are Bethel Tender Loving Day Care, Caroline's Country Day Care, Children's World, Creative Days Learning Center, Discovery Place Inc., Edwin Kids Day Care, Greenville Child Care Center, Industrial Park Day Care, Joyce's Day Care Center, Kids' World, Kimberly's Preschool, The Learning Tree, Pitt Community College Preschool Lab, Tammy's 1, 2 and 3, and the United Cerebral Palsy Center.

Pirates, Schaffer Down Dogs

A Slower Pace

WILSON — Freshman walk-on Keith Schaffer held Atlantic Christian in check after a first-inning run and East Carolina rallied to take a 4-1 baseball victory over the Bulldogs Wednesday night.

The Pirates scored three times in the sixth inning and added an insurance run in the ninth inning to come away with the win, their third over Atlantic Christian this season.

Schaffer gave up an unearned run in the opening inning to the Bulldogs, but kept them from making but one more threat — that in the sixth when they left the bases loaded. Otherwise, the rookie kept them off the bases.

He scattered six hits, walked two and struck out six in gaining his third victory against no losses this year.

East Carolina, meanwhile, had its troubles with three Bulldog pitchers, not offering any type of threat until the sixth when they took advantage of three Atlantic Christian errors and a passed ball along with getting a double of singles.

Atlantic Christian struck for the lead in the opening inning. Mark Mauldin led off, reaching on an error. After being sacrificed to second, he scored on Wayne Murphy's single.

It remained that way until the sixth inning when the Pirates finally got on the scoreboard — moving into the lead, 3-1.

David Ritchie led off the inning with a walk. He was sacrificed up and Chris Bradberry, bunting for a hit, beat out the play to reach safely. The ball, not in time, was overthrown at first, however, allowing Ritchie to score with the tying run.

Bradberry then stole second and raced on to third when the ball was overthrown on the attempt to get him. Winfred Johnson walked and a passed ball scored Bradberry with the go-ahead run. Johnson, who also advanced on the play, then scored on Mike Sullivan's single.

The Pirates went down in order the next two frames, but added a fourth run in the ninth. Steve Sides singled and stole second, scoring on Mark Cockrell's single.

Bradberry and Sides led the ECU hitting with two each. Murphy had three hits for Atlantic Christian, half the team's total.

The win boosts East Carolina to 22-4 on the season, while the Bulldogs drop to 21-15.

East Carolina was to face N.C. State in Raleigh today at 3 p.m. The Pirates then return home to host George Mason in a Colonial Athletic Association doubleheader Saturday at 1 p.m., with a single game set between the two on Sunday at 1 p.m.

Asbury Gets 1st Win—Unofficially

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Four long years and 75 games after Asbury College fielded its first baseball team, the record-setting Eagles came out a winner — at least unofficially.

It happened Monday when they swept a doubleheader from Lee's Junior College of Jackson. On Wednesday, Asbury lost twice and set with the first-game defeat an NAIA record of 49 consecutive losses.

"The players were excited," Asbury Coach Cecil Zweifel said of the victories.

But, according to the National Association for Intercollegiate Athletics office in Kansas City, they won't count because they didn't come against a four-year school.

"We came back to the world of reality," Zweifel said with a laugh perfected by all the losing he's known in his four-year stretch as coach. "I laughed because I knew crying wouldn't help."

Asbury's unofficial victories over Lee's were followed by two official losses to Georgetown (Ky.) College, 21-0 and 15-0, on Wednesday, extending the official losing streak to 50 games, minus 27 unofficial losses to junior colleges.

NAIA spokesman Charlie Eppler said York College of Nebraska held the previous mark of 48 consecutive losses from 1977-80.

The Eagles worked under a severe handicap the first three seasons. They didn't have a field to practice on.

"We would play our home games 26 miles from here in Athens," Zweifel said. "Every time we played we were practicing because that was the only time we were on a field."

They would manage to get in some hitting and outfield practice on the school's golf course, but that was between foursomes and watching out for stray golf balls.

Now the Eagles have their own baseball field.

"It's new," said the 56-year-old coach, "but there's a lot of work to be done and a lot of grass to grow. It's really an excellent facility."

The field is laid out to U.S. Baseball Federation specifications, with the foul lines 330 feet and 405 feet to center field. Bleachers have also been ordered to seat a growing number of fans.

"We now have a batting cage up," Zweifel said. "The players hit 50 balls a day. And the outfielders and infielders field 50 balls a day. We never had that before."

"I don't think the past is a fair judge at all about our program. It made me wonder if we should have started that early. It probably wasn't realistic."

And it has been difficult on some of the players.

"We have three players who have been with us the four years," said Zweifel, who also serves as athletic director.

Herrin Leads Rose To 2nd

JACKSONVILLE — Rose High School's Mike Herrin led the Ram-pants to a second place finish in the Jacksonville Junior Team Invitational Golf Tournament at the Jacksonville Country Club Wednesday.

Herrin had a 75 to tie with West Carteret's Dan Springfield for medalist honors on the day.

Hosting Jacksonville won the event with a 315 total while Rose — still missing top golfer Simon Moye — was second at 317. Whiteville was third with 321 followed by Eastern Wayne at 322.

Other team scores were: New Bern 324, West Carteret 340, Richlands 342, White Oak 378 and Bertie 379.

While Herrin was tied for first, David Lee posted a 76 to finish in a three-way tie for third. Other Rose scores were Greg Hallow 80, and Mitch Mitchum 86.

Rose returns to action on Monday, hosting Kinston at Brook Valley Country Club.

Sports Med Event Set

The East Carolina University Sports Medicine Division will hold its 16th annual Sports Medicine Conference April 11-12.

The event will begin April 11 at 8 a.m. at the Belk Allied Health Building on the ECU campus. The conference will be under the direction of Rod Compton, head athletic trainer and director of Sports Medicine at ECU.

Initiated in 1970, the conference will feature Drs. Ed Bartlett and James Bowman, orthopaedic surgeons. Team physician Dr. James McCallum and team dentist Dr. Richard Evans will also be on the program.

The conference is open to all athletic trainers from students to certified as well as to coaches.

For registration information contact the ECU Division of Continuing Education at (919) 757-6143.

Bean Expects To Be Factor

GREENSBORO (AP) — Andy Bean doesn't merely hope to be a factor in the $500,000 Greater Greensboro Open Golf Tournament. He expects it.

"The key is that I'm putting well," Bean said before teeing off today in the first round on the hilly, 6,984-yard par-72 Forest Oaks Country Club course.

"I've been playing well, striking the ball well, most of the year. But the putting has been kind of in and out. And it's hard to score well when you're not putting."

"Now, I feel like I'm putting well, really putting a good stroke on it. If I can keep that up, look out," Bean said.

Bean, who hadn't won since taking this title in 1984, finished second in the Honda Classic last month despite "three-putting I don't know how many times," he said.

"But if you can finish second and not be putting, you've got to be hitting an awful lot of good shots," he said.

The following week, at Doral, he continued to have putting problems. But he won the tournament. It was his third title at Doral and the 10th of his career, broke that non-winning string and stamped Bean as a prime contender, not only for the Greensboro tournament but next week's Masters as well.

"I know I'm playing good. And if I can putt good, then I'm going to be making an awful lot of birdies," he said.

But he's not alone in that category. In fact, one of his chief challengers in the chase for a $90,000 first prize is the man who led the PGA Tour in birdie-production last year, defending Greensboro champion Joey Sindelar.

In addition to Bean there are three other men in the 144-man Greensboro field who have scored 1986 PGA Tour victories: Fuzzy Zoeller, Corey Pavin and Dan Forsman.

Some other leading figures are former Greensboro champions Lanny Wadkins, Larry Nelson and Danny Edwards, a two-time winner here.

Also on hand are British Open champion Sandy Lyle of Scotland, Mark O'Meara, Wayne Levi, Craig Stadler and Jim Thorpe.

NCAA Okays 3-Point Goal Try

DALLAS (AP) — A decision by the NCAA men's basketball rules committee to impose a three-point goal and the use of instant replays to correct timing and scoring errors has met with mixed reviews by college coaches.

One praised the moves, another called the three-point goal "silly." Notre Dame's Digger Phelps was less than enthusiastic about the rules changes, announced Wednesday by Dr. Edward S. Steitz, secretary-editor of the rules committee and athletic director of Springfield, Mass., College.

"It would be nice, one of these years, to let the game settle down and see what we really have," Phelps said. "If anything needed to be addressed, it's still the foul situation at the end of the game."

Southern Methodist Coach Dave

Bliss thinks the idea will work.

"I think you'll see a lot of dramatic comeback attempts and a lot of dramatic losses," Bliss said. "I think it will be positive."

Under the new rule, three points will be credited for a shot made 19 feet, 9 inches from the basket and beyond.

In another rules change, coaches no longer will be charged with a technical foul if they leave the coaching box to protest errors involving time, scoring and alternating possession.

Louisville assistant coach Bobby Dotson questioned the need for the three-point goal.

"The game was going awfully good," he said. "I don't see why they need to mess with it. I can't understand why they would put something like this in."

"I think it's silly."

Steitz said the three-point goal would ease the rough play beneath the basket.

"It's going to force teams to play more defense away from the basket," Steitz said. "People will say 'you are putting the little man back into the game' and that's good."

Steitz stressed that instant replays would be used only to clarify timing and scoring questions.

An incident that occurred in Kansas City during the NCAA Midwest Regional two weeks ago was a factor in the decision to use the replay, Steitz said.

A clock malfunctioned, causing 15 seconds to be lost during a game between Kansas and Michigan State, and the incident was blamed for blemishing the Jayhawks' victory.

Steitz said conferences experimented with different distances for the three-point goal before adopting the 19-9 distance.

"Some conferences used the pro distance (23-9) and didn't find that desirable," he said. "As a result of a questionnaire, most of the coaches preferred 19-9."

In another rules change, the committee eliminated the 28-foot hash marks and the combination count while a player is being closely guarded in the mid-court area.

Under the new rule, the entire front court will have a five-second count on a closely guarded player for either holding or dribbling the ball.

"Having just one count eliminates a lot of confusion," Steitz said.

He said the committee also singled out several existing rules that would be stressed next season.

They include illegal use of hands and arms during rough post play; ejection of players because for flagrant intentional fouls; illegal screening away from the ball and three-second violations.

The committee also listed several items for experimentation including:

- Creation of a rear boundary arc concept. Instead of requiring 10 seconds to cross midcourt, teams would have to advance to the arc within 10 seconds.

- Widening the free throw lanes from 12 feet to the NBA width of 16.

- Reducing the size of the backboard as a safety factor. The size reduction would be below the basket to help prevent player injury.

- Permit a player with four personal fouls at the end of regulation play to receive two more fouls in overtime play before fouling out. A player who fouled out in regulation play could not return in overtime.

- Reduce officials' pregame jurisdiction from 30 minutes to 20 minutes.

Conferences that want to experiment with any of the items must receive approval from J. Dallas Shirley of the Southern Conference, Steitz said.

Shirley is the rules committee's research chairman.

Krzyzewski Says Rule To Cause Chaos On Court

By The Associated Press

Duke Coach Mike Krzyzewski says the use of the three-point field goal will lead to chaos in college basketball at a time when the game doesn't need any changes.

"I'm shocked that something like this has been passed at this time. To me, the game seems to be great right now. This is a revolutionary change and I don't think it's good for the game right now," Krzyzewski said Wednesday after the NCAA adopted a 19-foot, 9-inch three-point shot.

But Virginia Coach Terry Holland said he had little objection to the rule.

"I thought maybe they would wait a little longer before going to it. I'm for standard basketball rules at all levels, and we already have the three-pointer in the NBA..." Holland said.

In addition to the three-point rule, the rules committee adopted instant replays to assist in scoring and timekeeping calls. Videotaped replays would not be used to settle arguments over judgment calls such as fouls.

"We've just had a year of no chaos and now we're introducing chaos," Krzyzewski said. "I don't think that's good for the game. There are a lot of major coaches shocked by this. If we're shocked, then you know there hasn't been a lot of discussion about it, and certainly there has been no public outcry to implement a three-point shot."

"It could have more impact on the game than the shot clock. I'm not for it, and I'm really against the timing of the decision," he said.

Wake Forest coach Bob Staak said he's had no experience with the rule.

"I think I'm going to have to get (5-foot-3 guard) Tyrone Bogues on somebody's shoulders to shoot that shot," Staak said. "Seriously, I'm concerned that sometimes people will get too involved with that shot to the detriment of the offense. But it should be exciting for the fans."

Krzyzewski said he was also against televised replays.

"I'm not for that right now because every game can't have it. This isn't the NFL where every game is televised. Some schools never have games televised. If it isn't a rule that everyone can use in every game, then we shouldn't have that rule," he said.

Coaches from Kansas and Louisville, two other Final Four teams, said the three-point goal could make zone defenses obsolete.

"I think the three-pointer has merit, (but) I'm a little confused about the distance," said Coach Larry Brown of Kansas, which lost to Duke in the semifinals. "I don't want it to be such an easy shot that it really becomes more important than anything, because I don't think that's the purpose; I do think that it'll open the game up a little more and we probably won't see as many zones."

Louisville assistant coach Jerry Jones, who said he was speaking for Coach Denny Crum, said his first reaction to the three-point goal was "that shot can cause as much harm as benefit because it's not a high-percentage shot."

"I think it's a way of legislating against zone defenses without really saying so," Jones said.

"We put the (shot) clock in and if that didn't keep you out of the zone,

"We'll put the three-point play in to make you play man-to-man," Jones said the NCAA was seeming to say.

Wyoming Coach Jim Brandenburg joined Krzyzewski in questioning the timing of the rule change.

"The rules committee dropped a bombshell on the coaching profession," Brandenburg said. "We just got the 45-second clock. We should stabilize the game."

"I'm very surprised to see it (three-point goal) pass," Notre Dame Coach Digger Phelps said. "I didn't realize it was under serious consideration, based on the experimentation by major conferences a few years back, which generally seemed to be negative."

Steve Alford, Indiana's All-American guard, said he likes the three-point rule.

"Anytime you add something to an individual's game that is his particular asset or strength, you've got to like it," Alford said. "And I think shooting's one of my strengths and probably my major strength. My jump shot's worth one more point now."

But he added, "I really don't see our (the Hoosiers') game changing. We've had that rule before in the Big Ten and it didn't really change our game that much."

Iowa State basketball Coach Johnny Orr was pleased with the three-point shot plan.

Harrison Likes 3-Point Goal

While there was mixed reaction from across the nation over the installation of the three-point basket into college basketball next year, East Carolina Coach Charlie Harrison is pleased.

"I like it," he said. "I think that with the clock and with all the zones and junk defenses being played, they need something to maybe neutralize that. This will put a little more pressure on the defense to do some things or to cover up some things."

Harrison said that while he had never played with a three-point line, he favored its use in combination with the clock.

"When we first voted to have the clock, I wasn't that much in favor of (the clock). The reason for that isn't that I don't like the up-tempo play, but the idea that people will back up in zone defenses and pressure certain people. That helps the defense more than it does the offense.

"But with the three-point goal, although it's not an easy shot, teams that play teams that have shooters from that range will have to stop packing the defense in."

Harrison said he didn't think the rules change would alter his recruiting strategy. "A shooter can overcome a multitude of sins...and I'm talking about a fine shooter. There are two things that you look at — if he can shoot that shot, there's a place for him on the floor. And, too, it will cause people to come out and play you, and make you also have people who can create plays."

Boston Breaks Streak Mark With 28th Straight

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD

AP Basketball Writer

To K.C. Jones, records are no big deal, even when they are 36 years old.

"It is rest and preparation for the playoffs that are important," the Boston coach said Wednesday night after the Celtics established a single-season record with their 28th straight home victory. "A team in 1934 broke a record. Who cares? Twenty years from now nobody will care about this record."

The Celtics beat the Detroit Pistons 122-106 with an overpowering performance by their front line of Larry Bird, Robert Parish and Kevin McHale, who combined for 83 points and 37 rebounds.

"It's something that happens to be here on the way to the playoffs," Jones said of the record that broke the NBA mark for consecutive home victories established by the Minneapolis Lakers in 1949-50. "I really can't get into the record. I can get into what we need to win the ballgame."

But Detroit Coach Chuck Daly said the Boston players wanted the record.

"I'm sure the winning streak was in the back of their minds because they all played very hard tonight," Daly said. "I would rather have come in here on another night."

Elsewhere in the NBA, it was Philadelphia 93, New York 87; Phoenix 110, Golden State 101; Los Angeles Clippers 97, Utah 94; and Portland 121, Seattle 109.

Parish had a season-high 30 points and 18 rebounds, Bird had 29 points, 11 rebounds and 13 assists and McHale added 24 points and eight rebounds.

The Pistons played without guard Isiah Thomas, who missed his third consecutive game with a pulled left hamstring.

The Celtics now are 37-1 at Boston, equalling the mark for most home victories in a season achieved twice each by Philadelphia and the Los Angeles Lakers. If Boston wins its remaining six games, it will tie the NBA mark for best single-season record, 69-13, set by the Lakers in 1971-72.

76ers 93, Knicks 87

Philadelphia, playing without center Moses Malone, still had plenty of healthy players to beat New York, which lost its sixth consecutive game.

Charles Barkley had 18 points and 19 rebounds and scored the first five points of the final period to extend a two-point lead to 73-66, and the Knicks, who have lost seven players for the season because of injuries, never caught up.

Julius Erving added 23 points and rookie Terry Catledge 19, while Maurice Cheeks collected 14 points, nine assists and seven steals for the 76ers, who have lost Malone for the rest of the regular season because of a fractured eye socket. Darrell Walker led New York with 18 points.

Suns 110, Warriors 101

Phoenix improved its playoff chances with a strong fourth quarter against Golden State.

Alvan Adams and Larry Nance, who had 31 points, 15 rebounds and seven blocked shots, scored eight points each as the Suns outscored the Warriors 37-22 in the fourth period to rally from a 79-73 deficit. The lead changed hands 11 times in the quarter before Jay Humphries' jumper with 3:54 left put Phoenix ahead for good at 96-95.

Phoenix, which also got 27 points from Walter Davis, is now only 1½ games behind San Antonio in the race for the eighth and final Western Conference playoff berth. Golden State, which was paced by Joe Barry Carroll with 18 points, is out of playoff contention.

Clippers 97, Jazz 94

Los Angeles also stayed in playoff contention as Benoit Benjamin had 18 points and 16 rebounds for the Clippers against Utah.

The Clippers' fourth straight victory moved them to within 2½ games of the Spurs. Los Angeles trails Phoenix by a game.

Mark Eaton's two hook shots capped an 8-0 Utah run, giving the Jazz an 86-82 advantage with 6:56 left. The lead changed hands four times before Benjamin gave Los Angeles the lead at 95-94 with a slam dunk with two minutes remaining, and Norm Nixon hit a 15-foot jumper for the final points of the game.

Adrian Dantley, battling Atlanta's Dominique Wilkins and Denver's Alex English for his third league scoring title, scored a 29 points to lead all scorers. Dantley leads Wilkins by .10 and English by .12.

Trail Blazers 121, Sonics 109

Kiki Vandeweghe scored 36 points on 17-for-22 shooting against Seattle as Portland broke a 13-game road losing streak.

Vandeweghe had 12 points in the fourth quarter as the Trail Blazers broke open a close game, outscoring the Sonics 39-23 in the final period.

Xavier McDaniel had 27 points and 15 rebounds for the SuperSonics, while Gerald Henderson added 21. Clyde Drexler had 24 points for Portland.

Elon Tops ECU Men

ELON COLLEGE — Elon College rolled up an 8-1 tennis victory over East Carolina University Wednesday.

The Pirates managed only one victory on the day, that coming in the number six singles where Todd Sumner pulled out a 6-4, 6-3 win.

The Pirates did extend two other matches to three sets but were unable to pull them out.

Now 8-13 overall, the Pirates are 4-7 on the spring season. They return to action on Tuesday at High Point College.

Robinson Will Look At Options

Newest 'Fridge'

The Chicago Bears' William "Refrigerator" Perry, right, tickles his infant daughter Norie Shanta Perry at an Evanston, Ill., hospital Wednesday morning. The newest Perry, held ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — David Robinson may be having some nagging "what if?" second thoughts about his decision to remain at the U.S. Naval Academy.

While the 6-foot-11 basketball star plans no drastic action to avoid the five-year service hitch he faces after graduation, he's not adverse to at least investigating ways to delay the obligation.

"I haven't had time to look into it," he said Wednesday. "But if I get that option, I'll take it."

Robinson sees no future in resigning before graduation, a move that would result in a three-year hitch as an enlisted man. "That would be stupid," he said, "after what I've been through already at this place."

That means the agile center with the 1,320 SAT score will play for the Middies again next season, and then begin an agonizing wait until he can test his talents in the NBA in 1992.

Robinson had a chance to jump ship last summer, when he could have hastened his pro debut by transferring to a civilian school for the final two years of college. But once he started the junior year at the Naval Academy, Robinson was locked into the five-year postgraduate hitch.

"I'm comfortable with my decision... I feel good about it," Robinson insisted. "If I had transferred, I don't know what might have happened."

What's more, Robinson noted, he would have had to sit out the past season under NCAA regulations, and wouldn't have continued his meteoric improvement in a sport he has played competitively for only four years.

Robinson averaged 22.7 points a game while leading the Middies to a 30-5 record and a surprising appearance in the final eight of the NCAA tournament. His 13 rebounds and 5.9 blocked shots a game topped the nation.

The performance not only peaked Robinson's curiosity about playing in the NBA, but also got him to wondering if he would have stayed at Navy had he played that well as a sophomore.

"It would have been a lot tougher decision," he admitted. "But I still like my chances of playing pro ball later, so it's no big loss."

If there's any feeling of loss, it's among the NBA scouts and general managers who are almost reduced to tears while watching Robinson, knowing he probably won't be available until 1992.

"Robinson is a franchise player," said General Manager Bob Ferry of the Washington Bullets. "It's a shame he can't complete a 10-year pro career, and then serve five years in the Navy."

Ferry, however, sees no reason why Robinson couldn't succeed as a 27-year-old rookie, and neither does Roger Staubach, a former Naval Academy athlete who wound up in the Pro Football Hall of Fame following his postgraduate hitch.

"David can play ball in the service," Staubach said in a telephone interview from Dallas, "and he's not going to get any shorter. He's dedicated, so I'm sure he'll stay in shape."

Robinson expects to be able to play basketball in the service following graduation, and he will seek permission to try out for the 1988 U.S. Olympic team.

"If I stay in shape, I should be able to play pro ball," Robinson said. "I have the desire... that will keep me going. Waiting could help, because I'll be more mature. Pro life is not easy."

Robinson contends the chance to prove himself against top competition, and not money, is his chief motivating factor.

"I have the same desire as anyone else with money," he said, "but I don't equate money with happiness. If you have ability, you want to go against the best."

Niekro Might Be In Indian Uniform

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Cleveland outfielder Brett Butler has made a pitch to free agent Phil Niekro to sign with the Indians.

"He's interested in coming here," Butler said Wednesday. "He knows we have a good hitting club and said he's not necessarily interested in being with a contender."

Niekro, in a phone interview, said talks with Indians management had been going "well."

"We'll know something very soon," said Dan O'Brien, Indians' senior vice president for baseball operations.

Butler and Niekro — a 300-game winner — are neighbors in Lilburn, Ga. They played together with the Atlanta Braves.

"His main concern is not being treated like a 47-year-old man," Butler said. "He wants to be treated like a starting pitcher who will get the ball every fifth day."

Butler said he told the knuckleball pitcher who was waived last week by the New York Yankees not to worry.

"I told him they'd probably give him the ball every three days," Butler said. "I think he'd improve our pitching staff. He could work with Tom Candiotti on his knuckleball. I mean the guy won 16 games each of the last two seasons."

Knicks To Surpass Mark Of Injuries Set Last Year

NEW YORK (AP) — The 1984-85 New York Knicks set an NBA record for most manpower games lost to injury, a dubious standard that lasted only until the 1985-86 Knicks came along.

"We had 339 games lost due to injury last season and that was an awesome stat," Coach Hubie Brown said. "And we'll surpass that this year."

The misfortune of last season seemed to be reversing itself last May when the Knicks won the chance to choose first in the June draft, and walked off with 7-foot Patrick Ewing, the most ballyhooed center to come into the league in a decade.

Spirits were high as the Knicks spent the summer taking season ticket orders, which resulted in their best attendance at Madison Square Garden since 1978-79.

Never did the team expect to have 373 manpower games lost to injury, which is the number the Knicks will reach if they avoid more setbacks in the last 10 days of the regular season.

Seven players — Ewing, Bernard King, Bill Cartwright, Pat Cummings, Rory Sparrow, James Bailey and Eddie Wilkins — suffered injuries that ended their season. King was the NBA's leading scorer in 1984-85, and all the others were starters when they were hurt.

Here's what happened:

—King and Wilkins, with knee surgery, did not play at all;

—Cartwright made two appearances at midseason before he fractured his left foot for the third time;

—Cummings played 31 games before ankle surgery ended his season;

—Ewing played brilliantly for 50 games before knee surgery;

—Bailey missed several games early in the season before returning to become the best healthy player in February. A sprained wrist ended his season after he played 48 games;

—Sparrow was the starting point guard for 74 games before breaking his left ankle on March 24.

"If everyone had been healthy at the start, we would have been a contender," Bailey said. "You look at the way we're playing, nobody's giving up on any night. It's tough, but you've got to keep a positive outlook. You can't cancel any of the games. It's depressing. We're outmatched night after night."

To his credit, Brown has kept a team of castoffs and low draft choices competitive on the court, if not the standings. Although the Knicks have the worst record in the NBA, only a handful of their losses have been by more than 10 points; and for most of those, they were in the game in the fourth period.

"Before every game with New York, I tell my players that no matter how depleted that team is, every time out will be a war," said Atlanta Coach Mike Fratello, a former Knicks assistant. "Brown has done a fantastic coaching job. What happened to the Knicks this year, after the string of bad luck last year, is unbelievable."

"It's been a helter-skelter year," said 6-9 Ken Bannister, a former seventh-round draft pick and now the tallest and highest-scoring Knick. "The only way to prepare yourself night after night is just go out there intending to play hard. Hubie encourages us to go on and not give up on ourselves."

"It's hard on the coach and the players," Brown said. "Since the All-Star Game, Patrick Ewing has played two games. When we play huge teams like Houston, Boston and Philadelphia, we are really outmanned. We have a feisty bunch of guys, but we're underdogs every single game."

Several Knicks who were on the team two years ago when they took the Celtics to seven games in the conference semifinals are finding it hard to deal with the team's downfall.

"It's been a drastic change," guard Trent Tucker said. "When we opened the season, we knew that if everyone stayed healthy, we would have finished second or third in the Atlantic Division. Being snakebitten again this year is something I can't explain."

"I've been in this league nine years and I've never seen anything like this," swingman Ernie Grunfeld said. "We've lost our top six players and it's disheartening."

Three Rookies May Make Reds

By The Associated Press
Three rookie outfielders could be on the Cincinnati Reds' roster for next Monday's season opener against Philadelphia following strong spring training performances.

Tracy Jones, Kal Daniels and Paul O'Neill, each of whom batted .300 or better last season for the Reds' farm team in Denver, played important roles Wednesday as Cincinnati beat Houston 3-2 in exhibition action. Jones had two hits to raise his spring average to .366, while Daniels and O'Neill keyed the Reds' three-run ninth-inning rally.

The Astros led 2-0 entering the ninth, but Daniels singled and scored on a double by Tony Perez. O'Neill doubled later in the inning to drive in the tying and winning runs.

"Everybody says I'm there, but I won't feel relaxed until I hear it from one guy (Manager Pete Rose)," O'Neill said. "You get to this point and waiting for a decision is really anxious."

In other games, it was Oakland 16, Chicago Cubs 7; Milwaukee 22, Seattle 10; Detroit 9, Boston 3; New York Mets 7, Minnesota 1; New York Yankees 8, Chicago White Sox split squad 2; Kansas City 5, White Sox split squad 3; Los Angeles 2, Montreal split squad 1; Atlanta 7, Montreal split squad 1; Philadelphia 4, Toronto 3; Baltimore 12, Texas 6; Pittsburgh 10, St. Louis 7; Cleveland 9, San Francisco 8, and San Diego 6, Chicago 5.

The Reds opened an extra roster spot for one of the rookies Monday by trading infielder Wayne Krenchicki to Montreal for a minor-league pitcher. One of the three may still be sent down, however.

"We hear rumors, but it's not mine to say," O'Neill said. "It's not in our hands, so I can't even guess. I just worry about myself. Things will work out for themselves."

The Reds' ability to keep all three rookies on the opening-day roster may depend on a possible trade of Eddie Milner, last year's regular center fielder who has apparently lost his starting job to Eric Davis. Milner, despite batting .389, has had only 18 at-bats this spring because of an injured wrist.

"I can't say that we were shopping Eddie," General Manager Bill

Bergesch said. "If we were trying to make a deal, I wouldn't make any comment."

Royals 5, White Sox 3
Tom Seaver, who has asked to be traded to New York or Boston, gave up a tie-breaking two-run homer to Frank White that helped Kansas City beat Chicago.

"All I can do is wait and see what develops," Seaver said. "I can't force anyone's hand. In essence, I'm a third party in this matter." Both New York and Boston are closer to Seaver's Greenwich, Conn., home than Chicago.

The White Sox scored twice off American League Cy Young Award winner Bret Saberhagen in a 4-2-3 innings. Saberhagen had had some shoulder tenderness that cost him his opening day assignment next week.

Yankees 8, White Sox 2
Ron Guidry allowed only three singles in seven shutout innings as he tuned up for the season opener by beating Chicago.

Henry Cotto's leadoff homer sparked a five-run first inning for the Yankees against Steve McCatty.

A's 16, Cubs 7

Mike Davis and rookie Jose Canseco hit two home runs apiece for Oakland, with Davis adding a single in a seven-RBI performance.

The A's had six of the eight homers and 17 of the 31 hits at windy Phoenix Stadium. Dusty Baker and Mickey Tettleton also homered for Oakland. Jody Davis and Ron Cey countered for Chicago.

Brewers 22, Mariners 10
Mike Felder hit two home runs and drove in five runs in another windswept game. Felder led a 28-hit barrage that included five hits each by Robin Yount and Rick Cerone on a day when virtually every ball hit into the air was an adventure because of the winds. The game was stopped after eight innings to permit the Mariners to catch a flight to Seattle.

Tigers 9, Red Sox 3
Alan Trammell, Kirk Gibson and Chet Lemon homered for Detroit while Dave LaPoint pitched seven innings, giving up three runs on six hits, including Bill Buckner's three-run homer. Boston's Al Nipper was tagged for six runs on 11 hits in six innings.

Mets 7, Twins 1
Dwight Gooden hurled seven scoreless innings in his strongest spring outing and Gary Carter's fourth home run ignited a six-run second inning for New York against Minnesota.

Gooden, coming off three straight mediocre outings, scattered four hits and struck out five.

Dodgers 2, Expos 1
Pinch hitter Terry Whitfield doubled home the winning run for Los Angeles with two out in the bottom of the ninth, scoring Ken Landreaux.

Fernando Valenzuela pitched seven scoreless innings for the Dodgers in his final preseason tuneup. He allowed four hits and struck out six and did not walk a batter.

Braves 7, Expos 1
Bob Horner hit a two-run homer and Rick Mahler earned his fourth victory of the spring for Atlanta by scattering seven hits over seven innings and lowering his spring earned run average to 2.48.

Phillies 4, Blue Jays 3
Luis Aguayo hit a two-run homer in the sixth inning and Kevin Gross pitched seven innings for his third spring victory. Glenn Wilson hit a solo homer in the fourth for Philadelphia.

Orioles 12, Rangers 6
Fred Lynn hit a pair of homers and Cal Ripken added a two-run shot as Baltimore bombed Texas.

Alan Wiggins had four hits and Lynn and Mike Young three each as the Orioles collected 21 hits off four Texas pitchers. Lynn hit a two-run homer off Matt Williams in the first inning and a three-run shot off Mitch Williams in the seventh.

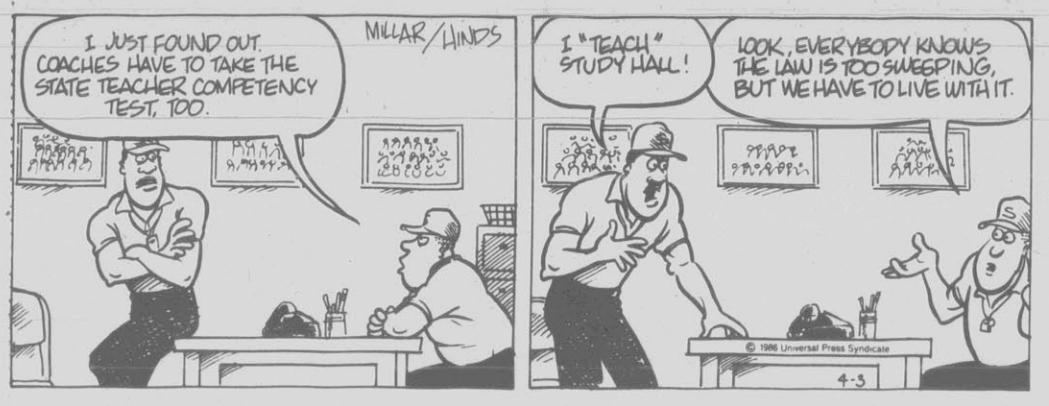

Pirates 10, Cardinals 7
Sixto Lezcano homered and drove in four runs and pinch hitter Lee Mazzilli hit a tie-breaking two-run homer to pace Pittsburgh's 19-hit attack.

Indians 9, Giants 8
Joe Carter single snapped an 8-8 tie in the sixth inning. Ken Schrom, Cleveland's opening-day pitcher, got the victory despite allowing eight runs, seven of them earned, and 10 hits in five innings.

Padres 6, Angels 5
Mark Thurmond allowed one unearned run in six innings and every San Diego starter had at least one hit.

Thurmond, 3-0 in six starts this spring, struck out two and walked three while California's Mike Witt lost for the fourth time in five decisions this spring, giving up six runs and 11 hits in five innings.

Bennett New Furman Chief

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) — George Bennett, named athletic director at Furman, is coming to his home state with a positive attitude and a reputation of being able to raise money.

Bennett, Vanderbilt's associate athletic director, said he is "just tremendously excited and enthusiastic about the opportunity" to head Furman's athletic department.

"You're going to hear me use the word enthused a lot, because I don't think you can accomplish much without enthusiasm. And nobody is going to work any harder at it than I will," Bennett said.

"We have something to sell," said Bennett. "I believe in the power of positive thinking," he said after his appointment was announced Wednesday.

Bennett, a Columbia native and Clemson graduate, will replace Dick Sheridan, who in late December resigned his posts as athletic director and football coach to coach football at North Carolina State.

The 52-year-old Bennett, who is well known for his fund-raising ef-orts, said Furman has a great base of support.

Any IRA reduces the tax you sent to Washington, but only First Federal's IRA keeps your money at home.

Only First Federal's IRA assures you that your retirement money is to be used here in the local economy. That's because First Federal is the only financial institution that operates offices only in Pitt County. So with a First Federal IRA, your money works right here while you're working right here.

What's more, your tax-deductible IRA contribution at First Federal is insured by the same people who offer you the tax deduction: the FSLIC, an agency of the federal government. As an added bonus, First Federal's IRA investments generally pay higher interest than federally-insured investments at the big banks.

But those aren't the only reasons to open IRA at First Federal. Our customer service representatives are IRA specialists with the knowledge and experience to help you choose the right IRA investment. And unlike most banks, First Federal doesn't limit your investment choices. All First Federal investment products are available as IRAs; we can even help you set up a self-directed IRA that can include stocks and bonds purchased through our discount brokerage service.

When you add it up, First Federal is your first choice for your IRA. Higher rates, federal insurance and personable people, happy to help you choose the right IRA without limiting your investment choices.

And best of all, with a First Federal IRA, you know your money will be working here with you until you're ready to retire.

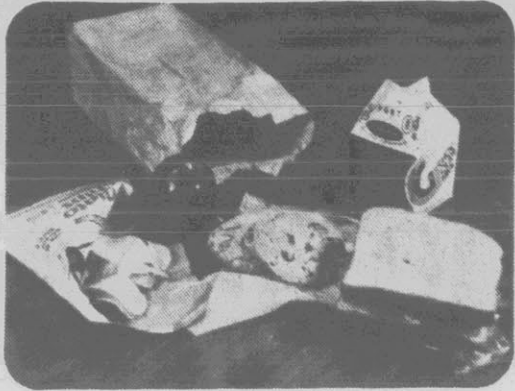

After all, your money shouldn't leave town before you do.

Fatal Foods

Conflicting dietary recommendations often lead people to wonder if ANY food is truly healthy. Less than ten years ago, such fears received less credence. In 1977, a Senate Select Committee on Nutrition recommended that Americans eat more vegetables, whole grains, and fish, while reducing their consumption of fatty foods, salt, eggs, and sugar. The American Medical Association called the diet "radical" and said there was no proof that diet is related to disease.

Eye Tissue Transplants In Animals Could Lead To Human Treatment

By MALCOLM RITTER
AP Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Researchers have successfully grafted retina tissue into damaged retinas in rats, suggesting the possibility of similar transplants to treat some eye diseases and injuries in humans, a scientist says.

Experiments showed that fetal or newborn rat retinal cells, injected into an injured portion of an adult rat retina, can survive, mature into the normal cell types found in that area and set up some structures to communicate with neighboring cells, said James Turner, anatomy professor at the Bowman Gray School of Medicine at Wake Forest University in Winston-Salem, N.C.

It's not known yet whether the grafted cells can step in effectively for the lost cells, but the successes so far give hope, he said Wednesday.

Another retinal transplant expert cautioned that the work still faces a major hurdle of demonstrating that transplanted cells can set up a crucial connection with the brain.

The retina is the back, inner lining of the eyeball, responsible for converting light into nerve impulses and sending them to the brain for interpretation.

Turner presented his results at a meeting on transplantation into the adult brain sponsored by the New York Academy of Sciences. His work is supported by the National Eye Institute.

If transplants can fully take over for lost or defective retinal cells, Turner said, they may someday help in treatment of eye injuries that damage the retina or such diseases as retinitis pigmentosa, which damages vision through degeneration of key cells of the retina.

But he stressed the technique is at "a very early developmental level, and there's no actual clinical therapy using this paradigm at the present time."

The research, done on hundreds of rats, showed that 95 percent of the transplants are successful, he said. The survival rates hold if the transplant is made one to eight weeks after the retina is injured, an encouraging sign for possible use in humans, Turner said.

Cells are transplanted before they take on the specialized forms they will assume as they mature. After the transplant, the cells mature and form the specialized cells the eye requires, Turner said. They also send out the fibers needed to communicate with neighboring cells of the host eye, but whether those fibers form useful connections, called synapses, with the host animal's cells is not yet known, he said.

Researchers believe some of the grafted cells mature into ganglion cells, whose role is to send long fibers through the optic nerve to carry impulses to the brain. Fibers have been observed extending from the graft toward the optic nerve, and researchers hope to prove they are ganglion fibers and that they do make the connection to the brain, Turner said.

That's an important issue for the researchers to face, said Steven C. McLoon, associate professor of cell biology and neuroanatomy at the University of Minnesota.

"It's not moving us that much closer to regaining sight until we can get an axon (fiber) to grow back into the brain," said McLoon. Previous experiments have found that the fibers stop at the head of the optic nerve rather than extending through it, he said.

Turner said that even if transplanted cells don't themselves make the connection to the brain, they may be able to function by communicating with host eye cells that do have the connection.

He said one experiment planned to prove that transplanted cells can function normally will be to inject them into rats and mice with genetic defects that make them blind, because of defective retinal cells. If those mice then show some response to light, it will demonstrate that the transplanted cells have taken over for the defective cells, he said.

Within the next five years, "we'll certainly be on our way with that particular approach," he said.

Once transplantation techniques are perfected, experiments in primates will be needed to tell if the concept is still promising for human use, he said.

Cell Transplant May Curb Chronic Pain

NEW YORK (AP) — Transplants of painkiller-producing bodily cells into the spinal cords of rats provided relief from pain up to four months, suggesting that such surgery may help control chronic pain in people, researchers say.

The experiments involved injections of nicotine, and people with intractable pain could be able to trigger relief by taking nicotine, even in chewing gum, or some other substance that acts like nicotine, said George Pappas, professor and head of the anatomy department at the University of Illinois College of Medicine in Chicago.

Possible candidates for the therapy include cancer and arthritis patients, amputees who still sense pain in the missing limb and others who suffer from chronic pain, said Jacqueline Sagen, a research associate in the anatomy department.

Pappas also said experiments showed that painkiller-producing cells from cows did the job in rats, suggesting the possibility of using animal cells for human patients. That would be a handier supply than human cells, he said.

Another expert called the work interesting but unlikely to produce a good alternative to traditional pain management in the near future.

Sagen and Pappas spoke in interviews Wednesday. Their work, financed by the National Institutes of Health, is being presented today at a meeting in New York on cell and tissue transplantation into the adult brain. The meeting is sponsored by the New York Academy of Sciences.

In the rat experiments, tissue was taken from the adrenal glands, which lie near the kidneys. Dissected pieces were then surgically placed just beneath the covering of the spinal cord in dozens of rats.

Afterwards, when the rats were injected with nicotine, the cells released two kinds of substances, called catecholamines and enkephalins, that relieve pain when taken up by the spinal cord.

The rats did not suffer chronic pain but were subjected to standard pain-producing tests. They have been tested up to four months after the transplant and nicotine-induced pain relief has continued to work in more than 80 percent of the animals, Sagen said. Since the cells are not rejected, she said, "theoretically they would be a permanent source of the substances."

"This is a natural, biological system," Pappas said. He expects the experiments to move into primates within a year to take them a step closer to humans, but he said he didn't know when the technique could be used in humans.

While mechanical pumps now can be used to supply painkilling substances to the spinal cord, the continual exposure of the cord to those substances produces an increasing tolerance, so that more and more drug is needed to get pain relief, Sagen said.

But preliminary rat experiments suggest tolerance may not build up with transplanted cells, she said, because they administer two kinds of painkillers.

A patient with transplanted cells also would take nicotine or a similar substance only for episodes of intense pain, reducing the threat of tolerance, she said.

Tom Jessell, associate professor in the biochemistry department and the Center for Neurobiology at the Columbia University College of Physicians and Surgeons, said he thought the research was interesting, but that he has a general reservation about how soon such studies might translate into useful therapies.

Injections of the painkilling substances directly into the spine rather than using transplants appears more feasible in the near future, he said.

Research with cancer patients offers hope that the tolerance problem can be largely overcome by using small amounts of different kinds of painkillers, Jessell said.

For a terminally ill cancer patient, it might be better just to give the drugs than subject the person to transplant surgery, he said. Though Pappas said the surgery would be as simple as a spinal tap, not even requiring an operating room, Jessell said complications still could develop.

Doctors Debate Kidney Donations By Friends

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
AP Science Writer

BOSTON (AP) — Allowing people to donate one of their kidneys — perhaps the ultimate gift to a friend — could shorten the long wait for transplants endured by many victims of kidney failure, a report today suggests.

Traditionally, doctors have limited living kidney donations to the parents, siblings and grown children of the recipient. Most kidneys for transplants come from cadavers, but these organs are in short supply.

Now, a team of doctors is urging their colleagues to reconsider their dogma and let the spouses and close friends of patients donate a kidney.

"The transplant community is beginning to talk about this," said Dr. Harry L. Bush Jr. of New England Medical Center in Boston. "We wanted to focus people's attention on it. It's provocative and will engender a lot of debate. But five years from now, I think this will be common practice."

Bush and Dr. Andrew S. Levey of New England Medical Center wrote the report with Dr. Susan Hou of Michael Reese Hospital and Medical Center in Chicago. It was published in the New England Journal of Medicine.

In 1984, doctors transplanted 5,264 cadaver kidneys and 1,704 kidneys from living relatives. However, 8,562 people who wanted kidney transplants were unable to have them because of the organ shortage.

Some oppose the suggestion, in part because they fear it could encourage the sale of organs, even though this is prohibited by federal law.

At Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston, Dr. Nicholas L. Tilney said his hospital's transplant program is being changed to allow spouses and distant relatives to give organs. But friends won't be permitted to do this.

"You never know, if it's not a spouse or blood relation, whether it's being done for money, and you can't have that," Tilney said.

Dr. Terry B. Strom of Boston's Beth Israel Hospital said he opposes the suggested change because it removes the advantage of tissue typing. Doctors routinely try to match the tissue type of cadaver organs with potential recipients. Organs that are closely matched are less likely to be rejected.

"The benefits of tissue typing are equal to cyclosporin," the leading anti-rejection drug, said Strom. "To throw it out the window is going in the wrong direction."

The issue is prompted by the dramatic improvement in recent years in surgeons' success in shifting organs among unrelated people.

Doctors once preferred to use organs from relatives, because they were less likely to be rejected by the recipients' immune systems. Kidneys taken from the dead only functioned about half the time.

But a variety of improvements, especially better drugs to suppress rejection, have improved those odds. Now, organs taken from cadavers are successfully transplanted in 75 percent to 85 percent of cases, and experts believe organs removed from unrelated donors should work as well.

Hou said that transplant teams should be able to determine whether a donor is giving up a kidney for selfish reasons.

"When we do this with family members," she said, "it becomes apparent with time whether or not the person is truly enthusiastic about giving the kidney, and with the same kind of attention we would give to an unrelated donor, we should be able to recognize this."

Study Indicates Firstborns Possess Intellectual Edge

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — A study designed to learn whether it is possible to improve the school performance of youngsters from poor families who are at risk for developmental retardation has found that being born first seems to give a child an intellectual edge over younger children.

The University of North Carolina study, scheduled to be published this spring, is based on the IQ scores of 95 children, involved since shortly after birth in the Abecedarian Project at the Frank Porter Graham Child Development Center. The project at the center is in its 15th year.

Analysis of scores showed children enrolled in the center's academically oriented day-care program fared significantly better on IQ tests at age 5 than similar children not enrolled, said Barbara Boat, assistant professor of psychology in the Department of Psychiatry at UNC.

But the analysis also revealed the educational head start the center provided would not close the intelligence gap between firstborns and children born later, she said in a news release Wednesday.

"Although everybody can think of exceptions within their own or other people's families, studies repeatedly have shown that firstborns and only children tend to score consistently higher on intelligence tests than children born later do," she said.

Ms. Boat, who helped conduct the study, said one theory is that first-borns "receive greater adult attention and more varied stimulation than is likely when there are several young children in the same family."

One goal of the study, she said, was to find out if individualized preschool education helped children with older brothers and sisters catch up intellectually with firstborns.

"This is an important question because, when resources are limited, it might show us which children could receive the most benefit from intervention programs," Ms. Boat said. "I think we were hoping to find that the education program would be so powerful that it would eliminate the gap, but it didn't happen."

In the study, 49 of the children were in the day-care or educational treatment group, which included 33 firstborns. The control group, receiving no supplementary education, was made up of 46 youngsters, including 28 firstborns.

The mean verbal score on Wechsler Preschool and Primary Scale of Intelligence — the most commonly used IQ test for youngsters — was 105.6 for firstborns who attended the day-care center, Ms. Boat said. The mean verbal score for children born later was 96.8.

By contrast, the mean score for control group firstborns was 96 and for children born later, 92, she said.

Firefighters Seek Out Arsonists

By The Associated Press
Firefighters battling blazes that have charred more than a half million acres in the Southeast were hanging on "by the skin of our teeth" today and stepping up a crackdown on arsonists as forecasts said rain was still days away.

The dry weather has fueled 42,204 fires covering 583,056 acres of land this year in parts of the U.S. Forest Service region encompassing 13 Southeastern states, said Bruce Jewell, USFS spokesman in Atlanta.

At least four people have died fighting fires, three in Tennessee and one in Ohio.

"We're trying to shuttle crews around to give some relief to the hardest-worked crews," said Dwight Barnett of the Tennessee Division of Forestry. "We're hanging by the skin of our teeth. You really have no choice but to go on."

In Tennessee, at least five fires raged out of control, including a 400-acre blaze in Cocke County. Major fires also raged near Chattanooga and in Overton County, Barnett said.

Officials say arsonists are believed responsible for at least half the 3,850 fires that have blackened 44,300 Tennessee acres this year, Barnett said reports that investigators were stepping up their efforts to find arsonists may have kept the number of blazes down Wednesday.

"They know people are looking for them," he said.

A weather front expected to move in from the west may hurt rather than help, Barnett said. "Before the front, you get winds. And traditionally, in the spring, many of those forecast rains don't materialize."

Forecasters said thundershowers could begin hitting much of the region by Saturday and the beginning of next week.

West Virginia officials said a drop in wind, an increase in humidity and a ban on outdoor burning meant they might get a break.

Twelve fires were reported out of control early today, but "It looks a lot, lot better," said district forester Gerald Wimer in Milton.

Gov. Arch Moore, who banned outdoor burning because of extraordinary dry weather, said fires have burned more than 25,000 acres and caused $7.5 million in damage during the past 10 days. The rash of fires has been the worst in West Virginia in a decade.

"The governor's ban on burning had a significant effect on our number of fires," Atkins said Wednesday. "We had 91 (Tuesday), 92 the day before and 94 the day before that. Today we had 42."

Today's Cryptoquip clue: Q equals W
The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Soviets Say Halley's Has Surprisingly Large Body

By WARREN E. LEARY
AP Science Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Early results from the visits to Halley's comet by Soviet spacecraft, an effort that serves as a model for a proposed international mission to Mars, confirm data gathered by a closer-flying European craft, says the Soviet scientist in charge of the program.

Roald Sagdeyev, head of the Soviet Institute for Space Research, said Wednesday the Vega space probes that flew by the comet last month found the nucleus of the icy body to be surprisingly large and dark, confirming observations of the European Space Agency's Giotto spacecraft.

"The size of the nucleus was two to three times larger than had been expected," he said. "It also had a lower albedo (reflected brightness) than expected."

Because the soot-like material covering the solid center of the comet reflected so little light, many scientists assumed less light meant a core smaller than the 9-mile-long, 4-mile-wide body found by the spacecraft.

"The actual material is much darker than one would expect for an iceberg, even a dirty iceberg," Sagdeyev told an informal gathering at the National Academy of Sciences, where he was attending an international meeting of scientists interested in arms control.

Sagdeyev said Vega 1 and Vega 2, which crossed the comet's path on March 6 and March 9 at distances from the nucleus of 5,500 miles and 5,125 miles, found the core to be shaped like an irregular potato suspended "in a dust cocoon."

Giotto, following a similar path, came within 375 miles of the nucleus on March 14. All three spacecraft, buffeted by electrified atomic particles and dust, were damaged during their encounters with the dynamic comet, which visits the vicinity of the Earth every 76 years.

Sagdeyev said the missions, which involved sharing ideas and information among participants of many nations, are models for future international cooperation.

"We, of course, benefited from international cooperation with 10 countries and learned much about the organization of such a large project," Sagdeyev said.

To diversify the Soviet interplanetary program, which has concentrated on Venus, Sagdeyev said his institute is planning an unmanned mission to Mars that already has 40 scientists from 14 countries interested in participating.

Great Smoky Forest Fire Checked, Threat Continues

By JODY TAYLOR
Associated Press Writer

Firefighters today contained a blaze that charred 800 acres in the Great Smoky Mountains National Park, while forecasters warned weather conditions remained ripe for another round of wildfire activity in North Carolina.

"The fire was announced as being totally contained about 6 a.m. today," said Stephanie Gibert, management assistant for the Great Smoky Mountains National Park. "Further control and mop-up efforts should continue for a couple of days."

Firefighters were brought in from Maine, Wisconsin and Florida to help battle the blaze, which burned about 730 acres in the park and 70 acres of state-owned land. Some 258 firefighters and support personnel were involved in the effort.

The fire, believed to be the work of arsonists, came within 4 miles of Bryson City, a town of about 1,560 people, raising concerns about the watershed that serves as the town's principle source of water.

Four crews — primarily from the U.S. Forest Service — dropped water and flame-retardant from air tankers and helicopters, while ground crews built fire lines around the blaze and set backfires to clear brush from the path of the flames, Ms. Gilbert said.

N.C. Forest Service crews used bulldozers to keep the fire from spreading into the Bryson City watershed, but heavy equipment was forbidden in the park. Ms. Gilbert said scars left by heavy equipment would remain visible longer than the damage done by the fire.

Ms. Gilbert said the fire is believed to have started on a roadside and traveled up the mountainous terrain near Fontana Lake, quickly burning green hardwood trees and brush.

The state Forest Service said conditions on Wednesday were classified as "borderline blowup."

The worst of it was not wind, which was very slight Wednesday, but wind turbulence, the forest service said. A twister in Wilkes County at noon knocked down several trees and pushed erratic whirlwinds toward western North Carolina, the National Weather Service said.

That caused a lot of trouble for firefighters by blowing fireballs across lines frantically scratched around the burning brush, said district forester Tom Wynne.

Elsewhere, a camper trailer that caught fire Wednesday on the Blue Ridge Parkway threatened surrounding woods for about an hour, said Ranger Ron Heeren. Flames leaped into surrounding woods and seared about an acre before parkway crews and motorists beat them out.

Parkway officials consider conditions so bad that they've banned all types of fire at their campgrounds. The ban includes propane stoves, Heeren said.

Some 20 acres of private property burned in Madison County before firefighters were able to bring it under control, officials said.

Arson is suspected because the 12:40 p.m. fire, between Marshall and Mars Hill, broke out in several places, Wynne said. Too steep for bulldozers, the land was bombed twice with 2,400 gallons of water from a low-flying plane before some two dozen firefighters from Mars Hill College and the Mars Hill Fire Department were able to control the blaze.

At 2 p.m., spotters in a state scout plane detected another fire at the top of a ridge in Madison County near the community of Petersburg, Wynne said.

Wynne said arson caused a fire on Wolf Cove Road in the Beavertdam section of Buncombe County.

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, APRIL 4, 1986

YOUR DAILY Horoscope from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Early morning delays are soon replaced by a chance to put into motion your most talented gifts, so watch for the best ways you can make headway.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) First handle a long-time responsibility and then get into the activities that mean much to you with the aid of interesting friends.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Keep that outside promise to a partner early, and later retire to the quiet of your study and plan how to become more successful.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Once you get important work done, be out socially with persons who can assist you in gaining some personal wish.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Keep a promise to your mate in the morning, and then handle the outside obligations that need quick attention.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Take care of that home affair, and then get into outside activities that are interesting and can be most profitable to you.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Hang on to any situation that can bring greater concord between you and your mate. Be more practical in business.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Someone who is intrigued with one of your talents should be listened to. Concentrate on one particular desire and go after it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You are dynamic today and can accomplish a good deal and also get rid of obstacles in the path of your progress.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) See a bigwig who will appreciate your ability and be helpful to you. Don't stay up late tonight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Be more concerned with needs of your family, even if you are pressured to get something done. Treat them nicely.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You are so enthused about showing your finest capabilities to the right people that not a moment should be lost in doing so.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You may get some excellent ideas that should be jotted down so that you do not forget them.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will do very well in modern types of vocations. An inventive mind here; don't try to make him or her conform to the traditional, since this would curtail the fine promise of great success that is indicated in this life. Provide the best education possible, with emphasis on technology.

Paper Draws $100,000 Fine

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — A $100,000 fine and suspended jail sentence levied against Rhode Island's largest newspaper and its editor because it published a story in violation of a court order is no contravention of the First Amendment, says a constitutional authority.

"It's a case of the power of the judiciary to punish violators of its orders," Laurence Tribe, a Harvard Law School professor of constitutional law, said Wednesday. "Violating a restraining order is a punishable offense, even if the restraining order is later determined to be illegal. It appears to be a clear-cut case of violating the order, not a constitutional conflict."

U.S. District Judge Francis J. Boyle levied the fine against the Providence Journal on Wednesday and gave Executive Editor Charles McG. Hauser the 18-month suspended sentence for spurning a gag order by publishing a story on New England's reputed mob boss.

Actress Says Life, Not Her Job, Provides Challenges

By MATT WOLF
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — Tell Maggie Smith her skill makes the difficult seem easy, and the actress would agree. That's because it's life itself she finds a challenge, not acting.

"You create a person when you act, and I don't think you ever can create yourself," said Miss Smith, a figure of nervous repose who gives interviews reluctantly because she doubts the worth of her remarks. "It's very hard to create yourself, isn't it? It's kind of a mess. I am, anyway."

If so, she's a much admired "mess." At 51, Miss Smith has won two Academy Awards: best actress for "The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie" in 1968, and best supporting actress for "California Suite" in 1978.

Last season, she won London's Evening Standard Drama Award for her caustically comic Millamant in the Restoration classic, "The Way of the World," written by William Congreve in 1700.

This season, she's back on the West End — London's Broadway — winning praise as a repressed Russian-speaking English interpreter in Ronald Harwood's "Interpreters."

Films continue to attract the attention of Miss Smith, who has played opposite Michael Palin in "The Missionary," with Alan Bates in "Quartet" and who currently can be seen with Denholm Elliott and Judi Dench in "A Room With a View," James Ivory's film of E.M. Forster's 1908 novel.

Still, she puzzles over how movie actors get through it all.

"I don't know how they do it," she said. "You try and keep your head in the right area through all the chaos of the people, lighting and the wrong weather and the hanging around. It's a killer."

Miss Smith remembered being "hysterical at times" during the location shooting for "A Room With a View" in Italy last year.

"Judi Dench and I would think, 'What are we doing up a mountain outside Florence in these terrifying stays and starched collars which were severing your head from your neck?'" she recalled.

She hasn't yet seen the final cut of the movie, since it doesn't open in London until April 10. It has already opened in New York.

Miss Smith plays the fussbudget chaperone named Charlotte Bartlett — "a really boring creature."

"All the irritating things about her became quite fun, in a way, quite amusing," she said.

The character's nasal witticisms and bons mots mark her firmly as a familiar Maggie Smith role. However, the actress chafes at suggestions of typecasting.

"I'm offered these parts because people think that's what's right," she said. "Film can be very, very revealing of things one tries to avoid in the theater."

"It's quite unnerving to see yourself on screen because you do see these mannerisms, a word I hate and wish could be struck out because one does get stuck with them. But on the other hand, everybody has them."

She finds her current run in "Interpreters" rewarding because it's a contemporary play, quite unlike the period pieces that have dominated her career. "To be in ordinary clothes is a rare occurrence for me."

So, too, is new material after years spent on doing stage classics in England and Canada.

"I don't actually get offered all that many original scripts," Miss Smith said. "That's the dilemma; there aren't all that many new plays."

Though the stakes are high, she would consider a return to Broadway, where she last appeared in Tom Stoppard's "Night and Day" in 1979-80.

"You cannot be a hit on Broadway; you have to be a smash hit," she said. "It's terrifying when the notices can go up in the interval. The actors there must all have nervous breakdowns every other second."

However, unlike such colleagues as Glenda Jackson, who has said they would forsake acting for other careers if good roles dried up, Miss Smith remains dedicated to acting: "There isn't anything else I could do."

Strip Plot

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — "Bloom County" cartoonist Berke Breathed is dropping a few hints about a plot for his comic strip now that he's back at work after recuperating from a broken back suffered in an airplane crash.

"I would be willing to say there's a possibility one of the characters," maybe Steve Dallas, the strip's womanizing lawyer, "gets a broken back by taking a picture of Sean Penn," Breathed says.

After seven weeks of reruns, the nationally syndicated "Bloom County" resumed publication of new strips Monday in roughly 700 newspapers.

Breathed, 28, broke his back Jan. 22 when the ultra-light airplane he was piloting crashed north of Albuquerque. He's wearing a back brace and has temporary metal rods in his lower back.

The Pitt-Greenville Animal Shelter opened on July 1 and is located one mile south of Beils Fork of the County Home Road.

Eastwood Leads Poll For Mayor

CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA, Calif. (AP) — Actor and mayoral candidate Clint Eastwood says he wishes he hadn't told the campaign manager for a rival candidate to shut his face.

"In hindsight, I wish I hadn't even been there," the star of such films as "Dirty Harry" and "Magnum Force" said Wednesday.

Eastwood stepped between Robert Irvine, co-campaign manager for incumbent Mayor Charlotte Townsend and another man when tempers flared at a news conference Tuesday night.

Irvine tried to prevent the man from questioning Mayor Townsend and the actor told him to "shut your face."

The news conference had been called by Mayor Townsend under charges of voter irregularities brought by the League of Women Voters.

Eastwood said he had been trying to get the two men to calm down.

"She has a right to make a statement," he said of Mayor Townsend.

"Basic courtesy is what I'm trying to get," Eastwood said. "In government, it's been missing."

Meanwhile, an unofficial poll in the coastal town of 4,825 shows Eastwood holding a big lead in his bid to win next Tuesday's election. Eastwood would win with 61 percent of the vote, according to the poll by a local television station and newspaper.

The telephone survey of 125 registered voters was conducted Wednesday by KMST television in Monterey and the Carmel Pine Cone Weekly, said Steve Bunner, the station's news producer.

He said the names of the voters were taken off the list of registered voters. The poll showed that Mayor Townsend would get 25 percent of the vote.

The other two candidates, businessman Paul Laub and environmentalist Timothy Grady would receive less than one percent of the vote and 13 percent were undecided, Bunner said.

Also on Wednesday, the league mailed a list of nearly 70 voter registrations it questions to the Monterey County Election Department for review and possible forwarding to the District Attorney's office.

Singer Tillis Faces Lawsuit

TOWSON, Md. (AP) — Country singer Mel Tillis is being sued by organizers of a festival near Baltimore who say he canceled a concert last summer so he could rest in the Bahamas.

The suit charges that Tillis' operations manager at the time, Bob Younce, told organizers of the Dundalk Heritage Festival: "Mel says he's tired and wants a vacation in the Bahamas."

A spokesman for Tillis on Tuesday declined to comment on the suit, which was filed Monday in Baltimore County Circuit Court by the festival organizers and by Creativity Unlimited, producer of the concert.

The suit seeks $25,000 damages from Tillis, including reimbursement of a $17,500 fee he was paid, the costs of advertising for the concert and the costs of two replacement bands hired for the show last July 6 in Dundalk.

New Degree

AMHERST, Mass. (AP) — Comedian Bill Cosby has another doctorate from the University of Massachusetts, an honorary one to go with one he earned.

"I want to tell everyone at this university — please understand me — I am proud to be a shown-up-for-real graduate of the Graduate School of Education," said Cosby, a Shelburne resident who received a doctorate in education in 1977.

This defensive problem from Eddie Kantar's new book "A New Approach to Play and Defense," H.D.L. Publishing, paperback, 212 pp., $9.95. Available from the author, P.O. Box 4127, Venice Calif. 90291-0427) is the defensive companion hand to the one that appeared in Wednesday's column. Cover the West and South hands and see how you would fare as East.

West attacks with the king, ace and jack of diamonds. Declarer drops the queen on the second round and ruffs the third. After leading a spade to the king and ace, declarer draws two rounds of trumps, ending in hand, and leads another spade. This time partner produces the jack, dummy's queen wins and on the ten of spades partner discards a diamond. Now declarer leads a low club from the table.

What is declarer's distribution? Which club do you play? Declarer's hand counts out to 3-5-2-3. To defeat the contract, your side must collect two club tricks, so the one card you cannot afford to play is the king!

If partner has the queen of clubs, it makes no difference what you do, so assume that declarer holds the lady. If you duck smoothly, declarer will probably play the eight to try to end play your partner and go down. If you play the jack, declarer might play you for the jack and duck, then try to finesse the nine when you return the five of clubs. That also dooms the contract.

Key lesson pointers: If you can't beat declarer by honest means, try a swindle. And when sitting behind an ace with the king, don't always fly up with his majesty when a low card is led away from the ace. If you need two tricks in the suit, play low.

By the way, compare declarer's diamond holding Wednesday with the club holding on this hand. Now perhaps you see why we like this book so much.

Teachers Told Hugs Are Out

WAUKEGAN, Ill. (AP) — Teachers being asked not to hug or pat students because officials fear child abuse allegations say the advisory is unfortunate because small children need the reassuring touch of instructors.

"In athletics, you're always swatting people on backsides. I guess we don't do that anymore," Jack Miller, Waukegan East High School's athletic director, said Wednesday night after Jack Taylor, superintendent of Community School District 60, wrote an advisory to his 700 teachers last week.

In the advisory letter, Taylor said teachers should refrain from touching students because of recent sex-related charges against two Waukegan teachers.

"It puts everybody on edge. Teachers I've talked to say it's going to be hard because they look forward to patting that kid on the head," Miller said.

Denice Kerr, a substitute teacher at elementary schools, said Wednesday night she would "take her chances" and continue to hug and pat her students.

"Sometimes there is no other way than to say 'You did a good job' than a pat on the back," said Mrs. Kerr, whose husband, William, is an elementary school principal.

"The advisory is unfortunate because young people in elementary school need someone to pat them on the shoulder," added Miller.

He said a recent study indicated that almost half the district's students come from single-parent homes.

"They are looking for someone to play that parental role. Some people have abused that, and some kids will miss that little hug from their teacher," he said. "We do have to protect them from that one individual or two."

White House Satisfied With Value Of Dollar

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is sending signals that it has given up, at least for the time being, efforts to drive down the value of the U.S. dollar — a message that could mean bad news for export-hungry farmers.

The administration has said nothing publicly about the dollar's value since early last month and an administration official said in an interview Wednesday that this silence was by design.

A weaker dollar makes imports more expensive and thus less attractive to American consumers, while pushing down the price of farm goods and other American exports on world markets.

The dollar has plunged by 30 percent since its high-point a year ago, mainly as a result of a coordinated effort engineered by the administration beginning last September with the aid of Britain, West Germany, Japan and France.

But in recent weeks, the dollar has edged slightly higher against some currencies as the administration fell silent on its future plans.

"There is no purpose to be served now in commenting on where (the dollar) ought to be or what it ought to be or anything else," the administration official said. "And you should take note of the fact that you haven't seen any other members of the administration (talking about the dollar) either since the discount rate cut."

In the interview, the official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the administration's last public comments on the matter were aimed more at changing worldwide interest rates than at pushing the dollar lower.

Treasury Secretary James Baker, Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige and U.S. Trade Representative Clayton Yeutter all made statements in late February that further declines in the dollar would be welcome to help alleviate the country's trading problems.

These comments were a form of pressure aimed at forcing the West Germans to reduce a key interest rate, the official said.

West Germany did indeed cut its discount rate, the rate its central bank charges to make loans to member banks in early March. This reduction was followed in rapid order by similar moves by the central banks of Japan and the United States. The U.S. action was credited with helping to push interest rates in this country to their lowest levels of this decade.

"It was important that we assist the Germans in arriving at a decision that they ought to cut their discount rate," the official said. "The fact that their currency was strengthening was of concern to them."

The threat to push the dollar lower against the West German mark would have had an adverse impact on German exports to this country.

The official did not say whether the administration would consider further efforts to lower the value of the dollar if the country's trade statistics don't begin improving.

He noted that the trade deficit dropped by $4 billion in February from an all-time high set in January, saying this perhaps is a sign that the country's darkest trading days are over.

However, some economists believe unless the dollar declines further, U.S. manufacturers and farmers, two hard-hit segments of the economy, are unlikely to recover fully their lost overseas markets.

On another subject, the official said the administration will not call for a worldwide conference to reform the international monetary system until it decides what specific changes should be made. He said those decisions are not likely until the end of the year.

"I think everyone would agree that you wouldn't want to have an international meeting of any kind if you didn't have some specific changes that you knew you wanted to make in the system," the official said. "To just call together a whole bunch of nations without knowing where you wanted to end up is a pretty risky proposition."

President Reagan in February directed Baker to study whether such a conference was needed to overhaul the system of floating rates of exchange that have been in effect since 1973.

White House Rules Out Pressure Over Oil

By The Associated Press
Saudi Arabian officials will not be pressured to curb oil production by Vice President George Bush when he travels to the Middle East this weekend, say Reagan administration officials.

Disclaimers to that effect threw cold water on an oil market rally

Wednesday, sparked a stock market rally and affected the dollar's performance against other currencies, as well.

In other economic news, General Motors Corp. said more than 5,000 workers in four states will be added to indefinite-layoff rolls in its biggest car production cutbacks since the industry slump of 1982.

In Santa Barbara, Calif., White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Bush "will emphasize the U.S. view that market forces should establish world oil price levels."

Another administration official who agreed to be interviewed on condition of anonymity said in Washington: "We believe in the free market" and have no intention of pressuring the Saudis on oil-price policy.

"When the vice president meets with King Faud in Saudia Arabia on Sunday, he will emphasize the U.S. view that market forces should establish world oil price levels," Speakes said.

Oil prices in the United States and Europe rallied after Bush said Tuesday that he would tell the Saudi government during his visit that plunging oil prices are hurting the U.S. oil industry.

On Wednesday, contracts for May delivery of West Texas Intermediate, the benchmark U.S. crude, closed at $11.52 a 42-gallon barrel on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

That was up 25 cents from Tuesday's settlement price, but down significantly from the day's peak of $12.45.

On Wall Street, analysts attributed the market's swings to shifting views of the outlook for world oil prices. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down more than 12 points in early trading, was up 5.15 at 1,795.26 by the close.

Maple Syrup Production Declining

MONTPELIER, Vt. (AP) — Vermont and New York, the nation's two biggest maple syrup producers, are experiencing a sour year for their sweet product.

Vermont, the nation's top producer, may be headed for its worst season on record and officials in New York are blaming the weather for a bad year. The two states produce 75 percent of the nation's maple syrup crop.

"If we are fortunate, we will come off with half a crop," William Paine, Vermont's deputy commissioner of agriculture, said Wednesday.

In New Hampshire, which produces about 92,000 gallons a year, Agriculture Commissioner Stephen Taylor said production is about one-third of normal.

"This is the worst season in 10 years," Taylor said.

Cold nights, warm days and a good snow cover are the ingredients for the best sap runs. This year, though, the weather has been too warm to generate strong runs, officials said. The maple sap is boiled into syrup.

The season is always short, tucked between the last days of winter and the first buds on the trees. Once the buds appear, the sap slows and its quality drops.

Vermont produced 535,000 gallons of syrup last year; New York produced 325,000.
