Traditional Fee-For-Service Programs Fading

By SUE HINSON
Reflector Staff Writer
By 1990, less than 50 percent of people carrying Blue Cross and Blue Shield insurance will have their health care needs covered by traditional fee-for-service programs if current market indicators hold true, according to BCBS spokesman Elizabeth Swaringen.

"From what we read, what we hear from national headquarters and from what we know is happening in the insurance industry, we feel it is reasonable to expect that by 1990 better than 50 percent of insurance will be in some form other than the traditional, and certainly HMOs ... will be among the alternate programs offered," Ms. Swaringen said in a recent interview.

Blue Cross and Blue Shield, North Carolina's oldest and largest insurer, already offers N.C. residents a form of HMO or Health Maintenance Organization coverage, but expects to expand HMO service as well as other alternate systems of health care delivery within coming years to meet ever-increasing demand for prepaid health care insurance. Since making their first public appearance in North Carolina in 1982, HMOs have rapidly caught the interest of larger companies seeking a way to pre-determine costs for covering medical expenses of employees, said Bill Bernstein, president of the N.C. Foundation for Alternative Health Care Systems.

According to Bernstein, the foundation tracked growth of HMOs in North Carolina from July 1985 to January 1986 and found that HMOs had increased 59 percent in that seven-month period. Statewide enrollment in HMOs now totals 168,000, a number Bernstein said he expects to close in on 500,000 by the end of 1986.

Why are HMOs and similar alternative health care delivery systems so popular? According to Bernstein, HMO-concept supporters say it's because 12 monthly premiums ensure subscribers 100 percent coverage for total health care services.

Second in a three-part series on alternative forms of health care delivery

"If you join up, you end up not having to pay anything for routine care which you do under regular insurance plans," Bernstein said. He added, however, that HMOs are not for all people. "They're right for some and wrong for others," he said.

According to a local businessman, HMOs very often can be more attractive to younger families with children because they have to visit the doctor more frequently than a middle aged couple whose children have left home.

Supporters of the HMO concept also contend that the HMO practice of combining delivery and financing systems eliminates paperwork. "It has a great appeal to many, because the system has gotten so complicated," Bernstein said.

According to Bernstein, concept opponents contend that a disadvantage of HMOs is that HMO subscribers get to use only the health care providers signed up with a particular HMO. For instance, under Blue Cross and Blue Shield's Personal Care Plan — a form of HMO coverage soon to be offered to state employees living in Pitt County — subscribers may select their physician from approximately 40 doctors who have agreed to provide services on a prepaid basis.

HMOs are thought to be as beneficial to employees as they are to employers as well, Bernstein said. "In concept what happens is a lump sum of money is paid out to keep you well and out of the hospital," he said. However, he added that critics of the HMO system say what is thought to be beneficial by some can create a problem where medical systems are underutilized. In theory what this means, he said, is that a medical complaint or problem could be overlooked or not investigated extensively enough because of limitations brought about by the prepaid nature of HMO service.

In addition, the HMO health care alternative is thought to be beneficial in terms of promoting competition in the medical community, Bernstein said.

In March, 10 HMOs were operating or were in the process of becoming operational in North Carolina. In that group are Blue Cross and Blue Shield, Kaiser Permanente of Raleigh and PruCare of Charlotte — companies that the state is now negotiating with to provide prepaid health insurance options for state employees. Also included in the group of 10 HMOs operating in the state is Health America, a company that covers Pitt County employees of Burroughs Wellcome and Yale Manufacturing.

According to spokesman Gordon Church, Health America has been serving area residents since January 1985. Statewide enrollment in the Health America HMO program, which uses local physicians like BCBS to provide services, totals over 43,000.

Procter and Gamble, another of Pitt County's larger industrial employers does not utilize the HMO option. According to Art Wright, Procter and Gamble employee service manager, the company has looked into providing HMO service, but found it was more cost effective to retain its current self-insured plan.

Procter and Gamble currently pays about $101 in health care costs for employees. HMO coverage, Wright said, could run anywhere from $135 to $140 a month.

Wright attributed low company health care costs to a number of factors including the success of an in-house wellness program that has been in operation at Procter and Gamble for approximately four years. Wellness program activities include weight control and smoking cessation programs as well as aerobics and other educational workshops.

In addition, Wright said Procter and Gamble employees receive free annual physicals at the plant. "All this causes people to stay well," he said. "There's nothing really magic about it. We are just causing everyone to understand the process of wellness."

Rain Barely Settles Dust

By JANE WELBORN

Thunderstorms in parts of eastern North Carolina Sunday night brought needed precipitation to the area, but did little to quench the parched soil. Burning bans still are in effect, and the area forests remain dangerously dry.

According to the Greenville Utilities Water Plant, a total of .65 inches of rain fell Sunday evening.

The last significant amount of rain recorded in Greenville was on March 19-20, when over an inch of rainfall was recorded at the plant.

The burning ban is still in effect, and there is still a cancellation of burning permits, according to Pitt County Forest Ranger Mark Webb.

"The rain will help a little in the areas that received rain, but a lot of areas didn't get any rain," Webb said. "The rain only covered a small area."

No significant damage was reported in Greenville as a result of the storm, according to Roger Jones, director of electric systems for the Greenville Utilities Commission. Jones said there was no lightning damage or problems resulting from gusting winds. "A service crew was called out for a few minor problems, but there was nothing significant," Jones said.

Pitt County Agricultural Extension Agent Sam Uzzell said, "The rainfall

Two-Day Vigil Ends

EULESS, Texas (AP) — Police using explosives blasted into a convenience store where a gunman had kept his former wife tied up for two days and shot the man to death after they learned he had killed the woman.

"The hostage situation has been eliminated. It is terminated," police spokesman T.C. Free said late Sunday in announcing the death of Maron Mataele, 27, an immigrant from the South Pacific nation of Tonga, who had held his ex-wife since Friday.

Free said the body of the woman, Cassandra "Sane" Mataele, 26, was found in a storeroom at the back of the Kwik Pantry store in this Fort Worth suburb where she worked as a clerk.

Authorities said Mataele had held her bound and gagged in the room most of the time.

Tactical officers from nearby Arlington blew a hole in the back door of the building and rushed in about 10:30 p.m. EST Sunday night, four hours after Mataele's brother, who talked with him by phone, told police the gunman had killed his wife, Free said.

The exact time of her death is unclear, police said.

Free said police confronted Mataele, who pointed his gun at them, drawing their gunfire in response.

A second brother of Mataele's, who was not identified and who was in the store when police entered, was taken into custody, Free said. But he said he didn't know if charges would be filed against the man.

That brother, Free said, had negotiated with Mataele before dawn Sunday. Officials said the gunman had agreed to give his gun to his brother.

"Against instructions, the brother entered the store, joining the gunman," said Free, and he remained in the store for the remainder of the standoff.

Mataele, armed with a .38-caliber revolver, had threatened to kill himself and his ex-wife, but other than the demand to see a brother from California he had asked only to see his 8-year-old daughter, Free said.

There were no police injuries in the assault on the store, authorities said, but Mataele shot and wounded an officer Friday when he responded to a silent alarm shortly after the gunman took over the building.

The wounded officer remained hospitalized in good condition Sunday after being shot in the left shoulder, police said.

Earlier Sunday, police had allowed Mataele's younger brother into the store in an effort to end the impasse.

The brother persuaded Mataele to untie Mrs. Mataele, but she was bound again later, Free said. He declined to release the brother's name.

Another of Mataele's brothers was brought to the scene, but did not go inside, officials said. Mataele then asked police to fly yet another brother from California.

WILL IT COST MY FAMILY?

I have long ago willed my corneas, kidneys, heart, liver, and whatever other parts of my body can be used to make the life of someone else better when I die. Then I heard on television that your family might be charged for removing these organs for donation. If this is true, I'm going to retract my bequeathal. I don't want my donation to cost my family anything. J.H.

Jean Folston of the Carolina Organ Procurement Agency office in Greenville said you heard misinformation on television. Once a family gives permission for organ procurement for donation, all costs are taken care of by the organ procurement agency. A family would never be billed for organ procurement and transportation to recipients.

Filipino Protestors Jeer Defense Secretary's Visit

By DAVID BRISCOE
Associated Press Writer
MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger met with President Corazon Aquino today in the first visit by a Cabinet member to the new Filipino head of state, then drove away through anti-U.S. protesters who mobbed his motorcade.

About 100 demonstrators pounded on Weinberger's bullet-proof van and chanted "go home" as he left the presidential palace grounds. Small groups of demonstrators, who were mostly orderly, also gathered at other stops.

The defense secretary's meetings with Mrs. Aquino and top Filipino military officials took place amid controversy over a perceived American emphasis on U.S. military interests in this Asian island nation.

"(Weinberger's) visit shows that America puts its military interests in the Philippines first," said a Filipino diplomat, speaking on the condition he not be identified.

The chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, Adm. William J. Crowe, also visited the Philippines last week, and there has been criticism in private by some Filipino officials of what they see as a U.S. emphasis of military, rather than economic, concerns.

The United States has two major bases in the Philippines, Clark Air Base and Subic Naval Base, which Mrs. Aquino's government has vowed to allow at least until a treaty governing their use expires in 1991.

"It's important to have both (military and economic aid,) but certainly the emphasis has to be on economic aid," Weinberger told a brief airport news conference before leaving for Bangkok, Thailand.

Asked what the United States was offering Mrs. Aquino that would not have been offered to President Ferdinand E. Marcos, who fled into exile on Feb. 25, Weinberger said, "We'll offer things that the Aquino government feels it is essential to have."

Pressed on how much aid would be given, Weinberger said, "there will certainly be a strong infusion of economic aid, and I think it is necessary to have some military assistance to continue on with reorganization and strengthen modernization of the Philippine armed forces that has been started so successfully."

Weinberger expressed "great admiration" for the revolution that overthrew Marcos' 20-year reign, saying it had returned freedom to the Philippines.

"I am delighted to meet you," Weinberger told Mrs. Aquino as they sat down together in the presidential palace guest house where she has her office. Reporters were allowed to witness only a few seconds of the 45-minute meeting.

"It went very nicely," Weinberger said later. However, he declined to discuss details of the meeting, and Mrs. Aquino did not come out to talk with reporters.

Dear Abby — By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: You missed the boat in explaining to "Dying to Know" how to tell his right hand from his left elbow.

You should have told him to face north. His right (or starboard) hand would be to the east, and his left (or port) elbow would be to the west. To help him remember, he could hang a green lantern on his right (or starboard) hand, and a red one on his left (or port) elbow. This would also help him in knowing his "rights" in heavy traffic.

If he has difficulty locating north, he can face south. His rear end will then be facing north. All he had to do in the first place was use his head, his right hand, left elbow and rear end.

ED IN DURHAM, N.C.

DEAR ED: Brilliant! Had I used my head in the first place, and graduated from the Naval Academy at Annapolis, I could have figured this out myself.

DEAR ABBY: I think I have the answer to "Dying to Know's" question about how you can tell the right from the left. My first-grade teacher taught me how, and it's easy as A-B-C.

First, make two fists with both hands, then extend your thumbs straight out. Next, extend your index fingers straight up while all the other fingers remain tucked under.

The hand that forms the letter "L" is your left hand. The other hand, of course, is your right hand.

MRS. ANDREA R. CAPSUTA, PORT HUENEME, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: Give us a break! Consider this: If you use your head for north and feet for south, east would be your right, and west would be your left—but you would first have to use your head.

P.G.

DEAR ABBY: Well, well, after all these years I've finally found something I can straighten you out on. Remember the fellow who wanted a way to tell his left from his right? The simple answer is that our right hand is almost always the one that we prefer to do things with. It seems far more capable and just coordinates itself into our actions automatically. So, it's the "right" hand for just about everything.

The other hand? Well, it's just "left" in reserve in case the "right" hand needs some help.

ARTHUR MASON
P.S. Don't ask me how to explain this to left-handed people.

DEAR ARTHUR: Left-handed people should ignore this advice because their left (or dominant) hand is the one with which they prefer to do things.

The ambidextrous person, who can use either hand with equal dexterity, should carry a compass.

foot from their right. The sergeant had them tie a bunch of hay to their left foot and a bunch of straw to their right foot. Instead of calling out, "Left, right, left, right, left, right," he called, "Hay, straw, hay, straw, hay, straw."

It always worked.

Views On Dental Health

Kenneth T. Perkins, D.D.S., P.A.

FILLING THE VOID

If you've lost a tooth and never had it replaced, there are changes going on in your mouth that you may not notice until a serious dental problem develops. For one thing, some of your teeth may be shifting and tilting. Changes may also be taking place in the roots and supporting bone of teeth on either side of the gap. Teeth on either side are now leaning toward the open space. The opposing tooth on which the missing tooth used to rest is also probably moving toward the open space. All in all, at least seven teeth have probably been adversely affected because of the missing tooth.

This usually happens gradually, but the problems begin to mount. As the teeth shift and tilt or lean into the open space, this will affect your chewing efficiency. Because your teeth are out of alignment, extra pressure is exerted on the bone and periodontal ligaments. This causes a weakening of supporting structures. If you have a missing tooth, call my office to find out what I would recommend to replace it before serious problems develop.

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — In the face of "a burgeoning worldwide epidemic," research on AIDS should zero in on prevention, a Michigan public health official says.

HIGH POINT (AP) — Despite a stable economy, furniture makers won't be straying from their traditional big sellers such as bedroom suites and family room furniture when the Southern Furniture Market opens Thursday, an industry official says.

Drew Memorial

PLEASANT GROVE, N.C. (AP) — Two doctors say they hope the commemoration of a granite marker in honor of a black doctor and scientist will lay to rest "the myths and false statements" surrounding Dr. Charles Drew's death.

Drew was a pioneer in transfusion research and plasma. He was medical director for the Blood for Britain project in 1940 and the first director of the American Red Cross blood bank in 1941. At the time of his death, the 45-year-old Drew was director of the surgical department at Howard and medical director of Freedmen's Hospital in Washington.

Another Look

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — History may have treated unfairly those Cherokee Indian leaders who agreed to relocate their people from the Southern Appalachians to Oklahoma 150 years ago, some scholars say.

"There's been a new look at the ... people who signed the treaty," said Bill Anderson, a professor of history at Western Carolina University in Cullowhee.

A conference this weekend at WCU marked the 150th anniversary of the beginning of the forced removal of 16,000 Cherokees from North Carolina, Georgia, Tennessee and Alabama. The march resulted in at least 4,000 deaths.

Wildfire Closes Mountain Road

HIGHLANDS, N.C. (AP) — A three-day wildfire that charred 140 acres of mostly national park land in the scenic Cullasaja Gorge in the Nantahala National Forest wasn't the largest fire in the area in recent years, but one ranger labeled it as one of the worst in terms of damage.

Ronnie Raum, a ranger with the Highlands District of the Nantahala, said the fire, which forced the closing of part of U.S. 64 before it was declared contained Sunday afternoon, damaged the soil and killed a lot of timber that had sap rising.

"Also, from the public safety standpoint, the fire had us worried about falling rocks and timber," Raum added.

Weary firefighters spent most of Sunday mopping up hot spots that remained from the blaze, which officials say began as three intentionally set fires along U.S. 64.

The park fire in Macon County between Franklin and Highlands was reported at 5 p.m. Friday and some 170 firefighters battled the blaze — which jumped fire lines twice — until it was contained.

The state Department of Transportation closed part of U.S. 64 because several trees, weakened by the fire, were falling across the highway and jagged rocks were sliding down the steep terrain and onto the highway.

A dispatcher at the Macon County Emergency Operations Center said Sunday afternoon the highway was still closed and she did not know when it would be reopened. Traffic was detoured through Buck Creek to Highlands.

A Cullasaja Gorge Volunteer Fire Department truck was damaged Saturday when a burning tree fell across it as it assisted U.S. Forest Service crews. None of the truck's crew was injured.

Officials Expect UNC Shanties Removed Today

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Leaders of an anti-apartheid group predicted most protesters would heed University of North Carolina Chancellor Christopher Fordham's order to remove shanties from the Chapel Hill campus.

Laura K. Azar, a member of the Anti-Apartheid Support Group that built the shanties last month, said Sunday that several group members had said they might refuse to move if university grounds workers or police attempted to tear down the structures.

"But there will probably only be a few who will really go through with it," said Ms. Azar, a freshman from St. Petersburg, Fla. "Arrest is not glorified, and we're hoping it doesn't happen."

Fordham set the deadline for removing the makeshift shantytown for 7 a.m. today. The anti-apartheid group has been protesting the $6 million that UNC-CH has invested in more than 30 companies doing business in South Africa.

Court Watcher Keeps His Eyes On Judges, Juries

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — He's not a judge, a lawyer or even a court clerk, but when Forsyth County Superior Court convenes, Charlie Kenneth McIver will be there — just because it interests him.

"It was just something I thought I might do," McIver said. "But I didn't think when I started that I would possibly come quite as much as I have."

"As the witnesses testify one after the other, the story unfolds," said

McIver, a 60-year-old retired civil servant and church organist. "It's like you're turning another page in a book."

Museum

Competition for development of a museum site housing memorabilia of the sunken ironclad Monitor is heating up beyond belief. Eight communities want that tourism asset and of those eight, two are situated in North Carolina.

They are the Hatteras Village Civic Association and the North Carolina Maritime Resources Center at Manteo. At this point it makes little difference to us which of the two wins the resource; what does matter is that the museum should be in North Carolina and the verdict is far from being assured.

Some well-established centers with good credentials have staked claims.

The Smithsonian Institution is one of them. Others are the Portsmouth, Va., Marine Museum, the Hampton Roads Naval Museum in Norfolk, the Maritime Museum of Newport News, Va., the American-Swedish Maritime Museum in Philadelphia and the South Street Seaport Museum in New York. Aside from proven expertise in the museum field, all have financial resources to bolster their challenges.

Portsmouth city officials, for example, have already appropriated $210,000 for planning a $4 million museum to display the sunken historic treasure. Manteo and Hatteras, on the other hand, have a long way to go.

If the two Tar Heel entries begin feuding over their qualifications it is easy to visualize any one of the other six stepping into the breach and making off with the prize. The best advice to come out of preliminary discussions is from Rep. Walter Jones, D-N.C., who says the state should pool its academic, historic and financial resources, and by all means avoid eliminating Hatteras or Manteo from the competition.

The next step in the selection process comes on April 24 at a meeting in Beaufort at which the Council of American Maritime Museums will present criteria for a Monitor museum. After that, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration will accept proposals. A decision is expectable next March.

In our view that museum belongs in North Carolina.

What we're going to need is a single unified proposal Gov. Jim Martin can stand behind. Few other such opportunities may ever come our way.

Reaction Subdued To Jet Bombing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The official U.S. response to the TWA jetliner bombing was initially marked by the absence of blame-fixing and high-level public expressions of outrage — a reaction one leading expert sees as evidence the Reagan administration is "wising up" on how to deal with terrorism.

Some of the reticence appeared to have been shelved on Saturday. An administration official, speaking on condition he not be identified, said the airliner attack that killed four Americans and the bombing of a GI hangout in Berlin, fit a pattern of terrorism by Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy.

The official made no direct linkage between Libya and the two bombings, but said Khadafy's country was supporting terrorists that had targeted 30 U.S. embassies and several American diplomats for attack.

Since early Wednesday, when the TWA Boeing 727 was bombed over Greece, President Reagan and Secretary of State George P. Shultz have had no public appearances, enabling them to keep their thoughts on the bombing private.

In his weekly radio address, Reagan spoke about defense reform and made no mention of either attack.

Administration spokesman had declined to buttress or knock down reports by foreign investigators that perhaps Libyan-supported or Syrian-aided groups were behind the TWA bombing.

When a Greek prosecutor identified the prime suspect as a Palestinian named May Elias Mansur, State Department spokesman Bernard Kalb said, "I have nothing on that."

It's been quite a contrast to how the administration reacted after previous shocking and bloody terrorist acts against air travelers in Europe. Within days of the Dec. 27 attacks on the Rome and Vienna airports, blame was fixed on a Libyan-backed group and the United States pledged to retaliate against Libya with economic sanctions.

After the hijacking of the Achille Lauro cruise ship last summer, Reagan pledged that "terrorists will have no place to hide." Talk of possible military retaliation was widespread.

This time the watchwords, as voiced by Kalb, have been: "investigation ... no conclusions ... nothing ruled out ... nothing ruled in."

A State Department official said the muted response stems from uncertainty within the administration as to who was responsible for the attack.

"There are a lot of conflicting reports coming out from the investigation in Italy, Greece and Egypt, so I think people in Washington are merely being normally prudent when they refrain from fixing blame," said an administration official speaking on condition he not be identified.

"There's truly a sense that the facts have to be developed before a conclusion can be reached," the official said.

An expert on international terrorism, Robert Kupperman of the Georgetown Center for Strategic and International Studies, said, however, he believes the quieter response stems from a realization by the administration that its strong language after previous terrorist attacks was not productive.

"I think the administration is wisening up that the reaction to terrorism should be firm action and not rhetoric," Kupperman said.

According to Kupperman, the administration may be planning covert action to retaliate if it can identify the perpetrators of the bombing, and that a quiet response could help disarm the targets.

The lack of rhetoric could also stem from the administration's growing confidence that European nations are willing to cooperate against terrorism and a desire to keep the United States out of the forefront while those countries try to cope in the immediate aftermath of the bombing.

The administration was clearly disappointed by European rejection of economic sanctions against Libya after the December airport attacks. But after a recent 10-day trip to France, Turkey, Greece and Italy, Shultz appeared to find hopeful signs that the Europeans had finally decided they needed to upgrade their attack terrorism.

At a NATO meeting in December, Shultz had sharp words with Italian representatives about their decision to free Mohammad Abbas, a suspect in the Achille Lauro hijacking. This time, Kalb called Italian anti-terrorist efforts "exemplary," and "a model for other countries."

Kalb said "there have been suggestions in the past of officials of some countries trying to arrange understandings with terrorists. At present, all European governments are at a high degree of security preparedness."

Even France, which for years has resisted efforts to include anti-terrorism in the regular work of the Western alliance, appears to have changed its view.

Earlier this week, France consented to putting the issue of terrorism on the agenda of the summit meeting Reagan and the leaders of the six other democratic powers will hold in Tokyo in early May.

On Saturday, the French interior ministry announced the expulsion of two Libyan diplomats, an Algerian man and a Tunisian man in connection with possible attacks against U.S. targets in Europe.

Words Can Come Home

It had to happen sooner or later. Lawyer Dobbins was wheeled into the emergency room on a stretcher, rolling his head in agony. Doctor Green came over to see him.

"Dobbins," he said. "What an honor. The last time I saw you was in court when you accused me of malpractice."

"Doc, Doc. My side is on fire. The pain is right here. What could it be?"

"How would I know? You told the jury I wasn't fit to be a doctor."

"I was only kidding, Doc. When you represent a client you don't know what you're saying. Could I be passing a kidney stone?"

"Your diagnosis is as good as mine."

"What are you talking about?"

"When you questioned me on the stand you indicated you knew everything there was to know about the practice of medicine."

"Doc, I'm climbing the wall. Give me something."

"Let's say I give you something for a kidney stone and it turns out to be a gallstone. Who is going to pay for my court costs?"

"I'll sign a paper that I won't sue."

"Can I read to you from the transcript of the trial? Lawyer Dobbins: Why were you so sure my client had tennis elbow? Dr. Green: I've treated hundreds of people with tennis elbow, and I know it when I see it. Dobbins: It never occurred to you my client could have an Excedrin headache? Green: No, sir. There were no signs of an Excedrin headache. Dobbins: You and your ilk make me sick."

"Why are you reading that to me?"

"Because, Dobbins, since the trial I've lost my confidence in making a diagnosis. A lady came in the other day limping ..."

"Please, Doc, I don't want to hear it now. Give me some Demerol."

"You said during the suit that I dispensed drugs like a drunken sailor. I've changed my ways, Dobbins. I don't prescribe drugs anymore."

"Then get me another doctor."

"There are no other doctors on duty. The reason I'm here is that after the malpractice suit the sheriff seized everything in my office. This is the only place I can practice."

"If you give me something to relieve the pain I'll personally appeal your case to a higher court."

"You know, Dobbins, I was sure you would someday be wheeled in on a stretcher."

"How did you know that?"

"At the trial I made a mental note that you were a prime candidate for a kidney stone."

"You can't tell when a man is a candidate for a kidney stone by just looking at him."

"That's what you think, Dobbins. You had so much acid in you when you addressed the jury I knew some of it eventually had to crystallize into stones. Remember on the third day when you called me the 'Butcher of Operating Room 6'? That afternoon I said to my wife, 'That man is going to be in a lot of pain.'"

"OK, Doc, you've had your ounce of flesh. Can I now have my ounce of Demerol?"

"I better check you out first."

"Don't check me out, just give the dope."

"But in court the first question you asked was if I had examined the patient completely. It would be negligent of me if I didn't do it now. Do you mind getting on the scale?"

"What for?"

"To find out your height. I have to be prepared in case I get sued again and the lawyer asks me if I knew how tall you were."

"I'm not going to sue you."

"You say that now. But how can I be sure you won't file a writ after you pass the kidney stone?"

Strength For Today

The tighter one pulls a kite string, the higher the kite soars. Loosen the string, and the kite immediately begins to waver and fall because there is not enough force of the wind against it to keep it in the air.

A kite soars against the wind, and the more we tug at it, the more it tugs back and attempts to rise in consequence.

The confrontation of people and temptation is much the same as the encounter of the kite with the wind. We can hardly said to be virtuous until we have found ourselves face to face with the enticement of something which is not virtuous. It takes opposition to draw real, vital force out of our souls.

We may wonder why we have to face these temptations. A loving, heavenly Father permits us to be subjected to their power because He has given us inner strength sufficient to overcome them.

Democrats Find A Dilemma

WASHINGTON — The Democratic Party's deepening dilemma over Nicaragua is typified by Sen. James Sasser, its new spokesman on Central America who simultaneously calls for both an end to communist rule in Managua — and its containment.

The incompatibility of those aims explains why Congress probably will end up voting military aid for anti-communist guerrillas. But Sasser, no left-wing ideologue, protests in a letter to us that Democrats do not accept "entrenchment" of communism in Nicaragua, then suggests the regime must be "contained."

This is no blunder by a foreign affairs neophyte whose sudden appearance in the spotlight extends a middle-road Southern accent to party policy. That policy is clear, spelled out in an unreleased report by House Democrats which finds communist rule in Managua acceptable, however distasteful, if accompanied by non-expansionist promises.

That is a price much too high for Sen. Bill Bradley, a northeastern Democrat with an 84 percent Americans for Democratic Action (ADA) liberal voting record. He recently cast his first vote for Contra aid. Only 10 other Democratic senators, mostly Southern conservatives, joined him. The majority of the party's lawmakers, consciously or insensibly, are settling into acceptance of communism in Nicaragua if it cannot be excised by means other than force.

So advises a House task force report on "a Democratic alternative" to Reagan's policy: "potential agreements that would restrict Nicaragua's behavior, whether arrived at through the Contadora process or bilateral negotiations, should not be sacrificed because of an inability to reach agreement on the internal character of the regime."

The cards were stacked when Rep. Mel Levine of California was named task force chairman. He showed his outlook by consistently voting against military aid to El Salvador, then imperiled by communist guerrillas. Even after the liberal reformer Jose Napoleon Duarte was elected president in May 1984, Levine voted against Salvadoran aid.

Selling containment is not Levine but Jim Sasser, a well-regarded former labor lawyer from Nashville, Tenn. During his first nine years in the Senate, he has compiled a liberal voting record of only 57.1 percent as measured by the ADA.

He has no foreign policy experience and told us he has never visited a Contra camp. But party leaders wanted a soothing Southern accent to replace the abrasive rhetoric of Connecticut's Sen. Christopher Dodd, who in the first Reagan term was assigned national television duty opposing Salvadoran aid.

A week after Sasser delivered the televised Democratic response to Reagan's Contra plea, we asked him on NBC's "Meet the Press" whether Democrats were willing to perpetuate a communist regime in Managua in exchange for promises not to extend their influence.

"Nobody's saying that," he replied. "What we're saying ... is that this administration has to make a choice. Do they want to follow a containment in Central America, or do they wish to topple the Sandinista regime?" It could be toppled, he added, only "with American military forces."

In case that sounded like accepting communism on the American mainland, Sasser on March 24 wrote us that neither he nor "Democrats generally" accept "entrenchment" of communist rule in Managua. He added: "We do believe that, if Nicaragua is to be ruled by a communist regime, it must — and can — be contained." Sasser went on to say Democrats "seek to influence peaceful change in Nicaragua which will, over time, result in the repudiation of communists at the polls."

This assumes that a Marxist-Leninist regime will perform two unprecedented acts: forego expansion and preside over its own destruction through the electoral process. Sen. Joseph Biden of Delaware, a likely 1988 presidential candidate, did not call for containment on "Meet the Press" recently. Instead, he explained his anti-Contra vote by questioning the purity of the Contras.

Facing the same problem, Bill Bradley found another solution. He became the only New Jersey Democrat in Congress to vote for aid, asserting that the Nicaraguan people "deserve a chance at democracy" that "will be denied them if the Sandinistas are allowed to consolidate their totalitarian regime." While anathema to his party's current dogma, Bradley's words reflect his party's long heritage — pointing the only good way out of its Central American dilemma.

Drug Policy Draws Debate

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina district attorneys, who would prosecute increased drug cases the SBI hopes to initiate with a new policy of pursuing drug users and small-time dealers, are debating the merits of the policy.

"The small-time dealers are the body of the drug empire, they are the hands, they are the legs," said District Attorney Carl Fox, who represents Chatham and Orange counties. "If we can catch enough of those people and close them down, then there won't be any market for the major drug dealers."

But Edward Grannis Jr., district attorney for Cumberland and Hoke counties, scorns the State Bureau of Investigation's new efforts.

"It's kind of like taking a mop and a bucket to the seashore and trying to make a dent on the tide," Grannis said.

In the past, the agency has focused on multiton marijuana smugglers and other major drug traffickers, leaving users and street-level dealers to local police. But in January, after the largest roundup of accused marijuana and cocaine dealers and users in state history — 618 people in 43 counties — a change was announced.

SBI officials and state Attorney General Lacy Thornburg said they would keep pursuing the kingpins but also go after minor dealers and users — any drug violators they could catch.

"We have in the past tended to focus more at the top level, at the trafficking," Thornburg said in a recent interview. "This is new in the sense that we are looking to the demand side as well as the supply side."

The News and Observer of Raleigh conducted telephone interviews with 24 of the state's 35 district attorneys and sought their opinions of the SBI's new policy.

About half of the prosecutors interviewed disagreed strongly with the policy or said they had serious reservations about it.

They were concerned that the policy would spread thin the SBI's already limited manpower and money, allow more major dealers to slip into the state and crowd court dockets and jails. They also feared the policy would duplicate the responsibilities of local law enforcement agencies while leaving fewer agents to handle major drug cases.

"I would tend to think that, for the SBI, the most productive way for them to use their resources is to try to trace the flow of drugs upstream, rather than downstream," said Wake County District Attorney J. Randolph Riley. "They are, perhaps, biting off more than we can chew."

Many critics pointed to economic considerations.

"It would seem to me that you could target the trafficker a lot cheaper," said District Attorney Michael Easley, who represents Bladen, Brunswick and Columbus counties. "I don't doubt that there has to be some effort put forth on both ends — both supply and demand — but I think you stop the supply by catching the trafficker."

Some Like Hot Brew

BLLENHEIM, S.C. (AP) — Some North Carolinians returning from South Carolina beaches stop in Blenheim for a six-pack and go home with a fire in their throat and a gleam in their eyes as they anticipate introducing friends to "Old Hots."

"Some people passing through here stop and try one of the ole number threes," said Kitty Caraba. "They will take a mouthful, puff out their cheeks and get bug-eyed. Some will gulp it down; a few others can't hold it and spit it out fast."

Blenheim is a crossroads village about 20 miles south of Hamlet, N.C., known for its mineral spring.

In 1974 Clio grocer Bill Dennis and his sons, Ed and Ronnie, bought the Blenheim Bottling Co. plant, which had been closed. They reopened the place and not only saved the landmark, but the famed, local line of soft drinks that included a dozen flavors.

The spring was discovered in 1781. At the turn of this century, Dr. C.R. May began to prescribe the water for stomach ailments. To enhance the flavor, he added freshly ground Jamaican ginger.

Folks found it to be an "elixir" so refreshing that in 1903 May and a friend, A.J. Matheson, founded Blenheim Bottling Works.

Although today's flavors include orange, grape, root beer and pale ginger ale, it is Old No. 3 ginger that attracts the most attention. It reportedly has three times the ginger and is thus three times as hot.

"We can't very well make it any hotter," employee James Hayes said, laughing. "If we made it any hotter, it might melt the glass!"

The "hot" aspect of Old No. 3 has generated lots of tall tales among Blenheim folks. The Dennis brothers claim a bartender once returned a case of "Old Hots" because customers complained they couldn't taste the bourbon in their drinks.

Wine Raises Export Hopes

MENDOZA, Argentina (AP) — Argentina has 450 million gallons of surplus wine, enough to fill a good-sized lake or slake the thirst of every Argentine for a year.

Or, just maybe, enough to turn Argentina into a major wine exporter.

"The product itself has been and can be very successful abroad," said Eduardo Pulenta, whose family owns one of the country's biggest vineyards. "It's not a question of the prime material."

The question is persuading a traditionally-minded industry, which became successful by catering to domestic consumers, that its future may lie in highly competitive foreign markets.

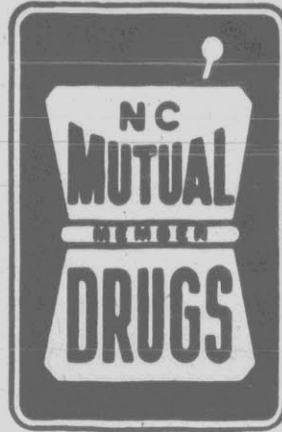

Italian immigrants, such as Pulenta's father, Antonio, converted the hot and dusty valley of Mendoza Province, 700 miles west of Buenos Aires at the foot of the Andes, into a lush expanse of vineyards and made Argentina the world's fifth-largest wine producer.

Their product traveled by horse-cart, and later by rail, to Buenos Aires and other major cities to be liberally tossed down at lunch and dinner, in restaurants, sidewalk cafes and at the family dining table. Wine drinkers were happy and winemakers were rich.

But in the last 15 years, domestic consumption plummeted. The slower-paced European style of life was replaced by a more hectic, American pace. The two-hour lunch with its requisite full bottle of wine was replaced by the sandwich and soft drink.

In 1970, annual consumption stood at 20 gallons for every Argentine. By 1985, it had fallen to 12.5 gallons.

Ignoring the warning signs, wineries continued to expand all along the Andean foothills, especially in Mendoza Province, where 72 percent of the country's wine is produced.

City Meeting

The Greenville City Council will hold a public meeting Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the third floor council chamber of City Hall to give Greenville residents the opportunity to comment on three election districting plans under consideration.

District plans to be discussed include 4-2-1, 5-1-1 and 6-0-1 proposals. The first number in each of the proposal designations refers to the number of single-member districts proposed, the second to numbers of at-large council seats and the third to the mayor. No final action will be taken at the meeting.

City Hall is located at the corner of Fifth and Washington streets.

Utilities Meet

The Greenville Utilities Commission board will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the utilities building at the intersection of Fifth and Washington Streets.

Unemployment

North Carolina showed an increase of 0.6 percent in its unemployment rate in March, but officials at the Employment Security Commission said the increase was not considered "statistically significant."

The unemployment rate for March was 5.8 percent, up from February's rate of 5.2 percent.

The office reports that North Carolina's rate remains among the lowest of the 11 largest states. The national rate was reported at 7.2 percent in March.

Rape Report

Greenville police are continuing their investigation of a rape reported to the department at 3:43 a.m. Saturday.

Officer J.E. Woolard and Detective K.P. Fuller said a 21-year-old East Carolina University co-ed was assaulted in her apartment in a complex near downtown between 2:30 and 3 a.m.

Fuller said the woman saw a black man duck behind some bushes after answering a knock at her door. Later, as she prepared to leave to spend the remainder of the night with a friend, she was forced back into her apartment by a man armed with a gun and knife and assaulted.

Stella Wooten Baker, of 2008 Sherwood Drive was injured and an estimated $12,500 damage caused in a 12:59 p.m. collision Friday at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Eastbrook Drive.

Police said an estimated $9,000 damage resulted to the car driven by Ms. Baker, while damage to the second car, driven by Lisa Jane Aubry of 1918 White Hollow Drive, was set at $3,500.

Ms. Baker was charged with failing to yield the right of way in connection with the collision.

Charged

John Thomas Barbour, 33, of Route 1, Ayden, was arrested by Greenville police about 6:30 p.m. Sunday on indecent exposure charges.

Officer M.J. Nobles said Barbour was charged in connection with an incident that occurred at the intersection of 14th Street and Greenville Boulevard about 2:33 p.m. Saturday in which a man driving a jeep exposed himself to a woman.

Drug Charge

Officers assigned to the police department's special investigations section arrested Kenneth Earl Pridges, 28, of 3 Bland's Trailer Park on charges of possession with intent to sell and deliver cocaine about 12:30 a.m. Sunday.

Investigators said the charge resulted from a 12:10 a.m. incident on Albemarle Avenue.

Pridgen was also charged with resisting arrest in connection with the case, officers said.

Charles Horne and Charles Waller have been named co-managers of Terry Sanford's U.S. Senate campaign in Pitt County.

Waller, a resident of Greenville for 21 years, has been involved in farming and the farm equipment business for a number of years.

In announcing Horne and Waller as co-managers of his campaign, Sanford said "Organizing on the local level can make or break a political campaign, so I'm especially pleased to have Charles Horne and Charlie Waller working with me in Pitt County. I know the dedication and enthusiasm they bring to the campaign will be invaluable."

Bomb Prompts Tight Security

By MARK HEINRICH
Associated Press Writer
BERLIN (AP) — U.S. military installations imposed intense security precautions as police pressed their hunt for terrorists who bombed a West Berlin nightclub frequented by American soldiers, killing two people and injuring 204.

West German newspapers reported Sunday that city and U.S. military police were focusing on Arab extremists who might have crossed into West Berlin from this divided city's communist eastern sector to stage the early Saturday morning bombing.

U.S. diplomatic sources in West Berlin said there was strong suspicion the radical Libyan regime of Col. Moammar Khadafy may have been involved in the bomb attack, which devastated the La Belle discotheque.

"The Libyan angle is being explored very vigorously. Khadafy is an active suspect," said one U.S. diplomat, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Khadafy had vowed strikes on American interests abroad in retaliation for U.S. naval maneuvers in disputed waters off Libya last month, when 6th Fleet and Libyan forces clashed.

West Germany's foreign minister, Hans-Dietrich Genscher, set up a "working group of experts" to investigate possible involvement of unidentified foreign governments in the bombing.

Telephoned claims of responsibility were made Saturday on behalf of two West German leftist groups and an anti-American Arab formation, but Manfred Ganschow, director of West Berlin security police, said Sunday that they "cannot be considered authentic." He did not go into detail.

The two discotheque patrons killed in the blast were identified as U.S. Army Sgt. Kenneth Terrance Ford, 21, of Detroit, and a 28-year-old Turkish woman, Nermin Haney.

U.S. military personnel expressed anger over the bombing, as well as worry that future attacks might take place in nightclubs and other public places where full protection is impossible.

"If you can't go out anywhere in the place where you live and work, it makes no sense to be there at all," said Army Spec. 4 Andre Thomas, 25, of Los Angeles. Thomas said he was in the discotheque when the bomb exploded, and had suffered ear injuries.

Sixty-four of the 204 people reported injured were Americans, but only 18 remained in hospitals by Sunday evening. They were undergoing treatment for severe burns and other injuries, said U.S. military spokesman Steven Stromvall.

Stromvall said U.S. military bases and barracks "went to much tighter security" after the bombing. He declined to elaborate.

An AP reporter who visited the U.S. Army's Andrews Barracks on Sunday noticed exhaustive security measures applied even to the servicemen based there.

Guards searched soldiers' cars for bombs, and identification cards were laboriously checked.

"The security's probably 150 percent stronger than before," said Army Spec. 4 Stephanie Schaeffer, 21, of Boise, Idaho.

Rich Brothers Lead Opposite Lifestyles

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — One brother calls himself a workaholic interested in dealing guns and land with control of a valuable ranch.

The other brother is a mentally retarded recluse, relying on the television for companionship, and living in a house described as filthy and overrun by dogs.

Both men own land worth several million dollars.

The two live together, but their very different lives were revealed in a court hearing when a judge removed Richard Sievers, 44, as legal guardian of his retarded brother, Robert, 40.

Richard had been his brother's guardian since their mother was killed in a car accident 22 years ago. The two brothers inherited property from her.

The judge named the retarded man's court-appointed attorney, Wade Wilson, as guardian of both Robert and his estate, which the Travis County Probate Court estimates at $3 million.

But Richard Sievers has contested the ruling, and a new hearing has been scheduled for next month.

Wilson, the retarded brother's lawyer, wants the court to grant the sale of his share of the ranch so Robert doesn't have to live in a "cesspool."

"I guarantee you that's the first thing we're going to do," Wilson said. "All I want to do is protect Robert Sievers' investment so he's got money to live comfortably for the rest of his life. I'm not going to let him die at the age of 60 poverty-stricken."

"What the whole fight is about is the ranch — who is going to get the ranch, and who is going to get to sell it, and who is going to get to rake the cream off the top," said Brian R. Davis, attorney for Richard Sievers. "There isn't any money and there never has been." He said the brothers are land rich but cash poor.

The investigator said there was little food and that Robert Sievers was unbathed and sleeping in a heavily soiled bed with no sheets.

CIA-Israel Ties Beefed

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. intelligence agents are tightening their ties with the security services of Israel and moderate Arab states to fight terrorism, says CIA director William J. Casey.

In a rare speech on Sunday, Casey also said Kremlin leader Mikhail Gorbachev was seeking to establish Soviet "bridgeheads" abroad, to the point of sending Soviet warplanes against government forces in a coup in South Yemen in January.

The speech by Casey marked the first time a U.S. official publicly accused the Soviet Union of complicity in the ouster of South Yemeni President Ali Nasser Mohammed.

Delivering the keynote address to a three-day meeting of the American-Israeli Public Affairs Committee — a pro-Israel lobby — Casey depicted terrorist acts supported by Libyan and Syria as linked to a wider Soviet campaign to weaken American allies around the globe.

To cope with the threat of terrorism, Casey said, "the United States has strengthened and invigorated its strategic cooperation with Israel."

The cooperation, he said, "has included and features enhanced cooperation in our intelligence exchanges between the (Israeli) Mossad and the American intelligence community. And particularly in the field of terrorism and counter-terrorism."

"At the same time, we have also expanded our cooperative relationship with friendly Arab states, who also see a Soviet and radical danger. Together, we must fight terrorism, a threat which threatens all our friends in the Middle East and elsewhere," he said.

WILLIAM CASEY

Asked to elaborate on CIA ties with Arab intelligence services, Casey said, "I'm not going to get very specific on that. But I will say that there has evolved over recent years a worldwide antiterrorist network which is based on the active intelligence exchanged among the security services of moderate Arab, Europeans, all of our friends everywhere."

"We do a lot of training, we provide technical service to improve the capabilities of their services, and we collaborate with them in counterterrorist actions," he said.

Although U.S. officials seldom publicly disclose details of cooperation with foreign authorities against terrorism, such collaboration has been apparent over the past year.

Farm Aid of a Different Feather

You can see them on tobacco farms, livestock farms, all kinds of farms.

Perdue chicken houses are nearly as common as tractors in some parts of North Carolina.

More than 1,000 independent farmers around the state have discovered that a Perdue operation can give their cash flow and net income a healthy boost. For many of them, it's been the difference between getting by and getting ahead.

Unlike an investment in a combine that you'd use just a few weeks out of the year, a Perdue broiler house "harvests" a steady income year round. It helps smooth out the seasonal ups and downs of other crops.

State-of-the-art design makes a Perdue broiler house easy to operate. Many of our producers operate two or more houses without hired labor, in addition to their other farming or off-the-farm jobs.

This ease of combining a chicken house operation with other enterprises has a lot to do with poultry's new status as the state's number-one cash crop. Poultry earned over $1.3 billion for North Carolina farmers in 1985. Not exactly chickenfeed!

Even if you have no experience in the chicken business, getting started with Perdue is easy because your Perdue serviceman will advise you every step of the way. That's an important part of Perdue's commitment to our North Carolina producers.

When it comes time to talk about financing, the Perdue staff can help you with the paperwork and show you what kind of cash flow you can expect. Excellent financing is available from lenders around the state who have worked with Perdue through the years and have seen how a Perdue operation can pay off.

We'd appreciate the opportunity to tell you more about the potential a Perdue broiler house holds for you, either as a full-time business or as one part of a diversified operation.

For more information, mail the coupon back to Perdue, or call Perdue 1-800-372-6543.

Anti-Semitism Hits Farm Belt

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — It usually begins with talk of conspiracy: outsiders plotting to bankrupt America's farmers and take their land. International bankers are involved. So is the Federal Reserve System.

And somehow, they're all linked to the Jews.

That shadowy message, that Jews are behind the farm crisis, has become an uncomfortably familiar refrain in the economically devastated Midwest and Great Plains. With land values and crop prices down, it's not hard to see how distraught farmers fall prey to such talk.

"Hitler did the same thing in Germany. This went on back during the Depression in the '20s and '30s," said retired Nebraska Judge Samuel Van Pelt. "Anytime you have someone in financial trouble, they're more vulnerable to a racist pitch."

Jews, furthermore, tend to be convenient scapegoats because so few live in rural areas.

"People can blame Jews because they're not there," said Joe Chrastil of the Family Farm Organizing suffering with this problem may be treated with commercial preparations of calcium and magnesium salts injected intravenously.

The most effective method of managing grass tetany is a prevention program based on magnesium supplementation. During times of moderate tetany risk, cattle should consume one ounce of magnesium oxide daily through some type of supplement, block, mineral or grain mix. In periods of high tetany risk, animals should receive two ounces of magnesium oxidized per head per day.

Farmers observing symptoms of grass tetany in their cattle should consult a veterinarian for an accurate diagnosis. Contact the agricultural extension office at 752-2934 for more details about grass tetany.

Grass tetany is a nutritional disorder that can cause death to cattle grazing cool season grasses and/or small grains. Grass tetany occurs most frequently in lactating beef cows within 60 days after calving. However, it can affect gestating cows or cattle feed wintering rations.

Grass tetany is actually a magnesium deficiency. Many times, lush, spring grass is high in forage potassium which may depress magnesium absorption from the digestive tract of cattle. The high moisture content in these grasses, such as rye or ryegrass, may also reduce dry matter and magnesium intake.

Cattle affected with grass tetany may have the symptoms of excitement, incoordination, loss of appetite, muscular twitching, viciousness, profuse salivation, convulsions and even death. Animals

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market declined broadly today as oil prices continued to rebound from their early-1986 slide.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 2.39 to 1,736.83 in the first hour of trading.

Losers outnumbered gainers by more than 2 to 1 in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The price of crude-oil futures for May delivery, which started to rally after it dipped below $10 a barrel on the New York Mercantile Exchange early last week, reached $13.50 this morning.

Analysts said the upswing was bolstered by news of a strike that closed down Norway's offshore oil production.

Falling oil prices were cited as a primary force behind the strong advance in stock and bond prices during the first quarter of the year. Now that oil has bounced back, stocks and bonds have turned weak.

Today prices of long-term government bonds showed losses ranging to $5 for every $1,000 in face value. That helped set the tone for a sluggish opening in the stock market.

Losers among the blue chips included Ford Motor, down 1 1/8 at 79 1/8; Sears Roebuck, down 1 1/8 at 45 1/8, and American Telephone & Telegraph, down 1/8 at 21 1/8.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks fell .46 to 131.83. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down .96 at 264.12.

will be a real help to corn, which has recently been planted. It should make the soil much more suitable for the working and planting of other crops and vegetable gardens.

"The rain should also give some relief to allergy sufferers, to a certain extent," Uzzell said, "but as far as reducing fire hazards, I don't think we've accomplished as much there. Hopefully within the next week or two, we can continue to have some rainfall associated with the thunderstorms that have moved into the south."

The high temperature Saturday was 89 degrees and the low was 59 degrees, according to figures provided by the water plant. Sunday's high was 82 degrees, and the low was 59 degrees.

An unsettled weather pattern will remain with North Carolina through Tuesday, increasing the chance of showers and thunderstorms, as a strong cold front passes through the state and moves off the coast.

The YES Fund makes investing your hard-earned money a "piece of cake!"

11.29%*

Think of the YES Fund as a three-layer cake. The first layer is made from U.S. T-Bills, the second U.S. T-Notes and the third T-Bonds. All of which can be bought on the open market with payment of principal and interest guaranteed "tasty" by Uncle Sam — subject to fluctuations in the market of course!

And the icing! That's the part that adds excitement to any cake.

The ICING on the YES Fund cake is squeezed from "heavy-hitters" (e.g. millionaires, large family trusts, insurance companies, multi-national corporations, and banks, etc.). No matter how much they have — they usually need and/or want more!

These "heavy-hitters" are the mysterious "option-buyers" you read about in The Wall Street Journal and the business sections of your local papers that buy options on U.S. Treasury bonds for a variety of investment objectives.

To take advantage of these "heavy-hitters" propensity to try and gain additional yield, The YES Fund:

(a) Pools the money of a large group of small investors into a substantial "open-ended" mutual fund.

(b) Places that money conservatively in a portfolio of only (secured) US T-Bonds, T-Bills, T-Notes and up to 20% in Bank CD's.

(c) Sells options on its U.S. T-Bonds to "heavy-hitters" for a fee. And the YES Fund turns around and invests these fees to earn added income for its shareholders.

All of which could make The YES Fund cake rich and tasty enough for your appetite.

Here are things you should know about our YES Fund.

The YES Fund is an open-ended mutual fund formed to invest at least 80% of its assets in U.S. Treasury Bills, Treasury Bonds, Treasury Notes, G.S.M.A.s, and other securities with maturities of 10 years or less.

Lyle Holds On To Capture GGO

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
AP Sports Writer

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Sandy Lyle doesn't consider his adjustment to American golf complete. It is, however, a lot closer after the Scotsman overcame a nagging stigma by holding on to capture the Greater Greensboro Open golf tournament.

"I've worked very hard for it. There's been a lot of sweat lost over the last few days," said Lyle, a winner by two shots over Andy Bean, the 1984 GGO champion. "It's very rewarding. The money's good, too."

Lyle had never won a tournament on U.S. fairways, although he has established himself as one of the top players on the European circuit. But the 1985 British Open champion ended his drought in this country by taking the victory and a $90,000 paycheck.

"You've just got to keep banging on," Lyle said after his final-round 70 gave him a 72-hole total of 275, a 13-under-par score that tied the Forest Oaks Country Club record. "The only way you can do it is work. There's no easy way out."

"It's been one of my big problems, believing that I could do it over here," Lyle continued. "I've done it everywhere else but America. This time, it's come right."

Lyle's work was made difficult because Bean was on his heels for the final nine holes. Starting the day at 6-under-par, Bean overcame a bogey on the third hole and finished the last two holes on the front nine with consecutive birdies to close within three shots of the lead.

Lyle started the day with par, but dropped a shot when he pulled his tee shot on the second hole, hit a cameraman on his second shot and left his third shot short of the green. He two-putted for a bogey 6.

"It was a little bit unsettling there," Lyle said. "And then I played fairly solid golf from there on.

Meanwhile, I've got Andy Bean breathing down my neck."

Bean's charge continued with birdies at 10 and 11. Lyle also birdied 9 and 10, but his comfortable edge was down to two shots with seven holes to play.

"Even when I birdied 10, it was still pretty wide open," Bean said. "I birdied 11 and left it short on 12."

Bean was within birdie distance on the par-5 13th hole, but he missed the opportunity and felt the momentum he had built was starting to fade.

At the 15th hole, Bean birdied to close the gap to one shot, but he couldn't clear the final hurdle. After par at 16, Bean missed 12-foot birdie putts at 17 and 18, thus closing the door on his chance at a second GGO.

"Most any year, with a par on 18, you've got a pretty good chance," Bean said. "But when you've got someone who hits it as long as (Lyle) does, and you're playing as well as he's playing, you don't make too many bogeys."

As Bean watched a television in the official's tent off the 18th green, Lyle closed his round with a 15-foot putt for birdie.

Bean gets $54,000 for second place and also has an added bit of confidence going into next week's Masters.

Pirates Come Back To Defeat Mason

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

George Mason learned something Sunday afternoon in its third meeting with East Carolina's Pirates — never, never, ever take a 3-0 lead on ECU.

For the third game in a row, the Patriots powered out to a 3-0 lead over East Carolina, only to see the Pirates come back and win. Sunday afternoon, ECU added an 8-6 victory to its 9-3, 5-4 doubleheader sweep of Saturday.

The win boosted the Pirates to 7-3 against Colonial Athletic Association opponents, while Mason tumbled to 4-4 in the league.

East Carolina now trails James Madison by just a one game in the loss column while everyone else in the league has lost at least three times.

"I thought I was seeing the same two games all over again," Coach Gary Overton said after it was all over. "It just seemed like the two we played Saturday were being played again."

"But we did get some timely hit, especially that of Winfred Johnson up the middle in the seventh inning. That run tied it up after the Patriots had come up with a 5-4 lead. Later, a Steve Sides walk forced in the go-ahead run as the Pirates scored four times in the frame for an 8-4 lead.

"We did a good job of taking advantage of their mistakes today," Overton continued. "That helped us in manufacturing some runs along the way."

Overton praised both of his pitchers on the day, starter Craig Van Deventer, who got the win, his sixth against no losses, and Jake Jacobs, who came on to earn a save in the eighth inning.

"I thought Craig did remarkable well for having pitched on Thursday. It was very commendable of him. Jacobs did a good job coming on. He walked the first man he faced, but he got them out without any more damage and then retired them in order in the ninth against the two-three-and-four hitters."

It was definitely a case of deja vu in the top of the first when Mason pushed in three runs for a 3-0 lead — the third 3-0 lead of the series.

Ryan Johnson opened with a walk and stole second. David White singled to drive in Johnston, but White went out on Carlin Hart's infield grounder. Ray Mikell followed with a home run to left, running the lead to 3-0.

The Pirates quickly came back — just like it was expected of them — tying it with three of their own in the bottom of the inning.

Mont Carter led off with a single up the middle and with one away, Chris Bradberry walked. Johnson singled to right, scoring Carter and Mike Sullivan's single to right brought Bradberry in. Jay McGraw was hit by a pitch, loading the bases and with two gone, Mark Cockrell walked to force in Johnson with the tying run.

Bradberry saved a run for the Pirates in the third. With one away, Mason had seen Luke Sable beat out an infield grounder. He was then safe at second when White's grounder was thrown away. Hart followed with a single to center, but Bradberry's throw to catcher Jim Riley was right on target to easily get Sable coming from second base.

East Carolina then took the lead in the fifth with a run. Bradberry walked and stole second. With one down, Sullivan singled him in for a 4-3 lead.

Mason came back with two in the sixth to take a 5-4 lead. Hart led off with a single and Tim McGrath smacked the ball out of the park in left to give the Patriots the lead again.

The Pirates appeared in trouble again in the seventh as the first two men got on and were advanced on a sacrifice. But a line-drive doubleplay initiated by Sullivan got the Pirates out of it without damage.

East Carolina then moved ahead for good with four runs in the seventh, 8-5.

Greg Hardison led off with an infield hit and Bradberry beat out a bunt down the third base line. Johnson banged one up the middle scoring Hardison with the tying run. Both runners advanced on an out and McGrath was intentionally walked.

That strategy backfired, however, as Sides singled to drive in Bradberry with the go-ahead run. Cockrell then walked, forcing over Johnson. A walk to David Ritchie brought McGraw over.

Mason finally chased Van Deventer in the eighth, getting one more run. Hart led off with a double with one away, McGrath walked and Scott Toelle singled to load them up.

Mark Miller drew a walk off Jacobs, scoring Hart, but the next batter bounced back to the mound for the force at home and a pop-up ended the threat.

Jacobs got the Patriots in order in the ninth to finish it off.

Bradberry, Johnson and Sullivan each picked up two hits on the afternoon to lead the Pirates while Hart had three for Mason.

East Carolina climbs to 26-4 on the season with the win, while Mason is now 15-12.

East Carolina plays host to N.C. State in a 3 p.m. game Tuesday, travels to Richmond for a CAA contest on Wednesday, and is back home

Thursday at 7 p.m. to entertain North Carolina.

Baseball Season Opens

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Tom Seaver and Steve Carlton will be on the mound, as usual, but Pete Rose and Pedro Guerrero will be on the sidelines when the major-league baseball season opens today with a five-game schedule.

The Cincinnati Reds, "descendants" of baseball's first professional team, will hold their traditional home opener with Carlton and the Philadelphia Phillies providing the opposition. But they will have company in the form of four other games — San Diego at Los Angeles in the National League; Boston at Detroit, Cleveland at Baltimore and Milwaukee at Chicago in the American.

And not only can't the Reds call Opening Day their own, they won't even have the first pitch to themselves unless there is a rain delay in Detroit, where the Tigers and Red Sox are scheduled for a 1:30 p.m. EST start, 35 minutes before Cincinnati.

Manager John Felske of the Phillies has nominated Carlton, who won 313 games prior to 1985, when he was 1-8 and spent 2½ months on the disabled list with shoulder miseries.

It will be Lefty's 14th Opening Day start, tying the NL record of Seaver (11 for the New York Mets, three for Cincinnati). The four-time Cy Young Award-winner is 14-19 against the Reds, one of only two teams with winning records against him. In Carlton's openers, all but one for the Phillies, he's 3-8 with two no-decisions.

Ironically, for the second year in a row, Seaver will be the starting pitcher for the Chicago White Sox, extending his own major-league record to 16 openers.

Mario Soto, who got off to the best start of his career (4-1 and a 1.50 ERA last April) but finished a disappointing 12-15, will be pitching his fifth consecutive opener for the Reds.

Cincinnati City Councilman J. Kenneth Blackwell has recommended a resolution taking Baseball Commissioner Peter Ueberroth to task for allowing the Tigers to beat the Reds out of the starting gate. He also suggested that everyone attending the Reds' opener turn their watches back one hour.

However, Robert Miller, the Tigers' assistant public relations director, said there was "no intention on the part of the commissioner, the American League or the Tigers to steal the thunder away from the Reds. The Reds' game has been designated as the traditional opener of baseball. It's just a quirk in the schedule."

Rose, who turns 45 next Monday, will be a manager rather than a player-manager for at least the first two weeks of the season. He saw limited exhibition action (17 at-bats) because of a bad case of the flu and starts the season on the disabled list, only his second such trip in 24 major-league campaigns. For trivia buffs, the other time was July 6-27, 1968.

"Anybody hates to miss Opening Day as a player. It's a great tradition in Cincinnati. But then I won't actually miss it," said Rose, baseball's all-time hit leader (4,204), who in any event would have penciled in right-handed-hitting Tony Perez to start at first base against Carlton.

Rose had stomach pains for a week early in spring training and doctors diagnosed a hiatal hernia.

"I feel fine. I'm getting better every day," Rose said. "I have the right medication now. I feel behind in terms of games played and stuff like that, but I'm swinging the bat pretty well now, my legs feel good, my arm feels good and I have an extra week or so to really work hard to get ready."

The Reds are considered contenders in the NL West after finishing a surprising second to Los Angeles a year ago. During the winter, they acquired pitchers John Denny from Philadelphia and Bill Gullickson from Montreal to join Soto and 20-game winner Tom Browning in the starting rotation.

But, says Rose, "If I had to pick, I'd pick the Dodgers because they're the defending champions." Of course, he said that before Los

Philadelphia Upsets Celts, 95-94

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Basketball Writer

The Boston Celtics, riding a 14-game winning streak, were holding a two-point lead with seven seconds left and had Larry Bird at the free-throw line.

The Philadelphia 76ers, with Moses Malone, Andrew Toney and Bob McAdoo sidelined by injuries, almost needed a miracle to win.

Or was it three miracles?

First Bird, hitting nearly 90 percent of his free throws, missed two. Then 6-foot-6 Charles Barkley beat 6-10 Kevin McHale on a jump ball with three seconds left. Finally, Julius Erving grabbed the tip and swished a three-pointer at the buzzer to give the 76ers a 95-94 NBA victory over the Celtics on Sunday.

"We don't want to get too emotionally high before the playoffs, but that was a great win for us," Philadelphia Coach Matt Guokas said. "This is probably our most satisfying win of the year."

In other NBA games, it was Houston 109, the Los Angeles Lakers 103; Washington 106, Cleveland 95; and Denver 124, San Antonio 106.

Bird said the failure to take his time at the foul line caused the rare double miss that helped the 76ers end the longest winning streak in the NBA this season.

"When you don't concentrate at the foul line, that's what happens," said Bird, who had 18 points and 10 assists.

Bird indicated that he and his teammates were not concerned with equalling the 1971-72 Los Angeles Lakers' all-time best single-season record of 69-13. The Celtics are now 64-14.

"Obviously, we're disappointed to lose, but we made some mistakes down the stretch and Philadelphia played real hard," Bird said. "Right now, all we want is the regular season to be over and get on with the playoffs."

The 76ers, who have clinched the No. 3 seeding position in the Eastern Conference, have won four straight games despite the loss of Malone, their All-Star center.

"I've felt that we could keep on winning since last Sunday, when we beat Dallas," Guokas said. "If we continue to play together the way we've been playing, we can beat anybody. It's building our confidence to play this way."

Boston led by as many as 11 points in the fourth quarter after ending the third period with an eight-point advantage with the help of two technical fouls.

Celtics guard Danny Ainge, after being knocked down on a Philadelphia basket, shoved the 76ers' Sedale Threatt, who responded with a hard right-hand punch to the mouth and was ejected. Ainge hit two free throws after Clemon Johnson also was whistled for a technical for protesting when Ainge remained in the game.

"That is just something that happens with the rivalry between these two clubs," Guokas said. "We had two good veteran officials (Darell Garretson and Mike Mathis), who I thought did a great job."

Despite the deficit, Erving and Cheeks, who scored 23 and 20 points, respectively, brought the 76ers back. But even after Bird's misses, the 76ers appeared on the verge of defeat when McHale forced the jump ball with Barkley.

"In the huddle, we talked about sealing off our man and going after the ball," Erving said. "Charles got the tap and sent it over to where I was. Ainge challenged me but I floated it up there and things worked out just right."

Rockets 109, Lakers 103

Houston won this battle of division champions, snapping a streak of 14 consecutive home losses to Los Angeles and setting a team record with 50 victories.

Akeem Olajuwon scored 25 points and Ralph Sampson, making his first start since injuring his back and neck in a fall at Boston two weeks ago, added 19 points and 17 rebounds.

Houston led 104-92 with 3:45 left, but the Lakers scored eight straight points to get within four with 44 seconds to play. But a jumper by Robert Reid and three free throws by Mitchell Wiggins sealed the outcome.

Earvin "Magic" Johnson led the Lakers with 20 points and 20 assists.

Nuggets 124, Spurs 106

Denver solidified its hold on the No. 3 Western Conference playoff spot as Alex English scored 29 points against San Antonio.

The Nuggets, who lead fourth-place Dallas by 2½ games, hit 58.7 percent of their shots against the Spurs, who lost for the 21st time in 24 games but still have a 1½-game lead over Phoenix for the last Western Conference playoff berth.

English, who was 14-for-22 from the field, scored four points during a 9-0 Denver streak in the fourth quarter that extended a nine-point lead to 116-98.

Mike Mitchell paced San Antonio with 33 points.

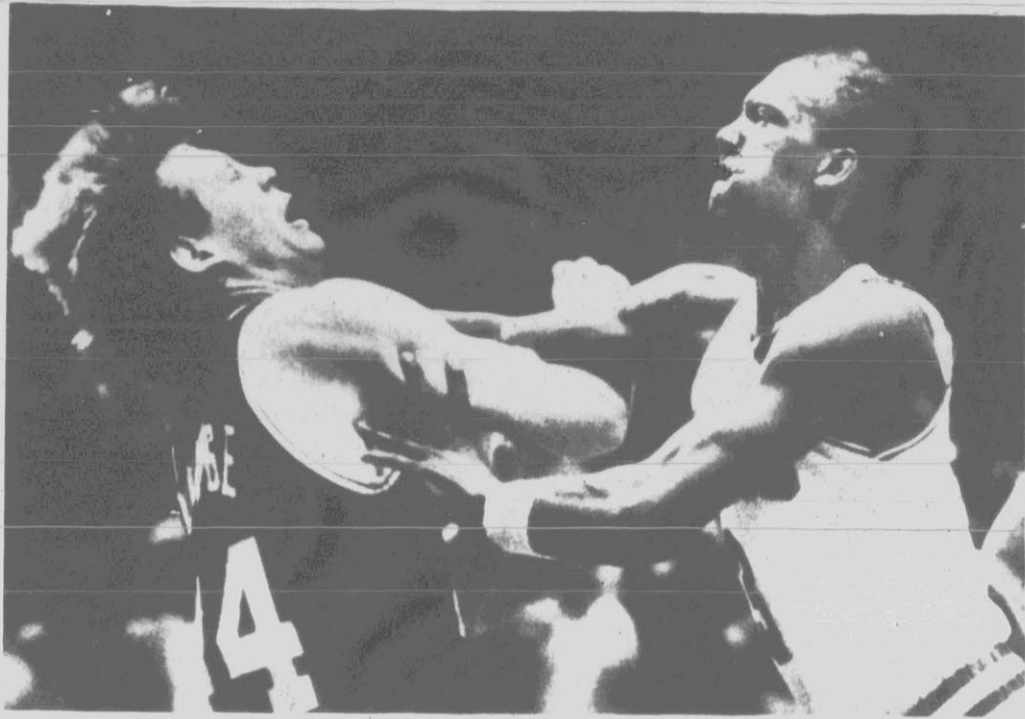

Bullets 106, Cavaliers 95

Washington got 33 points from Cliff Robinson, 25 from Jeff Malone and 21 from Gus Williams in its victory over Cleveland, which tightened the Eastern Conference playoff scramble.

The Bullets now are tied with New Jersey for sixth place, with the winner of that race to be paired with injury-hobbled Philadelphia and the seventh-place finisher facing Central Division champ Milwaukee. The Cavaliers' loss dropped them into a tie with Chicago for the final Eastern Conference spot.

A 26-14 streak in a 9½-minute span of the second and third quarters gave Washington a 71-59 lead, and Cleveland got no closer than 10 the rest of the way. Robinson, Malone and Williams scored all 26 points during the streak.

Roy Hinson led the Cavaliers with 24 points and World B. Free had 22.

Lady Pirates Split With Francis Marion

Stacey Boyette pitched a five-hitter to lead East Carolina University to a 2-1 victory over Francis Marion College in the first game of a softball doubleheader Sunday.

Francis Marion came back to win the second game, 4-2. In the first game, the Lady Pirates broke out to a 1-0 lead in the bottom of the first inning when Mickey Ford tripled, driving in Jeannie Murray, who had singled.

Francis Marion scored to tie the score, 1-1, in the top of the fifth, but ECU pulled ahead in the bottom of the inning when Mona Jackson reached on an error and came around to score on a triple by Carla Alphen.

Boyette improved her record to 12-5 on the season.

In the second game, Francis Marion scored two runs in the top of the first to take an early lead.

In the bottom of the third, Ford tripled for ECU, driving in two runs to tie the score at 2-2.

Marion scored twice off losing pitcher Robin Graves in the top of the fourth to make it 4-2.

Graves fell to 10-4.

The Lady Pirates, 22-8, host the University of North Carolina in a doubleheader on Tuesday at 2 p.m.

Rose To Sit Down First Opening Day

CINCINNATI (AP) — Reds owner Marge Schott stepped into Cincinnati's dugout, planted a kiss on Pete Rose's cheek and asked the day's most popular question.

"How ya feeling, hon?" she said, her voice registering concern.

The 44-year-old player-manager shrugged.

"Fine," came the day's standard response.

A while later, the Reds announced the expected: Rose would miss Opening Day as a player for the first time in his 23-year career.

The Reds put Rose on the 15-day disabled list on Sunday retroactive to April 3. Rose, slowed last week by a severe case of the flu, can return to first base on April 18.

It's not the way Rose wanted to christen the new season, but it's the only way he could trim the roster to 24 players and work back into shape at the same time.

"Meanwhile, the show will go on," he said.

If there was disappointment about two weeks away from the plate, he didn't show it.

Rose was first in the batting cage Sunday, hitting balls over the outfield wall during a workout at Riverfront Stadium.

When reporters sought his feelings about missing the opener as a player, Rose worked up his baseball bravado and pointed out he'll be the first player introduced today.

He admitted he didn't know how he'd feel when the Reds took the field Monday to start the season and he was left behind in the dugout. He compared it to his inability to predict his reaction to getting hit No. 4,192 that made him baseball's all-time hit leader last season.

"It's like when you asked me last year in April how I'd feel when I got that hit," he said. "I don't know."

There's one certainty — Rose isn't treating the disabled list as a stopping point.

"I think I'm swinging the bat real good now," he said.

Rose's problems started early in spring training, when he had stomach pains for a week. A medical examination detected a hiatal hernia, being treated with medication and a special diet.

He was on schedule for getting into shape when he got a bad case of the flu with one week left in spring training. His final week was wiped out, leaving him with just 17 spring at-bats.

"I'm not 100 percent now," he said. "I'm getting better every day."

For the next two weeks, he'll have to fight back one of his strongest urges — the desire to play baseball.

"I will be ready the 18th," he said.

Baseball...

Angeles slugger Pedro Guerrero suffered a knee injury last week that will sideline him for at least three months.

"It's a tragic loss," said Dodgers Manager Tom Lasorda, who plans to platoon youngsters Franklin Stubbs and Reggie Williams in left field. "Pedro means so much to our club. But we still have a season to play. We'll fight and do the best we can without him."

The Dodgers are seeking to become the NL's first repeat division champs since they won in 1977-78.

Today's pitching matchup is Fernando Valenzuela for the Dodgers, Eric Show for the Padres, who won the NL West in 1984. San Diego unveils a new manager in Steve Boros, the former Oakland skipper who was hired at the start of spring training shortly after Dick Williams resigned.

Valenzuela, who will be making his fifth Opening Day start in six years, yielded only two earned runs in 31 exhibition innings.

"I hope for the same thing during the season," Valenzuela said. "The last two games, 14 innings and no walks, good for me. Better control than ever."

Seaver had hoped he would not be the White Sox pitcher on Opening Day, or any other day. He wants to play for a team closer to his Connecticut home but possible deals with the New York Yankees and Boston Red Sox didn't materialize.

Seaver, 16-11 last year and winner of 304 major-league games (7-1 in openers), will be opposed by Milwaukee's Teddy Higuera, who was 15-8 as a 1985 rookie.

Detroit's Jack Morris will pitch his seventh opener while it's No. 2 for Boston's Bruce Hurst.

"Opening Day is always fun," says Morris. "I think the first part of every season is relatively boring because the kids are still in school and there's not much attendance.

Bodybuilders Capture Titles

RALEIGH — Pete Clark and Joey Calisto, both of the Nautilus of Greenville, each captured bodybuilding titles in a state competition at Dorton Arena Saturday.

Clark, 19, won the lightweight division and went on to capture the Mr. North Carolina Teenager title.

Calisto, an ECU student, won the light-heavyweight division and was named Mr. Eastern Seaboard.

Sharon Bartha, of the Nautilus of Greenville, won the Miss Triad competition in November.

Entertainment Industry Plays Role In Politics

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A top box office star, Bob Hope's son and a millionaire record producer are running for office in California this year, but the celebrity lineup is also notable for those stars who are making cameo appearances in the campaign. Dozens of stars will show up on TV commercially and at fund-raisers by invitation of politicians anxious to bolster campaigns and tap entertainment industry contributions. At the top of the list of celebrity candidates is macho movie star Clint Eastwood, whose portrayals of tough cowboys and killer detectives have made him an international film legend. He's running for mayor of his small town. Others include attorney Anthony J. Hope, the comedian's son who is seeking a southern California congressional seat, and Mike Curb, a record producer who is hoping for a second stint as lieutenant governor.

But some celebrities decided against seeking office: Charlton Heston said he wanted to play on "Dynasty 2: The Colbys," rather than run for the Republican nomination for the U.S. Senate.

Actor-turned-real-estate developer

Fess Parker, famous for his portrayals of Davy Crockett and Daniel Boone, will remain in Santa Barbara rather than seek the same nomination and run against incumbent Democrat Alan Cranston.

Both had been discussed by GOP party leaders as serious candidates, along with Baseball Commissioner Peter Ueberroth. Heston may show up, however, on GOP-sponsored campaign advertisements.

Mound Out Of A Molehill

Pitchers like the Cubs' Steve Trout will be kicking off the major league season today. The pitcher's mound helps them put just a little extra oomph into their fast balls. The mound first appeared in the rule book in 1903. In 1963, it was lowered from a height of 15 inches to 10 inches. Pitchers in past years had it easy in other ways. In 1879, it took nine balls to draw a walk. However, before 1887, batters did have the right to ask for a high or low pitch.

DO YOU KNOW — What is the official distance between the pitcher's mound and home plate?

FRIDAY'S ANSWER — Sulfur dioxide and nitrogen oxide in the air help produce acid rain.

'Kiss' Is Rich

A Reflector Review

William Hurt's Academy Award winning role as the best male actor is but one of several reasons to see "Kiss of the Spider Woman," now playing (through Thursday only) at the Plitt Theaters. Compelling performances by Raul Julia and Brazilian actress Sonia Braga, and the controlled direction provided by Argentine director Hector Babenco in his first English-language film, are other contributing factors to the powerful entity of this mature film.

Above all, "Kiss of the Spider Woman" is a cinematic story rich in the possibility of understanding, of the struggle for dignity, and the fundamental integrity displayed by two men—in circumstances of hopelessness.

It might seem that a film centered basically around two men sharing a cell in an unnamed country (Argentina?) during a politically troubled time could only have limited interest, with stretches of tedium. This is not the case here. William Hurt as the homosexual Louis Molina, in prison for an unspecified sex crime and Raul Julia as Valentin, a macho intellectual type, are on the surface incompatible cellmates. Molina seeks escape through imaginative fantasy—concocting scene by scene a movie about spies and glamorous women in World War II. Valentin, imprisoned as a dangerous journalist, thinks only of the political struggle he is committed to.

Yet, little by little, Valentin sheds his prejudice and finds a certain pleasure in the unfolding of Molina's nightly recitation of his movie—which in itself becomes an intriguing movie-within-a-movie in which Miss Braga is the beautiful, sultry heroine.

Hurt portrays the effeminate Molina with fine control. His interpretation never lapses into parody.

Before Molina's release, Valentin

finally agrees to Molina's longed-for intimacy. The scene is depicted with discretion, a few whispered words in the dark.

In less talented hands this could have a sordid film. Instead, "Kiss of the Spider Woman" is a rewarding look at political degradation and a convincing tale of compassion.

Cugat Muses On Love

By SUSAN LINNÉE
Associated Press Writer
BARCELONA, Spain (AP) — If there is such a thing as reincarnation, then Xavier Cugat plans to return as Brigitte Bardot's dog.

That's because the one-time French sex symbol loves animals and treats them well, Cugat said, especially dogs.

The 86-year-old band leader, who has suffered four heart attacks and a severe stroke, thinks often of death, for which he says he is waiting "like for the last curtain, with a smile."

But his musings on mortality have not clouded his passion for life. Cugat also thinks about getting married for the sixth time, painting his next picture and convincing his ailing friend, surrealist painter Salvador Dali, that life can be beautiful after 80.

Since returning to Spain eight years ago, Cugat has tried several times to see his fellow Catalanian, who is ill and in seclusion in Figueras, north of Barcelona. However, Dali's staff won't let him near the artist.

"I want to go to him and tell him, 'come on, Dali, you can do it — look at me,'" said Cugat, who used to visit cellist Pablo Casals, another famous Catalanian, in Puerto Rico.

"We would argue all the time about politics. He refused to return to Spain while (Gen. Francisco) Franco was alive. But I told him, '... an artist is for the whole world.'"

Cugat walked through his rambling apartment one recent day, leading visitors down memory lane, past his paintings of Mexican children and signed photographs of him with six American presidents.

He stopped at a color photo of Spain's King Juan Carlos and Queen Sofia.

"It was (President Richard) Nixon who first introduced me to him in Washington in 1972 when Juan Carlos was still prince," he said. "Nixon said, 'this is our Coogie.' Juan Carlos replied in Spanish, 'no, he is our Cugat.'" Cugat was born Jan. 1, 1900, in Gerona, Spain. His family left for Cuba when he was five to escape political persecution because of his father's republican and anarchist sentiments.

With his violin under his arm and "not a penny in my pocket," Cugat went to the United States when he was 12 and became a U.S. citizen three years later. He made only short visits to Spain over the next several decades and didn't return to live until eight years ago when he started to feel "homesick" in his old age.

Cugat was not very successful as a concert violinist and made his way to Hollywood where he worked as a caricaturist of movie stars for the Los Angeles Times.

One day Rudolf Valentino told him he had to dance the tango in a silent film and asked Cugat to put together a band to accompany him. That was the beginning of Cugat and his Gigolos, who a decade later were playing at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York.

Cugui, as he spelled it and "Coogie" as he became known, played the violin and directed the band with his bow.

"I learned very early that everyone in the United States specialized in something," Cugat said in his combination of Spanish and English. "So I decided to specialize in tropical music — we called it the rumba abierta then. Today they call it salsa, but it's all basically the same thing."

Toads Should Be Heard, or Seen

URBANA, Ohio (AP) — The warty, bulgy-eyed toads of Cedar Bog Nature Preserve aren't pretty, but they prove that beauty is in the ear of the beholder.

With the advent of warm nights, male toads start crawling out of the ground where they've spent the winter and, when the temperature gets just right, they herald the start of mating season with a high-pitched trill.

Preserve naturalist Terry Jaworski brought toad trills to the public ear last year when he established a telephone network of like-minded people who called each other when the mating calls began.

His project, which was repeated when the toads started their 1986 trilling last week, drew national attention.

"The phone rang off the hook," he said. "Everybody wanted to talk to this guy who was out running around with toads."

ANSWERS TO WEEKLY BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you
hold:
♠A98 ♠AJ1073 ♠8 ♣KJ65

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ 2 ♣ ?

What do you bid now?
A.—It is tempting to double two clubs, especially since you will still be a 3-to-1 favorite to win the rubber. However, the opponents are not vulnerable and your side certainly has at least a game. The penalty you get might not be sufficient compensation for missing a game or slam. Bid two hearts to start a probe for the right spot.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you
hold:
♠J10652 ♠Q9873 ♠7 ♣K6

The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
3 ♣ 3NT Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—It is quite possible your side has a 5-3 fit in one of the majors.
Even so, there is no guarantee you can take 10 tricks in that suit, since the preempt makes it likely that suits are going to break badly. Besides, partner didn't invite you into the auction—he could have doubled. Pass—your smattering of high cards should be enough to enable him to make his contract.

Q.3—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠QJ9 ♠75 ♠J1052 ♠A876

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Dble ?

What action do you take?
A.—If you pass now, you might never be able to tell partner you have some useful values—you might have to decide whether to act at the three-level when next the bidding gets around to you. Bid one no trump now. That describes your shape and strength, and puts partner in a position to extract a penalty should the opponents get a trifle presumptuous.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you
hold:
♠K983 ♠KJ ♠A52 ♠Q983

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♥ 3 ♣ 3NT Pass
4 ♣ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—There can be only two reasons why partner took you out of three no trump: either his hand is very distributional or very powerful. In either case, your hand could hardly be better for him, with little if any wasted values. You can get that message across by cue-bidding four diamonds.

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South
you hold:
♠972 ♠94 ♠AK6 ♠KQ1052

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ 1 ♠ 2 ♣ Pass
2 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—You have a very good hand in support of diamonds, but not enough to guarantee an 11-trick contract. Therefore, you do not yet want to take the hand beyond three no trump. Since you have already freely made a two-over-one response, there is no need now to bid more than three diamonds.
With major-suit stoppers, partner can convert to three no trump, and you will be delighted to play there.

Q.6—Neither vulnerable, as South
you hold:
♠KQ10542 ♠Q93 ♠85 ♠72

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♥ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
1NT Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—With your unbalanced hand and length in the majors, you certainly don't want to play in no trump. Therefore, it is simply a question of whether you should rebid your spades or support partner's suit. Since supporting partner's hearts is the more encouraging of the two actions, and promises five spades in this auction, we would opt for a preference to two hearts and promises five spades.

Q.7—As South, vulnerable, you
hold:
♠A98 ♠KJ ♠A52 ♠Q983

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♥ 3 ♣ 3NT Pass
4 ♣ Pass ?

why partner took you out of three no trump: either his hand is very distributional or very powerful. In ly be better for him, with little if any wasted values. You can get

At First American we've learned that respect for the individual is as good as money in the bank.

Which means that by treating our customers fairly and providing fair value for their money, we've grown to be nearly a billion dollar financial institution.

We also understand that we will continue to grow only if we maintain a high level of dedication and service to our customers. Or as we say at the bank, we'll remain successful as long as we remember what made us succeed in the first place. Satisfied customers.
