workers, and we also have several intergenerational programs that utilize senior citizens as well as children from scout groups," Ms. Fuller said.

Aside from doing the necessary physical work required, Ms. Fuller said the volunteers help to create a pleasant atmosphere at the home.

"Volunteers are unique people. They have that special quality of life that provides the link between the community and this home," she said. "They help to tell the story of a nursing home. This is not a house of death."

While the volunteers do much-needed work in the community, they are also getting something in return, Ms. Fuller said.

"We all have to feel needed. We need to look at people around us in our community who need help. We have a responsibility," she said. "This is a way of doing something we want to do, not what we are demanded to do."

Another 500 residents give their time working at Pitt County Memorial Hospital, according to Etsil Mason, director of volunteer services at the hospital.

"They bring a very special attitude with them that you simply can't pay for," Ms. Mason said. "They add special meaning to our motto 'People Care More Here.' They come from all walks of life because I believe that everybody has something of worth to give to another human being."

Ms. Mason said the volunteers do work in almost every department of the hospital.

Local schools also depend on volunteers.

"Through March of this school year we have 7,680 volunteer hours to compute which would have cost $25,728 at minimum wage," said Betty Barbee, volunteer coordinator for Pitt County Schools.

Ms. Barbee said more than 2,000 people have done volunteer work ranging from helping in the classroom to speakers from area businesses who lecture students.

"The National Volunteer Week is a good idea. Involvement of citizens should be recognized to let them know that we appreciate all that they do for the students of the schools," Ms. Barbee said.

Helen Weaver, a professor at East Carolina University who has been a volunteer in the area school system for four years, said she finds pleasure in giving of her time.

"Young people are one of state's greatest natural resources, and it gives me great pleasure to know in some small way I'm assisting these youths," said Ms. Weaver, who tries to interest students in science through nature walks and other activities.

"Everyone in all of Pitt County is making a commitment," she said. "There are so many volunteers in all areas just because of the pleasure it brings. They just like to help."

Arrest Made In Disco Bombing

BERLIN (AP) — West Berlin police have arrested a Palestinian man in connection with the April 5 bombing of a discotheque in which a U.S. serviceman and a Turkish woman were killed, authorities said today.

U.S. officials have said they had proof of Libyan involvement in the bombing, and U.S. warplanes raided Libya last Tuesday in retaliation.

Manfred Ganschow, the security police official heading the bombing investigation, said the Palestinian was taken into custody late Friday in West Berlin.

Investigators formally booked the Palestinian on Sunday on suspicion of participation in the bombing after about 100 witnesses to the explosion viewed the man in a police lineup, Ganschow said.

He declined to say how many of the discotheque patrons identified the Palestinian, nor would he say what evidence prompted the arrest.

It was the first arrest reported in an investigation that has occupied a special 100-member commission of West Berlin and U.S. military police.

Downed Jet Recovered, Paper Says

ABU DHABI, United Arab Emirates (AP) — The state-run newspaper claims Libya pulled the wreckage of a U.S. F-111 fighter-bomber from the Mediterranean and recovered the bodies of its two crewmen.

The report, published Sunday by Al-Ittihad, was attributed to unidentified Libyan sources. Arab and Western diplomatic sources, who insisted on anonymity, dismissed the account as unverifiable.

The United States has said an F-111 warplane that took part in the U.S. air raid on Libya last Tuesday failed to return. The Pentagon declared the two crewmen killed in action.

raid of Libya. He said the administration doubts the reports are true.

The United Arab Emirates' state-run newspaper Al-Ittihad reported that Libya pulled from the Mediterranean the wreckage of a U.S. F-111 warplane.

The United States has said an F-111 fighter-bomber that took part in the Libya air raid failed to return.

Al-Ittihad said the wreckage of an F-111 and the bodies of the two crewmen were recovered from the sea off Libya by Libyan military personnel with Soviet assistance and the wreckage was airlifted to the Soviet Union for inspection.

In another development:

—French President Francois Mitterrand told U.S. envoy Vernon Walters that France would support the raid on Libya only if it were strong enough to have the "political objective" of ousting Col. Moammar Khadafy, according to a published report.

The Washington Times, quoting a senior administration official in today's editions, said Mitterrand told Walters in a meeting last Monday that the limited scale of the proposed U.S. attack amounted only to a "pin-prick" that France could not support, even by granting permission for U.S. planes to fly over France.

The French refused to allow U.S. planes use of their airspace, forcing the fleet of F-111 fighter-bombers based in England to fly 2,400 miles out of their way and refuel four times on their way around France, Spain and Portugal.

A Newsweek poll conducted in France following the attack found that the French supported the raid by nearly 2-to-1.

—The Libyan ambassador to the United Nations claimed U.S. warplanes struck no military targets during their pre-dawn raid last Monday on targets in Tripoli and Benghazi, and he called for the United Nations to verify his claim.

"We are ready for international investigation, that the United Nations send a team to realize that none of the military targets have been affected, only civilian," Ali Treiki said on ABC-TV's "This Week with David Brinkley."

—Despite Treiki's claim that the American planes hit only civilian sites, Libyan authorities on Sunday allowed Western reporters their first inspection of a military target of the attack, showing them parts of the heavily damaged Sidi Bilal naval base. U.S. officials claim the base provides training for terrorists in underwater demolition and commando tactics.

Libyan officials escorting reporters claimed the U.S. bombers targeted naval academy dormitories, an infirmary, a mess hall and offices.

Pentagon officials have said the main target of the attack against the seaside base 10 miles from Tripoli was an underwater training facility. Libyan officials refused to allow reporters to inspect the facility, but the observers said they could see holes in the roofs of two buildings and many shattered windows inside the compound housing the facility.

—Treiki said Khadafy "definitely" was one of the targets, "if not the main target." But White House chief of staff Donald T. Regan denied that, saying, "We have a law that prevents us from targeting any other leader."

"We were targeting the barracks" where Khadafy lives, said Regan. "That's a military target."

Regan said that the barracks also housed "people who surround him (Khadafy), his advisers and the like," and, "we wanted to indicate by attacking those barracks and also the one in the Benghazi area that those people are not immune. They've got to think that they are also responsible besides Khadafy himself."

—Britain evacuated 35 Westerners from Moslem west Beirut as a security precaution following the discovery Thursday of the bodies of Kilburn, 62, and British teachers Leigh Douglas, 34, and Philip Padfield, 40.

British Ambassador John Gray said 32 Britons were evacuated, as were an American, an Irishman and a New Zealander.

—The evacuation of non-essential U.S. diplomats and their families from Karthoum, Sudan, was nearly completed with the weekend departure of 124 Americans, a U.S. Embassy official said.

Wedding Vows Said In Evening Ceremony

Angela Kay Zander and Mark Wayne Meyer were united in marriage Saturday evening at 7 o'clock. The Rev. Lawrence P. Houston Jr. performed the double ring ceremony in St. Paul's Episcopal Church.

Parents of the couple are Patricia H. Ray of Wake Forest and Karl H. Zander of Raleigh and Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Meyer Jr. of Greenville.

Sharon Irwin was organist for the ceremony and William Frazier played the trumpet.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents. Patricia Z. German of Cary was honor attendant and Ann F. Sarginger of Greenville was bridesmaid.

The bridegroom's father was best man and ushers included Edward H. and Dennis J. Meyer of Ayden, brothers of the bridegroom, and John N. Sacco of Raleigh.

The bride wore a gown fashioned with a fitted bodice accented with rosette Venise lace, pearls and sequins. The sweetheart neckline featured illusion. The sleeves were accented with rosette lace motifs, satin, pearls and sequins. Venise lace motifs were scattered on the skirt and train which was also trimmed with a cascading ruffle. The gown back had a bow with streamers. The hemline was accented with Venise lace and a ruffle. She wore a wreath of crystals, pearls and sequins accented with silk flowers attached to a cathedral length illusion veil.

The attendants wore apricot colored tea length silk taffeta dresses styled with fitted bodices accented with chantilly lace. The gowns had sabrina necklines and cap sleeves of lace and taffeta. The honor attendant carried a cascade bouquet of ivory freesia, white daisies, ivory lilies and apricot flowers. Bridesmaids carried round bouquets of ivory freesia, daisies and carnations with baby's breath. Each wore a cluster hairpiece of freesia and apricot flowers with trailing ribbon.

The mother of the bride wore a formal gown of turquoise with a lace bodice and the mother of the bridegroom selected a formal gown of mauve.

A reception followed the ceremony and was held at the Cherry Oaks Clubhouse.

The couple will live in Winston-Salem after a trip to the Bahamas.

The bride is a graduate of Millbrook Senior High School in Raleigh and attended N.C. State University. She is employed by Bennigan's in Greensboro. The bridegroom is a graduate of N.C. State and is manager of Bennigans

Junior Miss Winners Named

Christa Renee Smith of Greenville was first place winner in the Junior Miss Shamrock Pageant held at the Moose Lodge. She is the daughter of Wetzel and Renetta Smith.

For her talent presentation, she performed a modern jazz routine to "Born to Hand Jive." Competition also included an interview on current events and modeling in formal wear.

Miss Smith is an eighth grade student at A.G. Cox Grammar School. She plays flute in the band and is active in community projects. She enjoys crafts, swimming and dancing.

Amelia Davis, daughter of David E. and Harriet Davis of Greenville, was named first runner-up. She is a seventh grade student at Greenville Middle School. Her talent presentation was a modern jazz dance to "How Will I Know."

Jennifer Anderson of Wilson was second runner-up.

Proceeds were donated to the Ronald McDonald House.

Pioneering Feminist Movement Petitions Turkey's Parliament

By EMEL ANIL
Associated Press Writer

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — A pioneering feminist movement in this predominantly Moslem country has gone to the National Assembly to demand better treatment for Turkey's women.

A petition signed by 3,000 women was presented to the National Assembly in March seeking the elimination of clauses in the 1926 civil code that declare the husband is the "head of the marital union" and forbid wives to take jobs or engage in business without permission of their husbands.

The petitioners also asked for day-care centers at all work places, payment of just wages and social security for rural women who work in the fields, and removal of all sexist material from schoolbooks.

"Women are beaten, excluded from decision-making bodies, treated as sex objects on the streets and at work places," the petition said. "We are only respected in our identities as mothers. We raise our voices against these and other injustices."

"Every ideological current came to Turkey except feminism," said Sirin Tekeli, one of Turkey's few active feminists and a former professor of political science who is now in private research. "It was always said, 'All your rights were given, what more do you want?'"

In the past, legislation sought by women has been rebuffed.

A draft bill introduced by women members of the National Assembly to make adultery penalties equal for men and women was killed in an all-male committee last year.

Under current law a woman faces three years in prison for a single act of illicit sex. For men, prolonged cohabitation with another woman must be proven before he is penalized.

Turkish women received full political rights in 1934, before women did in Italy and Switzerland. They now hold 29 percent of university teaching positions. One third of the country's doctors are women and 11 percent of its engineers are women.

Recently women have been entering corporate boardrooms. It is not unusual to see women at the judicial bench, in the diplomatic corps or at the head of publishing companies.

Equal pay for equal work is the norm for most professional women.

Ms. Tekeli said women's rights had great symbolic value in the 1920s when Kemal Ataturk, the nation's leader at the time, was trying to break the hold of Islamic dogma on Turkish society.

But she says the educated women of Turkey's urban elite have grown complacent and forgotten about female factory workers with no chance of advancement at the job, housewives without financial security and peasant women who are still sold into marriage.

In a female labor force of 7 million, about 6 million are farm workers who get no wages for their toil, according to official statistics.

Ms. Tekeli said the government's five-year development plan aims to create 1.5 million new jobs for men but only 1,000 for women.

"Legal equality has not yet led to socio-economic equality for all women," said Rezzan Sahinkaya, one of a dozen women in the 400-member National Assembly.

"There are no liberated women in Turkey, and many who think themselves liberated, who believe they have made it in the job market, oppose feminism," lamented Deniz Turkali, a singer and actress.

Feminists are divided on how to approach the quest for female liberation.

Ms. Tekeli is an advocate of legislative redress to attack practical problems, such as providing day-care centers.

She believes the feminist movement in Turkey should stay away, for the time being, from demanding sexual freedom.

"The issue is many dimensional and there could be a serious backlash," in a country where brides are still expected to be virginal, she said.

Ms. Turkali, a leading representative of the feminists in the artistic community, disagrees.

"Women will only be free when sexual intercourse is no longer a dirty word," she said.

The feminist message, however, is spreading through books and movies dealing with women from varied backgrounds who seek an identity and sexual freedom.

"The women's issue is in the forefront now, having overtaken labor problems and other dramatic material born out of the fast-changing conditions of a developing society," said movie director Atif Yilmaz, Ms. Turkali's husband.

He has made three movies with feminist themes and all have been box-office successes.

Waller-Brantley Vows Said Sunday Afternoon

Sherry Lynn Brantley and Jeffery Scott Waller, both of Greenville, were united in marriage Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Bell Arthur United Methodist Church.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Randy Blanchard. A program of organ music was presented by Emily Barwick.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W.M. Brantley of Greenville and was given in marriage by her father. Trina Elks of Bell Arthur was honor attendant. Bridesmaids included Theresa Gowan and Jennifer Williams, both of Greenville, and Theresa Coward of Ayden.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. David Sparrow of Greenville and the late H.D. Waller. The best man was Gene Waller of Charlotte. Ushers included Bill Brantley Jr., Mike Vanwagner and Bryan Lee, all of Greenville.

The bride wore a formal gown of candlelight silk organza styled with a high lace neckline and sleeveless. It had a detachable length train of silk organza. She wore a headpiece of matching streamers and carried a bouquet of white and pink silk flowers tied with matching ribbon.

Each of the attendants were dressed in floor length gowns of dusty rose and carried bouquets of silk spring flowers. They wore similar flowers in their hair.

A reception followed the ceremony. Jackie Langley served cake.

Minda Allen presided at the guest register and Vicki Allen was director.

The couple will live in Winterville after a wedding trip.

The bride is attending Pitt Community College and is employed by Coffman's Mens Wear. The bridegroom is employed by Mercer Glass Co.

WHEN ROOT CANAL RECOMMENDED

If you feel discomfort in a tooth whenever you take hot or cold foods, you may have an infection that's attacking the roots. In a dental X-ray this will show up sometimes as a darkened, diffuse area on the roots. Perhaps the only outward sign of a dental problem is a small cavity on the tooth. But the decay and infection may have extended far beyond the visible evidence.

This does not mean, however, that the tooth must be extracted. If there is enough bone around the tooth to make the tooth worth keeping, your dentist may recommend root canal treatment. This is often the treatment, the infection that is causing the problem can usually be eliminated, and you may have many more years of use of the natural tooth. There is absolutely no better substitute than a natural tooth. As with all dental problems, however, this will require good oral hygiene at home as well as regular checkups to protect your dental health.

If you are feeling discomfort when you take hot or cold foods, call my office for an appointment. I will be happy to discuss with you my recommendations for treatment.

Pirates Defeat Eagles, 11-5

WASHINGTON, D.C. — For the second consecutive day, Winfred Johnson did the job for East Carolina with his arm and with his bat in leading the Pirates to an 11-5 Colonial Athletic Association baseball victory Sunday.

Johnson, who came on in relief of starter Jim Peterson with two outs in the eighth inning to record his first save of the season, stroked his 12th homerun of the season in the third inning of the contest.

The two-run blast allowed Johnson to move past Todd Evans and become ECU's all-time hit leader with 213 hits. Evans, who played for the Pirates from 1981-1984, had 212 career hits.

Johnson also walked twice, marking the 99th time he's received a free pass in his career, to set another ECU record.

American jumped out to an early lead by scoring two runs in the bottom of the first inning to take a 2-0 lead.

But the Pirates quickly knotted the game a 2-2 with a pair of runs in the top of the second.

In the inning, Jay McGraw walked, and Steve Sides reached first on an error. Both men came around to score on a Jim Riley double.

The Pirates struck again in the third inning when Chris Bradberry walked and Johnson followed with his homerun to make it 4-2.

The Eagles scored twice in the bottom of the inning to tie the score at 4-4.

Both teams failed to score until the top of the eighth when the Pirates scored two runs to take a 6-4 lead.

Johnson led off the inning with a walk and moved to third on a single by Mike Sullivan. Sullivan advanced to second on the throw to third. McGraw followed with a single, driving in both runners.

Trailing 6-4, American cut the lead in half in the bottom of the eighth when Anthony Pinto's sacrifice fly scored Paul Grzyb.

But the Pirates put the game out of reach with five runs in the top of the ninth.

Robert Langston reached on error and moved to second on a wild pitch. Mont Carter followed with a bunt single. On the play, the American pitcher threw wildly to first, allowing Langston to score. Bradberry walked, and Johnson was given an intentional walk to load the bases. Sullivan cleared the bases with a double and came around to score on a double by McGraw to make the final score 11-5.

Peterson, who upped his record to 9-2, was credited with the win.

The Pirates, who improved to 12-3 in the CAA and 33-5 overall, need one more win to tie the 1982 and 1984 ECU teams for most wins in a season.

American fell to 1-11 in the conference and 6-20 overall.

ECU meets Old Dominion University Tuesday at 7 p.m. in Norfolk, Va.

Jordan's 63 Is Not Enough

By The Associated Press
Michael Jordan put on one of those performances that was hard to beat. But 63 points didn't prove an insurmountable object for the Boston Celtics.

"They can have the records as long as we get the wins," Boston's Jerry Sichting said following the Celtics' double-overtime 135-131 victory Sunday over the Chicago Bulls in the National Basketball Association playoffs.

Jordan's output set a single-game NBA playoff record, but the Celtics got 36 points from Larry Bird and some clutch baskets in the second overtime from Sichting for their clutch victory and a 2-0 lead in the best-of-five series.

"I'm not worried about the points," said Jordan, who had 49 in the Bulls' opening game loss to the Celtics. "I'd give all the points back if we could win. We, as a team, played well. They just got the breaks at the right time."

In other games Sunday, Philadelphia evened its series with Washington with a 102-97 decision; Portland edged Denver 108-106 to tie that series 1-1. Milwaukee defeated New Jersey 111-97 for a 2-0 lead, and Dallas beat Utah 113-106 to take a 2-0 lead.

Celtics 135, Bulls 131

Jordan broke the record of 61 points set by Elgin Baylor of the Los Angeles Lakers in Boston on April 14, 1962. The overtime record was 50 points by Boston's Bob Cousy in a four-overtime game on March 21, 1953.

"We rely on him," Chicago Coach Stan Albeck said of Jordan. "His two performances were the two best in NBA history."

"It was just an awesome display of basketball," Boston Coach K.C. Jones said of the game. "I'm glad that I wasn't at home or I would have torn the couch apart. I was watching the game and all I could see was this giant Jordan and everyone else is sort of in the background."

Jordan, who missed 64 regular-season games with a broken bone in his left foot, sent the game into overtime by hitting two free throws with no time remaining in regulation to make the score 116-116. But with three seconds left in the first overtime, Jordan missed a 15-footer to leave the score tied at 125.

With Chicago trailing 133-131 in the second overtime, Jordan had a chance to tie the game, but missed a jumper from the foul line with 30 seconds to play. Then Sichting, who finished with eight points, made two decisive field goals in the second overtime — including a jumper with 51 seconds left — to pull it out for Boston. "I haven't had a chance to play in some big games until now," said Sichting, obtained from Indiana before this season. "This is what everybody who hasn't been in the playoffs wants to do, get in this situation and see how they react."

76ers 102, Bullets 97

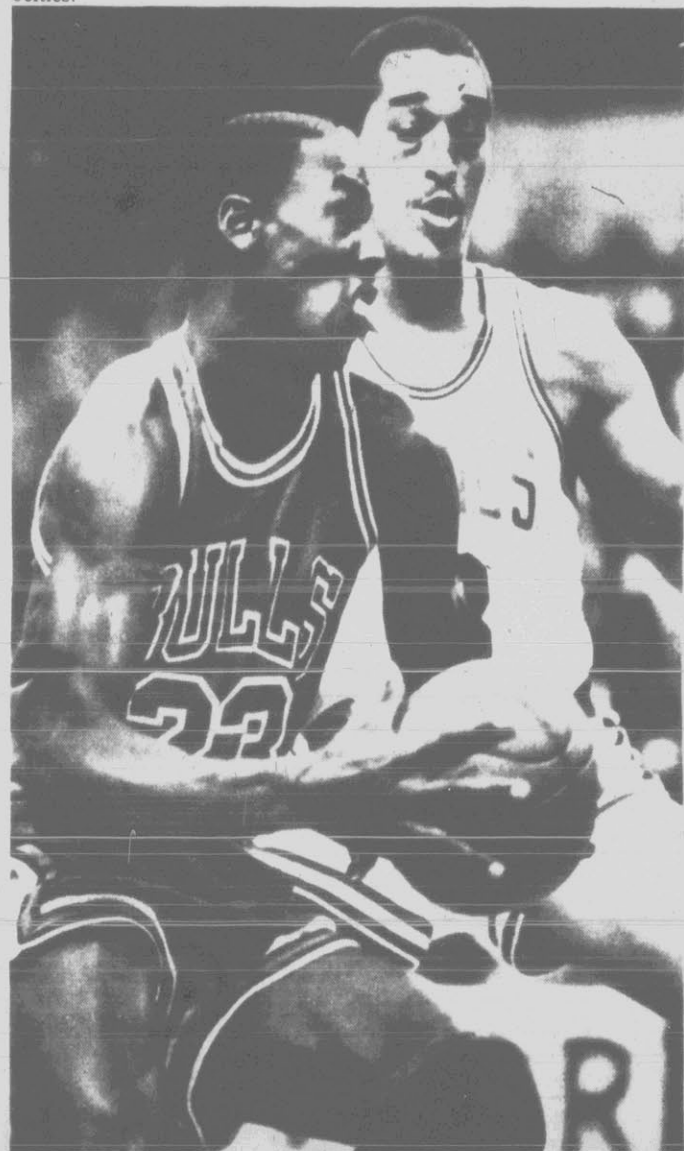

Charles Barkley recorded 27 points and 20 rebounds to lead Philadelphia over Washington. Barkley scored 14 of his points in the fourth quarter to key a late rally for the 76ers, who trailed by seven points midway through the period.

"Our offensive rebounding got us back in the game, especially Barkley and Terry Catledge," Philadelphia's Maurice Cheeks said. "They both came up with some big offensive rebounds."

The 76ers had a 21-15 rebounding advantage over the Bullets.

"The total numbers might not be significant," Washington Coach Kevin Loughery said, "but it was

Zoeller Birdies To Win Heritage

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Early last week, during a practice round, good friends Hubert Green and Fuzzy Zoeller were kidding each other, one-upping one another.

"Anybody can win one here," Green said of the deeply respected Harbour Town Golf Links. "But it takes a helluva player to win two."

It left Fuzzy at loss for a response. Zoeller had won once on the tough little course with the tight fairways and tiny greens, winding through moss-dripping cypress, oak and pine down to the finishing holes on Calibogue Sound.

Green, of course, was one of that elite club of two-time Sea Pines Heritage Classic winners, a group which also included Hale Irwin, Johnny Miller and Tom Watson.

Zoeller found his answer Sunday with a 15-foot birdie putt on the 72nd hole that capped a comeback round of 71 and made him a one-shot winner in a five-man scramble to the finish.

It confirmed him, in Hubert's words, as "a helluva player," enabled him to join Calvin Peete as the only two-time winners on the PGA Tour this year, and provided him with a personal triumph over pain.

"I'm not the kind of guy who gives up," said Zoeller. "I like to compete. I like to win. If I'm playing cards with my wife, I want to beat her. I don't like to lose."

"I'm very competitive. I love the competition. I'm doing what I like, playing the game I love."

A former winner of the Masters and U.S. Open, Zoeller's career was in jeopardy when he was forced to undergo major back surgery in 1984. He came back from that with a victory in 1985.

Then he injured the back again in Hawaii this year, a couple of weeks after a victory at Pebble Beach. "I've got some disc trouble again," he said.

He plays only with the help of daily therapy, and only a couple of weeks ago stopped taking pain-killers. And he plays in constant pain, often unable to bend over to line up putts.

"I'll keep on playing," he said. "I'll just go as far as I can go."

Zoeller, a two-stroke leader at the start of the final round, blew that when he drove into the woods on the first hole. "hit six miserable shots," and made double bogey.

Richmond Wins CAA Golf Title

NEW BERN — The University of Richmond cruised to a first place finish in the Colonial Athletic Association golf tournament at Fairfield Harbor.

The 54-hole event was hosted by East Carolina University.

The Spiders, who held a four shot lead over William & Mary going into Sunday's final round, finished with a total score of 949.

William & Mary and James Madison tied for second at 979.

East Carolina took fourth place with 985. American followed at 996, and Navy was sixth with a score of 1,007.

UNC-Wilmington came in seventh with 1,036, and George Mason finished last at 1,655.

Richmond's Rob Gray won the individual title with a score of 223 to finished three strokes ahead of John McHenry of William & Mary.

American's Carlos Deluga took third with a 228.

ECU's Mike Bradley shot a 231 to take fourth place.

Teachers

Money teaches.

If that statement seems too mercenary, consider this:

If North Carolina's schools continue to lose teachers at the current rate and the need for them keeps on escalating, by the year 2000 the state's classrooms will be empty. The teacher supply will be in a negative growth situation.

Measures proposed by the Public School Forum of North Carolina to attract more teachers to the profession are sound but stop one giant step short of what's needed — an immediate and significant base pay raise for both beginning and experienced teachers.

That suggestion should have headed the list of proposals. Without it, the list is meaningless.

A scholarship program for potential math and science teachers is worthless if the profession's pay isn't good enough to draw students. A one-time grant of $3,000 to teachers who re-enter the profession or out-of-staters who relocate is useless if North Carolina's salaries can't hold teachers.

Subsidizing the retraining of teacher aids in areas of high demand — a questionable proposal to begin with — won't be a solution either unless these aids can make enough as teachers to stay in the classroom permanently.

When the N.C. General Assembly considers the $12.8 million a year plan that includes a $23 million phase-in, legislators should weigh the bottom-line need of the teaching profession — more pay — against short-term measures. The proposals made by the task force amount only to a quick fix unless backed up by higher salaries. Without a concrete budgetary commitment to realistic professional pay, the package of proposals would be a waste of time — and money.

North Carolina's schools are losing teachers faster than they are gaining them. The dollar sign is the biggest reason. Graduates can make a lot more money in the private sector, even though benefits teaching offers are attractive.

Legislators must recognize this reality before the public school teacher becomes an extinct species.

Sputnik

A reminder that mankind's entry into space flight was a mere 25 years ago came as a mild surprise. So much has happened in the interval that a quarter of a century seems hardly capable of packaging it all.

The prelude was in orbiting of "Sputnik 1" in 1957, an event which startled the United States and touched off frantic reviews of the American education system.

It was said something had to be wrong if we were unable to launch a satellite and the Russians could.

Some ideas were introduced in the schools but most proved of less value than hoped. That effort to "catch-up" did not come cheap.

Four years later, Yuri Gagarin raced around the world in 108 minutes aboard a made-in-Russia capsule and from that point on the United States and the Soviet Union settled on two different directions in the conquest of space. Americans went to the moon, creating the space shuttle as well as a new giant in communications with a network of satellites put into service.

So much has happened in 25 years of manned space flight that speculation on future steps seems almost more likely to fall short of reality than to surpass it.

We've seen enough to believe the next quarter-century is going to be even more exciting.

Gorbachev Strengthens German Ties

BERLIN (AP) — Despite pressing business back home, Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev has spent days at the side of President Erich Honecker of Communist East Germany, strengthening ties with his most important ally, but also warning East Berlin against getting too chummy with the West, Western officials say.

Gorbachev left a Kremlin still deep in discussion over how to react to the U.S. raid on Libya to come here Wednesday for the East German Communist Party congress, an event no Soviet leader has attended since 1971.

Since Wednesday, Gorbachev has flattered East Berliners by touring their city and has used East Berlin as a stage for launching a new East-West arms reduction proposal. He missed not one moment of the party congress, sitting through lengthy reports on industrial and agricultural production along with the 2,600 delegates.

West German and East German officials say Gorbachev is demonstrating the importance of East Germany to Moscow, a point he underscored in his speech to the congress Friday.

"We have been true friends and allies ... and so it will be for all time to come," Gorbachev told cheering delegates.

The party daily Neues Deutschland carried the quote as a headline Saturday.

Strategically, East Germany is Moscow's most important ally because it is in the front line with the NATO alliance. In addition, its political stability and economic performance have made it the Warsaw Pact's model pupil.

East Germany was created in 1949 from the Soviet-occupied zone of Germany, which was split into east and west after World War II. More than 300,000 Soviet troops are still in the country.

Gorbachev had not been to East Germany since he became party chief in March 1985, and may have decided it was necessary to get to know the East German leadership, including the generation that is expected to replace the 73-year-old Honecker sometime in the next few years, a West German official said.

"It is a great honor that he came.

RALEIGH — Glenn Sumpter, editor of the Richmond County Daily Journal, was being facetious.

Appearing on the North Carolina This Week program on UNC-TV, Sumpter said North Carolinians ought to support a constitutional change in the state schedule of elections because campaigning is a growth industry that pumps new money into the economy and created jobs. By adopting the proposed change, Sumpter reasoned, North Carolinians would assure that this new industry ran full blast, full time.

While Sumpter may have been kidding, however cynically, he was making just about the only good argument available for changing the election schedule.

Under the proposal, state and county elections would be moved to odd-numbered years. If approved by the voters in the May 6 primary, officials elected this year and in 1988 would get an extra year tacked onto their terms. Then, in 1989, the state would begin holding its elections in odd-numbered years.

The proposal is designed to move state and county elections away from federal elections. Democratic sponsors of this switch say that will help voters separate, in their minds, the different issues involved in state and federal elections. Republican opponents say the Democrats just don't want to run for statewide office when their national party is running another loser for president.

The proposal would also double the number of times a citizen had to go to the polls to vote, just to elect the same number of politicians.

Under the proposal, North Carolina voters would go to the polls nine times between March 1988 and November 1991.

In 1988, North Carolinians would vote in a presidential primary in March, in party primaries for state and county offices, including governor, in May, and in the general elections for all those offices in November.

In 1989, there'd be a primary for legislative and county offices in May and a general election in November.

In 1990, there'd be a federal primary, including the U.S. Senate seat held by Jesse Helms, in May and general elections in November.

In 1991, there'd be a legislative and county office primary in May and a general election in November.

This list does not count any possible runoff.

Municipal elections, which are now held in odd-numbered years, would be incorporated into this schedule. And that brings into question the entire purpose for this proposal. Sponsors say they want to separate state from federal elections so voters won't confuse the different issues. They do not appear as concerned that voters will get confused about the very different issues involved in the elections of governors and mayors, however.

The proposal, if approved, could also change the system under which the legislature works. Currently, the legislature is elected in November of an even year, and comes to Raleigh two or three months later for its five-month long main session. They return in June of the even year for one month to adjust the budget.

If approved, the new campaign schedule would have a primary in the middle of the odd-numbered spring, when the assembly is supposed to be hard at work in its long session. Also, that long session would not begin until 15 months after the legislators were elected. Chances are that the legislature would attempt to flip-flop its biennial schedule, a process which would leave them with long sessions in both 1990 and 1991. That would be just one more step towards a full-time legislature.

Terrorism Is A Different War

NEW YORK (AP) — When Pearl Harbor was attacked, the American road back to victory was clear — it was the road to Berlin and Tokyo. But today's is a different kind of war, the enemy is everywhere, the way forward uncertain. And some say the terrorists are winning.

The West is disunited: Washington chose to strike militarily at Libya last week while the Europeans counseled restraint and behind-the-scenes efforts.

The West is vulnerable: European tourism has been devastated, and far-flung Americans are pulling back from danger zones.

The terrorists are on the offensive: one tried to blow an Israeli jetliner out of the sky last week, and others cold-bloodedly murdered an American and two British hostages in Lebanon.

In recent interviews in the United States, Europe and the Middle East, security officials, academic analysts and other anti-terrorist specialists stressed that, two generations after its greatest "conventional" war, an unprepared world has entered an era of the unconventional.

"On one level, they talk about nuclear parity, SS-20 missiles et cetera," said Joel Lisker, a security-policy specialist on the U.S. Senate staff. "But the war is ongoing, and" — he dropped his hand toward the floor — "it is being fought down here."

In the nuclear age, terrorism is the poor man's weapon. He doesn't need billion-dollar budgets to attack a superpower.

Jet travel, open borders, compact but powerful weapons and instantaneous communications give him the kind of reach once enjoyed by only imperial navies.

The trend is unmistakable: In the past 10 years, the number of incidents of international terrorism has doubled, to more than 800 last year, the State Department reports. And Americans are the target 25 percent of the time.

Why the United States?

The analysts list many reasons: It is a rich, capitalist power resented by many of the world's poor. It is a dominating, alien presence in Latin America and elsewhere. Its money sponsors Israel. Its battleship shelled Lebanon. Now its bombers have struck Libya.

To the terrorist the United States is a worthy target because it is powerful — he believes it can influence events in his backyard. And Americans are easy-to-reach targets — at least 2.3 million of them reside outside their homeland.

"Their real goal is to expel America from the world," President Reagan said last year.

They are succeeding. Americans have fled Iran, Libya, Lebanon. And last week they fled Libya's neighbor Sudan in a U.S. Embassy airlift.

American tourists are staying home. At least 30 percent fewer will visit Europe this year, travel authorities estimate. The impact on other business — the contracts not signed, the calling home of executives — is incalculable.

Above all, terrorism succeeds by keeping the terrorist's cause in the spotlight.

"Hijackings gave us a chance to shock people into realizing that the Palestinian people's rights were not being recognized," explained Yakkoub Dawani, spokesman for the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, in an interview in Damascus, Syria.

The PFLP no longer hijacks planes, but other groups — other causes — do.

Terrorism has also succeeded in straining the Western alliance.

When Reagan sent jet bombers against Moammar Khadafy's Libya because it allegedly supported terrorism, most U.S. allies dissented. French Premier Jacques Chirac called it a reprisal "which itself lengthens the chain of violence."

Analysts agree that Air Force bombs are unlikely to stop terrorism. Israel's 20-year policy of retaliation has not done it.

"On the contrary, ill-considered counterattack can increase the terrorists' resolve and swell their reservoir of potential recruits," said Brian M. Jenkins, of the Rand Corp. "think tank."

But the U.S. military strike may have been aimed as much at the West Europeans as at Libya.

"We very much hope it will not be necessary again," U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger told the allies afterward. His message: They should join in U.S. economic sanctions against Libya, or further attacks on Libya are possible. Publicly, the Europeans dismiss sanctions as ineffective. Privately, they acknowledge that their economic interests in Libya also stay their hand.

But the Europeans also fear that the distant U.S. administration might touch off a widening military or economic war in their backyard, and they resent U.S. pressure.

Many analysts say, too, that Washington makes a mistake in focusing on Libya.

Jenkins explains it with simple arithmetic:

"U.S. intelligence analysts figure 25 percent of terrorist incidents are state-sponsored. That includes Libya, Iran, Syria and others. If Libya did not exist, they'd go elsewhere. We might get a 2 or 3 percent decline. But terrorist incidents are increasing 10 to 15 percent a year, so your 2-3 percent gain is lost in the white water."

To Yitzhak Rabin, Israel's defense minister, state sponsorship is the problem. But attacking it is difficult.

"You would have to go to all-out war with such countries," he said in a Tel Aviv interview, "which ... means terrorism cannot be uprooted."

What can be done?

The experts emphasize the need for stronger security measures, steady pressure on alleged state sponsors, greater international efforts at defining and proscribing terrorist crimes, better international cooperation in prosecuting terrorists.

But one item — "root causes" — often tops the list.

"You must analyze the reasons for international terrorism," said Ferdinando Imposimato, an investigating judge who is one of Italy's top anti-terrorist fighters. "You must try to resolve the problems that are the true causes. ... We must try to find a solution of the Middle East problem."

Six House Districts Plan May Primaries

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — While most of North Carolina's 11 congressional seats are seen as wide open, primaries will be held in only six of the House districts, and only one incumbent faces a challenge for his party's nomination.

There will be no primary May 6 in the 1st District, where veteran Democrat Walter Jones will face Republican Howard Moye in the November general election; the 2nd District, where Democrat Tim Valentine is seeking a third term against Republican Bud McElhaney; or the 6th District, which will see a rematch between Republican Howard Coble and the man he unseated in 1984, Democrat Robin Britt.

Other districts without primaries are the 7th, where Republican Tommy Harrelson will face Democratic Rep. Charles Rose, and the 9th, where Democrat D.G. Martin will challenge Republican Rep. Alex McMillan, to whom Martin lost by a mere 321 votes in 1984.

Two of the most hotly contested primaries are in districts where seats long considered safe are open. In the 10th District, Republican Jim Broyhill is abandoning the seat he has held 24 years to run for the Senate. Meanwhile, Democrat Charles Whitley is retiring after 10 years as the 3rd District representative.

In the 10th District, five Democrats and three Republicans are in the running. Stretching from Gastonia to Boone, the seven-county district is the state's strongest for Republicans.

The GOP primary features two state legislators — Sen. Cass Ballenger of Hickory and Rep. George Robinson of Lenoir — and Wood Hall Young Sr., a former Avery County commissioner, who has kept a low profile.

Ballenger and Robinson, both conservative businessmen, have differed little on economic and foreign policy, promising if elected to preserve jobs in the troubled textile and furniture industries. Perhaps their biggest disagreement has been over who is closer to Broyhill and better able to continue his legacy.

At one point, Ballenger broke with tradition and endorsed Broyhill over David Funderburk for the GOP Senate nomination, then chastised Robinson for not doing likewise. Robinson promptly endorsed Broyhill and accused Ballenger of violating President Reagan's "11th Commandment," which says, "Thou shalt not speak badly of a fellow Republican."

Lester D. Roark, former Shelby mayor and aide to former Sen. Robert Morgan, is the most experienced Democratic candidate. Roark managed Attorney General Lacy Thornburg's successful 1984 campaign and served as an administrative deputy to Thornburg before entering the congressional race.

Other Democratic hopefuls include Steve B. Dolley Jr., a Gastonia lawyer and former state legislator; Jack L. Rhyne, a former legislator and mayor of Belmont who unsuccessfully challenged Broyhill in 1974; Ted A. Poovey, a plumbing contractor and perennial also-ran the past 14 years; and Denny Ray Hickman, a Hudson insurance agent.

Roark has called for reducing the federal deficit, while Dolley has focused on honesty in government. Rhyne has eschewed campaign promises and says he simply wants to represent the 10th district, while Hickman wants a $7 minimum wage and a network of regional medical centers to treat the elderly. Poovey says he wants to "keep communism out of this country and to keep the Japanese and Ferdinand Marcos from taking us over."

The 3rd District primary is all-Democrat, the only GOP candidate being freshman state Rep. Gerald Hurst of Jacksonville.

Democratic contenders include Whitley's administrative assistant, Lewis Renn, of Jacksonville; state Rep. H. Martin Lancaster, of Goldsboro; state education official Nurham O. Warwick, of Clinton; and Walter Henderson, of Trenton.

Renn, a former county commissioner, wants to continue a 43-year-old 3rd District tradition of the congressman's top aide succeeding the boss. Whitley was administrative assistant to former Rep. David Henderson, who was top aide to Rep. Graham Barden.

Lancaster, an attorney, has served in the state House since 1979. A survey by the N.C. Center for Public Policy Research rated him the fifth most effective House member in 1983, when he co-sponsored the Safe Roads Act, and again in 1985.

Warwick, is a former secretary of the state Democratic Party and director of federal education programs for the state Department of Education, a position he says has familiarized him with the federal government and workings of Congress.

Henderson is a farmer and has served 17 years as a District Court judge and six years as clerk of Superior Court. He also has written a novel and a selection of poems.

In the 4th District, four Democrats are vying to challenge incumbent Rep. Bill Cobey, who is heavily favored to defeat political newcomer JoAnn Austell for the GOP nomination.

Democratic candidates include

Kirsten Nyrop, former director of the N.C. Technological Development Authority; David Price, former chairman of the state Democratic Party; Woody Webb, a Raleigh attorney; and state Sen. Wilma Woodard of Garner.

Price, a Duke University political science professor, has attacked Cobey as a tool of the National Congressional Club, the right-wing political organization created by Sen. Jesse Helms. Cobey says the club ran his unsuccessful 1982 campaign, but that he has been on his own since 1984, when he unseated Democrat Ike Andrews.

Mrs. Woodard has served two terms in the state Senate and three in the House. She is known as a staunch advocate of women's rights, and unsuccessfully fought for an independent study of pay equity in state government.

Webb portrays himself as the most conservative, pro-business Democratic candidate. Of the four Democrats, only he favors retaining the current primary runoff system, which blacks call discriminatory.

Ms. Nyrop is seeking a base of support among the young, white-collar workers in the district's urban centers — Raleigh, Chapel Hill and the Research Triangle Park. She calls for a new Democratic economic strategy that encourages entrepreneurs and industrial competitiveness.

In the 5th District, Republicans Stu Epperson and Lyons Gray are seeking the nomination to face Democrat Steve Neal, who has faced a number of close calls since first winning election in 1974.

Epperson, a broadcast executive, was a political neophyte when he challenged Neal in 1984, yet came within two percentage points of an upset. He says the losing campaign gave him experience and that he is better equipped to run against Neal.

Gray, scion of a wealthy Winston-Salem family, is a longtime GOP activist who was finance director of Epperson's 1984 campaign.

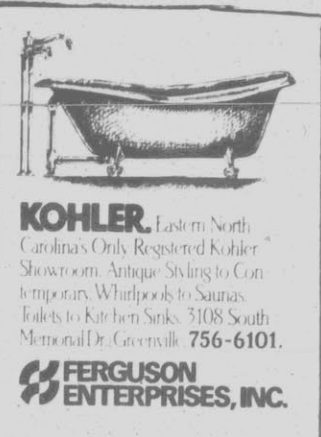

There's also a Republican primary in the 8th District, where Democrat Bill Hefner, of Concord, is seeking a seventh term. Both GOP contestants, Billy Hamby and Tom Hendricks, have blasted Hefner, chairman of the appropriations subcommittee on military construction, as a liberal with ties to Speaker Tip O'Neill.

Hendricks is a maintenance supervisor and project engineer with no political experience. Hamby, a 29-year-old attorney, was elected to the Cabarrus County Board of Commissioners in 1984 after Hendricks withdrew from the race for business reasons.

In the 11th District, Democrat James M. Clarke seeks a rematch against Republican Bill Hendon, whom he unseated in 1982. Hendon returned the favor in 1984, defeating Clarke.

Contesting Clarke for the Democratic nomination is Ralph Ledford, a 39-year-old convenience store owner. Ledford, who switched from the GOP after winning a state House seat in the early 1980s, says Clarke, at 68, cannot be relied on to build seniority in the House. Clarke has largely ignored Ledford, focusing his attention on Hendon.

Weekend Traffic Accidents Kill 13

By The Associated Press

Thirteen people died on North Carolina highways during the weekend, including three people killed in a two-car wreck in Jones County, the state Highway Patrol reports.

Howard R. Downing, 62, Doris Ida Downing, 62, both of Columbus, Ohio, and Elwood W. Dillahunt, 29, of Mayesville, were killed about 9 a.m. Saturday, about four miles south of Mayesville, troopers said.

The patrol said the accident occurred when a car driven by Dillahunt ran off the road and skidded into the car driven by Downing, whose wife was a passenger in the car.

Landus Darrell Tapp, 39, of Roxboro, died at 1:20 a.m. Sunday on N.C. 157 when his car overturned, throwing him from the vehicle, which landed on him, troopers said.

A 2-year-old Marshall girl also died in a traffic accident. Ida Melinda Roberts died at 7:05 p.m. Saturday when the car in which she was a passenger ran off a Madison County road, went down an embankment and overturned, troopers said.

A Mooresville man who was riding in the bed of a truck died this weekend. David Brian Perkins, 22, was killed at 11:30 p.m. Saturday in Iredell County when the truck in which he was riding swerved to avoid a deer, ran off the road and overturned, troopers said.

Walter David Newell, 26, of Gibsonville, a pedestrian, died at 9:45 p.m. Saturday when he walked into the path of an oncoming vehicle on the northbound ramp of Interstate 85 leading to N.C. 62 in Alamance County, troopers said.

Aloysius Alaric Godwin, 27, of Pembroke, was killed at 6:35 p.m. Saturday when the car in which he was a passenger ran off the road, struck a tree and a utility pole and overturned, troopers said.

Robert Dean Adkins, 21, of Thomasville, died at 9:20 p.m. Saturday when the car in which he was a passenger ran off the road and overturned, throwing him from the vehicle, troopers said.

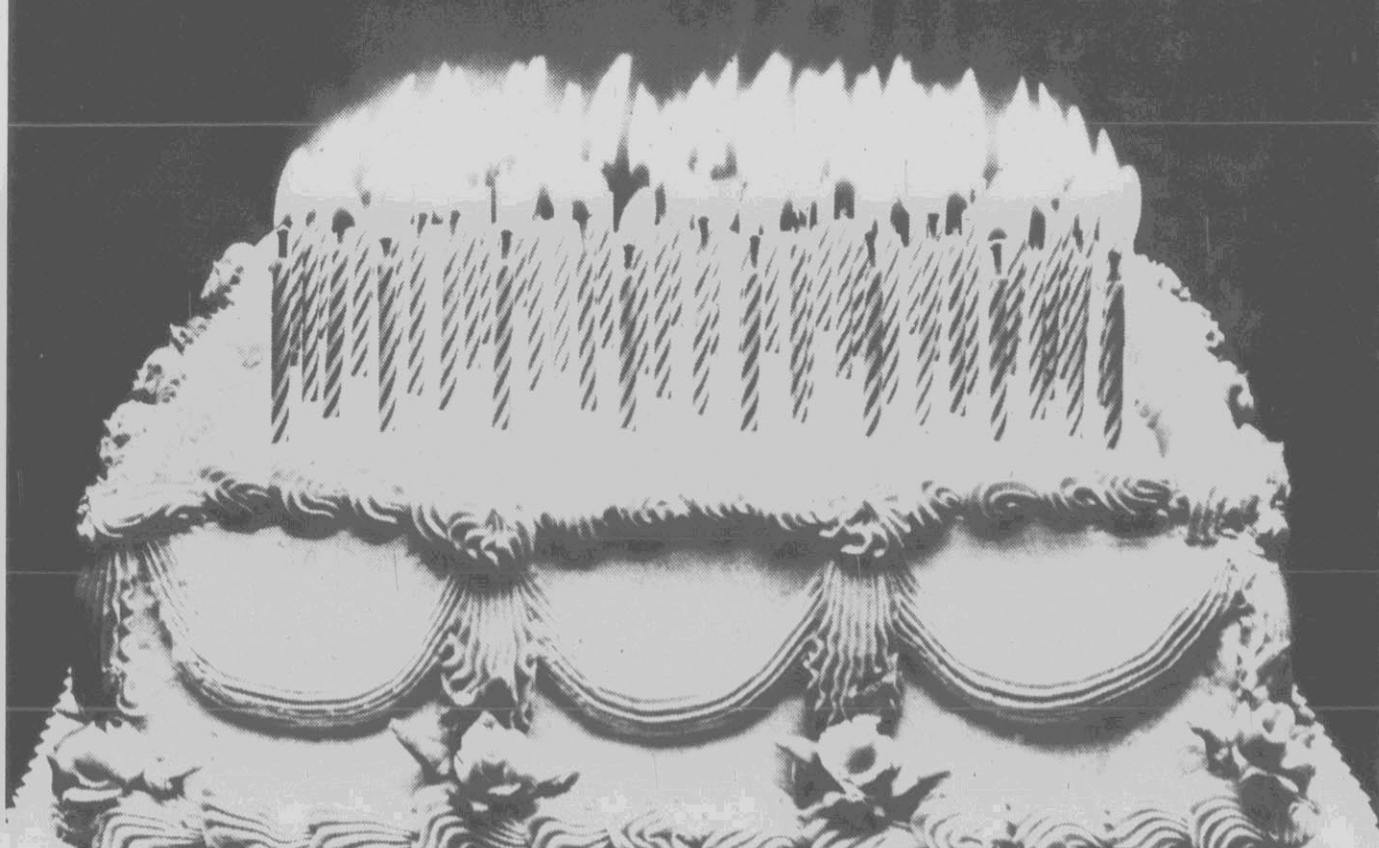

April Singletery, 16, of Rowland, was killed while walking on a rural road in Robeson County about 10 miles west of Lumberton at 11:35 a.m. on Saturday, troopers said.

Cynthia Ann Hutchins, 20, of Charlotte, was killed at about 12:50 p.m. on Saturday when the car she was riding in ran a stop sign on N.C. 24 and struck another car in Cabarrus County about 12 miles south of Concord, troopers said.

Joseph Scott Collie, 29, of Laurinburg, died about 8:05 p.m. on Friday when the car he was driving hit a train about three miles north of his hometown in Scotland County, the patrol said.

Bretlee Wilbert Lanier, 19, of Winston-Salem, was killed when the car he was driving hit a tree, overturned and caught fire, according to the patrol.

Sinus

The runny nose, watery eyes, and headaches that come from sinus trouble can really make life miserable. Allergy medicines can give temporary relief, but the important question is, "what's causing the problem in the first place?" Your body's adrenal glands produce hormones which can stop these allergic symptoms. The adrenal glands are controlled by the nerves from the spine and they can become worn down from physical and mental stress or a nerve being "pinched" at the spine. Chiropractic has helped thousands of people find lasting relief from sinus trouble by working to correct the cause of the problem. Don't suffer needlessly, call now for an appointment.

Some of the problems that may be caused by spinal imbalance:

HOROWITZ CONCERT — Vladimir Horowitz prepares to strike the keyboard Sunday as he begins a selection during his Moscow concert. The performance was his first in his homeland in 61 years. (AP Laserphoto)

Pianist Returns To Stage After Absence Of 6 Decades

By ANDREW ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP) — Students surged through a phalanx of police and one fan clambered up the fire escape outside a concert hall to hear pianist Vladimir Horowitz give his first formal concert on a Soviet stage in six decades.

Muscovites waxed lyrical about the playing of the 81-year-old Horowitz, who drew a stormy, eight-minute standing ovation after his Sunday recital in the Grand Hall of the Tchaikovsky Conservatory, a stage on which the greatest Soviet artists have performed.

"I could just go and kill myself happily after hearing this," enthused Vladimir Feltsman, a young pianist who has been trying for years to emigrate from the Soviet Union to the West, as Horowitz himself did in 1925.

The pianist's return to his native land filled the 1,800-seat hall to overflowing with Soviet officials, musical luminaries, about 400 lucky ticket-buyers and hundreds of students who had swarmed through a line of police guards.

Diplomats said the highest-ranking Soviet official present was Georgi A. Ivanov, deputy minister of culture. The wife of Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze also attended.

During the intermission and after the two-hour concert, knots of people stood rhapsodizing about Horowitz' performance.

"His music is disembodied, just bits of beauty floating through the air," said Sergei Polusmak, who studied piano with Horowitz' late sister, Regina.

"You can't sense his age at all," said Soviet composer Alfred Schnittke. "He plays with total freedom, but at the same time with great control."

Horowitz was born in the Ukraine in 1904 but left the country 21 years later, when he decided not to return from a tour of Europe and the United States. He lives in the United States.

Horowitz' family property in the Soviet Union was confiscated and he vowed never to return.

However, he agreed to come back for two concerts — one in Moscow and one in Leningrad April 27 — under the U.S.-Soviet cultural exchange renewed in November at the Geneva superpower summit.

Only 424 tickets were put on public sale, but that didn't deter hundreds of music lovers from thronging the conservatory.

One fan climbed the fire escape outside the hall to watch Horowitz through the tall windows at the top of the building. People lined streets and alleys, standing in chilly rain and asking every passerby for extra tickets.

Dozens of police controlled entry to the building at three checkpoints. But they had to move metal barriers when Horowitz arrived in his Soviet Chaika limousine, and the students surged into the building.

Horowitz began the concert, which was videotaped for broadcast in the United States, with three Scarlatti sonatas. He then warmed up with Mozart's Sonata in C major, K. 330, tossing off the last few notes with a flick of his left wrist and a triumphant smile.

Next, he played two Rachmaninoff preludes and two etudes by Scriabin. Several members of the audience brought bouquets to the stage as he took a curtain call for the intermission.

The second half began with a Schubert impromptu, a Schubert-Liszt waltz and Liszt's "Sonetto del Petrarca." Horowitz also played two Chopin mazurkas and his Polonaise in A-flat Major, Op. 53.

After the program, the crowd erupted with shouts of "bravo!" and more cheers. Horowitz flashed three fingers indicating he would play three encores.

More flowers were brought to the stage at the concert's conclusion, including two red roses that were laid at Horowitz' feet by a young girl with bobbed blond hair who scampered down the aisle.

Wrongdoing Charges Not Supported By Liberty Audit

By EILEEN PUTMAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The government initially had little control over the Statue of Liberty restoration effort headed by Lee Iacocca, but charges the project was fraught with wrongdoing have not been proven, a congressman says.

Rep. Bruce Vento, D-Minn., said allegations by a fired former parks official who charged the project was "in a total state of chaos" were not born out by a General Accounting Office report to be released Tuesday.

But Vento said the Interior Department clearly failed to exert strong control over the project.

"The Department of Interior gave away the store with very little control. They didn't exert strong control over the individuals who were leading the parade," he said.

Vento, chairman of the House subcommittee on national parks and recreation, requested the audit by the GAO, an investigative arm of Congress, after charges of wrongdoing were leveled by Garnet Chapin, fired last year from his job as special assistant to the director of the National Park Service.

Chapin charged at a congressional hearing last summer the statue's fund-raising foundation improperly documented finances, payrolls and fund-raising activities. He said some foundation members ran up lavish expense accounts, awarded contracts to themselves and virtually seized control of the renovations from federal officials in charge of the projects.

"There were some pretty serious charges made by Garnet Chapin," Vento told The Associated Press. "I think there was more noise there than substance in terms of what was going on."

The Statue of LibertyEllis Island Foundation chaired by Iacocca missed some reporting deadlines for filing of documents in compliance with the agreement the foundation had with the Interior Department, Vento said.

"You're talking about rules and regulations and the bureaucracy and the laws and the way there was not timely compliance with things," Vento said. "This is the sort of bread and butter of what the report is going to address itself to, and the findings will be more helpful in that way than spectacular statements of wrongdoing."

Analysts Think Interest Rate Plunge Ending

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Interest rates, which have fallen to their lowest levels of this decade, may not go much lower and may actually start heading higher before the year is out, many economists believe.

While that sounds like an overly pessimistic prediction given the dramatic plunge in rates so far this year, many analysts feel the events that have been driving rates down have about run their course.

But even the most pessimistic feel that rates will edge slightly lower in coming months given the momentum already built into the system.

Indeed, many analysts believed major banks would begin cutting their prime rates today in response to the Fed's decision Friday to lower its discount rate from 7 percent to 6.5 percent.

A reduction in the discount rate is the most dramatic move the Fed can make to signal its intention to push interest rates lower.

But in the view of many analysts, the Fed action was the final salvo in the current round of rate reductions. They believe a reviving economy in the second half of the year will force the Fed to tighten its control over money growth in order to insure that inflation does not return.

Some had argued that worry over unusually sluggish economic growth would prompt the Fed to follow up the latest cut in the discount rate within weeks with another reduction to 6 percent.

But the government reported Thursday that the overall economy, as measured by the gross national product, was rising at an annual rate of 3.2 percent in the first three months of this year, substantially stronger than a 0.7 percent rate of expansion from October through December.

"The signs of life in the economy suggest that any further cut in the discount rate will be a long time in coming if it comes at all," said Allen Sinai, chief economist for Shearson Lehman Brothers.

Sinai said a cut in the prime rate from the current 9 percent to 8.5 percent was a virtual certainty, given the Fed's action Friday. Banks reduced their prime lending by a half-percentage point the last time the Fed cut the discount rate on March 7.

Both Sinai and Tom Megan, an economist with Evans Economics, a Washington forecasting firm, said that outside of a further reduction in the prime rate, other interest rates were likely to show only slight downward movement on the basis of the discount rate cut.

"The financial markets had already anticipated the discount rate cut so bond rates will probably change little," Megan said. "But consumers should see some benefits because bank rates, including auto loans, will go down farther."

The nationwide average for fixed-rate home mortgages declined to 9.92 percent last week, according to a survey by the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp. This was down from a rate of 13.16 percent just a year ago and the lowest level since November 1978.

Sinai said mortgage rates would likely drop as much as another one-half percentage point based on the Fed's action and the big rally last week in the bond markets.

David Jones, an economist with Aubrey G. Lanston & Co., a government securities dealer, said the economy, aided by the drop in interest rates and the giant plunge in oil prices, will be growing at a robust rate by the second half of this year, triggering tighter credit controls by the Fed.

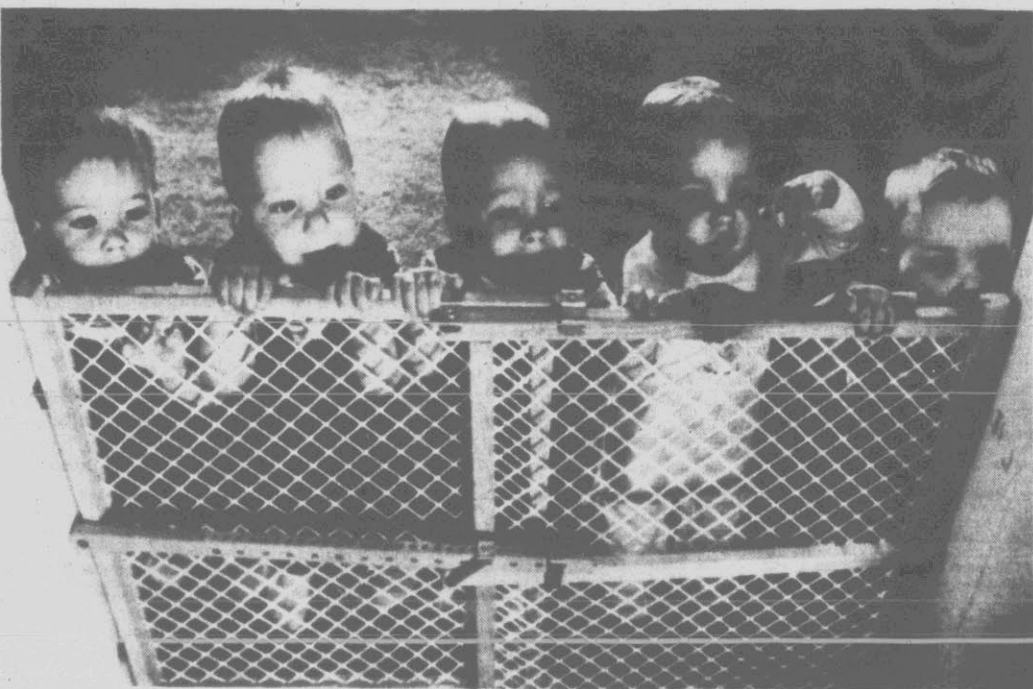

"By late this year or early next year, the Fed will be forced to reverse itself because of this bounceback in economic growth," he predicted.

In announcing its action Friday, the Fed depicted the move as a "technical change designed to place the discount rate in more appropriate alignment with the prevailing level of market rates."

The Fed also cited a need to take into account "international interest rate considerations."

Both the March and April discount rate cuts were viewed as a coordinated effort on the part of the industrialized countries to reduce interest rates worldwide. On Saturday, the Bank of Japan announced it was cutting its discount rate to 3.5 percent, effective today.

The Fed's March discount rate cut had come only after the central banks of both Japan and West Germany had cut their discount rates.

British Evacuees Leave Lebanon For Trip Home

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Twenty-one Britons who evacuated kidnap-plagued west Beirut because of the slayings of two Britons and an American sailed from Lebanon today on their way back to London.

The evacuees boarded a boat at Jounieh, 12 miles north of Beirut, at midmorning for the six-hour journey to the Cypriot port of Larnaca to catch a flight home.

The British Embassy oversaw their evacuation across the Green Line from Moslem west Beirut to the Christian east sector on Sunday, but no embassy officials were in Jounieh today to see them off. Ambassador John Gray said the evacuees were on their own.

Jounieh port officials said there were 33 other foreigners, including two Americans, nine Frenchmen and two Irishmen aboard the boat. But many of them were ordinary passengers who were not fleeing Lebanon, the officials said.

"I feel sad for leaving. There is nothing I can do at this moment," said one British evacuee who spoke on condition he not be identified. "Maybe one day I can come back. I have a strong feeling for the country."

The evacuation was touched off by the slaying of two kidnapped Britons and one American, which was followed Thursday by the gunshot abduction of British television reporter John McCarthy.

The slain hostages were AUB librarian Peter Kilburn, 62, of San Francisco; and British teachers Leigh Douglas, 34; and Philip Padfield, 40. The body of Kilburn, who was kidnapped in December 1984, was returned to the United States on Sunday.

Their gunshot bodies were found off a tree-lined mountain highway east of Beirut with a stenciled note that said they were killed by a group calling itself the Arab Revolutionary Cells in retaliation for the British-supported U.S. air attack on Libya last Tuesday.

The group is believed linked to Libyan-backed Palestinian terrorist Abu Nidal, who had vowed to avenge the air raid.

A total of 35 Westerners left west Beirut on Sunday in the evacuation organized by the British. They included 32 Britons, an American, an Irishman and a New Zealander.

Embassy sources said some people stayed behind to wind up personal affairs, such as rents and luggage shipment before leaving.

Among those who left for Cyprus were 19 teachers who taught intensive English programs at the American University of Beirut.

That left the AUB, a university that once had more than 80 foreign teachers, with only a dozen of non-Lebanese professors. AUB spokesman Radwan Mawlawi said the university planned to hire Lebanese teachers to offset the brain drain.

Public disapproval of Beirut terrorism escalated today with renewed criticism by Beirut newspapers and Druse leader Walid Jumblatt.

"The hunters of foreigners roaming the streets of Beirut must be stopped," said the pro-Syrian Beirut newspaper al-Sharq. "The Lebanese people may soon find themselves without schools for their children if these splinter groups seeking to destroy the foundations of our civilization and culture are not checked."

Jumblatt, an AUB graduate, attacked unidentified Arab countries that "hunt down foreigners in Lebanon while providing protection to those on their territory."

A senior Shiite Moslem cleric, Sheikh Abdul-Amir Kabalan, also assailed the "murderous campaign of kidnappings" as a violation of Islamic teaching.

Kabalan, who heads the highest Shiite religious court in Beirut, has long called for tough measures to end lawlessness in west Beirut.

U.S. Envoys Plan SALT II Treaty Talks, Officials Say

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two U.S. envoys will consult with Asian and West European leaders this week on the unsigned SALT II treaty, apparently without disclosing whether President Reagan plans to keep the U.S. nuclear arsenal within the pact's limit, officials say.

Edward L. Rowny and Paul Nitze will discuss the status of the 1979 U.S.-Soviet treaty to limit various types of nuclear weapons and the prospects for stepping up lagging negotiations with the Soviets on new accords.

Although the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks treaty was never officially ratified, the United States has complied with its tenets.

Rowny, a senior adviser, was scheduled to fly to Tokyo Sunday and from there to South Korea and China. Nitze, who leaves Tuesday for meetings with British officials in London, will make stops in West Germany, Italy, France, Belgium and the Netherlands. Nitze will meet Friday with the NATO counsel in Brussels.

With a new Trident nuclear submarine due to go to sea next month, the president must decide whether to allow its 24 missiles to take the United States past the ceiling specified in the SALT II treaty, or to destroy or dry-dock older missile launchers to compensate for the Trident going on line.

The officials, who insisted on anonymity, said top advisers who met with Reagan on Wednesday remain divided on what should be done. Only Nitze and Secretary of State George P. Shultz favored retiring older Poseidon submarine missiles or land-based Minutemen missiles to stay within treaty bounds.

The Trident isn't due to go to sea until May 20, so Reagan doesn't have to make an immediate decision. Sources said that if the president does not make a decision while Rowny and Nitze are overseas, the trips will mainly involve soliciting the advice of allied leaders.

In a related development, more than half the members of the House of Representatives asked Reagan on Saturday to continue observing SALT II.

"We urge you to continue your five-year policy of not undercutting existing SALT offensive arms limitations as long as the Soviet Union similarly refrains," said the April 19 letter signed by 221 of the 435 representatives — 22 Republicans and 199 Democrats.

The letter was drafted by Reps. Dante Fascell, D-Fla., chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, and Les Aspin, D-Wis., chairman of the House Armed Services Committee.

"Only the Soviets stand to gain if we breach the SALT limits. They have 'hot' missile production lines that could spew out additional weapons. To encourage them to do this by scrapping SALT isn't shooting ourselves in the foot — it's shooting ourselves in the head," the two committee chairmen said in a joint statement.

Fifty-two senators already have asked Reagan to continue abiding by the weapons ceiling.

To stay within SALT II's limit of 1,200 multi-warhead MIRV missiles, the administration would have to dismantle two Poseidon submarines, which carry 16 missiles each.

50 Are Hurt By Car Bomb

MAPUTO, Mozambique (AP) — A car bomb exploded early today on a tree-lined residential avenue in the capital, injuring 50 people, three of them seriously, the official Mozambique News Agency reported.

The agency said the blast occurred shortly before dawn near the offices and workshops of a bus company. Two apartment buildings were reported to have been heavily damaged by the explosion, which shattered windows 300 yards away.

Hospitals said 47 people were treated for minor injuries and released, the news agency said. The nature of injuries to the three people reported as seriously hurt was not immediately known.

In Lisbon, the Portuguese news agency ANOP reported two other explosions in this former Portuguese colony at about the same time, one in Matola, on the outskirts of Maputo, and another in the Machava district.

There was no immediate claim of responsibility. Guerrillas of the Mozambique National Resistance, opposed to the Marxist government of President Samora Machel, have been active in various parts of this southeast African country.

The Mozambique government says South Africa has broken a 2-year-old mutual security pact pledging that each of the neighboring countries will withhold support from guerrillas opposed to the other.

South Africa's white-led government has admitted technical violations of the pact, but says it has ended aid to the Mozambique rebels.

KHADAFY'S SON IN HOSPITAL — Kamis Khadafy, 3-year-old son of Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy, has his head bandaged and lies in his hospital bed in Tripoli, Sunday, comforted by Dr. Ali Mugadmi, who was trained in Birmingham, England. The child was wounded with other members of the Khadafy family last Tuesday when the United States attacked Libya in an air raid, Libyan officials said.

Warsaw Pact, NATO Mentioned

Gorbachev Backs Abolition Of Alliances

By SUSAN J. SMITH
Associated Press Writer

BERLIN (AP) — Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev said today he would support the simultaneous abolition of the Warsaw Pact and NATO military alliances.

In a speech to several hundred East German factory workers, Gorbachev also repeated his readiness to meet with President Reagan "so long as the appropriate international atmosphere is created, and real disarmament steps are possible.

"We stress our readiness for a simultaneous disbanding of the Warsaw Pact and NATO, or, for a start, their military organizations," the Soviet Communist Party general secretary told workers at a machine factory in Marzahn, an East Berlin suburb.

Gorbachev visited the factory this morning before attending the closing session of the East German Communist Party Congress. His comments were carried on state-run East German television during the afternoon.

According to the television report, Gorbachev did not elaborate on his statement about the dissolution of the Warsaw Pact, a mutual defense agreement between the Soviet Union and its Eastern European allies, and the U.S.-led North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Gorbachev today also repeated his proposal made in a speech at the party congress Friday that conventional forces be cut back across the European continent.

"The course of political dialogue and search for solutions acceptable to both sides are supported by all Soviet citizens," he said, according to East German television.

"But it is not seldom asked whether the negotiating partner of the U.S.S.R. is seeking to use these negotiations as a front for its attempts to reach military superiority.

"We understand this concern and are taking the necessary measures so that it will not come to that," Gorbachev said.

The Soviet leader Sunday accused the United States of poisoning super-power relations, but said that under the right circumstances he still is willing to meet Reagan as they agreed at their meeting in Geneva last November.

He did not elaborate in his criticism of the United States, but apparently was referring to the U.S. air strike on Libya a week ago, and continued nuclear testing.

U.S. Determined To Fight Terrorism After The Death Of Hostage Peter Kilburn

By TERENCE HUNT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration said today it is not prepared to blame Libya for the murder of American hostage Peter Kilburn, and said his death reinforces America's commitment to combat international terrorism.

Forensic experts at the National Institutes of Health on Sunday positively identified a body found outside Beirut last week, along with the remains of two Britons, as Kilburn, an American librarian kidnapped in Lebanon Dec. 3, 1984.

A note found near the bodies said they had been killed in retaliation for last week's American bombing of Libya.

"We condemn this cowardly and tragic murder of Peter Kilburn," said presidential spokesman Larry Speakes. "In no way will this deter us from our efforts to obtain the safe release of the remaining hostages in Lebanon.

"We are pressing our extensive efforts with various governments and parties to obtain their freedom," he added. "This tragic killing only reinforces our commitment to combat international terrorism as effectively as possible."

Asked if the United States believes Libya was responsible for Kilburn's death, Speakes replied, "I don't think we're prepared to say that at this time."

Kilburn's family, meanwhile, joined the international chorus of protests against the U.S. attack. Asked to comment on the family's statement, Speakes said, "I wouldn't have anything except we certainly have the deepest sympathy for the family. We certainly understand their sense of outrage and frustration, and we share it."

In Aptos, Calif., on Sunday, Kilburn's sister-in-law, Jeanne Repetto, said, "I don't think Peter will be the only one that will be sacrificed."

She compared the air raid with throwing a bomb out a window to kill a pest.

"By throwing the bomb out the window, we've blown out the window, breaking whatever protection we had, and now we have found that, instead, we hit a hornet's nest. I shudder to think about what will happen," Ms. Repetto, 5, of San Jose, Calif., said.

Kilburn's remains were due in California on Tuesday, with a funeral scheduled April 30, the relatives said.

Kilburn, of San Francisco, was a librarian at the American University of Beirut for 20 years until he disappeared on Dec. 3, 1984.

Speakes also noted that a stateless Palestinian had been arrested in connection with the disco bombing in Berlin, which triggered the U.S. attack. But he said the arrest "in no way changes our conclusive evidence that Libyans were involved" in the disco incident.

Manfred Ganschow, the West German security police official heading the bombing investigation, said the Palestinian was taken into custody late Friday in West Berlin and booked Sunday on suspicion of participation in the bombing.

U.S. officials have said they had proof of Libyan involvement in the bombing, and U.S. warplanes raided Libya last week in retaliation. However, Libyan officials denied involvement in the nightclub bombing.

Speakes also said the United States has heard various reports that the Soviets have recovered the bodies of two American airmen killed when their F-111 went down in the bombing

Ferry Sinks; 126 Bodies Found

By FARID HUSSAIN
Associated Press Writer

MUNSHIGANJ, Bangladesh (AP) — A river ferry believed to be carrying 1,000 or more passengers capsized in a nighttime storm, and rescue officials today said they had recovered 126 bodies.

The double-decker vessel sank Sunday night in the Dhaleswari River near this riverfront town, 10 miles south of Dhaka, the capital.

About 100 passengers were rescued and possibly 100 or more swam to safety as the ship capsized about 100 yards from the Munshiganj River terminal, Munshiganj District Administrator A. R. Khan said today. Local officials said 35 people were injured, including 20 who were hospitalized.

Mohammad Jasimuddin, 35, an air force corporal who was on the ferry, said he believed about 300 people survived. He estimated some 1,500 passengers were aboard the ferry.

"Hundred of passengers screamed in panic as the first gust of (wind) sent huge waves rolling over the deck and minutes later it started going down," Jasimuddin said.

An emergency control room set up to coordinate rescue and salvage operations told The Associated Press by telephone that 125 bodies had been recovered today from the ship's hull, and that one body was found floating in the river.

Bodies of the dead were taken to hospitals and carpenters here were making coffins.

The control room said salvage operations were in progress, and that more bodies could be trapped inside the capsized ship. Control room workers estimated the number of passengers on the ferry at nearly 1,000.

The ferry was traveling from Dhaka to Barisal, 140 miles to the south, when it sank in a storm. The exact cause of the sinking was not immediately known.

The independent Bengali language newspaper The Sangbad said rescue operations were delayed because of insufficient lighting. The newspaper said that 20 of the passengers who swam to safety were injured when they jumped overboard, and had been hospitalized.

In March 1985, a river ferry with 400 passengers sank near Dhaka after colliding with another boat, and 53 people were drowned.

In April 1984, 150 ferry boat passengers were killed in a collision, also near Dhaka.

NASA Will Release Remains

By IKE FLORES
Associated Press Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The space agency plans this week to release the remains of the seven Challenger astronauts to their families after ending part of a nearly 3-month underwater search for wreckage from the space shuttle.

"We hope to have an announcement in a few days," Dick Young, spokesman for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, said today.

NASA Associate Administrator Richard H. Truly announced the completion of recovery operations on Saturday.

"Remains of each of the seven space shuttle Challenger crew members have been recovered," Truly said. "Final forensic work and future planning in accordance with family desires is expected to be completed within the next several days."

The official end of the underwater search for crew cabin contents had been expected since the recovery last week of the remains of payload specialist Gregory Jarvis. Bruce Jarvis, of Orlando, said he had been notified that his son's remains were the last to be found.

The hunt continues for other shuttle wreckage, particularly the bottom segment of the right booster rocket in the area around its joint.

Investigators believe that joint leaked explosive gases and flame, triggering the fireball that destroyed the spaceplane Jan. 28 and killed its crew, including schoolteacher Christa McAuliffe.

Truly said the "long and arduous" recovery efforts centering on the crew cabin began on March 7 when divers first spotted the compartment on the ocean floor 18 miles northeast of the launch site.

Navy and Coast Guard divers completed the recovery operations on Friday, Truly said.

BUS USE SURVEY

Persons developing the East Carolina University Artists' Series of concert and theater productions for October 1986-March 1987 are investigating how much bus service would enhance the program.

Parking is at a premium near the newly-renovated Wright Auditorium, where the series will be held, and it may be possible to have patrons arrive at a given point or points like a downtown or major shopping center parking lot and have a bus pick them up and take them back at appointed times, according to Rudy Alexander, director of university unions. Individuals who would like to use the bus service are asked to call 757-6611, extension 266, and leave names and addresses.

Volunteers Receive Recognition

By DON REUTER
Reflector Staff Writer

While millions of people who give of themselves every day across the country are to be honored by National Volunteer Week, area agencies said it is time to applaud the efforts of local residents for their work in strengthening the community.

"We think it's wonderful that the nation's volunteers are being honored," said Diane Webster, communications specialist with the Pitt County United Way, which has several hundred volunteers. "You can never say enough about volunteers, especially in the United Way because they run the whole thing. All of us need to thank them for what they've done for our entire community."

National Volunteer Week, which began today and will extend through Friday, is an example of bringing important work to light.

"It's an excellent idea to recognize all volunteers to any organization," said Terry Payne, assistant fire marshal for Pitt County.

Pitt County's 20 volunteer fire departments are comprised of about 650 volunteers who provide all the fire protection for the area outside of Greenville, according to Payne. Furthermore, about 180 volunteers make up the rescue squads that respond to accidents and emergencies.

"The volunteers have good dedication. They enjoy the work and appreciate the job they do," Payne said. "They are so important because they make everyone's job so much easier."

While several organizations require volunteers in their operations, others need their efforts to survive.

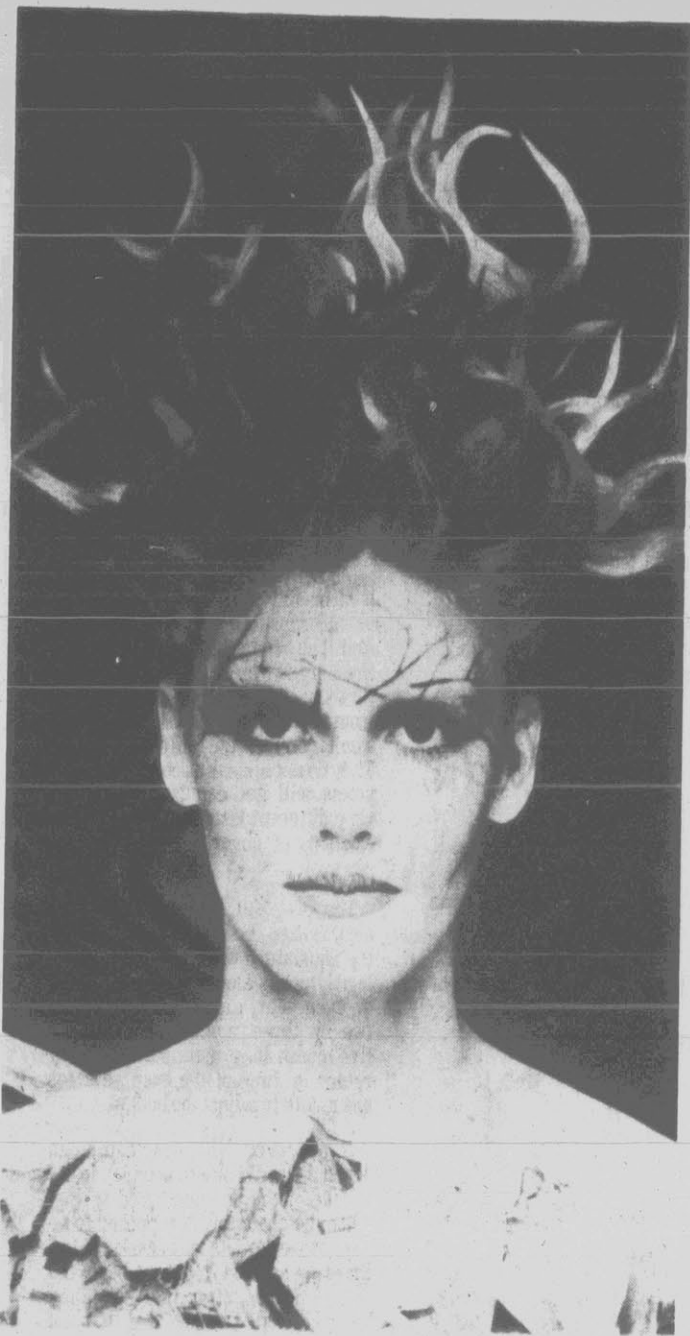

"The United Way certainly could not exist without the time, energy and dedication of volunteers," said Ms. Webster, who added that the United Way serves more than 30 Pitt County agencies.

"They are responsible for raising funds, how to allocate those funds and how the funds can best be put to use," she said.

Terry Fuller, admissions director at Greenville Villa Nursing Home, said volunteers provide 2,500 to 3,000 hours of service to the home every month in a variety of areas.

"They are used in the activities department, as well as by social (Please turn to page 6)

Gifts Lure Customers To Time-Sharing Resorts

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Those "free gifts" used to lure prospective customers to time-share resorts are not really free. If you decide to buy, you pay a large part of the cost. Up to 50 percent of the purchase price of a time-share goes to cover "marketing" costs like the sales commission, advertisements and those gifts that get people in the door. In one year alone, 4,309 people who visited Resort World of Orlando got $25 each, and 4,309 others were given $30.

The Resort World gift list filed with the state also included: 2,134 Kodak cameras, 8,992 discount coupon books, 486 tickets to SeaWorld, 100 tickets to Circus World, 208 tickets to Busch Gardens, 524 tickets to Disney World, 500 tickets to Epcot Center, 585 clocks, 727 sets of luggage, and 478 dinners. An additional 4,848 people received free weekends at the resort. Time-share resorts may pay discounted prices when they buy some merchandise in bulk, but they pay full price for the tickets. If the purchase price has been doubled to cover these costs, it means the buyer's property is worth half of what he paid for it. So even if the real estate value does increase, the buyer would get his money back only when the property doubled in value.

Operation Dear Abby Sets Sail For Guantanamo Bay

DEAR ABBY: Your Operation Dear Abby was a wonderful morale booster for lonely and homesick Marines in Japan. It let thousands of U.S. Marines know that Americans back home really care about them. It also gave some stateside people an opportunity to learn something about military life overseas. Abby, we here in Guantanamo Bay Naval Base wish that you would extend Operation Dear Abby to us. We are an extremely isolated installation in the Caribbean, and would love to hear from people in the states. Our base is the oldest American post on foreign soil, and the only U.S. base in a communist nation.

There are a lot of lonely Marines and sailors here. We have women here, too, the majority of whom are in the Navy.

Anyone wishing to correspond with a service person can address letters to me. I promise to see that the letters will get into the hands of someone who wants a pen pal. Mail from "home" keeps us going.

Thanks in advance from all of us stationed here.

Bridal Policy

A black and white glossy five by seven photograph is requested for engagement announcements in The Daily Reflector. For publication in a Sunday edition, the information must be submitted by 12 noon on the preceding Wednesday. Engagement pictures must be released at least three weeks prior to the wedding date. After three weeks, only an announcement will be printed.

Wedding write-ups will be printed through the first week with a one column picture. During the second week, a one column picture will be used with a write-up giving less description and after the second week, just as an announcement.

Wedding forms and pictures should be returned to The Daily Reflector one week prior to the date of the wedding. All information should be typed or written neatly.

DEAR ABBY: Can you stand one more letter about European eating practices?

Eighteen years ago, on the plane home from our first visit to Europe, I asked our 10-year-old son if he had learned anything in the three months we had spent traveling around Europe. He thought for a minute, then said, "Well, I learned that there are a lot of different ways to flush a toilet."

Then I asked him if he'd also learned that one way of flushing a toilet was just as good as another, and he said, "Sure, they all get the job done." So I told him that he had indeed learned something of value.

To those who think the American way of doing things is the best and/or the only way, I say: "Please don't be an Ugly American. When you travel abroad, keep an open mind, and if you still don't think the way they 'flush their toilets' is as efficient as ours, please keep your opinions to yourself and don't insult or ridicule them. It will make life much more pleasant for us all when we follow in your footsteps."

Your Social Security Disability Benefits

BENEFITS DENIED?
Have you been denied benefits under Social Security's disability benefits programs? Do not be discouraged. That happens to most people who apply the first time.

ADDIE'S ADVICE

Have you asked for reconsideration of your disability claim and been turned down a second time? Again, don't be discouraged or give up. That's the way the disability system works today.

Take your case one step further and go before a Social Security Administrative Law Judge for a hearing with a qualified representative to present your case. Then the chances of your winning benefits are somewhere between 70% and 80%. The Judge will see you and hear your personal description of your physical or mental illness, and your representative will present your case as it applies to the complex rules of the Social Security Act.

If you have a hearing requested or scheduled before an Administrative Law Judge, call now for an immediate conference. There is no fee for an initial conference to discuss your eligibility for disability.

Rescue College Is Held

DURHAM — Eighteen people from Pitt County were among more than 350 students that attended classes at the second session of the 25th annual North Carolina Rescue College at the Durham Fire Department Training Academy Saturday and Sunday.

Local area students attending the school's second year classes included Eastern Pines Rescue Squad members Leon Boyd, Stuart Elks, Donna Kay Elks, John Pollock, Jane Pollock, Ervin Hardee, Caroline McNeil, Dale Bailey and Kathy Bailey; Ayden Rescue Squad members Asa Spain, Billy Merrill and Jean Jolly; Greenville Fire-Rescue Department employee James Ormond and Farmville Rescue Squad member Pauline Stencil.

Pitt residents attending the Rescue College's third year classes were Woodie Wilson and Marilyn Leonard of Eastern Pines and John Fisher of Greenville's fire-rescue department. Brent Stocks of Eastern Pines was enrolled in the school's graduate program.

Greenville native Wilburn Small of Wilson is director of the rescue college and Joe Burris of Greenville is assistant director. Stuart Savage of Greenville, a staff writer for The Daily Reflector, is a rescue college staff instructor.

Small was training officer for the Greenville Fire-Rescue Department before joining the N.C. Department of Insurance's Fire and Rescue Service Division as an instructor in 1974. He is presently director of field services for the division.

Burris, who joined the fire and rescue service division staff in September 1984 after serving as training coordinator and shift captain for the Catawba County Emergency Medical Services system, is also a former Greenville Fire-Rescue Department employee.

Small, Burris and Savage were all members of the former volunteer Greenville Rescue Squad.

The first Rescue College program, sponsored by the insurance department and the Greenville Rescue Squad was held in Greenville in 1961. After four years, the program had grown so large it was moved to Raleigh, where more facilities were available for the one-weekend school.

Later the school was expanded to two weekends to accommodate the growing enrollment and in 1978 the college was moved to Durham's new training academy to provide better facilities for the school.

Savage is the only instructor still active in the college who was an instructor at the first rescue college session in Greenville. Graham Johnson of Elkin, a fire and rescue service division instructor and former director of the rescue college, attended the first program in Greenville as a student and still teaches at the college.

Twelve people from Pitt County were among the 415 students that attended first, fourth and graduate classes at the school April 12 and 13.

Marines Trained Klansmen, Ex-Members Say

RALEIGH (AP) — Camp Lejeune-based Marines supplied Ku Klux Klansmen with routine military supplies, such as canteens, pistol belts and uniforms, and helped train them in combat techniques and weaponry, two ex-Klansmen say.

Sworn statements from two former White Patriot Party members, taken in 1984 by lawyers for the Montgomery, Ala.-based Southern Poverty Law Center, were made available Friday to The News and Observer of Raleigh.

They say the Marines provide uniforms for Glenn Miller's white supremacy group, whose members usually wear combat fatigues instead of the Klan's traditional white sheets at rallies and other gatherings.

One of the statements was taken in the offices of Thorp, Fuller and Slifkin, a Raleigh law firm. The other was taken at the Lee County Office Building in Sanford.

"OK, now, I believe you told ... my assistant that the Marines directed much of the paramilitary training?" Morris S. Dees, director of the law center, asked one of the former Klansmen.

"Marines and Steve both. They was in there together," the man answered, referring to Stephen S. Miller of Fayetteville, chaplain of the White Patriot Party.

"Now these were active duty Marines where?" Dees asked.

"At Jacksonville, N.C., Marine base," he answered, referring to Camp Lejeune.

Stephen Miller, who is not related to Glenn Miller, is a Republican candidate for the 12th state Senate District. Glenn Miller is seeking the Republican nomination for U.S. Senate.

Dees asked whether there had been an effort to keep the Marines' involvement with the Klan a secret.

"Well, they was trying to keep it — when they first joined up — trying to keep it secret; but the sergeants, their (Marine) sergeants, got word of it and they was giving them a hard time about being members," one of the former party member said. He said Stephen Miller went to Camp Lejeune to protest the matter.

Klansmen could buy military equipment cheaper at the base depot than civilians would pay at Army surplus and similar stores, one of the former Klansmen said.

"So, in other words, when these Marines would bring uniforms directly from the base, they would be official United States Army-Marine uniforms?" Dees asked.

"Well, some of them would, and some of them would just be regular fatigues," he answered. "Some of them would have the symbol — the Marine Corps symbol — on them."

In the November issue of Glenn Miller's newspaper, The Confederate Leader, a page-one photograph showed a line of numerous men dressed in military combat uniforms and firing rifles and handguns.

The caption said the photograph showed an Oct. 19, 1985, firearms contest "at our training camp near Angier."

The law center contends that two of the individuals identified in the caption are active Marines at Camp Lejeune.

Lt. Col. David F. Tomsy of the base near Jacksonville said in a telephone interview Friday that he could not determine immediately whether the two were stationed at Camp Lejeune.

Tomsy, who is head of public affairs for the base, said Marines and other active military personnel had First Amendment rights to assemble with any group they chose during their free time off base and out-of-uniform.

"There are 38,000 people here," he said. "I imagine you'd find a few Marines that belonged to any group you'd like to name."

He said a Marine was a Marine 24 hours a day, "but those aspects that do not interfere with his duty, those are matters of his private life."

But Dees contends the White Patriot party and similar Klan groups lean toward violence. Because of this, he argued that active military personnel lost their First Amendment right of free assembly to join the organization.

He said his group delivered a letter last week to Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger asking that active duty military personnel be prohibited from joining the North Carolina-based White Patriot Party or similar Klan groups.

Glenn Miller has said the letter is a tactic to discourage whites from joining his organization. A woman who answered his telephone Saturday said Miller would not be available for comment this weekend.

Officials Feel N.C. Could Have Both Biosphere Reserve, Nuke Waste Site

HENDERSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Earlier this month, a state official said plans for a proposed biosphere reserve in western North Carolina would halt the location of a nuclear waste dump nearby, but federal officials say the two may co-exist.

"Theoretically, we could have both. It's certainly possible," said Dr. Stan Krugman of the U.S. Forest Service in Washington.

The U.S. Department of Energy has chosen the Elk River Complex, a rock formation that runs under Buncombe, Haywood and Madison counties, as one of 12 possible sites in the Eastern United States for a high-level nuclear waste repository. A site in Wake County near Raleigh also is on the list.

Krugman is co-chairman of a U.S. committee participating in the "Man and the Biosphere" program, a United Nations operation designed to study man's use of the earth and its resources.

MAB operates under the auspices of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization and has its headquarters in Paris, France.

MAB must approve any proposed biosphere location before it receives the reserve designation, said Joe Mehan, chief of public information with UNESCO in New York.

"It would be very interesting to see what Paris would think of a nuclear and biosphere combination," Krugman said.

"Technically, that's not a conflict. One could say (of the dump) 'Hey, that's a use of the land,'" he said.

Stu Coleman, chief of Resource Management with the Great Smoky Mountains National Forest, said the MAB program is not a conservation-conscious organization of the Sierra Club variety.

"Man and the Biosphere is not just a conservation, preservation-minded organization. It is for the best and wisest use of the land whatever. If it is a Christmas tree farm, so be it," he said.

Asked about nuclear waste dumps and biospheres existing side-by-side, Coleman said "that might be the case."

Coleman said the UNESCO committee deciding the outcome of a Southern Appalachian Biosphere

Reserve in Western North Carolina "might consider that question and ask 'is it the best use of the land?' In theory, the two may very well fit."

But Krugman said that if the dump were installed before the biosphere reserve, UNESCO would probably veto any additional North Carolina mountains reserve area.

"Obviously the land would be so constrained...we wouldn't be doing studies for a couple of thousand years," he said. "If an area is essentially off limits, it certainly will not be suitable for study."

RJR Benefitting From Ruling On Warning Labels

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. has had its ups and downs on the stock market, but a ruling that warning labels protect cigarette firms from claims that they didn't issue adequate warnings on the dangers of smoking has been a boom, a tobacco analyst says.

"It was a very positive ruling," said Diana K. Temple, a New York securities analyst.

The ruling April 9 by the 3rd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Philadelphia said a tobacco company cannot be sued solely on the inadequacy of the warning label, because the label is required by law.

In an investment opinion of the tobacco industry dated April 4, Ms. Temple, a tobacco analyst for Saloman Brothers Inc., said Reynolds would lag behind the rest of the market because of product liability lawsuits facing the company.

But the appeals court ruling changed her mind.

On Friday she said she had put out another report on Reynolds saying she expects it to do better than the market this year.

After the announcement of the court ruling, Reynolds' stock rose to $47.125, up from its low of $25 a share in the first week of December, when two product liability cases were just going to trial.

But Reynolds won both those cases, one of them Dec. 13, and the stock shot up that day to $32 from $28.

Ms. Temple said active liability lawsuits can cost up to $1 million a case. With 58 cases against Reynolds (compared with 22 against Philip Morris), Reynolds' potential legal fees could be as high as $60 million, she estimated on April 4.

Ms. Temple said Reynolds had the highest market share, 33 percent, in 1964, the year of the first surgeon general's report. American Brands had 26 percent of the market, and it has 50 of the lawsuits, she said.

Philip Morris, now 4 percent ahead of Reynolds with 36 percent of the market, had only 10 percent of the market in 1964 and has about 22 lawsuits against it, Ms. Temple said.

As the stock market rallied this spring, so did Reynolds' stock. On March 14, another announcement involving a court ruling in the tobacco companies' favor caused another jump in Reynolds' stock, analysts say. Boosted even further by a strong stock market a few days later, the price went to about $44.50.

But the appeals court decision April 9 pushed the stock over $47.

Philip Morris has followed a similar pattern for the past year, with the dips and jumps following the market, the court cases and year-end reports.

Ms. Temple predicts that Reynolds' earnings growth in 1986 will be limited to an 11 percent gain, to $4 a share.

USDA Working To End Meat Inspection Debate

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department is working with Common Market officials to straighten out differences over meat inspection standards which could jeopardize a lucrative export market for American livestock producers.

Since 1972 the Europeans have been saying that U.S. meat plants should meet standards required by Common Market rules if they want to sell meat on the continent. The debate escalated last year after the European Economic Community reviewed 395 U.S. plants that supply meat to Europe.

According to the EEC review, those plants did not measure up to the European standards and eventually could have their export eligibility ended if corrective measures are not taken.

The USDA has been providing technical help to the plants that were checked by the Europeans in 1984-85, according to Marjorie Davidson, a spokeswoman for the department's Food Safety and Inspection Service.

Davidson said the agency plans to renominate meat plants for another check by the EEC later this year. The target for submitting the names of those plants is June 1, she said.

"Until June 1, everything is just the way it always has been," Davidson said last week in an interview. "After June 1, just those 395 plants that were reviewed initially will be able to export meat to the EEC" at least until Jan. 1, 1987.

"After Jan. 1, only those that were renominated and re-reviewed, and presumably found satisfactory" will be allowed to ship meat, she said. The 395 plants account for nearly all of the U.S. meat exported to Common Market countries.

During last year's touchy negotiations with the EEC over inspection procedures, the departments of State and Agriculture kept the situation under wraps until it was disclosed by The Washington Post and Capitol Hill sources.

The reason given for the secrecy by one USDA official at the time was a fear that "improper disclosure" could offend the Europeans and lead to retaliatory actions.

Nothing like that has happened since the EEC findings were made public five months ago. Davidson said that as far as she knew there had not been further demands by the Europeans.

Donald L. Houston, administrator of the USDA agency, has characterized the dispute as "a trade issue, not a public health issue." Many of the so-called deficiencies found by the EEC involved "differences in inspection methodology" and physical facilities rather than sanitation or the wholesomeness of products.

According to information sent by Houston's agency to meat plants, an establishment under EEC rules, for example, must have "a separate room for emptying and preparing stomachs and intestines" of slaughtered animals. The U.S. system allows this to be carried out in the slaughter room, provided it is "effectively shielded from other operations and that contamination of other product is effectively prevented."

The EEC rules also prohibit the use of wood in exposed product areas, including the use of wooden pallets and wooden-handled equipment. The U.S. system prohibits product contact with wood but allows the use of wooden pallets, provided they are sanitary.

According to USDA's Economic Research Service, meat exports to the Common Market countries in the fiscal year that ended last Sept. 30 totaled 113,778 metric tons — about 250 million pounds — and was worth $132 million.

Most of the shipments, 85,516 tons, consisted of variety meats such as tripe, hearts, kidneys and oxtails. Those were valued at $88.5 million.

North Carolina growers produced a lot of soybeans in 1985 but not much profit. The average yield was 26 bushels per acre. The outlook for prices is not good for the 1986 crop. A heavy surplus of oil, primarily palm oil, seems to be a major factor holding a lid on any price rise.

A reduced crop in Brazil, increased exports to Russia, and anticipated reduction in U.S. soybean acreage offers some hope that the market may improve sometime during the year. The possibility of real significant improvement, however, is very small.

Even faced with a bleak outlook, many growers will still plant soybeans: Growers who have soybeans as their major crop must service a debt. In addition, they are not set for row crops, a fact which doesn't offer any help either.

Many North Carolina growers have spread their operations too thin, growing beans on marginal soils too widely separated to be managed properly. Land that has never produced more than 30 bushels an acre should not be planted.

Put soybeans on productive soil and plant only the acreage that can be managed well with available labor and equipment. Some good land may be available for leasing at prices lower than past years.

An estimated 40 percent of our soybean growers use more seed than they should at planting, increasing seed costs and the potential for lodging problems.

Improving weed control is the area most growers have mentioned for cutting costs. I'm afraid many may eliminate herbicides or cut rates. This is not the year to leave off herbicides and risk severe loss from weeds. Select herbicides on the basis of specific weed problems and use the correct herbicides and rates to do the job.

Dioxin Dangers Focus Of Study

By MALCOLM RITTER
AP Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Researchers are using clues as diverse as a mobile home park in Missouri and human fat samples from Vietnam in an attempt to pin down just what harm the toxic chemical dioxin can do to people.

Last week, researchers reported signs of possible liver and immune system problems in residents of a dioxin-contaminated mobile home park in Missouri, the state in which dioxin pollution forced evacuation of the town of Times Beach in 1983.

Also last week, another scientist said samples of human fat tissue from Vietnam show sharp difference in dioxin concentrations between the northern and southern parts of the country.

That difference, probably due partly to Agent Orange spraying in the south, may provide a natural laboratory for seeing what harm the chemical does to people, said Dr. Arnold Schechter, professor of preventive medicine at the Upstate Medical Center of the State University of New York in Binghamton.

Previous studies may have overlooked such harm, partly because of failure to appreciate how widespread dioxin contamination is among people in industrialized nations, he said.

He also estimated that some breast milk in the United States might contain worrisome levels of the substance. But he said the potential hazard is unknown and that for reasons such as nutrition and disease resistance, breast milk remains generally preferable to formula.

Dioxin, an industrial by-product and contaminant of herbicides like Agent Orange, takes many forms. The new research focused on the most hazardous: 2,3,7,8-tetrachlorodibenzo-p-dioxin, often called 2,3,7,8-TCDD.

Scientists are not sure what this substance can do to humans. Studies of people exposed in industrial settings have associated it with a serious skin disorder called chloracne, harm to the liver and nerves, and some other problems. Animal studies suggest a link to cancer, but no proof has been found in humans.

The Missouri study found that despite a higher incidence of the two abnormalities, residents of the mobile home park showed no more actual disease than did a similar group living in another park.

The abnormalities can be considered only potential signs of trouble, researchers said.

"They might go away in a few years, or they might develop into serious disease," said R. Gregory Evans, a co-author of the study and assistant professor of medicine at the St. Louis University School of Medicine. The other researchers were from the school, the Missouri health department and the federal Centers for Disease Control.

The study included 154 people who had lived there for some period between 1971 and 1983, comparing them to 155 people of similar ages and sex who lived elsewhere.

The fat-tissue study was presented by Schechter at a meeting of the American Chemical Association. He said researchers could not detect concentrations of dioxin in nine fat samples from northern Vietnam, probably because of little access to synthetic chemicals there, but that an average of 23 parts per trillion appeared in the 26 of 28 samples from southern Vietnam that showed dioxin.

He also said recent fat tissue studies of adults in the United States and Canada show dioxin concentrations of about six parts per trillion to about 10 parts per trillion. Nobody knows how hazardous those levels are, he said.

Fat tissue can be removed easily under local anesthetic, he said.

Schechter also said some Vietnam veterans who said they were in areas sprayed with Agent Orange have shown fat concentrations at or below the United States average.

His dioxin work has been financed by private foundations in New York.

How Perdue Helps Tobacco Farmers Take Success in Their Own Hands.

Is tobacco farming a way of life that's on its way out? A lot of people, including many tobacco growers, believe it is. As the Tobacco Program goes, so goes the tobacco farmer.

Or so they say.

At Perdue, we see the situation differently. We believe tobacco farmers don't have to give up their cropland and their way of life, and we can show you hundreds of small farmers in North Carolina to prove it.

They're tobacco farmers who have built Perdue chicken houses.

The steady year-round income of a Perdue broiler operations helps smooth out the ups and downs of tobacco farming. A broiler house works right in with your tobacco farming because it doesn't demand a lot of your time or tie up valuable field acreage.

Dry weather won't affect your yield. And how you run your business is just between you and Perdue, not between you and some committee in Washington.

Best of all, as a Perdue producer you're cashing in on one of the most promising trends in agriculture. In 1985, poultry was North Carolina's biggest cash crop. Poultry consumption has grown over 50% in just ten years. It has already exceeded pork consumption, and many industry executives predict that within ten more years Americans will consume more chicken than beef.

That gives you some idea of the bright outlook for the poultry industry as a whole. But Perdue is growing faster than the industry as a whole.

It's an ideal time to join the more than 1,000 independent agri-businessmen and businesswomen in North Carolina who have chosen to work with Perdue. For more information, return the coupon today, or call Perdue at 1-800-372-6543.

Court To Hear Insanity Case

STARKE, Fla. (AP) — A U.S. Supreme Court decision in the case of a Florida death row inmate is expected to address whether the Constitution protects the mentally incompetent from execution and whether the state's method of determining competence is proper.

Justices are scheduled to hear arguments Tuesday in the case of Alvin Bernard Ford, whose attorneys say he is insane and must not be put to death.

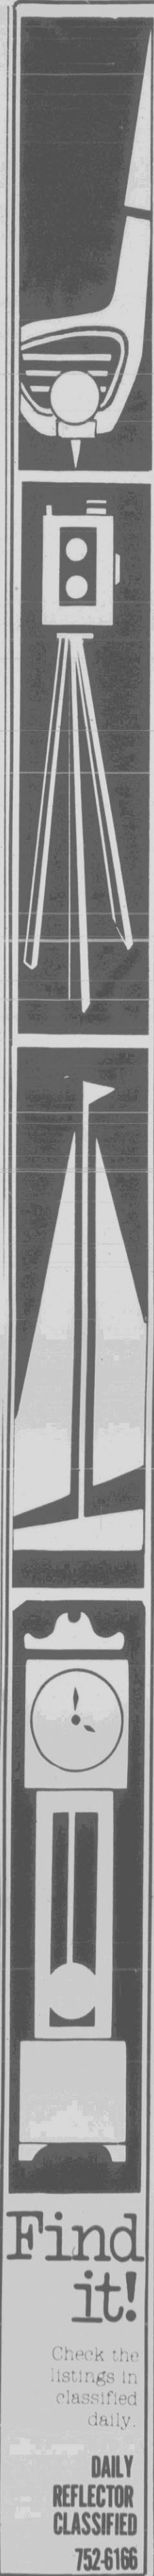

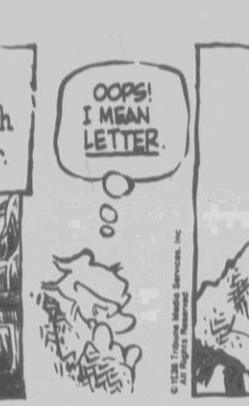

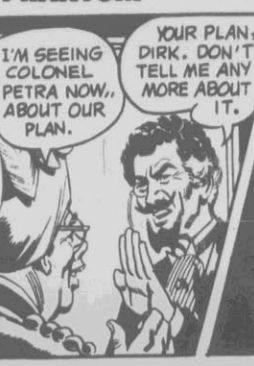

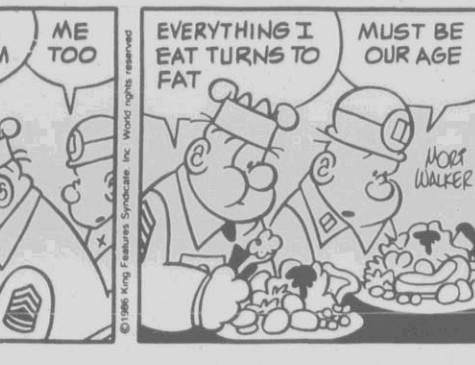

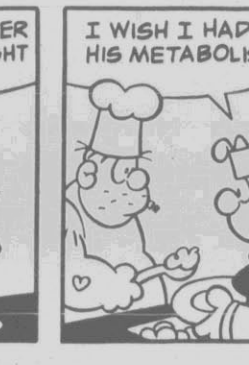

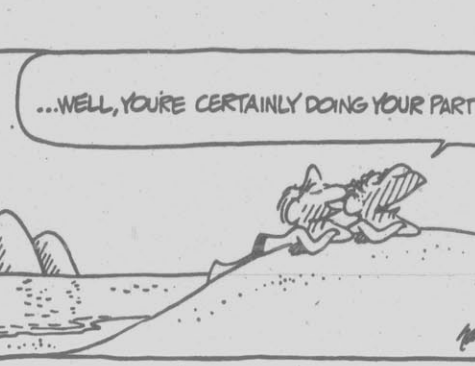

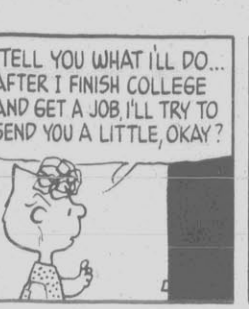

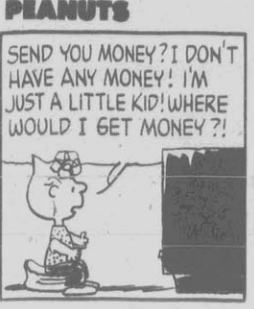

Ford has been on death row at the Florida State Prison here since he was convicted of killing a Fort Lauderdale police officer 11 years ago. Gov. Bob Graham has twice signed death warrants, and both times Ford came within hours of execution before the courts intervened.

Ford, 32, has said he hears voices from a plumbing corridor behind his 6-foot-by-9-foot cell. His attorney, Richard Burr, and four psychiatrists say Ford has evolved into a paranoid schizophrenic while awaiting his execution. A fifth doctor says he is faking.

When a trial judge sentenced Ford to death, he said the convicted was "a species of human animal that does not deserve to live."

No one disputes he was sane when he murdered officer Dimitri Walter Ilyankoff after a bungled restaurant robbery. And he long ago exhausted appeals of his conviction and sentence.

Give yourself a raise-raisin' with Perdue.

Baptist Leader Proposes Four-Point Plan For Unity

RALEIGH (AP) — The Rev. W. Winfred Moore, a leader among Baptist moderates who hasn't decided whether to seek the presidency of the Southern Baptist Convention next month, has a proposal he says will ensure fair play.

Moore, first vice president of the Southern Baptist Convention, believes his four-point program could help unify his divided 14.4-million-member denomination.

"These are the things I think a president could and should do," Moore, who is pastor of First Baptist Church in Amarillo, Texas, said at a news conference in Decatur, Ga., last week. "These are things that everybody could relate to and could give confidence that everyone is being treated fairly."

At last year's convention, moderates complained that an improper parliamentary procedure had prevented them from making substitutions for an administration-picked committee that names trustees to 20 national agencies and institutions. That ruling is being disputed in federal and state court, and a proposed change in bylaws would allow replacements to be made on administration-picked slates. Moderates also complained about irregular voting practices.

His four points are to:

- Increase the distribution of power and include more smaller churches in the mix by allowing no more than two individuals from the same church to be asked to serve as trustees on a specific board.

— Seek nominations for trustee boards from each state convention president, Women's Missionary Union president, state executive director and chairman of the state convention executive board. This would prevent a repeat of the last years dispute and would enable local leaders to propose candidates who might not have national recognition. At present, the convention president solicits nominations informally.

— Select trustees with churches with a history of supporting the Southern Baptist Cooperative Program, the denomination's plan for financial support of its organizations. Moderates have charged that conservative churches do not give adequate support to the cooperative program. This proposal would encourage conservative churches to support the program or provide moderates with the means to keep members of non-supporting churches from serving on boards.

— Hire a professional parliamentarian at the national convention to maintain proper procedures and to require proper identification from delegates who receive ballots at the convention.

A professional parliamentarian already has been hired for the 1986 convention. Proper identification of delegates would prevent violations of voting procedures that, last year, allegedly included ballots cast by children and multiple ballots submitted by individual delegates.

When the convention meets in Atlanta, the incumbent conservative president, the Rev. Charles F. Stanley, will not be allowed under convention rules to seek a third one-year term. Moore has been mentioned as a possible candidate, and the conservative Rev. Adrian P. Rogers of Memphis, Tenn., has said he was available.

For the past seven years, conservatives have been elected to the convention presidency, giving them the power to appoint trustees to denominational agencies and institutions. Moderates fear that if this hegemony does not end, the boards will be stacked with conservatives who will not allow theological diversity.

Committee Favors Moving Cape Hatteras Lighthouse

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Moving the Cape Hatteras Lighthouse to higher ground would keep the nation's tallest lighthouse out of the ocean's reach for more than 200 years, says the head of a committee that proposed the move.

"They say that the lighthouse would lose its historic context if it's moved, but if you moved it inland 1,500 feet — the distance it was from the ocean when it was built — the lighthouse keeper from 1870 could come back, and he wouldn't know the difference," said David C. Fischetti, an engineer from Cary and the president of the group.

"That's a heck of a lot less disruptive than enclosing it in a 20-foot wall and turning it into an island," he said.

Members of the Move the Lighthouse Committee, a non-profit organization, say that the lighthouse on the Outer Banks will otherwise be swallowed soon by the waves of the Atlantic Ocean.

To prevent that, the committee has proposed hauling the 116-year-old lighthouse, which is 208 feet tall, inland 1,000 yards.

Fischetti said last week that the U.S. Army Corp of Engineers and the National Park Service have overlooked the option in their rush to enclose the lighthouse in a $5.5 million seawall that will hasten erosion around its base. His committee is working on updated cost proposals that were estimated to be $3.5 million in 1983.

But R.E. Woody, a spokesman for the Cape Hatteras National Seashore, of which the lighthouse is a part, said the National Park Service plans to build an octagonal steel-and-concrete seawall around the lighthouse beginning this fall, if Congress allocates money for it.

The project, to be built by the Corps of Engineers, is expected to take three years. The inside of the lighthouse would be off-limits to the public during that time, as it has been since May 1984, when structural damage prompted the park service to close it.

W.A. Dennis, the corps' project engineer for the seawall and revetment around the lighthouse, said there's no precedent for trying to move a century-old lighthouse.

"I suppose it could be done, but there's that risk that in moving a historical structure like that, if you make a mistake, it could be disastrous," Dennis said.

Fischetti said, however, that a medieval cathedral in Mast, Czechoslovakia, was successfully moved in 1975 and that Egyptian temples weighing as much as 300,000 tons were moved in 1966 for the construction of the Aswan Dam.

"This should be a piece of cake because the lighthouse is extremely sound and we already have detailed design plans in the national archives," he said.

Khadafy's Reaction Surprised Navy Crew

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — The crew of the Saratoga was surprised that Libya's leader, Col. Moammar Khadafy, waited to react after U.S. planes flew over the disputed Gulf of Sidra in late March, says a Navy surgeon who was aboard the ship.

"For three days, the Libyans didn't do anything," Lt. Jeffrey G. Williams, a Forsyth County native, said in a recent interview. "We were thinking that Khadafy was getting a big laugh that we were spending all that money running three (aircraft) carriers and three air wings."

The Libyans "have a pretty good air force ... and are well-equipped," said Williams, 30, who tried to put himself in the pilots' shoes.

"Imagine that I'm getting ready to get in the plane, and I've got bombs, and we're going to drive over these missile sites, and I might get shot down — that's a lot of pressure," he said.

Besides the Saratoga, the other carriers were the USS Coral Sea and the USS America. Each ship can carry about 90 planes, and Williams said they were launching planes around the clock.

More Surgery For Senator

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Sen. Paula Hawkins's second operation in as many weeks will have "no effect whatsoever" on the Florida Republican's tough re-election battle, her spokesman said.

Surgery to take a piece of disc from her lower back to relieve pain was scheduled for 8 a.m. this morning and will not lengthen the campaign hiatus necessitated by her earlier operation, said Bill Hart, Mrs. Hawkins' campaign spokesman.

Mrs. Hawkins has been at Duke University Medical Center since surgery on April 8 to ease neck pain caused by injuries suffered in a car accident 20 years ago. That injury was aggravated when a backdrop fell on her at a television studio.

But the lower-back surgery is not related to her previous upper-back surgery, her doctors said.

"She has had chronic lower-back pain for some time, which caused her difficulty in sitting for long periods of time," said Hart.

The additional surgery is not expected to add to the week to 10 days she was scheduled to remain in the hospital nor the three weeks she will spend recuperating outside the hospital, Hart said.

Dr. Blaine S. Nashold, a Duke University Medical Center neurosurgeon, announced the decision at midday Sunday, Hart said.

According to Hart, Nashold described the surgery as "fairly routine" and said Mrs. Hawkins would not need to be placed under intensive care after the procedure at the Durham, N.C., hospital.

In the first-term senator's first operation, surgeons fused two vertebrae and removed two bone spurs.

Hart said no fusion would be required in today's two-hour operation.

Mrs. Hawkins' doctors decided to go ahead with the second operation while she is still at Duke after agreeing that she was recovering well from the first one, Hart said.

According to Hart, Mrs. Hawkins walked outside Sunday for the first time in two weeks and said she was ready for Monday's operation. He said she told her doctors she wanted to "get it over with now."

The lower back operation is not related to her upper back problems, Hart said.

IN THE STATE

R.B. Nelson Still Stumps For Roads

RALEIGH (AP) — R.B. Nelson, traveling on his own time and at his own expense, has missed only two meetings of the state Board of Transportation since he began his unflagging highway promotion efforts in 1947.

"I had a heart attack then — (that) was the only reason I missed those," said Nelson, now white-haired and stoop-shouldered, sitting at a recent meeting of the board in the Highway Building.

"Some people fish or hunt as a hobby. For me it's highways."

Nelson, 80, has traveled about 40,000 miles a year in his position as the state's only designated highway promoter.

"You go to the chambers of commerce and the town meetings and the county commissioners and the state and federal highway planners and you show them where the highways ought to go," Nelson said of his position. "How? You work hard at it."

Nelson's accuracy about where the highways ought to go is still coming back to haunt city planners today.

In 1951, leaders of Winston-Salem were wrestling with ways to unsnarl traffic in what was then North Carolina's second largest city, years before there was an interstate system to travel.

At the behest of highway planners, a route straight through town was the selected option for the East-West Freeway, now known as Interstate 40, despite Nelson's unsolicited warning that a southern loop would be wiser.

Thirty-five years later, a new, 21-mile southern loop of I-40 around the city, which will inherit the East-West designation, is proposed for completion by 1992 at a cost of $144.5 million.

An engineer from what was then N.C. State College, Class of '29, Nelson already has a stretch of U.S. 13, running through his hometown of Robersonville, designated as Robert Burton Nelson Highway, compliments of former Gov. James E. Holshouser Jr.

Television Comes Up Short As A Teacher, Says Writer

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Television movies are now more serious than films made for the theaters, at least according to producer-writer Bob Shanks, who has written a book on how to make a TV movie.

"The difference has to do with the audience," Shanks said. "It's a direct crossing of demographics. Theatrical features used to tackle serious subjects, but now they seem mostly to be silly."

Such serious TV movies as "The Burning Bed," which dealt with wife-beating; "Something About Amelia," about incest, and "The Day After," which showed the horrors of nuclear war, attracted large audiences, inspiring the networks to do more serious-issue movies.

Despite those socially relevant subjects in movies, Shanks believes television has missed the mark in educating the public.

"Television could be put to use to teach us in an entertaining way about our history and culture," he said. "but much of television's time just seems to be squandered. Television has changed so much. When I started at ABC if you had a good drama you put it on the air and worried about the ratings later. Now, it's all ratings, and I don't see it getting any better."

Shanks is the writer of four television films and a former programming executive for ABC. At ABC he created and developed "Good Morning America," "20-20" and "Wide World of Entertainment."

He is the author of "The Cool Fire — How to Make it in Television," a novel called "Love Is Not Enough," and a new book, "The Primal Screen," from W.W. Norton & Co.

The newest book leads the would-be screenwriter through all the steps necessary to turn an idea into a motion picture. He uses as an illustration his own screenplay for the CBS movie "Drop Out Father."

Shanks works out of a second-floor office at the rear of his rented Hollywood home. He operates in partnership with his wife, Ann Shanks, who produces his screenplays. On his desk is a battered Smith-Corona typewriter, a high school graduation gift that he keeps running by cannibalizing other typewriters.

"Ann and I work as a team," he said. "Most of the production duties fall on her shoulders and I'm sort of the grouch in the background. We've done four movies and 30 shows together." They recently produced a one-woman show on Broadway, "Lillian," based on the works of Lillian Hellman, and starring Zoe Caldwell.

Shanks said his new book came out of his experiences writing and producing TV movies.

"I was at ABC, where I bought movies from other people," he said. "I developed 'Eleanor and Franklin:

The White House Years,' 'The Gath-ering,' 'Breaking Up' and 'Mary White.' For late night I must have done 150 movies."

He left ABC in 1979. His three children were out of school by then and he was eager to strike out on his own.

Paintings Replace Profit As New Love Of Tycoon

By MAGGIE JACKSON
Associated Press Writer
TOKYO (AP) — Frederick Weisman is the founder and past president of Hunt Foods.

Now, however, paintings are his love more than profits. The affable 74-year-old tycoon has made art a new "career." He travels the globe, using his fortune to show and expand his collection.

"I have been very fortunate and successful in my business," he said during a recent Tokyo opening which featured works from his collection of primarily contemporary art. The 74-piece exhibit, which will tour four cities in Japan, is part of a four-year world tour of the Frederick R. Weisman Foundation.

"I believe strongly that there should be what I term corporate responsibility," said Weisman, a soft-spoken man.

His mission, he explained under the lights of a Public Broadcasting System camera crew which was filming a documentary of his life, is to share his private collection with the public. He seeks to bring art to those with little chance of seeing it, while giving less well-known artists exposure.

Weisman, who has been called one of America's foremost private art collectors, hasn't given up managing his companies, which are involved in insurance and computers as well as cars.

However, he is unabashedly obsessed with art.

Weisman is president of Mid-Atlantic Toyota Distributors, Inc., in Glen Burnie, Md., an independently held company that purchases cars from Toyota and distributes them. His job has given him a free hand to pursue his art pleasures.

"Toyota has been just wonderful to me, and has helped me do the kind of things I want to do with my way of life," said the collector, his buttonhole bursting with five tiny red roses.

Weisman plunged into the art world 35 years ago with the purchase of two paintings by abstract expressionist William de Kooning. At first, his collection centered around older European artists, but gradually his tastes shifted. Today most of his several hundred works are by contemporary American artists.

The art Weisman likes is "colorful, textual, and has a lot of power, sensually and visually," said Nora Halpern, curator of the Frederick R. Weisman Foundation. "It's a very personal collection."

"If it really turns me on, I buy it," Weisman said, dismissing the suggestion that he buys as an investment. "I'm not an art dealer. ... I don't look at it as a business at all."

Along with works by such known pop culturists as Josef Albers, David Hockney and Andy Warhol, who painted Weisman's portrait in 1974, Weisman also seeks out the lesser-known.

"There are five paintings in this room," said Weisman as he walked through the Tokyo gallery. "One is world-famous, the others are not. ... I enjoy showing young artists who are not internationally known, right next to famous artists."

On one art hunting expedition to Alaska, Halpern recalled, Weisman's purchase of a young man's delicately carved wood sculptures enabled the artist to quit work in the local canning factory and devote himself to art.

Under the auspices of his foundation, segments of his collection have been seen in cities from Albuquerque, N.M., to Canton, China, as part of a world tour running through 1988.

Half of the collection is now traveling in Europe and half in Asia. The entire assemblage will be reunited next year for a U.S. tour to cities including Baltimore, Cincinnati, Philadelphia, Minneapolis and Birmingham, Ala.

In 1988, the entire collection will move into Greystone, a sprawling, pre-Depression era mansion in Beverly Hills, Calif. Portions will continue to travel.

As part of his philosophy of sharing art, Weisman has also lent works to numerous public buildings, even creating an "art-in-hospital" donor program which brought 9,000 paintings to the walls of the Cedars Sinai Medical Center in Los Angeles. While in Tokyo, Weisman met with U.S. Ambassador Mike Mansfield to formally present his loan of a six-piece lithograph by Frank Stella to the U.S. Embassy.

Despite his interest in art, Weisman said he isn't thinking of permanently trading in the executive suite for the art gallery.

"If anything, art may motivates me to work harder," he said. "The cost of exhibiting a collection around the world is quite expensive."

ROAD TOWN, British Virgin Islands (AP) — Britain has rejected a plan by this Caribbean colony to issue a postage stamp featuring singer Michael Jackson.

It was disapproved because the design did not include the royal insignia of Queen Elizabeth II, according to correspondence presented to the colony's legislative council last week by Chief Minister Cyril Romney.

Unmowed or littered lawns should be reported to the City Engineering and Inspections Department at 752-4137.

White Leads Royals Over Toronto

By The Associated Press
This year, it took the Kansas City Royals only six tries to beat the Toronto Blue Jays four times. "I think it was the kind of series people expect when we play," Kansas City Manager Dick Howser said after the Royals beat the Blue Jays 6-4 Sunday and wound up the weekend series in Toronto with a pair of victories in three games. The two teams that met in last season's American League playoffs have played six times in 1986, with Kansas City winning four of them. In the playoffs, the Royals rallied from a 3-1 deficit to win in seven games. Frank White hit a three-run homer, capping a four-run seventh inning Sunday that enabled Kansas City to break a 2-2 tie. The home run was the first of the season for White, who is batting cleanup for the Royals. "I'm no Eddie Murray or Reggie Jackson, but I do have a lot of pride," White said. "Batting fourth is a challenge, like anything, but there's certainly no added pressure.

"I'm not really a No. 4 hitter, but all I can do is go out there and do as good a job as I can." In other AL games, California rallied past Minnesota 8-5, New York got past Milwaukee 5-4 in 10 innings, Baltimore topped Texas 6-1, Oakland downed Seattle 9-3 and Boston beat Chicago 6-2. Cleveland at Detroit was rained out. With the score tied 2-2, Jamie Quirk led off the Kansas City seventh with an infield single off reliever Dennis Lamp. Quirk moved to second on a sacrifice by Buddy Biancalana and scored on a single by Willie Wilson. Wilson took third on the throw home and George Brett was intentionally walked. White then homered for a 6-2 lead. Charlie Leibrandt, 2-0, got the victory, although he ran into trouble in the bottom of the seventh. Jesse Barfield walked and Willie Upshaw singled, chasing Leibrandt, and pinch-hitter George Bell's single off Dan Quisenberry loaded the bases.

Rick Leach's two-run single pulled Toronto to within 6-4, but Quisenberry ended the inning and went on to get his third save. Lamp, who was 11-0 last season, lost his first decision of the season. The loss dropped Toronto to 5-7, although rookie Manager Jimmy Williams said he isn't worried. "We're OK," Williams said. "We just got to find some holes for those balls we're hitting. We're fortunate so far in that no one has come flying out of the gate."

The Blue Jays had gotten off to a fast start Sunday when Lloyd Moseby led off the bottom of the first inning with his third home run of the season. Angels 8, Twins 5
Brian Downing hit a three-run homer with one out in the ninth inning, capping a four-run rally that lifted California over visiting Minnesota. The Twins had broken a 4-4 tie in the top of the ninth on Tom Brunansky's fourth home run of the season before the Angels came back. Rick Burleson led off the California ninth with a pinch single against reliever Ron Davis, who had not allowed a run in his first five appearances of the year. Ruppert Jones walked and Wally Joyner then singled home the tying run. After Doug DeCinces struck out, Downing hit the 150th home run of his career.

Mets Thump Phillies, 8-0

By The Associated Press
New York Mets Manager Davey Johnson wanted to give George Foster a day off. And now, despite protestations, Johnson may have a decision to make. On Saturday, Foster's outfield replacement, rookie Kevin Mitchell, singled, doubled and drove in a run in New York's 3-2 victory over Philadelphia. And on Sunday, sub Danny Heep hit a three-run homer to start the Mets to an 8-0 victory over the Phillies. "I just wanted to give George a couple of days off to get in a lot of extra batting practice," Johnson said. "He hit for about an hour each day. I wanted to put him at ease, try to get him enough hitting to where he feels comfortable with his stroke. "I don't want him worrying about the fans, but concentrating on the hitters," Johnson said. "His timing has been a little off." Foster, regularly booed by Mets fans, took the two days off in stride, and even Heep didn't really expect to move into a regular platoon with the Mets' $2 million man. Foster hits right-handed, Heep lefty. "They told me last night that I was going to play," Heep said after Sunday's game. "I don't know what Davey's thinking is, but I'm sure he just wants to let George get his stroke back. I'll probably still play against some really tough right-handers." Heep's homer came in the first inning, and Sid Fernandez and Roger McDowell teamed up on a two-hit shutout to give the Mets a sweep of the three-game series with the Phillies, who have lost four straight. In the rest of the National League, Los Angeles defeated Atlanta 7-3, Houston downed Cincinnati 6-4, Montreal blanked St. Louis 2-0 and San Francisco beat San Diego 4-0. Pittsburgh at Chicago was suspended with the score tied 8-8 after 13 innings because of darkness. Fernandez worked eight innings for the Mets, walking three and striking out six. After a leadoff single to Gary Redus, the Mets left-hander didn't allow the second Philadelphia hit until Mike Schmidt singled to lead off the fifth. McDowell pitched a perfect ninth. Darryl Strawberry had a pair of hits and two RBI for New York, while Wally Backman had three hits, including a double and a triple. Dodgers 7, Braves 3

Los Angeles got off to a fast start with first-inning homers by Greg Brock and Mike Scioscia and broke a five-game losing streak by beating Atlanta. Bob Welch, 2-0, allowed nine hits, struck out eight and walked one in beating the Braves for the eighth straight time. The Dodgers scored four times against Rick Mahler, 1-3, in the first inning. Ken Landreaux had an RBI double, Brock a solo homer and Scioscia a two-run shot. Landreaux had four straight hits in the game, including two doubles. Astros 6, Reds 4

Phil Garner and Alan Ashby both homered for Houston in the fourth inning to erase a 3-1 Cincinnati lead. Garner's was a solo shot and Ashby's drove in two runs against Bill Gullickson. Eric Davis hit a two-run homer for Cincinnati in the third inning off Jim Deshaies. Mike Madden worked three innings in relief of Deshaies, and Charlie Kerfeld finished up for his second save. Jose Cruz played his first game since coming off Houston's disabled list. He doubled and scored in the sixth inning, and Kevin Bass also had an RBI double for the Astros. Expos 2, Cardinals 0
Jay Tibbs of Montreal pitched an eight-hit shutout to outduel St. Louis' Rick Horton, and Tim Wallach and Vance Law drove in the Expos' runs. Wallach broke a scoreless tie with a two-out, eighth-inning double, and Law had an RBI single. Jim Wohlford started the Montreal eighth with a one-out double. Pinch-runner Herm Winningham advanced on a ground ball, and Wallach doubled him home. Wallach scored on Law's single.

The Cardinals had runners on second and third with two outs in the fifth and seventh innings, but Vince Coleman struck out in the fifth and Horton fanned in the seventh. Giants 4, Padres 0
Vida Blue won his 200th game, giving up five hits over five innings, and the Giants defeated San Diego despite getting only three hits themselves. Blue left with a slight hamstring pull, and reliever Jeff Robinson held San Diego hitless the rest of the way. Blue is the 85th 200-game winner in the major leagues. All four of San Francisco's runs were unearned and came in the fourth inning against Dave Dravecky, who had won five straight against San Francisco. Dravecky had a throwing error in the inning, and Chili Davis hit a two-run homer for the Giants. Pirates 8, Cubs 8
Keith Moreland hit a two-run homer with two out in the bottom of the ninth to produce the 8-8 tie, and neither team could break the tie through 13 innings. The game will be resumed in the 14th inning Aug. 11. The Pirates loaded the bases with one in the 13th against Rick Sutcliffe, but Bill Almon popped up and R.J. Reynolds struck out. Sutcliffe appeared in relief for the first time since August 1983. The game was stopped at 6:13 p.m. CST after 4 hours, 48 minutes.

Yankees 5, Brewers 4
Dave Winfield dashed home from second base on a pair of Milwaukee throwing errors in the 10th inning, giving New York its triumph over the Brewers. Milwaukee had sent the game into extra innings on Ernest Riles' RBI single with two outs in the ninth inning off Dave Righetti. Winfield led off the 10th with a double off Mark Clear and Mike Easler followed with a ground ball that first baseman Robin Yount fielded wide of the bag. Yount's throw to Clear covering first was wide for an error, and Winfield scored as Clear's throw to the plate was wild. New York starter Joe Niekro took a two-hitter and a 4-1 lead into the eighth, but the host Brewers scored twice against him and reliever Brian Fisher. Orioles 6, Rangers 1
Eddie Murray continued his assault on Texas pitching, while Storm Davis continued his mastery over Rangers' batters. Murray hit a two-run homer and a single. He wound up the three-game series with Texas with seven hits in 12 at-bats, including two homers and seven RBI. Davis pitched a four-hitter and won his first decision of the season. Davis, who struck out five and walked none, improved his career record against Texas to 8-0.

Former Nuggets forward Kiki Vandeweghe drove for a three-point play with 1:18 remaining to lift Portland over Denver. Vandeweghe finished with a game-high 36 points and Clyde Drexler had 22. Alex English, despite his second straight poor shooting game, led Denver with 24 points. Guard T.R. Dunn had 21 and Calvin Natt 17. Natt scored a career-high 40 in the series opener. "I had the big guy (Denver center Blair Rasmussen) on me," said Vandeweghe, explaining his winning shot. "It was one-on-one, just him and me, and I should be able to score on him. I was bumped, and I shot it, and I got hit again, and I went down. I didn't see anything else." Bucks 111, Nets 97
Terry Cummings scored 13 of his 28 points in the third quarter to pace Milwaukee over New Jersey. Sidney Moncrief added nine of his 20 points as the Bucks outscored the Nets 36-25 in the third period to take an 85-71 lead into the final 12 minutes. New Jersey got within seven points midway through the fourth quarter, but Milwaukee responded with six straight points to regain control.

ECU Runners Set School Mark

BOONE — The East Carolina University women's track relay team set a school record in the 4 X 100 meter event with a time of 47.13 seconds at the Mountaineer Classic Invitational track meet at Appalachian State University. The old record was 47.49. The relay team of Linda Willis, Sonya Baldwin, Lisa Poteat and Carolyn Martin ran the 4 X 100 meter relay in 3:53. Linda Gillis finished second in the 100-meter dash with a time of 12.0 seconds. Sonya Baldwin finished third at 12.3. Lisa Poteat took fourth in the 400 meters with a time of 48 seconds. Carolyn Martin finished fourth with in the triple jump with a jump of 36.7 feet. ECU women's track coach Wayne Miller said "By far, this is the best performance by the women's track team this year."

NORTH WILKESBORO, N.C. (AP) — Dale Earnhardt did the driving, but he says without his pit crew someone else might have driven into the victory lane after the First Union 400 Grand National stock car race. Earnhardt roared out of a pit stop with 45 laps remaining and held off a challenge by Ricky Rudd to win the First Union 400 Sunday at North Wilkesboro Speedway. "I'll tell you what — that pit crew did a helluva job all day long," he said. "Those guys got me out of the pits ahead of everyone and put me in the lead. All I did was run the car smooth and stay in front."

Earnhardt, 33, of Kannapolis, credited his victory in the 250-mile race to the weather and a quick pit stop after Dave Marcis crashed into the wall on lap 353. "Thank the good Lord the rain held off and we got this one in," he said. "We got a good set of tires on in the last pit stop. They really put me in the lead by pitting. ... If I had to race

Ricky from behind, I don't know if I could do it." Rudd was second in a Ford, followed by polesitter Geoff Bodine and Darrell Waltrip, both in Chevrolets and Joe Ruttman in a Buick. "I did my best to try to run him down hard ... but he just got in there deep," Rudd said of Earnhardt, who took home $38,550 for the victory. Rounding out the finishers in the first lap were Bobby Allison, Kyle Petty, Harry Gant and Bill Elliott. Down one lap and finishing 10th was Rusty Wallace. Bodine, who had qualified for the pole with a two-day average speed of 112.419, said he did everything he could to catch up after he lost the lead for the second and last time on lap 126. "We ran away at the start, but we got a mismatched set of tires and we fell way back," he said. "We got them off, then we ran well, but we were always behind. We couldn't get caught up till the end." Richard Petty, who had qualified second with an average speed of 112.273, had his engine blow up and had to drop out on lap 131. "We were running real good at the start," he said. "I was able to go to the front and was looking forward to having a fun afternoon." The yellow flag came out eight times for a total of 69 laps, including twice for rain for 42 laps. Earnhardt's crew changed four tires on the last pit stop in 17 seconds, getting him out ahead of Rudd at 27 seconds. He said it "would have been a heck of a race" if he hadn't beat Rudd out of the pits. "The crew getting me out of the pits first was the key," Earnhardt said. "That won the race. If I'd have had to race Ricky from behind, I don't know if I could have beat him. "If he had been in front, I don't think I could have beat him because the cars were so equal," he said. "If you try to rush the car in front of you, you spin your tires and get your tires hot. The guy in front who keeps his tires straight is going to beat you." This victory and last week's Darlington wins were no flukes, said Earnhardt. "Our cars have been competitive — we've been there all along," he said. And he said he hadn't changed his driving style since he was fined $5,000 for reckless driving Feb. 23 at the Miller 400 in Richmond. He finished third in that race and the fine was later reduced to $3,000. "I'm still the hard-racing driver I was then," he said. "I'm still going to try to make the car go and stick the car in places where I think it will go."

ANSWERS TO WEEKLY BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠J10 ♥KQ762 ♦J952 ♣K7
Partner opens the bidding with two no trump. What do you respond?

A.—Whether you use a 23-24 or 21-22 point range, you are in slam territory; indeed, if partner has a heart fit slam is likely. You do not need to do anything drastic to explore the possibilities. Start with three hearts. If partner denies a fit by rebidding three no trump, pass if you use the weaker range, but invite slam with four no trump if you employ the stronger.

Q.2—Neither vulnerable, as South with 80 on score you hold:

♠AQJ10754 ♥6 ♦AQ92 ♣7
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—With 80 on score, you run the risk of partner passing any simple rebid you make. Therefore, a jump of some sort is clearly indicated. With such a powerful suit, we recommend you leap to three spades to show partner you don't need support from him to contemplate a slam.

Q.3—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠93 ♥4 ♦AJ102 ♣AJ9873
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass
3 ♠ Pass 3 ♥ Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—Your hand has gotten worse as the auction has progressed. You have limited support for partner's first suit and none for his second, and half your strength is in the unbid suit. Bid three no trump to advise partner of that fact.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠83 ♥AK1065 ♦10872 ♣94
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♥ Pass
2 NT Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—You certainly want to be in game, but you can't be sure which. All you need to do for the moment is bid three diamonds. That is not a signoff: no one can know that a hand will make exactly nine tricks at diamonds but not eight or nine at no trump. If you have a weak hand and want to get out, you must pass two no trump.

Q.5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠QJ92 ♥J109 ♦63 ♣Q752
The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♥ Dble
3 ♥ Pass Pass 3 ♣ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Don't count points. Partner has shown a strong hand, good enough to contract for nine tricks virtually on his own. You have most useful cards. Not only should you raise to four spades, but should partner make a slam try you should be happy to cooperate.

Q.6—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠KQ65 ♥KJ2 ♦985 ♣KQ8
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
Pass Pass 1 ♠ Pass
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass
3 ♦ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Partner has made a game try in diamonds, and while your trump support could hardly be better, you have the worst holding in the key suit. Since partner is a passed hand and you opened an aceless 14, prudence dictates a quiet return to three spades.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, APRIL 22, 1986

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Many confusing conditions can happen early in your dealings with other people, so watch out and be sure you have all of your information straight. Put more order in your life.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Study better methods for handling your routine work and employ them for excellent results. Be more cooperative.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Try to perfect some talent you possess and then it will work just fine and become profitable to you.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) The situation at home could be perplexing, so listen to what kin are saying and be cooperative with the aid of an associate.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) You may have a slow start in the morning, but persevere. Your activities can work out well later in the day.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) You need more monetary security, so listen to what a clever associate has to suggest to you and follow the advice.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Know what your partners want of you. Later, be more home-oriented and entertain guests this evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Some worry may have you confused in the morning. Forget it for a while and go out shopping or visiting.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) If you change your attitude toward a good friend, you could regret it later. Get busy at building up your income.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Taking any risks with those who have any power over your affairs would be unwise. Maintain poise.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) It is not the right time to make that change you have in mind, but fine for having a good time with friends.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Responsibilities of a practical nature have something puzzling about them, so set them aside for a while.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Discuss matters with associates until you have achieved a harmonious agreement without ill will.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be very precise and discriminating and would do well in professions that will require just such talents and qualities, but should early be taught to be more understanding of others and not be so critical.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Vietnam Dove

On this day in 1954, U.S. planes began flying French soldiers to Vietnam to relieve the besieged bastion of Dienbienphu. Weeks earlier, Secretary of State John Foster Dulles had appealed to congressional leaders to back the use of U.S. troops to help the French. One Senator questioned Dulles sharply about the lack of allied support for the venture. With these questions, Senator Lyndon Johnson helped undermine an early effort to involve the nation in the Vietnam conflict.

Steam Rises From Volcano

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Mount St. Helens spouted a small plume of steam in its fifth consecutive day of activity, officials said.

Federal Aviation Administration duty officer Mike O'Connor said steam rose from the 8,364-foot crater rim at about 6 a.m. Sunday, but the plume contained no ash.

Flights near the volcano were temporarily prohibited below 17,000 feet, O'Connor said. No more activity was sighted the rest of Sunday, the FAA said.

A much bigger plume of ash, gas and steam rose at least 16,000 feet above sea level at about 7:45 p.m. Saturday, said National Weather Service forecaster Don Northrop. That plume disappeared quickly from radar, which means it probably contained little ash, he said.

Saturday's emission was similar to those of Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, Northrop said.

U.S. Geological Survey spokesman Steve Brantley has said the "degassing events" did not signal an eruption and could continue for several weeks. The volcano had been quiet for about 10 months.

Snails Aid Research Of Illness

By BOB MIMS

Associated Press Writer

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A species of snail whose sting has killed at least 20 bathers in the South Pacific is providing researchers here with biological clues that could aid in fighting diseases of the nervous system.

The sting of the conus geographus, a 4- to 6-inch long mollusk, has been blamed for the deaths of a score of unsuspecting divers and waders who picked up its elegant, cone-shaped shells.

But molecular biologist Baldomero Olivera, a Filipino who began his research at the University of the Philippines in 1971 and was lured to Utah by better equipment in 1973, says the venom may help scientists find clues to the uncharted mysteries of the nervous system.

"The toxins (the snails produce) only bind to one thing and bind very tightly," he said. "You know from the effect on the whole animal ... that whatever it's binding to must be very important."

Olivera, 44, who has spent 15 years trying to isolate the roughly 500 components in the venom, said continuing study "essentially allows us to dissect key elements in the nervous system."

Such research offers "great potential for exploring new areas in molecular neurobiology," including increased understanding of such ailments as muscular dystrophy and myasthenia gravis, he said.

Muscular dystrophy incorporates several ailments in which muscles degenerate, while myasthenia gravis is a disease commonly characterized by the progressive weakening and eventual paralysis of facial, neck, tongue and throat muscles.

"I really hope what's in these venoms will help us understand components in the nervous system, and that could go a long way toward giving us the tools (to research nervous system diseases)," Olivera said last week.

The snail was first mentioned by Dutch explorer and naturalist G.E. Rumphius in 1705.

"The shells of these snails are very beautiful and the Dutch were kind of crazy about them," said Olivera.

"Conus shells were very highly priced. They were often auctioned off with valuable paintings, and one actually outbid a painting by Vermeer."

The geographus, along with its smaller cousin the conus magus — a 1½- to 2-inch snail not blamed for any human deaths — are among nature's most sophisticated underwater predators, said Olivera.

"They actually bait the fish with a sort of long proboscis which is brightly colored," he said. "When the fish tries to bite what it thinks is a worm, the snail injects it in the mouth with a disposable tooth containing the venom."

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today in a sluggish response to Friday's discount rate cut by the Federal Reserve.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 7.94 to 1,848.34 in the first hour of trading.

But losers outnumbered gainers by about 8 to 7 in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues. After the close on Friday, the Federal Reserve lowered its discount rate from 7 percent to 6 1/2 percent, effective today.

This morning, several banks responded by lowering their prime lending rates from 9 percent to 8 1/2 percent.

Analysts said that came as welcome news on Wall Street. But they also noted that it had been widely anticipated, and apparently was largely taken into account in the Dow Jones industrial average's rise of more than 101 points over the past two weeks.

In addition, some observers maintain that the discount rate must be reduced at least another half a percentage point to stimulate any substantial pickup in economic growth.

Sears Roebuck slipped 1/2 to 47 1/2. The company reported lower earnings for the first quarter.

Walt Disney rose 1 1/8 to 47 7/8. Disney's amusement parks are expected to benefit this summer from a shift to vacations in this country rather than foreign travel.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks gained .19 to 140.06. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .32 at 274.09.

On Friday the Dow Jones industrial average dropped 14.63 to 1,840.40, cutting its gain for the week to 50.22 points.

Advancing issues outpaced declines by about 10 to 9 on the NYSE. Big Board volume totaled 153.64 million shares, against 161.40 million in the previous session.

Tax Plan Mentioned

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration said today it could support raising consumer excise taxes if necessary to pay for the kind of income-tax overhaul the president favors.

"The administration will entertain the possibility of selective increases in excise taxes in order to create a revenue-neutral tax-reform package," meaning one that brings in the same money as present law, said Roger Mentz, assistant secretary of the treasury for tax policy.

He told the Senate Finance Committee, however, that he was not necessarily endorsing the package of excise-tax increases proposed by its chairman, Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore.

"We would have a problem supporting a 54-percent increase in all excise taxes," Mentz said. That could result from Packwood's plan to deny businesses the deduction now allowed for excise taxes they collect and turn over to the government.

Few members of the Finance Committee have rushed to Packwood's side in defense of his plan to raise excise taxes, including those on gasoline, alcoholic beverages and cigarettes, by about $75 billion over five years. The testimony at today's hearing was lopsidedly against the increase, with most of the comments coming from affected industries.

Representatives of anti-smoking and health groups, however, supported higher taxes on tobacco and alcohol as ways to reduce health problems.

The taxes were opposed by the AFL-CIO, the Hispanic Chamber of Commerce, the Black Caucus of State Legislators, and representatives of the airlines, the trucking industry, manufacturers, the coal and oil industries. Spokesman for wine, beer and liquor; car dealers; retailers, and the makers of Nike footwear also objected.

Packwood's proposal would raise the price of an imported car by $100 and of an imported light truck by $500, said the American International Automobile Dealers Association.

which Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze were to discuss preparations for the Washington summit.

If the United States "goes on acting as it is today, trying to poison the atmosphere, this will throw a shadow over any future meeting," Gorbachev said Sunday. "If it (the summit) is to happen, a better atmosphere is necessary."

"The meeting can take place if the United States realizes that it is necessary to take this path," Gorbachev said in Russian. His comments in response to a reporter's question were translated by reporters fluent in the language.

White House Chief of Staff Donald T. Reagan said Sunday the United States expected Gorbachev to "live up to his word" and meet with Reagan this year. Regan, interviewed on the NBC television program "John McLaughlin: One on One," said he believed the meeting had been "postponed more than canceled."

On Friday, Gorbachev told the East German Communist Party Congress that U.S. refusal to join a unilateral Soviet moratorium on nuclear tests, the raid on Libya, and "increased threats" against Nicaragua demonstrated that the United States was following a "militarist and aggressive" policy that could damage U.S.-Soviet relations.

Student Commits Suicide

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A University of Texas student took his own life with a shotgun blast to the head seconds after police stopped his automobile for speeding, police said.

Homicide Sgt. Howard Hall said Sunday that Clifford Howard McMichael, 20, died Sunday of a 12-gauge shotgun blast to the head.

He said the death was apparently well-planned and was not prompted by the traffic stop late Saturday. Officers found a note, described as a lengthy "last will and testament," taped to the shotgun.

"Who knows what was going through his mind," said Hall. "Was he going to go someplace else to do this, or did he plan it this way? I suppose we'll never know. It will remain a mystery."

Hall said an officer stopped the car driven by McMichael after observing it going about 70 mph in a 55 mph zone. The officer had stopped the car, called in the location and license number to a police dispatcher when he heard the shot.

"It took a moment for the officer to realize what had happened," Hall said. "He notified his supervisor."

McMichael was pronounced dead at the scene, Hall said. McMichael's note specified who should get personal possessions such as his car and computer equipment, Hall said. There also were "personal notes to persons he was acquainted with," Hall said.

Accidents

Two weekend traffic accidents totaled about $2,450, according to Greenville police.

Cars driven by Pamela Chisum of Kinston and Faith Michelle Hursey of 208 Crestline Blvd. collided on South Memorial Drive at about 9:26 a.m. Saturday. Officers set damages at $900 to the Chisum car, and $800 to the Hursey car. No charges were filed.

William Lawrence Rhodes of 1118 S. Overlook Drive was charged with a safe movement violation after his and another car driven by Reginald Hamilton Braxton Jr. of 411 Wedgewood Arms collided on Greenville Boulevard at 7:41 p.m. Friday. Officers set damages to the Rhodes car at about $300, and $450 to the Braxton-car.

Last minute plans aren't always more difficult. Sometimes, they're impossible.

Isn't it odd that most people never make prearrangement plans? After all most people wouldn't think of waiting until the worst possible time to make plans for anything else. But with funeral and burial prearrangement, all too often, people shirk their responsibility and force their family to make arrangements under great stress. When you think about it, you realize that can be quite unfair.

But there is a simple answer. In the time it takes to go to lunch, you can take care of all your prearrangement needs in a private consultation with us at S.G. Wilkerson and Sons. As funeral directors and cemeterians with over 50 years of experience, we can help you make things easier. Call us to arrange a consultation.

Spinks Defeats Holmes Again

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Michael Spinks figured Larry Holmes would come out desperate for an early knockout, so he was ready. To run, that is.

Spinks threw only seven punches in the first round and ran from Holmes the first four rounds before coming on strong Saturday night to take a split-decision win and keep his portion of the heavyweight crown.

It was a fight Spinks won as much with his head as with his fists.

"I had to stay cool and calm, then break his morale," said Spinks. "Larry proved to be one hell of a champion. He was a die-hard out there tonight."

The fight was the second loss to Spinks in a row for Holmes, who had won 48 straight fights while dominating the heavyweight ranks for 7 1/2 years. It also marked the end of an era, as a tearful Holmes said he would fight no more.

"It's over, this is it," the former champion said. "I don't need it, I don't need the aggravation."

The sold-out crowd of nearly 9,000 at the Las Vegas Hilton watched as Holmes built up a big early lead, but seemingly wore down as Spinks mounted his own attack from the fifth round on.

Holmes still had enough left to stagger Spinks in the 14th round with a right hand that caused the champion's knees to buckle. But it was a mark of his loss of skills that Holmes was unable to finish Spinks off.

"I had him hurt bad in the 14th round," said Holmes, who watched with a seemingly puzzled look on his face as Spinks strolled out of danger.

"I didn't know what happened," admitted Spinks. "I felt stationary and in limbo. I just knew I had been in one place too long and it was time to get out."

It was that vaunted right hand that Spinks worked so hard to stay away from in the early rounds, and it almost cost him the fight. Spinks lost the first four rounds on all ringside scorecards to dig a hole he almost couldn't crawl out from.

Statistics compiled by Compobox Inc. illustrated the early Holmes domination. The former champion threw 72 punches in the first round to only seven for Spinks, and through four rounds had thrown more than three times the number of punches (222-72) as had the champion.

But beginning with round five, it was a different story. The gangly Spinks started getting his unorthodox jab in and began connecting with his left hook. Holmes, who had seemed to be able to do what he wanted early, suddenly had trouble pulling the trigger.

"He was never really there to put the punches together," said Holmes, unwilling to admit that at the age of 36 he might have lost some of his reflexes. "With his style and determination, it was very difficult to hit him solid."

Spinks dominated the middle rounds, changing the flow of the fight by backing Holmes up with left hooks that landed often. By the end of the 11th round, Spinks had pulled ahead on one scorecard and even on another. The fight was essentially a draw with four rounds to go.

"I looked up and saw the ring card for the 12th round and I said to myself, 'If you're going to win it, you've got to win it now,'" said Spinks.

That meant going in and trading punches with Holmes, still dangerous and throwing right hands despite a right thumb he said he fractured in the third round. Spinks said he knew the risks of the strategy, but felt he had given away so many early rounds he had to finish with a flourish.

"I knew eventually he would catch me with a good shot," said the champion. "I was just hoping it would be a grazing shot. But he caught me with a good one."

Spinks came out throwing punches in the 15th round and seemed in control of the possibly deciding round until a Holmes right with only a minute left stunned him again. But it was too late as Spinks not only lasted the round, but won it on two of the three scorecards. The fighters embraced with Spinks telling Holmes, "In my mind, you'll always be a champion."

One judge favored Holmes by three points, but the two other judges liked Spinks, by two and three points, respectively. It was a decision Holmes fought tough to swallow, just like the first fight between the two.

"I think I won the fight more convincingly this time," Holmes told reporters gathered in his suite several hours after the fight. "How many times do I continue to have to prove myself?"

Holmes said he cried after the fight, the first time he had ever done so after a bout.

"It hurts. It hurts because I worked so hard," he said. "I sacrificed so much."

While Holmes can live comfortably in Easton, Pa., off the millions he won during his career, Spinks faces a lucrative future as a suddenly legitimate heavyweight. He will fight again in September as part of a series to unify the heavyweight title, possibly against Gerry Cooney.

"I can't pick them," Spinks said of a possible opponent. "I'm not afraid of fighting anybody, I'm afraid of picking them."

Air Force Plans Extensive Probe Of Titan Blast

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — The Air Force says it will conduct a wide-ranging investigation into last week's Titan rocket explosion, focusing on "O" rings in the solid fuel boosters and even sabotage.

"We will be looking at everything... boosters, rings, propellants and electronics," said Maj. Gen. Jack L. Watkins, commander of the 1st Strategic Aerospace Division at Vandenberg.

As for the possibility of sabotage, Watkins said Saturday, "It's one of those things we must always take into consideration." But he added that "things like terrorist activities and sabotage would probably not be discussed in public."

He said one concern is the ring connectors on the solid rocket booster.

The public has become more aware of the critical role of "O" rings, which seal the segments of the solid rockets, since the destruction of the space shuttle Challenger in January. Rings in one of its solid boosters are believed to have failed, allowing searing rocket gases to burn through the side.

The $65 million Titan 34D that blew up five seconds into launch Friday carried a classified payload. The explosion created a huge cloud of toxic smoke and fuel, and 74 people near the launch site were examined and treated for skin and eye irritations.

It was the second failed Titan 34D launch in a row. A rocket that non-government experts said was carrying a spy satellite exploded just after liftoff Aug. 28. Air Force officials have never issued a report saying what happened in the previous explosion.

The Titan failures, coupled with the shuttle disaster, interrupt the launch programs of the United States' two primary satellite launch vehicles.

"We had been watching this one anxiously," Watkins said Saturday. "Coming hard on the heels of the Challenger loss, there was more apprehension... It's a setback."

The solid rockets used for Titan launches are manufactured by United Technologies, Chemical Systems Division of Sunnyvale. The boosters used by the space shuttle are made by Morton Thiokol Inc. of Brigham City, Utah.

Calls to United Technologies went unanswered Sunday. On Friday, spokesman Jim Mackin said there would be no comment and referred inquiries to the Air Force.

Col. Nathaniel Lindsey, commander of the Eastern Space and Missile Center at Patrick Air Force Base in Cocoa Beach, Fla., will lead the board investigating the Titan blast. Watkins said it may be several months before any cause is determined.

Tornadoes Rip Through Texas Town, Killing One

SWEETWATER, Texas (AP) — National Guard troops patrolled today against looters after tornadoes carved a two-mile-long, half-mile-wide swath through this west Texas town, killing one person, injuring about 100 others and leaving 1,500 people homeless.

Despite the destruction, estimated at up to $20 million, officials said the human toll, could have been much worse.

"After I saw the extent of the damage, I thought we'd have many more injuries and certainly more deaths," City Manager David Maddox said. "It was luck. It was a miracle."

As National Guardsmen patrolled the streets early today to watch for looting, volunteers and Salvation Army workers served more than 2,000 meals to people left homeless by the disaster, said Dewey Alderson, public relations director for the Salvation Army's Texas division.

"Sweetwater is still in a mess. People are cleaning up but it will be a long time," he said. "People are sifting through the debris by hand. That's all that is left from some of these trailer homes."

The National Weather Service said two tornadoes smashed into the southern part of the city of 12,000 early Saturday after merging in the air.

Mayor Rick Rhodes estimated property damage at between $15 million and $20 million and said about 100 people were injured, and some 1,500 left homeless.

Police Chief Jim Kelley said cleanup efforts were progressing. "We're getting a lot of volunteer types," he said. "They're swooping in there and they're helping."

Gov. Mark White visited the city Sunday and talked with residents of the Sun Village Housing Project, a federally subsidized development for the elderly that was hit hard. The storm's only fatality was an 87-year-old man who lived there.

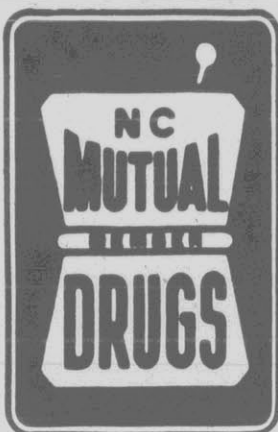

One resident, Gladys Lane, stood looking through what used to be the side wall of her house as White spoke.

"It was just like I was in a vacuum," said Ms. Lane. "I was down on my knees begging the Lord to take care of me. I didn't care about the house."

"The only thing I can say is tough times never last, but tough people do, and we've got a lot of tough people around here," said White.

Nineteen people remained hospitalized Sunday, including a woman who was transferred to a Dallas hospital in critical condition, officials said. Seventy people were treated and released Saturday.

Meanwhile, a tornado struck near Jasper, Tenn., Sunday evening, damaging seven homes and injuring up to six people, officials said today.
