Sanford, Broyhill Win Senate Bids

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Republican Jim Broyhill and Democrat Terry Sanford left the opposition far behind to win their parties' nominations for U.S. Senate and set the stage for a clash between the two experienced politicians in November's general election.

"This is the beginning of the campaign to put a different voice in Washington," Sanford, a former governor who hasn't held elective office in 21 years, told excited supporters after he swept past nine opponents in Tuesday's primary to capture the Democratic nomination without a runoff.

Broyhill, meanwhile, told his cheering throng of supporters he had won "a landslide victory" over David Funderburk, former U.S. ambassador to Romania.

Broyhill said the general election campaign to succeed Republican Sen. John East, who is not seeking re-election because of illness, would be "a referendum on Ronald Reagan" and the president's program.

With 2,375 or 99 percent of the state's 2,383 precincts counted in unofficial returns, Sanford had 405,513 votes or 60 percent — easily surpassing the 50 percent plus one vote needed to avoid a second primary.

Former Insurance Commissioner John Ingram finished a distant second, with 110,568 votes or 16 percent. T.L. "Fountain" Odom, a Mecklenburg County commissioner, received 50,750 votes or 8 percent.

Charlotte businessman William Belk got 34,088 votes or 5 percent, while black real estate agent Ted Kinney of Fayetteville had 27,739 votes or 4 percent. Five other candidates split the remaining 7 percent.

Broyhill, meanwhile, had 137,978 votes or 67 percent to Funderburk's 62,946 votes or 30 percent. White supremacist F. Glenn Miller, who ran as a Republican but was denied party support because of his racist views, had 6,526 votes or 3 percent.

Republican leaders immediately called for unity in a party that was sharply divided over Funderburk's hard-hitting criticisms of Broyhill's record.

East, an arch-conservative protege of Sen. Jesse Helms, issued a statement congratulating Broyhill and pledging his "unqualified support." East had endorsed Funderburk.

Helms has said he will support the GOP nominee.

Gov. Jim Martin, a longtime friend of Broyhill's who joined Helms in professing neutrality during the primary campaign, said it was "time to pull all of our folks together and get out...in the fall."

The results indicated that Funderburk and the National Congressional Club, Helms' political organization which ran Funderburk's campaign, failed to convince Republican voters that Broyhill was too ideologically impure to succeed East.

Funderburk, 42, conceded late Tuesday night. "I want to congratulate Jim Broyhill," he told subdued followers. "We had a very hard-fought campaign. I will keep my commitment to support the (GOP) ticket in the fall."

Funderburk said he did not think his decision to downplay his assets and focus instead on Broyhill's perceived shortcomings led to his defeat.

But Merle Black, a University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill political science professor, said Funderburk's loss was a serious setback for the Congressional Club and its

Dews, Johnson Top Votes For County Commissioner

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

The one possible unexpected development in the results of Tuesday's election for Pitt County officials was the 1st District race for county commissioner. Incumbent Burney Tucker trailed newcomer Kenneth Dews by a margin of 633 votes — the unofficial tally was Dews 4,784 and Tucker 4,151.

Tucker could not be contacted this morning to determine if he would request a runoff vote.

A candidate requesting a runoff has until noon on May 13 to make the request, which can be in writing or by telephone contact with the board of elections.

In another bid for the county board's 4th District seat, vacated by Kelly Barnhill's decision not to see re-election, newcomer Tom Johnson, led the slate of four candidates with 4,925 votes.

The second highest vote-getter, Jim Young, who received 3,367 votes, has indicated the possibility of seeking a runoff. "I'm considering it," Young said. "I'll be talking to my staff, get their feelings, will analyze the situation. Once we look at all the factors, I'll make a decision. Right now my inclination is to say I will probably ask for a runoff."

In the at-large election for three seats on the consolidated school board, Walter Gaskins, an incumbent running unopposed for the 7th District seat, received 11,017 votes. Winners in the other seats are incumbent J. Beverly Congleton, 3rd District, with 7,115 votes, and incumbent Jim Black, 6th District, 4,251.

The school board election is an official non-partisan ballot in which runoffs are not authorized. Winners in this election are those who receive a simple plurality.

Incumbent Sheriff Ralph Tyson led the field of three with 6,887 votes, with Jackie L. Moye receiving 4,914 votes and Aaron Hines Jr. 1,296 votes. Since Tyson polled more than 50 percent of the votes, Moye will not be able to seek a runoff.

Another incumbent, Sandra Gaskins, registered an overwhelming victory over opponent Edward (Ed) Rose — with 10,336 votes for Gaskins and 1,553 for Rose.

Three Pitt Legislators Win Democratic Nominations

By DON REUTER
and HAROLD JOYNER
Reflector Staff Writers

Pitt County state Reps. Walter B. Jones Jr. and Ed Warren successfully fought off a primary challenge in the 9th District, while former Wilson County Rep. Jeanne Fenner lost to incumbent Sen. R.L. Martin in the 6th District Democratic primary Tuesday.

Martin beat Ms. Fenner, who sat out a term after losing to Republican Larry Etheridge in 1984, with 48 percent of the vote to 45 percent for her. Mort Hurst of Robersonville had 7 percent. There is no GOP opposition in the 6th District.

Meanwhile, freshman Democratic Rep. L.M. "Mutt" Brinkley of Hertford County fell victim to Gene Rogers of Williamston, 52 percent to 48 percent, in the 6th District. Rogers will face Valerie Myers of Williamston, who had no GOP opponent, in November.

Jones, who won in both counties, received 13,642 votes or 55 percent of the vote in the 9th District which includes Greene and Pitt counties, while Warren had 32.5 percent. Lonnie W. Carraway of Greenville had 12.5 percent.

In Pitt County, Jones carried 22 of 23 districts and received 56.2 percent of the vote. Warren, who took the Greenville 10 Precinct by 25 votes over Jones, had 35.2 percent of the vote.

Jones said he was pleased with the outcome and planned to continue on his present course.

"I'm extremely happy with the vote, and I just consider it to be such an honor to represent the citizens of Pitt County," he said. "We'll work just as hard to certify the confidence of citizens of Pitt and Green counties."

Now that the campaigning is behind him, Jones said he will point his attentions to his work in the Legislature.

"We went back to work today, and I guess since I was appointed three years ago, we never really ever stopped," Jones said. "I'm glad I have the opportunity to help the people of the 9th District. That's what it's all about."

Warren said he was also pleased with the results of the election.

"I was pleased to be one of the winners and very pleased with the support of this district," he said. "I had a lot of good friends that helped and I appreciate that."

Warren said he would return to a short session of the General Assembly, and after that begin campaigning for fall election.

In the 6th District house seat primary, Fenner defeated Martin in Edgecombe and Wilson counties, but the incumbent won handily, 2,493-390, in Pitt County. Hurst lead the way in Martin County.

In Pitt County, Martin, who took 78.7 percent of the vote, won in all six precincts, including Arthur, Belvoir, Bethel, Falkland, Farmville and Fountain.

Brinkley captured Bertie and Hertford counties, but Rogers, who took Pitt County, swept Martin County by a 2,044-376 margin.

In Pitt County, Rogers won in the Bethel and Carolina precincts and received 61.2 percent of the vote.

Sanford Tops Pitt Voting

By DON REUTER
Reflector Staff Writer

Former Gov. Terry Sanford captured 64 percent of the votes cast in Pitt County en route to capturing the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate seat being vacated by Sen. John East of Greenville, according to unofficial returns from Tuesday's primaries.

Meanwhile, Republican Jim Broyhill held off David Funderburk, former U.S. ambassador to Romania, to win the Republican nomination for the seat. Broyhill received 53.5 percent of the Pitt County vote, while Funderburk captured 41.1 percent in the county.

With 2,375 or 99 percent of the state's 2,383 precincts counted in unofficial returns, Sanford had 405,513 votes or 60 percent — easily surpassing the 50 percent plus one vote needed to avoid a second primary.

Former Insurance Commissioner John Ingram finished a distant second, with 110,568 votes or 16 percent. T.L. "Fountain" Odom, a Mecklenburg County commissioner, received 50,750 votes or 8 percent.

Carter Says New School Plan Should Be Submitted

By MARY C. SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer

While local school officials say they will proceed with merger of Pitt and Greenville schools by July 1 despite U.S. Justice Department objections to an at-large method of electing school board members, at least one black leader says officials should submit another election plan for the consolidated Pitt County Board of Education.

"Certainly the at-large method of election does not afford opportunities for minorities to be adequately represented (on the school board)," according to Greenville City Councilman Ed Carter, who often serves as a spokesman for local blacks.

"The board should formulate a new method of electing members rather than litigate with the Justice Department or just going ahead and merging."

Other community minority leaders, including members of the Concerned Citizens for Justice, a minority rights group that filed a suit against the consolidated board in December 1985, could not be reached for comment this morning.

The Justice Department notified school board attorneys by phone Monday that it refused to approve a plan that would consolidate Pitt and Greenville schools July 1, 1986. The denial was based on objections to the at-large system of electing members to the Pitt and consolidated Pitt County boards of education, which the Justice Department said discriminates against blacks.

Carter said the plan's rejection "is a case for local people getting together to solve problems rather than letting the Justice Department do it."

"If the school board elects to go ahead and merge, there will be litigation and that will hurt all parties concerned," Carter said. School officials and minorities should "sit down together to work it out and try to be fair about it," he said.

The merger plan calls for the 15-person consolidated board to return to 12 members elected by a combination at-large and single-member district system in 1992. Election districts would be redrawn at that time based on the 1990 U.S. census.

Carter said the black community not only objected to current minority representation on the school board, it also objected to the small number of blacks being hired by the schools.

Eddie West, who serves as superintendent for Pitt and Greenville schools, said Tuesday the consolidated board will proceed with merger because the Justice Department did not notify them of objections within the 60-day review

Pat's Pointers

By Pat Trexler

If you are strictly a "knit a row, purl a row" knitter but think you might like to take the plunge into pattern stitchery, here's your chance to find out — a sweater pattern that lets you try cabling without committing an entire project to it.

This simple scoop-neck shell is knit in stockinette with garter stitch neck and sleeve borders. The cables are knitted separately then whipped on.

Knit with a cottonlike acrylic yarn, this sweater becomes a cool summer top; use a knitting worsted-weight yarn and it works as a warm pullover vest for chilly winter days.

Directions are given to fit these actual body chest measurements: 34 inches (small); 36 inches (medium); 38 inches (large); 40 inches (extra-large). The finished bust measurements for this loose-fitting garment are 4 inches larger than the body bust measurements for each size.

To obtain directions for making the Learn-a-Cable Sweater, send your request for Leaflet No. Z-050486 with $1 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler Crafts, (The Daily Reflector), P.O. Box 419148, Kansas City, Mo. 64141.

Or you may order Kit No. K-050486 by sending a check or money order for $17.95 for small or medium, or $19.95 for large or extra-large to Pat Trexler Crafts at the same address. The kit price includes shipping charges, instructions and acrylic yarn in one of the following colors: jade, powder pink, vanilla and cloud blue. Please specify your choice of size and color.

and I was homebound with two small children suffering chicken pox and wanted to get started without delay. I couldn't imagine why a regular knitting needle would not do.

Faithfully following the instructions row by row, I did fine until I was instructed to "slip 2 stitches to the double-pointed needle and hold in back of work; knit 2 and then knit 2 from the double-pointed needle." At this point it took a lot of twisting and turning to knit the stitches from the extra regular knitting needle I was using.

SUMMER TOP...in cottonlike acrylic is an introduction to cable knitting.

The resulting cables did not look like those pictured in the instructions, but they were cables and I wasn't picky at this point. I struggled on for several rows until a knitting neighbor dropped by. She roared with laughter at my contortions, but she took pity on me and brought me a cable hook from her own knitting bag.

What a revelation! You see, in cabling, you are supposed to slip stitches onto one end of the implement you are using and then knit them off the opposite end — a little detail that was not mentioned either in my "learn-how" book or my sweater pattern. And, of course, this is impossible to do with a regular straight knitting needle.

Most of you would probably not be as impetuous as I was, but perhaps this column will save some of you from a bad first experience with working cables. At the very least, it might give you a chuckle and let you know that you are not the only one who sometimes misunderstands directions.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

Tales Of Hard Times Are Hard For Teen To Take

DEAR ABBY: I am a 13-year-old girl. I don't want to be disrespectful to parents, but I am tired of hearing how easy the kids of today have it.

Every summer my father tells me how lucky I am to have air conditioning. He says when he was my age, he didn't even have a fan in the house. Every winter he reminds me that he walked 10 miles to school in below-zero weather in three feet of snow.

Abby, why can't parents accept the fact that life has become easier with every generation because of the progress we've made? New things are being invented all the time to improve the quality of life, so why should parents try to make us feel guilty because we have it better than they did?

Sometimes I think they don't want us to have it so good. If each generation didn't improve on the one before, we'd still be living in caves, running around in loincloths, and our vocabularies would consist of two words, "Ooga, ooga."

TIRED TEEN

DEAR TIRED: It may comfort you to know that every generation of teens has had to listen to their parents tell them how rough they had it.

And with the passing of time, the walk to school grew longer, the winters got colder and the snow got deeper.

now that I have the evidence, but if you print this, perhaps the guilty party will return it to the container from which it was stolen. If mine is not returned, it may bring back other pieces of jewelry to their rightful owners.

If you print this and my jewelry is returned, you'll be the first to know. And that's a promise.

DEAR NO: I wish you luck. Now, let's see what happens.

DEAR ABBY: I've heard of this happening in other families, but I never thought it would happen to me. Maybe if you print this advice, it will help others: Don't tell anyone where you keep your jewelry — not even family members.

A piece of jewelry was stolen from me. The missing piece was of both sentimental and monetary value. Several suspicious acts led me to suspect a family member, so I hired a private investigator. Two sets of fingerprints were found on the container where my jewelry was kept — mine and someone else's. It was relatively easy to get the fingerprints of the suspect. My suspicions were confirmed when they matched the prints on the container.

The record of the theft — and it was a theft — is complete with all the information: name, dates, fingerprints, etc. It is in safekeeping and only a designated person will have access to it.

I would never break up a family over a piece of jewelry, no matter how valuable. I have mixed feelings

Waldheim

On the face of it, a reported Justice Department opinion that Kurt Waldheim should be prohibited from entering the United States because he lacks credibility about his World War II activities is tantamount to declaring guilt without benefit of accepted legal procedures.

Behind the move is an amazing amount of evidence linking the former secretary-general of the United Nations to Nazi atrocities coupled with unconvincing disclaimers by the Austrian politician.

Some of the evidence came from secret files of the United Nations which placed Waldheim in a list of suspected war criminals. That designation is said to indicate the U.N. War Crimes Commission felt the evidence was strong enough for the accused to face trial.

No action has been taken by the Justice Department, and the recommendation is expected to proceed through a number of reviews before action is taken. (Under a 1978 immigration law amendment the U.S. can bar anyone who assisted the Nazi government in persecuting people because of race, religion, national origin or political opinions.)

Meanwhile, Austria is in the process of electing a new president which, in a weird sort of way, could be construed as a trial by jury that would be hard to ignore despite the fact Austria is reputed to have had 600,000 registered members of Nazi organizations by the end of WWII.

With that in mind, there's room to suspect impartiality of any outcome.

Name-Sick

A lonely lemur that took a leap to freedom recently found his lively lark short-lived when he was captured and remanded to his habitat at the Primate Center at Duke University.

Authorities, run ragged by reports of the creature at large, nabbed him hopping along a Hillsborough street, licking rainwater from mailboxes. A quick thinking neighborhood resident imprisoned him under a trash can until his keeper came and got him.

It seems Eridanus, as primate-keepers dubbed the creature, left home because he was spurned by his neighbors. It would be a safe guess to say his name might have something to do with the rejection.

A lemur has a muzzle like a fox, large eyes, very soft woolly fur and a long furry tail. Now why name a cute, fox-like animal Eridanus? Why not Fluffy, Big Eyes, Pretty Boy or just plain Joe? Those names, though not especially original, are at least suitable.

The primate-keepers said he would be placed in another group of lemurs and given a female. Then, they predicted, he'll be happy — happier than if he were loose in Hillsborough.

It's doubtful that Eridanus will be much more joyful until he gets a nickname. Before he can monkey around and settle down, he needs to be Tom, Harry, Johnny, Jimmy, Dick — or Bubba.

Summit Is A Reagan Success

TOKYO (AP) — President Reagan is heading home from the seven-nation Tokyo economic summit with most of what he came for, and with a lot more than he took away from last year's summit in Bonn.

But then the world economic climate is far improved from a year ago, with the collapse in oil prices, lower interest rates and almost negligible inflation in most of the summit nations. "It was a smooth summit," asserted Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III.

Reagan's biggest trophy among non-economic issues was the statement singling out Libya for condemnation for acts of international terrorism.

He didn't get all he wanted on this — for instance, there was no mention of support for the April 14 U.S. air strike on Libya or for the U.S. proposal for a boycott of Libyan oil. It was France, after all, that prohibited U.S. warplanes from flying over on their way to Tripoli. And the United States itself tripped over U.S. oil companies remaining in Libya as it sought to persuade other nations to stop the flow of Libyan oil.

But administration officials said that the fact that the summit could agree on any statement mentioning Libya by name — and listing a set of proposed sanctions against terrorists and the nations which harbor them — was a major achievement.

Reagan also got the statement on the Chernobyl nuclear accident he wanted, although it was mild in its criticism of the Soviet Union for its delay of reporting by contrast to Reagan's own rhetoric. The statement generally called for beefed up safety and inspection procedures and expressed sympathy for victims of the accident while endorsing continued support for nuclear power.

A top item on the administration's economic agenda was winning support for a new round of international trade talks, a round administration officials have contended is crucial in banking protectionist fires in Congress.

And, in general terms, the administration got support for such a round — if not for beginning them in September as the administration had also sought.

The final joint communique issued on Tuesday said summit leaders were "fully committed" to preparatory talks for such a round and called for an "early launching" of the talks themselves.

Last year, France vetoed U.S. efforts calling for planning for a new round of the talks, under the auspices of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT), the basic set of rules that govern trade throughout most of the non-communist world.

U.S. officials said that getting the summit partners to call for a new round of talks this time was a breakthrough — even though the failure to win a commitment for a September start for the talks seemed likely to generate some criticism among administration critics back on Capitol Hill.

In addition to spelling out what constitutes fair and unfair trading practices, the GATT oversees a court-like forum in Geneva that adjudicates complaints by one nation against another.

Currently, GATT rules apply mainly to manufactured products. The United States at the Tokyo summit prevailed upon its allies to expand GATT jurisdiction in the next round of trade talks to include banking and other services, foreign investments and so-called "intellectual property rights."

This category includes patents, trademarks and copyrights. U.S. officials said the summit agreement could lead to an international code against pirating of books, records and tapes, computer programs, movies, and a host of other items.

However, the administration failed to get its summit partners to go along with its proposal to also add agricultural products to the agenda for the next trade round.

France and the European Community generally oppose such inclusion — at a time of growing friction between Western Europe and the United States over agricultural subsidies which favor homegrown products.

Still, summit partners in their final statement noted that agricultural subsidies can "aggravate the risk of wider protectionist pressures." They vowed to work closely on resolving the problem, if not in the GATT talks then in some other forum.

Of the whole trade package, Baker said: "I don't know if it's enough to blunt the protectionist mood that up there (on Capitol Hill). But it's a lot more than we had before we came to the summit."

Strength For Today

Kindliness may be a rare virtue, but everyone will admit that it is probably the most essential virtue in all our personal relationships.

There are some people who are positive geniuses in the matter of kindness. They always know the right word to say at the right time. When criticism is being flung about, they can bring up extenuating circumstances and call attention to things we never thought of before — specifically, the good side of the person being discussed.

Kindness costs nothing, but it pays big wages and dividends. The snarling boss, the carping husband or wife, the guy who snarls at you when you try to make a friendly approach — these are miserable people.

The kindly person may not have a dollar to his name and yet be rich. People always remember kindness with a smile and a pleasant word.

Secrecy And Its Aftermath

L.A. Times-Washington Post News Service

British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, commenting on the Soviet failure to provide its neighbors with full and timely information on the nuclear accident at Chernobyl, said that the attempted cover-up demonstrates the importance of strict verification clauses in arms control agreements with Moscow.

The connection may not be immediately apparent to everyone, but the lady is right.

One result of Soviet behavior during the past week is likely to be greater European skepticism toward Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev's recent initiatives on subjects ranging from nuclear test bans to the outlawing of chemical and biological arms.

Dissident Andrei D. Sakharov, a physicist who was once a leading figure in the Soviet nuclear weapons complex, has tried to make the point that the closed nature of Soviet society is not just an affront to democratic values, but a major barrier to genuine progress in arms control as well.

To the degree that Soviet secrecy prevents outsiders from getting reliable information on the direction and pace of Soviet weapons programs, the United States and other Western nations are inclined to accept worst-case analyses and to design their own programs accordingly. That helps fuel the ongoing competition in both nuclear and conventional arms.

The Russian compulsion toward secrecy did not begin with the Communists; it goes back hundreds of years. In modern times it takes the form of tight restraints on news available to the outside world and to the Soviet people themselves.

Airline accidents are not usually reported unless foreigners are killed. An earthquake in Mexico gets far more coverage than an earthquake in the Soviet Union. A nuclear catastrophe that occurred in 1957 has still not been officially acknowledged. Gorbachev has talked a good game about the need for a freer flow of information. But when disaster struck the reactor at Chernobyl, he failed the test.

For reasons of their own some Westerners downplayed the seriousness of the accident. For example, the Atomic Industrial Forum, a U.S. nuclear industry group that tries to discourage speculation that nuclear power is inherently dangerous, allowed as how the Chernobyl incident might not be as bad as advertised.

It could be true. But if the Soviet authorities wanted to calm jittery neighbors and disprove "exaggerated" reports, they had only to invite outside experts in, or, at the minimum, to release precise information on what had happened. A full week after radioactivity began spewing into the air over the Ukraine, they had not done it.

The strongest reaction has not come from Cold Warriors in Washington, but from concerned European governments.

Communist Poland did not start giving iodine to kids and banning sales of certain dairy products because of something they heard on the Voice of America, but because their own monitoring stations reported radioactivity levels up to 500 times normal. The Scandinavian countries slapped restraints on food imports from the Soviet Union. The West Germans demanded that all reactors of the Chernobyl type be shut down. European governments collectively demanded scientific information that would enable them to safeguard the health of their populations.

All that happened against a background of jolly Gorbachev assurances that the Soviet Union was prepared to allow on-site inspections to guarantee compliance with new arms control agreements. Up to now, a lot of people have preferred not to notice the strings attached to such offers.

The Soviet leader has gotten a lot of mileage from his nuclear test ban proposal. But he has rebuffed President Reagan's proposal to reopen discussions on verification rules.

Does anybody really believe that a government that blatantly ignores the right of outsiders to know the details about a civilian reactor accident will allow foreigners free rein to investigate suspected violations of arms control agreements?

Public Forum

To the editor:

Our homes need to be "barrier free," which means the removal of "fences" that hinder communication and progress at the family level.

Here are five barriers that must be removed.

1. The barrier of no respect. Each family member is unique and has a different personality. Each must be respected, understood and made to feel at home. The spirit of acceptance and good will is the brick and mortar of family living.
2. The barrier of poor communication. We must work at taking the time to express ourselves clearly, accurately, kindly and patiently. Have family "pow wows" and discuss vital matter on a one-to-one basis.
3. The barrier of rigid routine. Schedules and patterns are essential to good family relationships, but the routine can become a tyrant. The clock and the activity can become more important than people. Rearrange chores and responsibilities to include variety.
4. The barrier of split households. It seems that someone's always gone, like you're never together any more. Be careful of allowing someone to become isolated from the rest of the family.
5. The barrier of thoughtless indifference. We must consciously involve all members in the family partnership. Everyone must feel wanted and must have a way to serve and contribute.

Other barriers exist — inconsistency, lack of love, a shifting environment. Find out what they are and eliminate them. Make your homes barrier-free by building smooth person-to-person ramps. And give each family member a responsibility in that construction process.

To the editor:

I continue to find election-season politics in this area to be odd and confusing. In particular, candidate advertisements puzzle me.

Ignoring the back-biting advertising of the Congressional Club, I do not understand how politicians think we can decide whom to vote for based on the advertising we see. I do not care what church a candidate goes to, nor how many children he or she has. I really don't even care how many advisory boards or charities the candidate works for — we expect that candidates will participate in charitable activities.

What I wish we saw more of are advertisements that state a candidate's position on real issues which face our community and state. Very few candidates publish those kinds of advertisements, and the few who do — Jackie Moye and Jim Young and Ernest Brown come to mind from this past weekend's paper (no endorsement intended) — wait until a few days before the elections to let us know where they stand on these issues.

Since it seems the candidates would, for the most part, prefer to run on a name- and face-recognition basis, rather than on the issues, I would like to make a suggestion. Perhaps for the next election, the Reflector could publish a chart showing candidates for election for various offices in each party, with brief summaries of their views on various relevant issues. It could help us make more informed choices on important positions.

Drought Laying Siege To Southeastern Crops

By JONATHAN W. OATIS
Associated Press Writer

A drought laying siege to the Southeast is withering hard-pressed farmers' crops, drying up reservoirs, turning forests tinder-dry, cutting hydroelectric power and forcing mandatory curbs on lawn watering, officials say.

"It's a bad situation that's getting worse fast," Carl Harker of the Southeast Agricultural Weather Service Center at Auburn University in Alabama, said Tuesday.

The dry spell is the worst in Tennessee since records were first kept in the 1890s and the worst in South Carolina since the 1900s, officials said. It is affecting Mississippi, Alabama, Florida, Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Tennessee with varying severity.

Two Atlanta-area counties on Tuesday imposed limits on water use. Fayette County stepped up its ban on outside watering from alternate days to daily after its reservoirs ran dry and Gwinnett County restricted lawn sprinkling in the evening because of low water pressure.

Two other counties in the area had already limited outside watering.

Meanwhile, the Southwest Florida Water Management District was to consider a proposal today to ban outside watering, including crops, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. in 16 counties.

"The situation is not yet critical but a matter of concern," said Gary Kuhl, the agency's executive director.

In South Carolina, state

Climatologist John Purvis has written officials in 20 counties urging voluntary conservation measures.

About 40 towns and industries in Tennessee are expected to have problems within weeks if the drought continues, said Elmo Lund, director of water management for the state Health and Environment Department.

Even if enough water is available, communities across the state can expect water that tastes or smells bad even though it's safe to drink because rivers and lakes will fill with bacteria and algae, Lund said.

However, Larry Clark, regional water manager for the federal Tennessee Valley Authority, said there is a good possibility that public health will be threatened as streams, rivers and reservoirs lose their ability to absorb or dilute waste from cities and industries.

"This is the worst drought in the history of TVA and the lowest amount of rainfall since records were kept in 1890," said Clark.

In Alabama, lake levels are so low the Alabama Power Co. cannot generate electricity at any of its 14 dams, which could mean higher bills later this summer, said spokesman Griffin Lassiter. The utility normally generates 7 percent of its power through the dams.

The lack of water has made forests dry, causing fires that have charred thousands of acres in the South.

Struggling farmers in South Carolina, Alabama and Georgia stand to lose millions of dollars, and some may lose their farms, officials said.

"Most farmers are already basket cases without having to face all this," said James Earl Mobley, president of the Alabama Peanut Producers Association.

South Carolina farmers expect to lose half the 300,000-acre wheat crop and small grains as a whole may lose up to $20 million, said Clemson University Extension Director B.K. Webb.

The drought is hurting or slowing planting of soybeans, corn, cotton and forage crops, officials in the three states said. Some growers are using irrigation to make up for what nature is holding back.

Radioactive Rain Hits Northwestern U.S.

By GUY DARST
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Additional areas of the northern United States should receive small amounts of radioactive rain spawned by the Chernobyl nuclear accident, federal officials say.

The first rain to hit the United States from the Soviet disaster fell in the Pacific Northwest on Monday, the federal task force following Chernobyl developments said Tuesday. The amount of radioactivity was too small to trigger any recommendations for action, officials said.

Environmental Protection Agency Administrator Lee M. Thomas, head of the task force, said, "We expect over subsequent days to see these readings more common across the country."

He said the levels of the readings would depend on whether the rain falls through air bearing radioactivity.

Lester Machta, director of the Air Resources Laboratory of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, was asked if radioactivity levels could be expected to rise and replied, "Time will tell. We'll have to watch that." But he said he would not be surprised if concentrations rose somewhat.

Machta said he expected any radioactive rain to be north of 40 degrees North latitude — about the latitude of Denver and Philadelphia.

"This level poses no danger to residents in the area," the task force statement said. "The radiation dose to an individual drinking one liter of rainwater (about a quart) at this level would be less than 1 percent of the average annual background radiation dose and is comparable to less than half the radiation dose received from a single chest X-ray."

Ian McDonald, director of the Public Health Service, was asked if he would drink the water.

"It would really depend on how thirsty you are," he said. "I would drink it. I would prefer not to drink it."

Monday's reading at Richland, Wash., was anywhere between 250 and 1,000 picocuries per liter of iodine-131, because of uncertainty in the measurement. At Portland, Ore., a reading of 630 picocuries per liter of iodine-131 was recorded, with no measurement uncertainty given.

Picocuries are a measurement of how fast atomic disintegrations are occurring — about two disintegrations per minute.

The task force did not spell out the calculation, but a liter of the Richland water is about the equivalent of 0.9 millirems of radioactivity. A chest X-ray is about 25 millirems.

Sheldon Meyers, head of radiation programs at EPA, said radioactive rain is generally diluted to one-tenth of its strength by the time it is absorbed by plants, eaten by cows and transformed into milk.

Food and Drug Administration guidelines say 15,000 picocuries of iodine 131 are permissible in milk for short periods.

Half the radioactivity of iodine-131 disappears every 8.1 days.

Meanwhile, the FDA said its inspectors at U.S. ports were taking samples of fresh fruits, vegetables and dairy products and fresh or frozen fish from the Soviet Union, Austria, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, East Germany, Finland, Hungary, Norway, Poland, Sweden and West Germany.

No test results from the FDA lab near Boston were immediately available, but spokesman Dave Duarte said if any samples exceeded guidelines for radioactivity, the food would not be permitted to leave the docks.

Opposition Excluded At Schultz Meeting

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — The two most prominent critics of the South Korean government were excluded from a meeting with Secretary of State George Shultz, who came here today with a ringing endorsement of President Chun Doo-hwan and criticism of "violent confrontations" with the government.

Kim Dae-Jung, the opposition candidate in the last free and open election, in 1971, and Kim Young-Sam, the permanent adviser to the opposition New Korea Democratic party, were not invited to have breakfast with Shultz on Thursday.

"The Kims are not leaders of their party," Shultz said on the way here from Tokyo, where he attended the seven-nation summit meeting of industrial democracies. However, Shultz said they were invited to meet with Assistant Secretary of State Gaston Sigur but had declined.

"I have a limited amount of time," Shultz said, explaining his refusal to meet with the two critics. He said the purpose of the breakfast was to meet with government and opposition leaders with "diversity."

Shultz said other opposition leaders, as well as supporters of President Chun, will meet with him as he attempts to solicit a variety of opinions on the political situation in South Korea.

Lee Min-Woo, president of the New Korea Democrats, and Kim Dong Yong, the minority floor leader, were among those invited.

Shultz was sent to South Korea by President Reagan to report on the anti-terrorism declaration and the monetary and trade decisions taken at the Tokyo summit. He was scheduled to meet twice with Foreign Minister Lee Won-Kyung in a 24-hour visit that will be followed by a stop in Manila for talks with Philippine President Corazon Aquino and Vice President Salvador Laurel.

In an airborne news conference, Shultz said South Korea's economic prosperity was "breathtaking" and that the government was doing a "terrific job" in maintaining security along the border with communist North Korea despite "tensions" along the demilitarized zone.

Bomb Kills 10 People In Sri Lanka

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (AP) — A bomb exploded in Sri Lanka's central telegraph office in downtown Colombo today, and officials said at least 10 people were killed.

Authorities initially blamed the blast on Tamil separatist guerrillas, but a caller saying he represented an outlawed Sinhalese group claimed responsibility in a telephone call to The Associated Press in London.

"We did it because we haven't had elections for the past nine years," said the caller, who claimed to represent the leftist People's Liberation Front.

Sixty-two people were hospitalized, and police said dozens more had been injured but had not been sent to the hospital.

Police commandeered vehicles to take the wounded to hospitals and sealed off the area surrounding the telegraph office, which is in a telecommunications complex housing the ministry.

The 9:30 a.m. (midnight EDT Tuesday) explosion blew up the front section of the building facing the Information and Tourism Ministry in a crowded Colombo district. The office of Post and Telecommunications Minister D.B. Wijetunge was partly damaged in the blast.

Witnesses said panic-stricken citizens fled the scene and debris was strewn over a wide area.

"Several people have been seriously injured. We have not yet been able to identify the dead," said Dr. Lucian Salgado, Colombo's judicial medical officer.

Salgado said six bodies had been brought to his morgue and that arrangements were being made to bring the other three bodies from the scene.

Rescuers pulled a 10th body out of the debris four hours after the bomb went off, and authorities feared people still could be trapped.

Army bomb experts were summoned to the scene after authorities found a briefcase that they thought might be packed with another bomb. Experts exploded the briefcase, but authorities later reported it did not contain a bomb.

The People's Liberation Front organized a bloody youth insurrection in 1971 in which 18,000 people were reported to have died. Its leader, Rohana Wijeweera, who ran against President Junius R. Jayewardene in the 1982 presidential elections, went underground last year.

The caller to the London AP bureau identified himself as R.S. Perera. He said he was a political refugee and activist of the People's Liberation Front who had lived in Britain for 15 years.

He claimed to have learned of the People's Liberation Front's claim of responsibility through a telephone call from "one of our secretaries" in Colombo.

The bomb attack came four days after a time bomb exploded aboard an AirLanka jetliner at Colombo airport, killing 15 people and tearing the Lockheed Tristar in two. The explosion occurred as passengers were boarding for a flight to the Indian Ocean resort of Maldives.

The government said it suspected Tamil separatist guerrillas were responsible for that blast.

Reagan Expected To Sign Gun Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate approved a bill that will ease federal firearms controls and allow millions of gun owners to buy rifles and shotguns anywhere in the country, and the chief Senate sponsor said President Reagan would sign the measure.

Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, said "there is no doubt" Reagan will approve the bill that was sent to the White House by a unanimous Senate vote Tuesday night.

The vote masked a furious lobbying effort that pitted the gun lobby against police and handgun control organizations. Smooth passage came only after a three-hour meeting in the office of Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., during which an agreement was hammered out to modify the bill to satisfy gun control advocates.

Even before the pre-vote agreement, handgun control and police organizations had won the retention of the current ban on interstate handgun sales and a future ban on manufacture of machine guns for public use.

However, the gun lobby achieved most of its goals in the bill sponsored by McClure in the Senate and by Rep. Harold Volkmer, D-Mo., in the House.

Gun advocates won an end to the ban on long gun sales by dealers from one state to customers from another and the right of gun owners to transport their unloaded weapons across state lines if strict controls are followed. Transportation of weapons is now controlled solely by state and local governments, whose statutes would still apply to their own residents.

The National Rifle Association and allied groups have been trying to weaken the 1968 federal Gun Control Act ever since it was passed in the wake of the murders of Martin Luther King Jr. and Robert F. Kennedy.

"Each year's experience under the law brought with it new evidence that Congress had gone too far," Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., said in a statement. "Hunters, sportsmen, hobbyists and collectors were being prosecuted for technical violations, diverting limited law enforcement resources from the pursuit of those guilty of truly criminal firearms use."

The gun bill that passed the House 292-130 on April 10 was headed for a long Senate floor fight before the meeting began Tuesday afternoon in the office of Thurmond, who chairs the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Before representatives of all sides, Thurmond agreed to introduce a separate bill that would make three modifications sought by handgun control and law enforcement groups.

On the floor, Thurmond's bill passed after the main gun bill, and the chief NRA Senate supporters, McClure and Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, said the measure would not be opposed in the House by Volkmer or the NRA.

The modifications would: —Require that weapons transported across state lines not be in the passenger compartment, if a separate compartment is available. If there is no separate compartment, the firearms must be in a locked container other than the glove compartment or console.

Irons To Key Medical School's Convocation

ECU News Bureau
Dr. Thomas G. Irons, assistant professor of pediatrics at the East Carolina University School of Medicine, will be the principal speaker at the Friday convocation in honor of the medical school class of 1986.

This year's ceremony honors the school's sixth four-year class, numbering 62 students. The event will begin at 2 p.m. in Hendrix Auditorium in the Mendenhall Student Center on the ECU main campus, with a reception afterward at the Brody Medical Sciences Building.

The medical students will also be recognized during general university commencement exercises Saturday. Among those receiving diplomas will be three doctor of philosophy students from the school of medicine.

Along with Irons, who was selected as the principal speaker by the Class of 1986, convocation speakers will include C. Ralph Kinsey, chairman of the ECU Board of Trustees, and Dr. William E. Laupus, vice chancellor and dean of the school of medicine.

Irons has been a member of the school of medicine staff for five years. He received the Clinical Science Faculty Award in recognition of his "teaching excellence, compassion, and concern for students" by the Class of 1985 during its convocation ceremony.

The son of Greenville physicians Malene and Fred Irons, he earned his baccalaureate degree in English from Davidson College and his medical degree from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. He spent the internship year of a pediatric residency at the University of California at San Francisco before returning to UNC to complete the final two years of training.

In medical school Irons led his class academically in each of the four years. He served for three years as president of his class and was president of Alpha Omega Alpha Honor Medical Society. At graduation he was chosen by the faculty as the outstanding senior medical student, and he was elected by his classmates to receive the John DeB. MacNider Award for superior character.

Upon completing his residency in 1975, Irons served three years with the United States Army as an active duty pediatrician and was awarded the Army Commendation Medal. He spent the next three years engaged in the private practice of pediatrics in Raleigh before joining the ECU faculty in 1981.

At the School of Medicine Irons is head of the Section of Ambulatory Pediatrics and director of pediatrics clinics. He directs pediatrics instruction for medical students in the second year and co-teaches courses in philosophy and medicine for freshman and sophomore students.

Irons is a frequent speaker on selected medical topics involving his research interests, which include child abuse and neglect, common childhood infections, sexually transmitted diseases, and the care of the chronically ill child. He serves on numerous professional boards and is active with his medical school alma mater, in the First Presbyterian Church of Greenville and in the Pitt County community.

Council To Hear Rezoning Requests

Three rezoning requests, including two by S.A. Paramore Jr., head the list of items to be addressed Thursday in regular session of the Greenville City Council.

Up for consideration is Paramore's request to rezone 12.3 acres located off the western-right-of-way of 14th Street Extension, north, of Windy Ridge, from residential/agricultural (RA-20) to high density residential (R-6).

Paramore also requested 13.1 acres located east of Tucker Estates Subdivision be rezoned from RA-20 to single-family medium density residential (R-9S).

The council will also consider a request by D.L. Keech to rezone a 1.7-acre tract located north of Green Mill Run from highway commercial (CH) to office and institutional (O&I).

The Planning and Zoning Commission has recommended approval of all three items.

The board is expected to make appointments to board of adjustment and the housing and parking authorities.

Council members will also consider an amendment to the Electric Capital Project Fund of Greenville Utilities Commission; a resolution authorizing installation of a utilities power line across Seaboard Coast Line's right-of-way and tracks, and a resolution supporting Gov. Jim Martin's "Roads to the Future" program.

Other matters to be addressed include an amendment authorizing city participation in the installation of a traffic signal at Greenville Boulevard and N.C. 11; a contract for preparation of a Transportation Development Plan update; an ordinance restricting parking on both sides of a section of Arlington Boulevard; the sale of disposal parcels in the South Evans Community Development project; tax releases and refunds, and a resolution authorizing a supplemental retirement plan for city employees.

Tuesday Wrecks

Greenville police said that three wrecks investigated Tuesday resulted in damages estimated at over $6,000.

Officers said cars driven by Walter Marvin Cobb of Winterville and Julia Leggett Hathaway of Route 6, Greenville, collided at 10:21 a.m. on North Green Street.

Damages were set at $300 to the Cobb vehicle and $50 to the Hathaway car. Police charged Ms. Hathaway with a safe movement violation.

Teen-age Suicide

Each year more than 6,500 teenagers take their own lives and the numbers are getting worse, according to a North Carolina Medical Society report.

The NCMS said the teen-age suicide rate has risen nearly 300 percent in the past 20 years, outstripping the general rate by 280 percent. It is believed that the widespread use of alcohol and other drugs contributed to about 3,000 of the 6,500 last year, the society reported.

In most cases, suicide is not a sudden act, said Dr. James D. Vargo, chief of staff of Ridgeview Institute in Smyrna, Ga. He said it is usually preceded by an extended period of gradual change. The teen-ager becomes moody and withdrawn, develops an "I don't care" attitude about health, appearance and school work, and is preoccupied with death.

These symptom, Vargo said, are cries for help. He said professional help should be sought if the symptoms are detected in a teen-ager.

Farmville May Install Elevator

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

FARMVILLE — Farmville commissioners are considering installing an elevator in the municipal building to enable handicapped persons to have access to the courtroom.

Authorization was given the town engineer Tuesday night to prepare design specifications for an elevator after he has determined whether the elevator can be inside the building or whether it will have to be outside in what is now an alley between the building and the fire station. If it needs to be outside, there is also consideration of constructing a walkover to the fire station's second floor. Cost of the project with the walkover would be about $68,600; the cost without, $58,400.

It was announced that the town will save $24,900 next year by terminating a contract for employee medical insurance with the League of Municipalities' Municipal Insurance Trust and enrolling in a Blue Cross-Blue Shield program. Costs to individual employees for family coverage will be considerably less.

A resolution was adopted authorizing the advertisement for sealed bids for the sale of a 15-by-50 foot piece of land surrounded on three sides by the parking lot of Cobb's Bar-B-Q on South Main Street. The land was the site of the Southside Fire Station.

A resolution was passed recognizing the 39 years of service to the town of J.A. (Bud) Wooten, who retired April 30. Wooten was utilities director of the town at the time of his retirement.

Approval of the mayor's appointment of Keith Huber to fill the unexpired term of Lee Parker on the town recreation board.

Approval was given for the purchase of a HAKO street sweeper at a cost of $4,290. It was reported that the town's old Billy Goat sweeper is worn out and not worth repairing.

It was announced that a public hearing on the town budget will be held June 3 at 7:30 p.m., the next regular board meeting.

The Rev. David Morton appeared before the board asking that support be given to the Farmville Community CROP Walk to be held June 1. He said it's hoped to enroll all ages groups, all segments of the community in creating awareness and raising money for hungry people through walking.

Opinion Clarified

RALEIGH (AP) — A 1985 state Supreme Court decision easing legal restrictions on convicting a confessed criminal wasn't meant to remove the requirement that a confession be backed up with evidence that the crime occurred, the court says.

Instead, the expanded rule was designed to allow for convictions in cases where independent proof is lacking but there is evidence lending credence to essential facts in the defendant's confession and thus to the confession itself, the state's high court said Tuesday.

"Although the burden is on the state to prove that defendant was the perpetrator of the crime, it is obvious that a confession will ordinarily furnish this proof," the court said.

The ruling came in a Buncombe County drunken driving case. Richard Lewis Trexler was convicted of drunken driving after wrecking a car and telling a state Highway Patrol trooper he had been drinking.

IN THE STATE

Deputy Appointed

RALEIGH (AP) — The N.C. Board of Science and Technology has announced the appointment of Dr. Patricia L. Poteat of Durham as its deputy director.

Ms. Poteat formerly was a policy analyst with the Division of Policy and Planning in the state Department of Administration.

In other action, the board approved 15 grants totaling $150,248 as part of its Small Research Grants Program. The program is an ongoing project of the 15-member board chaired by Gov. Jim Martin.

The purpose of the grant program is to support research identified as important to the needs of the state and which has potential for furthering the state's social and economic development.

NCAE Leader Elected

RALEIGH (AP) — Gladys Graves, president of the North Carolina Association of Educators, has been re-elected to the post and will return to the position on July 1, 1987. She will serve next year as president-elect.

Mrs. Graves, a Guilford County middle school teacher, is now serving a one-year term of NCAE president. Association rules prohibit a two-year term but provide that members can run for president-elect every other year.

Mrs. Graves defeated Dr. Penny Smith, an Asheboro teacher and former state teacher of the year, and Annette McCrae, a Pitt County English teacher. Karen Garr, a Wake County teacher, will be the new NCAE president effective July 1.

Compact Commission

RALEIGH (AP) — The president of the Conservation Council of North Carolina has asked Gov. Jim Martin to recommend to the General Assembly that North Carolina withdraw from the Southeast Compact on Radioactive Waste.

Marion Nichol also wrote Martin to ask him to testify in opposition to the selection of North Carolina as host state for a regional radioactive waste disposal facility at a May 27 Southeast Compact Commission hearing.

"The Conservation Council believes that the federal Low-Level Radioactive Waste Policy Act of 1980 is fundamentally flawed because it shifts responsibility and liability from generators of radioactive waste to taxpayers," Nichol's letter said.

"... North Carolina would be asked to accept 10 times more radioactive waste than it produces," the letter said. "It is important to remember that generators are reducing the volume and increasing the activity of radioactive waste being shipped off-site."

In a petition for rulemaking to the N.C. Radiation Protection Commission in February, the council asked the commission to require nuclear fuel cycle facilities to store their radioactive waste on-site.

Pender Forest Fire Spreading

HOLLY RIDGE, N.C. (AP) — The state's biggest forest fire of the year raged out of control in Pender and Onslow counties during the night, and one baffled forestry official said only a hurricane would bring relief from the 16,000-acre inferno.

"We do not have the fire contained," Gil Green of the state Division of Forest Resources said today, adding that the fire was not under control either. "We have made fair progress on getting lines on the head of the fire and this head of the fire is located along highway 50. We've made some progress getting lines along the right and this would along highway 17. We do not have lines around the left flank. We're going to concentrate on getting lines on that flank and continue our burnout operations on the head and the right flank."

Shifting winds and crackling dry timber fueled the fire, but no homes were "immediately threatened" by the blaze this morning, Green said.

No homes have been lost because of the fire, he said.

A blaze in Brunswick County, which forced voters from a polling place, was brought under control late Tuesday, while firefighters battled a third fire that burned more than 880 acres in Holly Shelter State Game Management Area in Pender County.

Hegele said the Onslow-Pender fire was starting to jump N.C. 50, although he couldn't say to what extent the blaze had moved. He said there had been no plans to start evacuations because the fire was turning away from residential areas.

"We're trying to protect the homes and secure the fire on 50," Hegele said. "It's still pushing." Volunteer fire department pumper trucks were stationed beside seven homes on Wells Road off N.C. 50 about three miles west of Holly Ridge through much of Tuesday to wet down the grounds and the roofs as the fire swept toward the area.

Ash was so thick it looked like snow.

"The smoke's so thick that if you poked your finger in it it would leave a hole," Preston Wells said.

Green advised motorists to be "very, very careful" while driving on

N.C. 50 because "there's an awful lot of smoke and an awful lot of traffic" working along the highway.

U.S. 17 between Topsail and Holly Ridge was closed for a while Tuesday, but was reopened as part of the blaze was contained at the highway.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market declined moderately today, registering no strong response to the tax-revision bill approved by the Senate Finance Committee.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 9.92 to 1,778.03 in the first hour of trading.

Losers outnumbered gainers by about 7 to 4 in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

For the most part, analysts said, the bill is several steps away from becoming law. It still must be considered by the full Senate, and then be reconciled with a House version that differs in many respects. Traders were preoccupied with the Treasury's sale of $27 billion in bonds and notes, which got off to what was generally described as a lukewarm start on Tuesday. It continues today and Thursday.

Losers among the early volume leaders included International Business Machines, down 1 1/2% at 152 3/4, and American Express, down 1 1/4% at 59 1/2.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks fell .58 to 136.19. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down .18 at 270.54.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average fell 5.82 to 1,787.95.

Advances narrowly outnumbered declines by about 60 issues on the NYSE. Big Board volume totaled 121.18 million shares, against 102.44 million in the previous session.

Sanford ...

Charlotte businessman William Belk got 34,088 votes or 5 percent, while black real estate agent Ted Kinney of Fayetteville had 27,739 votes or 4 percent. Five other candidates split the remaining 7 percent.

Sanford won all 25 Pitt County districts, finishing with 8,105 votes. Ingram followed with 2,370 votes, or 18.7 percent. Belk received 5.7 percent of the Pitt County vote, while no other candidate had more than three percent.

Broyhill, meanwhile, had 137,978 votes or 67 percent to Funderburk's 62,946 votes or 30 percent of the statewide vote. White supremacist F. Glenn Miller, who ran as a Republican but was denied party support because of his racist views, had 6,526 votes or 3 percent.

Broyhill captured 14 Pitt County precincts, while Funderburk had seven, including Arthur, Carolina, Chicod, Fountain, Swift Creek, Greenville 1 and Greenville 5. The two candidates tied in Greenville 3, Simpson, Grifton and Belvoir precincts. Broyhill received 12 transfer and 18 absentee ballots, while Funderburk had six of each.

Strong showings in Winterville, where he received 75 votes to Funderburk's nine, paced Broyhill to an 891-684 advantage in the county. Miller totaled 90 Pitt County votes, or 5.4 percent.

On the statewide referendums, Pitt County voters overwhelmingly opposed having a high-level nuclear waste repository in the state, casting 92.3 percent of their votes against the proposition, according to unofficial returns.

Only 1,077 Pitt County voters cast ballots in favor of the site, while 12,824 were opposed. All 25 precincts voted against the repository.

"The Congressional Club guys really have to rethink their strategy," Black said. "This is a defeat for the religious right and certainly for the club."

Broyhill, 58, who called himself the "conservative choice" and campaigned on economic issues while mostly ignoring Funderburk's attacks, showed strength in all regions of the state. He took 75 percent of the GOP vote in the mountains, 62 percent in the Piedmont and over 50 percent in the East. The latter area was considered the best hope for Funderburk, a professor at Campbell University in Buies Creek.

Broyhill led in 89 of the state's 100 counties. He did especially well in urban counties such as Buncombe (where he outpolled Funderburk 4,024 votes to 2,253), Mecklenburg (11,328 to 3,945), Wake (6,984 to 4,321) and New Hanover (1,965 to 1,276).

Broyhill dominated the mountains, where Funderburk had hoped to make inroads by blaming his opponent for a federal study of a site near Asheville as a possible high-level nuclear waste repository.

Funderburk didn't carry a single mountain county, losing overwhelmingly in such counties as Ashe, Clay, Henderson, Jackson and Watauga.

period. March 17 was the end of that 60-day period, say school officials.

According to Justice Department officials, new information voluntarily submitted by the schools in early March pushed the deadline to May 5. The Justice Department says the schools have three alternatives to the ruling — ask for another review, file a suit against the Justice Department in U.S. District Court in Washington or develop a new structure for the boards.

School board attorney Phil Dixon, however, said the argument that Justice Department officials didn't act within the proper time frame is a strong one.

According to the Voting Rights Act of 1965, changes in a board's structure or method of election must be precleared, or approved, by the Department of Justice, to ensure these changes don't discriminate against blacks.

In January 1985, the Concerned Citizens for Justice accused the Pitt County and Greenville boards of education of violating the Voting Rights Act when changes to the boards' structure were made in the 1960's and 1970's. The group also raised questions concerning the legality of the consolidated board.

According to unofficial returns with 99 percent of the precincts reporting, while 56,850 said they favored the nuclear repository.

The U.S. Department of Energy, which is studying the two North Carolina sites among 12 in the eastern United States, said the referendum would have no bearing on its decision.

Pitt County voters also opposed a transfer of state and county elections to odd-numbered years, with 7,668 or 64.2 percent of the residents voting against the move.

The change was approved in Belvoir precinct by a margin of 130-118. The other 24 Pitt County precincts opposed the change.

Across the state, 545,494 or 70 percent voted against the election proposal and 30 percent or 232,442 voted for it with 99 percent of the vote counted.

Broyhill "just turned back the challenge of ... Funderburk in all parts of North Carolina," Black said.

Sanford was equally dominant, winning 64 percent of the Democratic mountain vote, 60 percent in the Piedmont and 67 percent in the East. He lost only two counties — Caswell, which Ingram won by 1,243 votes to Sanford's 1,186, and Mecklenburg, Odom's home county, where Sanford received 11,388 votes to 12,537 for Odom.

Sanford, governor from 1961-65, retired as Duke University president last year. He remained in the public spotlight by making unsuccessful bids for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1972 and 1976. He finished second in the race for national Democratic chairman last year.

He was critical of the Reagan administration in his campaign, promising to seek protection of North Carolina's ailing textile and tobacco industries.

Other Democratic contenders included: Betty Wallace, of Raleigh, a state education official who received 17,038 votes or 3 percent; Charlotte businesswoman Katherine Harper, who got 13,146 votes or 2 percent; Graham city councilman Walt Atkins, with 8,318 votes or 1 percent; Raleigh businessman Milton Croom, who acknowledged having ties to political extremist Lyndon LaRouche and finished with 4,967 votes or 1 percent; and Clinton Moore, a Newton textile worker, who got 4,685 votes or 1 percent.

Rose Nips Kinston; Vikes Win

KINSTON — Rose High School pushed over a run in the top of the seventh inning to nip Kinston, 4-3, Tuesday night in the Big East Conference baseball race.

The victory kept the Rampants in at least a share of second place in the league standings with a 7-4 Big East record.

Eric Jarman went the distance for the Rampants on the mound, holding Kinston scoreless until the sixth when the Vikings scored three times after two were out.

Rose got its first three runs in the second inning. With one away, Axel Smith singled and Lee Lewis came on to run for him. Robbie Ehrmann reached on a two-base error and Jason Galloway walked to load the bases. After a second out, Jarman walked to force Lewis over. Tyrone Jones then singled to drive in both Ehrmann and Galloway for a 3-0 lead.

The Rampants, who had also threatened in the first, left men in scoring position in the fourth and fifth innings.

Kinston, meanwhile, advanced just two to as far a second base during the first five frames.

Then, in the sixth, the Vikings came up with three scores, tying the game at 3-3.

With two away, Whitely singled and advanced on a wild pitch. Portolise Mattocks walked and Harold Davis reached on a two-base error, scoring Whitely. Neal Outlaw also was safe on a misplay, allowing Mattocks and Davis to score.

The Rampants came back, however, to push over the game winner in the top of the seventh. With one down, Jarman walked and stole second. He took third on a wild pitch and scored when Curtis Perkins singled.

Rose advanced Perkins to third on a hit by David Daniels, but he died there.

Jarman then put Kinston down one-two-three in the bottom of the seventh to give the Rampants the win.

Smith led the Rose hitting with two while Whitely had two for the Vikings.

Kinston is now 4-7 in the conference and 7-13 overall. The Rampants climb to 13-6 overall.

Rose returns to action on Friday, hosting Wilson Fike.

HAVELOCK — D.H. Conley's Vikings put their winning streak on the line again Tuesday night, pulling out their 21st straight victory of the year in the seventh inning against Havelock, 6-4.

The Vikes, now 10-0 in the Coastal Conference, clinched no worse than a tie for first place in the league standings with two games left to play.

Havelock threw a scare into the Vikings before finally letting them off the hook, however. The Rams scored single runs in the first and second innings for a 2-0 lead. Conley tied it up in the fourth and took the lead with a run in the fifth, 3-2. But Havelock rallied for two in the sixth, forging back on top, 4-3.

Conley then pushed over three runs in the top of the seventh to pull it out. Jody Vines led off with a single and scored when Fred Bryant cracked a homer to put the Vikings into a 5-4 lead. Lee Hardee followed that with a single and Randy Mills walked. Bronswell Patrick singled, loading the bases and Butch Mills was hit by a pitch, providing the insurance run.

Patrick led the Conley hitting with three while Hardee and Vines each had two. Andy Amidon and Cary Davis each picked up two hits for Havelock.

Hunt Nips Rose Girls

A goal in "injury time" and another off a penalty kick allowed Wilson Hunt to come away with a 2-1 soccer victory over Rose High School's Rampettes Tuesday afternoon.

Rose scored first as Stacey Schnick hit with 15:35 gone in the first half.

It stayed that way until the half expired. "Injury time," a special amount of time equal to the amount of time it takes the official to notify the timekeeper of an injury is added to the end of the half, and 30 seconds into that, Hunt's S. Joyner hit.

The winning goal then came on a penalty kick with 21:30 gone with T. Coggins hitting.

Rose got only eight shots on goal and Hunt goalie L. Krabil recorded five saves. Hunt took 17 shots on goal with Chris Holec recording 16 saves.

Rose is now 4-3 on the year and plays host to Eastern N.C. School for the Deaf on Thursday.

Ex-Duke SID, Ted Mann, Dead

DURHAM (AP) — Ted Mann, who helped publicize Duke University sports for more than 40 years, has died of complications of pneumonia at the age of 78.

Mann died Tuesday at Duke University Medical Center.

An Arkansas native, turned down a football scholarship to Alabama offered by Coach Wallace Wade, who later came to Duke himself. Instead of college, Mann went into the newspaper business and became sports editor of the Greensboro Record at the age of 19.

That same year, 1927, Mann enrolled at Duke and began publicizing Blue Devil athletics. In 1931, he graduated from Duke and became a full-time member of the athletic department.

His tenure at Duke was interrupted by a stint in the Navy in 1940, where he rose to the rank of commander. He returned as Duke's sports information director in 1946, a post he held until 1966, when he became a special consultant to the athletic director. He retired from that job in 1973.

Mann was inducted into the Duke Sports Hall of Fame in 1979. In 1981, the press box area at Wallace Wade Stadium was named for him.
