Firefighters Control Costly Forest Blaze

By TOM MINEHART
Associated Press Writer

HAMPSTEAD, N.C. (AP) — A fire that has charred 73,000 acres of North Carolina forest was 98 percent contained today, but the firefighters said heavy winds could create a "nip and tuck" challenge to keep flames inside lines.

"If everything goes well, we should have it contained before the end of the day," said Tommy Thompson, incident commander for the fire and regional forester with the state Division of Forest Resources.

Thompson said about half a mile of fire lines needed to be plowed at the northern extension of the fire about 4 miles south of Maple Hill in Pender County, near the Onslow County line.

"It was nip and tuck yesterday," Thompson said. "Had we lost that area (the northern extension) it would have threatened the town. It's looking a lot better now. But it's still nip and tuck. If the wind carries it, it could be off and running again."

Fire lines have been completed around the rest of the fire, but Thompson said firefighters would work to improve them today or to reinforce them in case of heavy winds and low humidity. Moderate humidity and moderate winds were forecast today, with a 50 percent chance of showers and thunderstorms.

Donald Kass, a spokesman for the state forest service said 13 bladed tractors were plowing lines, some as wide as 100 feet, in the fire's northern section today. He said that if the fire had jumped the lines Tuesday, Maple Hill residents may have had to evacuate.

Emergency management teams alerted Maple Hill residents to the possibility of evacuation Tuesday, but officials said that was a routine move.

The fire's relative calm allowed some firefighters to get a good night's sleep for the first time since the blaze began more than a week ago.

"Most everybody has gone home to sleep in their beds for the first time in a long time," Mary Anne George of the Pender County Sheriff's Department said late Tuesday night, referring to firefighters from 12 departments in the county.

Firefighters Tuesday night were "starting in on securing the (fire) lines more and (were) doing whatever mop-up they can," said Jim Sorenson, a U.S. Forest Service official from Atlanta who was helping state officials in Raleigh.

Winds gusted to 25 mph on Tuesday, but rising humidity and a light sprinkle during the afternoon helped some firemen to turn from protecting property to "basic forest fire tactics," said Jim Sain, regional forester for the state Forest Service.

"At least we've got an even chance now," he said. "Before we didn't even have that."

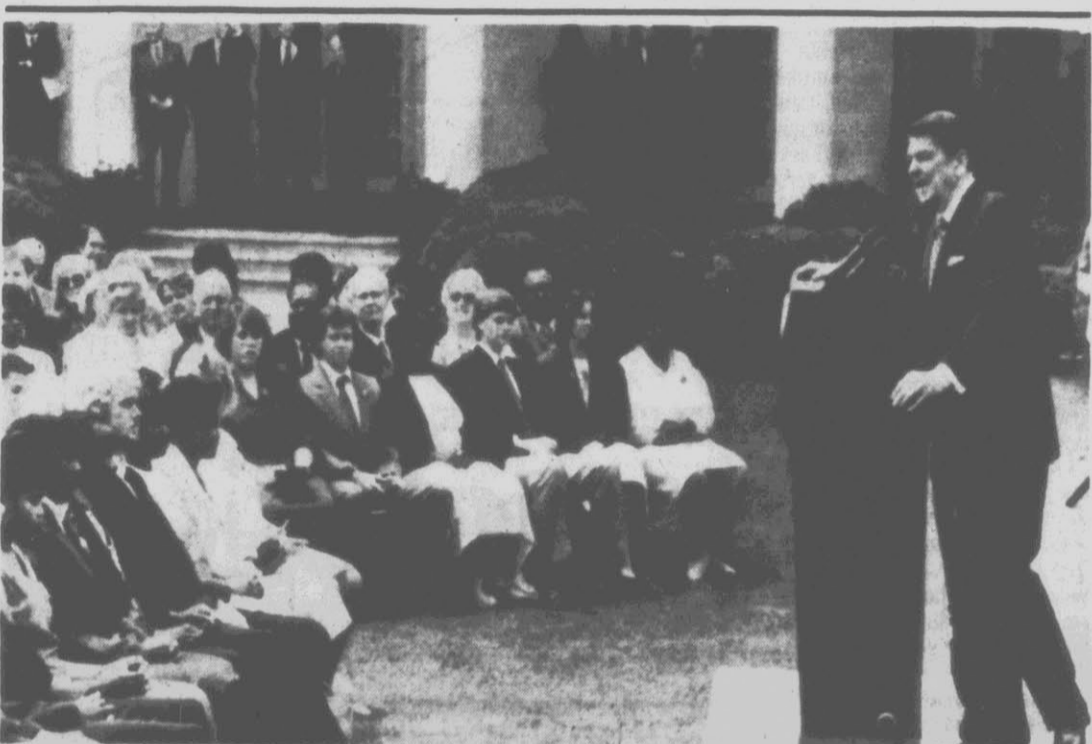

"We're calling it a 3-inch rain — there's three inches between the drops," Sorenson said. "In this game, you're glad if the humidity goes up. That happened a little bit, which isn't bad. We'd like a good, soaking rain. But we didn't get that."

Firefighters feared that strong ocean winds from the east and southeast could ignite a fire over the lines on the western and northwestern flanks, said Tom Hegele, a spokesman with the state Division of Forest Resources.

"That wind's killing us," he said. "It's not giving us a moment's rest."

Hegele said the fire had broken into two smaller fires about 14 miles apart —

In Address To N.C. Students Reagan Says Nuclear Doctrine Stupid Policy

By TERENCE HUNT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan told North Carolina students the United States will never shoot first in a nuclear war and described the decades-old doctrine of nuclear deterrence between the United States and Soviet Union as "the most stupid policy."

Reagan, answering a high school student's question Tuesday, said the best way to avert nuclear war is to work toward the total elimination of nuclear weapons. Beyond that, he said, "Let's get rid of the mistrust between the East bloc and the West bloc so that there's no need for any war."

The students had to get up at dawn to get to Washington for the speech. They traveled by bus, returning to Edenton, N.C. — about 30 miles southwest of Elizabeth City, N.C. — late Tuesday night.

"I thought it would be a boring speech from the president," said student Charles Holley, 17. "But it was pretty exciting."

"It was exciting to see the president just a few feet away," added Patti Bass, 18.

Reagan fielded questions about war, taxes, Social Security, the financial struggle of farmers and other subjects during a half-hour meeting with seniors from John A. Holmes High School

The class was selected as the audience for Reagan's commencement address to the nation's high schools. The session was broadcast by satellite to schools across the country and to American students overseas by the Armed Forces Network.

"In general, conditions in our country are about as bright as this very bright afternoon," the president said, standing in front of blossoming azaleas and bright red geraniums in the Rose Garden as the students sat on folding chairs on the lawn.

The 142 Holmes seniors presented Reagan with a handpainted teapot, symbolic of the Edenton Tea Party of

ECU Projects Approved

ECU News Bureau

A $3.6 million expansion of the Mendenhall Student Center at East Carolina University has been approved by the University of North Carolina Board of Governors as a self-liquidating project.

The board also approved a $1,106,000 project to complete construction of support space for the neo-natal center at the ECU School of Medicine-Pitt County Memorial Hospital complex, providing technician stations and office and administrative areas; repair and replacement of floors in the Brody Animal Resource Center and Vivarium building, and completion of shelled-in areas and minor renovations to the Brody Medical Science building.

The medical school project will be financed by Medicare pass-through funds presently on hand or anticipated prior to June 30.

The student center expansion project is to be financed by a combination of available reserves in bond accounts and an institutional borrowing to be repaid from student fees and food service receipts.

The student center expansion will provide for approximately 30,000 square feet of dining facilities, food preparation and storage space and meeting and office space for student activities.

The Mendenhall Student Center was completed in 1974 at a cost of $2,935,000. The structure contains 86,000 square feet of space. It was named in honor of the late Cynthia Anne Mendenhall, director of student union activities from 1954 until her death in 1972.

Tentative OK By GUC On $71 Million Budget

By DON REUTER
Reflector Staff Writer

The Greenville Utilities Commission reviewed and tentatively approved a $71 million budget for 1986-87 at its monthly meeting Tuesday night.

Commissioners recommended that it be submitted to the City Council and presented for public inspection prior to the public hearing. A date for the public hearing has not been set.

Meanwhile, the GUC's load management program produced a net saving of $43,581.85, including $7,080 through operation of load management switches and $3,330 through voltage adjustments during the time of Carolina Power & Light Company's monthly peak — between 7 a.m. and 8 a.m. on April 23, according to a report by Roger Jones, director of Electric Systems.

The commission also approved a resolution authorizing the sale of surplus property located on the west side of North Greene Street to Donnie W. Higson for $1,200.

In other business, contracts were awarded to low bidders for 1,000 load management switches to Regency Electronics, Inc. for $53,560; aluminum weldment to Rigby Electric Supply for $6,360; lightning arrestors to Scott-Parish Electric Supply Co. for $3,560.16, and fuse mounts, insulators and current limiting fuses to Mill-Power Supply Co. for $2,285.60.

Commissioners were presented with an accounting statement for GUC's Dental Reimbursement Plan. As of Dec. 31, 1985, the ending balance was $3,922.12.

Commissioners were informed of an auction of surplus vehicles, equipment and miscellaneous items held on April 12. The auction netted $21,981.25.

Commission members also starting making arrangements for a tour of the Shearon Harris Nuclear Power Plant near Apex. The plant, which is jointly owned by North Carolina Eastern Municipal Power Agency and CP&L, is scheduled to go commercial late this year and should begin fuel loading this summer. The tour, which gives NCEMPA commissioners their final opportunity to visit the plant, is scheduled for May 29.

Prior to the meeting, the commission took its annual tour of GUC facilities. The commissioners visited the water treatment plant, wastewater treatment plant, Simpson substation, and the new engineering building.

Radio Reports Radiation Down

By CAROL J. WILLIAMS
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — The official radio said today that radiation in the evacuated city of Chernobyl, 11 miles from the site of a nuclear power disaster, was no longer dangerous, and a government official said levels were once again normal at most observation points.

Meanwhile, state television's Tuesday evening news said a speech by Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev would be broadcast tonight, but did not indicate what the subject would be. Gorbachev so far has made no public statements on the accident.

A report today on Radio Moscow said the "consequences of the accident at the Chernobyl nuclear power station are being stamped out at a growing rate."

It quoted decontamination experts as saying that radiation in Chernobyl "is no longer hazardous to people" but did not say if or when residents would be allowed to return.

No population figure is available for Chernobyl, but the city is thought to have about 30,000 residents.

The Soviets have said 92,000 people were evacuated from an 18-mile radius of the plant following the explosion and fire April 26 in the No. 4 reactor of the nuclear power plant 80 miles north of the Ukrainian capital Kiev. The official casualty toll is six dead and about 200 injured.

An invisible cloud of radioactivity from the stricken plant spewed over the western Soviet Union and Europe, and has worked its way gradually around the world.

Deputy Premier Boris Y. Shcherbina, head of the government investigation into the accident, held a briefing Tuesday for diplomats from 15 nations.

Diplomats said Shcherbina told them readings Tuesday at five of seven monitoring stations in the western Soviet Union showed radiation had dropped to normal background levels, but that levels at two stations, southwest of the plant remained slightly above normal.

Monitor Work By ECU Will End

An East Carolina University professor said Tuesday that the university will phase out research and preservation work associated with the USS Monitor after restoration work on the Civil War gunboat's anchor is completed this summer.

Dr. William N. Still Jr., co-director of the maritime history and underwater research program at ECU said the decision to phase out Monitor-related work was based on the need to focus on other research projects and teaching duties. He suggested that the university does not have the staff or facilities needed to continue work on the Monitor.

Still said giving up the activities, which include publishing a newsletter and serving as a clearinghouse, would smooth out difficulties in the program. But he said there would be disadvantages as well.

"I would be the first to say that losing the Monitor is going to hurt us. It has brought us a lot of credibility and visibility," he said.

The maritime history program at ECU has worked with the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration to coordinate studies at the wreck site, about 16 miles southeast of Cape Hatteras, including a 1983 expedition that recovered the vessel's anchor.

The anchor had been at the university for preservation until two weeks ago when it was sent to the University of South Carolina in Columbia for final touch-up work.

The anchor is scheduled to be returned to ECU in late July. After being on display for several days, it will be sent to NOAA in Washington.

Still and Gordon P. Watts Jr., an assistant professor in the ECU program, will continue to serve on technical committees associated with Monitor research, Still said.

New PCMH Program To Aid Hard-Of-Hearing Patients

Hearing loss has been called the invisible disability because it often goes unnoticed by others. Its effects can be especially disturbing in the hospital setting where communication is a key to effective health care, Pitt County Memorial Hospital audiologist Rhonda Joyner said.

A new program at Pitt County Memorial Hospital called "Speak-Up" is helping to identify patients with hearing loss so hospital staff can establish successful communication. Pitt Memorial's Department of Speech Pathology and Audiology is coordinating the program, which is adopted from the Suzanne Pathy Speak-Up Institute Program in New York.

The hospital staff is usually aware of patients with severe or complete hearing loss, Ms. Joyner said. However, patients with partial hearing loss may not think to let everyone they deal with in the hospital know of their hearing loss.

The Speak-Up program enables hard-of-hearing patients to respond to hospital services in a more relaxed and safer way, Ms. Joyner said. It also shows staff members how to communicate more successfully with the hearing-impaired. She estimated that 1,700 patients at Pitt Memorial will benefit this year.

Hard-of-hearing patients are identified when they are admitted to the hospital, whether through the general admissions area or the emergency department. With the patients' permissions, special Speak-Up stickers are placed on their charts and admission papers. Speak-Up stickers are also placed on walls above patients' beds and next to the patients' names on nursing station intercoms. These stickers remind the staff on all shifts to use optimum communication with the designated patients.

There is no extra charge for a patient to participate in this program.

Other assistive devices for the hearing-impaired being used in the hospital include closed caption television, amplified telephones and pocket talkers — devices which amplify the voices of others for the hearing impaired.

Pitt Memorial also has a group of volunteer interpreters available to help hospital staff communicate with deaf patients and patients who speak languages other than English.

The Price Says Perfume Is A Copy

By DENISE GELLENE
L.A. Times-Washington Posts
News Service

It looks and smells like Giorgio perfume. But is it?

It may be Giorgio. Or it may be Primo, or Juliano, or another imitation fragrance that smells like the trendy designer perfume but costs much less.

The imitation scents, which have recently appeared on the shelves of chain drug and variety stores, have stunned the image-conscious $3.8-billion fragrance industry. Just two months ago, a miffed Giorgio quit the Fragrance Foundation, an industry group, after smell-alike Primo was nominated for an industry award.

Those who make imitation scents, known in the industry as imposters or knockoffs, are unperturbed.

"We think our scents are just as good as the designers," declared Mark A. Larcy, president of Parfums de Coeur, the Stamford, Conn., company that makes Primo. "We say, 'If you like Giorgio, you'll love Primo.' Let the woman decide for herself."

Many women, it seems, like what they smell. Retail sales of imposters reached $100 million last year and are expected to hit at least $150 million this year, said Allan G. Mottus, an industry consultant based in New York. "The demand is unbelievable," he said.

The knockoffs appeal to women who care about their image as well as their pocketbook, industry sources said. "They enjoy the status of wearing a designer perfume but can't afford the original," said a buyer for a major retail chain.

Imposter scents are possible because fragrances can't be trademarked. Many imposters have names strikingly similar to the original, although most state on their packaging that they are imitations. One Obsession imposter is named Ecstasy. A Vanderbilt knockoff is named Fairchild. One Halston imitator is named Hampton.

Some flaunt their copycat status. Lenox Laboratories, based in New York, named its line of imposters "The Great Pretenders." Los Angeles-based Action Industries named its line of knockoffs "The Fabulous Fakes."

Though the names may be similar, prices are not. One ounce of Confess, an imposter cologne, retails for $7.50, compared to $28.50 for an ounce of Obsession, the Calvin Klein fragrance sold with the help of suggestive — and often controversial — television and magazine ads.

The growth of imposter scents comes at a time when sales of other fragrances are shrinking. Analyst Mottus said unit sales for other scents fell between 3 percent and 5 percent last year. Except for imposters, "the business stinks," he said.

Imposter manufacturers say they are able to charge less for knockoffs because they don't spend much on advertising and because their packaging is plain. Last year, for example, Calvin Klein Cosmetics spent more than $17 million to launch Obsession, which racked up $30 million in sales. Parfums de Coeur, with sales of $30 million last year, spent just $3 million to promote its entire product line.

A number of designer fragrance companies have sued imposters, accusing them of trading on the names that cost them millions to build.

"We intend to do whatever is necessary ... to prevent Obsession from being used in a deceptive way," said Gary Schmidt, lawyer for Calvin Klein Cosmetics. Calvin Klein has obtained federal court injunctions against four imposters that it accuses of misrepresentation. It recently filed another lawsuit, this time against Parfums de Coeur, which makes Confess.

"They are just suing whomever they can to get higher visibility for their products," said Frank Araca, executive vice president of Lenox Laboratories, against which Calvin Klein has obtained an injunction. "If people don't know the difference between our product and theirs, they've wasted a lot of money on advertising."

But Araca said that to avoid further problems, its fragrance packages are now imprinted with a "bigger disclaimer" that states that the knockoff is not related to Obsession or other designer scents.

For the most part, the lawsuits concern the way imposters use the name of a designer fragrance in the advertisements and on their packaging. One imposter manufacturer, Westport Laboratories, changed the wording of its advertisements and packaging to settle a lawsuit filed against it by Giorgio.

Westport describes its Giorgio imposter as "Juliano, the alternative to Giorgio," instead of "the Giorgio alternative." Katy Sweet, a Giorgio spokeswoman, said the new wording ensures that the customer "won't be confused."

Though just a few companies now make imposters, industry analysts expect their number to grow for several reasons. Analysts said many popular fragrances are easy to copy. Today's scents are bold and fruity, making it simple "to pick up a few tones and have something very close to the original," said a fragrance industry executive.

STOLEN CARS

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Every 29 seconds an automobile is stolen in the United States, according to National Car Rental, which adds that only about 50 percent of these are ever recovered.

Stolen vehicles are often taken by thieves directly to illegal operations called "chop shops," where they are stripped and reduced to untraceable parts. The parts are then sold individually for sums considerably greater than could be gotten for a whole and unaltered stolen vehicle.

Dear Abby

No Smell Is Good For His Sniffer

DEAR ABBY: A reader named "Audrey" wrote: "When you can smoke and keep all the smoke inside yourself and not blow it into the air I must breathe, then you have the right to smoke, but you don't have the right to decide that I must breathe in your smoke."

Now, please quote me: "When you can wear perfume, cologne and after-shave and keep all the aroma inside yourself and not fill the air I must breathe, then you have the right to wear it, but you don't have the right to decide that I must breathe in your perfume, cologne and after-shave."

Let's hear it for signs that read: "Thank You for Not Wearing Perfume, Cologne or After-Shave." — FRANK IN PHOENIX

DEAR FRANK: Now that fragrances have become big business, one enters a crowded elevator without a gas mask at his/her own risk. The problem is not actually perfume, cologne or after-shave — it's the "smell-goods" who drench themselves in it.

Let's be fair, Frank. While too much can be merely annoying, it's life-threatening only to those who are highly allergic. The solution: All fragrances should be labeled: "Warning: Use sparingly. Excessive amounts may render you friendless."

LISTEN, ABBY: I'm sick and tired of reading about the "rights" of non-smokers to shove smokers around and make them feel guilty. My wife has now begun to threaten me, saying she just might go back to work, move out and live by herself where she won't have to breathe my cigarette smoke.

Well, that's OK by me. There are plenty of women who would be glad to have a good provider like me and the smoke wouldn't bother them too much. Or, I'm sure, I wouldn't have any trouble finding a woman who smokes and who won't bellyache about my smoking.

I work hard, and when I get home I enjoy my smokes. What does the wife do but stay home all day, clean the house and look after our two kids? She says my heavy smoking will hurt the kids. Well, they can get out, too. I'm the breadwinner in this family and I have my rights. If she's afraid of getting lung cancer because I smoke a couple of packs a day, she can just hold her breath.

I'll bet I don't see this in your column, but I'm mailing it anyway. — SMOKEY SAM FROM DELAWARE

Pat's Pointers

By Pat Trexler

Knit this cool and ever-so-comfortable summer top in a jiffy using large needles and double strands of acrylic yarn with the silky look and feel of the perle cotton most often seen in elegant needlepoint projects. Wear it now over summer skirts or over a blouse for fall.

The textural interest comes from a beginner-easy pattern stitch of purl ridges that break the monotony of stockinette stitching. This garment is designed in the new "long look," measuring almost 21 inches for petite, 22 inches for small and medium, and 23 inches for large and extra-large from shoulder to lower edge.

There is absolutely no shaping after the first pattern stitch row. The shoulders, worked in a shimmering Piccolo yarn, are ribbed in separate pieces and then sewn on.

This loose-fitting sweater is designed to fit bust measurements of 32 inches (petite), 34 inches (small), 36 inches (medium), 38 inches (large) and 40 inches (extra-large). Finished bust measurements are 36, 37, 40, 42, 44 inches for the five sizes.

To obtain directions for making the Quick Summer Top, send your request for Leaflet No. Z-051186 with $1 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler Crafts, The Daily Reflector, P.O. Box 419148, Kansas City, Mo. 64141.

Or you may order Knit No. K-051186 by sending a check or money order for $19.95 for petite and small or $21.95 for medium, large and extra-large to Pat Trexler Crafts at the same address. The kit price includes shipping charges, full instructions and yarn. Choose from the following colors: pink with pastel shoulders, periwinkle blue with pastel shoulders, or white with shimmering white shoulders.

Crocheted edgings are great for finishing off certain types of knitted garments. These are usually simple single crochet borders. But you can add a special designer touch by adding a final row of backward crochet. This stitch is also known as reverse crochet, but a different technique used for intarsia-type crocheting is also called reverse crochet, so I prefer the "backward" designation to eliminate confusion.

To practice the backward crochet stitch and see if you like the effect, make a chain of any desired number of stitches. The, skipping the first chain from the hook, make a single crochet in each remaining chain stitch.

After your last single crochet, chain one, but DON'T turn your work. Instead, working from left to right, with the right side facing you, make one single crochet in each single crochet of the previous row.

You'll be surprised at the entirely different appearance of this stitch when the only change you made was to work from left to right instead right to left. Try it with any yarn you like, but a smooth yarn is easier for your first attempt and will show the finished fluted effect better.

Our mailbox runs over the "junk" mail, much of it ending up in the wastebasket. But a few years ago, I received a mailing from the Association of Handicapped Artists containing samples of a very special kind of greeting card.

Each card in the sampling featured a reproduction of a hand-painted design of great beauty. I was amazed to read in the accompanying folder that every one of these had been painted by artists so handicapped they could paint only by holding the brush with the mouth or between the toes.

This incredible association is made up of a group of determined artists who not only support themselves through this extraordinary talent, but serve as inspiration to other disabled persons by giving encouragement through their own accomplishments. Since first seeing the cards and calendars, I have been a regular customer.

Over 94 percent of the earnings from the sale of calendars and greeting cards go directly to the artists and students with the balance being used for exhibits, publicity and administrative costs.

I realize that this is unrelated to needlecraft, but I wanted to share with you the news of this organization during this year of their 25th anniversary. Should any of you wish to be on their mailing list, send your name and address to: Association of Handicapped Artists, Inc., 503 Brisbane Building, Buffalo, N.Y. 14203.

Good Fish Catch

The rejection of a Hyde County peat mining permit request is a good catch for North Carolina's commercial fishermen.

The permit's denial may not put more crabs and shrimp in the Pamlico Sound, but it won't add any more damaging fresh water either. The conditions of the permit were questionable; the state has no water discharge regulations in place. The decision to instigate a moratorium on peat permits until water quality guidelines are set was a sound one and sets an important precedent against hasty progress at the expense of traditional livelihoods.

It shows that when it comes to coastal industries, the state's priorities are in order. North Carolina's commercial and sport fishing business is worth more than a proposed peat mine for several reasons.

The first is simple economics. With petroleum prices plunging, peat is not as desirable a source of energy as it was five years ago. A peat mine won't be as lucrative as the proposers think and won't fatten community coffers as much as predicted.

Second, peat is an expendable resource and takes a millinium to regenerate. Maritime resources can last as long as they are respected, planned for and adequately protected.

Third, the aesthetics of peat mining could damage the state's tourist industry — a multi-million dollar boon to the coast. Commercial fishing is part of the state's tourist industry; it contributes to it, not detracts from it.

The North Carolina Environmental Management panel's firm, four-votes-to-none denial of Chicago developer's permit request should send a clear message to other developers — the state will not allow water quality to be botched. The decision was no doubt based on the certainty that once estuaries and fishing grounds are destroyed, they are gone forever.

The Pamlico Sound is an important source of revenue for North Carolina. If that source is spoiled, the effects will be keenly seen and felt. The decision against a premature peat permit throws an obstacle in the path of that potential ruin.

Pool Is Needed

It is almost tragic that an outstanding indoor swimming pool facility, such as exists at the Eastern Carolina Vocation Center, has been closed down.

The reasons for the closing are understandable. The center is not in the recreation business and cannot afford the major costs of operating the pool. It is looking to other entities to pay the operating costs and make the pool available for general community use.

A plan must be found to put the pool to use. It is a superb indoor facility and there is not another indoor pool available to the general public in Pitt County. A pool that is not used and maintained can rapidly deteriorate.

The city is having a feasibility study done to determine ways that the pool's operation might be financed.

We hope the answers will be forthcoming. The ECVC pool is too valuable a facility to be put into moth balls.

President Controls Central Bank

WASHINGTON — The White House decision to name the supply-side movement's candidates as vice chairman of the Federal Reserve Board and to fill a vacancy confirms that Ronald Reagan, not Paul Volcker, now controls the nation's central bank.

Volcker was not consulted and volunteered no recommendations. Only on Monday, several days after the decision, was he informed how the president would fill vacancies left by Preston Martin's resignation: rookie Board member Manuel Johnson to assume Martin's vice chairmanship, San Francisco bank economist Robert Heller to take Martin's seat on the Board. That puts Volcker on the short end of a 4-to-3 Reaganite majority, just as he has been all year.

Thus, if the Federal Reserve does not supply sufficient capital to fuel the expected economic upsurge, it cannot be blamed on the saturnine chairman. The Volcker era ended

Feb. 24, when the Board secretly voted 4-to-3 to cut the discount rate against the chairman's admonitions.

Since that revolt, life in the marble palace on Constitution Avenue has not been the same — contrary to a web of myths spread by Volcker acolytes. The new appointments, confirm that growth has replaced austerity as the prevailing mode at that Fed.

In its latest search, the White House privately laid down guidelines: no ideologues, no hard monetarists adhering to doctrinal belief in regulating the money supply, no Volcker clones. Dallas bank economist William Gibson, viewed at the White House as a "low church" monetarist, was crossed off the finalist list when he insisted on the vice chairmanship as well as the Board vacancy.

Eclectic Bank of America economist Heller is more of a supply-sider than a monetarist and was pushed for the job by supply-siders (including the movement's popularizer, economic consultant Jude Wanniski). Newly-promoted Vice Chairman Johnson is a pure supply-sider who helped craft the Reagan Revolution as an assistant secretary at the Treasury. The cordiality and collegiality of Johnson and Heller mask profound differences between them and the chairman.

Just how much life at the Fed has changed is seen in Volcker's diminished efforts to fill Board vacancies. Although financial circles considered it scandalous that supply-sider Martha Seger was named as a governor in early 1984 without the chairman's approval, Volcker had promoted a rival candidate. He has not even been involved that much in recent appointments.

Nevertheless, friends in Wall Street, on Capitol Hill and among the business news media have claimed Volcker still rules supreme at the Fed and likely will be reappointed next year to a third term as chairman. Those claims have spawned a series of myths that gloss over the seminal nature of the Feb. 24 revolt.

Myth No. 1: The governors almost immediately thought better of their Feb. 24 vote and reconsidered it. Actually, Volcker called in Martin and a newly-named governor, Wayne Angel, and asked them if they would reconsider the vote until he got the West Germans and Japanese to cut interest rates. Exactly that proposition had been offered to Volcker before the vote, but he had insisted on trying to vote down the increase.

Myth No. 2: When his attempted coup "failed," Martin quit as vice chairman. In truth, no coup was tried. Martin had planned for months to leave the Board unless White House chief of staff Donald T. Regan assured him he would be selected to replace Volcker as chairman next year. Martin resigned when, as he expected all along, Regan could not give hard assurance (though supporters feel Martin erred in leaving).

Myth No. 3: Thinking better of the aftermath of the supposedly unsuccessful coup, Don Regan contemplates another term for Volcker.

to preserve this right, every citizen over the age of 18 must stand up and be counted. A large vote will send a message to our enemies around the globe that we in this country support our long-distance services whether they are right or wrong.

This year there are many long-distance services on the ballot. Some are spending millions of dollars to be elected. The incumbent, AT&T, is favored mainly because the company is running on Ma Bell's coattails. Cliff Robertson, TV spokesman for AT&T, is promising faster station-to-station calls, clearer reception and the reform of the telephone tax.

Burt Lancaster is spokesman for MCI. He is a firm, no-nonsense type who has challenged Cliff to a debate on who has the lowest long-distance prices. Lancaster has been pledging cheaper night rates, friendlier operators and no-frill calls to Alaska.

Burt should get the older vote, as most of the senior citizens remember seeing his movies. They perceive him as someone who can be trusted to tell them to do the right thing when selecting a telephone company.

Then there is Joan Rivers, whose campaign for GTE Sprint consists of making fun of other phone companies. Joan's appeal is to those who don't take their long-distance calls too seriously. While attracting a tremendous following with her commercials, there is now a big question of whether she can keep her supporters after leaving the Johnny Carson show.

A telephone election analyst with the brokerage firm of Dial, Buzzer & Hold said, "Johnny Carson has a loyal constituency, and if people switch their votes because of Rivers' breakup with Johnny, you're going to see one helluva horse race."

There are many other long-distance services to vote for. A few are: Western Union, ITT, ALLNET and U.S. Telecom.

The important thing to know is that (ital) everyone has to have a long-distance line whether or not he or she wants it. (unital)

Some of you may be saying, "Why should I vote? I have no control over my long-distance destiny."

The reason is that if you don't send in your ballot, YOUR LOCAL PHONE COMPANY WILL CHOOSE A LONG-DISTANCE CARRIER FOR YOU.

Can you imagine someone coming up the walk, knocking on the door and saying, "I'm from MCI and I have been assigned to make ALL your long-distance calls — whether you like it or not." Or how would you feel about receiving a phone call at 2 a.m. from a Western Union man who says, "If you don't call California immediately you will never see your Princess phone again."

To the editor:

I attended the East Carolina University graduation Saturday after four years of waiting for my daughter to graduate — which she did Summa Cum Laude. I had looked forward to the commencement ceremony which turned out to be the most undignified, unimpressive, maddening graduation I have ever attended. I was so disappointed and ashamed for ECU to allow such a circus! During the whole program, from the processional, during the addresses, even during one prayer, the graduates (not all of them, thank goodness) sprayed champagne, threw toilet paper, blew soap bubbles, shot off fire crackers, hollered, stood on their chairs, and generally acted like a bunch of crazy people or drunks! One graduate even wore a witch's hat.

If I had known how it would be, I would not have wasted my time nor invited any guests to attend. From now on, I think the students who want to party should do so somewhere else and the students who want to graduate in the traditional dignified manner should be allowed to do so.

I wish I had words to adequately describe how I and others — students, parents, and grandparents — feel about this situation. I feel cheated and wish that it could have been the memorable occasion that I looked forward to.

A New Freedom

Houston's population declined by 1.2 percent."

Another NCSL document reports that 20 states have had to take steps this year to compensate for declining tax revenues, an indication that the economies of those states are performing below projections of state budget drafters. Of those 20, six are Sunbelt states and only one, Vermont, where the budget was cut only one percent, is in New England.

The economic factor most devastating to the Sunbelt is the oil industry crisis. Texas, Louisiana and Oklahoma have been hurt tremendously. Added to oil problems is the farm crisis which is as bad in some agricultural sectors of the south as it is in the Midwest.

Texas is facing a $1.3 billion shortfall in its current biennium, reports Texas Comptroller Bob Bullock. Oklahoma is cutting non-education programs by 15 percent and education programs by 10 percent.

Recent employment figures show that in 10 of the 19 Sunbelt states unemployment rates are higher than the national average of 7 percent.

Now look at New England and other Frostbelt states. In 1985, housing starts were down dramatically in Dallas and Houston but up by 38 and 45 percent in Boston and New York, respectively.

Rather than raise taxes, as is being proposed in Texas, several Frostbelt states are considering tax cuts. Michigan has accelerated a planned personal income tax cut, and Pennsylvania is working on a tax cut plan for both individuals and corporations.

A number of Frostbelt states are collecting tax revenues at a pace faster than had been anticipated. Massachusetts, most notably, is running 15 percent ahead of projected collections.

NCSL says the economies and tax structures of the southwestern states are too dependent on oil. Greater economic diversification would have softened the blow of the oil glut and greater tax diversification would have saved those states from their current shortfalls.

There are sunspots in the Sunbelt. North Carolina, despite its troubles with tobacco and textiles, is one of those sunspots. That is the subject of a future column.

Strength For Today

St. Francis of Assisi once asked one of his monks to accompany him when he went preaching. On this occasion Francis and the monk went first to the market place. Here Francis talked pleasantly with several merchants about their wares and inquired whether business was good or bad. He paused to have a cheerful word with an old woman who sold flowers. He talked with several people on the street he met, inquiring about members of their families, and as tactfully as possible inquiring also about the condition of their souls.

On the way home, the monk asked, "But when are we going to preach, and where?" "We have been preaching," replied St. Francis. "Our Lord's command was, 'As ye go, preach.' One does not have to have a pulpit in which to preach. We can witness to the Lord and his gentleness wherever we happen to be. And when we do so witness, we preach."

Mailbox Week

The U.S. Postal Service has designated Monday through May 24 as "Mailbox Improvement Week."

The time was set aside by the U.S. Postal Service to remind customers on rural, city motorized and contract delivery to improve, where necessary, the appearance of their mailboxes, according to Charles H. Caulk, Greenville postmaster.

"The purpose is to call attention to the need to provide mail receptacles that are conveniently located, safe to use, neat in appearance and are designed to protect mail from the weather," he said.

Some mail may be stamped "undeliverable" if an "old, dented box has sharp, cutting edges or that the receptacle is too small, too hard to reach or made inaccessible by obstructions," Caulk said.

Postal regulations require that rural and contract route carriers must have access to mailboxes without having to leave their vehicles. Boxes must be located on the right-hand side of the road in the carrier's direction of travel.

Women Square Off In Neb. Governor's Race

By ED HOWARD
Associated Press Writer
LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Nebraskans guaranteed themselves their first female governor while "creating a little history" by setting the stage for the first woman against-woman gubernatorial campaign ever in the United States.

Republican state Treasurer Kay Orr and former Lincoln Mayor Helen Boosalis, a Democrat and the first female mayor of a U.S. city of more than 100,000, were picked Tuesday from the state's largest gubernatorial primary slate ever.

"We're creating a little history," said Mrs. Orr, 47. "It's an exciting opportunity for us to make people aware of what Nebraska's all about."

"That has never happened in the history of our country, and I think that says something for Nebraskans," said Mrs. Boosalis, 66.

In other elections Tuesday, Kenneth Gibson — the first black mayor of a major Northeastern city — lost a bid for an unprecedented fifth term in Newark, N.J., to Councilman Sharpe James, also black and a former Gibson supporter. In Atlantic City, N.J., Mayor James L. Usry failed to win his first full, four-year term, and will face Assemblywoman Dolores Cooper in a June 10 runoff.

In West Virginia, U.S. Rep. Harley O. Staggers swept the Democratic primary, defeating Charles Wood, a coal miner and Lyndon LaRouche supporter who doesn't live in the district, and former state Rep. D.P. "Sheriff" Given.

There were seven Democrats and eight Republicans on the Nebraska gubernatorial primary ballot Tuesday, all vying to succeed Gov. Bob Kerrey, a Democrat whose style and long-time relationship with actress Debra Winger kept Nebraskans captivated for four years. Kerrey didn't seek re-nomination.

Both Mrs. Orr and Mrs. Boosalis grabbed early leads Tuesday and never trailed on the way to victories that were easier and more substantial than newspaper polls or party regulars had predicted.

On the Democratic side, with 1,837 of 1,910 precincts reporting, Mrs. Boosalis had 61,921 votes or 44 percent, compared with attorney David Domina of Norfolk with 37,053 or 26 percent, and former state Sen. Chris Beutler with 30,513 or 22 percent.

Trailing were state Sen. Marge Higgins of Omaha, Robert Prokop of Wilber and Mina Dillingham of Omaha.

Mrs. Orr had 73,008 votes or 40 percent of the Republican votes. Next were Omaha attorney Kermit Brashear with 57,797 votes or 31 percent and Nancy Hoch of Nebraska City with 40,659 or 22 percent.

Trailing were Paul Rosberg of Wausa, the Rev. Everett Sileven of Louisville, Monte Taylor of Omaha, and Roger Yant and Chuck Loos of Lincoln.

The two winners said issues, rather than having two women involved, would decide the outcome of the November general election.

The race "is going to get a lot of attention at first bluish ... but I don't think that will be a sustained thing," said Mrs. Orr, who was the first woman elected to statewide office in Nebraska, in 1982. She had been appointed to fill a vacancy in 1981.

They also reported conflicting statements about emissions from the plant. "First they said emissions stopped, then they said emissions practically stopped," said one diplomat who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Scherbina also said a French-made polymer was being used to cover ground contaminated by radiation, the diplomats said.

The government evening newspaper Izvestia on Tuesday said workers were covering up to 200,000 square yards each day, but did not indicate the size of the area to be sealed.

Tuesday night's television news carried brief footage of cleanup crews at work in Chernobyl and an interview with Boris Gudasov, a radiation control expert directing decontamination work.

Gudasov said environmental conditions do not threaten the health of cleanup workers, but he added that it was too early to tell when the nearly 92,000 evacuees might be able to return home.

U.S. industrialist Armand Hammer arrived Tuesday with a shipment of medicine and equipment needed to treat radiation victims.

Hammer, chairman of Occidental Petroleum Corp. and a longtime associate of Kremlin leaders, arranged through the Soviet Embassy in Washington to send three American medical specialists and an Israeli doctor to assist with bone marrow transplants to save the lives of those who received heavy doses of radiation at Chernobyl.

High doses of radiation can kill bone marrow, causing death unless the marrow is replaced quickly.

Hammer said the foreign specialists will not be able to predict the victims' chances for recovery for another two weeks.

The 87-year-old Hammer brought about $500,000 worth of medical supplies with him for the treatments, including antibiotics and soybean lectin, which the specialists plan to mix with donated marrow that is not an exact match for the recipient.

Meanwhile, Radio Moscow and the Italian television network RAI said today that pictures purportedly showing the Chernobyl plant just after the disaster were fakes.

The New York headquarters of ABC and NBC reported they bought the pictures, which they broadcast Monday, from a Yugoslav tourist.

Strike Meeting Set

WILLIAMSTON — The worker's strike at First Carolina Industries in Williamston continued for the third day today with a company negotiator spokesman saying a meeting between union and company representatives is tentatively scheduled for May 29-30.

The strike by workers at the meat processing plant has been peaceful to date. Striking workers have made no attempt to bar non-striking workers from continuing to work.

Reports on the number of striking workers conflict. Tony Muncus, president of the N.C. United Food and Commercial Workers Union, local 525, estimated Tuesday that 75-80 of the 96 affected workers are striking. Carol Jones, personnel manager for the company, cites the number of strikers between 35-40, and Martin Gringer, attorney for the company, puts the number at about 45.

The workers cited working conditions at the company as the primary reason for calling the strike. The principal complaint, according to Muncus, is the erratic hours required by the single shift system. Some days employees are asked to work 15-16 hours; the next day they work only two or three hours, Muncus said.

Workers are seeking an eight-hour-per-day guarantee with overtime for a work day of over 10 hours, an immediate salary raise of 10 percent and a 10 percent annual raise for the next three years. Currently, workers receive overtime for more than 40 hours of work in one week. Starting salary at the plant is $3.75 per hour, with a per hourly wage of $4.25 for workers who have been employed for more than a year.

RESEARCH TRIANGLE PARK, N.C. (AP) — Burroughs Wellcome Co. is not planning to go public despite rumors that it might follow the lead taken by its parent company, Wellcome Foundation Ltd., in January, an official said Tuesday.

"That's purely a rumor," said Thack Brown, public affairs director for the pharmaceutical company, which produced the first oral treatment for recurrent genital herpes and is studying an anti-viral drug that early reports found helpful in treating AIDS. "But it's one we've heard pretty often."

The Wellcome Trust, a private group that owned the Wellcome Foundation, offered 25 percent of its stock on the London exchange in January, Brown said.

"The Securities and Exchange Commission puts in a quiet period on all new offerings, so they can't be promoted to somebody to buy," he said. "Somewhere along the line, brokers started getting the idea that when the quiet period ran out May 15 that might somehow translate into a listing on the American Exchange or something. But the parent company has decided they won't seek listing on any U.S. exchanges."

Brown said he'd gotten 350 calls about the rumored stock offering since he started keeping count in April.

"What's happening is, doctors and pharmacists are investors. Usually they invest pretty heavily in businesses related to their business," he said. "They pick up word that Burroughs Wellcome stock is available and they call their brokers and say, 'I want to buy Burroughs Wellcome stock.'"

U.S. investors may purchase stock in the parent company through the foreign investment desks most brokers offer, but only on an unsolicited basis, Brown said.

"Most brokerage houses will have the client give them some form of letter or form stating that, to make sure they don't violate any SEC rules," he said.

Burroughs Wellcome officials announced last year that the herpes treatment Zovirax, the company's patented form of acyclovir, could bring in $50 million a year once sales were geared up.

In March, the British medical journal The Lancet reported that the anti-viral drug azidothymidine, or AZT, reduced fevers, boosted immune systems and eliminated some infections among 15 of 19 patients suffering from acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

Burroughs Wellcome is using 200 patients at medical centers across the country in more extensive trials of the drug.

Portions Of State Got A Little Rain

By The Associated Press

North Carolina farmers in the mountains and Piedmont got some sweet relief Wednesday as a string of light showers moved across the state and forecasters predicted above-normal rainfall next week.

"We just need some more," said Grover Westmoreland, the agricultural extension agent in Henderson County, where nearly an inch of rain was reported. "That wasn't one inch all over the county, but it hit most of our apple area, which we desperately needed. It was heavy and, in some spots, it lasted."

In Greensboro, where slightly more than a half-inch fell, extension agent David Boyd said the rain would give growers some breathing room during one of the driest springs on record.

"We're thankful for all of it we got," Boyd said. "We could stand two or three days of this kind of gentle rain that we got."

"This is going to get us over the next couple of weeks or so," Boyd said. "The corn, some of it, will germinate now and come on through. The tobacco — this will really give it a shot. Even with a two-week dry period now the tobacco will be able to survive."

Much of the eastern part of the state reported only a trace of rain, and other sections reported less than a quarter-inch.

"We haven't had that much rain," said John Waddell, the agricultural extension agent for Surry County. "Of course, every little bit helps. I'm guessing that we've had less than two-tenths of an inch, but it has fallen ideally, very slow and easy. If it had fallen hard, dusty as it's been, we would have had real erosion problems."

Forecasters for the National Weather Service, meanwhile, released an extended forecast that calls for above-normal rainfall in the state from May 17 to May 21.

But the rain comes too late to salvage the wheat, rye and barley crops, which agricultural officials say have been cut by 40 percent because of the drought.

"This dry weather has been devastating," Ron Jarrett, an extension agronomy specialist at North Carolina State University, said Monday. "Earlier we were in the position to get some high yields, but it has just been too dry for too long."

Last year, small grains netted about $77.5 million for North Carolina growers, Jarrett said, but this year, the crop will probably bring around $25 million.

"Our wheat crop is already a disaster," said David Morrison, a Scotland County extension agent. "Farmers will be lucky if they get half a crop this year."

Sampson County extension agent Worth Gurkin said farmers there have lost about 14,000 acres, or about 70 percent, of their small grain crop.

"It's gone," said James Naylor, a Sampson County farmer who had planted 200 acres of barley and wheat. "It wouldn't make any difference if it rained tonight."

Naylor and other farmers said they have turned their attention to other crops that are in danger but have a chance of survival.

Tobacco is "holding its own," said W.K. Collins, a tobacco specialist with N.C. State Agricultural Extension Service. The main problem now, he said, is that some tobacco is not getting a good hold in the sun-baked soil, and the lack of rain has left high concentrations of fertilizer near the plants roots. Rain normally drives the fertilizer into the soil.

But Collins remained optimistic. "We're not ready to close up shop on tobacco yet," he said. "It is a reliable, consistent crop because it can stand a tremendous amount of adversity."

Unusual Collateral

RALEIGH (AP) — Shaw University is using its International and Islamic Studies Center as collateral for a $250,000 loan the university has taken from a Raleigh bank, according to documents filed in the Wake County Courthouse.

The International and Islamic Studies Center was financed two years ago through a $1 million grant to Shaw from the late King Khalid Ben Abdul Al Saud of Saudi Arabia. The 15,000-square-foot, two-story center at Blount and Smithfield streets cost about $600,000 to build.

Shaw president Stanley H. Smith could not be reached for comment.

Dr. Urabi Mustafa, director of the 20-year-old international studies program, would not say whether he knew the center had been used as collateral.

"The thing is, there is no international studies here without Shaw," he said. "There is no department here that means anything without Shaw itself."

Two weeks ago, Shaw was one day late delivering payroll checks to its faculty members. Several days later, the Internal Revenue Service took out a lien against the school for failure to pay more than $440,000 in back taxes.

Court documents filed in the Wake County Register of Deeds office May 2 show that Shaw must pay back the amount of the loan, at 10 percent annual interest, within two years.

"Our projections call for the university to be clear of all these matters in two years," said Thomas E. Kee Sr., Shaw's vice president for university relations.

Report Urges Stronger Board Role

RALEIGH (AP) — The state Board of Community Colleges needs to play a stronger role in guiding its 58-campus system, and the General Assembly should stop allocating money to community colleges without consulting the board, a consultant's report says.

The report echoes frequent complaints made by community college officials who say that campuses represented by powerful legislators get more than their fair share of state money.

The report, issued by the Research Triangle Institute, concluded that the community college system was well run but in need of more money and a closer federation. It said the Legislature should consider reorganizing the system's board, but added that the board needs to act more forcibly on the authority it has.

"Stronger action by the State Board in determining the needs of the system is ... a necessity whose time has come," the study says.

The report was prepared at the request of the Legislature, which is seeking information on the governance and fiscal management of the community college system.

In response, board Vice Chairman Lynn N. Kelso said Tuesday that board members were trying to become more involved in policy-making for the system. But Kelso, of New Bern, said he did not see a major problem with the board's role.

The RTI report was not specific on the statutory changes the legislature should consider regarding the board's makeup. But Junius A. Davis, chief researcher on the project, said that reducing the size of the board from 20 to 12 or 15 was one possibility.

Davis added that board members needed to make better use of their existing authority to reduce duplicate programs, identify needs and foresee economic problem areas that the colleges could serve.

"They need to make themselves better informed about the needs of the system, to review more carefully the priorities for investment and to put together ... a more reasonable budget for action by General Assembly," he said.

For example, Davis said, the board had not addressed the problem of outdated scientific equipment, which he said was serious at several schools.

"The board should know what the status of the equipment is, what is needed to bring it up to standard, what the costs would be and to include that consideration in their request," he said.

The report said another study would have to be conducted to determine whether there are overlapping programs at neighboring colleges that could be eliminated. But Davis said such duplication exists.

"A strong and forceful board may need to make some tough decisions to eliminate duplication by closing some programs," he said.

Davis said the board and the Department of Community Colleges, which acts as its staff, did not work hard enough to foresee the economic needs of the state and to tailor programs to those needs.

"Currently, you spend your time trying to improve the status quo," he said. "You might do better if you set your vision a little higher ... and look at those growth areas that are going to be essential to the counties where there has been job displacement."

Kelso, the vice chairman, took mild issue with Davis' remarks, saying the board was being more assertive and was not overlooking major needs.

"We are constantly trying to have more detailed knowledge of what's going on, and what the needs of the system are," he said. "And I thought we had enjoyed a pretty good liaison with the Legislature. Everything can always have improvement, and we're working on that all the time."

Officials Predict Low N.C. Radiation Levels

By F. ALAN BOYCE
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina officials will do special sampling of raw milk to see how much radioactive material from the Soviet Union nuclear plant accident has gotten into the food chain through feeding by dairy cattle, an official says.

But Dayne Brown, chief of the state's Radiation Protection Division, said Tuesday that the levels would likely be far below those seen when above-ground nuclear weapons tests were being conducted.

"We've been monitoring radioactivity in milk since before I came here in 1967, and it's dropped by a factor of three in recent years, but we're still seeing it," he said. "The overwhelming majority of these radioactive nucleides ... is probably due to our own testing back in the '50s and '60s."

Dayne, who reported Monday that no radiation had been detected from the Chernobyl accident, said Tuesday that the first radiation had shown up in the state.

"I do not consider these levels anything to get excited about," he said.

Weekend tests of ground-level air in Raleigh showed 0.24 picocuries of iodine 131 per cubic meter, Brown said. While that is well above the normal level of 0.001 picocuries, it is well below the state regulatory limit of 100 picocuries for continuous exposure in the workplace, he said.

"It just wouldn't be accurate to say this is 240 times the normal background levels, because they are so low," Brown said. "Anybody can divide zero into something that is not zero and the answer is infinite."

He said current readings would be less than double the normal level of gross radiation from all sources in the atmosphere.

The level of cesium 137, another product of nuclear fission, was 0.1 picocuries per cubic meter, compared with a normal level of 0.002, Brown said, adding that the figures were about the same as those reported in South Carolina on Monday.

New Welfare System

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — It is time to abandon the welfare programs of the 1960s and develop a new system that addresses the changing needs of the poor, says a University of North Carolina poverty expert.

"Programs are no longer relevant to the poverty of the '80s," says Andrew Dobelstein, professor of social work and social policy at UNC-Chapel Hill. "Half of the poor are working and are still in poverty."

"Welfare for the 80s and 90s has to satisfy people who need it and those who pay for it," Dobelstein says. "And the people who pay for it have been dissatisfied."

Dobelstein has invited about 200 social welfare experts, public decision makers and business representatives to a September conference in Asheville to develop reform proposals.

"Eventually, we are going to have to develop a new welfare coalition, people who are concerned with helping poor people in our country," he says. "Poverty has continued unabated. The conference will examine the new causes of poverty in the 1980s and work for a reform agenda."

He says the conference, similar to one he organized in 1984, grew out of a sense of frustration.

"There is such a gap in leadership at the national level," Dobelstein says. "No one is doing anything. So I figured I'd start doing something."

Nationally, the poverty rate is about 20 percent, he says, with a 19 percent rate in the state.

Medieval Assassins

Terrorist violence is not new to the Middle East. In the 12th and 13th centuries, a murderous sect of religious fanatics terrorized one part of the region. The town of Alamut in South Persia, Iran, was its base. Its members killed under the influence of drugs. The sect flourished for 200 years, until it was wiped out by Mongols in the 1200s. The group's Arabic name was Hashshishin, which means "users of hashish." The Anglicized version of their name is "assassin."

Evacuations Follow Fire

BATH, S.C. (AP) — Workers for the Environmental Protection Agency were trying to clean up hazardous chemicals when the solutions apparently caught on fire and made a cloud of smoke that caused about 700 people nearby to be evacuated, officials said.

No injuries were reported from the fire or the smoke Tuesday. The blaze was under control by about 8 p.m., and people who had gathered at the Bath Elementary School and Bath Baptist Church about two hours earlier were told they could go home.

"We evacuated the people downwind just to be on the safe side," said Bobby Mauney, emergency preparedness director for Aiken County.

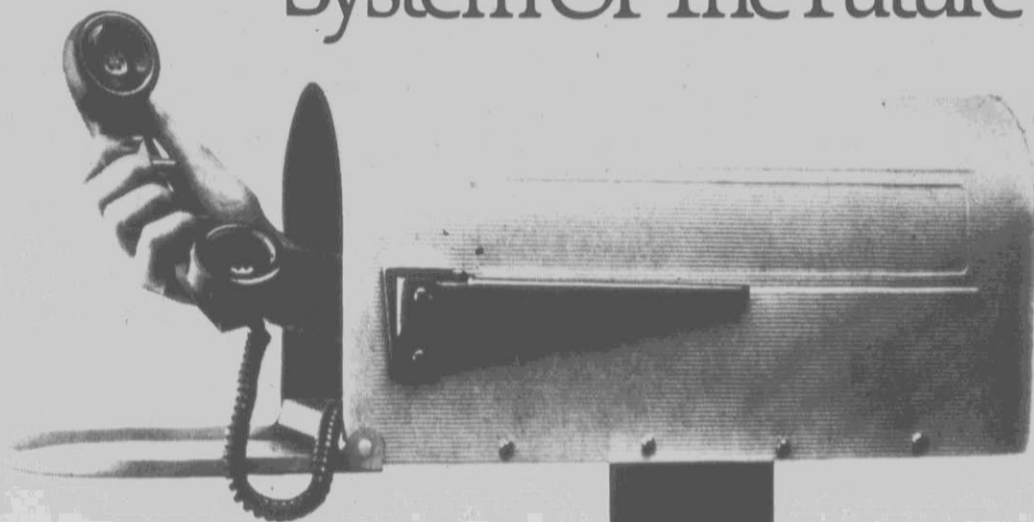

The cleanup began about 9:30 a.m. Tuesday, said Diane Hazaga, environmental engineer for the EPA.

The contents of 123 drums containing a number of industrial chemicals, including methylene chloride, were mixed to form a foam in an attempt to render the contents harmless, she said.

The drums were at an abandoned service station near Bath, but they were moved recently to the Dixie Clay Co., where they were to be disposed of.

At about 5:30 p.m., a few small fires started in the foam. Ms. Hazaga said.

ECU Group Will Study Village Site

ECU News Bureau
An Indian village site in Hyde County that appears to be the remains of an Algonkian village visited by English explorers in 1585 will be studied this summer by archaeologists from East Carolina University.

With funding from the America's 400th Anniversary Committee, archaeologist Paul R. Green will continue the study that discovered the village site in 1985 near Lake Mattamuskeet. The site conforms to early maps and written accounts of the village called Pomeiooc provided by the English explorers from Sir Walter Raleigh's expedition to Roanoke Island.

Green said the site appears to date to the late 16th century and may well be the village of Pomeiooc. "Test excavations at the site last summer recovered a variety of compelling evidence in the way of artifacts and features which supports this possibility," he said.

The village is best known and illustrated in the maps and drawings of John White, an artist with Sir Walter Raleigh's 1585 expedition and the appointed governor for the ill-fated Lost Colony of 1587.

White's drawings show a relatively small village of mat-covered houses surrounded by a circular palisade (wall) constructed of small poles. Green said the houses inside the palisade may have belonged only to the village chiefs and spiritual leaders. Other families probably lived nearby.

White visited the village on July 12, 1585, in the company of Sir Richard Grenville, Ralph Lane and Thomas Hariot who were among those commissioned by Sir Walter Raleigh to establish a colony in the land that had been claimed for England in 1584. After exploring the region, Roanoke Island was chosen as the site for a colony but two subsequent settlement attempts failed.

Green said the village site is "largely intact" and that preliminary excavation last year revealed soil stains from post holes and several refuse pits containing shellfish, fish bones, turtle shells, deer bones and pottery. An unusual "ditch" some two feet wide and two feet deep was also observed. Green said the ditch may have been a refuse pit but it could also have supported the circular palisade that White illustrated in his drawings of the village.

Work planned at the site this year includes extensive excavations to expose and define the orientation and relationships of buildings and features within the site and to provide the types of information necessary to determine whether the site is actually Pomeiooc.

Final Dances Are Scheduled

WINSTON-SALEM — The final performances of the North Carolina Dance Theater for the season will be given at 8 p.m. nightly Thursday through Saturday at the Joan Hanes Theater in Stevens Center.

The program will include the world premiere of Salvatore Aiello's "Scintillations" set to music by Dan Locklair. The work is the first professional collaboration between a North Carolina composer and a choreographer staged by the Dance Theater, and is based on constellations.

For the first time, the Dance Theater has added a solo work, "Caught," to their repertoire. Choreographer David Parsons of the Paul Taylor Dance Company has created a dynamic male solo with special lighting effects, to feature dancer Mark Morgan.

Two works by George Balanchine will complete the program — "Square Dance" and "Valse Fantasia."

The North Carolina Dance Theater was founded in 1970 by Robert Lindgren. It is a professional affiliate of the N.C. School for the Arts. The ensemble of 18 dancers tour nationally and internationally 20 to 30 weeks each season.

THIRTY FEET AND BLOWING — A California transportation department loader-blower works in 30 feet of snow on state highway 108 near the 9,628-foot summit of Sonora Pass late last week. Heavy snows in February and avalanches which buried trees in the snowpack have made this year's clearance job tougher than usual. Highway spokesmen say it probably will be mid-June before the highway is open to traffic. (AP Laserphoto)

Llamas Are Great With Kids ... And They Hum While They Work

By LAURA CASTANEDA
Associated Press Writer
SAN ANSELMO, Calif. (AP) —

Llamas, those sturdy animals prized in South America for their wool and ability to carry heavy loads on Andean trails, make great pets, breeders say — if you don't mind the hum.

a bale of alfalfa a month and happily lives on a quarter acre at Bodington's suburban home in San Anselmo, about 20 miles north of San Francisco.

"They have a charming hum," said Helen Bodington, who owns a 350-pound llama named Canelo. "It comes at different times that indicate different attitudes. Mine has a freeway hum."

When Bodington drives her van on the freeways of Northern California, Canelo usually goes along for the ride, she said in a recent interview, wearing a shirt with a silk-screened llama head on the pocket and sitting in her living room beside a stuffed llama toy, a llama book bag and the latest issue of the International Camelid Journal.

"I don't think we've caused an accident yet," she said.

Why would anyone want to own a 400-pound llama as a household pet?

Owners and breeders of the increasingly popular pet also say llamas are good with kids, are cheap to keep and handy on backpacking trips, and can be a good investment. Canelo eats field grass and maybe

Llamas are a doe-faced South American cousin to camels, vicuñas, alpacas and guanacos. The long-necked animals, which look like camels minus the humps, can carry about 80 to 100 pounds all day during backpacking trips and their wool sells for about $2 an ounce, she said.

Llamas are basically aloof and must be taught to accept the touch of humans, said Bodington, who has trained about 15 of them. But they also are very gentle and quiet.

Llama breeder Fred Bauer finds there's "a wonderful, peaceful feeling" being around the regal-looking beasts, which are good with children and often pull them around on carts.

Sam Granato, general manager of the International Llama Association in Washington, estimates there are now 10,000 llamas in the United States, compared to about 3,200 in 1982. Most are in the West.

A Reflector Review

'Top Gun' Delivers What It Promises

One thing I like about the movie "Top Gun" is that it doesn't pretend to be something it's not. The film, which will open Friday at the Plitt Theater, was previewed there Saturday night.

Walking around the lobby of the theater, I saw Navy bumper stickers, brochures and posters telling me, in essence, that this movie's supposed to be so exciting that it'll convince every flag-waving, Russian-hating person who's ever wanted to fly a plane to sign up on the spot. The movie promises planes, guns, romance, and patriotism — Navy style, and it delivers.

This, of course, is nothing new. "Iron Eagle" tried the same thing using the Air Force. But "Top Ten" succeeds where its predecessor failed. Where "Iron Eagle" featured cardboard characters and cartoon dialogue, "Top Gun" remembers to make its characters real.

The story revolves around a Navy pilot nicknamed Maverick, played by Tom Cruise. Maverick lives up to his nickname; he's an independent type who often frustrates his superiors, but he's such a good pilot that he's sent to school at Fighter Weapons, otherwise known as Top Gun. This is a school that trains Navy pilots to dogfight Russian Migs 10,000 feet in the air.

Maverick and his partner, Goose (this movie relies almost exclusively on nicknames), enter Top Gun determined to be the best of the best. The stiffest competition comes from a pilot called Iceman. We watch the two in mock battle after mock battle, shown with some of the most exciting aerial photography of the year.

Of course the movie wouldn't be complete if our hero didn't fall for a girl, so Maverick falls for his instructor, Charlie, played by Kelly McGillis. She is a maverick in her own right, and the relationship is surprisingly honest and as much mental as physical. Both have their motivations and ambitions played out well enough for us to care about them.

The movie moves very well for the first hour. Director Tony Scott gives us some great flying scenes, and credit must be given to Jeffrey Kimball for his excellent photography. Unfortunately, the movie starts to run out of steam quickly. The flight scenes start to run together, and the film drags considerably when Maverick's relationship with Charlie falters. Then there's the obligatory recollections by Maverick about his father. (According to the movies, it seems like all young military stand-outs have had father problems.)

The ending is overdramatic and predictable, and shows us that all Russian pilots look like Darth Vader. But we do see the good guys standing up for their country against the Commies, something that movie audiences love to see.

I recommend this movie not only for those who like guns and F14s and the Navy, but also to everyone as a passable movie to see for a matinee, or on a night when you want to be entertained without having to think too much about it. "Top Gun" didn't make me want to join the Navy, but it might convince someone.

White House aides said the seniors were chosen because Holmes was representative of schools that have shown dramatic improvement in recent years in test scores and in dealing with discipline problems. The aides also noted that Holmes was a racially balanced school from rural America.

On the subject of nuclear war, Reagan said, "We have the most stupid policy today" to prevent a conflict. He was referring to the doctrine known as Mutual Assured Destruction (MAD), which holds that the inevitable devastation from nuclear arsenals in the United States and Soviet Union deters either country from ever using the weapons.

Discussing the MAD policy, Reagan said, "Well, we know that we're not going to shoot the first one (missile). But if they attack, then we must have enough so that our retaliatory blow will deliver unacceptable damage to them, and that's supposed to keep them from shooting the first missile at us.

the northern front about four miles south of Maple Hill and the southern front about two miles north of Hampstead.

Hegele said firefighters had hoped for rain as they patrolled the smoking center of the massive burned area, which covers nearly 110 square miles.

"The fire is not out (in the middle), but there's no active flame front," Hegele said. "It's burned most of the area and stuff is still smoking in there."

Col. William Bundy, commander of the North Carolina Air National Guard, said he fire was the worst he had seen.

"What remains looks like a totally bombed area," he said. "Even the stumps are gone. It's like charcoal."

Aside from a firefighter who died of a heart attack last week, injuries have been limited to about 50 people, mostly firefighters, with minor injuries and smoke inhalation.

Joe Dean, state secretary of crime control and public safety, estimated 5,000 people had voluntarily left their homes in the course of the fire.

Only two buildings have been reported burned.

Fire officials had estimated the burned area at 75,000 acres, but officials on the scene revised the estimate Tuesday to 73,000 acres.

The burned area includes more than 40,000 acres of the state's Holly Shelter Game Preserve and about 5,000 acres of commercial pine forests owned by International Paper Co.

"A large portion of the gameland has burned over," said George E. Smith of the state Wildlife Resources Commission. "We don't know at this point just what the damage is. We're going to put together a team in the next few days and go down there and make an assessment."

Actors Sought

Auditions for the five-man, two-woman cast will be held Sunday at 2:30 p.m. in the Humber House, located at Fifth and Washington streets, Greenville.

Christine Rusch will direct the three-act comic-drama about a family convulsed by mistaken identities as a prodigal son returns home with a friend who has a plan to save the family farm.

"Pot of Gold" will be performed June 27 for the Southeastern Playwrights Fund of N.C. — a non-profit organization devoted to helping playwrights' develop scripts to their fullest potential.

Pirates Host CAA Tournament

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Last year, East Carolina's baseball Pirates hosted the ECAC-South tournament, and found themselves on the sidelines fairly quickly, the second team to bow out of the four-team field.

This year, hosting the Colonial Athletic Association's first baseball tournament, the Pirates are hopeful of a little bit better treatment on their home field.

The tournament opens Thursday at 1 p.m. with top-seeded James Madison facing #4 UNC Wilmington. East Carolina, the second seed, takes on #3 Richmond in the 7 p.m. game.

Friday, the first day's losers play at 1 p.m. with the two winners meeting at 7 p.m. The opening game of the day will eliminate the first team from the double elimination field.

Saturday at 1 p.m., the losers' bracket finals will be held, with the winner advancing to meet the field's lone unbeaten team at 7 p.m. Should both teams have a loss after that game, a final contest will be held Sunday at 1 p.m. to decide the title.

The tournament winner automatically advances to the NCAA regionals.

"The players are in a different frame of mind this year," ECU Coach Gary Overton said. "We know a little more about what to expect. We're a little better prepared — we've changed some of our routine."

Overton said the team appears anxious to get the tournament underway. "We weren't anxious to play last year. But we're a little more geared up and keyed up this year."

Last year, it was a little different in that the ECAC-South teams that withdrew from that group to form the CAA last spring weren't the sole field for the tournament. The entire ECAC was the drawing well for the tournament, and both Iona and New York

Tech joined East Carolina and George Mason in that field. Mason went on to win.

"We didn't know what to expect because we knew nothing about Iona and New York Tech," Overton said. "This year, it's a true family affair, and we know about the other teams. I suspect that because it is a true family affair, it will be contested for much harder by everyone."

The Pirates are still somewhat handicapped by injuries to their pitching staff. Keith Schaffer is definitely out for the tournament with an arm injury, and Daniel Boone, who has seen only brief action, is still hampered by lack of conditioning.

Overton doesn't think that any of the teams in the field this year have any disadvantages coming into the tournament. "Everyone of them is capable of winning the tournament. And every one of them have some inherent advantages."

Overton said he thinks that East Carolina's tournament experience is a big factor for the Pirates. "Just about everyone on the team has been in the tournament before. Only a few of the James Madison players have tournament experience and none of the UNC Wilmington and Richmond players do."

"And obviously we're playing on our home field before our home fans so that should be an advantage to us also," Overton said.

Madison, which tied ECU for the regular season title and got first seeding by beating the Pirates two out of three games, has that in its favor. "They also have played all season at an even keel of high caliber play," Overton said. "I don't think they'll be real keyed up but will face the tournament the same way they've faced the whole season. They'll simply rise to the occasion."

Wilmington right now, Overton says, is the hottest team in the field. "They finished strong, beating us two out of three, and they may be playing the best ball of anyone in the league right now."

Richmond has played the toughest schedule. And while the Spider record may not look great overall, 21-28, they have played the top teams around. "This will be a big help to them since they've seen some of the best in the south already," Overton said.

Madison would appear to have the advantage when it comes to the pitching staff. "They go deeper than anyone else's," Overton said. "We saw six pitchers of high quality when we played them, but we didn't see Kevin White, whom a lot of them feel is their best."

"There are some quality pitchers in the league, like our Jim Peterson, UNC's Kenny King, JMU's Mike Stoud, Wilmington's Curtis Hopper, JMU's Dana Allison, and our Winfred Johnson."

Overton will go with Johnson on the mound against the Spiders in the opener. "I don't know who to expect from them. It could be C.P. Richardson, who beat us here, or Kirk Walker or Kevin Sickinger."

Both James Madison and East Carolina are considered as possible large entrants into the NCAA field should they not win the tournament.

ECU's Bradley Leads Field

PINEHURST (AP) — Mike Bradley captured medalist honors Tuesday during the second round of qualifying at the 86th annual Men's North and South Amateur golf tournament, firing a 2-under-par 70 at Pinehurst Country Club.

Bradley, of Durham and a rising senior at East Carolina University, carded an even-par 72 in Monday's opening qualifying round and finished with a two-day total of 142.

"I never dreamed I would be on top after qualifying before I got here," Bradley said. "It's a pleasant surprise."

Bradley qualified with 51 other golfers and 12 exempt players for the 64-player match play field that opens action Wednesday on the par-72, 7,200-yard No. 2 course.

Originally, 51 players were slated to qualify, but exempt golfer Randy Sonnier of Woodlands, Texas, pulled out of the tournament, which opened another qualifying spot.

North Carolina's Greg Parker, of Old Fort, who fired a 69 to lead after the first round of qualifying, shot a 74 and tied with Dick Siderowf, of Westport, Conn., at 143. Siderowf carded a 71 after an opening round 72.

Former North Carolina golfer Kurt Beck, of Pittsburg, also was at 143 after firing a 72.

Mike Taylor of Greensboro and Tim Straub of Winston-Salem were another stroke back at 144.

Defending champion Jack Nicklaus II will lead the list of exempt golfers into Wednesday's matches.

The tournament is scheduled to run through Sunday, when the championship match will be played.

Frye To Seek Title

Dale "Sunshine" Frye will go for the world lightweight championship in kickboxing in a match on Saturday in Memphis, Tenn.

Frye, who is currently the United States lightweight champ will go against Norris Williams of Oklahoma. The two will be battling for a vacated title due to the former champion's retirement.

Frye is trained by Bill McDonald of Greenville, who is hoping to make the U.S. champ his fourth world champion. "Dale is in great shape both physically and mentally," McDonald said. "Our strategy will be to take the fight straight to Williams and not let up throughout the bout."

Carter Can Concentrate Now

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A year ago, Pancho Carter was the focus of worldwide attention as the fastest qualifier in Indianapolis 500 history.

Today, he's the forgotten man at the Speedway. He says it's almost a relief.

"It definitely makes it a lot easier," the 12-year Indy veteran says of the lack of commotion as he prepares for the May 25 race from a fifth-row qualifying position. "Now I can concentrate on the car, not on being on the pole, worrying about everything I have to do and places I have to be."

Aside from some extra money and a couple weeks of intense publicity for winning the pole-position start in 1985, Carter's career hasn't changed much because of the fame. He started in only nine other Indy-car races last season, with his best finish a second at Sanair in St. Pie, Quebec. And he has become a part-time driver in the NASCAR stock car series.

Every bit of glory he reaped from his four-lap average at a then-record 212.583 mph at Indy last year was wiped out only six laps into the race, when his car's oil pump failed. He ended up 33rd, marking the first time since 1929 that a pole-starter placed last.

"More or less, what it did was re-establish myself, but it hasn't had any big bearing on my career," Carter says of his two-week celebrity status at Indy last year.

His 1985 car was powered by a Buick engine, an identical power plant to the one used in the car that Scott Brayton drove to a one-lap speed record last year. Like Carter, Brayton had early trouble and went out after 19 laps with turbocharger failure, placing 30th.

Brayton is still using the Buick engine, and he qualified at 208.079 mph on Sunday — more than 4 mph slower than last year.

Carter, however, returned to the more established Cosworth engine. He pronounced himself happy with the switch even though his qualification speed of 209.635 mph is also well below last year's mark. Both his four-lap average and Brayton's one-lap record of 214.199 were erased last Saturday by defending champion Danny Sullivan and then two-time winner Rick Mears, who won the pole for the third time at an average speed of 216.828 and a fast lap of 217.581.

Carter says the switch to a Cosworth should help his chances for his first Indy victory. "Galles Racing (the car's owner) just doesn't have the involvement with Buick we had last year. But I probably prefer the Cosworth because of the reliability factor."

"I have a better chance of being around at the end with the Cosworth, and this year's Buick doesn't seem to be faring as well as last year's," he said.

Despite the slower speed, Carter has had a lot more track time this year. He practiced Monday and Tuesday and planned to practice again today to get the car race-ready.

"We'll have it down a couple days to put the race engine in and then get back on the track on the weekend," he said. "There really won't be enough time (to do everything) on

Rose Tops Hunt, Gains Playoffs

WILSON — Rose High School left little doubt in the minds of the Wilson Hunt fans that they were headed for the State 4-A baseball playoffs again as they stormed past the Warriors, 16-7, in a Big East battle Tuesday night.

The win boosted the Rampants to 9-4 on the season in league play and clinched one of the league's three playoff berths.

The Rampants are alone in second place, following losses by both Northern Nash and Beddingfield, which, as late as last Friday, were in a three-way tie for second with Rose.

Rocky Mount still leads the league and has also clinched one of the playoff spots with a 10-3 record. Northern Nash, 8-5, and Beddingfield, 7-6, are in contention for the third spot.

Where each of them will be seeded is still to be determined by the outcome of the final regular season games on Thursday. Rose could still tie for the league title by beating Northeastern and having Rocky Mount lose.

The Rampants charged into the lead in the first inning, pushing over two runs. Curtis Perkins reached on a two-base error and scored on David Daniels double. Scott Davis then singled in Daniels.

Hunt, however, came back with two in the bottom of the inning to tie it up. Robbie Bass led off with a single and Johnny Hinnant reached on a walk. Bass scored on an error on Wayne Waddell's grounder and Jerry Smith singled in Hinnant for a 2-2 tie.

Rose then regained the lead in the second, scoring four times. Robbie Ehrmann led off with a hit and Jason Galloway walked. Travis King's grounder was errorred, loading the bases. Eric Jarman grounded out, scoring Ehrmann and Tyrone Jones walked. Perkins singled in Galloway and King scored when Daniels singled. Davis reached on an error, scoring Jones.

Hunt rallied for two in the bottom of the inning, but still trailed, 6-4.

Rose added three more in the third. Ehrmann walked and Galloway did too. Jarman reached on a fielder's choice and Jones singled in both Ehrmann and Galloway. The other run scored on an error on the play.

Rose picked up one in the fourth. Davis walked and stole second, scoring on Ehrmann's single.

Rose picked up two more in the sixth. Daniels opened with a double and scored on Axel Smith's ground out. Ehrmann reached on an error and scored on Hunter Clark's double.

Rose got its final four in the seventh. Lee Lewis reached on an error and Jimmy Gillihan walked. Tim Clark reached on a fielder's choice, loading the bases. Smith walked, forcing in Lewis. Gillihan scored when Tim West reached on a fielder's choice that got Smith. Hunter Clark then singled in both runners with the final runs.

Hunt picked up two in the sixth and one in the seventh. Daniels led the Rose hitting with four while Ehrmann and Hunter Clark each picked up two. Robbie Bass had three hits to pace Hunt.

Rose will close out the regular season on Thursday, hosting Northeastern.

Conley	13
East Carteret	1

HOLLYWOOD—D.H. Conley's

baseball team competed an undefeated baseball season Tuesday with a 13-1 thrashing of East Carteret to finish the season 23-0 overall and 12-0 in the Coastal Conference.

Bronswell Patrick led the way for Conley as he hit a pair of two run homers, and limited East Carteret to five hits to win his 12th game of the year.

The Coastal Conference champions open the state playoffs this Saturday at 8 p.m. against Southwest Edgecomb.

Lee Hardy got things started for Conley in the second inning when he reached on an error by the second baseman. Patrick then knocked in Hardy with his third home run of the season to put Conley up 2-0.

In the third inning, Jody Vines of Conley reached on an error by the shortstop. After Shane Adams sacrificed Vines to second, Fred Bryant notched a double to bring Vines home.

Bryant scored when Lee Hardee reached first on an error by the shortstop. A single by Randy Mills brought home Hardee. Patrick then hit his second home run of the game to put Conley up 7-0 heading into the fourth inning.

Conley added one more run in the fourth and five more in the sixth to put the game away. East Carteret's lone run came in the seventh inning.

Chris Graham took the loss for East Carteret, while Patrick went the distance for Conley.

Mills led Conley in hitting, going 2-3, while Vines and Patrick both went 2-4 and Brian Joyner went 1-2 with a home run.

BETHEL — Ayden-Grifton's Chargers gained a 14-5 baseball win over North Pitt Tuesday and clinched a tie for first place in the Eastern Plains Conference.

Both Ayden-Grifton and Greene Central finished the regular season with 10-2 EPC records, sharing the league's title. Greene Central, however, will receive the top seeding of the conference in the playoffs, by virtue of having beaten the Chargers in both meetings this year.

Ayden-Grifton is slated to play host to the #2 team from the Northeastern Conference in the first round of the 1A/2A playoffs, which begin next week.

Ayden-Grifton moved ahead with a run in the first, then scored four in the second for a 5-0 lead. North Pitt came back to score once in the bottom of the second.

The Chargers put the game on ice with six runs in the third, taking an 11-1 lead. With one away, Mike Burnham was hit by a pitch and after a second out, Darryl Moya walked. Curt Tucker brought both of them in with a triple and Tony McLawhorn singled in Tucker. Andy Swanson singled and Steven Tucker doubled in McLawhorn. Stacy Cole then singled in both Swanson and Tucker.

Ayden-Grifton added two more in the fifth and one in the sixth. North Pitt picked up one in the third and three in the sixth.

Swanson and Cole led the Charger hitting with three each while Frank Mills, Moya, both of the Tuckers and Leslie Moore each had two.

North Pitt was led by Tommy Wright with three while Scott Rawls and Lee Eakes each had two.

SNOW HILL — Greene Central's Anthony Jones tossed a one-hitter at Charles B. Aycock High School Tuesday night as the Rams clinched the baseball co-championship of the Eastern Plains Conference, 9-1.

Greene Central finished the year with a 10-2 league record, tied with Ayden-Grifton. Because the Rams won both of their meetings, however, they will be the higher seeded team in the state playoffs.

Coach Jim Fulghum said that the Rams would play host to the Capital Area Conference's #3 team, still to be determined, in a game Monday.

Jones struck out 13 and walked only two in going the distance. The lone hit off him came in the third off the bat of Milton Boyette, a chopper just over the mound.

Aycock scored first, getting its run in the top of the first.

But the Rams came back in the bottom of the inning to take the lead for good. Ervin Collins walked and stole second. With two away, Shay Beaman walked. A pickoff attempt at first went awry and Collins raced home as Beaman went all the way to third. He then scored on a wild pitch.

The Rams added two in the second, two more in the fourth and three in the sixth for their nine-run total.

No one had more than one hit in the game.

Greene Central closes out the regular season with a 16-7 overall record.

The Bullets added one in the third and another in the sixth before closing out with four in the seventh.

Tony Hale hurled the shutout, scattering three hits. He walked two and struck out 12.

Jones led the Jamesville hitting with two.

Tribe Rebounds, Tops Texas, 3-2

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

There's nothing like being on the wrong end of a rout to get your feet back on the ground.

The Cleveland Indians proved that Tuesday night, returning from a 19-2 loss the previous evening to edge the Texas Rangers 3-2 on Pat Tabler's 10th-inning home run.

"Maybe getting smoked last night helped," Tabler said after connecting off reliever Greg Harris. "It made us start all over again — look at every day as a new day. The thing about baseball is, you've always got another game the next day."

The Indians had dropped four consecutive games after a 10-game winning streak ended last Friday. The first three defeats were close games. Then the Rangers collected a club-record 22 hits Monday night.

"They scored 19 runs ... maybe they were tired of swinging the bat," said Indians starter Don Schulze, who held the Rangers to one hit in 7 2-3 innings.

In other American League games Tuesday night, it Seattle 8, Milwaukee 5 as the Mariners turned the first triple play this season; Baltimore 3, Chicago 1; Kansas City 4, Detroit 2 in 11; California 5, Boston 4, and Oakland 6, Toronto 3 in 10 innings.

Schulze allowed only a line-drive single by Gary Ward in the fifth inning before leaving in the eighth after issuing a pair of walks. Scott Bailes allowed a game-tying RBI single by Pete O'Brien.

Joe Carter gave the Indians a 2-1 lead in the sixth with his fifth home run of the season, a two-run shot to left-center that followed a one-out walk to Tabler. It was the first home run allowed by Texas starter Ed Correa in 39 2-3 innings this season.

Rich Yett, 2-0, got the victory, striking out four in 2 1-3 innings of two-hit relief. The loss snapped the Rangers' three-game winning streak.

"Sometimes you can have great stuff and you go out and get shelled, and sometimes you'll go out there with nothing and they can't hit a thing," Schulze said. "That's baseball. Sometimes it's not how you pitch, it's when you pitch."

Texas' Larry Parrish, saw a difference in Schulze: "He's really taking a lot off of his changeup, throwing it slower than he had before, and it's making him very effective. He kept us off stride with it all night, and it's especially good because he has a good, popping fastball."

Mariners 8, Brewers 5
Four hits by Danny Tartabull, including two triples, and superb relief by Pete Ladd — plus the triple play — were the keys for Seattle.

Tartabull tripled and scored in the first inning. He also tripled in the eighth to drive in two runs but was thrown out trying for an inside-the-park home run.

Ladd relieved starter Mike Morgan in the sixth after Morgan had yielded five runs with two outs, on Rick Manning's two-run single and Bill Schroeder's three-run homer. Ladd had 3 1-3 innings of scoreless relief.

Ladd has a win and a save in five games since Dick Williams took over as Mariners manager.

Seattle's triple play in the first inning came after Randy Ready and Ernie Riles walked to start the game. Cecil Cooper grounded to first baseman Alvin Davis, who threw to Domingo Ramos at second to force Riles. Ramos' relay to first was too late to get Cooper but Ready strayed off third and was tagged out by catcher Bob Kearney in a rundown.

Kearney then threw to second baseman Tartabull, who tagged out Cooper.

Orioles 3, White Sox 1
Chicago first baseman Bobby Bonilla bobbled a dribbler by pinch-hitter Larry Sheets and then made a wild underhand toss to pitcher Gene Nelson, allowing John Shelby to score the winning run in the eighth inning. Shelby, in a 3-for-25 slump, singled in the third and advanced to third on two stolen bases, giving him 9-for-9 this season. He scored on a high hopper by Alan Wiggins.

Shelby also threw out Ron Kittle at the plate in the fourth inning when he tried to score on a single by Tim Lulett.

Yankees 6, Twins 4
Tommy John, who rejoined the Yankees as a free agent earlier this month, won his second straight decision and 261st of his career to move into 31st on the all-time victories list. The 42-year-old John left with a five-hitter through seven innings and Dave Righetti finished for his 10th save, most in the majors.

Ken Griffey's RBI double snapped a 4-4 tie in the eighth in a game featuring five homers, including the third of the year by Don Mattingly and Winfield, and Rickey Henderson's sixth for New York. Ron Washington got his first and Steve Lombardozzi his fifth for the Twins.

"Tommy pitched well in spring training but he hurt his back the last three or four days," Yankees Manager Lou Piniella said. "We had other people who pitched just as well and weren't 42 years old and we kept them. To Tommy's credit, he worked out, stayed in shape and we got some injuries and needed him back."

Royals 4, Tigers 2
Hal McRae followed a single by Frank White with a two-run homer off Willie Hernandez with one out in the 11th inning. Hernandez also surrendered a bases-empty home run to Steve Balboni that tied it 2-2 in the ninth.

Detroit starter Jack Morris allowed only four hits in eight innings, striking out nine and giving up four walks. Bret Saberhagen of Kansas City gave up eight hits and struck out seven while walking two through nine innings.

Angels 5, Red Sox 4
Rookie Wally Joyner hit his major league-leading 13th homer and knocked in his 35th run, also tops in the majors. Doug DeCinces also homered for California.

A's 6, Blue Jays 3
Dave Kingman's three-run homer off Dennis Lamp with one out in the 10th won it. Kingman broke an 0-12 slump when he hit the first pitch from Lamp over the left-center field fence for his seventh homer, breaking a three-game Oakland losing streak.

Lloyd Moseby had a homer and two singles for Toronto. Moseby raised his batting average to .346 with a 3-for-4 game and is 13-for-23 over the last six games.

WILSON — Rose High School's girls' softball team rallied for six runs in the top of the seventh inning and pulled out an 11-9 Big East win over hosting Wilson Hunt Tuesday.

The victory allowed the Rampettes to remain in no worse than a tie for first place in the league standings at 11-2 on the season. They have one game left to play, that Thursday at home against Elizabeth City Northeastern.

'North And South' Spurs ABC To Nielsen Victory

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — "North & South, Book II" placed all five episodes in the Top 10 last week, giving ABC the victory in the war among the networks, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. showed Tuesday.
The show finished its 12-hour run with a 21.3 rating, 33 share, ranking sixth among miniseries this season. The leader was the 12-hour "North & South," which averaged a 26 rating, 38 share last November.
ABC won the week of May 5-11 with a 15.6 rating, NBC with the top-ranked "Cosby Show" and its follow-up Thursday comedies all reaching the Top 10, averaged a 15.4 rating, CBS, with mostly reruns, placed only "Dallas" in the Top 15 and finished with a 12.4 rating.
Season to date, NBC leads with a

17.2 rating to CBS' 16.4 and ABC's 14.8.
A rating measures the percentage of the nation's 85.9 million homes with television. A share measures the percentage of the TV sets turned on that are tuned to a broadcast.
It was a good week for miniseries. Besides "North & South," NBC's two-part "Deliberate Stranger" concluded last week with an average 20.2 rating, 30 share, placing it eighth among 17 miniseries this season.
"The Cosby Show" ranked first with a 28.3 rating, 49 share, followed by NBC's "Family Ties," Part 4 of "North & South, Book II" and, in a tie for fourth, Part 6 of "North & South" and NBC's "Cheers." Next came the second part of "The Deliberate Stranger," Part 3 of "North & South," Part 5 of "North & South," NBC's "Night Court" and Part 2 of "North & South."
The "North & South" performance virtually matched ABC's forecast of a 34 share for the six parts, averting any advertiser make-goods, said Marvin Mord, ABC's vice president of marketing and research services. Mord said ABC was confident about the sequel after having sweated out the opening 12 hours of "North & South."
"It was an unusual situation," Mord said. "It was the first time a sequel has followed in the same TV season. If it didn't work, we would have been stuck with 12 hours."
Mord labeled the results "a pretty strong performance," considering the NBC miniseries competition the first two nights and the other effective programming on the networks and pay-cable, including the first TV broadcast of "Ghostbusters" on HBO.

"The days when miniseries could get 40 shares are behind us," Mord said.
ABC estimated 85 million viewers watched some part of the miniseries.
The book now is closed on "North & South," Mord said, but its author, John Jakes, has been signed by ABC to develop an original novel for television, "California Gold," about a generation of characters living in California from the 1870s to World War I.
Comedies and soap operas dominated the second ten grouping of shows last week. NBC's "The Golden Girls" was 11th, followed by ABC's "Growing Pains," ABC's "Who's the Boss?," NBC's "Miami Vice," CBS' "Dallas," NBC's "Highway to Heaven," NBC's "227," CBS' "60 Minutes" and CBS' "Murder, She Wrote," in a tie for 18th, and CBS' "Falcon Crest."
Mord noted that one ABC program hurt by "North & South" was "20-20," the ABC News magazine that was moved from its regular 10 o'clock p.m. EDT time period Thursday to 8 p.m. and ranked 57th out of 65 shows. CBS News' "West 57th," also in the first hour of prime time on Wednesday, ranked 59th as its second-week audience share, a 14, barely budged from last week's 13.
Last week's bottom five, in descending order, included CBS' "Morningstar/Eveningstar," NBC's "Punky Brewster," ABC's "Mr. Sunshine," NBC's "Silver Spoons" and ABC's "Joe Bash."
In the evening news competition, the "CBS Evening News" ranked first with an 11.6 rating. "NBC Nightly News" averaged a 10.3. ABC's "World News Tonight" had a 9.6.

PBS To Air Series On Black Athletes

By ROBERT BARR
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Jesse Owens and his four gold medals at the 1936 Olympic Games are an American legend, but who ever heard of Eulace Peacock?
Peacock's story, a poignant footnote in Olympic history, is one of the many bright moments — memories for some, discoveries for others — in "Black Champions," a three-part series on black athletes beginning tonight on public television.
It's an ambitious undertaking that includes heavyweight brawlers Jack Johnson and Joe Louis, James "Cool Papa" Bell and Josh Gibson of the old Negro baseball leagues, Fritz Pollard and Paul Robeson in college football, Althea Gibson in tennis and Owens' black co-stars in the Olympics.
Racism is the inescapable sub-theme, and each of the athletes confronted it in some form. White heavyweight champions refused to fight Johnson. Louis' memorable battles with Germany's Max Schmeling were tangled with Adolf Hitler's theories of Aryan supremacy. Bell and Gibson never got a shot at the big leagues.
Filmmaker William Miles, whose earlier work includes the award-winning "I Remember Harlem," makes his point about racism but doesn't belabor it. It isn't necessary. The ostracism of black athletes was clearly an ugly and stupid policy.
It's a pleasure, however, to see films of Louis in his two fights with Schmeling, of Jackie Robinson stealing home, of Jim Brown mowing down linebackers. It's a shame there isn't time for more highlights.
"Black Champions" dwells on some of the lesser-known stories about the 1936 Olympics. Peacock, who had beaten Owens seven out of 10 times in the 100-yard dash, pulled a muscle at the Penn Relays just weeks before the Games and was dropped from the team.
Owens wasn't the only black making a mockery of Hitler. Mack Robinson, Jackie's older brother, ran second to Owens in the 200 meters; Ralph Metcalf was the silver medalist in the 100 meters; John Woodruff won the gold at 800 meters, Archie Williams won the 400 meters and Cornelius Johnson was the high jump champion.
Yet it would be 11 more years before Jackie Robinson integrated major league baseball, and 14 years before Chuck Cooper and Nat "Sweetwater" Clifton broke the color line in the National Basketball Association.

The films show you why white boxers were eager to avoid Jack Johnson, who stood an inch taller than six feet, weighed around 200 pounds and looked larger. Tommy Burns, the white champion who agreed to fight Johnson in Australia in 1908, was only 5-foot-7 and weighed 175 pounds. Even with Burns' manager as referee, Johnson won by a knockout in the 14th round.
Film shows Johnson holding up Stanley Ketchel, the "Michigan Assassin," to prolong that mismatch, which ended after Ketchel enraged Johnson by knocking him down in the 12th round. Johnson dispatched Ketchel within seconds.
The law finally knocked out Johnson. He was arrested on a charge of transporting a white woman across state lines for immoral purposes, a violation of the Mann Act. Rather than stand trial, he skipped the country.
"Black Champions" includes film of the 37-year-old Johnson flat on his back in the 26th round of a fight against 26-year-old Jess Willard in Cuba in 1915. Johnson eventually returned to the United States and spent a year in Leavenworth prison, doing easy time as the prison's athletic director.
Floyd Patterson contributes a funny and self-deprecating account of his first fight with Ingemar Johansson, and how he was knocked silly by one of those "toonder and lightning" rights. Patterson recalls that he was down on the canvas, but unaware that he had been knocked down.
He did hear the referee say "neutral corner," so he struggled to his feet and headed that way. Johansson caught him from behind with two more shots to the head, and Patterson was down again — still unaware that the fight wasn't going especially well.

No Laughing Matter

NEW YORK (AP) — Michael Caine, who has acted in movies directed by Alan Alda and Woody Allen, says that "in a work situation, neither of them is the least bit funny."
In an interview with McCall's magazine, Caine said Allen and Alda were "very serious" on the sets of "Hannah and Her Sisters" and "Sweet Liberty," respectively.
"Everyone said enviously, 'Oh, I bet you have a lot of laughs working with Woody and Alan,'" Caine recalled. "No, I said, 'I make them laugh. They don't make me laugh.'"
The two directors, Caine said, "both are absolutely murderous on detail. They keep picking at the film even after it's finished. With Woody, you reshoot. With Alan, you go back again and again to post-synch (lines). ... Alan lets the film go at the last minute very reluctantly, just as Woody does."

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: LANDLORDS WERE GETTING QUITE A FEW DOLLARS FOR QUARTERS.
Today's Cryptoquip clue: D equals T
The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Elderly's Psychological Needs Often Ignored

By SANDY ROVNER
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

WASHINGTON — In the year 2030, if things keep on the way they are today, there will be enough geriatric psychiatrists to give each needy patient a 30-second visit. Actually, though, that's a little bit better than things are now, because today each needy patient would get only five seconds per visit.

These statistics, presented at a recent day-long symposium on mental health for the aging, underscore the unhappy state of mental health care for a burgeoning population 65 years and older.

Dr. Gary Small, psychogeriatrics coordinator at the University of California at Los Angeles School of Medicine, proffered the concept of the 30-second session, and also told participants that the over-65 population that now numbers about 25 million — or 11 percent of the total population — will be about 55 million in the year 2030, almost 20 percent of the projected total population.

Small and other speakers at the symposium, held in conjunction with the recent annual conference of the National Council on the Aging, noted that the largest growth will occur in the population over 75 — a population in which "the prevalence of disabilities and utilization of medical services increases steeply."

According to Dr. Charles A. Shamoian, director of geriatric services at the Cornell Medical Center, 20 to 25 percent of older Americans, between 6 to 9 million, already "require some form of psychiatric intervention."

Shamoian, who moderated the symposium, noted in a paper accompanying the presentations that "suicide is a possibility in all elderly, not just in the depressed patient." Approximately 25 percent of all suicides in this country occur among the 11 percent of the population over 65.

Moreover, noted Shamoian, "suicide attempts in the elderly are predominantly successful."

Airman Sandi T. Wright has graduated from Air Force basic training at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas. She is the daughter of Betsy M. Bundy of Winterville and McKinley Wright of Kenner, La. She is also a graduate of D. H. Conley High School.

Staff Sgt. Ralph E. Dail Jr. has reenlisted in the U.S. Air Force after being selected for career status. He is assigned at Charleston Air Force Base, S.C. as a security supervisor. The sergeant is a 1976 graduate of D.H. Conley High School, and the son of Loretta A. Ward of Route 3, Greenville and Ralph E. Dail Sr. of Plymouth.

Staff Sgt. James M. Smith has graduated from the Air Force non-commissioned officer leadership school at Charleston Air Force Base, S.C. He is a 1976 graduate of Williamston High School, and the grandson of Helen M. Speight of Williamston.

Second Lt. Harry L. Edwards has graduated from the health services administration course at Sheppard Air Force Base, Texas. He is the grandson of Anniebell and Charlie Edwards of Ayden.

Pvt. Otis R. Hardy has completed basic training at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo. A 1985 graduate of North Pitt High School, Hardy is the son of Caetha H. Mitchell of Route 5, Greenville.

Steve Douglas McLawhorn, Grimesland, driving while impaired, 18 months jail suspended on payment of $1,200 and costs, probation 2 years, spend 14 days in jail, obtain mandatory assessment, not to drive for 1 year.

William Kenneth Bellflower, Williamston, driving while impaired, voluntary dismissal.

Mental health, speaker after speaker reminded the audience, is a stepchild area of healthcare to begin with, and mental health for the elderly is particularly so.

For example, mental health is the only health category in which there is a lifetime Medicare ceiling. Twenty-one years ago it was set at $250, and it has not changed since.

Said Dr. Barry Lebowitz, chief of the mental disorders of the aging branch of the National Institute of Mental Health, "what $250 bought in 1965 is what it is expected to buy in 1986."

"We continue to practice Peter Pan medicine," said Dr. Robert N.

Butler, formerhead of the National Institute on Aging and now chairman of the department of geriatrics of New York's Mount Sinai Medical Center. "That is a medicine addressed to younger people, not to the complications and realities of old age."

Butler, whose department is unique among American medical centers, echoed much of the frustration felt by his colleagues and other mental health professionals specializing in the needs of the elderly.

"We have," he said "an essential failure in the American healthcare enterprise."

He made these points:

— Alzheimer's disease — or the preferred title "senile dementia of the Alzheimer type" (SDAT) — is the fourth leading cause of death among those older than 65 in the United States, affecting almost 2 million at any given time. But research for it and other mental health problems of the aging accounts for only 2 percent of the entire budget of the National Institutes of Health.

— Referring to a report of the Institute of Medicine, Butler said, "we continue to see the scandal of neglect in American nursing homes. Still, only 17 percent of doctors in any given year set foot in American nursing homes. Only 64,000 registered nurses are in 20,000 nursing homes, and very few social workers and hardly any mental health workers, despite the fact that nursing homes are in many respects quality mental institutions. There are now some 1.3 million people in nursing homes, almost double the number in general hospitals on any given day."

— "We lack teaching skills about the aging in general and mental health in particular. ... We still do not teach clinical pharmacology so that (physicians are aware of) the profound complicating effects of powerful drugs on the elderly, often putting older people at risk and causing confused states."

— "We still do not have effective health promotion or disease prevention policy in this country. There is no (widespread information on) nutrition, very little on sexuality and precious little on thanatology (the study of death). In short, the very stuff of life itself is not adequately taught within academic medicine or as a reflection of organized medicine as practiced."

One of the most frustrating aspects of the problem, said Lebowitz, is that "there have been half a hundred studies now which, in a whole range of areas, have shown that if you treat the mental health concomitants of everything from hip fractures to cardiovascular disease to stroke, those people will get out of hospital sooner."

Cooking For One, Or Two, Isn't Always Difficult

By BETSY BALSLEY
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

It is a paradox. Almost half the households in the United States are now inhabited by only one or two persons, yet most recipes are meant to feed four to six. Particularly those recipes that have been family favorites for years.

So what do you do? Eat out a lot? Wear a path to your favorite takeout deli? Completely give up home cooking and turn the kitchen into a walk-in closet?

Whether you are just starting out on your own or cooking for two because the fledglings have left the nest, those who like to cook but live in small households spend a lot of time being frustrated. It is not all that easy to find recipes designed to serve just one or two. And reducing larger quantity recipes to smaller amounts is not quite as simple a project as it seems. The result too often is endless leftovers, appalling waste and a growing hate for the kitchen.

To those frustrations, add the fact that you never seem to be able to buy what you want in small quantities.

But by just shifting gears a bit and learn to revise and renew your recipe collection, you can manage.

Packaging food in meal-size portions for two before it is cooked is only one way to win this challenging battle. Some recipes, usually family favorites, simply do not lend themselves to small quantity cookery. Soups, casseroles that call for numerous ingredients, even pies — both meat-based main dishes and desserts — just do not taste the same when you try reducing the recipes. The seasonings and other ingredients balance perfectly in larger quantities but there is something lacking when you try to cut down.

In those cases plan to freeze the excess in meal-size portions after they are cooked. Then work them in to your menus over the next month or two. Just think of all the menu planning and preparation time you will save.

The following recipes will provide some interesting and appetizing meals for two. Some are quantity recipes meant to be frozen in meal-size portions; others are designed to serve two with no extra bother. Give them a try and you will find two can eat at home every bit as well as four or six or more.

BEEF PAPRIKASH FOR TWO

- 3-4 pound beef sirloin
- 2 tablespoons oil
- 1-2 cup chopped onion
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1-2 teaspoons butter or margarine
- 2 cups beef stock
- 2 tablespoons sweet Hungarian paprika
- 1-2 cup sliced mushrooms
- Salt, pepper
- 1 tablespoon flour
- 1-2 cup sour cream
- 1-2 teaspoons lemon juice
- Cooked noodles for two

Chill beef until very firm but not frozen. Slice in thin strips about 3 inches long. Brown in 1 tablespoon oil in heavy skillet. Remove beef from skillet and set aside.

Pour off excess fat. Saute onion and garlic in same skillet in remaining 1 tablespoon oil and butter until tender, but not browned. Return beef to pan and add beef stock, paprika and mushrooms. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Bring mixture to boil, reduce heat, cover and simmer until meat is tender, 45 minutes to 1 hour.

When beef is tender, stir flour into sour cream and add to beef mixture. Bring to boil and cook, stirring, until thickened. Stir in lemon juice. Serve at once over hot noodles. Makes 2 servings.

HAWAIIAN SALMON BAKE

- 1 (3-inch-wide) center cut piece salmon
 - Coarse salt
 - 1 bunch dill
 - 1 small onion, thinly sliced
- Open salmon and lay as flat as possible on 12- to 14-inch sheet of foil. Sprinkle inside of salmon lightly with coarse salt.

Remove feathery tops from dill stems and scatter tops generously over bottom half of fish. Cover with sliced onion.

Close salmon, pressing lightly, and fold foil around it, sealing well. Bake at 350 degrees 20 to 30 minutes or until salmon tests done with fork. To serve, place on warm serving plate and pour any juices in foil packet over. Makes 2 servings.

LEMONY CHICKEN THIGHS

- 2 large or 4 small boned chicken thighs
 - Salt, pepper
 - 1 large carrot
 - 1 large stalk celery
 - 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
 - 1-4 cup lemon juice
- Sprinkle chicken lightly with salt and pepper. Cut carrot and celery in to strips about 1-4 inch thick and 4 to 5 inches long. Drop vegetable strips into small amount of boiling water and boil about 2 minutes. Drain well and arrange several strips in center of each boned thigh.

Wrap chicken around strips and place, seam side down, in greased small shallow baking pan. Melt butter in small pan and stir in lemon juice. Brush chicken with butter mixture and bake at 350 degrees about 30 minutes or until chicken is done. Baste chicken occasionally with butter mixture during baking period. Makes 2 servings.

DEVILED CRAB MEAT CASSE-ROLES

- 3 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1-2 cup soft bread crumbs
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 1-4 teaspoon salt
- Dash pepper
- 1 1-2 teaspoons bottled steak sauce
- 3-4 cup milk
- 1 (6 1-2-ounce) can crab meat
- 1 1-2 teaspoons lemon juice
- Minced parsley

Melt butter. Mix 1 tablespoon butter with crumbs and set aside. Place remaining 2 tablespoons butter in small skillet and stir in flour, salt, pepper and steak sauce. Add milk. Cook and stir over low heat until thickened.

Add crab meat, lemon juice and parsley. Turn into 2 individual casseroles. Sprinkle with buttered bread crumbs. Bake at 375 to 400 degrees 10 to 15 minutes or until top is browned. Makes 2 servings.

CORNISH HENS — Stuffed cornish game hens can be great for company. One version calls for the use of apples and raisins to bread stuffing. (AP Photo)

Stuffed Cornish Hens Good For All Seasons

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
Adding apples and raisins to bread stuffing for poultry has always been popular around holiday time. But nowadays, with Golden Delicious apples available all summer because they store unusually well, the dressing combination may be enjoyed all year around.

- 1/4 cup finely chopped parsley
 - 1/2 to 1 teaspoon sage
 - 1/4 to 1/2 teaspoon thyme
 - Salt and pepper to taste
 - 6 Cornish game hens (each about 1 pound)
- Spread bread cubes in single layer on baking sheet. Toast until lightly browned in a 350-degree oven — 10 to 12 minutes; reserve.
- Melt butter in a large skillet over medium heat. Add apple, raisins, onion and celery. Cook, stirring occasionally, until apple is almost tender — 8 to 10 minutes. Stir in parsley, sage, thyme, salt, pepper and reserved bread cubes. Cook and stir 3 minutes.
- Stuff hens with bread mixture, using about 2-3rds cup for each. Place on rack and roast in a 375-degree oven until tender — 45 to 55 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

- CORNISH HENS WITH APPLE-RAISIN STUFFING
- 3 cups firm, 1/2-inch white bread cubes with crust
 - 1/2 cup butter
 - 1 large, unpeeled golden Delicious Apple, cored and cut into 1/2-inch cubes
 - 2-3rds cup raisins
 - 1/2 cup coarsely chopped onion
 - 1/2 cup thinly sliced celery

Asparagus Turns Into Money Crop

EAST MOLINE, Ill. (AP) — A year ago, Dean and Joline Oswald of Kewanee accepted an invitation from Rock Island County extension adviser Carl Cantaluppi to participate in an asparagus project.

After buying enough crowns to plant an acre of their land, Oswald, the extension adviser in Henry County, and his wife and a handful of other participants are harvesting their first asparagus crops this spring.

Other participants are establishing their first beds in hopes of reaping financial rewards a year from now.

The rewards can be great, said John Pendleton, a Lawrence, Kan., farmer and specialist in asparagus production who spoke recently at an all-day seminar on the crop at the Rock Island County Farm Bureau building.

Pendleton, who with his father operates a 1,000-acre spread in northeastern Kansas, said he had found his best moneymaking crop on the 10 acres he planted in asparagus.

The Pendletons, who raise corn, soybeans, milo, wheat and hay, as well as marketing about 300 head of cattle a year, hope to expand their asparagus field by three acres this season.

Their hybrid asparagus plants yield about 6,000 pounds per acre, 75 percent of which is marketed to customers who pick their own spears and pay $1 a pound, he said.

An additional 10 percent to 15 percent is picked by hired workers for retail sale in a converted corn bin, Pendleton said. The rest is sold wholesale to distributors.

Not only does pick-it-yourself marketing lower overhead, he said, but consumers take home more asparagus when they harvest it for themselves than when they buy it in pre-picked bundles.

Because quality deteriorates after picking, the Pendletons give customers written suggestions on preservation, mainly involving keeping the asparagus cool, but also in-

Choice Of Caterer For Special Events Should Be Based On Careful Scrutiny

By CHANGING TIMES
The Kiplinger Magazine
Whether there's a summer wedding ahead or you want to throw a party without investing lots of your time, choosing a caterer might be on your agenda.

If you decide to have an event catered, you'll need to know the kinds of services a caterer offers and how to tell a good one from an also-ran.

Part of the reason for hiring a caterer is to make an event run smoothly. Coping with catastrophe is often what separates professionals from the scores of semi-amateurs who have appeared in the last few years.

You can purchase as many or as few of a caterer's services as you like. You might want to buy the liquor yourself or hire servers on your own, leaving only the job of food preparation to the caterer. You can even save a delivery charge and pick up the food for the party yourself.

On the other hand, you can turn the whole thing over to your caterer, making her or him the "party planner." Some caterers charge for that service, with fees that range from a nominal $30 to a percentage of the tab.

Most don't charge extra for planning, although they often collect from the subcontractors — the florists, bartenders and bands — they hire. Review estimates carefully and check to see the caterer will be responsible for paying those bills. Separate billings from several firms can get confusing and lead to misunderstandings.

The cost of a caterer depends on what you serve your guests, where you serve them and the cost of a band or orchestra. Parties for 100 have cost $10,000 and more, but you can expect to pay less than $50 a person for a top-of-the-line party in many cities.

Buffets are less expensive, running from about $25 to less than $10, depending on the fare. Finger foods, dips and cheese and crackers, for example, might fetch $5 a person; roast beef or a turkey carved at the table could cost twice as much.

Foods grilled at the buffet table are popular. Also on the rise: Strolling waiters who deliver the food to your guests, who in consequence consume less food. Prices here generally range below dinners but above buffets.

For recommendations, turn to friends or colleagues who have hired a caterer. Or you can review the parties and receptions you have attended and pick names from those you liked best.

As with any other service you hire, you'll need references. Check them, and ask to see pictures of the caterer's work. You might ask a prospective caterer if you can watch the staff set up a party, although not every caterer will agree to this. Be sure to sample the food before you hire anyone.

Changing Times suggests you ask the following questions:

- If food will be transported, how will it get to you? Ask to see the trucks. Some food can spoil in a matter of minutes if improperly handled.
- What about seconds for hungry guests? Will that be included?
- Will china or paper plates be used? Silverware or plastic?
- Will guests serve themselves or will a server control portions?
- How long will a caterer serve and guarantee food on the table?

The caterer should be insured and licensed by a local board of health.

While you shouldn't be straying beyond the terms of your agreement, it's a plus for you if the caterer has a reputation for making last-minute accommodations, although they'll likely be at a cost. Be certain you know the terms of any agreement — to feed unexpected guests, for instance.

Determine who gets the leftovers. Usually you're entitled to them. Liquor is likely to belong to you if it is opened. But many caterers or the bartenders they hire will give you credit for unused bottles. Again, make the distinction clear so you're not buying stock you don't need.

Anticipate the party running long; know what it will cost and agree beforehand on the procedure you'll follow if the situation arises.

After you settle on the caterer you want, visit the site of the party together to be sure of logistics.

Always sign a contract. Expect to pay a deposit of up to 50 percent. You could forfeit that or even the entire cost of the service if you cancel just before your party. The contract should include hours of service, food costs per guest, quantities to be prepared, beverage charges, rental fees, labor costs per helper and provisions for overtime. Check to see if gratuities and taxes are included in the estimates.

No-Bake Cheesecake

By The Associated Press
The recipe:
1 and 1-3rd cups chocolate wafer cookie crumbs
1-3rd cup butter, melted
1/4 cup sugar
2 eight-ounce packages cream cheese, softened
3/4 cup chocolate liqueur (such as Chocolat)
3 squares (3 ounces) semi-sweet chocolate, melted
1/4 teaspoon vanilla
1/4 cup orange juice
1-3rd cup sugar
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
Grated rind of one small orange
Whipped cream for garnish

Combine crumbs, butter and 1/4 cup sugar. Press onto bottom and sides of a buttered 8-inch springform pan. Beat cream cheese, chocolate liqueur, melted chocolate and vanilla until smooth. In a small saucepan stir together orange juice and 1-3rd cup sugar; sprinkle with gelatin; let stand for 2 minutes; dissolve, stirring over very low heat. Cool for 1 minute, then stir into cream cheese mixture with orange rind. Pour into crust. Cover, chill for 4 hours. Remove sides of pan. Garnish with whipped cream. Makes 8 servings.

Rice Pudding Has Partner ... Strawberries And Cream

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
If you enjoy a rice pudding that has a firm texture and only a slight interlacing of custard, this recipe may appeal to you. As an accompaniment to it, there are directions for making Strawberry Cream.

The pudding is hearty enough to serve after a light main dish.

RICE CUSTARD AND STRAWBERRY CREAM

Strawberry Cream, see recipe

1 cup water
1/2 cup long-grain rice, rinsed and drained
1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 teaspoons grated lemon peel
1/4 teaspoon salt
3 large eggs
1-3rd cup sugar
1 1/4 cups milk

Prepare Strawberry Cream; cover and refrigerate.

In a 1-quart saucepan combine water, rice, butter, lemon juice, lemon peel and salt. Bring to boiling; stir with fork, cover and simmer over very low heat until rice is tender and liquid is absorbed — about 20 minutes. Remove from heat.

BAKED RICE PUDDING — Strawberry cream can go a long way toward giving a zip to baked rice pudding, especially one interlaced with a modest amount of custard. (AP Photo)

Meanwhile, in a large bowl whisk eggs and sugar to blend thoroughly; whisk in milk. Gradually stir hot rice into egg mixture. Pour into buttered 5- to 6-cup casserole or soufflé dish. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until top is golden and edges are set — 35 to 40 minutes. Cool on wire rack. Spoon warm custard into dessert dishes. Serve with chilled Strawberry Cream.

Makes 4 to 6 servings.

cluding innovations such as a recipe for asparagus ice cream.

The harvest lasts about six weeks. And once it ends, there is little other work, though the judicious application of herbicides is important in holding down weeds, Pendleton said.

Once the crop is established, annual production costs are few and the harvest is exceptionally dependable, he said.

Little Simmering Can Save Doubtful Veal

By TOM HOGE
AP Wine and Food Writer

There seems to be no limit to recipes featuring veal, and people still welcome new ones. I know I do.

Veal poses problems, however. Once the calf has passed the age of 14 weeks, veal starts to turn into beef, without the marbling of fat that makes adult beef tender.

The Recipe:

- 2 ounces butter
- 8 thin slices veal (about 1 pound)
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 4 ounces boiled rock lobster tails
- 8 thin slices black truffles (or black olive slices)
- 1 cup sauce bearnaise
- Anchovy paste

Melt butter in a saucepan. Sprinkle veal on both sides with salt and pepper. Sauté veal until brown on both sides, place veal slices on warmed serving plates, cut lobster tails into 8 equal slices. Heat lobster and truffle slices in pan drippings. Divide lobster and truffles onto veal slices. Cover with sauce bearnaise, which has been warmed. Garnish each veal slice with a ribbon of anchovy paste. Serves 4.

You, Too, Can Be Fruit Tree Expert

BETTER HOMES AND GARDENS
A Meredith Magazine

You can be an expert on fruit trees without getting a degree in horticulture. Here's a short quiz to sharpen your fruit tree IQ from Better Homes and Gardens Garden Ideas.

The Questions

1. All fruit trees require pollination (the transfer of pollen from one blossom to another) to produce a crop. The most effective fruit tree pollinator is: a. wind; b. bees; c. birds.

2. Many fruit trees are self-pollinating, meaning they don't need help from sources such as wind, bees, and birds to pollinate their blossoms: a. true; b. false.

3. Compared with the fruit on standard trees, fruits on dwarfs are: a. smaller; b. larger; c. about the same size.

4. Compared with standard trees, dwarf varieties first bear fruit: a. at the same age; b. a year or two later; c. a year or two earlier.

5. When full-grown, a standard apple tree requires a 40-foot-square area to keep healthy. This same ground space can fit: a. four dwarf trees; b. eight dwarf trees; c. 16 dwarf trees.

6. For best results, you should prune all newly planted fruit trees: a. immediately after planting; b. the first year after planting; c. the second year after planting.

7. To carry over the productive qualities of one fruit tree to another fruit tree you should: a. plant a seed from the parent tree; b. graft a limb from the parent tree; c. It's not possible to carry over the same productive qualities from one fruit tree to another.

The answers

1) b. 2) b. All fruit trees need bees for pollination. Some trees need the pollen from other trees; "self-pollinators" have pollen that can fertilize other blossoms on the same tree. 3) c. 4) c. 5) a. 6) a. 7) b. Grafting a small limb from the parent tree is the only way to produce a fruit tree that is identical to the parent tree. Seeds from a fruit of one tree will produce a tree that is very different from its parent.

DILL DRESSING
1 cup salad oil
2-3rds cup white wine vinegar
1 teaspoon salt

Finely chopped fresh dill to taste
In a screw-top jar combine oil, vinegar, salt and pepper, and dill; cover and shake well. Serve over assorted torn salad greens. Makes about 1 1/2 cups.

Which is one reason why the French have mastered the art of blanquette de veau, or simmering doubtful veal thoroughly to make sure it won't be tough. Blanquette is a white stew thickened with egg yolks and cream, plus a few drops of lemon juice.

You poach the meat for about an hour, then reduce it to below boiling point as the egg sauce is blended in to keep the mixture from curdling.

Veal is not a universal favorite in America, perhaps because of the high price. But it has long been an attraction in New Orleans, where the cuisine is mainly Continental, and it has become popular in New York and other Eastern cities where interest in European dishes has soared since World War II.

But the main problem is cost. In Italy, where pasture land is limited, farmers slaughter their calves to save fodder and make a quick profit. But on the great cattle spreads of America, where grass and grain abound, the rancher lets his cattle grow to maturity, where the meat yield is higher and more profitable.

One French specialty I like is escalopes de veau. If the price of truffles called for in the recipe is too high, you can substitute black olives.

Greens: Versatile Food That Can Taste Great

By TONI TIPTON

L.A. Times-Washington Post News Service

"I am in urgent need of recipes for dark leafy greens — mustard, chard, kale, beet greens and turnip greens," a reader writes. The problem, she says, is that the texture and taste of these items differs greatly from their distant cousin — spinach — which requires more gentle treatment than these hearty variations.

The vegetable category called "greens" is a generous one, ranging from those that are cabbagelike in texture to extremely tender varieties to those that are simply the tops of root vegetables like turnips and beets.

The best-known kinds are spinach, kale, collards, turnips, beets, chard, mustard, broccoli leaves, chicory, endive, escarole, dandelion, cress and sorrel. Many can be used interchangeably in recipes; just be sure to substitute similar textures or adjust cooking times appropriately.

Most greens are classified among the cruciferous vegetable family. These include kale, rape, collards and mustards. Dandelion greens, which surprisingly are often found growing wild in one's lawn, as well as escarole and endive, are part of the daisy family. Chard and beet greens are from the beet family.

Most are high in vitamins and minerals, with collard greens ranking highest for calcium content — a whopping 236 milligrams per half-cup serving — whereas the calcium in kale and turnip greens averages about 200 milligrams per half-cup.

Greens can be boiled, steamed, braised, sauteed or microwaved, and some can be eaten raw. They should be used within one to two days of purchase, and after cooking they freeze quite well.

The following recipes were chosen from "Farm Journal's Best-Ever Vegetable Recipes" by the food editors of Farm Journal (Doubleday; $14.95, 278 pp.) and "A World of Vegetable Cookery" by Alex D. Hawkes (Simon and Schuster; $24.95, 283 pp.). The Farm Journal cookbook includes detailed descriptions of vegetables, including seasonality, selection, storage, preparation, yield and serving suggestions. Plus, it features a microwaving chart and illustrations of each vegetable. A chapter on garnishes and some color photography supplement a large selection of recipes.

"A World of Vegetable Cookery" gives botanical information, suggestions for use and storage and some recipes. It provides illustrations of most vegetables. Plus, there is information on some new and unusual species like Hawaiian breadfruit and Japanese udo.

French Potato Salad ... A New Twist To A Favorite

By CECILY BROWNSTONE

Associated Press Food Editor
There are several kinds of potato salads. In the United States, after World War I, potato salad made with a "boiled dressing" was a favorite. Boiled dressing was basically a cream sauce to which eggs, sugar and mustard were added.

Then came the era of mayonnaise. It went into most potato salads, and sometimes it was mixed with sour cream. Nowadays it's still widely used and sometimes mixed with yogurt.

At present the French way of dressing potato salad is taking hold in the U.S.A. Its base is an oil-vinegar combination to which lots of good things such as herbs and other seasonings are added. Here is a good version of French-Style Potato Salad.

FRENCH-STYLE POTATO SALAD

- 1-4 pound small red potatoes (about 12 to 14)
- 3 tablespoons dry white wine
- 1-4 cup light olive oil
- 2 tablespoons white wine vinegar
- 2 teaspoons Dijon-style mustard
- 1-2 to 1 teaspoon tarragon, if desired
- 1-4 to 1-2 teaspoon pepper
- Salt, to taste
- 2 scallions, thinly sliced
- 1-4 cup parsley leaves, finely chopped
- Boston lettuce

In a 2- to 3-quart saucepan with a tight-fitting lid, cook potatoes in about 1 inch boiling water just until tender — about 15 minutes. Drain and cool slightly; cut into 1-4-inch slices. Drizzle wine over potatoes; toss gently and reserve.

FRENCH SALAD — An old favorite, potato salad, takes on a new taste when it's finished off with an oil-vinegar dressing instead of mayonnaise. It's now a popular item in the United States. (AP Photo)

In a small bowl whisk together oil, vinegar, mustard, tarragon, pepper and salt; stir in scallion and parsley. Pour dressing over reserved potatoes; toss gently to coat.

Arrange on lettuce on a serving platter. Serve at room temperature.

Makes 4 servings.

Kamman's Celery, Raisin And Walnuts Dish For Poultry

- 5 large ribs celery
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1/4 cup dark raisins, soaked 1 hour in lukewarm water and drained
- 1/4 cup chopped walnuts
- Salt
- Pepper from the mill
- 2 tablespoons chopped parsley

Peel the celery ribs of all their superficial fibers. Cut the ribs across into 1/4-inch-thick half-moons. Blanch them for 1 minute in boiling salted water so they turn bright green. Drain well, pat dry.

Heat the butter in a skillet; add celery, raisins and walnuts. Toss in the hot butter until well heated through. Add the salt, pepper and parsley and serve quickly.

Makes 4 to 6 servings. From "Madeleine Cooks" by Madeleine Kamman (Morrow).

DELICIOUS COMBINATION — Celery, raisins and walnuts make a great side dish to serve with poultry. This is one of the recipes prepared by French culinary star Madeleine Kamman. (AP Photo)

she was a young Frenchwoman, about 25 years ago, and she and her husband raised their family here. Eventually her husband's work took him to Massachusetts and she founded her famous cooking school and restaurant in that state.

Several years ago she returned to France, conducting her cooking school there. But apparently the United States beckoned, and now she is once more a vital part of the American culinary scene. These days she lives in Glen, N.H., where she continues to teach and where she has opened a new restaurant.

"Madeleine Cooks" was prepared as a companion volume to a series of Mrs. Kamman's television shows. It offers easily prepared recipes based on her French skills and exquisite taste along with her respect for American ingredients and up-to-date health considerations.

Prunes And Meat It's Quite A Twosome

By The Associated Press
Prunes and meat have been recognized as a delicious twosome by at least two cuisines.

In Scandinavia, a favorite main dish is made by inserting prunes into a loin of pork before cooking on top of the range or in the oven.

In Jewish cookery, a popular main dish is made with pot-roasted beef plus onion, carrot and seasonings to which prunes are added.

In my own household I often serve roast chicken with a go-along of Prunes in Port. The combination works well. To lighten the prunes, I sometimes use a garnish of membrane-free orange sections.

PRUNES IN PORT

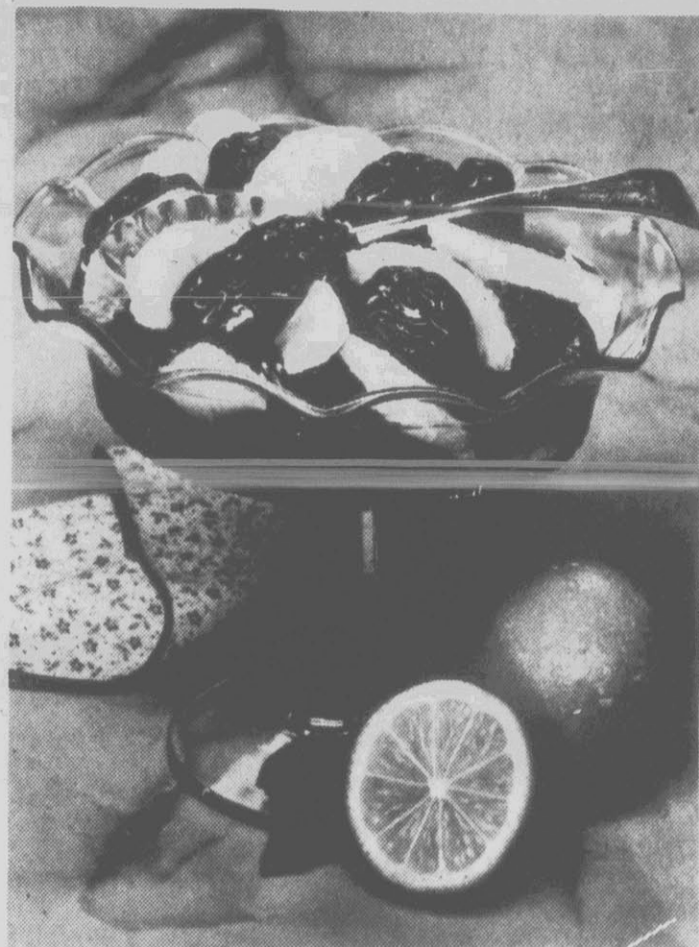

- 1 1/2 cups tawny port
- 1/2 cup water
- 2 tablespoons honey
- 12-ounce package pitted prunes
- 1 tablespoon orange juice
- Membrane-free orange sections

In a 2-quart saucepan over low heat stir together port, water and honey. Stir in prunes; bring to a boil, simmer until prunes are tender but not soft — about 15 minutes. With a slotted spoon remove prunes.

Over medium heat, bring liquid in saucepan to a boil; boil until reduced by one-third. Off heat, stir in orange juice; pour over prunes. Cool, cover and chill.

Prunes may be stored in the refrigerator for several weeks. Serve as an accompaniment to poultry or pork. Garnish with fresh orange sections.

Makes 4 servings.

PRUNES IN COMBINATION — Prunes in Port may be garnished with fresh orange sections and served with a roast chicken. Some cooks also serve prunes with a loin of pork or with pot-roasted beef. (AP Photo)

SWISS CHARD MORNYAY

- 2 pounds Swiss chard
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - 5 tablespoons butter
 - 3 tablespoons flour
 - 2 cups milk
 - 1-4 cup shredded Swiss cheese
 - 1-4 cup grated Parmesan cheese
 - 1-4 cup soft bread crumbs
- Wash chard well and drain. Cut off stalks and cut into 1-inch pieces. Coarsely chop leaves. Bring 1 inch water to boil in Dutch oven over high heat. Add chard stalks and 1-2 teaspoon salt. Reduce heat to medium and simmer, covered, 5 minutes. Stir in chopped chard leaves. Cover and cook 3 to 5 minutes longer or until leaves are wilted and stalks are tender. Drain well.

Melt 3 tablespoons butter in 2-quart saucepan over medium heat. Stir in flour and 1-2 teaspoon salt until smooth. Gradually stir in milk until smooth. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture boils and thickens. Remove from heat.

Stir in chard and cheeses, then turn into 2-quart casserole sprayed with non-stick coating spray. Top with bread crumbs, dot with remaining 2 tablespoons butter and bake at 425 degrees 15 to 20 minutes or until bubbly. Makes 6 servings.

Alsation Sauerkraut Dish

By TOM HOGE

AP Wine and Food Writer

Alsace is a province I remember well from my travels through France some years ago.

A storybook land with cobbled streets and a rich dairy country, Alsace has a cuisine that features many German dishes, reflecting the years it was under German domination, along with neighboring Lorraine.

Alsace is known for its crusty breads, its croissants covered with coarse sugar and its creamy muenster cheese. It is also renowned for its vineyards.

My favorite Alsation dish is a mixture of sauerkraut simmered in gewurztraminer wine with several varieties of pork.

This culinary delight is called Choucroute Garnie, and here is the recipe.

- 1 1/2 pounds sauerkraut
- 4 ounces lard
- 4 ounces onion, sliced fine
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 8 ounces gewurztraminer
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 3/4 pound lean smoked loin of pork, uncooked
- Pinch thyme
- 1 bay leaf
- 2 cloves
- 1/2 ounce juniper berries
- 1/2 pound knockwurst

- 1/2 pound boiled ham, diced
- 1 pound peeled potatoes

Wash sauerkraut in warm water and strain. In large casserole, simmer onion in lard 10 minutes, add garlic and simmer 3 more minutes.

Add wine, sauerkraut, salt and pepper, and mix. Add loin of pork and spices, wrapped in cheesecloth. Add water up to 2 inches below level of kraut. Bring to boil, cover and place in 400-degree oven for about two hours, until meat is cooked, adding water if needed. Fifteen minutes before dish is ready, add knockwurst and ham. Cook potatoes separately. Pile kraut on platter and surround with potatoes and sliced meat. Serves 4.

From mid-May to early July, JCPenney will highlight the American Lifestyle, with special emphasis on products made, designed or styled in America. If it's bright, lively, fashionable and filled with value, we have it.

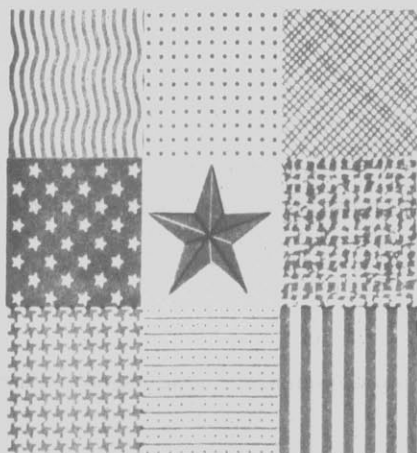

Since 1902, our objective has been to pack the customer's dollar with value and excitement. Today, we serve customers in every state of this great country. You have made us the nation's department store.

Celebrating American Style not only allows us to bring to you a collection of exciting merchandise, but enables us to salute the great American industries who helped us grow. Among retailers, we have always been a leader in support of "American-made" so a strong majority of our merchandise is manufactured in the United States. Of course, there are items which are simply not made in this country or are so outstanding as values, that we offer them to you as well.

From special savings on famous American names like the exciting new bedroom coord. set group, Victoria (cover) to our famous JCPenney Towel (see page 3) with hundreds of great buys in between, we at JCPenney are celebrating this wonderful phenomenon we call American Style. Join us.
