Two Youths Survive In Snow

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Two teen-agers who survived more than three days buried in a snow cave on Mount Hood with six companions were reported slowly improving today, and doctors said they were optimistic that both would recover.

Their companions, two adults and four youngsters, were pronounced dead Thursday after being found in the cave, dug in an effort to escape a savage snowstorm that enveloped the mountain during an annual school outing.

The cave was discovered by a rescuer who poked through 4-5 feet of snow on the treacherous slopes, 8,300 feet up the 11,235-foot mountain, and struck a backpack. It was just five feet from where the body of another member of the outing was discovered Wednesday.

Of the 13 climbers who began hiking up the mountain Monday, four survived, including an adult and a girl who walked out Tuesday seeking help.

The teen-agers who survived in the snow cave were identified as Giles Thompson, 16, of Longview, Wash., and Brinton Clark, 15, of Portland.

Thompson was "somewhat surprised that he was alive" when he woke up at Providence Medical center, said Dr. Gregory Lorts. The youth was taken off a heart-lung machine Thursday night, and Dr. Duane S. Bietz said he had an 80 percent chance of surviving.

"When he did awake from the anesthetic and the cardiac bypass he related some information that he thought he was dead," Lorts said today.

"In questioning him, I understand he is able to nod, blink his eyes in the affirmative, he does understand what's going on. As you may know, he is on a ventilator, which means he is unable to speak because of the breathing tube. Hopefully that will be removed as the day goes on."

Miss Clark was in stable condition today, said Dr. Ben Bachulis, chief of surgery at Emanuel Hospital. The girl was said to be in the better shape of the two survivors.

"She's combative and we are very, very optimistic that she'll recover," said Dr. Clark Chipman, chief of the emergency department. He said the girl's temperature was almost back to normal, and Dr. William Long, head of the trauma program, said she could be out of the hospital in a week if there are no complications.

Bachulis told ABC's "Good Morning America" that "it was really quite surprising" that Miss Clark's body temperature when she entered the hospital, about 73 degrees, was so much higher than that of the three students brought to the hospital the day before, who all died. Their temperatures were about 42 degrees, he said.

Neither survivor appeared to have suffered brain damage, but Long said the girl probably won't recall anything of her ordeal.

"Perhaps nature is kind that way," he said. "I would be amazed if she remembered anything."

"Give the fact that they were in such extreme conditions for two, three days, I think the whole situa-

School Board, Lawyers Study Options On County Elections

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Education met with lawyers in a closed session Thursday afternoon to review its options in light of a U.S. Justice Department ruling that says an at-large method of electing members of the board is not acceptable and is "legally unenforceable."

While no action was taken by the board following the review, sources close to the schools said board members were to consider the alternatives outlined by the lawyers and possibly meet again next week.

The Justice Department's ruling on the county school board came in a letter last week which said the at-large method of election for the consolidated school board — created to plan the proposed merger of Pitt and Greenville school systems — as well as the existing county board are racially discriminatory and cannot be approved.

Because of the at-large election method — saying it does not comply with the 1965 Voting Rights Act because it makes it "virtually impossible for black voters in the county to participate meaningfully in the school board elections" — the Justice Department letter voiced objection to the plan that would merge Pitt and Greenville schools July 1.

School Superintendent Eddie West said this morning that, because of its objection to the method of election, the Justice Department has "definitely created an impediment to consolidation, but one which is not insurmountable."

"I am confident," West continued, "that with the assistance of our very capable legal counsel that consolidation will be effectuated."

West declined to say what options were outlined by lawyers during the executive session.

The consolidated board, to govern merger of the city and county school systems, was created by adding four members of the Greenville school board to the eight-member county board.

But troubles developed when a group of blacks — the Concerned Citizens for Justice — accused the city and county school boards of operating illegally by creating the consolidated board, and said changes made to board structure in the 1960s and 1970s were made without Justice Department approval.

Then the Justice Department, after an informal review, agreed to overlook the alleged violations if three minority members were added to the consolidated board. So the General Assembly added three blacks to the consolidated board in legislation which said the two school systems were to merge July 1 of this year.

Last week's letter from the Justice Department was in response to a July 1985 application for preclearance — or approval — of the merger legislation.

In addition to saying the at-large method of election is unacceptable, the Justice Department letter termed the appointment of three blacks to the consolidated board "an apparent effort to cure the disparate racial impact of the election method in the merger legislation." The letter added that the "Voting Rights Act does not envision that the discriminatory impact of election procedures will be overcome by racially based appointments."

Lawmakers Cautious On Funding For Roads

By DON REUTER

Some Pitt County legislators say they're holding back support for Gov. Jim Martin's proposed highway financing plan until they've had a chance to review it in the 1986 short session scheduled to begin next month.

Related story on page 6

"At this point, I want to keep my options open and look at pros and cons," said state Rep. Walter B. Jones Jr., D-Pitt. "We all know we're short on highway funds. We will all absolutely discuss and debate and try to find some solution for the shortage of highway dollars."

"I'm sensitive to the needs of new monies for highway construction," state Sen. Tom Taft, D-Pitt, said. "I'm not yet persuaded that it is right thing to do to transfer money from the General Fund for that purpose because that money would come right out of the education budget."

Meanwhile, Sen. Robert L. Martin, D-Pitt, said he still needs to examine the proposal, but he likes the concept.

SCHOLARS' BANQUET — Area educational and civic leaders spoke Thursday night to 69 high school students who completed the requirements of the scholar's program sponsored by the State Board of Education. Students receiving certificates of recognition included Tama

Certificates Presented To 69 Pitt Students In N.C. Scholars Program

By HAROLD JOYNER
Reflector Staff Writer

Local educators and civic leaders told 69 high school students who were named North Carolina Scholars and their parents to continue the challenge of gaining a record many students would never attain.

"You represent the very tip top of the class," said David J. Whichard II, president and editor of The Daily Reflector.

Whichard said that out of 100 students who begin the ninth grade, only 70 students will have completed the requirements for a high school diploma.

"You have persevered. You have achieved. And collectively, you stand at the head of the class," he said.

The N.C. Scholars Program, which was initiated in 1983, gives students the incentive to complete the State Board of Education requirements for a challenging high school program. Students are presented a seal of recognition attached to their diplomas upon completion of their work.

In addition to subscribing to a set of required classes, the students must have maintained a B or better grade point average in high school to be eligible for the award.

In Pitt County, scholars from the five area high schools were presented certificates for achievements at the Greenville Golf and Country Club Thursday night.

One student from Ayden-Grifton High School said she had taken most of the required classes before the program started, except for an extra science.

"It's really an honor," said Camille Dixon, who said she plans to enroll at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, and eventually go into a program of pharmacy.

The two plans prescribed by the State Board is offered to any Pitt County high school student and may include up to four units of math and English, three sciences and social studies, two foreign languages, one health and physical education, vocational education and arts education. The other plans allows a concentration in one or more program areas, and the requirements may differ, but the students still said they were glad they took the extra effort to complete the work.

"I'm glad they started the program," said Amanda Johnson, a student at J.H. Rose High School.

Bargain Hunters Flocking To Shopping Area

By EDWIN Q. WHITE
Associated Press Writer

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — They may not be sure of the proper pronunciation or the exact location, but many foreigners already have one shopping area high on their list when they hit Seoul these days.

While it is touted in some travel literature and advertisements, word-of-mouth seems to play a large role in spreading the fame of Itaewon, place of bargains.

Regular tourists, official visitors and delegations often get off the airplane or reach their hotels talking about getting to Itaewon quickly. Advance parties for VIPs have been known to carry out excursions that resembled polite pillage, scooping up goods bearing brand names at a fraction of the cost back home. The brands may not mean anything more than a good copying job, but the price is right.

Favorites these days include sportswear, especially jogging outfits and shoes that will fit the largest Western frames and feet, an unusual feature in much of Asia. Then there are jackets going for $4 or $5 under a name that reportedly brings $35 stateside, sports shirts in the same category, jeans with a designer scrawl on the hip, suits off the rack or tailored in a few hours, leather coats, duck down coats, and on and on, with all the accessories.

There is furniture featuring graceful Korean lines, brass ranging from beds to belt buckles, jewelry emphasizing local amethyst and topaz. There are toys, row upon row of a doll said to be hard to find and hard to pay for back in the States. No problem here. There are silks, ceramics, eel skin and other leathers for shoes, handbags, wallets. Something for almost anyone, some of it good, some of it junk.

Located on the southern flank of Namsan (South Mountain) in the center of the South Korean capital, Itaewon long has been a center for foreigners. Historians say that following one of the Japanese invasions in 1592-1598, the area now known as Itaewon came to be called Itain or Itain Dong, meaning foreigners' village, because of quarters on the site for Japanese troops.

Today the U.S. military's Yongsan Garrison is adjacent. Some of the red brick buildings still in use by Americans there date back to Japanese colonial times that ended in 1945. In addition to the nearby U.S. military, many foreign businessmen, diplomats and others live in the high-rise apartments, villas or more modest accommodations of the Itaewon area.

Along with the shopping, there are other attractions for the foreigner and many Koreans, especially the younger generation. Itaewon has become a center of fast food outlets familiar to stateside eyes and tastes. After nightfall, the bars and clubs come alive. There is hard rock, country and western and everything between. Often raucous, sometimes rough.

But in the past couple of years, Itaewon has been changing. Some of it is officially inspired, part of the all-out effort by Korean authorities to put on what they consider the best face possible for the Asian Games this year and the Olympics in 1988.

The street stalls and pushcart peddlers still can be found with no trouble, but more and more shopping center-type buildings are going up. The street and sidewalk hawkers get a hard time from police more often than in the past. You can still haggle, walk away and get called back or pursued, but more and more fixed-price tags are going up in more places.

English, usually a Korean patois, remains the going and working language. The U.S. dollar continues to have its Itaewon acceptability, more often encouragement. Prices are often posted in dollars rather than the Korean won.

But the face of Itaewon is changing. Along with the rush to put up the multistory shopping structures, roads and sidewalks have been widened and resurfaced. Many of the winding alleyways are gone or giving way along with the flimsy shops that lined them. There are dire predictions of so-called progress bringing an end to a colorful area and an era. Even worse, there are forecasts that prices may climb to the levels of the luxury department stores or fancy shopping centers in the suburban apartment areas.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

Hurry Up And Slow Down Is Good Advice

DEAR ABBY: You missed the mark in your response to "The Mrs. in 'Orlando,'" whose husband wouldn't slow down. I've spent 34 years running after a husband who is in a hurry to get to the car, get up from the table, rush to the check-out counter, etc., and I'm tired of it.

Most of the time he has to wait until I get there anyway to leave or set out for wherever we're going. He simply doesn't see his actions as being inconsiderate.

That poem, "Slow Me Down, Lord," was beautiful, but it was too long. A man in a hurry would never get past the second line.

TAGALONG

DEAR TAGALONG: Sorry, I received a lot of positive feedback on that poem. A "rebuttal" from a retired woman in Anaheim:

DEAR ABBY: Not all retirees continue the frantic pace of "The Mrs. in Orlando." Some seniors have the opposite problem; we have trouble "getting energized." For us I paraphrased the Rev. Peterson's poem, "Slow Me Down, Lord," as follows:

Speed me up, Lord!
Start the pounding of my heart
And concentration of my mind.
Quicken my slow pace
With a vision of my limited earthly time.

Give me,
Amid the confusions of my day,
The calm of self-chosen priorities.
Break the spell of quietness;
Let not soothing music or television

Keep me from activities.
Help me know
When to wake up,
When I've had sufficient sleep.
Teach me the art
Of channeling my energy
So I get things done —
And still have time
For flowers and friends,
Pets and children, smiles and books.

Remind me each day
That there is more to life
Than "sitting around."
Let me look upward
Into the branches of the towering oak

And know that it is still producing.
Speed me up, Lord,
And inspire me to spend my strength wisely,

Remembering life's important values
That I may meet more challenges
And fulfill a greater destiny.

THREE SCORE AND FOUR IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR ABBY: You credited "Slow Me Down, Lord" to the Rev. Wilferd A. Peterson. It seems to me that it was written by the late Cardinal Richard Cushing of Boston, who died in 1970.

COULD BE MISTAKEN

DEAR COULD BE: The poem was erroneously credited to the late Cardinal Cushing by others — not by the cardinal himself — but it was in fact written by the Rev. Wilferd A. Peterson, who is well and alive at 85 in Grand Rapids, Mich.

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter signed "Annoyed Canadian" in the Nassau Daily Tribune. The Canadian was annoyed because Americans know so little about his country.

Here in the Bahamas we are only 50 miles off the south Florida coast; we are a prime vacation spot and cater to over a million visitors each year — mostly from the United States.

You would be surprised at some of the comments we hear: "How come you speak English so well? We expected you to speak a kind of broken Spanish." "When did you stop wearing grass skirts and living in tree houses?" "Why, you're actually driving cars and you dress the way we dress!"

Here in the Bahamas we realize that no harm is meant — these people simply don't know any better — so we simply grin and bear it.

Oregon Pharmacist's Wrinkle Cream Great Success

It's an exciting story of a pharmacist who developed a wrinkle cream which women all over the country are clamoring for.

Dr. Robert Heldfond, a Portland pharmacist, used knowledge from pharmacy school and years of experience, to compound EB5, a wrinkle cream he started selling in his drugstore and which is now making cosmetic history across the nation.

Women started coming to Heldfond's pharmacy when the word got around about its wonderful results in helping women look younger. The phones never stopped ringing and letters poured in praising the results with EB5 cream.

Research lab tests show that by using EB5 cream morning and night, facial lines, lines around the eyes, lines on the forehead and around the mouth are smoothed.

Deaver Says He Never Traded On Reagan 'Relationship'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former White House aide Michael K. Deaver, saying he "never traded on my relationship" with President Reagan, told a closed House hearing today that his activities as a private lobbyist had not violated conflict-of-interest laws.

Deaver told the panel that such allegations were "both groundless and impertinent" and "obviously politically motivated and calculated to damage me and my former colleagues and friends still in government service."

Deaver said the suggestion that he would use his 20-year relationship with Reagan "for personal gain is not only mean-spirited, but is also an implicit attack on the integrity of the president."

"I have never traded on my relationship with the president for any client — and I never will," Deaver said in a statement handed out to reporters as he was delivering it in the closed hearing.

"I have absolutely never taken advantage of that personal relationship — nor have I ever been accused of such until recently."

Speaking to reporters as he entered the hearing room, Deaver said, "After five months of innuendos and leaks, it's my turn today."

The Energy and Commerce oversight and investigations subcommittee planned to question Deaver about his lobbying activities for Canada and other countries, as well as his representation of domestic companies, according to panel counsel Michael F. Barrett Jr.

Deaver already has been investigated by the General Accounting Office, Congress' investigative arm, which concluded he may have violated conflict-of-interest laws. The Justice Department is conducting an inquiry to determine whether an independent counsel should be requested to conduct a further investigation.

Rep. Ron Wyden, D-Ore., a member of the subcommittee, said he is not only concerned with possible violations of the law, but with appearances of former top officials returning to lobby the government.

"This is really going to take its toll on our system of government because of the increase in public cynicism," Wyden said in an interview.

"My constituents are not asking about Section 207 (the conflict-of-interest provisions in the law), but saying, 'Is this really the normal way things are being done in Washington? Lobbyists owe more than to avoid committing felonies.'"

Deaver, who was deputy chief of staff to President Reagan until May 10, 1985, said in a newspaper interview last Wednesday, "I haven't violated any law" and "I didn't use my influence with the president or the White House at any time."

But he has not told his story directly to Congress, and he complained that the GAO never interviewed him before reaching its conclusions and turning them over to the Justice Department.

Possible violations occurred, the GAO said, when Deaver lobbied on Canada's behalf for a joint U.S.-Canadian effort to combat acid rain. Deaver had participated in meetings on the acid rain issue while still in the White House.

Federal law bars former executive branch officials from ever lobbying the government on a "particular matter" in which they "personally and substantially" participated as U.S. employees.

Wholesale Prices Maintain Decline

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices, down four months straight for the first time in more than two decades, dipped 0.6 percent in April as the benefits from depressed world oil prices rippled through the economy, the government said today.

The decline, led by an 8.4 percent drop in energy prices, came amid indications that the skid may be ending. But the news for April was good: gasoline prices off 10.4 percent; heating oil costs off 8.7 percent; natural gas prices off 5.6 percent.

More good news: The Commerce

Department said the lowest mortgage rates of the decade pushed housing starts up 4.1 percent in April, the fourth month new construction has been above an annual level of 1.9 million units.

So far this year, wholesale prices overall have fallen at an annual rate of 11.1 percent, the steepest four-month fall recorded since such calculations began in 1947. Not since the period of December 1962-March 1963 have wholesale prices been off for such a long period.

At the White House, presidential spokesman Edward Djerejian commented that "the unprecedented assault on inflation now finds the index at its lowest level since November 1983."

Gasoline prices had fallen 21.9 percent in March. Home heating oil had been down 6 percent that month and 26.2 percent in February.

But analysts generally predict that oil and gasoline prices would begin slowly inching up in May — ending the record run of price drops as the peak travel period begins.

All the figures, contained in the Labor Department's Producer Price Index, are adjusted to remove seasonal factors that affect price behavior.

The overall April drop is equivalent to a compounded annual decline of 7.2 percent.

In other areas of the economy, there were signs of inflation.

Food prices inched up 0.1 percent, one-third of the March increase.

"Energy has already bottomed out. But I don't expect the (index) to show that until May. The May figures may not be that good."

Road Fangs

People who are complaining the 1983 Safe Roads Act is not seeing enough arrests and convictions blame it on a shortage of law enforcement officers. The ideal of safer roads was not enough.

Yet, from available statistics, they are getting safer roads than existed before 1983. According to Division of Motor Vehicles figures, the number of alcohol-related accidents in 1984 fell 5 percent from the 1983 figure, and another 3 percent last year. Those percentages represent some significant real numbers.

It is not essential to count an increased number of arrests and convictions to conclude the law is doing what it's supposed to do. The real payoff is when there is evidence fewer drinking drivers are involved in traffic accidents.

There's an admitted shortage of law enforcement officers (making arrests less likely) but no motorist in the land is going to deliberately take the unnecessary risk of encountering patrolmen who have one of the highest DWI arrest rates in the country.

The Safe Roads Act wears fangs and there are a lot of people too scared to take chances.

Conviction for driving while impaired may be a financial disaster for the guilty party. He (or she) first faces court fees. Under state law the minimum is a $100 fine, a $100 fee for the Alcohol-Drug Education Traffic School and community service and $37 in court costs. Depending on the case, the fine could go as high as $2,000; and if jail time is ordered, the offender pays for that, too.

There's more. A driver with a .10 percent blood-alcohol content and charged with DWI automatically loses his license for 10 days and must pay $24 to get it back.

Then, there's lawyer's fees. But the real hurting begins with the insurance premiums.

A DWI conviction gives the offender 10 of a maximum 12 insurance points and a standard insurance premium can zoom as much as 450 percent and stay there for three years.

Just knowing those things could happen must have created a lot of second thoughts among potential drunken drivers and is one of the best deterrents we're likely to find.

Mothers Against Drunk Driving has another approach they'd like to see adopted in North Carolina: extending to 30 days the present 10-day license revocation.

There's a lot of reasons why a motorist would play it safe.

Leadership

Dr. Paul Spangler, a "young 87 years old," stopped moving long enough last week to talk about aging and exercise and good health as well as running.

When he isn't running in marathons or some kind of organized race, he is doing about seven miles of running a day on weekdays. His weekends are frequently devoted to competition.

Spangler got into running about 20 years ago because he was afraid of coronary heart disease. It's very obvious he has been outrunning the ailment he dreads.

A lot of his spare time is given to a lecture schedule that includes college students as well as senior citizens, cardiac patients and athletes.

He appears to never lack for listeners and one extra factor in his favor is the embellishment of meeting an old admonition "physician, heal thyself."

A man of Spangler's qualifications gives his profession a touch of added embellishment because he demonstrates some doctors actually follow their own advice.

Gorbachev Breaks The Silence

MOSCOW (AP) — Mikhail S. Gorbachev's first statement on the Chernobyl accident mixed pride in Soviet heroism and skillful political proposals apparently aimed at recovering from any diplomatic damage caused by the disaster.

Gorbachev appeared on national television Wednesday night after more than two weeks of silence on the nuclear power plant accident, a period in which the Soviets weathered a storm of criticism for the way they informed the world.

Western diplomats here and politicians abroad suggested Gorbachev's effort to cultivate a new image of openness, honesty and computer-age sensibility would be damaged by the fact that the Kremlin reacted to Chernobyl in the old way — by ringing down the curtain of secrecy.

Gorbachev appeared able, measured and concerned. He did not lay any blame on Soviets, but had cutting words for those in the West who he said built a "mountain of lies" over the tragedy.

He said nine people had died and 299 were hospitalized after an explosion and fire at Chernobyl's reactor No. 4 early April 26 which forced the evacuation of about 90,000 people living within an 18-mile radius of the plant 80 miles north of Kiev, the Ukrainian capital of 2.4 million.

The reactor fire also spewed an invisible cloud of radioactivity that gradually has spread around the world after covering much of Europe, where some foodstuffs were contaminated.

Striking back at charges that the initial silence cast doubt on Soviet reliability on arms control, Gorbachev portrayed the Kremlin as an injured party in the incident.

He accused the United States and the NATO allies of exploiting the situation to stall disarmament talks and said international cooperation could prevent accidents like Chernobyl.

The disaster, he said, "was a grim warning that the nuclear age necessitates a new political thinking and a new policy."

"The accident at the Chernobyl station and the reaction to it have become a kind of test of political morality," Gorbachev said. "Once again two different approaches, two different lines of conduct were revealed for everyone to see."

Gorbachev struck a forthright tone for domestic audiences, describing the accident simply and clearly and giving details on casualties. He also said the Politburo took full responsibility "into its hands" for round-the-clock damage control efforts.

Gorbachev said the area of the plant is still dangerous, but the picture he painted was that catastrophe was avoided and the worst is behind — thanks to the heroism of all, including the army.

Unlike other officials, Gorbachev didn't pin the blame on local men who are being accused of underestimating the scope of the disaster. He thanked those who offered help, including American doctors now working in Moscow on bone marrow transplants.

"I must say that people have acted and are continuing to act heroically, selflessly," Gorbachev said. "A stern test has been passed and is being passed by all."

In a deft political gesture, Gorbachev said the Chernobyl tragedy had prompted the Soviet Union to extend its moratorium on nuclear testing until Aug. 6, the first anniversary of the testing halt and the 41st anniversary of the U.S. atomic bombing of Hiroshima.

He has already extended the moratorium twice, but said in April he no longer felt bound by it because of continued U.S. testing in Nevada.

Gorbachev also reiterated his offer to meet with President Reagan in Europe as soon as possible to discuss a permanent, comprehensive test ban. In a casual but obviously calculated gesture, he added that the two leaders also could talk in Hiroshima.

Gorbachev made a series of proposals for international control of atomic energy that seemed aimed at reassuring the international community, especially western Europe, that the Soviets are open to cooperation and concerned about safety.

They included:
— A new warning and information system about nuclear power accidents, especially those involving radioactive leaks.

This seemed to suggest that news of Chernobyl was delayed because of the lack of an international reporting mechanism, and not because the Kremlin held news back.

Deaver Is Unguided Missile

WASHINGTON — Michael K. Deaver was transformed from door-opener de luxe to unguided lobbying missile in March when he submitted to Budget Director James Miller technical questions involving national security secrets that sought to compare the existing B-1 bomber with its successor, the still classified Stealth bomber.

Those questions are in the hands of the House Energy and Commerce subcommittee that was conducting its first closed-door session today. They went unanswered by Miller. That averts possible charges of industrial espionage and passing government secrets.

But no longer can it be claimed that ex-White House aide Deaver was not an active lobbyist in behalf of Rockwell International's efforts to build additional B-1 bombers. It also suggests the longtime friend and helper of Ron and Nancy Reagan is an unguided missile in his new profession.

It was the revelation of Deaver's March visit to Miller's office next door to the White House that triggered the spreading investigation. He has denied violating federal law that prohibits ex-officials from lobbying their former agencies for two years; Deaver insisted he did not consider Miller's Office of Management and Budget (OMB) part of the White House. Deaver has called his meeting with Miller "informational."

What he did not say is that he was seeking highly sensitive "information" at OMB. Rockwell International supplied him a list of questions that could be construed as an argument for the B-1 against the Stealth. According to two separate sources who have read the questions, the last several concerned Stealth performance and contained classified national security information. One source believes the inquiry into Stealth, produced by the rival Northrop Corp., could be labeled industrial espionage.

Deaver alerted Miller during their meeting that he would submit questions in writing, an OMB official told us. And the budget chief made no response. Nor were the questions answered after Deaver submitted them. In any event, Miller was not capable of answering the questions, and such information would not conceivably have been supplied him by the Pentagon under need-to-know regulations.

Deaver's office said it would not respond to questions until after the House hearing. A Rockwell spokesman in Washington said the company prepared the list "to help familiarize" Deaver with "the nation's bomber fleet," adding that "there was clearly no intention that the questions be used to obtain classified data." An OMB spokesman stressed that Deaver's questions went unanswered: "There are no embarrassing questions, only embarrassing answers," he said.

The image of Mike Deaver, the most skilled political advance man of the '80s who became famous fulfilling the needs of the Reagans and now wants to become rich, juggling military secrets testifies to his trouble filling his new role as military lobbyist. He was in the wrong office saying the wrong things to the wrong man.

Nor did Rockwell contract to pay what one company official estimated as a $250,000 retainer for nuts-and-bolts lobbying with Cabinet-level officials. It wanted somebody to open the Oval Office door.

For the past two decades, Rockwell International has been punctilious in its Washington operations. But the company's future was at risk in the B-1 vs. Stealth struggle, which has split the national defense community. Northrop clearly was winning.

So, when Rockwell's chairman and chief executive officer, Robert W. Anderson, last year noted Deaver was leaving the White House, he wanted to retain the man who clearly had not cut his intimate ties with the White House. But the notion of Mike Deaver going into the Oval Office to convince the president to persuade Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger to overrule his Pentagon and build extra B-1 bombers suggests a C.E.O. fantasy world.

There is no sign Deaver even tried getting Anderson a presidential audience. According to insiders, he specialized in giving Rockwell "strategic" advice about Cap Weinberger's importance and the need to contact key congressional figures. That produced grumbling inside Rockwell that he was not earning his keep. When Deaver appeared holding his car phone on a Time cover captioned "who's this man calling?," his new colleagues cracked that it was Deaver calling Rockwell to ask for his check.

Deaver's visit to OMB was his own idea, Rockwell insiders told us. The trouble is he really didn't know much about bomber technology or defense procurement (It was an aide, not Deaver, who took copious notes when he was briefed at Rockwell's Washington office).

So, when Deaver asked for something on paper to show Miller, the telltale questions were retrieved from the Rockwell files. The super advance man, of whom it was said by associates that he would not know substance if it hit him in the face, had blundered into Pentagon high-tech when what his clients really wanted was some doors opened — one in particular.

Arms Deal Draws Opposition

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fighting an uphill battle against powerful pro-Israel interests in an election year, President Reagan is trying to salvage a plan to restock Saudi Arabia's arsenals, a proposal rejected by Congress last week while he was attending a summit meeting in Tokyo.

"Let them just wait 'til the old man gets home, and see what happens to them," Reagan said as he left Japan.

Now that he's home, however, his aides are finding that despite Reagan's determination to wage an all-out effort to turn the tide, the administration is finding stiff resistance even in the Republican-controlled Senate, where administration strategists believe they have their only chance for victory.

The legislative procedure under which the $354 million weapons package was proposed gave both the House and Senate a turn to reject it, then Reagan a chance to veto the rejection and the two houses an opportunity to override his veto by a two-thirds margin in each chamber.

If the White House can muster more than one-third of those voting in the 100-member Senate, therefore, Saudi Arabia will be permitted to buy the U.S.-built Stinger anti-aircraft missiles and other weapons in the resupply package.

One senior official, speaking on condition he not be identified, said administration lobbyists believe they are within eight votes of the number required to sustain the president's veto, which is expected to come sometime this week. But those are senators who must, in effect, admit they voted wrong the first time, a particularly difficult turnaround to make in a congressional election year.

"The pressure (to vote down the arms sale) is really there; believe me, it's there," the official said, despite relatively mild opposition from the American-Israel Public Affairs Committee, the richest and most powerful of the pro-Israeli interest groups.

Mari Maseng, who took over just this week as head of White House liaison with outside interest groups, has been assigned to try to mute the opposition of other Jewish organizations more active in fighting the Saudi sale.

"We don't have it," another White House aide said. "When you have an issue as emotional as this one, it's tough to do."

But Dennis Thomas, a top White

House strategist, said Reagan wants the arms package as "a demonstration of the fact that those of our Arab friends who want to do business with us can, that we can perform on our commitments, that we can be a reliable partner and that we can have a positive relationship with countries that have tried to be a moderating influence in the region."

"By being a reliable and strong ally, we're better able to be a positive and constructive influence" for Middle East peace, Thomas said.

Other sources said Reagan is trying to persuade opponents of the sale that the package presents no new threat to Israel because it contains no weapons not already in the Saudi arsenal and does not alter U.S. policy of ensuring that Israel maintain a technological and qualitative edge on the military scale with its Arab neighbors.

At the same time, one source said, U.S. intelligence already indicates Iran has been emboldened by the legislative reverses to challenge Saudi oil shipments in the Persian Gulf. And administration lobbyists are arguing that cancellation of the arms sale could not only jeopardize U.S. influence among moderate Arab states but could give the Soviets a foothold they have been unable to gain up to now.

While Saudi Arabia was openly critical of the U.S. reprisal raid against Libya last month, the sources said, it less openly thwarted an attempt by Col. Moammar Khadafy to convene an Arab summit that would have produced a united condemnation of the U.S. attack and possible economic and political sanctions against U.S. interests in the Arab world.

Strength For Today

For centuries visitors to London's famed Westminster Abbey paid little attention to the tomb of the Black Prince, covered with dirt and grime. But a few decades ago interest in the tomb suddenly revived when a thorough cleaning revealed that beneath the dirt was much fine carving inlaid with gold and silver.

The nature of many a person is covered with just such a layer of grime. Beneath it all are the golden qualities which most people admire. Sometimes these qualities are hidden by an offending personality, unattractive appearance or bad habits which make the average observer forget the good qualities of heart and mind which this person might really have.

Look today for good qualities in some person who is naturally repulsive to you. Very often he is the unwitting victim of the things you don't like. And beneath these you may find qualities that shine like gold.

Five States Hit By Wave Of Tornadoes

By The Associated Press
Rescue workers today searched wrecked neighborhoods in Missouri, one of five states hit by tornadoes and high winds that killed at least two people, destroyed an apartment building and damaged scores of barns and homes, authorities said.

The twisters brought widespread damage to six Missouri counties Thursday night, leaving dozens of people homeless, and downed power lines in Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Ohio. Paramedics, firefighters and police searching today through wrecked buildings were hampered by unrelenting rain.

In Missouri, Scott County Sheriff Bill Ferrell said the most extensive damage appeared to be in a mobile home park and business area in the southern and eastern sections of Sikeston, and in Vanduser, a town of 320 people about 10 miles to the northwest.

The east side of Vanduser was "just about wiped out," Ferrell said, and an elderly man there was killed. A second person died at a hospital overnight after being injured in a twister that touched down in Sikeston, said Martha Vandivort, deputy coordinator for Cape Girardeau County emergency services.

The victims' names were being withheld pending notification of relatives.

Ferrell said more than 100 homes and many businesses appeared to have been damaged and about 30 people in Vanduser suffered cuts and bruises. At least two required hospitalization, he said.

The tornado caused extensive damage and numerous injuries in Sikeston, a city of 17,000, authorities said.

Hospital officials in Sikeston were asking hospitals in Cape Girardeau to send blood, said Martha Vandivort, an emergency preparedness official. Authorities in Cape Girardeau reported that many roads in the town were under water because of flooding caused by the storms.

Twisters also caused damage in Miner, a small town just east of Sikeston, and in Coldwater, about 25 miles to the northwest in Wayne County.

In Evansville, Ind., 26 residents of the Shamrock Apartments were taken to an emergency shelter after a twister smashed into their building.

"I was trying to look for the funnel cloud coming, and then it just hit the building and that was the end," said resident Dora Simpson.

Michael Roe, 22, who saw the tornado as it struck, said, "It started moving in a circle, with all the dust and debris in the center, just like in 'The Wizard of Oz.'"

As violent thunderstorms hammered southwest Indiana, amateur radio operators and state police reported several tornadoes in and around Evansville, and a couple of twisters in Washington in Daviess County, nearly 40 miles to the north, said Craig Carpenter of the National Weather Service.

Three adults and a 22-month child suffered minor injuries when a tornado ripped through Point Township in Posey County, destroying several mobile homes, said county jailor Gene Pate. The injured were taken to an Evansville hospital.

Another tornado touched down in the Posey County community of St. Phillips, causing an estimated $3.5 million in property damage, Pate said.

The storm also tore the roof off one home and blew down several trees in Blairsville, Pate said.

In Illinois, tornadoes hit in several counties, causing damage but no serious injuries, authorities said.

Maurice Johnson, chief of police in Charleston, said perhaps a dozen homes were damaged by a tornado that touched down Thursday night.

In northern Illinois, a tornado touched down twice near Dixon, slightly injuring a farmer and destroying two barns and roof, officials said.

"It came right down out of nowhere," said Lee County Civil Defense Director Chuck Randall. "We didn't even have any severe thunderstorm warnings at the time, let alone a tornado watch. It was raining, but that was all."

Farmer James Carrington, 57, suffered facial cuts from flying debris, said a nursing supervisor at Katherine Shaw Bethea Hospital. He was treated and released.

Twisters also destroyed a mobile home and houses in Edgar and Coles counties.

Two homes were leveled and a car dealership and several homes were heavily damaged when a tornado touched down in Coldwater, Mich., said Sheriff Norman Heinemann.

"No one was injured as far as we know," Heinemann said shortly after touring the area. "People are starting to clean up their yards and get over the shock."

Authorities cordoned off the damaged area and called in reserve officers to prevent looting. There were scattered power outages.

Heinemann estimated damage at $1.5 million.

In northern Ohio, a tornado touched down near the village of Chatfield in Crawford County, damaging a couple of barns and some buildings, said Police Chief Jim Patterson of nearby New Washington.

Khadafy Writes To Kids

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Youngsters who wrote to Moammar Khadafy as part of a class project have gotten a reply in which the Libyan leader condemned last month's U.S. bombing and said President Reagan "should be toppled and tried." "He told us stuff about President Reagan and how he doesn't like him," was the way Jestin Tyler, 8, described the letter that he and other second-graders at Maxfield Magnet School received Thursday.

In his letter to Khadafy, Jimmy Xiong had written: "Dear Col. Khadfy, I am so sorry that your little daughter died and can I ask you a favor? Could you stop bombing us, OK? And we'll stop bombing you."

"Dear Col. Khadafy, Why are you bombing the U.S.A.? Can't you think of a better way to solve the problem? Well I can... Write letters!", wrote Daniel Barbosa.

The class also wrote to President Reagan, but has yet to receive a reply, teacher Jill Swanson told the St. Paul Pioneer Press and Dispatch.

"I would expect we would hear from the president," said Ms. Swanson. "I would hope we would get something more personal from him."

"Dear President Reagan, Hi," wrote Leslie Garrett. "I have an idea instead of Libya and our state bombing each other, you and Col Khadafy can set up a time and day to talk to each other about it. So if you don't take my idea, I hope you figure out some way without hurting or fighting."

SCHOOL DESTROYED — Julia Huckabee, a fifth grade teacher, wades through debris outside her classroom at the Midway School near Henrietta, Texas. It was destroyed by one of several tornadoes that struck five states, killing at least two people. (AP Laserphoto)

Khadafy's typewritten letter was on white paper trimmed in green and decorated with Libyan political slogans written in Arabic, French and English. The grammar and spelling were imperfect. It was signed in Arabic script over Khadafy's typed name: Colonel Moammar El-Gadhafi.

Democrats Critical Of Spending Proposals

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Martin's chief lobbyist says he's not discouraged by the initial reaction from legislative leaders to the governor's proposed $533.6 million supplemental budget for 1986-87.

"Everybody's got their druthers," chief lobbyist J. Ward Purrington said Thursday. "The governor has put forward a reasonable plan, and ... there's going to be some give and take."

Legislative leaders say some major parts of the budget plan are flawed and likely won't be enacted.

Drawing heavy opposition from most Democratic legislators is a proposal to finance improvements in North Carolina's transportation system partially by transferring money from the general fund to the highway fund, lawmakers said in interviews.

"Transfers, as far as I am concerned, are out," said Sen. Aaron Plyler, D-Union, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Meanwhile, a committee of ranking Democrats heaped praise on an alternative to the Martin administration's plan to reduce crowding in the state prison system.

As part of his $533.6 million supplement to the $8.2

billion state budget, Martin proposed Wednesday a $52.3 million prison building program. It includes construction of two new state prisons, expansion or renovation of seven existing facilities, and contracting with the private sector to build and operate four minimum-security prisons.

The alternative package, submitted by a committee appointed by House Speaker Liston Ramsey and Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan, recommends delaying any commitment to private prisons until the concept is studied further.

Jordan endorsed the delay. "We need to be careful as we move into this area," he said during a meeting of the Joint Commission on Governmental Operations, an all-Democrat watchdog panel.

The committee plan would spend $22.4 million to reduce prison crowding by expanding non-incarceration programs such as intensive probation, replacing one prison, and making modest improvements of other existing facilities.

"I believe the Legislature will tend to accept the report of its own study committee," said Sen. Tony Rand, D-Cumberland, chairman of the Senate Base Budget Committee. "If it saves us $30 million and can accomplish much of what we want to do, I'd favor it."

Martin, a Republican, made improving the state's highway and prison systems top-priority items in his spending package, which legislative budget committees will begin reviewing next week.

He also requested a 3.2 percent pay increase for rank-and-file state employees and teachers, $107.4 million worth of repairs, maintenance and renovation of government buildings, a $12.5 million package of educational improvements including elimination of the first step of the teacher pay schedule, and hiring of 45 additional drug agents and 100 highway patrol troopers.

The governor's budget calls for bolstering the highway fund by $206 million in 1986-87, with $120 million generated by a $2.4 cents per gallon increase in the state motor fuels tax.

The remaining money would come from transferring the highway patrol and driver education programs from the highway fund to the general fund and a one-time transfer from the general fund to establish a $70 million transportation trust fund.

Panel Backs Bill To Give Governor Budget Freedom

RALEIGH (AP) — Approval of a bill freeing the governor from consulting with the Advisory Budget Commission while developing his biennial budget would mean the demise of the ABC, House Speaker Liston Ramsey predicts.

Ramsey, who with Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan presides over the Governmental Operations Commission, said Thursday that without the ABC, the governor would have too much clout in compiling the proposed budget.

"You'll have one person with all this authority, answerable to no one," he said.

The Joint Commission on Governmental Operations on Thursday reluctantly approved the bill, which the Legislature will consider during its short session starting June 5.

The 15-member ABC is composed of appointees of the governor, lieutenant governor and speaker, each of whom chooses five. Most members are legislators.

Critics say the panel blurs the lines between the executive and legislative branches of government, which the state Constitution says must remain separate.

In January, Attorney General Lacy

Thornburg issued an advisory opinion that the governor could not be required to consult with the ABC when preparing or administering the budget. The Governmental Operations Commission issued tentatively then to revise state law along the lines of Thornburg's ruling.

Meanwhile, Gov. Jim Martin has asked that the state Supreme Court issue an advisory opinion on the ABC's role.

HODEL TOUR — Interior Secretary Donald Hodel, shown speaking Thursday in the Sandy Mush community, said western North Carolina probably will not be picked for a nuclear waste dump because of its closeness to the Great Smoky Mountains National Park and the Blue Ridge Parkway. Hodel toured the area after a wave of protests over inclusion of sites in the west and near Raleigh were included on a list of potential spots for a waste dump. (AP Laserphoto)

Firing Range Mishap Kills 2

JACKSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Two Marines were killed and five others injured Thursday in a mortar range training accident at Camp Lejeune, according to a base spokesman.

The names of the dead and injured were being withheld pending notification of relatives, said Lt. Frank Shaw, a spokesman for the base.

The Marines were training with 81mm at the G-5 training range about 4:30 p.m. when the accident occurred, Shaw said. He declined to give further details, but ambulance attendants who responded to the scene said the accident involved an explosion on the range.

The dead and injured were taken to Naval Hospital on the base, which for two hours after the accident closed its emergency room to other emergency cases, which were diverted to Onslow Memorial Hospital in Jacksonville, a hospital spokesman said.

Homes In Woodlands Are Hampering Firefighters

By The Associated Press

A new wave of homesteading in North Carolina's woodlands has made it difficult for firefighters to contain fires like the one that destroyed 73,000 acres of timberland, the state's top forester says.

"Our crew had to plow around the homes to protect them," Harry Layman, director of the N.C. Division of Forest Resources, said

Thursday. "We had to use our forces to protect property instead of fighting the fire."

Since 1979, the number of houses in North Carolina located in fire-prone wooded areas has more than quadrupled, from 18,000 houses to 77,000, Layman said.

He said the problem forest settlement poses to firefighters is especially serious in the new mountainside developments of western North Carolina, which typically are reached by a single access road.

"We're trying to get up (the road) with fire equipment, and they're coming down that road," Layman said.

"We're sacrificing our natural resources in order to protect structures. It presents a greater risk both to people and to our firefighters," said Allan West, deputy chief of the U.S. Forest Service.

At a press briefing Thursday, Layman and West said drought conditions have made the Southeast vulnerable to more large fires this year.

In North Carolina, nearly 100,000 acres of woods have burned so far this year, compared with 150,000 acres in all of 1985. Damage to resources has been heavier this year, Layman said, because more timber has burned.

He said the still-smoldering fire in Pender County is in one of North Carolina's four arson "hot spots."

Memorial Day Held For Peace Officers

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina's law enforcement officer, who each day "walks in harms way with danger as his constant companion," deserves more moral and financial support, said speakers at the state's first Peace Officers Memorial Day.

"It is our responsibility to help the lawman meet the challenges he faces — to give him our moral support, to properly train and equip him, and to see that he does not have to be a magician to support his family on a less-than-adequate salary," House Speaker Liston Ramsey said.

Ramsey and other state officials gathered Thursday at the old House chamber at the state Capitol to honor all law officers, including the 41 who have died in the line of duty or been killed accidentally since 1975.

Thirty-three officers have been killed in the line of duty since 1975, and eight were killed accidentally.

IN THE STATE

Appeal

RALEIGH (AP) — The state will appeal a judge's decision barring it from enforcing a new law designed to keep the public from being misled by professional fund-raisers and to put more money into charities that hire them, a deputy attorney general says.

U.S. District Judge Earl Britt declared the law unconstitutional, saying it could interfere with the charities' freedom of speech.

He struck down provisions of the law on licensing professional fund-raisers, the fees they can charge for their services and the information they must provide when they ask for money.

"Without the funds obtained through the solicitation of contributions, the ability of many charitable organizations to communicate their ideas and goals could be jeopardized," Britt wrote in his order issued Wednesday. "A charitable organization does not lose the protection of the First Amendment merely because it chooses to use a professional solicitor in its fund-raising campaign."

Assets

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Listing assets of at least $1.455 million, Democratic Senate candidate Terry Sanford says his debts for the year ended March 31 could run as high as $1.165 million, according to a financial disclosure form filed with the Senate.

The disclosure form, which Sanford was required to file seven days before the May 6 primary, requires candidates and members of Congress to list only minimum and maximum ranges of their holdings, not specific amounts.

Sanford's Republican opponent, Rep. Jim Broyhill listed at least $2.5 million in assets for 1984. Broyhill, as an incumbent congressman, was not required to file this year's report until Thursday. The House Records and Registration Office said the forms would not be available to the public until May 22.

Agreement

RALEIGH (AP) — U.S. Rep. Charlie Rose says he's satisfied with an agreement in which the National Congressional Club says it violated campaign election laws by running the club and Jefferson Marketing Inc. as a single entity.

"Basically the Congressional Club has agreed that it did all those things improperly and illegally that I said in the complaint I filed in 1982," said Rose, D-N.C., whose complaint with the Federal Election Commission prompted the case.

In the agreement announced Thursday, officials with the Congressional Club — Republican Sen. Jesse Helms' political organization — also agreed to pay a $10,000 fine and make other concessions to settle a lawsuit filed by the FEC.

Rose, who defeated two club-backed candidates in 1982, said in Washington that the $10,000 fine was "not much of a wrist slap for them."

Judges

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — The North Carolina Bar Association is lobbying Gov. Jim Martin to sign an executive order establishing a merit-selection process for Supreme Court, Appeals Court and Superior Court judges.

Association President Robert Vaughn of Winston-Salem said Thursday that choosing judges by merit would lessen the chance that they are appointed as a result of political favors.

"The best plan would be to have a statewide plan, but this is a step in the right direction," Vaughn said.

Town Name

SEVEN DEVILS, N.C. (AP) — Seven Devils taxpayers proved downright devilish about their town's name.

Asked to approve a name change, they responded with a firm "No." Faced with the overwhelming opposition, the Watauga County resort town's Board of Aldermen voted unanimously Wednesday to quash the suggestion.

"I thought a better image could only help the town," Mayor Ken McLean, who earlier supported a change, said after the vote. "But if a majority feels the image we have is fine, then fine."

Students

DURHAM (AP) — Five North Carolina junior high school students who scored more than 1,200 on the Scholastic Aptitude Test will be honored Friday by Duke University's Talent Identification Program, officials said.

Facts About The

BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

THIS IS A DRAMATIZED VERSION OF FACTS TAKEN FROM THE BOOK OF AMOS, CHRONOLOGICALLY AND AUTHENTICALLY CONSOLIDATED!

AMOS THE SHEPHERD TURNED PROPHET

AMAZIAH, THE HIGH PRIEST OF THE TEMPLE AT BETHEL, IS FURIOUS AT AMOS FOR SPEAKING TO THE PEOPLE IN THE TEMPLE WITH WARNINGS THAT ALL ISRAEL WILL BE PUNISHED, NOW....

AMAZIAH'S MESSENGER TELLS THE KING ALL OF WHAT IS HAPPENING....

THESE PROPHETS MUST EARN THEIR BREAD BY MAKING PROPHECIES, AND THEY COME FROM ALL OVER—TELL AMAZIAH TO SEND HIM BACK TO HIS OWN LAND—LET HIM PROPHECY AND EARN HIS BREAD THERE!

SO THE MESSENGER RETURNS TO THE TEMPLE....

...AMAZIAH TAKES HEART! NOW HE HAS THE ORDERS OF THE KING, HIMSELF, TO ACT UNDER! FOR IT IS A TICKLISH BUSINESS TO PUT A HOLY MAN OUT OF THE TEMPLE! BUT IF THE KING ORDERS IT, WHY LET IT BE ON THE KING'S HEAD! AND AMAZIAH STRAIGHTWAY GOES TO CARRY OUT THE ORDERS!

BROILERS: The North Carolina fob dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 50.50 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2 1/2 to 3 pounds birds. 88 percent of the loads offered have been confirmed with a preliminary weighted average of 53.35 cents fob dock or equivalent. The market is higher and the live supply is adequate for a very good demand. Average weights desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Friday was 1,802,000, compared to 2,178,000 last Friday.

HENS: Market steady. Supply adequate for a moderate demand. There is an anticipated price of 12 cents for next week's trading. Prices paid per pound for hens over seven pounds at farm for Wednesday, Thursday and Friday was 11 cents.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market lost more ground today despite favorable economic news.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 10.05 to 1,764.63 in the first hour of trading. Losers held a 3-2 edge on gainers in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Before the market opened, the Labor Department reported that the producer price index of finished goods dropped 0.6 percent in April, extending its decline in recent months.

Meanwhile, the Commerce Department said housing starts ran at an annual rate of just over 2 million units last month. Housing starts have been one of the few bright spots in the economy of late.

But with that favorable background, the market still seemed to be suffering from the after-effects of Thursday's decline, which sent the Dow Jones industrial average down 33.60 points.

Among the blue chips, International Business Machines rose 1/4 to 145 1/2; General Electric was unchanged at 76, and McDonald's dropped 1 1/2 to 102 1/2.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks lost .54 to 134.75. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down .32 at 271.75.

Roads ...

"I don't know all that about it. I see nothing wrong with the idea," he said. "The Legislature should be willing to work with him to help solve the problem to that extent."
Martin's plan would add $53.5 million to the $8.1 million state budget for fiscal 1986-87.
The Republican governor also said transferring the state Highway Patrol and driver education programs from the Highway Fund to the General Fund was an important component of his program, which also includes a 2 3/4 cents per gallon motor fuel tax increase.
Without the transfers, it would take an increase of 5 cents to 6 cents per gallon to raise about $210 million annually for roads, which the Martin plan would do, he said.
State Transportation Secretary James Harrington's task force reported that the Highway Fund needed an extra $200 million per year to make progress toward eliminating a backlog of road construction and maintenance needs.
The fund has run short of money since the energy crisis of the 1970s, as North Carolinians bought fuel-efficient cars and purchased less gasoline.
According to the Martin plan, raising the gas tax from 12.5 cents per gallon to 15 cents per gallon on Sept. 1 would raise $120 million. Another $85 million per year would be generated by transferring funding of the patrol and driver education programs to the relatively healthy General Fund.
The transfer would take effect May 1, 1987, and thus would provide only $16 million for fiscal year 1986-87, which will end July 1, 1987.

Leading Democrats oppose the transfer, saying it would leave less money in the General Fund to pay for programs such as education.
Additionally, Martin wants a one-time General Fund transfer of $70 million to create a transportation trust fund, which would provide money for right-of-way purchases, loans to local governments for road improvements and other projects.
Area legislators said they were aware of the plight concerning Highway Fund but were unsure of its impact on other programs.
"My first commitment is to education, and I'm not yet comfortable that it is good policy to take from the General Fund for roads," Taft said.
However, Taft said he doesn't believe the debate will have legislators squaring off along party lines.
"I don't believe this is a partisan issue, but it is one of priorities and fiscal responsibility," he said. "I believe we'll find some way to fund the road needs that will certainly include the Martin gasoline tax."
Jones said he's also heard Martin's plan might have an impact on education funding.
"I don't want to do anything that will have a negative impact on education dollars. I want to study proposals and see what alternatives may be offered," he said. "I hope that when we get to Raleigh all the legislators, no matter what party, will try to do what's best for the citizens of North Carolina."

Doctor Says Four More Chernobyl Victims Die

MOSCOW (AP) — An American doctor treating victims of the Chernobyl nuclear accident indicated today that the death toll has reached 13. One Soviet newspaper said five were firefighters who braved fierce radiation to battle flames engulfing the nuclear reactor.
Dr. Robert Gale, who left Moscow shortly after giving interviews to U.S. television correspondents, told ABC-TV's "Good Morning America" and the Cable News Network that only 24 of the 35 people previously listed in grave condition still were alive.
He declined to say when the latest deaths occurred. Gale told a news conference Thursday that 28 of the 35 most seriously injured were alive, adding more deaths were inevitable.
Reports in three different Soviet newspapers today identified eight people who died after the nuclear accident. Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev on Wednesday identified by name two other men who were killed in the initial explosion and fire April 26 at the nuclear power plant 80 miles north of Kiev.
"We are unfortunately having deaths on a continuing basis, although nothing happened in the last day," Gale said in the interview with CNN.

He told ABC the current death toll "may be reasonably stable, but there may be some additional deaths. We have good results in about two-thirds of the patients."
Gale has said 299 radiation victims had been hospitalized.
The doctor, a specialist in bone marrow transplants from the University of California at Los Angeles, heads a team of foreign experts who have been helping the Soviets treat the victims. Bone marrow is destroyed by intense radioactivity, and death can result.
The Communist Party daily Pravda today described the grief felt by plant workers on hearing that one of their comrades had died of his injuries.
"For a long time, we cannot begin the conversation," Pravda's correspondents wrote. "Just a few minutes ago, word arrived that Lelechenko had died. Burns and radiation did their work. Lelechenko was their friend."

Pravda said the dead worker's friends hailed him as "a real hero" who was at the nuclear plant in the first hours after an explosion ripped apart the No. 4 reactor, spewing radioactivity and sparking a fire.
The Communist youth newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda praised the firemen who battled the flames, which took more than 50 firefighting teams about four hours to control.
Also today, a Soviet environment specialist said radiation in Kiev was measured at 0.15 to 0.2 milliroentgens per hour, within the normal range. Nikolai Kozlov, deputy chief of the State Committee on Weather and Environment, said he had no information on the accident's effects on agriculture, and asserted there has been no contamination of water supplies.
A milliroentgen is a thousandth of a roentgen, the unit used to measure ionizing radiation. Scientists say exposure to 50 or more roentgens in a year can be dangerous.

Train Trestle Collapses In Rutherford County

RUTHERFORDTON, N.C. (AP) — A railroad trestle across U.S. 221 alternate in Rutherford County collapsed today, derailing 26 cars of coal and dropping several cars onto the highway, railroad and law enforcement officials said.
"We do have a derailment of an 88-car coal train ... and the rear 26 cars of coal are derailed in our preliminary information," said Owen Pride, a spokesman for CSX Transportation, formerly known as Seaboard Systems Railroad. "There were no injuries to the train crew and the caboose did not derail."
No vehicles were under the trestle at the time of the crash and no injuries were reported, said a dispatcher at the Rutherford County Sheriff's Department who would not give her name.

Some of the coal cars landed "under an overpass of U.S. 221, and we understand that it has the highway blocked," Pride said in a telephone interview from his Jacksonville, Fla., office. "Apparently there is some damage to the overpass."
The dispatcher said the collapse, which occurred shortly after 9 a.m., had backed up traffic on the highway.

disciplinatory and truancy problems.
Miss Margil, 20, visited Freiberg's house Wednesday morning, authorities said.
A neighbor, Nick Klimek, said he saw Freiberg digging a hole in his backyard about 11 a.m., and about an hour later saw eight of Freiberg's friends drinking beer and listening to a radio on a porch. He said he did not see Miss Margil.

Tests Ordered For Man Who Buried Woman Alive

BOSTON (AP) — A man accused of murdering his girlfriend by beating her and then burying her alive in his backyard after partying with friends is undergoing court-ordered psychiatric testing.
District Judge Paul Murphy on Thursday ordered Richard "Scott" Freiberg, 21, held without bail and sent him to Bridgewater State Hospital for 26 days of psychiatric observation.

Freiberg pleaded innocent to murder and assault with intent to murder. The case was continued to June 2.
Police said the victim, Lisa Margil, 1983 valedictorian at West Roxbury High School who won a full scholarship to Boston University, was the girlfriend of Freiberg, a classmate who dropped out after academic,

bite the thermometer off," a paramedic said.
Three helicopters and about 30 rescuers with dogs, metal detectors and snow probes scoured the mountain searching for the eight hikers.
David McClure, a base operations chief for Portland Mountain Rescue who has 26 years' experience on Mount Hood, disputed complaints from some parents that the party was ill-equipped.
"The severity of the storm was certainly one of the worst this mountain has ever encountered," McClure said.
The group had climbed to within 14 feet of the summit Monday, but a sudden blizzard forced them to turn back. Wind-chill temperatures on the mountain Tuesday fell to 50 degrees below zero.
Rescuers had expected survivors to make their presence known when noisy helicopters passed overhead. "They should have punched their way out," said Sheriff's Lt. Don Vickers. "That's what the general opinion is."
As rescuers searched Thursday for the lost party, more than 300 students, faculty and family members gathered at the school chapel for a special service.

"The program gave me an extra incentive to work harder in classes."
Miss Johnson also said she was planning to attend UNC-CH in the fall and major in accounting.
"In your Scholars Program, you have tasted the first sweet fruits of creative thinking. Expand that horizon which higher education affords you," Whichard said.
"You are learning to think creatively, to solve problems that way and find solutions where others would only find more questions. But even those questions themselves are often doors of new discovery rather than stumbling blocks to the creative thinker."
Also speaking at the banquet was Dr. Eddie West, superintendent of Pitt County schools; Charles R. Ross, associate superintendent; John H. McKnight, deputy superintendent; Mark Owens, chairman of the Pitt County Board of Education; Arlene Ferren, coordinator of pupil services, and George E. Williams, chairman of the Greenville Board of Education.
"Students, we are proud of you," said West. "Your accomplishment is an inspiration to others. I challenge you to continue your educational excellence."
West also commended the efforts of the scholars' parents, and to the Pitt County staff members who "offered their guiding services to help the students achieve their accomplishment."
Whichard told the students they will benefit from early educational opportunities.
"You have a responsibility to make the space around you more liveable," he said. "You have the responsibility to help improve the quality of life for those less talented, less favored than you. You have the responsibility of being concerned about humanity; to have eyes that are open to need; a mentality that will not shy away from hunger or ignorance or pain because they are unsightly."

tion is really miraculous, that we did have some survivors," Lorts said. "I think at this point in time, it's a matter of watching and waiting."
Deputy Sheriff Mike Hattan said the rescue team "was very elated and so were the ground personnel."
"We've never given up hope," he said in an interview on "Good Morning America."
The teen-age climbers were all students at the Oregon Episcopal School who began climbing Mount Hood, 50 miles east of Portland, with three adults in the annual sophomore class wilderness outing. Five students were not feeling well and turned back at various times, said school spokeswoman Mariann Koop.
The dead found Thursday were identified as the Rev. Thomas Goman, 42, a math and religion teacher described as an expert climber; Marion Horwell, 39, dean of students; Richard Haeder, 16; Pat Guinness, 15; Susan McClave, 17; and Tasha Amy, 15, all of Portland.
The three found Wednesday were identified as Eric Sandvik, Erin O'Leary and Alison Litzenger. All were 15 and from Portland.
Ralph Summers, 30, a professional mountaineer who led the group up the mountain, and Molly Schula, 17, walked to safety Tuesday using a compass.
The death toll makes the incident the worst accident on Mount Hood since records began in 1896, officials said. The previous worst was a climbing accident that took five lives in 1981.
Radio transmissions from paramedics on the mountain indicated that people were found alive. One had a pulse of 40 beats a minute. "We can't get a temperature because he'll bite the thermometer off," a paramedic said.

Three helicopters and about 30 rescuers with dogs, metal detectors and snow probes scoured the mountain searching for the eight hikers.

Spiders Put Bite On ECU, 4-0

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Richmond's Kevin Sickinger wove a two-hit shutout victory as the Spiders slipped past second-seeded East Carolina, 4-0, Thursday night in the opening round of the Colonial Athletic Association baseball tournament.

The win by the Spiders handed both of the top-seeded teams in the four-team field a defeat in the first round of the double-elimination event. Earlier in the day, #4 UNC Wilmington topped first-seeded James Madison, 11-10, to move on in the winners' bracket.

The Pirates and Dukes thus face elimination this afternoon in a 1 p.m. game at Harrington Field — the loser is through and the winner must fight its way back through the field to have a chance at the automatic berth in the NCAA playoffs next week.

The Spiders face Wilmington tonight at 7 p.m. in the winners' bracket game.

Richmond, 22-28 on the year now, set the Pirates down with little more than a whimper with Sickinger's magic on the mound. Greg Hardison recorded a first inning single off the Spider right-hander and Jay McGraw to left field in the fifth inning.

Otherwise, the Pirates went down harmlessly. Three others reached on walks and each of them were cut down in double plays by the Spiders. Hardison and McGraw were the only ECU runner to reach second and neither of them advanced further.

There were two outstanding fielding plays by the Spiders. Richmond third baseman John Krivak made a stab of a sharp grounder to throw out the runner at first while Brian Joyner made a leaping catch over the fence in center to rob Mark Cockrell of a home run in the eighth inning.

"The story of the game was Sick-inger," a disappointed ECU Coach Gary Overton said. "He did an outstanding job for them. Their defense made the plays behind him, and we felt that the team that played the best defense would be the one to win."

"We just never got anything going because of Sickinger. He wasn't overpowering, but he mixed his pitches well and kept us off balance. He gave us nothing we could drive."

Winfred Johnson took the loss for the Pirates, his fourth in 14 decisions. Jake Jacobs came on in relief in the sixth and pitched three scoreless innings before the Spiders got one more in the ninth.

"I was very pleased with the play of Jacobs," Overton said. Richmond threatened in the first, putting two on via an error and a hit, but got nothing from it. Andy Malloy led off the second with a double, but died at second.

Then, in the third, the Spiders broke it open with three runs off two homers. Jordan opened the frame with a school record 14th home run giving the Spiders a 1-0 lead. With one down, Greg Harding singled and after a second out, Bubba Paris slapped the ball out of the park in left to run the Spider lead out to 3-0. Richmond put men in scoring position in the fourth and sixth off Johnson, and threatened off Jacobs in the seventh off an error and a hit. In the eighth, the Spiders used another error and a walk to put a man in scoring position.

But it was the ninth before they finally struck again. With one down, Rob Reid singled and then dashed all the way to third when a wild pitch went to the screen and was lost to catcher Jim Riley. Sickinger followed with a two-out single to left to drive in Reid.

Harding led the Richmond hitting with three while Reid and Paris each had two.

The loss marked the third straight year the Pirates have lost in the first round of tournament play. In both of those years, they bowed in ECAC-Southern Division play, coming back in 1984 to win the event, but losing out in the losers' bracket finals in 1985.

Eight former ECAC-South teams became the CAA this past spring and are playing an in-family tournament for the first time.

East Carolina drops to 37-9 with the defeat.

Top-Seed Jinx Follows Dukes As Seahawks Win

By WOODY PEELE

Being the top seed in the old ECAC-South used to be a jinx. In seven post-season baseball tournaments, the number one seed lost in the first round five times and won the tournament only twice.

Thursday, in the first round of the Colonial Athletic Association's tournament, the successor to the ECAC-South, the tradition continued.

Top seeded James Madison lost to number four UNC-Wilmington, 11-10.

The slugfest moved the Seahawks into the winners bracket of the double-elimination tournament against Richmond Friday at 7 p.m. Madison, however, must fight off elimination against East Carolina at 1 p.m.

Richmond beat the Pirates, 4-0, in the nightcap of the tournament's first round Thursday.

Wilmington banged out a school record tying seven doubles among a total of 16 hits, one of them a home run. Madison also did its share, with the bats, putting together 13 hits including six doubles and a homer.

UNCW's Kenny King got the win, his ninth in 13 decisions, but needed relief coming out in the eighth. JMU ace Kevin White started the game, but was chased after only one and a third innings. Joe Macavage, the third Duke pitcher of the day, took the loss, evening his record at 3-3.

Wilmington used three of its doubles to score three runs in the first inning. With one away, Reggie Redd walked and Bobby Reynolds doubled to right center. Mark Maulsby grounded out, scoring Redd, and the next two batters, Chuck Jones and Eric Hall hit two-baggers to the same spot as Reynolds, each driving in a run.

Three more crossed for the Seahawks in the second. Tom Heitler reached on an error and Mitch Wells tagged a one-out pitch over the fence in left. Reynolds singled to center, moved up on a hit by Maulsby and scored on a single up the middle by Jones.

That made it 6-0. Madison got on the board with three in the bottom of the inning. Steve Schwartz reached on a one-out error. Mark Brockell walked and Nick DeVincentis' grounder was error, loading the bases. Robert Trumbo was safe on still another error, scoring Schwartz. Jeff Garber then singled in both Brockell and DeVincentis.

The Seahawks got a seventh run in the third. John Catalano doubled to left, moved up on an out and scored on a wild pitch.

The Dukes came back to score four times in the sixth to tie it at 7-7. Rod Boddie led off the inning with a homer to left. Glen Deren then walked and with one away, Brockell beat out an infield hit. DeVincentis was hit by a pitch, loading the bases. A wild pitch brought in Deren and Brockell scored on Scott Engle's sacrifice fly. Scott Mackie's infield hit brought in DeVincentis with the tying run.

Wilmington went quickly out and scored three times in the seventh. Jones singled and Hall doubled him in. Hall was then picked off trying to steal third. With two away, Heitler walked and Tom Langmeyer doubled to drive in Heitler. Wells followed with a single, driving in Langmeyer for a 10-7 lead.

What proved to be the difference came over in the eighth. Reynolds hit the record-tying double to open the inning, then scored on Maulsby's single.

Rose Ties For Big East Title; Takes Second Seed

There's good news and bad news for Rose High School baseball.

They won the game, but they lost the toss.

The Rampants rolled up a 6-2 baseball victory over Northeastern High School in the final game of the regular season Thursday, closing out at 10-4 in the Big East.

Then, they learned that Rocky Mount had lost to Wilson Fike, creating a tie for first place between the Rampants and Gryphons, giving Rose a share of the conference championship.

A coin toss was then held to determine which team would be top seeded in the state 4-A playoffs which start next week. Rocky Mount won the toss and will be the top seeded team, facing the third place team from the Mid-South Conference.

Rose, meanwhile, will host Wilmington Hoggard, the Mideastern runner-up, in a game at Guy Smith Stadium, the time and date still to be set, but most probably Tuesday night.

Northeastern scored first in the game Thursday, scoring once in the first. Meo Brown reached on an error and Tom Ward singled. A hit by Joel Twiford brought Brown around with the run.

Rose tied it up with one in the second. Scott Davis did all the damage with a home run.

But Northeastern regained the lead with a run in the third. Tom Ward reached on a fielder's choice and scored on a double by Twiford.

Northeastern was held scoreless the rest of the way, however.

Rose rebounded for two runs in the fifth to take a 3-2 lead. Eric Jarman walked and stole second. Tyrone Jones also walked and Curtis Perkins reached on an error, allowing Jarman to score. David Daniels walked to load the bases and a walk to Axel Smith brought in Jones with the go-ahead run.

In the sixth, Rose added three more. Greg Jones got the first run with a solo home run. Travis King then singled and scored when Tyrone Jones cracked a third Rampant homer for the game.

Tim Clark hurled the win for Rose. Jones led the Rampant hitting, collecting three. Ward had three and Brown and Twiford each had two for Northeastern.

The Rampants close the regular season with an overall record of 15-6.

JAMESVILLE — Columbia High School upset Jamesville, 9-3, Thursday in the final game of the regular season in Tobacco Belt Conference baseball action.

The loss insured North Edgecombe of the TBC conference title, while Jamesville will now occupy second.

The Bullets still advance into the state 1-A playoffs, hosting the Albemarle Conference runner-up in a home game on Tuesday.

Jamesville took the lead with a run in the bottom of the first, but Columbia came back to score six times in the second to take command.

Ellis Liverman opened the second, reaching on an error. Tommy Kirkman doubled and Jeff Creef walked, loading the bases. Shannon Roughton singled in Liverman and Kirkman and Jeff Spencer singled to reload the sacks.

Felton Creef's sacrifice fly scored Jeff Creef and Nolan Kirkman doubled in Roughton and Spencer. Kirkman stole third and scored on Joe Pledger's ground out.

Jeff Spencer led the Columbia hitting with two while Eric Spruill, Chris Jones and Pee Wee Groover each had two for Jamesville.

The Bullets close out the regular season with a 15-3 conference and 15-7 overall record.

Slaughter's Memory Keys Texas

By The Associated Press
Lots of factors go into a baseball player's success. Don Slaughter credits, among other things, his memory and the weather.

Slaughter had a bases-loaded triple and a two-run homer Thursday night, leading the Texas Rangers to an 8-1 rout of the Detroit Tigers. His big hits came off Detroit starter Frank Tanana, a teammate of Slaughter's last year in Texas. Slaughter remembered what Tanana likes to do.

"Frank changes speeds a lot," said Slaughter, a catcher by trade who is hitting .301 this season. "Tonight, we got to him real quick. That's what you have to do."

"I caught him last year, so I sort of knew what he was trying to do."

Tanana allowed six runs, seven hits and three walks in 2-3 innings.

In other AL games it was, Kansas City 6, Cleveland 3; Baltimore 5, Minnesota 3; and Chicago 8, New York 1.

"I haven't had the consistency I'd like, but what's done is done," Tanana said. "For a control pitcher, the first pitch is often the key. I've got to get my rhythm."

"Putting the team in the hole early is really tough on them. A control pitcher has to keep away from the big inning."

Slaughter snapped a 4-for-26 slump in which his average dipped 67 points. Still, he is hitting almost 20 points over his career average.

"I'm off to a good start because in the offseason, we can hit in Texas," said Slaughter, who was dealt to the Rangers from Kansas City in January 1985. "As a result, when I went to spring training, I was in pretty good shape. In KC, we could only hit indoors in cages, against machines."

Rookie Pete Incaviglia also had a two-run homer for visiting Texas, while Mike Mason, 3-0, checked the Tigers on six hits over eight innings before Mitch Williams took over for the ninth. The Rangers moved within a half-game of first-place California in the AL West.

"I can't tell you a game when I've felt as sharp as I think I can be, yet I'm 3-0," Mason said. "Imagine, when I get in a groove."

Royals 6, Indians 3

Frank White hit his fifth career grand slam to cap a Royals comeback. With one out in the eighth inning, the second baseman sent a 2-0 pitch from Rich Yett into the right-field bleachers.

"It was hooking foul, then all of a sudden it started to slice. I couldn't believe it," said White. "It was amazing. I was disappointed when I first hit it because it looked like it was way foul."

Indians starter Ken Schrom took a 3-1 lead into the bottom of the eighth but Jim Sundberg and Jamie Quirk hit leadoff singles. Losing reliever Scott Bailes threw away Willie Wilson's sacrifice bunt to let in a run. White was the first batter Yett faced.

Andre Thornton homered for the Indians, who have dropped six of their last seven games. Kansas City has won four straight.

Orioles 5, Twins 3

Mike Young and Juan Beniquez both hit their first home run of the season as Mike Boddicker upped his record to 4-0, with 1 2-3 innings of relief from Don Aase, who earned his ninth save.

Young's solo homer in the second off Twins ace Frank Viola gave Baltimore a 2-1 lead and snapped a 32-game, 103-at-bat home run drought for Young, who hit 28 homers last year. Beniquez's two-run shot in the third was his first homer in 40-at-bats.

"This is the longest I've ever gone in any league without hitting a home run," said Young. "I've just been trying to consistently go up and make contact and hit a line drive. It's nice to finally get one up. They say the first one is the toughest, now that I've got my first one I hope I keep going."

Gary Gaetti homered for the visiting Twins.

White Sox 8, Yankees 1

Greg Walker, playing his second game after a wrist injury sidelined him for a month, hit a three-run homer and the Yankees committed five errors.

The White Sox, who have won five of seven games since Manager Tony LaRussa was given a vote of confidence last week, got seven runs and eight hits in the first five innings off Ron Guidry. Carlton Fisk had two singles and a double to support Neil Allen, 1-0, who was traded by the Yankees to Chicago in February. Allen allowed four hits, walked two and struck out three in seven innings, then was replaced by Bill Dawley.

Walker hit a 400-foot drive into the Yankee Stadium bleachers following leadoff singles by Fisk and Ron Kittle in the second inning.

"The last thing I was thinking about was a home run off Ron Guidry," Walker said. "I'm happy, but surprised."

Rose Girls Tie For Loop Title

Rose High School's girls' softball team romped to a 16-3 victory over Northeastern Thursday to grab a share of the 1986 Big East Conference championship.

Rose and Northern Nash both finished the season with 12-2 league records and will share the championship. Since they split in their meetings this year, they will meet in a playoff game to decide seeding in the 3A/4A playoffs, which begin Monday.

The playoff game will be held today at 5 p.m. at Northern Nash.

Regardless of whether Rose finishes first or second, the Rampettes will be a host team in the opening round of play. Should they finish first, they will host D.H. Conley, while if they finish second, they will entertain the runner-up team from the Midwestern Conference.

Rose took the lead in the first inning scoring three runs, but put it away with two in the third.

In the third, Gina Parrott walked and Vicki Parrott slapped a home run to five Rose a total of five at that point.

The Rampettes added seven more in the fourth, four of them coming on a grand-slam homer by Lisa Harkley. Harkley added a three-run homer in the four-run fifth.

Northeastern got one run in the third and two in the sixth.

Harkley and Suzanne Tadlock each had three hits for Rose while Gina Parrott had two. No one had more than one hit for Northeastern.

Rose finishes the regular season with a 16-2 overall mark.

season Thursday with a 14-2 romp over Columbia.

Jamesville scored all it needed in the first inning. Dana Byrum led off with a home run for the first tally. Cindy Getchell doubled and Renee Brown singled. Senita Rogers' ground out scored Getchell and an out by Kim Phelps brought in Brown. Gina Reason then followed with another solo homer for the 4-0 lead.

Jamesville added seven in the second and three in the fifth. Both Columbia runs crossed in the second inning.

Getchell led the Jamesville hitting with four while Reason had three. Byrum, Renee Brown, Phelps, Val Clark and Renee Coltrain each added two.

S. Sawyer had three hits to lead Columbia.

Jamesville closes out the regular season with an 18-2 overall record, 16-2 in the Tobacco Belt.

The Lady Bullets will play host to Charles B. Aycock, the Eastern Plains #3 team in the first round of the 1A/2A playoffs on Monday at 6 p.m.

Heep, Oester Get Little Revenge For The Past

By JOHN KREISER
Associated Press Writer

For Danny Heep and Ron Oester, it was a night to forget the past.

Heep, who became Nolan Ryan's 4,000th career strikeout victim July 11, 1985, tagged Ryan for a two-run homer Thursday night as the New York Mets beat Houston 6-2 at the Astrodome.

Oester's key error allowed the winning run to score in a loss Wednesday night, but his three-run homer in the ninth inning Thursday lifted the Cincinnati Reds to a 6-5 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

In the only other National League game played Thursday, Atlanta beat Montreal 7-4 in 10 innings.

"I wasn't the happiest man to be (strikeout victim) No. 4,000," Heep said after the Mets won for the 20th time in 24 games. "They show it on every highlight at every park. I was a victim of circumstance, being 4,000th."

Manager Dave Johnson knew Heep wanted to even the score against baseball's all-time strikeout leader.

"I knew he was from San Antonio and had some friends and family here," Johnson said. "He was 4,000th, and I figured he had something to make up."

Heep went 2-for-3 against Ryan, 3-5, and his one-out homer in the sixth made it 5-0. Ron Darling, 4-0, allowed eight hits before Jesse Orosco recorded the last three outs. Orosco has yet to be scored on in his 12 appearances this season covering 16 1-3 innings.

Reds 6, Phillies 5

Oester's homer off Steve Bedrosian, 2-2, wasn't a total cure for his costly error the night before.

"It (the homer) didn't make up for last night (Wednesday)," Oester said. "But it helped."

The second baseman said his late-game heroics proved that the Reds, with the worst record in the majors, 9-21, will not quit.

"I wouldn't want to be in that plane tonight if we lost again. I don't know if it will turn us around, but it has to be good for us," he said.

Dave Concepcion and Buddy Bell started the ninth with singles off reliever Don Carman. Bedrosian relieved Carman and got pinch-hitter Max Venable to fly to right. But Oester followed with his second homer of the season, hitting a 1-1 pitch over the right-field fence to score Concepcion and pinch-runner Tom Rynn ahead of him.

Ron Robinson, 3-0, pitched the last three innings allowing one hit, walking one batter and striking out three.

Braves 7, Expos 4 (10)

Ken Oberkfell's three-run 10-inning homer gave Atlanta its victory over host Montreal.

Oberkfell connected on a 3-2 pitch from Dan Schatzeder in one of his rare appearances against a left-hander this season. It came after Dale Murphy singled and Bob Horner walked.

Montreal trailed 4-2 entering the bottom of the ninth, but tied the game when Mitch Webster's short fly bounced high on the artificial turf. The ball fell in front of Murphy and bounced over his head, scoring Al Newman and Andre Dawson, who had singled off Bruce Sutter, 2-0. Jeff Dedmon got his second save with one inning of work.

Trailing by four, Madison picked up three in the eighth. Brockell doubled and DeVincentis also doubled. However, Brockell held up and only moved to third on the play. Engle walked to load the bases and with one away, Garber reached on an error, scoring Brockell. Mike Mathews followed with a double to left, driving in both DeVincentis and Engle.

Then, in the ninth, a baserunning mistake cost the Dukes their chance to tie.

Schwartz led off with a double to left and Brockell followed with another double. Again, the runner hesitated before heading home, and an outstanding defensive play by shortstop Reynolds on the relay nailed Schwartz at the plate.

A strikeout and pop fly ended the game.

Reynolds and Jones each had three hits for UNCW while Wells, Maultsby, Hall, Catalano and Langmeyer each had two.

James Madison was paced by Brockell and Boddie with three while Garber and Mathews each had two.

UNCW now stands at 29-26 on the year, while Madison drops to 35-13.

Tech, NSCU Advance

DURHAM (AP) — Georgia Tech coach Jim Morris says he hopes his team didn't use up all its hits in its 16-5 victory over Clemson in the second round of the Atlantic Coast Conference baseball tournament.

"Normally in a big game like this when you score a lot of runs, you have scoring the next night out. Hopefully, that won't be the case," Morris said after his Yellow Jackets banged out 17 hits to roll past the Tigers Thursday night.

The Yellow Jackets, 39-21, will play regular-season champ North Carolina State today, while Clemson, 41-20, drops into the loser's bracket and will take on Maryland. N.C. State beat North Carolina 7-6 in 11 innings earlier Thursday, while Maryland eliminated Wake Forest 9-7.

The winner of the Clemson-Maryland game will take on the winner of the North Carolina-Virginia survivor later today. Virginia got a bye after it lost in the first round to the Tar Heels.

Jeff Distasio, whose grand slam in the ninth inning lifted Georgia Tech to a 7-5 victory over Maryland in the opening round Wednesday, slammed a solo home run in the fourth and a two-run shot in the fifth on Thursday.

The home runs give Distasio 18 for the season, breaking the school record of 16 set by Pete Geist in 1984.

Jack Jr. Uses Early Play To Reach Third Round

PINEHURST (AP) — Charging to a 5-shot lead in the first five holes, defending champion Jack Nicklaus II held off Gordon Brewer to win 4 and 3 to advance to the third round of the 86th annual Men's North and South Amateur golf championship Thursday.

Two-time U.S. Amateur champion Jay Sigel had to rally from two holes down to tie his match on a day that saw five exempt players lose.

Nicklaus, of North Palm Beach, Fla., birdied holes one, three and four after making some key putts on the par-72, 7,200-yard Pinehurst Country Club No. 2 course.

Exempt players Jim Johnson of Charlotte, Michael Podolak of Fargo, N.D., Tom McKnight of Galax, Va., Bob Lewis Jr. of Warren, Ohio and

Celts Rap Bucks To Go Up 2-0

BOSTON (AP) — The Milwaukee Bucks were determined to keep Kevin McHale from beating them. He'd get the ball in the low post and they'd surround him.

McHale did manage to shake free from his defenders for two key baskets when Milwaukee threatened late in the game.

"They double-teamed all over the place," the 6-foot-10 McHale said. "One time I looked up and I had three guys coming after me. I just wanted to get rid of the ball and hide. I felt like Custer and the Indians were coming after me."

Alton Lister, who had a career playoff high 22 points for Milwaukee, followed with a hook shot to close the gap to 110-103, but Ainge hit a layup and McHale again got loose for a layup that resulted in a three-point play.

"We knew when we came here we'd have our hands full," Bucks' forward Terry Cummings said after Boston's 38th consecutive homecourt triumph.

"They played a well-rounded game," Bird said. "Their centers (Lister and Randy Breuer) played closer to the basket" than in the first game.

"We wanted to bring the ball down low all night," said McHale, who had 20 points. "But they double-teamed us down low. If you double-team, there's usually someone open."

"We played fairly well, but they made the big plays," said Breuer, whose 21 points for the Bucks also were a career playoff high.

"I truly think we can win," Bucks' Coach Don Nelson insisted. "I'm not trying to be funny."

"We made some mistakes," Bird said. "But any time you've got a four-point lead, you don't worry. If you've got the lead, you're in control of the game."

Congress Favors Cuts In Military

By STEVEN KOMAROW
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite the warnings from the White House, Congress appears ready to pass a budget that would cut more than $20 billion from President Reagan's military spending request.

The House on Thursday approved a nearly party-line vote, 245-179, a $994 billion fiscal 1987 budget that slashes $35 billion from Reagan's proposed $320 billion Pentagon spending plan. It would also raise taxes $7.3 billion above the president's request.

"It's a recipe for economic disaster and a military setback that could have serious consequences," said Larry Speakes, Reagan's spokesman.

Democrats pushed through the spending plan despite a last-minute appeal from the president, who sent a warning letter read during debate by Minority Leader Robert H. Michel, R-Ill.

"The accomplishments of the past five years are now in jeopardy because of the defense reductions being considered in Congress," said Reagan, calling it "a radical anti-defense budget."

The consequences would range from eliminating an entire division from the Army to cutting an entire aircraft carrier battle group, constituting "nothing less than a breach of faith with our common duty to protect this nation," the letter said.

Rep. Delbert L. Latta of Ohio, ranking Republican on the House Budget Committee, said the appeal "was a little bit late in coming. Bob Michel was our last speaker."

But Rep. Mike Lowry, D-Wash., said Congress just couldn't take those warnings to heart.

"Really, there can't be very many people in this country that look at the fact we had a $145 billion defense budget in 1981, and look at the number we have in this one, and not think we have adequate money," he said.

Michel and Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., said they would push to increase the military spending figure when the budget blueprint goes to a House-Senate conference committee.

"Let's hope the conferees discard these bogus defense numbers quickly, so they can agree upon a realistic and responsible national security budget," Dole said.

But it appears Republicans aren't ready to support a figure close to the president's mark, since a tax hike or more domestic spending cuts would be needed to meet the $144 billion legal ceiling on the deficit.

It's possible the conferees could begin work next week, but work almost certainly would not be completed until after the Memorial Day recess.

A GOP alternative defeated Thursday on the House floor, described by Michel as a party consensus, would have cut the military budget to $293 billion. Two weeks ago the Republican-controlled Senate passed a budget with $301 billion in military spending.

Several members said they expected the final compromise to be near the House Republicans' figure.

Three Justices Report Assets In The Millions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Justice Lewis F. Powell is the Supreme Court's richest member, while Justice Thurgood Marshall has the smallest amount of assets, financial disclosure reports showed.

Three of the nine justices are millionaires, according to the reports, which were released Thursday. And all but Marshall have assets worth at least $50,000.

Powell, whose wealth largely is managed by a Richmond, Va., bank, listed assets valued between $3.2 million and $6.5 million — up from the $2.6 million to $5.6 million listed for 1984.

One of three millionaire justices, Powell listed his 1985 dividends between $25,000 and $67,000, interest income of $80,000 to $214,000 or more and capital gains of $235,000 to $477,000 or more.

He reported that he received from $340,000 to $758,000 or more in non-salary income in 1985.

Financial disclosure statements for all nine justices were released in compliance with the Ethics in Government Act.

The law requires only broad ranges of value for the reporting of assets. It does not require that any asset worth less than $1,000 be listed, nor the value of personal property items, including the government official's principal residence.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justice Sandra Day O'Connor appeared to maintain their status as the court's other millionaires.

On the other end of the court's financial spectrum, Marshall listed a single asset — a savings and loan account worthy between $15,000 and $50,000. Last year, he listed that asset as worth no more than $15,000.

Burger's financial report reflected the sale of his Arlington, Va., home in April 1985. The report listed the sale price of the home and adjacent property at something more than $250,000. It listed a capital gain of more than $100,000 from the sale.

Justice Byron R. White's report noted the death of his mother-in-law in January 1985, and the $83,000 his wife received from her mother's estate.

Here are the listed 1985 assets of the court's members:

—Powell, $3.2 million to $6.5 million or more, up from $2.6 million to $5.6 million or more in 1984.

—Burger, $752,000 to $1.02 million or more, compared to $665,000 to $1.02 million or more.

—O'Connor, $1.15 million to $2.06 million or more, compared to $996,000 to $2.2 million in 1984.

—Marshall, $15,000 to $50,000, up from $5,000 to $15,000.

—White, $145,000 to $400,000, up from $60,000 to $200,000.

—Harry A. Blackmun, $166,000 to $550,000, down from $216,000 to $630,000.

—William J. Brennan, $75,000 to $240,000, up from $56,000 to $190,000.

—John Paul Stevens, $50,000 to $165,000, up from $35,000 to $115,000.

—William H. Rehnquist's report appeared to list assets of $265,000 to $710,000 but it is possible that three listed assets each worth between $100,000 and $250,000 are in reality one asset.

Military Pensions Reduced

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress overwhelmingly voted to reduce the retirement pay of future recruits, rejecting Pentagon claims that reducing pensions will hurt the nation's ability to attract and keep people in the military.

The Senate gave 92-1 approval Thursday to its version of a retirement bill, three weeks after the House voted 399-7 approval of a slightly different package of changes. The lone opposition vote Thursday was cast by Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y., who did not explain his reasons.

The Senate vote moves the issue to a conference committee, which will put together a single bill to be voted on again in each chamber.

Neither version affects the checks now received by 1.4 million retired personnel or the potential pensions of the 2.1 million people in the armed forces. Only pensions earned by those who enter the service after the bill's effective date would be changed.

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger and all five members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the nation's top military officers, had strongly opposed any changes in the current system.

They argued that pensions are a prime draw in attracting people to the military, particularly since the draft ended and the nation moved to an all-volunteer force.

Currently, a person who retires after 20 years receives a pension equal to 50 percent of his or her base pay, a figure that rises to a maximum of 75 percent of base pay after 30 years. People leaving before 20 years receive no pension.

The Senate proposal changes the "multiplier" used to figure pensions and limits the 20-year pension to 44 percent of base pay but would still permit a retiree to receive 75 percent after 30 years.

The House measure limits a 20-year pension to 40 percent of base pay, increasing to 75 percent after three decades.

Congress last year cut the Pentagon's request for spending on the retirement system for the current fiscal year from $18.2 billion to $15.3 billion. It also ordered the Pentagon to come up with a way to change the system for future retirees.

Congressional advocates of change, chiefly Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, argued that some reductions are necessary as part of the effort to cut rising federal deficits.

Feeling Good

Soft drinks have come a long way in the last fifty years. During the Depression, Charles Grigg sold a drink called Bib-Label Lithiated Lemon-Lime Soda. It was marketed as an anti-acid, and it was a huge success. Advertised as the beverage that "takes the ouch out of grouch," the drink contained lithium carbonate, a drug now prescribed for manic-depressives. The name of the drink was later shortened to 7UP. Lithium was listed on the label until the mid-1940s.

FmHA Says Loan Money Is Short

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Farmers Home Administration is rapidly running out of money for its direct farm operating loan program, but officials are counting on meeting credit needs through loan guarantees made to banks.

Vance L. Clark, FmHA administrator, said Thursday that some states have exhausted their allocations. In all, he said, the agency has about $159 million that has not been formally obligated as loans to farmers.

But most of that is carried in the states as unused funds, while the FmHA's actual national reserve is down to less than $60 million, which is expected to last only a matter of days.

Clark said the FmHA plans to concentrate on loan guarantees to see farmers through the remainder of the spring season and will not seek additional funds for direct operating loans.

"We think we can do it," Clark replied when asked whether the guarantees will take care of the demand.

The FmHA, an agency of the Agriculture Department, is often called the farmer's lender of last resort. Traditionally, farmers cannot qualify for its loans unless they have been turned down by banks and other commercial lenders.

All told, including rural housing, farm ownership and other programs, the agency serves about 270,000 borrowers. About 13 percent of the nation's $212 billion in farm debt is held by the agency.

Wall Street Faces Test Of Integrity

NEW YORK (AP) — One of Wall Street's most valued possessions — its integrity — is being tested by the government's latest charges of illegal insider trading in the financial community.

In an environment where confidential information worth millions of dollars is exchanged daily, investment firms cultivate relationships with clients based largely on the trust that such data will be handled discreetly and legally.

But the Street's reputation is under pressure after Securities and Exchange Commission allegations of illicit insider trading by an investment banker at Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc., and, in a separate case, the investment firm First Boston Corp.

Although the circumstances in each case are wholly distinct, their coming within days of each other has forced Wall Street to again review its controls aimed at discouraging illegal trading of securities based on "inside information," information on a publicly owned company not yet available to the public.

If nothing else, the charges likely will prompt Wall Street's top executives to reassure skittish clients that all is being done to prevent such information from being abused.

"Everyone will have to have more extensive discussions with clients about their security measures," said Daniel J. Good, merger chief with E.F. Hutton & Co. "They (clients) have every right to be very careful with whom they're dealing, and to find out how that information will be handled."

The charges also could sow additional seeds of distrust among individual investors, who frequently complain of being the last to know about important developments affecting their stocks.

Wall Street observers agreed that no firm's internal controls are foolproof.

"Regardless of how good the internal procedures are, if there's somebody who wants to override them, it can be done," said Perrin Long, a securities industry analyst for Lipper Analytical Services Inc.

Long also said that while the latest charges "create near-term credibility problems" for Wall Street, "over the longer term, I don't think it will have a serious impact — unless this is just the tip of the iceberg."

On May 5, the SEC charged First Boston with illegally profiting when its stock traders sold shares based on inside information received by the firm's corporate finance arm.

Glenn Says He'll Repay Loans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John Glenn says he has assured four Ohio banks to which he owes $1.89 million plus interest that the debt will be repaid in full, but that substantial repayments will begin after his reelection campaign ends in the fall.

The Ohio Democrat, who borrowed the money to finance his unsuccessful 1984 presidential campaign, said Thursday that he met with bank officials Wednesday to discuss the debt. Last January, the banks agreed to extend Glenn's repayment deadline to May 15 and to allow payment of accruing monthly interest to be deferred until then.

"We said we would continue to raise money to repay the loans both during and after the Senate campaign, but that they could not realistically expect to receive substantial additional payment until we can turn our full efforts to that task six months from now," said Glenn, who is up for reelection in November.

Glenn still has about $2.8 million in debts stemming from his bid for the Democratic nomination, $1.89 million plus interest of which is owed to BancOhio National Bank, Bank One of Columbus, Ameritrust Co. and Huntington National Bank.

The Glenn committee has repaid more than $400,000 on the presidential debt.

Touring Exhibit Will Honor Photographer

By GRAHAM HEATHCOTE
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — Cecil Beaton, the dandy photographer who knew everybody who was anybody from British royalty to Marlene Dietrich, gets the last picture show all to himself today.

"I'm sure he would have loved it," said art historian David Mellor, who has set aside 20 richly furnished rooms in London's Barbican complex to display the best of Beaton's work from seven decades.

Beaton, winner of two Hollywood Oscars for his film sets and costume work on the movies "Gigi" and "My Fair Lady," was knighted in 1972 for service to the arts, including glamorizing the royal family with his elegantly posed photographs. He died in 1980, at age 76.

The show, featuring 700 of his works, opens today for a three-month exhibition, then is expected to tour in condensed version later this year in Europe, the United States and Japan. Beaton began taking photographs in 1913 with a Box Brownie under the guidance of the family nanny. At Harrow school he graduated to a folding Kodak 3A, which is among the items in the exhibition, and eventually became a photographer of high society and fashion in London and New York.

He was the lover of Greta Garbo, grew prizewinning flowers in his country house garden, wrote six volumes of autobiography and described himself as a "scheming snob" in one of the surviving 145 volumes of his diaries.

From the vast Beaton archive, 580 photographs by and of Beaton have been chosen for the Barbican show by Mellor, who is a specialist in the history of British photography.

The photos start with a blurred snapshot of Beaton reading in bed at age 6, to his own portraits of British royalty, and notables like Miss Dietrich, Gertrude Stein, Gary Cooper, Pablo Picasso, Sir Winston Churchill, Marilyn Monroe and Elizabeth Taylor.

There are his often dramatic World War II photos in Europe, the Middle East, India and China, and his imitable fashion shots using blitzed buildings as backgrounds for smart-suited women.

The exhibition settings reflect his bachelor lifestyle: smart clothes, smart women, the famous, fine houses and lots of flowers.

Patrick Duffy Makes His Return To 'Dallas' Tonight

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Patrick Duffy returns to "Dallas" in tonight's cliffhanger episode of the CBS series, but nobody is saying whether he'll be Bobby Ewing returning from the grave or a new character.

Duffy quit the hit prime-time soap opera at the end of last season, and Bobby died in a hospital bed after he was struck by a car. His appearance is expected to be little more than a walk-on, probably at the end of the show. He will return as a "Dallas" regular in the fall — when some of the questions will be answered.

"It's a deep secret," said Duffy. "I think even the people on the show will be taken aback about how I return as a person."

Will he be Bobby again?
"I didn't mention returning as Bobby Ewing," he said. "I won't mention it. I'm not saying I won't be Bobby Ewing, but I'm not saying I will. Leonard Katzman had this brilliant idea of how I would return."

Katzman is the new executive producer of "Dallas," but he has been the show's producer or consultant since its debut in April 1978. He has written at least a third of the shows and directed many of them.

It was another cliffhanger, "Who shot J.R.?" in 1980, and the worldwide attention it created, that made "Dallas" the highest-rated show on television.

This past season it fell to seventh, and program executives at CBS and Lorimar-Teletelvisions began looking for a means to pull the show up again.

"I don't know if the drop in ratings had anything to do with (his departure) or not," Duffy said. "The show lost three million viewers last season. The only thing they're happy about is it finished ahead of 'Dynasty.' They've never been aware of what makes 'Dallas' successful. It's the combined chemistry of the characters and the actors playing those roles."

"I'm not quite sure if anything will ever be quite as big as 'Who shot J.R.?'," said Katzman, "but I do believe the return of Patrick will cause a tremendous amount of discussion and interest."

"As for the ratings, I don't think anybody's going to beat 'Cosby,' but I think this will get us a huge tune-in. After that, it's up to us to give people the 'Dallas' they had come to know and love and keep them there. We expect this to have an impact similar to 'Who shot J.R.?'"

Since Duffy left the show, Pamela (Victoria Principal) has become engaged to Mark Graison (John Beck) and their wedding is scheduled for the cliffhanger show. Most speculation suggests that Duffy will make his appearance there.

"I'm looking forward to returning," said Duffy. "I've never had another working situation like this in terms of camaraderie and support on the set. There's so little competition. I think in the beginning Victoria and I had a little competition but that ended the first time I directed. I could see that it depended on teamwork."

Duffy said he did not leave "Dallas" because he had complaints. "I wasn't angry or fed up," he said. "I wanted to set up my own production company. I wanted to do all the things I couldn't do because I didn't have time while doing a series. I had a home building in Arizona and some land holdings that needed attention. I have an invention company with some patents out of St. Louis. My production company has several things in development. Now that things are moving I can run them from the set."

He made four acting appearances in an effort to show producers that he could play roles other than Bobby. They were the Operation Prime Time miniseries "Strong Medicine," guest roles on ABC's "Hotel" and CBS' "George Burns Comedy Week," and a role as the goat on the CBS movie "Alice in Wonderland."

"I had a very productive year," he said.

Panel Calls For Radical Education Reforms

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer
CORONADO, Calif. (AP) — Unless Americans are willing to pay for a drastic reorganization of public education, they will have to reconcile themselves to "a massive decline in our standard of living," a blue-ribbon panel says.

Hundreds of educators and politicians gathered today to discuss the radical blueprint unveiled Thursday by the Carnegie Corporation's Task Force on Teaching as a Profession, which includes the heads of both teachers' unions.

The report signed by all 14 panel members calls for abolishing undergraduate education degrees, creating a board to certify top teachers, and pegging teachers' salaries in part to their students' performance.

It demands more power and autonomy for teachers, and even suggests that some schools do away with principals and be run instead by a committee of "lead teachers" earning salaries of $65,500 a year or more.

The 78-page report, "A Nation Prepared: Teachers for the 21st Century," said bolstering the profession is the key to turning factory-like public schools into places where children will learn to think for themselves.

To avert "a massive decline in our standard of living" and the growth of a permanent underclass, it said, "our schools must graduate the vast majority of their students with achievement levels long thought possible for only the privileged few."

The Carnegie Corporation announced today it is giving Stanford University $817,000 to develop ways to measure teachers' skills for the proposed national certification board. Stanford education researcher Lee Shulman said teacher tests now used in most states are "a travesty."

The task force, whose chairman is IBM chief scientist and vice president Lewis M. Branscomb, said that in exchange for greater autonomy, local teachers must be prepared to accept greater accountability if pupils fail to learn.

The panel called for establishing a new pecking order within the profession, with "lead teachers" working year-round; advanced certificate holders earning $42,000 for 10 months' work, and certified teachers — the majority — earning $35,500 for 10 months.

The average teacher now earns around $25,000.

The panel said teachers' pay should be pegged to productivity, as determined in part by students' performance. But it said the existing ways of measuring students' progress are not satisfactory.

On the call for letting teachers run schools, Scott Thomson, executive director of the National Association of Secondary School Principals, said, "I don't feel threatened by it ... Nothing is ever run well by committee."

Mary Hatwood Futrell, the president of the 1.8 million-member National Education Association, signed the report, but added a list of reservations that challenged many of its main planks.

She complained that the "lead teacher" plan "suggests that some teachers are more equal than others." She also objected to recommendations to increase parents' choices among public schools, subjecting schools to the pressures of market competition.

"We didn't feel we could support the report 100 percent," she said in an interview. But she said that it contained "a lot of good things ... the most revolutionary part is that they're going to give teachers power. They've never had that before."

The task force said more minorities must be attracted into teaching, saying, "We cannot tolerate a future in which both white and minority children are confronted with almost exclusively white authority figures in the schools."

It also said, "Teachers work in an environment suffused with bureaucracy. Many of the best people now staffing our schools ... are immensely frustrated. They see the bureaucratic structure within which they work becoming even more rigid, and the opportunities for exercising professional judgment becoming even more limited."

U.S. Secretary of Education William J. Bennett, in a telephone interview, said he was "very pleased so many of the recommendations move in the directions we've been urging: merit pay, high standards, parental choice, liberal arts for prospective teachers."

But he said, "there's a missing person in this report: the principal ... When a parent comes to school, she does not want to see a committee."

Bennett's predecessor, T.H. Bell, called it "a brilliant report."

Albert Shanker, who as president of the American Federation of Teachers issued the first call for a national teacher certification board in January 1985, said the report "heralds a new era in the nation's quest for educational excellence and equity."

Professor Who Coined 'WASP' Label Retires

By JEFF BARKER
Associated Press Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — They didn't always agree with him, but some of E. Digby Baltzell's 20,000 former students returned to the University of Pennsylvania to hear one last rambling lecture by the expert on America's upper crust who coined the term "WASP."

Wearing his trademark red bow-tie, Baltzell, 71, didn't disappoint 300 admirers at his retirement dinner Thursday night.

He reminisced about a 39-year career in which he taught "the eager, fascinating, motivated, mature GI's after World War II; the anarchist, dangerously idealistic 1960s radicals; and the sensible, sane 1980s conservatives who are overly concerned with grades."

Baltzell said that yuppies have wrongly been given a bad name, and dropped hints about his upcoming book, which he said could be called,

"John McEnroe and the Decline of the West." He said the temperamental tennis player was symbolic of how America has become a society without rules.

University President Sheldon Hackney called Baltzell "one of the most beloved professors" in the history of the fourth-oldest college in the nation.

"I'm graduating forever," Baltzell said. Handsome and refined, the Philadelphia-born Baltzell is an authority on class structure, an expert on the implications of tennis whites and BMWs. But put him behind the podium at his popular class on social stratification and he is anything but stuffy.

Ernesta Ballard Barnes, a 1967 graduate from Seattle, said in a written remembrance that she would never forget the first day of class, when Baltzell asked all the students to stand.

"In a rapid succession of commands he then had us array ourselves along the four walls of the room — first by sex, then by age, then major, by color of hair, by whether or not we had seen a certain film. It was instant social stratification."

She remembered him as "just a little intimidating but so fascinating it was well worth the adrenalin surge of nerves to approach him."

A 1974 course guide compiled by Penn students said that reviews of his lecture "ranged from sheer brilliance to utter chaos, and some felt each lecture was a combination of the two."

Baltzell was also hailed at the dinner by current students, some of them budding yuppies whom he said have been wrongly maligned. Yuppies, he said, are a product of the dissolution of the nation's social structure.

"They are very hard workers who want to make it on their own and they are thought to be selfish. I think they are self-centered, but everybody is self-centered in a way," he said. "My view is the social structure was decimated in the 1960s. There are no rules. What is there left if you have no social structure? Money and me."

A student group sang a school song, changing the words to "The Red and the Blue" to reflect Baltzell's course: "Come all ye loyal classmen now from hall and campus through. Divide yourselves according to how Digby would sort you."

Baltzell is sometimes called elitist, to which he replies: "I believe in hierarchy. I'm an anti-egalitarian, I'll tell you that."

He is credited with coining the term "WASP" — White Anglo-Saxon Protestant — in his 1964 book, "Protestant Establishment: Aristocracy and Caste in America."

Everyone is familiar with the basic holdup play: refusing to win an early trick in the suit with the ace to exhaust one of the defenders (or, in some cases, declarer) of cards in that suit. But the holdup play also crops up in some disguised versions which are not so easy to spot. South's spade holding here is a case in point.

This deal occurred in the Men's Team event at the recent Spring North American Championships in Portland, Ore. West's two-club cuebid was a limited takeout in the major suits, so both of North's bids were cuebids. North-South settled in a normal three no trump contract.

West led his fourth-best spade. If declarer carelessly wins East's queen with the king, he will be defeated if the club finesse fails. When in with the king of clubs, East can lead a spade through declarer's jack, enabling West to cash five spade tricks.

When Michael Kamil of Ft. Lee, N.J., held the South cards, he correctly allowed the queen of spades to win the first trick. East continued with a spade to the ace and West cleared the suit, but the defenders were helpless. Declarer conceded a club and made nine tricks in comfort.

The play is more interesting if East shifts to a heart at trick two. To make his contract, declarer must win and lead the king of spades immediately to set up a trick in the suit. If West wins the ace and reverts to a heart, declarer must then hold up the ace of hearts for one round before going after the clubs.

If, at trick three, declarer were to lead a club instead of a spade, he can be defeated. When East wins the king of clubs he continues with the hearts to set up the suit while his partner still has the ace of spades as an entry, and declarer has only eight tricks.
