Martin, Fenner Meet In Primary Runoff

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Voters in six Pitt County precincts will be going to the polls Tuesday to vote in the runoff race between incumbent Robert L. (Bob) Martin and runner-up Mrs. Jeanne Fenner of Wilson for the N.C. Senate 6th District seat.

Mrs. Fenner, who trailed Martin by 460 votes in the May 6 primary, called for the runoff. A third candidate, Mort Hurst of Robersonville, received 1,023 votes and has stated that he will give his support to Martin in the runoff.

The six Pitt County precincts voting in the runoff are Arthur, Belvoir, Bethel, Farmville, Falkland and Fountain. The 6th District Senate seat is the only ballot voters in those precincts will mark. Voters in other Pitt County precincts will not be going to the polls.

Polls will be open from 6:30 a.m.-7:30 p.m. Only Democrats who were registered and eligible to vote on May 6 may vote Tuesday. Transfer voters, residents who have changed voting precincts and who voted at the elections office in Greenville on May 6, may vote either in their new precinct or at the elections office, 201

East Second Street in Greenville if they do not have a current registration card.

Poll holders in the six precincts have been asked to call in results to The Daily Reflector promptly after votes have been tallied.

In the May 6 Democratic primary, incumbent Martin received 7,547 votes to edge out Mrs. Fenner, who received 7,104. The voting area for the 6th District comprises the six precincts in Pitt County, two in Martin, 21 in Edgecombe and 26 in Wilson counties.

Martin carried Pitt and Martin counties by a large majority, while Mrs. Fenner carried Wilson and Edgecombe counties by large majorities. Her biggest margin of victory was in Edgecombe County.

Martin, a former Pitt County commissioner and a retired supervisor for Seaboard Coastline Railroad, is completing his first term as state senator.

Martin, in phone comments, said he was "optimistic about my chances."

"I have been picking up strength in Edgecombe County, where I made

Medical District Hearing Tuesday

By SUE HINSON
Reflector Staff Writer

The Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission will hold a public hearing Tuesday to hear comments and possibly take final action on a plan for expansion of Pitt-Greenville's medical district.

Under review for the past four months, the current proposal calling for formation of a 5,300-acre medical park to provide health services for eastern North Carolinians differs only slightly from the original Medical District Study Committee recommendation presented to the city in December 1985.

According to city planners, proposed changes effected during the review period include revision of zone boundaries within the planned park to allow for growth of Pitt County Memorial Hospital and the East Carolina University School of Medicine.

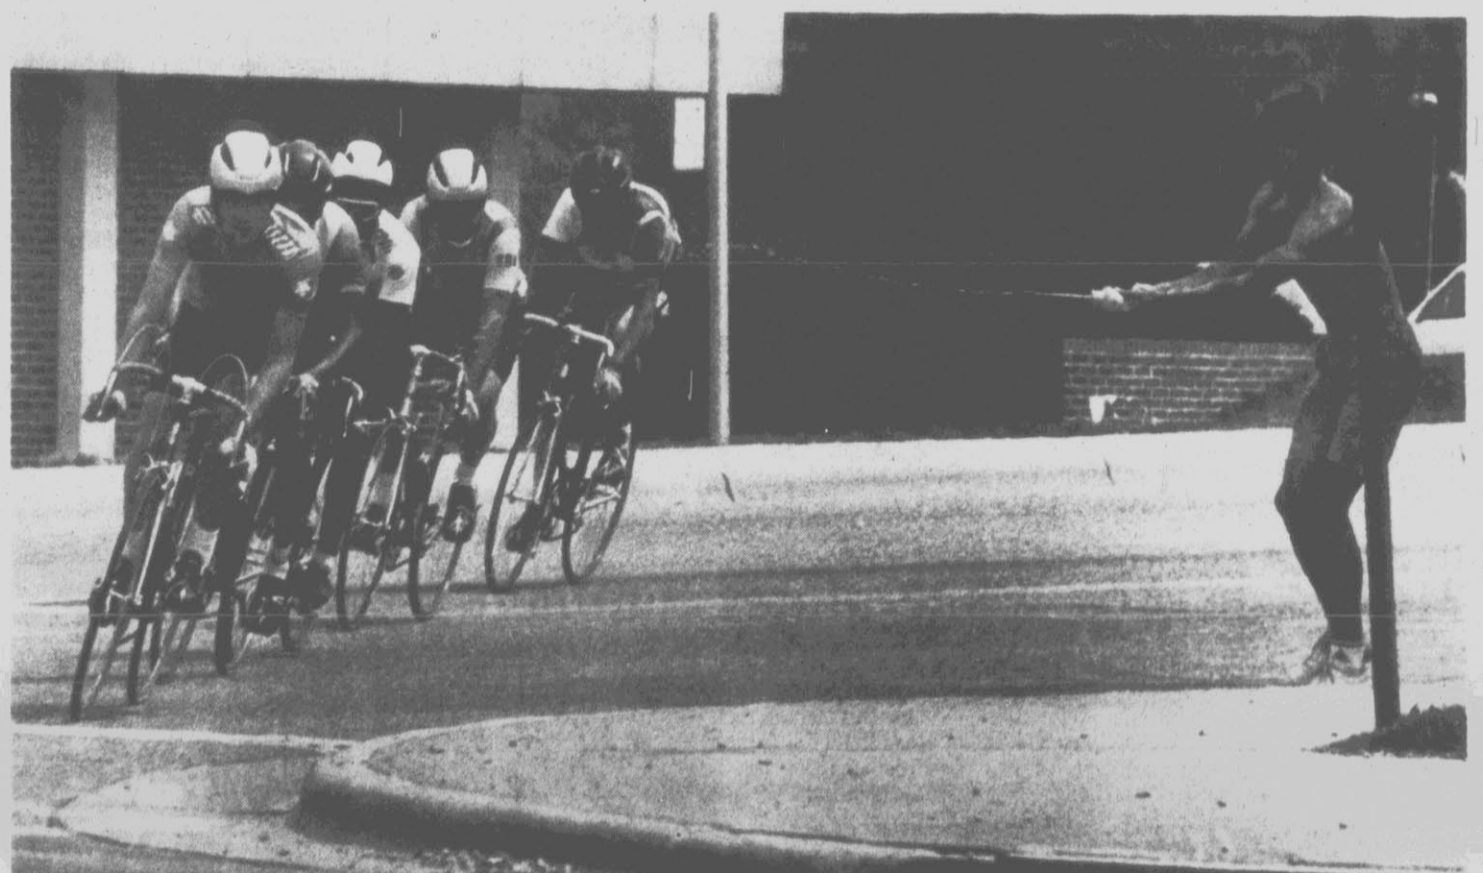

The hospital and medical school, intended focal points of the medical park, are expected to develop to the east and west.

Tuesday's meeting, the 59th held on the proposed medical park since city officials identified the future of the area as a top priority over a year ago, will be held in the third floor council chamber of City Hall at 7 p.m.

Individuals or groups who notified the Planning and Zoning Commission by letter that they would like to address the issue at the meeting will be asked to speak first. Their comments will be limited to five minutes per individual.

Following pre-arranged comments, the floor will be opened to others in attendance who wish to speak. There will be a three minute time limit placed on impromptu commentary.

Pitt Legislators Face Busy Agenda

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County's delegates to the N.C. General Assembly say they will begin the legislative short session Thursday with highway fund transfers, state employee pay increases and prison system improvement as major issues.

Lawmakers also say they will tackle local government water and sewer problems as well as malpractice and other insurance issues.

Sens. Tom Taft and Bob Martin and Reps. Ed Warren and Walter Jones Jr. each spoke briefly and answered questions during a Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce-sponsored "Eggs and Issues" breakfast this morning.

Appropriating money from North Carolina's $16.2 billion biennial budget will be the focus of this short legislative session, the lawmakers said. Despite the loss of $117 in revenue sharing funds used mostly for capital improvements for schools and losses in both the textiles and tobacco industries, the legislators are working with a $330 million surplus this year because of low inflation and no recession, Rep. Ed Warren said.

Highway Commissioner Randy Doub made a plea for legislators to

Impact Of AT&T Strike Weighed

By MATT YANCEY
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A strike against American Telephone & Telegraph Co. by its biggest union probably will not have much effect immediately, Labor Secretary William Brock said today.

"It probably will not have too much effect in the short term and the question will be, how long can either side last," Brock said on NBC-TV's "Today" show. "But at the moment I imagine the services will be fairly well-sustained."

Asked if the federal government is likely to intervene in the strike, Brock said, "I think not. ... I don't think we'd serve any useful purpose by intervening. This is a healthy collective bargaining process. The two sides have to settle their own differences. We don't have any wisdom in government to tell one side they've got to do this or that. We don't have the authority, nor should we."

Vowing to break a pattern of giveback contracts imposed on wage earners in recent years, the Communication Workers of America, representing more than three-fourths of AT&T's 200,000 union workers, struck the telecommunications giant at 12:01 a.m. EDT Sunday.

However, later Sunday the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers signed a "tentative accord" for an 8 percent wage increase over the next three years for its nearly 41,000 AT&T employees. That same offer was rejected by CWA negotiators.

CWA President Morton Bahr, appearing on ABC's "Good Morning America," today said AT&T is a company that is "making enormous profits and seeks to take advantage of what they believe is the concessionary environment in this country."

"And so the cause of this strike is the demand for unwarranted concessions by the company," he said.

But AT&T executive vice president Charles Marshall, appearing on the same program, said the company's offer would not bring wage cuts for workers. "We understand that our employees did not want to make concessions, nor should they have to," he said. "And that's why we did not ask them to."

AT&T officials, clearly bolstered by the IBEW pact, said they intended to open all of their 24 manufacturing plants in 17 states today despite vows by CWA to halt production of telecommunications equipment.

On Saturday, AT&T had said it would not attempt to operate any of those plants, which are normally closed on weekends, if there was a strike. That position changed when a tentative accord was reached with the IBEW, which represents workers at 13 of the plants.

"If people are at those plants to work, we intend to produce," said Herb Linnen, an AT&T spokesman. He acknowledged that factories where the Communications Workers are employed will likely remain closed.

Art Perry, director of the IBEW's telephone division, said the tentative accord was signed Sunday and will be submitted to his union's members for a rank-and-file ratification vote within the next two weeks.

However, Perry said union leaders had not yet decided whether to recommend accepting or rejecting the package.

While Perry said IBEW members are not on strike, "the general policy

Miracle Telethon A Success

More than $65,115 was pledged for the Children's Hospital of Eastern North Carolina during the Children's Miracle Telethon held Saturday and Sunday.

"The counting's still going on this morning, so we can't give an exact total," Dr. Jon Tingelstad, a chief promoter of the telethon, said. "We do know that the telethon was an enormous success, both in terms of money raised and people reached with new knowledge of our children's hospital and what it does. We're grateful to those who contributed and pledged and to all the volunteers, especially the crew of WITN-TV. More than 400 volunteers took part."

The local telethon was held in conjunction with the Osmond Foundation's annual telethon aired in Salt Lake City, Utah, to raise money for children's hospitals nationwide. The national fund-raising for 130 hospitals amounted to more than $30 million, it was reported two minutes before the telethon ended. Final figures are not in.

This is the first year Children's Hospital of Eastern North Carolina, a new entity that is a division of Pitt County Memorial Hospital, has taken part in the national telethon.

Wedding Vows Solemnized In Double Ring Ceremony Sunday

Susan Martha Hudson of Greenville and Bryan Erich Jarvis of Swan Quarter were united in marriage Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Black Jack Free Will Baptist Church. The Rev. Dan Rivers performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lenwood Fred Hudson Sr. of Greenville, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Foster Linwood Jarvis of Swan Quarter.

A program of wedding music was presented by organist Peggy Hardee of Black Jack and pianist Randy Buck of Greenville, brother-in-law of the bride. Vocalists were Lynn Page and Jodi Hudson, both of Black Jack.

Matron of honor was Patsy Hudson Buck of Greenville, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Helga Jarvis of Swan Quarter, sister of the bridegroom, Regina Hardee of Jacksonville, Donna Hudson Pair, Lisa Jo Hardee and Sharon Dixon, all of Greenville. Junior bridesmaids were Melinda and Janet Buck of Greenville, nieces of the bride. Flower girls were Nesha Brooks of Swan Quarter and Blair Jarvis of Hatteras, both nieces of the bridegroom.

Ronnie Jarvis of Hatteras, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Joe Hudson of Greenville, brother of the bride, Roger Jarvis, brother of the bridegroom, Michael Cahoon and Blythe Davis, all of Swan Quarter, and Ronnie Robinson of Winterville. Ringbearer was Ronnie Jarvis Jr. of Hatteras, nephew of the bridegroom.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore a formal white gown of sheer organza and alencon lace. The bodice was fashioned of point d'esprit lace and featured a Queen Anne neckline etched with pearls and iridescents. The long tapered lace applied sleeves fastened with scalloped lace edged with pearls and iridescents. The skirt flowed into an attached chapel length train. Her two-tiered fingertip veil of illusion beaded with pearls and iridescents fell from a headpiece of alencon lace etched with pearls and iridescents. She carried a bouquet of phalaenopsis and royal bouquet white orchids, pink sweetheart roses and sprays of greenery tied with pink and white satin.

The bridesmaids each wore a rose matte taffeta gown designed with a sweetheart neckline and off-shoulder ruffled sleeves with a rosette in the center. The full ruffle trimmed skirt fell from a natural waistline. The flower girls wore matching gowns in the same color and carried white lace baskets filled with miniature pink carnations, baby's breath and rose petals tied with narrow pink satin. Each attendant carried a bouquet of pink pixie carnations, gerbera daisies and greenery and baby's breath tied with mauve satin.

The ring bearer carried a white satin pillow with a spray of pink flowers.

The mother of the bride wore a royal blue gown of matte georgette with a tucked blouson bodice and long sleeves. The mother of the bridegroom wore a pale peach knee-length gown of tineseta knit fashioned with a blouson bodice and long leg 'o mutton sleeves. Both mothers wore orchid corsages.

Lori Gibbs of Ayden presided at the register. Rice bags were distributed by Janet Buck, Melinda Buck, Blair Jarvis and Nesha Brooks. The wedding was directed by Marie Cox of Greenville.

A reception was given by parents and friends of the bride at the Cherry Fellowship Hall. Punch was served by Jinny H. Jarvis of Hatteras, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, and Jane D. Cauley of Kinston, aunt of the bride. Cake was served by Edna Mills of Black Jack. Mr. and Mrs. Billy Elks greeted guests, and Max-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hudson.

A rehearsal dinner was given by parents of the bridegroom at the Holiday Inn in Greenville. A bridesmaids luncheon was given by Zena Hudson, aunt of the bride, and Janice H. Bullock. Several showers were given in honor of the couple.

The bride is a student at East Carolina University. The bridegroom is employed by General Heating and Air Conditioning, Inc. After a wedding trip, the couple will live in Winterville.

'Meet A Museum' Picnic Held Sunday

The N.C. Art Society, membership branch of the N.C. Museum of Art, held a "Meet A Museum" picnic Sunday evening in Greenville.

New members attended the picnic held in the meadow at Brook Valley Country Club. Parasols and quilts were used throughout the meadow.

Disc jockey Collins Cooper of Goldsboro provided music.

Mrs. William S. Corbitt Jr. and Mrs. James Ficklen Jr., members of the N.C. Art Society board, planned the event, with board members Mr. and Mrs. Derek T. Dunn, Mr. and Mrs. Carles Eason, Vickie Evans, Dr. and Mrs. Donald Hardee, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel A. Hewett III, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Howard, Carl E. Jordan, Angel Melvin, Mr. and Mrs. C. Barbour Strickland III, Mr. and Mrs. D. Jordan Whichard III, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Young and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Young.

Representing the museum were Mrs. James Doss, executive director of the art society, and her husband, and Suzanne Sugg, a member of the art society staff.

Couple Marries Sunday In Garden Ceremony

VALDESE — Lana Bernice Carswell of Valdese and James Kevin Holley of Greenville were united in marriage Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock in a garden wedding held at the home of the bride.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Robert E. Clyde, Baptist campus minister at East Carolina University. The pianist was Tracy Queen, and Joey Swayze was the guitarist. The soloist was Crystal Carpenter, cousin of the bride. David West, cousin of the bride, directed the wedding.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Tom Carswell of Valdese, and Dr. and Mrs. William H. Holley of Greenville.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown designed and made by her mother. The gown of white batise over lace featured a sweetheart neckline with lace ruffle, gathered elbow-length sleeves and a full tucked skirt accented with streamers of satin ribbon and bows detailed with pink rosebuds. She wore a headpiece of white silk flowers accented with pearls and streamers of white satin ribbon, previously worn by her mother. She carried a bouquet of white and pink rosebuds and baby's breath centered with a pink orchid accented with satin streamers with rosebuds and lily of the valley placed on a lace covered Bible given to her by the Baptist Young Women of United Baptist Church, Valdese.

The maid of honor was Robin Cook of Valdese, cousin of the bride. Bridesmaids were Jennifer West and Patti West, both cousins of the bride from Valdese, and Ginger Livingston of Roper. Each attendant wore a sundress of pastel linen with an overblouse of white eyelet lace belted with matching satin ribbon. Each attendant carried an arm bouquet of mixed silk flowers accented with feathers and satin streamers.

The best man was David E. Harris of Fayetteville, and ushers were Keith Holley of Gainesville, Fla., and David Holley of Winston-Salem brothers of the bridegroom, and Joey Swayze of Greenville.

The mothers of the couple wore wrist corsages of silk flowers. Grandmothers of the bride, Myrtle West and Mrs. Ramon Carswell, both of Valdese, and grandmother of the bridegroom, Alma B. Rowland of Raleigh, were remembered with corsages of silk flowers.

A reception given by the parents of the bride was held at their home following the ceremony.

A rehearsal dinner was given by the parents of the bridegroom at the Rainbow Inn restaurant in Morgan ton. The couple was honored by a picking, linen shower and miscellaneous showers prior to the wedding.

The couple will live in Winterville after a wedding trip to St. Augustine Fla. Both are students at East Carolina University.

Miss Brite, Mr. White Marry Sunday

CHOCOWINITY — The wedding ceremony of Ella Rae Brite of Chocowinity and Charles Franklin White of Greenville took place Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock in First Baptist Church of Chocowinity.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Bill Brite of Route 1, Chocowinity, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. White of Rich Square.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Howard Corley. The pianist was Lexa Upton, and soloists were Wendy Dixon, Roy Greene and the bride.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore a gown of organza with beaded re-embroidered chantilly lace and embroidered motifs outlining a Queen Anne neckline. Victorian sleeves were enhanced with the same lace and featured satin bows and a silk rose at the elbow. The basque waistline was defined with matching lace and pearls. The flared skirt and semi-cathedral train were edged with a flounce topped with re-embroidered lace and decorated with satin bows and silk roses. Her two-tiered fingertip veil of illusion fell from a headpiece of silk Venise lace, silk flowers and pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of silk pink and white roses, miniature carnations, stephanotis and lilies of the valley tied with satin streamers.

The maid of honor was Bonnie Brite, of Chocowinity, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Laura Creech of Chapel Hill, sister of the bridegroom; Anne White of Jackson, sister-in-law of the bridegroom; Kimberly Elks of Chocowinity, and Pam Rogers of Washington, N.C. Each attendant wore a pink organza gown designed with a ruffled drop shoulder neckline. The full skirt of the gown featured a double ruffled hemline caught up at one side with a bow. The maid of honor carried a nosegay of silk pink and white roses and forget-me-nots tied with pink ribbons and streamers. The bridesmaids carried nosegays of pink and white silk roses with white ribbon and streamers.

The flower girl was Davie-Anne Dixon of Chocowinity. She wore a dress matching the attendants and carried a lace basket of pink rose petals.

The best man was the father of the bridegroom. Ushers were Jimmy Cherry of Washington, cousin of the bride; David Creech of Chapel Hill, brother-in-law of the bridegroom; Nelson Harte of Southern Pines, and Lee White of Jackson, brother of the bridegroom. Geoffrey Andrews of Washington was the ring bearer.

The mother of the bride wore a gown of ice blue lustre-glo with an accordin pleated skirt and attached chifon cape. The mother of the bridegroom wore a pale aqua gown of georgette styled with a tucked blouson bodice and pleated skirt. Both mothers were remembered with a corsage of white silk sweetheart roses and was presented with a long-stemmed pink rose.

The couple's grandmothers, Bonnie Henries, Mae Kennedy and Maxine White, wore white carnation corsages.

The reception was held at the Ruritan Club, hosted by the bride's parents. Catreta Andrews, Lola Dixon, Julie Hunter, Evelyn Edwards and Martha McRoy assisted. Janene Cherry attended the register and Erin Cherry distributed rice bags and scrolls.

The parents of the bridegroom hosted a rehearsal dinner at Holiday Inn. A bridesmaids luncheon was given at the home of the bride. The couple was honored with several parties and showers.

The couple are graduates of Pitt Community College. The bride is a radiologic technologist at Pitt County Memorial Hospital, and the bridegroom is employed at K-Mart in Greenville.

After a wedding trip to Charleston, S.C., the couple will live in Greenville.

Highway Fatality

One person was killed and two others injured Sunday in a head-on collision on U.S. 264 west of Greenville according to the N.C. Highway Patrol.

According to Trooper Spencer Padgett, Marjorie Hobgood Hardy, a passenger in a van driven by Malcolm Greenwood Hardy of Goldsboro, died when the vehicle collided head-on with a tractor-trailer. Padgett said the Hardy van braked for a car making a right turn and skidded into the path of an oncoming westbound tractor-trailer truck.

The driver of the van, Hardy, was seriously injured, the trooper said.

Padgett said the truck driver, identified as Jerry Wayne Wilson of Route 1, Pinetown, was slightly injured in the crash. The truck was registered to Rollins Leasing, Inc., of Wilmington, Del., and the tractor portion of the truck was listed as a total loss.

Hardy's van was also a total loss, according to the trooper.

Padgett said no charges have been made pending further investigation of the accident.

Wonder Rally

CARSON, Calif. (AP) — Singer Stevie Wonder, whose 1984 hit "Don't Drive Drunk" pushed him to the forefront of a national anti-drunken driving campaign, will perform at a rally here for students.

Friday's rally, titled "Don't Drink and Drive," is being sponsored by Compton Municipal Court Judge Irma J. Brown, who is seeking re-election.

Rally spokeswoman Susan Romeo said Ms. Brown and the Grammy Award winning Wonder are good friends.

Service Award

N.C. Rep. Ed N. Warren was the recipient of the 1985 Outstanding Service Award presented by the North Carolina Association of Directors of Developmental Disability Centers at the association's banquet in Raleigh Thursday.

The award was presented to Warren by Martha Lee Ellis, legislative chairman of the association.

Warren, who represents the 9th District, which includes Greene County and most of Pitt County, is chairman of the House Appropriations Committee on Education.

There are 84 developmental disability centers in the state, providing rehabilitative programming for children with mental retardation and other development disabilities.

Views On Dental Health

Kenneth T. Perkins, D.D.S., P.A.

PREVENTING FACIAL CHANGE

If you have one or more teeth missing in your mouth, maybe you've put off doing something about it. This is a serious mistake—if you want to avoid serious dental problems as well as protect the appearance of your face.

Just think for a moment what would happen if all your teeth were missing and you had no dentures or artificial teeth to fill the gaps. The entire lower half of your face would collapse. Your mouth would pucker and sink in. The distance from the tip of your nose to the tip of your chin would decrease. Deep facial lines would form and the skin would sag, droop, and be deeply marked by wrinkles. Jowls would develop. All of these changes would add years to your true age. It is sometimes called the "Popeye" effect.

Millions of Americans have lost all their teeth. The chief reason for this is neglect to get dental care. If you have any missing teeth, make an appointment at my office so I can fill the gaps and protect your dental health and your appearance.

No Retreat

If we're going to live with the principle that North Carolina's public higher education should be available to all who aspire to a better life then we must accept the premise that raising tuition for in-state students in the University of North Carolina system would be a barrier; so we would be bound to oppose Gov. Jim Martin's proposed tuition increase.

At best, the 3.2 percent increase would mean boosting state income by only about $1.3 million; but for a number of individual students it might well mean closing the door to opportunity.

As UNC Board of Governors member John Jordan of Raleigh says, "It is not in the tradition of public education in North Carolina. It is a departure of the philosophy we have followed for 200 years."

Tuition for in-state students is currently $350 at four-year campuses, $410 for students at campuses that offer master's degrees and $480 at doctorate-granting campuses.

Those who have traveled the road know tuition costs are sometimes among the lesser costs of acquiring a college education.

Our state goes to extraordinary lengths to assure its college hopefuls get their chance by making it easier for those who did not fare well in Scholastic Aptitude Tests to have remedial courses readily available. We're told last fall's freshman class in the UNC system contained about six times as many low-scoring students (those with verbal or math SAT scores below 300) as those campuses' freshman classes of 1968.

It tells you something about the determination the system has in pursuing its obligations.

Another trend with a significant impact may be the ease with which North Carolinians get into the system. The percentage of in-state applicants who were accepted last fall ranged from 99.3 percent at Elizabeth City State University to 61 percent at the N.C. School of the Arts in Winston-Salem. (ECU is said to have accepted 89 percent.)

As another member of the UNC board reminds, the better we educate our young people the greater their possibility of making a greater income and being productive citizens.

There should be no retreat from that position.

Not To Be

The giant pterodactyl of some 65 million years ago was aerodynamically unsound just as the bumble-bee (it should not be able to fly, according to expert opinion).

Only nature knows how the pterodactyl could fly without a tail. Humans had to add a disposable tail assembly to get their mechanical model airborne. With that kind of help it did fly. We're told it flew on 21 different occasions ... one of which was filmed for showing on a giant museum screen.

It came to grief and embarrassed its builders by diving into the ground on its only public flight. Even so, the man-made pterodactyl wound up in a National Air and Space Museum with the Wright Brothers' aircraft, Charles Lindbergh's famous plane and the Apollo space capsule that returned from the first moon landing.

Museum people say the pterodactyl-that-failed is a popular item among visitors; they ask where to find a failure in a building dedicated to successful flyers.

The pterodactyl did not pass the test of survivability in a young world and much, much later embarrassed its makers as a mechanical clone. Some things were just not meant to be.

Why A Heart Grows Heavy

NEW YORK — Economists say airline deregulation is the best thing to happen to customers since the invention of the electric salami slicer, and they have figures to prove it.

Economists always have figures to prove what they say, and figures don't lie, so three cheers for free marketing in the sky, say I.

Yet why does my heart grow heavy when I arrive at the airport?

Is it because there are 29 customers ahead of me in line, and the flight for which I need a ticket is scheduled to leave in 35 minutes, and the man at the head of the line has already spent 15 minutes buying tickets to everywhere and will need another 20 minutes to search his luggage for his checkbook, and there isn't another ticket seller on duty because having two working on the same day would run up labor costs?

No, that is not why my heart grows heavy, for I know I can leave this line and race with my suitcases to the faraway gate where the airplane awaits and, there, find other authorities who will put me aboard before it leaves.

Then maybe my heart grows heavy because I realize I am not so young as I used to be and, therefore, while racing through the airport with my suitcases will probably trip over one of the family groups, college sorority chapters, or sleeping (possibly dead) individuals who camp on airport floors because flying is so cheap they can't afford to go by bus.

No, that is not what makes my heart grow heavy, for I know that even if I trip on several such people and fracture them, they will not become cross because they realize that to benefit from the low cost of flying they must be willing to put with up a lot of inconvenience.

Perhaps, then, the reason my heart grows heavy is fear that I will arrive at the faraway gate exhausted by my luggage-laden race and the exertions of picking myself up from fellow travelers on whose sleeping bags I have fallen, only to find that there is no plane there because the flight has been canceled.

No, that is not what makes my heart grow heavy, for a flight is never canceled unless there are too few passengers to make it profitable, and this flight, as indicated by the line of 29 persons and the presence of 163 others who will be waiting at the gate to board, is going to be so packed that passengers will need treaty arrangements among themselves to determine whose turn it is to breathe.

Perhaps my heart grows heavy because a loathsome elitism makes me dislike being squashed haunch-to-haunch against so much steamy humanity after the last seat is filled, the last knapsack placed in the overhead luggage racks or under our seats in obedience to FAA command, and we all sit contained, elbows to ribs, worrying about being caught by our flight attendants with our seats not in the upright position for taxing.

No, it is not loathsome elitism that makes my heart grow heavy, for if my loathsome elitism took that outlet why did it never make my heart grow heavy in bus-riding days long ago, when I enjoyed being packed closely into the human comedy because it seemed to create among us bus travelers a camaraderie in which we swapped fried chicken and apples for ham sandwiches and cookies and occasionally even passed the time in group singing?

Then maybe my heart grows heavy because I know almost everyone on the plane will be too tense, too drugged, too angry, too lonely, too devoted to misery chic, too sophisticated or too sick-of-it-all to dispel the misery inside this deregulated human-transport device by offering grapes in trade for some cheese or by joining in a sing-along.

No, it is not knowing that the plane's cargo will be sodden with misery that makes my heart grow heavy, for what does that tell us except that my fellow passengers will be my spiritual brothers and sisters, or, to put it otherwise, that their hearts too have grown heavy upon arriving at the airport.

Could it be that my heart is made heavy by suspicion that these incredibly cheap prices can be made possible only by dangerous economies in the maintenance shop?

No, this does not make my heart heavy, for though I have heard that the law of life requires that every person must eventually leave it, I believe an exception will be made for me.

If this be so, then why does my heart become leaden when I look up the aisle to where the pilot — O Captain, our Captain! — is entering the plane and see that he is not the reassuringly grizzled gray veteran of the TV commercials who has been flying since Erroll Flynn sent his men up in those old crates held together with nothing but baling wire and chewing gum, but a stripling who can't possibly be a day older than 17?

Let's not think about that. Let's think about how lucky we are to have these fruits of deregulation.

Spring That In Big Sandy Mush

BIG SANDY MUSH — Sitting on the porch of the Covington farmhouse in this northwest Buncombe County community, one can enjoy a rare experience for 1986 North Carolina: Listen closely enough and you will hear nothing manmade. No automobile noise. No rumble from jets above. No boom, boom, boom from shoulder borne stereo radios. Just peace — with the cows leading the beat section, and the breeze providing the rhythm.

Big Sandy Mush is a community of 209 families (600 people) located in the Newfound Mountain Range about 15 miles outside of Asheville. Once a year, Tom Covington, head of the Legislature's fiscal research staff, introduces rural North Carolinians from the west to political types (reporters, bureaucrats, lobbyists) from Raleigh. All weekend long, his "spring thaw" party vibrates with plenty of bluegrass music and clogging, folksinging and eating. There was even a little moonshine — courtesy of some mountain folk.

Entry into Big Sandy Mush — it's named after the creek which runs through it — is by a winding, over-the-mountain road. ("Actually there's two roads in, but don't tell anybody, because we don't want them finding the second one," one local says.) Nothing stays flat for long in this part of the country. Farming is done in patches.

The small amount of cultivated land grows burley tobacco, corn and grains. This used to be big apple country, but not anymore. That industry, a local farmer said, has mostly moved into South Carolina. Along the roadsides, wild blackberries grow profusely. In mid-May, their white flowers speckle the otherwise lush green landscape.

Beef and dairy farming are the local economy. More than 1,000 head of beef cattle are sent to market from this community every year, and there are seven Grade A dairies operating. One flatland lobbyist, marvelling at the cows grazing on the steep mountainsides, wondered aloud, "Do they have one pair of legs shorter than the other?" How else, she questions, could the cows keep from rolling down the hills.

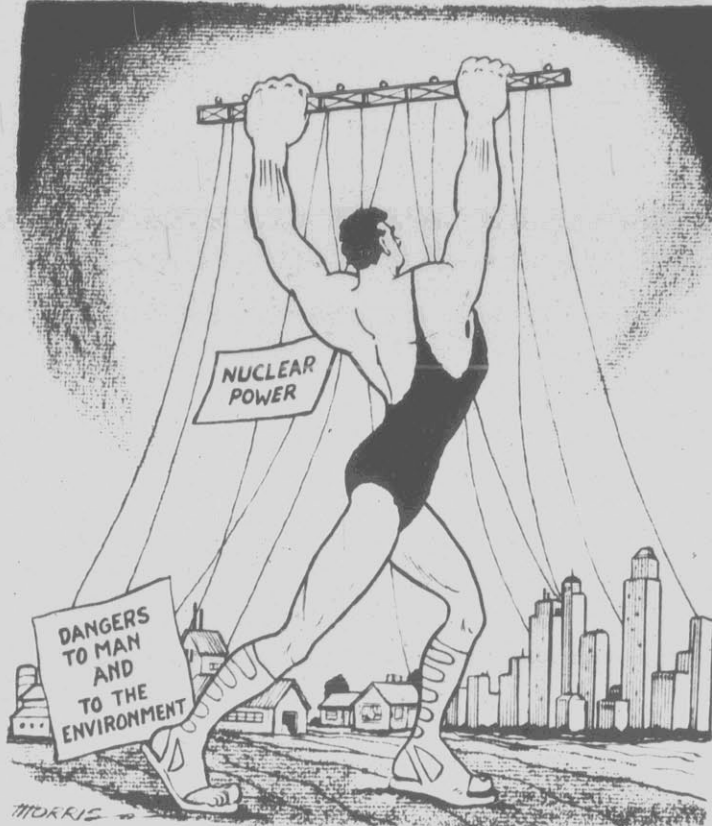

Big Sandy Mush Creek winds through the community. This weekend it is swollen with Thursday and Friday rains, but there is no concern that it will overflow its banks. Farmers have, in many places, lined the banks with stones. The scene is made more picturesque by the New England-like stone walls which mark property boundaries.

No one lives very close to anyone else in Big Sandy Mush. The farmhouses, some of which date back to the early 1800s, are spread far apart. The churches appear to be closer together — maybe because there are so many, seven, for such a small community. There used to be six churches, one being shared by the Methodists and Baptists. But that ecclesiastical union was dissolved. Locals say it was unrealistic to expect that the Baptists, who were so fractious as to have created six different Baptist congregations, could get along with the Methodists.

In a small way, Covington's party disrupts the peace of "The Mush" for most of Saturday. But even mountain folk and city pols have to stop partying at some point, and go to sleep.

Sitting on Covington's front porch, as Sunday morning's first light peeks over the 3,200-foot mountaintop ahead of me, as the cowbells announce that the grazing has begun again in the coves and hollows, as the oaks and white birch sway in the breeze, as a solitary cloud gets hung up on the ridge to the west, one cannot help but marvel at what, a beautiful nuclear waste dump this would have made if the federal government had had its way.

When There's Something To Say

One fine morning in 1924, two hitherto unknown newspapermen awoke to find themselves famous and more affluent than they had ever dared to hope. Maxwell Anderson and Laurence Stallings had collaborated in writing a play, "What Price Glory?"

The play, which The New York Times later said "has been called the American theater's most memorable war play," was a big hit. It ran on Broadway for two years. It was made into a movie with Victor McLaglen playing Captain Flagg and Edmund Lowe portraying Sergeant Quirt, two hard-bitten fighting men who fought a private war behind the lines for the favors of Charmaine, a pretty French lass played by Dolores Del Rio. But then they went into action. Capt. Flagg and Sgt. Quirt forgot their differences and became "brothers in arms ... Marines who forget everything in loyalty to their flag." One observer called it "the first realistic presentation of fighting men as human beings instead of stuffed-shirt heroes."

Playwright Stallings was a Macon, Ga., native who arrived on the campus of Wake Forest College in 1912, where he majored in classical studies, played football and worked on the college paper. While at Wake Forest he met Helen Poteat, whom he later married. Miss Poteat was the daughter of Dr. William Louis Poteat, who was Stallings' favorite biology professor and president of the college, then located in the town of Wake Forest.

After graduating from Wake Forest and working as a reporter for the Atlanta Journal, Stallings enlisted in the Marines, won a lieutenant's commission and sailed for France in 1918. During the fighting for Belleau Wood, Stallings led an assault on a machine gun nest. Although a bullet had ripped off his right kneecap, he lobbed a hand grenade that wiped out the nest. He was awarded the Croix de Guerre and the Silver Star but lost the leg.

Stallings and Helen Poteat were married in 1919. They traveled in Europe before Stallings went to work for The New York World, writing a book review column called "The First Reader." He worked with such writers as Heywood Brown, Franklin P. Adams, Deems Taylor and Alexander Wolcott. These writers and Stallings were "charter members" of the famed Round Table at the Algonquin Hotel along with George S. Kaufman, Robert Benchley, Harold Ross, Robert E. Sherwood, Dorothy Parker, Edna Ferber, Marc Connelly and others.

According to Margaret Case Hariman, this informal group, mostly struggling young writers, gathered in the dining room of her father's hotel, where they enjoyed stimulating conversation and games — particularly word games. Their efforts "amounted to a crusade against everything that was phony, pretentious, or untrue, and moreover, it established a standard of excellence that turned out to be enduring."

Other members of the Round Table were inclined to look up to Stallings because he was the only one of the group who had been seriously wounded in the war. He was a burly six-footer, with a small moustache and a thick shock of black hair. Although he walked on a wooden leg, he had not let his war experiences embitter him. In fact, he delighted in telling about them. He was careless in his dress, enjoyed convivial gatherings, and liked shooting dice — "for exercise" he would tell his friends. Friends recalled he read with lightning speed, had a prodigious memory and an uncanny talent for getting into barroom fights — and losing them.

Joan T. Brittain, Stallings' biographer, said those captivated by Stallings' war reminiscences included Maxwell Anderson, another writer on the World, who talked Stallings into collaborating on "What Price Glory?" It made both men famous, and they collaborated on two more plays. But these were flops and the partnership was dissolved.

Lured by Hollywood, Stallings took with him a short story, "The Big Parade." King Vidor, the director, liked it so much that he followed Stallings back to New York and hounded him until he completed the movie script. The movie was so successful it ran on Broadway for two years, made Vidor famous, established John Gilbert as a top star and helped bolster Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's status. In the years that followed, Stallings wrote or collaborated on screenplays for "Old Ironsides," "Northwest Passage," "The Jungle Book," "She Wore a Yellow Ribbon" and "Miracles Can Happen." For the theater he wrote the stage adaptations of "A Farewell to Arms" and collaborated with Oscar Hammerstein on "Rainbow."

In 1926, Stallings decided to "retire" and become a gentleman farmer. He moved his family into a renovated farmhouse near the village of Blanch in Caswell County. Dr. Poteat gave the house, built on a knoll in an ancient grove of oaks by his grandfather, to the young couple. But the life of a gentleman farmer rapidly palled. Stallings soon acquired an apartment in New York where the family — which grew to four with the birth of daughters Sylvia and Diana — lived. However, they continued to spend their summer vacations and special holidays at their "forest home" in North Carolina.

But this life, too, appeared to pall. For in 1936, Stallings asked his wife for a divorce, which she obtained in Reno, Nev., near the end of the year. Several months later he married Louise St. Leger Vance, his secretary at Fox Movietone News where he had served as editor and for whom he had led an expedition to cover the Italian attack on Ethiopia. They settled in Santa Barbara, Calif., where a son, Laurence Jr., and daughter, Sally, were born.

Although his second wife said he "did not like to write for the films," he continued to hammer out movie scripts for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer until he was called back to military service — wooden leg and all — in World War II.

Public Forum

To the editor:

On May 28, we attended a meeting with concerned owners of property located within the proposed Medical District Rezoning Area.

There were 20 property owners at the meeting, each owning land not presently in the Medical Arts zoning now. By the close of the meeting, we all agreed that our biggest concern dealt with the fact that we, the property owners, have had no input in the Medical District land use study. In fact, some property owners have been told that they could not speak at meetings of the Planning and Zoning Commission. Some property owners have not received their letters informing them of the public meeting to be held June 3, 1986. I would hope that, before a final decision is made, some effort would be made to work the concerns of the property owners, and that the Planning and Zoning Commission will not continue to dictate the land use to the legal property owners.

Yelena Bonner Leaves U.S. To Join Husband In Russia

By VICTOR L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Writer

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Yelena Bonner ended a six-month stay in the West today, saying she was returning to the Soviet Union only to be with her husband, rights activist Andrei D. Sakharov.

Two U.S. congressmen accompanied her on her flight to Moscow, saying they wanted to ensure her human rights and dignity were protected upon her return.

"I have not the slightest desire to return," said the 63-year-old Mrs. Bonner, seated between Reps. Barney Frank, D-Mass., and Dan Lungren, R-Calif., at a news conference at Linate Airport.

"I think anyone in a sound mental state would not want to return from freedom to prison," Mrs. Bonner said. She was sentenced in 1984 to five years in exile in the closed city of Gorky 250 miles east of Moscow on charges of anti-Soviet activity.

She came to the West for treatment of eye and heart ailments in Italy and the United States on Dec. 2, exactly six months ago.

Mrs. Bonner said the only reason she was returning was to rejoin Sakharov, the physicist and nuclear weapons pioneer who won the 1975 Nobel Peace Prize, and who has been in internal exile in Gorky since 1980.

Noting that she had been called a heroine by Lungren, she said, "I am only returning to be with my husband. Believe me I would gladly not be the heroine described by the congressman."

During the news conference just before she boarded an Alitalia flight for Moscow, Mrs. Bonner again lashed out at what she called disinformation from the Soviet Union about herself and Sakharov. She attacked Viktor Louis, a Soviet journalist, who has said that her pronouncements while in the West were endangering Sakharov.

Frank said the congressmen were trying to demonstrate to the Soviet Union the great concern in the West over Sakharov and Bonner, and to try to ensure that her human rights were respected.

That, he said, "has not been the case up until now."

"We don't understand why a great superpower like the Soviet Union has to be afraid of a courageous woman like Mrs. Bonner and her husband," Frank said.

Mrs. Bonner was seen off by her son, Alexei Semyonov, of Newton, Mass., who stood clutching a rail in the departure lounge, smoking a cigarette and staring at the jetliner as it began taxiing down the runway.

Semyonov and his sister, Tatiana Yankelevich, also of Newton, both sought visas to return with their mother but were turned down, friends said.

Two Americans, Richard Sobol of Cambridge, Mass., and Robert Arsenault of Washington D.C., also accompanied Mrs. Bonner, saying they hoped to be able to travel with her to Gorky. They said they went when the visas were denied to her own children.

Also seeing Mrs. Bonner off was the U.S. consul general in Milan, Robert Collins.

Asked her impressions of the West, Mrs. Bonner said, "The West is a very complex place with a lot of problems and contradictions, but the West is a free place so people can solve their problems."

She said she hoped to return within two years for medical checkups, as her doctors had asked. She specifically thanked British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, French Premier Jacques Chirac and French President François Mitterrand for having received her during her last days in the West.

Krimm Award Established

A recent East Carolina University graduate has established the Patricia Krimm Memorial Award in memory of a classmate who was killed in an automobile accident.

Marian Wells of Brevard, a 1986 home economics graduate in housing, requested that half of a $1,000 grant ECU received on her behalf be used to establish the award in memory of Patricia Krimm, a senior fashion merchandising major.

"When Patricia died it really bothered me, even though I never knew her," Ms. Wells said. "I just knew her by her face."

According to Ms. Wells, Krimm was hit by a truck in Raleigh when she was returning from her parents' home in Buies Creek. The truck driver appeared badly injured, Ms. Wells said. "Patricia said she was okay and told rescuers to help him because he was worse," she said. "She died later from internal injuries; she was in shock and didn't know it."

One $100 award will be presented each year to a clothing or housing major, beginning this fall. Recipients of the award will be selected by a committee composed of clothing and housing faculty based on evidence of hard work, conscientious attention to course work, and quality of work in classroom projects.

In addition to the award, $500 will be used to purchase two drafting tables for the home economics department.

Ms. Wells said she hopes to solicit funds from fellow clothing and housing graduates to keep the award available. For further information contact Dave McDonald, director of Institutional Advancement, 757-6685, Taylor/Slaughter Alumni Center, 901 E. Fifth St., Greenville.

Fire At Ireland Convent Kills Six Catholic Nuns

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — A pre-dawn fire raced through a convent building in central Dublin today, killing six Roman Catholic nuns who found themselves trapped after being awakened by a "blazing inferno," a witness said. Fifteen nuns escaped unharmed.

The victims, ranging in age from 60 to 83, were asleep in a dormitory on the top floor of the four-story Loreto Secondary School when the fire broke out, said Sister Patricia Murray, a senior staff nun.

"It all happened very quickly and the building was well alight before most of the sisters were awakened," said Sister Patricia. "Most of them woke up to the sound of breaking glass. In a few minutes the building had collapsed."

Three nuns escaped from the dormitory, she said, adding that "when they looked back it was a blazing inferno."

"The sisters who died were moving toward the exits at the time, but they did not make it," said Sister Patricia. "The floor of the stairs must have collapsed beneath them."

The convent overlooks St.

Stephen's Green, a fashionable Dublin square surrounded by several government ministries and one of the city's top hotels, the Shelbourne.

A passing policeman spotted the blaze at 3:30 a.m., police said. It took eight fire companies more than two hours to bring it under control, said Dublin police spokesman Larry Coady.

The cause of the blaze was not known.

The fire gutted the convent building which contained a concert hall, a science laboratory and the top-floor dormitory.

Twelve nuns escaped unharmed from a dormitory in an adjacent building. Classrooms in that building were slightly damaged.

"A nun came running to me in her dressing gown, said there was a fire and asked me to call the brigade," said Derek Walsh, a passer-by.

He said he saw the science laboratory completely ablaze.

"I went to another part of the building to help some of the more elderly nuns get out and we gave them blankets to keep them warm," Walsh said.

The nuns killed in the blaze were identified by police as Sister Rosario Flavin, 65; Sister Margaret Keane, 60; Sister Edith Kennedy, 68; Sister Gonzaga Kehoe, 81; Sister Seraphia Kennedy, 76; and Sister Eucharistia Scully, 83.

According to Officer M.A. Jordan, two pistols — one a .38 caliber valued at $250 and the other a .357 magnum valued at $150 — and $200 in cash were taken from 1528 South Evans St. in a break-in reported at 5:45 p.m., and a television set was taken from 504 Manhattan Avenue in a break-in reported at 11 p.m.

Federal Officials Push For Conviction Of Pelton

By BRYAN BRUMLEY
Associated Press Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) — Federal officials have disclosed extraordinary secrets in their effort to convict former National Security Agency employee Ronald W. Pelton for allegedly selling the Soviets critical data on U.S. intelligence gathering.

At the same time, the chief of the NSA, Lt. Gen. William Odom, and CIA Director William Casey have urged journalists not to speculate in their reports about the espionage projects that Pelton is charged with compromising.

Assistant U.S. Attorney John Douglass said at the close of court Friday that he would rest his case today, and U.S. District Court Judge Herbert F. Murray says the jury could begin deliberations by Wednesday.

Defense counsel Fred Warren Bennett said that he expected Pelton to take the stand later today; Pelton, 44, faces life in prison if convicted of charges that for $35,000 he sold the Soviets secrets gained during 14 years at NSA specializing in Russian communications.

After a hearing today without the jury present, Murray acquitted Pelton on one of six counts of espionage and conspiracy, but let stand five other counts, including four which could each bring a life sentence.

Murray ruled that Pelton should be acquitted on one count of espionage because prosecutors could not prove that he made his initial phone call to Soviet embassy officials from Maryland.

That left open the possibility of trying Pelton on the charge in Washington, D.C., where the Soviet embassy is located.

The judge dismissed a motion for acquittal on an attempted espionage charge, saying that by flying to Vienna, Austria, in April 1985 for a meeting with Soviet agents, Pelton made the attempt as charged, although he did not link up with the Russians that time.

He said the trip followed a pattern Pelton set in two previous visits to Vienna in 1980 and 1983, in which he allegedly sold the Soviets government secrets.

The case has generated wide attention in part because of the serious damage Pelton's alleged revelations did to U.S. intelligence, and in part because of the administration's warnings to the press over coverage.

In an interview with The Associated Press last Thursday, Casey backed away from his previous threats to prosecute NBC-TV and The Washington Post for reporting that Pelton divulged information about a project called "Ivy Bells," which reportedly involved the use of submarines to collect communications intelligence.

During the trial, the government has given up many other secrets, although it is trying to limit the damage. Bennett has been given a security clearance adequate to allow him to review sealed evidence and conduct Pelton's defense, and he agreed to try to keep as much secret information out of court as possible.

Full agreement on what should be released has not been reached, however, and the courtroom sessions have been marked by lengthy discussions among government attorneys, Bennett and the judge — out of the jury's earshot — on exactly what may be said in public.

In an unusual development on Friday, NSA General Counsel Elizabeth

Rindskopf, who had not appeared at the trial before, took part in a 50-minute conference at the judge's bench to present the organization's concerns over defense cross-examination of William P. Crowell, head of the Soviet communications intelligence division at NSA.

Crowell, in his testimony, gave the jury and spectators a rare introductory course in the work carried out by NSA, the interception, decoding and analysis of Soviet communications.

Rather than divulge the actual codenames of the programs allegedly compromised by Pelton, the government has labeled them Projects A through E.

The judge sealed a key piece of prosecution evidence regarding Project A, a map on which Pelton allegedly showed FBI agents the location of a device that he disclosed to KGB agents at the Soviet Embassy on January 15, 1980.

The map was shown to the jury, but sealed before it was seen by reporters and others in the courtroom.

Investigation Into Fatal Calif. Bus Crash Continues

By BRENDAN RILEY
Associated Press Writer
WALKER, Calif. (AP) — Authorities continue their investigation into the accident that left at least 18 elderly people dead when a bus skidded out of control in the final sharp turn of an 11-mile stretch of twisting mountain highway.

A few moments before the Friday accident, bus driver Ernst Klimeck, 47, had passed a U.S. 395 sign advising 40 mph. Authorities are investigating claims by some witnesses that he was speeding.

In all, 22 people were injured when the Starline Sightseeing Tours bus, carrying 40 passengers home to Santa Monica, Calif., from a gambling trip to Reno, Nev., skidded off the road into the swollen Walker River. Nineteen of the 22 remained hospitalized, one in critical condition and six in serious condition on Sunday.

It took no more than 15 seconds for the bus to cover the 800-foot distance between its first out-of-control skid and its plunge into the icy, churning river, investigators say.

Experts from the California Highway Patrol, National Transportation Safety Board and California Department of Transportation continued their investigation at the accident site Sunday. They declined comment on the cause of the accident pending completion of their reports.

But Glen Johnson, a transportation department maintenance supervisor, said, "Anyone who looks at those skid marks can see he was speeding." Michael E. Neustadt, director of tour operations for Starline, said he couldn't comment on statements by the highway patrol that the bus driver had been cited three times for speeding, twice while driving buses. Klimeck also had one accident in the past 18 months, according to California Highway Patrol Lt. Ted Engstrom.

The company was conducting its own investigation into crash, Neustadt said.

One passenger, a woman, remained missing Sunday and was presumed dead. But no further search was planned for the time being because "there's nothing to search for if you can't make a sighting" in the rushing water, said Mono County sheriff's Sgt. Terry Padilla. He added that it may take several weeks for the river to subside enough for the body to be spotted.

The confirmed death toll of 18 made the crash the worst in the United States in nearly six years.

Neustadt said the company, while not admitting liability for the crash, would pay for funeral arrangements for the deceased "as an expression of our concern and sympathy."

Killer Storms Hit Texas

By The Associated Press
A search was to resume today for a teen-age boy swept away while he played in a creek near Dallas, and an unidentified woman drowned as another wave of weekend thunderstorms washed across Texas.

Four traffic deaths on rain-slickened roads also were blamed on the storms, which dumped up to 5 inches of rain on the state Saturday and Sunday.

Police Sgt. Dan Robertson said a 13-year-old boy, whom authorities declined to identify, and a 15-year-old companion were playing in a creek on the southwest edge of Dallas about 5 p.m. Sunday when it was flooded to a depth of up to 6 feet. The 15-year-old managed to escape, but a witness saw the other boy washed away.

The rains, which totaled up to 5 inches in some areas, prompted flash flood watches over much of the state. The National Weather Service also posted tornado warnings in parts of West Texas but authorities there said no funnels appeared to have touched down.

Four people were killed in traffic accidents Saturday on rain-slick roads in Dallas and Collin counties, while the death of a woman who was swept over a dam in San Antonio's Espada park Saturday also was blamed on the storm.

Eastern Airlines Chief Says He's Leaving Job

MIAMI (AP) — Former astronaut Frank Borman, Eastern Airlines' outspoken chairman, will resign this summer after 16 years with the carrier that included sometimes-bitter labor disputes and financial troubles he blamed on discount-fare competitors spawned by industry deregulation.

"This morning we're notifying the employees that he is leaving," Eastern spokesman Jerry Cosley said. "Although we all expected something to be going on, there really was no advance word on what he would be announcing."

Borman, 58, announced his resignation at a Sunday night dinner of 200 friends and associates at the posh Grand Hotel. The Miami News reported in an article published today.

Borman and wife Susan will move to Las Cruces, New Mexico, to join their son, Fred.

Borman will leave as soon as the carrier's $660 million pending merger with Houston-based Texas Air Corp. is completed. The deal is now under review by the U.S. Transportation Department, the newspaper reported.

Frank Lorenzo, who controls Texas Air, did not push Borman out of Eastern, Cosley said.

"It was Borman's shot to call. Lorenzo left that up to him," Cosley said.

The decision to sell Eastern came in February during threats of strikes by two of the carrier's unions and as a deadline neared that had been imposed by Eastern creditors, who told the airline to wrestle labor concessions or be declared in technical default of some of its $2.5 billion in debts.

Early this year, the firm cut pay and benefits for its 7,000 flight attendants and later won wage and benefit concessions from its 4,000 pilots.

But its 13,000-member machinists union have a contract that runs through 1987 and International Association of Machinists local president Charlie Bryan refused to open the contract for renegotiation.

That prompted Borman to blame him for the airlines' sale, a charge Bryan denied.

"He came here with a national stature. It is a tragedy that he just did not develop the way he could into a... trusting relationship with employees," Bryan said Sunday of Borman's planned departure.

"At this point, I don't see any relevance to whether he is there or not any longer," the union chief said.

The chairman of Eastern's pilots union, Larry Schulte, indicated that Borman would not be missed.

"I think everyone is looking forward to a new leadership and a new style of management and they are ready to rally behind Lorenzo if he can capture that," Schulte said.

"With his leaving, it really is the end of a dynasty at Eastern."

Governor Of Pa. Asks Federal Aid

By EARL BOHN
Associated Press Writer

ETNA, Pa. (AP) — Stunned homeowners and weary rescue workers cleared debris and looked for more bodies as the governor of Pennsylvania asked for a federal disaster declaration in Pittsburgh's northern suburbs, where flash flooding lled at least eight people and caused more than 20 million damage.

Volunteer firefighters, under the direction of local police, slogged through stinking river mud over the weeked, lHoking for bodies. Dogs sniffed mounds of debris for the scent of humans.

Officials said that up to 12 people remained missing in the flooding from 4 inches of rain that fell in several hours Friday afternoon. Other officials cautioned that the number of missing was not precise because of the turmoil caused by the storm.

The runoff quickly turned Pine Creek and its tributary, Little Pine Creek, into fierce rivers that churned through narrow valleys and damaged 11 Allegheny County communities.

"I started thinking about all those older people living out the road. I hoped I wasn't finding neighbors," said volunteer John Butela of Shaler Township.

Gov. Dick Thornburgh sent a formal request to Washington on Sunday for federal disaster aid, which could include low-interest residential and business loans, said John Comey, spokesman for the Pennsylvania Emergency Management Agency. On Saturday the governor authorized state aid by declaring disasters in communities affected, although he did not specify which communities were included.

National Guard units arrived Sunday from Fort Indiantown Gap with front-end loaders and heavy dump trucks to augment the local and private equipment used to clear mud and debris.

Damage to private property could reach $20 million, and ruined sewers, water lines, roads and other public property could drive that figure much higher, said county Maintenance Director Joseph Moses.

County said officials had found about 700 homes damaged, 100 severely.

About 100 businesses also were damaged, he said.

County Commissioner Tom Foerster said local police "still have inquiries from seven different families about people that they don't know where they are."

Etna Police Chief Ronald Harris said he knew of two men who were reported by relatives to be missing, while Etna Mayor Tony Damiano said a dozen people were unaccounted for throughout the flooded area.

NORTH CAROLINA POWER HAS A PLAN TO HELP STRAIGHTEN OUT YOUR MONTHLY BUDGET.

REGULAR BILLING

BUDGET BILLING

While most monthly bills don't vary too much from month to month, electric bills can be as varied as the seasons. And can cause trouble for anyone attempting to maintain a budget.

There's a solution. It's a new program called Budget Billing that allows you to pay the same amount for electricity each month for an entire year.

Unlike some budget plans, we review your actual electricity usage for the last 12 months to determine your average monthly payments. Then, if you've either underpaid or overpaid at year's end, we simply add or subtract the difference when calculating your monthly budget for the next 12 months.

All you have to do to sign up is look for the message printed on your bill or call our local business office.

Do it today. Because the sooner you start Budget Billing, the sooner you'll get your budget in line.

Senate Candidates Trade Campaign Barbs

FAYETTEVILLE (AP) — U.S. Senate candidate Jim Broyhill says President Reagan will be one of the losers if his Democratic opponent, Terry Sanford, wins in November, but Sanford says North Carolinians are not interested in political rhetoric.

"I believe the people of North Carolina want a U.S. senator who is going to stand up for the people of North Carolina," said Sanford during recent campaigning. "I really don't think they want a go-along senator."

Broyhill, who will host Reagan at a campaign fund-raiser in Greensboro on Wednesday, said electing Sanford to the seat being vacated by retiring Republican Sen. John East could threaten the GOP's control of the U.S. Senate.

"If my opponent is elected, you know who is going to get the power?" he asked. "It is not going to be Ronald Reagan who gets the power. It is going to be Teddy Kennedy, it is going to be Alan Cranston, it is going to be Howard Metzenbaum," three Democratic senators.

"I want to tell you that Ronald Reagan is the best president we've had in a long, long time," Broyhill, a 12-term Republican congressman, said at a rally Saturday. He accused Sanford, a Democrat and former governor, of "lambasting our president."

Both candidates have tried to focus attention on agriculture.

Broyhill said Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., would lose the chairmanship of the Senate Agriculture Committee if Democrats won control of the Senate. His likely successor would be Sen. Edward Zorinsky of Nebraska, the committee's ranking Democrat.

"The heart and soul of the economy of Eastern North Carolina is agriculture," Broyhill said. "How are we going to protect our farmers if we turn over the leadership of the agriculture committee to somebody from Nebraska?"

"The tobacco farmers, the peanut growers and the grain producers of this state have no greater friend than Jesse Helms," he said. "We've got to keep him in that position."

But Sanford said farming was in the worst shape since the Depression. "I don't understand why this administration has turned its back on the farm economy," he said at a Friday luncheon in Oxford.

Sanford said efforts are needed to refinance farmers' debts, to rework farm supports to ensure grower profits and to improve the export of farm commodities.

"I believe the farm community — to the extent that some of them in past years have departed Democratic ranks on election day — is ready to come back home and say the Democratic Party is the best hope for the farmers," he said.

Sanford, who easily led a 10-candidate primary field to win the nomination, called for reunification of the Democratic Party.

Broyhill, who won a lopsided victory over the National Congressional Club-supported David Funderburk, also called on Funderburk supporters to join his campaign.

Todd Conormon, 30, a Fayetteville lawyer and Funderburk supporter, said he would support Broyhill even though he was not completely satisfied with Broyhill's record on all issues. The Funderburk campaign questioned Broyhill's conservative credentials on such issues as abortion, national defense and a federal holiday honoring Martin Luther King Jr.

"He's a legitimate conservative," Conormon said. "The fact that President Reagan is coming down under scores that."

Authorities Are Baffled By Double Confessions

LEXINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Law enforcement officers usually consider themselves fortunate to get a confession to a crime.

But Davidson County officials were befuddled when they got two detailed confessions to one murder, when evidence indicated that only one person had acted in the grizzly triple-stabbing of 16-year-old Sue Ellen "Suzy" Holliman of Lexington.

About one year after Elwood "Woody" Jones confessed to killing Miss Holliman, Jones sat in the courtroom — in the spectators' section — as a second man, Ricky Lee Sanderson, was sentenced to die following his conviction in the murder.

Jones had repudiated his confession almost immediately after making it on May 15, 1985. But he spent about nine months in jail and was to be tried on a first-degree murder charge in March.

Then, on Jan. 22, Sanderson called Davidson County Sheriff Paul McCrary's detectives and confessed to the same killing. Sanderson has since been sentenced to die for the crime.

None of the evidence showed that the two men, both 27 years old, had been together in the murder. Detectives are also fairly certain that the men did not know each other until they were in jail.

McCrary held several meetings with his deputies, State Bureau of Investigation agents and H.W. Zimmerman, the district attorney, to decide which man to prosecute.

McCrary made a chart of the evidence, putting a series of "pluses and minuses" under each man's name.

In the minus column, Jones had a pickup truck and free time March 14, 1985, the day that Miss Holliman disappeared from her home near Lexington. Sanderson also had a car and had been laid off from his job as a bricklayer. He had free time that day.

Both said they took Miss Holliman from her house to a field four miles east of Lexington.

Sanderson said he was caught by the girl while trying to break into her home and in a panic he pushed her into his car. He drove around for two hours before going to the field, he said.

In late February 1985, Jones was hired by the girls' parents, who own Lexington Speed Printing. A few weeks later, after a few friendly conversations, Jones said in his confession that he drove Miss Holliman to the field and helped her commit suicide.

Both Jones and Sanderson knew where the stab wound was on the girl's chest.

"You could put a 50-cent piece over all three stab wounds ... and Jones pointed to the spot exactly," one detective said.

Both men led detectives to the grave site. Both told investigators they had tried to dig a grave in ground that was too hard. They said they moved a short distance to dig where Miss Holliman was buried.

Detectives found a spot of hard ground that showed signs of digging, said Capt. Jim E. Johnson of the sheriff's department.

Glaring differences in the chart showed up when investigators compared the men's pasts.

Sanderson was sentenced last November to life in prison plus 110 years for the abduction, rape and stabbing of a High Rock Lake woman. The attack in May 1985 was very similar to the attack on Miss Holliman, detectives said.

Jones was discharged from the U.S. Coast Guard in February 1985 and had no criminal record.

Sanderson said he had become deeply religious while in jail and may have felt he had everything to gain by receiving the death penalty, believing he would go to heaven, detectives said.

But the notes on hard, physical evidence went in the minus column below Sanderson's name.

Analysis of hair, paint chips and fiber linked Sanderson to the abduction. Zimmerman learned from the SBI crime laboratory.

On Feb. 21, 1986, Zimmerman announced in a Davidson County courtroom that Sanderson had been indicted on first-degree murder and kidnapping charges. He dismissed the charge against Jones.

On Friday, Sanderson was sentenced to die.

Wilson Family Still Confused About Fate Of John Campbell

WILSON (AP) — When John W. Campbell left his home Feb. 5, he kissed his wife goodbye and told her he loved her. He hasn't been seen since.

"It's just not like him to do anything like this at all," said Campbell's wife, Fairene. "He was a real family man."

"He didn't take anything with him, not even a toothbrush," she said. "We don't know what happened when he left here that morning."

It was 24 years to the day after Campbell established an electrical contracting business that grew into a $12 million company, that the Wilson man said he was leaving on a business trip and never returned.

The mystery has stunned Wilson-area residents who knew Campbell as a deacon in Tabernacle Baptist Church and who recently have seen his business property sold and his 110 employees turned out of work.

Law enforcement agencies have found no indication of foul play or criminal activity to justify continuing a search. Although a felony warrant charging Campbell with failure to return a rental car was issued in March, authorities said he is primarily considered a missing person.

"We just haven't found any criminal wrongdoing," said Wilson County Sheriff Wayne Gay. "We think he just picked up and left."

Steve Dunphy, a special agent with the FBI in Greenville, said federal authorities also found indications that Campbell left voluntarily.

"There was no indication that he met with foul play," he said. "We don't investigate missing persons when they want to be missing."

Hoping to end uncertainty over the disappearance, Campbell's family has offered a $5,000 reward for information about Campbell's location. Pamphlets describing Campbell, 47, have been mailed throughout the United States and other countries.

Mrs. Campbell said it was hard for her to believe her husband had voluntarily missed his daughter's graduation from college and her marriage about two weeks ago.

"We want to know that he is OK," she said. "If that (leaving) is what he wants to do with his life, I can live with it. We love him and want him here."

Investigators said Campbell rented a 1985 Pontiac at Rocky Mount-Wilson Airport about 8:30 a.m. on Feb. 5 and was seen at about 1 p.m. at a Raleigh bank, where he made a "sizable" withdrawal. Authorities declined to release the amount of the withdrawal. The rented car has not been recovered, investigators said.

After months of uncertainty, frustration and worry, the family hired private investigator Ken Sutton of Rocky Mount. Sutton said he has sent fliers describing the reward to construction sites and electrical contracting firms where Campbell might seek employment.

Sutton described Campbell as a self-made businessman who built J.W. Campbell Electrical Corp. into a $12 million business. The company's office, warehouse and shop were located on a three-acre tract behind the family's home.

Two days after Campbell's disappearance, Branch Banking and Trust Co. of Wilson, which Mrs. Campbell said had loaned the electrical company money, froze the company's assets. The company property was sold at auction on May 17.

Sutton said Campbell did not take any money from his company and there was no indication that the company was in financial trouble before his disappearance. Mrs. Campbell declined to discuss the family's financial status.

Mrs. Campbell said that in addition to his work as church deacon, her husband enjoyed working on the board of directors of Wilson Christian Academy, especially in past years when the school needed financial assistance. The Campbells, who have been married for more than 25 years, have two adult children who worked in the family business.

Methodists Debate Move To Delete Church Hymn

By The Associated Press

A United Methodist Church committee has voted to remove "Onward Christian Soldiers" from the denomination's hymnal because of concern that the hymn was too militaristic, but some Methodists think the body is marching to the wrong tune.

C.P. Minnick, bishop of the 250,000-member North Carolina Conference of the United Methodist Church, grew up singing "Onward Christian Soldiers."

"It's a great old hymn," said Minnick, whose conference covers the eastern half of the state. "I can understand those who find it offensive, but to me, it's not any more militaristic than the Salvation Army."

L. Belvel Jones, bishop of the denomination's Western North Carolina Conference, has similarly mixed feelings: He understands the committee's mission of bringing the hymnal up to date with the demographics of the church, but he doesn't want the hymn deleted.

"We are a pluralistic and diverse church, and we seek to meet the needs of a broad spectrum of society," he said.

But Jones said the hymn's message is appropriate.

"I think that Christianity is the moral equivalent to war and that the reference to soldiers is fitting," he said.

"We get our share of letters from people who don't like what we're doing," said Laurence H. Stookey, professor of preaching and worship at Welsey Theological Seminary in Washington, D.C. "One person called us nitwits ... The thing that overwhelmed all of us is how much people care about what we're doing."

Stookey is a member of the denomination's Hymnal Revision Committee, which recommended in a 10-8 vote last month in Nashville, Tenn., that the song not be included in the next Methodist hymnal because it has non-biblical military imagery, said committee member Charles M. Smith, superintendent of the church's Goldsboro district.

"It was felt that the hymn was not as good as others in calling Christians to be followers of Christ," said Smith, who was not present when the vote was taken.

The first verse of the hymn, which was written in 1871 by Englishman Arthur Sullivan as a march for schoolchildren, includes the words: "Christ the royal master leads against the foes. Forward into battle, see his banner go."

The chorus picks up with "Onward Christian soldiers marching as to war. With the cross of Jesus going on before."

Smith said the committee had received letters from Methodists who cited the hymn's militarism.

The church's General Conference voted in 1984 to compile a new hymnal by 1988, said Smith. The last hymnal was produced in 1966, before the 1968 merger of the Methodist Church and the Evangelical United Brethren Church into the United Methodist Church.

A 25-member committee, composed of a cross-section of the 9.2 million-member church community, was given the responsibility of reviewing hymns and recommending the contents of the new hymnal. Other North Carolinians on the committee are the Rev. Helen Croftwell, pastor of Wake Forest United Methodist Church, and Harold Jacobs of Rockingham.

The committee also was asked to examine hymns that might be considered "sexist, racist and ideologically off-base by many United Methodists," according to an official committee statement. Smith said the committee was carefully reviewing hymns and soliciting input but that "we're not being fundamentalist and saying, 'That word is always out.'"

The committee's decisions are sent to 800 laymen and church officials nationwide. The consultants listen to comments from the church community and send the committee written responses.

N.C. Math Team

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — John Overdeck of Columbia, Md., won the individual title and a New York City team took the championship in the top team division in the American Regions Mathematics League competition during the weekend.

The problem-solving tournament Saturday drew 750 of the nation's top high school math students.

In the A Division team competition, New York City was followed in order by Chicago, Montgomery County, Md., and the All-Pennsylvania team.

The North Carolina team won the B Division, for less experienced competitors. West Virginia was second, followed by South Carolina and West Chester, Pa.

Competitors were divided into 49 teams and were given one hour to solve a problem and present the answer in term-paper form.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market headed lower today, picking up where it left off in Friday's modest decline.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 12.47 to 1,864.24 in the first hour of trading.

Losers held a small edge on gainers in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Among actively traded blue chips, Philip Morris dropped 7/8 to 68 1/8; American Telephone & Telegraph slipped 1/8 to 24 3/8; Dow Chemical lost 3/8 to 56 3/8, and International Business Machines was unchanged at 152 3/8.

Bank stocks showed some fractional losses. Citicorp dropped 1/8 to 61 3/8; Chase Manhattan 1/4 to 43 1/2, and Chemical New York 1/4 to 53 1/8.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks fell .55 to 141.51. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .05 at 282.55.

On Friday the Dow Jones industrial average dropped 5.64 to 1,876.71, trimming its gain for the week to 53.42 points.

Declining issues outnumbered advances by about 8 to 7 on the NYSE. Big Board volume totaled 151.20 million shares, against 135.67 million in the previous session.

'Major Blunder'

By ALISON SMALE
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet President Andrei Gromyko was quoted today as saying President Reagan's announcement that the United States may exceed arms limits agreed to by the superpowers is a "major blunder" not supported by the American people.

"The SALT II treaty has been dealt blow after blow by the United States and the latest blow is an explosive charge under it," British Labor deputy Martin Flannery quoted Gromyko as telling visiting British lawmakers during a 2 1/2-hour meeting in the Kremlin.

Reagan said Tuesday he would not feel bound by Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty limitations on strategic nuclear weapons unless the Soviets show willingness to correct what Washington contends are violations of the 1979 accord. SALT II was not ratified by the U.S. Senate. The Soviet Union responded Saturday by denying any violation, and said it would break with the accord if the Americans do so. Secretary of State George P. Shultz said Sunday on NBC-TV's "Meet the Press" that the Soviets have violated the treaty by encoding messages from missiles on test flights and by deploying about 70 SS-25s, a new missile barred by the pact.

There was no Soviet report on Gromyko's meeting today in the Kremlin.

The British legislators quoted him as calling the U.S. decision on SALT II a "major blunder."

"We do not believe the American people want to bury this treaty," the former Soviet foreign minister was quoted as saying. "We make a distinction between the American people and the politicians."

Members of the British delegation, headed by Deputy Prime Minister Lord Whitelaw, told a news conference at the British Embassy that Gromyko wants Britain to use its influence with the Reagan administration to persuade it not to abandon SALT II.

my weakest showing in the first primary," he said. Martin says he feels "my chances will depend a lot on the size of the voter turnout in Pitt County. If I'm strong in Pitt, I think there will be no problem. So I'm optimistic."

This is the first bid for a senate seat by Mrs. Fenner, who previously served as state representative for two terms ending in 1984. She is a homemaker and is active in mental health activities.

In a telephone interview with Mrs.

Fenner this morning, she said "I was thrilled about the good showing I made in the May 6 primary. I've worked hard since then in personal contacts, and I see no reason that I'm not going to make an even better showing tomorrow."

Since voters in Wilson County will be voting in a first primary for Wilson County commissioners in addition to the Martin-Fenner runoff, officials predict voter turnout there will be heavy.

enact Governor Martin's proposal to transfer highway patrol and driver education funding to the general fund. Both Taft and Warren said they have reservations about complying with this request. Taft said he wants to "protect the fiscal integrity of the general fund" and is "not afraid to increase gasoline taxes to get the money we need to finish U.S. 264, Evans Street and Arlington Boulevard."

Concerning prisons, all lawmakers agreed some building must be done, if for no other reason, to avoid a takeover of the state system by the federal government. Taft said he would like to "continue to look at all possibilities for alternatives to incarceration."

Warren said he expects that the state's 183,500 employees will be voted a five-seven percent salary increase in the short session.

He said he does not expect the goal of hiring 100 new highway patrolmen to be realized, but said he believes some will be added. He said he believes 45 more drug agents will be added as will $2,600,000 worth of automated fingerprinting equipment for state law enforcement.

"I never saw so many doctors at one of these (breakfasts)," Walter Jones Jr. said as he addressed the issues of malpractice insurance and general insurance. He and Taft both commented on how complicated it is to assess how much money the insurance industry is losing and whether the state legislature needs to enact laws to put ceilings on amounts that could be involved in malpractice and other suits.

Both Jones, co-chairman of the local government finance committee and Martin, long a Pitt County commissioner, addressed the problem of at least 50 municipalities in the state which face federal mandates to improve their water and sewer systems.

Martin said he feels some reservation about the state coming to the rescue of local governments that have known for years they had a water/sewer problem and not acted. Nevertheless, something must be done and giving local governments the leeway to call for a 5 percent sales tax may be the answer, lawmakers said, as may giving them the option to increase local room occupancy taxes.

Martin said he believe this session might begin addressing the issue of how much power county commissions can exert over local boards and whether individual counties can set up separate departments like Mecklenburg County's human resources division. He said he favors not allowing so much local power.

Greenville citizen John Bizzell asked if this session is going to deal with the Volunteer Firemen's Pension Fund which he said has been neglected for the past several sessions and was told that it will.

Dr. William Laupus, dean of the East Carolina University Medical School, asked about a state-run reinsurance fund for physicians malpractice and was told that topic will also be addressed in the short session.

is that we respect other unions' picket lines."

Bahr, the union president, said his union expects IBEW members to honor his union's picket lines at AT&T facilities where both unions represent various portions of the work force.

Linnen said the biggest immediate problem the company faces is handling long-distance telephone calls today with 12,000 management pilots. Mondays typically have the largest volume of long-distance calls of the week, normally requiring 24,000 operators on duty, he said.

With 10,000 supervisors manning switchboards normally staffed by 12,000 union operators on Sunday, long-distance callers were greeted with recorded messages advising that AT&T was experiencing a "work stoppage" and requesting them to wait for the next available operator.

"As far as calls going through, there have been no problems," Linnen said Sunday.

Bahr said the strike has shut down AT&T's factories and brought its installation and repair services "to a grinding halt."

"These are the two most competitive parts of the business," Bahr told reporters after negotiators for the two sides met informally Sunday but made no progress toward a settlement. "Beginning tomorrow, they are going to start losing customers. We can afford to stay out longer than they can."

"After a little pain," he predicted, "people will be in a more compromising mood."

AT&T officials acknowledge that a lengthy strike could cost the company a loss of business to Northern Telecom, GTE Corp. and other new rivals in the recently deregulated and "intensely competitive" telecommunications equipment and service markets.

According to city planning director Bobby Roberson, the meeting will be run in this fashion to give everyone an opportunity to speak.

As of Monday morning, Roberson said the commission had received 15 letters requesting podium time. However, Roberson said he expects that quite a number of people will want to comment on the issue as approximately 200 landowners will be affected by creation of the 5,300 acre medical park.

Owners of property located in the current 1,790-acre park and in the intended expansion area were mailed notification of the meeting and the procedure to be followed May 23.

If the meeting extends beyond 11 p.m., Roberson said proceedings will be continued until another night so commissioners can hear everyone who wants to comment before taking action on the proposal.

After the commission makes its judgement on the future of the Pitt-Greenville medical district, the proposal and the commission's recommendation for dealing with the proposal will be sent to the city council for final action.

According to Roberson, the proposal should reach the council within 45 days.

Representative Arrested For DUI

RACINE, Wis. (AP) — Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, was arrested on drunken driving charges and released after posting $497.50 bond, law enforcement officials said today.

Rostenkowski, D-Ill., was arrested about 1:15 a.m. Sunday in Burlington, Racine County Sheriff's Department officials said.

He was contacted at his summer home today in Genoa City and confirmed the report of his arrest but denied being intoxicated.

Rostenkowski, 58, told sheriff's deputies he had been returning from a reunion at St. John's Military Academy in Delafield.

He was elected to Congress in 1958 and has been re-elected ever since.

His district includes parts of Chicago and surrounding Cook County.

Chicken Thief

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — A man was shot to death after allegedly attempting to steal two chickens from the backyard of a house, police said.

Salvador Tinajero, 37, was shot twice with a small-caliber handgun, police Lt. Robert Chavez said. Nobody was arrested, and the matter was under investigation, Chavez said.

Three friends of the slain man told police the incident began as they looked for a party on a block about 3

Rockets Use New Attitude To Topple Celtics 106-104

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston's locker room had been somber at halftime of its first two NBA championship playoff games against Boston and each time the Rockets had been blown out in the third quarter.

Sunday, they tried something different. "We had the radio on and we tapped our feet and chewed our gum," Rockets guard Robert Reid said. "We came out loose for the second half."

The Rockets kept up the beat on the court, surviving another scary third quarter, and then they edged to a 106-104 victory in the fourth quarter with a revised lineup to breathe new life into the best-of-seven series.

The Rockets now trail the Celtics 2-1 going into Thursday's fourth game at The Summit. The victory ended talk of a Boston sweep and the possibility of the Celtics setting two NBA records.

A sweep would have given the Celtics a 15-1 record in this year's playoffs, bettering Philadelphia's all-time mark of 12-1 in 1983.

And Boston could have finished with a regular season-playoff combined record of 82-16, surpassing the 1971-72 Los Angeles Lakers' combined standard of 81-16. Los Angeles was 69-13 in the regular season and 12-3 in the playoffs.

Boston, 67-15 in the regular season, is now 13-2 in the playoffs.

Boston took a 2-0 series lead by wilting the Rockets with powerful third quarters in each of the first two games and they started Sunday's third period by outscoring the Rockets 17-3.

But in this game the Rockets didn't give into the pressure defeat.

Houston led 62-59 at halftime but never trailed by more than 10 points and clawed their way back into the game in the closing minutes.

"If we'd been down by 15 or something, we might not have been able to come back," Reid said. "Today was not their day. Today it was who made the play at the end was the big chief."

Halftime music may have helped the Rockets' psyche but after the Rockets started slowly in the third quarter, Coach Bill Fitch took matters into his own hands and shuffled his lineup.

He moved Reid from his point guard position to a face-to-face confrontation with Boston forward Larry Bird.

Fitch inserted guards Allen Leavell and Mitchell Wiggins into the game and sat down starter Rodney McCray to give the Rockets more outside fire power.

The strategy was good enough to get the Rockets back into the series as they scored 15 points in the final 5½ minutes of the third quarter — they scored 36 in the two third quarters played in Boston — to trail 84-80 after three periods.

Leavell, still recovering from a late-season hand injury, scored only five points but he got the Rockets' offense moving and he hit two key late game baskets.

Wiggins scored eight points and got the decisive go-ahead tip-in with 31 seconds to go after a missed shot by Akeem Olajuwon.

Reid gained national status when he guarded Bird in the 1981 NBA championship series but he didn't take credit for Bird's six-point second half on Sunday.

"It's not what I did, he took himself out of their offense," Reid said. "He let the other guys post up. But when he did post up, I was there. When he got rid of the ball, I didn't leave him."

"I stayed with him all the time." Bird scored 25 points, grabbed 15 rebounds and handed out 11 assists, while Kevin McHale led the Celtics with 28 points. Ralph Sampson paced Houston with 24 points and 22 rebounds, while Akeem Olajuwon added 23 points.

"It was easier to get my shots off," Bird said of Reid's defensive effort. "I just wasn't hitting them. I had my opportunities."

The victory made an accurate prognosticator of Olajuwon, who said the Rockets would win the game.

"I didn't predict a victory. I just said we had to win the game," Olajuwon said. "We still have to play a lot better than we played today."

Olajuwon said he started Sunday's game on too high an emotional level but that's past now.

"I had to slow down a bit emotionally," he said. "Tuesday night I just hope we play our game. I'm just thinking Tuesday now. We can't afford the turnovers any more and we must take good shots."

The Rockets had taken a 48-39 lead in the second quarter but the Celtics used a 13-4 spurt to trail by only three points at the half.

Waltrip Sprint Wins Bud 400

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — Darrell Waltrip said two cars were quicker than his winning Chevrolet through most of the Budweiser 400 NASCAR stock car race.

But one crashed with less than five miles to go in Sunday's race, and the other became a split-second slower because of some minor damage suffered a few laps earlier. That accident limited Tim Richmond's Chevrolet just enough to allow Waltrip to roar past in a deciding sprint.

When Terry Labonte's car was wrecked in the next-to-last lap race stewards waved the yellow caution flag, which meant the final lap on the nine-turn course would be meaningless.

Waltrip said he was about three car lengths behind Richmond, going through turn 6 or 7, when he received a radio message from his pit crew that he had to pass the leader in the next mile of racing or watch Richmond lead a slow parade through the final lap.

"Terry (Labonte) and Richmond had the only cars that could outrun me. They were better on new tires, and I was faster on used tires, and that last series (after all changed tires on the 74th lap) was just long enough," Waltrip said of the wild finish to the 400-kilometer race for Grand National stock cars.

"I out-dug him to the flag," Waltrip said of his winning dash to the yellow flag waving at the start-finish line at Riverside International Raceway.

"We never touched. It was sanitary," Waltrip said of the duel with Richmond, also driving a Chevrolet Monte Carlo. "I just inched him at the line. We could have crashed, but Tim held his line."

Trailing by about one second for most of the last 14 laps, Waltrip drew even with Richmond around the long final turn and won the sprint by about three feet. Then it was Richmond who had to endure the frustration of second place, following the leader for the final 2.62 miles.

Waltrip averaged 105.083 mph for the 95 laps over the twisting road course. Waltrip's radio was not working most of the race, but it came alive in the final laps so he could receive the message that the leader of the next-to-last lap would turn out to be the winner.

Richmond and Labonte were at their best on new tires after a yellow caution flag gave the leaders a chance to pit on lap 74, and Richmond took the lead from Waltrip on lap 82. Labonte, in an Oldsmobile Delta 88, was fourth on lap 80 and third by lap 90 and looked ready to challenge until he rammed the wall on turn 1.

Richmond might have run away from Waltrip if it wasn't for a tangle with a slower car driven by J.D. McDuffie on lap 85. The side of Richmond's car was mangled, and the accident "bent the fender down on the tire," Richmond said.

"I wanted to be a little more cautious after that," Richmond said, adding that he slowed a bit entering the sweeping final turn on lap 94 because he saw a group of three cars ahead. "I slowed down and Waltrip made his move around me. The slow cars got in my way."

Waltrip earned $49,000 for his first 1986 victory in 12 Winston Cup events. He had been consistently good — nine finishes in the top five — but minor mechanical troubles had been his undoing until Sunday.

Richmond won $22,155 but remains without a victory. It was his third finish in the top five, and seventh top 10 finish this year.

Dale Earnhardt, who finished fifth Sunday after running fifth or sixth most of the day, remains the Winston Cup points leader with 1,922. Waltrip is second with 1,803. Bobby Allison, who was seventh Sunday but never challenged, is a distant third with 1,651 points. The points leaders divide a $500,000 bonus pot after the half-way mark of the Winston Cup season July 4.

Labonte was not seriously hurt in the crash which dropped him back to a 12th place finish. He and Richmond dominated the race most of the way after early leader Geoff Bodine dropped out at lap 27 with a burned piston.

Richard Petty, who suffered bruises in a crash at Charlotte, N.C. a week earlier, was in good position for the final 22 laps and finished sixth. But he wasn't able to make a run at the leaders because his car was ailing almost as much as his body.

"It wouldn't go into third gear and catch like it should," said Petty. "Man, I don't think I've ever been as sore after a wreck as I am now. I've got sore muscles I didn't realize I even had."

The order of finish of the nine drivers who completed all 95 laps was Waltrip, Richmond, Ricky Rudd, Rusty Wallace, Earnhardt, Richard Petty, Allison, Neil Bonnett and Harry Gant.

Norman Wins Kemper Playoff

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — Greg Norman said he would have liked a cleaner victory — like a birdie on the sixth extra hole instead of learning luckless Larry Mize had put his ball in the water.

"I feel a little saddened to finish the way we did," Norman, who won his second Kemper Open in three years, said. "He played well through 71 holes and then gave me a chance to get into the playoff."

"You hate to win this way. I would have liked to have had a birdie to win."

Norman, who earlier this year won the tour's richest tournament, the Las Vegas Invitational, defeated Larry Mize on the sixth extra hole of the Kemper Open playoff over the 7,173-yard, par-72 Congressional Country Club course.

Norman shot a final-round 66, while Mize came in with a 69. Both players finished 72 holes with totals of 277, 11 under par.

Mize, the leader after three rounds, had a chance to win the tournament on the final hole of regulation play but a 25-foot putt just missed and the playoff was set.

Both players parred the first five playoff holes. On the sixth extra hole, the par-4, 465-yard 18th, Mize hit into the pond behind the hole. After taking a penalty and a drop, he chipped over the green into the water again. He asked Norman to putt out and he made a par. Mize picked up.

"I didn't know Larry hit it into the water," Norman said. "It changed the whole idea how to hit the second shot. I hate to have it given to you. I would have liked to have birdie."

Mize was disappointed by his failure to win after blowing leads going into the final round here last year and at the Tournament Players Championship.

"I feel I played a pretty good round, but not good enough," Mize, who led by four strokes entering the final round here last year, said.

Mize said he was only 161 yards from the cup on the final hole of the playoff and hit an eight iron.

"I didn't think it would go in the water," he said. "I thought it would be in the bunker."

"Second place again here is very disappointing," he said. "I feel I played a very good round but not good enough."

Norman, who won the Kemper and the Canadian Open in 1984 and Las Vegas this year in three years on the PGA Tour, picked up $90,000 in winning the Kemper in the last year it will be held at Congressional. Next year, the Kemper will move across the street to Avenal, a TPC course.

Mize, whose only tour victory was the 1983 Danny Thomas Memphis Classic, won $54,000 to bring his yearly earnings to $212,255 as he has gotten a check in 13 of 14 starts.

Tied for third place were Mike Reid and John Cook, who were recipients of $29,000 each.

Bobby Watkins, who fired a final-round 66, was in sole possession of fifth place at eight-under-par 280 while Curtis Strange was sixth at 282.

Bob Gilder, Buddy Gardner and Chip Beck finished at 283 and Craig Stadler, a two-time winner here, and a group of four others were one stroke behind.

Norman said he was not going to play next week at Westchester Classic but is looking toward the U.S. Open in Southampton, N.Y. the following week.

"I've never played the course," he said of Shinnecock Hills, "but I'm looking forward to it."

Senior Babe Ruth League

University Kiwanas... 15 Planter's Bank..... 5

University Kiwanas took advantage of 12 walks, and Tom Moye had 10 strikeouts to help University Kiwanas beat Planter's Bank 15-5 in a Senior Babe Ruth League game Saturday night.

Kiwanas' Mike Maxon walked to open the game. Scott Davis and Travis King followed with consecutive walks. Robbie Ehrmann was then walked to bring home Maxon. Jay Mattox reached on a walk to bring home Davis, and Tom Moye was walked, scoring King. Chris Stokes and Hank Keeping were both walked to bring home Ehrmann and Mattox to put Kiwanas up 6-0. Planter's countered with two runs in the bottom of the first, but they did not score again until the fourth inning. Meanwhile, Kiwanas scored seven runs in the second to put the game away.

Ehrmann and Maxon led Kiwanas with two hits apiece. Moye allowed only two hits in six innings.

Winterville Ruitins..... 12 Chicod Hornets..... 3

WINTERVILLE Bryan Smith tossed a four-hitter to lead the Winterville Ruitins over the Chicod Hornets 12-3 in a Senior Babe Ruth League baseball game Saturday night.

Mark Smith led the Ruitins with 3 hits in four at bats and Kervin Vines added two more hits. Gray Mills led Chicod with two hits.

Winterville took a 12-0 lead heading into the bottom of the fifth before Chicod got on the board with three runs in the inning. Winterville scored three in the first, two in the second, four in the third, and three in the fifth.

Little League

First Federal..... 21 Exchange..... 17

Eric Smith hit two home runs, one in a decisive seven-run third inning, and drove in seven runs to lead First Federal past Exchange in a Tar Heel Little League baseball game Sunday.

First Federal took a 8-4 lead heading into the bottom of the third when they exploded for seven runs. Chad Mills started things off with a single. Aaron Adams followed with a double, and a single by Thomas Adams brought home Mills. Smith then smashed his first homer, bringing in three runs.

Rives Mann then hit a solo homer of his own to make it 13-4. Robert Park and Kevin Corbett added to more runs to put First Federal ahead 15-4.

Exchange countered with nine runs in the fourth to make it 15-13.

Jamie Willer, Ben Hahn and J. Cox opened the inning with walks. Neil Boardman then walked, forcing in Willer. Powell Havens walked to bring home another run. Brian Rose walked to score Cox. Aaron Givens was hit by a pitch to bring home another run. Willer and Hahn walked again to bring in two more runs. Lumort Clemon and Cox followed with RBI singles to complete the innings scoring.

First Federal added two runs in the bottom of the fourth and four more in the bottom of the fifth to put the game away.

Smith went 5-5 and Thomas Adams went 4-5 to lead First Federal. Rives Mann and Cole Yarborough added three hits apiece. Clemens and Cox led Exchange with two hits each.

Jaycee's..... 11 Union Carbide..... 4

Andre Eley hit a three-run homer in the third inning to key a seven-run spurt that helped the Jaycee's top Union Carbide 11-4 in a North State Little League baseball game Sunday.

The two teams were tied at 1-1 following the first two innings of play. Union Carbide scored three runs in the top of the third, keyed by Andre William's RBI double.

The Jaycee's came back to score seven runs in the bottom of the inning to go up 8-4.

Jeff Allegood opened the inning with a walk. Neal Eley reached on an error, and Andre Eley followed with his homer. Bryan Hill followed with a single. Ben Edwards reached on an error. Ethan Brinn, Jem McAlister and Branden Moore followed with walks to bring home two more runs. Brinn was later thrown out at home. Scotty Selby reached on a fielder's choice, and Robbie Burlington reached on a walk to drive home another run. Neal Eley's single brought home Moore to complete the innings scoring.

Union Carbide was held scoreless the remainder of the game, while the Jaycee's added three runs in the final two innings to complete the scoring.

Andre Eley had three hits to lead the Jaycee's. Mark Mikkelsen's two hits led Union Carbide.

Babe Ruth League

Wachovia..... 6 Coca-Cola..... 4

Down 4-2 heading into the bottom of the sixth, Wachovia rallied for four runs to slip past Coca-Cola in a Babe Ruth League baseball game Sunday.

Marty Messar and Derrick Hines walked, and Chris Fuqua followed with a single. Hines was thrown out a third. Tim Moore walked to load the bases, and Wes Jackson's single drove in Messar. Andy Miller knocked in two runs with a short pop out, and an error brought home the final run.

Coca-Cola scored two runs in the second and a run in the third and fourth to take an early lead. Wachovia scored runs in the first and second.

Malcolm Wilson led Wachovia with two hits. Coca-Cola was led by Walter Gallin and Duane Holder's two hits apiece.

John Wins 3rd As Yankees Top A's

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Tommy John knows all about comebacks. He made one 10 years ago with his so-called "Bionic Arm." Now, he's at it again.

"At 43, there's no way you can pitch like you did when you were 30. But I knew the last two or three years that I was capable of doing better than I did," John said Sunday after pitching the New York Yankees to a 7-1 victory over the Oakland A's.

John, who has been struggling the past few years, improved his record to 3-0 since joining the Yankees on May 2.

"I'm having more fun now than I ever had," said John, who once came back from a rotator cuff injury and a year of inactivity to win 10 games for the Los Angeles Dodgers in 1976. He has had three 20-victory seasons since then, including two with the Yankees.

In other American League games Sunday, Boston beat Minnesota 6-3; Cleveland outscored Milwaukee 9-7; Chicago stopped Toronto 6-4; Kansas City turned back Texas 5-3; California trimmed Baltimore 7-4 and Seattle routed Detroit 9-1.

John, who scattered nine hits in eight innings, got all the offensive support he needed when Dave Winfield hit a tie-breaking, two-run homer in the sixth. The Yankees added three runs in the seventh, and Mike Pagliarulo hit a solo homer, his 10th, in the eighth off Tom Dozier.

John lowered his earned run average to 2.37. His only walk was issued intentionally and he struck out seven, his highest strikeout total in a game since 1981.

But last year with California and Oakland, John was 4-10 with a 5.53 ERA. The Yankees invited him to spring training as a non-roster player this year but did not sign him until two pitchers went on the disabled list.

"It looked like he was a lot more consistent with the sinker today than he was last year," A's Manager Jackie Moore said of John. "He throws it so the hitters can't afford to take it, and when we hit it today it was mostly for ground balls."

Red Sox 6, Twins 3
Unbeaten Roger Clemens, with home run support from Don Baylor and Dwight Evans, recorded his ninth straight victory as the Boston beat Minnesota.

Clemens, the AL leader in victories, was making his first start since last Sunday in Texas where he suffered a sprained knuckle on the middle finger of his pitching hand on the third pitch of the game.

Clemens lasted eight innings against Minnesota, giving up seven hits, before Bob Stanley pitched the bottom of the ninth. Clemens struck out nine to assume the AL lead with 90.

Baylor led off the Boston second with his 11th homer off loser Mark Portugal, 1-6, to give the Red Sox a 1-0 lead. The Red Sox scored their eventual winning run in the fourth when they took a 4-0 lead on Evans' fourth homer of the season.

"Seven days off was great for my finger," Clemens said. "I felt a little sluggish at first, (The finger) was a little sore, but you don't worry about it. You just have to block it out."

Indians 9, Brewers 7
Rookie Andy Allanson tripled in two runs to break a 6-6 tie in the seventh inning and lead Cleveland over visiting Milwaukee. Allanson, who also drove in Cleveland's first run in the third inning and scored a run during the Indians' four-run fifth, hit a two-out triple off reliever Bob McClure, 2-1, for Cleveland's winning runs.

Scott Bailes, 6-4, Cleveland's third pitcher, was the winner with last-inning relief help from Ernie Camacho, who recorded his seventh save.

The four fifth-inning runs gave the Indians a 6-3 lead, but the Brewers came back to tie it with three runs in the seventh. Paul Householder drove in two runs with his third hit of the day, a single, and Rick Manning's RBI forceout tied it 6-6.

White Sox 6, Blue Jays 4

Wayne Tolleson hit a three-run homer and Greg Walker added a two-run shot as Chicago snapped a seven-game losing streak. The White Sox, who had managed just one hit through the first five innings, finally solved Jimmy Key, 3-4, in the top of the sixth when they scored three runs on Tolleson's homer.

Rich Dotson, 3-5, was the winner with late relief help from Joel McKeon and Bob James. Dotson survived a shaky first inning where the Blue Jays loaded the bases on three hits and scored their first run on a sacrifice fly by George Bell.

"Key had been in complete control," Tolleson said. "(But) he came in with an offspeed pitch, like a batting practice fastball and it was up over the plate. He was still throwing the ball good. He just made one mistake and it cost him."

Royals 5, Rangers 3

Lonnie Smith's two-run triple with two out in the seventh led Kansas City over Texas. It was the Royals' third straight victory over the Rangers, who arrived in Kansas City Friday night with a three-game lead in the AL West and dropped into a tie with the Royals after Sunday's loss.

After Smith's triple off reliever Mitch Williams gave the Royals a 4-3 lead, they built on their lead in the eighth with a home run by George Brett, his seventh this season and 200th of his major league career. It also gave Brett 1,000 career RBI.

Earlier, rookie Ruben Sierra had hit a three-run homer on his second major league at-bat to give the Rangers a 3-2 lead. Sierra, leading the American Association in home runs and RBI when called up from Oklahoma City on Saturday, homered off Charlie Leibbrandt, 5-3.

Angels 7, Orioles 4

Wally Joyner's 17th homer in the sixth inning snapped a 1-1 tie and California scored five times in the eighth to beat Baltimore.

Joyner's leadoff homer off Scott McGregor resulted in his seventh game-winning RBI. The rookie, who leads the major leagues in homers, has homered against all nine teams the Angels have faced.

All the runs off winner Mike Witt, 5-4, came on home runs. He surrendered a solo homer in the top of the third to John Shelby and a two-run homer to Mike Young and solo homer to Shelby in the ninth. Witt gave up 10 hits before giving way in the ninth to Doug Corbett, who gained his fifth save.

McGregor, 4-4, was shelled in a five-run California eighth keyed by a two-run single by Bobby Grich and two-run double by Jack Howell.

Mariners 9, Tigers 1

Jim Presley's three-run homer capped a five-run seventh inning, leading Seattle over Detroit for a three-game sweep of the visiting Tigers.

Ninth Inning Rally Gives Pitt County Legion Win

WILSON — Pitt County's American Legion baseball team scored six runs in the top of the ninth inning to defeat Wilson County 10-8 Saturday night.

Trailing 5-4 when the final inning began, Pitt County took advantage of three Wilson County errors with four timely hits.

Ty Little lead off the inning with a walk and advanced to third when Wilson third baseman Johnny Hinnant threw wildly to first base on a ground ball off the bat of Tyrone Jones.

Shane Adams, who committed four errors in the field, drove in Little with a single to tie the score at 5-5. Jones, who had advanced to third on the base hit, scored, and Adams moved to third on two wild pitches. Adams stole home to give Pitt County a 7-5 lead.

After Eric Jarman grounded out, David Daniels walked and stole second. Lee Hardee followed with a double, driving in Daniels, to make the score 8-5.

Hardee scored on a single by Fred Bryant to make the score 9-5. Bryant stole second base, but Axel Smith grounded back to the pitcher for the second out of the inning.

Bryant scored Pitt County's final run when Wilson relief pitcher Brian Harrell threw wildly to first base on a ball hit by pitcher Bronswell Patrick.

Patrick entered the bottom of the ninth with a comfortable 10-5 lead, but he needed relief help from Tim Clark when Wilson rallied in the bottom of the ninth.

Milo Popowitch reached second on an error by Pitt County third baseman Lee Hardee, moved to third on a passed ball, and scored on a wild pitch to make it 10-6. Then, Wes Pope walked, and Doug Flowers singled.

Adams booted a ground ball that allowed Pope to score, making it 10-7. After pinch-hitter Jerry Smith knocked in Flowers to make the score 10-8, Clark came in to put out the fire.

With runners on first and second and none out, Pitt second baseman Ty Little turned a double play, and Clark struck out Hinnant to end the game.

Pitt County broke a scoreless game with three runs in the top of the second behind a double by Bronswell and a run-scoring single by Little.

But Wilson bounced back with in the bottom of the third with four unearned runs to take a 4-3 lead.

In the inning, Robbie Bass, Russell Best, Jimmy Pago and Hinnant stroked singles, and Adams committed two throwing errors.

Pitt County tied the game at 4-4 in the top of the sixth when Fred Bryant, who reached on a single, scored from third on a wild pitch, but Wilson County took a 5-4 lead in the bottom of the inning on Jay Lamm's solo homerun.

Patrick led Pitt County with three hits and two RBI, while Bryant, Little and Adams had two hits apiece.

Asheboro Ends Season For Washington, 2-1

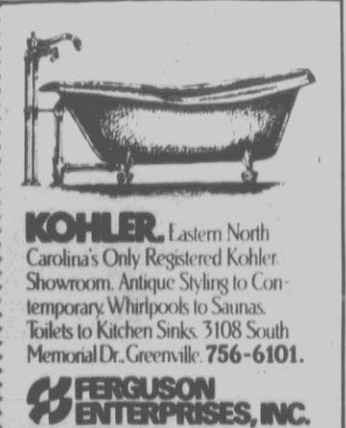

ASHEBORO — Asheboro's Patrick Deese bunted home Robbie Hammond in the bottom of the seventh to give Asheboro a 2-1 victory over Washington in the Eastern Finals of the North Carolina State High School Athletic Association 3-A baseball playoffs Friday night.

Asheboro took the early lead, going up 1-0 after the first inning. Washington countered in the third with Steve Oden's solo homer. Chris Jones went the distance with a five-hitter for the win while Floyd Lilley took the loss.

Tony Cable and Kent Lewis had two hits apiece to lead Asheboro.

Morrison, Buc's Dump Dodgers

By BEN WALKER

AP Baseball Writer

Jim Morrison kept his eye on the ball, from the time he connected until the time it sailed into the left-field seats for a grand slam. The question was whether he kept his eye on where he was running.

"I don't think I passed him. I don't want to say much about it because I've been in a slump all season and I just want to enjoy this," Morrison said Sunday after driving in seven runs in the Pittsburgh Pirates' 12-3 rout over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Morrison's first career slam came in the fifth inning off Tom Niedenfuer and gave the Pirates a 9-2 lead. The Dodgers, though, argued that Morrison should have been ruled out for passing runner Tony Pena around first base.

"He touched me but he never passed me," Pena said. "If he did it, I'd say the truth. He didn't do it."

In other National League games, Philadelphia trounced San Diego 16-5, San Francisco tripped New York 7-3, Houston beat Montreal 8-4, St. Louis edged Cincinnati 2-1 and Chicago defeated Atlanta 7-3.

Pena and Morrison were both watching the ball go into the stands at Three Rivers Stadium when Morrison appeared to pass Pena. Morrison quickly went back and retouched the first base while Los Angeles first baseman Greg Brock and third baseman Bill Madlock started hollering at first base umpire Lee Weyer.

Dodgers Manager Tom Lasorda argued for 10 minutes, and the umpires huddled privately before allowing the grand slam to stand.

Weyer said he was headed toward second base when the ball was leaving the park and said he did not see the play.

"They said Morrison passed him but you have to see it to call it," Weyer said. "If I'd seen it, I would have called it. I don't know if he went by him or not."

That admission annoyed Lasorda — "everybody saw it except the guy who was supposed to see it," he said — but left Madlock speaking practically.

"What difference is one run?" Madlock said. "So it's 11-3 instead of 12-3. But what can you do? I respect them (the umpires) more when they tell the truth. If he didn't see it, that's it."

Morrison, who hit an RBI triple in the second inning and a two-run double in the fourth, said he was thinking about hitting for the cycle his last two at-bats in the game. Morrison, needing a single to complete the circuit, struck out both times.

"I chased some pitches out of the strike zone," he said. "I was thinking about it my last two times up. Ten RBI? I was thinking about that, too. I would have liked to have gotten another base hit."

Rick Rhoden, 4-3, gave up seven hits in his second complete game of the season. Bob Welch, 3-5, lost his fourth consecutive decision as the Dodgers lost for the fifth time in six games.

R.J. Reynolds went 3-for-4 and scored three times for the Pirates. His single and three walks set up Morrison's grand slam, his eighth home run of the season.

Brock and Franklin Stubbs homered for Los Angeles.

Phillies 16, Padres 5

Juan Samuel hit a solo homer and a three-run double and Glenn Wilson and Darren Daulton added three-run homers, powering Philadelphia past San Diego for the Phillies' sixth straight victory.

Philadelphia's run total was the highest in the league this season. The Phillies rapped 15 hits and received 12 walks from five Padres pitchers.

Steve Carlton, 4-6, won his second straight decision. Carlton, who gave five runs on 10 hits in six innings, had not won consecutive games since September 1984.

Kevin McReynolds' 10th homer gave visiting San Diego a 2-0 lead in the top of the first before the Phillies scored four runs in their half of the first and five more in the second.

"I want to be the player of the month in June because I was the worst player in April and May," said Wilson, who went 3-for-4 after entering the game with a .181 average.

Astros 8, Expos 4

Bob Knepper became the first nine-game winner in the NL, helped by Glenn Davis, who homered and drove in four Houston runs at the Astrodome.

Knepper, 9-2, is tied with Boston's Roger Clemens for the most victories in the major leagues. Knepper pitched six innings and gave up four runs on six hits, including two home runs by Andre Dawson.

Dawson hit a solo homer in the fourth and added a three-run shot in the sixth, his 11th of the season. Dawson became the all-time Montreal home run hitter with 216, one more than Gary Carter.

Davis hit a sacrifice fly in the first inning and a two-run homer, his ninth, in the third that made it 5-0. Davis had an RBI double in the eighth.

Giants 7, Mets 3

Mike Krukow continued his career success against New York, throwing 7 1/3 strong innings as San Francisco beat the error-plagued Mets.

Krukow, 7-3, allowed seven hits, including Ray Knight's two-run homer in the sixth that made it 7-2. Krukow, who beat Dwight Gooden and the Mets 10-2 on May 22, has a 15-6 career record against New York.

Ron Darling, 6-1, took the loss. He was tagged for five runs on six hits in five innings.

Dan Gladden had three hits and drove in two runs for the visiting Giants, who took advantage of a season-high five errors by New York for three unearned runs.

Cardinals 2, Reds 1

Danny Cox, an 18-game winner last season, hit a tiebreaking single that helped him win his first game of the year. The St. Louis right-hander, who missed the first three weeks of the season with an ankle injury, won for the first time in five decisions.

Cox pitched five innings and gave up six hits, including a run-scoring single by Cincinnati player-manager Pete Rose in the first inning. Cox put the visiting Cardinals ahead 2-1 in the second inning with an RBI single.

Reliever Todd Worrell preserved the victory by pitching out of bases-loaded jams in the seventh and eighth innings. He got his seventh save.

Cubs 7, Braves 3

Gary Matthews' fly ball twisted in a 31 mph wind at Wrigley Field and fell for a two-run triple, capping a three-run first inning that sent Chicago past Atlanta.

Winner Guy Hoffman, 2-1, pitched his first major-league complete game. He gave up nine hits and struck out a career-high seven.

Ryne Sandberg had three hits and drove in two runs for the Cubs. Bob Horner hit a two-run homer for the Braves in the ninth inning.

STOP LEAKING FLAT ROOFS!

The sensible, cost effective energy saving solution to the age old problem of leaking flat roofs

Here's How!

- Through a unique modern method process your existing roof remains in place as an insulator. It is prepared by cleaning and refashioning all vents, stacks, skylights, chimneys and protrusions. The application is made as follows:
- 1" Avg. Urethane Foam (Sprayed in place)
- COAT WITH THERM-O-SEAL (Low Maintenance)
- APPLY GRANULES

What does this do?

This gives an additional "R" factor of 7.14 plus to your existing insulation thereby CUTTING HEATING AND COOLING COSTS by as much as 15%.

LIBERTY LIGHTING — Dr. Gil Reiling, a General Electric scientist, compares an original 1916 version of the bulb type, left, that first lit the Statue of Liberty and the type that will light the statue in 1986. When President Reagan pushes a button to relight the Statue of Liberty on July 3rd, he'll be backed by 1,500 racks of lights, 600 strip lights, 15 arc lamps and 1.4 million kilowatts of power. Spectacular Show Of Lights To Launch Liberty Celebration

By JUDIE GLAVE
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — When President Reagan pushes a button to relight the Statue of Liberty on July 3, he'll be backed by 1,500 racks of lights, 600 strip lights, 15 arc lamps and 1.4 million kilowatts of power.
"It's much more involved than flipping a switch and then there's light," said Red McKinnon, a lighting expert with the Hollywood, Calif.-based Klages Group. "Everything is being meticulously planned, down to the tiniest detail."

The burst of lights will kick off the statue's 4-day centennial celebration. When the president pushes the button, McKinnon said, a bright, blue-white laser light will shoot a mile across New York Harbor from Governor's Island to the base of the statue.

Until then, Lady Liberty will be in darkness. As the laser plays across the base of the statue it will melt into a bright, red light "to get us off to a very strong, emotional beginning," said McKinnon.

A 300-member choir and 100-piece orchestra on Governor's Island will provide background music with a performance of "America the Beautiful."

The light will travel to the statue's pedestal, changing from solid red to a red-amber to bring out the texture of the brick.

In the next three to four seconds, the full statue will be revealed in a dim, steel-blue light.

McKinnon said viewers' eyes will automatically search for a brighter light, which will come when the colonnade and setback areas are highlighted in a deep blue.

"Now we start to reveal the statue from the base up, adding accents like white, narrow lights on her book, torch and crown," he continued.

There will be a fast sweep of the statue from her base to torch and suddenly the 151-foot monument will be awash in brilliant white light, said McKinnon.

"As David (Liberty Weekend producer David Wolper) says, the statue will visually jump out at that point," McKinnon said.

Seconds after the statue and her $66 million facelift are fully revealed, thousands of fireworks will begin soaring and crackling in the night air.

Though Wolper, McKinnon and others from the Klages Group have spent several months planning the relighting, the complete event won't last more than two minutes, McKinnon said.

"If you tried to do it over 15 minutes, everyone would be sitting there saying, 'OK, let's get on with it.' So we decided to let it happen, just let it be revealed quickly; after all that's what everyone will be waiting for."

The lighting crew will hold rehearsals about a week before the actual event, he said, but that will be done in the middle of the night.

Klages Group did the lighting for the 1984 Los Angeles Olympics, the Live Aid concert and numerous Hollywood awards ceremonies.

ALCOA Target Of Strike

ATLANTA (AP) — A strike against the Aluminum Company of America that has idled 15,000 workers at 15 plants continued today as management personnel ran operations at some facilities.

No new talks were scheduled. The strike was called late Saturday night by the United Steelworkers of America and the Aluminum, Brick and Glass Workers International after the unions rejected what they termed unreasonable concessions demanded by ALCOA and another major aluminum producer, Reynolds Metals Co.

Reynolds employees will continue to work without a contract. ALCOA was targeted for the strike because of its "belligerent attitude during negotiations, and the fact that they are the major company in the industry," Steelworkers spokesman Bob Moffett said Sunday.

The talks failed, Moffett said, because of "the insistence of ALCOA to extract concessions from these people at the same time they were making a profit."

Nevertheless, he said union representatives are "willing to go back in (for more talks) immediately. We're hoping to work out some sort of honorable settlement."

ALCOA officials said Sunday they had no plans to reopen negotiations. A Reynolds spokesman also has declined comment.

Picket lines were up Sunday morning at ALCOA's three plants in Alcoa, Tenn. Some 300 management personnel are operating the smelter there "in an effort to preserve jobs for when this strike is over," said Elton Jones, public relations manager for ALCOA's Tennessee operations. To restart the smelter after a shutdown would take about a month, he said.

Management employees also were at work Sunday at ALCOA's plant near Newburgh, Ind., said plant spokesman Mark Schaefer. Some 900 salaried employees would be used to keep that facility operating, Schaefer said.

Post Executive Dies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Donald H. Till, director of communications for The Washington Post and vice president of the Los Angeles Times-Washington Post News Service, has died in London, the Post reported. He was 56.

Till, a resident of Fairfax, Va., collapsed during a visit to his son's London home and was pronounced dead of an apparent heart attack Saturday, according to the newspaper.

Till was a native of England who became communications manager for United Press International in Europe and New York before resigning in 1975 to join Extel Corp. in Chicago. Two years later, he joined the Post and the Los Angeles Times-Post news service in Washington.

"The loss of Don Till is deeply shocking to his many friends and colleagues in the industry," said Cal Thornton, president and editorial director of the Los Angeles Times-Post news service.

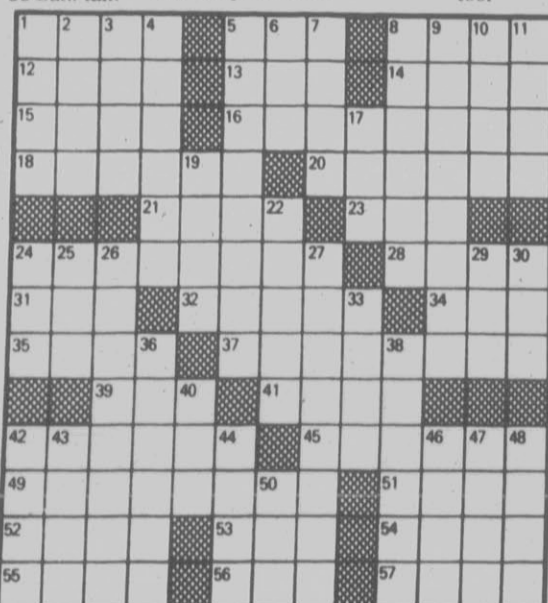

Till's survivors include his wife Isobel; their son Phillip, whom they were visiting; three other sons, Robert, a resident of Australia, Colin of Manassas, Va., and Martin of Fairfax, Va.; and a daughter, Isabel Gillespie, also of Manassas.

Live TV Coverage Marks Senate Session

By TIM AHERN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Senators returning from their Memorial Day recess face a busy agenda that includes tax reform and whether to sell missiles to Saudi Arabia, but they also will perform their duties on live television for the first time.

The Senate was scheduled to convene today at 2 p.m. EDT for a pro forma session which was being televised live, the first time in the Senate's 197-year history that television stations around the country have been able to broadcast proceedings from the ornate chamber.

While the House also returns this week from its recess to debate and vote on a housing bill, most of the attention will be focused on the Senate. House floor proceedings have been televised since 1979.

While House sessions were televised, an increasing number of senators argued that the public was also demanding to see the Senate, although opponents of television said cameras would only further slow the already lengthy Senate legislative process.

Television supporters finally won approval earlier this year for a one-month trial period during which TV cameras would only broadcast the pictures around the Capitol and Senate buildings.

That ended last month, and now will be followed by a six-week trial period after which the Senate will vote again on whether to televise its proceedings permanently. Most senators have said permanent approval is likely.

The first major debate viewers will see involves the tax reform bill, which comes to the Senate floor Wednesday for a day. No votes will be taken and the bill will then be put off for at least a week.

The Senate Finance Committee has approved a far-reaching package of changes, eliminating a variety of tax breaks and instead substituting lower — and far fewer — flat rates.

Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., chairman of the Finance Committee, said last week that a growing number of his colleagues are ready to fight any attempts to amend the bill, which is supported by President Reagan.

It would be highly unusual for the bill to win approval in the full Senate without amendment, but Packwood said the fragile coalition supporting the bill might fall apart if amendments are approved.

"I hope none of us falls for that trap of saying 'just one itchy-bitsy amendment,'" he said.

The Senate bill will eventually have to be reconciled with the far different bill approved last December by the House.

On Thursday, the Senate will vote on whether to override Reagan's veto of a congressional resolution blocking the sale of missiles to Saudi Arabia, a fight which is expected to be close.

Both the House and Senate have overwhelmingly passed the resolution blocking the sale, but the sale will go ahead unless each chamber overrides the president's veto by a two-thirds margin of those voting.

Reagan has concentrated his lobbying efforts on the arms deal in the Republican-controlled Senate, where his prospects for victory are better than in the Democratic-run House.

Before the recess 10 days ago, Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., said Reagan had changed enough minds so that he would have won the veto fight.

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., leader of the opposition, agreed then that the White House would have won, but said it would have only been because some opponents of the sale had already left the city.

"I think that when this finally comes up for a vote, we will prevail and halt this sale," said Cranston.

Reagan says the sale is necessary to show support for U.S. allies in the Arab world, but Cranston and opponents argue that the missiles may fall into the hands of terrorists and they contend the Saudis have not given strong support to U.S. interests in the Mideast.

ANSWER TO WEEKLY BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠854 ♠AJ632 ♣AQ1052
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
2 ♣ Pass 2 NT Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—With your distribution, no trump doesn't look appealing as a resting place. Therefore, you should simply continue to describe your hand, and three clubs serves the purpose nicely. Three spades is worth considering, but you don't really want to support a suit that partner has not rebid with only three low cards.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠AKJ3 ♠7 ♠A1092 ♣KJ98
Your right-hand opponent opens the bidding with one spade. What action do you take?
A.—Back in the Old Country they dispensed good advice: When the opponents bid your best suit, pass. You can't double or bid no trump with your singleton heart, and to overcall with two of a minor on a weak four-card suit asks for trouble.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠A8 ♠K76 ♠AKQ763 ♣K8
Your right-hand opponent opens the bidding with one spade. What action do you take?
A.—If you have a gambling disposition, you might try three no trump, but we would prefer that you held a seventh diamond, or the jack as well, for such action. Our choice would be to double, intending to remove any bid partner might make to no trump at the same level. That invites him to go on to game if he has a smattering of values.

Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠QJ1097652 ♠93 ♣Q76
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
1 ♣ 1 ♠ ?
What do you bid now?
A.—You have a hand of great offensive power but little or no defense. Therefore, we would make it as difficult as possible for the opponents to get together. Our choice is a leap to four hearts—the same bid we would have made had there been no interference.

Q.5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠AQ765 ♠9 ♠J3 ♣109742
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
2 NT Pass 3 ♣ Pass
3 NT Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Don't repeat your story. Your bid of three clubs told partner that you hold nine or ten black cards and would prefer a suit contract to no trump. Despite that, partner chose to bid three no trump. Since he knows your hand while you know little about his, it would be foolhardy to question his judgment by bidding again.

Q.6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠83 ♠95 ♠J6 ♣AQ107632
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
1 NT Dble ?
What action do you take?
A.—Strange as it might seem, we suggest you bid three no trump! Your hand rates to produce seven tricks, and you hope partner can come up with two more before the opponents get five. Then isn't redouble better? Yes, if you are going to play there. But the odds are that the opponents have some contract, probably in a major, and perhaps even a profitable sacrifice against three no trump. Your bid makes it more difficult for them to locate their best spot.

UAW Forms Panel As Chief Promises A Tougher Stance

By EDWARD MILLER
AP Auto Writer

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — The United Auto Workers, whose President Owen Bieber says he is tired of being outmaneuvered by conservatives, will form a commission to study the 1.1 million-member union's future.

"The job before us today is to do the tough spadework needed to ensure that the Reagan era is not followed by the Kemp era or the Bush era," Bieber said Sunday, referring to Rep. Jack Kemp and Vice President George Bush, both potential Republican presidential candidates in 1988.

At the start of the union's six-day convention, Bieber also warned the Big Three automakers that the UAW "will go to war" at the negotiating table to achieve its bargaining goals.

The task of the Commission on the UAW Future will be to find "how labor can improve its political effectiveness in a period of the permanent campaign, a new era of politics dominated by 30-second TV spots, sophisticated polling and computerized demographic analysis," he said.

"What must we do to harness the new technologies of communication — satellites and computers and cable — to bring us closer to our members and them to us?"

"I'll put it simply: We absolutely must retake the Senate in 1986 and the White House in 1988," Bieber declared. "We're battered and bloodied, but we're unbroken."

Bieber, 56, has no opposition in his bid Wednesday for re-election to a second three-year term.

He used the hour-long keynote speech to set the posture for labor contract bargaining next year with General Motors Corp. and Ford Motor Co. and with Chrysler Corp. two years from now.

Dancing To A Different Tune

On June 2, 1924, Congress granted U.S. citizenship to all American Indians. A few months later, this group of Sioux entertained President Calvin Coolidge on the White House grounds. But Americans had not always looked so favorably on Sioux Indian dancing. In 1890, the government fought the Sioux in the Ghost Dance War, the last great Indian uprising. The Sioux believed that, by doing the Ghost Dance, Indians would rise from the dead and buffalo return to the plains.

DO YOU KNOW — What famous battle ended the Sioux uprising of 1890?

Broadway Roles Capture Tonys For Tomlin, Hirsch

By MARY CAMPBELL
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Lily Tomlin, who all alone plays the huge cast of "The Search for Signs of Intelligent Life in the Universe," and Judd Hirsch, who's 51 and plays a spunky guy 30 years older in "I'm Not Rappaport," are the toast of the town as Tony award-winners for best actress and actor on Broadway.

Bernadette Peters, who also holds the stage alone in the first half of "Song & Dance" — dancers perform the second half — and George Rose, the master of ceremonies of "The Mystery of Edwin Drood," also won Tonys Sunday night for best actress and actor in musicals.

Miss Peters thanked her mother for insisting she had talent. Rose thanked "fellow acolytes of the thespian persuasion."

Best play was Herb Gardner's comic "I'm Not Rappaport" and best musical was "The Mystery of Edwin Drood," an adaptation of the book Charles Dickens was writing when he died. The play has five prepared endings, and the audience at each performance chooses which will be performed.

Miss Tomlin, in her acceptance speech thanked the people "who gave us a pretty good deal on the Plymouth Theater," and playwright Jane Wagner. The Tony Awards show was broadcast from the Minskoff Theater by CBS-TV.

Hirsch, who said his speech was going to make the ceremony run past its scheduled two hours, insisted that Cleavon Little, who plays his "Rappaport" park-bench pal, also over 80, join him on stage.

"Sweet Charity," which starred Gwen Verdon in 1966 and Debbie Allen now, was named this season's best revival. Two in its cast won Tonys for supporting roles. They are Bebe Neuwirth, who leads the "Big Spender" number, and Michael Rupert, Charity's boyfriend.

The Tonys for best supporting roles in a play went to Swoozie Kurtz as a crazy housewife named Bananas and John Mahoney as her husband, in "The House of Blue Leaves."

Jerry Zaks won the best director award for "Blue Leaves." Tony Walton, who designed the play's set, asked, "Could this be the first time an apartment in Queens has won an award?" as he accepted the scenic design Tony.

Rupert Holmes, who has composed songs for Barbra Streisand, won two Tonys for his first Broadway outing, "Edwin Drood." He won for musical score and book. Accepting the second, he said, "I hope my home video tape recorder is working."

Altogether, "Drood" won five Tonys, including one for director Wilford Leach.

Bob Fosse, whose dances can be seen in the "Sweet Charity" revival, won his ninth Tony for his choreography in "Big Deal." It was presented by Michael Kidd, who won the Tony for choreography, for "Finian's Rainbow," the year the Tonys began, 1947.

As a celebration of the 40th anniversary of awarding Tonys, songs were sung from musicals of the last 40 years, beginning with David Wayne, who was in "Finian's Rainbow" in 1947, singing that show's "If I'm Not Near the Girl I Love."

The show included Chita Rivera, wheeled out with her broken leg in a cast, singing "Put on a Happy Face" from "Bye, Bye Birdie." Miss Rivera was injured in a car crash recently.

The awards show also included lines from each of the 40 plays that have won Tonys as best of the season. Jose Ferrer, who starred in "Cyrano de Bergerac" in 1947, began and Matthew Broderick, who starred in "Biloxi Blues" last year, finished.

Scenes from the four nominated musicals, "Big Deal," "The Mystery of Edwin Drood," "Song & Dance" and "Tango Argentino" also were performed.

Lighting designer Pat Collins, working in London and the only winner not present, won for "Rappaport."

Costume designer Patricia Zipprodt won for "Sweet Charity." The Tonys are named for Antoinette Perry, a prominent worker in the American Theater Wing during World War II. Nominations are made by a 12-member committee.

Friends, Fans Remember Actress Marilyn Monroe

By JEFF WILSON
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sex goddess Marilyn Monroe, the platinum blond actress who entertained the powerful and won the world in her tight, low-cut dresses, was not forgotten on what would have been her 60th birthday.

Helium-filled balloons reading "Happy Birthday" and bouquets of flowers were delivered throughout the weekend to the crypt marked "Marilyn Monroe 1926-1962" at Westwood Village Cemetery, 10 miles from downtown Los Angeles.

Born Norma Jean Mortenson on June 1, 1926, Miss Monroe died Aug. 5, 1962.

And her mystique lives on. "She came up from nowhere and set goals for herself. She had a dream and fulfilled it," said Ricci Terranova, a longtime fan from Marina del Rey who left flowers at her crypt on Sunday. He said the actress had inspired him.

Terranova, born two years after Miss Monroe's death, said visiting her home was his most prized personal memory of the actress. He posed as a potential buyer when the small Brentwood house recently went on the market.

"I got a sense of the warmth that I associate with her," he said.

Miss Monroe died there at age 36 of "probable suicide." Theories of murder and cover-up have surfaced throughout the years but remain unproven explanations of her death.

"She was a legend then; she is even more of one now," said Roger Richman, licensing agent for the Monroe estate who controls the commercial use of her picture and name. "What impresses me is her increasing worldwide popularity among people who were not even born when she was alive."

Wendy Beeby, 25, a Los Angeles waitress who carried flowers to the crypt Sunday with her 1-year-old daughter Angelina, collects Monroe memorabilia.

"I have her posters, her music, her dolls," the young mother said.

Forrest Andrews, spokesman for the tiny, tree-shrouded cemetery surrounded by high-rise buildings, said a steady stream of people remembered her birthday with flowers on her crypt.

For years, Miss Monroe's former husband, baseball great Joe DiMaggio, had roses delivered to the crypt. The deliveries stopped several years ago, Andrews said.

Los Angeles Police Chief Daryl F. Gates and District Attorney Ira Reiner rejected murder allegations in Miss Monroe's death as recently as last fall, saying there was no evidence. And on Nov. 18, 1985, the Los Angeles County Grand Jury declined to investigate the death.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, JUNE 3, 1986

YOUR DAILY Horoscope from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Until noon, be careful that you do not act too hastily about deciding upon a new course of action that could cause many changes in your life. The evening is good for introspection.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Study a proposal well by an associate before you accept it. Tonight, look into your financial status for necessary changes.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Be careful you do not take that action you have in mind too quickly, or you can regret it later. Think things through.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Don't permit a friend to persuade you to take some fast action on a matter you have not yet analyzed well.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Be sure to keep promises made in civic or career matters without trying to make changes. Avoid overspending.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Take it easy where some costly activity is concerned. A friend gives you needed information. Avoid a certain newcomer.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Don't try to pull a fast one in business, or you could spoil your career. Avoid being too inquisitive.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You have a plan for which your partners are not yet ready, so put it aside for a while. Don't commit yourself to monetary things.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Carry on with the duties you have found to be successful and don't change your methods. Evening is best for self-improvement.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Go after the entertainment that you like and steer clear of the modern which is not your cup of tea.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Avoid criticism at home and you improve the situation there. Not a good day to invite a friend in.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Plan how to have more accord with allies rather than try to force new plans on them. One in power is angry, so steer clear today.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Don't jeopardize your safe position by making some foolish investment at this time. Listen to the practical views of others.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will early look into one activity and then jump into another without ever getting anything completed, and should be taught early how to persevere, otherwise your progeny will never amount to anything.

New Direction

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country singer and songwriter Johnny Paycheck, whose up-and-down career has ranged from prison stints and drug abuse to hit records and awards, says he's now ready for a more stable life, and "I don't even drink beer anymore."

Paycheck, in Nashville to promote his new single, "Old Violin," said he's begun a new health program and is lifting weights and eating "the right foods."

He was released last month on appeal from an assault conviction.

"The fans, they've been with me for over 30 years," the 47-year-old entertainer told an interviewer, "and if it wasn't for them I would have been gone a long time ago."

CONGRATULATIONS, GREENVILLE!

There's an old saying that a person is only as good as the company he keeps.

We at Integon Life Insurance Corporation know that Waighty Scales has been keeping some very good company.

That company is you — the citizens of Greenville. Your influence, friendship and continued business support helped Waighty achieve the honor of being Integon Life's number one agent for 1985-86.

With your support, this year Waighty has risen as the leader among Integon's more than 1,500 field representatives. Waighty insured 258 lives with a total of $19,414,000 life insurance protection for the same year. More than 1,100 policyowners know that Waighty has their best interest at heart — an interest that translates into $81,957,498 of insurance coverage for these special people. Combined with his father's production over the past 38 years, the Scales Agency is now Integon's second largest agency. This two-man agency is second only to the Winston-Salem/Greensboro agency, which has over 30 active agents.

W.M. "Waighty" Scales III

Waighty has consistently been among the company's top producers since he joined the company in 1978. With his performance this year, he's the youngest number one field representative in the 66-year history of Integon — surpassing the record his father, Booger Scales, set as a young Integon agent of 32 in 1956. Another record Waighty set this year was being the company's top producer for 9 out of 12 months.

The insurance industry also recognizes Waighty's contribution to his policyowners, his company and his profession. Waighty has been named to the Million Dollar Round Table — the industry's most prestigious honor club — seven times. Integon chose Waighty as this year's company representative in Insurance Sales magazine's All-Star Honor Roll.

But Waighty's concern doesn't stop with the sale. He makes it his business to guarantee that his clients' insurance protection is up-to-date and working to assure them future financial security. Greenville policyowners know they can count on Waighty — that's why he has one of the best client retention rates (100%) at Integon today.

Waighty knows these achievements wouldn't be possible without the help and support of the Scales Agency office staff — Kathy McLawhorn and Betty Bogard. He follows in a tradition of excellence in the life insurance profession established by his father. Booger is a 38-year Integon agent who has been the company's top producer 18 years.

A person is as good as the company he keeps — the good company of the Greenville community. And that's why we're sure Waighty will continue to be a leader among Integon's field representatives.
