Hearing Set July 7 On County Elections

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners has scheduled a public hearing for July 7 to receive comments on a proposal to change the method of electing members of the board.

In a prepared statement released after an executive session of the board on Monday to discuss legal and personnel matters, County Attorney W.H. Watson said the hearing will be at 7 p.m. in the commissioner's auditorium on the second floor of the county office building at 1717 W. Fifth St.

The Board of Commissioners currently consists of six members who are "required to live in and are elected from residency districts, but all members are voted upon by all voters in the county," according to Watson.

"The board is considering changing to a method of election in which some or all members would be nominated and elected only by the voters in the district," Watson said in the statement.

"Any change recommended by the board would be presented to the 1987 General Assembly for enactment" into law and, according to the statement, "the board is particularly concerned that any new election method comply with the federal Voting Rights Act and one-person/one-vote requirements."

Watson said "citizens are asked to limit their comments to these issues:

—"Should all commissioners be elected from districts or should some be elected from districts and some at-large?"

—"How many commissioners should the board have and how many districts should be used?"

—"Where should district lines be drawn?"

Speakers at the hearing are asked to limit their remarks to 5 minutes each, Watson said, and if time permits, speakers will be allowed to go beyond the 5-minute limit after everyone has had an opportunity to speak.

He also said people who wish to speak at the hearing are asked to notify John Bulow at the county office building by the end of the business day on July 3.

"Those who don't sign up in advance may still speak on the 7th,"

Watson said. "A sign-up sheet for additional speakers will be available before and during the hearing."

Watson also said "written comments on these issues may be submitted to the board of commissioners" by sending them to John Bulow, Clerk to the Pitt County Board of Commissioners, 1717 W. Fifth St.

The hearing is part of a timetable for making changes in the system of electing commissioners adopted by the board last month.

The timetable calls for having a new election method, to ensure black representation on the board, developed by the end of this calendar year. The new method would then be presented to the General Assembly early in the 1987 session for legislative action, submitted to the U.S. Justice Department for approval and implemented in the 1988 elections.

The question of election changes surfaced in early March following a meeting with representatives of the local chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People at which the board

Merger Revisions Up For Discussion

By MARY C. SCHULKEN

Lawyers for Pitt County schools were scheduled to meet with a local civil rights group today to discuss revising school merger legislation during the short session of the N.C. General Assembly.

School board lawyer Mike Crowell was to meet with Leslie Winner, counsel for the Concerned Citizens for Justice, to discuss changing the method of electing the consolidated Pitt County Board of Education. The proposed changes would then be presented to the N.C. General Assembly during the legislative session starting Thursday.

The consolidated board will govern the unified school system created when Pitt and Greenville schools merge July 1. The U.S. Justice Department and the Concerned Citizens for Justice, a civil rights group, have rejected the

Farmers Market Opens Saturday

By STUART SAVAGE

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners was told Monday that the farmers market will begin operations Saturday morning.

Leroy James, county Agricultural Extension Service chairman, reported that Terry Whitehurst has been hired as manager of the farmers market and said the market will "open up on site" (south of Bells Fork on the County Home Road) on Saturday.

James, who said the building is scheduled to be completed by July 21, reported that the Pitt County Farm Bureau has donated $3,900 for a Hotline gets things done. Write and tell us about the problem or issue into which you'd like for Hotline to look. Enclose photostatic copies of any pertinent information. Our address is The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C., 27835. Because of the large numbers received, Hotline cannot answer or publish every item we receive, but we deal with all of those for which we have staff time. Names must be given, but only initials will be published.

KODAK FEEDBACK

Last February Hotline reported that the Eastman Kodak Co. had been ordered by a court to discontinue its instant-kodak camera and all film and accessories for them. Kodak announced a toll-free number that persons owning these cameras and accessories could call to arrange trade-ins.

Now, because of a class action suit filed by two consumers in Illinois, the courts have restrained any further steps in the exchange program, a Kodak company spokesman said. Names of Kodak instant camera users are continuing to be compiled by the company, however, and information packages will be mailed out once a decision is made. As long as a customer informs the Kodak company before Dec. 31 of having an instant camera, a settlement will be made. The toll-free number is (800) 792-3000. The option of trading the camera for one share of Eastman stock, a disk camera and film or $50 in coupons for Kodak photography products, remains.

THE BEAR FACTS — Audro Barrett, an animal control officer, at left, prepares a tranquilizer for a roaming bear that went through part of Greenville Monday afternoon. The errant bear was finally treed at a house on Lakewood Drive (top photo) and the police and fire departments set up a net to catch the bear after it was drugged (bottom photo). Capture efforts failed when the drug did not tranquilize the bear, which finally escaped the city to the less terrifying life of the country. (Reflector Photos by Cliff Hollis and Tommy Forrest)

Fast-Moving Bear Visits City

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

A large male black bear led Greenville animal control officers, police and firemen and state wildlife officers on a six-hour chase inside Greenville Monday afternoon.

Audro Barrett, Greenville's animal control supervisor, said he was called about 2:45 p.m. to the home of Flavius Pruitt, a Greenville police officer, on Greenbriar Drive. A neighbor of Pruitt had spotted the bear in his yard. At one point the bear leaped the fence into Pruitt's dog's pen and played — it appeared — a few minutes. Then he was gone.

He was next spotted by a woman driving on Evans Street, then by the officers giving pursuit near the intersection of Evans Street and Arlington Boulevard. Then he looped back to Hooker Road.

"I don't know how fast he was running," Barrett said, "but he could flat move, I'll tell you that. We had a real hard time keeping up with him."

Kay J. Dunn, state wildlife enforcement officer, estimated that the bear he saw Monday weighs between 250 and 300 pounds. "I've seen bigger ones," he said, "but not lately. He's a young adult, grown but not real heavy like some of them get when they're older."

The chase took the officers from

Evans Street to Memorial Drive and many points in between, mostly in the woods following either the Green Mill Run or canals leading into it.

The officers' purpose for chasing the bear was to get it out of Greenville where it was thought he would likely either be harmed or harm someone, Barrett said.

Study Backs Use Of ECVC Pool

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

A feasibility study on the sports-auditorium facility at Eastern Carolina Vocational Center states the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department can operate the facility with financial success.

Members of the Recreation and Parks Commission, the Greenville City Council, the city manager and other city officials, and representatives of local industries, attended the Monday evening presentation of the study at the department's administrative office at 2000 Cedar Lane.

The feasibility study was authored by the city in an effort to determine whether or not it will be economically practical for the city to enter into a contract to operate ECVC's indoor pool, weight room and auditorium complex under the auspices of the Recreation and Parks Department.

No immediate action on the issue was planned. Essentially, the study represents viewpoints of a non-interested third party in determining the feasibility of operating the complex.

The million dollar-plus facility was closed April 30 after ECVC officials determined the center could no longer bear the expense of keeping it open. Earlier, the facility had been offered to the city for a $1 annual fee plus a $10,000 annual contribution to the city for a period of three years.

Recreation Director Boyd Lee emphasized that the feasibility study represents only the first of several actions to be taken before a decision is made on the city taking over the ECVC facility.

"Our recreation commission committee assigned to this project will now determine what course of action to recommend to the City Council. The council will then consider our recommendation and the facts in the feasibility study and decide on where to go from there, whether it's yes or no," Lee said.

The 11-page study prepared by the Charlotte firm of Cole, Deimler and Associates provides estimates of projected expenses, sources of income and suggested methods of creating public interest in making the facility available to the public on a user-fee basis.

The principal source of income recommended would be generated through a user fee derived from both individual and corporate membership fees. Based on a fee schedule for a similar facility, the Chapel Hill

Deana Leigh Hemby Is Bride Of James Barry Anderson

The Greenville Church of God was the scene of the wedding ceremony Sunday at 3:30 p.m. of Deana Leigh Hemby and James Barry Anderson. The Rev. C.A. Haislip conducted the double ring ceremony.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hemby of Greenville, the bride was given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Anderson of Greenville. The father of the bridegroom was best man.

The bride wore a formal gown of white satin rib-lace over peau de soie. It was designed with an open neckline outlined in a ruffle of pleated satin. The silhouette dropped waistline was enhanced by the scalloped silk Venise lace beaded with pearls. The lace leg o' mutton sleeves were trimmed in silk Venise lace and satin with miniature silk florets at the shoulders. The gathered skirt and attached chapel length train were accented by a border of pleated satin edged with embroidered leaves of satin. Her triple tiered waltz length veil of illusion featured curled edging attached to a wreath of pearl peps and crystals with a back pouf of illusion. She carried a bouquet of mixed spring flowers in cerise, white and burgundy.

The bride is a graduate of Greenville Christian Academy. The bridegroom is a graduate of Farmville Central High School and is employed by North State Steel.

Mary Jo Williams of Greenville directed the wedding and Sheryl Nichols presided at the register. Wayne Gunnoe was pianist for the ceremony. Mark Johnson sang "Time in a Bottle" and "You and I." Chris Harris sang "The Wedding Prayer," "The Wedding Song" and "We've Only Just Begun."

Leigh Ellen Hemby of Greenville was maid of honor for her sister.

Bridesmaids included Lydia Starnes of Kingsport, Tenn., Kim Patton of Farmville, Diane Latham of Grifton, Rachel Riggs of Greenville, Patti Jo Harrison of Rocky Mount, and Denise Smith of Selma.

Flower girl was Erin Crabtree of Poquoson, Va., cousin of the bride. Bucky James Turpine of New Bern, cousin of the bride, was ring bearer.

Ushers were Kevin Anderson of Greenville, brother of the bridegroom, Gary Whitford of Durham, cousin of the bridegroom, Tom Wainwright of Farmville, Mike Lewis of Cary, Mac Avery and Scott Stallings, both of Greenville.

The maid of honor wore a gown of cerise matte taffeta styled with a fitted bodice and sweetheart neckline. Wire edged ruffles formed short sleeves and the full skirt was hemmed with wire edged ruffling and extended into a beruffled sweep train. She carried three white carnations tipped in cerise and tied with cerise and white streamers. Bridesmaids were dressed identical and their flowers were three carnations of cerise tied with matching streamers.

The flower girl was dressed identically to the honor attendants and carried a bouquet similar to that of the bride. She wore silk flowers in her hair.

The mother of the bride wore a formal gown of rose matte taffeta. The mother of the bridegroom selected a formal gown of orchid chiffon over matte taffeta. The mothers and grandmothers were remembered with corsages.

A reception was held in the church fellowship hall. Ann Whitford, aunt of the bridegroom, served cake and Patricia Mills, aunt of the bride, poured punch. The flower girl and ring bearer distributed birdseed bags and scrolls.

The couple will live in Greenville after a wedding trip to the Outer Banks.

MRS. ANDERSON

An after-rehearsal pig picking was given at the home of the bridegroom by his parents. A bridesmaids luncheon was held at Annabell's and a shower was given for the couple at the church.

The bride wore a floor length gown with a chapel train of traditional bridal satin enhanced with silk Venise lace. The fitted bodice featured a scoop neckline, Juliet puffed sleeves and a natural waist. Silk Venise lace motifs embellished with

A deep ruffle edged with scalloped silk Venise lace bordered the hemline of the gown. She wore a two-tiered waltz length veil of illusion accented with silk flowers and interspersed with pearl spray. At Wits End

By Erma Bombeck

Don't you just love the bulletins from the fashion world each season: 'WAISTS ARE BACK!' 'SHOULDERS ARE IN!' 'EYES ARE IMPORTANT!'

The first thing I do is to look and see if I still have one (or two) and what condition it (or they) is in. If it needs work, I see how I can disguise it. If it doesn't, I fall on my knees.

The other day, a friend of mine showed a headline at me that read, "Bellybutton returns from fashion exile." You would have thought it was Marcos returning to the Philippines.

"Who cares," I said.

"Don't snap at me," she said.

Bridge Games Benefit Charities

A duplicate bridge charity game was played Wednesday morning for the Diabetes Association. Mrs. C.I. McClelland and George Martin, were first place winners. Their percentage was .609 percent.

Others winning were Frances McCarley and Ed Leahy, second; Mr. and Mrs. Everett Pittman, third; Mrs. David Fraade and Mrs. Jimm Foster tied for third with Mrs. C.F. Galloway and Mrs. C.D. Elks.

North-South winners in the afternoon game were Mrs. J.S. Rhodes Jr. and Mrs. Roger Critcher Jr., first with .600 percent; Beulah Eagles and Emma Warren, second; Mrs. M.H. Bynum and Mrs. Eli Bloom, third.

East-West: Mrs. David Stevens and Mrs. William McConnell, first with .642 percent; Mrs. W.R. Harris and Dave Proctor, second; Mrs. E.J. Poindexter and Mrs. Robert Barnhill, third.

Saturday afternoon charity game winners were Dave Proctor and Graham Davis tied for first with Sara Bradbury and Dr. Charles Duffy. Their percentage was .642 percent. The game was held for the benefit of the Arthritis Foundation.

Mrs. Mel Wright and Mrs. A.L. Roque placed third. Sharon West and Dorothy deSherinbin won fourth and Beulah Eagles and Lee Hastings, fifth.

A unit tournament will be held Saturday.

"Blame Cher and Madonna and Jim McMahon of the Chicago Bears. They're the ones who made navels trendy."

Farther down in the story, someone was quoted as saying that baring the navel was not for everyone. I'll go one step farther and say anyone over the age of 6 months should never bare their navels.

I remember a few years ago out of the clear blue sky designers came out with mini-skirts. You can't spring something like that on women in a day. They need time to weave those sags into muscles and hike those saddle bags up around the waist. By the time most women had gotten their legs in shape, the long skirt came back and it didn't matter anymore.

Another time I saw a fashion flash that said, "THIS YEAR'S TREND: NO BUST." Easy for them to say. Trust me when I tell you you cannot make a demitasse cup out of an industrial-strength coffee mug in one season.

To show you what wimps we are, we let them stuff our feet alternately between pointed and square toes ... when we know in our hearts that our toes are angled and we will live in severe pain.

I don't pretend to know how all of these trends evolve, but there is probably a large room in New York where designers sit around and speculate. "Let's see ... last year, we gave women the big shirt that covered every lump and bulge in their bodies from the neck down. We gave them elastic skirtbands and long, unstructured jackets that you could use to slipcover Massachusetts. There's no doubt in my mind, they've all gone to seed."

"Great!" says one of them excitedly. "We've got them right where we want them. Now we bring back the flat stomach, arms the size of pencils and necks 24-inches long."

"And to cap it all off, we'll add a bustle to what they've already grown."

I'm telling you, I've succumbed to my last fashion bulletin. I was flat on my back the other night for three hours hoping to get a glimpse of my navel. I think I saw it. It was nothing to build a wardrobe around.

Radioactive Item Found In Landfill

ELIZABETH CITY, N.C. (AP) — A container labeled as holding radioactive materials was found at an Elizabeth City landfill by firefighters on routine patrol, but state officials say it appears the container was empty and no one was contaminated.

Dayne Brown, chief of the state Radiation Protection Division, said eight firefighters were hospitalized after discovering the container at the landfill Monday. Because of instrument malfunction, early reports indicated the firefighters had been contaminated, he said.

"Our first concern was with the indication that firefighters may have been contaminated," Brown said.

But Brown learned later today that no one was contaminated and the container was empty.

"Indirectly, word has gotten back to me that what they found were empty containers," Brown said. "As it turns out it was not a radiation problem."

The container was found in the general of a landfill fire, which was extinguished Sunday, Brown said.

Brown said reports indicated that the container was labeled as having contained Strontium 90, a radioactive material that emits beta particles and has a half-life of less than 30 years.

Brown said he believed the material was used in wear indicators on the rotor blades of helicopters and that initial reports said the markings showed the container came from the Coast Guard base in Elizabeth City.

Brown said there would be no problem with dumping empty containers at the site, but that labels should be defaced.

West Says Schools Finishing Year Of Exceptional Growth

By HAROLD JOYNER
Reflector Staff Writer

The status of Pitt County schools during the 1985-86 academic year has been exceptional, Superintendent Eddie West told Greenville Board of Education members at what could be the board's final meeting.

"This has been a year in which the building blocks for the future have been cohesively meshed to foster the development of excellence," he said at the board's monthly meeting Monday.

West's remarks were made during a state-of-the-schools address.

Greenville and Pitt schools are scheduled to consolidate July 1 and will be governed by a consolidated board. The existing Greenville and Pitt County boards will no longer function after the merger.

Building blocks used in accomplishing the task of continued growth, West said, were effective staffs, model education programs, expectations for students and staff, providing environments conducive to learning and regular evaluation of programs and products.

"These firm foundation components are facilitating a focus which is building the future — a future where quality and caring count," West said.

He told the board that 10 Pitt County students were selected to attend the North Carolina School for Science and Mathematics and 27 local students were selected in academic and arts competitions to attend Governor's School for academically talented and gifted students.

The staff also helped in making the school year successful, West said.

"Approximately 90 percent of the instructional staff engaged in continuing education activities," he said, with the number of people who elected to begin graduate studies increasing.

"The support personnel (maintenance, cafeteria workers and bus drivers) also exhibited this same professionalism and sense of commitment to boys and girls. We had about 80 percent of school system maintenance personnel attend workshops, courses and other continuing education activities," he said.

"Pitt County citizens can take great pride in knowing that a renaissance is under way which is reaping dividends for today and which is promoting even greater promise and potential for tomorrow," West said.

The future of the school system is moving forward, West said.

"We must have cohesion to effectuate consolidation, have a comprehensive instructional organization and have facility planning for the 21st century."

"The process of education is one of continued refinement and expansion of its great heritage," he said.

In other business, the board approved an auditing contract submitted by Joyner and Hatcher, certified public accountants, at a cost of $9,400 per year. Also, a two-year contract for bank services was awarded to Wachovia Bank.

Challenge

General Baptist Convention and alumni backing of Shaw University's financial dilemma is important, but the support can't stop with dollars.

The 100-year-old institution is significant to the black community; it was responsive to the needs of blacks in the state when few other education institutions were. Because of its record of service, it should be preserved.

Preserving the university means keeping it out of the hands of the federal government. Baptist and Shaw alumni fund raising could save the school from the auction block and the organizations should be praised for their efforts.

If both Baptists and alumni are intent on helping Shaw, however, they should protect their investment by following it back to the school. The organizations should make an endowment of supervision to match their monetary investment.

Shaw has suffered financially since traditionally white institutions began recruiting minorities heavily. The university needs more than dollars to remove it from the muck of mismanagement — it needs direction and leadership.

That leadership, in addition to financial retrieval, rests on the shoulders of the General Baptist and Shaw alumni organizations. Those two backers could, through recruiting of both students and administrators, return the school's standards to a sound financial level.

In addition, the organizations could supply Shaw with volunteers — people with expertise and dedication — to provide services the university can't. The financial crisis is a cry for help from Shaw and represents a challenge to those it has served during its century-old heritage.

Anxiety

When the Department of Energy dropped seven states from its list of potential nuclear waste storage depots, that department eased a burden of anxiety they shared. North Carolina was among the seven.

A single site will be decided upon among three Western states.

Further, the energy department said a single site was now thought to be adequate because less waste was accumulating than anticipated. Detailed geological investigation is the next step in Deaf Smith County, Texas, the Hanford nuclear reservation near Richland, Wash., and in the Yucca Mountain area near the Nevada nuclear weapons site.

Nobody wants nuclear wastes dumped in their neighborhood, and it showed.

Actually, though two locales in North Carolina were counted among potential sites, what we had been told of geologic and demographic factors weighed against their selection. Concern over what might happen was probably greater than possibility of actually being tapped for the repository.

At any rate, people in western and central North Carolina are going to be sleeping better at night.

Explaining The Unexplainable

WASHINGTON — "Doctor," I said to my doctor, "it is all so very hard to understand."

I was reclining upon a couch in the office of Dr. Hermann Stumpenmich, the eminent Viennese consultant to Washington pundits. My head was resting upon the hard rolled edge of the sofa. The stiff leather hurt my head, but my head was hurting anyway.

"Yes, my son?" He was filling his fountain pen. The ink was black. "What is so very hard to understand?"

"The responses to terrorism," I said.

"And what do we mean by terrorism?"

"That is what is so very hard to understand."

Dr. Stumpenmich scratched his pen on his notepad. The paper was white. The pen refused to function. "Yes," he said. "Of course."

"Now," I said, "you take our bombing of Libya. That was in response to the Libyans' terrorism in Berlin. Almost everybody in the United States said hooray. The president's popularity shot up. With a few exceptions, everybody said we had a right to go after these Libyan thugs and to drop stuff all over Colonel Gadhafi."

"But of course," said the doctor.

"A couple of weeks later," I said, and he could tell I was getting confused, "the South African government sent its troops and planes into Angola and Zimbabwe. They attacked bases of African National Congress terrorists. Almost everybody said that was terrible. The White House called it 'outrageous,' and George Shultz turned purple. We expelled a guy from the South African Embassy. I do not understand why it is all right for us to hit Libyan terrorists and all wrong for South Africa to hit ANC terrorists."

"We must examine this," said Dr. Stumpenmich. His pen was finally working. Everything seemed black and white.

"And then there is the matter of the Irish Republican Army," I said. My neck was really hurting. "Some of the IRA assassins — the ones who shoot British troops from ambush — have taken refuge in the United States. Great Britain wants to extradite them for trial. We say no. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee has bottled up a treaty that would permit extradition of these terrorists. This I do not understand. I think Margaret Thatcher has it right: 'If you are against terrorists,' she said, 'you cannot pick and choose between terrorists.'"

"But of course," said the doctor, "you understand that there are good terrorists and bad terrorists."

"No, sir," I said.

"You are not trying to understand," he said. "You must try harder."

"Sen. Jesse Helms says that if we agreed to send IRA fugitives back to be tried in Belfast, we might set a

The Harvest Comes Home

RALEIGH — You reap what you sow.

Legislators on the joint appropriations committee learned that lesson when they came back to Raleigh for briefings in late May. They got what they ordered up a year ago, but in a version akin to the old Chinese water torture.

During the 1985 session, the appropriations committees demanded legislative oversight on a number of programs. Throughout the budget there are special provisions calling upon the operators of certain programs to report back to the 1986 session of the assembly.

For the better part of three days, the 100-plus members of the committee sat through one excruciatingly boring report after another.

Included in the 15 reports, most of which had already been made to the legislative leadership, were updates on mosquito and rodent control, the Eckerd Wilderness Camps and eligibility guidelines for social programs. The reports were long and dull and full of words like, "corroborate, obviate and reconcile."

On Monday, things got so dull that most of the lobbyists moved out into the hallways to tell stories and jokes. On Tuesday, most of the lobbyists stayed home. The press corps didn't even hang around for much of Monday.

Committee members, of course, were stuck. They'd already taken the week off from work to come to Raleigh. So they did what they could to keep themselves alive.

Many read newspapers or daydreamed. One senator from Charlotte cleaned the wax out of his ears. Rep. Harry Payne, D-New Hanover, worked on some legal papers for a client. Rep. Trip Sizemore, R-Guilford, read his mail and tried to clean out his catch-all file.

"It's pretty boring," said Rep. Anne Duncan, R-Forsyth. "They're a little boring. The one on mosquitoes, that was great," said Rep. Charles Beall, D-Haywood.

Had the legislative leadership wanted to make the reports more boring, it's hard to believe that they could have done so. They make sure the briefings created no controversy by declaring that no questions could be asked from the floor.

"This is a tremendous waste of time and money," said Rep. Frank Rhodes, R-Forsyth. Rep. Dave Diamond, D-Surry, agreed. "These reports are probably a good idea, but they don't need to go to the whole group (of appropriations members). I looked around and I think half of the people didn't know what they were talking about."

While the boredom made for some light-hearted joking, there was a serious issue involved. Three days of legislators' time, and a great many tax dollars, were used up on the reports.

Sen. Tony Rand, D-Cumberland, explained the lesson to be learned from the briefings: "Be careful what you ask for because you might get it."

Reading The Polls

WASHINGTON (AP) — Read the latest polls and the 1988 presidential nominees are — no need to bother with the sealed envelopes — George Bush and Gary Hart.

That's the way it is two years and some months before the Democrats or Republicans meet to choose their 1988 presidential candidates.

What are people to make of the fact the latest Washington Post-ABC News poll that said potential Republican primary voters gave the vice president a 44-point lead over former Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., their second choice for the nomination?

The same survey said that Hart had a 14-point lead over Chrysler Corp. chairman Lee Iacocca, that he was 15 points ahead of the Rev. Jesse Jackson and 17 points in front of Gov. Mario Cuomo of New York.

Do these figures tell anything about the developing races in both parties or are they a meaningless numbers game?

For people trying to raise money and organizational support for Bush and Hart, those numbers are very useful, even if their significance is debatable. Politicians pore over such numbers, heft them like shoppers trying to pick the best melon from the pile.

They talk like this: "So what do you think of his latest numbers?"

"You mean the Gallup poll?"

"Yeh."

"I don't know, his best group is the 19 to 26 year olds and they don't vote."

"Aw, but look at those numbers in the South. Who'd have thought he had that kind of strength in the South and with a Southern primary shaping up, I think you can make a case with those numbers. Now, so-and-so, that's the one that surprises me, he should be doing better, he's just not catching on out there."

Conversations like that take place wherever the political community gathers.

For candidates trying to oust sitting members of Congress, such numbers are an essential part of wooing the people who decide which challengers will get the support of political action committees.

For politicians trying to mobilize a presidential campaign, the numbers can be a tool for convincing key organizers and fund raisers to come on board early. The numbers can help move such people and if they commit, their decisions can influence others to follow.

The numbers for Bush in the Washington Post-ABC News poll were particularly formidable. Where do they leave the other Republicans?

In most cases, it leaves them talking about how at this stage polls are a reflection of name recognition and pointing to cases of individuals who had little or no ranking in early polls, but ended up outstripping the field after a dramatic showing in one of the early state primaries or caucuses.

Jimmy Carter wasn't showing up on 1974 polls but he was the Democratic nominee in 1976. In February 1984, a nationwide survey said Walter F. Mondale was favored for the nomination by 55 percent of Democrats. In second place with support from 13 percent was Sen. John Glenn of Ohio. Hart was tied with Sen. Alan Cranston at 3 percent.

One month later, after Hart had won the New Hampshire primary and the Maine caucuses, polls said the Colorado senator not only was leading Mondale, but also was beating President Reagan by 9 points.

Candidates regularly soar from statistical obscurity in the polls to election victories. There also are many examples of high poll ratings that never translated into votes.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy beat Carter handily in the polls in 1979. But the president trounced the Massachusetts senator in the early Democratic primaries and caucuses.

terrible precedent. We might have to send Afghan rebels back to be tried in Kabul.

"Jesse Helms said that?"

"Yes, sir. I do not understand how Jesse could equate a request for extradition by the government of Northern Ireland with a request for extradition by the Soviet puppet government of Afghanistan, especially when there is no thought of a treaty with Afghanistan. I think politics must have something to do with it. Somebody in the Senate must think that shooting British troops in Belfast is like shooting British troops at Bunker Hill."

"That would be hard to understand," the doctor conceded. He was making more notes, but the notes seemed to be turning gray.

"And then there is this proposal to send $250 million in aid to Northern Ireland and the Irish Republic." My head was aching something awful. "I do not understand this. How did Northern Ireland and the Irish Republic get to be underdeveloped nations? What is the $250 million for? The Afghan rebels certainly could use an extra $250 million. Our friend Mr. Savimbi, in Angola, could use $250 million. The Contras in Nicaragua could use $250 million. But Tip O'Neill wants $250 million for the Irish. It is all so very hard to comprehend."

Dr. Stumpenmich put his pen away. His notepad was entirely blank. Everything had vanished. "You pundits are all the same," he said. I could tell he was angry. "For $50 an hour you expect me to help you understand things that cannot be explained."

Strength For Today

When Louis XIV was buried, the famous preacher Massillon was called upon to make the funeral oration.

Stepping to the pulpit, he began his address by saying, "God alone is great." As he uttered these words, the whole congregation rose to its feet. He had put into words what was in everyone's mind. Louis had been the grand monarch in his early years, yet here he lay, discredited in the sight of the whole world, his glory a thing of dust and ashes.

"Surely," said the instincts of even the most worldly of that day, "God alone is great."

When that conviction becomes the pole toward which, like a magnetic needle, a man's life ever turns, all other points of the compass are easily found. The sovereignty of God is the most overwhelming fact with which we have to deal. Upon the proper understanding of that great fact our happiness and true welfare depend.

Public Forum

To the editor:

Bravo on your editorial, "City Slickery," in last Monday's Reflector. The charm of rural eastern North Carolina is not in new buildings, but in the structures of decades past lying about the landscape. An old barn covered with Virginia creeper can be as pleasant in its way as a beautifully renovated 100-year-old farmhouse.

Let us forget, Greenville went on a binge of "remove-improve" of its own a few years ago. It gutted our city of virtually all of its elder homes. A few only remain, and the carnage is conspicuous when you compare our old home population with its neighboring cities.

As one who travels widely in these United States, I can assure you that eastern North Carolina is nice country as it is. Leave its old structures be!

Lawrence Behr
Greenville

To the editor:

Almost a year has passed since the deaths of four beloved members of our family. Senseless, tragic deaths in a car accident.

The cause of this tragedy was the infraction of a common driving law — violation of the posted speed limit.

In a 25-mph zone, our family members' vehicle was struck broadside at an estimated 68 mph! Two adults and a 5-year-old were killed instantly. A 2-year-old died hours later of multiple injuries. Miraculously a 7-year-old survived. Her severe injuries have left permanent scarring. She will eventually fully recover and is, at present, well on the way. There are years ahead of much emotional and physical pain, though, on this road to recovery.

Seat belts played a minor role in this incident. One cannot help but think, however, that one of the other children could have survived, had she been fastened properly into her safety seat.

This horrible tragedy happened on a beautiful summer afternoon within 45 minutes of the family's home.

A combination of safe driving practices could surely have prevented such a fatality.

Please observe posted speed limits. Please buckle up. Please buckle up your precious children. You could be sparing the lives of an entire family.

Strike Delays Phone Service

By The Associated Press
 A nationwide strike by about 155,000 AT&T employees caused some delays in operator service, and company officials acknowledge that if the walkout becomes a long one, it will be difficult to keep up with repairs.
 The strike, in its third day today, also has disrupted operations at some regional telephone companies formerly affiliated with the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. as non-striking employees honored picket lines.
 AT&T officials said there were minor delays in operator service, but that about 90 percent of the long-distance calls it handles are direct-dial and not affected by the strike by the Communication Workers of America.

 A key issue in the walkout is the union's contention that AT&T's final offer allows the company to dismiss up to 20,000 technicians who now make $646 a week and rehire them at $300 a week less.
 AT&T officials have said that no such technician now on the payroll would take a pay cut.

 On Monday, about 400 of Michigan Bell's 10,000 employees scheduled to work also refused to cross CWA picket lines at shared facilities, said company spokesman Greg Gordon in Detroit.
 Ohio Bell Telephone said up to 350 of its workers did not cross picket lines Monday at buildings it shares with AT&T.
 Peter Cronin of New England

Telephone Co. in Boston said there was illegal picketing at buildings shared by NET and AT&T, a charge denied by the CWA.
 Tom Duddy, a spokesman for Bell of Pennsylvania, one of the independent companies created in the breakup of the Bell System, said there were scattered reports of some workers who also belong to the CWA staying off the job in sympathy with the strike against AT&T.

Frank Borman Leaves Eastern

MIAMI (AP) — Frank Borman, who is resigning after 11 years at the helm of Eastern Airlines, says his proudest achievement is the carrier's safety record, and his gravest disappointments involved disputes with labor and federal regulators.
 "I am at peace. I've enjoyed all 16 years of it. I like the business and I love the people," Borman said at a news conference called after publication of his announcement at a private dinner Sunday that he would resign June 30.
 "I think it's important for a person to know when it's time to come and time to go," said the retired Air Force colonel, aviator and astronaut, who has worked at Eastern since 1970 and served as chairman since 1975.
 Borman and his wife Susan will sell their Miami home and move to Las Cruces, N.M., where their son Fred has a car dealership.
 Borman will become a vice chairman July 1 of Texas Air Corp., Frank Lorenzo's Houston-based company that is taking over Eastern for $676 million.

Five Legislative Seats At Stake In Runoffs

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Lester Roark, a former Shelby mayor and former deputy state attorney general, and former Belmont Mayor Jack L. Rhyne squared off in the Democratic runoff today for the 10th District congressional seat, which has been held for 24 years by Rep. Jim Broyhill.

The winner will face state Sen. Cass Ballenger, a Hickory businessman, who defeated two opponents to capture the Republican nomination. Broyhill, the incumbent, is the GOP nominee for U.S. senator.

Roark predicted in a telephone interview he would win by a "fairly comfortable margin."

"The turnout in runoffs is sometimes hard to predict, but we've been working hard, concentrating our efforts on getting out our vote," he said.

Roark said if nominated, he would try to end the GOP's long grip on the 10th District seat by emphasizing the likelihood that the House again will be controlled by Democrats in 1987.

"There will be a new speaker, new committee assignments," he said. "That would suggest to me and any thinking person that a Democrat would be in a better position to get results and be effective for our district."

Rhyne could not be reached for comment. In a recent newspaper interview, he and Roark took similar stands on national issues. Both called for tougher restrictions on imports, reducing the federal budget deficit by cutting Pentagon waste, and a greater emphasis on peaceful solutions to problems in Central America.

"I don't know of a thing I've lost in Central America," Rhyne said. "I'm tired of the Republican administration threatening war in Central America to protect four or five billionaire corporations."

Roark, 61, finished first in the May 6 primary with 14,834 votes or 39 percent. Rhyne, 50, placed second with 10,865 votes or 29 percent and called for a runoff. Three other candidates split the remaining 32 percent of the vote.

Runoffs for state legislative nominations were being held in the following districts:

— House District 1. Pete Thompson, who received 5,864 votes or 17 percent, faces Winifred Wood, who received 5,883 votes or 17 percent, for the Democratic nomination in the two-seat district. Incumbent Vernon James, D-Pasquotank, is the other nominee. There are no Republican candidates.

— House District 5. Incumbent C. Melvin Creecy, D-Northampton, faces Brewster Brown for the Democratic nomination. Creecy finished second in the three-man primary, getting 4,693 votes or 37 percent of Brown's 5,069 votes or 40 percent. There is no Republican candidate.

— House District 40. Craig Austin faces John Davis for the last of three Republican nominations in the three-seat district. Davis received 2,550 votes or 15 percent to Austin's 2,493 votes or 15 percent. The other two GOP nominees are incumbent Marshall Hall, of King, and Gene Wilson, of Boone.

There are Democratic candidates for all three seats.

— House District 62. William M. Freeman, a Fuquay-Varina town commissioner, faces Thomas S. Secret, a Cary real estate executive. Freeman got 42 percent of the vote in the primary in his first bid for a General Assembly seat. Secret got 35 percent in his first try for public office and called for the runoff. The winner will face Republican Paul Stam Jr. in November.

— Senate District 6. Former Rep.

Jeanne Fenner of Wilson is challenging Democratic incumbent R.L. Martin, D-Pitt, who received 7,564 votes or 48 percent to Ms. Fenner's 7,103 votes or 45 percent. The winner will face no GOP opposition.

— Senate District 14. J.K. Sherron faces Rep. Ray Sparrow for the third Democratic nomination in the three-seat district. Sherron received 16,429 votes or 16 percent to 15,227 votes or 15 percent for Sparrow. The incumbent, Wilma Woodard, ran unsuccessfully for the Democratic nomination for Congress in the 4th District.

The other two nominees are Sens. Joe Johnson, D-Wake, and Bill Staton, D-Lee. Republicans are seeking two of the three seats.

Insurance Settlements Up Sharply

RALEIGH (AP) — An analysis which shows a 200 percent rise in settlements of medical malpractice claims in North Carolina from 1980 to 1985 confirmed doctors' alarm over malpractice claims, an N.C. Medical Society official says.

But Insurance Commissioner Jim Long and a spokesman for a lawyers' group said it did not contain enough information to support conclusions.

James C. Wilson, a Winston-Salem actuary who analyzed the information for the N.C. Medical Malpractice Study Commission, said it showed big increases in two key measures of insurance company losses: the number of claims filed and the average settlement or award paid on claims.

"That's a double whammy in increases," Wilson said in an interview.

"The two measurements are key elements in measuring losses for insurance companies," Wilson said. "It's bad enough when either one increases, but when both increase, it really ruins the insurance principle."

The statistics showed that the average amount of money paid to close a medical malpractice claim filed against North Carolina doctors rose by more than 200 percent between 1980 and 1985.

The number of new claims reported against the state's two major medical malpractice insurers increased by 163 percent, and the number of insurance awards actually won by malpractice plaintiffs on old claims grew by 142 percent, according to the statistics.

"That's consistent with what we have been saying," George E. Moore, executive director for the N.C. Medical society, said in an interview.

Wilson's report was based on information filed by Medical Mutual and St. Paul with the N.C. Insurance Department. But Wilson added that his report had limited value because different insurance companies have had their own ways of reporting claims.

Long has endorsed bills, expected to be introduced in the General Assembly session that convenes Thursday, that would require insurance companies to report more information and would give his department more staff members to analyze that data.

Short-Circuit Sets Off Fire At Hotel

WILMINGTON (AP) — An electrical short-circuit started a fire which charred the utility rooms on five floors, ruined a 220-volt power trunk line at a Wilmington hotel Monday morning and forced 200 guests to leave their rooms.

No one was injured. Guests were transferred from the Wilmington Hilton to the Holiday Inn and the Quality Inn Hotel. All 180 rooms at the Hilton had been full Sunday night.

"The alarms worked, and they blew us right out of the sack," said Frederick Faltin, a statistician from Schenectady, N.Y. "We all sort of stood around and looked at each other and decided we should leave."

Hotel employees pounded on doors and shouted for guests to evacuate shortly after the electrical fire set off fire alarms at 11:56 p.m. John Young of Chapel Hill said everyone got dressed and walked out calmly.

"The closest thing approaching tension was when the 'saviors' came and started banging on the doors with such ferocity," Young said. "The only indication of anything was the flashing lights and the sound of arcing."

Broyhill Seeks Support With Eastern N.C. Tour

WILLIAMSTON, N.C. (AP) — Jim Broyhill took his Republican Senate campaign to eastern North Carolina, asking backers of his primary opponent to "join hands with him."

Former major league pitcher Gaylord Perry, a peanut farmer who dabbles in conservative Republican politics, was among the guests at a campaign breakfast Monday. Broyhill is wooing him and others like him who supported David Funderburk.

"I have no problem supporting him," Perry said in an interview after a breakfast of sausage, bacon and eggs at Williamston's Holiday Inn. "I'd like him to be more conservative. But he is a great deal more conservative than the candidate he is opposing."

Broyhill, a 24-year veteran of Congress, said it was too early to gauge how successful he has been in courting Funderburk supporters.

"We just started," Broyhill said after a luncheon Monday at the Ahoskie Inn in Hertford County. "We are doing everything we can to get their support, and it looks good to us. I feel comfortable about it. . . . Senator (Jesse) Helms and Senator (John) East have both been very vocal in their support on several occasions."

Broyhill on Monday repeatedly invoked the names of President Reagan and Helms. He told listeners in Williamston, Windsor, Ahoskie, Winton, Gatesville and Edenton that it was important for Republicans to retain control of the Senate so Reagan's policies can succeed and Helms can maintain his influence as chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee.

"Spread the word that Jim Broyhill is the conservative choice in 1986," Broyhill said in Ahoskie.

During the primary campaign, Funderburk and his strategists repeatedly charged that Broyhill — as leader of the traditional, business-oriented Republicanism of Western North Carolina — would be unable to attract New Right support and would lose to Democrat Terry Sanford in the fall.

Registered Democrats outnumber Republicans 2.6-to-1 in North Carolina.

During the GOP primary, Funderburk's television commercials repeatedly attacked Broyhill's conservative credentials. The ads portrayed Broyhill as a political moderate who failed to toe the conservative line on such issues as abortion, the Martin Luther King Jr. federal holiday and national defense.

N.C. Baptists May Carry Conservatives Into Power

By The Associated Press

Conservatives are within their goal of controlling the 14.5-million member Southern Baptist Convention, and a New York minister says it appears they will reach that goal with the help of North Carolina conservatives.

"We needed a way to document the movement to see if they were achieving what they set out to do," said the Rev. Lawrence B. Coleman, a New York minister who ranks Baptists according to their beliefs.

"It was a way of seeing 'Is this happening or isn't it,' and the data I have says it is."

Coleman estimates that many boards are 40 percent fundamentalist. The most conservative members, he said, come from North Carolina.

Coleman, a moderate who grew up attending First Baptist Church in Asheville assigns each new trustee a ranking based on the person's theology, support for denominational programs, acceptance of others' points of view and willingness to take a stand. Hard-line conservatives are zero to three, those in the uncommitted middle are four to six, and moderates range from seven to 10.

"North Carolina, over the last seven years, hasn't had anyone go on a board higher than a number three," Coleman said. "The most right-wing people come out of North Carolina in the appointive process."

Coleman cited C. Mark Corts, pastor of the Calvary Baptist Church in Winston-Salem and a member of the convention's Foreign Mission Board whom Coleman rates a three; U.S. District Attorney Samuel T. Curran, who is on the convention's Joint Committee on Public Affairs, rated a one; and a nominee to the Southeastern seminary board, W. Dade Sherman, pastor of the Benton Heights Baptist Church in Monroe, also a one.

He offered two reasons: Conservatives want to punish the moderate network that has resisted their takeover attempts, and nominees come from the Rev. Robert M. Tenery, a Morganton minister whom Coleman describes as "very right-wing."

Tenery disagrees. "The moderates are paranoid about that," said Tenery, when asked whether he told conservative leaders which North Carolinians to appoint to boards. "I don't name them."

Tenery agrees with Coleman's evaluation of current appointments as considerably different from those in years past. But he approves of the changes, saying they've allowed smaller churches to participate more fully.

"Before, there was a feudal system of certain prestigious churches and all the assignments went to them," he said. "For the most part, the back of feudalism has been broken at the Southern Baptist Convention level."

Coleman ranks Tenery, who sits on the Sunday School Board, as a one. The two men are on opposite ends of the spectrum, but their descriptions of the conservatives' impact dovetail. Both say conservatives are just waiting to gain majorities on the boards. Then they'll start pushing their programs in earnest.

"They won't push an issue and make it nasty if they can't win," Coleman said. "But as soon as the numbers change, the issues are going to fly."

"We're not going to be bashful about asking people if they believe in the inerrancy of Scripture," said Tenery, referring to the conservatives' belief in an errorless Bible. "And if people don't believe in inerrancy at the Sunday School Board, I'm going to vote against them."

DOE Halts Payments To Shaw

RALEIGH (AP) — The U.S. Department of Education has halted payment to Shaw University on all student aid and other programs controlled by the department, officials said Monday.

The cutoff in new funding was ordered May 9, shortly after the Internal Revenue Service placed the first of two liens against Shaw for $740,000 the university owes in taxes withheld from employee paychecks since October 1985, an Education Department official said Monday.

"They have been cut off, period — all programs," said Robert E. Jamroz, special assistant to the assistant secretary for postsecondary education.

Shaw has an annual budget of about $9 million. It has received more than $6 million from the Department of Education in the past two years, most of it in the form of student aid. Education officials said at least 80 percent of the Shaw students last year received some form of student aid.

"I don't know how they could exist without federal funds," said Samuel J. Weaver, chief of the institutional receivables branch in the department's office of postsecondary education. But he said department officials hoped to work out a compromise to allow the university to continue.

"We're not in the business of putting postsecondary institutions out of business," Weaver said.

Last month, Shaw was denied $300,000 due it under various federal programs controlled by the Education Department. The department is considering a request by Stanley H. Smith, Shaw's president, to consider the $300,000 as payment toward the university's debt.

Smith has refused to comment on the university's financial problems and did not return a reporter's phone calls Monday.

agreed to move toward restructuring the county's method of electing commissioners.

Since that meeting the U.S. Justice Department has questioned why a 1967 law adding a sixth seat to the board giving Greenville township an additional representative was not reviewed for compliance with the 1965 Voting Rights Act. The county board has hired a Raleigh lawyer to handle Justice Department preclearance of the 1967 law and to serve as an adviser as the board moves toward a new method of electing members.

lighted sign for the site, and said the Farmers Market Association has donated $600 to finance a brick front for the metal farmers market building.

The county has provided a 5-acre tract of land for the market and appropriated $15,000 toward construction. The state has provided $72,500 in preliminary design and construction money.

In other matters, Assistant County Manager John Bulow reported that the county has been notified by its general liability insurance carrier that its liability coverage will not be renewed. It is set to expire July 1.

Commissioners agreed to ask the carrier to extend the coverage for 60 days after Bulow said the N.C. Association of County Commissioners' self-risk pool for general liability coverage might be able to provide coverage within a short time after the expiration of the present county policy.

YMCA, annual individual and family fees would be:

•Youth under 15, $28.50; youth 16-18, $41.25; student, $90; individual adult, $115.50; husband-wife, $152.00; family, $180, and senior citizen, $59.00

While conducting the feasibility study, members of the study group contacted the heads of 11 businesses, mostly in the industrial park area but also including Pitt County Hospital.

Presenters said most companies were enthusiastic about the potential improvement in recreational and therapeutic programs the facility would provide. They indicated the degree of enthusiasm varied, but that all the businesses were interested in keeping in contact about establishing some form of corporate membership plan.

Estimates given in the feasibility study indicate a first-year amount of about $65,000 revenue from corporate memberships. That amount, combined with an estimated $63,000 in individual and family membership fees, the annual $10,000 ECVC contribution, and miscellaneous fees for the rental of the auditorium, gives an estimated income under city operation of $140,000 yearly.

Estimated expenses for operation of the facility for a one-year initial year period is $129,000. Of that total, the biggest items would be $41,000 for utilities and $74,000 for the payroll.

The suggested staff of employees to operate the facility is: executive director, $18,000; program director, $16,000; secretary, $15,000; lifeguards and aerobics personnel, $20,000, and maintenance personnel, $5,000.

One unresolved factor is that of whether the city, in the event it did contract for operation of the facility, would be authorized to further contract its operation to a private firm. Since funds for construction of the facility were provided from federal, state and local sources, a determination on that point would have to be made.

One factor emphasized by the group conducting the study is that if the city agrees to operate the facility, success will hinge to a great extent on taking an entrepreneur approach. Study members emphasize that the service would have to be advertised and promoted if it is to be successful.

In general, City Council members expressed interest in the project, but cautioned it could not become a situation where taxpayer's money would have to support it.

The committee of the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department responsible for analyzing the feasibility findings will now work on a recommendation to propose to the City Council. It is estimated that it will be a couple of months or longer before the council will have sufficient information to arrive at a yes or no conclusion to the operation proposal offered by ECVC.

merger plan, saying the current at-large method of electing the school board discriminates against blacks.

Officials would not release the proposed changes until agreed upon by both school officials and group members.

In an executive session Monday, members of the Greenville Board of Education members were briefed by school board lawyers on the changes. Pending the results of the meeting with the civil rights group today, members of the Pitt County Board of Education are scheduled to discuss the changes at a meeting late today.

The Civil Rights Act of 1965 requires Justice Department approval when changes in election method or board structure are made. In an official review of election changes, the U.S. Justice Department rejected the current merger legislation, saying the method of electing the board members discriminates against blacks.

In January 1985 the Concerned Citizens for Justice objected to the lack of black representation on the consolidated board — only one member was black — and asked the Justice Department to investigate alleged discrimination and illegal operation by the board.

In an attempt to improve black representation, three additional black members were appointed to the consolidated board in July 1985. The Concerned Citizens filed a lawsuit against the consolidated board in December 1985, asking that it not operate until the Justice Department approved the board structure. In May 1986 the Justice Department rejected the board's structure and method of election.

Bulow, who said the premium for the present policy — a packaged general liability and property policy — is $21,972 a year. He noted that one insurance carrier said that in a "worst case senerio," the county would pay as much as $50,000 for general liability alone from a private company.

In another insurance matter, commissioners appropriated $2,500 to pay for liability insurance coverage for members of the board of the Pitt Area Transit System after representatives of PATS reported the lack of coverage would force board members to resign. PATS provides transportation for clients of a number of human service agencies in the county.

County Engineer Phil Dickerson, reporting on a visit to Mecklenburg County's solid waste operation, told the board that Mecklenburg County recently approved bids totaling $20 million for a co-generation facility designed to burn solid waste. A similar facility in New Hanover County cost $13.5 million several years ago, he said.

Dickerson also said Mecklenburg County "is doing a lot of recycling." He said at present it costs Mecklenburg about $50 per ton to recycle waste while the cost to bury the solid waste is about $15 per ton.

The board, at the request of R.B. Nelson of Robersonville, approved a resolution (subject to the adoption of a similar resolution by the town of Farmville) to extend N.C. 121 from the intersection of U.S. 258, U.S. 264 alternate and N.C. 121 (the intersection of Main and Wilson streets) in Farmville, westward along U.S. 264A (Wilson Street) and U.S. 264 to the intersection of U.S. 264 and N.C. 91 in Greene County.

Nelson told commissioners that when the four-lane U.S. 264 is completed, the present two-lane U.S. 264 will become U.S. 264A and the present U.S. 264A route through Farmville will be deleted.

A similar situation will exist in Greenville, Nelson said. He explained that the present U.S. 264 through Greenville will become U.S. 264A and said the present U.S. 264 Business route will lose its designation and become a secondary road.

Randy Doub, a member of the state Board of Transportation, said this morning "I don't know what the planning people have in mind" for the routes.

Speaking about the U.S. 264 Business route along Dickinson Avenue and 10th Street in Greenville, Doub acknowledged "it may become a secondary road" or may be "turned over to the city."

In other business Monday, commissioners reappointed Burney Tucker to a three-year term of the Social Services Board; Charles Waller to a three-year term on the ABC Board; Marty Goldfarb and W.C. Sanderson to terms on the Greenville Board of Adjustment; Leslie Turner and Earl D. Bruton to terms on the Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission; Herman Owens and Sam McLawhorn to the Grafton Planning and Zoning Commission; Almyra Watson, Jimmy Nelson and Linwood Gurganus to the Bethel Planning Board, and Ann Bellis to the Sedimentation Control Commission.

Phil Dickerson was also appointed to the Sedimentation Control Commission.

Dr. Harriett Wooten and Dave McRae were reappointed members of the Mental Health area board, while Dr. James Markello and Bill Hooper were appointed to four-year terms on the board.

The board scheduled a budget workshop meeting for 9 a.m. Thursday.

and Allen Olmstead from New Bern were called in. They brought tranquilizer guns with doses large enough for bears.

Finally in the yard of Robert McGinty on Lakewood Drive, the bear went up a tree. His pursuers placed a fireman's net underneath and a tranquilizing projectile was fired.

"I don't think it hit him squarely," Dunn said. "It just made him mad," Barrett said.

The bear came down the tree, jumped a fence and disappeared.

"I hope he won't be seen around Greenville today," Dunn said. "If not, there's pretty good hope he's out in the open on his own again.

"You can't blame people for getting alarmed when they see a bear this size in a populated area, but the best thing they could do is treat it like a squirrel — let him go his way. He's just as afraid of people as any squirrel. A young healthy bear like this one won't do any harm if he's not cornered; he won't even kill other healthy animals in the wild. Bears live mostly on leaves and berries and carrion — or they might finish off an animal that's sick or injured.

"All that bear yesterday was interested in was finding a mate. That's why he was traveling in territory where he's not usually found," Dunn said.

"There was a tagged bear last year let loose in Dare County. The next day he was alarming people in an incident similar to this one in Washington Park outside Washington, N.C., and the next day a man shot him in the Cove City area below Kinston."

A bear — male or female — looking for a mate can range 100 miles in one night, Dunn said. April through June is mating time.

"If we'd successfully tranquilized this one, we'd have taken him to Croatan National Forest," Dunn said. "But there's no guarantee he'd have stayed there long.

"Bears are to be pitied. Their world is caving in on them. One year they have a forest to roam in, the next spring they wake up and the forest is a housing development. They need big woods and so much of our big woods are being cut."

Barrett said he's only encountered one other bear inside Greenville in the 12 years he's been an animal control officer. "Six or seven years ago over in the Red Banks Road area, we tranquilized one and took him out to the Allpines area north of Greenville. Haven't heard from him since," he said.

"Beyond Fear," a three-part American Red Cross film documentary on AIDS, is available for loan from the Red Cross office in Greenville, according to Ruth Taylor, executive secretary.

Mrs. Taylor said any or all of the film parts are available in videocassettes and the office also has a recorder it will loan. A Red Cross volunteer will show the 59-minute film to a group upon request, she said.

Actor Robert Vaughn narrates the film which premiered March 21 at the Kennedy Center in Washington.

Yanks Turn Win Into A Defeat

By JIM DONAGHY
AP Sports Writer

It was the kind of game teams involved in pennant races later in the season can usually recall.

For the New York Yankees Monday night's 8-7 defeat to California will evoke depressing thoughts; for the Angels, exaltation.

The Yankees clawed their way back from a 6-1 hole to take a 7-6 lead in the top of the ninth inning. Trailing 6-5, Mike Pagliarulo led off with his 11th homer and Rickey Henderson's run-scoring double gave the Yankees the lead.

New York brought on relief ace Dave Righetti and his 12 saves to pitch the ninth, hoping to stay within 2½ games of first-place Boston in the American League East.

But Righetti walked Dick Schofield to lead off the Angels' ninth. Schofield advanced to third when second baseman Willie Randolph threw wildly to first on Bob Boone's grounder up the middle for a two-base error.

Pinch-hitter George Hendrick was intentionally walked to load the bases and Schofield scored the tying run on pinch-hitter Rick Burleson's sacrifice fly to left. Wally Joyner walked to reload the bases and Brian Downing followed with a sharp single to left, scoring Doug DeCinces, who was pinch running for Boone.

"It could have been a very demoralizing loss," Downing said, referring to the Yankees' comeback. "But we pulled it out and don't have to worry about it."

The Angels took a 6-1 lead in the second inning on Schofield's two-run single and four unearned runs set up on errors by Randolph and shortstop Bobby Meacham.

"It was a great game for us," Joyner said. "We would have taken it 6-1 if they would have given it to us. However, the Yankees are a great team and they showed it by battling back. When you capitalize on mistakes it shows how good a ballclub really is."

The victory lifted the Angels into second place in the AL West, one-half game behind Texas.

Elsewhere in the American League, it was Boston 3, Cleveland 1; Toronto 3, Minnesota 1; Texas 1, Chicago 0; and Milwaukee 7, Kansas City 2 and Oakland 7, Detroit 1.

Trailing 6-1, Dave Winfield singled with one out in the seventh off Jim Slaton. Winfield took third on Dan Pasqua's single before scoring on Pagliarulo's sacrifice fly.

Ken Griffey led off the eighth with a pinch-hit homer, his fifth, and after Henderson singled Slaton gave way to T.R. Bryden.

Henderson took second on a wild pitch and one out later Don Mattingly walked. Mike Easler followed with a double to score Henderson making it 6-4 and Mattingly scored the Yankees' fifth run on Winfield's sacrifice fly.

Chuck Finley, 1-0, picked up his first major-league victory by retiring Mattingly for the last out of the ninth with Henderson on second.

"I really just wanted to throw strikes and get a ground ball in that situation. Usually I have good success against lefties. This one just happened to be the American League MVP."

Blue Jays 3, Twins 1
Jim Clancy pitched no-hit ball for six innings and George Bell hit a two-run homer in the first to lead Toronto over visiting Minnesota.

Kent Hrbek led off the seventh with a sharp line drive to right field to spoil Clancy's no-hit bid.

Clancy, 6-3, walked two and struck out six. He was removed with none out in the ninth inning after yielding singles to Roy Smalley and Hrbek. Tom Henke came on to record his fifth save, allowing a sacrifice fly by Tom Brunansky.

"It was just the seventh so I wasn't really thinking about it (the no-hitter)," Clancy said. "It isn't like going into the ninth."

In 1982 Clancy carried a perfect game into the ninth inning against Minnesota and had it dashed by Randy Bush's leadoff broken-bat single.

Bert Blyleven, 4-5, who was 0-4 against Toronto in 1985, pitched eight innings, allowing seven hits, walking two and striking out seven.

Red Sox 3, Indians 1
Jim Rice knocked in two runs and reliever Steve Crawford got starter Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd, 7-3, out of a seventh-inning jam as streaking Boston beat visiting Cleveland.

The Red Sox scored single runs in the first, second and seventh innings off Neal Heaton, 2-5, en route to their third straight victory and 13th triumph in 15 games.

"This was the best outing I've had all year," Crawford said after collecting only his second save in 14 relief appearances. "I felt great. I stayed within myself."

Crawford, who led the Red Sox with 12 saves in 1985, allowed just a two-out single in the ninth in 2-1-3 innings.

Boston's bullpen has recorded 14 saves in 18 save opportunities.

Rangers 1, White Sox 0
Charlie Hough hurled a three-hitter over 8 1-3 innings and Pete O'Brien doubled in a run in the first as visiting Texas defeated Chicago.

The victory kept Texas one-half game ahead of California in the AL West.

Mitch Williams relieved Hough and got the second out of the ninth before walking Jerry Hairston. Greg Harris relieved Williams and recorded the final out for his eighth save.

"Charlie had the best knuckleball he's had all season," Texas Manager Bobby Valentine said. "But I had a left-hander who gets people out and a right-hander who gets people out. It turned out all right."

The first hit off Hough, 4-2, was a leadoff single by Wayne Tolleson in the third inning. Hairston doubled in the seventh, and Harold Baines singled with one out in the ninth.

Brewers 7, Royals 2
Teddy Higuera scattered nine hits and recorded his sixth complete game as host Milwaukee snapped Kansas City's four-game winning streak.

Higuera, 7-4, walked three and fanned five.

"I'm not ready to put him (Higuera) in the Hall of Fame, but he's one of the top pitchers in the league," Kansas City Manager Dick Howser said.

"He's the kind of pitcher who gets better as the game goes on," Milwaukee Manager George Bamberger said. "He's a good finisher-upper."

With Milwaukee leading 4-2 in the fifth inning, Rick Manning hit a two-run homer. Manning entered the game in the top of the inning after Rob Deer bruised his left foot while swinging at a pitch in the third.

A's 7, Tigers 1
Three Detroit pitchers walked seven Oakland batters in the first inning and Dave Kingman added a two-run double as the A's sent the visiting Tigers to their fourth straight defeat.

The seven walks allowed by Detroit pitchers in one inning was four under the major-league record, 11 by the New York Yankees in a 1949 game.

The Tigers had Kirk Gibson in their lineup for the first time since April 22. Gibson, who was on the disabled list because of an ankle injury, was 0-for-4 as designated hitter, striking out three times.

Old Timers End Youthful Hopes

PARIS (AP) — So much for the youth movement.

Experience took over Monday at the French Open, a tournament that in its first week had started to take on aspects of a tennis kindergarten.

Chris Evert Lloyd and Hana Mandlikova, two old-timers, became the first players into the semifinals when they turned back strong challenges from two teen-agers.

Lloyd, the 31-year-old defending champion, beat 18-year-old Carling Bassett 5-7, 6-2, 6-1. Mandlikova, the 1981 winner and a semifinalist here four other times, defeated 16-year-old Steffi Graf 2-6, 7-6, 6-1, ending Graf's winning streak at 23 matches.

Lloyd and Mandlikova, 24, play their semifinal Thursday, with the American trying to end a two-match losing streak against the Czechoslovak. For their careers, Lloyd leads in head-to-head meetings 18-5.

In the men's field, No. 8 Henri Leconte, 22, downed 18-year-old Horacio de la Pena 6-1, 6-2, 6-1.

The only teen-ager to advance was Wimbledon champion Boris Becker, and the 18-year-old third seed from West Germany almost didn't make it, either.

Down one set and a service break, Becker rallied to beat Emilio Sanchez of Spain, the 14th seed who celebrated his 21st birthday last week, 6-0, 4-6, 4-6, 6-4, 6-2.

The youngest of the youngsters was to try to stem the tide of old age today.

Mary Joe Fernandez, the 14-year-old from Miami, Fla., was to play sixth-seeded Helena Sukova of Czechoslovakia for a women's semifinal berth.

The remaining women's quarterfinal pitted top-seeded Martina Navratilova of the United States against Kathy Rinaldi, a 19-year-old American who — at 14 years, 1 month — was the youngest quarterfinalist ever at the French Open, in 1981.

The men's quarterfinals ended with the lone American left, 13th-seeded Joahn Kriek, meeting 33-year-old Guillermo Vilas and top-seeded Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia against Ecuador's Andres Gomez, seeded ninth.

Graf was serving for the match at 5-4 in the second set when she sent a forehand long. Mandlikova forced a tiebreaker, won it to tie the match and breezed through the final set, breaking Graf twice in the first three games and winning eight of the last 10 points.

"I think she was a little down after she lost the second set," Mandlikova said. "In the third set, I felt I had an advantage over her. When I was her age, for example, I didn't know how important winning the first game of the third set was."

Graf, the winner of four consecutive tournaments leading up to Paris, had not lost a set here and was in great shape until she missed the forehand. Then, shots she had reached suddenly eluded her racket, and Mandlikova started making shots she previously had missed.

"I think I lost it," Graf said. "I had my chances. After the match point she started playing better."

Lloyd and Bassett went through an hour-long first set on center court that the Canadian said drained her of energy.

"I put everything I had into the first set and I was so tired," Bassett said. "My legs started to cramp and I couldn't play some of the points, and she started to play a little better."

Lloyd, in the semifinals of a Grand Slam tournament for the 39th time, said it was hard to get going against Bassett in the day's first match.

"At 11 o'clock, I'm not at my best," Lloyd said. "I didn't play my best in the first set. I was nervous and tentative. After I went up 2-0 in the second set I knew I'd win the match. ... In the semifinal, I can't afford to start out slowly."

Bassett was in a tournament for the first time since her father, John, died of cancer last month. Lloyd said that made the 18-year-old's achievement in the French Open even more impressive.

"It's been a rough year for her,"

Lloyd said. "She hasn't played a lot of matches. I think she should be happy. She made the quarterfinals. I think she did great."

Becker said a brief rain delay midway through the fourth set helped him.

"I tried to pump myself up during the break," he said. "Usually I have a good start after an interruption. I'm pumped up and ready to play."

Pumped up he was. He won two games after the rain stopped to even the match at 2-2 and swept to a 5-1 lead in the final set before serving out the match at love. A forehand volley that Sanchez could do nothing with sealed the victory.

In the quarterfinals, Becker will meet unseeded Mikal Pernfors, a Swede who wears red, white and blue tennis uniforms and won two NCAA championships at the University of Georgia. He beat 11th-seeded Martin Jaite of Argentina 6-1, 3-6, 7-6, 7-6.

Pernfors is the lone Swedish player left in the men's draw, which started with Swedes holding four of the top seven seedings. Asked how it felt to be the last of the Scandinavians still around, he replied: "Lonely, but good."

Becker said he had played Pernfors once before and the Swede took him to match point five times.

"On paper I am seeded No. 3 and Pernfors is unseeded," Becker said. "However, anybody who makes the quarterfinals at the French Open has to be very good."

Leconte will play next against another unseeded player, Andrei Chesnokov of the Soviet Union, who earlier eliminated defending champion Mats Wilander of Sweden.

A strong baseline player with great stamina, Chesnokov advanced to the quarterfinals with a 6-4, 6-1, 4-6, 6-1 victory over Mexico's Francisco Maciel.

Pitt-Rocky Mt. Reset Tonight

Pitt County's American Legion baseball team had its game with Rocky Mount rained out Monday night at Harrington Field.

Cardinals Capture Third In Row

By JOHN NELSON
AP Baseball Writer

John Tudor said the St. Louis Cardinals were just returning to business as usual. It was anything but usual for the Houston Astros' pitching staff.

The Cardinals got 14 hits and 10 walks — both figures representing low-water marks for the Houston pitching staff this season — in a 9-2 victory Monday night. It was St. Louis' third straight triumph.

"Basically, we're starting to do the things we did last year to win," said Tudor, who pitched a four-hitter. "We're getting our running game going, and we're getting our bunts down."

Ozzie Smith led the Cardinals offensively, equalling his career high with four hits and added two RBI and a pair of stolen bases. Mike Madden lasted only 5 1-3 innings for Houston, giving up four runs on nine hits, three walks and three wild pitches.

In the rest of the National League, it was New York 11, San Diego 2; Philadelphia 13, Los Angeles 2; Chicago 8, Cincinnati 6, and Pittsburgh 9, Atlanta 2.

Every starting player in the Cardinals' lineup, including Tudor, scored one run. St. Louis broke the game open with three runs after two were out in the eighth inning. Smith had a two-run single in the inning.

Andy Van Slyke homered for St. Louis, and Glenn Davis and Kevin Bass homered for Houston.

Mets 11, Padres 2
George Foster hit two home runs, and Dwight Gooden pitched a four-hitter to help New York end a two-game losing streak by ripping San Diego. Gooden, 7-2, won his second in a row after a stretch of three starts during which he had two losses and a no-decision.

The only damage against Gooden came on Kevin McReynolds' seventh-inning solo homer and a sacrifice fly by Marvel Wynne.

Danny Heep also homered for the Mets. He scored three runs and drove in three more.

Phillies 13, Dodgers 2
Ron Roenicke had the first four-hit game of his career and homered as Philadelphia pounded out 21 hits to hand Los Angeles its third straight loss. The Dodgers, 1-6 on their current road trip, committed four errors and lead the league with 62.

Afterward, Dodgers Manager Tom Lasorda said he had called a special practice today for some players, but he would not say who they were.

John Russell added three RBI and Mike Schmidt had a two-run homer for the Phillies. Shane Rawley was the winning pitcher, pushing his career record against Los Angeles to 5-0.

Cubs 8, Reds 6
Ryne Sandberg hit a three-run homer, and visiting Chicago scored four runs each in the fourth and seventh innings to send Cincinnati to its third straight loss. Rick Sutcliffe allowed five hits in 6 2-3 innings to beat the Reds for the second time in a week.

Sandberg now has 10 hits in his last 16 at-bats, and during a seven-game hitting streak has three homers.

Buddy Bell and Nick Esasky homered for Cincinnati.

Pirates 9, Braves 2
R.J. Reynolds went 2-for-4 with a walk, two stolen bases, three runs scored and an RBI to help Pittsburgh right-hander Rick Reuschel win his seventh straight game over visiting Atlanta. Reuschel also had two hits and two RBI, while giving up three hits in 5 1-3 innings against the Braves, to whom he has not lost since April, 1979.

Reuschel had a bases-loaded single in the fourth inning, and the Pirates got help from two Atlanta errors to score three more in the fifth. Jim Morrison drove in two with a single.

Snow Hill Rips Kinston, 13-0

SNOW HILL — Anthony Jones tossed seven innings of no-hit baseball and Snow Hill bombarded Kinston, 13-0, in an American Legion baseball game Monday night.

The Snow Hill nine got outstanding pitching from Jones, who gave up only a ground-ruled double to Whit Whitley in the first inning as he went the first and walked two in the final two frames in relief.

Meanwhile, two Kinston pitchers had their problems, walking a total of 14 Snow Hill batters to help their cause along.

Snow Hill jumped into the lead in the first inning, scoring five times. With two outs, Calvin Brown, David Ward and Anthony Jones all drew walks, loading the bases. Gary Ginn then doubled to drive in Brown and Ward. Jamie Lang then followed with a three-run homer to give Snow Hill a quick 5-0 lead.

The remaining eight runs all came over in the fifth frame when Snow Hill drew six walks and had another batter hit by a pitch. There were only two hits in the inning, a double by Beamon and a single by Jones, each driving in two runs.

The win evened the Snow Hill record at 1-1 on the season. Snow Hill returns to action on Wednesday, hosting Rocky Mount.

Celtics, Rockets Ready To Go

HOUSTON (AP) — Larry Bird isn't worried about how Houston plans to defend him or which Rocket will be covering him. He's just worried about winning.

"I really don't care who guards me," Bird, the NBA's most valuable player the last three seasons, said. "If I get the same shots I got Sunday I'll be happy. Robert Reid is the least of my worries."

Bird scored 25 points, grabbed 15 rebounds and handed out 11 assists Sunday in the Rockets' 106-104 victory that narrowed the Celtics' lead to 2-1 in their best-of-seven championship series.

However, Houston guard Robert Reid guarded Bird in the second half and the Celtics star forward scored only six points in the second half as the Rockets rallied.

The Rockets will try to pull even in the series tonight before another vocal sellout crowd of 16,016 in The Summit.

The fifth game is scheduled here Thursday night with Games 6 and 7, if they are necessary, in Boston Garden where the Celtics lost just one game this season.

Despite the Rockets' pulsating comeback Sunday, Bird and his teammates weren't demoralized or impressed.

"This team doesn't need to talk about games like other teams," Bird said.

"We don't need team meetings or pep rallies. We just need to know what we have to do to win."

"The only thing I worry about is being behind three or four points with one second to go."

Houston outscored the Celtics 12-2 in the last three minutes Sunday and Bird had just one basket in the final four minutes.

"I'm sure they were pleased with themselves but they realize that today is another day," Bird said. "Now we know how well we can play. We knew yesterday (Sunday) was going to be their best game of the series."

But the Rockets claim the best is yet to come.

"We can still play a lot better," Reid, who is 6-foot-8, the same height as Bird, said. "We've got to be more mentally prepared for the third quarter and we've got to get over some of those shooting lulls."

Boston guard Dennis Johnson was a first-hand observer of Houston's comeback and he hopes he's seen the last of such efforts.

"I don't know if they can play any better, they hope they can and I hope they can't," Johnson said. "Those questions will be answered soon enough."

Johnson said Game 3 simply proved the Celtics are human.

"As much as I'd like to believe that we're invincible, we're not," Johnson said. "We've had partially bad games like that before and others when we've been hot. We just have to come back Tuesday and play our best."

Reid expects to draw more defensive duty against Bird and he plans to be ready. Reid said he picks up Bird farther from the basket than other opponents.

"If he goes to the other end and stands there, I'll go too and let them play four-on-four," Reid said.

Rodney McCray, the third-year forward who has started every game for the Rockets since mid-way through his rookie season, regularly draws the opposition's top shooter and also will be back as a protagonist.

"I'll just play the same type of defense I've always played, the kind I've played since college," McCray said.

Houston Coach Bill Fitch inserted

Allen Leavell at point guard and inserted Mitchell Wiggins into the lineup for Houston's fourth quarter surge and Wiggins rewarded his coach by getting the game-winning tip-in.

"The thing I have to do with the limited minutes that I get is to make the most of each minute I'm in there," Wiggins said. "I'm a hungry player. Coach has made me one of the hungriest players in the league."

Carew Announces Official Retirement

ANAHEIM HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Rod Carew's next formal baseball function may be his induction speech at the Hall of Fame now that his playing days are officially over.

"That's a long way off," Carew said Monday, shortly after he announced his retirement from baseball.

"I haven't started making speeches yet. But I never dreamed one day that I would come from Panama, get 3,000 hits, and the possibility of joining the great players in the Hall of Fame."

Carew, a winner of seven American League batting championships during a brilliant 19-year career, has been a player without a team since the end of the 1985 season. He had wanted to play one last season, but when the opportunity finally arose, he decided to retire.

"I started questioning myself whether to continue and finally said, 'Hey, I've had a heck of a career, don't have a lot left to prove, and I'm very happy that I brought enjoyment to a lot of fans,'" Carew said.

"My girls (three daughters) are getting older now and it's important for them to have both parents around. I think it's time for me to become a full-time father."

Carew's career had been in limbo since the California Angels decided after last season not to offer him a contract for 1986.

Carew wasn't seriously pursued by another club until recently. He finally was offered a contract by San Francisco Giants' President Al Rosen, but Carew decided the time had come for him to retire.

"I made the final decision last night," Carew said at his home Monday. "It wasn't tough."

Carew, 40, said that in the past few months he's found retirement to his liking.

"I'm having fun; for the first time in years, I'm having fun," he said. "Had they (the Giants) called me in the spring, when my mind was programmed for playing baseball, I am sure I would have signed."

Carew thus completed a 19-year major-league career with a .328 lifetime batting average and 3,053 hits, the 13th-highest total in baseball history. He played 12 years for the Minnesota Twins and seven more for the Angels.

Last Aug. 4, the left handed-hitting Carew became the 16th player in major-league history to reach the 3,000-hit milestone when he singled off Minnesota left-hander Frank Viola.

Carew finished the 1985 season with a .280 batting average, tops on the Angels, along with two home runs and 39 RBI. He was a member of the Angels' only two AL West championship teams, in 1979 and 1982.

Christopher Mark Bailey was 13th in the Senior 1-2-3 division race, which was a 25-mile event drawing about 35 riders.

The team's next outing will be in the North Carolina District Championship Road Race, a part of the State Games. It will be held in Raleigh on June 14 and covers a distance of over 100 miles.

Court Says Single-Franchise Cable Violates Free Speech

By JAMES H. RUBIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court has set the stage for future legal battles over the power of communities to grant exclusive cable television franchises.

Both sides in a dispute between the City of Los Angeles and a cable TV company found comfort in a preliminary ruling Monday by the high court dealing with the question of whether cable companies need government sanction to operate.

"This clearly is not the end of cable's quest for full recognition as a First Amendment medium," said James P. Mooney, president of the National Cable Television Association. "But in Supreme Court terms, it is a splendid beginning."

But Los Angeles Deputy City Attorney Edward J. Perez said the ruling is limited.

"It's a very narrow opinion which didn't lean one way or the other," he said. "It's positive from the city's point of view. And we're going to win at trial."

Perez said the justices "did not accept the broad, sweeping opinion" of a federal appeals court that held cable operators have a constitutional right to community access.

But the Supreme Court raised the possibility in its unanimous ruling that cities violate free-speech rights by granting exclusive cable TV franchises.

Justice William H. Rehnquist, writing for the court, hinted that cable TV operators may have constitutional rights more similar to publishers than to television and radio broadcasting companies.

The justices ordered further hearings before a federal judge to sort out the competing interests of city officials and cable companies.

"Cable television partakes of some of the aspects of speech and the communication of ideas as do the traditional enterprises of newspaper and book publishers, public speakers and pamphleteers," Rehnquist said.

"We do not think, however, that it is desirable to express any more detailed views on the proper resolution of the First Amendment question ... without a fuller development of the disputed issues in the case."

He added, "Where speech and conduct are joined in a single course of action, the First Amendment values must be balanced against competing societal interests."

Rehnquist did not spell out what standard should be used to determine whether a city's aesthetic or safety interests outweigh a cable operator's right of free expression.

Los Angeles officials said allowing cable TV to proliferate there would hurt the city's appearance because of additional wires strung from utility poles. They also said more franchises could force streets to be dug up to lay cable, creating safety hazards and inconvenience.

At stake is the right of a cable company to operate, a right granted newspapers and other publications. Past court rulings have established that no such right exists to run a television or radio station, and, therefore, they must be licensed. The content of programs is not at issue in the dispute.

The ruling upheld a decision by the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals which also ordered further hearings in the dispute.

Many cities award either one city-wide cable franchise or, like Los Angeles, a single franchise for each section of the city.

Los Angeles in 1982 awarded such a license for its south-central area to the one company that submitted a bid.

Preferred Communications Inc., which did not submit a bid, later sought a franchise for the same area and sued the city when its application was denied.

Preferred Communications attorney Harold Farrow said from Oakland, Calif., that city officials would be discouraged from extracting political contributions and favors from cable companies if the Supreme Court bans exclusive cable franchises.

Curtain Goes Up On Senate's TV

By MIKE ROBINSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — With a puff of pancake makeup and a peal of classical piano, the Senate launched itself into the television era, but veteran Capitol Hill watchers say drastic changes are as unlikely as ever.

"Today, the United States Senate catches up with the 20th century," Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan., said Monday at the start of a six-week experiment in making floor action available to networks.

Few doubt it will become permanent.

As the curtain went up, lawmakers betrayed a touch of stage fright. Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, playfully dusted his bald spot with a puff of pancake makeup, and Sen. Robert Stafford, R-Vt., declared with mock solemnity: "The bags under the bags under my eyes will just have to stay."

The producers of the broadcast — the Cable-Satellite Public Affairs Network — added an innovative touch designed to combat the bore factor, which is magnified by the Senate's numerous quorum calls.

Theoretically designed to bring more lawmakers to the floor, the tedious roll calls are an oft-used tactic to stall for time. The network broadcast classical piano music during the delays.

"Sometimes it seems like nothing is happening on the Senate floor," explained Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif. "And, in fact, nothing is happening."

Gavel-to-gavel action on a permanent basis on C-SPAN, which has carried House sessions since 1979, is expected even by such die-hard critics of television in the Senate as Sen. J. Bennett Johnston, D-La.

Johnston says bringing "the intrusive eye of television" into the ornate, marbled Senate chamber will make it hard to stage filibusters to slow harmful bills driven by "the passions of politics."

Minority Leader Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., counters that it can only be healthy to "extend the galleries from ocean to ocean and beyond."

Expert Senate watchers scoff at the notion that television will bring radical alterations to the traditionally slow-to-change Senate.

For one thing, they say, the filibuster will not die out. The most that will happen, they say, is that the marathon, Senate-floor talk sessions will be retailed to please home viewers.

That could be all for the best. The days when senators appeared on the floor in bathrobe and slippers at 3 a.m. are long gone — along with news photos of them snoozing shoeless on cloakroom couches.

Today's filibusters retain the droning of yesteryear without the color.

"Senators are going to have to speak passionately and forcefully," says George Washington University political scientist Michael Robinson. "There'll be no more filler filibusters where senators just ramble on."

Contrary to fears expressed by some lawmakers, television viewers will understand what goes on, according to Stephen Hess, a senior fellow at the Brookings Institution.

"Senate proceedings are not really as incomprehensible or as boring as we think," says Hess, who watched every Senate session for a year as part of research for "The Ultimate Insiders," a book about news media coverage.

The experts also doubt that the advent of television in the chamber means senators who lack the bronzed and sleek image of a television star will fall to more vigorous-looking election opponents. They say incumbents can get hurt by TV only if it shows them sharply at odds with the home folks on the issues.

Nevertheless, lawmakers were taking no chances.

"I imagine that Capitol Hill sales of hair spray, styling mousses, Grecian Formula and Ultra-Bright toothpaste have reached an all-time high," said Sen. Howell Heflin, D-Ala.

Few Americans are expected to be glued to their sets for entire C-SPAN broadcasts. But other networks plan to pick up segments of Senate sessions.

Television networks concentrate most of their coverage on legislative leaders and potential candidates for president.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, JUNE 4, 1986

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is a day when you best make out well by keeping your thoughts and activities centered on the strictly practical whether in financial, property or other interests.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Study your assets very carefully and know how to add or improve them in some way. Double-check any advice you get.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Enhance your appearance and then take health treatments you may need, also. Advice from a friend is misleading.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) There is a myriad of tasks for you to complete, so get at them early.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Try not to force others to do your will, otherwise you could easily love valuable help they could give.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Make sure you are wise, but secretive, in handling outside matters. Avoid bigwigs who are in an irate mood.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You want to make radical changes, but are not thinking straight right now, so take it easy. A newcomer is self-seeking.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You have made practical promises to others and should carry through with them without further ado. Be patient with your mate.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't have any talks with a friend concerning finances or a big argument could ensue. Avoid costly amusements.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You may not understand why your family doesn't agree with your ideas, but age has something to do with it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Be more willing to compromise with associates in case they oppose you in a private arrangement or affair.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) A friend and an advisor may not agree and could pose many a problem for you and your mate. Separate business and home life.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Don't involve a friend in a squabble between you and a higher-up, or there can be real trouble. Be conscientious.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will have all kinds of ability at being of service to others and great compassion for them. However, just when duties are to be commenced, your progeny will get a desire to travel. Teach to carry through with promises made.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

A Benny Postage Stamp

At the urging of the Citizens Stamp Advisory Committee, the U.S. Postal Service will vote this month on whether or not to recommend the issuance of a stamp honoring comedian Jack Benny. With this in mind, students at the Pennsylvania School of the Arts came up with a number of designs for the stamp, including this one by John Derr. In 1983, the U.S. Postal Service's 193,956 vehicles helped deliver 119 billion letters and packages, more than 500 per person.

DO YOU KNOW — What age did Jack Benny always publicly declare?

MONDAY'S ANSWER — The Battle of Wounded Knee in South Dakota ended the Sioux uprising of 1890.

Shuttle Panel Wants More Voice For Astronauts And Contractors

WASHINGTON (AP) — The presidential Challenger commission is asking for new NASA procedures to give astronauts and contractors a stronger voice in launch decisions, sources say, to ensure that the space agency's bureaucracy never again tramples safety objections like those voiced in January.

The commission's 225-page report, sent to the printer Monday, will be presented to President Reagan this weekend. It blisters the National Aeronautics and Space Administration for its management practices and instructs the agency to put safety requirements into every phase of flight operations.

"They're going to recommend that contractors and astronauts be a party to the decision to launch," said one of three sources, who spoke only on condition of anonymity.

One widely expected recommendation — for an independent safety board with enough power to stop a launch — was not adopted. "It was considered to be a stupid idea," said a source close to the commission.

But another commission source said, "There is going to be discussion in the report on setting up a safety organization. That organization could get into participating in the launch decision."

The 13-member commission, headed by former Secretary of State William P. Rogers, held nine days of hearings and its members scattered over the country to investigate the Jan. 28 explosion that destroyed the ship and its crew.

The report sets basic criteria for redesigning the joints on the shuttle's booster rockets, which are blamed for the accident. But it leaves specifics to designers from NASA and Morton Thiokol Inc., which builds the rockets. The commission recommends outside experts supervise the redesign, and NASA has agreed.

One source said the report takes the view: "Let them get organized properly and let them write their own ground rules and live with them."

The commission blames the explosion on a faulty seal joining the lower two segments of the shuttle's right booster rocket. Flame darted from the joint, triggering a swift chain of events that ended with the $1.9 billion vehicle breaking up in a fireball.

The commission members have sharp words for the process by which the space agency adopted an increasingly ambitious flight schedule even as NASA engineers tracked — but never solved — years of problems with the critical booster rocket joints. On 10 of 24 flights, hot gas penetrated one or another of the joints and at least one of the two O-ring seals inside it.

Because of this history, the commission says the joint redesign should be approved by outside experts from the National Research Council, a group of academic and industry research scientists who are members of the National Academy of Sciences.

In addition, the commission will demand full-scale tests of the new design before manned flight is resumed.

During the hearings, Commissioner Joseph Sutter had said he would demand full-scale tests and not "dinky" tests on 10-inch scale models. His view was seconded by Air Force Maj. Gen. Donald J. Kutyna, another panel member.

"There is no reason why you couldn't build two (booster rockets), ship them like a normal one, hook it on to one of the external tanks, put a small computer in there to guide them two to three minutes, shoot them out into the Atlantic just like the regular launched shuttle," said a commission source. "You could look at the joints to see whether they really held up. It would be a hell of a test. If I were an astronaut, I'd sure feel good after the test to see that it worked."

One recommendation already is being implemented by NASA — reviewing the hundreds of "criticality one" items whose failure could destroy the vehicle and crew. One source said the panel will point out that in addition to the joints "other things need a lot of attention."

Soviets Offer To Cut Back On Nuclear Weapons

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union has offered to reduce its long-range nuclear weapons, despite the chill in superpower relations and a decision by President Reagan to abandon U.S. adherence to the 1979 SALT II treaty.

The informal proposal, put to U.S. negotiators in private discussions at the deadlocked Geneva talks, is under study within the Reagan administration, but the initial reaction is cool.

According to a U.S. official who spoke Monday only on condition of anonymity, the United States would have to agree to adhere to the 1972 treaty limiting anti-ballistic defenses for a period of at least 10 years or give extended warning that the treaty was being abandoned. Only six months notice is now required.

The Soviets, and some American critics of the Strategic Defense Initiative program known popularly as "Star Wars" contend the treaty prohibits most aspects of the U.S. quest for a defensive shield against ballistic missiles.

The offer was not put in draft form and "we need more details," the official said. But he said there was little U.S. interest in re-examining the treaty with a view to strengthening it.

President Reagan has announced that even under a restrictive interpretation, the SDI research into laser beams, X-rays and other futuristic technology is permitted by the accord.

Negotiating a reduction in long-range Soviet missiles is the primary aim of U.S. policy in the deadlocked Geneva talks. The Soviets last year offered a 50 percent cutback, but only if restrictions were put on SDI as part of the deal.

GENERIC PRICE!

When the Vanderbilt Team of Four Championship final ended, two members of the winning team were not aware of the result. Floridians Bill Root and Richard Pavlicek were on their way to Portland, Ore., airport to take a red-eye flight back to their home state so that they could fulfill teaching commitments. It took a phone call from the airport to find out that they had added another major national title to their already impressive list of triumphs.

On this deal from the final, Root and Pavlicek extracted the maximum penalty when an opponent tried to play a waiting game. After Root overcalled one no trump, South elected to make a quiet bid of two diamonds. Pavlicek's jump to four hearts was a transfer to spades, and when Root duly corrected South decided that he did not want to defend. He tried five diamonds, and Root's double ended the auction.

Pavlicek led his singleton club. Root cashed the king and ace, then returned the ten for his partner to ruff. Back came a spade to the ace, and Root was sadly disappointed when his partner could not ruff another club. Still, that was 300 points for down two.

In the other room, where Edgar Kaplan and Norman Kay held the North-South cards, the auction also started with a one heart opening bid and a one no trump overcall. Kay, however, chose to bid an immediate five diamonds, and that shut West out of the bidding. Now East was not sure whose hand it was, so he elected to pass.

In defending the hand East-West allowed a trick to get away. Down one undoubled meant only 50 points for their side, so the Kaplan team gained 250 points, which translates to 6 International Match Points, on the deal.
