Deadly Caribbean Storm Moves Off Carolina Coast

By DAN SEWELL
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI (AP) — A belt of rains and winds stretching from North Carolina through the Caribbean was strengthening slowly today and hurricane forecasters said it could become the season's first tropical storm.

"There are signs it's trying to get its winds and thundershowers into the center and it's moving over a little bit warmer water now," said forecaster Bob Sheets at the National Hurricane Center. "I think chances are reasonably good that it could develop into a tropical storm."

A tropical storm has maximum sustained winds of 39 to 73 mph. The storm would be named Andrew and would be the first tropical storm of the Atlantic hurricane season that began June 1 and runs through Nov. 30.

The forecasters defined the parent weather system off the southeastern seaboard as a subtropical depression, which differs from a tropical depression because it lacks an organized center.

"It was a very broad system as it started out, just a broad low-pressure area," Sheets said.

Heavy rains and squalls continued in the storm's wake in the Caribbean, where it left flooding and mudslides that claimed at least 25 lives and sent thousands of people fleeing from their homes.

The storm's highest winds were measured at 35 mph Thursday by an Air Force reconnaissance plane, but they were widely spread out, forecaster Bob Case said. No damages were reported on the U.S. mainland, but forecasters warned small boats to stay in port along the Carolina coastlines.

At 6 a.m. EDT, the system was centered about 175 miles southeast of Charleston, S.C., forecasters said, adding that it was moving northwest at 5 to 10 mph and was expected to turn toward the north today. Squalls extends several hundred miles to the northeast.

Sheets said the trough of low pressure causing it all had persisted for six days.

Havana radio reported Thursday that at least five Cubans were killed and "considerable damages" were caused by intense rains this week.

Thousands of people were evacuated from flooding areas in western and southern Cuba, said the report, monitored in Miami.

Four people drowned and one man was electrocuted by a downed power line, the radio report said.

"The authorities believe that the number of dead is higher but for the moment they can't say precisely because the intense rains are continuing," it added.

Earlier, authorities on the neighboring island of Hispaniola reported that at least 15 people had died in the nations of Haiti and the Dominican Republic.

On Jamaica, drenched by four inches of rain in a six-hour period Wednesday after several previous days of rain, a woman and child were killed and 20 people hospitalized when a bus ran off a rain-slick road, authorities said.

Authorities blamed the accident on heavy rain that had drenched this Caribbean island since May 28.

Raffle Prompts Query

A member of the Pitt County Board of Education has asked for an investigation of fund-raising activities by Ernest Brown, an unsuccessful black candidate for the Democratic nomination to the Greenville Township seat on the Board of County Commissioners in the May primary.

In a letter to District Attorney Tom Haigwood, dated June 3, Walter E. Gaskins of Route 1, Ayden, said "this letter is written to officially file a complaint with your office relative to campaign activities held by and on behalf of Mr. Ernest Brown ..."

Gaskins' letter continued: "As you will see from the attached copy of his report of campaign fund-raising activities and private donations, Mr. Brown has indicated that a ticket raffle was held on Feb. 24 ... through March 25, netting $2,322.50.

"I am sure you are aware," Gaskins' letter said, "ticket raffles are in direct violation of North Carolina General Statute GS14-292.1.

"I would very much appreciate your office investigating this matter and taking whatever action you deem appropriate ..."

Haigwood declined to comment when asked about Gaskins' complaint.

But a source close to the district attorney's office suggested this morning that the complaint would not be considered a "priority item."

Brown "was not a winning candidate," the source said, and the other people in the race — Tom Johnson (who won the nomination), Jim Young and Rufus Huggins — "have not complained (and) he (Brown) obviously didn't know it was illegal. He put it in his report (to the Board of Elections) and did not try to conceal it."

"There are other raffles all the time that nobody complains about. All these things have to be taken into consideration," the source said.

Brown, who was a member of the Greenville school board for four years, is an organizer and spokesman for the Concerned Citi-

Pitt Board Schedules June 18 Hearing On Budget Proposals

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County commissioners, continuing work on the 1986-1987 budget Thursday, gave tentative approval to a number of department and agency budgets, making few changes in lists of expenditures recommended by County Manager Reginald Gray.

The board, scheduling a public hearing on the budget for 7 p.m. June 18 at the county office building, was given final valuation estimates by Gray, who said his recommendations would hold the tax rate for the coming fiscal year, which begins July 1, at its present 64 cents per $100 valuation.

Gray said the 64-cent tax rate is expected to net $15.7 million in ad valorem tax revenue, based on the estimated net valuation for budget purposes of $2.453 billion for 1986-1987.

This year's budget was based on the 64-cent rate raising $15.14 million on a net property valuation of $2.365 billion.

The budget recommended by Gray totals $34.56 million (not including any pay adjustments for employees). This compares with this year's $33.51 million budget.

Commissioners say they will decide on pay adjustments for county workers after they receive a report from a consultant now working on a

Merger Bill Filed

Legislation to enable the merger of the Pitt County and Greenville school systems was filed this morning, Rep. Ed Warren said in a telephone interview.

He said he, Sen. Bob Martin, Sen. Tom Taft and Rep. Walter Jones Jr. met with school Superintendent Eddie West and Mike Crowell, attorney to the two school boards, on Thursday to discuss the legislation.

"From what we can understand, everyone concerned is in agreement now that the merger go forward," Warren said. "This show of agreement is the key. If all goes well, the legislation could be enacted by the middle of next week."

The proposal, approved Thursday by the Pitt and Greenville school boards, is designed to let merger proceed on July 1, with a final question on makeup of a consolidated school board to be resolved by 1987.

GARBAGE COLLECTION SUGGESTION

Chernobyl Victims' List Grows

MOSCOW (AP) — An American doctor treating victims of the Chernobyl nuclear disaster said today 80 patients are in serious condition, more than double the number reported three weeks ago.

Dr. Robert Gale, a U.S. bone marrow specialist, spoke at a news conference after returning from a three-day trip to the Ukraine where he visited Kiev and the town of Chernobyl, about 11 miles from the plant.

Gale said he was reluctant to predict future cancer rates as a result of radiation exposure. He said about 100,000 people would be monitored "for the rest of their lives."

He said doctors were "seriously concerned" about the prognosis for 80 radiation sickness patients, adding 78 of them had been at the Ukrainian power plant April 26 when a fire and explosion wrecked the No. 4 reactor and sent radiation into the air.

Of the remaining two patients, both residents of the nearby town of Pripyat, one was exposed to radiation through soil and the other was bicycling in a contaminated area, Gale said.

At a May 15 news conference, Gale said 35 people were in serious condition. Figures provided by Soviet officials suggested the 2.4 million Kiev residents received doses of radiation equivalent to about half the amount of radiation they would normally be exposed to in one year, Gale said.

He said radiation levels in Kiev, 80 miles south of the plant, were 15 to 30 times above normal background level.

At a news conference Thursday,

Oleg Shchepin, the first deputy health minister, said 26 people have died as a result of the accident. Officials said that of 299 people originally hospitalized for radiation exposure, 187 still were receiving treatment.

Dr. Leonid Ilyin, the director of Moscow's No. 6 hospital where many accident victims are being treated, said 230 teams of doctors and other medical personnel were working in the Ukraine and the neighboring republic of Byelorussia to monitor the effects of radiation.

Full-Skirted Coats And Flyaways Win Acolades For Fall Fashions

By JUDIE GLAVE
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Fashion lovers can weather the frigid cold of winter in high style this year, thanks to the brightest crop of seasonal coats offered by Seventh Avenue in recent years.

Kimono coats, full-skirted styles cinched with rich alligator or leather belts, seven-eighth lengths and the flyaway are the newest looks this winter.

Also look for the return of the flowing cape coat, a '60s standard which although dramatic is not all that practical.

Staples like the long, loose balma- can and slim refer coat are given a fresh look when topped by shawls or wide scarves, flung over shoulders.

Before the cold weather sets in, Willi Smith's iridescent toppers in rich crimson and teal or Perry Ellis' baby pink, notch-collar style can fill the bill, as can Betty Hanson's cotton Lurex slickers in traffic-stopping shades of jade, fuchsia and gold.

Danny Noble's seven-eighth length coats in cherry red and olive with shiny zippers sewn onto pockets, collars, and shoulders are collegiate-looking and should please a younger audience, as will Karl Lagerfeld's boola-boola, fake furs done in iridescent pink and blue.

Many designers translate the season's hottest skirt — the mid-calf, full swing and circle skirts — into coats with notch, wrap and shawl collars.

Calvin Klein's are done in seasonal tweeds or solid cashmeres and are so full they swirl when in motion. A knockout was his charcoal cashmere circle coat, trimmed in elegant sable.

Bob Mackie used the same full style in '50s-flavored gray wool coats that had half-dollar sized buttons and were spotted with pink or teal coin dots.

But no one used the style more effectively than Ralph Lauren whose cinnamon suede swing coats trimmed in fox and cinched with alligator belts were downright stunning.

Trigere also had the full-skirted coat in turquoise alpaca, but her real favorite this season was the mid-calf, cape coat.

She did these in double-face wool in mixtures of taupe and cocoa, red and gray and royal blue and gray that could be reversed, giving her customer two looks for the price of one.

Lauren, Gucci and Lagerfeld also offer a smattering of cape styles.

The flyaway — with raglan sleeves and a loose cape coat hem cut to the waist or hips — was by and large the most popular shorter style coat this season.

Gucci used it in buttery soft black leather with collars and cuffs trimmed in black Persian, Lauren did it in his cinnamon suede and Louis Dell'Olio for Anne Klein's flyaway came in crisp calvary twill.

The seven-eighth length, which falls inches above the knee, ran a close second in popularity while the pretty but very impractical kimono — which has no buttons, no belts, no closures — was not far behind.

The nod for the most stylish leathers this season goes to Gucci, Calvin Klein and Anne Klein. Calvin deserves praise for his short and casual clutch styles, Gucci for his fur-trimmed bomber jackets, and peplum coats, and Anne Klein for the rich burnt sienna swing coat.

As for furs, they were all elegantly styled and for the most part unchanged. Anne Klein offered a short mink flyaway, which was different but not quite as different as Ellis' pink and peach dyed foxes.

And for those who can only dream about owning a fur or want to stay in the good graces of animal-rights activists, Pauline Trigere has a new collection of fake furs, which are lush, plush and look anything but synthetic.

Made from a special mixture of acrylic and cotton produced by the French firm Tissavel, the fake furs come in snow leopard, racoon, ranch and white mink, fitch and Persian.

Long coats will retail for about $550 and short jackets for about $275.

Exhibit Shows How Electricity Changed Rural Life In Georgia

By ELLIOTT MINOR
Associated Press Writer

TIFTON, Ga. (AP) — Ethel White recalls the day workers installed light bulbs in her family's Berrien County farmhouse, freeing them forever from the flicker of kerosene lamps.

Mrs. White's home was among thousands connected to power lines during the 1930s and 1940s, as the gradual electrification of Georgia's rural areas ushered in a new age of communication and labor-saving devices that dramatically altered the lives of people from the Smokies to the piney woods.

"It was great. You could see so much better," said the 71-year-old Mrs. White, a guide at the Georgia Agrirama, which is hosting a special exhibit on the electrification of Georgia.

After light bulbs in 1947 came a washing machine, a plug-in radio and a "Frigidaire," said Mrs. White, one of more than 20 senior citizens employed at the Agrirama, a state-funded living history museum that portrays rural life in Georgia at the end of the 19th century. "Interpreters" like Mrs. White wear authentic costumes while ushering visitors through old farmhouses, a turpentine still, a sawmill, a grist mill and other historic displays.

"The first washing machine I had was the wringer type," she recalled. "It wasn't too bad if you were used to doing it with your hands."

Titled "Georgia's Electric Age" and sponsored by the Georgia Endowment for the Humanities, the Georgia Power Co. and Emory University, the display features exhibits on the history of electricity, water- and coal-powered generating plants and co-operatives that brought electricity to rural areas under a New Deal program of President Franklin D. Roosevelt known as the Rural Electrification Administration (REA).

The first REA loan in the country was made to the Crisp County Farmers Co-operative in 1938.

Historian Jerry DeVine, the Agrirama's director of museum services, said electricity brought rural people into the 20th century.

"All things we consider to be modern reached the rural areas through electricity," he said.

Electricity brought labor-saving devices into the lives of rural people and boosted the popularity of radios that "pulled them into the national culture" DeVine said, noting that radios previously had been battery powered.

"It brought a certain level of culture to the farm that was badly needed," he said. "It modernized the rural areas."

The display also features old appliances such as a Kenmore electric washing machine of the 1940s, a Westinghouse stove of the '30s and a squat General Electric refrigerator that resembles a bank vault.

Mrs. White said it was an important day when her family was able to extinguish their kerosene lamps for good, but the new light bulbs had little effect on their sleeping habits.

"We had to work then, so we didn't stay up at night," she recalled.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

Daughters Expect More Out Of Mom

DEAR ABBY: When Dad died 20 years ago, he left Mom some money and a pension. She moved in with me and has divided her time between my family and my sister's family ever since.

We have cleaned for her, cooked for her, washed for her and chauffeured her everywhere she wanted to go.

Mom has never bought a bar of soap, a sack of groceries or a tank of gas. We've taken her on vacation with us and paid her way. Consequently she has saved her pension and Social Security, and now has over $300,000 in savings.

Last week she told us that she recently made a will, and is leaving her money divided equally among her eight children!

The other six have not spent a dime on her. They each have sent her a plant or flowers once a year on Mother's Day.

My sister and I opened our homes to her, sacrificing a certain amount of privacy, but we never complained. We are hurt and disappointed and are ready to kick her out on her ear and let her try to make her home with one of her other children for free. What would you do? — UNAPPRECIATED IN OHIO

DEAR UNAPPRECIATED: For openers, I wouldn't kick my mother out on her ear — or any other part of her anatomy. I would keep my mouth shut and continue to provide her with a home with no thought of what's in it for me, which is the reason I would have taken her in, in the first place.

DEAR ABBY: We have only one child. Our newly made friends have several, but please don't print the number as we do not want to identify them. Well, last Christmas they sent our child an expensive (by our standards) Christmas present. Last week, they sent our child another expensive present for his birthday.

Now, how do we handle gift-giving for Christmas and birthdays for all of their children? We cannot afford to give each one the kind of gifts they have given ours twice a year.

Is there a tactful way to tell them not to send our child any more gifts because we can't reciprocate? — A DILEMMA

DEAR DILEMMA: Honesty is the best policy. Tell them you would feel more comfortable if they would limit their gifts to your child to a "token" inexpensive one because that is all you can afford to send their children.

And what's wrong with sending cards?

DEAR ABBY: I'm nearly 15 and my boyfriend is 16. I've been going out with him for over a year and he asked me to go to bed with him. My mother knows about my relationship with him, but I'm afraid to tell her about this because I don't know what her reaction will be. I told him I wasn't sure if I was ready yet. He told me that he won't rush me into anything I don't want to do. How do I know when I'm ready? I hope you print this because I think you will be helping other girls with the same problem. — AFRAID OF LOVE

DEAR AFRAID: It is not "love" you fear — it's sex, which is not surprising, since we fear the unknown. How will you know you are ready? When you are so sure, you will not have to ask anyone. But one thing is certain: A girl of your age is definitely not ready.

DEAR ABBY: I am a young woman completely bald due to alopecia, so I wear a wig. I have adjusted to this condition fairly well, but I need a clever remark to say when I remove my wig for the first time in the presence of a man. — P. IN COLUMBUS, OHIO

DEAR P.: Don't surprise him. Tell him that you are wearing a wig and why.

If you feel you need a "clever" remark while removing your wig, you could say, "Look, I've flipped my wig over you!"

Connie Kuenzi, the director, said the center will operate weekdays from 7:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. in the educational wing of St. James United Methodist Church, 2000 E. Sixth St.

Ms. Kuenzi said the center will cater to adults who require limited medical support during the course of a day — stroke victims, individuals with functional deficiencies caused by old age and those receiving daily medication.

Ms. Kuenzi said the center is now accepting participant referrals as well as community and volunteer support. For more information call 757-0303.

Two donations were made recently by civic clubs to W.H. Robinson Primary School.

A donation of $250 from the Winterville Jaycees is being used to enhance the school groups and to purchase additional classroom clocks. The Winterville Ruritan Club has donated $240 to the school, which is using the money to buy outdoor benches.

Subsidies

When one reads government payments to farmers could set a new record this year, it clearly represents a drastic change in policies.

Direct payments to farmers will make up as much as 9 percent of gross farm income this year, double last year's level, according to analyst Gary Lucier of the Agriculture Department's Economic Research Service.

Farmers in the hard-pressed Grain Belt will be more dependent on federal help, with some relying on the government for as much as half their income this year.

Federal checks to farmers, primarily income subsidies, conservation and storage payments and money under the new dairy cow slaughter program, are forecast at a record $10 billion to $13 billion. Last year, direct farm payments amounted to 4 percent to 5 percent of gross income to farmers. During the 1970s the figure hovered at around 3 percent. Many producers receive no subsidies.

This year's high numbers are said to be due largely to the new farm law which is an effort to force U.S. commodity prices down through lower price supports to make them more competitive on export markets while keeping farm incomes at current levels through subsidies.

Tobacco is not involved. As has always been the case, the tobacco program is a self-sustaining effort by growers.

Lucier says current commodity prices pretty well tell what's going on. There's a high rate of participation by farmers in the major subsidized crops: wheat, corn, cotton and rice. The bulk of the payments is for crops that account for just two-fifths of all farm income.

Growth of federal involvement in the agriculture economy probably means salvation for many key producers but also signals a backing away from past encouragement to believe government would be getting out of its involvement with business and industry and "less government would be better government".

Like it or not, we're getting more of the same.

Market

The farmers market will open for business on Saturday.

The market, which has not had a permanent home for many years, now will have one at a location south of Bell's Fork on County Home Road. The market will open from 7 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturdays. It will also be open Tuesdays and Thursdays from 7 a.m. to 1 p.m., and on Fridays from 1 to 7 p.m. A new manager, Terrie Whitehurst, has been employed and she will coordinate the activities of the market.

Specifically the farmers market will give produce growers and their customers the chance to come together. That can be a boost for diversification of our farm economy.

The building now under construction will not be ready for Saturday's opening (completion is set for July 21) but the market will open on the site anyway.

Pitt County is a strong rural county, but it is rapidly developing metropolitan characteristics. The farmers market will help bring together the farmer and his urban market.

The Japanese Connection Grows

WASHINGTON — As the United Automobile Workers gathered in Anaheim, Calif., this week for their triennial convention, the Japanese were on the union's mind. That in itself wasn't unusual. But some of the union's concerns were.

While the Japanese import still symbolizes job losses to many UAW members, the increased presence of Japan on the American manufacturing scene has raised new problems for the U.S. auto workers. By the end of the decade, there will be eight plants in operation under Japanese control or joint-venture arrangements. Yet the union has so far won the right to represent workers at only two of them.

Meanwhile, the UAW complains that the Japanese give their U.S. plants a disproportionate amount of lower-skilled, assembly-line work, relying on home-country sources for at least half of their parts (such as engines) and materials. The union isn't the only party with this concern.

Virtually lost amid these criticisms is a bitter truth faced by the UAW: The Japanese have given thousands of jobs to American auto workers, and more seem to be on the way. Moreover, the threat to American competitiveness of Japan's U.S. investment seems, for now at least, unsubstantiated. In the long run, the new Japanese invasion into all lines of American industry may provide a healthy stimulus for self-improvement.

The Japanese, of course, aren't the only foreign interest with a big piece of the American economy. European firms still account for the largest collective share. Korea, which produces television sets and microwave ovens in America, is among the "Newly Industrializing Countries" competing for a part of the action.

For obvious reasons, however, the increased Japanese presence on the American manufacturing landscape has been the most noticeable. Japanese firms or subsidiaries manufacture not only cars here, but also steel, motorcycles, lawn mowers, televisions, radios, silicon chips and textiles, to name a few products. The Japan Economic Institute counts 430 Japanese corporations with American plants, up from 213 five years ago; only seven states lack a manufacturing facility of some sort.

After a decade of gradual and limited activity, "what you're seeing now is a mature kind of investment in the U.S.," said David Bauer, a specialist formerly with the Conference Board.

Union organizers notwithstanding, it's not as if the U.S. has undergone this invasion reluctantly. Scores of state and local governments, ranging from that of South Carolina to those of Atlanta and San Antonio, have aggressively solicited foreign investment. Many public officials, in fact, have recruited in this fashion partly as a way of opening overseas markets for locally produced goods and services.

Not every governor or mayor has welcomed the Japanese invasion, in particular. Some officials in the Midwest resent the success of less-unionized Southern states in wooing foreign firms. Gov. Richard Lamm, a Colorado Democrat who worries about a lot of things, contends that the U.S. may be trading away long-term wealth for short-term gains.

Of them all, Lamm's complaint seems the least politically motivated and, at least superficially, the most compelling. In reserving their most sophisticated engineering and manufacturing jobs for compatriots, the Japanese may deny America the impetus to regain its technological edge in heavy industries such as auto-making. We could become for Japan what the Japanese were for the U.S. a few short decades ago — an industrial sweatshop.

But it's doubtful that General Motors Corp., which has invested heavily in robotics development (as well as a joint venture with Toyota), is ready to throw in the towel. (When the Japanese start building Cadillacs, maybe GM will need to.) Thus far, the concerns often expressed by "experts" have rested on speculation and anecdotes more than on solid figures; they seem less credible than contentions that the Japanese invasion could have a salubrious effect on the American work ethic.

prospects dim and the military option holding little hope of success, a leading Palestinian, former Gaza City Mayor Rashad al-Shawa, has called openly for the superpowers to impose an Arab-Israeli settlement, with or without the PLO.

"I would suggest that if the United States was really sincere in finding a solution, then the U.S. must join with the Russians to find out what are the minimum acceptable terms for the Arabs moderates and the Israeli moderates and then implement a solution," the 77-year-old al-Shawa told The Associated Press in a recent interview.

Such an explicit call by a respected Palestinian figure is virtually without precedent in recent years. The refusal of Palestinians of stature to join in U.S.-brokered autonomy talks led to the failure of the 1978 Camp David accords to bring about regional peace.

Arafat's sluggishness in pursuing peace efforts also threatens his political gains among America's European allies, an important source of respectability and diplomatic leverage on Washington.

A 1980 European Economic Community declaration, issued in Venice, Italy, called for the PLO to be "associated" with any Middle East peace negotiations.

However, last week in Israel, British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher warned Palestinians that if the PLO refuses to pursue peace talks, then "we must consider an alternative."

In the search for an alternative, Arafat can play his strongest card: 1974 Arab League recognition of the PLO as the "sole, legitimate representative" of the Palestinian people.

That mandate can only be withdrawn by an Arab summit and commits the Arabs to support the PLO and its elected leader, Arafat. It

Strength For Today

Many years ago someone wrote the English man of letters John Galsworthy asking him to state his creed. In reply Galsworthy quoted some lines written by another English author, Adam Lindsay Gordon:

"Life is mostly froth and bubble,
Two things stand like stone:
Kindness in another's trouble,
Courage in your own."
This is certainly good advice for daily living. In the midst of a life which appears like froth and bubble, kindness and courage stand like eternal granite hills. They are correlatives.

A man who is kind to others will endure his own troubles without grumbling; and, conversely, a man who makes the best of things in the midst of trouble will have a deep understanding of the agony others suffer when they have been struck by misfortune.

Representation Without Approval

— Paul O'Connor —

RALEIGH — Conservative social activist Anne Frazier of Roanoke Rapids will represent the Coalition on Adolescent Pregnancy on a pregnancy prevention advisory board against the wishes of that coalition.

Human Resources Secretary Phil Kirk appointed Mrs. Frazier to the N.C. Adolescent Pregnancy and Prematurity Prevention Board as a representative of COAP. But COAP's officers did not recommend her for the job, and they told one state legislator that they are very much opposed to her positions.

Mrs. Frazier has been an outspoken critic of sex education programs that teach birth control methods other than abstinence. She is also opposed to the opening of school-based clinics that would dispense or prescribe birth control devices. COAP's membership generally supports such birth control measures.

Rep. Nick Jeralds, D-Cumberland, raised the issue when funding for the state's teen-age pregnancy prevention program was discussed in a budget committee hearing. The board, which is supposed to represent many of the different interest groups involved in fighting teen-age pregnancies, was created to advise DHR on the operation of the program. Jeralds said COAP leaders feel that with Mrs. Frazier's selection as their representative they've been left without a voice on the board.

Charlotte Brody, lobbyist for N.C. Planned Parenthood, said her organization is also being represented by someone who was chosen, without consultation, by Kirk. In their case, however, the representative is acceptable to Planned Parenthood.

"The issue is that we found out she'd been appointed when she told us," Ms. Brody said of Planned Parenthood's representative, Barbara Walser of Greensboro.

Asked why organizations were not consulted about the people who would represent them on the board, Nancy Team, assistant DHR secretary, said, "The law didn't say we had to."

Ms. Team said the appointment of Mrs. Frazier added variety to the viewpoints which will be expressed on the board. The board has no authority, she noted, and is only advisory. By making more viewpoints available, the board should be more valuable, she said.

The "Greatest Unintended Pun of 1986 Award" has to go to Barry Goldstein, a DHR pregnancy program worker. Goldstein was asked how money for teen-age pregnancy prevention programs was spent. He explained that most went for salaries of counsellors. This kind of program, he said, "is really pretty much labor intensive."

Here's a statement to increase your confidence in the legislative process. It was made by Steve Morrisette, lobbyist for the N.C. Hospital Association, in a speech to a child advocacy group in Raleigh.

Many pieces of legislation are 75 pages or longer, he said. "You may ask, how do these people know what is in the bills. The answer to that is, they don't."

Ira Schwartz, a University of Minnesota professor who specializes in juvenile justice affairs, followed Morrisette to the podium and said he was happy to hear that some North Carolina legislators could speed read.

"In Minnesota, I was sorry to learn that we have some who cannot read at all. In particular, the one from my own district. Tomorrow I'm having lunch with him to draw him some pictures."

Arafat Faces Crisis In PLO

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Fighting in Lebanon, stagnant peace efforts and mutiny in the ranks have plunged the PLO into its deepest crisis in four years as some Western and Arab governments seek an alternative to Yasser Arafat.

Not since the Israelis drove the Palestine Liberation Organization from Beirut in 1982 have Arafat and his movement faced such a serious threat to their credibility as a major political force and a key to solving the Arab-Israeli conflict.

Militarily, Syrian-backed Shiite Moslem and pro-Israeli Christian militiamen are battling the PLO separately in both Beirut and southern Lebanon to prevent it from re-establishing bases used for attacks against Israel before the 1982 invasion.

Politically, Arafat, whose leadership already has been challenged since 1983 by pro-Syrian radicals, faces yet another mutiny, this time by his former intelligence chief, Jordan-based Atallah Atallah, or Abu Zaim.

Arafat's refusal last February to accept U.N. resolutions implying Israel's right to exist led to the collapse of King Hussein's efforts to win U.S. recognition of the PLO as a negotiating partner, and brought Middle East peace moves to a standstill.

Moderate Arab leaders had pinned their hopes on eventual U.S. acceptance of PLO negotiators as the only way to overcome Israel's refusal to deal with the guerrilla movement. The United States also refused to negotiate with the PLO until it explicitly recognizes Israel's right to exist. With the PLO in a shambles, peace prospects dim and the military option holding little hope of success, a leading Palestinian, former Gaza City Mayor Rashad al-Shawa, has called openly for the superpowers to impose an Arab-Israeli settlement, with or without the PLO.

"I would suggest that if the United States was really sincere in finding a solution, then the U.S. must join with the Russians to find out what are the minimum acceptable terms for the Arabs moderates and the Israeli moderates and then implement a solution," the 77-year-old al-Shawa told The Associated Press in a recent interview.

Such an explicit call by a respected Palestinian figure is virtually without precedent in recent years. The refusal of Palestinians of stature to join in U.S.-brokered autonomy talks led to the failure of the 1978 Camp David accords to bring about regional peace.

Arafat's sluggishness in pursuing peace efforts also threatens his political gains among America's European allies, an important source of respectability and diplomatic leverage on Washington.

IN THE STATE

Hospital Fined

RALEIGH (AP) — The state has fined Presbyterian Hospital in Charlotte $20,000 for spending too much money on construction of its open heart surgery center and psychiatric unit, officials say.

Presbyterian officials announced Thursday they had paid the fine rather than appeal.

The division ruled that the hospital spent $2.3 million more on the heart unit than was allowed by state permits. They also ruled Presbyterian spent $1.2 million more than allowed on its new psychiatric center.

A Presbyterian Hospital statement said that although the hospital disagrees it "violated certificate of need rules, it does not feel that it would be in the best interest of the hospital or its patients to become involved in what could be a protracted and expensive appeal of this matter."

Helms Aide

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Agriculture Committee unanimously approved a longtime aide of Sen. Jesse Helms as an assistant secretary of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

At the committee hearing Thursday, speakers praised George S. Dunlop and Helms later told a reporter that "no one would dare" try to hold up the nomination.

Dunlop, 39, a native of North Carolina, was approved by the committee as the USDA official in charge of two of the department's largest agencies — the National Forest Service and the Soil Conservation Service. Full Senate confirmation is expected soon, officials say.

Indictments

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A federal grand jury has indicted two men and a woman on charges of selling $2 million worth of cocaine to undercover police officers.

In addition, Charlotte police officers and State Bureau of Investigation agents seized about $517,619, including $319,800 found in safety deposit boxes at three Miami-area banks in May.

According to court records, Larry Wayne Galloway, 21, of Charlotte and Miami-area residents Gene Ellis Williams, 44, and Helen Hepburn, 38, allegedly sold cocaine on three occasions to undercover Charlotte vice officers.

Galloway, Ms. Hepburn and Williams were indicted on charges of conspiracy and possessing and distributing cocaine.

Cotton Co-Op

RALEIGH (AP) — A new cotton marketing cooperative has been formed in North Carolina and is now accepting applications for membership from farmers across the state, officials said.

The Quality Cotton Association was recently chartered and has elected a slate of officers and a board of directors. The association plans to pool members' cotton and gain selling strength through volume.

Cotton farmers in North Carolina and South Carolina are eligible to join the group, said Wallace Johnson, cotton marketing specialist for the N.C. Department of Agriculture.

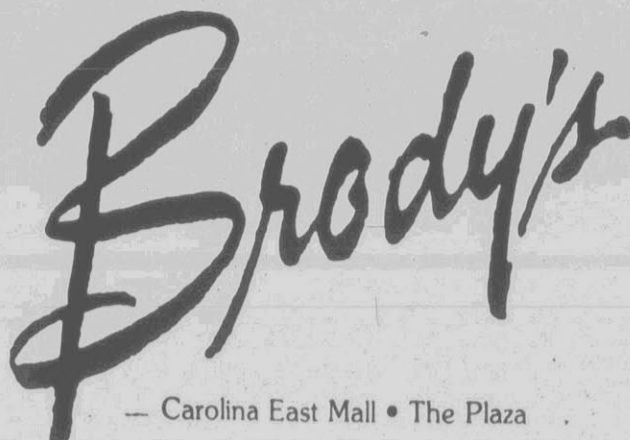

Accident

WILMINGTON (AP) — A Columbus County woman was killed and her baby was injured shortly after noon on Thursday when a train struck their car near Clarendon, authorities said.

Belinda Suggs Godwin, 30, of Clarendon died after a locomotive for Seaboard System Railroad rammed into the passenger side of her car about six miles south of Chadborn in Columbus County, N.C. Highway Patrol Trooper Louis High said.

The train pushed the victim's car 125 feet before the car rolled off the track and into the front yard of a house, High said.

Brent Allen Godwin, 1, escaped serious injury. Residents at the house pulled him from the wreckage, said Deuce Niven, a member of the Tabor City Rescue Squad.

Assembly Gets Proposed Insurance Changes

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Proposed reforms in civil liability law designed to stem the rapid rise in insurance premiums will get a fair hearing, but will not be allowed to prolong the General Assembly session, legislative leaders say.

Supporters of one set of reforms — those dealing with medical malpractice insurance — wasted no time getting them before the Legislature as the session convened Thursday.

Measures recommended by a study committee on malpractice were filed and were to be introduced today.

Meanwhile, legislators filed a flock of bills seeking money for local projects and organizations, while a Senate leader proposed reforms in the process of allocating such "pork barrel" funds.

The biennial short session, expected to last four to six weeks, was convened primarily to adjust the fiscal 1986-87 budget and consider Gov. Jim Martin's $210 million highway funding package.

Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan, who presides over the Senate, said the insurance measures deserved attention.

"We cannot allow correctable health insurance problems to deprive our citizens of needed health care," Jordan said in a speech to the Senate.

But he told reporters that once the budgetary matters are concluded, the Legislature would move quickly to adjourn, regardless of the insurance bills' status.

The measures were filed by Sen.

Tom Taft, D-Pitt, and Rep. Dwight Quinn, D-Cabarrus, co-chairmen of the North Carolina Medical Malpractice Study Commission. Bills recommended by another study committee that deal with the liability insurance issue in general are expected to be introduced as well.

"I can make a much stronger case for major reforms in medical malpractice than you can for general liability insurance," Taft said. "General tort reform will stumble and then these (bills) will move."

"It's substantially apparent that the general property and casualty (insurance) crisis is because of poor business decisions (by insurers), low interest rates and heavy natural disasters in 1984," he added. "They will earn their way out of the problems in 18 months. Their stock prices show that."

While Taft said changes are sorely needed, with some obstetricians paying $28,000 a year for insurance, he said he would prefer a cap of $750,000.

"A low cap is an attempt to immunize physicians," he said. "Fear of malpractice is a component of the whole quality-assurance scheme."

The child vaccination bill, sparked when prices for such vaccines as the DPT shot rose from around $4 to nearly $11, should have a good chance of passage, Taft said.

That bill would set up an agency in the Industrial Commission to handle vaccine-related claims while limiting damages to $1 million.

On the "pork barrel" issue, Senate Majority Leader Kenneth Royall, D-Durham, said he would introduce a bill to amend Senate rules in accordance with the findings of a special study committee that Jordan appointed last fall.

Among the panel's suggestions were that all pork barrel bills go through committees and be treated as any other proposed legislation. Last year, lawmakers simply gave the chairmen of the House and Senate appropriations committees lists of local projects for which they wanted money.

Rose Holds Awards Day

Dozens of seniors at Rose High School on Thursday afternoon were honored in recognition of departmental achievements and for scholarships received. The annual traditional awards day was held, as customary, in the gymnasium at Rose.

Following the awards ceremony, a reception for scholarship winners and their parents were held in the school's courtyard. This was a first-time event at Rose.

Three female and one male student this year were recipients of four locally established honor awards — two Good Citizenship, the Distinguished Service and the Lonnie Barnhill Awards.

Jill Whitehurst is the recipient of the Woman's Club Good Citizenship award, and Carl Wille received the Civitan's Good Citizenship Award.

Destardi Moye received the Lonnie Barnhill Award and the Keech Award was given to Kelly Jones.

Incoming Student Government Association president Wiley Hines presented SGA plaques to outgoing president Destardi Moye and Kelly Jones.

Three students were recognized for having maintained a 4.0 averaged throughout their high school years. They are Kelly Jones, Amy Moore and Carl Wille.

Martin, Solons Differ On Roads

RALEIGH (AP) — The Martin administration and Democratic leaders of the General Assembly remain at odds on a highway funding package, but both sides say they are not giving up on reaching an agreement.

Republican Gov. Jim Martin and top lawmakers firmly reiterated their positions Thursday as the Legislature convened for its biennial short session. But there were hints that efforts at compromise were continuing behind the scenes.

"We're talking about various things, seeing if there are any areas where we can get together," said Sen. Tony Rand, D-Cumberland, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Base Budget Committee.

Legislative leaders disclosed that they had met Wednesday with Transportation Secretary Jim Harrington in a fruitless effort to narrow their differences with the administration, which wants to raise $210 million for highways by combining budgetary transfers and a gasoline tax increase.

Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan said he might go along with Martin's request to transfer state driver education programs from the highway fund to the general fund. But Jordan also criticized Martin for depicting his program as a compromise instead of a first-time offer open to negotiation.

"It's difficult to compromise with someone who announces his position and says his position is already a compromise," Rand said.

Martin, meanwhile, complained that the Democrats were attacking his plan without offering one of their own. "Mine is the only one on the table," the governor said in his weekly news conference.

Martin said he had not "closed the door to anything," but repeatedly dodged questions on where he might give ground.

"I think my program is a good program," he said. "I will continue to push that. I have not given up on seeing it pass."

The governor's package would boost the motor fuels tax, now 12 1/4 cents per gallon, by 2 3/4 cents. It also would save the budget's highway fund about $100 million per year by transferring the Highway Patrol and driver education programs to the general fund, which pays for all state programs not connected with transportation.

Martin says his program is a compromise because most Republican legislators want to solve the highway fund shortfall entirely with transfers, while the Democratic leadership appears to prefer only a tax increase of 5 to 6 cents per gallon.

But House Speaker Liston Ramsey said he did not plan to present Martin with a counter-proposal that would include transfers, which he said would deprive the general fund of money needed for education and social programs.

"Am I going to take (money) away from the educational system? No," Ramsey said. "Am I going to take it away from all these ... orphanages? No."

Rep. Billy Watkins, D-Granville, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee and Ramsey's top lieutenant, took a similarly hard line on transfers and said Harrington had been told during the meeting Wednesday they were unacceptable.

"We told him we were not interested in any transfers whatsoever," Watkins said.

On the Senate side, however, Democrats led by Jordan said the transfer issue was negotiable. Jordan said he could accept a transfer of about $25 million per year — the approximate cost of the driver education programs — from the highway fund to the general fund.

Methodists Vote To Join In Fighting Nuclear Plant

DURHAM (AP) — A vote to endorse the actions two local governments took against the Shearon Harris Nuclear Plant was related to the issues of peace and social justice that have been espoused at the North Carolina Conference of the United Methodist, a minister says.

"It affects the lives of people we work with every day," said the Rev. Lawrence E. Johnson, who proposed the resolution. "We're still dealing with destruction and how it affects the life of the individual," he said.

Johnson, pastor of Asbury Temple United Methodist Church in Durham, said another motivation was the accident at the Chernobyl nuclear plant in the Soviet Union.

"You saw what happened in Russia. They said it would only affect a small area, but it reached all the way to Raleigh. We had radiation here," Johnson said.

Johnson said he had not asked conference members to initiate action against the plant but merely to support action that had already been taken.

"There was no disaster at Three Mile Island," Walden said, referring to the 1979 nuclear plant accident in Pennsylvania. "There was only a press disaster."

Walden called the Shearon Harris debate an emotional issue.

The Rev. C. Maness Mitchell of the Fayetteville District, a supporter of the resolution, agreed.

"It is an emotional issue because the children of God are in mortal danger," he said.

Minnick said votes on resolutions were non-binding, which means they represent the sense of the conference and have no impact on churches.

Minnick said he "was not displeased" with the vote "because I have concerns, too, about the safety and well-being of human beings."

Minnick wrote the bishops' pastoral letter, "In Defense of Creation: The Nuclear Crisis and a Just Peace." The letter and an accompanying study document present "a theological case for a clear and unconditioned NO to nuclear war and to any use of nuclear weapons."

On Tuesday, delegates to the conference voted to table a resolution supporting the bishops' document until after the Peace Festival and Celebration. On Thursday, the conference voted overwhelmingly to support the study and to hold meetings to discuss it.

The conference is made up of 847 churches in 56 eastern counties.

Test Scores Labeled Misleading

RALEIGH (AP) — High failure rates, on the National Teachers Examination paint a dismal picture, but the figures from the test are somewhat misleading, a state Board of Education member says.

Results of the National Teachers Examination taken in October were released by the State Department of Public Instruction this week. They showed a 60.7 percent failure rate for blacks statewide, as compared to a 9.4 percent failure rate for whites and 21.9 percent failure rate overall.

A person must pass the exam to be certified to teach in North Carolina public schools.

"We haven't viewed this in the past as a crisis, but it's very evident that it must be viewed today as a crisis," Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan, an ex officio member of the board, said Thursday.

Jordan said the board, which approves teacher education programs at North Carolina colleges and universities, should examine the quality of those programs more closely.

"These institutions are going to have to be examined very closely in light of what just happened," Jordan said. "But we must have minority teachers, and we have to recognize that. If we do not make the profession attractive enough — 'we' being the legislature — so that they can recruit the best students, then we have to also recognize that that's our problem that we're passing on to them."

Other board members said they did not want to draw conclusion about teacher education programs until they had more information on test takers.

"The picture is dismal, at best," said Cary C. Owen, a board member from Asheville. "But the figures are somewhat misleading in that new graduates and people who've taken the test time and time again are mixed in together. It gives a darker picture than it should."

Mrs. Owen said the University of North Carolina Board of Governors' Task Force on Teacher Preparation, of which she is a member, would recommend this fall ways to improve the recruitment and training of teachers.

"It's a massive problem, and I don't see any point in the board taking action immediately while the task force is looking at this."

Mebane M. Pritchett, chairman of the state board, said the scores were "disturbing" but that he did not expect any quick board action.

"I'm not prepared to offer any solutions," Pritchett said. "We need to look and see what those scores actually measure, and test scores aren't everything. You have to look at the whole picture, and that's what we're going to do."

Textile Facility To Reopen

WILMINGTON (AP) — A textile plant that closed its doors more than a year ago will be reopened, and up to 250 workers will be hired within the next 18 months, officials said Thursday.

The plant, which has been idle since the Belgian-based DePoortere Corp. closed its only U.S. plant in April 1985, should begin production in 30 to 45 days, said M. E. "Ned" Dowd, one of the three investors in the plant.

Dowd, who will be president of the newly formed Wilmington Corp., said some of the former DePoortere employees have been contacted to return to work at the plant. The facility will again make velour and velvet fabrics for the furniture and auto industries.

The other investors are William F. Bolt of Anderson, S.C., a private investor, and Robert L. Morgan, formerly of Anderson, who has 20 years of manufacturing experience and who will be vice president.

Morgan has been working for nearly a year to put together a financing package to reopen the DePoortere plant, which threw about 200 people out of work when it closed. Officials of the industry-hunting Committee of 100 of Wilmington have been working with him on raising an estimated $3.25 million for the project.

THIS IS A DRAMATIZED VERSION OF FACTS TAKEN FROM THE BOOK OF AMOS, CHRONOLOGICALLY AND AUTHENTICALLY CONSOLIDATED!

AMOS • THE SHEPHERD TURNED PROPHET

AMOS HAS BEEN PUT OUT OF THE TEMPLE AT BETHEL FOR WARNING ISRAEL OF THE LORD'S WRATH TO COME IF THE PEOPLE DO NOT CEASE THEIR SINFUL WAYS AND RETURN TO RIGHTEOUS LIVING...

BUT AMOS KNOWS HE HAS TRULY DELIVERED THE LORD'S WARNING, NOR WILL HE STOP PREACHING NOW THAT HE HAS BEEN CALLED!

...BUT THE PEOPLE WILL NOT LISTEN! THEY CONTINUE IN THEIR WRONG DOING, NOT THE LEAST OF WHICH IS WORSHIPPING THE GOLDEN CALF SET UP IN THE TEMPLE BY KING JEROBOAM, YEARS BEFORE, AS A POLITICAL MEASURE TO KEEP HIS PEOPLE FROM GOING SOUTH TO JERUSALEM TO WORSHIP IN THE TEMPLE OF THEIR ANCESTORS!

THEN, THE DAY FINALLY ARRIVES WHEN THE LAND TREMBLES, AND EARTHQUAKES LEVEL MANY OF THE CITIES AND TOWNS IN THE LAND - THE WRATH OF THE LORD IS, INDEED, FELT BY THOSE WHO SURVIVE THIS CATAclysmic EVENT!

TWO YEARS BEFORE THE EARTHQUAKE I WARNED ISRAEL OF THE LORD'S WRATH... NOW, HEAR YE THE PUNISHMENTS FOR THY TRANSGRESSIONS!

NOW, AS THEY STAND IN THE RUBBLE OF THEIR CITIES, THERE ARE SOME WHO WILL, AT LAST, LISTEN TO THE WORDS OF THIS HUMBLE HERDER OF SHEEP, FORETELLING ALL THE FUTURE PUNISHMENT OF ISRAEL - EVEN AS ARMIES TO THE NORTH AND EAST PREPARE TO INVADE THE LAND AND STRIP IT OF ITS WEALTH AND TAKE THE PEOPLE CAPTIVE - ALL THESE PROPHECIES HAVE BEEN RECORDED IN THE BOOK OF AMOS! 274

Baptist Fundamentalists Question Biblical Beliefs

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

A campaign "quiz sheet," circulating lately among Southern Baptists around the country, asks, "Was Adam a man? Answer 'yes' or 'no' — nothing else."

Such questions about the Bible, posed by some fundamentalists in opposing moderates in a fight for control in the big denomination, are supposed to bring out whether beliefs about the book are strong or lacking.

With arguments about it crackling in advance of the denomination's party-riven convention, whose preliminaries start this weekend in Atlanta, a Southern Baptist scholar points out that such questions don't yield to simple, yes-or-no answers.

"Don't waste time fussing over foolish questions," says the Rev. Carl Skinner of Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary of Mill Valley, Calif. "Christ called us to get on with the job of making disciples, not to quibble over jots and tittles to please those who shout the loudest."

Nevertheless, such tactics as questions about concepts of Bible accounts have characterized campaigning over the powerful presidency of the denomination of 14.4 million members, largest body in U.S. Protestantism.

A fundamentalist wing is backing the Rev. Adrian Rogers of Memphis, Tenn., contending he would root out alleged "liberalism" about Scripture.

They insist on a strictly literalistic approach to Bible accounts, contending it is "inerrant" — without error — on all matters, religious, historical and scientific.

On the other hand, moderates support the Rev. Winfred Moore of Amarillo, Texas, for the presidency. A firm conservative about the Bible himself, he defends the right to diverse understandings of its literary methods.

That's an old-time Baptist principle, accenting individual liberty and opposing creedal absolutes.

As for the question about Adam, Skinner says it mistakenly assumes that "only one of the two answers can be correct" although actually either answer, or both, would convey aspects of truth.

He says the questioners infer that "because the word translated 'Adam' in the early chapters of Genesis is used for the proper name of an individual 'yes' can be the only answer" if the Bible is believed.

However, he says "they ignore the fact that the same Hebrew word, used over 500 times in the Old Testament, is most often translated as 'mankind' or collective 'man'."

They "also ignore... strong statements in Romans and Corinthians," asserting that the first "Adam" is "representative man for sinners just as Christ is the 'second Adam' and the representative man for the saved," Craig says, adding:

"Adam, therefore, is both real and representative man. The same Bible which asserts his historicity also asserts his symbolic and representative character... No answer as to his identity can be given by a simple 'yes' or 'no.' To be honest and complete, the answer must embrace both perspectives."

However, a fundamentalist pastor, the Rev. Bobby Welch of Daytona Beach, Fla., says eradicating "liberalism" would be easy if denominational personnel and seminary professors would "simply answer yes or no" to questions about Bible details.

"But that will never happen, because you would never get the liberals to answer," he told a pre-convention campaign rally. "If a person will not give a straight answer to a straight, honest, fair question, that person is trying to deceive."

However, Craig says its wrongly assumed that "simplistic answers to complex theological questions" would clarify the issues. He adds, "Questions so imprecisely framed only make complexities more chaotic and divert attention from the saving one for the town. Each household is supplied a lightweight yet spacious and sturdy lifted cart by the town. Each householder understands that it's his or her responsibility to get his or her own cart to curbside on his or her designated two pickup days a week. If my cart's full and I forget to put it on the curb, it's my tough luck. If the cart isn't full, I don't put it out. There are many Mondays and Thursdays the garbage truck just rides on by my house. But if my cart's on the curb, it's emptied, with no trash strewn and no one having to walk to the back of my house to check cans whether they're empty or full. Buying a cart for each citizen must have been a big front-end investment for the town, but I'll bet it's paid off. Greenville, check with Frank Bradham, Farmville's town administrator. It may save having to go into a fee-for-service refuse pickup program, after all. People who say they must have back yard pickup haven't experienced the convenience of this program. L.T.

President Saves Saudi Arms Deal With Compromise And Special Plea

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan narrowly saved his plan to sell weapons to Saudi Arabia from a Senate defeat by dropping Stinger missiles from the package and then appealing to Congress to not embarrass him before the world.

Some senators said those two factors were the major reasons why the Senate barely failed Thursday to override Reagan's veto of a congressional resolution blocking the sale. The override vote was 66-34, one short of the two-thirds required for a successful veto override.

The vote means Reagan can go ahead with the reduced package of $265 million worth of Sidewinder air-to-air missiles and Harpoon anti-ship missiles. The weapons will be delivered starting in 1989.

The Saudis originally wanted $1.1 billion worth of planes, tanks and missiles, but the request was scaled back to a package of missiles when congressional opposition arose.

Last month, the package was reduced again, with the Stinger anti-aircraft weapons dropped from the deal after both the Republican-controlled Senate and Democratic-run House voted by overwhelming margins to bar the sale. Congress has never blocked a major arms sale.

Reagan vetoed the disapproval resolution and then lobbied hard to sustain his veto, capping his effort with a breakfast meeting at the White House hours before the vote Thursday. About 75 senators attended. Needing to win in only one chamber, he concentrated on the Senate. The House will not vote now.

Eight senators switched from opposing Reagan last month to support. Reagan also picked up the votes of four senators who were absent last month. On the override motion, 42 Democrats and 24 Republicans supported it, while 29 Republicans and five Democrats stood with Reagan.

One of the eight switches was Sen. William Armstrong, R-Colo., who said he voted with Reagan because the Stingers were taken out of the package.

"I felt that was enough of a concession to make it a close call on my vote," Armstrong said. "It was a fairly close decision for me, but unless there is a clear-cut reason to vote against the president on a foreign policy issue, I tend to give him the benefit of the doubt. The prestige of the presidency is important."

Similar sentiments were voiced by Sens. J. James Exon, D-Neb., and Chic Hecht, R-Nev., two other switches who noted that Reagan's image abroad was on the line.

Hospitalized

Accident victims Charles Edward O'Neal of Greenville and Tyrone Floyd Battles of Cherry Point remain patients in Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

O'Neal, 29, who was wheelchair bound, was hit by a Seaboard Coastline train Wednesday afternoon at an Alley Street railroad crossing. He was listed in fair condition by the hospital this morning.

Battles is reported to have sustained second- and third-degree burns over 30 percent of his body when his car collided with a tree near Simpson early Thursday. He was listed in serious condition this morning by the hospital.

Recycling Collections

The Greenville Recycling Committee reminded residents of the Tar River neighborhood that curbside collection of newspapers, clear glass containers and aluminum cans will be provided Saturday at 8 a.m.

For the entire Greenville-Pitt County community, the same materials will be collected on the same date in the parking lot of Overton's Supermarket on South Jarvis Street between 8 a.m. and noon.

Each of the recyclable materials must be placed in a separate container at curbside and in the Overton's parking lot.

If it rains, the collection will be postponed until the next dry Saturday. The once-a-month service is provided by the recycling committee.

Olajuwon Rallies Rockets By Celts

HOUSTON (AP) — The Boston Celtics have learned what Denver and Los Angeles already know — fight with one of the Houston Rockets' Twin Towers and the other one is likely to deliver a knockout punch.

Enraged by the ejection of 7-foot-4 Ralph Sampson for fighting in the second quarter, the Rockets rallied around 7-0 Akeem Olajuwon and roared to a 111-96 victory Thursday night, keeping the Rockets alive in the NBA title series.

The victory narrowed Boston's lead in the series to 3-2, and returned the best-of-7 series to Boston on Sunday afternoon. Game 7 also would be in Boston, on Wednesday night.

The Celtics easily won the first two games of the series in Boston Garden, where they have lost only once this season under their 15 championship flags that hang from the ceiling.

Houston, which lost in six games to Boston in the 1981 title series, also is marked by history — no team has ever come back from a 3-1 deficit in the championship series.

Thursday's victory marked the third time in the 1986 NBA playoffs that the Rockets have gathered around one Tower when the other was ejected from a game.

Sampson was sent to the dressing room with 9:40 to go in the second quarter following a bench-clearing fight that started between Sampson and Celtics guard Jerry Sichting.

With Sampson gone, the Rockets banded together as they have in the past.

Houston eliminated the Denver Nuggets in the sixth game of their second-round series and the Los Angeles Lakers in the fifth game of the Western Conference championship after Olajuwon had been thrown out of both games for fighting.

"That was the turning point, with Sampson out. The Rockets really stepped up to another level," Boston Coach K.C. Jones said. "When Sampson went out we lost our intensity and the Rockets gained more intensity and took it to us."

Houston led 34-33 when a scuffle broke out.

Sampson battled first with Sichting, then guard Dennis Johnson and finally Celtic center Bill Walton before order was restored.

With Sampson in the dressing room and reserve Jim Petersen in his place on the court, the Rockets outscored the Celtics 20-8 and never trailed again as a deafening capacity crowd of 16,016 roared its approval over Houston's last home game.

"We were not going to lose in front of our fans," said guard Robert Reid, who had 17 assists and 13 points. "I sat right here in 80-81 and heard that team celebrate the championship. I couldn't let that happen here again."

The halftime score was 58-47 and the Rockets stretched that to 86-65 entering the fourth quarter, as Houston outscored Boston in the third quarter for the first time in the series.

What did Rockets Coach Bill Fitch tell the Rockets after the fight?

"The speech was, 'There goes 25 points walking to the dressing room and everyone has to pick it up,'" Fitch said. "For the first time we turned up the meter and got the running game going. We played like there was no tomorrow."

And now there is.

Sampson declined to answer questions about the fight, but in a statement, said he was sorry it happened.

"I'm very emotional and will continue to play emotion," he said. "Somebody jumped at me and I reacted to protect myself."

With Sampson gone, Olajuwon picked up the slack. He had 10 points before the fight, 22 afterward. He also finished with 14 rebounds and eight blocked shots, which tied Walton's nine-year-old championship series record.

Roller Named New ECU SID

Bob Roller, a former assistant sports information director at East Carolina University, has been named as the new SID at the school, ECU Director of Athletics Ken Karr announced Friday.

Roller replaces Bob Gennarelli, who resigned last month to enter private business in Texas.

Roller comes to East Carolina following a two-and-a-half year tenure as sports information director at UNC-Wilmington. Prior to his stint with the Seahawk program, Roller served as an assistant with the Pirates in 1983.

"We are very pleased to have Bob rejoin our athletic staff at East Carolina," Dr. Karr said. "We have followed his progress at Wilmington and hoped we could lure him back to our program."

Roller, 25, is a graduate of Virginia Tech. He and his wife, the former Julie Thornton of Marion, Va., have a one-year-old son Brad.

Roller, a native of Pearisburg, Va., was involved in the sports information work for four years while an undergraduate at VPI. His first appointment following graduation was with East Carolina, where he was involved with the football program in 1983. He left ECU to take the head position at UNCW at the end of football season.

Roller has had several collegiate publications which have been cited by CoSIDA, the College Sports Information Directors of American organization.

Roller began his duties Friday at ECU.

Lyons' Aborted Steal Kills Off Boston Rally

By JOHN NELSON
AP Baseball Writer

Milwaukee Manager George Bamberger was surprised. Surprise wasn't the word to describe Boston Manager John McNamara.

The Red Sox trailed Milwaukee by two runs with two out in the top of the ninth inning. Steve Lyons was at second, Marty Barrett at first and the American League's leading hitter, Wade Boggs, was at bat representing the winning run.

Rich Gedman and Dwight Evans already had hit solo homers off former teammate Mark Clear in the inning when Lyons tried to steal third. Brewers' catcher Rick Cerone threw him out for the final out of the game.

"Things went our way a little bit," Bamberger said ruefully.

McNamara was livid, and there was no pity in his remark.

"He did go on his own," McNamara said of Lyons' steal attempt. "That's twice he's done that. That's one of the stupidest things I've ever seen. There's no reason for that."

McNamara said Lyons would not play center field Friday night for Boston, which had won five in a row.

Lyons had no satisfactory explanation for his baserunning goof. "I was running on my own," he said. "I don't know what I can say that can make it better."

In the rest of the American League, Kansas City beat Minnesota 8-2, Chicago defeated Oakland 9-5 and Baltimore beat Seattle 7-1.

Rookie Bill Wegman scattered six hits over 7 1/3 innings to win his first decision after five losses, and another rookie, Dale Sveum, drove in three of Milwaukee's four runs in the third inning with a bases-loaded double.

Boston had pulled within 5-3 when Rob Deer hit a two-run homer in the eighth inning to give the Brewers a 7-3 cushion.

Royals 8, Twins 2
Kansas City won for the sixth time in seven games to move two games over .500, at 27-25, for the first time since April 20. George Brett homered and drove in four runs, and Scott Bankhead pitched 5 1/3 innings of scoreless ball in relief of Mark Gubicza.

The Twins have lost five of six.

Gubicza threw 13 straight balls and walked in two runs in the second inning before leaving in favor of Bankhead, who scattered five hits and struck out four.

Brett hit the home run, his eighth, off Mike Smithson after Rudy Law walked in the third.

White Sox 9, A's 5
Harold Baines drove in four runs with a sacrifice fly and two singles, and Neil Allen came within two outs of pitching his first shutout since 1983, when he was with St. Louis.

Allen was wracked for five runs with one out in the ninth inning and left after giving up 11 hits.

Greg Walker homered for the White Sox, who had lost three in a row and have won only two of their last 12.

Tony Phillips and Bruce Bochte each had two-run singles as the A's cut the final margin to four runs in the ninth, and Jose Canseco hit a sacrifice fly off reliever Bob James.

Orioles 7, Mariners 1
Lee Lacy had two RBI, including one with a single in a five-run fifth inning, to lead Baltimore over the Mariners. The Orioles have won 18 of their last 24 games.

Storm Davis allowed one run in eight innings for the victory.

Mike Young homered for the Orioles, and Ken Phelps hit one for the Mariners. Eight of Phelps' 14 hits this season are homers.

NCSU Runner Tries Suicide

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Kathy Ormsby, a promising distance runner from North Carolina State, remained in serious condition today with spinal injuries, following an admitted suicide attempt — the reason for which still is a mystery.

The 21-year-old Ormsby has been in the surgery intensive care unit at Wishard Memorial Hospital since Wednesday night when she jumped off a bridge, following what she considered a disappointing performance in the 10,000-meter race during the NCAA Outdoor Track and Field Championships.

A statement from Ormsby's parents, Dale and Sallie Ormsby, issued Thursday through the hospital, said their daughter "suffered a spinal injury with spinal cord damage and chest injuries."

EC Runners' Bids Fail

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — East Carolina University's Lee Vernon McNeill failed to qualify for the finals in the 200-meter dash and the ECU 400-meter relay team also failed to advance in action yesterday at the NCAA Track and Field Championships.

McNeill, along with brother Engene McNeill, Chris Brooks and Nathan McCorkle, finished sixth in their heat in the relay. The Pirates were timed in 39.96, slower than their 39.66 qualifying time.

McNeill took fourth place in his heat of the 200-meter relay. He had qualified in a time of 20.6 second. His time in the trials was not available, but was at least slower than the 20.7 run by N.C. State's Danny Peebles, who took second in the same heat.

McNeill also qualified for the 100-meter dash in a time of 10.23. That event is still to be run.

Greene Central Takes 1st Game

SNOW HILL — Greene Central's girls' softball team moved within one victory of the state 1A/2A championship Thursday night with a 6-1 romp over Newton-Conover.

Greene Central, now 25-2, won the Eastern championship last week while Newton-Conover, now 20-4, captured the Western title, moving them into this week's best-of-three series for the state championship.

A win in tonight's 6 p.m. game would wrap it up for the Lady Rams, while a loss would set up a final game Saturday at 2 p.m.

Greene Central jumped into the lead in the first inning, scoring a single run. Chanel Hooker, Denise Warren and Renee Sullivan each got base hits, loading the bases. Stephanie Streeter then reached on an error, allowing Hooker to score.

Greene Central added two more in the third inning, taking a 3-0 advantage. Trenette Daniels and Hooker both singled and Sullivan reached on an error, loading them up. Streeter followed with a double, driving in both Daniels and Hooker.

The final Lady Ram runs opened in the fifth. Denise Warren opened the inning with a homer. Sullivan followed with a single and scored when Streeter hit a two-run homer.

The lone Newton-Conover run came in the seventh off a solo homer by C. Cranford.

Denise Warren, Laticia Warren, Hooker, Sullivan and Streeter each had two hits to pace Greene Central while T. England and Cranford each collected two for Newton-Conover.

Garvey Suffers First Ejection

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

The Atlanta Braves' first triple play in eight years resulted in four outs. San Diego's Tony Gwynn, Kevin McReynolds and Leon Roberts were thrown out on the bases, and teammate Steve Garvey was thrown out of the game for arguing.

"It's unbelievable. I didn't say anything," said Garvey, ejected from a game for the first time in his 16-year major-league career. "I didn't realize I had been thrown out of the game until I was tossing the ball around the infield."

The Braves, with their triple play and a strong effort by pitcher Zane Smith, went on to beat San Diego 4-2 Thursday night.

In other National League games, New York beat Pittsburgh 7-0, Philadelphia downed Montreal 7-3, St. Louis held off Chicago 4-3 and Los Angeles nipped Houston 1-0.

With visiting Atlanta leading 2-1, Roberts led off the third inning with a single and took third on a single by Gwynn. McReynolds followed with a grounder back to Smith, who threw to second baseman Glenn Hubbard for a forceout

Hubbard relayed to first baseman Bob Horner for the second out while Roberts broke for the plate. Horner threw to catcher Ozzie Virgil and Roberts slid under the tag but missed the plate. Virgil then tagged out Roberts.

Roberts, Padres' Manager Steve Boros and Garvey, who was the on-deck batter, began arguing with home plate umpire Charlie Williams. Moments later, Williams ejected Garvey.

"I had a good angle. I saw Bip (Roberts) dodge the catcher and his hand go across home plate so I thought it was a run," Garvey said. "Bip argued and I came out and showed him (Williams) where the hand went."

"I just showed him where the hand went across the plate. In the realm of what it takes to get thrown out of a game, I'm quite sure this is a bare minimum," Garvey said.

Williams said he tossed out Garvey because of the way he protested the call.

"He comes up and starts arguing about the play," Williams said. "I told him to get out of there. Then he starts drawing his pictures and showing me up. I couldn't care less about Garvey and what he feels and what he does. I've got to run a ballgame."

The triple play was the first for Atlanta since July 15, 1978, against Philadelphia. The Padres had not hit into a triple play since Aug. 23, 1982, versus Pittsburgh.

Smith, 5-5, gave up a run in the first inning before checking San Diego until Carmelo Martinez led off the ninth with his fifth home run of the season. The homer was the first allowed by Smith in 98 2-3 innings this year and first off the left-hander since May 18, 1985.

Martinez's homer was the sixth basehit of the game off Smith. Reliever Gene Garber replaced Smith after the home run and got his fourth save.

The Braves went ahead 2-1 in the second inning on RBI singles by Hubbard and Smith off Dave Dravecky, 5-5.

Andres Thomas singled home a run in the third and Hubbard's run-scoring single in the eighth off Lance McCullers made it 4-1.

Mets 7, Pirates 0
Bob Ojeda pitched a five-hitter for his first NL shutout and George Foster kept up his home-run streak with a two-run blast that led visiting New York over Pittsburgh.

Ojeda, 7-2, struck out three and walked three in throwing his second complete game.

Foster's 10th homer of the season gave the visiting Mets a 2-0 lead in the second inning. It was Foster's sixth home run in his last 10 games.

New York, in winning for the ninth time in 10 games, scored five more runs in the fourth, helped by right fielder Mike Brown's two-run error.

Dodgers 1, Astros 0

Rick Honeycutt pitched two-hit ball for eight innings and reliever Ken Howell pitched a hitless ninth as Los Angeles beat visiting Houston.

Honeycutt, 3-3, retired the first 13 Astro batters and finished with seven strikeouts and one walk. Howell got his third save.

The host Dodgers managed only three hits off Manny Hernandez, who was making his major-league debut, and two relievers.

Steve Sax led off the Los Angeles sixth with a triple and scored when Ken Landreaux followed with a sacrifice fly.

Phillies 7, Expos 3

Darren Daulton hit a three-run homer that capped a five-run first inning and Glenn Wilson added a two-run shot, powering Philadelphia over Montreal.

The Phillies won for the ninth time in 10 games and sent the host Expos to their fifth straight loss.

Philadelphia got five of its ten hits in the first inning. Juan Samuel tripled home the first run and scored on Mike Schmidt's single. Daulton hit his eighth homer of the season against Montreal starter Jay Tibbs, 3-2.

Wilson's fifth homer knocked out Tibbs in the fifth. Dan Schatzeder, who relieved Tibbs, hit a two-run homer in the bottom of the fifth off Charles Hudson, 4-3.

Cardinals 4, Cubs 3

Bob Forsch tied Hall of Famer Dizzy Dean for fifth place on the all-time St. Louis victory list, helped by a two-run triple by Andy Van Slyke and Ozzie Smith's two-run double, as the Cardinals topped visiting Chicago.

Forsch, 5-3, won his 134th career game — including an 18-8 lifetime mark against the Cubs. Todd Worrell got the final four outs for his ninth save.

Smith's double gave the Cardinals a 2-0 lead in the fourth against Matt Keough, 2-2. Keough started in place of Dennis Eckersley, who suffered back spasms while warming up.

Van Slyke tripled in the seventh for a 4-0 lead.

The Cubs, who had not scored in 22 2-3 consecutive innings, got three runs in the eighth. Keith Moreland and Leon Durham hit RBI singles and another scored on an error by Van Slyke in right field, his first miscue in 131 games.

Martina, Chrissy Meet For Title

PARIS (AP) — Two weeks of unpredictability are about to be capped by the most predictable event in tennis.

Martina Navratilova and Chris Evert Lloyd are meeting for another championship.

This time, it's the French Open, and Saturday's meeting will be their fourth final on the red clay of Roland Garros, the 14th time they have played each other for a Grand Slam championship and the 69th head-to-head meeting of their careers.

It still means something special to the participants.

"If I was playing anyone else, I would probably go in with a lot more confidence," Lloyd, the defending champion and a six-time winner in Paris, said. "But if I would win a Grand Slam title, it would mean the most to me to beat Martina in the final. She's No. 1."

Navratilova lost to Lloyd in last year's final.

"It's not water under the dam, because I will always remember that match," Navratilova said of their classic meeting in 1985. "When you lose a title you want to win it even more the next time."

This time, their meeting will be the climax of a tournament that has seen a 14-year-old beat a No. 4 seed; a Swede who won collegiate titles in Georgia outlast the defending champion from his homeland; and weather that usually spans three seasons come and go in the space of two hours.

Navratilova, who has won the French Open twice, and Lloyd, the second seed, had vastly different matches in Thursday's semifinals.

Helena Sukova, the No. 6 seed from Czechoslovakia, had Navratilova on the ropes, winning the first set and leading the second set tiebreaker 4-3 but Navratilova rebounded to win 6-4, 7-6, 6-2.

For Lloyd, the semifinals were simple. She blasted another Czechoslovak seed, No. 5 Hana Mandlikova, 6-1, 6-1.

The field for Sunday's men's championship was to be filled today from a rather unusual cast.

Top-seeded Ivan Lendl was to face No. 13 Johan Kriek, the only American among the men's seeds, and Henri Leconte, seeded eighth but a surprise as the lone surviving Frenchman in the tournament, was to meet Mikael Pernfors, a two-time NCAA champion at the University of Georgia and the only Swedish player left in an event won last year by countryman Mats Wilander.

The tournament started May 26 with temperatures in the 80s and a beaming sun.

Since then, however, springtime in Paris has been far from paradise weatherwise.

Thursday was a fine example.

Navratilova's match started in bright sunshine on center court, continued as clouds rolled in and was stopped for 30 minutes because of a chilling rain. It ended in sunshine again, but by the time Lloyd finished dismantling Mandlikova, thunder could be heard in the distance and the temperature was dropping.

Navratilova's game was almost as flighty as the weather.

Sukova started by breaking the top seed in the first and third games and was never in serious trouble winning the opening set, charging the net at every opportunity.

Navratilova was sluggish. She followed an ace with a double fault, a cross-court winner with a volley into the net.

"The early part of the match was frustrating," Navratilova said. "I thought I could break her every time, and I wound up losing my serve."

She looked much better in the second set, exchanging two service breaks with Sukova and generally playing more the type of game that has made her No. 1 in the world.

Still, Sukova jumped to a 4-3 lead in the tiebreaker and needed just three points to make it to her second Grand Slam final. She never got there.

Former EC Aide Goes To Cornell

ITHICA, N.Y. — Al Walker, former assistant basketball coach at East Carolina University, has been named to the same position at Cornell University.

Walker joins the staff of Mike Dement, named earlier this spring as the new coach for the Big Red. Both served this past year as assistants on the ECU cage staff.

Walker is a 1981 graduate of the State University of New York at Brockport, where he was a two-year captain of the basketball team and earned SUNY Athletic Conference All-Star recognition both years. The led the conference in rebounding his senior season and graduated magna cum lauda, and was an NCAA post-graduate scholarship finalist.

A native of Brooklyn, he was a member of the U.S. team that won a gold medal at the 1981 Maccabiah Games, remaining in Israel to serve as a head coach in the Israeli National Youth League.

Walker attended the University of North Carolina in 1983-84, earning his master's degree, working with the junior varsity program of the Tar Heels. He joined the ECU staff in the summer of 1984, serving with the Pirates until this spring.

Dement came to ECU last summer from Cornell, where he had served as an assistant coach, returning in April to the head job when it became open.

East Carolina is now in the process of replacing both Dement and Walker on its staff.

Jockey Believes Rampage Can Win

NEW YORK (AP) — Jockey Pat Day thinks Rampage can win Saturday's Belmont Stakes, but trainer Gary Thomas wishes the 1 1/2-mile race was a week later.

Rampage hasn't raced since finishing fourth in the 1 1/4-mile Kentucky Derby May 3 at Churchill Downs and the reason for the five-week layoff, Thomas said, was the rough trip the colt had in Derby.

Rampage was topped at least three times, Thomas said.

"When Shoemaker (Bill Shoemaker riding winner Ferdinand) went through (a hole) Rampage had to stop. When they left the quarter pole, they were head to head. He got through and we didn't."

"He doing OK," Thomas said of his colt, who won the Arkansas Derby. "He had a hard trip, but he's coming back."

"I blew him out this morning a half mile and he's looking good, feeling good, and I think he's going to win on Saturday," Day said.

But, said Thomas, "If I had another week to get another race in him, everybody would feel better. That layoff is what it all boils down to."

However, Rampage was made the early 9-2 third choice in the field of 10 3-year-olds behind Ferdinand, 9-5, and Mogambo, 4-1.

The co-fourth early pick at 6-1 are Danzig Connection and Johns Treasure. Others entered Thursday were Personal Flag, Fobby Forbes, Parade Marshal, Bordeaux Bob and Imperious Spirit.

Missing will be Snow Chief, the beaten Kentucky Derby favorite, who won the Preakness and Jersey Derby.

Post time for the 118th Belmont will be 5:38 p.m. EDT. The field will be scale-weighted at 126 pounds and if 10 start, the purse will be $564,400, with $338,640 to the winner.

ABC will televise the Belmont from 5 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Shoemaker, who will again ride Ferdinand, will be trying for a record-tying sixth Belmont victory in his 11th appearance, while Woody Stephens, the trainer of Danzig Connection, will be gunning for his fifth consecutive Belmont triumph.

Ferdinand, owned by Mrs. Howard B. Keck, followed his victory in the Derby by finishing second in the Preakness, four lengths behind Snow Chief.

Stephens, who says, "I don't have as good a chance this year," will send Henryk deKwiatkowski's Danzig Connection into the Belmont off a third, second and first in three starts this year, all in the month of May. In his last race on May 25, the colt, who will be ridden by Chris McCarron, won the 1 1/8-mile Peter Pan at Belmont.

Peter M. Brant's Mogambo, ridden by Jose Santos, followed his 10th-place finish in the Kentucky Derby with a second to Snow Chief in the Jersey Derby.

John's Treasure, owned by John Rals Murrell and ridden by Laffit Pincay, bucked his shins last August and did not race as a 2-year-old. This year he has two wins and two seconds in four starts. In his last race, he won a one-mile allowance by 8 1/4 lengths in 1:35 on May 25 at Belmont.

John's Treasure is trained by 79-year-old Walter Kelly. Charlie Whittingham, trainer of Ferdinand, is 73, and Stephens is 72.

Stephens record four straight Belmont victories were with Conquistador Cielo in 1982, Caveat, Kentucky Derby winner Swale and Creme Fraiche. James Rowe's eight Belmont victories, the last in 1913, is the most for a trainer.

Shoemaker could tie James McLaughlin, who rode in the 1880s, and Eddie Arcaro for the most winning rides in the Belmont. Shoemaker's five victories were with Gallant Man, 1957; Sword Dancer, 1959; Jaipur, 1962; Damascus, 1967, and Avatar, 1975.

'Hiking With Mike' Scheduled

By JOHN J. O'CONNOR
N.Y. Times News Service
NEW YORK — The six-part series "In Search of the Trojan War," which begins on many public-television stations Saturday evening, could be subtitled "Hiking With Mike and His Backpack." The host and the writer is Michael Wood, who seems to have decided that being scholarly might be fine but becoming a television personality is even better. The result is a startlingly odd clash between style and substance.

Wood's credentials for this complicated historical and archeological tour are certainly promising. Raised in Manchester, England, he studied history at Oxford University. He even did postgraduate work but, because of money problems, never completed a thesis on the Anglo-Saxon period. Instead, in 1973, he became a reporter for Yorkshire Television and later went to BBC Manchester where, in 1979, he produced the well-received documentary "In Search of the Dark Ages," the prototype for these 1985 essays on the Trojan War.

That war has, of course, been given immortality in the poetry of Homer. But, apart from determining if Homer ever existed, there remains the question of whether the poetry is describing fact or myth. Wood traces most of the evidence that has been unearthed to date. As for his own views on the subject, he recalls that he began the series believing that Homer's Greece was obscured beneath an "impenetrable mist" that many scholars had long been confronting. In the end, however, after months of filming in Greece and Turkey, Wood decided that the legend was substantially correct. He now sees the recorded details of the Trojan War as "increasingly likely rather than increasingly unlikely." Research and debates continue, but the ongoing story is fascinating.

There are, however, formidable hurdles to be faced in bringing that story to television. "Visual opportunities" are decidedly limited. The "shattered ruins of Troy" that Wood finds at the Hill of Hissarlik on the coast of Asiatic Turkey add up, at first glance, to little more than peacefully rolling hills, dotted with mounds of rubble and debris. To bring some drama to the picture, Mr. Wood and his producer-director, Bill Lyons, employ a musical score inspired by the Cecil B. DeMille school of film theatrics. One begins to squirm uneasily. But this is nothing compared with the sequence, later in the first episode, in which we see what is supposed to be the death mask of Agamemnon. Here the music is supplemented with great slashes of thunder and lightning.

And then there is Wood himself. In his mid-30s, he looks as if he could be in his mid-20s. Youthfully slender, his blond hair artfully blow-dried, wearing blue jeans, he might be a middle-of-the-road rock star (and, in fact, he did play lead guitar in a Manchester-based group called the Johnny Angel Band).

Statue Coverage Opposed

NEW YORK (AP) — When the refurbished Statue of Liberty is unveiled July 3, she'll be pretty as a picture. But the latest battle among the networks involves who gets to take some of those pictures.

"We're celebrating a statue that personifies freedom, yet the freedom of the press is being abridged," said Jane Maxwell, CNN's director of special events. "All we want is access to the public officials who are at this event of national importance and national interest. We object to the news event being packaged, tied up in a ribbon and sold."

The dispute centers on what parts of Liberty Weekend, the 100th birthday celebration for the Statue of Liberty, are exclusive to ABC because of its $10 million payment to the organizers of the event and what parts are legitimate news that should be open to equal coverage opportunity for all. Roone Arledge, president of ABC News, said the extravaganza is part spectacle and part genuine news. CBS, NBC and Cable News Network want more of the news than they're getting.

Lloyd Siegel, NBC News' executive producer of special broadcasts, said NBC only wants "access to public officials doing public acts. ... We're not trying to grab hold of the entertainment portions."

Last week, the Washington bureau chiefs of CBS, NBC and CNN sent a letter to White House spokesman Larry Speakes. One request was access to the July 3 opening ceremony remarks of Interior Secretary Donald Hodel and Lee Iacocca, chairman of the Statue of Liberty-Ellis Island Foundation. Speakes said Thursday that "as much as possible should be open to all media."

Pelton Convicted Of Spying

2 BALTIMORE (AP) — Ronald W. Pelton's conviction of espionage for selling the Soviets secrets about U.S. electronic eavesdropping strengthens the FBI's ability to catch and jail spies, federal prosecutors say.

Pelton, 44, convicted Thursday of four counts but acquitted of a fifth, faces a maximum three life prison terms plus 10 years when he is sentenced July 28 in U.S. District Court.

Pelton sat slumped in his chair, holding his chin in his hand as the verdict was announced after 13 hours of deliberations over two days.

"He's disappointed," said defense attorney Fred Warren Bennett. "I saw some tears welling up in his eyes, and it was obviously a tough thing to stomach."

Bennett said he would appeal the conviction, vowing to carry to the Supreme Court, if necessary, his argument that the FBI tricked Pelton into confessing by making him think he was being recruited as a double agent.

Pelton was accused of receiving $35,000 from KGB agents for divulging secrets between 1980 and 1985 gained during his 14-year career as a technician at the National Security Agency.

The jury convicted him of conspiracy, espionage, attempted espionage and unauthorized disclosure of communications intelligence. Without explaining, it acquitted him of a count that charged he transferred "information relating to the national defense of the United States of America" to the KGB.

Vitaly Yurchenko, a KGB colonel who defected and later returned to Moscow, tipped off authorities to Pelton, the government has said.

Much of the prosecution's courtroom effort was aimed at countering the defense argument that Pelton's rights were violated when he was interrogated Nov. 24 by two FBI agents at an Annapolis hotel. The defense said Pelton was tricked into admitting he sold U.S. secrets. He was arrested the next day.

The odds on a simple finesse succeeding are 50 percent; either the player you are finessing against has the key card or his partner does. However, that does not mean that all finesses are equal. There are a number of reasons why you might choose one over another.

Suppose you get to three no trump via the auction shown. You and your partner both have balanced hands worth a minimum opening bid and no eight-card major-suit fit, so the no trump game is a natural contract to reach.

West leads his fourth-best heart, you try the jack (after all, the opening lead could be from the king-queen) and capture East's king with your ace; there is no point to a hold-up. You can take finesses in spades and diamonds. As a matter of fact, you can hook the diamond either way. What do you plan to do?

First, if you plan to take the diamond finesse, it is correct to lead to the ace and then finesse. That way you can bring in the suit even if East has queen-fourth, and you give yourself the chance of dropping a bare queen.

However, you can improve your odds considerably by opting to take the spade finesse. Why? Because you can combine that with trying to drop the queen of diamonds!

At trick two, lead a diamond to the ace and return the suit to your king. If the lady is fickle and does not appear, you will have to fall back on the spade finesse. Once in a while, however, the cards are going to lie as they do in the diagram above. One of your opponents is going to hold the doubleton queen, and you will have nine tricks without having to resort to a finesse.
