Blacks Stage Strike Throughout S. Africa

By DAVID CRARY
Associated Press Writer
JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Millions of blacks, confronted with the harshest government crackdown ever, today staged a nationwide strike to mark the 10th anniversary of riots in Soweto that galvanized the anti-apartheid struggle.

Anglican Bishop Desmond Tutu, the nation's leading black anti-apartheid activist, told about 500 white supporters at St. Mary's Cathedral that the government is "trampling our dignity under foot and rubbing our noses in the dust."

Noting the government banned gatherings to mark the Soweto uprising, the Nobel Peace Prize winner thanked those who came to the nation's main Anglican church for "vicariously enabling black people to commemorate this day." The service proceeded without interference from security forces.

Major cities and townships across the nation were deserted as the general strike brought commerce to a halt. Telephone service to many major black townships was cut off.

The government clamped strict controls on the media, limiting journalists' movements and their access to information. But local journalists reported incidents of stone-throwing, gasoline bombings and buses being burned in townships near Cape Town and Durban.

Government officials said there had been no major disturbances since daybreak. They said police fired tear gas into a crowded Cape Town mosque late Sunday after snipers fired at officers.

Government spokesman Leon Mellet said at a news conference in Pretoria that no one had been killed since 6 a.m. (midnight Sunday EDT).

No Ruling From Court On Gramm-Rudman

By JAMES H. RUBIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite a broadcast report that it was about to strike down a key provision of the law requiring a balanced budget by 1991, the Supreme Court issued no ruling today on the constitutionality of the deficit-reduction statute.

ABC News reported Sunday that the court would announce in a 7-2 ruling this morning that the legislation violates the constitutional separation-of-powers doctrine.

The court had announced previously it would hand down three decisions today. But it announced only two, neither involving the Gramm-Rudman balanced budget law.

Asked for comment after today's decisions were announced, ABC News Washington bureau chief George Watson said the network stood behind its report.

"Tim O'Brien also pointed out in his report last night that the decision had been made, and was scheduled to be made today, and that, in the past, leaks had caused the court to delay the scheduled announcement."

The network had reported that the court was about to announce a decision striking down the law's provision giving important powers to the comptroller general, an officer of Congress.

Such a decision would uphold the Feb. 7 ruling of a special three-judge federal court.

Under the law, passed by Congress

Damage Charges Await Men

Three men — two from Virginia and one from Maryland — were to be charged today with causing an estimated $35,000 damage to North Pitt High School and stealing a school van June 12, Sheriff Ralph Tyson said this morning.

Tyson said the three men — Charles Cain, 20, and William L. Sample, 16, both of Hampton, Va., and Franklin C. Booker, 21, of Oxon Hill, Md. — were taken into custody by Horry County, S.C., authorities about 8:06 p.m. Friday in connection with an attempted robbery in Loris, S.C. about 6 miles south of the North Carolina state line.

Tyson, who went to South Carolina Saturday to continue the investigation of the North Pitt incident, said the three would probably be charged with breaking and entering, auto larceny, unlawful burning and damage to real property.

He said a school van, taken after a truck stolen from Maryland last Tuesday night was driven through the school building and then burned, has not been recovered.

Tyson said Friday that the damage to the school was discovered after a motorist passing the school about 12:30 a.m. Friday saw flames coming from a truck and reported the fire.

That led officers to discover that the truck had been driven into the building through the doors at the south end of the school, then along the hallway and back out of the building through the doors at the north end of the corridor.

The truck had also been driven into a screening wall of a fieldhouse dressing room located about 50 feet from the north end of the school before the vehicle was set afire.

Several of the rooms in the school had been vandalized and shots fired into the gas tank area of the truck while the vehicle was inside the building, Tyson said.

Welcome Rainfall

By JANE WELBORN
Reflector Staff Writer
Thunderstorms and heavy summer showers brought relief from the dry weather and high temperatures this weekend.

Rainfall was scattered throughout the area, with some local rain gauges measuring two inches of precipitation after driving rainstorms Saturday.

No rainfall was recorded at the Greenville Utilities Water Plant on Greene Street from 8 a.m. Thursday through 8 a.m. Saturday. During the day Saturday .58 inch was measured, and from 8 a.m. Sunday to 8 a.m. Monday, .16 inch of precipitation was measured at the site.

According to measurements taken at WNCT-TV on Evans Street Extension, Saturday's rainfall was .67 inch, and precipitation recorded Sunday was .39 inch. Jim Woods, the television station's weatherman, said a total of 1.77 inches of rain has fallen at the recording station this month.

The high temperature recorded Friday at the water plant was 95 degrees, and the low was 73 degrees. Saturday's high was 89 and the low recording was 70, and temperatures Sunday ranged from 71 to 84 degrees.

Roger Jones, director of electric systems for GUC, said no major problems were caused by the scattered storms. A tree blew across an elec-

Power Plant Officials Fired, Pravda Reports

MOSCOW (AP) — Managers of the Chernobyl power plant failed to enforce discipline and control in the face of the nuclear accident there, and have been fired, the Communist Party newspaper Pravda said.

In its Sunday editions, the Communist Party newspaper did not specify how many officials had been dismissed, but it criticized five top managers, the head of the plant's Communist youth organization, and the plant's trade union leader.

Pravda also said some workers from the plant were still "on the run" after the April 26 explosion and fire. Previous reports have said some people fled instead of responding to the emergency.

The Pravda report was the first to announce firings related to the explosion and fire at the plant's No. 4 reactor, although previous reports have mentioned new plant officials.

The newspaper, however, did not say if management shortcomings could have caused or contributed to the accident at the plant in the Ukraine about 80 miles north of Kiev.

Students Compete For Jobs

By HIH SONG KIM

Summertime often brings a rise in employment interest among high school and college students, but this heightened interest doesn't always correlate to an increase in employment opportunities.

As Rose High School's vocational/career counselor Jane Dodge said, "there just don't seem to be enough jobs to fill the demand."

Becky Brittle, vocational and Job

This is the second of a two-part series on how local young people are entering the summer employment scene.

Training Partnership Act counselor at North Pitt High School, echoed that forecast, saying, "the jobs may be out there, but the competition is extremely stiff."

Employment agencies serve as a resource for some students seeking jobs. Manpower Temporary Services office director Kay Warren Gay reports "about a ten percent increase" in the number of college students calling about employment now. "With the students out of school, there has been a definite increase in interest," Ms. Gay said.

High school students, however, are not as likely to benefit from temporary employment services, job locaters said. According to Bill Sneed of Anne's Temporaries, Inc., "we can't really help them (high school students)." Federal insurance stipulations for minors and the frequent lack of previous work experience deter high school students from utilizing such services, according to Sneed.

The Employment Security Commission and Dial-a-Teen attempt to find jobs for high schoolers. Tom

Robertson-Cox Vows Solemnized Saturday

Lynn Moseley Cox of Maury was the bride of Terry Richard Robertson of Maury Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock at the home of the bridegroom. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. C.W. Goodwin. The guitarist was Richard Mooring of Farmville, and the soloist was David Scott of Greenville. The songs sung during the ceremony were "You needed me" and "There is Love."

Parents of the couple are Mrs. Joe Mills of Greenville and Mr. Lindsay Moseley of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., and Mrs. Bettie Roberson of Boise, Idaho, and the late Mr. R.W. Robertson.

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride wore a formal length gown of white illusion and Chantilly lace designed with an open neckline outlined in Chantilly lace and satin ribbon. The long tapered sleeves were fashioned of matching lace and illusion featuring pearl button closures at the wrist. The modified waistline was encircled with an inserted band of French Chantilly lace bordered in satin ribbon which tied in the back with a bow and streamers. The full circular skirt was accentuated by a flounced hemline of Chantilly lace and illusion. She wore a bridal hat overlaid in silk organza embroidered in a floral motif centered with pearls and aurora borealis beads. The crown was also trimmed in imported French netting with a hat band of satin soutache braid in a loop pattern entirely beaded with pearls. A cluster of silk flowers accented the brim. A French pouf bow of netting enhanced the back of the hat which featured waltz length streamers of bridal illusion with a pencil edged border. She carried a bouquet of silk sweetheart roses accented with baby's breath and miniature carnations tied with white satin ribbons and french lace. She also wore a pearl necklace and earrings given to her by the bridegroom.

The honor attendant was Karen Boyd of Greenville, and the flower girl was Kim Cox of Maury, daughter of the bride. They wore blue sleeveless gowns with a scooped neckline trimmed in ruffles and a full skirt trimmed in ruffles with long white satin ribbons tied in the back. They wore hallows of miniature carnations, roses and baby's breath with satin streamers.

The best man was Maehew Haddock of Winterville, and ushers were Jerry Williams and Mike Shade, both of Chicago.

The mother of the bride wore an aqua blue chiffon dress with a corsage of silk carnations and baby's breath.

A reception was held at the home, hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Nobles and Mr. and Mrs. Maehew Haddock. A pig picking followed the reception.

The refreshment table was covered with silk cloth trimmed in eyelet lace overlaid with white chiffon and ribbons centered with ivy, crystal bells and a crystal candleabra. Cake was served by Pat Haddock, and punch was served by Peggy Nobles. They also directed the wedding. The photographer was Calvin Mayo of Farmville.

John and Tammy Dennison of Farmville, sister and brother-in-law of the bridegroom, presided at the register. The mother of the bride made all corsages and Georgia Askew made all the bows. Rice bags were distributed by Manda Nobles of Winterville and Billie Jean Reynold of Greenville. Dresses were made by Chris Ridenour of Farmville. Greetings were said by Mr. and Mrs. Michael Shade of Chicago.

At the wedding cruise to the Bahamas, the couple will live in Maury. The bride is a graduate of Pitt Community College and will operate a Children's Day Care Center in Maury. The bridegroom is a graduate of Rock Valley College, Illinois, and is employed at Sterling Radiator of Farmville.

Couple Exchanges Vows In Sunday Ceremony

Rhonda Ann Hall and David Wayne Hodges were united in marriage Sunday at 3 p.m. in Timothy Christian Church. The Rev. Stanley Gibson officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Willard Ray Hall of Greenville and the late Ann Brown Hall. Her stepmother is Pat Hall. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hagon Hodges of Route 2, Ayden.

A program of wedding music was performed by Wilma Smith, organist. Soloist Paul Haddock sang "O Perfect Love," "I'll Walk With God" and "The Wedding Prayer."

The bride was escorted and given in marriage by her father. She wore a formal length gown of white satin designed with a portrail neckline outlined in a ruffle of chantilly lace. The French pouf sleeves featured a double ruffle of white lace extending to the elbow accented with a bow of white satin. The full circular skirt was styled with an overskirt of white satin edged in a satin ruffle trimmed in chantilly lace. The overskirt featured a draped effect centered with white satin bows. She wore a fingertip length veil of silk illusion trimmed with scattered seed pearls; the veil was attached to a floral headpiece accented with sprays of pearls. She carried her grandmother's white Bible covered with a white orchid and white ribbon streamers.

The bride's maid of honor was Sherry Williams of Greenville. Bridesmaids were Ann Hodges of Arnoldsburg, W.Va., and Terry Hodges of Greenville, both sisters-in-law of the bridegroom, and Rhonda Stokes of Ayden.

The maid of honor and bridesmaids wore identical violet floor length dresses of Fantanza lined in acetate taffeta. The dresses featured a double layer of ruffles at the off the shoulder neckline and had raised waists with ribbon belt ties. The full skirts were flounced and had a bustle effect. Each attendant carried an arm bouquet of pink carnations and lavender daisies.

Flower girl Jo Beth Bryant wore a violet dress of Fantanza with a shirred sweetheart neckline and ribbon belt tie. Tiers of ruffles in the back of the dress formed a small train. She carried a white basket with ribbon trim on the handle filled with white, lavender and blue silk flowers.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were Ray Hall of Ayden, brother of the bride, and Henry Hodges of Arnoldsburg, W.Va., and Michael Hodges of Greenville, both brothers of the bridegroom. Timmy Pollard of Greenville was ringbearer.

The stepmother of the bride wore a pink tea length dress of scallop-edged polyester over acetate satin featuring a cummerbund with a back bow. The mother of the groom wore a long lavender dress with an overblouse of sheer nylon with a lace collar and cuffs. Both mothers wore pink carnation corsages.

A single candle was placed in the baptistry window to honor the memory of the bride's mother.

The wedding was directed by Sybil Morris.

A reception was held after the ceremony in the church fellowship hall. Guests were greeted by Janice Adams, who presided at the register. Punch was served by Susan Hall, cousin of the bride. Debbie Hall and Michelle Hall said goodbyes.

A dinner was given by the parents of the bridegroom in the fellowship hall of the church prior to the wedding rehearsal.

After returning from a wedding trip, the couple will reside at Route 4, Greenville.

The bride is a 1986 graduate of East Carolina University, and is a laboratory technologist at Pitt County Memorial Hospital. The bridegroom is a 1985 graduate of ECU pursuing a master's degree in psychology there. He is employed in the Psychology Department at ECU.

DEAR ABBY: This concerns the case of the prospective buyer of a secondhand car who asked if he could test-drive the car around the block, then drove off, never to return.

An obvious point was overlooked. If the seller gives the keys to a prospective buyer, and that person fails to return the car, the seller's insurance company will not consider the car stolen, and, therefore, will not reimburse the seller for the loss. — BEEN THERE IN SANTA BARBARA

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow in my mid-50s. I have seven fine sons — the youngest is 21. I raised them in a four-bedroom-and-den dwelling, until one by one they graduated, found suitable employment and moved into their own apartments with my blessings.

Some are artists, some blue-collar technicians, still others are university graduates and professionals.

I am alone now, have a good job and secure future. My problem? Abby, you would be aghast should you enter my home. It is filled with trophies, certificates of merit, and dozens of awards for athletic and academic achievements. There are rooms filled with sporting equipment for baseball, basketball, football, tennis, golf, boxing, hiking, skiing, fishing and hunting. There are books, artists' supplies, a backgammon table, chess sets, dice, poker chips, playing cards, musical instruments and music books. Need I go on?

I have begged them individually and collectively to come and get their stuff. This house has served its purpose, and I'd like to sell or rent it to a large family. Then I'd find myself a small efficiency apartment and live happily ever after. I am appealing to you, Abby. How can I get my sons to act? They all say they will "soon," but soon never comes. — CARMEN IN LOS ANGELES

GWEN

The threat of nuclear war scares us to death, just as it does any rational person.

We have to wonder, nevertheless, just how important the Ground Wave Emergency Network can be in the overall picture of nuclear destruction. It has become important enough to one group that it has mounted an extensive public campaign to halt the construction of a GWEN tower near New Bern. Their efforts have included appearances before public bodies, an informational meeting billed as a public hearing at City Hall and extensive dissemination of information in other ways.

The efforts are aimed at halting construction of a communications systems designed to withstand a nuclear war. Will halting the construction of the communications tower make this area any safer from nuclear holocaust? We doubt it. Will the tower be the target of a nuclear warhead? That seems unlikely when there are so many other high priority targets around.

We would be the last to shrug off the dangers of a nuclear conflict. If missiles were launched full scale it would hardly mean much to any of us exactly where they fell. There is a good chance the atmosphere would be poisoned with radiation and some believe the sun would be blocked out for many years, almost certainly changing all life on earth as we know it.

On the other hand it might be that GWEN would prove valuable in the case of some limited attack and it might provide the critical information which would save many of us. At any rate it doesn't appear to add or take away much from the threat of nuclear annihilation at this point.

There are obviously those whose concern for GWEN is to the point where they wish to sound the alarm. That is their right in a democracy. We have to wonder, though, if most of us have reason to share their concern — or at least if we shouldn't use our energies toward solving society's other problems which have higher immediate priority.

ECVC

The Greenville Recreation and Parks Commission is getting its priorities right in moving immediately to seek tentative membership agreements from area corporations and individuals for the pool and other athletic facilities at the Eastern Carolina Vocational Center.

A study authorized by the commission showed that the facility could be operated successfully by the city — if the memberships are aggressively sold.

Clearly now is the time to find out if commitments will be made to facility memberships before the Recreation and Parks Commission becomes actively involved in its operation.

The commission has much to sell. The facility is a first class indoor pool and has other athletic equipment, all of which can be used year 'round. Memberships will be a bargain for corporations, families and individuals.

We are convinced that the community support will be there for the successful operation of the ECVC athletic complex.

'Wilderness Dream' Revives

RALEIGH — Americans, unlike their European ancestors, hold a great confidence in the moral purity of the wilderness. Go out into the woods, Americans believe, and one comes closer to God and goodness.

In college, in the introductory American Studies seminar, this theory is called "The Wilderness Dream." It was apparent in the work of many of our early writers, especially in James Fenimore Coper's "Deerslayer." The loss of this dream due to the development of the American continent is seen in much 20th Century American literature, most notably on the last page of "The Great Gatsby."

Although America will never be the pure wilderness nation that some early settlers foresaw, Americans continue to believe in the dream and the great curative powers of the wilderness. The state of North Carolina is about to invest $1 million in a corrections program that is pure Wilderness Dream.

On the day the Legislature reconvened, Gov. Jim Martin announced that the Departments of Correction and of Natural Resources and Community Development would conduct a joint wilderness camps program.

Young, non-violent offenders will be incarcerated in minimum security camps in the state's forests. After first building their own shelters, they'll be taken out into the woods to learn skills like forest fire control, forest management and timber stand improvement.

In making the announcement, Martin and two cabinet secretaries, Aaron Johnson of DOC and Tommy Rhodes of DNRCD, at first spoke mostly in cold economic terms. The program would save the state about $500,000 per camp in construction costs for prisons, Martin said.

Rhodes noted that much work which the state cannot currently afford to do in its state parks and forests will be affordable using prison labor. Johnson said the annual cost of incarcerating an inmate will be cut tremendously. All three noted that the inmates would be learning marketable skills they could use to get jobs after they'd served their sentences.

But Martin soon brought the wilderness religion back into the discussion. "Rehabilitation is the most important element of this program," he said. Nothing could be more beneficial to a troubled young man's character, he said, than to get out in the woods, out in the clean air, with a hard day's work to do.

One almost expected Martin to start reading from the 18th Century American writers who extol the virtues of being close to God's creations, the trees, the rivers, the wildlife, and away from the sins of man's cities.

The Wilderness Dream was official state policy before Martin's proposal. The state Division of Youth Services currently operates the Eckerd Wilderness Camps program which puts younger offenders in the woods to be cured of their anti-social behaviour. The 1985 General Assembly spent almost $900,000 opening a new camp for girls.

Martin's proposal is to eventually house 250 young offenders in five wilderness camps around the state. The first would be in Burke County. Other camps could follow quickly in a state forest near Jacksonville and in the Jordan Lake area.

Unlike some of Martin's ideas, this one got rave reviews from Democratic legislative leaders. Wilderness dreamer Sen. Ken Royall, D-Durham, one of the patrons of the Eckerd camps, said, "We agree that it's a good idea ... We need to treat our prisoners in a way that hopefully when they get out of prison they'll have some employment opportunity."

No doubt, somewhere off in the Happy Hunting Grounds, Natty Bumppo and Chingachgook of the "Deerslayer" are smiling down on us.

The Name's The Thing For A PAC

WASHINGTON (AP) — There's more to starting a political action committee than raising money. After all, a successful PAC must sound upbeat, have a name that inspires people to write checks.

A name like the Jimmy Carter Committee for a Greater America.

The former president isn't the draw he once was. His PAC, dormant for some time, doesn't rank as one of the big money committees registered with the Federal Election Commission. It began the year with a bank balance of $6.74 and it went $18.47 in the red when the bank hit it with $25.21 in service charges.

As PAC names go, it also has some problems.

The Carter committee broke a cardinal rule of the PAC business — don't name your PAC after yourself.

PACs are fund-raising committees set up by politicians and political activists to channel contributions to candidates. Potential presidential candidates use them to gain favor with other politicians by giving them money collected by their PACs.

A look at the names of PACs makes it clear there are unwritten naming rules most people follow. One of the rules seems to be don't get too imaginative. As a result there is a deadening similarity among PAC names.

There's the Fund for America's Future, the Fund for Future Committee and the Committee for the Future of America.

One of the newest PACs is a classic example of the naming technique. It's called the Fund for All Americans.

What does that name tell potential donors?

First of all, it doesn't tell them the politician behind the committee. Why instantly turn off all the people who don't like him?

Secondly, it suggests it's for All Americans. Which gives a hint of the all-inclusive message of its sponsor, Gov. Thomas H. Kean of New Jersey.

A Republican, Kean won a landslide re-election victory in 1985 after a campaign in which he succeeded in winning support from many traditionally Democratic groups, including blacks and labor.

Kean is a leading advocate of the need for Republicans to reach out to such groups. Thus, a Fund for All Americans.

That sounds a lot more inclusive than Republican Majority Fund or Democrats for the 80's.

Experienced interpreters of PAC names might read something else in the name of the Kean committee — national ambition.

A common thread in PAC names is the use of America or Americans. It almost always is a signal, too, that the sponsor has his eye on the White House.

Americans for the National Interest is the PAC set up by Gov. Bruce Babbitt of Arizona who is openly interested in the 1988 Democratic presidential nomination.

Vice President George Bush set up the Fund for America's Future and Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole of Kansas calls his PAC, Campaign America. Alexander M. Haig Jr., a former secretary of state, established Committee for America, and admitted it is "affiliated with my own interest in the presidency in 1988."

Walter F. Mondale called his PAC Committee for the Future of America. Geraldine Ferraro has a PAC called Americans Concerned for Tomorrow.

There are a couple of exceptions to that while Reagan does not want to send any U.S. troops to Nicaragua, he will if he has to.

But the rapid Sandinista military buildup also explains the trend of the fence-sitters to Reagan. Until now, no Soviet pilot has ever been known to fly a combat aircraft for or in a country hostile to the United States on the American mainland. According to White House sources, Soviet "technical assembly personnel" and test pilots are handling the new batch of Mi-8 helicopters that arrived at Corinto last month.

The Mi-8 is a top-of-the-line Soviet counter-insurgency weapon, designed for quick movement of troops, short-range reconnaissance and rapid supply for combat units. The Sandinistas, however, have a little problem with these new helicopters: no pilots to fly them.

Since speed in the Nicaraguan buildup is seen by Moscow as imperative in the interest of beating resumed U.S. aid to the Contras, there was no time to train local pilots before the helicopters arrived. Instead, the Kremlin risked a negative response in Congress and a Reagan administration reaction by sending Soviet pilots. They are flight-testing and training, but not flying combat missions as of now.

Another development that will be carefully analyzed for the speaker is completion of the new Sandinista military port of El Bluff on the Caribbean, the first major harbor on the Atlantic side of the isthmus. The new military harbor transforms the supply-line problem, cutting weeks from future arms deliveries from the Soviet Union and Cuba. Until now, Soviet supply ships have had to circumnavigate South America and unload at Corinto on the Pacific side, the only harbor in Nicaragua safe for large ships.

Tip O'Neill over the years has paid more attention to stories of atrocities than the Soviet military and even strategic threat on the American mainland. Now he is being asked to look at hard intelligence in hopes that he will hasten congressional action before it becomes too late to matter.

Strength For Today

Is supernatural healing still possible in our modern scientific world?

It certainly is. Every physician will admit that once in a while patients recover when there is every indication that death is inevitable. This event does not amount to a criticism of modern medicine.

The cessation of medical treatment for one week would plunge much of the civilized world into chaos. But the practice of scientific medicine does not in the least preclude the fact that supernatural healings frequently occur.

The revelation of truth God has made through scientific medicine is amazing. But He is not tied down to any one method of procedure. God frequently heals the sick and afflicted in ways that are outside scientific categories.

We are foolish indeed if we scoff at supernatural healing. It is continuing today as it has through the ages.

Rape Reported

Greenville police this morning were questioning a suspect in a kidnapping and rape case reported at 11:04 p.m. Sunday.

Detective Janice Harris said an East Carolina University coed had gone to the State Employees Credit Union at the intersection of First and Greene Streets about 10:45 p.m. Sunday to withdraw some money from the teller machine.

After making the withdrawal, Harris said, the woman was allegedly forced into a car by a man who had been using the machine when she arrived.

The investigator said the man reportedly drove the woman to an unpaved road north of the Tar River where she was raped, then drove to the 1500 block of North Pitt Street where he put her out of his car.

Sgt. J.M. Simonowich said East Carolina University police stopped a car on campus about 12:30 a.m. which fitted the description of the car used in the incident.

Simonowich said the driver, who also fit the description of the attacker, was detained and was being questioned this morning.

Drug Charges

Greenville police arrested Willie Nathaniel White, 28, of 9 Country Club Road, Saturday, and charged him with possession of marijuana.

Officer R.J. Brewington said White was charged after the vehicle he was driving was stopped in connection with a traffic violation about 9 p.m. at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Airport Road.

In addition to the drug charges, White was charged with speeding and with carrying a concealed weapon. The officer said a .25 caliber pistol was found in the vehicle.

Annual Picnic

The Cypress Group of the Sierra Club held its annual picnic, hosted by Dr. and Mrs. Earl Trevathan, at Bath Saturday.

Next Saturday, in conjunction with North Carolina Rivers Month, the group will hold Tar River Canoe Clean-up Day. Participants will meet at the Greenville Town Common Boat Ramp at 8:30 a.m., bringing life jackets, lunch and a beverage. Several canoes are being loaned by the Greenville Recreation Department and trash bags will be provided by the Greenville Public Works Department. Information on the project is available from Dr. Jim Hix, 756-2970.

Carpooling arrangements for the 9 p.m. Saturday Night Prowl Program at Goose Creek State Park will be made during the cleanup time Saturday. Park rangers will conduct the program.

Information on Sierra Club activities is available from Grace Smith, 756-3905, or Diane Hankins, 758-4552.

Vice Chancellor

Dr. F. Douglas Moore has been named vice chancellor for university advancement at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington. Now vice president for university advancement at James Madison University at Harrisonburg, Va., Moore is the first person to hold this newly created position at UNC-W.

Moore was vice chancellor for institutional advancement and planning at East Carolina University between 1980-84. Between 1978-80, he was director of development for the N.C. Symphony Society, Inc. at Raleigh.

ECU Scholarships

Christian Stewart of D.H. Conley High School and Stanley Wingard of Ayden-Grifton High School recently were awarded the Ausmus G. Wells Memorial Fund Scholarship. The scholarships may be renewed for each year of the student's study at East Carolina University.

The memorial fund was established in 1984 to provide scholarships for worthy graduates of the Pitt County or Greenville City Schools who will attend ECU. Seven previously awarded scholarships will be renewed for those students attending ECU.

Completed Course

William Roy Gay Sr. of the Bethel Police Department completed a 40-hour course on sex offense investigation at the North Carolina Justice Academy at Salemburg. Topics studied included crime scene investigation, emotional trauma of victims of sex crimes and psychological aspects of sex crime offenders.

Three Injured

A Sunday afternoon accident left three persons injured when the car they were in overturned near Greenville.

According to Trooper J.B. Ward, the small compact car was driven by Terry Roger Prince of Rocky Mount. Ward said the car was headed north on N.C. 43 just south of Hollywood Crossroads, when Ms. Prince was apparently forced off the left side of the road.

The investigator said the car ran into a ditch and overturned several times before coming to a stop upright.

Ward said Ms. Prince and two passengers in the car were injured and transported to Pitt County Memorial Hospital by members of the Eastern Pines Rescue Squad. Investigation into the 6:45 p.m. accident is continuing.

Arts Camp

The Pitt County Community Schools will sponsor its second annual arts camp June 23-27 from 9 a.m.-12:30 p.m. at D.H. Conley High School.

The camp will feature dance, art, band, drama and music. Guest artists will perform for the campers, and field trips will be offered to local museums, art galleries and the campus of East Carolina University.

Band camp is offered for grades 7-9 only, and the student must have one year of band experience. Enrollment will be limited and a fee will be charged to cover the cost of materials. For information contact Emmy Whitehead, Pitt County Schools Arts coordinator, or Carol Barwick, Community Schools, at 752-2934.

March Of Dimes

The Coastal Plains Chapter of the March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation had its first "Coastal Plains Pride" dinner at Simply Elegant recently to recognize area volunteers who coordinated special events through the fiscal year. Local award recipients are Domino's Pizza, Dorson White of Wachovia Bank, Craig Quick of Pitt County Memorial Hospital, Chuck Jenkins of Coca Cola Bottling Co., Dave Turner of Domino's Pizza, Wyman Irons, Fouad Atalla of Silver Sprink, Raja Atalla of Aladdin International, Shirley Dale & WNTC, Linda Asbell and Vickie Hanning, both of the N.C. Department of Human Resources, Sarah Asheton of Town and County Senior Citizens, Margorie Ward of Ayden-Grifton High School, Charles Asbell of CPA and Rick Cannon. Michie Faulconer was honored at the 1986 N.C. Jaycee State Convention.

New Pact Approved By AT&T Employees

By MATT YANCEY
AP Labor Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — By a 3-to-1 margin, non-striking manufacturing workers at American Telephone & Telegraph Co. voted Sunday to accept a new contract with an 8 percent wage hike over three years.
The contract, however, eliminates annual cost-of-living adjustments that had been a fixture of phone workers' labor agreements with the telecommunications giant since 1972.
With 22 of 23 local unions reporting final returns, officials for the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, IBEW, said the rank-and-file vote on ratifying the contract was 11,725 for to 3,470 against.

The IBEW represents about 31,000 or three-fifths of AT&T's manufacturing workers. They have been keeping 14 of the company's 25 factories operating during an ongoing strike by a rival union, the Communications Workers of America.
The CWA, which represents 155,000 or three-fourths of all AT&T's union employees, is in its third week of a nationwide strike against the company after rejecting virtually the same contract accepted by the IBEW.
About 20,000 CWA members in

AT&T factories have kept 11 of the plants shut down since the strike began June 1.
"We had a great turnout," Tom Hickman, director of the IBEW's manufacturing division, said of Sunday's vote. "On a Father's Day when you get 50 percent of those eligible to vote, that's fantastic."
In addition to the factory workers, the IBEW represents 5,500 technicians and about 4,000 long-distance operators, about 20 percent of the company's union workers.
IBEW bargaining councils for the operators and technicians also have recommended accepting what AT&T that triggered the CWA strike.

The others were the the company's rejection of continued piecework bonuses for manufacturing employees and its intent to divide technicians into three new job categories.
Hickman said the piecework bonuses being eliminated for the 31,000 factory workers that the IBEW represents now range from about 2 percent to 15 percent of their weekly paychecks, depending on their job classifications.
AT&T's demand to eliminate the cost-of-living pay adjustments based on inflation was one of three issues

Vietnam Vet Turns Painful Memories Into A Top Play

FAYETTEVILLE (AP) — Stephen Miles sat down in 1982 to write his first poems about the Vietnam War. The more he wrote, the more he wanted to write.

The effort has ended in an award-winning play.

When he returned from 18 months as a helicopter pilot in Vietnam, Miles promised himself he would not think, talk or write about the war for at least 10 years.

"I'd seen a lot of things that I immediately had to distance myself from," Miles said. "All the bad things were just put in a box in the back of my brain and they just sat there and collected dust. I decided I had to get on with my life."

But Miles had forgotten all about that promise when he sat down almost exactly 10 years later to write about his experiences. Finally, in three days of furious scribbling, he wrote a play.

That play, "DEROS: A Vietnam Trilogy," this year won the Thompson Theater Playwright Award, a statewide competition for professional and amateur writers. It will be presented June 26-28 at North Carolina State University.

"I wrote it about two years ago and just stuck it in a drawer and then pulled it out when I heard about this competition," said Miles, now a copy director for an advertising agency and associate editor of Fayetteville

Magazine. "I wasn't waiting for my big break. I never thought of having a big break. It's a real thrill to see your play put on, but I'm overwhelmed by the response and very grateful for the shot."

"It sounds authentic," said Burt Russell, an NCSU professor who teaches theater and directs many of Thompson's productions. "The people sound like young soldiers in war. And it has a certain poetic style despite the reality. He doesn't divorce the two."

"He doesn't take any kind of political stand about the war in Vietnam, so the play has a certain universality about it," Russell said. "There's a feeling that this is what it's like for soldiers in any war."

Miles says his work is not entirely an antiwar play.

"It is an antiwar play in that anybody who is for war is an idiot," he said. "But it's not antiwar or even antimilitary. Perhaps it's both those things in some peripheral level. I tried to just be as factual as I could."

"I enjoyed the military very much and I enjoyed going to Vietnam," he said. "You've got to realize I was very young, very gung-ho."

"But I was very enthusiastic," he said. "I didn't mind it at all, although there were a lot of things that I wouldn't want to go through again, or see again or have to do again."

The trilogy offers three different perspectives of the war.

The first, "DEROS," which is military slang for Date Expected to Return from Overseas, follows the fortunes of four soldiers in a bunker during three days of fighting. "Flights" is staged mainly in the cockpit of a helicopter, while "Pacifica" focuses on war correspondents and photographers in a Saigon bar.

For each one-act play, Miles drew on his own experiences as a warrant officer flying combat missions — experiences which included five crashes and two Bronze Stars. The characters are either people he knew or composites. Many are young, inexperienced soldiers who often arrived in Vietnam pumped up and ready to fight.

"These were 18-, 19-year-old boys just out of high school," Miles said. "They thought they were getting into something completely different from what they got into. Everybody did."

"Nobody who hasn't been in a combat situation and had somebody personally, actively trying to kill him can really understand that when people start shooting at you, you tend to lose it," Miles said. "Especially when it's day after day after day, seven days a week, 24 hours a day."

"I didn't have to make up anything or really use a lot of imagination," he said. "I just had to write... If you multiply the play times 365, that's what Vietnam was like."

Black Lawmakers Eye Bill To Lower Victory Threshold

By F. ALAN BOYCE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — A black legislator says he is working to overcome opposition to the idea of lowering the threshold for victory in North Carolina primaries, but he says he is not overly optimistic.

"We'll just have to see what happens," said Rep. Dan Blue, D-Wake. "We need to find out why some opposition is major opposition."

Black lawmakers say they are considering introducing a bill this week to lower the threshold for victory from 50 percent to 40 percent.

"We'll have something definite within a week," Blue said after a week that included meetings with the Democratic Black Caucus and the House leadership. "It's partly a question of moving when the time is right."

Blue said he had been encouraged that Republicans would support a bill to reduce the percentage needed to win a primary. Supporters of the concept say primary runoffs are most costly to minorities. But some Democrats have expressed fears that eliminating runoffs could lead to candidates with less broad-based support, making them more susceptible to November losses to Republicans.

An often cited example is H.M. "Mickey" Michaux's 1982 loss to Tim Valentine in a Democratic primary for Congress. Michaux, a black state representative from Durham County, led in the first primary but lost in the runoff to Valentine, who is white.

The Democratic leadership in both houses appeared to support the change earlier this year, partly due to the threat of a lawsuit to overturn the current law on the grounds of racial discrimination. But their enthusiasm has waned in recent weeks, especially for action in the short session, when the bill would need a two-thirds vote to pass each house.

"I think it should happen, but my count indicates the numbers just aren't there," said Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan. "It doesn't have to happen in the short session."

"But we hear that there may be a court case," he added. "The only problem there is a court case may totally eliminate second primaries. My feeling is that a threshold makes more sense than total elimination. Someone who gets 40 percent of the vote is more likely to be able to maintain party support than someone who gets 30 percent or 25 percent if you have a large group."

Blue said it was possible supporters would try to add the lower threshold to another bill left over from last year, a maneuver that would allow passage with a simple majority. But legislative rules dictate that additions be germane to the original bills, narrowing the field of possibilities.

The House has a Senate-passed bill filed last year to eliminate the Democratic presidential primary, but Blue said he had not considered using it as a vehicle for a threshold change. Sen. Tony Rand, D-Cumberland, has said he will amend the presidential primary bill to move North Carolina's primary to the first Tuesday in March to coincide with other Southeastern states.

Much of the opposition to the primary threshold reduction comes from the East, but Rep. Bobby Etheridge, D-Harnett, said it was more a question of tradition than race.

"Some of those Scots just can't abide the idea of not winning by a majority," he said. "It's always been that way. Even in my county, where we only have a black population of about 19 percent. It really wouldn't affect us one way or the other."

"But my county people told me in no uncertain terms they're against it, and there's no way I can ignore that."

Etheridge and Rep. Billy Watkins, D-Granville, House co-chairmen of the Appropriations Committee, agreed that no action is necessary this session. But neither pledged support for the idea in the long session.

"All the primaries are behind us," Etheridge said.

"Why cloud the session with something like that unless you need it," said Watkins.

Senate Minority Leader Bill Redman, R-Iredell, said he had been approached by Blue for his support.

"I would have to see how the bill is written," he said. "But I told him I certainly wouldn't turn the idea off. I don't have too much of a problem with it personally."

Redman said in a recent clerk of court election the leader in the primary was beaten in a runoff. "I just don't think that kind of thing is fair," he said.

Lower Bond For Student Charged In Shooting

FAYETTEVILLE (AP) — Bond was reduced for a Fayetteville teen-ager accused in a shooting incident in a crowded hallway at Pine Forest High School so the youth can assist in his own defense.

Major Ray Simmons, 17, was released on $25,000 bond from the Cumberland County Jail on Friday after his bond was reduced from $91,500, according to authorities.

Twelfth District Attorney Ed Grannis Jr. said he agreed to the reduction requested by defense attorney James Parish. In return, Simmons must stay away from the school and can't contact any student, faculty member, administrator or potential witness.

"It's fair to say this: We wanted to wait until the school year ended and we completed the interviews of the 1,400 students and faculty and staff at Pine Forest. That's why it occurred at this time," Grannis said.

Simmons is accused of three counts of assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill and inflicting serious injury, one count of assault with a deadly weapon, one count of disrupting school, plus carrying a weapon on school grounds, authorities said.

Simmons is accused of opening fire with a .25-caliber pistol in a second floor hallway as classes were changing on May 9.

Joe Roundtree Jr., 18, Michael L. Barnes, 17, and Morgan T. Dickinson, 18, all of Fayetteville, were injured and treated at area hospitals. A fourth student, Georgetta Hardman, 17, escaped serious injury after a stray bullet struck some books she was carrying.

Drug Troubles Authorities

RALEIGH (AP) — A drug called "crack," which dealers can make in simple kitchen labs and sell for $10 to $20 per dose, is more addictive than cocaine and is being seen more frequently in North Carolina, officials say.

Customers can become addicted within weeks or days. Crack's low price makes it especially popular in some metropolitan areas — and especially worrisome to North Carolina authorities.

Also known as "rock" for its pebble shape, crack is ground and sprinkled on marijuana cigarettes, regular cigarettes or pipe tobacco. It is smoked rather than snorted up the nose, as is the more familiar white powder, cocaine hydrochloride.

"It gives the lower-income and younger-generation set an opportunity to get something volatile," said Capt. J.L. Brown of the Wake County Sheriff's Department. "It makes it easy for any kid with a part-time job to get strung out."

State officials say "crack" could become the state's top drug problem.

"I don't think there's any question that it's here and its availability is growing," said Charles Dunn, deputy director of the State Bureau of Investigation. "It's extremely alarming."

Dunn cited cases involving crack in New Hanover, Onslow, Pitt and Wake counties. "Agents told me they picked up two cases of crack in the last week," he said. "They're picking it up more frequently lately."

In April, about half the 57 cocaine-related calls to the Greensboro Drug Action Council's hot line switchboard were about crack, said Shawn Meier, volunteer coordinator.

"We've received a significant increase in the number of calls about crack and coke over the last three months," she said.

On March 13, State Bureau of Investigation agents and Wake County law enforcement officers seized 239 vials of crack at Raleigh-Durham Airport. George W. Laws, 39, of Kinston was arrested and charged with two counts of trafficking cocaine, arrest warrants said.

Authorities said they expected to see more crack in North Carolina.

"It's becoming more frequent," Dunn said. "It's not a great many (arrests) thus far, but I think it's picking up, and we anticipate it will grow rapidly in the state."

One drug abuse treatment center in Raleigh, Charter Northridge Hospital, already has treated a few patients for crack addiction, hospital Director Edward J. Shumack said.

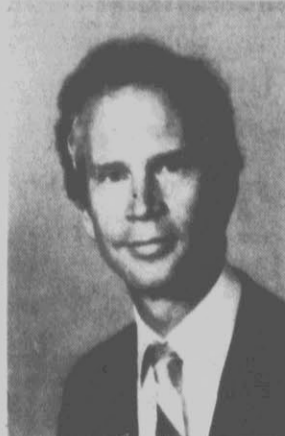

Shumack described the typical user as a middle-class person. "A person who works at a regular job and someone you might call a blue-collar-type worker. Not the executive type," as is often associated with cocaine use, he said.

Crack packs a quicker punch than regular cocaine, said Herbert G. Roehrich, clinical director for a national hot line on drug abuse, 1-800-COCAINE. Hot-line officials estimate that 1 million Americans have tried it.

Fewer Waste Inspections Worry State Officials

GREENSBORO (AP) — State inspections of companies that produce hazardous waste have been cut back because of a lack of state money and a squabble with the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, state and federal officials say.

While more than 610 companies were inspected last year, only 225 are scheduled for inspection this year.

And where companies in recent years could expect at least one inspection every 12 months, they now will be inspected no more than once every two years.

"It means that the level of assurance we have on companies complying with the law is decreased proportionally," said William L. Meyer, head of the state's Solid and Hazardous Waste branch. "We're beginning to see companies in total noncompliance because they aren't being inspected."

The reduced inspections put the state's environment — land, air and water — at greater risk from 719 generators of the wastes, 169 transporters, 78 treaters, storers or disposers and thousands of small generators, who produce less than 1,000 kilograms per month, Meyer said.

Jerome Rhodes, Meyer's assistant, said his inspection staff is finding "more and more companies in non-compliance. You can tell the difference in attitudes."

"It's a little like driving on the highway," Meyer said. "Without the Highway Patrol, how many people are going to go 55 miles per hour? If you don't do field monitoring, companies will take illegal actions."

The reductions call attention to a state operation, part of the Department of Human Resources, that has not been funded much beyond what the federal government requires for its program to implement the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act.

"The basic problem is that for too long North Carolina has tried to manage a solid and hazardous waste program on the cheap with federal funds," said William Holman, a lobbyist with the Conservation Council of North Carolina and the Sierra Club.

"Most states put more money into their programs than we do," said Emil Breckling, a branch administrator. "We've never had big bucks. We've just skimped along. To have a total (hazardous waste) program, you need to supplement the federal program."

A subcommittee of the Governor's

Waste Management Board has criticized the low level of state funding. A recent report notes the program "is almost entirely bound by EPA priorities" and may work against company compliance with the law, said Linda Little, the board's executive director.

This year, the EPA provided $1.56 million for the state's hazardous waste program, to which the state added a 25 percent matching grant. The state has 55 workers, including 15 field representatives, in the program.

Gov. Jim Martin's administration has proposed to the General Assembly a $350,000 budget increase for 11 new positions in the branch, though the Department of Human Resources originally requested $1.1 million for 43 positions in the branch. A joint Human Resources Appropriations Committee increased the Martin proposal by adding seven more positions at a cost of an additional $125,000.

"We realized that we'll be having more problems out there with generators," said state Sen. Russell Walker, D-Randolph, committee co-chairman. "Basically we were trying to address the staff's concerns about a real need."

The budget moves come at a time when the EPA has expanded its regulatory coverage of industry, putting more demands on state programs without always providing new funds.

Moreover, North Carolina and EPA officials in Atlanta are arguing over how the state spends EPA dollars to implement RCRA.

The state wants to use federal money to inspect hazardous waste-producing companies such as Burlington Industries, Ciba-Geigy and Moreflex Chemical Co. But the EPA's top priority is to get permits for hazardous waste handlers and processors that treat, store or dispose of hazardous waste and make sure they are operating correctly.

James H. Scarbrough, an EPA official in Atlanta, said North Carolina officials have diverted too much federal money from the permit operation for hazardous waste facilities into an inspection program for the 719 generators. Instead, the state should focus on completing permits for the 59 treatment, storage and disposal facilities, Scarbrough said.

S.C. Men Given Death Penalties

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) — The husband of Chinh Thi Nguyen Le approved of the death penalties given two Charlotte, N.C., men convicted of abducting and killing the Vietnamese refugee who was living in Greer.

"I'm glad I won," Tu Le said after the death penalties were issued. The jury deliberated for five hours and twenty minutes Sunday before announcing the sentences at 6:55 p.m.

Circuit Judge William Traxler set an Oct. 17 execution date for Ronnie Howard, 27, and Dana Ricardo Weldon, 26, but the sentences will be appealed automatically.

The defendants showed no emotion after the sentence was announced, but Weldon's 23-year-old wife, Debra, started crying. She ran out of the courtroom after Weldon and Howard were led away in handcuffs, screaming, "They were prejudice."

The same jury found Weldon and Howard guilty of conspiracy, kidnapping, armed robbery and murder in the death of 34-year-old Chinh Thi Nguyen Le in August.

The jury heard testimony in the sentencing phase of the trial Saturday night and closing arguments Sunday morning.

The jurors Saturday night listened to Solicitor Joe Wilson present tales of successful armed robberies of pizza restaurants — more than the robber said he can remember — and the random murder of a hitchhiker.

According to statements police said were made by the two men, Weldon and Howard kidnapped Mrs. Le to steal her car around 1:30 a.m. Aug. 30 as she was heading home from work.

They killed her by placing a plastic bag over her head and punching her in the stomach several times, according to the statements read in court.

Her badly decomposed body was found by a power company worker Sept. 18 in a heavily wooded area across South Carolina 11 from Pleasant Ridge State Park.

Howard carried out "possibly as many as 70 armed robberies" in South Carolina, North Carolina, Georgia, Virginia, Tennessee and Alabama, according to testimony about the confessions. An FBI agent said Howard told her he "used to keep track of it but quit after 40."

Unmowed or littered lawns should be reported to the City Engineering and Inspections Department at 752-4137.

Jobs ...

McKnight, placement supervisor at the Employment Security Commission, estimated that so far there has been "roughly a 20 percent increase in job inquiries from high school teenagers." Although there is no specific program for them, McKnight says he will make "a concentrated effort to place them."

Dial-a-Teen serves those in the 13-19 age bracket, according to director Kenneth Pollard. Handling a "steady increase in job interest" which he expects to continue into December, Pollard tries to find temporary part-time work for the students who come to Dial-a-Teen.

While many of the jobs provided are one-time jobs, Pollard said that "most employers are willing to rehire the teenager again if he does a good job. This happens a lot."

Employers of students agree that hiring the youths can benefit the businesses as well. "We've had real good luck with the students we've employed. There are a lot of talented men and women in the area," according to Donald Pack, director of marketing at Empire Brushes.

Pitt County Memorial Hospital employment interviewer Tim Westbrook said "most people who work here (at the hospital) love it. After students have worked here, they spread good will for the hospital from their experience here. In that way they help besides just filling a vacancy."

Individual initiative can also pave the way to profitable self-employment. East Carolina University sophomore Brett Patton has placed an ongoing advertisement in the newspaper for mowing lawns. "I tried it last summer and got a good response from businesses and homes. I was able to make more money than I would have working in construction," he said. Hoping for a repeat of last summer, Patton plans to rely on mowing lawns as his sole financial support while attending summer school.

Funds from summer employment are spent on a wide range of activities and causes. Betty Speir, North Pitt guidance counselor, said students "want a car - that's the main reason students want a job." Rose High junior Godfrey Bell said "I need to keep up my car payments, but I also like to work."

Schoolmate Yolanda Daniel, also a junior, offered another reason for working. "I wanted to become more independent, not depend on my parents for spending money," she said.

There are some students, however, for whom money is not a factor in their summer employment plans. Scott Cooper, an ECU senior majoring in communications, is working at WNCT-TV this summer "to get a feel for what a reporter does, to see how a news station is run." Although his position carries no pay, Cooper feels the job is nevertheless "invaluable." He said "to go into communications and broadcasting, the key thing is to get experience. Of course I would like a paid job, but with this one, I can figure out if this is what I want to do."

College credit takes the place of monetary compensation for ECU senior Raymond Terry Smith. Working towards his BA in chemistry, Smith serves as a research assistant for professor Robert Klein. Engaged in "synthesizing a new drug," Smith feels that "the experience plus the credit hours I am gaining are more than ample reward."

Whether for money, experience, career exposure or otherwise, employment seems to dominate the summer plans of local high school and college students. When the students interviewed were asked if they knew of anyone who did not have plans to work this summer, not one student could recall anyone who intended to vacation throughout vacation.

Students who have been looking for work and have not yet found any confirm a tight labor situation. Rose High School senior Claire Peralton said she has applied for a job at "at least 20 places, and at some places even twice" and is beginning to experience "a lot of frustration and some discouragement."

The need to pay for college in the coming year and her car keep Miss Peralton looking. The one job she was offered involved serving alcoholic beverages which her age (19) prevented her from accepting. "I'm willing to do practically anything," she said.

Schoolmate Yolanda Daniel, a junior who just landed a job at Burger King two weeks ago, said "there are a lot of people out there looking for a job - hard."

After four months of "looking and not looking for a job," North Pitt

High School junior Brenda Anderson may postpone her fruitless job search until August, attending cheerleading camp and a summer engineering program instead.

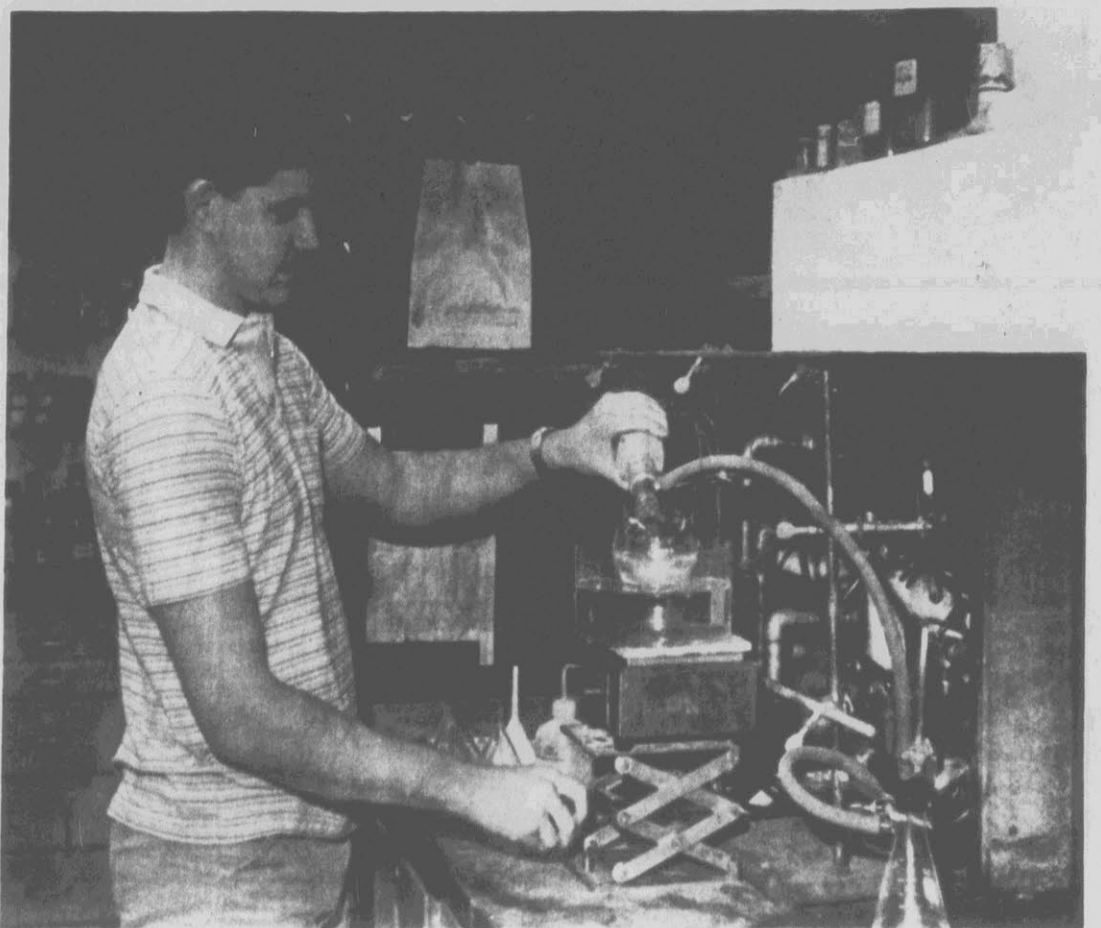

Some encouragement is offered by Mattie Link, home economics teacher and Job Partnership Training Act specialist at Farmville Central High School. "The job outlook is certainly more favorable now than before," Link said. "Last fall it was very discouraging; nobody was hiring. Now at least two out of every ten employers I call want workers."

Choosiness could be the cause for some student unemployment. Rose High sophomore Shannon Howard had a job as a cashier but wanted "something with future career possibilities." Success in finding employment "all depends on what you want. An internship at IBM is harder to come by than a job at a grocery store," Miss Howard said.

For those students still looking for employment, Jim Westmoreland, assistant director of ECU Career Planning and Placement Services, said, "don't be discouraged. Employers sense discouragement immediately. Project a positive image. More importantly, remember next time to get an early start in looking for work."

The service industry stands out as a stronghold for student employment. "At least 50 percent of the people here are 18 and under," according to Denise Coward, manager of the Burger King on 10th Street. During the summer, prospects for teen-age employment become even more favorable. "There's just not a big enough rise in the applicant pool when the ECU students go away," Ms. Coward said. "This summer we hired a good number of high school early birds."

For some, such summertime employment can lead to promising careers. "It happens all the time. We get workers who are in school and stay with us even after they graduate," according to Fast Fare division manager Leonard R. Edmondson, who said he began work with the organization while in high school. "Our executive vice president started while he was at ECU." And while Fast Fare prefers to hire people over 18 years of age, Edmondson said he would be "willing to hire exceptional high school kids if they could make the hours."

Rose High junior Tina Oakes said that her job at McDonald's holds little interest for her as a permanent career, but points out that she has learned some valuable lessons.

"There's a lot of responsibility involved. And you also become really conscious of how important it is to be polite," she said.

Stock And Market Reports

By The Associated Press

HOGS: Trend is $2 higher at North Carolina buying stations. Kinston, Clinton, Wilson 53.00; Robersonville 52.00; Fayetteville - closed and will reopen June 23. Sows: (500 pounds up) Whiteville 41.00; Wallace 44.00; Spivey's Corner 43.50; Rowland 43.00.

N.C. BROILER-FRYERS: The North Carolina fob dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 52.50 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2 1/2 to 3 pounds birds. The market is steady and the live supply is adequate for a good demand. Average weights desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Monday was 1,921,000, compared to 1,790,000 last Monday.

GRAIN: No. 2 yellow shelled corn steady at mostly 2.63-2.77 in the East and mostly 2.86-2.90 in the Piedmont; No. 1 yellow soybeans mostly four cents lower at mostly 5.24-5.45 in the East and mostly 5.22-5.28 in the Piedmont; wheat mostly 2.46-2.61. New crop - corn 1.86-2.01; beans - 4.60-4.85.

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market headed higher today, extending Friday's strong rally.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose 6.60 to 1,880.79 in the first hour of trading.

Gainers outpaced losers by about 3 to 2 in the early rally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Rates fell sharply in the credit markets Friday. Today, long-term rates moved lower still as prices of Treasury bonds posted gains in the neighborhood of $5 for every $1,000 in face value. Lower interest rates reduce the appeal of bonds and other interest-bearing investments by comparison with stocks.

Gainers among the blue chips included American Express, up 1/2 at 62; International Business Machines, up 1/8 at 149 3/4, and General Electric, up 1/8 at 82 3/8.

Motorola led the active list, down 1/4 at 41 1/4. A 300,000-share block traded at 41 1/2.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks added .19 to 141.19. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down .14 at 282.49.

On Friday the Dow Jones industrial average climbed 36.06 to 1,874.19, for its biggest point gain since it rose 38.32 on April 16 and its eighth largest ever.

Advancing issues outnumbered declines by about 3 to 1 on the NYSE. Big Board volume totaled 141.20 million shares, against 109.06 million in the previous session.

A spokesman for the government Bureau for Information, who did not give his name, described the violence as "the normal type of thing, nothing serious, nothing out of line from what we expected."

Since the government declared a state of emergency Thursday, 31 people have died in violence, Mellet said. In declaring the state of emergency — which gives security forces almost unfettered powers — the government claimed activists planned a day of violence today.

Mellet said today security forces "are on standby at every possible place where trouble could have been expected, anywhere in the country."

The government asserted today was "a normal working day," but millions of blacks stayed away from their jobs.

On a typical block in downtown Johannesburg this morning, only 10 of 30 shops were open. Many businesses that were open hired special security guards — but there were few customers to protect.

The streets of black townships also were reported deserted, with most residents staying at home.

Mellet said 90 percent of the Johannesburg area work force stayed away, and high absenteeism was reported in other major cities.

In the Johannesburg-Pretoria area, the Putco bus service, which normally brings about 670,000 black commuters to work, shut down, and buses and commuter trains in Cape Town, Durban and other cities were reported nearly empty.

Local journalists reported incidents of stone-throwing, gasoline bombings and buses being burned in townships near Cape Town and Durban.

Mellet said at a news conference in Pretoria that no one had been killed since 6 a.m. (midnight Sunday EDT). Government officials said there had been no major disturbances since daybreak. They said police fired tear gas into a crowded Cape Town mosque late Sunday after snipers fired at officers.

A spokesman for the government Bureau for Information, who did not give his name, described the violence as "the normal type of thing, nothing serious, nothing out of line from what we expected."

Louis Nel, deputy minister for information, was quoted by the state-run South African Broadcasting Corp. as saying "plans to turn June 16 into a day of anarchy have been foiled."

Mellet said security forces "are on standby at every possible place where trouble could have been expected, anywhere in the country."

A black reporter who toured Soweto said the mood was somber in the vast black township outside Johannesburg, where rioting 10 years ago marked a turning point in South Africa's racial conflict.

"It's the quietest June 16th since 1976," the reporter said. "One could say Soweto is in deep mourning."

He said blacks in the township of some 2 million people were "staying indoors because they don't know what might happen on the streets."

Many moderate and liberal whites have sought ways to show their support for the anniversary commemoration. A group of whites from Johannesburg's affluent northern suburbs, barred from entering Soweto, organized an airdrop of 1,000 flowers over Soweto. Thirty carloads of flowers were also left at the entrance of the township.

Many white private schools held memorial services and discussion groups for students to learn about the events of a decade ago in the black townships.

Breaking the normal pattern of segregated neighborhoods, some blacks who live in Johannesburg's satellite townships slept in downtown Johannesburg overnight so they could come to work. Some huddled overnight in the doorways of their workplaces, while others slept on the premises with their employers' permission.

last year, the comptroller general is charged with determining budget ceilings that must be implemented if Congress fails to pass a spending plan meeting deficit-reduction goals.

One of the law's authors, Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, said the ruling would not necessarily mean the demise of the law.

"If they (the Supreme Court) agree with the lower court decision that the involvement of the Comptroller General of the United States is unconstitutional, they have, as the lower court did, found about 95 percent of the powers of Gramm-Rudman unconstitutional," Gramm told AP Network News.

He said there is a fallback provision in the bill to get around using the comptroller. Congress also could amend the Budget and Accounting Act of 1921, which gives Congress the ability to remove the comptroller. That provision in the 1921 law, he says, creates the separation-of-powers problem.

The last time any significant leaking occurred was in 1978, when ABC carried leaked reports over a period of two weeks.

One was the court's ruling on a controversial New York case involving newspaper efforts to gain entry to pretrial proceedings. The high court determined that the right to a public trial did not entitle the press and public to attend pretrial hearings.

After the ABC leaks, an employee of the Supreme Court's print shop was transferred to another job.

Telephone calls to Supreme Court spokesmen went unanswered Sunday.

At issue in the Gramm-Rudman case is the role of the comptroller general, an officer of Congress appointed by the president for a 15-year term.

The Gramm-Rudman law calls for eliminating the federal deficit gradually by 1991. If the deficit rises above yearly targets, automatic spending cuts go into effect. The comptroller general, who heads Congress' General Accounting Office, is in charge of ordering the across-the-board cuts.

The three-judge appellate panel said in February that, by calculating the precise amount of budget cuts for each federal agency and program, the comptroller general would be exercising "the sort of power normally conferred upon the executive."

The suit was brought by 12 members of Congress along with unionized federal workers.

The first round of Gramm-Rudman budget cuts, $11.7 billion worth, went into effect March 1.

The deficit for this year is estimated at more than $200 billion. The Gramm-Rudman law requires the figure to be no higher than $144 billion for the next fiscal year, beginning Oct. 1.

Chopper Crash Kills 2

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) - A helicopter carrying a radio reporter and television cameraman crashed today during a live traffic report, killing two people and critically injuring a third.

The helicopter spun wildly and then exploded on impact near the downtown intersection of Interstates 95 and 10 at 6:44 a.m. EDT, said Barbara Kaufmann, program director at WTLV-TV. The ABC affiliate jointly leased the Hughes 500 helicopter with WAPE-FM radio.

Killed were reporter Julie King and helicopter pilot Buddy Smith, she said. Cameraman Brett Snyder was in critical condition, undergoing surgery at University Hospital, Ms. Kaufmann said.

The National Transportation Safety Board impounded the videotape Snyder made as the helicopter spiraled to the ground, she said.

Authorities were unsure what caused the crash. Ms. Kaufmann said it appeared there was a mechanical failure, and some witnesses said the craft hit power lines on the way down.

Shooting Probed

Two men were shot Saturday morning in a robbery during a gambling game at a residence about two miles north of Greenville.

Brooks Oakley, chief deputy in the Pitt County Sheriff Department, said William Henry Dudley and Jessie Earl Barrett, both of Greenville, were each hit in the left arm with pellets when a man robbing them and their companions fired a short shotgun. He said Dudley was seriously injured and remains a patient in Pitt County Memorial Hospital. Barrett was treated at the hospital and released.

The two men were among several playing a gambling game in an outbuilding behind the residence of Lawrence Teel off Highway 11, Oakley said. Those present told officers two men wearing Halloween masks entered the building about 1 a.m. and demanded that all the money be put into a brown zippered bag. One of them fired the shotgun once, striking both Dudley and Barrett.

Oakley said an investigation is under way.

Floyd Captures U.S. Open

SOUTHAMPTON, N.Y. (AP) — Ray Floyd had the look of a winner. His eyes were fixed on the U.S. Open golf title. His strategy was unshakable. His stride and swing were in perfect synch.

"It happens when he wins. His eyes glaze. He doesn't look left or right," his wife, Maria, said. "He goes into a trance. He doesn't see anything else around him."

The leaderboard changed Sunday like the fickle winds around Shinnecock Hills Golf Club. But Floyd didn't. Determined to play conservatively, he marched straight ahead through the maze of hopefuls to become the only golfer whose fondest hopes were fulfilled.

Three months before celebrating his 44th birthday and one week after blowing a final-round lead in the Westchester Classic, Floyd became the oldest player to win the U.S. Open. Ted Ray was 43 years, four months when he won in 1920.

"It's a phenomenal experience to achieve one of the great desires I've had ever since I was a little guy playing golf," Floyd, who already had won two PGA titles and one Masters championship, said. "The thing that I will appreciate most is that I had to come from behind. I excelled in a group of players who are very good players."

In the end, Floyd was on top, his final-round 66 making him a winner by two strokes with a 1-under-par 279 total. On his way to the $115,000 winner's prize, though, he hardly had an exclusive claim on first place at the par-70, 6,912-yard course of narrow, rolling fairways, heavy rough and small, sloping greens.

Ten different players led at one point or another on Sunday, making it the closest final round in Open history. At one point, nine players shared the lead.

The group included Lanny Wadkins, Chip Beck, Lee Trevino,

Norman, who led by three strokes after the second round and by one after the third, stumbled to a 75 Sunday to finish tied for 12th with Denis Watson at 285.

"I played flat, without much emotion," said Norman, the tour's leading money-winner this year who has yet to win a major tournament. "I didn't putt well at No. 6. I missed a 4 1/2-footer for par. My emotion changed. Why? I don't know. I was just flat."

Wadkins, who tied with Beck for second at 281 after both shot final-round 65s that tied the course record set earlier in the day, had finished his round and was watching on a clubhouse television set. He saw Floyd stride firmly up the fairways, make excellent golf shots and focus on his goals — the pin and the title.

"There is none better when he gets in front and he gets that look in his eyes," Wadkins, a close friend of Floyd's, said.

Many have been better this year. Before Sunday, Floyd hadn't won in 1986. He finished second just once, at the Bay Hill Classic. And he shared the runnerup spot in that tournament.

But his fortunes seemed to be shifting. He was tied for the lead after three rounds of the Westchester Classic. Then, in the fourth round, he shot 77 and Tway went on to win. Depressed, Floyd drove that Sunday night the 100 miles to Shinnecock with his wife.

"We had a long time to discuss it," he said of his failure. "You want to make it a good learning experience and turn it around."

He applied his newfound knowledge after he "played terrible" in Thursday's rain and wind and shot a 75 in the first round here.

"That was part of the learning experience of the Sunday before. The thing is to take something bad and make it positive," Floyd said. "I won the tournament on Thursday."

"Today, I felt in control," he added. "I feel like everything was in synch. I was walking at a speed that was in synch with my golf swing. ... I never got upset."

A veteran of 21 previous U.S. Opens with a sixth as his best finish, Floyd knew the difficulty leaders have had keeping their leads on the tournament's tough courses.

"I planned the way I would play the course early in the week. No matter what, I would not deviate," he said, though he admitted he looked at the leaderboard. "If you do nothing foolish, people (ahead in the tournament) will come back to you."

While others fell back, Floyd jumped ahead. As in the second round, he had no bogeys. He made birdies on the fourth, 11th, 13th and 16th holes.

Patient Elliott Claims Victory

BROOKLYN, Mich. (AP) — Bill Elliott says his Thunderbird was trying his patience, but it saved the best for last as he captured his third consecutive Miller American 400 stock car victory at Michigan International Speedway.

Elliott, 30, of Dawsonville, Ga., stalked Harry Gant for five laps Sunday before moving ahead for good with a slingshot pass on the 195th lap and winning by two car lengths at an average speed of 138.555 mph.

"Actually, the car wasn't working that well at the beginning," said

Elliott, who won $56,900. "We kept adjusting it on every pit stop, and from lap 140 on the car really got better."

"Everything really settled down in the last 20 or 30 laps."

The race, before nearly 80,000 spectators, was run in two hours, 53 minutes and 21 seconds. It was slowed for 42 laps by eight caution flags.

It was Elliott's 16th career victory and first since November, when he won the Atlanta 500. He also became the 11th driver to win one of this season's 14 NASCAR races after winning 11 races and $2.4 million in 1985.

If there was any place for Elliott to break out of his slump, Michigan International Speedway would be it. He won both stock car races last season at MIS in addition to his Miller 400 victories in 1984 and 1985.

Elliott bided his time until the cars came out of the fourth turn on lap 195, then jerked his car inside and passed Gant on the front stretch.

"I wanted to get by (Gant) early to have the advantage of the lapped cars that were coming up in front of us," Elliott said. "I tried a lap earlier, moving down underneath, but didn't get a good enough go at him. I backed off and filed in behind him until I could get a good run at him."

definitely too strong to handle. I was probably lucky to finish second.

"We ran a good race and just got beat by a better car," Gant said. "I was surprised (Elliott) waited as long as he did to come by me."

It was the first race held since MIS was repaved two months ago. The new surface — which allowed the drivers to use the entire width of the track rather than one or two "grooves" as in the past — contributed to 32 lead changes among 12 drivers.

Elliott said his move on lap 195 was part of a strategy to trail slower cars some distance before passing them, forcing rivals such as Gant, Geoff Bodine and Buddy Baker — who finished third and fourth, each less than one second behind Elliott and Gant — to line up and wait for their turn to pass.

Meanwhile, rookie Rick Baldwin remained in critical condition late Sunday at W.A. Foote Memorial Hospital in nearby Jackson with a brain injury suffered when his Thunderbird hit a wall during qualifying laps Saturday.

"I kind of felt like if I could keep him back there, I might have had a shot," Gant said. "But he was Baldwin, 31, of Roanoke, Va., had been unconscious since being brought to the hospital, nursing supervisor Marjorie Hemminger said.

Pirates Add Stan Lewter As Basketball Assistant

Stan Lewter has been named assistant basketball coach at East Carolina, Dr. Ken Karr, director of athletics announced Monday.

Lewter, 28, joins head coach Charlie Harrison and assistant Lee Talbot on the 1986-87 Pirate coaching staff. Lewter comes to ECU after serving as head basketball coach at Southern Nash High School in Bailey. He has been head coach of the Firebirds program for the past five seasons, including a school record 18-8 season in 1984.

"We are very pleased to have Stan join our program at East Carolina," Karr said. "He has some fine credentials as a coach and should fit in well with our staff."

Lewter was an honorable mention All-American selection at Atlantic

Christian during his senior season in 1980. After a brief professional stint in Europe, he returned to concentrate on coaching. Lewter was a high school standout at Siler City where he was coached by ECU alumnus Mack Herndon. "It's a dream come true for me to accept this position," Lewter said. "I hate to leave Southern, but this opportunity was one that I could not pass."

Deep Draft Set To Go

NEW YORK (AP) — The consensus on Tuesday's NBA draft is that it will be deep in talent. After that, however, there are few certainties.

"This is a draft of great athletes and considerable depth," Marty Blake, director of scouting for the NBA, said. "There are at least 30 potential first-round players. From a depth standpoint, this will be one of the best drafts in years."

The Philadelphia 76ers, via a 1979 trade that sent Joe Bryant to the then-San Diego Clippers for a first-round pick in this year's draft, have parlayed that deal into the No. 1 selection thanks to the NBA's draft lottery.

Facing 76ers General Manager Pat Williams is the enviable task of choosing between 7-footers Brad Daugherty of North Carolina and William Bedford of Memphis State or possibly 6-11 Chris Washburn of North Carolina State.

Bedford and Washburn are considered to be the top players among the underclassmen who chose to enter the draft before their college eligibility had expired. However, they are looked upon more as prospects rather than franchise players, a prospect that might not sit well with the 76ers who could be looking for immediate help in case they complete a trade involving disgruntled center Moses Malone.

Williams has focused more of his attention on Daugherty, who is the safest and most fundamentally sound of the three.

"He's going to be stable," Williams said of Daugherty, who played for four years under the tutelage of Coach Dean Smith. "He's going to improve. He's going to score. He'll play big forward and center."

New Jersey Nets' General Manager Lew Schaffel concurs.

"The clear consensus is that Daugherty is the best and safest pick because of his past performance and the program he is coming out of," Schaffel said. "However, five years from now, any of these first-round picks might be considered the best of the bunch."

The 76ers, second-place finishers in the Atlantic Division, hope the No. 1 pick can help them catch the NBA champion Boston Celtics, also a member of the Atlantic Division.

However, the Celtics traded guard Gerald Henderson to the Seattle SuperSonics prior to the 1984-85 season for their first-round pick in this year's draft. After the lottery that pick became the second of the draft.

Following the 76ers and Celtics are Golden State and Indiana, last-place finishers in their divisions.

Daniels Leads Pitt County Romp

KINSTON — David Daniels banded out five hits, including three triples, and Bronswell Patrick struck out 10 batters in a complete game performance to lead Pitt County American Legion Post 38 to a 19-3 romp over Kinston Post 43 in baseball action Saturday night.

Daniels scored three runs and drove in four on his 5-6 night at the plate. Shane Adams had four hits and two RBI, and Larke Wetherington rapped out three hits for Pitt County, which blew the game open with a 11-run eighth inning.

Patrick, who allowed eight hits and walked five, held Kinston scoreless until the seventh inning when Felton Mason singled to drive in Scott Barnhill and Curtis Patterson. Barnhill had singled and Patterson was hit by a pitch.

Pitt County jumped out in front with a run in the top of the first when Adams singled, moved to second on a walk to Eric Jarman, stole third and home.

Pitt County went up by a 2-0 score with a run in the second inning. Daniels led off the inning with a triple and scored on an error by Kinston shortstop Neal Russell.

In the third inning, Lee Hardee reached first on Russell's second error and scored from third on an error charged to Kinston pitcher Curtis Patterson to make it 3-0.

The score remained at 3-0 until the top of the fifth when Pitt County pushed across three runs.

In the inning, Patrick got on an error to third baseman Billy Burns, and Daniels followed with his second triple, scoring Patrick. Steve Mills reached on an error, and both Daniels and Mills scored on a basehit by Lake Wetherington to make it 6-0.

Pitt County added another run in the top of the seventh when Mills, who was hit by a pitch, scored from third on an error.

Trailing 7-0 in the bottom of the seventh, Kinston's Mason singled in two runs to end Patrick's shutout bid and make the score 7-2.

Pitt County bounced back in the top of the eighth with 11 runs.

A two-run triple by Daniels and singles by Wetherington, Adams, Jarman, Axel Smith, Hardee, Daniels and Mills highlighted the inning.

Kinston, which committed nine errors in the game, booted three balls in the eighth inning which saw 16 Pitt County batters come to the plate.

Pitt County scored a run in the ninth to make the score 19-2, and Kinston scored the game's final run when Russell, who had doubled and moved to third on a ground out, scored on a ground out by Whit Whitley.

Pitt County, which improved to 5-3, plays at Snow Hill tonight at 8 p.m.

Norman Falls On Final Day

SOUTHAMPTON, N.Y. (AP) — Greg Norman bent over the ball on the sixth green at the U.S. Open. He studied the lie, the green and the hole. Satisfied that he had computed all the variables, he settled in for the putt and hit it.

As golf balls occasionally do, this particular putt refused to fall. Norman held his hands out, as if ask why it had behaved so stubbornly.

Par turned into bogey on that hole and Norman's game began to unravel right there. After going into Sunday's final round of the 86th U.S. Open with a one-stroke lead, Norman ballooned to a 5-over-par 75 and finished at 285, tied for 12th place.

"Basically, the whole thing was, I played flat," he said. "I didn't have much emotion. I didn't putt well. At No. 6, I missed a 4 1/2-footer. My emotions changed. Why, I don't know. I was just flat."

Norman's caddy tried to lift his spirits, saying he was still in the chase and not to let up. But Norman said nothing worked.

"I tried to get fired up," Norman said. "But when things don't happen for you, they don't happen. I couldn't light the wick to set the explosion going. It was just one of those days, I guess."

Unlike the third round, when he argued with heckling spectators, Norman had no trouble with the crowd. A uniformed police officer and another in plain clothes accompanied him around the course, but there was no trouble.

In fact, the gallery rooted for him, until a string of bogeys at Nos. 9, 10, 11 and 13 dropped him five strokes behind and out of the chase. Then the fans began drifting to other twosomes, leaving Norman and playing partner Hal Sutton pretty much on their own for the tournament's final holes.

"The gallery was pretty good, like it should be," Norman said. "But things wouldn't seem to happen for me. Things have got to go your way. That's a fact of golf."

"Sometimes, you go to the well too many times. This time, the well was dry for me."

Norman, who lost the 1984 Open in a playoff, said he remains determined to win a major championship after coming close a number of times.

"One bad round won't affect me," he said. "I just have to forget what's happened, tee it up next week in Atlanta and go from there."

Par In Playoff Gives Inkster 2nd Straight Win

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — Back-to-back victories at the Lady Keystone Open have convinced Juli Inkster the Hershey Country Club is the kind of course a golfer can build a career around.

"I'd like to play 30 tournaments a year on this course," said Inkster, who parred the first hole of a playoff with Debbie Massey and Cindy Hill on Sunday to win the 54-hole $250,000 LPGA tournament, her second straight tour victory.

Inkster, who won the McDonald's Classic last week, took home $37,500 and now ranks second on the LPGA money list this year with a total of $225,000.

Inkster, Hill and Massey had finished in a three-way tie at 210 after Massey bogeyed the final hole. Inkster and Hill had missed birdie putts on the 18th hole.

"I really thought I lost the tournament when I missed that putt," Inkster said. "I was lucky to get a second chance."

All three players had excellent drives to start the playoff on the 405-yard, par-4 first hole. Inkster hit first and sent a 4-iron 190 yards to the heart of the green.

"It was to my advantage to hit first," said Inkster. "I was sharp with my irons all day. I knew if I could hit a good shot it would put the pressure on Cindy and Debbie."

Hill pushed her second shot into the gallery. Massey's second shot went over the green. Hill chipped into the trap and took a double bogey. Massey was short with her chip shot and two-putted for a bogey.

Inkster, with a 14-footer for birdie, putted two feet short but had an easy tap-in for the victory.

"I really didn't expect par to win it," Inkster admitted. She won't try to make it three tour victories in a row because she is heading home to California for a rest.

Massey, who started and finished the day at 6 under par, had a two-shot lead after 11 holes. She bogeyed the 12th hole and the 18th, where she drove into the trees.

"I was having trouble with my driver all day," she said. "Even with the bad drive, I still had a chance to win it. I just left a 10-foot putt outside the hole."

Inkster started the day at minus-4, but the defending champion almost fell out of contention with a double bogey on the ninth hole.

"I was under the trees and I hit a limb and went into the bunker," said Inkster, who dropped to 4-under. "I knew I still had a chance because no one was making a run."

Hill, who also started at 4-under, birdied 16 and 17 to tie for the lead.

Sherri Turner, Jane Crafter and Lisa Young were in a three-way tie for fourth at 211. Turner started the day 5 under par but couldn't make up any ground. Young, who missed a birdie putt on the 18th hole, had a 70.

Sandra Palmer, who started the day 2-over, became the early leader in the clubhouse after a 6-under 66 gave her a 212 total. She finished in a tie with Betsy King, Nancy Scranton and Kim Shipman.

Pat Bradley, the tour's leading money winner, closed with a 69 to finish a shot behind Palmer. Joining Bradley at 213 were Becky Pearson, Alice Miller, Jan Stephenson and JoAnn Washam.

Floyd Continues Year Of The Elders

SOUTHAMPTON, N.Y. (AP) — Last week, it was trainer Woody Stephens at the Belmont. Last month, jockey Bill Shoemaker at the Kentucky Derby. Before that, Jack Nicklaus won the Masters. And now, Ray Floyd has won the U.S. Open.

Put some Glenn Miller 78 rpm records on the Victrola and let the good times roll. Social Security may be in trouble, but the senior citizens in sports keep right on rolling.

Floyd's just 43, almost a kid in this group. But he went parading around the Shinnecock Hills golf course with a Silver Pages logo on his cap and golf bag, a tribute to his AT&T sponsors and their telephone directory that is directed to older folks.

And when he shot a final-round 66 to claim this coveted crown, it made him the oldest Open champion in history, by five months over 1920 winner Ted Ray.

By cracky, this not exactly some wet-behind-the-ears teen-ager we're talking about here. This is a 23-year PGA Tour veteran who has been around the block once or twice.

That may be why he came into the Open with a little extra drive than ordinary. A week ago, at the Westchester Classic, Floyd reached the final round tied for the lead.

"I don't want this to sound wrong," he said, "but I had more wins by myself than everybody else combined in the top 10 or 12."

No matter. Floyd blew sky high with a final-round 77 and let the kids take the tournament away from him. The experience was not wonderful.

"To go out and not perform and play like a rookie while the rookies played well, that was not pleasant," he said.

"I've always prided myself on being able to handle pressure and control myself mentally when a situation arose and there was a chance to win a tournament. When you're in front, there's a lot of pressure. You've got to live with it. I know how to play. I know about emotions. Internally, I totally blew last week. Mentally, I blew up."

Floyd and his wife, Maria, did some surgery on his game as they drove the 100 miles from Westchester to Shinnecock last Sunday night.

"I wanted to make it a good, learning experience and turn it around," he said. "You try to take something bad and make it positive."

He started Sunday's final round at 213, three strokes behind third-round leader Greg Norman. As Floyd began chipping away, he realized he had positioned himself to win the tournament that he had always wanted to win more than any other.

"You could see it in his eyes," his playing partner Payne Stewart said. "They got real big."

The better, my dear, to see the scoreboard and the red (sub-par) numbers appear on it next to his name. He may be 43, but his eyesight is still good enough to read the leaderboards.

"I don't consider myself old," Floyd said bravely. "In the realm of things, I'm not old. In the realm of sports, I'm very old."

Old enough and smart enough to know that this might have been his last legitimate shot to win the Open. It was a fact of life he reminded himself of as he practiced for what might have been the most important round of golf of his life.

"I know I'm not 30 or 35," he said. "I'm in a young man's game. But I don't feel old. I feel I can play with the young guys."

"When you have a 2:13 starting time, that's too long to think. You run through a lot of thoughts. I had never before thought of being 43 and that this might be my last shot at the Open. Realistically, though, it could very well be. Sometimes, you must face realism."

"With that in mind, the conversation I had internally was pretty stern and severe. I told myself, I'd better get on with it. I'm here. I want to go out and perform well."

So Floyd shot a sizzling 66 and won the Open. Now he is a certified member of a rapidly expanding club of elderly sports champions. Put the name in the Silver Pages, right there alongside Stephens, noemaker and Nicklaus. He's earned the listing.

Snow Hill Tops Wilson County

WILSON — Kelvin Brown rapped an RBI single in the top of the ninth inning to score Kevin Mason and give Snow Hill American Legion Post 94 a 6-4 victory over Wilson County Post 13 in baseball action Sunday night.

Snow Hill took an early 2-1 lead after six innings.

With one out in the top of seventh, Snow Hill's Ervin Collins singled, and Kevin Mason followed with another single to put runners on first and second. Mike Couture then notched a double to drive in both runners and give Snow Hill a 4-1 lead.

Wilson County came right back in the bottom of the seventh to even the score. Russell Best started things off with a triple, and Johnny Hinnant and Jerry Smith walked to load the bases. Blair Bass reached on an infield error to score Best. Parker singled to right to score Hinnant and Smith.

After a scoreless eighth inning for both teams, Snow Hill scored two in the top of the ninth. After Kevin Mason and Couture walked, Kelvin Brown singled to bring home Mason. Couture then went to third and scored on a sacrifice fly by Joe Roberts.

In the bottom of the ninth, pitcher Morris Banks, who had entered the game in the seventh inning, retired the side on a strikeout and two pop flies. Snow Hill plays at home against Snow Hill tonight.

Deep Draft...

NBA Rookie of the Year Patrick Ewing with the top pick last year, will choose fifth, followed by Phoenix, Dallas, Cleveland, Chicago, San Antonio, Detroit, Washington, New Jersey, Portland, Utah, Denver, Sacramento, Denver, Atlanta, Houston, Philadelphia, Milwaukee, the Los Angeles Lakers and Portland.

There are 24 first-round selections because Cleveland, which traded its 1986 first-round choice to Dallas, was awarded an extra pick when new owners bought the team in 1983.

Daugherty, Bedford, Washburn and Maryland forward Len Bias are generally considered — although in no particular order — the first four picks by general managers attending the seven-team lottery on May 18.

After those four picks, the top candidates for early selection are forwards Chuck Person of Auburn, Kenny Walker of Kentucky, Brad Sellers of Ohio State and Roy Tarpley of Michigan, Ron Harper of Miami, Ohio and Dell Curry of Virginia Tech head up a strong group of guards that also features Johnny Dawkins of Duke, Scott Skiles of Michigan State and Maurice Martin of St. Joseph's.

Besides Washburn and Bedford, top underclassmen include Syracuse point guard Dwayne Washington, forward John Williams of Louisiana State, Naismith Award winner Walter Berry of St. John's and former Georgia forward Cedric Henderson, who spent last year playing in Italy.

"In last year's draft, there was one player, Patrick Ewing," Schaffel said. "As far as quality and numbers, this year's draft is as good as I can recall. Everybody in the first round will be getting a good player."

The seven-round draft will be televised nationally on cable by WTBS for the first two hours after a 1:05 p.m. EDT start.

NL East Leading Mets Sweep Bucs

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer
The New York Mets have been a tough team for the rest of the National League to handle this season. That's been especially true for the Pittsburgh Pirates, who can't seem to find any type of handle on the runaway NL East leaders.

"Needless to say, it was a long weekend," Pirates Manager Jim Leyland said after his team was swept 4-1 and 8-5 in Sunday's doubleheader by the Mets. "They keep cracking away at you. You see a little light and then they come around and score some more runs off you. They have so much depth, it's hard to keep up with them."

The Mets' victories completed a four-game sweep of the Pirates and improved their record over Pittsburgh to 11-1 this season. It also improved their record to a major league-best 43-16 and the Mets' lead in the NL East to 10½ games over Montreal, the biggest first-place edge in their 25-year history.

"No one's doing anything extraordinary; that's the interesting thing," Mets Manager Dave Johnson said. "Everybody seems to be playing just at their capability. I don't want to change anything too much. You don't want to get too smart at this point. That's how guys blow leads. We still have two teams to play (Montreal and Chicago), so we have a long way to go."

In other NL action Sunday, Montreal defeated Philadelphia 2-0; Cincinnati outscored Atlanta 9-7; Chicago nipped St. Louis 4-3 in 11 innings; San Francisco stopped Houston 7-2 and Los Angeles blanked San Diego 6-0.

Bob Ojeda scattered nine hits and Len Dykstra went 3-for-4, leading New York over Pittsburgh in the first game. In pitching his third complete game of the season, Ojeda, 8-2, struck out five and gave up only one walk. Ojeda shut out Pittsburgh until Jim Morrison and Tony Pena doubled in the ninth.

Dykstra hit a leadoff triple that sparked a two-run sixth. He also singled, stole second and scored on Kevin Mitchell's double in the seventh.

Bob Walk, 2-3, making his first start after 21 relief appearances, took the loss. He gave up three runs on five hits and struck out four while walking two over five innings.

Rookie catcher Ed Hearn hit a three-run homer in the sixth inning to carry the Mets to their second-game triumph. Mookie Wilson and Gary Carter also hit home runs for the Mets in the nightcap.

Expos 2, Phillies 0

Herm Winningham hit a home run and Andy McGaffigan allowed only four hits over 6 1-3 innings as Montreal beat host Philadelphia. McGaffigan struck out seven and walked two in winning his fourth game against two losses. Jeff Reardon gained his 15th save of the season.

Winningham led off the third inning with his fourth home run of the season off loser Charles Hudson, 4-4, to provide the Expos with their winning run. Montreal added an insurance run in the ninth inning when Hubie Brooks tripled and stole home on the front end of a double steal after a walk to Tim Wallach.

Reds 9, Braves 7

Eric Davis knocked in three runs with a single and a home run as Cincinnati defeated Atlanta. Davis had a two-run single in the first inning and a solo homer in the fourth to pave the way for winner Tom Browning, 4-6, who limited the Braves to five hits in five innings in beating the Braves for the fifth time in his career without a loss.

The Reds combined seven hits off Atlanta starter Zane Smith, 5-7, with two errors by Atlanta shortstop

Rafael Ramirez to score four runs in the top of the first inning and three more in the third. Dave Parker and Davis then hit home runs off reliever Steve Shields in the fourth for a 9-0 Cincinnati lead before the Braves managed to score.

Cubs 4, Cardinals 3

Steve Lake's single in the bottom of the 11th inning scored Keith Moreland from second base, leading Chicago over St. Louis. It was the Cubs' first victory under Gene Michael, who took over as manager Saturday.

Ray Fontenot, 2-1, was the winner and Todd Worrell, 3-6, the loser.

The Cardinals took a 3-2 lead in the top of the 10th on Jack Clark's pinch RBI single, but the Cubs came back to tie on an RBI single by pinch-hitter Thad Bosley.

Giants 7, Astros 2

Jeff Leonard, Chris Brown and Chili Davis all went 3-for-5 and scored two runs to power San Francisco over Houston. Leonard and Davis each knocked in two runs, Davis one of them with his seventh homer.

Vida Blue, 4-3, was the winner with relief help from Jeff Robinson and Mark Davis. Blue pitched six innings and gave up one run on four hits, striking out six and walking one.

"Vida was tough today. He had a lot of movement on all his pitches," Giants catcher Bob Melvin said. "From a hitter's standpoint, it's tough to get a fix on the ball with so much movement on it."

Bob Knepper, 10-4, was the loser in the Astrodome, giving up 10 hits and four runs in five innings.

Biancalana Powers Royals Over Angels

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer
Now little Buddy Biancalana, the cult hero of the 1985 World Series, has a new gimmick. He's hitting home runs.

"This is a good place to hit. The ball jumps out," Biancalana said Sunday after homering for the second straight day in the Kansas City Royals' 6-5 road victory over the California Angels.

Biancalana had not hit a home run since April 17, 1985 before connecting Saturday. He now has a total of five major-league homers.

"I got my share in the minors, but I haven't had a big season in the majors," said Biancalana, who hit 18 home runs in the minor leagues with a single-season high of seven.

In other American League games Sunday, Milwaukee beat Boston 7-3, Baltimore edged New York 4-3, Seattle rallied past Chicago 10-5, Oakland downed Texas 9-2, Toronto bopped Detroit 9-6 and Minnesota defeated Cleveland 7-3.

Not much had been heard from Biancalana this season following his World Series heroics. The shortstop, who batted just .188 last season, has played sparingly this year, mostly backing up Argenis Salazar.

Sunday's homer, along with a bunt single, gave Biancalana nine hits in 28 at-bats for a .321 average. But he also has committed six errors, including one Sunday that led to a run. Salazar is batting .241 with four errors.

"They know I can play this game and hit," Biancalana, who became a media star during the World Series, said. "But the homers surprise me."

Steve Balboni and Frank White also homered for the Royals, who led 6-0.

White hit his eighth homer after George Brett walked in the fourth. Biancalana homered in the fifth off Ron Romanick, 3-5, and Balboni hit a three-run shot, his 13th, in the sixth.

Charlie Leibbrandt, 6-5, pitching on three days rest for the first time in two years, got the victory.

The Angels scored twice in the sixth on an RBI single by Doug DeCinces and a throwing error by Biancalana.

Leibbrandt left after giving up two-out singles in the eighth by Dick Schofield and Brian Downing, and reliever Steve Farr walked two batters, forcing home a run.

Dan Quisenberry gave up Bobby Grich's two-run double before finishing up for his fifth save.

Brewers 7, Red Sox 3

Robin Yount and Ben Oglivie each homered and doubled, driving in three runs apiece that led visiting Milwaukee over Boston.

Yount hit his third homer in the third inning and Oglivie's third home run broke a 2-2 tie in the fifth. They both had RBI doubles during a four-run seventh.

Rookie Juan Nieves, 6-2, gave up nine hits. He left with runners on first and second and no outs in the eighth and Mark Clear finished up for his fifth save.

Wade Boggs, leading the majors with a .382 average despite a 3-for-20 slump, hit a run-scoring double in the first inning and lined out in the second. He then left the game after aggravating a rib injury.

Boggs, who was celebrating his 28th birthday, is expected to play tonight when the Red Sox and Roger Clemens, 11-0, open a three-game series in New York against the Yankees.

A's 9, Rangers 2

Chris Codiroli shut out Texas on five hits over six innings and Oakland took advantage of wildness by Rangers starter Bobby Witt.

Witt, 3-5, walked seven in the first

Triple-Play Out

Catcher Carlton Fisk of the Chicago White Sox blocks the plate as he tags out a sliding Alvin Davis of the Seattle Mariners, during the second inning in the Kingdome Sunday. The out was the second in a triple play, in which Davis attempted to score after his teammate Ken Phelps had flied out. Fisk threw to second base to catch Mariner baserunner Jim Presley, who was trying to advance for the third out and complete the triple play. (AP Laserphoto) three innings. Walks to Carney Lansford and Jose Canseco set up an RBI single by Dave Kingman and a two-run double by Mike Davis in the first inning.

Four walks in the third inning, along with a two-run double by Tony Phillips, made it 6-0. Witt has walked 68 in 66 2-3 innings this season.

Codiroli, 5-7, struck out four and walked none before leaving with a 9-0 lead in Oakland.

Blue Jays 9, Tigers 6

Garth Iorg's three-run, pinch-homer keyed a seven-run rally in the sixth inning and continued Toronto's barrage of pinch-hit home runs against Detroit.

The host Blue Jays wiped out a 5-2 deficit with their big inning, which included a two-run double by Jesse Barfield.

Iorg's first homer of the season was Toronto's fourth pinch-home run in three days against the Tigers.

Detroit has lost 12 of its last 16 games. Tigers Manager Sparky Anderson and catcher Lance Parrish were ejected from the game for arguing balls-and-strikes with rookie umpire Dale Scott. Parrish and Kirk Gibson homered for Detroit.

Mariners 10, White Sox 5

Dave Henderson, who hit a two-run homer earlier in the game, and Steve Yeager each had two-run singles during a six-run rally in the eighth inning that carried Seattle over Chicago.

The host Mariners won their third straight game despite a triple play by the White Sox.

John Moses drew a one-out walk in the Seattle eighth and scored on a double by Phil Bradley, tying the score 5-5. Ken Phelps' RBI single, his third hit of the game, set up the two-run singles by Henderson and Yeager.

Chicago's first triple play since 1981 came in the second inning. With Alvin Davis at third and Jim Presley at first, Phelps hit a fly ball to left fielder Jerry Hairston.

Davis tried to tag up and was thrown out at the plate and Presley, who had hesitated, was thrown out at second by catcher Carlton Fisk.

The triple play was third in the majors this season, two of them at the Kingdome. Seattle pulled one against Milwaukee and Atlanta caught San Diego.

Twins 7, Indians 3

Kent Hrbek, Roy Smalley and Gary Gaetti hit home runs that led Minnesota and Frank Viola over host Cleveland.

Hrbek's solo homer, his 13th, broke a 1-1 tie in the fourth. Tom Brunansky followed with a single and Smalley connected for his 11th home run against Don Schulze, 3-4.

Gaetti, who was 3-for-3, hit his 15th homer in the eighth off Bryan Oelkers for a 5-2 lead.

Viola, 6-5, gave up three runs in 7 1-3 innings.

Orioles 4, Yankees 3

Cal Ripken doubled home the tying run and scored on Mike Young's two-out single in the eighth inning as Baltimore rallied past New York.

The Orioles snapped their first three-game losing streak of the season and prevented New York from sweeping the four-game series in Baltimore.

Rickey Henderson, who had homered earlier, had a run-scoring single in the seventh that gave the Yankees a 3-2 lead.

But Lee Lacy led off the eighth with a checked-swing single that reliever Brian Fisher, 2-3, had trouble fielding. Ripken followed with his RBI double and Young, still in a 3-for-22 slump, delivered his game-winning single.

Mike Boddicker raised his record to 9-1 and Don Aase pitched the ninth for his 18th save, tops in the majors.

Dan Pasqua homered in the New York fifth for the first hit of the game. Eddie Murray's two-run homer lifted Baltimore into a 2-2 tie in the sixth.

Hot Rod's Future Still Undecided

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The question of John "Hot Rod" Williams' guilt or innocence of sports bribery charges could give rise to another concerning his future in professional basketball: Is the former Tulane forward still bound to the Cleveland Cavaliers?

The National Basketball Association says that if he is found innocent, yes. But Chicago attorney Mike Green, Williams' defense lawyer, said he believes Williams' name should go back into the draft.

Green added in a recent interview that he believes the NBA Player's Association would agree with him.

A jury of five women and one man was to begin today deciding whether the 6-foot-10 forward plotted with four other teammates and several non-athletes to shave points in three Tulane games in February 1985.

Williams is accused of actually carrying out the scheme in games against Memphis State and Southern Mississippi and of receiving $4,900 as payment.

Defense lawyers rested their case Friday after calling a statistical expert and the coaches of Memphis State and Southern Mississippi. After studying game films and statistics, all three said there was no indication that Williams tried to curb his performance in any of the games in question.

The point-shaving scandal blossomed last year to include numerous other allegations of NCAA rules violations and stories of cocaine use by team members and other students. It also brought to an end the men's basketball program at Tulane.

It also threatened to halt the NBA career of Williams, once thought to be a cinch first-round draft choice.

After the sports bribery charges were filed last year, the NBA office circulated a letter warning all teams that it would be risky to draft Williams, because the league would not accept anyone guilty of point-shaving — which means winning by fewer points or losing by more points than the established betting line.

Cleveland gambled on Williams, drafting him in the second round.

Williams played last year for the Rhode Island Gulls of the United States Basketball League. He made $15,000 and was selected to the league's all-star team.

This is the second time Williams is being tried on the charges — three counts of conspiracy to commit sports bribery and two counts of sports bribery.

Guest Speaker for June L. P. WARD

L. P. Ward has been an independent insurance agent for 25 years. He is past president of the greater Chadbourn, N.C. Chamber of Commerce and currently serves as chairman of Chadbourn Industrial Organization. He graduated from High Point College earning a B.S. degree in Business Administration.

At age 26 he came to know Jesus as his savior resulting in his being led to a ministry of healing and soul-winning. He and his wife, Betty, have raised five sons and one daughter.

We invite all men, women and children to come and hear how Jesus has helped this businessman in his life and business. We expect this meeting to be more ministry to the body of Christ than testimony or teaching. Brother Ward has the gift of healing as well as other gifts of the Spirit manifest in his ministry. So come on out and bring a friend to share His love and fellowship with L. P.

EXPECT A BLESSING!!!

Plan to Hear this Exciting Testimony and Bring a Friend.

Oil Production Cuts Not Met By OPEC

By ROBERT BURNS
Associated Press Writer
BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — OPEC has failed to meet its spring target of voluntary cuts in oil production, and cartel sources and industry analysts say no major cutbacks are expected before summer's end.

The probable result is a continuing oil glut and prices fluctuating around the current $13-$15 a barrel, the analysts say. Some foresee brief dips to $10 a barrel.

After a marathon meeting in April, the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries declared that 10 of its 13 members had agreed the group's production should be cut by one million barrels a day, to 16.3 million barrels daily, starting July 1.

In the meantime, they said, the 10 would make voluntary cuts to leave total OPEC output near the 16.3 million level by the end of June. The stated goal was to bring supplies closer in line with demand to drive prices above $20 a barrel.

But instead of reining in production, some OPEC members that sided with the majority in April — including Kuwait, Nigeria and the United Arab Emirates — have increased it, according to several outside estimates.

The Paris-based International Energy Agency says OPEC production was about 17.3 million barrels a day in May — the same as April. Some analysts put it as high as 17.5 million barrels daily.

Some analysts believe OPEC's titans, led by Saudi Arabia, have scuttled the idea of restraining production this summer. The Saudis, it is believed, want to keep oil prices from rising much above $15 a barrel to encourage a longer-term increase in demand for their oil.

The main opponents of that approach are Libya, Algeria and Iran. They want OPEC to cut production enough to push prices nearer last fall's peak of $30 a barrel.

Ahmed Zaki Yamani, the Saudi oil minister, appeared to hint at this strategy in a Saudi state television interview May 26. He said the current oil market slump was part of a natural cycle that would end regardless of whether OPEC and independent oil producers agreed on production limits.

"There will be another oil boom in the 1990s ... and the cycle will start again," he said.

The first clear sign of Saudi intentions could come June 25 when the cartel's oil ministers open their regular summer conference on the Adriatic island of Brioni, Yugoslavia.

One OPEC source said the Brioni meeting would ignore the April decision. He said the talks would start from the basis of a consensus reached at a meeting of six key OPEC ministers last month in Taif, Saudi Arabia.

The outcome of the Taif meeting has been kept under wraps by OPEC, although cartel sources said it concluded that it would be impossible to divvy up the summer production ceiling proposed at the April meeting.

Stephen Turner, an oil analyst with the Scottish investment firm Wood, Mackenzie and Co., said he understood the ministers wanted to set a relatively high production ceiling of about 18 million barrels a day and not impose it until the year's final quarter.

If that is the outcome of the Brioni session, he said, the world oil market "could easily test $10 a barrel" before the end of the summer.

Paul McDonald, senior oil consultant at Shearson Lehman Brothers Ltd., a London-based investment company, said he believed OPEC had given up trying to agree on production limits for the summer quarter and that prices would hold near current levels for the near-term.

"They almost seem to be throwing up their hands in despair," he said. "They, or at least the (Persian) Gulf countries, have come to the realization that you can't do anything with the market, you might as well let it go its own way."

Despite being unable to agree on cuts in its own production, OPEC has not given up asking for voluntary cutbacks from independent producers such as Norway, where a new government took office last month.

Non-OPEC producers such as Egypt, Mexico, China and Malaysia have said they would be willing to cooperate with the cartel.

Farm Scene

By LEROY JAMES
County Extension Chairman

Except for very simple farming operations, net farm income cannot be calculated without inventories of crops, feed, supplies and livestock.

An inventory is indispensable at both the beginning and the end of the accounting or income year.

The ending inventory of one year, however, becomes the beginning inventory of the following year. Unless inventories are taken and used in accounting, income in one year will repeatedly be in error in one direction and that of the following year will be in error in the opposite direction.

When stored crops are inventoried, stored structures should be measured and the contents estimated from the dimensions found.

The first inventory is the most difficult in this respect.

After dimensions of bins, silos and other structures are recorded, it becomes easy to compute contents in future years. For grain and shelled corn, measure the length, width and average depth of the grain in the bin.

A crop and livestock inventory record need not be very complex.

A net inventory increase is added to net cash farm income to yield net farm income before depreciation expenses; a net decrease is subtracted.

Panel Told Role Marcos Played In Aquino Case

By MIGUEL C. SUAREZ
Associated Press Writer
MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Ferdinand E. Marcos instructed a judge and a panel of prosecutors to acquit soldiers accused of killing opposition leader Benigno Aquino in 1983, a prosecutor told a special commission today.

Manuel Herrera also told the commission that Marcos ordered prosecutors to charge then-armed forces chief Gen. Fabian C. Ver and several high-ranking officers as accessories rather than as principals in the slaying of President Corazon Aquino's husband so they would be able to post bail while awaiting trial.

"It's better that they be tried now and acquitted," Herrera quoted Marcos as telling the group in a meeting in Marcos' library at the presidential palace on Jan. 10, 1985.

Herrera quoted Justice Manuel Pamaran as saying, "Yes, Mr. President, that's the better arrangement."

Herrera was testifying at the first public hearing by a three-member commission of retired judges created by the Supreme Court. Its purpose is to receive evidence of alleged trial irregularities so the high court can determine whether to call a new trial.

Herrera, lead prosecutor in the 10-month trial that ended in last December's acquittal of Ver and the 25 other defendants, has made similar allegations in interviews with reporters after the February revolution that ousted Marcos and brought Mrs. Aquino to power.

Lawyers for the family of Rolando Galman, who was accused by the military of killing Aquino at the Mania airport, called the trial a sham and petitioned the Supreme Court for a new trial, citing Herrera's allegations of pressure from Marcos and of collusion by the court.

Galman was killed by soldiers immediately after Aquino died.

Herrera said Marcos was sick during the January 1985 meeting. "He was in slippers and pajamas with a robe. His two hands were on top of the table. His hands were bloated and his face puffy. He was groping for words," Herrera testified.

Herrera said other people summoned with him for the meeting with Marcos were Pamaran, head of the three-judge court that conducted the trial; Herrera's immediate superior, ombudsman Bernardo Fernandez; and two of Herrera's assistants.

Marcos' politically powerful wife, Imelda, and his legal aide, Manuel Lazaro, were also present, Herrera said.

Herrera quoted Marcos as telling the group that if Ver, his most trusted general, and the other soldiers were not put on trial while he was president, witnesses would come forward in the future and make a trial inevitable.

Herrera said "there could be no mistaking" that Marcos wanted an acquittal when he mentioned the need to "erase the possibility of double jeopardy." This is a legal principle under which no person can be put on trial more than once on the same offense.

Towards the end of the two-hour meeting, which he described as a virtual Marcos monologue, the prosecutor quoted Marcos as telling the group, in Tagalog, to "just play-act."

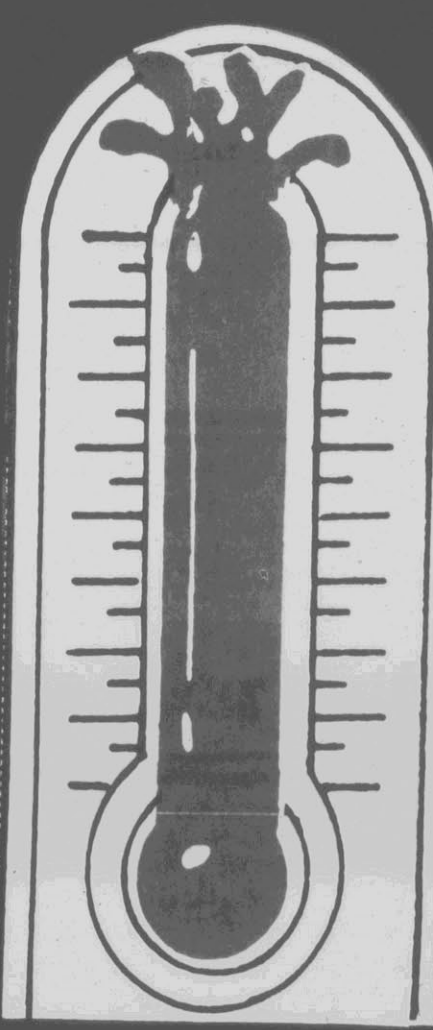

"I can't forget the last statement of Mr. Marcos. He said, 'Gentlemen, I'm tired, I want to rest. Thank you for coming, thank you for your cooperation. I know how to reciprocate.'"

Lawyers for Ver, who fled the country with Marcos and now lives in Honolulu, and the other ex-defendants, protested the hearing as a violation of their right against double jeopardy. They said they planned to ask the Supreme Court to reconsider its decision creating the commission.

Herrera, 62, said the meeting with Marcos came on the same day that he and his two assistants recommended to Fernandez that Ver and the others all be charged as principals in the slayings of Aquino and Galman.

He said that when he and the others arrived at the palace, he saw that Marcos was "quite bothered" that all accused had been recommended for indictment as principals.

Marcos asked that the accused be categorized into principals, accomplices and accessories so some top officers would not have to be jailed, Herrera said.

Abortion Clinic Violence Targeted

DENVER (AP) — The National Organization for Women has launched a campaign to strike back — in the courts and on the streets — against abortion clinic violence.

The group wrapped up its national conference Sunday by approving a plan to develop a program of litigation "to stop terrorist activities at women's health centers."

NOW also said its political action committees will make fighting anti-abortion referendums a priority, and urged all NOW chapters to continue holding conferences and demonstrations in support of abortion rights.

Ten other resolutions were passed Sunday, including ones on AIDS research and the rights of AIDS victims, child care, rights of homosexuals, wage discrimination, sex education and women's rights in marriage. Thirty-two other resolutions were proposed and more may be passed later by the NOW board.

But abortion was a major issue during the three-day, 20th anniversary conference, partly because the National Right to Life Committee also held its national convention in Denver over the weekend, a few blocks away. That convention ended Saturday.

There were few major clashes, but 22 anti-abortion demonstrators were arrested at a Planned Parenthood office Friday and three people were arrested for a disturbance during NOW's March for Women's Lives on Saturday.

Also keeping abortion in the forefront was a U.S. Supreme Court decision issued just before the conference began. Both the anti-abortion group and NOW said they were pleased about it, NOW because it reaffirmed the 1973 decision to legalize abortion, and Right to Life because the vote was a close 5-4.

Shortly before the convention began, NOW announced the filing of a class-action suit in Delaware to stem violence against abortion clinics by citing federal antitrust laws restricting actions against businesses. And Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo., said she, as a member of the House Judiciary Committee, is pushing for the Justice Department to recognize the attacks as terrorism.

As NOW President Eleanor Smel kicked off the conference Friday, she said NOW was "on a roll." She cited the Supreme Court decision, large turnouts during marches, the new litigation strategy on abortion clinics and support in public-opinion polls.

Margarita Papandreou, head of the Greek women's union and the wife of the Greek prime minister, was the guest speaker Saturday — the first time an international feminist leader addressed a national NOW conference.

"You lit the flame that set women afire all over the world," she said. "You have a special responsibility to help structure the revolution and the new society on the basis of feminist principles."

Senate Inches Toward OK Of Tax Bill

By CLIFF HAAS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is about to clear away the last remaining challenges to tax-overhaul legislation and give its overwhelming approval to the landmark measure.

"At this stage, we are past the major amendments," Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., the prime architect of the measure, said confidently.

As the Senate begins its second week of debate on the bill today, Packwood, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, is predicting passage of the measure possibly as early as Tuesday.

The bill was amended for the first time last Friday to eliminate one of its dozens of provisions that would grant $5.5 billion worth of tax breaks to special interests.

Packwood said he freed the coalition supporting the bill to vote for the amendment by Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, removing a tax break for Union Oil Co. of California — Unocal.

Metzenbaum said he planned to offer similar amendments today, but it was unclear what their chances were.

Meanwhile, Sen. George Mitchell, D-Maine, a Finance Committee member, is making what apparently will be the last major attempt to revise the bill with an amendment to increase the tax burden on the wealthy and give more tax relief to middle-income taxpayers.

Mitchell claims the committee bill would give those with incomes over $200,000 16 percent of the tax reduction. Under his amendment, those people would get no tax cut; instead, their taxes would be raised by about 2.5 percent and the revenues would be used chiefly for tax savings for those with incomes between $20,000 and $50,000.

But Mitchell was expected to have no more success in changing the bill than have previous attempts.

After the Senate vote — which some Senate leaders predict will be 100-0 — the next step will be a meeting of negotiators from the House and Senate to draft a compromise version of the legislation. The House passed its version of the measure late last year.

While the Senate wraps up its work on the tax bill this week, the House will consider a resolution urging President Reagan to continue to adhere to the limits set by the unratified SALT II agreement on nuclear weapons.

Democratic leaders who control the legislative agenda in the House have set a vote for Wednesday on the resolution stating that continued compliance with the terms of the unratified treaty is in the national security interests of the United States.

In April, 220 House members wrote to Reagan asking that he not scrap his five-year policy of honoring the SALT II limits as long as the Soviet Union did the same.

But on May 27, the president, alleging Soviet violations of some of the terms of the treaty, announced his administration would no longer be bound by SALT II.

Reagan said the United States likely will exceed the SALT II limits at the end of the year when the 131st B-52 bomber is converted to carry air-launched cruise missiles.

In another foreign policy matter, the House is due to vote Tuesday on legislation which would give the force of law to U.S. sanctions against the white minority government of South Africa.

The measure was approved by the House Foreign Affairs Committee last week, 25-13.

Rep. William H. Gray III, D-Pa., author of the legislation, said a set of sanctions President Reagan imposed earlier against the Pretoria government have proved ineffective.

"History shows that the South Africa regime makes changes only when its economic interests are at stake," Gray said. "Instead of giving aid and comfort to the Pretoria regime, they allow us to extend our hand to black leaders who still hope that meaningful change can come about without even greater violence."

The bill would bar all new U.S. bank loans to South Africa and new U.S. investment in the country.

The measure also would block U.S. firms from providing technology to South Africa's energy industry, close the U.S. offices of South African banks, deny landing rights in the United States to South African Airways and bar the import of South African uranium, steel and coal.

Something To Avoid

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Eleven-year-old Eamon Burke says he plans to avoid bringing up the Chernobyl nuclear accident when he meets with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, who has invited him to visit the Soviet Union.

The freckle-faced, red-haired youngster left his home in a Sydney suburb Sunday for the Soviet Union after saying, "It is dumb how much red tape there is around dismantling nuclear weapons."

He planned to present the Soviet leader with a peace scroll signed by more than 1,000 Australian schoolchildren.

Part VIII: Dark Days — the 1920 Depression

The Way Greenville Was

By PATRICIA M. MOORE

The economic horrors of the 1920 Depression have been eclipsed by the greatest worldwide financial crisis of all time, the Depression of 1929.

Yet the 1920 Depression had tumultuous local impact, because the bottom dropped out of the tobacco market on opening Tuesday, Sept. 7.

Sales had been in progress a short time that morning and prices were 15 to 20 cents per pound. Soon it became obvious that prices were less than half the 1919 average, which had reached an all-time high of 52.84 cents per pound.

As auctioneers moved down long rows of bright-leaf tobacco lining the seven Greenville warehouse floors, farmers began to gather here and there in small groups, both inside buildings and outside in the streets of the tobacco district.

Soon it was apparent that a tension existed, something was different. The small groups became small bands, comparing prices, outraged that 15 and 20 cents per pound would not cover production costs that had increased sharply over the previous year.

Without warning, growers swarmed onto warehouse floors, refusing to allow sales to continue. Buyers and warehousemen were caught unprepared. They agreed to stop sales, not taking time to consider the consequences of their action.

As the day progressed, all over town angry farmers muttered that they would burn every barn of tobacco in the county before they would accept the low prices they had been offered that day.

Following the abrupt closing of opening day market, farm leaders called for a mass meeting at the Pitt County Courthouse to take place the following morning, Sept. 8.

Thousands of planters from throughout eastern North Carolina responded to the call, filling the streets surrounding the courthouse. Similar meetings took place in other eastern Carolina towns as markets opened with low prices.

Here, farmers appointed a committee to draft a resolution addressing their grievances and seeking relief. While the resolution was being prepared, disgruntled farmers thronged downtown streets. An atmosphere of tension persisted until that afternoon when the resolution was read from the courthouse portico.

It consisted of nine points, the most important ones concentrating on relief for financially ailing farmers.

First, growers agreed that the market would reopen Thursday, Sept. 9, but they decided to withhold the best of their crop until prices increased. (Average price for 1920 was 20.92 cents per pound.)

Another provision advocated a committee to ask Federal Reserve Bank system representatives for additional funds for buyers, who then would hold tobacco until prices rose. This action was designed to provide immediate financial relief for growers.

Other provisions called for cooperation between growers and buyers, as well as for growers to organize in order to better promote their interests. The latter resulted in formation of the Tobacco Growers Cooperative Marketing Association in North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia. The purpose of this and other co-ops was to encourage decreased production for 1921, build storage warehouses, and withhold crops from sale until prices increased.

By the end of 1921, approximately 64,000 farmers had joined the Tri-State Tobacco Growers Cooperative Association.

However, the tobacco crisis of 1920 was not limited to the local area or to North Carolina; it was a southern problem and a worldwide problem. For example, in Lexington, Ky., prices fell from 35 cents per pound in 1919 to 13 cents per pound in 1920. In Virginia, the 1919 average was 51 cents per pound compared to 22 cents in 1920.

The market also collapsed in the wake of glutted warehouse floors in the East Indies, South America and other places.

The 1920 Depression was brought on by several factors including over-production, post-World War I deflation, inferior tobacco and inequalities in the method of selling on warehouse floors.

In 1919, a plentiful crop of superior quality tobacco sold in Greenville and other places at record highs of 53 cents and more a pound.

Farmers had enjoyed some prosperity between the financial crises of 1915 and 1920, partially because of increased demand for agricultural products resulting from World War I in Europe, which wiped out availability of farmland there.

During the years of prosperity, in the process of meeting demand for increased production, some farmers secured loans enabling them to convert unused land into productive farmland. Others sold small farms and used the proceeds to make down payments on larger ones. Anticipating a successful year like 1919, they planted abundantly in 1920.

But by the fall of 1920, market conditions had changed, not only for tobacco growers, but also for cotton planters, who had suffered heavily in the 1914-15 financial crisis.

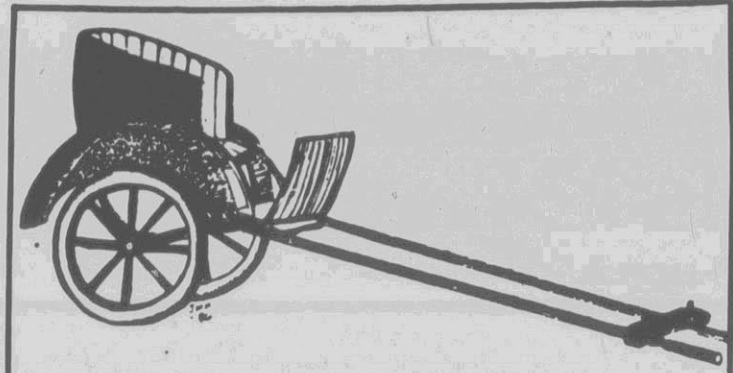

By the mid to late 1920s, conditions improved for tobacco farmers, and need for co-ops decreased. Poor organization and dissension contributed to their decline, and the Tobacco Growers Cooperative Marketing Association of North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia folded in June 1926.

Unfortunately, in spite of improved conditions, the 1920 problems were not completely solved when the 1929 Depression occurred. Consequently, many farmers who had sold small farms to make down payments on larger ones were wiped out. By the early 1930s, farmers weren't making enough money to live on, much less pay off loans. Banks began to call in their mortgages. When farmers couldn't pay, banks auctioned off their farms. This time, during the Great Depression, farmers rioted on a national scale.

Some local farmers survived hard times by bartering, by working in exchange for goods or by receiving help from those more fortunate. Others were lucky, ingenious, or more financially secure.

Although their members are decreasing as the years intervene between 1920 and the present, there are still men and women in Greenville and Pitt County who remember not only the 1929 Depression, but also the 1920 Depression, when the tobacco market closed in unprecedented action.

It was that action that earned the city and the county special mention in tobacco history because Greenville was one of the first markets to experience the low prices.

HOOVER CART — A popular depression-era invention, the Hoover Cart, originated in eastern North Carolina. The buggy-like contraption, made from rear ends of automobiles and other wheeled vehicles, was used predominately by farmers who could not afford to buy gas for their automobiles. On weekends, when farmers weren't using their carts for work purposes, they often gathered to exhibit and race their creations. (Illustration by Jeff M. Moore)

Reagan Pushes For More Talks Between Powers

By SUSANNE M. SCHAFER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, who has sent a conciliatory letter to Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, is seeking renewed high-level talks at a time of confusing signals in the U.S.-Soviet relationship.

The president's message — described by one aide as "a friendly letter" — comes amid stepped-up efforts to arrange a superpower summit but also increasingly harsh exchanges over Reagan's recent decision to scrap the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty.

Reagan, returning Sunday from a weekend at the presidential retreat in Camp David, Md., refused to give details of his proposal that Secretary of State George Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze meet in the near future.

"We just correspond — private correspondence," Reagan said as he walked from Marine One on the South Lawn, giving reporters a wave and a smile but no further details.

White House spokesman Albert Brashear said Reagan did not mean to imply by the comment that he had received a response from Gorbachev. Brashear said he did not know if a reply had been received from the Soviets.

Brashear also said he did not know exactly when the letter was sent. He said he did not think it specified a time for Shultz and Shevardnadze to meet.

Brashear described the letter as being conciliatory in tone. "It was a friendly letter," he said.

Earlier this month, U.S. officials revealed that both sides have been actively discussing the agenda for a summit through diplomatic channels, primarily meetings U.S. Ambassador Arthur A. Hartman has had in Moscow with Anatoly F. Dobrynin, the former Soviet envoy who advises Gorbachev on foreign policy.

The officials, who spoke on condition they not be identified, said the Soviets have been seeking assurances the meeting will be productive before agreeing to set a date.

Last November, at their first get-acquainted summit in Geneva, Reagan and Gorbachev agreed to meet this year in Washington and again next year in Moscow.

U.S. officials let it be known that a June meeting had been suggested and the Soviets had countered with a proposal for a fall get-together, which was rejected by the United States as falling too close to the November elections.

Shultz and Shevardnadze had been scheduled to meet in Washington on May 14-16 to draw up an agenda for the next U.S.-Soviet summit session, but the Soviets — angered over the U.S. bombing of Libya on April 15 — refused to go ahead with the session.

The cancellation marked a low period in U.S.-Soviet exchanges, highlighted by the Soviet denunciations of the U.S. air raids Reagan had ordered against Libya, and the April 26 nuclear accident at Chernobyl.

While en route to the economic summit in Tokyo, Shultz criticized the Soviets' handling of the disaster, asserting that the United States had been able to obtain more information about the accident than the Soviets were providing their own people.

Reagan's letter comes just as it appeared the United States and the Soviet Union had settled into a pattern of mutual recriminations over adherence to the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty.

The Soviets denounced Reagan's announcement on May 27 that he no longer was bound by the limits of the SALT II treaty as an "exceptionally dangerous measure."

Moscow declared Washington's move was contrary to Gorbachev's insistence that a second summit meeting required concrete results on arms control and a conducive political atmosphere.

Reagan had tempered his SALT decision by saying mutual restraint need not be thrown to the wind and that the United States would be guided in the future by its own military needs and Soviet behavior.

The president argued at his White House press conference last Wednesday that the Soviets had been violating the pact repeatedly. Yet, in the same news conference, the president offered a markedly upbeat description of Gorbachev.

"He is the first Russian leader to my knowledge that has ever voiced the idea of reducing and even eliminating nuclear weapons," Reagan said.

Keach Book

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Stacy Keach is writing a book called "Christmas With Her Majesty," a light-hearted title for the period he calls "the lowest point in my life" — the six months he served in an English prison for possessing cocaine.

The soft-spoken Keach, who plays tough-guy detective Mike Hammer on television, said the experience was "very lonely, very depressing, very sad. I spent a lot of my time trying to re-evaluate my own stupidity."

In interviews this past weekend to promote his series, "The New Mike Hammer," that returns on CBS this fall, he likened his confinement from December 1984 to June of last year to being in a submarine or a monastery.

He was in Reading Prison, a medium-security lockup, because authorities felt a minimum-security jail would have provided too easy access for reporters.

Initially, Keach didn't feel he had been singled out because he was a well-known American actor. "It was a harsh sentence and I was deeply shocked by it, but I didn't have any sense of injustice done to me."

However, his perspective changed midway through his confinement when a cousin of Winston Churchill was caught breaking into a pharmacy to support his heroin habit and received probation and a fine.

Ms. Foisy, who now lives in Sunrise, Fla., gave Alicia up for adoption 20 years ago in Framingham, Mass. Doctors urged that

Ms. Foisy be located, since as biological mother she would be a preferred donor. She agreed to the operation, and now they've become friends and intend to keep in touch. (AP Laserphoto)

TAX REFORM ACTION

Tax Facts

Senator Bob Packwood (R-Oregon) displays the radical tax overhaul plan now before the full Senate. No matter what happens to this tax proposal, your chances of being audited by the IRS will go up as your income rises. In 1976, more than 11 percent of those audited came from the .7 percent of U.S. taxpayers reporting gross adjusted incomes of more than $50,000. But an audit isn't necessarily all bad. About 7 percent of those audited actually get a refund!

Marcos Urges Supporters To Avoid Violence

By DAVID BRISCOE
Associated Press Writer
HONOLULU (AP) — Deposed Philippine President Ferdinand E. Marcos is concerned that supporters are "getting out of control" and says he has strongly advised them against any violent effort to overthrow President Corazon Aquino.

In an interview with The Associated Press on Sunday, Marcos called Mrs. Aquino "the most powerful dictator that the world has ever known" but said she is too weak to prevent communists from taking over her government.

"I think the poor girl just isn't strong enough to make her own decisions, and this makes her a dangerous girl," said Marcos, who was interviewed for three hours in the living room of his rented beachfront house.

He also uttered his first words of mild admiration for the woman who replaced him in a popularly backed military revolt, saying she is "in a quiet personal way, courageous" and adding that any other woman would have collapsed under the burden.

Marcos, who rarely gave informal or lengthy interviews during his 20 years as president and was known to go to bed early, sat into the early hours of Sunday, speaking seriously but also joking and laughing about himself.

"I'm not going to sour my life because of all this pettiness that is thrown at me," he said.

Marcos, who fled his country Feb. 25, said as many as a million Filipinos could be killed if a civil war were to erupt over his claim to the presidency.

"Some people think that they should take over and not allow me to intervene and then hand over the reigns of power to me," said Marcos, who said he would return to the Philippines only to fight alongside the country's military against communists.

"We are not going to kill Filipinos just because I want to be president," he said.

"People have been meeting with me because they feel that some of our people are getting out of control in the sense that they want to start something violent," Marcos said.

He said he was advising supporters to continue demonstrations but to apply for permits and to submit to police dispersal.

Marcos repeated denials that he is giving financial support to loyalist demonstrators and that he had agreed to negotiate with the government to return some of his wealth. He said it was a lie that the government was broke when he fled his palace.

He also repeated claims that American officials deceived him into leaving the country, saying he did not ask for a helicopter airlift.

He showed a written report from a palace press officer of a call allegedly from an unidentified U.S. Embassy duty officer threatening to use U.S. Marines if there were serious violence during the revolt. U.S. officials have denied telling Marcos Marines would be used.

Saturday's Cryptiquip: FREAKISH COMPLAINT
OFTEN TOLD TO OUR GOOD KNEE DOCTOR: "THIS JOINT IS JUMPING!"

Today's Cryptiquip clue: C equals T
The Cryptiquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

ANSWERS TO WEEKLY BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠85 ♠8 ♠AJ105 ♣AJ9863
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♣ Pass 2 ♣ Pass
3 ♣ Pass 3 ♣ Pass

What action do you take?
A.—Your hand has gotten progressively worse as the auction has continued. Partner has shown a lot of major-suit cards, so the hand is a complete misfit. Don't think of bidding three spades or four diamonds. Discourage partner immediately by bidding three no trump.

Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠AK83 ♠QJ92 ♠K ♠AQJ8
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♣ 1 ♠ 1 ♣ Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—No heart raise will do your hand justice. Game is certain and slam likely. We think the best way to tell partner of your strength is to jump-shift to two spades now, then support hearts at your next turn.

Q.3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠AK1082 ♠AQJ93 ♠74 ♠Q
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♣ 2 ♠ 3 ♣ Pass
3 ♣ Pass 4 ♣ Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—You must have more than enough material to make 12 tricks, unless the opponents can get two first. The way to tell partner you are interested in slam but are worried about two diamond losers is to bid five spades. It is his holding in the diamond suit that is crucial.

Q.4—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠J5 ♠Q8 ♠K109832 ♠AJ5
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
3 ♣ 4 ♠ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Partner must have a pretty good hand to jump to four hearts in the immediate seat, so it is quite possible that you have a slam on. You can advise partner of this and keep the bidding at a reasonable level by cue-bidding five clubs.

Q.5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠AKQ93 ♠852 ♠J106 ♠A9
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♣ Pass
2 ♣ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Even though partner has made a minimum rebid, don't give up on slam. If he has a good diamond suit and a heart control, you could still make 12 tricks. Lay the foundation with your advance cue-bid of three clubs. Your next move will depend on partner's reaction to this.

Weyerhaeuser Strike

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Weyerhaeuser Co. planned today to have supervisors and other non-union employees tending mills in Oregon and Washington that were shut down by about 7,500 striking woodworkers and loggers.

Regional officials of the International Woodworkers of America and the Lumber, Production and Industrial Workers called the strike Sunday after a last-ditch effort by a federal mediator Saturday went nowhere.

Sunday Concert Tops Off Successful Rights Project

By BOB THOMPSON
Associated Press Writer
EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Organizers proclaimed the "Conspiracy of Hope" tour a success as the series of concerts to raise money for human rights wound up before 55,000 fans in Giants Stadium.

"I don't know of any other way you can make a household name in two weeks, but we did it," said Jack Healey, executive director of Amnesty International-USA, the U.S. chapter of the Nobel Prize-winning human rights organization.

The six-city tour, which was expected to net $3 million, was "bigger and better than I ever thought this could be," Healey said. He praised the "total cooperation" of the musicians who donated their services. The final 12-hour concert Sunday included such stars as Sting, Peter Gabriel, U2, Joni Mitchell, Ruben Blades, Lou Reed, Jackson Browne and the '60s folk group Peter, Paul and Mary.

The concert ended with an emotional version of Bob Dylan's "I Shall Be Released." All of the musicians returned to the stage to join hands and sing, and they were joined by nine former political prisoners.

About 130,000 people attended the concerts in San Francisco, Los Angeles, Denver, Chicago, Atlanta and finally this New York City suburb, Healey said.

Although the purpose of Sunday's concert was serious, the atmosphere at times resembled a day at the shore. Young people clad in swimsuits bounced beach balls into the air and used water hoses to cool off from the sweltering heat.

Mary Daly, an Amnesty International spokeswoman, estimated that 25 million people watched or listened to the star-studded final concert, which was broadcast by MTV, the rock music cable channel, and by Westwood I and other radio networks.

London-based Amnesty International, which was founded 25 years ago and won the 1977 Nobel Peace Prize, says more than 4,500 people have been jailed for expressing their political beliefs.

Four organizers said they hoped to raise the organization's U.S. membership by 25,000 people from the current 150,000.

They also asked people at all six concerts to sign post cards urging the governments of Vietnam, Guatemala, South Africa, South Korea, Syria and the Soviet Union to each release a certain political prisoner.

Ms. Daly said "thousands and thousands" of cards were signed, including 12,000 during the Atlanta concert alone.

One of the performers Sunday was Irish rock musician Bob Geldof, organizer of last year's "Live Aid" concerts to fight world hunger.

"The concrete result of this is that the Amnesty people would be able to put intense pressure on human rights violators," Geldof said.

"When a government gets a bad report card, they start shaking," he said.

Asked if he thought the tour would improve human rights, Geldof said, "A couple of concerts does not a movement make." But he said he hoped the concerts would heighten Americans' awareness of human rights abuses and government-sponsored political violence.

One of the political prisoners on hand Sunday who had been aided by Amnesty International was Victor Davidov, a lawyer who was accused by the Kremlin of slander because of a book he wrote that was critical of the Soviet legal system.

Davidov, who spent more than 3½ years in a psychiatric prison in Siberia, said he came to the concert because "I'm a rock fan. For us, rock 'n' roll was a music of protest."

"I think it's a good idea to make the problem of human rights sound good" with rock music, said Davidov, who now lives in Washington, D.C.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, JUNE 17, 1986

YOUR DAILY Horoscope from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A flare-up of tempers early in the day could cause an unfortunate argument of estrangement to take place, but it is immediately followed by a more reasonable attitude.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Don't get involved in an argument between an associate and an official or you could get into deep trouble.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) A new contact may not agree with how you do your job, but control your temper. Then rise above this strange situation.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Don't argue with a practical individual over some amusement expense and you save the situation.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) A family tie and an outsider may not agree but don't mix in, since it does not concern you and peace soon reigns.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Don't try to straighten out an argument between a fellow worker and an outside partner since they are not chemically compatible.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) A good friend and an advisor could argue, but don't get involved. Then soon settle the matter.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You and your family ties may not see eye to eye on some matter, but it is their privilege, so say nothing.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You find that two advisers disagree and you don't know how to proceed, so listen to what clever friends have to suggest.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Do not involve yourself in an argument between an associate and a financier over how to spend money.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Don't get into a conversation with a powerful person who could ruin your position and chance for advancement.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get some tasks completed that require your attention and then you can accept new situations that are coming up soon.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Plan your time wisely so that you can handle business affairs of importance and personal ones also. Be devoted to your mate.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be very charming with others and get along well with them, but a little later in life will become very ambitious and is apt to want to push others around in order to get his, or her way. Make sure to send to college since there is a brilliant mind here.

Goodman Buried

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP) — Close friends and relatives gathered at a private ceremony to bury jazz great Benny Goodman in a simple wooden casket beside his wife.

The "King of Swing," who died Friday at age 77 of a heart attack in his New York apartment, was interred Sunday at Long Ridge Union Cemetery in a nonsectarian service.

At the family's request, funeral plans were kept strictly private — even old friends were not told when the ceremony would be held.

"I had to tell Lionel Hampton he couldn't come," said Harold Shippee, an employee of Bouton and Reynolds Funeral Home. "If Ronald Reagan himself called, I'd have to tell him not to come."

Hampton for many years was a member of Goodman's band, which was among the premier big bands in the 1930s. Goodman became the first major white band leader to incorporate blacks into his groups.

DRIVE UP TO THE NEW PEOPLES BANK IN GREENVILLE.

Announcing the Grand Opening of a Full-Service Branch Inside Farm Fresh.

For Greenville, the First Supermarket Bank in Eastern Carolina.

Banking and grocery shopping. Everyone has to do them. And now you can take care of both in one easy stop.

Peoples Bank, the innovator in banking, is now open at the Farm Fresh Super-Saving Center, 609 East Greenville Boulevard.

Traditional Bank Services at Untraditional Bank Hours.

Our new Farm Fresh branch is staffed by friendly and well trained people, because there are still some things that an automated teller machine can't do. Like helping you open a new account, or lending you money.

For your further convenience, the Farm Fresh branch is open for extended shopper's hours.

Hours: Monday-Wednesday 10 a.m. - 6 p.m.,
Thursday & Friday 10 a.m. - 8 p.m.,
Saturday 10 a.m. - 2 p.m.

When our bankers do go home, PAT™ (the Peoples Anytime Teller machine) stays on duty for your withdrawals, deposits, transfers and balance inquiries.

Through June 27, we'll be giving demonstrations of PAT™ so you can see for yourself how easy it is to use.

When You Open an Account, Lunch or Dinner Is On Us.

Through June 27, if you open a Peoples Bank account at the Farm Fresh branch, we'll give you a coupon good for a chicken dinner with two vegetables and a soft drink at the restaurant in the store.

Win a Farm Fresh Shopping Spree. Three Minutes To Take All the Groceries You Can Grab!

Register at the new branch any time between now and 8 p.m. on June 26. There's no purchase necessary to enter.

Slim Short will draw the winner's name on WNCN-TV's "Carolina Today" program at 7:25 a.m. on Friday, June 27. The shopping spree will begin at 9 a.m. June 28 with Slim Short as the Official Starter and Referee. Before you enter, make sure you'd be available then.

Coming Soon to a Third Location.

With Peoples Bank branches at Carolina East Mall and now at Farm Fresh, banking in Greenville has never been more convenient.

And soon it will be even better. Watch for news about a third Peoples Bank office opening this summer on Stantonsburg Road between Memorial Drive and Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

Peoples Bank
"Thinking Ahead" Member FDIC

With Peoples Anytime Teller, our new branch is open whenever Farm Fresh is.

Our new Farm Fresh branch is located just inside the front doors.
