Hail Hits Southern Pitt

By HAROLD JOYNER
Reflector Staff Writer

Several Pitt County residents were assessing crop damages this morning after heavy amounts of hail hit the area during an afternoon thunderstorm that swept through the area, totaling some farm crops.

According to eyewitness reports from Ayden, some crops in the Littlefield area were totaled, while other areas only received light damage.

"We had about three or four windows to break at the church," said the Rev. Steve Hargrove, pastor of Elm Grove Original Free Will Baptist Church near Littlefield and about three miles southeast of Ayden.

Tobacco fields in the same area were stripped of their leaves by the golf-ball sized hail, which covered the ground in some fields. Only stubs of leaves were left on many plants.

Similar damage occurred to corn crops in the area. Soybean fields were flattened, but not hurt as badly as the taller corn and tobacco.

Officials with two insurance companies that handle crop damage said all the farmers under them had already called by 10 a.m. this morning.

"We had more hail than rain," said Milton Garris of Down East Auction and Realty Co. of Ayden. "Damage to crops has ranged from light to total," he said.

M.C. Baldree, operator of Ayden

Loan and Insurance Co., said he had received reports of 25 percent to 100 percent damage, most of it in the Littlefield community.

"There was a lot of spotted damage," he said. "Across from a heavily damaged area, you might see 25 to 50 percent damage."

While actual dollar figures could not be tabulated now, both men said damage to crops would probably be more than $1,000 per acre.

Some automobiles also received damage from the hail, Garris said.

In other areas in the county, a tree limb fell on an electrical line near Venter's Crossroads, said Roger Jones of the Greenville Utilities Commission.

"There were some electrical problems along (N.C.) 43 North, near Falkland. Power was out for about 45 minutes to an hour."

Jones said an electrical pole was also blown down.

None of the Pitt County Schools received any damage from the storm, said Barry Gaskins, public information director.

South of Greenville, near Worthington's Crossroads, some hail was reported, according to Lonnie Faulkner, director of the Soil Conservation Service in Pitt County.

The Greenville Utilities water plant reported 1/2 inch of rain, for a

REFLECTOR HOTLINE

Hotline gets things done. Write and tell us about the problem or issue into which you'd like for Hotline to look. Enclose photostatic copies of any pertinent information. Our address is The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C., 27835. Because of the large numbers received, Hotline cannot answer or publish every item we receive, but we deal with all of those for which we have staff time. Names must be given, but only initials will be published.

DREAM REALIZED

A dream shared with Hotline readers many months ago has become a reality. Roy Pate, a former Greenville resident and East Carolina University graduate, is able to be a real estate salesman in Goldsboro because he has a van that Hotline readers contributed toward.

Hugh McGowan, the Greenville resident who conducted a campaign to raise about $12,000 to be used toward buying a van to be individually adapted for Pate's use, said about $4,000 of the money was contributed by persons who first heard of the project by reading Hotline. Pate, who is wheelchair bound and limited in arm movement by rheumatoid arthritis which started when he was a child, uses a ramp to get in and out of the van and has custom-planned hand controls for accelerator, brakes and other functions of driving.

He expressed appreciation to everyone who has enabled him to become independent, financially and otherwise.

House Knotted On Contra Aid

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. said today a lobbying blitz by President Reagan has convinced at least two more House Democrats to vote for a $100 million aid plan for Nicaragua's Contra rebels, leaving the House divided 212-212 on the issue with the remaining 10 members undecided.

Reagan appealed to Congress in a televised address Tuesday and zeroed in on possible swing votes in a series of telephone calls and private meetings and O'Neill said "there is no question in my mind" that the president's efforts had an impact.

"One of our Democrats had a personal call from the president and changed his vote," O'Neill said. "He had never talked to a president head to head and he told us, 'I was so thrilled, I thought I was talking to the pope.'"

Asked to predict the outcome, O'Neill said that, with several hours remaining until the vote, "it's 212 to 212 with the rest undecided."

He said that those Democrats shifting to support Reagan had voted with the Democratic leadership when the House last considered aid to the Contras.

Reagan on Tuesday declared that failure to approve the aid package will guarantee the Soviet Union its first military base on the mainland of the Western Hemisphere.

But opponents were prepared to urge the defeat of the package on grounds that the rebels diverted and misused much of the $27 million they previously were granted for non-lethal assistance.

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said the White House was "very, very close" to victory and that "a handful of undecided people" would decide the outcome. One administration official, speaking privately, said the president needed four to six more votes.

A series of roll call votes was expected today on amendments, each of them offering a variant of the aid plan or seeking to place a new condition on it.

Roads Accord Reached

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Martin and Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan have reached a compromise on raising at least $200 million for highway construction and maintenance, sources said today.

The compromise includes raising the gasoline tax by 2 cents per gallon and bringing motor fuel at the wholesale level under the 3 percent statewide sales tax, the sources said.

Martin and Jordan scheduled a news conference for 10:30 a.m. today to discuss the compromise, which was reached Tuesday night after a flurry of telephone calls and meetings.

The Republican legislative leaders, Sen. Bill Redman, R-Iredell, and Rep. Betsy Cochrane, R-Davie, and Transportation Secretary Jim Harrington played mediation roles in reaching the agreement.

The Senate Finance Committee had been scheduled to discuss this morning a $217 million alternative to Martin's highway financing package unveiled by Jordan last week.

However, finance chairman Sen. Marshall Rauch, D-Gaston, announced that Democratic lawmakers would caucus at 9:30. Redman said legislative Republicans would meet privately at the same hour.

The Jordan plan would add a 3 percent sales tax on wholesale motor fuel to the 2 3/4 cents per gallon increase in the retail gasoline tax Martin endorses.

Burning Van Damages Store

A vehicle fire in front of C. Heber Forbes on Arlington Boulevard Tuesday afternoon caused damage estimated at more than $50,000.

Greenville Fire-Rescue Department Chief Jenness Allen said the fire was reported between 2:30 p.m. and 3 p.m. and involved a van containing clothing samples. The van was destroyed by the fire while heat and smoke damage was done to the ladies clothing store.

C. Heber Forbes' owner Charles Alfred Forbes said he was inside the van with salesman Sandy Deitz of Gaithersburg, Md., when one of his employees told them there was a fire under the camper.

Forbes said the fire destroyed the van and its contents, which he estimated to be worth about $50,000. He also said heat from the fire "warped the metal on the marquis ... melted the windows and melted our sign," and "we got a lot of smoke inside" the store.

Forbes estimated damage to the outside of the building at $1,000 to $2,000, but had no estimate of the damage to carpet, clothes or fixtures inside.

User Fees Put Some In The Dumps

By DON REUTER
Reflector Staff Writer

Some area storeowners and managers are down in the dumps after hearing of the Greenville City Council's decision to include fees for refuse collection in the city's budget for fiscal year 1985-86.

"I disagree with the decision. We're already paying city and county taxes," said Mike Aman, manager of the Dunkin' Donuts. "I would prefer an overall addition to city taxes rather than being billed on a monthly or weekly basis."

The $86,452,856 budget, which includes the Greenville Utilities budget of $71,020,783, was approved by a 4-2 margin at a special call meeting of the council Monday.

The budget includes collection fees of $15 per month per container for non-residential service and $4 per month for residential service.

The refuse fees are expected to generate $656,550 in additional revenue, according to City Manager Gail Meeks.

Aman said the city should have raised taxes instead of charging for garbage collection.

"The council should have figured out the additional cost and added it on city taxes," he said.

Ms. Meeks said the council proposed the refuse collection fees, which will be tacked on monthly Greenville utility bills, and rescue fees in an effort to offset lost funding.

Candlelight Wedding Performed Sunday

PLYMOUTH — Cindy Dian Nicholson and Charles Brinson Dees were united in marriage in a candlelight service Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Church of Christ. The Rev. Bob Molden performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Billy B. Nicholson of Plymouth, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin B. Dees of New Bern.

A program of wedding music including "Whither Thou Goest," "The Wedding Song" and "A Wedding Prayer" was presented by soloist Mrs. Nyal Watson and organist Alua Rose Brown, both of Plymouth. Other musical arrangements were performed by pianist Ned Bradbury of Kinston and cellist Nancy Kaslock of Morehead City.

Pat Hart was mistress of ceremony, and Katherine Hopkins attended the guest register; both are of Plymouth. Terri Averette of Greenville distributed programs and Buffy Williams of Plymouth expressed appreciations.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of traditional styling in ivory satin. The drop-waist fitted bodice was accented with an array of Venise lace, pearls and sequins. The sweetheart neckline flowed into short puff sleeves of satin with scattered miniature pearl accents. The full skirt and chapel length train were of ivory satin. The train had a scalloped effect. The satin skirt flowed into a border of Venise lace, and the train was re-enhanced with Venise tulip lace. She wore a headpiece of silk flowers and pearl sprays accented with a puff of silk illusion and a cathedral length veil. She carried a bouquet of white long-stemmed sweetheart roses with fern greenery accented with baby's breath and an ivory satin bow with streamers.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Connie Outten of Kitty Hawk. Bridesmaids were Cindy Yarberry, Jane Hudson and Elaine Crawford, all of Greenville. The flower girl was Elizabeth Ann Outten of Kitty Hawk, niece of the bride.

Each attendant wore a tea-length gown of ivory satin overlaid with ivory lace, featuring a V-back that flowed into a modified waistline enhanced by an ivory satin bow. The skirt flowed into a border of lace, which was treated to give a scalloped effect. Each attendant carried a bouquet of baby's breath tied with an ivory satin bow and streamers.

The flower girl wore a tea-length dress of ivory satin with a gathered lace collar. She carried a small wicker basket of white rose petals.

The best man was the father of the bridegroom. Groomsmen were Willis Yarberry of Greenville, Brian Lowery of Roxboro, Lindy Pollard of Raleigh and Bobby Outten of Kitty Hawk.

The mother of the bride wore a tea-length gown of watered taffeta in rose pink. The mother of the bridegroom wore an aqua blue tea length silk dress. Both mothers wore white orchid corsages and were presented with a rose during the ceremony.

A reception, hosted by the parents of the bride, was held at the Plymouth Country Club. Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Bob Mitchell of Plymouth, uncle and aunt of the bride. Lois Odell of Plymouth served the wedding cake, and Alice Beasley of Plymouth served the punch.

A bridesmaids' luncheon was held at the Plymouth Country Club, hosted by Connie Outten of Kitty Hawk, sister of the bride, Pat Hart of Plymouth, and Velma Everette and Lois Mitchell, both aunts of the bride of Plymouth.

The parents of the bridegroom hosted a pig picking at the Weyerhaeuser Hut. The bride and bridegroom also were honored with other miscellaneous showers and parties.

The couple graduated from East Carolina University. The bride is employed with the Lenoir County school system, and the bridegroom is employed with NCNB in Fayetteville.

After a wedding trip to the St. Croix, Virgin Islands, the couple will live in Fayetteville.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

Shadow Of Mental Illness Never Leaves

DEAR ABBY: I've read your column ever since you started, 30 years ago. In May 1955 I had what was then known as a "nervous breakdown." I was a successful young businesswoman at the time. I spent only six weeks in a hospital where I received shock treatments.

I regained my mental health and raised four children. Many years later, one of my sons was arrested on a drug-related charge and was sent to prison. I was informed that because of my history of "mental illness" I could not visit my son. I was dumbfounded! I went to the prison anyway and asked to see the warden. When he saw that I was a neatly dressed, calm, rational, middle-aged woman, he allowed me to visit my son. Abby, it has been 31 years since my mental illness, but my "record" followed me!

I am attaching a letter a reader sent to you many years ago. I didn't write it, but I could have. I carried it in my wallet for years. Please run it again:

DEAR ABBY: You are to be commended for the letters on mental illness you ran in your column. In those letters I saw clearly the attitude of society, which makes it so difficult for the emotionally disturbed to recover:

I had 10 years of emotional trouble and was one of the lucky ones whose family stood by me. I wonder how many people know anything of the dark and horrible world a mentally ill person lives in. There are not words to describe the fear and terror. And then the hurt they receive when trying to recover and they become aware of the strange things they did during their illness.

An ignorant society has done a good job in making the mental patient feel ashamed. Too much cannot be said about the uncaring attitude of the public concerning mental illness. If ever a human needs understanding and patience, it is the one who is in the dark and lonely world of mental illness. I lived there — and I know. But with God's help, I am ... RECOVERED

DEAR ABBY: I am getting married in four months and I'm very excited. Now for the problem: My parents were divorced three years ago after fighting like cats and dogs for 25 years, and they are still very, very bitter — especially my mother.

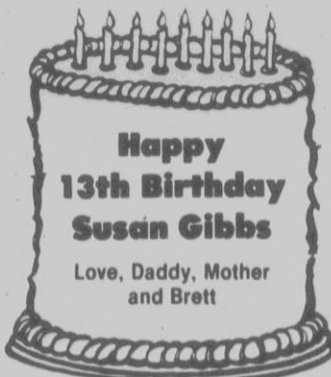

Anyway, my father is paying for the wedding and his name as well as my mother's will be on the invitation, but he will not allow my mother to attend the reception.

STOCK STUDY

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — A new study has found that the liquidity of stocks — the ease with which they can be bought or sold — is a major determinant of the returns they yield.

The study was made by Yakov Amihud of New York University and Haim Mendelson of the University of Rochester.

Mendelson says that low liquidity stocks yield, on average, a significantly higher return than stocks with high liquidity.

At Wits End

By Erma Bombeck

From time to time I have cautioned young marrieds that raising children is not for sissies.

If it's "adventure" you're looking for, try flying in a lawn chair propelled by balloons. If it's a "desire to dedicate yourself to service," plant rice for the Peace Corps. If it's a "learning experience" you seek, drop in on a bunch of orangutans with a tape recorder.

When you sign on for a child's education, health, entertainment, moral and spiritual upbringing, you are in for some kind of a ride. I could make up all kinds of examples, but I don't have to. Real-life situations do it for me. This story is from a reader in Durham, N.C., and has not been altered one bit.

A 5-year-old girl and her 3-year-old brother David had the "largest and worst-infected adenoids ever seen by the medical profession." The surgery was routine, but in the night, the little girl hemorrhaged and was taken back to OR to tie off the bleeder. Her mother reacted with near hysteria and had to be given a dose of Demerol and put in a bed in a nearby room. She had an allergic reaction to the drug and was found wandering the halls crazed in her bare feet and Grandma had to be brought in to keep vigil over the kids.

All were eventually dismissed from the hospital and shortly after the arrival home, the little girl's kindergarten class sent her a clever construction-paper apple which listed the names of the school chums. After the novelty of the gift wore off, the little girl pulled off a strip of red paper, balled it up and stuck it up her nose. Way up.

The taxi ride back to the hospital was fun, but the ER doctor used tweezers a foot long to explore the nasal cavity. She was on her way home. Later that day, a neighbor child came to visit and asked, "How did you do that?" So, removing a like strip of paper, she honked up another wad of paper.

This time Mama removed the foreign object with her cosmetic tweezers. Everyone blamed the little friend because they figured she was getting back, as the little girl had bitten her finger to the bone a few years before.

I hasten to point out, these events only covered two days in the life of a child. There are 363 others to live through. If there's a decision, make it. If there's anything broken, fix it. If it's dirty, clean it. If it's wet, change it. If it's crying, hold it. If it's sad, love it. If it's angry ... duck.

There is a myth circulated among would-be parents that someday you will laugh at all these things.

The woman from North Carolina who write the adenoids story said the incident happened in 1946 ... that's 40 years ago and she's still waiting for the laugh.

Care Needed In Washing Sleeping Bag

CHICAGO (AP) — After an outing, sleeping bags should be cleaned if necessary and properly stored, rather than just tossed into a closet, says an official of a firm that produces camping equipment.

"If bags are not completely dry when stored, they often become musty and mildewy," says Beverly Crown, marketing vice president for Henderson Camp Products with headquarters in Chicago.

"Even if you and your crew remember to turn bags inside out to air-dry before storing, there comes a time when every sleeping bag needs to be washed," she adds.

If you have bought your sleeping bag in the last 10 years, she notes, the insulation material, or "loft," is probably a synthetic blend such as Hollofil, Quallofil, Polyfill, PolarGuard or other blends.

"These machine-washable materials are the most forgiving," she says, "while down requires separate hand washing. Of course it's a good idea to follow the manufacturer's instructions for care, but often this label has become detached or is blurred," says Crown, who offers these tips:

— Our standard, hard and fast advice, and the advice of many other manufacturers for cleaning all bags, is to avoid dry cleaning.

Dry cleaners use a variety of unpredictable solvents, and even a small amount of cleaning impurity may break down the insulating characteristics of the bag. Many people also prefer to avoid chemicals, which can become absorbed in the fabric, in a close-breathing environment.

— All sleeping bags can be hand washed, and down bags or very old bags definitely should be hand washed.

Fill the bathtub with warm water and mix in a mild soap or detergent. Submerge the bag and let it soak for several hours, with an occasional turn. Gently scrub soiled areas with a sponge or by rubbing edges together.

Instead of lifting the bag out of the water to drain — which may put too much pressure on the seams — drain water from tub and gently press out as much water as possible. Rinse and drain.

Carefully support bag with hands when lifting it out of the tub. Place on towels and air-dry flat, turning the bag over and inside out. Down may take several days to completely dry.

— A majority of sleeping bags are made with synthetic blend insulation fillings and can be machine washed. Use only front-loading commercial type machines. These machines not only have more room, but they toss the bag in a circular motion, which is easier on the bag than rotating action. Home machines with rotary agitation are too harsh for bags.

Use a mild soap or detergent. When the cycle is completed, lift the bag gently and place it in the dryer, using a gentle, low-heat setting. Throw a clean sneaker with laces removed into the dryer to help fluff up the loft.

— The best method of storing a bag is to hang it up in the closet, using a large clothes-hanger or the tie-loop on the bag. If you roll the bag for storage, roll loosely and leave it outside the stuffing sack. Compressing the bag is fine for carrying, but you will prolong the loft of the bag by allowing it to spring back to its natural loft when not in use. The insulation's ability to trap air is what provides greater warmth.

With proper care, sleeping bags can last a lifetime, says Crown, who has camped and backpacked extensively in the United States, Europe and the Himalayas.

Bags are available in rectangular, tapered and mummy styles, and cost $50 to $200 — at $40 per pound for down, the down-filled bags cost considerably more than synthetic-blend-filled bags, she says. Children's sizes are about half the price of adult bags.

NEEDLEPOINT PLANT BASKETS...are made of plastic canvas and worked with straw thread.

Pat's Pointers
By Pat Trexler

Needlepoint with "straw" thread? Hard to believe, but yes, it's true. This has to be one of the most unique and enjoyable "funpoint" projects to come along this season. Needlepoint fans will find this irresistible. Using plastic 10-mesh canvas and raffia-type straw thread, easy Bargello patterns are worked in wonderful, glowing colors.

The three plant baskets are actually covers that slip over plain pots to give them a decorator touch. The baskets will cover one 10-inch pot, one 7-inch pot one 5-inch pot. Group them together for an eye-catching addition to any room or patio setting.

To obtain directions for making the Raffia Plant Baskets, send your request for Leaflet No. Z-062286 with $1 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler Crafts, The Daily Reflector, P.O. Box 419148, Kansas City, Mo. 64141.

Or you may order Kit No. Z-062286 by sending a check or money order for $20.95 to Pat Trexler Crafts at the same address. The kit price includes shipping charges, full instructions, and straw in your choice of the following colors: brown and white with orange, or brown and white with blue.

People who think of needlepoint only as tiny diagonal stitches worked as a background around a finished center design may tend to think of Bargello stitchery as a "new" type of needlepoint, and one a bit difficult for the beginner. Neither of these assumptions is true, however.

Actually, Bargello is a very ancient needle art, steeped in history and called by various names. You may have heard it referred to as flame stitch, Florentine embroidery or canvas work, Hungarian Point or some other title. I usually use the term Bargello because more people tend to recognize it.

There are various legends about the origins of Bargello stitchery. It is said that it was originated in the 15th or 16th century by prisoners in the dark and dank Bargello Prison in Florence, Italy, which is now a great museum.

Another story concerns a Hungarian princess, who is said to have brought a trousseau of exotically embroidered garments with her to Italy when she married the son of a noble Florentine family.

Whether these myths have any foundation in fact or not, you can create beautiful designs with Bargello or Florentine work. The stitches are perfectly straight, you can achieve illusions of curves, peaks and a variety of other shapes with the different patterns available.

These descriptions may convince you that this is an advanced needlepoint technique. Nothing could be further from the truth. When I have occasionally given seminars on needlepoint, I have found that the beginners find Bargello the easiest needlepoint stitch family to learn.

In bygone years, one seldom found needlepoint done in anything but fine wools and silks, and it was thought of as a craft for the very rich. The excitement in needlepoint today lies in the variety of threads used to create new and vibrant looks. If you haven't tried it before, plunge in and discover the wonderful world of Bargello!

HOW TO ASK FOR MONEY

NEW YORK (AP) — Everyone has tough letters to write during his lifetime — apologies, thank you's and condolences. But the hardest by far is the letter asking for money.

To do so can be a very difficult experience because it compromises the asker's pride, according to Family Circle magazine. And, believe it or not, it is almost as painful to be asked.

Here are some rules for a good loan-request letter that can ease the pain at both ends.

— Even though it's personal, make it business like.
— Include a plan for repayment.
— Offer to pay interest.

MEE KROB FOR AMERICANS

- 2 green onions
- 1-2 small carrot
- 1-2 cup sugar
- 1-2 cup white vinegar
- 1-4 teaspoon salt
- Oil for deep-frying
- 6 ounces boneless chicken, cut into strips
- 1-4 pound peeled, deveined shrimp
- 2 eggs, beaten
- 4 ounces rice sticks

Cut green onions diagonally into 1 1/2- to 2-inch slices. Cut carrot diagonally into long, thin slices, then cut carrot slices into shreds. Set green onions and carrot aside for garnish.

Combine sugar, vinegar and salt in small saucepan. Bring to boil and boil vigorously until slightly thickened.

Heat oil for deep-frying in large skillet. Add chicken and fry until almost done. Add shrimp and fry with chicken until pink. Drain chicken and shrimp on paper towels. Add eggs to skillet and cook until browned and crisp, stirring constantly. Drain.

Fry rice sticks in skillet in 2 or 3 batches until puffed and lightly browned, turning once. Drain on paper towels.

Heat wok. Add syrup and bring to boil. Add shrimp and chicken, mix with syrup and cook until liquid evaporates out of chicken and shrimp. (Mixture must be dry so noodles will not be soggy.) Add noodles and stir rapidly. Add some of egg, leaving a little for garnish. Stir to mix. When noodles are well mixed and pan is dry, turn out onto serving platter. Top with green onions, shredded carrot and reserved egg. Makes 8 servings.

PCMH

Pitt County Memorial Hospital's 1986-87 $112 million budget is astonishing.

With the exception of East Carolina University, possibly no other industry in Pitt County puts that much money into the local economy. The PCMH budget is a whopping one; it represents a phenomenal amount of growth and an unlimited amount of potential.

ECU's operating budget — minus capital appropriations — is around $140 million, a figure which includes the medical school. If the med school were removed, the hospital's budget would be bigger than ECU's.

The implications of such a large industry in the county are very visible. Constant construction stimulates building-related interests. Support services — from dry cleaners to restaurants — flourish. A medical district, choked full of potential growth, is under way. These benefits also impact on all of eastern North Carolina.

It's not amazing enough that nearly one-half the hospital's budget — $50 million — is salaries. What's more mind-boggling is the fact that in fiscal year 1986-87 alone, $1 million will be spent on new positions — 71 of them. That's growth personified.

The money, however, only represents one of PCMH's contributions to the community. The other benefit — worth more perhaps than $112 million — is the improved quality of life created by good, innovative, health care.

Lives have been saved and suffering has been relieved at the facility; those cliches are true. As its financial sphere widens, so will the circle of lives PCMH reaches.

Back Pat

The Pitt County Department of Social Service's food stamp program has received an administrative pat on the back.

The N.C. Division of Social Services told the local board Monday that the program has received an excellent review. Eligibility specialist Debbie Ryals said no deficiencies were cited in organization, procedure for handling cases or staff quality following a monitoring of the program by the state agency.

Pitt DDS Director Edward Garrison noted there was a time several years ago when there were a lot of problems with the food stamp program. The problems seem to be solved now, Director Garrison said, and he gave credit to the supervisors and staff.

The community should also be pleased the food stamp program is efficiently operated in Pitt County.

It is a high profile program which can lead to negative public reaction. Yet, it is essential to good nutrition for many recipients. Certainly our county deserves that its food stamp program be well operated, and apparently it is.

ANC Causes Concerns For All

WASHINGTON — Moments before the House last week shouted approval of a draconian South African sanctions bill, its supporters were rolled back by a 7-to-1 roll call vote in favor of an amendment putting a communist label on the African National Congress (ANC).

That vote has been ignored in the excitement following passage of the sanctions substitute, which had the effect of erasing the anti-communist amendment from the books. But the bizarre episode on the House floor revealed a reverse spin to anti-apartheid politics: liberals can have as much trouble handling the ANC as conservatives do with the Pretoria regime.

The amendment offered by Indiana Republican Rep. Dan Burton merely says none of the sanctions bill's $50 million in aid could go to the ANC unless its "controlling body ... no longer includes members of the South African Communist Party." That echoes the bill's prohibition against aid to Pretoria. Yet, the Democratic leadership was intent on burying the Burton amendment in committee. It came to the House floor only because of a clerical mix-up.

The normally cool-headed Rep. Stephen J. Solarz of New York, a major Democratic voice on foreign policy, was so overwrought by the oversight that he branded the amendment "obnoxious," "ludicrous" and "ridiculous." After that outburst, he joined most of his Democratic colleagues in voting for it.

This is the mirror image of Republicans flinching from voting against South African sanctions that they actually consider poor policy. While seeking to legitimize the ANC, Democrats want no debate on its communist connections and cannot bring themselves to give it a public bill of health.

Nobody during the House debate refuted a Senate committee report that the 30-member ANC national executive named last year contains at least 19 and up to 25 known communists. The ANC's 1985 political report endorses Soviet repression in Poland and Afghanistan, assails the U.S. for leading the "global offensive of imperialism" and condemns "Zionist Israel" as "the proxy of United States imperialism."

Agreeing with Rep. William Gray of Pennsylvania that "the issue is not communism in southern Africa" but "the end of racism," House Democrats wanted Burton's amendment out of the sanctions debate. The House Rules Committee, acting as an arm of the Democratic leadership, voted against permitting a vote.

Consequently, Solarz was visibly in shock when he heard the clerk reading Burton's amendment. The Rules Committee inadvertently had blocked the wrong amendment. Solarz and Chairman Claude Pepper pleaded that consideration of the Burton amendment violated Rules Committee intent. But Rep. Bob Traxler of Michigan, presiding over the House, had no choice but to rule the amendment in order.

Rep. Howard Wolpe of Michigan, chairman of the Foreign Affairs subcommittee on Africa, promptly announced that he would accept the Burton amendment "because it is frankly ... meaningless" in barring unintended ANC subsidies. "Nor should our acceptance of this rejected the cost of the transfers for several years forward and showed that $375 million would be available in fiscal 1988, for example, for new government programs. If education got a high enough legislative priority, he said, that would be plenty of new money for that year.

But Democratic leaders said that $375 million in new money for fiscal 1988 was not enough. They noted that a teacher and state employee pay raise and the next steps in implementation of the Basic Education Plan would have to compete with all other new needs for state money. A pay raise of 5 percent, for example, would take more than half that available money.

After Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan said that Martin's proposed transfers would seriously limit the raise the Legislature could give teachers and state employees, Martin tried to cast the issue as one of "roads versus salaries," not roads versus education.

But, in the press conference he held to outline his own plan for roads funding, Jordan said the state could not separate the issues of improved salaries and improved education. "I get letters everyday from teachers who say they are moving to other states" for higher salaries, Jordan said.

When confronted with the argument that teacher pay needed considerable upgrading, Martin had two standard responses. First, he noted that in 1985 he had projected a salary reserve that would have provided a big pay raise this year. The Democrats spent it, he said. Second, he repeated his preference for moving to a system of merit pay for teachers.

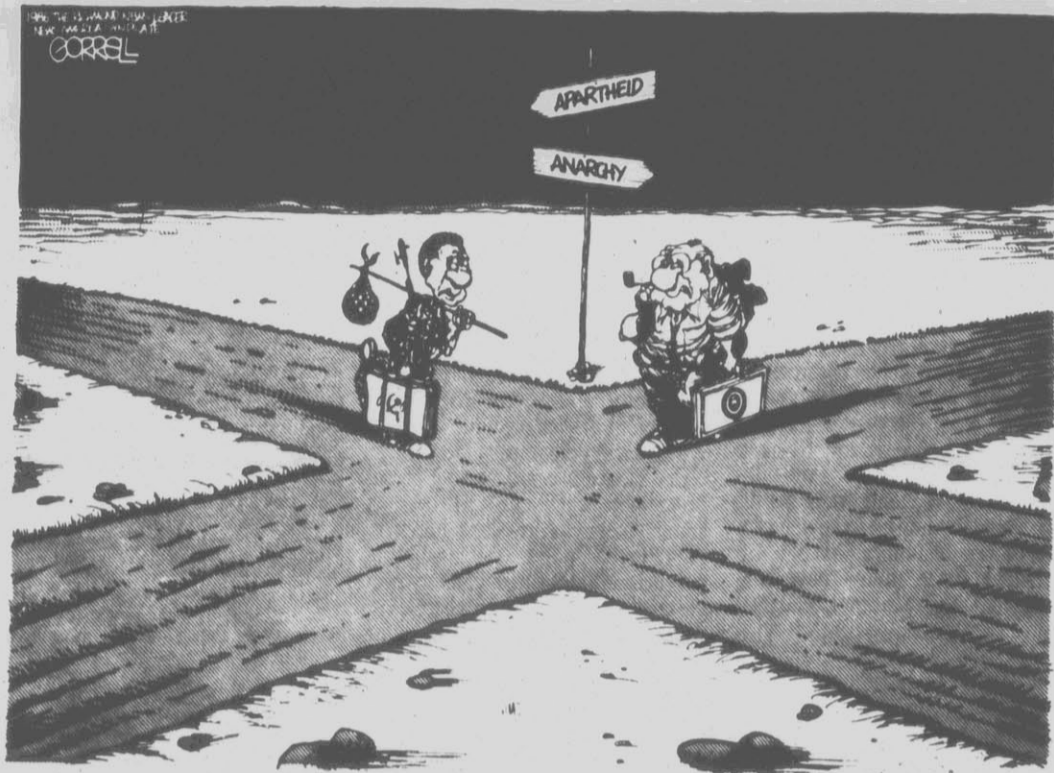

The Democrats argued right back, however, pointing to the fund transfers. On the first point, they noted that they gave a larger pay raise to teachers last year than Martin had proposed. And, if they didn't agree to the funds transfer, they could better his 3.2 percent pay raise this year, too.

On the merit pay issue, Democrats noted that a statewide system won't be in place for two more years, at the earliest. In the meantime, the real pay of teachers has to rise more than the inflation rate if the state is to avoid falling any further back in the quality of its teaching corps.

In 1983, it dawned on the politicians of this state that teachers were not being paid enough. In 1984, the legislature provided a 15 percent raise. That raise was intended to do more than keep teachers even with inflation. It was designed as the first step in a process which would make teacher pay more competitive with the pay offered to people in other fields.

In 1985, Martin proposed a raise only a few points higher than inflation. His second year raise was similar. When most of that two-year money was spent on a one year raise, he was only willing to propose a cost of living raise this year.

In proposing fund transfers, Martin essentially proposed holding teacher pay raises to the level of inflation. The Democrats couldn't support transfers and stick to their long term goal of raising teacher salaries at the rate above inflation.

Case For Quiet Diplomacy

"What is our policy in South Africa?" I asked Nattily, a top-ranking source at the State Department.

"We deplore what is going on there and will take tough measures to see that the South African government changes its ways."

"What kind of measures?" I asked. "We will threaten them with the only thing the Botha government understands — quiet diplomacy."

"What kind of quiet diplomacy?" "It wouldn't be quiet if I told you, would it? I can only reveal that in our experience, the more you raise your voice, the less influence you have. But if we can go in through the back door there is always a chance we can make a deal with Botha."

"What if you can't?" "Then we continue our quiet diplomacy, hoping the South African leaders will see the light."

"Does quiet diplomacy really work?" I asked.

"All the time. We've used it in every fascist country in the world, and it's never failed."

"You mean governments have stopped beating up people in the streets after you come in with Q.D.?" "You have to take my word for it. The quieter you are about human rights' violations, the better behaved the foreign government is about locking up people."

"What is wrong with instituting economic sanctions against South Africa?"

"They don't work."

"Then why do we have them against Cuba?" "With Communists they work."

Nattily said, "But sanctions against a friendly fascist power would hurt the people we are trying to help."

"That means your chance of using sanctions could hurt our relations with South Africa?"

"Correct. I think Secretary of State George Shultz summed it up best on the evening news when asked if the U.S. would levy sanctions, he replied, 'No.'"

"What do you say to Bishop Tutu when he calls on the U.S. to invoke sanctions?"

"We don't say anything to Bishop Tutu if we can help it. Our policy is to remain neutral in South Africa."

I then asked Nattily, "Does it bother you that Botha has instituted a state of emergency and anyone can be locked up for no reason?"

"Of course it bothers us, and we intend to bring it up at the next quiet diplomacy meeting in Pretoria. You are aware that President Reagan sent Botha a very tough note about the South African martial law edict."

"Did it have any effect?" "No, but that is the advantage of quiet diplomacy. Very few people know that Botha told Reagan to stuff it."

"That's a foreign policy?"

Nattily said, "Do you have a better one?"

"I might go for the sanctions if I was bankrupt in ideas."

"Forget it. We're on top of this thing. We've war-gamed it from one end of Foggy Bottom to the other. In foreign affairs there is a time to shout and a time to whisper."

"And?"

"Well, you don't hear anyone in the administration shouting about South Africa."

"So we can relax knowing that we're up to our necks in quiet diplomacy?"

"To quote the secretary of state when asked on one of the morning news shows if we had the situation under control, his answer was, 'Yes.'"

Strength For Today

On the day the Battle of Waterloo was fought, a signal system which spelled out a message had been devised and was to be displayed from a large public building in London.

A silent, anxious crowd was gathered before this building. At last, little by little, two words were spelled out — "Wellington defeated." Before the second word had been spelled out completely, a heavy fog descended upon the city and with it, of course, immeasurable despondency on the part of the population.

At last after some hours the fog lifted. Then the signal spelled out the rest of the message — "Wellington defeated the enemy."

How often the fog comes down upon our understanding and upon our faith before God's divine message if fully comprehended by us or before the events of life have fully revealed their meaning.

God's last word to our souls is always a word of love, encouragement and joy.

Public Forum

To the editor: The Greenville City Council has arranged and conducted numerous hearing relating to our method of elections for the city. Thus far, there has been little participation from the citizens of Greenville at these meetings. Another is scheduled for Monday, July 7, 1986, at 7:30 p.m., at City Hall, to receive final input regarding the method of elections. This input will help the council to make its final decision.

It is imperative that all concerned citizens attend this meeting and provide input into this vital matter. We encourage all Greenville residents to attend and participate.

To the editor: Greenville and Pitt County are good. Our family has made the area home since 1982 and would share three observations before moving at month's end. First, your people are quality, as evidenced by the acceptance for those of us from other parts of the country.

Second, a characteristic of quality is apparent in the support of others through the United Way and its agencies.

Third, the Boys Club of Pitt County and its leadership is a demonstration of quality service.

I trust that this note may generate an awareness and appreciation for the priceless resources we found in Greenville and Pitt County.

Israeli Secret Service Chief Resigns Under Fire

JERUSALEM (AP) — The head of Israel's secret service resigned today because of the controversy over the beating deaths of two Palestinian bus hijackers and was granted immunity from prosecution in the case, the Cabinet secretary announced.

Shin Bet chief Avraham Shalom and three other security agents were granted presidential clemency and cannot be prosecuted in the case, Cabinet secretary Yossi Beilin said. The other three agents have not resigned, he said.

The resignation appeared to preclude any full-scale investigation into allegations that Shalom ordered the Palestinians killed and then covered it up, and was an apparent victory for Prime Minister Shimon Peres and Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir, who opposed an inquiry.

Peres and Shamir warned an investigation of the 1984 incident could damage Israel's security because it might make public details of how the counterintelligence agency operates. Shamir, who was prime minister at the time, has been accused of knowledge of the alleged cover-up.

The decision on Shalom was reached after all-night consultations among Yosef Harish, Israel's new attorney general, Peres and other top Cabinet ministers. Leftist legislators immediately denounced it, and four minor political parties filed motions of no-confidence against the government.

"This decision is wrong and disappointing. ... It is one big whitewash intended to allow the political echelon to escape investigation," legislator Yossi Sarid of the Citizens Rights Party said on Israel radio. "Shamir can throw a big party."

Other legislators challenged the legality of the decision by President Chaim Herzog to grant clemency before legal proceedings have begun.

Shalom asked for clemency — which grants him immunity from prosecution — Harish said in a statement released at the prime minister's office. Harish said that "it appears there is no point to an investigation" now that clemency has been granted.

"Shalom announced that he wanted to be relieved because the publicity and the revelation of his identity would not allow him to continue fulfilling his job," Beilin said in a statement to reporters outside the prime minister's office.

The controversy marked the first time in Israeli history that the Shin Bet chief's identity was revealed in public while he was in office.

Beilin said he did not know when Shalom's resignation would take effect or who would replace him.

"The prime minister told the Cabinet he would establish a committee to determine new operating procedures based on the lessons of the past," Beilin said.

The controversy centers around the hijacking of an Israeli civilian bus to the Israeli-occupied Gaza Strip. Two of four hijackers were killed when Israeli soldiers stormed the bus, but another two were captured alive and killed later.

Shalom is alleged to have ordered the killings and to have covered them up by giving two previous inquiry commissions false evidence.

A 1985 ruling by Yitzhak Zamir, the former attorney general, said the president could not grant clemency until a court handed down a verdict.

Apartment Fire Kills 3 In Detroit

DETROIT (AP) — Fire destroyed a three-story apartment building near downtown Detroit early today, killing three people and injuring at least 19, one critically, authorities said.

Firefighters were called to the blaze at 1:40 a.m. and worked 4½ hours to extinguish it, said Francis Kelly, Detroit Fire Department senior battalion chief.

The building was being operated as an unlicensed room-and-board home for the mentally retarded or former mental patients, said Margaret Anzinger, director of public relations for the Wayne County office of the Michigan Department of Social Services. She said a room-and-board operation does not require a license.

The building is owned and operated by Joan Polk, who has at least two licensed adult foster care homes for the mentally impaired elsewhere in the city, Mrs. Anzinger said.

Alabama Ballots Impounded

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Attorney General Charlie Graddick, saying he feared his narrow victory over Lt. Gov. Bill Baxley in a Democratic gubernatorial primary might be stolen, ordered ballots impounded today, but said he was confident he would lead Alabama as George Wallace's successor.

Graddick, 41, who switched from Republican ranks 10 years ago, put a conservative stamp on Alabama for the post-Wallace era as he drew Bible Belt whites and well-to-do urbanites, including Republicans, into a coalition that edged Baxley's biracial, labor-heavy forces in Tuesday's runoff.

The last United States invasion of Canadian soil was defeated in 1814 at Lacolle, Quebec.

OPEC Chief Sees 'Quick Reversal'

BRIONI, Yugoslavia (AP) — OPEC's outgoing president today predicted a quick reversal of the world oil market slump, which he said was threatening to become a "price disaster."

Arturo Hernandez Grisanti of Venezuela addressed the opening session of OPEC's regular summer conference and then was replaced as president by Nigerian Oil Minister Rilwanu Lukman. The position of president is rotated regularly.

It was clear even before the talks began that the OPEC ministers were sharply at odds over how to respond to the oil slump.

The cartel leaders, meeting for the first time in a communist country, gathered in a luxury beachfront hotel guarded by heavily-armed paramilitary police. Navy gunboats patrolled the pristine waterway separating Brioni from the Yugoslav mainland.

Ahmed Zaki Yamani, the oil minister of Saudi Arabia, said Tuesday that the Brioni meeting could be "a good step" toward an agreement on reimposing controls on members' oil production.

Yamani pointedly avoided predicting a full agreement, saying further steps could come at later meetings.

Without a meaningful agreement this week on controlling OPEC production, oil prices would be expected to hold near current levels of $12 to $15 a barrel, or fall even further.

The key split within the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries is between Libya, Iran and Algeria and a 10-nation majority led by Saudi Arabia and its allies on the Arabian Peninsula.

The switch in leadership was the only decision made in the 90-minute session, said OPEC spokesman James Audu. He said the talks would resume in the late afternoon.

Hernandez Grisanti called on non-OPEC oil producers to follow Norway's example of pledging to cooperate in efforts to push up oil prices.

Norwegian Prime Minister Gro Harlem Brundtland last week met with Hernandez Grisanti, marking the first direct talks between OPEC and an industrialized oil exporter. She said Norway wanted prices to rise.

"This position (by Norway) ... could open the way for a concerted all-oil-producers' effort to stabilize the market in the face of a possible price disaster," Hernandez Grisanti said.

He also predicted that major oil-importing countries soon would come to realize that the approximately 50 percent slide in oil prices since last December was harmful to them as well as to OPEC.

Reporters were not allowed into the OPEC conference room, but copies of Hernandez Grisanti's remarks were made available by cartel officials.

But Baxley, trailing by some 9,000 votes out of more than 900,000 cast, refused to concede one of the closest races in Alabama history.

"Don't count it out," said the 45-year-old former attorney general who led the five-candidate field in the June 3 Democratic primary.

With 4,194 of 4,230 precincts reporting, Graddick had 460,451 votes, or 51 percent, and Baxley had 451,284, or 49 percent.

Graddick, as the state's chief law officer, sent midnight telegrams to voting officials in 36 of Alabama's 67 counties and ordered all ballots, poll lists, election machines and related material secured for the official canvass.

He also dispatched campaign representatives to the counties "to sit with the returns all night," said spokeswoman Janie Nobles. "There's a great fear the election may be stolen overnight."

The Democratic nominee is the favorite to defeat GOP nominee Guy Hunt in November. The state has not elected a Republican governor in over a century.

Richardson Honored

Jack W. Richardson, president of Pitt County Memorial Hospital, was honored by friends and colleagues Tuesday night for his 20 years of service to the hospital.

Richardson and his wife, Lily, were greeted by about 250 employees, medical staff, medical school officials, past and present hospital board members and friends at a reception at the Greenville Country Club.

Kenneth Dews, former hospital board chairman, presented Richardson a plaque commemorating his service. Dews and Charles Gaskins, Pitt County commissioner and hospital board member, praised Richardson's professionalism, foresight and caring attitude.

Dr. William E. Laupus, dean of the ECU School of Medicine, praised him for guiding PCMH through its transition from a community hospital to a regional referral center which still serves as a community hospital.

When Richardson began his career at PCMH in 1966 as an assistant administrator, the hospital had 206 beds. He became president in 1971 and today Pitt Memorial is a 566-bed hospital serving all of eastern North Carolina.

Greenville police said six thefts were reported to the department Tuesday.

Two bicycles also were reported missing Tuesday. According to Officer J.K. McCarthy, one bicycle was taken from Rose High School on Elm Street in an incident reported at 3:13 p.m. Officer J.A. Bartlett said another bicycle was taken from 112 Cypress Gardens in an incident reported at 4:10 p.m.

Also reported stolen Tuesday was a wallet, which Officer B.M. Highland said was taken from a locker in the electrocardiogram office at Pitt County Memorial Hospital in an incident reported at 6:30 p.m.

Fees ...

"The Gramm-Rudman-Hollings legislation, as proposed in the 1986 federal budget, and if triggered in the 1987 budget, calls for cuts in all federal programs, which provide assistance to municipal governments and their citizens," Ms. Meeks said.

The user fee concept, which has been called "regressive taxation" by members of the Greenville-Pitt County League of Women Voters, was recommended instead of a tax increase.

Terry Shank, local League of Women Voters chapter president, said the league had made its feelings known at the meeting and had little to add.

"We said what we had to say. Our goal was to inform the public on the issues at hand, and we've done that," Ms. Shank said. "I do believe that citizens may go a few steps further in opposition to this than they have in the past. I've heard several citizens say this is a regressive tax, and they want to follow up on it."

"We believe that the proposed user fee is regressive taxation which unfairly marks the poor, those on fixed incomes, in subsidized housing and on welfare," Rhea Resnik, vice president of the Greenville-Pitt County League of Women Voters, told council members at a public hearing on June 16.

Meanwhile, the League of Women Voters recommended a tax increase at the meeting.

"An increase in taxes would permit citizens the use of tax deductions, would afford a better record of tax collection and would be more equitable for all citizens," Ms. Resnik said.

Ms. Meeks said a tax increase of seven cents per $100 valuation would be required to replace the money expected through the user fee concept. Greenville's tax rate is set at 63 cents per $100 valuation.

Other storeowners and managers said they would prefer to have necessary increases in taxes.

"Personally, if it is in our taxes, then that is the way it should stay," said Greg Smith, assistant manager at Nichols Discount City. "With corporations such as this one and other major companies in Greenville, the council has just given us an added piece of paperwork that will just bog us down."

Harvey Lindsay, general manager of Carolina East Mall, said the council's decision leaves area businesses with few options.

"I'm very disappointed that they took this method to raise additional funds," Lindsay said. "I think they should allow businesses the alternative to have private carriers haul their trash. They haven't even allowed for an alternative."

Refuse fees will be charged to all area businesses regardless of who removes their trash, according to Ms. Meeks.

However, Frank Steinbeck, owner of Steinbeck's Men's Shop, said the council should look to trim spending fat instead of looking for additional money.

"This is no way for the City Council to guide the merchants and the individuals of Greenville," Steinbeck said. "I think they really need to look at it rather than charging charging business owners, property owners and citizens. It's just ridiculous."

Williamston Adopts Budget

WILLIAMSTON — Commissioners for the town of Williamston have unanimously adopted a $5 million budget for 1986-87 without raising taxes or adding a fee for garbage pickup.

Previously, commissioners had considered adding a surcharge for garbage collection to offset a $130,000 projected revenue shortfall due to declining revenues, primarily in federal funding.

Mayor Tom Brandon said the shortfall would be made up from the general reserve fund if that becomes necessary.

Commissioners approved $10,000 for the placement of a fence around the town's cemetery. Funds for that project will come from the Stella Rooks Trust Fund, not from tax funds.

The adopted $5 million budget does not include pay raises for town employees. The motion to adopt the budget carries a stipulation that raises would be considered at a later date.

Low Wages Boost State's Appeal To Industry

By TOM MINEHART
AP Business Writer
CHARLOTTE (AP) — State officials are proud North Carolina was ranked No. 7 in a nationwide study of manufacturing climates, but they caution that it's almost impossible to be so precise about economic development.

"It's very difficult to quantify it in the way Grant Thornton (a Chicago accounting and consulting firm) attempted," said Sam Taylor, a spokesman for the state Department of Commerce. "We felt that if we ranked in the top 10, that's a good approximation."

"Anyone in the top 10 could just as well be No. 1 in overall appeal," he said. "A lot depends on the attitude of the community and on the particular site."

The study, based on reports from manufacturers associations in the 48 contiguous states for 1985, ranked North Carolina seventh in attractiveness to manufacturers behind South Dakota, Utah, Nebraska, Arizona, North Dakota and Florida. North Carolina moved up from No. 8 in 1984.

This time, the study gave low wages the most weight in determining how each state ranked. North Carolina ranked second lowest in wages with an average hourly manufacturing wage of $7.01. The lowest was Mississippi's $6.95, and the national average was $9.02.

"That (the low wage rate) is something we're trying to overcome on a year-by-year, day-by-day basis," said Taylor. "On the other hand, you've got to use whatever you've got that works in your favor."

The second most important factor in determining rankings was unionization. North Carolina ranked fourth lowest with 5.24 percent of the manufacturing workforce in unions, compared with 20.26 percent nationwide.

The state ranked 41st in change in unionization with a 5.05 percent increase in 1985, the study found. Nationwide, union membership declined 4.89 percent.

Taylor said state officials have written to Grant Thornton to complain about how the unionization factor is computed.

"That really works against North Carolina because our unionization rate is so low that only a small absolute increase generates a large increase in percentage of unionization," he said. "We always dispute that."

Taylor also noted that the state was "marked down" in secondary education. The study ranked North Carolina 41st in the percentage of high school educated adults with 73.6 percent.

"We agree that needs work," he said. "That's one thing the Department of Commerce and secretary (Howard) Haworth have said over and over again — that education does need to be a priority not just for its own right, but for economic development as well."

However, the state ranked No. 9 in vocational education enrollment, the study found.

North Carolina was tied for first with several other states in man-hours lost due to work stoppages over two years involving 1,000 or more workers. There were no such stoppages.

In other areas, the Grant Thornton study ranked the state 17th lowest in state and local taxes with $106.37 per $1,000 of income, compared with a national average of $115.58.

The state ranked seventh lowest in unemployment compensation benefits, with an average $90.85 paid per covered worker per year. The nationwide average was $167.35.

Workers' compensation insurance cost North Carolina manufacturers only about 4 cents per $100 payroll, ranking the state third lowest in this area. The U.S. average was $1 per $100.

The study ranked North Carolina 32nd lowest in energy costs with $5.54 per million BTUs for manufacturers, compared with $5.19 nationally.

Taylor said businesses considering a move to the state almost never mention such studies when they talk to the Commerce Department officials trying to recruit them. And Grant Thornton officials say the study is to be used only as a first step.

"I expect it has an impact," said Taylor. "But by the time they (businesses) talk to us, they've already talked to their consultants and done some studies on their own and decided North Carolina is a good place to do business. Then they tell us, 'Now show us something specific ... someplace that would make a good site.'"

House Rejects Education Change

By F. ALAN BOYCE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — The issue of who will speak for education in North Carolina emerged on the state House floor long enough to show there is little support for a Senate plan to change it and a lot of confusion about alternatives.

The House voted 67-46 Tuesday to kill a proposed constitutional amendment to make the state school superintendent appointive rather than elective and to change the makeup of the state Board of Education. Then the sponsor of a competing House proposal had it shipped to the House Education Committee for further study.

"I don't think it would be advisable for the General Assembly to go on the record as not knowing what it wants to do about a constitutional amendment to change the governance of public education," said Rep. Joe Mavretic, D-Edgecombe, who brought his House version out of the House Constitutional Amendments Committee last week.

Mavretic proposed to let the public vote this year on whether to make the lieutenant governor the chairman of the state Board of Education and to appoint the state superintendent instead of electing him. But that bill ran into early trouble before the House.

"We need some security," said Rep. Bertha Holt, D-Alamance, who suggested leaving the issue alone while the Basic Education Plan is in its formative stages.

"We have too many chiefs," said Rep. David Diamont, D-Surry. "We have too many heads and not enough Indians."

Diamont suggested the House consider instead a bill introduced by Sen. Bob Warren, D-Johnston.

Warren's proposal, in addition to changing the way the superintendent is chosen, would have let the governor appoint the chairman of the board. It would have increased the number of board members from 13 to 14, with the governor appointing eight and the General Assembly four.

The lieutenant governor and state treasurer would automatically go on the board.

Mavretic chose to leave the board membership out of his version, saying it would lead to partisan squabbling.

Warren, in an interview after the House rejected his plan, said he considered the matter "a dead issue."

"But the issue of education governance is not going to go away," he said. "Until it is resolved, it's going to continually plague this General Assembly. You don't know who speaks for education."

Mavretic said it is important for the Legislature to make a decision in the short session.

"The question is are we going to address the issue of governance at all," he said. "Or are we going to wait until 1988, when people are running for the offices of lieutenant governor and superintendent?"

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ON PROPOSED CHARTER AMENDMENT TO ADOPT DISTRICT REPRESENTATION SYSTEM (5-1-1 SYSTEM)

The public will take notice that the Greenville City Council will conduct a public hearing in the Council Chambers of the Municipal Building at the corner of 5th and Washington Streets at 7:30 p.m. on July 7, 1986. The public hearing will be for the purpose of receiving citizen comments on a proposed ordinance amending the Charter of the City of Greenville, as set forth in Chapter 272 of the 1981 Session Laws of North Carolina, to implement a district representation election system. Under the present system the six members of the City Council are all elected at-large. The change being proposed is to divide the city into five single member districts and elect one council member from each of these five districts. The voters of each district would elect one council member who must reside in the district. All of the qualified voters of the city would elect one at-large council member.

Legislators Work On Insurance Bills

RALEIGH (AP) — A Senate committee trying to help doctors frightened over malpractice suits had to weigh their mistrust of insurance companies in deciding how to handle caps on jury awards in two bills.

"We're in the process of placing caps on recovery by people who have been injured by somebody else's negligence and we're doing it without any information from the insurance industry as to why we should do it," said Sen. Dan Simpson, R-Burke, as the Senate Judiciary II Committee considered bills to address soaring malpractice insurance rates and rising prices for childhood vaccinations. "We're not the guarantor of their profits."

Sen. Franklin Williams, R-New Hanover, reminded Simpson that the caps were intended to help doctors more than the insurance industry.

"We have a medical community among us with the threat of a suit hanging over them every time they walk out the door," he said. "We're going to penalize them because we don't like the insurance companies and I just don't think we should do it."

The panel ended up raising a cap on pain and suffering awards in vaccine-related lawsuits from $100,000 to $250,000 and removing a $250,000 cap in the general medical malpractice bill.

The main bill sponsored by Sen. Tom Taft, D-Pitt, was intended to increase mandatory reporting by insurance companies to the state Insurance Department, encourage peer review for doctors to weed out those with a history of problems, set up a way to replace punitive damages with criminal prosecution for wanton negligence and limit noneconomic damages to $250,000.

Taft said he was happy to have preserved the criminal section and sanctions against people who might file frivolous suits.

The second bill would allow children injured due to bad reactions to childhood vaccinations to run claims through the state Industrial Commission instead of the courts.

Former South African Beauty Queen Joins In NAACP's Protest

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A former South African beauty queen who says she came to America to forget about the racial discrimination practices in her homeland, now has joined forces with a local organization to demand an end to apartheid.

"For a long time in this country, I tried to hide," said Veronica Rosette Motsepe Alexander. "I tried to forget South Africa."

But in February, she learned her younger brother had been jailed and beaten. Her father was threatened and her cousin's house was bombed.

"Now all the wounds have been opened," she said. "Suddenly I remembered all those dead bodies in South Africa."

Last week in Charlotte, dressed in regal tribal garb as the granddaughter of a tribal chieftan, Mrs. Alexander joined an NAACP march to demand an end to apartheid, South Africa's system of racial separation in which 5 million whites control 24 million blacks.

Mrs. Alexander, 31, says a privileged childhood in South Africa helped her practice an "ostrich policy" about racial discrimination in her homeland.

But now, after moving to Charlotte and marrying into a civil rights activist family, the ostrich policy has changed.

Mrs. Alexander, who once wanted to be a nun, married Kelly Alexander Jr., state director of the NAACP, three years ago.

"In South Africa, I was a spoiled, frivolous girl," Mrs. Alexander says. "I was beautiful. I was always running around. If I tore a stocking, it was the end of the world."

When Kelly Alexander met her in South Africa in 1977, she weighed 98 pounds, had inch-long false eyelashes, painted fingernails and sometimes wore a wig.

"But when we had a conversation," he recalls, "it became apparent to me that behind all the glitz was a mind."

In 1976, Mrs. Alexander competed in the Miss Africa South beauty pageant for Indians, blacks and coloreds — racially mixed South Africans. She won. Her title made her a celebrity — glamorous, carefree and privileged.

But Kelly Alexander, son of the late national NAACP chairman, refused to let her ignore what was happening around her.

"Kelly was my conscience," she says. "He would say, 'People are dying here and what are you doing about it?' He would say, 'You think you have a good life, but you can't go into a white restaurant to eat.' When he left, you always had a bitter feeling in your mouth. He would open up the wounds I had to live with every day."

Mrs. Alexander remembers an idyllic childhood with her six brothers and sisters in a rural area about 50 miles from Pretoria. Her father was a school principal, her mother a nurse. The only whites they saw were in Pretoria.

"We'd go into town, and we'd want to go to a bathroom and we could not," she recalls. "That was the first time I started realizing something was not kosher in South Africa."

At 6, her father sent her 500 miles away from home to a Roman Catholic convent in Cape Province. All the students were classified as colored, including Mrs. Alexander, because she has a white grandmother.

But her father is black, and that made life difficult at the convent.

When she was 13, the family moved to Ga-Rankuwa, a town in the tribal homeland Bophuthatswana. Her father now owns a liquor distributing company there and is a member of the Black Chamber of Commerce.

"I had a better life than most blacks in South Africa," she says. "My father was an influential man."

When Mrs. Alexander left the convent at age 18, she was rebellious. On the long train ride home, she faced what she already knew in her heart.

"I looked at my identity card and it said colored, and I screamed, 'I'm not colored, I'm black.'"

She tore up the identity card and threw it out the window.

"I could have chosen to say I'm colored. I would have been able to live a better life. But I told myself, no, I am black, and I cannot turn a blind eye to what is happening in South Africa."

APARTHEID CRITIC — Veronica Alexander, wife of N.C. NAACP director Kelly Alexander Jr. of Charlotte, has become an outspoken critic of South Africa's system of racial separation. She is a native of South Africa who says she had tried to forget the problems of her homeland until recently. (AP Laserphoto)

By 1978, her duties as Miss Africa South had ended. She was recruited as a consultant by a cosmetics company and studying marketing and public relations in Johannesburg.

Materially, her life was going well. But she was depressed.

"I was sick and tired of South Africa," she says. "I was sick and tired of the type of life I was leading. I wanted to go some where new and lose myself."

In 1980, Alexander returned to South Africa. On their first real date, he proposed.

In August 1981, Veronica Alexander arrived in Charlotte. Two years later, she got married, settled into her new life and began working toward American citizenship.

"White South Africans tell me I am not as good as they are," says Mrs. Alexander. "But I am better than any of them. They tell me I am no smarter than a child. I am not a child. I am an adult."

Burley Growers Get Buyout Plan

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Burley tobacco interests have reached an agreement with four major cigarette manufacturers for a $500 million buyout of more than 250 million pounds of surplus burley.

The contract still must be approved by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Larry Forgy, an attorney for the Burley Tobacco Growers Cooperative Association, said burley representatives were unanimous in their support for the agreement.

Under the contract agreed to Tuesday, the tobacco companies — R.J. Reynolds, Brown & Williamson Tobacco, Lorillard and Philip Morris — will purchase the stored 1982 and 1984 crop surplus, to be delivered over a five-year period.

The companies also will pay the interest-related charges on the stored burley, Forgy said. He said the tobacco companies' buyout, along with the federal government's plan to purchase 212 million pounds of the drought-stricken 1983 crop for about $500 million, will reduce assessments on farmers, which help finance the federal tobacco program, to about 3 cents per pound.

The buyouts were provided for under the federal Tobacco Reform Act approved this year by Congress.

The states covered under the burley agreement reached Tuesday are Kentucky, Tennessee, Ohio, Missouri, West Virginia and Indiana.

Michaux Says 'No' To Congress

RALEIGH (AP) — Rep. H.M. "Mickey" Michaux, D-Durham, who has been instrumental in efforts to reduce the threshold for victory in state primaries, says he will not run for Congress.

"There are many reasons for this decision, but basic among them is my desire to fulfill my obligations to my constituency in the General Assembly of our state," Michaux said at a news conference Tuesday. "Hopefully, those obligations will result in the black community being able to have a fair chance at its choice of representation without having to always demand that we be recognized for our allegiance not only to our state and our party, but also to our nation."

Exum Makes Bid For Chief Justice's Seat

GREENSBORO (AP) — The governor historically appoints the associate justice with the most seniority to become the North Carolina Supreme Court chief justice, and James G. Exum, who is next in line, is urging Gov. Jim Martin to follow tradition.

"I would like for the governor to appoint me the next chief justice," Exum said in a telephone interview from his office in Raleigh. "It's a good tradition. It has served the court well over the years."

Martin must find a replacement for Joseph Branch, who is retiring as chief justice of the North Carolina. Branch, who turns 71 next month, will retire effective Sept. 1. He would have been required to step down at age 72.

Branch said Monday that the seniority rule should be strongly considered. He said Exum would be make a "capable" and "qualified" chief justice.

"But I'm not telling the governor what to do," said Branch, who has served on the state Supreme Court for 20 years, seven as chief justice.

Exum, who has more than 10 years on the state's top bench, said Monday that Martin should "uphold tradition unless there is a good reason not to" and appoint him.

Tim Pittman, Martin's press secretary, said the selection process would "begin in earnest in about two weeks." Martin has not set a timetable for the replacement or said what criteria he will use to make the appointment, Pittman said.

Exum, 50, was a Superior Court judge in Greensboro from 1967 to 1975. He became the youngest Superior Court judge in the state's history at age 31.

The only Republican on the seven-member court is Rhoda Billings, who was chosen last year by Martin to fill a vacancy. She has been on the court 10 months.

Ms. Billings said Monday that she was not actively campaigning for the vacancy, but she said she would consider the top spot if Martin selected her.

"There is very little I can say about my interest in this position," Ms. Billings said. "I'm not actively pursuing an interview with the governor. He certainly knows my qualifications."

Ms. Billings said Martin should not feel obligated to adhere to tradition for the sake of tradition. But Exum said there are few times when the governor should not adhere to the seniority rule.

"I don't think partisan politics is a good reason for departing from tradition," he said. "Once you've broken tradition, it's broken for all time."

NLRB Hearing

SALISBURY, N.C. (AP) — About 30 Fieldcrest-Cannon Mills employees and union members turned out for the opening session Tuesday of an unfair labor practices hearing by the National Labor Relations Board.

The Amalgamated Clothing and Textile Workers union filed a complaint against Cannon Mills after a union vote at the company last fall. Since then, the company has been purchased by Eden-based Fieldcrest Mills.

Charges in the complaint include that Cannon Mills interrogated employees about their union sympathies, threatened employees with discharge for engaging in union activities, and threatened employees with plant closure if they voted in the union. Several former employees say they were fired because of their pro-union activities.

Cannon workers in Rowan and Cabarrus counties defeated the union 5,982 to 3,530 last year after months of campaigning by the union and the company.

New Projects

RALEIGH (AP) — Six additional projects will be awarded under the Adolescent Pregnancy and Prematurity Prevention program, bringing the total number to 17 projects being funded by the 1985 General Assembly, Department of Human Resources Secretary Phillip J. Kirk said.

Kirk said the six counties with projects selected were Brunswick, Columbus, Durham, Macon, Onslow and Vance.

The 1985 General Assembly appropriated $1.92 million to fund innovative community-based adolescent pregnancy and prematurity prevention projects designed to reduce the number of unintended adolescent pregnancies, to improve the health of pregnant teenagers and their infants and which could be replicated statewide.

Poverty Report

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolinians must work to improve conditions for the more than 1 million people statewide living in poverty, a group of the state's leaders said in a report released Tuesday.

"What we've all learned is how very complicated the problem is," William C. Friday, former president of the University of North Carolina system, said at a news conference.

Friday headed a committee of 19 political, business, church and educational leaders who contributed to the report titled "Poverty and Civic Responsibility."

North Carolina's 1 million poor include one out of every four children in the state, the report said. A growing share of the state's impoverished households are headed by women, and more than one-third of them are headed by someone 65 or older, the report said.

Migrants

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three North Carolina congressmen said the state's farmers were being abused by lawyers representing migrant workers and that they would step up efforts to force a change in the lawyers' tactics.

Reps. Tim Valentine, Charles Whitley and Walter Jones — all Democrats who represent largely rural districts in Eastern North Carolina — made the comments Tuesday after hearing complaints from farmers and officials of the N.C. Yam Commission, which represents growers dependent on migrant labor.

Reagan Seeks Solons' Support

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Tim Valentine, D-N.C. spent about 30 minutes with President Reagan in the Oval Office discussing the upcoming vote for military aid to the Nicaraguan rebels, but Valentine said he still planned to vote against the provision.

"I don't see any reason to change," Valentine said after the meeting Tuesday.

Valentine said the president rebutted charges that non-military aid already sent to the rebels had been misspent. Valentine said Reagan and an aide assured him "the money is getting to the right people."

But Reagan did not dispel a chief Valentine complaint that the United States should not be financing an insurrection against a country with which it has diplomatic relations, he said.

Valentine was among a handful of conservative Democrats whom Reagan was trying to sway in the closely divided House, which earlier this year rejected his $100 million aid request for the rebels on a vote of 222-210.

Rep. Charles Whitley, D-N.C., also was invited to meet with Reagan but declined because of a previous commitment.

In an interview, Whitley said he was "not inclined to vote for military aid," although he might vote for a compromise Democratic package pushed by Rep. Dave McCurdy, D-Okla. The McCurdy proposal would release about $30 million in non-military aid to the rebels fighting the Sandinista regime but withhold $70 million in military aid until Congress voted again this fall.

Valentine said he was leaning toward voting against any aid, including the McCurdy compromise.

All five North Carolina Republicans in the House have supported Reagan's aid request.

Rep. Bill Hefner, D-N.C., said in an interview he might "reluctantly" vote for the McCurdy compromise because it could be approved as part of a military construction appropriations bill that he is sponsoring as subcommittee chairman for military construction spending. But Hefner said he remained opposed to military aid.

The state's remaining three Democrats, Walter Jones, Steve Neal and Charlie Rose, said they were strongly opposed to military aid. Rose and Neal said they might vote for the McCurdy compromise.

But when asked if he would vote for any aid, Jones said, "No, no, no. Not one red cent when we've got farmers going bankrupt in the First District of North Carolina."

Firm Plans Tests On Altered Tobacco

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Rohm & Haas Co. has asked the government for permission to field test genetically altered tobacco plants that are resistant to leaf-eating caterpillars.

The chemical company said Monday it had applied to the U.S. Department of Agriculture to test plants containing a protein that is toxic to lepidopterous caterpillars, described as the single most damaging type of crop pests in the world.

Rohm & Haas said greenhouse tests by Plant Genetic Systems N.V., a Belgium-based biotechnology company, showed that plants containing the Bacillus thuringiensis, or B.t., protein were resistant to the caterpillars.

The B.t. protein has been used for more than 30 years as a spray-on insecticide, the company said, and is non-toxic to other organisms. Growing tobacco with the built-in B.t. protein could sharply reduce the amount of insecticide needed, the company said.

Introducing genetically modified organisms into the natural environment has been controversial, with some critics saying the new organisms could damage the environment in unforeseen ways.

Rohm & Haas said further research could lead to caterpillar-resistant versions of cotton, vegetables, fruits and trees. Tobacco is commonly used as a test crop, according to Ronald Meeusen, agricultural biotechnology research manager at Rohm & Haas.

FmHA Initiates Foreclosures

By The Associated Press
The Farmers Home Administration has begun foreclosure proceedings on North Carolina farms owned by 44 delinquent borrowers who did not respond to warning letters.

About 1,100 farmers received the letters in February and April warning them to take steps to renegotiate their loans within 30 days or face foreclosure. Of those, 248 borrowers did not reply, said Eddie Miller, special projects director in the state FmHA office in Raleigh. Of the 248, the loans of 44 farmers are being "accelerated," the first step in foreclosure, Miller said.

Farmers whose loans are accelerated are told that the entire amount of their loans is due immediately, Miller said.

He said foreclosures on the other 204 accounts had been delayed while the agency concentrated this spring on operating loans for farmers.

Bus Petition

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Parents and children have joined forces in an effort to get signatures for a petition that seeks a halt to the hiring of students as school bus drivers.

Three of Dave and Terry Farrell's children were among 36 students injured in June 6 when an elementary school bus overturned and slammed into a tree just south of Winston-Salem. The Farrells, their children, and three students who were injured in the accident combed the streets of downtown Winston-Salem Monday and Tuesday seeking signatures.

The bus driver, James Greg McCormick, 16, was charged with careless and reckless driving.

Conviction

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — A federal judge has sentenced a New York man to 14 years in prison after the man was convicted earlier this month on charges of smuggling more than 1,260 pounds of hashish from India into High Point.

Benarsi Das Mehra, 58, was also fined $500,000 by Judge Richard C. Erwin. The sentencing hearing was held in Tuesday in U.S. District Court here.

One of Mehra's attorneys, Michael Lee of Greensboro, said that Mehra will appeal the case. Lee said that Mehra will also challenge a civil action filed last week in which federal authorities seized more than $5 million worth of his property in New York and Florida.

Mehra, who was born in India but lives in New York, is the president of

Cyanide Also Found In Anacin-3 Capsules

AUBURN, Wash. (AP) — Store shelves in southern King County were bare today of over-the-counter medications in capsule form after cyanide was discovered in a bottle of Anacin-3 by authorities investigating two poisoning deaths.

Residents were urged not to take any over-the-counter medication in capsules, and stores were ordered to remove such products after a random check Tuesday turned up the tainted Anacin-3 in this Seattle suburb where two deaths have been blamed on cyanide-laced Extra-Strength Excedrin capsules.

A Pay 'N Save store in a north Auburn shopping center during a Food and Drug Administration spot check, police Chief Jake Evans said late Tuesday at a news conference.

"Cyanide was preliminarily specified and was identified," Evans said, adding that he could give no further details on the manner in which the bottle was found. "It impinges on our investigation," he said. "We don't want to be revealing information that we or the suspect might know."

"Any over-the-counter capsule medicine is suspect and should not be used," Evans said.

The warning applied to southern King County, including Kent and Auburn, regional FDA commissioner Frank Young said Tuesday night at a news conference in Seattle. "We don't consider it anything but a local problem," he said.

Information on how many capsules were poisoned, and lot numbers, was not being released, said Young and Evans. All capsules were suspect because of the lack of threats in connection with the tampering, Young said.

Anacin-3 is manufactured by American Home Products Inc. of New York City. Company spokesman Jack Wood could not be reached for comment. Calls to his home were not answered.

The bottle could have been on the store shelf between three and 12 weeks, said store manager James Nordness. Employees had noted no suspicious people in the part of the store where the bottle had been stocked, Nordness said.

Cyanide-laced Extra-Strength Excedrin capsules were blamed in the deaths this month of Sue Snow, 40, and Bruce Nickell, 52, who lived a few miles apart in Auburn.

It was the first time in this non-prescription drug scare that a brand other than Extra-Strength Excedrin has been involved.

"Because of the Excedrin problem, I guess they thought they would check some other products, and one of them showed positive," said police Officer Jim Detrick, who confirmed that FBI tests in Washington, D.C., last week on two bottles of Extra-Strength Excedrin turned up capsules laced with cyanide.

The tests apparently showed the cyanide found in those two bottles was from the same batch found in the bodies of the victims, Detrick said.

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: After some annoying delays, you then find you are able to clearly see what can be done to reduce your imaginative ideas to a workable level of expression.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) A new idea cannot be put in operation early, but a fine plan can be worked out so as to insure success with it in the future.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Your mate may not be very helpful in the morning, but your friends are very cooperative with your ambitions.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A partner could take up much of your time in the morning, but later you make big headway with the public in general.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Work may have you tied down in the morning, but later you can get into other outlets and express yourself better.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) First handle duties for your mate, then off to take care of practical affairs that are important. Handle work efficiently.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Have a talk with a partner and come to a fine meeting of minds, since later you have to handle a problem at home.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) If you want to make any changes at home, gain the assistance of family and you'll get good results.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Once a financial affair has been settled, be with friends and have a delightful time with them.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get the right solution to a personal perplexity in the morning, and then you can do what kin desire of you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Some special thought for the one you love can bring happiness, even if the suggestion came from a new contact.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Look at the practical side of your plans for the future and make progress. Don't let a friend take up too much of your time.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) A responsibility takes a little time in the morning, but later concentrate on what you most desire in life.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she may find it difficult to learn lessons quickly, but will retain the knowledge acquired longer than others and will apply it profitably at whatever project is undertaken. There is an aptitude here for handling details and upon reaching adulthood would do very well either in big business or in anything artistic.

Congress Extends DST By 3 Weeks

By DAVID GOELLER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Let there be light, sayeth the Lord. And let there be more of it in the evening, addeh the Congress, which passed legislation to lengthen daylight-saving time by three weeks.

The action came on a voice vote Tuesday as the House sent the proposal, which has the support of the Reagan administration, to the president's desk.

Under the plan, beginning next year people would set their clocks ahead an hour on the first Sunday in April. Under a 1966 law, daylight-saving time has begun on the last Sunday in April.

No change would be made in the ending day for daylight-saving time, the final Sunday in October.

Supporters of more daylight time had pushed to move the final day to the first Sunday in November, but a compromise was reached to extend it only three weeks instead of four.

Much of the opposition to more daylight-saving time came from rural lawmakers whose districts and states straddle the western edges of time zones. They complained that the change would force children and farmers to begin more of their days in the dark.

"Congress has seen the light, and now Americans everywhere will see more light," said Rep. Edward Markey, D-Mass., one of the principal House sponsors of the legislation.

"It's a simple step that improves the quality of life, conserves energy, reduces crime and saves lives on the highway — and it doesn't cost a nickel," Markey said in a prepared statement.

A four-week extension of daylight-saving time was approved by the House last year. The Senate cut it to three and tacked the proposal onto the fire prevention and control authorization bill approved by the House.

The bill calls for the doubling of spending on fire prevention to about $18 million a year, a step that has been opposed for budget reasons by the Reagan administration.

But an official from the Office of Management and Budget, speaking on condition of anonymity, said he thought the legislation and the daylight-saving time amendment would be signed into law.

To Save Fetus Brain-Dead Woman To Be Kept Alive

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — A brain-dead pregnant woman will be kept alive until she gives birth under an agreement between the father of the 27-week-old female fetus and the woman's parents, who had sought to turn off life-support.

The settlement signed Tuesday by Santa Clara County Superior Court Judge John A. Flaherty gave custody of the fetus to the natural father, Derrick Poole of Oakland, and allowed the hospital to keep the woman alive.

"There is a problem with the law," said Mark Swendsen, attorney for Poole, 31. "We have a human being whose life is precious, whose life is worth fighting for, yet whose legal status is very much in question."

The agreement came 13 days after Poole won a court order to keep Marie Odette Henderson, 34, connected to a life-support system at Kaiser Permanente Medical Center just hours before she was scheduled to have been disconnected.

Miss Henderson has been kept alive since June 7, when she was declared brain-dead from a brain tumor.

Her parents, Edna and Otis Henderson of Detroit, did not want to discuss their feelings about the case or the reasons why they changed their mind to let their daughter stay on life-support long enough to give birth, said their attorney, Robert E. Borton. "They feel it is a very private matter."

Hospital officials, who had been caught in the middle of the dispute, called for laws that would guide families and doctors.

House To Seek Middle-Income Tax Relief Over Senate-Approved Bill

By CLIFF HAAS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Relief for middle-income taxpayers will be at the top of the agenda when congressional bargainers meet next month to draft compromise tax-overhaul legislation, the House's chief tax writer said today. Congressional bargainers will begin meeting in mid-July to draft a compromise between the bill the Senate passed Tuesday on a 97-3 vote and a less dramatic version the House approved last December.

"How we treat middle-income families is going to be probably the most important" issue facing the negotiators, Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, said today on ABC-TV's "Good Morning America."

Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., appearing on the same program, said, "I think the House bill is a bit better in that area," but he declined to say that he would support higher rates for upper-income people in order to finance more relief for the middle class.

Despite the differences, Rostenkowski declared Tuesday, "I don't see anything stopping a tax reform bill being on the president's desk this year."

Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee and the prime architect of the Senate package, said that with the Senate vote, Congress is "two-thirds of the way there" to revising the tax code.

Nonetheless, Rostenkowski said there will be "long discussions" between the House and Senate on some of the most sensitive differences between the two bills, particularly the treatment of middle-income taxpayers.

The Senate bill compresses more than a dozen existing individual tax brackets — ranging from 11 percent to 50 percent — into two brackets of 15 percent and 27 percent.

The House bill has individual rates of 15 percent, 25 percent, 35 percent and 38 percent.

Democrats in both chambers have said that under the Senate bill, the wealthy would not pay their fair share of taxes while middle-income people would not get enough of a break.

Congressional tax experts have estimated that under the Senate bill, the after-tax income of people earning $30,000 to $40,000 a year would be raised by 0.4 percent, compared with 1.4 percent for those making more than $200,000. Roughly one in four people earning between $20,000 and $50,000 would face a tax increase.

Packwood has said repeatedly the rates in the Senate bill are inviolate and the "glue" that holds it together.

He also has dismissed arguments that the middle class would not get a fair shake.

"There's no question the average middle-income Jane and Joe working in the shoe store, working in the lumber and feed chain (store) come out better under this bill," Packwood said.

Rostenkowski, though, left no doubt about his position, saying, "I'm going to be as interested as many of the senators were ... in how this affects the middle-income family. That, I think, is the true glue that would keep reform together."

He also recommended a compromise, noting the Senate bill has two brackets while the House bill has four. "There's a number someplace in the middle," Rostenkowski said.

The bargainers also face tough arguments over a Senate move to reduce the deductibility of contributions to Individual Retirement Accounts.

Rostenkowski said he would seek to retain that deduction.

There also are differences on provisions to eliminate the deduction for state and local taxes and the elimination of the deduction for interest on consumer credit as well as Senate provisions that reduce the value of tax shelters and capital gains.

But, for now, the emphasis is on the prospect of enactment of a tax bill. "The Senate has voted on tax reform and the score is: taxpayers 1, special interests, nothing," President Reagan said in a written statement as he watched tax overhaul — his No. 1 domestic priority for his second term — take on new life with the Senate vote.

Just before the vote, Packwood emotionally told his colleagues they were about to deliver "a great victory for America." Choking back tears, he told senators, "This country is in your debt."

The Senate bill would reduce taxes for most individuals, by an average of 6.4 percent — about $215; raise taxes for 25 million people and shift $105 billion of the federal tax burden to corporations over the next five years.

More than 6 million working poor would be taken off the income-tax rolls, while some rich investors and profitable companies making big use of legal deductions would become taxpayers for the first time in years.

The $1,080 personal exemption would rise to $2,000 for all but the wealthiest taxpayers. Standard deductions would be increased, to $3,000 for singles and $5,000 for joint returns.

Deductions for consumer interest, such as for credit cards and car loans, and miscellaneous expenses, including union dues, would be repealed. The writeoff for medical expense and sales taxes would be slashed. Income averaging would be repealed for all but farmers. Capital gains would lose their long-held preferential treatment.

The top corporate tax rate of 46 percent would be cut to 33 percent, with lower rates for small business. The investment credit would be repealed. The present depreciation system would be liberalized slightly.

Only three senators — Democrats Carl Levin of Michigan, Paul Simon of Illinois and John Melcher of Montana — voted against the bill, citing its impact on rural or middle-income taxpayers.

"On balance, this is a bad bill for rural America," Melcher protested, saying it would clobber farming, mining and small timber operators.

Even the strongest supporters of the legislation expressed concern. "There are still some loopholes. They're not all closed. Some were never touched," said Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan.

Storm Strengthens, Heads For Coast

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — Tropical Storm Bonnie threatened to become the year's first hurricane today as its 70 mph winds chased hundreds of oil workers from their rigs and hurricane watches were posted along the Gulf Coast from Texas to the mouth of the Mississippi River.

Hurricane forecasters warned that Bonnie, gaining strength as it churned across the warm waters of the Gulf of Mexico, was an unpredictable storm because it was born so early in the 1986 hurricane season.

Hurricane watches were posted today from Port O'Connor, Texas, to the mouth of the Mississippi.

At 7 a.m. CDT, Bonnie was centered 225 miles southeast of Galveston, at latitude 27.2 north and longitude 93.0 west. It was headed west-northwest at 10 mph and was expected to stay on that course and speed.

During the night, helicopters plucked workers from oil rigs far out in the Gulf. Although no exact figures were available, spokesmen for Shell, Texaco, Chevron and Mobil said they evacuated several hundred workers, with most going to the Louisiana towns of Morgan City and Venice.

"We are taking all precautions and will be watching the storm closely," said R.J. Wright, a Shell spokesman.

Some oil companies were totally evacuating their rigs and others were leaving only skeleton crews, said Robert Robicheaux, a communications specialist for Petroleum Helicopters Inc. in Morgan City, La.

An oil industry official estimated that nearly 8,000 people work on the rigs, a number vastly reduced this year because of the decline in the oil business.

"Reports from an Air Force plane indicate Bonnie continues to strengthen," forecasters at the National Hurricane Center in suburban Miami said today in a special advisory. "Winds are near the threshold for a hurricane and hurricane warnings may be required before midday."

The center gave nearly one-in-three odds of the storm coming within 65 miles of the Galveston area. But forecaster Miles Lawrence said such predictions were far from perfect, especially when it comes to early season storms. The season begins June 1 and runs until November.

"The storms that form this time of year aren't the classical type. We're not as confident in our expectation of where they might head," he said.

The Hurricane Center advised residents along the northwest Gulf coast to monitor the storm's progress closely.

Bonnie formed from an area of low pressure that was first spotted Monday. It was upgraded to a tropical storm Tuesday as its highest sustained winds increased.

A tropical depression has highest sustained winds up to 38 mph. If winds reach 39 mph, it becomes a named tropical storm. Storms become hurricanes if sustained winds reach 74 mph.

Two of last year's seven hurricanes formed in the Gulf. Those were Bob and Juan. A third hurricane, Danny, grew into a hurricane in the Gulf after forming as a depression in the northwestern Caribbean.

The first tropical storm of the 1986 Atlantic hurricane season, Andrew, formed in the Atlantic Ocean east of Jacksonville and swept up the coast before dissipating nearly three weeks ago.

with Martin, told reporters Tuesday he hoped the governor would stand by his commitment to raising at least $200 million for highways, even if he disagrees with the Legislature's method of doing so.

Drugs Blamed In Bias' Death

Cocaine Intoxication

Boston Celtic's top draft choice Len Bias died of cocaine intoxication which interrupted the electrical activity in his brain and caused his heart to stop, the state medical examiner said Tuesday. Dr. John Smialek said the cocaine probably was taken only minutes before Bias collapsed in his dormitory room last Thursday. (AP Laserphoto)

BALTIMORE (AP) — University of Maryland basketball star Len Bias died of cocaine intoxication, the state medical examiner said today. He said the condition interrupted the electrical activity in Bias' brain and caused his heart to stop.

Dr. John Smialek said the cocaine probably was taken only minutes before the 22-year-old All American collapsed in his dormitory room last Thursday. He said he could not estimate how much cocaine Bias ingested, but he said it would be incorrect to label it an overdose.

The medical examiner said there was no evidence of any heart damage or disease. He said Bias had a large heart, but that "was not unexpected considering his superb athletic condition."

Smialek said there was no evidence that Bias was allergic to cocaine, but Bias exhibited a sensitivity to the drug.

"This particular concentration might not have killed another individual. On the other hand, some might have been killed by lesser concentrations," Smialek said.

Bias, made the second pick in the NBA draft on Tuesday by the Boston Celtics, had passed several physical exams prior to the draft.

The autopsy report showed the blood cocaine level was 6.5 milligrams per liter, Smialek said. There was no evidence of alcohol or other drugs.

He found no adulterants in the blood, indicating that Bias had ingested a pure form of cocaine. It appeared that Bias had snorted the cocaine, but that was not certain, Smialek said.

There had been reports of a delay of as much as 30 minutes before Bias' teammates summoned an ambulance to the Maryland dormitory where he collapsed. Smialek said Bias would have required medical care within four or five minutes of the time his heart stopped to save his life.

The necessary medical care would have been life support equipment or cardiopulmonary resuscitation administered by a professional, he said.

A teammate gave Bias cardiopulmonary resuscitation before the ambulance arrived.

Smialek said he could not be certain whether Bias had used cocaine previously. He said use of cocaine can produce changes in mucous membranes, and such changes were not evident in Bias.

Smialek ruled that the manner of death was undetermined, meaning there is no ruling whether it was a homicide or accident. The report is being sent to the prosecutor investigating Bias' death, Prince George's County State's Attorney Arthur A. Marshall Jr.

Marshall said Monday he wants to know "who brought them (drugs) in" and who was involved in drug use during the early morning hours last Thursday as Bias, some teammates and friends celebrated his selection by the champion Boston Celtics as the No. 2 pick in the NBA draft.

He said he expected to present his first witness in the Bias case to a grand jury next Tuesday.

Marshall said he was not pleased about the lack of cooperation from people who were with Bias from about 11:30 p.m. Wednesday until his death about 8:50 a.m. the next morning, but that he would still "like somebody to come forward and say, 'Hey, let me tell you what happened.'"

Marshall conferred Monday with Alan Goldstein, a lawyer who represents David Gregg and Terry Long, two teammates who were with Bias in the dorm room the morning he died.

Goldstein said Long and Gregg will appear before the grand jury if they are issued subpoenas and will testify if they are granted immunity.

Marshall said he is not prepared to grant immunity to anyone yet, but would consider immunity for someone who used drugs but didn't supply them.

Police are trying to locate Brian Tribble, a friend of Bias, and Tribble's roommate, Mark Fobbs, Marshall said. Some of Bias' teammates said he and Tribble drove to Washington D.C., several hours before his death.

Marshall described Tribble as having a criminal record involving minor theft but no involvement with drugs.

Marshall also had complaints about university officials, who he said "have not been as cooperative as law enforcement officials would like."

Among those the prosecutor would like to question is basketball coach Lefty Driesell, who reportedly called a meeting of the basketball team hours after Bias died to advise players how to respond to questions from police and the news media.

"I'd like to know what he knows about drugs on campus," Marshall said.

Asked if he thought Driesell's actions might lead to an indictment on some charge such as obstruction of justice, the prosecutor replied: "I don't think so."

Marshall said he also expected those subpoenaed in the investigation would include Maryland Athletic Director Dick Dull, football coach Bobby Ross and women's basketball coach Chris Weller. He has previously said the investigation would look at drug use campuswide.

Dull said university officials will "do everything we can to cooperate with him (Marshall). From what I gather, it (the proposed investigation) goes further than just the athletic department."

"Police have labeled Leonard's death as suspicious, so it's probably appropriate that the state's attorney convene the grand jury to investigate. A grand jury is a good vehicle to establish the truth," Dull said.

Marshall said he is convinced as a result of the initial inquiry that cocaine was in the room during the celebration even though the room was spotless when police first searched it.

"I don't think there is any question that the room where Bias died was sanitized," he said.

Marshall also said that a urine sample taken from Bias the morning he died showed traces of cocaine and that a field test, which he described as usually reliable, showed that a packet found in Bias' car contained cocaine.

He said, however, that he doesn't know what caused Bias' death and won't know if cocaine was a contributing factor until he gets a report from the state medical examiner in Baltimore.

Marshall's comments Monday came as two services were held for Bias at the University of Maryland in College Park.

Errors Costly As Pitt Loses To Wilson, 10-6

WILSON—Russell Best and Elliott Hicks drove in two runs apiece as Wilson Post 13 defeated Pitt County Post 39, 10-6, in American Legion baseball action Tuesday night.

Wilson took advantage of five Pitt errors to score six unearned runs off starting pitcher Tim Clark, Clark allowed nine runs in five innings before being replaced by Mike Burnham, who worked three innings and allowed one run on two hits.

Wilson pitcher Greg Lamm went the complete route in collecting the win. Lamm struck out nine and walked three and gave up 11 hits.

Best also scored three runs for Wilson, while Hicks rapped out two hits. Milo Popowitch and Doug Flowers also had two hits each for Wilson.

Shannon Peede rapped out three hits, including a double to lead Pitt County. Axel Smith, Bronswell Patrick and Larke Wetherington had two hits apiece for Pitt.

Wilson broke out in front in the bottom of the first inning with a three-run outburst and never trailed.

Popowitch lead off the inning with a single, moved to second on a passed ball and scored on an error. Doug Flowers reached on a fielder's choice, and Best and Jerry Smith walked to load the bases. With two outs, Hicks stroked a single to score Flowers and Best.

Pitt bounced back with two runs in the top of the second when Axel Smith singled and came around to score on a double by Peede. Peede then scored on a base hit by Wetherington to make the score 2-0.

The score remained at 3-2 until the bottom of the fifth when Wilson tallied four more runs to take a commanding 7-2 lead.

In the inning, Jay Lamm reached on an error and Flowers was hit by a pitch. Best followed with a double to score both runners. After Clark struck out Jerry Smith for the first out, Best scored on a throwing error, and Blair Bass drove in Johnny Hinant, who reached on an error.

Pitt clawed back again with two runs in the top of the sixth on consecutive singles by Axel Smith, Patrick and Peede. Peede drove home Smith, and Patrick scored on a grounder to make it 7-4.

Wilson put the game out of reach with three more runs on only two hits.

Jerry Smith and Flowers had RBI in the inning.

Pitt scored two runs in the top of the eighth on a double by Patrick and singles by Peede and Wetherington.

Pitt County outhit Wilson, 11-9, but got only two hits out of the top four places in the batting order. Shane Adams, Eric Jarman, Lee Hardee and Fred Bryant combined for a 2-19 night, including six strikeouts.

Pitt County, which fell to 7-8, hosts Goldsboro tonight at 8 p.m. at Harrington Field.

After tonight's game, Pitt closes out its season with home games on Monday night against Edenton and Tuesday night against Kinston.

Drug Death Shocks Sports World

By The Associated Press

With the death of All-American basketball player Len Bias attributed to cocaine, the war against drugs in sports is gaining momentum. But those who are trying to control it concede they are fighting a difficult battle.

"We try to every deterrent we can," LSU basketball Coach Dale Brown said Tuesday. "We purchase the most expensive drug detection equipment in the world, for blood and urine and skin samples, you name it."

"However, they've got the Berlin Wall around East Germany and they still get over the wall. They're still going to whip the system. There's nothing infallible."

Arkansas Athletic Director Frank Broyles called the death of the University of Maryland star "one of the most regrettable incidents that I can ever remember happening to a young athlete."

Broyles, an advocate of drug testing for college athletes, said the University of Arkansas has had such a program for four years. He said the program "has been as successful as any test like that can be."

Two Arkansas basketball players who tested positive for drug use late last season underwent rehabilitation at a Fayetteville, Ark., hospital. The players, junior William Mills and sophomore Kenny Hutchinson, lost their basketball scholarships but have been invited to remain with the team as walk-ons.

"There are lessons to be learned about the dangers of chemical dependence," Broyles said.

He said the NCAA is currently working with experts in formulating a policy to deal with drug use by college athletes.

"They're coming out with a policy that I think will have some positive effects on prevention," Broyles said.

In pro sports, the huge incomes of some young athletes had been a contributing factor, according to former Miami Dolphins running back Mercury Morris.

"When you are a person who is not used to a lot of money and all of a sudden millions of dollars are thrown about you, you tend to forget the responsibility of what sports is all about," said Morris, a former cocaine abuser who served a prison term on a drug conviction.

Morris, appearing on the ABC's "Nightline," said cocaine abuse is similar to alcohol abuse in many ways and offers as many unanswered questions.

"Why does a man drink when he knows he's had too many ... and then drive his car down the street?"

Boston Celtics president Red Auerbach, who appeared with Morris and Dr. Arnold Washton, founder of a national cocaine hotline, said he believes Bias — Boston's first draft choice in the NBA draft — was influenced into snorting cocaine.

"I think what happened, in all probability — and I'm just guessing — is that he was so elated at achieving a major goal in his life that he was tempted. They said, 'Hey, this one time.' And that's what happened."

Auerbach said he remains committed to establishing a rule in the NBA calling for unannounced drug testing at any time of the year.

"I don't care about invasion of privacy," he said.

Washton also said he advocates testing.

"In this case it could have saved a life," he said.

AL Races Are Heating Up

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer
The race in the American League West is as tight as it can be and the one in the AL East is getting closer. By defeating Texas 12-3 Tuesday night — their fifth win over the Rangers in nine days — the California Angels tied Texas for first place in the AL West. And by trouncing the Boston Red Sox for the second time in two nights — 8-1 — the New York Yankees climbed within four games of the Red Sox in the AL East. Rob Wilfong drove in four runs for California, three with a double in the Angels' six-run third inning. Ron Romanick, 5-5, allowed two runs in seven innings and benefited from a 13-hit California attack against Edwin Correa and three relievers. Correa, who lasted only three innings, was nicked for seven hits and eight runs. "When you get good pitching and a lot of offense you're going to beat most clubs," said California Manager Gene Mauch. "It was a kind of a strange game with all the hits we were getting. And based on their pitcher's stats (Correa came into the game with a 2.90 ERA and had allowed only 65 hits in 93 innings), you wouldn't expect that."

In other AL games, Oakland snapped a club-record 15-game road losing streak by defeating Kansas City 8-4, Baltimore nipped Detroit 2-1 in 10 innings, Minnesota edged Chicago 2-1, Toronto blanked Milwaukee 8-0 and Seattle shaded Cleveland 8-7.

The Rangers had taken a 1-0 lead against Romanick in the second inning on singles by Geno Petralli and Steve Buechele plus Curtis Wilkerson's double. But with one out in the Angels' third, Bob Boone singled, Gary Pettis walked and Ruppert Jones singled home the tying run.

Pettis scored on Wally Joyner's sacrifice and singles by Brian Downing and Reggie Jackson made it 3-1. After a walk to Doug DeCinces loaded the bases, Wilfong delivered his three-run double. The Angels continued the assault against Jeff Russell in the fourth, scoring three times on a wild pitch, Jones' sacrifice fly and a bases-loaded walk to Jackson.

Yankees 8, Red Sox 1
Ron Hassey equaled his career high with four hits — a home run, double and two singles — and drove in three runs while Dennis Rasmussen allowed six hits in 7 2-3 innings as the Yankees made it two straight over the Red Sox. They have amassed 19 runs and 31 hits in the first two games of the three-game series.

Hassey singled home New York's first run in the fifth inning against Rob Woodward and the go-ahead run scored on Willie Randolph's grounder. The Yankees wrapped it up with a four-run sixth, capped by Hassey's two-run homer, his fifth of the season.

"We came here with the idea we had to win this series," said New York Manager Lou Piniella. "Rasmussen and (Dave) Righetti pitched well, but the big thing is that the hitters have started to hit. We have started to get the hitting we thought all along we would get."

"It was very important to us to get solid back-to-back efforts," echoed Hassey, who had six consecutive hits. "I started playing a little when Butch (Wynegar) was hurt and I began getting my stroke down. I had been trying to go for home runs. However, I cut my swing down and now I'm just looking to drive in runs."

A's 8, Royals 4
Eric Plunk and Steve Ontiveros combined on a six-hitter. Plunk allowed three hits through 5 2-3 innings, walked six and struck out six as the A's won away from home for the first time since May 23. Meanwhile, the A's jumped on Bret Saberhagen, 4-8, for three runs in the third inning and two in the fourth.

Alfredo Griffin walked leading off the third and stole second. After Tony Phillips walked, Mike Davis doubled to score Griffin. Carney Lansford brought in Phillips with an infield out and Davis scored when Saberhagen balked. In the fourth, Griffin had an RBI grounder and Jerry Willard delivered the first of his two RBI singles.

Orioles 2, Tigers 1
It was a brilliant pitching duel for nine innings between Baltimore's Scott McGregor, who allowed three hits in 8 2-3 innings, and Detroit's Eric King, who held the Orioles to a pair of hits in nine innings.

In the 10th, Bill Campbell relieved King and retired the first two batters. But Lee Lacy doubled and O'Malley singled him home.

Twins 2, White Sox 1
Allan Anderson pitched a three-hitter — the fewest hits allowed by a Minnesota pitcher this season — for his first major-league victory while Mark Salas singled home the tying run in the seventh inning and scored the winner on Greg Gagne's grounder. Anderson, a 22-year-old left-hander who was called up from the minors earlier this month, walked three and struck out nine. In his first two appearances he had allowed eight runs and 16 hits in 15 innings.

Blue Jays 8, Brewers 0
Rookie John Cerutti pitched a six-hitter for his first major-league shutout and George Bell, one of five Blue Jays to have two hits, had a two-run homer. Cerutti struck out four and walked two. Loser Teddy Higuera, who came into the game with a 9-5 record and 2.21 ERA, lasted only 2 2-3 innings. He allowed four runs on eight hits and suffered his earliest exit of the season.

Mariners 8, Indians 7
Jim Presley drove in the tying and winning runs with a ninth-inning double. Trailing 7-6 going into the bottom of the ninth, John Moses drew a leadoff walk from reliever Ernie Camacho. Phil Bradley, who earlier hit a three-run homer, also walked and Gorman Thomas sacrificed. Presley then sliced his double to right field, just beyond the reach of rookie Cory Snyder.

Cruz Set To Bask In Limelight After Upsetting McGuigan

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — "Be careful because once you get it, everybody wants it," Richie Sandoval, a former bantamweight champion, told Stevie Cruz.

What the 22-year-old Cruz got Monday night was what almost everybody expected Barry McGuigan of Ireland to keep — the World Boxing Association featherweight championship.

"It hasn't sunk in," the 22-year-old Cruz of Fort Worth, Texas, said Tuesday. "It'll take a week to sink in that I'm a champion."

Cruz, who got his title shot only after it was discovered that the scheduled challenger, Fernando Sosa of Argentina, had two detached retinas, said he would be happy to give the 25-year-old McGuigan a rematch.

"I don't know about Ireland, but maybe England," Cruz said. Then he added, "If the money is right, I'll fight anywhere."

Cruz's purse Monday night was $70,000.

But before a rematch, Cruz apparently will have to make a mandatory defense against Antonio Esparagoza of Venezuela. McGuigan was to have defended against Esparagoza in September or October.

McGuigan also could retire or move up to the junior lightweight.

"I may retire, I may," said McGuigan in answer to a question.

"A funny thing happened on the Caesars Palace," McGuigan joked at a news conference Tuesday at the hotel.

The former champion, who said the 110-degree heat as a major factor in his defeat, had spent the night at Valley Hospital.

McGuigan and his manager, Barney Eastwood, didn't think referee Richard Steele fairly warned the fighter before deducting a point for low blows in the 12th round.

But the Irishman, who was knocked down once in the 10th round and twice in the 15th, could have kept the title by staying on his feet in the final round.

Two judges scored the 15th round 10-7 for Cruz, and a third scored it 10-8 for Cruz. If McGuigan had the lost round 10-9 on the three cards, he would have kept the title on a draw.

McGuigan said he would relax with his family for a few days before returning to Ireland and would make a decision about whether to continue fighting in about five months.

Cruz said he plans to return to his $6.50-an-hour job as a plumber's helper in a couple of weeks, but first wants to take his 15-year-old wife, Terry Ann, on a proper honeymoon.

While McGuigan's boxing future was clouded by Cruz, Roberto Duran's status as a major fighter was ended by Robbie Sims.

The 35-year-old Panamanian had come out of retirement to try for a rematch with middleweight champion Marvelous Marvin Hagler in hopes of becoming the first man to win four titles.

Sims, Hagler's brother, earned a 10-round split decision over Duran by winning the last round.

Duran said he might continue to fight.

In the third fight on the tripleheader, which was shown on pay-per-view and closed-circuit television in the United States and Canada, Thomas Hearns toyed with Mark Medal before stopping him in the eighth round of a World Boxing Council super welterweight title defense.

Many in the crowd of some 10,000 at a 15,000-seat outdoor arena booed Hearns, who knocked down Mark Medal.

Hearns, who said he hurt his right hand in the second round, is hoping for a rematch with Marvelous Marvin Hagler, the undisputed middleweight champion who knocked out Hearns in the third round April 15, 1985.

CRYPTOQUIP

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: FULL, LENIENT PRISON USES THE SOFT-CELL APPROACH.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: B equals O

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

FOCUS

Man's Inhumanity

This crowd turned out for the recent Amnesty International Rock Concert in East Rutherford, New Jersey, to benefit political prisoners around the world. Unfortunately, politically motivated torture is not unique to the twentieth century. It was commonplace in Greece and Rome. The thumbscrew and the rack were used to root out heresy in medieval Europe. But Hippolytus of Marseille practiced what he called "humane" torture — forbidding the victim to sleep.

Opening lead: King of ♠

Sometimes there are more urgent uses for trumps than ruffing. They can be the only line of communication between dummy and declarer. A thoughtless declarer would be defeated in quick time on this example.

South's hand was too strong for a simple overcall, so he elected to double at his first turn and then bid spades at his next. Once a fit was located and North showed some values, South decided he stood to gain little from a double of five clubs, and so he persevered with five spades. (As the cards lie, North-South can collect five tricks against five clubs doubled.)

West led the king of his partner's first-bid suit and continued with another diamond. Declarer ruffed and, if trumps were 2-1, the contract was unbeatable. It would seem, therefore, that declarer should draw at least one round of trumps.

However, declarer saw that, if trumps were 3-0, he could not afford even one round of trumps, because he would be an entry short in his hand to ruff both of his heart losers. And the bad spade division was not too unlikely since East probably held 10 cards in the minor suits and he had to have some hearts—West would have bid differently with an eight-card heart suit!

So at trick three declarer carefully led a heart to the ace. When that held, the contract became iron-clad regardless of how the trumps broke.

Declarer used two high trumps as entries for two heart ruffs—East's spade void bothered him not. The ace of clubs permitted declarer to return to hand to draw the last trump, and he cheerfully conceded a club to the defenders as their second and last trick.

Sponsors Pay $30 Million For Ads On Liberty TV

By SKIP WOLLENBERG
 AP Business Writer
 NEW YORK (AP) — The ABC television network says 18 sponsors have paid about $30 million for commercial time during its special coverage of the Liberty Weekend celebration that begins a week from today.

The biggest chunks of commercial time on ABC's broadcast of Liberty Weekend were purchased by Prudential Insurance Co. of America, K mart Corp., Chrysler Corp. and International Business Machines Corp.

ABC paid $10 million for the rights to broadcast activities in honor of the Statue of Liberty's centennial and plans to spend several million more to produce 17½ hours of Liberty programming July 2-6.

Network officials said Tuesday that all 144½ minutes of Liberty commercial time were sold out about two weeks in advance of the events.

"From the outset, the advertising community was enthusiastic to be a part of this," said Robert J. Cagliero, vice president for ABC Television's special program sales.

The programming ranges from President Reagan's ceremonial unveiling of the renovated Statue of Liberty and the induction of new citizens on nearby Ellis Island to an awards ceremony for 12 naturalized citizens including Irving Berlin and Bob Hope and musical salutes from the Boston Pops and the New York Philharmonic.

Thirty-second units of time sold for an average of about $165,000 in prime evening viewing hours and an average of $30,000 in daytime, Cagliero said.

Both prices represented a considerable premium over what advertisers are paying for time during regular programming and were in line with the network's expectations, he said.

During normal programming, advertisers have been paying more than $100,000 on average for a 30-second commercial in prime time and between $10,000 and $25,000 in daytime, industry officials say.

Among the ads that Prudential plans to run is a specially designed 30-second spot called "Immigrants."

The ad, which was created by the agency Ted Bates Worldwide, is designed to illustrate the company's heritage as an insurer of working people and recent movement into other financial services, said spokesman Richard Matthews.

K mart, the nation's second largest retailer, plans to use the 13½ minutes it bought to kick off its new ad theme, "K mart: America's favorite store," spokeswoman Teri Kula said.

Spokesmen for Chrysler and IBM said neither company had created any special commercials for use during Liberty Weekend programming. Chrysler's Lee Iacocca has served as chairman of the Statue of Liberty-Ellis Island Foundation, which raised more than $250 million for restoring the statue and developing Ellis Island.

Regional Dishes On The Rise

Grits: They May Help South Rise Again ...

By RON RUGGLESS
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

With the rediscovery of regional cuisine, grits have developed a whole new character, as have many other classic dishes from south of the Mason-Dixon Line. Punched up with cream and Parmesan cheese, grits can earn the respect of the most discriminating gourmet or provincial Northerner.

As Dixie joins the growing ranks of nouvelle regional cuisines, the South just may rise again, avenging its losses at Vicksburg with its vittles. The heavy comfort foods of the South, where nearly everything that could be fried was, are becoming lighter and more palatable to more people. Though some traditions will not, and should not, change — like a wonderfully sticky, saccharine peach cobbler — others benefit handsomely from modern techniques that lighten up the traditional foods — such as a pot roast marinated in lemon and lime juices, which were used to enhance the rich beef flavor of the meat, rather than hiding it in a thick, heavy gravy. Another example is the use of turnip greens, lightly blanched, in soup rather than in a fat-laden preparation of greens and fatback.

Helping lead Southern cuisine out of Tara and to today's table is Nathalie Dupree, director of the cooking school at Rich's department store in Atlanta and teacher on a Georgia public television show that uses recipes from her cookbook, "Cooking of the South" ($9.45; Irena Chalmers Cookbooks Inc.).

Ms. Dupree, raised in Virginia and schooled at the Cordon Bleu in London, has taken ordinary Southern ingredients and broadened their appeal, borrowing from classic French to Far Eastern techniques and flavors.

"I grew up with Southern cooking," Ms. Dupree said. "When I was away from the South, I missed the green beans and fatback."

"But it took me a couple of years to realize that here was a cuisine that nobody was recording, that was every bit as good as any other cuisine."

"There's such a stereotype in Southern cooking — turnip greens and fatback, that sort of stuff — if people ever get to eat them, they grow to like them. Others will just avoid them because they're unfamiliar."

Grits With Parmesan Cream

- 1-2 cup quick grits
- 2 cups heavy cream
- 2 to 3 tablespoons butter
- Salt

Freshly ground white pepper
1-2 cup freshly grated Parmesan, Swiss or Monterey Jack cheese
Stir together the grits and cream in a heavy saucepan. Cover, bring to a boil, and cook for 5 minutes, stirring occasionally, being careful not to burn. Remove from heat, taste and add butter, salt and pepper, then stir in the cheese.

This dish may be made ahead and then reheated over low heat or in a microwave oven. Serves 4.

TURNIP AND GINGER SOUP

- 4 tablespoons butter
- 4 tablespoons sliced scallion, white part only
- 5 cups chicken broth
- 1 hot pepper, optional
- Dash of hot sauce or Tabasco
- 1-2 pound white turnips, sliced
- 1-2 pound turnip greens, stemmed and sliced into 1-inch pieces
- 1 or 2 tablespoons grated or chopped fresh ginger
- 1 tablespoon soy sauce
- Salt
- 4 tablespoons sliced scallion top

Heat the butter, add the white part of the scallions and cook over moderate heat for 3 minutes. Add the chicken broth and hot pepper, if using, and bring to a boil.

Meanwhile, place the turnip slices in a small pot of cold water, bring to a boil, and boil for 2 to 3 minutes if small, 5 to 10 minutes if large.

Bring a large quantity of water to a boil in a separate pot and add the sliced turnip greens. Cook 1 minute, then drain. Add the turnips and turnip greens to the boiling broth along with 1 tablespoon of the grated or chopped ginger. Simmer 8 to 10 minutes. Remove from the heat, taste for seasoning, add the soy sauce, salt, pepper and more ginger if you like.

Top with the scallion green tops just before serving. Serve hot. Serves 6.

POT ROAST WITH LEMON-LIME AND TOMATO SAUCE

- 1 chuck roast (3 pounds)
- 2 cloves garlic, chopped
- 2 lemons, juiced and the rind zested (finely grated), and zest reserved
- 3 limes, juiced and zested, and zest reserved
- 4 tablespoons drippings, or butter and oil mixed
- 12 ounces of beef broth or canned beef bouillon

Cajun Chicken Is The One

No self-respecting picnic would be complete without chicken, and Crispy Cajun Chicken is sure to be a favorite.

Prepared from skinless chicken and baked instead of fried, it boasts a crispy crumb coating secured by a mixture of salad dressing and Cajun seasonings. The versatile salad dressing helps to seal in the chicken's moisture as it bakes and adds its own unique flavor appeal as well.

Make room on your picnic blanket for Summer Garden Salad, a creative and colorful melange of fresh vegetables in a creamy dressing that combines salad dressing and dill.

Add a loaf of crusty bread and beverage and your picnic is as easy as summer cooking should be.

French Chefs Do Slow Burn Over Others' Use Of Their Recipes

By SUZY PATTERSON
Associated Press Writer
PARIS (AP) — French chefs are doing a slow burn at seeing their recipes reproduced without credit in France and all over the world. Many would like to form a kind of society for the protection of authorship, or maybe "chef-ship."

It would be based on legal principles similar to those which protect music writers. SACEM in France and ASCAP — The American Society of Composers and Publishers — assure that musical pieces may not be performed without credit and royalties to authors.

Alain Senderens, three-star chef and owner of Paris' Lucas Carton, said: "Our work should be patented. We're copied indiscriminately even in France. After all, even in the fourth century B.C., Greek chefs did not steal ideas from one another. Each rich house had its own secret recipes."

"I've seen my own invention, fried celery, in several places," he said. "Composers can be protected against plagiarism, why not us?"

Jacques Maximin of the famed Chantecler Restaurant in the Negresco Hotel in Nice, agreed. "I've had it up to here," he said. He is indignant at finding others' menus listing "fleur de courgette," which he claims he invented. It is a dish that consists of stuffed, braised zucchini flowers.

"We're not so interested in the money," said Michel Guerard, famous for inventing Minceur Cuisine (diet cooking) in his restaurant at Eugenie-les-Bains in southwest France.

"My salade gourmande with foie gras, crayfish and truffles has been copied all over the world. Some of my friends, however, have added my name to their menus if they use the recipe. That's courteous."

He feels that only a few recipes are invented yearly by creative chefs, and that it's too bad when French chefs working in America, for example, come to France to find new ideas and then pass them off back at their restaurants as their own dishes.

"We're not trying to start a 'war,'" he said, "just get matters back on a moral and maybe legal basis in the food world."

About 40 other top chefs here agree but are not sure about how to organize such a copyright system. Others are downright dubious.

"We'd look pretty ridiculous getting too picky about these things," said Jean-Pierre Morot-Gaudry, who owns a top restaurant near the Eiffel Tower. "Recipes always turn out differently anyhow, depending on the chef's personal preference."

"It's one thing to sue for plagiarism if a recipe in a book is copied word for word, but food you eat in a restaurant is always different according to how a chef interprets an idea."

Julia Child, America's queen of cuisine, expressed the same doubts. Speaking from Santa Barbara, Calif., where she is working on her seventh cookbook, she said, "The chefs of course have a point in being disturbed that others copy their ideas."

"Cookbooks are one thing. Recipes are right down there in black and white and may not be copied. But food you eat? You can't copyright that. It's in the public domain. It would be nice, however, if chefs gave credit to others who have created recipes they use."

Dominique Nahmias, owner of Olympe restaurant and considered Paris' top creative woman chef, thinks copyrighting restaurant dishes is downright silly.

"It's even dangerous for cuisine," she said. "If you start saying that such and such a dish belongs to one chef only and must be credited and paid for on a copyright basis, creativity will be totally strangled in a legal straitjacket."

"Most basic dishes were invented long ago, and the new twists are given by each chef. Italians invented ravioli."

Grits ...

16-ounce can tomatoes, preferably chopped
2 tablespoons all-purpose flour, optional
1 tablespoon dried or fresh rosemary
1 tablespoon chopped lemon balm, lemon grass or lemon thyme, optional

Place the roast in a pan with the garlic, lemon and lime juices. Marinate several hours or overnight in the refrigerator. Remove the meat from the marinade, reserving the marinade, and pat dry with paper towels.

Heat the drippings in a large oven-proof casserole and brown the meat on all sides. Pour the broth over the meat, add the marinade and bring to a boil. Reduce to a simmer, cover the pot and continue to cook for 1 1/2 hours.

When the roast is tender, remove it from the casserole and keep warm. Skim the fat from the top of the liquid remaining in the casserole, add the chopped tomatoes and boil all together until thickened — about 15 minutes. You may add flour to thicken the sauce, if necessary.

Slice the meat and add to the sauce with the herbs. Heat through and serve hot, topped with the reserved lemon and lime zests. Serves 6.

STEWED TOMATO CONSERVE

2 pounds fresh tomatoes, skinned and quartered, or 2 cans (1 pound each) of tomatoes with juice

1-2 cup cider vinegar
1-4 cup sugar
Salt

Freshly ground pepper
Mix the ingredients in a heavy saucepan. Simmer until the mixture is thick enough to cling to a spoon. If you want, add more sugar to make it sweeter.

FRUIT COBBLER

8 tablespoons butter
1 cup self-rising flour
1 cup milk
1 cup sugar
2 cups sliced fresh peaches (or whatever fruit is in season)

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. While the oven is heating, place butter in a 9- by 13-inch pan and put it in the oven to melt the butter.

While the butter is melting, mix flour, milk and sugar in a medium-sized bowl.

Remove the pan from the oven and pour the mixture over the butter. Distribute the fruit and its juices evenly over the batter.

Return the pan to the oven and bake for 30 to 35 minutes until browned.

The cobbler may be served plain, or with whipped cream or vanilla ice cream.

Buffet Style

Desserts

L.A. Times-Washington Post News Service
A special meal deserving an elaborate ending. Whether it's an elegant sit-down dinner or a casual backyard barbecue, a sumptuous selection of show-off desserts makes any menu memorable.
When the occasion calls for something more than a favorite dessert standby, a serve-yourself buffet or homemade sweet treats is ideal. The keys to success for this grand finale are to look to recipes that can be made well in advance, and to include a special something for every taste.

Three or four desserts will fill the bill. At least one should boast America's favorite flavor — chocolate. Another might showcase the season's finest fresh fruits. And, for those people to whom dessert can mean only one thing, be sure to include a cheesecake.

A chocolate conclusion to a meal is always welcome, and Orange-Filled Chocolate Cups are sure to reate rave reviews. Far simpler to prepare than their fancy appearance indicates, the cups are prepared by coating the inside of paper-lined muffin cups with a mixture of melted chocolate pieces and margarine. The light-as-a-cloud orange-flavored filling boasts a rich cheesecake-like flavor and texture.
Rising impressively, four layers high. Banana-Strawberry Cream Torte is a show stopper. The cake boasts the rich flavor of "Philly" cream cheese and mashed banana for tender, extra-moist texture, and the whipped cream/cream cheese filling is layered delectably with fresh fruit.

Cocoa Cheesecake Supreme is a chocolate lover's dream come true. The chocolate crumb crust boasts a smooth, rich cocoa filling, and an easy raspberry topping sauces it smartly.
For those who favor fresh fruit, Lemon Dream Dessert will be a favorite. The light and airy lemon flavored base is made ahead and topped impressively with the cook's choice of colorful seasonal fruit.

BEEF RIBS — Perfect for summertime barbecues.

Barbecue — It's An American Tradition

By NANCY BYAL
Better Homes and Gardens

From New England clambake to southwestern beef ribs, barbecue is one of our great American traditions. Happily, it's a tradition that allows plenty of room for regional and personal creativity. The type of fire, what to put into the sauce and when to brush on the sauce can provoke endless debate among barbecuers. Outdoor cooking enthusiasts across the country agree on only one thing: the barbecue served in their locale is best.

1 tablespoon chili powder
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

Place ribs in a Dutch oven; cover with water. Add rosemary, bay leaf, and garlic. Bring to boiling; reduce heat. Simmer, covered, about 1 1/2 hours or until meat is tender, drain.

Meanwhile prepare sauce: In a small skillet cook onion and green pepper in oil until tender. Stir in tomato sauce, jelly, vinegar, chili powder, and Worcestershire. Bring to boiling; reduce heat. Simmer, covered, 15 minutes.

In a covered grill arrange preheated coals around a drip pan; test for slow heat above pan. Place ribs on grill over pan but not over coals; cover. Grill 20 to 25 minutes, turning and brushing occasionally with the sauce. Serves 4.

Knowing Why You Eat Is Important In Controlling Diet

By REDBOOK
A Hearst Magazine

For women caught in the fat trap, it is not what they eat but why they eat it that counts.

Food has a temporary mood-altering effect, according to Richard Stuart and Barbara Jacobson in the July issue of Redbook, and most overweight women eat because they are bored, frustrated or depressed — not because they are hungry.

Stuart, a professor of family and community medicine at the University of Utah, and his wife, Ms. Jacobson, a doctoral candidate at Utah, say food is a mood-enhancer because it provides the three C's — comfort, control and coping.

"The overweight women we've counseled usually admit they depend on food to meet all three of these important emotional needs," they wrote. "So before a woman can lose weight and keep it off, she must understand the psychological uses she makes of food."

They said she must be aware of the three major appetite triggers — boredom, stress and depression.

"Years of counseling overweight women have convinced us that as long as eating is the best means a woman has to cope with her negative emotions, we're being unrealistic, even cruel, to ask her to give it up," the husband-wife team wrote.

To help a woman pinpoint the source of her unhappiness they ask her to keep a diary, noting for each hour of the week what she was doing and how she felt. The diary helps identify troubling situations and figure out how to change them.

Women who are bored can find ways to make their lives more interesting — take courses, start a physical fitness program, join a club, find a job or do volunteer work.

They cited a woman who regularly bakes, who made extra loaves of bread and traded them for piano lessons; another woman exchanged Spanish lessons for baby-sitting.

The woman who is overwhelmed and eats to overcome stress must learn to reduce stress. Again, she can make a list of all the regular demands on her, then pick out the essential ones and eliminate or modify the others.

It is important to set priorities, to differentiate among "absolutely essential," "fairly important" and "nice to do if time permits." If a woman accepts the fact that some jobs won't get done for weeks, months, or even years, she will not feel constant pressure that pushes her to compensate by overeating.

Depression may be the hardest to overcome because depressed women often feel unable to change their lives. Stuart and Ms. Jacobson ask such women what they would be doing if they were not depressed — and suggest they start such new activity immediately.

The experts advise women to develop a plan of action to cope with those problems that cannot be avoided.

"To fight boredom, for example," they wrote, "we urge women to turn to diversions that don't involve food: friends to call or write, fascinating books and articles to read, and other enjoyable pastimes that don't include eating."

Physical activity such as bike riding or walking burns away stress, they said, and hot baths and relaxation exercises are also therapeutic. Almost any pursuit that helps build a sense of control and self-esteem will combat the feeling of helplessness that is the essential element of depression.

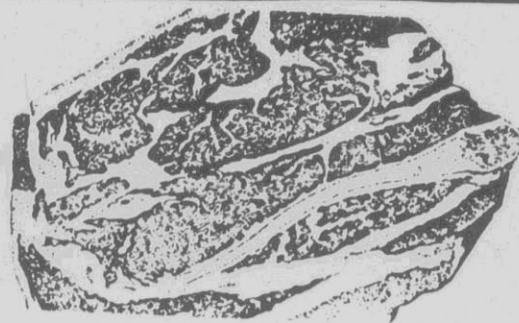

"For any woman who wants to fight the fat trap," they said, "we urge patience and fortitude. Habits are hard to change, and everyone inevitably backslides sometimes. But if a woman shifts her attention to an examination of the situations that make her want to overeat, she will be able to find more satisfying solutions to her problems than food."

HONOLULU (AP) — A federal judge has affirmed a ruling that allows former Philippines President Ferdinand Marcos to be questioned in connection with the murder of two political opponents in Seattle in 1981. U.S. District Judge Harold M. Fong affirmed Magistrate Daral Conklin's order denying a motion to quash a subpoena. Fong said Marcos cannot claim a blanket privilege against testifying. However, he said Marcos can claim privileges against incriminating himself or jeopardizing national security in the Philippines. Marcos' attorney, Richard Hibe, had claimed that Marcos is still president of the Philippines and entitled to immunity.

The families of Silme Domingo and Gene Viernes claim that Marcos and Gen. Fabian Ver, former head of the Philippine armed forces, ordered and paid for the murders.

Strawberries: The Best Of The Crop

By NANCY BYAL
Better Homes and Gardens

For my money, strawberries are one of the best things about spring. When I was growing up, my brothers and I looked forward to the first strawberry shortcake of the season almost as much as we anticipated the last day of school.

Although they're available year round, the juicy red berries are at their peak right now. When you look for fresh strawberries at the store, choose those with stem caps attached. Berry size is not an indication of quality; the biggest berries may be the most tempting but are not necessarily the most flavorful.

Strawberry-Lemon Pie is a Sunday-best strawberry dessert. Sliced berries top a rich lemon pudding layer. If you don't have the 10-inch flan pan called for in the recipe, you can use a 9-inch pie plate instead.

The Recipe

STRAWBERRY-LEMON PIE

Pastry for 1-crust 9-inch pie

- 1/2 cup granulated sugar
- 4 teaspoons cornstarch
- 1/2 cup water
- 1 beaten egg yolk
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 3 tablespoons lemon juice
- 3 cups sliced fresh strawberries
- 2 3-ounce packages cream cheese, softened
- 1/4 cup sifted powdered sugar
- 1-3rd cup coconut
- 3/4 cup whipping cream
- 1/4 cup coconut, toasted

On a floured surface roll pastry to a 12-inch circle. Fit into 10-inch flan pan with removable bottom, pressing dough against sides. Trim excess dough even with pan. Prick shell. Bake in a 450-degree oven for 10 to 12 minutes. Cool.

In a saucepan combine granulated sugar and cornstarch. Add water, egg yolk, and butter or margarine. Cook and stir until thickened and bubbly; cook 2 minutes more. Remove from heat. Stir in lemon juice. Turn into baked shell. Cool. Top with sliced berries.

In small mixer bowl beat together cream cheese and powdered sugar. Fold in the 1-3rd cup coconut. In another bowl beat whipping cream to soft peaks; fold into cream cheese mixture until combined. Spread on top of the berries. Sprinkle with the toasted coconut. Chill 4 hours or overnight. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Cold Avocado Soup Looks, Tastes Good

L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

Cold Avocado Soup is probably the most beautiful looking soup in the world. Texture and color are perfect and flavor is excellent but it must be blended carefully, tasted and reseasoned. Ripe avocados are bland, so your stock and the rest of your ingredients have to be highly seasoned.

Canned chicken broth is fine, but do taste and do not dilute as much as the recipe instructs until you are sure it is intensely flavored.

Cold Avocado Soup

- 3 large ripe avocados
- 1 cup heavy cream
- 1/2 tsp. mashed garlic
- 6 cups chicken broth (use 3 1 1/2 oz. cans and add water to measure 6 cups)

- 1/2 cup sour cream
- 2 tbsp. dry sherry
- Chill soup plates or consommé cups

Peel avocados and mash with a fork on a chilled platter. Season heavy cream with mashed garlic. Add seasoned cream to mashed avocados slowly and combine thoroughly.

Chill chicken broth in serving bowl or tureen and stir in the mashed creamed avocado. Correct seasoning. Add salt if needed.

Stir sherry into sour cream. Serve soup with a dollop of sherryed sour cream sprinkled with Mexican paprika. Pass the garlic croutons and perhaps fresh lime wedges. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Chicken Breasts Veracruz Style

- 4 chicken breasts, skinned and halved
- Flour, seasoned with salt, pepper and paprika
- 1/2 cup oil (half olive oil and half vegetable oil)

- 1 16 oz. can Italian-style canned tomatoes
- 2 tbsp. tomato paste
- 1 onion, thinly sliced
- 1/4 tsp. ground cloves
- 1/2 tsp. ground Mexican cinnamon (canela), use cloves if not available

- 2 bay leaves
- Salt and pepper
- 1 tsp. sugar
- 4 garlic buds, mashed
- Strips of jalapeno chile
- 1/4 cup stuffed green olives

Dust the chicken pieces with the seasoned flour, or better still, put flour in paper bag and shake chicken pieces in bag 3 or 4 at a time until evenly coated.

Heat half the oil mixture in a large skillet, and saute the chicken pieces on both sides until golden. Set aside and keep warm.

Puree the tomatoes with the tomato paste in blender, and strain.

Add the remainder of the oil to the skillet, saute the onion, and add the strained tomato mixture. Add the spices and bay leaves and cook, stirring, for about 5 minutes. Correct seasoning and add the sugar and mashed garlic buds.

Place chicken in baking dish and pour sauce over it. Add a few jalapeno strips and 1/4 cup stuffed green olives and bake, covered for 30 minutes in 325 degree oven. Remove bay leaves before serving. Serve with boiled small potatoes rolled in butter and chopped parsley, and garlic toast. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Green Rice

This sumptuous dish may be served with any of the chile con carnes be they green sauced or red. Green rice is handsome and awakens the taste buds on sight. If you bring it to the table with guacamole on the side and serve it with a platter of fried chicken, you will have produced a fiesta meal with hardly any effort.

To make this dish, you'll need the following ingredients:

- 1/8 cup vegetable oil
- 1 cup rice
- 2 large poblano chiles, tops removed, seeded and cut into fourths
- 1 cup fresh cilantro (Chinese parsley) leaves
- 3 mashed garlic cloves
- 1/2 onion, sliced
- 2 tsp. chicken bouillon granules
- Salt and pepper
- 1 cup frozen peas and carrots
- 1 tsp. butter

In a dutch oven, with a tight-fitting lid, heat oil and saute rice.

In blender, puree chiles, cilantro leaves, garlic and onion with 2 cups of hot water. Strain over the sauteed rice. Add chicken bouillon granules and stir until dissolved. Add salt and pepper to taste. Cover and cook for 20 to 25 minutes until rice is tender.

In small saucepan cook frozen peas and carrots in slightly salted water for 1 minute. Drain. Add 1 tsp. butter and garnish rice with them. To add more color, add a few slices of canned pimentos.

NOTE: Should you think the poblano chiles you are using are too hot, look further for two milder ones. If you can't find milder type, then use only one of the poblano chiles and added a drop or two of green food coloring to the blender mixture.

Granola Bars Ideal As Snack

By ROSE DOSTI
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

Dear SOS: I lost my recipe for Granola Bars. Can you help? — NANCY
Dear Nancy: Certainly. And what a good snack for children out of school.

GRANOLA BARS

- 6 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1-2 cup brown sugar, packed
- 1-4 cup honey
- 1 egg
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 cup flour
- 1-2 teaspoon baking powder
- 1-2 teaspoon salt
- 1-4 teaspoon baking soda
- 1 1-2 cups bite-size crispy bran squares, crushed to 1-2 cup
- 1-2 cup raisins
- 1-2 cup flaked coconut
- 1-4 cup plus 3 tablespoons sunflower nuts
- 2 tablespoons sesame seeds

Cream together butter and brown sugar. Beat in honey, egg and vanilla. Stir together flour, baking powder, salt, baking soda and bran squares. Add to creamed mixture.

Stir in raisins, coconut and 1-4 cup sunflower nuts. Spread evenly in greased 13- by 9-inch baking pan. Sprinkle sesame seeds and remaining 3 tablespoons sunflower nuts evenly over top. Bake at 350 degrees 15 to 20 minutes or until tester inserted in center comes out clean and top is lightly browned. Cool. Cut into bars. Makes 24 bars.

Dear SOS: My all-time favorite dish is the kung pao chicken from Lotus West in Los Angeles. Please obtain the recipe. I'm sure your readers would enjoy it, too. — BEVERLY

Dear Beverly: The Lotus West people graciously sent the recipe, which we have tested and enjoyed too. Kung pao chicken happens to be one of the restaurant's most popular dishes.

LOTUS WEST KUNG PAO CHICKEN

- 2 whole chicken breasts, boned, skinned and cut into 1-2-inch cubes
- 1 egg white
- 1 teaspoon cornstarch
- 4 cups oil for deep-frying
- 1-3 cup skinless roasted peanuts
- 5 to 10 whole dried red chiles
- 2 green onions, cut into 1-3-inch lengths
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- Chili Sauce

Combine chicken, egg white and cornstarch. Mix well by hand. Heat oil to smoking hot. Deep-fry chicken until almost cooked. Remove and drain on paper towels. Reheat oil. Add peanuts and cook over medium heat until golden brown. Remove with strainer and drain. Cool.

Dear SOS: I am looking for a recipe called Waikiki meatballs. This particular recipe contains catsup and ginger in it. Do you have it? — CARLA

Dear Carla: Not as such. But why don't you try this one and see if it will work.

WAIKIKI (SORT OF) MEATBALLS

- 1 1-2 pounds ground beef, pork or ham
- 1 egg
- 2 tablespoons pineapple juice or syrup
- 2 slices bread, crumbled
- 1-4 cup grated onion
- 1-4 cup soy sauce
- 1-2 teaspoon ground ginger
- 1-2 cup catsup

Dear SOS: Help, I am desperate. I have lost (or lent to a friend) my absolute favorite chocolate cheesecake recipe that I got from you around a year ago. I hope you can dig it up for me. I think it was from some Hollywood restaurant. — PATTI

Dear Patti: You are right. It was from Robert's Hollywood Grille and it certainly is a terrific chocolate cheesecake.

ROBERT'S HOLLYWOOD GRILLE DARK CHOCOLATE CHEESECAKE

- 1 pound semisweet chocolate pieces, melted
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1 cup fresh coffee beverage
- 2 (8-ounce) packages cream cheese
- 1 (1-pound) carton sour cream
- 1-2 cup sugar
- 4 eggs
- 2 teaspoons vanilla
- Graham Cracker Crust

Melt chocolate with butter and coffee until smooth. Beat cream cheese until soft. Beat in chocolate mixture, sour cream, sugar, eggs and vanilla. Turn into prepared Graham Cracker Crust. Bake at 300 degrees 2 hours or until wood pick inserted in center of cake comes out clean. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Graham Cracker Crust

- 1 cup crushed graham crackers
- 1-4 cup sugar
- 1-4 cup butter or margarine

Combine crushed graham crackers and sugar in bowl. Work in butter until crumbly. Press into greased 10-inch springform pan.

Coconut Cake

- 5 egg whites
- 2 1/4 cups cake flour, 1 tsp baking center
- 2 cups sugar, 1/2 cup margarine or butter, softened
- 1/2 cup vegetable oil
- 5 egg yolks, slightly beaten
- 1 cup buttermilk, 1 tsp coconut extract
- 1/2 tsp vanilla
- 1 pkg. (7 oz.) flaked coconut (2 2/3 cups)
- 2 cups flaked coconut
- PREHEAT oven to 325 degrees F.

BEAT egg whites in medium bowl on high speed until stiff peaks form. Beat remaining ingredients except frosting and 2 cups coconut in large bowl on low speed 30 seconds, scraping bowl occasionally. Fold egg whites into batter. Pour into 3 greased and floured round pans, 8x1 1/2.

Bake until wooden pick inserted in center comes out clean, about 40 min.; cool 10 min. Remove from pans; cool cake completely.

Fill layers and frost side and top of cake with Coconut-Cream Cheese Frosting, sprinkling 1/3 cup coconut on frosting on each layer and remaining coconut on side and top. Store frosted cake in refrigerator.

Coconut-Cream Cheese Frosting

- 3 1/2 cups powdered sugar (about 1 lb.)
 - 1/2 cup margarine or butter, softened
 - 1 tsp. coconut extract, 1 pkg (8 oz.) cream cheese, softened.
- Beat all ingredients until smooth and of spreading consistency.

300 American Wines Vie for Restaurant Association Honors

By NATHAN CHROMAN
Special to the Los Angeles Times
Three hundred American wines from 15 states competed for honors recently at the National Restaurant Association second annual Wine Classic in Chicago.

Wine types were limited to Sauvignon Blanc, Seyval Blanc, Zinfandel and Zinfandel Blanc Blush. Ted Balestreri, immediate past president of the association, in a determined bid to make the nation's restaurateurs more aware of the grape, required the judging to be held in an open setting. Judges evaluated, swirled and sipped before thousands of visitors. Onlooking restaurateurs swirled and sipped, too, as part of Balestreri's goal of demystifying the judging process. Next year a wine pavilion will be placed on the floor at the annual restaurant event, which draws more than 100,000 attendees.

During the judging, headed by David Armanasco of Monterey, Calif., each wine was evaluated at least once and in some cases as many as three times before panels determined winning wines. The first test was a simple pass-fail to determine further consideration. If rejected, the wine was not tested again. The retained wines were retasted and winners were honored with bronze, silver or gold medals, and one in each category was named best of show. Best of show honors were awarded to Buena Vista, Sauvignon Blanc, 1985; Mark West Vineyards, Zinfandel, 1983; Wagner Vineyards, Seyval Blanc, 1984, and McDowell Valley Vineyards for Zinfandel Blush (Grand Cru), 1985.

A Sauvignon Blanc tasting could not come at a better time as it is rising in popularity and challenging Chardonnay for favor while enjoying a resurgence of its post-Prohibition reputation as California's most consistent white wine. Buena Vista's 1985 is characteristic of the so-called modern Sauvignon Blanc style, which is assertively fruity, soft and round with grassy, tropical fruit flavors. It is an excellent sipping wine that works well for table use, provided it does not have to compete with highly sauced and spiced dishes. Fresh fruit and lovely crispness merged into a soft style is a common goal of many Sauvignon Blanc producers, who want to create Sauvignon Blancs that are ready to drink upon release.

Buena Vista's grapes are 100 percent Sauvignon Blanc from Lake County Vineyards, east of Sonoma County, more celebrated for Chardonnay and Pinot Noir. At 12 percent alcohol, the wine, which is not oak-aged, is generous and easy to enjoy.

Other Sauvignon Blanc winners are gold medalists Glen Ellen, 1985; Konociti, Fume Blanc, 1985; J. Rochioli, 1985; St. Vrain, 1985, and Monticello, 1983. Silver medalists are Hoque Cellars, 1985; Concannon, 1984; Chateau Benoit, 1985; Parducci, 1984; Ste. Genevieve, Fume, 1985; Kendall-Jackson, Clear Lake, 1985; Matanzas Creek, 1985; Amador Foothill Winery, Fume, 1985, and DeLoach, 1984.

Blush wines are America's most popular wines today, evidencing an age-old American tendency to enjoy sweeter styles served cold. Several decades ago when rose wines ruled the roost, more often than not they were well-made. A current problem today is that many blush wines are hurriedly and poorly made to supply a soaring demand. As a consequence, these offer little more than a sweet strawberry soft drink taste without distinction or character.

The association's Zinfandel Blush category included wines that were bone dry as well as those that were slightly sweet. Even snobbish wine lovers who look down on blush wines will find the McDowell Valley Vineyard, 1985, appealing, even complex. Here is fresh fruitiness in nose and taste with considerable length and depth, and a supple softness combined with delicacy and acidity. It is a clean, lovely drinking wine that is unquestionably one of the best of its type.

Although the wine contains 2.8 percent residual sugar, very typical of current blush wines, it offers a refreshingly tart taste that belies its inherent sweetness. Made from 79 percent Zinfandel, 17 percent Chenin Blanc and Sylvaner and finished with 4 percent Petite Sirah, the wine offers a lively opulence not generally found in blush wines. McDowell has surely created a winning style.

Other blush winners are gold medalist Grand Cru, 1985, followed by silver medalists DeLoach, 1985 and Monterey Vineyards, 1985, and bronze medalists R.H. Philipps, 1985, Mirassou Vineyards, 1985, and J. Lohr Winery, 1985.

The Zinfandel red class, won by Mark West, 1983, showed fine briarlike and berrylike aromas, combined with long, concentrated, intense flavors. In good balance, it showed excellent style and is even appealing for consumption now. Gold medalist Gundlach Bundschu, 1983, displayed an assertive strawberry aroma in a lighter, fruity Beaujolais style. The wine is fresh and pleasant and should be enjoyed now.

Silver medalists are Caymus, 1983; Buehler, 1983; Kendall-Jackson, 1984; DeLoach, 1982, and Congress Springs, 1983. Bronze medalists are Fetzer (Special), 1983; Davis Bynum, 1982, Estrella River, 1980; Phelps, 1980; Sattui, 1982; Rolling Hills, 1983, and Roudon-Smith, 1982. Not content solely with traditional American-French types and in an effort to give the judging a broader nationwide posture, Seyval Blanc, a hybrid white wine grown effectively along the Eastern seaboard, was included. Formerly known as Seyve Villard, 5276, it is a dry white that is clean and fresh and gradually developing greater complexity.

Hybrids generally are a cross between two different vine varieties, usually one from traditional, classic Vitis vinifera vine species and one from native American, developed for the purpose of making a vine that is resistant to American vine diseases and Eastern climate excesses.

Not well known in the West, Seyval Blanc's importance is growing both as a dry table wine and as a sparkler. The goal is to eliminate a so-called Eastern foxy taste, and with most of the association entries, this has been achieved, representing a vineyard and laboratory triumph after four decades.

The winning Wagner wine from New York's Finger Lakes exhibited an excellent, clean fruity nose and extraordinarily good flavor in depth. It represented an austere, neutral style that is best enjoyed at the table. In some ways the style is better suited for serving with food than some of California's overly fruited whites, which tend to decimate food flavors.

Other Seyval Blanc winners are gold medalists Woodbury Vineyard, 1985; Woolersheim, 1983, followed by silver medalists Meier's Wine Cellars, 1985, and Lynfred, 1984; and bronze medalists, Glenora Wine Cellars, 1984; Good Harbor, 1984; Firelands Wine, 1985, and Shenandoah Vineyards, 1984.

Because of Balestreri's efforts at the Wine Classic, restaurant owners are beginning to see the need for better, less expensive wine lists and greater involvement in wine selection. Many have requested they be allowed to serve as judges.

Restaurateurs serving as judges this year were John Grisanti of Grisanti's, Memphis, Tenn.; Richard Alberini, Alberini Restaurant, Niles, Ohio; James Nicas, Castle Restaurant, Leicester, Mass.; Bill Pigatti, Del Rio Restaurant, Highwood, Ill.; and Mitchell Doolin, the Chardonnay Bar, Chicago.

'Menudo Melee' Rivals Chitlins

By ROGERS WHITENER
Appalachian State University
Folklore Writer

Move over, Chitlin Strut — the Menudo Melee is on the way. What's a Menudo Melee? A Chitlin Strut under another name in another state, Texas, that is.

Texas with bands, stetsons, boots, beauty queens, blue ribbons, and all that jazz. Or all that country western. And food.

Smelly food. Chitlin smelly.

You see the basic ingredients of Menudo soup are stomach meats, up to and including entrails. There, I've said it.

Entrails and a lot more, of course. In fact anything the cook wants to put into it, like hominy, pigs' feet and the like. Most recipes list the major item as tripe, but we know about tripe, don't we?

May not sound very appetizing, but a Menudo cookoff will draw Texas folks in droves. Some, of course, for the occasion itself, but others for the Menudo. Real Mexican soul food lovers.

It should be noted, however, that most such cookoffs include additional food selections for the non-adventuresome.

David Resendez, a restaurant owner in Austin, says that Menudo is not a dish peculiar to Mexico and Texas. "In the Philippines," he says, "it is called 'gato' and made with tripe, ginger and rice.

"In Central and South America, it is called 'mondongo' and is made with tripe, prunes, and all kinds of weird stuff. The Arabs use different spices to flavor their version of menudo, but the basic ingredient — tripe — common to all."

On a recent trip to San Marcos, I met Jennie Orano, a rising senior at Southwest Texas State University.

Jennie has largely worked her way through school, often by housecleaning and cooking for university faculty members.

One evening my hosts engaged Jennie to prepare a Tex-Mex meal. The menu was extensive and delicious.

But no Menudo.

"Why?" I asked Jennie.

"Oh, I thought you wouldn't like the smell. It's a favorite with my family — I learned how to cook it from my mother — but it takes about four hours of cooking to remove the smell. If you'd like to try, though, there's a local restaurant which serves it regularly."

reached cuisine status. I drove by the San Marcos restaurant for a sample just before my return to Boone. I smelled what must have been Menudo when I was still several hundred yards away. I never stopped.

On the other hand I seldom attend chitlin struts either.

Some Texans say Menudo has chitlin struts either.

Buttermilk Works Best When Unfrozen

From COUNTRY HOME
A Meredith Magazine

Churning butter was a monotonous, arm-aching job. The task was often assigned to a child or the hired girl. Cream, cooled in the springhouse or cellar, was agitated in a deep wooden tub or crockery churn by plunges of a long-handled dasher.

On hot days it sometimes seemed the butter would never come, but finally the flecks of pale yellow butter separated from the fluid part of the milk. The watery liquid — the buttermilk — was drained off and used as a beverage or ingredient in cakes, biscuits, Boston brown bread, and pancakes.

Although factory production of butter began about 1860, many farm homemakers with an ample supply of cream continued making butter and buttermilk at home until the 1920s, according to Country Home magazine.

During the 1940s, creameries began to dry the buttermilk left from their butter production for more efficient shipping to commercial makers of baked goods, candy, and ice cream. Milk processors then began producing cultured buttermilk.

Today's cultured buttermilk is produced by fermenting the pasteurized milk, usually skim milk, with a special bacteria under controlled conditions. This process gives the product its distinctive tangy taste and thick body.

Buttermilk made from skim milk has 90 calories per 8 ounces. If 2 percent milk is used, the calorie count is 120 per 8-ounce glass, and the same amount of whole-milk buttermilk contains 150 calories.

The acidity of buttermilk slows the growth of spoilage organisms. Buttermilk will keep for as long as two weeks after purchase if it is stored covered in the refrigerator. For best flavor, however, use it within the first week after purchase. Freezing is not recommended because it causes the solid and liquid portions of the buttermilk to separate and may alter the taste. If you find it necessary to store buttermilk by freezing, thaw it in the refrigerator, stir it gently, and use it in cooking. Buttermilk is also available in convenient powdered form.

Salad Can Make Hearty Alternative

Since the 14th century when the first recipe for a salad of greens and herbs was printed in medieval English, salads have usually served simply as an adjunct to the main dish.

That is, until recently, when nutrition-conscious people began to realize that a hearty salad makes an appealing alternative to a heavier and frequently fattening main dish.

Furthermore, salads lend themselves to a cook's creative spirit, as seen in the variations of two classic international salads. Enhancing both salads is an American inspiration — seasoned croutons. They add both extra flavor and a crisp, complimentary texture to all the other ingredients.

Salade Nicoise, one of France's more enduring classics, is basically a spirited combination of quartered tomatoes, hard-cooked eggs, anchovies, olives and tuna, tossed in a vinaigrette dressing. This recipe also boasts the colorful addition of green beans, shallots, diced boiled potatoes, pimiento, capers and croutons, all of which transform it into a big main dish meal.

The second salad is a Pasta Primavera. Reflecting its Italian origin, it is composed of spaghetti marinated in Italian dressing with minced garlic, and diced chicken tossed in mayonnaise. The spaghetti and chicken mixture is spooned onto a platter and then crowned with sliced tomatoes, onions, mushrooms and croutons.

The salads are decorative as well as delicious. They are a feast for the eye as well as for the palate.

Salad Nicoise

Boston lettuce leaves
2 cans (7 1/2 oz. each) tuna, packed in water, drained

1 can (2 oz.) flat anchovies
2 cups diced new potatoes, boiled

2 tbs chopped parsley
1/4 cup of drained capers

2 cups whole green beans, cooked
2 shallots, peeled and minced

1/2 cup pitted black olives
1 jar whole pimiento, drained

4 hard-boiled eggs, peeled and halved

2 large tomatoes, cut into eighths
1 cup of croutons

French or Vinaigrette Dressing

Arrange lettuce on a large platter. Break tuna into large chunks and place in one area on top of the lettuce; top with anchovy fillets. Toss potatoes with parsley and capers; arrange next to the tuna. Toss beans with shallots and place next to potato mixture. Complete the salad by arranging black olives, pimiento, eggs, tomatoes and croutons in separate areas on lettuce. Just before serving, pour on the dressing. Makes 4 main dish servings.

Pasta Primavera Salad

1/2 pound spaghetti, cooked
1 bottle (8 oz.) herb and garlic or Italian dressing

1/2 tsp. minced garlic
3 cups cooked diced chicken

1/4 cup of mayonnaise
1 pint cherry tomatoes, halved

1 cup sliced green onions or scallions

1/4 pound fresh mushrooms, sliced
1 large green pepper, thinly sliced

Toss hot pasta with 3/4 cup salad dressing and garlic (reserve remaining dressing.) Cover and chill 2 to 12 hours. Just before serving, toss chicken with mayonnaise and then with marinated pasta. Arrange on a large platter and top with tomatoes, onions, mushrooms, pepper and croutons. Makes 4 main dish servings.

Chip Stewart, Pharmacist of the Year, Augusta, GA.

From Your Eckerd Pharmacist

Over 60? We can help you save.

Your Eckerd Pharmacist can help you reduce the high cost of health care with our Senior Citizen's Club. As a member, you can save money on vitamins, convalescent aids, medications and more. And your Eckerd Pharmacist can provide expert advice on the drugs your doctor has prescribed. Many drugs affect your nutrition by robbing your body of essential nutrients. Long-term use of diuretics, for example, can deplete your body of potassium.

Fortunately, eating bananas, tomatoes and other foods rich in potassium can help balance the effects of these drugs on your potassium levels. There are hundreds of other food and drug interactions found with both prescription and non-prescription drugs. To avoid these, read the label and package insert before using any non-prescription product. And be sure to consult your Eckerd Pharmacist, if you have questions about any medication.

To an Eckerd Pharmacist, nothing's more important than your health.
