World Court Denounces U.S. Aid To Contras

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP) — The World Court today denounced U.S. backing for Contra rebels seeking to topple Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government, and termed the U.S. support a violation of the U.N. Charter.

It declined to award Nicaragua its claim of $375 million compensation for damage caused by U.S.-support for the Contras, but said that the United States was under obligation to make reparations.

The 15-judge court, formally known as the International Court of Justice, is the judicial arm of the United Nations and has no enforcement powers, but wields considerable moral authority.

Its ruling came at the end of a lopsided 26-month legal proceeding begun by the Sandinistas, who presented evidence of what they said were American efforts to topple their government.

The United States boycotted most of the court proceedings, and a U.S. diplomat had said earlier in an interview with The Associated Press that a verdict against the United States was a foregone conclusion.

"The court has found that the arming and training of the Contras is a violation of the prohibition of the use of force (as laid down in the U.N. Charter)," said Court President Nagendra Singh of India.

"The financing of the Contras undoubtedly constitutes intervention" in Nicaraguan sovereignty by the United States, Singh said.

The decision comes two days after the U.S. House of Representatives approved President Reagan's request for $100 million in aid to the Contras.

Nicaraguan Foreign Minister Miguel D'Escoto said he hoped the ruling would have a "sobering effect" on the Reagan administration and that the United States would "become a respectable member of the international community.

"Today's judgement is the best guarantee for the preservation of international peace in Central America," D'Escoto told The Associated Press outside the court.

Carlos Arguello, Nicaragua's agent at the court, said "the court did the only thing possible legally. The court recognized that Nicaragua is in the right and that justice is on the side of Nicaragua."

The United States, which has withdrawn from court jurisdiction in Central American disputes, was not officially represented when the verdict was read.

The court said the amount of compensation should be settled in a subsequent proceeding if the parties agree, which seemed an unlikely prospect because of the United States withdrawal from the case.

The U.S. government has claimed that its support for the Contras was

Ortega Tightens Internal Security

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — The Sandinista government shut Nicaragua's only opposition newspaper and announced stricter internal security measures a day after the U.S. House of Representatives approved new aid to the Contra rebels.

In a nationwide television and radio broadcast Thursday night, President Daniel Ortega said House approval of $70 million in military aid and $30 million in non-lethal assistance to the Contras "opens a new aggressive escalation... which forces a revision of some policies to confront the new threats that exist."

The Democratic-controlled House approved the aid to the Contras on Wednesday, and passage by the Republican-controlled Senate, which approved an earlier assistance bill, was expected to follow.

Ortega said the crackdown on dissent would include "the strict and severe application of the state of emergency" imposed March 15, 1982.

The emergency suspends rights of assembly and free association, habeas corpus and the right to strike, and allows the government to make arrests without a warrant.

It also requires the news media to submit material for censorship.

Ortega said the emergency rules were "an effort to contribute to easing internal and regional tensions," but sometimes had been managed "with excessive flexibility."

Even before the tightening of the state of emergency was announced, the government closed the newspaper La Prensa.

A letter from the Interior Ministry to editor Pablo Antonio Cuadra said that "from now, the daily newspaper La Prensa is closed for an indefinite time," managing editor Carlos Holmann said.

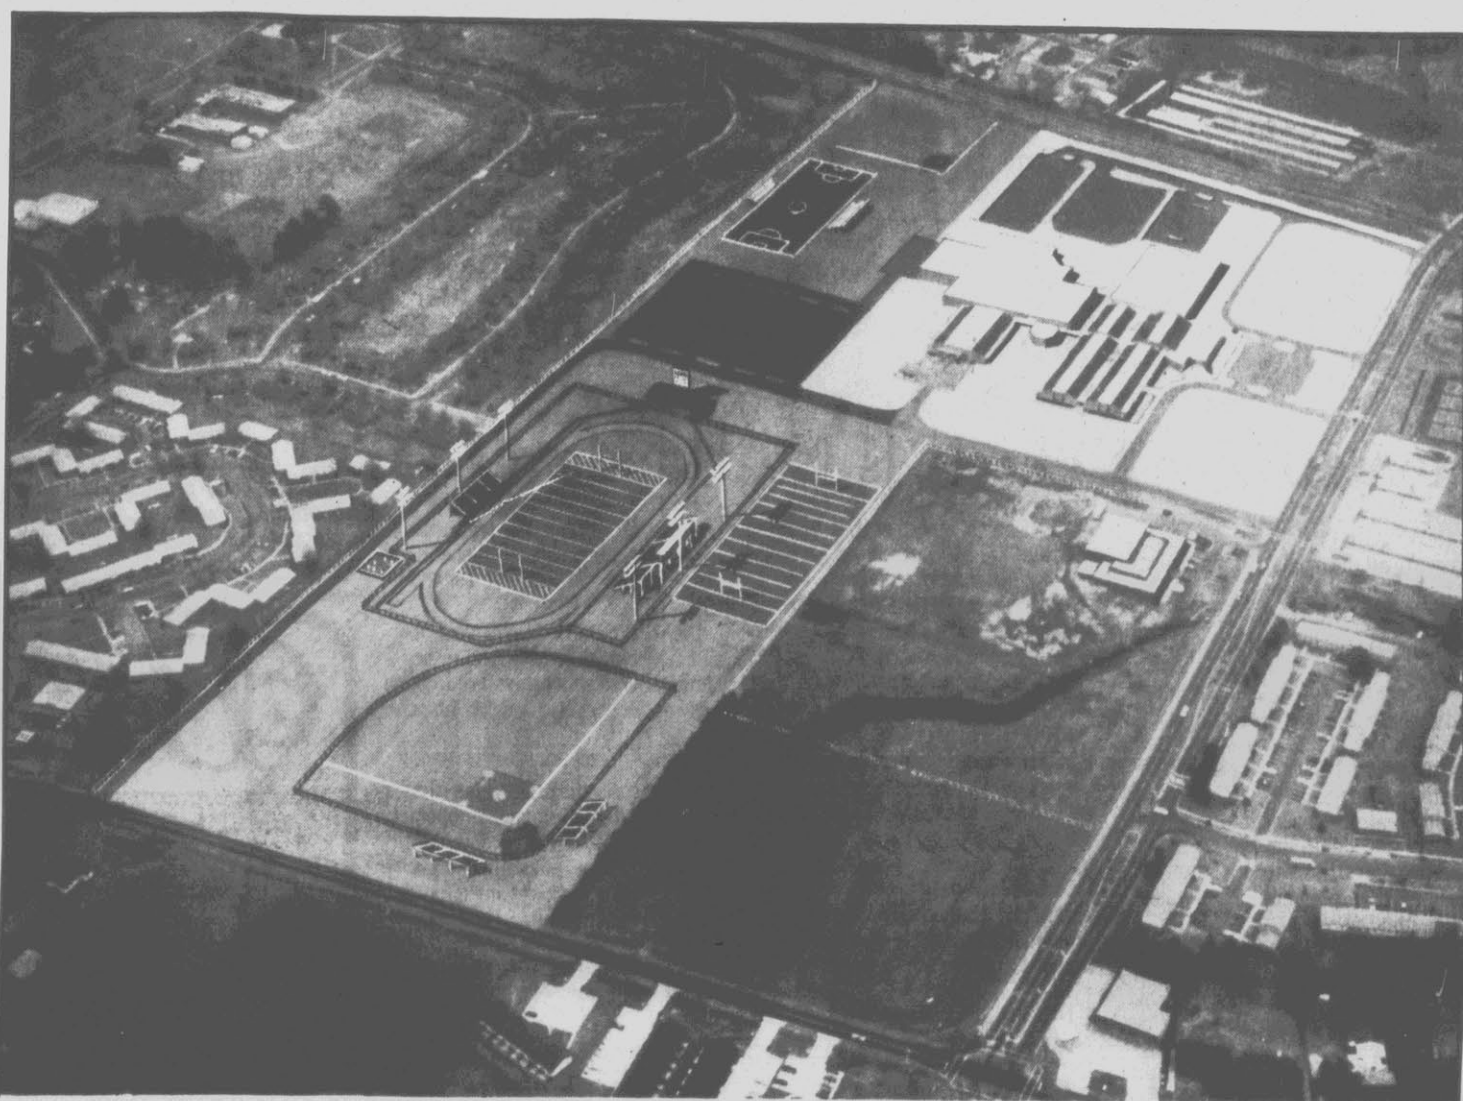

The government's Voice of Nicaragua radio later called the newspaper "an accomplice and an official spokesman of President Reagan in Nicaragua and a direct accomplice in the aggression and war against our people, of the bloodshed in our country."

Elimination of too many stories had prevented La Prensa from publishing 41 times since the emergency was declared. It also had been closed by the government several times for a few days at a time.

Ortega also said there would be "an increase and reinforcement of security measures to stop terrorist plans, through the strengthening of revolutionary vigilance and civil defense."

He appeared to refer to the Sandinista Defense Committees, neighborhood committees the government describes as the "eyes and ears of the revolution," and to civil defense groups in factories, businesses and cooperatives.

Ortega said Nicaragua "cannot permit those who sell out the nation to continue unpunished in their brazen function of agents of the North American government, justifying the aggression, suffocating the defensive efforts of the people and... covering up of the counterrevolutionary plans."

THINGS TO COME — This rendering shows a baseball diamond, football stadium and football practice field and soccer and softball fields to be built on land adjacent to Greenville Middle School. Groundbreaking for the first phase of the project, the site work, was scheduled today. The rendering also shows additions to Greenville Middle School that would be needed to convert the facility into a senior high school. (Hooker Road runs diagonally across the bottom of the picture, while the Seaboard Coastline Railroad runs across the top. Arlington Boulevard runs from bottom to top at right.)

Groundbreaking Held For Rose Complex

Groundbreaking ceremonies to mark the start of construction on the first phase of an athletic complex for Rose High School were scheduled for 12:15 p.m. today at a 17.5-acre site adjacent to Greenville Middle School.

The first phase of the project — for which bids were approved by the Greenville Board of Education Thursday — involves $106,000 in site grading and drainage work.

The site, adjacent to Greenville Middle School, is north of the Boys Club of Pitt County and Sycamore Hill Church property on Arlington Boulevard. The site has 585 feet fronting on Hooker Road.

The total complex, to be developed in phases, is expected to include a football field and track, baseball and softball facilities, and a soccer field.

The cost of the complex has been estimated at $500,000.

A fund-raising effort is expected to begin in the near future to provide the money needed to begin building the facilities.

In the past, school officials have said that at sometime in the future, Greenville Middle may be converted to a senior high school to replace Rose High.

U.S. Farm Imports Top Exports

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the first time in at least two decades, the United States in May imported more farm goods than it exported as the nation's trade deficit surged to $14.2 billion, up from $12.1 billion in April, the government reported today.

The Commerce Department said that agricultural imports amounted to $2.2 billion in May, compared to exports of $1.9 billion — for a deficit of $348.7 million.

In April, farm exports had totaled $2.1 billion and imports $1.9 billion.

The figures showed once again that the turnaround in the trade balance long awaited by economists and politicians has yet to materialize — despite lower oil prices and a weakening U.S. dollar.

The May figures showed the same pattern of shrinking exports and expanding imports that has prevailed for many months.

The Commerce Department report said that May imports totaled $31.6 billion, up from $30 billion imported the month before. Exports were $17.4 billion in May, down from $18 billion in April.

Analysts said that a sluggish world economy had much to do with the continued imbalance.

"There's nobody to sell to. Our economy is doing better than the rest of the world," said David Wyss, chief economist for Data Resources Inc. of Lexington, Mass.

So far this year, the monthly trade deficit has averaged $13.95 billion — implying an annual trade deficit of near $168 billion if the deficit continues at the current pace.

For all of 1985, the deficit totaled a record $148.5 billion.

Government and private analysts have predicted that the trade figures would begin to improve in the second half of the year.

Commerce Department analysts first said the May report appeared to show the first deficit in agricultural trade since the government began keeping such records in the World War II era.

But later, spokesman Adren Cooper said further checking showed such a claim could only be made for sure for the past 20 years.

Previous to that, record-keeping was not as specific as it is currently. However, there remained a possibility that the farm-product deficit was the first ever, Cooper suggested.

Petroleum product imports increased to $2.8 billion in May from $2.1 billion in April, with an increase in the volume of imports outpacing lower per-barrel costs.

The trade deficit with Japan in May was $5 billion, up from $4.7 billion in April. Last year, the United States ran a $50 billion deficit with Japan — the largest single-country deficit.

Auto imports in May widened to $4 billion from $3.7 billion in the previous month.

For the first five months of 1986, the U.S. deficit with Japan has totaled $25 billion.

European Leaders Reject Bans

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP) — Leaders of the 12 Common Market countries today called on South Africa to release jailed black leader Nelson Mandela and other black opposition leaders or face the possibility of economic sanctions.

The 12 leaders, ending a two-day summit, said British Foreign Secretary Sir Geoffrey Howe will visit South Africa in hopes of establishing a dialogue between the white leadership and black South African leaders.

The summit agreement fell short of comprehensive economic sanctions urged by some leaders but opposed by British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl.

The leaders said in a statement that within the next three months they would decide "on further measures which might be needed, covering, in particular, a ban on new investments (and) the import of coal, iron, steel and gold coins from South Africa."

They also agreed to give "financial and material assistance" to those left homeless by recent fighting in the black shantytown of Crossroads near Cape Town, and to give legal aid to "political prisoners, including those arrested in connection with the recent reimposition of the state of emergency" on June 12.

Mandela is a former leader of the African National Congress, the main black guerrilla group fighting to end white domination in South Africa. The ANC is outlawed in South Africa. He is serving a life sentence for a 1964 conviction of plotting sabotage.

In addition to calling for his unconditional release, the Common Market leaders called on South Africa to lift its ban on the ANC, the Pan Africanist Congress of Azania and other opposition groups.

SEAT BELTS?

Since it's the law that riders in private cars wear seat belts, why don't Greenville's GREAT buses have them? Especially when small children ride these buses, I think they're needed. P.G.

Mayo Allen, Greenville Public Works Department director, said the city has not given serious study to whether seat belts should be available in the GREAT buses. "We're waiting to see what other bus systems, particularly the schools, do," he said.

Child Protection Game Endorsed By Adam Walsh Center In New York

By LAWRENCE KILMAN
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The game looks like many other board games. Players follow a colorful path through an imaginative neighborhood and choose cards at spots along the way.

But the 300 cards, and the questions they ask, are more serious than those of typical games: "What are private body parts?" "What does a bad person look like?"

"If you are home alone, should you play in the yard?" It is called the Child Awareness Game, the latest of many child protection aids to hit the market. The game was endorsed by the Adam Walsh Child Resource Center, a safety organization founded by the parents of a 6-year-old Florida boy who was abducted and killed in 1981. A TV movie about the Adam Walsh case helped create interest in the nation's missing youngsters.

Children play the game with an adult and get a letter for each question they answer as they wind their way to the bus stop, shopping center, movie theater and other spots in the mythical neighborhood. The first child to collect all the letters to spell "Child Awareness" wins the game.

When asked, "what are private body parts," the correct answer is, "parts of the body that are usually covered by a bathing suit." Parents who want to be more specific can name the private parts if they desire, the card says. Parents who ask "what does a bad person look like" should get this answer: "You can't tell if a person is bad or good by the person's looks."

Another card instructs children to stay inside with doors locked if they are home alone. They should not play in the yard, the card says.

But since a yard in Maine is safer than one in New York City, the instructions also say, "if a parent or teacher strongly disagrees with the given answer, please substitute an answer."

In recent months, several companies have introduced books, games, flashcards, coloring books and other child-oriented products to help teach safety. Games include "Strangers and Dangers," "Don't Talk to Strangers," "Safely Home" and "Safe City, U.S.A."

While some child psychologists say toys and games make it easier to teach a difficult subject, others warn that parents must take steps not to frighten their children needlessly.

Gary Hewitt, a psychologist who specializes in counseling families of abducted children, had not seen the Child Awareness Game but expressed concern that such games could be misused by well-meaning but untrained adults.

"If children play with an adult who is super-paranoid about the issue, then that's reflected in the game," he said.

Hewitt recommends that parents educate themselves about safety issues. And they should choose games carefully.

"Some are educational, some at least address the issue, and others are just overkill," he said.

Dr. Alvin Poussaint, a child psychologist at the Harvard Medical School, said games played by children and adults together work well because "the parents have control over how much they want to dose the child." But he warned against games that were overly scary.

The Child Awareness Game, for ages 4-12, is the creation of Becky Butler Nickol and Patrick Hart, stockbrokers in Orlando, Fla., who were looking for a way to teach their children safety without scaring them.

Mrs. Nickol said parents can tailor the game to suit their view of what safety information is necessary. Children should learn "what risks they can safely take," she said.

"I think we're doing children an injustice if we don't give them the tools to deal with it," she said. "You can't stifle them, but you have to teach them."

The game is the first product to be endorsed by the Adam Walsh Child Resource Center. The center will get $1 from each sale of the $12.95 game.

"Children need to role play situations in order to learn," said Sharon McMorris, assistant director of the center. "This board game operates under that idea. It gives children the opportunity to act out situations."

Couple Marries In Wilson Ceremony

WILSON — Ellen Langley of Greenville and Robert C. Smith of Wilson were married last Friday night at their future home. The Rev. Phillip Boykin officiated at the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her son, Russell Allen Langley of Raleigh, the bride wore a formal white satin gown overlaid with chantilly lace. Ruffles bordered the hemline of the skirt, which extended into a lace train. She wore a lace crown attached to a fingertip length veil bordered with lace. She carried a bouquet of pink and white azalea interspersed with pink and white ribbons tied with matching streamers.

Alexis Mary Smith, daughter of the bridegroom, was maid of honor and Christina McLawhorn of Greenville, niece of the bride, was flower girl.

Jason Robert Smith, son of the bridegroom, was best man and the ring bearer was Robert Duke Langley of Raleigh, son of the bride.

A reception was held after the ceremony.

The couple will live in Wilson after a wedding trip to Virginia Beach, Va. The bridegroom is employed with Jefferson Smurfit Corp. in Wilson.

MEN, ANIMALS AND BALDNESS

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The recent translation of a book on 16th century medicine shows that attempts to understand and cure baldness are at least 400 years old.

So says Dr. Richard L. Sutton Jr., a Kansas City dermatologist who recently published "16th Century Physician," a translation of the first book on diseases of the skin.

"The most popular theory of that day was that baldness resulted from drying out of the brain, brought on by insomnia, worrying, late-night studying and excessive love-making," says Sutton.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

Romance On Wheels Is No Handicap

DEAR ABBY: I'd like to say a few words to all the single women looking for an honest, happy, rewarding relationship with a decent man. Please don't overlook a man with a physical handicap. I'm glad I didn't.

Thirteen years ago I met an interesting man. He was a veteran of the Vietnam War and was paralyzed from the waist down. He was permanently confined to a wheelchair, but could do almost everything an able-bodied man could do. We dated for several years in spite of the mixed feelings of my family, friends and sometimes myself.

Eight years ago we were married, and this man has given me two beautiful children, a wonderful life and a thousand other reasons for being alive.

As far as I'm concerned, my husband is the warmest, kindest, sexiest (yes, sexiest!) man in the world. Since our marriage, he has taught me more about courage, love and values than most people learn in a lifetime.

I am glad I focused on all the positive aspects of our relationship rather than the few minor inconveniences of living with a handicapped person. — LUCKY

DEAR LUCKY: Thank you for a dandy upper. He's lucky, too.

DEAR ABBY: Why is it that lately all the lovers on TV think the wider they open their mouths when they kiss, the sexier they are? It never used to be that way.

After many years of watching my favorite "soaps," I've turned to reading instead. It got to be too nauseating to watch those open mouths, chewing on each other's lips and slobbering all over each other. What people want to do in private is their own business, but do they have to do it on TV? It's revolting.

I've tried to ignore it, but yesterday my 5-year-old grandson greeted me with his mouth wide open, and a very wet kiss! When I told him that was not the way to kiss — he should keep his mouth closed — he said, "That's not the way they do it on TV, Grandma." Now what? — YUCK IN PITTSBURGH

DEAR YUCK: To protest anything you see on TV, write to the head of the network, then fire off a letter of complaint to the sponsors of the program, then write the producer. Meanwhile, tell the child that the people on television kiss their grandmothers with their mouths shut.

DEAR ABBY: My fiance and I are planning our wedding and we've hit a snag. He is going to have six ushers and I am going to have six bridesmaids.

All of his best friends are within an inch of being 6 feet tall, with the exception of this one guy he's known since first grade. "Shorty" is 5 foot 5.

We're afraid he will feel embarrassed standing with all those taller guys. Should "Shorty" be asked? — CHRISTMAS WEDDING

DEAR WEDDING: Yes. Let Shorty decide whether he wants to be included. Some short guys are long on self-confidence. He might surprise you.

(Getting married? Send for Abby's new, updated, expanded booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents) envelope to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

Sunglasses Offer More Than Style

By JULIE VARGO-TURI
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

The right sunglasses can change your looks, alter your attitude and define your personality. In the summer, their job is easier. They make life bearable.

"The glare from the summer sun is uncomfortable ...," says Sharon Stone of Corning Optics. "The harder the eye has to work, the more fatigued it becomes. Wearing sunglasses helps alleviate the stress and strain of squinting into harsh sunlight."

Though there are as many different degrees of sun sensitivity as there are people, most eyes are more comfortable viewing the world from behind filtering lenses. Studies show wearing sunglasses has health benefits as well.

"While the eye is made to protect itself — the pupil constricts when exposed to direct sunlight — studies have indicated the possibility of a higher rate of cataracts in people whose eyes are overexposed to sun, wind and dust," says Dr. Barry Uhr, ophthalmologist at Baylor University Medical Center.

The summer sun also poses special problems for contact lens wearers. "Contact lens wearers are more sensitive to the brighter in Optics sunglass collection."

"More light penetrates the eye through the contact lens as compared to the spectacle lens which reflects a percentage of the sun's light," says Hutton. "Thus, there is more bright light awareness among contact lens wearers. Wearing sunglasses cuts down on this sensitivity."

Selecting sunglasses used to be as easy as zipping into the neighborhood drug store and plucking a multi-purpose pair off the rack. Today sunglasses need to be more than just fashion-right.

"There are different lenses for different situations," says Stone. "People have varying needs and sensitivities depending on their lifestyles."

Days spent at the seashore, surrounded by sand and ray-reflecting water demand very dark lenses that block out 85 percent to 90 percent of the bright, visible light. To cut out additional glare, opt for a dark lens with a mirror coating that reflects light away from the face. Gray, green and brown lenses filter ultraviolet and infrared rays better than fun shades such as blue, yellow or rose.

"Fashion colors can't be made dark enough to really protect against the sun," says Uhr. "Lenses in deep gray, charcoal or brown provide the best glare protection. These colors are also more relaxing to the eyes."

And for those who can't afford or don't want to build a sunglass wardrobe, Corning Optics offers light-sensitive photochromic lenses that darken in accordance with the light level. "Photochromic lenses adjust to the weather," says Stone. "You can go from cloudy and overcast to bright and sunny and never change your glasses."

No matter what color lenses you decide on, make sure your sunglasses are void of distortion. "Distortion in the lenses causes the eyes to strain and pull, resulting in headaches," says Uhr. "It pays to invest in a good pair of sunglasses."

And for those who want extra protection for the eye area, don't forget the suntan lotion. "We've always had a slogan at Clinique: When you need sunglasses, you need sunblock," says Iris Model of Clinique.

Most of these eye-zone sunblocks come in a skinny tube like a lipstick. "You crayon this sunblock on where you want it," says Model. "And because it has such a high melting point, once it's on, it's on to stay. It won't liquefy and creep into your eyes, causing a burning sensation and blurring your vision."

Eye strain is another byproduct of the bright summer sun. Natural reflexes cause squinting that promotes deep creases, crow's feet and wrinkles. "The skin surrounding the eye is very thin and delicate," says Model. "Even laughing can leave permanent lines. That fragile area must be properly protected with moisturizers and sun protection."

For quick relief of eye strain, the experts at Avon suggest a quick, at-home remedy. Chill a spoon in the freezer, cover closed eyes with a handkerchief and place the convex side of the spoon gently on the eyelids.

Little Change

Retiring Chief Justice Warren Burger is stepping down after a 17-year tenure which all can agree were busy years for the Supreme Court. They were so busy that one might call that a hallmark of one notable Burger failure: repeatedly he tried to lighten the burden of cases that threatened to swamp the court, but to no avail.

Justice Burger could (and did) provide excellent reasoning for lightening that burden as well as suggestions on how that might best be accomplished. To all intents and purposes his words met some sympathy and no productive response.

When President Richard Nixon chose federal appeals court Judge Burger to be chief justice it was to fulfil a campaign pledge to name justices who could turn back the activist trend of the Earl Warren era.

Seventeen years later no major doctrine of the Warren term has been overruled and in some ways the Burger court appeared as "activist" as the court Nixon hoped to change.

It was an opinion by Burger, for instance, that endorsed busing as a usable tool for school desegregation and later Justice Burger joined the 1973 majority that established the constitutional right to abortion, although recently he admitted some doubts about that decision.

In essence, the Burger court remained faithful to precedents it inherited.

William H. Rehnquist, nominated to be the nation's 16th chief justice, is looked upon as "a man of wit, personal warmth and devotion to conservative ideals." He is also regarded as the Reagan administration's man to change the court's image. The choice has already met some dismay among Senate Democrats though their reaction may be premature.

We have a strong feeling the implications and responsibilities of the chief justice role tempers personal convictions and broad powers the post carries. They must weigh heavily on the minds of those in that seat. Too, the Supreme Court is no one-man operation.

The chief justice deals almost daily with others on the court and their reasoning and logic is bound to make a strong impression ... each member wears a strong personality that cannot be ignored.

Putting it all together makes prospects of any change in course an unlikely result.

Changes will come, eventually, as the president nominates other justices as he is expected to do when vacancies occur; but that remains a prospect for a still uncertain future.

Not Over

The Greenville City Council approved an $86 million budget for the fiscal year 1986-87 Monday night.

The budget, which includes the $71,020,783 Greenville Utilities budget, holds the tax rate at 63 cents per $100 valuation.

Lest taxpayers think they are getting away with no additional expense, however, they should be aware that the council approved a refuse collection fee. It will be $15 per month per container for non-residential service and $4 per month for residential service.

Citizens will see that charge tacked on to their utilities bills in the coming months. Presumably the garbage collection will continue even if the customer refuses to pay the bill.

Two members of the council, Nancy Jenkins and Ed Carter, had the foresight to vote against the budget based on the refuse collection charge. It was noted at the meeting that the city government had found little public support for the charge. Invariably the reasoning goes that, if we are going to pay city taxes, why shouldn't the cost of refuse collection be included in the tax bill?

The refuse collection fee has been voted into existence by the City Council. That doesn't mean, however, that our citizens have to meekly accept it. We can remind our council members again and again that it makes more sense to pay for such a basic service as refuse collection through the tax rate, rather than create an entirely separate method of billing.

Bill Clears Inheritance Law

RALEIGH — Several years ago, a German textile company opened a plant in North Carolina at an expense of $3 million to $4 million. The president of the firm decided to come here, himself, to oversee its operation.

The German industrialist hadn't been here very long when he encountered a bit of anti-foreign bias in North Carolina. His American lawyer had to recommend to him that he not buy a home because North Carolina law might not allow him to pass the home to his German heirs when he died.

That story was told to the House Judiciary III Committee as it considered changes in the state's international inheritance law. Joe Pike, chairman of the North Carolina Bar's International Committee, told the story to illustrate how the state's current law could be hindering international investment in the state.

Under current law, a non-resident alien of North Carolina cannot inherit real or personal property in North Carolina unless he can show that a North Carolina native in his own country could inherit property under essentially the same terms and conditions. Sen. Larry Cobb, R-Mecklenburg, told the committee.

Cobb said that such a requirement was extremely difficult to meet and that "it placed a very big burden" on the person claiming the inheritance.

Jerry Hartsell, a Raleigh lawyer who specialized in international law, said the inheritance law left a bad taste in the mouths of foreign investors.

"If we want to encourage foreign investment in our state, I think it is imperative that we not hold out to the foreign investor the notion that his investment is suspect in our state," Hartsell said.

North Carolina does encourage foreign investment. The Department of Commerce maintains industrial recruitment offices in Europe and Japan and North Carolina governors regularly lead international industrial recruitment drives.

Pike said that some states do not recruit internationally, and that their laws are quite restrictive on the foreign ownership of property. North Carolina in recent years, however, has chosen not to follow this course. In the past half decade, the Legislature has refused on several occasions to pass proposals that would have severely restricted foreign ownership of North Carolina real estate.

Even with that foreign commitment, Pike said he'd seen "three or four" instances from "Kuwait and the Gulf states where they've held off making investments partially because of (the inheritance) statute being pointed out to them."

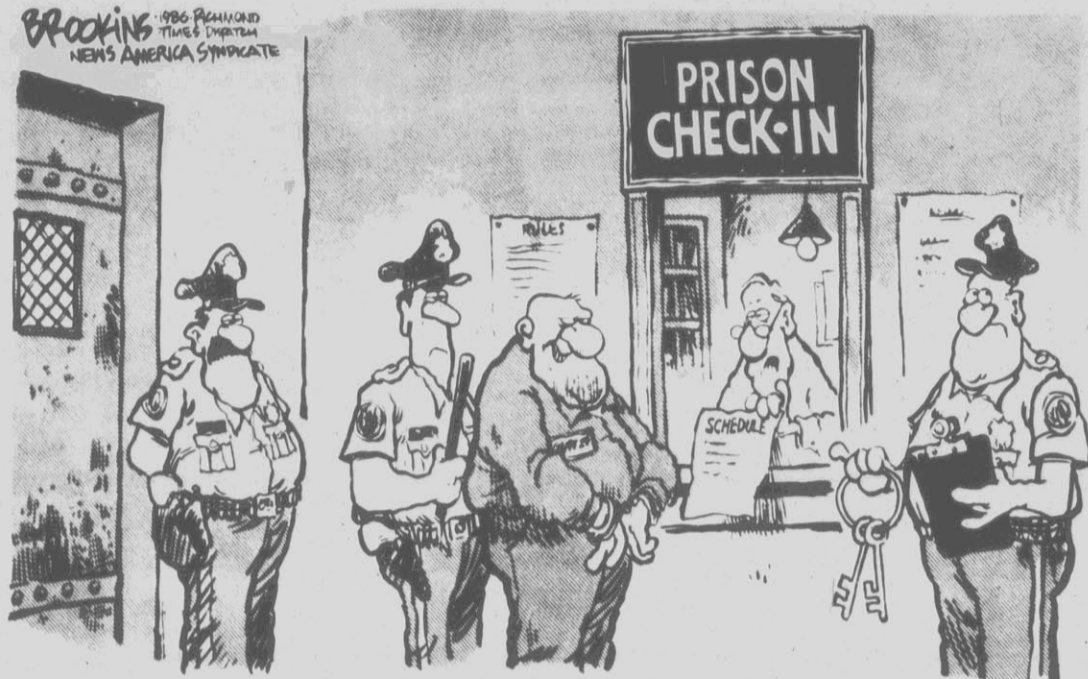

Cobb said the statute put North Carolina lawyers in a tough spot. They have to warn potential foreign investors of the restrictive inheritance law even though they know that it could hurt the state's chances to land the investment the foreigners seek to make.

Cobb's rewrite of the law was quickly working its way through the House and would have to return to the Senate for concurrence in an amendment.

Cobb proposed that the state limit its inheritance restrictions to personal property and not apply the reciprocity requirement on real estate.

He also proposes that the inheritance of personal property by a foreigner be prohibited in North Carolina only if the foreigner's home country strictly prohibits foreign inheritance.

Finally, Cobb proposes to put the burden of finding whether such a prohibition exists on the person interceding in the estate hearing, not on the person named as the beneficiary.

Star Wars May Be Axed Again

WASHINGTON (AP) — When Congress cut President Reagan's "Star Wars" budget last year by $1 billion, Sen. Sam Nunn explained the reductions in the previously popular program by saying Star Wars didn't pass the "sniff test."

The Georgia Democrat, one of Capitol Hill's most respected defense experts, explained that the phrase means "you just use your nose. And using my nose, Star Wars smells to me like it's in trouble around here."

Now, Congress is poised to cut even more deeply into the Strategic Defense Initiative, the formal name of the research program to develop a futuristic shield against nuclear attack.

For the current fiscal year, Reagan sought about $4 billion for SDI, but Congress reduced that to $3 billion. For the next year, starting Oct. 1, Reagan asked $5.4 billion, but the Republican-controlled Senate Armed Services Committee reduced the figure to $3.95 billion. The likelihood is that the figure will be trimmed again when the Pentagon budget reaches the floor next month.

Forty-eight senators — almost half the 100 members — have signed a letter urging that the SDI budget be held to only 3 percent above inflation next year.

Moreover, in the Democratic-controlled House, even greater cuts are in the offing. The House Armed Services Committee on Tuesday voted in a closed-door meeting to approve a $3.4 billion Star Wars budget for the fiscal year starting Oct. 1, according to sources speaking only on condition of anonymity. Efforts likely will be made on the House floor to freeze the budget at current levels.

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger has accused legislators supporting SDI cuts of trying "to strangle the program in its cradle."

But the reasons for cutting SDI are varied, Nunn and Sen. William Cohen, R-Maine, explained after the Senate committee acted last week. In the past, they have supported the program.

The two senators sponsored the effort to cut SDI's next year budget and admitted their move was a pre-emptive strike to take the wind out of efforts to cut it deeper on the floor.

"We see our move as trying to save the program itself from the kind of attacks we expect later," explained Cohen.

The two legislators proposed several reasons for the cuts:

— Budgetary restrictions imposed by the Gramm-Rudman budget-balancing law. Those limits are leading to reductions in almost all federal programs and the Pentagon is not exempt.

— Arms control questions. The 1972 treaty limiting defenses against ballistic missiles could be breached by any SDI system, Star Wars opponents say. Administration defenders like Weinberger say Star Wars will be built within the ABM treaty limits, but Cohen, Nunn and other legislators have not been satisfied by those promises.

— A "growing perception in Congress that too much has been spent on SDI," said Cohen. He explained that SDI is taking up so much of the Pentagon's research budget that there are growing fears that equally worthy programs won't get the money they need.

"Missiles are not the only threat we face," Cohen said, with Nunn in agreement. "In fact, they are not even the most likely threat." The pair explained that U.S. defenses also need to be improved to deal with threats posed by tanks, non-nuclear missiles, chemical weapons and the like.

— The fuzzy definition of just exactly what Star Wars is.

When Reagan announced the program three years ago, he spoke of a system that might make nuclear missiles obsolete. Just last week, in a speech to high school students in Glassboro, N.J., he spoke about SDI as "a shield that missiles could not penetrate — a shield that protect us from nuclear missiles just as a roof protects a family from rain."

But scientists and other administration officials say such a system is highly unlikely, if ever, to be achieved. Instead, they speak of a multilayered system of defending U.S. nuclear weapons from a pre-emptive strike. That defense would make nuclear war less likely, they say, because it would complicate a Soviet attack.

"The major reason SDI is under attack is because of the concept behind it," said Nunn. "No one can explain what the goal of SDI is. The president talks about a shield but the people working on the program don't talk like that."

Cohen agreed: "The program has never really been well-defined."

Nunn said the committee was trying to come up with a definition of SDI. "It's not easy to define. It is easy to define in bumper-sticker language," but that isn't enough, he said.

Mayors Lose Their Political Chips

WASHINGTON (AP) — When Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt's Democratic presidential forays took him before a gathering of big-city mayors last week, he didn't have to worry about bumping into the competition.

Mayors, who in an earlier time might be counted on to deliver for a presidential hopeful, are having trouble getting much attention from either party these days — except at budget-cutting time.

Babbitt was the only potential presidential candidate of either party who showed up for the U.S. Conference of Mayors' annual gathering. The reason, he said, wasn't that it was too early.

"There's not a lot of political chips here," Babbitt said. "You come here because you care about urban issues. There are a lot of more productive places to be."

The lack of political chips showed in other ways, too. President Reagan hasn't attended one of these sessions since he was a candidate in 1980, and for the last two years he quit bothering to send a written message. He sent his Housing and Urban Development secretary, Samuel Pierce.

At least five other possible presidential candidates from both parties were invited but had reasons not to attend, according to the mayors.

The Democratic mayors, hoping to return a little partisan fervor to their cause and raise their visibility, decided to hire a full-time director and establish a Washington office.

The mayors' meeting was in sunny

San Juan, Puerto Rico, a locale that made for fast-paced business sessions. Aside from setting their urban policies, most mayors managed to find the beaches and enjoy exhibitions of such local fare as a cock fight, a steel band and dancing calypso horses.

The suggestion that they are being overlooked, however, was a sore one for many big-city mayors. While they didn't attract much interest from the Reagan administration or its would-be successors, the mayors insisted that those who have written off the influence of urban leaders are just wrong.

"I think the mayors have more clout now than before," insisted Joe Riley of Charleston, S.C., president of the mayors conference.

The mayors have been stung by a reputation gained in recent years as "whiners," as Riley put it, constant complainers about the steady assault by the Reagan administration on spending for social programs. It seems every time a city leader gets a public platform, it's to oppose a Reagan administration proposal to reduce the federal grants they are after.

"Obviously, the urban agenda is not near the top of the administration's agenda," said Riley, a Democrat.

But Riley insists the mayors have had some success this year.

The biggest program of urban aid, the more than $4 billion in general revenue sharing, remains on the ropes. Congress hasn't yet gone along with administration proposals for huge slashes or outright elimination of others: urban development grants, Small Business Administration, mass transit and the other alphabet-soup listing of complex urban aid programs.

"The Republican-controlled Senate said 'no,' generally, to further emasculate of our country's domestic policy," Riley said. "I think the mayors have been heard."

At the same time, the mayors say they have been squeezed by six years of steadily declining federal money going to their communities and fear the impending loss of revenue sharing. While the latest budget isn't settled yet, Reagan's cuts would have reduced major federal programs of benefit to cities by 71 percent since 1981, according to the conference.

And their problem goes deeper, to the changing political mood that no longer finds as much support for urban spending. The last presidential campaign was conducted with virtually no mention of urban policy, Babbitt noted.

Strength For Today

The statement that everything in the world is related to everything else sounds trite, but it is really very true. In the realm of nature there is no such thing as a particle of matter unrelated to other created things.

Our own lives have this kind of inter-relatedness. Everything we think or do is related to something we have thought or done in the past. Actions which we do in connection with other people establish circles of inter-relatedness which spread outward like ripples from a stone cast into a pond.

Thus each of us becomes a link in an endless chain of cause and effect. The living world is also related to the inanimate world; both share the same Creator. Thus everyone of us is important. We are all part of a great plan whose complexity is incomprehensible but whose purpose has been revealed to us by the Bible.

Storm Bonnie Leaves 2 Dead In Texas

By PAUL RECER
Associated Press Writer
PORT ARTHUR, Texas (AP) — The season's first hurricane made a brief but dramatic entrance, bringing 85 mph winds and leaving two dead before plodding north and spreading heavy rain over much of east Texas and western Louisiana.

Hurricane Bonnie struck the Gulf Coast before dawn Thursday, spinning off tornadoes, destroying homes and knocking out power to thousands.

Thousands of beachfront residents who had boarded up their homes and fled inland returned as Bonnie, downgraded to a tropical depression, lumbered north.

Thunderstorms covered a large part of east Texas and west Louisiana Thursday night, dumping 10 to 13 inches of rain.

In addition to rains and flooding, winds damaged homes and businesses, and a tornado was spawned by the storm near Fannett southwest of here.

U.S. 59 between Livingston and Shepherd near Lake Livingston, was covered with water and closed Thursday night because of floodwaters from Big Creek, said Don Clark, a spokesman for the state Highway Department.

About 20 miles southeast of the highway, water spilled over a dam at Big Thicket Lake just above a housing subdivision after 13 inches of rain had fallen, Liberty County Deputy George Addington said.

The sparsely populated area was evacuated, and no injuries were reported, said Mike Cox, a spokesman for the Department of Public Safety.

Marinas and boats at Lake Sam Rayburn also were damaged. Bill Webb, owner of the Shirley Creek Marina near Etoile, estimated wind damage from $750,000 to $1 million.

Across the lake, Hank Creek Marina near Huntington, broke free from its moorings and floated into the lake, and parts of it were submerged, said Colleen Schroeder, dispatcher with the Angelina County Sheriff's Department.

Bridge City, north of Port Arthur, recorded 7½ inches of rain Thursday, and several places northwest of Beaumont reported more than 5 inches.

Two tornadoes touched down in Beaumont, including one downtown, but caused only light damage to a shopping center and knocked down the radio tower at the local Department of Public Safety office, said trooper Melvin Hughes.

In southwest Louisiana, Bonnie dumped heavy rain and high tides, ripping roofs off of fishing camps as its gales buffeted beaches and littered highways with debris, but damage appeared to be relatively light compared to past hurricanes.

Most of the Louisiana damage was reported in Cameron Parish, where about 25 houses, trailers, and fishing camp cabins were destroyed, said Hayes Picou Jr., civil defense director, who estimated the damage at at least $400,000.

Bonnie was not a major hurricane but still managed to terrify residents when it hit land south of Port Arthur.

"I sure enough thought we weren't going to live through it," said Nancy Morrell, who huddled in her Port Arthur home with her 83-year-old sister because they couldn't walk to a shelter. "It held us in fear. We were two scared old ladies."

One man was killed when his pickup truck was caught in a squall and went out of control on a road in Vidor, northwest of Port Arthur, and a partially paralyzed woman died after being trapped inside her burning Port Arthur home by flames fueled by gusts from the hurricane, officials said.

At least a dozen people were injured.

"This wasn't a severe hurricane, it wasn't a major hurricane, but it was a full-blown hurricane when it moved across the coastline this morning," said Neil Frank, director of the National Hurricane Center in Coral Gables, Fla.

Port Arthur was without power until about noon Thursday, said Police Sgt. Robert Williamson. Though the city showed evidence of the storm, with broken store windows, scattered tree limbs and debris-strewn streets, no major structural damage was reported.

In nearby Beaumont, trees fell and six small planes were toppled at the airport but no major damage was reported, said police Capt. Joe Crutchfield. City officials asked the state for emergency aid.

Gov. Mark White said he did not have a specific dollar amount on the damage.

Bonnie, the first June hurricane to strike Texas since 1957, was downgraded to a tropical storm about four hours after it made landfall.

Handicapped Law Ruled Out In Air

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court ruled today that airlines may discriminate against the disabled.

In a 6-3 ruling, the court said a federal law protecting the rights of the handicapped does not apply to air travelers.

Justice Lewis F. Powell, writing for the court, said airlines are exempt from a provision of federal law that revokes federal aid to those who discriminate against the handicapped.

Commercial airlines do not receive federal aid directly, Powell said, although they may benefit indirectly from aid to airports.

Powell said, "Congress imposes the obligations of (the anti-discrimination law) upon those who are in a position to accept or reject those obligations as a part of the decision whether or not to receive federal funds. In this case, the only parties in that position are the airport operators."

The court overturned a 1985 ruling by the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals here which said the 1973 anti-discrimination law applies to airlines.

The appeals court said the law applied to the airlines because they benefit from the government's air traffic control system that costs taxpayers more than $2 billion a year.

U.S. Plane Is Forced To Land

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Peru ordered an American cargo plane to land at Lima for violating Peruvian airspace, and kept it in Lima for about 18 hours, the official news agency Andina said.

Authorities at Lima's international airport said today the Boeing 707 left Peru at 7:40 p.m. Thursday to continue its flight from Mexico to Santiago, Chile, after the crew paid a $5,000 fine and $5,000 for ground services.

The authorities, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the plane, which was not carrying cargo, was ordered to land shortly before dawn Thursday.

It marked the second time this month Peru forced an American plane to land for violating its airspace by not first asking permission to fly over Peruvian territory.

On June 9, the Peruvian government ordered a Pan Am jumbo jet to land for the same reason.

Officials said Pan Am paid $5,000 in fines plus $10,000 for technical services and parking for the nine hours it spent at Lima.

Jobs Available

Job opportunities for carpenters, electricians, plumbers, cashiers and clerks are available in Greenville, according to Jim Hannan, manager of the Greenville Job Service Office of the Employment Security Commission.

Workers with experience in construction also are needed by several firms, he said. Part-time workers for grocery stores and fast food establishments are needed as well.

The employment office is located at 3101 Bismarck St.

Advocate Program

The Governor's Crime Commission and the Pitt County Board of Commissioners have granted final funding approval for a Pitt County Victim's Advocate.

The program will provide information and assistance to victims of crime as their cases are processed through the criminal justice system. Applications are available at the Pitt County Sheriff's Department.

Two Charged

One man was arrested on drug charges and another on weapons charges in connection with a 6:52 p.m. incident at the intersection of Fifth and Evans streets Thursday, according to Greenville police.

Officer W.C. Widener said John Joseph Douglas, 33, of 20 Jackson's Mobile Home Park was charged with possession of marijuana, while Larry Bruce Cole, 26, of Route 3, Greenville, was charged with carrying a concealed weapon and possession of a firearm by a felon.

Both men also were charged with being intoxicated and disruptive, Widener said.

ECVC Foundation

Morris Brody announced establishment of an Eastern Carolina Vocational Center Foundation at a recent board meeting of foundation trustees.

Brody, president of the board, said the foundation has been organized to assist persons desiring to make gifts to the institution.

ECVC Foundation Board of Trustees members include Dr. Howard G. Dawkins, Joe Gantz, Mack Howard, Walter B. Jones Jr., Spencer Hill and Kenneth Roberson.

The foundation is a tax-exempt organization structured to receive grants, gifts and other forms of donations for use in running the vocational center. Special awards and benefits for center employees also will be provided by the foundation.

The foundation will be headquartered at ECVC. The center assists physically and mentally handicapped citizens of Pitt and Martin counties.

Larceny Arrest

Police arrested Johnnie Wooten Powell, 20, of 404-A Bonners Lane on larceny charges Thursday morning.

Officer D.W. Nichols said Powell was charged in connection with the theft of a bicycle from 1111-A Brownlea Drive about 10:46 a.m.

Nichols, who said the bicycle was abandoned by Powell as he ran from the scene after being confronted by the owner, said Powell was taken into custody on 10th Street near College Court Apartments.

Eppes Parade

The Greenville Police Department has approved a request by C.M. Eppes Alumni Association to hold a parade July 5 at 2:30 p.m.

The parade will travel down Albemarle Avenue to West Fifth Street and Nash Street. Those streets will be closed until 4:30 p.m., police said.

Senate Backs Compromise Road-Funds Plan

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — A bipartisan highway funding package has drawn overwhelming support in the state Senate, but the upper chamber's enthusiasm for the $200 million bill apparently has yet to rub off on House leaders.

The program, a combination of tax increases and budget transfers that would boost the price of gasoline by 3.5 cents per gallon in fiscal 1986-87, gained tentative Senate approval Thursday, 43-6. A final vote was scheduled for today. If the bill is passed, it will go to the House.

Democratic Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan, who crafted the package with Republican Gov. Jim Martin this week, said he felt "wonderful" about the vote, which he said should give the bill momentum.

But House Speaker Liston Ramsey's top lieutenants remained non-committal, repeating their opposition to the $34 million in budget transfers from the general fund to the highway fund that are a key component of the program.

"I don't see any reason to change my position," said Rep. Bob Etheridge, D-Harnett. He added, however, that he supported providing adequate funding for the transportation system and that he expected a bill to be enacted.

Rep. Billy Watkins, D-Granville, co-chairman with Etheridge of the House Appropriations Committee, said chances were "fairly good" for getting a package through the Legislature.

Martin, in a news conference prior to the vote, acknowledged he and Jordan would have to work hard to sell the bill to a majority of the House members.

Martin said he had not decided whether to talk with Ramsey, who has refused to say whether he would support the bill.

"I don't think we're going to be defeated," Martin said. "I think it would be a very heavy burden for someone to derail a package with that kind of bipartisan support because it would be inordinately clear who it is that derailed it."

Jordan said he had no immediate plans to lobby House members personally, hinting that such efforts might not be appreciated by the House leadership.

The program would raise the tax on retail gasoline sales by 2 cents — from 12½ cents per gallon to 14½ cents per gallon — and would impose the 3 percent state sales tax on gasoline at the wholesale level. Both taxes would take effect July 15.

It would transfer driver's education programs from the highway fund to the general fund on July 1, 1987, saving the highway fund $27.6 million in 1987-88.

Other components include cost-saving measures by the Department of Transportation, exempting DOT from paying the sales tax on its purchases, and implementing a system under which motorists would register their cars every two years for $40 instead of annually for a $20 fee.

The package would generate $172 million in 1986-87 and $208.6 million in 1987-88. It is expected to be worth $243.5 million by 1991-92.

Prisons Delayed

RALEIGH (AP) — The Legislature is poised to order the Martin administration not to experiment with privately built and operated prisons until 1987 at the earliest.

By attaching a special provision to the 1986-87 budget, the Joint Appropriations Committee voted Thursday to delay any commitment to "privatization" until a legislative committee finishes a study of the issue.

"We feel like the prison system should be owned, maintained and operated by the state of North Carolina until some broad policy study is conducted and adopted," said Rep. Billy Watkins, D-Granville, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee.

The joint committee, appointed last year by Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan and House Speaker Liston Ramsey, recommended that a decision on private prisons be postponed until the 1987 session.

Taft's Vaccine Bill OK'd

RALEIGH (AP) — The Senate Judiciary II Committee approved a bill to control malpractice suits stemming from childhood vaccinations and curb soaring vaccine costs.

Sen. Tom Taft, D-Pitt, sponsor of the bill, said the panel nearly approved an amendment Thursday that would have destroyed the bill.

At issue is the soaring cost of some vaccines, which drug manufacturers have blamed on the threat of huge jury awards in suits stemming from vaccine-related injuries.

Taft's bill would channel those suits through the state Industrial Commission, which could award up to $1 million if negligence was found on the part of the doctor administering the shot or the drug maker. Pain and suffering awards would be limited to $500,000.

Victims hurt through uncontrollable biological reactions to she vaccine would get no award but would be cared for by the Department of Human Resources for the rest of their lives.

Wade Smith, representing the North Carolina State Bar Association, proposed a version in which all children injured by vaccines would be cared for by the department. The state, on behalf of the injured child, could sue to recover the cost of such care.

Taft argued that the amendment would do nothing to insulate doctors from the fear of lawsuits or to protect drug makers from multi-million dollar jury awards.

The committee appeared ready to adopt Smith's proposal when Sen.

Dan Simpson, R-Burke, offered an amendment to say the bill would not apply to drug makers unless they agreed to supply the department with vaccines at a cost not including the huge levy for self-insurance against civil suits.

March Threat Under Investigation

WHITAKERS, N.C. (AP) — The Nash County Republican candidate for sheriff says he had a gun in his back pocket but never displayed it when he told NAACP marchers to get off his property, but a marcher says a man armed with a rifle threatened to shoot.

The FBI is investigating the confrontation, according to FBI special supervisory agent Horace Beckwith in Charlotte. Beckwith said Thursday his office had received a complaint concerning the incident but said he could not comment further.

The marchers were making their way to Baltimore from Los Angeles in the March for Human Dignity in South Africa and at Home.

A marcher reported the incident to the Nash County Sheriff's Department about 10:30 a.m. Tuesday. The sheriff's department then contacted the FBI. Nash County Sheriff Frank Brown said the marchers first notified the U.S. Justice Department.

The Rev. Thomas Anthony Minor, a coordinator of the march, said the group was marching on U.S. 301 Monday when the first marcher was beckoned by a man to his trailer. A Confederate flag was hanging outside the trailer, Minor said.

"He motioned for him to come over, and he told him to tell us (the marchers) not to march past his home."

Minor said the man was armed with a handgun.

Minor said when the marchers approached the trailer, the man on the porch "went back in his house and came out and had a large rifle. He said if we marched by his house, he would shoot at us."

The man first sat on his front porch with his rifle, but then stood and held the rifle in a "ready-to-shoot position straight toward us," Minor said.

The marchers continued past the home "quickly and quietly," and no shots were fired, Minor said.

Robert Ivey, a candidate for Nash County sheriff, said he confronted an NAACP marcher who came into his yard. But he disputed the marchers' version of the incident.

Ivey said he treated the marcher as he treats all trespassers.

"I just told him to get, and he got ... I don't see where there is any story to it," Ivey said.

Ivey said he was carrying a .25-caliber handgun in his back jeans pocket when he told the marcher to leave his property. He said he never aimed the gun at the marchers and never took the handgun from his pocket. He said there was no rifle involved.

Ivey said he has had trouble in the past with trespassers and regularly carries his handgun with him inside and outside his home, where a "No Trespassing" sign is posted.

IN THE STATE

Farm Income

DURHAM (AP) — Farmers in 11 North Carolina counties still count on tobacco for at least half their annual gross income, according to county estimates of 1985 farm income published by the North Carolina Agriculture Extension Service.

Vance County led the list, counting on tobacco for 70.5 percent of its annual gross agricultural income.

Tobacco accounted for more than half the gross farm sales in a total of 11 North Carolina counties. They include: Caswell, 69.4 percent; Person and Stokes, 67.9 percent; Rockingham, 62.3 percent; Graham, 60 percent; Madison, 59.7 percent; Wake, 53.9 percent; Granville and Harnett, 51.1 percent; and Durham, 50.6 percent.

Baby Death

TARBORO, N.C. (AP) — Edgecombe County authorities are investigating the death of an 11-month-old baby because of bruises on the child's body, Sheriff Phil Ellis said Thursday.

Victor Matthew Keel of Route 4, Tarboro, was pronounced dead on arrival at the emergency room at Heritage Hospital early Thursday morning, Ellis said.

Deputies were alerted when hospital personnel noticed bruises on the child's head, one leg and behind one ear, Ellis said.

Ellis said he hoped to know more about the child's death after an autopsy being conducted at Nash General Hospital.

Davie Awards

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — Four North Carolina business executives have received William Richardson Davie Awards from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

The recipients were Frank H. Kenan of Chapel Hill, Howard Holderness of Greensboro, Edward M. O'Herron of Charlotte and the late Bowman Gray III, a Winston-Salem native. Gray's wife, Joby K. Gray of New York City accepted his award.

Established in 1984, the award is given by the board of trustees to recognize distinguished service to UNC in the name of William Richardson Davie, considered the father of the school and a Revolutionary War hero.

Recall Threat

DURHAM (AP) — Despite a recall threat, Durham Mayor Wib Gulley has signed a proclamation that says everyone — including homosexuals — should enjoy freedom from discrimination.

The proclamation, which calls June 22-29 Anti-Discrimination Week, says "lesbians and gay men often face discrimination in housing, employment, immigration policy, child custody and many other parts of their lives" and often are "targets of harassment, intimidation and violent attack merely because of their affectational orientation."

Profit Sharing

DURHAM (AP) — Thirty-seven employees of West Durham Lumber Co. are getting checks totaling nearly $1.4 million.

"How many other companies our size could be distributing that kind of money?" asked owner Russell Barringer.

The money represents the closing out of the company's thrift and profit-sharing plan. The company, which has been in business for 66 years, is ending the fund because of changes in federal regulations.

Food Center Scheduled

DUNN, N.C. (AP) — The Food Lion grocery chain announced plans Thursday to build a $38 million food distribution center south of Dunn that eventually will employ up to 400 people.

Construction is scheduled to begin this fall on property between U.S. 301 and State Road 1780 outside of town, officials said.

The company is expected to move into the facility by next spring.

Phone Workers Get Pay Raise

By BILL McCLOSKEY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of AT&T's largest union return to work today with job security guarantees they consider vital in an industry in which American workers are being replaced by automation and overseas labor.

The 155,000 long-distance operators, installers, sales personnel and equipment plant workers also got an 8 percent pay raise, spread over three years.

Rozanne Weissman, public affairs director for the Communications Workers of America, called the tentative pact "a major breakthrough in the telecommunications industry" because of the employment security package and other gains.

American Telephone & Telegraph Co. spokesman Herb Linnen said the agreements will "give us flexibility in structuring and paying certain job categories so we will be better able to keep our costs — and prices — in line with our competition."

The package will be sent to workers for a secret ratification vote, which is expected to be completed Aug. 4, but workers were told to report for work at the start of the midnight shift today.

In Chicago, Mattie Harris, an AT&T group manager, said some employees had returned to work and more were expected for the early morning shift.

"Some of our people came at midnight when, as I understand it, the strike ended," said Mattie Harris. "Not that many were scheduled to work. We expect the bulk of them to be back beginning with the 5:30 a.m. shift."

Mrs. Harris declined to give the number of workers or provide any further details.

Negotiators for the union and AT&T reached a tentative agreement on a national wage and employment security package on June 17. However, the strike, which began June 1, ended Thursday, when bargainers for workers at the unit hardest hit by layoffs last year agreed on work rules, including work schedules and sales quota requirements.

The bargaining on working conditions for AT&T Information Services employees, the people who sell, install and maintain business phone equipment, delayed the end of the 26-day walkout by five days.

Handshake agreements came quickly for five other units once the national agreement was reached.

Irish Reject Divorce Bid

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — The government proposal to scrap Ireland's ban on divorce appeared headed for defeat today as first returns came in from a nationwide referendum, state radio said.

RTE, the national network, said early returns from Thursday's vote indicated a crushing anti-divorce vote in conservative rural areas, while initial tallies in metropolitan Dublin were far from the 2-1 yes vote that supporters of the referendum believed was vital to ensure its passage.

The radio said defeat was a "virtual certainty." Final results were not expected until later after returns from the 5,000 polling stations were tallied.

Initial estimates were that 50 percent to 55 percent of the 2.4 million eligible voters cast ballots in the keenly fought referendum which tested the loyalty of the 97 percent Roman Catholic country to its church's teachings.

The radio said the two constituencies most likely to support the amendment, the port town of Dun Laoghaire and nearby Dublin South, had voted respectively 61 percent and 55 percent in favor of the amendment.

In Dublin North, the no vote was ahead 52-48, the radio said.

In Galway, on the west coast, the vote was running 3-1 against divorce, said Radio Telefis Eireann. It said heavy no votes were shaping up in the Mayo, Tipperary, and Cavan and Monaghan districts.

"I think that on the returns so far the referendum is heading for defeat. I think a very heavy defeat in the country," said John Cooney, political correspondent of The Irish Times and author of a book on the divorce issue.

"All the prospects overnight have been that the Dublin vote will not be sufficient to counterweight any vote in the country," Cooney said. "I think at this stage the government is bracing itself for what extent the defeat might be."

The divorce ban is written into the 1937 constitution and can only be removed by referendum.

The government seeks divorce for couples who can show a court their marriage has been irretrievably broken down for at least five years.

Murder Charges Levied

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) —

The man accused in the 13½-hour siege on exclusive Rodeo Drive has been charged with three counts of murder, including the death of a sales manager who was killed mistakenly by a police marksman.

The three murder counts against Steven Livaditis, 22, were approved Thursday by the district attorney's office to file in Beverly Hills Municipal Court, said spokesman Al Albergate.

Livaditis also faces four counts of robbery, three of false imprisonment and three counts of kidnapping, Albergate said.

The robbery charge applies to the theft of $2 million in jewelry that Livaditis allegedly ordered hostages in the Van Cleef & Arpels Inc. store to load into a briefcase, the spokesman said.

He also is accused of killing security guard William Richard Smith, 54, and saleswoman Ann C. Heilperin, 40, during the siege Monday, and with the murder of sales manager Hugh Skinner, 64, who was hit by a police bullet.

The police marksman mistook Skinner for the gunman who had held five hostages in the store, but Livaditis can be charged because the death resulted from crimes he is accused of committing, Albergate said.

Georgia Execution Stayed

ATLANTA (AP) — A federal appeals court today stayed the execution of a man sentenced to death for murdering a police chief just hours before he was to go to the electric chair.

The 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals issued the stay without ruling on the details of Son H. Fleming's appeal, according to the clerk's office of the Atlanta-based court.

Fleming's execution was stayed pending further order of the court, and no further proceedings have been scheduled, the clerk's office said.

On Thursday, Fleming, 56, had been moved to a holding cell near the execution chamber, at the Georgia Diagnostic and Classification Center near Jackson, as his lawyers awaited word on state and federal appeals.

But after prison officials learned of the stay, Fleming was moved back to his cell with the rest of the death row population, said state prisons spokesman John Siler.

Fleming's lawyers had asked the 11th Circuit to block the execution, arguing that prosecutors improperly tried to eliminate blacks from the jury.

They also asked the state Board of Pardons and Paroles to stop the execution, saying there is a question about Fleming's role in the slaying and noting that he has had three heart attacks while in prison.

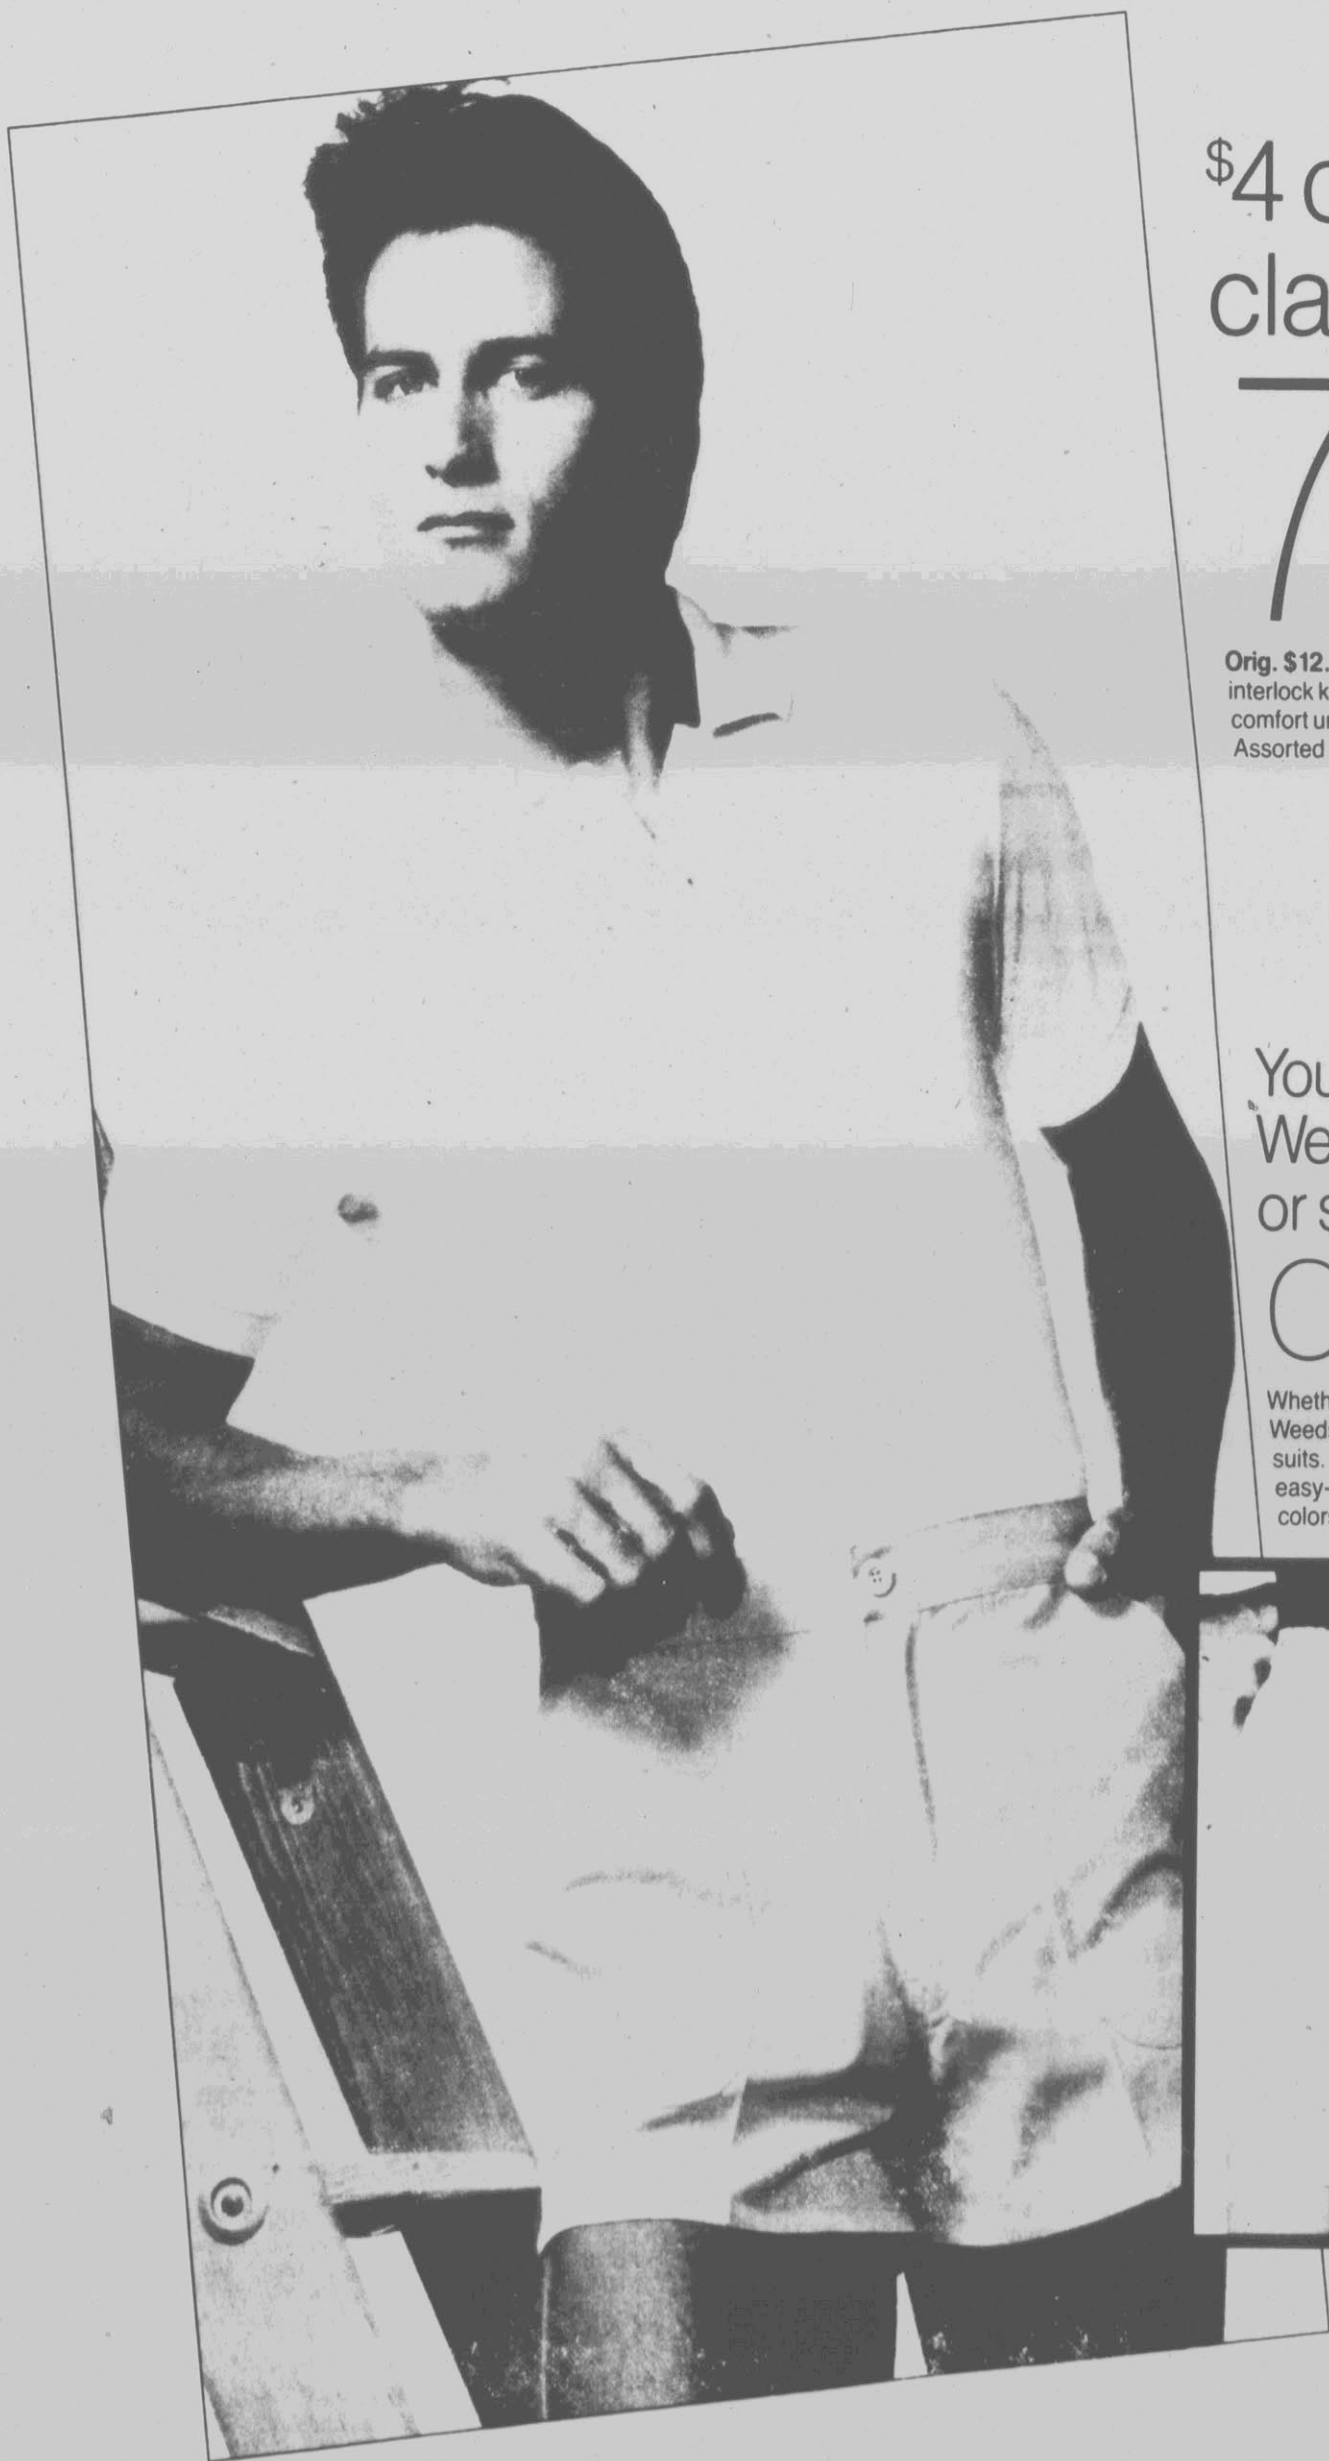

Fleming was convicted of the 1976 murder of Ray City Police Chief Ed Giddens. According to trial testimony, Giddens pleaded for his life and told his assailants he was to retire the next day.

Since Fleming's trial, the U.S. Supreme Court has ruled attempts to exclude blacks from juries are improper. Fleming's lawyers contend the execution should be blocked until the court decides in a pending case whether this ruling should be retroactive.

Fleming would have been the eighth person executed in Georgia since the state resumed the death penalty in 1983 and the second in four days. Jerome Bowden, 33, was executed Tuesday.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

WHEN PROPHETS DISAGREED!

HANANIAH, THE SON OF AZUR, A BENJAMITE OF GIBEON, WAS A FALSE PROPHET IN THE REIGN OF ZEDEKIAH KING OF JUDAH! IN THE 4TH YEAR OF HIS REIGN (B.C. 595), HANANIAH HAD THE TEMERITY TO WITHSTAND JEREMIAH THE PROPHET, AND PUBLICLY PROPHESY, IN THE TEMPLE, THAT WITHIN TWO YEARS ALL THE CAPTIVES, WHICH HAD BEEN TAKEN BY NEBUCHADNEZZAR, ALONG WITH THE GOLD VESSELS FROM THE TEMPLE WOULD BE RETURNED FROM BABYLON TO JERUSALEM (JER. 28). THIS INDICATED THAT THERE WERE UNDERHANDED NEGOTIATIONS GOING ON WITH EGYPT — A PLAN THAT JEREMIAH PREACHED AGAINST, TIME AFTER TIME! HANANIAH CORROBORATED THIS BY TEARING THE YOKE FROM OFF THE NECK OF JEREMIAH, WORN IN TOKEN OF THE SUBJECTION OF JUDAH TO THE BABYLONIAN EMPIRE. BUT JEREMIAH'S REPLY TO THIS WAS TO TELL HANANIAH THAT HE SHOULD MAKE...

IRON YOKES, SO FIRM WAS THE DOMINION OF BABYLON FOR YEARS AND YEARS TO COME! AS A FURTHER REBUKE, JEREMIAH PREDICTED HANANIAH'S DEATH BEFORE THE YEAR SHOULD PASS — WHICH CAME ABOUT JUST AS JEREMIAH PROPHESIED! PERHAPS HANANIAH HAD THE LAST LAUGH, OUT OF THE GRAVE — FOR IT WAS HIS GRANDSON, IRIJAH, CAPTAIN OF THE WARD, WHO ARRESTED JEREMIAH AT THE GATE OF BENJAMIN, ON THE CHARGE OF DESERTING TO THE BABYLONIANS! (JER. 37:13) THIS EPISODE, OUT OF THE LIFE OF JEREMIAH, THROWS INTERESTING LIGHT UPON THE JEWISH POLITICS OF THAT TIME AND THE DIVISION OF THE PARTIES THAT WERE FOR BABYLON ON THE ONE HAND, AND EGYPT ON THE OTHER — ALMOST LIKE IT IS TODAY!!

New Pastor

The Rev. John Speight Jr. is the new associate pastor of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church.

A native of Virginia Beach, Va., Speight is a graduate of Old Dominion University and the Duke University School of Divinity.

REV. JOHN SPEIGHT JR.

While at Duke, Speight served the Prospect Circuit, consisting of three United Methodist churches in central Virginia. He was ordained a deacon in the United Methodist Church in Roanoke, Va., and transferred to the North Carolina Annual Conference to be appointed at Jarvis Memorial. He will preach at worship services July 6 at 8:45 a.m. and 11 a.m.

July Concert

Evangelist Shirley Ceasar and the Ceasar Singers will be in concert July 5 at 7 p.m. at Lenoir Community College. The college is located on U.S. 70 East near Kinston. Local talent also will be featured.

District Meeting

The United Methodist Women of Greenville District held a Spiritual Day Apart recently at Holly Springs United Methodist Church in Williamston.

Pianist Lily Chou, a teacher at the College of the Albemarle, Elizabeth City, addressed the group. She accompanied her pupil, cellist Li Xiano-Di of China, in a performance of selections he will play at the International Tchaikowsky Competition in Moscow.

The women collected $500 to assist Xiano-Di on his trip.

Classes Cancelled

Sunday School classes will not be held at St. Mary Missionary Baptist Church Sunday because of a union meeting.

Members riding the bus to the meeting should meet at the church at 10 a.m. or at Rivergate shopping center at 10:15 a.m. The bus will resume its regular schedule July 6.

Youth Congress

Andrew Allen Sutton, a member of Hooker Memorial Christian Church, has been selected to represent Pitt County at a National Christian Youth Congress. The congress will be held in Orange, Calif.

Sutton is the son of Jean and Allen Sutton of Greenville and is a rising junior at J.H. Rose High School.

Church Scholarship

Terri Baker, a graduate of Farmville Central High School, recently was awarded the Annie Williams Cox Memorial Scholarship by Moye's Chapel Free Will Baptist Church.

The scholarship is awarded annually by relatives of the late Annie Williams Cox to a member of the church.

Ms. Baker is the daughter of Willie and Gloria Barnes of Farmville.

Contest Fundraiser

Martha Carr and Cornell Parker were crowned king and queen of St. Mary's Missionary Baptist Church in a recent fund-raising contest.

First runner-up winners were Wade Johnson Jr. and Brenda Howard.

Christians Hold Firm In N. Korea

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — For 40 years, North Korea has been a sealed Communist fortress, closed to Western eyes, its religious life — if any — a question mark. But now, U.S. Christians have had a peek at it.

The surviving, visible remnant is tiny, amounting only to 10,000 believers according to officially supplied figures, an eighth of what it once was, a comparative handful in a population of 20 million.

Although the little, beleaguered Christian community is fragile, the fact that it still exists is cause for encouragement, says Patricia Patterson, leader of the first official, representative American church group to visit North Korea.

In the situation there, "the transcendent is squeezed out by the political," she says, but the remaining "Christian believers continue to maintain the faith," the few openly, others secretly.

They "exist in an environment where there is little space to express faith openly," she told a news briefing after return of the 10-member interdenominational group.

She said it was informed that no church buildings remain used for worship in North Korea, but 500 "house churches" function — homes in which groups of about 10 each meet regularly for worship.

Their participants, plus others, make up the 10,000 members reported by a state-permitted organization called the Christian Federation, most of them middle-aged or elderly, she said.

"The Christian community is both visible and invisible," she said, the "invisible" part beyond those officially counted as believers.

"We learned there are people who are Christians who continue to pray and worship but do not identify openly with the federation or house churches," she said.

She compared the situation to that of Christians under the Roman empire, which demanded complete loyalty to the deified emperor, considering Christians seditious, its believers worshipping quietly in house meetings.

"For people to express faith in Jesus Christ as Lord is a strong stand to take since President Kim Il-Sung is seen as the benevolent father-head of the country," she said.

Group members noted that the attitude promoted toward the president is that of "beneficent father from whom all gifts flow." Like the Soviet Union, North Korea's constitution assures "freedom of religion as well as freedom of anti-religious propaganda," but believers are regarded as suspect.

"The environment is not friendly to Christian conviction," Ms. Patterson said. "It's rather difficult for Christians to walk the narrow line between faith and the state."

Stock And Market Reports

By The Associated Press
HOGS: Trend is $1.50 higher at N.C. buying stations. Kinston, Spivey's Corner, Murfreesboro, Siler City and Robersonville, 60.50; Clinton, Fayetteville, Dunn, Pink Hill, Pine Level, Chadbourn, Ayden, Laurinburg and Benson 61.00; Wilson 60.50. Rowland unreported. Sows: (500 pounds up) Fayetteville 45.00; Whiteville 43.00; Wallace 46.00; Spivey's Corner 48.00; Rowland 48.00.

BROILERS: The North Carolina fob dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 61.75 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2 1/2 to 3 pounds birds. 100 percent of the loads offered have been confirmed with a preliminary weighted average of 62.71 cents fob dock or equivalent. The market is higher and the live supply is adequate for a good demand. Average weights desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Friday was 2,810,000, compared to 2,824,000 last Friday.

HENS: Market steady. Supply fully adequate for a moderate demand. Prices paid per pound for hens over seven pounds at farm for Wednesday, Thursday and Friday was 11 cents.

GRAIN: No. 2 yellow shelled corn mostly 3 cents lower at mostly 2.57-2.69 in East and mostly 2.77-2.81 in the Piedmont; No. 1 yellow soybeans 1 to 3 cents lower at mostly 5.19-5.36 in East and mostly 5.11-5.16 in the Piedmont; wheat mostly 2.51-2.67; (new crop corn 1.76-1.95; soybeans 4.53-4.88).

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market gained ground today, resuming this week's stop-and-start rally as interest rates declined once more.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose 6.47 to 1,886.67 in the first hour of trading, moving above the record close of 1,885.90 it set on June 6.

Gainers outnumbered losers by about 3 to 2 in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Opening-hour volume on the Big Board came to 29.56 million shares.

Analysts said a round of buying at the opening was inspired by rising prices and falling interest rates in the credit markets. Prices of long-term government bonds rose $5 to $10 for every $1,000 in face value in early activity today.

Both the bond and stock markets have benefited lately from expectations that the Federal Reserve will relax its credit policy another notch to counter continuing sluggishness in economic growth.

However, stocks have encountered sporadic bursts of profit-taking as the market hovers around record highs.

Going into the next-to-last session before the midway point of 1986, the Dow Jones industrials sported a 327.10-point gain since New Year's.

Among actively traded blue chips, Philip Morris rose 1/8 to 74 3/4; Sears Roebuck 1/8 to 48 3/8; American Telephone & Telegraph 1/8 to 25 1/8, and RJR Nabisco 1/8 to 53 1/8.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks gained 32 to 142.99. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down 29 at 283.56.

On Thursday the Dow Jones industrial average dropped 4.85 to 1,880.20.

Declining issues slightly outnumbered advances on the NYSE. Big Board volume totaled 134.07 million shares, against 161.79 million in the previous session.

Bush, S.C. Republican Differ On Textile Plan

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) — Vice President George Bush and U.S. Rep. Carroll Campbell have agreed to disagree on the Reagan administration's textile trade policy.

Campbell said Thursday he will fight to override President Reagan's veto of a textile import bill to save South Carolina jobs. Bush said he respected Campbell and his position but said limiting textile imports could spark retaliation from other countries.

"We do have a difference of opinion," said Campbell, adding that he will "stand and fight for our people."

Bush, who said Campbell and U.S. Rep. Tommy Hartnett are effectively working to override Reagan's veto, said "I'll be working to support the administration's decision. C'est la vie, that's the way life is. You can't have complete agreement on everything."

Campbell and Hartnett are the Republican candidates for governor and lieutenant governor of South Carolina.

Bush proved his good will toward his Republican ally by visiting Campbell in the heart of South Carolina's textile region Thursday and helping to raise more than $200,000 for his gubernatorial campaign. Bush departed today at 10:22 a.m. to fly to Raleigh, N.C. for an appearance at a school and a political fund-raiser.

Eighteen students at Raleigh's Enloe High School students who wrote letters urging Soviet students to help other young people promote peace between their two nations were to meet with Bush.

In April Bush asked the students at Enloe and at Jefferson City Senior High in Kansas City, Mo., to answer two letters Soviet students had sent to the White House.

"They are very excited. They have a certain sense of sophistication, and realize this is a very important project, but there was a great deal of youthful excitement," said Enloe social studies teacher David P. Cordts, who organized the students who volunteered to write their Soviet counterparts.

"They are aware of the tensions between the two countries, and viewed this as an opportunity to do something," Cordts said. "They have become more aware of the role of the federal government and the problems that it has."

Bush planned a 30-minute meeting with the students as part of his four-day swing across the nation to stump for Republican candidates.

He also was scheduled to attend a fund-raiser this afternoon for U.S. Rep. Bill Cobey at the Raleigh Civic Center.

Hijack Trial Suspended To Decide Fate Of Juror

GENOA, Italy (AP) — The judge in the Achille Lauro hijacking trial today suspended proceedings for three days to consider whether to drop a juror whom the chief prosecutor asked to leave the panel.

The juror, Silvio Ferrari, sent a letter to Judge Lino Monteverde today asking to be excused.

Ferrari told reporters he had received a letter Thursday from chief prosecutor Gennaro De Feo "inviting" him to leave the panel. He said the letter asked him not to talk about the reasons De Feo cited in asking him to leave.

Ferrari, a Communist member of the Genoa provincial legislature, said he had done nothing to compromise his position as a juror.

"I remain at the court's disposal as a citizen, just as I was on June 5 when I was selected for the jury and I agreed to serve," he said.

Monteverde told reporters that De Feo's letter to Ferrari contained no accusations, only an invitation to leave the panel. He did not elaborate. Monteverde said the trial would resume Tuesday.

Monteverde, another judge and six civilian jurors comprise the jury hearing evidence against 15 defendants charged in connection with the Oct. 7-9 hijacking of the Achille Lauro cruise ship.

There are six civilian alternate jurors.

Today's session was to have included arguments by a lawyer for Lisa Klinghoffer, a daughter of the crippled American passenger slain during the hijacking, Leon Klinghoffer.

Miss Klinghoffer and her sister, Ilsa, are seeking compensation for the death of their father, who was shot in the head and thrown overboard.

If the court rules there are sufficient grounds for the Klinghoffer daughters to claim compensation, then a civil trial would be held. If the civil court rules that compensation is warranted, the minimum amount specified by Italian law is 100 million lire, or nearly $67,000.

Presumably, the defendants in the current criminal trial would be held liable, and the owners of the Achille Lauro also might be called upon to provide compensation.

On Thursday, a defense lawyer and prison officials said a Syrian defendant in the case tied a sheet to a window bar in his cell and slipped it around his neck, but was found alive by guards.

A report from Novara maximum security prison said the act Wednesday evening by Mohawat Gandura, 37, was "a theatrical gesture, given the presence of numerous personnel in the department at the moment."

Gandura, a native of Damascus, Syria, is charged with helping the hijackers travel through Italy before they boarded the cruise ship in Genoa.

Emmanuele Lamberti, Gandura's lawyer, said he didn't know if his client intended to kill himself. Lamberti said Gandura was unconscious briefly after the incident.

The prison report said Gandura was uninjured. "It was an act of desperation," Lamberti said in an interview. The lawyer said Gandura's "instinct for self-preservation" might have led him to make the attempt while guards were around in hopes they would intervene.

The defendants were transferred last week from a Genoa prison to more secure facilities at Novara, about 60 miles north of Genoa, after the hijacker accused of shooting Klinghoffer shouted threats in Arabic at the court Friday.

Youssef Magied al-Moqli, who shouted the threats, and three other Palestinians are accused of seizing the cruise ship. They are Ibrahim Fatayer Abdelatif, Ahmad Mahmoud Al Assadi and Bassam Al-Ashker.

Because he was only 17 at the time of the hijacking, Ashker will be tried later by a juvenile court.

Mohammed Abbas, a Palestinian leader also known as Abul Abbas, is accused of being the mastermind of the hijacking. He and nine other defendants are being tried in absentia.

FBI Shoots Man Thought To Be Carrying Explosives

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — FBI agents trailed a pair of suspected bank robbers almost 200 miles from Cleveland, then shot one of them as he approached a bank carrying an attache case containing explosives.

The agents identified themselves and tried to halt Thomas J. Carney as he walked toward a suburban Goldome Bank office, but he warned them "I'm going to push the button," said FBI agent G. Robert Langford.

Carney, 40, tried to reach inside his coat just before he was shot once in the head, said Langford, acting agent-in-charge of the Buffalo FBI office. The Cleveland man was in serious but stable condition today at the Erie County Medical Center, said FBI spokesman Michael Kogut.

Agents arrested Carney's companion in a truck parked nearby. He was identified as Harold G. Scaggs, 44, also of the Cleveland area.

Carney was armed with a .45-caliber pistol, a stun gun, a detonator for the bomb and two cartridge clips, Langford said. Scaggs wasn't armed, he said.

An explosive device in Carney's briefcase was detonated by an Erie County sheriff's bomb disposal unit, Langford said.

FBI agents in Cleveland began following the pair Thursday morning as part of an investigation of three bank holdups in the Cleveland area in which a total of about $243,000 was taken, Langford said.

He said two of those holdups involved explosives and a fake bomb was used in the third. In all three cases, he said, the holdup man wore a suit and carried an attache case.

While the agents followed Carney and Scaggs from Cleveland to Buffalo the two men made a stop and one of them changed into a suit, Langford said.

Langford estimated 20 FBI agents from Cleveland and Buffalo were at the scene when they closed in on Carney.

"Being that they had used this briefcase before, we felt the best way to do it was to take him down while he was walking alone, and he'd be surprised and we could disarm him," Langford said.

Oakland Fires Jackie Moore

By DOUG TUCKER
AP Sports Writer

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A mouse that cost Dave Kingman $3,502. A baserunning blunder that cost Jackie Moore a job.

All things considered, this was one of the more eventful four-game series in Oakland baseball history. It seemed almost fitting for the A's to cap their zany trip to mid-America Thursday night by taking it on the chin, 9-2, as the Kansas City Royals thoroughly spoiled Jeff Newman's managerial debut.

With Jorge Orta hitting an inside-the-park home run, the Royals scored four runs in the first inning and four more in the second.

Newman, converted from bullpen coach to interim manager when Moore was fired Thursday morning, had hoped for something better.

"It wasn't the way I wanted it to be. I'll say that," said the former A's catcher. "We had opportunities. We hit the ball hard. Those things fall in, it could have been a different story."

In the only major-league games Thursday, Detroit beat Baltimore 8-3 and Texas downed Seattle 10-3.

Moore's dismissal was anything but unexpected. Oakland's lone victory Tuesday night in this eight-game road trip had snapped a team-record 15-game road losing streak. A gut-wrenching 5-4 loss Wednesday night, featuring Ricky Peters' baserunning mistake in the ninth inning, plunged their record to 29-44.

Kingman's practical joke during Monday night's game, in which he had "a $2 rat" delivered to a female sportswriter, backfired in his face.

The moody slugger was fined $3,500 and told he would be fired if it ever happened again. Moreover, the incident seemed to indicate that morale and discipline among the boys from the East Bay had sunk to a new low, and probably did nothing to strengthen Moore's tenuous hold on his job.

But with Newman at the controls and Moore flying home to Arlington, Texas, Thursday night, the A's went back to business as usual. They loaded the bases in the first and fifth but failed to score.

"Did I experience anything I didn't expect to?" said Newman. "Yes. I really didn't expect them to score eight runs in the first two innings."

Pitcher Rick Langford, one of Newman's closest friends, was the victim of the shelling and dropped to 1-8.

"He and I played together many years," said Newman, who maintains he is not a candidate for Moore's permanent replacement. "And he wanted to do well for my first day. He probably pressed a little."

"I wasn't looking for miracles tonight," Newman said. "But the same things happened to us tonight that have been happening the past four weeks, or whatever. I thought we showed a little composure settling down after the first two innings."

Moore's firing caused a change of plans for Royals' Manager Dick Howser, who will manage the American League in next month's All-Star game.

"He was a friend. I hate to see it. I had selected him as a coach for the All-Star Game," Howser said. "Now he can't do it. I don't know what I'm going to do. But he's been a credit to baseball. He'll wind up back on his feet."

Howser said he told Moore how he handled getting fired by New York Yankees owner George Steinbrenner after winning 103 games in 1980.

"He needs to get away from it for a while. I talked to him this afternoon and told him to just relax for a while and don't even look at the scores in the papers," Howser said.

"Every manager knows there's a guillotine out there with his name on it. You keep evading it, and you try to keep going. But you know it's out there and you know some day it's going to get you.

Charlie Liebrandt, 8-5, picked up the victory, while Rudy Law had two hits and drove in three runs and Willie Wilson had three singles.

Rangers 10, Mariners 3

Larry Parrish and Steve Buechele each hit two-run homers during a six-run first inning as Texas broke a three-game losing streak by beating Seattle.

The Rangers rapped eight straight hits in the first inning and finished with 17 for the game.

Tom Paciorek had four hits and Scott Fletcher had three, while Od-dibe McDowell also homered.

Charlie Hough, 7-3, gave up three runs on five hits in seven innings. Hough won for the first time in Seattle since Sept. 30, 1981, ending his streak of three straight losses at the Kingdome.

Bob Kearney hit a three-run homer for the Mariners.

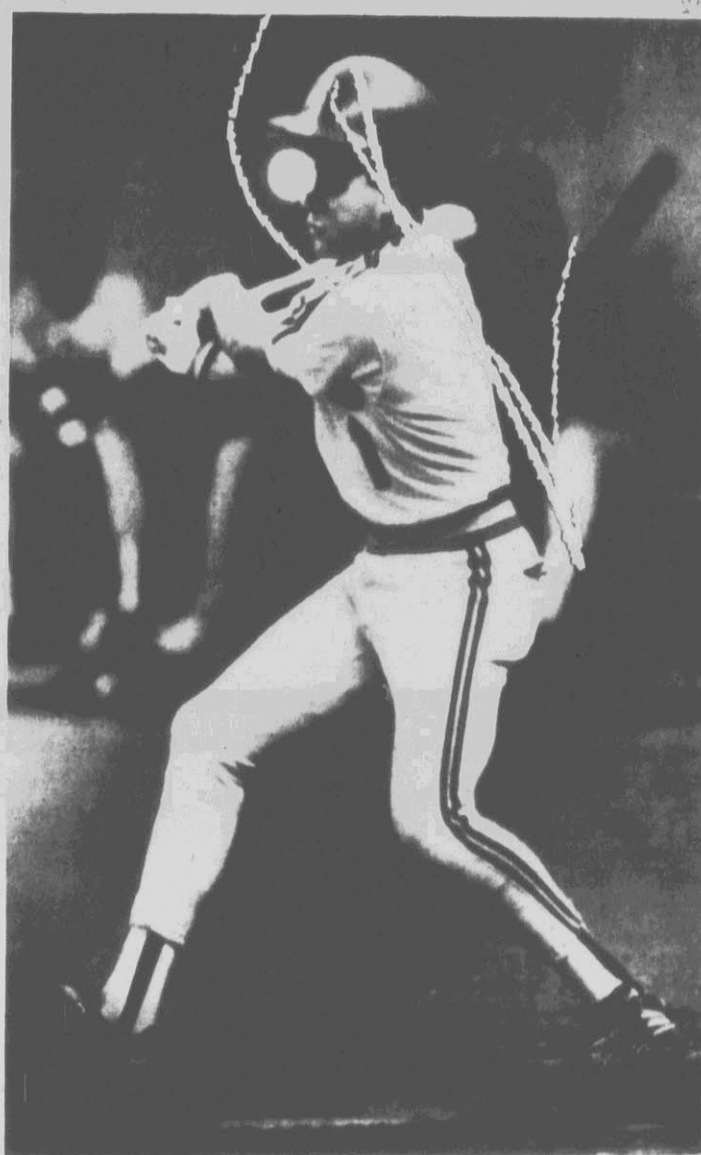

Tigers 8, Orioles 3

Lance Parrish hit a pair of two-run homers and Walt Terrell gave up five hits over 8 2-3 innings as Detroit beat Baltimore for the sixth time in seven games this season.

Parrish connected in the first inning after a single by Alan Trammell, who went 4-for-4, and added another homer, his 17th home run of the season, in the fifth.

Terrell, 7-5, left the game after walking John Shelby with the bases loaded and two outs in the ninth. Willie Hernandez got the final out for his 14th save.

Mike Flanagan, 1-5, who gave up both of Parrish's homers, took the loss at Tiger Stadium.

Keeping His Eye On the Ball

Bias' Investigation Widens

BALTIMORE (AP) — The chief prosecutor for the District of Columbia has confirmed his office has been drawn into the investigation surrounding the drug-induced death of University of Maryland basketball standout Len Bias.

U.S. Attorney Joseph Di Genova acknowledged late Thursday that his office had become involved in one aspect of the case: whether the cocaine that killed Bias was purchased in Washington.

"A crime was committed in the District of Columbia, according to published reports," Di Genova told the Associated Press from his Washington home. "That matter is the subject of an inquiry."

According to broadcast and published reports, Bias purchased cocaine on a Washington street corner hours before he died.

A Baltimore radio station, WBAL, quoted unidentified sources at the University of Maryland as saying Bias bought eight grams of cocaine in Washington for $800 on the morning of June 19. Earlier reports placed Bias in an area of Northeast Washington noted for its on-the-street drug sales hours before he suffered cardiac arrest.

Prince George's County police have declined to comment on any evidence of such a purchase.

Di Genova defined the crime under investigation as "the distribution of drugs," and said any information his office gathered would be transmitted to Prince George's County authorities.

"I've confirmed to you there is an investigation," he said.

District of Columbia police spokesman Quintin Peterson said Thursday a gram of 90 percent to 97 percent pure cocaine would sell in Washington for $315, making eight grams worth $2,520. He said cocaine confiscated from street sales in the district averages 20 percent pure.

A District of Columbia police officer, who asked not to be identified, told The Associated Press in Washington that Bias could not have purchased on the street cocaine of the purity found in his body.

"That would have to come from a major dealer. A dealer would hold something like that for himself and his friends," he said.

Law enforcement officials have threatened to prosecute anyone who may have contributed the uncut cocaine that the state medical examiner says caused Bias' heart to stop.

At the College Park campus where Bias died, the shock waves from the death of a 22-year-old athletic superstar have raised questions about school policies.

Chancellor John B. Slaughter told the Washington Post in an interview that he would transfer oversight of the university's academic support unit for athletes from the athletic department to the academic sector. He acknowledged that the university shares with the athletic department the blame for the poor performance of some athletes.

Maryland, he said, is guilty of exploiting its athletes, "just as every institution" heavily involved in athletics.

The university's Board of Regents meets Monday to examine academic records of athletes, who reportedly are failing at a high rate. According to school administrators, less than a third of the players on the men's basketball team during the last several years have earned degrees. At the same time, the figures indicate team members have flunked out of school three times more frequently than university students as a whole.

The board of regents also will examine athletic and academic officials' responses to the news of Bias' death early Thursday, a state official has confirmed.

The official, who declined to be identified, also said the university's top governing body would examine on-campus drug abuse.

"There are obviously some institutional concerns we're going to have to come to terms with," said Allen Schwait, the board chairman who called the meeting.

"I'm not saying we can't do things better, but we're doing things. Maybe we'll come out better off for this, but it's an expensive price to pay to get people to look at" the drug abuse problem, Schwait said.

As the university grapples with the issues of academic vs. athletic priorities and drug abuse, the Prince George's County prosecutor is pulling together details and witnesses for an upcoming grand jury session.

Although the university has been conducting an active and random drug sampling program for athletes, officials on campus are keeping mum about it because of Slaughter's gag order on the Bias case.

The Baltimore Evening Sun quoted sources who asked not to be identified Thursday as saying several unidentified athletes failed random drug tests during the 1985-86 school year, but passed when tested a second time.

The state official who commented on the regents' meeting said they would look at the actions of basketball coach Lefty Driesell after he got word Bias had died while celebrating his selection by the Boston Celtics two days earlier.

Arthur A. Marshall Jr., the Prince George's County prosecutor handling the investigation, has criticized Driesell for advising players at the team meeting on how to respond to questions from police and the news media.

Driesell told reporters at a news conference that he gathered players that morning to console them.

The Prince George's County grand jury will meet Tuesday for a briefing and should be hearing testimony from witnesses the following week, according to Marshall.

Irwin's 68 Leads Canadian

OAKVILLE, Ontario (AP) — Without question, it has been the worst slump of Hale Irwin's 19-year PGA Tour career.

"It has been a long dry spell. It has not been a lot of fun," said Irwin, who once went almost four seasons without missing a cut but this year has missed seven times in 15 starts.

"It was time for me to relax and play the kind of golf I'm capable of," Irwin said.

And that's what the 41-year-old veteran did on Thursday. He relaxed, had a little fun and walked off the Glen Abbey Golf Club course with a solid, 4-under-par 68 and the first-round lead in the Canadian Open Golf Championship.

"I haven't been playing that badly, I really haven't," said Irwin, who counts two U.S. Open titles among his 17 career victories.

"It was just a little thing here, a little thing there, and I've turned a 68 into a 72 or 73 and all of a sudden I'm struggling."

"It's been a matter of concentration and the level of intensity," he said. "I haven't been playing all that poorly, but the results have been terrible."

Irwin, one of golf's most respected performers, missed only two fairways and three greens on a sunny, breezy day in the Toronto suburbs.

"I did everything very well. It wasn't perfect, but compared with what I've been posting, I played very well."

Big Andy Bean, a two-time winner this season, led a large group at 69, a single shot back in this national championship that offers about $600,000 in U.S. dollars.

Also at that figure were Mike Donald, Brad Fabel, Clarence Rose, Denny Hepler and Dan Halldorson, seeking to become the first Canadian to win this title in 32 years.

Bob Tway, who leads the PGA Tour with three victories, was another shot back at 70.

Australian Greg Norman, third or better in five of his last seven starts, matched par 72. Defending champion Curtis Strange was another stroke higher. Masters champion Jack Nicklaus and Lee Trevino, a three-time Canadian Open winner, each had 74s.

Irwin hit a 5-iron to within three feet on his first hole and dropped a 25-footer on the next for a birdie-birdie start. He made birdie putts of about 10 feet on his seventh and eighth, was four under par at the turn and brought it home in par, matching two birdies against as many bogeys.

Snow Hill Overpowers Wayne County, 12-7

Calvin Brown and Mike Couture each had two-run homers as Snow Hill defeated Wayne County 12-7 in American Legion baseball action Thursday night.

Snow Hill took a 5-0 lead after the third. Anthony Sauls opened up with a walk and was sacrifice to second by Morris Banks. Ervin Collins singled to score Sauls. Kevin Mason tripled to score Collins. Couture homered to bring home Mason. Kelvin Brown singled, stole second and was brought home by Shea Beamon.

Wayne County narrowed the score to 5-4 with four runs in the fourth, but Snow Hill came back to score five more runs in fifth, highlighted by Brown's two-run homer.

The winning pitcher was Carl Marshbanks. Chris Hooker pitched the ninth. The leading hitters for Snow Hill were Shea Beamon with three hits, Brown, Cokature, Mason and Collins with two hits apiece. Allen Battle, Tony Winston and Mark Bass all had two hits apiece for Wayne County.

True Value.....15
Moose.....8

W.D. Helms hit two doubles during a 14-run sixth inning as True Value overcame a 15-1 deficit in the sixth inning to go on and defeat Moose 15-8 in a Tar Heel Little League game Thursday.

Down by 14 runs, True Value began its rally when Chris Ball opened the top of the sixth with a single. Henry Clark followed with a single and J. Adams walked to load the bases. Helm's double drove in two runs. An error allowed Adams to score, and Helms came home on a passed ball.

True Value added four more runs to tie the game when Thomas Spine singled and was brought home by a walk. A three run double by Helms put True Value up 12-8. Three more runs were scored to complete the top of the sixth, highlighted by Craig Brown's RBI single.

Moose's big inning came in the second when they scored four runs, highlighted by Buddy Foley's two-run double.

Helms led True Value with three hits. Foley and Montez Barrett led Moose with two hits apiece.

Jarman's Auto.....7
Wellcome.....2

Dante Randolph notched a two-run double to key a five-run first inning as Jarman's Auto 7-2 in Tar Heel Little League action Thursday.

Dru Lewis opened the bottom of the first for Jarman's with a reach on an error. Russell Williamson followed with a single and Omar Jordan with a walk. Williamson was later thrown out at third. Mitchell Brown doubled to score Lewis. Nicky Phillips singled to score Jordan. Randolph then rapped out his double to bring home Phillips and Brown.

Wellcome countered with a run in the second and a run in the sixth. Jarman's scored its final two runs in the second.

Jordan pitched a four-hitter for the win. Brown and Phillips led Jarman's with two hits apiece.

Optimist.....26
Kiwanis.....1

Mitch Jones hit a grand slam in the second inning and drove in seven runs on three hits as Optimist routed Kiwanis 26-1 in North State Little League action Thursday.

Optimist struck for 13 runs in the fourth and seven more in the fifth. Brian Gooding had four hits to lead Optimist. Steve Nobles tossed a four-hitter for the win.

Sportsworld.....4
Lions.....1

Aldrich Sharpe and Jay Kuykendall combined on a one hitter as Sportsworld defeated the Lions 4-2 in a North State Little League game Thursday.

Sportsworld trailed 1-0 before striking for three runs in the third. Kuykendall and Sharpe singled. She Harper reached on an error that scored Kuykendall. Steven Anthony's ground out scored Sharpe. Richard Ray's groundout scored Harper.

Steve Nazel scored the Lion's only run in the second inning when he walked, stole second, went to third on a wild pitch and came home on an error. Kuykendall's three hits led Sportsworld.

Prep League

First Citizens.....11
Hendrix & Dail.....8

Carlos Ebron hit a two-run triple to key a four-run sixth inning as First Citizens topped Hendrix and Dail 11-8 in the Prep League Tournament Thursday.

Jimmy Lee opened the top of the sixth with a single. Ike Jones reached on a fielder's choice. Lee came home on an error. Jones went to second on a balk. Kevin Hardee drove him home. Jason Rowe singled. Ebron tripled to drive in two more runs and make the score 10-3.

Hendrix and Dail rallied to score five runs in the bottom of the sixth to make it 10-8. First Citizens then added an insurance run in the seventh to win the game 11-8. Ebron, Rowe, Hardee and Lee all had two hits apiece to lead First Citizens.

Shop-Eze.....10
Garris Evans.....2

Grant Harman went 4-4 with two RBI as Shop-Eze sailed into the finals of the Prep League Tournament with a 10-2 victory over Garris Evans.

Leading 3-0 after four innings, Shop Eze tallied four runs in the fifth to put the game away. Aaron Tschotter and Charles Evans opened up with a singles. Rusty Edmonson reached on a fielder's choice that forced out Evans. Harmon's RBI single scored Tschotter. William Gible's RBI single scored Edmonson and Harmon before Micron Foreman singled home Gible.

Shop Eze added two more runs in the sixth and one in the seventh. Garris Evans scored their runs in the seventh.

Senior Babe Ruth

Ayden-Grifton.....10
Winterville.....0

Littlefield— Todd Sparrow tossed a four-hit shutout as Ayden-Grifton defeated Winterville 10-0 in a Senior Babe Ruth League baseball game Thursday.

Ayden-Grifton scored all the runs it would need in the first inning. Stacy Cole led off with a single. Andy Swanson reached on an error. Steven Tucker singled to score Cole. Tony McGlawhorn singled to score Swanson. Eddie Brown doubled to score courtesy runner Jesse Hooker who was running for Tucker. Curt Tucker's sacrifice fly scored McGlawhorn to give Ayden-Grifton a 4-0 lead.

Ayden Grifton added five more runs in the fourth, highlighted by a solo homer by Todd Miller. Ayden Grifton added one more run in the fifth to end the game at five innings because of the ten run rule.

Cole, Tucker, McGlawhorn, and Brown had two hits apiece to lead Ayden-Grifton. Winterville was led by Kent Hadnot's two hits of the team total four. Ayden-Grifton is now 6-4 in the conference and 9-5 overall. They wind up the season Monday night at Greenville Planters Bank at 7:30.

Bethel.....18
Greenville Planters.....5

Bethel scored ten first-inning runs en route to a 18-5 romp over Greenville Planters in Senior Babe Ruth League baseball action Thursday night.

Trailing 10-0, Greenville Planters pushed four runs on three consecutive homeruns in the bottom of the second to tighten the score at 10-4. David Daniels, Robbie McDonald and Terry Warren smacked the four-baggers for Greenville Planters.

Bethel came back to score three runs in the top of the third, and Greenville Planters scored one in the bottom of the inning to make the score 13-5.

Bethel scored three runs in the fourth inning and added a pair in the fifth to make the final score 18-5.

Lee Eakes and Scott Rawls had three hits apiece to lead Bethel. Neil Everette, who smacked a three-run homer, Jarvis Massenburg, Thomas Wright and Chuck Doak each had two hits for Bethel.

The Crow's Nest pounded Sunnyside Eggs 18-3 in a Winterville Pee Wee League game Thursday.

Cory Handley stroked out two singles and Nathan Biogas homered for Crow's Nest.

Putt Putt Golf Results

Led by a strong team effort, the Greenville Eastern Regional Putt Putt team took the lead after two matches in league play.

Playing on their home course, the top five players for Greenville shot 89 strokes under par for the three round match. Don Edmonson topped the Greenville team with an impressive 22-under par 86. Jerry Butts, who had one round of 10-under par, followed with an 89. They were supported by David Manning's 91, Ray Taft's 92 and Eric Nelson's 93.

After two matches, Greenville is 21 strokes ahead of Rocky Mount and 30 strokes ahead of Goldsboro.

Swedes Survive Five-Set Matches

Nearly Upsets Wilander

Britain's Andrew Castle grimaces as he returns a shot from Mats Wilander during their Men's Singles match at Wimbledon Thursday. Castle, an unknown Briton, fought hard before Wilander finally won the match 4-6; 7-6; 6-7; 6-4; 6-0. (AP Laserphoto)

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Mats Wilander and Stefan Edberg called on their experience and staying power as the Swedish seeds began to look menacing at Wimbledon.

After laboring against tough opponents for four sets, both the No. 2-seeded Wilander and No. 5 Edberg ripped through the final sets by 6-0 scores Thursday.

Meanwhile, reigning men's champion Boris Becker was unable to finish his third-round match, which was called by darkness. He was leading American Tom Gullickson 6-4, 6-3, 2-2.

The match resumes today, when top-seeded Ivan Lendl and Martina Navratilova also will be in action.

Lendl, who has never reached the Wimbledon final, is slated to meet Amos Mansdorf of Israel, while Navratilova, who is going for a fifth straight title, takes on Australian Jane Forman.

Seven other men's seeds, including Sweden's Anders Jarryd, have tumbled out of the tourney. But Wilander and Edberg are still there, along with fellow Swedes Joakim Nystrom and Mike Pernfors.

Wilander beat Britain's Andrew Castle 4-6, 7-6, 6-7, 6-4, 6-0 and only got in front in the final set.

"I was struggling," Wilander said.

"I always felt I had a good chance, but I couldn't go through the wall. He was always getting to everything."

Edberg, the reigning Australian Open champion, trailed 2-1 in sets in a see-saw second-round match before edging American Paul Annacone 6-4, 6-7, 4-6, 7-5, 6-0.

Wilander was at the point of a gun as thousands of British fans cheered on a native son who was a virtual unknown to most of them.

Castle is the product of the American college system and his only claim to fame back home was winning the British Under-12 title in 1975.

But the 22-year-old Briton played the game of his brief career to stretch the two-time French and Australian champion almost to the limit.

Castle was given a standing ovation by the sun-baked Wimbledon crowd, a salute Castle accepted with some reserve.

"Let's take it easy," he said. "I lost."

Wilander was thankful that, for him, the tournament hadn't come to yet another premature end. The Swede has never advanced further than the fourth round in five previous visits.

Edberg's game burst into life in the fifth set after remaining dormant throughout the first four.

NFL Out To Prove USFL Flopped

NEW YORK (AP) — The NFL has opened its defense of the USFL's $1.69 billion antitrust suit with a host of USFL documents aimed at proving that the league's problems were of its own making.

In one of those documents, Tad Taube, a former USFL owner, said he had "sighted the enemy and they are us."

The USFL, which is scheduled to start fall play in September after three seasons in the spring, on Wednesday finished 20 days of testimony during which it attempted to blame most of its problems on "anticompetitive actions" by the NFL. Principal among these, the USFL charges, was pressure by the NFL on the three major television networks to deny it a contract for fall play.

The NFL's defense, on the other hand, is built around its contention that the USFL caused its own problems, primarily by overspending and by switching to the fall. Attorneys for the established league spent Thursday introducing documents through their first witness, former USFL Commissioner Chet Simmons.

Taube's letter was one of them. "If we are not successful in establishing player caps," Taube, owner of the defunct Oakland Invaders wrote to Simmons and his fellow owners. "I can guarantee that there will not be a USFL within three years irrespective of improved revenue from television."

And in a postscript, he added: "We have sighted the enemy and they are us."

Simmons described Taube as the league's "gadfly" and said "this is one owner's opinion."

In his testimony, Simmons blamed the problems on what the USFL considers its principal weapon in the trial, a study by a Harvard Business School professor on "How to Conquer the USFL" that was presented to NFL executives in February, 1984. He also cited a memo from Jack Donlan, head of the NFL Management Council, entitled "How to Spend the USFL Dollar."

"In the course of this trial I've become acquainted with the Harvard Study. I was wondering why some of these things were happening. Now I've found out," said Simmons, who is still owed money by the fledgling league.

Nascar Driver's Condition Upgraded

JACKSON, Mich. (AP) — Race car driver Rick Baldwin, hospitalized here since being injured June 14 in an accident at Michigan International Speedway, was transferred Thursday to a hospital in Texas, officials said.

Baldwin, 31, was moved by air ambulance from W.A. Foote Hospital in Jackson to St. Luke's Lutheran Hospital in San Antonio, Texas, the race course said a prepared statement.

Baldwin's condition was upgraded from critical to serious before he left the hospital about 6 a.m., said Greg Brusstar, spokesman for Foote Hospital.

Dr. Greg Baumann, Michigan International Speedway Medical Director and chairman of the department of emergency medicine at Foote, said Baldwin's stabilized condition made it possible to transfer him to the hospital closer to his home.

Baldwin, a native of Corpus Christi, Texas, suffered brain and neck injuries when his car hit a wall at the speedway in Brooklyn during qualifying for the Miller American 400. He has been unconscious since the wreck.

Baldwin started auto racing in 1972, and joined the NASCAR circuit last year, according to NASCAR files.

Few Degrees Or Passing Grades For Maryland Student Athletes

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — The University of Maryland has released figures on how its athletes are performing academically, and the picture that comes out shows athletes failing to complete degree programs and flunking courses.

According to university administrators, less than a third of the school's basketball players managed to earn degrees in the last few years. Further, basketball team members flunk out three times as often as university students on the whole.

The figures were made public a day after basketball coach Lefty Driesell acknowledged that standout All-American Len Bias had failed all his courses last semester and was 21 credits short of graduation.

Bias died last week of cocaine intoxication, just two days after being drafted by the Boston Celtics of the NBA as their first pick.

He had enrolled in summer school, along with 11 fellow basketball players, according to university officials and available academic records.

University officials said the number of athletes who failed to earn degrees reflects the competing pressures of sports and academics. "One must consider the burdens they have," said Roz Hiebert, a university spokeswoman.

"It is a difficult situation for the students who are trying to go to class and at the same time meet the pressures of playing," Ms. Hiebert said. "There are many constraints you have to take into account."

She said administrators may begin to review how the university can help athletes perform better in their courses.

"Probably a look will be taken at the question of how the students are advised should it be from the whole institution instead of the limited resources of the athletic department?"

Currently, academic counselors, who work in the athletic department, are assigned to members of sports teams, helping them to study, schedule classes, and arrange for tutors, if they are needed.

University chancellor John Slaughter, according to the Washington Post, wants to put those counselors under academic oversight, rather than athletic department management.

Divided They Stand

On June 27, 1950, President Truman ordered U.S. forces to help repel North Korea's invasion of South Korea. Here Truman is met by Secretary of State Dean Acheson for an emergency meeting preceding the announcement. Today, North and South Korea are still divided. North Korea has a per capita income of about $600, less than half that of South Korea. North Korea exports only about 10 percent of its GNP. South Korea exports about $30 billion out of a GNP of $75 billion.

Energy Machine Rejected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government engineers say a backwoods inventor's amazing energy machine has a number of unique features but lacks a critical one — it doesn't work.

The National Bureau of Standards said Thursday that more than two months of court-ordered testing has failed to prove Joseph W. Newman's claims that his controversial machine produces more energy than it consumes.

"At all conditions tested, the input power exceeded the output power," the government's standards-setting agency said in a report. "That is, the device did not deliver more energy than it used."

Newman, who terms himself a self-educated, backwoods inventor from Lucedale, Miss., who used common sense to come up with his machine, immediately rejected the test results as biased and meaningless.

The agency by its own admission used unconventional instruments and methods to reach its conclusions, said Newman, whose quest for a government patent has attracted national attention.

"I do not accept these results at all," Newman said in a telephone interview. "I predicted this decision. It's just another example of the injustice I'm fighting against."

The bureau's report said that because of unusual electrical characteristics of the machine, it had to design a test plan and combination of instruments specifically for Newman's non-standard device. But it said it carefully checked the instruments to assure the accuracy of the tests.

Newman said he would not accept results coming from unconventional testing that could not be repeated by others.

"If I built my own test equipment and said that it proves my machine worked, no one would give me much credit, no one would believe me," Newman said. "But that's what the Bureau of Standards has done and they expect people to believe them."

The inventor has been trying for six years to get the U.S. Office of Patents and Trademarks to issue a patent on an energy machine that defies accepted laws of physics.

It is not only at tennis that young Scandinavians are making their mark. Lars Blakset of Denmark, a former junior champion, was selected as one of the 10 candidates for Royal Viking Line's "Player of the Year" competition.

"When you are defending against a squeeze," writes Blakset, "you usually have to attack declarer's communications; if that is impossible without sacrificing a key trick, you might have to rely on a deceptive discard early in the play. This hand is from the 1985 European Championship."

After a highly-artificial auction, North-South arrived at six diamonds. It might seem that a spade lead would beat that, but declarer can make the contract with careful play. Even with a club lead, West was exposed to a heart-club squeeze if declarer guessed the position, or he could play East for the 10-9 bare of hearts.

Declarer took the king of clubs and ran the ten of diamonds to East's ace. He won the spade return, cashed one high trump on which West discarded a heart, took the ace of clubs (had he cashed the queen as well, he would have gotten a count of the suit), then started running his diamonds. Blakset foresaw that, in the four-card ending, he could not guard both key suits, so his first two discards were both clubs. Then came the king of spades and, finally, a heart.

West's order of discards convinced declarer he had started with six clubs and four hearts, so on the last trump declarer let go dummy's club and kept three hearts. Thus he had to surrender a heart at the end for down one.

New Budget May Trigger Cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nearly $1 trillion fiscal 1987 budget approved by Congress early today may not reduce the deficit enough to avoid automatic spending cuts of the Gramm-Rudman law, lawmakers say.

The plan restrains both military and domestic spending and officially meets next year's $144 billion deficit target with $1.4 billion to spare. But lawmakers said it contains optimistic assumptions about strong economic growth, and weak provisions to enforce the cuts, that could drive the deficit estimate billions of dollars higher.

"It's phony as a $3 bill," said Rep. Silvio Conte of Massachusetts, ranking Republican on the House Appropriations Committee. Still, Conte was one of 333 House members who voted for the budget, with only 43 against.

Rep. Bill Frenzel, R-Minn., said, "At least there is a modicum of outlay reductions."

In Santa Barbara, Calif., where President Reagan is vacationing, White House spokesman Larry Speakes issued a statement saying the president found the overall conference agreement "generally acceptable" but said the budget resolution "would alter the president's priorities."

The resolution "cut too much from defense and international affairs in fiscal year 1987 and is way too limiting" for future years, Speakes said.

The spokesman said the resolution increases domestic spending by more than the president recommended, but he welcomed the fact that the conference report did not call for a tax increase and met Gramm-Rudman deficit-reduction targets.

The legislators, rushing out of town for the Fourth of July recess, approved the $995 billion plan overwhelmingly. It was given final passage by the Senate by voice vote early today soon after the lopsided approval vote in the House on Thursday night.

Before the Senate voted, its budget committee chairman, Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., predicted a tax increase still would be needed.

"I'm not here tonight extremely proud of this product," Domenici said. "Basically, I've concluded after looking at it, (it was better than) no budget resolution at all," he said.

Domenici said the $292.15 billion in military spending in the budget was inadequate, and President Reagan would have to ask Congress for an increase.

The budget includes a $4.8 billion contingency fund, and part of that could help boost Pentagon spending — but Reagan would have to propose an acceptable way to fill the coffers.

Administration officials have pressed Congress to sell more government assets and raise user fees, but lawmakers said many of those were politically impossible and a tax increase was the only way to give Reagan anywhere close to the $320 billion he originally requested for the military.

The Senate had endorsed a $10.7 billion tax boost, but House Democratic leaders refused to go along unless Reagan dropped his opposition. The contingency fund for "unmet critical needs" helped lead to the House-Senate compromise.

Whether Congress actually meets the Gramm-Rudman requirements won't be determined until August, when the Congressional Budget Office and the president's Office of Management and Budget make a revised deficit estimate.

If the deficit for fiscal 1987 misses the $144 billion target by more than $10 billion, automatic spending cuts would be ordered in military and domestic programs to make up the difference.

U.S., New Zealand Split Over Ships

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz said today the United States is withdrawing a 35-year-old pledge to defend New Zealand following failure to resolve a dispute over nuclear weapons with New Zealand Prime Minister David Lange.

After a 30-minute meeting, Lange told reporters his country will stick to a policy that bars visits by foreign ships unless his government is assured there are no nuclear arms aboard and that the vessels are not nuclear-powered.

Shultz said the United States will adhere to its policy of refusing to confirm or deny such weapons are aboard American vessels.

Given the impasse, "We part company as friends, but we part company — as far as the alliance is concerned," Shultz said.

A senior U.S. State Department official, briefing reporters on condition of anonymity, described the withdrawal of the U.S. security guarantee as a continuing process and said no formal notification of the rupture in the defense pact has been transmitted to the New Zealanders.

He noted the United States has stopped cooperating with New Zealand in military exercises and the sharing of intelligence.

"The timing is up to us," the official said, describing today's action as putting the United States "a little farther down the line" in a divorce from defense relations with New Zealand.

The two leaders met during a break in a conference of foreign ministers sponsored by the Association of Southeast Asian Nations.

Shultz said the New Zealand policy means it has "withdrawn an essential element of its participation" in the Australian-New Zealand-U.S. Defense pact of 1951.

"In light of that, the United States considers that the treaty, at least as it has been understood, doesn't apply in the sense of the responsibility of the United States to extend its security responsibility to New Zealand — at least that's the prospect as this is unfolding," Shultz said.

The New Zealand ban is not to be codified in law until a parliamentary action in August. But both leaders said they did not expect the situation to change before then.

Shultz assured Lange the Reagan administration would not impose sanctions against New Zealand. "There isn't any prospect of that at all," Shultz said.

Reporter Quits NBC

NEW YORK (AP) — Linda Ellerbee, an NBC News correspondent for 11 years, said she turned down a contract offer and would make her last appearance on the network today.

"I'm leaving, and I don't know where I'm going," she said Thursday.

Neither she nor the network offered details on their negotiations. Asked whether money or assignments were the issue, Ms. Ellerbee said, "Yes."

"I work best in something new, something that let's me stretch myself, and right now NBC doesn't offer me that opportunity," she said.

"We are sorry she is leaving us, and wish her the very best of luck," said Lawrence K. Grossman, president of NBC News.

Ms. Ellerbee said she will spend the next few weeks working on a screenplay from her best-selling book, "And So It Goes," and magazine assignments. She said she expects to make a decision on a new job within a month.

Although her contract expired last week, she will do a final "TGIF" spot on "Today" — and said she would have done it for free.

Ayden Actor Has Parts In Movies

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer

The next Billy Dee Williams, Sidney Portier or Howard Rollins may be Pitt County's Arvin Williams of Ayden.

"That's always been my dream," Williams said, explaining that to be an actor is his secret ambition. Williams, 29, was recently filmed in "Cat's Eye" and "Bedroom Windows," two movies screened in Wilmington.

In "Cat's Eye," released last year, Williams was a stand-in for Charles Dutton while cameramen and crew adjusted angles and lighting for different scenes. He also played different background roles.

"Steven Hayes was getting kidnapped by Charles Dutton, Max Starr and James Woods," Williams said. "Just as they're panning on the shot I'm the person coming out of the store." Williams said he also drove a car in a couple of scenes, and he was one of the people in the bus station when Steven Hayes was coming to town.

In the scene of "Bedroom Windows" where Steve Guttenberg meets the red-haired killer, "I was sitting at the table with a date," Williams said. "I walk out and go to the bathroom, excusing myself," he said. Then he comes back to the table, and a go-go dancer dances around him. "Bedroom Windows" will be released around Thanksgiving, Williams said.

Williams said he got his acting break when he was living in Charlotte and met Wilmington casting director Mark Fincannon. Williams gave Fincannon his resume, which included a summer of studying acting at the North Carolina School of the Arts, and he was typed. "The director has an idea of the particular image he wants" for the roles, Williams said. For example, preppy young professionals were needed in the "Bedroom Windows" restaurant scene.

Williams was called and asked to do the roles in the movies by Fincannon and Associates, a casting agency in Wilmington of which he is now an affiliate.

When he is not acting, Williams is a martial arts instructor in Ayden and a student at Pitt Community College. He will play roles in two new movies soon, one of which will feature martial arts, Williams said. "Maybe I can say a couple of words this time," he said.

Manion Vote Undecisive

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats get another chance next month to block the confirmation of Daniel Manion to the federal bench following a tentative Senate vote approving President Reagan's controversial nominee.

"I still think we have a shot, but it's going to be close," Sen. Joseph R. Biden Jr. D-Del., a leading opponent said after Thursday's inconclusive 48-46 vote to confirm Manion to a seat on the 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. "Manion is not a judge today."

Opponents, including some 40 law school deans, have argued the conservative Indiana lawyer lacks the professional qualifications for judgeship. And they got another chance to stop Manion's confirmation because of a last-minute parliamentary maneuver by Senate Minority Leader Robert Byrd, D-W. Va.

Byrd switched his "No" vote to "Yes," to prevent Vice President George Bush, who had rushed to the chamber midway through the roll call, from voting to break a 47-47 tie.

By joining a 48-46 majority, Byrd gave himself an opportunity under Senate rules to make a motion to reconsider the nomination. The Senate went on to other business and postponed further action on Manion until after its two-week July 4th recess.

The vote Thursday was preceded by heavy, last-minute lobbying by the White House to line up support for Manion.

Sen. Slade Gorton, R-Wash., said later in a statement he voted for Manion after receiving assurances that Reagan would nominate his candidate for a federal district judgeship in western Washington.

TERRIFIC LISTING

This lovely 6 room Traditional home is located at 1501 Birch Place in Treetops. There are 3 Bedrooms, 2 1/2 Baths, and so many other nice things I can't describe it. You really need to see for yourself... Almost 2100 square feet of living space in a gorgeous setting. Only 4 years and immaculate at $99,750.

MORE GREAT ONES

NEW LISTING at 1914 E. 8th Street. A great buy on a 3 bedroom, 2 bath, brick ranch, with fireplace, hardwood floors, etc. Walking distance from the University and only $59,500.

COLONIAL RANCH - Don't miss seeing this one at 1107 Cortland Road. Modern living in a quiet setting in Orchard Hill and featuring a spacious Great Room/Dining area, 3 Bedrooms, 2 Baths, Fireplace, separate 16 x 20 Workshop, Etc. Yours for only $56,500.

HARDEE ACRES - 311 Springhill Road. Modern brick ranch with living room, kitchen, 3 bedrooms, 1 1/2 baths, garage, and storage building. This nice home has had excellent care and is freshly painted. The owner wants to sell and has priced it accordingly. $50,900.

TWIN OAKS - This exciting Contemporary with Great Room, Country Kitchen... 3 Bedrooms, 2 Baths, and large Mud/Utility room, on a wooded lot has been attracting a lot of attention and will soon be gone. HURRY $55,900.

A SHAME - That's the only way I can describe what the owner is forcing me to do with this exceptional brick ranch, at 412 Pittman Drive in Carolina Heights. Living Room, Dining Room, Kitchen, 2 Bedrooms, Bath, Laundry Room, Carpet, and storage buildings on a wooded lot. Against my better judgement, we have priced it to sell at ONLY $39,900.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: THE SOFT-HEARTED LOAN OFFICER EVEN GIVES CLIENTS LEGAL TENDER.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: V equals E

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, JUNE 28, 1986

YOUR DAILY Horoscope
 from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Until noon, you find it possible to make some long-range plans for the future by accepting proven methods, while at the same time confusion exists if you are in any way sloppy.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Get into a new situation that can influence your method of operating. Older persons can help to place you on the road to success.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Get that new idea studied further before trying to get it operating and don't give up something already well established.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Listen to the suggestions of an outside partner who has your welfare at heart. Sidestep a new acquaintance who is self-seeking.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Continue with that talent that is working well and don't try to get into something you know little about.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Place your efforts in the home today and make needed improvements there, but don't take any foolish risks.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Choose which partner is best able to help you in some quandary and be sure he thinks in a practical way.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Garner the knowledge from one you know is familiar with your type of work, and get it quickly.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) If there is something unusual you want to do, make it around lunchtime; the rest of the day if not so good for you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Study the situation at home, which may seem rather hard to handle, but which can be easily solved in the afternoon.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Tonight, take no risks where your money is concerned. Use your better judgment today.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Be confident and go after what you most want and you can gain it easily. Take it easy tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Make appointments for amusements with pals who are most compatible. You may find a friend to be difficult to handle later.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will know what is desired from life, so encourage to go after whatever is of a constructive nature. Upon reaching adulthood, your progeny is apt to become too aggressive and incur the repeated wrath of others if not taught to be more respectful.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Pesticide

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The state Department of Environmental Conservation has moved to block some uses in New York of Diazinon, a pesticide manufactured by a North Carolina company and blamed for several bird and waterfowl kills in recent months, Commissioner Henry Williams said.

Williams issued orders Wednesday banning the pesticide at golf courses and sod farms around the state for a 60-day emergency period. DEC spokesman R.W. Groneman said the ban does not apply to the use of Diazinon by homeowners, but he said Williams was warning New Yorkers using the chemical to follow label directions carefully.

Groneman said Diazinon is available in liquid and granular form and is manufactured by the Ciba-Geigy Corp. of Greensboro, N.C.
