Court Axes Gramm-Rudman Trigger

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today declared unconstitutional a key provision of a law requiring a balanced federal budget by 1991. The ruling jeopardizes congressional efforts to cut spending and reduce spiraling deficits.

The justices, by a 7-2 vote, said the central provision of the Gramm-Rudman Act — ordering automatic deficit reductions — violates the constitutionally mandated separation of powers between the executive and legislative branches.

The law wrongly empowers an officer of Congress, the comptroller general, to perform an executive function, the court said.

Gramm-Rudman contains a fallback provision that allows Congress itself to vote on a deficit-reduction package if the automatic feature were invalidated.

The much-anticipated ruling came 22 days after ABC News reported that the court was about to strike down the law. That report touched off a flurry of speculation about the future of Gramm-Rudman and the source of an apparent rare "leak" providing advance word of a court decision.

The case provided one of the most significant constitutional confrontations in recent years between Congress and the White House.

To check what has been described as a spreading cancer of red ink threatening the nation's economic health, the Gramm-Rudman law established an automatic mechanism to align spending and revenue more closely.

The focus of the effort is the comptroller general, head of Congress' General Accounting Office, who is appointed by the president to a 15-year term and may be removed only by Congress.

The GAO, now headed by Charles

Bowsher, is a watchdog agency that audits federal programs.

A special three-judge court last Feb. 7 ruled that Gramm-Rudman breaches the separation of powers between the executive and legislative branches because of the comptroller general's role.

That unsigned ruling was authored by Antonin Scalia, the federal appeals court judge selected by President Reagan for elevation to the Supreme Court.

The Reagan administration urged the high court to strike down the comptroller's general's role, even though President Reagan signed the legislation and has called repeatedly for reduced federal deficits.

The act was defended by the congressional leadership and the comptroller general's office.

The Supreme Court heard arguments in the case April 23, putting it on a fast track for a resolution by July.

Meanwhile, Congress wrestled with a budget blueprint, resisting Reagan's demand for more military spending coupled with a hold-the-line approach on taxes.

Congress approved a budget of nearly $1 trillion on June 27 before taking a break for a long July 4th holiday. It projects a deficit of $142.6 billion, which is within the range required by Gramm-Rudman.

The first $11.7 billion in spending cuts required by Gramm-Rudman took effect March 1.

The deficit now stands at around $200 billion, although some in Congress hope favorable economic developments will reduce it.

The Gramm-Rudman law requires the figures to be no higher than $144 billion for the next fiscal year, beginning Oct. 1.

If Congress cannot reach that fig-

Justices Broaden Schools' Power To Use Discipline

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today significantly broadened the disciplinary powers of public school administrators, ruling that students may be suspended for using "vulgar and offensive" language.

By a 7-2 vote, the court upheld the three-day suspension in 1983 of a Spanaway, Wash., high school senior for giving an assembly speech filled with crude sexual allusions.

"Surely it is a highly appropriate function of public school education to prohibit the use of vulgar and offensive terms in public discourse," Chief Justice Warren E. Burger wrote for the court.

Matthew Fraser's one-minute speech in support of a friend's candidacy for student body vice president of Bethel High School contained no dirty words, but it caused a brief uproar among his fellow students.

In the address, Fraser described his friend as "a man who is firm — he's firm in his pants ... his character is firm ... a man who will go to the very end, even the climax, for each and every one of you."

His friend won the election by a wide margin.

Officials at the school in suburban Tacoma suspended Fraser for violating the school's disruptive conduct rule in "materially and substantially" interfering in the educational process.

Now a student at the University of California at Berkeley, Fraser sued school district officials with help from the American Civil Liberties Union.

A federal judge ruled that Bethel High officials had violated Fraser's free-speech rights by disciplining him, and the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals upheld that ruling by a 2-1 vote.

School officials were ordered to pay Fraser $278 in damages and $12,750 in legal costs.

Today, the Supreme Court said the lower courts were wrong.

The Reagan administration had urged the court to rule against Fraser. Justice Department lawyers argued that student speech may be restrained "if officials have a reasonable basis for the regulation grounded in the maintenance of an atmosphere of civility or the transmission of basic societal values."

They said such regulations should not be used to suppress "student expression of a particular political viewpoint."

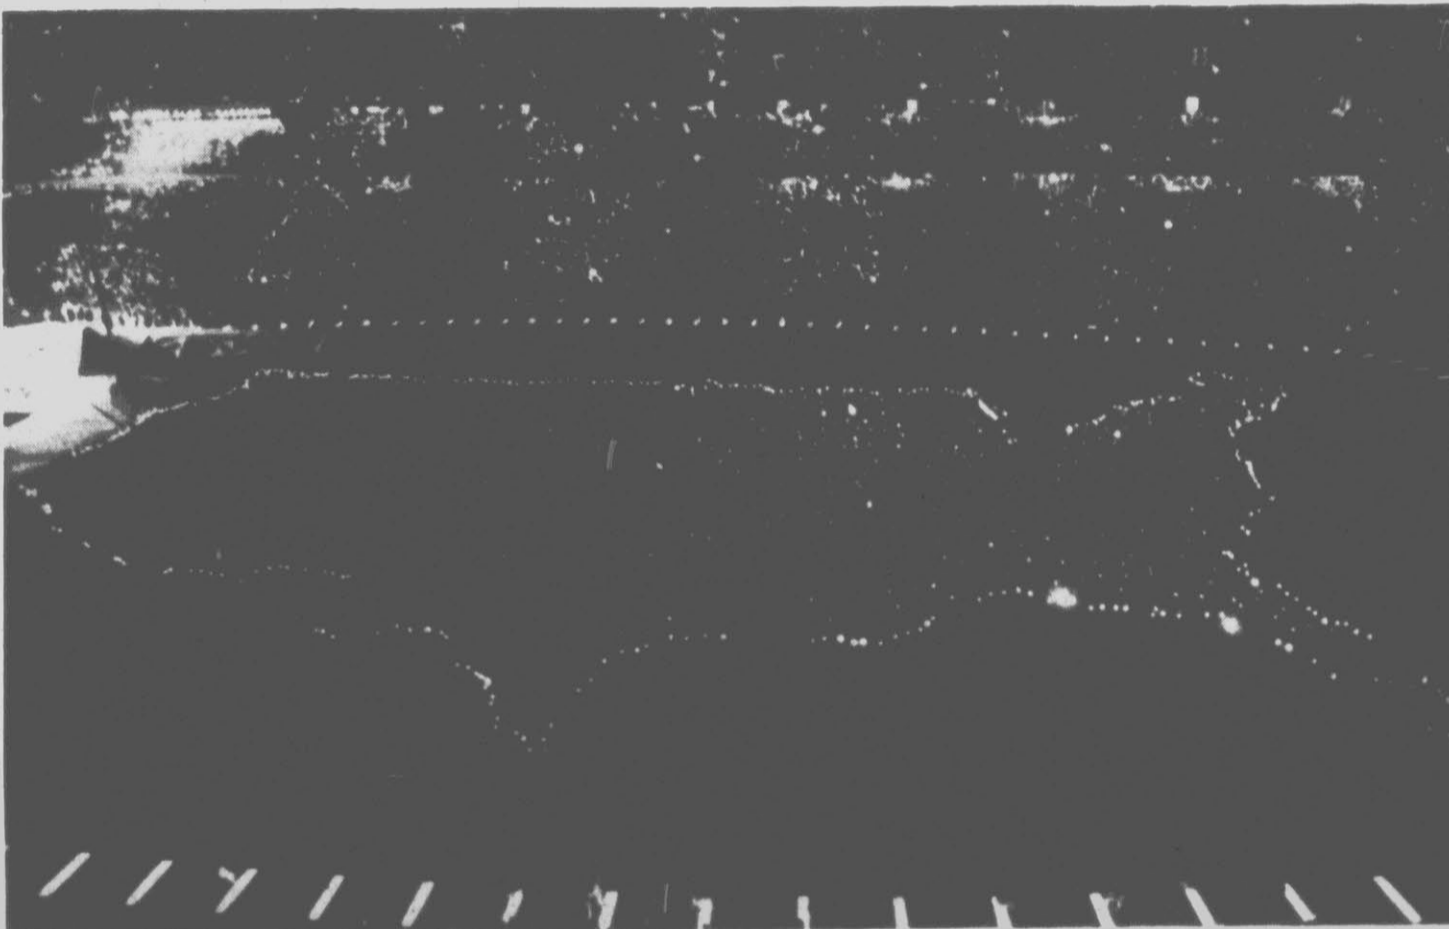

Burger wrote: "The determination of what manner of speech in the classroom or in (a) school assembly is inappropriate properly rests with the school board."

He was joined by Justices Byron R. White, Lewis F. Powell, William H. Rehnquist and Sandra Day O'Connor.

Justices William J. Brennan and Harry A. Blackmun voted against Fraser but did not join Burger's opinion.

Justices Thurgood Marshall and John Paul Stevens dissented.

Filipino Rebellion To End

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Arturo Tolentino, the running mate of Ferdinand E. Marcos who proclaimed himself Philippine leader with the support of hundreds of soldiers, said today he will end his rebellion within hours.

President Corazon Aquino earlier gave Tolentino 24 hours to end what she called a "desperate" challenge to her rule.

The 75-year-old Tolentino, who ran with the Marcos in the fraud-tainted Feb. 7 elections, took the presidential oath of office Sunday, saying he had been pressured to do so by Marcos loyalists. Marcos was deposed by a civilian-military revolt and fled the country in February.

After taking the oath of office, Tolentino took refuge with a cordon of soldiers in the Manila Hotel, but left by the fifth-floor fire escape today for a four-hour meeting with a government representative.

Tolentino said his political supporters still at the hotel will walk out early Tuesday.

It was not clear, however, whether the 100 or more soldiers at the hotel would go along. Tolentino said the question of whether soldiers will leave "will be taken up by the military among themselves."

Military men who took part in today's talks did not comment after the meeting ended at the Army-Navy Club, next to the U.S. Embassy on Manila Bay.

"The purpose of the rally was the oath-taking, and that has been achieved," said Tolentino, who was sworn in at the hotel before about 10,000 Marcos loyalists. "There are political issues to be discussed with the government, such as constitutionalism, democracy, the rule of law."

Tolentino said he received no assurances from the government it will not file charges against him, but said a meeting between the two sides was planned for noon Tuesday. No government official was immediately available for comment.

Jaycees Say Celebration 'One Of Our Better Days'

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Greenville's Fourth of July celebration was "one of our better days," according to Rufus Walston, president of the Jaycees, the organization that sponsored the day's activities.

"The crowd came early and stayed late" for the activities at the Town Common, Walston said. The day's schedule included events such as a raft race, crafts show, popsicle eating contest, water balloon toss, tricycle race, egg toss, entertainment and fireworks. The crowd was "well behaved," he said.

The only problem cited by Walston was "the traffic congestion after the fireworks," which he described as "terrible."

Walston, who estimated that "close to 10,000 people" attended the 9 p.m. fireworks show, declined to say how much the display cost. But he said the Jaycees "spent about one-third of what we had last year."

The Jaycees had asked for contributions to help finance the fireworks show, but Walston said only $25 in donations were received to add to the money contributed by the eight corporate sponsors for this year's fireworks.

"It would be nice if the public would respond and send donations in," Walston said.

"We've been putting a lot into (the fireworks) from our own projects account," Walston said, adding that the Jaycees this year decided to seek money from other sources.

"We feel the city should be contributing since we do this for the city and the citizens."

Walston suggested that the Jaycees might try to spread out the cost over more corporate sponsors next year and might again try to get more donations from individuals.

Pitt Farmers Maintaining Normal Harvest Schedule

By HAROLD JOYNER
Reflector Staff Writer

While extreme temperatures and heavy rainfall may have caused some trauma to area crops, an agricultural official said today that harvesting is still on schedule.

"Generally speaking, the growth of Pitt County crops is very good," said Mitch Smith, Pitt County agricultural extension agent.

"I was concerned with some northern parts of the county such as Bethel and Stokes, but those farms seem to be in a much better situation now due to the heavy rainfall," he said.

Smith said overall appearance of crops is excellent, and farmers could expect a quality crop this year when it's time to sell.

"Most people are making preparations for harvesting tobacco," he said. The bottom three leaves of tobacco plants, known as sand lugs, are now being removed, he said.

Corn is also faring well despite recent hailstorms that heavily damaged some fields.

"Some of the early varieties of corn may experience a decreased yield," Smith said, "but most of the corn in Pitt County looks pretty good."

The incidents of hail damage were more widespread throughout the county during this year's growing season, Smith said, but some hope remains for existing crops.

Crops experiencing hail damage would not have a substantial impact on the market when it's time to sell the harvest, Smith said.

Peanuts and soybeans experienced problems early in the planting season, Smith said, but no other problems are expected unless the area is hit with another drought.

The Associated Press reported today that a high pressure system which normally brings rain to the Southeast has spread several hundred miles westward, disrupting weather patterns and bringing drought to many areas, including North Carolina.

Meteorologists say that, in normal years, the Bermuda High is ultimately responsible for many of the thunderstorms and showers that are regular features of the South's spring and summertime weather.

The Bermuda High, a strong cell of high barometric pressure, usually sits out in the western Atlantic Ocean in the spring and summer. It acts like a powerful pump, sending moist ocean air over the Southeast, meteorologists said.

This year, the Southeast is suffering from the worst drought of this century, while the Midwest has had trouble with floods.

The 30-day forecast doesn't offer much relief, the weather service said. There may be some relief in late August or September when tropical storms move in.

Thunderstorms, though, are not always the best answer to drought situations, but steady rains are, officials said.

Small Risk For Consumer; Beauticians Receive Exposure

L.A. Times-Washington Post News Service

In the late 1970s, following reports that some hair-dye ingredients could cause cancer in animals, Food and Drug Administration official Heinz Eiermann received a phone call from an anxious 65-year-old woman.

"She said she had been dyeing her hair all her life, and she wanted to ask me could she dye her hair one more time to go to her brother's wedding," recalled Eiermann, head of the agency's Division of Cosmetics Technology. "I said, 'Do you smoke?' and she said yes. I said before you give that up, you should give up smoking, and then stop drinking soda pop with saccharin. Then stay away from hair dye."

For the average consumer, say Eiermann and many dermatologists, the risk of cosmetics is small compared with known health hazards such as smoking.

"Most reactions to cosmetics are really not severe and are transient," Eiermann said. Rarely, ulceration of the eye and even blindness can result if a cosmetic becomes contaminated with microorganisms after purchase and the user accidentally scratches his or her eyeball during application.

Even misuse of cosmetics doesn't usually result in serious injury, Eiermann says, although he recalls an incident in which a man powdered his body and his bedsheets with a thick coat of talc and suffocated during his sleep.

"You're not going to get any fatal disease from cosmetics," said Dr. Marianne O'Donoghue, associate professor of dermatology at Rush Presbyterian St. Luke's Medical School in Illinois. "The problem we see most commonly (from cosmetics) is acne cosmetica," or pimples caused when some women use moisturizers. Such consumers should avoid cocoa butter and lanolin, among other ingredients, she says.

Another common problem is allergies to preservatives in eye makeup, such as EDTA, thimerosal and parabens, she notes.

"We don't feel cosmetics induce any serious illnesses or increase morbidity," says Dr. Willma Bergfeld, a dermatologist at the Cleveland Clinic who also serves as one of seven experts on the industry-sponsored Cosmetic Ingredient Review. Along with contact dermatitis and allergies, she listed photosensitivity — cosmetic-related rashes triggered by exposure to sunlight — as a common problem.

For beauticians and cosmetologists, she notes, problems can be more severe. Allergies and chronic hand dermatitis may force some people to find other lines of work.

"The largest expanding market for cosmetics is men and blacks," she said, and "their cosmetics are being changed" so that they are much less oily and less likely to cause rashes and pimples. "Men are using all kinds of coloring agents. Like trial lawyers and TV men. But they've not been using them as long as females, and they're not as well-versed in home remedies" for minor irritations, she says.

Another caution physicians have passed on to cosmetics consumers: Pregnant women should not have hair permanents or frostings done. Perms and hair dye can be absorbed through the scalp, and their effect on fetuses has not been determined, said Dr. Constance Bohon of Women Physicians, a group of women obstetrician-gynecologists in the Washington, D.C. area.

Scientists are studying whether perms and hair dyes could mimic their effect of altering the structure of hair proteins by altering protein structures of the fetus. "The data is not in, but because the question has been raised, we decided to be conservative," she said.

"There almost never will be a documented case where someone died because of Red No. 3 (a color additive) in lipstick," said William B. Schultz, an attorney with Ralph Nader's Public Citizen, a consumer activist group. "People are exposed to so many carcinogens that you can't say which one caused the cancer. But just because there are no identifiable victims doesn't mean it's safe."

Pitt County is named for William Pitt the Elder, Earl of Chatham, a noted British statesman who was a sympathetic friend of the colonies.

Liberty's Crown Symbolizes Seven Continents And Seas

DEAR ABBY: Several weeks ago I wrote to you asking what the seven spikes in the crown of the Statue of Liberty stood for. You wrote back and suggested I write to the mayor of New York for an authoritative answer. You also asked me to let you know what the mayor said if I heard from him.

Well, I wrote to Mayor Koch, and here is his answer:

Mr. Louis Binns
Forsyth, Mo.

Dear Mr. Binns: Thank you for your letter and question.

According to the Statue of Liberty/Ellis Island Foundation, there is a twofold symbolism in the seven spikes in the Statue of Liberty's crown. They stand for the seven seas and for the seven continents. America brings together people from every continent, and they have to cross every ocean to get here — or they did before the airplane.

All the best, Sincerely,
Edward I. Koch, Mayor, New York City

DEAR ABBY: My girlfriend and I just had a heated argument over her new swimsuit. The top is OK, but the bottom consists of a string that goes around her waist — attached to a triangular piece of fabric that is no more than 4 inches wide in the front, and not much more in the back.

The trouble started when we went to the beach and I saw "Lisa" in her new swimsuit for the first time. I told her I thought it was too skimpy and no decent girl would go out in public like that.

She said I was living in the dark ages, and proceeded to point out other girls in similar swimsuits. I told her I didn't care if there were girls naked on the beach, as far as I was concerned, that didn't make it right.

I'm 24 and she's 22 and we're practically engaged, so I told her that wearing a swimsuit like that looks like she's advertising her body and inviting the attentions of other men. (Lisa does have a beautiful figure, and the men did look at her.) She told me she loves me and I'm a jerk to be jealous. Am I? Was I out of line to object to her skimpy swimsuit? — JEALOUS

DEAR JEALOUS: You are not a jerk to be jealous; it's a natural reaction. You had every right to express your feelings, but having done so, it's Lisa's right to wear what she wants to wear. You seem insecure, possessive and threatened. Since you're not yet officially engaged, you and Lisa would be wise to resolve your differences now, and let it all hang out.

DEAR ABBY: When I was 17, pregnant and unmarried, I slashed my wrists in a suicide attempt. Now I'm married, in my 20s, and very self-conscious about the scars on my wrists. I was told by a veterinarian that there's no way of getting rid of those scars, so I guess I will have to learn to live with them.

What should I say to people who ask me what happened? I don't want to admit the real reason, but when I say I had an accident, they press for details. I fabricated a story, but I don't think it was very convincing. Please help me come up with a solution. — YOUR FAN IN THE SOUTH

DEAR FAN: Before you accept the word of the veterinarian, please see a plastic surgeon about the possibility of minimizing the conspicuousness of the existing scars. Bracelets might also hide them. And to those who press for details, a direct, "I'd rather not discuss it," is better than a fabricated story.

DEAR ABBY: I know that not everyone is what he or she appears to be, but the woman who signed herself "Perplexed Mother" sounds like she's very easy to get along with. My parents visit us once a year — twice if we're lucky. And when they do, we give them our bedroom and bath (if we can convince them to take it). We arrange to take our vacations while they're here, so we can spend as much time with them as possible. We even plan a few outings during their stay, but we never seem to have enough time together, and when they leave, we are all teary-eyed.

God gave most of us very loving, unselfish parents with no guarantee of how long we'll be blessed with them. I hope children everywhere, grown and not-so-grown, will take stock of how much love and respect they give their parents. Children get only one chance to return some of the love, patience, sacrifice and concern their parents have dished out while raising us, so don't wait until it's too late. — THEIR "GROWN-UP" CHILD IN MARRERO, LA.
DEAR CHILD: Amen!

DEAR ABBY: I thought this was so good, more people should see it. It's written in a half-teasing way, but there's a lot of truth in it. It came with our church newsletter, "The Kitsap Adventist News." I hope it makes your column. — V.M., BREMERTON, WASH.

DEAR V.M.: It did:
Dear Church Member: Don't wait until the hearse hauls you to church. If you do —

1. You will go, regardless of the weather.
2. You will go, regardless of the condition of your body.
3. There will be beautiful flowers there, but you won't enjoy them.
4. You will go, regardless of how your family feels.

Views On Dental Health

Kenneth T. Perkins, D.D.S., P.A.

NEVER TOO OLD

If you think you're too old for good-looking teeth, take another look at the many television and movie actors who've achieved their first half-century and still have beautiful looking teeth. Anyone who is not in solitary confinement wants good looking teeth and an attractive smile. You don't have to be an actor to care about your appearance, no matter what your age. You are never too old for good looking teeth, and if you have a problem that needs correcting, your dentist can help you solve it.

It's not unusual for some teeth to become chipped and damaged over a period of time, for example. Other teeth may become crooked or out of alignment because the gaps from missing teeth haven't been filled. This not only affects the shape of your mouth, but the shape of your face. It can also add wrinkle lines and sags to the skin that are really not necessary, not with good dental treatment.

If your teeth are detracting from your appearance, call my office and ask what I would recommend to give you good looking teeth.

Prepared as a public service to promote better dental health. From the offices of: Kenneth T. Perkins, D.D.S., P.A., Evans St., Phone: 752-5126. Greenville 752-5126

Mexican Elections Challenged

CHIHUAHUA, Mexico (AP) — Opposition parties charged the ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party with irregularities in the Chihuahua elections, and one leader blasted its claim of victory as a "joke and an insult."

"We've seen serious problems," Matias Mesta, a spokesman for PAN, the main opposition National Action Party, said during Sunday's state elections.

"The presidents of the polls have refused to allow our poll watchers into the polls. And one woman said the ballot boxes were already full when she went to vote," he said.

Shortly after the polls closed at 6 p.m., ruling party spokesman Manuel Gurria claimed that Fernando Baeza, the Institutional Revolutionary Party's candidate for Chihuahua governor, had won the election, calling it a "legitimate triumph."

Gurria said the victory claim was based on reports made by party workers charged with bringing voters to the polls.

Ruling party candidates for mayor were also leading by "a considerable margin" in at least six other cities, Gurria claimed.

But Antonio Becerra Gaytan, gubernatorial candidate for the leftist Unified Socialist Party of Mexico, said the victory claim was "totally false. It's too early to have collected this information from all over the state."

Guillermo Prieto, PAN state president, called the victory claims by the Institutional Revolutionary Party "a joke and an insult to the people of Chihuahua."

Baeza's chief rival, Francisco Barrio of the PAN, said late Sunday, "We're just beginning to receive results from the voting. In a good part of the state, the voting continues."

State elections were also held in Durango, Zacatecas and Michoacan, but attention focused on Chihuahua, Mexico's largest state and the one in which the ruling party, known as PRI from his Spanish-language initials, faced its biggest challenge.

Alfonso Melo, a PRI spokesman, said that "in no manner" was fraud being committed. He said "three or four minor incidents" in which PAN representatives were refused entrance to polling places had been resolved.

The federal Interior Department issued a statement saying that "there were no major incidents" in the balloting.

In addition to the gubernatorial race, 67 mayoralties and 14 legislative seats in the state were at stake.

Chihuahua has 1.3 million registered voters among its 2.5 million residents, and no official results were available as of early today.

The PRI has ruled Mexico since the party was founded in 1929.

Malaysia Hangs Aussies Convicted Of Trafficking

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Two Australians convicted of drug trafficking walked calmly to the gallows and were hanged at dawn today, becoming the first Westerners executed under Malaysia's tough anti-drug laws.

Brian Geoffrey Chambers Jr., 29, and John Kevin Barlow, 28, died side by side at 6 a.m., Manuel Ponusamy, acting superintendent of Pudu Prison, told The Associated Press.

Australian Prime Minister Bob Hawke, who with British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher had appealed for the two men's lives, condemned the hangings as "barbaric." Prison regulations barred Ponusamy from releasing further details about the executions, but officials said the condemned men walked calmly to the gallows with a prison warden on either side.

Neither ate any breakfast, officials said, but had a meal late Sunday of satay, a Malay dish consisting of small pieces of meat skewered on short sticks and barbecued.

As the men were being executed, the voice of a Moslem holy man came over the loudspeaker of a nearby mosque to recite the morning prayer which begins "Allahu Akhbar," or "God is great."

Reporters saw a black truck leave the prison at 6:50 a.m. A prison officer, who refused to give his name, said the bodies were being taken to the government hospital mortuary for a postmortem before being released to relatives.

At the hospital, reporters saw two bodies covered with thick, gray prison blankets, lying side by side on stretchers at the back of the truck. The top half of the faces and the legs were visible.

No relatives were present for the hangings.

But after being told her son was dead, Susan Chambers told reporters at her hotel room, "I hope my son has not died in vain. All of us in the family grieve for him."

Barlow's mother, Barbara, said, "No one has the right to take someone else's life. It's inhuman."

Both families had visited the condemned men one last time on Sunday. Michelle Barlow gave her brother a bouquet of orchids, embraced him and wept, said Brian Chambers Sr., father of the other convicted man.

The elder Chambers told reporters that his son and Barlow were "distracted and upset, but have accepted their fate."

A family spokesman said Barlow would be cremated in Malaysia. Chambers' body will be flown back to Perth today for burial, Australian High Commission officials said.

Chambers, a building contractor from Sydney, and Barlow, a welder from Perth, were arrested on Nov. 9, 1983, at Penang International Airport on charges of possessing 6.2 ounces of heroin.

They were convicted and sentenced under a 1983 law which mandates the death penalty for convicted drug traffickers.

Nakasone Appears Headed For Sweep

TOKYO (AP) — Japan's long-ruling Liberal Democratic Party appeared certain today of scoring its biggest election victory ever, a stunning parliamentary landslide that could boost Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone's chances for a third term in office.

Based on computer projections of the 83 million ballots cast in Sunday's voting, Kyodo News Service and Japan Broadcasting Corp. said the LDP was assured of winning more than the 271 seats needed for uncontested control of the House of Representatives, the lower house of the Diet, or Parliament.

Both Kyodo and Japan Broadcasting predicted that Nakasone's party, which since 1983 had relied on a coalition with a minority party to maintain a shaky, two-vote margin in the 512-seat lower house, would capture at least 300 seats.

Those projections would give the Liberal Democrats, who have dominated Japan's political scene since the end of World War II, their biggest election victory ever. In 1960, they had scored a 296-seat landslide.

A Liberal Democratic victory in the House of Councilors, the upper chamber of the Diet where half of the 252 seats were being contested, was never in doubt.

A buoyant Nakasone, claiming victory on the basis of the unofficial returns, said his party would win at least 304 seats. Kyodo said that total included four victorious independents who pledged to join the LDP.

The prime minister said he believed voters had expressed support for his government's programs of education, tax and bureaucratic reforms, while the opposition had not made its policies clear.

"The people have judged correctly that these policies can only be carried out by the LDP," Nakasone said in an interview on Japan Broadcasting Corp.

Mandela Freed Of State Bans

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Police said today black activist Winnie Mandela has been freed of all state-ordered restrictions, formally ending more than 20 years of government restraints.

Also today, police reported 15 black miners were slain in factional fighting, and that police killed three guerrillas in a shootout north of Durban. The killings brought the weekend death toll to at least 25.

Mrs. Mandela's name did not appear last week on the government's annual lists of "banned" people who may not be quoted in South Africa. Police spokesman Capt. Henry Beck said today in Pretoria, "I can confirm that all restrictions on Mrs. Mandela have been lifted."

'Big Daddy'

The United States' depressed farm economy is continuing to exact a heavy toll and the end is not in sight.

Within the next couple of years the Farmers Home Administration (a federal farm lending agency) could be reluctantly kicking thousands of delinquent borrowers off their land and adding to its farmland inventory.

By the end of next year we're told the FmHA could hold more than 20,000 farm properties. Foreclosure proceedings have already begun on 44 North Carolina farms. Another 1,000-plus Tar Heel farmers have been warned to take steps to renegotiate their loans or face foreclosure. (In 1979 the agency held only 288 properties.)

Adding to its farmland inventory has been the agency's restraint in selling land because of concern over adding downward pressure to land values.

All this might result in the FmHA becoming the Big Daddy of real estate agencies, specializing in farmland, with choice properties ranging from the Pacific coast to the Eastern shores. All that, as well as in the business as government's farm lender of last resort.

Meanwhile, FmHA says the number of guaranteed farm operating loans has increased by 85 percent from a year ago and banks and other private sector lending institutions are participating to a greater extent in providing farm operating credit to farmers who need special help.

The General Accounting Office, Congress' investigative arm, says while souring of the farm economy has been a major factor it isn't always to blame for failure of FmHA borrowers.

Its study found poor management, personal problems like illness or divorce and excessive FmHA debt were far more likely to be to blame for the farm failures.

Regardless of cause, the problems have just kept growing.

Memory

The memory of our own tornado losses has been revived by recent twisters in Harnett County and the violent blow to a mobile home park at Jacksonville which killed three people.

One park resident avowed, "It was a twister, I can tell you. I saw it. There were two twisters as a matter of fact. It sounded like a small train."

There was a line of severe thunderstorms moving across North Carolina last Wednesday night and severe storm warnings for the area had been issued. The scenario had all the ingredients for the possibility of a tornado.

A young Jacksonville woman was watching as the sky turned "real dark and then the funnel cloud hit." She saw it from her residence 100 yards from the trailer park.

Those sometimes violent thunderstorms we have shared can have violent offspring. It's a good season for remembering what to do when tornadoes may strike a neighborhood. People who have first-hand knowledge can tell you there is little time to react afterward.

The time for mental preparation is beforehand.

Who Would Be In Charge?

RALEIGH — It was typical Joe Mavretic stuff. The committee room was packed, the issue was controversial. Mavretic took the floor and said it was time the issue was attacked from a whole new direction.

For four years, Rep. Mavretic, D-Edgecombe, has been searching for a way to bring order to the hybrid governance structure of the state's public schools. His latest idea is to make the lieutenant governor chairman of the State Board of Education and allow the board to hire a superintendent of public instruction.

Mavretic's idea quickly died in the state House this session. But it is the kind of idea that, if allowed to simmer in legislative minds for six months or so, could get very serious consideration in 1987. Mavretic's proposal would require changes in the state Constitution and, therefore, would require voter ratification.

The House Committee on Constitutional Amendments adopted Mavretic's idea over one approved by the Senate. Sen. Bob Warren, D-Johnston, had proposed reorganization of the public education higher command and a shuffling of the appointment power to the state board. Mavretic recognized that the breadth of Warren's proposal was tying it up in knots. It created partisan, and inter-branch, friction because it appeared that the Democratic legislature was stripping the Republican executive — Gov. Jim Martin — and future governors of control over appointments to the state board.

While Mavretic's proposal eliminates that friction, it also immediately raises two other serious questions. •If the lieutenant governor is chairman of the state board, will he have time to do both jobs? Mavretic says yes. When the Legislature is not in session, he said, the lieutenant governor has a lot of free time. He would simply be required to make chairmanship of the state board his top priority for that time. But Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan, asked the same question, said he felt chairmanship of the state board was a full-time job in its own right.

Mavretic responds that the lieutenant governor is already a member of the board and, therefore, is already spending a good bit of time on board matters. The only extra burden would be the duties of chairman.

•Who would become the main education leader in the state if this structure became law? Under the current structure, there is no such leader in the state. Mavretic says his proposal would "put the lieutenant governor in a much more central position."

But Mavretic's proposals might give the governor almost total control over education policy in the state. By the third year of his term, a governor has appointed a majority of the state board. If the superintendent is working for the governor's board, the entire Department of Public Instruction would then be subject to the political control of the governor's appointees. Several senators who discussed Mavretic's proposal "off-the-record" said that the lieutenant governor, in a politically charged situation similar to that which now exists between Martin and Jordan, could be rendered useless by a hostile board.

The Mavretic proposal holds out one considerable benefit: Education in North Carolina could have a high profile leader. Before such a change is approved, however, the Legislature will want to know if the lieutenant governor would really be in charge, and if he'd have time to do the job if he was.

Sen. Joe Biden, have fired off a blunderbuss of birdshot. What has Manion done, or not done, to deserve the attack? It is said, first off, that the American Bar Association's committee on judicial appraisal has given Manion its "lowest possible rating" of "qualified." Come now. From Lyndon Johnson's inauguration through Reagan's first term, 665 persons were nominated for the federal bench. Of these, 326 had precisely the same ABA rating of "qualified" and all of them were confirmed.

Then it is said that Manion's father, Clarence Manion, dean of the law school at Notre Dame, was "a founder of the notorious John Birch Society." Like father, it is heavily breathed, like son. Besides, a quarter of a century ago young Manion backed up his father on the radio "Manion Forum," which espoused "extreme right-wing views." Dan Manion himself never has been identified in any way with the Birchers.

Further, it is charged that as an Indiana state senator, Dan Manion introduced a bill "that defied the Supreme Court." The charge is unworthy of anyone who knows the first thing of law. The facts are that the Supreme Court in 1980 held it unconstitutional for Kentucky to require the posting of the Ten Commandments, at public expense, in every classroom. Manion's bill, overwhelmingly approved by his legislative colleagues, would have permitted such display at private expense. It was an effort to mount a further test case. If such efforts were to be forbidden as "defiance," Plessy

v. Ferguson would never have been challenged, and we would still have segregated public schools.

Critics say that Manion, a small-city lawyer with a general practice, never has published a scholarly paper. They say that several of his briefs, submitted to the Senate Judiciary Committee, were flawed by misspellings. Biden even has howled that Manion "altered" the transcript of his testimony before the committee. Here Biden is engaging in shameless demagoguery. Manion made the same kind of corrections, in the name of an accurate presentation of his views, that Senate witnesses historically have made.

Finally — more or less finally — it is charged that Manion in times past has questioned the doctrine of absorption. This is the theory that in 1866 the framers of the 14th Amendment meant to impose upon the states all the provisions of the Bill of Rights. The Supreme Court itself has spent the past 60 years haggling over this remarkable theory.

Let me recall a bit of history. Almost 50 years ago, President Roosevelt sent a judicial nomination to the Senate. His choice to succeed Willis Van Devanter on the Supreme Court was an Alabama senator distinguished only for his 100 percent fidelity to FDR's New Deal. The nominee had backed FDR's effort to "pack" the Supreme Court; he stood foursquare on TVA and the rest. The nominee never had written a scholarly paper or gained experience in federal courts. His only prior judicial experience was as a police court judge 27 years earlier. Senators objected that their colleague was not qualified — 16 senators would vote not to confirm — but the nominee argued that a president has a right to appoint judges who share his view of the public interest. The nominee, of course, was Hugo Black, whose name would appear on anyone's list of the court's 10 greatest justices.

I'm not saying Manion is another Hugo Black. I am saying that he is at least as qualified to sit on the 7th Circuit as Black was qualified to sit on the Supreme Court. The conservative Manion is at least as qualified for appellate jurisprudence in Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin as the liberal congressman Abner Mikva was qualified for a Carter appointment to the circuit for the District of Columbia. Manion's decency and integrity have been attested by Father Theodore Hesburgh, president of Notre Dame. The next roll call should see him confirmed.

Babysitting For The Child's Pet

When I rang the bell, Marge Bathurst answered it. She pulled me inside. "Shut the door. Hurry, shut the door."

"What's up?" I asked. "I don't want the dog to get out." "I didn't know you had a dog," I said.

"We do now. Our son Melvin brought him home from Penn State and dumped him in our laps. He said he couldn't leave Goliath on campus, and asked us to take care of him for the weekend while he went to Vancouver."

"When did all this happen?" "I think it was eight months ago," she said.

Marge's husband Jeff came into the room. "Jeff, when did Melvin leave Goliath with us?"

"It must be 12 years by now," Jeff said.

Goliath, a very large sheepdog, entered the room, went over to Jeff and sniffed his pants. Then he shuffed over to me and licked my hand. Having worked up a good foam, he stuck his head into my lap.

"He likes you," Marge said.

"You can have him," Jeff told me. "I'll even give you his water dish."

Marge said, "Jeff, he can't have the dog. Goliath has only one master."

"If he means so much to him why did he leave him behind?" I asked.

"Because," Jeff said, "he didn't want Goliath kidnapped by Nicaraguan terrorists."

"Hush," Marge said. "Goliath will hear you."

Jeff grunted. "Maybe he'll run away and find Melvin like dogs do in the Walt Disney films."

"Don't listen to him," Marge said. "He loves the dog. He walks him every night."

"At 11 o'clock," Jeff said. "Do you know why? It's the only time little kids are locked safely in their houses, so Goliath can't roll over and crush them."

Marge said defensively, "Melvin would never own a mean dog."

Jeff said, "Forget the dog for a minute. Tell him about the mice."

"We're having a problem with Goliath because Melvin's sister Holly left five mice with us when she went to Newport for the summer."

"What's wrong with mice?" I asked.

Jeff said, "I'm allergic to mice."

"How can you have them in the house then?" I asked.

Marge said, "Those mice mean everything to Holly. Jeff can put up with a little allergy to keep his own daughter's pets safe from harm. Holly says she'll take them back as soon as she can find an apartment that permits animals."

"Did any of your other children leave their pets with you?"

Jeff replied, "Do parrots count — because if they do, we have one in the dining room."

Marge said, "It belongs to our youngest son, Gary, and it doesn't bother anybody."

Jeff said, "I don't know what 'bother' means, but there aren't many people who can live with a bird who says, 'Have a nice one,' all day long."

"As I see it," I said, "you people are going to spend your entire summer pet-sitting for your children."

Jeff said, "It figures. They would die if they had to give up their animals."

Strength For Today

Lyman Beecher, a noted evangelist of his day, often astonished people by the advice he gave them.

After some of his tremendous exhortations, people would come forward confessing their sins, and he frequently interrupted them brusquely to ask what they had eaten that day, how many hours they slept each night, and what were their general habits of life. Then he would proceed to assure them that the way to purge their souls of the devil was to change their diet, or to stop worrying, or to be regular in their habits.

He insisted that all too often people thought their souls were lost when the trouble was nothing more than an upset stomach.

An unwholesome spiritual outlook often results from subnormal health. An old man once summed it up well when he said, "I always like to hear a man sit down and talk cheerful and comfortable." It shows he's in good health."

ZEBULON, N.C. (AP) — Nine cars of a Southern Railway freight train derailed in eastern Wake County Sunday night. One of the disabled tankers was loaded with sulphuric acid, but there was no spillage and no injuries were reported, officials said.

Railway workers and local law enforcement authorities dug a ditch around the derailed cars to contain any possible spillage, Perry said.

Child Drowns

The body of a Route 1, Grifton, youth that drowned after falling into the Neuse River was located Sunday about 10 miles downstream from Kinston.

Witnesses said the child Bernadette Mumford, 8, was swept downstream by a swift current after slipping from the river bank near the N.C. 55 bridge in eastern Lenoir County Saturday afternoon. Although she could not swim, the child's mother, Rosa Mumford, jumped into the river in a futile effort to save the child, Lt. Lester P. Gosnell of the Lenoir County Sheriff's Department said.

Gosnell said witnesses reported Ms. Mumford attempted to push the child toward a bank, but it was too high for the child to climb. After the child was swept away again and went down a second time, her mother finally caught a tree stump and remained there until she was rescued.

Eleven rescue squads and more than 100 people took part Saturday and Sunday in the search for the child. The body was located by members of the Sand Hill Volunteer Fire Department about 5:45 a.m. Sunday, the sheriff's department said.

Twice As Many College Women As Men Smoke

By DAVID GOODMAN
Associated Press Writer

DETROIT (AP) — Nearly twice as many college women as men smoke cigarettes daily, an indication tobacco companies are succeeding in making lighting up a sign of glamour and liberation, according to a federal study released today.

The study also found that cigarette smoking is much less common among college students than other young adults.

The study was conducted for the National Institute on Drug Abuse by the University of Michigan's Institute for Social Research and grew out of a 10-year series of surveys of drug use by high school seniors.

About 1,100 college students were interviewed each year from 1980 to 1985. The results have a margin of error of less than 3 percentage points.

Among college women, the daily smoking rate was 18 percent last year, compared with 10 percent for men.

"It appears the tobacco industry's expensive and long-term effort to associate smoking with liberation and success among women has paid off, at least for the industry," said Lloyd D. Johnston, a social psychologist and one of the study's directors.

"The payoff for those young women who bought the message is quite another matter," he said.

The smoking patterns of college students are set at a younger age, he said.

"Most smoking habits are established in adolescence," he said. "The sex difference goes back to high school. ... For some reason, college-bound females are smoking more than college-bound males."

An even sharper difference was found between college students of both sexes and other young adults.

In 1985, 14 percent of college students said they smoked cigarettes daily, compared with 31 percent of non-students, the study said.

That difference, too, has its roots in high school, Johnston said.

"Smoking tends to be highly related to grades and to school performance generally," he said. "The smarter kids are less likely to get hooked on cigarettes."

USDA To Decide 'Henocide' Program During The Summer

By DON KENDALL

AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sometime this summer the Agriculture Department will make a decision that could mean the stew pot for millions of the nation's hens during times of excess egg production.

The USDA is expected to make a preliminary decision in the next few weeks on the so-called henocide program being pushed by the egg industry. A final decision could be ready by early fall. The industry also wants a referendum among producers.

Technically, the proposal calls for a federal marketing order that would levy assessments on egg producers to finance research, promotion and the voluntary removal of surplus hens "during periods of extreme egg surpluses."

According to the department's Agricultural Marketing Service, which is handling the proposal, an estimated $24 million could be raised in the first year of operation for research and promotion. An additional $12 million or so could be raised to pay for surplus hen disposal if needed.

The assessment to finance the programs would be 1 cent per dozen eggs marketed, with options for future increases. A 21-member national board made up of producers and handlers would administer the marketing order.

The USDA agency held a series of public hearings earlier this year to gather testimony for and against the egg proposal.

One of the advocates has been the United Egg Producers, which has its headquarters in Decatur, Ga. According to the UEP, the proposal for research and promotion of eggs closely resembles a checkoff program for dairy products and those being worked out for beef and pork.

"Egg producers have come under fire from the Department of Justice and some privately funded groups which oppose all marketing orders in principle and as part of a broader philosophy to dismantle all farm programs," the UEP said recently.

Opponents of federal marketing orders in general say the orders use government authority to unfairly alter production of farm commodities in such a way that consumers must pay higher prices. Advocates of the orders say regulation is necessary to provide steady supplies at stable prices.

The UEP says the egg industry since 1965 has suffered an 18 percent decrease in per capita consumption of eggs, from 313 per person in 1965 to 256 in 1985. The number of commercial egg producers has declined from 3,979 in 1979 to 2,368 last year.

At the same time, says UEP, the real price of eggs paid by consumers has dropped from $1.42 per dozen in 1965 to 80.9 cents in 1985, based upon 1984 dollars.

Dr. Jarmel Talks About...

Sinus

Mark E. Jarmel, D.C.

The runny nose, watery eyes, and headaches that come from sinus trouble can really make life miserable. Allergy medicines can give temporary relief, but the important question is, "what's causing the problem in the first place?" Your body's adrenal glands produce hormones which can stop these allergic symptoms. The adrenal glands are controlled by the nerves from the spine and they can become worn down from physical and mental stress or a nerve being "pinched" at the spine. Chiropractic has helped thousands of people find lasting relief from sinus trouble by working to correct the cause of the problem. Don't suffer needlessly, call now for an appointment.

Some of the problems that may be caused by spinal imbalance:

- Headaches
- Neck & Shoulder Pain
- Low Back Pain
- Hip & Leg Pain
- Sinus Trouble
- Arm or Leg Numbness

Poll Shows Sanford Holding 6 Percent Edge Over Broyhill

CHARLOTTE (AP) — According to a telephone survey, Democratic U.S. Senate nominee Terry Sanford holds an edge over Republican Jim Broyhill in the Piedmont — an area that was pivotal to the Republican cause in the 1984 Senate race.

The statewide survey of 442 registered voters conducted by The Charlotte Observer shows Sanford leading Broyhill 46 percent to 40 percent. The newspaper reported Sunday that about 14 percent of the registered voters contacted by The Observer Carolinas Poll said they favored other candidates, were undecided or refused to give a preference five months before the Nov. 4 election.

In the populous 31-county Piedmont, Sanford holds a similar edge — 45 percent to 40 percent. But in 1984's Senate contest between Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., and former Democratic Gov. Jim Hunt, Helms controlled the Interstate 85 corridor that stretches from Cleveland County to Durham County. Helms' vote in that belt — blue-collar and increasingly Republican — clinched his reelection, both sides said.

The poll was taken June 12-26, just after President Reagan attended a June 4 Broyhill fundraiser in Greensboro and before Broyhill was appointed to fill the U.S. Senate seat of Sen. John East, R-N.C. East committed suicide June 29.

"I would say the numbers are encouraging, but the lesson in any poll is to work, work, work,"

Sanford said Saturday from the Hound Ears resort near Blowing Rock, where he was spending the weekend. "Everybody was predicting that I was less well-known than Broyhill, and consequently, that I was behind. The truth is I've been ahead all the time."

"I think that's real good news," Broyhill said at a campaign stop in Lumberton Saturday. "Republicans always start out behind. We have to work doubly hard just to catch up, much less get ahead. At this point in the campaign, those numbers are looking good."

The poll, which used a scientific, random sampling of voters statewide, has a sampling error of 4.7 percentage points.

Interviewers for the Marketing Research Division of Knight Publishing Co., publisher of The Observer, asked, "Thinking about the U.S. Senate election, if the election were held today, would you vote for Democrat Terry Sanford or Republican Jim Broyhill?" Questioners alternated the order of the candidates.

Sanford holds a 55 percent to 33 percent margin in 44 eastern North Carolina counties, which are expected to be his political base. Broyhill holds a 56 percent to 30 percent edge in the 25 western North Carolina counties that make up his political base.

Slightly more than 55 percent of the respondents said they have a favorable impression of Sanford, who was governor from 1961 to 1965. Eleven percent said they had an unfavorable impression, and a third of those interviewed said they have no opinion of Sanford, the 68-year-old retired Duke University president.

Broyhill, the 58-year-old House member from Lenoir who will be sworn in as a senator next week, is viewed slightly less favorably than Sanford: 44 percent have a favorable impression of Broyhill; 14 percent, unfavorable. Almost 42 percent have no impression of Broyhill.

Both candidates are well-known. Broyhill, who staged a high-visibility Republican primary campaign, is known by 94 percent of the respondents. Sanford, who ran an extensive television advertising campaign before the May 6 Democratic primary, was known by 90 percent of the respondents.

A third of the respondents said Sanford is a moderate, while 12 percent said he was conservative and 20 percent defined him as liberal. Broyhill, who consistently gets high ratings from conservative organizations, is viewed as conservative by 22 percent of those questioned. He was rated moderate by 24 percent of the respondents, and liberal by 15 percent.

But most of those answering — 39 percent for Broyhill and 36 percent for Sanford — said they did not know whether the candidates were liberal, conservative or moderate.

Legislature's Rank And File Show Signs Of Rebellion For Leadership

A News Analysis
By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — When Rep. Bob Etheridge moved to adjourn the state House last week to head off a key procedural vote in the highway-financing debate, the unspoken message was clear: the Democratic leadership feared the outcome and wanted to regroup.

Customarily, such a motion by one of Speaker Liston Ramsey's top lieutenants — Etheridge, D-Harnett, is the third-ranking House member — would carry with ease. Not this time. By a 63-45 margin, the House voted to stay put.

It then cast a vote to assure that a two-thirds majority will be needed to remove an amendment that would eliminate the tax on household personal property from a leadership-backed bill to increase motor fuel taxes — a situation the leadership had struggled to avoid.

For one thing, Rep. Joe Mavretic, D-Edgecombe, a legislative gadfly and outspoken advocate of property-tax abolition, had argued persuasively that voting to lift the household property tax would be popular in an election year. But some lawmakers said there was an additional factor: the rank-and-file wanted to send the leadership a message.

It is not unusual for Republicans to grumble that the leadership is abusing its power, making policy decisions for the entire Legislature and using threats — implied and stated — to get them enacted. But for the past couple of weeks, there has been evidence that Democrats are chafing as well.

"Repudiation is too strong a word," said Rep. Ray Warren, R-Mecklenburg. "But they're definitely restive."

Said Rep. H.M. "Mickey" Michaux, D-Durham: "I think there may be a general discontent. You hear rumblings, even among Democrats, that they're trying to push too much at us. I don't think it's a repudiation of the leadership, but it's just sending the leadership a message (that) hey, we've got minds, too."

Rep. Billy Watkins, D-Granville, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, said the complaints were nothing new. "You can't get 120 people together and ... always have a unanimous vote," he said. "You've always got unhappy people."

A major source of Democratic displeasure is the process of writing the state budget — the General Assembly's most complicated and politically charged task. The omnibus spending bills enacted annually determine how much money is allocated for state employee and teacher pay raises, for education, for human services and for hundreds of other programs.

The budget also is used as a shortcut to enact new programs and laws without going through the normal process of introducing bills, holding committee hearings and debating them separately on the floor.

For years, virtually all the major budgetary decisions have been made by a handful of powerful lawmakers nicknamed the "super-subcommittee," or "super-sub" for short. This group, consisting of the House speaker, lieutenant governor, co-chairmen of the appropriations committees and other top-ranking Democrats, met privately for weeks prior to the current legislative session.

The results of the super-sub's deliberations have been presented to the Joint Appropriations Committee in a series of meetings, during which panel members were asked to examine complicated packages of draft legislation and immediately vote on them.

Although most of the proposed expenditures had been discussed in varying degrees by the standing appropriations subcommittees, some members complained they were seeing some of the proposals for the first time. There also were complaints that some items had little to do with the budget.

Examples included provisions shifting two major divisions from the Department of Labor to the Department of Insurance, ordering Gov. Jim Martin to put together his own security detail instead of using the highway patrol, and creating a Teacher Incentive Program that never was discussed by the House or Senate education committees.

Then there were items bearing a striking resemblance to what generally is referred to as "pork barrel" — money for legislators' pet projects backed home. Every year, a bill is enacted that provides a few million dollars for such purposes.

RJR Ad

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — The final ruling in a Federal Trade Commission case involving R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. could have widespread ramifications on advertising, two Wake Forest University law professors say.

The FTC has challenged an RJR advertisement titled "Of Cigarettes and Science," saying it is misleading. But an attorney for R.J. Reynolds says the what the FTC calls an ad is really an editorial, which is protected by the First Amendment guarantee of free speech.

If Reynolds wins, it "would say to advertisers that careful drafting of your ad might enable you ... to have more license and liberty," said Professor David Logan. It would also force the FTC staff to determine not only if an ad was misleading, but also if it was an advertisement or an editorial.

"If (companies) can rewrite an ad and call it an opinion, that's certainly what they would do," said Professor J. Wilson Parker.

The full-page ad, which ran from February until June 1985, suggested that the link between cigarettes and heart disease is still open to debate. It used some findings from a study funded by the National Institutes of Health.

"Science is science. Proof is proof," the ad said. "That is why the controversy over smoking and health remains an open one."

The FTC this year said it was charging Reynolds with deceptive advertising.

AIDS Victim

RALEIGH (AP) — While social workers continue their search for a facility that will accept Jerry Norris, the former textile worker from Asheboro spends his days in the Wake Medical Center feeling rejected.

Norris suffers from acquired immune deficiency syndrome. Though he was discharged from the hospital two weeks ago after his symptoms stabilized, he continues to pass his days in his private room reading, sleeping and listening to the radio because he cannot find a place to live.

This is the season that many tomato disease problems appear and cause a great deal of aggravation to North Carolina gardeners. Summer is also when tomatoes do most of their growing and show tremendous promise for harvesting.

Three of the most common diseases affecting tomatoes locally are blossom-end rot, bacterial wilt and Southern stem rot. There are other diseases that are prevalent occasionally but these three diseases are by far the most common and damaging.

Blossom-end rot of tomato is a very common problem and it is not caused by an infectious, living organism. It is a physiological condition that is caused by a lack of calcium in the root zone and is made worse by dry weather or fluctuating periods of wet and dry conditions. This season is a good one to bring many blossom-end rot problems to eastern North Carolina gardeners. It has been both extremely wet and extremely dry.

The disease is characterized by a sunken, leathery area usually circular in nature on the blossom end. Blossom-end rot is easily prevented and somewhat correctable. The addition of quickly soluble calcium to the plant and root zone plus one inch of irrigation or rainfall each week will generally be sufficient to correct the problem.

A disease that is not correctable and is very discouraging is bacterial wilt. Not only is this disease fatal, but it will affect tomatoes planted in the same spot for several years. Symptoms include sudden wilting while the plant is green, usually in mid-June.

The third disease is a fungus called Southern stem rot. It is easily identified by the presence of a cottony mycelial growth, white in color and often tan or brown, round bodies in the fungal strands at the base of the affected plant.

The disease is common in July and August when night temperatures are hot, above 82 degrees. Symptoms include wilting during the day and recovery at night. After a few days the plant wilts permanently and dies.

These diseases can be minimized by cultural practices that favor good tomato growth. Planting in an area if the garden where tomatoes have not been planted for several years is helpful in reducing diseases of all types.

It is further beneficial to plant tomatoes in a garden that has been limed and fertilized according to a soil test. It is also helpful to supply a continual amount of fertilizer through the season and at least one inch of precipitation each week. A mulch of organic material such as pine straw, well-rotted sawdust, pine bark, grass clippings, etc., may be used. The mulch should not be placed against the stem of the tomato plant because this may cause Southern stem rot.

A common sense approach and a sufficient supply of water and care will make gardening in general and tomato growing in particular somewhat easier.

Hospital Is Offering What Patients Want

ERWIN, N.C. (AP) — Experts say consumer-oriented health care no longer is the wave of the future — it's already here. So Good Hope Hospital in Erwin has embarked on a campaign to give patients what they want.

In response to dwindling admissions and changes in how the federal government and private insurers pay for medical care, the 78-bed private non-profit hospital in Harnett County began making changes.

They opened satellite clinics in Angier and Benson to provide some types of care offered in a doctor's office as well as some laboratory services previously unavailable in those towns. Next to the hospital, they opened an outpatient specialty center where patients can get their heart checked or their acne cleared up.

Good Hope even opened its own urgent care clinic with convenience store hours — 7 a.m. until 11 p.m. Competing in some cases with Good Hope's own emergency room, the clinic offered quick relief to patients with minor medical emergencies.

"We saw the handwriting on the wall," said Philip S. Lakernick, Good Hope administrator. "If we didn't do it, somebody else would have provided those services. ... If you rely strictly on inpatient care, you're not going to be around in the future."

The competition is increasing among doctors, hospitals and private corporations to be the first on the block with fast, less expensive medical care.

But competition, especially in medical care, can have drawbacks, said Glenn I. Wilson, chairman of the department of social and administrative medicine at the University of North Carolina School of Medicine.

Wilson said there was no evidence that increased competition has lowered health care costs. With a wide range of medical services readily available, people may not be discriminating about how much care they need or how much to pay for it, he said.

"We have made a whole series of major breakthroughs in being able to provide service in something other than a hospital. And that's an important step for the future," Wilson said. "The question is: Who is going to operate those facilities, and are we going to have one on every corner?"

Along with outpatient surgery and urgent care clinics, freestanding treatment and diagnostic centers are proliferating nationwide, said Ted A. Matson, program manager in the Division of Ambulatory Care of the American Hospital Association.

These centers specialize in services including physical therapy, occupational therapy, sports medicine, back pain treatment, radiology, mammography, diagnostic imaging and geriatric medicine, Matson and others said. The trend is difficult to track because many freestanding medical centers don't need a license to operate.

The centers offer medical services that had been available only in hospitals. Doctors and profit-making corporations have learned they can offer the same services outside the hospital without a hospital's high overhead. The bottom line, they say, is higher profits and lower costs to patients.

Court To Rule On Death Bias

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court, in a case with enormous potential impact on the future of capital punishment, said today it will decide whether Georgia death sentences are meted out in a racially discriminatory way.

The court agreed to decide whether unconstitutional bias can be proved by statistics showing that killers of white victims draw death sentences more frequently than killers of black victims.

If the justices rule against Georgia, the fates of hundreds of the more than 1,500 death row inmates nationwide could be affected, and other state death penalty systems surely would come under attack.

The 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in 1985 rejected arguments that statistics suggesting racial bias — unless overwhelmingly convincing — can bring down a state's death penalty system.

"Proof of disparate impact alone is insufficient to invalidate a capital sentencing system unless ... it compels a conclusion ... of purposeful discrimination — (that) race is intentionally being used as a factor in sentencing," the appeals court said.

That ruling upheld convicted Georgia murderer Warren McCleskey's death sentence.

McCleskey, who is black, was convicted of the May 13, 1978 shooting death of white Atlanta police officer Frank Schlatt during a furniture store robbery.

McCleskey's lawyers raised several challenges to his conviction, but emphasized the legal attack on his death sentence.

His appeal accused Georgia's death penalty law of "reflecting a systematic bias of death-sentencing outcomes against black defendants and those whose victims are white."

Past Supreme Court decisions have established that students do have certain rights, but that those rights sometimes may be outweighed by the concerns of school administrators.

In 1969, a generally more liberal high court ruled in a case from Des Moines that high school students could not be barred from wearing black armbands to symbolize their opposition to the Vietnam war.

The court last year ruled in a case from Piscataway, N.J., that school officials have broad authority to search students suspected of carrying weapons or drugs.

The court on occasion has allowed the suppression of non-obscene speech. In a 1978 decision, the court said the Federal Communications Commission could censor comedian George Carlin's "seven dirty words" radio monologue — not because it was legally obscene but because radio broadcasts of it would reach unsuspecting children.

In that ruling, Justice John Paul Stevens said, "When the commission finds that a pig has entered the parlor, the exercise of its regulatory power does not depend on proof that the pig is obscene."

In the case decided today, Bethel School District officials were backed, in addition to the Justice Department, by the American Association of School Administrators, the National School Boards Association and other groups of school officials.

Fraser was supported by the National Education Association and student rights' groups.

Becker Takes Second Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Boris Becker's first Wimbledon championship was marked with diving shots and remarkable recoveries. His second may be remembered for just one shot.

Becker was on his knees, the ball coming at him and the world's top-ranked player, Ivan Lendl, anticipating two chances to break the teenager's serve and keep his hopes for a first Wimbledon title alive.

But the 18-year-old West German flicked his racket at the ball and produced a winner while still horizontal.

It was a moment of Becker magic that all but assured a second successive Wimbledon triumph.

Less than a minute later, Becker had won the 100th Wimbledon men's championship 6-4, 6-3, 7-5 to ruin Lendl's first-ever final appearance.

"You can't describe it, you just do it," Becker said when asked to explain how he makes some of his shots. "There's no book to tell you how to do it."

"Man, young man, boy, whatever you call him, call him champion," Lendl said.

That title was thrust again on Martina Navratilova, who beat Czechoslovakia's Hana Mandlikova

7-6, 6-3 Saturday to gain a record-tieing fifth consecutive singles title. In partnership with Pam Shriver, Navratilova also picked up the women's doubles for the fifth time in six years when they beat Mandlikova and Australian Wendy Turnbull 6-1, 6-3 Sunday.

But Navratilova missed out on a record-tieing triple when she and mixed doubles partner Heinz Guenthardt of Switzerland were beaten by Americans Kathy Jordan and Ken Flach, 6-3, 7-6.

Sweden's Mats Wilander and Joakim Nystrom landed the men's doubles, beating Americans Gary Donnelly and Peter Fleming 7-6, 6-3, 6-3.

Becker proved last year's historic Wimbledon triumph — when he became the youngest and first unseeded player to win the men's championship — was no fluke.

By whipping Lendl in straight sets, the West German showed himself to be the grass-court master.

"This year I really proved I can play well on grass, and proved I can be a Wimbledon champion," Becker said. "You can't say after just two weeks that I am the best tennis player in the world. On grass, maybe

I am the best in the world, but on other courts I am just one of the best."

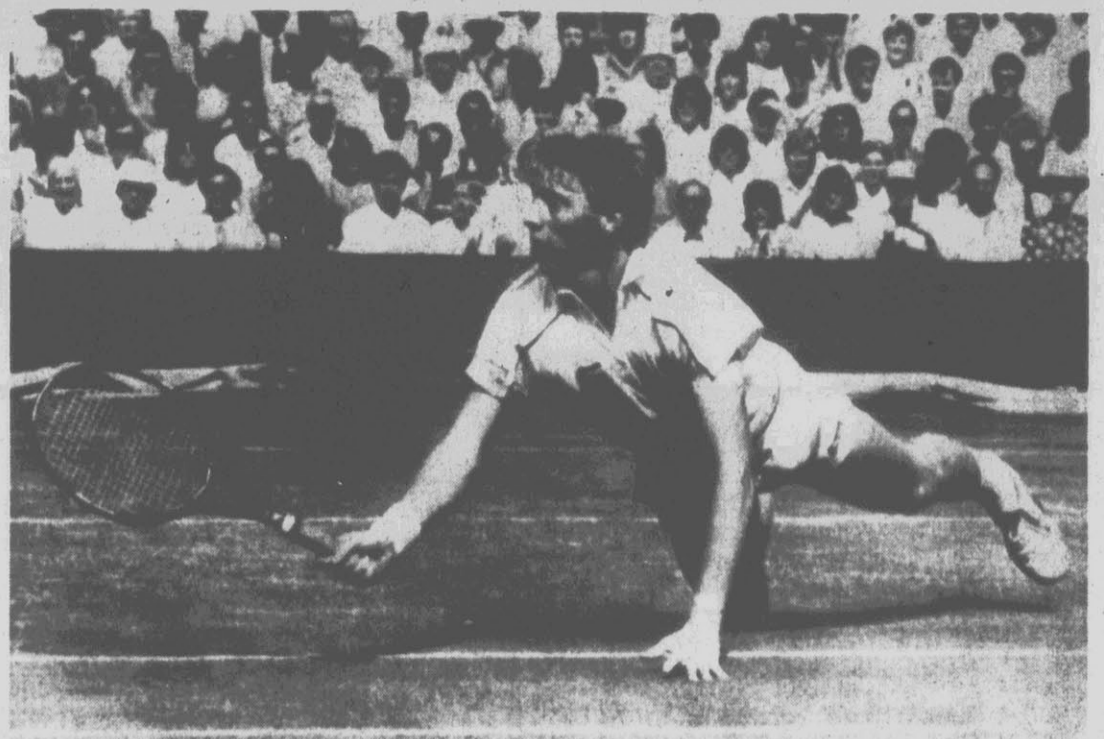

Becker has two Grand Slam championships, both on the Wimbledon grass. He has never made it past the fourth round at any of the other three tournaments, on clay at Paris, cement at New York and a slower grade of grass at Melbourne. Lendl has won the French and U.S. Opens and reached the finals at Wimbledon and the Australian Open, and believes that overall strength means he should retain his No. 1 ranking.

"To be the best player in the world, you have to play very consistently over 12 months. You have to win on every surface, not only one," Lendl said.

Winner last month of the French championship and reigning U.S. Open titlist, Lendl admitted before and during the championship he badly wanted to add the Wimbledon title to his collection.

He said he would rest, get himself back into shape and see how he could improve his game, although he was pleased with the way he played generally.

Dives To Championship

Horner Blasts Four Homers

By JONATHAN VITTI
AP Sports Writer

Bob Horner's team lost and Steve Carlton was knocked out of the game in the fourth inning. Yet both men rose above the circumstances.

Horner became the 11th player in major league history to hit four home runs in a game as his Atlanta Braves lost to the Montreal Expos 11-8 Sunday.

Carlton, who gave up three runs on eight hits in 3 1-3 innings Sunday before his San Francisco Giants rallied to beat St. Louis 8-3, made his comeback appearance 10 days after being released by Philadelphia.

The one who did poorly as his team won was brief after the game.

"They did a helluva job," Carlton said of his new teammates, who came up with six runs in the eighth inning for the victory long after he had left the game. "It was a good comeback." He would not comment further.

The one who was great as his team lost was more expansive.

"I had a good week today," Horner said. "It was just one of those things that happens and you can't explain it. I didn't in my wildest dreams expect to do anything like that."

"I don't expect to do that again any time soon."

Horner hit the first three homers in the first five innings, popped out in his fourth at-bat, then faced Montreal's ace reliever, Jeff Reardon, with one out left in the game.

"We were down by four runs and there were two outs and I figured he was going to challenge me," Horner said. "He threw a fast ball right there."

Mike Schmidt, the last man to hit four homers in a game, did so in an extra-inning game in 1976. Only eight men in history have hit four homers in a nine-inning game. The last one to do that, Willie Mays, did it on April 30, 1961.

In other NL games Sunday, Philadelphia outscored Cincinnati 12-5, New York topped Houston 5-3, Los Angeles edged Pittsburgh 4-3 and San Diego defeated Chicago 2-1.

Horner, who raised his season total to 17 homers, hit solo homers in the second and fourth innings and had a three-run homer in the fifth, all off Expos starter Andy McGaffigan.

Horner said the home run pitches were a fastball, two breaking balls and a fastball.

The record book finds one fault with Horner: the homers weren't on consecutive at-bats. Only four men have done that. Only three men have hit four homers in consecutive at-bats in a nine-inning game.

Expos 11, Braves 8

Nobody could out-homer Horner, but the Expos staged off the Braves. Andre Dawson, Mitch Webster and Al Newman homered as Montreal scored three times in the fourth and six times in the fifth.

The Expos had 16 hits as they beat the Braves for the third straight game. They scored 34 runs in the three games — 11 on Friday and 12 on Saturday.

Webster had five hits in the game. He singled twice in the fifth, scoring the first run of the inning and driving in the sixth. He hit his fifth homer of the season in the seventh for the Expos' last run.

Dawson hit his 13th homer of the season for two of the fifth-inning runs. Newman hit his first major-league home run in Montreal's three-run fourth.

Giants 8, Cardinals 3

Six runs in the eighth — on three singles, two sacrifice flies, a squeeze bunt and a two errors on the same play by St. Louis catcher Mike Heath — bailed out Steve Carlton.

Carlton, who was signed by the Giants last week, gave up three runs on eight hits in 3 1-3 innings.

The Giants trailed 3-0 when Carlton left, with two runners on base. Mark Davis relieved and got a double play. Davis, Greg Minton and Scott Garrels, the eventual winning pitcher, combined for 5 2-3 innings of two-hit, no-run baseball.

Carlton threw 77 pitches while giving up eight hits and three runs, all earned. He walked two and struck out two.

He was in trouble early. The Cardinals put him behind 2-0 in the third when on three singles, an error by right fielder Chili Davis, and a walk. A relay that nailed Tito Landrum at the plate saved a third run.

St. Louis scored again in the fourth before knocking Carlton out.

San Francisco cut the deficit to 3-2 as a relay-hitter, when pinch-hitter Candy Maldonado singled in two runs.

Phillies 12, Reds 5

Philadelphia tied a major-league record last matched in 1949 with seven extra-base hits in one inning — the third, during which the Phillies scored eight runs and turned a 4-1 deficit into a 9-4 advantage.

Philadelphia had four doubles, a triple and two homers in the inning as they matched a record reached five times, the last in 1949 — also by the Phillies against the Reds.

Pinch-hitter Jeff Stone led off the third with a doubled and closed out the inning's scoring with a two-run homer. He finished the game 2-for-2 as a pinch-hitter. Ron Roenicke also homered in the third, for two runs.

Mets 5, Astros 3

Sid Fernandez became the National League's first 11-game winner. Fernandez, 11-2, won his sixth straight start. He gave up a run on six hits and five walks in 6 2-3 innings before tiring in the 95-degree heat. Doug Sisk relieved, and Roger McDowell got the last two outs for his eighth save.

Howard Johnson hit a two-run homer and a double, Kevin Mitchell connected for a solo home run and Len Dykstra went 3-for-4 with a double as New York won for the ninth time in 10 games.

Dodgers 4, Pirates 3

Rookie Jeff Hamilton snapped a 3-3 tie with a run-scoring single in the sixth inning. Ken Landreaux began the winning rally with a leadoff single, took third on a sacrifice and a wild pitch and scored on Hamilton's first major-league game-winning RBI.

Rick Honeycutt, 5-4, pitched six innings for the victory. Tom Niedenfuer pitched one-hit ball over two innings, then Ken Howell pitched the ninth for his fifth save.

Padres 2, Cubs 1

Marvell Wynne homered and Andy Hawkins and Rich Gossage held Chicago to eight hits. Hawkins, 6-5, threw 7 2-3 innings as he lasted past the sixth inning for the first time in his last four starts. Gossage got the last out in the eighth, then struck out the side in the ninth.

Heading Home

Atlanta Braves' Bob Horner (11) gets a passing shake from third base coach Russ Nixon as he heads home after his second round-tripper in Sunday's game with the Montreal Expos in Atlanta. Horner hit two more homers in the game which the Braves lost, 11-8. (AP Laserphoto)

Edenton Routs Pitt, 20-11, To Even Series At One Each

EDENTON — Edenton took advantage of seven Pitt County errors and 10 walks in its 20-11 romp over American Legion Post 39 Saturday night to even the Area I East first round best-of-three playoff series at 1-1.

Pitt County downed Edenton 16-10 in the series opener Friday.

The deciding game of the series is slated to begin at 8 p.m. tonight at Harrington Field. The winner will advance to face Rocky Mount, the regular season title winners, in a three-game series starting Wednesday.

In Saturday's game, Edenton pitcher Tom Ward allowed only three earned runs on 13 hits in going the distance for the win. Pitt scored eight unearned runs in the game.

Meanwhile, Pitt County pitchers relinquished 18 hits, including two homers, and 10 walks, and the defense mishandled seven plays.

Starting pitcher Eric Jarman, who lasted just two innings and allowed eight runs to cross the plate, picked up the loss. Axel Smith came on in relief and permitted 12 runs, six earned, in three and two-thirds innings. Larke Wetherington tossed the last two-and-a-third inning, yielding just two hits and no runs.

Edenton jumped out on top in the bottom of the first inning with two runs and never trailed.

Kenny Nixon singled to lead off the inning, and Eric Downing double him home. Downing scored on back-to-back errors by Wetherington at second base.

Pitt cut Edenton's lead in half with a run in the top of the second to make it 2-1.

Shannon Peede, who singled and moved to third on a single by Lee Hardee, scored on a fielder's choice off the bat of Fred Bryant.

Edenton scored twice in the bottom of the second to take a 4-1 lead. With one out, Derrick Rogers reached on an error by Pitt shortstop Shane Adams, and Ward and Nixon both walked. With the bases-loaded, Downing drew a walk to force in Rogers, and Todd Hunter singled to drive in Ward.

Pitt tallied a run in the top of the third inning to close the gap to 4-2.

Wetherington, who struck out to lead off the inning but reached first when the catcher mishandled the third strike, stole home after moving to third on a pair of ground outs.

Edenton put the game out of reach with an eight-run third inning to take a commanding 12-2 lead.

A homerun by Scott Evans and five consecutive singles by Brad Hurdle, Rogers, Ward, Nixon and Downing highlighted the inning.

Pitt scored a run in the top of the fourth on Bryant's homerun, but Edenton pushed across three more runs in the bottom of the inning to make the score 15-3.

In the inning, Hunter singled to drive in Downing, who had doubled, and came around to score on a single by Robert James. Brian Bunch, who singled his way on, scored on a sacrifice fly by Hurdle.

Pitt's Eric Jarman, who doubled, scored on a base-hit by Axel Smith in the top of the fifth to make it 15-4.

Edenton failed to score in the bottom of the fifth, and Pitt County had a four-run outburst in the top of the sixth to tighten the score at 15-8.

Lee Hardee led off the inning with a walk, and Bronswell Patrick reached on an error. After Bryant made out, Steve Mills reached on an error, and Hardee came around to score. Patrick also scored on an error, and Jarman doubled, driving in Mills and Adams, who also singled his way on.

However, Edenton pushed five more runs across the plate in the bottom of the sixth on a sacrifice fly by Hurdle, a homer by Rogers and a two-run double by Hunter.

Pitt scored three runs in the eighth inning to close out the scoring at 20-11.

Downing had four hits and four RBI, and Hunter drove in five runs on three hits to lead Edenton. Nixon, Brian Bunch, Hurdle and Rogers had two hits apiece in Edenton's 18-hit attack.

Jarman, who went 5-5 in the game, drove in two runs and scored twice to lead Pitt County. Shannon Peede also contributed two hits for Pitt.

Tribe's Best Not Enough For 1st

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The Cleveland Indians' record is better than any team in the American League West. In the AL East, however, it's only good enough for — SECOND PLACE?

That's right. The lowly Indians, who have finished higher than fourth just once in the last 26 years, are the closest challengers to the first-place Boston Red Sox following Sunday's 5-0 triumph over Kansas City, Cleveland's seventh consecutive victory and the world champion Royals' club-record ninth straight setback.

"We're looking forward to being in the race all year," said second baseman Tony Bernazard, who walked in the third inning, stole second and scored the only run winning pitcher Tom Candiotti needed on Andre Thornton's single. "I'm even looking forward to winning the championship. We have the opportunity."

"This year is a building experience, but why wait until next year? We have hitters having career years and we're getting tremendous pitching and defense."

Despite Cleveland's 43-35 record, they are eight games from the top — although two percentage points ahead of third-place New York — while Kansas City, 37-44, is just seven games out in the AL West. But the Royals are fading.

"Everybody they throw out there, whether it's a knuckleballer (Candiotti) or fastballer, seems to shut us down," said Manager Dick Howser, whose team completed an 0-9 road trip. "I've been concerned since day one, since spring training."

In other AL games, it was Boston 7, Seattle 3; Chicago 5, New York 2; Detroit 5, Texas 2; California 8, Toronto 2; Baltimore 1, Minnesota 0; Oakland 6, Milwaukee 3.

Candiotti, 7-6, pitched a four-hitter in handing the Royals' a club-record 10th consecutive road loss. Loser Dennis Leonard was charged with all the Cleveland runs.

Chris Bando singled in the seventh and scored on Bernazard's double and the Indians wrapped it up with three runs in the eighth on RBI singles by Pat Tabler, Brett Butler and Cory Snyder.

"I'm not surprised because we have a good ballclub," Bernazard said. "The thing about it is we couldn't keep winning a lot of games the way we won those 10 in a row (April 26-May 7) because we were not a great ballclub ... but in the future we could be a great ballclub. We're on the verge of being a team that will contend all of the time in the future."

Red Sox 7, Mariners 3
Tom Seaver, making his second appearance for Boston, allowed four hits and an unearned run in seven innings and won the 308th game of his career. The 41-year-old Seaver, acquired from Chicago on June 29, is 2-0 with Boston and 4-6 over-all.

Seattle's Jim Presley hit a two-run homer off Joe Sambito in the eighth inning to make it 4-3. But Boston's Marc Sullivan hit a three-run homer in the bottom of the eighth off loser Mark Langston.

Langston had retired 12 consecutive batters when he walked Rey Quinones on four pitches to start the sixth. Marty Barrett's single and Wade Boggs' sacrifice loaded the bases when Langston's throw to third was too late to get Quinones.

Jim Rice walked, forcing Quinones home with the go-ahead run, another scored on an error by third baseman Presley and Tony Armas made it 4-1 in the seventh with his first home run in Boston since April 22.

Seaver, who struck out five, walked one and threw 96 pitches, said that after the sixth inning he told Manager John McNamara, "Keep an eye on me. After the seventh, I told him I was very wobbly. I was tired. I didn't throw that many pitches, but I was fatigued."

White Sox 5, Yankees 2
Julio Cruz and John Cangelosi hit two-out RBI singles in a three-run second inning off loser Doug Drabek. Wayne Tolleson hit a sacrifice fly off Bob Shirley in the third and Steve Lyons had a run-scoring single off Brian Fisher in the eighth.

Dave Winfield put the Yankees ahead 2-0 with his 13th home run in the first inning but Floyd Bannister, Dave Schmidt and Bob James held the Yankees to two hits the rest of the way.

Tigers 5, Rangers 2
Frank Tanana and Willie Hernandez combined on a seven-hitter as Detroit ended the Rangers' four-game winning streak and trimmed their lead in the AL West to one-half game over California. The only runs off Tanana came on homers by Scott Fletcher in the third inning and Gary Ward in the eighth.

The Tigers broke a 1-1 tie with three runs in the fourth on singles by Darnell Coles and Dave Bergman, a walk, a hit batsman, rookie Bobby Witt's 14th wild pitch of the season and a balk by Witt, who struck out 14 in eight innings. Dwight Lowry homered off Mitch Williams in the ninth for Detroit's final run.

Angels 8, Blue Jays 2
Kirk McCaskill pitched a six-hitter, Gary Pettis and Wally Joyner had RBI doubles in the fifth inning and Bobby Grich hit a three-run, pinch-homer in the ninth. McCaskill retired the first 12 batters and finished with nine strikeouts in notching his sixth complete game and seventh victory in his last eight decisions.

The Angels nicked Dennis Lamp, who was making his first start since July 4, 1985, for a run in the first inning on singles by Jack Howell and Rob Wilfong around an infield out. Lamp was relieved by Mark Eichhorn when Ruppert Jones doubled with one out in the fifth and Pettis greeted him with an RBI double. Joyner also doubled, giving the Angels a 3-0 lead. Grich's homer capped a five-run ninth against Stan Clarke.

Orioles 1, Twins 0
Ken Dixon checked Minnesota on three singles in 8 2-3 innings to snap a personal four-game losing streak and Fred Lynn homered off Neal Heaton in the fifth. Don Aase came on for his 22nd save after Kirby Puckett singled with one out in the Twins' ninth.

A's 6, Brewers 3
Jose Rijo snapped a personal five-game losing streak and the A's gave Jeff Newman a victory on his last day as interim manager. The victory broke Oakland's seven-game losing streak and gave Newman a 2-8 record. Tony LaRussa is scheduled to take over as manager tonight.

Rijo scattered nine hits in 8 2-3 innings before Steve Ontiveros struck out Mike Felder with the bases loaded for his seventh save. Trailing 3-2, the A's took a 6-3 lead by scoring four times in the seventh. Singles by Jose Canseco and Bruce Bochte put runners at first and third with one out and chased Tim Leary.

Singles by Dwayne Murphy and Alfredo Griffin off Dan Plesac produced the tying and lead runs. Murphy stole home while Griffin occupied the Brewers in a rundown. Griffin, who made it safely back to first in the rundown, then stole second and third and scored on a bunt single by Tony Phillips, who tied the major-league record of 12 assists for a second baseman.

Intuitive Alcott Lays Claim To Hall Of Fame Championship

SUGAR LAND, Texas (AP) — Amy Alcott discovered after winning the $300,000 LPGA Mazda Hall of Fame Championship that her intuition is a good barometer for how she's going to play.

"Somehow I had a good feeling all week," Alcott said Sunday after she beat Lauren Howe on the first playoff hole to capture the $45,000 first prize.

"I was patient this week, that's the way you have to be," Alcott said after her 25th career victory. "I've had kind of a mediocre year but I'm trying to gear up for the U.S. Open."

While others played hot and cold during the week, Alcott played steady golf through all four rounds. She had a final-round of par 72 for a 4-under-par 284 total at the end of regulation play.

Howe, who started the day at even par for 54 holes, shot a 4-under-par 68 to catch Alcott on the 17th hole and force the playoff.

Alcott drove a 3-iron 25 feet from the hole on the par-3, 188-yard 16th hole — the first and last of the playoff.

Howe, seeking her second professional victory, was in the fringe with her tee shot and she chipped a few feet short of the hole.

"I never got a chance to finish the hole," Howe said after watching Alcott snake in the winning 25-footer.

Alcott gained revenge for her final-round failure in the tournament last year when she lost she lost out to Nancy Lopez.

"The Mazda tournament I felt owed me one after last year," Alcott said. "I came into this tournament not playing very good golf and I needed something like this."

Alcott won for the first time this year, giving her at least one victory in each of her 12 years on the tour.

"This has been a mediocre year for me," Alcott said. "I knew I wanted to steady myself and get things turned around."

Howe, who has had to overcome wrist surgery and other ailments in recent years didn't sulk after losing the playoff.

"What's a girl to do, Amy hit a great shot to win it," Howe said. "This week has been so much fun. I thought I'd be very nervous but I only regret two shots today."

Howe missed a 5-foot birdie putt at No. 15 and shanked a 9-iron at No. 2.

"I'm going to work on my putting until my hands bleed," she said. "Then I'm going out and win."

Amy Benz, trying to win her first professional tournament, led through the first two rounds, but lost the lead to Alcott on the final hole of the third round and never led again.

10-Year-Old Car Aids Waltrip Win

GAINESVILLE, Ga. (AP) — Darrell Waltrip, driving a car that has had many facelifts in a decade of racing, won NASCAR's first Busch Grand National Series road race Sunday.

"That car is 10 years old. I won the first race I ever drove in and hopefully I'll win the last. It's been a (Chevrolet) Nova, a Buick, an Olds, and now it's a Pontiac," said Waltrip. "It's been phenomenal wherever it's run."

Waltrip earned $8,775 for winning the $104,000 Food GiantBig Apple 300 kilometer race over the twisting, hilly Road Atlanta course. He posted an average speed of 82.079 mph to finish 9.5 seconds ahead of pole-sitter Terry Labonte.

Dale Earnhardt was third, followed by Haskell Willingham and L.D. Ottinger.

Waltrip said the car which he called Little Bertha, a name similar to Big Bertha, his favorite Winston circuit car, has always been a favorite. "We've won races with other cars but not cars I've liked as much," he said.

He won the race as much in the pits as on the track, taking the lead from Labonte after his crew got him out of the pits six seconds faster. "The team is just great," said Waltrip. "Regular racing is what keeps your crew sharp."

He said the crew works regularly with this Grand National car and has helped win three previous races on oval tracks this year.

Waltrip said he didn't start serious racing today until after about 10 laps of the course, which has 12 turns, most of them right and some as sharp as 105 degrees. Almost all NAS-CAR races are run on ovals, which are left turns.

"When you have been on a track you don't know anything about, it just works on your head," Waltrip said. "The first 10 laps of the race I didn't know the way through the turns, we didn't know where people would go on the restart, we didn't know where to pass. I think I went halfway and then I went to work."

He finished with a comfortable margin over Labonte, who had cut the lead to as little as 3.5 seconds in the final laps.

"A car had spun up there on the backside and threw up a lot of dust," Waltrip said. "I had to ease on through there." When he rounded the exit turn, he said, suddenly Labonte was in his mirror. Waltrip speculated Labonte must have run into traffic and slowed.

O'Grady Tops Maltbie For Hartford Victory

CROMWELL, Conn. (AP) — If Mac O'Grady should lose his appeal of a six-week suspension and $5,000 fine meted out by PGA Commissioner Deane Beman, the 35-year-old golfer will have a $126,000 cushion to help him through any tough times.

With a decision on the appeal imminent, O'Grady shot a course-record 62 and beat Roger Maltbie in a one-hole playoff Sunday to win the $700,000 Canon-Sammy Davis Jr.-Greater Hartford Open and the healthy first prize.

Although O'Grady missed a four-foot birdie putt on the par-3 16th hole — the one where the playoff began and ended — Maltbie missed an even shorter putt for par to give O'Grady his first career victory.

It came a week after O'Grady met with a three-member PGA appeal board to present his side of the dispute with the PGA over O'Grady allegedly berating a tournament worker at the 1984 USF&G Classic.

The penalties of the dispute, which has led to a running feud between the golfer and Beman, are on hold pending the appeal.

"I have a profound respect for everyone associated with the PGA Tour," O'Grady said Sunday. "I'm not trying to be a martyr or a heretic. I just feel there's been an injustice done to me and my wife."

"I'm not here to stick it to the PGA Tour or grind any axes."

Rather, O'Grady wanted to savor a victory that ended years of frustration, he said. It took him 17 tries at qualifying school before he made the PGA Tour and it was another four years until his victory.

"There are times when you spread your wings and your molecules rise higher than they ever have before," he said.

"For the dreamers of the world, the people who's spirits have been fragmented along the yellow brick road, this is a day I share with them."

Despite temperatures in the mid-90s with 75 percent humidity, O'Grady finished with an eagle, eight birdies and one bogey for a 15-under-par 269 total on the par-71, 6,786-yard Tournament Players Club of Connecticut course.

"Playing on the tour comes down to being like a test pilot on the X-15," O'Grady said of the experimental rocket plane. "You have to perform, you have to be adaptable."

Maltbie, who started the day at 10 under par, had six birdies and one bogey for a final-round 66. He birdied the 17th hole to force the playoff with O'Grady.

Maltbie missed a 45-foot birdie putt from the fringe on the playoff hole, then O'Grady missed his four-footer to apparently give new life to Maltbie. But Maltbie missed from three feet.

Wayne County All-Stars Top Pitt County, 7-4

Andre Aitice struck out 13 en route to a three-hitter as the Wayne County All-Stars topped the Greenville All-Star 7-4 in the District 5 13-year old tournament.

Wayne County took an early 1-0 lead after the first inning when Man-do Hunter reached on a single and advanced around the bases and on two errors and a walk. Wayne County struck for six runs in the second inning while holding Greenville scoreless.

Chris Dail started things off in the second with a triple. Steve Milkovits followed with a walk. Steven Bates then reached on fielder's choice that scored Dail. Mando Hunter's single scored Milkovits and Steve Newby followed with a single that scored Bates and Hunter. Brian Cox singled and Andre Aitice doubled to score Newby. Cox came home on a wild pitch to make it 7-0 Wayne County.

Greenville rallied for two runs in the fourth and two more in the sixth, keyed by Grant Harmon's in-the-park home run that scored Charles Evans.

Aitice went on to retire the final two batters of the sixth on strikeouts. He gave up a hit to open the top of the seventh to Toure Clairborne but Clairborne was thrown out at second. Two more strikeouts by Aitice ended the game.

Hunter, Cox and Aitice had two hits apiece to lead Wayne County. Harmon went 2-3 to lead Greenville.

Snow Hill expanded the lead with three runs in the third. Collins reached on a fielder's choice, stole second and came home on Mason's single. Couture then doubled to score Mason. Couture scored on Brown's ground out.

In the sixth, Couture's double highlighted a three-run inning. Brown also had a triple in the sixth.

Farm Aid Raises Only $1.3 Million

By ROBERT HILBURN
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

MANOR, Texas — Everyone expected Willie Nelson to join recording buddies such as Waylon Jennings, Kris Kristofferson and even Julio Iglesias on stage during Farm Aid II.

But even those who were familiar with Nelson's success in bringing together hippies and rednecks in Texas must have been surprised to see the laid-back country music star backing up heavy metal heroes such as Vince Neil (of Motley Crue) on the rowdy rock hit, "Smokin' in the Boys' Room."

It made quite a contrast: Nelson, in his cut-off jeans, strumming guitar alongside Neil, strutting around in his flashy snakeskin chaps.

The pairing highlighted a playful "rock 'n' roll all-star" session in which Nelson and his harmonica player Mickey Raphael also joined hard rock figures Jon Bon Jovi (singing Elvis Presley's "Suspicious Minds"), Joe Walsh (singing his own "Rocky Mountain Ways") and four members of the Los Angeles' The Unforgiven.

"We didn't even know what songs we were going to do an hour before we went on stage," the Unforgiven's John Henry Jones said afterward backstage. "We all just got together behind the stage and figured out who was going to do what."

More than anything else on the 18 1/2-hour bill that attracted more than 40,000 fans to the Manor Downs quarter horse race track near Austin Friday, the teaming symbolized the continuation of the "musical coming together" spirit that had made the first Farm Aid benefit the most satisfying concert bill of 1985.

Besides raising $9 million to support for financially troubled farmers, last Sept. 22's Farm Aid program in Champaign, Ill., made a valuable statement by bringing together more than 50 acts from the country, rock and pop fields that are generally segregated by radio programmers.

In expanding the number of acts to more than 80 for Farm Aid II, Nelson created another "melting pot" that showed the richness, range and compatibility of much of contemporary American pop. Among the performers: John Cougar Mellenkamp, Neil Young, the Beach Boys, Rick James, Los Lobos, John Conlee, Bonnie Raitt, the Blasters, Roger McGuinn, the Fabulous Thunderbirds, War, George Jones, X, Dwight Yoakam, John Prine, Maria McKee and Taj Mahal.

Indeed, Farm Aid has evolved into a sort of American music festival, where musicians are free to interact or try out new songs in a highly relaxed atmosphere.

Despite this, there were warning signals that these all-day, televised pop benefits may be in danger.

The mostly 16- to 25-year-old audience here loved the show—despite punishing 96-degree heat that forced more than 700 people to seek medical assistance and despite traffic snarls that turned what should have been a 20-minute drive from Austin into a four-hour ordeal for many in the crowd.

But these shows are designed mainly for television, and that is the where success or failure is measured. Early indications are that only about $1.3 million was raised at Farm Aid II, including just $500,000 through TV pledges.

Heart To Heart

This tiny heart was recently transplanted into the chest of 23-day-old Baby Calvin, the infant who had to wait a bit longer for a new heart while Baby Jesse got his. The heart has its work cut out for it. When fully grown, Baby Calvin, like other adults, will have about 60,000 miles of arteries, veins and capillaries covering a surface area of about 1 1/2 acres. Every minute, his heart will have to pump about ten pints of blood through this complex network.

Wolper Says Liberty Last Extravaganza

By BOB McHUGH
Associated Press Writer
EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Producer David L. Wolper says orchestrating Liberty Weekend was "murder," and he pledges that the four-day extravaganza will be his last.

"It wasn't fun. I really wanted it to be fun, but it wasn't fun," Wolper, who also produced the opening and closing ceremonies for the 1984 Olympics in Los Angeles, said Sunday night after the Liberty Weekend closing ceremonies.

Nevertheless, the grandson of immigrants greeted by Lady Liberty told the audience of the three-hour finale in Giants Stadium here that planning the weekend was "the most rewarding enterprise of my life."

He said he was most gratified with the July 3 relighting of the statue's torch by President Reagan. Wolper also was delighted with the finale — a feeling he believes the audience of 54,000 shared.

"I think the audience in this theater gave me my review. They seemed to love it," he said.

Wolper also said the weekend received a nod of approval from the nation's First Family.

"Mrs. Reagan told me she thought it was perfect," he said.

Earlier in the day, Wolper complained about the dizzying logistics of the separate productions in New York, New Jersey and on three islands — Ellis, Liberty and Governors — in New York Harbor that were part of the $30 million celebration.

The tribute included the relighting of the statue, the most spectacular fireworks display the nation has witnessed, and a parade of tall ships up the Hudson River.

"This has been murder compared to the Olympics," said Wolper.

The producer of "Roots" and other miniseries said, "I'm going to go back to the simple life of making miniseries for television."

"Excuse the pun, I plan to pass the torch on to another generation."

Wolper said he been "beaten up" by critics of the extravagant Liberty Weekend shows, which were filled with special effects, show business stars and dignitaries.

"The criticism hurt me. I'm a human being," he said.

"All I wanted to do is for people to have a good time and for people to feel good about the country," said Wolper, adding that he turned down a bonus for his work from the Statue of Liberty-Ellis Island Foundation.

He has made 500 films, which have won a total of 150 awards. Among Wolper's productions are the television miniseries "The Thorn Birds" and National Geographic specials.

PBS Documentaries Explore Mysteries Of Nature, Politics

By ROBERT BARR
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — In a world increasingly isolated from nature, public television has become our Walden Pond, where the frazzled denizens of cities and shopping malls come to gaze at the mysteries and the beauty of life.

"Water, Birth, the Planet Earth," appearing July 15 on the Public Broadcasting Service, is a visually enchanting climb on the evolutionary ladder, so satisfying to watch that the sound can be ignored.

Even mosquitoes become at least interesting, if not beautiful, under Jim Dutcher's lens, and there is a thrilling underwater chase after an ink-squirting octopus.

Dutcher has produced an hour of pure visual pleasure, a succession of stunning scenes which amateur photographers would kill to duplicate. There is no evidence of human life in this program, which settles for a beaver as its most advanced animal, and it doesn't tell you whether the animals it studies are endangered or their water poisoned.

The documentary assumes what the naturalist Barry Lopez has called an attitude of regard, of simply paying close attention to what animals are doing.

That can be as amusing as the peaceful coexistence of tadpoles and mosquito larvae, which lasts only until the tadpoles' mouths attain a certain size, and as dramatic as a newly hatched sea turtle's urgent, instinctive struggle to reach the sea.

The thin thread of the documentary is that life began in the water, and depends on water no matter how highly it evolved. It notes that water sometimes falls as rain, and sometimes as snow. Maybe you knew that.

That serves well enough for a peg, however, and it takes Dutcher into an octopus' garden off Grand Cayman Island, where he spent hours coaxing the eight-armed critter out of its cave with a crab.

When Dutcher let go of the crab, it scurried away, pursued by the octopus with the photographer swimming furiously behind and ducking the ink clouds.

"I wasn't able to dodge it all. It was three yards square," Dutcher said in an interview from his home in Sun Valley, Idaho. Once he had to surface to get out of the murk, but that's edited out.

The sequence was filmed with a hand-wound, 30-pound camera which Dutcher bought 26 years ago. "If it had been bigger," he said, "I probably wouldn't have been able to keep up with the octopus."

It's ever so much easier to get a politician to cooperate with a camera, but "The Marketing of Margaret" shows that it isn't so simple to figure out what they're doing.

The documentary, produced by the British Broadcasting Co. following Mrs. Thatcher's landslide election victory in 1983, appears Sunday as part of PBS' "International TV" series.

Margaret Thatcher's admiration for Ronald Reagan extends even to borrowing his campaign techniques, and the documentary takes a posture of being slightly aghast that commercial pitchmen have invaded politics.

The prime minister's media adviser, Christopher Lawson, admits that promoting a candidate is not unlike marketing Mars bars, which is what he used to do. "It's getting the message across," he says, making it all sound much less sinister.

It appears that the Conservatives' best weapon was not their computers and their polls and their two shades of blue curtains for television backdrops, but the opposition Labor Party. Lawson says the Conservatives bought hundreds of copies of the Labor manifesto, or platform, and spent money making sure that voters were familiar with it.

Labor dropped 5 percent in the polls after it published its manifesto, Lawson said, and never recovered in the sensibly brief, 23-day campaign.

The BBC doesn't dig very hard on this assignment. It never explains what changes, if any, Mrs. Thatcher made in her positions or her style in the cause of media manipulation.

South Carolina Educational Television, the producer for "International TV," cheats American viewers by providing no background on the campaign, or on the differences between American and British politics. However, some of the silliness of the campaign is familiar.

Saddle

WASHINGTON (AP) — First lady Nancy Reagan got a custom-made saddle from President Reagan for her 65th birthday and expects to try it out when they go horseback riding at their California ranch next month.

The president surprised Mrs. Reagan, whose birthday was Sunday, when he told her that the saddle will be waiting when they begin a three-week ranch vacation, said Elaine Crispin, Mrs. Reagan's press secretary.

The Reagans usually horseback ride daily during their stays on the 688-acre ranch north of Santa Barbara.

seeking suitable photo opportunities, which the cameras obligingly record while the reporters seethe about lack of access.

There is Roy Jenkins, a leader of the Social Democratic Party, miffing the tritest of photo opportunities, the cheery wave from an aircraft door. Jenkins stands too far inside, out of the light, and an unseen voice orders him to move back out. Alas, he obliges.

 Saturday's Cryptoquip: AT LUNCH, "JUST A SAUSAGE SANDWICH" WAS OUR JUDGE'S SOLE ORDER IN THE COURT.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: J equals P

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, JULY 8, 1986

YOUR DAILY Horoscope from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Until noon don't try to force any issues for there are some deep frustrations of another person that can hold up activities. Show others you value them.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) There is a responsibility to handle in the morning before you can get another talent working for you later.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) There is a problem you have to solve before conditions there will improve. Invite friends over at night.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Study well any contracts you have made. Drop a note to those you have not seen in a while.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) You had better doublecheck on personal matters you have in mind. Find your true goals.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) You can accomplish what you want easily. Invite your friends over in the evening. Count the cost, too.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You find it difficult to gain a vital wish. Formulate a plan that will please your mate. Show more affection.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Handle only personal matters today. You will get fine results. Friends are generous. Be philosophical.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Carry through with the interests that can further your career. An influential person can be of assistance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Make sure you keep your word with one of importance. Make plans for the trip you want tonight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Work on plans for a new project. The evening can be romantic with the one you love. Show finesse.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Keep poised even though someone may throw a monkey wrench your way. Get good advice from partners.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Plan for recreation, but first delve into that pile of work. Take time to improve your health later.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she is apt to be overly emotional early in life, but there is also the ability to see the folly in this quickly. This will discipline the feeling for a potentially successful life and create a wider scope of ambitions. Teach to be objective early. Permit sports participation.

ANSWERS TO WEEKLY BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠AJ7652 ♥Q3 ♦952 ♣64
 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South West
 1♥ Pass 1♠ Pass
 3♥ Pass ?
 What action do you take?
 A.—Your queen of hearts is a huge asset, as is your ace, and perhaps even your doubleton club. Don't rebid spades and make partner think you don't like his hearts. Raise to four hearts.

Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠AJ102 ♥83 ♦Q954 ♣752
 The bidding has proceeded:
 West North East South
 1♥ Dble 2♥ 2♠
 Pass 3♠ Pass ?
 What action do you take?
 A.—You have a borderline decision. Partner is showing a pretty fair hand with his raise to three spades and you have a useful hand where you have promised little. However, the vulnerability here favors the brave, so we would choose to bid four spades.

Q.3—Both vulnerable, as South with 60 on score you hold:
 ♠KQ9 ♥AQ83 ♦AQ6 ♣J72
 The bidding has proceeded:
 East South West North
 1♠ Dble 1NT Pass
 Pass Dble Pass 2♥
 Pass Pass 2NT Pass
 Pass ?
 What action do you take?
 A.—Don't flog a dead horse. You have already told partner you have a very good hand, and he has informed you that he is poverty-stricken by failing to compete over two no trump. You have some chance of defeating your opponents, so let them struggle—Pass.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠K63 ♥6542 ♦873 ♣752
 The bidding has proceeded:
 West North East South
 1♠ Dble Pass ?
 What action do you take?
 A.—Follow the example of the chap who said: "I've seen my duty and I done it!" Partner asked you to bid your longest suit, and that's hearts. We know you didn't dream of passing, and one no trump shows more values than you have. Two hearts fits the bill.

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠KQ1052 ♥KJ93 ♦Q76 ♣K
 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South West
 2NT Pass 1♠ Pass
 2NT Pass ?
 What action do you take?
 A.—We know that you have an aceless hand and that partner passed originally. Nevertheless, we see no reason why you should not take a normal action. One of the reasons you opened this hand is that you held both major suits, so go ahead and show the second one. Bid three hearts.

Q.6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

World's Population Reaches Five Billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — The world's population reaches the milestone 5 billion mark with the birth of a child sometime today, The Population Institute reports.

"Never before have so many people shared space on this planet," observed Werner Fornos, president of the private institute which studies population questions.

"Five billion probably puts the world population about at its carrying capacity. It will be difficult to feed, clothe, shelter and employ many more people at more than a subsistence level of life," added M. Rupert Cutler, executive director of Population-Environment Balance, another population research group.

Rapid population growth has stretched the resources of the world and the prospect of future increases raises questions of how to cope with their growing needs, population experts generally concur.

"Somewhere in the world a child will be born and the earth's population will reach five billion," Fornos said in announcing the date for the population milestone.

"The birth of a child is usually a joyous occasion and our fondest wishes and fervent prayers are extended to this precedent-setting newcomer to the world," he said.

"This particular baby will most probably need both and then some, for it is a sobering symbol of the shocking rapidity at which the world's population is multiplying."

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Eight people have completed a round-the-world flight in four propeller-driven airplanes after stopping in 18 cities where they planted Texas' flag to celebrate the 150th anniversary of its independence.

quicentennial Commission, returned 26 days after the single-engine planes took off, said Preston Clark, a Texas Aeronautics Commission spokesman.
