Temperatures Soar

By CHERIE EVANS
Reflector Staff Writer

As the traditional vacation season, summer invites many people outdoors for recreational activities and house and lawn grooming. But with high temperatures ranging from 97-100 degrees, it may be wise to postpone some of those plans.

In Raleigh the National Weather Service said the second week of July is shaping up to be a scorcher, with record temperatures expected across the state.

The area forecast includes hot, sunny and humid conditions, said weatherman Jim Woods of WNCT-TV. "There's no rain in the prospect right now," he said. The high temperature in Greenville on Monday was 99 degrees and the low temperature was 73 degrees, Woods said.

In Cape Hatteras, a record temperature of 92 degrees was set Monday afternoon, breaking a previous high of 91 degrees recorded in 1977. Temperatures in the 90s hit most of the state, while the mercury climbed to 100 at Goldsboro and Fort Bragg.

Other highs, as of 4 p.m. included: Asheville, 92; Greensboro, 95; Raleigh-Durham, 97; Wilmington, 96; Winston-Salem, 96. It was 99 degrees in Charlotte by 2 p.m., but the mercury dropped to 96 an hour later.

The heat index, which measures how humidity combines with high temperature to reduce the body's ability to cool itself, pushed what forecasters call the apparent temperature to a potentially dangerous 110 and 120 degrees. At that level, prolonged exposure to the weather or strenuous activity can lead to heat exhaustion or possibly heat stroke, the National Weather Service warned.

"When the first heat wave hits with humidity it takes people by surprise," said Dr. Samuel Spicer, assistant professor of emergency medicine at East Carolina University. The first heat wave was in May this year, Spicer said. And he said there is usually one around August which lasts for several days.

With the soaring temperatures of heat waves, precautionary measures should be taken against heat-related illnesses, said Dr. Nicholas Benson, assistant professor of emergency medicine at ECU. Heat-related illnesses are found among people of all ages, he said.

"The very young and the very old are at the highest risk because their heat regulation mechanisms are not as accurate as people in the mid spectrum of life." Others with chronic illnesses such as diabetes, heart problems or kidney failures also are at higher risks, Benson said.

The most common heat-related il-

Strongest Quake Since '71 Shakes Southern California

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — The strongest earthquake to hit Southern California in 15 years shook a wide region early today, triggering rockslides, shattering windows and knocking out power to 100,000 customers, but there were no immediate reports of injuries or heavy damage.

The 2:21 a.m. PDT earthquake measured 6.0 on the Richter scale and was centered 12 miles northwest of Palm Springs, said Dennis Meredith of the California Institute of Technology. Palm Springs is 110 miles east of downtown Los Angeles. "It's a big one," Meredith said.

In Washington, D.C., U.S. Geological Survey spokesman Don Finley said the epicenter of the quake was about 40 miles east of San Bernardino in mountains near the edge of the Mojave Desert.

"Early reports said there was some damage in the epicentral area," he said.

The quake was the strongest to hit Southern California since Feb. 9, 1971, when a quake measuring 6.5 on the Richter scale collapsed a Sylmar hospital, killing three people. The quake caused $550 million damage in the Los Angeles area.

A quake measuring 6 on the open-ended scale is capable of causing severe damage. Today's quake was felt from San Diego, 100 miles south of downtown Los Angeles, to the San Fernando Valley, 120 miles north. Radio stations in Lake Havasu, Ariz., and Las Vegas, Nev., reported the quake felt there as well.

"A lot of people were just pouring out of my apartment complex into the parking lot and the street to get away from the building," said Jack Kowalec, assistant city editor of The Desert Sun newspaper in Palm Springs. "There was a little bit of panic, a little bit of hysteria."

Gene Aker, night copy editor at the newspaper, said the quake shattered a window in the building.

The quake initially knocked out power to 10,000 to 15,000 households.

A HAT UNDER THE SUN — Moses Barrett Jr. of Greenville touches up the paint on a building on Cotanche Street under the hot sun of Monday afternoon. Not losing his hat was also a consideration as the temperature neared 100 degrees. Forecasters say little if any relief is in sight. (Reflector Photo by Cliff Hollis)

County Board Approves '86-87 Budget For PCMH

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County Memorial Hospital's proposed budget for fiscal 1986-1987 was approved by the County Board of Commissioners Monday, paving the way for implementation of the spending and revenue package on Oct. 1.

Adopted by PCMH trustees last month, the budget projects gross patient revenues of $111.95 million (a 6.8 percent increase over the $104.8 million this year) and $5.22 million in other revenue ($5.08 million this year).

But deductions of $17.85 million (15.95 percent) for uncollectables ($17.4 million this year, including care for indigent patients, bad debts, Medicare and Medicaid adjustments) will yield a projected net operating revenue of $100.01 million in the coming fiscal year ($92.60 million this year).

PCMH President Jack Richardson, who was honored in a resolution by the commissioners Monday for his 20 years' service at the hospital, told the board that PCMH will need to collect $384,677 each working day in order to meet the projected budget.

Roy Clark, vice president for financial services at PCMH, told commissioners that the new budget includes $95 million for operating expenses (an 11.5 percent increase over the $85.22 million budgeted this year) and $5 million for capital outlay items.

The operations budget, Clark told the board, includes $57.17 million for salaries and fringe benefits for the 2,563 full-time equivalent employees in 1986-1987 compared with the $50.77 million in salaries and fringes for the 2,491 employees in this year's budget.

The 17 new full-time equivalent positions included in the new budget, according to a budget summary, show no new nursing positions, but include, among others, 17 new information services positions ($305,679 annualized salary), 12 in support services ($152,168 annualized salary), 11 in professional services ($302,844 annualized salary), 11 in house staff ($257,088 annualized salary).

In addition to the $1.31 million for new positions, the $57.17 million salary and fringe item includes a 2 percent across the board increase for all employees (totaling $905,360), $170,000 for shift differential pay, $35,000 to make market adjustments in certain salaries, and $1.15 million for performance or merit increases.

Other than salaries and related expenses, the largest item in the new budget is $19.2 million for drugs and

Rickover Dies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Adm. Hyman G. Rickover, the salty engineer who refused to go by the book and goaded the Navy into the nuclear era, died today. He was 86.

Pentagon sources said he died at his suburban Washington home of apparent natural causes.

Rickover had been in poor health since suffering a stroke in July 1985.

The sources, who asked not to be identified, said Rickover died this morning at his home in Arlington, Va. The sources declined to immediately provide any additional details, beyond saying the Navy had been notified of Rickover's death by his wife.

In a Navy career that spanned six decades, Rickover, a Russian emigre, became one of the pre-eminent military leaders of his time despite a style that enraged the Pentagon brass and the defense industry. Congress revered him, and twice awarded him its gold medal for exceptional public service. No other citizen except Zachary Taylor had been honored more than once.

SCAMS

Kenneth E. McDonald, director of the Winston-Salem Veterans Administration regional office, has warned about two scams that have been carried out in North Carolina in recent months.

He said the widow of a service-connected wartime veteran was defrauded of $750 by a nicely dressed young man who came to her home claiming to be from the Veterans Administration. She was invited to participate in the VA's new insurance program for widows, a program which actually does not exist. She gave the man cash and never saw him again.

A hoax which has plagued the VA for almost 40 years, McDonald said, involves false information regarding the

Election Decision Due Thursday

By SUE HINSON
Reflector Staff Writer

Black community leader D.D. Garrett Monday told city representatives the NAACP is in favor of a plan to replace Greenville's at-large method of election with a combination ward/at-large system.

In the works since early 1985, the change in method of election is being sought to allow expansion of Greenville's city limits and to ensure adequate minority representation in municipal government.

The method of election question is scheduled to be brought up for final consideration Thursday during the council's monthly session. The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. and will be held in the third floor council chamber of City Hall.

Garrett, president of the Pitt County chapter of the NAACP, was among approximately 15 people attending Monday's public hearing on the proposed change in the city's election system. Only four people spoke on the issue.

While Garrett said adoption of a 5-1-1 plan providing for election of five council representatives from districts and at-large election of one council member and the mayor was the best option available to ensure black representation, others expressed concern that the plan gave no guarantees that minority candidates would be elected.

Jim Rouse, an employee of a local radio station, questioned the "safeness" of District 2, one of two proposed minority districts in the 5-1-1 plan, saying that if black voters failed to turn out in large numbers a white candidate could easily be elected.

According to Rouse, figures used by the city to determine percentages of voting-age blacks living in District 2 may be misleading as the development trend in the area since the 1980 census has leaned toward white occupancy.

Located in southwest Greenville,

District 2 is 65.84 percent black with an estimated minority voting-age population of 3,261. The other predominately black district, District 1, is 67.09 percent black with an 18 plus minority population of 3,230. It is located in the northwest sector of the city. Districts 3, 4 and 5, are predominately white districts with an average white population of 6,000.

Census data and population estimates for areas annexed since 1980 used produce the above data required by the U.S. Justice Department places Greenville's population

Barclays Buys North State

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

BarclaysAmerican of Charlotte has signed an agreement in principle to purchase and assume most of the assets and liabilities of North State Savings & Loan, John Livingston, president and chief executive officer of North State S&L Corp., said this morning.

Livingston said the transaction, which is subject to legislative and regulatory approval, should be completed within a few weeks. He said that upon completion, substantially all of North State's assets and liabilities would become part of Barclays Bank of North Carolina, a full-service commercial bank with deposits insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

"This is an excellent opportunity for North State and its depositors," Livingston said. "We're combining the financial strength of BarclaysAmerican with the market base of North State's 18-branch network. Plans for Barclays Bank of North Carolina include developing existing (North State) branch offices to their fullest capacity and expanding into additional market areas."

North State's name will change to Barclays Bank of North Carolina, Livingston said.

BarclaysAmerican has assets of $3.4 billion, with 380 offices in 36 states, and has been serving North Carolina customers since 1911.

The corporation offers a variety of financial services, including commercial and real estate finance, consumer finance, leasing, factoring, insurance and mortgage bankings.

BarclaysAmerican is a subsidiary of Barclays Bank PLC of London, which holds worldwide assets of more than $98 billion, Livingston said.

North State has 18 branch offices and four mortgage loan production offices in eastern and central North Carolina.

Financial Institutions Assurance Corp. — a Raleigh firm which insures deposits at North State and other financial institutions — "was an important player in the deal," Livingston said.

North State began operations in Greenville in August 1979 with one office and expanded rapidly through mergers and acquisitions — including First Colony of Southern Pines and New Bern and Wilson sav-

Woman Test Pilot Charts Her Course

By KAREN L. SCRIVO
Associated Press Writer
LEXINGTON PARK, Md. (AP) — After flying some of the world's most sophisticated fighter planes, one Navy test pilot isn't allowed to do the whole job that the training intended. That's because Lt. Beth Hubert is a woman.

Still, if the armed services ever lift their ban on women in combat-related jobs, she says she's ready.

"If you accept the training and the fun of flying those fantastic machines, you also have to accept the jobs they do," Hubert said.

Last December, she became the first female jet pilot to graduate from the U.S. Naval Test Pilot School here. Now she is the only female jet test pilot among the 82 women and 12,061 men who fly for the Navy. Another woman tests Navy helicopters.

The Army and Marines have no women test pilots among their respective 14,202 and 4,040 pilots, those services said. The Air Force has 21,115 pilots but doesn't say how many are test pilots.

Hubert tests rockets, bombs and other attachments to aircraft, to make sure they don't interfere with operating the plane.

Cmdr. Bob Walker, chief test pilot for the Strike Aircraft Test Directorate at the Naval Air Test Center here, said Hubert is doing well and is "accepted like another one of the guys."

Hubert said there is risk involved in her work but added that computer simulation complements her training. "This isn't the 1950s. It's not Chuck Yeager going up to a plane and saying, 'How do you start this?' and then flying," she said, referring to the legendary early test pilot.

"You have to believe you can do it," she said. "When presented with a brick wall, I know I'll get out. There's always a door — and sometimes it's a window."

Landing on an aircraft carrier means setting a 12,000-pound plane that's going about 150 mph down on a runway 300 feet long, she said.

"You only have a 10- to 15-foot block that you have to be in to land safely," Hubert said. "Too low and you slam into the ramp, too high and you miss the wires that slow the plane down."

The first time Hubert was catapulted off an aircraft carrier for takeoff was among her most frightening experiences, she said. "You'll never buy that ride at Disneyland," she said of the experience seven years ago.

"I made the mistake of holding my breath; it felt like someone hit a hammer in my chest," she recalled.

She's had her head in the clouds since 1961, when she was in first grade and Alan Shepard became the first American in space. Until recently, most astronauts were test pilots first, and Hubert still dreams of going into space.

"The space shuttle is the ultimate (plane)," said Hubert, who has flown everything from a 1940s trainer to the F-18, a sophisticated fighter plane controlled by computers.

Hubert started flying while a student at Washington State University in Pullman, Wash., after spending summers working for a helicopter company that flew tourists over the Grand Canyon.

When flying, she said, "I look down and think, 'I have one up on everybody.' I think most pilots feel this way."

Hubert decided to join the Navy after hearing a radio advertisement that the Navy was looking for women for an experimental flight program.

In 1977, she was accepted into the Naval Aviation Officer Training School and received her commission in February 1978. She went to Corpus Christi, Texas, to get additional training and got her wings in June 1979.

Hubert, whose father was a bombardier and whose husband, Joe Rooney, is a Marine fighter pilot, sees herself as a role model for young women.

She remembers that her high school guidance counselor wasn't very encouraging when she told him of her dream of becoming an astronaut.

Yet while speaking to a group of high school students in her hometown of Veradale, Wash., Hubert remembers one girl who wasn't skeptical at all.

"She came up to me afterwards and elbowed me and said, 'I'll see you at the top.'"

Dear Abby — By Abigail Van Buren

Slow Down And Read 'What's Your Hurray?'

DEAR ABBY: Seeing "Slow Me Down, Lord" by 85-year-old Wilferd A. Peterson in your column not only triggered "Speed Me Up, Lord," it brought to mind a surrebuttal by my grandfather, Samuel Ullman (whose "Youth" was published in your column in 1962 and was often quoted by Gen. Douglas MacArthur).

Grandpa's poem (enclosed) was written circa 1918, so if you think it merits sharing with your readers, you have my permission. — MAYER U. NEWFIELD

DEAR MR. NEWFIELD: Thank you. I do:

WHAT'S YOUR HURRY?

Slack up, brother, what's your hurry,

That so recklessly you scurry,
With your elbows crowding sideways

And your eyes fixed straight ahead?

Is a minute's time so precious,
That you need be so ungracious,

And go tramping on your fellows,
As on the way you speed?

Can't you spare a nod of greeting,
Pass the time of day in meeting,

Swap a joke or smile a little
When a neighbor comes along?

Is the dollar so enticing —
Is success so all-sufficing

That you can't devote a second
To a brother in the throng?

Do you know your destination?
It's a quiet little station,

Where ambition never troubles
And the dollar jingles not;

Where riches are not enduring,
Where your note has passed maturing,

And the richest man's possession

Is a little grassy spot.
Why be over keen in speeding,

On a trail so surely leading
To that lonely little city, where

We all must land at last?
Slack up, brother! What's your hurry,

That so recklessly you scurry?

You may lead a slow procession
E'er another year is past.

DEAR ABBY: I am going with a wonderful man. He's good-looking, romantic, decent, sober, works steady and treats me like a queen. So what's the problem? He keeps asking me to take my shoes off so he can kiss my toes and caress my feet. Frankly, I would rather have him pay more attention to the rest of me, but what really turns him on is my feet.

My mother says he sounds like a kook, and she hopes he's not dangerous. Outside of that he is perfectly normal. I love this guy and we're talking marriage. I've known guys to get carried away with other parts of a woman's anatomy, but this is a new one. Have you ever heard of it before? And should I worry? — TOOTSIE-WOOTSIE

DEAR TOOTSIE: Your boyfriend has a foot fetish, which simply means that he is "turned on" (sexually stimulated) by feet. It's nothing new, and it's not dangerous. If he wants to know what caused it, a psychotherapist could probably dig it out of his subconscious. Don't worry about it. You could be "sole-mates."

Rabies Statistics

Nationwide 127 cats were reported having rabies in 1985, while 113 rabid dogs were reported, according to the Atlanta Center for Disease Control.

This is the fifth year more rabid cats than dogs have been reported.

In 1947 when rabies technology was limited and relatively few dogs were vaccinated, some 8,000 cases of dog rabies were reported in the United States.

Health officials estimate that nearly half of the nation's dogs are now vaccinated against rabies, with 13 states requiring vaccinations for dogs. Only five states have mandatory vaccinations for cats, and it is estimated that less than 5 percent are vaccinated.

North Carolina requires both dogs and cats to be vaccinated.

Although rabies deaths in humans are rare today — only one death was reported in the nation last year — no cure is available. Some 25,000 Americans are bitten each year by animals confirmed or suspected of having rabies, and must undergo a series of antirabies vaccinations — or risk death. Only three persons in recorded medical history have recovered from a clinical case of rabies.

ECU-Italy Exchange

A three-year period of shared instruction and research projects between East Carolina University and the University of Ferrara, Italy, is scheduled to begin this fall.

Officials of the Italian campus and Dr. Eugene Ryan, dean of the ECU College of Arts and Sciences, met recently in Italy to discuss terms of the proposed exchange agreement, which provides for the development of "cultural and academic relationships" between the two institutions.

"The exchange will include collaboration and contacts between those engaged in teaching, research and study at the two campuses," Ryan said. The agreement also will involve administrators, librarians and technical staff in "special projects," he said.

Specifically provided for in the agreement are the exchange of publications and sponsorship of occasional "joint symposia." The agreement will be in force for three years and may be renewed in 1990.

For several years ECU has sponsored a summer school program in Ferrara, through which American students spend several weeks at the Italian campus.

7:30 p.m. The speaker will be Eldress Annie Pearl Elson and guest choirs include Allen Chapel of Greenville, today, Popular Hill of Ayden, Wednesday, and Joseph Branch of Calico, Thursday.

Hammon To Preach

Bethel Church of God will begin revival services Sunday with the Rev. Earl Glenn Hammon.

Correction

Water

HILLSBOROUGH, N.C. (AP) — Authorities say two brothers charged with releasing nearly half of Hillsborough's water supply apparently wanted some water to play in.

"The only thing we can figure out is that they wanted to fill their water hole," Police Chief Joe H. Dickey said. "There wasn't much water below the dam, so they let some down."

GHA Inspections Reported Effective

A newly implemented plan for semiannual inspection of Greenville Housing Authority units is working effectively, GHA Director of Resident Affairs Sallye Streeter told housing commissioners at their monthly meeting Monday night.

Ms. Streeter said the inspection schedule has helped the authority in keeping units in a better state of repair.

While the Department of Housing and Urban Development only requires one inspection per year, the GHA initiated its own policy in an effort to improve housing, according to Joe Laney, executive director of the GHA.

"If you only hit them with an inspection once a year, they have a tendency to let the units go," Laney said. "They're looking a lot better."

Laney also said planned replacement of windows and doors in 40 units in the Moyewood project should be completed before the winter months.

"It is reported that contracts are ready to start replacing the windows and doors," he said. "It is primarily an energy improvement project. We hope it will make a dramatic change in energy use."

Laney said the GHA planned to install combination windows and storm windows along with steel-insulated doors in the project.

GHA commissioners also approved two book adjustments in keeping within HUD guidelines.

Ms. Streeter reported average rent at authority developments in June totaled $122.62. Rent at Meadowbrook was $109.98; Kearney Park, $125.54; Moyewood I, $132.65; Moyewood II, $123.53; Hopkins Park, $116.54; Newtown, $117.55, and West Meadowbrook, $110.15.

It is refunded every few years by the mysterious distribution of "application" forms which claim that dividend payments are available to World War II veterans for the asking. The form promises the veterans a dividend based on their military service, "even if they haven't kept their policies in force." The forms are sometimes directed to a non-existent "Capt. "Needless to say, the VA does not pay dividends on lapsed insurance policies," McDonald said, "but this particular hoax has resulted in literally thousands of inquiries to the VA from all over the country."

The bogus application also claims that Congress has passed a law authorizing the dividends. There has been no such action, nor is there any pending, McDonald said.

Making Do

Even in the wake of a spectacular restoration of the strand at Atlantic Beach it's said not to be the answer to coastal erosion that geologists, engineers and specialists in the erosion field seek as an ideal answer.

On the plus side, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers added almost 90 acres of playground to a four- to five-mile stretch of Atlantic Beach. The project also provided additional coastal elevation of about 12 feet ... representing extra storm protection to property in the area.

The project was made feasible by virtue of a huge supply of available sand and the nearby presence of dredging equipment. The work was completed in mid-May, meeting the start of the tourist season.

On the minus side, the new beach sand may last anywhere from two to three years and maybe up to 15 to 23 years with normal tides. As the Atlantic Beach public works director says, it depends a lot on the storms through hurricane season. "Everyone is real curious to see how long it will last," he said.

There are mixed feelings about another aspect. Geologist Orrin Pilkey recalls a beach replenishment that changed a neighborhood in just a single year from one of a low-cost, cottage-type beach to a high-rise community. It wasn't planned that way. Pilkey suspects the only long-range solution to protecting beaches for the next generation is to move back gradually.

It's questionable a really final answer is to be found; leaving us to do the best we can with what we have.

Inch By Inch

Hope is alive and well.

Inch by inch, foot by foot, the United States and the Soviet Union are moving toward their long-sought summit meeting with hopes of an agreement on some of the goals they share.

The road has not been smooth. Neither side was willing to be portrayed as over-eager; nor did either want to be regarded as preventing such a meeting from taking place.

A lot of hard-ball posturing and abrasive statements by President Reagan and Soviet leader Gorbachev has marked the path toward summitry; but to a large extent each recognized what the other was doing and quiet diplomacy was undeterred.

In his most recent statement President Reagan expressed his own optimism.

The hard fact is that both governments are keenly aware the world could not tolerate the kind of exchange a major military conflict involves, and some steps had to be taken to somehow ease existing tensions.

It is inconceivable to believe otherwise.

Problem Without A Solution?

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the real world not every problem has a solution. Unfortunately, biological warfare may be in that unpleasant category.

Nuclear weapons are awesome enough. But with good will the superpowers might be able to curb or even reverse their growth and proliferation through negotiations.

The outlook in the fast-moving field of biological toxins is not so promising.

When the United States and about 100 other nations meet in Geneva in September to review the 1972 convention prohibiting the use of biological weapons, they may simply have to conclude that the problem defies solution.

The sort of technology that promises to produce medical miracles is also rapidly refining this arcane method of warfare. The difficult problems of only two decades ago look like child's play by comparison.

For instance, biological weapons used to be produced in factories that were relatively easy to identify. For one thing, they emitted a lot of steam.

Today, far more deadly weapons can be manufactured in extremely small quarters. Oversight is virtually impossible.

The United States unilaterally renounced the use of biological weapons in 1969. It was an act of morality, but also of good strategic sense. Specialists in the field had concluded the weapons were virtually useless in combat.

They were both uncontrollable and fatal. The enemy could not be temporarily incapacitated in order to achieve a tactical objective. And the damage could not be contained.

Diseases like anthrax and smallpox were bound to be fatal. Worse, from a military standpoint, the likelihood was they would spread far beyond the target area — possibly eventually killing friendly forces as well.

Genetic engineering over the past 5 to 8 years has changed all that — in a dangerous way.

It is now possible to design biological agents whose effects are not extreme. Enemy troops could be knocked out for weeks or even hours. And surrounding areas may be left untouched.

This means U.S. military commanders have to consider biological weapons a real and potential threat. Adding to their anxiety is that the toxins no longer are produced in brewery-sized buildings. In other words, it is virtually impossible to tell what a potential enemy is up to.

Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense Douglas Feith, in charge of negotiations on biological weapons, likens the industrial process to a self-cleaning oven. By the time suspicious inspectors might turn up the traces of biological warfare, production would be gone.

The verification the United States insists must be part of any treaty with the Soviet Union to reduce nuclear weapons probably would not help enforce a tightened revision of the 1972 biological warfare convention.

U.S. researchers are working to develop antidotes to new toxins. But genetic engineering is so advanced the toxin can be changed quickly, outpacing defenses.

And the United States already has accused the Soviets and their proxies of using toxic substances in Afghanistan, Cambodia and Laos. Looking ahead to the September

Threat Hangs Over SDI

WASHINGTON — The arms control lobby, oiled by Republicans who care less about nuclear talks than stockpiling political assets for the election campaign, is concocting an offer for Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev: a five- to seven-year U.S. pledge not to withdraw from the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty (ABM).

The concern of arms control skeptics who regard the SALT treaties, including ABM, as Trojan horses, is that President Reagan might accept such a noose for his Strategic Defense Initiative (SDI) without realizing its terminal potential.

"White House aides are pushing this" (the no-withdrawal pledge), one arms control authority told us. They are doing so with assistance from political operatives and candidates who have no special love for arms control but are desperate to continue Republican control of the Senate by exploiting U.S.-Soviet harmony this fall capped by a post-election summit.

Their allies are Gorbachev's beguiling propaganda, the domestic arms control lobby and some NATO allies. Hard-liners, reflecting what has been the president's own conviction, predict that if the present ABM treaty is modified to accommodate Soviet fears of strategic defense — Reagan's No. 1 military objective — SDI will erode. Once erosion starts, they insist, it can not be stopped.

Evidence is at hand. It took more than five years before the president could override detentist diplomatic advisers and renounce SALT II, despite many formal U.S. charges of Soviet violations. Indeed, even though the treaty was never ratified — and actually expired last winter — pressures not to undercut it were irresistible until the middle of Reagan's second term.

As of now, the ABM treaty gives either side the right to withdraw six months after serving notice. Gorbachev's brilliance in selling the Soviet viewpoint and exploiting the negotiating weaknesses inherent in any democracy is both recognized and feared by Reagan's top strategists. Gorbachev has asked for a 15- to 20-year freeze on the ABM treaty. But a five- to seven-year moratorium would put his disabling foot on the neck of SDI, the system that Reagan claims may in time place the U.S. beyond Soviet nuclear threats.

In return, Gorbachev offers nebulous reductions in the particular Soviet arsenal that is taking on characteristics of a first-strike capability: land-based heavy missiles.

This is the old Soviet game of defense-offense trade-offs: The U.S. renounces or scales back on defense, and the Soviets do likewise on offense. In fact, however, in return for major American concessions on anti-ballistic missile defense 15 years ago, the Soviet response in reducing their offense is still awaited.

Indeed, long before Reagan finally said the U.S. was no longer bound by SALT II, Moscow was producing mind-boggling new land-based systems like the mobile SS-25, declared by the U.S. to be a violation of SALT II. High administration officials tell us that no fewer than 72 SS-25s, grouped in roughly eight separate bases, are now deployed — with an expectation of double that number a year from now.

Even on the defense side the Soviet Union has been taking advantage of the U.S. by violating the ABM treaty, including the illegal radar it has placed near Krasnoyarsk.

The issue comes to a head in the White House within the next few weeks. If the president is persuaded to give up the U.S. right to get out of the ABM treaty on six months' notice, rough agreement hailed as the foundation for a new arms treaty could be reached just before the Nov. 4 election — the end of the next session of the Geneva arms talks.

That could indeed make an election night for Republican partying. It could also bury SDI, the sharpest bargaining chip the U.S. has.

Strength For Today

"I'm a practical realist," declared a hard-headed skeptic. "The reason I don't believe in religion is, first of all, because I can't see it and handle it, and in the second place, because it doesn't seem to be doing a great deal for the people who claim they have it."

People are inclined to make too much over different varieties of religion. The point is not what kind of religion you have but whether you have any religion at all. If you live within yourself you are an idolater bending in submission to the most debasing idol ever fashioned — namely, yourself.

We can burn, destroy, and cast out the silly images made by the hand of man, but it is never until we cast selfishness, envy, greed, sensuality and jealousy out of our lives that we can be said to be living at all.

Life is God's great gift to us, and the only way to be happy is to use it helpfully.

Idealism Is Not Dead

RALEIGH — The General Assembly may be a bastion of Pragmatism, but idealism is not dead there. Among the 170 legislators, and the myriad other players who contribute to the game, there are a number of modern day Don Quixotes who dream the impossible dream.

Put in less flowery language, the General Assembly has its share of windmill tilters.

First amongst them has to be Rep. Joe Mavretic, D-Edgecombe, architect of more grandiose legislation than anyone else in the assembly.

Mavretic rarely, if ever, proposes making simple changes in law. He also steers a new direction, something people haven't thought of. For example, he proposed eliminating property taxes and replacing them with a higher sales tax. He would have corrected the governance problem in public education by making the lieutenant governor chairman of the State Board of Education.

The General Assembly is rarely ready for Mavretic's proposals, so he always seems to be running against the Legislature's inertia. Small changes usually take a great deal of time to accomplish in the cautious Legislature. Massive changes are extremely rare.

On the Republican side of the aisle, Rep. Stephen Wood, R-Guilford, is a champion windmill tilter. He regularly leads the hopeless charge for partisan Republican issues.

Wood, for example, was sponsor of a bill that sought single-member legislative districts, an issue which the Democratic assembly was not going to pass. He filed the bill anyway. He also filed a bill this year calling for a referendum on a gubernatorial veto. Again, it was a hopeless cause from the day the bill was filed.

"I love it," he said. "I enjoy filing a bill and going before a biased Election Laws Committee and arguing that bill." Wood said in an interview. He said he considers himself David in the fight against Goliath.

Rep. Richard Chalk, R-Guilford, is fighting almost as hopeless a cause as his colleague. Chalk is a nit-picker on the English language and is constantly offering amendments to eliminate split infinitives, double negatives and verbosity. He speaks with great pride of the time he caught a mistake in a bill. State law gives consumers five days to cancel a time-sharing vacation home purchase. Yet the bill involved would have allowed for the registering of a deed on the fifth day. Chalk amended the bill to say the deed couldn't be registered until the sixth day.

The windmill tilters aren't often effective, but they keep life interesting.

Public Forum

To the editor:

Procrastination, putting things off, leads to disaster. Procrastination becomes a habit. It's easy to slip into the routine of saying, "I'll do it tomorrow." Procrastination puts you permanently behind schedule. If you've postponed tomorrow's work until today, then today's work has to wait until tomorrow. You never catch up.

Procrastination causes worry, anxiety and guilt. Unfinished tasks hang like a black cloud over your head. When you're not accomplishing what you can — and should — you feel guilty. Procrastination can prevent you from reaching your goals. Doing a good job at school or the office, building a career, pursuing a satisfying avocation — all require you to finish tasks on time. Procrastination puts a strain on family life, when everyday tasks are neglected, tensions build. Chronically tight schedules leave little time for conversation, relaxed meals and the leisure activities that knit a family together.

Procrastination keeps you from getting involved in your community. Work hard during the week and, except for periods of crisis, keep weekends free to family and recreation.

To overcome procrastination, do these:

- Make a list each day of the things you have to do, in order of their importance.
- Do the hardest job first each day.
- If a task is complicated, break it into smaller parts.
- Remove distractions like food, magazines and television from your work place.
- Reward yourself for finishing a job.
- Keep a diary of your progress.
- Don't let failure discourage you.

Procrastination not only eats up time; it breeds another harmful habit: making excuses. Emergencies and unforeseen problems interrupt the best-planned days. But when making excuses becomes a way of life, it's wise to ask why. Excuses can become a way of refusing to accept responsibility. It takes motivation and determination to succeed, and a plan that replaces stalling with action.

State Races Test GOP's Staying Power

By EDWARD WALSH
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

RALEIGH, N.C. — Some early clues to the staying power of Republican gains under President Reagan are emerging here, a traditional, Old South Democratic stronghold where the GOP has made important inroads in the last six years.

The governor's office, both U.S. Senate seats and five of the state's 11-member House delegation are controlled by Republicans.

In the North Carolina General Assembly, Republicans are still a minority, but there are more of them than at any other time in this century.

Reagan, although not solely responsible, has had a lot to do with the GOP surge. He swept the state with 62 percent of the vote in 1984, carrying other Republicans to victory with him.

"Some of them (GOP office-holders) clearly just came wafting in with the wave," said Thad Beyle, a professor of political science at the University of North Carolina.

But now, Republicans here are facing the end of the Reagan era. The president is still an important symbol and powerful factor in fund-raising efforts, but he will never again head the ticket, creating the tide that lifts all Republican boats.

In 1982, in the midst of a deep recession, Republicans suffered heavy losses here and elsewhere around the country. They bounced back in the 1984 Reagan landslide. Now comes 1986, with the economy in better shape and the president apparently more popular than ever, to provide a new test of the momentum he has given his party.

Nowhere will the off-year election results be watched more closely for clues to the future than in North Carolina.

With one Senate seat at stake and with four hotly contested House districts held by first-term GOP lawmakers who have been targeted for defeat by national Democratic strategists, it is one of the premier political battlegrounds of the year — "the front lines," in the words of Rep.

William W. "Bill" Cobey Jr., R-N.C., one of the embattled Republican freshmen.

This view is shared at the state level.

"This is our breakthrough year, a chance to sustain the victories of 1984," said Christopher Shields, communications director of the state GOP.

"The real test is this year," said Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan, the state's highest elected Democratic. "Was 1984 a fluke or is there a permanent adjustment?"

All of the races appear extremely close. Rep. Jim Broyhill, R-N.C., the GOP Senate nominee who last week was appointed to complete the term of Sen. John P. East after East killed himself, is trailing his Democratic opponent, former Gov. Terry Sanford.

Republicans, however, are encouraged, because Broyhill's poll standing is higher at this point in an election year than other statewide GOP candidates who eventually won.

Democrats say they have a chance of winning back two or three of the House seats they lost in 1984, when each of these contests was decided by 2 percent or less of the total vote.

But they disagree on where their chances are best, suggesting a large degree of uncertainty about all the races.

To regain the House seats, the Democrats have fielded what they consider one of their stronger slates in years.

It includes two former congressmen who were ousted in 1984 — Robin Britt, running again against Rep. Howard Coble, R-N.C., and James M. Clarke, who is in a rematch against Rep. William M. Hendon, R-N.C.

In the Raleigh area, Cobey is being challenged by David Price, a former state Democratic chairman.

The toughest race faced by a Democrat is against Rep. J. Alex McMillan, R-N.C., in the GOP stronghold around Charlotte. But here, the Democratic candidate, D.G. Martin, is considered one of the more able in the state.

Despite the Reagan landslide and the district's Republican tradition, he lost to McMillan in 1984 by only 321 votes.

IN THE STATE

Contempt

RALEIGH (AP) — A federal judge has refused to dismiss motions to find White Patriot Party leaders Glenn Miller and Stephen Miller in contempt of court, leaving the issue for a jury to decide.

The jurors were to be chosen today in U.S. District Court in Raleigh to decide whether the two white supremacists, who are not related, violated a court-approved consent agreement signed in January 1985 by operating a paramilitary organization.

U.S. District Judge Earl Britt denied requests Monday to dismiss the contempt motions and also motions to sever the two men's cases after hearing from Glenn Miller's attorney, William Martin of Raleigh; Stephen Miller, who is representing himself; and U.S. Attorney Sam Currin, who is prosecuting the case.

Indictment

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Virginia company and one of its officers were charged Monday with bid rigging in connection with dredging projects on the Atlantic coast, the Justice Department announced.

A one-count felony indictment issued by a federal grand jury in Wilmington, N.C., accused Norfolk Dredging Co. of Chesapeake, Va., of conspiring with other unnamed firms and individuals to allocate dredging contracts from 1978 to 1981 in violation of the Sherman Act. Also indicted was Russell J. Thorne, the firm's executive vice president.

The contracts were let by the Army Corps of Engineers and the Navy along the southeast Atlantic coast from Norfolk, Va., to Jacksonville, Fla., and were set aside for small businesses under the Small Business Set Aside program.

Committees

ELIZABETHTOWN, N.C. (AP) — U.S. Rep. Jim Broyhill, R-N.C., says he will assume the late Sen. John East's committee assignments when he is sworn in as the senator's replacement next week.

"It would appear I'm going to serve on John East's committees (Armed Services and Judiciary)," Broyhill said Monday during a campaign visit to Bladen County. "The Senate leadership has told me they do not want to reshuffle the committees at this time."

Broyhill was appointed last week by Gov. Jim Martin to fill the unexpired term of East, R-N.C., who committed suicide at his home in Greenville on June 29.

Broyhill faces former Democratic Gov. Terry Sanford in the November general election.

Nominee

RALEIGH (AP) — Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan is urging Gov. Jim Martin to name his replacement for retiring North Carolina Supreme Court Chief Justice Joseph Branch soon, but aides to the governor say the announcement isn't likely to come until after the General Assembly adjourns.

Jordan said Monday that Alex K. Brock, the state election director, informed him that both the Democratic and Republican party executive committees would have to nominate candidates for chief justice for the November general election no later than Aug. 1.

Brock said that it is necessary to meet a Sept. 1 deadline for preparing absentee ballots.

Tentative Schools' Budget Approved

ASHEVILLE (AP) — The State Board of Education has approved a preliminary $567.5 million budget that includes money to hire new teachers, provide vocational teacher training and hire clerical assistants to relieve teachers of administrative duties.

The preliminary budget for the 1987-89 biennium approved Monday includes $253,373,066 for the Basic Education Plan and $314,195,000 for career growth and related programs over the two-year period.

Although the board must deliver its preliminary budget to the State Budget Office by July 25, the final version will not be submitted until January. The board will assign priorities to budget items at its September meeting, and the Advisory Budget Commission will hold hearings on budget requests in the fall.

Included in the board's budget for the Basic Education Plan is $87.3 million to hire 3,425 teachers, $42.2 million to provide full state funding of vocational education teachers by the fall of 1988, and $22.9 million to hire 1,702 clerical assistants to relieve teachers of administrative duties in the schools to achieve the staffing levels called for by the Basic Education Plan by the fall of 1988.

Assembly OKs 'Super Tuesday'

By F. ALAN BOYCE
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina has officially joined a dozen Southern states planning a Super Tuesday presidential primary, but at least one senator questioned the wisdom of the move.

Supporters say the Southern primary would force candidates to concentrate more on Southern issues. It would come right after the Iowa caucuses and New Hampshire primary.

While the early primary would cost North Carolina $750,000, supporters say that would be more than compensated for by advertising and other money that would come through candidates touring the South.

House members who questioned the idea said it might price some candidates out of the presidential market early or dilute North Carolina's interests among those affecting the entire South.

"I don't think it's going to determine who the president is or who the nominee is," said Sen. Mel Watt, D-Mecklenburg, who voted against concurrence in House amendments in the 41-4 tally Monday night. Watt said the multistate primary could dilute attention to North Carolina while it draws attention to the South.

The way the bill was handled drew more criticism than the idea behind it.

Sen. Bob Somers, R-Rowan, who also voted against it, said "the source" was his main reason for opposition.

"Even though I voted against it, I look forward to a presidential primary where Jesse Jackson is in-involved in every debate on the evening news," Somers said.

Republican Sens. Wendell Sawyer and Larry Cobb said they voted against the bill because it was not offered as a separate measure but was grafted to a pre-existing bill that would have eliminated North Carolina's May presidential primary.

"Besides that, it just costs a hell of a lot more money to run in one of these big primaries," Sawyer added.

But Rep. Bob Hunter, D-McDowell, who helped the bill through the House, said it "should go a long way to increasing the importance of the South region in the presidential selection process."

"Candidates are going to spend more time here," he said. "They're going to pay more attention to traditional mainstream issues. It should help Southern candidates, but it's not designed to help or hurt any particular candidate."

Sen. Tony Rاند, D-Cumberland, called the enactment "a great day for America." He said the lack of interest that led him to consider doing away with primaries last year could be remedied by putting the state into the limelight in the March primary, where a third of convention delegates could be decided.

Open Meetings Bill Enacted

RALEIGH (AP) — A stronger open meetings law enacted by the General Assembly drew praise from lawmakers and media representatives after a long journey.

"I think we've made an important improvement to the law on behalf of the people," said Hugh Stevens of the North Carolina Press Association after the House voted 96-10 to concur in Senate amendments Monday and enact the law.

Under the law, to take effect Oct. 1, actions taken in illegally closed meetings can be voided and unscrupulous public officials could be forced to pay legal fees incurred by challengers.

ness is heat cramps, which tightens muscles all over the body and is very painful, Benson said. "The arms and legs bother them most," he said.

Heat cramps can be prevented by drinking liquids that contain salt such as soft drinks, Gatorade or water with a little salt added to it. "Sometimes water (without salt) isn't the best thing in the world," Benson said. "But it's better than nothing."

An extremely tired person who is sweating and has a high temperature is probably experiencing heat exhaustion, Benson said. But "the worst type of presentation is heat stroke," he said. "Usually once they get to this stage, they have stopped sweating but the skin is still hot." The person is usually unconscious or disoriented and experiences seizures, he said.

Those suffering from heat-related illnesses should get professional medical attention, but immediate measures include lying down, preferably in the shade, Benson said. Clothes should be loosened such as unbuttoning the shirt or removing the necktie. If the person is unconscious, the feet should be elevated.

"Wash down the body with some liquid whether it's water or anything else," Benson said. This takes some of the heat out of the body, he said.

The worst thing a person can do is to work outside in the fields or in the yard alone during the hot weather, Benson said. "The person can get so sick and pass out and nobody knows they passed out," he said.

Another precautionary measure is to drink anything that contains salt, he said. Salt tablets are preferred by some people but it can be dangerous for those with high blood pressure.

Other common sense measures are to stay out of the sun as much as possible and seek shade, said Dr. Nicholas Benson, professor of emergency medicine at ECU. Also "stay away from alcoholic beverages," he said, to decrease the risk of dehydration.

Many people cool off in the city pool during the hot weather, said lifeguard Ronald Fleming. "It was crowded like anything yesterday and today will be probably worse," he said. The pool, which opens to the public from 1:30-6 p.m. weekdays, has a limit of about 300 people, Fleming said. "When it gets too crowded, we have to close the gates."

ings and loan associations — to a regional firm.

But because of the rapid expansion, the firm lost money and terminated a number of employees in 1984 in an effort to cut expenses.

In May 1985, Guaranty Savings and Loan of Fayetteville acquired 90.1 percent of North State.

Livingston said Guaranty offices are not included in the Barclays purchase.

Commenting on the legislative approval needed for the purchase, Livingston said a bill was scheduled to be introduced in the General Assembly this afternoon that, in effect, would "allow us to become a bank," rather than a savings and loan.

Lawton Nisbet, vice president and branch manager of Interstate Securities, who said he had heard the news of the move earlier today as hearsay, said Public Record, a financial publication, describes BarclaysAmerican as a diversified financial service company involving various financial areas such as insurance, mortgage and banking, consumer finance, leasing and factoring.

Nisbet said that, according to the most recent records he has available, Barclay's Bank had a gross income of almost $500 million in 1984. "It's definitely a multimillion dollars operation," he said.

There are some Barclay bonds issued in the United States, but stock in the company is not issued here, according to Nisbet.

Clark said the new budget is based on a projected 3 percent increase in admissions in the coming fiscal year and an increase in the acuity level (which would add 3.8 percent to revenue), but no increase in rates.

Commissioners Monday also awarded a contract to Taff Office Equipment Co., which submitted a low bid of $9,600, for the purchase of office supplies for the coming year. The only other bidder, Carolina Office Equipment Co. submitted a bid of $11,036.

The board approved a request by the town of Winterville allowing an extension of its extraterritorial jurisdiction over a new portion of the Cleveewood Subdivision off Tar Road, but took no action on a recommendation by the planning board to move into land use planning by employing a staff person to do the planning.

Assistant County Manager John Bulow reported that the county has a firm quote of $87,805 for its general liability, auto and property insurance for the coming year from the Harleyville Insurance Co. The county's present carrier will not renew the coverage.

The premium for the coming year is $20,000 more than last year.

Goetz Ordered To Stand Trial

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — New York's top court today ordered Bernhard Goetz to stand trial on charges of attempted murder and assault in the 1984 shootings of four youths on a Manhattan subway.

In a 7-0 decision, the Court of Appeals reinstated charges thrown out by lower courts.

Goetz also faces less serious charges of illegal possession of weapons.

Goetz has admitted shooting the youths Dec. 22, 1984, after one of them approached him for $5.

Goetz, a white man who had been injured in a mugging in 1981, has said he was acting in self-defense when he opened fire on the subway because he feared that the four black youths were about to rob him. The teenagers have said they were just panhandling to get money for video games.

The Court of Appeals said state law does not "allow the perpetrator of a serious crime to go free simply because that person believed his actions were reasonable and necessary to prevent some perceived harm." "To completely exonerate such an individual, no matter how aberrational or bizarre his thought patterns, would allow citizens to set their own standards for the permissible use of force. It would also allow a legally competent defendant suffering from delusions to kill or perform acts of violence with impunity, contrary to fundamental principles of justice and criminal law."

The shooting turned Goetz into an international figure after he surrendered to police in Concord, N.H., on New Year's Eve, days after the shooting. He was interviewed on national television and in stories distributed around the world.

Sympathizers portrayed the 39-year-old electronics equipment calibrator as a crime victim fighting back, while detractors said he was a vigilante looking for trouble and had turned into a criminal himself.

The Court of Appeals ruling overturns a decision by the Appellate Division of state Supreme Court that said the prosecutor in the Goetz case erred by telling grand jury members to consider what any reasonable person would have done when confronted by the same situation on the subway as Goetz.

The Appellate Division ruled 3-2 that the prosecutor should have told the grand jury to consider whether Goetz himself — not a hypothetical reasonable person — believed that he was in danger and believed the use of deadly force was necessary for self-defense during the encounter with the four youths.

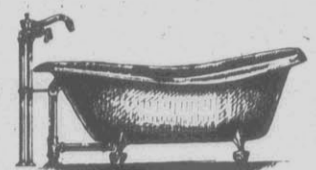

The middle-level appeals court said grand jury members should have been instructed to consider Goetz's background, physique, mental condition, knowledge and past experiences in deciding the issue of whether Goetz could claim a legal defense of justification in the shootings.

The Court of Appeals said, "Goetz's own statements, together with the testimony of the passengers, clearly support the elements of the crimes charged, and provide ample basis for concluding that a trial of this matter is needed to determine whether Goetz could have reasonably believed that he was about to be robbed or seriously injured and whether it was reasonably necessary for him to shoot four youths to avert any such threat."

Three of the youths — Troy Canty, James Ramseur and Barry Allen — have recovered from their wounds, but Darrell Cabey was left permanently paralyzed and brain damaged, authorities said.

The first grand jury to hear the case against Goetz refused to indict him for wounding the teen-agers, charging him only with illegal possession of weapons.

at 37,603. According to city staff, Greenville's population is actually closer to 40,000. The Justice Department, which must approve any change in method of election, considers census data and population estimates to be reliable methods of determining population.

Also raising questions about the 5-1-1 plan Monday was Andy Andrews, a Republican candidate for County Commissioner. Andrews said a straight district system would be more in keeping with interests of black voters as it would be a better method of ensuring adequate minority representation.

"The one at-large seat would never go to a minority representative," he said.

Andrews also asked council members to consider making city elections a partisan issue.

Speakers supporting the 5-1-1 plan in addition to Garrett included the Revs. Arlee Griffin and Howard Parker. Rev. Griffin also asked the council to consider making terms longer than two years sometime in the future.

Four Killed

CLAYTON, N.C. — At least four people died today in a house fire in the Wilson Mills community near Clayton, Johnston County sheriff's officials said.

Deputy Ricky Creech said the fire was still burning about 10:30 a.m. and four people trapped inside were "known to be dead." He could not say whether there were others in the house.

Market Plunges

NEW YORK (AP) — Renewed pessimism over the economy sent Wall Street's best-known indicator, the Dow Jones industrial average, plunging 61.87 points in its largest one-day drop in history.

However, Monday's slide to 1,839.00 represented just 3.25 percent of the average's value, and far below big declines in previous years when the average was lower, such as the 12.9 percent fall Oct. 28, 1929.

The decline in the average of 30 blue-chip stocks surpassed the previous record point drop of 45.75 points set June 9.

On the New York Stock Exchange, six stocks fell in price for every climber. Analysts said the sell-off was triggered by worries over continued weakness in the economy and by bearish statements by some prominent analysts.

Worst May Be Over For Farms

WASHINGTON (AP) — The crunch on U.S. farm exports may be winding down, and an era of long-term growth could be at hand, if the signals are correct, an Agriculture Department economist says.

During the 1970s, a time of escalating farmland prices and inflation, the volume of U.S. farm exports increased an average of 8 percent per year. So far in the 1980s, including this year, the amount shipped has declined annually.

Clark Edwards of USDA's Economic Research Service says the forecasts indicate "the worst may soon be over" for exports, which have become vital to the financial well-being of so many of the nation's farmers.

"The foreign exchange value of the dollar has been dropping against many major currencies, and our commodity prices are closer to market-clearing levels," Edwards said Monday in a new agency report. "Farmers' production costs are stabilizing, and rates of return on investment in agriculture are recovering from reduced levels for many farm enterprises."

Perhaps the most important development for American agriculture — assuming decades ahead without major wars — will be the steady increase in global population, which, according to the Population Institute, has now reached 5 billion people, double what it was in 1950.

"The long-run trend in export growth over the past three decades averaged about 3 percent per year," Edwards said. "If we can manage to get back on that track — and it appears that we can — agriculture's recovery will be hastened."

Although Edwards thinks farmers will continue to see "temporary strains" in the future as they have in the past, he said those need not lead to prolonged periods of either surplus or shortage.

The recovery of lost export markets, however, will make American farmers more dependent on foreign buyers — and more vulnerable to future price swings of foreign origin.

"By the year 2000, around half of U.S. harvested cropland could be producing for export markets, up from an average of 36 percent in the last five years," Edwards said. "The livestock sector could also become more involved in exports, reducing its insulation from foreign market swings."

Why, with such risks apparent, should the United States push so hard for a greater share of the world agricultural export market? Perhaps, he said, because the alternatives are less appealing.

One alternative would be to pare back agriculture, limiting it to the domestic markets, which grow about 1 percent a year. Meanwhile, productivity has been growing about 1.9 percent per year. Thus, each year, less land, less labor, less capital and fewer farms would be needed to supply domestic demand growth.

"The potential for demand growth outside the United States is much greater," Edwards said. "World population is expected to double before the middle of the next century, and the food will have to come from somewhere."

Edwards said American farmers have the capacity to supply a share of future world needs. An increase in exports at the rate of 3 percent a year would double total U.S. exports in less than three decades "and provide a basis for growth sufficient to absorb the likely increases in agricultural capacity," he said.

During the last population doubling — which took 36 years, according to the Population Institute — food supplies more than doubled, and the world trend in food prices, although erratic, declined slightly, Edwards said.

CHARGED — Cuban refugee Juan Gonzalez, 43, is escorted by police after a sword-slashing incident aboard the Staten Island ferry Monday in New York. Police said two people were killed and several wounded in what the assailant said was an attack for God. (AP Laserphoto)

Refugee Charged In Stabbing Has History Of Mental Illness

L.A. Times-Washington Post

NEW YORK — A homeless Cuban refugee who randomly stabbed and slashed passengers aboard a Staten Island ferry Monday morning, leaving two dead and nine injured, had been diagnosed as having acute mental illness only four days before but had been allowed to leave a hospital, police said.

Juan Gonzalez, 43, began his attack aboard the Samuel I. Newhouse ferry about 8:35 a.m. as it passed the Statue of Liberty, said acting Police Commissioner Richard Condon, and was finally stopped by a retired police detective who held him at gunpoint until the ferry docked.

Condon said the director of a Manhattan men's shelter had called police July 3, saying that Gonzalez was telling residents he was going to kill people under orders from God.

Gonzalez was turned over to Columbia Presbyterian Hospital where he was diagnosed as an acute psychotic paranoid, Condon said, but Gonzalez was released from Columbia on July 5 after he told doctors he was feeling better and agreed to attend Harlem Hospital as an outpatient.

Mayor Edward I. Koch, who visited the victims Monday, said the city would investigate details of his release.

Gonzalez, who came to the United States in March 1977, was charged with two counts of second-degree murder, 12 counts of first-degree assault and one count of criminal possession of a weapon, according to Sgt. John Venetucci, a police spokesman. At his arraignment in Staten Island Criminal Court, Gonzalez was ordered held without bail and sent to Kings County Hospital for 30 days for evaluation, Venetucci said.

Gonzalez had been sitting on the middle deck on the left side of the ferry that was carrying about 500 passengers when he removed the newspaper wrapper from the 24-inch, curved sword he later said he bought in Times Square and "started slashing and stabbing people," Condon said.

As Gonzalez plunged his sword into the crowd of horrified passengers, he screamed in Spanish words about

Refinancing Stalls Mortgage System

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Homeowners lured by low interest rates are seeking to refinance mortgages at such a feverish clip they are bogging down the system and facing long delays and higher-than-anticipated interest rates.

California, the nation's biggest market for residential mortgages with 28 percent of the business, is feeling the pinch the most.

"Some of our members are doing 300 percent more business this year than last," Lee Anne Mathews, spokeswoman for the Sacramento-based California Mortgage Bankers Association, said Monday. "It's just more than anyone anticipated, and we weren't ready to handle it."

But the problem is being felt elsewhere, as well.

"It's causing a lot of problems," said Roman Olescyek of Earl Keim Realty Inc. in the Detroit suburb of Livonia. "Deals are falling apart because it takes too long to get them closed and people get frustrated."

Nationally, lenders this year expect to process new loans and refinancings worth about $400 billion for residences of up to four units, compared with $246 billion last year and $210 billion in 1984, according to the National Mortgage Bankers Association, based in Washington, D.C.

Loan officers, appraisers, title insurers and credit verifiers are stretched to their limits, and still the time it takes to get a mortgage has swollen from the usual 30 to 60 days to as much as 120 days, officials said.

More typical, in recent months, is 80 to 90 days.

Trying to parlay the problems into more business for itself, one lender, Beverly Hills-based Great Western Savings & Loan Association, issued a release saying that despite delays elsewhere, it was able to process loans in an average of 41 days.

"Understandably, consumers are none too happy about it when it means they have to pay higher interest rates," said Warren Dunn, a bankers association spokesman.

In many cases, the delay has meant homeowners faced interest rates as much as 1 percent higher in the end than what they anticipated when they applied.

"In a lot of cases, people could no longer qualify under the higher rates, and the loans just fell through," Ms. Mathews said.

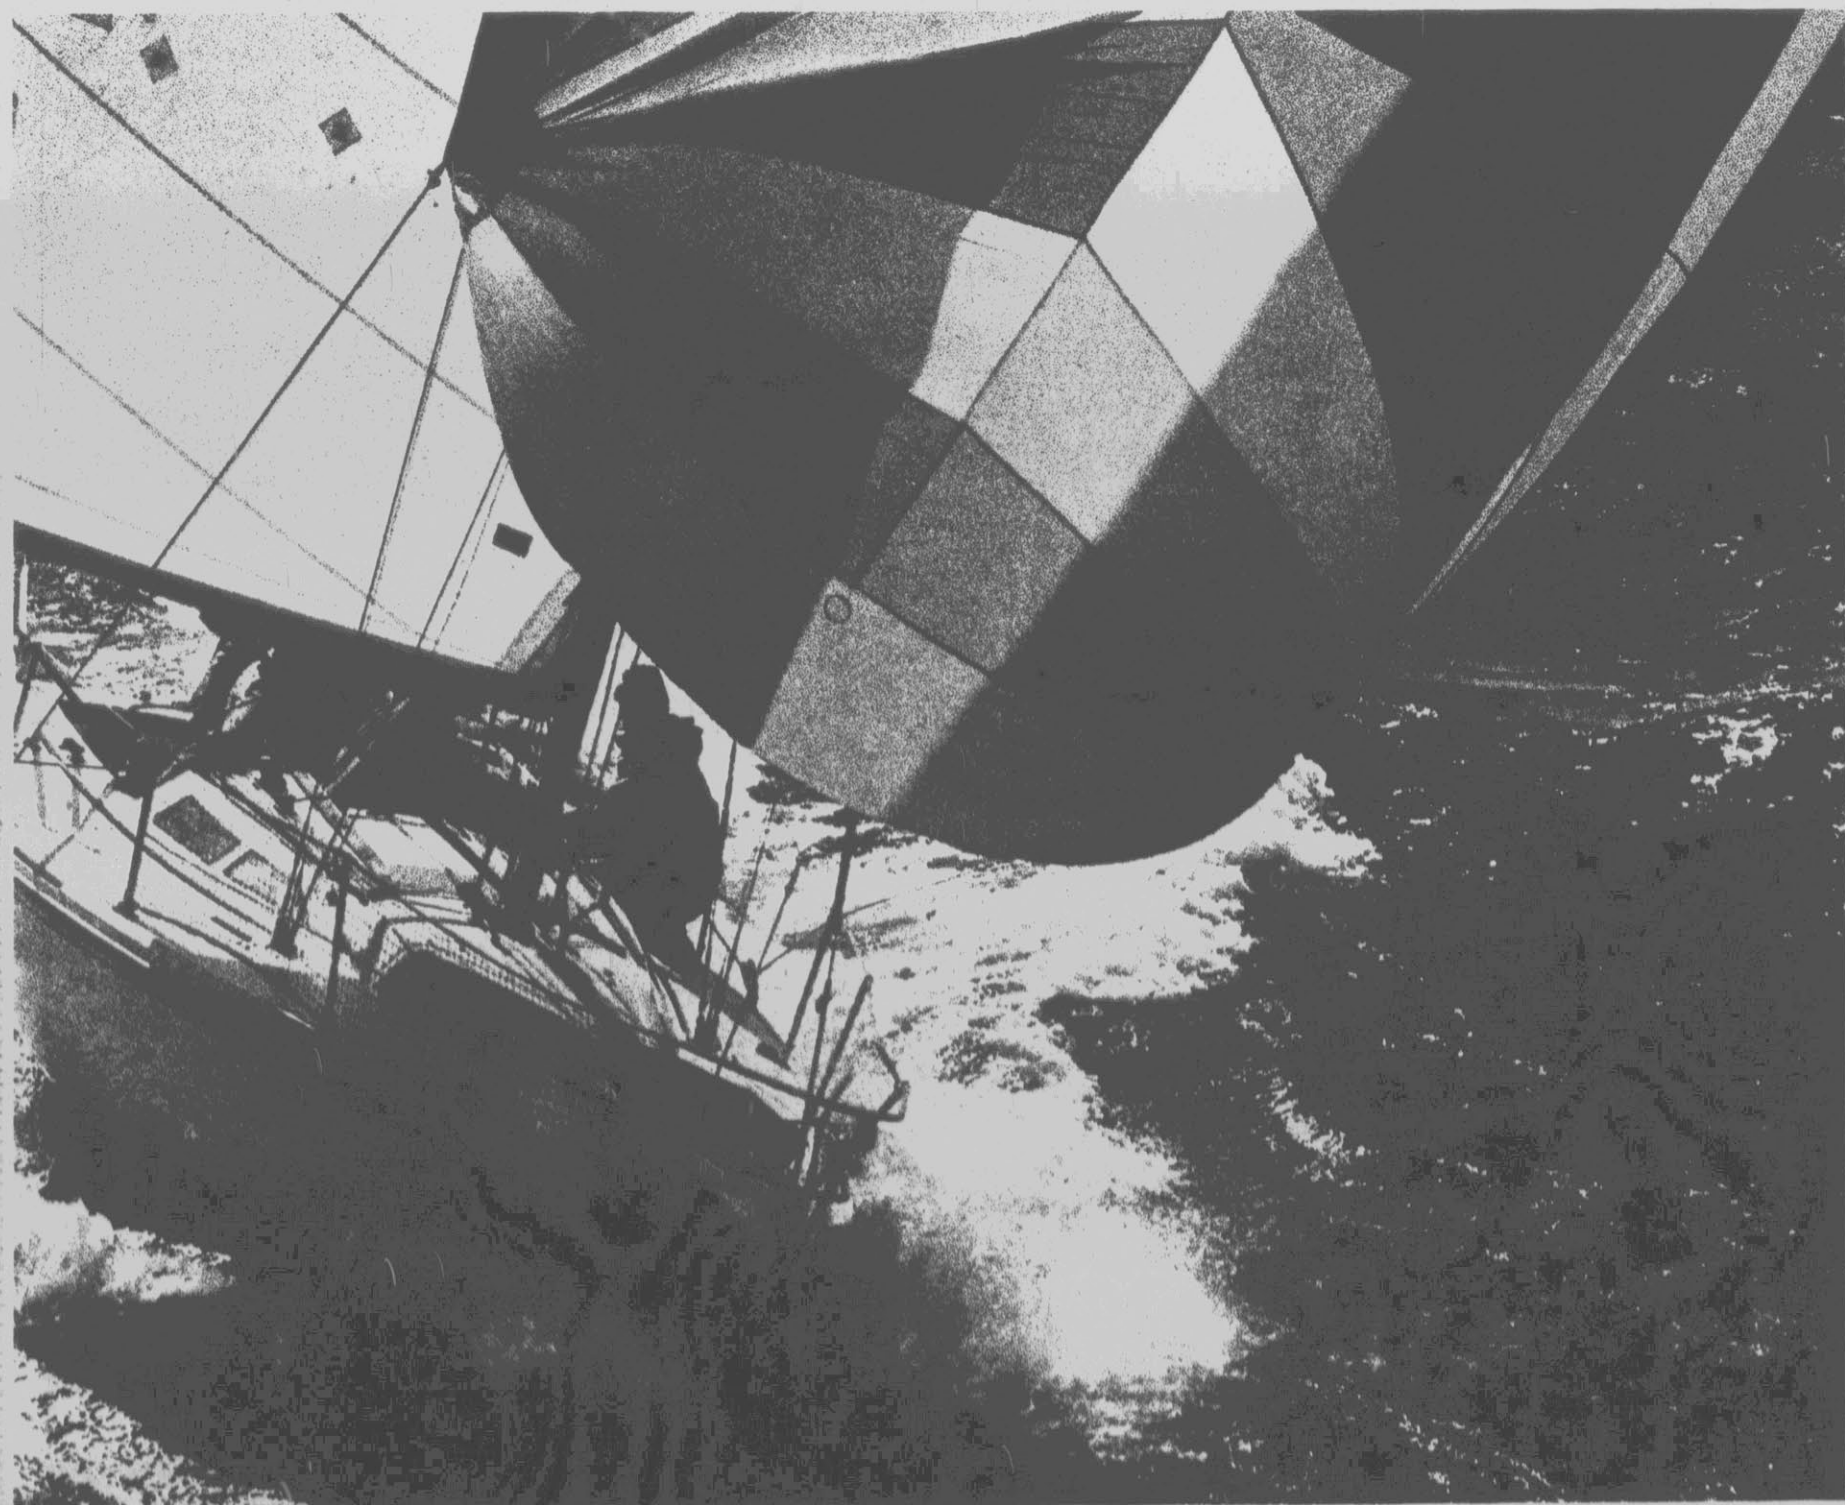

Other times, rising rates made refinancing less lucrative — or not worth it.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The retreat on Wall Street persisted early today as the stock market continued to reel from the shock of Monday's severe setback.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped another 24.32 points to 1,814.68 by 10:30 a.m. on Wall Street after suffering a record loss of nearly 62 points the previous session.

The rest of the market also fared poorly as losers swamped gainers by about 12 to 1 in the overall tally of issues listed on the New York Stock Exchange. The Big Board's composite index fell 2.39 to 138.04.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index slid 4.35 to 272.36.

Worries that an anemic economy might rule out improvements in corporate profits has soured many investors on stocks.

A number of influential analysts have recently advised clients to lighten their stock holdings, which has led to a welter of sell orders.

Several blue chip stocks that had been among the gainers in the market's rally this year were among the biggest losers.

In the early going today, market leader International Business Machines fell 2 1/4 to 143; Sears Roebuck shed 1 to 45 3/4; General Electric fell 2 to 74 3/4; and American Telephone & Telegraph dipped 1/8 to 24 3/4. Those stocks, all among the components of the Dow Jones industrial average, were on the Big Board's list of actively traded stocks in the first hour of the session.

Retailing stocks, which sagged on Monday, continued to slip. K Mart fell 1 3/4 to 50 3/4; Federated fell 2 to 81 3/4; and, J.C. Penney dropped 2 to 76 3/4.

On Monday the Dow Jones industrial average plunged 61.87 to 1,839.00, exceeding its previous record point loss of 45.75 points on June 9 of this year.

Declining issues outnumbered advances by about 6 to 1 on the NYSE. Big Board volume totaled 138.23 million shares, against 108.26 million in the previous session.

Homicides

ATLANTA (AP) — Homicides in Atlanta rose more than 50 percent during the first half of 1986 compared to the same period in 1985, police said.

Police reported 94 murders during the first six months of 1986, compared to 61 during that time in 1985.

The number of homicides solved by police declined. Last year, the city's homicide squad solved 72 percent of the cases it investigated through June, matching the national rate for that time.

In the first half of 1986, however, Atlanta police solved 62.5 percent of the homicides they investigated.

The two national parties have promised a maximum effort in this battleground state. Reagan was here last month, setting a North Carolina fund-raising event record of more than $600,000 for Broyhill.

He was followed two weeks later by Vice President Bush. Senate Majority Leader Robert J. Dole, R-Kan., pursuing his 1988 presidential ambitions, will campaign this week for Broyhill and three of the freshmen House members.

Last August, the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee made an unusually early commitment to the state by agreeing to pay for a full-time field worker, Randy Johnston, who would concentrate exclusively on the four targeted House races.

For North Carolina Republicans, just holding their own this year would amount to victory, suggesting the foothold they have gained could outlast the Reagan years.

A Broyhill win would assure them control of one of the state's Senate seats through 1992. The four freshmen House members may be less vulnerable in the future if they survive their first off-year reelection test.

"The first race for reelection is the toughest; it's the best time to beat someone," said Haynes, the state GOP spokesman.

For the Democrats, the 1986 elections are seen as a chance to begin rebuilding a state party that is described here as "worn out" by the events of 1984, which included not only the Reagan landslide but a wide-open gubernatorial primary and the

Program Accredited

ECU News Bureau

The master's degree program in social work at East Carolina University has received full accreditation, making ECU the only university in the state accredited to offer both bachelor's and master's degrees in social work.

Dr. Maria J. O'Neil, director of the ECU Division of Social Work, said the Commission on Accreditation of the National Council on Social Work Education had notified the university and the School of Allied Health and Social Work that the master of social work program has received full accreditation.

"The program has been judged to meet and exceed the general expectatations of quality social work education," Dr. O'Neil said.

As a result of this action, she said, "East Carolina University becomes the only university in the state to offer both the baccalaureate and the master's degrees in social work. The baccalaureate social work program continues its accreditation which was first granted in 1974."

The master's degree curriculum is designed as a 60 semester hour program which is organized by foundation, concentration and area of practice, O'Neil said.

bitter Senate contest between Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., and then-Gov. Jim Hunt, D.

According to Democrats who loathe him, Helms' campaign polarized the state along racial lines, costing Democrats blue-collar votes.

But Helms, like Reagan, will not be on the ballot in 1986.

In his Senate campaign, Sanford is stressing the party-building approach and his ties to local officials as he travels from county to county.

Meanwhile, Lt. Gov. Jordan, eyeing a race for governor in 1988, is attempting to showcase such moderate Democrats as Sen. Sam Nunn, Ga., Rep. Richard A. Gephardt, Mo., and former Virginia Gov. Charles S. Robb, inviting them to the state in an attempt to change the image of the national party as a liberal bastion.

"It's a high-stakes year for all of us," said Jordan's executive assistant, John C. Crumpler. "I want people to know this is an important election. If we do win, we'll be riding high."

Edenton Outslugs Pitt To Capture Series, 10-9

In what turned out to be a three-game slugfest of a playoff series, Pitt County came up a slug short in the final game as Edenton squeezed out a 10-9 victory Monday night to advance in the American Legion baseball playoffs.

With the series tied one game apiece following a 16-10 Pitt County win Friday and a 20-11 Edenton victory Saturday, Edenton took the final game to advance to a second-round matchup against Rocky Mount.

Pitt County had taken a 4-0 lead after the first two innings but fell behind 10-8 after five innings. Post 39 came within one run, 10-9, after six innings but could not push across the tying run.

"It was just a score here and a score there," said Pitt County Coach Toby Holliday. "Edenton hit the ball well all year. They hit just about as well as anybody I've seen."

Edenton rapped out 15 hits against Pitt County substitute starter Shannon Peede. Bronswell Patrick was the scheduled starter, but a sore arm sidelined him. With two other pitchers, Mike Burnham and Tim Clark ineligible, Holliday went to Peede who pitched his first complete game of the year.

Holliday praised Peede's performance and the fact that he kept himself out of trouble for most of the game. Peede struck out seven and walked seven.

Pitt County opened the first inning with Shane Adams' walk. Eric Jarman followed with a single, and Axel Smith grounded out to move Adams to third. David Daniels then grounded out to score Adams. An error on the throw allowed Jarman to score.

In the second, Peede opened with a single and went to third on Steve Mills' single. Mills stole second. Peede scored on a wild pitch that moved Mills to third. Ty Little's ground out brought Mills home and gave Post 39 an early 4-0 lead.

Edenton came back to score four runs in the third. Todd Hunter had a double that scored Kenny Nixon and Eric Downing. Brad Hurdle had a fielder's choice that scored Hunter. Brian Bunch tied the game when he singled, went to second on a walk, to third on Hurdle's fielder's choice and scored on an error.

Edenton tallied four more runs in the top of the fourth to take an 8-4 advantage. Downing's single scored Alex Cox. Nixon scored on an error and Downing and Hunter scored on James' single.

Pitt County came back to tie the game, 8-8, with four runs in the bottom of the fourth. Mills opened with a single, went to second on a wild pitch and came home on an error that allowed Adams to reach and advance to third. Jarman's sacrifice fly scored Adams. Axel Smith reached on an error that allowed him to advance to second. David Daniels brought him home with a single. Daniels stole second and scored on Fred Bryant's single to tie the game.

Edenton took the lead for good on an two-run single by Hunter in the fifth that scored Nixon and Downing. Those three players comprised the top of Edenton's order and combined for nine hits, eight runs and three RBI. Nixon reached base every time he came up, notching two singles, a double and three walks.

Post 39 scored its final run in the sixth when Daniels singled, went to third on Lee Hardee's single and to third on a fielder's choice before coming home on a double play attempt.

Pitt County left one man on base in the sixth and another in the eighth. Winning pitcher Robert James was strong down the stretch, giving up no hits during the final three innings while never facing more than four batters during any one inning. For the game, he gave up 12 hits, with three walks and two strikeouts. James also did not give up an extra-base hit.

Pitt County finished the regular season in fourth place with a 9-9 record and a 1-2 mark in the playoffs. That marked a big turnaround from last year when the team finished 5-13 in last place. "I've got a lot of praise for Toby and Red (Lewis) I think they did an excellent job," said Edenton coach Lim Jordan.

Preps Top Pitt; In Finals Tonight

GOLDSBORO — Greenville's 13-Year-Old Babe Ruth (Prep) League All-Stars bounced back from their first defeat Monday night to scorch Pitt County, 22-6, and gain the finals of the District 5 Tournament.

Greenville will meet Wayne County, the double elimination tournament's only unbeaten team tonight at 6 p.m. at Eastern Wayne High School with the prospect of having to win twice to avoid elimination. The winner tonight will represent the district in the state tournament which begins Friday at Garner.

Wayne County handed Greenville its only loss on Sunday, 7-4. Should Greenville win the first game tonight, a second game will follow immediately to crown the champion.

Pitt reached the losers' bracket finals with a 14-4 win over Nash County in the first game of the evening.

Greenville jumped into the lead in the first inning of Monday night's game against Pitt County, scoring five times.

Pitt then put the game away with four more runs in the second inning. Ledowick Johnson led off with a walk and stole second. He scored on Drew Johnson's single. Johnston stole second and Jason Bizzaro walked. Both runners scored on a triple by Route Claiborne, who then scored on William Gibbs' single, making it 9-0.

Greenville added five more in the third and climaxed the game with eight runs in the sixth.

Pitt County scored three times in the second, and once each in the third, fourth and fifth.

Bizzaro and Claiborne each had two hits to lead Greenville, while Brian Haddock, Bryan Smith and Ricky Adams each had a pair of hits for Pitt County.

Pitt County put its game with Nash County away in the first inning, scoring six times. Scott Coleman led off with a walk and Haddock followed with single. Smith added a base hit, scoring Coleman. Paul Pajak walked to load the bases and Hal Conger singled, scoring Haddock and Smith. Adams walked to reload the sacks and Anthony Dixon singled to bring in Pajak. Tim Allen walked to force in Conger. Coleman singled, scoring Adams.

Pitt County went on to score four more in the second, three in the fourth and one in the fifth. Nash County got two each in the first and third.

Pitt's hitting was led by Smith, Haddock and Conger each with two hits.

No one had more than one for Nash County.

Steve Grogan of the New England Patriots has had the high school stadium named for him back home in Ottawa, Kan.

Gatlin Among Subpoenaed For Hearing Into Bias Death

UPPER MARLBORO, Md. (AP)

— The Prince George's County state's attorney says University of Maryland Athletic Director Dick Dull and two assistant basketball coaches will be called to testify before a grand jury examining the cocaine-related death of University of Maryland basketball star Len Bias.

State's Attorney Arthur A. Marshall Jr. said Monday he has issued 61 subpoenas, and has prepared another 10. He said witnesses will begin testifying the week of July 21, and the testimony will continue the week of August 11.

"We have two full weeks reserved," Marshall said. "Whatever time it takes, we'll take it."

Those subpoenaed include Dull and assistant men's basketball coaches Ron Bradley and Oliver Purnell, as well as three of Bias' teammates, according to the Washington Post.

The Post also reported in its Tuesday editions that a subpoena was issued Monday for Keeta Covington, a defensive back on the Maryland football team who said he was in Bias' dorm room until about 2:15 the morning Bias died.

"It will be almost a semi-trial," Marshall said of the grand jury proceeding. "Our entire case will be presented to the grand jury. We want them to have all the information in front of them."

Washington D.C. Police Officer Johnnie B. Walker, a longtime friend present at Leland Memorial Hospital in Riverdale when Bias was pronounced dead, also has been called to testify, the Post reported.

Bias died June 19, two days after the NBA champion Boston Celtics made him their first selection and the second player picked overall in the draft.

State medical examiner Dr. John Smialek said the 22-year-old Bias died of "cocaine intoxication" that interrupted the impulses from his brain and caused his heart to stop.

Bias was in his dormitory room when he went into a seizure and was taken to the hospital, where he died about two hours later.

Marshall said the witnesses being called vary from the state medical examiner to roommates and friends of the All-American forward.

"We are calling people we think have specific information about the death," Marshall said. "I think, as time goes on, we will find ourselves talking to more and more people and more subpoenas will be issued."

Marshall said a subpoena was being withheld for Maryland basketball Coach Lefty Driesell until investigators can talk to Driesell about a meeting he held with players the morning of Bias' death.

"I'm sure he eventually will be called," Marshall said.

Nine other subpoenas are being withheld for other reasons, including possible immunity problems, according to Marshall. According to the Post, Marshall said he wouldn't subpoena Robert Wagner, who coached Bias and his roommate David Gregg at Northwestern High School in Hyattsville. However, the Baltimore Sun reported in its Tuesday editions that Wagner was on the list of those being called to testify.

Under Maryland law, a person compelled to testify before a grand jury cannot be prosecuted for any crime connected to his testimony, Marshall said.

"We want to make sure we don't grant immunity to someone who may have had something to do with bringing drugs on to the campus that day," Marshall said.

Three men who were with Bias the morning he died — roommates Terry Long and Gregg, and friend Brian Lee Tribble — were not subpoenaed, Marshall said.

The three men have lawyers and have refused to speak voluntarily with investigators about the case.

However, Marshall said Maryland basketball players Keith Gatlin and Phil Nevin and former player Jeff Baxter, all of whom shared a dormitory suite with Bias, Long and Gregg, will be called to testify, according to the Post report. They have already been questioned by county police. Gatlin was the North Carolina Player of the Year his senior season at D.H. Conley High School near Greenville, N.C.

According to the Sun, Marshall said Baxter drove Bias' car to the hospital the morning Bias died. Cocaine was found later in that car. Marshall said someone else had driven the car in the interim, but he declined to identify the individual.

The Sun also reported that Marshall said he would subpoena Wendy Whittemore, the academic counselor to the men's basketball team. Whittemore resigned within a week of Bias' death, saying she had philosophical differences with Driesell on the education of athletes. The Sun also said Madelyne Woods and Christina Johnson, two young women who have said they spent time with Bias the night he died, would be called before the grand jury.

The Post also reported today that law enforcement sources indicated authorities were investigating allegations that Tribble assaulted a woman in Northeast Washington early Saturday.

D.C. police are trying to determine whether the alleged assault is tied to the Bias case, sources told the newspaper.

A woman identified as Wendy Blair, 20, of Landover, Md., told police that Tribble, 24, became rude to her and struck her several times after he approached her about 2:20 a.m. Saturday while she was in a car, then left the area in a car later impounded by police, according to a law enforcement official and police reports.

Police discussed with officials in the U.S. attorney's office on Monday the possibility of obtaining a misdemeanor simple assault warrant for Tribble, but prosecutors concluded they lacked enough evidence to charge him, a law enforcement official told the newspaper.

Collins Among Patriots To Be In Special Tests

BOSTON (AP) — Six New England Patriots players, who were named as drug-users after the Super Bowl, reportedly will be tested for drugs more often than teammates and will be placed in a special program.

"The Patriots are an area of concern," Dr. Forest Tennant Jr., newly named National Football League drug adviser, told The Boston Herald.

Tennant was named to the

Pepsi Evens L.L. Series

Will MacKenzie hit a two-run homer to climax the scoring as Pepsi-Cola bounced back with an 8-4 win over Coca-Cola in game two of the City Little League championship series Monday.

Coke, the North State League tournament winner, downed Pepsi, the North State champ, 10-5, in their first meeting on Saturday.

The win by Pepsi sets up a final game in the best-of-three series to today at 6 p.m. at Elm Street Park.

Pepsi started the scoring in the third inning, getting one run. But Coke came back to push over two in its half of the inning to move ahead, 2-1.

Pepsi then scored four times to take a 5-2 lead in the top of the fourth. MacKenzie led off with a single and Josh Burns singles. Jon Gavigan reached on an error, allowing MacKenzie and Burns to score. Jon Savage walked and Richie Grimsley doubled, driving in both Gavigan and Savage.

Pepsi added three more in the fifth, the final two on MacKenzie's homer.

Coke picked up two more in the bottom of the sixth.

MacKenzie led the Pepsi hitting with two, while Adam Charlton, Hollis Gunn and John Smith each had two for Coke.

Pena Returns In Winning Form

By BILL BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

After two years of arm miseries, Alejandro Pena is ready again to shoulder the burden of major-league pitching.

The right-hander won his first game since Aug. 12, 1984 when he pitched the first five innings of the Los Angeles Dodgers' 1-0 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals Monday night. He allowed only two hits before three relievers combined to retire the last 12 Cardinals.

"He wasn't throwing as hard as he used to, but he threw good enough to win," said Tommy Herr, whose fourth-inning single was the Cardinals' last hit. "He looked pretty good for someone who hadn't pitched too much."

Pena, who led the National League in earned run average when he was 12-6 with a 2.48 ERA in 1984, underwent shoulder surgery in February, 1985. He was making his second start since coming off the disabled list.

"I'm getting stronger each time out," said Pena, who also allowed a second-inning single to Andy Van Slyke. "I know I'm not at the same level of velocity, but I'm very happy. I threw strikes."

In other NL games, Cincinnati edged New York 7-6, Houston trounced Montreal 12-1, Philadelphia beat Atlanta 7-3 and Pittsburgh beat San Diego 3-1 in 10 innings. Chicago and San Francisco were not scheduled.

The only run in the Cardinals-Dodgers game scored in the first inning, when Ken Landreaux singled, went to third on Len Matuszek's single and scored when left fielder Vince Coleman overran the ball for an error.

Pena had to pitch out of two jams, both created by the Dodgers' defense, which made three errors to increase its major league-leading total to 99. The Dodgers, however, improved their record to 6-2 in games in which they've committed three or more errors.

When Pena departed after the fifth, Carlos Diaz, Tom Niedenfuer and Ken Howell pitched hitless relief the last four innings. Diaz worked the sixth, Niedenfuer the seventh and eighth and Howell the ninth for his sixth save.

Losing pitcher Bob Forsch, 6-6, scattered nine hits, three of them by Steve Sax.

Reds 7, Mets 6

Cincinnati handed New York its second loss in 11 games as Dave Parker broke a 4-4 tie with a two-run homer in the seventh inning and reliever John Franco held the Mets scoreless for 2 1/3 innings for his 13th save.

"Playing the Mets kind of got me up," said Parker, whose 16th homer was only his second since June 16. "They've got a great ballclub. They just keep coming back, coming back."

New York overcame 3-0 and 4-3 deficits with the help of homers by Darryl Strawberry and starting pitcher Rick Aguilera.

After Parker's homer off Randy Niemann, 1-3, the Reds made it 7-4 on Dave Concepcion's sacrifice fly. The Mets again threatened to come back as Howard Johnson homered and Gary Carter hit an RBI single in the seventh, but Franco held the Mets at bay.

Ron Robinson, 7-0, got credit for the victory, and the Reds picked up 16 hits, including four by Ron Oester.

Astros 12, Expos 1

Glenn Davis knocked in five runs with two homers, while Mike Scott won his ninth game as Houston routed Montreal.

Davis broke a 1-1 tie with a two-run homer off Expos starter Dennis Martinez in the third inning. Martinez, 0-1, left the game in the fifth after allowing six runs in his second NL start.

Davis, who leads the league with 19 homers, added a three-run shot in the fifth, giving the Astros a 6-1 lead.

Scott, 9-5, the major leagues' strikeout leader with 158, gave up four hits and three walks along with his seven strikeouts in seven innings.

The Expos, who won on Sunday despite four homers by Atlanta Bob Horner, gave up a grand slam to Kevin Bass in the Astros' five-run ninth inning.

Phillies 7, Braves 3

Shane Rawley put in a bid for an All-Star berth with his 11th victory, tying him with Sid Fernandez for the league lead.

"I've been in the big leagues nine years and played with only one team over .500. No playoffs, no World Series," Rawley said after throwing 146 pitches in 94-degree heat. "The All-Star game means a lot to me. It's something to be proud of. I want to say that I had an All-Star season."

"I think I'll make the team."

Rawley, 11-4, was backed by Gary Redus' two home runs and solo shots by Juan Samuel and John Russell as he won his seventh straight decision.

The Phillies took a 2-0 lead in the first inning when their first two batters, Redus and Samuel, homered. It was the 25th time in major-league history that a team's first two batters homered in the first inning.

Pirates 3, Padres 1

Sid Bream broke a scoreless tie with a three-run homer off Rich Gossage in the top of the 10th inning to power Pittsburgh over San Diego.

Gossage, 4-4, allowed Bream's 11th home run after escaping a first and third-no out situation in the ninth.

In the 10th, Gossage walked Barry

Bonds, who stole second on as Bill Almon struck out. Bonds went to third on Johnny Ray's single off Gossage's glove. Bream then hit a 2-2 pitch from Gossage deep into the right field seats.

"When I came up I knew I must make contact somehow, anyway," Bream said. "When the count went to 1-2, I thought, 'This is going to be tough,' but I was eventually able to hit it."

The victory went to Cecilio Guante, 3-1, who pitched the final two innings and allowed an unearned run in the tenth. Pittsburgh starter Rick Rhoden allowed only four hits and struck out five in the first eight innings.

Joyner Reaches 7,000 Point Mark

MOSCOW (AP) — Jackie Joyner of the United States became the first heptathlete to break the 7,000-point barrier and Americans beat the Soviets 49-39 in swimming medals as the Goodwill Games got into full swing.

Joyner captured 7,148 points, smashing the previous mark held by East Germany's Sabine Paetz by 202 points. She became the first U.S. woman to hold the world record in a multi-sport competition since Babe Didrickson, who held the old triathlon mark more than 50 years ago.

"Coming into this competition, I had set goals for myself," Joyner said. "I realized that the competition was out there, but my competition was against the scoreboard. I just concentrated on what I had to do."

Despite sending its second-line swimmers, the U.S. won six of eight events held Monday to beat the Soviet Union at the end of that sport's four days of competition. The U.S. team, minus its top athletes, who are training for the World Championships in Spain next month, won 49 medals, including 15 golds, compared with 39 overall and 13 golds for the Soviets.

Overall, the United States had 22 gold medals and 63 overall to 21 and 69 for the Soviets after Monday's competition.

Sean Killion of Cherry Hill, N.J. supplied the day's biggest upset when he edged former world record-holder Vladimir Salnikov of the Soviet Union in the men's 400-meter freestyle.

"I didn't think I could beat Salnikov," Killion said. "He is the best distance man around. I just wanted to give him a race but when I saw I could win, I just closed my eyes and pressed hard."

Killion was timed in 3 minutes, 51.91 seconds, .09 seconds ahead of Salnikov.

Angel Myers, who started the U.S. wave of victories on the first day of swimming last Friday, completed the competition with four gold medals. She won the women's 400-meter freestyle and was part of the winning 400-meter medley relay.

She won the 50 and 100-meter freestyle events Friday. With a third-place in 200 breststroke, Myers had the most medals of any athlete in the games with five after the first four days.

Joyner began the heptathlon competition with an American record in the 100-meter high hurdles, 12.85. She continued with personal bests of 5 feet, 2 inches in the high jump, 48 feet, 5 1/4 inches in the shot put, and 23 seconds in the 200-meter sprint.

On Monday, she had a heptathlon world record with 23 feet in the long jump, and followed with a throw of 163 feet, 4 inches in the javelin. Joyner then capped her sensational seven events with a clocking of 2:10.02 in the 800 meters.

Other U.S. track victories included Antonio McKay in the 400, Floyd Heard in the 200 and Doug Padilla in the 5,000.

Women's shot put world record-holder Natalya Lisovkaya of the Soviet Union won her specialty at 70 feet, 1 1/2 inches, while teammates Grigory Degtyarev took the decathlon with 8,322 points, Marina Stepanova won the women's 400 hurdles in 53.81 and Galine Chistyakova captured the women's long jump with a leap of 23 feet 10 1/4 inches.

Another world record holder, Bulgaria's Stefka Kostidnova, won the women's high jump with a leap of 6 feet, 7 inches.

In basketball, Cheryl Miller scored 20 points and Anne Donovan added 15 to lead the United States past Czechoslovakia 78-70, while the Soviet Union beat Bulgaria 82-56. The two superpowers meet Thursday night.

One of the few U.S. defeats Monday came in women's volleyball, where North Korea beat the Americans in four games.

North State Pops Win

Mitchell Jones had three homers and Wes Singleton had two as the North State Pops took a 22-10 slugfest softball victory from the Tar Heel Pops to highlight the 31st Annual Greenville Moose Lodge Little League Field Day on July 4th.

The North State Pops cranked out 10 home runs. Mike Aldridge, Gene Briley, Terry Boyles, Jack Gordon and Rick Jennings all had home runs for North State.

The Tar Heel Pops had eight home runs of their own. Don Parrott and Ken Tetterton had two apiece. Bobby Brannon, Charles Alford, Jack Foley and Greg Givens all had one apiece.

PBS Documentaries' Study Stirs Broadcast Controversy

By DAVID CROOK
L.A. Times-Washington Post News Service

HOLLYWOOD — A plan to spend $180,000 of public money to study the ideological slant of documentaries on public television has renewed a bitter political conflict within the non-commercial broadcasting community.

Pushed by a conservative magazine editor who is one of five persons appointed by President Reagan to distribute federal public broadcasting funds, the proposed two-year "content analysis" of non-fiction programming has sparked a firestorm of criticism about the appropriate role of the board of the Corporation for Public Broadcasting in selecting and evaluating programs on public TV.

Congress is applying heat as well. Some conservatives see the proposed study as a way to quantify the supposed left-wing bias of public TV, while liberals claim the plan is an effort to force public TV into serving the political goals of a right-wing administration.

Regardless of which view is correct, the debate surrounding the proposed study has highlighted, yet again, the often acrimonious relationship among the various power centers of public broadcasting — the corporation, local stations and the Public Broadcasting Service.

Corporation board member Richard Brookhiser is pressing for the content analysis because, he says, the corporation board "would be derelict" if it did not try to assure the "objectivity and balance" of public TV programs.

Meeting in St. Paul, Minn., two weeks ago, the corporation board voted to delay a decision on the study until September. The board instructed the corporation staff to review the plan and to solicit further proposals.

"All I want to do is to try to get some objective handle on this," Brookhiser, a senior editor at the conservative National Review magazine, said.

"Much of the criticism of public broadcasting comes from the right," and most of it is subjective, Brookhiser said.

Brookhiser said he hoped to evaluate that criticism with a more accurate gauge of content, but opponents of the proposed study say the corporation should not get involved with questions about the political slant of public TV programs.

"It is inappropriate for a presidentially appointed group to be conducting a content analysis of programming," said Barry Chase, vice president for news and public affairs at Washington-based PBS. "It indicates that some people on the CPB board don't fully understand the appropriate constraints on them."

Likewise, few members of the public understand the bureaucratic structure of public TV, a structure that some critics say continually leaves the system open to political pressures.

The Corporation of Public Broadcasting is a private, non-profit corporation that receives federal money and distributes it to program makers and local stations. The corporation was set up, in part, by the Public Broadcasting Act of 1967 to serve as a buffer between the government and non-commercial broadcasters.

Members of the corporation's board, such as Brookhiser, are appointed by the president and confirmed by the Senate.

Theoretically, that is the extent of their involvement with the government. Practically, however, members of the corporation board have rarely divorced themselves from their political affiliations.

Henry Loomis, who served as president of the corporation from 1972 through 1978, said many corporation board members often look on their jobs as a "stepping stone" to further political offices.

Precipitating the current controversy are Washington social scientists Robert and Linda Lichter, who say they only want to scientifically analyze the contents of documentaries the way they and others have examined entertainment programs for attitudes toward minorities, women, sex or violence.

The couple did not anticipate the opposition to their plan, and Robert Lichter said the proposed study was being criticized for all the wrong reasons.

"There's a big split," Lichter said. "Presumably, the conservatives hope we'll find the programming too liberal, and the liberals are afraid (that) we will. ... It would be very ironic if a study designed to take the partisanship out is destroyed by the partisanship of the debate."

ABC Takes Viewers With Liberty Events

L.A. Times-Washington Post

HOLLYWOOD — ABC's extensive coverage of the Liberty Weekend festivities celebrating the rededication of the Statue of Liberty produced some fireworks of its own in the ratings, according to figures released Monday by the A.C. Nielsen Co.

Overnight ratings from 12 major cities showed that ABC was by far the preferred viewing choice on three of the four nights it presented special programming pegged to the Fourth of July events in New York.

Only Saturday, when it was televising a classical music concert from Central Park, did ABC fail to carry the evening. NBC's strong comedy lineup attracted 29 percent of the viewers, compared with 17 percent for ABC and 16 percent for CBS, which was rerunning a 1982 TV movie, "The Scarlet Pimpernel."

Otherwise, ABC's expenditure of $10 million for the Liberty Weekend rights paid off in ratings, at least as far as the 12 cities indicated. National ratings were to be available Tuesday.

Its coverage of the opening-night activities on Thursday, when President Reagan relit the refurbished Statue and Chief Justice Warren Burger swore in 20,000 new citizens, drew 40 percent of the viewing audience. NBC got 22 percent and CBS got 10 percent.

'Live Ed' Salutes Old Horse

DALLAS (AP) — It's straight from The Horse's Mouth, a successor to Live Aid, a paean to Wilbur and a salute to the world's only talking horse.

It's "Live Ed," of course, of course — a benefit bash slated for Thursday night that's designed to help resuscitate the finances of the Mister Ed Fan Club.

"The Mister Ed Fan Club plummeted into debt in the summer of 1984," says James Burnett, who founded the club in 1974 before he'd ever seen the old "Mister Ed" television series, which ran in black and white from 1961 to 1966.

But he hopes Live Ed will stir up support for the club with the help of Alan Young, who played Mister Ed's sidekick, Wilbur. (The name always came out sounding like "Wilburrr" when Mister Ed — using the voice of Allan "Rocky" Lane — said it.)

Young, who now lives outside Los Angeles and does voices for Disney movies and the cartoon "Smurfs," says he isn't planning anything particular to dazzle his fans.

"I don't have any act that I do," Young said. "I used to ride Ed, but he's dead. So that leaves me standing alone." The horse died in 1972.

With Wilbur at the reins at a nightclub in Dallas' Loews Anatole hotel, Mister Ed fans will gather at $10 ahead to extol the virtues of the talking horse, watch tapes of the old shows and listen to bands.

The 27-year-old Burnett also will offer a special backward rendition of the Mister Ed theme song at midnight.

"That's in response to those priests in Ohio who yelled about the song being satanic when played backwards," he said. "They've run out of rock 'n' roll groups, so now they're attacking children's shows."

"Mister Ed" starred Young as Wilbur Post, a young architect who moved to a country home with his wife, Carol (played by Connie Hines).

Along with the house came a talking palomino: Mister Ed. But Mister Ed talked only to Wilbur because he was the first person he'd ever met worth talking to.

"We're expecting a sellout, and capacity is 700 people," Burnett says. "In the age of Live Aid, Band Aid and all those other aids where people have to be serious and somber, this will give people a chance to laugh and have fun."

Burnett says he founded the fan club to have an "original-sounding return address to impress friends with" and later created a newsletter called "The Horse's Mouth." The club had 1,000 members as of 1984, he says.

Burnett is an assistant manager at Forever Young records in Irving, where he says he is installing the official Museum of Ed.

He says his next project will be a short concert tour through the Southwest called — of course — "Hooves Across America."

Pitt County is named for William Pitt the Elder, Earl of Chatham, a noted British statesman who was a sympathetic friend of the colonies.

Margaret Mitchell's classic story of war and romance, Gone with the Wind, was originally published by Macmillan fifty years ago. Since 1936, it has sold 21 million copies. In spite of its success, it was the author's only book. By comparison, Kathleen Lindsay (Mrs. Mary Faulkner) of South Africa wrote 904 novels under eight pen names. And in spite of his 743 rejection slips, John Creasy had 564 books published between 1932 and his death in 1973.

at this vulnerability, it must show a fair hand. North's four spades ends the auction, and West leads the jack of hearts.

The fact that so much of North's values are in hearts places the contract in jeopardy. From the auction and the opening lead, it seems likely West has the ace-queen of clubs and East the ace of hearts. Therefore, declarer is in danger of losing one heart trick, one diamond and two clubs unless East can be kept off lead.

If declarer puts up one of dummy's heart honors at trick one, East will win and shift to a club. That will net the defenders the first three tricks, and declarer will eventually have to surrender a diamond trick for down one.

But see what happens if declarer does not cover the jack of hearts. If East overtakes to switch to a club, declarer will get two diamond discards on dummy's hearts. Therefore, East must play low. But now declarer can take a ruffing finesse for the ace of hearts and discard a club on the other heart honor after drawing trumps, limiting his losers to one trick in each side suit.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: FINE COUNTERFEITER TURNED POLITICIAN PASSED BAD BILLS.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: W equals N
 The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, JULY 9, 1986

YOUR DAILY Horoscope
 from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Until sundown you have a big opportunity to put excitement into whatever your most comprehensive activity is. You will have to exercise patience in the evening.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Put in motion those ideas you have long been toying with. Accept some invitation for amusement.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Please family ties immensely. Invite guests in only during the day hours and tonight finish work.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Be active in the outside world and make real progress. Worldly affairs could be disappointing.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Plan how to add to your present abundance. Be sure to take any health treatments you need.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) You have excellent ideas for gaining your finest wishes. Forget amusement tonight which could be disappointing.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Study how best to go after your secret interests. Not a good evening to entertain in your home.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Contact the most generous friend you have and discuss a plan this person will comprehend easily.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Attend those civic affairs that can give you added prestige especially in the community where you dwell.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Look into new outlets and make fascinating new contacts. Be very careful with your driving.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Contact a clever expert in business and get more modern advice. Avoid one who has a habit of complaining.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get in touch with one who is becoming prominent and form an alliance. Don't go anywhere depressing.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) If you make your surroundings more cheerful and colorful you can enjoy more comfort and relaxation there.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will have every ability to become a fine executive, so be sure to give a fine business college education so that the top can be reached in any corporate capacity that is attractive to your talented progeny. Teach fine manners and be gentle with discipline.

Fashion Expert

PEKING (AP) — Li Zhao, wife of 71-year-old Communist Party General Secretary Hu Yaobang, has been described in a rare profile as a stylish fashion expert who is working to improve the looks of Chinese.

my mood joyful. Li was quoted by the China News Service as saying at a garment design exhibition. She is director of the Peking Garment Association, which sponsored the exhibition, the report said. The wives of most Chinese leaders rarely appear in public and are seldom mentioned in the official press.
