Council OKs Election Plan

By SUE HINSON
Reflector Staff Writer
City officials said today they are confident a new election plan approved for Greenville by council members Thursday will receive prompt Justice Department approval.

The plan, voted in by a 5-1 margin, calls for creation of five single-member electoral districts and at-large election of one council member and the mayor.

Councilwoman Janice Buck cast the sole dissenting vote, saying she did not feel the proposed system would assure Greenville blacks an adequate number of seats on the council.

In the works for five months, the new system for electing city representatives will replace Greenville's current at-large method of election in the 1987 municipal race if it receives Justice Department approval. The department, by authority of the 1965 Voting Rights Act, must preclear within 60 days all changes affecting voting.

The 5-1 plan is designed to increase minority voting strength and give blacks equal access to the electoral process. Equal access in Greenville's case means that blacks would be given ample opportunity to elect two representatives or 30 percent of the city's six voting representatives. Because the mayor votes only in tie situations, that position is not counted when determining the number of seats needed to ensure proportional representation.

According to City Attorney Mac McCarty, Greenville's plan, unlike those of several other eastern North Carolina localities, should be approved by the Justice Department without any extensions or delays, because the city "negotiated with the minority community before adopting a plan." Negotiations with Greenville's black community have been ongoing since council members targeted a change in method of election as a priority in early 1985.

Currently Elizabeth City, Wilson and Wayne County are engaged in controversy with the Justice Department, which has said plans submitted by those localities do not provide for adequate minority representation.

Lawyer Arrested On Drug Charge

AYDEN — Four people — one of them a Greenville lawyer — were arrested by State Bureau of Investigation agents near here Thursday afternoon on a series of felony drug charges.

SBI Agent W.M. Campbell identified those arrested as attorney R. Cherry Stokes, 39, of 1507 E. Wright Road, Greenville; Joseph Jay Wantor, 27, and Bonnie R. Hutchinson, 26, both of Route 2, Ayden, and Warren Hardee Jr., 28, of Route 2, Blounts Creek. He said the four were taken into custody about 1:30 p.m. at Wantor's residence — a mobile home located about six miles east of Ayden off N.C. 102.

Warrants on file at the clerk of court's office show Stokes was charged with two counts of conspiracy to sell cocaine — one involving one-eighth ounce on June 26, the second involving one-half ounce on Thursday; one count of possession with intent to sell one-eighth ounce of cocaine on June 26 and one count of the sale and delivery of cocaine on June 26.

Wantor was charged with one count of possession of cocaine; two counts of conspiracy to sell cocaine

(one on June 26 and one on Thursday); one count of sale and delivery of cocaine on June 26; one count of possession with intent to sell and deliver cocaine on June 26; and possession of more than one and one-half ounces of marijuana.

Miss Hutchinson and Hardee were each charged with one count of felony possession of marijuana and felony possession of cocaine.

Campbell said the marijuana and cocaine possession charges against Wantor, Hardee and Miss Hutchinson came after more than a gram of cocaine and more than one and one-half ounces of marijuana were found during a search of Wantor's home Thursday.

The investigation that led to the arrests began about a month ago, Campbell said.

Only one of those charged, — Wantor — remained in jail this morning. Stokes was released after his lawyer, Milton Williamson, posted a $5,000 cash bond following his arrest Thursday. Both Hardee and Miss Hutchinson were released under bond later.

Bond for Wantor, Hardee and Miss Hutchinson was set at $2,500 on each count.

Cocaine Problems Increase

By MAURA DOLAN
L.A. Times-Washington Post
News Service

WASHINGTON — Cocaine use has stabilized in the United States but medical complications and deaths associated with the drug are on the rise, U.S. health officials said Thursday.

Cocaine-related deaths have nearly tripled since 1981 and emergency-room admissions for cocaine-induced problems have more than doubled since 1983, the officials said.

"This cocaine epidemic ... may well have peaked in terms of rise in 1979-1980, and now we're at a flat place," said Dr. Donald Ian Macdonald, administrator of the Alcohol, Drug Abuse and Mental Health Administration. "But, in the flat place, we're picking up the people who are falling off the cliff as they get more and more years into their habit."

Macdonald said many users do not begin to develop complications until three or four years after they began taking the drug. He also attributed much of the rise in medical problems to an increase in "free-basing," or smoking of cocaine. Free-basing is more dangerous than snorting because the inhaled drug reaches the brain within seconds, resulting in a sudden and intense high that produces strong cravings for more.

The danger of cocaine was highlighted by the recent deaths of University of Maryland basketball star Len Bias, who died apparently after free-basing, and Cleveland Browns football player Don Rogers, who died of a cocaine overdose.

Cocaine, whether snorted or smoked, can kill in various ways, Macdonald said. It stimulates the cerebral nervous system, causing convulsions that lead to respiratory collapse; increases the blood pressure, resulting in strokes; and constricts coronary arteries that supply oxygen to the heart, causing heart attacks.

Macdonald said a single dose of cocaine can kill a first-time user, depending on the physical condition of the person, the amount of stress he or she is under and the strength or impurities of the drug. "This is not simple stuff we're playing with," he said.

Charles R. Schuster, director of the National Institute on Drug Abuse, predicted that 13,000 cocaine users will enter emergency rooms this year because of drug complications, compared with 6,000 in 1983.

Utility Bills Will Be High!

Because of the sweltering temperatures in June and early July, utility bills will be higher than usual this month, according to George Reel, customer assistance supervisor for the Greenville Utilities Commission.

"The weather in June this year was 16 percent hotter than in June last year," Reel said, "and the first week in July was 24 percent hotter than the same time last year." Because of that, air conditioners have worked harder and used more power to keep customers cool.

Reel said temperatures recorded at GUC's water treatment plant from June 11-July 10 this year show highs above 90 degrees for 17 days, compared to 12 days of above-90 degree temperatures recorded during the same period last year.

"If temperatures and humidity remain at current levels, our customers can expect some of their highest bills ever," Reel said.

Wholesale Prices Falling

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices, steady in June after a May gain that ended five months of falling costs, dipped this year at an annual rate of 6.5 percent, the largest half-year decline since the government first started keeping such records in 1947, the Commerce Department said today.

That compares to an overall 1.8 percent increase in the wholesale price inflation index for all of 1985.

Gasoline prices rose by 2.9 percent last month after an 8.6 percent jump the month before. Food prices were flat after a 1.1 percent rise.

Analysts said that, while the big drops in the index of early 1986 brought about by the world collapse in oil prices, are clearly over, they do not anticipate a rekindling of inflation anytime soon.

General weaknesses in the economy and continued high trade deficits are keeping inflation low, analysts say.

"There is so much slack in the U.S. and world economies that basic commodity prices remain under tremendous downward pressure," said Allen Sinai, chief economist for Shearson Lehman Bros. of New York City.

In fact, most energy prices excluding gasoline continued to fall. Natural gas prices dipped 5.8 percent; heating oil prices fell 6.8 percent.

Among foods, vegetable prices were down 9.8 percent; egg prices were off 6.4 percent; beef and veal costs dipped 2.4 percent. Alcoholic beverage, soft drink and coffee prices all fell.

These gains were offset, however, by an 18.2 percent jump in fish prices, a 3 percent increase in poultry prices and a 5.2 percent gain in pork prices.

The overall index, minus food and energy, held flat, an indication of the widespread economic stagnation.

Automobile prices, which have been rising steadily, fell 0.2 percent.

The overall, seasonally-adjusted index bettered the 5.8 percent wholesale price drop for the six months that ended in February 1949, until now the record.

Prime Rates Follow Fed Cuts

By TOM RAUM
AP Economics Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Analysts say the Federal Reserve Board's reduction of the discount rate to 6 percent should help the nation's sluggish economy, but only mildly.

The Fed's action was followed today by an announcement from Chemical Bank of New York that it was cutting its prime interest rate to 8 percent from 8.5 percent. Other major banks were expected to follow suit. The prime rate is a benchmark used by banks in setting rates on loans to businesses.

And in related news, the Labor Department said today that wholesale prices held steady in June, following a May gain and five months of falling costs.

Wholesale prices have dipped this year at an annual rate of 6.5 percent, the largest half-year decline since the government first started keeping such records in 1947. That compares to an overall 1.8 percent increase in the wholesale price inflation index for all of 1985.

The Fed announced shortly after stock markets closed Thursday that it was dropping the discount rate from 6.5 percent effective today, producing the lowest level for the discount rate in more than eight years.

The discount rate is the fee that the nation's central bank charges for loans to other banks and financial institutions. It is the most direct way that the Fed can affect interest rates in general, and a change in the discount rate usually heralds changes in other key rates.

Economists generally said the discount rate cut would only have modest impact on the nation's slowing economic growth.

"The problem is that the one sector of the economy that usually responds first to interest rate cuts, housing, has been benefitting already from the big drop in interest rates," said David Levy, head of a private forecasting service based in Chappaqua, N.Y.

"Overall, it's a help. But the economy has still got a risky path ahead of it, even with this cut," Levy added.

"I don't think it's a cure-all for all our economic problems, but it's a good, necessary step at this time,"

Time Management Programs Given By Image Consultant

By ROSALIE TROTMAN
Reflector Lifestyle Editor

Image consultant Vicki Riddle of Durham advises people on activity management. She travels in North Carolina giving programs on time.

"Think of your time as what you pack into your suitcase and how you carry it around. If you were a world traveler, you might pick up something in each country and soon you are concerned about your luggage, how heavy it has gotten. A lot of times it can be unpacked so it no longer a major concern," she said.

"Today we need to be able to assimilate information all the time rather than being so locked into time management as we were during the industrial age. People have to take a view of what is happening to them in a holistic view. Make sure everything is in balance — career, relationships with family and friends and relationship with self including personal growth, education, etc. Each one is an overall look at that person, making sure each area of your life is getting the proper amount of time," she said.

"Think about time and how you can change it to make it work for you. If you have a negative attitude, you can go from thinking of time as a lack of it to a feeling of abundance. Be systematic. Make a list of things that need to be done involving all aspects of your life. The reason for the concerns is to be successful," she said.

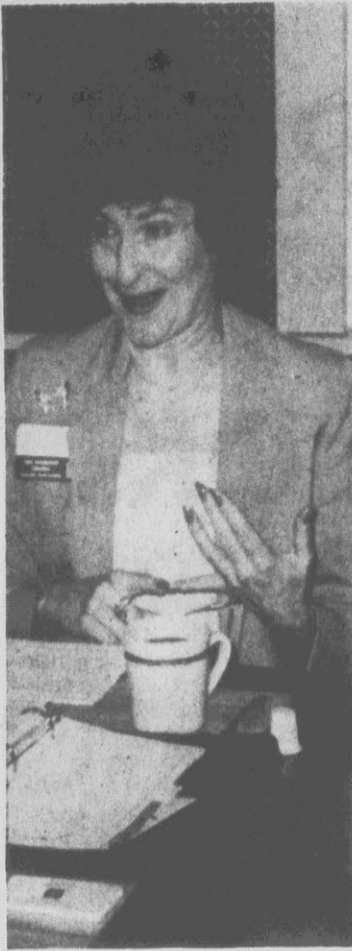

"Each person's idea of success is as unique as the individual. For most people if they are going to be successful, they need to know exactly what their purpose in life is going to be. In order to know the purpose, they need to know their goals and in order to reach the goals, they have to have a plan. After the plan, then you have to have a schedule," Ms. Riddle said.

"For most people to feel successful, they need to be doing things and accomplishing things. Success is operating at a high level of activity. In order for it to be working for success, it has to be planned and systematic so that one can feel good about what is happening," she said.

"Taking command of your own success is going to require a commitment to ongoing learning and personal development; taking a holistic overview or approach to your activities; a positive relationship with time, and then to be systematic, get your ideas down on paper so you won't lose them," she said.

"Growing old and not having enough time to accomplish their goals is one of many people's main concerns today. People really need to have a realistic goal in their life and have a purpose for having a particular goal," she said.

"People's goals can change during different times in their lives. Unless you are changing, you are not growing," Ms. Riddle said.

Wheelchair-Bound Teacher Paul Huston Teaches More Than Science In Oklahoma

By ANNA AMERICA
The Tulsa Tribune

JENKS, Okla. (AP) — Paul Huston sits very still in front of his eighth-grade earth sciences class and explains how stars are formed.

As he lectures about mass and heat and energy, his hands lie motionless in his lap.

Only his face seems alive. His eyebrows lift in inquiry as he asks about the difference between a star and a planet, then tilt with gentle mockery at a wrong answer.

Every so often, he nods to a boy sitting in the front of the room, who changes the page on the overhead projector.

Huston says he still loves teaching, but admits, "It is not quite the same as it was before."

"Before" was five years ago, before the 40-year-old Jenks Middle School teacher was diagnosed as having Lou Gehrig's disease, a terminal illness that destroys motor neurons, the nerves in the spine that control muscles.

Before he lost control of his limbs and body. Before he became confined to a wheelchair, and had to rely on others to take him to school, wheel him to class, take him to the restroom, feed him.

Despite the difficulties, he is determined to keep teaching as long as he can.

"I am firmly convinced you have to have a challenge to look forward to each day, to get you out of bed in the morning and keep you from feeling sorry for yourself." Fourteen-year-old Courtney Ford said she does not think of Huston as different from any other teacher.

"At first, we thought we might be able to get away with lots of stuff," she said. "But he's definitely not that way."

James Clark, 14, said Huston is one of his favorite — and best — teachers.

"We love him — most of the time," he said.

Huston said he misses being able to move around the room, being able to stop and help youngsters with problems.

"But the kids have been troopers. In some ways it's a real burden to them, trying to understand a concept, when I can't jump up and draw a picture to explain it. But the only thing they have complained about is that I'm too hard."

He said his illness gives him an opportunity to educate the children about more than science.

"When most people see a person in a wheelchair, or an amputee, the natural reaction is to shy away. In addition to teaching science, I have been able to teach them that people with handicaps are human, and have desires and feelings and ambitions like everybody else."

Huston said he never would have been able to continue teaching the past several years, "if it weren't for a bunch of real loving, warm people."

Dozens of staff members have donated money to help with expenses. Faculty members help him go to the restroom and feed him at lunch. Student aides grade tests, duplicate papers and record grades.

One day, school maintenance workers came to his home and installed a ramp leading up the front stairs.

"They just surprised us," said Huston's wife, Ginny.

The staff at the preschool where Mrs. Huston works helps pay for a housekeeper to come in every two weeks.

"We're surrounded by people who care — church, school, neighborhood and family," Huston said. "I wouldn't say it's easy, but it's sure more bearable with people like that."

Lou Gehrig's disease, named after the New York Yankee first baseman who died of it in 1941, is the common name for amyotrophic lateral sclerosis, or ALS.

It afflicts about 30,000 Americans a year, and in the latter stages often leads to paralysis and loss of speech. The cause is unknown, and there is no treatment; most patients die within five years, doctors say.

Huston said the first sign he had was in the fall of 1981, when he found he could not work fingernail clippers with his left hand.

"I didn't worry about it. I figured I'd pulled a muscle or something."

After he started getting cramps in his hands, he visited a doctor, and tests confirmed he was afflicted with the disease.

At 35, Huston said he was from 10 to 40 years younger than most victims at the onset of ALS, which is why his condition has deteriorated at a slightly slower than normal pace.

He started wearing a leg brace in 1983, and in the fall of 1984 began using a wheelchair to go long distances. He continued to weaken. Since February 1985, "I had to resign myself to the fact that I would be in the wheelchair most of the time," he said.

The Muscular Dystrophy Association, he said, has furnished him with most of his equipment, including the wheelchair.

Huston said his two sons, ages 8 and 4, are "very much aware" of his illness. "They have been real understanding, and very, very helpful. They're good runners and fetchers."

Huston, in his ninth year of teaching at Jenks, said it is difficult to predict if he will be back next year. He is beginning to have throat problems, and is afraid he may lose his voice.

"I would like to keep teaching. If I can't teach, I would like to stay in the school in some capacity, maybe as a part-time consultant, or something with student involvement," he said.

"As long as I can talk, I want to be involved some way with the school."

Principal Frank Wood said Huston's contract has been renewed for next year, and "if it's possible, we certainly want him back."

Father In Favor Of Wedding Simplicity

DEAR ABBY: When my sister became engaged, she wanted our dad to spring for a big, expensive wedding, but Dad said, "Have a simple wedding in the rabbi's study, and if you're still married 36 months from now, I'll foot the bill for a big, fancy wedding and you can renew your vows."

Dad was smart. Twenty-two months later my sister filed for divorce. (Dad paid for that, too. And gladly.) — SISSIE IN CLEVELAND ing together. Mother is very bitter and I am angry.

What I want to know is, should I allow my father and his lady friend to pick up my young children and entertain them for a couple of hours? Dad even asked if he could take his grandchildren out-of-town for a weekend. I prefer that my children see their grandfather alone. I still have a lot of bitterness and resentment toward his lady friend. She's everything he taught me I should not be while I was growing up. — STILL BITTER

DEAR ABBY: I was deeply touched by the letter from the woman who had lost all her hair and asked you for something clever to say to her gentleman friend when she removed her wig in his presence for the first time.

Nearly 2 million people are affected by alopecia areata — a condition characterized by a permanent loss of hair.

The National Alopecia Areata Foundation is a resource for people like the woman who wrote to you. We have a bimonthly newsletter dealing with how to cope with that condition from a medical, emotional and cosmetic perspective. We also have support groups throughout the United States and Canada.

Please publish our address. It could benefit thousands of men and women who are hiding from society due to embarrassment. They need to know that they are not alone — that there is counseling and support as well as a safe place to share their feelings with others in the same boat. — JUDITH L. # Living Will Controls Medical Care

By Joan Gosper
NCSU Agricultural Communications — "Writing a 'living will' allows you to control decisions about your medical care," says Barrie Balzi Stokes, extension family resource management specialist at North Carolina State University. A living will can include a decision to withhold extraordinary procedures if your condition is terminal, the extension specialist explains.

North Carolina was one of the first states to adopt a living will law. More formally known as a Declaration of a Desire for a Natural Death, this document informs your doctors and family that you do not want to be kept alive by extraordinary treatment when doctors have determined your condition is terminal and incurable. "Extraordinary treatment" means any medical procedure which, in the judgement of your doctor, would only postpone artificially the moment of death by sustaining a vital function.

The living will protects doctors and hospitals if they respect your request and with hold treatment. A doctor isn't required to carry out your wishes, so the matter should be discussed with him or her. If you make out a living will, you can change your mind simply by saying so to your doctor.

If you wish to have a living will, you may use the state's Declaration of a Desire for a Natural Death form (N.C. General Statute 90-321). You may obtain a free copy by writing The Society for the Right to Die, 250 W. 57th St., New York, N.Y. 10019. Some libraries, particularly those located at universities, also have copies of the general statute available for photocopying.

You may have a living will written out by your lawyer.

The law also allows your family and physician to make decisions about extraordinary treatment if you are unable to do so.

DEAR ABBY: Hooray for the father who tried to convince his family to settle for a less elaborate wedding for his eldest daughter. Happy wedding day memories are not dependent upon ruffled shirts and wear-once-only dresses. Those who can least afford it go into debt to put on showy weddings.

As a young girl, I recall how impressed I was to read about the simplicity of the Lindbergh-Morrow wedding. Despite the affluence of the Morrow family, Charles Lindbergh picked a bridal bouquet of larkspur and columbine for his Anne. How romantic!

My motto: Dare to be different on the side of simplicity. — IDA WOZNY, SEQUIM, WASH.

DEAR IDA: Read on for another wedding where simplicity prevailed:

Latchkey kids came onto the American scene about 15 years ago. Parents put a key around their neck with instructions to "Go straight home from school, lock the door and watch TV."

It was a great line. Some parents even delivered it with a straight face. Can you honestly see 6.5 million kids sitting around in a darkened house watching "The Dating Game"? Please.

Realistically, some parents were sensitive to the emotional isolation and set up Rules for Social Behavior in the Home When School Leaves Out. They are relevant in the summer months. Parents would do well to magnet these to their refrigerator for easy reference.

OCCUPANCY CODE FOR A SINGLE FAMILY DWELLING. Occupancy is this home by more than 200 people is considered a hazard to the stability of the neighborhood ... and regular breathing. Early reservations are suggested to avoid disappointment. Please do not linger over kitchen table or television as people are waiting.

BE CONSIDERATE. Before entering premises, guests must know at least the first name of the children. This is not a USO for lonely children away from home for the first time.

NOISE ORDINANCE. A zoning ordinance specifically states, the noise level may not exceed that of a hovering jet at 300 feet. Electronic equipment of any kind is not welcome.

ANIMAL PROTECTION LAW. If a dog is in residence and it barks/tugs at your leg/tunnels under the door, it indicates he would like to be let out. That is his way of communicating. He needs water to survive. He has a bowl for this. There is no need to serve him water in Daddy's tennis trophy or a Waterford fruit bowl.

FOOD MANDATE. Eating boiled ham out of the package is considered a federal offense, punishable by no lunch for a week. The refrigerator has a hidden camera and will later be used in tracking down offenders who will be brought to a swift justice.

EAT ALONE. If your Mother and Father wanted to feed the world, they would throw a telethon. Refrigerator food does not have legs. It must be manually picked up and put back or it will turn green and make everyone sick. Green is not a happy color.

PHONE REGULATIONS. Do not take down messages in the kitty litter. There is margin for error. Long distance calls must be cleared with check writer of family. Before you call your parents at work ask yourself, "Will there be reprisals?"

IN-HOUSE FIGHTING STATUTE. Do not bleed on anything that you cannot wipe off with a sponge. Food fights leave stains and are not understood by parents. "I'm telling" is a phrase that may leave you an orphan. Don't overuse it. Finally, coats, books, lunch boxes and schoolmates left over 30 days will be sold by the owners at public auction.

Buckle Down

The U.S. Supreme Court ruled a provision of the Gramm-Rudman Act (ordering automatic deficit reductions) is unconstitutional but the law also contains a fallback provision that allows Congress itself to vote on a deficit-reduction package if the automatic trigger was held out of bounds.

For reasons of their own, lawmakers preferred the built-in trigger. It might have been because it saved them a lot of work and a spectre of frequent votes which could mark some members among watchful blocs and interests who could shorten their political careers.

The Supreme Court heard arguments in the case last April 23, which gave the issue a chance of being resolved this month. The Reagan administration urged striking down of the trigger provision saying it empowered the comptroller general, an officer of Congress, to perform functions of the executive branch. The court saw it that way, too.

Congress and the administration appear close to an eye-to-eye approval of Gramm-Rudman in that both recognize the need to reduce and better control federal spending. Polls point to a favorable view by the public, too.

Like or not, Congress had best buckle down and get on with the job. The Procrastination Club is popular only as a joke; not in Washington.

Setting Standards

Upholding schools' roles and authority over their pupils is in the tradition of another fabled U.S. Supreme court decision disavowing any citizen's right to unreasonably shout "fire!" in a crowded theater.

It simply should not have been needed.

Dealing with often hundreds of youngsters requires rules applicable to all, and their enforcement, which may or may not require some disciplinary action.

In a Spanaway, Wash., school a student gave a brief assembly speech filled with crude sexual allusions and he was suspended for violating rules against disruptive conduct.

The young man brought suit charging violation of his rights to free speech.

It took time for the case to wend its way through several levels of the court system before reaching the highest court of the land. This week that court spoke.

By a 7-2 vote it upheld the role of school officials in setting standards of civility and behavior among the children put into their care. Common sense prevailed one more time.

One might think such concepts would have been long since implanted by parents.

In Remembrance Of A Pioneer

Editor's Note: Rufty is a former student of the late U.S. Sen. John East. He covers politics for The Ledger in Lakeland, Fla., where this column first appeared.

When I learned U.S. Sen. John East, R-N.C., killed himself Sunday, I was doubly saddened. He once was my instructor and friend; yet tragically, his suicide may be all most people will know about him.

We have a tendency to remember a person for the last big event in his life — or the most controversial event — instead of looking at the sum total of his contribution in life. I hope that is not the case with John East.

His political views were far more conservative than most, but his courage in the face of adversity is the kind of quality all Americans respect.

East was my political science professor at East Carolina University 20 years ago. His teaching skills were as feisty as his arguments with visiting liberal (and even moderate) lecturers.

I can still remember the tall, prematurely bald scholar rising to full height, supported on crutches, and challenging Sen. Albert Gore Sr., D-Tenn., to prove that political realignment would not work.

Like many very conservative Republicans in the 1960's East believed that all conservatives should move over to the Republican Party and those crazy liberals and moderates like Nelson Rockefeller should move into the Democratic Party.

I did not adopt his political philosophy, but I absorbed his perseverance and his recognition that the political system is not some dull game way off in the big city. It is people and ideas on every level from the drug store to the college think tank.

East's conservatism was based on fundamental academic reasoning and study, not of fads or demagoguery designed to whip up voters; emotions with buzz words.

Perhaps his greatest tragedy is that fame came late for him. He began running in 1966. He was elected in 1980 after other people who followed his original lead had already been elected.

Commentators describe Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., as East's mentor. But East was among the first Republicans who dared to run for state or federal office in the South — not in the popular Nixon years or the Reagan landslides, but in the 1960's when journalists were questioning whether the Republican Party would survive.

Florida's own Republican Sen. Paula Hawkins, also elected in 1980, often quoted the quiet senator and his ideas.

Running as a Republican in 1966, East came close to winning a congressional seat in eastern North Carolina — where, at that time, folks still broke windows on cars with Republican bumper stickers (including cars of some East supporters that year.) He later ran unsuccessfully for North Carolina secretary of state.

John East's conservatism was very important to this country as a counterpoint to the liberalism of senators like George McGovern and Jacob Javits. In a political scientist's point of view, the pendulum must swing back and forth to match economic pulls and cycles of the nation.

East provided a firm foundation for the conservative tone. Admittedly, some of his legislation, such as trying to declare in law that human life begins at conception, was a little bit radical for some. But there have been many radical ideas from both ends of the political spectrum; they keep us from falling asleep in the middle.

In Washington recently, I tried, at the suggestion of Hawkins, to visit my professor for the first time in 18 years. She said he had been depressed over his many illnesses over the past year.

But, after being put off by his staff and loaded with other assignments, I didn't have time to tough it out with protective aides trying to limit their senator's time to issues. I decided not to do my usual lunge past the secretaries.

"I'll see him next trip," I told myself at the airport Thursday.

Strength For Today

Wrote Dr. C.C. Jung, the famous pioneer psychiatrist of Zurich:

"All of my patients in the second half of life — that is to say, over thirty-five years of age, share the problem of finding a religious outlook on life. It is safe to say that every one of them feels ill because he or she has lost that fulfilling element which the living religions of every age have given their followers, and none has been really healed who did not regain a religious outlook.... It seems that side by side with the decline of religious life the neuroses become noticeable more frequent."

The Bible has an answer for the problem which Jung noted. It speaks of hope in the promise of God as an anchor of the soul, sure and steadfast. When we know this hope, fear falls away and we know "the power of love and of a sound mind."

Working To Promote Democracy

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a cramped office across the street from the Mayflower Hotel, a small group of unpaid former American diplomats is working hard to spread democracy around the world.

Supported by grants from the U.S. Information Agency, the Agency for International Development and a few foundations, the private Committee for a Community of Democracies functions on a budget that is nearly insignificant in today's Washington.

The balance sheet for 1985 shows income of $123,660.65 and expenditures of $105,284.46. The president, Samuel De Palme, and the media director, Gene Rosenfeld, retired from the U.S. foreign service in the 1970s.

The only paid workers are Charles

Tanguy, a former diplomat who handles programs and other administrative tasks, and two part-time secretaries.

But the ambitions are large; the optimism about democracy's future glowing.

"We definitely think it's on the rise," said De Palme, who was assistant secretary of state for international organizations. "We are very much encouraged and want to further that trend to the extent we can."

By De Palme's count there are at least 50 democracies in the world — "very definitely" more than 10, 15 or 25 years ago.

But he acknowledged in an interview Wednesday that in some regions there are very few democracies. In the Middle East, only Israel meets the committee's standards; in Africa, only Botswana and Mauritius.

The committee was started in 1979 by retired American foreign service officers working with like-minded people primarily in Australia, Britain, Belgium, Canada and West Germany. This led in 1985 to a conference in Racine, Wis., attended by private delegates from 26 democratic countries, who pledged to try to persuade their governments to participate in an association of democratic countries.

"We don't expect to get all 50-55 in one fell swoop," Rosenfeld said. "We hope to have five or six of the larger democracies as a nucleus to set up the organization to which the other democratic countries that are eligible can eventually join."

The committee, in hopes of nurturing positive trends, is trying to set up an international institute — at a site still to be determined — at which the components of democracies can be studied and applied.

"They can work out their own customs, their own religions, their own traditions," Rosenfeld said.

At the same time, the committee held a regional seminar in May in Mauritius for African participants from Botswana, Cameroon, Kenya, Gambia, Mauritius and Senegal.

Ahead, in November, are seminars in Sydney, Australia, for Asian and Pacific nations, and in Costa Rica for Latin America and the Caribbean. Next spring, Europeans will gather in Italy.

Attack On Church Is Admission Of Defeat

WASHINGTON — The explanation of the Sandinistas' costly attack on the Catholic Church can be found in a confidential CIA analysis that President Daniel Ortega's communist regime knows it has "lost the public relations battle" for Western opinion.

The intelligence study was written before Managua expelled Bishop Pablo Antonio Vega, vice president of the Nicaraguan Catholic Bishops Conference. It suggested that the moment, the Democratic-controlled House overcame the emotional appeal of Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill and approved President Reagan's $100 million contra aid package, Ortega decided his Marxist-Leninist regime had lost political support from liberals in the U.S. and Western Europe.

That dictated the attack on the Catholic Church, even while Pope John Paul II was visiting a neighboring Latin country. It ended political pretense aimed at concealing true Sandinista colors. It moved the regime to hard-line self-defense designed to isolate Nicaragua's population from its lifeline, the Catholic Church.

Evidence of a severe Sandinista defeat in the battle for Western public opinion goes beyond Tip O'Neill's House. It is measured by the decline in aid from the European Economic Community (EEC).

Every year since the Sandinistas overthrew dictatorial right-wing rule in 1979, Nicaragua has been the largest per capita EEC aid recipient in Central America. This assistance, running into tens of millions of dollars, began to slow four years ago. Now the Europeans are ready to apply the brakes. That will deprive Managua of funds just when the Soviet Union is sending less cash to Nicaragua and Cuba, a Soviet client and Sandinista benefactor.

European withdrawal from all-out support of the Sandinista regime, long a top-of-the-line favorite for socialist and some Christian Democratic parties, began before Pope John Paul II in Colombia July 6 spoke against the Sandinistas. He denounced the expulsion of Bishop Vega as an act out of the "dark ages" (a reference to anti-clericalism marking revolutionary movements in Mexico and elsewhere in Latin America).

The disabusing of European leaders who wanted to believe Sandinista propaganda gathered steam with the gradual smothering of political pluralism and civil rights in Nicaragua. "There just aren't many European leaders left who still believe that there is a third way open in Nicaragua," one European diplomat here told us. The "third way" was the hope of genuine movement toward political pluralism in Managua, coupled with credible pledges that the Sandinistas would stop exporting violent revolution with Cuban and Soviet help.

All pretense disappeared when the regime expelled Bishop Vega following its refusal to let the Rev. Bismarck Carballo, a personal aide of Cardinal Miguel Obando y Bravo, return from a visit to the U.S. The regime's decision to bar him was a direct slap at the Catholic primate of Nicaragua, probably the country's most popular national figure.

Some administration officials claim this treatment of the Church in a country close to 100 percent Catholic shows utter stupidity by Ortega and his fellow commandantes. But that belies the regime's steady movement to hard-fisted totalitarianism, a route not disguised by attempts at political finesse.

The Church cannot be tolerated. It has emerged as the main target ever since the regime apparently decided that the procrastinating U.S. Congress eventually would vote to finance Reagan's pro-contra policy. The closing of the Church's radio, which operated under Father Carballo's direction, and the seizure of Catholic printing plants came late last year. Some administration officials believe that the expulsion of Bishop Vega will be followed by action against the cardinal himself.

Instructions have been sent from Washington to U.S. embassies in European capitals to spread the word about Sandinista attacks on the Church. But neither the White House nor the State Department is yet trying to cash in on angry sentiments of American Catholics.

Source Says East Widow Considers Suit Over Care

By The Associated Press
The widow of the late Sen. John East has sought legal advice and is contemplating a lawsuit regarding her husband's medical treatment, sources have told a Raleigh newspaper.

"I would not be surprised to see the family file a lawsuit," said an unidentified Greenville official familiar with the circumstances surrounding East's death, the News and Observer of Raleigh reported today.

The unnamed sources told the newspaper that East, who committed suicide last month, privately complained about the care he received from Navy doctors last year.

Jerry Woodruff, East's press secretary, declined to comment when asked about a possible lawsuit. But, he said, "East did express regret that his thyroid condition had not been diagnosed earlier. But he never mentioned anyone (he blamed) specifically to me."

Mrs. East could not be reached for comment and Woodruff said she was declining all interview requests.

Kathryn East, one of East's two daughters, referred questions to East's Washington press office when reached by telephone at her Greenville home.

When asked whether the family was considering filing suit against Bethesda Naval Hospital in Maryland, where her father was treated last year, she said: "That's not information I can give to you ... Really, I don't have any comment. The news of his health is still very real to me."

East's other daughter, Martha East Vainright of Columbia, Md., could not be reached for comment.

The newspaper reported that according to former associates in Washington, who asked not to be identified, East frequently complained that doctors at Bethesda Naval Hospital misdiagnosed his hypothyroid condition.

"I think he was really disappointed by the way he was treated at Bethesda," one former East aide said.

Another longtime political associate said East had been "quite bitter" that the thyroid illness, which eventually was treated with a synthetic hormone, was not discovered sooner.

The thyroid condition — in which the thyroid fails to sufficiently produce hormones that regulate metabolism — has not been officially linked to East's June 29 suicide at his Greenville home. Several medical experts have downplayed a possible link, even though depression is sometimes a symptom of untreated hypothyroidism.

In a suicide note left for his family,

East reportedly complained about his poor health, which last year prompted him not to seek a second term in the Senate.

Lt. Cmdr. Claude T. Shehane, a spokesman for the Bethesda hospital, said Thursday he was unaware of any discussion of a lawsuit and knew of no requests from East's family for the senator's medical records. Shehane declined substantive comment on details of East's medical treatment.

Some East associates believe he was showing signs of his thyroid condition as early as 1984 when he privately complained about fatigue and insomnia.

In February 1985, East was admitted to Bethesda for a blockage of his urinary tract, and underwent corrective surgery. He returned to the hospital on April 20, 1985, for what was diagnosed as an acute case of hypothyroidism.

Doctors reported at the time that the principal thyroid hormone in East's body was so low it was undetectable when he was admitted. East was released on May 23, 1985, for the start of a long convalescence.

East was hospitalized again in November for further tests and observations. However, East has changed doctors by then, and he was admitted to Georgetown University Hospital in Washington.

It is not clear when East switched doctors, but Dr. John J. Canary, an endocrinologist at Georgetown who treated East, said Thursday East came under the care of the university doctors "in the late fall of 1985."

South African Police Say Four Men Killed

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Police said they killed four men in a firefight in Cape province today, a day after they shot and killed six guerrillas in a gunbattle near the Botswana border.

In the black township of Soweto, hundreds of black migrant workers and black residents clashed in running street battles today, witnesses said, and seven people were believed killed.

A police statement issued in Pretoria said officers stopped a car outside King William's Town in Cape province at about 8:15 a.m. Four men came out firing guns and threw a hand grenade that did not detonate, the statement said.

Police said they shot one man dead. The others jumped back in the car and drove about 20 miles to Fort Jackson, where they met a roadblock. Two of the men fled into the bush and were shot dead by police, while the fourth man was found dead in the car, police said.

They said one man was identified as an African National Congress guerrilla. The ANC is the main black organization fighting to end white domination in South Africa. Hand grenades and Soviet-made weapons were found in the car.

Police also reported a gunbattle Thursday with six alleged ANC guerrillas near the border with Botswana, and alleged that the men entered from that black country. A seventh gunman may have been wounded, but escaped, police said.

They said one policeman was wounded in Thursday's battle but none were hurt today.

In other developments: —Two Johannesburg newspapers, the Star and the Weekly Mail, said 35 detainees at a prison east of Johannesburg began a hunger strike Monday to demand better treatment and an end to the nationwide state of emergency imposed June 12. Prison Services spokesman Lt. Col. A. van Vuuren refused to confirm or deny the report.

—In Cape Town, Winnie Mandela, wife of jailed ANC leader Nelson Mandela, said he does not want to meet with Britain's foreign secretary, Sir Geoffrey Howe, who plans to visit South Africa this month. Mrs. Mandela said after visiting her husband in prison that there was "no point whatsoever" in a meeting with Howe, who will be on a mission for the Common Market. Mandela is serving a life sentence for a 1964 conviction of plotting sabotage.

Firm Headed By Greenville Man Buys Kingsberry Homes

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
McDowell Enterprises Inc. of Nashville, Tenn., has signed an agreement in principle to acquire all the outstanding shares of Kingsberry Homes Inc., a leading manufacturer of panelized homes, located in Fort Payne, Ala., according to Dr. P.S. Prasad of Greenville, McDowell's chairman and president.

Prasad said this action represents a first step in implementing a strategy he set out in a letter to shareholders which was incorporated in McDowell's 1985 annual report. The letter described how McDowell was proceeding to liquidate its traditional heavy construction businesses and redeploy the firm's assets to acquire new businesses, with sound operating management, in promising industrial sectors.

Prasad declined to say how much the acquisition would cost.

Kingsberry, with 1985 sales of approximately $20 million, is one of the largest and probably the best known of the panelized home manufacturers, Prasad said. The company was established in 1946 and has had a solid record of achievement over the past 40 years.

Among other things, Prasad said, the letter of intent anticipates that Kingsberry's "proven management group will remain in place to pursue opportunities under discussion for increasing volume and profits."

According to Kingsberry's president and major stockholder, Pete Gustafsen, "this opportunity to combine Kingsberry and McDowell will provide Kingsberry and its employees additional growth opportunities."

Gustafsen said Kingsberry sells to some 200 independent builders, mostly in the eastern United States.

While the acquisition is subject to negotiation and execution of a definitive purchase agreement, McDowell and Kingsberry plan to complete the intended arrangement by mid-September, Prasad said.

According to Prasad, the Charlotte investment banking firm of Bowles Hollowell Conner Co. initiated the transaction and represented Kingsberry Homes.

McDowell, traded on the American Stock Exchange, was acquired by Keystone Financial Corp. of 311 S. Evans St. in January 1985. Prasad is one of the principals in Keystone.

Earlier this year, Prasad announced the sale of McDowell Materials Corp. divisions for $10.2 million.

When the sale of McDowell Materials was announced in February of this year, Prasad said McDowell Enterprises' secured indebtedness had been reduced from $17.5 million to $4.85 million and would be reduced to $200,000 after cash proceeds from the sale of McDowell Materials' Nashville division — which comprised about 50 percent of the fixed assets (book value) of McDowell Materials — were applied.

Prasad, who describes himself as "a venture capitalist," came to Greenville about nine years ago as a psychiatrist at the Walter B. Jones Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center, but moved into real estate several years ago.

"I would buy property, fix it up and sell" at a profit, Prasad said. More than a year ago "we decided we could do the same with companies ... buy one with good assets, restructure the firm" and increase its value — "a doctor doing corporate surgery," Prasad said.

Other principals in Keystone include Harry McMullan III of Tulsa, Okla., president of Oklahoma Valve Co. and Alliance Steel Co., and accountant Bill Zachman, a partner in the firm of Lowrimore, Warwick & Co.

Texas Jail Escapee Sought

BIG SANDY, Texas (AP) — Hundreds of police officers using helicopters, a plane and dogs sealed this town today after an escaped murder suspect freed his female hostage, and the sheriff said the man known as "Animal" would "pay for what he did."

Jerry Walter McFadden, a convicted rapist, told his hostage, Upshur County Sheriff's Deputy Rosalie Williams, Thursday night to "Go!" and was seen about 45 minutes later on foot heading toward the Sabine River, said Police Chief Richard Lingle.

About 200 law officers asked the 1,250 residents to remain indoors while they used helicopters, a plane and dogs to track McFadden, 38. They cordoned off a search area estimated by Upshur County Sheriff Dale Jewkes at between 10 and 15 square miles.

"We've got men on horseback in heavily wooded areas and we've still got the dogs here," he said.

Authorities stopped a freight train during the morning and searched boxcars, but did not find the fugitive, who calls himself "Animal."

After her release, Mrs. Williams, 24, went to a house, whose occupants called police, Lingle said, adding that he contacted Mrs. Williams' husband, Eddie, a state trooper, who took her to a hospital.

"Getting her back safe is the main thing," Jewkes said. "Next we have to get McFadden so he can pay for what he did."

McFadden, who bears the inscription "Death before dishonor for the Lonesome Loser" among numerous tattoos on his chest, escaped Wednesday night from Upshur County Jail in Gilmer after striking a sheriff's sergeant in the head with a piece of metal he had torn from a cell window, Jewkes said.

He locked the sergeant and a deputy in a cell, abducted Mrs. Williams, and fled in her car armed with the sergeant's .38-caliber revolver, Jewkes said.

Sanford Says Race Is Party Campaign

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Pledging to run a clean campaign, Terry Sanford, the Democratic nominee for the U.S. Senate, called for party unity and told a meeting of campaign workers, Pitt County party officials and county candidates here Thursday that the Democratic Party will win in the November general election.

"Democrats all across the state are tired of losing," Sanford, former governor and retired president of Duke University, told the late-afternoon gathering. "We're not going to lose this year."

Sanford stressed two main points about his campaign for the Senate. First, he said, "I want people to say ... this has been the most positive, forward-looking, cleanest campaign."

Secondly, Sanford said "this isn't going to be any 'Sanford for Senate' campaign. We're going to have a Democratic Party campaign ... and a united Democratic victory in the fall. "North Carolina can not continue to make progress without a strong Democratic Party," Sanford said.

Saying that North Carolina was the first state in the nation with a university system, state supported public schools and hard surface roads, as well as farm-to-market roads, the community college system and the Research Triangle Park, because of Democratic leadership, Sanford said "North Carolina has a great history ... the history of the Democratic Party."

Sanford said "we need to tell it to young people ... older people who have moved here. Tell that history."

Saying the Republican Party needs the votes of registered Democrats to win statewide elections, Sanford suggested that Democrats "ought to try to get Republicans to vote for the Democratic ticket. They'll like it," he said.

"The number one issue in North Carolina today is the state of the farm economy," Sanford said. "It's hasn't been worse since the Great Depression."

"We're working now on how to go about building it back up," Sanford said. "We're going to come up with a commonsense North Carolina solution."

Paramore Withdraws Rezoning Requests

By DON REUTER
Reflector Staff Writer

Two rezoning requests by S.A. Paramore were withdrawn from Greenville City Council consideration after area homeowners voiced complaints at the council's regular session Thursday night.

Paramore had requested 12.3 acres located off the northern right-of-way of 14th Street Extension, north of Windy Ridge, be rezoned from residential/agricultural to high density residential and 13.1 acres located east of Tucker Estates subdivision be rezoned from residential/agricultural to single-family medium density residential.

Before council members could cast a vote on the issue, attorney Fred Mattox, representing Paramore, submitted withdrawal papers.

City rules allow Paramore to resubmit his rezoning request through proper channels at any time even though it was withdrawn, according to City Attorney Mac McCarley, who said Paramore would have been forced to wait six months before reapplying if the City Council had denied the requests.

In protesting the proposed zoning changes, William Hallberg, president of the Tucker Estates Homeowners Association, said the land involved is valuable because of investments made by Windy Ridge, Quail Ridge, Baytree and Tucker Estates homeowners.

"This land has achieved its value because of our investments," Hallberg said. "This is why I'm confident that we have a right to speak to how it is developed."

Hallberg said zoning the area for single family homes would be more appropriate.

"It would be a disservice to the city of Greenville and to potential buyers and house builders to cut off the opportunity to build single-family homes," he said.

George Alvan, a Quail Ridge resident, said the increased traffic on 14th Street Extension would be a problem if the zoning requests were approved.

"The road can barely handle the traffic now," he said. "I'm also afraid that what's built in the R-6 zoning is bound to be cheaper than existing homes in the area."

Tucker Estates resident Ken Rakestraw said Greenville already has enough multifamily development to accommodate its population.

"I think we're overbuilding," Rakestraw said. "I do think there is a shortage of houses in Greenville. If the area is rezoned to multifamily, it will limit the possibilities of building single-family homes on the area."

East's Papers

If an archivist's negotiations are successful, Sen. John East's papers will be housed in the East Carolina University Manuscript Department in Joyner Library.

Don Lennon, head of archives and manuscripts at ECU, is in Washington negotiating for the papers and correspondence East generated during his Senate term.

"The particulars haven't been worked out yet," said Mary Boccaccio, curator of manuscripts at ECU. "There are several hundred cubic feet" of East's papers which are being discussed by Lennon and the senator's staff.

Sen. East, who died June 29, was a former political science teacher at ECU.

Relief From Heat

Afternoon thundershowers cooled Pitt County Thursday, forbidding high temperatures to reach the triple-digit mark.

Nearly an inch of rain was recorded in Greenville Thursday. Cape Hatteras recorded two inches of rain, and Simpson recorded 1.64 inches.

The high temperature Thursday was 92 degrees. Highs today were expected to be in the mid 90s.

No serious damage was attributed to Thursday's thunderstorm.

Duffus Named

Col. Jack Duffus has been appointed to a four-year term on the Pitt-Greenville Airport Authority by the Greenville City Council.

The council reappointed Christia A. Dunn, who was filling an unexpired term, to the Recreation and Parks Commission.

The council also named Sheila Mendoza and J.B. Surlis III to the commission.

Reading Club

The Summer Reading Club at Sheppard Memorial Library is still accepting applications for children who want to participate in the program that runs through Aug. 11. A picnic will be held Aug. 14 for the children.

Radio-TV Institute

Kimberly S. Williams of Greenville recently attended the 36th University of North Carolina High School Radio-Television Institute in Chapel Hill.

A senior at J.H. Rose High School, Ms. Williams was exposed to the production of radio and television programming.

Jones Is Congressional Dean

Rep. Walter B. Jones Sr. says he is delighted to be the new dean of the North Carolina delegation in the U.S. House of Representatives.

Jones succeeds Rep. Jim Eroyhill, a House member since 1961, who is moving to the U.S. Senate to fill the unexpired term of the late Sen. John East.

Jones, a Farmville resident who represents the 1st Congressional District, has been in Congress since 1966.

Reached this morning in Williamston where a breakfast was being held for his campaign for a new term, he said "This is an honor you achieve only through seniority. I've been in Washington longer than any other representative or senator."

He said there is no additional salary for the job, that it will involve calling meetings of the North Carolina delegation in the House at intervals — usually four or five times a year — especially when there are important issues that affect North Carolina.

and Kyle Hudson of Winterville are participating in "Carolina Summer: Arts and Sciences for Academically Able High School Students," an educational program at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

During the three-week program, students study psychology, chemistry, ecology, literature, writing and philosophy.

Hickman, Ms. Williams and Ms. Warren attend J.H. Rose High School. Hudson attends D.H. Conley High School.

ACTION Grant

The Foster Grandparent Project at Caswell Center, Kinston, has been awarded a $255,192 grant by the federal agency ACTION, according to Human Resources Secretary Phillip J. Kirk Jr.

Caswell is one of North Carolina's five centers for the care and treatment of mentally retarded individuals.

Kirk said foster grandparents are older adults who work as volunteers providing personal attention for especially needy children — children who are mentally retarded, disabled, abused or in trouble with the law.

Pitt Planning Board

The Pitt County Planning Board will meet Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at the county office building at 1717 W. Fifth St.

Included on the agenda for consideration are plats for: Crisp Mobile Home Park in Farmville township; Cherry Oaks, section nine, Allen subdivision and Windsor subdivision in Winterville township; Twin Creeks subdivision and Britany Ridge section two in Grimesland township, and Loftin Acres section two in Carolina township.

A discussion of perpetual maintenance for drainage in subdivisions is also scheduled.

Reunion Under Way

The Laughinghouse-Sneed families will have their 14th annual family reunion today through Sunday at the Holiday Inn following the theme

"Reaching for Higher Heights."

The Rev. David Laughinghouse of First Corinthian Church, Baltimore, will speak at the 9 a.m. service Sunday. At 1:30 p.m. Henry Parker and Virginia Jones will speak.

Doll Club To Meet

The Timeless Treasures Doll Club will meet Monday at the home of Rose Wallace in Bath. A covered-dish luncheon will start at 11 a.m.

A presentation on composition and hard plastic dolls will be given by Gerry Hays.

For further information call 746-2607.

Zoo Trip Planned

The South Side Senior Citizen Club is planning a trip to the Asheboro Zoo July 22. Members planning to go should contact Alice Moore at the center. For more information, call 752-4137, extension 253.

Thefts Reported

Greenville police said two thefts were reported to the department Thursday.

Officer H.D. Hines said a set of golf clubs and golf bag valued at $800 were taken from a car parked at Carolina East Mall in an incident reported at 1:54 p.m., while Officer D.C. Johnson said a lawn mower was taken from 1937 White Hollow Drive in an incident reported at 6:38 p.m.

Morning Thefts

Investigators said three thefts were reported to Greenville police early today.

Officer J.A. Felton said a purse containing $15 in cash was taken from under a table at the Elbow Room on Cotanche Street in an incident reported at 12:30 a.m., while Officer K.M. Smeltzer said a purse containing $65 in cash was taken from under a table at the lounge at the Sheraton Greenville motel on Greenville Boulevard in an incident reported at 1:03 a.m. Smeltzer said the purse — minus the cash — was later recovered from a bathroom at the motel.

Smeltzer also said a screwdriver, pliers and a set of Allen wrenches belonging to Manes Lock and Key Service on Dickinson Avenue were taken from outside a third floor room at the Sheraton in an incident reported at 1:30 a.m.

Two Arrested

Two men were arrested on theft charges by Greenville police early today.

Officer G.R. Morris said Curtis Crandall, 27, of 207 Ridgeway St., was taken into custody about 12:47 a.m. in connection with the theft of a wallet containing $290 in cash from a table at the Tree House restaurant in the 100 block of East Fifth Street that was reported at 12:24 a.m.

Officer L.E. White said Hubert Lee Arthur, 35, of 1923B Norcott Circle, was arrested on breaking, entering and larceny charges about 12:55 a.m.

White said the charges against Arthur resulted from an investigation of a break-in at 612B W. 14th St. on July 2 in which a television set, cable TV box and a radio-tape player were reported taken.

Minnick Honored

Richard Minnick has been awarded the Volunteer of the Year Award for the eastern region of the American Lung Association of North Carolina.

Minnick, an employee of Procter and Gamble in Greenville, has participated in the Lung Association statewide Bike Trek fund-raising project for the past two years and this year enrolled five other bikers in the project. He appeared on behalf of the association on the "Carolina Today" show and performed other volunteer work for the association.

A Portsmouth, Va., native, he and his wife, Kathy, live in Winterville.

Chairman Elected

The executive committee of the Eastern North Carolina Industrial Council recently re-elected James A. Hackney III of Washington, N.C., as chairman and elected Jerold L. Morris of Wilson as vice chairman of the council. James E. Fulghum of Wilson was elected secretary.

Hackney is president of Hackney Industries Inc. and is chairman of the Board of Trustees of North Carolina State University. Morris is manager of Merck Sharp & Dohme's pharmaceutical plant and serves as president of the Wilson County Chamber of Commerce. Fulghum is president of Communications Associates Inc.

In 1985, the assessed valuation of real property in Pitt County totaled $1,744,612,157; personal property was valued at $750,322,923.

Whitehead Plane Makes Test Flight

STRATFORD, Conn. (AP) — With actor Cliff Robertson in the cockpit, a plane whose prototype may have beaten the Wright brothers into the air by two years, made a successful public test flight early today.

Today's test was not an attempt at full-scale flight because the plane's builders do not have the engines to power it. The plane, known as No. 21, was towed through the air by a truck on a runway at Sikorsky Memorial Airport.

Robertson "saw the plane and he flipped out. He really wanted to fly it," said Kaye Williams, financial backer of the Connecticut effort to put early aviation pioneer Gustave Whitehead into the history books.

William O'Dwyer, a retired Air Force pilot, has extensively researched Whitehead and is convinced the German immigrant took a plane into the air Aug. 14, 1901, over Connecticut. Wilbur and Orville Wrights' first flight was Dec. 17, 1903, in North Carolina.

O'Dwyer and a group of aviation buffs decided to build a replica of the Whitehead plane to prove that he flew.

It passed a similar, private test July 4, when it rose about eight feet into the air and kept its wings level for about half a mile as it was towed by a truck, said O'Dwyer. "This shows it is capable of sustained flight."

No. 21, built from canvas, spruce, bamboo and silk, is 16 feet long and has moth-like wings. It has a fuselage and four wheels.

O'Dwyer has conducted a long battle to get the Smithsonian Institution to recognize Whitehead. The museum recently hung a picture of Whitehead in one of its galleries, but the museum maintains he never flew.

IN THE STATE

Helms Visit

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) - U.S. Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., currently on a four-day private visit to Chile, Thursday held a meeting described as informative with Foreign Minister Jaime del Valle and other Foreign service officials.

Helms arrived here the day before at the invitation of the National Agriculture Society, a conservative organization of landowners.

He also talked to Chile's Chief Justice, Rafael Retamal.

After his conversation with del Valle, Helms told Chilean reporters that he is here on a private visit to gather "firsthand" information about the Chilean situation, according to the official news agency Orbe.

The U.S. Embassy also said the visit is "totally private."

Helms will remain in Chile until Saturday.

Accident

HARMON DEN, N.C. (AP) — A tractor-trailer loaded with pesticide jackknifed on Interstate 40 near the Tennessee state line, but none of the chemicals leaked as the trailer remained upright, authorities said.

The wreck occurred about 2:30 p.m. Thursday, said Sgt. Joseph Parks of the state Highway Patrol.

The driver of the rig, Beford Garner, 50, of Tulsa, Okla., was taken to Haywood County Hospital after he complained of a burning sensation around his nose and lips. He was treated and released late Thursday afternoon, a hospital spokesman said.

The rig completely blocked the eastbound lane and caused traffic to back up several miles into Tennessee during a steady drizzle, Parks said. Compounding the problems was construction going on at twin tunnels nearby.

Martin Ruling

RALEIGH (AP) — A Wake Superior Court judge Thursday ruled against Republican Gov. Jim Martin on a procedural matter in a lawsuit expected to set boundaries on the powers of the governor, Council of State and the Attorney General's Office.

Judge Edwin S. Preston Jr.'s decision paved the way for a July 21 trial in the lawsuit, which names the nine Democratic members of the Council of State as defendants.

Martin filed the lawsuit after he and council members reached a deadlock in a dispute over the location of an Employment Security Commission branch office in Lumberton.

The 10-member council comprises all the executive branch office holders who are elected statewide including the governor, lieutenant governor and attorney general. The council's primary responsibility is to approve state real estate transactions.

Shaw Finances

RALEIGH (AP) — U. S. Attorney Samuel T. Currin will ask a federal grand jury to investigate allegations of financial irregularities involving federal funds at Shaw University, Currin said.

Currin said Thursday that his decision was reached after meeting with officials of the U.S. Department of Education and the Internal Revenue Service.

The grand jury will begin receiving evidence on the case next month in Raleigh, he said.

Meanwhile, Raleigh Mayor Avery C. Upchurch has appointed a 15-member committee to investigate financial and management problems at Shaw.

Upchurch said Thursday the committee has been "given the task of going in and reviewing the records of the institution," then reporting its findings and recommending solutions.

Officials at Shaw, which is the oldest black university in the South, asked Upchurch last month to set up a fact-finding board.

Discharges

RALEIGH (AP) — The state Environmental Management Commission has approved regulations for the discharge of water from peat mining after months of discussions and a related lawsuit.

The regulations approved Thursday require peat mining water discharges to have no more impact on fish nursery areas than would natural vegetation if there were no peat mining.

"My belief is that these regulations

Assembly OKs Compromise Roads Bill

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — The gasoline tax will increase by 2 cents, but North Carolinians no longer will have to pay local property taxes on household items such as jewelry and furniture, thanks to a $132 million highway financing package enacted by the Legislature.

Republicans and Democrats alike praised the bill as a bipartisan effort to breathe new life into the state highway fund.

The Senate's 47-1 approval and the House's 93-15 endorsement came Thursday, a day after a joint conference committee worked out a compromise, which Gov. Jim Martin called "very gratifying."

"I think our conferees did a good job," said Senate President Pro Tem J. J. "Monk" Harrington, D-Bertie. "We're going to leave here happy."

"I'd say it was a victory for North Carolina ... a major achievement," Martin told reporters prior to the floor votes. "It is not exactly what everybody wanted ... but one that both sides could accept."

Under the new law, the 12 1/4 cents per gallon state gasoline tax will rise by 2 cents on July 15 — the same date that a new 3 percent sales tax on wholesale motor fuel will take effect.

The provision lifting the property tax on household items will cost local governments $24.8 million in fiscal 1986-87.

Martin and Lt. Gov. Bob Jordan endorsed the exemption, calling the household property tax a "nuisance tax."

Household Property Tax Abolished

The law also directs the 1987 Legislature to shift the driver's education program from the state budget's Highway Fund to the General Fund, which will save the Highway Fund $27 million in 1986-87 and deplete the General Fund by the same amount.

Other provisions will give motorists the option of registering their automobiles biennially instead of annually, exempt the Department of Transportation from paying the state sales tax on its purchases and implement some $11.6 million worth of cost-saving measures by DOT.

The bill is expected to raise at least $132 million for roads in 1986-87 and at least $200 million per year thereafter — the amount that a Martin administration task force reported last year was essential to reduce a backlog of maintenance and construction needs.

Martin originally proposed solving the funding shortfall, created by slumping gasoline sales, by boosting the gasoline tax 2 1/4 cents per gallon and transferring both the driver's education and state highway patrol — worth a combined $94 million annually — to the general fund.

Democratic leaders attacked the proposed transfers, saying they would deprive the general fund of money needed for schools and human services such as programs for the elderly, poor and ill. Republicans said the programs Martin wanted to transfer properly belonged in the general fund.

Martin and Jordan endorsed a compromise late last month that called for the driver's education transfer, reduced the gas tax boost to 2 cents per gallon and added the 3 percent wholesale tax. The Senate approved the bill.

The House rejected the transfer by three votes earlier this week and added the household property exemption in approving an alternative package, leading to the creation of the conference committee.

Sen. Melvin Watt, D-Mecklenburg, voted for the compromise, but said he had "grave reservations" about its effect on local governments.

"The Legislature giveth and the Legislature taketh away," Watt said, noting that lawmakers had enacted a bill permitting counties and cities to boost their local-option sales tax another half-cent but were voting to deprive local governments of household property tax revenue.

But Sen. Russell Walker, D-Randolph, said the tax exemption would not be a serious blow to cities and counties. "I think we're doing something that is a long time coming," he said.

Sen. Bill Redman, R-Iredell, noted that local governments would benefit from a provision in the bill increasing the portion of gasoline tax revenue for municipalities and secondary roads.

Sen. Wendell Sawyer, R-Guilford, cast the lone dissenting Senate vote. The House approved the bill with little discussion.

N.C. Railroad Stock Is Split

GREENSBORO (AP) — The directors of the North Carolina Railroad Co. have voted for a 100-for-1 stock split, with Gov. Jim Martin agreeing to vote the state's majority share for the split.

James R. Trotter, senior assistant to Martin, came to the Thursday stockholders meeting with instructions to vote the state's shares according to the wishes of the majority of non-state shareholders. He also brought a letter from Martin asserting that he was not really in favor of splitting the stock.

The private, or non-state, shareholders voted overwhelmingly to approve the split and so Trotter cast the state's 75 percent majority the same way.

The shareholders also approved an increase in the number of authorized shares to 10 million from 40,000. Of the 40,000, the state of North Carolina owned 30,002 shares and the remaining 9,998 were publicly traded.

The company's directors voted last fall to recommend the split as the railroad's stock spiraled in price from $870 a share to its current $5,500.

The shareholders also approved a charter amendment allowing the railroad to engage in businesses other than that of operating the railroad. The purpose of the charter amendment is "to ensure that any dealing that the company may engage in with respect to its other property (consisting mainly of real estate) is fully authorized," said

Charles Robson, a company spokesman.

Robson also said that no specific dealings with this real estate are contemplated at this time.

Earlier, company management made public details of an appraisal for the railroad company operating properties which shows a value of that property, if operated by the company, to be $225 million.

If the operating property continued to be operated by the Southern Railway System, a subsidiary of the Norfolk-Southern Corp., the property would have a value of $125 million, or $5,625 a share, according to the appraisal.

This figure excludes the avoided cost to Southern Railway of upgrading an alternative route of $175 million. The appraisal, which was conducted by Standard Research Consultants, a subsidiary of American Appraisal Associates Inc., shows the replacement value to be $512 million.

House Passes Amended State Spending Package

RALEIGH (AP) — A $435.9 million spending bill that would increase the state budget, provide pay raises for teachers and allocate money for prison construction has been approved by the state House.

The House approved the package 86-21 Thursday after lengthy debate dealing entirely with a host of proposed amendments. The package was approved after Democratic leaders retreated on a number of controversial provisions they had inserted into an earlier version.

The Senate is expected to vote on the bill today.

If enacted, the bill would increase the state budget for fiscal 1986-87 to approximately $8.3 billion, with federal funds accounting for nearly $3 billion of the total.

The package includes the 6.5 percent pay increase for teachers and the $900 across-the-board raise for most state employees that the Joint Appropriations Committee tentatively endorsed last month.

It also would allocate some $14.5 million for prison construction and expansion and would bring more violators under programs designed to provide alternatives to incarceration.

The bill includes some $6.2 million for legislators' pet local projects, commonly referred to as "pork barrel." About $3.5 million in pork barrel funds would go to House members and $2.7 million to senators.

In an important change from last month's version, the bill provides $3.7 million for upgrading state parks and frees an identical amount to purchase new parkland. Tommy Rhodes, Natural Resources and Community Development Secretary, had warned that some parks were in such poor shape that they would have to be closed unless additional money was appropriated for repairs.

Reflecting what some lawmakers say is widespread discontent among the legislative rank-and-file over the leadership's handling of the budget and other matters, an assortment of items in the earlier draft that had drawn criticism were watered down or removed entirely.

Among them were provisions:

- Ordering Gov. Jim Martin to submit by next February a plan for replacing the Highway Patrol troopers in his security detail. The reworded entry says Martin "is requested" to develop the plan.
- Increasing the salary of Margaret "Pinky" Hayden, the Department of Public Instruction legislative liaison and a former lawmaker, by about 35 percent, from $36,352 to $49,116.

The updated budget measure leaves the appropriation intact but deletes language earmarking the money for Ms. Hayden. DPI officials apparently will decide how the funds are to be used and how big a raise she will receive, said Sen. Charles Hipps, D-Haywood, who had criticized the earlier provision.

Hipps said it probably would upset other DPI employees for Ms. Hayden to get such a large increase when rank-and-file workers are to receive only $900 per year. "Now it's up to" (Superintendent of Public Instruction) Craig Phillips to deal with the morale problem in his department," Hipps said.

Rep. Billy Watkins, D-Granville, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, sharply declined comment on the provision. Watkins had recommended Ms. Hayden's 35 percent raise.

- Increasing Martin's salary to $103,104, which would make him the nation's highest paid governor. The committee accepted an amendment offered by Sen. Jim Johnson, R-Cabarrus, to raise Martin's pay only to $100,000. That would give him and New York Gov. Mario Cuomo the nation's highest salaries among governors.

- Ordering members of community college trustee boards to undergo special training courses, which some lawmakers complained was an insult to the trustees. The provision was rewritten to "urge" trustees, especially new ones, to take the courses.

- Requiring that a new forestry camp to teach youthful offenders forestry skills be located in Bladen County. The Martin administration had wanted to build the camp in Burke County. The bill was amended to let the administration place the camp where it desires.

The parks appropriations included $2.5 million for repair and renovation, $1.2 million to transport and supervise the convicted lawbreakers who would do the work.

Tornadic Winds Damage Area In Johnston County

SMITHFIELD, N.C. (AP) — Strong winds which the Johnston County Sheriff's Department reported as a tornado, ripped up trees, did some structural damage and left some residents without power, authorities say.

"Basically, we've had a report from the sheriff's office in Johnston County that they did spot a tornado, but officially we cannot confirm that until we have one of our people go out and look at it," said Karl Lenzen, weather service specialist with the National Weather Service at Raleigh-Durham Airport.

But no one was hurt in the severe weather that came through about 8 p.m. Thursday.

Some parts of the county, including Smithfield, Selma and Clayton, were without power for a short time. By 10 p.m., about 300 residents who live near U.S. 210 were still without power.

Kermit Anderson of the Carolina Power & Light Co. office in Smithfield said he thought a twister went through the transmission facility in Wilsons Mills and tore down about eight of the poles that hold up transmission lines.

Lenzen said there was "widespread wind damage" including several trees that were knocked down and roofs blown off several houses.

He said he had a report of damage to a gas storage facility but had no details. The sheriff's department said it had no information on that report.

The National Weather Service said the storm that moved through Johnston County was part of a band of thunderstorms that rumbled through eastern North Carolina Thursday night. Before hitting Johnston County, the storm brought heavy rains and high winds into Edgecombe and Wilson counties.

In the city of Wilson, there was street flooding, trees blown down and scattered power outages, said Chuck Whitley, head of the Wilson Department of Public Works. In at least one area, a large tree fell across a busy road, stalling traffic as crews worked to remove the debris.

Whitley said some Wilson residents and businesses were also without phone service for a brief period of time, including the Wilson Police Department.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

THE BIBLICAL HORSE

THE MOST APPARENT FEATURE IN BIBLICAL REMARKS ABOUT THE HORSE IS THE EXCLUSIVE USE OF THIS ANIMAL TO WARLIKE OPERATIONS! IN NO INSTANCE IS IT ENGAGED IN ORDINARY PURPOSES LIKE FARMING! THE NOBLE AND POETIC DESCRIPTION OF THE HORSE IN JOB 39:19-25, APPLIES SOLELY TO THE WAR HORSE! IT WASN'T UNTIL KING SOLOMON'S REIGN THAT THE HORSE WAS INTRODUCED IN ISRAEL! THE BIBLE TELLS US THAT SOLOMON HAD FORTY THOUSAND CHARIOT HORSES AND TWELVE THOUSAND CAVALRY HORSES! HE GOT THEM FROM EGYPT—ALONG WITH FOURTEEN HUNDRED CHARIOTS AT A COST OF SIX HUNDRED SILVER SHEKELS PER CHARIOT AND ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY SILVER SHEKELS PER HORSE! (I KINGS 10:26-29) BUT, WISE AND BUSINESSLIKE AS HE WAS, KING SOLOMON EVIDENTLY DEFRAYED WHAT COULD HAVE BEEN A COSTLY BILL FOR HORSES BY SETTING UP

A NICE HORSE-TRADING OPERATION WITH HIS NEIGHBORS TO THE NORTH—THE MANY KINGS OF THE HITTITES AND THE KINGS OF SYRIA! NOWHERE IN THE BIBLE DOES IT STATE HOW MUCH THE HITTITES AND THE SYRIANS HAD TO PAY KING SOLOMON FOR THE CHARIOTS AND HORSES HE SHIPPED OUT OF EGYPT FOR THEM, BUT INASMUCH AS SOLOMON HAD A REPUTATION AS A WISE TRADER, IT WOULD CERTAINLY BE POSSIBLE TO ASSUME THAT THIS KING WOULD PROFIT IN A MANNER QUITE IN CHARACTER WITH THE STATEMENT FOUND IN I KINGS 10:23!!

Giving For Religious Causes Climbs But Trail Increases In Other Areas

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
 AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — American giving to religious causes rose to $37.7 billion last year, up 6.5 percent or nearly twice the inflation rate. But giving to other philanthropic causes increased even more.

The figures were part of the annual report, "Giving USA," compiled by the American Association of Fund-Raising Counsel.

"The spirit of giving is alive and well and comes across loud and clear," says the association's chairman, Robert L. Thompson. "It is one of the remarkable characteristics that sets this country apart from every other countries in the world."

Altogether, the report estimates Americans contributed $79.84 billion to philanthropic causes in 1985, up 8.9 percent from the year before, far outdistancing the annual 3.7 percent inflation.

Although religious contributions lagged behind the general gain in giving, the religious total surpassed that in any of five other fields. It was triple the $11.25 billion given the second largest recipient, health and hospitals.

Overall, the $37.7 billion given to religion amounted to 47.3 percent of all U.S. giving, about half of it, in keeping with a steady pattern of a predominant share of giving going to religion.

However, the report notes a recent study by Council on Foundations found that religious bodies themselves give away about 27 percent of what they receive in grants to various human welfare projects.

Among them were help to the aged, the handicapped, blacks, Hispanics, American Indians, Asian Americans, providing food, refugee aid, day-care, youth programs, education, disaster relief and work for human rights.

The council said religious bodies give more than twice as much to such causes as corporations or foundations.

While religious denominations put a substantial part of their receipts into the various uplift work, the report notes that this isn't so of another growing recipient of religious gifts — TV evangelists. The report says:

"While the lion's share of contributions to TV evangelists go to pay (TV) expenses connected with reaching their audiences, church groups spend a considerable portion of their receipts on social service work."

Nevertheless, religious giving in recent years has been "substantially boosted" by contributions to TV evangelists, the so-called "electronic church," the report says.

It adds that contrary to fears, such giving has not subtracted from church support — as concluded in a recent broad study by the Annenberg Communications Center at the University of Pennsylvania.

Undelected church support also is indicated by its growth, outpacing inflation, and also by the fact that weekly church attendance has held up steadily at more than 40 percent of the population for the last 20 years.

In 1985, an average 42 percent of the population attended services weekly, the report notes, citing Gallup surveys, with 72 percent of the population affiliated with a church or synagogue.

Nevertheless, the report cited large annual giving to the TV evangelists and their institutions, with these 1985 income figures listed: Pat Robertson's Christian Broadcasting Network at Virginia Beach, Va., $233 million. Jim Bakker's PTL network at Charlotte, N.C., $100 million.

Jerry Falwell's "Old Time Gospel Hour," of Lynchburg, Va., $100 million.

Oral Roberts of Tulsa, Okla., $120 million.

Jimmy Swaggart of Louisiana, believed to be $140 million.

Besides the big slice of giving to religion, the following were estimated as amounts given in other fields, and the year's percentage increase: Health and hospitals, $11.25 billion, up 9.2 percent; education, $11.25 billion, up 11 percent; social service, $8.56 billion, up 8.6 percent; arts and humanities, $5.09 billion, up 13.1 percent; civic and public, $2.24 billion, up 15.5 percent; other, $3.92 billion, up 18.7 percent.

Racing Chuckwagons Crash

CALGARY, Alberta (AP) — Three chuckwagons collided in a rodeo race after one rider lost his balance and control of his horse's reins, track officials said. Three riders were injured and three horses had to be destroyed. "This is the worst crash I've seen," said Norm Haynes, head judge at the Calgary Stampede, one of Canada's largest rodeos. The Thursday night crash involved three of four wagons entered in the second heat of the race. Each chuckwagon was followed by a horseman, called an outrider, whose role in the contest is to throw a tent and stove in the back of the wagon at the beginning of the race, and finish as close to the wagon as he can. Each wagon also has a driver.

Two contestants were hospitalized, one with a fractured jaw, the other with a deep gash on his knee following the collision. A third apparently dislocated his hand, but was not hospitalized. "One guy was really hurt," said track foreman Danny Jordens. "When I walked up, he was unconscious and coughing up blood. "I was trying to get at him, but he was right in the middle of the wreck and there were horses twisting and kicking all over the place," he said. Three horses were badly hurt and had to be destroyed.

Mayor Says Prison Riot Surprised D.C. Officials

WASHINGTON (AP) — District of Columbia Mayor Marion Barry Jr. says there were signs of growing unrest before inmates set fire to an overcrowded prison complex but that officials did not anticipate an organized attempt to "try and burn it down." The city sent inmates to Maryland, Virginia and Delaware and appealed to the federal government to take some prisoners, as officials scrambled to find space for 1,127 inmates displaced by the fires set early Thursday in 13 buildings at the sprawling Lorton Reformatory complex in suburban Virginia. Seventy-six inmates were being transferred Thursday night to two facilities in Maryland where they will be housed on a temporary basis for 30 days, said Beverly Marable, a spokeswoman for the Maryland Department of Corrections. Officials said 29 inmates and nine guards were injured when fighting erupted after inmates had been let out of burning dormitories and corralled into a ballfield. Guards fired tear gas and birdshot to quell the fracas. One inmate was in critical and unstable condition late Thursday after being operated on for several hours for gunshot and stab wounds at D.C. General Hospital. All other injuries were minor and included tear gas, gunshot and wounds inflicted by other inmates, according to D.C. Corrections Department spokesman Leo Givis. Six firefighters received minor injuries. The uprising was the latest blow to the district's troubled prison system. D.C. officials had been shuffling inmates to the Lorton facility in order to comply with a court-imposed cap at its jail in Washington. As prisoners were removed from Lorton on Thursday, they shouted to reporters: "It's overcrowded in there. That's what the trouble is about." Fairfax County, Va., Board Chairman John F. Herrity, calling Lorton "a powderkeg," said he has asked the county attorney to investigate whether to sue the city and the Justice Department over the incident. "They were double-decking them. They just take the overflow (from the D.C. jail) and stuff them in here," Herrity said. Barry blamed the flare-up in part on recent news accounts of a prison consultant's report which warned that overcrowding at Lorton could soon result in a "major disturbance." "Our prison experts have said some things become self-fulfilling prophecies," Barry said. "It wasn't spontaneous. It was planned. We think the report and the way it was reported added to the prophecy of guys wanting to be free." Barry said there were indications of dissatisfaction among inmates in the area where the disturbance occurred, which held 1,295 inmates — about 200 over capacity. But Barry said the disquiet appeared to deepen after inmates learned of the consultant's report Wednesday. "We didn't sense until the last day or so a heightened concern outside normal. I don't think anyone knew they were going to systematically try and burn it down," Barry said.

Jell-O Faces Threat

By The Associated Press Two supermarket chains have pulled sugar-free Jell-O from stores in four states after someone claimed he poisoned three boxes with cyanide and placed the tainted products in Chicago- and Detroit-area stores, officials said. An anonymous caller made the claim Thursday afternoon on a toll-free consumer hotline of General Foods Corp., the company said. "We don't know whether we are dealing here with an insane act of consumer terrorism or facing a genuine threat," said Bernard Turnock, Illinois public health director. "But we can't afford to take any chances." The caller said in the tape-recorded message he put sodium cyanide in three boxes of sugar-free Jell-O and placed them on shelves in a Kroger store in the Detroit area and a Jewel Foods Store in the Chicago area, General Foods said. The message did not identify the specific stores, but said the boxes were of the 0.6-ounce size and came from lot No. 4318D3. It didn't specify a flavor. "Better take this serious. This is no joke," the caller concluded. The manufacturer asked Kroger stores in the Detroit area and Jewel stores in the Chicago area to remove all 0.6-ounce sugar-free Jell-O, regardless of lot number, from shelves. "We are retrieving as much product as quickly as we can to test for tampering," said spokesman Kenneth Defren from General Foods' headquarters in White Plains, N.Y. Kroger said it was taking that action at its 57 stores in Michigan, said Paul Bernish, a Kroger spokesman in Cincinnati. Jewel pulled all sugar-free Jell-O, regardless of size or lot number, from the company's 218 stores in Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Iowa, said company spokesman Mike DePaola. Treasure Island Food Mart Inc. stores and at least some Dominick's Finer Foods Inc. stores also ordered sugar free Jell-O removed from their shelves in the Chicago area. In addition, anyone who bought the specified lot number from Kroger stores in Detroit and Jewel stores in the Chicago area should return it where it was bought, Defren said.

Political Parties Offer Perks For Big Donations

By RITA BEAMISH Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — If you think it would be great to be photographed with President Reagan, or play in Tip O'Neill's golf tournament or go to exclusive briefings by national policymakers, get out your checkbook. You can gain access to such prestigious events by joining one of the Democratic or Republican parties' elite clubs. The parties call these clubs "major donor programs." That means their members can afford to fork over as much as $10,000 a year for membership. In return, the contributors get to fraternize with fellow party fat cats; get invited to the major party doings, including those the president or other leaders may attend; and they have meetings at which top officials fill them in on everything from NASA problems to hot political races. The GOP started it all in 1975, inviting the party's rich to give $10,000 and become a member of the Eagles club. Now there 900 Eagles, according to Republican National Committee spokeswoman Tara Gross. The Young Eagles club courts those who can afford only $5,000 a year. The Eagles can count on special treatment at major events. On election night 1984 when Ronald Reagan went to the GOP victory party at the Century Plaza Hotel in Los Angeles, he stopped in at the Eagles private reception. Among those at the Eagles party were actors Don Defore, Chuck Connors, Caesar Romero and Buddy Ebsen. On the Democratic side, $10,000 buys membership in the Democratic Business Council, a group of about 200 that holds quarterly conferences in various U.S. resorts or metropolitan settings. The group's brochure promises members will enjoy "frank, intimate discussions with top Democratic elected officials, party leaders and candidates for state and national office who want to know your ideas on issues and public policy." Members include "a veritable Who's Who" of talented American business leaders, the brochure says — such as Bank of America Chairman Lee Prussia, Orion Pictures Chairman Arthur Krim, Prudential-Bache Securities Chairman Harry A. Jacobs Jr. and California hotel magnates Mel Swig and Larry Lawrence. There's also the Democrats' $5,000-a-year National Finance Council, which tells prospective members: "You will receive special privileges at the 1988 Democratic National Convention ranging from special credentialing and meeting privileges to guaranteed VIP hotel accommodations." It has about 250 members, said Democratic National Committee spokesman Terry Michael. In addition to these major donor programs operated by the Democratic and GOP national committees, each party's congressional and senatorial campaign committees have their own clubs. The campaign committees are specifically geared to House and Senate elections. The Republican Congressional Leadership Council's 435 members are "entrepreneurial types" who pay dues of $2,500, said National Republican Congressional Committee Finance Director Wyatt Stewart. Their meetings include briefings by cabinet-level people and maybe a dinner with the vice president. One time, when Reagan was on hand, members lined up for individual photos with him. Another time, at a Palm Springs, Calif., conference, Roy Rogers talked about his career and patriotism. Meanwhile, the 200 or so members of the $5,000-a-year Speaker's Club, sponsored by the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, play in an annual golf tournament with House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass. Political action committees are charged $15,000 to join. To get younger Democrats into the picture, the DCCC has the Chairman's Council, with dues of $2,000 and fewer than 100 members. On the Senate side, both parties' campaign committees have $10,000 clubs. The Democratic Leadership Circle, with 116 members, advertises "stimulating visits to Washington several times a year" for dinner and breakfast with a senator or party leader and staff "to discuss issues of national concern." Extra benefits include "a message center and office away from home" at Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee headquarters.

Pincher Sentenced

MIAMI (AP) — A man who pleaded guilty to assault on pinching female flight attendants has been given three years' probation. But U.S. Magistrate Samuel Smargon told Gary Patrick Mastro on Thursday, "If you have even so much as a beer in the next three years and we learn about it, you're going to do the time." Mastro, 27, of Naples, was indicted on charges of interfering with the crew of a Northwest Orient flight from Fort Myers to Minneapolis in May. He was allowed to plead guilty to the misdemeanor assault charge. Mastro testified at an earlier hearing that he had been served eight screwdrivers at one time by the stewardesses. His attorney, Paul McKenna, in arguing for probation, told Smargon, "This man has a fear of flying. That's why he took the eight drinks." Smargon ordered Mastro to write letters of apology to the three stewardesses involved.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today in a muted response to the Federal Reserve's latest reduction of its discount rate. Gainers outnumbered losers by about 4 to 3 in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

But the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 3.23 to 1,828.60 in the first hour of trading.

Opening-hour volume on the Big Board came to 39.17 million shares.

Late Thursday the Fed announced a cut in its discount rate from 6.5 percent to 6 percent, effective today.

This morning, Chemical Bank of New York lowered its prime lending rate from 8.5 percent to 8 percent.

Losers among the early volume leaders included International Business Machines, down 1 1/2 at 144 3/4; Ford Motor, down 3/4 at 52, and Coca-Cola, down 1/4 at 40 7/8.

said David Wyss, senior financial economist for Data Resources Inc. of Lexington, Mass.

And Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., who had publicly urged the Fed to take such an action earlier this week, said in a statement: "It's the first step in stabilizing and hopefully stimulating today's sluggish economy."

In announcing the action, the Fed said the move was taken "within the framework of the generally accommodative stance of monetary policy that has prevailed for some time."

It also noted that prices for basic commodities have not changed much in recent months, reflecting a period of low inflation.

The Labor Department's Producer Price Index for June was also due out today, and analysts said they anticipated it would show only a modest increase in prices at the wholesale level from the month before.

In the past, Federal Reserve Board Chairman Paul Volcker had voiced some concern about reducing interest rates too sharply for fear of rekindling inflation.

Democrats Planning To Stop Rebel Aid

By WARD SINCLAIR
 L.A. Times-Washington Post News Service

WASHINGTON — Senate farm-state Democrats are planning to attack an administration plan to finance part of its controversial aid package to Nicaraguan rebels out of $300 million diverted from Food for Peace and Africa famine-relief programs.

Little-noticed language in the aid measure passed by the House last month would allow the administration to transfer the $300 million from the food-relief accounts to pay for unspecified economic development in El Salvador, Honduras, Guatemala and Costa Rica.

The administration agreement to include the additional funds for the Central American nations was regarded as a key factor in winning moderate House Democrats' support for President Reagan's proposal to provide $100 million to the counter-revolutionaries, or contras.

But Sen. John Melcher, D-Mont., a frequent critic of administration farm-export policies, said Thursday that he is seeking support for an amendment to stop the $300 million transfer when the Senate considers it next month.

Melcher said the House-passed measure, if enacted, would in effect bar export of U.S. farm products to needy areas as Congress and farm groups are pressuring the administration to accelerate movement of surplus commodities into world markets.

"This transfer is something we must fight very vigorously and strip out. The $300 million won't turn the tide on exports, but this feeds further aggravation — it's adding insult to injury," Melcher said.

"The administration in effect has put a stop to new spending on Food for Peace and African famine relief this year so the money will be available for Central America."

The House-passed legislation provided that the money could come from unused amounts in Agriculture and State department accounts for humanitarian food assistance. Melcher said Agency for International Development administrator M. Peter McPherson recently told him that AID has $225 million available for aid to Africa but does not want to spend it this year.

At the urging of the Export Processing Industry Coalition, Melcher, Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, and other legislators wrote the president this week urging the White House to back away from the plan to transfer food-assistance funds to the Central America development package.

EPIC President Daniel E. Spaghnessy, in a letter to key House and Senate members, said several pending Food for Peace (Public Law 480) proposals to move tens of thousands of tons of additional U.S. grain could be stymied unless the administration agrees to release money remaining in USDA's PL480 account.

"Because of the two-to-three month lead time in the PL480 shipment process, these days in July represent the last opportunity to obligate and use remaining PL480 funds for this fiscal year's programs," the EPIC letter said. "Funds not used are lost to this year's program and represent a significant loss of exports, particularly in processed products."

Daniel G. Amstutz, undersecretary of agriculture for international affairs and commodity programs, denied in an interview Thursday that a "hold" had been placed on PL480 spending. But he said use of unobligated PL480 and African famine-relief funds on the Central America program is being considered.

"I'm sure some in the administration want to tap that money," he said.

Price Increases Test Cars' Appeal

L.A. Times-Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The American yen for Japanese cars might face its most severe test in 1987, as Japanese auto-makers keep piling on price increases to recover some of their losses from unfavorable monetary exchange rates.

The largest Japanese auto makers have raised their prices an average 13.9 percent, or about $1,331 per car, since the end of the 1985 model year last October.

Steeper increases, possibly as high as 8 percent over current stickers, are expected in the 1987 model year, some U.S. auto-industry analysts and officials say.

American consumers have yet to feel the full impact of the Japanese price increases because dealers are trying to cushion them by reducing or eliminating markups that reached as high as $2,000 a car in the Washington area.

"The manufacturers and their distributors currently are absorbing the losses. The customer really isn't being hurt yet," said Robert M. McElwaine, president of the American International Automobile Dealers Association, the lobbying arm for foreign-car dealers in the United States.

The two biggest domestic competitors, General Motors Corp. and Ford Motor Co., are taking advantage of the maneuvering room provided by the Japanese to raise their own prices. Chrysler Corp. and American Motors Co. are holding the line.

Council ...

Under the 5-1-1 plan, Greenville will have two predominantly black or "electable" black districts and three white districts.

Districts 1 and 2 are predominantly black.

District 1 includes Meadowbrook, Greenville Heights, Riverdale, Paige, Moyewood, Lincoln Park, Village Green, Lake Ellsworth and Westwood neighborhoods and a portion of the Tar River Neighborhood from Summit Street west.

District 2 includes Cherry View, Higgs, Kearney Park, Carolina Heights, Hillsdale, Westwood, Summerfield, Oak Dale and Red Oak neighborhoods.

Districts 3, 4 and 5 are predominantly white.

District 3 includes the major portion of the Tar River Neighborhood and Wilson Acres and Riverview Estates neighborhoods.

District 4 includes Brookgreen, Colonial Heights, East Haven, Rock Spring, Forest Hills and Englewood neighborhoods.

District 5 includes Dellwood, Tucker Estates, Oakmont, Drexelbrook, Lakewood Pines, Lynndale, Belvedere and Fairlane neighborhoods.

The city's choice of a new method of election will be sent to the Justice Department for preclearance following a 10-day period during which the council's decision will be published to further notify area voters of the proposed change.

Red Sox Top Angels On Balk

By JONATHAN VITTI
AP Sports Writer

A dropped fly, a bad throw, and a wrong move by a pitcher who never pitched — and Dwight Evans trotted home with the winning run.

Thursday night's meeting of the American League's division leaders ended in the 12th inning with a balk by California pitcher Todd Fischer, enabling the Boston Red Sox to defeat the Angels 8-7.

The Red Sox undid a three-run rally by California in the top of the 12th by scoring three normal-looking runs ... and a weird one that surprised even themselves.

"I guess stranger things have happened in baseball, but I can't explain this," said Boston's Rich Gedman, who tied the score 7-7 with a two-out single in the 12th.

"It's a tough way to lose a game, but this is a very special win because of the way we came back," he said.

Twelve pitchers were used in the game, though pitcher No. 12, Fischer, never threw a pitch.

The normal part: the Red Sox fell behind 3-1 in the first three innings, then went ahead 4-3 in the sixth. The Angels tied the game in the eighth and it went into extra innings.

Then things began getting a little weird. Steve Crawford, Boston pitcher No. 4, got the first two batters out in the top of the 12th, hurt his shoulder and left the game.

Pitcher No. 5, Mike Brown, was allowed as many pitches as he wanted to warm up, but apparently not as many as he needed. Wally Joyner tripled on his second pitch. Brown's next delivery was a wild pitch and Joyner scored.

Two walks, a single and a double later, Brown was gone, Tim Lollar finished the inning and the Angels were three outs away from a 7-4 victory that never happened.

Mike Cook, California pitcher No. 5, started the bottom of the 12th. Marty Barrett singled, but Cook retired the next two batters before Jim Rice hit his ninth homer of the season to make the score 7-6.

Now for the really weird part: Don Baylor popped up for what looked like the last out of the game, but Rick Burleson dropped the ball. Evans walked and Gedman singled, tying the game, with the runners going to second and third on Joyner's throwing error.

On came Fischer, the last pitcher — who never pitched. He came set, then un-set. Home plate umpire Joe Brinkman called the balk, waved Evans home and ended the game.

"It takes some breaks sometimes, but that's the way it goes," Gedman said.

"What can you say, it was weird," Boston Manager John McNamara said.

In other AL games, New York beat Minnesota 11-1, Baltimore defeated Chicago 5-3, Toronto outscored Oakland 8-4, Cleveland topped Texas 9-6, and Seattle beat Milwaukee 4-1. Detroit and Kansas City were rained out.

Bobby Grich, who drove in two runs for California, said he "can't believe the umpire called the balk in a game like that. You lose by a hit or an error. You don't lose a game by a guy moving his hand an inch."

"I heard our third base coach yell balk and I looked around and the umpire was saying come on in," Evans said. "I really never saw it." He came on in anyway ending the 4 hour, 27-minute marathon.

Bill Buckner hit his ninth homer for Boston in the sixth, and Evans added a tie-breaking single. Joyner doubled off Boston starter Al Nipper with one out in the eighth, then scored on Brian Downing's single, tying the game.

"I'm gonna go out and buy a lottery ticket," Barrett decided after the game.

Yankees 11, Twins 1

New York scored nine runs in the sixth inning at the Metrodome to break open a 2-1 game. Thirteen batters went to the plate — and the first 10 reached base.

Eight singles, two walks and two errors buried Minnesota. Five singles, two walks, an error and a double-play grounder produced one run each.

Dave Winfield and Gary Roenicke were 2-for-2 — in the sixth inning. Roenicke, Mike Easler, Mike Pagliarulo, Rickey Henderson, and Winfield hit the run-scoring singles. Easler and Butch Wynegar also homered earlier.

Dennis Rasmussen, 10-2, gave up four hits in 7 1-3 innings as he won his fifth straight decision. Tim Stoddard pitched the last 1 2-3 innings.

Easler's seventh homer of the year gave the Yankees a 1-0 second-inning lead against Twins starter Frank Viola, 9-7. Tom Brunansky's 18th homer of the season, in the bottom of the inning, tied the score. Wynegar led off the fifth with his seventh homer.

Orioles 5, White Sox 3

Baltimore's John Shelby broke a 1-1 ninth-inning tie with a bases-loaded triple, then scored on a fielder's choice, making a winner of Mike Flanagan, who gave up one run in eight innings.

Flanagan, 3-6, took a five-hit shutout and 1-0 lead into the eighth, but gave up a triple to John Cangelosi, who scored the tying run as Ozzie Guillen grounded out.

Orioles' relief ace Don Aase started the ninth inning and gave up two runs. Brad Havens got the last three outs for his first save.

Al Pardo hit his first major-league home run and gave Baltimore the lead in the second inning.

Blue Jays 8, A's 4

Jesse Barfield's double broke a 3-3 tie in the seventh and Damaso Garcia's fourth single of the game brought in two runs — one on an error — keying a five-run inning that carried Toronto past Oakland.

It was the second four-hit game of the season for Garcia, who is batting .443 (35-for-79) in his last 20 games. He had his 1,000th career hit in the third inning.

Oakland's Dave Kingman hit his 20th homer of the season and the 427th of his career, moving him past Billy Williams into 19th place on the all-time list.

Indians 9, Rangers 6

Cleveland rookies Cory Snyder and Andy Allanson hit consecutive two-run singles in a five-run fifth inning and Ken Schrom won his seventh straight game.

Schrom, named to the AL All-Star team earlier in the day, survived an early 4-0 deficit to improve to 10-2, despite allowing six runs on seven hits in 5 2-3 innings.

Mariners 4, Brewers 1

Seattle and Milwaukee actually finished their game — after three rain delays totaling three hours and 44 minutes. The game ended shortly after 1:30 a.m. CDT, six hours after the scheduled start. Fewer than 300 survivors from the official attendance of 8,963 remained after the third delay.

Spike Owen and John Moses each drove in a run and scored one for Seattle.

The loss was the fifth straight for the Brewers, matching their longest losing streak of the year.

Boggs, Brown Named To All-Star Reserve List

NEW YORK (AP) — Third basemen Wade Boggs, the American League's leading hitter, and Chris Brown, No. 2 in the National League batting race, were named to their respective All-Star teams today.

Boggs, who is batting .370, tops in the major leagues, was one of four Boston Red Sox on the American League squad for next Tuesday's game at Houston. He will back up starter George Brett of the Kansas City Royals.

Brown, hitting .336 for the San Francisco Giants through Thursday's games, will play behind starter Mike Schmidt of Philadelphia and make his All-Star debut.

Other reserves picked by Kansas City Manager Dick Howser for the AL team were Boston outfielder Jim Rice and catcher Rich Gedman; Baltimore Orioles first baseman Eddie Murray; Chicago White Sox outfielder Harold Baines; second baseman Frank White of the Royals; first baseman Don Mattingly of the New York Yankees; Oakland A's rookie outfielder Jose Canseco; Seattle Mariners third baseman Jim Presley; and three Toronto Blue Jays — outfielders Lloyd Moseby and Jesse Barfield and shortstop Tony Fernandez.

St. Louis Cardinals Manager Whitey Herzog picked catchers Tony Pena of Pittsburgh and Jody Davis of the Chicago Cubs; first baseman Glenn Davis of the Houston Astros; Los Angeles Dodgers second baseman Steve Sax; Hubie Brooks, the Montreal Expos' shortstop; and outfielders Kevin Bass of Houston, Chili Davis of San Francisco, Dave Parker of Cincinnati and Tim Lincecum of Montreal.

On Thursday, Howser selected eight pitchers, including 14-game winner Roger Clemens of Boston, who is expected to start on Tuesday. Howser also picked Charlie Hough of the Texas Rangers; Mike Witt of the California Angels; Ken Schrom of the Cleveland Indians; Ted Higuera of the Milwaukee Brewers; and three relievers — Baltimore's Don Aase, New York's Dave Righetti and Detroit's Willie Hernandez.

Herzog selected 10 pitchers, including Dwight Gooden and Sid Fernandez of the New York Mets. Gooden is expected to be the NL starter.

The other NL pitchers are Fernando Valenzuela of the Dodgers; Rick Rhoden of the Pirates; Philadelphia's Shane Rawley; Mike Scott and Dave Smith of Houston; John Franco of Cincinnati; San Francisco's Mike Krukow, and Jeff Reardon of Montreal.

Half of the AL's 28-man roster will be first-time All-Stars, while Brett, making his 11th appearance, and the Yankees' Dave Winfield, with his 10th, are the senior members of the squad. Boston and New York each have four players on the team.

The new AL All-Stars include two rookies, Canseco and first baseman Wally Joyner of California, who won the starting berth in balloting by fans. Also making their All-Star debuts are every pitcher except Hernandez; Minnesota outfielder Kirby Puckett; Barfield; Fernandez; Moseby and Presley.

Joyner, Brett, Puckett, second baseman Lou Whitaker of Detroit, Baltimore shortstop Cal Ripken, Tigers catcher Lance Parrish, and Yankees outfielders Winfield and Rickey Henderson are the AL starters.

Assisting Howser as coaches will be Cleveland Manager Pat Corrales and Red Sox skipper John McNamara.

For the National League, the Mets have five representatives, including three starters — outfielder Darryl Strawberry, who led the overall voting, catcher Gary Carter and first baseman Keith Hernandez. Also starting are Schmidt, St. Louis shortstop Ozzie Smith, Cubs second baseman Ryne Sandberg, and outfielders Tony Gwynn of the San Diego Padres and Dale Murphy of the Atlanta Braves.

Schmidt will be in his 10th All-Star contest, while Carter makes his ninth appearance. The 10 first-time All-Stars include Fernandez, Franco, Krukow, Rawley, Scott, Dave Smith, Brooks, Brown, Glenn Davis and Bass.

Mets Manager Davey Johnson and Dodgers skipper Tom Lasorda are the coaches.

Qualify 7 For State

Seven local golfers were among the qualifiers for the Insurance Golf Classic in regional qualifying held Thursday at Brook Valley Country Club.

The annual tournament locally qualified 21 youths for the state tournament, which will be held at Foxfire on July 26-27. The top two scorers from that 36-hole tournament will advance to the nationals, to be held August 7-12 at Springfield, Ohio.

Three age-group competitions were held in the qualifying tournament, but all competition on the state and national level will be open.

Joel Fickling of Greenville captured the 11-and-under age group with a 122 score.

Lee Watson of Greenville won the 12-14 age group with a 75, while Justin Hayes of Wilson finished second with a 79.

Glenn Nelson of Pinehurst was the 15-17 winner with a 72 while John Pinner of Greenville was second with a 74.

Others who qualified from Greenville include Teague Tripp and Rob Thomas from the 12-14 age group and David Lee and Greg Hallow in the 15-17 age group.

A total of 48 youths participated in the local tournament while just over 400 participated across the state in a total of seven regional events.

Snow Hill And Wilson Delayed

SNOW HILL — Snow Hill's American Legion baseball playoff game against Wilson was rained out Thursday night.

The game was the opener of a second round best-of-three series. They will play tonight in Wilson, with games two and three to be played in Snow Hill. Game two in Snow Hill will be played on Saturday. Game three, if needed, will be played Sunday.

US Women Hand Soviets First Cage Loss In Years

MOSCOW (AP) — "U-S-A, U-S-A." The chant echoed through the arena that was filled with American flags.

"U-S-A, U-S-A." A big international victory, a gold medal, and a chance to wave the red, white and blue.

It wasn't Los Angeles or Lake Placid in 1984. It was Moscow in 1986. It wasn't the Olympics, but the inaugural Goodwill Games.

In an arena on the banks of the Moscow River, the United States won the gold medal in women's basketball with an 83-60 victory over the Soviet Union — the first loss for the Soviets in a major tournament in 28 years.

And on a day when the 70-nation festival of peace and cooperation through sports turned into an Eastern-bloc affair on the medal stands, Thursday's lone triumph for the United States stood out even more.

"I can't believe we beat the Russians," Cheryl Miller, the top scorer for the United States with 18 points, said.

The game pitted two unbeaten teams for the title in what was the biggest East-West matchup thus far in the Goodwill Games, which are being promoted by American media magnate Ted Turner and the Soviet sports ministry as a way of filling the gap left by superpower boycotts of the last two Summer Olympics.

Crowds have been far from capacity at most events in Moscow, but for the United States vs. the Soviet Union, the Druzhba Hall was packed.

A large group of Americans was there, including some Seabees from the U.S. Embassy.

They cheered Miller and her teammates. They carried flags. They did a "wave" at halftime that would have made college football crowds proud.

And they kept repeating the chant. "U-S-A, U-S-A."

"The support of the American crowd was encouraging," said Anne Donovan, the 6-foot-8 American center who held 7-1 3/4 Liliiana Semenovova to four points without a rebound.

"Everywhere we go, we're the

EC Tickets Go On Sale

Ticket orders for the 1986 East Carolina University football season are now being accepted throughout eastern North Carolina.

The primary ticket outlet is the athletic ticket office on the campus of East Carolina University, but Pirate fans will again have the opportunity to purchase home game football tickets at various Wachovia Bank locations throughout the eastern area beginning July 15.

A total of 47 Wachovia branches in over 25 eastern cities will be involved in the Pirate ticket operations serving as outlets to purchase Pirate football tickets.

"We are very pleased to have Wachovia Bank work with us again this season," Dave Hart, associate athletic director, said. "The program has provided a solution to increasing distribution points for ticket sales and has offered a convenience to our fans. We look forward to continued success with the ticket outlet program this year."

The 1986 Pirate season will open on September 6 in Raleigh against N.C. State, while the team kicks off its home slate on September 13 hosting West Virginia.

Reserved seat tickets for the 1986 home games are $13 for West Virginia, Southwestern Louisiana, Georgia Southern, Southern Mississippi and Cincinnati. The Economy Plan will be in effect again. This allows a fan to purchase season tickets in units of five for half-price in selected areas of the stadium.

underdog," Donovan said. "They hate us. So we needed their support."

Kamie Ethridge, who scored four points for the United States and helped get the offense moving late in the first half, said the key to the victory was defense.

"The defense had to be strong," Ethridge, who played on the University of Texas' undefeated national championship team this year, said. "The Soviets have never seen defensive pressure like we had. It was a great game plan."

The plan for American victories did not extend to other sports Thursday.

Soviet athletes won eight gold medals to raise their nation's total to 43. The United States, with the basketball gold its only one on the seventh day of competition, have 31 gold medals and East Germany is third with six.

Soviet cyclists set a world record in the 4,000-meter team pursuit for the second straight day, winning a gold medal this time in four minutes, 12.31 seconds.

A Swiss cyclist, Barbara Janz, edged American Melinda Mayfield for the gold medal in the women's sprint.

Mark Gorski, the American gold medalist in the men's sprint at the Los Angeles Olympics, advanced to the semifinals when his Soviet opponent, Otar Mchedlishvili, defaulted with an injury. But the U.S. silver medalist in Los Angeles, Nelson Vails, was eliminated by East Germany's Mikhael Hubner.

In diving, the women's springboard gold medal went to East German Brita Baldus with 493.02 points. Tristan Baker of the United States was fourth with 476.64, while U.S. national champion Michele Mitchell finished seventh with 461.40.

Soviet athletes took gold medals in all four individual events of rhythmic gymnastics, with an East German sharing the gold with two Soviets in the rope event. The best American finish was an eighth place by Diane Simpson in the ribbon.

For a while it looked as if the trend would continue in basketball.

The Soviets held a 21-19 lead with 9:20 remaining in the first half. Then the Americans started 20-4 streak to take a 39-25 halftime lead, and the lead increased to 26 points twice in the second half.

Ethridge said the team wanted to take the Soviets out of their patterned offense and equalize the height advantage they had in the middle with Semenovova.

Tony Gwynn Discovers He Can Hit Long Ball

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

In his first 3½ seasons, Tony Gwynn tattooed National League pitchers for a .325 average — including a batting title in 1984 — and 559 hits, only 13 of which were home runs. Suddenly, he's hitting long balls as well as short balls.

The 26-year-old outfielder showed off his multi-talented bat Thursday with a double, an RBI single in the fifth inning that pulled San Diego within one run and his ninth home run in the eighth, tying the score 3-3. Kevin McReynolds followed Gwynn's homer with one of his own and the Padres beat the St. Louis Cardinals 4-3.

"I can't pinpoint why I have nine home runs," said the lefty-hitting Gwynn, whose previous single-season high was six. "For me, it's unbelievable. I've never hit this many since college. And five of them are off left-handers. It's been a strange season. I'm hitting close to .380 against lefties."

Thursday's victim was left-hander John Tudor, 6-5, who hasn't won since June 7. The three hits lifted Gwynn into the NL batting lead with a .340 mark.

In other NL games, Houston trounced Philadelphia 11-4 for Mark Knudson's first major-league victory and remained tied with San Francisco, a 6-3 winner over Pittsburgh, atop the West Division. Elsewhere, New York downed Atlanta 5-1, Montreal outlasted Cincinnati 8-6 and Los Angeles whipped Chicago 11-4.

While Gwynn has been on a hot streak, it was the first home run for McReynolds since June 14.

"This is the one hard ball that I've hit in the last two weeks," said McReynolds, who has 13 home runs. "I've been getting hits but it seems like they've mostly been chink singles."

The setback kept the defending NL champion Cardinals at the bottom of the East Division.

"When we take a one-run lead into the eighth inning, we should win the game," Tudor said. "But I'm human. I've given up three home runs in a game before (San Diego's Bruce Bochy homered in the second inning). I've got to keep throwing strikes in that situation, but I've got to limit where they are."

Astros 11, Phillies 4

Knudson, 1-3, overcame a rocky start as Houston ripped Philadelphia. He gave up two runs in the first inning but then retired 16 batters in a row before he gave up two consecutive singles in the seventh and was relieved. Knudson had plenty of support from Glenn Davis, who drove in four runs, and Denny Walling was 4-for-4, including a pair of doubles.

After falling behind 2-0, the Astros took the lead for good with three runs off Charles Hudson, 4-9, in the bottom of the first when Walling hit an RBI single and Davis and Kevin Bass delivered sacrifice flies. They added a pair of runs in the third inning on a two-run single by Jose Cruz and scored another in the fourth on an RBI single by Craig Reynolds.

The Astros got three more runs in the fifth, and Davis singled home two more in the eighth.

"I was starting to wonder if that first win was going to come," Knudson said. "Now that I've got it, I feel like I've got a 300-pound weight off my back."

Giants 6, Pirates 3

Bob Brenly's three-run homer and rookie Randy Kutcher's solo shot highlighted a five-run fifth inning as San Francisco beat visiting Pittsburgh. Kutcher also doubled and scored in the third and his homer was his fifth in just 87 at-bats. Winning pitcher Vida Blue, 6-4, allowed one run and six hits in five innings.

Mike Brown's homer gave the Pirates a 1-0 lead in the second inning. The Giants tied it against Bob Walk, 4-5, in the third on Kutcher's double and a single by Rob Thompson. Kutcher's homer put the Giants ahead 2-1 in the fifth and Thompson followed with a double and scored on Jeffrey Leonard's single. After a walk to Mike Aldrete, Brenly's homer put the Giants ahead 6-1.

Mets 5, Braves 1

George Foster hit a three-run double and Gary Carter homered, backing the seven-hit pitching of Bob Ojeda as the Mets ended a three-game losing streak, which matched their longest of the season, by beating Atlanta. Ojeda, 10-2, won his fourth straight decision, allowing only an unearned run. Only two batters gave him any trouble — Terry Harper was 4-for-4, Dale Murphy 3-for-3.

Carter hit his 14th home run leading off the second inning against Zane Smith, 7-10. The Mets made it 2-0 in the third on an RBI single by Mookie Wilson and broke the game open in the fifth on Foster's bases-loaded double.

Expos 8, Reds 6

Vance Law's two-run triple highlighted a six-run fourth inning, all with two out, as Montreal outlasted Cincinnati. Winner Bryn Smith gave up four runs in seven innings and Jeff Reardon put down a Cincinnati rally in the ninth for his 20th save as the Expos snapped visiting Cincinnati's three-game winning streak.

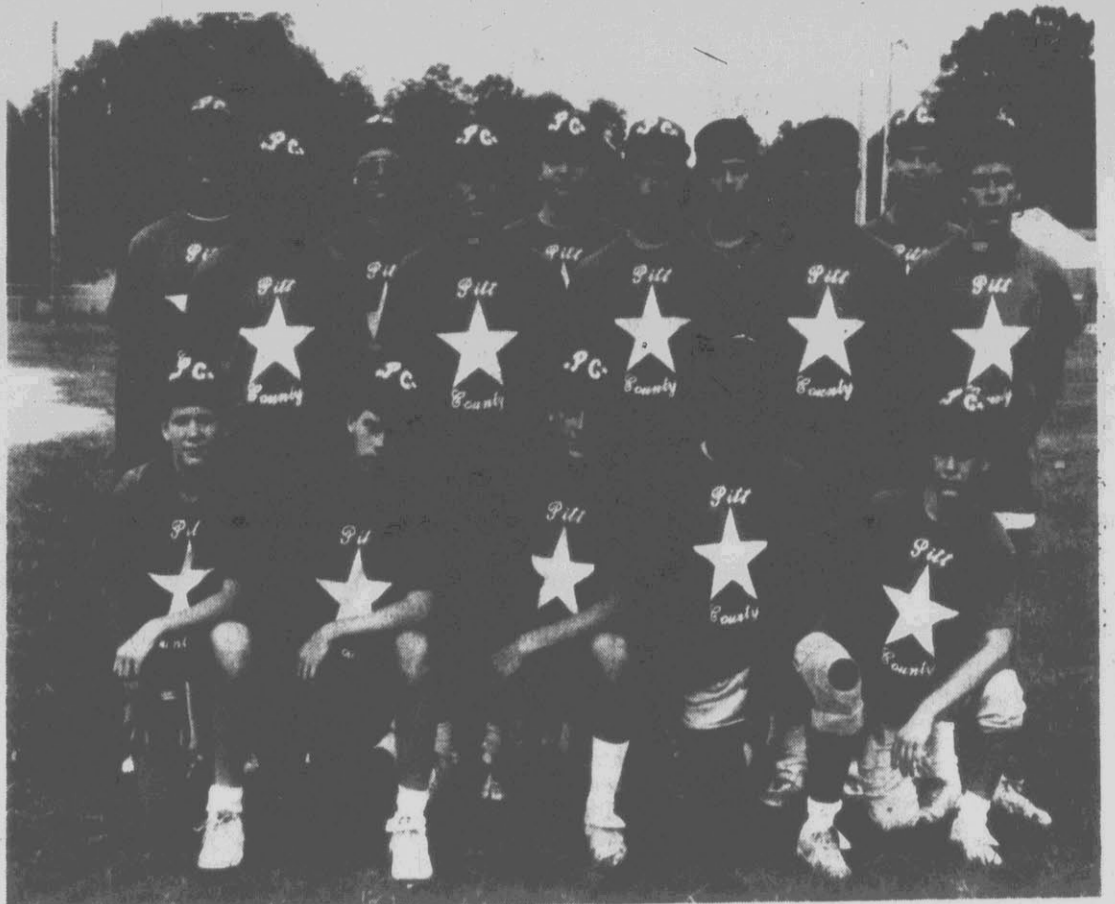

With the score tied 2-2 and two out in the fourth, loser Chris Welsh, 3-3 walked the eighth- and ninth-place hitters, Al Newman and Smith. Tim Raines' single scored Newman and Law's triple made it 5-2. Law then scored on a wild pitch, Andre Dawson singled, chasing Welsh, and Scott Terry walked Brooks. The runners executed a double steal and scored on Tim Wallach's single. Eric Davis hit a two-run homer in the Cincinnati fifth and Parker singled two runs across in the ninth.

Dodgers 11, Cubs 4

Ken Landreaux's two-run double keyed a five-run first inning and Reggie Williams collected three hits as Los Angeles overpowered Chicago.

The Dodgers knocked out rookie Jamie Moyer, 1-2, while equaling their most productive inning of the season. Landreaux extended his hitting streak to six games with his two-run double and scored on Williams' single. Mariano Duncan's sacrifice fly made it 4-0 before Herschiser greeted reliever Dave Gumpert with an infield hit that scored Williams from second.

Gary Matthews homered for the Cubs in the seventh, Chicago's ninth straight bases-empty homer. Orel Herschiser, 8-6, pitched into the seventh to get the win.

Pitt County All-Stars

The Pitt County Babe Ruth League All-Stars will open district play tonight at 5:30 p.m. at Charles B. Aycock High School against Nash County. Members of the team are, first row, left to right: Paul Jackson, Gray Mills, Robbie Nichols, Darrell Moye, Kelvin Huber; second row, Randy House, Brian Bullock, Scott Chauncey, Johnny Sherrod, George Burnette; third row, Ronell Peterson, Mark Smith, Jim Faulkner, Gene Stencil and Brent Elks. The team is managed by Wilson Wade of Farmville and coached by Hudson Miller of Winterville First Citizens and Phillip Reel of Farmville.

Wachovia Bank Moves Into Babe Ruth Finals

It was a case of too much Wachovia Bank followed by too much rain for Pepsi-Cola Thursday night in the Babe Ruth League's post-season baseball tournament.

The game was halted by rain in the fourth inning — the second suspension of the contest in two nights — with Wachovia up, 12-0. When it became evident that the rain was going to halt the game, Pepsi decided to concede the game and move the tournament onward.

Tonight, at 5 p.m., Pepsi will meet Coca-Cola in the finals of the losers' bracket in the tournament. The winner will then meet Wachovia for the championship. Should Wachovia lose the 7 p.m. game, a third game would then be held on Saturday to decide the title. That game would be held at 2 p.m.

Wachovia got all it would need in the first inning, scoring five times. Derrick Hines walked and stole second. Then, with two away, Wes Jackson and Andy Miller both walked to load the bases. Craig Willoughby walked to force in Hines and Malcolm Wilson doubled, scoring the three runners on base. Darron Bullock singled in Wilson with the fifth run.

Wachovia added five more in the second and scored two in the top of the fourth before the game was halted.

Pepsi, in three trips to the plate, failed to get a hit off Tim Moore.

Wilson had three hits to lead the Wachovia effort.

Holland Asks Polynice Quit

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — The head coach of the University of Virginia basketball team wants his leading scorer to give up his basketball scholarship and leave the team.

Terry Holland recommended the action Thursday after Olden Polynice, a 6-11 center, entered a no contest plea to a shoplifting charge.

"It is my strong belief that Olden should divorce himself completely from the athletic department for the upcoming school year," Holland said. "He should face his situation without the complicating matter of being viewed as an athlete."

Holland said he wrote Polynice and his parents June 25 that Polynice should give up his scholarship.

He said he would do everything possible on a personal level to help Polynice obtain his degree.

Following the athlete's plea, General District Judge Paul M. Peatross Jr. sentenced Polynice to 30 days in jail and suspended the sentence. Polynice allegedly took a set of stereo headphones, valued at about $17, from a Charlottesville department store April 30.

By entering a no contest plea, Polynice agreed that city prosecutors could present enough evidence to find him guilty.

Defense lawyer John C. Lowe told Peatross he could have offered some mitigating circumstances in Polynice's defense, but said, "Mr. Polynice has instructed me to do nothing."

"He wants to be treated like anyone else," Lowe said.

Assistant city prosecutor Downing Smith said the sentence is typical for first-offense shoplifting. Polynice was ordered to remain on good behavior for two years, and he paid $35 in court costs after the two-minute hearing.

A day after the charge was filed,

White Is Low Scorer

WILSON — Harriette White of the Greenville Country Club took top honors in the monthly tournament of the Eastern North Carolina Ladies Golf Association at Willow Spring Country Club Thursday.

White won the championship flight's low gross event.

Other area winners included: 1st flight, Missy Decker of Brook Valley, low net; 2nd flight, Ginny Hill of Brook Valley, low putts; 3rd flight, Jan Kanetzke of Brook Valley, second low gross; Miriam Martin of Brook Valley, low net; Vertie King of Greenville, second low net; 4th flight, Janice Vincent of Brook Valley, second low net, and Betty Lou Howard of Greenville, low putts.

The next tournament for the ENCLGA will be held at Wilson Country Club on August 14.

Polynice announced he would bypass his senior year at the university and declare himself eligible for the National Basketball Association draft. Polynice led the Cavaliers in scoring this past season.

Several days later, Polynice changed his mind, saying he wanted to earn his degree. He was suspended from the team and may petition for reinstatement at the end of the first semester.

Boyd Furious Over Omission

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Red Sox Pitcher Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd shouted curses and threw clothes around the clubhouse before storming out of Fenway Park after learning he had not been picked for the American League All-Star team.

Boyd's tirade and departure came before the Red Sox' game with the California Angels Thursday night.

"I tried to talk to him. He was not under control. I couldn't calm him down," said Boston Manager John McNamara.

"He didn't want anything to do with anybody. I'm very disappointed with the way he reacted and the fact he left the clubhouse."

McNamara said he would talk with General Manager Lou Gorman before deciding what action would be taken against Boyd.

It was the second straight year Boyd was passed over for the All-Star game. The righthander has an 11-6 record with a 3.71 earned-run average this season, and is tied for second in the American League in victories with Baltimore's Mike Boddicker, who also was overlooked.

Kansas City Manager Dick Howser, who picked the AL pitchers for next Tuesday's All-Star game in Houston, named another Boston right-hander, Roger Clemens, 14-2, as the starting pitcher.

Last year, Boyd was 11-7 at the All-Star break but was not chosen for the team by Detroit Manager Sparky Anderson.

Two reporters broke the news to Boyd in the Red Sox dugout before Thursday night's game, and he appeared to take it calmly at first.

"If I don't make it, I don't make it," The Boston Herald quoted him as saying. "I don't have no comments. I got nothing to say about it."

He blew up soon afterward in the clubhouse, which then was ordered cleared for what the Red Sox called a team meeting.

"I understand why he's upset about not making the All-Star team. But I'm very disappointed in his outburst, in his behavior," McNamara said.

On Wednesday, Boyd had said he would understand if he were not chosen for the All-Star team and would concentrate on winning 20 games this season, according to The Boston Globe.

Howser reportedly did not pick Boyd because Boyd is scheduled to pitch for the Red Sox on Sunday.

Boston pitcher Al Nipper said that was "a cop-out. An All-Star is an All-Star, and that shouldn't have anything to do with it."

But Boston's Don Baylor, who said he was passed over in 1978 although he had 20 home runs by the All-Star break, said, "This is a team game, not just a game for one player."

"It takes 24 players to make a team. And it doesn't matter if it's Roger Clemens or Oil Can Boyd, no one player is bigger than the team."

Red Sox pitcher Bob Stanley said, "Oil Can's upset, but he's just got to calm down. We're leading the American League East, and that's the way he should look at it," he told the Herald.

"People don't judge you by a half-season," said Baylor. "They judge you by what you and your team have accomplished over an entire year."

The Globe said Boyd still has a chance to make the All-Star team because Detroit's Willie Hernandez, one of the chosen pitchers, has a possible injured rotator cuff and will not be able to play.

Under All-Star rules, every club must have a representative on the All-Star team, and the Globe said at least two pitchers chosen for the American League team — Charlie Hough of Texas and Ken Schrom of Cleveland — may have been picked because others on their clubs were unlikely to be picked.

Boyd was fined a day's pay last year, about $1,600, for failing to show up for a game 24 hours after a shouting and shoving match with teammate Jim Rice.

With a bigger salary this year, he was fined another day's pay, about $2,150, on April 5 for reporting late for Boston's final exhibition game in Florida.

Gooden, Clemens Lead All-Star Mound Picks

NEW YORK (AP) — Whitey Herzog went for depth and Dick Howser wasn't bothered by inexperience when they chose the pitching staffs for next Tuesday's All-Star Game in Houston.

Herzog, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals and the National League team, picked 10 pitchers, two more than the usual complement. Howser, who manages the World Series champion Kansas City Royals, chose eight, with only Detroit Tigers reliever Willie Hernandez having previous All-Star Game experience.

Roger Clemens of the Boston Red Sox and Dwight Gooden of the New York Mets are expected to start the game as the National League tries to continue its recent dominance; the NL has won 13 of the last 14 contests. Clemens won his first 14 decisions this season, then lost the last two. Gooden is 10-4 with a 2.77 earned run average.

"Anytime you are picked it is great," Gooden said. "Being picked three years in a row is great."

Joining Gooden on the NL squad are fellow Met Sid Fernandez (11-2, 2.89 ERA through Thursday's games); Mike Scott (9-5, 2.22, major-league high 158 strikeouts) and Dave Smith (16 saves) of Houston; John Franco (13 saves) of Cincinnati; Mike Krukow (10-5) of San Francisco; Shane Rawley (11-4, 2.77) of Philadelphia; Jeff Reardon (6-4, 20 saves) of Montreal; Rick Rhoden (9-4, 2.34) of Pittsburgh; and Fernando Valenzuela (11-6) of Los Angeles.

The other AL pitchers will be Don Aase of Baltimore, Mike Witt of California, Ken Schrom of Cleveland, Hernandez, 'ed Higuera of Milwaukee, Dave Righetti of New York and Charlie Hough of Texas.

Through Thursday, Higuera was 10-7, Hough 8-4, Schrom 10-2 and Witt 9-6 among the starting pitchers. Aase was 3-3 with a major-league high 22 saves, while fellow relievers Righetti and Hernandez had 19 and 18 saves each.

While Hernandez is the lone AL pitcher with an All-Star appearance, Valenzuela will be making his sixth trip to the All-Star Game and Gooden his third. Six NL pitchers will debut in All-Star competition — Fernandez, Franco, Krkow, Rawley, Scott and Smith.

For Fernandez, it is a special hour after he began last season in the minor leagues and because he said he thought teammates Ron Darling, Bob Ojeda and Roger McDowell deserved to be picked, too.

"Last year I looked ahead and started to think about too many things," Fernandez said. "This year, I am taking things day-by-day. Last year, I wouldn't follow anybody's advice. Now I listen to people. I think that got me straightened out."

"Last year, I started out in Tidewater. Whatever was wrong with me couldn't have been too much because it only took five minutes to straighten me out. It was probably all in my head."

Krukow has been the star of a revived pitching staff under Manager Roger Craig in San Francisco.

"I'm especially proud to be representing this San Francisco Giants team," he said, "because without all the other guys playing the way they have been, I wouldn't be where I am. I'm looking forward to going, and I hope I get a couple of innings in."

Higuera said he never even thought about being an All-Star.

"My goal has always been to be on a big league team," the left-hander from Mexico said. "But being named to the all-star team, that's entirely different ... magnifico. I feel good. I feel very happy."

Higuera said he hoped to oppose fellow Mexican Valenzuela, the biggest sporting hero in their native country.

"I'm excited about maybe pitching against Valenzuela. I've never seen him in the U.S., only Mexico."

In their only meeting in Mexico, Valenzuela won 3-1.

"He means a lot to this ballclub," Milwaukee pitcher Bob Gibson said of Higuera. "He means as much to this ballclub as Fernando Valenzuela does to the Dodgers."

Hough, 38, made the All-Star team for the first time despite beginning the year on the disabled list with a broken finger.

"It was a strange beginning of the year for me, sitting," he said. "I got that straightened out and the hand works now. The first few games were rugged, but since then it's been good."

"I never have started to think about it (making All-Star team), that's for sure. Sometimes you're just in a position where they have other guys, and it doesn't mean you're not good."

One player who won't be in Houston and is steaming about it is Boston's Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd. Boyd became enraged and stormed from the clubhouse Thursday night after learning he had not been picked by Howser.

Told by a sports writer that Howser had bypassed him, Boyd began shouting and throwing clothes around as he took off his uniform before a game with the Angels. The clubhouse was ordered cleared for what the Red Sox called "a team meeting."

Boyd, 11-6 with a 3.71 ERA, then left the ball park.

He also expressed bitter disappointment at being passed over for the All-Star Game last year by Detroit Manager Sparky Anderson despite an 11-7 record.

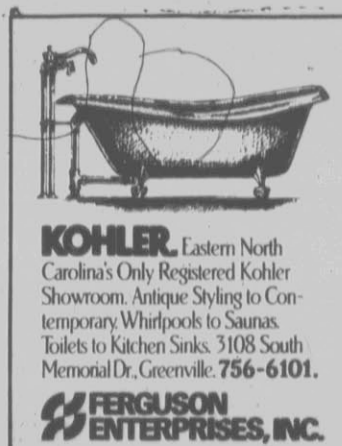

After beating Floyd Patterson for the heavyweight title in 1959, Ingemar Johansson was, in turn, stopped twice by Patterson in 1960 and 1961 rematches.

Wilt Passes On Nets' Offer

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

The offer was a compliment if nothing else. With seven games left in the National Basketball Association season, the New Jersey Nets contacted Wilt Chamberlain's agent and diplomatically inquired as to whether the big fellow might be interested in playing a little basketball.

The fee would be sizeable — $362,500, half of the salary the Nets were not paying Micheal Ray Richardson, who was under suspension for drug problems. For seven games and the playoffs. Not bad.

Understand, this is the same Wilt Chamberlain who will celebrate his 50th birthday next month, the one who scored 31,419 points in 14 NBA seasons, who averaged more than 50 points per game 25 years ago and scored 100 points in one game the year after that. The one who had been retired for 13 years.

That Wilt Chamberlain. Now really. Be realistic.

"It is realistic," Chamberlain said. "I work out with pro athletes all the time. I know what my body can do and what I can do."

Then, 7-foot-2 Wilt Chamberlain looked down, his sleek body encased in stretch leotards as he prepared for a volleyball clinic at the Mobil Big Apple Games. "I work out every day," he said. "Sometimes I swim, sometimes I run. I do aerobics, calisthenics. I lift weights three or four times a week. I play volleyball and racquetball. I'm 25-30 pounds lighter now than when I played."

He glared ever so slightly. "What do you think? Do you think I could do it?"

At that particular moment, he looked like he could do any old thing he wanted to.

So how about it, Wilt. Why didn't you take the Nets' money?

"I did not consider it at all," Chamberlain said evenly. "It sounded like a ploy, a joke to ask a guy in the last part of the season without any consideration to the effect on the team."

"It was not a fair proposal. They didn't ask what kind of shape I was in, whether I had a cold or a toothache. I respect pro basketball players too much to think I could go out and be competitive with them after they've been playing all season, doing what they do better than anybody else in the world."

"You don't take a guy and throw him out there with nine others, four on his team, five playing against him, and expect anything like you used to get."

But given the proper circumstances ...

"It's an honor that someone thinks you're capable of doing it," he said. "I stopped playing because I was no longer mentally capable of going out there every day. I don't want to play. I'm quite happy doing what I am doing."

Chamberlain operates his own film and video production company in Los Angeles. He produces and writes and has acted, most notably in the Conan the Barbarian films. In the next few weeks he hopes to embark on a project that will take him to Africa with comedian Dom DeLuise.

Chamberlain watches NBA games with understandable interest and says he sees nothing that he has not seen before, including the flowering of new giants like Ralph Sampson in Houston.

"The big guy dribbles the ball behind his back and people say, 'Wow, a 7-4 guy dribbling behind his back.'" Chamberlain said of Sampson. "It's been done before. I did it."

And what was the reaction when he did?

"I got kicked in the (butt) by my coaches and my teammates," he said.

Even at 50, the competitive fire still burns bright in Chamberlain and he toys with trying out for the U.S. Olympic volleyball team. How about the NBA, then?

"If I wanted to play," he said, "I'd go out and make a concerted effort."

And?

"And, I'd play."

Stills, Mudd Tie For Busch Lead

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — Adrian Stills has been playing golf for 17 years, and now that he has a share of the lead in the Anheuser-Busch Golf Classic, he has only one regret.

"I just wish my dad was here to see it," Stills said Thursday after his 6-under-par 65 tied him with Jodie Mudd for the lead after the first round in the $500,000 tournament.

Stills' father introduced him to golf when he was an 11-year-old in Pensacola, Fla. After Stills decided to turn professional, it took him five attempts to make it through qualifying school, which he did in November. It was around that time that his father died.

"It kind of inspired me to keep going and to do well out here," Stills said. "I'm sure he's looking down on me."

Going into today's second round on the 6,776-yard Kingsmill Golf Club course, Stills and Mudd held a one-shot lead over Jeff Sluman and Tony DeLuca. In all, 78 of the 156 golfers shot par or better despite Thursday's hot, humid conditions.

The group of nine players at 67 included defending Anheuser-Busch champion Mark Wiebe and John Mahaffey, a winner here in 1981 and the man Wiebe defeated in a playoff for last year's title.

Also at 4-under were Steve Pate, Gene Sauers, Dick Mast, Donnie Hammond, Don Pooley, Tim Simpson and Davis Love III.

Rod Curl, David Frost, Vance Headner, Scott Hoch and Scott Simpson were another stroke back at 68.

Fourteen players posted 69s, and a group of 25 golfers at 70 included Curtis Strange, who lives at Kingsmill and has yet to win the tournament held on the course where he serves as host pro.

Mudd, a five-year tour veteran who is looking for his first win, put together a bogey-free round that included birdies on four of his first seven holes.

"Things went well for me today," said Mudd, who finished in a second-place tie at this year's Honda Classic and is 43rd on the season earnings list. "I started to putt the ball well last week at Hartford and it just seemed to carry over here."

Stills, who missed the cut in eight of his 12 previous starts and has 1986 winnings of $4,818, finished the par-36 front nine in 33, then recorded three more birdies on the back side and just missed a fourth when his 60-foot putt on the par-4 8th rimmed the cup.

"I'm very excited," he said. "I'm excited to be here in Williamsburg, and I'm very excited just to be on the PGA Tour this year."

Stills' best finish on the main tour was a tie for 59th in the Canadian Open, although he finished 35th in the Deposit Guaranty, a satellite event held in Hattiesburg, Miss., during the week of the Masters.

Stills, at 28 the youngest black golfer on the tour, knows his work is cut out for him.

"The biggest thing for me to do this week," he said, "is to keep this thing between my ears here, to keep it from going blank."

To do that, Stills has a plan.

"I'm going to try to keep this as low-key as possible," he said. "I'm smiling right now, but I have a lot of work and a lot of golf left. I just hope I'm smiling like this on Sunday."

Long, Gregg Only Teammates Not Called

UPPER MARLBORO, Md. (AP) — When grand jury testimony in the cocaine-induced death of University of Maryland basketball standout Len Bias begins July 21, all but two of Bias' teammates will have been called to testify, a state prosecutor says.

Arthur A. Marshall Jr., the Prince George's County state's attorney, told WUSA-TV in Washington on Thursday that those excluded from the list of witnesses were Terry Long and David Gregg, who were with Bias in his dormitory room when he collapsed June 19. A third man, Bias' friend Brian Tribble, also will not be compelled to testify, Marshall said.

"We believe that all three of them, at least at that time, are involved — at the minimum — in the use of drugs," Marshall said.

Under Maryland law, Long and Gregg would be granted immunity from prosecution automatically if they were called before the grand jury.

Marshall said his principal concern is pinpointing the source of the drugs and how they got into the university and Bias' room in particular.

Marshall said the investigation also will examine whether Maryland basketball coach Lefty Driesell or his assistants knew of any drug use among the players. Marshall said he wants to know about a prayer meeting held at Driesell's home after Bias collapsed.

Driesell previously said he called players in to console them and help them handle the shock of Bias' death.

"He (Driesell) is the coach of the basketball team, and with the benefits, I think he also has to be somewhat responsible for his acts of his players," Marshall said.

In all, more than 70 witnesses have been subpoenaed.

Although the cause of Bias' death has been attributed to cocaine intoxication, there remains some question as to how Bias ingested the amount of unusually pure cocaine that stopped his heart.

On Wednesday, Dr. Dennis Smyth, an assistant Maryland medical examiner who performed the autopsy, said redness in Bias' windpipe and high levels of cocaine in blood samples indicated Bias likely free-based the cocaine. Free-basing is a way of smoking the concentrated vapors for a quicker, more powerful high than snorting cocaine powder through the nose.

Earlier, Maryland Chief Medical Examiner Dr. John E. Smialek said medical evidence suggested Bias had snorted the drug.

Marshall made clear that whether Bias smoked or snorted cocaine is of no importance to a grand jury is investigating the circumstances surrounding Bias' death.

However, he said Smialek had telephoned him Thursday to "clear up" Smyth's statements.

"I saw nothing there in the report itself that reflected how (Bias) may have taken the cocaine," Marshall said. "(Smialek) confirms my belief that there is nothing in the report to suggest that Bias may have free-based."

Benz' Problems Give Daniel Lead

KETTERING, Ohio (AP) — A recurring nightmare for Amy Benz helped provide Beth Daniel with the lead in the storm-delayed and uncompleted first round of the 41st Women's U.S. Open Golf Championship.

"I wasn't planning to do it again. And I'm not going to do it the rest of my life. Someday I'm going to make par on the last hole," Benz said Thursday of what she hasn't been able to do for the last three rounds.

Benz, who blew a five-shot lead last week in Houston where she couldn't get past the finishing holes, held the top spot in the American national championship before finishing bogey-par-bogey and dropping one stroke behind Daniel.

"It's a nightmare," said Benz, who, despite her problems was one of only four players able to break par 72.

Daniel led the pack with a 70, which was preserved with a scrambling par on the final hole at the 6,243-yard NCR Country Club course.

Silvia Bertolaccini and amateur Michele Redman were tied with Benz for second at 71. Bertolaccini birdied all four par-3 holes Thursday, the first time in her career she managed that feat.

Redman, a 21-year-old Indiana University student, holed a 105-yard 9-iron shot for an eagle-3 and matched her career-best score.

Playing with Pat Bradley, Daniel finished just moments before a severe thunderstorm lashed the course and caused a one-hour, 23-minute delay. Nine players — none of whom appeared to have a shot at the leaders — were stranded on the course by darkness. They were to return this morning to complete first-round play.

While Bradley was able to beat the storm into the clubhouse, it was about the only positive thing that happened to her.

Bradley, the winner of the Dinah Shore and LPGA earlier this season and needing a victory here to keep alive her hopes of a one-year sweep of the ladies' Big Four tournaments, did not make a birdie in a round of 76 that left her six shots off the lead.

"Nothing clicked," Bradley, the first woman to surpass the $2 million mark in career earnings, said. "I just came up empty. It wasn't anything drastic. The birdies didn't come."

"I wish it could have been better, but it's one of those things. I don't want to dwell on it. I don't want to get too disappointed. I don't think my chances are over," she said.

Former Open winner Jan Stephenson was in a group at 72 along with Betsy King, Judy Dickinson, Martha Nause, Sherri Turner, Jody Rosenthal, Jerilyn Britz and Tammie Green.

Hollis Stacy, a three-time winner of this title, was at 73.

Daniel used her driver only twice — and both times got in trouble. A drive into the rough set up a bogey on the first hole, and another drive into the rough forced her to one-putt for a par that saved her lead on the 18th.

But she also dropped a 40-foot birdie putt on the fourth hole, went one under with a 20-footer on the 11th and two-putted for birdie-4 on the 12th.

Qawi And Hollyfield Both Predicting Wins

ATLANTA (AP) — Champion Dwight Muhammad Qawi is predicting an early knockout while challenger Evander Holyfield is just as confident of victory in Saturday's World Boxing Association junior heavyweight championship fight at the Omni in Atlanta.

Both fighters made their predictions Thursday at a news conference for the nationally-televised fight that is scheduled for 15 rounds and a 5 p.m. EDT start.

"You know, they're hoping it will go the distance," said the confident 33-year-old Qawi, a two-time light-heavyweight champion. "I'm predicting he'll go in an early round. Somewhere between Rounds 1 and 6 he's got to fall."

Holyfield, the 23-year-old Atlanta native who won a bronze medal in the 1984 Summer Olympics, said "I'm not making a prediction that I'll knock him out, but I can predict this: I'll win. Whether it takes one or 15 rounds, I'll take him."

Holyfield, unbeaten in 11 fights, with eight knockouts, since turning professional 15 months ago, does not feel that he lacks experience against Qawi, who began his boxing career eight years ago as Dwight Braxton and has a 26-2-1 record with 15 knockouts.

"I began fighting when I was 5, fought as an amateur for 12 years and fought some tough opponents in the Olympics," said the soft-spoken

Holyfield, who at 6-foot-1, will hold a decided edge in height over Qawi, who stands 5-6 1/2.

But Qawi believes his disadvantage in height is an advantage in the ring.

"Just look at my record. You don't think I fought anybody shorter than me do you?" he said.

Qawi also said he may not knock Holyfield out as early as planned.

"I might let him go a few extra rounds just to punish him," Qawi said.

About 3,500 tickets have been sold for the fight and promoter Jim Abernethy said Thursday he expected a crowd in excess of 10,000.

The official weigh-in was scheduled for 6 p.m. today.

Jets' Owner Hess Disputes Testimony Given By USFL

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Jets owner Leon Hess denies that he ever was part of a conspiracy to keep another football team out of New York.

Testifying Thursday at the USFL's $1.69 billion antitrust suit against the NFL, Hess disputed earlier testimony of Los Angeles Raiders owner Al Davis.

"I did not say it and it's not true," Hess said about Davis' remarks that the NFL didn't want another team in the New York area, which has been called the "New York Conspiracy" by the younger league's attorneys.

In its suit, the USFL alleges that the NFL conspired to keep New York without another team, tried to boost up player salaries and keep the newer league off television.

Davis testified earlier in the trial and told of conversations during the October, 1983 NFL winter meetings in which Hess complained of poor conditions at Shea Stadium in Queens and wanted to move to the Meadowlands in East Rutherford, N.J., where the Jets eventually wound up for the 1984 season. Davis recalled telling Hess that would leave New York open for another team, but Hess allegedly assured him that would not happen.

Hess acknowledged reading transcripts of Davis' testimony, and, turning to U.S. District Judge Peter K. Leisure, said, "Your honor, there is much in that testimony that is not true."

In his testimony Thursday, Hess explained why he moved the Jets to New Jersey and the problems in getting a new stadium built in New York.

The USFL contends that the NFL conspired to keep the younger league out of New York by having Hess take preliminary steps to return to the city, then ultimately deciding to stay in the New Jersey.

The defense introduced press releases and letters sent to Hess from the Willets Point Business Association, a Queens group which had opposed the building of a new stadium in its area.

One letter, dated Jan. 31, 1986, said in part, "If we are successful in our delaying tactics, this stadium won't be ready until the year 2000."

The group also mentioned a lawsuit against stopping any construction. The suit has since been dismissed.

Hess, who serves as a board member of ABC and has been the board chairman of the NFL's Jets, also denied that he had any conflict of interest in his two roles.

Hess explained he had abstained from voting on network contracts with the NFL and said he didn't believe he attended the March 22, 1982 meeting when the television network approved a $2.1 billion contract with the older league. Hess also said that in matters regarding NFL contracts, he would always abstain from voting.

Hess told NFL attorney Robert Fiske that at a June 1982 meeting he did vote on ABC's contract with the USFL and "I heartily voted in favor of it."

Myerson pressed Hess on the conflict-of-interest issue, but Hess said his role with the network amounted to only a few hours a month.

Hess also denied that the takeover of Monmouth Park, a racetrack in Oceanport, N.J. by the New Jersey Sports Exposition Authority was tied to the move to New Jersey. Hess had been a 30 percent owner of the track, which has not been a profit-maker.

The trial is in recess until Monday.

Pentagon Boxing Ban To Limit U.S. Team

MOSCOW (AP) — The Pentagon decision to bar nine American boxers from competing in the Goodwill Games is going to hurt the team, coach Roosevelt Sanders said today.

The boxers, all military personnel, were denied permission last week, shortly before they were scheduled to leave for this multiple sports event. The Pentagon made the decision because the Goodwill Games are a commercial event, for which soldiers are not eligible.

"With the army boxers, we had some real good guys," Sanders told the Associated Press. "Without them, it is going to show badly on our final result."

The Turner Broadcasting System is helping to sponsor the event, with financial support from major corporations.

American track and field athletes received $3,000 each for competing in the games and winners got an additional $1,000. "President Reagan supported the ban, saying that because of the commercialism of the games, the military should not be participating."

"Those that were barred were really disappointed with the (Pentagon) decision because they had been training hard for two weeks," said Sanders, who has worked with such boxers as former heavyweight champion Leon Spinks and Roger Stafford.

"Eight army boxers plus a marine boxer, an Army coach and a civilian employee of the Navy, who was to serve as team manager, were kept home by the Pentagon."

"When Uncle Sam says something, you have to obey. Those boxers who stayed home are soldiers first," Bent said, adding that the decision might give "additional steam" to the boxers who will fight in Moscow.

"They felt sad because they trained so much, but that gives us additional steam to bring back golds for them," said Michael Moorer, a middleweight from Monessen, Pa.

Race Set In Australia

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Several NASCAR racing teams will be heading for Australia next January for a race with a record $400,000 winner's purse at a new Melbourne superspeedway.

The track, under construction for the past two years, is expected to be completed by October, said track owner Bob Jane. He said the Australian race will not be part of NASCAR's official Winston Cup tour.

"This whole deal is for real," says Dick Hutcherson, one of the NASCAR tour's major car builders. "At least 15 Winston Cup teams will be invited over for the race. I'd say Darrell Waltrip will be one of the men going, and you know they'll need Richard Petty."

Jane said the date for the proposed 500-mile, $1 million event, has not been set. Jane said the track is virtually a copy of the Charlotte Motor Speedway.

Heavyweight Michael Bent of Cambria Heights, N.Y., said that his teammates, who had to stay in the U.S., were upset by the Pentagon decision.

"When Uncle Sam says something, you have to obey. Those boxers who stayed home are soldiers first," Bent said, adding that the decision might give "additional steam" to the boxers who will fight in Moscow.

Court Says Achille Lauro Hijacking Designed To Sap Arafat's Power

GENOA, Italy (AP) — The Achille Lauro hijacking was staged for "egotistical" reasons and stemmed in part from differences between Palestinian guerrilla leader Mohammed Abbas and PLO chief Yasser Arafat, the court concluded.

Judge Lino Monteverde, who was part of the eight-member jury, told reporters after announcing the verdict Thursday that the court believed Abbas and two military officials of his Palestine Liberation Front staged the Oct. 7-9 piracy to "weaken Arafat's leadership."

Palestine Liberation Organization spokesman Ahmed Abdel Rahman, speaking in Tunis, Tunisia today said, "The verdict proves the PLO was not involved since Abbas is a declared enemy of the PLO's leadership."

Abbas, also known as Abul Abbas, and five followers were convicted of the hijacking and the slaying of 69-year-old Leon Klinghoffer of New York, a passenger aboard the Italian liner.

Abbas and two military military officials of his Palestine Liberation Front — Ozzudin Badrakkam and Ziad el Omar — were given life sentences.

The hijacker accused of actually killing Klinghoffer, Youssef Magied al-Molqi, was given a lesser sentence of 30 years in prison.

Five defendants were convicted of lesser charges in the hijacking, and four others, all tried in absentia, were acquitted.

In all, 10 defendants were tried in absentia, including Abbas and the two PLF officials.

Three of the actual hijackers including Molqi were among the five in custody and received prison terms ranging from 15 to 30 years. Prosecutor Luigi Francesco Meloni said he probably would appeal for stiffer sentences.

Defense lawyers said they also planned to appeal.

Under Italian law, those convicted can be considered for parole only after half their sentence has been served.

Monteverde said the jury concluded the hijacking was staged by Abbas and his supporters for "egotistical" reasons and to win prestige.

The indictment charged that the hijacking plan came about in part over differences in methods between Arafat and Abbas.

It said that unlike Abbas, Arafat "believes in the possibility of a diplomatic solution ... to the Palestinian issue."

Italy let Abbas go right after the hijacking ended, and prosecutor Luigi Carli said in an interview before the trial began that authorities had little reason to expect that Tunisia, where Abbas is believed to be in hiding, would ever allow his extradition.

Abbas, Badrakkam, Omar, Molqi and two other hijackers were each convicted of hostage-taking as part of a terrorist crime that ended in death.

But although the jury accepted the prosecution's contention that the six acted as terrorists, it threw out a charge of belonging to an armed terrorist band acting against the Italian state.

Alfredo Biondi, a lawyer for Ilsa Klinghoffer, a daughter of the victim, said he will try to obtain damages from the PLO and the PLF in a separate civil suit.

Thursday's verdict included the ruling that there was just cause for victims to sue for damages.

North was a point or so short for his raise to three no trump. However, he upgraded his hand because of the quality of his intermediates, something with which we would not quarrel.

West led his fourth-best spade, and declarer made the key play of rising with the ace at trick one. Had West held all three missing honors, he would have led one of them, so declarer realized that, if the spades split 5-2, the suit would be blocked since East could not jettison his honor under the ace without setting up a second trick for his opponents.

Proud of his accomplishment, declarer started on setting up his red-suit tricks. Unfortunately, he chose to lead a diamond from dummy. East rose with the ace, cashed the queen of spades and exited with a heart. Since declarer needed more than one heart trick, he tried the finesse—down two.

Declarer chose the wrong suit to play at trick two. If West had both the king of hearts and ace of diamonds, the contract was doomed. If he had the ace of diamonds only, that could be forced out at declarer's leisure for then the heart finesse was going to succeed.

The critical case is where East has the ace of diamonds and West and king of hearts. We have seen what happens if declarer tackles diamonds first. If, instead, he takes the heart finesse, West can win and lead a spade to his partner's queen. But declarer can knock out the ace of diamonds and claim his contract as the cards lie.

U.S. Blames Cubans For Talks' Failure

By GEORGE GEDDA
 Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reagan administration officials say U.S.-Cuban negotiations on reviving a suspended immigration agreement ended in failure because of Cuban demands for broad access to American airwaves.

"I'm trying to figure out why the Cubans came in with a proposal they knew in advance would be rejected," said one State Department official, who insisted on anonymity.

The talks opened earlier this week in Mexico City and were aimed at normalizing immigration ties between the two countries. A bilateral immigration agreement was suspended by Cuba 14 months ago after U.S. government sponsored radio broadcasts to Cuba got under way.

The Mexico City negotiations broke off when the Cuban delegation demanded "clear channel frequencies" for Cuban-originated broadcasting, U.S. officials said.

A clear channel facility is an AM radio station that is allowed exclusive use of a frequency in an area generally up to 750 miles at nighttime. The "clears" are authorized to dominate their frequency with as much as 50,000 watts of power. No other station can beam its signal into the protected area.

State Department spokesman Bernard Kalb said Thursday the talks failed because Cuba "insisted on major and disruptive changes in the organization of radio broadcasting in the United States."

"In view of Cuban insistence on their own proposals, no agreement was reached," Kalb said.

The officials said the administration had not envisioned the talks as a means of improving relations with Cuba, which have been badly strained for years.

Instead, they said, the administration was interested in reviving the 1984 immigration agreement primarily because it called for the return to Cuba of an estimated 2,700 emigres who are ineligible to remain in the United States.

These exiles, also known as "excludables," came to the United States in the 1980 Mariel boatlift and are not entitled to U.S. residency status because they are criminals or suffer from mental illness.

Holiday

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy (AP) — Pope John Paul II has left Vatican City to begin his annual period of summer repose at the papal palace in this hill town outside Rome.

The 66-year-old pontiff, who appeared weary after a seven-day trip to Colombia that ended Tuesday, flew to Castel Gandolfo by helicopter from the Vatican, church officials said.

He will make the palace his principal residence until September, they said. But each Wednesday, John Paul is expected to return to Rome for his weekly audience.

About 13 miles outside Rome, Castel Gandolfo, a town of 5,400 people in the Alban hills, lies on the lip of an extinct volcano that now is Lake Albano. The papal palace was erected in 1624 on the ruins of a castle that had belonged to the Gandolfi family.

Windstorm

MOSCOW (AP) — A windstorm tore off roofs, uprooted trees and may even have lifted calves into the air in the Soviet Baltic republic of Latvia, the government newspaper Izvestia reported.

There were no casualties in the storm, the newspaper said. But it said one farm was destroyed, roofs blown off buildings at three livestock farms and old oaks torn up.

The storm occurred near the town of Madona, about 60 miles east of Latvia's capital, Riga.

Philadelphia Gets Agreement With One Striking Union

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The smaller of two striking unions of municipal employees announced a tentative agreement today, and the mayor reported progress in talks with the other union whose members have left garbage uncollected for 11 days.

Thomas Paine Cronin, president of AFSCME District Council 47, announced the tentative agreement about 6 a.m. after talks that continued through the night. The union represents about 2,000 striking white-collar and professional employees.

"It's a two-year agreement and provides a wage increase of 10 percent, which is a decent improvement, and also provides improvements in health and welfare," Cronin said. "We are very pleased with it."

Cronin said his workers will return to work as soon as the agreement is ratified and said a union meeting could be held as early as Saturday or possibly Sunday.

Mayor W. Wilson Goode said the agreement "is fair to the city and fair to the workers."

"I think it's a fair contract and the negotiators did an excellent job," state mediator Edward Feehan said before leaving for negotiations with the other striking union.

The mayor said the effort to settle the dispute with the larger District Council 33 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, which represents some 12,000 blue-collar workers, would be more difficult.

"The issues are more complex with District 33 but I am hopeful it will also be done today. We are working hard on it," he said.

City managing director James S. White also said Thursday that progress was being made with the local's negotiators.

White, meanwhile, said problems were arising at some of the 15 temporary dump sites set up by the city. About 6,000 tons of trash — the equivalent of two days of normal trash collection — have been deposited at the sites by residents, officials said.

"Some of them have filled up," White said. "We are having them inspected daily by the Health Department. I think a couple of them are beginning to present a problem that we are going to have to deal with (involving) flies, and maybe one with a rodent problem."

The walkout began July 1, and Earl

Stout, president of council 33 has said the major issues include city contracting with private firms for union work, wages and city contributions to the union's health and welfare fund.

Goode has said he was prepared to offer a pay increase of up to 12 percent to the strikers, currently paid between $18 and $18 an hour, in a new three-year contract.

Although trash-littered streets are the most obvious strike effect, pickets also have forced the closing of all city-operated libraries, museums and health centers, shut down one third of the 85 swimming pools and curtailed activities at 190 recreation centers.

Former 'Dynasty' Actor Being Treated For AIDS

By CAROLYN SKORNECK
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — AIDS, which has killed "Dynasty's" Rock Hudson, has afflicted a former member of the TV series' cast, actor Paul Francis Keenan.

Like Hudson, Keenan, 30, who appeared in five episodes in 1982 and eight in 1984, is speaking out strongly about the disease and the need to help victims. But going beyond Hudson's revelations, Keenan said he contracted the disease through sexual contact with another man.

"I don't believe that AIDS is something to be ashamed of, something that I should have to keep a secret," said Keenan, who found out he had AIDS about seven weeks ago.

"I am very proud of who I am, very proud of the things I'm trying to do." He did keep his homosexuality a secret when he was working in image-obsessed Hollywood, the actor said during a telephone interview Thursday from New York, where he was recently hospitalized at St. Clare's Hospital and Health Center.

"When I was 18, I came out of the closet. ... My family knew. Everyone who was a peer knew. When I was acting and my career started to take off, it was suggested to me that I go into a closet I had never known. When I left Los Angeles about 1 1/2 years ago, I decided I wouldn't do that anymore."

Keenan, who played Todd Chandler on the daytime TV soap opera "Days of Our Lives," portrayed stable hand Tony Driscoll on the ABC-TV nighttime soap "Dynasty."

His last acting job was the male romantic lead in the 1984 CBS-TV movie "Summer Fantasy," opposite Julianne Phillips, who later married rock superstar Bruce Springsteen.

Keenan said he is not worried about whether he'll ever get another job in Hollywood.

"When you have AIDS, you really have to face the fact that this could be a fatal disease," he said. "You're dealing with things that are more important than the narcissistic

Hollywood type of life.

"I believe that my focus is to be healed from this disease and to live. Whatever else happens after that, happens."

Acquired immune deficiency syndrome, which cripples the body's immune system and leaves its victims vulnerable to life-threatening infections and cancer, is caused by a virus believed to be passed through blood and semen, but not through casual contact.

It has struck more than 21,000 people in the United States, killing more than 11,000, according to the national Centers for Disease Control.

Keenan said Hudson, who was 59 when he died Oct. 2 of complications from AIDS, was only a friend. They never worked together, despite their appearances on the series, and it's "absolutely not a possibility" that he contracted AIDS from Hudson, he said.

'Live Ed' Canters Along

DALLAS (AP) — "Live Ed" may not have been a galloping success exactly, but organizer James Burnett says it may have cantered a bit.

With Wilbur, a mess of Edheads, and Nurse Goodbody's First Ed station all on hand to pay tribute to television's only talking horse, Burnett was happy with the results of Thursday night's shamefully shallow event.

Of course, he was comparing it with "Edstock," the concert disaster that saddled his Mister Ed Fan Club with a $15,000 debt in the first place.

Live Ed had Live Aid, the fundraising rock concert, to thank for its name, but its purpose was simply to help get Burnett back in the black.

"We're all tired of giving money to people who need it," KZEW radio personality Steven Clean told the crowd of about 500 who hoofed it to Loews Anatole Hotel. "We're here because Jim 'Big Bucks' Burnett screwed up last year. If you paid $10 to get in, I'm amazed."

Sanctions

STRASBOURG, France (AP) — The European Parliament has urged the 12 member nations of the Common Market to impose economic sanctions against South Africa and criticized them for not having done so already.

By a vote of 228-to-114, the Common's Market's legislative body adopted a resolution calling for the "immediate consideration" of sanctions. The vote followed a heated debate that divided the 518-member house along political and national lines.

British Conservatives and West German Christian Democrats argued against economic sanctions, stating their governments' views that such action would hurt job prospects for black South Africans and offer no hope for an early end to apartheid.

Yesterday's Cryptquip: CRACKERJACK SURGEON JUST OUGHT TO KEEP PATIENTS IN STITCHES.

Today's Cryptquip clue: Y equals H

The Cryptquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, JULY 12, 1986

YOUR DAILY Horoscope
 from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A perfect Saturday to get out and do errands and shopping that await your attention. Study budget and practical interests. Don't let any detail escape you.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Study into periodicals and see experts who can be helpful to you. Become more dynamic and purposeful.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) A good day for improving yourself and to study use of spare time. Increase happiness for the future.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Much to make of your home today, so get busy. Entertain old buddies and have a fine time together.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Call or see persons who need cheering up and would love to see you. Bring along candy or flowers.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) A day to yourself when you can plan home improvement or for getting your wardrobe in better order.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Try to reach a person you want to see more of and get together. Have a very enjoyable evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Small talks require your attention and you handle it efficiently. Remember some small favor your mate asks.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Get in touch with good friends and show you are still devoted. Join a group affair of your interest.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get into civic duties you have been neglecting. Study ways to have more prestige in public.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) This is the day for recreation you have been looking forward to. Be where you can meet interesting people.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Good day to handle practical and financial affairs. Make collection. Pay Bills. Then see a close friend.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Talk plans over with an associate. You can handle any civic work that needs to be done by you.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be very capable at mathematics and whatever requires much manual labor so be sure to slant the education along such lines as building, plumbing, roofing. Teach to be more humanitarian and your progeny could become quite prosperous.

Drinking

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — A leading member of the temperance movement in the town of Varberg says the government should set aside special drinking zones in Sweden's state-owned liquor stores for heavy imbibers.

"It is better to let people drink there than in (doorways) and supermarket entrances." Tage Hansson, chairman of a temperance organization in southern Sweden, was quoted as saying by the Aftonbladet newspaper.

"The state-owned (liquor store) monopoly must take more responsibility for its customers and provide better service," Hansson said, citing the high cost to society of alcohol-related injuries.
