GREAT BRITAIN STATES RIGHT OVER ISLANDS

Ambassador to Washington Instructed to Inform U. S.

JOINT CONTROL PLAN MENTIONED

Hawaiians Recently Landed on Islands Regarded as British Territory

London, March 9.—(AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain told the House of Commons today Sir Ronald Lindsay, Ambassador to Washington, had been instructed to inform the United States Government Britain "reserves her right over the islands of Canton and Enderbury."

Chamberlain announced "proposals will be submitted in hopes of ending the controversy."

It was believed some form of joint control of the two mid-Pacific islands would be proposed by Britain.

Canton and Enderbury islands, in the Phoenix group, have been occupied by Hawaiian parties landed by United States Coast Guard cutters.

Previously they had been treated as British territory in British government orders-in-council.

Chamberlain, determined to weld an "appeased Europe" meanwhile invited German Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop to talk with him across a luncheon table.

Hopes for an accord between Great Britain and Italy were bolstered by a concession from France that meets Italian demands on non-intervention in Spain, solution of which must precede an agreement.

Advance New Theory In Death Of Greenville Boy

Believed by Officer to Have Been Trying Stunt

Raleigh, March 9.—(AP)—The Raleigh Times in a copyrighted story this afternoon quoted Detective Captain Poole as saying he was confident there was no foul play in the electrocution death here Saturday night of Philip E. Winslow, North Carolina State college student from Greenville and that Winslow was trying to do stunts such as he often did.

Poole gave his description of the death of the student before Coroner L. M. Waring opened an inquest. The detective said he had reached his conclusion after talking to college officials and friends of the dead youth.

"I believe that the boy was just bubbling over with energy," said Poole, "and that he was performing one of his many unusual acrobatic stunts when he came into contact with the 'hot' wire which electrocuted him."

"The boy just loved to climb and he evidently decided to climb the pole, not knowing the wires were hot."

The detective said Ed Pugh of Elizabeth City, with Winslow when he was killed, and Paul Blalock of Fremont and C. H. Berry of Goldsboro, with them earlier in the night had aided in the investigation.

Announce Voting Places In County

County Agent R. R. Bennett, in announcing voting places for the crop control referendum to be held Saturday, today urged every farmer in the county to go to the polls and express his convictions on the proposed new farm program.

All farmers who produce tobacco or cotton, or both are urged to record themselves either for or against the measure. The referendum will make the first opportunity ever offered farmers to decide at a popular referendum whether or not they want crop control, and for this reason it was declared that a good representative vote was important.

While the general opinion is that this section of the state is overwhelmingly in favor of the new program, organized opposition has developed in other parts of the state and elsewhere. The referendum will be decided as a unit and unless a majority of all farmers favor the proposal it will not be applied anywhere.

The polls will open at 7 a. m., and will close at 7 p. m. The cotton and tobacco referendum will be held the same day and at the same polling places, but separate votes will be cast in each.

One voting place has been designated for each township, according to the following schedule: Ayden township will vote at the Jolly building in Ayden.

HOUSE VOTES TO ELIMINATE SURTAX ITEM

Lower Branch Rejects Levy On Family-Owned Firms

COALITION WINS IN CONTROVERSY

Agriculture Department Sets up Machinery for Conducting Referenda Saturday

Washington, March 9.—(AP)—The House tentatively struck from the tax revision bill today a proposed sur-tax on family-owned and closely-held corporations. The teller vote was 180 to 124.

Defeated in the initial attempt to save the most controversial item in the measure, administration forces said they would demand another vote on it before the House ballots on final passage of the bill.

A coalition of Republicans and Democrats succeeded in winning House approval for an amendment to strip the levy on closely-held firms from the bill, although members had received shortly before a warning that a revenue measure with that tax eliminated might be vetoed by President Roosevelt.

Meanwhile the Agriculture Department set up machinery to take a former vote Saturday on invoking control provisions of the new farm law for the first time.

Polling places were established in 20 states, where more than 2,000,000 cotton and tobacco growers can say whether they want a quota system to hold surplus yields of their crops off the market.

Approval of two-thirds of the farmers participating in the referenda, one for cotton and one each for flue-cured and dark types of tobacco, would put the quota device into operation.

States in which cotton referenda will be held and an estimate of the number of farmers in each eligible to vote, included North Carolina, 140,000.

States in which the flue-cured tobacco referenda will be held and an estimate of the number of farmers eligible to vote included North Carolina, 175,000.

Whitney Assumes Full Responsibility

New York, March 9.—(AP)—Richard Whitney, senior partner of the bankrupt brokerage firm which bore his name and five times president of the New York Stock Exchange, today shouldered full responsibility for the conditions which led to the sensational failure of his company.

In a statement issued through his attorneys as open hearings in a state investigation got underway, the one-time leader of the so-called "old guard" in the exchange absolved his partners of blame and acknowledged "certain of my actions were wrong."

He offered to take the consequences.

FUND NOT PAID TO KIDNAPERS

Father of Abducted Boy Flatly Denies Reports

New Rochelle, N. Y., March 9.—(AP)—Murray Levine, whose son, Peter, 12 years old, disappeared 13 days ago, said flatly today that no ransom had been paid in the apparent kidnaping.

The New York lawyer, in a routine telephone statement from his home, asserted "there is nothing new."

Asked if a rumor that $30,000 ransom had been paid were true, he answered, "that is incorrect. There is nothing new."

Police said they were still staying away from the Levine house at the father's request in order to facilitate contact with the supposed kidnapers.

Police officials said they had neither made searches nor taken any other steps, according to the father's wishes.

Disappearance of another new Rochelle boy was reported by the police today.

The parents of Bernard Richards Jr., 14, told officers their son disappeared yesterday.

Congressman Harold D. Cooley of Nashville, a member of the House Agriculture committee, will make the principal address, explaining the measure in detail.

Dean I. O. Schaub, head of the Extension Service of N. C. State College, will direct his talk to procedure to be followed in the referenda and explain the qualifications necessary to vote.

DECLINE FIRE SECRET AGENT

County Commissioners Retain Services of Batson

In recess session here today the Board of County Commissioners adopted resolutions setting forth the fact that the Board declined to terminate the services of the National Bureau of Investigation in the county at this time on the grounds that to do so would not be to the best interests of the citizens of Pitt County.

Today's action was answer to a committee that appeared before the Board on February 14 with a petition requesting termination of the Bureau's services on the grounds that A. S. Batson, chief investigator, was "not a reliable and trustworthy person" and "one in whom the citizens have no faith and confidence."

Batson came to this county highly recommended for the undercover work to be done here and the Board being unwilling to take action on the request a full investigation of the charges could be made, deferred the matter until the facts in the case could be ascertained.

When their investigation failed to substantiate the charges referred against the bureau personnel, the board today adopted the following resolution:

Whereas on February 14, 1938, there appeared before the Board of Commissioners of the County of Pitt a Committee composed of the following named persons: L. T. Pierce, H. C. Pittman, W. C. The Pitt County Democratic Executive committee today decided to hold precinct meetings on May 7th at 2:30 p. m. at the various precincts in the county, with the county convention to be held on the following Saturday, May 14, at 11 a. m., in Greenville.

The Statewide Survey has resulted in discovery that the states bridges, in particular are obsolete, with some 1,500 entirely inadequate for the present system, largely because they are less than 20 feet wide or of less than 10 ton capacity.

CHINESE BLAST DYKES TO HALT JAP ADVANCES

Many Nippon Soldiers Drowned as Area Flooded

CHINESE MASS RIVER DEFENSES

Jap Forces in Position, However, To Cross the Yellow River At Other Points

Shanghai, March 9.—(AP)—Chinese blasted dykes and hopes by flood today to check the Japanese army's drive into the fertile area south of China's Yellow river.

The new tactics were used against 900 Japanese with 20 tanks to cross the Yellow river at a point 25 miles west of the strategic railway junction in Honan province.

Many of the Japanese were drowned, Chinese said, and their tanks were crippled when the blown up dykes flooded the countryside.

It was believed the Japanese would make the point of crossing the base for driving the junction of China's east-west and north-south railway.

The Chengchow junction leads south to Hankow, where the Chinese Central government now is maintained.

The Japanese were in position to cross the south bank of the Yellow river at a half dozen other points in Shansi and Honan provinces.

Chinese were massing reinforcements all along the river.

Old Tobacco Bills Reveal 1885 Prices

"I don't want things to go back to conditions of 25 to 50 years ago and that is what will happen if the tobacco farmers fail to vote for crop control in Saturday's referenda," declared W. A. Talley, well known Pitt county farmer in discussing the new farm program today.

In referring to conditions of 50 years ago and even 35 years ago, Mr. Talley exhibited a bunch of tobacco sales bills which showed prices in the very low brackets. Some of the bills showed sales made by his father of Pitt county tobacco on the Danville, Va., market in 1885 and 1888, which was before the Greenville tobacco market came into existence. The price range on these bills for the best types of tobacco was from four to 17 cents, with $104.69 being received for 939 pounds, and $204 being received for 2,074 pounds. Another bill exhibited by Mr. Talley showed his own sales on the Greenville tobacco market in 1903 when he received prices of six to 11 cents, with 560 pounds of tobacco bringing $41.03.

"These are the kind of prices tobacco growers of this section might expect this year if they fail to vote for crop control and a large crop is produced," Mr. Talley said.

LITTLE MISSILES Not For War, But Of A News Nature The races at Washington begin today. Services in the Methodist Church tonight. The warmer days are giving a new impetus to gardening. As the days go by the need of an opera house becomes more apparent.

Horse Thief Caught A few mornings ago a Negro put in an appearance at Bethel having a rather nice looking horse with him. He offered to sell the horse for $80 but those whom he approached having a doubt in their minds as to the Negro being the real owner of the horse, no one was inclined to purchase. He kept lowering the price until he was offered to sell the animal for $25. Suspicion became so strong that he was taken into custody and a message of inquiry sent to Tarboro. It turned out that the Negro had stolen the horse from a man living near Tarboro. The horse is back with the proper owner and the Negro is in jail.

MODES of the MOMENT

HINTS TO HOUSEWIVES

Serve waffles as soon as they are baked. If they are allowed to stand they are apt to become tough. Never stack them, since stacking makes them soggy.

To make a caramel sauce melt twenty caramels in a double boiler and then add a third of a cup of cream. When the combination is hot mix it well and serve it over a frozen dessert.

Select pot-holders that are easy to launder and large enough to protect your hands. Hang a generous supply of them near the stove—or keep them in a nearby drawer.

Orange and tomato juices lose much of their nutritive value after they have been exposed to the air for several hours. Consequently it is a good plan to prepare them just before serving—to buy them in cans which hold an amount that will be quickly consumed after they are opened.

Try this fruit sauce on your favorite ice cream. Melt a cupful of jam or jelly in a double boiler. Add a fourth of a cup of orange juice. Serve the sauce warm.

Wooden cooking utensils are likely to warp or mildew unless stored in a dry place. Carefully scrub such utensils with a small brush in hot water and soap suds. Rinse in warm water and wipe them dry. Place them near a stove until they are perfectly dry. Then store them in a dry place.

On the telephone, it's not so much what you say as how you say it. Telephone conversations always should convey a feeling of personal interest, says John Turner, telephone executive and specialist on telephone manners.

When your phone rings and you pick up the receiver, he says, don't use a perfunctory "Hello" or a vaguely inquiring "Yes?" into the mouthpiece. Give an information, someone "Mrs. So-and-So's residence" or "Mrs. So-and-So's telephone." If you have servants don't let them say "Mrs. So-and-So's maid for burler" at the office. That sounds pretentious.

Added telephone hints: Hold your mouth quietly in front of the mouthpiece and about half an inch away from it. When you want to get the attention of the operator move the receiver arm up and down slowly. If you do it fast the light on her switchboard may not register your call at all.

In making business calls be brief and to the point. The call itself costs money, the time is valuable to you and someone else may be waiting to use the line. Nearly all employers will realize that a certain number of personal calls are necessary during business hours. But there must be an understanding between employee and employer on the subject.

CLOSE CORRELATION

COTTON EXPORTS ARE RELATED TO TOTAL IMPORTS

The chart above shows that by an increase in cotton exports in 1923. The decline in total imports during the 1929-1932 depression was accompanied by a corresponding drop in cotton exports. However, cotton exports have not risen with total imports since 1934 because of exchange controls and trade restrictions in foreign countries, and because of increased supplies of foreign cotton. In view of the relationship between cotton exports and total imports, any increase in trade, both export and import, helps the cotton farmer.

EMPIRE FOR A LADY

SYNOPSIS: Love for a young English girl has plunged my uncle, James Clyde, and myself (Paul Thorne) into a desperate enterprise. With Christine Forrester's support Clyde becomes rajah of tropical Balingong. Rentongen, the sultan's representative, hits back, and for weeks I lead my Dyaks in a jungle campaign. Finally, returning with my depleted force, I hear that Rentongen's next move was to strike Balingong itself.

So they brought me around the blunt bow of the Linkang, and I was looking upward into the pinched, white face whose dark eyes stared at me from overside. I remember thinking then, "She will look that way when she is old. When she is very old, this face will be Christine's. And it will still be the most beautiful face in the world. But something tore at my throat, seeing it so pale and hollowed now.

Chapter 44 In My Arms

IT WAS hard for me to get anything like a complete report from the Tenyalang pangiran in command. The Tenyalang prau had been sent not by the White Rajah but by the White Ranees. The White Ranees was aboard the Linkang. The Tenyalang, which had come to the Tomarrup had been aboard the Linkang too, to guard the White Ranees—but the Ranees had sent most of them to me. The pangiran thought there were very few Tenyalang at Balingong town; the White Rajah had sent word to most of them to defend their rice at all costs.

Then the Malays and 1,000 hill tribesmen unfriendly to the White Rajah had attacked. Balingong had fallen—part of it had been burned.

The pangiran thought that the White Rajah's palace still stood. The Rajah still held his stockades when last they heard. Communication between the Rajah and the Ranees was very poor; some days it was cut off altogether. Rentongen had proclaimed himself Rajah of Balingong. The White Rajah had replied by promising to destroy all who supported Rentongen.

The friendly tribes did not know which side to take; they were scattered and disorganized, and some of them were fighting among themselves. A few Tenyalang had come to the war against the orders of the White Rajah; they were sniping the enemy from the jungle.

The Siderong had heard what I had done in the Tomarrup. There were remarkable reports of how we had destroyed whole armies with only a few men. There were reports that some of my men, especially the Tenyalang, went on fighting after they were dead. At night headless warriors stalked through the villages, destroying my enemies.

The pangiran admitted that he had not believed this; but his eyes popped when he saw the piles of heads, and he said he was now ready to believe. In the Siderong, too, I was being called the Tuan Darah. Rentongen had proclaimed that the Tuan Darah was dead. Many believed this. Almost all believed that he White Rajah, too, would soon be dead.

That was about all the pangiran had to say that was intelligible. There was a good deal more about spirits of several kinds that were infesting the jungle around Balingong; a number of miracles were said to have happened, of one sort or another, and I paid no attention to this. But there were also two or three incidents which sounded as if they might have happened, and which I did not understand.

A great gun, which, I judge by the pangiran's description, could only have come from my own mountings in Clyde's stockade, had been brought to the beach, and for some hours had fired upon the Linkang and the Avon, until the Tenyalang had captured it and rolled it into the sea. This was a peculiar story, because the pangiran should have known a Malay lantaka when he saw one, and could hardly have confused one with a long swivel.

Her Beautiful Face
ANOTHER odd report was about a prau that had drifted down the Siderong containing nothing but the headless body of a white man, and a small ivory god sitting alone upon a thwart, one hand outstretched. (I thought of the Buddha that van der Donggen had given Clyde.) They had not shown these things to the White Ranees. They had let the prau alone because of the ivory god. It had made its way to the sea—probably, the pangiran suggested, driven by unseen paddles. They did not know what became of it.

Nothing further than the pangiran said came any nearer telling me what I had to know. I spread the relatively fresh Tenyalang paddlers through the praus, putting the best in my own fast bankong to set a smoky pace; and we went racing into open sea, headed for Balingong. In the next 19 hours we covered 140 miles. It was with an unspeakable relief that I saw that both the Linkang and the Avon were still afloat, and in white hands.

Once we were far enough into the pass to open Balingong Bay we uncorked everything we had saved, in a final drive to reach the Linkang before we could be cut off. A few fresh paddlers in their fast bankongs could have made a nasty mess of us, in spite of our Tenyalang.

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

Hollywood—No doubt about it, Hollywood is the style center of the world—all styles.

The feminine contingent of our party pointed this out with no sympathy at all for Hollywood's way of working and living, which of course dictates the dress of the lady style-setters. "It's just funny, that's all," one of them said. "Most places evening dress is evening dress, but here—well, look around."

Just Off The Air
The look-around was fruitful. The feminine contingent agreed that Alice Faye, over there with Tony Martin, was "smart" in that suit affair and hat with long shawl-like veil. Also that Gracie Allen, suited and hatted, was "tres chic and cut" dancing with George Burns.

"What's wrong with that?" argued counsel for the defense. "Those people just got through airing tonight—when would they get a chance to slip into something loose if they wanted to?"

"Nothing's wrong—only look around some more. Just what is evening dress in this town?"

The ensuing survey revealed: the Brewster twins in long flowing white; one girl in a colorful turban; another unknown in bright tweeds ("Well, she's been to Santa Anita, came right on here"); a little brunette in a street suit, rhumbaing nicely; another beauty in filmy white, carrying a big cherry-pink feather fan; a bejeweled and glittering Sophie Tucker; Mrs. Buck Jones and daughter Maxine in "longs"; another tweedy horse devotee; diamond dowagers; Claire Dodd in long black with eye-catching tall black hat, fancied with colored ribbons, and so on.

Dietrich Enters
Interest in assorted costumes took another form when Marlene Dietrich swept in, making her customary entrance. She was done up in black with a high hat, strangely like Claire Dodd's, only prickly with feathers instead of ribboned. The feminine contingent gaped with delightful anticipation: what would Strangest current star-director combination is Norma S. Parker and W. S. Van Dyke. Norma is for the try-and-try-again system of movie-making—many, many "takes" until a scene is perfect. Van Dyne is a hurry-up director, accent on speed.

Tobacco For Poultry.
Corsicana, Tex.—(AP)—Thanks to Mrs. Ruth Mitchell, home supervisor for the Farm Security Administration, Corsicana poultry flocks are learning to chew tobacco.

Mrs. Mitchell says the tobacco chewing is a remedy for the "blue bugs" with which poultry flocks in this territory have become infested. About two doses of tobacco, administered on an empty crop a week apart, usually bring a cure.

NATIONAL ADVERTISING REPRESENTATIVES

Thomas F. Clark Co., Inc., New York, Chicago, Indianapolis, Philadelphia, Kansas City, Richmond

This is Safety Week. "Drive carefully and save a life" is a good slogan to adopt this week and then keep it in mind throughout next week and the weeks to come.

We make this last appeal to our farmers to attend the mass meeting at the college, tonight to hear the farm control bill discussed. It is our belief that without control this year our farmers will find themselves in great financial stress when they begin the marketing of their tobacco next fall. Attend the meeting, get the facts and then vote for farm control this year.

The laying of a large number of sidewalks in this city is certainly a great improvement and should have its effect in making our city safer for pedestrians. Sidewalks have been provided in many parts of the city where heretofore there have been no walks and pedestrians were forced to walk in the streets. There are still some such places in the city and it is to be hoped that the present sidewalk program will continue until all the necessary sidewalks have been provided.

SHORT SHOTS

By HENRY AVERILL

Reflector Bureau Raleigh, March 9.—During the past three weeks, twenty skilled and specially trained blind people have been placed on a Works Progress Administration project operating statewide, to tune pianos in the public buildings of North Carolina. It is reported by the North Carolina State Employment Service.

Commissioner of Agriculture W. Kerr Scott has appealed to North Carolina's Congressmen to help him get "port inspectors" appointed for the state, to help hog growers get fair prices for their products. Looks like he went to the right place—those Congressmen know more about "hork" particularly of the "barrel" kind than anybody else.

A Sampson county farmer, E. A. Hobbs, is quoted as saying of a distant relative, Sam H. Hobbs who has been opposing crop control: "He wants to run for the Senate (state) and he's going to run on the Democratic ticket with Republicans back of him. That's why he's going all over the county and other counties talking on this bill."

Sounds fine but the fact is that Sampson county doesn't even have a vote in nominating a Democratic candidate for the State Senate this year, having had Jeff Johnston here last session. Dunlin and New Hanover get the seats this time, so Sampson and Pender do not even participate in the primary voting.

Speaking of the crop control struggle, E. Y. Floyd, AAA executive officer at State College, has called attention to the fact that the cotton and tobacco referenda are entirely separate affairs although they are to be held on the same day, March 12. He warns cotton farmers not to depend on tobacco growers to put control "over."

Attorney General A. F. Seawell has advised Cetera...

ties against holding a liquor store election on the same day as the June 4 primaries. It seems that the primary is probably not the "biennial election of county officers," within 60 days of which liquor polls are taboo under the ABC law; but there might be some question about it, says the Attorney General, and besides it probably wouldn't be good policy. Too bad—think of how exciting things would be if the fate of John Barleycorn were to be determined at the same time as nomination of county and state officials. Some fun!

The Statewide Highway Planning Survey is working full speed ahead and its field parties have collected all sorts of valuable data, but so far nothing concrete in the way of results has been given out for publication.

Explaining this in a "progress report," James S. Burch, engineer of statistics and planning, said: "Since no single phase of the survey has been completely analyzed, no official survey data are available for publication. This being a cooperative effort with the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads, it is required that specific approval be given by the Bureau for the public release of conclusions and findings."

Incidentally, the survey had expended $124,975.68 of its $225,000 budget through December 31, 1937. By far the greater portion of this expenditure covered personnel salaries; the only other sizeable item covered automotive transportation for field parties.

The North Carolina State Department of Vocational Rehabilitation reports that it has rehabilitated and secured employment on a continuing and self-supporting basis a total of 312 persons. Already employed, but still being followed up are 105 cases, while 142 cases have been rehabilitated but are waiting placement in employment.

Washington Daybook

By Preston Grover

Washington — We went over to the internal revenue office to see if income tax collectors have any heart and it seems they have—at least by their own testimony.

Most surprising thing we discovered, though, was that Washingtonians are habitually late in paying their income taxes. It would seem that people who live in Washington—right at the fountain head of things—should get their business with the government done on time, but they don't. Whole colonies of them sometimes are left standing in line at midnight March 15, when penalties start.

The bureau occupies a whopping building just off famous Pennsylvania avenue. It is part of the treasury, but its building is larger than the treasury building—and newer.

Tax Collector's Plaint Congress has blown first, hot and then cold on publicity about anything in connection with the income taxes, so most officials, as a matter of policy, play safe.

They refuse to let anything get out of hand unless it is approved by Mr. Gaston, who is assistant to Secretary Morgenthau. We were turned loose in some department files only on condition that if any question arose as to whether such and such a item might be used it would be settled by Mr. Gaston. He approved everything we had.

First, we found a plaintive note from an internal revenue agent urging the public to believe that the agents are human, have children of their own, go on Sunday picnics—and fret about their reputations for hard dealings with taxpayers.

Taxpayers go right on making the same mistakes year after year, we learned also. So does the bureau. Each year about 150,000 of the 2,000,000 or more taxpayers send too much to the government. Where overpayments are found, refunds are made. The bureau, in turn, is forever asking some maiden lady to account for her husband.

Old Story The oldest and most told story in the bureau is about a foreign-born taxpayer living in this country who figured that he had earned about $2,600 for the year and sent a check for the whole amount to the government. A tax agent returned the check—the fellow didn't owe anything.

"My son told me to pay it all," the puzzled alien-born explained. "That's how much good is an education."

While most letters are from agents telling about the more or less comic performances of taxpayers, one long one from a taxpayer was printed in a department circular. It took the hide out of a collector. The collector had sent his friend a form letter asking some additional information. The letter ended with the usual reminder that failure to comply might bring a $5,000 fine and two years' imprisonment.

The taxpayer wrote back to remind his friend that government officials always set harder and harder to deal with the longer they stay in office. Just think, he said, of sending a respectable citizen a letter threatening jail for overlooking a minor date.

Another letter was from a taxpayer who had slipped up three years back on a trifle. He sent in a check for $5 but added: "Mind how you people remember things. But I'll get it back. I'm on relief now."

Hitler Speeds Work on Net of Super-Highways

Strength For Heavy Load—Workmen Imbed Steel Mesh In New German 'Autobahn'

Germany's Plan For Cobweb Of Motor Speed Roads

BERLIN (AP)—In another six years Hitler plans to have Germany covered with a web of double-track motor speed roads. At the end of 1937, after less than four years' effort, 1,266 miles of special roads had been opened. Hitler has told his 95,000 road builders he wants to add 625 miles this year.

By the end of 1938, motorists should be able to travel straight from the Baltic port of Stettin to Berchtesgaden, in the Bavarian Alps—497 miles on the first consecutive stretch of the new highway system.

Sections of the "autobahns" (motor roads) are to be found all over the country now. Each of their two tracks is 22 feet in width. A strip of land, varying from 10 to 16 feet, separates the tracks and is planted in trees, shrubbery and grass. This intervening hedge is more than a landscaping project; it cuts headlight glare at night.

Der Fuehrer Leads Inauguration Of Section Of New Highway

The road is built of concrete, plain and reinforced, with slabs 8 inches thick. The cost of the project is stupendous. But Hitler, viewing it as a part of his job-creation program, believes it will pay for itself in the long run. No figures on the cost are published.

Since cars leaving the speedway travel faster than those entering, the ramps are not equal. Those for leaving have a curvature of not less than 150 feet, but those for joining have a radius as short as 75 feet.

And of course, the roads have a strategic value. Cars can travel three abreast, either way. It has been estimated that, at an average speed of 40 miles, soldiers can be moved past a given point at the rate of 70,000 an hour.

Mother Of 5 Is Men's Welding Teacher

Mrs. Terpening And A Pupil

By AURELIUS KINSEY (AP Feature Service Writer) Chicago. — A mother of five children is teaching men how to weld. Mrs. Sarah Terpening started her unusual occupation eleven years ago when her husband was incapacitated by illness. He taught her the trade. Since then she has trained more than 1,000 men. "A lot of them come to me because I'm a woman," she says, laughing. "They say they don't want any man bossing them around in the school." But they soon find Mrs. Terpening is no softy. And they find she knows their language. When she says "damn," she means it. Many of her pupils are vocational education students. Some of them without arms or legs but she teaches them to overcome these handicaps.

Greenies Start Practice April 11 For 1938 Season

OUTLOOK GOOD FOR TEAM HERE

Several Contracts Already in; Plan Exhibition Games

The Greenville baseball team will start practice on Monday, April 11, for the 1938 season which opens on April 26.

Negotiations are being carried on with Norfolk's entry in the Piedmont League for two exhibition games here April 15 and 16. Richmond also has offered to play the Greenies in a local exhibition, and officials are trying to make arrangements. In addition, several strong independent teams will be met prior to the opening of the regular season.

The Greenville pitching staff is rapidly taking shape.

John Delaney, Jr., of Richmond, righthander on last year's team, was in Greenville over the week-end and looking in tip-top shape after having gained a little weight. His contract already has been signed and he declared he is anxious for the season to get started.

Fred J. Coligutti of West Hickory, Pa., another right-hander, who reminds many of Johnny Allen, one-time member of the Greenville team and now the highest paid pitcher in baseball as a member of the Cleveland Indians, has signed his contract and returned it.

The club is practically on terms with Don King of Atlantic, Iowa, star left-hander of last year. King will leave his home next Sunday for Winter Haven, Fla., to be with his brother who is with the Columbus, Ohio, team of the American Association. While in Florida King will do some scouting for the Greenville team and advise officials of any "hot" prospects.

Homer "Lefty" Moser of Bally, Pa., once the property of the St. Louis Cardinals, but member of the 1937 Greenville team, has signed, giving the Greenies four pitchers already in the fold.

Albert Pignataro of Salt Lake City, Utah, who had a pretty fair season with the Greenies last year and one of the fastest runners in the league and also effective at the bat, has signed his name to the dotted line and will be heading this way soon.

Frank Thompson of Kenosha, Wis., is expected to return his signed contract any day now. Thompson was purchased last year from Norfolk and proved to be one of the best short stops in the league.

Manager Monk Joyner was in Greenville Monday and discussing prospects with club officials. Monk is already on the lookout for good players in North Carolina and Virginia and is expected to go to Florida with some of the club officials next week to visit the various training camps in search of material.

PADDOCK PETS

(By The AP Feature Service)

Horses aren't the only animals at the racetracks. Almost every barn has a dog or cat or perhaps a fighting rooster, a goat, a monkey or a goose. Many thoroughbreds are fondly attached to a smaller animal and enjoy having a friendly dog as a playmate in their stalls. Most of the pets are dogs, just common mutts who've taken a liking to the track atmosphere. Kittens chase away the mice. Trainers often send a goat or a sheep into a stall to quiet a nervous filly. Here are some of the horses' pals at Churchill Downs and Douglas Park in Kentucky:

Pete entertains the horsemen with his occasional duels with the many other game cocks found around the horse barns.

This aloof goat snubs strangers for in her barn is Last Message, a Kentucky Derby candidate which won at Keeneland last fall at 66-1.

Here is "Mike" the monkey who wants to be a jockey. He's getting in some practice riding on friend airedale.

"Bill" the goose keeps visitors at a distance from the Johnny Jones' barn. She'll nick your leg if you're too curious.

This husky dog guards the Toll Tree Stable's tack room. Clown stands on his hind legs and clamors for attention.

On The Right Track. Tahlequah, Okla.—(AP)—It didn't take Mayor J. P. Thompson long to get at the heart of the trouble at a "what's wrong with the railroads" meeting.

Four railroad officials had come from Springfield, Mo., to tell Tahlequah citizens that unless the patronage of the line from Westville to Tahlequah was increased sharply the tracks would be removed.

Thompson listened to their arguments for more freight and passenger business, then asked: "You came to this meeting from Springfield, didn't you—ah, how did you come?"

"By automobile," chorused the officials.

MANY N. C. ROAD CLASSES OBSOLETE

(Continued From Page One) says, Burch said, and as a result of his analysis the conclusion has been reached that from eight to twelve per cent of serious accidents are indirectly, at least, connected with obsolete highway "situations" and layouts.

The national trend is toward modernization of highways, the survey engineer observed, adding that much has already been done in North Carolina along that line and that much more remains to be done and would be done if funds were available.

"Our survey is directly preparing for the future when it is hoped that funds will be available," Burch said, "One of the important phases is checking every mile of the state's highway system and making studies of detailed plans in order to remove all danger spots on the roads."

Burch pointed out that development of highway engineering has been quite recent, as before 1917 the profession was practically nonexistent.

"The engineers of the early days did their very best to fit their roads for the future, but in view of the rapid development of motor traffic, it is not at all unexpected that they did not 'hit' so well," he said.

The engineers who designed North Carolina's roads fifteen to twenty years ago were very conservative; but our highway commission was even more so. Engineers even then saw the necessity for 'super-elevation' (banking of curves) but their plans were vetoed by a commission which had an eye to the costs, which, incidentally, were higher per unit than they are now," he added.

Burch said that practically all the work "on the ground" has been done by survey parties and that it now remains for the results to be mapped and coded, in order that full results may be ascertained and concrete plans made for future development of the highway system.

DARING RESCUERS SAVE STRICKEN FREIGHTER AT SEA

These pictures tell a vivid story of the rescue of the ill-fated freighter, Azalea City, which lost her pro seller during terrific storms in the North Atlantic and wallowed helplessly for 18 days until Coast Guardsmen came to her aid. At the left, guardsmen aboard the cutter Chelan are shown in the act of firing a line across the drifting craft. A few minutes later a hawser linked the two ships and the Azalea City (in distance at right) bucked against the line. But the hawser held firmly and the Chelan towed the freighter into Boston harbor. Bound from Panama City, Fla., to England, the Azalea City ran into eight terrific storms and each time she took a severe battering. She carried 11 passengers, some of them from Mobile, Alabama.

Library At W.F.C. Pitt Co-ops Plan Receives Support Of Old Graduates

Organization Formed for Announced Purpose of Searching Out
Rare Books, Manuscripts

Reflector Bureau
Raleigh, March 9.—The library at Wake Forest has been placed on an equal footing with those of the University of North Carolina and Duke University, insofar as alumni support is concerned, by organization of the first unit of "Friends of the Wake Forest College Library" here last night.

Purpose of the group, it was explained by R. L. McMillan, Raleigh attorney who presided, is "to search out rare books and manuscript materials of historical interest and to present them to the Wake Forest College library for permanent preservation; to stimulate other such gifts; and to suggest that the library be remembered in wills."

The organization, it was explained, will be entirely informal with no dues or other financial obligations.

Robert B. Downs, librarian at the University of North Carolina, who will next year become Director of Libraries at New York University, told what similar groups have accomplished. Dr. Benjamin
P. Siedd of the English department at Wake Forest, showed a number of interesting old books from the library and told what that institution means in the life of the college.

Attending the session were Dr.
Charles E. Brewer, president of Meredith college; Claude F. Gatty superintendent of Raleigh's schools;
J. M. Broughton, well known Rylier attorney; Dr. Hubert A. Ry-ster, surgeon and author of note;
Dr. C. C. Crittenden, secretary of the North Carolina Historical Commission; and Dr. Clarence Poe, editor of the Progressive Farmer.
